Meg Abdicates Glamor Throne to Cousin 'Alex'

LONDON (AP)—"Alex" has become the new reigning glamor girl of Mayfair.

Succeeding Princess Margaret, Princess Alexandra has taken over as leader of the gayest young crowd in London's fashionable night life.

Margaret, now 25, has abdicated gracefully in favor of her 19-year-old cousin with the misty blue eyes.

Most of Margaret's escorts and friends of other years have married and settled down to raise families. Though she still goes to parties with them, the tone is more sedate.

For two years Alexandra moved in Margaret's shadow but now the Duchess of Kent's pretty daughter has come out on her own.

Society columnists for the past few weeks have heralded her as "The Princess of 1956."

Alexandra has boy friends aplenty. The gossip column rumors are sprouting. A friend said: "She thinks them howlingly funny."

Wilson Verifies Ridgway Charge

Views on Defense Cuts Expressed by General in Article Validated

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's contention that he did not join other members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in approving plans to cut Army strength has been verified by Secretary of Defense Wilson.

"I think what he said was correct," Wilson told a news conference yesterday when asked for comment on Ridgway's assertion in a national magazine article that he had "most emphatically not concurred" in such plans.

President Eisenhower told Congress in his 1954 State of the Union message that the Joint Chiefs—then including Ridgway — had "unanimously recommended" a new military program embodying reduced Army strength. Ridgway, now retired, wrote he was "nonplussed" to read of this.

But Wilson said "I don't recall any such business" when newsmen mentioned that Ridgway wrote of Wilson cautioning him against voicing publicly his objections to the then proposed Army manpower cuts. Ridgway said at one point in his article he felt he had been put under pressure," sometimes crudely applied, "to drop his opposition to those cuts.

Looking for Lost Mine

ISHPEMING (AP)—Iron County's Chamber of Commerce is prospecting for an abandoned iron mine that could be converted into a tourist attraction. The Upper Peninsula Development Bureau suggested the area mining communities follow suit.

Yes, We Know— but the Mouse Can't Read Law

LONDON (AP)—Peaches Page—a blonde show girl paid not to move when standing nude on a stage—lost her job when a mouse ran over her foot.

She not only moved, she screamed and ran into the wings while the customers collapsed with laughter.

That happened last night at a London music hall. She was fired on the spot.

"I couldn't help it," she said. "When that mouse ran across my foot, I did what any girl would have done."

The reason she lost the $50.40 a week job: The lord chamberlain's regulations allow nudes to appear on British stages if they stand absolutely still. If they do anything more than bat their eyes it is considered an indecent performance.

Give Tentative Okay to City's '56 Budget

The City Commission gave tentative approval last night to the highest budget in the city's history and instructed the city attorneys to prepare the annual appropriation budget ordinance.

Final approval is expected by the end of the month on the proposed budget which calls for a record expenditure of $4,891,828.08, which is approximately $300,000 higher than the 1955 budget.

The budget may possibly result in a tax rate 10 cents higher per $1,000 of assessed value than the 1955 rate, according to City Manager Walter K. Willman.

Pigeons, Awake! You May Lose Your Best Perch

Beware, all Pontiac pigeons!

If Mayor William Donaldson has his way, you are headed for a fast exodus from your lofty perch at the Court House.

Donaldson told the City Commission last night of a man in New Orleans who employed a chemical compound, odorless to humans that rids public buildings of pigeons and starlings.

The matter was referred to City Manager Walter K. Willman for investigation with the only opposition coming from Commissioner John E. Carry who said: "'That's for the birds."

Detroit Orders 150 GM Diesels for Two Streets

Will Spend $3,155,000 With Local Plant to Replace Streetcars

General Motors Truck & Coach Division has been awarded a $3,155,000 contract for 150 diesel coaches by the city of Detroit.

Construction of the 51 passenger TDH-5105 models will begin immediately, GM officials said today. The order was approved by Detroit's Common Council yesterday.

Destined to replace streetcars along Woodward and Gratiot, the buses will be powered by six cylinder diesel engines, and equipped with GM's air suspension system.

Conventional steel springs are replaced by the rubberized bellows, which afford an air-cushioned ride over road shock.

No completion date for the coaches has been announced.

The streetcars are scheduled to be retired from Gratiot by April 1, and off Woodward by May 1. This will bring an end to all streetcar operations in the city.

The Common Council voted to finance a portion of the purchase with sales of bonds, and approved issuing $2,500,000.

Sale of two Detroit Street Railways former terminals is expected to raise the balance of funds for the order.

Ohio Jet Crash Kills One Pilot

TROY, Ohio (AP)—Two Air Force jet fighters — screaming past each other in simulated radar-guided attacks — crashed seven miles above earth last night.

One pilot, Capt. B. E. Thayer, 29, ejected himself from his disabled craft and parachuted safely to earth.

The other, 1st Lt. J. J. Schulte, 27, was killed. His mutilated body was found near the wreckage of his plane.

"I remember the collision and that I started to reach for the ejection seat handle, but did not get hold of it. I recall nothing else until I regained consciousness on the ground."

The ejection seat on Capt. Thayer's plane was found in the plane wreckage. He said when he regained consciousness he found that one hand was gripping the release ring on his parachute, but that he did not recall actually pulling the release.

The crash was witnessed by a ground observer corpsman from his Troy post. In the semidarkness of twilight he watched the two F86D fighters collide, then fall about two miles apart of each other.

Both planes were based at Wright-Patterson AFB, Dayton, and were part of the 56th Fighter Interceptor Squadron.

Flashlight Used to Fight Darkness

Pilot Lands Crippled Plane Safely

NEW YORK (AP)—An airline pilot, flying through a snowstorm without radio or lights and with only a compass to guide him, brought his plane in to a safe landing at LaGuardia Field last night. There were 24 people aboard.

Pilot Robert Francis, 37, had to use a flashlight to see the compass.

Behind him in the darkened cabin his passengers sat through the ordeal in prayerful quiet. There was no panic, even though the plane landed two hours late.

The electrical system of the twin-engine Northeast Airlines Convair failed about seven minutes after it left Boston at 4:56 p.m. The plane was plunged in darkness and there was no way for it to contact ground stations or receive guiding signals.

Francis, a flier for nearly 20 years, landed with less than an hour's gasoline supply at 8:12 p.m., 2 hours and 22 minutes late.

"It wasn't very pleasant," he commented later. "Thank God we're here."

He said he had considered returning to Boston but decided against it because of heavy air traffic there. Fog and snowstorms then prevented him from making an emergency landing before reaching New York.

TOOK SAFE COURSE

Reports that the plane was overdue touched off a wide search.

He said the plane took longer than usual to get here because of the roundabout route designed to avoid other aircraft.

Describing the electrical failure as something that "happens once in a million times," Francis told of the flight:

"We were at about 1,500 feet. We turned east looking for stratified layers and to keep out of traffic. We went up at one time to 12,000 feet. It was snowing and we never saw the ground until we got almost to New York."

ALL BY COMPASS

"We went entirely by compass."

When the plane broke through the overcast over the eastern tip of Long Island, Francis recognized where he was and headed straight for LaGuardia, bringing the plane in visually for a perfect landing.

The sight of Long Island brought a cheer of relief from the passengers, reported one of them, Jerry Ferron of Roosevelt, N. Y. Up to that point, he said, he thought the plane was doomed.

He told of taking out a piece of paper and writing for his wife Barbara: "Bobby, I love you. Jerry."

Passenger Elmer Hunting, 37, of Madwaska, Maine, described the reaction in the cabin when the lights blacked out. "Everyone began praying silently," he said.

Like other passengers and the pilot, Hunting praised stewardess Barbara Crowley, 25, of Boston. "There was no panic," he said. "The stewardess did a great job."

And pilot Francis, noting that his passengers had kept calm and quiet throughout the long strain, remarked, "They were a very nice group of people."

Two Men Injured as Auto Hits Train

Two men were slightly injured when their automobile ran into a slow moving Grand Trunk Railroad train on W. Huron street this morning.

Driver, Legion Presley, 50, of 66 E. Pike St., and a passenger, Earl Cole, 31, of 83 Auburn Rd., both were released after treatment for cuts in Pontiac General Hospital, authorities said.

Police, who reported the train's speed was about 20 miles per hour, said Presley told them he didn't know how the accident occurred.

In line with a recommendation by Secretary of Agriculture Benson, the bill would boost the amount to be spent for this purpose during the current school year to 60 million dollars.

Bulganin Missing

LONDON (AP)—Western diplomats puzzled today over what is keeping Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin from the public scene. Word reached here he missed another key party meeting.

Believe Missionaries Died While Fighting Indians

Five U.S. missionaries, one the husband of a Pontiac woman, apparently tried to defend themselves before being killed by savage Auca Indians in an Ecuadorean jungle last week.

A bullet hole in the windshield of the missionaries' plane, reported by two U.S. Army helicopter pilots who participated in the search, indicated the victims fired at least one pistol shot.

The body of T. Edward McCully Jr., of Milwaukee, husband of the former Marilou Hobolth, of Pontiac, never was recovered. It was found by his Indian servants on a Curarray River sandbar, but washed away before reached by the main search party.

None of the searching fliers saw any Aucas, but Capt. Robert B. McGhee, of Waco, Tex., flew over one village about 10 miles from the scene of the attack.

He said it comprised about five huts in a clearing with a platform in the center, probably built to receive gifts dropped by the evangelists before they landed.

The other four missionaries who had hoped to convert the Aucas were Peter Fleming, Seattle, Wash.; Nathaniel Saint, Huntington Valley, Pa.; James Elliott, Portland, Ore, and Roger Youderian, Lansing.

Gun Duel Kills Officer, Robber

Police Find Ex-Convict in the Act of Holding Up Detroit Bar

DETROIT (AP) — A young Detroit policeman and a prison parolee were wounded fatally in a gun duel last night when the officer interrupted a tavern holdup.

Patrolman Sidney A. O'Connor, 28, who had faced a drawn gun twice before within the last four months, was shot in the back. The bullet pierced his heart. He died in a hospital three minutes after admittance.

The dead holdup man was identified through fingerprints as Charles F. Mattock, 36, who was believed to have been living in Port Huron recently.

Police said Mattock had served prison terms for parole violation, carrying concealed weapons and larceny, and was paroled only two months ago.

He died in a hospital an hour after the shooting.

OPENED FIRE

Four patrons who had been lined up at the bar by the holdup man said Mattock opened fire when O'Connor and his partner, Patrolman Michael Babiuk, burst into the bar.

The bartender, Andrew Rozcniak, had slipped out a back door and run a block to another bar to call police.

After he was wounded, O'Connor emptied his gun. Babiuk also fired all six shots in his gun. Hospital doctors said all 12 bullets struck Mattock.

O'Connor, who hadn't qualified for the police sharpshooter badge, was the father of two children and his wife, Esther, is expecting a third.

Blaze Destroys Gasoline Ship, Louisiana Docks

Huge Flames, Smoke Hamper Firefighters in Rescue Work

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—Cities Service Oil Co. workers today wearily battled swirling flames and choking smoke that may conceal the bodies of at least 16 seamen in a blazing tanker.

Loaded with a full cargo of 130,000 barrels of gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil, the tanker Salem Maritime exploded late last night.

A crew of 41 was believed assigned to the vessel. Cities Service officials did not know how many were on board at the time.

Firefighters picked up pieces of three bodies this morning. St. Patrick's Hospital here treated eight seamen, one in serious condition. A Cities Service worker also was burned seriously.

A spokesman for Cities Service, which owned the tanker, estimated the missing at 20. A seaman, who had been on board before the explosion, put the figure at 16.

The Salem Maritime's blast set two loading docks afire at the Cities Service plant in Lake Charles, about six miles from this city in southwest Louisiana.

COMPLETE LOSS

The ship and the docks, according to the company, were a complete loss.

No damage estimate was given.

About 1,500 workers attempted to douse the fire and succeeded in confining the flames to the ship and docks, away from the huge adjoining oil refinery.

At 3 a.m., a tugboat surveying the cracked, flaming Salem Maritime noticed a flashlight waving at the rear. Pulling alongside, the tug found three seamen, who jumped overboard.

The three — Frank Toto, 25, of Brooklyn, N.Y., George Emley, and Fred Gentry had lain trapped in the tanker's engine room four hours. When gusts of wind shoved flames away from their side of the tanker, they climbed out of the engine room and onto the deck where they signaled the tug.

TRIO SAVED BY TUG

The three were hospitalized for shock and minor burns.

Earlier in the morning another tug had picked up a trio who jumped into Lake Charles.

Crewmen John Klepadlo of Avco, Penna., one of those rescued by the tug, said he was standing on the fantail of the ship with two other men but was unable to give any account of them after the blast.

No cause was given for the explosion.

Long Captures Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Gov. Earl Long stormed down the comeback trail to landslide victory in the Louisiana governor's race today, leaving the administration of pro-Eisenhower Gov. Robert Kennon in the dust.

Mayor deLesseps Morrison of New Orleans, the only candidate in the five-man field in the Democratic primary who could have forced the race into a Feb. 21 runoff, conceded at 2 a.m.

Building his lead constantly as late rural returns trickled in, the 60-year-old Long rolled toward the majority vote needed to avoid a runoff with the second-place candidate.

Francis Grevemberg 50,710
Earl Long 340,702
James McLemore 38,843
deLesseps Morrison 159,105
Fred Preaus 84,473.

The Republicans did not hold a primary to nominate a governor. Thus Long's victory assured him an unprecedented third stay in the 45-room mansion that his brother Huey built.

Morrison, making his first state race after 10 years as mayor of the state's largest city, and Long brushed aside darkhorse candidate Fred Preaus, who was flying the Kennon administration colors. The governor by law cannot succeed himself.

Long showed amazing comeback strength in this the nation's first state primary of the presidential year. After failing to name a successor four years ago, he swept every large city but one and every parish but one.

The exception was Orleans, county name for New Orleans, where the 43-year-old Morrison found the strength to force the race down to the wire.

With all five candidates in agreement on segregation, law enforcement and industrial development, the race boiled down to the traditional Long vs. anti-Long battle. Morrison's city organization and Preaus' administration backing were unable to change that picture.

With voting machines grinding out the returns for the first time in a Louisiana governor's race, Long took an early lead and steadily built it into the landslide.

"This is a great victory, not just for Earl Long, but for a cause," said the greying political veteran, who put on a whirlwind campaign to convince voters he was completely recuperated from a 1950 heart attack. "It is a victory for the people of all walks of life and the fine colored people."

Higgins Says Toll Roads Will Help Cut State Taxes

He said Michigan needs both toll and free roads and forecasted a big increase in county property taxes and the state gas tax unless toll roads are used for some of the costly arterial expressway.

Higgins referred to the recent legislative highway study report which he said showed the state some $2,274,000,000 short at current taxation levels of meeting its highway needs over the next 10 years.

"Where is the money going to come from?" he asked. "Taxation of course. We cannot wish away our highway financing problem. Neither can the burden be shifted to the federal government, for even the most generous of the proposals seriously considered in Congress could not in itself solve Michigan's total problem, not even in 20 years.

Higgins said that if city and county taxes were not increased it would take a hike of 9.2 cents a gallon over the current 5 cents a gallon gas tax to finance estimated Michigan highway needs in 10 years.

Or, said Higgins, counties would have to increase taxes enough to double their present highway tax contributions to meet local needs in 15 years.

"Some people who should know better," Higgins said, "have attempted to convince the public they have a choice between so-called 'free' roads or toll roads. Michigan needs both types of construction and we will still fall short of the need. The truth is the choice is between toll expressways now when they are needed, or an indefinite wait while the job is done patchwork style with a substantial tax increase in the meantime."

Plan Six Major Traffic Changes in City

Traffic Engineer Discloses Dates

Mt. Clemens, Mill Set to Become One-Way on January 23

Six major traffic changes within the city go into effect Monday, Jan. 23, Theodore M. Vanderstempel, city traffic engineer announced.

All will be permanent changes and are the result of an eight months survey conducted last year and based on actual traffic checks within the city.

In order to relieve congestion at Saginaw and Mt. Clemens streets, Mt. Clemens between Saginaw and Mill street will be converted to one way going east.

Mill street will be made one way southbound between Huron and Pike streets in order to eliminate the dangerous crossing at Huron and Mill, Vanderstempel said.

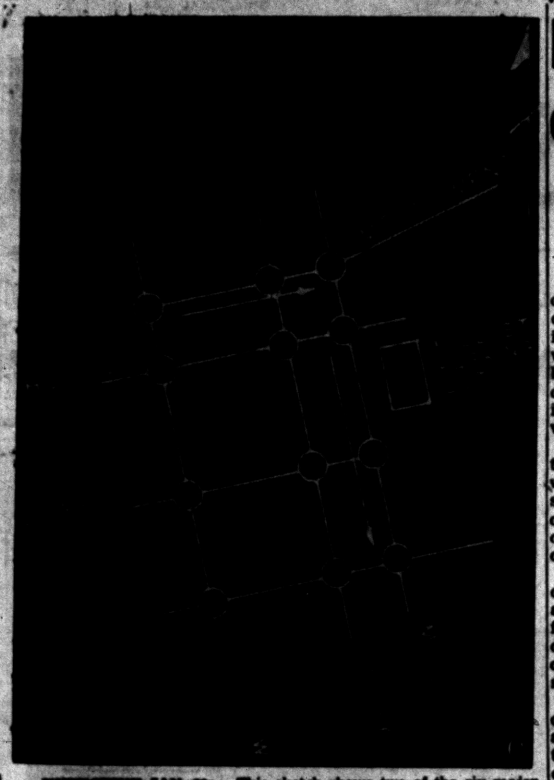
Left hand turns of northbound Perry traffic will not be allowed onto Mt. Clemens, and Mt. Clemens will be restricted exclusively to eastbound traffic between Saginaw and Mill.

Westbound traffic on Mt. Clemens east of Mill street will turn south on Mill and continue westbound movement along Huron street.

The last revision will permit westbound Huron traffic desiring to turn north onto Saginaw to do so at the corner of Waite's Department store.

A traffic officer will be on continuous duty at this corner during critical traffic hours to aid in this movement, said Vanderstempel. Cars will be permitted to make the right hand turn after which pedestrians will be permitted to cross Saginaw.



EFFECTIVE JAN. 23 — This sketch shows two of the six major traffic changes which become effective Monday, Jan. 23. Mt. Clemens street between Saginaw and Mill will be converted to one way going east. Mill street will be made one way southbound between Huron and Pike streets.

Police Open Fire on India Rioters

Death Toll Reaches Ten as Terror Grips Bombay; Army Clamps Curfew

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Police opened fire again today on waves of rioters protesting Prime Minister Nehru's plan to sever this west coast metropolis from Bombay State. At least four of the demonstrators were killed, bringing the death toll in three days of violence to 10 in Bombay State.

Indian army units were ordered to stand by and a 24-hour curfew was clamped on the big industrial sector in the northern part of the city. Various other parts of the city were put under dusk-to-dawn curfew.

At least 300,000 workers in the city of nearly three million people answered a call by leftist unions for a general strike to reinforce demands that the city become the capital of a new Marathi-speaking state.

The rioters held virtual control of the factory area until police and special armed units drove them out with shots, tear gas and club charges.

Yelling, stone-throwing mobs ranged the streets. They felled trees to barricade highways and hurled stones at passing trains, buses and cars.

Downtown Bombay was deserted, with business virtually at a standstill. Shops which opened were looted.

VERIFIES RIDGWAY'S PROTEST — Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson holds his hand to his chin as he answers questions growing out of magazine articles by Gen. Matthew Ridgway. Experts Have Many Ways to Solve Road Problems

Editor's Note: This is the seventh in a series on the highway situation condensed from the booklet, "Wagon Roads to Expressways," to be published by the Oakland County Plan Commission.

What can the engineers do to solve the highway problem?

The traffic or planning engineer has many tools available to plan highway layout and construction. These include:

1. The origin and destination (O and D) study. It attempts to determine the number and types of trips from certain beginning points to common destinations. It shows how many trips are made each day from a residential area to a business section and indicates where new or expanded roads are needed and what type they should be.

2. Vehicle volume studies are made to obtain accurate counts of the number and movements of cars passing through intersections and over major routes.

The volume study can be combined with an O and D survey to provide enough data for planning an expressway system.

3. Accident reports reveal the number, cost, types and frequency of traffic mishaps. Dangerous spots can be pinpointed and safety-promoting steps taken.

4. Predictions of future population coupled with land-use studies can determine the number of vehicle trips for a particular industrial or commercial area.

These are applied to forecasts of future land use to decide how many trips a region can be expected to generate. This is measured against the capacity of existing roads to determine what expansion and new construction is needed.

The various studies result in recommendations to solve a traffic problem. Such as a system of one-way streets, speed regulation, elimination or re-routing of turns, changes in signal timing, parking regulations, traffic signs and pavement markings.

Everything possible should be done, along with new road building, to provide the added capacity needed to keep pace with increased traffic in our area.

Group Eyes Erection of Shopping Center

Developers of a proposed shopping center at Telegraph and Square Lake Rds. in Bloomfield Township have announced plans for initial construction on a 50-acre portion of the 150-acre site, with estimated cost of $10 million.

Officials said that negotiations have been completed for long-term leases in the project with nationally-known chain organizations, but names of the firms were not disclosed.

The project will be called "Michigan's Miracle Mile Town and Country Shoppers City," and a $35 million price tag has been put on the entire center. It is being developed by Don M. Casto and Don M. Casto Jr., of Columbus, Ohio. No date for start of construction was announced.

Elect Attorney Head of Republican Group

Attorney Anthony Renne, of 645 Fourth St., was elected president of the Pontiac Republican Club last night, succeeding Willis Cushman who recently moved out of the city.

Elected vice president was William Garling, while Emma Pelican was named secretary; Maynard Johnson, treasurer; and James Clapp, sergeant-at-arms.

