Dulles, Adenauer Discuss EDC Replacement

Gunman Slain as Hostage Dodges Fire

AP Wirephotos

Barricaded Mental Patient Asks for Death---Is Killed

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Shouting "come and get me, I want to die," a crazed carpenter pushed a woman hostage at gun point onto her front porch, then stepped through the door to his death in a hail of bullets from an off-duty policeman's gun.

H. B. Long, 42, an escapee from the Arkansas State Mental Hospital, yesterday held Mrs. A. D. Lynn captive in her home while he deliberated his next move and repeatedly shouted to police:

"You'll have to come get me, I want to die. I don't want to go back to that lie-place."

Mrs. Lynn said, "I felt sorry for him and tried to talk him into giving up his gun. I told him that was better than death, but he wouldn't listen."

Long was on his way from his ward to the barbershop when he bolted the line and escaped. During his shortlived freedom he terrorized persons in West Little Rock by brandishing a .22 caliber rifle.

Long found Mrs. Lynn in her backyard and ordered her into the house. He asked if she knew anyone who owned a car. "I need a car to get away," he said.

Mrs. Lynn said she began dialing

Attorney Urges Downtown Site for Courthouse

Keep Present Location, Says C. K. Patterson, Discussing Issue

Construction of a new Oakland County courthouse on the site of the present courthouse was urged today by Clarence K. Patterson, Pontiac attorney, in an interview with the Pontiac Press.

He opposes construction on a site proposed by the Oakland County Board of Supervisors. Financing of a new building on this site will be voted on as a special issue at the coming November election.

"The County of Oakland desperately needs a new court house," Mr. Patterson told the Press. "Not only do we need at least one more circuit judge but the quarters furnished for jurors are entirely inadequate. Because a new building is so desperately needed, I hesitate to say anything that might delay the obtaining of one.

"However, it is my opinion that it will be a mistake to place the new county building on the proposed site, that is, in the triangle created by West Boulevard and Telegraph Road.

"In arriving at this conclusion I have tried to disregard any effect that placing the county building out there would have on me personally.

"In fact, I think it would make little difference to me personally. I drive to my office every day and maintain a car downtown each day, so that I personally can furnish my transportation to and from the court house if placed on the proposed site.

"My objection is the lack of public transportation to the proposed site. I think this question has been overlooked and I think it cannot be satisfactorily answered. We must agree that a large part of our population must depend upon public transportation, and until the millennium arrives I think that will continue to be true.

"When one realizes it is proposed to place all the county offices in the new building, that is the register of deeds, the treasurer's office, the office of

Crucial Talks Will Determine Germany's Fate

Leaders Conferring in Bonn on Rearmament and Sovereignty

BONN, Germany (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles arrived here from Washington by plane today for crucial talks with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer on salvaging West German rearmament and sovereignty from the wreckage of the European Defense Community treaty.

Adenauer had left a parliamentary debate, in which Socialists were attacking his government, to greet the American.

The talks with Dulles will be decisive for Germany's fate, the 78-year-old Chancellor had told deputies before departing for the airport. In the debate, Socialists were attacking his government for what they called its "system of secret decisions."

Dulles made it clear in a statement at the airport that he was interested perhaps more in what Adenauer has to say than in any idea he may be bringing with him.

Dulles commented, for example, that Adenauer's government "has consistently followed such enlightened policies that its views must now command great respect."

The French vote against EDC was taken two weeks ago when Dulles was deeply involved in arrangements for the Manila conference. Thus his mission to Europe provides the first opportunity he has had for active personal participation in the search for a new solution to the German problem.

In a statement here last night he said he was interested in the development of steps "to restore German sovereignty and to enable her to contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security."

In his broadcast on the Manila meeting, Dulles stressed the role to be played by U. S. forces but said the treaty would not require any substantial change in American military plans.

He said he had told representatives of the other seven nations at Manila that the United States has responsibilities "so vast and so far flung" that it could best serve the cause of security "by developing the deterrent of mobile striking power, plus strategically placed reserves."

American military plans, he said, "already call for our maintaining at all times powerful naval and air forces in the Western Pacific capable of striking at any aggressor by means and at places of our own choosing."

Jailed for Giving Diabetic Drink

Boy's Life Endangered by Alcohol; Was Left Unconscious in Field

Charged with furnishing whisky to a 14-year-old diabetic boy who could have died from the drink, Thomas Winegar, 21, of 133 S. Edith St., was sentenced to 60 days in Oakland County Jail after pleading guilty before Municipal Judge Cecil McCallum Wednesday.

Winegar, sought in a warrant by Pontiac Police vice squad officials since Sept. 4, was arrested at his home yesterday after several attempts by police to apprehend him.

Yesterday's sentence, also including a 60-day probation period, could be reduced to 30 days in jail if Winegar furnished a $100 fine, said Judge McCallum.

The diabetic youth, according to Lt. Davy Gilpin and Detective Herbert C. Cooley, both of the police vice squad, was confined to the hospital for a week.

The boy was left unconscious in a recreation field near McCarroll School after the drinking spree and staggered seven blocks to his sister's home the following morning, according to police. He was rushed to the hospital after suffering a seizure. Authorities said the youth was fed intravenously the entire week and the whisky could have killed him without proper treatment.

Winegar admitted in court that he knew the boy was a juvenile.

Detective Sgt. Raymond Meggitt said that Winegar is still on probation for breaking and entering in the nighttime.

U.S. Girl Beats Irish Player

Superb Play by Mary Lena Faulk Too Much for Miss Garvey

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Defending champion Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., played superb golf to crush Ireland's Philomena Garvey, 5 and 4, today and enter the quarter final round of the women's national Amateur Golf Championship.

Miss Faulk, determined to wipe out her defeat by Miss Garvey in last year's British Women's Championship, shot the front nine of the tight little Allegheny Country Club course in one-under-par 35 to lead by six holes.

Miss Faulk wavered at the start of the back 9, she "came to" on the 14th to close out the match.

She finished the round on the 6,034-yard, par 36-36—73 course two over par for 14 holes.

Trim little Mrs. Roslyn (Cookie) Berger of Buffalo, N. Y., upset Miss Stewart one up, and will meet Miss Faulk in the 18-hole quarter final this afternoon.

Mickey Wright of La Jolla, Calif., was square with Argentina's Mrs. Margarita De Maglione and Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., last year's runner-up, was one up on 19-year-old Janette Robertson of Scotland.

Chemical Blaze Routs Residents

Citizens Are Evacuated From Lansing Section Before Explosion

LANSING (AP) — Residents of a three-block area in the northwestern section of Lansing were ordered evacuated from their homes as fire swept through a chemical plant this morning.

The State Health Department ordered the evacuation at 10 a.m. this morning when it was learned that a 6,000-gallon tank of nitrochloro-benzene was in danger of exploding.

The tank blew up in a roar of flame at 10:08, minutes after the area had been cleared.

Officials of the Chemox Corp. on Glenrose avenue, said the fire apparently was started by spontaneous combustion in compounds used in the manufacture of vitamin powder.

The fire was centered in a large wooden warehouse building.

Health Department officials cleared out the area mainly because they feared that fumes from the burning chemicals might be dangerous.

The chemical plant was still burning at 10:50 a.m. Firemen concentrated their efforts on trying to save adjoining buildings.

There were no injuries reported from the fire. State Police said that four persons had been killed but later found out the report was erroneous.

Firemen said at noon that the blaze definitely was under control, although it still was burning.

Plant officials tentatively estimated that the damage would amount to more than $200,000.

The area was roped off and about 20 state policemen and an equal number of Lansing policemen were summoned to the scene to keep spectators away from the burning buildings.

French-Bonn Ties Vital, Eden and Mendes Agree

PARIS (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Eden and French Premier Mendes-France announced tonight they had agreed on the necessity for "close cooperation between France and West Germany" but did not say they had agreed on the means for achieving it.

Eden and Mendes-France came out of a 2½ hour conference at the French Foreign Ministry.

Mendes-France said there was "no contradiction and nothing irreconcilable" in their viewpoints. He announced there would be a meeting of countries in the projected Western alliance in London probably on Sept. 27.

Mendes-France talked to a large crowd of reporters in the lobby of the French Foreign Ministry after Eden had driven off in a pelting rain.

The French Premier explained that the two points of view had been fully set forth and a beginning made on bringing them together. Diplomatic exchanges in the next few days, he added, would bring the view points even closer together.

Earlier in the day, Eden informed the 14 nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council about his plan.

The British, who backed EDC but would not join it, propose to link a rearmed West Germany and Italy to the Brussels mutual defense pact signed in 1948 by Britain, France and the Benelux nations.

The alliance presumably would operate under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which has taken over the military phases of the Brussels pact.

The big hurdle was to get France to accept such an arrangement. Eden and Mendes-France spent six hours together yesterday discuss-

Divorce Trial Here Is Delayed

Husband Claims Wife's Relations With Police Were Improper

Testimony was delayed today in an Oakland County Circuit Court divorce case which yesterday saw five Royal Oak city policemen deny they carried on "improper relations" with an estranged housewife.

The charges against the officers were aired in a divorce action instituted by Mrs. Ellen E. Lytle of 918 N. Gainsborough, Royal Oak, against her husband Robert J.

Mrs. Lytle today said she was too ill to continue under cross examination by her husband's attorney. She was stated for a medical examination this noon.

In April and June of 1954 Lytle approached Royal Oak City Manager E. M. Shafter and Police Chief Ray C. Hayward with charges against the officers.

Both Shafter and Hayward testified yesterday in the case, saying, when questioned by them the officers denied the charges. Hayward said the five had spotless records.

Called to the stand by Mrs. Lytle's attorney, the officers categorically denied the allegations.

Called were four patrolmen, Robert Main, Wallace Smith, Thomas Wilson and Thomas Gorman plus Lt. Dale Williams.

The couple are disputing custody of their 10-year-old girl and six-year-old boy.

In her bill of complaint, Mrs. Lytle set her husband's yearly income at $250,000. She stated he owns major interest in one construction company, with smaller interests in three others. He said his earnings are $5,000 per year. She asks no specific property settlement.

Detroit Sets Sterling Example to Other Cities on Way to Integrate Races

Editor's Note: Detroit, scene of a bloody race riot 11 years ago, recently was called "the place where Negroes have the best chance of making good." How did Detroit do it? Here is the story of a northern city's progress in race relations and its current problem, pointed up by the Supreme Court desegregation ruling.

By GLENN ENGLE

DETROIT (AP)—Eleven years ago, in the midst of a global war against oppression, a tragic race riot smudged Detroit's worldwide reputation as the "Arsenal of Democracy."

Now that smudge is wearing off. Racial tensions have eased immeasurably since those sweltering days in June, 1943, when whites and Negroes engaged in pitched battles for blocks around downtown Cadillac Square.

Thirty-four persons — 25 Negroes and 9 whites—died violently, victims of gunfire, clubs and other weapons. Some were killed by police. Many were killed by unknown assailants blinded by hatred to everything except their victims' color.

Hundreds were injured. Property damage ran into hundreds of thousands. Rioting raged on for a week before police, aided by army troops, restored peace.

An Interracial Committee was set up under then Mayor Edward J. Jeffries. Its director, George Schermer, won a national reputation for his accomplishments.

When he went to Philadelphia to do similar work, the committee was established by city ordinance as the Commission on Community Relations. John Laub became its director.

Things reached such a harmonious state a year ago that Walter White, executive secretary of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, wrote:

"Once the hotbed of race riots, Detroit now is setting an example for American cities in the forthright way she is eliminating hostility between whites and Negroes."

Leaders of Detroit's 300,000 Negroes say much needs to be done yet. Some say the situation has taken a turn for the worse in the past year. They point out that their race represents 17 per cent of the city's population, but:

Negroes get more than half of the city's welfare aid.

Negroes commit more than half of the city's crimes.

Negroes can't get into some of the city's housing projects and thousands of them live in squalor.

They also contend that segregation continues in the Detroit school system despite a 70-year-old Michigan law and the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision against it.

Edward M. Turner, president of the Detroit branch of NAACP, says school districts are "gerrymandered" to separate Negro and white students. He also says Negro teachers are not assigned to predominantly white schools.

Arthur M. Dondineau, Detroit school superintendent, vigorously denies this.

Federal District Judge Arthur F. Lederle held in June that the city has no right to practice segregation in its housing projects.

Judge Lederle's decision is being appealed to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Sociologists who studied the 1943 riot said an important factor was the heavy influx of whites from the South to work in Detroit war plants, which already employed a large percentage of Negroes.

All local authorities credit labor unions with reducing friction in the city's big auto plants. There, seniority now means more than color in employment rights.

as their 'City of Opportunity,' the A Negro minister, the Rev. Jesse Jai McNeil of the Tabernacle Baptist Church, remarked recently:

"Our people look upon Detroit as their 'City of Opportunity,' the place where Negroes have the best chance of making good."

The Day in Birmingham

Adams Village Model Home to Be on Display Next Week

From Our Birmingham Bureau

BIRMINGHAM — Coincidental with National Home Week, Sept. 19-26, the first completed model in the Adams Village 106-duplex home development will be on display daily from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The 36-acre tract of land, on the east side of Adams road between East Maple and Lincoln, is being developed by Reid-Paterson Inc. Single units in the duplexes may be purchased from $13,495 up. Complete buildings with two single-family units are available at $26,990 up.

Sites of the homes vary in size but are at least 137 feet in depth. Set-back lines will also be varied, and a number of floor plans will be used. A variety of exteriors will lend character to the two-story, brick and frame colonial type homes.

Each home will contain more than 1,000 square feet of floor space, and will come equipped with aluminum storms and screens, disposal units, incinerators and other features. Front and side yards will be sodded.

Later on, 16 single-family homes will be constructed at the northern end of the property as part of the $3.5 million project, with business frontage on Adams.

To eliminate all-day parking, signs were placed on Park street between Hamilton and Oakland on Tuesday, restricting the east side of the street to two-hour parking.

Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley said the move was made so that emergency vehicles can travel the street. Because a similar problem exists on Ann street between Frank and Purdy, Moxley said signs will be placed on the east side of Ann within a few days.

Membership in the institute is open to the public at a nominal fee. Further information may be obtained through Nickell.

Members of Circle 2 of the Congregational Church will hold a pie sale at the church tomorrow.

An all-church dinner is planned for 6:30 tonight at the church. A congregational meeting will follow the dinner and group singing.

The City Commission will continue in its endeavor to have 14 Mile road extended between Southfield and Cranbrook roads. Commissioners this week authorized the city manager or attorney to take the proposal to the Oakland County Planning Commission.

Lawmakers are concerned over what will happen when the new home development on the former Mercier Farms property is opened, since Lahser road is now the only opening to the west.

Bigamy Suspect Faces Probe

Prosecutor Looking Into Larceny Counts Against Glenn J. Cole

Oakland County Prosecutor's Office officials are investigating two larceny counts against Glenn J. Cole accused bigamist. Meanwhile, police said today that the suspect has a long record of felonies and prison sentences.

The larceny counts were brought by Cole's employer, Ralph Dystance, president of Water Softeners Inc., who said Cole had accepted money from customers and failed to turn it over to the company.

Pontiac Chief of Detectives Clark Wheaton said Cole's record began in 1929 at Lansing where he was sentenced to 1½ to 10 years in Ionia Reformatory for auto theft. He received another 5 to 10-year term in 1934 after he fled the Midland jail where he was being held pending sentence for another car theft.

He was paroled in 1939 but was back in prison again in 1949 after conviction for a Saginaw armed robbery, the spokesman said. He was sentenced to 15-25 years on that count and another 7½ to 15 for another robbery.

Wheaton said Cole was paroled in 1944 and has no additional record until the bigamy charge.

Mrs. Anna Herrin, 41, of 723½ W. Huron St., wife number two, brought the charges when she discovered the existance of wife number one, Mrs. Maybelle Cole, 38, of 117 Murphy St.

Members Night to Attract 1,500 to Science Institute

BLOOMFIELD HILLS—It will be "Members Night" at Cranbrook Institute of Science tomorrow, the once-a-year program for more than 1,500 enthusiasts in the field of natural science.

Fascinating new exhibits will be on display, a trading post will be open to collectors and junior members, and a television-inspired identification game will test the knowledge of participants.

One of the main attractions will be the first demonstration of the institute's newly acquired Spitz planetarium, only such instrument that has the new planet projector. Eventually it will be housed in its own building there.

Live parakeets of various sizes and strains will be one of the exhibits.

Perhaps the most interesting display is entitled, "Life in a Beehive." This is an original exhibition, three times life size. It depicts a colony of wild bees living in a tree hollow.

One of the things it will show is the specialization of labor, at which bees are so efficient.

Clear Motorist in Holdup Killing

Chevrolet Driver, Wife, Last to See Howe Alive, Bought Gas at 2 A.M.

BIRMINGHAM — Police yesterday found the 1937 Chevrolet sought in the holdup murder of Doyle Howe, 24-year-old service station attendant found slain Sunday in the washroom of a station at Woodward and Chapin.

In so doing, they located and cleared of suspicion probably the last two persons to see Howe alive, before the killing.

Detective Lt. Merlin Holmquist said the hunt led to a motel apartment at Pontiac Lake.

The unnamed owner of the car told police he and his wife had stopped at the station for gas on the way home from visiting friends in Royal Oak.

The young man said he asked for the time, and Howe replied that it was about 2 a.m. They then drove to Keego Harbor to pick up their baby, who had been left with a brother-in-law.

The family there said the couple arrived at between 2:10 and 2:20 a.m.

Holmquist said no new clues had been uncovered, in talks with close friends of the victim.

the telephone but Long suddenly jerked the receiver from her hand. "I've changed my mind," he told her.

A neighbor, A. Lewis, had heard the commotion in the yard and called police.

A dozen officers surrounded the house and called to the man to surrender. When Long refused a policeman asked if he would free Mrs. Lynn.

Long then began marching Mrs. Lynn through the house and onto the front porch. Mrs. Lynn walked calmly — "as if she were on her way shopping," one officer said — although Long was behind her with a gun at her back.

Mrs. Lynn said as she walked into the yard, "not daring to think," she sensed a swift movement behind her and fell to the ground. She fell only a few feet in front of Long as Gene Smith, an off-duty policeman, opened fire.

Long fell under a fusilade of six shots—only one missed the target.

As he rolled to the ground, he groaned:

"Thanks fellows...That's good enough, it's just what I wanted."

A moment later he was dead.

FHA Probers to Visit Detroit

To Delve Into 'Pitiful' Cases; $100,000 Fraud Uncovered in Chicago

DETROIT (INS) — The Senate Banking Committee announced today that it will hold hearings in Detroit next week to delve into several "pitiful cases of swindling" in connection with phony FHA home improvement loans.

And in Chicago, the Banking Committee investigating the Federal Housing Administration scandal has uncovered a $100,000 fraud during its open hearing.

Maurice Bauman, 30, a mortgage dealer in Champaign, Ill., testified yesterday that he had obtained $100,000 in FHA-backed home improvement loans, most of which was not used for that purpose.

Sen. Homer Capehart (R-Ind), presiding over the hearing, exclaimed:

"This is the most amazing revelation I've heard."

Capehart ordered Bauman to freeze his books and records, pending a committee decision as to their disposition. Bauman faces possible prosecution for forgery and fraud.

He freely confessed an ingenious plan whereby he set up more than 30 central Illinois "straw men" who signed applications for home loans.

The loans ranged from $2,000 to $2,500 for which Bauman paid each "straw man" $50 to $100 for signing the blank applications.

Joseph Shaw Fined for Dirty Literature

Joseph A. Shaw, 49, of 77 Oseola Dr., arrested while in possession of obscene literature, paid a $100 fine and $50 costs Wednesday when he pleaded guilty in Municipal Court.

Judge Cecil McCallum also ordered Shaw on 60 days probation.

Sgt. Donny Ashley of Pontiac Police vice squad said Shaw was charged after he was stopped in his car at Iroquois and Cherokee Rds. Sept. 3.

Ashley also said that Shaw had been arrested before on a similar charge and was fined $100.

18,000 Returning to Ohio A-Plant as Strike Ends

WAVERLY, Ohio (AP) — About 18,000 AFL construction workers return to work today, ending a strike that has tied up work at the huge Portsmouth area atomic energy plant since last Friday.

By Monday the plant will be in full operation, said Federal Mediator George Bell.

There was considerable confusion about what actually caused the strike, which union spokesmen said was unauthorized. Union and company officials appeared reluctant to talk about it.

But Guy Morrison, international representative of the AFL Ironworkers, said the strike was the result of a misunderstanding. Construction work was being turned over too soon to the Goodyear Atomic Corp., which will operate the plant for the Atomic Energy Commission. Thus, he said, construction work was being handled by production workers.

That error has been cleared up, he said after a meeting with company officials and the federal mediator last night.

Morrison said the construction workers would get jobs that rightfully are theirs.

Detroit Seeks Con Man in $100,000 Plus Swindle

DETROIT (INS) — The list of victims swindled by con man extraordinary William Jacobs continued to grow today as police pressed their search for the oily-tongued ex-convict.

At least 20 victims, police said, lost upwards of $100,000 to Jacobs, who disappeared about a week ago when some began to doubt his fast and smooth talk.

Jacobs was released from Jackson Prison in 1951 after serving a term for swindling persons out of $200,000 by promising them hard-to-get cars and liquor licenses. Police were unaware until recently that Jacobs was up to his old tricks.

Kiwanians to Wash Cars Here to Raise Money

Members of the North Pontiac Kiwanis Club plan to wash cars from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 19 to finance their first observance of International Kids' Day, Saturday, Sept. 25.

The car washing will take place at the Pontiac Motor Mart, 105 E. Montcalm St. All proceeds will be used to finance a show for children in the area served by the club. It will be held at the Oakland Theater from 10 a.m. to 12 Sept. 25. Horace Hatfield, chairman of the club's boys and girls' commitee, is in charge.

Europe No Market for Dairy Surplus

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UP)—Two of the nation's dairy leaders say Europe presents a very poor market for surplus U. S. dairy products. Prof. Paul Weaver, of the Michigan State College dairy department, and H. W. Norton Jr., researcher for the Holstein-Friesian Assn., said they found on a tour of France, Germany, the Netherlands, Denmark, Switzerland and England that these countries have their own dairy surplus problems —and are looking for markets themselves.

Tax Collector Parleys Penny Refund Into $20

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UP)—Gus Ernst's laugh on the federal tax department turned into a sour-grapes frown.

Ernst figured the government owed him one cent when he filed his income tax. He put in a claim for a refund, planning to have a chuckle or two showing a one-cent check to friends.

"Your application for a refund has been received. However, on checking your return, we find that the mileage allowance was computed erroneously. Please remit an additional $20."

Woman Pins Tax Plea on Household Problems

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—So you think you have troubles?

Asking for a tax reduction on her house, a young woman who described herself as a family breadwinner gave the tax equalization board these reasons:

The house is falling down.

The furniture is coming apart.

Noisy trucks drive past at all hours.

Noisy airplanes fly over the house.

Nobody will buy the house under any conditions.

Body Declines After 30

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP)—Life may begin at 40, but Helen Becker, extension health specialist at the University of Nebraska says your body begins to grow old at 30.

Miss Becker said she got her information from an "old-age expert at the national heart institute.

Regardless of the statement, people are living longer all the time, she said. The average age at death is now 69.8 years, compared with 63 years just a decade ago.

Maine's Election

Many people contend Maine lost its position as the "barometer state" years and years ago. In any event the current election there is interesting.

One term Republican Governor Burton M. Cross was defeated and for the first time since 1934 a Democrat emerged the victor in the gubernatorial race.

The winner with 55 per cent of the total vote is Edmund D. Muskie, 39-year-old Waterville attorney and one time minority floor leader in the Maine House. His triumph was somewhat of a surprise, although his opponent barely made the grade two years ago. The election was one in which both major parties could find reasons for satisfaction.

That the Pine Tree State still is strongly Republican is shown by the re-election of Sen. Margaret Chase Smith and Maine's three GOP Representatives, Hale, Nelson and McIntire.

While Mrs. Smith was an easy winner over Colby College Professor Paul A. Fullam, the total votes for her and the three House winners were smaller than two years ago. Nonetheless, GOP National Chairman Hall hailed the fact that Republican strength in Congress is undiminished.

On the other hand Democratic National Chairman Mitchell estimates that the Republican totals were 12 per cent smaller than in 1952. From this he argues optimistically that Maine results reflect national dissatisfaction with the Eisenhower Administration.

However, there is ample room for belief that Gov. Cross' defeat was the result of voter dissatisfaction with his administration and had nothing to do with national issues. It also is highly probable that the smaller Republican majorities this year are attributable mainly to the fact that the Democrats waged their most intensive campaign in two decades.

More Canal Rent Asked

Prospects are that revision of our Canal treaty with Panama will result in the granting of some concessions asked by that government.

When the treaty was negotiated in 1903 it gave us complete control of a 10 mile wide, 52 mile long Canal Zone strip. Rental at that time was set at $250,000 a year. It was increased in 1936 to $430,000 when the dollar was devalued and the treaty revised.

Now, according to conflicting reports, Panama wants the rent raised by varying amounts up to $5,000,000. It also is asking an end of the differential in pay rates between U. S. and native labor. Other demands are for restricting sales at U. S. commissaries and return to Panama of certain land and water areas. Also asked are better markets for Panamanian products in the zone and wider U. S. economic and technical aid.

At present the waterway handles about 17,000 ships a year, at a gross profit of $4,000,000. This figure doesn't include the cost of depreciation, amortization or military protection.

Changing economic conditions would seem to justify an increase in canal rent. But talk in Washington, where negotiations have been in progress for a year, is that Panama will fail in its effort to reduce our sovereignty. Obviously, our Government must keep complete control of a facility that is so vital to our national security.

"Curtain of Ignorance"

Whatever else one may think of Clement Attlee's recent journey, it must be granted that neither the Russian nor the Chinese Reds were able to pull the wool over his eyes.

In his report on the controversial trip, the British Labor Party's chief made several comments which irked both Moscow and Peiping. Nothing he has said, however, has been more pertinent than his comment on Communism's "curtain of ignorance."

"Here, over this vast expanse of the world, from the Elbe River to the China Sea," his report said, "the workers are not to be allowed to think for themselves. Books which might cause them to think will not even be printed. The curtain of ignorance is thicker and more dangerous than the Iron Curtain."

Mr. Atlee added that countless millions of illiterates will "hear only with the ears and see only with the eyes of their masters." In other words, he saw that the Communist plan is to give these millions only enough education to make them efficient slaves.

What Britain's former Prime Minister has done is point to the great difference between a slave and a free society. Communist refusal to educate the masses is one of the worst crimes of their social and economic systems.

Football Contest Closing; $300 in U. S. Bonds Is Prize

Daffynition

Sorrowful: What youill be if you don't act NOW on the instructions below.

This is the last time the list of games in the football contest will be published. Make your predictions on the Detroit Lions-Cleveland Browns game the same as if it was to be on Oct. 3, its original date. On account of the World Series, it has been put over until Dec. 19, and of course will not be counted until then. Here is the list:

Sept. 18—Maryland vs Kentucky
Sept. 24—Waterford vs Pontiac High
Oct. 3—Detroit Lions vs Cleveland Browns
Oct. 9—Pennsylvania vs Princeton
Oct. 16—Michigan State vs Notre Dame
Oct. 22—Tulsa vs Detroit
Oct. 30—Indiana vs Michigan
Nov. 6—Wayne vs Omaha
Nov. 13—Michigan State vs Michigan
Nov. 20—Southern California vs U.C.L.A.
Nov. 25—Brown vs Colgate
Nov. 27—Army vs Navy

The prize, $300 in U. S. Bonds, goes to the person or persons remaining in the contest to the end, or until all others are eliminated. Simply indicate which team you think will win each game, or if you think it will be a tie. Clip out the above list, if you wish, and check each team you think will win. If you think it will be a tie game, do not check either team. Attach to a piece of paper bearing your name and address. Or you can simply write out the winners and ties. Every member of your family is eligible to compete, but each entry must be on a separate piece of paper. All entries must be in the Press office by noon on Saturday—and that's less than two days away. Get busy NOW if you can use $300.

