Road System Costs Up $10 Billion

Which State Tax Should Get Hike? Is Major Study

By ROGER LANE

EAST LANSING (AP) — Research men have advised citizens studying Michigan's tax structure of ways to wring an extra 80 million dollars a year out of the state sales tax, or cut its yield by more than 60 millions.

As to what if anything should be done, the researchers said it's all in how you look at it, and in part dependent on conclusions reached in related taxation fields.

The Citizens Advisory Committee to the Conlin legislative tax study heard these other major points developed yesterday mainly by Dr. Harvey E. Brazer, University of Michigan economist and committee research director:

1. Taxation on insurance premiums, now netting the state 18 million dollars a year, could produce twice that much by application of a uniform rate of three per cent and broadening the base of the tax.

2. The state chain store tax is not worth much as a revenue measure, bringing in about one half million dollars a year. The 1933 statute failed in its original purpose to discourage chain store growth, is a "discriminatory nuisance" and probably should be repealed.

Staff research reports on the three taxes totaling 105 pages were presented to the advisory committee, bringing to four the number received. In all, about 30 are expected before the committee concludes its fact-finding phase in May.

No conclusions were reached yesterday, with committee members confining the discussion largely to questions. None were expected.

The group decided to meet for further fact-finding Jan. 28 in Detroit.

A report prepared by Dr. Denzil C. Cline, Michigan State University economist, showed that the three per cent sales tax last year produced $308,544,000, or $328,805,000 counting receipts from the complementary state use tax.

Gross revenue was second among the 33 sales tax states, Cline said, behind only California's $603,333,000.

On a per capita basis, Michigan stood third with $43.75. The state was fourth in per cent of total tax income derived from sales with 48.6 per cent and sixth in

Gavels Open Legislature

State Session Begins With Financial Crisis Demanding Solution

LANSING (AP) — The slam of gavels at 12 noon in the Senate and House signaled the start of the 1958 Michigan Legislature — a session faced with a stack of vexing money problems.

Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart signaled the Senate to order.

The House speaker, Rep. George M. Van Peursem (R-Zeeland) couldn't speak above a whisper because of a throat operation, so designated Rep. Don M. Pears (R-Buchanan) to take over temporarily.

After the session-opening formalities, little was on tap for the remainder of the day for the 110 House members and 34 senators, scattered since the end of the 1957 session last May.

Thursday the lawmakers are to hear Gov. Williams outline his legislative program at a joint Senate-House meeting at 11 a.m.

Without much further ado, other perhaps than a rash of bill introductions, they were expected to go their separate ways until the first night meeting, next Monday.

Money problems brought on by shrinking treasury balances and increasing demands for state services, particularly in the field of education, promised to hold the spotlight off and on until the regular session is scheduled to end in April.

Williams, a Democrat, again faces a Legislature dominated by Republicans in both houses.

His proposal to pull the state out of financial crisis by doubling the state tax on stocks, bonds and other intangibles already has run into opposition from some Republican legislative leaders.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A score of vessels from the United States and Cuba, continued searching today for the yacht Revonoc, missing since Jan. 2 in foul weather off Florida with five persons aboard, including publisher Harvey Conover.

225 Bills in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen introduced about 225 new bills on the opening day of the new session.

MSU Head Defends U.S. School System

MIAMI (INS) — Michigan State University President John A. Hannah defended the American education system last night in a speech before the 44th annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges.

Hannah said the education system "does not need drastic overhauling" in the wake of the Sputnik flights.

He denied the "need for major education changes just because the Soviet Communists have proved themselves more ingenious—or more industrious—in one particular field of activity.

"Our graduates are the men and women who have helped develop world leadership in science and technology, to give us the highest standard of living ever known and to produce the atom bomb."

He said the situation developed out of military, political and economic factors over which higher education has little or no direct influence.

Ike Will Answer Red Challenges, U.S. Criticism

State of Union Message Will Be Presented to Congress Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (INS)—President Eisenhower applies the finishing touches today to his 1958 hard-hitting State of the Union message which will be his answer to mounting Soviet challenges and growing home-front concern over how he is meeting them.

The chief executive will go before a joint session of Congress about noon tomorrow to present a national security program which GOP leaders already have held as a "forthright" reply to the Soviet threat.

As a prelude to the proposals he will make, Eisenhower asked Congress yesterday for new appropriations to provide $1,370,000,000 before July 1 to expand U. S. missile-satellite and air defense programs.

Of this, $1,260,000,000 would be a supplemental appropriation and 110 million dollars a transfer of funds already allocated to the Defense Department.

News Secretary James C. Hagerty said this would mean an actual boost of only 191 million dollars in military spending for the fiscal year ending next June 30, plus increased obligational authority.

Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland of California said after meeting with Eisenhower that he does not "expect any trouble" in Radio: WWJ, WXYZ, WJR, WKMH, CKLW.

Killian Admits He's All Snafu on New Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I feel a lot more like I do now then when I came in," quipped Dr. James R. Killian, scientific adviser to the President at his first Washington speech last night.

He was addressing the Women's National Press Club and credited the quote to a young woman with three drinks under her belt attending her first party in Washington, before getting into the more serious phases of his speech.

On leave as president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he said it was the best way to explain how he felt after being in Washington for two months.

Plans Progressing for MSU Oakland Branch

ENTRANCE COURT — This is the architect's drawing of the entrance court which will connect the two wings of the main building at the Michigan State University Oakland Branch. The court will be an open corridor linking the three-story classroom wing and the one-story wing which will house administrative offices, laboratories and lecture rooms. According to the designer of the buildings, Swanson Associates, Inc. of Bloomfield Hills, the plans will go out for bids March 1. The college will be at the Alfred G. Wilson's Meadow Brook Farms estate near Rochester which they gave to the university, along with a $2,000,000 grant, last year.

State Becomes Nation's Icebox

Deep Freeze Covers All Sections; Pontiac Records Low of 4

Pontiac shivered and suffered along with the rest of the state today, as Michigan became the nation's ice box.

Winter's icy finger plunged temperatures to zero or below in every section of the state, except the Detroit area and the northwest section of the upper peninsula, the weather bureau reported.

The deep freeze promises to continue at least to the end of the week. For the Pontiac area, the U.S. Weather Bureau reports fair and not so cold tonight, with a low of 15-19 degrees. Tomorrow will be fair and warmer with a high of 28-32.

The coldest spot in the nation last night was Pellston, registering a bone-chilling 25 below. It was 11 below in Sault Ste. Marie. The "warmest" spot in the state was Wakefield, in the upper peninsula, with a reading of 15 above.

Temperatures dropped to zero in Kalamazoo last night and it was 5 below in Grand Rapids.

The lowest temperature in downtown Pontiac today was 4 above, recorded at 8 a.m. At 2 p.m. the reading was 18.

The Oakland County Road Commission reports all major roads and highways are clear, but gravel and side roads are somewhat slippery.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Snow fell at Lakeland in central Florida today as freezing weather sliced deep into the peninsula.

Flath Balking Ziem's Probe Into Dr. Sullenberger Case

A dual investigation into charges against Dr. Neil H. Sullenberger, suspended Pontiac General Hospital surgeon, was balked during its first few hours yesterday.

Carl I. Flath, Pontiac General director, refused to agree to open up files containing secret data he hopes to use as evidence against Dr. Sullenberger until a conference with hospital attorneys in a day or so.

Without the evidence, the investigations are stalled, said Prosecutor Frederick C. Ziem.

The evidence in question is that upon which Flath based his allegations that Dr. Sullenberger during the past 18 months at Pontiac General had violated professional medical standards 25 times. In six of the cases, the patient died, Flath said.

These charges were made in answer to a $250,000 damage suit brough by Dr. Sullenberger, who was suspended from the hospital Nov. 13.

Flath's action to protect his evidence came yesterday afternoon during a 2½-hour conference at his office with county and state officials.

Present were Ziem, Assistant Prosecutor LeRoy W. MacIntee, Assistant Atty. Gen. Maurice M. Moule and Ray M. Sweet, investigator for the State Board of Registration in Medicine.

TO PREVENT LEAK

Flath's position was that if the evidence were made public or leaked out before the trial, its strength might be lost.

Following the conference, he made this explanation:

"Although I have no objections to answering questions, we must protect the hospital. You must remember that we are being sued for a quarter of a million dollars.

"It is certainly not our intention at this moment to reveal evidence that would tip our hand in this suit."

It might be better, Flath said, for the investigations to wait until the trial is concluded.

Informed of the development, City Attorney William A. Ewart agreed with Flath.

"I don't think we should reveal anything that would jeopardize our position in court," Ewart said last night. "I'm going to stand my ground on this and I don't think anyone can get a court order to make me do otherwise."

Questioned about the hospital's stand, Ziem agreed yesterday afternoon that "the investigations can not proceed without access to the hospital's files."

CAN GET ACCESS

However, Ziem added, "I'm sure

30-Mile Winds in Florida Hinder Atlas ICBM Firing

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Cold winds hitting a peak velocity of 30 miles an hour bothered Atlas crewmen today as they prepared one of the big intercontinental ballistic missiles (Atlas) for firing.

The Weather Bureau said the winds are not expected to diminish until tonight.

If so, they might force a postponement of the firing until tomorrow. Winds of 30 m.p.h. could make the launching of a big rocket difficult.

At 10:30 a.m., the red ball which warns of an upcoming missile shoot had not been raised to the top of its pole, indicating that if a firing still is planned today it would be some hours away.

The Atlas "shoot" is expected to be followed quickly as possible by another U. S. attempt to launch an earth satellite.

The U. S. launched its first successful Atlas Dec. 17 in what the Defense Department termed a "limited range test" of 800 miles.

Two previous attempts to fly the giant rocket proved only partially successful when the missiles were destroyed in flight after rising only a few hundred feet in the air.

The missile test center has been virtually idle since the start of the holidays.

A stepped-up testing schedule had been expected to get under way promptly after New Year's Day, but the area has been plagued by inclement weather.

A red warning signal indicating an imminent missile launching was hoisted at the Cape yesterday afternoon, but was later hauled down when rainy, gray skies again moved in on the area.

In addition to the Atlas and Vanguard shoots, a 200-mile range Army Redstone missile also is reportedly ready to go, along with an Air Force aero - dynamic Navaho.

The Navaho is an air-breathing, long-range strategic missile. The Air Force canceled the Navaho contract last July but the rocket is still flown in "component testing" since its propulsion system resembles that of more recent rockets.

Weeks Asserts U.S. Highway Progress Good

Commerce Head Asks Apportioning of Funds on Basis of Higher Sum

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Weeks today reported a 10 billion dollar leap in the estimated cost of the nation's 41,000-mile superhighway system but said he is not proposing new taxes now.

Weeks also told the Senate Public Roads subcommittee the national highway program "is on schedule and that the progress being made is most gratifying."

Sen. Gore (D-Tenn), committee chairman, disagreed with Weeks' statement. Gore said "some states are well advanced and others quite tardy."

"If this system is completed uniformly and on schedule the prospect of greater revenue receipts from the gasoline tax would be greatly improved," Gore said.

Weeks formally recommended to Congress that new apportionments of funds to the states be made on the basis of the higher cost estimates.

STILL TOO LOW

He did this even though financing for the 41,000-mile interstate system in the 1956 Highway Act was based on an estimated total cost of $26,645,000,000 and it was evident from Weeks' report that even this probably will turn out to be low.

If the new figure turns out anywhere near right it is clear the construction schedule will have to be stretched out about four years, or new financing will have to be provided. As set up, the program runs 13 years.

Weeks told the subcommittee he is not proposing any new revenue legislation "at this time." But he said President Eisenhower's new budget, due Monday, will discuss prospects for the highway trust fund which is the repository for the highway user taxes allocated to finance the huge road program.

In the report, the secretary also released a state - by - state breakdown estimating money required to complete each state's portion of the system.

The 1956 law provided that apportionment of federal funds to

County Health Department Seeking Mental Housing

By GEORGE T. TRUMBULL JR.

County officials have placed the responsibility of finding emergency housing for the mentally ill into the lap of the Oakland County Health Department.

Members of the Health Committee of the Board of Supervisors asked yesterday that the department investigate all possible institutions in Oakland and adjacent counties which might house mentally ill patients prior to commitment.

Dr. John D. Monroe, department director, said he hoped to report back to the committee Jan. 21 on which hospitals were interested in handling the county's patients.

Mentioned as possible hospitals were the Haven Sanitarium in Rochester, Bloomfield Hospital in Bloomfield Township, Hurley Hospital in Flint, the former Oakland County Contagious Hospital (now Pontiac General Hospital Annex) and the Nurses' Home at the county's Tuberculosis Sanatorium.

It appeared from the two-hour meeting that the county might place a number-one priority on the Annex.

But at the same time it was learned from Carl I. Flath, city hospital director, that the city's lease on the county building won't expire until early 1959.

Officials continued their attempts to locate emergency facilities in order that mentally-disturbed patients would not have to be housed in the county jail.

"Sheriff Irons reported that in one year, from July 1956 through July 1957, 55 patients had been committed from the jail," said Mrs. Hope F. Lewis, Birmingham supervisor and chairman of the Board's Welfare Committee.

The Board has charged the Health Committee with locating temporary housing for mentally-disturbed patients, according to Cyril E. Miller, committee chairman from Avon Township.

Harold G. Webster, executive director of the Michigan Society for Mental Health, recommended to the 14 persons present at Tuesday's session that the county spend a portion of its expenses in caring for the committed patients for the emergency housing and treatment.

Later he told this reporter that the county's best facility for this would be the Annex.

"Emergency care and treatment is the crying need now," he said.

Timed Entry to Become Pontiac Press Headliner

Steve Played It Cagey to Win '58 Baby Title

Steven Clayton Williams kept his parents in a highly expectant state for three weeks, but he successfully played a waiting game to become the winner of the Pontiac Press First Baby of the Year Contest.

The baby boy was born at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital just seven minutes after midnight on Jan. 1.

His mother, Mrs. June Williams, 21, of 774 Corwin Ave., had gone to the hospital three weeks before in preparation for the joyful event. The event, however, didn't materialize.

She was sent home to her husband and daughter Christine, 2, and told that little Steve might be born at any moment.

She and her husband, John, 23, had no idea the moment would be three whole weeks later. But Steve evidently had made up his mind not to be just an ordinary baby.

HUSKY, TOO

Steven tipped the scales at eight pounds and five ounces. He was delivered by Dr. Leonard H. Blackwell.

Steve's parents will receive gifts for him from many local merchants, including Waites, Foodtown Markets, Redmond's Jewelers, Stapp's Shoe Store, Kresges, Peoples Food-O-Mat, Sparks-Griffin Funeral Home, Rogers Sporting Goods, Ward's Home Furnishing Co., and the Lion Store.

Other merchants also offering gifts and services are W. T. Grant Co., Atlas Market, Community National Bank, Pontiac Professional Photographers, Lou Mor Jewelers, Lewis Furniture, and Cloonan's Drug Store.

Among the gifts are a crib set (comforter and matching pillow), two cases of canned milk, sterling silver baby's ring, the baby's first pair of shoes, a layette set, case of assorted baby foods, baseball and glove, crib mattress to fit any size crib, a blanket, a bunting, and a savings account.

The lucky parents also will receive a gift certificate for one 8x10 photograph of Steven, a sterling silver spoon and fork set, a high chair, and scales to weigh the tot on.

For themselves, Mr. Williams will be given a hat and Mrs. Williams will receive a robe.

She and her husband are staying for a short time at the home of Mr. Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Williams, 5210 Marvin Rd., Waterford Township.

OVERDUE OFFSPRING BECOMES NO. 1 — Mrs. John Williams is shown here holding her newborn son, Steven, who was three weeks overdue but became the Pontiac Press First Baby of the Year contest winner for 1958. He was born at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital at 12:07 a.m., Jan. 1. Seated with Mrs. Williams is John Hirlinger, manager of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce. He is showing the proud mother (and her slightly less interested offspring) a list of the many gifts and services she will receive as this year's contest winner.

Seasonal Drop Causing Layoffs

U.S. Rubber, Chrysler Plants Are Reducing Current Production

DETROIT (AP) — Layoffs involving 4,000 Dodge and DeSoto plant workers will go into effect today and tomorrow.

And U.S. Rubber Co. will lay off 1,300 hourly workers at its Detroit plant by the end of January. A company spokesman said yesterday the layoff was caused by a cutback in auto production and the usual seasonal decline. The layoff may last until spring, he said.

Chrysler Corp. spokesmen said last night some 3,400 employes will be idled at the Dodge plant Thursday and 600 at DeSoto today. The company said the layoffs are for indefinite periods.

Chrysler employs 14,800 workers at its Dodge plant and about 2,700 at DeSoto. The firm employs about 100,000 in the Detroit area.

The company last week laid off 1,000 workers at its Highland Park parts and equipment plant.

Chrysler gave no reason for its latest layoff plans, saying only it planned "operations on an adjusted schedule" at the Dodge and DeSoto plants.

A Detroit newspaper said it learned that Chrysler plans a 20 per cent production cut that will affect nearly 10,000 workers. The newspaper said that in addition to Dodge and DeSoto, Plymouth and Chrysler stamping plants will be affected next week.

Chrysler officials declined to comment on the report.

Oakland's Fast Growth to Be Shown in Slides

Know the Weather

By E. H. SIMS

Are sun spots increasing or decreasing today?

The sun's spots or storms, are now thought to be in a cycle of decline. In other words, after a trend of increases, which might have brought us warmer winters and warming bodies of water, a new trend is believed to be in progress.

If this estimate is correct, the question of interest is how long the cycle of decreasing sun spots will last. Records indicate the new trend may last twenty or thirty or forty years. And if the trend were to last forty years, it might be eighty years before we returned to the same weather conditions being experienced on the earth today.

By 1965, or 1970, the trend might have produced quite noticeable change.

ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT HIRED — Dr. Dana P. Whitmer, superintendent of Pontiac public schools (left), congratulates Dr. Philip Proud who has been named assistant superintendent of schools in charge of staff personnel and public relations. Glenn H. Griffin, president of the board of education (right), was also present to announce the appointment yesterday.

Assistant Superintendent for Schools Appointed

Dr. Philip Proud, educational consultant for the Michigan Department of Public Instruction for the past six years, will be Pontiac's new assistant superintendent of schools in charge of staff personnel and public relations.

The appointment was announced yesterday by Dr. Dana P. Whitmer, superintendent and Glenn H. Griffin, president of the board of education. The board is expected to take official action on the appointment at its regular meeting Tuesday.

Proud, who now lives in Lansing with his wife Dorothy, a son Jim, 12, and a daughter, Patricia, 5, will take over the job Feb. 15 and will reside in Pontiac.

The 39-year-old educator will receive a salary of $11,500, according to Whitmer.

Before his present job in Lansing, Proud was the administrative assistant for guidance in Tenafly, N.J., and also taught English and social studies in the high school for four years.

Three of the five years he served in the U.S. Army, he was educational director for German prisoners of war at Fort Custer, and Fort Sheridan, Ill.

He received a bachelor of science degree in English, social studies and music from Western Michigan University in 1940. Following this, he taught English and choral music two years at Owosso High School.

In 1948, Proud was awarded a masters degree in secondary school administration from the University of Michigan and in 1954, he received his doctorate degree in school administration from Columbia University.

Whitmer said 35 persons had been recommended for the position by universities and the Michigan Department of Public Instruction and had been interviewed, screened and investigated before Proud was hired.

State to Intensify Drive Against Traffic Deaths

LANSING (AP) — Some "out of the ordinary" methods may be needed to cut Michigan's highway traffic death toll again this year, the State Safety Commission was told yesterday.

Again in 1958, the commission has set a goal of reducing the highway death toll by 10 per cent from 1957.

"This really is a stupendous challenge," commented Gov. Williams as the first commission meeting of the new year. "We've carved away at some of the meat of the problem so far. Now we'll be cutting at the bone."

Williams said all the methods used to promote highway safety in 1957 should be utilized again in 1958.

getting the supplemental appropriation through Congress.

The Republican leader, who received a thorough briefing on the administration's legislative proposals during the hour and 45-minute conference with the President, hailed the State of the Union message as America's answer to "the threat of Communist imperialism."

TO MEET CHALLENGES

Knowland reported that the message will contain recommendations which "will meet the challenges that confront us in the world today" as the result of Soviet advances in missiles and on the diplomatic and economic fronts.

He also confirmed that the President's new 1959 fiscal year budget totals about 74 billion dollars, but said it "will show a balance" with anticipated revenue.

The Californian said on the basis of the White House briefing that 1958 would be "better" economically than last year and the anticipated upturn in prosperity will help provide additional revenue to pay for increased federal spending.

eral days, according to Dell's office.

Under Circuit Court procedure, the hospital, in turn, will be given a chance to make a further reply and both sides are allowed to amend their positions or bring up additional issues.

This procedure, in other complicated cases, sometimes has taken many months.

Meantime, the controversy had prompted another legislative proposal in Lansing.

Senators Bert J. Storey (R-Belding) and Perry W. Green (R-Grand Rapids) said they will revive and expand a bill killed last year which would place staff physicians' qualifications in the hands of hospital trustees.

The proposal would allow local hospital boards to fix medical standards within a code enforced by the state.

Rep. Leslie H. Hudson (D-Pontiac) had previously announced he would ask for a legislative study committee to consider a state law setting up a uniform code of rules and regulations for all hospitals.

As a side light, four other doctors suing the hospital have ceased pressing for a temporary injunction restraining the hospital from enforcing certain rules and regulations that they claim violate their right to practice medicine freely.

A motion to withdraw their petition was made by their attorney, William J. Beer, before Circuit Judge Clark J. Adams.

Beer explained that the doctors have not given up the case.

"The case is ready for trial and I've been informed that it may come up as early as March. Because of the nearness of that date, the doctors agreed that temporary relief is not necessary now."

The trial will determine whether a permanent injunction in the controversy will be ordered.

The doctors claim that the hospital has no right to make regulations involving patient - doctor relationships or to pass on their professional qualifications. The hospital says that it must make regulations to protect the public.

Faulty Space Heater Starts $2,500 Fire

A defective oil space heater set fire to a frame home at 431 Central St. yesterday, causing $2,500 damages to the building and $500 to contents.

A fireman, Bobby G. Cone, 24, was injured by a hose coupling at the blaze. He was treated at Pontiac General Hospital for a jaw injury.

Owner of the house, John Dowell, said his loss was fully insured.

The cold weather caused several fires from overheated furnaces and stoves yesterday.

Minor blazes broke out in homes at 33 Walnut and 732 Raeburn and in a shoe repair shop at 196 S. Saginaw St.

State Tax Research Seeks Greater Yield

income per $1,000 personal income at $20.99.

Cline reported Michigan ranked 14th in relative productivity of state sales and use tax base, realizing $6.87 annually for each per cent of tax per $1,000 personal income in 1952-57.

This, he said, showed the base of the tax was narrower in Michigan than in many other states.

RATE FROZEN

Brazer and Cline said the rate of the sales tax is frozen by the Constitution but 30 million dollars a year could be added to revenues by extending coverage to service businesses and occupations, and another 50 millions by knocking out present exemptions.

On the other hand, they said, removing the sales tax from food, which has been advocated from time to time, would shrink sales tax revenues by 60 millions.

Brazer said that more than half the sales tax states now apply the levy to some services, chiefly to transient lodgings (hotels and motels), telephone services and admissions to entertainment exhibitions.

Auto repair, tailoring, laundries and intrastate transportation were listed as other possible services that could be brought under.

Brazer and Cline said there seemed no logical reason why a sales tax should be levied on tangible property sold at retail but not on intangible, or service, sold at retail.

BEER OR BASEBALL

If a man spends $2 drinking beer he is taxed, but if he chooses to entertain himself by going to the baseball game for $2, he is not, Brazer commented.

The spending trend nationally, Brazer said, is toward proportionately greater outlays for services, and that to the extent this continues the Michigan sales tax base will shrink accordingly.

He said an important defect in the present sales tax is its regressive tendency, that is its proportionately lighter impact as income rises, and that extending it to services would mitigate this factor.

He mentioned weightier objections to removal of sales tax exemptions on machinery and equipment used for industrial and agricultural processing, which he estimated would add 50 millions a year to revenues.

While this exemption has "unusually broad range," he observed, it should be considered that to take it off would have the effect of boosting total state taxes on business about 40 per cent over the present level.

"The committee may wish to consider this as an influence in plant location," he said.

Brazer said he doubted that any other sales tax state was as attractive to industry in this particular.

As for the possibility of exempting food, Cline suggested that as a practical matter it probably wouldn't get very far because of opposition from the school people.

Under a constitutional distribution formula, two thirds of present state sales tax revenues go to schools, one sixth to the state and one sixth to county and city governments.

Analyzing the maximum revenue capabilities of the insurance premiums tax, Brazer said its yield could be doubled by this program:

1. Establish a uniform tax rate of three per cent, currently now paid only by foreign "fire marine and strictly automobile" companies. Other foreign companies pay two per cent. Domestic companies are exempt, paying instead a kind of franchise tax that nets the state $400,000 annually.

2. Broaden the tax base to take in annuities considerations, now included in the insurance tax base of 27 other states. He said there is close similarity between some annuity contracts and some life insurance contracts.

3. Apply the premiums tax to business written by the non-profit medical and hospitalization organizations, notably Blue Cross and Blue Shield. About three million dollars a year would be added by this change.