Renne later told of his plans for the coming year and made tentative committee appointments.

The group was addressed by Chad Ritchie, Oakland County Republican Committee chairman, who outlined efforts for the coming elections.

'Calculated Risk Is Vital to Guarantee Peace'—Dulles

WASHINGTON (INS)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles lashed back at his "Brink of War" critics yesterday with a declaration that the United States must be ready to wage war if it is to have peace.

The secretary told the largest news conference assemblage he has had in some years that the U.S. must be willing to take a "calculated risk" for peace.

But he denied he ever said the Eisenhower administration had taken the nation to the "brink" of war three times. Instead, he said, the Communists forced the world to the "brink" in Korea, Indochina and Formosa and that the U. S. had averted war by a firm stand.

The Dulles position was developed in answers to questions about last week's controversial national magazine article entitled "How Dulles Averted War" and subtitled "Three Times, New Disclosures Show He Brought U. S. Back from the Brink."

Dulles said the U.S. must make clear the basic moral values and vital interests for which it stands and that "the surest way to avoid war is to let it be known in advance that we are prepared to defend these principles, if need be by life itself."

The secretary refused to back down from anything in the article although he did say one part of it was ambiguous, and that the article gave him more credit than he thought was due him.

Dulles said his policy of deterrence is not the only necessary ingredient for peace. He said there must be patience and conciliation and that it also is necessary to make our peace a vital force for justice and human welfare so that all men will aspire to share that kind of peace."

BARBARA AMUNDSON

Cancer Unit Officer Resigns Pontiac Post

The resignation of Barbara Amundson as executive secretary of the North Oakland Unit of the Southeastern Michigan Division of the American Cancer Society was accepted "with regret" this week by the group's Board of Trustees.

Associated with the unit for the past 18 months, Miss Amundson has announced that she has accepted another position.

The trustees also discussed preliminary plans for the "April Crusade," an educational campaign in Pontiac, and a fund-raising drive in out-county areas, according to president Dr. John J. Marra.

The board also made plans to send two delegates to a national meeting of the society in Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 3, 4 and 5.

Prof Suggests Williams, Hoegh Swimming Race

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Anybody interested in seeing Gov. Leo Hoegh of Iowa and Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan stage a swimming race?

Prof. William Porter of the State University of Iowa school of journalism, suggested such a match Tuesday night. He said it could be a benefit affair, with the proceeds to go to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Porter made his suggestion after Hoegh addressed a meeting of the Iowa chapter of the American Assn. of University Professors.

Hoegh, a former SUI swimmer, said he would take on Gov. Williams if a match could be arranged.

Pigeons Attack at Bunker Hill —Win Skirmish

As soon as workers finished laying a sidewalk in the reconstructed Bunker Hill section, a flock of the birds swooped down on the wet cement.

Perhaps angered because the city is modernizing their rustic setting, the pigeons hopped, skipped and jumped on the mushy surface. Cement worker Andy Aguilar claimed some even danced.

Then the pigeons retreated to a nearby rooftop. Workers counter-attacked and refinished the cement.

Cutter Breaking Up St. Clair River Ice

MOUNT CLEMENS (AP) — The Coast Guard cutter Tupolo today tackled an ice jam in the St. Clair River that has blocked the normal flow of water from Lake Huron into Lake St. Clair.

The ice, 28 feet deep in spots, has threatened to cut off the water supply to several communities.

The jam has formed at Stag Island, opposite Marysville, and backs up into Lake Huron. As a result, the level of Lake St. Clair has dropped nearly five feet.

Shortly before daylight today the cutter began the slow passage across Lake St. Clair. Her heavy steel hull banged against ice cakes with the thumping sound of a giant hammer.

The printing industry is spending more than $300 million dollars annually in plant and equipment improvements and additions.

New Ford Stock Surges $5 Before Trading Begins

NEW YORK (AP)—The new Ford Motor stock commanded a premium of around $5 a share today, even before full-dress trading had begun.

Limited buying and selling of the stock started late yesterday immediately after clearance by the Securities and Exchange Commission of the huge 10,200,000-share offering at a price of $64.50 a share. Today, the date for the formal offering, Wall Street looks for a big turnover.

MOVED QUICKLY

In the over-the-counter market here, the shares moved quickly to $70.37½ bid, $70.50 asked. That confirmed Wall Street expectations that the stock would rise because demand so far outstrips supply.

Detroiters Bid Higher

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit brokerage houses reported bids as high as $72.50 a share today after the first offering of Ford Motor Co. common stock was sold. This means would-be purchasers were willing to pay a premium of $8 a share.

Clearance by the SEC meant that the Ford company had complied with legal requirements by making a full disclosure concerning the stock and the firm's financial position. That was the last step necessary before trading could begin.

Most investors know by now how much of the stock they'll get—if any. Thousands have been allotted no more than 10 or 20 shares and many will get less than 10.

The shares will trade in the over-the-counter market until around March 1, when they will move to the New York Stock Exchange. Ford also plans to list them on several regional exchanges and may eventually apply for listing on Canadian and European exchanges.

At $64.50 a share and with an annual dividend of $2.40, the new Ford stock would yield about 3.7 per cent—less than General Motors shares but a 'triffle more than Chrysler.

Ford has not stated what its dividend policy will be, although it has announced it will pay 60 cents a share in the present quarter. That amount paid quarterly would equal $2.40. However, some Wall Street sources expect an extra dividend at the end of the year which might bring the total to around $3. At that figure, the yield would be 4.6 per cent.

General Motors, currently around $44.25 a share and paying a dividend of $2, yields 4.5 per cent. Chrysler at $81.25 and paying $3 dividend, yields nearly 3.7 per cent.

If Ford earned $8.10 a share in 1955, as has been estimated, it is being sold at 7.9 times earnings. GM is expected to report earnings of $4.35, on which basis it is selling at 10.2 times earnings. Chrysler is expected to report earnings of $11.50 a share for 1955, so the shares are selling at 7 times earnings.

CLEARING WAY FOR STOCK SALE — Henry Ford II, president of the company founded by his grandfather, affixes signature to document which makes sale of Ford stock to the public official. A price of $64.50 a share was placed on the 10,200,000 common shares to be offered. Some 722 brokers will handle the sales.

Hospital Association Elects New Officials

The Oakland County Hospital Directors Assn. met last night as guests of the Ardmore General Hospital of Ferndale.

The following new officers were elected at the meeting: President, Dr. Ethel T. Calhoun, medical director of the Sister Kenny Polio Hospital of Farmington; vice president, Graham Shinnick, business manager of the Haven Sanitarium in Rochester; and secretary-treasurer, Harold Brady, St. Joseph Mercy Hospital assistant administrator.

Standing committees were appointed and the plans for 1956 formulated at the meeting.

The Day in Birmingham

Socony, Jacobson's Start New Woodward Buildings

BIRMINGHAM — Clearing the way for two new structures on North Woodward avenue began yesterday, with Socony Mobil Oil Co., Inc. having ground bulldozed on the point at the Hunter intersection. Jacobson's is having the long-unused building just below Willits remodeled for a three-phase business.

The new gas station that will stand at Hunter and Woodward will be on the proposed Oak Street cut-off, a project talked of in Birmingham, Bloomfield township, and highway department conferences for six or seven years.

Oak street, according to plans tentatively okayed by the two local governments and awaiting approval of the state highway department, would continue across both Woodward and Hunter, making a right-angle route onto Hunter to replace the diagonal entrance now used. That diagonal would be filled with the landscaped portion to the north of the Socony station, which would be broken only by the Oak, Hunter and Woodward entrances to the gas pump islands of the station.

Bloomfield township tentatively has agreed to annexation of the parcel of land to the city of Birmingham, both to allow the city to give the station water and sewer, and to let the city's policing include all of Hunter avenue. Confusion now arises since the intersection is beyond the city limit line.

Socony is trading, according to the plan, the right-of-way for the cut-off, for a strip of land along Woodward. Only one local lane is to be left, going northbound, on Woodward north of Oak.

Cost of the project would be split between city, state highway department, and the Oakland County Road Commission, according to L. R. Gare, city engineer. A stop light, in state domain, may be placed, but initially, the intersection will be without one.

Jacobson's began yesterday to knock out the west wall of the building for an addition on the rear. The structure was used in recent years as a post office Christmas annex.

Plans show a children's shop there, a university shop on the south, and general attire in the main portion. Permits were issued by the city shortly before the remodeling and adding-on began by the Chissus company. The work will cost $93,800, Jacobson's estimates, but the city figure is at $101,000.

On the North of Willits, Jacobson's is erecting two buildings, which will house the Peter Pan restaurant and a small beauty shop, and an addition to its home decoration shop. The city estimates $70,100 for the addition and $72,200 for the two new structures.

Dr. Douglas Chandler's office was robbed of $97 from a cash box during the noon hour yesterday, the doctor told police.

Ike Endorses Plan to Have Interests Share Costs of Water Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower yesterday endorsed a proposal by a Cabinet committee that interests which benefit from federal water resources developments share the cost in proportion to their benefits.

The government would pay for benefits which are "national and widespread."

But the committee expressed the opinion in its report— which the President generally concurred — that "in most instances direct identifiable beneficiaries should pay a larger share of the cost for benefits received than they do now."

A second principal recommendation was that a new post of Coordinator of Water Resources be established in the President's executive office, and that a board of review be set up, independent of federal agencies, to analyze the engineering and economic feasibility of water development projects.

The board would report to the President through the coordinator. Its members, to be named by the chief executive, would be engineers, economists, lawyers and other experts not connected with any federal agency.

The Budget Bureau, which still would have the task of fitting water projects into the nation's finance plans, at present has the feasibility review job too.

Eisenhower submitted the report to Congress with a message which said he commends its "fundamental purposes and objectives." He recommended prompt attention to the proposals, commenting that they "will reconcile many practices among federal agencies that are now in conflict."

In general the organizational changes within the government would be aimed at a unified federal approach to water problems no matter what department actually carries out a project, with the same general standards applying to all. There is no such proposal as the one made by the first Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization, for actual consolidation of the activities of the various agencies.

Persons familiar with the preparation of the report said the cost-sharing proposals were aimed mainly at flood control and navigation projects carried out by the Army Engineers, and at soil conservation projects of the Agriculture Department.

Such projects now are generally financed solely by the federal government, while irrigation features of federal reclamation projects must be paid for by the water users or through federal power revenues.

In his letter of transmittal Eisenhower said the policies set forth "embody a framework within which the federal government, with state and local governments and other nonfederal interests, may cooperate to develop our water resources."

He said the report fully recognizes "the responsibilities of the federal government for leadership, guidance and action in this field," while at the same time recognizing that "there are a multitude of water developments which are more appropriate for regional, state or local activity."

The Cabinet committee was appointed May 26, 1954, with Secretary of the Interior McKay as chairman. Its members were Secretary of Defense Wilson and Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

An explanatory statement given out by the Interior Department said "this is the first time that a program for water resources has been developed by and has the support of all federal water resource agencies."

* * *

The statement said the committee's report represents "a blueprint to ease this country's existing water shortage and to provide the water needs for a population of 200 million by 1975."

Capac Man Convicted in Manslaughter Charge

PORT HURON (AP)—Wade Laney, 26, of Capac was convicted of manslaughter yesterday in the fatal beating of a Grand Trunk Western railroad worker near Capac last October.

Circuit Judge Halford I. Streeter convicted Laney after hearing the case without a jury.

The body of the victim, Juan Olivo, 55, of Capac, was found beside a country road northeast of the St. Clair County community. Sheriff's deputies arrested Laney and Charles W. Smalstig, who were seen with Olivo in a tavern shortly before he died.

Smalstig was exonerated.

No sentencing date was set for Laney.

Heir Has Enough —Rejects $100,000

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Earl S. Jenckes of Wyomissing, Pa., says he has enough money and doesn't want $100,000 left him by his late sister Miss Clara H. Jenckes.

Miss Jenckes' will was filed yesterday in Probate Court at Woonsocket.

The Providence Journal talked with Jenckes by telephone and quoted him as saying he turned down the inheritance because he had enough without it.

He described himself as a manufacturer of goods and about 80 years of age.

As a result, the money will go to Jenckes' two children, George A. Jenckes and Mrs. Louise Fay.

Attack by Shark Kills State Man

Costa Rica Missionary From Grand Rapids Trapped in Swimming

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Lester Burton, 33, of Grand Rapids, a missionary in Costa Rica for five years, was killed by a shark Monday in a river at the border of Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Burton of Grand Rapids, were informed of his death by a relayed short wave radio message from authorities of the Latin American mission in San Jose.

Burton was driving from Grand Rapids to San Jose on the Pan American highway after completing a nine-month furlough shortly before Christmas. He was delayed at the border yesterday by customs authorities and decided to swim in a nearby river with his son, Charles, 14.

Upon entering the river, Burton was attacked by a shark that severed his right leg at the knee. He made his way to shore but died of loss of blood, the radio message said.

Burton had attended Calvin College in Grand Rapids and engaged in youth work before becoming a missionary. His wife, Helen; son, Charles; daughter, Susan, 2, and an infant son, Richard, 1, were with him on the return trip. He also is survived by a brother, Phillip, in Grand Rapids; a sister, Mrs. Claire Snell, a missionary in Mexico City, and another sister, Velma, a missionary in Costa Rica.

The message on Burton's death came through the radio station of Dr. Earl Weston of Birmingham. Dr. Weston heard the San Jose mission station calling Grand Rapids. He answered the message and connected the call with the missionary's brother in Grand Rapids. Dr. Weston made a tape recording of the short wave conversation.

Burton was buried yesterday in San Jose.

ANCIENT EGYPT — 3
The Carrying Girl

The Egyptians were great builders. They knew how to mold bricks, cut stones and carve fine statues. With the bricks and stones they built the famous Pyramids and the Sphinx.

On the walls of the temples and tombs they painted pictures of their gods, surrounded with picture writing and borders of simple designs.

Here is a young girl of ancient Egypt carrying an offering of loaves of bread and a lotus flower to the temple.

On the wall behind her is the figure of the god Osiris at the right. On the other end of the wall is one of the kings.

Cut a slit in the head and insert the tab on the bottom of the basket. Attach the right arm behind the shoulder with a fastener or bent pin and lift the arm so it balances the basket — as shown in the little sketch. Cut slits in the black spaces above and below the left hand and slip the lotus through the slits. Fold the left end of the base back at the dotted line and fold the right one forward.

Now the girl will stand as she walks to the temple.

Soviet Worker Envisions More Labor, Austerity, Sacrifice Under New Program

By JOHN H. MARTIN
INS Foreign Director

More austerity and sacrifice is the outlook for Soviet workers under the new five-year plan. The announced aim of the 1956-60 plan and those to follow is to attain and surpass the level of the Western Allies.

Again the accent is on heavy industry and an accelerated atomic energy program, reversing the relaxation of effort proposed under the brief regime of Premier Georgi Malenkov. The latter, who resigned nearly a year ago, had put the emphasis on more consumer goods for the masses.

Productivity of labor is supposed to rise under this sixth five-year plan by 50 to 100 per cent in various fields. But wages are to increase by only 30 per cent.

The goals in the various fields—pig iron production, steel, coal, oil and electric power — are higher than originally projected.

Some Western observers express doubt that the goals can be attained although they do not dismiss the possibility that Soviet industrial production will make substantial gains by 1960.

FACE DILEMMA

Not only does the Soviet program call for increased heavy industry but also for more consumer goods, housing and agricultural output.

If the Soviet leaders also want to continue the export of heavy goods to China and other countries for political purposes, it would seem that the Russian worker indefinitely will be kept from hiking his own standard of living.

To maintain the present high goals of economic expansion the Soviets must continue to pull people to the cities from rural areas but at the same time hike food production from the farms to feed them.

Unless food production can be increased greatly, the plan may fail.

Thus, there is skepticism that collective farmers can double their output, as called for in the plan. Or that the Soviet farmers can hike grain production to 180 million tons by 1960.

The Russians tried to make a rapid grain production rise in the previous five-year plan but it failed.

Voice of Experience Warns Arm Hangers

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — Ever notice motorists riding with their arms out of the car, hand on the top?

Don't do it, says Richard Phelps. He was riding beside his wife on the front seat of a car driven by his nephew. An approaching car forced them off the road. Phelps arm struck a highway sign and was broken in four places.

Spectators at Blazes Directed by Firemen

DECATUR, Mich. (AP)—Chief Max Graham of Decatur's volunteer fire department has come up with an affable solution to that bane of firefighters — the crowds of curious spectators at fires.

He's organized the older members of the volunteers into a traffic squad. They go along on calls to direct spectators to vantage points where they can watch the goings on without hampering the firemen.

MANY OF US IN THE SHOP HAVE USED O-JIB-WA BITTERS WITH GREAT RESULTS

It's surprising at work, how so many men talk about how O-JIB-WA BITTERS has helped their rheumatism and arthritis," says Mr. Franklin Mishler, 549 Buckingham Street, Flint.

"My trouble was diagnosed as sciatic rheumatism, and I was told there was no help for me. The terrible pains ran from my left hip to my ankle, and caused me to limp all of the time. I took aspirin to help take the pain away, but I still had to favor my left leg. I suffered this way for about five weeks and thought I might have to quit working. I often read in my newspaper about how O-JIB-WA BITTERS had helped so many people right here in Michigan, that I decided to give it a trial. In only three weeks, the pains started to leave, and after using two and a half pints altogether, the pains were entirely gone, and have never returned. I have told many fellows in the shop where I work about O-JIB-WA, and in turn, have heard many others recommending it to fellow workers, so there is no doubt in my mind, that anyone who suffers from rheumatism or arthritis, should try O-JIB WA BITTERS, without putting it off any longer."

Ike Reports Surplus in 1956-57 Budgets

Administration history was made when President Eisenhower's budget message reached Congress.

Not only was the new $65.865 billion budget in balance but revised figures on the current budget showed that the expected deficit had been wiped out. Moreover, both budgets showed combined surpluses that will total $666,000,000 if Congress accepts the President's recommendations.

The new budget calls for total expenditures of $1.6 billion more than was recommended in the previous budget of $64.265 billion. Of the 1957 total $35.5 billion goes for defense, $4.9 billion for veterans, $4.3 billion for foreign aid and $3.6 billion for farm relief.

In discussing the budget's relation to the stepped up foreign aid and defense programs, the message said:

"We seek . . . a just and durable peace . . . We must follow the course . . . of steadily strengthening the defense of the United State and its Allies . . . to deter possible aggressors or to retaliate immediately and effectively if attacked."

In further discussing the surplus, the President made it clear that the new budget assumes Congress will extend for a year the excise and corporation tax rates due to expire April 1. It also assumes that a much needed $350,000,000 postal rate increase will be approved.

Because the prospective surplus is too small to afford any real measure of tax relief, the President is on sound ground in asking Congress to use it for reduction of the national debt. Interest on the debt alone now totals $7 billion a year. He also is right in asking maintenance of the temporary debt ceiling at $281 billion for another year.

This is a common sense budget message. It carries out the President's promise to bring Federal income and expenditures into balance. In times of such unprecedented prosperity Mr. Eisenhower has done well to recommend such a sane fiscal program.

Salute-to-Ike Dinners to Open GOP Campaign

American voters are about to witness the start of what promises to be the longest Presidential campaign in the country's history.

This became known when the Republican leadership revealed plans for 54 Salute-to-Ike dinners January 20. In contrast to the old days when one dollar box suppers featured Republican party fund raising, tickets for these dinners range from $25 to $100.

No secret is made of the fact that the Grand Old Party expects to net several million dollars for campaign expenses. Neither is anyone denying that the fight to recapture control of Congress from the Democrats will be launched immediately afterwards.

Another poorly kept secret was the widespread hope that if President Eisenhower should address the dinners over a closed TV circuit, he would announce his candidacy.

The President will speak all right. But Press Secretary Haggerty now says he will make no announcement of his plans.

The idea of these dinners at key spots across the country is of special interest in the State because Cabinet members and Michigan Republicans are to be among the speakers.

At Los Angeles the honor guest will be Defense Secretary Wilson while Treasury Secretary Humphrey will speak at Madison Square Garden. Postmaster General Summerfield will be at Portland, Ore., and Sen. Potter at Chattanooga, Tenn.

If the enthusiasm with which Republicans are preparing for these dinners is any indication, come January 20 voters are going to hear the greatest outpouring of campign oratory since 1952.

Welcome Back

With resumption of publication of the Detroit News, Times and Free Press this area is back to normal newspaper publication.

When a large metropolitan area such as Detroit is without daily newspapers all parties concerned suffer. A suspension of publication such as was recently experienced affects all citizens.

Making deadlines and not missing editions is the pride of all publishers and workers alike. The journalistic entanglements in the recent dispute were of little interest outside the industry. What the public wanted was the afternoon or morning paper delivered to their porch. Without this something was missing.

Feeling a kindred spirit for our neighboring press, we are happy to see full scale publication back in the hands of the public.

When a store closes or a neighbor moves there is a certain feeling of regret. We at The Pontiac Press missed our neighbors.

Politics Mixing in Use of Our Natural Resources

In an address before the Economic Club of Detroit
Monday, on the question of whether economics or politics should control the development of natural resources,
Admiral Ben Moreel
showed that politics is getting the upper hand. In spite of the fact that federal meddling in harnessing water for power, irrigation or flood control usually results in a mess, the politicians right now have some staggering projects in the visionary stage. And the general public always pays the bill.

Admiral Moreel, who was chairman of the Second Hoover Commission's task force on water resources and power, charged that the Red Run drain in our own Oakland County was essentially to benefit a private real estate development. The federal government's cost of the project was just under a million dollars. It is a tributary of the Clinton River.