I have it direct from none other than ended a long family tradition for attendance in the Central School. Mrs. Hale's maiden name was Annalee Slater, and her grandmother attended that school in 1884. Her parents attended it when the old structure was replaced by the present building in 1897. Mr. and Mrs. Hale went to school there, and so did their children.

Where are we drifting? In looking back into history I find there were powers that would cut the tongues from the mouth of persons who dared to express their personal opinion, but nowhere can I find record of a dumb animal being treated that way. I note by your valuable paper there is a small reward offered for the arrest and conviction of the fiend who perpetrated this foul deed. I say let us human beings add to that reward and make it big enough to bring a result. I will add $5 to it, and all good people who wish to do the same can do so by phoning FE 2-2426, give their names and addresses and the amount they wish to contribute. Open your pockets and give freely to a humane cause and try to see that justice is done!

Says Spiritual Strength Is What Americans Need

Dr. Nicholas Nyradi, former Minister of Finance, Hungary, recently delivered a speech to a Lutheran assembly in Milwaukee. In this speech he was trying to open Americans' eyes to the danger we are facing through communism, as practiced in his native country. He also is putting the blame, where it belongs, on the U. S. for all and every move the Commies have made since 1945.

When they took over his native land, every truck, car and jeep they were using were American, given to them through what we call lend-lease, to our so great and noble Soviet allies. The doctor concludes his speech by reminding and warning the U. S., in order to keep our great land and homes and our freedom, to wake up, stop our indifferences, and face the facts. Stop trusting too much in our political and military strength, humble ourselves before God, as he says, "use your spiritual strength and work to increase it in your land, for in real Christianity you have something even stronger then the atom."

Case Records of a Psychologist

Younger Child Usually the Extrovert; Manipulates Parents to Gain Ends

How do you account for the personality differences between Tom and Terry? If you want to learn how children develop into introverts versus extroverts, then study this case record carefully. And compare Terry with the biblical prodigal son.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case M-316: Tom and Terry are brothers, aged 9 and 7.

"Dr. Crane, they are as different as night and day," their mother informed me.

"Tom is quiet and somewhat shy. He daydreams while getting dressed in the morning. And he is more possessive. He holds on to his candy and may keep it for weeks.

"But not Terry, for Terry gobbles up his candy at once and then tries to coax Tom into sharing his.

"And Terry is a friend of everybody. He isn't shy at all. So don't you think heredity explains this marked difference between them?"

No, we psychologists admit that heredity accounts for some differences, but most of these shown by Tom and Terry are usually due to their sequence in the family.

In other words, if Terry still had the same heredity that he now possesses, but had simply been born first, then Terry would be shy and possessive and the daydreamer, while Tom would be the typical younger son.

For the prodigal son is a classical example of the difference between the younger brother versus his older sibling.

And these differences are explained by the varying home environment. For when the first-born arrives, there is no other youngster to threaten his monopoly of the spotlight.

And no other youngster is present to dominate him or even stimulate his learning to talk. So the firstborn has a childless environment at the outset.

His parents aren't with him constantly, so he learns to amuse himself and even daydream a lot. He may talk to imaginary playmates.

He also plays with blocks and toys which are inanimate and hence cannot argue or fight with him.

But notice what happens when his baby brother arrives two or three years later. The baby gains the spotlight at once.

And the baby will soon grab the possessions of the older brother, so the latter must hold on to his toys and keep track of them.

The younger brother soon finds that his wishes are thwarted by the stronger older brother, so he learns to scream and cry as if he is being killed, for that makes mother rush to his rescue.

So the second child becomes a practicing psychologist who manipulates his parents to gain his ends. And he later is more likely to follow the crowd, for he has started out in life as a follower.

He may thus adopt cigarettes and profanity or other customs much quicker than will his introvertive older brother.

For the younger brother is more an extrovert. He spends money freely, as did the prodigal son. And he learns to talk his way along, so he may become a salesman.

You are thus made into an introvert or an extrovert largely by your early childhood experiences.

The oldest child is generally more introvertive, especially if the two are of the same sex and only 2 or 3 years apart in age.

There are some exceptions to this rule, but the majority of children are true to type.

Since the older child is loaded with the responsibility of looking after the younger when they are at play, he also tends to be more careful. The younger is more thoughtless and reckless.

David Lawrence Says:

Republicans May Lose Up to 100 Seats in House

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has gone fishing for a few days — and maybe it will give him a chance to do some thinking about the crisis that has come to his career.

For, as of today, it looks as if the American people, in the coming congressional election, are about to repudiate his administration in the middle of his term.

Abroad — under a parliamentary system — it would mean an enforced resignation. But in America when it sometimes happens — as it did in the middle of President Truman's term — it merely means a realignment of political forces which may or may not bode ill for the party in the subsequent presidential election.

Eisenhower has had a curious indifference to politics. He has been led to believe by misguided friends that it is a sordid business from which he, as a former general and a nonpartisan, ought to stay aloof. He has been advised by a coterie of advisers with more worshipfulness than political sense that he is immensely popular and that all that's needed in the congressional election are a few television appearances and a magic smile. The same group of advisers have been turning the cold shoulder toward the regulars in the party, accusing them of not being in tune with the times or of harboring a fallacious obsession about the importance of party organization.

The Citizens - for - Eisenhower movement, for instance, was revived as a confession of distrust as to the readiness of the independent voters to accept the Republican Party itself. There have been, moreover, some serious fights inside the party, notably the McCarthy affair, and all in all the traditional concern for party harmony has been dashed aside.

Eisenhower has not been living in a vacuum. He has noted in the press — if, indeed, he does read many newspapers — that there has been a battle on to discredit the Republican Party. But the occasions have been few and far between when he has said a kind word for the party itself or taken the trouble to attack the record of the Democrats.

Campaigns are not won by failing to remind the people of past mistakes of the opposition. They are won by both an offense and a defense — and the President himself has been weak on the offense.

The first session of Congress accomplished little and the administration's strategy was to leave everything to the second session, where a creditable job, to be sure, was done. But prejudices by the voters are formed during the first year and a half, and it is a little late now to build a public impression in six or eight weeks of a campaign.

Judging by the Maine elections and the sensational drop-off in Republican votes, the Republicans face the dim prospect that they may lose as many as 100 seats in the House and also lose the Senate by two or three seats.

Present indications are that a landslide is in the making against the Eisenhower administration. Only a political miracle and an aggressive personal fight by the President himself might turn the tide.

He cannot delegate the task of winning this election to Vice President Nixon or to Speaker Martin or to Sherman Adams or to any of his staff. It's Eisenhower who must fight for his party, and that means bringing harmony to an already seriously divided party, so many of whose precinct workers of other years act as if they themselves will go fishing on election day.

The facts about political conditions were told to the President in Denver the other day by the 19 members of the Midwest and Rocky Mountain State Chairmen's Association. Publicly they talked with optimism. Privately they were gloomy.

What the President has been told is that there is a general apathy within his party. The negative vote — those who have grievances against the administration, either because of unemployment or the drop in farm income — is certain to reduce big Republican majorities in normally Republican states, but it is in the districts where the margin is narrow that there is little hope of victory.

It will not be of any help to have the Watkins Committee report filed and a special Senate session convened to hold an inquest on the alleged misconduct of a senator who has been fighting communism.

To win this fall, all elements of the party will have to be urged to go to the polls. For the Republican vote is notoriously apathetic in large numbers, anyway.

So something has to be done to enthuse the party workers — and Eisenhower will have to come up with some thoughts of his own on this when he is through with his fishing trip. Otherwise, in November he will find that, if the party is defeated, he will be regarded as still personally popular but as a political liability by a large segment of his own party — and this could mean a big Democratic victory in 1956.

Baering Down

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
(International News Service)

One week before Watkins' gavel tolled the knell of departing daze we hypothecated the catch of the senatorial fishing expedition.

This cornerstone of round-bout information said the worse they could do to McCarthy was break his umbrella or swipe the milk off his front porch.

The investigation of the investigation should be investigated. It got no further than a rock-fall in Niagara.

Four Republicans and three Democrats put their heads together. Since when has seven berries been a harvest?

They rebuked McCarthy, admonished Stevens, chided Cohn and reprimanded Adams. It was an avalanche of frowns and a hurricane of pouts.

We know that Cohn and Stevens were not as cozy as a breakfast nook. Neither were McCarthy and Adams sending their laundry out together.

We discovered that in thirty-six straight spring days of televised heckling. This month the mountain again becomes the mother of a mouse.

Let's reprise the majority epilogue, "McCarthy did not twist the Pentagon's five arms in behalf of Private Schine. However, he should have taken the switchknives away from his teenage gang."

Boiled down to the usual parliamentary soup-stock it was a neat white-washing job with vanishing cream.

The residue of the aftermath was that Stevens and Adams should have mixed a little more cement with their gelatine. Now all l'affaire Schine needs is a coat of dust.

Good Daily Supplement of Vitamin B Will Prevent Trouble Labeled Colic

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

In the new Brady Baby Book, I say that I believe infantile "colic" is wholly imaginary—on the part of parent, nurse or doctor. I refrained from putting Sairey Gamp, Mrs. Sumsey and Ben Told in there. After all, I can't take on everybody at once.

Mind, now, Wiseacres, I do not mean to imply that the baby imagines he is in pain, uncomfortable, too warm, frightened by noises or bright lights, sickened by tobacco smoke in the air, unsatisfied by the substitute foisted upon him in place of his birthright, deranged from the untoward effects of the castor oil or the enemas inflicted on him by the neighborhood nuisance or just unhappy because nobody bothers to see that he is undressed at 5 p.m., bathed, dried, powdered, back rubbed, and given fifteen or twenty minutes to play on his blanket, in didies only, before he is nursed—or if his mother is something less than perfect, given his bottle—in crib or bed and sent off to slumberland rock-a-by-baby.

Earlier, on p. 13 of the new Brady Baby Book, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope, I say:

"... as it seems to me, the baby who gets an adequate ration of vitamin B, even though entirely surrounded by grandmas and kind neighbors, will never make a noise like colic."

It takes about a quart of milk to supply 100 units (about one-third of a milligram) of vitamin B (thiamin), and few young infants who are not nursed get enough vitamin B to satisfy their daily requirement unless they are given a daily ration of vitamin B as a supplement to the diet.

It is well established in the experience of progressive physicians that when the supply of vitamin B complex falls below the level necessary for good nutrition, the infant or child is certain to suffer from weakness of digestive functions, especially the tone and motor functions of stomach and intestine.

In her classical textbook "The Foundations of Nutrition" Prof. Mary Schwartz Rose pointed out that milk is not rich enough in B-complex to insure an adequate supply of this vitamin for the infant, and quotes Prof. B. R. Hoobler's advice that the physician should prescribe a suitable vitamin B suplement as well as orange juice and fish liver oil supplements for the infant's diet.

Without abating a jot or tittle in regard to the unproved charge that the baby has "colic" I beg to suggest that a good daily ration of vitamin B will prevent or cure some of the troubles that doctors, parents, nurses and neighbors so readily ascribe to "colic."

One infant given such a daily ration of B-complex changed in two weeks from a thin, pale, spastic, restless, whining infant, refusing part of its formula, to a happy, rosy-cheeked, smiling baby whose appetite seemed never to be completely satisfied and whose gain in weight was remarkable.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self addressed envelope is enclosed, etc.

Few States to Give Court Segregation Arguments

WASHINGTON (INS)—The deadline for joining in new Supreme Court arguments on school segregation arrives today amid indications that the majority of the 21 states involved will decline to take part.

Only five states have notified the court that they wish to send representatives for the oral arguments this fall. The deadline, placed on the court's invitation last spring, was 5 p. m. (EDT) today.

The new arguments are limited to the question of when integration should take place—whether the change should be immediate or gradual. A date for the oral arguments, probably in November or December, is expected to be set within the next two weeks.

Invitations to participate went to the attorneys general of states where separate schools for Negroes have been maintained either on a voluntary or compulsory basis. Florida, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee and Maryland are the states that have responded.

Florida and Tennessee sent brief statements, Oklahoma sent a telegram, and Maryland and Arkansas notified the court by telephone that they will want to present their views.

Although more acceptances are expected before the actual deadline this afternoon, there is no indication so far that most of the states most deeply concerned will send representatives. Except Florida, all acceptances thus far received were from border states.

Maryland has already started desegregation on a partial basis, while Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee and Florida belong to the group awaiting further action by the court.

Meanwhile, the District of Columbia has already started its program ending segregation and apparently plans no arguments on the how or when of racial integration before the high court.

Constitutionally, with or without an invitation, and regardless of the deadline, the states have the right to file written petitions and arguments with the court at any time.

Ripping Parking Ticket Sets Driver Back $25

HILLSBORO, O. (UP) — Glenn E. Burger, 26, Wilmington, O., was angry when he found an overtime parking ticket on his car. He tore it to shreds—and regretted it later.

On the next trip around, Patrolman Glenn Bowe noted the torn up ticket, the meter which still indicated "expired," and decided to take more direct action.

He located Burger at a tavern, took him to the police station where the motorist was forced to post a $25 appearance bond, which was forfeited when he failed to show up for a hearing.

It generally is thought that people all over the world have owned dogs. From pole to pole, explorers have always found dogs with the most primitive or most civilized people.

Tending Billy Goat Cuts Soldiers' Accident Rate

DEILINGHOFEN, Germany (UP) — "Freddy" the billy goat mascot of the Canadian Princess Infantry Regiment was named the "best automobile accident preventor" of the outfit today.

Capt. Mike Levy said the accident rate had dropped more than 50 per cent since headquarters ordered the unit's worst drivers to serve as goat keepers—combing, brushing and feeding Freddy.

Six out of every 10 people in the world live off farms.

President to Get 92-Foot Cruiser

Annapolis Is Rebuilding Yacht Barbara Anne for Ike's Use

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — President Eisenhower may have rejected the Williamsburg as a presidential yacht, but the Navy apparently hasn't given up trying to make at least a part-time sailor of him.

A sleek, 92-foot cruiser named the Barbara Anne is being rebuilt and refurnished here, to be available for presidential use. Delivery is expected in about three weeks.

After weeks of hush-hush work on the boat, White House sources said late yesterday it will be available for the President. There was no indication that the Barbara Anne would take the place of the much larger Williamsburg.

The Williamsburg, which had been used by President Roosevelt and Truman, was returned to fulltime Navy duty after Eisenhower's inauguration. He said it was "too rich" for his blood.

White House sources said the Barbara Anne, named after one of the President's granddaughters, will be a "day cruiser" only. Although elaborately furnished, it has quarters only for the commander and crew. The larger Williamsburg, with an overall length of 243 feet and a 36-foot beam, had sleeping accommodations for the President and his party, in addition to the crew.

Group Warns Poisoning Still Hazard to Children

CINCINNATI, O. (UP)—A Civic group here studying dangers to children has warned that accidental poisoning is still a common cause of death or suffering.

The safety committee of the Cincinnati Pediatric Society pointed out that even the gnawing on the crisp, lead-filled paint of a window sill can result in poisoning. The committee said children frequently are posoned in this manner.

A druggist told the group that within a single recent year, 400 new products potentially poisonous to children who might swallow them were put on the market.

Skunk With Head in Jar Causes a Traffic Jam

LEBANON, N. H. (UP)—More and more motorists halted their vehicles on Route 4 near the Enfield - Lebanon boundary to watch as a skunk, its head caught in a glass jar, crossed and recrossed the highway.

None of the audience got too close. Three intrepid highway department workers failed in attempts to get close enough to break the jar.

After almost an hour had passed and traffic was getting hopelessly tied up, Police Chief Francis La Bounty of Enfield reluctantly shot the skunk.

American Pets Living Better

Dogs and Cats Prove Favorite Companions for Householders

WASHINGTON—Americans, soft hearted toward most animals, are treating their pets better today than ever before.

Affection centers on hamsters, skunks, monkeys, parakeets, tropical fish, guinea pigs, rabbits, screech owls, even lions, snakes, flying squirrels and in cases on a wolf and an anteater.

But no animals satisfy the craving for household companionship like dogs and cats, be they purebred or common breed, says the National Geographic Society.

Authoritative estimates place the U.S. dog population at nearly 23,000,000, the cat at 27,000,000. Mostly these pets live in the country, 21,100,000 on farms and 11,700,000 in other rural homes. Urban dwellers number 17,400,000.

Curiously, almost half the dogs but only 26 per cent of the cats inhabit cities.

The growing food business indicates how abundant is the canine and feline life today. More than 20 companies turn out canned meat and dried meal, biscuits and pellets. Frozen pet food is now on the market. Last year sales of dog food alone mounted to $200,000,000, double 1947.

Americans lavish love and money not only on the faithful dog and the comfort-seeking cat but on many other creatures.

Not long ago the country was swept by a craze for hamsters, the small, Syrian rodents that outproduce the rabbit. For some time scientists had used them for experiments. Then the public discovered how soft was their golden brown fur, how soulful their eyes.

For years canaries were the darlings of the caged bird world. But recently Americans learned parakeets could be taught to jabber a few words. Parakeets became the fashion.

African lions have enjoyed little mass appeal except behind zoo bars. But an Illinois couple keeps aa 325-pound, 4-year-old male lion in their home.

In Garden City, N. Y., 8-year-old twins own Snow White, a lamb. They wanted to take it to kindergarten. But the bus driver refused to haul dogs, cats, canaries, ducks—and lambs. So the twins' mother drove the pet to school. And sure enough, "it made the children laugh and play to see a lamb at school." Snow White even became popular with the teacher.

Not so enduring was the popularity of Teddy, the anteater. A Stroudsburg (Pa.) woman found that Teddy ate ants all right. Teddy also responded to its name, drank milk and ate eggs. But it didn't like people. Teddy had to go.

When pets are kept in the family for years, their death brings acute sorrow. A pet cemetery near Washington is evidence of this. Buried there are dogs, cats, horses, goats, canaries, snakes, monkeys, parrots, and a starling.

Once $2,000 was spent on the site for the graves of 70 cats. At another time a brass band played a dirge for a French poodle.

Arctic natives, because of their isolation, often are relatively free from some of the widespread infectious diseases, such as influenza, measles, and the common cold.

Strength of Russian Navy Now Second Only to U.S.

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

Reports of the presence of Russian warships off the coasts of Norway and Sweden are becoming a matter of routine.

In recent weeks Russian submarines and destroyers, and in one instance a formation of three cruisers and 12 destroyers, have been reported close to Norwegian and Swedish territorial waters.

It is reported persistently that Russia now maintains a big submarine base on Hainan Island off the southeast coast of Red China.

All the reports point up recent warnings that the Soviet Navy is now second only to that of the United States and that within 10 years or so it may be the world's largest.

Soviet warships are operating in the Arctic and Atlantic Oceans, the Baltic and Black Seas, and in the Pacific.

The Black Sea has long been a Russian lake. The Kremlin would like to make the Baltic a Russian lake. Any merchantman that piles along the Soviet Arctic coast, too, is likely to be fired on.

And there is no longer any doubt that in the event of war the Soviet submarine fleet would be an immediate grave menace to the American and British navies in both the Atlantic and the Pacific?

It has taken Russia 50 years to stage a comeback as a world naval power.

The Czarist Russian fleet was nearly destroyed in the Russo-Japanese War of 1904-1905.

In the siege of Port Arthur, the young Japanese Navy defeated the Russian Port Arthur and Vladivostok squadrons.

Only the Baltic fleet remained to challenge the Japanese. Hoping to relieve the fortress, the big fleet steamed through the entire Baltic, through the Atlantic and Mediterranean, through the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean and up the Pacific.

Then, in the Battle of Tsushima in the strait between Japan and Korea, this fleet was wiped out.

It was not until the end of World War II that Russia started again to become a real naval power. Then, while the Kremlin was talking disarmament, it started building up its navy.

It is estimated that Russia now has 350 submarines, at least 13 new large cruisers and 125 destroyers in addition to other units.

In command of the Soviet Navy is Admiral of the Fleet Nikolai Gerassimovich Kuztenzov, 52, a close friend of Foreign Minister Cyacheslav M. Molotov. He believes that sea power is mightier than air power, and it is he who has been largely responsible for the enormous build-up in submarine strength.

Kuztenzov fought as an ordinary seaman in the Russian Civil War but afterward attended the Frunze Naval School, where he graduated with honors. He has been Russia's top Navy man since 1937.

Where There's Will, There's a Well

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A. A. Keeling likes to have plenty of water for his garden, but not at the steep water rates in Johnson County. And once he decided to dig his own well, 15 feet of solid rock and a chorus of neighborly derision couldn't stop him.

Keeling guessed there was water beneath his basement when he noticed that a hydrangea bush near his garage was blooming despite a searing drought last summer.

He devoted six months of spare-time labor to the project, which cost him $25. He improvised tools as he went along. To cut through the layers of rock he used bits made of iron from an old railroad car axle. To drop the bits against the rock he rigged up an apparatus consisting, large, of a carpenter's sawhorse and a 12-foot plank acting as a lever.

Now he pipes abundant water to his garden.

Northwest Forests Menaced by Bears

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UP)—Washington tree farmers are confronted with a serious menace to their crops of young trees which replenish logged-over areas of the giant forests.

The menace is the black bear population. It seems the bears have uncontrollable sweet teeth when the sap flows in the spring.

The black bear population is estimated at four bears to every 160 acres in many timber sections of western Washington. Tree farmers find one of the most harmful effects of bears is the animals' choice in selecting trees 20 to 30 years old to tear apart. These are the trees just coming into seed-bearing age.

Damage and killing of these trees by bears eliminates a seed source vital to the timber industry. The seeds, as well as seedling trees, are needed to restock the land on which future forests are to stand.

Old Hotel That Parked Trains in Lobby Razed

BURKE, Ida. (UP)—The famous old Tiger Hotel, which often had a railroad train parked in its lobby, is gone.

The famous landmark built in 1887 has been torn down.

Not only did the Tiger claim to be unique because the railroad ran through it, but it also had a river under it.

This town of 600 persons is built in a canyon so narrow there wasn't room for both a main street and the railroad. So the tracks were built right up the street.

Once five passenger trains daily toiled up to the North Idaho lead and zinc mines. Now there is just one ore car a day.

And the hotel's "beanery," which once fed 1,200 persons, is no longer there for the engineer to eat in while he parks his train in the lobby.

Forecasts Sales Clerk Decrease in Five Years

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UP)—Within five years, 50 per cent of items now being sold by clerk service will be sold by simplified selling, according to Robert G. Seymour, director of the University of Illinois' business management service.

Seymour told a merchandise conference at the Universiay of Michigan the trend towards simplified selling results from the decline in price competition due to brand buying which causes the manufacturer to take over many selling functions traditionally belonging to the retailer.

Simplified selling techniques will include, according to Seymour, fixtures that make merchandise more eye-appealing and more easily available to the shopper, carefully selected stocks and check-outs near doors.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS WASTE

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slow-down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Iodine Capsule Metabolism Aid

Radioactive Material Determines Functioning of Thyroid Gland

CHICAGO (UP) — One of the latest developments of the atomic age is a capsule that any patient would swear was empty.

Actually it contains a minute amount of radioactive iodine, so little it cannot be weighed.

Dr. Donalee L. Tabern of Abott Laboratories said the radio-iodine comes from one of the nuclear reactors at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

The capsules are being used in basal metabolism tests, he said, and provide more accurate results than older methods.

Tabern said Abbott has devised a method of introducing into each capsule an unweighable and invisible amount of radio-iodine, which clings to the capsule's inner wall.

Actually, he said, it would be easier to put the radio-iodine into a milk-sugar powder, but if the capsule were broken the radio-active powder would spill.

Spilling would not be harmful to the doctor or patient, Tabern said, but it would "contaminate" the laboratory and render tests inconclusive.

The metabolism test works on the principle that the thyroid gland, which controls metabolism, absorbs iodine. By measuring the amount of iodine absorbed, a doctor can tell whether the thyroid is functioning normally.

With the radioactive capsules the test is simple, Tabern said.

A patient swallows a capsule and the next day the doctor trains a device similar to a Geiger counter on his neck.

The device, known as a scintillation counter and 100 times more sensitive than the Geiger counter, picks up and measures the radiation from the patient's thyroid, and tells the physician how much of the iodine was absorbed.

To make the test accurate, the doctor must use two capsules, Tabern said, because radioactivity diminishes with time.

All of the capsules in each bottle were produced at the same time and are equally radioactive at any given moment.

To make the test, the doctor places one "pilot" capsule in a lucite cylinder, roughly the diameter of the average human neck. The patient swallows a second capsule.

The doctor later trains his counter on the lucite cylinder, or "phantom," and finds out how much radioactivity would be left in the capsule swallowed by the patient.

Then, by training the device on the patient's throat, he can determine what percentage was absorbed by the thyroid.

Tabern said that at present the capsules are distributed principally to hospitals and research clinics. He said they are useful in detecting tumors of the thyroid, and in checking the results of thyroid surgery.

The distribution of the capsules involves rush shipments, often by air, because of the diminishing factor in anything radioactive. The "half-life" of radioactive iodine is eight days.

University of Texas engineers report that a survey shows the largest number of Texans are most comfortable at 78 degrees, Fahrenheit, and 50 per cent humidity in summer and 72 degrees and 50 per cent humidity in winter.

Man, 24, Arrested in Attack on Baby

FLORENCE, Ariz. (AP) — An ashamed and remorseful young service station attendant, who begged that his name be kept out of the papers, has been charged with three felonies here involving a sexual attack on a nine-month-old baby boy.

Bob Spencer, 24, has been accused of kidnaping, sodomy and aggravated assault in the complaint, filed by Pinal County Atty. Timothy J. Mahoney.

Mahoney said Spencer had signed a confession admitting that he took the baby, Daniel Ernest Stephens, from his crib in his home at Stanfield and molested him.

Stanfield is a farming center 40 miles west of Florence.

The baby was abducted about 12:45 a.m. yesterday by an intruder who tore open a screen in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Stephens Jr. Stephens discovered the baby was missing a short time later and summoned police.

The child was found whimpering in a corn field.

Spencer was arrested in the same vicinity and jailed pending a hearing.

Red-eyed and weary, he pleaded with reporters that the case not be publicized.

"I've got a lot of friends," he said, "I'd hate to have this come out in the papers."

The people of the United States had 26 per cent of the income of the world in 1938 and 40.7 per cent in 1948 says the Twentieth Century Fund.

President Goes After the Trout on Real Holiday

The small White House staff which accompanied the President from Denver yesterday was attempting to keep all but the most pressing official business from interrupting the chief executive's rest.

The President waded into St. Louis creek shortly after arriving at the Byers Peak Ranch of an old friend, Aksel Nielsen, and—with a brief break for lunch—still was casting for trout at dusk. There was no word on what luck he had.

"He is vacationing hard and we are going to try to keep it that way for a few days," James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, told newsmen.

Eisenhower plans to return to Denver Sunday or Monday.

Woe at Swimming Hole

Philadelphia Councilman Plans Curfew on Youths

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Councilman Paul d'Ortona plans to introduce a curfew ordinance for Philadelphia youngsters in hopes of curbing juvenile delinquency.

D'Ortona said yesterday he would ask the city council to pass a curfew law under which parents, rather than the youngsters involved, would be punished for violations.

The curfew would be effective from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m., Sunday through Thursday, and from midnight to 6 a.m., Friday and Saturday nights. It would cover minors under 17 years of age.

Cat Out 5 Nights Has Good 'Alibi'

PERU, Ill. (AP)—Wandering "Ratzy," a pure white cat owned by Mrs. William Janz, is back home after five nights out with a reasonable reason.

Ratzy was let out on a hot night and failed to wake up the family with its usual meows the following morning. A town-wide search failed to locate the cat. A passerby noticed a white cat on a roof a block away from Ratzy's home. It was Ratzy. The cat had climbed a pole about two feet from a building, jumped onto the roof but had been unable to make it back the same way.

