Mayor Cites Progress, Setbacks in 1967

By BOB WISLER

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr., in his annual address on Pontiac affairs during the preceding year, outlined progress in a number of areas and made a strong plea for cooperation in meeting problems in 1968. Taylor delivered his address at last night's City Commission meeting.

Taylor, in making his fourth annual State of the City address, also reported large disappointments during the year and labled adequate financing the city's most acute problem.

He pointed out steps taken by the city in providing this financing; in construction of utility systems, drains, streets and roads; in updating traffic patterns and street lighting; in attempts to rejuvenate the downtown area; and in providing new housing.

Although not specifically spelled out the biggest disappointment alluded to was the failure of the Taubman plan, counted on at the beginning of 1967 as the impetus for redevelopment of the downtown area.

A. Alfred Taubman, an Oak Park developer, had an agreement with the city for much of the year to bring two large department stores to the downtown area for construction of new facilities.

"As the deadline for the expiration of this agreement approached, it seemed certain that two major, nationally known retailers would locate in the new complex," Taylor said.

"However, at the last moment, top-level decisions on the part of the retailers' management changed the course and this eliminated the interest of Mr. Taubman, even though he had expended thousands of dollars on plans and proposals," the mayor said.

He said the city is now looking for developers to take over the downtown urban renewal land.

Almost apprehensively, Taylor called for strong steps by all citizens to avoid recurrences of last summer's civil disturbances.

NEEDS OF CENTRAL CITY

"If our city and its immediate suburban area are to be spared the turmoil and chaos in the future, of the type experienced last summer, it will be done by faith, exercising both intelligence and good will as to the needs of the central city," he said.

"Those who really care about our community will come forward with all they have to correct the ills and restore confidence in our future," he said.

"In 1968, Pontiac will need, more than ever before, understanding citizens —businessmen, large retailers and industry — who will appreciate the important, indispensable part they must play in deciding the positive steps and action to be taken in going forward with the ultimate goal of providing employment, housing and rebuilding comprehensively our retail business area to the very best of our ability," the mayor said.

LBJ to Address Nation Tonight

War, Domestic Spending Plans to Be Disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson gives the nation tonight his formula for balancing the financial demands of the Vietnam war against the need to curb crime in the streets and to rehabilitate riot-breeding city slums.

The President is expected to reiterate in his nationally televised State of the Union message to a joint session of Congress that he is exploring every avenue that might lead to peace.

But advance indications were that North Vietnam's latest stated conditions for opening peace talks—a halt in U.S. bombing of the North and "other acts of aggression"—still was under exhaustive examination.

To an election-year Congress already breathing fire about any increase in spending, the President is expected to disclose that expenditures will be $11 billion higher—possibly a little more—for administrative purposes than in the current fiscal year ending June 30.

For complete details on television coverage of President Johnson's State of the Union address tonight, see page D-15

Republicans are prepared to respond at once to Johnson's proposals. GOP congressional leaders have slated a news conference for one-half hour after Johnson concludes his speech, and eight Republican governors will jointly discuss the message with newsmen tomorrow morning.

A new "unified" budget, taking into account for the first time income and outgo from huge government trust funds, was said to be geared to a "significant drop" below the $18-billion or $19-billion deficit for this year.

Sources reported yesterday the total spending program definitely will be below $190 billion for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Administrative spending — the basis most commonly used before the advent of the unified budget — was said to run between $145 billion and $150 billion, compared with the current fiscal year total of between $136 billion and $137 billion.

Romney Favors Hanoi-Saigon Talks in Viet

From Our News Wires

SALEM, N.H. — Gov. Romney of Michigan wants direct peace talks between Hanoi and Saigon to end the war in Vietnam, and says the struggle is not being properly waged militarily.

Romney, winding up a one-week swing through the White Mountains, campaigning for votes in the March 12 presidential primary in New Hampshire, also cautioned the Saigon government to watch its words and its deeds.

Speaking at a news conference here yesterday, the Michigan governor said:

"My general feeling is that we have relied too heavily on 'search and destroy' rather than 'clear and hold' in Vietnam."

★ ★ ★

Romney warned the government in Saigon to "recognize that other nations are losing lives and sacrificing a great deal, and that the international community has a great deal at stake, here, too."

Romney also said he believed that the people of South Vietnam, in supervised, free elections, should indicate what form of government they want, and that the United States ought to abide by the decision, even if the vote were favorable to communism.

U.S. COLONEL KILLED — The body of Col. John D. Webber Jr., 47, lies on a stretcher after he was slain by machine-gun fire yesterday in Guatemala. He was the apparent victim of a wave of politico-gangster violence ravaging the Central American country. Webber, from Houston, Tex., was the head of the U.S. military group in Guatemala since 1966. Other men in the photo are Guatemalan firemen who came to the aid of Webber. (Story, Page A-2.)

Birmingham Teacher Talks Reach 2nd Tentative Pact

A marathon negotiating session yesterday at a Bloomfield Township motel led to the second tentative contract agreement this school year for teachers in the Birmingham school district.

The pact, between representatives of the board of education and the Birmingham Education Association (BEA), was reached at around 2:30 a.m. Details were not disclosed.

A last crucial hurdle must be cleared before the agreement takes effect and that is ratification by the two parties. Previously, a tentative settlement was reached Nov. 11, but rejected in a vote of BEA members.

Contract talks began early yesterday afternoon, and cut short last night's regularly scheduled board meeting.

A crowd of around 200 jammed the Baldwin School gymnasium to hear the board's scheduled discussion on the possibility of unilaterally adopting an interim salary schedule and calendar for the rest of the school year, pending settlement.

However, Board President Pell Hollingshead reported last night that negotiations were in a "very tender" stage.

Mild Days Ahead, Says Weatherman

The weatherman's crystal ball forecasts some mild winter days immediately ahead for Michigan.

Except for expected light snow or rain tonight and tomorrow in northern areas of the state, the U.S. Weather Bureau predicts above-normal temperatures and no more precipitation through the weekend.

The mercury will slip to a low of 20 to 25 tonight and aim for the mid-30s tomorrow. Skies will be partly cloudy through Friday.

The low temperature in downtown Pontiac prior to 8 a.m. was 10. The mercury reached 30 by 2 p.m.

Annexation Bid Defeated

A large turnout of voters yesterday in Wolverine Lake Village and Commerce Township blocked their annexation into the City of Walled Lake.

While the village and township residents expressed a definite no in most areas, city voters voiced an overwhelming yes.

Simple majorities in the township and the two areas of the village up for annexation and in the city were needed to carry the proposal.

Of the 885 registered voters in the 10 square miles of the township up for annexation, 594 voted no and 92 voted yes.

★ ★ ★

The only narrow margin (30 votes) appeared in the southeast portion of the village with 158 voting no and 128 yes out of 339 registered voters.

AFFIRMATIVE VOTES

Most of the affirmative votes came from the Helmsford area in Wolverine Lake Heights subdivision, according to Village Manager Clifford Cottrell.

Of the 36 registered voters in the south portion of the village proposed for annexation, 24 voted no and 10 yes.

In the city, 447 of 1,166 registered voters, went to the polls to consider the three annexation questions.

City residents voted 388 yes and 40 no to annex the township area; 363 yes and 46 no to annex the southeastern part of the village; and 371 yes and 43 no to annex the southern parcel.

GUIDELINE

Despite the election outcome, City Manager Royce L. Downey says he is "happy." He explained that now the city at least has a definite guideline for the future.

"We had planned to develop an industrial and commercial tax base for the entire area," he added. "Now we will concentrate on the city."

Downey also regards the results as protection against criticism that the city never offered to help its neighbors.

★ ★ ★

While the city has no further plans to change its boundaries, Downey said the city would aid outsiders who wanted to join the city.

PETITIONS ON FILE

The village, however, has on file with the county clerk petitions to incorporate itself and part of the township as a homerule city.

"Any change of status or boundaries is up to the citizens," stressed Village Manager Cottrell. "We're open for suggestions."

Viewing the election results, the manager said he expected the outcome all along.

City Defers Action on Property Tax Cut

As far as city commissioners are concerned the city is not out of the income tax legal thicket yet.

Last night, after considerable discussion; they decided not to pass a resolution calling for a 3-mill property tax cut.

The cut was promised by commissioners last year contingent on successful passage of an income tax ordinance.

Although Oakland County Circuit Court Judge William J. Beer recently declared the tax valid, income tax foes are hard at work attempting to overturn that decision.

★ ★ ★

Robert D. Coon, attorney representing Cecil C. Mullinix, who engineered a petition drive to force a referendum election on the vote, this morning said papers would be filed with the State Court of Appeals attempting to halt any further collection of income tax money.

This, if granted, would prohibit collection until a final court decision on an appeal now in process.

APPEAL FILED

Coon and his law partner, Robert D. Cunningham, have filed an appeal with the court of appeals seeking to overturn a Beer decision that paved the way for collection of Pontiac income taxes.

The commission last night asked Director of Law Sherwin M. Birnkrant to attempt in the public interest to seek an early hearing in the court of appeals.

The question to be decided by that court is whether Judge Beer erred in not letting Mullinix's attorneys defend the validity of nominating petitions seeking the election.

Beer said Mullinix did not have the right to intervene in the case thus shutting his attorneys off from defending the petitions, which were declared invalid by Beer.

'SHOULD NOT SPEND'

District 4 Commissioner Leslie H. Hudson said the city should not spend any income tax funds until it was certain that the income tax is collectable.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. said the commission feels bound by the promise to cut the property tax if the income tax holds up.

But, he said, because of the seeming uncertainty right now of the validity of the income tax, cuts in the city's general operating budget could be forthcoming.

District 2 Commissioner Robert C. Irwin said it would be presumptive to authorize the property tax cut at this time in view of the legal fight.

Housing Project Purchase Authorized by Commission

City commissioners last night authorized the purchase of the 72-unit Crystal Beach housing project in the southwest section of the city.

The commission, by a 5-2 vote, authorized City Manager Joseph A. Warren to spend $57,500 to purchase the units, called the most delapidated in the city.

The project was built as emergency housing during World War II by the federal government and was sold to private owners in 1956.

Owners last year offered the project to the city at half of its value, to be determined by different independent appraisals.

District 2 Commissioner Robert C. Irwin and District 5 Commissioner John A. Dugan voted against the measure.

CODE ENFORCEMEENT

Irwin said the city could be vigorously persuing code enforcement against the owners to force them to make the units habitable.

He said the purchase of such housing could lead to similar requests by groups who objected to the buildings in their areas and foresaw considerable costs of maintenance and repair.

Under terms of the proposed sale the city would have to eliminate the housing within three years.

Irwin said upkeep could be $500 per unit, or $34,500 and demolition of the units would cost $30,000.

District 4 Commissioner Leslie H. Hudson said, "It's a question of how you spend money, how much cancer you want to cut out."

He noted that the funds would come from the capital improvement fund, which is solvent, and said corrective action, or code enforcement, would only lengthen the life of the units.

"We're talking about a cost of $800 per unit . . . This (the price) certainly tells me we should get it out of the city," he said.

Hudson said the city has many times bought structures for demolition on an individual basis. "Now we are doing it on a 72-unit basis," he said.

District 6 Commissioner Wesley J. Wood countered Dugan's argument that the city had not been involved in this type of transaction before.

"There are a lot of things we haven't done before that we've been doing. I think it is time we move and clean up some of these slums."

Owners of the housing agreed to sell the project after the Internal Revenue Service authorized a income tax deduction for them if they would donate half the estimated value to the city.

Airport Gets New Manager

The Oakland-Pontiac Airport has a new manager and the former manager has been promoted by the county government.

The new airport manager is Joseph Davis, 39, of 88 Oriole, the former assistant manager.

J. David Vander Veen, 30, of 2181 Garland has moved to a position as administrative assistant to the board of auditors. The airport manager's post has an annual salary of $12,800 and Vander Veen's new job pays $13,500.

Davis worked for the County Road Commission prior to starting work at the airport in March 1967. VanderVeen was airport manager when the county took over the operation from Pontiac in February 1967.

British Purses Due for Added Squeeze

LONDON (AP) — The British government readied another swing of the economy axe today with a new squeeze on the average Briton's pocketbook. Curbs on installment buying and higher taxes on buying for home use were expected.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins was to outline the latest dose of bad news as he opened a two-day debate in the House of Commons on the Labor governments postdevaluation program. The debate will end with a vote on a Conservative motion of no confidence which Labor's big majority in Commons is certain to defeat.

★ ★ ★

Prime Minister Harold Wilson told Commons and the nation Tuesday that his government was accelerating the abandonment of Britain's historic role as a military power east of Suez and shrinking the dimensions of the welfare state because the nation could not pay the bill.

The government's aim is to shift manpower, investment capital and materials to export industries so increased sales abroad will put the balance of payments back into the black. Now that devaluation provides a price advantage in the export market, the problem is to make the resources available for production and reduce the supply of consumer goods for British buyers.

The economy program represents a basic shift in policy, at home as well as abroad. The military cuts end Britain's already diminished role as policeman of the Far East and the Persian Gulf. The cuts at home in housing, education, free medicine and social security ushered in a new kind of welfare state in which benefits may be paid according to need.

The Labor party's doctrinaire socialists, for whom the welfare state and government domination of industry are articles of faith, appeared to have been mollified initially by the huge military cuts appealing to their pacifist and antiimperialist principles.

The only member of the Cabinet to resign was Lord Longford, the leader of the House of Lords. The government's last Old Etonian, he rebelled against cuts for state high schools. He had been due to retire soon and was replaced by Lord Shackleton, son of the famous polar explorer.

In Washington, the State Department said the U.S. government, has no plans to move in where British forces pull out from the Middle East to Singapore. But Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said he is "certain we will be asked to fill the vacuum east of Suez."

BOMBERS CANCELED

The U.S. government expressed regret that Britain found it necessary to withdraw troops and cancel a billion-dollar order for 50 F111 fighter-bombers from the United States.

General Dynamics, maker of the F111, said in Fort Worth, Tex., that its contract is to build F111s for the U.S. government, no matter where the planes go later. Reports published in Fort Worth said the government has given no indication it will amend its present contract for 493 F111s, of which Britain was to have received 50.

On London's financial markets, the pound recovered today and the stock market calmed down. The sterling rate against the U.S. dollar moved up about 10 points to $2.4084.

The Bank of England had to step in and buy sterling Tuesday after a sharp fall in the pound. But the Bank was not believed to be supporting the pound this morning, and dealers reported buying from several continental centers.

Homeless Sicilians Pray as Quakes End

PALERMO, Sicily (UPI) — Thousands of homeless Sicilians prayed around bonfires in freezing weather today to give thanks that the island's worst earthquakes in two generations apparently were over. Twenty-eight shocks leveled whole towns.

Crabinieri national police in Rome said 146 bodies have been recovered. But the federal public works ministry said more than 250 were known dead.

Thousands of soldiers, police and firemen were still digging through rubble of a dozen towns in the poor, remote hills of western Sicily.

Hundreds of thousands spent a third icy night in the open last night — many out of fear and at least 20,000 because their homes were destroyed.

The series of tremors began Monday. An apparent final violent jolt jarred Palermo late yesterday afternoon.

Seven persons, including a woman and her two-year-old child, were rescued in Gibillina last night. They had spent 36 hours beneath a pile of debris that had been their home. The woman's husband and two children were crushed to death in their beds.

The damage was not yet officially estimated but was expected to run to scores of millions of dollars. The Rome newspaper II Messaggero estimated Sicily would need $250 million in aid.

City OKs Purchase of Housing Project

The purchase price is roughly 50 per cent of a price fixed by appraisals and negotiations.

Dugan said the city, which would have the responsibility of relocating tenants, might have considerable difficulty doing so.

District 1 Commissioner T. Warren Fowler Sr. said the city should be able to do so in three years and said the planned 525-unit low income rent supplement housing project on Kennett could assimilate a good number of the tenants.

Most of the commissioners said the condition of the housing was largely the reluctance of the owners to properly maintain the structures.

One Interim Paper Struck by Teamsters

DETROIT (AP) — Teamsters truck drivers striking the Detroit News today struck two interim newspapers, then withdrew picket lines from one of them, saying it had satisfied demands that it hire idle union members.

Pickets were maintained, however, at the two printing plants of the Daily Express and the paper did not complete its press run for today's edition.

The dispute arose over a contract which the Express and the Daily Press signed with the Teamsters in which they promised to hire all union members needing work as a result of the truck drivers strike against the afternoon News.

COMMUNITY LEADERS—Flint Mayor Floyd J. McCree (left) was introduced as a guest speaker in Bloomfield Township last night by the township's supervisor, Homer Case. McCree spoke at Devon Gables to the county chapter of the National Association of Social Workers on the current social crisis.

'Equality Possible Without Violence'

By ED BLUNDEN

"Equality without violence can be accomplished," Flint Mayor Floyd J. McCree, a Negro, told an Oakland County audience last night.

The current social crisis was the theme of his speech to the county chapter of the National Association of Social Workers at Devon Gables, Bloomfield Township.

McCree said this must be "equality with meaning . . . We must work with, not for, the disadvantaged."

During the disturbances of last summer, McCree said he and the leaders in Flint were "gripped with fear by threats of violence from clean-cut Negro youths who were not hoodlums."

He described the outbreak as occurring when "alienated Negro youths, distrusting their leadership, struck out to destroy the communities that neglected them.

"It had to happen," he said.

HISTORY TRACED

McCree traced the history of the Negro in America and told why "they were unable to lift themselves by their boot straps" as other minority groups had done.

He cited how laws were passed against them and de facto segregation confined them in northern ghettos.

McCree quoted statistics on how the Negro still suffers economically in spite of advances in the last few years.

★ ★ ★

He attacked the skilled trade unions with having practiced segregation since their formation. McCree said as long as the Negro was needed he was welcomed in the factories; but that in the last five years, with unskilled labor less in demand, Negroes were regressing economically due to their lack of skills, education and opportunity.

TWO AMERICAS

McCree said, "We live in two Americas, and there is no passport office to go to."

Elaborating on "equality with meaning" the mayor gave as goals for the Negro community:

- A larger role in decision-making.
- Learning skills and a chance to use them.
- Appreciation of their own heritage.
- Restored faith in their leadership.

Guatemalan Red Terrorists Kill Two Top U.S. Officers

GUATEMALA (AP) — A pro-Castro revolutionary organization said today that it was responsible for the machine-gun slaying of the top two U.S. military officers in Guatemala.

A typewritten communique signed Rebel Armed Forces—FAR—said the U.S. military mission had "ordered the Guatemalan army to create groups of assassins" against guerrillas and the FAR "decided to mete out justice."

Firing from a speeding car into the Americans' car near the Guatemalan Air Force's headquarters Tuesday, machine-gunners killed U.S. Army Col. John D. Webber Jr., 47, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Ernest A. Munro, 40, and wounded Army Sgt. Maj. John R. Forster, 42, and Marine Sgt. Harry L. Greene, 41.

Greene was reported in critical condition, but Forster was discharged from the hospital after treatment of an arm wound.

'STATE OF ALARM'

The Guatemalan Cabinet proclaimed a "state of alarm"—modified martial law—in an attempt to check a mounting wave of terrorism by both extreme rightists and extreme leftists as well as gangsters taking advantage of the political turmoil.

A burst of machine-gun fire earlier Tuesday killed former Guatemalan congressman Alejandro Silva Falla, 40, and his 20-year-old bodyguard was killed in an exchange of fire with the gunmen. Silva's name had appeared on a list circulated in June by rightists saying that all who served communism would be executed.

In a third attack Tuesday, gunmen missed Manuel Villacorta Vielman, former vice presidential candidate from the strongly anti-Communist National Liberation Movement, but wounded his 20-year-old son.

26 KILLED

The government says 26 persons have been killed this month by terrorists. The state of alarm proclaimed by the government permits arrests without charges, imposes censorship, prohibits the carrying of firearms except by authorized persons and bans assemblies of more than four persons.

Webber, a native of Buffalo, N.Y., who listed Houston, Tex., as his home, had been head of the U.S. military advisory group in Guatemala since 1966. Munro, a native of Lake Worth, Fla., with a home in Rockland, Maine, was head of the U.S. naval section. Greene, the group's communications adviser, was from Omaha, Neb. The families of all three men were with them in Guatemala.

Runner-Up Takes Over as City's Junior Miss

The Pontiac Junior Miss runner-up, Beth Ellen Vershure, has taken over the responsibilities of Pontiac's Junior Miss in time for the state pageant in Pontiac next week.

Patricia Guy, 17, resigned as Pontiac Junior Miss, for personal reasons.

Beth, a senior at Pontiac Central High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vershure of 1865 Sherwood, Sylvan Lake.

Some 47 Junior Misses from throughout the state will be at Northern High School, Jan. 27 and 28, competing in the 10th annual state Junior Miss Pageant.

★ ★ ★

The winner of the pageant, sponsored by the Pontiac Area Junior Chamber of Commerce, will receive a trip to the national finals in Mobile, Ala., in March to compete for the National Junior Miss title.

PRIZE SCHOLARSHIPS

Scholarships given at the State pageant will include $1,000 Coca-Cola Bottlers of Michigan scholarship, $100 scholarship from Community National Bank, $500 savings bond from Chevrolet Division, General Motors Corp., and $25 savings bond from Pontiac State Bank.

The winner will be chosen after judging of physical fitness, talent, poise and appearance in evening dress.

Tickets for Saturday afternoon and Saturday evening performances and the Sunday final performance will be available at the door, or they can be obtained at the Pontiac Chamber of Commerce office in the Riker Building and the C. R. Haskill studio, 1 University.

2nd Foundry Struck by UAW

5,800 Workers Idled at Saginaw Plant

DETROIT (AP) — A second General Motors foundry was shut down today as the United Auto Workers Union called a strike over failure to reach agreement on a local contract.

Today's walkout hit GM's Chevrolet Grey Foundry in Saginaw, idling some 5,800 workers. It followed by 24 hours a similar strike over local issues affecting another 3,000 workers at the company's foundry in Defiance, Ohio.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile negotiators reached agreement on contracts at GM's Cadillac plant, the Oldsmobile Forge facility and a Buick plant in Flint.

Union officials agreed to extend strike deadlines at Chevrolet plants in Muncie and Indianapolis, Ind. Deadlines had been set for 9:15 a.m.

NO AGREEMENTS

The developments reduced to seven the number GM plants without local agreements.

The UAW also has set strike deadlines for Friday at two GM plants in New York—the Chevrolet Foundry at Tonawanda and Rochester Products in Rochester.

The company said walkouts at some of the plants could cause parts shortages which would force the giant auto firm to shut down other operations.

Riot Study Unit Makes Suggestions

LANSING (AP) — Passage of state open housing and tenants' rights laws, legalized abortions in certain cases, more cooperation among local governments and more state aid to cities and schools were recommended today by a special governor's commission.

Painting a grim picture of the condition of Michigan's 10 metropolitan areas, the 47-member Special Commission on Urban Problems warned also that improving the picture will take time and cost money.

"The solution of these problems will require the expenditure of such large sums of money that the local urban area will have to depend heavily upon financial assistance from both state and federal governments," it concluded, adding:

"If the central cities decay, it appears almost a certainty that this decay will move in concentric circles until the whole metropolitan areas are enveloped. Neither the central city nor suburbia can go it alone—their destinies are inextricably interwoven."

The commission, appointed by Gov. George Romney, made public today in an 82-page booklet recommendations made by its six committees, but not necessarily endorsed by the full commission.

Lt. Gov. William Milliken said the group's report "is evidence that sound answers do exist to these problems and that concerned citizens are prepared to help build a better urban Michigan."

Woman Unhurt in Area Blast

An explosion rocked a Waterford Township home at about 11:30 this morning, causing an estimated $8,000 to $10,000 damage.

Township firemen said the occupant, Mary Fleck, was not hurt in the blast at 1152 Boston.

Firemen estimated damage at between $6,000 and $8,000 to the building and $2,000 to the contents.

The cause of the explosion still is under investigation. However, firemen said it probably originated in a gas furnace in the basement.

Firemen remained at the scene until 12:24 p.m.

Bloomfield Hills Seeks 14-Mill Hike for Schools

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The board of education will ask for a 14-mill increase in taxes for five years on the April 1 ballot.

Board Vice President Edward M. Sewell, officiating at the regular meeting last night in President Richard McGraw's absence, said the boost, highest asked by any area district, was necessary due to increases in operating expenses in the last two years.

The $11-million bond issue passed in 1966, Sewell added, was for the construction of new schools and addition of classrooms to those existing.

"Before the election," he said, "the board made known to voters that the new schools would require additional millage to staff and operate them when they were completed."

Part of the operating expense increase, Sewell added, was due to the beginning of salary negotiations two years ago with all district employes.

The vice president then read a statement prepared by McGraw, who emphasized, "The 14 mills we seek are imperative to continue to build the quality school system which the residents now enjoy and have demanded be continued."

Present millage in the district is 29.36, of which 22.10 is used for operating costs and 7.26 for debt retirement.

BIRMINGHAM — The Birmingham Conservatory will present its first faculty concert tonight at 8 at the Community House, 380 S. Bates.

There will be no admission charge for the concert, which will include works of Bach, Chopin, Khachaturian and Mozart among others.

However a donation will be collected, proceeds of which will go directly toward expenses of the concert and scholarships.

Open-Housing Vote by Commission Set

The issue of an open-occupancy ordinance for Pontiac, dormant for the past few months, was revived again last night as District 1 City Commissioner T. Warren Fowler Sr. called for a vote next week on an ordinance now under consideration.

Commissioners agreed to hold a public hearing on the ordinance at next Tuesday's City Commission meeting and to take a vote at the end of the hearing.

An open-housing ordinance was first proposed last summer by a newly formed organization of young Negroes called the Pontiac Organization of Black Youth (POOBY).

After considerable and sometimes heated discussions, the commission decided to consider an ordinance and studied other ordinances in effect in Michigan.

★ ★ ★

A proposed ordinance incorporating features from other ordinances was drafted in the fall and this has been sent to most local social, civic and business organizations for comments and criticisms.

WOULD BE READY

Commissioners indicated last night that they would be prepared to vote on the matter at next week's commission meeting.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. and other commissioners asked that persons interested in giving opinions on the proposed law attend the meeting.

Discussion of the move last night, as usual with the subject, touched off considerable discussion with charges being made by commission members and persons in the audience.

District 5 Commissioner John A. Dugan assailed the proposed open-housing ordinance and said efforts first should be made to pass laws to stop crime.

'LONG, HOT SUMMER'

He said he wanted the commission to consider a "stop and frisk" law similar to one passed in Dearborn and considered by the City of Detroit.

Dugan said: "We ought to be getting prepared." He claimed that Pontiac may be in for another "long, hot summer."

District 4 Commissioner Leslie H. Hudson countered that "We don't need any more laws . . . what we need is to remove the causes for the hot summers."

★ ★ ★

Fowler, who, on the commission level, has advanced the case for an open-housing law, said the question now was, "Are we going to stand up and do the right thing?"

'COULD BE A STEP'

He said an open-housing law could be a step toward peaceful settlement of racial problems, although he doubted that it would be a final solution.

Hudson spoke out strongly on the need for a vote on the ordinance question. "I feel each city should stand up and be counted," he said.

He said the commissioners would have to vote the way they felt "even though we may be proven wrong by the majority. It doesn't mean the majority is right," he said.

Hudson said there appears to be a trend in government units where open-housing laws are passed to force an election on the question.

Mayor Taylor Reports on '67

He said Pontiac is in an area tossed by social and political storms and called for the "people of Pontiac" to "put down our prejudices and start moving forward."

Taylor said the financial problems that have plagued Pontiac for 30 years reached an acute stage last year.

The commission, recognizing this, provided $500,000 in surplus funds to meet general operating expense last year and took steps to seek new income, Taylor said.

These included appointment of a citizens tax study committee which unanimously recognized the need for additional revenue and a tax advisory election giving voters opportunity to express a preference for the manner of new taxes, he said.

The mayor said that the city income tax passed by the commission enables the city to provide adequately for employes and reach a more adequate level of service.

Accomplishments cited by the mayor included:

- Construction of the Galloway Creek Sanitary Sewer providing sanitary sewer service to the east-central and northeast parts of the city which opens up some 1,900 acres of undeveloped land for development.
- Construction of additional housing — 285 units completed on Woodward north of the city limits, 250 units being completed on Auburn west of Opdyke; the start of 200 units of rent supplement housing on West Kennett near Alcott Elementary School, and smaller projects totaling 61 units on scattered sites.
- Improvement of the Clinton River channel which allowed completion of the M59 Freeway, construction or start of construction of a number of drains, and start of a $6 million project to straighten and improve the Pontiac Creek to eliminate flooding during storms.
- Appropriating $175,000 from special assessment revolving funds for emergency street repairs.
- Completion of 2.5 miles of water mains, two miles of sanitary sewer laterals, asphalt paving of 18 city blocks, and construction at three major intersections to relieve traffic congestion.
- Installation of 560 new street lights and improvement in lighting along Telegraph.
- Creation of the Pontiac Area planning Council as a "total approach to coordinated comprehensive planning."

California Heart Patient Gains

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI)—Doctors kept a quiet watch over heart transplant patient Mike Kasperak today as the retired Cleveland steelworker steadily strengthened his grip on life.

Despite "significant improvement" in Kasperak's condition, doctors kept him on the critical list.

They could not rule out the chance that his body may suddenly show signs of rejecting the housewife's heart placed in his chest 11 days ago.

Kasperak, 54, received nourishment for the first time by means other than intravenously yesterday.

★ ★ ★

A mixture of sugar and water was passed through a plastic tube inserted in his esophagus, which leads from the pharynx to the stomach.

LONGER PERIODS

A Stanford Medical Center bulletin said Kasperak was beginning to breathe for longer periods of time without a respirator. The patient's heart was beating normally and doctors said his kidney function was near normal.

"I know he's going to make it," Kasperak's wife, Ferne, said yesterday. "I was confident from the beginning that everything would go right." Mrs. Kasperak said her husband "looks great."

She has been staying with friends at a nearby trailer camp since the operation June 6 and has visited her husband daily, communicating by lip reading and sign language.

"I just saw Mike last night," she said yesterday. "He's doing fine. He greets me with a smile, and recognizes me right away. I feel that my contact with Mike has given him the confidence he needed—and that I needed, too."

MAIN CONCERN

Besides Kasperak's rhythmically beating heart, the main concern for doctors was his gastrointestinal condition.

Kasperak's gall-bladder was removed Sunday in an emergency operation and the common bile duct was drained of blood and other matter which had hampered liver function.

Doctors continued intermittent dialysis to aid Kasperak's kidney in the removal of body wastes.

The cautiously optimistic report by doctors yesterday also said Kasperak is now conscious and responds to commands.

The patient had slipped into a semicoma before his gallbladder was removed.

Tourism Tax Is Common Outside U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although a tourism tax of the type now under consideration by the administration would be unique in this country, other nations have relied on similar measures to restrict travel or raise money.

The U.S. Travel Service said Israel and the Dominican Republic have possibly the stiffest taxes on citizens who leave the country. More than 80 nations impose some type of departure tax, sometimes called airport nuisance taxes.

★ ★ ★

"They take your last $5 when you leave Paris airport," one source said.

France levies a $5.11 airport tax on departures of Frenchmen, Americans or anyone else, the service said. Denmark and Sweden have a $2.90 departure tax.

PLAN ASKED

Nothing specific on travel taxes is anticipated in President Johnson's State of the Union message tonight since he has already asked Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler to work with Congress on a plan to discourage travel outside the Western Hemisphere for two years.

A head tax, a tax on the number of days spent abroad or an excise tax on air or ship tickets abroad are some of the possibilities.

This is part of the program to slice $3 billion from the balance of payments deficit this year, a program Johnson is certain to discuss tonight.

One of the stiffest tourist taxes, the Travel Service said, is levied by Israel—$91.42 per head plus 7.5 per cent of the airline ticket.

Troy Controversy Grows Over Apartment Complex

TROY — Controversy continues to swirl around the Biltmore Development Co.'s proposed $40-million Somerset North construction project northeast of Big Beaver and Coolidge.

The controversy seems to have escalated since the City Commission's approval Jan. 8 of final plans for the 328-acre planned community, indicating that rezoning for Somerset North may be but the first in a series of home-owner-apartment conflicts to face city officials.

Representing one side is the Troy Council of Homeowners' Associations, which plans a petition drive to force the commission to repeal its vote on the rezoning or put the issue on a public ballot.

While no official organization represents the apartment residents, there is evidence that they are banding together to protect their interests.

★ ★ ★

Biltmore's attorney, Bernard Stolman, confirmed reports of increased voter registration among Somerset's 1600 residents, saying as high as 35 per cent of those of voting age may have registered recently.

LACK OF PARTICIPATION

"We have encouraged registration," Stolman explained, "because there has been a lot of adverse comment around here about apartment people in general—that they don't participate enough in community activities."

The planned petition drive, meanwhile, awaits final legal clearance from city attorneys.

Carlos Lynch, a former president of the home owners' council, said the main fear of opponents to the zoning change is that it may stunt Troy's planned downtown area.

★ ★ ★

"Basically, the change involves such an amount of land that it pretty well opens the door to multiples in any part of the city," Lynch added. "It almost indictates that there will be a corridor of apartments down through the city."

UNWRITTEN RULE

In response to charges of residents that Troy's master plan for land use had established an unwritten "no apartments" rule north of Big Beaver, City Planner George Peek commented, "Any rule of this type would have to come from the planning commission, which was the body recommending favorable action on the zoning change request."

Peek said that by its nature, the master plan is not a rigid assignment of property. He also countered objections that the new multiple development might in time become a slum area, saying "any development of this (the Somerset North) type is apt to have long-lasting value."

Biltmore plans 110 acres of multiple housing, with the remaining 218 acres to be single-family and recreational areas.

★ ★ ★

According to company officials, the planned population of 2,600 would vary little from that in a single-family residential area of comparable size.

Special Board Session Airs Huron Valley Schools

About 200 Huron Valley School District residents turned out for the board of education's recent special session to find out how their schools are run.

On the some 50 questions that came in on cards, school financing was a chief concern.

Highland Township residents, who last week met with tax officials about assessment increases, asked why the school millage rate wasn't decreased with the rise in tax revenue.

The residents were told that state aid funds are proportional to a school district's state equalized valuation. Therefore, with increased assessments, state aid would be less, said school officials.

★ ★ ★

Other main concerns were discipline, transportation, maintenance and heating of the buildings. Teacher qualifications and the teaching methods at Northwest Elementary were also probed.

The large turnout at the question-and-answer session indicates "a wholesome interest" by residents in the schools, said Board President Arthur Burklund.

The board is planning to hold another such meeting in about three months, said the president.

School finances will be discussed Feb. 5 by Schools Supt. Truman Owens and State Representative Clifford H. Smart, 60th Dist.

★ ★ ★

The meeting, sponsored by the Milford PTA, will be 8 p.m. at the Muir Junior High.

Clarkston Students to Mull Problems

CLARKSTON — A student panel discussion on the problems of youth has been slated for 8 p.m. Monday.

Robert Brumbach will serve as moderator for a panel composed of Scott Embry, Al Bentimiglia, Martha Woodward, Tom Gates, Karrie Garlak, Lisa Birkelo, Terry MacDougall, Dawn Evely, Jeff Richardson and John Lynn.

The meeting, sponsored by the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee, will be held at the Senior High School, according to Mrs. Marie Brendle, chairman.

Oxford Rotarians Plan Program on Holland

OXFORD—"Spring Captures Holland" is the title of the second of a two-part series of programs offered by the Oxford Rotary Club at 8 p.m. Monday at the high school auditorium.

Lecturer Robert Brouwer will use three slide projectors and four screens in the presentation, according to Tom Persing, program chairman.

Tickets are available at the door.

Teaching Course Set

FARMINGTON — Registration for a graduate course in education is today at 7 p.m. in Room B-1, North Farmington High School.

The two-hour credit course is being offered by Central Michigan University Off-Campus Education and Eastern Michigan University.

Independence OKs Engineers

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP — The Township Board last night appointed the Waterford Township engineering firm of Johnson and Anderson, Inc., as township engineers on a fee basis.

The firm has been doing the township's utilities program engineering and has served as an alternate in checking township development plans.

The Johnson and Anderson firm replaces Kieft Engineering of Independence Township, long-time township engineers. Appointments are made on a yearly basis, according to Clerk Howard Altman.

The board appointed Gerald Anderson and Donald Cooper to three-year terms on the township planning commission.

★ ★ ★

Altman was instructed to inform the new franchise purchaser of Hulabaloo, a teen-age dance center on the Dixie Highway at M15, that until he applies for a license to operate within the township, the club will be closed.

NEW OWNER

The new purchaser is reported as Michael Maryonovich of Detroit. The club was formerly operated by John T. Hart of 343 Eileen and Ronald Sherwin, of Birmingham.

Now They Seem Like Mayhem

Winter Sports Used to Be Such Fun

BY JEAN SAILE

I'm a lodge skier myself.

Having broken my leg once by the simple method of carrying out the garbage, I have had no desire during my adult life to enter into other forms of winter mayhem.

It wasn't always so, though. A display seen recently in one of the department stores brought it all back.

Sled manufacturers are finally getting smart.

They've put aluminum versions of the old steerable bobsled on the market.

★ ★ ★

Not having tested one, I'm not able to say if they live up to their wooden predecessors.

MRS. SAILE

BREATHLESS SPEEDS

But those were the sleds.

A running belly-flop could send the steel-banded runners crunching over the snow at speeds that took your breath away.

The big plus, however, was the maneuverability. With the front end connected to the main body of the sled only by a swivel post, some pretty fancy trails could be left by a daring driver.

On one long sweep down the hill it was possible to execute S-turns, sideswipes at onlookers (if you were a boy and the onlooker was a girl), and a final sweeping curve at the finish.

Somehow toboggans never quite lived up to their promise after having ridden a bobsled.

The kind of snow last weekend brought was the kind for skiing — not from the top of the hill down — but for miles and miles through a blanketed countryside behind a team of horses and a sled.

A youngster equipped with skis and panic-locked fingers could get quite a ride. There was the problem of avoiding the sled tracks while galloping horses ahead plunged through drifts in a roller-coaster effect. A tired skier simply fell off into a soft drift.

Sliding downhill on skis has always seemed to me infinitely more unreasonable. One only has to go back to the top again.

★ ★ ★

And then there were the parent-unapproved skating parties which featured an old car on a well-frozen lake with tow ropes strung out behind.

MOTORIZED THRILLS

Zinging over the ice behind a 1937 Plymouth provided a motorized crack-the-whip that sometimes produced a wrenched ankle along with the thrills.

But that was for young blood.

Now, the trip to the roadside mailbox and back again is quite enough winter activity today.

Rochester JA Report Offered

ROCHESTER — A report of the Rochester Senior High School Junior Achievement program involving four companies and 55 students has been presented to the board of education.

Principal James Drue spoke encouragingly of the first-year program in the district.

The board has ratified a contract already approved by bus drivers providing for a salary scale of $2.55 to $3 an hour attainable in four years.

The contract also includes provision for eight paid holidays and hospitalization benefits.

A fee schedule for use of the new senior high school auditorium, expected to be ready Feb. 15, was adopted by the board.

It was noted that progress on the pool at the same school had been delayed due to weather.

The new library and multipurpose room at Woodward Elementary School is nearly complete, board members were told, and the same additions at North Hill Elementary School should be completed in six weeks.

Membership reports revealed 40 new students since September bringing the district total to 7,528.

2 Police Unions Recognized

FARMINGTON — The City Council has given recognition to bargaining agents for two groups of its policemen.

★ ★ ★

The nine officers are organized as the Public Safety Officers' Association with its own charter. The seven sergeants are organized as a group without a charter.

Informal bargaining will begin next week, said City Manager John Dinan. He foresees the results as recommendations to next year's city budget, which he will propose April 1.

Negotiations will begin next week also for the 1968-69 contract for the public works and water workers' unions.

★ ★ ★

Dinan introduced sewer and water system connection charges for areas served by Oakland County systems. The fees are expected to be adopted at the council's Feb. 5 meeting, he said.

FEES LISTED

Per unit, the connection fees are listed at $200 for the Farmington interceptor, $100 for the Tarabusi Arm, and $100 for the water system.

The facilities will serve some of the 3,500 people in the 437 acres annexed west of the city.

Resuscitation Lecture in Milford Tomorrow

MILFORD — A lecture and demonstration of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation will be given here tomorrow by the head of the Water Safety Division of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Lt. Donald Kraft.

Avon Vote Says Much

Rochester Future Hazy

News Analysis

By L. GARY THORNE
Assistant City Editor-Suburban

Rochester today is like the proverbial hole in the doughnut.

The vote earlier this week by Avon Township to incorporate gives the obvious indication that much remains unsettled about the future of the Rochester area.

Of course, the vote was only the first step toward eventual cityhood. A charter must be drafted and approved at the polls before city status is obtained.

Despite the slim 47-vote margin for incorporation, there is an indication in the results that dealings in the future between the township and the city will have to be on an equal footing.

★ ★ ★

Returns Monday showed that the township is not going to lie down and let the new city of Rochester annex it out of existence.

POLITICAL HAMMER

Meanwhile, the alleged motive for the incorporation move was to gain time and what amounts to a political hammer for future negotiations with the city.

Campaign comment from both the city and the township has been to the effect that Rochester and Avon Township should one day be one entity.

Most observers seem to think that the two areas cannot exist as separate units. This would seem to be true, especially in the case of the city, which is completely surrounded by the township attempting-to-be-a-city.

★ ★ ★

In the metropolitan area, Hamtramck and Highland Park stand out as examples of cities within a city. Generally, growth is hampered by such a situation.

The nine charter commissioners also elected Monday will begin the motions to draft a city charter. Whether such a charter ever gets any use probably will depend on those currently holding public office in the city and township.

Some of the unpleasantness of the past campaign will have to be put aside and serious negotiations instituted if there ever is to be an eventual consolidation of the area.

Avondale Success Story Told

A success story about preparation of kindergarten students for first grade has been related to the Avondale Board of Education by Mrs. Mary Sutherland, junior primary room teacher.

She said that with the help of three volunteer mothers, three of the young students not deemed ready for first grade last year had already made the transition to regular classwork.

Others, who because of immaturity in years or emotions, not put into regular first grade classes last September are expected to be ready for first and in some cases second grade work next fall, she said.

The Avondale project is carried out at Stone Elementary School where a class of 21 children have been given special attention in reading readiness.

★ ★ ★

ADDITION POSSIBLE

Supt. of Schools John W. Dickey said the exchange would double existing Stone School property, making an addition to the present building possible.

The contracts of two assistant superintendents, William Saville and Hobart H. Jenkins, and administrative assistant J. William Brooke, were continued for a year at the present salaries.

A head bookkeeper, Mrs. Marajeane Zodtner, was employed at a salary of $5,815 a year.

The board passed a formal resolution calling for a vote Feb. 19 on a 12.7-mill increase in taxes.

The PTA presidents council in the district has organized for purposes of promoting a favorable vote. Board member Jack Slater had been named to head the drive which will involve a recruitment of room committee chairmen and a phone committee.

Pontiac's GTO Wins Industry Award

Along with pacing the auto industry in 1968 model sales gain over a to-date period of a year ago, Pontiac Motor Division has won signal recognition for its 1968 GTO.

The exciting, moderately-priced, sports-type car has been named Motor Trend Car of the Year. The award is annually presented by the publication for the auto that most fully meets award qualifications.

★ ★ ★

"Never before has an automobile been so successful in confirming the correlations between safety, styling and performance as the 1968 GTO," said Motor Trend Publisher Walter A. Woron.

This is the fourth time in the eight-year history of the award that the Pontiac nameplate has won it—a record unmatched by any other manufacturer.

In accepting the award, Pontiac Division General Manager JOHN Z. DELOREAN commented that sales of the GTO had zoomed from 32,000 in 1964 to a sales rate estimated to hit 100,000 units for 1968.

★ ★ ★

By way of frosting on the award cake, Motor Trend termed GTO's rubber-like bumper (an industry first) "the most significant achievement in materials technology in contemporary automotive engineering."

The Press warmly congratulates John DeLorean and his able executive staff on the honor conferred upon the product of their ingenuity, and commends the army of skilled factory workers who give it life.

U.S. Viet Military Bows to 'Social' Duties

Have you ever been in the midst of one of those days when you KNOW you'll never be able to do what HAS to be done—and company drops in?

Rough, eh?

But think how much rougher it would have been if you had known that some of the visitors may not have come just to pay a nice, friendly call, but to critically inspect your place, make notes on what they saw, and then go back home to publicly point out what they may think is wrong with the way you're doing things.

And, suppose you had not one set of visitors, but at least 38 in approximately one month!

It couldn't happen?

Try to tell that to the American high brass over in Vietnam who were recently favored in about a four-week period with visits by two U.S. senators and 36—count 'em, 36!—members of the House of Representatives —all of whom wanted to see exactly what was going on in Saigon and wherever else they could be taken under safety regulations.