Disagreeing with some of our correspondents who claim that Jan. 10 is the middle of the winter is of Drayton Plains, who asserts that his itch caused by eating too many old fashioned buckwheat pancakes never goes into high until around Jan. 25.
Herbert Sloane

"When we get some snow, there's good skiing and tobogganing in the Brandon Hills," writes
Harold Muldowney
of Ortonville, who invites winter sports enthusiasts to come that way.

A steady reader of The Pontiac Press for 37 years,
Mrs. Lily Barribeau
of 2890 Scott Lake Road, feels that it is an excellent paper, one of its best features being its courteous carrier boys.

If you'll have due respect for private property and get permission, you'll find some good winter sports spots right in Bloomfield Hills, according to Roscoe Ingraham

Obvious Target

David Lawrence Says:

Why Should a General Be Subtly Coerced Against Sending Complaints to Congress?

WASHINGTON — General Matthew Ridgway is a fine officer and a man of courage, but there is something wrong with a system that only now — after his retirement — permits him to reveal to the American people his dissent from the decisions of the administration as to the size of the Army.

Wouldn't it have been better for the general to have told Congress his views; to insist they be made public, or resign? Why should his important points on military policy be published in January 1956 in a national magazine, when Congress and the people were entitled to these views two years ago?

Why does the general now disclose he was "shocked" two years ago when the President's message referred to the recommendations of the Joint Chiefs as "unanimous"? Why wasn't General Ridgway able to reveal his sense of shock then?

The answer is found in the blunder made by Congress in passing the so-called ""Unification" Law which put the joint chiefs of staff under the Secretary of Defense, removing them from direct responsibility to the President.

BEGAN WITH TRUMAN

Intimidation of military officers for expressing viewpoints began under the Truman administration. In 1949 Admiral Louis E. Denfeld dissented on various military questions and was later called to testify before Congressional committees. He was summarily removed by order of President Truman, notwithstanding that Congress is a coordinate branch of government and that the criminal code bars any punishment for giving testimony to Congress.

Likewise, when MacArthur carried his case to President Truman during the Korean War, ill feelings were stirred up and he was subsequently dismissed without even a hearing. Champions of "civil liberties" for dismissed employes of the government — including Secretary of State Acheson and Averell Harriman, who participated in the humiliating episode — were silent then.

The complaint was MacArthur had written a letter to Congress expressing his opinion on a matter of governmental policy. This was a trumped-up excuse for firing MacArthur — Truman didn't like candid opinions of dissent on military policy. It again punished a military man for daring to give his views to members of a coordinate branch of the government.

'BUSINESSMAN RULE'

General Ridgway now says he was asked to subordinate his views on the size of the army to considerations of economy, as this is a "Businessman's Administration." The connotation is unfortunate, for the implication is that businessmen aren't as interested in military security as are generals. In this case the secretary of defense, a businessman, relied on the military advice of Eisenhower, a military man who overruled General Ridgway.

If anybody is interested in the tendency in Washington to weigh military appropriations in the light of "calculated risks," on the one hand, and the necessity, on the other hand, of not spending beyond what the nation can afford, the published record of the Truman administration is revealing.

General Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, said on May 16, 1952:

"The Joint Chiefs of Staff are not unaware of the economic implications of the Defense Program. We realize a strong economy and a progressive and growing production capacity is the backbone of long range defense. But we ourselves do not have the training, nor do we have the economic or industrial advisers to decide the limits of our national bankroll or productive capacity."

What General Ridgway discloses now on the conflict between the military and the budget bureau isn't new, but the fact that he didn't feel he should issue a public protest two years ago, because of the risk of being removed sheds new light on the operations of the military man versus the civilian in the national government today.

Many False Health Ideas Traced to Old Almanacs

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

When I was a boy on Chapel Street in Canandaigua it was the custom to go down below the tracks, early in December, and make the rounds of the drugstores.

We collected almanacs.

There was usually an assortment of them available in piles on the counter.

Almanac collecting was a pleasant diversion because:

(1) It involved a venture into enemy territory.

(2) We got something for nothing.

(3) Scattered strategically through each brochure were numerous jokes.

The almanacs also gave readers considerable misinformation in the fields of astrology, meteorology, bacteriology, physiology, hygiene, and pathology.

FOR INSTANCE

For instance, the mobid notion that some kind of poisoning of the "system" is inevitable if the bowels do not follow the schedule assigned by some well-known charlatan — such as the oldtimer who simply opined that the liver was sluggish.

To insure against such a dreadful occurrence the poor geek must resort to one or another unnatural "aid" every day.

He hasn't an inkling of what ill effects he is bound to suffer from such interference with the natural function and process of digestion.

108 BONES?

The poor geek may have learned from the almanac that there are 108, or is it 206 bones in the body, but it is safe to say he has never learned that the function of the bowel is controlled by the same automatic mechanism that controls breathing and the beating of the heart.

Fortunately the almanacs told little or nothing about respiration and circulation, and so hardly one geek in a thousand takes anything to "regulate" breathing or circulation.

I feel great sympathy for the poor geek who has this digitalis obsession.

So I'll send a free copy of Little Lesson 2, CVD, about heart and artery troubles to any digitalis user who asks for it and provides a stamped self-addressed envelope. Regular price of the booklet is 35 cents.

Signed letters, not more than one page of 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped self-addressed envelope is sent to the Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Mother of Four Daughters Wants City Junior College

Letters will be condensed when necessary because of lack of space. Full name, address and telephone number of the writer must accompany letters but these will not be published if the writer so requests unless the letter is critical in its nature.

I was very impressed by a letter in this column concerning the need of a city college in Pontiac. I agree and I am sure there are many parents living in the Pontiac area who feel as I do. Even a junior college would be a great help.

I have four daughters whom I would like to give a college education. It would help very much, to cut the cost of their education if they could live at home while going to college.

If they could get two years college here, they would be older and therefore more able to cope with life away from home than they would be when they first get out of high school.

Will someone who knows how to go about starting a city college do so? It would help many children of the average wage earner get a better education and thereby help the city and nation.

'Voice' Gets Final Letter William Reid Will Send

This New Year shall be my last here; therefore, I will write no more to the Pontiac Press.

Through the years the Press has been sort of an exhaust valve to me. Therefore, may I thank all connected with the Pontiac Press since Jan. 20, 1937? It helped me to learn from others what little I know now about many things in general. I would not trade this knowledge, even though what I wanted most was to be a surgeon, not a factory worker.

In my boyhood I often went to McGill University Medical branch to try to learn something to help my father-by-adoption, who died of cancer. I thank all those who, through years of contributions, have aided those who suffer from cancer.

In closing, my good friends are both Jew and Gentile. Atheists cannot destroy our belief in one God.

Loose Political Talk Hits at Firms Vital to Defense

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
INS Economic Commentator

Demagoguery in the free world adds unnecessarily to the human cost of national defense.

This hidden cost is especially important in a presidential election year when loose talk intended for domestic consumption may handicap the race for survival against militant communism.

By way of illustration, there have been on the part of some critics of the Eisenhower Administration careless charges against a "giveaway policy," which showed a bias toward big business.

In the face of such emotionalism, there has been a tendency on the part of some businessmen and others in the administration to lean over backwards.

There has been an important, though little publicized, trend in certain areas of the electronics industry, in which defense buying bulks relatively large. Overenthusiasm directly after the end of World War II led to excess capacity in this new and dynamic field.

VICIOUS CYCLE

Accordingly, some of the larger and more efficient companies withdrew from items in which there was overproduction, and left the field to smaller, weaker and marginal units. As a result, there was in some instances a vicious cycle.

With heavy capital commitments in special machinery, weaker companies made bids for contracts below cost in the belief that they would lose less through being active than through being idle.

Superficially, some observers might assume that this merely represented the normal play of competition.

But, from the standpoint of the national interest, much more is involved.

LIMITED NEED

In peacetime the need for such defense items is limited, but the national interest requires keeping in being efficient productive facilities.

Thus, instead of fearing criticism from demagogues lest they be charged with subsidizing big business, the procurement officers of the armed services should be authorized to take a long-term statesmanlike view.

In order to assure survival of sources of supply, the contracting officers should insist on evidence that the bidders are getting back their costs, including the cost of capital.

This is the very reverse of the childish notion that the objective is to get low-cost bids.

Any business or government, which through short-term zeal attempts to buy below cost, is hurting its own interest in ultimately cutting off important resources.

Case Records of a Psychologist

If You Want to Change a Man's Idea, Make Sure His Ego Gets Protection

Girls, here's a puzzler. If you have been married for several years, you probably know the answer. But single women may not understand male psychology well enough to solve the riddle outlined below. Men are the egotistical half of the human race, so you must be careful in trying to enlighten them.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case Q-351: Mary H., aged 29, is a young married woman whose women's club sponsored me for a recent lecture.

"Dr. Crane, some of the local churches would like to have you offer a talk on marriage problems," she began.

"So we wondered if you could sandwich an address like that between the 6 o'clock banquet, and the big public meeting at 8:15 in our city auditorium.

"One of our churches could serve 1,000 people, so if you'll agree, we shall limit that banquet audience just to married folks."

STUBBORN MEN

When I am out on a lecture date, I am keyed up, anyway, so it makes little difference to me whether I speak once or twice on the same day.

Often I also address the college or high school youth at their convocation, in addition to my main evening address.

"Dr. Crane, some of the husbands objected to coming. They said they already knew all the angles, so it would be a waste of time."

Do you readers think that was their real reason for not showing up at a marriage clinic, or was it just a camouflaged "excuse?"

In sales psychology we stress the necessity of separating the prospects "excuses" from his logical "reasons."

From long experience, I know what was behind the objections of these husbands. They were afraid of being shown up!

Men are noted for being stubborn and egotistical. And if they started marriage with wrong sex notions, now proved to be at variance with late medical and psychological facts, then they have two choices.

WOMEN ARE OPENMINDED

Either they must admit they have deluded their brides with those antiquated ideas, which often hurts their ego.

Or they will belittle the new doctrines, as well as the teachers thereof, and thus try to maintain their former notions by sheer masculine bullheadedness.

Women are much more openminded than men. They may be more emotional and more impulsive at times, but women are usually eager for the latest ideas.

Even a beauty star thus doesn't close her mind to newer cosmetics or a later hairdo. And the best woman cook is constantly alert for newer recipes.

But the typical male takes the egotistical attitude, "I already know it all, so why should I go to school or to church or to a marriage clinic?"

This tendency to enshrine the ultra conservative "status quo" by sheer brute force and male fiat, was well understood by the late Elbert Hubbard who said:

"A conservative is a man who is too cowardly to fight and too fat to run."

MALE CAMOUFLAGE

"Dr. Crane, my husband says he never reads your newspaper column," many a wife has informed me.

"Yet whenever you describe a case that illustrates one of my faults, he always tears out your column and lays it beside my plate at the table.

"Well, Dr. Crane, if he never reads your column, how does he know when you are stepping on my toes?"

Men "bark" a great deal but a smart wife realizes that much of that "woof woof" is camouflage to protect his ego.

"I want to feel important," is the indelible tattoo in extra large letters on every man's chest. It's also on every female chest but perhaps in smaller letters.

So husbands are afraid of being shown up. They have tried to make their brides think they know it all. To banish their sexual ignorance, send for my booklet, "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 20c.

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 3c stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

Bridges Praises Dulles' Policies

Senator Gives Credit for Avoiding Wars; Adlai Fires New Criticism

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said today Secretary of State Dulles deserves praise for policies designed to "keep us out of war."

New criticism of Dulles came yesterday from Adlai E. Stevenson, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Stevenson said President Eisenhower should repudiate Dulles' views or fire him in the wake of a controversial article in Life magazine.

Bridges said in an interview he agrees with Dulles the United States must take a "calculated risk for peace" when its vital interests are challenged by a potential aggressor.

The senator, head of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, doesn't always support Dulles on international affairs, but he said: "Rather than being criticized for 'brink of war' policies, the secretary should be commended that his policy is to keep us out of war."

Dulles refrained at a news conference yesterday from giving full endorsement to the Life magazine article. He did not dispute the statement it attributed to him that the "ability to get to the verge (of war) without getitng into war is a necessary art" of diplomacy, although he said it was ambiguous.

He said the article gave him more credit than was his due, and that it oversimplified and placed special emphasis on some aspects of foreign policy.

In St. Paul, Minn., Stevenson said Dulles was represented as saying the nation thrice had been on the verge of war in Asia and avoided it. At about the same time, Stevenson said, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway was saying that during his tenure as former Army chief of staff defense decisions were based more on budget and political considerations than on military needs.

"I need hardly point out that for this nation to walk to the verge of war three times in three years while drastically reducing our military defenses for domestic political advantage can only be counted suicidal folly," Stevenson said.

"Sabre rattling, threats of atomic war and disregard of our allies will not reduce tensions, make friends or inspire confidence in the United States.

WHAT'S GOING ON OVER THERE? — All heads are turned in one direction in the Polar bear grotto of Copenhagen, Denmark, Zoo. A newcomer, an Alaskan Kodiak bear, has just arrived next door, a gift from the Chicago Zoo.

Someone Goofed but Ike Will Get Letter Anyway

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y. (AP) — Somebody goofed, and as a result, Eisenhower backers may be getting money intended for Stevenson backers.

Letters received by two residents here from the National Stevenson-for-President Committee, asking for contributions from 1952 supporters of Adlai Stevenson, contained return envelopes addressed to:

Salute to Eisenhower
40 East Jackson Blvd.
Chicago 4, Ill.

The Adirondack Enterprise telephoned the Stevenson headquarters and, after a bit of scurrying in Chicago, got the explanation today that the mix-up occurred in a mailing house. About 400 mishaps are believed to have been mailed.

Corrections are in the works, the newspaper was told.

OUT OF SEASON—It's not every girl in Milwaukee, Wis., who can study a live butterfly in the middle of winter. But four-year-old Judy Winnik can, because this one just emerged from a cocoon kept in the Winniks' kitchen since September.

There is a critical shortage of nurses in the U.S., and medical authorities estimate by 1960 the shortage may reach 50,000.

Bob Considine Says:

B. Franklin Was Master of Many Interests

NEW YORK (INS) — Benjamin Franklin, born 250 years ago, was one of the fathers of our revolution. His great words spelled out the cause of the dissention, the need for sacrifice, the gloden freedoms that lay ahead for brave men.

But his son Wiliam, governor of New Jersey, remained loyal to King George, was arrested, was disowned, sailed to England during the war and lived there until his death on a royal pension. He and his father were reconciled a year before the father's death.

Franklin observed the first flights of man, via balloon, and envisioned air warfare.

In a report to his friend Jan Ingenhousz, physician and chemist, Franklin wrote (Jan. 16, 1784), "Convincing Sovereigns of the Folly of Wars may perhaps be one Effect of it (the first flight): Since it will be impracticable for the most potent of them to guard his Dominions.

"Five thousand balloons capable of rising two Men each could not cost more than Five Ships on the Line: And where is the Prince who can afford so to cover his Country with Troops for its Defense, as that Ten thousand Men descending from the Clouds might not in many places do an infinite deal of mischief before a Force could be brought together to repel them?"

GOUT SUFFERER

He was a sufferer from gout, he complained to his young friend the Marquis de Lafayette. He writhed from gallstones.

He spent 25 years of his late life in England and France, representing the colonies and trying to fend off the revolution in the former, borrowing money and men and supplies in the latter.

Throughout the war he maintained his warm friendship for many British friends, though his extensive writings made him a one-man anti-British propaganda mill. John Adams was his constant critic at home during the war.

He surprised some of his old friends near the end of his life by suggesting that slavery be abolished.

He was one of our first hurricane experts and divined that those which hit the Northeastern states originated in the West Indies, wrote learnedly of the aurora Borealis, earthquakes, whirlwinds . . . and touchingly of death.

"Our friend and we are invited aboard on a party of pleasure — that is to last forever," he wrote to the grieving stepdaughter of his dead brother.

"His chair was first ready and he is gone before us. We could not all conveniently start together, and why should you and I be grieved at this, since we are soon to follow, and we know where to find him"

FAMOUS SAYING

He coined the expression "nothing in this world is certain but death and taxes" and countless other phrases we use today. His wisdom was endless in an incredible number of fields.

He could draw a vivid and intricate picture of the electrical age that did not arrive for so many generations later. And he could pull up a cracker barrel and crack, "Keep your eyes wide open before marriage, half shut afterwards."

He retired at 42, worked for his country until the day of his death, 43 years later, and his funeral drew the biggest crowd Philadelphia had ever seen until then. The French Assembly went in mourning for three days.

Franklin wrote his epitaph at 22:

The Body of
B. Franklin printer
(Like the cover of an old book
Its contents torn out
And stript of its lettering & gilding)
Lies here, food for worms.
But the work shall not be lost:
For it will (as he believed) appear Once more.

Michigan Dems Plan Statewide Programs

LANSING (AP) — The Democratic State Central Committee states it will hold a series of state-wide legislative program conferences.

Neil Staebler, Democratic state chairman, said between 18 and 21 of the conferences would be held on Feb. 4 and 11.

He said the purpose of the conferences is to discuss in detail Gov. Williams' legislative program. Conferences will be held in each senatorial district.

"We intend to start now giving our potential candidates for legislative seats in Republican areas and the party leadership throughout the state the facts in the state issues important in the 1956 campaign," Staebler said.

Locations of the conferences and the names of the speakers will be announced later, he said.

Route to Be Designated

LUDINGTON (AP) — Rep. Kenneth O. Trucks (R-Baldwin) has been notified by the State Highway Department that signs pointing the route to the Pere Marquette Memorial Shrine will be in place on area trunkline before the 1956 tourist rush. The shrine, built by volunteers of the Mason-County Allied Labor Council, is about five miles north of U.S. 31 on a peninsula between Lake Michigan and Pere Marquette Lake.

May Music Festival Featuring Ormandy

ANN ARBOR (AP) — The University of Michigan Musical Society today announced the program of its 1956 May Festival, featuring the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra.

Eugene Ormandy will conduct four concerts and Thor Johnson will conduct two. Johnson regularly conducts the Cincinnati Symphoy.

Inge Borkh, outstanding German soprano, will be soloist on the first evening performance May 3. The festival concludes May 6.

Among soloists are Hilde Gueden, lyric soprano of the Metropolitan Opera; Lois Marshall, Canadian soprano; Rudolph Petrak, New York City Opera tenor; Pianist Byron Janis; Violinist Zino Francescatti; baritone Lawrence Winters; contralto Martha Lipton and mezzo-soprano Jane Hobson.

American Indians are classified by scientists as a Mongol people, descended from ancient nomads of eastern Asia, the National Geographic Society says in its new book on Indians of the Americas.

YOUR CHILD may have PIN-WORMS
1 OUT OF 3 DOES!
Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.
To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the lower intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:
First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Hal Boyle Says:

Bosses Wouldn't Hire Marilyn (Oh Yeah?)

NEW YORK (AP)—Could Marilyn Monroe walk into the average American business office and land a job as a secretary?

No, siree, mister, she couldn't—not if you take the word of the nation's businessmen themselves, and I, for one, am not sure that I do.

PERSONAL CHARM

A survey of leading executives on what they look for in a secretary, made by Carl Ray, research vice president of the Underwood Corp., placed personal charm way down on the list of desirable attributes. As a matter of fact, it ranked seventh.

"Forty-six per cent of the bosses indicated they wanted initiative more than anything else in a secretary," Ray said.

Why don't they place a higher premium on glamour in hiring a lady typewriter jockey?

Ray conceded the executives were ruled partly by their fears—fear of what their wife would say, fear that a too-pretty secretary would distract the other office hired hands, but added:

"On a more positive basis, however, it's worth noting that secretaries today have to be executive assistants rather than just a plain old-fashioned secretary. What bosses really want is somebody who can mind the store while they're gone."

OPINION DIVIDED

The sampling showed opinion was divided on the question of whether single or married women make the best secretaries.

"Twenty-four per cent of the bosses state a preference for single girls, 20 per cent preferred married secretaries, and the rest expressed no choice," Ray said.

One executive wrote, "The married woman is not concerned with whimsy and dating. She does a better job." Another philosophized thusly: "It's really not important. If a girl is single today, she'll get married eventually anyway."

After initiative, the employers rated secretarial virtues in this order: The ability to type quickly and accurately, the ability to file and find information speedily, a winning telephone manner, punctuality and personal neatness.

SOME REASON

Many older secretaries have complained it is difficult for them to land a new job after 40, and almost impossible after 50. The poll showed considerable justification for their complaint.

* * *

None of the businessmen came out for bobby-soxers as secretaries. But 48 per cent said they preferred to hire a secretary "somewhere between 20 and 40 years old." Another 27 per cent stipulated she had to be between the ages of 30 and 40.

The magic age for a secretary today therefore would seem to be 30.

"Right now I consider the ideal age to be between 25 and 35," wrote a New York sales executive. "But if I were 30 I might say the ideal age was 60, or"—he added as an afterthought—"maybe 20!"

PET PEEVES

The chief sins of secretaries, the poll showed, are these: Some take too many coffee breaks, place too many personal phone calls at the office, take part in office gossip, or simply indulge in too much plain old feminine yakkety yak.

But the biggest trouble with secretaries was voiced by an unhappy Los Angeles businessman, who said:

"They quit."

None of the executives, of course, took a lie detector test or a truth serum. Therefore I rather doubt that if Marilyn Monroe showed up in any of their offices looking for a job she would be turned away empty-handed.

The tired businessman isn't that tired.

Economist Reports Huge Farm Closings

LOS ANGELES (INS) — An economics expert reported today that more than one million farmers have migrated away from agriculture in the past nine years.

William F. Kirk, economics department manager of General Petroleum Corporation, described the farm population problem before 500 delegates to the National Council of Farm Cooperatives convention in Los Angeles.

He said the small farmer is disappearing and the big emphasis in the last 15 years had been on mechanization.

Kirk added:

"Since 1920, the number of United States farms has dropped from 6,500,000 to 5,200,000, while the average size of each farm has risen from 140 to 215 acres."