Your Guess Is Good Why Call It Texas?

TEXAS, N. J. (AP)—No oil, no cotton, and no great big wide open spaces. Just a little community of 100 people or so living in rural part of Madison Township—that's Texas, N. J.

You'll find it on some maps. It's in Middlesex county, about 30 miles southwest of New York City.

Sudan Steps Up Housing With Dirt---Cement Blocks

KHARTOUM (UP) — The Carlstein block press —a South African invention that compresses earth into house-building blocks—is being tried out by the Sudanese government with a view to stepping up the country's lagging housing program.

The blocks, containing only nine per cent cement are being used in this house-building experiment at Omduran. The project is relatively small but rather ambitious.

Each of the 24 houses, designed by the Sudanese public works department and being built from the earthen blocks, will have two rooms of 15x12 feet, a third room 15 x 9-6, a kitchen, shower bath and a simple septic tank latrine.

The total cost of each house is expected to be about $1,120,—some $360 lower than the nearest contractor's price.

The Sudanese government had found it necesary to find means to provide adequate but cheaply built homes to keep their housing program abreast of the steady drift of people from country areas to the towns.

In this vast country of scattered communities struggling against the natural poverty of a land, many parts of which are desert or swamp, the fundamentals of any building program—speed, simple erection and costs—have jostled each other toward an impasse which only the government's present action can help to overcome.

Manufacturers of the Carlstein block press claimed that their machine could double the Sudan's building rate and reduce costs.

A number of the presses, manufactured in the Kimberly factory of the South African engineer of Swedish origin who invented the machine, J. B. Carlstein, have been used successfully in South Africa for about three years. The Sudan was the first country outside the Union to use it.

The press is of simple design and the motivating power is compressed air. The daily seven-hour output of a Sudanese operator averages 800 blocks. An automatic reloading system enables the machine to maintain continual production.

Thinking Machine Solves Problems

CHICAGO (UP)—Scientists are using "thinking machines" to solve complicated optical design problems that arise in industry, the Illinois Institute of Technology reports.

The electronic brain not only provides answers but also makes its own decisions in handling information fed into it.

Howard T. Betz, supervisor of the Armour Research Foundation's light and optics section at IIT, said the new machine traces light rays through optical systems. He said the information is then used by optical designers to determine what happens in a lens system.

"We feed problems into the machine and it gives us the answers much faster than they could be produced by a human worker," he said.

"The device can select the proper mathematical equation automatically from several possible equations.

Intelligence Boss Jailed by Iran

Charges Army Officer Was Russian Spy in Abadan Oil Area

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—The Iranian Army's chief counter intelligence agent for the strategic Abadan oil area has been jailed in the sweeping cleanup of Soviet Spies in Iran's security forces.

The top plainclothes agent in Khuzistan Province, Capt. Gholam Hossein Gargaozloo, was the leader of 133 operatives assigned to work against Red spies around the Abadan oil refinery on the Persian Gulf. The captain went under the name of "Mr. Moghadam."

Authorities arrested Garagozloo yesterday, charging that he himself was a Russian spy.

Nearly 500 officers in the army and police force have been caught up in the nationwide drive against spies. The number eventually taken into custody may exceed 1,000 officials said, since the lower military and police ranks have not yet come under extensive investigation. The purge also is being extended to civil branches of the government.

Intelligence officers said the ring using algebraic equations as codes, slipped the Reds not only Iranian secrets but detailed information on "every tank, gun and uniform" the United States has been supplying Iran.

Army informants said Gen. Alexander Rodionov, military attache in the Russian Embassy, played a key role in the vast spy system.

Radio-Isotopes Spark Research on Nation's Farms

President Eisenhower disclosed last week that the U.S. already is sharing its Atoms-for Peace achievements with friendly Allies in one of mankind's most dramatic international pools. This article is the fourth of a series reporting what can be done—and is being done now—in the utilization of atomic energy for the benefit of men.

By EDWIN DIAMOND

CHICAGO (INS)—The atom has arrived on America's farms and in scores of industries ranging from steel-making to food processing.

Practical applications of nuclear energy by-products have already resulted in savings for farmers running into millions of dollars annually.

Agricultural and industrial demand for these by-products is so great the Oak Ridge, Tenn., national laboratory maintains an atomic "drugstore" with lead-lined walls to serve over 1,000 different customers.

Key to this brisk trade and a whole new era in agriculture is the radio-isotope—a potent "tagged" atom made radioactive in atomic furnaces.

Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Company Oak Ridge, operators of the "drugstore," reports 1,000 companies are using its isotopes.

Orders for an atomic "prescription" come in to Oak Ridge and go out packed inside a 50-pound lead box which in turn is strapped into a steel-braced shipping case for delivery.

In oil operations to designate pipe line flow.

In the mixing of paints to get equal ingredients.

In heavy industry to detect flaws in metals.

In steel-making to measure the quantity of molten steel during production.

While this is an impressive record, the most dramatic "Atoms for Peace" story is being unfolded on the farm.

Experiments with fission furnace-produced isotopes may lead in a few years to bigger, better and perhaps brand-new varieties of farm and garden plants.

Other tests may bring "atomic sterilization" of meats and dairy produce—an inexpensive process which will keep the foodstuffs indefinitely fresh at room temperatures.

The record of agricultural accomplishment today shows:

1. Farm fertilizer costs cut drastically as a result of fission products.

2. Radioactive-induced mutations (changes) in wheat seedlings which have increased yields.

3. "Atom-bombarded" meat which has remained fresh up to three weeks without refrigeration.

4. Scientists are closing in on the elusive "secret of plant growth" with the aid of atomic tracer isotopes. If successful, they believe mankind will never lack basic food supplies.

Work on the secret of plant growth is being carried on at Chicago's Argonne National Laboratory in a sealed "atomic farm." Key research tool on the farm is the radio-isotope carbon 14.

Carbon 14—Called the queen of the tracers—is, like other isotopes, a radioatcive by-product of nuclear reactor furnaces, produced as easily as a coal furnace drops clinkers into the grate.

Because carbon 14 is radioactive, that is, emits a Beta ray, it can be infiltrated into a substance and act as a "tag." Once "tagged" by carbon 14, a substance can be examined or traced in its action with a Geiger counter.

Isotopes and Geiger counters work in tandem on the farm, in industry and in research—isotopes tag, Geiger counters follow.

Dr. Norbert Scully, senior plant psyiologist at Arogonne, outlined experiment with "hot" (radioactive) plants—"hot barley," "hot soybeans" and "hot Canadian wheat."

These plants, treated with C-14, are kept in a sealed greenhouse about the size of an elevator car. Here work proceeds on basic plant processes which physiologists believe will someday widen the possible area of cultivation all over the world.

Dr. Scully is convinced discovery of the growth substance in plants would extend "the range of economic crops all over the world."

Similar studies are under way to "tag" the growth-inducing quality in fertile humus soil—with the same ultimate purpose.

Meat processors declare irradiation is superior to the two present methods of preserving food—extreme heat (canning) and extreme cold (freezing). They explain that freezing, in addition to being costly, is not always available, for example in military operations.

Canning, they reason, requires expenditure of great energies and meats lose their distinctive flavor and texture.

The entire food sterlization program is an example of the initiative and imagination science and industry have shown in the atomic field.

Ironically, the radioactive materials from atomic furnaces which are now proving so valuable were at one time regarded as a disposal headache—and had to be buried deep underground until they lost their deadly potency.

Today, this disposal headache is proving to be a valued weapon in the war against food spoilage.

Repatriated Yanks Find New Freedom 'Rigorous'

HONG KONG (INS) — Three brief hours of restless sleep was all that three haggard Americans could get today after their return to Hong Kong following 18 months as prisoners of the Chinese Communists.

The men — International News Service Correspondent Don Dixon, Richard Applegate of the National Broadcasting Company and merchant sea Captain Ben Krasner—just could not sleep on their first night of freedom.

The trio celebrated their repatriation with a steak and champagne dinner which lasted until the wee small hours of the morning and spent most of the remaining pre-dawn hours talking among themselves or with friends.

Dixon, who had several American magazines in his single room, found he couldn't stand the solitude. So he joined the other two men, who shared a room, and dozed on a couch when they weren't talking.

They also are enjoying the simple things of life—a clean shirt, a shave, a chance to talk and not care who was listening—marvelous luxuries to men who spent a year and a half in Communist prisons.

At least 5½ months of their captivity had been spent in solitary confinement.

From the time they were seized to the time they were released they had caught only one glimpse of each other when they were "mugged" for the communists' rogues gallery.

Switching to the Indochina truce at the luncheon conversation Dixon said:

"I was surprised when I read last night how the United States had opposed the Indochina settlement. I couldn't figure out why until I learned that the settlement was actually a surrender by the French."

Dixon spent much of his time listening to stories about the friends he made during the 21 months he covered the Korean war, reminiscing about the days before his capture or describing his experiences.

Dixon and Applegate planned to shop for clothes as soon as possible. During their captivity they had only the clothes they were wearing when they were captured.

Dixon told how he constantly repaired his ragged T-shirt and faded khaki pants, which were full of patches when he and the two other men walked across the frontier to freedom.

One of the first things Dixon did was throw away the clothes he had worn for 18 months in prison.

The luxury the three men seemed to enjoy most was just being able to talk without having to guard every word.

PLENTY OF TIME—The forthcoming change back to standard time from daylight time presents many problems to folks who travel back and forth between time zones—like pretty airline stewardess Rosemary Kelly. But she has a solution. She's wearing four watches on each wrist, just as she will do Sunday morning, Sept. 26 when the change goes into effect. On the left wrist are standard time watches and on the right, daylight time. Each of the four on either hand tell times in the eastern, central, mountain and Pacific zones.

State to Place Michigan Book in All Schools

The monthly meeting of the Michigan Historical Commission was held Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Adams, 2711 West Walton Blvd.

Prentiss M. Brown, of St. Ignace, president of the commission presided, and all of its members were present. Besides Mr. Brown and Mrs. Adams, they are Lewis G. VanderVelde of Ann Arbor; Willis F. Dunbar of Kalamazoo, Willard C. Wichers of Holland, and Chester W. Ellison of Lansing.

Lewis Beeson, of Lansing, secretary of the commission, also attended. Matters discussed included the plan of the commission to provide a Michigan history mobile to tour the state.

It also was decided that a copy of "Michigan in Four Centuries," the new book by F. Clever Bald, be presented to every school library in the state.

Governor Ducks Bingo Issue, Vows Limitation

HASLETT (AP) — Gov. Williams refused last night to take sides on the bingo issue—but promised that if he is reelected he will see that nothing more than bingo is legalized in Michigan.

Williams told the Haslett-Okemos Kiwanis Club that people should be left free to vote their own consciences on the November election proposal to legalize lotteries in Michigan. Bingo has been defined as a lottery by the courts.

Williams said no political party should take sides on the bingo proposal.

But, Williams said "If it should be adopted, it will be the duty of the Legislature to write a law specifying what games may be played and under what circumstances.

Honors Dewey's Mother

OWOSSO (AP) — Charles Frost, an Owosso businessman, announced a $25,000 donation for a memorial to Mrs. George M. Dewey, mother of New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Wednesday. Frost stipulated the money provide a room in Mrs. Dewey's name in the new Owosso YMCA building. Mrs. Dewey still lives in the Owosso family home.

Bus Hobbyist Sees How They're Built at GMC Plant

A 30-year-old bank teller who turned his inability to become a bus driver into a unique hobby was an enthusiastic visitor this week to the busy Scenicruiser production plant of GMC Truck & Coach Division here.

Frederick Slutter, of East Stroudsburg, Pa., used his vacation to drive here with his wife, mother and step-father specifically to witness the construction of the new deck-and-a-half Scenicruiser.

Slutter claims to have one of the largest collections of pictures, literature, clippings and general information on the Greyhound Corporation in existence. A whole room in his house is given over to his collection, which numbers more than 5,000 items.

The hobby began in 1945 when Slutter, discharged after three years in the Air Force, attempted to fulfill his long time dream of becoming a Greyhound bus driver. Because of astigmatism, he was unable to pass the rigid eye tests, and so he became what he describes as "an armchair bus driver."

Almost all his time when he is not working at the First Stroudsburg National Bank is spent at the local Greyhound garage. He studies bus construction and maintenance, scheduling and loading, and talks buses with drivers.

His home is a frequent stopping place for off-duty drivers, and Slutter keeps in contact with more than 200 driver friends on Greyhound runs throughout the country.

"I subscribe to eight New York and Philadelphia newspapers, seven Greyhound employe magazines and have friends all over the country who send me clippings about their local Greyhound operations," Slutter says.

He first became interested in the Scenicruiser when he obtained a copy of the Pontiac Press with a front page colored picture of the revolutionary new bus published when delivery was begun in mid-July.

Slutter wrote to obtain extra copies of the pictures. The Press notified GMC officials of this special interest in the Scenicruiser and Slutter was invited to visit the plant and tour the production line.

Escorted by Rollie D. Bell, GMC's assistant coach superintendent, Slutter and his family watched from beginning to end the construction of the latest member of the Greyhound fleet.

Besides clippings about buses, Slutter collects schedules, time tables, driver report forms and anything else about Greyhound he can obtain.

He says Greyhound has several times offered jobs, but that would involve moving to either New York or Cleveland, and he hesitates to leave his home town. But Slutter makes no secret that he would some day like to work for Greyhound.

"I guess I've got the bus bug like others have about cars, trains and planes," he says. "I hope to greatly expand my collection and eventually become an armchair bus driver of whom Greyhound can really be proud."

WELL IN HAND—Instead of the customary dolls or other games a girl of 10 might be interested in, Gisela Niebling of Altenberg, Germany, is devoting herself to lion taming. Above she is shown nudging 18-month-old "Caesar" into position on pedestals. The girl's father owns a private zoo where "Caesar" and another lion, "Simba" are the main attractions.

Thief Wears Size 14 —of That They're Sure

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (UP) — Police were on the lookout today for a well-dressed, "size 14" woman.

Arthur H. Zander of Waterloo, Wis., reported someone stole $800 worth of women's dresses, blouses, skirts and slacks from his parked car Wednesday night. Only size 14s were missing, he said.

UM Extension Service Director Tells of Expansion of Educational Facilities

Via auto, airplane and train, the University of Michigan is taking higher education to 24,000 Michigan people this year according to Everett J. Soop, director of U. of M. Extension Service.

Soop spoke before the Pontiac Civitans Club at their weekly meeting yesterday telling of the "grass roots" quest for more knowledge and advance training that has created eight extension centers within a 600 mile radius of the Ann Arbor university. Pontiac is a proposed ninth center.

"Established by the University Regents in 1911, it was their resolve that the U of M faculties should be made available to the people of the State of Michigan in their home centers," he said.

Enrollments include not only those seeking credit for their study, but many thousands who annually sign up for courses in human relations and home and family living.

Eight hundred and sixty-two courses are offered by 317 different instructors in 131 communities, said Soop.

In non-credit courses, he said, business administration leads in popularity with the newest course, gerontology (dealing with life in the later years (enjoying a tremendous reception by those who want to prepare for the "golden years."

Besides lectures, courses, the department of conferences and institutes and the community organization programs, the Extension plan offers a correspondence course. This, said Soop, was used by more than 600 state schools for high school credits, first-year college work and non-credit courses.

Pontiac, said Soop, is offering courses this year at Washington Junior High School. These, he pointed out, were both credit and non-credit classes and open to everyone.

Other state centers include; Detroit (first organized) Grand Rapids, Flint, Saginaw, Escanaba, Ann Arbor, Traverse City and Battle Creek.

Dr. S. J. Chafets presided at the weekly Civitan meeting.

Mary Martin Rejects Venus Role; Moans 'There Isn't Enough of Me'

By EDDIE CANTOR

Nellie Forbush, singing, "I'm in Love With a Wonderful Guy," in South Pacific"—Peter Pan, swinging from a wire around the stage of the Philharmonic Auditorium in Los Angeles—a brilliant mistress of ceremonies in the biggest television show ever—are all the same person —Mary Martin!

It will please Christian Dior, I'm sure, to know that this gal from Weatherford, Texas, when cast to play "Venus," goddess of beauty, looked disconsolately into a mirror and moaned, "I can't play Venus—there isn't enough of me!"

Mary's figure is more boyish than curvaceous, but you can take the word of this arden admirer, Mary Martin will be packing 'em in long after the sex-pots are forgotten.

I first met this great hunk of Texas talent when she opened in a nightclub engagement at the Trocadero in Hollywood. A little while later, I signed her for my radio show.

Just before she was to appear, she phoned me and explained that she had an offer from New York. They wanted her for the musical, "Leave It to Me." If she were to fulfill her engagement with me, she couldn't make it. Of course, I tore up the contract. It was worth it to hear Mary's "Thank you." She said, "Eddie Cantor, you're so wonderful! Are you sure you're not from Texas?"

"Leave It to Me," gave Mary Martin "My Heart Belings to Daddy" and Broadway a new star! However, it wasn't until her performances in "South Pacific" that Mary Martin got herself in the theatrical Hall of Fame.

Who will ever forget her, "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair?" She actually shampooed her hair eight times a week in full view of the audience.

Which reminds me of something Noel Coward told me. He said he was in London when the musical opened there. Coward gave a big party for the company. Mary was late—so late that Noel called her hotel.

"What's happened?" he asked. Mary pleaded, "Forgive me, Noel—I'll be there in half-an-hour. I just couldn't come to your party without washing my hair!"

As Peter Pan, Mary Martin is realizing another ambition. Her 13-year-old daughter, Heller, is in the show with her. What will Mary do next? You can be sure it will be something different—and a step forward—because Mary believes that a stage career "is like a love affair —it can only go forward or backward—it can never stand still!"

Russians Hear Talk on GI War Injuries

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Russian Medical scientists listened closely yesterday to an American Army surgeon's illustrated account of battle injuries inflicted on United Nations troops in Korea.

The Russians, Prof. B. V. Petrovsky and Prof. E. M. Tarev, are among some 2,500 heart specialists and researchers attending the second World Congress of Cardiology. Two interpreters sat with them in the rear of the hall in a Walter Reed Army Hospital auditorium.

The talks, by Lt. Col. Carl W. Hughes, dealt with wounds inflicted on major artieries of the body by fragmentary missiles—as from mortar shells or exploded mines.

He said later he did not know the Russians were in the audience but was aware they were attending the conferences. There was no comment from the Russians.

Diabetes Due to Trouble With Liver, Doctor Finds

AP Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP)—Diabetes may be due to some stranger liver trouble, says a new medical report described today to the American Chemical Society convention.

This means that the cure or control of diabetes could well involve the liver rather than daily or regular injections of insulin. Some 1,600,000 Americans have some degree of diabetes and most take insulin shots to control it.

gland in the body. You need insulin to control the use of body sugar. Too much sugar in the blood is a main symptom of diabetes.

Diabetes is generally thought to stem from failure to make enough insulin. Shots of insulin plus attention to diet permit most diabetics to lead normal lives.

New evidence that the cause or control can involve the liver was described by Arthur I. Mirsky, M.D., professor and chairman of clinical science, University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine.

He mixed insulin with extracts or slices of liver and with hamburgerized liver. He found that the insulinase in liver destroyed the insulin. Insulinase is an enzyme, a chemical which promotes certain bodily reactions.

The experiments used insulin "tagged" with radioactive iodine, which could be followed or traced to learn what happened to the insulin.

Anything which causes the liver to produce too much insulinase could result in a deficiency of insulin, and hence diabetes, said Mirsky and Gladys Perisutti, co-author of the report.

The average length of life for Americans has reached a record high of 68.5 years, an increase of nearly four years in the last decade.

Career of Crime Spans Reigns of Six Monarchs

KINGSTON, England (AP)—An 80-year-old miscreant, whose 42 prison terms span the reigns of six British rulers, was given another two years yesterday on theft charges.

The culprit, Arthur Pavett, has spent 44 years behind bars since he was first sent up in 1900 during Victoria's rule.

"You," said Judge Tudor Rees, "seem to have broken all criminal records."

Doesn't Consider Flying a Good Summer Holiday

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—Second-grader Mark Figgins came home from school and announced the teacher had asked the pupils what they did during the summer.

"I told her I didn't do nothin'," Mark told his father, Jim, an airline employe.

"What!" his father exclaimed. "You flew to New York, Connecticut and Kansas City and Chicago this summer — all by yourself!"

"Aw," Mark said defensively, "that was in an airplane."

A Tricky Setup

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—The North Carolina highway patrol has come up with a new wrinkle in its war against speeding. A dummy, dressed in a patrol uniform complete with helmet and glasses, is placed in a patrol car parked alongside a highway. Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt says it serves as a reminder to motorists.

Scientists estimate that from 10 to 15 per cent of all deaths throughout the world result from cancer.

Saves Life, Sends a Bill

TSURUGU, Japan (UP)—Sixty-year-old Nami Hata counted himself lucky when, after he tripped and fell on a railroad track, the engineer of an oncoming train stopped just in time. But a few days later he was ordered to pay a fine of $1.70 for violating a new railway regulation against "obstructing the passage of trains."

Although a huge iron ore deposit was discovered on the Quebec-Labrador border in 1893, no determined effort was made to exploit it until the 1940s.

A Different Line

GLENDALE, Ariz. (AP)—For once, a holdup man didn't announce to his victims: "This is a stickup!" A gunman who entered a finance company office here proclaimed, "Let me have your attention."

He got it and a bundle of cash.

Says No Hat — No Home

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A vagrant, found asleep on a sidewalk, was asked where he lived. He told two detectives: "My home is any place I hang my hat."

"Where's your hat?"

Urges Downtown Courthouse Site

the friend of the court, the county clerk's office, the drain commissioner's office, and many others, it becomes obvious that these offices should be placed where adequate public transportation will be available.

"I believe we cannot expect adequate public transportation to be furnished to the proposed site. There will not be sufficient sustained demand for adequate transportation. It has been suggested that the county would have to subsidize public transportation to the new county building. This I believe the county should not do and I seriously question its legal right to do so.

"Further, it is my understanding there is no privately owned land near the proposed courthouse site that could be the location of stores and office buildings, so that the area of the proposed site cannot develop as a business center, thus producing sufficient passengers for adequate, sustained, public transportation.

"After all, the purpose of these governmental functions and offices is service to the general public and we should not forget that fundamental fact in our desire for a change.

"I believe that placing a county building on the outskirts of a city where adequate transportation cannot be assured is a mistake and a disservice to the public for whose benefit the building is furnished.

"As you know, the present courthouse site was given to the county by the old Pontiac Company provided the county would build a courthouse and a jail thereon, and with the provision in the deed of conveyance that it would revert to the persons interested in the Pontiac Company, and their heirs, if it ever ceased to be used for that purpose.

"Some years ago a quiet title proceeding was had to remove the reverter provision in the deed. Some question has been raised whether that proceeding did in fact clear the title. If there is such a question, then it seems to me there is but one site for the new proposed county building and that is the present site, or at least part of the present site.

"Parking should not be too great a problem. The land on Wayne street between the courthouse property and the Consumers Power Company can be obtained, by condemnation if necessary, and adequate parking facilities furnished.

"The fact that the county has a power plant at the proposed Telegraph Road site, or that the county already owns that land and desires to put it to some use, should not be allowed to determine the question of site.

"This prosperous county of ours can afford to build an adequate courthouse on any site chosen, and when one realizes that the present courthouse has served for half a century and that we may expect a new one to serve at least as long, we should not allow our thinking to be penny wise and pound foolish."

It is estimated more than 50,000 American homes are broken each year because of divorce or desertion.

Hazel Park Girl Killed by Auto

Rosemary Cuppola, 10, Struck Down at John R and Shelvin

A 10-year-old Hazel Park girl died last night in Mt. Carmel Mercy Hospital, Detroit, of injuries sustained when she was struck by a car last night.

The victim, Rosemary Coppola, of 536 E. Shelven, was hit by a car driven by Jack Luther, 26, of 93 E. Guthrie, Royal Oak Township, according to Hazel Park police.

Conservation Commission Wants Waters Restricted

LANSING (AP) — The conservation commission will be asked next week to close part of Black River, Cheboygan county, to all fishing, Otsego Lake to ice fishing and three other waters to muskellunge fishing.

These are included in the fish division's recommendations for experimental and special fishing regulations next year. They are to be acted on at the commission meeting here Sept. 23 and 24.

The division asked that the Black river from the Keibler Dam to the county highway bridge be closed to all fishing between April 30 and May 31 next year to protect spawning sturgeon. The division said the sturgeon were in danger of depletion.

In order to protect adult northern pike planted in Otsego Lake, Otsego county, this year, the division proposed closing the lake to all fishing between Dec. 1 this year and April 30.

As part of experimental work being carried on by the department's institute for fisheries research, the division asked that muskellunge fishing be prohibited for five years in the Torch River, Antrim and Kalkaska counties; Round Lake, Grand Traverse and Kalkaska counties; and Elk Lake, Antrim and Grand Traverse counties.

The division asked for another year's extension of special regulations prohibiting the taking of whitefish, ciscoes, suckers and carp from Crystal Lake, Benzie county, and Hubbard lake, Alcona county except between Nov. 1 and Dec. 31.

Suffers Broken Arm When Car Hits Tree

Mrs. Agnes E. Rounding, 29, of 210 Harmon, Walled Lake, was injured yesterday when her car went out of control on 14 Mile road in Commerce Township about one-half mile east of Decker road and hit a tree.

Mrs. Rounding told Oakland County sheriffs deputies that the car seat came loose, causing her to lose control. She was treated at Pontiac General Hospital for a broken arm.

Ultrasonic Device May Detect Cancer

WASHINGTON (INS) — The Veterans Administration has announced development of a new photographing machine which may in the future provide pictures of cancer and other internal diseases.

The ultrasonic device, invented by Dr. Douglass H. Howry, former VA resident in radiology and now an instructor at the University of Colorado Medical School in Denver, could mean a long step forward in accurate diagnosis of internal ailments.

The "somascope," as it is called by Dr. Howry, can now detect masses such as goiter, cysts and tumors within the body which can not be seen by X-ray or fluoroscope. It is possible, though not certain, that it can be perfected to detect cancer.

Dynamite Kills Farmer

FRANKFORT (AP)—Chester Leatherman, 33-year-old Thompsonville farmer, was killed Wednesday while blasting stumps on his farm. State Police said Leatherman placed a dyamite charge against a stump and knelt to light a fuse. The dynamite exploded prematurely, hurling Leatherman 20 feet.

Oysters Lead Perilous Lives

Many Come to Table, but More Are Caught by Natural Foes

WASHINGTON — The oyster, despite its sedentary habits, leads a perilous life, from spawning to harvest.

With September, the first "r" month, the succulent mollusks are again in season. But the oysters found in raw bars, stews, Oysters Rockefeller, and scalloped, panned and fried dishes account for only a tiny minority of the enormous potential supply.

For every oyster that lives to maturity, a million or more are lost, the National Geographic Society says.

Natural enemies gobble up the larvae as they swim about for a brief period of freedom before attaching themselves to some solid object at the bottom of a bay or estuary. After the "setting," predators get to the soft body even behind its armor of shell.

The oyster drill, a small snail bores through the hard outer covering. Drumfish, skates and other rays crush the shells between grinding teeth. Conchs chip away at the oyster's bill (opposite the hinge), to make an entrance.

Starfish pry the shells apart with arms equipped with suctionlike cups, then turn their digestive mechanism inside out to absorb the flesh.

Yet the prolific oyster has survived from the earliest times. That it has long provided food for man is proved by huge mounds of shells left near prehistoric settlements along European and American shores.

The Chinese cultivated oysters in the pre-Christian era, and the early Romans regarded them as a great delicacy.

Today, scores of oyster species grow in natural or cultivated beds from China and Japan to northern Europe and South Africa.

The United States is by far the world's leading producer and consumer, although output has dropped sharply from the 19th Century high mark—the result of over-harvesting, pests, pollution and wasteful operations.