Were these visits necessary? Were they really helpful to our war effort?

Who can say for sure? But perhaps it does stand to reason that while a Monday morning quarterback can do a fair job of coaching the team from what he sees on television or reads in the paper, he can possibly do even better if he actually sees a little of the game from the 50-yard line.

★ ★ ★

In any event, our officials in Vietnam must, along with their other duties of running the war, be unfailingly polite, attentive, helpful and informative to our visiting VIPs.

Revolving Funds for Revolving Charge Accounts?

A revolving house is being built in Wilton, Conn.

That's nothing. We know one head of a house who goes around in circles every time he comes home from the salt mines and finds the latest batch of statements from his family's revolving charge accounts.

LBJ Plea Sparks Travel Pickup

By RAYMOND MOLEY

I learn from people in the immense travel industry that the first reaction to the President's unhappy New Year's message to the people was a flurry of reservations for travel abroad. They say that the same reaction greeted the President's plea to restrict foreign travel two years ago.

MOLEY

Although Dr. George Gallup apparently hasn't got around to mind-picking on this subject, the motives for such a negative reaction were undoubtedly mixed. Many were probably moved to protest against the authoritarian mood of the President, for a lot of disobedience is abroad in the land and this threat to freedom has seemed unjust and uncalled for.

More perceptive people may know that such a method of stemming the gold drain is like building a dike of loose sticks.

Some interesting figures on that point were presented in Travel Weekly, a major publication of the industry. The government's guess — and it is no more than a guess at this time — is that the so-called "travel deficit" for 1967 was $2 billion, more than half of the U.S. balance-of-payments deficit.

EARLIER BREAKDOWN

Exact figures are not available. However, in 1965, when this subject came up before, the American Express Co. broke down the "travel deficit" figure of $1.7 billion this way:

● "Transportation deficit: U.S. residents paid more to foreign carriers than foreign carriers paid to U.S. flag carriers. Total, $500 million plus. Omitted from this technical deficit, however, were: foreign spending for U.S. aircraft, $250 million; expenditures in the U.S. by foreign governments and carriers, $165 million.

● "Canada-Mexico travel deficit, $335 million. Close relationships and trade surpluses dictate that these nations continue to earn travel surpluses.

● "Europe-Mediterranean travel deficit, $680 million. But of this total 54% goes for business, scientific, educational and other serious purposes.

★ ★ ★

● "Pleasure travel deficit to European and Mediterranean countries, $315 million."

It should be added that those dollars for pleasure provide many benefits to the American economy and permit many countries to buy U.S.-made goods.

COURT EDICT

A great many arguments have been made against the President's proposal, some of then originating in the justified self-interest of the travel industry. The arguments include the edict of the U.S. Supreme Court when it decided against the State Department's refusal to grant passports to two American Communists.

Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, speaking for the majority, said that the court in 1958 had said that the right to travel abroad "is an important aspect of the citizen's liberty" guaranteed by the Fifth Amendment. Justice William O. Douglas in 1958 classed the right to travel with the right of assembly and of association — "the very essence of a free society."

But we may dismiss these theories of personal liberty. For a sovereign nation has a duty to protect itself in an emergency — if there is an emergency.

★ ★ ★

The two real arguments against such restrictions as Mr. Johnson may ask Congress to impose are these:

Any monetary penalty on travel would bear heavily only upon people of limited means such as teachers and students. The well-to-do would pay with no trouble at all.

ILLUSTRATION

This is illustrated by what a friend told me yesterday. He is 72 and has a wife and two children. Since he is threatened with a return of cancer and since his daughter may be married in a year or so, this is probably the last year he can enjoy a trip to Europe with his family. He has a large income. And the penalty would be only a small fraction of the total cost of the trip.

The second valid reason was mentioned by a former high official in the Treasury Department. He said that such restrictions as are proposed would be practically unenforceable. Many would go to Europe or the Far East via Canada.

There is also that difficulty of distinguishing between travel for pleasure and travel for business. Many could allege some objective and tie it in with plenty of pleasure.

★ ★ ★

Above all, there is the overriding fact that the plight of the dollar is caused by extravagant spending by government. The President sees only the mote in the citizen's eye and ignores the beam in his own.

Did The Constitution Authorize This?

David Lawrence Says:

British Pullback to Leave Gap

WASHINGTON — Sometimes it takes the shock of a piece of sensational news to bring about an awareness of the gravity of the world's currency problem and the inability of most nations to afford to maintain the costly armaments of the present era.

LAWRENCE

Cancellation by Great Britain of a billion-dollar contract for fighter bombers, which were to be manufactured in Texas, means that the inflow of that sum of money has to be subtracted now from the "balance of payments" totals.

The United States is thereby confronted with the necessity of either cutting off an equivalent amount of imports or cancelling some of its own purchases or reducing its financial commitments abroad.

Currency devaluation has, of course, forced Great Britain to economize, and there is some reason to believe that the British were not too sure the new planes would be useful to them, anyhow.

So the move will not meet with much disapproval in the Parliament in London.

In the United States, on the other hand, members of Congress are beginning to say that Great Britain, by its military cutbacks and speedup of withdrawal of its forces from Asia, is leaving to the United States the job of maintaining the free governments in the world.

★ ★ ★

State Departsment spokesmen have told newsmen that there is no plan for this country "to move in where the British forces pull out," though deep regret is felt that the British government finds it necessary to reduce its commitments in the Far East and the Persian Gulf.

Unquestionably the growing cost of armament has troubled Great Britain.

Severe cuts in domestic expenditures became imperative when the pound was devalued and the British naturally had to pay higher prices for what they purchased abroad.

Fears are being expressed in Congress that Britain's move may start a chain reaction of financial retrenchment among other members of the Western alliance, and that this undoubtedly will increase the responsibilities of the United States. Rep. Wayne Hays, Ohio, says:

"In time of war, the Western democracies fight shoulder to shoulder and do anything they can to help each other. But it seems to be the nature of things that in peacetime they draw apart, quibble over policies, and, most of all, fail to formulate any common unified economic program to deal with financial crises."

France has already adopted an isolationist role, and the Western alliance today relies primarily on the potential strength of the United States.

The danger is that the Communists will take advantage of the new developments and introduce more threats to worry the American government.

Bob Considine Says:

U.S. Becomes Sterner in Apology to Russians

NEW YORK — People . . . places . . .

"Sorry about that, if it happened," the State Department's spokesman said in effect to Russia, after one of our pilots apparently had the effrontery to bomb a small Soviet freighter delivering goods to our enemies the North Vietnamese.

CONSIDINE

Then, happily, State Department spokesman Robert McCloskey added, "Unfortunately, it is impossible to eliminate completely the risk that foreign vessels entering or remaining in the area of hostilities may sustain unintentional damage as a result of action from one or the other side."

That's better than the somewhat abject apologies we offered in two earlier accidental bombings of Russian freighters. The reference to the "other side," won't puzzle anybody in the Soviet high command.

★ ★ ★

The Russian-built SAM's have a batting average of one hit in 70 times against Air Force and Navy jet pitching.

NO PLACE BUT DOWN

When their "homing" devices are thrown out of sync by means and beams we don't even speak about, or by dazzling tactics on the part of our fighters, and the SAM's run out of fuel, they have no place to go with their warheads except down.

"Down" is North Vietnam.

McCloskey might have added that the best proof the latest incident was accidental is that for several years our fliers have passed up scores of Soviet tankers bringing millions of gallons of oil and fuel into Haiphong.

★ ★ ★

Tanker crewmen wave at our jets as they streak overhead, headed for lesser targets inland, and our guys wave back.

TACIT AGREEMENT

Any American fighter-bomber pilot who attacked a Russian tanker supplying vital petroleum products to North Vietnam would be court-martialed.

Last November we were told at an air base in Thailand that at least one air force pilot had indeed been court-martialed for doing just that. In World War II or Korea he would have been decorated.

Some year, decade, or century from now we'll learn the details of this tacit agreement we have with the Russians. Neither side wishes to speak of it now. But it is so clear: We don't bomb their supply ships. They don't send troops to Ho Chi Minh.

Can the missing persons bureau please give us any information as to the whereabouts of Defense Secretary Robert McNamara? He hasn't been heard of for weeks. Last seen going to the bank.

As an observing American, as good as the best editor, I'm plagued with thoughts of our forefathers writing our Constitution and giving us freedom of speech and freedom of the press. You people lean very heavy on this freedom. Where do newspapers and commentators get the privilege to make or break anyone?

Not a soul among you has the guts to question Earl Warren as a sound, solid American and this man has led more Supreme Court decisions that hurt the entire country than George Wallace with his solid thinking could ever hope to harm. Ministers Support Open Housing Principle

In view of the current dangerous hysteria surrounding the fair housing question, and the obvious confusion in the minds of many as to the issues involved, we as concerned individuals wish to go on record as supporting the open housing principle. We believe that Christian integrity demands that we take this position. Surely those who cry out that their liberty would be infringed upon were such a law enacted must realize that there is no absolute liberty but that of God himself. All human liberties must be limited responsibly by the rights of one's fellow human beings.

I was pleased to see the ad offering urban renewal land for sale. Can you tell me if this ad ran in other papers, and if so, which ones and the dates they ran?

G. J.

REPLY

Jim Bates of the Urban Renewal Department tells us it ran only in The Pontiac Press. The City plans to run it in the Detroit News and Detroit Free Press when they are back in operation.

Odd Timing

Buffalo Evening News

Sugar - coat it as they will, the sudden departures of two of President Johnson's top economic brain - trusters is an odd piece of timing to say the least.

This is the month, after all, when the President's entire politico - economic program for the year is about to be unveiled before Congress and country in the form of three closely interrelated messages — State of the Union, Budget and Economic Report.

★ ★ ★

And even before the first one is given, the principal authors of the other two—Budget Director Charles L. Schultze and Chairman Gardner Ackley of the Council of Economic Advisers — have announced their resignations.

★ ★ ★

Maybe they've just grown tired in the job. Or maybe they have wearied of the futility of trying to sell LBJ's program to a recalcitrant Congress; or maybe he is the one who has grown tired of their inability to sell it and feels it's time for a fresh approach.

★ ★ ★

But whatever the nature of the disenchantment, it must have set in rather recently. For the men who have been the President's chief lieutenants in drawing up these annual programs ordinarily would be expected to stay around at least long enough to help shepherd them through Congress.

U.N. Resolution

Israel Digest

"The central point in the U.N. resolution of 1947 was the renewed recognition of the historical identity of the Jewish people, accompanied by the recognition of its right to sovereign independence in the Land of its Fathers," declared Israel's Prime Minister Levi Eshkol. He was addressing the luncheon in his honor in Jerusalem, by the National Newspaper Editors' Association, marking the twentieth anniversary of the U.N. Resolution calling for the partition of Palestine and the establishment of a Jewish State.

★ ★ ★

"The world realized," Mr. Eshkol added, "that there is no solution to the problem of the Jewish people as a national and spiritual entity except by its return to the Land of its Fathers. The resolution of 1947 followed the unprecedented catastrophe that had befallen the Jewish people, and demonstrated to the world the fundamental truth of Zionist ideas.

Book Stores on Campus Hit

Antitrust Probe Is Asked by MSU Prof

EAST LANSING (UPI) — A Michigan State University professor has asked Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley to investigate whether an illegal "cartel" exists between campus book stores to rig prices on books for 38,000 students.

Prof. Walter Adams, a former economic adviser in the Kennedy administration, said the MSU Book Store and off-campus book stores may be in violation of the state's antitrust laws.

Adams alleged several irregularities in a letter to Kelley requesting an investigation, including a charge of an "absence of price competition" among the book stores.

He also cited a "uniform adherence by these stores to 'the publishers' suggested retail price' . . ." contrary to a Michigan Supreme Court decision declaring resale price maintenance legislation to be unconstitutional.

★ ★ ★

James D. Howick, MSU Book Store manager, denied any attempt of "heading a cartel to exploit the students."

MANAGERS ACCUSED

Adams accused the book store managers of attending periodic meetings where they allegedly conspired to set prices.

"There are no secret meetings, either in bars or basement," Howick told the MSU campus newspaper.

Adams said he believes a cartel exists because of:

"● the possibility of non-competitive market-sharing arrangements among the several book store managers — according to a predetermined formula on some items and an outright agreement on others; and

"● the effort by the MSU Book Store to stabilize the market at noncompetitive price levels, in order to protect its rivals against what they would consider unfair competition."

Adams was an adviser to the U.S. Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee and a member of the U.S. attorney general's National Committee to study the antitrust laws during the Kennedy administration.

OCC Office Remodeling Starts Soon

A $607,300 remodeling project at Oakland Community College's administrative offices in Bloomfield Hills is expected to start next week.

The project had been pending the outcome of a court suit against the college.

Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Clark J. Adams ruled two weeks ago that OCC was not in violation of deed restrictions in using the property in the Hyup subdivision for its administrative offices.

College trustees are expected to award a remodeling contract at its meeting at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in the George A. Bee Administrative Center, 2480 Opdyke.

★ ★ ★

In other business, the trustees are expected to promote a vice president of the college and join the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

Professor Flunks on No-Grade Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prof. Patrick Gallagher's no-grade strategy didn't make the grade at George Washington University—but Gallagher says he's "very, very happy."

His statement came Tuesday following announcement that George Washington University has agreed to study possible revisions in its grading system, a step advocated by Gallagher.

★ ★ ★

Spurring the study was Gallagher's announced intention of giving all 475 students in one of his anthropology classes A's while giving all 100 students in an advanced class F's as a protest against grades. He said he'd drop the plan now that the study has been ordered.

Book Offers Unlimited Vistas for Joiners

DETROIT (AP) — Feeling lonely and left out? Dedicated to a cause or business and seeking fellowship?

Then get yourself a copy of the forthcoming 5th edition of the "Encyclopedia of Associations" and take your pick of the 13,600 nonprofit groups listed.

★ ★ ★

The eight-pound, 1,331 page book is due off the presses Feb. 1 and carries a $29.50 tab.

It opens virtually an unlimited vista for joiners.

If you love apes, for instance, you may be interested in enlisting in the Orangutan Recovery Service. Among its aims is the finding of good homes in reputable zoos for homeless orangutans.

TOPLESS OPPONENTS

Or if you would like "to promote and improve the image of a fine old American tradition," maybe the Exotique Dancers League of North America would appeal. It opposes "the trend of waitresses and others in topless costumes."

While it doesn't go for topless waitresses, the league sponsors an annual contest for the "10 Best Undressed." Its members variously are known as ecdysiasts, strippers and burlesque dancers.

In 1964, when the 4th edition made its appearance, Alcoholics Anonymous stood alone in the anonymous category. But now it is joined by Divorce Anonymous, Gamblers Anonymous, Addicts Anonymous and even the Anonymous Arts Recovery Society.

The onetime People-to-People Fungi Committee is no more. It has been renamed the North American Mycological Association. It sponsors field trips for amateur mushroom hunters.

IRISH JEWS

For those who qualify there also is The Loyal League of Yiddish Sons of Erin, which has 45 members of the Jewish faith born in Ireland. An annual event is a banquet on St. Patrick's Eve.

Among the section listing trade, business and commercial organizations is Pre-Arrangement Interment Exchange of America, as well as the Life Underwriter Training Council.

The new volume lists 39 national civil rights organizations, up from 19 in the 1964 edition.

Nine new listings are of groups concerned, either pro or con, with the Vietnam War. There were none such in 1964.

POPULATION GROUP

Another controversy of the day also is involved through the listing of the Population Crisis Committee.

Editor Frederick G. Ruffner Jr., who has parlayed an interest in unusual associations into a unique business for his Gale Research Co., of Detroit, believes "most people have an instinctive urge to join."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ralph Nader, critic of auto industry safety procedures, has criticized the federal safety chief for belonging to the Society of Automotive Engineers, contending it's a manufacturers association.

★ ★ ★

Nader referred to William Haddon Jr., director of the National Traffic Safety Bureau. He complained about Haddon in a Tuesday letter to Federal Highway Administrator Lowell K. Bridwell.

"Officials of the bureau who join the SAE at the same time they are responsible for independent writing of public standards place themselves in a potentially compromising situation," Nader said. He added they also "lend a prestige to SAE that, to this date, it has not begun to earn."

★ ★ ★

Nader asserted the Society of Automotive Engineers isn't a professional group "but a manufacturers association" that "has long been the technical minion of the automobile industry."

'DISGRACEFUL LAG'

He said the society has been disgracefully lagging over the years in paying attention to safety . . ."

Haddon and Bridwell both declined comment. Bridwell said he hadn't received the letter.

In his letter—a copy of which was available to a newsman—Nader also complained that new federal auto-safety standards are inadequate. He said manufacturers can meet all of the standards without eliminating dangerous engineering defects from their cars.

New York Ups Cab Fare

NEW YORK (AP) — After a one-day protest strike, New York City union taxicab drivers have accomplished what they set out to do — get the city to approve a fare increase that will put an estimated $15 a week more pay in the pockets of full-time drivers.

Cabs started appearing on the streets shortly after last midnight.

During the tie-up of practically all of the city's 11,400 cabs, the City Council approved a proposal by Mayor John V. Lindsay that will raise the cost of the average 2.4-mile ride from $1.05 to either $1.30 or $1.35.

The mayor had upped his fare increase proposal twice as the drivers' union and the owners of the 72 taxi fleets demanded more money.

Warning Fails to Get Through

CANDOR, N.C. (AP) — Richard P. Stutts said he told his wife Tuesday to wait until he telephoned before trying to drive across Drowning Creek Bridge because it might be too icy.

He drove the family car across the bridge safely but decided to warn his wife not to follow. For a time he couldn't reach her by telephone because connections still were spotty from recent snow and ice storms.

Finally the call was put through and he learned from one of his three children that his wife already had set out.

Stutts hurried to the bridge and found the family truck overturned in the creek. His wife had been killed when the truck skidded and plunged off the icy bridge.

Response to Photo of Sad Yule Hailed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — It was touch and go for a while, but Santa came through.

A photograph showing two little girls crying as they left a Christmas party empty-handed has brought gifts from across the United States and Canada.

The photograph by St. Louis Post-Dispatch photographer Reynold Ferguson was taken minutes after 6-year-old Henrean Alexander, 5-year-old Algerine Norris and about 2,000 other children had been told Santa Claus had run out of toys.

The girls were among 4,500 youngsters invited to a Christmas party sponsored by management of the Pruitt-Igoe Housing Project Friday, Dec. 22. More than 11,000 persons live in the project.

IMMEDIATE RESPONSE

The photograph of the two crying youngsters was distributed in the United States and Canada by the Asociated Press Wirephoto network. The response was almost immediate.

For example, the Arkansas Gazette editorial staff helped. One Gazette editor called the Associated Press bureau in St. Louis and said, "We saw the picture of the two little girls and the guys around the desk decided to take a collection. Where shall I send it?"

★ ★ ★

The picture was distributed two days before Christmas and housing project Manager Philip Thigpen reported Christmas Eve that all children had received toys.

Checks and cash are still arriving daily, both at the Pruitt-Igoe offices and at the newspaper. Thigpen said two children sent toys from Canada.

SPECIAL FUND

The gifts are being placed in a special fund for use, as needed, in helping the children of the development.

The little girls in the picture are the products of broken homes. Algerine's mother is 27 years old and has two other children. Henrean's mother is 24 and has three other children. Neither father lives with his family.

Pollution Fight Step-Up Urged

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP) — An official of the Interior Department has urgee the Canadian-American Joint Commission to take new steps to fight pollution of the Great Lakes and connecting waterways.

Jacomb I. Bregman, deputy assistant secretary of the interior for water pollution control, said the International Joint Commission should "undertake the important task of promoting uniform and rigorous controls over wastes from watercraft."

Pollution caused by discharges from ships is a growing international problem as more ships of many flags ply the Great Lakes, he said today.

Bregman also urged the commission to consider water pollution controls over offshore petroleum drilling operations in the Great Lakes. The start of such a drilling program in Lake Erie "has great pollution potential" he said.

Bregman said the commission should consider expanding its international water quality monitoring system, which now embraces the Niagara and Detroit rivers, to include lakes and connecting channels.

THE VERY BEST SERVICE IN THE WORLD FRETTER'S

Ed Ames Is Leaving 'Daniel Boone'

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Next season television's Daniel Boone will have to prowl the wilderness without his Oxford-educated Indian pal, Mingo. Ed Ames is cutting out on his own.

THOMAS

Ames made the announcement today: He will not return for a fifth season of "Daniel Boone," in which he stars with Fess Parker. Whether or not the series itself will be back has not yet been decided, but its ratings this year seem to be good enough to warrant a return.

★ ★ ★

Why would an actor pull out of a successful television series? Ames explained:

"The simple truth is that the show has served its purpose for me. It performed the very valuable function of providing tremendous exposure for me over a four-year period. The placing of my name before a huge audience week after week was an enormous advantage to my career.

TIME TO MOVE

"On the other hand, I believe I was of some assistance to 'Daniel Boone.' I did a great number of personal appearances to help plug the series. And I think that Mingo was a strong character that contributed to the effectiveness of the show. But now it's time to move on."

The career of Ed Ames offers an example of how talent and drive can be combined to keep a career moving forward against a variety of hazards. Along with older brothers Koe, Gene and Vic, he starred on records and in night clubs with the Ames Brothers — real name: Urick. Despite Las Vegas salaries of $20,000 a week, the three elder Ameses tired of the nomadic life and quit the business for normal lives. Not Ed. He started working in plays off-Broadway at $80 a week.

★ ★ ★

Roles in "The Crucible," "Fantasticks" and "Carnival" convinced producers Ames was more than a quartet singer, and the call came for "Daniel Boone." Most actors in successful series are content to rest on their residuals. Again the Ames ambition prevailed.

★ ★ ★

He polished up his vocal style and began making single records. After a number of near-misses, he hit with "My Cup Runneth Over." The title was rings on TV variety shows poured in. Ames spent a bundle to work up a night club act which paid off in munificent bookings; he is now playing in Las Vegas.

Svetlana Backs Soviet Writers

'Must Aid Intellectuals in Fight for Freedom'

NEW YORK (AP) — Svetlana Alliluyeva has called upon world public opinion to give all possible support to the young Russian intellectuals struggling for freedom in the Soviet Union.

Stalin's daughter said in her appeal Tuesday, "We must give all our possible support to those who remain honest and brave even under unbearable conditions, those who have enough strength to fight."

★ ★ ★

Predicting success for the movement if enough outside support were forthcoming, she said, "We cannot remain silent in the face of suppression of fundamental human rights, wherever it takes place."

The statement marked Mrs. Alliluyeva's first open intervention in the Soviet Union's domestic political struggle between the government and the young artists and writers demanding freedom to express their views.

DURING INTERVIEW

She commented on the closed trial in Moscow last week of four young writers accused of editing and printing manuscripts critical of Communist life during an interview with Columbia Broadcasting System News.

She praised Pavel M. Litvinoff, a grandson of the late Foreign Minister Maxim M. Litvinoff, and Mrs. Larisa Daniel, wife of writer Yuli M. Daniel now imprisoned in labor camp, for their denunciation of the trial last week.

Of their actions, she said they "ignored their own danger and they made clear to the press abroad that the recent trial of another four young writers was as they say, 'a wild mockery of justice.'"

Mrs. Alliluyeva, who made her own flight to freedom last spring and now lives in Princeton, N.J., said such defiance of authority in the Soviet Union "cannot be stopped.

"All these young people feel the same way. It can only be hidden. It can only be hidden for a while, but even that will not stay long," she said.

The four tried last week were Aleksandr Ginzburg, 31; Yuri Galanskov, 29; Aleksei Dobrovolsky, 29, and Vera Lashkova, 21. They were sentenced to labor camps for terms ranging from one to seven years.

"If the public abroad reacts to this event," she said, "and if people send their protests, then we can be sure that such things will not repeat again."

Bus Subsidy?

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—The finance committee of the Grand Rapids City Commission voted Tuesday to refer consideration of a $125,000 subsidy for the local bus system to the Grand Rapids Transit Authority, part owner of the financially troubled Grand Rapids City Coach Lines, Inc.

Awarding of national honors was the highlight of the Camp Fire Girls annual dinner and meeting at the Airways Dining Room Tuesday. Mrs. Howard Hissong of Rochester (left) received the Charlotte Joy Farnsworth Award; Mrs. Albert Krueger of Bald Mountain Road, Pontiac Township, was awarded the Wakan Service Award; Lloyd S. Smith of Lotus Street was given the Ernest Thompson Seton Award; and (right) Mrs. Willie W. Ferguson of Esther Street was awarded the Luther Halsey Gulick Award, the highest national award given on a local level.

Camp Fire Girls' National Awards Given at Dinner

Dr. Robert Williams, Director of Measurements and Guidance for Oakland County Schools, was guest speaker Tuesday at the annual dinner and awards meeting of the Pontiac Area Council of Camp Fire Girls.

★ ★ ★

The highest national award, named for Luther Halsey Gulick, the founder of Camp Fire Girls, was presented to Mrs. Willie W. Ferguson by awards chairman, Mrs. Bernard Stickney. Mrs. Ferguson has been active in the organization since 1944.

★ ★ ★

Lloyd S. Smith received the Ernest Thompson Seton award in appreciation for his services as chairman of the finance and personnel committees.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Howard Hissong was given the Charlotte Joy Farnsworth award for the establishment of a group in the Avon area about 10 years ago which has grown tremendously under her guidance.

★ ★ ★

A leader and day camp committee chairman, Mrs. Albert Krueger, received the Wakan Service award for her 13 years of service with Camp Fire.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Charles Cupp assisted Mrs. Stickney with the presentations.

NEW PRESIDENT

New president of the Council is Edward C. Sharpe of Berkley Road. Other officers are Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. Stickney, vice presidents; Mrs. T. W. Jackson, secretary, and Dr. Ned Colburn, treasurer.

★ ★ ★

Elected to the board of directors were Mesdames Robert Crumpton, Ralph Darby, Hissong, Paul Slayton and Hiram Smith. Also Dorothy Hollister, Jack Riley, Sharpe and Rev. Alex Stewart.

★ ★ ★

Representing the leaders association on the board of directors will be Mrs. John Fitzpatrick, Waterford; Mrs. Robert Johnson, Avon; Mrs. Gilbert Petz, Lake Orion and Mrs. Thomas Fitzpatrick, Pontiac.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. William Wright was general chairman of the event.

The Pontiac Area Council of Camp Fire Girls is a member agency of the Pontiac Area United Fund.

Newly-elected president of Pontiac Area Council of Camp Fire Girls, Edward C. Sharpe of Berkley Road, pins a corsage on the collar of Mrs. Earl Floyd of Andersonville Road, outgoing president.

Depends on the Situation

Is 'Informing' a Good Thing?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: None of us can hit a home run every time we go to bat. While I agree with you most of the time, I think you should reconsider your advice to the boy whose friends were stealing bikes. "I do not agree with friends informing on one another," you wrote, "but a real 'friend' would do all in his power to set his companions straight."

ABBY

If we follow your thinking it is only a short step to keeping quiet while a fellow citizen is slowly murdered in a courtyard in sight of dozens of people. They didn't want to "inform" or "get involved" either.

In our present world we are too willing to condone wrongdoing and to expect someone else to punish wrongdoers. Personally, if my child were involved in stealing of any nature I would certainly appreciate someone having the courage to tell me.

JRM, MEMPHIS

DEAR JRM: You've made a good point. In the case of the bike thieves, I had in mind some effort to stop this criminal conduct, or to try, before giving the erring kids a police record. After that, the parents should certainly be tipped off. But among youngsters, the persistent "tattletale" on childish pranks becomes a social outcast early in life.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: Some friends of ours with a little girl not yet five years old have been allowing an unmarried couple to spend weekends together in their home. (This unmarried couple couldn't be any closer if they were married. I'm sure you get the picture.)

The mother says the child is too young to know the difference. I personally think the child is old enough to know that something about the arrangement is wrong. I would like your opinion.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: It's the same as yours.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: For Gisela, who wanted to know the origin of that "silly superstition" that to sit 13 at a table is bad luck:

★ ★ ★

At The Last Supper, Jesus and his 12 Apostles sat, making their number 13. Afterwards Jesus was betrayed by Judas. If you will notice in the painting of the Last Supper, the salt shaker had been overturned, which undoubtedly accounts for another "silly superstition"—that it's bad luck to spill the salt.

Distaff Committee Head for a Second Term

By SIGNE KARLSTROM

Mrs. Joseph E. Risdon, president of the Women's Committee for the TB and Health Society, began her second term Tuesday when she presided at the membership luncheon meeting held at the Pontchartrain Hotel, Detroit. She announced the committee chairmen.

From this area, Mrs. William R. Shaw, who is executive vice president was named the Cinerella Ball chairman. Mrs. Lynn Townsend is membership chairman; Mrs. John D. Richardson, Jr., nominating chairman; Mrs. Herman Reichart, patient aid; and Mrs. Chester Cahn, photographic chairman. Plans for the year were discussed.

★ ★ ★

Among those attendng the meeting were: Mesdames: Robert C. Awrey, Donald Borgeson, Charles L. Bricker, M. M. Burgess, James Roche, Harold Warner, John Z. DeLorean, David B. Demarest, Lloyd H. Diehl Jr., John D. Daniels, William Scripps and Elmer Gerhardt, Jr.

PARTY HOSTS

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Richardson entertained at their yearly fortnight holiday party last Saturday at the Bloomfield Hills Country Club. Their many guests are talking about the contrast of perfectly magnificient decor of spring flower arrangements throughout the club house with the bitter cold outside.

★ ★ ★

The Cranbrook Music Guild will give their third concert for the season at Cranbrook House on Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. "The Singing Statesmen" which is a 20-member group of the Men's Glee Club at Michigan State University will be performing. James Burum who is one of our own localites is singing with the group. It is directed by Alan Poland.

★ ★ ★

The group will present a sparkling musical program ranging from earliest music to the most recent.

These men have appeared on the nationally televised "Dinah Shore Show" and "Ed Sullivan Show" and should provide a most entertaining evening. Tickets are available at the door.

Groups View Wisner Home

Open house at the Gov. Moses Wisner Home on Oakland Avenue was held Sunday for the members of the Pontiac City Commission and the recently re-activated Pontiac City Historical Commission.

Hostess for the afternoon was Mrs. Marion Hodges Benter, member of the Board of Directors of the Oakland County Pioneer and Historical Society which operates the 1845 Greek Revival mansion as a historic house museum.

Present to view the house, root cellar and one-room school were Mayor and Mrs. William H. Taylor Jr., Mrs. William H. Taylor Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Wesley J. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. James H Marshall, the Ralph D. Johnsons, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hudson, Ernest Huthwaite, the Robert Andersons and Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Starkey.

★ ★ ★

The City Historical Commission and the Oakland County Society are seeking to promote interest and action in the preservation of our local heritage.

Franklin resident, Mrs. Robert Sergeant is among nine Michigan women to receive the American Association of University Women's (AAUW) grant for further education.

Mrs. Sergeant, a graduate of Butler University, with a major in English is the mother of two children. Her husband is an electronics engineer with General Electric Company.

★ ★ ★

The college faculty program for women over 35 is designed to direct the winners into college faculty careers and is one of the AAUW projects being supported by the Birmingham branch.

ELIGIBILITY

Women who have their bachelor's degree and who are not now currently enrolled in school are eligible for the awards. Applications for 1968-69 should be sent to Mrs. Howard B. Green of Hupp Cross Road, Birmingham, 48010, before the Jan. 22 deadline.

Total contributions include gifts from Chrysler Corporation, Sears Roebuck Foundation, Campbell-Ewald Foundation, the Civic Fund, Kalamazoo; Mrs. George Barton and other private donors.

Response Varies With Ad Medium

While women find out about a product most often by television, they are more influenced to buy on recommendations of friends or relatives or by receiving a free sample.

A nickel's worth of Sno-Bol will sanitize and deodorize your you-know-what.

General purpose cleaners are fine for most jobs. But not for cleaning toilet bowls. Sure they get things clean. But they don't deodorize and sanitize.

Liquid Sno-Bol cleans in seconds while it deodorizes and sanitizes. It's faster and more efficient than any dry bowl cleaner. You can pour Sno-Bol full strength to remove rust stains and calcium deposits. And it works better and costs less than other leading cleaners.

COLORFUL FLOWERS

Have you ever wondered why you've never seen a green blossom. Botanists have reached the conclusion that a green blossom would hardly be seen by the insects or birds that are so vital in the life process of plants by aiding pollination.

Hence; God in His creation of flowers and their process of life, thought of everything to assist their beauty and existence.

We try to make flowers more beautiful . . . our arrangements are given special attention and care, our corsages are carefully prepared . . . in other words we do everything possible to make the flowers you order, just what you want.

Gala Marks Special Day

In observance of their 10th birthday, members of the Troy Business and Professional Women's Club will honor their past presidents tonight at 7 p.m.

The four former presidents include Mrs. Clarence Long, Mrs. Woodrow Braim, Mrs. Fred Sprenger and Mrs. Anthony Perio.

As a token of the occasion, the club will present Mrs. Clara Blankenship, president of Friends of the Troy Library, with a collection of books given in their name.

Chairman of the event at the Chateau Gay is Mrs. Arvella Bayless.

College Campus Provides Tour for AAUW Gals

A tour of the Highland Lakes Campus of Oakland Community College is planned for Thursday evening by Waterford branch of the American Association of University Women.

Members will meet at the Westlawn Avenue home of Mrs. George Ross at 7:30 p.m. and organize into groups for the tour. A short business meeting and refreshments will follow at the Ross home.

★ ★ ★

Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Lowell Armstrong, Mrs. Lloyd Syron and Phyllis Barnes.

A study of American executives indicates that the average manager spends about 80 per cent of his time talking.

Mrs. Ralph Mazza, Bayou Drive, (right) was hostess Tuesday afternoon to the Oakland Democrats Meadow Brook Theatre benefit committee. The group has bought the house for the American professional premiere of "And People All Around" on Thursday. Edgar A. Guest III (left) spoke to the women at the tea. Mrs. George Googasian, wife of the Democratic County Chairman, presided at the tea table.

Prospective Nurses Invited

Open house for prospective nursing students will be held at Mercy School of Nursing on Fulton Street, from 3-5 p.m. Jan. 24.

★ ★ ★

Students will conduct tours of the school and show slides depicting a day in the life of a student. A panel of students will describe classes, clinical laboratory and social activities.

The school offers a two-year nursing program to qualified high school graduates. Upon completion of the program, the students receive a diploma and are eligible to take state board examinations to become a registered nurse.

A limited number of scholarships are available to qualified applicants. The school participates in the federal student nurse loan program.

Further information may be obtained from the school.

Why Grow Old?

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Someone said, "If you want something done, ask a busy person to do it." In a way this applies to self-improvement. Once you make up your mind to lose 15 or 20 pounds of overweight you are more likely to go all out and also take better care of your hair and complexion. You have the attitude of self-improvement.

Also, overweight is often so discouraging that a woman may think "what's the use?" Many women who are a great deal overweight lose interest in hair styling and makeup and clothes.

★ ★ ★

Many give their complexion only hit and miss attention. Whether you have too many pounds or too few, why not pamper your complexion with special care during the next eight weeks? Be faithful for that long anyway, and you will see great improvement. The hit and miss method is no more effective than the "off and on a diet" routine, or exercise taken only every fifth or sixth day.

OILS DECREASE

The natural oils in the skin decrease as the years go by. If you want to minimize wrinkling, it is essential to compensate for this loss with the regular use of lubricating creams. Unless a woman has an extremely oily complexion she should use creams from the age of 30 on. Many women need this much earlier, for instance, if they have a very dry skin or live in a very dry climate.

If your skin is extremely dry, use cleansing creams for cleaning the epidermis and also give a lubricating cream time to soak in. If possible leave one on all night. If not, for an hour or more during the day. However, all complexions profit by soap once in a while, at least once a week, maybe twice a week.

Also make use of the moisturizers. Use one under your makeup during the day. Do not use astringents.

The daily use of a softening body lotion is important during a reducing trek. This will help your skin shrink beautifully to fit your new proportions.

OILY COMPLEXION

If you have an oily complexion, you should treat it differently. Use soap and water generously, several times a day. Following rinsing with an astringent. Do not use any cream on your face. Your reducing diet will be beneficial to your skin because fats and greasy foods are somewhat curtailed.

Whether your complexion is dry or oily be sure to remove your makeup before going to sleep at night. Cleanliness is a secret ingredient in all beauty. Your diet and exercise and your general good health will have a happy effect on your complexion.

Don't forget that it is a living part of you and depends on the diet you eat for its health and good looks just as you do. So, add special skin care to this eight weeks of self-improvement.

If you have missed some of my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan, you can still begin and follow it. My Bip Kit gives you all directions for diet and exercise, with calories counted for you for 15 days, a calorie chart, a weight and height chart and a wall chart on which you can plot your weight.

If you would like to lose 15 to 20 pounds and become better looking in just eight weeks, send for the Bip Kit. Enclose 25 cents, plus 15 cents for postage and handling, and your printed name and address. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press, Dept. E-600, P.O. Box 9, Pontiac, Mich. 48056.

Heidi A. Griffith was awarded her BA degree recently from Michigan State University, where she was a member of Chi Omega sorority. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Griffith of Dakota Drive, she will start graduate studies at Oakland University.

Social Security—15

Earnings Base for Tax to Keep Going Up

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Publications

WASHINGTON — One of the surest things about the Social Security system's future is that the earnings base for Social Security taxes will not stay indefinitely at its new high level of $7,800 yearly but will go on rising.

The 1967 revisions which lifted the base to that point from the old $6,600 level do not, it is true, provide for further upward changes—though the tax rate itself is to be increased many times starting in 1969.

But Social Security authorities are thoroughly convinced that, in an era of constantly rising wage levels, the earnings base from which the taxes are taken must keep a similar upward pace if the system is to remain strong and healthy.

If the base does not rise with climbing wage levels, they foresee these serious consequences:

More and more workers would have earnings higher than the base, and fewer and fewer of them would ultimately get retirement or other benefits related reasonably to their full earnings.

WOULD BE WEAKENED

The system's ability to respond financially to new and changing needs would be seriously weakened, since a smaller proportion of the country's payrolls would be subject to Social Security tax contributions.

To finance a given rate of benefits or to increase benefit scales would mean higher and higher tax RATES imposed on the same limited base.

A greater and greater part of the program's cost thereupon would be thrown on the nation's lower-paid workers—those earning less than the limit fixed by the base.

Some specialists argue that the earnings base could quickly be pushed from the new $7,800 to around $15,000, since at this latter level the tax would be applied against the full earnings of about the same proportion of U.S. workers as was true in the late 1930's when the base was just $3,000.

FORMULA

There have been suggestions that a formula be developed to provide for raising the earnings base in automatic stages as wage levels rise.

It is also being argued that, with or without such a feature, rising wage levels seem sure to bring enough added revenues into Social Security coffers to make possible another formula: a secure tie between rises in the cost of living and higher retirement and related benefits.

Th chief objection to this proposal is that it would constantly and automatically channel new money into the established benefit structure, rather than allow flexible attention to improvements needed to meet presently unforeseen problems.

★ ★ ★

As we have seen earlier in this series, there is mounting talk of drawing more of the program's future financial sustenance from the general U.S. Treasury revenues rather than Social Security trust funds.

ADDITIONAL FUNDS

Right now about $1 billion of general revenue augments employe-employer tax contributions under the system.

By fiscal 1972, it is figured the regular federal treasury will be paying out $1.8 billion annually for parts of the program.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York has proposed that the treasury supply 35 per cent of total Social Security financing, to make possible far higher benefits and lift more aged folk out of poverty.

★ ★ ★

But resistance to this is high in many quarters. The self-help aspect of a contributory tax under Social Security seems to have wide citizen acceptance; a heavy turn to general financing might greatly intensify demands for more benefits; such a turn, conversely, might imperil the program by putting it in competition for the general tax dollar and weakening its present financial independence.

PRINCIPAL CAUSE

If there is a swing toward the general treasury, the demands of Social Security's Medicare offshoot may prove to be the principal cause.

Treasury supplies somewhere around half the money paid out for doctor bills under optional, supplemental medical insurance (patients also pay premiums).

In 18 months of Medicare, 28 million doctor bills totaling $1,311,000,000 were paid. The outlook is for much, much more of the same in the years ahead.

To prevent even greater future reliance upon general tax monies, defenders of Social Security's "insurance-style" financing count unmistakably upon wage levels soaring upgrade so swiftly and constantly that their "magic" will finance most of the burdens insistent poverty-fighters and others may put upon the continuously enlarging Social Security system in the decades to come.

Rushed Chemical Saves Poisoned Tot

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — Maria Simmons, 15 months, swallowed 37 iron pills used to treat adult anemia and was near death. The only known antidote to her iron poisoning was a rare chemical 70 miles away.

There a sheriff's deputy picked up 20 ampules of the chemical, methane sulfonate, at Children's Hospital in Los Angeles Tuesday and flew it to Loma Linda University Hospital in 20 minutes.

★ ★ ★

Later Maria was listed in fair condition. The child's father, Marine Cpl. Orville Simmons, said his daughter found the pills in her mother's purse.

Scientist Eyes New N-Missile

'Could Knock Russia Out of 20th Century'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nuclear scientist says this country's new multiplewarhead missile could, in just one strike, threaten the lives of 60 million Russians and "knock the Soviet Union out of the 20th century."

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, who worked on the original atomic bomb project, told a college audience Tuesday: "The fact is that the striking power of the U.S. is incredibly immense if reckoned in terms of city killpower.

★ ★ ★

"If half of our 1,710 strategic missiles are converted into multiwarhead configurations, the United States will have 18 times the kill capacity required to knock the Soviet Union out of the 20th century."

This concept, Lapp said, springs from development of the multiplewarhead system, which he labeled a "ballistic six-shooter."

SEPARATE TARGETS

Known technically as MIRV —for Multiple Independently Targetable Reentry Vehicle- the weapon is an intercontinental ballistic missile capable of carrying up to six hydrogen-bomb warheads which could be dropped on separate targets.

★ ★ ★

Thus, said Lapp, 45 ICBMs loaded to capacity would be enough to incinerate 200 city targets, while the carrier missiles remained in flight until all the warheads were deployed.

Lapp's remarks, addressed to a convocation at Washington and Jefferson College in Washington, Pa., were released in Washington in advance.

★ ★ ★

His speech coincided with the Pentagon's denial of a report that this country has placed Soviet cities rather than military installations at the top of its nuclear target list.

British Pullout May Push U.S. in Gap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield expresses concern the United States will be faced with trying to fill the military vacuum created when British forces leave the vast area from the Middle East to Singapore.

A State Department spokesmen said Monday, in the wake of the British announcement of its plans to pull out troops from the area in a budget-cutting move: "We have no plans to move in where the British forces pull out."

★ ★ ★

But Mansfield said in an interview: "I am sorry the British felt they were forced to take this step because I am certain we will be asked to fill the vacuum east of Suez. I don't know how we are going to do it because I don't think we have the men or resources for it."

It was clear from private conversations that many civilian and military officials shared Mansfield's belief and concern.

'NOT PREPARED'

They contended as one of them put it, "We are not prepared to extend our commitments" in view of the strains of the Vietnam war and existing worldwide American commitments.

Bitter reactions to the British plan were voiced behind the scenes, coupled in some instances with complaints Britain has failed to support the United States in Vietnam.

★ ★ ★

Officially the U.S. government expressed regret that economically hard-pressed Britain found it necessary to cancel a billion-dollar purchase of F111 supersonic fighter planes and to evacuate all British troops, ships and aircraft from east of Suez in three years.

The new withdrawal plan will take effect at least two years earlier than anticipated and apparently exceeds the scope expected by U.S. planners.

EXPECTATIONS

"We hoped they would keep small garrisons at least in the Persian Gulf area and their pullback is going to be much more rapid than we thought it would be," one source said.

What concerns U.S. military strategists is that the British withdrawal—and possible new burdens for this country—come as the Soviets are establishing a widening foothold in the Red Sea-Indian Ocean area.

They also foresee a likelihood the United States may be confronted with a Soviet challenge east of Suez in the face of growing public sentiment for a reexamination, and possible reduction, of U.S. military commitments around the globe.

American authorities expressed hope the nations in the Persian Gulf area—including Iran, Saudia Arabia and Kuwait —would form a defense and regional economic association to make up for the departure of the British influence in that area.

AUSTRALIA

Officials said Australia and New Zealand would like to see the United States fill the gaps left by Britain in the Singapore-Malaysia area, but indicated the Australians and New Zealanders should prepare to go it alone there.

The U.S. Navy long has been concerned about the Indian Ocean, although until now it has been regarded as Britain's province.

★ ★ ★

Some Navy sources suggested the British pullout might lead to creation of a separate Indian Ocean fleet. They also said there has been talk of bolstering the present tiny U.S. Navy Red Sea force of two destroyers and a sea plane tender.

Britain has maintained one carrier east of Suez but that will end with the pullback.