Dr. Hatcher was accompanied by Dr. Charles S. Kennedy, Michigan University regent, and Administrative Assistant Theodore H. Diews.

State Names Firms to Remodel Hospital

LANSING (AP) — The State Administrative Board has authorized contracts for the remodeling of the Ft. Custer Station Hospital at Battle Creek, which the state is leasing for mentally retarded cases.

The general construction contract went to the G. O. Lewis Co. of Battle Creek for a fee of $8,800 and an estimated cost of $167,200.

The plumbing and heating contract was awarded to C. L. Mahoney of Kalamazoo for a fee of $4,900 and an estimated cost of $84,100.

Air Force's New 'Brain' Can Counterbalance H-Bomb Attack

LEXINGTON, Mass. (INS)—The Air Force has unveiled a mechanical "brain" covering 10,000 square feet and said the giant machine is an "effective counter-balance" to the H-bomb threat.

So swift are the machine's radar-generated electronic calculations, the Air Force said, that jet planes and guided missiles can be launched to shoot down hostile bombers in less than a minute after they are detected.

An Air Force release said this "revolutionizes air defense methods and equipment" and "provides an effective 'counter-balance' to the growing destructive might arrayed against us."

Newsmen were conducted through the Massachusetts Institute of Technology super-secret Lincoln Laboratory, where the "Brain," was created, to witness hundreds of tiny flashing lights and resulting diagrams on TV-like screens as the machine was operated.

GIVE MEDALS TOO

The new mechanical computer determines where hostile bombers are and where they will be, and what weapons from which bases should be used to destroy them. It also guides the jet fighters or missiles to the target.

One reporter drew a laugh by asking whether, since "everything else has been taken care of," the machine would "automatically award air medals after the battle."

Contracts already let call for building 32 centers containing two such machines each—an operating "Brain" and a spare—to be completed by mid-1959, and to control the entire nation's air defense.

ISSUED STOP ORDER

A Congressional controversy is expected because the contracts call for payments of 240 million dollars a year for ten years, a total of two billion, four hundred million dollars, for telephone lines connecting the centers and their numerous sub-stations.

Comptroller General Joseph Campbell issued a "stop" order last summer contending that the plan lacked proper Congressional authorization. He rescinded the order on condition that need for the system would be thoroughly explained to Congress in 1956.

Although geared to the use of radar and closely linked with far-flung warning systems, Sage itself is primarily a system for launching defensive planes and assuring their success.

The Air Force said: "Sage starts with a radar ring—on land, on navy picket ships at sea, on Texas towers and on airborne early warning planes. These radars are linked by telephone lines or ultra-high frequency radio directly to a highs-eed digital computer."

"LANDLUBBER" WITH "SEA LEGS"—It looks like an ordinary plane flying in the air, top photo, but what a surprise when it comes in for a landing bottom photo! For the plane is the first to be equipped with retractable water skis which are equipped with wheels for land operation also. Designed by All American Engineering Co., the retractable "hydro-lift" gear weighs less than 100 pounds and slows the plane down by only two knots, the manufacturer claims.

The Air Force continued: "The computer automatically calculates the most effective application of such weapons as interceptors, antiaircraft Nike and other missiles. Through radio data links, all-weather interceptors and long-range missiles are guided to targets.

"The functions of detecting aircraft, identifying them, plotting and predicting their course are all done electrically and automatically. Once weapons are committed, the system directs them to their targets with a minimum of human intervention.

The release said "the job of the intercept director is largely one of monitoring," since "the mid-course flight of the interceptors is under control of "computer-generated directions transmitted by radio to the lead planes automatic pilot."

However, the human pilot and his airborne radar equipment will take over from the machine, the Air Force said, when the fighters "reach the final phase of an action."

The newsmen were shown a motion picture in which fighters destroyed two target planes with barrages of missiles after being guided to the scene electronically.

DOG'S LIFE?—Lassie, the famous dog star of movies, is now faring better in TV. He drew only $263,000 in seven years of movie stardom. His home-screen earnings last year, plus personal appearances, earned $100,000.

Features of the mechanical computer include a "memory" device, in which thousands of facts can be stored. The machine, technically known as the "SFQ-T" can not only picture a current air situation on its TV-like scopes, but can reproduce a past aerial action. Any number of scopes, nearby or connected by wires from a distance can be plugged in.

There is also a "trouble predictor," a sensitive device which the Lincoln Laboratory scientists said could forecast impending trouble such as failing electronic tubes. The predictor, they said is more than 90 per cent efficient.

Pontiac City Affairs

Crescent Drive Vacation Subject of Open Hearing

Beside considering a record city budget last night, the City Commission held a public hearing on the vacating of a portion of Crescent Drive in assessor's plat 13.

The city manager told the Commission that no-parking signs would be installed on Allison street prohibiting parking between the hours of 2 a.m. to 6 a.m. to permit the city to clean the streets.

This action was based upon a petition directed to the City Commission on the part of 16 out of 22 homes in the area that desired the restriction.

In other action, the Commission approved a $50 lease increase for the Municipal Court from the Waldron Properties, Inc., and accepted a deed for part of Lot 606 of Walton Boulevard Park subdivision to permit the widening of West Princeton avenue.

Public hearings were set for Feb. 8 on ordinances to rezone to Residential 3, Lots 14 to 26, both inclusive, Pithers Addition and Lots 35 to 37 of assessor's plat 37, and Lots 145, 146, and 147 of the Dixie Highway subdivision to Manufacturing 3.

Storm drains in the Lakeside subdivision and assessor's plat 101 for Terry avenue from Terry Lake to Dresden avenue; Parkview avenue from Terry Lake to Parkdale; Parkdale from Woodland drive to alley southwest of Emmett road; Orlando avenue from Woodland drive to approximately 200 feet west of Hollywood; Hollywood avenue from Parkdale avenue north to alley.

And What a Badge!

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Fire Chief Joe Lobue was the heaviest loser yesterday in a fire that swept through a burlap bag company for a third time in two months. Owners said their loss was not great because most of the material destroyed was salvage from the two previous fires. But Lobue lost his $3,000 diamond-studded badge while fighting the blaze. The badge was a gift from friends after he became chief in 1953.

Dog Sees Again After He Gets Plastic Lenses

DES MOINES (AP) — A cocker spaniel which six months ago was blind as a result of cataracts can now see again following eye surgery.

The operation on "Butch," dog of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Mockett of West Des Moines, was performed by Dr. Hugh Simpson of the Iowa State College veterinary staff.

Dr. Simpson removed the cataracts and inserted plastic lenses into the dog's eyes. He said he began experiments with plastic lenses for dog's eyes in December, 1954 and since has performed 85 such operations. Most of these have been successful, he said.

The surgery and plastic lenses have thus far not restored wholly normal vision, Dr. Simpson said, but in one case vision "approaching normal" was achieved.

UM Prof Sits and Counts Fish at Bottom of Ocean

ANN ARBOR (AP) — How many fish are there in the ocean? A University of Michigan professor sits on the ocean floor and counts them to find out.

Assistant Prof. John E. Bardach explained that "short of draining the water," this was only one accurate way to estimate how many were there.

It turns out that the Bermuda government has asked him to find out how many fish there are in the waters around their island to help their fishing industry.

So Bardach goes down, sits on the ocean floor with plastic slate and pencil and counts. He also has the aid of an aqua-lung, seven assistants equipped with flippers and breathing aids and, of course, the fish.

Working conditions were pretty nice in the warm tropical waters which are clearer than the waters of an inland lake, for instance. Visibility was good for 40 or 50 feet and no diving suit is necessary.

Bardach recalled few instances where the fish didn't cooperate.

"We had only the sharks and barricuda to contend with," he said, "And they make no trouble."

Bardach explained that he and his assistants would find a typical coral reef, comb the seaweed and note what kind of fish they saw. They also tagged fish and later recaptured them to find out some of their habits.

Despite the barricuda and the sharks, Bardach and his assistants counted 780 fish on the one reef. But he doesn't suggest that the average man go down to prove him wrong.

"You have to be an experienced diver to do it," he explained. "You can't be concerned with keeping alive; you have to be concerned with counting fish."

Include Saginaw River in U.S. Water Projects

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army engineers have tentatively allocated planning funds to 60 navigation, flood control and reservoir projects for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

President Eisenhower, in his budget message, recommended a total $5,360,000 for planning projects.

The budget contained no breakdown but the engineers have furnished Congress tentative allocations including a $50,000 navigation project for the Saginaw River in Michigan.

An average U. S. dentist has a net income of about $11,000 per year.

Potter Seeking Car Dealer Bill

Senator Asks Inquiry on Territory Protection to Find Inequities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Potter (R-Mich) has urged a Congressional investigation of problems that have resulted from retail automobile sales by others than franchised new car dealers.

Contracts with auto manufacturers formerly gave dealers exclusive distribution rights in their territories. The Justice Department, however, held a few years ago that such contract provisions were in violation of anti-trust laws. They subsequently were dropped from contracts.

"The business of many, many automobile dealers have been unjustly jeopardized by loss of their territorial security according to information presented to my office," Potter said.

A Senate commerce subcommittee, he said, "should thoroughly investigate this entire field of the automotive business.

"If it is found that inequities exist that can be corrected by proper legislation, I shall take immediate action to introduce such a bill."

Potter also said he will reintroduce a bill he has previously offered to prevent the "bootlegging" of new cars.

Potter is a member of a commerce subcommittee which begins a hearing this week on demands of the National Automobile Dealers Assn. for legislation to protect dealers.

Oilman Predicts Slow A-Growth

Wilson Says No Threat Exists for Refineries in Immediate Future

CHICAGO (AP) — Robert E. Wilson, chairman of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) said yesterday he does not regard atomic energy as a threat to the oil business "in the foreseeable future."

He predicted in a prepared address that coal will continue to be the principal fuel for central power stations for the next 25 years.

He said while he has great admiration for the research done in atomic energy, "It is fair to say that this research has uncovered almost as many new problems, unsuspected in the early days of rosy optimism, as it has fully solved of the problems then recognized.

He told an American Bankers Assn. conference of bank credit executives that few, if any, unsubsidized atomic energy plants will be built in the next 10 years.

Although such plants will appear in 10 to 25 years, he went on, no existing plant of reasonable efficiency will be shut down or converted to atomic fuel.

The impact of atomic energy on the oil industry, he conditioned, "will be negligible over the next 20 to 25 years."

Wilson perdicted that because of high costs and potential hazards, the use of atomic energy for propelling commercial ships will develop more slowly than in large central power plants.

1918 Divorce Not Legal, Man Re-marries Wife

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An Oklahoma City man who thought he was divorced 37 years ago has asked District Judge Fred Daugherty to make it official.

Hicks Irvin, railway pullman porter, discovered that no court minutes or final decree was filed in the 1918 divorce case. He said the judge granted him a divorce, though, and both he and his wife remarried.

Detroit Police to Use Bullet-Proof Suits

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Police Department has ordered body arament to protect policemen in battles with gunmen.

Police officials approved two types of armored equipment developed at the Detroit arsenal. Army officers said the equipment also could be used by soldiers under battle conditions.

Police officials decided upon use of body armament after two policemen were wounded in flushing out a gunman at a Detroit home last August.

One model developed at the arsenal permits a policeman, riding a three-wheeled vehicle, to crouch behind a curved shield of quarter-inch armor plate.

The other model is bell-shaped armor that lowers over the policeman's head and extends below the hips. The policeman has room to raise his arms and fire through a porthole in the mid-section. Hinged armor plate protects the thighs and shins.

Josephine Lawyer to Develop Food Marketing Program in County Area

The Agricultural Committee of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors recently approved the transfer of Mrs. Josephine Lawyer from the Detroit office to the Oakland county office of the Cooperative Extension Service. She returns to the Oakland County Extension staff after serving one and one-half years as Consumer Marketing Information Agent in Detroit.

Mrs. Lawyer will develop a food marketing program in this area similar to ones established in eight other Michigan cities.

Current food information will be gathered from producers, processors, wholesalers, and retailers. This information will be analyzed and presented to food shoppers through use of news, radio, exhibits, meetings, and demonstrations. Helping consumers spend their food dollars more wisely can be effective when several ways are used to distribute timely food marketing information.

Since the average family spends about 25 per cent of its income on food, the buying, care, and use of food is important in every household. Buying food when supplies are abundant, when quality is good, and when price is at a low level can bring greater satisfaction and savings for the family.

MRS. LAWYER

AIDS MANY

According to Mrs. Lawyer the marketing information program for consumers in this area will be planned:

1. To help consumers get greater satisfaction from their purchase of agricultural products.
2. To encourage people to adopt improved buying practices.
3. To help consumers develop a better understanding of the marketing system, functions, and processes.
4. To assist in the more effective use of agricultural products.
5. To aid in the orderly marketing of agricultural commodities.

The consumer marketing information program for consumers is made possible through the cooperative efforts of the United States Department of Agriculture, Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, and the Oakland County Board of Supervisors.

Mrs. Lawyer, a former Home Demonstration agent for the county, will begin her program by contacting persons and groups who can aid her in gathering the food marketing information. Some reached will be food producers, processors, wholesalers and food retailers.

She will then relay her findings to the public via the newspapers, radio, through exhibits and the conducting of some meetings at the request of consumers.

Excellent Year Reflected in Big Gains in Deposits

Meany Rejects Ike's School Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—AFL - CIO President George Meany today rejected President Eisenhower's school aid plan. He proposed that Congress vote four times the amount the administration has asked.

Meany called on Congress to provide at least a billion dollars a year for the next five years.

Meany said education aid should be "the first order of business" in this session of Congress. He said Eisenhower's plan is inadequate.

"The administration's program, while making a significant concession to the need for federal aid, adds up to another manifestation of the 'too little, too late' policy," Meany said.

"Labor believes that stinting the schools is the height of false economy. In order to build the necessary schools and provide Eisenhower wants 250 million dollars a year for five years, with the money to be used to help states and local school districts build needed facilities.

The chief of the newly combined AFL-CIO outlined organized labor's legislative aims in an article in the American Federationist, his organization's monthly magazine. higher pay standards for teachers so as to attract more qualified people to this profession, the federal government should commit itself to an investment of at least a billion dollars a year for the next five years."

Meany said that "since the states and communities cannot cope with this immense problem on their own, the federal government must assume its fair share of the burden."

In the foreign policy field, Meany called on Democrats and Republicans to quit bickering and to get together on "a truly effective" program.

"There will be a strong disposition, for political reasons, to criticize administration failures in the cold war," he said. "The administration has let itself in for such criticism . . .

"Yet criticism will get us nowhere. The real need is for bipartisan agreement on a sound and firm policy which can be consistently applied in the future in order to preserve peace and safeguard the free world."

The AFL - CIO president said labor is willing to forego a tax cut if it would "endanger national security." But he said if taxes are to be reduced it should be done to help low-income families.

Meany called for aid to farmers, Taft-Hartley Act revision and a number of improvements in social security, housing, minimum wage and other fields.

Widow to Take Second Lie Test

Flint Woman Held as Witness in Shooting of Husband Monday

FLINT (AP)—Mrs. Betty Kehl, 32, held as a material witness in the fatal shooting of her salesman-husband, Robert, 34, agreed to take another lie detector test today.

A test yesterday was described as inconclusive because the attractive 5-foot-5 brunette was still in a state of shock following the shooting Monday night.

Police said they had questioned and released a 6-foot-2 young construction worker who was quoted as saying he had dated Mrs. Kehl while her husband, a tobacco salesman, was out of town. His name was withheld.

Detective Lt. John Burton said a lie detector test indicated the man had no knowledge of the shooting. He added the construction worker's alibi that he was in his room at a boarding house Monday night was supported by his landlady.

Lt. Burton said Mrs. Kehl, questioned for seven hours yesterday and two hours last night, stuck to her original story that she and her husband had been abducted from near their home in Flint by a strange man who forced her to drive them to a dumping ground on the outskirts of Flint where Kehl was shot.

Police said Kehl was shot three times but they quoted Mrs. Kehl as saying she heard only one shot as she sat in the car and covered her face with her hands.

Mrs. Kehl said the stranger then ordered her to drive him back into Flint where he jumped from the car at an intersection near a railroad station and fled into the darkness.

Tampering With Mail Under Investigation

Oakland County Sheriff's detectives are investigating two West Bloomfield Township cases of tampering with mail boxes. The two were reported just a week apart.

Mrs. Clyde Green, of Cooley Lake Road, reported yesterday that she had seen mail in her rural route box at 1 p.m., but when she returned to pick it up at 4 p.m. it had disappeared. She said she found it scattered around the neighborhood.

A Pleasant Change

DALLAS (AP)—Hotelman Conrad N. Hilton yesterday got a timely new address for the plush 16-million-dollar 1,001-room Statler Hilton which is being opened here this week. The entrance of the 20-story structure, which covers almost an entire block, is at 1914 Commerce but Mayor R. L. Thornton officially designated the hotel's address at 1956 Commerce to coincide with the year of the opening.

Anti-Integration Bills Approved

Lawmakers in Georgia, Alabama OK Measures for Separate Schools

ATLANTA (AP)—The Georgia and Alabama Senates passed bills yesterday aimed at preserving racial segregation in schools.

The bills were different in design, but their intent was identical: to keep white and Negro pupils out of the same classroom.

In Georgia, the Senate unanimously approved a bill giving the governor authority to close any schools forced to integrate and to make educational grants to students affected.

OK PACKAGE BILLS

It also gave unanimous approval to three other of Gov. Marvin Griffin's segregation bills. These would allow the state attorney general to enjoin officials or private citizens from any action toward integration, would allow school buildings to be leased to a private operator, and would provide for the subleasing of property of the state school building authority.

The vote on each was 48-0.

The four bills were the last of an eight-bill "package" called for by Griffin to maintain segregation in Georgia schools. The first four were approved unanimously by the Senate Monday.

The bills now face action in the House.

In Alabama, both the Senate and the House took steps to shoulder aside the U.S. Supreme Court decision banning school segregation.

The antisegregation measure approved by the Senate has been called the "Freedom of Choice" bill. It would allow parents to send their children to either all-white, all - Negro or racially integrated schools. It calls for a constitutional amendment providing that parents would not be required to send their children to integrated schools under protest.

If it clears the House, the amendment will be voted on in an election scheduled for Aug. 28.

Scouts to Serve Pancake Supper at Wever School

Boy Scouts of Troop 29 are preparing a community pancake supper, to be held from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Monday in Wever School gymnasium.

The boys have arranged for "Aunt Jemima" to be there in person to greet the guests and serve the pancakes. Their sponsors, the fathers of Hawthorne School PTA will help while some of the mothers will work in the kitchen.

Posters, made by the Scouts, have been placed in local stores to advertise the project.

Most materials have been donated, Scoutmaster Roger Lawrence said. Donations of $1 for adults and 50 cents for youngsters under 12 will be used to finance troop activties.

Truck Tax, License Bill Introduced in House

LANSING —A bill to increase truck taxes and pave the way for a cut in passenger car license fees was filed for introduction in the House today.

The proposed levy, similar to Ohio's controversial "ton-mile tax," is based on the weight of the trucks and the number of miles they travel.

Marshall said the proposed tax would produce an estimated 10 to 12 million dollars a year, the money to be used for highway construction.

Applying only to trucks of 18,000 pounds or more gross weight, it would replace the state's current millage tax, which yields about $1,250,000 a year.

2 Suspects in Robbery Bound Over to Court

Two men, accused of robbing a housewife of $3 Thursday, after threatening her with a toy gun, yesterday waived examination on charges of armed robbery and were bound over to Circuit Court Jan. 23.

Victor L. Hood, 21, of 23 Midland Dr., and William M. Dennison, 23, of 92 Judson St., both were remanded to jail after failing to post $5,000 bonds set by Municipal Judge Maurice E. Finnegan.

To Block Layoff Pay Plan for Small Businesses

DETROIT (AP) — A campaign to block extension of auto industry-type layoff pay plans to small manufacturers and businesses in the state will be led by Dan Gerber of Fremont.

At a meeting here yesterday, Gerber was named chairman of the Michigan Information Committee. Gerber is chairman and president of the Gerber Products Co. and also is chairman of the Michigan Economic Development Commission.

The committee, formed a month ago, contends the plans would shackle free enterprise. It has sent letters to more than 2,200 small firms and businesses in the state asking them to join the drive and to contribute 50 cents for each employe on their payrolls.

Quiz 11 Juveniles About Robberies

Police Say Youths Admit 8 Area Breakins, Thefts of 10 Automobiles

Oakland County Sheriff's deputies still are questioning 11 Lake Orion juveniles who have admitted 10 car thefts and eight breakins which netted an estimated $400.

No charges have yet been filed, and the juveniles still are in their parents' custody, Sheriff's detective Harry Maur said today.

Maur said the roundup started when one of the boys was arrested in connection with a stolen car. Under questioning, the youth reportedly named an associate, who in turn named others.

In addition to the confessed breakins and car thefts, some of which date back to 1954, Maur said the youths have admitted malicious destruction of property to several schools and factories.

"The damage they confessed would total much more than the value of their breakin loot," Maur said today. "One factory alone had 75 window panes smashed."

He said the youths will be questioned further about other area breakins and thefts.

One Guest Asks to See Video Show

Others Obviously Are Bored During TV Program

By EMILY POST

Today's first letter comes from a hostess: "The other evening I invited several couples in to dinner. After dinner was over we all went into the living room where we sat around chatting.

"Out of a clear sky one of the guests asked me if he could turn on the television set so that he could watch a certain favorite program of his. Not wishing to be rude I said he could turn it on and, as a result, all the other guests were forced to watch the program in complete silence, and I could sense their resentment at having to do so.

"What can a hostess do when she is put on the 'spot' so to speak by one of her guests? Could I have refused him permission to turn on the TV set without hurting his feelings?"