Bob Considine Says:

Even in Day of Socrates Juveniles Were Problem

NEW YORK (INS)—Of all the mail received during a recent plunge into the matter of juvenile delinquency, the most encouraging letter came from a student at Ohio State University, name of Robert T. Henkel.

In a concise note suggesting that perhaps the picture isn't as dark as it has been painted, Henkel plucked two lively quotes out of the files:

"Our earth is degenerate in these latter days. There are signs that the world is coming to an end. Children no longer obey their parents. Everybody wants to write a book. The end of the world is near."

And:

"The children now love luxury, they have bad manners, contempt for authority, they show disrespect for elders, and love chatter in place of exercise. Children are now tyrants.

"They no longer rise when elders enter the room. They contradict their parents, chatter before company, gobble up dainties at the table, cross their legs and tyrannize over their teachers."

The first quote is from an Egyptian priest, Circa 4000 B. C. The second is from Socrates.

Our thinking in respect to the use of atomic weapons appears to have undergone a positive change in a very recent period.

The Air Force Association's statement of policy, as spelled out at the association's meeting in Omaha, says, "Our national policy must clearly define nuclear weapons as legitimate and conventional instruments for resisting aggression, or the free world's temporary advantage in weapons technology will continue to be seriously compromised."

This policy was the work of a committee which included Generals Carl A. Spaatz, George C. Kenney, Jimmy Doolittle and C. R. Smith. The statement had hardly penetrated the surface of our national thinking when Walter Bedell Smith swung into line and asked:

"Are free men, in their defense, to be prevented from using the instrumentalities brought forward out of this technical inventiveness because of the brooding misgivings and distortion of purpose?"

We have gone beyond timidity based on moral considerations, as Dr. Teller swept past the hesitant Professor Oppenheimer in the historic matter of whether or not to go ahead with the H-bomb.

Atomic warfare in the field and in the air is now so thoroughly a part of our military planning that some of the more readable text books are reaching the civilian surface.

Of these the most digestible seems to be "Atomic Weapons in Land Combat," by Colonel G. C. Reinhardt and Lt. Col. W. R. Kintner. (Military Service Publishing Co., Harrisburg, Pa.).

Batteries of atomic cannons loom as a dam against the Red Army in Europe. A handful of them would make Formosa virtually impregnible.

Sheppard Willed Wife's $9,100 Estate

CLEVELAND (AP)—Marilyn Sheppard bequeathed all of her possessions to her husband, the handsome Bay Village osteopath who is charged with murdering her.

This was disclosed yesterday when her father-in-law, Dr. Richard A. Sheppard, filed her will in probate court. The will was dated last Feb. 28, which was 132 days before she was bludgeoned to death in her bed the morning of July 4.

Her husband, Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, is in jail awaiting trial on a first degree murder charge. He has insisted his wife was killed by an intruder. A hearing on whether he should be released on bail has been continued to Friday.

Mrs. Sheppard named her husband as executor, but he declined to serve in a paper filed with the will. His father subsequently was named executor.

Papers filed with the will estimated the value of her estate at $9,100.

Dodge Mansion Becomes Court

Family Matriarch, 81, Defends Her Handling of Auto Fortune

DETROIT (AP) — Mrs. Anna Thompson Dodge yesterday defended the administration of a 57 million dollar fortune left by her husband in the midst of palatial splendor created by the fortune.

In deference to the age of the 81-year old matriarch of the automotive family, Probate Judge Patrick O'Brien moved his courtroom to a parlor in the 30-room Dodge estate overlooking Lake St. Clair.

Mrs. Dodge's granddaughter, Mrs. Christine Cromwell Asserson, has challenged the joint trusteeship of Mrs. Dodge and the Detroit Trust Co. over the fortune of the late automobile pioneer Horace E. Dodge Sr.

The suit began last May but was suspended when Mrs. Dodge's attorney contended she was too ill to appear before Judge O'Brien — himself an octogenarian.

Accompanied by court aides and attorneys, Judge O'Brien yesterday took the hearings on the Asserson suit to the Dodge mansion.

Mrs. Dodge whooped gleefully when lawyers for Mrs. Asserson charged she had received a tax-free income of 75 million from the estate over the years she has served as a trustee.

Judge O'Brien upheld her refusal to produce records of her income from the estate.

Mrs. Dodge was asked mainly about her private finances. Once she lost her patience. She raised her voice at attorney Victor Levine of New York — one of the four lawyers who spoke for the absent granddaughter.

Mrs. Asserson, 31, a resident of the Virgin Islands, contends the estate has been administered too conservatively. She already has borrowed three million on the strength of the one-fourth of the trust she will receive on the death of her grandmother.

Judge O'Brien adjourned the hearings until Friday.

Injunction Obtained by Holland Furnace

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—The Holland Furnace Co. of Holland yesterday obtained a court order restraining the Federal Trade Commission from holding a hearing on complaints against the company's selling practices.

Federal Judge Raymond W. Starr signed a temporary restraining order and set Sept. 24 as the date for a show cause hearing on making the injunction permanent.

Company attorneys, in seeking the injunction, charged the FTC with refusing to give specific information on complaints filed in Washington against company salesmen.

The complaints charge that company salesmen in some cases misled householders by telling them their furnaces were defective or dangerous.

Holland Furnace has denied the charges.

An apologetic hotel official said, "We'd already had calls from six phoney Joe DiMaggios before you called.

According to members of the league, last year's show was a success and they hope to exceed their goal again this year so that construction of the proposed new shelter can begin soon.

Officials say that although the league has no centrally located headquarters, the home finding committee has had exceptionally good results in placing animals. Committee members wish to emphasize that a shelter, run by a humane society, is needed in this fast growing area.

The league has many unique ideas to put into effect when the shelter is completed. Among them is a new method of tracing lost pets.

A fireside tea will be a special attraction of the show. Baked goods will be a part of the show for the first time this year. The hours are from 11 a. m. through 10 p. m.

Shoe Profiles Change in Conforming to New Lightweight Trend

Town shoes follow the clothing trend to trim lines, simpler designs and darker tones. This fall and winter the outstanding shoe models for town and business spotlight the conservative straight tip in smooth leather (A), new low upper with two eyelet tie (B), popular grain leather (C), classic wing tip model (D), unusual scallop wing tip (E), popular moccasin type blucher (F).

Slip-on shoes place particular emphasis upon comfort. Models are varied for casual wear and in the suburbs and for active and spectator sports. The leading slip-on models are shown in a variety of leathers. These include smooth black calf (G), luxurious alligator (H), and smooth glove-like leather (I), classic mocassin (J), slip-on variations in smooth and grain leather, (K,L,M).

Darker Tones, Lighter Weight Take Over Season's Shoes

The lightweight shoe in a darker tone is the big style trend in shoes for fall '54. Styles give emphasis to less bulkiness as found in shoes of past seasons.

The profile of shoes is also changing drastically to conform to this new trend. Uppers are low cut thus accenting the new lighter weights. Soles of flexible construction are gaining steadily in popularity.

Cashmere soft grain leathers in colors ranging from natural or camel color down through dark wine or burgundy and black are an important aspect of fall '34 shoes. Soft leathers provide greater comfort in town and casual models.

For business, black, dark shades of wine and deep mahogany harmonize with fall clothing.

In addition to black, dark shades of wine or burgundy and deep mahogany make handsome companions to the new fall suit tones. Stylewise, the refinement that is apparent in fall clothing has resulted in greater simplicity in shoe design.

There is a tendency for businessmen to dress more in leisure types of shoes. For them shoe designers have modified many of their casual shoe styles, giving them neater and trimmer lines, so they can also be worn for business, in suburban areas especially. The moccasin eyelet blucher model with moccasin toe is an example of the more casual business shoe.

Don't Use Vinegar in Plaster

Other Hints for the Handyman Found Here, Too

By HUBBARD COBB

While it's possible to slow up the time it takes Plaster of Paris to set by adding a little vinegar, this does not produce the best kind of plaster. Better to either use patching plaster or not mix more Plaster of Paris than you can use in ten minutes.

Putty does not stick well to raw wood. If you can't, for some reason or another, prime the wood then use a wood filler such as plastic wood that will bond to raw wood.

When it comes to painting galvanized iron, your best bet is first to apply a single coat of zinc dust primer. This will bond to the zinc coating on the steel far better than ordinary types of metal primers. It can also serve as a finish coat.

Kitchen drawers are easier to clean if the bottom and sides are lined with linoleum.

Cracks that can't be filled with caulking compound from a caulking gun or caulking tube can be filled with bulk caulking compound applied with a putty knife.

Small scratches in a lacquer finish can be concealed by running lacquer thinner along the scratch. This will soften up the lacquer on each side and allow it to run back together. You need only a small amount of thinner—nail polish remover will do.

If you break your glasses, you don't need a prescription to get a new pair. Any eyewear shop can duplicate the lens if a major portion or even fragments of the broken glasses are available.

Apology Is All That's Necessary

Accidents Happen, the Solution Is to Forget

By EMILY POST

A daughter writes: "For my mother's birthday, father bought an extremely beautiful and expensive vase made out of antique china which she had admired very much. Several days later a neighbor came in for a chat and accidently brushed against it, breaking it into thousands of tiny pieces so that it was beyond repair.

The next night this same neighbor came in and brought mother a cake she had baked, explaining again how sorry she was for the damage done. Evidently she meant this cake as payment for the vase, and does not intend to replace it.

I think she is definitely under obligation to do so. My father thinks that as it was an accident there is absolutely nothing to do but forget it. What is your opinion?"

I agree with your father.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to offer congratulations to the parents of the bride and groom at a wedding? I hear wedding guests say this very often and to me it does not seem right. Will you please tell me if such a greeting is proper, and if not, what is the correct thing to say to the parents of the bride and groom?"

You don't congratulate them. You say, "How lovely Mary looks;" "What a handsome couple they are"; "How lovely your daughter-in-law is"—in other words something appreciative about the bride and groom.

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I have just received a printed announcement of the opening of a medical office by my niece's husband. Will you please tell me if this requires any acknowledgment? My husband thinks we should send flowers of good luck.

It is not necessary to send flowers. The point of his sending you a notice is that he hopes you will send for him when you are ill!

Teens Like Big Wallets That Double as Handbags

All over the country, teenagers are in favor of oversized wallets which actually hold as much as a handbag. Tucked in a pocket, notebook or knitting box, they are stuffed with everything from photographs to jewelry.

One wallet we've seen has a passcase which contains an accordion-style arrangement for pictures instead of the customary windows—open the snap, and a long stream of pictures unfolds something like the short-snorter bills carried by our servicemen.

Another favorite resembles an enlongated French purse with two pockets—one for currency, the other for cosmetics. A zipper section holds keys, money, pictures and identification.

A third is made of soft leather, shaped like a small paper bag. It can be folded in half, or used like a poke. An outside coin purse eliminates fumbling.

A feature most convenient is the expendable tab holding one wallet together; no matter how jam-packed, the billfold never pops open because hidden elastic adjusts to the proper size.

Bright colors seem to be most popular for both school and dress-up occasions. Often gold embossing or jewelry trims are used, such as seed pearls, colored stones, even seashells.

For fall and back-to-school time, there's news in patent leather, black suede, kid leather, "antiqued" and luster-toned calfskins, and dark, glossy shades which correlate with gray flannel skirts and tweed suits.

Change Hair Part

A simple thing like changing the part in your hair may be all you need to give your spirits a lift. Next time you shampoo your hair, experiment. The suds will help you to mold the hair.

MAKE FRIENDS

The mother who turns a young child loose to handle the merchandise in a store while she shops is sayin in effect: "It's all right for you to make a nuisance of yourself."

Mom Is U. S. Treasurer, but Pat Earns Her Money

WASHINGTON (INS) — Having your mother treasurer of the rich United States isn't as much of an asset as you might think. Patricia Ann Priest, daughter of Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest, gets as broke as any other 17-year-old, and when this happens she goes without or goes to work.

Currently she is working — and buying all the clothes necessary for a pretty popular debutante in Washington.

Pat's resourcefulness was displayed at the age of 10 when she donned blue jeans and baggy shirts to join her friends in berry and bean picking on farms around her home near Salt Lake City, Utah.

"We worked all day for 60 cents," she laughed. "Sometimes, on an especially good day we would make as much as $1.50.

Later the blue-eyed miss with freckles hired herself out as a fountain girl at a Salt Lake ice cream parlor.

Still later she went to work for the telephone company to recoup the loss of a summer's allowance spent in one month on clothes.

With that employment record behind her it is not surprising that one of the capital's most eligible young women is carving a niche in television for herself—and raking in some of those valuable bills that bear her mom's signature.

Pat appears on a local TV disc jockey program a total of 2½ hours a day. She chats with the "jockey," "sings" a recorded song in pantomime and plugs the virtues of a fingernail polish.

Pat, petite and with blonde hair cropped short in a severe Italian cut, likes television so much she may discard ideas of going to Marjorie Webster Junior College next fall.

Aside from trying to stretch her wardrobe to cover all the functions she is invited to, Pat's main problem is keeping her beaux happy.

Mother, Career Girl and Wife Ask Questions

By ANNE HEYWOOD

Here are some questions which have come in my mail the past few weeks:

From a worried mother:

"My daughter is anxious to study for the ministry. She has always been very religious, and has always wanted to become a minister.

"The theological school has accepted her, to begin next semester. Her marks in high school were wonderful. But it breaks my heart. Isn't this a terribly difficult field for a woman?"

It's true that the way is not yet easy for a woman minister, but then, women doctors and lawyers and engineers are only newly arrived on the scene, and some of them are already having an easier time than they did ten years ago.

I would say that if it is a strong desire—as it would appear to be—your daughter should be encouraged to accept the challenge. There is much work for ministers now, and in the years ahead. The need for them is great, and I believe the prejudice existing against women in the ministry is rapidly disappearing.

You might read, and let your daughter read, a wonderful book by a woman minister, called "When God Says No." Its the story of Margaret Blair Johnstone, a well-known woman minister, and will answer many of your questions.

A career girl in New Jersey writes:

"I was fired from my last job, but it wasn't my fault. Should I explain that in my resume, and on application blanks when it says Reason for leaving'?"

No Simply say, For a better opportunity." Or something to that effect. That is enough for strangers who are not considering hiring you. But when it gets to the interview stage, explain to the potential employer the truth of the case, but keep it brief and unemotional.

And from a housewife in upper New York State:

I am anxious to take a night course in ceramics. Where can I find a course in my general vicinity that isnt too expensive?"

Write to the New York Adult Education Council. They have a free information service, and will give you all such information.

Leather and Tweed Perfect Partners

Sports car living, the importance of tweed, the emphasis on easy, casual lines are only a few of the reasons leather will be important this fall for the college girl.

Leather themes include: Tweed with capeskin as the lining of a reversible coat; tweed collar, cuffs and piping, matched to capeskin or suede jacket; tweed suits with leather collar and cuffs or yoke. They go together like ham and eggs.

The shirt look, featuring cuffed sleeves, vent sides, shirt detailing, in short leather jackets makes them practical for active sports, giving freedom of action for bicycling on campus, riding, golfing or hiking.

Whittle Your Waist

If you're planning to whittle your waistline this summer, here's an exercise that might help. Keeping your knees straight and your feet together, touch your toes 10 to 20 times. This is excellent for toning the muscles, too.

Why risk your health with that old sagging mattress when it costs so little to have it made like new?

When You're Praying

Thankfulness Is the Best Way to Obtain Results

By MARY MARGARET McBRIDE

Jim Bishop who writes histories and biographies has signed a contract for a different kind of book. It's to be called "My Favorite Prayer" and Samuel Cardinal Stritch, David Ben Gurion, Chiang Kai-shek, John D. Rockefeller Jr., Clare Booth Luce and many others have sent their favorites. Now Mr. Bishop suggests that I "devise" one.

The author feels that millions of people from many faiths are somewhat mute when it comes to prayer. In fact, he surmises that unless they are reciting a formal written petition, they are almost unable to communicate with God. I have never prayed a formal prayer in my life and I must confess (unless it comes to me before I finish this column) that I have not yet been able to "devise" one. But I do have a few thoughts on the subject.

Somebody has said that prayer is the throwing of a switch establishing a connection between God and man. I've often thought that even God, the understanding and omnipotent, must sometimes feel like turning off the current when He hears some of the long, tedious supplications that are beamed His way. It seems to me that, for instance, sitting quietly looking at water, mountains and sky, feeling thankful in every atom of your being to be alive amid such beauty, or being filled with gratitude for some chance you have had or job you've done well must please God as much or more than many of the sonorous and lengthy demands that often sound, anyway, as if they were designed for an earthly audience rather than a heavenly one.

Of course, many of Mr. Bishop's prayers will be made by experts. It had never occurred to me that there were prayer experts until a time, years ago, when Stella Karn conceived the idea of a prayer heard round the world for the Interchurch World Movement. A prayer expert was assigned to her.

"She says this prayer won't do," the little prayer expert confided sadly. "She says she has to have a prayer with pep in it."

And he went on his way to put in some more work on the prayer which later actually was said all over the world at the same minute even though it was Tuesday in some places when it was Wednesday in others. As I remember it, that prayer had not only pep but simplicity which I believe prayers should have.

Now that I come to think about it, except for the Lord's Prayer, almost my favorite of all the prayers I've ever heard was one said by a small girl at a family dinner table where I was a guest. She bowed her blonde head, folded her little hands and piped, "Thank You very much, God, for these nice things to eat. I'll do my best to be good enough all this year to deserve them."

I like that prayer because it is thankful, not demanding. If God truly knows what we have need of—and the Bible says He does—then surely this is enough.

So, Jim Bishop, if it's all right with you, I think I'll modify the little girl's prayer to: "Thank You, God, for the nice things you've put in the world for all of us. I, for one, will do my best to be good enough to deserve them."

Keep Leaves Out of Spout and Gutter

For the next several weeks, falling tree leaves are going to be a problem. They are going to be a problem on the lawn and they are going to be a problem in the roof gutters for few things can upset gutters like a thick coating of wet leaves.

The best way to avoid spending Saturday afternoons sweeping leaves out of gutters and flushing them out of downspouts is to prevent the leaves from ever getting there in the first place. As far as gutters go, this can be done by taking sections of wire or plastic insect screening, making them into a roll the same diameter as the gutter and then placing them in the gutter. If metal screening is used, be sure it is the same metal as the gutter—copper screening for copper gutters, aluminum screening for aluminum gutters. If plastic screening is used, you don't have to worry on this score.

To keep the leaves out of downspouts, your best bet is a little wire cage made for this very job. It fits over the opening of the downspout in the gutter and you can purchase one at almost any hardware store.

If you don't make any provision for keeping leaves and other debris out of gutters and downspouts, then be sure to sweep them out from time to time and be sure they are good and clean before freezing weather sets in.

Soap Saves Paint

Before painting walls and woodwork, go over them with a soapy cloth to remove dirt. This preliminary step may reveal that, in some instances, painting will be unnecessary.

PETUNIA!

This is Save-Your-Money day. O, listen as I shout NEVER NEVER NEVER THROW A SHOWER CURTAIN OUT!

Good advice, Petunia—because a plastic shower curtain can be turned into a lot of good dust-proof shoulder covers for your closet. Try it!

By ELIZABETH HILLYER

There couldn't be a better time than right now to learn more about decorating your home. Now, during Home Fashion Time, when there's so much to see that's new and wonderful and full of ideas.

It's seeing all you can of the best of everything that developes taste, that solves problems, that sparks ideas of your own. And what's new now points out the way the latest trend go, to show how to refresh rooms with new fashions.

Here's example of the new trend toward more varied contemporary styling and more varied materials in furniture. There's individuality in the design of this dining group, and an unusual adaptability to either a contemporary or a traditional home.

With the warm brown walnut, cane and brass, designer John Wisner uses white Formica for the top of the sideboards and a shelf for the breakfront, and for ferrules on the feet of the chest pieces and the table. (Made by Johnson Furniture Company.)

Mrs. C. Y. "What color and size should new throw rugs be for a bedroom 10 feet by 12 feet? The walls are Dresden blue, the ceiling and woodwork are white and the curtains yellow. The bed and Mr. and Mrs. chest are modern in birch."

The rugs might be a deeper shade of the same blue, or yellow. The arrangement of the furniture must determine the size of the rugs. Draw a floor plan of the room to exact scale and set carefully measured paper cutouts to represent rugs in various sizes on the plan until you know what are the best sizes for the rugs where they should go.

Mrs. M. M. "Two walls in my living room are chocolate brown, and two are the same brown with a pink and rose pattern. The draperies are green, and one chair is gold. What color should a new sofa, chair, and rug be?"

Rose beige is a good choice for the rug and either the sofa or the chair, depending on where they are in relation to the draperies. The other piece of furniture should echo the green, — plain or in a simple figure or mixtures with green and rose beige, and perhaps brown.

IF illusion of lower waist—

Wide belts give the new longer torso look to last year's dresses. The tall figure can swag low, less drop if you are short.

Miss L. W.—The lowering of the beltline has brought some modified and some extreme fashions to flatter this longer torso look. This is an easy way to give the new lower waistline to last season's dresses and coats.

Sealed Cork Floor Easy to Keep Clean

Thanks to a special sealed finish, modern cork floors can be lightly suds-scrubbed and waxed like any other type of flooring.

However, an unsealed cork floor stains more readily and requires vigorous scrubbing with plenty of hot soapsuds until clean. Then rinse well, allow it to dry, and apply several coats of wax as a protective finish.

All Curtains Need Frequent Washing

Window curtains of any kind collect so much dust and soil that they simply must be washed often — not only to look fresh, but to survive the wear and tear of corroding dirt.

If you neglect them and let the soil stay in, your curtains aren't going to last long. So always choose curtains you'll be glad to wash because the job is so quick and easy!

Girl Is Hurt by Boy's Disapproval

Can't Understand Why She Receives Hate Treatment

By ELIZABETH WOODWARD

A girl whose heart is filled with good will toward everybody dies fourteen deaths when she finds out someone doesn't like her. She churns with worry over what she could have possibly done to bring on this blight. What could she have said, or left unsaid? What impolite, ungracious thing could have caused offense?

Whenever she sees this person who is immune to her charms, she shrivels into a shell of awkwardness and strain. She can't be her natural, cheerful self with this person glaring at her, ignoring her pointedly or making sarcastic cracks. Her sensitive soul withers under the blast of implied or expressed disapproval.

It hurts. It hurts deep. And that's this girl's problem.

"Dear Miss Woodward: What would you do if a boy in your gang hated you so bad it made everybody miserable? I'm a girl of 15 who runs around with a congenial crowd and recently one of the boys has come to hate me.

He hasn't been here long so I've really just met him. And the only time I've really been with him was one night when I had a date with his brother. He spilled a malted milk all over his suit and everyone laughed, including me.

Ever since then he has given me nasty looks, shouted things at me, and last night went so far as to tell a group of kids he hated me. It really upsets me as he is nasty to my girl friends and is hateful when the gang is together. He won't be in the same building I am if he can help it.

"At first my girl friends and I thought it was funny, but now it makes me feel terrible. I don't want him for a boy friend or anything like that. I like people and I want them to like me. I'm easy to get along with. What can I do to make that boy like me?"

It might be a good idea to find out just why this boy has taken such a violent dislike to you. It's strange that a boy you've just met and have been with only once should make up his mind that he knows enough about you to hate. Since he is so open about it, perhaps he has talked freely to some of the other kids. Maybe his brother could tell you what he has against you. If you knew, it might be easier to counteract the impression you've made on him.

But it might just be that all of his bluster is to cover up a real interest in you. Perhaps on the night of the malted accident he could have stood everyone's laughter but yours. In which case you might pass the word along (hoping it will reach his ears) that you think he's very attractive. You like the way his hair grows or the color of his eyes or something — anything complimentary that might cheer him up. If you can like him (just as you do everybody else) despite his attitude toward you, he might be persuaded to change his tune.

And if he doesn't — well, he just doesn't go for your type, that's all. That's not your fault. So pay him no mind.

Stevenson Eyes Business Vote

Tells How Enterprises Prospered Under Dem Presidents

CINCINNATI (AP) — Democrat Adlai Stevenson last night called for an "agonizing reappraisal" in the hearts of Republican politicians "who for so long nourished us on myths and McCarthyism."

"One of the myths and distortions that has been carefully cultivated for a long time is that the Democratic party is anti-business," he told a Democratic campaign dinner.

The 1952 presidential candidate said the Republican "hatchet men will conduct the smear attacks on the flanks" while President Eisenhower delivers "little sermonettes."

But he said the election this week of a Democratic governor in Maine for the first time in 20 years confirms that "our people are tired of this unending diet of equal portions of niceness, nonsense and nastiness."

Stevenson devoted a substantial part of his address to business and how he said it prospered under Democratic presidents.

He said both the Democratic party and the business community want "vigorous, stimulating competition in a growin economy."

"And I hope that hard-headed businessmen will take some hard looks at the record at those old slogans about Democratic left-wingers," he remarked. "Maybe the term 'left' refers to the asset ide of the balance sheet."

Accused Detroit GI Asks Army Release

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A former prisoner-of-war in Korea, whose Army file, his attorney says, contains information that he allegedly collaborated with the Communists, seeks his unconditional release from military service through a U. S. District Court order.

The soldier, Cpl. Ruben D. Cruz, 23, of Detroit, Mich., now a patient at Valley Forge General Hospital, Judge William Kirkpatrick on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus brought by his civilian attorney, William J. Woolston.

The court took the case under advisement.

Col. Kenneth Brewer, commanding officer of the hospital, testified that he had been ordered by the Army to offer Cruz his separation and to release him from military service, but that Cruz had refused to be separated.

A letter submitted in evidence showed that Cruz refused because he would not receive an honorable discharge.

Army to Tell Public if War Gas Escapes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army is taking special steps to warn citizens if deadly gas, radiological or germ warfare materials escape during shipment.

A new regulation requires public announcement "in event that toxic agents are released through accident in a populous area which make immediate warning and evacuation necessary."

A spokesman said today the regulation was issued as a "precautionary" step, and that there had been no accidents involving CBR (chemical, biological, radiological) material.

Army specialists who escort each shipment of CBR material from depots or production installations are directed to "request the assistance of newspaper, radio stations, local police, etc." if an accident makes imperative the prompt warning of persons living in the area.

Knowland's Wife Better After Cerebral Seizure

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Helen H. Knowland, wife of Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif) was reported recovering today from a mild cerebral seizure. She was stricken unconscious yesterday.

Knowland said Dr. Robert McIvor assured him Mrs. Knowland would recover.

Reds Sprinkle in Rain

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Hungary has had an unusually rainy summer, but that has not deterred state employes from watering Budapest parks, sometimes while the rain is falling. They do the watering according to official planning, it is explained, but the Communist organ Szabad Nep calls the situation incridible.

Nehru Must Use English

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru says it hurts him to address Parliament in English, but he has to. Criticized for not using Hindi, India's official tongue, Nehru said a third of Parliament would not understand him. Under the Constitution, the government can use English as a working language until 1964.

Arabs Adopt Paper Bills

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Saudi Arabia is one of the last countries in the world to adopt paper money. After early resistance, wealthy Saudis now welcome the idea. They no longer have to employ camel caravans to carry coins from place to place.

While Africa is often considered a flat country, actually more than 40 per cent of the South Africa Union is more than 4,000 feet above sea level.

There never was a sweeter reason for using all in your automatic washer!

When baby's things are washed in all, they always come out sweet and safe for tender skin. all is the "controlled suds" detergent that's not only approved but actually prescribed by washer makers for cleanest possible washing.

MUSIC TO ANY MOTHER'S EAR is the happy gurgle of an infant whose chubby bottom is comfortably nestled in an all-washed diaper.

For all is the new and safer way to wash baby clothes. The important difference between all and ordinary washing powders is that all gets clothes super-clean and soft—without thick, sticky suds!

This means your automatic washer simply cannot leave any harsh, irritating suds-curd in the fabric when you use all.

But this new "controlled suds" detergent is not just a safety measure. It's also a beauty treatment for everything you wash.