Brazer said that by and large insurance companies enjoy "comparatively light taxation" in Michigan.

He said the Blue Cross and Blue Shield exemption "runs afoul of uniformity and equity considerations," mentioning that for-profit firms writing similar policies are taxed.

Almond Presman of St. Johns, a committee member who is also serving on Gov. Williams group studying hospitalization insurance problems, wondered if any such tax might be passed along back to the policyholder, thus raising rates.

John Carton of Battle Creek, another committee member who heads two insurance companies, raised the issue of reciprocity among the states on insurance tax rates.

Carton said it should be considered whether a rise in the premiums tax paid in Michigan by companies domiciled in other states might lead to tax increases by those states on insurance written in them by Michigan companies.

Highway Network Cost Up $10 Billion

the states for the last 10 years of the program be based on the estimated cost of each state's portion. Washington pays 90 per cent of the cost of the interstate system.

USED OLD FORMULA

The apportionments in the first three years of the program now under way were based on an old formula using chiefly population and current road mileage.

Weeks' report was released shortly before he was to appear before the Senate Public Roads subcommittee headed by Sen. Gore (D-Tenn) to give a progress report on the interstate system.

The new estimates were worked out by the Bureau of Public Roads in cooperation with the various state highway departments.

The secretary said that even though the cost estimates were up 37 per cent as compared with two years ago, he would not now recommend any increased taxes to finance the program.

He noted that work on the interstate program was in the early stages and that the 1956 law requires four more cost estimates in later years.

In the new total cost estimate, the federal share would be $33,952,000,000. The states would provide $3,670,000,000.

The report indicated that even the new cost estimate might well be low. It said the cost of 2,102 miles of the proposed roads allocated among the states on Oct. 18, 1957, was not included.

Weeks listed as reasons for the big increase in the cost of completing the interstate network:

1. A 15 per cent increase in traffic forecasts for 1975.

2. A 15 per cent boost in costs required by the section of the 1956 law which states that the interstate routes must give full consideration to local needs, such as peak commuter traffic in suburban areas and cities.

3. A 12 per cent increase in construction costs in a two-year period.

The new figures were more than double in the case of some states, including Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, Tennessee and Virginia.

But in some cases, including Connecticut, Michigan, New Jersey and Oklahoma, the estimates submitted today were lower than those of two years ago.

Tranquilizers Scored

DETROIT (INS) — An editorial in the current issue of Medical News, published by the Wayne County Medical Society, declares tranquilizer drugs are threatening to make some people into "human vegetables."

The Day in Birmingham

State Finance Unit OKs High School Bond Issue

BIRMINGHAM — Birmingham School District's proposed three million dollar bond issue for construction of a new high school and junior high was approved yesterday by the State Municipal Finance Commission in Lansing. The project is part of a $6,800,000 total financing.

The "chance in a million" happened in Birmingham yesterday, according to Detective Lt. Merlin Holmquist.

He said Lloyd Dafoe of East Square Lake road, Pontiac, came into the Police Department to report the theft of his 1957 Chevrolet from a Woodward avenue parking place.

Shortly after, John Shield of Lake Orion came in to report that he had mistakenly driven someone else's car away. Shield's car, also a 1957 Chevrolet, had been parked on Woodward, too.

The vehicles are identical in color and model. And by coincidence, Shield's keys fit the Dafoe's car.

Natural ice rinks at Quarton School and St. James and Pembroke Parks now are lighted for evening use, according to Robert Giardin, recreation director.

Giardin said whenever the weather is favorable for natural ice, the rinks would be put into condition and made available for skating.

Newly elected officers of the Past Chief's Club of Pythian Sisters, Temple 94, are Vi Moyer, president; Bertha Weaver, secretary-treasurer; Florence Wilson, chaplain, and Jane Capling, publicity chairman.

Paul Van Roekle, county highway engineer, has notified City Manager L. R. Gare that the requested widening of West Maple road between Weschester avenue and Cranbrook road will, if possible, be included in the 1958 program.

County officers said, however, that at this point it seems doubtful that the work can be done this coming season. A definite answer probably will be made in about two weeks, he said.

Albert D. McDougall

Service for Albert D. McDougall, 97, a 50-year Birmingham resident who died yesterday in the Arnold Home, Detroit, will be held at 1 p.m. tomorrow at Bell Chapel of the William R. Hamilton Co. Officiating will be the Dr. W. Glen Harris of First Presbyterian Church and burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. McDougall had been a railroad construction man and later was a railroad conductor.

He was a life member of Barton Masonic Lodge 6, and the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Hamilton, Ont.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Walter McBride of Portland; a son, John, of San Francisco, and a sister, Mrs. George Kendall of Hamilton, Ont.

Clamor to Keep Him in Army

Senate Group Hears Gavin

WASHINGTON (AP)— Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin was called today to testify at a Senate missile hearing amidst a mounting clamor that he change his mind about retiring from the Army in March.

In advance of the hearing, two senators — Stennis (D-Miss) and Goldwater (R-Ariz) — urged the general to reconsider. Several other members of Congress have made similar statements.

Secretary of the Army Brucker said Gavin had been offered two ways in which he could reach four-star rank as an inducement to remain in service.

The 50-year-old general is chief of Army research and development, which includes the Army missile program. He disclosed his retirement plans last weekend, and indicated his decision was partly a protest against what he called "the Pentagon system."

Yesterday, however, he told newsmen there is a 50-50 chance he would remain in service. Last month, he proposed a reorganization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff system, and there were hints these views resulted in pressures which led him to request retirement. Gavin has given other reasons for his move.

Gavin was leadoff witness before the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, which is probing into the nation's missile - satellite programs.

Stennis, vice chairman of the subcommittee, said, "Gen. Gavin is one of the bright younger fellows we need most to keep in the service.

"He should be able to contribute more to his ideas and ideals inside the services than outside."

Brings Death to 12

Storm Flays East Coast

NEW YORK (AP)—A heavy snowstorm, spiced by biting winds, has blanketed the Eastern Seaboard as far south as Virginia.

Even Florida braced for its second freeze of the winter, and in North Carolina the snow turned to cold rain.

The storm swirled up the Eastern Seaboard yesterday, bringing death to at least 12 persons and dumping 13.3 inches on Atlantic City, N.J.—its heaviest snowfall in almost 17 years.

Five inches fell on New York City before the snow ended early today. To clear the slippery city roads — temperatures were below freezing — the sanitation department had 1,800 men at work overnight.

Fourteen and a half inches of snow was reported at New Haven County, Conn.

As always, slippery highways caused many accidents.

Four storm traffic deaths were reported in New England.

On New York's Long Island, two men died after clearing snow from their walks. Another died trying to push his stalled car. A fourth Long Island man and a Middletown, Conn., resident died trying to free their autos from snowbanks.

At Ashland, Mass., a woman drowned when her car plunged into the icy Sudbury River. Near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., a man was killed in a two-car skidding collision. In southern Delaware, a woman was fatally injured when her car skidded near Greenwood.

Gale warnings, with predictions of 60-mile-an-hour winds, were raised from Maine to Rhode Island and at other points along the coast. Gale warnings were lowered on other parts of the coast as the storm passed. Small boating was halted in all parts of New England.

Income Tax Law Aids Those Over 65

By RAY HENRY

(Editor's Note: People who've reached 65 may claim special tax breaks when they file their federal income tax report this year. This is the first of a series of three columns giving the details of these breaks.)

There are two special provisions in the federal income tax law which apply to all persons who've reached 65.

Because of these provisions, their tax bill will be smaller than if they were below 65—or they may not have to pay any tax at all.

The most important provision for you if you've reached 65 is that you don't have to pay any tax on the first $1,200 of your income. Most taxpayers under 65 receive an exemption of only $600.

If your income was less than $1,200 last year, you don't even have to file an imcome tax return this year—unless, of course, you had some tax withheld from your pay which you want to claim.

A man and wife who are both 65 or over and who file a joint tax return may claim an exemption of $2,400. And, they don't have to file a return unless one of them has an income of more than $1,200

MAY FILE FOR REFUND

Here again, however, they may want to file a return to get a refund of any tax which might have been withheld from their pay. Most couples who have a total income from wages in the $2,400 range will have a refund coming.

The second special provisions allows you—if you've reached 65—to deduct the full amount of your doctor and hospital expenses from any income you have beyond that which is exempted from tax.

For example: Suppose you paid $400 to doctors and hospitals in 1956 and, after your exemptions, you have $2,200 income. You can deduct the $400 in medical expenss from the $2,200 and only pay tax on the remaining $1,800—minus any other ordinary deductions you may be eligible to claim. (Under a similar set of circumstances, the ordinary taxpayer under 65 would be allowed to deduct only $334 in medical expenses).

Although these are the only two special provisions which apply to all persons 65 or, over, there are other special tax breaks given to those receiving retirement payments—such as Social Security, private pensions, etc. These I'll explain in my next two columns.

And, of course, there are many general provisions of the income tax law which are of importance to older people. For example: There's a general provision which applies to all taxpayers allowing them an exemption on their wages of up to $100 a week while confined to a hospital on account of illness or injury.

Incidentally, you're considered 65 for the entire year of 1957 if you attained that age anytime during the year or even if you reached 65 by the first day of 1958. Thus, if you reached 65 anytime from Jan. 1, 1957, through Jan. 1, 1958, you're entitled to the tax breaks of being 65 for the full year of 1957.

If you're in doubt about any of the special or general income tax provisions of the federal income tax law, don't hesitate to write or have a talk with the nearest Internal Revenue Service office. That's the only place you can get official answers to your tax questions.

(Questions on Social Security problems may be addressed to "Social Security" in care of The Pontiac Press. Questions will be answered by mail from the Pontiac office of the Social Security Administration. There is no charge for this service.)

One Cast Not Enough? Teacher Gets Another

CAMPTON, Ky., (AP) — Miss Lucy Moore, a school teacher, wore two casts and a look of wonder.

While working around a farm, she fell and broke an arm. She had the arm placed in a cast and resumed her teaching post, until she caught the flu.

Before she recovered, Miss Moore went to help a neighbor desperately ill — and fell down the stairs while collecting medical supplies.

The second cast went on her big toe.

Hal Boyle Says:

Some Millionaires Prefer Life of Hermit

NEW YORK (AP)—Would you like to become a hermit?

Many people say they do, but don't know how to go about it.

Some of them are millionaires. They have found out the difference between millionaires and hermits, which is — millionaires have money, hermits have fun.

There is an amazing lack of knowledge about hermiting in America. For example some people think hermits live in cities.

The so-called city hermit is merely a civilized misfit and often a miser, lonely in a lonely room. Your true hermit, on the other hand, is a woodland fellow, happy in solitude, not so much afraid of civilization as he is unwilling to be cramped by it.

NO TIME FRET

He merely wants to admire nature and brood over the passing seasons and he can't find time to do this if he has to worry over paying taxes, raising a family and where to find a place to park his car.

MERELY RUN AWAY

Hermiting has its failures. There are any number of haphazard hermits who fail because they go about it in a slap-dash manner. They merely run away from home, shiver in the forest a few days or weeks, then, crestfallen, crawl meekly back to wife and job.

The successful hermit is the man who plans ahead. It is possible, of course, for a hermit to live off the land. But this entails hard work and if a man is going to work hard he might as well forget hermiting and become a millionaire.

NEED CAPITAL

I have talked to a number of career hermits and they all emphasize the need of a small amount of capital and an income of at least $100 a year.

Here's one way to go about it. With a few hundred dollars you buy a few acres of waste land with an abandoned but habitable home on it. Then you get some seeds for your garden, a shotgun for game and a trustworthy dog. The dog should be one willing to chase rabbits, but even more willing to stop at any time to listen to you—and one who won't insist on you listening to him. It should be able to muster an interested look. Avoid a yawning dog.

GOVERNMENT PAYS

Next is the problem of income. Instead of paying the government, make it pay you. Write the U.S. Department of Agriculture and threaten to plant your wasted acres with wheat and flood the country unless you are included in the soil bank program in a big way. This should be good for at least $150 a year.

FORM COMPANY

Another way is to form a company called, "The Happy Hermit, Inc." write to 500 strangers:

"You know you are a miserable prisoner of civilization, too cowardly to run off and become a hermit. I am not. But I need help. If you send me a buck, you can become a stockholder in my corporation and finance one happy hermit to a finer way of life. How about it?" you say in your letter.

Since everybody wants to help a hermit, the money will roll in. Each spring you send out a stockholder's report.

"During the last year your corporation made friends with three new chipmunks, saw a bear, recognized a dozen new birds, and one of its employes (the dog) fought a skunk to a sentsational draw. Some 365 sunsets were noted.

PAYS DIVIDEND

"Days spent throwing rocks at trees—300.

"Days spent resting arm — 65.

Days spent working — none.

"Day spent worrying — none.

"Dividend — happiness.

"P.S. Despite the rising cost of insect repellents, the corporation is happy to report it will require no extra funds during the coming year. Just send your usual buck."

Would this work? Listen, if a hermit sent letters like that to 10,000 city-pent people, he could buy more land, hire half a dozen helpers, and wind up the biggest and most successful hermit in America.

Singer David Street Weds Fourth Actress

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Singer David Street has wed a fourth actress—Sharon Lee.

Friends disclosed their secret marriage last Dec. 14 in Las Vegas, Nev.

Miss Lee gave her age as 26. Street listed his as 38. He was previously married to actresses Mary Street, Lois Andrews and Mary Beth Hughes.

Driver Blacked Out, Rammed Car Into Bus

A Clarkston motorist is in satisfactory condition at Pontiac General Hospital today after ramming his car into a standing bus yesterday afternoon.

Herbert H. Butterfield, 45, of 6746 Transparent St., told Pontiac Police he blacked out at the wheel just before the accident on East boulevard, near Elm.

He was admitted to the hospital with a possible concussion and a lacerated lip.

President May Fly on Jet Transport

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower may become the first president to fly aboard a jet transport plane.

The White House says Eisenhower has no present plans to replace his propeller-driven, four-engine plane, Columbine III, with a far speedier jet.

But press secretary James C. Hagerty announced the Columbine pilot, Col. William G. Draper, and other key members of the crew will start learning to fly jet aircraft late this month.

Hagerty added, in response to questions, that "of course" there is a possibility the President will switch to a jet transport before his second terms ends three years hence.

Michigan Man Killed

ATLANTA (AP) — Andrew Van Syckle, 33, of rural Atlanta, was killed yesterday in a head-on car-truck collision on M32, three miles east of this Montmorency County community.

U.S. Mothers in Red China Flying North

Women Split Up to Visit Imprisoned Sons; to Meet Later

HONG KONG (AP)—Three American mothers flew north from Canton today to visit their sons in Red Chinese prisons.

Mrs. Ruth Redmond, Yonkers, N.Y., left the south China port city first on a flight to Shanghai. Her businessman son Hugh, 38, has been in prison there since 1951, serving a life sentence on espionage charges.

Mrs. Jessie Fecteau, Lynn, Mass., and Mrs. Mary Downey, New Britain, Conn., left later on a flight to Peiping. Richard Fecteau and John Downey have been held since 1952 on spying charges, sentenced to 20 years and life, respectively.

Mrs. Downey was accompanied by another son William, 25. He also saw Mrs. Redmond off at the airport and said she was "in good spirits—there were no tears."

"She's quite a capable woman. I think she'll get along fine," Downey reported by telephone to Hong Kong.

The mothers came at the government's invitation and were given two-week visas. The four plan to meet again in Canton and leave China together.

Downey said everyone in Canton was nice to them. While waiting for planes, the mothers went shopping and sightseeing.

Man Invents Low Cost Tiny Radiation Detector

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (INS)—A 39-year-old dry cleaner said today he has developed a low cost gamma ray detector which can be used to direct individuals away from radioactive areas in time of nuclear attack.

Harvey Kravetz, who runs a family cleaning business with his brothers, is a 1946 graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. But he has shunned big business and concentrated his know - how on spare time inventions.

Kravetz's latest completed invention is a simple calibration indicator for detecting "normal," "warning" and "dangerous" areas of radiation. It is housed in a plastic cigarette lighter sized case, and has been tested in an atomic laboratory for accuracy.

A person who suspects that he is in a contaminated area can check with the instrument, and by placing the two-ounce detector to his eye, he can follow the readings through the area of least contamination.

Another invention in the final states of development is an alarm clock attachment, about the size of a stack of eight 25-cent pieces, which Kravetz says will ring when the area it is in begins to be contaminated.

SELL NEAR $2

Although the mass production price for the radiation pathfinder will be about two dollars, Kravetz estimated it cost him "around a thousand dollars" to develop the finished product.

"This will never wear out," the West Hartford inventor said, "and it is light and very simple to make."

Kravetz began work on the detector when he learned the defense department was interested in developing a low cost Geiger counter type instrument for mass distribution.

Kravetz, with a patent pending, said the defense department has contacted him and expressed interest in the invention.

Its advantages over the more sensitive Geiger counter are numerous. A Geiger counter, used for prospecting uranium, weighs about 10 pounds and comes in three pieces. The cost—a good one sells for more than $100—is prohibitive for many American families.

"This will put protection within the reach of everyone," Kravetz said.

HOME LABORATORY

In his spacious West Hartford home, Kravetz has converted a closet in the children's playroom into a miniature lab where he develops his inventions.

It is in this lab he does the blueprinting and functional design. To keep his inventions secret he subcontracts for the finished product on a piecemeal basis.

Asked why he hadn't made an engineering career with a large company, Kravetz replied, "Then everything you invent belongs to the company."

He contended that large companies did not compensate their staff members adequately for their inventions.

"I think this kills a lot of incentive," he ventured.

The jovial father of two maintained he made a "comfortable" living from his dry cleaning business. At night he comes home and relaxes with his real love—inventing, which so far has been, he said, a profitable hobby.

Jets Are Killing Reindeer, Lapp Tells Norway

OSLO (AP)—A group of Lapps in Finnmark, on Norway's border with Russia, claim the effect of the jet age on some of their reindeer is worth 50,000 kroner ($7,000).

They asked for that much damages from the Norwegian government, reporting that 20 reindeer leaped over a precipice to their death when two low-flying jet fighters frightened a grazing herd.

The air force said its planes weren't low enough to scare the reindeer.

More than 65 per cent of the farmers living on Prince Edward Island in Canada own their own land.

WSU Expected to Seek Change

LANSING (AP) — Wayne State University will push at the legislative session starting today for Constitutional status comparable to that now enjoyed by the University of Michigan and Michigan State University, it was learned.

To realize this objective would require a favorable vote on a Constitutional amendment at the November 1958 general election.

Before the proposition can go on the ballot, a resolution spelling out its terms will have to get two thirds approval of both the Senate and the House.

Wayne State, now in transition from a City of Detroit school to a full-fledged State institution, currently is run by an 11-member appointive board of governors.

With assumption of full control by the State, this body will be replaced by a six-member elective board. Legislation has been drafted to provide for the mechanics of its election.

Wayne State reportedly seeks to sink its roots into the Constitution for reasons of prestige and for greater flexibility in the handling of its finances.

Lacking a Constitutional board, the institution would be subject like State colleges other than U. of M. and MSU to tighter legislative control of purposes for which appropriated moneys can be spent.

Plants Cause Poisoning

CHICAGO — Ivy poisoning can result from contact with any of more than 60 varieties of plants found in the United States.

Old Chimpanzee Thinks Young; Kicks Up Fuss

CHICAGO (AP)—Heinie I, an aged chimpanzee with young ideas, has adopted a rock 'n roll routine that's a strain on his cage.

Feeling few of the 36 years that makes him one of the oldest chimpanzees in captivity, Heinie attracts the attention of crowds by putting his back on the door of his cage and banging away with his feet.

"We had bricklayers out Monday to rebuild the wall of his cage," said Marlin Perkins, director of the Lincoln Park Zoo.

"The day before, we had the metal workers out to bolster the sagging door of his cage."

It's Time to Reappraise International Situation

Throughout recent years this country has established itself as possessing world prestige. Today perhaps a little of this is lost. We should not panic and throw in the towel. Instead let's reappraise the situation and see just where we stand.

Among our allies, especially the fringe nations, we must gradually regain some of our lost stature. After World War II we emerged the one great world power.

This was an enviable position.

But Russia with her totalitarian type of government has not been marking time. The methods and system she used are not the democratic rule like ours. But nevertheless, in the realm of science and defense they have made great strides.

Our allies have patiently watched and observed this progress, particularly in the scientific fields. Because of this we no longer hold the distinction of being the only world power.

Russia has climbed up a notch and we now have two world powers. Since this condition exists, let's face it and go ahead from here. We are a peace-loving nation and most of the world knows this. However, at times we are inclined to act a bit like the small boy with a stick on his shoulder asking someone to "knock it off."

Certainly it was not meant that way, but our attitude of saying no and sneering at Russia has become a habit.

If we were to have war with Russia, no one would be the winner. It would be a catastrophe for both powers. The time has come to talk and negotiate. We do not need to go sled length and start believing everything the Russians say, but a little give and take seems to be in order.

It's better than a shooting war.

Our foreign policy might well veer toward some conscientious efforts toward peace talks with Russia. The Reds are skilled operators at this business. So are our diplomats, plus the fact that we have President EISENHOWER who is a past master at making friends.

Aiming toward disarmament should be our long range goal. It may well sound frustrating and seem like a war of words, but apparently that is what our allies want. Also, the Russians would like more recognition and the opportunity for top level talks.

This may be a turnabout, but it's better than a missile race with no end in sight.

Army Is Reconsidering Security Risk Cases

The Army has undertaken a voluntary review of security risk discharges between 1948 and 1955. The Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights, which has been looking into the Army's basing of discharges on preinduction activities, may have given an assist.

As a result the cases of 650 former servicemen have been reviewed and so far about half have received upgraded discharges or have had the security risk label removed from their records. This means that many men will receive accumulated leave pay and be eligible for Federal and state veterans' benefits.

Since 1955 the fact that a relative was a Communist or subscribed to a pro-Communist newspaper or that the soldier himself had been a member of a front group no longer constituted grounds for other than honorable discharge.

This more common sense view is now being applied retroactively and consideration is being given to the quality of a man's service. The present Army policy, however, prevents induction of men who have been potential risks in civilian life.

By reviewing discharge cases the Army is righting some old wrongs committed in the "guilt by association" era of a few years ago.

The Man About Town

She Likes Pontiac

And Her Background Adds Emphasis to Her Words.

Recollections: What are pleasant or otherwise, usually according to the foundation you laid for them.

Very commendable sentiments are expressed in a letter received by me from

of 440 Lochaven Road. Identification of its writer adds immense importance to it. She is the granddaughter of who served Michigan in that capacity in 1859-60. A few years before that time he erected the home on Oakland Ave., now owned by the

and she was born in that home 74 years ago today. She was the sole owner of that property when it was purchased by the foundation a few years ago for $15,000.

Mrs. Wallace could have received a much larger sum from other parties, but felt that it should be kept in hands that would make it the historical shrine that its background merits.

She spent a large part of her life in that home, where she was living at the time she sold it. This property of four acres comprises something of which no other area in the entire State of Michigan can boast.

Her message to the writer, with personal references to me deleted, says: "I agree with your sentiments most heartily. I am glad that I was born here, that I and still living, and living in this fair city. I have been privileged to witness the wonderful changes that have taken place. I believe there is no better place to complete my life than where it started."

A phone call from

of Keego Harbor tells of a 10-foot snowman built by the children that drew no attention from the neighborhood dogs until it was given some black eyes, nose, mouth and hat. Then the dogs had a barking convention.

"Leftover pancakes are an excellent bird food in these days when the ground is covered with snow," writes of Auburn Heights, who says she budgets her morning supply so there will be plenty of leftovers.

In spite of the recent near-zero weather, the ice in very few of our lakes is safe. It requires a week or so of such temperatures to put them in condition.

For a couple of years a lone muskrat has been quite familiar around the premises at 2625 Silver Lake Road. Its hobby was storing apples. But, although appearing to be in good health, it was found dead the other day, with no outward evidence of the cause.

Poor Relation

David Lawrence Says:

President, Military Too Far Apart

WASHINGTON — It's a lucky thing the United States has not had to fight a world war in the last few years. For the present system, whereby the heads of the armed services are enmeshed in a bureaucratic apparatus of civilian control, would make war operations far less effective than they were in either of the two world wars in which the United States has been engaged.

LAWRENCE

Today there are four separate armed services represented on the U.S. joint chiefs of staff and four separate civilian departments dealing with defense problems.

"Unification" was the cry in 1947 and 1949 and "simplification" was the slogan in 1953 when Congress passed a so-called military reorganization bill, but the main weaknesses have not been cured.

The principal fault is that the military commanders have been removed farther than ever before from the commander-in-chief of all the armed forces—namely, the President, who under the Constitution has the full responsibility for military operations in time of war.

Today the joint chiefs of staff is neither an operating body nor a planning unit. The heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force, moreover, are not statutory members of the national security council.

In time of war a commander in a far-off theater who has all three services under him is required by law to communicate through a civilian agency—the Department of Defense—before reaching the Commander-in-Chief. This is a requirement which did not exist in either World War I or World War II.

During the last global war, the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt had a personal chief of staff, Admiral William Leahy, who acted as a liaison with the military heads of the armed services.

At that time the Air Force was not yet officially separated from the Army, but the late General "Hap" Arnold, chief air man, was by instruction of the President required to attend all sessions of the joint chiefs of staff.

