Awarded for Anniversary Letters

WINS FOURTH PLACE — Mrs. Elizabeth J. Newman, of 28 Oriole Rd., is congratulated by General Motors President Harlow H. Curtice last night after winning fourth place in GM's $500,000 Golden Milestone letter writing contest for GM employes. Taylor C. Phillips, left, of 535 Stirling Ave., placed among the first 25. City Woman Fourth in GM Letter Contest

A Pontiac woman who is a secretary at GM Truck & Coach Division didn't go to work today. Instead, she is recovering from a combination virus infection and the pleasant shock which comes when one wins a Cadillac.

Mrs. Elizabeth J. Newman, 35, of 28 Oriole Rd., won fourth prize last night at the national awards banquet for the $500,000 GM employe letter writing contest. Her reward was a Cadillac and $1,750 to pay taxes on the prize.

Some 284,575 General Motors employes entered the contest throughout the United States.

Announcement of prizes to the 45 top national winners came last night during the dinner at the Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel in Detroit. General Motors President Harlow H. Curtice presented each of the 45 awards.

Taylor C. Phillips, 34, of 535 Stirling St., was also among the top 25 and won a Pontiac and $950 to pay for taxes.

This was the second time Phillips has won a new car in a GM contest. Ten years ago he won a Buick in the "My Job" contest. He works in the paint repair department of GMC Truck & Coach Division, Plant 3.

Mrs. Newman, who has been suffering from a virus infection the past several days, fainted during the dinner.

"When they were so anxious to revive me and get me back into the room to receive my award, I had a feeling I must have placed high among the contestants," she said today.

This was the first contest Mrs. Newman had entered alone. Last year she and her husband Erwin

'Heaven Will Be Lighted by the Radiance of God'

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of articles on Heaven, written by local residents and compiled by Mary Anglemier, Pontiac Press church editor).

By JEANETTE DAVIES

Many people visualize heaven as an abode with disembodied spirits floating about or, with people wending their way among the clouds.

Of course we cannot comprehend all of what heaven contains, but God has given us a glimpse of the glories that awaits the person trusting in His Son.

City Teamsters Slated to Vote for Officers

Elections Here Should Follow Hoffa's Order in About 2 Months

Pontiac Teamsters Local 614 should vote in about two months at an election of officers that will mark the end of James R. Hoffa's controversial, 4½-year trusteeship.

A regional Teamster official has confirmed that Hoffa, president of the international union, ordered the election as he hinted he would two months ago during the union's Miami convention.

With the election of new officers, the local's charter would become effective again and local autonomy would be returned, according to Robert Holmes, vice president of the union's joint council covering Detroit and vicinity.

Holmes stated that Hoffa's orders, issued in the name of the international last week, were based on a request for an election submitted by the present officers, who Hoffa appointed when the local's charter was suspended in October, 1953.

Holmes said he had been directed to set up machinery leading to a general membership election of

More May Get Jobless Relief

House Dems to Study Benefits for Those Not Now Covered

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats opened the door today to consideration of emergency unemployment compensation benefits going far beyond proposals sent to Congress by President Eisenhower.

As the House Ways and Means Committee began three days of hearings on expanded federal unemployment relief, Chairman Mills (D-Ark) said the committee would consider plans to pay benefits to jobless workers who are not now entitled to benefits of any kind.

This would apply mainly to farm workers, employes of little firms exempted from the federal-state unemployment insurance program, and other types of employment not now covered.

Of the 5,200,000 estimated unemployed in mid-February, about two million are not covered by state laws and are ineligible for any benefits.

Some members of Congress, among them Rep. McCarthy (D-Minn) and Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass), also want to write permanent revisions into the unemployment compensation program including uniform state standards and wider coverage.

Boy, 2½, Drowns in Williams Lake

Plunge Through Ice Fatal

John Underwood of 6936 Hatchery Rd. and his brother James, 5, had been playing outdoors about 20 minutes when James came into the house alone, Mrs. George Underwood told police.

Mrs. Underwood asked him where Johnny was and James said he didn't know.

The neighborhood was checked, and the search ended when James discovered his brother's body at the end of a ten-foot dock in front of the Underwood residence.

He had apparently been testing the soft ice, lost his balance, and plunged through the ice into four feet of water. A bruise on the side of his head indicated that he hit the edge of the dock when he fell.

JOHN UNDERWOOD

A neighbor, Mrs. Emma Olson, of 6934 Hatchery Rd., summoned the Waterford Township Fire Department and applied artificial respiration until firemen arrived with the respirator. Efforts to revive the child failed.

Five older sisters, Peggy, 9, Joan, 12, Susan, 14, Sharron, 17 and Karen, 19, survive.

Funeral service will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday at the Huntoon Funeral Home, Pontiac.

Speed Anti-Recession Measure

Senate OKs Highway Bill, Presses for House Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic congressional leaders pushed today for quick action on the highway construction speedup bill to try to get it to President Eisenhower's desk next week.

The Senate passed the big anti-recession measure 84-4 and immediately asked for a speedy conference with the House on it. The House may take up the request today.

The bill would pour an additional $1,800,000,000 in federal-state funds into the nations roadbuilding program this year.

It would make available 5½ billions over-all for the road-building program this year, although much of the actual spending would come later.

Passage of the bill is expected to provide 88,000 new jobs this year, and its sponsors say more than 500,000 eventually may be added.

The measure also for the first time would set up federal incentives to the states to regulate bill-boards along the 41,000-mile superhighway network — the interstate system.

The House version of the legislation, passed two weeks ago, is much less broad than the Senate bill.

It does not contain any of the increased or speeded-up allotments of the Senate bill, and does not deal with billboards.

The Senate measure, with Sen. Gore (D-Tenn) as chief sponsor, would make available $1,220,000,000 more in federal-state money for the interstate system this year than can be allotted under present law.

It also sets up a special 400-million-dollar fund for extra grants to the states for the other road systems — the primary, farm-to-market and urban.

The states would have to match these on a 70-30 basis instead of the usual 50-50, so they would have to put up 170 million. They would be authorized to borrow 115 million of this from Washington.

Learns He Can't Rush Things at 8 —the Hard Way

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—An 8-year-old learned a boy just has to grow up for some things.

Juvenile officer Phillip York explained:

The boy found a half-filled wine bottle and drank it.

Then he found a half-smoked cigar and smoked it.

He walked into a variety store, grabbed a can of small change and started to run.

Then everything, including the store manager, caught up with him.

He got awfully, awfully sick.

Air Force Eyes Project to Put Man in Space

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force is studying industry proposals for a soaring satellite to be capable of carrying a man through space and returning him safely to earth.

The long-range project has been named "Dyna-Soar," from the words "dynamic soaring." Lt. Gen. Donald L. Putt, deputy chief of staff for Air Force development, told about it before a House Appropriations subcommittee.

The Air Force did not name the firms submitting proposals for the project.

The Dyna-Soar ship would be launched in the manner of satellites. By varying the power of the original boost from the earth's surface, the velocity could be increased or decreased. Built-in controls would enable the pilot of the vehicle to make from one to several orbits of the earth before completing his mission.

Gen. Putt said that the objective of the Dyna-Soar program was to develop a "military weapon system," capable of operating both as a high-altitude aircraft and as a manned orbital weapon.

Blossoms Hibernating

AP Facsimile

FASHION NOTE — Looking more radiant than the expected cherry blossoms is Mamie Eisenhower in a new hat — a towering turban of red peony petals. Mrs. Eisenhower was on hand at a reception for the princesses of the National Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington Thursday. There's one drawback to the whole affair — no cherry blossoms. Lovely state princesses are dancing bravely about. High school bands are contesting (indoors). Society pages are crammed with news of special festivities. The blossoms are usually in glorious bloom during this week of the year. But nature has taken a dim view of recent rain and cold and kept the blossoms, like the bands, indoors.

Double Crash in Texas Kills Leonard Lynam

All Aboard Perish as Cargo Aircraft Clips Globemaster's Wing

A former Pontiac man and 17 other servicemen were killed yesterday when two Air Force planes collided and fell in flames near Bridgeport, Tex.

The Air Force today released the names of nine of the victims, including that of T. Sgt. Leonard A. Lynam, identified as the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight B. Lynam, 734 First Ave.

Lynam, 28, was stationed at Hill Air Force Base, Salt Lake City, Utah. He lived in a Salt Lake City suburb, Layton, with his wife, Catherine, and one child.

The crash occurred when a huge C124 Globemaster from the Utah base was clipped in the wing by a C119 cargo plane from Carswell Air Force Base, which is located at Fort Worth, 45 miles southeast of Bridgeport.

All the occupants of both planes were killed.

Witnesses said both aircraft were flying unusually low — approximately 1,000 feet above the ground, apparently seeking better visibility and safety by dipping beneath an overcast.

SEEMS TO EXPLODE

The C119 plunged straight to the earth, but the Globemaster continued on and then suddenly burst into pieces, as if an explosion had occurred, witnesses said.

It then crashed to the ground, burning fiercely. Debris was spread over a 1½-mile area of sparsely settled scrub country.

Lynam had been a plane engineer aboard the Globemaster.

The big transport had been eastbound from Kelley Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., where it had picked up five passengers, toward Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma City.

It carried a crew of 10, including Lynam, who had been in the Air Force 10 years.

The C119, carried a crew of three. It was en route from Sheppard Air Force Base, Wichita Falls, Tex., to Carswell AFB.

NAMES WITHHELD

Officers at Hill and Carswell said the names of the other victims were not immediately available. The next of kin have been informed their husbands or sons are officially missing.

Pontiac Closing for One Week

Shut-Down to Permit Change on Operating Schedules Here

Pontiac Motor Division will close down car assembly and a majority of its manufacturing operations for one week starting next Monday, March 31, the division announced today.

The shut-down will permit an adjustment of operating schedules.

The corporation announced yesterday that five General Motors assembly plants in widely scattered sections of the nation will be closed for one week starting Monday. The plants assemble Buicks, Oldsmobiles and Pontiacs.

These shutdowns, a company spokesman said, also will be to permit an adjustment of operating schedules.

Judge Reduces Records Request

Pontiac General Hospital has won another round in its battle with Dr. Neil H. Sullenberger over hospital records.

Circuit Judge Clark J. Adams yesterday radically trimmed down a subpoena which hospital representatives claimed would force them to produce "about 35,000 records" in court next month during trial of the ousted staff surgeon's suit for $250,000 damages and reinstatement.

Judge Adams ruled the hospital, through its director Carl I. Flath, must produce only those records pertaining to Dr. Sullenberger's cases.

He granted the physician's attorney, Harry N. Dell, permission to examine records involving other doctors and their surgical operations at the hospital during the five-year period from 1953-1957, when Dr. Sullenberger was a member of the staff.

Saying that the hospital's main charge against Dr. Sullenberger was that he allegedly failed to live up to accepted medical standards, Dell said he needed these records to determine what the standards were.

The attorney had asked, in part, for all records concerning 10 major operations in which Dr. Sullenberger has specialized and all records concerning the 10 "most active" doctors at the hospital.

He also demanded records of all cases of death following surgery during the same five-year period.

Dell said the records would be used in cross-examinging expert witnesses whom the hospital is prepared to summon for testimony on accepted medical standards.

Judge Adams struck these demands from Dr. Sullenberger's subpoena against Flath.

"The records would be burdensome and immaterial," he said. "There's no point in moving the hospital's record department into the courtroom."

Judge Adams told Dell he could have his own experts examine the records of other cases and other physicians as a basis for possible testimony in rebuttal to the hospital's experts.

The judge had previously ruled that Dr. Sullenberger could have access to the hospital's medical, but not to special documents it has during the trial.

The trial is scheduled for April 8. Although Judge Adams yesterday bowed out as trial judge at Dr. Sullenberger's request, he will continue to preside over pre-trial hearing until the case is assigned to a new judge.

Dr. Sullenberger had requested that an outside judge hear the case. In reply to the suit, which charges Dr. Sullenberger's suspension last November was brought about by a "ruling clique" of hospital doctors, Flath alleged that Dr. Sullenberger had violated professional standards in 25 cases, in six of which the patient died, he said.

Additional Prize Winners Listed in GM Contest

A total of 207 Pontiac area residents were announced last night in Detroit as winners of lesser prizes in General Motors Golden Milestone letter-writing contests.

The winners, 104 from Pontiac Motor Division and 103 from Truck & Coach Division, will each receive an award certificate designating a point total.

The individual may then pick his prize from a catalog with a point value equal to that he has won.

C. W. Goodwin, 2374 Silver Lake Rd., Waterford Township, engineering employe at Pontiac Motor, and G. L. Conibear, of 501 E. Pike St., plating plant worker, were the top Pontiac point-getters. Conibear donated his award to the Pontiac Boys Club.

SCHEDULES NOMINATIONS

He said a nominating convention is being scheduled for next month and a general election in May, although the exact dates have not been fixed.

The election procedures will follow those set up in the international's constitution, Holmes added.

The local's charter was lifted after former president Daniel J. Keating and Louis C. Linteau, former business agent, were accused of a $100,000 shakedown of Detroit area contractors. Both were later convicted, and Hoffa was appointed trustee over the local by Dave Beck, international president at that time.

Since then, there have been repeated efforts within the local to end the trusteeship.

These took the form of a law suit in 1954, picketing last spring, and anti-Hoffa charges during this winter's convention.

Hoffa also has taken steps to hand back the reigns to numerous other locals, which he had taken over during his rise to the top of the union.

The Day in Birmingham

C. of C. Attempting to Set One Store-Opening Time

BIRMINGHAM — Birmingham Chamber of Commerce will attempt to set a uniform opening time for stores in Birmingham, Charles Mortensen, chamber secretary, announced.

The chamber has received criticism from shoppers who say local stores open their doors anywhere from 8 to 9:30 in the morning.

A survey of store owners to see what can be done about regulating the opening time will be made by the retail committee of the chamber.

Merchants also are being asked to cooperate in every way possible to help make the Arts Festival, May 17-25, a success.

Sponsored by the Bloomfield Art Association, the festival is expected to attract many visitors to the city.

Featured artists at the Wednesday meeting of the Hammond Organ Club will be children of members. The program will be held at 8 p.m. in Grinnells.

On the program will be Stephen Allen, son of Mrs. Gilbert Allen; Diane Chambeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chambeau; Karen and Barbara Facor, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Facor, and Lenore Flor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Flor.

Floyd Bunt will accompany his four children, Susie, Floyd, Teddy and Terry, who will play the violin, saxophone, trumpet and bass viol.

A special feature will be an organ solo by Claudia Combs, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Combs. She will be making her second appearance before the club.

Flor, club president, said the executive committee will consider names of prospective members at this meeting. He also announced that guests are welcome.

Beginning April 9, the Women's Society of Christian Service of Embury Methodist Church, Birmingham, will begin a one-month study on Japan. Mrs. Wilton Norris, district secretary of supply, will lead the study based on the book "Cross and Crisis in Japan."

Classes will be held each Wednesday from 1:30 to 3 p.m. A nursery will be provided.

April 9 has been designated for the door-to-door ticket sale for the annual theater party sponsored by the Uniformed Firemen's Association of Birmingham.

Another April fund drive will be conducted by the Birmingham Lions Club, which will sell white candy canes April 26.

Porceeds will go toward assisting persons with defective vision and helping the Leader Dogs for the Blind School in Rochester.

The current status of the civil rights program will be discussed at a public forum sponsored by the Democratic Club of Birmingham. The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. April 8 in Birmingham Community House.

Speakers will be Ernest Goodman, Detroit civil rights attorney; Wayne County Circuit Judge Wade McCree, and Wesley Maurer, professor of journalism at the University of Michigan.

Members of Pontiac's Pythian Temple will be guests of Birmingham Temple 94 Tuesday evening. The visitors will perform the staff ritualistic work for a class of candidates. Also visiting the local group will be Lafayette Temple members from Detroit.

Know the Weather

By E. H. SIMS

What is the connection between dew on the ground and the dewpoint. Does dew form on the ground when the dewpoint is reached?

The dewpoint is that temperature at which the air would condense or precipitate. It is that temperature, lower than the actual temperature of the air, at which the moisture in the air would become visible or precipitate.

Thus there is no direct connection between dew on the ground and the dewpoint. As we have learned, dew on the ground forms when earthly objects cool the air to the dewpoint, but above the surface of the air, where physical objects do not come into contact with the warmer air, the temperature must reach the dewpoint to cause visible moisture or precipitation.

We can have dew on the ground, then, when the dewpoint is many degrees below the actual temperature of the air.

MESC Office to Stay Open Tomorrow

To ease the load on the Pontiac office of the Michigan Employment Security Commission, the office will be open tomorrow to handle certain workers who were laid off at Pontiac Motors yesterday or today.

Paul Kimball, manager, said the office, at 142 Wayne St., will be open tomorrow from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

He urged laid-off Pontiac Motors employes in the following three plants to file unemployment claims tomorrow: Foundry Plant 6, Sheet Metal Plant 7 and Assembly Plant 8.

City Woman Fourth in GM Letter Contest

entered the Christmas tree lighting contest sponsored by the Pontiac Junior Chamber of Commerce. They won first prize for the west side of the city.

Mrs. Newman was graduated from St. Michael High School and the Pontiac Business Institute. She has been employed by GM since 1943.

At present she is driving a 1953 Chevrolet. She was the only contestant to win a Cadillac.

The letters, of unlimited length, were to be written on "What 50 years of progress means to me."

Top prize in the contest, a $35,000 home plus $42,750 to pay taxes, went to Miss Robert Wight, 43, of Hinsdale, Ill., a secretary-stenographer.

Arthur R. Kalder, 59, a plant protection patrolman at Cadillac Motor Car Division in Detroit, won second place. This award was $15,000 in GM common stocks plus $6,175 cash to help pay taxes.

Kenneth Murry, 43, of Taylor Center won $10,000 in GM common stock plus $3,350 to help taxes for third prize.

Each of the 45 top winners who attended the banquet with their family and friends knew they had won one of the grand prizes, but none knew which position their letter had placed until their names were announced by GM President Curtice.

All GM employes in the United States, except for supervisory and certain salaried employes, were eligible to enter the contest.

Dry Weather Prevails After Long Drenching

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Generally dry and cool weather prevailed in most of the country today.

The wet weather which has plagued much of the Eastern part of the country for a week appeared ended as storms headed across the north Atlantic. Only a few areas reported light rain or drizzle but skies were cloudy in most sections from the Great Lakes region southward into the Ohio Valley and Tennessee and eastward to the Atlantic Coast.

Precipitation in the West also appeared diminishing in amounts although light rain or snow fell across wide areas.

Rocket Carries Michigan Youth Aloft in Cellar

DETROIT (UP) — A 14-year-old Michigan youth has made what might well have been the world's first manned rocket flight.

The launching pad was the basement of a buddy's home. The flight zoomed to only 3 feet—"and it hurt like anything."

John Palmer Jr. was the surprised passenger. He and Edward Gardner, 15, were assembling last night the first stage of what was intended as a multi-stage rocket.

Palmer was pouring gunpowder into a 3-foot aluminum pipe. At the closed end of the pipe a nail "firing pin" was in place. Palmer tilted the pipe so it would hold more powder. Suddenly the thing went off—and up. Palmer told police he grabbed it "instinctively."

Prefers Shapely Duds—Sacks are for Spuds!