11,000 washer repairmen vote against thick suds

The men who service automatic washers blame "too much suds" for 4 out of 5 washer troubles. For no modern washer can wash or rinse thoroughly if its action is smothered by suds.

They agree the surest, safest answer is to use the "controlled suds" detergent that's not only approved but actually prescribed by automatic washer makers.

Instead of swamping your machine under piles of heavy suds, all puts all its washing power to work under water—where the real washing job must be done.

Thick suds hang on and on

You know how impatient you get trying to chase suds out of your kitchen sink. So you can imagine what a blessing all's "controlled suds" are when your washer clicks into "RINSE."

Unlike thick suds which refuse to wash away, all's "controlled suds" go right down the drain with the rinse water. There's no sticky suds-film strained back into the clothes to attract loose dirt the way flypaper catches flies. (No wonder clothes washed with all actually stay clean longer!)

all must do all we say

all is positively guaranteed to outwash anything you've ever used in your automatic washer, or you can get your money back.

So buy a box of all right away . . . and try it on all your wash . . . from the grimiest work and play clothes to your filmiest lingerie. all is unconditionally recommended for the new miracle fabrics like Acrilan, Orlon, Dynel, and nylon.

If you don't agree that all makes a wonderful difference—immediately—just return the rest of the all to your dealer. He has been instructed to refund your money in full.

Now two types of all... both prescribed for automatic washers

Here's why there's now a new kind of all at your grocer's. Condensed all in the blue box has become the washing favorite of millions. But thousands have asked for a less concentrated all that could be used not only in washing machines but also in the kitchen and for basin washing of stockings and lingerie.

This new type—Extra Fluffy all—is the same patented formula as Condensed all. It comes in a bright red box, only one-third the weight of the Condensed all box—and costs only one-third as much. Monsanto Chemical Company, St. Louis, Missouri.

Breakfast Vital to Active Pupils

Full Tummies Mean Good Day

Mrs. John Leonard's Basic Menu Features Jam as Extra Treat

Like thousands of other Pontiac mothers, Mrs. John Leonard of North Edith street rises early each day to have a good breakfast ready for her family.

Three-month-old John doesn't come to the table yet, of course, but 7-year-old Linda, 5-year-old Patrick and Mr. Leonard put away a hearty meal every morning.

Mrs. Leonard knows that a basic breakfast consists of fruit, whole grain cereal, bread and butter and milk. She also knows that an egg or bacon may be substituted for the cereal products or added to the basic menu.

Linda and Patrick usually eat both cereal and an egg.

Pear and Plum Jam

2 pounds ripe pears
1½ pounds ripe plums
¼ cup cold water
7-¼ cups (3-¼ pounds) sugar
1 bottle liquid pectin—6 ounce

Peel and core pears. Put through food chopper, using coarse blade. Wash and stone plums. Crush thoroughly. Add water to plums, simmer with cover on five minutes.

Combine fruits (which should measure 4½ cups) and sugar in a large pan; mix. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard one minute, stirring constantly.

Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid pectin.

Then stir and skim by turns for five minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into sterilized jelly glasses. Cover at once with one-eighth-inch hot paraffin.

No Sugar Necessary

Canning for someone on a sugar-free diet? All fruits can be successfully canned without this sweetening since the sugar is used to improve the flavor of the product and does not keep it from spoiling.

Top a fruit salad with mayonnaise tinted and flavored with maraschino cherry juice. So good, so pretty.

Pour Creole Sauce on Baked Fish Rolls

Fish Rolls With Creole Sauce

2 cups flaked cooked fish
½ cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon celery salt
6 long soft rolls
¼ cup salad oil
1 large onion
1 teaspoon garlic salt
2 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
2½ cups tomato juice
¾ cup chopped ripe olives
¾ cup grated American cheese

Mix fish, mayonnaise and celery salt. Cut rolls into halves and hollow slightly. Fill with fish mixture; replace tops; place in shallow baking pan.

Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 15 minutes. Top generously with sauce; serve at once.

To make sauce, heat oil in large skillet. Ad chopped onion; cook onion until wilted but not brown. Blend in garlic salt, flour, chili powder and salt.

For Main Dish Soup, Corn Chowder Is Ideal

Next time you're in need of a main dish soup (for a quick salad or sandwich meal) count on canned corn chowder to fill the bill. Prepare it according to directions on the can. Heat and serve.

Garnish if you like with green pepper strips, oyster crackers or olive wedges.

Vienna Sausage Pockets Team With Molded Salad

You needn't eat out in order to feed your family something different. For a "meal-in-two," try Vienna Sausage Pockets and pineapple cucumber salad. These easy new twists to food combinations are sure to please.

Vienna Sausage Pockets

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
¾ cup milk
Prepared mustard
2 (4-ounce) cans Vienna sausages

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt into mixing bowl. Use pastry blender to cut shortening into flour until particles are size of wheat grains. Add milk all at once. Stir vigorously until just blended.

Turn onto lightly floured pastry cloth or board. Toss lightly once or twice to coat with flour. Knead for 30 seconds. Handle lightly.

Roll dough approximately one-eighth inch thick. Cut with floured 3½-inch plain or fluted-edge round cutter. Arrange biscuit circles one-half inch apart on baking sheet. Spread each one with thin layer of mustard.

Place sausage in center of each circle. Fold biscuit dough over top of sausage, pinching only biscuit corners tightly together. Bake in hot 425 oven 12 to 15 minutes.

Top with catsup, if desired. Serve at once with pineapple cucumber salad. Makes 12 to 14 sausage pockets.

Pineapple Cucumber Salad

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
1½ cups hot water
½ cup pineapple juice
2 tablespoons mild vinegar
(1 tablespoon vinegar plus 1 tablespoon water)
½ teaspoon salt
Few drops green vegetable coloring
⅛ teaspoon grated onion
1-cup diced pineapple, drained
1 cup diced cucumber, drained
Mayonnaise
Pimiento for garnish, as desired
Watercress or parsley for garnish

Place gelatin in mixing bowl. Gradually add water, stirring until gelatin is dissolved. Add pineapple juice, vinegar, salt, food coloring and onion. Mix well.

Chill until mixture is consistency of unbeaten egg white. Fold in pineapple and cucumber. Arrange strips of pimento in a well-oiled 3-cup ring mold, as desired, to form a design in mold. Spread salad mixture evenly in mold.

Chill until firm. Unmold. Place 5½-ounce custard cup in hole of ring. Fill with mayonnaise. If you prefer to use a mold of another shape, serve mayonnaise in a separate dish.

Garnish salad with pimiento, with watercress or parsley around edge.

Honey-Orange Spread Will Be Lunch Favorite

Cream cheese is a lunchbox favorite. Treat your children to taste-teasing sandwiches made with this honey-orange spread.

Combine one 3-ounce package softened cream cheese with 1 tablespoon honey and 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, mixing until well blended and creamy. Makes filling for about eight sandwiches.

A mixed green salad may include all type of lettuce, curly endive, French endive, escarole, watercress, scallions and chives.

For the Children's Sake, Develop Breakfast Habit

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

With all the pro-breakfast publicity flooding the country it is hard to see how anyone can argue against eating this most important meal of the day.

But let us face facts: There are no doubt many of you readers who still shy away from the breakfast table with one excuse or another, most of which don't really hold water.

Perhaps it is too late to convert you — it is, if you think you are too old to change — but we make a plea for the children.

Unpleasant as the thought may be, it is our example as parents which has the best effect upon our youngsters. We can talk ourselves blue in the face; the children shut off their hearing apparatus.

In eating breakfast, as in most other habits we hope to instill into our offspring, if we set the precedent, they are apt to follow it.

Actions done routinely are easier than those done occasionally. If we set a routine pattern for our breakfast menus, we can vary the individual parts without much effort.

We can even teach the children what an adequate breakfast is and they can get their own if necessary. Personally, we are in favor of mothers being up and presiding at the breakfast table.

The basic breakfast pattern consists of fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter. It is a pattern readily adapted to individual and family needs, provides one fourth to one third of the day's total food requirements and forms a good nutritional basis for the day.

You may add an egg or breakfast meat to this menu or substitute it for the cereal or the bread. In our house the male members add the animal protein, the feminine members substitute it for the cereal.

In an experiment carried out by the University of Iowa is was found that the 12 to 14-year-old boy subjects were stronger and more alert with an adequate breakfast.

Even their school marks were better (don't expect your child to make the honor roll if you start giving him a good breakfast — but it will help).

It has been proven over and over again that everyone is better off with a good meal to "break the fast." Dad will be keener on the job if he has an adequate breakfast, and will be less apt to have that late-morning slump.

Dieters cannot afford to skip breakfast. They can maintain their weight loss just as easily by fitting breakfast into their daily meal pattern.

It is the total consumption of calories that counts. Eating a satisfying breakfast means less snacking during the day.

As a last reminder: All children need breakfast every day. They need it to insure proper growth, to keep them alert and active, and to provide adequate nutrition for each day.

There is no excuse for them to skimp on this meal. Time, cost, food likes and dislikes, all can be adjusted. Please feed your family a good breakfast.

Everyone Will Like This Squash Recipe

Special Butternut Squash

1¼ pounds butternut squash
½ cup boiling water
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1/16 teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Peel squash, cut in half and scoop out seeds; slice it into one-four-inch cubes; there should be about 4 cups.

Place in 2-quart saucepan with water; bring to a boil; cook quickly until just tender. This will take about 10 minutes and water should be evaporated; if it is not, drain squash.

Put butter in small container, add salt, pepper, nutmeg and lemon juice; place over low heat until melted.

Stuffed Eggs Versatile

Stuffed eggs are wonderful for perking up all sorts of food: Add food value to salads; flavor and color to casseroles; substance to hors d'oeuvres trays. Whether the stuffing is prepared from fish, ground meat or vegetables,

Fix Apple Sandwiches to Vary Lunch Menu

Crisp, juicy red apples are now abundant on the market. Because they're thrifty in season, and tasty eating anytime, you'll want to include this fruit often on your fall menus. Apples make a really different sandwich just right for perking up school lunches.

Cut cinnamon bread in thin slices. Cream margarine or butter and spread lightly on bread. Pare apples, core and cut in thin slices.

Arrange on a slice of bread and cover with a second slice. Accompany with wedges of a snappy cheese.

Golden Breaded Shrimp Have Special Man Appeal

A delectable quickie meal with a special man appeal has fried shrimp as the main dish. The frozen breaded shrimp cook in just two minutes. It is divinely simple the way these luscious shrimp fry to golden brown crispiness outside, with delicate and tender shrimp meat inside.

Serve the shrimp with French-fried potatoes which are fried just previously in the same fry pot. This saves work and the family will love the combination.

Use a tangy dip for the shrimp, perhaps one mentioned below. Then with a tossed salad and a dessert, a person has a handsome and hearty meal to feast the folks and nourish them too.

Frozen breaded shrimp are a marvel for the menu. They make a husband feel like a beau again, ought to have them often. These shrimp are the big fantail ones with the real fresh flavor of the Gulf of Mexico, home waters for the best-tasting shrimp.

They're easy to handle, quick to fry, seasoned during the breading (and the breading stays on). There's no bother of messy fixing, no bruised fingers from the effort.

We think French-fried or pan-fried are the best ways to cook frozen breaded shrimp. However, these shrimp can be oven-fried if a person wishes to tuck them in the oven and forget about them (while she sits down to visit with friends or while she does the family washing).

Just dip the breaded shrimp in salad oil, drain, and lay side by side in a large shallow pan in the oven heated to 350 degrees. Let bake unmolested about 20 to 30 minutes. Drain on paper towels. Easy!

Now for some good dips for fried shrimp—

Catsup with a little Worcestershire sauce and lemon juice

Mayonnaise with half catsup, a little grated onion and Tabasco

Mayonnaise, chopped black olives, horseradish, chopped pimiento

A rub of garlic on the bowl, then add mayonnaise, black olives and pickle relish

Mashed avocado, lemon juice, grated onion, chopped pimiento, mayonnaise and Tabasco

Sandwich spread with Tabasco

Chili sauce, soy sauce, garlic (just rubbed on bowl)

Roast in Frying Pan

If you have one of those new-fangled electric frying pans, don't overlook its possibilities for roasting. Cook the meat, fat side down, until nearly done, then turn.

New Spread Appeals to Peanut Butter Fans

School days are lunchbox days. If you have school-age youngsters, you once again have the challenge of making appetizing and nutritious packed lunches day after day. Youngsters who favor peanut butter sandwiches will welcome this new variation, California Delight.

Cream one-half cup peanut butter and mix in the juice of one orange gradually. Add one-half cup shredded coconut and 1 tablespoon shredded orange rind, mixing thoroughly.

Spread 8 slices of bread with butter or margarine. Spread peanut butter filling on four slices bread and cover with remaining slices. Makes four sandwiches.

Milk-Enriched Lunches Insure Children's Growth

That early morning rush of getting the children off to school finds big sister in the starring role of mother's helper. For one thing she can prepare school lunches for the smaller youngsters and for herself.

Growing boys and girls need the important health-giving nutrients of milk—protein, calcium, riboflavin and lactose—and it is important for big sister to learn this early.

An easy nutritious idea features enrichment of canned condensed soups with nonfat dry milk, for this product provides these valuable nutrients.

Nonfat dry milk is a most versatile product in the home for it is used in cooking, baking, drinking, with cereals and it will even whip. Another school lunch nutrition bonus is the preparation of sandwich spreads with nonfat dry milk.

School Timers' Soup

1 10½ oz. can condensed tomato soup
⅓ cup nonfat dry milk

Pour contents of can into saucepan. Sprinkle nonfat dry milk powder over surface and stir or beat with rotary beater until smooth.

Orange-Peanut Butter Filling

½ cup homogenized peanut butter
1 tablespoon nonfat dry milk
½ cup orange marmalade

Cream peanut butter and nonfat dry milk powder together until well blended. Add orange marmalade and mix well. Store in Refrigerator until ready to use. Makes 4-5 sandwiches.

Tuna Spread

1 3-oz. package cream cheese
2 tablespoons nonfat dry milk
¼ cup mayonnaise
½ cup tunafish, well drained.

Soften cream cheese at room temperature. Stir in nonfat dry milk powder. Add mayonnaise and stir until well blended. Fold in tunafish.

Store in refrigerator until ready for use. Makes 4-6 sandwiches.

Sauce Enriches Ham, Chicken

A delicious and satisfying casserole dish saves many a day for the homemaker, summer or winter. It's one of those old standbys that gives a new look to leftovers, is simple in preparation, provides sturdy food fare for the family.

Our recipe for ham and chicken casserole fills the bill on all of these scores: It's made with economical and nutritious nonfat dry milk, a mighty versatile dairy product available at leading good stores.

Ham and Chicken Casserole

1½ cups water
½ cup nonfat dry milk
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
½ package (½ lb. sharp process cheese slices, cubed)
2 cups cooked rice (2/3 cup uncooked)
1 cup diced cooked ham
1 cup diced cooked chicken
1½ cups cooked lima beans
1 can (3-oz.) mushrooms, drained
2 tablespoons diced pimiento

Pour water into top of double boiler. Sprinkle nonfat dry milk powder, flour, salt and pepper over surface; and Worcestershire sauce. Beat with rotary beater until smooth.

Add cheese. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened.

Combine remaining ingredients in a 2-quart casserole. Pour cheese sauce over mixture; stir until just blended. Bake in a moderate 350 oven about 30 minutes or until mixture begins to bubble.

Sauce Gives Veal Chops Intriguing Oriental Accent

Veal chops are a good choice for a company meal. They are usual enough to make a pleasant change and are easy to prepare.

Veal Chops Oriental

4 veal chops, 1-inch thick
2 teaspoons kitchen bouquet
2 tablespoons fat
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon rubbed marjoram
3-ounce can sliced broiled mushrooms
8-ounce can water chestnuts
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon sherry (optional)

Brush chops on all sides with kitchen bouquet. Place fat in Dutch oven or large frying pan over moderate heat. Brown chops quickly on all sides, add onion and cook one minute.

Add salt, marjoram and broth from mushrooms. Cover tightly and allow to simmer over low heat until chops are tender, about 20 minutes.

In the meantime drain chestnuts, preserving broth, and cut in slices about one-eighth inch thick. Add sufficient water to the chestnut broth to make 1 cup. nut broth to make 1 cup.

When chops are tender, pour in three-fourth cup of the chestnut broth. Combine and add cornstarch with remaining chestnut broth, stirring until sauce is thick and clear. Add sherry if desired.

Add mushrooms and chestnuts and let heat thoroughly, but do not boil, about five minutes. Serve immediately with hot buttered rice. Makes four servings.

New Products Cut Down Time Spent in Kitchen

If you're a typical modern homemaker, you want to do your cooking as fast as possible and still serve tempting, well - balanced meals. Here are three new food products reported in a current magazine to help speed your work in the kitchen.

You can now use instant coffee to make iced coffee, too. One company has a new, mellow-flavored instant coffee that will dissolve in cold as well as hot water, a wonderful timesaver.

A real gourmet dish that takes just a few minutes to prepare is a new onion soup. Just mix with water and heat. One can makes 2½ cups of delicious soup—a blend of sliced onions, beef stock, cheese and seasonings.

You can protect light-colored fruit from browning and loss of flavor while frozen. A new ascorbic-citric powder can be used when freezing fruits with syrup or sugar.

It's useful, too, for preventing discoloration of canned fruit and fresh fruit prepared several hours before serving.

Start Day Right With Rich Cake

Better Breakfast Month deserves recognition by all homemakers who are nutrition conscious. With the beginning of school, mothers have to make a special effort to get the family into their fall routine.

Isn't it nice to know that something as luscious as caramel glaze coffee cake could be so nourishing and good for you as well?

A breakfast which stars Caramel glaze coffee cake might also include a fresh fruit cup, baked eggs, bacon curls and coffee.

CARAMEL GLAZE COFFEE CAKE—The sleepiest member of the family will be glad he made the effort to get up for breakfast if he can come down to this caramel glaze coffee cake. A spicy blanket of currants, nuts and cinnamon-sugar gives special elegance to this thrift-wise breakfast treat.

Caramel Glaze Coffee Cake

1 package yeast, compressed or dry
¼ cup water (lukewarm for compressed yeast, warm for dry)
½ cup milk
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
2 cups sifted enriched flour (about)
1 egg
½ cup currants

Soften yeast in water. Scald milk. Add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Add 1 cup flour and beat well. Add softened yeast, egg and currants. Beat well. Add more flour to make a stiff batter. Beat thoroughly until smooth.

Cover and let rise until bubbly (about one hour). When batter is light, stir down. Spread evenly in greased 8-inch square pan.

Sprinkle caramel glaze over batter. Let rise until doubled (about 30 minutes). Bake in moderate 375-degree oven about 30 minutes.

Caramel Glaze Topping

2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup chopped nuts
¼ cup currants

Combine ingredients and mix until well blended.

Perfect, Fluffy Meringues Are Easy to Prepare

Cream pies generally are topped with a meringue, and for that reason many pie bakers shy away from baking them. Actually, meringues aren't difficult to bake if a few simple rules are followed.

The pie filling must be cool before the meringue is spread. Otherwise, the steam will cause the meringue to weep.

Another thing to remember is that the meringue must be spread so it touches all edges of the pastry shell, sealing perfectly to prevent shrinkage.

A perfect meringue neither weeps nor shrinks. Here is how to make one:

Beat three egg whites to a stiff foam that will flow slowly from the bowl when tipped a little. Add 6 tablespoons of sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, to the egg whites, beating after each addition.

Add a few grains of salt and a few drops of flavoring. Continue beating until meringue is thick and glossy and stands in curved peaks.

Okra Lends Variety to Shrimp Creole

Try this unusual variation of Shrimp Creole.

Okra Shrimp Creole

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup finely chopped onion
2 large cloves garlic (crushed)
1 cup (2 medium-size) finely chopped green pepper (about ½ pound)
½ teaspoon salt
cayenne
1 teaspoon sugar
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon celery salt
¼ teaspoon thyme seasoning powder
One 10½-ounce can tomato puree
One 15½-ounce can cut okra
1 pound shrimp

Melt butter in 10-inch skillet over low heat; stir in flour well. Add onion, garlic and green pepper; cook until onion is yellowed, stirring often.

Add salt, dash of cayenne, sugar, Worcestershire, celery salt, thyme and tomato puree. Cook slowly 10 to 15 minutes.

Add okra and shrimp; simmer just until shrimp are cooked through — about five minutes.

Serve Hot Breads to Get Breakfast Out of Its Rut

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

Are you tired of the breadstuff on your breakfast table? Do you have the same old toast, day in and day out? We are in favor of a routine pattern for breakfast menus, but we like some variety too.

There are some mornings when it is physically impossible to do more than pop a piece of bread in the toaster. Let's plan some other mornings—besides Sundays—when we serve a special bread.

If you have no knack for baking explore the possibilities of the bakery counter in the grocery store. You will find a tremendous variety of bread and rolls, sweet and plain.

If you light the oven the minute you get up, you can have brown-and-serve rolls any morning. Plain rolls or muffins can be heated in a bun warmer or in the top of a double broiler. Hard rolls crisp up nicely in the oven.

Coffee cake and sweet rolls may be heated or sliced and toasted under the broiler. Warm breadstuff tastes so much better than cold.

For the cook who likes to make her own quick or yeast breads, we have several suggestions. With a freezer, you have an easy solution. Make the bread and rolls in your spare time, freeze it and thaw it out as you heat it.

If you want muffins or biscuits some morning, mix the dry ingredients the night before, light the oven the minute you arise, and you'll have delicious hot bread for breakfast.

This Pineapple Nut Bread is extra good toasted for breakfast. Since most quick breads slice better the second day, make this one ahead of time.

Pineapple Nut Bread

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup raisins
½ cup walnuts, coarsely chopped
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons melted shortening
1 No. 1 Flat can (1 cup) crushed pineapple, not drained
1 teaspoon soda

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt into bowl. Add raisins and nuts. Combine egg, vanilla and shortening; add to mixture. Dissolve soda in pineapple and add. Stir until just blended.

Pour into greased 8x4x4 loaf pan and bake at 50 degrees (moderate) about one hour, or until done. Cool on rack. Serve buttered or spread with cream cheese.

Oatmeal is an excellent ingredient in quick breads. If the family does not care for it as a hot cereal, you can use it in this recipe with the same good results.

Upside-Down Oat Muffins

1 cup rolled oats, uncooked
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons fat
¼ cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
4 tablespoons honey
12 drained cooked apricot halves

Combine rolled oats and milk; let stand five minutes. Cream together fat and sugar. Add egg and beat. Add oat mixture. Sift together flour, salt and baking powder; add to first mixture, stirring only until mixed.

In each well-greased muffin pan place 1 teaspoon honey and an apricot half with cut side up. Fill two-thirds full and bake in moderate over (350-375) 25 to 30 minutes.

Turn out fruit side up. Serve hot. Yield: 12-medium-sized muffins.

Pep Up Vanilla Cookies

Add mint extract and ground semi-sweet chocolate to vanilla cookies for something deliciously different. Or frost vanilla cookies with mint-flavored chocolate frosting.

Curry Peas, Carrots

Here's a way to vary the usual combination of peas and carrots: Add a dash of curry powder to them, after they are cooked and drained, as well as butter or margarine, salt and pepper.

Mustard Sauce Peps Up Corned Beef and Cabbage

There comes a time once a year when homemakers have a custom-made excuse to indulge in some homemaking shortcuts. That's during Save a Wife Week, Sept. 9 to 18. All they have to do to escape some of the jobs they dislike most is to canvass their local food store shelves.

There they'll find paper plates in sizes that make it possible to serve full-course meals and yet at the meal's end not have a plate to wash.

They'll find them in formal china-like patterns, quaint early American patterns, deep solids such as copper and charcoal, white and the ever popular gray confetti shades. They'll find paper cups and napkins, canned foods, packaged and frozen foods.

With a little ingenuity most homemakers can turn these work-savers into a hard-hitting time-saving team and at the same time serve attractive, nutritious meals.

A case in point might be corned beef and cabbage seasoned in a new and interesting way accompanied by a peppy mustard sauce, canned boiled potatoes and cornsticks made from a mix.

Appropriate for service of such a low-cost, little-work meal are paper plates in a Scotch plaid.

Corned Beef and Cabbage with Mustard Sauce

3 pound brisket of corned beef
Water
2 tablespoons vinegar
bouquet garni
1 medium-sized head cabbage, cut in wedges
6 tablespoons prepared mustard
3 tablespoons horseradish
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Cover corned beef with water; add vinegar and bouquet garni. Cover and cook over medium heat 3½ hours. Remove bouquet garni and add cabbage. Cover and continue cooking until cabbage is tender, about 10 to 15 minutes.

Combine remaining ingredients and mix well. Serve corned beef and cabbage with mustard-horseradish sauce. Serves six.

To make bouquet garni, tie three whole cloves, one bay leaf, three whole allspice, one-half teaspoon dried thyme and one-half teaspoon dried basil in a 2-inch square of cheesecloth.

Corn and Bacon Stuff Potatoes

Spuds — if done right by — can add wonderful eating pleasure to a meal. Take the following recipe for stuffed potatoes with corn and bacon.

You can serve these potatoes as delicious main course for lunch, adding a green salad and a fruit-and-cookie dessert. Or, served with pan-fried liver, they're superb for supper.

Nice, too, to know that these stuffed potatoes may be prepared well in advance of a meal, refrigerated in a heat-resistant glass baking dish and then placed directly in the oven for heating.

The recipe tells you how much time you'll have to allow for reheating the potatoes if you do mak use of refrigerator aid.

Baked Potatoes with Corn, Bacon

4 baking potatoes (about 2 pounds)
⅔ cup hot milk
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1¾ cups drained canned whole-kernel corn (one 16-or 17-ounce can)
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons minced green pepper
4 slices bacon

Bake potatoes in hot (400) oven until done, about one hour. Cut in half lengthwise and remove pulp from skins, being careful not to break skins.

Put potato through ricer. Beat in milk, butter, salt and pepper until light and fluffy. Stir in corn, orion and green pepper.

Spoon into potato shells. Cut bacon slices in half. Place one piece of bacon on top of each potato half.

Arrange in heat-resistant glass baking dish and return to 400-degree oven for about 15 minutes.

¼ cup firmly-picked roquefort cheese
½ teaspoon salt
Freshly-ground pepper
½ teaspoon paprika

Put oil, vinegar, roquefort, salt, pepper to taste and paprika in small bowl. Beat with a fork, crushing cheese, until dressing is thick. Makes about one-half cup.

Gold Cupcakes Taste Best Iced With Chocolate

Gold Cupcakes

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups sugar
½ cup shortening (room temperature)
4 egg yolks
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
⅔ cup milk (at room temperature)

Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. In mixing bowl put sugar, shortening, egg yolks and orange rind.

Beat together for three minutes, vigorously if you are using a hand rotary beater, at high speed if you are using an electric beater. It is important to have the mixture "light" and well blended.

Add sifted dry ingredients and milk at one time; beat one minute more or until batter is smooth.

Spoon batter into 18 well-greased and floured muffin cups, filling one-half full; do not be tempted to fill more than this. Bake in hot (400) oven 15 minutes.

Run small spatula around sides of cups and remove carefully; cool on rack. Makes 18 cupcakes. Top with chocolate frosting if desired.

Top Off Your Menu With Harlequin Roll

Harlequin Roll

½ cup seedless raisins
½ cup maraschino cherries
1½ cups pitted dates
½ pound (about 20 marshmallows
1/3 pound (about 22) graham crackers
2/3 cup heavy cream
1 teaspoon vanilla

Rinse, drain and dry raisins; chop slightly. Drain and quarter cherries. Cut dates and marshmallows into small pieces.

Crush graham crackers fine and mix half the crumbs with fruits and marshmallows. Whip cream until stiff with vanilla; fold into fruit-and-cracker mixture; shape into roll.

Roll in remaining crumbs and chill 12 hours. To serve, cut into slices and top with extra whipped cream if desired.