When it came to voting, however, General George Marshall, chief of staff of the Army, always had General Arnold's proxy in his pocket.

There were thus in fact only two military chiefs—the head of the Army and the head of the Navy—and they had direct access to the President of the United States. Sometimes they didn't even bother to consult the civilian heads of their respective departments.

The late Admiral Ernest King, who was chief of naval operations during virtually the entire war, once told this writer that he didn't feel obligated to tell the Secretary of the Navy, the late Frank Knox, in every case just what naval action was planned.

He never told him, for instance of the intention to give battle at Midway. His argument was that a battle plan had to be kept secret and not a single individual was to be told about it ahead of time unless he had to be in some way a part of the operation.

The planning that has to be done nowadays by a joint staff composed of representatives of all four services—Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps—can still be done by subordinate officers of high rank while the procurement and fiscal policies and paper work of the military departments can be consolidated and money saved in a single department headed by a civilian secretary and adequate assistants.

But the military job cannot be diluted as it is today by a layer of civilian managers who stand between the Commander-in-Chief and the heads of the armed services.

The three chiefs of the principal armed services should be the top military advisers of the President, and a fourth officer should be a secretary-general and not a "chairman."

The "chairman" idea leads only to the Prussian general-staff concept of a single chief that worked so badly for the Nazis in World War II. Three minds are better for consultation with the President than one.

Three men who have risen to the top in their respective services and who have direct command responsibilities should sit next to the President for command purposes.

Dr. William Brady Says:

Poor Health May Bring Feelings of Inferiority

Quite early in life, I learned that superiority complex is not good for a young man, although it is not nearly as bad as an inferiority complex. Unless he is really endowed with some special talent or aptitude and applies it in his career, his superior feeling will be flattened by experience before he comes of age.

DR. BRADY

An inferiority feeling is much worse because it is likely to persist and become a serious handicap.

Inferiority feelings, I believe, account for much drinking, occasional, social or habitual. A periodic drinker, in a sober interval told me why he drinks.

"At times I feel the need of a stimulant—or rather I just want to feel better."

"Need of a stimulant" is a vague way of saying consciousness of inferiority.

Consciousness of inferiority does not necessarily mean awareness of shortcoming in education, breeding, culture, social position. More often, I think, it is awareness of imperfect or faulty health.

COMPARISON NATURAL

Everyone consciously or unconsciously, compares his or her health with the health of others who enjoy good health.

Under the effects of a drink or two, this consciousness or awareness of inferiority is dulled or lessened so that while the alcohol works, the drinker, in his own judgment, is as sound, as strong, as smart, or as capable in every way as anybody.

But as the effects of the alcohol wear off, in the course of half an hour or an hour, the old awareness of inferiority returns and he craves another drink.

The effect of alcohol in any circumstance is the opposite of what simple-minded people think it is. Alcohol is NOT a stimulant. It is a depressant and narcotic.

Because it is a narcotic, alcohol, like morphine or cocaine or heroin (which is diacetyl morphine hydrochloride) is habit-forming, as millions of addicts testify by their daily indulgence.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Proper Motions Bring Emotions

"Advice" columnists have often urged women like Susan to get a divorce, yet that is stupid. For you can see that a psychiatrist goes deeper than the apparent faithlessness of a husband and shows the supposedly innocent wife her sins of omision. Then we offer a positive prescription for restoring a happy home life.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case W-393: Susan P., aged 46, is the mother of Donna and wife of Howard, the "Ponce de Leon" husband mentioned yesterday.

"Dr. Crane, nothing can save my marriage," Susan tearfully explained.

"My husband is a brute and totally unfeeling or he would never have flaunted his faithlessness before Donna and me.

"He alway was

excessively interested in sex and I wasn't. My mother had been divorced and she warned me before my wedding that I should not have children.

"But I love Donna and would do anything to make her life happier."

LITERAL PROMISES

"You say you'd do anything to make Donna's life happier?" I queried, and she nodded her head.

"Well, then I can tell you how to do it," I added, "and I hope you mean what you said."

Then I suggested she and her husband try to act like happily married people even though they had to force themselves to do so.

"Imagine you are a Hollywood actress," I warned. "Even though you meanwhile feel hurt or hostile, you are to do a good job of acting."

Then I reminded Susan of the old adage that if you go through the proper motions, you'll soon begin to feel the corresponding emotions.

"Act the way you'd like to be and soon you'll be the way you act," I added.

"Oh, but Dr. Crane, it's too late," she protested.

"It's never too late to be smart and try to help your children," I said.

Then I exposed her wrong notions about marital affairs. I explained that her husband had been unusually tolerant and had given her 20 years of his faithful devotion although meanwhile she hadn't functioned even as a 50 per cent wife.

"It's a wonder he didn't desert you 15 years ago," I bluntly told her, "for you didn't even rate 25 per cent as a mother, since he wanted four children and you bore him only one.

"And for the past six years you have been almost zero as a marital partner, so your sins of omission are as much a cause of Donna's unhappiness as her father's extra-marital affairs.

"And your husband is no more sex-mad than is the average adult male. You simply had a false notion about masculine psychology, partly due to your mother's advice to you.

"You should have functioned as a one-wife harem to satisfy your husband's greater natural sex ardor.

"Instead, you haven't been even a half wife.

My indictment jolted her, but she did possess a sincere love for her daughter Donna. So she finally consented to try to act the role of a satisfying wife.

Then I got Howard and Susan together in my office and exacted a solemn vow that they'd start all over again, as if they were beginning their marriage afresh.

I knew they both were dubious about the results, but I briefed them thoroughly on marital techniques, as if they were a young prospective bride and groom.

A week later, Susan telephoned her first report. She wasn't too enthusiastic, but she admitted Howard was trying to be nice to her and she was doing her part.

At the end of the first month, they began to show real affection toward each other, instead of the feigned variety, for you can rebuild a new love even on the ashes of the old if you will just go through the proper motions.

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 3c stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

Voice of the People

Reader Asks Investigation of Alarming Situation Here

I've never been considered an alarmist, and have been slow to excite over the state of the nation, the danger of the Sputnik and the hazard of smoking cigarettes. However, I've been jolted from my comfortable lethargy by a recent letter in these columns, and am considerably up in arms over the realization that things are in much worse shape than I thought.

I refer to the recent expose by "Two PHS Seniors" who, without warning, brought the sad and disheartening news to a waiting world that things were so tough that they had to park their car four blocks away from school.

Even in Siberia things are not that bad (only Waterford Township has to walk to school) and I personally would like to spearhead an investigating committee comprising among others, the mayor, our city fathers and even our county prosecutor to determine how such a condition could have been permitted to occur and to take such measures as would be found necessary to insure that it would never happen again.

In the hands of these two young people could rest the fate of the world as they are the leaders of tomorrow, and to think of them having their vitality sapped by walking four blocks — horrors!!! Even an education shouldn't be obtained at such a price.

Worried

Was Shooting Self Defense?

Referring to one of the top news stories as reviewed in The Pontiac Press Tuesday, Dec. 31, it was stated: "June 8: Although wounded herself, Mrs. Kathryn O'Neil, 27, shoots her husband, Willis, 42, to death in a gun duel at her Waterford Township home. The verdict: Self defense."

Please be informed that Willis "Bill" O'Neil was shot first by his wife, Kathryn, with a shotgun. It was after he was shot that he in turn shot her with a pistol. Self defense? Certainly time will tell.

Wilson Asked 14 Points Forty Years Ago Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Forty years ago today President Wilson presented to Congress and the world his 14 points for ending World War I. They sounded noble. They wound up in ribbons when he got through compromising on them.

He went to the peace conference the ideal of the idealists. And one of the men with whom he worked out the peace, cynical Georges Clemenceau of France, said of him: Talking to Wilson is like trying to talk to God.

Clemenceau was one of those who helped bring him down to earth. The others were David Lloyd George of Britain and Vittorio Orlando of Italy. Wilson went there with a minimum of selfish motives. They had plenty.

Although Wilson compromised, he forced the others into compromises too. So the peace was not as bad as it might have been. It was terrible enough. By its harsh treatment of Germany it helped to pave the way for Hitler and World War II.

Of all the 14 points the one which meant the most to Wilson was the last: his call for a League of Nations, with America a member. That one brought him his greatest grief and worst defeat.

The 14 points were not entirely idealistic. They were intended as propaganda too. They were much less than they appeared to be when Col. Edward M. House, Wilson's confidential diplomatic agent, later explained them.

Yet they did serve an immediate propaganda purpose. Wilson had spread his ideas for a just peace through many long speeches. On Jan. 8, 1918, he wrapped his main points up in one speech, in one-two-three order.

Then in leaflet form those points were dropped on Germany and Austria-Hungary by the thousands. They helped divide the peoples of those countries from their leaders and hasten the end of the war.

Wilson, in the end lost both his dream and his health. America retreated into isolation for a generation.

If America had joined the League there might have been no World War II—maybe.

Daughter Writes Life of Aimee McPherson

By OLGA CURTIS

NEW YORK (INS)—"I'm sorry Mother missed television," sighed the middle-aged matron. "She would have given Billy Graham a run for his money."

"Mother was made for TV," added the only daughter of the late Aimee Semple McPherson, dynamic and controversial evangelist of the 1920's. "She could read the 23rd Psalm the way Judith Anderson would read Macbeth."

Mrs. Roberta Semple Salter adjusted her spectacles, clasped her hands in her lap and murmured apologetically:

"You know for years I never even mentioned Mother's name. But there's been a revival of interest in her—I'd like to tell her real story, so I'm writing a book."

Will the story include "Sister Aimee's" three husbands? The faked kidnaping which made her famous? The $1,500,000 temple she built in Los Angeles? The white satin angel's robes she wore on Broadway? Her death in a lonely hotel room from an overdose of sleeping pills? And the fantastic funeral at which 6,000 followers screamed "She will arise"?

"Yes," smiled Mrs. Salter. "Oh, I know all the things you'll find in the old newspaper clippings better than any one. But there's one pedestal when you're an alive woman with a sense of drama.

"But she was serious about her work.

"The Four Square Gospel she founded isn't as flamboyant now, but it's stronger—there are four hundred 'branch churches' carrying on the work."

Mrs. Salter, 47, mild-mannered and kind-eyed, had a full dose of flamboyance in childhood.

"Mother made me a preacher and handed me a congregation of 2,000 children when I was 14," she said. "It was a goldfish bowl. I was the super-special-good little girl. I always felt I was liked only for my mother's name."

But there was a silver lining even in the cloud of being Aimee Semple McPherson's daughter.

"I knew the Bible so well I made a hobby of biblical perfumes and the radio show 'Hobby Lobby' brought me to New York in 1938.

"Well, I never went back. It was the first time I stood on my own two feet and made my own friends, and it was a wonderful feeling."

Also, she married the show's orchestra leader, Harry Salter, who's now producer of TV's "Name That Tune." For 16 years the marriage has been an unqualified success.

"Religion has never been a problem," says Mrs. Salter, whose husband is Jewish. "After all, Christianity is Judaism plus. We give our daughter, Vicki—she's 13 now—training in both religions."

Vicki, Mrs. Salter noted with a laugh, is "currently fascinated by her grandmother."

"It's odd," Mrs. Salter added. "For a long time few people remembered her.

"But I think Billy Graham reminded people about preachers, and Mother was about the only woman preacher who ever made a big impression—so even Hollywood is interested now.

"Probably that's the way it should be—nobody today even remotely touches what Mother did!"

Widow of Former Vice President Dies

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, widow of a former vice president of the United States, died last night in a Phoenix hospital at the age of 85.

Mrs. Marshall was admitted to the hospital Dec. 30 after suffering a stroke in the downtown resort hotel where she had lived for many years.

Her husband, who died in 1925, served as vice president from 1913 until 1921 under President Woodrow Wilson. Before running for vice president, he was governor of Indiana.

He was credited with saying: "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar."

Mrs. Marshall was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Kimsey of Angola, Ind. She married Marshall Oct. 2, 1895.

Her father died several years ago after moving to Scottsdale, near Phoenix. A brother, Morton E. Kimsey of Scottsdale, survives.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

Deaths Elsewhere

TORONTO (AP)—Margaret Anglin, 81, a leading American actress in the early 20th century, died in a Toronto nursing home yesterday. In private life she was Mrs. Howard Hull, wife of the author-playwright. Hull died about 20 years ago.

East Germans Struggle With Diaper Shortage

BERLIN (AP)—Communist East Germany is struggling with a diaper shortage, a letter published in Neues Deutschland, the official Communist party organ, said.

Complaining that East German factories are filling only about 75 per cent of the need, the writer pointed out: "Diapers are absolutely necessary for babies."

Happy Chandler Wants Big Budget, Tax Cut

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Gov. A. B. Chandler of Kentucky told the opening of the State Legislature that despite a record budget which he is asking for the next two years, he wants the state's personal income tax cut.

The governor said his proposal would "entitle everyone to have a share" in the two-million-dollar tax cut made possible, he said, by Kentucky's solid economic outlook and a treasury surplus.

Courtroom Twin Act Brings About Mistrial

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP)—The trial of Donald Benton Gerrard, 28, charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor was declared a mistrial.

It was discovered that the defendant's twin brother Doyle had appeared in court and the defendant was not present. A new date for the trial will be set.

Doyle was released pending further investigation.

'Eyewitness to Death' . . . by Agatha Christie

Copyright 1957 . .

THE STORY SO FAR: A blind in a train passing here snaps up and respectable Mrs. McGillicuddy on a prosaic trip to visit her friend Miss Marple, fluttery old lady with a shrewd brain and a gift for solving crimes, sees a man strangling a woman. When she tells the conductor, he puts it down to her imagination. Only Miss Marple believes her and together they go to the police, who advise next day that no body has been found. Miss Marple obtains a large scale map of the particular area and makes several trips over Mrs. McGillicuddy's route. Too old for physical effort, she writes to Lucy Eyelesbarrow, a brilliant young woman who has made herself a unique profession—taking temporary charge of households and running them like magic. Miss Marple figures the murderer must have thrown the body out as the train passed the neglected park of Rutherford Hall built by Mr. Crackenthorpe, a rich manufacturer. She wants Lucy to get herself employed at Rutherford Hall and search the place for a body.

CHAPTER 6

"I shall be quite close at hand," said Miss Marple to Lucy. "An old maid servant of mine, my faithful Florence, lives in Brackhampton. She has looked after her old parents for years. They are now both dead, and she takes in lodgers — all most respectable people. She has arranged for me to have rooms with her. She will look after me most devotedly, and I feel I should like to be close at hand. I would suggest that you mention you have an elderly aunt living in the neighborhood, and that you want a post within easy distance of her, and also that you stipulate for a reasonable amount of spare time so that you can go and see her often."

Again Lucy nodded.

"I was going to Taormina the day after tomorrow," she said. "The holiday can wait. But I can only promise three weeks. After that, I am booked up."

"Three weeks should be ample," said Miss Marple. "If we can't find out anything in three weeks, we might as well give up the whole thing as a mare's-nest."

Miss Marple departed, and Lucy, after a moment's reflection, rang up a Registry Office in Brackhampton, the Manageress of which she knew very well. She explained her desire for a post in the neighborhood so as to be near her "aunt." After turning down, with a little difficulty and a good deal of ingenuity, several more desirable places, Rutherford Hall was mentioned.

"That sounds exactly what I want," said Lucy firmly.

The Registry Office rang up Miss Crackenthorpe, Miss Crackenthorpe rang up Lucy.

Two days later, Lucy left London en route for Rutherford Hall.

Driving her own small car, Lucy Eyelesbarrow drove through an imposing pair of vast iron gates. Just inside them, was what had originally been a small lodge which now seemed completely derelict, whether through war damage, or merely through neglect, it was difficult to be sure. A long winding drive led through large gloomy clumps of rhododendrons up to the house.

Lucy caught her breath in a slight gasp when she saw the house which was a kind of miniature Windsor Castle. The stone steps in front of the door could have done with attention and the gravel sweep was green with neglected weeds.

DOOR OPENED

She pulled an old - fashioned wrought iron bell, and its clamor sounded echoing away inside. A slatternly woman, wiping her hands on her apron, opened the door and looked at her suspiciously.

"Expected, aren't you?" she said. "Miss Something barrow She told me."

"Quite right," said Lucy.

The house was desperately cold inside. Her guide led her along a dark hall and opened a door on the right. Rather to Lucy's surprise, it was quite a pleasant sitting room, with books and chintz covered chairs.

"I'll tell Her," said the woman, and went away shutting the door after having given Lucy a look of profound disfavor.

After a few minutes, the door opened again. From the first moment, Lucy decided that she liked Emma Crackenthorpe.

She was a middle-aged woman with no very outstanding characteristics, neither good-looking nor plain, sensibly dressed in tweeds and pullover, with dark hair swept back from her forehead, steady hazel eyes and a very pleasant voice.

She said: "Miss Eyelesbarrow?" and held out her hand.

Then she looked doubtful.

"I wonder," she said, "if this post is really what you're looking for? I don't want a housekeeper, you know, to supervise things. I want someone to do the work."

Lucy said that that was what most people needed.

Emma Crackenthorpe said apologetically,

"So many people, you know, seem to think that just a little light dusting will answer the case—but I can do all the light dusting myself."

"I quite understand," said Lucy. "You want cooking and washing up, and housework and stoking the boiler. That's all right. That's what I do. I'm not at all afraid of work."

"It's a big house, I'm afraid, and inconvenient. Of course, we only live in a portion of it—my father and myself, that is. He is rather an invalid. We live quite quietly, and there is an Aga stove. I have several brothers, but they are not here very often. Two women come in, a Mrs. Kidder in the morning, and Mrs. Hart three days a week to do brasses and things like that. You have your own car?"

"Yes. It can stand out in the open if there's no where to put it. It's used to it."

"Oh, there are any amount of old stables. There's no trouble about that." She frowned a moment, then said, "Eyelesbarrow—rather an unusual name. Some friends of mine were telling me about a Lucy Eyelesbarrow—the Kennedys?"

"Yes I was with them in North Devon when Mrs. Kennedy was having a baby."

SEES TO ALL

Emma Crackenthorpe smiled. "I know they said they'd never had such a wonderful time as when you were there seeing to everything. But I had the idea that you were terribly expensive. The sum I mentioned—"

"That's quite all right," said Lucy. "I want particularly, you see, to be near Brackhampton. I have an elderly aunt in a critical state of health and want to be within easy distance of her. That's why the salary is a secondary consideration. I can't afford to do nothing. If I could be sure of having some time off most days?"

"Oh, of course. Every afternoon, till six, if you like."

"That seems perfect."

Miss Crackenthorpe hesitated a moment before saying: "My father is elderly and a little—difficult sometimes. He is very keen on economy, and he says things sometimes that upset people. I wouldn't like—"

Lucy broke in quickly.

"I'm quite used to elderly people, of all kinds," she said. "I always manage to get on well with them."

Emma Crackenthorpe looked relieved.

"Trouble with father!" diagnosed Lucy. "I bet he's an old tartar."

She was apportioned a large gloomy bedroom which a small electric heater did its inadequate best to warm, and was shown round the house, a vast uncomfortable mansion. As they passed a door in the hall, a voice roared out:

"That you, Emma? Got the new girl there? Bring her in, I want to look at her."

Emma flushed, glanced at Lucy apologetically.

The two women entered the room. It was richly upholstered in dark velvet, the narrow windows let in very little light, and it was full of heavy mahogany Victorian furniture.

Old Mr. Crackenthorpe was stretched out in an invalid chair, a silverheaded stick by his side.

He was a big gaunt man, his flesh hanging in loose folds. He had a face rather like a bulldog, with a pugnacious chin. He had thick dark hair flecked with gray, and small suspicious eyes.

"Let's have a look at you, young lady."

Lucy advanced, composed and smiling.

"There's just one thing you'd better understand, straight away. Just because we live in a big house doesn't mean we're rich. We're not rich. We live simply—do you hear—simply! No good coming here with a lot of high falutin' ideas, Cod's as good a fish as turbot any day and don't you forget it. I don't stand for waste. I live here because my father built the house and I like it. After I'm dead, they can sell it up if they want to—and I expect they will want to. No sense of family. This house is well built—it's solid, and we've got our own land round us. Keeps us private. It would bring in a lot for building land but not while I'm alive. You won't get me out of here until you take me out feet first."

Those Cosy Gifts Win Bright Thank-Yous

LONDON (INS)—As every Englishman knows, a tea-cosy is a woolen cover which is slipped over a teapot to keep it warm. The London Daily Mirror published excerpts from letters from persons in the United States who received tea-cosies from British friends at Christmas.

One American was delighted with her charming winter hat. Another said thanks for the "lovely foot warmer which comes in so handily on long auto trips."

Swimming Pools Boom

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — There were only 2,500 swimming pools in the nation's back yards as recently as 1948. By the end of 1957, builders estimate, there were close to 100,000.

This Fellow Was Really Asking for It

PHOENIX, Ariz. (INS)—A shabbily-dressed panhandler found unsympathetic ears when he approached two men in downtown Phoennix with a story that he had only 16 cents and needed money to get to his home in Las Vegas, Nev.

The target of his plea was a pair of Phoenix detectives who promptly arrested him for vagrancy.

"You can't do that, I've got money," he shouted and pulled a $10 bill from his pocket to prove it.

The officers booked him for begging money on the street and he was sentenced to 60 days in jail.

For Not Letting Her Sing
Callas May Sue Opera

ROME (AP) — Maria Callas says she may sue the Rome Opera for refusing to let her sing here again this season after quitting in the middle of opening night.

Opera officials told the soprano yesterday police had ruled against another appearance for fear of violence by opera-loving Romans still angered by her walkout after the first act of Bellini's "Norma" Thursday night.

Miss Callas replied by letter that "I reserve my full rights." In a separate letter, she said, "As to the legal aspects. . . . I am consulting my counsel."

The singer said bronchitis forced her to quit but some opera critics contended she was angered by catcalls which greeted her first big aria.

Miss Callas was replaced in a repeat performance Saturday night by Italian soprano Anita Cerquetti. She will fill Miss Callas' remaining schedules in "Norma" here tonight and Saturday.

12-Year-Old Boy Who Killed Dad Given New Life

DENVER (AP) — Earl Wear, 12, wanted to go to work in the fields. Leonard Wear, 46, insisted his son stay in school. So Earl shot and killed his father as he slept Oct. 9 at their home at Pritchett, Colo.

The prospect of a new start in life opened up for Ear Wear today.

Cal Farley, founder and director of Boy's Ranch near Amarillo, Tex., talked to him and offered to take him on as a rancher.

"It looks promising for young Ear," said Farley.

Judge Philip Gilliam of Denver's Juvenile Court approved the arrangement yesterday.

Dist. Judge George McLachlan at Springfield, Colo., already had dismissed a murder charge against Earl.

Robert Sanderson, deputy district attorney, suggested the dismissal after psychiatrists found the boy was too young to distinguish between right and wrong.

Mrs. Wear cleared the way for Earl to go to Texas when she formally relinquished his custody.

She said: "I think it will be best for the boy because I don't feel I could take him back into the family to live with the other children."

There are 11 other children.

Bob Considine Says:

Nameless Terror Stalks Havana Society

NEW YORK (INS)—A strange wave of terror is sweeping below the tinseled surface of Havana. Its chief purpose seems to be to instill fear and doubt in Cubans, not visitors. Recently a family which had issued 1,800 invitations to the wedding reception of the daughter of the household was informed by anonymous letter to call off the party, under pain of death. No reason was given, no name signed. The father of the bride called it off. There have been countless other such senseless threats, sometimes involving people who are about to take a trip or even take a party to a theater.

Havana social life, always unusually gay during the Christmas season, showed the strain of the campaign this time.

No Cuban I spoke to could place the source of the threats. Even the anti-government elements say, in effect, "It couldn't be Batista. He is bringing business into the country, not frightening it away." The Castro disciples say, "He would never try to end fear by causing more of it."

In the meantime, the visitors feel none of this undercurrent. New and wonderful hotels bloom. The Havana Riviera, managed by old Cuba hand Jim Ennis, is as handsome a pleasure dome as there is in the hemisphere. Wall-to-wall marble.

George Raft, who played the role so often in Hollywood, is the greeter-overseer of the red plush gambling hell which is part of the new Capri Hotel.

Ran into Tom McGinty, one of the owners of the Desert Inn at Las Vegas, which runs a Wilbur Clark Annex at the Nacional Hotel. I was headed for the nearest wheel, to inquire the way to vespers.

"Do anything for you" Tom aked.

"Yes," I said. "Just nod to the croupier when I get to the table." Tom nodded. But I guess the fellow wasn't looking.

In Moscow, when we asked a lineup of Sputnik experts if there were any plans afoot to send a man into space, the physiologist took the floor and said emphatically "absolutely none." He seemed even a little indignant about it, as if it were a barbarous notion to entertain.

He was the man who had trained Laika, now entombed overhead, and an unspecified number of other dogs, monkeys and mice which the Russians have used in the past or plan to use in future probings of the upper atmosphere.

He told us that one dog had been catapulted out of a rocket at a height so great that it took it one hour and five minutes to return to the ground by parachue. Another had been ejected and permitted to fall free for, if memory serves, 50 miles before the chute opened.

But a man? Never, he swore.