WASHINGTON, N. J. (UP)—When the New Jersey Power & Light Co. asked its women office employes if they'd choose a sack dress for Easter, typist-clerk Dolly Rush replied:

"When I am in my Easter duds
No sack dress will you see.
Sacks look better filled with spuds
Than they do filled with me."

City's Annual Report Mailed to Residents

Copies of Pontiac's 1957 annual report were being mailed today to almost 20,000 Pontiac residents.

Dedicated to Pontiac Motor Division on its fiftieth anniversary, an additional 2,000 copies were to be distributed to schools, churches and civic, social and fraternal organizations.

The 22-page report contains two new features this year. It takes a look at the past and lists major accomplishments over the past five years, and glances ahead for a preview of what could lie in store for Pontiac in the future.

COSTS $2,512

Costing $2,512, it was prepared by the city's administrative staff, including Robert A. Stierer, assistant city manager; Henry C. Smith, city planner; Gus Mathes, planning technician, and Mrs. Charles Cook, secretary to the city manager.

The dedication reads in part:

"As the City's largest employer and largest taxpayer, the Pontiac Motor Division has contributed immensely to our growth.

"But even more important, as the only automobile named after its place of manufacture, Pontiac as a car has made Pontiac as a city known throughout the world as the home of fine cars.

"Both Pontiacs have an ever sounder, brighter future."

Calling the period 1953 to 1957 "years of progress," the report cites new public buildings, neighborhood improvements, airport expansion and municipal parking as examples of Pontiac's "impressive record of achievement."

It goes on to discuss such future problems as water, sewage treatment, drains, fringe area, urban renewal, public buildings and parks.

The city is using its list of water customers as the basis for distributing the report through the mails, Stierer said.

Homeownership Tied to Rising Pay Trend

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve System reports that American consumers with incomes of $5,000 and over now own more than half of all the nonfarm homes in the country.

The comparable ratio of homeownership was less than a third in 1949, when a much smaller proportion of the nation's spending units had a $5,000-a-year income.

Old Churches Restored

NARVIK, Norway — The 15 oldest churches in northern Norway ate to be completely restored under the direction of the State antiquary. Some of the edifices date from the 11th Century.

Drunks Involved in Half of Arrests

NEW YORK (AP)—About half the arrests made in this country are for alcoholism, New York's Chief Magistrate John M. Murtagh said today. He said arrests for all reasons total around two million annually.

But as far as the homeless drunk on the street is concerned, Murtagh said, hauling him into court isn't the answer. It is a public health problem, he said.

Speaking at the annual conference of the National Council on Alcoholism, Murtagh said: "In my opinion, there is no moral justification for the arrest of these people. While I am happy that there are so few arrests in New York, I wish there were fewer."

One reason for the small number of such arrests here is that most of the homeless drunks hang out in the East Side Bowery section, he said. In this home of the down-and-out, they don't particularly bother any one by passing out in convenient doorways.

Canadian Travel Bureau
Receives Odd Queries

OTTAWA (AP) — With warmer weather just around the corner, tourists are beginning to stir and the Canadian Travel Bureau is beginning to get some odd mail.

An English couple wanted assurance there were reputable nudist camps at which they could stay, or they would not visit Canada.

Two young men asked for a holiday spot with good fishing and near college girls.

A prisoner wanted travel folders—he was going to visit Canada when he got out.

Two young U. S. girls had heard of a place called "Neck of the Woods" and asked directions how to get there, because it sounded romantic.

Another American wanted to know where he could buy fresh-caught fish. He wanted to show them to his wife on returning from a "fishing trip," one really to be spent at the race tracks.

This year Canada is spending $1,360,000 on tourist advertising, almost all in the United States. This is $100,000 more than it spent last year.

Tourists spent 362 million dollars in Canada last year, a record figure. Even so, Canadians spent more abroad, for the seventh consecutive year, than tourists spent in Canada. The deficit was 161 million dollars.

The bureau sees indications that the tourist business in Canada will be good in 1958, perhaps the best ever.

In 1957 there were a record 28 million border crossings from the United States. Americans spent 328 million dollars in Canada.

Travel is the country's third-ranking "export" commodity, after the 718 million for newsprint exports and 13 million for wheat.

She Serves 50th Term

Canada May Probe U.S. Restrictions

WINNIPEG (AP)—Canada's Trade Minister Gordon Churchill says the government will make a thorough investigation into U. S. restrictions on Canadian subsidiary companies' shipments to Red China.

Canada has been selling goods to Red China and the matter will be looked into "as soon as the election (next Monday) is over—providing we win," he said.

"It affects our trade and we don't know how far-reaching these laws are."

Churchill commented on the curbs in an interview.

George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers Union, said last week Ford Motor Co. of Canada could have sold 1,000 cars to China but for U. S. regulations that require Canadian subsidiaries of U. S. firms to obtain a U. S. export license for such shipments.

Medical scientist William Harvey in 1628 was the first to explain the system of circulation of the blood.

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — The days of the French Revolution were vividly brought to life on television last night when Show of the Month presented "A Tale of Two Cities" by Charles Dickens on CBS-TV.

Director Robert Mulligan displayed remarkable constructive art in bringing a novel of such large scope to the small home screen. It was one of the memorable shows of this TV season.

In "A Tale of Two Cities" Dickens deliberately departed from his customary emphasis on character to tell a story of historical background with numerous incidents and big scenes. But an excellent television adaptation by Michael Dyne enabled a large cast to develop some fine characterizations.

There were outstanding performances by James Donald as Sydney Carton, Eric Portman as Dr. Manette, Rosemary Harris as Lucie Manette, Agnes Moorehead as Madame Defarge, Walter Fitzgerald as Jarvis Lorry and Gracie Fields as Miss Pross.

The theme of a group of people caught up in an 18th century revolution might have failed to hold a 20th century audience if the terror of the Revolution had not been splashed so vividly on the television screen.

Gets Life for Slaying Indiana Trooper

SCOTTSBURG, Ind. (AP) — Victor W. Whitley, burly 26-year-old Texan accused in the slaying of a Michigan state policeman, has been sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying of an Indiana state trooper.

Special Judge Paul J. Tegart of Floyd County Circuit Court passed sentence on Whitley yesterday after he pleaded guilty in the fatal shooting of Trooper William Kellems, 27, last Sept. 30.

Whitley, of Granger, Tex., was captured in a thicket near Vernon, Ind., Oct. 1 at the end of a two-state manhunt. Killed in the chase was Whitley's companion, Ralph W. Taylor, 36, of Enova, W. Va.

Tied-Up Doctor Freed to Give Late Lecture

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)— Dr. G. Watson James III explained his tardiness at a lecture with the customary "sorry I was tied up." He was, too.

Just a little bit earlier he obliged when his 5-year-old son, Billy, said, "hold out your hands and close your eyes." He found himself wearing a pair of rusty handcuffs Billy had found in the attic. But Billy hadn't found any key. Dr. James ate supper wearing the cuffs, then got them cut off at a filling station before the lecture.

Party at Theater Will Reward City's 'Junior Fire Inspectors'

Only by flashing a silver badge bearing the inscription "Junior Fire Inspector—Pontiac" will you be able to get into a downtown Pontiac theater tomorrow morning.

The badges are possessed by 1,268 pleased graduates of the city's first sixth-grade fire inspection course and a theater party is one of their rewards.

Youngsters who have the badges are eligible to attend the party, beginning at 10 a.m. at the Eagle Theater.

There's another event planned for them later—a picnic May 24 at the John F. Ivory farm in Commerce Township.

Right now, though, possession of that hard-earned shield of silver seems to be reward enough for the boys and girls who spent the past four months studying fire prevention and applying what they learned at home.

"The kids have every right to be proud of their badges," said Fire Marshal Charles E. Metz, who administered the program.

Sponsored primarily by the fire prevention committee of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce, the course was "a tough one," Metz said, and its success means that "hundreds of Pontiac homes are safer now than before."

When the project began last December, the first task for the youngsters was to clip out and paste up newspaper items on fires for one month.

"This got them acquainted with some of the common causes of home fires and how devastating some home fires can be," Metz explained.

After this preview, the youngsters studied a booklet on fire prevention, passed a test on its contents, and then conducted an inspection of their own homes with their parents.

"If they found any fire hazard, they had to note it and then take steps to remove it," Metz said.

"Not only have many actual fire hazards been eliminated, but the children and their parents are now thoroughly aware of how dangerous a home fire can be," Metz said.

Helping out the chamber of commerce on the program were the Pontiac Board of Education, printing classes at Pontiac Central High School, Pontiac Motor Division, the Pontiac Manufacturers Assn. and The Pontiac Press.

Contributing to the badges that the children wear so proudly were GMC Truck & Coach Division, American Forging & Socket Co. and the Art Metal Platers company.

Metz thanked the many organizations that made this year's program possible and added there were sufficient supplies still on hand to run the program again next year.

He was aided in the project by his assistant, Allen Tunny.

Conference Set for April 2-6

As the probe entered its second day it was revealed that the Senate Rackets Committee is investigating the division and its insurance business.

Soviet Decision Hits U.S. Hard

WASHINGTON (INS)—U. S. officials were appalled today at the prospect of Russia announcing a unilateral decision to halt nuclear tests.

The Russian bombshell reportedly will be exploded by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in a speech scheduled before the Soviet Supreme Presidium Saturday.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan told the House of Commons that Russia can be expected to undertake a ban on nuclear testing without agreement with the West.

The spectacular Russian decision was anticipated by western officials as the first shot to be fired in a gigantic new Soviet "peace offensive"—aimed at forcing the West into a summit meeting—following the assumption by Nikita S. Khrushchev of power as Soviet premier.

U. S. officials admitted frankly that the action would have a "terrific propganda" impact on the world, especially such nations as Japan and uncommitted neutrals including India who for a long time have been demanding that both the United States and Russia stop all tests of nuclear weapons.

Officials said they know of no effective way in which the United States could combat the effect except to beat the Kremlin to the punch by renouncing further American nuclear tests.

They admitted that this is not in the cards.

While Russia has just completed the largest series of nuclear tests it has ever undertaken, the United States has a new test series scheduled for this spring and summer at the Eniwetok nuclear proving ground in the Pacific.

President Eisenhower only Wednesday announced that a U. N. Committee of 15 nations, including Russia, will be invited to witness the test explosion of a new "clean" hydrogen bomb, in which deadly radioactive fallout has been reduced to a minimum.

Collision Near Chelsea Brings Death to Three

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Three persons were injured fatally last night in a two-car collision on a county road two miles north of nearby Chelsea.

Sheriff's deputies said the dead were Clarence R. Puush, 31, of Dexter, Robert Boughton, 37, of Green Lake, and Boughton's wife, Pansie, about 35.

The Boughton's 4-year-old daughter Mary was taken to St. Joseph minor injuries.

Deputies said a car driven by Push, who was alone, passed another vehicle at a high speed and collided with the Boughton car.

Second House Fire Fatal for Woman

WHITE CLOUD (AP) — A woman who was away when fire burned her rural home last Feb. 9, died today in a fire which destroyed her new home in White Cloud. Her husband, also away Feb. 9, escaped but suffered some burns.

The victim was Mrs. Helen Burkholder, 20, who lived with her husband Howard in a home at the intersection of M-20 and M-37 here.

Authorities were unable to determine immediately what caused the fire, but said defective wiring was suspected.

Firemen said the husband, suffering burns of undetermined extent, was in the yard of the home toway when they arrived at 4:15 a.m. He told them his wife was inside. Smoke, firemen said, then was coming from all windows.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Debra Paget's 10-week marriage is on shaky ground, says the actress.

Miss Paget, 23, and singer David Street, 37, were married a few days after he and his fourth wife, actress Sharon Lee, were divorced. It was Miss Paget's first marriage.

"David and I are tiffing," Miss Paget said. "We may work this out nicely and we may not."

Fireman, Neighbor Save 4 Tots in Detroit Blaze

DETROIT (INS) — A fireman and a neighbor woman were credited yesterday with saving the lives of four small children when fire swept a dwelling at 2810 Trumbull in Detroit.

Mrs. Doris Moore, 25, and her children, William Jr., 4; Kenneth, 2; Michael, 19 months, and Roger, 9 months, were treated at Receiving Hospital.

Mrs. Moore suffered smoke inhalation and severe hand cuts when she smashed a window in a futile attempt to reach her children.

The neighbor woman, Mrs. Pauline Bhman, rescued Michael and fireman Thomas Barrett, 25, saved the other children.

Moore Suggests CCC Type Plan

Judge ARTHUR E. MOORE'S recent proposal for rehabilitation camps for needy juveniles in Oakland County is a sound program that deserves solid support.

The plan would be to operate the camps similarly to the old Civilian Conservation Corps camps. County enforcement officials attending the meeting agreed to use the County's several thousand acres of woods, camps and parks for the project.

Judge MOORE pointed out that the program would be twofold in that it would not only serve boys that had been in trouble, but also youths who cannot get work and need assistance before getting off on the wrong track.

With the current slackening of jobs a program such as this is of great value at the present time. With the right leadership, and a day-to-day schedule of work, a number of our youths can be steered through these early formative years.

Too much free time and the lack of regular routine work is the basis for a good deal of the trouble youths are getting into today. Work has never hurt anyone and a constructive program such as this would do much to eliminate many of the present juvenile problems.

A program similar to this has been operating successfully at Camp Oakland for some little time under the direction of Judge MOORE. With this past experience, it is only reasonable to believe that this new program if put into effect, would be a great benefit to Oakland County.

Bourguiba Chooses to Stay With West

Tunisia's President BOURGUIBA has changed his mind about his "ultimatum" to the United States and Britain to choose between his country and France by March 20.

On that day, the second anniversary of Tunisia's independence from France, he announced to the Constituent Assembly that "we have chosen the West and we will stay with the West to close the gates of Hell." Earlier, perhaps for political reasons, he had threatened to break with the Western Allies and turn "toward the Communist bloc or other countries" because of France's bombing of a Tunisian village.

President Bourguiba thanked Mediators Robert Murphy, representing the United States, and Harold Beeley of Great Britain for their good offices in paving the way for a settlement of the French-Tunisian dispute. France has agreed to withdraw all troops from Tunisia with the exception of the naval port of Bizerte. Air bases will be controlled by a joint commission. However, Bourguiba has refused to accept a mixed patrol of the Tunisian-Algerian border.

Some political parties in France oppose any concession and, of course, threaten to defeat Premier GAILLARD'S government. Arab nationalists have joined in the cry to oust the French from North Africa.

Despite this, indications are that the problem is moving toward solution through President BOURGUIBA'S gradualist policy, which served to win independence for his own country, and not through ultimatum or government upsets.

Freedom of Information Bill Watered by House

Why is the State House of Representatives attempting to operate under a cloak of secrecy?

Just recently the Michigan Senate passed a right-to-know bill which would have required open sessions of all public agencies. It would have prevented our elected officials from conducting the public's business behind closed doors.

When the bill reached the House floor it was so watered down that most of what the Senators were trying to accomplish was killed.

It would seem that what was good for one body of elected officials would serve equally well for the other.

The Man About Town

Here Are Answers

So Score Yourself; See What You Know of County

Home geography: A study that often is sadly neglected.

Here are the answers to the 25 questions about Oakland County, recently published in this column. If you scored 80 per cent on them, you're far above the average. Here they are:

No Pontiac street with the same name runs entirely across the city. Waterford Hill is in Independence Township. Pontiac is our only city, village or township with an Indian name. Holly suggests Christmas. Royal Oak Township was named for a tree.

Waterford Township was named for its numerous lakes. West Bloomfield Township has the greatest area of water. Keego Harbor was named for a big fish. Sylvan and Walled Lake cities are named for their lakes. Orchard, Angelus, Orion and Wolverine Lake villages are named for their lakes.

Springfield Township was named for its natural water supply. Avon is mindful of Skapespeare. Hazel Park was named for its hazel brush. Troy was our leading agricultural township 50 years ago. Oxford was named for ox teams and a ford on low ground.

Bloomfield, West Bloomfield and Southfield were named for their wildflowers. Ferndale was named for its ferns. White Lake Township got its name from the lake of that name. Cass and Elizabeth Lakes were named in honor of Lewis Cass and his wife.

Orchard Lake has a name that indicates fruit production. The name of Highland Township indicates its high elevation. Novi Township's name look like the number 6 (No.VI). Rose Township was named for a flower. Sixty years ago Royal Oak had the most farming land of any of our townships, but the subdividing work had commenced, and much of it was not cultivated—it now has the least farming land among the 25 townships Well, how did you score?

It sure is quite fitting and appropriate that a new Waterford church be called

"Our Lady of the Lakes."

Somebody who signs the name

"Close Bible Reader"

is trying to make a monkey out of me. They suggest that this column offer a prize to the first person who submits the name of Lot's wife. My office associate, who knows her Bible, and whom I'll call tells me that the Bible does not mention her name. Do you find it there?

"Real Bible Reader,"

Continuing my observations on communities in the Pontiac area, I'm especially impressed with

Heluva Way to Run a Railroad

David Lawrence Says:

Sales Methods Need Reappraisal

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower may have started something with his pointed remarks about the need for "better salesmanship" as a means of improving the business situation.

"I believe," he said to his press conference this week, "that there is a great field for expansion of business by better salesmanship on the part of business concerns . . . I believe we have got to offer things in a better packager way — we're got to do better advertising . . .

LAWRENCE

Three times Mr. Eisenhower used the word "better." The President in emphasizing salesmanship, packaging and advertising, touched on fields in which America has usually excelled. His appeal for better effort now will tend to bring about a re-examination of the effectiveness of present methods.

The automobile industry, for example, is very much in the headlines because it has suffered a drop in sales. Yet the other day a survey by some research organizations showed that in the year 1957 only one out of every four persons who bought a new car had been contacted by a salesman or by a dealer before coming to a showroom.

When products are scarce or in high demand, it is natural for the customer to be seeking out the seller, but it's the other way around when business turns downward and there is a surplus of the product for sale.

It has often been stated by the experts in merchandising that an article which sells for $100 or more, for example, isn't usually sold directly by circular mail and that the purpose of sales letters or keyed advertisements is to get "leads" for the salesman to follow up.

Maybe the whole theory of automobile selling is due for a change and more effort will have to be made hereafter to locate the "prospects" so that salesmen will, when invited, bring the new car around to be seen or ridden in by the family that thinks it wants to buy one.

Certainly the idea that, when sales began to slump, it's the time to stop spending money to make sales is illogical. Yet there are many businesses which curtail their selling efforts and actually lay off salesmen when the sales curve starts downward.

It isn't the government's function to advise businessmen how to run their companies, but it is significant that a lot is being said here in governmental conferences with businessmen about the importance of considering steps that business itself might take to stimulate sales.

The automobile industry lately has been the subject of discussion in a Congressional committee as to the present methods of informing the public about prices. The impression prevails in many quarters that there is a lack of uniformity in price tags.

Some of this naturally is due to the willingness of dealers here and there to forego a portion of their commissions in order to induce sales or to maintain flexible trade-in allowances on used cars.

But the latitude in price reduction is limited, and that's why there is pressure now in Congress to repeal excise taxes.

This is a knotty question for the government to decide, because anyone who can pay more than $1,000 for any article certainly should not object to the payment of the small amount of sales taxes. After all, the owner of a car might be expected to pay something more to the government for the building of new roads and the maintenance of existing highways than is covered by gasoline taxes.