Answer: I think you could have asked how many others wanted to watch the program, and if the majority was willing to watch it, then it would be all right to turn it on. But if he were the only one, then you could have said, "I'm sorry but the majority is against you."

If you had another room to which the other guests could have gone in the meantime, you could have asked those not interested in the program to go into the other room until the program was over.

"Dear Mrs. Post: My sister-in-law has a name which I have always liked, and if my expected child is a girl I would like to give her this same name. Their last names would also be the same. Would my daughter be the second, or just how do we differentiate between them?"

Answer: Your daughter would be second.

"Dear Mrs. Post: We have recently announced our daughter's engagement. Immediately following the announcement the family of my daughter's fiance paid us the conventional visit. I would like to know if my husband and I are supposed to return this visit."

Answer: Definitely yes—and promptly, and also if possible invite them to a meal.

Mrs. Ladd Gives Talk on Europe

City Woman's Club Conducts Meeting at YWCA

Mrs. James R. Ladd reviewed the European tour which she and Dr. Ladd took, showing slides and giving an account of many historical places.

She stated that the general aspect of most European countries is peace and quiet, but that England is becoming like the United States in its hustle and hurry.

She mentioned that all hotels have beautiful formal gardens and are situated in such a way that the windows overlook picturesque scenery of the surrounding country.

In speaking of Switzerland, she stated that every town has its church, every church has a clock in its tower and every clock has correct time.

There is also a store for meat, one for bread and one for groceries, so one does not find everything in one store as is possible in the United States.

The Ladds found that by knowing a little French, tourists could get along very well in most countries they visited.

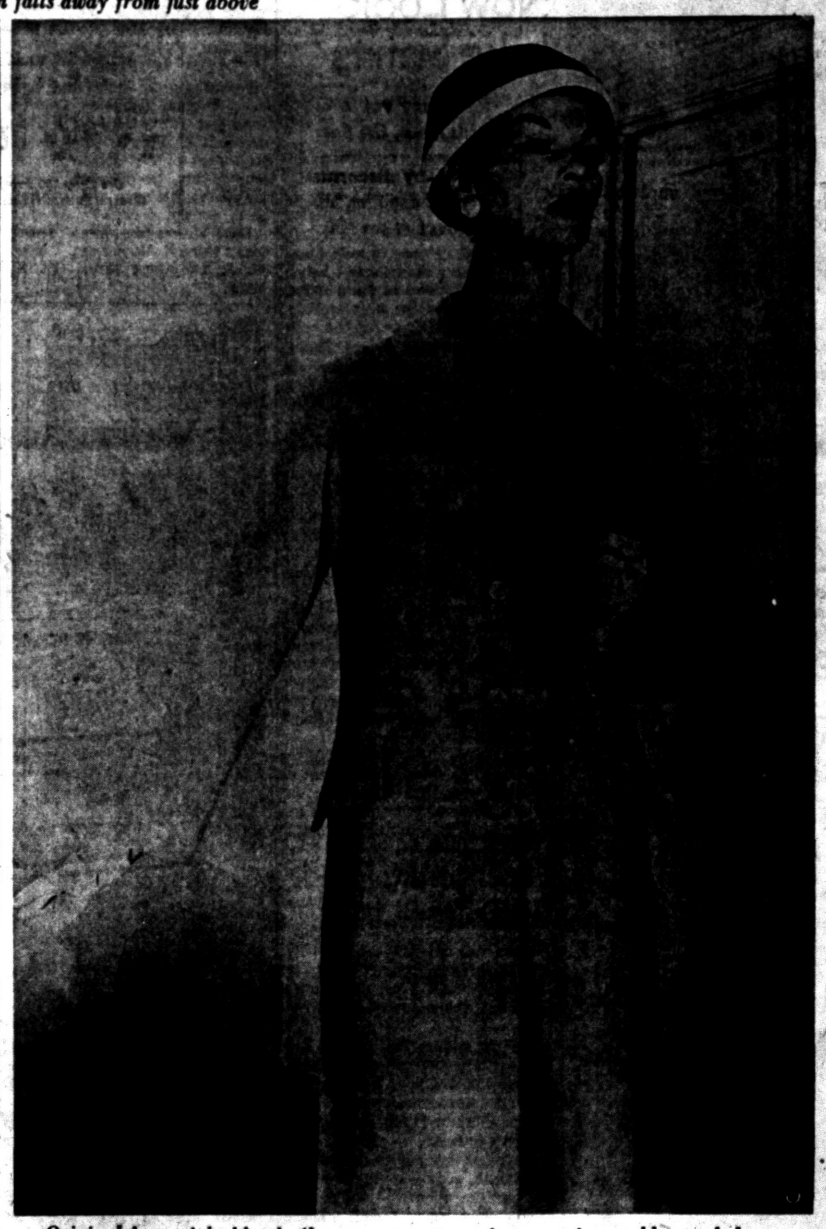
Mrs. Archie Allen acted as chairman of the day assisted by Mrs. A. E. Ball, Mrs. George Crisman and Mrs. Ray Haertter.

Hostesses were Mrs. Harry D. Chapman, Mrs. Wilbert Colwell, Mrs. Alfred S. Danton, Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. Arthur Compton and Mrs. Howard Hall.



Originala's straight blonde fleece coat has triple back vents on each side and in the center. Flaps mark low placed pockets, and a muted rose blooms below one shoulder. The hat is by John Frederics.

Hospital Problems Cited

Mrs. B. B. Roush spoke on the problems of Pontiac General Hospital when she addressed members of AAUW gathering at the home of Mrs. Maxwell Shadley on Ottawa drive.

The only woman member of the board of trustees of the hospital, Mrs. Roush gave a brief history of the growth of hospitals, kinds of hospitals and the importance of voluntary hospitals.

She related numerous examples of problems which come up in the varied departments and stated that the services of hospitals have increased tremendously, with the cost of voluntary hospitals increasing accordingly.

This is due to expensive equipment and the need for skilled and experienced personnel, the speaker said.

In closing, Mrs. Roush said that the increased number of patients has crowded the hospital beyond capacity, and this, she said, necessitates the building of the new addition.

Social committee for the evening included Clara Gaylord, Rosamond Haeberle, Gertrude Overton and Martha Horton.

Mrs. George Killen Hostess to Group

Mrs. George Killen of Poplar street was hostess to the Albright Daughters Sunday School Class of the Baldwin Avenue Evangelical United Brethren Church Tuesday afternoon.

McConnell PTA Listens to Talk by Gerald White

"Trends of Elementary Education" was the topic chosen by Gerald White, elementary coordinator for Pontiac schools, when he addressed McConnell PTA recently.

Mr. White emphasized that Pontiac schools do teach phonics, explaining that a child is not receptive to phonics until he reaches the age of 6½ years. Introduced in the first grade, phonics are taught throughout the grades.

Reading for comprehension is stressed, the speaker pointed out. "What a child is like" is an important factor in effective learning, which points up the importance of mental health in a classroom.

Farm Exchange Delegate Addresses Garden Club

Mrs. Howard Barker was hostess to the members of the Pontiac Branch of Women's National Farm and Garden Association for the January meeting at her home in Bloomfield Hills.

Maxine Harris, International Farm Youth Exchange delegate to Sweden, told of her experiences during her four-month stay in that country, accompanying her talk with colored slides.

As IFYE representatives, young people live with farm families of other lands and share their work, home and community activities, with no pay. They consider the experience to be "opportunity with a job."

During her summer in Sweden, Miss Harris participated in such activities as pitching hay, gathering potatoes, making Swedish pastry, canning, dressmaking and child care. She worked industriously in her farm home gaining a wealth of experience.

The speaker was graduated from Michigan State University in 1955, and has been an active 4-H Club member for 10 years. She is now acting assistant leader of the State 4-H Club in the Extension Service.

123 'AMBASSADORS'

As "grass roots ambassadors" there were a total of 123 IFYE delegates from 37 states visiting in 45 countries during the year.

The cooperating countries, which represent Europe, the Near and Middle East, Latin America, Africa and the Pacific, sent 115 delegates to this country to live with farm families all over the United States during 1955.

The two-way exchange, sponsored by the National 4-H Club Foundation and the Extension Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, is based on the idea that understanding is the foundation of peace.

It is financed by contributions of the 4-H Club members, civic clubs, farm organizations, churches, business concerns and foundations. Since its start in 1948, 510 delegates from the United States and 497 foreign youths have participated.

Adding to the international theme of the meeting was the collection of Pennies for Friendship, an annual donation which is made by Farm and Garden Association branches in all states to be used for the benefit of children all over the world.

ARTS AND CRAFTS

Several members arranged arts and crafts displays of unusual articles brought home by them from their travels in various countries.

Mrs. Harry Pearce's exhibit featured objects from Hawaii; Mrs. C. K. Patterson's from France; Mrs. Robert Armstrong's and Mrs. Robert Lyon's, from Germany; Mrs. Edward Karkau's, from Caribbean countries; Mrs. M. F. Macaulay's, India; Mrs. O. H. Lundbeck's, Scandinavian countries, and Mrs. C. T. Ekelund's, Portugal.

A most appropriate centerpiece of miniature national banners surrounded by dolls in the costumes of many countries was arranged by Mrs. William Jacob, social chairman.

Assisting at the tea services were Mrs. C. G. Burke, Mrs. Dexter Craig, Mrs. Loren Sheffield and Mrs. C. G. Darling.

A contemporary classic from any viewpoint is a black and white or navy and white striped shirtwaist dress with three-quarter sleeves and open V neckline, topped with a white collar. The cotton spiked with silk has a frosted-sheer appearance.

A reception was held in the evening at the Amvets Hall for 300 guests. When Mrs. Lozano received her guests she was wearing a red velvet gown and a corsage of carnations.

Following a honeymoon trip in northern Michigan the newlyweds will make their home on Auburn avenue.

Sweaters Now Look Like Shirts

PARIS (INS) — The latest Paris sweaters have been styled to look like shirts and blazers.

Korrigan-Lesur, presenting his spring line of French sweater and cardigan fashions, has designed "shirt-sweaters" with classic collars and cuffs.

Tailored cardigans are cut in blazer style. Some have suit collars and double-breasted buttons. In Navy blue with gilded buttons, a tailored cardigan will be a basic wardrobe item for elegant Parisiennes.

Even the most classic Korrigan-Lesur sweaters show a new style. They are cut straight and, instead of being nipped in at the waist, they are caught in a rib-knit band around the hips.

They also have dropped shoulder seams and look casually elegant on narrow-hipped women.

For sports wear, Korrigan-Lesur designed pastel-colored sweaters of wool or orlon. They are cut in one with a hood which frames the face with a rib-knitted band.

Sew a Fairy-Tale Wedding Gown

Every bride-to-be dreams of a fairy-tale gown, fragile and delicate as a cobweb and lovelier than any dress in the world.

Sometimes such a dress comes high, and so many brides today are returning to the gentle customs of yesteryear, and are making their own wedding gowns.

Thus they not only save money, but can afford the finest fabrics and can work out their own ideas of their own particular dream dress. For many girls, however, there also is a sentimental reason that goes far deeper than economy.

Fortunately the technique of making a wedding dress is much simpler than it was 100 years ago. Grandmother used to start her wedding gown as much as six months before the big day, patiently gathering and ruffling with thousands of tiny hand stitches.

Today, with modern electric sewing machines, simplified modern patterns and widely available dressmaking instruction, even a beginner will have little trouble fashioning the dress of her heart's content.

BE THRIFTY

The thrifty bride can plan to remove the lower tier of net after the wedding, making a short summer evening dress.

The dress may be made by a standard pattern, and local sewing center experts offer tips on handling the lace and tulle for the best results.

The dress chosen features a closely fitted bodice which dips to a graceful V in front. Since the effect of a tiny waist depends on having the waistline exactly aligned with your own waistline, be sure to make use of the ruler printed on the pattern for accurate adjustments. Make all alterations right on the pattern before cutting into the lace.

Do all fitting over the foundation garment you plan to wear on your wedding day. A long torso strapless bra probably will be your choice.

Only 1⅞ yards of lace is required for the artfully draped bodice, so you can afford to buy the loveliest lace you can find, such as a chantilly-type lace, now available in dacron.

When cutting the bodice, leave an extra wide seam allowance, so that you can match the lace pattern when you baste.

You will find that stitching on lace is no problem if you back the lace with tissue paper, which will keep the lace from stretching and sliding. The paper is pulled away easily after the stitching.

MATERIAL NEEDS

The skirt of this gown requires 8½ yards of 39-inch taffeta, plus about 20 yards of 72-inch net, or nylon tulle. When stitching the tulle, set your machine with loose tension and heavy preassure, and thread both needle and bobbin with dacron thread.

With nylon tulle you will not need a paper backing. If you use silk tulle, you should use the tissue paper backing, and a fine mercerized thread. The gathering foot attachment of your machine will make quick work of the gathers.

The skirt will have a romantic sweep if you stiffen the lining of the underskirt with a band of horsehair. Crinoline petticoats, of course, will accent the graceful bell silhouette.

After the dress is finished, hang it from a chandelier or in a big closet where the flounces cannot be flattened. You don't want to be pressing your gown the morning of the wedding.

When making a gown as important as this, don't take short cuts. Pin, baste, press, fit and stitch very carefully, and always test the tension and pressure of your machine on a scrap of fabric before stitching the dress.

After all, your daughter may want to wear it some day, and in the meantime you want to be the most beautiful bride of the season.

Wrapped and tied with the biggest bow yet is this long torso party dress by Suzy Perette. In a lustrous sheer pure silk called antique taffeta, the deep emerald green dress combines the molded look through the torso and hips with the full whirl of a skirt set very low in a diagonal line emphasized by a mock sash.

Dinner Scheduled

The Oakland County Osteopathic Auxiliary members will meet Thursday at Kingsley Inn for dinner with their husbands. Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Brown of Oxford will show pictures and lecture on their recent trip to the Barbados.

Newcomer Has No Luck Attracting Dates

By ELIZABETH WOODDARD

"Dear Miss Woodward: I've just moved to a new school, and have made a lot of new friends. But the boys only seem to like me for a friend — they prefer to ask the other girls for dates.

"The girls tell me that it's because I'm new and the boys like to date girls they know better.

"Do you think that could be it? I'm 16 and attractive enough, but I'm getting worried over not having dates with this new crowd.

"At home they say that I'm too eager and act boy crazy. But I don't think so. I only talk to them when they speak to me, and I don't flirt with them. What do you think is wrong with me?"

Answer: A new girl is usually a fascinating commodity to the old gang of boys. Unless, of course, they're all going steady before she heaves over the horizon.

She spells variety and mystery, unexplored territory, unstaked claim. Usually somebody goes head over heels on first sight, and the new gal begins to get around.

But many a gang of boys is like a flock of sheep. Some one boy has to get up the courage to sashay around a new girl. He has to take her out and make a general and particular report.

In rapid succession thereafter, all the other boys in the gang line up to rush the gal — if the report is good!

Now a new girl can make a bombshell impression in her new bailiwick. Just because she's new and different and attractive, she can mow the gang down, and have all the girls eating their hearts out in bitter envy.

Or she can timidly venture her toe into this new stream, waiting to be spoken to, hesitantly making her contacts. She can be so cautious that she pulls all her punches holding back the warmth of her friendliness, afraid to rush in where angels fear to tread.

In your case the girls may be right in a way. If you've given the boys no chance to get acquainted with you, they're likely to go on dating girls they know well.

Your family may be right about you, too. Eager and crazy to have the boys notice you. But if you don't make any effort to have that happen, it's all for naught.

Speaking before you're spoken to won't do you any harm. It will help to convince the boys that you want to be friendly. And flirting with one boy in particular might have a magic effect.

If he thinks he has impressed you considerably, he might get around to wanting to know you better. Ergo, a date.

And if the other boys see you out with one of their crowd, your dating stock will go up immediately. So pick a likely lad who isn't already tied up, and get better acquainted with him.

A mildly enthusiastic chase will draw him closer — and perhaps you'll get him to keep.

Jambalaya Proves to Be Quick Dish

Mrs. Reese Uses Beef or Shrimp in Creole Recipe

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor

Only an hour in which to get dinner on the table? You can do it, if you use Mrs. Tom T. Reese's recipe for Jambalaya. Jambalaya is a typical Creole dish, with rice as the main ingredient.

Mrs. Reese is a former Home Service director for a national appliance company. At present, she is kept pretty busy with two babies, a daughter of 20 months, and a son of 3 months.

She loves to make hats. She likes music. She still keeps her membership in the American Home Economics Association. Locally, she is a member of the New Sylvanites club and the AAUW.

JAMBALAYA

By Mrs. Tom T. Reese

2 tablespoons shortening
1 pound ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup green pepper, diced
1 clove garlic, minced fine
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper
¼ teaspoon thyme
1 can cream of tomato soup
1 soup can water
½ cup uncooked rice

Heat shortening, add beef and cook until all the red has disappeared. Add all the rest of the ingredients and stir thoroughly. Cover. When mixture starts to steam, reduce heat and let simmer 35 minutes. Stir well before serving.

If precooked rice is used, add after the mixture has simmered the 35 minutes. Heat through. Shrimp may be substituted for ground beef. Serves 4-6.

Shampooing Can Make Hair Gleem

Tresses Ought to Sparkle if Sudsed Properly

Shampoo your way to beautiful hair. This is the age of the home-made coif, simple and casual. You can have a lovely hairdo with a little pin-curl know-how. Strive for the spun-silk topknot look this season.

Hair should sparkle after a proper shampoo. The lack of crimp brings out the natural sheen of your locks. Damp-dry your hair with a turkish towel, pin-curl the ends for a completely casual hairdo to put you in the charm girl bracket.

Many experts disagree on the advisability of washing the hair oftener than once a week—something to do with washing valuable hair oils down the drain. Many models wash their hair two or three times a week with no apparent injury to hair or scalp, but once a week would seem often enough for the average person unless you have unusually oily hair or live in a soot-laden area.

Work up a good soapy hair lather in the shower or basin—pour a little shampoo in the palm of your hand and rub it into your wet head. Rinse with plain water. Apply another soaping. Rinse again with plain water and your favorite rinse. New shampoos lather richly even in hard water without special rinses, however.

'Overqualified' Covers Wide Range

By ANNE HEYWOOD

One of the most common complaints of people looking for jobs is this one: "They keep telling me I'm 'overqualified.' But I need a job desperately and I'm willing to settle for less. What can I do when they keep telling me I'm 'overqualified'?"

The first thing to do is to analyze that expression and see what it means in your case. Actually, it can mean a variety of things.

For example, many people with good experience get too arrogant when they are job hunting. They act as though they are the best thing that ever came along and imply that the employer is a fool if he doesn't grab them and pay them an enormous salary.

They snub the big man's secretary and frequently, in the interviews, they tell him how he ought to run his business.

The net result is, the employer considers them too overwhelming to be comfortable, but instead of telling them so, he tells them they're "overqualified."

LESS COMPLICATED

Sometimes, of course, it isn't that complicated. They may just mean that they can't afford to pay you the salary you ask, but instead of coming right out and saying so and offering less, they say you're "overqualified."

Sometimes it's just that they don't have a job open, but don't want to admit it.

Sometimes, of course, you really are overqualified for the kind of job you're asking for and should raise your sights. People often aim too low, in the hopes of getting a job fast.

But it doesn't work that way. The employer senses what you're doing and knows that you would outgrow the job in no time. He doesn't want to chance it.

The solution is to aim for a bigger job. It may take longer, but you're much more apt to land it. There are plenty of them around; it's just a case of digging them out.

TEMPORARY JOB

Meantime, you can always get a temporary job to feed you while you're aiming for a better one.

If you're a secretary with additional experience which qualified you for an administrative post, take temporary secretarial work by the week, while you uncover the big job.

It'll work better in the long run than pretending you want a straight secretarial job. Employers are smarter than you think!

Felt Shoe Adds Glamor, Style for All Purposes

Latest recruit in the glamor brigade is the felt shoe.

Once relegated to the bedroom and associated merely with solid comfort, felt shoes now go dancing, shopping, partying and beach-strolling. They are showing up in some of the smartest resorts this season, and may be seen in fashionable circles from Park avenue to Hollywood boulevard.

The new glamor flits are strictly high-style, and are available in every color of the rainbow. There are evening shoes with jeweled heels, play shoes with whimsical designs, spectator sports shoes in felt with leather trim, platform pumps in several colors of felt for cocktail wear.

And of course, there are still felt slippers for wearing at home, but far different from the kind that grandma used to wear.

Boys' Wear Copies Ivy, Natural Looks

Two influences in particular — the Natural look and Ivy League — have made important contributions to boys' clothing.

Most popular item on the cold weather agenda is the boys' light gray wool flannel suit with a minimum of shoulder padding, three button front, rear center vent, and pants with Ivy type belt and buckle at the back. In every detail, it's a miniature reproduction of Dad's Natural look suit. Wool slacks and shorts are also popular in the pleatless, buckle at the back Ivy style.

Spain Grows Used to Girls Wearing Slacks

MADRID (INS)—Women's slacks came to stay in Spain in 1955.

This perhaps was the most obvious sign that the Spanish woman is no longer leaving all the pleasures, prerogatives and authority to men. She is doing what she wants.

The acceptance of women in slacks has one basic, practical cause: You can't very well ride a motorscooter if you are wearing a skirt.

The motorscooter, and to a lesser degree the motorcycle, have become the most popular means of transportation in Spain. They swarm in the cities.

If one of these senoritas should be wearing slacks, Spanish males won't goggle and gasp any more. It's a common sight.

However, things haven't developed to the point where a girl in slacks can walk down Madrid's Gran Via without being made to wish she was invisible.

Composer Prefers Trains to Tunes

By EMILY BELSER

HOLLYWOOD (INS) — Movie composer David Rose can always be sure that every hour of the day and night — somewhere in the world — his music is being played.