Makes six to eight servings.

On Psychiatrist's Couch

Writer Imagines Dramatic Solutions to His Problems

By SAUL PETT
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP)—It is, of course, the sign of an immature mind. Don't you agree, doctor?

But then my mind has always run in that direction. Every time—just a second, I want to turn and get more comfortable on this couch—every time some problem comes up, I immediately begin imagining the most dramatic solution possible.

An inability to face reality, to accept the world the way it is? Yes, I quite agree. That's been my trouble. For example, what other grown man would have the same reaction to the day's news?

I read that Louis Wolfson is getting ready to battle Sewell Avery for the control of Montgomery Ward. My eye looks up from the paper and out the window.

A fight for control of a billion-dollar corporation. Both men battle for the stockholders' votes. Each fails to get a decisive majority. The tension rises. How do you settle this?

Outside, silhouetted against a harvest moon, a lonely farm boy plays a haunting tune of his own making on a mail-order saxophone. And inside, Avery and Wolfson deal out a game of two-handed showdown. The first ace wins Montgomery Ward.

See what I mean, doctor? Totally unrealistic.

The last time the auto workers in Detroit demanded a pay raise, I immediately saw a titanic struggle in the making. Collective bargaining failed. The strike deadline came closer. The spectre of closed factories, stilled assembly lines and more than 1,000,000 jobless men dipping into the cookie jar for grocery money became stronger and stronger.

Federal conciliators step in. They fail, too. Each side refuses to budge. What to do? Only one thing to do. In some neutral area, the corner of a desk top is cleared, and Harlow Curtice, president of General Motors, and Walter Reuther, president of the CIO Auto Workers, sit down to an Indian wrestling match.

As their muscles tighten, as drops of perspiration began to glide down their foreheads, as their locked forearms sway first to the left and then to the right, a lonely night watchman in a darkened factory begins to beat drumsticks in a slow, sad rhythm on the fish-tail of a half-finished Cadillac.

Irrational? I know, I know, doctor. But that's not the worst of it. The picture I've been visualizing lately is really insane. Anybody who knows anything knows it can't happen.

After being more than eight games out, the Milwaukee Braves begin to pull up. On the last game of the regular season, they tie the Giants for the National League pennant. Comes the playoff, best two out of three.

The Giants win the first. The Braves win the second. It is now third game and the bottom of the ninth, the Giants leading 4 to 2. Johnny Antonelli, whom the Giants got in a trade with Milwaukee for Bobby Thomson, is pitching.

There's one out. The Braves get a man on first and third. The winning run is at the plate. And who comes to bat? Doctor, I'm so excited, I'll roll off this couch. Who comes to bat?

Bobby Thomson! That's who comes to bat. Yep, the same man who hit the homer that won the pennant under the same conditions for the Giants in 1951. That's who comes to bat. Isn't it utterly insane?

What's that, doctor? You say, you've been having the same thought lately? Can't sleep, huh? No appetite? Always restless, fidgety?

Dog 'Points' Hat

MILWAUKEE (UP) — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dowling have a bird dog that gets practice without leaving the house. Mrs. Dowling recently made herself a hat trimmed with pheasant feathers. Every time she wears it, the dog comes to a "point."

Organized Industrial Districts Urged

CHICAGO (UP) — Communities and industries alike can benefit from establishment of organized industrial districts, according to the American Society of Planning Officials.

Such districts should be subdivided and developed according to a comprehensive plan for buildings, rail and street transportation and utilities, the society said.

A district such as this can be a major tool in orderly community development. It offers many inducements to industries.

The society said industrial districts require a "reasonable" tax situation, good transportation and marketing facilities, an adequate supply of soft water, good storm drainage facilities for disposal of industrial wastes, and adequate gas and electricity with capacity for expansion.

Young Man Writes to Old Time School

CLINTON, Mo. (AP) — Lee Klutz of the local post office staff lifted an eyebrow when a letter arrived the other day, addressed to Baird College, Clinton, requesting a catalogue.

Answering, Klutz took it on himself to enlighten Harold Erinholtz of Ada, Okla., about the girl's school.

For one thing, the rules were strict — girls were not permitted to correspond with young gentlemen without parental authorization. And man callers at the campus called forth at least one chaperon.

There were additional details, including the fact the school closed 50 years ago.

It would cost $100,000 to fire all the guns of the battleship Missouri for one minute.

Electronic 'Brain' Is Being Improved

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — A giant named UDEC is getting his brain operated on here, and specialists expect to improve his memory six-fold.

UDEC is a huge electronic computing machine developed by the Burroughs Corp. three years ago. Industrial firms bring their complex mathematical problems to it for quick solution.

Known generally as the electronic brain, UDEC's name stands for Unitized Digital Electronic Computer. The device can handle mathematical problems in a few hours that might take months or years by human or mechanical methods.

The 40-foot long, U - shaped computer is being taken completely apart. When it's reassembled, Burroughs' engineers said, it will solve problems six times as complex as before. The device is composed of some 4,000 vacuum tubes mounted in 650 electronic blocks.

The UDEC generates so much heat that a seven-ton air conditioner was built inside it to insure smooth operation. The dis-assembling job will take seven weeks.

Texas produces 91 per cent of the U. S. mohair supply.

Catholic Indochinese Tell of Reds Blocking Escape

(Editor's Note: The following dispatch on a dramatic phase of Viet Nam's refugee problem was 33 hours in transit from Hanoi, where censorship and restricted communications are common hazards to news copy.)

By FORREST EDWARDS

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—Roman Catholic refugees in three different camps today told of repeated attempts by the Vietminh to stop their flight to freedom. Thousands of others, they said, are still held against their will under Communist domination in the lower half of the Red River Delta.

At Hanoi, a young Vietnamese mother pointed to purplish yellow bruises on the legs and arms of her 3-year-old son and said the Vietminh had tried to wrest him from her arms when she boarded a refugee river boat near Phat Diem.

At Haiduong, a white-bearded village chief said scores of families from his village northwest of Thai Binh abandoned flight when Vietminh soldiers grabbed children and forcibly dragged them back to the village.

At a camp near Haiphong, three lean and leathery ancients said the 68-year-old priest leading them was seized and dragged away. 11 other leaders were thrown to the ground and their arms bound behind their backs with wire, and one man, 58, was beaten with a gun butt.

The Geneva cease-fire agreement provides not only that refugees shall be free to leave either half of divided Viet Nam but shall be helped to leave by the occupying side. It also provides for the Indian - Polish - Canadian armistice commission to supervise the truce.

Workers at the three camps said no representative of the commission had yet visited them. A commission source said it had received no formal complaint of Vietminh interference from French authorities. A French source said a report was being prepared.

By refugee accounts:

Vietminh representatives first told the Catholics there was no reason for them to leave, that they would not be molested if they stayed and would be given religious freedom.

When that failed, the Reds blustered threats and said refugees would be put into concentration camps in South Viet Nam.

Then they shoved, pushed and grabbed in strongarm tactics.

But it was at river crossings the refugees had the most trouble and the big majority turned back. Boatmen were forbidden to take the refugees across. Some of the stronger and younger waded and swam across. Others sneaked aboard boats willing to take a chance, or bribed their way onto loaded barges.

Scout Receives Medal for His Quick Thinking

ST. LOUIS (UP — A 12-year-old Boy Scout is the proud possessor of a medal given him for preventing a possible derailment of a 98-car freight train.

The medal was given to James Baremore, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Baremore of suburban Shrewsbury, by grateful officials of the Frisco Railroad after the lad noticed a broken brake beam dragging beneath a train.

The train was halted while repairs were made. Officials said the broken beam might well have derailed the train.

He dashed after the slow - moving freight and called the crew's attention to the broken beam.

Scientists have recently reversed a previous conclusion and now believe that cancer affects all peoples in all climates.

Central Plans Skyscraper to Slash Terminal Deficit

International News Service

The tentative proposal to replace Grand Central Terminal in the heart of New York with a gigantic skyscraper office building focuses attention anew on the cancerous railroad problem of reducing or eliminating the huge passenger deficit.

One invisible cause of the red ink showing is the tremendous overhead incidental to terminal facilities in metropolitan centers.

When the mausoleum-type terminal facilities were projected in an earlier generation, the national economy was on a lower cost basis. Now with urban real estate taxes extremely high and the cost of all materials and services at a peak level, it is deemed an extravagance to use expensive urban ground solely as a place for entraining and detraining.

The new management of the New York Central, in attacking the passenger deficit, which is especially irksome for eastern railroads, is exploring ways of absorbing the taxes and other high costs through erecting on top of the tracks a big office building, which would absorb the heavy charges.

This attitude is evidence of new dynamic thinking. Heretofore lawyers were discouraging remedial efforts in respect to the nationwide terminal problems by taking the static view that conditions were frozen by long-term leases entered into by the railroads early in the century.

Some leases run a hundred years or more and violate the first principle of business, which is that nothing is permanent in life except change.

As a result of back-breaking urban passenger terminal charges, some exploratory minds have been examining the possibility of giving up such terminals, and ending passenger runs far outside of urban limits, with the passengers being taken to city centers by buses. This would resemble the operating technique of the commercial airlines.

Patrick E. McGinnis, a railroad insurgent and new president of the New Haven, has been talking about terminating New York City-bound trains in Westchester County.

The plan submitted to the New York Central by William Zeckendorg, head of Webb & Knapp, is an alternative approach to the problem. He would salvage terminals, in the center of cities by converting stations into multiple - purpose high buildings, which could better absorb the costs by spreading them over vastly more individual units.

Some such solution seems in keeping with concepts of private enterprise and public convenience and necessity.

But the solution should not hang on the rigidity of long term leases. For since the problems of the passenger deficit and expensive terminals are general, all railroads, who are the principal parties to such leases, are in position to make or seek voluntary adjustments.

Even the bondholders could perhaps be persuaded that a claim on an economically sound piece of property is better than a lien on a perpetual loser.

In fairness, much more than real estate costs is involved in total terminal charges. The big increment lies in the cost of labor and material, and the remedy lies, in part in minimizing expensive feather-bedding.

Horseshoe Nail Outliving Horse

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP) — Though horseshoe nails aren't used so much anymore to hold shoes on horses' hooves, they are employed for other purposes which makes their manufacture a necessity.

At the annual Foundry Show and Congress here several varieties of horseshoe nails, with their large heads and long, tapered shanks were on display.

It was revealed that they still are used by foundrymen. They are placed in molds where the heavy head absorbs heat and the long shank carries it off, allowing thick parts of castings to cool somewhat faster to stay abreast of the cooling rate of the thinner sections.

Lion-Battling Tiger Under Anesthesia

BALTIMORE (AP)—The year-old Sumatra tiger at the Baltimore Zoo has been put under anesthesia following a between-thebars fight with a neighboring lion.

Fifty stitches were taken in the tiger's foreleg and the zoo's veterinarian said his condition was satisfactory.

Yesterday the wounded warrior was given penicillin and medicine to help counteract the anesthetic. He has been asleep more than 24 hours.

Arthur R. Watson, zoo director, said he wanted the tiger to sleep for a long while, so the leg would be less painful when he became conscious. The less pain, he said, the less chance there is that the tiger will tear his bandages or rip out his stitches.

Egyptian Officer Arrives

NEW YORK (AP)—Maj. Gen. Mohamed Ibrahim, Egyptian Army chief of staff, arrived here by air today for a three-week tour of U.S. Army installations.

Jalopy Takes Elderly Owner on Wild Spree

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Mrs. Clementine Fenn is 82 years old. She drives a four-cylinder coupe, vintage 1932. And normally she drives it with the skill and decorum befitting her age.

But yesterday, just at the rush hour, things got out of hand.

She started slowly out of a service station into a busy suburban intersection when suddenly the jalopy came alive.

With a jolt and a bump the car dashed rear-end first into the dual highway described a 340-foot arc and finally came to rest against the smashed windows of a rival service station across the street.

Score:

A grazed sign standard, a side-swiped parked auto, a score of badly frightened shoppers, and for Mrs. Fenn a fractured nose and minor chest injuries.

Comment from the lady:

Paulette Goddard Gets $1 Inheritance From Dad

DENVER (AP)—Actress Paulette Goddard inherited one dollar from the estate of her late father, under terms of a will filed for probate here yesterday.

Miss Goddard's father, Joseph Russell LeVee, died here Aug. 31. He was a film distribution agent for Warner Bros. Studios.

LeVee's will directed that the remainder of his estate, valued at about $3,000, go to his wife, Mrs. Hildred F. LeVee. It added that the one dollar inheritance left to Miss Goddard must revert to the estate should the actress contest the will.

Kids Face Invasion

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (INS)—Colorado Springs city fathers recently set aside a special pond at Pike View reservoir for year-'round fishing exclusively by kids under 16 years of age. They stocked it plentifully with trout, figuring the project would be a strong deterrent against juvenile delinquency. The result? Reservor caretakers report adults are sneaking in and stealing all the fish.

2 Angels in a 'White Bird' Are Happy at $65 a Week

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK (INS) — It doesn't pay to be an angel anymore . . . flying costs are so high, and the taxation on kindness is crushing.

And yet a husky pilot named Frank Steinman and his fragile nurse-navigator wife, Lisette, continue to operate as angels of mercy. Their business: Air Ambulance Service.

At all hours, in the path of stars or storms, they will fly anywhere their twin - engine "White Bird" can outspeed death or outmaneuver discomfort.

Their accumulated worth — on earth? $65 a week.

"Neat, eh?" grins Lisette, who ranks money 'way under penicillin in the order of essentials, "but not gaudy, no?"

It was only because she was pressed into an answer that Swiss-born Mrs. Steinman confessed their income in her voice that sounds like a machine gun spitting French accents. "That's a most awfully lousy thing to talk about — money when you're in love with your husband and your work and your airplane."

It's been eight years now that Captain Frank, a World War II test pilot, and Lisette, a registered flight nurse and co-pilot, have scrubbed along financially and hygienically with their airborne hospital. Operating from an airfield in Mineola, Long Island, they are on call 24 hours a day, and will leave on 30 minutes' notice, for flights anywhere in reasonable radius—from Texas to Canada.

They have rescued crippled skiers in Vermont, have saved several victims of heart attacks in the frigid hunting grounds of the far north, have saved lives on numerous occasions by rushing critically ill patients to hospitals in other cities—patients who might have died because of the time involved, or the discomfort involved, in making the trip over land.

For these services the Steinmans charge 40 cents a mile. "It was so when we started and it will be so when we fee-nesh," says Lisette, who stubornly clings to her stubborn husband when he shakes his head at suggestions that they up the cost to cover expenses.

"Seek people need all their money for doctors," she explains. That's that.

Capt. Frank puts it this way: "This sort of thing makes a man feel worthwhile." And he goes out and does free-lance piloting in his spare time to have enough money to keep their four-room apartment in food supplies and their Beechcraft in medical equipment. It is like a flying private hospital, with complete oxygen service, traction for broken limbs, resuscitators and the makings of a small apothecary shop.

Between stints, which sometimes keep them in the air for several days almost without rest, Lisette herself scrubs and sterilizes the linens.

About half of Air Ambulance's calls are for invalids to be transported to hospitals. About one-quarter are quick calls from persons suddenly taken ill or struck down by accidents away from home.

"And then there are the very tragic ones," Lisette sighs. "—The ones that are very old and want to go home to die. Their children or their grandchildren call and say 'Mama is dying. Please go to Kansas (or somewhere) and bring her home to us.'

"It is very sad because they know and we know—and she knows too."

The angel Steinmans, who never have lost a patient, started their service after Capt. Frank was taken seriously ill in the last stages of the war and Lisette was in a panic because she was afraid he could not be conveyed to a hospital in time. "I wanted to carry him there on my shoulders," she remembers, shivering.

After buying their plane, they spent the first three years paying off loans. But now the three of them—the "White Bird," Frank and Lisette are all solvent.

". . . And flying high, baby, flying high."

Sen. Jackson Tackles GOP

Says the Administration 'Talks Tough, Carries Golf Putter'

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash) says the Republican administration "talks tough and carries a golf putter" and has failed to come up with any ideas to "stop the onward march of communism."

Speaking last night at a rally for Rep. Charles R. Howell, the Democratic candidate for U.S. senator from New Jersey, Jackson Greece and Turkey was halted by previous Democratic administrations.

Since that time, Jackson declared, the Republicans haven't done anything towards stopping communism.

Jackson told the rally that unlike President Theodore Roosevelt who said 'talk softly and carry a big stick' . . . this administration talks tough and carries a golf putter."

"I wish this administration would follow the sound policy of a great president, a Republican president, if you please, Teddy Roosevelt," Jackson remarked.

Jackson said the Republican program "reminds me of an iceberg. It is cold, it is slow moving.

"Like its Arctic counterparts, the Republican iceberg program is 10 per cent visible, 90 per cent submerged and 100 per cent at sea."

BRITISH TURBOPROP AIRLINER—The Vickers Viscount, here undergoing tests at a Canadian airport, will start flying from Canada to U. S. soon as first British plane on U. S. airlanes.

Turboprop Aircraft Will Be Serving America and Canada by This Winter

TORONTO (NEA)—For the first time in history, British-built commercial planes will carry passengers on North American airlines this winter when Vickers Viscount turboprop aircraft begin flying between Canadian and United States cities.

"Unless you have traveled in a turboprop airplane, or a pure jet plane, it is difficult to describe the terrific passenger appeal that this method of transportation has to offer," says Jack T. Dyment, chief engineer of the Canadian government-owned airline, Trans-Canada.

The Canadian airline has ordered 22 of the four-engined Viscount aircraft, the first of which will start coming over from England in mid-October. The planes will be on scheduled service by Feb. 1.

One big United States operator—Capital Airlines—has ordered 40 of these British planes, with the first ones to come next spring. It has options on additional planes.

By that time the Canadian airline will have the planes on a number of daily flights between Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg, between Toronto and New York, Montreal and New York, Toronto and Chicago, and Toronto and Windsor, opposite Detroit.

These runs will carry the heaviest traffic between Canada and the United States.

The Viscount aircraft have already been in use on European airways more than a year. Other U. S. airlines besides Capital have indicated interest in the plane.

The turboprop aircraft is neither a full jet nor a conventional piston-engine plane. Like the jet engine the turboprop engine depends on hot gases to drive it.

The full jet-powered aircraft has no propellers. The turboprop engine uses its hot air stream to drive a turbine which is geared to a propeller.

Trans-Canada's Viscount turboprops have been especially designed for North American service.

As a result of two months of winter flying in Canada in early 1953 with a prototype plane, engineers suggested some 250 major changes to meet North American passenger and safety standards.

Fastest short-range aircraft on the continent, only the U. S.-built DC7 long-range aircraft is speedier.

The Viscount has less vibration than conventional-powered aircraft, but is slightly noiser when taxiing, a characteristic of all jet-powered aircraft.

It has the largest windows of any aircraft, taking up almost half the space from the cabin floor to the baggage rack. The plane will carry 48 passengers and cruise at about 325 miles per hour.

From the airline standpoint, the turboprop aircraft will be easier to service and overhaul.

It will fly on cheaper fuel than present aviation gasoline, using what is technically known at JP-4 fuel, a special gasoline now standard on North American military turboprop aircraft.

Weather Worries Beset Heavyweight Title Scrap

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YOR (UP) — Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano and Ezzard Charles worried more about the weather than each other today as they peered anxiously at the skies and hoped for the best.

If the weatherman gives them a break, they'll go at each other at 10:30 p.m., EDT(9:30 EST), in their return 15-round title bout at Yankee Stadium. And judging by the gloomy forecast, the gladiators, will have to sweat out long hours.

Following intermittent rains during the night, the weatherman predicted "rain ending in the afternoon, followed by continued cloudy and cool weather in the evening."

If it rains throughout the day and their scrap is postponed a second time, the fighters as well as the promoting International Boxing Club will have plenty to worry about.

Friday night is out because of the IBC's weekly radio-television fight, coming out of Washington this week. Saturday is a question mark, and the week after is even worse. The Yanks come home Monday and will be playing all week. The IBC can't get the Polo Grounds because the Giants smell a pennant and don't want the field marred.

The big hitch on the Saturday date is theater television. Nate Halpern, president of Theater Network Television, Inc. (TNT), does not know whether he'll be able to clear the coaxial cable Saturday for the closed circuit telecast to theaters coast to coast. He's okay for tonight.

Theater cash is an important factor in this promotion. Halpern has 212,000 seats available and the IBC gets a dollar a seat.

The decision to postpone last night's fight to tonight was made at 1:55 p.m., yesterday, shortly after the fighters had been weighed.

Charles tipped the beam at a hefty 192½ pounds. That was one pound more than he ever had scaled for a fight before and seven more than his poundage for his losing 15-rounder to Marciano on June 17. Charles said he wanted the extra weight to add power to his punches. It indicated he was planning for a short fight.

Marciano weighed 186½, one less than he hit for the June affair. The weigh-in was required today but both fighters were to be examined at their hotels by Dr. Alexander Schiff of the athletic commission.

As usual when there is a postponement, there was speculation over how the fighters would react to the delay. The bookmakers figured it wouldn't make any difference. The odds remained the same. The undefeated, 30-year-old Marciano was a 1-5 choice to win and a 5-12 favorite to stop the 33-year-old Charles even though he didn't floor the ex-champ the last time. It was 6-1 against Charles winning by a kayo.

Promoter Jim Norris and his aides were neither happy nor relaxed. Postponements usually hurt the gate. Norris said "we had $350,000 in the till and we would have been a cinch to equal or better the figures ($543,092) for last June's fight."

* * *

8th Annual Program

City Midget Football Play Starts Saturday

Eighth annual midget football program, sponsored by the Pontiac Parks and Recreation Department in cooperation with the Pontiac Board of Education and the Pontiac Junior Chamber of Commerce, will start Saturday at Wisner Field.

Program will run for six consecutive Saturdays, under the supervision of George Gary, Sr., a teacher at Lincoln Junior High School. Competent instructors will provide a program covering basic fundamentals of football. Program will be climaxed by a Midget All-Star Night, when all participants will play under the lights in Wisner stadium.

All boys in the 5th and 6th grades, who have not reached their 13th birthday by Nov. 1 and who do not weigh more than 109 pounds, are eligible to play. They will report to Wisner Field at 9 a. m. Saturday.

Boys in the 7th grade interested in playing football will report at Wisner Field Saturday at 11 a. m. Age and weight classifications will be determined for this group when all boys have been checked and registered.

All players must furnish their own shoulder pads and headgear. Football shoes cannot be worn. Equipment will be checked by the coaches in charge. Boys must have written permission of their parents or guardians. Permit cards will be issued at the Parks and Recreation Department office, 35 Hill Street, or at Wisner Field on Saturday.

ROCKY REHEARSES—His title bout with Ezzard Charles postponed until tonight by rain, heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano forgets his pugilistic cares in a rehearsal with singer Eddie Fisher in New York for a TV show in which they will appear Sunday. The show will be telecast from the Hollywood Bowl in Hollywood, Calif. AP Wirephoto

5 Strong Men Hold Key to UM Grid Hopes

Cline, Branoff, Kramer, McDonald and Baldacci Are Offensive Threats

ANN ARBOR (UP) — Five strong men are likely to give Michigan's Wolverines their most diversified and fastest offense this season since 1950.

There will be little new in Coach Bennie Oosterbaan's bag of tricks, but he has the men to make the Michigan single wing offense baffling as well as powerful.

Michigan will skirt the ends, use the end-around and have power up the middle. These five men will make it work.

Danny Cline, a hard-working senior from Brockport, N. Y., shows more speed and power in the left halfback spot than he did last year. In practice scrimmages he has hit inside and outside the end.

Duncan McDonald, senior quarterback from Flint, is better adjusted to the single wing this year. His blocking has improved and he seems able to move around in the backfield.

McDonald, a ready-built T-formation quarterback, has the best passing arm on the Michigan team, and gives the Wolverines the option of switching to the T.

McDonald will look better this year because of a 19-year-old sophomore end, Ron Kramer from East Detroit, who never ceases to amaze.

Kramer rarely drops a pass in practice, if it is thrown anywhere within reach. He can kick, play defense, and handle the ball well enough to make the end-around an effective ground gainer.

But the most surprising development is Lou Baldacci's ability at fullback. He is a tricky runner, and consistently weaves his way through reserve defenses in scrimmages.

Decathlon Ace Lifts Hoosier Football Hopes

Big Things Expected of Milt Campbell at Indiana

By JERRY LISKA

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UP) — Indiana's Hoosiers, traditionally a "have-not" in Big Ten football, are envied this fall for one prized possession.

That would be Olympic Decathlon ace Milt Campbell, who makes his debut as a collegiate halfback when the Hoosiers open Sept. 25 against Ohio State.

The 213-pound Negro is a superb athlete with a magnificent physique. Single-handedly, Campbell might be able to lead Coach Bernie Crimmins to brighter times after only four victories in 18 games during this two seasons at the Hoosier helm.

"What we need at Indiana is a good early season win," said the 34-year-old Crimmins. "That could be the spark to make us tough."

Campbell, who has been clocked at :09.6 in the 100, carried the ball six times in Indiana's spring game and three times crossed the goal line, although two scores were recalled by penalties which didn't affect the play.

Most impressive in Campbell's spring game play, however, was his savage blocking. Crimmins, who assisted at Notre Dame before coming to Indiana, ranks Campbell one of the best sophomore prospects he has ever handled.

Both tackles and the right guard positions have only one letterman back at each, and right tackle actually will be handled by a converted end, 200-pound Nate Borden.

The threat of Campbell's outside speed is expected to further gild the fine split-T quarterbacking of Florian Helinski, who averaged more than 50 minutes per game last fall and was fourth in Big Ten total offense with a 5.2 average per play.

Arizona Fans Are Rooting 'Home Boys' Into Series

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UP)—Folks out in Arizona are burning up with a fever—pennant fever, that is.

They're rootin' the Phoenix Giants and the Tucson Indians into the world series.

Elsewhere, these major league leaders are known, of course, as the New York Giants and the Cleveland Indians.

But out here in the cactus country, the Giants and the Indians are considered just a bunch of home boys.

The Giants have been doing their spring training in Phoenix and the Indians in Tucson since 1947.

Fans who flock to Municipal Stadium in Phoenix and Hi Corbett Field in Tucson for spring training games are just as loyal to the clubs as those who crowd the Polo Grounds and the Cleveland stadium during the regular season.

And now with the Giants and the Indians at the top of the heap, crowds jam around radio sets in Phoenix and Tucson, newspaper switchboards are swamped with calls for results, and everybody is talking of "an all-Arizona world series."

Already plans are under way to send planeloads of Arizonans to the series if the Giants and the Indians get into it as everyone around here is confident they will.

Newspapers and chambers of commerce are busy thinking up stunts that will give Arizona a big splash in series publicity.

They're especially anxious to give the boot to Florida, which will have 13 of the 16 major league training camps next season and has been trying to lure the others. The Chicago Cubs are Arizona's third spring club. They train at Mesa, 15 miles East of Phoenix.

49ers Trample Steelers 37-14

San Francisco Eleven Ends Exhibition Slate With Perfect Record

TUCSON, Ariz. (UP) — The San Francisco 49ers whipped the Pittsburgh Steelers 37-14 Wednesday night to finish their professional football exhibition schedule with a perfect record.

Quarterback Y. A. Tittle, former Louisiana State ace, tossed touchdown passes to three different receivers, full back Joe Perry plunged 13 yards for another score, and Frank Cassara, reserve fullback, went four yards on a pitchout for the final 49er tally.

Perry also kicked a 36-yard field goal.

Ray Mathews rammed six yards for the first Steeler score after the Pittsburgh club was down 30-0 in third quarter, and fullback Fran Rogel powered over from the two for the other in the final four minutes.

The clubs played on even terms in the first quarter. Then Perry booted his field goal.

Some 16,000 fans watched the game in the University of Arizona Stadium. It was the Steelers' fifth loss in six starts.

Good Sophs Put Michigan 11 on Rise Again

Losing Cycle Nearing End for Teams of UM's Bennie Oosterbaan

ANN ARBOR (UP) — Everything has its ups and downs. Football is no exception.