CANCELED F 111s

The 50 F111 long-range warplanes were intended to give Britain a striking power throughout the Indian Ocean-Far East region.

The decision to drop the F111s and retire her remaining carriers will leave Britain with a nuclear striking force limited to four Polaris submarines.

Apartment Units Planned

Dump Site Sold to Developers

City commissioners last night approved the sale of the city's former dump site on Orchard Lake next to Washington Park subdivision for development of apartment units.

The commissioners unanimously approved the sale of the land for $60,000 to Solomon Sylvan and George Kratchman, developers who said they would begin construction of apartments by May.

Terms call for the purchase price to be paid under a land contract by May 1969.

A previous sale to the ERE Corp. of Michigan was declared in default because the corporation did not meet payments as required.

★ ★ ★

Terms of the contract call for Sylvan and Kratchman to pay interest and taxes due on the land.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other action, the commission approved awarding of a utilities construction contract to Gay Brothers, Inc., for water main, sanitary sewer and storm sewer construction along W. Kennett and an extended Columbia Avenue.

The company was the lowest of five bidders with a bid of $154,198, some $45,00 under engineer estimates of the project.

The utility systems will extend the city facilities to the planned North Hills Farms, a low-income rent supplement project to be constructed along West Kennett adjacent to the Alcott Elementary School.

Funds for the projects will come from varied sources, according to Joseph E. Neipling, director of public works and service.

He said the storm sewer construction will be funded from the 1968 capital improvement fund, the water main construction from the water system fund and the sanitary sewer construction from the sewage utility fund.

"A very limited portion of the revenue will be supplied by the current inadequate assessment rates," he said.

Commissioners also approved transferring easement rights over Montcalm to Consumers Power Co. for servicing proposed electrical lines which will be constructed from a planned electrical substation on Montcalm in Aaron Perry Park to Pontiac Motor Division's foundry.

★ ★ ★

The power company and Pontiac Motor are cooperating in the project. The substation will provide electricity which will enable the foundry to be run on electrical power eliminating the need for the huge furnaces which contribute to pollution.

STEP FORWARD

Neipling recommended approval calling it a step forward in eliminating pollution from the foundry.

In other action, the commission deferred for one week making recommendations to the Liquor Control Commission on reissuance of liquor licenses for bars and taverns.

The Liquor Control Commission asked that any objections to the annual reissuance be forwarded to the LCC.

★ ★ ★

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. said the commission would consider the question for a week before making any recommendations.

City Affairs

Commission Okays '68 Hospital Budget

City commissioners approved a 1968 operating budget for Pontiac General Hospital calling for expenses of $11,287,577 at a public hearing last night.

The budget was approved by hospital trustees last month.

Harold B. Euler, PGH administrator, told the commission that because of construction at the hospital and alterations to the hospital it would operate at 92 per cent of capacity during the year.

He predicted a total of 134,000 patient days with a bed complement of 398 daily.

Room rates are still under other area hospitals, Euler said.

He said he expected that the hospital would end up in the black at the end of the year as it has for nine of the past 10 years.

ESTIMATED COSTS

The budget estimates earnings from patients at $11,061,000. Expenses include $6,884,347 for salaries and wages, $865,420 for fees, $2,922,810 for other expenses, $315,000 for depreciation and $300,000 for alteration costs.

Other expenses include a variety of categories including administrative expenses, employes' insurance and social security payments, dietary expense, and expense for laundry, housekeeping, plant operation, maintenance and repair and nursing service.

Commissioners also approved the 1968 budgets for the water utility and sewage utility funds and for the parking systems operations.

The sewer utility budget calls for a budget of $904,000 for the year, some $47,365 under last year's.

Metered and flat rate service will account for $618,000, services outside the city for $129,000, sewer connections $115,000, interest, $38,000, and miscellaneous, $4,000.

SURPLUS ESTIMATED

The water utility budget will provide an estimated $219,663 surplus by the end of the year, it was estimated.

The parking systems budget calls for expenditures and revenue of $148,722, up $17,312 from last year.

School Panel in Waterford Airs Relations

More than 125 persons attended a meeting of the Waterford Township School District's citizens' study subcommittee on communications last night at Pierce Junior High School.

Several suggestions were made on how to improve communications between the schools and the community, which is the subcommittee's task.

In addition to subcommittee members, other citizens and school administrators attended the meeting which was conducted by Dr. Wendell Hough, a professor of education at Wayne State University.

Hough had previously introduced a confrontation technique of discussion which was experimented with last night.

The ideas suggested at last night's meeting will be compiled printed and distributed by M. Barrett Vorce, associate superintendent for instruction and personnel.

MEETING TO FOLLOW

Another meeting will follow at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 20, also at Pierce.

Also last night, several questions were asked regarding taxes and school finances with Joseph A. Giddis, associate superintendent for business, doing most of the answering.

Following the first part of the program, participants considered the proposed 1968-69 budget reductions because of inadequate funds.

Bids Are Taken on Loan Notes

The city administration will be receiving bids today on some $1,015,000 in preliminary loan notes for Pontiac's R44 urban renewal project area.

City commissioners last night authorized City Manager Joseph A. Warren to notify the successful bidder that his bid has been approved upon receipt of approval from the regional office of the urban renewal administration.

Police Raid NY Campus

STONY BROOK, N.Y. (AP) — A raiding party of 198 police stormed the State University campus here early today, routing 30 students out of their beds and charging them with a variety of felony narcotics violations.

The raiding party—not told in advance of the raid's purpose—arrived at the sprawling, still unfinished campus on Long Island's North Shore at 3 a.m., in 72 police vehicles.

★ ★ ★

They were quickly briefed, divided into 32 raiding teams and sent to the college's dormitories and a few nearby homes armed with a warrant for 38 students including a few coeds. Eight escaped the net and were still at large, police said.

Salvation Army Unit Acquires Detroit Service

The men's social service department of the Salvation Army has acquired Detroit's Christian Enterprise.

The entire operation of this augmented service will be supervised by Brig. Cecil C. Briggs, manager and director of the Men's Social Service Center in Detroit.

He said: "This new enlarged setup in combination with the present Men's Social Service Center and the Harbor Light facilities will provide 565 beds and 1,500 to 2,000 hot meals per day."

The acquisition means an important expansion of Salvation Army's Social Services in the metropolitan Detroit area. The Social Service Center sends out pickup trucks for usable discards in the home.

Alano Center Slates Film

A film titled "Bill's Story" will be shown at the Alano Center, 1143 Joslyn, at 8 p.m. tomorrow, 7:30 p.m. Saturday, and 3 p.m. Sunday.

★ ★ ★

The story concerns the life of the founder of Alcoholics Anonymous and the beginning of AA.

The programs are open to the public and there is no charge.

Holdup Victim Plays Dead; Suspects Held

FLINT (AP) — Police captured two men at a roadblock today after a gasoline station attendant who was robbed and shot three times "played dead" in a snow-covered field to save his life.

State Police arrested Bill Bingley, 23, of Grand Blanc and Robert Riley, 22, of Flint at a roadblock on U.S. 23 just south of Brighton.

★ ★ ★

The service station attendant, Dennis Allen, 19, of Midland, was reported in satisfactory condition in Hurley Hospital at Flint, suffering gunshot wounds of the cheek, head and shoulder.

Allen told police the two bandits robbed him of $30 at the Kayo filling station where he worked in Flint.

FORCED RIDE

Riley forced him to ride to a field off U.S. 23 south of Flint, Allen said.

The men shot him three times, he told officers, and he lay face down in the snow without moving until they left.

Allen walked to a nearby house and alerted police.

FBI Agents Kill Man in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — FBI agents shot and killed a 23-year-old man in Detroit today when they attempted to arrest him on an Alabama warrant charging him with armed robbery and kidnaping.

The man was identified as David Lee Jones, who was shot when he leaped out of bed as the FBI agents entered his room in a YMCA on Detroit's East Side. The agents said they mistakenly thought Jones had a gun.

State GI Killed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Army Pfc. Michael W. Orr, son of Mrs. Virginia Orr, Grand Rapids, was among 27 U.S. servicemen killed in recent action in Vietnam, the Defense Department said yesterday.

Bloodmobile Due

An American Red Cross bloodmobile will be at the Crofoot School, 280 W. Huron, from 3 to 9 p.m. Friday.

Appointments may be made by contacting the Red Cross office at 118 Franklin Blvd.

Midcontinent Likely to Get January Thaw

By the Associated Press

Subzero cold stung parts of the Northeast today and frosty temperatures extended deep into Florida, but a January thaw was in store for the winter-weary midcontinent.

The mercury settled to 16 below zero at Montpelier, Vt., and Houlton, Maine, before dawn.

Similar earmuff-and-mitten temperatures were scattered westward into Upstate New York.

★ ★ ★

A cold snap which has hung onto the Southeast since the first of the year crept deeper into Florida, pushing thermometer readings down to the 20s in northern sections and to the lower 30s as far south as Tampa.

Tallahassee residents shivered in a 21-degree predawn chill, colder even than Denver, high in the Colorado Rockies, where it was 29.

WARMING TREND

Overnight temperatures were in the 20s and 30s in much of the midcontinent, too, but that was mild for that region. The Weather Bureau indicated a general warming trend would extend from the plains to the Appalachians by nightfall.

Remnants of the recent siege of snow and severe cold remained in some sections. Schools in an estimated 15 Kentucky counties still were closed by snow and icy roads. Electrical power was restored to 2,000 homes in the Hopkinsville, Ky., area Tuesday for the first time in three days.

★ ★ ★

Light rain dampened coastal communities in Washington and Oregon. The same storm system scattered snow inland to Idaho and Western Montana.

Some early morning temperatures and conditions: Boston 11 cloudy, New York 18 cloudy, Philadelphia 21 cloudy, Washington 25 partly cloudy, Atlanta 26 clear, Miami 49 clear, Detroit 19 partly cloudy, Chicago 17 cloudy, Minneapolis-St. Paul 25 clear, St. Louis 27 clear, Kansas City 36 clear, Dallas 40 clear, Denver 29 cloudy, Phoenix 47 partly cloudy, Los Angeles 55 clear, San Francisco 48 clear, Seattle 38 rain, Anchorage 18 partly cloudy, Honolulu 75 cloudy.

New U-M Bylaws Would Oust 2 VPs

ANN ARBOR (UPI)—Two top University of Michigan vice presidents would be forced to leave their posts if the university's regents adopt a proposed change in their bylaws, the campus newspaper said today.

The Michigan Daily said it has learned that the regents have generally agreed to a proposed bylaw revision which would require top executive officers to retire at age 65.

Marvin L. Neihuss, executive vice president, and William L. Stirton, vice president and director of the U-M Dearborn Center, would be affected by the revision. Neihuss is 65; Stirton will be 65 in March.

New Jail Funds Will Be Sought

Funds will be sought tomorrow for the first phases of a new jail for Oakland County. The request will go to the Board of Supervisors at their meeting 9:30 a.m. at the County Courthouse auditorium.

The ways and means committee will seek funds to draw up specifications and will recommend methods of financing the new structure.

Third Transplant of Heart Slated

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Dr. Christian Barnard said today he will perform a third heart transplant operation in March following a tour of the United States and Latin America.

Barnard did not say who the third patient will be.

He said his second transplant patient, Dr. Philip Blaiberg, was progressing "very well" after 15 days with his new heart.

2 Columnists Ruled Liable

Dodd Seeks Damages for Use of Stolen Files

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has ruled columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson are liable for damages for using documents stolen from the office files of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.

The summary judgment against the columnists was made Tuesday at Dodd's request in U.S. District Court. But Judge Alexander Holtzoff said the question of damages would have to be settled at a later trial.

Dodd is suing Pearson and Anderson for $1 million.

The columnists have conceded writing articles based on material allegedly taken from Dodd's files by several of the senator's employes. The articles dealt largely with the Connecticut Democrat's finances.

Dodd was censured by the Senate June 22 for using political funds to pay personal bills.

STOLEN INFORMATION

Holtzoff said his ruling concerned only whether a person is liable for damages if he receives purloined documents and uses the information they contain.

The judge rejected Dodd's contention that his rights to privacy were violated.

★ ★ ★

"The court concludes that the publication of the material of which the plaintiff complains is not protected by the cloak of the right of privacy, because the publication relates to his activities as high-ranking public officer . . . in which the public has an interest," Holtzoff said.

New Power Steering for GM Pickups

GMC Truck & Coach Division today announced a new system of power steering for GMC pickup trucks.

The system, offered as an option on GMC half, three-quarter and one-ton models, is designed to give trucks the same ease of handling enjoyed by passenger car drivers, the company said.

★ ★ ★

Consisting of a rotary-valve power gear and high-pressure hydraulic pump, the system is a product of the Saginaw Steering Gear Division of GM.

Driver effort to turn front wheels while stopped is only 2.5 pounds and response to the steering wheel is quicker and more positive than on previous truck steering systems, the company said.

Stabbing Case to Circuit Court

Man, 28, Charged With Murder Attempt

A 28-year-old man charged with the attempted murder of two brothers was bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court at his examination yesterday before West Bloomfield Township Justice Christian Powell.

Circuit Court arraignment is set for Jan. 31 at 9 a.m. before Judge Philip Pratt.

The suspect, Fred Parkkila of the Walled Lake area, is free on $10,000 cash bond.

He stood mute at his arraignment in Justice Court Jan. 3.

★ ★ ★

Parkkila is charged with stabbing Thomas and Randall Ryan, 21355 Farmington, Farmington, during a 3:30 a.m. melee at a New Year's Eve party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Barr, 6551 Drake, West Bloomfield Township.

Three other people are believed to have been injured by a group of seven male attackers at the party, township police said.

Miami Track Is Closed by Purse Dispute

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hialeah Park canceled the opening day races of its 41st season today when jockeys joined horsemen in a boycott of the queen of American racetracks.

When the jockeys failed to report, the track announced it would not open today. It added negotiations were continuing between the track and horsemen demanding a bigger share of purse monies.

The Royal Poinciana Handicap, today's scheduled feature race, will be run Thursday, Hialeah announced, and entries will be taken for Thursday's other races.

Earlier, three of the scheduled 10 races were canceled after only 33 horses were entered. Usually, about 100 would be entered for a 10-race card.

The boycott could cost the track heavily.

To Drive Away U.S. N-Carrier

Japanese Leftists Start Riot Tactics

SASEBO, Japan (AP) — Radical leftists vowed today to drive the American nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise from Japan's shores by the same riot tactics that kept President Eisenhower away in 1960.

In a warm-up for the 75,000-ton carrier's arrival at the Sasebo Naval Base later this week, about 800 leftist students tried to invade the base today. Riot police drove them off in a three-hour battle with heavy casualties on both sides.

Sasebo City Hospital said it treated about 500 students and onlookers for bruises and the effects of tear gas.

Police said 60 students and 10 policemen were treated for cuts and other injuries and that 14 of the students and one policeman were seriously injured. Officials said 27 students were arrested.

FIGHTING

Fighting started on a 20-foot-wide bridge leading to the main entrance of the Sasebo base where the Enterprise is expected Friday or Saturday on her way to duty in Vietnam. She and her escort, the frigate Truxton, will be the first nuclear-powered surface warships to visit Japan.

The students wielded sticks and threw rocks. The police, protected by shields and armored trucks, forced them back with tear gas and icy streams from fire hoses. Then about 1,000 officers moved in with clubs and dispersed the mob.

★ ★ ★

A spokesman for Sampa, one of the militant factions of the Zengakuren student organization, said the students were determined to "create a riot and force the Enterprise away in the same way that Zengakuren riots forced President Eisenhower to cancel his visit."

★ ★ ★

Zengakuren opposes the Vietnam war and the U.S.-Japan security treaty which comes up for review in 1970, but the spokesman said the group's target is the Japanese government and its alliance with the United States. He said the demonstrators would not molest U.S. military personnel in Sasebo.

1960 RIOTS

The 1960 riots in Tokyo were a futile attempt to prevent the signing of the U.S.-Japan treaty. Though it didn't block the treaty, Eisenhower canceled plans to visit Japan after his press secretary, James H. Hagerty, was mobbed at the Tokyo airport. After the treaty was signed, Premier Nobusuke Kishi resigned.

★ ★ ★

Police had 5,800 men in Sasebo to deal with the students. The average citizen in the city of 250,000 seemed indifferent, and merchants staged a 30-car parade today to welcome the carrier.

"I see no reason to protest," said one shopkeeper. "American sailors here are good for business."

★ ★ ★

U.S. sailors walking through the streets appeared unconcerned and attracted little attention.

The Sampa students arrived by train this morning. About 150 from Zengakuren's Kakumaru faction were expected to arrive later by bus.

The mildest of the factions, Nikkyo, which supports the Japanese Communist party, held an orderly rally of about 1,000 students in downtown Sasebo. A Buddhist group held a public protest meeting in another part of town.

'Inkster School Closing Would Ignite Racial Violence'

LANSING (AP) — If state officials permit Inkster schools to close next month, they will be "lighting the fuse" that will ignite violence, legislators were warned Tuesday.

"We are all aware of the tense situations that exist in our nation's cities," the Rev. Aaron Butler, president of the Inkster Ministerial Alliance, told a crowded legislative hearing. "There are violent elements that could erupt at any time.

★ ★ ★

"We are actually sitting on a powder keg and if you as our leaders permit our schools to become inoperative, you will be lighting the fuse that will cause the explosion," he said.

The down-to-the-wire hearing, chaired by Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, was called when Inkster School Supt. Dr. Edward B. Forte said the district must come up with $900,000 or close the classroom doors Feb. 2.

AT THE HEARING

Some 70 parents, teachers and community leaders from Inkster, as well as Lt. Gov. William Milliken, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Ira Polley and at least 40 legislators attended the hearing.

Faust promised action on the request "in the next day or two."

★ ★ ★

About 40 per cent of Inkster's 40,000 residents are Negro. The 5,000 youngsters in the Inkster School District, which encompasses part of Westland but not all the city of Inkster, include about 4,000 Negroes.

"If we fail to follow our constitution, which clearly points out that each state is responsible for a free public education for its children,and turn the 5,000 boys and girls of Inkster out into the streets," the minister said, "we are not only showing them that we don't care about what they do, how they feel, or what they believe, but we are providing basic food material for subversive elements to feed upon."

DRESS REHEARSAL

Forte cited earlier statements by Gov. George Romney that the Detroit riot last summer may be "merely a dress rehearsal for bigger and better riots in the summer of 1968."

"Unfortunately," Forte said, "we must reject the thesis werein only the large cities are the ones to be considered matters for concern, as pertains to the relationship between riots and educational levels of achievement.

"Unless we as concerned persons can somehow garner the kind of support needed to provide these youngsters with the educational advantages needed I can assure you that we are rushing toward the headlong path to more riots in the streets."

Terrell LeCesne, president of the Inkster Human Relations Council, warned that if the children had unlimited leisure time and limited supervision, "such idleness could lend itself to vandalism, delinquency and related social problems."

DETERIORATION

"Unless you act now with appropriate measures," he said, "the closing of our schools will generate and sustain some of the vary things schools have long sought to avert. Namely—a deterioration of a positive attitude toward self, the state and schools.

"It will serve to validate the arguments of those who seem bent on creating dissent and destruction."

Mrs. Earl Tate, president of the Detroit Council of Parent Teacher Associations, warned of "the crying need for basic changes in the state aid formula."

Approves Park

CITY OF INDUSTRY, Calif. (AP) — Of the 150 registered voters in the City of Industry, 121 turned out Tuesday and approved an $8.5-million bond issue to build an exposition center. and park. City of Industry sprawls over 10½ square miles near Los Angeles and was created mainly for industry.

State Police Launch Drive for Recruits

EAST LANSING (AP) — Michigan State Police report they are starting an intensified recruiting drive to fill 225 more trooper positions authorized by the Legislature.

The department's current waiting roster of approved candidates is nearly exhausted, said Col. Frederick Davids, State Police director.

★ ★ ★

"This makes it an especially opportune time for qualified young men to apply for enlistment," Davids said. 'I also want to emphasize that State Police are an equal opportunity employer and are actively seeking candidates from all groups."

State Police have been pushing recruitment efforts among Negro youths during the past year.

BIWEEKLY PAY

Present biweekly pay starts at $257.60 for troopers and climbs to $361.60 after six years. A proposed increase would raise these scales to $272.88 and $383.20.

★ ★ ★

Troopers work a 40-hour week and get paid for overtime. They receive two weeks of paid vacations a year, paid sick leave and longevity pay and are eligible to retire at half-pay after 25 years of service.

Detroit Council OKs Developer

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Common Council voted 5-1 Tuesday to reaffirm the Housing Commission's choice of the M. E. Arden Co. of Detroit for development of the multimillion dollar Kern Urban Renewal block in downtown Detroit.

★ ★ ★

The Housing Commission originally selected Arden Oct. 5 from a group of six developers bidding on the project. But one of the bidders, Bonan-Schochet of New York City, protested that the commission was unfair in selecting the Detroit firm.

The council action, with Councilman Mary Beck dissenting, followed a three-month investigation.

★ ★ ★

James Draper, attorney for Sean Bonan and Jay Schochet, declined to comment when asked if the New York firm planned any legal action.

'WILL MOVE AHEAD'

"Now that the decision has been made, fairly and openly by the council, the Arden team will move ahead immediately with this truly civic project," said M. E. Arden, president of the Detroit firm.

Arden plans call for a $50-million, 60-story triangular skyscraper hotel and office building, to be the largest in Detroit.

★ ★ ★

It will be built on the site of the old Kern Department Store, which went out of business several years ago.

The hotel will contain 800 rooms and an underground parking garage.

LA Man Held in Divorce Trial Slaying

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "When he learns I have filed this action for divorce, he will release his anger on me and I live in fear of the moment when he learns of this action . . . he will commit violence on my person."

So wrote Hildegard Dilbeck, 43, in an affidavit filed with a divorce complaint Sept. 8, 1966.

She married songwriter Thomas Christopher Dilbeck in 1958. They separated, childless, two days before she filed the divorce complaint. She said they had $400,000 in common property.

★ ★ ★

After filing a counter divorce complaint in October 1966, Dilbeck filed answers to questions from his wife's lawyers last May in which he said he and his wife had never been intimate.

★ ★ ★

On Tuesday, the day the divorce case was scheduled in Superior Court, Hildegard Dilbeck was shot to death in a courthouse corridor and her husband booked on suspicion of murder and attempted murder. Three persons were wounded, one critically.

POLICE ACCOUNT

Police gave this account:

Dilbeck, 62, sat on a bench outside the courtroom where the case was to be heard. His wife, her lawyer, a friend and an accountant sat nearby in the corridor.

Witnesses said Dilbeck drew a 25-caliber pistol, shouted "Kill. . .Kill. . .Kill," shot his wife in the side and emptied the pistol on the persons near her.

The friend, Mable Klug, 45, was listed in serious condition at Dominguez Valley Hospital. One of the other wounded persons, Daniel Sheahan, 34, Mrs. Dilbeck's lawyer, was in critical condition at St. Joseph Hospital at Burbank. The other John B. Norberg, 55, a San Marino accountant and witness for Mrs. Dilbeck, was treated for a minor flesh wound.

Dilbeck's business lawyer, Edyth Jacobs, said, "He was a successful songwriter. However, I think he made most of his money in real estate." The American Society of Composers, authors and publishers said its records show only that Dilbeck was the coauthor of "I'll Hold You in My Heart Until I Can Hold You in My Arms" in 1947. Dilbeck's lawyer, Max A. Goodman, who arrived after the shooting, said the main points of contention in the divorce action was $250,000 in property. Dilbeck lived in Long Beach, his wife lived in Bell.

Jazz Great Marks Concert at Carnegie 30 Years Ago

NEW YORK (AP) — Benny Goodman gave a dinner party Tuesday night in the roof garden of his apartment house and the main course was lively reminiscence.

Among the 100 guests were 13 who performed with "Benny Goodman and His Swing Orchestra" exactly 30 years ago on the stage of Carnegie Hall.

★ ★ ★

Carnegie now is the scene of rock 'n' roll concerts and country-western song fests, but in those days the stately hall knew only classical music.

Cornetist Bobby Hackett, who did a guest solo with the band at that Jan. 16, 1938, concert, said, "We were all scared and nervous. I was just completely awed to step on a stage where all the greatest famous artists had been. And I was awed by Benny, too. He was an idol of mine. He still is."

'RATHER RELUCTANT'

Goodman recalled, "It was a press agent's dream, going into Carnegie. I was rather reluctant to do it, even though Paul Whiteman had given a concert there."

He was interrupted by jazz historian John Hammond, "That was symphonic jazz. He had a bunch of strings."

★ ★ ★

Goodman went on, "I tried to get Bea Lillie to tell a couple of jokes, for variety. She declined. I get nervous now when I play a concert. But I don't think I was then."

Drummer Gene Krupa recalled, "It was our regular 14-piece band. In the second half we had some guests appear. I remember it as a pretty thrilling night. I thought that the band played exceptionally well, with a very eager sound."

GREETED FRIENDS

Martha Tilton, who was Goodman's vocalist in 1938 and sang at Carnegie, greated old friends. "I came in from Los Angeles especially for this party. I wouldn't have missed it for the world. Benny wrote me a letter, 'Would you believe it has been 30 years?'

★ ★ ★

Asked what he remembered, vibraphonist Lionel Hampton said, "I'll tell you that even before that concert, Goodman was the first to have Negro and white musicians playing together. One time in Texas the police said Negro and white couldn't go on the same stage together. The band wouldn't go on until finally they let us all go on. After we played, the ovation must have lasted about an hour."

Pay Hike Urged

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — The salary committee of the Kent County Board of Supervisors has recommended an $800-a-year pay boost for Circuit Court reporters, bringing the proposed salary to $11,000 annually. Circuit judges have urged the higher pay to keep the county competitive in reporters' salaries.

Romney, Dem Leaders Calling for Same Legislation

LANSING (AP) — Republican Gov. George Romney and minority Democratic leaders in the Legislature are on record as favoring similar approaches to a number of state issues — notably passage of an effective open housing bill.

But, as last year's special legislative session once again made clear, that doesn't guarantee smooth sailing for the measures both party's leaders say they want.

Gov. George Romney's State of the State message last Thursday called for, among other things, open occupancy, big state bond issues for recreation and water pollution control, hospital licensing, transportation planning and changes in the riot laws.

Very similar suggestions were contained in a big list of legislative proposals publicized yesterday by Democratic leaders William Ryan of the House and Raymond Dzendzel of the Senate.

★ ★ ★

When the Republican governor and the Democratic leaders call for the same measure, you might assume passage of the measure with little debate or dissent is virtually assured.

But it doesn't always work that way.

HOUSING DEFEAT

Last month, for instance, the emotion-stirring open housing bill was defeated 47-55 in the House even though Romney, leader of the state's Republican party, strongly advocated it and the Republican and Democratic leaders of the chamber were the two principal sponsors.

A bipartisan coalition of 21 Republicans and 26 Democrats voted for the measure in the showdown tally, but 32 Republicans and 23 Democrats opposed it.

In deciding how to vote on a major bill, obviously, legislators take into consideration many other things as well as their leaders' wishes — and they will certainly do so when the housing bill and the other big issues come up this year.

Keeping that in mind, it's still interesting to compare Romney's message with the independently drafted Ryan-Dzendzel package.

★ ★ ★

"We recommend legislative adoption of an effective statewide fair housing law," said the Democrats.

"We need fair housing legislation," Romney said.

"Appropriate legislative action must be taken to assure the availibility of property insurance for the residents of urban areas of Michigan," the Democrats added.

★ ★ ★

"I recommend appropriate legislation to guarantee insurance coverage of those individuals and businesses that meet necessary standards," Romney said.

"To assure Michigan citizens that the hospitals in which they receive care and services meet uniform health and safety standards, we must enact a hospital licensing law," the Democratic position paper said.

"A better Michigan requires more effective methods of protecting the physical and mental health of our people . . . I am again proposing legislation for licensing of all hospitals and clinical laboratories," Romney said.

The two messages were not identical even in areas where they were similar. Democrats called for bond issues of $303 million for recreation and $420.4 million for water pollution control. Romney endorsed the state bonding concept, but his figures were $100 million and $335 million, respectively.

Both called for studies of the future of transportation in Michigan, but Romney called only for "funds . . . for mass transit planning and engineering studies," while Democrats suggested a joint legislative committee and possibly a citizens advisory group to join the executive office in developing a master plan.

Both urged outlawing possession of Molotov cocktails, increasing the penalty for endangering on-duty firemen and clarifying the wording of existing antirio laws.

★ ★ ★

Romney also recommended some more controversial anti-crime measures — subpoena and immunity-granting powers for prosecutors and the attorney general, and court-approved electronic eavesdropping in certain criminal investigations.

★ ★ ★

Those suggestions—Stemming from the recent report of Romney's State Crime Commission—were not included in the Democratic proposals.

Funeral Fund Hike Asked for GI Viet Dead

Congressman William S. Broomfield of Royal Oak has called for an increase in the funeral and burial allowance paid to families of servicemen killed in Vietnam and other overseas posts.

The Republican representative, in a letter to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, said the present $300 maximum allowance falls far short of actual costs in many parts of the country.

BROOMFIELD

"Mounting casualty rates have made this nation's involvement in the war in Vietnam a personal tragedy for the families and loved ones of nearly 16,000 U.S. servicemen killed since 1961," Broomfield added.

"While America desires to show its gratitude for that supreme sacrifice in a number of ways, I believe this is at least one area in need of major review."

★ ★ ★

Broomfield urged McNamara to reevaluate the matter "for the purposes of establishing a more realistic maximum allowance." Under law, the Department of Defense establishes the allowance.

Broomfield noted that funeral and burial costs in major metropolitan areas frequently are at least double the present allotment.

Meat Buying Needs Your Attention

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

Are you getting the best buy for the dollars you spend on meat? Do you take advantage of weekly meat specials? Do you know how to cook the various cuts? Or are you confused about the whole subject?

★ ★ ★

Few families eat a steady diet of hamburger. But even if yours does, are you getting the most for your money?

Do you know that ground chuck at 79 cents a pound may be a better buy than some hamburger at 39 cents a pound. There will bo so much fat in the latter that your patties will shrink way down.

Last week, pork cuts were widely advertised. We hope you took advantage of the sales.

★ ★ ★

Many of you probably bought extra chops and extra roasts, planning to keep them in the freezer. Excellent idea, if they're well wrapped in airtight paper or plastic. With that preparation, they'll keep eight to 12 months.

Shoulder chops of pork, lamb and veal are less expensive than loin or rib chops. They taste the same even though they may look less exciting.

When you are buying beef roast for braising consider the amount of bone in the cut you purchase. Sometimes, the round bone cut give you more servings (therefore at less cost per serving) than the chuck roast with the long bones.

Although we all have to watch our total meat bill, we should remember the cost per serving too.

Boneless meat may give you three or four servings per pound whereas the cut with bone will yield only two.

★ ★ ★

The recommended amount per serving for adults is four ounces, uncooked.

Buying ham calls for careful consideration too. All hams SHOULD have labels telling you whether they are fully cooked, need additional cooking before serving or are country style.

★ ★ ★

We have been battling with local supermarket meat managers for years about this.

Complain, if the label is not on the meat and don't let the man tell you, "All hams are cooked nowadays." They aren't.

If center slices have been removed, the ham cannot be advertised as a "half", but must be called butt or shank "portion."

★ ★ ★

Boneless and canned hams are rarely mislabeled. But learn to read labels, not only on meat, but on everything you buy at the supermarket.

When you put out so much of each food dollar for meat, it is foolish not to cook it properly. The best overall advice is to use low heat unless you're broiling.

Filets Are Top-Notch Beef Choice

Lucky are the friends invited to a party where filets or tournedos are on the menu. No matter what they're called, they're all the extra thick steaks cut from the very choicest of all beef cuts, the tenderloin, and no French chef is needed to cook them faultlessly.

FILETS MIGNON OR TOURNEDOS

Select 4 beef tenderloin steaks cut 1 to 1¼ inches thick. Wrap a strip of bacon around the outside of each steak and tie with string to keep the steak round.

Saute steaks quickly in butter until crusty brown on first side, about 4 minutes; turn and brown on second side, about 4 minutes. Saute 4 large mushroom caps in butter and place on top of steak.

★ ★ ★

If broiled filets are preferred, place steaks on broiler rack 3 inches from heat source; brush with butter and broil until crusty brown 7 to 8 minutes. Turn with tongs, brush with butter and broil second side. Serve with bearnaise sauce. Yield: 4 servings.

Bearnaise Sauce

2 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon chopped onion
½ teaspoon minced parsley
2 tablespoons white wine or water
2 eggs
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
½ cup salad dressing
Salt to taste

Combine vinegar, onion and parsley; heat and add wine or water. Beat eggs until very, very thick. Slowly add heated liquid to eggs, beating constantly. Beat in butter. Cook over hot, not boiling water, stirring gently until mixture coats the spoon.

★ ★ ★

Remove from heat; blend in salad dressing and salt as desired. Yield: About 1¼ cups sauce.

Cranberry-Glazed Pork

1 smoked pork shoulder (2 to 2½ pounds)
1 package (10 ounce) frozen cranberry-orange relish, defrosted
½ cup light corn syrup
½ cup currant jelly
4 cups hot cooked rice
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1 tablespoon sugar
1 to 1½ teaspoons curry powder
½ cup drained fresh orange pieces

Roast meat as directed on label, or on a rack in an open roasting pan in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) until meat thermometer registers an internal temperature of 185 degrees F., about 40 minutes per pound.

Combine relish, syrup and jelly; heat slowly stirring Constantly until jelly melts. Spoon sauce over meat several times during last 25 minutes of baking time. Serve remaining sauce with meat.

Combine hot, well-drained rice with butter or margarine, sugar and curry powder; mix. Fold in orange pieces. Serve with meat. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Round Steak Special

1 round steak, ½ inch thick
Salt, pepper, flour, lard
1 cup sliced onions
2 (8 oz.) cans tomato sauce
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon sugar
1 bay leaf
½ teaspoon herbs (thyme, basil, majoram or oregano)

Sprinkle steak with salt, pepper and flour; pound on both sides with a meat pounder or the edge of a heavy saucer.

In a large, heavy skillet or Dutch oven, brown steak well in a few tablespoons hot lard; top with sliced onions. Combine tomato sauce with rest of ingredients and pour over meat.

Cover and cook over low heat until tender, about 1½ hours. Watch carefully to prevent sticking. Add water as tomato sauce cooks away. Remove steak to a platter, skim fat from sauce and pour over meat. 4 servings.

Braised Lamb Shanks

4 lamb shanks
½ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 onion, sliced
2 tablespoons fat
1 bay leaf

Add salt and pepper to flour and roll lamb shanks in mixture. Brown in hot fat in a skillet or heavy kettle.

Add bay leaf and onion. Add a small amount of water to barely cover the meat. Cover and simmer for 1½ hours or until shanks are tender. Add more water, if needed.

Meat may also be cooked in 325-degree oven.
Serve on rice, garnished with Minted Baked Pears.

Give Baked Pears Green Mint Glaze

Tantalizing aromas greet the family as they arrive home at the dinner hour.

Minted Baked Pear Halves

2 fresh Bosc or Anjou pears
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup water
¼ cup sugar
Mint Jelly Sauce

Halve and core pears and place in shallow baking pan. Combine lemon juice, water and sugar. Pour over pears. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Brush with mint jelly sauce at end of baking time and serve pears as accompaniment to lamb. Makes four servings. To make Mint Jelly Sauce, beat 2 tablespoons hot water into ½ cup mint jelly.

MARKET BASKET

Oven Roasted Beef Rib Roast

Place roast, fat side up, on rack in shallow, uncovered roasting pan. If desired, season with salt and pepper. If meat thermometer is available, insert it into center of roast, away from bone and fat.

Place in slow oven (325 degrees); roast to desired degree of doneness. See chart below for approximate roasting time. Let stand 20 to 25 minutes before carving.

Spit-Roasted Beef Rib Roast

Follow directions for spit roasting given in instruction folder supplied by equipment manufacturer or proceed as follows:

Slide one prong or fork onto spit, points away from handle. Thread meat onto spit exactly through center of roast. Slide the second prong onto spit, points towards roast. Plunge prongs into roast.

Make certain roast is perfectly balanced on spit to insure smooth turning. Lock screws firmly. Attach spit to motor; start rotisserie. Roast to desired degree of doneness over glowing coals or electric element.

Pork Chop 'n' Potato Scallop

6 pork chops, ½-inch thick, (1¾ lbs.)
2 tablespoons regular all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed Cheddar cheese soup
1¼ cups milk
⅓ cup crumbled Blue cheese
6 medium baking potatoes, peeled and thinly sliced (7 cups)
1½ cups sliced onions (2 medium)
2 tablespoons regular all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Trim excess fat from chops; fry trimmings. Combine 2 tablespoons flour and 1 teaspoon salt; coat chops. In a large skillet brown chops well on both sides. Remove from skillet; set aside.

Add soup to skillet; gradually stir in milk. Heat over medium heat to boiling point; remove from heat and stir in Blue cheese. Arrange half of potatoes and half of onions in buttered shallow 3-quart casserole.

Combine 2 tablespoons flour, 1½ teaspoons salt and pepper; sprinkle half of flour mixture over potatoes and onions. Repeat with remaining potatoes, onions and flour mixture. Pour cheese sauce over all. Arrange chops on top; cover casserole with foil.

Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven 60-75 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Makes 6 servings.

Wheat Germ Veal Colombo

1½ lbs. veal cutlet, cut into serving pieces
⅓ cup wheat germ
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon crushed oregano
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
⅛ teaspoon onion powder
⅛ teaspoon pepper
6 tablespoons butter, margarine or cooking oil
1 can (3 oz.) broiled sliced mushrooms
3 tablespoons tomato paste
¼ cup Marsala wine or cooking sherry
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Sprinkle 3 tablespoonsful of wheat germ on both sides of veal pieces. Pound into meat with a wooden mallet. Combine remaining wheat germ, flour and spices on wax paper. Blend well. Coat veal evenly with this mixture.

Saute prepared veal in butter until golden brown on both sides. Remove from skillet. Measure mushroom liquid. If necessary, add water to make ⅓ cup. Pour into skillet. Add mushrooms, tomato paste and wine. Mix well.

Return veal to skillet. Simmer about 10 minutes. Arrange veal on serving platter. Cover with sauce. Garnish with parsley. Yield: 4 servings.

LAMB SCOTCH BARLEY SOUP — A soup plate of homemade Scotch Barley Soup does much to satisfy appetites on cold winter days. Here, lamb neck slices, a variety of vegetables and barley blend together in a well-seasoned broth.

Economical Lamb Cut for Soup

Is there a Scottish plaid or an echo of bagpipes in your background? Some of your friends can undoubtedly lay claim to both . . . perhaps you can, too . . . but it really doesn't matter that much. What is important is the Scottish thriftiness . . . a respect for the ha'penny . . . that we might acquire.

In feeding your family, for instance, how far does your meat dollar go? Do you take advantage of best meat buys such as a rolled lamb shoulder roast, or lamb shanks?

One of the very best whole meal soups credited to the people of Scotland is Scotch barley soup. It's filling, flavorful and simple to put together, calls for lamb neck slices and is perfect for blustery weather.

Its cost won't exceed your meat budget, yet you'll have a satisfying supper to place before your family.

Lamb Scotch Barley Soup

2 pounds lamb neck slices
2 ribs celery, cut in chunks
1 medium onion, sliced
1 clove garlic, crushed
2½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon peppercorns
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1 large bay leaf
2 quarts water
½ cup pearled medium barley
2 cups sliced carrots
1½ cups diced white turnips
½ cup sliced scallions
Chopped parsley, optional

In Dutch oven, combine lamb, celery, onion, garlic, 2 teaspoons salt, peppercorns, monosodium glutamate, bay leaf and water. Bring to boil; tightly cover and simmer 1 hour. Strain; remove excess fat* from broth.

Measure broth; add water if necessary to measure 1½ quarts. If desired, remove meat from bones. Return broth and lamb to Dutch oven. Bring to boil; stir in barley. Simmer covered 30 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Add ½ teaspoon salt, carrots and turnips; continue cooking covered for 20 minutes. Stir in scallions; simmer covered 10 minutes longer. Turn into soup tureen and sprinkle with parsley, if desired.

*For ease of removing fat, chill several hours or overnight to solidify fat.

Quick Rolls Are Seedy

Triangle Thins, quickly popped into the oven when the first guest arrives, bake quickly and deliciously — their special magic is toasty brown sesame seed.

Triangle Thins

1 can refrigerated crescent rolls
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon milk
1 tablespoon sesame seed

Unroll dough and separate into the 8 marked triangles; cut each triangle in half making two smaller triangles. Place on a lightly greased cookie sheet.

With a fork, beat together the egg yolk and milk; brush each triangle with this mixture, then sprinkle with sesame seed. Bake in 375 degree oven 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes 16.

Good Soup to Serve at Lunch Time

Here's a delicious way to treat a soup from the pantry-shelf.

Vegetable Shrimp Chowder

1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed cream of vegetable soup
1½ cups milk
1 can (4½ ounces) shrimp, rinsed in cold water and drained
2 tablespoons minced green pepper

Into a 1-quart saucepan turn an undiluted soup; gradually stir in the milk. Add the shrimp and green pepper. Heat slowly, stirring occasionally until extremely hot, but do not boil. Makes 3 hearty servings.

Caramelized Apples Served With Ice Cream

Most families appreciate the special attention of being served a homemade dessert. Sometimes you would like to satisfy that particular need but just don't have the time for long and involved dessert preparations.

★ ★ ★

For the homemaker who values her time but is always concerned that the needs of her family are satisfied, here is a nine-minute dessert.

Buttercrunch Apple Saute is that handy recipe. Fresh apples are sauteed in brown sugar and butter and then topped with a unique flavored ice cream.

Buttercrunch ice cream, a butterscotch flavored ice cream that is filled with chunks of nut toffee candy, completes this dessert's special flavor.

Unique yet familiar, this apple-ice cream combination is similar in flavor to popular hot apple pie a la mode but without the trouble of preparing pie crust. You prepare it on top of the stove.

Buttercrunch Apple Saute

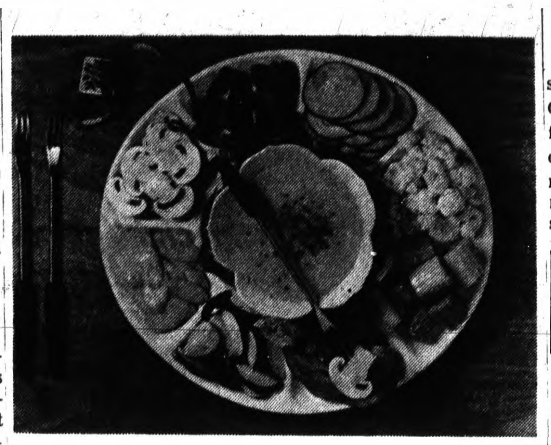
2 large apples, pared and cut in 1 inch wedges
¼ cup butter
¼ cup dark brown sugar
Buttercrunch ice cream

Melt half the butter in a frying pan. Add 2 tablespoons brown sugar and half the apples. Saute over medium heat until lightly browned and caramelized. Follow the same procedure until all the apples are sauteed.

To serve, top apples with a generous scoop of buttercrunch ice cream. Makes 4 servings.

Favorite in Past

Glas celery vases of one design or another were popular wedding gifts in the 19th century. Today some of the rarer vases are worth several hundred dollars.



FRUIT CHIVE DIP — Combine ¼ cup cornstarch; two cans (6 oz. each) frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed; one can (6 oz.) frozen concentrated pineapple juice, thawed; two cups water and two tablespoons frozen chopped chives. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until sauce bubbles and thickens. Serve hot or cold. Surround with quartered radishes, sliced raw carrots, raw "cauliflowerets," green pepper squares, cucumber slices, tomato wedges, raw mushroom slices, celery slices with forks for spearing and dunking.

Apple Cup Salad

Red apple cups make holiday salads festive. Scoop out a Golden or Red Delicious apple, filling it with a tasty fruit salad of chopped apple, white grapes, marshmallows, and chopped nuts. Top with mayonnaise, a sprig of mint.

Are Top Value Stamps really a good reason to change stores?

© TOP VALUE ENTERPRISES, INC. 1967

They're certainly one good reason. And a meaningful one, when teamed up with additional reasons: like low competitive prices, best quality merchandise, and nice stores staffed by pleasant people. Put all these together, and wouldn't you enjoy it? Anyhow, why not find out! We don't expect you to change stores just because your store stops giving stamps. But you do owe it to yourself to give us a try.

Sauce Is Rich

Hard Sauce is good on any warm pudding.

Hard Sauce

½ cup butter
2 cups sifted confectioners sugar
1 egg white
2½-3 teaspoons brandy or rum extract

Cream butter until softened. Add sugar gradually and beat until smooth and fluffy. Beat in egg white; blend in brandy extract.