Small girl we know who was grilled at some length on the question of whether she had been assigned any home work during the long Christmas holiday that was just ending finally broke down and confessed, "I have to go to the United Nations."

She seemed upset, and we asked her why.

"Oh, I've been to so many of those places," she said. It puzzled her father.

"Really? Tell me, what do you expect to see at the United Nations."

"Bones?"

"Sure, bones. All stuck together in the shape of those old animals who lived so long ago." She detected a look of doubt, paused, and then said, "The United Nations is a museum, isn't it?"

"It is not," he said, stomping his gold-headed cane.

The girl was silent for a long time.

"Then what IS it?"

The little rascal had father there.

Aviation history was made high over the Atlantic early Monday morning, a winded traveler from Paris reports.

"Helped shoulder Elsa Maxwell into an upper berth," he said.

Precious Time Lost to Scientific Development Is Revealed

(American efforts to overcome Soviet gains in rocketry and space experiment may be hindered by time-wasting administrative debate. This important question is discussed herewith in the third of four articles presenting an assessment of America's military position.)

By BOB CONSIDINE

Unless all present signs fail, the prodigious task of overtaking the Soviet Union in rocketry, space probing, and educational programs will be marked by time-wasting, temper-ruffling wrangling.

Lt. Gen. James Gavin, the Army's missiles research chief, is prepared to quit under circumstances not unlike the celebrated furor over the case of the pioneer-martyr of U.S. conventional air-power, Gen. Billy Mitchell.

In many other fields, civilian and military, men have risked and are risking their futures in an effort to get the derailed American missiles program back on the tracks and headed in one direction.

LOST IN SHUFFLE

Lost in the shuffle was a chart, presented to Sen. Lyndon Johnson's Preparedness subcommittee in the course of its pre-Christmas hearings, which was prepared by the Air Force to stress the striking differences between the amount of time the U.S. needs, and Russia needs, to plan and execute a weapons system. Dr. J. Stirling Livingston, Harvard professor, explained it succinctly to the Senators. This is what he said:

"Let me just point out two or three things about this chart before we go on. First, the total planning time.

TAKES 5 TO 6 YEARS

"From five to six years are required for planning of one of our air weapons systems.

"In the Soviet, approximately a year and a half is required for planning time.

"In other words, it takes us as long to decide to build a weapon as it takes the Soviets to decide AND build it.

"Take also a look at the figures for design and development and production. This is the total development and production time. In our country it takes approximately five years, on the average, and the Soviets are able to do this in three and a half years.

He traced the tedious steps which U.S. rocket men must take before their dreams, even if accepted, can enter the rocket race in substantive form.

OBJECTIVE SET FIRST

"I will not go into great detail, just name the steps," he said. "First, a development planning objective is established, and this is based upon the strategic and tactical need and a scientific concept that the weapon can be developed.

ADDS 2 MORE YEARS

"A feasibility study is then undertaken to make sure that the ideas in the earlier stage were sound, and then an operational requirement is developed which spells out specifically the kind of weapon to be built. This is the first step in the planning cycle, and it is the first step in lead time. It takes, on the average, three years.

PLAN DEVELOPMENT

"The second step is to plan for the development of the weapon. There are three steps under this particular step, a development plan is prepared which breaks down the weapons systems by schedule, by components. In other words, it is a technical appraisal of how this is to be done.

"Then a development directive is issued which approves the concept and authorizes the funds to proceed. Then a contractor is selected. On the average, this takes from between two and three years.

"The third step is the design and development of the weapon itself. In other words, nothing is started up to this point except studies.

CONTRACT LET

"A research and development contract is let. The contractor next makes a mock-up of the weapons decision, and when that decision is made, he prepares a design. The design then must be approved.

"Next a prototype is produced. The prototype is finally tested.

"The fourth step is production of inventory, and the normal procedure is to let a production contract, initiate engineering and configuration changes which were made desirable by the prototype testing, and authorize production tooling all at the same time.

"Then after the production bugs are out of the system, a production acceleration authorization is given and the weapon is in full production. We at this point should begin to get the weapon into operational inventory, but this is only the beginning of getting the weapon into operational inventory. And additional time naturally will occur after this."

Dr. Wernher Von Braun, who developed the V-2 for Hitler and now works for the U.S. Army's missiles program, cast light on other delays — even in missiles already in production, or near production, such as the medium-ranged Jupiter.

"There are quite a few daily problems that we have to cope with," he told Johnson subcommittee chief counsel Edwin L. Weisl. "For example, right now we get a decision to produce the Jupiter but we don't get the check to finance it. We have to let a contract now, or several contracts, but the money hasn't been forthcoming. These are difficulties. I am convinced, of course, that some day the money will be coming. But in the meantime six valuable weeks have been lost."

Says Missile Assures Jobs

Over 5,000 Increase at Warren, Predicts Senator Potter

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Potter (R-Mich) said yesterday the start of missile production at Warren, Mich., will mean almost 5,000 new jobs within a year.

Potter, speaking to newsmen after the first meeting of Michigan's Republican congressmen at this session of Congress, predicted the work at the Chrysler Corp. plant in Warren will start a chain reaction of more jobs through unemployment-plagued Michigan.

The delegation's one hour breakfast meeting, Potter said, discussed "how we as a delegation can be as effective as possible in getting defense contracts in our State."

The same topic will be discussed in a breakfast meeting at the Pentagon Friday of the State's GOP congressmen with Secretary of the Army Brucker.

The Army last Saturday announced award of a 50-million-dollar contract to Chrysler to build its Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile (IRBM) at the Warren plant near Detroit.

Potter said employment at Warren will reach near 10,000 within a year compared with the present work force of 4,500 building the Army's short-range Redstone missile.

He also said he has been informed by Wendell Barnes, small business administrator, that an effort will be made to distribute subcontracts for the Jupiter project to hard-hit Michigan small businesses.

"A substantial amount" of the new jobs at Warren, said the Senator, will go to unemployed auto workers in the Detroit area.

The Pentagon meeting Friday was called by Brucker, Potter said. The Senator did not rule out the possibility that Brucker, a former Michigan Republican governor, will discuss the Michigan political situation.

2 RCAF Members Killed Near Oscoda

OSCODA (AP) — Two Royal Canadian Air Force men, apparently on vacation, were killed yesterday in a head-on automobile collision on snow-packed U. S. 23 six miles north of Oscoda at the western top of Saginaw Bay.

State police identified the two as Kenneth Bernhard V. Rasmussen, 23, of Vancouver, B.C., and Ronald George William Hutcheson, 20, of Victoria, B.C. Indentification cards indicated both were stationed at Chatham, N.B.

Rasmussen's wife, Shirley, 20, suffered internal injuries but was not believed seriously hurt. She told police the three left Chatham before Christmas on a trip.

Donald Somerford, 27, of Saginaw, driver of the second car, was injured critically. Both he and Mrs. Rasmussen were taken to a Tawas City hospital.

Rasmussen, police said, apparently was driving the Canadian car.

When a man boasts of what he'll do tomorrow, says H. G. Diefenbaker, we'll find out what he did yesterday. A perfect wife is one who [illegible] husband and [illegible] the [illegible]

Romeo Blacksmith Plies Rapidly Vanishing Trade

By LEE WINBORN
Press Romeo Correspondent

ROMEO — This modern age of jet air travel, sputniks and speed faster than sound has had little effect on his trade as a blacksmith, says Clyde Craig of Romeo.

★ ★ ★ ★

The 76-year-old craftsman still finds plenty of jobs to keep him occupied in his weather-beaten shop at 113 S. Bailey St.

The new painted sign above the door reads "C. Craig," but others saying "Romeo Welding" are rusty and almost illegible from decades of exposure to the elements.

Both the outside and interior of the building are reminiscent of a by-gone era. Inside exposed rough-hewn beams hold row upon row of hand - wrought ironwork — horseshoes, wheels, triangle bells, hinges and many prized antiques.

WARMED BY STOVE

A pot-bellied stove throws off enough heat to keep Craig comfortable while he works at his anvil. Additional heat comes from the tiny forge fed by coal slag.

Craig said he started in the business "back in 1898, in the time of the Spanish-American War," and has been blacksmithing ever since.

"When I came to Romeo in 1919," the veteran artisan recalls, "there were three blacksmiths in Romeo, two in Washington, two in Rochester and two in Capac. Now I'm the only one left — the last of a vanishing race of Americans."

"I do repair work for the village, but most of my customers are from Clawson, Oxford, Rochester and Royal Oak," Craig said. "One of my main jobs is 'dressing' or polishing the surface of the business end of a sledge hammer."

TRUE CRAFTSMANSHIP

The Romeo artisan belies the description of a typical, sinewy blacksmith, eulogized in poem and story, but the results of his talents are nonetheless tributes to true craftsmanship.

He fashions fireplace sets of wrought iron, hand forging initials of the intended owners on each piece. He hammers the popular, Colonial wrought iron brackets which hold signs bearing homeowners' names or names of business firms. They are fastened together by hand-made diamond-head rivets.

"In the summertime I repair plow shares for farmers, and I can make horseshoes of iron or copper, tiny enough to fit on a tie clasp," Craig says with pride. He turns up the electrically-controlled bellows on his forge preparing to set to work again on the job that has occupied his time for over half a century.

Pontiac Press Photo

LAST OF THE BLACKSMITHS — Romeo blacksmith Clyde Craig plies his trade at his Bailey street shop. The last of the area blacksmiths, he still has plenty of work despite the technological advances that have made his trade almost extinct.

Pontiac Press Photo

END OF A LONG JOURNEY — Stretching their legs and looking over their new surroundings at Leader Dogs for the Blind, Inc. in Rochester are six German Shepherd dogs which have just arrived from Germany. Each will begin training immediately for his life's duties as a leader of a blind person. The dogs, 18 months old, were raised by a Bavarian baroness. They were purchased and donated to Leader Dogs by Walter Harnischfeger of Milwaukee, a member of the organization's board of control. Holding the dogs by their leashes are Harold L. Pocklington, left, executive director of Leader Dogs, and Eddie Lange, kennel manager. Behind them are the elaborate crates in which the dogs sailed aboard a Hamburg-American line freighter.

Engagements Announced

SALLY JANE BAUER

The engagement of Sally Jane Bauer to Joseph G. Gardiner has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Bauer, 6111 Middle Lake Rd., Clarkston. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Gardiner Sr., 4702 Monterey, Clarkston. The wedding date hasn't been set.

NANCY LEE LOWERY

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hurst Lowery of Devondale road, Auburn Heights, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Lee, to Bill Vancil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vancil, also of Auburn Heights. The bride-elect is a student at Central Michigan College and her fiance is a graduate of General Motors Institute. No wedding date has been set.

Nominations Sought for Jaycee Award

WALLED LAKE — The Walled Lake Junior Chamber of Commerce is seeking nominations of candidates for the title of "Outstanding Young Man of the Year."

The winner, selected by a panel of three judges, will be presented a distinguished service award at a Jaycee banquet Jan. 22 at 7 p.m. in the Stonecrest Civic Center.

Banquet chairman, Robert Green, said nominees must be between the ages of 21 and 35 and have made a contribution last year to church, youth or civic projects in the Walled Lake area.

Deadline for receiving nominations, Green said, is Jan. 15. Nominations may be mailed to him at his home, 1364 N. Pontiac Trail, Walled Lake.

RUTH L. GOSS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Goss of Minneapolis, Minn., announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Lewis Goss, 454 W. Church, Clarkston, to Kurt Wild, 53 E. Church St., Clarkston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Wild, of Wauwatosa, Wis. Miss Goss is a graduate of Carleton College, Northfield, Minn. and is currently teaching fourth grade at the Pine Knob Elementary School. Her fiance, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, in Milwaukee, is teaching industrial arts at the Clarkston High School. A June wedding in Minneapolis is planned.

Oxford Church to Hold Study Course on Japan

OXFORD — "Japan" will be the theme of a study course announced that the first meeting will planned for church women of this community. It will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, at the Oxford Methodist Church.

Other sessions will be held the following three Thursdays with the Jan. 16 meeting to be held at Immanuel Congregational Church.

United Church Women throughout America are studying the same course in an effort to promote better Christian international relations.

Mrs. George Clack, chairman of planning committee, announced that the first meeting will include colored slides of Japan and a discussion of the people and their history.

Diane Yost will give a brief review of Christian leaders as pictured in the book, "Ten Against the Storm."

Succeeding classes will include a one-act play, Japanese dinner, and film, "Younger Brother."

All women of the area, whether church-affiliated or not, are invited to attend.

Rochester Pair Speaks Vows in Evening Rite

ROCHESTER — Ruth Louise Harden and Alvin H. Cross were married in an evening rite at the home of the bride's brother, Eugene Harden, 2850 Harrington St. The Rev. D. A. Hoenschill officiated at the service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Harden, of 3167 Washington, Auburn Heights. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Cross of 88 Prall, Pontiac.

The bride wore a white satin gown, trimmed in lace and sequins. The bodice and sleeves were fashioned in lace.

Mary Harden, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Daniel Reynolds, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, served as best man.

Stocks Belonged to Uncle of Southfield Woman

Hopes to Get $300,000 Found in Stove

SOUTHFIELD — The Bank of America in San Francisco is seeking to reclaim $300,000 in securities belonging to an aged uncle of a Southfield woman.

The fortune was found in an old stove that had been owned by Walter S. Brooks, 80, uncle of Mrs. Ralph Bettison of 27261 Shagbark, Cambridge Village, Southfield.

Brooks, who suffered a stroke more than two years ago, was placed in a Sonoma, Calif., rest home. The bank, which was appointed his legal guardian, didn't know of the securities until dividend checks started pouring in.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl P. Scott, Fresno, Calif., used furniture dealers, later bought Brooks' furnishings, including the old stove, for $107. The bank had been unable to find the securities despite a hunt through the furnishings.

LEFT MICHIGAN

Mrs. Bettison's husband said Brooks, once a talented musician and a graduate of the University of Michigan, left Michigan for California around 1908 with his family.

Born in Caledonia, Brooks' only immediate relative was his sister, Mrs. Bettison's mother, Louise Brooks Green. Now besides Mrs. Bettison, there is a nephew, Walter B. Green of Leucadia, Calif.

The Scotts' attorney, Don C. Mayes of Merced, filed for a declaratory judgment Dec. 31 to determine ownership rights of the treasure.

"The Scotts feel they are surely entitled to part of the wealth," Mayes said.

The bank said it will contest the Scott suit in Fresno, and Bank of America attorney Thomas E. Feeney said the couple will be cited in Probate Court here in an effort to have the treasure trove, mostly blue chip stocks, returned to the bank as Brooks' guardian.

Bettison said Brooks started with a modest inheritance from his father who had numerous business interests in Michigan. But he was a shrewd investor, Bettison said, and parlayed it into a fortune by buying top-notch stocks.

The Bettisons last saw Brooks about a year and a half ago in California. Brooks never returned to Michigan, Bettison said.

Romeo Students Name 'Good Citizen'

Senior Gets DAR Award

ROMEO — Nancy Bartholomew, 18-year-old senior, has been named winner of this year's DAR "Good Citizen" award at Romeo High School. It is presented annually by the John Crawford Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Nancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Bartholomew, 8861 29-Mile Rd. She was president of her junior class and currently is serving as president of the Student Council.

A member of the high school concert band, Nancy was selected to represent the school at the National Music Camp at Interlochen last summer. She also attended Wolverine Girls' State in 1957 and was named youth representative on the Advisory Board of the Romeo Community Building Authority last fall.

Seniors at Romeo High School picked three of their fellow classmen to compete for the coveted DAR award. Their selections were screened by the faculty, and Nancy was chosen to receive the honor.

Qualifications for the award are based on leadership, dependability, patriotism and service. Runnersup in the 1958 competition were Kathleen Gaines and Carol Schoenherr.

NANCY BARTHOLOMEW

Parents Invited Back to School in Clarkston

CLARKSTON — All parents of students attending Clarkston High School have been invited to the second annual "Parents Back to School Night," to be held at the high school Jan. 14.

Parents are asked to report to the gym at 8 p.m. for general instructions. They then will go through their son's or daughter's daily program in 10 minute periods.

Refreshments will be served at the end of the program.

Every School Room in Brandon to Get Flag

ORTONVILLE — The Brandon Veterans Memorial Association of Ortonville has undertaken a project to supply each school room in the Brandon Schools with a United States flag.

The project is being carried out under the direction of Robert Sutton, association president, and Don Frick and Marvin Featherston, members of the purchasing committee.

Firemen Slate Dinner

IMLAY CITY — City firemen will hold their annual dinner Monday night at the Homestead Restaurant. Their wives will be guests. Walter Zuhlke, Charles Wilcox, Warner Hoeksema and Fred Hoeksema are in charge of arrangements.

On the entertainment committee are Oren Dungey and Orval Harris.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass
Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get FASTEETH at drug counters everywhere.

Necklines Dip Down to the Waist

Daring Costumes Are Displayed by Ceil Chapman

By OLGA CURTIS

NEW YORK (INS) — Ceil Chapman's motto is: "The low neckline will never disappear."

VAMPISH DRESS

Miss Chapman favors the long, vampish dress—with Javanese overtones—in her new line. She makes floor-length sheaths out of vivid brown, blue, red and green South Sea-type prints.

Skirts are straight, necklines plunging, and backs bare—but these exotic dresses are covered up with long-sleeved open-front Javanese "Kabaya" jackets that drop to the hipbone.

Although this designer advocates slinkiness and prints as the proper after-dark spring combination, she also makes some of her usual "pretty" dance dresses with fluffy skirts and lots of embroidery.

Most unusual dress in the Chapman line, however, is the "peek-a-boo" sheath. Miss Chapman merely makes a form-fitting naked-top sheath and then covers it with an unfitted chiffon or lace overdress.

TWO-PART EFFORT

Low necklines also make news at Harvey Berin, where designer Karen Stark has split her efforts into two parts: A group of unfitted dresses reminiscent of the rah-rah 1920s—and a group of sophisticated cocktail dresses with necklines so low the bra has to be anchored to the waistline.

The unfitted dresses can be had in three silhouettes. One is called "Split Level," and combines loose backs with envelop-folded fronts.

The second is "Fancy Free"—an easy sheath with low back bands and front buttons. And the third is "Globe Trotter," a one-piece dress with a two-piece look achieved by blousing the bodice low over an elasticized waistline.

In the evening clothes, the built-in bra is made part of the dress trim. It's outlined in lace or pastel satin to make the most of a plunging bodice. Sometimes it's decorated to show prettily under a high-necked chiffon over-bodice.

The most interesting—and flattering—of the low necklines is an old-fashioned marquise neckline cut wide on the sides and marked by roses.

ALL SHORTENED

Everything's shorter in coats and suits at Monte-Sano and Pruzan for spring. Jackets are shorter, sleeves are shorter and skirts are shorter—just barely covering the knees.

This firm's luxury fabric coats and costumes, in very pale colors like cream and yellow, offer a great deal of variety: There are standaway jackets, bloused-to-the-hip jackets, bias two-third-length coats and sash-tie jackets.

Skirts are unanimously tight and ultra-short, and sleeves also stay short to show off long gloves. Most jackets, incidentally, stop just atop the hipbones.

Orange, Silk Harmonize in Spring Styles

The color orange and the fabric silk figure prominently in the spring collections of this country's best-known designers. Orange appears alone and in combination with hot yellows and reds, in prints and in solid colors. Silk takes to daytime wear and appears for evening, too. It's seen this spring in suits and ensembles as well as dresses. It takes equally well to the slim-lined suit and to the full-skirted dress.

Festive orange silk peau de soie is the fabric for Adele Simpson's evening gown with big bouffant skirt that bells up in front, down in back. Tiny straps over the shoulders criss-cross in back, forming a wrap-around bodice that fastens in front with a bow.

Brilliant orange in a chrysanthemum floral design is splashed over this ensemble in nubby silk dupionni. This George Carmel design is composed of slim dress and loose, bloused jacket.

Children Enjoy Making Things for Party Decor

Children seem to have as much fun preparing for a party as at the party itself.

So, mothers, why not give them the chance to turn ordinary drinking tumblers into comic characters that dress up the party table. It just takes paste, colored paper, and imagination.

First paste a bright paper cover completely around the tumbler, then use contrasting paper for cutouts of comic eyes, elephant ears, walrus mustaches, or bushy eyebrows.

After the party, the decorations can be removed by soaking the glasses in hot soap or detergent suds.

LOIS L. BARTLES

Mr. and Mrs. E. Don Bartles of Oliver street announce the engagement of their daughter, Lois Laurene, to Delbert Irvin Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Brown of Newberry. The bride-elect is a student at Bronson Methodist Hospital School of Nursing. An August wedding is planned.

U. of M. Alumnae Club Holds Scholarship Affair

The Franklin boulevard home of Mrs. Collis Scott was the scene of a reception given Tuesday by the University of Michigan Alumnae Club of Pontiac for 1958 Pontiac Central High School scholarship applicants.

University of Michigan Regents-Alumni Scholarships are designed to make the university's educational resources more widely available to promising young men and women of the state who, without assistance, would find it difficult or impossible to secure a university education.

SCHOLARSHIP SYSTEM

Each accredited high school in the state is entitled to at least one Regents-Alumni Scholarship provided a qualified graduating senior applies. In addition, a number of scholarships-at-large are awarded. Seven Pontiac High School students were awarded these scholarships in 1955, and eight in both 1956 and 1957.

Mrs. W. O. Roeser, chairman of the alumnae scholarship committee, has been assisted with student interviews by alumnae members. Mrs. Jay Wagner, Iama Hook, Mrs. Harry Richards and Doris Haynes. Also assisting with the interviews were university alumni Dr. William Donnelly, Dr. Donald Bergeron, Sherwin Brinkrant and Dr. W. O. Roeser.

YELLOW AND BLUE

Refreshments were served from a table very appropriately decorated with a centerpiece of yellow and blue flowers and yellow tapers. Mrs. L. L. Dunlap, who was social chairman of the evening, was assisted by Mrs. Robert H. Baker, Mrs. T. E. Wiersema and Mrs. Frank Allen.

Mrs. Vernon Abbott, Mrs. Robert B. Tarr, and Mrs. Ralph Behler made up the hospitality committee.

"Cream and sugar?" queried Mrs. Ralph Behler (left), hospitality committee member, as she poured for Mrs. W. O. Roeser, scholarship committee chairman, and Dr. D. D. Bergeron, scholarship committee member.

Presenting a silver tea service and urn to the congregation was Sisterhood representative Mrs. Meyer Simon (right). It was accepted for the congregation by Charles Jacobs. Narrator for the Tuesday evening program was Mrs. Leonard Cain (center).

Sisterhood Holds Celebration

25th Anniversary Marked

Celebrating their silver anniversary Tuesday evening in the social hall of the Oneida road Synagogue were members of the Sisterhood of Congregation B'nai Israel.

After the invocation by Mrs. Israel Goodman and a welcome by President Mrs. David Utley, the program chairman, Mrs. Leonard Cain, presented a narration entitled "Through the Minute Book" written by herself.

Mrs. Cain and Mrs. Sol Newhouse acted as narrators, Mrs. Karl Berg and Mrs. David Saks directed the presentation, with Mrs. Lee Goldberg as accompanist and Mrs. George Surowitz as vocalist.

The inception of the Sisterhood was Nov. 9, 1932, when a small group of women met in the home of Mrs. Lazarus Hershovitz and elected Mrs. Morris Blumeno as the first president.

As each past president came through the large Minute Book, the history of the Sisterhood unfolded. After reviewing the events and progress that occurred during her administration, each president lighted a candle on the large anniversary cake, which also was in the shape of a book.

CERTIFICATES GIVEN

Mrs. Cain, during the narration, presented 25-year certificates to the following charter members: Mrs. Herbert Allen, Mrs. Ira Alvin, Mrs. Blumeno, Mrs. Charles Eilender, Mrs. Lazarus Hershovitz, Mrs. Joseph Jacobson, Mrs. Herman Sarokin, Mrs. Sam Levin, Mrs. Sol Levin, Mrs. Louis Liebeskind, Mrs. Sam Merkovitz, Mrs. Haskell Monsein and Mrs. Sam Messing.

Those receiving the gavels were Mrs. Blumeno, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Jack Ketchel, Mrs. Liebeskind, Mrs. Sam Levin, Mrs. Alvin, Mrs. William Mitchell, Mrs. Jacobson, Mrs. Irwin Kampner, Mrs. Ben Smith, Mrs. Surowitz, Mrs. Milton Ressler, Mrs. Morris Kampner, Mrs. Eilender, Mrs. Daniel Foxman and Mrs. David Utley.

Mrs. Meyer Simon, representing the Sisterhood, presented a silver tea service and urn to the congregation. This was accepted by the congregation president, Charles Jacobs.

Following the benediction by Rabbi Goodman, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Maurice Schlussel, Mrs. Abraham Avadenka and Mrs. Jack Bodner.

Removing Stains From Cotton No Big Problem

FT. COLLINS, Colo. (INS) — Housewives often find removal of stains from cotton clothing a problem.

Ann Jackson, Colorado State University clothing specialist, has an answer, however, for the question of how to get out grass, soft drink, perspiration and other stains.

Perspiration stains can be deleted by washing or sponging the cloth with warm water and soap or liquid detergent.

Soft drink stains can be gotten rid of by mixing hydrogen peroxide with 10 parts of water to make a cleaning fluid do the trick.

Grass stains can be removed by rubbing the spots well with soap and moderately hot water, then wash.