And chances are, what's being spun is "Holiday for Strings," the famous song Rose composed in exactly 20 minutes and later apologized for!

This song, which he originally tagged "Monotony for Strings," has hit the 9,000,000 mark and is still going up. There have been 67 different recordings — one of the most devastatingly popular ditties ever published.

"It's no great feat."

Although he's one of the fastest and most prolific songwriters in the business, the "King of Strings" would rather stay home and play with toy trains.

$100,000 TOYS

He has 500 of these steam-driven choo-choos valued at the staggering sum of $100,000.

Rose has been collecting and building toy trains for years — mostly locomotives—ranging in price from 78 cents for a dime store toy to $24,000 for a small perfectly scaled mountain-type engine.

Rose is one guy who gets his coals from Newcastle.

"I get all my coal from England," he said, "because it gives a better performance. It's a more concentrated heat per pound and it's cheaper."

* * *

Rose is so locomotive happy that he had two wooden steam engines hand-carved on one of the fireplaces that grace his beautiful colonial mansion in the San Fernando Valley.

CONGRATULATIONS

During lunch at a Hollywood restaurant, friends dropped by his table to congratulate him all over again for composing one of the most beautiful tunes of the year —"Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing."

But all Rose could talk about was a new engine part that had just arrived from Belguim.

"This is for a locomotive I've been working on for 10 years," he said. "I ordered it last August from a 75-year-old man in Brussels. It's handmade. That's why I had to wait so long to get it."

"It'll haul 150 people," he said proudly.

But the completion of his pet 10-year project will be the big climax of his 20-year hobby.

"If I could only build a locomotive as fast as I can write a song," he sighed.

Children's Book Awakens Wonder

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

"Maya followed the direction of the bark-beetle's gaze and saw a remarkable animal climbing up the tree trunk.

" 'Hadn't we better hide?' she asked, alarm getting the better of astonishment.

" 'Absurd,' replied the bark-beetle. 'Just sit still and be polite to the gentleman. He's struggling against the wind. I hope his legs don't get entangled.'

Now, it's been reissued by publishers Farrar, Straus and Cudahy who have given me permission to excerpt this passage introducing Maya, the venturesome little bee to Hannibal, the daddy-long-legs.

CLASSIC WORK

The world's youngsters have made this book into an international classic by demanding its translation into 27 languages since its publication some 50 years ago. Read its first page — and you'll know why.

Maya's adventures will hold you with the same immediate appeal as those of "Alice in Wonderland" and other immortal books of childhood. They demonstrate the wonderfulness of the commonplace.

In the enchanting pages which describe them, your most ordinary garden insects—the spider, the rose-beetle, the grasshopper all undergo transformation into new, special, wonderful identity —the same kind of transformation by which Lewis Carroll changed a little girl's breakfast egg into the irascible character of Humpty Dumpty.

Always, childhood's immortal books seek to deepen the child's understanding and tenderness for his own experience by transforming it for him in this way.

Today's juvenile books are not interested in doing this for children. With few exceptions, their purpose is not to enhance Johnny's appreciation of what he knows but to force his appreciation of what adults know.

So they tell him little tales about locomotives that hoot at the wrong time, how hydroelectric power is made and what Andean Indians do on fiesta day.

Today, children's books give them much information about many facts—but awaken wonder and reverence for none.

Light Woolens Available

Those British woolens and Scotch tweeds that people used to think of as thick, warm and bulky are putting on new airs.

American spring fashions use many of the new and glamorized imported wools, which now emerge as feather-light, gossamer-thin, blended with silk or cashmere, in tender tints as well as rich dark tones.

Tweeds and fine woolens are something of a religion to an Englishman. A case in point is a suave gentleman named Robert Heaney, formerly a member of the British Foreign Service in the Orient, now in New York representing a group of Scotch woolen mills. When he speaks of tweeds his eyes light up and his voice takes on a reverent tone.

"Tweeds started in the cottages of Scotland and Ireland where men tended sheep," says Heaney. "Man and sheep eked out life together, and thus homespuns were born. The sheep were clipped, the wool was carded, spun, dyed and woven, all at home. And many of today's high-fashion tweeds still come from these cottages, woven on hand looms, dyed with seaweed and flowers."

British woolen manufacturers now are producing special fabrics for the American market, says Heaney, because the demands here are entirely different from those of the British Isles.

"It's a matter of climate," he explains. "Americans want lighter weights, softer fabrics, brighter colors. This year you will see many blends of wool and silk or wool and cashmere, which have a wonderfully soft feeling and new life in the color. It's a reflection of the state of the nation. People always like bright colors when times are good."

Here's Teener Shoe Hints

Wearing pumps, like wearing lipstick, is one of those milestone's in a teen-ager's life toward which she looks eagerly.

Depending upon local custom, the first pair may be black patent leather for dancing school or it may be pastel fabric for a sister's wedding. It may be a pair of shoes for a town visit.

But whatever kind of shoes they are or what the occasion for their first wearing, there are some very important points to be considered about the event.

Buy the shoes in the late afternoon, when your feet have swollen all they're going to. Try them on with stockings that are your size.

Get them some time in advance of the date you plan to wear them so that you can practice wearing them and avoid wrenching your ankle.

If no one is along to dictate the height of the heel or the cut of the shoe, be kind to yourself the first time and avoid the very slim, very high heels which are hard to navigate.

Boys' clothes are now being designed with an "adult" look, and all the influences that have been so successful in stimulating the men's wear industry have been carried through into the boys' apparel field.

Susan Hayward Keeps Her Temper Pretty Well

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—They wondered if I'd care to interview Susan Hayward but they said, "Look, now, no questions about her troubles." When I got there, I said, "Hey, not asking her about her troubles is like not asking Churchill about politics."

★ ★ ★ ★

"You ask 'em and we'll see!" Susan said, from under her red hair. I asked her whether she was going to marry Don Barry, the cowboy actor she was in the newspapers with a couple months back—and Susan hollered "WHO?" at me so hotly that I was almost ready to creep home.

SUSAN

"don barry," I said in very small type.

"IT NEVER ENTERED MY THOUGHTS," Susan said in very large type. "IT'S A VERY DISTASTEFUL SUBJECT. AND ACTUALLY I THINK YOU'RE NO GENTLEMAN TO BRING IT UP."

"What would you like to talk about?" I squeaked.

"My plans for the future—I do have the possibility of singing and singing well." Susan was having a ginger, me a coffee, we were livin' it up.

"What do you think of the press' handling of you?"

"I always find the press to be pretty fair."

And so I didn't get reinstated as a gentleman after all, though I'd hoped. Susan, as you've perhaps seen hinted in the press, plays Lillian Roth in the movie "I'll Cry Tomorrow," and Susan told me she trusts the movie will make everybody "more tolerant of people who are going through their own personal Gethsemane."

The next night she suddenly decided to fly back to Hollywood though she'd planned to be here a week. Something new about the Jess Barker divorce row had come up. As she hurried away from a party, she had a worried look and I felt very kindly toward a redhead who keeps her temper pretty good.

Congress Skeptical About Postal Rates

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's renewed request for a 350 - million-dollar postal rate increase, equal to a major part of the budget surplus he forecast for next year, appeared today to face dubious prospects in Congress.

* * *

Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC), chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, said his group has no plans to act on rate boost legislation unless the House does so.

Democratic House Leader McCormack of Masscahusetts already has said, "They'll have a hard time convincing us Democrats of the need for an increase."

The administration proposal includes a penny increase in letter mail—from 3 to 4 cents—and thus is doubly unattractive to Congress in an election year.

Johnston said, "First - class (letter) mail pays its way now, and yet they could get the bulk of their new revenue by raising the first-class rates."

Voice Approval of Drain Project

Audience at Meeting Favors Building of $332,252 Job

Unanimous approval was voiced at last night's City Commission meeting as 100 spectators packed the chambers to speak out for the proposed Pontiac Creek storm drain planned for the city's northwest section.

The proposed drain will serve an area bounded generally by Saginaw, Summit, Sanderson and LeGrande at a cost for the first three sections of $332,252.

Prior to the meeting, strong opposition was expected on the part of many within the area because of two proposed systems of assessment and the fact that some of the area had drain facilities previously installed.

The assessed cost for the project, expected to be undertaken this spring, will be $98,885.97 with the majority of the 200 acre area be assessed one cent per square foot with the remaining area expected to pay an assessment of three cents a square foot.

Commissioner Floyd P. Miles, in whose District 4 the project centers, distributed some 700 letters of notifications of the public hearing to the people he represents explaining the need for the drain.

Of the 20 citizens that asked to be heard at last night's public hearing, all said they were in favor of the project because of the present flooding that occurs in the area and the safety hazards that ensue because of the heavy rains.

The city's share of the storm drain will be $233,366.28 or 70 per cent of the total project. The Commission instructed the city attorney to prepare a special assessment roll on the plan.

2 City Court Judges Receive Pay Hikes

After weeks of informal discussion, the City Commission last night approved a pay hike of $3,412 for the two municipal court judges.

Both judges will receive a 1956 salary of $10,000 compared to their 1955 pay of $8,294.

"I can't see the justification in this matter," Miles said. "The judges were elected at a set wage and are eligible for regular pay raises so I am against this move."

Commissioner Lutz stated that the two judges accepted their jobs, and added he couldn't see why the Commission should break away from the four per cent hike paid to salaried city employes for just two men.

Last week the Commission approved a pay hike for city salaried employes earning $5,200 or above.

March of Dimes Hikers End Trek With $32,000

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Two members of a Houston Marine Reserve unit trudged into Austin yesterday and estimated that they had collected nearly 10 cents for the March of Dimes on each of the 36,000 steps they took in their 160-mile hike.

Staff Sgt. Nolan G. Henry and Hospital Mate 2.C. Charles R. Blanar left Houston Jan. 7. They collected more than $32,000 for the polio drive and lost 10 to 12 pounds on the hike. They were given heroes' welcome along the route and were escorted by high school bands at a number of towns.

Hollywood Headlines:

Princess Meg May Visit Filmdom in Late Summer

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD (INS) — From a London source it is revealed that Princess Margaret plans to be in Los Angeles the last of August or the early part of September.

The young princess will be sent to America on a goodwill tour similar to the one the Queen Mother so successfully made last year.

Princess Margaret has met some of the film stars and she loves both motion pictures and the theater. Buckingham Palace will give her just about anything her heart desires since she cooperated and gave up Group Capt. Peter Townsend in deference to the wishes of her church and family.

What a flurry there will be among the social set in our town. Sharman Douglas, daughter of former Ambassador to England Lewis Douglas, has been close to Margaret and she probably will be very much in the picture.

Van Heflin has canceled his contract with Kermit Bloomgarden, effective Feb. 4, which means that "View From the Bridge" is closing on Broadway. The London engagement definitely is out for Van and he has also refused a national road company tour with the show.

Although this information comes from New York in terms of icy politeness, insiders are convinced that there is trouble between the star and the producer.

It might even break into legal fireworks over who has the rights to make a movie of "View." Van announced his plan to film it independently months ago.

Van, his redheaded Frances and their redheaded children will motor back to California soon after the February closing.

INTERNATIONAL TV

Fernandel, the famous French comedian, will be introduced by Bob Hope on TV Feb. 7 in Paris on the Hope international spectacular. Last year Bob brought Maurice Chevalier to TV audiences on Chevalier's first international show.

Bing Crosby's casual, easy charm comes through in "Anything Goes" and helps make it a top musical. Donald O'Connor's dancing and boyish exuberance also makes the picture a joy. Mitzi Gaynor looks beautiful and dances delightfully with Don.

Jeanmaire's ballet dancing is also a highlight. A nod must go to Nick Castle for his superb choreography.

One reason I liked "Anything Goes" so much is because it didn't go on and on—its length is all in its favor. Then, too, there are Cole Porter's great songs, so many of them pleasantly familiar.

DATE FOR JANICE

At La Rue, Darryl Zanuck was buying dinner for his son, Dick, and Dick's best girl, a very pretty blonde.

The dancingest man at the Jack Huber-Dorothy Gordon wedding reception was Joseph Schenck, who took many a twirl around the floor.

The most effective chapeau (a French flowered affair) in the room was worn by Dana Wynter who was escorted by Greg Bautzer, who danced with no one else.

Rhonda Fleming, back from Africa, was with Dr. Lew Morrill. She had fascinating stories to tell about the Mau Maus and the wild beasts she saw.

Eddie Lowe is so well that he is working. Says his illness is last year's news.

Carol Ann Beery and her mother, Rita Beery, have bought a lot in Scottsdale, Ariz., and start building next week.

GAINESVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Tom Hickman, 70, one of the most famous of former Texas Rangers, weathered sleet and freezing rain yesterday to start his horseback trek down the old Chisholm Trail to Fort Worth. Shunning all modern conveniences, Hickman, riding his favorite horse, had bed roll and cooking equipment on a pack horse and is sleeping in the open. He is heading for the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show which opens the latter part of this month in Fort Worth.

Famous names, such as All-America guard Jim Brown of UCLA, end Ron Beagle of Navy and tackle Paul Wiggin of Stanford, as well as quarterback Jerry Reichow of Iowa, fullback Gerry Planutis of Michigan State and the once fabulous J. C. Caroline of Illinois, were prominent among the draftees.

But the dominant feature of this draft—the 17 rounds completed last night, the 10 to go today and, to a lesser degree, the three rounds held in November—was the move for players almost obscure in the national picture.

Just as in past the NFL plucked such unknown players as Harlon Hill from little Florence Teachers in Alabama, and Tank Younger from Louisiana's Grambling College, who went on to pro fame, so did the coaches and scouts go for talent from the small colleges.

The champion Cleveland Browns chose Wiggin, and in contrast, guard Willie Davis from Grambling, halfback Len Heyllyer from Marshall College and Chuck Griffith of Southern California, who was dropped from the Trojan squad for breaking training rules.

The Detroit Lions lost no time drafting quarterback Jerry Reichow of Iowa, the hero of the Shrine East-West game, while the San Francisco 49ers, among its decisions, drafted two Colorado A&M men, backs Jerry Zaleski and Larry Barnes.

Second choice of the Lions yesterday was Tom "The Bomb" Tracy, former Birmingham High School star who left the University of Tennessee before completing his senior year to play with the Ottawa Roughriders last season.

In his first year in the Canadian league he was named all-conference halfback.

Tracy, who stands 5-10 at 200 pounds, had an average of 6.5 yards per try during his two years at Tennessee.

His graduating class is June 1956. Unlike the National Football League, the Canadian league does not have such rule.

The Los Angeles Rams, runner-up for the NFL crown and notorious for producing "sleepers," came up with California end Jim Carmichael, halfback Ed Vincent of Iowa and Jim Decker of UCLA, each well known, fullback Charles Sticka from Trinity College and a lad named Charles Dees, a tackel, who seems to have been around.

Navy's Beagle and UCLA's Jim Brown went to the Chicago Cardinals, and Green Bay drafted two stars of Oklahoma's national champion Sooners, halfback Bob Burris and guard Cecil Morris.

The Chicago Bears selected Caroline and disclosed they have already had a talk with Toronto of Canadian Football regarding acquisition of the former Illini flash.

Here are the Detroit Lions' selections in yesterday's National Football League draft session (includes those drafted in the first three rounds at Philadelphia, Nov. 28). Finial 10 rounds will be held today (Wednesday) starting at 1 p. m. EST).

Howard Cassady, Ohio State back. Leon Clarke, Southern California end (handed to Los Angeles as part of previous trade). Don McIlhenny, Southern Methodist back. Jerry Reichow, Iowa quarterback. Tom Tracy, Tennessee back. Bob Luck, William and Mary center. Gene Cronin, College of Pacific guard. Jack Powell, Texas A&M tackle. Calvin Jones, Iowa guard. Joe Silas, South Carolina end. Louis Wacker, Richmond back. Tom Belge, Maryland back (trade from Pittsburgh). Robert Nunnery, Louisiana State tackle. O. K. Ferguson, Louisiana State fullback. Ron Fulls, Duke center. Horace Allert, Southwest Texas end. Lee Eyrde, Purdue end. Ken Ford, Houston end. Emiddio Petrarca, Boston College fullback. Dale Vaughn, Virginia Military back. Joe Stephenson, Vanderbilt end.

What do the observers (fans, officials and writers) think of PHS Chiefs' cage scoring ace, Willie Dewalt?

Said veteran officials Ken Bortle and Sam Madden (who worked Tuesday's game here), "This boy really has it. He's the best prep player I've seen this year." (Bortle); "One of the best, a fine player." (Madden). Veteran Flint Journal writer Doug Mintline, "Willie's the best you've had for many years. He is sure a fine player."

Maryland Fills Tatum's Place With Own Grads

Tommy Mont Will Be Grid Coach, Cobey to Direct Athletics

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Tommy Mont has been named to succeed Jim Tatum as football coach at the University of Maryland.

Tatum, who quit Jan. 8 to go back to his alma mater of North Carolina, had held both jobs.

Dr. Wilson H. Elkins, university president, made it plain he had gone no farther than Maryland itself to pick Mont and Cobey to take over for Tatum, who had built its greatest football teams from 1947-55. Maryland won 71 out of 87 scheduled games and three of six postseason bowls.

"I decided I should look at our own staff and stay within it," said Dr. Elkins yesterday. In future, he said, "we would like to accent as much as we possibly can Maryland boys."

At this point, Tatum interposed somewhat of an objection to the idea that he hadn't accepted as many Maryland high school boys as potentially good football players.

He pointed out the 15 of 46 on last year's undefeated squad were more than on Maryland's 1940 squad and proportionately more than on the North Carolina squad he is inheriting.

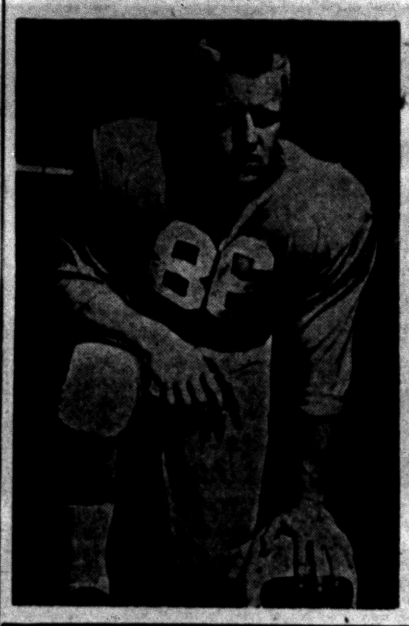
Dr. Elkins said the 33-year-old Mont, an assistant to Tatum since 1951, was a "natural" to implement the policy of "Maryland football for Marylanders" since he was a native of Cumberland, Md., and a 1946 graduate of the university, for which he was a quarterback.

At the same time, he sought to assure all that the selection of a "home grown" product didn't mean de-emphasis of football at Maryland.

Landy Plans Attempt to Lower Mile Record

MELBOURNE (INS) — John Landy, the Australian rambler, will attempt to crack his own world mile record of three minutes, 58 seconds at the Australian athletic championships in March.

Apparently, Landy's decision on whether to compete for his country in the Olympic Games next fall depends greatly on the results of his performance in the national championships.



THE BOMB—Ex-Maple grid star, Tom Tracy, who last year played for Ottawa, was picked as second choice by the Detroit Lions in the 17 rounds of choices made at the NFL drafts yesterday.

U. S. Teams Arrive

Athletes Crowd Cortina With Improved Weather

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—Scores of athletes streamed into little Cortina last night and early today, raising to 20 the number of nations already represented for the seventh annual Winter Olympics.

A 35-member American contingent arrived early this morning along with 37 Finns and 28 entries from Sweden.

The Winter Games, on skis and on skates, are set for Jan. 26 and will close Feb. 5.

With little more than a week to go, the nations already on the scene are:

The United States, Austria, Norway, Iceland, Belgium, Finland, West and East Germany, Italy, Poland, Lebanon, Romania, Britain, Sweden, South Korea, Japan, Russia, France, Canada and Switzerland.

Today's arrivals were met by rapidly improving weather. That means it's getting colder.

Eight to 12 inches of snow would make the skiing surfaces almost perfect now that the general, and dangerous, thaw has stopped.

Because of the warm weather, few Alpine skiers have shown up yet, choosing to train in Switzerland or Austria or on their home snow. Others left Cortina to get in practice elsewhere.

Favorites already have been established, however, and two Austrians, Tony Sailer and Andre Molterer, have been picked in the men's downhill and slalom ski events.

Russia and Finland are expected to rule the cross-country skiing. Canada, Russia and the United States, with Sweden a threat, figure to battle it out for the ice hockey crown.

TERP COACH—Tommy Mont, graduate of Maryland, was named head football coach of the Terps, succeeding Jim Tatum who has moved to North Carolina. Mont was backfield coach under Tatum. Also appointed was Bill Cobey to the post of Athletic Director.

East Detroit Rolls in Lone EML Tilt

East Detroit's Shamrocks ran away from Hazel Park in the 2nd and 3rd quarters to hand the Vikings their 6th straight setback in an Eastern Michigan League basketball game last night on the East Detroit court.

The winless Vikings held a 12-10 lead entering the 2nd stanza, then wilted under a savage attack which netted the Shamrocks 39 points during the next two sessions.

Gary Ballman topped the East Detroit scoring with 20 points and teammate Toby Prantera chipped in with 10. Nick Kamenoff tallied 17 for Hazel Park.

The Shamrocks' triumph evened their EML record at 2-2. It was the Vikings' 5th league loss.

State Gridders By-Passed in NFL Choices

Only Four, Including 3 from MSU, Selected Through 20th Round

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michigan College players generally were passed by as the 12 National Football League clubs selected their 4th through 20th round draft choices last night.

Only four players from the state were chosen, three from Michigan State's Rose Bowl champions and one from the University of Michigan.