Add diced syrup - preserved ginger to whipped cream and serve over orange sections for a delightful dessert.

BROWNIES A LA MODE—A fruit flavored sauce served over brownies and ice cream is the common dominator for a luscious dessert that is quickly and eaily prepared.

Raspberry Sauce Tops It Off

Going round and round looking for an exciting flair to round out winter meals? Look no further than luscious scoop of vanilla ice cream served atop a chewy brownie.

Ice cream served over any of a wide variety of cakes, cookies or pies, adds a special lively touch to often weary winter meal planning. The variety of flavors that are now available in commercially prepared ice creams means additional excitement in dessert plans. We think that you'll especially like a melba sauce served over these brownies a la mode.

Use frozen red raspberries thickened with cornstarch as the crowning glory to a made-in-advance dessert. Brownies baked early in the day mean little fuss and bother when dessert time arrives.

Serve Brownies a la Melba as a dinner dessert, or serve it as a colorful refreshment after an afternoon of bridge. It is a blend of some of the favorite dessert foods available.

Brownies a la Melba

¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 sq. (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup chopped pecans
2 pkgs. (10 oz. each) frozen red raspberries, defrosted
½ cup light corn syrup
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 quart vanilla ice cream

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Melt chocolate and butter in heavy saucepan over low heat; stir to blend. Beat in sugar and eggs. Stir in dry ingredients. Stir in pecans.

Spread into buttered 8-inch square pan. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 25 to 30 minutes or until done. Cool.

Drain syrup from raspberries; stir in corn syrup and cornstarch. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly and becomes clear. Fold in raspberries. Chill.

Cut brownies into 9 squares. Top each with a scoop of ice cream and serve with raspberry sauce. Makes 9 servings.

Seafood Sauce Always Zesty

For any combination of seafood (crab, shrimp, lobster or tuna) make this snappy cocktail sauce. Combine 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce with mushrooms, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1½ teaspoons worcestershire sauce and 5 drops hot pepper sauce; chill.

Toss with cold seafood.

Deep-Fry Nuts

Deep-fat fry blanched almonds, then drain and sprinkle with salt and cayenne. Call these tidbits Deviled Nuts! They're good with tomato juice for a first course at dinner time.

Quaking Custard Takes Garnish of Jelly or Fresh Fruit

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Quaking Custard! Ever hear of it? Or perhaps you know this old-fashioned dessert under the name of Ivory or Spanish Cream?

All three desserts are much the same — a vanilla custard to which egg white are added.

Turn this creation out of its mold and you'll understand how Quaking Custard got its name. It shivers and shakes delightfully.

When some young visitors — ages five and seven — come to visit us one Sunday recently, we had the dessert all chilled and set but left the unmolding for the children to see. They were wide-eyed at the process and gobbled up the dessert.

But it's so easy to eat! It should be called slip-and-go-down.

Here's the latest recipe for the dessert that we have tried. The ingredients as always, the technique up to date.

If you haven't the vanilla bean called for on hand, substitute a teaspoon of vanilla extract.

Our young visitors liked this dessert absolutely plain. But it looks pretty and tastes delicious served with a garnish of red currant jelly or sliced fresh fruit; if you choose the latter, you'll find peaches, strawberries, blueberries and bananas make a great combination.

And a last note. This dessert is nutritious, economical and fine for weight-watchers.

We Eat Ribs

There is still some confusion in cookbooks which call for "stalks" of celery. A stalk, a bunch and a plant mean the same thing. It's the "rib" we munch one by one with much gusto and a sprinkling of salt.

Red and Green

For an interesting salad dressing mix 2 parts of mayonnaise with one part of chili sauce and one part of French dressing. Add minced pimiento-stuffed green olives and serve on hearts of lettuce.

Flavorful Duo

Nutmeg and rosewater was a very popular flavoring combination in great-grandmother's day. For custard to serve 6, use ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg and a teaspoon or more of rosewater. Rosewater may be purchased at most drugstores.

Quaking Custard

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
¾ cup sugar
1 quart milk
4 eggs, separated
2-inch piece of vanilla bean
Sliced fresh fruit

In a 2½-quart saucepan stir together thoroughly the gelatin and ¼ cup of the sugar. Add 2 cups of the milk and the egg yolks; whisk enough to blend in yolks; add remaining 2 cups milk and vanilla bean.

First Course

Heat tomato juice with a whole clove, a sprig of parsley, a few celery tops, a small piece of bay leaf and a suspicion of sugar. Servie as a first course (in soup cups) to those weight-watchers.

Cook and stir constantly over low heat until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly—about 10 minutes. Remove from heat; remove vanilla bean.

Chill until slightly thicker than consistency of unbeaten egg white.

Beat egg whites until stiff; gradually beat in remaining ½ cup sugar until very stiff. Fold into slightly set gelatin mixture. Turn into a 2-quart mold. Chill until firm.

Unmold. Serve with fresh fruit. Makes 12 servings.

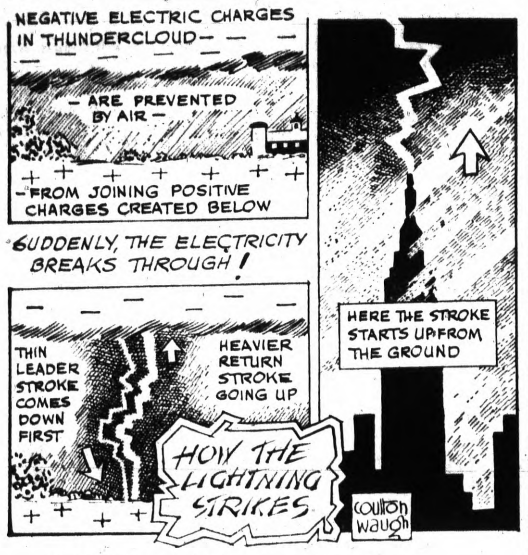
Junior Editors Quiz on LIGHTNING



QUESTION: Does lightning go up or down?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: Thunderclouds consist of huge numbers of tiny water droplets, each of which is charged with electricity. In the upper part of the cloud most droplets have a positive charge; in the lower area, most are negative.

As the thunder cloud is blown over the earth's surface, the charged droplets above create an opposite charge in the earth below. These opposite charges try to join each other; but the air between holds them apart.

After the electricity reaches a certain point of intensity, however, it will suddenly burst through the air to reach its opposite, producing a gigantic spark. This is the lightning flash. Generally, these flashes start from the cloud, at first with a thin "leader" stroke.

But the lightning instantly flashes back, this time from earth to ground, and this return stroke is heavier than the leader one. In the 1/10th of a second that a lightning flash may last, the electricity may have darted up and down many times,

Not all flashes start from clouds, for electricity in the ground may move up tall objects and then suddenly leap upwards. Most lightning flashes, however, start from above.

Boy Wins With Question

For his question on lightning, a 12-year-old Waterford Township boy won $10 and a copy of the World Yearbook.

KEVIN COLBY

Recipient of the award is Kevin Colby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Colby of 4128 Lakewood.

Kevin is a sixth grader at Thomas M. Cooley School, 1950 Inwood. He will enter Pierce Junior High School next year.

Kevin's question is entitled "Does Lightning Go Up Or Down?"

★ ★ ★

The contest is sponsored by AP Newsfeatures of New York City.

Boys and girls interested in submitting questions can write Junior Editors in care of The Pontiac Press, 48 W. Huron, Box 6, Pontiac, Mich., 48056.

General Gets Guard Post

LANSING (UPI) — Brig. Gen. Leonard C. Ward of Escanaba has been named assistant chief of the National Guard Bureau in Washington, it was learned today.

Ward, named last February as assistant division commander of the 46th Infantry Division of the Michigan National Guard, will be in charge of Army guard training.

YOUR CHILD MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS
1 OUT OF 3 DOES

Fidgeting, nose-picking, a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms...ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then — Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . small, easy-to-take tablets . . . special sizes for children and adults.

Berlin Wall Is Fast Becoming Insurmountable

BERLIN (AP) — Little by little, the Berlin Wall is becoming virtually insurmountable, thanks to the efficiency of what Communist East Germany calls its "modern border."

A West Berlin organization specializing in wall statistics says only 120 refugees are known to have reached West Berlin in 1967. Tens of thousands came over in the year before the wall went up Aug. 13, 1961.

★ ★ ★

One reason for the steadily shrinking number is the "modern border," expected to be completed by 1970.

A prefabricated concrete wall about 10 feet high and rounded at the top is replacing the bulkier original wall topped with barbed wire. In outlying districts along the 100 miles of the West Berlin border, original barbed-wire fences are being replaced by a finely meshed fence with spikes along an upper ridge.

FINAL BARRIER

The organization "13th August," says no one has been reported across the "modern border" barriers.

The prefabricated concrete or mesh fence is only the final barrier. Before a refugee reaches it, he must make his way past an electrical contact fence that sets off flares and a warning siren, dogs on sliding chains, foot patrols, guards in watchtowers or bunkers, vehicle patrols, a sunken ditch 9 feet deep and an illuminated "death strip" where anyone caught without permission is shot.

An allergic reaction in the form of an inflamed rash often can be traced to clothing and is caused mostly by the dye or other chemicals used to treat the fabric.

PCH Struggles in 59-50 Victory Over Roseville

By JERE CRAIG

Pontiac Central's offense struggled for six minutes, labored for three quarters and barely made it into high gear Tuesday night but the Chiefs outdistanced Roseville, 59-50.

The Chiefs squared their record at 4-4 with an effort that saw them control the backboards, take 25 more shots than their rivals, make fewer mistakes but never quite outclass the visiting Wildcats whom they topped, 72-69, in November.

Central never led in the first 5:50 of play, but took the lead for good at 6-5 on two free throws by Rudy Churchwell.

A string of nine consecutive points that stretched into the second quarter enabled PCH to assume a 13-5 margin. Later in the session the Wildcats reduced the gap to 17-15 on a Ken Flott basket, but they were never that close again.

★ ★ ★

Flott, who led all scorers with 19 points and made 8 of 13 field goal attempts, hit 4 of 5 shots and 11 points in the second quarter as Roseville tried to overtake the Chiefs.

BALANCE

The host quintet, however, had too much balance. Three players scored in double figures and three — Walter Causey (16), Alton Wilson (13) and Rudy Churchwell (12) — combined for 41 rebounds, only three less than the losers' total effort.

The sloppy game (Roseville had 25 turnovers, PCH 22) saw the winners frequently get second and third shots. Only their poor shooting effort — Central hit 25 of 77 shots for 32 per cent — kept the Chiefs from naming their own victory margin.

The visitors made a nearly respectable 20 of 52 (38 per cent) thanks to the hot-shooting Flott. However, the Chiefs stopped him much of the second half when they pulled in front by a 54-37 advantage.

PCH had a 55-44 rebounding superiority and it would have been greater except for a strong performance by lanky Roseville reserve Jerry Alsip. He entered in the second quarter and grabbed 11 rebounds, plus made 4 of 9 shots.

Central received a good performance by substitute Clayton Burch. He passed off for five buckets and made 3 of 7 shots. Frank Russell led PCH with 13 points and had four assists.

The Chiefs will seek their second Saginaw Valley Conference win Friday night in a home game with Bay City Handy.

Angels' Executive Candidate for Job With Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Cedric Tallis, a 20-year baseball veteran who watched over every construction step of Anaheim Stadium for the California Angels, is expected to be named today as executive vice president of Kansas City's 1969 American League expansion franchise.

Ewing Kauffman, owner of the new club, said the executive vice president and board of directors named Tuesday must agree on both a director of player personnel and a field manager, "but otherwise he will run the show."

"I think this will be one of the finest franchises in the league," Tallis said. "I'm very enthusiastic over the possibilities and the ownership."

Fred Haney, Angels general manager, hired Tallis as business manager immediately after the Angels were granted a franchise in December 1960. Haney gave Kauffman permission to contact Tallis.

As a president in charge of operations, the 53-year-old Tallis was a guiding force in bringing about the club's contract with Anaheim and in all stadium details. The Anaheim stadium is considered one of the best in the game, with an unobstructed view from three levels.

Red Sox Lead Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — The 100-1 shot Boston Red Sox are the 1967 Sports Team of the Year.

In balloting conducted by The Associated Press and participated in by 372 sports writers and broadcasters, the Cinderella Red Sox, winners of the American League pennant, beat out their World Series conquerors, the St. Louis Cardinals.

ENCIRCLEMENT — Roseville dribbler Bruce Vinson (40) finds himself surrounded by Chiefs during the first half as he maneuvers toward the Wildcats' basket. The Pontiac Central players closing in on Vinson include Walter Causey (50), Rudy Churchwell (52), Clayton Burch (behind Vinson) and Frank Russell. The Chiefs stayed in control much of the way for a 59-50 conquest.

Leafs' Goalie Halts Hockey's Big Guns

TORONTO (AP) — Bruce Gamble wears his sideburns Texas-long and spends a lot of time listening to Western music — when he's not facing the music as back-up man to Toronto's 43-year-old goaltending marvel, Johnny Bower.

Tuesday night, Gamble stood up to the fastest guns in the National Hockey League — East and West — and beat them to the draw.

★ ★ ★

The 29-year-old goalie, starting in place of the injured Bower, spent 40 hazardous minutes fending off superior firepower as Toronto's Stanley Cup champions rallied for a 4-3 victory in the NHL's 21st annual All-Star classic.

"It was Gamble that killed us," said Coach Toe Blake of Montreal, whose high-scoring All-Star club peppered the Toronto goaltender with 30 shots in the first two periods but could only beat him twice.

Gamble came up with 17 stops in the opening session and 11 in the middle period before giving way to rookie Al Smith, who sealed the victory with nine more saves — including a brilliant stab of a Bobby Hull slap shot in the final minute. All-Star goalies Ed Giacomin of New York, Terry Sawchuk of Los Angeles and Glenn Hall of St. Louis each played one period, combining for 37 saves.

The All-Stars — representing the other 11 NHL clubs — spotted Toronto an early goal by Murray Oliver, then shot ahead 2-1 on tallies by Chicago's Stan Mikita, in the final minute of the first period, and Kenny Wharram, in the opening minute of the second session.

Defenseman Allan Stanley's 40-foot scoring drive triggered the Maple Leafs' comeback at 7:56 of the second period and they took the lead nine minutes later when Pete Stemkowski poked in Wayne Carleton's rebound.

Ron Ellis scored the deciding Toronto goal on a Frank Mahovlich rebound early in the final period before Detroit's Norm Ullman countered for the Stars.

★ ★ ★

Blake was particularly impressed by Gamble's clutch goaltending early in the game, when the Stars dominated play but failed to cash in on a dozen scoring opportunities. The turning point was in that first period when he made all those saves," Blake said. "But I can't fault my team. They all played well, especially Bobby Orr of Boston.

"That was some team. I wouldn't mind having it for keeps."

APPLIED PRESSURE

Orr, the Boston Bruins' brilliant 19-year-old defenseman, and All-Star teammates Hull, Mikita, Wharram, and Pierre Pilote of Chicago, Ullman and Gordie Howe of Detroit, and Jean Beliveau of Montreal put tremendous pressure on the Leafs' goalies.

19th Annual Banquet

Sports Stars at Elks' Fete

The 19th annual Father-Son banquet, the largest sports gathering of its kind in Oakland County, will be held Thursday evening at Pontiac Elks Lodge No. 810 with a large array of sport stars in attendance.

The event draws a capacity attendance of close to 1,000 each year and tickets are at a premium.

Jack Bender, chairman of the event, said there were a few available tickets at the lodge earlier this week; however, they were expected to be gone by banquet time.

Festivities get under way at 7 p.m.

MORRALL

DeBUSSCHERE

Among many of the sports celebrities in attendance will be Dave DeBusschere and Tom Van Arsdale of the Detroit Pistons; Doug Barkley of the Red Wings; Mickey Stanley, Lenny Green and Don Lund of the Tigers; Ron Kramer and John Gordy of the Lions; Earl Morrall, of the New York Giants.

Former American League umpire Red Jones, boxing commissioner Chuck Davey, former National Driving Champion from Indianapolis Henry Banks, Bob Calihan from U. of D., Chuck Kocsis, prominent amateur golfer and many other noted names along with local high school coaches will be in attendance.

Dave Diles of WXYZ-TV will be master of ceremonies of the event.

Inter-Division Play Increased in NHL

TORONTO (AP) — The National Hockey League, hoping for early parity between its established clubs and their young expansion rivals, has increased the 1968-69 schedule from 74 to 76 games and stepped up inter-division play by 12 games per team.

Lapeer Builds Early Lead in Turning Back Skippers

Lapeer avenged an earlier three-point loss to Waterford by roaring to an early lead and holding off the Skippers, 67-63 Tuesday night.

Southfield Lathrup downed Waterford Mott, 56-46, in a game featuring two new squads in the county

Hot-shooting guard John Rice's outside bombing guided Lapeer to a 41-31 halftime advantage. Rice notched 16 of his 18 points in the first half.

The Panthers' 23-point second quarter saw Dave Leonard (six points) and Pat White (five) help Rice with the scoring. The winners had a 16-12 margin from the field at the intermission.

Waterford coach Bob Taylor assigned Bruce Saffron to Rice in the final half and the hustling backliner limited the Panther ace to two free throws.

KEY SUBS

Meanwhile, guard Bob Haggard came off the bench to pour in eight points and Bill Foley also entered as a substitute to produce six more as the Skippers reduced the lead to three points late in the session.

Lapeer led, 58-52, at the break. The host quintet kept the pressure on and Bruce Carlson's basket made it 65-62 with a minute to play.

Two free throws extended Lapeer's lead and a Carlson charity toss was the lone countering score by the losers. WTHS now has dropped five straight and is 2-5 for the season.

The Panthers' second straight conquest upped their mark to 3-6. They were outshot from the field and outrebounded, but as Taylor commented, "the free throw line was the difference."

After their fine first half from the field, the winners held off the rallying Waterford quintet with a 14-8 edge at the charity stripe.

ADVANTAGES

The Skippers shot 37 per cent from the field to 35 for Lapeer, and the losers had a 47-37 superiority around the backboards.

Waterford will entertain Livonia Stevenson in an Inter-Lakes League contest Friday.

★ ★ ★

Jim Preston scored 13, Bob Brodsky 12 and John Lang 11 paced Lathrup to its fifth win in eight starts. The winners forced Mott to shoot from outside much of the contest.

Mott led, 13-12, after one session; but it failed to net a point in the second quarter and fell behind by 13 at the half. Lathrup will meet Bloomfield Hills Lahser Friday.

Three Regulars in Tiger Fold

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers announced the signings Tuesday of veteran infielders Eddie Mathews, Dick McAuliffe and Don Wert along with pitcher Pat Dobson and four rookies.

General Manager Jim Campbell said the American League team now has 21 players under contract. Terms of the signings were not made public.

Mathews came to Detroit in August in a deal with Houston and batted .231 in 36 games with six home runs, boosting his career total to 509, seventh on the alltime major league list.

McAuliffe, switched to second base from shortstop last season, batted .239. Wert, the team's third baseman, batted .257 and ranked as the No. 2 fielding third sacker in the league.

★ ★ ★

Dobson, a right-handed pitcher, joined the team in May and finished with a 1-2 record, posting a 2.94 earned run average, mostly in relief.

★ ★ ★

Rookies signed included infielder Tim Marting who batted .276 at Rocky Mount last year; first baseman Don Pepper, who hit .277 at Toledo; outfielder Bob Christian, who averaged .274 at Montgomery, and outfielder Wayne Redmond, who hit .205 at Rocky Mount.

THIEVING CHIEF — Pontiac Central's Lew McNeir (14 in white uniform) deftly takes the basketball away from Roseville's Ken Fiott (right). Unfortunately for PCH, McNeir traveled with the basketball in his anxiety to break upcourt. Despite considerable harassment from the Chiefs' guards. Fiott led all scorers with 19 points. Teammates Doug Caldwell (30) and Bruce Vinson (40), plus the Chiefs' Frank Russell (34) watch the action.

Ferndale Defeats Oak Park, 83-52

Ferndale continued its domination of nonleague competition Tuesday night by trimming Northwest Suburban AA leader Oak Park, 83-52.

The victory was the Eagles' sixth in eight outings, and their fourth in a row outside the Southeast Michigan League.

Emmanuel Christian's improvement was not nearly enough and the winless Lancers took a 95-25 pounding from streaking Utica Stevenson who won its third straight decision for a 5-3 log.

Bad traveling conditions decimated the Southern Thumb League schedule with only the Capac - Memphis game being played. The Chiefs took a 65-52 win from the visiting Memphis quintet.

Grosse Pointe University School outplayed Cranbrook, 67-58; and Deckerville dropped a 72-67 battle with Sandusky in other prep action.

Leon Gavlinski's 17 points paced Stevenson's victory. The Titans whipped Emmanuel's outnumbered forces, 99-16, in the first meeting last month.

Cranbrook's Ron Fallon (17), Curt Mann (16) and Oneil Sanders (15) balanced scoring couldn't offset a 20 point performance by Mark Kulek of GPUS. The Cranes are 1-4.

★ ★ ★

A 34-point effort by Bruce Panton was wasted as Deckerville lost an early 22-16 lead. Terry McGregor added 16 and Jim Panton 10 for the losers.

Wisconsin '5' Rallies to Nip MSU, 70-68

Northwestern Tops Minnesota; Purdue Wallops Indiana

EAST LANSING (AP) — Michigan State today found itself another full game behind Big Ten basketball leader Northwestern, but the eighth-place Spartans will have a chance to narrow the gap when they meet the Wildcats here Saturday.

★ ★ ★

MSU, defending Big Ten co-champion, dropped a 70-68 decision at Madison Tuesday night while Northwestern recorded its third straight victory by downing winless Minnesota 77-71.

★ ★ ★

Joe Franklin scored 38 points, 21 of them in the first half, to keep the ragged-playing Badgers in contention against the Spartans.

The 6-foot-5 jumping jack scored a career high in points and snared nine rebounds to help Wisconsin's winning cause.

Lee Lafayette paced the Spartans with 20 points while Willie Edwards added 17.

★ ★ ★

Wisconsin Coach John Erickson revamped his lineup for the start of the game and the Badgers at one time fell eight points behind the visitors before their attack began to jell.

Michigan State is now 1-2 in Big Ten play with a 5-6 over-all record.

TOP WILDCAT

Junior Terry Gamber led Northwestern with 24 points but scoring honors went to Minnesota's Al Nuness who scored 30 and kept the Gophers in contention all the way.

★ ★ ★

Tom Kondla, last season's Big Ten scoring champion, ran into foul trouble early in the game and played only three minutes. Kondla scored only three points.

Nuness, meanwhile, helped Minnesota overcome a 39-33 halftime deficit and lifted the Gophers into a 64-64 tie before Northwestern put on the steam to pull ahead.

Purdue came up with a home court victory Tuesday night to match Northwestern.

Purdue, led by Rick Mount's 33 points, smothered Indiana's defending cochampions, 89-60.

Talent Search Under Way

Grid Stars in 'Computer Bowl'

CHICAGO (AP) — Those All-America hotshots and many unsung football graduates of the 1967 collegiate season don't know it, but they are rattling around right now in a postseason classic you could call the Computer Bowl.

Typical of the vast talent search, now a prime factor in pro football's golden business, a final screening of standout college seniors is being conducted here by Blesto-V.

Blesto-V stands for the Chicago Bears, Detroit Lions, Philadelphia Eagles, Pittsburgh Steelers and Minnesota Vikings.

The TO stands for Talent Organization. It was tacked on the original code name before the Vikings were added to the group which is one of three scouting networks snooping in behalf of the NFL's current 15-club array.

RATINGS EYED

Blesto-V opened a three-day session Tuesday with club officials scanning the ratings of some 1,600 players as assembled by 12 talent appraisers and abetted by computer calculations.

This is a final boning up for an historic combined player draft by the National and American football leagues at New York Jan. 30.

The top draft choice, as 26 clubs make 17 picks apiece from the college crop, could be Heisman Trophy winner Gary Beban, UCLA's star quarterback.

Or it could be Notre Dame's giant defensive lineman, Kevin Hardy. Or linebacker Fred Carr of Texas-El Paso, rated another George Webster. Webster is the former Michigan State star who became an instant success last season with the Houston Oilers.

After that, it's the luck of the draw and the sagacity of the sharpest scouting devised by man or machine.

For Blesto-V, a computer system is fed numbered ratings on all phases of play and potential at any given position and produces a comprehensive record on each scouted player.

The system was devised by Jack Butler, former Steelers' defensive back, who directs Blesto-V with help of college level minor league and super scouts.

The whole idea of the scouting networks is to give each club a work list when Commissioner Pete Rozelle opens the draft grab-bag Jan. 30.

Another scout combine includes the Los Angeles Rams, San Francisco 49ers and Dallas Cowboys. The third, and largest, represents the Cleveland Browns, Baltimore Colts, St. Louis Cardinals, Green Bay Packers, New York Giants, Washington Redskins, Atlanta Falcons and New Orleans Saints.

Babe Dimancheff, director of personnel for the Bears, points out that the 26 pro clubs, if they draw on all 17 allowed rounds, would tap 442 players from last season's college ranks.

Obviously, the name players soon will be depleted. Therefore, each club needs a solid book on many unheralded players who may have pro potential.

U.S. Lines Up Women's Unit

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The seven members of the U.S. Olympic ladies speed skating team were selected Tuesday after six days of competition on the 400-meter track on the Wisconsin Exposition grounds.

★ ★ ★

They are Jeanne Ashworth, Lake Placid, N.Y.; Sally Blatchford, Northbrook, Ill.; Toy Dorgan, Springfield, Ill.; Jenny Fish, Cleveland, Ohio; Dianne Holum, Northbrook, Ill.; Mary Meyers, St. Paul, Minn., and Jeanne Omelenchuk, Detroit.

The selections were announced by the Olympic Committee for Speed Skating of the U.S. Skating Association.

★ ★ ★

They will leave for New York on Wednesday for two days of uniform outfitting and then will depart for the ladies world championships at Helsinki, Finland, Jan. 27-28.

Men's competition conclude here today.

Lions' Guard Hurt in Traffic Mishap

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Bob Kowalkowski, 24, a guard for the Detroit Lions football team, was injured here Tuesday when a car driven by his wife, Judith, 24, struck a pole on I-75.

Police said the auto apparently skidded on some ice, jumped the curb and hit the pole.

Kowalkowski and his wife were taken to General Hospital where both were reported in satisfactory condition.

Buffalo's Burnett Taken by Bengals in AFL Draft

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals are on their way if Paul Brown's Midas touch can turn Bobby Burnett's shattered right leg into a healthy limb. Burnett was the top name among 20 Eastern players selected Tuesday by head coach and owner Brown to stock the American Football League's newest franchise. Brown's 20 Western selections were to be announced today.

Burnett, the AFL's rookie of the year in 1966 with the Buffalo Bills, suffered torn ligaments and a broken right leg in mid-season 1967 and gained only 96 yards rushing.

"There was medical uncertainty whether Bobby would be able to help us," said Jack Horrigan, a vice president of the Bills. "Rather than risk losing another player in the draft and then Burnett as well, the decision was made to expose him to Cincinnati."

Burnett, a No. 1 draft choice two years ago, gained 766 yards on 187 rushes and helped the Bills to the AFL's Eastern crown in 1966. His injury was one of a rash that sent Buffalo tumbling toward the bottom of the Eastern Division last season.

Brown is taking a chance that Burnett can overcome his injury and return to top form. He's also taking a shot in the dark on another Eastern choice, Boston's Joe Bellino.

Used almost exclusively on kickoff and punt returns with the Patriots, Bellino has never achieved in pro football the star status he enjoyed during his collegiate days at Navy.

In addition to Bellino, the Patriots surrendered halfback J. D. Garrett, defensive tackle Jim Boudreaux and defensive back Ron Hall.

Gary Bugenhagen, Buffalo's No. 4 draft pick last season and an All-America at Syracuse, heads the Eastern linemen chosen by the Bengals.

Cincinnati took linebacker Danny Brabham, a former high draft choice, and tight end Bob Poole from Houston, and grabbed two centers—Jim Waskiewicz and John Matlock — from New York.

The Bengals chose from lists of 11 exposed players supplied by eight AFL teams. Miami, an expansion club two years ago, was exempted from the draft.

Each team provided five players for the Bengals — four of them chosen by Brown and the fifth a designated player signed to Cincinnati by the club owning him.

Other Eastern choices were defensive backs White Graves of Boston, Charley King of Buffalo and Solomon Brannan of New York; tackle Bill Brown and guard Pete Perreault of New York tackles Andy Rice and Willis Jones and guard Joe Bob Isbell of Houston; and tackles Bob Schmidt and Rich Zecher of Buffalo.

Carter Sparks W. Bloomfield in Ski Meet

West Bloomfield completely dominated the boys' racing while Waterford maintained its girls supremacy in Southeastern Michigan Prep Ski League action Tuesday at Mt. Holly.

Tom Carter led the Lakers to a sweep of the top six places and a 174 seconds total, well ahead of runner-up WTHS' 220. The Skippers took the next six places led by Jim Nye.

Waterford Mott was a distant third. Harry Drake placed 13th for Mott.

The Skippers' girls placed 1-3-4 paced by Cathy Benson's 51.9 combined time. April Welch was second for West Bloomfield who also placed second in the team totals.

SCORES FOR LEAFS — Murray Oliver (11) of the Toronto Maple Leafs rams the puck past All-Star goalie Ed Giacomin of New York to put the Leafs ahead, 1-0, during their game in Toronto last night. Oliver cashed in after taking a pass from Frank Mahovlich (27). Leafs nipped the All-Stars, 4-3.

Red Wings Fighting Slump

Sid Abel Eyes Aggressiveness

Two Regulars Still Remain Sidelined

MONTREAL (AP)—Manager-Coach Sid Abel says his Detroit Red Wings will have to be more aggressive if they hope to break a five-game winless string against the Montreal Canadiens tonight.

"If we're going to be a contender, we've got to play it tougher," Abel said. "We know we will have to play shorthanded against Montreal, but we've got to get in there and hit."

★ ★ ★

The Wings will be without forwards Dean Prentice and Paul Henderson tonight and Floyd Smith is a doubtful starter.

In order to bolster the sagging front line, Abel recalled Gary Marsh from Fort Worth in the Central League Monday. Marsh had one goal and three assists in five games with the Wings earlier this season.

★ ★ ★

Prentice underwent surgery to correct infected sinuses in Detroit Monday but is expected to rejoin the team for Saturday's game at Pittsburgh.

INJURED FOOT

Henderson is still recovering from a dislocated shoulder and Smith remains hobbled by a broken bone in his foot.

Defenseman Kent Douglas underwent treatment for a pinched nerve Tuesday, but made the trip to Montreal. Abel said the injury is an old one and requires periodic treatment.

★ ★ ★

Bruce MacGregor, with a sprained ankle, and Bart Crashley, suffering from a bruised hip, made the trip, but Henderson remained in Detroit.

Andover Nets Swim Victory

Bloomfield Hills Andover ran its swimming record to 4-2 last night with an easy 76-29 victory over Livonia Clarenceville.

Bearcats Halt Bradley

Tall Center Spurs Cincinnati

By United Press International

Rick Roberson is a bearcat in deed as well as word.

Roberson, the strapping 6-foot-9 center of the Cincinnati Bearcats, wears his team's nickname like a badge of honor and is at his tenacious best against the toughest opposition, as high-scoring Joe Allen of Bradley can readily testify.

Allen, the Braves' slick pivot, carried a 25.1 point average into Tuesday night's game against 17th-ranked Cincinnati and barely got out with his life as Roberson manhandled him in pacing the Bearcats to a 77-66 victory.

The loss knocked Bradley out of a first place tie with Louisville in the Missouri Valley Conference race and elevated Cincinnati into a second place deadlock.

Roberson, whom coach Tay Baker calls "as strong a rebounder as there is in college today," held Allen to seven points and scored 23 himself as the taller Bearcats raised their MVC record to 3-1 and overall mark to 10-3. Cincinnati meets Louisville, 4-1 in league play, in a regionally televised contest on Saturday.

★ ★ ★

DePaul overcame Niagara and Calvin Murphy 79-72 in the top intersectional game on a sparse national schedule.

Tom Tracy, DePaul's high scorer with 24 points, popped in a pair of jump shots from the key in the final minutes to stifle a Niagara rally led by Murphy, who finished with a game high of 36 points.

★ ★ ★

In other action, Dartmouth beat Harvard 65-60. Rhode Island whipped Vermont 92-65, Butler nipped Indiana State 86-85, Bowling Green walloped Kent tate 77-60, Florida State defeated Jacksonville 92-79 and Texas A&M edged Texas 88-87.

Central Michigan Pads Home Streak

MOUNT PLEASANT (AP) — Central Michigan breezed to its 30th consecutive home court basketball victory Tuesday night with six players in double figures as the Chippewas dismantled the University of Windsor 104-57.

★ ★ ★

Led by senior Willie Iverson's 18 points, Central boosted its over-all record above .500 to 8-7 in the nonleague game, which gave the Chippewas a string of five consecutive triumph.

Central, with a 56 per cent shooting average, led at the half 51-26.

Windsor, now 5-6 for the year, was paced by 16 points from senior Bob Navetta.

I Bet You Didn't Know

Everybody always associates Babe Ruth with the Yankees, but how many fans know he also played with two other teams in the big leagues? . . . Can you name the teams Ruth played for, beside the Yanks? . . . Answer is the Red Sox and the Braves.

★ ★ ★

Who was the first American to run the mile in under four minutes? . . . His name: Don Bowden . . . He ran his sub-four minute mile while he was a student at the University of California in 1957.

★ ★ ★

Here's a basketball puzzler for you . . . Suppose a team gets many fouls called on it, with one player after another fouling out and soon they have no substitutes to replace the disqualified players—and they have only four players left . . . They can't put the required five players on the floor . . . What happens then? . . . Does the game stop? . . . The official rules say a team must keep on playing even if it has only four or fewer players remaining.

Cage Honor Goes to State Product

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A clutch performance by Al Hairston has earned the senior Bowling Green guard honors as Mid-American Conference basketball player of the week.

Hairston, a 6-foot-1, 170-pound product of Mount Clemens, Mich., was a key player in the Falcons' 74-69 overtime victory over Miami last Saturday.

2 Cardinal Stars Balking at Club's '68 Money Offer

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Three-game World Series winner Bob Gibson and centerfielder Curt Flood of the St. Louis Cardinals balked Wednesday at contract negotiations for 1968, with the 32-year-old right-hander apparently making a pitch for a near $100,000 figure.

★ ★ ★

"I received a contract and I returned it," said Gibson, who made a quick trip to St. Louis Tuesday and then headed for his home in Omaha, Neb.

"You always say 'no' the first time no matter what the club offers," Flood said.

★ ★ ★

So far, outfielder Roger Maris signed for what was believed the top figure—$75,000, with outfielder Lou Brock a close second at around $70,000.

Local College Quintets in Action

Oakland Community College's two quintets are in action tonight in Michigan Community Junior College AC Northeastern Division action.

The high-flying Saint Clair Skippers visit Auburn Hills on the Oakland University court in an 8 p.m. Saint Clair is unbeaten in league play while the Nikes are 5-3 and hold second place in the division.

Highland Lakes takes it 0-6 league mark to equally winless Schoolcraft CC. The Highlanders have been plagued by slow starts with their shooting.

This has put them down early in their games and they haven't been able to overcome the deficit. A shortage of rebounders compounds the problems, though coach Lynn Reed blames turnovers for much of the team's trouble.

SLUMP

Auburn Hills, meanwhile, went into a slump with its shooting after a fast start this season. Coach Don Nichols hopes the Nikes are over the hump after last week's 105-100 win at Henry Ford CC.

But they will have their hands full just trying to hold Saint under 100 points. The talented Skippers averaged 121 points per game last week in swamping three league foes.

A loss tonight would drop Auburn Hills into fifth place in the tight scrap for second place behind Saint Clair (7-0).

Rod, Custom Show Will Open Friday

Custom car and hot rod shows — such as the 16th annual Autorama to be presented in Cobo Hall for three days starting Friday — may look like child's play to much of the adult world, but to automobile manufacturers and rod and custom show producers, they're multi-million dollar business.

Aside from unpredictable and expensive racing activities, they represent the major means of reaching America's growing automotive enthusiast audience.

Show hours will be 5 to 11 p.m. Friday and noon to 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

NIKE GUNNER — Forward Tom Cox, a 6-3 second-year player from Madison Heights, combines shooting and rebounding as one of the leading players for the Auburn Hills' Nikes. The Oakland Community College squad meets Saint Clair tonight at Oakland University.

BOWLING

Sparkling individual scores continue to demand the bowling spotlight but the feature of the recent reports is a 1013-1057-1105 — 3175 by Keith's Collision in the Airway Lanes Classic last week.

The third highest team series reported this season included a strong 223-234-248—705 by Ray Keith. Harvey Keith added 255—648 highs.

Other good Airway scores were Bill Pointer, 257 — 655, a 249 by Art Pearson, and a 254 by Keith Moore.

Bombing away for a 715 at North Hill Lanes was Carl Behrick in the North Hill Classic for the Oakland Tree Service team. Young's Men's Wear needed a 1029 — 3016 to stay even with Bank of Rochester in the first-place duel.

Keith Johns of Young's had the top game, a 264. Dick Gasteiner of the bank unit hit 234-216—654; and North Hill's entry featured a 263 by Lou Koprince.

Cooley Lanes has gained the first half championship in the Sunday North Oakland County Proprietors' Traveling Classic League. Wonderland Lanes' three entries finished 2-3-4.

Last Sunday George Doll had a 668, Ed Raszkowski hit a 259 and Hal Hintz 233-233—658. Vinc Spencer's 300 — 718 duo are the season highs to date.

John Whitehead has been the big gun lately in the Howe's Lanes Senior Classic. He followed a recent 210-243—648 performance with a 227-256 — 670.

Other good totals recently were Wayne Lucas' 247, Gene Thornton's 245, Ed Szot's 244, Ed Solecki's 208-223—633 and Jim Carr's 231-204—629.

The Huron Bowl Wednesday night Class A Men were paced by Dick Beamer's 222-234—664, Ed Austreng's 234-203—630 and Bob McCarris' 205-252 last week.

Jack Choler registered a 202-226—611, and Orville Stenard a 230.

Scholar-Athletes Led by Gridders at Michigan State

EAST LANSING (AP) — Led by nine members of the football team, 49 Michigan State varsity athletes scored "B" or better academic averages last fall and were listed on the honor roll.

Two gymnasts made perfect "A" or 4.0 grades. They were Norman Jolin, a junior from St. Clair majoring in biological science, and Dick Murahata, a sophomore physical science major from Boulder, Colo.

Near straight "A" grades were attained by end Al Brenner, a political science major from Niles, and tackle Clinton Meadows, a senior advertising major from Okemos. Brenner had a 3.75 mark and Meadows had a 3.8 average.

Pontiac Kennel Club Show Draws 80 Breeds

Pontiac Press Photo

ICY SUCCESS — Robert Reinke, 3520 Frankman, Waterford Township, holds the largest—12 inches—of a nice splake catch taken last weekend at Maceday Lake. His sons, Ron (left) and Randy, joined in the action. Several limit catches of the brook-lake trout hybrid have been made on the lake with minnows the best bait.

CAI Building Site of Sunday's Event

Dogs representing 80 breeds will parade before the judges Sunday in the annual Pontiac Kennel Club show.

★ ★ ★

Judging of the 602 canines will get under way at 9 a.m. in the CAI Building on Williams Lake Road in Waterford Township. The top showman will be determined about 6 p.m.

The owner of this dog will receive The Pontiac Press Best-in-Show Trophy.

"Having a total of 80 breeds is almost unbelievable," said Mrs. E. A. Kraft, secretary of PKC and show chairman. She also pointed out that almost 25 per cent of the entry is comprised of dogs in the working group.

Entries were limited to 600 this winter and Mrs. Kraft said this number was reached one week before the Jan. 9 deadline. Well over 250 entries were received by the Bow Dog Show Organization, superintendent for the show, after the limit had been reached. These were returned.

The size of the CAI building resulted in the limit being placed. This also is the reason there will be no obedience competition.

Judges are Raymond H. Beale, Orchard Park, N.Y.; Kenneth W. Given, Syracuse, N.Y.; Anthony Stamm, Kalamazoo; and Henry H. Stoecker, Holmdel, N.J.

Beale will select best-in-show.

TOP ENTRY

German shepherd dogs lead the entry list with 38. Irish setters are next with 36 followed by 27 Doberman pinschers, 25 Afghan hounds and 24 rough collies. There will be 33 miniature, toy and standard poodles.

Some of the more unusual breeds are Komondorok, Pulik, Rottweiler, bullmastiffs, Great Pyrenees, Belgian Tervuren and Briard.

This is an unbenched show meaning the dogs can be removed from the building when eliminated from competition.

Junior showmanship is scheduled for 2 p.m. Group selection will get under way about 4:30.

Splake Active on Area Lake

Panfish, Pike Angling Reported Spotty

Action on splake continues good at Maceday and rainbows have been hitting at Teeple Lake.

★ ★ ★

This information tops the ice fishing news in the area. Bluegills are spotty and the crappie fishing has slowed at Kent Lake. Few pike are being taken — on tipups or spears — and perch have been inconsistent on Saginaw Bay and Lake St. Clair.

This is the first winter that splake, a cross between brook and lake trout, have been legal in Oakland County.

Numerous limit catches of five splake each have been made at Maceday. Minnows are the best bait, fished in four to seven feet of water. The splake average about 10 inches.

FAST GROWTH

These hybrids were stocked in Maceday in the fall of 1966 as three-inch fingerlings. No rainbows have been planted in the lake since 1964.

Some pike are being taken at Lake St. Clair in the Middle channel and Muscamoot Bay. Few large ones, however, are showing up. The Houghton Lake Tipup Town Festival will be the next two weekends with a variety of activities planned.

Liberalize Beaver Trapping Laws

Trapping regulations adopted by the State Conservation Commission will allow a generally liberal harvest of beaver and a more conservative harvest of otter.

They are patterned much after last year's regulations which resulted in a good yield of more than 14,000 beaver and some 600 otter.

One major change from last year will lengthen the season in the Upper Peninsula west of the eastern borders of Baraga and Iron counties. The season there will be from March 2 to April 22. The bag limit will be eight beaver and two otter.

Trapping regulations through the rest of the Upper Peninsula and the Lower Peninsula will generally follow 1967. For all but a few special areas the bag limit will be six beaver and two otter.

In the southern third of the state, otter will be out on the legal trapping list and one animal will be allowed.

★ ★ ★

The Haymarsh State Game Area in Mecosta County will be reopened to beaver trapping under a permit system but only 15 permits will be allowed.

Hunting Ban Hearings Contrast

The initial public hearings held yesterday by the state's new hunting area control committee were as different as day and night.

In the morning session at the Orion Township hall, residents spoke in favor of closing six sections of the township to hunting, citing danger to "life and buildings."

No one spoke against the requested closures.

The committee moved to Shelby Township in the afternoon. Nine persons objected to any curtailment of hunting in sections of the township. There was no support for the ban.

Regular members of the committee will be Kenneth McCord, a law enforcement executive in the Conservation Department's Lansing office; and Major Paul Gaboury of the State Police headquarters in Lansing.

They will be joined by the township supervisors and a representative of the county sheriff's department at each hearing.

Supervisor John Lessiter and Sheriff Frank Irons joined the committee for the Orion hearing.

The committee was established by the last Legislature to help solve problems created by expanding construction in areas open to hunting.

The committee convenes at the request of a township board and holds a public hearing to air the problem. It then conducts an investigation and makes recommendations to the Conservation Commission. Another public hearing is held on the recommendations before the commission takes final action.

The result of the commission action is then placed before the originating township board for approval or rejection.

Waterfowl hunting on Lake Orion and other lakes in the area has created a safety problem, according to residents who spoke at the Orion meeting. They are requesting that sections 1, 2, 3, 10, 11 and 12 be closed to hunting.

★ ★ ★

Trespass violations, shooting from the water too close to homes and shot striking buildings and falling in yards were arguments pressed for closing the sections.

Boat Show Will Feature New Products

Four new features will highlight the Sixth Annual Michigan National Boat, Sports and Vacation Show in Cobo Hall from Jan. 27 through Feb. 4.

The most striking of these will be the public debut of the first houseboat manufactured by Chris Craft.

The two largest sailboats ever at the show, a 50-foot Columbia and a 40-foot Cal, will be displayed.

A new camper-boat product, the Hobo, will be introduced to Michigan boat show audiences for the first time. A Canadian product, the Hobo is a camper trailer which converts into an amphibious power boat.

Robert M. Gordon, president of Exhibitions, Inc., producers of the Michigan show, announced that approximately 200 different boats would be on display.

Snowmobile Regulations Object of Special Study

LANSING (AP) — Lawmakers and several state agencies are studying proposed legislation designed to register and regulate the use of snowmobiles in Michigan.