If stains persist, a good bleach can be made with one teaspoon sodium perborate added to one pint hydrogen peroxide.

Announce Winners of Duplicate Bridge

Mrs. Ernest Guy and Mrs. Addison Oakley were north-south winners when Pontiac Duplicate Bridge Club met at Elks Temple. Placing second were Melvin Smail and John Kraus.

Winning east and west were Mrs. Perry Brunk and Mrs. Robert Kircher. Tied for second place at the Monday evening meeting were Dr. and Mrs. Edward F. Collins and Mr. and Mrs. Herald Cox.

Proficiency Group Elects New Officers

Mrs. Martha Reaves was elected president of 1939 - 40 Proficiency Group of OES Chapter 228 when the group met in the James K boulevard home of Mrs. Charles Sarver. Also elected were Mrs. Clarice Bushfield, vice president, and Mrs. Lucille Klein, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Nita Payne and Mrs. Kenneth Anthony assisted the hostess at the Monday evening meeting.

Smiling over their plans for a scholarship fund-raising telephone bridge are Birmingham University of Michigan Alumnae (left to right) Mrs. Frederick Adams, Mrs. Morton J. Bell and Mrs. Albert E. Little. Occasion was a kick-off luncheon held Tuesday at Fox and Hounds Inn.

Birmingham Alumnae Schedule Party

Telephone lines will be busy this week preparing for a scholarship fund-raising project of Birmingham Alumnae of the University of Michigan. The project, a telephone bridge party scheduled for Jan. 22, is being arranged by Mrs. Edwin O. George of Bloomfield Hills and her committee.

On the committee are Mrs. Robert Klintworth, Mrs. P. E. Bollinger, Mrs. Norris Host, Mrs. W. K. Patterson, Mrs. Alvin Lambert, Mrs. J. W. Jaikens, Mrs. Albert Little, Mrs. Merton Bell, Mrs. S. F. Leahy, Mrs. William Bird and Mrs. Neil Hyde.

Mrs. Paul Robertson, Mrs. Sylvester Trythall, Mrs. S. E. Bychinsky, Mrs. Stewart Cram, Mrs. Robert Watt, Mrs. Frederick Adams and Mrs. Arthur Raisch are other committee members.

Opening their homes for parties will be Mrs. Russell Heyl, Mrs. Robert Vanderkloot, Mrs. Charles Shain, Mrs. Francis H. Phelps, Mrs. A. A. Appleford, Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. F. P. Doherty, Mrs. Fred Henny, Mrs. Watt, Mrs. John W. Jickling, Mrs. James B. Bragaw, Mrs. Hobart D. Andreae, Mrs. Edson K. Pool and Mrs. William J. Bird.

New Type Pad Protects Table

To prevent spilled liquids, heat, and scratches from damaging a valuable dining table, place a washable protector pad underneath the tablecloth.

One triple purpose pad has a top layer of waterproof vinyl plastic, a middle layer of insulating fiber glass, and a bottom layer of quilted flannelette. After use, it can be wiped clean with a sudsy cloth.

Dear Abby....

Tell Fatso You're Wise --- He'd Better Shape Up

DEAR ABBY: My brother is supposed to be on a diet. My mother has spent a fortune on doctors and pills for him. She breaks her neck making special foods for him and he isn't losing a pound.

ABBY

In fact, he is gaining — and I know why, too. I can hear the refrigerator door opening and closing at all hours of the night. He thinks he is putting one over on us.

I get so mad when I think of how he is cheating and getting away with it. Should I tell Mother and take the chance of getting beat up? I am 15 and Fatso is 12.

SIS

DEAR SIS: If your brother is cheating and eating he is not getting away with anything. You can't fool the scales. Tell him you are wise and give him a chance to go straight. If that doesn't work —tell Mama.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have never had a spat in 30 years and here is our secret: Jealousy is out! My wife goes where she wants to go, with whom she wants, and comes home when she pleases with no questions asked.

The same goes for me. The door in our house is never locked. We are very broad-minded and understanding people and I think it would do for newlyweds to take a leaf out of our book.

LIVE AND LET LIVE

DEAR LIVE (and, believe me, you are living): This kind of arrangement is dandy for brother and sister, but a husband and wife are "joined together" in holy matrimony and should live that way . . . Put that leaf back in your book, and turn it over.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 years old and my mother won't let me get married because she is afraid she will lose a maid and babysitter. She works herself, but only to get away from my little brothers and sisters.

If I get married she won't have anybody to do the work for her. What should I do? I have thought about running away to get married. I have a boy friend, he is 19, who keeps asking me to.

IN LOVE AND TROUBLED

DEAR IN LOVE: Stay home and forget about running away to get married. You are not dry behind the ears yet and your boy friend is ALL wet!

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of people who accept a dinner invitation for 6 o'clock and come at 7 and leave at 8? I had this happen to me.

They said they had to go home as one of their children was sick. When I telephoned them at 9 to see how the child was, a sitter answered the phone and said she thought they were still at my house.

I am so disgusted I could cry. How should we act toward them in the future?

COULD CRY

DEAR COULD: For heaven's sake, have nothing to do with these people. Be pleasant —but distant.

CONFIDENTIAL TO GLADYS: You didn't hear from him again for one of two reasons. Either you gave him too much—or not enough.

If you have a problem, write to Abigail Van Buren in care of The Pontiac Press. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Mrs. Norman Allen Is Hostess to PEO

Mrs. William Miller and Mrs. Joseph Bara were in charge of the program when AW Chapter of PEO met Monday evening in the Newberry street home of Mrs. Norman Allen. "What's New About Cottey College?", and the educational loan fund were the topics of discussion.

Guests were Marsha Hausser of Clarkston and Mrs. Archie McKillop of Gladwin.

Get More Wear From New Hose

Don't wear your new costume-coordinated hose without first sudsing them. They'll last longer if you do.

It's a good precaution to wash those super-sheer, tinted stockings extra carefully. One method is to wear white gloves to prevent snagging the nylons.

Another is to launder them in a juice-shaker half-filled with warm soap or detergent suds.

Begin to Work Toward That New You

Act Now on Your 1958 Resolutions

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Don't let your New Year's resolutions, which you made with such enthusiasm, become cool. Keep them warm with action. Strike while you still are keenly aware of your need to put them into effect.

Perhaps you made up your mind to lose extra weight, to improve your figure with exercise, to slim a large calf or straighten round shoulders. Maybe you are especially concerned with your general health. Whatever it is, begin now to work toward that new you.

Fortunately for us, today good looks are within the reach of every woman because our standards of good looks are sound.

Any woman is attractive looking if she has a clear complexion, lovely hair becomingly arranged, good posture, good muscles which give her tone, a graceful walk and pleasant voice, the correct weight and correct measurements, vitality and gaiety and warmth.

Don't let your New Year's resolutions become cool. Keep them with action. If you have made up your mind to lose extra weight, to improve your figure with exercise, to slim a large calf or straighten round shoulders, the Marathon will help make it possible.

Added to the natural wish for beauty or attractiveness is the weight of medical opinion that obesity is downright dangerous to health and even to life. Why not boost your enjoyment in living and your chances for a long vital life by losing any extra pounds you may have?

Each year at this time I bring you my Eight-Week Self-Improvement Marathon to help you make your New Year's resolutions come true. Eight weeks is long enough to lose 20 pounds successfully and to diminish practically any defect you may have.

If you wish to join Marathon, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my Marathon Booklet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press. Begin your eight weeks just as soon as you receive your directions.

Tomorrow: "Marathon Gives Answers to Figure, Beauty Defects."

Boss Buys Two Drinks for Couple

They Should Lift Glasses and Nod in Appreciation

By EMILY POST

"Dear Mrs. Post: The other night my fiance and I were at a supper club. While we were there, my employer came in with his wife and sat at a table not far from ours. During the course of the evening my employer ordered two drinks, which he paid for, sent over to our table.

"I would like to know if my fiance (or I) should have gone over to thank him, or just how should we have showed our appreciation. Also, would it have been proper for my fiance to order drinks sent to their table in return?"

Answer: You both should have lifted your glasses and nodded when he was glancing your way so that he could see your appreciation and that's all. The next day you would thank him at the office.

"Dear Mrs. Post: Our school is giving a large formal dance very soon. The boy I've asked to go with me is in the service—the Marines to be exact. Would it be proper for him to wear his dress blues to the dance or must he wear a tuxedo?"

Answer: As very possibly your guest himself knows, he not only may wear his dress blues but probably would. There is, however, no regulation against wearing civilian dress when on leave in peacetime.

"Dear Mrs. Post: I am a widow in my late 60s and live with my married daughter, her husband and their two children. They received a wedding invitation recently addressed to Mr. and Mrs. . . . and Family.

"My daughter thinks that the invitation includes me too but I think it means just her and her husband and the children. Will you please straighten us out on this?"

Answer: As you live with them, you certainly will not be wrong in assuming that you are included in the "and family."

One Bowl Enough for All Mixing

Cocoa Spice Cake Popular With Mrs. Robinson

By JANET ODELL

We know that the holidays are over. But your family is still demanding dessert and snacks. If they like chocolate cake, try this one that can be made in one bowl and with not too much effort.

* * *

Mrs. William Robinson, today's cook, likes to bake and to sew. The mother of two small daughters, she is a member of the Commerce School PTA. She belongs also to a neighborhood association.

QUICK CHOCOLATE CAKE
By Mrs. William Robinson

4 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
4 teaspoons cocoa
½ cup milk plus 1 teaspoon vinegar
1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
Few drops red food coloring

Put all ingredients in a bowl and beat 3-4 minutes, or from 250-300 strokes. Add ½ cup boiling water and beat well again.

Pour into greased and floured 8x8-inch cake pan. Bake 30-35 minutes at 350 degrees. Frost as desired.

Areme OES Announces Future Chapter Activities

Special grand committeewoman on youth of the Grand Chapter of Michigan, Mrs. Merritt Zook, spoke on the worthy grand matron's projects for the year when the Areme Chapter 503, OES, met Monday evening at Roosevelt Temple.

Plans were made for a Jan. 16 Family Night to be held with Roosevelt and Brotherhood Masonic Lodges at the temple. Areme Chapter will hold Friendship and Oakland County Officers Night Jan. 20. Associate Patron Eugene Perkio will be a guest at Walled Lake Friendship Night Jan. 18.

Areme's Bible Degree will be guests at Commerce Jan. 21 and Worthy Matron Mrs. William Pfahlert will be a guest at Entre Nous, South Lyon, Jan. 29. Worthy patron Morton Graham will hold a proficiency class in his Joslyn avenue home Jan. 13.

Committees were announced for Areme Chapter's annual cup and saucer card party to be held Feb. 5 at the temple.

Mrs. Theron Taylor will be chairman of the event, with Mrs. William Lunsford, Mrs. Harry Eaton and Mrs. Thomas Cox on the ticket committee.

Serving on the prize committees are Mrs. Sidney Fellows, Mrs. C. W. Crawley, Mrs. Robert Davis, Mrs. Lester Oles, Mrs. Grace Robinson and Mrs. Pierre Shaver. Mrs. G. R. Scharf, Mrs. Harrison Miller and Agnes Newingham are the tally committee.

Norton Graham, Eugene Perkio and Kenneth Hamilton are heading the table committee. Mrs. Raymond Swaney is in charge of refreshments and William Pfahlert, Lester Oles and Chris Hornbeck are in charge of pouring coffee.

Candy and soft drinks are under the supervision of Mrs. Raymond Boatright, Nancy Reinert and Jean Edwards.

Guest for the Monday meeting was Mrs. Paul Hagle. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Raymond Swaney, Mrs. Robert Moor and Hazel Heiby.

Mrs. Leroy Boelter Honored at Shower

A pink and blue shower honoring Mrs. Leroy Boelter was given Tuesday evening by VFW Auxiliary 1008 at the home of Mrs. Walter Souter on Ledgestone drive. Assisting Mrs. Souter as cohostess was Mrs. Alice Witt.

Fourteen guests were present for the affair, which featured games followed by refreshments.

Notified of Death

Mrs. Mary Jackson of Michigan avenue has received word of the death of her sister, Mrs. Tory Tufts of Crystal Falls.

Literary Club to Hold Series of Card Parties

The Berwick boulevard home of Mrs. Don Breen was the setting for the Monday meeting of Woman's Literary Club. Mrs. Dale Moats announced to the 17 members present that the first in a series of card parties will be held Jan. 21.

The group donated books to Pontiac State Hospital. A book review was given by Mrs. Paul Gorman.

Mrs. Norman Buckner and Mrs. A. O. Carmer were hostesses and Mrs. Harry Baker and Mrs. Harry Vernon poured.

Youngster Accepts Our Views to Survive

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Out on the sunporch 7-year-old Kate was rearranging her doll's house. At her little sister's urgent request, she let Buff "hold" its toy piano until she was ready to place it.

But when this time came, Buff ran away with it. Rushing to Mommy, she cried, "Kate gave me this! Now she wants it back. Tell her it's mine, Mommy."

Kate's protests were rejected. "You're always giving Buff things and wanting them back," her mother said. "You need a good lesson. This time she keeps what you gave her."

Kate felt a passionate wish to remove Mommy from her life.

Withdrawing to the porch, she considered all methods for removal of enemies. She thought of attempting Mommy's physical destruction. She thought of running away. She thought of enlisting Daddy's aid that evening.

But she had to discard them all as impractical. Attempting Mommy's physical destruction could only result in punishment, or an orphanhood as terrifying as that of poor little foreign children in magazine pictures.

BEGAN TO JUSTIFY

Running away could only end in somebody's asking her where she was going. As to Daddy, he'd resist any effort to remove Mommy because he was married to her.

Out on the sunporch Kate resolved her rage at unjust authority in the immemorial manner of the helpless.

She began to justify Mommy.

She thought, "Maybe I DID give my piano to Buff. I guess I must have done what Mommy says I did, and she is right and I am wrong."

Let us note carefully the appearance of that little, powerful word "right" in Kate's mind. It appeared there, not as the result of a genuine struggle to separate "right" from "wrong," but as a result of her absolute need to be reconciled to Mommy.

This is the child's eternal problem.

His acceptance of our views of "right" and "wrong" is compelled, not by his own moral experience, but by his need for survival.

Once we see this, we stop demanding that he share ours. We encourage expression of his views, not because child psychiatrists tell us to, but because we see it's immoral to exploit his dependence.

We content ourselves with demanding desirable action without claiming "rightness" for what we want.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. Knoblock of Bloomfield Hills announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Jeanne, to Stephen Robbins Yarnall, son of the Thomas C. Yarnalls of Birmingham. The bride-elect is a student at Cornell University and her fiance attends University of Rochester Medical School. A June wedding is planned.

Golden Orator Has Green Thumb Too

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen (R-Ill), noted in the halls of Congress for his golden oratorical voice, also has a green thumb, according to his wife.

"He can put a stick in the ground and it will grow," Mrs. Dirksen told me. "I've never seen anything like it."

The powerful Middle Westerner, who is expected to take over the Republican leadership of the Senate when Sen. William F. Knowland bows out to run for governor of California, has been "putting things in the ground" every spare moment in recent months.

VIRGINIA PROPERTY

The senatorial green thumb is exercising its talents on the three-acre property at Sterling, Va., on the Potomac River, which the Dirksens are readying as a weekend and holiday Shangri-la.

Since last fall, when building started on an attractive ranch-style house on the property, the Dirksens have been directing their activities from a rented trailer where they often stay overnight in good weather.

Dirksen first came to the capital in March 1933, when he was elected to the 73rd Congress.

He served in each succeeding Congress until he voluntarily retired in April 1950 to run for the Senate. He was elected to the upper house in November 1950.

TWO HOMES NOW

Currently the Dirksens are living in an apartment hotel and maintaining their rambling old residence in their home town of Pekin, Ill.

Dirksen, according to his wife, is landscaping his Virginia acres so that by next Spring, when their house is finished, the place will be in full bloom.

He has put in spring shrubs, dogwood, cedar and a variety of other plantings to assure continuous blooming the year around.

He is especially fond of roses and gladioli, his wife asserts. The herbs and vegetables, she says, are her "province."

New Fashion Color

Haircolor this year is a fashion cosmetic. It goes on almost as fast as lipstick (and should be chosen with the same care).

Quick temporary rinses are becoming very popular with women who are not interested in durable colors.

You may want to brighten your natural color with highlights and there is a "cosmetic" for that, too. We welcome your questions on hair color.

Jim Brown Leads All-Pro Selections

Browns' Rookie Top Vote Getter of AP All-Stars

Linebacker Joe Schmidt of Lions Strong Choice on All-NFL Team

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jimmy Brown, Cleveland's bulldozing fullback, swept the boards in the annual Associated Press poll today, gaining quadruple honors as the player, back and rookie of the year besides getting the most votes on the AP All-Pro football team.

The 220-pound muscleman was the only member of the Browns to earn a place on the two-platoon team as San Francisco notched four berths, while Baltimore, Green Bay and the champion Detroit Lions earned three places each.

Brown was named on all 36 ballots of the sports writers covering the NFL campaign in the various cities from coast to coast. He received 34 votes for the fullback spot and two for left halfback. Gino Marchetti of Baltimore attracted the second highest total of votes, 35, for an end position on the defensive team. Detroit's great linebacker, Joe Schmidt, was next with 34 votes. He was followed by offensive end Billy Wilson of San Francisco, who had 33 votes, and Washington's defensive end, Gene Brito, 31.

Eleven players, led by Schmidt and Brito, were repeaters from the 1956 All-Star team. They included tackle Lou Creekmur and halfback Jack Christiansen, Detroit; tackle Roosevelt Brown and halfback Frank Gifford, New York; tackle Art Donovan, Baltimore; middle guard Bill George, Chicago Bears; halfback Ollie Matson, Chicago Cardinals; end Billy Howton, Green Bay and guard Dick Stanfel, Washington.

Brown, who leaped from All-America fame at Syracuse University to a regular fullback berth with the Browns, piled up 33 of the 36 votes to waltz off with the freshman prize. He also received 19 votes as the outstanding back and was named on 14 ballots as the circuit's No. 1 player.

Y. A. Tittle, San Francisco's veteran quarterback, was second to Brown in the best back and player-of-the-year categories. He had six votes for the first and 10 for the second. Baltimore's quarterback, Johnny Unitas, was third in each department with five and seven votes.

Three freshmen, Detroit's offensive end Steve Junker, Los Angeles' halfback Jon Arnett and Chicago Bears' halfback Willie Galimore, divided the other three votes for rookie honors.

Hugh McElhenny of the Forty-Niners, Tobin Rote of the Lions and Gifford of the Giants, who won the player of the year award last year, were the others named for backfield honors. Each received two votes. Three others, all linemen, were nominated for player of the year honors. Schmidt received three votes, Wilson got one and Duane Putnam, the Rams' stalwart guard, got the other.

Michigan, Michigan State Leave Hockey League

Big 10 Ice Teams Quit WIHL

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Michigan, Michigan State and Minnesota today withdrew en-masse from the seven-team Western Intercollegiate Hockey League.

The withdrawal of the three Big Ten schools will not affect this season's play. It becomes effective in six months, according to a letter sent to league secretary William A. Longacre of Michigan Tech by Prof. Marcus L. Plant, Michigan's Big Ten faculty representatives.

Remaining in the loop are Michigan Tech, North Dakota, Colorado College and Denver. The move had been rumored since last March.

Plant said the schools are withdrawing primarily because of different eligibility rules between the Big Ten and other schools in the league.

"At the time the WIHL was organized (1951-52)," said Plant's letter, "it was our hope and expectation in joining it that the problems involved in hockey competition among institutions from several different conferences, having substantially different rules as to eligibility of players, financial assistance and conduct of the game might be solved through this new playing league."

But Plant said Michigan's athletic board decided the league has been unable to achieve a standard compatible with the obligations of Michigan as a member of the Big Ten.

He said Michigan will be free to schedule league schools on a non-league basis.

Michigan voiced hope that other Big Ten institutions will now be encouraged to take up hockey. There has been a wish at Michigan that the conference eventually will have its own hockey league.

"This has been a long time in coming" said one Michigan source close to the hockey scene. "It was aimed principally at Colorado College. They brought it on themselves. We tried to get Colorado and Denver to go along in September on similar eligibility rules and they wouldn't."

Michigan became disgruntled on the eve of the NCAA tournament last March when two of its players—Wally Maxwell and Mike Buchanan—suddenly were declared ineligible. It was felt that Colorado College was the cause behind the ruling. Colorado went on to win the national NCAA championship defeating Michigan in the tourney finals.

The Big Ten earlier had restored eligibility to Maxwell and Buchanan after a year's suspension because they played briefly in the National Hockey League. Both are Canadians and were considered amateurs in Canada because they didn't play more than three games as professionals.

Maxwell played two games for the Toronto Maple Leafs in 1952-53. Buchanan appeared in one game for the Chicago Black Hawks in 1951-52.

There have been repeated charges at Michigan that many of the Colorado College players would fail to meet Big Ten eligibility standards.

Dr. Harold Tukey chairman of the Michigan State Athletic Council said at East Lansing in explaining MSU plans to withdraw: "We now see the difficulties of trying to draw several conferences together in a league in which separate conferences have different rules and regulations. The Big Ten never has thoroughly approved of the arrangement."

Royals Bump Pistons

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Royals exploded with 30 points in the third period last night and while the Detroit Pistons were still gasping went on to score a 114-99 National Basketball Assn. victory.

The Pistons held a 59-56 advantage at halftime but were able to sink only 12 points before the raging Royals subsided at the whistle signaling the end of the third quarter.

Jack Twyman led the Royal onslaught, scoring 15 points in the second half to bring his game total to 26.

The Pistons, as if startled into submission by the Cincinnati attack, connected for only two field goals in the period.

The Pistons' George Yardley, who leads the NBA with a 27-point average, was held to 11 points. He collected just two field goals, the second in the first minute of the second quarter.

Walter Dukes led the Pistons scoring with 17 points, followed by Gene Shue and Joe Holup with 16 apiece.

The victory put the Royals alone in second place in NBA's Western Division.

The Pistons are scheduled to return to Detroit to meet the Syracuse Nationals in the nightcap of a double-header tonight. Cincinnati will meet the New York Knickerbockers in the first game.

In the second game of the Madison Square Garden doubleheader, Bob Petit, with a 26-point average despite a broken finger, also finished with only 11 points, leaving the big job to Ed Macauley, who counted 25, in a 114-112 decision over New York. Richie Guerin, Guy Sparrow and Willie Naulls each hit 20 or more for the Knicks, topped by Guerin's 26.

St. Louis, still nine games ahead of Cincinnati in the Western race, was behind by 17 and 11 points in the second half after giving up the lead early in the second quarter. But the Knicks then blew cold and Jack McMahon got the job done with three points in the last 35 seconds after Macauley's jump shot had tied it 110-all.

NCAA Closes Confab Today

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Delegates to the 52nd National Collegiate A. A. convention climaxed their affairs today with hardly a controversial subject in sight.

Apparently this convention was destined from the start to be the most serene since the NCAA entered the rules enforcement field nearly a decade ago. The representatives of some 500 colleges were ready to keep it that way today by voting rubber-stamp approval of the actions and recommendations of the NCAA council, television committee, infractions committee and other hard-working groups.

Barring an unforseen hassle, they hoped to finish their business meeting before joining the American Football Coaches Assn. at a luncheon where Vice President Nixon was scheduled to make an off-the-cuff talk. The luncheon honored Ohio State's Woody Hayes as coach of the year.

One possibly debatable subject was listed for discussion though. It can't come up for a vote until next year. That was the decision of the influential NCAA council to provide a loophole for exempting the Army, Navy and Air Force academies from proposed legislation specifically forbidding subsidized pre-college and post-graduate education for athletes.

Army and Navy long have offered preparatory or "cramming" programs to help prospective athletes pass their difficult entrance exams. The Air Force Academy recently started the same sort of thing and some other schools have asked if it is permissible.

The NCAA council found no rule specifically prohibiting such practices. Then it prepared one which included a proviso that the service academies may be exempted if the council approves, by a two-thirds vote, the prep programs they suggest.

Because this legislation was prepared too late, it couldn't be acted upon today but was to be presented merely as a proposal which will be voted on next year.

An anticipated argument over "red shirting"—the practice of holding athletes out of competition to prolong their eligibility—failed to develop but probably will come up in the future. Another one for the future book is the desire of some schools and conferences to set up a national system of "letters of intent" a sort of contract which binds an athlete to a school from which he accepts a grant in aid.

The lengthy report of the NCAA committee on infractions, presented by A. D. Kirwan, faculty athletic representative and former head football coach at Kentucky, pointed out this has been the quietest years in the committee's history.

The television committee report mentioned obvious dangers of the "revenues of anticipated extravagance" which could come from pay-as-you-see TV of football games. It proposed a careful study of this subject, with the idea of protecting colleges in general from disproportionate TV payments to a few top football schools.

In general, the outgoing TV committee suggested that the programs and controls of the past few years had been satisfactory and that a new committee shouldn't be hampered by a lot of recommendations from the old committee or the convention.

Clarkston, Holly Continue to Roll in W-O Conference

Just like "Old Man River," the basketball teams of Clarkston and Holly just keep rolling along in 1st place in the Wayne-Oakland League.

Each continued along the unbeaten trail last night with loop victories. Holly got by its 1st big hurdle by edging Brighton 49-46 despite a mediocre performance by the Broncos.