Highest on the list was Gary Lowe, MSU halfback, picked by Washington on the 5th round. The 1st three draft rounds were held in November.

John Lewis, MSU end, went to Baltimore in round nine. Fullback Lou Baldacci of Michigan, was drafted in the 10th round by Pittsburgh and Gerry Planutis of Michigan State, also a fullback, was drafted in round 12 by Washington.

Griff's Moves Into 1st Place

Grill Quintet Thumps Independents to Gain National Adult Lead

Griff's Grill handed the Independents a 57-36 shellacking in City League adult basketball action Tuesday night at Jefferson Junior High. The victory moved Griff's into the National League's top position and shoved its victim into 2nd place.

The Independents held a 20-19 halftime edge, but Griff's caught fire in the last two quarters to win going away. Chuck Franklin sparked the Grill five with 22 points while Merle Taulbee's 12 points topped the losers.

Phil's Inn rallied in the 2nd half to trim the Trojans, 49-44, in last night's other adult National Loop game. Al King paced Phil's Inn with 24 points and Bob Williamson made 17 for the Trojans.

Oliver Buick displayed a balanced attack with a one-sided 61-44 decision over the Lakers and the Police Assn. quintet survived a last half threat to down the Spartans, 58-54, in Class D American division games at Eastern.

In 'D' National division contests, also at Eastern, the Meteors grabbed 1st place with a 43-38 verdict over formerly undefeated Aces and the Hot Shots handed the Blue Devils their 5th straight loss in a defensive battle, 27-22.

City League activity tonight matches Shaw's-GMC and Booth Homes-Sun Life in adult attractions at Pontiac High. Slaybaugh's faces Central Christian and the Wolverines meet the Boys Club in 'D' scraps at Lincoln.

Chief Tankers Defeat Bears

Win 5 Firsts to Take Dual From Highland Park, 50-37

Compiling five firsts and enough other places to round out an even 50 points to 37 for their opponents, Pontiac High School's natators Tuesday marked up their 3rd win against two defeats.

Highland Park's Polar Bears didn't offer as much competition as had been expected, Coach Robert (Des) Boyce commented today. "Tom Cross in the backstroke turned in our best time." Cross turned the 100-yard event in 1:08.6. Bob Keavy hit 1:04.4 in the breaststroke.

Chiefs took a licking in the relay events, with times of 2:32.9 and 1:22.8 for the medley and freestyle, respectively, by the Bears.

Summary:

Maroon Council Ends Grid Hopes

CHICAGO (INS)—Those whispered voices which long have clamored for a return to football by the University of Chicago have been stilled—at least temporarily—by a loud official "no."

The 51-member council of the University senate, ruling body of the school, voted last night not to accept a recommendation made last Dec. 8 that football be resumed on an "amateur," non-conference basis.

Chicago, once the scourge of the Big Ten, dropped football in 1939 when Robert M. Hutchins, who had frowned upon the game, was chancellor.

Bring Me a Song—to Remember

By GRANTLAND RICE

Here, where the road is long,
Out from the shadows where phantoms are found
Bring me a brave, young song—
Bring me a song to the heart of December
Where the dim sun is cast,
Bring me a song that I can remember
When the last dream is past.

Out from the sighs and the sorrows and tears,
Born of the drifting throng,
Out from the heartache and hurt of the years,
Bring me a brave, true song—
Bring me a song of this fading December
Where the faint light is spread,
Bring me a song that I can remember
When the last faith is dead.

Out from the battle of greed and of hate
In the clash of the weak and strong,
Out from the bitterness sent us by Fate,
Bring me a brave, clear song—
Bring me a song to the gray of December,
Turning the world to gold,
Bring me a song that I will remember
When the last love is cold.

Thieves Pilfer Chicago Plaque From Ted Lyons

CHICAGO (AP)—Ted Lyons, former Chicago White Sox pitching great, told police last night thieves broke into his car and stole $200 in clothing and a plaque awarded him Sunday night by the Chicago Baseball Writers Assn.

Lyons said he hoped the plaque would be returned because of its great sentimental value. Lyons was awarded the plaque in honor of his being named to baseball's Hall of Fame.

Rockets, Seminary Win Games at 'Y'

Don Dubats and Frank Robinson scored 15 points apiece to spark the Rockets to a 51-21 victory over Tech Club in a YMCA Intramural League basketball game Monday night at the Pontiac YMCA gymnasium.

Seminary trounced the YMCA, 52-26, in Monday's other Intramural League contest. Gerland Spangler collected 20 points to lead the winners while Forest Miller was high for the 'Y' quintet with 15.

In YMCA Community Basketball League action last Saturday at the 'Y' gym, Clarkston Hi-Y defeated Lake Orion, 27-12; First Baptist downed Waterford Hi-Y Blue Chapter, 34-28; Pontiac Hi-Y Swishers crushed Hi-Y Gold Chapter 56-13; St. George edged Pontiac Hi-Y Hoopsplitters, 24-23, and the Pontiac YMCA trimmed Stone Baptist 25-16.

Saddler Meets Elorde Tonight

Featherweight Champ Is Favored to Successfully Defend Title

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sandy Saddler, despite giving away 10 years in age, is favored so strongly to defend successfully his featherweight boxing title against Flash Elorde tonight that there aren't any odds posted on the outcome.

The word on flatic row here was that the only wagering was on when the scheduled 15-round title match at the Cow Palace would end.

Interest in the fight was low locally. Promoter Bennie Ford optimistically forecast a crowd of 5,000 and a gross gate of $30,000, but the feeling generally was that his figure was high.

Saddler won the crown originally in 1948, lost it four months later and regained it in 1950. Since then he's been unbeatable with the title at stake, numbering among his victims seven foreign fighters. He has a record of 142 victories, 100 be knockouts, in 159 fights.

U.S. Chances Doubted in Olympics

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—In the cold and snow of Oslo in 1952, the United States sent a chill down the spines of the winter sports countries.

The Yanks took home four Olympic gold medals—and that's four more than anyone thought they could win.

Will the American upstarts do it again this year in the seventh Winter Olympiad, which opens here a week from tomorrow?

Most folks connected with the games here think the Americans will win two gold medals and maybe a third. But they're sure it won't be four. Many of the Americans themselves admit that the odds are against them winning four.

The first-place finishers in the Oslo games were Mrs. Andrea Mead Lawrence in the women's slalom and giant slalom, Dick Button in figure skating and Ken Henry in the 500 - meter speed skating.

Mrs. Lawrence and Henry are back again, but Button has turned professional. Strangely, neither Mrs. Lawrence nor Henry are expected to repeat.

Mrs. Lawrence, who has had three children since the last Olympics, has been coming along slowly and it's doubtful if she'll hit her top form by the time the games get under way.

Henry, who is now 27—a greybeard as speed skaters go—has been erratic recently and has not inspired confidence among his mates. His performance in the Swiss International Championships at Davos today will be watched closely.

America's best bets are two figure skaters—Tenly Albright of Newton Center, Mass., and Hayes Allen Jenkins of Colorado Springs. Miss Albright, once a victim of polio, was the women's world champion in 1953 and Jenkins has captured the men's world crown the past three years. They are regarded as almost sure winners.

The United States bobsled team would be the favorite if it had more chance to practice on the run here. The Yanks have whipped down the treacherous chute only five times, while the Italians, using their "home" course, have tried it 60 times.

College Cage Giants Meet in Major Scraps Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some of the giants of major college basketball take shots at each other tonight in what should be a pair of great scraps while Dayton, No. 2 team in the nation, tries for its 13th straight success.

In the battles between the ranking teams, North Carolina State, No. 3, is at North Carolina, No. 9, in an important Atlantic Coast Conference game and Louisville, No. 10, takes on Memphis State, No. 15.

Dayton and seven-foot Bill Uhl are at home to unranked Villanova, no better than 7-6 at the present.

There was very little activity last night. Holy Cross, No. 12, had the spotlight with an 81-67 decision over Dartmouth's disappointing Indians. The only surprise was the slim 18 points Tom Heinsohn had for the Crusaders, who were paced by Joe Liebler's 26.

Elsewhere, William & Mary hit 61 per cent of its set shots in the first half and waltzed past Virginia Military 81-72 in a Southern Conference game. In the Yankee Conference, Connecticut moved nearer another title by swamping New Hampshire 93-56 with Ron Russell scoring 22 points.

Miami (Ohio) strengthened its second-place spot in the Mid-American Conference with a 93-70 victory over Ohio U. Cincinnati smacked Xavier (Ohio) 71-66; Niagara, suffering only five foul calls, coasted to an 84-56 decision over Toronto; and Colgate whacked Hobart 84-62.

In the only upset, Seattle handed 14th-ranked Oklahoma City its third defeat, 89-84 in overtime, as little Cal Bauer sank two key baskets. They meet again tonight.

Shoemaker in Quest of New Mark Today

Shoemaker has ridden at least one winner every day since Santa Anita opened its winter season, Dec. 26. He has been in the charmed circle at least once a day for 16 straight days this year. "Shoe" had a winner each day for the last 15 days of the 1955 season, too, so he has had at least one for 31 days straight.

Fillies Run at Hialeah Today in Jasmine Stakes

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Fillies have their fling at Hialeah Park today in the $20,000 added Jasmine Stakes and a crowd of about 20,000 was expected as the Flamingo track settled down for a 40-day horse racing season.

The opening crowd of 23,621 yesterday was below the 25,000 expected but officials still believe the lavish track, with a multi-million dollar improvement program and the world's leading thoroughbreds, will break all records for attendance and betting.

The Jasmine, at 6 furlongs, attracted 14 probable starters and if all parade to the post the race will net the winner $18,975 from a gross purse of $26,400, richest in its history.

Tuesday is generally regarded as the worst day of the week for a race track but yesterday's turnout shoved $1,591,729 through the bankilke betting windows compared with $1,665,410 wagered on opening day last year, a Monday.

Form players took a beating all afternoon as favorites wound up in the dust. Maine Chance Farm's Apollo, winner of only three races last year, shocked the crowd by winning the 6-furlong Inaugural in 1:10 flat for a $42.50 for $2 payoff. Such performers as Switch On, Duc de Fer, War Command and Giant Cracker were out of the money.

Cranbrook Defeats Windsor Five, 61-44

Cranbrook evened its season record at 3-3 by downing Kennedy Collegiate 61-44 on the Crane court last night. It was the second win over the Windsor, Ontario, quintet this season.

The Cranes, behind after the first period 13-12, pulled away in the second stanza with the second string unit paving the way.

John Kirk led Cranbrook with 14 points, followed by Owen Fett with 13. The team's leading scorer for the season, Jerry Dobson was held to only four points.

Million Dollar Deal Made for Racing Farms

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Mrs. Elizabeth Graham of Main Chance Farm bought 746 acres of Crown Crest Farm in a million dollar deal concluded yesterday.

The land was sold for $1,500 an acre on an agreement reached several weeks ago, according to Mrs. Howard Reineman, wife of the owner of the 1,136-acre Crown Crest farm.

She said Mrs. Graham, cosmetics manufacturer, had purchased the land to establish her own farm. Previously, Mrs. Graham had boarded her Maine Chance stable on the farm of Leslie Combs II.

Little Chiefs Mark 7th Win

McClintok and Whitmer Hit 24, 21 Points in Victory Over RO

Led by a pair of redhot shooters in Ken McClintok and Dick Whitmer Pontiac High's Little Chiefs (varsity reserves) administered a sound spanking to the Royal Oak reserves, 69-49 Tuesday night.

Ken hit for a 24 point total (7 goals). Whitmer, who has not been out of double figures for the last five games, had 21, exactly the figure he compiled in the Flint Northern reserve game last Friday. Caples' 10 added more than enough to win without the aid of four others who contributed to the winning score.

Victory was the 7th for the Little Chiefs following the 54-36 win over Northern juniors. They have lost but one game.

Bowling Clinic

MOVE IN OR OUT?—The average hook bowler today still follows the old form pattern of moving his starting stance more toward alley-center on a "run" alley. Such an alley surface is slow, tacky, lends itself to a sharp right-to-left break on the ball.

Moving "in" on an alley means the ball must prescribe a wider bend or curve to find the 1-3 strike pocket, as the sketch shows. It also means greater difficulty in controlling the ball.

Topflighters have changed now to what they call the "outside" angle. They move to the right. And with it they do this: They lengthen their follow-through. They

In that way they reduce the amount of finger-spinning hook on the ball, and the ball, as a result, turns over into its revolving hook-spin farther down on the alley. It's what is termed "a later break." Yet with the help of the "run" of the alley, the ball actually loses none of its power.

What the big stars also do—and concentrate on—is swing their arm outward to the right, either at the No. 3 or the No. 6 pin. In that way they apply finger-spin, yet reduce the hook for control. Try it. I'm sure you'll enjoy the feeling of the reaching follow-through.

Dewalt's Play Marks PHS 61-46 Win

By H. GUY MOATS

With a near-record school scoring total highlighting the action, Pontiac High School basketball Chiefs, Tuesday night routed a stubborn Royal Oak club 61-46, for their 5th victory in seven starts. The win also was the 4th, and final game in a series that started in 1953 (4 games).

The good audience in PHS gymnasium saw smooth-working Willie Dwalt add to his amazing point compilations with a 26 mark, just three short of the modern PHS record of 29. Dick Ayling set the mark three years ago.

But Dewalt wasn't the only double-figure scorer in the Chiefs' "bombardment unit". Husky Rod Treais hit for 12 and long Hud Ray collected 11. Willie's count included 12 baskets. He had 27 in the Northern game last week (11 baskets).

Art Bromley's 13 and Bill Richey's 10 led the Acorns.

As in the Viking tilt, Dewalt the key man in the Chiefs' play. He added to his lustre as a rebounder, floor play ace and dead-eye shooter. He was again the outstanding figure.

Chiefs quickly ran up an 8-point lead in the opener, starting with Ray's tipin the 1st time PHS had the ball. They stretched the margin to 30-15 at halftime, then added 19 more points going into the finale. Acrons came back strong in the last period to outscore Pontiac 16 to 12. But Coach Art Van Ryzin had replaced most of his starters by that time.

When Dewalt left the game in the last period, after scoring the 55th point (basket) on a front push shot, he was given a big ovation. Treais and Ray also got nice "hands" when they retired. This trio collected 49 points, more than enough to win by themselves.

After the game, Acrons' mentor, Ed Campbell commented that his club was a "lot better than it looked against the Chiefs."

But there was no argument over the merits of the clubs last night.

The south end five had trouble breaking through the sharp PHS defensive pattern, all along. They were unable to stop Dewalt at any time, and Treais and Ray, plus Jim Skinner gave Chiefs effective control of the boards.

Chiefs return to Saginaw Valley Conference action Friday with a visit to the Saginaw High Trojans. Pontiac is rated an edge over the Valley cellar-dwellers, who have not won a loop game in four starts. PHS stands at 2-2.

NY Picks Up Point After 2-2 Deadlock With Chicago

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Rangers, the surprise team of the National Hockey League were only six points behind the league-leading, but slumping, Montreal Canadiens today.

The Blueshirts, who were expected to be in a battle for the cellar instead of the top spot at the start of the season, picked up one point last night by playing to a 2-2 tie with the Chicago Black Hawks. The result left them with 51 points. Montreal has 57, but has played one more game than New York.

The Black Hawks had to come from behind in the last two minutes to gain the deadlock. Ed Litzenberger scored their 1st goal at 18:06 of the final session and Nick Mickoski, an ex-Ranger, knotted matters at 18:48.

Andy Hebenton and Andy Bathgate scored for New York.

The Canadiens, who have dropped four of their last five games and have been shut out in their last two, take on the improving Toronto Maple Leafs in the only game on tonight's schedule.

The Browns' "G" men scored 133 points in the season of 1954—Lou Groza with 85 and Otto Graham with 48.

Southpaw Rated Top Prospect

Redlegs Concentrate on Pitchers Among Rookies

This is thethird of a series of articles dealing with rookie prospects of major league teams by Associated Press baseball lexpert Joe Reichler. Today its the Cincinnati Reds, tomorrow the Cleveland Indians.

NEW YORK (AP)—A 23-year-old southpaw who registered an incredible two-year total of 474 strikeouts in 248 innings, will be one of 11 rookies trying to land a regular berth with the Cincinnati Redlegs at their spring training camp in Tampa, Fla., next month.

The young minor league phenom is Charlie Rabe who, according to numerous authorities, is definately going to be an outstanding big league hurler some day and has a good chance to make it next season. Rabe was brought up from Columbia, S.C., of the Sally League, where he won practically every pitching honor including the league's most valuable player award.

Rabe was born in Waxahachie, Tex., home town of Paul Richards, the manager of Baltimore, on May 6, 1932. Richards naturally heard of the fine pitching Rabe was doing in high school and tried to land him for the White Sox organization in 1952. After a brief trial with the St. Louis Browns' organization, the youngster entered the Redleg organization. In his first year with Lawton in the Sooner League, Rabe won 13 games, fanning 255 batters in 181 innings.

After two years in the Army, Rabe was assigned to Columbia and proved a sensation under Ernie White, former southpaw star of the St. Louis Cardinals. He topped the league in victories with 21, in ERA at 2.01 and in strikeouts with 219. He was used only as a starter, pitching 23 complete games and 251 innings in 30 games, suffering only seven defeats. He also pitched six shutouts. The only black marks on his record were the 121 bases on balls and eight hit batters.

"If Rabe doesn't make a big league pitcher," said White, "I don't know what it takes to make one. He has an excellent curve, a matching fast ball, is getting hep to using a change of pace and has the right sort of spirit."

Bobsled Trials Delayed After Pileup on Course

Waterford Tags Clarkston for 1st Loss in Rec League

Waterford Merchants won their first game of the seaon in a surprising 51-47 victory over previously unbeaten Clarkston in the Waterford Recreation Basketball League last night.

A field goal and two free throws by Phil Runkel in the last minute broke a 47-47 deadlock to pave the way for Waterford.

The loss was the first in three years of regular season play for Clarkston in the league. Hurting factor for the losers was the absence of two regulars.

Runkel scored 32, Burt Stoddard had 15 and Jack Saylor four points to account for all of the Waterford scoring.

In the other game of the evening Mannys defeated Philgas 75-62 with Deck DeWitt leading the way with 22 points.

League play will continue Thursday with Beattie versus Drayton and Poole against Johnson and Anderson.

Mute Bantam Champion

MANILA (AP)—Mario D'Agata, the deaf-mute bantamweight champion of Italy, wound up his sparring sessions today for Saturday night's 10-rounder against Little Cezar, the Philippine king.

Out With Tonsils!

Mantle Faces Surgery, Rejects 1956 Contract

NEW YORK (AP)—Mickey Mantle was rolled into the operating room at Lenox Hill Hospital today to undergo a tonsillectomy but before he underwent the surgery he revealed:

* * *

1. That he had sent back his contract to the New York Yankees unsigned.

2. That his leg misery, which hampered his play in the World Series has disappeared.

3. The Yanks will win the American League pennant again this year.

The husky outfielder said he had not been asked by General Manager George Weiss why he had returned the contract without his signature. But he expects to be called into Weiss' office before he heads back home to Oklahoma.

When the major-domo interviews him, he'll tell Weiss that he wants more money than has been offered. But he hastened to add that he's certainly not a holdout, and hinted that he'd not be surprised if he signed before leaving New York.

Weiss, it was believed, offered Mantle about $25,000 and Mickey would like the figure to be closer to $30,000.

He declined to confirm the figures but admitted the guessers were "hot."

St. Mary's Rally Upsets Mikes, 47-45

By BILL CORNWELL

St. Mary's fighting Eaglets put on a blazing finish Tuesday night at Orchard Lake to upend a previously unbeaten St. Michael, 47-45, in a crucial Suburban Catholic League basketball game.

Guard Len Mallat was the hero of the frantic struggle as he fired a one-handed push shot into the basket from 30 feet out with only five seconds of play remaining.

Mallat's bucket, a clean "swisher," climaxed a brilliant last-half comeback by Father John Rakoczy's cagers and kept their SCL title ambitions very much alive.

It was a heartbreaking setback for the Shamrocks, who left the floor at halftime with a 27-18 advantage and seemed headed for their 4th straight league win and a share of 1st place. But the Eaglets had other ideas.

The action started slowly, the Mikes finally netting the 1st field goal after three minutes had passed. Two and a half minutes more elapsed before St. Mary was able to pocket a field goal, which spurred the Eaglets into a 12-8 edge at the close of the opening quarter.

Then, sparked by talented John Keller, the Mikes completely outplayed their foe in the 2nd period to compile their intermission lead.

Scoring ace Ted Kopacki, limited to one free throw in the 1st half, ignited the resurgent Eaglets. Kopacki dumped in nine points in the 3rd frame as the home club cut the deficit to 37-31 going into the final quarter.

St. Mary's victory creates a triple deadlock for 2nd place in the hectic SCL race. The Eaglets, the Mikes and St. Benedict are now knotted for the runner-up spot, all with 3-1 records.

The Eaglet Junior Varsity set the pattern for things to come and handed St. Mary a clean sweep by nipping St. Michael's reserves in an exciting preliminary, 43-42.

Royal Oak St. Mary's Irish turned back Notre Dame of Harper Woods in a non-league game last night at Royal Oak, 58-53. Phil Brzezinski poured in 23 points to pace the SCL leaders.

Clawson Cools Avondale's Title Hopes

Avondale's Yellow Jackets were so busy thinking about Friday's big tussle with league-leading Fitzgerald that they forgot to concentrate on last night's Oakland "B" clash with Clawson.

They regretted the error, for the Trojans, enjoying the advantages of their home floor, administered a convincing 68-51 upset to, highlight Tuesday's Oakland "B" action.

Clawson's rapidly - improving cagers surprised Troy last Friday 50-48, and seem to be thriving in the role of Oakland "B" spoiler.