Representatives of the Legislature, State Police and Conservation, Highway and State departments met Monday with members of the Michigan Snowmobile Association to review a proposed bill drawn up by the association.

★ ★ ★

Another meeting of interested agencies and the association will be held in Lansing on Jan. 29 in an attempt to draft a bill satisfactory to all concerned, said Sen. Thomas Schweigert, R-Petoskey.

★ ★ ★

"While there were differences of opinion expressed on several points," said Schweigert, "we feel we are not far apart."

STREET USE

State Police officials were particularly concerned, he said, over dangers involved in use of snowmobiles on streets, county roads or highways because the vehicles are hard for motorists to see.

On the other hand, association officials were worried that banning snowmobiles from using portions of highways would, in some instances, stymie cross country safaris now being promoted by snowmobile groups.

Schweigert said there also were questions regarding the roles of the various agencies in regulating use of the vehicles, the cost of a registration fee, what agency should be given funds to construct snowmobile trails and which should administer them.

Also of concern were question of whether all operators or just owners should be required to present a certificate of registration when stopped by a peace officer, and age limits, if any, of operators.

Department Opens Trainee Positions

Ten different trainee job classes with the Department of Conservation are open for examtaking applications from persons who have earned college degrees or hope to by Oct. 1.

★ ★ ★

The deadline is 5 p.m., Jan. 29, to apply through the Civil Service Commission in Lansing in a bid to qualify for open competitive tests, covering these trainee positions:

Aquatic biologists, biometricians, conservation resource planners, fisheries biologists, foresters, game biologists, geologists, land appraisers, park interpreters and park managers.

★ ★ ★

For more information about these trainee classes and the minimum requirements covering them, contact the Civil Service Commission or the personnel division of the Conservation Department in Lansing.

Easy Ice Victory for Lake Superior

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) — Lake Superior State College took a 2-0 lead into the third period Tuesday night, then scored eight times in the final frame to defeat St. Cloud State College 10-0 in an International Collegiate Hockey Association game.

★ ★ ★

Salmon Program Now Under Way in Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Charles Lloyd, head of the state Fish Management Bureau, reports that the Wisconsin Conservation Division is preparing for a coho stocking program in the Great Lakes next year.

A Bayfield hatchery is raising 160,000 cohos, and 90,000 more will be raised at the Nevin Hatchery near Madison, Lloyd told the State Conservation Commission.

★ ★ ★

"We will be making a token planting of salmon in Lake Michigan next spring to determine what they'll do," he said. Lloyd said other Great Lakes have begun salmon planting.

The commission approved spending $3,600 for 20,000 pounds of salmon food.

Trading Is Heavy

Moderate Loss for Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market took a moderate loss in heavy trading early this afternoon.

Declines among individual stocks exceeded advances by about 150 issues.

Volume in the first two hours topped 5 million shares. At the peak of trading the New York Stock Exchange ticker tape lagged by one minute in reporting floor transactions.

Brokers said there were indications of apprehension among investors over possible stock market reaction to proposals in President Johnson's state of the union message to be delivered Wednesday night.

FAVORABLE FACTOR

But they added that the sharp 1967 fourth-quarter rise in the gross national product to a record annual rate should be a favorable factor.

★ ★ ★

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks at noon had fallen 2.60 to 884.54.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was down 1.3 to 320.0 with industrials off 2.0, rails off .8 and utilities off .2.

Steels, motors, rubbers, aircrafts, electronics, chemicals, rails, building materials and drugs were mostly lower.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange. Jefferson Lake Petrochemicals and Levin-Townsend Computer lost more than a point. Fractional gains were made by Canadian Javelin, Technical Tape and New Idria.

A new type of spacecraft under consideration in the Soviet Union is one which could start directly from the earth, land on another planet and return to earth without having to discard such large parts as carrier rocket stages.

The Guns of Judgment Day

Cliff Farrell's new Western thriller

From the Doubleday & Co. novel; Copyright © 1967, by Cliff Farrell. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Dan Briscoe wanted to escape his reputation as a lawman who had sent a deputy into an ambush. John Cass, Mayor of Yellow Lance, advised Briscoe to go further west, to where a friend of his, Bill Royal, might give him a job as a ranch foreman. Arriving at the town named Flag, his sympathetic attention was attracted to an older woman, accompanied by her grandson and several Basque shepherds.

Chapter 7

Dan Briscoe surmised that the clothes, of which the lad was obviously very proud, were the product of his grandmother's needlework.

Her own riding skirt, which had been of good quality, was immaculate, but obviously had seen mendings, and was threadbare. Her riding boots had the wrinkles and ease of old friends, and they too had known better days.

Dan watched them hurry down the street in Flag to the supply store where the three Basques, now on foot, were waiting. The group chatted for a moment. Then the lot of the vanished into the mercantile establishment.

Dan turned to enter the boardinghouse and found a stout, aproned woman in the doorway. She was peering in the direction of the mercantile.

★ ★ ★

She moved hastily out of Dan's path. "I didn't aim to block the trail," she said amiably. "You lookin' for accommodations? I'm Jenny Heather, the owner."

FEATURES CHANGE

"Until Friday," Dan said. "They tell me I can't take a stage to Flat Butte until then."

"Flat Butte?" Jenny Heather's placid features changed a trifle. He saw in her something of the unasked questions and speculation he had encountered in the agent's manner at the stage station.

"Anything wrong with that?" he asked.

"Wrong? Why, o' course not. I've got a nice pleasant room. A dollar an' fur bits a day with meals. We eat mighty well here. You're a cowhand, I take it?"

"That's right," Dan said. "That's cow country down that way, isn't it?"

"So they tell me," said Jenny Heather.

Dan signed the register. "What outfit is that?" he asked, jerking a thumb in the direction of the merchantile.

"The Shannons," the landlady said. She almost sniffed the name. "That was Lavinia Shannon, herself, that you passed. She's stayin' here with her grandson 'til stage time. Came in Monday to buy supplies. The Basques will wagon the stuff back to Springwater Basin."

UNANSWERED QUESTION

"I thought you said that was cow country?"

Jenny Heather's face became bland and neutral. "You'll find the washroom at the far end o' the hall, if you want to fresh up before supper, Mr.—Mr.—" she consulted the register. "Mr. Driscoll, isn't it? You forgot to put down where you was from, Mr. Driscoll."

"So I did," Dan said.

She waited, then said hastily, "Tub bath is two bits extry. Most folks could use a little soap an' water after ridin' the old Santy Fee."

Dan was thoughtful as he shaved and scrubbed in the tub. He decided he was self-conscious about his new identity and that the attitude of Jenny Heather and the stagecoach manager hand been due only to natural curiosity toward strangers.

He ate supper at the long table in the dining room. More than a dozen others were present. Among them was the stagecoach agent, who selected a chair well away from Dan and made a point of ignoring his presence.

Neither Lavinia Shannon nor her grandson appeared for the meal. Later, as Dan strolled the street in the twilight, he saw the Shannon freight wagon camped on the fringe of town with a cook fire burning.

The elderly woman and her grandson were eating with the three Basques, evidently preferring the company of her herders to that of the guests at Jenny Heather's table.

WINS, LOSES

Dan played small limit poker in a saloon for two hours. He cashed in $5 to the good, but wandered to a poolroom and lost his winnings to a fat man, who, it turned out, owned the establishment and made the biggest part of his living playing for money.

He finally turned in at his room in Heather House and did not stir until the breakfast gong clanged in the kitchen.

Lavinia Shannon again chose the camp cooking of the Basques for her breakfast, and also the noon meal.

It was evident that Jenny Heather's nose was bent by this disdain of her cooking. Dan wondered if this was the reason for her attitude toward the older woman.

BECOMES BORED

He whiled away the afternoon reading a week-old newspaper and an older magazine in the sitting room of the boardinghouse.

Bored with that, he returned to the poolroom and played rotation with the fat man, at four bits a game.

The fat man made it plain he did not often waste time on such picayune wagers. He even let Dan win a game or two in an attempt to lure him into hiking the stakes.

The other two tables became busy. Men drifted in to occupy the chairs along the wall while they drank beer, gossiped and watched the play at the table.

The Shannon supply wagon, now heavily laden, rolled past, heading out of town on the trail by which it had arrived he previous day.

Little Chad Shannon sat on the seat, bright-eyed and happy. The driver was letting the lad believe he was handling the team, which had grown accustomed to the sight of buildings and was also tamed by the weight of the load in the vehicle.

The driver had a six-shooter in his sash, and a rifle was slung in the scabbard lashed alongside the seat. The two Basques who again were serving as outriders, seemed to make a point of proving they were heavily armed.

Lavinia Shannon stood in front of Heather House, waving and smiling as long as the wagon was in sight. Then she entered the boardinghouse.

SHORT OF MONEY

The poolroom owner, peering through the window at the departing wagon, said, "Good riddance! Too bad Livvy Shannon didn't go with 'em.

"I reckon she's got more bank business to clear up an' has to lay over to ride home by stage tomorrow.

"I hear she's havin' to scratch mighty deep to raise money so as to keep goin'. I say it'll be a happy day when she goes under. I don't cotton to the kind o' hands she's been hirin'. An' I never did like the smell o' sheep anyway."

A lanky man, in the garb of a down-at-the-heel rider, spoke, bristling. "I'm a cowhand by preference, but I worked fer Livvy Shannon a time or two when I needed eatin' money. No man ever got squarer treatment on any ranch.

TOP WAGES

"Livvy Shannon pays top wages, asks only an honest day's work an' serves good grub. No chuck-liner ever went away from the Shannon place hungry, cowboy or sheep walker."

"They was all full o' mutton or rustled beef, most likely," the poolroom owner growled.

"I say it's some note when a woman an' a child cain't ride the trails in this country without a rifle guard seein' to it they ain't bushwacked!" the cowboy snorted.

"An' it's some note too, when a grandmother like Livvy Shannon is treated like dirt by people in this town who used to fawn on her when Circle S was ridin' high."

"Livvy Shannon don't need no sympathy," the poolroom owner said. "She kin take car o' her self. She seems to have enough money left to do just that. She—"

He had a sudden, new thought. He eyed Dan sharply as though realizing he might be treading on other toes.

SERVICE CENTER GROWS — Workmen are busy building a new $3.3-million Oakland Schools administration building in the Oakland County Service Center (background). The new facility at Telegraph and Pontiac Lake Road is expected to be completed in November. Science Eyes 'Suez Crisis'

ELSINORE, Denmark (UPI) —There is another "Suez crisis" building up and this one may be as important to scientists in years to come as the Arab-Jew confrontation will be to the historians.

The crisis Dr. Gunnard Thorson talks about is a scientific one. As head of the Danish Marine Biology Laboratory here he is deeply interested in the migration of various forms of sea life from the Red Sea into the Mediterranean.

This is now under way in such numbers that within a relatively short time, scientifically speaking — this is, a century or two — the marine life of the Mediterranean may be quite different than it is today.

This has its good and bad points. It may introduce new food species into the Mediterranean. But it may also introduce predators and parasites hitherto unknown there.

★ ★ ★

Already one predator, the barracuda, has transited the canal to the Mediterranean.

A large percentage of residents of Barcelone, Spain, refuse to drink locally supplied water and instead purchase bottled water at about 45 cents a quart.

Actress Faye Dunaway claims in a New York State Supreme Court affidavit that producer-director Otto Preminger verbally released her from a contract with Sigma Productions of Los Angeles, of which he is president.

PREMINGER

The actress, who won fame in the movie "Bonnie and Clyde," said in her affidavit that disagreements with Preminger "basic to our relationship" were encountered during the filming of "Hurry Sundown."

Justice William C. Hecht reserved decision yesterday on Sigma's motion to bar Miss Dunaway from working for another film company until she fulfills the five-film 1966 Sigma agreement.

Gideon Cashman, the actress' lawyer, said the salaries ranging from $2,500 to $8,000 a week in the Sigma contract were "abysmally below what she could command in the marketplace today."

Famed Pianist to Head Music Institute

World-famous concert pianist Rudolf Serkin will become director of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia next fall.

He succeeds Efrem Zimbalist, 77, who is retiring May 11 after 27 years as the institute's director.

Serkin, 65, was selected as Zimbalist's successor at a meeting of the Curtis board of directors last week. His appointment was announced yesterday.

Serkin has headed the institute's piano department since 1956. He now is on a year's sabbatical to allow him to play concerts and will assume the post next September.

Zimbalist, who toured widely as a concert violinist, is the father of actor Efrem Zimbalist Jr.

Special School Aid Cited by Sen. Hart

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan will receive $34,612,207 in federal funds for special programs for educationally disadvantaged children, Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said Tuesday.

"This includes neglected, delinquent children, those in foster homes and migratory workers' children," he said.

The funds will be provided under Title 1 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. Included is $1,211,650 to help improve educational opportunities for 4,513 handicapped children in special state-operated and state-supported schools.

Tranquilizers Kill Buffalo

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Three buffalo, weighing from 800 to 1,200 pounds each, died Tuesday after they were administered tranquilizers in preparation for their move to a new pasture.

★ ★ ★

The shaggy animals required large doses of tranquilizing drugs and succumbed to the effects despite a veterinarian's efforts to revive them with an antidote and stimulant drugs.

The move was prompted by planned construction of a motel on their old pasture.

ARMING the EAGLES

A Red Shirt moves a load of bombs down the flight deck.

Their official title is aviation ordnancemen. The pilots who fly air strikes over Vietnam call them, affectionately, "Red Shirts".

On the attack aircraft carriers serving with the U.S. Navy's Attack Carrier Strike Force 77 in the Gulf of Tonkin, these men have the awesome responsibility of arming each plane for its assigned mission.

To do this, varied armament and wing-racks are needed for varied targets. Working 12-18 hours per day, rising hours before the pilot briefing begins, these men change bomb racks with each flight. They trundle the ship's length with 250, 500, 750, 1,000 and 2,000 pound bombloads and somehow, every ninety minutes, have a fully-armed flight ready for launching.

With anywhere from 8 to 10 flights per day, the men are continually on the move. Every third night, with all flights in, the carrier will be resupplied from an ammunition ship. The Red Shirts are there, checking each piece of ordnance carefully before moving the pallets into position for easy accessibility when re-arming of the planes begins again.

These Red Shirts live with danger each day, but their courage is automatic in the face of any emergency. During the recent U.S.S. Forrestal disaster, these men rushed into the inferno to rescue trapped pilots, kept fire hoses running, threw live bombs overboard and, below decks, fought through smoke-filled compartments to minimize any danger from above.

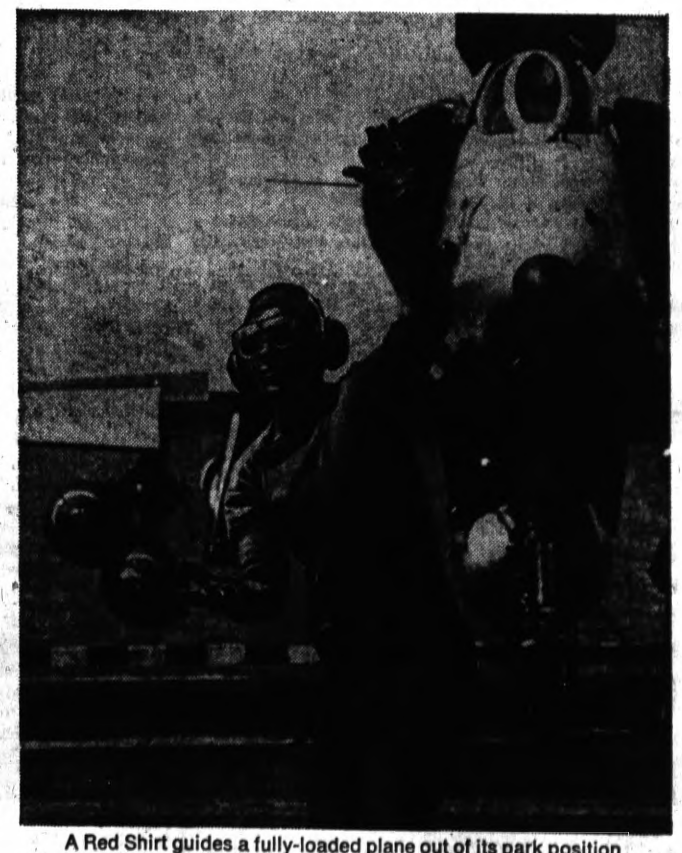
Red traditionally means danger, but the red a combat pilot sees moving about his plane, shown in these pictures aboard the U.S.S. Hancock, is something he knows as security: the security the Red Shirts deliver in their job as ordnancemen.

Bombs are hoisted into position beneath the aircraft by the Red Shirts.

Lt. Cmdr. P. D. Barrish looks on as the ordnancemen give him the "Ready To Go" signal after final arming.

A 750-pound bomb breaks loose and skids across the flight deck. Within seconds, the Red Shirts move out, bring it to a stop and disarm it.

Once the armament is in place, the delicate job of making each unit "live" is performed.



A Red Shirt guides a fully-loaded plane out of its park position and down the flight deck towards the launching area.

POPULATION CLUSTERS—Two hundred million Americans are anything but evenly distributed throughout the country. One out of every five lives in "Megalopolis," the interlocking chain of cities stretching along the Great Lakes from Cleveland to Chicago, Florida's Miami-Tampa area, San Francisco Bay and Los Angeles in California and the Gulf Coast.

Plans Rejected in Traverse City

TRAVERSE CITY (AP) — A proposed city - county building has been rejected by the Traverse City Commission, which claims residents felt they would be paying twice for the same building through city and county taxes. City Manager Lawrence Savage said the county would construct the building and lease space to the city.

More than 5,000 boats were involved in accidents in 1966, a 16 per cent increase over 1965, with 1,500 personal injuries.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q—I am 12 and a paperboy for a paper which carries your column. I am trying to save enough money to go to college. I will not need this money until I am 18 and would like to see it grow. Within the last month I bought Minnesota Mining & Mfg. and Mohawk Airlines. I have $300 to invest. What do you think of buying more Mohawk, or should I put the money in the bank?—D.J.

A—I do not advise you to buy more Mohawk Airlines. This is a regional carrier serving the Northeast and I believe that most such situations show an an erratic earnings picture rather than a growth pattern. These stocks have fallen out of favor, including even Pacific Southwest, one of the most ably managed and best situated of the group, in my opinion. Your 3M is satisfactory and you might well add to this holding. If you wish to diversify, I suggest you use your present funds to buy Transamerica, which appears relatively under valued. Ordinarily, I would advise a savings account as a backlog to any stock list. Presumably, though, you have parents to take care of contingencies and I do not feel that it is necessary in your situation to have a savings reserve.

Q—A friend has been trying to get me to buy mutual funds. Why is the government investigating the mutual fund industry?—F.V.

A—Mutual funds are, in my belief, a thoroughly safe form of investment. In most funds, you pay sales fee of 8 to 8½ percent, but if the fund is well managed, growth over a period of years will absorb this charge. The government investigation centers mainly on fees charged, which the Securities and Exchange Commission considers too high.

Coho Talks Set

PETOSKEY (AP) — Economic impacts of the growing Cobo salmon fishing sport will be explained in a series of three public meetings at Petoskey. The meetings were set for Jan. 25, Feb. 1 and Feb. 15 by the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce.

Driving Increase

LANSING (AP) — Motorists clocked an estimated 44.8 billion miles on Michigan's state highways, county roads and city streets in 1967, the State Highway Commission reports. The figure is an increase of 2 per cent, compared with 1966 when motorists drove an estimated 43.9 billion miles. It is the smallest gain in statewide travel since 1961 when the increase was 0.7 per cent.

Tito Arriving Today for Cambodian Visit

PHNIM PENH (UPI) — President Jospi Broz Tito of Yugoslavia was arriving today for a state visit to Cambodia where police uncovered a reported pro-Peking Communist plot to assassinate him and Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

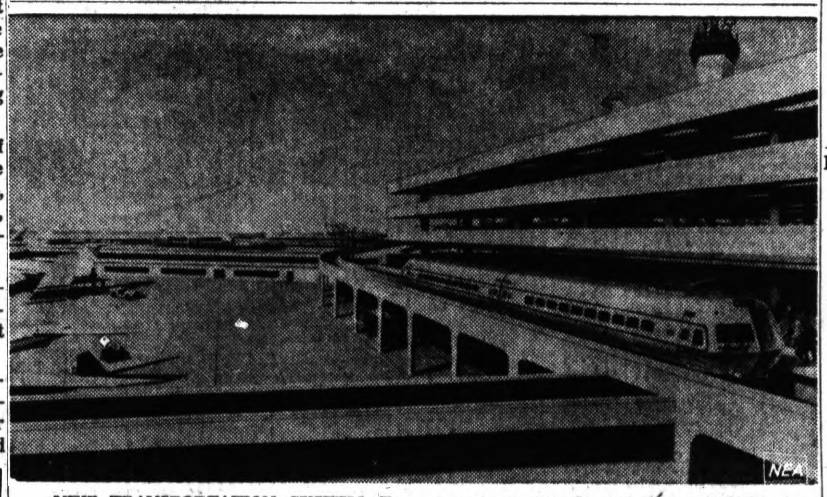
Thousands of policemen and soldiers were mobilized to protenct the visiting Communist chief of state. Police said the pro-Red China Communists were handing out anti-Tito and anti-Sihanouk pamphlets in outlying villages.

Tito sent an advance party of security agents to chekc the precautions taken by Sihanouk, the Cambodian cheif of state, against the plot, disclosed earlier this week.

Tito broke with Soviet dictator Josef Stalin in 1948 and Peking has never forgiven him that and his independent policies.

Cambodian police said yesterday they seized more than 1,000 hand grenades and other weapons cached near the fabled Angkor which Tito and Sihanouk visit tomorrow and Friday.

Last Sunday Sihanouk said three Chinese from a Cambodian Maoist network had been "enough to blow all of Phnom Penh sky high." The prince said then that "thousands of soldiers and policemen were mobilized" to protect Tito.



NEW TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM—To ease the burden of transporting airline passengers from suburban and center city areas to airports, a new concept in ticketing and transportation is under development by a Philadelphia firm. The Budd Co. plan calls for ticketing directly from points of departure to the airport, followed by shuttling of passengers directly to their gates at the airport in high-speed trains. The system would eliminate the usual changing of trains, handling of baggage and congestion of traffic when public transportation is ridden to the airport, and would cut down on congestion of other traffic.

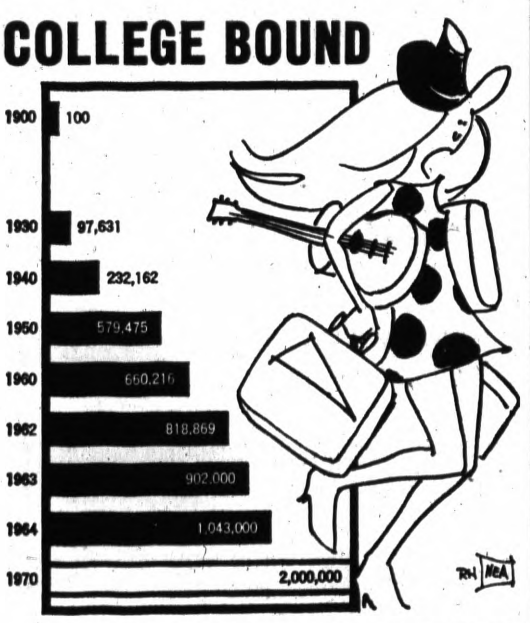
BELLY LAUGH — "Tristan," a one-ton sea elephant at a Stuttgart, Germany, zoo, seems to be enjoying a deep laugh. Tristan is 14 years old and is said to be a star attraction at the zoo where he performs tricks and romps with his trainer.

Candidates Set

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Twenty-seven candidates seek nine city positions on the Feb. 19 primary ballot in Grand Rapids. One of the contests, that for 3rd Ward constable, finds Governor Breen seeking reelection against his son, Edward.

COLLEGE BOUND



ENROLLMENT INCREASING — U.S. junior college enrollment has increased by more than 100,000 each year during the education "explosion" of recent years. Prediction now is that total two-year enrollment will top two million by 1970.

AUTO LAMPS — The light-studded 1968 luxury auto will use 81 lamps, about three times as many bulbs as are used in the average U. S. home. Lamps are in a variety of shapes and sizes, as shown by GE's Lady of Light.

Veep's Wife Gives Up Gift

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey has been given a large, uncut African diamond she apparently can't keep.

★ ★ ★

The diamond, a gift from President Joseph Mobutu of the Congo, was presented to Mrs. Humphrey when she visited the Congo with the vice president during their recent nine-nation African tour.

★ ★ ★

But U.S. law provides no American official can accept gifts from foreign leaders valued at more than $50. So the diamond has been turned over to the State Department for safekeeping until it's decided what to do with it.

★ ★ ★

The Humphreys have one consolation. An ornamental metal bird cage they received from President Habib Bourgiba of Tunisia appears to be worth less than the $50 limit, and they probably can keep it.

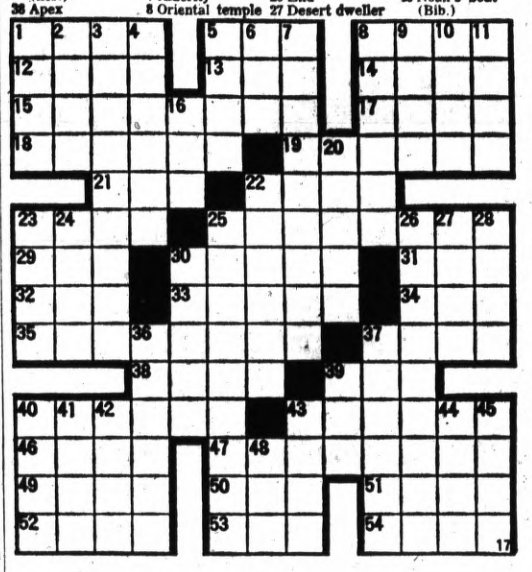
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Man Sentenced for Embezzling

IONIA (AP) — Marvin Kueick, 43, of Ionia was sentenced Tuesday for embezzling money from the patient store of the Ionia State Hospital.

Circuit Court Judge Lee B. Bebeau sentenced Kueick to one year probation. Bebeau also ordered him to repay $311 missing from the store, a fine of $500 court costs and oversight fees of $1,000, plus 10 per cent of the fine to the State Police Education Fund.

The boa constrictor has highly sensitive heat receptor organs in his lips, which are used to detect unseen prey.

No Credit Cards for Paying Taxes

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The State Tax Commission says credit cards may not be used for paying state taxes. Chairman Ransom Quinn says there is considerable pressure from banks to permit use of the cards on the theory that banks guarantee the payments.

★ ★ ★

He says the state wouldn't gain anything by accepting credit card payments.

Drivers Advised to Buy Insurance

LANSING (AP)—If you are a "high risk" driver, Secretary of State James Hare advises you buy liability insurance now so the policy can be processed in time to obtain 1968 license plates before Feb. 29. Hare warned it takes three weeks or more for some of the nonstandard insurance policies as well as Michigan's assigned risk plan to obtain approval for a policy after checking out a driver's record. Car owners who wait too long may be forced to pay a $35 fee into the Motor Vehicle Accident Claim Fund and be registered as an uninsured driver, Hare said. Once this money is paid, he said, it cannot be recovered.

Vietnam GIs Note Absence of Many Top U.S. Artists

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — One big question the GIs ask—I found out on my reecnt trip to Vietnam—is, "Why don't more big stars come over to do shows?"

WILSON

Danny Kaye had been there visiting hospitals, Martha Raye was there on her third tour, Bob Hope on his fourth or fifth . . . but where were all the others who made so much money the year 'round and couldn't give a week or two to entertain the boys?

They mentioned names, the GIs did. So-and-so was such a big man, why didn't he come over? Incidentally, it should be mentioned that Connie Francis, Richard Tucker, Phyllis Diller, Joey Heatherton and Patti Page had been there and wanted to come back . . . that Tony Randall, Sebastian Cabot, Arthur O'Connell, and James MacArthur and two groups of pro football players were coming soon, for USO.

★ ★ ★

I found it interesting that there was one man who'd been with Bob Hope on several trips whom everybody missed. He's been ill but wanted to make the trip anyway.

Jerry Colonna.

★ ★ ★

Were you surprised about lovely Lee Remick busting up with her husband, producer-director Bill Colleran? Broadway and Hollywood wasn't.

★ ★ ★

The rumors of a breakup started about the time Frank Sinatra and Mia Farrow began their trial separation, and Sammy Davis parted from May Britt, around Thanksgiving.

Co-starring in "The Detective" with Sinatra, she had one love scene with him in which, the studio said, she was ostensibly nude. She attended Sinatra's "Tony Rome" premiere in Miami.

Miss Remick is such a breathtaking beauty that we imagine her fame will now increase. She will surely be in circulation. Just 32, she has beauty, brains, poise and position.

★ ★ ★

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Bill Cosby's coming to town to promote his 5-minute 5 days-a-week radio program for which he gets $1,000,000 for 1 yr. from Coca-Cola . . . A Clark Gable TV special on NBC will quote his first fiancee: "I turned him down because I knew he'd never get anywhere."

★ ★ ★

Jackie Kennedy's next jaunt may be to Morocco . . . Tony Curtis' estranged wife Christine Kaufman said in Munich there's "no hope" of a reconciliation . . . Astronaut John Glenn came to Monsignore hatless and coatless; Met star Rosalind Elias arrived at Asti's wearing three sweaters under a mink coat.

★ ★ ★

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Simply having children doesn't make mothers."

EARL'S PEARLS: "Civic pride," explains Bert Kruse, "is a matter of tossing your empty cigaret pack on your neighbor's lawn, instead of on the street."

A freezing New Yorker told a friend, "I'd go to Miami Beach, but it's been rainy there" . . . "So what," said the other quivering, "—at least it's warm rain!" . . . That's earl, brother.

A Look at TV

'Smoking Test' a Sleeper

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Last night's "national smoking test" on CBS-TV was a sleeper — a quiz in which the mere accumulation of facts finally ended up to a concern that cigaret puffers could not ignore.

The sharply produced hour — a blend of documentary technique, humorous animation and live testing of viewers—was the latest of CBS-TV's audience-involvement examinations.

Others have dealt with driving, health, citizenship and current events.

Reporter Mike Wallace said at the outset that the program would not try to resolve the smoking controversy.

★ ★ ★

And, in fact, the network's advance publicity had said the quiz would simply test viewers' knowledge about cigarets and why people smoke.

PRESENTATION OF FACTS

Anti-smoking fanatics might have thought that the program was too outwardly impartial in its approach. But nothing succeeds like the simple accumulation of facts.

You don't have to take a stand. You just tell it like it is.

Furthermore, the pro-smoking points brought up by participants in the hour could never have compensated to cigaret advertisers for the anti-smoking evidence on hand.

★ ★ ★

For there is no question that the mere subject of the smoking controversy is something that cigaret advertisers don't like raised at all — especially on television, with its vast audience.

ABC-TV has decided against gavel-to-gavel coverage of this year's Democratic and Republican presidential nominating conventions, and will instead present 90-minute nightly wrap-ups in prime time.

CBS-TV and NBC-TV are expected to continue their more elaborate live coverage.

"Over the years," said ABC-TV, "we have received an increasing mail response from viewers and affiliated television stations questioning why all three networks had to carry simultaneous gavel-to-gavel coverage.

Expanded Legal Aid Service Planned

By ED BLUNDEN

Detroit lawyer Perry Lewis has two main goals in Oakland County:

- Set up an improved legal aid program for the disadvantaged.
- Put himself out of a job.

Working in conjunction with the Legal Aid Society and the Oakland County Commission on Economic Opportunity (OCCEO) Lewis has been charged with the task of forming a greatly expanded legal service for the poor using county and federal OEO funds.

Money expected to be available for legal services this year will probably be over $150,000. Last year the Legal Aid Society operated with a budget of just $25,000.

★ ★ ★

The new monies will mean new jobs, Lewis pointed out. He is currently seeking four lawyers and eight other employes to begin the program.

DIRECTOR

However, the most important person to his mind is the $14,000-a-year director. Who this will be Lewis doesn't know at this time, but he will be an important person.

"No program is any better than the people involved," he said, and he hopes to find a dedicated lawyer with executive ability soon.

Lewis, 29, is a University of Michigan law graduate with extensive experience in civil and criminal proceedings. He was in the process of setting up his own practice in Detriot when called upon by the OCCEO.

★ ★ ★

He gives himself two months to get things rolling in Oakland County, after which time his business in Detroit will become too pressing, he said.

VOLUNTEERS

Therefore, he hopes to see some of his fellow lawyers at his office at 7 W. Lawrence who are ready to go to work.

There will be three other positions for lawyers at $11,500 per year. These men will have the title of supervising attorneys. It is also planned to operate a summer program using law students.

Two Legal Aid Society lawyers will also continue their work in the general program. The society will receive the funds.

★ ★ ★

An application for funds to cover 1968 is now being formulated. However, the Chicago office had approved $82,000 for the county for the last six months of last year.

STILL AVAILABLE

It proved impossible to get the program under way in time. Lewis said indications were that the funds, plus additional funds, are available for a 12-month, rather than a six-month program.

Lewis sees the expanded legal aid service for the disadvantaged as filling a positive need in Oakland County.

PERRY LEWIS

"Our society is geting so complex that a lot of people are quite bewildered and confused by the social economy they live in. Some of them don't even realize they have a legal problem," he said.

★ ★ ★

Perry points out the new services will be an expansion of Legal Aid Society services — that is to provide legal help primarily in civil cases.

FELONY CASES

Legal aid in criminal felony cases is provided through the county courts and hasn't and won't be a part of the Legal Aid Society or the OCCEO program, he pointed out.

Here's the type of relationships the legal service will help in — tenant-landlord; welfare rights; debtor-creditor; driving laws; taxes; accident suits.

One of the most frequent problems faced by the poor is the need for a divorce, Lewis pointed out. Quite often a couple has separated and would like to be legally free, but don't have the money. It costs about $400 to obtain an uncontested divorce, he said.

Persons seeking help will have to prove to be truly indigent and must have a bona fide legal position that can be defended, he said.

REFERRAL SERVICE

He said the program will also be a referral service and applicants will be directed to a panel of lawyers to handle their cases. This service will be those cases that are usually taken on a contingency basis, such as the accident-injury judgement type.

Outside lawyers will also be called upon in some cases — such as when a lawsuit involves two poor persons, Lewis pointed out.

The expanded program will also be more convenient with four offices placed around the county instead of the present single location at the Legal Aid Society office at Saginaw and Huron.

★ ★ ★

Lewis doesn't see the expanded legal services as causing as much controversy in Oakland County as it has in such places as New York. In some places OEO lawyers brought suit against government bodies such as welfare agencies and in general caused turmoil in the communities.

"I don't think that will happen here, but I'm not too familiar with conditions. This will be up to the permanent staff," he said.

Lewis added, "There must be a need for the services here or the government wouldn't have approved the money."

The County Legal Aid Society is undergoing a reorganization to handle the new situation. Membership has been expanded from 18 to 27 members.

★ ★ ★

The society uses funds from Detroit and Pontiac United Funds and the County Bar Association.

The new roles to be played by both the society and the OCCEO in connection with the new legal services program are still being studied by the respective groups.

Fashion Designers Dropping Miniskirts

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Miniskirts, it appears, are coming to an end.

Or to avoid any misunderstanding, perhaps I had better say that miniskirts are on their way out. They have already reached the end.

WEST

The demise of the minis can be foreseen in the news that two leading designers are dropping hemlines in their spring collections.

When one designer drops a skirt, it can be taken for granted that skirt-dropping soon will become rampant in the fashion industry.

★ ★ ★

These are indeed felicitous tidings for those of us who are old enough to remember when there was more to women than knees and eyelashes.

EFFORT REQUIRED

"I'm not saying a woman's other component parts no longer exist. I'm only saying it takes a concerted effort to notice them.

Knees are all right in their place, which is somewhere between the ankle and the hip. But when three-quarters of a woman's shanks are left dangling below her hemline, knees become domineering and overbearing.

One begins to feel intimidated by knees and one longs for some relief.

The most natural place to turn to is the eyes. But that refuge has now been rendered discommodious. Miniskirts, unfortunately, became fashionable at about the same time as false eyelashes.

Say I am at a party and am trying to ignore the knees of a woman seated next to me. I raise my eyes to hers, and find something equally disturbing. Her eyelids are fluttering.

This no longer signifies that she is either flirting or bombed. It may only mean the barometer is falling. A slight change in air pressure is enough to start false eyelashes vibrating.

Women apparently have the idea that eyelash appendages are coquettish. Actually, they are unnerving.

CHECKING MEASUREMENTS—"Will it fit?" Mrs. Robert Pike, switchboard operator at Matthews-Hargreaves, Inc., asks Al Bauer, president of the Pontiac Automotive Trade Association, sponsor of the annual auto show at the Pontiac Mall today through Jan. 27. Henry Klein, general sales manager of Pontiac Retail Store, waits outside the Mall door, ready to drive one of the display cars into the exhibit.

About 65 models of 1968 automobiles went on display today at Pontiac Mall, Elizabeth Lake Road at Telegraph.

The Mall Auto Show, which runs through Jan. 27, is sponsored by the Pontiac Automotive Trade Dealers Association, a body of 11 local dealers with the cooperation of their respective factory outlets.

The autos are on display, spaced in the mall corridors like foodstuffs lining supermarket aisles.

They are being examined, poked and tested by both potential buyers and interested lookers.

The enthusiasm and interest of the viewers gives no indication that the same cars have been on display in the dealer's showrooms since last fall.

'BIGGEST, BEST'

"This is the biggest and best show ever organized in the Pontiac area," commented Al Bauer, president of the association.

The sixth annual show is about a third larger than last year's, according to Bauer.

In addition to the cars, many manufacturers have set up separate displays about the cars. Chevrolet has a cut-away Camaro.

A miniature, motorized Corvette, about 4½ feet long, will be given away during the show.

Participating dealers are Autobahn Motors, Inc., 1765 S. Telegraph; Matthews-Hargreaves, Inc., 631 Oakland; Jerome Motor Sales, 1980 W. Wide Track; Pontiac Retail Store, 65 University; Downey Oldsmobile, 550 Oakland; and Grimaldi Imported Car Co., 980 Oakland.

Others are Vandeputte Buick and Opel Sales, 210 Orchard Lake; Oakland Chrysler-Plymouth, 724 Oakland; John McAuliffe Ford, Inc., 630 Oakland; Spartan Dodge, Inc., 855 Oakland, and Hillside Lincoln-Mercury, Inc., 1250 Oakland.

COLORFUL — Pretty secretary Marilyn Wigle is shown above trying to choose a color for her new Pontiac, and if she is like one out of eight Pontiac customers she will pick gold. According to a recent study by Pontiac Motor Division, gold has become the most popular exterior paint color, replacing white which has been the top choice for the past five years. Pontiac offers 15 standard colors on all 1968 Pontiac, Tempest and Firebird models.

Smart Buyer Test-Drives Car

"How about taking her out for a spin around the block to see how she performs"?

That question undoubtedly will be asked at least a billion times during the 1968 model year; and the wise customer will answer, "Yes."

Make no mistake about it — the smartest buyer is the one who tries out the car before he buys it.

Auto dealers consider the demonstration ride one of their key selling points. Some pay incentive bonuses to salesmen who get a certain number of customers to take such rides even though they might not buy.

★ ★ ★

The demo ride offers a golden opportunity to point up the best points of the car.

QUICK RIDE

There are some salesmen, however, who simply take a customer for a quick ride around the block with the explanation, "The boss does not like us to take the cars too far away."

Some dealers let a customer, or potential customer, take a demo car home overnight so he really can try it out.

Others restrict the rides to an hour or less, generally in the area of the showroom.

★ ★ ★

One tip for getting a better demonstration is to ask the salesman to call for you at your office or home.

In that way, when you get behind the wheel you are in an area that is familiar to you so you can concentrate more on the car and worry less about unfamiliar streets and intersections.

ASK QUESTIONS

One veteran auto man said the best advice he could give a potential customer during a demo ride would be to be observant and asks lots of questions.

"It is your pocketbook, so do not be shy," he said.

Since there is a difference in the physical makeup and feel of car interiors and handling, it is wise to make a check list of factors of main interest to you in selecting your car.

Some of the basics include the convenience and ease of reach of the car controls; instrument legibility; how the driving position, leg and head room suits you; general passenger comfort; and visibility from inside.

OLD IDEA

You should remember that the idea of the demonstration ride is as old as the car industry itself.

Roy Abernethy, former president of American Motors, used to say, "If only I could get people behind the wheel of an American Motors car and give them a demonstration ride, I would have no problem with low sales figures." Most auto men agree with him.

'67 Bus, Truck Output 1.6 Million

American commercial vehicle manufacturers produced 1.6 million trucks and buses during the 1967 calendar year. It was the fourth consecutive year commercial vehicle production ran above 1.5 million units.

★ ★ ★

Truck registrations increased by more than 600,000 units in 1967.

The Automobile Manufacturers Association estimates truck registrations now total 16.1 million, an increase of 4 per cent from last year's total of 15,516,895.

Combined truck and bus registrations for 1967 are an estimated 16,476,000.

Truck registrations have increased by more than 40 per cent during the past 10 years.

TRUCK USAGE UP

The most recent figures available show trucks carry 52 per cent of the total intercity tonnage of manufactured goods, excluding petroleum and coal products. Trucks transport 400 billion ton miles of intercity freight, an increase of 40 per cent since 1960.

Twenty per cent of all trucks are used on farms. Today trucks carry more than 90 per cent of all livestock and 63 per cent of all fruits and vegetables to leading United States markets.

America's fleet of commercial vehicles is kept on the move by more than 9-million workers. They are employed in the manufacture, distribution, maintenance and commercial use of trucks.

Trucks and buses pay 29 per cent of major toll road revenues but make up only 10 per cent of the traffic.

Trucks account for less than 20 per cent of all vehicle miles traveled but pay more than 30 per cent of all special state and Federal motor vehicle taxes.

★ ★ ★

During the course of the school year, buses carry 16,500,000 public school students to and from classes — 38 per cent of the nation's total.

Hot Car Damper

Insurance companies are fighting back against the hot-car trend, says Rodale's Health Bulletin, by refusing to insure cars with more than 270 horsepower, or ones that have a power-to-weight ratio of less than 10 pounds per horsepower.

Proposed Insurance Would Ignore Fault

A proposal to have automobile insurance cover losses, no matter who is at fault, has been advanced by Prof. Jeffrey O'Connell of the University of Illinois and Prof. Robert E. Keeton of the Harvard Law School.

They think it would be cheaper in the long run because it would eliminate the expense of trying to determine who is at fault in a mishap. Nothing would be paid, of course, if an accident were intentional.

The plan has been proposed as a law in Massachusetts and is being considered in other states.

One of its features would be disregard of claims for pain and suffering of less than $5,00. It would set a $10,000 maximum, also, on other expenses such as wage losses and medical costs.

★ ★ ★

The professors assert that under the prevailing system insurance companies collect $2.20 in premiums for each dollar paid out to victims. Even so, many victims get little or nothing to cover their losses.

★ ★ ★

Under the O'Connell - Keeton plan, they say, delays in payments would be reduced greatly, bickering would be eliminated and insurance company overhead would go down.

Driving Deaths Top War

Driving has killed more Americans than war, says Jean Duhamel, an auto insurance executive.

Over the year about 1.5 million Americans have died in car accidents, according to Duhamel.

"Compare this with the 1.2 million servicemen killed in the eight major wars our country has fought," he says, "and you have the plain statistical fact that our highways are more dangerous than the battlefields."

However, Duhamel believes there is hope in recent safety developments.

Because there are more cars and drivers, total accident death and injuries are still mounting. But Duhamel claims the death rate in terms of total miles covered by each driver has been cut in half since 1945.

Highway transportation accounts for one out of ever six businesses and one out of every seven jobs in the nation, according to the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

New Montego Highlights Ford's '68 Lineup

This year's Ford Motor Co. output is highlighted by a new series, the Montego.

The following is a brief run-down on the Ford and Lincoln-Mercury lineup for the 1968 model year.

MERCURY — A new name and a new class of intermediate-sized autos, the Montego, joined Mercury's 1968 line.

The base model of the new series was named Montego Comet Sports Coupe, the only name link with the predecessor Mercury Comet intermediate line.

Ventless side windows and a forward-thrusting power dome hood feature the Montego line.

A sporty fastback Cyclone and Cyclone GT have a shorter, squared-off rear design that emphasizes performance.

BASE ENGINE

The base engine in the Montego line is a 200-cubic-inch 6, with options up to a 423-cubic-inch job.

In the standard-size Mercury line, much use has been made of sculptured sheet steel. The over-all length of the car was hiked 2.6 inches to 200.1 inches by a forward thrust of the center grille.

The car features a new bumper which has air slots and a raised section center section, emphasizing a three-dimensional theme.

★ ★ ★

Sixteen standard-sized Mercurys will be offered with a body line-up identical with that of 1967 model year.