It was just the opposite at Clarkston where the Wolves just breezed along blasting Clarenceville 75-38. Meanwhile, Northville remained right on the trail of the leaders by walloping Bloomfield Hills 62-33 and West Bloomfield nudged Milford 56-51.

A big showdown is set for Friday at Northville when the once-beaten Mustangs host Holly. Clarkston and Holly tangle the following week.

Holly, penalized for 18 court violations and weakened by being able to use big George McDaniel only part time due to a flu attack, had to battle Brighton right down to the wire to win.

Brighton pulled into a five-point lead in the 3rd quarter before faltering but kept it interesting led by the 22-point scoring of Russ Hudson. Harold Haddon paced Holly's 5th season triumph and 4th in the W-O with 17.

Northville also started early in its waltz gaining a 30-15 lead after two quarters. Dick Biery's 21 points and 17 for Clayton Pethers were all the victors needed. Bob Elston topped the Barons with 15.

Milford put on a game last half rally before bowing. John Lucadam hooped 17 for the victors and Redskin Terry Anderson caged 16.

Records Fall as Maples Win

Three pool and school swimming marks went by the boards, last night, as Birmingham's Maples sunk EML opponent Royal Oak Kimball, 67-25, in the Birmingham pool. Victory was Maples' 7th straight dual win of the year (2nd in EML) and their 14th consecutive success.

Pete Sintz' 23.7 second 50-yard freestyle effort; Dave Smith's 1:35.8 time in the 150-medley, and (Kimball) Berry Johnson's 100-yard butterfly in 1:03.4 are all pool and school records.

Sintz and Smith also took the 100-yard freestyle (53.2), and 100-yard backstroke (1:03.5) respectively, for double wins.

Other winners included—Dave Rider (B) 100-yard breaststroke (1:15.0); Fred Wickham, diving; Maples relay teams, 200-yard medley (Ken Quick, Rider, John Hyde, Collins), 1:59.9, and 200-yard freestyle (Tom Brown, Bob Sintz, Fred Anderson, Les Harber) 1:43.5; (RO) 200-yard freestyle, Al Richter, 2:11.8.

Lions Seeking Grid Assistant

Two Detroit Coaches Still in Consideration for Chicago Post

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Lions board of directors headed into a meeting today looking for a new assistant coach and wondering if two on the staff are planning to stay.

Ray (Scooter) McLean was headed for a backfield coaching job with the champion Lions until the Green Bay Packers bought up the $25,000 contract of Lisle Blackbourn and moved McLean into the head coaching job.

Another change in the head coaching ranks of the National Football League has cast a question mark over the status of two Lions assistants. Both defensive specialist Buster Ramsey and backfield coach Red Cochran are considered candidates for the head coaching job with the Chicago Cardinals. Ray Richards vacated the job recently.

"We have verbal agreements with each of them to return," said Lions President Edwin J. Anderson. "But because of the hectic finish of the season we simply didn't get around to signing them.

Hadley Part of Old Deal

Tigers Give A's Rookie

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers today assigned first baseman Kent Hadley to the Kansas City Athletics as part of their 13-player trade last fall.

The Tigers owe the A's one more player to complete the transaction.

The 23-year-old Hadley is a lefthand hitting first baseman who batted .279 at Augusta last season. He was an All-America baseball player at Southern California and has been regarded as one of the best first base prospects in the Detroit organization.

In the November deal, the Tigers received Gus Zernial, Lou Skizas, Tom Morgan, Billy Martin, Tim Thompson and Maurice McDermott. At the time the trade was announced, the Tigers shipped Frank House, Bill Tuttle, Jim Small, Duke Maas and John Tsitouris to Kansas City.

They announced they would send two Minor League players along later to complete the deal. There was no indication when the Tigers would send the seventh player along.

General manager John McHale said last night he has been "as busy as ever" on the phones talking possible trades with "several" American League clubs. The Cleveland Indians still are eager to complete a deal with the Tigers. McHale said the Tigers "haven't been too close to a deal lately."

Fraser in Semifinals

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Neale Fraser, Australia, defeated Bruce Robinson, Australia, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4 in the West Australia tennis championships today.

Fraser now enters the semifinals and will play the winner of a match between Ron Holmberg, and Clieve Wilderspin, Australia.

Need a Coaching Job? Aggies Are Still Searching

DALLAS (AP) — Jim Myers of Iowa State, a single wing stylist with only a year's head coaching experience, was the man of the moment today in Texas A&M's search for a new football coach.

But Aggie officials, possibly frustrated by the widely-publicized hunt, kept their own counsel and wouldn't say definitely whether the dual post of coach and athletic director was offered Myers. The 36-year-old coach met here with the athletic committee of the college's board of directors last night and then ducked out of reach of newsmen.

Dr. M. T. Harrington, Texas A&M president, said a meeting of the full board would be held, possibly by Monday, before any announcement is made.

OUR JOE? — Joe Schmidt of the Detroit Lions wasn't traded to the Los Angeles Rams, but he wears the Ram jersey. Schmidt was named as the outstanding lineman in the National Football League. Here he is congratulated by San Francisco's Hugh McElhenny. They are working out in LA for the pro all-star game Sunday.

Chiefs Blast Edsel Ford, 77-37

Pontiac Cagers Feast on Weak Dearborn Team

9 Players Make Scoring Column as Chiefs Open '58 With 3rd Win

By BILL CORNWELL

Pontiac Central's basketball team must have made a New Year's resolution and it probably went something like this:

"Let's play winning basketball in 1958."

The Chiefs gave every indication of living up to that resolution here last night by crushing Dearborn Edsel Ford, 77-37, in their 1st start of the new year.

It was strictly no contest as coach Art Van Ryzin's cagers raced up and down the Pontiac Central floor with reckless abandon and scored almost at will against the inept Thunderbirds.

Playing for the 1st time without the services of Hudson Ray, Pontiac became a fighting band of scrappers to nail down victory No. 3 against one defeat. It was by far the Chiefs' most explosive scoring attack of the season.

There are still many rough spots to be worked out and it's granted that the competition was weak, but the defending Saginaw Valley champs look ready to give a strong account of themselves when conference warfare resumes.

The Chiefs were off and running from the opening tipoff yesterday. They enjoyed a 19-5 lead entering the 2nd quarter and at halftime they were in front by an overwhelming 43-22 count. At the end of the 3rd period the score was 62-31.

All 12 varsity cagers saw action and nine of them broke into the scoring column. Van Ryzin emptied his bench in the waning minutes of a loosely-played 4th quarter.

Lanky John Bandy sparked Pontiac's furious assault on the basket with 11 field goals and one foul shot for a 23-point total. Dick Whitmer and Jerry Williams further aided the winning cause with 10 points apiece.

Harrison Munson and Roosevelt Alexander, who alternated at working Ray's vacated center position, turned in yeoman-like duty on the backboards and scored 15 points between them with Munson making nine.

The Chiefs connected for 36 field goals compared to 15 for Ford and netted five free tosses in eight tries while the losers were bagging seven of 15 charity attempts. Only 18 personal fouls were called, a dozen on Pontiac.

Forward Gary Joachim paced the Thunderbirds' feeble attack with 13 points as they suffered their 3rd setback in six starts.

Pontiac renews defense of its Valley title this Friday against the invading Bay City Wolves, coached by former Walled Lake mentor Bill Ullenbruch.

Fred Zittel's Pontiac junior varsity made Tuesday evening's show a complete success by walloping Edsel Ford in the preliminary, 43-25. Bill Hayward tallied 17 points for the Little Chiefs.

Falcons Wallop Davison 65-37

A 24-point 1st quarter sent Rochester off and running to an easy 65-37 trouncing of Davison last night.

Ten players took part in the scoring as the Falcons staged their best offensive performance of the season even though coach Gene Konley substituted freely throughout the contest.

Carl Montross topped the point-getters with 17, Gene Lothery hooped 12 and Ennis 11. It was Rochester's 4th win in a row and completed a home-and-home sweep of Davison.

Bens Keep SCL Record Clean

Rams Crush Irish Five

By H. GUY MOATS

St. Frederick Rams crushed Royal Oak St. Mary's cagers 55-32, last night, to move into the Suburban Catholic League's runnerup spot, just back of Highland Park's St. Benedict, which trampled hapless St. James of Ferndale 50-20. St. Mary's slipped from 2nd to 4th place.

In the only other SCL game of Tuesday night St. Rita's managed to collect its first win of the loop season, with a 44-28 win over basement dwelling St. Clement of Center Line.

Rams got off to a slow start, trailing the Irish for the first few minutes of the tilt at St. Frederick hall. Then scoring ace Tom Derocher found the range, and with Dick Nichols and Dick Keller's help rolled Rams to a commanding 20-8 first period count. There was nothing to it from then on. At halftime Rams were 31-19 and 42-28 going into the finale.

Coach Gene Wright's boys hit a fine 48 percentage in the opener, wound up with a game percentage of 38. Derocher boosted his season's points to 83 with a game high of 18 points, and Nick Nickerson added 15 for a 53-point total. Joe Dupree's 11 paced the losers.

Larry Gacki led Bens to their 3rd straight win with a 18-point output. Highland Parkers led all the way, a condition that also obtained in St. Rita's win over St. St. Clement. Mike Young and Chet Grabinski, each with 14 points, set the pace.

In the only other area parochial contest Shrine dropped a 42-32 game to Wyandotte Mt. Carmel. Pat McLaughlin had 14 for the losers.

'GANGWAY' — Tom Derocher (7), St. Frederick ace, is just about to grab a loose ball (above) in last night's game here with St. Mary (RO). Tom looks as if he was saying "gangway" to the top Irish player Larry Dupree (8, right). Rams' No. 11 in background is Nick Nickerson. Derocher hit for 18 points to pace Rams' 55-32 win.

Boys Club Nears Top in Class B Scramble

Pontiac Boys Club moved within half a game of pace-setting Griff's Grill with a 60-58 triumph over Walled Lake in a Class B City League basketball game last night at Madison Junior High. Jim Honchell scored 21 points for the winners while Walled Lake's Dean Hess tallied 16.

They're Sweet on 'Sugar'

CHICAGO (AP)—Sugar Hart, who has scored 19 knockouts in winning 22 fights, is an 11-5 favorite to defeat Larry Baker in another phase of the "welterweight sweepstakes" tonight.

Baker, 26, from Mount Vernon, N. Y., is ranked the No. 8 contender by the National Boxing Assn. His record is 21-11-3 with nine kayoes.

Greengrass Ready to Go

Looking at Tiger Stars During the Off-Season

(Another in a series of articles about Detroit Tiger baseball players, their mid-winter activities and their outlook for the 1958 campaign)—Jim Greengrass (Tiger outfielder).

DETROIT (AP) — If hard work, enthusiasm and hustle pays off in a spot on a big league baseball roster, veteran Jim Greengrass assures Detroit Tiger fans he'll be on the club come mid-April.

The 29-year-old outfielder, who has been with the Cincinnati Redlegs and Philadelphia Phillies, is getting another crack at the majors with the Tigers, who bought him last season from Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League.

Interviewed by phone from his Atlanta, Ga., home, Greengrass called the move "the luckiest break I ever got."

"I know it's tough to get back into the Majors and I'm going to have to battle for a job," he said, "but I'm convinced I can do it. And that's not just something that all veteran players say, either. I mean it."

Greengrass just returned home New Year's Eve after playing winter baseball in Venezuela, where he hit about .300 and led both Venezuelan leagues in runs batted in.

Imlay Downs Almont to Remain Unbeaten

Something has to give when a pair of unbeaten teams clash and it certainly did at Imlay City last night.

The host cagers romped to a 55-40 conquest of Almont to extend their winning streak to five for this season and 21 for the past two years not counting tournament play.

Jim Ward meshed 17, John Lengeman 16 and Skip Cameron 14 as the key stars in the Imlay attack.

Sledge Breaks Lake Ice, Dunks Fisherman, Too

One Hefty Swing Drops Angler in the Fish!-

An unidentified ice fisherman—perhaps a more accurate designation would be a hopeful angler—last weekend demonstrated that one can go overboard, literally, choosing the tools with which to cut a fishing hole in lake ice.

Observers near the west end of Pine Lake saw two Arctic clothed, fully-equipped fishermen head out on the 3-inch-thick ice. What kept their attention the most was a long-handled sledge hammer on the shoulder of one of the men.

Placing other gear on the ice, the sledge carrier squared off, belted the frozen surface several good blows. The 2nd swing did the trick!

The blow broke a hole, all right, but it was big enough for fishermen, sledge and all to go through. Ice was cracked and broken for 20 feet around, observers reported.

Only the fact that the ice covered shallow water of little more than a foot in depth averted what could have been a serious situation.

Lake ice in this area varies from 3½ inches to 6 inches in depth, reports indicate, but much thin shore ice being encountered. Fishermen should still exercise caution in their fishing, making certain surfaces have plenty of depth to carry any normal loads.

Ice reports on lakes in the area: Sylvan and Oxbow, from four to six inches; Big Lake (Springfield Township) five inches.

SURE SHOTS — Designer and owner of a new indoor archery range in Waterford Township Bill Giles (left), checks targets (bales of hay) for compactness with Frank King, before opening Tuesday. Range is laid out in reputedly the only building in Michigan designed specially for archery. Built into a hillside it is of bi-level design, with the range on the first floor and a fully equipped pro shop on the upper level. Floor area is 6,000 square feet. Building itself is of cement block, steel-beam construction to cost eventually $40,000, Giles says. A 30-yard range is more than adequate for sanctioned shoots. Giles started archery as a hobby, built it to its present proportions.

Plenty Wildlife Activity

Woods Not Really Silent

By JACK PATTERSON

Being an extremist of sorts we like our weather strong and well-defined. We like summers to be hot, hot, hot and winters to be cold and snowy — the colder and snowier the better. The present one seems to be getting off to an acceptable start, although January in Michigan is a tough month to figure, along with the other eleven.

PATTERSON

To get away from January entirely involves leaving the continental limits. If that is impractical, then, we say, meet the situation head on and enjoy it. One of the best ways to enjoy it, as all skiers and a good many other assorted outdoor types know, is to head for the less settled lands of the north.

There is rather a popular belief that the winter woods lie quietly sleeping with wildlife activity at a standstill.

It is true that migratory birds have long since left for the longer daylight hours of the South and some species are holed up, vital processes slowed down to a point just short of death, in a state of hibernation.

But throughout the wild lands the deadly game of hide and seek between pursued and pursuer continues through the long winter months, above, upon and beneath the snow. For winter is the time of the predator, the fox, the coyote, the bobcat and weasel and drifting overhead, silent as a snowflake, the horned owl and white owl from the North.

Never more than a day or so from starvation, gaunt and goaded by incessant hunger, the predators stalk the plains and swamps and forests by day and night to the constant peril of mice, rabbits and grouse.

So it is that the winter sportsman does not set forth into a dead, deserted land but into a sphere of great, but seldom seen activity. The signs are there all right, the tracks and fur or feathers in the snow, but the principals in these small dramas largely meet their respective fates with no man as witness.

One reason, we believe, for the continuing legend of lifeless winter woods is that in the gray and white winter world, with visibility unimpaired by leaves, a man in dark or red clothing is as visible as a Roman candle in a railroad tunnel. Not so much that color, or form mean anything much to wildlife, in themselves, but the movement of a color that contrasts wildly with the background is visible a long, long way. Unidentified movement spells danger to all wild things, and the sportsman unwittingly telegraphs his presence for all to see.

One solution is to make a parka out of a sheet, preferably an old one if the wife is around, to go over other clothing. The outdoorsman thus equipped has achieved near-invisibility, a useful condition for the observer. He'll be surprised how lively the woods have suddenly become.

Prepared especially for this area, the following solunar periods for the coming week should help outdoorsmen in selecting the best times for hunting and fishing. Periods are taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables.

CMC Freshman Signs $30,000 Yank Offer

DETROIT (AP) — Tom Tresh, son of former major league catcher Mike Tresh, said today he had accepted a $30,000 offer from the New York Yankees.

Tresh, a 19-year-old freshman at Central Michigan College, will report to the Yankee school at St. Petersburg in early February.

Pennsylvanian Gets Conservation Post

Congressman Leon H. Gavin of Pennsylvania has been appointed to the Migratory Bird Conservation Commission. The appointment, announced by speaker of the house Sam Rayburn, is another honor for the Pennsylvanian who, in 1954, was given a special award by several of the country's major conservation organizations for his role in Congress in furthering the protection and wise use of the nation's natural resources, according to the Wildlife Management Institute.

Established in 1929 to implement the migratory bird treaty with Great Britain for the preservation and restoration of migratory birds, the commission passes on the creation of new national wildlife refuges as well as lands obtained for existing units.

Emphasis on Family Boating

Shows Will Feature Safety and Convenience

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

During the next few months the fellows who among them have put some 35 million Americans afloat during the past few years will be hiring halls to show what's new in small boat recreation.

And what's new is calculated not only to keep 35 million Americans interested but to keep them embarking on every navigable waterway available at the current rate. Weekend voyagers put 300,000 new boats into service last year, twice that many new outboard motors.

The figures were drawn from industry sources that sometimes seem awestruck by their own mushrooming statistics. The charge of the multitudes toward water hasn't been matched since the recall of the Volstead Act, when the trend was the other way.

Part of the secret is hinted in some astonishing associated statistics that show the romance with boats fitted in with the average American's first love, the automobile. In 1947, only 3,790 trailers designed to haul small boats on the highway were sold in the United States; last year the sales reached 151,000.

The wares scheduled for display in coming boat shows around the country range from 40-foot ocean going cruisers to 6-foot water scooters, with some 400 manufacturers of major and minor marine items joining in one show or another.

First of the big expositions is the New York show Jan. 17-26. Biggest of them all is the Chicago National Boat Show, Feb. 7-16.

The other of the big three is the San Francisco Show, Feb. 28-March 9.

Other big shows around the country include Detroit Feb. 22—March 10.

Emphasis this year will remain on boating as an all-family recreation through adaptable utility equipment. Many new boats are in the 14-17 foot runabout class, designed to do duty as family cruisers, fishing craft and water ski tow-boats. Many feature safety and convenience changes, including wide beam, higher freeboard, self-bailing motor wells and reinforced transoms.

Many also will be shown with convertible tops, seats which convert into bunks for overnight cruises and into fishing chairs, increased stowage space, built-in racks for fishing equipment or water ski gear and walk-through center decks.

First for Canada

650 at Wildlife Meet

MONTREAL (AP)—Delegates to the four-day Northeast Wildlife Conference turned today to the technical agenda which will occupy the final half of their session.

Some 650 administrators, scientists and sportsmen are attending the first such confab to be held in Canada.

Welcoming the group, Camille E. Pouliot, Quebec minister of game and fisheries, said, "the well-being of our peoples require us to tackle the current problems of our wildlife with an eye to the dangers which exist."

The dangers, he said, include exploitation of forest and other resources which diminish the habitat of wildlife, and the increasing number of hunters and fishermen.

W. C. Severinghaus of New York, head of the Northeast division of the American Wildlife Society, led a forum on deer management.

He said deer herds would multiply slowly in the eastern townships because hunters were not obeying the "buck law" which permits only antlered deer to be shot.

It has been proved in many areas, Severinghaus said, that either observance of the buck law or brief hunting seasons, properly adhered to, resulted in deer herds doubling every three years.

Two World Records

Nationally-known sportswoman Mrs. Frankee K. Albright, of Islamorada, Fla., is the holder of two new world fishing records.

The IGFA has accepted her catches of a 33-pound permit on a 25-pound test line and her 30-pound 5-ounce permit on a 10-pound line as world records for the 30 and 12-pound classifications, respectively.

A potential world record muskie was reported by Arthur Lawton of New York. Fish was 69 pounds, 15 ounces, taken in the St. Lawrence on rod and reel with a 30-pound test line.

Interesting Facts About Wildlife

White pelicans are one of our largest American birds. The wingspread reaches nine feet.

In the southern coastal states a gopher is a tortoise; in the prairie states it is one of several striped ground squirrels; elsewhere it is a snake.

Ron Seets Wins Scoring Duel in Waterford Play

Ron Seets of Ryeson's Super Market and Drayton Drug's Bob Pickett engaged in a personal scoring duel last night as Ryeson's triumphed, 79-67, in Waterford League basketball action at Isaac Crary gym. Seets won the duel, 37 points to 32.

Johnson & Anderson blew a 20-5 1st quarter lead and bowed to the Junior Chamber of Commerce, 47-44, in the other league game. Chuck Hagyard made 10 points for the Jaycees while Bill Pfahlert tallied 18 in defeat.

Leisure-Time Hobby

Bird Study Rewarding, Doctor Says

By H. GUY MOATS

When a busy professional man manages to spend a great deal of what little leisure time he may have, pursuing a hobby, it's certain the subject is of more than ordinary interest.

That's the way it is with Dr. Richard E. Olsen, 3325 Franklin road, Pontiac. The good doctor is probably Pontiac's most dedicated (in the amateur field) bird watcher, and first-of-the-year avian census-taker.

For the last 10 years Dr. Olsen has been looking at birds that come and go about his pleasant property.

It is a rewarding study, he says, revealing many interesting things about wildlife. "Dear to the heart of every bird watcher," says the doctor, "are the occasional records of uncommon or rare birds."

Each New Year's day, Dr. Olsen makes a check of his four feeding stations, the quarter-mile-long rosa multiflora hedge, the shrubs and trees, and his three-acre pond.

On Jan. 1, 1958 he noted blue jays, a wintering robin, pair of cardinals, a downy woodpecker, a nuthatch (upside down on a box elder limb), a chicadee, scores of sparrows, a troop of bob-whites, a pheasant and a red-shouldered hawk.

Some New Year's day counts have listed only four birds (1948) and as many as 17 (1956). During an average year's watching the doctor and his family have identified regularly more than 100 different species. Most was in 1926 when 129 were listed. As many as 65 varieties have been counted during the height of the northward migration (middle of May) during a single day.

Among the rare visitors to the Olsen feeding stations (in 1951-52) was a Christmas stop of a Hudsonian (brown-headed) chicadee, some evening and pine grosbeaks, and a northern shrike. Other unusual birds have included the osprey (fish-hawk), a goshawk, and a mocking-bird.

Ducks and geese frequent the pond on their annual migrations.

"In less than two months the call of the bluebird will be heard, flying overhead, the cry of the killdeer by the melting ice, and rattle of the kingfisher will usher in a new spring," says Dr. Olsen.

Winter Fishing Tourneys Set

From time to time Pontiac area fishermen have competed in the numerous Florida angling tourneys, and the first of the 1958 events in the South is the 3rd annual Ocean Reef Billfish (sailfish) test, Jan. 16-18. Tourney takes place off the lush fishing grounds at North Key Largo.

A fleet of some 35 to 40 inboard and outboard equipped angling teams is expected to compete in this year's tourney.

A unique feature of the tourney, which recognizes International Game Fish Association rules, provides that an agler catching his first trophy billfish, whether it is large size or a coveted "miniature" may keep the fish, while all other boated billfish will be scored and released.

Error Cuts State's Share in Game Funds

LANSING (AP)—An error by the U. S. Treasury Department has revised downward the money Michigan will collect in federal matching funds for game and fish restoration projects during the 1957-58 fiscal year.

Originally, the federal government announced Michigan's share of a $25,130,000 fund as $1,242,422. With the fund now set at $22,359,000 Michigan will get only $1,055,136.

Allotment includes $848,700 for game work under the Pittman-Robertson program and $206,400 for fish projects under the Dingell-Johnson program.

The state must provide one dollar for every three dollars in federal aid.

Only 3 Weeks Left for Men to Enter Meet

Top 10 Per Cent Plus Ties Assured Prizes for Qualifying

Prizes, Prizes and more Prizes. That will be the theme of the 2nd annual Pontiac Press Bowlerama tournament which will be held three successive weekends in February starting on the 8th.

Cash awards for one out of every 10 entries, along with numerous trophies, merchandise prizes and gift certificates comprise a long list of awards to be presented to tourney participants.

Three guaranteed cash prizes in each division are the big ones to shoot at. The six guarantees total $1,250 featuring $450 for the men's champion and $250 for the top woman.

The prize lists for both groups are based on an estimated number of entries, 500 men and 250 women, but whether the entries reach these totals or not the 1st three in each class are certain of their awards.

Runnersup are assured of $225 and $125 while 3rd place will be good for $125 and $75. The remainder of the lists will be broken down.

Additional trophies will go to the champions and runnersup along with a host of other prizes for various feats.

The Press has added $400 in prize money, many trophies and gifts to give area keglers that much more to shoot at this year.

All sanctioned bowlers who are residents of Oakland County are eligible to take part in this singles handicap event. The deadlines for entering are Feb. 2 for men and Feb. 10 for women.

All men will qualify Feb. 8 and 9. The women take their fling Feb. 15. Finalists tangle Feb. 22.

The top 10 per cent of the qualifying scores plus ties in each division will move on to the finals which will be at Huron Bowl. Men's qualifying will be divided between Montcalm Center and Howe's Lanes, while all women are to compete at Motor Inn.

Skippers 59, Avon 47

By CHUCK ABAIR

A fired-up band of Waterford Skippers, three of them serving in reserve roles, changed a close game into a one-sided affair by completely outplaying surprisingly ragged Avondale for the last 10 minutes to post a 59-47 triumph in a feature game on the 1st big area hoop program of 1958 last night.