The administration is reluctant to see excise taxes on automobiles removed altogether, and it may be that a smaller amount will be agreed upon in Congress as a compromise. There is hope here that some way may be found by the sellers to reduce auto prices.

But with the threat of increased wage demands by the auto workers union, there is little prospect of seeing present costs cut down.

Meanwhile, Michigan itself has taken the initiative in a nationwide campaign to stimulate auto sales. Parades and a display of selected bargains are being planned with the slogan "you auto buy now."

The dealers and manufacturers say people have the money to buy, but need to be urged or reminded of what the new cars can do for them. This is perhaps a significant beginning of what the President has in mind — effective salesmanship.

Dr. William Brady Says:

How Can Medic Diagnose Case of Chronic Arthritis?

I just can't understand, and I don't believe aany recognized medical authority can explain what, if anything, a diagnois of chronic arthritis means, or how a doctor can justify the practice of giving the poor geek with "arthritis" one miracle medicine after another which purports to be a remedy.

DR. BRADY

Saying things like this, as I am well aware, makes me unpopular with all concerned — I'm afraid some victims of the "arthritis" do not like me very well either.

Aside from the effects of injury, sprain, or strain of joints, there are practically only two kinds of chronic joint disability (trouble lasting a year or more):

First and by far most prevalent chronic joint disability is what I call rheumatiz (not rheumatism), as described in the pamphlet Calcium and Rheumatiz, for which send me in care of this paper a stamped envelope bearing your address.

Rheumatiz is physical degeneration of joint tissues due to many years of malnutrition — the national malnutrition — inadequate daily intake of Ca, D, and B complex. Any inflammation that may occur at any stage of the rheumatiz is incidental and constitutes no part of the pathological process in or about the joint or joints involved.

In comparatively rare instances, joint tissues by the specific germ of Brucellosis, typhoid fever, tuberculosis, or other specific infectious disease.

There are the only instances of chronic or long lasting joint disability where inflammation is part of the process, and hence the name "arthritis" is applicable.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

"Our family has received so many benefits . . . particularly for Allergy . . ." (Mrs. W. L.)

Answer — Thank you. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet Relief for Allergy. To reduce or perhaps abolish allergic sensitivity you should follow a high calcium diet, supplemented with calcium capsules or wafers.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Lawyer Talks Her Out of Divorce

Hilda was on the verge of a divorce. Then her lawyer talked to her like a Dutch uncle. She grew angry but took the sex booklet home and studied it. Now her marriage is happier than ever before and her children are no longer threatened with a broken home. Your newspaper indirectly salvaged Hilda's marriage, as shown below.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case X-365: Hilda H., aged 29, has been married 10 years.

DR. CRANE

"Dr. Crane, I was on the verge of a divorce," she began. "In fact, I had already consulted my attorney.

"For I felt my husband was selfish and possessed of an abnormal erotic urge.

"But my attorney gave me no encouragement for my divorce. He had a stack of your 'Marriage Tests' on his desk, plus your booklet 'Sex Problems in Marriage.'

"So he insisted that I rate my husband and then myself on the 'Marriage Tests.'

"Well, my husband came out superior! And I was only average by my own scoring. So the attorney said I needed to widen my mental outlook, for I had a far better husband than I had imagined.

"Then he told me to take the booklet 'Sex Problems in Marriage,' and read it after I got home.

"I felt rather angry at him, but I took the booklet and did as he suggested. Then I let my husband read it. And now I must admit that I am happier than I have ever been in my previous 10 years of marriage.

"Naturally, I never went any further with my divorce proceedings. And the attorney told me that he stops about 85 per cent of divorces by this same method."

LAWYERS MERIT COMPLIMENTS

Beginning about 1952, I noticed a nationwide trend on the part of lawyers to use the booklets via this newpaper column in dealing with clients.

They order them in quantity for use with feuding couples. In fact, one of the Carolina Divorce Court Judges, ordered 500 copies of the tests and booklets named above, plus the "Tests for Parents."

Then he commanded the divorce litigants to take them home and apply them, while the Judge deferred the proceedings till a later date.

Lawyers often can wield a great influence on happy marriage by their wide experience and shrewd counsel on marital matters.

In fact, in the past few years my colleagues in the American Medical Association have likewise begun to prescribe these booklets for their patients.

Thus I receive in the mail official medical prescriptions on which the local doctors have written "One copy of Dr. Crane's booklet on 'Sex Problems in Marriage.'"

Or they will name other relevant booklets that meet the needs of their patients.

For these booklets are a nonprofit educational service. I don't get a penny in royalty from any of them and the newspapers likewise do not make a cent from them.

Furthermore, busy modern physicians don't have the time to give personal tutoring to every patient on all the subjects already covered fully in these booklets.

So they meet a great educational need for all concerned, for the doctor can simply refer his patients to these newspaper booklets dealing with medico-psychological difficulties.

with their young people or in their Marriage Counseling.

Some clergymen will thus get 500 to 1,000 copies of "Tests for Mothers," and pass them around to all women in the congregation when they deliver their Mother's Day sermon in May.

Then they will follow-up with the "Tests for Fathers" on Father's Day in June.

So be grateful you have a fine newspaper which offers such helpful cooperation to all the moral and educational leaders of your area.

Says Orchard Lake Uses Speed Trap

Are legalized speed traps morally enforceable? Aroused public opinion can overcome technicalities of the law when such law is employed for revenue purposes through speed traps in small communities.

March 10 I was stopped by Orchard Lake police on route 218, Pontiac Trail, and given a speed ticket for doing 55 in a 35-mile zone. I'm a traveling man and this was my first speeding ticket in two and a half years I've had a Michigan license. During this time I've traveled over 50,000 miles in Michigan.

Village limits extend two miles west on 218 from Orchard Lake proper, but the last 35 m.p.h. sign is only a mile from Orchard Lake. The last mile of that speed zone going west on 218 has no speed signs.

Michigan Manual of Uniform Traffic Control Devices states "speed signs shall be installed at approximately half-mile intervals within any zone of a given speed to confirm the speed of the zone." This isn't observed in Orchard Lake. Tickets given for excessive speed on this mile of unposted highway lack moral justification because of deception used to trap unwary motorists.

Union Member Explains Change

Some weeks ago letters were written complaining that the Hotel and Restaurant Employes and Bartenders union was doing them no good and dues were wasted. At a recent meeting officers of the local said general meetings held in the past weren't attended by even 25 members and that number is needed to conduct an official meeting. Many missed because we weren't notified, but officers now plan to notify members by postcard. If meetings aren't announced and held, the International will be informed.

A union can't be stronger than members' willingness to unite and work for each other, and when you stand by a fellow worker, you'll make the union that much stronger in case you need help some day.

Complaints should be written, signed by the steward and brought to the monthly meeting. If you haven't a stewardess, elect one, because you can't cry out loud to the union until you do. We all pay dues, voluntary or otherwise, but no one gets his money's worth unless he takes part in union activities.

Can I dust off an old one? Eisenhower's decision to "wait a little longer" reminds me of the ancient crack that says you mustn't change canoes going over Niagara Falls.

Two More Offer Recession Cure

Let small business men end the current recession. Under the present tax structure, they must be cautious about improving places of business, because if they plough all profits back into the business, the government considers this cash earnings and income tax must be paid on it.

However, if he were allowed to subtract half his expenditures for improving his business the first year and depreciate the other half over a period of 10 years, we would have an entirely different picture. Then he couldn't afford not to improve. This would put people in all walks of life back to work. These people would buy new cars, home furnishings, etc. People working in plants supplying these items would be back on full time. Long range plans are fine, but it takes months for them to be felt.

If the government would announce tomorrow that the small businessman could deduct half of all new improvements from his income tax, electricians, plumbers, contractors, etc. would be swamped with orders the next day.

Bob Keathley

2008 Opdyke Rd.

Suppose a man is working three or four days a week. Let's put him to work five days. He gets paid the usual way for three or four days and the fifth day by a savings check that can be cashed at a clearing house set up by employers. This savings check can be used for special purchases that you do not buy every day, such as autos, new or old, TV sets, radios, washers, dryers, etc.

A man in the shop will earn from $16 to $30 a day. One extra day is something he didn't expect and will give him incentive to save for these articles. Sixteen dollars a day for 50 weeks is $800, $30 for 50 weeks is $1,500.

A man would then be buying something he is making for himself. This savings can be used for most anything except groceries.

Cohen Back in Court —With a Black Eye

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dapper Mickey Cohen is back in the courts again, this time sporting a very black eye.

The rotund gambler-turned-florist was arraigned yesterday on a complaint that he assaulted a 220-pound federal narcotics officer.

Howard Chappell, head of the Federal Narcotics Bureau here, said Cohen came into his office Wednesday and charged that federal officers were trying to frame him on a narcotics charge. Chappell denied this.

After some punches were thrown, Chappell told police, "I then took him under control."

Chappell has scratches on his hands and wrists, Cohen a shiner and puffed lips.

U.S. Commissioner Theodore Hocke freed Cohen on $1,500 bail and set preliminary hearing for April 18.

DETROIT (AP) — A skeleton believed to be that of a teenager was found buried behind a chicken coop in suburban Livonia last night.

Pearson Facing Political Test

Candidate for Top Post in Canada Gets Baptism of Fire Monday

OTTAWA (AP) — Lester B. (Mike) Pearson, leader of Canada's Liberal party, is known primarily as an international trouble shooter — and for his polka dot bow ties.

The 60-year-old former foreign secretary and winner of the 1957 Nobel Peace Prize, chosen last January to head the party, is facing his first real political test in next Monday's national election. Under the Canadian system, if his party wins a majority in the House of Commons, he will become prime minister.

Critics say he is a political novice, whose lack of experience in internal problems and in rough-and-tumble tactics will count against him His supporters, however, are counting heavily on his world prestige and his personality to offset any other shortcomings.

Pearson's popularity is reflected in the fact that he has held important elective offices such as president of the United Nations General Assembly, chairman of the Assembly's important Political Committee and chairman of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Council.

He won the Nobel Prize last year for his part in creating the U.N. Emergency Force for the Middle East.

Pearson was born in Toronto April 23, 1897, the son of a Protestant minister. He served in World War I, first with an ambulance unit and later with the Royal Flying Corps. It was during this period that he picked up the nickname "Mike."

He received his education at the University of Toronto and Oxford — after a brief turn in a Chicago meat packing plant where his uncle was an executive. Before entering the diplomatic service in 1928, he had a try at teaching history at the University of Toronto, where he also coached varsity football and hockey.

Pearson's career assignments included a tour as ambassador to the United States, which undoubtedly played a part in his friendly collaboration with U.S. policies in later years after he became foreign secretary.

Go Up 'n' Down for 150 Hours on Teeter-Totter

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Two University of California students ended a marathon teeter-totter stunt last night and claimed a new world record of 150 hours. But they were too tired to attend a dinner in their honor.

"We're going straight to bed and sleep for a week," said Val Peterson, 21, Santa Maria, Calif.

He and Jeff Snows, 18, Santa Monica, Calif., had been going up and down steadily since 4 p.m. Friday.

The old record of 148 hours was set by two other California students last April.

Peterson and Snows were drenched by rain squalls and exposed to wind and cold. Fellow students fed them.

Capitol Building Museum?

WASHINGTON (AP)—If the Capitol is to be preserved as a museum, Rep. Cannon (D-Mo) wants its old candles, wooden foot tubs, hitching posts and rail fences restored.

But, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee told the House, if the Capitol is to be used as a legislative workshop, "we must have room in which to meet and facilities with which to transact business, unhampered by lovable and innocent old ladies, and sentimental, emotional, sensation-seeking flubadubbies."

Cannon is among those advocating extension of the Capitol's east front to provide more working space and to correct what he and others have described as architectural errors and the deterioration of time.

The changes, already approved by Congress, are running into strong opposition from some architects and others who contend it would be almost a sacrilege to alter the Capitol in a way they say is not necessary.

Cannon elaborated in the Congressional Records on facetious remarks he made before the House.

He told the House he was "disconcerted" by the brilliant electric lights which have replaced the original tallow candles.

"Some sacrilegious iconoclast," he complained, "has removed the candles and substituted electric lights."

Not only that, he added, but someone has removed the old wooden foot tub in which George Washington "was accustomed to soak his aching feet."

And the hitching rack to which Thomas Jefferson tied his horse on his inauguration day has disappeared, Cannon moaned.

"Where is that historic hitch rack?" he asked, demanding that "somebody be impeached" unless it's returned pronto.

"Some vandal" has removed an old rail fence that made Abraham Lincoln "feel at home" when he came to the Capitol, and Cannon wants that back too if the museum motif is to be followed.

But the Capitol, he said, "is not a museum. It is a workshop."

Ike and Mamie Planning to Visit Farm Today

At noon, Mr. Eisenhower was scheduled to be visited by the new U. S. ambassador to Czechoslovakia, John M. Allison, reporting before his departure for his new post.

Famed For Jazz Classics

Blues Composer Handy Dies in New York at 84

NEW YORK (AP)—W. C. Handy, 84-year-old composer of "The St. Louis Blues" and other jazz classics, died today at Sydenham Hospital.

The blind Negro song writer was taken to the hospital Sunday night from his Yonkers, N.Y., home. He had been under treatment for pneumonia and complications.

At his bedside when he died were his wife, two sons, William Jr. and Wyer; a brother, Charles; a daughter, Mrs. Catherine Lewis; and a grandson, William Handy III. The children are by Handy's late first wife. He married Mrs. Irma Louise Logan when he was 81.

Handy suffered a stroke about three years ago and had been confined, with rare exceptions, to his suburban home since.

He had hoped to fly to St. Louis April 7 for the premiere of the movie "St. Louis Blues," the story of his life.

The son and grandson of Methodist preachers, Handy became a professional musician against parental objections. His father denounced such people as sinners. He wanted his son to be a minister.

Young W. C. compromised. He would be a teacher. And so he reluctantly traded his first musical instrument, a guitar, for a dictionary.

But he was not long without an instrument. He got his hands on an old cornet and mastered it.

He passed a teacher's examination and set out from his home in Florence, Ala., where he was born Nov. 16, 1873.

He became voice and music instructor at a Negro college in Alabama. He remained there two years before he resigned to devote his time to composing. Thus the "blues" were born.

"The songs of the South were pinin' to be written," he explained.

He turned out over 60 blues melodies, including "Memphis Blues," "Beale Street Blues," named for the famous Negro street in Memphis, and the "Mississippi Blues."

He sold the "Memphis Blues" for $100

Seek to Surpass U.S. Agriculture

Two Houses of Soviet Parliament Take Up Khrushchev's Plan

MOSCOW (AP)—The two houses of the Soviet Parliament turned today to discussions of plans to surpass U.S. agricultural output put forward by the Soviet Union's new premier, Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

There was no indication when the 1,378 members of the Supreme Soviet would hear a speech by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, expected to provide the second big news of the session.

Gromyko's speech was listed as a "discussion of a ban on thermonuclear tests." He is expected to announce, possibly at a joint meeting tomorrow, that Russia acting alone will suspend H-bomb tests. Such a suspension obviously would be designed to discredit the United States in the eyes of the world.

Also awaited was announcement of the new Council of Ministers, or Cabinet, which Khrushchev will name to replace the government which resigned along with former Premier Nikolai Bulganin. There was speculation that Bulganin would be named a deputy premier.

Khrushchev led other members of the Communist party's ruling Presidium into the Kremlin hall as the Council of Nationalities reopened the parliamentary session. Bulganin was with him.

Appearing more animated than at the opening meeting, Bulganin spoke frequently with Anastase Mikoyan. Occasionally he leaned across Mikoyan's desk to speak to Khrushchev.

The 640 delegates disposed of routine business and began a discussion of the farm program described by Khrushchev in a 2½-hour speech. Its key point is the transfer of agricultural machinery from state centers to individual collective farms in an effort to increase food production.

See Mikoyan as Man to Watch in Russia

PARIS (INS) — Anatas I. Mikoyan is the man to watch in the reshuffled Soviet leadership.

He is also the last of Khrushchev's friends from the front ranks of the old collective leadership to remain in favor. Bulganin, Zhukov, Molotov, Malenkov and the rest are all gone.

It is doubtful that Mikoyan, who is a deputy premier and a full member of the party presidium, would contest with Khrushchev for the top leadership, which may be the main reason he remains in power.

Russians still are nationalistic and it is unlikely that they would take kindly to rule by a member of the Armenian minority.

But Mikoyan is an excellent right hand for the Communist party chief and new premier.

Western experts on the Soviet Union rate him an able, realistic, dedicated Communist and a tough, shrewd negotiator. American diplomats take some solace in the belief Mikoyan got "a healthy respect" for U.S. strength when he ran Soviet foreign trade.

I AM NOT GOING OUT OF BUSINESS — I AM MOVING TO A NEW LOCATION.

Due to the many requests of my customers for a more centrally located store and thanks to the owner of the new building I am moving into for cooperating with and helping me keep my low overhead policy, even though I am going to be located in the heart of Pontiac at 37 North Saginaw Street. Hearing Waived in Assault Case

To Arraign Two Men Monday in Beating of Rochester Youth

ROCHESTER — Two men, charged with felonious assault in the beating which sent a 16-year-old Rochester boy to the hospital Monday night, waived examination yesterday before Justice Luther C. Green in Rochester and were bound over to Circuit Court. They will be arraigned Monday before Circuit Judge George Hartrick.

Unable to post $10,000 bond, Burton F. Hodgson, 21, of 3257 St. Clair St., Avon Township, and Donald Shull, 23, of 1062 Boyd St., Troy, are being held in the Oakland County Jail.

The victim, Joseph Dzuris of 436 E. Third St., is in the Avon Center Hospital. He was cut on the head and ear when slugged with a beer bottle while walking home with his 14-year-old companion. His condition now is described as good by the hospital.

Joseph and his companion, Wallace Bayliss of 300½ Main St., told police two men jumped out of a car and attacked them about 10 p.m. Monday on E. Third Street.

A person, whose name Rochester Police declined to reveal at this time, gave police the license number and description of the car. Shortly after, Troy Police arrested Hodgson and Shull.

Both denied the beating, Rochester Police Chief Sam Howlett said.

The former State Police officer, who commanded the Romeo Post for seven years, is expected to report for duty here April 28.

NEW YORK — An electric wall plug has been developed which has a finger-pull handle to make it easier to pull the plug out. It is said to be safer than the ordinary method of grasping the plug or pulling the wire.

QUESTION: How many kinds of dogs are there in America?

ANSWER: Tommy, the boy in our picture, has a problem. He is going to get a dog for a pet, but he can't decide what kind. Tommy just found out there are 112 registered breeds of dogs in this country. These breeds fall into several groups—sporting dogs, working dogs, and toy dogs, for example.

The sporting dogs include setters, pointers and spaniels. Then there are sporting dogs of the true hound class — bassets, beagles, bloodhounds, greyhounds and so on. Working dogs include sheep dogs, Eskimo dogs, Great Danes and St. Bernards. The toy dogs are not the kind you buy in a toy store. These are small dogs and include Kekinese, Pomeranians, Pugs and Chihuahuas.

In choosing a dog, the first consideration should be where you live. A St. Bernard would not fit comfortably into a city apartment. And a tiny Chihuahua is hardly the dog for a ranch. Choose the dog that fits your home and suits the habits and occupation of your family.

FOR YOU TO DO: Get a book on dogs at the library. Find the biggest type of dog in the United States and the smallest type. Try to decide which type of dog would best suit you. (Answer to yesterday's arithmetic question: Almost 438 to 1. Did you remember to subtract the number of Indians from the total population before dividing? If you didn't you got the wrong answer.)