FAIRLANE — This is a completely restyled car for 1968 with 14 new models and a new top-of-the line series designation.

Formerly called the 500 XL, it is now called Torino.

The over-all length was increased four inches to 201 primarily by use of straight-through styling which gives a longer, lower look.

Interplay of a new front grille and fender design gives an air scoop effect to the front of the car.

The line features a new fastback hardtop which brings Mustang flavor to the Fairlane line.

FALCON — Has save seven basic models, with new grille and front bumpers, restyled taillights, single head lamps and anodized aluminum grille.

FORD — Two wagons and a two-door hardtop with formal roof are added starters in the 1968 line bringing the big FORD offerings to 21.

The car was restyled from the belt line to the road but its specifications are the same as in 1967 models.

It features a restyled instrument panel, energy-absorbing padding with sharp edges eliminated around the dashboard area.

MUSTANG—Mustang for 1968 continues its long hood, short deck, sports car styling with the same three basic models—fastback, hardtop and convertible.

New quarter-panel sheet metal includes a simulated air scoop located just ahead of the rear wheels.

The new louvered hood adds to the sportiness of the car and turn-signal reminder lights are set in the louvers to alert the driver when his signal turns are operating.

★ ★ ★

The car has six engine options from a 200 CID six to a 427 CID eight.

COUGAR — Mercury Cougar added a special 7.0 Litre GT-E high performance model as it began its second year in the marketplace.

The personalized car continues to be available in the base Cougar and in a Cougar XR—which has much of the flavor of a classic European road car.

The Cougar ride has been made softer through development of a new curved strut for the car's front end.

It permits the wheels to move back and forth more easily under impact.

A choice of five engines is available on the Cougar ranging from a 302-cubic-inch job which uses regular fuel to the 427-cubic-inch engine, a high performance, premium fuel job.

Radial tires are optional with the GT option.

THUNDERBIRD—The 1968 T-Bird line will be expanded to include a fourth model, a four-door town sedan that will hit the marketplace about Jan. 1.

It also will continue to be available in a two-door hardtop, a two-door Landau and a four-door Landau.

New features this year include a two-piece wraparound bumper with turn signals built into it, ventless side windows, retractable doors which cover headlights and two engine options, a 390 V8 standard and a 429 V8 option.

One key safety feature is a rear lamp monitor which is located on the rear seat package deck.

It lights up when any of the eight rear lamp bulbs goes out and thus cuts down the possibilities of a motorist driving along with tail lights out unknown to him.

CONTINENTAL — Ford's top of the line car, the 5,100-pound Lincoln Continental has few physical changes this year in its two models, a four-door sedan and a two-door coupe.

Basic specifications remained as a 126-inch wheelbase and over-all, length of 221 inches.

Its list of equipment as standard items includes power windows, power steering, power brakes, with disc brakes in front.

Toronto Traffic Is Unsnarled by a Computer

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Writer

TORONTO (AP) — Toronto has a traffic cop with arms seven miles long and getting longer.

It's a computer which already controls more than 500 traffic lights in an 80-square-mile area.

In the next few years another 260 lights will come under its wing, bringing the total area covered to 240 square miles.

The $4,000,000 computer squats in city hall.

★ ★ ★

Its arms are slender wires connecting with sensors at key intersections throughout the city.

SENDS SIGNAL

As cars approach each intersection, the sensors send the information to the computer which almost instantaneously returns a signal telling the light how long to remain green.

Officials estimate the computer has reduced the average delay during rush hours by about 20 per cent.

It is the first central, automatic system for controling all the traffic in metropolitan area.

★ ★ ★

Metropolitan Toronto has more than 800,000 vehicles registered in its 240 square miles, for a per-capita density second only to Los Angeles and Detroit among North American cities.

CONVERGE DAILY

The problem of congestion is compounded by more than 100,000 vehicles from outside the area converging daily on the sector.

On an average day the computer is responsible for handling 1,250,000 trips, 11 per cent of which occur during rush hours.

Sam Cass, commissioner of traffic, estimates the computer saves about $20,000,000 annually for Metro's motorists.

This is based on time saved during rush hours, gas, insurance and wear and tear on the cars.

★ ★ ★

Not included in this figure is the fact that the accident rate on the roads controlled by the system has decreased seven per cent while jumping as much as six per cent on those not controlled.

LOWER RATES

Insurance officials say traffic control in Toronto is a contributing factor to lower insurance rates. An average Toronto insurance rate is $119 a year; in Montreal the rate is $215 and in Cleveland $213.

A typical example of how the computer works is at the intersection of Yonge and Bloor streets, one of Toronto's busiest.

At this intersection, the lights work on a 70-second cycle. During the rush hour when traffic is heavier along Yonge, the sensor conveys this information to the computer.

★ ★ ★

Almost instantaneously, the computer directs the green light for Yonge Street traffic to hold for 45 seconds before changing to red.

GREEN LONGER

If traffic is heavier on Bloor, the computer commands the Bloor light to stay green longer.

During midday, when traffic is lighter, the computer directs the lights to hold for 35 seconds each way.

The electronic policeman has been so successful that traffic experts from major cities in North America, Europe and Japan have come to Toronto to see it work.

★ ★ ★

Toronto was not the first city to think of the idea of centralized traffic control. Denver, Baltimore and Philadelphia each set up some kind of limited system in the early 1950s.

ASKED FIRM

In 1957, Toronto's planning board asked Traffic Research Corp., a consulting firm, whether a computer could solve the Metro traffic problem.

Six years later a Univac computer was installed — stocked with the necessary information on traffic unsnarling.

Cass says the flexibility of the computer is almost limitless and, in the future, it can help solve many of the headaches motorists now encounter.

One of the possibilities he mentions is a device warning motorists they are approaching an accident and giving them alternative routes to reach their destinations.

Washington's Smithsonian Institute has opened a "Hall of Petroleum," featuring exhibits which trace the history and technology of the oil industry. Petroleum companies have contributed about $300,000 in models artifacts, and demonstration materials.

Continental Stretched, Customized

By FRANK S. JOSEPH

CHICAGO (AP) — For $14,911.20 and up, George Lehmann and Robert Peterson will add 34 inches to the length of a Lincoln Continental for you.

★ ★ ★

You'll have to wait five and a half weeks for the extended car. So did the other owners, such as the White House, the king of Morocco, Gen. Francisco Franco of Spain (he has three) and Sophia Loren.

It's worth the wait. The rugs are pearl-gray mouton fur, the finish is nine hand-rubbed coats of acrylic lacquer, and there are deep-upholstered rear-facing jump seats on either side of the bar-television-stereo console.

And it's so-o-o-long — 254.9 inches over-all, making it the longest production car in the world, Lehmann claims, and the most expensive production car in the United States.

★ ★ ★

"Mercedes-Benz used to advertise that their car was the longest in the world, but we made them stop that," said the tanned, youthful Lehmann, who at 29 heads four businesses and owns 10 cars of his own.

CAR NUT

He admits he is a car nut. So is Peterson.

Lehmann recounted in an interview how his interest in cars threw him together with his beefy, balding partner, Bob Peterson, 40, former owner of a transmission shop in Chicago.

Peterson was hired to rebuild a demolished racer Lehmann had owner. Lehmann was so impressed that he asked if Peterson could convert his Lincoln Continental sedan into a limousine.

★ ★ ★

"We take out all the interior, the drive shaft and the exhaust pipes. Then we cut the upper and lower frame and install longer sections and a longer floor pan. When the structure is welded back together, we do the body panel work.

PAINT JOB

"Then the car is painted, the electrical and heating components are put in and a different drive shaft is installed.

"Then we put the car into our trim shop, where it's upholstered and trimmed out. We run two and a half days of tests to get rid of all rattles and squeaks and leaks, and finally ship the car to Michigan where Lincoln-Mercury runs final tests."

The finished product includes all equipment standard on a four-door Lincoln Continental sedan, plus such extras as the two rear-facing jump seats; the padded, black vinyl-covered roof; the tiny, rectangular "opera window" characteristic of limousines; fluffy mouton carpeting; and choice of AM-FM signal-seeking radio or AM-stereo tape console.

★ ★ ★

The extras? Anything you want. The most expensive option listed in the catalogue is two inches of extra headroom, for $950.

BULLETPROOF GLASS

Unlisted options include things like bulletproof glass, which can cost up to $3,000 for the three-inch-thick variety. Lehmann said it is ordered frequently.

As to color, most of the requests are for the traditional black.

★ ★ ★

The firm now employs 35 persons and is also developing an ambulance based on the Mercury station wagon.

Blue Takes Lead on Car Color Chart

After a 10-year reign as the favorite color of new car buyers, white has taken a back seat to meduim blue.

★ ★ ★

A color popularity study made by DuPont indicates that medium blue was the choice of 18.2 per cent of new car buyers in 1966, compared to 12.5 per cent preferring white.

★ ★ ★

Black continues to lose ground, having dropped steadily from a strong 13 per cent in 1958 to a weak 4 per cent in 1966.

America's 15 million trucks are transporting more and more domestic freight. Truckers' percentage of the market rose from 66 per cent in 1958 to 73 per cent in 1965.

Course Teaches Defensive Driving

Do you think that "being in the right" is the best protection against traffic accidents?

Then there's a good chance that you also subscribe to the "accidents always happen to the other guy" theory. And you could be wrong on both counts—maybe dead wrong.

"Most drivers think it's most important to be legally right in accidents," says Michael Birmingham of the National Safety Council. "But the real question is, did you do everything possible to avoid the accident?"

Operating on the theory that careful motorists can prevent almost any accident, the National Safety Council teaches everyday defensive driving — the art of driving to anticipate and avoid trouble.

Another organization, the Travelers Insurance Co., compiles accident figures and gives hints for defensive driving on modern expressways.

The Safety Council lessons, presented in a course taught in all states by sponsoring industries and civic groups, spotlights prevention of the two-car collision.

According to the Council, the two - car crash accounts for seven out of eight drivers who have accidents; each year, one out of twelve motorists gets caught in such a collision.

This defensive driving course covers the six situations which can give rise to two-car crashes:

When you're following another car, stay alert and ahead of the situation.

DON'T TAILGATE

Above all, don't tailgate: drive at least one vehicle length behind the next car for every 10 m.p.h. of speed.

At 60 m.p.h., keep six lengths between you and the auto in front — if you want to avoid tailgating collisions, some of which have involved 30 cars in one crash.

When another car follows you don't rely on mental telepathy to convey your intentions — signal. (Travelers Insurance reports that failure to signal ushered in 140 traffic deaths and 46,400 injuries last year.)

If the driver behind you thinks bumper-chasing is the height of driving fun, slow down gradually and make him pass you.

Don't speed up in the hope of escaping tailgaters: exceeding the speed limit killed 18,460 and injured 1,361,500 last year, says the Travelers.

Be especially careful meeting other vehicles — head-on collisions are the deadliest kind of crash, according to the Safety Council.

Don't crowd the center line—only speeding kills more people than veering to the wrong side of the road.

Be especially careful making right-hand turns, since centrifugal force will be pushing you left, into the path of oncoming cars.

INTERSECTIONS

Intersections make fine grist for that deadly mill, "If you're in the right, proceed at full speed."

"Even if the stop sign is in the other guy's lane, approach the crossroad "with your foot off the gas pedal and poised over the brake pedal," as the Safety Council puts it.

Don't grab for a few seconds of time in a fight to the death over the right-of-way. Yield — you may gain a whole lifetime.

If another car passes you, help him — for your own sake. Watch oncoming traffic. To let the overtaking vehicle slip back into line in time, you may have to slow down.

Check to make sure that no one is passing you before you change lanes — use your turn signals and both rear-view mirrors.

If you overtake another car, watch out for vehicles in front, in back, and in the oncoming lane.

Check the rear-view mirror to make sure that no one is trying to pass you; alert the driver ahead by flicking your turn signal.

★ ★ ★

Pass quickly: driving in the next car's "blind spot" is rude and downright dangerous.

Passing accidents killed 1250 and injured 131,500 last year—so when in doubt, don't pass!

Besides these rules for everyday driving, there are some special hints for defending yourself on the thruway.

Speeding may be the prime source of traffic deaths—but on the highway, the defensive driver will also avoid a pace so slow that it endangers faster autos.

★ ★ ★

Another danger lies in entering turnpikes at reduced speed: lie back in the speedup strip, wait for an opening in traffic, and accelerate to the prevailing rate before you merge into traffic.

★ ★ ★

It's equally vital that you avoid the state of trance induced by long, stretches of turnpike.

Two Feet to Stop

In Jackson, Miss., a driver's license applicant was flustered a bit by the question, "How many feet are required to stop a car going 30 m.p.h.?"

★ ★ ★

He promptly replied, "Two feet—one for the clutch and one for the brake."

He got his license.

SHOW TIME — Checking the floor plan on a scale model of an auto show display area is W. L. Criger, who for the past 20 years has been manager of Pontiac Motor Division's chart and display department. Criger and his staff are responsible for design and construction of all exhibits where Pontiacs are on display. According to Criger, the planning begins some eight months before each auto show.

Pontiac Exhibit Displays Months of Planning, Work

Auto show exhibits, like automobiles themselves, are the result of the many months of planning, attention to details and the talents and hard work of many people all under the direction of one person.

★ ★ ★

Directing Pontiac Motor Division's exhibits is W. L. Criger who for the past 20 years has been manager of Pontiac's chart and display department.

In addition to preparing for auto shows in such cities as Detroit, Chicago and New York, Criger and his staff currently have four tour units on the road which will appear in 75 auto shows from coast to coast this model year.

Naturally, Pontiac Motor Division products will be prominently displayed at the Pontiac Mall Auto Show which opened today.

★ ★ ★

"Wherever there is an auto show and there are Pontiacs on display, we are involved," Criger said.

The planning for Pontiac's 1968 exhibits began eight months ago when Criger visited the industrial design department of General Motors Styling.

There, working with Pontiac's sales promotion staff, the basic requirements were established for the 1968 show season.

Several exhibit area themes were presented to Criger before the final decision was made.

★ ★ ★

"Not only do we look for attractive and meaningful displays; but because some of our exhibits will be torn down and reassembled in other towns 12 or so times a year, we take a close look at how they are constructed," Criger said.

SIMPLE TO COMPLEX

The displays range in complexity from a simple light tower to a cut-a-way model of an engine, and Criger remembers several that went even further.

"When Pontiac introduced its V-8 engine for the 1955 model year, we developed an engine display where the sides of the engine would fold apart like opening a book."

"As far as we know we are the only one to have accomplished this. Others have had an engine pull apart, but none where the sides have opened up," he stated.

★ ★ ★

Criger also noted a special exhibit built for the introduction of the Tempests in 1961.

PIVOT OPEN

Hinges were attached to the body at the rear allowing the body to pivot open similar to a mouth opening. Naturally this exhibit was tagged the "Alligator."

Pontiac also exhibited the "Clam" at the New York World's Fair. The Clam was a Grand Prix which tilted 45 degrees up and out to give an unusual bird's-eye view.

Pontiac's normal display area will include at least one customized show car, which originates within the division's interior styling studio. Also there are several static displays such as the cut-a-way engine, a collapsible steering column and color and trim board.

★ ★ ★

The four tour units include some six tons of equipment including a show car and revolving platform that are carried in a truck and can all be set up in from four to six hours.

SAME RESPONSIBILITIES

Criger, who joined Pontiac in 1935, just three years after the chart and display department was established, says that although the cars and type of exhibits have changed throughout the years, his auto show responsibilities remain the same.

★ ★ ★

"Each exhibit and display area is designed to make people want to stop and look at the new Pontiacs," he stated.

Plastic Gas Tanks in 1968

Use of plastic gas tanks in private cars is expected to start with late runs of 1968 models.

★ ★ ★

By the following year, several manufacturers will incorporate the plastic tanks in their models, according to Phillips Petroleum Co., manufacturer of the high density polyethylene (Marlex 5003) used in the blow molded tank.

GMC Truck and Coach Divison now has models on the road using a 20-gallon plastic fuel tank that mounts outside the truck on the right side of the cab frame, beneath the cab floor.

It is secured by two steel straps laid over strips of rubber cement. The weight is nine pounds, including attachments, compared with 31 pounds for an equivalent steel tank.

★ ★ ★

Phillips introduced high density polyethylene in 1956 and has helped design, build and run approximately 75 per cent of the automotive fuel tank molds in existence, working closely with Detroit on the development of the plastic tank.

French Sales Up

French auto manufacturing appears to be undergoing a boom. The country's largest car maker, Renault, increased output by a third last year; passenger car and truck exports rose by about 25 per cent.

★ ★ ★

Many of the autos are sent to Common Market countries—but the biggest per cent jump in foreign exports was registered in sales in Great Britain.

★ ★ ★

U.S. sales are also on the rise—after a long slump in the early '60s.

Of the 4,660 miles of superhighways in the European Common Market countries, nearly half are in Germany.

Tips for 'Trading Up' or Buying Used Car

By AP Newsfeatures

If you're planning to "trade up" or buy a used car, here are some tips that should help you get the most for the money you spend, and for your old car if you trade it. The advice comes from a survey of several independent auto dealers.

They agree that you should always buy from a reputable dealer.

Chances are he holds membership in a recognized dealer's association, either independent or franchised, which frown on sharpie tactics by their members. He'll have his membership plaque on display.

His lot and business quarters will be neat and clean, his salesmen neat, attentive and courteous. If he operates at night, his lot will be well lighted.

He doesn't do business on Sunday, unless he's in an area where auto sales are an accepted Sunday practice.

● Shop around. If you're trading and do not know your dealer, get several offers, both on the model and style you want and the amount offered for your car.

Most dealers base their mark-up on the "NADA" or "Kelly" red book wholesale price listings.

All of them can "deal" with you to some extent and still make a profit.

★ ★ ★

● If you're interested in a late model, say a 1965 or 1966, consider the luxury items it carries—automatic transmission, power steering and brakes, air-conditioning.

RETAIN VALUE

These generally make the price higher, but they'll also hold their value in case you decide to trade again in a year or so.

Too, you'll be getting the luxury features at a far less price than the previous owner paid for them.

● Test drive any car before you buy it. With or without a dealer representative accompanying you, try to make a part of your test on a highway or throughway where you can get the car up to speed.

★ ★ ★

Check for overheating, check heater, air-conditioning, oil pressure, generator, brakes, handling. If you can keep the car overnight, check the spot where it sat for any length of time—for oil, transmission or wheel cylinder leaks.

● Better still, if the dealer will let you have it for an hour or so, take the car to a good mechanic. Let him check compression on cylinders, spark plugs, and for telltale signs of oiling, carbon buildup, previous sighs of overheating.

Let him check wheel alignment, ball joints, tie rods, kingpins, bushings, universal joint, wheel cylinders, exhaust system and for frame damage.

If he has time, let him drive the car. He may charge you $10, but the money would be well spent.

● Ask the dealer for the name and address of the previous owner of the car. If he live in your city, contact him. If he's honest, he'll tell you the car's condition.

● You, yourself, can check for signs of previous body and frame damage.

If you suspect the car has been wrecked, look for these telltale signs: Sound deadening mastic and insulation materials mising from underide of hood, inside trunk paint of a different color from the exterior; freshly painted sections and new weld-heads on portions of the frame, tires worn on inside that might come from a bent frame; cheap seat covers that might cover bloodstains; crooked driplines above the door jambs.

● In choosing between two similar cars, one of which has a high-compression, high-horse power engine, remember that the big engine gives you far less gas mileage than the standard V8, requires premium fuel, needs frequent oil changes, in addition to added oil between changes, and costs more when you have to repair it.

★ ★ ★

Some big engines — say the Chrysler 440 or the Ford 427 — give you only 10-12 miles per gallon when new.

ENGINE SPAN

With the added burden of air-conditioning, you probably would get less with 50,000 miles on the engine.

● Consider the resale value of any late model used car you buy.

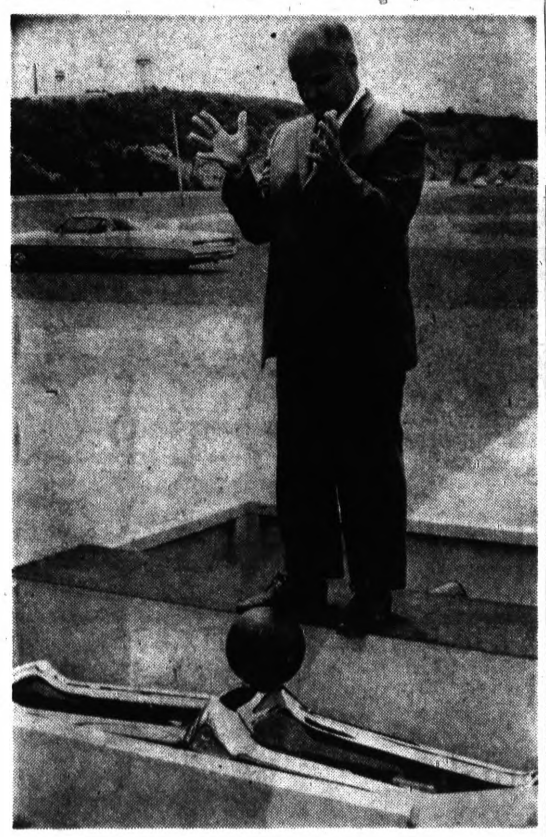
The new sporty cars — Mostang, Camaro, Barracuda, Cougar, etc.—have among the highest resale value of all passenger vehicles.

But the bigger family cars have a higher depreciation rate, so that if you are buying for the long haul, and are inclined toward semiluxury cars, chances are you'll get a better value for the money you spend in a middle-to-upper bracket car such as Chrsyler's Newport, American's Ambassador, Pontiac's Catalina, Chevrolet's Caprice, Ford's LTD, and Oldsmobile's 98 series.

A 1965 Oldsmobile Dynamic 88, for instance, retailed for about $3,425 when it was new, including automatic transmisrent "red book" value is about $1,850.

A Rambler Ambassador, 1965 model with automatic transmission, retailed new at $2,911. The current red book value runs about $1,495.

Canada's automotive exports for 1967 may total over $1 billion.



BUMPER BOUNCE — The energy-absorbing quality of Pontiac's Endura bumper is demonstrated by Stephen P. Malone, Pontiac Motor Division's chief engineer. To dramatize the functional superiority of the rubber bumper, standard on the 1968 GTO, Malone drops a bowling ball on a chrome-plated bumper and the Endura. A dent appeared in the chrome-plated bumper (left), but the ball is shown bouncing off the Endura bumper (right) without any damaging marks.

Pontiac Bumper Bounces Back

Pontiac came up with one of the most unusual features of the 1968 car line — a bumper which bounces back into shape after you have hit something.

★ ★ ★

Under development for three years, the bumper — called Endura — is a combination of a special synthetic compound backed with a heavy steel gauge reinforcement that functions as an energy-absorbing system, replacing the conventional rigid steel bumper.

Pontiac said that when the bumper is hit, under most circumstances, it will depress and then return to its original form almost immediately.

If the bumper is damaged by a heavy enough impact to leave a dent or a mark, in most cases the damaged area can be repaired easily by any Pontiac dealer.

★ ★ ★

Another feature of the new bumper is that it is painted the same color as the exterior of the car and thus gives an extended and integrated appearance.

MOLDING PROCESS

The bumper is cast by a molding process and therefore can be formed to any shape, providing unlimited possibilities for stylists of the future.

★ ★ ★

It is a safe bet that if the car buying public goes big for the bump-proof bumpers they will be seen on other car lines soon.

There are two places to see the Auto Show. At your Chrysler and Plymouth Dealers. At The Pontiac Mall.

Your Chrysler and Plymouth dealer has 84 models to choose from. If you're having a hard time making up your mind which Auto Show to go to, why not take in both. We'll understand. We thrive on competition.

Gals Alone Should Fear Unchecked Car

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS

Gals, have you hesitated to make a long automobile trip by yourself or tour our magnificent scenic states ALONE because you recall Mama's words, "Beware of strange men!"?

★ ★ ★

Relax, your greatest danger is likely to come not from legions of males but from an automobile not properly checked out.

Ignorant of the facts of motoring life and filled with youthful exuberance, I recently decided to venture a cross-country solo.

Although my courage faltered at times while planning my trip, I decided that if I heeded the advice of friends and went straight, refusing to pick up hitchhikers (male or female, uniformed or in civies), what could possibly happen?

★ ★ ★

I flew into Las Vegas on a sweltering July day. Determined to see the Valley of Fire, I asked one of the nationwide auto rental firms (which shall remain nameless) to deliver an air-conditioned convertible early the following morning.

BLOSSOMING TAN

While the temperature stayed at a comfortable 80-odd degrees in early morning I could cater to my blossoming suntan; otherwise with the air-conditioning I would be safe.

As promised at 8:30 a.m., a red convertible was delivered with the top down. Making sure the gas tank was full but relying for the remainder on the rental company's statements on how thoroughly all cars were checked out, I proceeded to drive north into the desert with its menacing purple beauty.

I relaxed, driving slowly, gazing at the constantly changing light patterns on the barren mountains and sagebrush-covered valley floors.

★ ★ ★

"If they could see me now," I hummed, chuckling at the worries of my friends back home. I was certainly in no danger from men. For the past hour I hadn't even seen one—or a woman either!

Only the heat marred the trip. The sun was now beating down; it was time to seek the comfort of air-conditioning.

I pulled the convertible to the roadside and pressed the switch. Nothing happened . . . I jiggled it up and down and still nothing . . . I tried to pull the top up manually but it wouldn't budge.

"Oh, well," I thought, "I'll go on a little further, maybe the top is just momentarily stuck." The Valley of Fire was not far off.

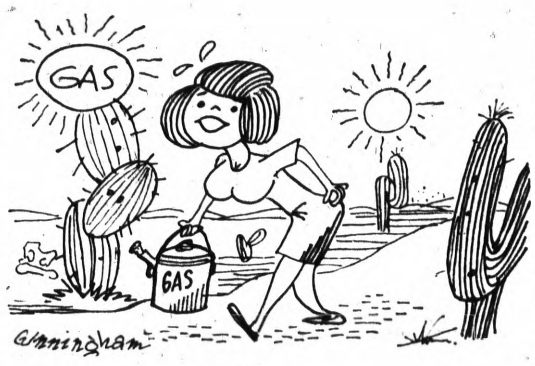
★ ★ ★

About 10 minutes later I stopped again; still no luck with the top. Since the heat was making it difficult to breathe I decided to turn around and head back to Las Vegas.

'SPUT, SPUT'

I turned the key in the ignition. All that happened was a sput, sput . . . I waited about 15 minutes thinking the engine might be flooded but the only sound I got was a faint clink, clink.

Trying not to panic, I recalled seeing a historic marker about a quarter mile away and decided to investigate. Perhaps the sign mentioned an underground spring. But all it said was:



"A certain Capt. Johnson in the summer of 1947 was driving through this area when he ran out of gas. After presumably wandering around a bit, he finally sought shelter under the car, where he was found dead three days later in this spot."

★ ★ ★

Crying, I walked back to the car, kicked it a few times and tried to figure out how to get away from the blazing sun.

A MIRAGE

Then, almost like a mirage, a white truck approached. It was an AAA car that had been sent out to tow back an abandoned car stuck about 15 miles further on. The AAA driver was anything but sympathetic. He kept muttering, "Only some damned fool girl would come out here in the heat of the day during the summer."

But he did check the car and concluded that the battery that operated the top had blown and that the engine trouble was caused by vapor-lock, a common condition in the desert heat.

Although he wouldn't tow my car, he did give me a lift to Glendale where I was able to arrange transportation to my Vegas hotel. There I let the auto agency have a piece of my mind.

★ ★ ★

Next morning when the sun was just rising and all was cool, I made my second attempt at the Valley of Fire—in another car from the same rental agency? The views and pictures were worth it.

NO TROUBLE

The rest of my trip through Utah, Wyoming, Montana and South Dakota, including both Grand Teton and Yellowstone National Parks, proceeded without trouble from autos or men.

To the gal thinking of motoring alone, here are some tips:

- Do not pick up anyone, male or female, alone or in pairs. The uniformed soldier could have acquired his garb through any army surplus store.
- Know your automobile. Check the gas tank at regular intervals. If it's a rented auto, be sure you check out the gadgets and know how to operate them. If it's your own, be sure it's in good working order.
- Always carry a thermos filled with cold water, as well as a water bag. Carry food, just in case—preferably in an ice chest.

★ ★ ★

- Pay attention to local warnings and signs. If a map stresses danger, do not attempt the trip before checking local road conditions. Don't just plunge ahead; check the local gas station.
- No matter where you're headed, if you're going to be in a remote area, let someone know your destination and approximate arrival time, allowing ample time for historic and scenic stops.

★ ★ ★

- Relax and make frequent stops to avoid fatigue. Notice the animal and bird life of the area. When you can recognize an asprey or submit pictures of a grizzly, you'll glow.

Peugeot, a French automobile manufacturer, got its business start as a maker of steel and bicycles. The company's most popular product was once metal corset busks, those "revolutionary" successors to whalebone.

Safety Tips for Cyclists

- Always keep your eyes on the road. Alertness is the most important single factor in avoiding accidents.
- Always wear a safety helmet, for trips of any duration or distance. It may be the difference in preventing a serious injury.
- Wear apparel to suit weather conditions and general safety considerations. This includes warm clothes, gloves and some form of eye protection.

★ ★ ★

- Never take it for granted that a car driver sees you and will give you the right of way. Always be on the defensive.
- When riding in groups, go two-by-two, never three abreast.
- Watch for pedestrians. Sometimes they won't see you and may step right into your path.

★ ★ ★

- Never follow too closely behind vehicles. Allow at least 50 feet at 20-miles-per-hour, 100 feet at 30-miles-per hour, more than 300 feet at 50 miles-per-hour.
- Observe speed limits and traffic laws.
- Slow down for all curves.

★ ★ ★

- Pass only when the road ahead and to the left is clear; after passing, don't cut off the passed vehicle. Never pass on hills or curves.
- On wet pavements and roads covered with snow, ice or mud, refrain from sudden acceleration or braking to avoid skids.
- Let the engine act as a brake whenever possible. When brakes must be applied, use rear brake first and then, if required, apply front brake gently.

Motor Fuel Use Rises

American filling stations pumped a record amount of motor vehicle fuel in 1967, the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads (BPR) reports.

The bureau estimates nearly 78 billion gallons of fuel were consumed by the nation's motor vehicles during 1967 — an increase of 4.3 per cent over last year.

Nearly 73 billion gallons of gasoline and more than five billion gallons of diesel and other special fuels are included in the total.

An additional four billion gallons of motor fuel was used for nonhighway purposes — pushing the total fuel consumption to 82 billion gallons.

★ ★ ★

It is estimated that state and Federal highway-user fuel tax revenues will reach nearly $8 billion in 1967. Federal revenues on motor vehicle fuel are expected to total about $3 billion.

★ ★ ★

The BPR estimates state taxes on motor vehicle fuel at nearly $5 billion.

Stylish '68 GM Models Emphasize Safety, Comfort

General Motors Corp. is stressing safety and comfort in its vast array of 1968 models.

Here's a brief rundown on the product lineup for 1968 at the various GM divisions.

Chevrolet

CHEVELLE — Much of Chevrolet's 1968 changes were concentrated on its intermediate sized Chevelle. The wheelbase was cut 3 inches to 112 in the hardtops, while it was upped an inch — to 116 — in the four door sedans in a major reshuffling of body sizes.

★ ★ ★

Fourteen Chevelle models are available in the 1968 run with engine options ranging from a 140-horsepower 6 to a hot 325 V8 option.

CORVAIR — The much-discussed Corvair will be back in Chevy's '68 lineup although in not as strong a force. A two-door coupe and a convertible will be offered, two models fewer than in the 1967 run, with two four-door hardtops being dropped from the line.

The engine will be a 164-cubic-inch engine as was the case last year, and basic specifications are unchanged.

CHEVY II — Four models will be available in the Chevy II whose 1968 specifications were boosted this year. The wheelbase was upped an inch to 111 and the over-all length went up 4.3 inches to 187.3. Engine options range from a basic 90-horsepower six to a 295-hp V8.

CAMARO — The Camaro, which is in the thick of the fight for favor in the specialty car market, is produced in two models in 1968, a two-door sports coupe and a convertible.

Basic specifications of the car are unchanged this year. Engine options range from a 327-cubic-inch basic engine to a 396-cubic-inch optional power plant.

CORVETTE—Chevrolet really went all out on the '68 Corvette to make it a high-performance sports car with a distinct European flavor.

★ ★ ★

The longer hoodlines, accented by clever use of side sheet metal, give the Corvette its first real face lifting since the Stingray came out five years ago.

There are plans for a removable metal roof to give the sports enthusiast more wide open space.

CHEVROLET—The big Chevrolet line will have the same wheelbase, 119 inches, as it did in 1967 but its over-all length has been upped an inch to 214.7.

There are 18 models available in the 1968 run, with power plants ranging from a 155-HP six to a 385-HP V8 option.

Eighteen models feature 15 colors, 12 of them new, with interior changes including a host of safety and comfort items, ranging from seat belts for all occupants to energy-absorbing front seat backs.

Pontiac

TEMPEST — Tempest, Pontiac's entry in the lower priced field, underwent its most extensive styling and engineering changes in seven years as it was readied for the 1968 model year.

The long-hood, short-deck car is 1½ inches wider and ½ inch lower. The two-door coupes and convertibles are built on a 112-inch wheelbase, the four-door sedans and wagons on a 116-inch basis.

The wide track, a Pontiac trademark, was upped two inches in front and one in the rear, bringing the figure in each case to 60 inches.

Built in 15 models, the car has a wider front bumper with twin headlights recessed in it. The hood is four inches longer, the rear deck six inches shorter than in the 1967 models.

The basic engine is a 250-cubic-inch job, up 20 over last year. The Tempest GTO has dual simulated air inlets on the hood as another sports car touch.

PONTIAC — The big Pontiac will be presented in 17 models in four series for 1968. Styling emphasis is on long hoodlines which sweep up to the windshield where are concealed Pontiac's window wipers.

This item, pioneered by Pontiac in 1967, is copied by several other autos in 1968, including Cadillc, Basic major specifications of the cars are unchanged, but Pontiac has length averaging an inch more in 1968.

FIREBIRD — The last car to reach the U.S. auto scene in the middle of the 1967 model run, Firebird is changed little in its 1968 version.

Two major styling changes are a new and larger instrument panel and elimination of front vent windows. The standard engine this year is a 250-cubic-inch job, up 20 over the '67 version. Options on engines run up to the 400-cubic-inch V8.

Cadillac

CADILLAC—Most of the news about the 1968 Cadillac centers on what is under the hood — a brand new engine that was six years in the making. The V8 power plant with a 472-cubic-inch displacement is rated the highest power plant of any passenger car in the world.

It develops 375 horsepower and is the only engine in the industry which has an integrated air injection emission control system built right into it, not as an additive, according to Cadillac officials.

Cadillac will be marketed in 11 models this year, one less than a year ago. The standard Cadillac features an all-new front grille, a hood that is 6½ inches longer, recessed windshield wipers and 21 color choices, 14 of them new.

The car height is up seven-tenths of an inch over last year, but other dimensions are unchanged.

The front-wheel-drive Cadillac Eldorado has some styling changes for 1968, notably outward grille panels which swing down automatically to reveal twin head lamps when the headlight switch is turned on.

★ ★ ★

The hood is up 4½ inches in length, and front fenders and bumpers have been trimmed for a more distinctive appearance.

Motor Travel Rise Seen

The U.S. Department of Transportation estimates that motor vehicle travel in the United States in 1967 will be 967 billion vehicle miles, a 3.9 per cent increase over 1966.

Data for 1966 showed passenger cars accounted for 80 per cent of travel, trucks 19 per cent with buses and motorcycles accounting for the remainder.

The report for 1966 shows that 35 per cent of travel was on main rural roads, 14 per cent on local rural roads, and 51 per cent on urban streets.

Average annual miles traveled per vehicle was estimated at 9,506 for passenger cars, 3,930 for motorcycles, 35,598 for commercial buses, and 7,725 for school buses.

Single-unit trucks averaged 9,588 miles per year while truck combination averaged 40,112 miles annually.

Padding May Coat Car Interiors by '69

Come 1969 and the interior of your new car may be covered with padding — except for the glass.

Although government safety specifications still are being drawn for the 1969 models, padding authorities at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. anticipate major additions to auto interiors to protect occupants from accidents or sudden stops.

The most significant change, they believe, could be the inclusion of head restraints as standard equipment on all new models.

Tests by safety experts have shown that head restraints (commonly miscalled headrests) markedly reduce the frequency and severity of neck injuries caused by rear-end collision.

ENTIRE AREA

Foam padding may possibly be extended to the entire area on the back of the front seats. Currently, some cars contain a strip of foam padding across the back of the front seats along the top edges.

WE JUST GAVE BACK $174,545.10 IN LOAN PAYMENTS

We call it an interest refund. Again this year we are returning 15% of the interest which each borrower paid on his loan in 1967. This money is deposited in the member's share account. As you can see, a 15% interest refund reduces our already low loan rates even further.

And Check These Services

- On every loan you receive life insurance coverage automatically and at no extra cost
- If you are selling your present car yourself, or buying a used car, you are welcome to check the prices in our copy of the dealers' guide book.
- There are no extra charges of any kind — no pre-payment penalty.
- The same low new car rates apply to used car loans, too.

Multicar Families Setting New Trends

By AP Newsfeatures

"A chicken in every pot, and a car in every garage!"

If that slogan seems a bit outdated, no wonder. As a 1932 Republican campaign motto, it was appropriate enough for the Depression, when only one family in 40 owned more than one auto.

But "a car in every garage" would make little impression on the affluent society—in which almost four out of every five families have at least one car. Maybe it should be "three cars for every home" now, when one out of five households owns more than one auto.

"The substantial trend to multicar families began in the 1950s," says William Dunkelberg of the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research.

★ ★ ★

The two- or three-car home is a product of three main trends coming to a head over the past few years. The economic boom is one obvious cause: car buying reflects the country's material well being.

SALES STILL STRONG

Sales of autos have risen dramatically during the post-war prosperity years, with corresponding rises in both car-owning households and multicar families. Car buying continues strong. The drop-off for the year 1966 could be attributed to saturation, tight money and consumer uncertainly over the future of the economy.

Prosperity also accounts for the fact that more and more auto buyers now choose new cars. In 1954, two used cars were purchased for every new car bought; now the ratio is about two new cars for every three used ones.

The second factor in the multicar trend is the higher number of working wives. More than half the families with income over $15,000 have two or more cars. Often the higher income represents a pooled sum for husband and wife—both of whom may need cars to get to work or carry out their jobs.

★ ★ ★

Even the wife who doesn't work can use a second car for trips to the shopping center—a new development which makes autos more vital than in the days when the neighborhood market reigned supreme.

NEW GENERATION

A third cause of the increase is the post-war generation—just reaching car - purchasing age.

Since many members of the post - war generation are old enough to own cars but too young to live away from home, the autos they buy increase the car - per - family ratio.

The number of multicar families may drop somewhat when the baby boom youths move out of the familial nest—taking their autos with them.

It's also becoming more common for young, single girls to have their own cars: the teenager's jalopy is no longer a masculine prerogative. (Some Detroit wits have labeled this phenomenon "six and the single girl."

GEOGRAPHY'S PART

Some interesting sidelights of the multicar fashion lie in geography.

The Far West has the highest percentage of multicar families, according to Harold Henry of Universal C.I.T. Credit Corp., an auto financing company. Greater distances between business centers could be one reason: the lowest percentage of two- and three-car households occurs in the Middle Atlantic states, where shorter distances make cars less necessary.

And it's also interesting to note that most multi-car families are concentrated in middle-size cities and their suburbs—urbanized areas with populations under three million.

Large city - suburbs regions with populations over 10 million have the fewest homes with two or more cars. As a C.I.T. Credit representative puts it, "Parking fees are so exorbitant in the big cities that it's really cheaper to rent a car."

Small Cars More Accident Prone

Small foreign autos and sports cars had 3½ times as many one-car accidents as standard-size vehicles in a study of 850 accidents on U.S. Route 66.

American compact cars were 2¼ times as liable to one-vehicle accidents as larger autos.

★ ★ ★

But the problem may lie in the driver, not the car.

Northwestern University traffic expert J. Stannard Baker says, "Generally the smaller cars are driven by young males, who account for more than their statistical share of accidents."

Chrysler Changes Called Evolutionary

The 15 cars which carry the Chrysler nameplate features chrysler nameplate feature evolutionary, rather than revolutionary changes, in the 1968 models, according to Chrysler officials.

One of the major changes is a new roof design for three hardtops, the 300 four-door hardtop and the Newport and Newport Custom models. Engine options run from a 383-cubic-inch engine as standard to an option of a hot 440 job.

Dimensions of the Chrysler line are unchanged from the 1967 run. Main styling changes are in the front and rear fenders, grilles and rear deck areas.

Plymouth Styling Is Little Changed

No major changes were made in the majority of Plymouth cars in 1968, insofar as styling was concerned.

The Fury line features styling refinements fore and aft with a new front grille, bigger rear bumper and smooth body lines.

Valiant has a new divided mesh grille and backup and tail-lights which are stacked vertically.

The Barracuda Formula S car will have a brand new 275-horsepower engine as standard equipment with the options of heavy duty front and rear springs and a heavy duty sway elimination bar.

★ ★ ★

One of Plymouth's biggest changes for 1968 is introduction of a new performance car called the Road Runner. It has a new 383 CID engine with an option of the 426 CID street hemi engine that powered Plymouths to numerous drag strip victories for the past three seasons.

SELF DESIGN

Based on the low-cost Belevedere coupe, the Road Runer offers the purchaser the opportunity to, in effect, design his own car by choosing any of several optional ornamentation packages.

★ ★ ★

In all, Plymouth will have 39 models in 1968, three more than in 1967.

'69 Models May Feature Equalizers

The vacation-loaded station wagon with rear bumper barely clearing the pavement and headlights aimed at the sky soon may be a thing of the past.

Station wagons purchased by the government in the 1969 model year must be equipped with load-leveling devices, the General Services Administration (GSA) has specified.

In the past years, features demanded by GSA, such as padded dashboards, have become standard items, so this could mean all 1969 station wagons will be equipped with load-leveling systems.

Devices now available as optional equipment combine shock absorbers with air springs in a system filled with compressed air.

★ ★ ★

To compensate for extra loading, air pressure is added to the system, either at the service station, in the same way a tire is filled, or automatically, by a small air compressor driven by the auto's engine.

Mandatory use of such devices in 1969 station wagons would quadruple current annual demand for load-leveling systems, according to Goodyear, a major supplier of the air spring portion of the systems.

Pollution Control

Most auto manufacturers are using an air pump to fulfill the U.S. law govering 1968 models with air pollution control devices.

★ ★ ★

But one maker has devised a system known as "Coppolair," which uses a controlled opening to reduce the vacuum normally built up in the inlet side of the engine.

★ ★ ★

The device reduces the amount of carbon monoxide emitted by the car.

Belts Not Used

Although 23 per cent of the one-car accident victims in a recent study had seat belts, only half that number were using them.

Auto Theft Serious Problem for Engineer

Auto theft, now third among all felonies in the United States, "poses a very serious social and moral problem to the automotive engineer," according to Edwin H. Klove Jr., engineer-in-charge of safety analysis for Fisher Body Div., General Motors Corp.

In a recent address before the Detroit Chapter of the Society of Automotive Engineers, Klove discussed the complexities of the rising auto theft rate — especially among the country's youth — and cited some of the steps the automotive industry is taking to combat this $140 million-a-year problem.

According to FBI statistics, 80 per cent of all car thefts are committed by persons under 21 and nearly two of every three arrested are under 18 years of age.

"It is, in many cases, the first illegal act in a life of crime. An easy auto theft may provide the confidence a young thief needs to perform even more serious crimes."

★ ★ ★

Most of the cars stolen by youths are used for joyriding. Since the joyrider is not concerned with the type of car he steals, he merely walks along a street or through a parking lot until he finds a car with the keys left in the ignition.

STATISTICS

Nationwide, 42 per cent of the automobiles stolen had keys in them or the ignition switch unlocked. In Detroit and other areas, this figure is considerably higher.

To counter this type of theft, all 1968 General Motors cars have a buzzer installed to alert the driver when leaving the car with the keys in the ignition.

"This serves as a reminder," Klove stated, "to remove the keys and lock the car."

★ ★ ★

If the driver would perform those two simple tasks and close the windows, "the probability that a car will be stolen is reduced by approximately 50 per cent."

Authorities agree this is the most effective way to curb the teen-age joyrider.

PROFESSIONAL THEFTS

Though youths account for 8 of 10 stolen cars, the other 20 per cent taken are thought to be the work of the professional who is bold and proficient in his work. To them, "no passenger car can be considered completely theft-proof."

To combat the professional, the auto engineer must seek to make "the task of entering and starting the car more time consuming, thereby increasing the likelihood of detection."