Clever guard Jim Devine was the "take charge" guy who led the drive for the unit made up of new starter Larry Bowen and subs John Keating, Wendy Meyer and Barry Campbell.

Devine took command when Skipper scoring ace John Herrington was benched with four personal fouls two minutes after the 2nd half got under way after scoring 15 of the team's 26 points.

Herrington returned in the closing minutes to boost his total to 20. Devine finished close behind with 18, 12 in the last two periods.

Keating hit all his 10 points in the last half, eight in the final 6½ minutes.

Two successive goals by Herrington on rebounds produced a 23-20 Waterford 1st half lead after two see-saw periods. The difference was boosted to five at the three quarter mark at 39-34 and the victors held a comfortable edge throughout the last session.

The victory was Waterford's 2nd, both at home, and snapped a three-game loss string, all on the road. It was the 2nd setback in five starts for Avondale.

Yellowjacket center Jerry Hill took individual honors for the contest with 22 points. Mike Walsh contributed 13 but had trouble hitting the hoop all evening as did his mates. The Yellowjackets shot 28.6 per cent from the floor to Waterford's 41.4.

Both return to action in their respective leagues Friday. Berkley trounced Royal Oak Kimball 58-35 in the only other game involving an Inter-Lakes quintet last night.

Lance Gentile swished the nets for 20 points and Dave Burris added 17 for the Bears. Jim Kennedy's 10 was high for Kimball.

STRIKES AND SPARES
By Joe Wilman

Are you a bowler with "alley sense"? There aren't too many bowlers who have it. It's a term applied to a bowler who knows the basic fundamentals, has learned how to make adjustments to fit different conditions and gets the hang of unfamiliar alleys with a minimum of time and effort.

Surprisingly, some star bowlers don't have "alley sense." I've bowled for 10 years with one of the finest "alley-sense" bowlers in history — Joe Norris, my teammate on the Hamm's team of Chicago.

Joe, usually our lead-off man, is an expert on alley conditions. He adjusts his own game and helps his teammates to adjust theirs as well. Joe can find the strike pocket pretty easily. If he strikes by rolling his ball along the path we show today, the rest of us can figure out pretty quickly how our normal delivery will react.

Alley sense comes only after many years of bowling and concentrating on different conditions and their effect on your ball. Having it, however, tells you when to adjust and what adjustments to

Bulldogs Easy for Lake Orion

Dragons Win 67-40 as Neira and Drake Total 45

Lake Orion parlayed some outstanding foul shooting and a strong last half scoring performance to hand Romeo a 67-40 battering in a non-league contest last night.

Dragon sharpshooters Nick Neira and Jim Drake combined for 45 points to outdo the entire Romeo team, featuring 32 in the last half. Neira topped the pair with 23, including 11 successive free throw conversions after an opening miss.

Orion broke the game wide open after leading 23-15 at halftime aided by a 23-for-29 foul shooting record. Dave Proper flipped in 15 for the losers.

It was the 3rd win in four starts for the Oakland B contenders. Troy, which shares the loop lead with Avondale, won and Clawson bowed in other non-league games.

Troy built up a 20-point lead and then staved off a late rally by St. Clair Shores Lakeview in its 52-44 victory paced by Jim Booth's 17 digits.

Clawson battled Warren nip-and-tuck only to drop a 45-43 verdict in the last 15 seconds of play. Warren went into a stall with two minutes left and Wes Vosburg tallied the clincher. Jim Thomas paced Clawson with 14.

Armada and Capac Gain Thumb Loop Victories

Armada and Capac gained ground with hard - earned victories as Southern Thumb leader Almont played a non-league game last night.

Armada had to fight back from a one-point deficit to down New Haven 48-44 while Capac rallied in the last quarter after trailing all the way to nip Dryden 35-32.

Tom Traub and Dorrance Dunham hit the key field goals that produced Armada's fourth triumph in five games. Terry Willis topped the winners with 17. Bob Kjerraumgard hit 15 for New Haven.

Capac kept hammering away and finally pulled out its verdict by holding Dryden to two points in the last quarter. Ray Villasenor and Bill Abraham hooped nine apiece for Capac. Herb Sawgle of Dryden took game honors with 17.

Memphis Rallies to Beat Brown City Five, 39-34

Memphis High School's basketball team rallied to gain its 4th Southern Thumb League win in five games with a 39-34 decision over Brown City last night at Memphis.

Brown City was limited to one foul shot in the 4th period as the winners overcame a 33-29 3rd quarter deficit. Pete Likens tallied 15 points for Memphis.

The better way of LIVING
Motoring can be just humdrum transportation, but it can be, and should be, one of the great outlets of good living.
Perhaps the greatest of all aids to splendor in motoring is a membership in the AAA, the Automobile Club. Then one drives as an accepted motorist, an experienced owner, an adventurer in touring, a good motor citizen.
One feels it, and almost all others know it. Motoring is a many-splendored thing when you enjoy the feel of good living, with the safety, advantages, privileges and protection of AAA membership. Why can't you?

THE BERRYS

By Carl Grubert

No Mother-in-Law for Campa Tribe

LIMA, Peru — Among the primitive Campa Indians in the jungles of Peru, mothers-in-law constitute no problem.

Tribal law provides that a bride's mother may speak to her son-in-law only in a very serious emergency, and then only on a back-to-back basis.

To these tribespeople—crocodile hunters and monkey-eaters — this system is logical. For the Campas place no limit on the number of wives a man may take. Skilled hunters and warriors take their pick of the very young girls.

The wedding ceremony is scanty and a batch of wives can be exchanged for one pretty one. The women don't object. But, however many wives a Campa has, he is honor-bound to feed and accommodate them. A first-class warrior may have 10 or more under his thatched roof.

French Strikes in Sahara May Spur Attacks

Oil Adds Fuel to Algerian War

By JOHN H. MARTIN
INS Foreign Director

The French war with the rebels in Algeria doubtlessly will be intensified this year, and the reason is oil.

One report is that the French already have begun moving commercially usable oil in a 6-inch pipeline from Hassi Messaoud in the Saraha to Touggourt, then by rail to Philippeville on the Mediterranean Coast.

French officials do not confirm this story, and for an obvious reason. Any publicity is sure to bring Algerian counteraction against this heavily guarded line that taps the unexploited riches of the Saraha Desert.

The French drive for oil in the Sahara is one of the main reasons the Paris government is fighting so hard to retain Algeria. Another main reason, of course, is the huge French population in the territory.

NASSER WAS SPUR

French objectives in the Sahara are spurred by the blow struck against the French and all Western Europe by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser when he seized the Suez Canal.

The French are determined their national economy shall no longer be at the mercy of Nasser and the canal.

Nasser has, so the French argue, learned what a magnificent blackmail weapon the canal is. He can block it again at the least provocation, forcing tankers around the tip of Africa and quickly cause rationing in Western Europe.

In any case, with the West's oil consumption likely to increase tenfold in the next decade, the canal would be inadequate to carry the endless stream of big tankers bearing oil to Europe from the rich Middle Eastern fields.

Aside from the prospect of getting oil shipped by pipeline across Israel to bypass the Suez Canal, French experts regard the Sahara as a potentially richer oilfield than the entire Middle East.

MADE 2 STRIKES

Initially, there have been two main strikes. One is at Edjele, 780 miles southeast of Algeris, where 12 wells have been drilled and there is reported to be "a measurable amount" of oil about 1,350 feet down.

The other strike is at Hassi Messaoud, 360 miles due south of Algiers. One well there was reported as long ago as last March to be producing a daily flow of 1,260 barrels. Other strikes have been made since.

Rene Guillaumat, president of the French Oil Research Bureau, has stated flatly that by 1961 France will be producing nine million tons of oil annually.

By 1972 France expects to produce all the oil she needs and to have enough to help other European partners.

In short, Europe eventually would be able to do without the Middle East and the Suez Canal, and France would get a tremendous boost to her national economy and prestige.

With such great economic and political stakes involved, the Algerian rebels are expected to do all possible to prevent French development of the Sahara.

Would Allow Disabled to Deduct for Auto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disabled persons requiring use of an automobile would be permitted to take the car's depreciation as a tax deduction under terms of a bill proposed yesterday by Rep. Westland (R-Wash).

The bill would be applicable to persons unable, because of disability, to use public transportation.

Another proposal by Westland would open public housing for rental to unmarried women at age 62. Under present law, housing units are open only to single women above 65.

U-I Studio to Close Doors; 'Perfect Furlough' Is Last

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD (INS) — Sad to report that tomorrow "The Perfect Furlough," starring Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis, is the last picture to be made at Universal-International. Elaine Stritch arrives tomorrow to join Janet, Tony and Londa Christal, and report to director Blake Edwards.

We all hope that U-I will open after the 32 pictures already made are released. One of the top U-I men explained to me that the studio has 30 or 40 million dollars tied up in motion pictures already completed, and they want to get it out before they put out any more money.

In fact, U-I has completed enough pictures to release until February, 1959.

Let's hope some miracle will happen and the studio will re-open. It's one of the oldest here and one with the most interesting history.

Believe it or not, when I asked Al Zugsmith if it were true that he's negotiating with Peter Townsend to star in "One Wife Is Enough," he said: "Who is Peter Townsend?" I guess that ought to put Princess Margaret's ex-boyfriend right in his place.

Al did tell me he had sent Yul Brynner the script of "One Wife Is Enough," and he's waiting to hear from him.

The first Zugsmith picture at MGM is "High School Confidential" which goes next month with Sal Mineo, Margaret O'Brien, Jane Powell and Jan Sterling. Al is happy because the returns from "Tarnished Angel," his last picture at U-I, are equal to "Written on the Wind."

The settlement Alan Jay Lerner made on his ex-wife, the former Nancy Olson, is the largest any motion picture actress has ever received. Alan paid his former wife $500,000 outright plus $100,000 a year.

In addition to his royalties from "My Fair Lady" and "Gigi," Alan inherited money from his late father who owned the Lerner shops.

The new Mrs. Lerner (Micheline Muselli) who returns from La Quinta the end of the week with her bridegroom, was born in Corsica and is described as a petite blonde. Alan and his partner, Freddie Loewe, may write their next score for a Broadway play. At the moment they are considering an interesting offer.

The severest critic of Miiko Taka is her husband, Dale Ishimoto. Yes, she is happily married. I would never have known she has a husband if she hadn't inadvertently dropped the information when I was having luncheon with her.

She wants to keep her career and her private life separate. I did learn, however, that Ishimoto has seen "Sayonara" three times and is very interested in her career. He himself is an actor and like Miiko, an American citizen.

She leaves Jan. 23 on a tour with "Sayonara" and won't be back until mid-April. She'll visit Sweden, Germany, France, Italy, England and Israel.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Glimpsed window shopping arm in arm were Gloria Graham and her estranged husband Cy Howard. He was here over the holidays to visit her and their 14-months-old baby. Gloria, an Academy Award winner, hasn't made a picture in far too long.

The 50th wedding anniversary of Nancy Sinatra's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Barbado, called for a celebration—a dinner at the Villa Capri. Frankie, who has always remained friendly with Nancy's parents, joined them.

I WAS RIGHT

The long, long romance of Paulette Goddard and Erich Remarque is no more. I said from the beginning I didn't believe they would ever marry. Well, I was right.

Had a chance to give Adolph Zukor a birthday kiss at Chasen's. He was having dinner with his daughter, Mrs. Mildred Zukor Loew, his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Zukor, and his grandson, Arthur Loew Jr. Zukow doesn't look his 85 years.

The Johnny Meyers home on Murfield road, in the district where so many large, old-fashioned houses still exist, is a dream. He brought many treasures from Europe.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

OPEN The Door To Health

"After taking O-JIB-WA BITTERS for 30 days, I was able to throw away my cane, and walk again," says Mr. Harry Hall, East Detroit.

"I had rheumatism and arthritis in my knee so bad that I wasn't able to work for over five months. It was very painful and difficult for me to walk, even using a cane. Everyone I met told me to try something different, so I think I tried about every medicine made for arthritis. I did everything possible to get rid of it, even trying some medicine advertised in Canada. My wife was bothered for several years with pains in her legs too. They ached so much that she couldn't sleep nights, and she also had an awful time getting around. She read in the paper that a lady in Detroit had used O-JIB-WA BITTERS for pains in her legs, and that it really helped. Well, my wife purchased a small bottle to try, and it helped her so much that she got a big one, and we both went to work using it up. About three weeks later, I told my wife that the O-JIB-WA must be helping, because I could walk on my bad leg. After a month, I was able to throw away my cane and walk again. Since then, we both have recommended O-JIB-WA BITTERS to everyone we know that needed help. We are glad to have this chance to tell everyone how much this wonderful medicine has helped us."

Grains Steady, Activity Slow

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures prices were generally steady in slow dealings on the Board of Trade today.

Traders said there were no factors to give an impetus to either side. Commission houses were both buying and selling in most pits.

Dealings all around were unusually light with most dealers hesitant about commitments pending some developments from Washington, probably later this week on the administration farm program.

Near the end of the first hour wheat was 1/8 to 3/4 lower, March $2.21⅜; corn 1/8 to 5/8 lower, March $1.14⅞; oats unchanged to 1/8 lower, March 64¼; rye unchanged to ¼ lower, March $1.30½; soybeans unchanged to ¼ lower, January $2.23⅛; and lard was 5 to 7 cents higher per hundred lbs., January $11.47.

Claims Capture of U.S. Jet Pilot

Red Albania Reports Holding Airman Lost Since Dec. 23

ROME (AP)—Communist Albania says she is holding prisoner a U. S. Air Force jet pilot given up as missing two weeks ago.

Apparently the pilot is Maj. Howard J. B. Cufran of Pratt, Kan., who disappeared Dec. 23 in a T33 jet trainer on a flight from Chateau-Roux, France, to Naples.

Radio Tirana said Albanian jet fighters forced down a U. S. T33 which trespassed on Albanian territory. It added that the plane came from the direction of Korce, near the Greek border, and was headed toward Tirana. The date was not given.

Italian radio monitors who heard the broadcast in Albanian took down the pilot's name phonetically as Howard Keran, but U. S. sources in Rome said the broadcast undoubtedly referred to Curran.

The Rome and Naples airports were fogbound the day Curran disappeared.

Curran has been in the Air Force 18 years and flew both over Germany in World War II and in Korea. A widower, he is the father of three children.

At Wiesbaden, the headquarters of the U. S. Air Force in Europe said it had received no confirmation of the Tirana report. State and Defense Department officials in Washington and the U. S. Embassy in Rome were trying to check the announcement.

Presumably the French legation in Tirana will be asked to investigate and seek Curran's release. The United States does not have diplomatic relations with Albania.

STATE OF MICHIGAN—In the Probate Court for the County of Oakland, Juvenile Division.

In the matter of the petition concerning Russell H. Francis Jr., Minor. Cause No. 18266.

To Russell H. Francis Sr., father of said child.

Petition having been filed in this Court alleging that the present whereabouts of the father of said minor child is unknown, and the said child has violated a law of the State, and that said child should be placed under the jurisdiction of this Court.

In the name of the people of the State of Michigan, you are hereby notified that the hearing on said petition will be held at the Oakland County Service Center, Court House Annex, 1200-B West Blvd., in the City of Pontiac in said County, on the 21st day of January, A.D., 1958, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, and you are hereby commanded to appear personally at said hearing.

It being impractical to make personal service hereof, this summons and notice shall be served by publication of a copy one week previous to said hearing in The Pontiac Press, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County.

Witness, the Honorable Arthur E. Moore, Judge of said Court, in the City of Pontiac in said County, this 6th day of January, A.D., 1958.

(Seal) ARTHUR E. MOORE, Judge of Probate
(A true copy) ELSIE J. VASCASSENNO, Deputy Probate Register, Juvenile Division

1,900 in Waterford Imperil Right to Vote

Only 300 of the 2,200 Waterford Township voters who haven't cast ballots during the past four years returned registration cards, Township Clerk James Seeterlin said today.

Those who failed to vote or return the cards will find themselves off the voter rolls when the next election rolls around, unless they register at the clerk's office by July 7.

Seeterlin said today that the registered voter figure of approximately 19,500 remains the same because the influx of new residents is about the same as the number dropped because they died moved away, or neglected to vote.

Ben-Gurion Returns to Office in Israel

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (AP)—One week after his Israeli government resigned because of a breach of Cabinet secrecy, Premier David Ben-Gurion and the same five political parties were back in office today.

The new government won a confidence vote from Parliament last night 76-33 after Ben-Gurion expressed certainty that secrecy would not be broken again. The Premier said the Achduth Avodah Labor Unity party leaked plans to send a special mission to West Germany to seek arms.

Name Pontiac Nurse to Michigan Board

Nellis Young, general supervisor of women at Pontiac State Hospital, today was named by Governor Williams with three women and one man to the newly-enlarged Michigan Board of Nursing.

Mrs. Young, of 44 Putnam St., holds one of the three positions which were created by an act of the 1957 legislature and put psychiatric nurses on the board for the first time. Her term will expire September 17, 1959.

The board will work in business concerning examinations for licenses of hospital psychiatric attendant nurses and also develop the program on a statewide basis, according to Mrs. Young.

Burglar Leaves Clue: the Seat of His Pants

MONROE (INS)—A burglar left a clue at a Monroe home early today—the seat of his pants.

Police said the intruder was greeted by "Rinnie," an 80-pound German shepherd dog when he broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Cramton.

The burglar had fled when Cramton got up and the dog had a large section of the man's pants in his jaws.

Market Slumps After Rallying

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to rally briefly then turned generally lower on profit-taking early today. Trading was moderately active.

The ticker tape was late for two minutes as a buying surge from late yesterday ran over. The initial tone was narrowly higher, but gains were clipped severely and in several cases turned to losses.

Aircrafts resumed their leadership in activity. After a slight upside bulge at the start most of them showed fractional declines.

Chrysler stretched a small opening loss to a drop of well over a point. The firm announced the layoff of 4,000 workers in the Detroit area. Other motor shares showed scant change.

Some chemicals, rails, rubbers and other selected issues held gains of fractions to around a point. Steels, nonferrous metals and assorted issues in other sections took losses.

Detroiter Indicted

DETROIT (AP)—Edward J. Vitale, 38-year-old former office manager for a Detroit securities brokerage, was indicted Tuesday by a U.S. grand jury on charges of swindling about 15 of the company's customers out of $50,000 to $100,000.

C. of C. Sends Trio to Meeting in Ohio

Three representatives of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce were in Columbus, Ohio, today to learn how new industry might be brought into this area.

Attending the Jan. 8-10 Great Lakes States Industrial Conference are L. Clare Utley, chairman of the Industrial Affairs Committee of the chamber; Bruce J. Annett, representing local real estate interests, and John W. Hirlinger, chamber manager.

"Our desire is to bring in new industry here to offer employment for more people," Hirlinger said.

Portland, Ore. is known as the "City of Roses" because the multi-colored blossoms bloom in almost every yard.

GEORGE C. STENSON

Metropolitan Club to Install Officers

The Pontiac Metropolitan Club will hold its installation of new officers and officers of the Women's Auxiliary Saturday at the Amvets Hall, 570 Oakland Ave., beginning at 8 p.m.

New officers are: George C. Stenson, president; John G. Morse, first vice president; Harry C. Isenberg, second vice president; Charles W. Gale, recording secretary; Reuel M. Baker, financial secretary; Henry St. John, treasurer; Charles H. Copenhaver, sergeant-at-arms; and Park I. Nique and Guzman A. Ruiz, auditors.

The club is made up of Pontiac's policemen, firemen, and postal employes. Richard E. Anderson, of Royal Oak, a national auditor, will serve as installing officer.

GOP Club to Hear Talk on U.S. Satellite

Members of the North Woodward Republican Club will hear James S. Kirkpatrick, vice president of the Detroit firm which develops parts for baby earth satellites, when they meet tomorrow night at 8 at 351 N. Woodward Ave., Birmingham.

He is associated with Brooks & Perkins, Inc., of Birmingham, developers and manufacturers of satellites less instrumentation.

The speaker, according to club president Gustav G. C. Scharff, will show a film on the Vanguard satellite, and bring along a satellite chassis and cover for inspection.

Continental Posts Profit

DETROIT (AP) — Continental Aviation and Engineering Corp. reported Tuesday profits for the fiscal year. Sales for the 1957 year totaled $37,664,096, compared with $20,801,744 for the preceding fiscal year.

Thief Takes Coins Worth Over $2,000

Detectives at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department are investigating the breaking and entering of an Orion Township home Tuesday, which netted the thief a coin collection worth over $2,000.

Harry Hale of 3691 Baldwin Rd. reported that someone had broken a rear bedroom window of his home sometime during the day and taken a tool box containing the coins.

Hale said there were approximately 200 half-dollars, 20 silver dollars and assorted other rare coins. He placed a value of $2,500 on the collection and said that the total face value of the coins was about $600.

Gadget for Rear Seat Viewers

Olds Shows Car TV Set

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT (AP) — Among interesting gadgets currently being displayed at the auto shows is a small television set for rear seat viewing.

General Motors' Oldsmobile Division attracted considerable attention with the unit at the Chicago show. The device, with a nine-inch screen, is wholly practicable, but Oldsmobile has not yet said when it will be available for commercial installation.

Also delaying its availability is the fact that some states prohibit television in automobiles, even in the rear section. Oldsmobile has not disclosed the probable installation cost when all obstacles are cleared.

Extremely compact, the set operates in the car or when connected with the house current in the home.

ONE OF LONG LIST

The receiver is the latest in a long list of gadgets developed for the postwar automobile. It comes close upon the presentation of a dual-purpose radio introduced this year by Oldsmobile and Pontiac. The radio also can be removed from the car to operate as a portable receiver on self-contained batteries.

Development of comfort and convenience accessories for motoring probably is just getting a healthy start. Yet, with air conditioning, power steering, power brakes, power window lifts, power operated deck lids, ash trays that are emptied automatically and a long list of other such items, the accessories soon may cost more than the car itself.

Another device demonstrated at some auto shows is a puncture-proof tire filled with a sausage-like formation of plastic instead of air. It has been demonstrated by a foreign car maker for the smaller size tires used on some of the imported vehicles.

What will be the next practicable engineering advance in passenger cars probably is anybody's guess. Fuel injection and air suspension, the most recently developed of these advances, still are getting less than the hoped-for acceptance.

3 of 23 Crewmen Drown

Oyster Dredge Overturns

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A new 250-foot oyster shell dredge, buffeted by rough waters, overturned in Galveston Bay 40 miles southeast of Houston yesterday. Three of its 23 crewmen drowned.

Two others were injured but were reported in satisfactory condition.

The H. A. Sawyer was dredging shell and loading barges on either side when it capsized in 15 feet of water.

"In no time it was on its side," said R. W. Phipps of Houston, a galley boy. "I saw one man trapped as the water poured in. I tried to reach him but could not. There was a mad scramble, with men screaming and shouting."

Divers found the bodies of Bruce McGowen, Houston, and Malcolm Smith, Tomball, Tex., hours later inside flooded portions of the three-story superstructure. The other victim was Garland Franklin, 55, Grapeland, Tex.

Auto Seller's Sentence Includes Law Reading

DETROIT (AP)—John Floyd, 33, of Dearborn Township, has been ordered to read up on Michigan's auto sales laws as part of a sentence on a charge of false advertising.

Floyd, a car salesman, was ordered by Recorder's Court Judge Joseph A. Gillis to study the 35 pages of the state motor vehicle sales finance act. Gillis said he will quiz Floyd on the act next week.

Floyd also was fined $200, ordered to pay $200 in court costs and was placed on two years probation.

Sales of Ramblers Jump 38 Per Cent in 1957

DETROIT (AP) — Sales of Ramblers last year were 38.2 per cent above 1956, the American Motors Corp. said yesterday.

The auto firm said its dealers sold 98,567 Ramblers in 1957 compared to 73,807 sold in 1955, the previous record year. Production figures show American Motors built 109,178 Ramblers last year.

The company also reported retail sales of its imported Metropolitan totaled a record 12,226 last year. This compares with 7,323 units sold in 1956.

Pontiac Reappoints Process Servers

Pontiac's four Municipal Court process servers were re-appointed to two-year terms by the City Commission last night.

The re-appointments were recommended by Municipal Judges Cecil McCallum and Maurice E. Finnegan.

Re-appointed were Percy G. Newman, of 181 Navajo St.; Richard R. Dougherty, of 32 Henderson Ave; Fred A. Smiley, of 47 S. Genesee Ave. and James M. Stone, of 651 E. Mansfield Ave.

Stone has served as a process server since 1955. The others have held the post since 1951.

Brunswick-Balke Co. Ups Cash Dividend

NEW YORK (AP) — Directors of Brunswick-Balke Collender Co. today raised the quarterly dividend to 25 cents a share from 20 cents cash and 5 per cent stock paid in December. The higher cash dividend is payable March 17 to stock of record Feb. 28.

The stock was split two for one last September. Earlier that month a dividend of 40 cents was paid. The company also paid a 5 per cent stock dividend at the end of 1956.

Stassen's Mind Open

WASHINGTON (INS) — Disarmament adviser Harold E. Stassen is keeping an open mind on whether to retain his present post or step aside and run for governor of Pennsylvania on the Republican Ticket.