Chapeau Brings Forth Admiration and Envy

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK (INS) — It has been a long-time policy of mine, as a woman with an easy-crumple coiffure, never to wear a hat unless it is snowing or Sunday.

It saves me worry and money—and don't bother to sound off, Mr. John; I am over 21 and fearless.

Despite my aversion to hats for my own head, I confess to an admiration and envy for ladies with enormous wardrobes of millinery. They are so zesty, so easily animated, so titillated at each new decoration to their domes. It is as if this tiny $49.95 circle of felt were a weath of laurels on the head.

Take the case of Mae Bamber, who dropped in this week to show off a perky little face under a weighty big tricorn of satin. Mae is the most widely publicized hat-lover in England because, as mayor of the town of Southport, she reversed a centuries-old tradition by insisting that the black mayoral headgear be made up in shades of navy, beige, green, wine and—turn over, Queen Mary!—peacock blue.

"Well, I'll tell you truthfully," said Mae (who insists on being caller "Mr. Mayor," even when wearing the peacock model), "when you're working in a man's world, you have to have a sense of humor, don'tchi know? And I felt as mayor of the town of Southport, I might just as well look good even if they were shocked—the constituents, I mean.

"And this hat has done something for the town." She turned around delightedly, showing off the headgear that shocked the British press. "It put Southport on the map. A mayor has that responsibility to her town—to put it on the map—just as a woman has a responsibility to herself—to wear something colorful and fetching."

The result of her enterprise: The "little" (84,000 pop.) town of Southport on the Irish Sea is being overwhelmed with tourist traffic, and the town council is so ecstatic that it sent its first citizen to the U.S. to stir up more tourist interest.

"Public relations—all is public relations," said Mr. Mayor. "I am going out now to visit towns in America called 'Southport,' and show them my hats, and tell them about sunny, sandy Southport in Lancashire where I live.

"And I shall tell women that great wonders can be accomplished by a remarkable headgear."

If it doesn't get you publicity for the project you're working on, it should at least get you a man. And if it shouldn't quite get you a man, it should get you admiration from other women. And if it doesn't honestly get you admiration from other women, it should certainly get you enmity.

Citizens Picked to Weigh Debts

Committee in Pontiac Meant to Ease Burden of Unemployed

Seven Pontiac citizens were appointed today to a new advisory committee to arbitrate debts of unemployed persons.

The appointments were made by Mayor Pro-tem John A. Dugan in the absence of Mayor Donaldson, vacationing in Florida.

Named to the committee, set up earlier this week as a measure to relieve financial burdens of partially employed or unemployed persons whose unemployment compensation is exhausted were:

Fred V. Haggard, president of the Oakland County CIO Council; James Spence, secretary-manager of the Pontiac Manufacturers Assn.; Rev. H. C. Shankle, pastor of Southside Church of God; Mrs. Mildred Bennett, Oakland County executive Red Cross director; Ralph Becker, an attorney; Merle Voss, secretary of Buckner Finance Co.; and Wayne Gabert, owner of the Wayne Gabert appliance store.

The committee is expected to organize as soon as Donaldson returns to Pontiac early next week, according to City Manager Walter K. Willman.

It is designed to act in an advisory and conciliatory capacity to prevent garnishments and foreclosures and is patterned after a similar committee already in operation in Flint.

Intangibles Tax Plan Set for House Action

LANSING (AP)—Gov. Williams' intangibles tax plan moved to the floor of the House today, ready for a vote if money-conscious legislators get behind it.

House Republicans, meeting behind closed doors, agreed yesterday to keep the bill alive and put it on a stand-by basis. Minutes later it came out of the Taxation Committee on a 7-4 vote.

"We want to have this bill to lean on if we need it," said House Speaker George M. Van Peursem (R-Zeeland). "It's the only tax proposal in the Legislature this year and we don't want to put ourselves in the position of having no tax plan to pass if we find that state revenues aren't enough to pay for the state budget we adopt."

The bill would have died automatically today without House suspension of rules on deadlines for reporting bills out of committee.

Williams' plan would nearly double the present taxes on stocks, bonds and other forms of so-called intangible wealth. State revenue officials estimate it would bring in between 19⅛ and 21½ million dollars in the 1958-59 fiscal year.

UAW Chief Politely Answers Probers

Reuther to Offer Labor Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Walter Reuther agreed with Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass) today that organized labor should make concrete recommendations for legislation to curb union corruption.

"I agree we ultimately must get out of the area of noble generalizations," Reuther told the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.

This was Reuther's second day of testimony at committee hearings into violence during the four-year strike by the United Auto Workers, headed by Reuther, at the Kohler Co., Wisconsin plumbing fixture firm.

Sen. Kennedy, chairman of a Senate labor subcommittee now considering anti-corruption laws, said organized labor is not helping Congress much when it refrains from making recommendations.

Reuther said he favors giving labor the maximum amount of freedom to clean out its own house, but agreed with Kennedy and Sen. Ives (R-NY) that some legislation is needed. He said he will have such recommendations when he testifies later before Kennedy's subcommittee.

EASES TENSIONS

Reuther's criticism of strike violence and mass picketing in the Kohler strike eased tensions on the main point of Reuther's testimony—the Kohler strike.

If the hundreds who jammed the Senate caucus room yesterday were looking for a display of fireworks, they had to be satisfied with only a few sparks.

The Detroit union chief, whose previous hassles with congressional committees have sometimes reached the shouting stage, was the picture of sweet reasonableness. But sometimes it wasn't easy.

He turned to his counsel, Joseph L. Rauh, and said grimly, "I won't bite."

VERBAL DUELISTS

The few sparks produced by Goldwater's questioning of Reuther were a far cry from the long-distance name - calling between the two men. That verbal duel has increased in intensity since the committee began its investigation of the UAW strike against Wisconsin's Kohler Co.

At one point, Goldwater found himself on the receiving end of the questioning from Reuther on a matter of labor philosophy.

"Some day you and I can get together and lock horns," said Goldwater, attempting to halt the questioning.

"We're right together now," Reuther insisted.

The senator, coloring, replied, "I'm asking the questions, not you."

Tells Detroit Car Dealers to 'Professionalize'

DETROIT (INS) — Detroit auto dealers have been told to "professionalize" themselves and their salesmen to combat the current business slump.

W. Heartsill Wilson, assistant to the vice president in charge of sales for Plymouth, said last night that dealers and salesmen must realize that they have to go after customers and stay with them in order to sell their products.

Cash for Agriculture Bill Goes to House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee said today lagging farm income is a major reason for the recession.

The commitee voiced disappointment because, it said, no proposals are being made to bolster farm income at the market place.

It did so in sending to the House for debate next week a bill to provide $3,216,988,539 to finance Agriculture Department activities for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

In another action, the committee approved $750,000 for the new Civil Rights Commission in the 1959 fiscal year. The step was taken over opposition from Southern members of the appropriations group and is certain to provoke a battle.

Lost 21 Hubcaps in Year

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — E. J. Pontiflex thinks perhaps he is on the losing end of a record of some kind. He reported to police the theft of two hubcaps from his car — the 20th and 21st stolen from him in a year.

Camp Fire Girls Plan Celebration of 48th Birthday

Pontiac Press Photos

Rhythm band members of Wever School Jolly Blue Birds are (left to right) Kristia Hall, Cynthia Carie, Mary Matthews and Carol Taylor. They will be part of a "Camp Fire in Action" show to be presented Saturday evening at Lincoln Junior High School.

Program Is Slated Saturday

A citywide event to acquaint the community with the Camp Fire program is scheduled for Saturday from 7 to 9 p.m. in Lincoln Junior High School.

The event will mark the Pontiac Council's celebration of the 48th birthday of Camp Fire Girls, Inc., a national organization offering leisure-time activities to girls 7 to 18 years old.

COMBINING EFFORTS

Local Blue Bird and Camp Fire groups are combining efforts to put on 35 demonstrations and exhibits.

Folk dancing, puppetry, rhythm bands, crafts, dress-up and singing are among the activities on the Blue Bird play program for girls 7 to 9 years old.

Camp Fire's program for girls 10 through 14 will be depicted by symbol stories, an Indian ceremonial and enactments of the seven crafts of Camp Fire, which are outdoors, home, frontiers, creative arts, business, citizenship and sports.

TO SHOW CRAFTS

Groups will display crafts they have made throughout the year.

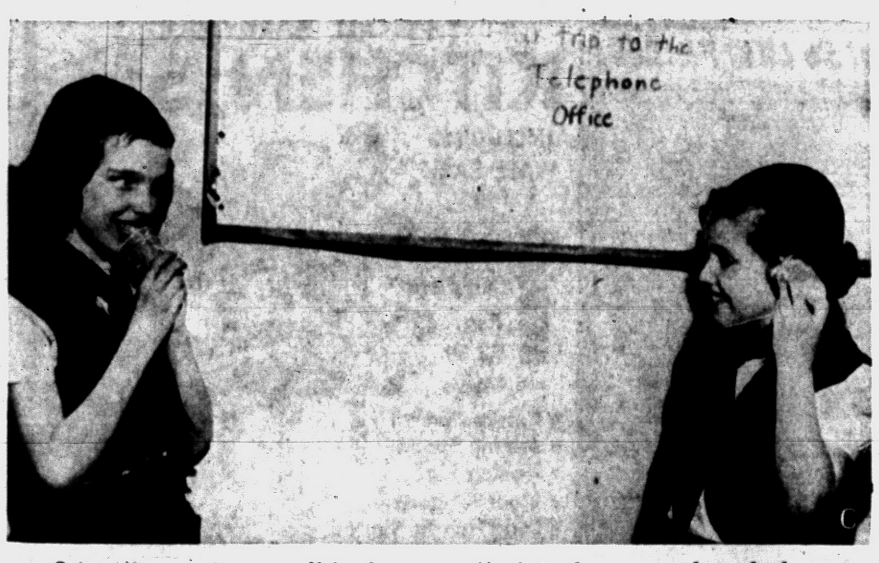
There is no charge for the event, which is open to the public. Pontiac Council of Camp Fire Girls is a member agency of Pontiac Area United Fund.

Demonstrating their marionettes, which will be part of the Saturday evening show, are Singing Blue Birds of Mark Twain School. Left to right are Cheryl Witherup, Luellyn Brabbs and Karen Walls.



Scientific experiments will be demonstrated by Un-A-Li-Yi Camp Fire Group of Longfellow School. Katherine Baker and Darlene Elwell show off their homemade telephone, a project developed after a recent field trip to Michigan Bell Telephone Co.

Yo-Ki-Ma-Ta Camp Fire Group of Emerson School will pantomime the Camp Fire Law. Cheril Goodrich is demonstrating "Be Trustworthy" to Mrs. William Wright of Chippewa road, chairman of the "Camp Fire in Action" program.

Zonta Travels to Africa Via Pictures and Talk

The strange customs of the people of Africa, its colorful countryside and the beauty of the wild animals were shown to members and guests of the Zonta Club of Pontiac Thursday evening.

Showing colored slides of her recent trip through Africa to the 120 gathering in the Civic Room of Pontiac Federal Savings and Loan Building was Mrs. Harold A. Fitzgerald.

COLORFUL SCENES

The audience saw the rare white rhinoceros, the hippopotamus, gnus, zebras, elephants and African cattle in a colorful array as the scenes unfolded.

It was easy to imagine the jungle noises at night, or to hear the beating of drums and the eerie cries of the animals as the custom of the land was explained.

Mrs. Fitzgerald said that all of the natives love to dance, and tiny 16 to 18-month-old youngsters were shown stamping their feet and clapping their hands to the beat of the music.

As the tourists traveled through mountainous country along narrow roads, they photographed the rolling hills, little rivers where purple water lilies bloom, a few extinct volcanos, and they captured the beauty of the African sunrise.

POINTS OF INTEREST

Several points of interest the speaker noted included the unusual hair styles of the native women. The more bizarre (from our standards) the better.

And the heavier the earrings and neck and leg rings, the more beautifully the woman is adorned. (Even the tiny mites are given an early beauty treatment).

Also, it was pointed out that women do all the toting and hauling while still carrying children strapped to their backs or atop their shoulders. (The heaviest item the male was seen to carry was a spear!)

The pygmies, who come no higher than the shoulder of an average-sized woman, are the most primitive of the natives, the audience was told, and they are the only tribe allowed to kill all kinds of animals.

MISSIONARY COUPLE

A visit to Butembo and the Katwa mission found Dr. and Mrs. Dwight Slater of Pontiac in action in their roles as medical missionaries.

Those who came to see the pictures were put in a proper mood by decorations chairman Mrs. Helen Reese who made a complete African village of foliage and miniature wild animals as background.

Welcoming the guests was Mrs. Chadd Mellinger, president of Zonta Club. Assisting with arrangements were Mrs. L. Raymond Sampson, Mary Kelly, Marion Emery, Mrs. Leland Clemence, Mrs. Robert Frayer and Mrs. Neil Wasserberger.

Do-C-Do Club Holds Dance, Elects Officers

Serving with him are Marvin Alward, vice president; Mary Costello, secretary; Ted Cork, treasurer; Harley Levely and Gene Shaw, directors.

Gordon McLeod, was master of ceremonies for the dance. He was aided by William Brown, Mr Newill, John Streit, George Harkless, George Newton and Rex Lawrence. A novelty dance was called by Mrs. John Streit.

Ruth Unit Meets With Mrs. Nelson

Mrs. Alford Denman and Mrs. Eugene Hoisington participated in the program of Ruth Missionary Circle of Joslyn Avenue United Presbyterian Church Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Robert Nelson of West Brooklyn avenue was hostess.

The group is planning a mother-daughter banquet May 20 in conjunction with other circles of the church. The April meeting will be held in the Giddings road home of Mrs. Hoisington.

Parents Visit Birmingham Couple

BIRMINGHAM — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Skinner of Laguna Beach, Calif., are spending 10 days with their son and daughter-in-law, the Ralph Skinners Jr., in their home on Fairfax road.

The senior Skinners will go to New York for a week before returning to California.

On Wednesday Mrs. W. S. Gilbreath gave a luncheon for Mrs. Skinner.

Townsend Says Nothing Changed

Meg Goes to Germany Without Seeing Queen

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret flew off to West Germany today without reporting to Queen Elizabeth II on her reunion with Peter Townsend.

The 27-year-old princess left on a scheduled visit to two British army regiments. Half an hour later her older sister arrived in Dover on the royal yacht Britannia.

The Queen returned from a state visit to the Netherlands which kept her out of London while Margaret was having tea Wednesday with the divorced man she renounced nearly 2½ years ago.

Members of the Queen's party said she knew about Townsend's visit to Clarence House before it happened.

But some advisers to the Queen were angry, calling it "sheer perfersity" on the part of Margaret and the former Royal Air Force group captain for causing talk while the Queen was away.

Townsend, in an effort to get some peace from the newsmen, photographers and romantic - mindeds dogging his footsteps, issued a 29-word statement saying, "There are no grounds whatever for supposing that my seeing Princess Margaret in any way alters the situation declared specifically in the princess' statement in the autumn of 1955."

In that statement the princess said she wouldn't marry Townsend because of the Church of England's opposition to divorced persons remarrying. The 43-year-old World War II hero had divorced his wife three years before.

Townsend said no additional meetings with the princess had been arranged. He is going to the west of England to visit his mother and said he would return to the continent Monday or Tuesday.

Don't Be Panicked by Child's Dishonesty

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Six-year-old Sue had just got home from her friend Doreen's house when the phone rang. Sue's mother answered. It was Doreen's mother, who said, "Doreen's coral beads are missing. I think that Sue must have taken them. Please have her return them. Frankly, I'd rather that Doreen stopped playing with Sue for a wnile . . ."

After hanging up, Sue's mother went to her child's coat. When she found the beads in one of its pockets, her hands started shaking.

Calling Sue, she cried, "You stole these beads from Doreen, didn't you? Do you know what will happen to you if you steal things? You'll be arrested and put in jail. Do you want that to happen to you? Do you?"

This is not a helpful response to a child's dishonest action.

It is not helpful because it told Sue that the impulse to steal is often uncontrollable. It told her that her mother didn't expect her to be able to control hers.

It told her that it was quite conceivable that policemen and jails would have to control it for her.

Today it's only too easy for us to treat a child's dishonest action in this hysterical manner.

For we're all struggling with distrust of children generally. We cannot read the endless newspaper reports of juvenile crime without receiving the impression that children have somehow become horrifying strangers.

We look at the photograph of the young multiple murderer with the nice Sunday School record and think, "What do I really know about my own Sue? When I called her a thief, she certainly seemed shocked by the very idea she could be one. But how do I know this innocence is real? It may be as false as that of this mild - faced boy killer."

I hope we keep our heads. And watch that we do not bring to our healthy youngsters' behavior the terrified distrust aroused by the abnormal ones.

Treatment of normal Sue's theft of Doreen's property is the return of it — and the removal of some prized belonging of her own for a period of time.

We owe our normal little girl the conviction that stealing will not occur again. We can hurt her badly by excitement that tells her we do not trust her power to control her impulse to possess herself of others' property.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wait of Ogemaw road announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Ellen, to John C. Thomas, son of the Frank V. Thomases of Chicago. She is a junior at MSU and a member of Delta Gamma sorority. Her fiance was graduated from MSU. No wedding date has been set.

Nursery Schools Meet

Dr. Ferdinand Fournier of Pontiac State Hospital discussed and answered questions on a movie, "Preface to Life," Thursday evening. Occasion was a joint meeting of All Saints Nursery School and Temple Beth Jacob Nursery School.

The film related many of the factors involved in the growing process of a child from birth to maturity. It suggested that children must be understood and respected as individuals, growing personalities with their own emotional needs and rights.

Dr. Fournier discussed problems of individual parents during a social hour which followed the program.

Blouses are particularly important, their pretty draped collars worn over those of suits in recent Paris showings. They look like two-piece dresses.

The barrel-backed blouse worn over suit skirts slims the hipline enormously over the old tucked-in version. Oversized cowl collars swoop to the back and unbutton to form a pointed collar to be worn outside your suit.

Wife With Two Jobs Learns Good Habits

By RUTH MILLETT

How can one woman hold down a job and run a home with little more effort than another woman spends on being a full-time homemaker?

Sometimes the answer is that the working wife lets her home duties slide, putting her job first.

But in a great many cases, it is simply a matter of careful planning, good work habits and figuring out a system for getting housework done as easily as possible.

Women who manage a job and a house with apparent ease have to be as systematic about the way they manage at home as at the office. They invariably make use of such timesavers as these:

Having things in order and keeping them that way, so that they don't waste time working their way out of confusion.

Marketing once a week, instead of every day. The only way this can be managed is by making out a week's menus in advance. Unless she wants to be forever on the run, the working wife has to do a lot of planning ahead.

Cutting shopping time and errand running to a minimum. Many a stay-at-home wife wastes time in far more "looking" than is necessary before she finally decides to buy.

Keeping a house well-stocked with supplies by buying in quantity, so that she isn't forever running out of something or havingg to remember that she must buy this or that.

Doing her housework according to a well worked-out plan, instead of haphazardly when the mood strikes her.

Not all women want to run a home like an office, but a woman almost has to if she is going to do two jobs at once and not neglect either.