Professionals use many ingenious practices in their work. One method involves a set of so-called "master keys" that are readily obtainable through certain mail order houses.

By redesigning the lock cylinder on its cars, GM has increased the number of key-lock combinations to more than 2,100 on its current line. The "master keys" required to open GM's 1968 models would weigh approximately twenty pounds.

"In future years, lock cylinders will be changed in such a way that keys from one year will not fit next year's cylinders," Klove added, "thus increasing the number of keys needed and making the use of them more time consuming."

Another less sophisticated method used is force. In this case, the thief uses his tools to break the lock cylinder reinforcement and gain entry to the vehicle in a matter of seconds.

Once inside, the professional merely tampers with the ignition wires and drives away.

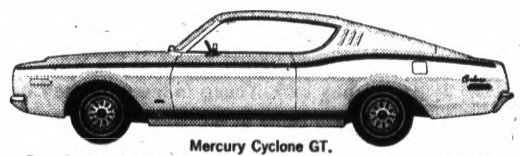
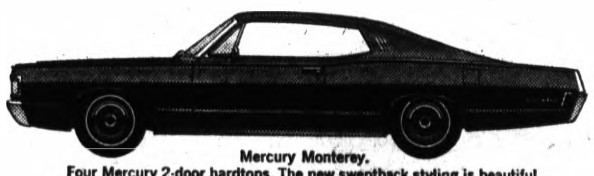
Mercury's got it. The biggest choice of 2-door hardtops in its class.

Mercury Montego MX.
Four Montego hardtops. The 116-in. wheelbase is four inches longer than 3 competitive hardtops in Montego's class. This means plenty of room for 6 people. Also, the trunk is 20% larger. You get more hardtop—period.



Mercury Cyclone GT.
Four Cyclone hardtops. You get a real family-size sports car. (Comes as a fastback or regular hardtop.) The Cyclone GT is a high-performance machine with a 302 cu. in. V-8. The springs are stiffer, the shocks are tougher, the tire treads are wider.



Mercury Monterey.
Four Mercury 2-door hardtops. The new sweptback styling is beautiful. What it does for you is beautiful, too. You don't have to scrunch down in the back seat. And although the rear window is giant sized, the high-noon sun won't beat on your neck.

Mercury Marquis.
Our Marquis hardtop rides beautifully thanks to the 7 ride secrets we borrowed from the Continental. The vinyl-covered Oxford Roof comes as standard equipment. (Others usually charge extra. But we're unlike the others. The Continental engineers keep us on our toes.)

Mercury Cougar.
Four Cougar hardtops. (Bringing our entire 2-door hardtop total to 17—more than any of our three major competitors.) Nobody else in our class has sequential turn signals. And not only that—they're standard with Cougar. Dollar for dollar, pound for pound, Cougar is America's best equipped luxury sports car.

Why would Volkswagen want to shatter a wine glass in Pontiac

Well, Caruse used to do it with his voice. So why not us?

Actually, our ultra-sonic wine glass breaker is just part of a science demonstration we're conducting to explain why a VW is made as it is and runs as it does. (For instance, the principle of twisting a torsion bar — and storing energy — is used in Volkswagen's suspension system.)

We'll also show how heat travels at different speeds through different metals by holding a thermo-conductivity race between an iron bar and one made of a magnesium-aluminum alloy. (If you decide to bet a friend on the outcome, remember that the alloy is used in making VW's lightweight engine.)

You'll find these demonstrations, and others, in a special showwagon, mounted on a Volkswagen pick-up. Afterward, you can see how these scientific principles apply by taking a test ride of any VW model you'd like to try. Our bus-shaped station wagon. Italian sport-styled Karmann Ghia. The new fastback or squareback model. Or even our homely beetle-shaped sedan. Who knows? An after-the-show test ride might change your whole attitude toward driving.

Duration of each demonstration is about 15 to 20 minutes, a bit shorter than the typical classroom lab session. Some of our equipment, however, may seem a bit more unorthodox than that used in most labs.

And there's one more thing that might make this the best science class you ever attended. No final exam.

Auto Industry Focuses on Ideas for Safety

By CHARLES C. CAIN
AP Automotive Writer

Safety is the big word in the automotive world for 1968.

Uncle Sam has some ideas on the subject. So does auto industry critic Ralph Nader. So do Henry Ford II and other auto industry leaders.

The main point out of all the hassle over auto safety is that 1968 cars should be the safest the American public ever had. They also carry higher price tags because of the safety items.

One of the main worries of the industry is how the buying public will react to the increased costs.

★ ★ ★

Central figure in the safety issue is Dr. William Haddon Jr., a graduate of Harvard Medical School and MIT, who heads the National Safety Bureau.

NAMED BY LBJ

Handpicked by President Johnson for the role of the nation's first traffic safety czar, Dr. Haddon found himself in the position of telling the auto companies—with the full backing of the administration — what they should do.

★ ★ ★

He originally issued 23 standards but withdrew three of them temporarily after auto companies and tire firms said they could not meet some of the provisions in the time allowed.

CONTROVERSIAL STANDARDS

The most controversial standard called 201, dealt with the second collision—what happens to occupants of an auto in the moments following a collision.

Auto firms objected strongly to 201 and some of them filed suits in U.S. courts to forestall implementation of the standard. It was shelved in June after government witnesses and auto company experts exchanged views on the subject, but there was general belief in Detroit that it would reappear in a year or so.

Under govermental prodding and the national publicity attendant on some 52,000 U.S. traffic deaths in 1966, the auto industry added several safety items.

★ ★ ★

- Windshield defrosting and defogging units. The latter are optional cost items on most 1968's, the former is standard.
- Motor driven windshield wipers and washers.
- Dual cylinder brake systems.
- Hydraulic brake hoses to cut possibility of leakage.

★ ★ ★

- Antiglare surfaces in a car's interior.
- Specific locations for headlamps and parking lights.
- Impact absorbing steering system.

★ ★ ★

- Steering column penetration —the column to move no more than three inches on impact.
- New standards for safety glass.
- Safer door latches and hinges.
- Rupture resistant fuel tanks.
- Elimination of simulated knockoff hubcaps and wheel covers.
- Seat belts in all forward facing seats.

The auto companies went farther than the government demanded.

General Motors, for example, recessed all its door handles so it would be virtually impossible for a person to open the door accidentally while the car was in operation.

Ford, on some of its lines, added a device installed on the luggage shelf in the rear seat. It had a series of lights which lit up whenever a taillight or brake signal light burned out.

★ ★ ★

Indicating the extent to which the auto firms went was this summary from Chrysler-Plymouth division on its 1968 features:

The following safety equipment continues to be standard on all models. Two front and two rear seat belts with reinforced lap belt anchors; inside prismatic day and night mirror; emergency warning four way flasher; windshield washers; energy absorbing steering column; dual master brake cylinder system; brake system warning light, integrated with parking brake warning light; dual ball joint mounting for inside mirror; padded sun visors; low glare windshield wiper arms and blades, outside left manual mirror.

STANDARD EQUIPMENT

The following additional items of safety equipment will be standard on all models. Back latches for front seats in two door models; front seats in two door models; impact absorbing front seat back tops; instrument panel padding extended to lower dashboard; breakaway or concealed instrument panel ash trays; non-override front door locks requiring occupants to pull up the locking knob before the door can be opened; tulip-shaped soft plastic window crank knobs, new improved fuel tank."

Chrysler's safety options—at extra cost—for 1968 include front seat head restraints; front and center passenger lap belts; front and rear shoulder belts; outside right manual mirror; outside left remote control mirror; rear window defoggers and steering wheels with padded hubs.

The other auto companies offered similar safety packages.

★ ★ ★

One big question was how much use car owners would make of the items.

SHOULDER HARNESS

The auto industry was lukewarm towards the government regulation requiring installation of shoulder harnesses on cars sold after Jan. 1.

General Motors said its tests showed that in some mock collisions the heads of dummies in the front and rear seats hit each other despite use of shoulder harnesses.

Ford put shoulder harnesses on the first couple of thousand 1968s it built but stopped doing so after the federal government conceded it was not satisfied as to the efficiency of the harnesses.

★ ★ ★

Both the government and auto companies indicated they felt more testing was needed before a final decision was made on the shoulder harnesses.

WARNING SYSTEM

One device which seems certain to cause some controversy is GM's warning system.. It means that if a driver leaves his key in the ignition switch with the driver's door open, a loud buzzer will sound until the door is closed or the key removed.

SAFETY MEASURES — Again this year, safety is a major item in the lineup of new car models. This fair motorist believes in taking full advantage of the lap belt, shoulder belt and head restraint for maximum safety.

1901 Olds Built

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (AP) — A year-long project has made Bill Kine the owner of a three-quarter-scale operating model of a 1901 Oldsmobile.

Kine began collecting parts more than a year ago for the 3½-horsepower machine which can go as fast as 30 miles an hour. It cost only $500 to build.

The standard GTO 400-cubic-inch V8 is rated at 350 horsepower with an optional 360-horsepower HO engine or a two-barrel, regular fuel version rated at 265 horsepower.

Gal Physicist Is Race Driver

By CARLOS ESCUDERO
Associated Press Staff Writer

Janet Guthrie is a top racing driver, plane pilot, sky jumper and — guess what? — a physicist working on rocket systems for a living.

Tall and slender, she has hazel eyes, light brown hair and a faint golden dusting of freckles.

Also she has a quiet manner and capable hands — capable enough to take a wrench to her own car and unbutton it all over the place.

Janet and another lovely, Liane Engeman, drove a Matra to a second-in-class finish in the tough 12-hour grind at Sebring. They also took the Rene Dreyfus cup for the winners in a French car.

RACING WOMAN — Pretty Janet Guthrie gets ready for a spin in her racer.

★ ★ ★

Janet has raced at Bridgehampton, Watkins Glen, Lime Rock, Thompson, Marlboro, Bryar and Daytona. With her Jaguar to which she ministers by necessity, she has scored two firsts, a second and a third in regional meets at Bridgehampton in the past two seasons. She was second-in-class in the 1966 Canada-America series and at the Watkins Glen 500.

MECHANICAL INNARDS

Her first love in sports cars was a 1953 XK120, somewhat the worse for wear, which she bought "because it was beautiful." At the time she knew little or nothing about road racing or the mechanical innards of a car.

"I have learned to do almost all my own mechanical work by necessity and lack of money. I tore down the engine of my 120 in the back of a station wagon. It was a first for me, but I followed the manual very carefully," she says.

At the age of 16 she read Charles Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" and was inspired to make her first parachute jump. She then learned to fly, won a private pilot's license at 17 and a commercial pilot's license at 19.

★ ★ ★

On the track she drives smartly but rather conservatively. The lady is not for burning.

HELL FOR LEATHER

She might approach the hell-for-leather type in some ways, as a competitor, but she is definitely not the leather pants type. More like silk and poplin.

The lady with the Jaguar is what used to be called a gentlewoman, and in spite of the roaring Jaguar, the helmet and the overalls, she is a gentle woman.

Test Your Car IQ

Test your knowledge about cars by marking the following statements true or false:

1. Self-propelled steam vehicles — ancestors of the automobile — appeared as early as 1770. ———
2. The automobile itself was invented by Henry Ford. ———
3. In the early 1900s, car bodies were made entirely of wood. ———
4. U.S. auto production was virtually halted during both world wars. ———
5. More than half of U.S. auto workers are employed in one state — Michigan. ———
6. Your car's wheels are turned by the up-and-down motion of the pistons. ———
7. Engine "knock" occurs when shock absorbers fail to cushion the engine from jolts. ———
8. There are two spark plugs for each cylinder in your car's engine. ———
9. The greatest number of traffic deaths occurs when roads are dry and weather clear. ———
10. Due to higher turnpike speeds, the accident rate on throughways is twice that on regular roads. ———
11. Passing on a curve or hill is the most common cause of auto deaths. ———
12. More accidents occur between midnight and 1 a.m. than at any other time. ———
13. The top speed for cars running on a straight line for a measured distance is about 200 miles per hour. ———
14. Sweden has more cars per capita than any other European country. ———

ANSWERS

1. True.

Safety Car Travels by Trailer

SYDNEY (AP) — An Australian - designed "survival car," with steering wheels at the sides of the driver's seat, has traveled 10,000 miles in Australia this year — on a trailer.

The reason for the movement by trailer is that the unorthodox steering system, which does away with the steering column, has not been approved for licensing on Australian roads. The actual driving of the auto has been limited to a relatively few miles on private tracks.

The car has other features besides the steering designed to save lives and injuries, among them: Safety seating, backlash head rests, seat belts, supplementary door locks, foam on the dashboard. It's designed so that in a smash, the body will not crumple or the doors fly open.

Its designers believe the non-crumple body is safer than a collapsible front which some safety experts say cushions the crash.

★ ★ ★

The auto has been shown in most of the main cities of Australia and has attracted hundreds of sightseers.

It's a 1965 Ford Fairmont automatic which was modified at Sydney Technical College under sponsorship of the Combined Insurance Company of America.

The company's managing director in Australia, Robert A. Freimann, said the features in the Australian survival car would add less than 200 Australian dollars ($224 U.S.) to the cost of a mass-produced auto.

One cunning feature about this car is that the driver just has to have his seat belt fastened. The ignition system is so wired that the motor won't start unless the driver's seat belt is connected.

The seats are bolted to the floor and all have safety belts fitted to the seat instead of to the center pillar and floor.

Then there's a special lock for the doors, designed to keep them closed in a smash. You push down the normal door lock, and this bolts the door into the lower frame of the auto.

There are plates behind the engine designed to keep it out of the front seat in a smash, and a steel tube to stop the roof from collapsing in a rollover.

The steering arrangement, says Clifford M. Tempest of the Technical School, "is frankly experimental, and while functional, is not the final answer to an acceptable alternative for the standard post steering.

In this car, the steering column has been eliminated, and the driver steers by two wheels, one on each side of his seat.

RIGID REINS

He can use either wheel or both together. If he wants to turn left, he turns the lefthand wheel towards him, or the right-hand wheel away from him — the same as you'd drive a horse and buggy if you had rigid reins. The wheels are geared to a standard steering box.

Freimann said that Australia, with 8.5 road deaths in 1965 for each 10,000 registered vehicles, had a higher accident rate than the United States, Canada or New Zealand.

SIDE WHEEL — Odd steering in the Australian survival car is demonstrated by R. A. Freimann, resident vice president for Australia and New Zealand of the Combined Insurance Co. of America.

Buick Restyles Intermediates

A completely new body in the intermediate line is the high point of Buick's 1968 offerings.

The new styling for the Special Deluxe, Skylark and GS series features contoured sweeplines, longer hoods, shorter decks and a shorter wheelbase for the two-door models.

Wheelbase for the coupes was trimmed 3 inches to 112 in comparison with last year's offerings.

The sedan body at 116 inches is an inch longer than in 1967.

Styling highlights for the Buick line include:

ELECTRA 225—A twin air intake grille and new hood top molding have been added along with the recessed windshield wipers which are found in many parts of the General Motors line in 1968.

Tail lamps are recessed in a new rear bumper.

The Electra chassis has been redesigned in rear suspension geometry to give reduced road shock and improved stability.

RIVIERA—The classic profile lines of roof and side paneling have been retained but hoods, fenders, grille and bumpers are new plastic set deeply within a steel frame.

Riviera continued its innovation of headlights concealed in the outboard edges of the front grille.

SPECIAL DELUXE—This intermediate features an all new body with new front, rear and side treatment to distinguish this series from others in the line.

The hood and front fenders are the longest ever used in the Buick Special series.

ENGINES — Buick's power plants range from a 250-cubic-inch inline six-cylinder engine with a single barrel carburetor to a 430-inch quadrajet carburetor available on the Wildcat, Electro and Riviera.

A new engine this year is the 350-cubic-inch V8 in two- and four-barrel carburetor versions.

All 35 models which carry the Buick nameplate in the 1968 run have new side marker lamps that operate with headlights.

U.S. Leads Truck Field

World motor truck registration figures for 1966 show the United States has 39.2 per cent of the world's truck inventory, according to the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

★ ★ ★

Since 1922, U.S. truck registrations have increased 640 per cent with a total of 16,100,000 in service in 1967. However, the nation's dominance in the truck field has been slowly reduced through the years, association records show.

In 1925, U.S. truck registrations of 2,569,734 represented 72 per cent of the world total.

By 1950, the nation's fleet of trucks had increased to 8,598,962, but its percentage of world trucks had dropped to 51.5.

The U.S. share dropped below 50 per cent for the first time in 1952 when the nation had 9,198,836 trucks on the road.

Industry Pairs Damsels, Cars

The auto company that tries to sell its product without a fetching damsel nearby is almost as extinct as the dodo bird. Whatever the media, the curvacious cutie has become standard equipment, just like the radio and heater.

While this would be easily explained in terms of the male buyer, it seems that women, too, find strictly feminine reasons for watching gals in the commercials, perhaps for self-comparison.

Although a beautiful girl gracing a new car model is not a new idea, the auto companies are increasingly using women actually to sell their product.

Lincoln-Mercury was one of the earlier exponents of this system with delightful but decorous Julia Meade.

★ ★ ★

Similarly, Chevrolet for a long time fielded a type of subdued feminine appeal in songstress-clothes horse Dinah Shore. They also had "looker" — driver Betty Skelton extolling its products in the trade and among buffs.

REBELLION LEADER

For the last two years everyone has become increasingly aware of Pam Austin, who urged all to join her in the "Dodge Rebellion." She has just been replaced by brunet Joan Parker, whose "Dodge Fever" the company hopes will become equally famous.

Lincoln-Mercury is betting on both beauty and talent in using professional golfer Sharon Moran in various sales promotion and publicity events.

American Motors is launching a new sports car this year. Naturally, it's using an ambassadress, Judy Rockley, to spearhead its publicity program. Carrying a spear, and garded in Carrying a spear, and garbed in rently touring newspaper city rooms and other likely news points all over the country.

If anyone thinks that cars and gals aren't surefire mates they need only inspect any of the myriad racing and auto buff periodicals from drag racing news tabloids to the host of thick slicks.

Racing drivers, like bold knights of old, wear their colors on their helmets.

Here's where the show starts...and ends!

And the best place to enjoy the show is right inside Dodge Charger. That's where you take command of the shape that's attracting crowds everywhere. And the seats are choice. Beautiful, foam-padded bucket seats. Performing under the hood, a mighty V8 engine, standard. Other Charger attractions include door pockets for handy storage and disappearing headlights. Why not stop at the Dodge display right now? You'll see all the new ways to catch Dodge Fever . . . Dart, Coronet, Polara, Monaco and Charger. (If there's too big a crowd, go see your Dodge Dealer. He can show you why catching Dodge Fever is fun.)

And now that you've got DODGE fever put the show on the road.

Here's Help for Women Drivers in Distress

By CHET CUNNINGHAM

What's so hard about driving a car? Turn on the switch, it starts. Put it into gear and it moves. Push the brake and it stops. Easy! But ladies, what do you do when something goes wrong?

★ ★ ★

Here are five common driving emergencies that you may sometime face. The more you know about them, the quicker you'll be on your way again—and the safer you and your car will be!

DEAD ENGINE

Has your engine ever quit on you as you were driving along? More often with cars two or three years old than with new cars, something goes wrong temporarily in the ignition or carburetion.

Say you are on a freeway or parkway, driving at 55 miles per hour. What do you do?

Your first notice of the problem will be a sudden slowing down of your car. When you realize the engine is dead, shift into neutral and try to start the engine. Usually it will start and you can continue driving. If it does not, watch closely in your rear view mirror for traffic.

You will be slowing down now, interfering with the normal traffic flow. Signal for a right turn, and move over a lane at a time until you are in the slowest lane or to a point where you can pull all the way off the roadway.

Now, try to start the car again. If the car still won't start, check your fuel gauge with the ignition key left in the On position. Do you have any gas?

If you can't get the car started, open the hood of your car, or tie a kerchief on the radio antenna, as a distress signal.

FLAT TIRE

No driving emergency strikes fear into a woman more frequently than a flat tire, even though tires don't go flat or blow out as often now as they used to. If you drive a car one or two years old, chances are you will never have a flat—but then again you might hit a nail in the road next week.

You will know you have a flat tire by the different way the car handles, or by the noise.

When you suspect a flat, signal a right hand turn and move all the way off the road. Never stop in a traffic lane for fear of damaging a ti by running it while flat for a few hundred feet.

★ ★ ★

If it is at night, try to put out a red flare 300 feet behind your car, to warn oncoming traffic. At least turn on your left turning light.

Then look at the flat. If it was caused by a slow leak, you may be able to inflate the tire by using a can of pressurized air and tire sealant.

You take the seal off the can, remove the valve cap from the valve stem on the tire and press the can down firmly on the valve stem. Compressed air inside the can then flows into the tire, inflating it to about half the normal pressure most tires carry.

This much air is usually enough for you to drive to the nearest filling station to have the tire changed. Bottled air won't work, however, on blowouts or large leaks.

OVERHEATED RADIATOR

On a hot day, or as your car gets older, you may find yourself with an overheated radiator. How can you tell? First you may smell it. It is a wet-feathers type of smell. Or you may hear the radiator boiling. If your car has a temperature gauge, it will show in the too hot range, and if you have a heat indicator light it will glow red.

★ ★ ★

If the radiator gets violently hot you may see steam whisping up from the hood of your car, and spray may even shower your windshield. If this happens, or if you know the engine is too hot from other signs, stop at the first filling station, or at the side of the road, well out of the flow of traffic.

Do not take off the radiator cap right away lest you be burned by an eruption of boiling water. If you can hear the radiator boiling or know it's hot, let the car sit for a while and cool.

If you think you'll need water for your radiator, go get it while the engine is cooling down. Take your car keys with you, and lock the car before you leave.

If you intend to ask for a ride with a passing motorist, stand beside your stalled car. Two gallons of water should be enough.

★ ★ ★

Once the engine has cooled down, use a towel or a car blanket in opening the radiator cap. Turn it slowly to the right. When you hear a hiss, stop. This is excess pressure coming out. If water bubbles out with the steam and soaks the towel, close the cap and wait a while longer.

After the cap is off, start the engine and pour the water slowly into the radiator. This is to prevent damage to the engine.

NO BRAKES?

What you do when your brakes fail depends on your situation. In a downtown area with cars all around you and a stop light ahead, there are two choices: Try to run the light without clobbering anyone, holding your horn down during the whole time; or try to hit something that looks inexpensive!

On a city residential street you have other choices.

Try to shift down into low gear if you have a manual shift, or a manual-automatic transmission.

★ ★ ★

Try to scrape your front tire along the curb. It will act as a brake for your car at low speeds.

If you see a small hill, coast up it until you slow to a near stop, then turn off your engine and yank on the emergency brake.

On some cars the emergency brake will work when regular brakes fail. You should be able to stop your car at 25 miles per hour with the emergency brake in a reasonable distance. Try it.

Do not shift into reverse, this can ruin your transmission.

AN ACCIDENT!

Let's hope you never have an accident. (Statistics prove that one out of every two adult drivers has had a reportable car crash!)

But if you do, what should you do next? Here are eleven suggestions to help you obey the law, and to protect yourself against unwarranted lawsuits:

● Stop. The law demands that you stop at or near the scene. Hitting and running carries stiff penalties in every state and nation.

● Place flares around the wreck. If it is a high-speed highway, be sure that there are flares a half mile on either side of the crash scene. This gives drivers time to slow down and avoid creating more crashes.

● Assist the injured, as required by law. Don't move a victim — you might aggravate his injuries. Try to stop any serious bleeding. A pad of cloth on the wound and hand pressure will often stop serious bleeding.

● Call police or ambulance. If anyone is injured, police should be notified. If an ambulance is needed quickly, see if you can spot a driver with a two-way radio who can call the police direct. Be sure to give the correct address to police and ambulance.

● Stay at the scene until the police arrive and you have answered their questions.

★ ★ ★

● Identify yourself to others. You should identify yourself to police, the other drivers involved, other law officers, the coroner, doctors, others in authority.

● The police are the only ones who can order your car moved, for any reason. If necessary, you may use the wrecker you choose to haul your car away.

★ ★ ★

● Make your own written record on the spot of what happened. This kind of record is very good legal evidence later if there is a suit. Put down the time of day, condition of road, the visibility, weather, density of traffic. Get witnesses to give you statements about who hit whom and what happened.

● Draw a diagram of where the cars were, where they traveled, what lights or signals there were. Measure any skid marks by stepping them off. Have the witnesses sign their statements.

★ ★ ★

● Don't sign anything yourself, except a traffic citation if an officer asks you to. You are not required to sign anything else or to give damaging evidence to police.

● File an accident report. In many states you must file a report if there was any damage or injury. Find out about the law in your state.

★ ★ ★

● Notify your insurance company as soon as you can. The insurance man will take over and help you to make your insurance claim and to get your car put back together.

Emergencies? Every driver has them. Buy by taking good care of your car, by driving legally and intelligently, you can cut down on the amount of emergencies you must cope with.

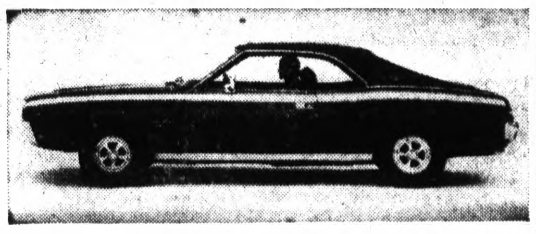
AMC Is Counting on Its Sports Entry

AMC is counting heavily on a sporty, brand new personalized car to get it back into the thick of the auto sales race. Named the Javelin, it is tangling head-on with Mustang, Camaro and the other specialty cars already in the field.

The rest of AMC's line, Ambassador, American and Rebel, got only minor styling changes in 1968 models as AMC concentrated its energies and resources on getting an entry into the so-called youth market.

AMC's idea was to come up with a low-priced basic car and leave it up to the individual customer to doll it up as much as he wanted with power options and accessories.

The Javelin built on a 109-inch wheel base is being produced in only one model, a sports hardtop with the long hood and short deck features associated with other cars in its class.



NEW FROM AMC — A twin Venturi grille, long hood and massive bumper fully integrated with body contours highlight the front styling of American Motors' new two-door sports hardtop, the Javelin.

★ ★ ★

It has no vent windows, about 3,688 square inches of glass area and a basic instrument panel that is one-piece, injection-molded plastic with heavy safety padding overlays.

BASIC ENGINE

The basic engine is a 145-horsepower six but options are available up to a 280-horsepower V8.

Indicating AMC's bid for favor from the youthful buyer, the Javelin has disc brakes, rally stripes, rear traction bars as an option and various other high-performance options.

AMC's Ambassador, Rebel and American cars have the same basic specifications as in 1967, with the exception of an inch more leg room.

★ ★ ★

The Ambassador features wide molding across the rear of the car with vertical dual lens taillights as an extra safety feature.

NEW ROOF

The American has a new roof with lower, sleeker contours.

On the safety front, four seat belts remain standard in AMC cars.

"Two front shoulder belts, plus front and rear mid-passenger seat belts are installed in all cars where applicable as early running additions and will be charged for as optional extra," says AMC.

★ ★ ★

That means these items would not be in the first 1968 cars but would be on all built after Jan. 1, 1968, with the customer paying the tab.

All AMC 1968 model cars are being equipped with an exhaust-emission control system that meets federal standards.

Big Change in Coronet

Dodge's entry in the intermediate field, the Coronet, is one of the most changed cars of the 1968 offerings. It got a new body which at 206 inches bumper to bumper is three inches longer than in 1967 models and lower.

The styling focuses on soft flowing upper and lower surfaces to achieve an aerodymic, forward-thrusting look. The hood has been flattened and the front grille recessed.

Called Dodge's bread and butter car, the Coronet accounted for 35 per cent of the division's sales when it was introduced in 1965 and it raised the ante to 38 per cent last year.

At the low-priced compact end of the Dodge line, a GT Sport model was added, with a hot new 340-cubic-inch engine as its basic power plant.

Dodge's Charger came in for some changes in the 1968 version as the rear of the car was given a chopped appearance which stressed its competition oriented look.

UNBROKEN LINES

The roofline appearance was that of a semifastback with unbroken lines. It is four inches longer over-all at 208 inches.

Polara and Monaco expanded their line to move into the traditional low-priced field with two new entries called the Polara and Polara 500.

Dodge wil have 53 models in the '68 runs with nine engine choices running from the 170 CID six to a 4-barrel, 440 CID.

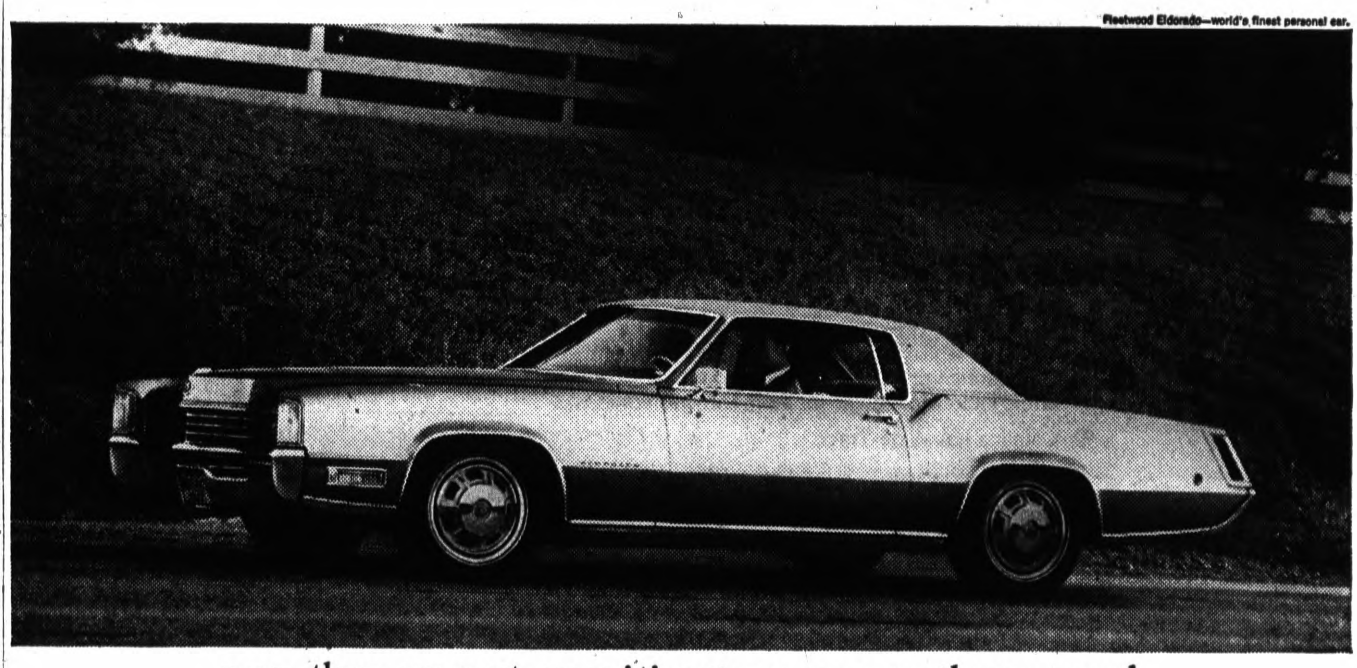
It makes especially heavy use of crash padding in dash panels to protect knees and legs as part of its over-all saftey package.

Cadillac Hardtop Sedan deVille.

The most elegant cars at the show



Fleetwood Eldorado—world's finest personal car.

are the most exciting cars on the road.

Motoring surprises in abundance will reward your inspection of the brilliantly new 1968 Cadillac at the Automobile Show.

Refined new styling marks the ten conventional Cadillac models, as well as the fabulous Fleetwood Eldorado, world's finest personal car.

Inside, you'll see new interior luxury and appointments unsurpassed by any other car in all the world . . . as well as a host of important new safety advancements. And at the show you'll learn about Cadillac's new 472 V-8 engine—the biggest, smoothest V-8 ever put into passenger car production.

But only after you visit your authorized Cadillac dealer and get behind the wheel, will you discover the greatest "inside story" in fine car history. For once on the road, Cadillac's new elegance goes into high-spirited action, unlike anything you've ever experienced in a luxury automobile.

You accelerate, pass and cruise with amazing ease and unbelievable quiet. Improvements in the suspension system and in Cadillac's variable ratio power steering provide a new dimension in riding comfort and driving response.

For 1968, the big luxury car news is Cadillac—Standard of the World, at the show or on the road.

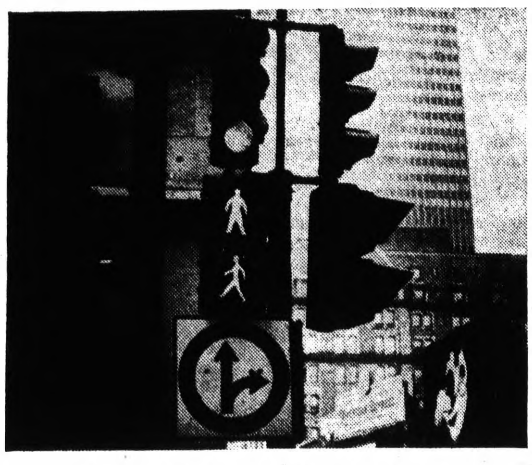
Pictogram Traffic Signs Break Language Barriers

The driver of the future, whizzing along in a super-sophisticated auto, may be reading road signs couched in primitive sign language.

Pictograms — internationally accepted symbols that replace the usual lettered signs — are already in use on roads in Europe, the Soviet Union and several Afro-Asian nations. Latin America uses a picture system, and "sign language" has recently been adopted by Canada, Great Britain and Japan.



Illustrated Sign Post In Montreal

One New York organization, the International Committee for Breaking the Language Barrier, wishes the U.S. would join the pictogram converts.

"Our safety program should be international in scope," says Soichi Kato, director of the committee." We have to consider what will happen when more and more foreign tourists flood our roads — and find they can't read the road signs."

Off the highways, an international vocabulary of symbols could be a godsend to the American mechanic looking for the "start" switch on a Soviet-made machine, a boon to the tourist hunting for a first-aid station or police office.

END BARRIERS

International affairs aside, pictograms might also end language difficulties within a nation. In the U.S. territory of Puerto Rico, Spanish road signs baffle U.S. tourists; in India, residents who don't understand all of the country's 17 languages may be out of luck on occasion.

But pictograms can cause problems when the message to be given is too long, weighty or abstract for easy symbolizing.

One sign in use on European streets pictures a small one-wheel wagon coupled to an auto. This simple symbol is supposed to convey a formidably complicated prohibition—"closed to all motor vehicles drawing a trailer other than a semitrailer or a single-wheel trailer."

★ ★ ★

Kato says: "The first step in our campaign must be the testing and reevaluation of signs already in use."

Complicated or unclear pictograms are a hazard on high-speed U.S. roads, especially when the pictures take more time to decipher than conventional lettering.

The second problem for the sign-language advocates is the rate of change which American drivers and government pocketbooks will stand.

Kato proposes gradual installation of pictograms with conventional signs attached — but the Federal Bureau of Public Roads apparently fears that even a slow change-over on America's vast roadways would cost a substantial sum.

★ ★ ★

So far, the pictogram's progress here seems to be limited to a few "no entry" symbol signs on New York and Washington streets and some letters of interest from scattered government officials.

★ ★ ★

Traffic lights, of course, are a highly successful form of pictogram — but even this well-known stop-go symbol isn't universal. Chinese Red Guards, with a fine ideological logic, recently demanded that the standard pattern be reversed — to let red stand for "go."

DUAL PURPOSE — This sign really separates the cars from the camels. It directs automobile traffic one way and camels the other near the Khyber Pass in Afghanistan.

U.S. Has 100 Million Drivers

Licensed drivers in the United States now exceed 100 million, according to estimates released by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads.

The record total of 100,959,000 drivers surpasses the total number of U.S. inhabitants in 1915 when the population was 100,549,000.

The largest group of drivers is between the ages of 20 and 24, which accounts for 12 per cent of the nation's total. Drivers in the 25 to 29 age group comprise 10.6 per cent of the total, followed by the 40 to 44 age group with 10.5 per cent.

The District of Columbia has the highest ratio of licensed drivers to registered motor vehicles with 1.48 drivers per vehicle.

PONTIAC CATALINA

1. Compare engines. Catalina's standard V-8 is 400 cubic inches in regular- or premium-gas editions.
2. Catalina has Wide-Track.
3. You get a big-car 121-inch wheelbase.
4. Compare styling. Catalina has slick hidden wipers, vinyl rub rail and arrogant split grille.
5. Compare resale value. Catalina's traditionally is the highest in its class.

ONE OF THE SO-CALLED LOW-PRICED CARS

1. About 100 cubic inches less than Catalina. But it balances out. The car isn't nearly as big, either.
2. They've caught on to Wide-Track. But the first curve will show you they haven't caught up.
3. 119 inches. If you don't think two inches makes a big difference, ride in a Catalina.
4. Give it a year or two.
5. One look will convince you to buy nothing but Catalinas.

For the same money, you can buy a lot less car.

Opening lead—♣ K

By OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

What would you do as East after your partner opened the king of clubs? If your partner's lead meant that his suit was headed by either ace-king or king-queen, you would undoubtedly discard a high diamond.

JACOBY

After all, you would look mighty silly if you trump your partner's trick, and you would be entitled to assume that his suit was headed by ace-king.

If East doesn't trump the king of clubs, South wins the trick with his ace, draws trumps and winds up locing one trick each in clubs, spades and diamonds.

If East and West lead ace from ace-king and king from king-queen, East knows enough to trump that first club.

If he proceeds to lead ace and another diamond, the defense will wind up with four trump tricks and two aces. If he leads back a spade, the defense won't do as well but at least they will set the declarer.

South will complain about bad luck. East and West will congratulate each other on the fact that they have decided to lead ace from ace-king.

We don't claim complete success for this improved defensive convention. It isn't so outstanding and so important that you are going to gain every time you get the chance to use it.

It also has the disadvantage that the ambiguous king lead has been part and parcel of almost every bridge player's kit since the days of whist and that you are likely to forget and lead incorrectly for awhile or your partner may not recognize the meaning of your ace lead; but if you adopt this procedure and work with it for awhile, you won't get confused by it and you will wind up taking more tricks when you are defending.

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
	2 ♥	Pass	2 N.T.
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	5 ♥	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠ 2 ♥ J 4 ♦ K 10 9 5 4 3 ♣ 7 5 4 3
What do you do now?

A—If you have confidence in your partner, raise him to six hearts. Your jack-four of hearts and singleton spade should be of value. However, we wouldn't blame you for passing.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of rebidding three hearts, your partner rebids to three spades. What do you do now?

Answer Tomorrow

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNEY OMARR
For Thursday

"The wise man controls his destiny . . . Astrology points the way."

ARIES (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19): There is apt to be a stir at work. Past commitments, promises are revised. Changes are due. Don't act on impulse. Stick with voice of experience. That's right choice.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 - May 20): Some friends appear pugnacious. Stick to beliefs. Those who mean most to you will remain loyal. As for the others—you may be better off without them. Message clear by tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Strength derived from home base. Intensified activity depicted in career angle — be a self-starter. Know that you will get backing from loved ones. Stress independence and inventiveness.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Accent today on immediate problems rather than long-range projects. Get caught up on calls, messages, correspondence. A short journey may prove profitable.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Good time to study assets. You can turn talents to profit. Key is versatility. Don't hang on to one method. Show that you are flexible, that you understand changing times.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): You may not receive cooperation expected. Know this — and depend upon your own abilities. Take initiative. Follow through where contracts, partnerships enter picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Some may insist that you take sides in quarrel, issue. Refrain from this unless facts are on the table. Don't take implications resulting from gossip, rumors lightly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Be patient and thorough where hopes, wishes are concerned. Be receptive. If you force issues, you could lose out. Calm, confident attitude likely to win the day.

SAGGITARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Although circumstances may appear favorable, take nothing for granted. Be perceptive. Read between the lines. Find out why. Study motives.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Your awareness of responsibility is highlighted. Today you can prove maturity, capability. Not necessary to travel far. Answers you seek can be obtained by studying essentials.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Questions about expenditures likely to arise. Involves mate, partner. Day when something goes out of your life. You replace loss. Don't panic. Let the past go. Look to future.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20): Allies tend to take initiative. They also expect you to speak up, act. Nothing halfway today. All the way or nothing. Some people try to annoy you. Maintain poise, dignity.

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — During the high winds one afternoon, a woman chased what appeared to be a small black dog across the parking lot of an Amarillo shopping center.

As onlookers watched the race she caught the object, picked it up, dusted it off and put it on her head. The wind had lifted her wig.

Mayor Cites Progress, Setbacks in 1967

By BOB WISLER

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr., in his annual address on Pontiac affairs during the preceeding year, outlined progress in a number of areas and made a strong plea for cooperation in meeting problems in 1968. Taylor delivered his address at last night's City Commission meeting.

Taylor, in making his fourth annual State of the City address, also reported large disappointments during the year and labled adequate financing the city's most acute problem.

He pointed out steps taken by the city in providing this financing; in construction of utility systems, drains, streets and roads; in updating traffic patterns and street lighting; in attempts to rejuvenate the downtown area; and in providing new housing.

Although not specifically spelled out the biggest disappointment alluded to was the failure of the Taubman plan, counted on at the beginning of 1967 as the impetus for redevelopment of the downtown area.

★ ★ ★

A. Alfred Taubman, an Oak Park developer, had an agreement with the city for much of the year to bring two large department stores to the downtown area for construction of new facilities.

"As the deadline for the expiration of this agreement approached, it seemed certain that two major, nationally known retailers would locate in the new complex," Taylor said.

"However, at the last moment, top-level decisions on the part of the retailers' management changed the course and this eliminated the interest of Mr. Taubman, even though he had expended thousands of dollars on plans and proposals," the mayor said.

He said the city is now looking for developers to take over the downtown urban renewal land.

Almost apprehensively, Taylor called for strong steps by all citizens to avoid recurrences of last summer's civil disturbances.

NEEDS OF CENTRAL CITY

"If our city and its immediate suburban area are to be spared the turmoil and chaos in the future, of the type experienced last summer, it will be done by faith, exercising both intelligence and good will as to the needs of the central city," he said.

"Those who really care about our community will come forward with all they have to correct the ills and restore confidence in our future," he said.

"In 1968, Pontiac will need, more than ever before, understanding citizens —businessmen, large retailers and industry — who will appreciate the important, indispensable part they must play in deciding the positive steps and action to be taken in going forward with the ultimate goal of providing employment, housing and rebuilding comprehensively our retail business area to the very best of our ability," the mayor said.

Romney Favors Hanoi-Saigon Talks in Viet

From Our News Wires

SALEM, N.H. — Gov. Romney of Michigan wants direct peace talks between Hanoi and Saigon to end the war in Vietnam, and says the struggle is not being properly waged militarily.

Romney, winding up a one-week swing through the White Mountains, campaigning for votes in the March 12 presidential primary in New Hampshire, also cautioned the Saigon government to watch its words and its deeds.

Speaking at a news conference here yesterday, the Michigan governor said:

"My general feeling is that we have relied too heavily on 'search and destroy' rather than 'clear and hold' in Vietnam."

★ ★ ★

Romney warned the government in Saigon to "recognize that other nations are losing lives and sacrificing a great deal, and that the international community has a great deal at stake, here, too."

Romney also said he believed that the people of South Vietnam, in supervised, free elections, should indicate what form of government they want, and that the United States ought to abide by the decision, even if the vote were favorable to communism.

U.S. COLONEL KILLED — The body of Col. John D. Webber Jr., 47, lies on a stretcher after he was slain by machine-gun fire yesterday in Guatemala. He was the apparent victim of a wave of politico-gangster violence ravaging the Central American country. Webber, from Houston, Tex., was the head of the U.S. military group in Guatemala since 1966. Other men in the photo are Guatemalan firemen who came to the aid of Webber. (Story, Page A-2.)

War, Domestic Spending Plans to Be Disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson gives the nation tonight his formula for balancing the financial demands of the Vietnam war against the need to curb crime in the streets and to rehabilitate riot-breeding city slums.

The President is expected to reiterate in his nationally televised State of the Union message to a joint session of Congress that he is exploring every avenue that might lead to peace.

But advance indications were that North Vietnam's latest stated conditions for opening peace talks—a halt in U.S. bombing of the North and "other acts of aggression"—still was under exhaustive examination.

To an election-year Congress already breathing fire about any increase in spending, the President is expected to disclose that expenditures will be $11 billion higher—possibly a little more—for administrative purposes than in the current fiscal year ending June 30.

For complete details on television coverage of President Johnson's State of the Union address tonight, see page D-15

★ ★ ★

Republicans are prepared to respond at once to Johnson's proposals. GOP congressional leaders have slated a news conference for one-half hour after Johnson concludes his speech, and eight Republican governors will jointly discuss the message with newsmen tomorrow morning.

A new "unified" budget, taking into account for the first time income and outgo from huge government trust funds, was said to be geared to a "significant drop" below the $18-billion or $19-billion deficit for this year.