This year coach Bennie Oosterbaan is working hard on a Michigan Wolverine squad that threatens to break into the Big Ten title race on surprisingly strong sophomore legs.

But only three years ago, the Wolverines fell below the .500 mark for the first and only time since 1936.

That was 1951. The Wolverines won four and lost five. The following year was better and the Wolverines split even, 5-5. Last year they took six and dropped three.

This year, Michigan is still on the rise — but it faces one of the toughest schedules in the country. Still it could be the end of a losing cycle.

For Oosterbaan, it was an old story. When he graduated from Michigan in 1928, the Wolverines dropped from a 6-2 year to a 3-4 year.

It took two years to build Michigan up to its next Big Ten title.

But the cycle is inevitable. A football player, All-America or run-of-the-mill, has only three years of eligibility.

Betsy Rawls Favored in Wichita Tourney

WICHITA, Kan. (UP)—Betsy Rawls ruled a slight favorite in a field of 37 teeing off today in the $5,000 Wichita Women's Open golf tournament.

The Spartanburg, N. C., Miss turned in a sizzling 67 in a tuneup for the 72-hole event over the par-71 Wichita Country Club course. Just last Sunday she took the $700 first prize in the St. Louis Open—her third tournament victory this year.

Among the professionals entered are Babe Zaharias, who skipped the St. Louis Open because of illness, and Jackie Pung, Honolulu, the former amateur champion.

Many Area Mentors Face Rebuilding Jobs

By JACK SAYLOR

Football season 1954 is one of rebuilding for a number of Oakland County prep coaches.

Such teams as Waterford, Keego Harbor, Birmingham, Oxford, Lake Orion, Holly, Rochester, Milford and Troy all suffered important losses in personnel via graduation or other reasons.

Friday's season openers will offer some clues as to just how big a task these coaches have. Other clubs such as Walled Lake, Clarkston and Ortonville appear on the upgrade after poor seasons in the won-lost columns.

Avondale has a different situation — and a happy one. Coach Frank Crowell's squad had a fine season in 1953 sharing the Oakland-B championship and the Yellow Jackets still have many key players from that team.

Waterford lost heavily from its '53 team, including halfback aces Kerry Keating and Ray Campbell and Pat O'Neill, an outstanding fullback. But a number of defensive regulars are back, supplemented by a fine crop of juniors.

End Jerry Kruskie, tackles Dick Cloutier and Chuck Schack and guard Chuck Koches are veterans, while backs Loren Bray, Laine Hetherington and Dave Larkin were regulars on defense and now take over offensive roles as well.

Others assuming key spots are guards Al Nestor and Ran Beedle, center Jack Peurach and quarterback Tom Bryce.

Charlie Guinnip at Keego retains only center Orlin West and guard Walt Goetz from his starting line along with swift tailback Dennis Singleton in the backfield. However, the Presidents will be bigger.

New Birmingham mentor Carl Lemle also is shorthanded for starters. Capt. Bill Watkinson at end, Ernie Teichman at guard and backs Dave Allen and Tom Beck are the only returnees and Beck currently is sidelined wtith rib injuries.

Dick Yeager at Milford must rebuild his backfield completely, but has ends Don Perkuchin and Jim Davidson and tackles Dean Wentworth and Dave Slocum back in the line. Redskins open Friday at Oxford where new coach Jean Harkness is doing some player shuffling.

The Wildcat boss is trying ex-linemen Larry Spencer and Dale Spiker at backfield positions to go with returning signal caller Mike Benedict. If the shifts are permanent, it will leave end Fred Bergin as the lone veteran lineman.

Ted Sela, new Lake Orion coach, has only 4 linemen back, but backfield prospects are bright with Ed Leach returning and Bob Hazlett, a rangy 185-pound transfer student from Pontiac High, on hand.

Holly must find replacements for all backs except Jerry Hunter and returning center Bill Roberts will miss about 3 games with a hand injury. Gene Konley at Rochester has only fullback Jerry LeBarre, end Earl Kitchen and tackle Buzz DeBaene back. Center Pat Nunn moves to end with letterman Dick Gray available at the pivot.

Nineteen monogram winners graduated at Troy and 2 regular backs, Ira Elliot and all-leaguer Norm Norton, left school. Three-year vet Jimmy Murdock returns to the backfield while Capt. Floyd Bailey, 6-2½ by 205 pounds, sparks the line.

Lack of depth is Clarkston's principal worry. Already backfield regulars Lanny Leak and George Lang have injuries and quarterback Glen Abbot is in military service.

Walled Lake appears on the way back with good size in the line and fast backs Joe Burke, Dick Woodworth and Ed Westergard directed by sophomore quarterback John Walker. Ortonville won only its opening game last year, but Burl Glendening has nearly all of his club back and the Hawks should be on the rise.

Shamrocks Go to Avondale for Opening Game Friday

Two defending league co-champions will clash Friday afternoon, when Pontiac St. Michael goes to Avondale to open its 1954 football season.

Shamrocks shared the Suburban Catholic League crown last year and had an over-all record of 6-2-1. Avondale tied Fitzgerald for top honors in the Oakland-B conference in 1953. Yellowjackets had a season's mark of 6-3 and beat St. Michael 12-6 to account for one of the Mikes' two losses.

Coach Bob Mineweaser will field a starting lineup that includes five regulars from last year. His all-letterman backfield will have Capt. Bob Anderson at quarter, Mike Lauinger and Mike Clever at halfbacks and Bud Schwartz at fullback.

Anchoring the line will be returning starters Joe Wilhelm at end and 200-pounder Larry Maison at tackle.

Avondale's standout quarterback, Dick Kramp, has graduated, but Toby Aldrich has moved from halfback to run Coach Frank Crowell's split-T and appears to be a capable replacement.

Marv Evans, an outstanding performer last year, returns at halfback and fullback Bob Kuhfeldt also is experienced. Don Krupp, a regular guard in 1953, has been switched to fullback.

Sellouts Are in Prospect for Two Spartan Games

EAST LANSING (UP)—Sellouts are in prospect for the Wisconsin game Oct. 2 and the Purdue game Oct. 23, the Michigan State College football ticket office said today.

Warren Burtt, ticket manager, said some tickets still are available for the two games, for the Washington State game Nov. 6 and the Marquette game Nov. 20.

It's Time Out!

Watrous Wins 9th PGA Crown at Lakepointe

Edges Saginaw's Briggs and Stirs Ire of State Tourney Runnerup

DETROIT (UP)—Al Watrous, 55-year-old veteran Oakland Hills pro, took his 9th Michigan PGA golf crown yesterday defeating Eldon Briggs of Saginaw 1 up in the 36-hole final at Lakepointe Country Club. Watrous won his 1st PGA title in 1923.

Watrous conceded one hole to Briggs during yesterday's match following a sharp argument over a technical ruling.

The dispute broke out on the 6th hole in the afternoon after Watrous was allowed to drop his ball out of a water trap. Briggs disputed the legality of the drop. Referee Warren Orlick ruled the drop legal. But Watrous, apparently disturbed by the incident, refused to play out the hole and conceded it to Briggs.

That left Watrous with a one-up margin. Briggs took the next two holes to take a 1 up lead.

By shooting even par from there on in Watrous came from behind and moved to a 2 up lead with three holes to play.

Briggs cut the margin in half taking the 16th. They halved the 17th in birdies and the 18th in pars to end the match.

Polish Boxer Hits Soviet 'Amateurism'

Commie Participation in Athletics Called Farce, Fraud

MUNICH, Germany (UP)—A Polish boxer who recently escaped from his Communist homeland declared today that Communist participation in western athletic meets is a "farce and a fraud."

In broadcasts for Radio Free Europe and the Voice of America, Henri Tyczynski said:

"Many people expect Communist athletes to do well in the next Olympics, as they did in the last. Why not? They are nothing but subsidized professionals competing against the honest amateurs of the West.

"I know. I was one of them myself."

The 26-year-old boxer said athletes in Poland are given special privileges and do very little work.

Tyczynskis escape to West Berlin was disclosed last week. He said he fled because "I wasn't paid very much and there was no chance ever to get more or to advance."

20-Pound Fish Unintentionally Used for Bait

SEATTLE (UP)—So you think a 20-pound fish is a pretty good catch with rod and reel?

Shucks! Jim Miniken uses those minnows for bait—but not intentionally.

Jim hooked a 20-pound ling cod while fishing in Puget Sound for salmon. He had that fish nearly to his boat when an 87-pounder of the same species gulped it. Then the big cod tried to make off with its lunch, the boat and the three men aboard.

Miniken finally got the big cod close enough so it could be gaffed, whereupon it spit out the little bitty 20-pounder which Miniken pulled aboard with his line.

Yesterday's Stars

BATTING—Jim Fridley, Baltimore Orioles, smashed a pinch-single with the bases loaded for a 2-1 victory by the Orioles over the Boston Red Sox.

PITCHING—Tom Poholsky, St Louis Cardinals, limited the Philadelphia Phillies to seven hits as the Cards defeated the Phils 3-1 and tightened the battle for fourth place in the National League.

Tiger, Yank Game Postponed by Rain

DETROIT (UP)—Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees waited for a nod from the weatherman to clean up their two-game series at Briggs Stadium today.

The game was scheduled for yesterday, but was rained out and postponed until today, an open date for both clubs. Tiger pitcher George Zuverink of Holland, Mich., with an 8-11 record, will meet New York's Bob Grim, brilliant rookie right-hander with an 18-6 record.

Dodgers, Unbeatable Under Rainy Conditions, Pull Within 3 Games of Giants by Sinking Reds

By BEN PHLEGAR

Associated Press Sports Writer

They may be dead ducks by next week, but as of today the Brooklyn Dodgers have no rivals as the aquatic kings of the National League.

At least four of their victories are thoroughly waterlogged and if they try to play any more games under conditions such as prevailed yesterday, the front office better consider equipping the club with fur-lined swimming suits.

The defending champs have discovered some amazing ways to lose games this season, but when the rains come they are unbeatable.

Back in May they beat the Phillies 3-0 in six innings in Philadelphia when rain brought a halt. Then in June they skidded to a 7-6 victory at Milwaukee in five innings, scoring five runs in the fifth.

Last week, they repeated over the Braves, 2-1 in five rain-soaked innings just before Hurricane Edna hit Flatbush.

Yesterday, the bad weather brought a 10-4 triumph over the Cincinnati Redlegs with the Reds screaming that both clubs should have stood in bed.

At the Polo Grounds, some 15 air miles from Ebbets Field, the first-place New York Giants and the third-place Milwaukee Braves never left the clubhouse. The temperatures hovered in the 50s and water stood in puddles over the covered infield.

Only two other games were played. The St. Louis Cardinals defeated Philadelphia 3-1 and Baltimore moved out of the American League cellar with a 2-1 squeaker over Boston.

The Dodgers moved within three games of the Giants and have nine to play. The Giants have 11 left including a doubleheader today against the Braves who trail by 5½ lengths.

A pinch single by Jim Fridley with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth gave the Orioles their victory over Boston. Lou Kretlow gave up only five hits and blanked Ted Williams who was up four times. Jim Piersall doubled and scored from second on a sacrifice bunt by Sam White for Boston's only run.

International Old-Timer Organization in Prospect

By H. GUY MOATS

Old timer baseball group of Pontiac, along with five other United States and Canadian veteran player organizations are in the process of setting up plans for an International Old-Timers League.

The Pontiac Old Timers Assn. has been an active playing outfit for many years. This week it named its officers for 1955 and mulled over the prospects for the international circuit.

Canadian teams are all set, according to Pontiac association officials, with teams at London, Toronto and Stratsford, Ont. The United States representatives are yet to be named, but probably will come from Toledo, Port Huron or Detroit, in addition to Pontiac.

A future meeting will be set to determine the layout of the league, and to set up rules and regulations.

DiMaggios Had Edge on Batting Record

BOSTON (AP)—A major league batting record which seems to be welded to the walls of the Di Maggio family trophy room is that of hitting safely in the most consecutive games. The present record of hitting safely in 56 straight games was set by the New York Yankees' Joe Di Maggio in 1941.

The only time Joe's record has been seriously threatened in the past five seasons was in 1949 when Joe's brother, Dom Di Maggio hit safely in 34 consecutive games when he was centerfielder for the Boston Red Sox.

Young Scores Twice to Pace Colts' Win

CHICAGO (INS)—Buddy Young scored two touchdowns last night to spark the Baltimore Colts to a 20-2 victory over the Chicago Cardinals in an exhibition professional football game played before 18,581 fans at Comiskey Park.

Acute Pitching Shortage Faces Giant Manager

Durocher Picks Veteran Relief Star Grissom to Start Today

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Manager Leo Durocher of the New York Giants, faced with an acute pitching shortage for the final stretch drive, dug down into his bullpen today for a fourth starting pitcher.

Dissatisfied with the recent hurling of righthander Jim Hearn and Southpaws Don Liddle and John (Windy) McCall, Durocher named Marv Grissom, the veteran relief star, to pitch the second game of today's important doubleheader against the Milwaukee Braves. Idle yesterday, the Giants' lead was cut to three games by Brooklyn's 10-4 victory over Cincinnati.

Grissom, 36, has appeared in 52 games this year, 50 of them in relief. He has not started a game since May 1 when the Chicago Cubs knocked him out of the box.

"Griss is my man," said Durocher. "He hasn't pitched for a full week and he should be well rested. I'll let him go as far as he can. If he can go until the sixth or seventh, that's all I want. I'll have (Hoyt) Wilhelm finish up."

Ruben Gomez, who was to have pitched yesterday's washed-out game, was to hurl the opener. Warren Spahn, gunning for his 20th victory, and Lew Burdette, were Milwaukee Manager Charlie Grimm's choices.

Informed he was a starter again, the taciturn Grissom merely shrugged his shoulders and said: "I'm ready."

Pontiac Squad Shorthanded in Opening Contest

Two Regulars Benched for Missing Practice Session

By BILL MARTIN

Pontiac High's Chiefs go to Wyandotte Friday night to meet a veteran Roosevelt High team in the opening game of the 1954 football season.

Disciplinary action will cost the Chiefs the services or two regulars and a promising sophomore back. End Willie Wilson and fullback Coley Gracey, both lettermen, and fleet halfback Freeman Watkins will be sidelined as a result of unauthorized absences from practice this week.

Remainder of the PHS starting offensive lineup will have George Thrasher and Collo Hunt at tackles, Bruce Baker and Dick Kors at guards, Don Hardy or Wayne Pyke at center, Marvin Cagle at end, Bob Casteel at quarter and Walt Poe at right half.

Ten of Wyandotte's starting offensive 11 are returning lettermen from the squad that bowed to Pontiac, 34-13, in last year's opener. Anchoring the Bears' line will be returning regulars Joe Antalovic at end, Harlan Kelly at tackle, Bill Cheplick at guard and Mike Korowin at center. The latter two, a pair of 190-pound bruisers, are playing their 3rd year of varsity competition.

In the Wyandotte backfield will be Bob Manthey at quarter, Curt Burkett and Joe Palaczolo at the halves and John Murray, at full. All are lettermen and saw considerable action last season.

Both Ed Graybiel of Pontiac and Dick Hoffheins of Wyandotte are starting their 2nd year as head coaches. Pontiac finished with a 4-5 mark last year, while Wayndotte closed strong to post a 5-3-1 record.

Rain, Rain, Go Away

Marciano Probably Irritated, Charles Sulky Over Postponement of Title Bout

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — Anytime a championship fight is postponed a day for any reason whatever, it becomes the duty of any commentator worth his salt to delve into the mental and physical characteristics of the two principals and decide which of them figures to suffer more.

Generally speaking, the idea is that there are two fighters who have trained themselves to razor sharpness and that for each hour thereafter they are going to deterioriate until they do finally climb into the ring. The problem is, of course, to find which of them comes unstuck the faster.

The answer is of first importance to the official odds-makers, and there's not a doubt that the head man is waiting right now to learn whether he should let the price favoring Rocky Marciano out another notch, to 1-6, or give it a quick tuck back to 1-4 on the chance that yesterday's cold rain put new life into the older man, Ezzard Charles.

Well, first you've got to take the mental attitudes. Marciano's first because he's the champion. Rocky, frankly, doesn't do much thinking about anything except that it's wonderful to be alive, and that as soon as this fight is out of the way he'll be able to spend some time with his beautiful wife and child at their new home in Brockton, Mass. He might have felt a trace of irritation at being forced to wait another day before getting at Ez again.

Charles is a little more the thinking type. He's inclined to be broody, and he probably doesn't like rain very much at any time. He figures he's already had to wait much too long for his two shots at Rocky. This final delay could have made him downright sulky and mean by the time they finally do square off tonight.

Arnold Palmer Plans to Stay in Amateur Role

DETROIT (AP)—Arnold Palmer, new U.S. amateur golf champion, says that he plans to remain amateur for the next few years and will sidestep the lucrative offers from the pro ranks.

But he is now top man in a field that has furnished some of the top professional golfers. Five former amateur champions who once held Palmer's crown later moved to the professional field. These include Lawson Little (1934-1935), Marvin (Bud) Ward (1939), Skee Riegel (1947), Billy Maxwell (1951) and Gene Littler (1953).

Little went on to become USGA Open champion in 1940. And Littler almost achieved the same triumph when he was runner up in 1954.

Young Players Shine in Women's Amateur

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—If you want to know about women's golf, ask the equipment manufacturers—or take a look at the results of the 1954 Women's National Amateur championship, now going into its fourth and toughest day at the Allegheny Country Club.

The manufacturers say the girls are their best customers. They're interested, exciting, eager to learn and new players are flocking to the game every day.

The championship proves that almost anything can happen when the girls play, but that the young players who have just found their way into the tournament picture in the last couple of years are becoming a very important factor.

Of the 16 survivors going into today's double round of 18 hole matches, half were 21 or under and two more in their very early 20's.

The old timers and the record books couldn't tell of any set of 16 matches which ever had produced as many close results as those yesterday on the rain-soaked little course in the hills of suburban Sewickley.

The 1953 winner and runner-up both were carried to the 20th hole. And two other top favorites got awful scares before they came through.

The 20-hole winners were defending champion Mary Lena Faulk, who was very fortunate to get past 1948 champion Grace Lenczyk, and Polly Riley, who had a real squeaker against Mary Ann Downey, Canadian champion Marlene Stewart, the 1953 British women's champion, beat Jeanne Bisgood on the 19th after the English girl had missed a fairly short putt for a win on the 18th.

Today's two rounds were to reduce the field to four players and it was virtually impossible to pick a favorite in the lot.

Miss Faulk, after one narrow escape, ran right into Ireland's Philomena Garvey, one of two survivors of the British Curtis Cup team. Philomena beat Mary Lena when they met in the semifinals of the 1953 British championship.

Miss Riley's fifth-round opponent was 19-year-old Janette Robertson of Scotland, the other Curtis Cupper, and if successful there, the chances were that Polly would run into Mickey Wright, also 19, who knocked out 1951 champion Dot Kirby with a fine display of golf.

RAIN DOESN'T BOTHER WILLIE—Rain, which forced postponement of Wednesday's Giant-Milwaukee game doesn't bother Willie Mays. The Dodgers played in the rain at Brooklyn and defeated Cincinnati to move within 3 games of the league-leading Giants who meet the Braves in a twin bill today.

Only 4 Regulars Returning to Hope's MIAA Title II

By JOE FALLS

HOLLAND (AP)—"We have only a mediocre chance of winning again," says Al Vanderbush, who is starting his 9th consecutive season as head football coach at Hope College.

Last year Vanderbush guided Hope to its 1st undisputed MIAA championship. He is not certain whether his team can make it two in a row, but adds:

"We have only four regulars returning, but we won't be much weaker than last year. Our chances of winning again are mediocre because the other teams are stronger. We'll probably lose some of those close games we won last fall."

Hope compiled a 7-2 record last year—5-1-0 in the conference. Sixteen of the 29 lettermen from the team are missing. Of the 13 returnees, only four saw regular duty.

The No. 1 player figures to be John Adams, right halfback from Saginaw who scored 11 touchdowns last fall. Adams was the 5th leading ground gainer in the state with 598 yards.

Four Top U.S. Tennis Stars Score 3rd Round Triumphs

LOS ANGELES (INS)—A strong American tennis contingent entered the quarter finals of the Southwest Pacific net championships today at Los Angeles.

National intercollegiate champion Hamilton Richardson, U.S. Davis Cup team captain Billy Talbert, U.S. men's singles titlist Vic Seixas and his partner in Davis Cup play Tony Trabert all scored comfortable third round triumphs yesterday.

Swedish Davis Cup stars Sven Davidson and Lennart Bergelin were knocked out of the running yesterday. Talbert accounted for Davidson and Richardson downed Bergelin.

In today's top quarter-final, defending champion Ken Rosewall of Australia meets Richardson and Aussie Lou Hoad plays Luis Ayala of Chile.

Queen's Adios 2-Time Winner at Wolverine

DETROIT (AP)—Queen's Adios, strong candidate for the Little Brown Jug pacing classic, last night won both heats of the $10,000 Board of Commerce pace at the Wolverine Harness Raceway.

The double win, gained on a rain-soaked track, boosted the three-year old as one of the favorites for the Brown Jug to be run Sept. 23 at Delaware, Ohio.

Driven by Jim Hackett, Queen's Adios won the 1st heat in 2:09 and took the 2nd in 2:10.1.

Predicting Time Again!

Sooners, Terps, Georgia Tech, USC, Aggies Favored in Saturday Openers

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (AP)—This is sports salad week with a heavyweight title fight, a national golf tournament, numerous horse races, a pair of torrid major league pennant scrambles and a flock of college football games making up the dish.

Oklahoma over California: A football morsel that should have been saved for mid-season. But you will see it on your TV screen Saturday. Oklahoma has two outstanding ends in Max Boydston and Carl Allison. California's strong point is Matt Hazeltine, a defensive genius at center.

Maryland over Kentucky: Maryland is carrying on from last year while Kentucky is rebuilding. Dick Bielski of the Marylanders, moves into his own

Georgia Tech over Tulane: Graduation took many of Tech's bevy of backs but Larry Morris, All-America center, is hale, hearty and eligible for another season.

Southern California over Washington State: Too early in the year for Washington State's sophomore crew. Southern California has a gee-whiz sophomore in Jen Arnett.

Oklahoma A&M over Wyoming: A meeting involving prospective champions of the Missouri Valley and Skyline Eight loops.

BATTLE CREEK (AP) — Unbeaten Battle Creek takes on Dayton, Ohio today in the 6th round of the Eastern Regional play - offs of the American Baseball Congress.

Penn State Coach Rates Touted 11 'Just Average'

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Coach Rip Engle, a veteran at singing the September blues, can't see how anyone believes his fifth Penn State football team will set the world on fire this fall.

"We're about average in everything—material, number of lettermen and the like," said Engle today in appraising his club two weeks after the start of practice and 10 days before the opening game at Illinois.

The Nittany Lions, sporting a six won and three lost mark for 1953, are ranked among the top in the East along with Army, Pitt and a couple of others. The basis for the rating is a solid line bolstered by the return of 11 letter winners—many of them first stringers. Rosey Grier, 245-pound Roselle, N. J., guard already is being drummed as a full fledged star.

In addition Engle has five more lettermen in the backfield including Lenny Moore, the Reading, Pa., halfback sprinter.

However, Engle started drills with a big worry that, he says, is still unsolved. This is who will replace the best passer in State history—Tony Rados—in the signal calling post.

Chips Favored to Keep Title

Central Michigan Team to Beat in Interstate Grid Conference

CHICAGO (AP)—Defending champion Central Michigan is a strong favorite to repeat for the Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference football title in 1954.

Chippewas, however, will be facing stern competition from western Illinois, the 1953 runner-up, 3rd-place Michigan Normal and Illinois Normal.

The Mt. Pleasant champions have 21 lettermen returning and lost only five men through graduation. Coach Bill Kelley's main problem is finding a replacement for Central Michigan's leading ground-gainer, Chuck Miller.

Cincinnati Official Will File Protest

BROOKLYN (UP)—Gabe Paul, Cincinnati Redlegs general manager, said today he'll file a complaint to National League President Warren Giles over the conditions under which Wednesday's game with the Brooklyn Dodgers was played.

The Redlegs lost to the Dodgers, 10-4, in a game played in a steady drizzle. Paul said, "no game which might affect the championship or a place in the race should be played under such conditions."

Ted's Hitting Slumps

BALTIMORE (AP)—Ted Williams has run into a late-season batting slump. The Red Sox outfielder went 0-for-4 against the Orioles last night and has collected only three hits in his last 30 trips.

Williams, who still has a chance to win the batting title, is hitting .336 with 351 at bats. Boston has 10 more games remaining.

Lane, Marion Plan to Strengthen Chisox Bench

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Hoist the storm warnings, mates! A trade wind ("L" for Lane) is expected to blow as strongly as ever now that Marty Marion has been initiated as new manager of the Chicago White Sox.

It won't be long before General Manager Frank Lane again begins his huffing and puffing in the baseball trading marts in an effort to blow the American League pennant to Chicago next year. In the last six years he has pulled off nearly 200 deals, purchases or sales involving more than 270 players.

He isn't going to stop now. He and Marion will try to lay the groundwork for some beneficial trades during the Sox road trip to Cleveland and Baltimore next week and at the world series.

"We'll concentrate on building a stronger bench," says Marion, successor to Paul Richards who is to be in command of the Baltimore Orioles.

"We can't kid ourselves. We can't go out and get topflight hitters because everybody is looking for such guys—and teams which already have them want too much to trade them. Our best bet, then, is to strengthen our attack by landing a few good pinch hitters. Casey Stengel's success has been largely based on his bench-hitting depth. That's what we need."

Marion said he plans to stay off the coaching lines "because a manager can get a better perspective of the ball game and its overall situations from the bench."

In contrast to Richards, who was not a mixer and never got too close with his players, Marion jokes and works with them well. When he was shortstopping for the St. Louis Cardinals he was known as a ball player's ball player—about as high a respect as a player can receive.

This same respect from his players will remain in Marion's managerial role.

"Marion can seem kind of easy going—but he is a tough cookie underneath," Lane says.

Marion has this simple formula:

"I'm going to treat the players like I would want to be treated. At the same time I will expect their respect. A manager who lacks this is in trouble."

How did Marion get his start in baseball?

"Well, I don't want to sound corney—but it was my mom," he says. "It was mom who got out in the backyard and played catch with us boys down in Richburg (S. C.).

"It was very embarrassing to her dad, who was a Methodist preacher. But mom would get out and play ball with the boys—it was a family scandal."

The new Sox pilot is quite a family man. He's the father of Martinna, 13; Ginger, 9; Linda, 6, and Nancy, 2.

Swing's Outside-In Arc Will Result in Pull-Slice

By SAM SNEAD

The Pull-Slice

Sometimes a shot that starts to the left, then slices, will end up in the middle of the fairway. But most often that slicing action will have robbed the shot of the desired distance.

Today let's analyze the pull-slice, what causes it and how to cure it. The one reason that a shot will go to the left is that the swing has traveled in an outside-in arc.

Now, if the clubface is square to the correct line of flight, and the swing is outside-in, the ball will also slice. Most pull-slicers don't use their shoulders correctly—they don't turn enough.

Today's player has turned his shoulders (A) 90 degrees as he reaches the top of his backswing, and that's correct. The pull-slicer will lift the club with his hands instead of swinging it, and his shoulders will turn perhaps only a quarter of the way around.

That leaves it up to his arms to complete the swing, and they can't do the job alone. The way to correct this tendency is to start the club back low to the ground, inside the intended line of flight. Then, be sure your shoulders are turned as today's players are. I believe you'll cure that pull-slice then.

Buggs Speed Merchant

Michigan State halfback Travis Buggs was Indiana state champ in the 100 yard dash in 1952 and holds the 60-yard dash mark for the University of Chicago fieldhouse.