Helps Normalize Glands in Scalp

Oily Hair Benefits From Brushing

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

(The Friday Question Box)

Q. "Our daughter, 18, has such oily hair that it has to be shampooed every other night. Is there anything you can suggest to help her?"

A. Strange as it may seem, scalp massage and hair brushing will help even though they may make the hair appear even oilier for the time being. These provide stimulation which will help normalize the little oil glands in the scalp. These are evidently lax.

There also are many splendid tonics for oily hair on the market. Use one of these regularly. It will not damage your daughter's hair to shampoo it every other night. She should, of course, be certain that she eats properly and gets plenty of sleep and outdoor exercise.

It is possible that a supplement of vitamin B complex would be helpful. Brewer's yeast is a splendid and inexpensive source. Ask your doctor how much to have her take.

Q. "I would appreciate it if you would help me. I am a girl of 11. I weigh 110 pounds and am 5 feet 1 inch tall. My measurements are bust 32, waist 26, hips 33 inches.

"Many people in my family and class say I am fat and I get very embarrassed. Please tell me what's wrong. I am pretty sure I am overweight and want to lose some—but how?"

A. You are a little bit over the average for your age and height (about 10 pounds). However, this depends partly on your build. You need a well-balanced diet and an adequate amount of food at your age since you are growing and developing rapidly. For awhile, just try leaving off candy bars and rich desserts and all in-between snacks except fresh fruit, fruit juice or milk.

If you have oily hair, you are advised to brush it.

Q. "I am a teenager who has a problem. It is my lips. They are very thick. How can I thin them?"

A. There are no exercises to slim the lips. You can make them look thinner by drawing the line of your lipstick IN a little. Do not extend the color all the way to the natural lipline.

Q. "I have a large nose and would like to have it fixed. Can you tell me if there is such an operation?"

A. Yes. This is one of the simplest of the cosmetic surgery operations. Be sure that you have a well-qualified surgeon. I can give you the names of some in your territory, if you send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Shaking of Mops Irks Her

By EMILY POST

"Dear Mrs. Post: The houses on our street are rather close together and my next-door neighbor has a habit of shaking her rugs and mops out of the window, and all the dust and dirt comes into my bedroom windows which I always have open, except in the very cold weather. Will you please tell me how to handle this situation tactfully?"

Answer: She is probably unaware of this and I am sure if you asked her in a polite way to please not shake her mop out of the window as the wind blows all the dust straight into your house, she would do her best to correct the situation.

"Dear Mrs. Post: My employer and his wife sent me a very lovely wedding present. I have never met his wife but her name was included with his on the card enclosed with the present. Would it be proper for me to thank my employer verbally for the present at the office, or must I write a note to his wife thanking her for the present?

Answer: You thank your employer verbally when you see him, and you should also write a thank-you note to Mr. and Mrs. Employer and send it to their home address.

"Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me if it is correct to have 'informals' printed Mr. and Mrs. John Jones? I have heard two different opinions on this. One said a joint informal was incorrect, and the other said it was entirely proper. I would appreciate it if you would clear up this confusion."

Answer: While not incorrect to have the cards read Mr. and Mrs., Mrs. alone is more usual because it is used mostly by the wife for every variety of short message. When necessary, it is entirely proper to write "Mr. and" in front of her name on the card.

Cuddle Bun Is Today's Loveseat

SAN FRANCISCO (INS) — The loveseat of the rock'n'roll set is known as a cuddle bun.

Too big to be an ottoman and too small to be a sofa, it resembles a round overstuffed harem pillow with a back.

The pouf-styled cuddler seats two people who are friendly or affords stretch-out room for one.

TEXTURED TWEED

One model, just inches off the floor, has a deep cushioned base in textured beige tweed. One pillow is beige and two other pillows and the low curved back are brown.

On rollers, a cuddle bun can be pulled up to a dressing table, moved to a window to serve as a chaise longue, or pressed into duty as an extra bed at a teenage slumber party.

Use Foam Pad on Child's Chair

A thick foam rubber pad, cut to fit a dining room chair, adds enough height to make a youngster comfortable at the family table.

The foam rubber is hygienic as well as comfortable; it can be washed as often as necessary in soap or detergent suds.

Dear Abby....

Absence of Mother-in-Law Good for Blood Pressure

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm 37 and my blood pressure was 190 all the time my mother-in-law lived with me. When she went to visit her daughter my blood pressure went down to 140.

ABBY

My mother-in-law is 66 years old and all she does is complain about how poor her health is. Our doctor says I should have her heart.

She has lived with us for four years. Don't you think one of the other children should take her for a while? My husband has four sisters and two brothers.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

DEAR HIGH: If your mother-in-law skyrockets your blood pressure, she most certainly should not live with you. If one of the others cannot take her, you could all pitch in and arrange private quarters for her elsewhere.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband. All he does is sit and read. The minute he gets to the breakfast table he reads the paper. The minute he walks in at night he takes the evening paper.

He reads while he eats, and not only that, when he goes to bed he always takes his magazines and he reads in bed. I am about ready to lose my mind. What should I do?

BOILING

DEAR BOILING: It's time YOU read too. Read this thoughtless character the riot act.

DEAR ABBY: I got a job as waitress at this place where Bill tends bar. It was practically love at first sight for us. He explained he was NOT married but shared an apartment with a woman. All the furniture in the apartment belongs to him.

We want to get married, but she won't move out of the apartment. He still keeps his clothes there as his room at the Y has no clothes closet. He goes to her apartment to change clothes but that's all.

She is not charging him any storage for his furniture in her apartment and she pays the rent. How can we work this out?

EDNA

DEAR EDNA: If Bill wants to marry you, he will move his furniture out of her apartment and move into an apartment where you and he can live as man and wife (after getting married, of course). It's as simple as that.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your unbiased opinion on a matter which has grown to be utterly disgusting to me. My wife can't nurse our 2-week-old baby without a cigarette dangling from her mouth.

I think it looks vulgar. We have discussed this intelligently but I get nowhere with her. How about an opinion from you since you already have mine?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: I agree with you, but there must be something the matter with the way you are "asking" her.

DEAR ABBY: I will not say that dogs are cleaner than people, but it might be interesting to note that people do not catch diseases from dogs — dogs catch diseases from people.

Sugar Syrup Has a Hint of Molasses

Mrs. Feekart Cooks Mixture to Soft Ball for Better Texture

By JANET ODELL

Popcorn balls are a year-round treat. At this time of the year you can make eggs or Easter baskets out of the popcorn mixture. With a little supervision the children can make their own creations.

Mrs. Fred Feekart makes these popcorn balls for her children's rooms at school. She is an active worker in the Willis PTA and is leader of a Campfire Girls group.

Both the Feekarts work with the youth group of their church, enjoy square dancing and music. Mrs. Feekart wishes she had more time to read.

POPCORN BALLS
By Mrs. Fred Feekart

1½ cups white corn syrup
2 tablespoons dark molasses
1 cup white sugar
½ cup cold water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon vinegar

Mix together in large saucepan and cook over medium heat until mixture forms a soft ball in cold water. Pour over 4 quarts popped corn. Work quickly and form into balls or other desired shapes. Makes 30 popcorn balls.

Send 35c in coins for this pattern —add five cents for each pattern for 1st-class mailing. Send to Anne Adams, care of The Pontiac Press, 137 Pattern Dept., 243 West 17th St., New York 11, N.Y. Print plainly name, address with zone, size and style number.

Patent in Colors

If patent leather is your favorite shoe material (and to many women it is), this spring you can buy not only black patent but blue, gunmetal, red and copper. Blue patent reflects the light in such a way that you can wear it with all your blue clothes, light, bright, dark.

Avoid Shouting

Why yell, "Joe, you're wanted on the telephone," when you can walk a few steps and tell Joe he is wanted? You don't make a good impression on the telephone caller when you shout to the person who is wanted.

Disc Data and Chatter

Music in the Round

by Dick Saunders

The password is still "Lollipop" as for the third straight seven day stretch, Pontiac record fans have turned Ooo La La into "Ooo Lolli Lolli."

The Chordettes seem to have departed from their barbershop (or would it be beauty shop?) harmony with great financial success.

"Twenty Six Miles" by the Four Preps is ranked second but looks like its beginning to submerge. From here on in a whole gang of newcomers have taken over.

"Don't You Just Know It" by Huey Smith is solid in third and looks big. Just nosed out last week, this disc may hit the top soon.

As is my policy, I give credit to discs over sides. Ricky Nelson has a two-sided smasheroo in his coupling of "My Budget's Got A Hole In It" and "Believe What You Say." Neither side would rank by itself, but together they're getting enough calls to put the disc in fourth.

"Sweet Little Sixteen" by Chuck Berry is a toss-up for fifth. It's definitely living on borrowed time.

THE JAZZ NEST: Take your pick. These are the top five sellers: "Songs From 'My Fair Lady'" (Contemporary 3527) by Shelly Manne & Friends; "Modern Jazz Quartet" (Atlantic 1265); "Pal Joey" (Contemporary 3543) by Andre Previn & Pals; Garner's "Concert By The Sea" (Columbia 883); and Count Basie's "Basie in London" LP (Verve MGV-8189).

Bulganin Falls Off High Wire

Took Misstep by Failing to Rally to Khrushchev During Purge by Boss

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS

Nikolai Bulganin was a bit on the portly side for tight rope dancing.

But he was a master at the art until recently. Now he's been dumped and replaced by Soviet Party Boss Nikita S. Khrushchev.

With all the ups and downs of Kremlin politics in the past five years Bulganin managed to keep his balance. He'd take a somersault now and then but always seemed to land right side up, next to, but a little bit below Khrushchev.

It is believed he took a misstep last June by failing to rally immediately to Khrushchev when the Communist Party boss purged V. M. Molotov, Lazar Kaganovich and Georgi Malenkov.

From that time on, the goateed Bulganin's prestige deteriorated. He was left home when Khrushchev junketed aboard and he was less jolly at Kremlin receptions.

To keep up appearances, Bulganin was allowed to sign the letters the Kremlin has sent in an endless stream since it began pressuring the West for a summit conference. But it is significant that Bulganin was the only senior Soviet leader who did not confer with United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold during the latter's current visit to Moscow.

Bulganin came up through the ranks in the prescribed manner. He joined the party in 1917, year of the Bolshevik Revolution, served four years in the secret police, then five in Soviet industrial management posts.

Later he was president of the State Bank, mayor of Moscow from 1933 to 1937. He was appointed to the Party Central Committee in 1939. Two years later he won local fame for helping to direct the defense of Moscow in 1941.

Stalin smiled on Bulganin. He was named a marshal although the army he commanded was purely one of communist political officers — and armed forces minister.

Bulganin survived the shakedown period after Stalin's death in such good shape that he stepped in as premier when Khrushchev dumped Georgi Malenkov in February, 1955.

Now Bulganin himself has tumbled from the high wire.

No reason to grieve, though. He was in the big show for 41 years, a featured player for 14 and a star for three. In the Russian lexicon that is success, no matter what happens now.

Free Food Draws Less Than Expected

ST. LOUIS (AP) — City officials said fewer families than expected have signed up for distribution of free government surplus food in St. Louis.

City Comptroller John Poelker estimated 4,000 to 5,000 persons would register for the food program, prompted by unemployment that has reached more than 70,000, a 16-year peak in this area.

Only 1,214 persons applied yesterday, first day of a three-day registration program.

The low number of registrants for the surplus food, Poelker said, indicated that many families still have some member working.

Most children coming before juvenile courts of the United States are between 15 and 17 years of age, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Sometimes, says Al Spong, when you say a man went to his everlasting rest, you only mean that he got a job with the government. . . . The world's sorest loser is a fat man on a diet. —Earl Wilson.

Florida Center Can Launch Anything

All Set for Moon Rockets

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — When moon rockets are available, the Air Force Missile Test Center will be prepared to launch them.

Yates said, in answer to a query, that the testing range here is "ready to launch anything—within reason—that the missile manufacturers send down to us."

The Pentagon announced that the Air Force had been ordered to undertake three moon survey vehicle projects, and the Army to try one or two.

The Air Force will use this combination: A Thor missile for the first stage, the second stage of the Navy Vanguard rocket for the second stage, and a rocket as yet undeveloped for the third stage.

The Army will use a Jupiter-C, modified somewhat from the four-stage rocket that launched Explorers I, II and III and that will be used to put up two or three more Explorer satellites.

The unmanned vehicles, equipped with radio and recording instruments and, in some cases, a type of television or mechanical ground scanning device, will seek to conduct exploration in the vicinity of the moon but may not land on the moon itself.

Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commander of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency at Huntsville, Ala., said the United States now has rocket engines powerful enough to reach the moon.

The first allocation to the several lunar projects will be eight million dollars.

Suspect Something Spectacular

What's Next for Russians in the Cold War of Space?

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

A mammoth Sputnik? . . . A moon-high satellite? . . . What's next in the heavenly cold war . . . What does the Kremlin have up its sleeve in the Soviet space program?

Vague hints suggest Soviet scientists are working on something spectacular. There also are hints that Soviet politicians would like to tie the next venture to something new in the cold war: An offensive.

It's been almost five months since the Soviets launched their second artificial earth satellite, Sputnik II.

Perhaps the Soviets have been trying and failing with new launching attempts. Or perhaps they plan to time their new shoot for a propitious moment. Just in advance of a summit meeting, their next space venture would have enormous propaganda impact.

Speculation on Soviet plans runs all the way from manned devices or space platforms to "just another Sputnik."

It is even possible, say some Western scientists, that the Soviets might try to throw a Sputnik on a huge elliptical course which would take it more than 250,000 miles — beyond the moon — before it returned to settle into its orbit.

In Washington, guesses based on intelligence information lean to the possibility of a mammoth Sputnik, perhaps five or six tons, carrying a successor to the martyred dog Laika of Sputnik II. There is an outside possibility the Soviets may try to send up a space platform — a sort of intermediate station for moon flights. There is no serious speculation about space ships in the sense of craft capable of carrying human beings to the moon, but an attempt to send up a manned rocket cannot be ruled out.

On the political side, the Soviets seem to be preparing for a heavenly cold war. There are indications they plan spectacular proposals such as international control of outer space and even of the moon.

Rhee Scoffs at Plans for Summit Parley

SEOUL (AP) — Syngman Rhee, president of the Republic of Korea, ridicules prospects of any successful results being achieved through another summit conference with the Communists.

He says the summit-talk proposal is only a "delaying action" to give the Soviet Union more time to prepare for aggression.

He advocates an immediate military action instead.

In an interview Rhee disclosed he has repeatedly asked the United States to stand aside and let his army unify Korea by moving north.

"On two occasions since the armistice we were ready to go," the President said. "Both times American military authorities locked up gasoline stores, once for two days and once for three days."

Rhee claimed that without question his Republic of Korea army is strong enough to liberate the North, even against Communist Chinese troops. He asked only for arms and logistic support from the United States.

LeMay Flies Nonstop to New Zealand Meet

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Gen. Curtis LeMay, leading American advocate of long-range strategic bombing, conferred with Commonwealth air officers and lunched with government officials today after a 15-hour nonstop flight from Castle Air Force Base, Calif.

The U.S. Air Force vice chief of staff came to attend the 21st anniversary of the Royal New Zealand Air Force, being celebrated tomorrow.

Postmen Fight Chills

LONDON (AP) — The Post Office has started a drive against colds and chills. It has ordered draught excluders fitted to control pedals, steering columns and doors of post office vans, following complaints from drivers.

The kea, a parrot confined to New Zealand, will attack live sheep when pressed by hunger, according to Encyclopedia Britannica.

Light More Important Than Soil for Perennial Beds

Record Crowds Attend Michigan Flower Show

Record crowds surpassing any attendance in the past five years have visited the Michigan Flower and Home Show this week, according to Werner Hoy, general manager, of Davisburg.

The show, which closes Sunday night is being held at the Michigan State Fair Grounds coliseum, coliseum annex and agricultural building. It will be open from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. tomorrow and Sunday and until 11 p.m. tonight.

Eight rooms and six vignettes furnished in the latest style for modern living by the Michigan Chapter of the American Institute of Decorators is one of the newer projects at this year's show. They are done in contemporary, early American, traditional and French provincial styles with appropriate flower arrangements within the settings.

EDUCATIONAL EXHIBITS

Educational exhibits sponsored by the Michigan Landscape Association, Southeastern Association of Landscape and Nurserymen, Michigan State University Department of Ornamental Horticulture, the Organic Gardening Club and the Audubon Society are scattered throughout the coliseum.

Sixteen competitive gardens installed by landscape and nurserymen are dispersed throughout the entire annex.

Oil Discovery in Israel May Stop Importing

WASHINGTON — Discovery of a deep oil deposit in Israel's northern province of Galilee may create a new economic frontier in that ancient Biblical region.

Oil already is gushing from southern wells opened in 1955 in the Negev Desert. Each new find brightens Israel's prospects for eventual independence from expensive fuel imports.

The oil deposit reported near Mount Tabor in Galilee lies about 25 miles from the huge refineries of Israel's Mediterranean port, Haifa. The refineries are operating now at roughly a third of capacity as a result of long interruption to the pipeline flow from Iraq. Galilee, where Jesus spent his boyhood and carried on much of His ministry, is a land of striking physical features.

Generally hilly, it is divided into upper and lower districts that hold various geological formations suggesting possible oil traps. In northern or Upper Galilee, the nation's tallest peak is 3,963-foot Mount Jarmaq. Mount Tabor, in Lower Galilee, looks down from a height of 1,929 feet on the lushly productive Esdraelon plain and valley.

The headwaters of the remarkable Jordan River flow through the northeastern panhandle section of the province, lying between Lebanon and Syria. Plunging ever lower, the streams meet in Israel's Lake Hula at 260 feet above sea level, then rush downward into Lake Tiberias (the Sea of Galilee) at nearly 700 feet below sea level.

WORK TOGETHER — Mr. and Mrs. Paul Herbst, 2913 Lansdowne St., Waterford Township, now have plenty of time to work together in their perennial bed since he recently retired. Here, they are raking off the leaves in preparation to put the new soil including some compost to recondition the bed.

Flowers Need Sun Half Day

Ornamental Shrubbery Gives Garden Good Background

By MRS. PAUL HERBST
Waterford Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Assn., Inc.

(This is the second in a series of articles by a member of one of the 27 branches of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Assn., Inc., throughout the area which will be printed on each of the farm and garden pages this year.)

During these cold March days as I look out my kitchen window at my sleeping perennial bed, I think of all the beauty which will come in a short time. This beauty can become a reality in your outdoor living room too.

A plan drawn to scale is a good beginning before starting to plant the bed. Also, make a thorough study of the habits of the plants you intend to grow. Our particular bed measures about 60 feet in length and varies from six to 10 feet wide.

When making a flower bed, light is the first thing to consider. Soil is second as it can always be improved.

Most flowers should have full sun at least half of the day and a rich loam is the ideal soil with good drainage.

COMPOST PILE — A MUST

The soil in our bed to start with was rather heavy clay but over the years, it has been lightened by the addition of compost. There's a special out-of-the-way corner in the yard where we keep a compost pile made out of leaves, straw, grass clippings, animal fertilizer, coffee grounds and eggshells. It is best to compile the compost one year and then use it the following year. Bone meal has been a main fertilizer used besides the compost.

Most perennials need dividing every second or third year. Give surplus plants to your friends so they too may enjoy the many beauties of nature.