After spotting Avondale a 20-13 1st-quarter edge the Trojans made their intentions quite clear. They went to work in the 2nd period to erase the deficit and take a one-point lead at intermission, then pulled steadily away in the final two stanzas.

Five Trojans scored in double figures, headed by Chuck Mason, Dick Allen and Dorr who tallied 12 apiece. The Yellow Jackets, who failed to rebound and couldn't find the range, were led by Lynn Wright's 14 points. Jerry Paul was held to 12, quite a comedown after last Friday's 43-point splurge.

It was Clawson's 3rd league victory in six starts. The setback was a bitter pill for Avondale, whose loop record now stands at 3-2.

Three quick buckets in the last minute of play brought Troy a 62-57 verdict over downtrodden Lake Orion in an Oakland "B" contest at Lake Orion.

The Dragons, now winless in five league attempts and seven overall, fought through a see-saw 4th quarter to gain a 57-56 lead with a minute remaining. Then Sim Acton meshed two baskets and Dick Kelly added another to spell curtains for Orion.

Jim Maurer netted 19 points to pace the Colts to their 2nd loop win in five games. Sophomore Jim Drake topped Hal Carlin's quintet with a booming 27 points.

Madison's Eagles, still hot on the heels of Fitzgerald, invaded Roseville for an Oakland "B" test and handled the Wildcats with ease, 55-38.

Jim Simer and Harold Perkins scored 20 and 19 points respectively to lead the Eagles. Leonard Martyniak was high for the Wildcats with 16 points.

North Branch Rips Capac; Dryden Gets 1st Victory

Undefeated North Branch breezed to its 6th consecutive win Tuesday night at North Branch, overwhelming Capac of the Southern Thumb circuit by a 66-43 count.

Jack Vincent's Broncos, waging a hot war with Imlay City for South Central League honors, grabbed a 30-14 halftime lead and were never headed. Vincent cleared the bench shortly after the 3rd quarter began and the subs finished the game.

Jim Ferrier was high for North Branch with 15 points, followed by Jerry Castle's 12 and Jack Griffin's 10. Usually high-scoring Jim Chernenko was limited to a dozen points, but he still topped Capac.

Monaghan Requests Improved Facilities

NEW YORK (AP) — George P. Monaghan, New York State Harness Racing Commissioner, said today his annual report clearly showed "the unchallenged leadership of New York state harness racing" and he called for new and better facilities for the public and horsemen.

In showing the great growth of the sport since 1940, Monaghan reported record attendance, revenue to the state, wagering, and purse distribution for the 1955 season.

New York's State treasury benefitted to the tune of a record $25,640,225 from trotting last year, as 5,055,841 customers wagered $282,835,009. The 1954 attendance was 5,026,170, with $269,510,458 wagered. State revenue in 1954 was $24,247,708.

Turkeys Doing Well

State's Experiment Finds Big Birds in Good Condition in Two Counties

STATE'S EXPERIMENT—3-17 ..

Reports received by the Conservation Department's game division indicate the big birds are in good condition and quite wild in Allegan and Newaygo counties.

Releases of the wild turkeys were made in 1954 in Allegan state forest and in Lake and Newaygo counties last year in an attempt to re-establish the species in Michigan.

At least 118 turkeys were sighted recently in the southern portion of Allegan state forest, with 16 individual flocks reported.

Four groups of turkeys, numbering from two to 19 birds, have been sighted in Newaygo county. The large group of 19 is isolated and wild and is given the best chance for survival. Of the 79 turkeys released in the county, 35 have been sighted in recent checks.

Success in Lake county has been somewhat lower with reports on only 13 of the 73 birds released. Three or four other birds are thought to be in the county.

The U.S. Forest Service operates a feeding station in the Lake-Newago region, using Conservation Department materials, because of the acorn crop failure which caused winter food shortages for the birds.

More Small Game Hunters Last Year

LANSING—Michigan had more small game hunters last year, but fewer deer hunters, in comparison with 1954.

In sales reported through Dec. 31, resident small game license totals jumped from 601,500 in 1954 to 608,500 last year. Nonresident licenses increased from 5,900 to 6,100.

Meanwhile, without a special "any deer" season in effect, resident deer hunting license returns totaled only 335,600, compared with 363,900 in 1954.

Fox Hunt Scheduled for OCSC on Jan. 29

Oakland County Sportsmen's Club members will take part in a fox hunt, Jan. 29, in the Holly area. Arrangements for the affair are about complete.

Members will meet at the clubhouse at 9:30 a. m. day of the hunt, from where they will be taken to the site by conservation officer Harold Stoll.

No dogs will be used, and only shotguns using No. 2 or smaller shot should be taken.

Ice Fishing of Rainbows Has Legalizing Aspects

By JACK PATTERSON

Should the taking of rainbow trout through the ice in southern Michigan lakes be legalized? Lots of ice fishermen think so and we're not so sure but what they may be right.

It's no secret that quite a few rainbows are taken in the winter and we suspect that the percentage returned to the water falls well short of 100 per cent.

Fishermen are as law abiding as any other group and their resistance to temptation is average, too, which means slight.

So unless there is some compelling reason for winter protection of rainbows, the law might be modified to make the taking of these so-called "pocket perch" legal.

One argument often advanced for a relatively short season on lake rainbows is that they don't spawn successfully in our local lakes, and unless well protected, will be quickly caught out. So what. If they were put in the lakes to be caught by fishermen, which we assume, then let's catch them and put in some more.

PATTERSON

If, on the other hand, they do spawn successfully, then the period of required protection should fall during the spawning season, which is not likely to be midwinter.

Even in lakes which have a good population of rainbows, comparatively few are caught during the open water season. Very few big ones are taken.

If some of these big fellows show a susceptibility to be taken in the winter, which we know from experience to be the case, we don't see that harvesting them is a harmful practice. We are talking about hook and line fishing. Spearing is something else again.

At any rate we would like to see local rainbow lakes open to ice fishing for trout on an experimental basis for a season or so, just to see what would happen.

Ice fishing for other species is picking up considerably around the county. Bluegills on wigglers are the fastest comers, with Pine, Upper Straits, Loon and Walled Lakes providing lots of activity.

In the north, Houghton Lake is providing very good bluegill fishing, pretty fair pike fishing, but walleyes are coming slowly. Best bet right now for walleyes is Black Lake in Cheboygan County.

Perch fishing on Saginaw Bay is currently very good, with perhaps the best fish (but slower fishing) to be found outside the islands.

For the non-fisherman snow conditions in the north are generally good for fooling around with rabbits or chasing wildcats or maybe for a little predator control in the fox and coyote department.

State to Check 10,000 Hunters in Deer Poll

LANSING (AP) — The state conservation department will poll 5,000 deer hunters in the next few days to find out how they made out in the 1955 hunting season.

The hunters, all of whom had licenses to hunt with firearms, will be polled by postcard. Another 2,000 cards will be sent out in two weeks and another 2,000 in March.

In March the department will also poll more than 5,000 small game hunters, 2,000 bow-and-arrow deer hunters and 200 who had camp deer permits.

HIS FIRST PIKE — Merle Laurain, 145 West Fairmount avenue, Pontiac, enjoyed his biggest fishing thrill the other day. As the picture above shows, Laurain speared a big pike, on Pettibone Lake, near Holly. The 11¾ pounder, 37 inches long, was the 1st pike the angler ever caught. "It was the only fish I got, too," Laurain reported. And the "expedition" was only his 3rd at ice-fishing.

Perch Fishing Derby Saturday

Metropolitan Contest Was Postponed From Last Weekend

Metropolitan Beach on Lake St. Clair will be the scene of southeastern Michigan's 4th annual Ice Fishing Derby, Saturday, Jan. 21, from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m., park authorities said today.

The perch fishing contest was postponed for a week, from Saturday, Jan. 14, when an ice jam in the St. Clair river lowered the water level in Lake St. Clair, undermining the ice in some spots. While the ice continued solid enough for routine crowds, it was deemed unwise to stage the derby, which annually draws upward of 5,000 persons.

James Pompo, beach manager, said that only a severe thaw could require a 2nd postponement.

Eighteen trophies will be given for largest perch, total poundage of perch catch, most original tackle, and to the oldest man and woman participating.

Wings Give State Pucksters Lesson

EAST LANSING (AP)—The National Hockey League champion Detroit Red Wings toyed with Michigan State and coasted to a 9-3 victory in an exhibition of big league hockey talent last night.

At the same time the Spartans, who have fared poorly in Western Intercollegiate Hockey League play, showed promise of better things to come when three freshmen netted a goal apiece—the total MSU output.

The three are Glenn MacDonald, Keither Christoffsen and Ken Hamilton.

Detroit built up a 5-0 1st period lead, then took it easy.

An Artificial Excuse

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — Three hunters were fined $100 each for using an artificial light while bearing firearms capable of killing deer. They pleaded innocent and testified they weren't hunting but that two of them were flashing a spotlight through the woods so one of the party could see a deer at night.

Many Questons Concern Fish, Game Outlook in '56

By MORT NEFF

What is the outlook for Michigan's big army of sportsmen for 1956? Will inland lake fishing improve? What about trout fishing in some 15,000 miles of classified streams? How is the battle with the sea lamphrey progressing? Can we expect good deer hunting next fall? And will the heavy kill of pheasants last fall have an effect on 1956 hunting? These are questions in the mind of every hunter and fisherman as we face the new year.

NEFF

The new year is almost sure to find more fishermen than ever before on both our lakes and streams.

Research parties from our Michigan Department of Conservation fish division are moving rapidly in a statewide survey of major lakes, establishing the populations of various species of fish, and determining the amount of available food for the fish.

In some instances restocking may be feasible, but for the most part the opposite may well be true.

And, in more and more lakes every year biologists are finding good reason to plant legal sized trout which do not spawn in the lakes, but do grow to sizes up to 10 pounds within a short span of time. In future years more and more fishermen are destined to discover that fishing for these big trout is terrific sport!

Stream fishing for trout will probably yield about the same number of fish, with the "put-and-take" planting program still in progress.

Despite vigorous efforts to isolate a specific poison to kill young lampreys in their spawning streams, the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service can make no promises that the battle against the sea lamprey is swinging definitely one way or the other.

As for hunting, close to a half million deer hunters may look for the same luck next year, with a kill in excess of 65,000 bucks providing the current severe winter does not result in heavy starvation. The pheasant crop may well reach an all time high this coming fall, with normal nesting conditions in the spring.

State Hatchery Preparing for Spring Activity

Fry Tanks Cleaned, Dry Ponds Getting Fertilizer Supply

Preparations are under way at the State Fish Hatchery at Drayton Plains for the spring program. Winter affords the hatchery men their only opportunity for cleaning up the plant, to get it ready for hatching and stocking.

Just now fry tanks, in which tiny fish mature enough for planting later on, are being cleaned and repainted. Rearing ponds, which been emptied, and allowed to freeze, are being treated to fertilizer. The ponds have already been sowed to rye, and the plants, sprouting in the spring will provide food for the tiny fish. Conditioning of pond screens provide a lot of work at this time.

"First fry," says Harold Hughes, veteran hatchery head, "usually go into the ponds about the middle of May. But the time, of course, depends up on the seasonal conditions."

"We don't know just how many will be hatched, or exactly what the plans are in this connection, at this time." Hughes added.

"Then, if we have some muskies, these will go in a little later."

Lake trout, which have had some good recovery marks in two county lakes (Cass and Maceday) probably will be stocked again. Details of the trout program will be ready soon. The trout are not reared at the Drayton Plains plant, but are received there for stocking.

Derby Champ Swaps in Catalina Handicap

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Swaps, the Kentucky Derby champion, has been entered in the $25,000 Santa Catalina Handicap at Santa Anita on Jan. 21. If he runs, it will be his first since losing the match race to Nashua last summer in the battle of 3-year-olds.

Since that time, Swaps has undergone an operation on an ailing hoof. He has been working out at the local track and owner Rex Ellsworth reports steady progress.

Boxers Leading Breed in OCKC Weekend Show

Total 47 in Heavy Entry List of 634 Dogs of All Kinds

With a near-record entry list of some 634 dogs of all breeds Oakland County Kennel Club's 1956 show, Sunday, at Northville, promises to be one of the biggest affairs of its kind in the area this year.

It will be the first winter show ever conducted by the club. Site is the new Northville Community Center. Leading the entry list are 47 boxers. Collies provide the next largest total, with 37.

According to show officials dogs have been entered from many states, including Pennsylvania, Illinois, southern Kentucky and others, besides a heavy Michigan list.

Takes Two to Get Bear

WEST POINT, Va. (AP)—James A. Hand killed the first bear bagged in King William County in more than 50 years. When his dogs barked he grabbed a .22 rifle (not recommended for bear) and shot the 250-pound bear in the neck. It bit him in the leg. While clubbing it with the rifle butt, a friend killed the bear with a shotgun.

Brazilians Prolong the State of Siege

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—The Chamber of Deputies voted 147-83 last night to approve a second 30-day extension in a state of siege for Brazil.

Under the new act, the modified martial law would continue until Feb. 26. It must be approved also by the Senate.

The stage of siege was proclaimed originally to prevent the Supreme Court from considering President Joao Cafe Filho's petition that he be returned to office. The government of Caretaker President Nereu Ramos, who took over when Cafe had a heart attack, charged Cafe was involved in a plot to prevent the inauguration of President - elect Juscelino Kubitschek.

CHICAGO (AP) — Grains had a nervous undertone in active dealings on the Board of Trade today. Price changes were not very large.

The market opened steady with no sign of continuation of the selling movement which prevailed yesterday. But when no buying power developed, selling pressure again expanded and all cereals sank below the previous close.

There was a fairly good demand on the way down and once the selling pressure let up prices rebounded.

Mixed Dealings in Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was quite mixed today with trading attention focused on motors and steel — and Ford stock traded over the counter. Trading in the newly issued Ford stock was fast, and the price slowly subsided throughout the morning and into the early afternoon.

Ford originally was issued at 64½, and late yesterday in New York the stock was bid at 69¾ and offered at 70¼. Today one of the first quotations was 69⅝ bid and 69⅞ offered. At noon the quotation was 68 bid and 68¼ offered. The earlier high was 70-70¼.

Throughout the stock market most price changes were fractional with only a few wide movers.

General Motors opened on 15,000 shares up ⅜ at 45⅛ and it continued trading actively unchanged or with a slight gain. Chrysler pushed its gain to around a point but also traded at a small loss.

Steels made a little progress. Also higher, or mixed to higher, were the aircrafts, chemicals, coppers, and oils. Rails were lower.

At noon, Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at $176.90. It was up 70 cents yesterday but it fell $2.10 on Monday.

Comic Prefers Show on Film

Hopes He Will Attain Composure in Order to Enjoy His Success

This is the last of three articles providing an intimate closeup of comedian Phil Silvers, just named television's "Man of the Year."

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
NNS Staff Writer

One of the biggest "kicks" of Phil Silvers' career came when he learned that his "You'll Never Get Rich" TV show had surpassed the rating of Milton Berle.

"I could hardly believe that my rating was higher than Milton's," said Silvers. "Here was a show I had planned for months, and it comes off! What a marvelous feeling!"

This was last Nov. 15 — eight weeks after the Silvers show went on the air. It was the first time since 1947 that Berle had been outrated in his time spot.

The Phil Silvers show is carefully planned and deftly executed. It is filmed 12 weeks in advance of its showing on the screen.

LIKE BEAVERS

Silvers and his Army platoon of comics work like beavers. They rehearse each show for several days early in the week at the Nola Studios above Lindy's Restaurant on Broadway. These are called "dry runs."

When it's all over Silvers is usually pretty tired. But he immediately starts planning next week's performance.

TOO MANY SETS

"We couldn't do it 'live' because we use too many sets and often there are costume changes to be made," said Silvers. "There wouldn't be time to do all this on a 'live' show."

I asked Silvers to explain how he is able to get laughs so consistently.

"Well," he confided, "I subconsciously pattern myself after the late Ted Healy. He was one of the all-time comedy greats—a big star of Shubert shows and vaudeville.

"In the old vaudeville days every actor trembled when he played the Palace. Not Healy. He'd saunter on to the stage completely relaxed. He'd wisecrack: 'So this is the Palace! As far as I'm concerned, to heck with you!' And the audience loved it.

Silvers recalled the time he went to Washington and appeared before President Eisenhower, Cabinet members and other notables. He stood on the stage for almost a minute without uttering a word. Then he turned, gazed fixedly at the President, and asked: "Who's minding the store?"

It went over big.

WANTS COMPOSURE

Asked his ambition in life, now that he has achieved fame, Silvers replied:

"My ambition is to attain a composure so as to enjoy what is happening to me. I still haven't reached the top but I'm trying all the time. I'm so intent on pleasing, and being entertaining, that my life is quite turbulent.

* * *

One final question: Which interests him more—fame or fortune?

"I'm not a materially minded guy," he replied, slowly. "I make around $250,000 a year. But I don't go after more by investing in business ventures on the outside which might raise my income up to $500,000 a year.

"I always say, you can't be an actor and a businessman at the same time.

Thumb Area Fires Under Investigation

BAY PORT (AP)—State Police are investigating a wave of fires which have caused losses estimated at a total of $325,000 in the tip of the Thumb Area during the last two weeks.

The Wallace & Morley Co. elevator company scene of a $125,000 fire last weekend, got another scare yesterday when employes spotted smoke pouring from a chimney in the elevator.

Bay Port, Pigeon and Tyre fire departments were called. The Bay Port department arrived first and discovered the smoke was caused by an overheated furnace on the ground floor.

Other recent fires were a $75,000 blaze at the Brinker Lumber Co. in Bad Axe Jan. 4 and one at the Wolohan lumber yard in Birch Run Jan. 9, with an estimated loss of $125,000.

Lone Gunman Holds Up Saginaw Finance Firm

SAGINAW (AP) — A lone gunman held up the Household Finance Corp. office here last night and fled with an undetermined amount of cash after forcing the manager to open the safe.

Claude Stevens, the manager, said he was alone in the second floor office when the gunman entered and ordered him ot turn over the contents of the safe.

Stevens said the man scooped up several bags of coins and some packs of bills and left after ordering him into the washroom.

Press Search for Boy

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Police today pressed a search for Bert Leroy Temple, 13-year-old Grand Rapids boy who disappeared Saturday. The boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Temple, said they could offer no reason for his disappearance. He is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 145 pounds and has brown hair and blue eyes.

Ed Can't Make It

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"The Ed Sullivan Story" won't be filmed this season, Warner Bros. studio said yesterday. Sullivan, Broadway columnist and star of a television variety show, can't arrange his commitments to absent himself for the eight weeks required to film a story about his life, the studio said.

Dickens Expert Quits Quiz Show —Takes $32,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Mabel Morris, a 75-year-old retired school teacher who has been receiving city financial aid, took her $32,000 winnings and quit the $64,000 Question CBS television quiz show last night.

She said doctors had examined her pulse and told her the excitement of trying for the grand prize would be too great.

Mrs. Morris, an English - born widow, had reached the $32,000 mark in four previous sessions of the show by answering complicated questions about Charles Dickens and his books—her chosen category.

She has been a resident of the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews for several years.

Mrs. Morris has said she would repay $6,000 or $7,000 to the City Welfare Department, which has contributed to her upkeep at the home. Approximately $14,000 in federal taxes and $2,000 in state taxes will have to be paid.

Even though she will have about $9,000 or $10,000 left for herself, an official at the home said her desire to remain there would be worked out somehow.

Traffic Safety Award Winner Killed in Crash

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—William Drennon, 38, winner of a safety award for 350,000 accident-free miles of driving, was killed yesterday in a traffic accident.

A car driven by Mrs. Dorothy Anne Allen, 41, struck the rear fender of his department store delivery truck, sheriff's officers said, and caused it to flip over. Drennon was pinned underneath.

He was awarded a $100 check last June by the department store for his 15-year traffic safety record.

Junk Plane Requested for Backyard Flying

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Tinker Air Force Base usually has a crew of men who do nothing but dispose of no longer useful airplanes—but a request received yesterday has base personnel stumped.

The request came in a letter addressed simply to "Tinker, Oklahoma City," and asked about obtaining one slightly used airplane to "set in my yard to learn how to fly."

The letter was signed by Johnny Smith and Johnny Hernandez, aged 13 and 14, respectively, of McAlester.

Wants His Tools Back

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Harold Loving, a convicted gambler, has filed suit against Police Chief Roy Bergman to recover 406 dice seized in a raid by officers.

The printing industry is the sixth largest industry in America.

Seek Tougher Israeli Censure

Big 3 May Change U.N. Resolution Condemning Raids on Syrian Posts

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States, Britain and France were expected to make last-minute changes today to toughen their proposed U.N. Security Council resolution condemning Israel for its Dec. 11 raid on Syrian posts along the Sea of Galilee.

The sponsors of the Western proposal hoped to win approval of their amended resolution at a council meeting this afternoon.

The Big Three worked out the revisions in talks here yesterday with Iranian Delegate Djalal Abdoh. Informed delegates said Abdoh wanted the Western resolution stiffened to please Syria and to "remove further ground for Soviet propaganda" among Arab countries.

COMPENSATION SOUGHT

The Iranian proposed that the Big Three call for payment of compensation to Syria for her 56 soldiers killed in the attack and for property damage. He also proposed that they delete a mention of Syrian interference with Israeli activities on the Sea of Galilee, which lies within Israel near the Syrian frontier.

Israel, which lost six men in the raid, has said that Syrian firing on her fishing and police boats on the lake provoked the attack.

The Big Three revised their resolution to say that Syrian interference with the Israelis "in no way justifies the Israeli action."

Indian Talks to Reds

GENEVA (AP)—India's roving ambassador Krishna Menon, met yesterday with Wang Ping - Nan, Red China's ambassador to Poland and chief delegate in the 24-weeks-old negotiations here with the United States.