City Launches Borrowing Plan

Seeks First Third of $950,000 to Complete Hospital Addition

The City Commission last night set about borrowing the first third of $950,000 to finish the Pontiac General Hospital addition.

Commissioners resolved to borrow $317,000 on the basis of 1958 tax anticipation warrants.

If the plan is approved by the State Municipal Finance Corp., the money could be in the city's hands as soon as mid-February, it was believed.

City Finance Director Oscar Eckman was authorized to make immediate application to the state for approval of the loan.

The warrants will be sold as soon as possible after state approval, at an interest rate not exceeding 4 per cent.

PAYABLE SEPT. 1

The city plans to take the $317,000 principal plus interest out of tax funds that otherwise would have gone for capital improvements.

The same method will be used to pay off the rest of the $950,000 when it is borrowed.

The $4 million hospital wing is designed to provide space for about 200 more beds plus other specialized medical facilities.

Although the exterior of the addition is finished, funds are needed to complete the interior, remodel certain portions of the old building, tie in the two facilities, and purchase new equipment.

Kresge Appoints New Executives

Three executive appointments have been made by the S. S. Kresge Co., President Franklin P. Williams announced today.

Fred K. Nieman of 5781 Snowshoe Circle, Bloomfield Township, has been named to the newly created position of supervisor of check-out stores. He was assistant sales director for the variety chain.

NIEMAN

Nieman has helped develop many of the policies for the company's check-out system during the past three years. He has been with Kresge for almost 30 years, Williams said.

Nieman will be succeeded as assistant sales director by Ervin W. Wardlow who has been superintendent of Chicago and Detroit district stores.

Wardlow's former post will be filled by George K. Theising, former superintendent of stores in the Pittsburgh district.

11 Injured as Train Derails in Wisconsin

PORTAGE, Wis. (AP) — Eleven mail clerks were injured and 70 passengers were shaken up at 4 a.m. today when the Milwaukee Road's "Pioneer Limited" apparently struck a broken rail in the road's yards near Portage, derailing 11 of 17 cars on the train. Fire broke out in the yards after the crash.

Witnesses said one of the derailed cars crashed into the caboose of an eastbound freight on a parallel track, wrecking the caboose. The caboose wreckage burst into flames.

The postal clerks were in a mail car which overturned. They were taken to Divine Saviour Hospital where attendants said injuries were undetermined.

About 40 coach and 30 sleeper passengers were shaken up, but no one was injured. They were taken to the Portage depot to await bus transportation.

The train was bound from Minneapolis to Chicago.

Sand Dyes Color Glass

BOSTON — Dyes from sand have been developed for coloring glass cloth. The first such ever created, the dyes make it possible to give dark and permanent colors to glass cloth.

Round, Square Dance Lessons Will Be Offered

Round dances and square dances are occupying the attention of Pontiac Parks & Recreation Department personnel.

Everybody knows what a square dance is. But a round dance? Well —

"It's a dance that you do in the middle of square dancing," explained John A. Streit, the department's assistant director.

"When everybody's tired out from square dancing, they round dance for a while to catch their breath."

FOLLOW AROUND

Individual couples follow the round dance tunes in more-or-less standard ballroom fashion. The trick is that all the couples follow one another around the floor in a circle.

There's more to it than that. Round dancing involves novelty steps and the dance class will feature several of them, including the gavotte, polka, schottische and varsouvienne.

The square dance class will be an advanced one, designed more for the experienced square dancer than the beginner, Streit said.

SET PRICE

Registration charges for city residents will be $2 a couple and for out-of-town residents, $4 a couple. Registration may be made by calling the Parks & Recreation Department at FEderal 3-7131.

Registrants will be notified of the time and place of the classes. There will be eight sessions each, Streit said.

Unlikely Youth Held for Murder

Accuse Church-Going Scout of Killing Man in Liquor Store

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Nyals Andreason is the son of a civic leader and school principal in suburban Norwalk.

The youth is an Explorer Scout, attends church regularly and works after school in a supermarket for spending money.

A model boy?

A killer and a member of a teen-age gang of liquor store robbers, sheriff's deputies yesterday told his shocked father.

"This murder thing is so unbelievable I don't know what to say—it's so out of character," said the father, Nyals T. Andreason.

In one, liquor store clerk Paul Robertson was fatally shot last Dec. 26.

In another two weeks earlier, a German shepherd watchdog was shot and finally had to be destroyed.

Deputies said young Nyals Andreason was wielding a .22-caliber revolver and had $200 in cash.

Returned to Los Angeles and booked on suspicion of murder and robbery, young Nyals was questioned by Sgt. J. G. Lawton of the sheriff's homicide detail.

"He told us all about it," Lawton said.

Lawton said young Nyals identified his brother and four other youths as members of the gang. They were picked up and all were turned over to juvenile authorities.

The elder Andreason told reporters: "He's broken up. He said, 'Dad, I didn't mean to hurt anyone. I was just doing it for a lark. The fellow told us to get out and I was just going to shoot a bottle.'"

Threat of Lawsuit Caps Weed-Cutting Discussion

The threat of a lawsuit last night capped a public hearing on unpaid bills for vacant lot weed cutting last summer.

Pontiac attorney Milton S. Cooney told the City Commission in writing that he would bring the suit in behalf of at least three property owners who don't want to pay their bills.

The suit would test the city's power to step in and cut down weeds when property owners let them grow untrimmed.

An assessment roll taxing about 250 property owners whose lots were cut, but who have failed to pay their bills, was approved after a small but vocal group of citizens registered protests.

As the protesters listed what they thought was wrong with the two-year-old weed-cutting ordinance, city officials hinted that changes may be made.

UPHOLDS THE IDEA

But Mayor William W. Donaldson maintained that the idea behind the ordinance was sound.

"Property ownership carries some responsibility," he argued.

"This ordinance came about because some people allowed their vacant lots to become so overgrown they resembled jungles. People were afraid to walk by at night for fear of who might be lurking there.

"The city has a duty to protect its citizens in this."

Some of the objections raised:

1. The standard per frontage foot price is unfair because some lots have trees, bushes or hills and don't need so much cutting.

2. The ordinance is based on destroying "noxious weeds" but it is doubtful whether all the lots cut by the city had noxious weeds growing on them.

3. Some lots are cut and others aren't. In a few instances, it was argued, the city cut the same lot twice by mistake.

4. The weed ordinance has not been publicized enough and some property owners are unaware of it.

5. Cutting weeds is not the same as permanently improving property and the city therefore has no right to levy a special assessment.

POSSIBLE CHANGES

Commissonier Floyd W. Miles admitted that the "noxious weed" provision was weak.

Commissioner John C. Carey felt that perhaps the city should cut weeds twice during the summer, instead of the single cutting set up in the present ordinance.

Americans Drink More Milk From Paper Cartons

DETROIT (INS) — Ex-Cell-O Corp. vice president George D. Scott said today in a year-end statement Americans consumed an estimated 13,750,000,000 paper cartons of milk last year.

This compared to 12,943,000,000 units in 1956.

Scott said last year over 50 per cent of all fresh milk consumed in this country was in paper cartons.

Kiwanis Installs New President

At ceremonies held last night at the Elks Temple, 114 Orchard Lake Ave., the West Pontiac Kiwanis Club installed Dr. Lynn D. Allen Jr., as its new president.

OTHER OFFICERS

Other officers installed were: William R. Brandt, John H. Stefanski, and Robert J. Alton, vice presidents; Daniel T. Murphy Jr., treasurer; Robert Lazelle, secretary; and Cramer Partridge, James Corbitt, and Dr. John M. Markley, as new members on the board of directors.

HONORED GUESTS

Robert Erickson was general chairman for the event. Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich Locke, of Fenton, were honored guests of the evening. Locke is a past governor of Michigan Kiwanis.

The gathering was entertained by a group from the Pontiac High School girl's chorus and the club's dance band.

Congressmen Seem Attracted by Paris, Italy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judging by the amount of money they spend, House committees found Paris and Italy the most attractive places during their world wanderings in the last fiscal year.

A report by the House Administration Committee disclosed heavy outlays of French francs and Italian lira by roving representatives of the people during the year ended last June 30.

Reports issued yesterday showed Senate and House members spent a total of foreign counterpart funds equivalent to $291,247 — $122,062 by House travelers and $169,185 by touring senators.

The House report showed the countries in which the funds were spent.

The foreign funds are owned by the United States government and are received under foreign-aid programs. They are available for expenses of members of Congress traveling on official business. The customary practice is for the travelers to draw the funds as soon as they step on foreign soil. They do not have to give a detailed accounting of how they spend the money.

Faye Emerson Gets Mexican Divorce

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Faye Emerson's attorney says the actress and TV panelist has been granted an uncontested Mexican divorce from orchestra leader Skitch Henderson.

Francisco Lopez Figueroa said the decree, approved Dec. 5 by an Acapulco judge, has just been countersigned by the governor of the state of Guerrero.

The divorce will become effective after it is recognized by the Interior and Foreign Relations departments and the U. S. consulate.

Miss Emerson filed her petition Nov. 23 on grounds of "separation from the marital home for over six months."

Girl, 7, Runs Into Car, Suffers Minor Injuries

A seven-year-old girl suffered a bloody nose and a cut mouth yesterday when she ran into the side of a moving automobile.

Linda G. Dallas, of 119 S. Johnson St., was treated at Pontiac General Hospital and released.

The driver, Forrest R. Walker, 56, of 38½ Front St., told police the girl ran off the curb into his car on Huron street at Green.

Johnny Ray Undergoes Major Ear Operation

NEW YORK (AP)—A major ear operation was performed yesterday on singer Johnny Ray, deaf since childhood.

Mt. Sinai Hospital officials said he is resting comfortably and that the effectiveness of the surgery will be known in a few days. A spokesman said that hearing is restored in about 80 per cent of such cases.

The operation was described as "fenestration" — making a new opening within the left ear to replace a nonfunctioning natural channel.

After Making One Film, She's Doing Comeback

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Having grown old and gone into our bloatage, we're owleyed when we meet tiny, talky middle-western teenagers like Jean Seberg.

WILSON

At 19, she's making a movie comeback—after only one picture and barely four days in Hollywood. Her observations are sharp.

She saw a man with white sideburns . . . he was round-shouldered from carrying heavy wallets.

"There goes Tommy Manville," said the kid from Iowa. A fellow at her table lifted his chin out of his gin to ask, "How did you know?"

"Oh," smiled Jean, "I've seen him in 'Confidential.'"

Jean's as breezy talking about her "turkey" (Joan of Arc") or her comeback picture, "Bonjour Tristesse," in which she plays "something I'm more equipped to play—a vicious juvenile delinquent."

JEAN

Preminger — who discovered her in Chicago 15 months ago after a highly-publicized search — may have heard her talk about his driving.

"In France he was always pushing people in small cars off cliffs with his black Chrysler," Jean giggled. "One day he his a bus. He told people in his car, 'Pretend it didn't happen.' While they wiped blood off their faces!"

Jean's parents in Marshaltown, Ia., were surprised about a young-love scene from "Bonjour Tristesse" which they saw on TV recently.

Jean was also surprised—that it got by the censors.

"Didn't seem like you, Jeana," muttered Father. "Looks pretty bad," agreed Mother solemnly.

"I might never be allowed back in Iowa," shrugged Jean.

However, if she doesn't make Iowa famous, that's already being done by the new B'way hit, "The Music Man."

"People tell me," remarked Jean, puzzled, "that it'll do for Iowa what 'Oklahoma!' did for Oklahoma. The only thing," she added wisely, "they didn't say what 'Oklahoma!' did for Oklahoma."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Eydie Gorme and Steve Lawrence will do a Mr. and Mrs. act in Las Vegas . . . Princess Margaret's ex-beau, Capt. Peter Townsend, was offered a 50G advance to write his memoirs for a N.Y. publisher . . . CBS boss William Paley took his family to Birdland, explained, "I've been trying to get there for eight years." . . . A collectors' item is a midwest newspaper review of a recent TV show, praising its two stars—who had had to cancel off it and never appeared.

EARL'S PEARLS: They tell of the Scotsman who ordered his wife, "And be sure to take off Junior's eyeglasses when he's not lookin' at anything."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Too often the person who wants to leave the party early and the one who wants to stay are married to each other.—Ima Washout,

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A pal of ours says he sat through a long love scene at a drive-in movie before he noticed he wasn't facing the screen. That's earl, brother.

Ike's Farm Given Soil Bank Payments

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times said today that President Eisenhower's farm at Gettysburg, Pa., received soil bank payments of $2,009.60 for not growing corn and wheat in the past two years.

A Washington dispatch to the newspaper said the farm also got federal payments for conservation practices.

Department of Agriculture officials were quoted as saying the conservation payments were "well under" the $1,500 limit permitted for any farm.

The Times story also said in part:

The soil bank payments were made under the acreage-reserve phase of the multimillion-dollar plan authorized in 1956 and aimed at reducing production of major surplus crops, including corn, wheat, cotton, rice and tobacco.

The payments to the Eisenhower farm were shown in records in the office of the Agriculture Department's Commodity Stabilization Service, in Adams County, Pa.

Eisenhower's name does not appear on the office records. Dealings of the office are through George Allen, a friend of the President's farm operations.

Thousands Paid Daily

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan hospitals and doctors were paid more than $400,000 a day, or a total of 156 million dollars, in 1957 for services rendered members of the Blue Cross hospital plan and the Blue Shield medical plan. William S. McNary, Blue Cross executive vice president, said hospitals got 112 million and doctors 44 million. Both were record amounts for a 12-month period.

Detroit Unemployed Rose 24 Thousand

DETROIT (AP) — Unemployment rose 24,000 in Michigan during the month ended Dec. 15, the Michigan Employment Security commission reports.

The increase brought the number of Michigan's idle to 226,000 or 7.7 per cent of its total labor force, according to the MESC report.

The State's number of employed was estimated at 2,561,000, with 1,398,000 of those in jobs located in Detroit.

The motor city's idle as of Dec. 15 was estimated at 135,000 or 8.8 per cent of its labor force. The unemployment gain between Nov. 15 and mid-December was 12,000.

MESC said 183,298 claims for unemployment compensation were filed over the State in the month, with 100,178 of them being placed in Detroit. Of the State's total, however, only 42,519 were listed as new applications.

The Michigan Unemployment Compensation Trust Fund balance was reported as $293,578,067, but payments outstripped contributions $130,449,046 to $127,211,967 in the first 11½ months of 1957. A total of $13,847,000 was paid out in the month ended Dec. 15.

Town 800 Years Old

FRIBOURG, Switzerland — The medieval city of Fribourg is celebrating its 800th anniversary this summer. It was founded by Duke Berthold IV of Zahringen at a ford in the Sarine River. From 1277 to 1447 it was a Habsburg possession, but it joined the Swiss Federation in 1481 as capital of its French-speaking canton. It now has a population of 30,000.

Boss of 'White Hunter' Describes Experiences Working in Kenya

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Bernard Schubert, who has quite a reputation as a television program creator, took a look in the crystal ball the other day. He saw:

"African adventure series are the coming challenge to TV Westers—if they're done in an adult manner. I don't think they'll ever ride Westerns off the range, but the chances are that we'll see an increasing number of them."

Schubert is producer of "White Hunter," a new series of African adventures filmed in Kenya. The series is appearing on numerous stations throughout the country.

In the past he has brought to the TV screen such programs as "Topper," "Crossroads," "Adventures of the Falcon," "Mr. and Mrs. North" and others.

Schubert, recently back from Kenya, said: "Africa is both the most untouched part of the world and at the same time the most tremendously publicized part of the world.

CAPTURE IMAGINATIONS

"In Africa you have combinations of many things—of animals and primitive emotions, for example. These things capture people's imaginations.

"I think that's why movies with an African background have made more money percentage-wise than any other type of movie."

There are difficulties connected with making TV films in Africa, Schubert said.

"Animals are poor actors. They don't take directions well." As witness, for example, a rhino that bowled over a camera jeep of the "White Hunter" location company.

"And many Africans themselves are difficult actors. They want to watch the camera and they think that making films is hilarious fun instead of work."

ENJOYED PURSUIT

Thus, in one program, a group of Africans were supposed to chase a couple of white actors to a cliff over which the actors were to leap. The Africans though it was great fun chasing the white actors.

They chased them so fast that they kept catching them before the hard running actors could reach the cliff.

By the time the Africans agreed to follow directions, the whites were too tired to run.

So the sequence had to be postponed until the next day when the actors had recovered breath.

Open Sesame for Secretaries Is 'Hard Work'

EAST LANSING (AP) — Hard work and plenty of it, that's the key, girls, if you aspire to be secretary to a big corporation's president, a bank president or a governor.

This was the conclusion of Gene McCann of the Michigan State University department of Business education and secretarial studies after an extensive survey.

It goes without saying that an A-1 secretary has to know how to type and take dictation.

But only 18 per cent of women skills were more important then general business understanding to their rise from the stenographer ranks.

Where did they get their knowledge of business operation?

Mostly, from spare time study, McCann said.

There was wide agreement, he reported, on the importance of a "winning smile, pleasing voice for visitors and telephone callers, the proper attire and acting like a lady."

McCann said only seven per cent of the women interviewed finished a college level secretarial course.

Junior Editors Quiz on FISH

ANSWER: Down where the water is so deep that there is hardly a vestige of light, some fish have tremendously large eyes that, like the eyes of an owl, can make very efficient use of what little illumination there may be. Others give up the struggle to see and instead make use of sensitive feelers. Still others, especially those completely beyond the range of sunlight, carry thir own flashlights with them. Such flashlights are parts of the fishes' bodies and operate like an eye, with a lens and a surface to reflect the light from a luminous area. The light is produced by chemical reaction. The fish can turn it on or off, depending on whether it is hunting or being hunted. About half of the deep sea creatures probably have some means of shining lights.

Since you never are likely to see a flashlight fish, ask your librarian for a book about the sea and read about its many wonders. A number of such books have been published recently.

MSU Estimates Term Enrollment at 20,000

EAST LANSING (AP) — Michigan State University officials estimated that enrollment for the winter term starting Monday will hit about 20,000.

Thomas H. Hamilton, vice president for academic affairs, said the estimated figure includes 19,000 students enrolled for resident credit courses and 1,000 taking extension work for credit.

Late enrollees still are signing up.

Total enrollment at the start of the winter term a year ago came to 19,548, Hamilton said.

It has been estimated that there are about 10 billion tons of gold contained in the sea waters of the world.

Farmer Couldn't Touch the Bothersome Buck

GUTHRIE, Okla. (AP) — Carl Wade, a farmer, wished it were deer season so he could have done something about a bothersome buck.

The deer chased a cow in Wade's pasture to a point of exhaustion and then when the farmer went to the rescue of his animal, the buck turned on him.

First open hearth steel furnace was set up in 1868.

The Case of the Wire-Haired Octoplug

If your electric outlets are jam-packed with plug-uglies ... if the double-sockets in your sockets have double-sockets ... if your wires are as tangled as the tentacles of an octopus ... then you may be a victim of inadequate wiring.

The need to plug several lamps or appliances into one wall outlet is a good indication that your wiring isn't heavy enough for your power requirements. This can result in overloaded circuits, blown fuses and poor performance from appliances.

According to a recent LOOK MAGAZINE article, four out of five American homes are inadequately wired. Find out how your home rates by having an expert inspect your power system. Williams Says Michigan Must Boost Spending

Tells Legislature Hike Needed Despite State's 'Serious Crisis'

LANSING (AP)—Gov. Williams said today the state "inescapably" must step up spending in 1958-59 despite the present "serious crisis" in state finances, but for the first time in 10 years skipped any demand for a tax on corporation profits.

To tide the state treasury over the shoals immediately ahead and to support higher expenditures next fiscal year he urged a two-year duration for his recommended increase in the state tax on securities and other intangibles.

The stiffened levy would beef up state revenues by 21 million dollars for both this year and next.

In a 45-minute message outlining his program for the 69th Michigan legislature, the governor told a joint Senate-House meeting he passed up a request for his favorite corporation levy to await findings of a legislative study of the entire state tax structure now in progress.

Generally, he said, fiscal problems of the moment must not impede the state's forward march.

"It is easy to go forward in good times," Williams said. "But the test of democratic leadership is to continue making progress even when the obstacles pile up ahead of us."

About half the message was devoted to a review of the financial pickle now confronting the state, and with this as a background, to his broad budgetary recommendations for the year starting July 1.

Elsewhere, he made major proposals for:

1. Bonding in an unspecified amount to finance new state building especially at state colleges and universities, and an "improvement" in the school aid formula.

2. A four-point program for strengthening civil rights, including a bar against racial discrimination in sale or rental of housing—except for one, two and three-family dwell-

The impact on deposito proposed increase in the st clouded at this time.

A survey of two local ba shows they are undecided tax boost is adopted by the legislature to meet the state's anticipated budget deficit.

PASS ON TAX

At issue is the central question of whether, for the first time the banks would pass the tax on to its depositors.

At present Pontiac banks, like all others in the state, pay the tax for depositors.

A. C. Girard, president of Community National Bank, said that when Michigan first adopted an intangibles tax, his bank found it would cost $11,000 a year in clerical work to bill depositors and pay the tax.

Now, however, the bank says out $40,000 a year for its depositors' tax.

Hope to Speed Probe of Doctor

Authorities Confer on Sullenberger Case in Ziem's Office Friday

An attempt to speed investigation into charges against Dr. Neil H. Sullenberger, ousted Pontiac General Hospital surgeon, will be made at a meeting in the Oakland County prosecutor's office tomorrow.

Officials were concerned about the Pontiac General Hospital administration's reluctance to open up secret files and produce information that could back up the charges.

The investigation in the meantime could switch to Dr. Sullenberger himself today.

"We certainly do want to talk with Dr. Sullenberger and get his side of the controversy," said LeRoy McEntee, an assistant to Prosecutor Frederick C. Ziem who has been assigned to the case.

Ray M. Sweet, investigator for the State Board of Registration in Medicine, returned to Pontiac from Lansing today to confer first with McEntee about which direction the investigation should take in view of the hospital's stand.

TO MEET TOMORROW

Another state official, Maurice M. Moule, who is the assistant attorney general representing the state board, will meet tomorrow with Ziem and City Attorney William A. Ewart, who filed the hospital's charges against Dr. Sullenberger.

The charges, made in answer to Dr. Sullenberger's $250,000 damage suit against the hospital, listed 25 violations of professional standards including six instances in which the patient died.

Dr. Sullenberger's suit for damages and reinstatement was brought after his suspension from the hospital Nov. 13.

Carl I. Flath, the hospital's director, told investigators Monday that he was reluctant to open up the files for fear of spoiling the hospital's court case.

Dr. Sullenberger's attorney, Harry N. Dell, said that the doctor's reply to the charges should be ready early next week, perhaps as soon as tomorrow afternoon.

REQUEST WITHDRAWN

In another Circuit Court case, a request for a temporary injunction against the hospital was withdrawn yesterday by four doctors who claim a public institution has no right to make regulations limiting their right to practice medicine freely.

The move was taken because the suit has been readied for trial in about a month, at which time the doctors will ask for an injunction that is permanent.

Rosebush Quads at 7 Plan Their Careers

By SYLVIA de STEIGER

It was just 24 years ago today that an Oakwood couple were married in Lake Orion. It will be seven years tomorrow that this couple, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth F. Rosebush, of 3043 Baldwin Rd., became famed following the birth of their quadruplets.

Tomorrow, the two sets of identical twins, Kristine and Krystal and Kenneth and Keith, will spend a quiet birthday.

It's the first time they haven't had a party but this year, it's Dorothy's turn to have a party, according to Mrs. Rosebush. Dorothy, one of the four older Rosebush daughters, will be 14 years old Jan. 23. Of course, the quads will have a cake and lots of birthday presents.

This is the first year of their school career that the quads have been separated. Krystal and Keith are in one room and Kristine and Kenny are in another room of first graders at the Daniel Axford Elementary School. Last year in kindergarten they were all together.

TRY SEPARATION

The four K's all agree they would rather be together but they are all individuals and are not dependent on each other.

Mrs. Rosebush said, "We thought we would experiment for a year to see how they get along separated. So far, it works out fine. One thing is for sure, they don't tattle on each other as much this way," she explained.

Saying that each of the quads is an individual and has a mind of his own is evident.

Gavin to Retire Despite Protests

Brucker OKs Request Reluctantly; Final Effort Fails to Move General

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin's request for retirement has been approved by Secretary of the Army Brucker after a final effort to keep the critic of defense policies in uniform.

"I have done my best to persuade him to stay," Brucker said in announcing that he had "reluctantly" approved Gavin's application to retire March 31 after completing 30 years of Army service.

Gavin, chief of Army research and development, earlier in the day had told the Senate Preparedness subcommittee his decision to retire was final.

Brucker said he made one more try at getting Gavin to change his mind, even after the general had taken this position.

Spurning Pentagon offers of promotion to full general within 14 months and a choice of two assignments until then, Gavin told senators, "I can do better for the Army outside than in."

He spoke of the Army's position as deteriorating rapidly.

He complained that Army strength and budget allocations have been whittled down over the past four years while Russian strength has been growing.

He contends the Army needs thousands of planes, missiles and much more freedom in planning.

Talking with newsmen after his appearance before the Senate subcommittee, Gavin said "there is not one red penny" for the Army in President Eisenhower's emergency request for $1,260,000,000 in additional defense funds for this fiscal year ending June 30.