The background of a perennial garden is of primary importance. Ornamental shrubs such as weigela, lilacs, carlesi viburnum and mock orange add interest to the background. Delphinium in all shades of blue with regal and madonna lilies are good plants to use in front of the shrubs.

Phlox can also be planted near the back for heighth and range in color from white through the shades of pink and red. Our garden also includes large clumps of shasta daisies and blue veronica, gypsophila (white baby breath), hemerocallis (day lily) ranging in color from pale to deep yellow which bloom from early summer into the fall.

Iris also provides a beautiful springtime fashion show and oriental poppies and peonies are lovely when they bloom in May and June. Mums are planted for fall colors.

SPRING BORDER SUGGESTION

The early spring border of the bed can be composed of tulips and blue forget-me-nots. Replace these by dwarf blue campanula, pinks and white allysum.

The above garden, such as ours, has been planned to provide a harmonious color scheme, fragrance and a succession of bloom throughout the blooming season.

(Next week, Mrs. John Rundell, a member of the Rochester branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Assn., Inc., will discuss "Garden Pictures.")

Give Test for Light

House plants need light as much as they need food and water. One test you can apply to check the amount of light that house plants need is the shadow test. Hold your hand near the plant. If it casts a soft shadow, light is adequate. If not, the plant needs more light.

Tamp Soil After Sowing

Tamp soil gently with the hoe blade after sowing seeds in rows. This provides close contact between the soil and seeds, and gets flower or vegetable seeds off to a far stronger start.

Grow Tomatoes Easily at Home, Here's How

You can grow your own tomatoes . . . any type you like . . . round, medium size ones, giant beefsteak tomatoes, miniature or Italian types, mild flavored or strong . . . any kind.

It's so easy. And for the most part, the home grown variety will be juicier, finer flavored and more vitamin rich than the ones you buy.

How does one go about it? Just follow these simple directions:

1—Sow tomato seed indoors in a clay seed pan about now. Use goo dsoil and tamp lightly. If your garden is snow covered, buy some soil at the florists.

2—Cover the seed with one-eighth inch to one-fourth inch of soil and stand the pan in a shallow dish in the window. Add enough water each day to keep the soil moist, not soaking wet.

3—When the seedlings are a few inches tall, transplant them into small flower pots or baby jars or juice cans with holes in the bottom. Keep them in a sunny window and use plant food weekly.

4—Plant them after the frosts are past. Choose a sunny spot and be sure to spread plant food, turn the soil and rake smooth.

5—Set the plants the full depth of the roots, two to three feet apart. Water them well and add heavy stakes when they are a foot or so tall.

GARDENING IS FUN, ESPECIALLY AS A FAMILY AFFAIR

Farm and Garden News

Spring Is Ideal Season to Plant Evergreens

Wherever you live, spring is a good time to plant evergreens, and with balled and burapped roots, there is hardly any risk.

Before digging a hole, set the evergreen in place and decide the exact angle you wish to plant it. Adjusting will be difficult once the ball is set in the hole. Measure the depth of the ball so you can make the hole the same depth.

Burlapped balls, unlike bare roots, should be set on firm soil so they won't settle after being planted and watered. Make the hole eight to 10 inches wider than the ball, so you have space for minor adjusting of the plant.

Keep the sod separate as you dig; don't use it for backfilling. Mix compost or peat with backfill if the soil contains clay. Toss the soil on a tarp or into a wheelbarrow to protect the surrounding grass.

DON'T GRAP TOP

To maneuver the evergreen into the hole, grasp the ball itself, not the top. If the ball is too heavy to lift, slide it into the planting pocket.

Do not remove the burlap. The roots will grow through it in a couple of months. Back the fill halfway, then add a bucket or two of water. When this soaks in, fill competely, except for a water basin at the top.

Turn a hose on the evergreen and wash it off after you have cleaned up. Syringe the surrounding area, too, to raise the humidity. Water liberally every week or two the first spring and summer, to supplement rains.

Feed new evergreens with a balanced plant food the first fall, about the time that shade trees start dropping leaves.

John J. Muccio, of North Providence, R.I., was named first United States ambassador to Iceland in 1955.

Plants, Flowers Add to Interior Decor

Plants and flowers are so popular in interior decorating schemes that there now are "cosmetics" for them.

These "cosmetics" are protective coatings which give leaves and flowers a glossy finish.

The rubs and sprays, sold under various trade names for about one dollar, also help to keep foliage from drying out as well as look prettier.

For example, the coatings decrease wilting of cut flowers which are exposed to strong light, either artificial or from the sun.

"Touch ups" are recommended about once a month for indoor plants.

Michigan State's hockey team has two sets of brothers — Bruno and Ed Pollese and Keith and Mel Christofferson.

Get Bigger, Sweeter Peaches—Thin Trees

If you want to grow bigger, sweeter peaches, don't thin the young fruits with pruning shears. This reduces yields and quality.

For the average home gardener with only one or two trees, thinning by hand is satisfactory. Thinning should be done early in the season to be most effective.

This Sprinkling Technique Saves Your Time, Energy

By MR. FIX
Distributed by NEA Service

It's sometimes fun to sit on the front steps idly watering the lawn. But it doesn't do the grass a bit of good.

Give your lawn a thorough soaking at proper intervals. Plan your watering program for the coming summer.

First, check your equipment.

You'll need a hose longer than the distance between the outdoor faucet and the front porch. It should be long enough so that when used in combination with a sprinkler the water can reach large areas of lawn with a minimum of moving.

Whether you use plastic hose or rubber hose, remember that it's only as good as the care you give it. Plastic is lighter to carry, rubber more likely to stand up under rough handling.

DON'T DRAG HOSE

Turning the nozzle off while the house faucet is still on may cause a plastic hose to burst, and can weaken the rubber variety. Neither should be dragged over pavement.

Once you've finished sprinkling, roll up the hose and store it on a reel or hang it where it will be out of the hot sun.

You can purchase menders or splicers that will join two sections of hose after the bad part has been cut out.

Replace rubber washers in the hose fittings and sprinklers several times throughout the summer.

There are many sprinklers in the market — sprinklers that rotate, oscillate, "walk" or just stand still. Pick one with a fine, rather than a coarse, spray, but not so fine that wind will blow it away.

Your sprinkler should cover a large enough area to make frequent moving unnecessary. And it should work equally well at low or high water pressure.

Soak the lawn to a depth of about four inches. Then, depending on the weather, you can forget it for periods up to a week.

DON'T BURN GRASS

The grass experts are pretty well agreed that you won't burn the grass by watering it in the sun.

But you'll have to sprinkle longer, since you will lose water due to evaporation.

Do 5 Steps to Care for Cut Flowers

If you can't grow your own flowers and must buy them from the florist, here are five steps to get the most out of them, offered by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association:

1. Cut flower stems slantwise with a sharp knife. Never use shears.
2. Place flower stems in warm water for an hour or two before arranging.
3. Change water every day. Keep containers clean.
4. Cut the flower stems daily with a sharp knife. Remove any foliage below the water line.
5. Keep flowers cool and moist, away from heat and drafts. Put them in a cool place overnight.

Area Farmers to Go on Beef Feed Tour

Growth stimulators, antibiotics and feed combinations for beef are a few of the many things Oakland County and area farmers will hear about on a beef cattle feed lot tour scheduled for March 31, at 10:00 a.m.

The tour starts at Stanley Allen's, 1201 North Oxford Rd., Oxford, and will continue to Devon Acres, 4517 Seymour Lake Rd., Oxford at 11:00 a.m., then at 1:30 p.m. to William Brendel's, 4942 White Lake Rd., Milford and 2:30 p.m. at the Knobby Hills Farm, 342 North Clyde Rd., Milford.

According to Jay Poffenberger, assistant county agricultural agent, touring beef feeders will study the types of cattle being fattened in Michigan with emphasis on the importance of utilizing homegrown feeds and timely marketing of cattle.

SPECIALISTS TO ATTEND

Bill Finley, beef specialist of Michigan State University, will explain various phases of feeding operations visited and answer questions regarding feeding, management and marketing.

Poffenberger said a greater percentage of the beef Michigan farmers are now producing is grading choice. Beef specialists think beef feeders should try to produce still more choice cattle to meet increased consumer demand.

There will be a chance to see a silage unloader and an automatic feed bunk on the tour as well as a new pole barn.

Garden, Walls Decor

Rhododendrons have the largest flower heads among hardy spring flowering shrubs, often bigger than footballs. Use them as a bold decoration in your garden or along walls. Ask a local authority to recommend varieties adapted to your soil and climate.

Guinness Once Hungry; Actress Sharp on Thrift

(The latest to achieve the acclamation of filmland's elite is Joanne Woodward, who walked off with the Academy Award as best actress of the year in her first starring role. Here is the second of three articles on Hollywood's new golden girl.)

By LEE BELSER

HOLLYWOOD (INS)—Before the Academy Awards show Wednesday night, Joanne Woodward said she knew Deborah Kerr would win.

"But at least," she added, "I'd be the only Oscar nominee to show up in a homemade dress."

The green velvet and satin gown, which didn't look homemade at all, is indicative of this girl's thrift and not at all suggestive of her explosive nature.

"I am the most parsimonious soul in the world," she said recently. "I don't know where I got it either. I don't have any Scotch blood, only French and English.

"But I never throw anything away and I know more ways of using left-overs than anybody I know and rarely buy clothes."

On the other hand, she is exceedingly generous when it comes to helping a pal.

"It isn't really generosity," she insisted. "It's a God complex. I almost destroyed a wonderful friendship with a girl when I insisted on helping her when I was working and she wasn't. It made her feel awful because she wanted to give me presents and couldn't and it made her feel as if she were accepting charity. I learned that lesson the hard way."

Money-conscious Joanne has been earning shekels and greenbacks ever since the age of five when she swiped the jonquils out of her own back yard and sold them for five cents a bunch.

Even as a teenager, Joanne rebelled against being glamorous. She still feels the same way and spits fire at any and all movie moguls who try to mold her into a femme fatale.

"I'll never understand Hollywood on that score," she said.

And she'll never understand why, very often, brutal honesty is not the best policy.

Joanne is the first to admit that she "shoots off her mouth" about Hollywood coming and going, but she figures that sitting quietly by and smiling sweetly would give her ulcers.

Recently (Jan. 29), Joanne married her best friend—actor Paul Newman.

"He has been my closest friend ever since we were both understudies in 'Picnic'," Joanne said. "But before we were married I was engaged to three other men. All Southern girls like to get engaged even when they aren't really ready to get married."

Recently they made their first film together, "The Long Hot Summer." In the picture, Joanne plays the spinsterish daughter of Orson Welles. But in the end she married Newman, a happy finish to a long friendship.

(This is the second of three articles tracing the life and career of Alec Guinness, who won an "Oscar" for his portrayal of the colonel in "The Bridge on the River Kwai.")

By ALLEN R. DODD JR.

LONDON (INS) — Hungry and broke one day in 1934, Alec Guinness found himself wandering past the Picadilly Theater in the heart of London.

On impulse, he asked the girl in the box office: "Any jobs going?"

The girl was startled, but Guinness was even more so when she sent him to see the stage manager and the latter hired him to play three bit parts in the play "Queer Cargo."

The salary was $14 a week, but it was the biggest income he had had in more than a year, and it turned out to be his big break.

Guinness was born in the Marylebone section of London on April 2, 1914. His formal education came to an abrupt end in his teens, and financial pressure forced him into an advertising agency as a junior copywriter.

His advertising career was brief and somewhat less than brilliant. He is remembered mainly as the young man who accidentally marked up a four-inch printers block as four feet and delivered an enormous chunk of engraved metal to the London Daily Mail in a taxi.

He wasn't fired, but he quit a short time later when he secured a dramatic school scholarship. He graduated with the yearly prize, a leather-bound volume of Shakespeare and a small handful of change in his pocket.

The change didn't last long and the volume of Shakespeare didn't impress casting directors. Guinness tramped the streets from stage door to stage door looking for parts. "I want soldiers," said the producer at the Old Vic, "and you don't look like a soldier."

One of the judges who had awarded the yearly prize had been John Gielgud, and Guinness went to see him. The great Shakespearean actor counted out 20 pounds—a fortune to Guinness—and laid it on the table.

Guinness couldn't pick it up. He went back to pounding the pavements. Finally came that impulsive moment in front of the Picadilly Theater. With the magnificent salary of $14 a week, he could attend the Old Vic, and one day he ran into Gielgud there. Gielgud gave him a part in a new production of Hamlet.

He stayed with Gielgud's company at the new theater through two years and four plays and then joined the Old Vic for six Shakespearean productions. Between 1937 and 1940 he appeared in 18 plays ranging from Shakespeare to mysteries.

In 1941 Guinness joined the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, eventually was commissioned and placed in command of a tank landing craft.

He can claim to be the first man ashore in the invasion of Sicily. Guinness wasn't notified that the assault had been postponed for a half-hour and took his LCT in according to the original schedule. Later, he ferried troops to the Anzio beachhead, ran supplies to Yugoslav and Greek partisans and was wrecked in a storm off the Adriatic coast of Italy.

Between 1946 and 1948 Guinness appeared in 10 plays and two movies—"Great Expectations" and "Oliver Twist"—and his first "discovery" by movie audiences.

Judge Guilty, Fines Self

TEXARKANA, Tex. (UP) — Municipal Court Judge Ted Goldman pleaded guilty to running a red light. He fined himself $8.25.

Outruns Police, Stork to Hospital; Freed of Charge

TAMPA, Fla. (UP) — Luther B. Little whizzed his taxi toward the hospital along busy streets so fast last week that even pursuing traffic officers feared to follow at such a pace.

In the back seat of the cab was Mrs. Grace Ida Hillard. A few minutes after she arrived at the hospital she gave birth to twins.

With Mrs. Hillard at his side, Little went into court. He admitted he might not have had his cab completely under control.

Judge Ray Grimaldi gave Little a stern lecture about safe driving —then smiled. He said he once had made it to the hospital with only six minutes to spare when he was outrunning the stork in his own family.

The traffic charge against Little was dismissed.

Frances Farmer Weds Radio-Video Executive

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—Actress Frances Farmer, 43, and radio-television executive Leland Mikesell, 53, were married here yesterday.

They said they plan to return to San Francisco Monday where Mikesell works as a management consultant.

May Try 12-Year-Old for Murder, Robbery

WOODWARD, Okla. (UP)—Twelve-year-old Robert Smith today faced the prospect of being tried for murder or armed robbery.

Robert was ordered by County Judge James Young to face criminal charges in the shooting death of Floyd Blair, a Woodward grocer, last Sunday. No charges have been filed against the boy, who is jailed here.

Judge Young said the youngster was old enough to know right from wrong. Robert's brother David, 10, was sent to a boys' ranch near Perkins. David was with Robert at the time Blair was shot through the heart and two other men wounded. The boys said they intended to rob the store.

Mountains on the moon have been estimated as high as 40,000 and 50,000 feet.

Less Cottonseed Oil Used by Fats Market

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Cottonseed oil now accounts for less than 22 per cent of all fats and oils used for food in this country.

Twenty years ago its share was 35 per cent. Soybean oil accounts for a 33 per cent share; it's about 20 per cent cheaper.

Claims Rigid Rules Embitter Employes

BALTIMORE (UP)— A University of Maryland psychologist warns that rigid company rules can cause frustration, bitterness and inefficiency among employes and even desertion.

Dr. Allen R. Solem told a human relations seminar at Johns Hopkins University that here are the kind of things that cause resentment:

Gongs terminating coffee breaks.

Head of Motivational Research Says People Don't Understand

WASHINGTON (AP)—A thousand doctors were told today their patients consider them vastly overpaid and aren't convinced the physicians know or care what is wrong with them.

Ernest Dichter of New York, director of the Institute for Motivational Research, gave this appraisal to members of the Medical Council of the Washington area. The doctors got together for a checkup and diagnosis of how they function as citizens, scientists, taxpayers and providers.

Dichter said the doctor's major concern is a problem he shares with his patients—a frequent failure to understand each other.

"Remember," he said, "that patients resent fees which are tied to the saving of a life or the restoration of their health. To them, this approach smacks of blackmail. Patients also resent being billed on the basis of whatever the traffic will bear. They want standard fees which are the same for everyone."

In other phases of their clinic for themselves, the doctors got advice on such things as selecting investments, buying insurance and working out tax programs.

There were helpful hints too on running their offices. For one thing: Don't keep magazines more than three months.

Hollywood Headlines

Mike Todd Jr. Discards Plans for 'Don Quixote'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD (INS) — "Don Quixote" was so much Mike Todd's own conception of the character and the play that at this moment all ideas of bringing it to the screen have been discarded by Mike Jr. and his associates.

While Mike Sr. was winging his way to New York on the ill-fated "Lucky Liz," Vincent Korda, the art director for "Don Quixote," was waiting in New York for him with plans for location. Korda had earlier communicated with Mike and suggested that "Don Quixote" be filmed in Greece or South America. Mike had ruled out Spain after he received opposition about his ideas of how the famous classic should be filmed.

I am glad that Jennifer Jones is going to make two more pictures for 20th-Century-Fox. Much as I liked her in "Song of Bernadette" I didn't like her in "Farewell to Arms." However, that's merely my opinion, and many people will disagree.

David Selznick has agreed with Buddy Adler to deliver the script and cast to 20th for both pictures. One is "Tender Is the Night" for which Harry Brown, who won an Oscar for "A Place in the Sun" will write the script.

Christopher Isherwood, noted British novelist, will script the other, "Mary Magdalene." But Selznick hasn't decided which of these he'll do first.

Hugh O'Brian (Wyatt Earp) stepped up among the top party givers Tuesday night when he hosted the most original surprise party of the year honoring Nancy Sinatra's birthday.

Hugh, minus his six shooters, assembled 50 of Nancy's closest friends at Romanoff's and then the entire crowd drove to her house in a skydome bus complete with singing musicians. Barbara Stanwyck said the bus was so beautiful "we should just pick up Nancy and go on to San Francisco!"

Nancy, who had thought she was dining alone with Hugh before the cavalcade arrived, was speechless with surprise. And another big moment came when her three children presented her with a white sheared beaver coat. Pretty blonde June Haver kept "modeling" as a "hint" to husband Fred MacMurray. Cute Charlie Coburn danced every mambo.

As Ken Carter said, "This is the kind of party Hollywood used to give in the old days."

Cuban Labor Group Hopes to Block Strike

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—The Cuban Confederation of Labor, which claims a fifth of this island's population as members, has moved to ward off a general strike which rebel leader Fidel Castro threatens.

Castro said the strike will be called "at any moment." Many Cubans expect the call in about a week. The guerrilla leader said Cubans who do not join in will be tried as traitors after the down fall of President Fulgencio Batista, Castro's goal.

Eusebio Mujal, secretary general of the confederation and a staunch Batista supporter, said he had new pledges of loyalty from most of Cuba's workers. Any strike would be crushed quickly, he said.

Who Wouldn't Shake?

ATWATER, Calif. (AP) — Bill Blasingame, 29, was shaking noticeably as he stepped from his pickup truck. He had good reason. A Southern Pacific passenger train had just chopped off the front off his truck, up to the windshield.

'Hope I Never Wake Up'

Oscar Winning Miyoshi Says It's Like a Dream

By PATRICK MCNULTY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the wee hours this morning a tired Miyoshi Umeki took a drag on a cigarette, a sip of coffee and said: "It's all like a dream but I hope I never wake up."