Avila Credits Milk for Boost in Hits

CLEVELAND (AP)—Bob Avila, the Cleveland Indian second baseman, says milk is the reason for a recent boost in his batting average.

"I do nothing different now when I bat," Avila said. "Must be I am stronger. Maybe because I drink so much milk. I drink milk all the time."

Avila explained that he started drinking two quarts of milk a day last winter. That was when doctors told him he had an ulcer.

UCLA Is Well Fortified at Both End Positions

LOS ANGELES (AP)—With six lettermen returning to compete for the end positions this season—UCLA will be well fortified in the wing department.

Bill Barnes, Bruin wing coach, admits that material for these two positions look unusually solid. But he tosses in the usual gloomy gridiron comment that UCLA lost a major defensive end with the graduation of Myron Berliner, 169-pound ace of last season's Bruin line.

All New York fight referees are required to take two official physical examinations a year.

Pronto Don Near Record for Trotters

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Pronto Don, 9-year-old gelding from the Hayes Fair Acres Stable, DuQuoin, Ill., has a chance to become the greatest money winning harness horse in history tonight by finishing fourth or better in the $25,000 American trotting championship at Roosevelt Raceway.

Eleven of the country's fastest trotting stars are in this invitational stakes, and the probable favorite at 5-2 is Scotch Victory, owned by Sol Camp of Shafter, Calif.

Pronto Don has earned $317,173, compared with the record of $318,792 set by Good Time, now retired.

Ft. Dix, Sill Knocked From Army Baseball Test

FT. CARSON, Colo. (AP)—Ft. Jackson, S.C., rallied for four runs in the fifth inning Wednesday night and hung on for a 6-4 decision over Ft. Dix, N.J., in the All-Army baseball tournament.

Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., scored in all but two innings of its afternoon contest with Ft. Sill, Okla., to beat the Sooners, 10-4. The losses eliminated both Dix and Sill from the double elimination meet.

MSC Hawkeyes Fare Poorly Against Defense

Coaches Pleased With Results of Workout on Iowa Plays

By ROBERT E. VOGES

EAST LANSING (AP)—The Michigan State version of the Iowa attack didn't do too well yesterday.

And MSC coaches were understandably happy.

Coaches had a scrub team armed with Iowa plays punch against the 1st and 2nd teams, scrimmaging on defense.

Except in a few cases when there were lapses by the 2nd string defenders, the Spartans making like Iowans went exactly nowhere.

Earl Morrall was in the 1st string backfield as safety man on defense. Fullback Jerry Planutis worked as linebacker and Travis Buggs and Gary Lowe were defensive halfbacks.

Quarterbacks Pat Wilson of Lapeer, and Clarence Peaks alternated at directing the Iowa attack.

Coach Duffy Daugherty said after the scrimmage that he would cut down to one-a-day workouts effective Friday.

Richards to Retain Ehlers and Dykes

CHICAGO (INS)—Paul Richards, new general manager of the Baltimore Orioles, said former general manager Art Ehlers and field manager Jimmie Dykes could remain in the Oriole organization.

Richards, before leaving for his Waxahachie, Tex., home yesterday, conferred with Ehlers and said the former general manager would be retained in a position similar to "assistant general manager."

Richards also told Ehlers to tell Dykes he could have a job as "sort of player procurement" official.

Matsock a 'Thief'

Michigan State's John Matsock intercepted two passes in the 1954 Rose Bowl win over UCLA, returning them for a total of 67 yards.

Tin Millionaire Is Fighting for Custody of Grandchild

PARIS (AP)—The reported kidnaping of tin millionaire Antenor Patino's motherless 4-month-old granddaughter simmered down today to a custody fight between the wealthy Bolivian family and their British son-in-law.

The young father, 20-year-old hotel heir James Goldsmith, reported last night to police that his baby daughter Isabela had been kidnaped by an "unknown person or persons" from the Versailles hotel where she had been living with her grandmother.

The baby, Patino's lawyers announced today, 'is somewhere in or near Paris with her grandmother," a Spanish Bourbon princess who has been estranged from Antenor Patino for years.

The lawyers said Mrs. Patino had asked the Paris Civil Court for custody of the child and the case would be argued tomorrow.

The attorneys refused to say just where Mrs. Patino and the baby were but added, we can say they are together."

In filing his own charges in the civil court last night, Goldsmith dropped his kidnaping allegation and protested against non-presentation of the child." He said he expected a thorough search to be made for the baby.

Court sources said after such a charge an investigation was routine. But they doubted any all-out hunt would result from what they said appeared to be essentially a family quarrel.

Goldsmith married Patino's 18-year-old daughter Isabela last January after a headline elopment to Scotland. Her parents joined in pursuit of them, but finally consented to the match.

The young couple's baby was delivered by caesarian operation last May 14 shortly after Isabela underwent complicated surgery for removal of a brain tumor. The mother died a few hours later and little Isabela lived in an incubator for two months.

Since then she had been cared for by an English nurse in the swank Trianon Palace Hotel, near the famous Chateau of Versailles, while Goldsmith was on a business trip to West Africa.

Goldsmith said the baby is suffering from anoxemia, a lack of oxygen in her blood, "caused by the unusual circumstances of her birth." He said she "may die if not properly cared for."

Patino's lawyers said Goldsmith and Mrs. Patino had quarreled on what sort of medical treatment she should be given.

Party Disunity Hit by Nixon

Knuckle Down and Win Votes, Vice President Warns Republicans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon last night urged Republicans to knuckle down to the business of winning elections and warned them of the dangers of party disunity.

Nixon declared:

"If you were for Eisenhower in 1952 . . . you have no choice but to vote for Republican candidates for the House and Senate in 1954."

"One of our major dangers is disunity in the Republican organization. The Maine organization was fighting amongst themselves," he said.

A Democratic governor recently was elected in Maine, the first time in 20 years, but Republicans won the state's senatorial and congressional seats.

The party must work hard, said Nixon, because if too many Democrats get in Congress they will "torpedo" President Eisenhower's program in mid-term.

Nixon said Eisenhower opponents in the 84th Congress would be looking closer at the 1956 presidential election than towards helping the GOP administration enact its program.

He addressed the one-day Republican State Convention in a nearly filled 2,845-seat movie theater in Columbus.

The speech kicked off a 31-state barnstorming tour in the next 45 days by Nixon in behalf of President Eisenhower to help 'elect a working Republican majority in Congress this November.

Ancient Drug Store Collapses, Killing 3

FLORA, Ill. (AP)—Three persons were killed and two others were buried under debris in the collapse of an ancient drug store building in downtown Flora yesterday.

An adjoining brick building caved in while the 4½-hour rescue operations were in progress, narrowly missing some of the workers digging through the rubble for victims.

Killed were Carroll Thomas, 18, and Jerry Savage, 19, fountain boys, and Leonard Leak, 34, a carpenter who was laying a new floor in the 80-year-old two-story building.

John Throgmorton, 70-year-old co-owner of the drug store, was trapped in the debris for half an hour. He was not hurt. Cecil Powless, 45, the other co-owner, was pinned down for a few minutes but made his way out unaided.

Farmer Freed in Eviction Case

Judge Directs Acquittal of Lawrence Weston for Insufficient Evidence

CHARLOTTE (UP) — One of seven farmers accused of obstructing justice during an eviction attempt in Lapeer County two years ago was acquitted Wednesday at the direction of Circuit Judge Timothy C. Quinn.

The six defendants still faced with the charges were Harold Jarvis, 38, North Branch; William Howard, 76, Clifford; Ray Warner, 71, Imlay City; Howard Abbott, 46, Columbiaville; Henry Trainor, 76, Brown City, and William Lee Mathews, 60, Brown City.

They were charged with roughing up Lapeer County Sheriff Clark Gregory when he attempted to serve an eviction notice on the late Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens June 2, 1952.

The defendants admit fighting with the sheriff but claimed they were trapped into it. They said the battle was arranged by Gregory to gain publicity.

The principal defense witness Wednesday was Erwin C. Russell, who now is serving a sentence at Jackson prison on a similar charge.

Russell testified that Gregory had told him the fight was "all arranged" on the morning of the attempted eviction. He also said prosecuting attorney George Lutz told him he would have a better chance for parole if he would change his testimony.

Both Gregory and Lutz denied Russell's testimony.

Estimated cost of the interceptor sewer, based on the 1970 estimated population of 85,000 people, is figured at $67.78 per property unit. This would be paid on the basis of 1.6 mills per year for a period of 15 to 20 years.

400 See Group Receive Charter

President E. J. Geist Jr. Voices Hope Chapter Can Back Youth Center

ROCHESTER — More than 400 Rotarians from southern Michigan and Ontario gathered last night in the Rochester High School gym to welcome a new club to the Rotary International, and take part in the Charter Night rites for the new Rochester Rotary Club.

Following registration at 6 p.m., toastmaster William F. Dorn of the sponsoring Romeo Rotary Club called the gathering to order. Invocation by Rev. William Hill Collycott preceded the dinner.

Richard C. Hedke, past president of Rotary International, addressed those present in a salute to Rotary's 50th anniversary, and welcomed the new members to the 395,000 members in 80 countries dedicated to service of others.

Hedtke predicted a great year for Rotary, and urged greater strides in increasing membership. Birmingham Rotarian George Markley called roll of the clubs present, and found 40 groups represented.

District governor Harold Dorr presented the officers and 12 charter members of the new group, in addition to those men who have become members since the club's inception in June.

Dr. Edgar J. Geist, Jr., president of the Rochester Rotary, and other officers, Ed Potere, vice president, John Terry, treasurer, and Maurice Watson, were introduced.

President Geist outlined the service aims of the group, voicing a hope that the new club can do something about the long discussed youth center for Rochester teenagers.

Past district governor Macy E. Watkins presented the charter to the club, and Village President Clarence Burr and Avon Township Supervisor Cyril Miller briefly addressed the group.

Shooting Moves to Hollywood on 'Oklahoma'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Time for a checkup on "Oklahoma!"

Filming of the great Rodgers and Hammerstein musical has resumed in Hollywood after a lengthy location in Arizona. So I thought I had better pay a call on the film, which is being made in the new Todd-AO process.

On the set there was a ranch, complete with water tank and windmill. And at the other end of the stage, a farmhouse, with a backdrop that looked like a huge Grant Wood landscape. That's where all the activity was taking place.

Director Fred Zinneman was in the center of the cast, directing the wedding of Curley and Laurie. This was strictly a rehearsal and the many young dancers were decked out in some of the wildest get-ups imaginable.

"Now this is a movie," Zinneman was instructing the largely Broadway-trained group. "You will have to unlearn some of the things you have learned on the stage. Broad gestures will be out."

He rehearsed the scene with the chorus and the principals, including Gordon Macrae, Shirley Jones, J. C. Flippen, Gloria Grahame, Charlotte Greenwood, Gene Nelson, James Whitmore. The wedding party streamed out of the house and went into a rousing chorus of 'Oklahoma!'

Oscar Hammerstein II is the film's overseer, Rodgers having left for New York and his revival of "On Your Toes."

"Yes, I have learned much from the picture," he commented. "This is the first time I have ever followed a picture through. I used to write them and let others carry the ball.

"I've been on the set for almost every scene. One of the eyeopeners for me is the manpower involved in a picture. We might have a simple scene of a girl swimming in a lake. That would require 150 men behind the camera, and all of them necessary."

He said the experience has whetted his appetite for more films, and he and Rodgers will probably do "South Pacific" and "Carousel." But not for some time, because of stage commitments.

The Todd-AO process is a new one developed by producer Michael Todd and the American Optical Co. It uses 65 mm. film instead of ordinary 35 mm. The wider film plus a wide-angle lens gives an extraordinarily clear picture on a wide screen.

Arizona rains added 11 days and much money to the picture, Hammerstein reported, but he felt the locations were worth it. There will be no locations in Oklahoma, as originally planned. Why?

"Because Arizona looks more like the Oklahoma of 1907," he replied. "I don't think Oklahomans should be unhappy, because the show should do them good. And look at John Huston. He went to an Irish village to shoot New Bedford of the 1800s for 'Moby Dick.' Nobody's complaining about that."

No matter what atmospheric temperatures man can endure on this earth, he has a small chance of living if his body temperature ever drops to 93 degrees, or rises to 110; and even to stray outside the 97-to-101-degree range usually is a sign that something is wrong.

Don't Put Accent on Pay Is Advice to Job Seeker

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
International News Service
Economic Commentator

If you're shopping around for a dream job, don't put too much burden on the prospective employer.

He's busy, and doesn't want you to rely on him for job counseling.

So tie your qualifications and job specifications into an inviting package, and offer it to someone likely to be in need of what you have.

Don't merely say: "I'll do anything." That's too vague in this competitive age in which special aptitudes are sought.

If your talents are sufficient to enable you to be selective, don't be snooty with the prospective employer.

Provided you can do so conscientiously, let the employer feel that you face the prospect of working for him with enthusiasm.

The fellow who puts you on the payroll is not greatly concerned with your inner psychiatric need such as your urge for an interesting occupation, and your desire to express yourself.

These are your personal problems, and the employer, in paying you, has in mind what you can contribute to the success of his operation.

If, as a by-product, you satisfy other inner needs besides your pecuniary requirements, that is well and good.

It is blundering in the market place for human services to overemphasize your own selfish objectives in the employment negotiation. As president of the National City Bank of New York, the late Frank A. Vanderlip got an immense kick out of helping young men and women get started in banking.

Vanderlip would discourage applicants from putting the accent on what they would get out of a job.

"Don't worry about the pay," he would say with sincerity. "I can assure you that if you develop into a competent employe, we will remunerate you adequately."

But in recent years with the overemphasis on economic security, it has become fashionable even for beginners to ask about the retirement pension system, insurance and other fringe benefits, and to want guarantees as to where they will be in 10, 15 and 20 years. The exceptional worker in fact rises faster and goes further than any temperate employer would be willing to predict at the time of employment.

But unusual promotion depends on a spirit of venturesomeness on the part of the employee. (It is well not to stamp oneself as a routineer by asking the employer for ironclad guarantees.)

From the jobholder's standpoint, in his own self-searching, he should ask not only whether "I am doing all right" but also "Where am I going?"

It is preferable to seek employment from organizations and personalities who provide a plus above the salary in good on-the-job training, and who as a matter of policy promote from within.

Woman Serves as U.S. Marshal

One of 3 in Northern New York's Federal District

ALBANY, N. Y. (UP) — Nancy Sheerin looks nothing like Wild Bill Hickok, but she's a gun-totin' United States marshal just the same.

Miss Sheerin is one of 185 women employed by the Department of Justice, as deputy marshals. She considers her job nothing unusual.

"People can't believe women are marshals," she said. "They say, 'Why I never heard of such a thing.' But it doesn't bother me at all. It's just like any other work."

Miss Sheerin a native of Utica, became a deputy after she finished business school. Now, she is one of three in the 29-county northern New York federal district.

She and Mrs. Janes D. Lubey, also of Utica, alternate in attending federal court terms in Albany, Utica and Syracuse, and in handling women prisoners. The third member of their trio, Miss Estella K. Smith, usually stays at district headquarters in Utica to handle administrative duties.

Miss Sheerin's job ranges from taking juries to lunch, general office work and filling out fingerprint cards to transporting women prisoners to jail, court or a U.S. Commissioner's office. She also serves processes and subpoenas.

Miss Sheerin often carries a gun and also is equipped with handcuffs and blackjack for transporting prisoners. The gun she slips into her pocketbook.

A mild-mannered, bespectacled woman, Miss Sheerin said none of her prisoners has tried to escape. She says most of the prisoners she handles are sentenced for embezzlement, illegal border crossing, forgery, stealing from the mails and illegal sale of alcohol.

The highest automobile road in the United States reaches the summit of Mt. Evans—14,260 feet—says the National Geographic Society.

Soybeans Take Sharp Tumble

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybeans fell sharply on the Board of Trade today and rye was down almost as much. Feed grains eased but wheat maintained a firm tone.

September soybeans dropped 10 cents, the daily limit. Selling followed receipt of 155 cars of cash beans at Chicago. Rye fell on news West Germany had postponed contemplated purchase of cash rye.

Buying entered wheat on an official Canadian crop forecast sharply lowering estimated production, plue reports of frost in the Peace River Valley section. Wheat did not hold its best gains.

Prospect of a large quantity of poor quality Canadian wheat caused selling in feed grains. Such wheat can be brought into the United States for use as a livestoc feed.

Injunction Plea Set on Drive-in Pickets

Arguments to show why a permanent injunction should not be issued to stop picketing of the Pontiac Drive-In Theater will be heard when theater and labor representatives meet Monday with two Oakland County Circuit Judges.

Spokesmen for Pontiac Local 620 of the National Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Operators of the United States and Canada claim violation of contract as basis for the picketing. Theater manager Elton L. Samuels, they charge, planned discharge of one of two $115-a-week projectionists in violation of contract.

Samuels, currently operating the projectors, said he terminated the contract last month because other theaters of the same type operate with one projectionist. He stated that he faces possible shutdown because union film and refreshment deliverers refuse to violate the picket lines.

The arguements will be heard by Circuit Judges H. Russel Holland and Frank L. Doty.

Drags Auto Victim 5 Miles on Bumper

EAST BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—A 23-year-old mother of three children was killed last night when hit by a car and dragged five miles on its bumper.

The victim was identified as Mrs. Grace Sullivan Frank of New Brunswick.

Police said the car struck her on Rt. 18 here, and dragged her along five miles until another motorist hailed the driver down in Sayreville. The driver was identified as Norman F. Childers, 43, of Milltown, N.J., where he is a councilman. Childers, a chemist at Rutgers Agricultural College, was charged with causing death by auto.

Police quoted Childers as saying he didn't know about the body until he was flagged by the other motorist. He said he felt a bump but wasn't aware that his car struck anything.

NEW YORK (AP)—The Stock Market displayed some imrpovement in the early afternoon today after a faltering start.

Some individual gains were substantial, but most changes either way amounted to fractions.

Trading was slow. Traders seemed indifferent except in individual situations. The pace was well below yesterday's 2,100,000 shares traded in a falling market.

Some of the better gains were in the oils, utilities, rubbers and a few aircrafts. The railroads were mixed.

Among higher stocks were Western Union, Consolidated Natural Gas, Republic Steel, Goodrich, Douglas Aircraft, American Cyanamid, Crane Co., Texas Gulf Producing (up between 2 and 3 at times), Texas Co. and American Telephone.

Lower were Chrysler, International Harvester, United Aircraft, American Smelting, Du Pont and J. P. Stevens.

Probers Hear Junior Truman Official Spent Union Welfare Money

NEW YORK (INS) — Evidence of huge rake-offs from union welfare funds piled up today as the name of a junior cabinet member in the Truman administration was injected into the State Insurance Department probe.

Robert T. Creasey, who resigned as assistant secretary of labor on Dec. 1, 1952, was identified as the lavish spender who used $7,822 in union welfare funds last year to join and entertain at clubs.

He drew the apparently unlimited expense allowances as the $25,000-a-year administrator for the AFL Seafarers International Union.

Testimony on his free spending was unfolded before State Insurance Superintendent Bohlinger at the hearings in the Criminal Courts Building as Creasey sat in the front row.

Heavy administration expenses for the welfare funds of Local 759, AFL International Hodcarriers Union were revealed by Milton Zipper, a certified public accountant.

He said his audit from July, 1949 to March, 1952 showed fund contributions totaling $100,495, with $28,805 spent for membership insurance protection and $21,241 for administration expenses.

Packard to Idle 3,000 During Plant Transfer

DETROIT (AP) — The Packard Motor Car Co. said yesterday some 3,000 of its 9,000 employes will be idled at alternating periods while the company transfers final assembly operations to a new plant.

The shift from the East Grand boulevard factory to a modern plant acquired from Chrysler Corp. on Conner avenue will take 45 days.

Final assembly is scheduled to begin early in November at accelerated rates.

The transfer from East Grand boulevard plant where Packards have been made since 1903 involves the shift of three miles of conveyor lines and 5,000 tools, some weighing as much as 5 tons.

High Pork Prices Turn Spotlight on Beef Buys

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Soaring prices of pork turned housewives' attention to beef, poultry and seafood this week as among the best available buys for weekend feasting.

Reflecting increased wholesale costs, center cut pork chops are up as much as 16 cents a pound at retail in some cities.

While beef prices in most areas are pretty much the same as last week, individual stores have singled out T-bone steak, rib roast and boneless chuck pot roast for promotion as weekend specials.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has designated beef as its food headliner of the week.

Frying chickens constitute a good buy, with prices down as much as six cents a pound from last weekend in some cities. Devotees of seafood can find occasional bargains in cod fillets, oysters, lobster and shrimp.

Egg prices are mostly lower. The downturn reflects a production spurt resulting from cooler weather.

Best buys in the vegetable department include eggplant, corn, sweet potatoes, cabbages and peppers.

The season for Florida citrus fruits is expected to arrive on schedule, with grapefruit shipments arriving in big city markets in heavy volume by mid-October. Florida limes are plentiful, but most other citrus categories now available were grown in California.

2 Hurt, 2 Held in Strike Scuffle

Violence Breaks Out Along the Picket Line at Square D

DETROIT (AP) — Two persons were hurt and two taken to police headquarters for questioning today as scuffles broke out along picket lines at the long-struck Detroit plant of the Square D Co.

The two picked up for questioning were accused of throwing rocks at policemen protecting workers answering the company's back-to-work campaign to break the 94-day-old strike.

The picket line flareup came as federal and state mediators called upon the striking Independent United Electrical Workers and management to resume negotiations.

The company indicated it would return to the bargaining table after being criticized yesterday by Circuit Judge Frank B. Ferguson for "failing to do more than it has done to settle the strike."

The jurist's rebuke came when the company and the union reported during a contempt citation hearing that bargaining talks Tuesday night had produced no settlement.

The talks were the first since Aug. 27 when negotiations fell apart over the company's insistence on an iron-clad "no strike" clause in the work contract.

It was at Judge Ferguson's suggestion that negotiations were resumed.

Judge Ferguson is holding hearings on company-sought contempt citations against strike leaders for ignoring a court order limiting the number of pickets at plant gates.

At yesterday's hearing Ferguson said: "I can't get anything from management. You are here to try this case while at the same time you are not attempting to settle the strike."

Ferguson adjourned hearings on the contempt citations until Monday.

McNamara Scores GOP in Talk Here

"The Republicans will never balance the budget as long as they continue to shut off revenue," Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate Patrick V. McNamara said here last night.

Speaking at a gathering of 18th District Democrats in the Hotel Roosevelt, McNamara accused the administration of "typical double-talk. The Republicans moan about a near $5,000,000 deficit, but neglect to mention they were the ones insisting on millions of dollars in tax relief for the giant corporations and shareholders.

"They are willing to put this country further in debt by giving money to people who need it least."

Present at the meeting were Paul Sutton, Democratic candidate for congressman from the 18th District and Neil Staebler, state chairman.

Following a noon luncheon at Hotel Roosevelt today, McNamara is scheduled to tour Oak Park and Huntington Woods. He will make speeches tonight in Royal Oak at the Moose and Eagles lodges.

Fawns are devoid of any telltale scent, but the mother deer takes on an additional odor in order to lure away possible predators which might harm her hidden offspring.

A Solid Citizen, He Lives Easily

Edward Francis Michael Patrick O'Shea Is Really His Given Name

NEW YORK — Michael O'Shea, co-star of TV's "It's a Great Life," is as Irish as a Pat and Mike joke. Christened Edward Francis Michael Patrick O'Shea, he was born on St. Patrick's Day, March 17. He has red hair, twinkling blue eyes and a turned-up nose. There's a blarney on his tongue, and he's never serious for more than three consecutive minutes.

He was born in New York City to James and Anna McCay O'Shea. Mike was forced to quit school because of illness in the family, and at the age of 11 was helping out by running errands, working as a Western Union messenger and as a newspaper copy boy and a bellhop.

But even when he was a lad in his teens, Mike was interested in the entertainment field. First it was music, with Mike joining a neighborhood jazz band as its drummer. Then, when the aggregation got its first big-time assignment on the stage of a New Haven theater, Mike doubled as emcee. Soon he was leading the band and acting as its vocalist as well.

The depression called a halt to what might have been a flourishing musical career, and Mike began looking elsewhere to earn his livelihood. He passed a seamen's test and became a bell-hop on the Leviathan.

Back in America, he interspersed show business with jobs as a private detective, a soda jerk, and then, when vaudeville bookings were almost non-existent, he turned to a new medium for performers—radio. Then and there he determined to specialize. On the questionnaire he was asked to fill out regarding what parts he could play, he listed only one type of role — mugs. "I was never out of work after that," he says, "I played comedy mugs, sinister mugs, roughneck mugs — but always mugs."

He soon became one of the leading radio actors in New York. He was doing five air serials a day, plus innumerable evening shows, when he was cast in the role of Private Mulveroy in Maxwell Anderson's play about World War II, "The Eve of St. Mark." The young Irishman was such a hit that he immediately signed for pictures and went to Hollywood to play his first screen role opposite Barbara Stanwyck in "Lady of Burlesque."

He has been a top Hollywood star since then. He is perhaps best known for his portrayal of the title role in "Jack London." In this picture he met an unknown bit player and former Goldwyn girl named Virginia Mayo. He started dating her and advising her on her career. He and Virginia were married in July, of 1947. This past year they had their first child, a daughter, Mary Catherine. The O'Sheas live in a ranch house in Van Nuys in the San Fernando Valley.

His hobby is horses. He has a corral in his backyard and two fine cow ponies. He is a member of the local sheriff's posse, and frequently appears as guest star or judge at Western rodeos. Strangely, he never has played a Western role.

Mike and Virginia hate night clubs and large parties. They entertain quietly at home, usually with small dinners. They have two Boston Bull dogs, "Rooney" and "Duke."

Fourth TV Station Goes on Air Today

Fourth television station whose programs will be received in the Pontiac area—CKLW-TV on channel 9—begins regular programs this afternoon.

The new station, with 325,000 watts, claims to be one of the strongest in North America. In addition to local programs, it will carry the Dumont and Canadian Broadcasting Corp. (CBC) networks.

A special inaugural broadcast is scheduled for 8 o'clock tonight and will feature top officials from the U.S. and Canada as well as outstanding entertainment personalities.

Daily schedules are to run from 2 p.m. to midnight (EST). Saturday and Sunday programs will start an hour earlier.

Jacoby on Bolivia

By OSWALD JACOBY

Some of our readers have asked us to restate the rules of the new game bolivia, one of the family games that has grown out of canasta. The game bolivia is based on samba. If you are already a samba player, here's all you need to know to play bolivia:

Wild Cards: You're allowed to meld three or more wild cards as a separate and independent meld. A meld of seven wild cards called a bolivia, entitles you to a bonus of 2500 points.

Sequences: A meld of seven cards in sequences is called either a samba or an escalera. The bonus is 1500 points. You need a samba and one other seven-card meld before you can meld out.

Game: The game ends when either side reaches 15,000 or more points at the end of a hand. When your score at the beginning of a hand is 7000 points or more you need 150 points for your initial meld.

Melding Out: You need at least two canastas, one of which is a samba, to meld out. For example, you may have two sambas, one samba and a pure or mixed canasta, or one samba and a bolivia.

Red Threes: Your side's red threes count plus if your side has made two canastas of any description by the time the hand ends. Otherwise, your red threes count minus.

Black Threes: When you meld black threes (possible only on the play that puts you out), they count five points plus for each three. If you are caught with one or more black threes in your hand when the deal ends, they count 100 points each against you.

Just in case you have never played samba, here are some of the important differences between that game and canasta:

Cards and Deal: Use three regular decks of 52 cards each, and six jokers, a total of 162 cards. Deal 15 cards to each person.

Draw: At each turn draw two cards from the stock (unless you take the discard pile), but discard only one card. The effect is to make your hand grow as the deal goes on.

Sequences: You may meld three or more cards in sequence of the same suit. A sequence of exactly seven cards is a samba, worth a bonus of 1500 points.

There are other rules, but these are the most important.