Miyoshi, the button-eyed doll from Japan, said she hasn't slept since winning her Oscar as the best supporting actress for 1957 at Wednesday night's Academy Awards.

Sitting in her night club dressing room, kimono-clad Miyoshi said: "I was so surprised, I didn't think I had a chance."

Her Oscar has meant success, Hollywood-style: a flood of television and movie offers, strangers greet her like an old friend, and agents who curled their lips at the husky-voiced singer a few months ago now beat at her door.

BEGAN IN USO

She began seven years ago singing at a U.S. Army service club near her village of Sapporo on the island of Hokkaido. A job with a band in Tokyo followed. There, in night clubs, she told homesick GIs in song that they went to her head, or that she, too, was dreaming of a white Christmas.

Miyoshi became a recording star in her homeland. She made five movies. But she dreamed of that magic land her American friends talked about — where pretty girls can become movie stars overnight.

Two years ago she came to the United States. And began singing in night clubs.

PERFECT FOR PART

A studio executive spotted her and decided she was perfect for Katsumi, the Japanese girl whose marriage to an American GI ends so tragically with "Sayonara."

The movie industry thought so too, and proved it with an Oscar.

A ringing telephone interrupted her interview.

Rebels Jailed in New York

Caught by Coast Guard on Their Way to Cuba With Arms Shipment

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Thirty-six hungry but fired-up Cuban rebels from New York fumed in jail today charged with conspiracy to violate the U.S. Neutrality Act. Four Ecuadoreans also were accused.

A Coast Guard cutter rammed their 85-foot vessel about five miles off the lower Texas coast in the Gulf of Mexico. All the New Yorkers were uniformed and heavily armed.

Arnoldo G. Barron, who described himself as leader of the group, said the men purchased arms and ammunition from an undisclosed source in the United States with $20,000 which they had saved over a period of months.

He said he was a friend of Cubal rebel leader Fidel Castro and that the United States had no right to seize his men and weapons.

The arms were those "with which we were going to defend freedom — the freedom not only of Cuba but of the world," Barron said.

The group protested by going on a hunger strike. All refused food and coffee ordered to prisoners in Cameron County jail last night.

Barron claimed the United States was shipping arms to Cuban President Batista and that the fast would last until such shipments were halted. He said none of the group had eaten since Wednesday night.

Tom Wagner, U.S. customs agent in charge of the Brownsville office, said authorities had been working on the case for several weeks.

He described the El Orion as a converted snapper boat sailing under Nicaraguan registry. The captain, Jose Bolivar Medina, and the crew of three also were arrested. All identified themselves as residents of Ecuador.

All ut one of the 36 said they were New York born.

Bob Considine Says:

'Shorty' Places Bet and Loses His Life

NEW YORK (INS) — Shorty Manch, a 6-foot-7 Virginian who helped Jimmy Doolittle bomb Tokyo on April 18, 1942, took the odds at Las Vegas the other day. The "house" beat him.

The big, good-natured airman, risen to light colonel and the job of base inspector at Nellis Air Force Base, near the gambling oasis, was tooling along in a T33 jet trainer early this week when, without warning, the engine flamed out. The big fellow ordered his companion, Lt. Harold E. Forman, to bail out, which Forman did without a scratch.

Now Shorty had to make one of those decisions that few men in their life spans are called upon to make. Escape was as simple as pushing a red button. He would have been catapulted out of the giddily sinking plane and would have been back at Nellis in time for a cocktail before dinner.

This was old stuff for Shorty Manch, a real pro in the trade of out-staring emergencies in the flying business. His friend Ted Lawson wrote as follows in "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," describing Shorty's attitude during one of the most dramatic scenes of World War II—the moments before the takeoff of Doolittle's lumbering Army Air Force B25s from the pitching deck of the Hornet:

"Lieutenant Shorty Manch, a Virginian who must have been the tallest fellow in the Air Force, ran up to our plane, carrying a fruitcake tin.

" 'Hey, Clever,' he said to our bombardier, 'will you-all do a fellow a big favor and carry my phonygraph records under your seat? I'll take my record-player along in my plane and we'll meet in Chungking and have us some razz-ma-tazz,' and Shorty practically trucked on away from us through the turmoil."

Then a description of how Manch's mission against Japan ended, the tanks of his bomber bone dry over an unknown section of the China mainland:

"Manch was probably the most heavily armed chutist who ever jumped. He went out with two .45s, a .44-caliber rifle which his folks in Virginia sent him just before we left the states, a .22 automatic, a Luger, extra clips of ammunition, a hunting knife, a Bowie knife and axe.

"We used to kid Shorty a lot about that rifle, and once he yelled back at us, 'Don't kid me, suckers. I'll make my last stand with this shootin' iron. Manch's Last Stand they'll always call it.' He was sure proud of it.

"Before he jumped that night of April 18, Shorty saw to it that every weapon was in its proper place on him. He was well weighted down, but he couldn't bear the thought of going without some Baby Ruth chocolate bars. He stuffed a lot of them in his shirt, open at the collar, and dropped down into the night.

"His chute opened with a loud report and jerked him so badly that it shucked the Baby Ruths right out of their wrappers and out of his shirt. Shorty just molted candy in midair. But, worst of all, for Shorty, his grip was broken on his rifle and three of his four pistols.

"Shorty's six-foot-seven body frightened an entire village out of its huts. But he convinced them that he was friendly by holding his nose and making a face in front of a Jap flag."

Anyway, here was Lt. Col. Manch, 39 now and getting a little gray, with his problem and his conked-out T33. He must have looked at the red button, his last best chance, more than once. But he knew what he would do all along.

If he abandoned ship the chances were that it would crash into the residential section of north Las Vegas. He stayed with it to see that didn't happen. Shorty Manch gambled that he could land it safely in the desert. Like most of the unmindful people in the busy casinos, Shorty lost. But in Shorty's case the stakes were higher. Shorty bet his life.

'Rocket' Counters Twice to Pace Montreal Win; Series Moves to Detroit

MONTREAL (AP) — The Detroit Red Wings held off the decision a little longer this time but the result was the same and they took their second straight shellacking at the hands of Montreal last night.

The Canadiens, led by Maurice (Rocket) Richard, broke the game open in the third period and walked away with a 5-1 triumph, their second straight victory over the Red Wings in the Stanley Cup semi-final best-of-seven series.

In the first game of the playoff Tuesday night they broke loose for five goals in the first period, also with an attack led by Richard, and smothered the Red Wings 8-1.

The series now moves to Detroit's Olympia Stadium for games Sunday and Tuesday.

The Canadiens never trailed but they were within striking distance of the Wings until the third period.

Phil Goyette got them into the lead. Then Detroit's Johnny Wilson punched in a shot to tie the score. Jean Beliveau followed with the goal that proved the eventual winner.

However, the Red Wings still were within reach going into the final period. At 5:05 of the third period Richard scored the back-breaking goal and Andre Pronovost started the Canadiens off toward turning it into a route with a goal just 14 seconds later. Richard tallied the final goal.

Richard's first goal, the turning point of the game that had been a tight defensive contest for two periods, got into the net after three splendid saves by Red Wing goalie Terry Sawchuk. But the fourth one Terry couldn't handle.

From a faceoff the Rocket's brother, Henri Richard, sent a pass wide to the Rocket, who blazed a 20-footer toward the nets. Sawchuk got a piece of it with his stick, but not enough to deflect it.

From there the Canadiens had easy pickings. Pronovost got his goal home all alone. The second Richard goal was a short backward flip of a Dickie Moore pass.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Hawks turned Cliff Hagan loose and defeated the Detroit Pistons 120-96 in the decisive game of the National Basketball Assn.'s western division playoffs last night.

Area Thinclads in Huron Relays

Chiefs, Vikings Renew 1957 Rivalry

By H. GUY MOATS

Eastern Michigan University's annual Huron Relays, which get under way tonight with Class B competition, will mark the 1958 renewal of one of the most bitter prep track rivalries in the state when Pontiac Central's state champions measure strides, Saturday, with the Vikings of Flint Northern.

But both squads will be up against the 1957 unofficial championship squad, Birmingham. Coach Kermit Ambrose will have an entry in every event, and his team again was rated the outfit to beat. Maples compiled 36 points to Northern's 35 and Chiefs were not far behind with 27. There is no formal championship in the relays.

Teams are permitted only one entry in each event.

Efforts to check Class A entries at the Eastern Michigan athletic office were without result, this morning, but Coach Wilson said the entries probably would approximate those of last year, including the two Flint schools, Ann Arbor, Battle Creek, Thurston, Berkley, Ann Arbor, Lansing Sexton, Lansing Eastern, Wayne, Redford, Edsel Ford, Mt. Clemens, Highland Park, two Royal Oak schools, Wyandotte and Mt. Clemens. Toledo Libby was in last year, also. Walled Lake, then Class B, was the only area "B" school to figure in the scoring for that division.

Army 5 in AAU Semifinals

DENVER (AP) — Ft. Leonard Wood's five iron men, who went all the way in overturning Wichita last night, are the only outsiders in the semifinals of the National AAU basketball tournament tonight.

The sturdy soldiers, surprise 48-45 victors over Wichita's cofavorites, match their ball handling skill against Denver's rugged rebounding club that finished third in the National Industrial Basketball League, the AAU's top circuit.

Bartlesville, Okla., co-champion of the NIBL with Wichita, is paired in the first semifinal game at 9:30 p.m. EST against Peoria, Ill., another NIBL team. Denver and Ft. Leonard play at 11 p.m.

Bruins Square Cup Series

Rangers Lose in Overtime

NEW YORK (INS) — Jerry Toppazzini talllied a sudden-death goal in the fifth minute of overtime play last night to give the Boston Bruins a 4-to-3 win over New York and even the semi-final Stanley Cup playoff series at one game apiece.

The 26-year-old right winger from Copper Cliff, Ont., let fly with a 25-footer at 4:48 of the overtime session that caught the upper portion of the net.

Doug Mohns gave the Bruins a 1-to-0 lead early in the game but Andy Bathgate tied it 23 seconds later. The Rangers capitalized on two Boston penalties to take the lead at 8:58 as Bathgate scored again.

McKenney tied it on a solo dash with 22 seconds remaining in the first period and, after Guy Gendron put the Rangers ahead in the second session, McKenney again knotted the count at 11:13 of the third period. It stood that way until Toppazzini's goal, which was set up by Fleming Mackell — who had three assists — and McKenney.

Mickey Crawford Faces Gil Turner at Garden in Televised Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Young and clever Mickey Crawford, who says he can beat most of the leading welterweights, gets a chance to prove it tonight against veteran Gil Turner at Madison Square Garden.

The television 10-rounder over NBC, 10 p.m., EST, marks Crawford's debut as a Garden main eventer.

The tall, fast-punching youngster has posted a fine 20-2 won-lost record in his two years as a pro. His victims include two former lightweight champions, Paddy DeMarco and Wallace "Bud" Smith. Mickey has won 14 of his last 15 bouts.

The defeat was to Ralph Dupas, high-ranking lightweight from New Orleans last Nov. 25. Since then Crawford, a commercial artist when he doesn't fight, has beaten Chico Vejar and Tex Gonzalez, a pair of middleweights.

The Manistee Ski Area said three runs had good corn snow and two tows were operating.

Skyline near Roscommon reported fair to good skiing on a corn base at its west slopes.

Most other resorts have closed for the season.

Swan clinched a tie for the title last night at Crary gym by crushing Johnson & Anderson, 68-34, in the final game of the regular slate. Harry Dearborn tallied 18 points for Swan and Ken Stanick made 11 for J & A.

In yesterday's opening game, Cecil Dumbrigue, Bob Beedle and Dick Gilcrest scored 13 points apiece to lead Ryeson's Super Market to a 52-43 victory over the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The annual league playoffs involving the top four teams in the final standings begin next Tuesday night on the Crary court. J & A meets Swan at 7:15, followed by an 8:30 contest between Ryeson's and Drayton Drug.

HERMAN WEHMEIER

By BEN OLAN

Bob Hazle was a most pleasant surprise for the Milwaukee Braves last season. Brought up from Wichita of the American Assn. where he had compiled only a fair record, Hazle hit at a blistering .403 pace in 41 games for Milwaukee.

Hazle played a pivotal role in the following situation. St. Louis Manager Fred Hutchinson pulled his charges out of a damaging situation with some sound strategy. What would you have done to keep the Braves from scoring?

The Cards and Braves are deadlocked 4-4 in the top of the 11th at St. Louis. Herman Wehmeier (R) is on the mound for the Cardinals. Ed Mathews and Hank Aaron, Milwaukee's first two batters, are easy outs. Wes Covington then follows with a triple. Hazle (L) is the next batter with Felix Mantilla (R) and Del Rice (R) to follow.

Would you:

a. Bring in a lefthander to pitch to Hazle?

b. Have Wehmeier walk Hazle intentionally and pitch to Mantilla?

c. Have Wehmeier walk Hazle and Mantilla intentionally to get to Rice?

(Other data: Wehmeier has given up eight hits in 10⅔ innings; Mantilla is hitting .225 for the year and Rice .221; Vinegar Bend Mizell is the available southpaw pitcher.)

Result: B — Wehmeier walks Hazle intentionally, then strikes out Mantilla to end the inning. Cards go up a run in the 12th and win 5-4 (Sept).

'M', Ohio State Swimmers Tied for 1st

ANN ARBOR (AP) — The Big Ten, as expected, wasted no time before it began dominating the 35th NCAA swimming championships.

The Midwesterners moved right into the forefront, winning the first two events last night when the 16-event, three-day meet opened.

Big Ten swimmers and divers grabbed nine of the 12 point-scoring places in the 1,500-meter free style and one-meter diving.

Favored Michigan, the defending champion, and Ohio State, a 10-time former ruler, were deadlocked today in first place with 10 points each.

Michigan State with seven points was third and Indiana with five points was fourth. Eight titles will be decided tonight among the 59 schools entered.

Bill Steuart, a Michigan State sophomore from Johannesburg, South Africa, sprinted the final 100 yards and nipped Indiana's John Parks in the gruelling 1,500-meter freestyle.

Don Harper of Ohio State, who was second in the three-meter diving at the 1956 Olympics, dethroned Michigan's Dick Kimball on the one-meter springboard.

Steuart had a battle from Parks before he cast aside the 6-foot-7 Hawaiian's desperate bid at the tape.

Parks finished only inches behind Steuart. The Michigan State distance swimmer was clocked 18:-45.8, far slower than George Breen's world and meet records. Parks, who led midway, came in two-tenths of a second behind Steuart.

California Poly's Gene Lenz was in contention most of the route and placed third in 18:56.1.

Harper edged defending champion Kimball by almost 14 points in the low board diving. Harper piled 481.25 points. Teammates Ron O'Brien and Sam Hall placed fifth and sixth as the Buckeyes accounted for all 10 of their points off the one-meter board.

Runnerup Kimball was trailed by Michigan teammate Al Gaxiola, the Mexican national diving champion. Ron Smith of Southern Methodist broke the Big Ten diving monopoly by taking fourth. Smith was second last year when Ohio State didn't compete due to its NCAA probation.

Michigan won nine of its points in the diving. The Wolverines added the other when Carl Wooley placed sixth in the 1,500-meter freestyle.

Lorin Whittaker of Illinois was fourth and Darwin Killpack of Utah was fifth in the endurance swim.

Team standings had California Poly in fifth, Illinois and Southern Methodist tied for sixth and Utah in eighth.

Yale, rated Michigan's leading challenger, was shut out last night. It had but one diver competing. Eli Roger Anderson was scratched from the 1,500. Yale was expected to score heavily tonight.

N.C. Tourney Is Final Qualifying Call for Pro Linksmen

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — There's considerably more at stake than just another of the weekly golf tournaments in the $15,000 Azalea Open getting under way here today.

This is the last call for qualifying for the two berths still vacant in the blue ribbon Augusta Masters opening next Thursday. The professional Golfers Assn. has a point system whereby two pros doing the best on the winter tour and not already in the Masters field qualify for the vacancies.

Twenty-five points are given a player for a tournament victory, 24 for a second place and so on down to one point for finishing 25th. In addition, a tournament victory carries a 10-point bonus.

Currently, four pros are contending for the places. Bo Wininger, silver-haired Odessa, Tex., entry, is the leader with 105 points. Dave Ragan of Orlando, Fla., follows with 91¼. In third place with 78 is Bob Rosburg, Pudgy Napa, Calif., pro who has been in a slump this month. Dave Marr of Cedarhurst, N.Y., is fourth with 62.

IBC Records Under Investigation

NEW YORK (AP)—Under lock and key in District Attorney Frank S. Hogan's office today were a memorandum book, 16 bulky folders and other papers belonging to Herman "Hymie, the Mink" Wallman. By Monday Hogan will have in his possession all International Boxing Club records from 1956 to date.

Through these records and other information, Hogan hopes to find out whether there has been any skullduggery in the sport of boxing.

Hogans representatives, headed by Assistant D. A. John Bononi, obtained Walman's records yesterday after getting a search warrant from General Sessions Judge John A. Mullen.

In an affidavit asking for the warrant, Bononi advised Judge Mullen that such alleged crimes as conspiracy, violation of unlicensed managers, promoters and matchmakers and bribery" are being and have been committed by Paul John Carbo, also known as Frankie Carbo, and other persons whose identities are not as yet ascertained.

Bononi also advised Judge Mullen that past investigation by the district attorney's office had established Carbo as "an undercover manager of professional prize fighters through various front men."

Wallman, manager of heavyweight contender Alex Mitteff of Argentina, featherweight contender Ike Chestnut of New York and lightweight Orlando Zulueta of Cuba among others, was described by Bononi as the "front man for Carbo."

Harry Markson, IBC managing director who along with Wallman was served with a subpoena for a grand jury appearance, was ordered to produce by Monday all of his organization's records from 1956 to date.

Searching of the office of the 57-year-old Wallman, who is in the fur business, and the issuing of a subpoena to Markson were the latest developments in Hogan's investigation of boxing which came to light last week.

At that time after the Virgil Akins-Isaac Logart welterweight tournament fight in Madison Square Garden, a dozen or so men connected with the sport were served with grand jury subpoenas.

Included in the group according to Hogan's office were the two fighters, Akins' co-managers Eddie Yawitz of St. Louis and Bernie Glickman of Chicago; Logart's manager Eddie Mafuz; Billy Brown, IBC matchmaker and managers Willie Ketchup and Jimmy White.

Grand National Tomorrow

AINTREE, England (AP)—During a tense 10 minutes tomorrow afternoon there probably will be more gamblers in the world than any other time this year.

It begins at 10:15 a.m. EST and when it is over more than 30 million dollars will have changed hands according to a London gambling agent.

"There probably is a lot more but who can say how much? If Wyndburgh, the favorite at 17-2 wins, there will be several beggers among the bookmakers Saturday night.

"If one of the long shots like Tiberetta or Sydney Jones win, the take will be lovely."

Other favorites behind Wyndburgh are Springsilver, Mr. What, Goosander and Sentina. They range around the 18-1 and 20-1 class.

Don't Give Up on Tigers, McHale Says

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Don't push the panic button on the Tigers, says John McHale. The team just hasn't got the message yet.

McHale returned to Lakeland yesterday after a swing around the Grapefruit circuit. With the Tigers stuck with a 5-11 exhibition record including only one victory in the last eight games, McHale wanted to see if there was any glitter on the other diamonds. Things, he found, were tough all over.

"Outside of the Yanks and the Braves I didn't find a club that didn't have as many problems as we do," McHale reported.

He argued that the Tigers have the makings for a winning campaign and that despite the poor showing the spring season hasn't been a total loss.

"Detroit has had to look at a lot more young, untried players than some of the other clubs and a lot of them have been pitchers," declared McHale. "We hit well enough to win 11 or 12 games."

"Another thing," he said, "we haven't been able to get in good condition because of the weather," adding he was confident the team will jell by the start of the regular season.

"We're disappointed, naturally, but we're not the type of men who think we have to make an immediate move," Hansen said. He added the club owners still have confidence in the team and in the managers.

Field manager Jack Tighe also is sure the club will come around. "But I wish they'd hurry up and do it," he added wistfully.

The Tigers, who were idle yesterday, meet the Los Angeles Dodgers here at Lakeland today.

Nixon Makes It 5 Straight Wins; Score and Mays in Form

Boston 10-4 Led by Hurling

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

The Associated Press

Owning a 10-4 won-lost record along the Grapefruit and Citrus circuits, the Red Sox have won their last five games. During that span the Boston hurlers have allowed just 11 runs—an average of slightly more than two per cent contest.

MUTT IN A MITT — Montreal catcher Mike Napoli, working out with the Brooklyn Dodgers, finds his pet Chihuahua likes his glove to take a nap. He is almost hidden by the ball.

Pinky Higgins' club began the spring training season with a flourish as they fashioned a four-game victory skein with the Sox pitchers giving up only nine runs. Boston then proceeded to lose four of the next five games before embarking on its current string.

Willard Nixon, who started the Red Sox streak against the world champion Milwaukee Braves March 22, turned in another fine showing Thursday as Boston edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1.

Nixon went the first five innings and received credit for the victory, although touched for the lone run. The veteran righthander yielded four hits and struck out five. Ike Delock and Leo Kiely, working two innings apiece, finished unscathed.

The Red Sox, held to four hits, capitalized on seven walks to squeeze out the triumph. Boston scored both runs in the opening inning off Danny McDevitt. There were two out when Frank Malzone singled and Gene Stephens doubled him across. Three consecutive passes forced Stephens home for the margin of victory.

Herb Score was back in form as the Cleveland Indians broke a four-game losing streak with a 13-7 triumph over the Chicago Cubs. Bothered by a sprained ankle and a stiff shoulder most of the spring, Score cut loose and pitched four hitless and scoreless innings.

The stylish southpaw, who was sidelined for most of last season after being hit with a line drive May 7, struck out five and walked two allowing only two balls to be hit out of the infield.

The Indians scored six runs in the eighth inning to break a 7-7 tie after they had jumped ahead with seven in the fourth. Walt Moryn socked two home runs to give the Cubs 17 round-trippers in their last six games.

The San Francisco Giants blanked the Baltimore Orioles 10-0 behind Andre Rodgers' pair of homers and Ramon Monzant's six scoreless innings. Willie Mays also slammed his third circuit clout in two days.

Aided by Mickey Mantle's two-run triple, the New York Yankees tallied three times in the bottom of the ninth to shade Kansas City 5-4. Billy Hunter homered twice for the A's.

In other games Harry Anderson and Stan Lopata walloped four-baggers to spark the Philadelphia Phils to a 6-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox; Dee Fondy produced three hits—including a homer — and Brooks Lawrence limited Pittsburgh to three hits in seven innings as the Cincinnati Redlegs whipped the Pirates 9-1 and Bob Mabe walked pinch-hitter Herb Plews with the bases full in the last of the ninth to give the Washington Senators a 2-1 squeaker over the St. Louis Cards.

Old Elbow Ailment Bothering Crandall

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Catcher Del Crandall hid an elow injury as the Milwaukee Braves battled to the world championship last year, but he's paying the price this spring.

Del has been seeing Dr. Michael Discosola in Sarasota, and said he was told the problem is a bone roughness, similar to a bone spur but only smaller.

If the injury fails to respond to heat therapy surgery will be undertaken, but only as a final resort. The injury developed in Crandall's left elbow when former Pirate Dick Cole slid into him at home in June 1956.

No Sun for Spartans

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Michigan State and the Parris Island Marines were scheduled to play a baseball double-header today in an effort to make up a game postponed yesterday by wet grounds.

The postponement was the third for the Michigan State squad on its current spring training tour.

NCAA Bouts in Semifinals

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Harold Espy, defending NCAA heavyweight champion from Idaho State College, will be the underdog tonight in the semifinals of the NCAA National Boxing tournament here.

Espy's opponent tonight, Archie Milton of San Jose State, has already whipped him twice this year. A 20-year-old sophomore from Redwood City, Calif., Milton won the Pacific Coast title in Reno, Nev., last week.

In other heavyweight semifinal, Ron Freeman of Wisconsin meets Tom McNeeley of Michigan State. Freeman, who outpointed Don Tessier of Cal Poly in a preliminary last night, has a victory and a draw in two previous bouts with McNeeley this year. McNeeley split a pair with Espy.

Semifinals tonight include:

IN OTHER BOUTS INVOLVING MICHIGAN FIGHTERS:

Union Lake Bowling Tournament Saturday

Any bowler is eligible to take part in the tourney. All proceeds go towards the upkeep of the volunteer department.

New Records Seen in Relays

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Interest centered in the relay events, and the possibility of two new world records, as the big Texas Relays got underway today.

Experts looked for possible world marks in the mile medley relay and the 880-yard relays, while indications were that meet marks may crumble in all events but the shot put.

The best bet for a new world standard centered on California's lean Don Bowden and sprinter Willie White in the sprint medley. Bowden, the only American to crack the 4-minute mile, will handle the 880 yard chore while White, who upset Olympic sensation Bobby Morrow last year at Compton, Calif., will run a 220-yard leg.

Transit-Mix Industry, Teamsters OK Pact

DETROIT (AP) — The Teamsters Union said a new wage settlement covering 900 drivers and other workers in the transit-mix industry in the Detroit area amounts to an increase of 39½ cents an hour over a three-year period.

The industry supplies concrete mixed en route to construction projects.

George Kirchner, business agent of Teamsters Local 247, said the settlement calls for a 14-cent hourly increase retroactive to Feb. 1, another 10 cents hourly raise next year and a third increase of 10 cents an hour in 1960.

Kirchner said increases in fringe benefits bring the total package to 39½ cents an hour.

Ike Veto Threat Pushes Wheat

CHICAGO (AP) — All new crop what deliveries were under moderate selling pressure in early dealings today on the Board of Trade following unofficial word that President Eisenhower will veto the measure asking for extension of 1957 farm price supports through 1958.

Traders said their advices were that the President has decided with finality to veto the legislation — without concessions of any kind.

The new crop wheat contracts were off around a cent a bushel within the first few minutes of trading, but soybeans and other grains held around steady.

Near the end of the first hour, wheat was unchanged to ⅛ cent a bushel lower, May $2.17⅛; corn ¼ to ⅝ higher, May $1.18¼; oats unchanged to ⅜ higher, May 66¾; rye unchanged to ⅜ lower May $1.28¾; soybeans ⅛ to ½ higher, May $2.26; lard 10 to 20 cents a hundred pounds higher, May $12.85.

GM Prepares Reply to UAW Demands

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. negotiators today studied United Auto Workers Union contract demands in preparation for a reply expected to be made when contract talks resume April 8.

A GM spokesman said before the start of negotiations Tuesday the reply would not necessarily be in the form of a counterproposal.

GM and the UAW have served notice on each other they will seek revisions in the present three-year contract which expires at midnight May 29.

GM has offered to renew the 1955 contract, which gears wages to the cost of living and provides for an automatic annual increase of six cents an hour. The union has rejected this offer.

The current contract stipulates that notice of modification must be given 60 days before the expiration date. If such notice has been given, the contract then may be terminated upon 30-day written notice any time after April 29.

Arrested in Theft of Record Albums

A thief made off with $32 worth of record albums from Neisner's department store, 42 N. Saginaw St. and slugged an employe who tried to stop him.

Oscar Berg, assistant manager, told Pontiac Police yesterday he saw the man trying to leave the store with the records and was hit when he grabbed him.

Police later arrested Jimmy Gardner, 17, of 364 W. South Blvd., and charged him with simple larceny and assault and battery.

Gardner plead not guilty in municipal court on both counts and trial was set for April 2.

FTC Charges Two City Firms

Cites Refusal to Honor Warranties on Electric Heating Products

The Federal Trade Commission has cited two Pontiac firms with refusing to honor warranties on their products.

Named in the complaint are Infraglass Heater Co., Inc., and Whizzer Industries, Inc., of 350 S. Sanford St.

Also cited are Donald J. Heckmann, president of Infraglass, and Dietrick Kohlsaat, president of Whizzer, along with Henry Schuricht and Martin Goldman, Whizzer officials.

The FTC charged that the firms refused to honor five-year guarantees on electric heaters. A hearing was set for May 8 in Detroit.

Goldman said today that Whizzer Industries owned stock in Infraglass but had not other connection with the firm which is now out of business.

He said Infraglass was buying its electric heaters from a Canadian firm which refused to honor the warranties.

As a result, Infraglass is now out of business and its stockholders are planning suit against the Canadian company, he stated.

Detroit Among 5 Critical Jobless Areas in U.S.

DETROIT (INS) — Detroit was designated as one of the five most critical areas of unemployment by the U. S. Department of Labor yesterday.

The city, with 14.7 per cent of the labor force idle, was jumped from the category denoting between 6 and 8.9 per cent unemployed to one for areas with more than 12 per cent out of work.

Orion to Expand School Facilities

Plans Fall Opening of Two Classrooms for Handicapped Children

ORION TOWNSHIP — The Lake Orion Community School Board pressed forward with plans to expand the township's special education facilities with the announcement that bids will be advertised April 5 for construction of a two-classroom addition for use by handicapped children.

Architects drawings of the addition, to be constructed at Webber School, Clarkston road near Baldwin, were approved by the board Wednesday night. Current plans to have the addition completed in time to start fall classes for pupils of junior high school age requiring special instruction.

Bids will be opened April 23, and a completion date for the building has been set for Aug. 25.

Oakland County special education funds will pay for construction costs, not to exceed $35,000 and equipment for the rooms. The school board will hire a special education teacher and maintain the rooms. The latter costs will be covered partially by state aid, which is double the usual amount for students requiring special instruction.

At its Wednesday meeting, the school board also approved the purchase of two buses at $5,991.14 each from Keego Motor Sales, low bidder.

A request to issue teachers' pay checks ever other Friday instead of on the 15th and 30th was approved. The board voted against a increase in teachers' salaries in the next year, apart from standard tenure and degree clause raises.

Starting salary in Lake Orion is $4,200. A $100 annual raise was granted.

Continuation of the summer band program also was approved.

Builds Himself Road So He Can Reach Island

ST. AGATHA, Maine (AP) — Edwin Pelletier of Frenchville farms a 300-acre island in Long Lake here. Until this year, the only way to reach the island was by boat. "Sick and tired of running a ferry," Pelletier had a causeway built.

It took 5,000 yards of rock and 36,000 yards of gravel. Now he has his own road, three fourths of a mile long and 18 inches above the spring high water mark. He figures it will make easier his job of raising potatoes, grain and hay. He also pastures beef cattle on the island.

Ruth Ann Norris Weds J. Feliks at Walled Lake

WALLED LAKE — Ruth Ann Norris of Walled Lake and James J. Feliks of Melvindale spoke their nuptial vows in a candlelight ceremony at the Walled Lake Methodist Church. The Rev. John Mulder performed the rite last Friday evening.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Norris of 1230 Decker Rd. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley G. Feliks of 17489 Park Ave., Melvindale.

The bridal gown was fashioned with a long - sleeved lace bodice, featuring a scalloped neckline, and bouffant ballerina - length skirt of white nylon chiffon. A pearl tiara secured the bride's shoulder - length veil and she carried a white rose centered on a white Bible.

Best man was Richard Worth of Milford, and ushers were Lynn Lamberson and Dennis McClellan, both of Walled Lake.

Comedy Couple Is Well-Matched

By JOAN HANAUER

That's what Miss Coca said in describing how happy she was to be back as Sid's sidekick on the ABC-TV show "Sid Caesar Invites You" (Sundays at 9 p.m.).

"Just thinking about the show is a happy thought. I like the whole idea of it because I like working with Sid.

"I don't know exactly why we make a good team. Perhaps it's because we feel exactly the same way about our material. Without even discussing it we like and dislike the same things and see things from the same angle. Why that should be I don't know."

It has been almost four years since the old "Show of Shows" team of Caesar and Coca split up for reasons never clearly explained.

Neither comic has been successful in "got-it-alone" attempts.

Miss Coca, like Caesar, had her own show but she's glad to be back in a no-decisions-necessary position. She said:

"I never was for the other thing. No matter how it had turned out, it wouldn't have been happy. You need a good business sense to be able to run things. Some people are equipped to say 'Fire him,' 'Take this out,' 'Do this over,' I'm not.

ALWAYS AN EMPLOYE

"Having your own show means you must have more business relationships with people. I've always been an employe and I want to keep it that way."

As Miss Coca described it, she has more voice in the shows with Sid than she ever had with her own production. She said:

"I'm not as creative as Sid, but sometimes I get an idea. Like the time we were a Martian couple visiting Levittown. I'm devoted to that idea because it was mine.

"For the most part," Miss Coca said, "we know exactly what we are going to do in the sketches. But sometimes we find a bit of business or an ad lib line that leads us off in another direction on the air.

"That's the fun of working with Sid. I don't have to stick to the script. There are very few people you can do that with or even have a line occur to you with. Sid's creativity kind of pushes you."

Marilyn Breaks a Toe in Fall Down Stairs

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Our dream doll, Marilyn Monroe, fell down a flight of stairs, cut an artery in her right hand, and broke the second toe in her left foot the other night at the farm house she and Arthur Miller were occupying near Roxbury, Conn.

WILSON

Marilyn went a-tumbling down while they were entertaining. The stairway has very steep steps—and at the bottom is a glass door through which Marilyn's beautiful body didn't crash, hurray.

Marilyn's many friends (male) will be happy to hear that she wasn't hurt anyplace important.

Mike Todd's plane's de-icing equipment was faulty here in New York before his death and Mike flew back commercial while the de-icer was to be repaired.

"Things I'm not interested in" (By Ham Park, Salt Lake City): "Pay TV . . . the Sullivan-Allen feud . . . Gene Fullmer's future . . . a trip to the moon . . . exercise . . . tranquilizers . . . long poems" — and how about French elections . . . Yachting . . . Horseback riding . . . Bouillabaisse . . . Caps.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Sarah Vaughan flew to Chicago as Joe Louis' guest for the Robinson-Basilio fight . . . Martha Raye cancelled a Palm Springs cafe date — suffered a relapse . . . Lionel Hampton flew in from Europe same day his wife arrived by boat; they won't fly together . . . Frank Sinatra bet 10 grand on Robinson at 19-10. . . Lois O'Brien, who'll be a hostess on the new TV'er, "Wingo," is featured in "Oklahoma!" at N.Y. City Center.

Actress Jean Seberg reportedly got $200 a week for making "Joan of Arc" and "Bonjour Tristesse" . . . With Elvis in khaki, the local shops are slashing the price on Presley pictures in half . . . Dorothy Lamour will star in a TV series in the fall.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: The type of manly face that attracts most women can be found on a $100 bill. That's earl, brother.

Can Man Subsist in State of Weightlessness?

By STEVE LOWELL
3rd in Series

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (UP) — The prime space age problem can be posed in five letters. It's zero-G.

Zero-G means no gravity. When man gets far into space, away from the earth's pull, he will weigh nothing.

Col. John Paul Stapp, space's No. 1 pioneer, puts it this way: "We must find out how well man can change gravity climates. A 150-pound man on earth would weight 25 pounds on the moon, but during his flight from the earth he would weigh nothing.

"There is no way to experiment with prolonged absence of gravity except with an orbital satelite research vehicle. We can learn a good deal with animals, but eventually we will need man to experiment with total weightlessness."

Putting it another way, the first step to the moon—or to anywhere in outer space—will be a manned satellite. Then, says Stapp, it will be a space platform.

The next probability, he believes would be a moon landing and exploration—"and that is about as far as we can conjecture at this time."

Stapp, a 47-year-old physician, is head of the aero-medical laboratory at the Air Force Missile Test Center here. Next month he goes to Dayton to take over a similar laboratory at the big air base there.

Of the solution to zero-G, he says: "This may turn out to be as easy on man as it was for him to go through the sound barrier, but we'll never know until we try. Indications are that he will adjust. He did when he learned to fly."

Weightlessness is the sort of thing you can experience for a fraction of a second when you drive at fairly high speed over a comparatively sharp rise in a highway. As the car clears the bump and starts down the other side, your body rises for an instant off the car seat. Roller coaster riders know the same feeling.

Capt. Joe Kittinger is an Air Force pilot who has done considerable experimenting in weightlessness. He also has taken a balloon up 96,000 feet to test human reaction to high altitudes.

Kittinger will climb to 20,000 feet, level off, fly at top speed, then put the plane into a climbing angle of about 70 degrees, push the stick ahead and go over the same sort of hump that a roller coaster rider would.

Anything not fastened down goes to the top of the canopy above his head. So would he, if his seat belt didn't hold him.

But the longest Kittinger has been able to maintain this weightlessness is 35 seconds. That's not long enough, says another captain who won a Ph.D. at the University of Illinois this year with a thesis on weightlessness.

Capt. Grover J. D. Schack of the missile center space biology branch says: "Long-term exposure is something we know very little about."

Pilots have learned to trust instruments, and he believes man's adjustment to space will come in the same way. How soon?

In the near future, he hopes to stretch his experiments by a few seconds and: "In high performance planes we may be able to go something over a minute in zero-G. In rockets, someday, we will be able to go longer, and sometime there will be manned satellites."

And then, eventually, there will be rockets to the moon and possibly beyond, carrying humans. But there is a great deal to be learned between now and then.

7 People Suffocate in Apartment Fire

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UP) — Seven persons, three of them children, died of suffocation early today when a fire trapped them in an apartment house.

Fire Capt. Joseph J. Nalore said the fire apparently broke out on the front porch of the 2½-story building near downtown Rochester and swept upward, burning the front of the house and cutting off all exists.

Six of the dead were Puerto Ricans.

Three persons were hospitalized. Neighbors reported seeing occupants jumping from the second floor.

The Monroe County morgue tentatively identified the dead as: Mrs. Mercedes Pino Garcia, her daughter Wanda, 2, and her son Juan, 3; Juan Colon, 29; Mrs. Aide Orengo, 21, and her son Luis Feliciano, 5, and Harry Talford, 62.

The morgue said all died of suffocation.

Didn't They Get Wet?

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UP) — Three men strolled in out of the rain and forced a loan company clerk to dump $3,000 into an inverted umbrella. Then they nonchalantly strolled out carrying the folded umbrella.

Keep Records Straight

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Burglars carefully rang up the exact sales price of $2,044.48 in power tools on a lumber company cash register but escaped without putting any money in the till.

Car Bears Strange Cargo

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP) — Police were called to the scene of a minor auto accident. One of the cars, bearing Colorado license plates, was abandoned. In the officers found a half case of canned tuna fish and another half case of packaged brassieres. The owner was not located.

Newspapers last year received a third of the total $10 billion in advertising expenditures.