Sources reported yesterday the total spending program definitely will be below $190 billion for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Administrative spending — the basis most commonly used before the advent of the unified budget — was said to run between $145 billion and $150 billion, compared with the current fiscal year total of between $136 billion and $137 billion.

City Defers Action on Property Tax Cut

As far as city commissioners are concerned the city is not out of the income tax legal thicket yet.

Last night, after considerable discussion, they decided not to pass a resolution calling for a 3-mill property tax cut.

The cut was promised by commissioners last year contingent on successful passage of an income tax ordinance.

Although Oakland County Circuit Court Judge William J. Beer recently declared the tax valid, income tax foes are hard at work attempting to overturn that decision.

★ ★ ★

Robert D. Coon, attorney representing Cecil C. Mullinix, who engineered a petition drive to force a referendum election on the vote, this morning said papers would be filed with the State Court of Appeals attempting to halt any further collection of income tax money.

APPEAL FILED

Coon and his law partner, Robert D. Cunningham, have filed an appeal with the court of appeals seeking to overturn a Beer decision that paved the way for collection of Pontiac income taxes.

The commission last night asked Director of Law Sherwin M. Birnkrant to attempt in the public interest to seek an early hearing in the court of appeals.

The question to be decided by that court is whether Judge Beer erred in not letting Mullinix's attorneys defend the validity of nominating petitions seeking the election.

★ ★ ★

Beer said Mullinix did not have the right to intervene in the case thus shutting his attorneys off from defending the petitions, which were declared invalid by Beer.

'SHOULD NOT SPEND'

District 4 Commissioner Leslie H. Hudson said the city should not spend any income tax funds until it was certain that the income tax is collectable.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. said the commission feels bound by the promise to cut the property tax if the income tax holds up.

But, he said, because of the seeming uncertainty right now of the validity of the income tax, cuts in the city's general operating budget could be forthcoming.

District 2 Commissioner Robert C. Irwin said it would be presumptive to authorize the property tax cut at this time in view of the legal fight.

Housing Project Purchase Authorized by Commission

City commissioners last night authorized the purchase of the 72-unit Crystal Beach housing project in the southwest section of the city.

The commission, by a 5-2 vote, authorized City Manager Joseph A. Warren to spend $57,500 to purchase the units, called the most delapidated in the city.

The project was built as emergency housing during World War II by the federal government and was sold to private owners in 1956.

Owners last year offered the project to the city at half of its value, to be determined by different independent appraisals.

★ ★ ★

District 2 Commissioner Robert C. Irwin and District 5 Commissioner John A. Dugan voted against the measure.

CODE ENFORCEMEENT

Irwin said the city could be vigorously persuing code enforcement against the owners to force them to make the units habitable.

He said the purchase of such housing could lead to similar requests by groups who objected to the buildings in their areas and foresaw considerable costs of maintenance and repair.

Under terms of the proposed sale the city would have to eliminate the housing within three years.

Irwn said upkeep could be $500 per unit, or $34,500 and demolition of the units would cost $30,000.

District 4 Commissioner Leslie H. Hudson said, "It's a question of how you spend money, how much cancer you want to cut out."

He noted that the funds would come from the capital improvement fund, which is solvent, and said corrective action, or code enforcement, would only lengthen the life of the units.

"We're talking about a cost of $800 per unit . . . This (the price) certainly tells me we should get it out of the city," he said.

Hudson said the city has many times bought structures for demolition on an individual basis. "Now we are doing it on a 72-unit basis," he said.

District 6 Commissioner Wesley J. Wood countered Dugan's argument that the city had not been involved in this type of transaction before.

"There are a lot of things we haven't done before that we've been doing. I think it is time we move and clea think it is time we move and clean up some of these slums."

Owners of the housing agreed to sell the project after the Internal Revenue Service authorized a income tax deduction for them if they would donate half the cost to the city.

Birmingham Teacher Talks Reach 2nd Tentative Pact

A marathon negotiating session yesterday at a Bloomfield Township motel led to the second tentative contract agreement this school year for teachers in the Birmingham school district.

The pact, between representatives of the board of education and the Birmingham Education Association (BEA), was reached at around 2:30 a.m. Details were not disclosed.

A last crucial hurdle must be cleared before the agreement takes effect and that is ratification by the two parties. Previously, a tentative settlement was reached Nov. 11, but rejected in a vote of BEA members.

Contract talks began early yesterday afternoon, and cut short last night's regularly scheduled board meeting.

A crowd of around 200 jammed the Baldwin School gymnasium to hear the board's scheduled discussion on the possibility of unilaterally adopting an interim salary schedule and calendar for the rest of the school year, pending settlement.

However, Board President Pell Hollingshead reported last night that negotiations were in a "very tender" stage.

Mild Days Ahead, Says Weatherman

The weatherman's crystal ball forecasts some mild winter days immediately ahead for Michigan.

Except for expected light snow or rain tonight and tomorrow in northern areas of the state, the U.S. Weather Bureau predicts above-normal temperatures and no more precipitation through the weekend.

The mercury will slip to a low of 20 to 25 tonight and aim for the mid-30s tomorrow. Skies will be partly cloudy through Friday.

The low temperature in downtown Pontiac prior to 8 a.m. was 10. The mercury reached 21 by 12:30 p.m.

Annexation Bid Defeated

A large turnout of voters yesterday in Wolverine Lake Village and Commerce Township blocked their annexation into the City of Walled Lake.

While the village and township residents expressed a definite no in most areas, city voters voiced an overwhelming yes.

Simple majorities in the township and the two areas of the village up for annexation and in the city were needed to carry the proposal.

Of the 885 registered voters in the 10 square miles of the township up for annexation, 594 voted no and 92 voted yes.

★ ★ ★

The only narrow margin (30 votes) appeared in the southeast portion of the village with 158 voting no and 128 yes out of 339 registered voters.

AFFIRMATIVE VOTES

Most of the affirmative votes came from the Helmsford area in Wolverine Lake Heights subdivision, according to Village Manager Clifford Cottrell.

Of the 36 registered voters in the south portion of the village proposed for annexation, 24 voted no and 10 yes.

In the city, 447 of 1,166 registered voters, went to the polls to consider the three annexation questions.

City residents voted 388 yes and 40 no to annex the township area; 363 yes and 46 no to annex the southeastern part of the village; and 371 yes and 43 no to annex the southern parcel.

GUIDELINE

Despite the election outcome, City Manager Royce L. Downey says he is "happy." He explained that now the city at least has a definite guideline for the future.

"We had planned to develop an industrial and commercial tax base for the entire area," he added. "Now we will concentrate on the city."

Downey also regards the results as protection against criticism that the city never offered to help its neighbors.

★ ★ ★

While the city has no further plans to change its boundaries, Downey said the city would aid outsiders who wanted to join the city.

PETITIONS ON FILE

The village, however, has on file with the county clerk petitions to incorporate itself and part of the township as a homerule city.

"Any change of status or boundaries is up to the citizens," stressed Village Manager Cottrell. "We're open for suggestions."

Viewing the election results, the manager said he expected the outcome all along.

Airport Gets New Manager

The Oakland-Pontiac Airport has a new manager and the former manager has been promoted by the county government.

The new airport manager is Joseph Davis, 39, of 88 Oriole, the former assistant manager.

David Vander Veen, 30, of 2181 Garland has moved to a position as administrative assistant to the board of auditors. The airport manager's post has an annual salary of $12,800 and VanderVeen's new job pays $13,500.

Davis worked for the County Road Commission prior to starting work at the airport in March 1967. VanderVeen was airport manager when the county took over the operation from Pontiac in February 1967.

British Purses Due for Added Squeeze

LONDON (AP) — The British government readied another swing of the economy axe today with a new squeeze on the average Briton's pocketbook. Curbs on installment buying and higher taxes on buying for home use were expected.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins was to outline the latest dose of bad news as he opened a two-day debate in the House of Commons on the Labor governments postdevaluation program. The debate will end with a vote on a Conservative motion of no confidence which Labor's big majority in commons is certain to defeat.

★ ★ ★

Prime Minister Harold Wilson told Commons and the nation Tuesday that his government was accelerating the abandonment of Britain's historic role as a military power east of Suez and shrinking the dimensions of the welfare state because the nation could not pay the bill.

The government's aim is to shift manpower, investment

capital and materials to export industries so increased sales abroad will put the balance of payments back into the black. Now that devaluation provides a price advantage in the export market, the problem is to make the resources available for production and reduce the supply of consumer goods for British buyers.

The economy program represents a basic shift in policy, at home as well as abroad. The military cuts end Britain's already diminished role as policeman of the Far East and the Persian Gulf. The cuts at home in housing, education, free medicine and social security ushered in a new kind of welfare state in which benefits may be paid according to need.

The Labor party's doctrinaire socialists, for whom the welfare state and government domination of industry are articles of faith, appeared to have been mollified initially by the huge military cuts appealing to their pacifist and antiimperialist principles.

★ ★ ★

The only member of the Cabinet to resign was Lord Longford, the leader of the House of Lords. The government's last Old Etonian, he rebelled against cuts for state high schools. He had been due to retire soon and was replaced by Lord Shackleton, son of the famous polar explorer.

In Washington, the State Department said the U.S. government, has no plans to move in where British forces pull out from the Middle East to Singapore. But Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said he is "certain we will be asked to fill the vacuum east of Suez."

BOMBERS CANCELED

The U.S. government expressed regret that Britain found it necessary to withdraw troops and cancel a billion-dollar order for 50 F111 fighter-bombers from the United States.

General Dynamics, maker of the F111, said in Fort Worth, Tex., that its contract is to build F111s for the U.S. government, no matter where the planes go later. Reports published in Fort Worth said the government has given no indication it will amend its present contract for 493 F111s, of which Britain was to have received 50.

On London's financial markets, the pound recovered today and the stock market calmed down. The sterling rate against the U.S. dollar moved up about 10 points to $2.4084.

The Bank of England had to step in and buy sterling Tuesday after a sharp fall in the pound. But the Bank was not believed to be supporting the pound this morning, and dealers reported buying from several continental centers.

COMMUNITY LEADERS—Flint Mayor Floyd J. McCree (left) was introduced as a guest speaker in Bloomfield Township last night by the township's supervisor, Homer Case. McCree spoke at Devon Gables to the county chapter of the National Association of Social Workers on the current social crisis.

'Equality Possible Without Violence'

By ED BLUNDEN

"Equality without violence can be accomplished," Flint Mayor Floyd J. McCree, a Negro, told an Oakland County audience last night.

The current social crisis was the theme of his speech to the county chapter of the National Association of Social Workers at Devon Gables, Bloomfield Township.

McCree said this must be "equality with meaning . . . We must work with, not for, the disadvantaged."

During the disturbances of last summer, McCree said he and the leaders in Flint were "gripped with fear by threats of violence from clean-cut Negro youths who were not hoodlums."

He described the outbreak as occurring when "alienated Negro youths, distrusting their leadership, struck out to destroy the communities that neglected them.

"It had to happen," he said.

HISTORY TRACED

McCree traced the history of the Negro in America and told why "they were unable to lift themselves by their boot straps" as other minority groups had done.

He cited how laws were passed against them and de facto segregation confined them in northern ghettos.

McCree quoted statistics on how the Negro still suffers economically in spite of advances in the last few years.

★ ★ ★

He attacked the skilled trade unions with having practiced segregation since their formation. McCree said as long as the Negro was needed he was welcomed in the factories; but that in the last five years, with unskilled labor less in demand, Negroes were regressing economically due to their lack of skills, education and opportunity.

TWO AMERICAS

McCree said, "We live in two Americas, and there is no passport office to go to."

Elaborating on "equality with meaning" the mayor gave as goals for the Negro community:

- A larger role in decision-making.
- Learning skills and a chance to use them.
- Appreciation of their own heritage.
- Restored faith in their leadership.

2 GM Locals Reach Accord

DETROIT (AP) — Negotiators for the United Auto Workers Union and General Motors reached agreement today on two local contracts, reducing to seven the number of plants without settlements.

Some 3,000 workers struck GM's foundry in Defiance, Ohio, Tuesday.

At-the-plant agreements were reported at the company's Cadillac and Oldsmobile orge facilities, where negotiators had been faced with a 9:15 a.m. strike deadline.

Union officials agreed to extend similar strike deadlines at Chevrolet plants in Muncie and Indianapolis, Ind., on an indefinite basis. The UAW said it would give the company 24 hours notice if the deadlines are to be reimposed.

At GM's Buick plant in Flint, a UAW spokesman said a settlement was expected today, and at the Chevrolet Grey Iron Foundry in Saginaw, negotiations continued under a morning strike deadline.

The UAW also has set strike deadlines for Friday at two GM plants in New York—the Chevrolet Foundry at Tonawanda and Rochester Products in Rochester.

The company said walkouts at some of the plants could cause parts shortages which would force the giant auto firm to shut down other operations.

Bloomfield Hills Seeks 14-Mill Hike for Schools

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The board of education will ask for a 14-mill increase in taxes for five years on the April 1 ballot.

Board Vice President Edward M. Sewell, officiating at the regular meeting last night in President Richard McGraw's absence, said the boost, highest asked by any area district, was necessary due to increases in operating expenses in the last two years.

The $11-million bond issue passed in 1966, Sewell added, was for the construction of new schools and addition of classrooms to those existing.

"Before the election," he said, "the board made known to voters that the new schools would require additional millage to staff and operate them when they were completed."

★ ★ ★

Part of the operating expense increase, Sewell added, was due to the beginning of salary negotiations two years ago with all district employes.

The vice president then read a statement prepared by McGraw, who emphasized, "The 14 mills we seek are imperative to continue to build the quality school system which the residents now enjoy and have demanded be continued."

Present millage in the district is 29.36, of which 22.10 is used for operating costs and 7.26 for debt retirement.

BIRMINGHAM — The Birmingham Conservatory will present its first faculty concert tonight at 8 at the Community House, 380 S. Bates.

There will be no admission charge for the concert, which will include works of Bach, Chopin, Khachaturian and Mozart among others.

However a donation will be collected, proceeds of which will go directly toward expenses of the concert and scholarships.

Homeless Sicilians Pray as Quakes End

PALERMO, Sicily (UPI) — Thousands of homeless Sicilians prayed around bonfires in freezing weather today to give thanks that the island's worst earthquakes in two generations apparently were over. Twenty-eight shocks leveled whole towns.

Crabinieri national police in Rome said 146 bodies have been recovered. But the federal public works ministry said more than 250 were known dead.

Thousands of soldiers, police and firemen were still digging through rubble of a dozen towns in the poor, remote hills of western Sicily.

Hundreds of thousands spent a third icy night in the open last night — many out of fear and at least 20,000 because their homes were destroyed.

The series of tremors began Monday. An apparent final violent jolt jarred Palermo late yesterday afternoon.

Seven persons, including a woman and her two-year-old child, were rescued in Gibillina last night. They had spent 36 hours beneath a pile of debris that had been their home. The woman's husband and two children were crushed to death in their beds.

The damage was not yet officially estimated but was expected to run to scores of millions of dollars. The Rome newspaper II Messaggero estimated Sicily would need $250 million in aid.

City OKs Purchase of Housing Project

The purchase price is roughly 50 per cent of a price fixed by appraisals and negotiations.

Dugan said the city, which would have the responsibility of relocating tenants, might have considerable difficulty doing so.

District 1 Commissioner T. Warren Fowler Sr. said the city should be able to do so in three years and said the planned 525-unit low income rent supplement housing project on Kennett could assimilate a good number of the tenants.

Most of the commissioners said the condition of the housing was largely the reluctance of the owners to properly maintain the structures.

One Interim Paper Struck by Teamsters

DETROIT (AP) — Teamsters truck drivers striking the Detroit News today struck two interim newspapers, then withdrew picket lines from one of them, saving it had satisfied demands that it hire idle union members.

Pickets were maintained, however, at the two printing plants of the Daily Express and the paper did not complete its press run for today's edition.

The dispute arose over a contract which the Express and the Daily Press signed with the Teamsters in which they promised to hire all union members needing work as a result of the truck drivers strike against the afternoon News.

Guatemalan Red Terrorists Kill Two Top U.S. Officers

GUATEMALA (AP) — A pro-Castro revolutionary organization said today that it was responsible for the machine-gun slaying of the top two U.S. military officers in Guatemala.

A typewritten communique signed Rebel Armed Forces—FAR—said the U.S. military mission had "ordered the Guatemalan army to creat groups of assassins" against guerrillas and the FAR "decided to mete out justice."

Firing from a speeding car into the Americans' car near the Guatemalan Air Force's headquarters Tuesday, machine-gunners killed U.S. Army Col. John D. Webber Jr., 47, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Ernest A. Munro, 40, and wounded Army Sgt. Maj. John R. Forster, 42, and Marine Sgt. Harry L. Greene, 41.

Greene was reported in critical condition, but Forster was discharged from the hospital after treatment of an arm wound.

'STATE OF ALARM'

The Guatemalan Cabinet proclaimed a "state of alarm"—modified martial law—in an attempt to check a mounting wave of terrorism by both extreme rightists and extreme leftists as well as gangsters taking advantage of the political turmoil.

A burst of machine-gun fire earlier Tuesday killed former Guatemalan congressman Alejandro Silva Falla, 40, and his 20-year-old bodyguard was killed in an exchange of fire with the gunmen. Silva's name had appeared on a list circulated in June by rightists saying that all who served communism would be executed.

In a third attack Tuesday, gunmen missed Manuel Villacorta Vielman, former vice presidential candidate from the strongly anti-Communist National Liberation Movement, but wounded his 20-year-old son.

26 KILLED

The government says 26 persons have been killed this month by terrorists. The state of alarm proclaimed by the government permits arrests without charges, imposes censorship, prohibits the carrying of firearms except by authorized persons and bans assemblies of more than four persons.

Webber, a native of Buffalo, N.Y., who listed Houston, Tex., as his home, had been head of the U.S. military advisory group in Guatemala since 1966. Munro, a native of Lake Worth, Fla., with a home in Rockland, Maine, was head of the U.S. naval section. Greene, the group's communications adviser, was from Omaha, Neb. The families of all three men were with them in Guatemala.

Runner-Up Takes Over as City's Junior Miss

The Pontiac Junior Miss runner-up, Beth Ellen Vershure, has taken over the responsibilities of Pontiac's Junior Miss in time for the state pageant in Pontiac next week.

Patricia Guy, 17, resigned as Pontiac Junior Miss, for personal reasons.

Beth, a senior at Pontiac Central High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vershure of 1865 Sherwood, Sylvan Lake.

- Some 47 Junior Misses from throughout the state will be at Northern High School, Jan. 27 and 28, competing in the 10th annual state Junior Miss Pageant.

★ ★ ★

The winner of the pageant, sponsored by the Pontiac Area Junior Chamber of Commerce, will receive a trip to the national finals in Mobile, Ala., in March to compete for the National Junior Miss title.

PRIZE SCHOLARSHIPS

Scholarships given at the State pageant will include $1,000 Coca-Cola Bottlers of Michigan scholarship, $100 scholarship from Community National Bank, $500 savings bond from Chevrolet Division, General Motors Corp., and $25 savings bond from Pontiac State Bank.

The winner will be chosen after judging of physical fitness, talent, poise and appearance in evening dress.

★ ★ ★

Tickets for Saturday afternoon and Saturday evening performances and the Sunday final performance will be available at the door, or they can be obtained at the Pontiac Chamber of Commerce office in the Riker Building and the C. R. Haskill studio, 1 University.

Pontiac Div. Seeks Strike Authorization

Permission to set a strike deadline at Pontiac Motor Division is being sought by UAW Local 653, according to Wayne Anable, local president

Negotiators have been unable to reach agreement on a local contract. The national contract was approved by vote of the workers last month.

Some progress has been made, but a number of issues remain to be settled, Anable said.

"Since negotiations started our local has resolved 150 issues. Management has not seen fit to meet us on our major issues.

"Positions are clear to both parties on the remaining issues. We have asked for strike authorization.

"We have not been granted strike authorization at this time due to existing circumstances in other General Motors UAW locals," Anable said.

"I have been assured that maximum efforts and assistance will be given to our local union's problems by the international union at the proper time," he concluded.

Law Dissolves Freeway Vetoes

LANSING (AP) — Acting Gov. William Milliken yesterday signed into law a bill establishing a state system of binding arbitration to resolve local differences in disputes over interstate highway routes.

The bill was sought as the result of a stalemate over the route of the I-696 freeway in Oakland and Macomb counties. Construction of the freeway has been delayed for 10 years because of differences between the local communities and the state over its exact location.

'TRUTH SQUAD' — Florida Gov. Claude Kirk pledges yesterday to serve as a "one-man truth squad" in a speech at the National Press Club in Washington. Calling George Wallace "Mr. Backlash," Kirk said the Alabamian is spending $9 million to reelect President Johnson by siphoning off protest votes that would otherwise go to a Republican.

Open-Housing Vote by Commission Set

The issue of an open-occupancy ordiance for Pontiac, dormant for the past few months, was revived again last night as District 1 City Commissioner T. Warren Fowler Sr. called for a vote next week on an ordiance now under consideration.

Commissioners agreed to hold a public hearing on the ordinance at next Tuesday's City Commission meeting and to take a vote at the end of the hearing.

An open-housing ordinance was first proposed last summer by a newly formed organization of young Negroes called the Pontiac Organization of Black Youth (POOBY).

After considerable and sometimes heated discussions, the commission decided to consider an ordinance and studied other ordinances in effect in Michigan.

★ ★ ★

A proposed ordinance incorporating features from other ordiances was drafted in the fall and this has been sent to most local social, civic and business organizations for comments and criticisms.

WOULD BE READY

Commissioners indicated last night that they would be prepared to vote on the matter at next week's commission meeting.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. and other commissioners asked that persons interested in giving opinions on the ordiance attend the meeting.

Discussion of the move last night, as usual with the subject, touched off considerable discussion with charges being made by commission members and persons in the audience.

District 5 Commissioner John A. Dugan assailed the proposed open-housing ordinance and said efforts first should be made to pass laws to stop crime.

'LONG, HOT SUMMER'

He said he wanted the commission to consider a "stop and frisk" law similar to one passed in Dearborn and considered by the City of Detroit.

Dugan said: "We ought to be getting prepared." He claimed that Pontiac may be in for another "long, hot summer."

District 4 Commissioner Leslie H. Hudson countered that "We don't need any more laws . . . what we need is to remove the causes for the hot summers."

★ ★ ★

Fowler, who, on the commission level, has advanced the case for an open-housing law, said the question now was, "Are we going to stand up and do the right thing?"

'COULD BE A STEP'

He said an open-housing law could be a step toward peaceful settlement of racial problems, although he doubted that it would be a final solution.

Hudson spoke out strongly on the need for a vote on the ordinance question. "I feel each city should stand up and be counted," he said.

He said the commissioners would have to vote the way they felt "even though we may be proven wrong by the majority. It doesn't mean the majority is right," he said.

Hudson said there appears to be a trend in government units where open-housing laws are passed that petitions are passed to force an election on the question.

Mayor Taylor Reports on '67

He said Pontiac is in an area tossed by social and political storms and called for the "people of Pontiac" to "put down our prejudices and start moving forward."

★ ★ ★

Taylor said the financial problems that have plagued Pontiac for 30 years reached an acute stage last year.

The commission, recognizing this, provided $500,000 in surplus funds to meet general operating expense last year and took steps to seek new income, Taylor said.

These included appointment of a citizens tax study committee which unanimously recognized the need for additional revenue and a tax advisory election giving voters opportunity to express a preference for the manner of new taxes, he said.

★ ★ ★

The mayor said that the city income tax passed by the commission enables the city to provide adequately for employes and reach a more adequate level of service.

Accomplishments cited by the mayor included:

- Construction of the Galloway Creek Sanitary Sewer providing sanitary sewer service to the east-central and northeast parts of the city which opens up some 1,900 acres of undeveloped land for development.
- Construction of additional housing — 285 units completed on Woodward north of the city limits, 250 units being completed on Auburn west of Opdyke; the start of 200 units of rent supplement housing on West Kennett near Alcott Elementary School, and smaller projects totaling 61 units on scattered sites.
- Improvement of the Clinton River channel which allowed completion of the M59 Freeway, construction or start of construction of a number of drains, and start of a $6 million project to straighten and improve the Pontiac Creek to eliminate flooding during storms.
- Appropriating $175,000 from special assessment revolving funds for emergency street repairs.
- Completion of 2.5 miles of water mains, two miles of sanitary sewer laterals, asphalt paving of 18 city blocks, and construction at three major intersections to relieve traffic congestion.
- Installation of 560 new street lights and improvement in lighting along Telegraph.
- Creation of the Pontiac Area planning Council as a "total approach to coordinated comprehensive planning."

Troy Controversy Grows Over Apartment Complex

TROY — Controversy continues to swirl around the Biltmore Development Co.'s proposed $40-million Somerset North construction project northeast of Big Beaver and Coolidge.

The controversy seems to have escalated since the City Commission's approval Jan. 8 of final plans for the 328-acre planned community, indicating that rezoning for Somerset North may be but the first in a series of home-owner-apartment conflicts to face city officials.

Representing one side is the Troy Council of Homeowners' Associations, which plans a petition drive to force the commission to repeal its vote on the rezoning or put the issue on a public ballot.

While no official organization represents the apartment residents, there is evidence that they are banding together to protect their interests.

★ ★ ★

Biltmore's attorney, Bernard Stolman, confirmed reports of increased voter registration among Somerset's 1600 residents, saying as high as 35 per cent of those of voting age may have registered recently.

LACK OF PARTICIPATION

"We have encouraged registration," Stolman explained, "because there has been a lot of adverse comment around here about apartment people in general—that they don't participate enough in community activities."

The planned petition drive, meanwhile, awaits final legal clearance from city attorneys.

Carlos Lynch, a former president of the home owners' council, said the main fear of opponents to the zoning change is that it may stunt Troy's planned downtown area.

★ ★ ★

"Basically, the change involves such an amount of land that it pretty well opens the door to multiples in any part of the city," Lynch added. "It almost indictates that there will be a corridor of apartments down through the city."

UNWRITTEN RULE

In response to charges of residents that Troy's master plan for land use had established an unwritten "no apartments" rule north of Big Beaver, City Planner George Peek commented, "Any rule of this type would have to come from the planning commission, which was the body recommending favorable action on the zoning change request."

Peek said that by its nature, the master plan is not a rigid assignment of property. He also countered objections that the new multiple development might in time become a slum area, saying "any development of this (the Somerset North) type is apt to have long-lasting value."

Biltmore plans 110 acres of multiple housing, with the remaining 218 acres to be single-family and recreational areas.

★ ★ ★

According to company officials, the planned population of 2,600 would vary little from that in a single-family residential area of comparable size.

Special Board Session Airs Huron Valley Schools

About 200 Huron Valley School District residents turned out for the board of education's recent special session to find out how their schools are run.

On the some 50 questions that came in on cards, school financing was a chief concern.

Highland Township residents, who last week met with tax officials about assessment increases, asked why the school millage rate wasn't decreased with the rise in tax revenue.

The residents were told that state aid funds are proportional to a school district's state equalized valuation. Therefore, with increased assessments, state aid would be less, said school officials.

★ ★ ★

Other main concerns were discipline, transportation, maintenance and heating of the buildings. Teacher qualifications and the teaching methods at Northwest Elementary were also probed.

The large turnout at the question-and-answer session indicates "a wholesome interest" by residents in the schools, said Board President Arthur Burklund.

The board is planning to hold another such meeting in about three months, said the president.

School finances will be discussed Feb. 5 by Schools Supt. Truman Owens and State Representative Clifford H. Smart, 60th Dist.

★ ★ ★

The meeting, sponsored by the Milford PTA, will be 8 p.m. at the Muir Junior High.

Clarkston Students to Mull Problems

CLARKSTON — A student panel discussion on the problems of youth has been slated for 8 p.m. Monday.

Robert Brumbach will serve as moderator for a panel composed of Scott Embry, Al Bentimiglia, Martha Woodward, Tom Gates, Karrie Garlak, Lisa Birkelo, Terry MacDougall, Dawn Evely, Jeff Richardson and John Lynn.

The meeting, sponsored by the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee, will be held at the Senior High School, according to Mrs. Marie Brendle, chairman.

Oxford Rotarians Plan Program on Holland

OXFORD—"Spring Captures Holland" is the title of the second of a two-part series of programs offered by the Oxford Rotary Club at 8 p.m. Monday at the high school auditorium.

Lecturer Robert Brouwer will use three slide projectors and four screens in the presentation, according to Tom Persing, program chairman.

Tickets are available at the door.

The two-hour credit course is being offered by Central Michigan University Off-Campus Education and Eastern Michigan University.

Independence OKs Engineers

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP — The Township Board last night appointed the Waterford Township engineering firm of Johnson and Anderson, Inc., as township engineers on a fee basis.

The firm has been doing the township's utilities program engineering and has served as an alternate in checking township development plans.

The Johnson and Anderson firm replaces Kieft Engineering of Independence Township, long-time township engineers. Appointments are made on a yearly basis, according to Clerk Howard Altman.

The board appointed Gerald Anderson and Donald Cooper to three-year terms on the township planning commission.

★ ★ ★

Altman was instructed to inform the new franchise purchaser of Hulabaloo, a teen-age dance center on the Dixie Highway at M15, that until he applies for a license to operate within the township, the club will be closed.

NEW OWNER

The new purchaser is reported as Michael Maryonovich of Detroit. The club was formerly operated by John T. Hart of 343 Eileen and Ronald Sherwin, of Birmingham.

Now They Seem Like Mayhem

Winter Sports Used to Be Such Fun

BY JEAN SAILE

I'm a lodge skier myself.

Having broken my leg once by the simple method of carrying out the garbage, I have had no desire during my adult life to enter into other forms of winter mayhem.

It wasn't always so, though. A display seen recently in one of the department stores brought it all back.

MRS. SAILE

Sled manufacturers are finally getting smart.

They've put aluminum versions of the old steerable bodsled on the market.

★ ★ ★

Not having tested one, I'm not able to say if they live up to their wooden predecessors.

BREATHLESS SPEEDS

But those were the sleds.

A running belly-flop could send the steel-banded runners crunching over the snow at speeds that took your breath away.

The big plus, however, was the maneuverability. With the front end connected to the main body of the sled only by a swivel post, some pretty fancy trails could be left by a daring driver.

On one long sweep down the hill it was possible to execute S-turns, sideswipes at onlookers (if you were a boy and the onlooker was a girl), and a final sweeping curve at the finish.

Somehow toboggans never quite lived up to their promise after having ridden a bobsled.

The kind of snow last weekend brought was the kind for skiing — not from the top of the hill down — but for miles and miles through a blanketed countryside behind a team of horses and a sled.

A youngster equipped with skis and panic-locked fingers could get quite a ride. There was the problem of avoiding the sled tracks while galloping horses ahead plunged through drifts in a roller-coaster effect. A tired skier simply fell off into a soft drift.

Sliding downhill on skis has always seemed to me infinitely more unreasonable. One only has to go back to the top again.

★ ★ ★

And then there were the parent-unapproved skating parties which featured an old car on a well-frozen lake with tow ropes strung out behind.

MOTORIZED THRILLS

Zinging over the ice behind a 1937 Plymouth provided a motorized crack-the-whip that sometimes produced a wrenched ankle along with the thrills.

But that was for young blood.

Now, the trip to the roadside mailbox and back again is quite enough winter activity today.

Rochester JA Report Offered

ROCHESTER — A report of the Rochester Senior High School Junior Achievement program involving four companies and 55 students has been presented to the board of education.

Principal James Drue spoke encouragingly of the first-year program in the district.

The board has ratified a contract already approved by bus drivers providing for a salary scale of $2.55 to $3 an hour attainable in four years.

The contract also includes provision for eight paid holidays and hospitalization benefits.

★ ★ ★

A fee schedule for use of the new senior high school auditorium, expected to be ready Feb. 15, was adopted by the board.

It was noted that progress on the pool at the same school had been delayed due to weather.

The new library and multipurpose room at Woodward Elementary School is nearly complete, board members were told, and the same additions at North Hill Elementary School should be completed in six weeks.

Membership reports revealed 40 new students since September bringing the district total to 7,528.

2 Police Unions Recognized

FARMINGTON — The City Council has given recognition to bargaining agents for two groups of its policemen.

★ ★ ★

The nine officers are organized as the Public Safety Officers' Association with its own charter. The seven sergeants are organized as a group without a charter.

Informal bargaining will begin next week, said City Manager John Dinan. He foresees the results as recommendations to next year's city budget, which he will propose April 1.

Negotiations will begin next week also for the 1968-69 contract for the public works and water workers' unions.

★ ★ ★

Dinan introduced sewer and water system connection charges for areas served by Oakland County systems. The fees are expected to be adopted at the council's Feb. 5 meeting, he said.

FEES LISTED

Per unit, the connection fees are listed at $200 for the Farmington interceptor, $100 for the Tarabusi Arm, and $100 for the water system.

The facilities will serve some of the 3,500 people in the 437 acres annexed west of the city.

Avon Vote Says Much

Rochester Future Hazy

News Analysis

By L. GARY THORNE
Assistant City Editor-Suburban

Rochester today is like the proverbial hole in the doughnut.

The vote earlier this week by Avon Township to incorporate gives the obvious indication that much remains unsettled about the future of the Rochester area.

Of course, the vote was only the first step toward eventual cityhood. A charter must be drafted and approved at the polls before city status is obtained.

Despite the slim 47-vote margin for incorporation, there is an indication in the results that dealings in the future between the township and the city will have to be on an equal footing.

★ ★ ★

Returns Monday showed that the township is not going to lie down and let the new city of Rochester annex it out of existence.

POLITICAL HAMMER

Meanwhile, the alleged motive for the incorporation move was to gain time and what amounts to a political hammer for future negotiations with the city.

Campaign comment from both the city and the township has been to the effect that Rochester and Avon Township should one day be one entity.

Most observers seem to think that the two areas cannot exist as separate units. This would seem to be true, especially in the case of the city, which is completely surrounded by the township attempting-to-be-a-city.

★ ★ ★

In the metropolitan area, Hamtramck and Highland Park stand out as examples of cities within a city. Generally, growth is hampered by such a situation.

The nine charter commissioners also elected Monday will begin the motions to draft a city charter. Whether such a charter ever gets any use probably will depend on those currently holding public office in the city and township.

Some of the unpleasantness of the past campaign will have to be put aside and serious negotiations instituted if there ever is to be an eventual consolidation of the area.

Avondale Success Story Told

A success story about preparation of kindergarten students for first grade has been related to the Avondale Board of Education by Mrs. Mary Sutherland, junior primary room teacher.

She said that with the help of three volunteer mothers, three of the young students not deemed ready for first grade last year had already made the transition to regular classwork.

Others, who because of immaturity in years or emotions, not put into regular first grade classes last September are expected to be ready for first and in some cases second grade work next fall, she said.

The Avondale project is carried out at Stone Elementary School where a class of 21 children have been given special attention in reading readiness.

★ ★ ★

The board has approved the exchange of a recently purchased five acres on Adams east of Stone Elementary School for 4.03 acres and $4,000 cash adjoining the school property.

ADDITION POSSIBLE

Supt. of Schools John W. Dickey said the exchange would double existing Stone School property, making an addition to the present building possible.

The contracts of two assistant superintendents, William Saville and Hobart H. Jenkins, and administrative assistant J. William Brooke, were continued for a year at the present salaries.

A head bookkeeper, Mrs. Marajeane Zodtner, was employed at a salary of $5,815 a year.

★ ★ ★

The board passed a formal resolution calling for a vote Feb. 19 on a 12.7-mill increase in taxes.

The PTA presidents council in the district has organized for purposes of promoting a favorable vote. Board member Jack Slater had been named to head the drive which will involve a recruitment of room committee chairmen and a phone committee.

Troy Controversy Grows Over Apartment Complex

TROY — Controversy continues to swirl around the Biltmore Development Co.'s proposed $40-million Somerset North construction project northeast of Big Beaver and Coolidge.

The controversy seems to have escalated since the City Commission's approval Jan. 8 of final plans for the 328-acre planned community, indicating that rezoning for Somerset North may be but the first in a series of home-owner-apartment conflicts to face city officials.

Somehow toboggans never quite lived up to their promise after having ridden a bobsled.

The kind of snow last weekend brought was the kind for skiing — not from the top of the hill down — but for miles and miles through a blanketed countryside behind a team of horses and a sled.

A youngster equipped with skis and panic-locked fingers could get quite a ride. There was the problem of avoiding the sled tracks while galloping horses ahead plunged through drifts in a roller-coaster effect. A tired skier simply fell off into a soft drift.

Sliding downhill on skis has always seemed to me infinitely more unreasonable. One only has to go back to the top again.

MOTORIZED THRILLS

Zinging over the ice behind a 1937 Plymouth provided a motorized crack-the-whip that sometimes produced a wrenched ankle along with the thrills.

But that was for young blood.

Now, the trip to the roadside mailbox and back again is quite enough winter activity today.

Rochester JA Report Offered

ROCHESTER — A report of the Rochester Senior High School Junior Achievement program involving four companies and 55 students has been presented to the board of education.

Principal James Drue spoke encouragingly of the first-year program in the district.

The board has ratified a contract already approved by bus drivers providing for a salary scale of $2.55 to $3 an hour attainable in four years.

The contract also includes provision for eight paid holidays and hospitalization benefits.

★ ★ ★

A fee schedule for use of the new senior high school auditorium, expected to be ready Feb. 15, was adopted by the board.

It was noted that progress on the pool at the same school had been delayed due to weather.

The new library and multipurpose room at Woodward Elementary School is nearly complete, board members were told, and the same additions at North Hill Elementary School should be completed in six weeks.

Membership reports revealed 40 new students since September bringing the district total to 7,528.

2 Police Unions Recognized

FARMINGTON — The City Council has given recognition to bargaining agents for two groups of its policemen.

★ ★ ★

The nine officers are organized as the Public Safety Officers' Association with its own charter. The seven sergeants are organized as a group without a charter.

Informal bargaining will begin next week, said City Manager John Dinan. He foresees the results as recommendations to next year's city budget, which he will propose April 1.

Negotiations will begin next week also for the 1968-69 contract for the public works and water workers' unions.

★ ★ ★

Dinan introduced sewer and water system connection charges for areas served by Oakland County systems. The fees are expected to be adopted at the council's Feb. 5 meeting, he said.

FEES LISTED

Per unit, the connection fees are listed at $200 for the Farmington interceptor, $100 for the Tarabusi Arm, and $100 for the water system.

The facilities will serve some of the 3,500 people in the 437 acres annexed west of the city.

Avondale Success Story Told

A success story about preparation of kindergarten students for first grade has been related to the Avondale Board of Education by Mrs. Mary Sutherland, junior primary room teacher.

She said that with the help of three volunteer mothers, three of the young students not deemed ready for first grade last year had already made the transition to regular classwork.

Others, who because of immaturity in years or emotions, not put into regular first grade classes last September are expected to be ready for first and in some cases second grade work next fall, she said.

The Avondale project is carried out at Stone Elementary School where a class of 21 children have been given special attention in reading readiness.

★ ★ ★

The board has approved the exchange of a recently purchased five acres on Adams east of Stone Elementary School for 4.03 acres and $4,000 cash adjoining the school property.

ADDITION POSSIBLE

Supt. of Schools John W. Dickey said the exchange would double existing Stone School property, making an addition to the present building possible.

The contracts of two assistant superintendents, William Saville and Hobart H. Jenkins, and administrative assistant J. William Brooke, were continued for a year at the present salaries.

A head bookkeeper, Mrs. Marajeane Zodtner, was employed at a salary of $5,815 a year.

★ ★ ★

The board passed a formal resolution calling for a vote Feb. 19 on a 12.7-mill increase in taxes.

The PTA presidents council in the district has organized for purposes of promoting a favorable vote. Board member Jack Slater had been named to head the drive which will involve a recruitment of room committee chairmen and a phone committee.

Avon Vote Says Much

Rochester Future Hazy

By L. GARY THORNE
Assistant City Editor-Suburban

Rochester today is like the proverbial hole in the doughnut.

The vote earlier this week by Avon Township to incorporate gives the obvious indication that much remains unsettled about the future of the Rochester area.

News Analysis

Of course, the vote was only the first step toward eventual cityhood. A charter must be drafted and approved at the polls before city status is obtained.

Despite the slim 47-vote margin for incorporation, there is an indication in the results that dealings in the future between the township and the city will have to be on an equal footing.

★ ★ ★

Returns Monday showed that the township is not going to lie down and let the new city of Rochester annex it out of existence.

POLITICAL HAMMER

Meanwhile, the alleged motive for the incorporation move was to gain time and what amounts to a political hammer for future negotiations with the city.

Campaign comment from both the city and the township has been to the effect that Rochester and Avon Township should one day be one entity.

Most observers seem to think that the two areas cannot exist as separate units. This would seem to be true, especially in the case of the city, which is completely surrounded by the township attempting-to-be-a-city.

★ ★ ★

In the metropolitan area, Hamtramck and Highland Park stand out as examples of cities within a city. Generally, growth is hampered by such a situation.

The nine charter commissioners also elected Monday will begin the motions to draft a city charter. Whether such a charter ever gets any use probably will depend on those currently holding public office in the city and township.

Some of the unpleasantness of the past campaign will have to be put aside and serious negotiations instituted if there ever is to be an eventual consolidation of the area.

Response to Photo of Sad Yule Hailed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — It was touch and go for a while, but Santa came through.

A photograph showing two little girls crying as they left a Christmas party empty-handed has brought gifts from across the United States and Canada.

The photograph by St. Louis Post-Dispatch photographer Reynold Ferguson was taken minutes after 6-year-old Henrean Alexander, 5-year-old Algerine Norris and about 2,000 other children had been told Santa Claus had run out of toys.

The girls were among 4,500 youngsters invited to a Christmas party sponsored by management of the Pruitt-Igoe Housing Project Friday, Dec. 22. More than 11,000 persons live in the project.

IMMEDIATE RESPONSE

The photograph of the two crying youngsters was distributed in the United States and Canada by the Asociated Press Wirephoto network. The response was almost immediate.

For example, the Arkansas Gazette editorial staff helped. One Gazette editor called the Associated Press bureau in St. Louis and said, "We saw the picture of the two little girls and the guys around the desk decided to take a collection. Where shall I send it?"

★ ★ ★

The picture was distributed two days before Christmas and housing project Manager Philip Thigpen reported Christmas Eve that all children had received toys.

Checks and cash are still arriving daily, both at the Pruitt-Igoe offices and at the newspaper. Thigpen said two children sent toys from Canada.

SPECIAL FUND

The gifts are being placed in a special fund for use, as needed, in helping the children of the development.

The little girls in the picture are the products of broken homes. Algerine's mother is 27 years old and has two other children. Henrean's mother is 24 and has three other children. Neither father lives with his family.

Pollution Fight Step-Up Urged

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP) — An official of the Interior Department has urgee the Canadian-American Joint Commission to take new steps to fight pollution of the Great Lakes and connecting waterways.

Jacomb I. Bregman, deputy assistant secretary of the interior for water pollution control, said the International Joint Commission should "undertake the important task of promoting uniform and rigorous controls over wastes from watercraft."

Pollution caused by discharges from ships is a growing international problem as more ships of many flags ply the Great Lakes, he said today.

Bregman also urged the commission to consider water pollution controls over offshore petroleum drilling operations in the Great Lakes. The start of such a drilling program in Lake Erie "has great pollution potential" he said.

Bregman said the commission should consider expanding its international water quality monitoring system, which now embraces the Niagara and Detroit rivers, to include lakes and connecting channels.

Apartment Units Planned

Dump Site Sold to Developers

City commissioners last night approved the sale of the city's former dump site on Orchard Lake next to Washington Park subdivision for development of apartment units.

The commissioners unanimously approved the sale of the land for $60,000 to Solomon Sylvan and George Kratchman, developers who said they would begin construction of apartments by May.

Terms call for the purchase price to be paid under a land contract by May 1969.

A previous sale to the ERE Corp. of Michigan was declared in default because the corporation did not meet payments as required.

★ ★ ★

Terms of the contract call for Sylvan and Kratchman to pay interest and taxes due on the land.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other action, the commission approved awarding of a utilities construction contract to Gay Brothers, Inc., for water main, sanitary sewer and storm sewer construction along W. Kennett and an extended Columbia Avenue.

The company was the lowest of five bidders with a bid of $154,198, some $45,00 under engineer estimates of the project.

The utility systems will extend the city facilities to the planned North Hills Farms, a low-income rent supplement project to be constructed along West Kennett adjacent to the Alcott Elementary School.

Funds for the projects will come from varied sources, according to Joseph E. Neipling, director of public works and service.

"A very limited portion of the revenue will be supplied by the current inadequate assessment rates," he said.

Commissioners also approved transferring easement rights over Montcalm to Consumers Power Co. for servicing proposed electrical lines which will be constructed from a planned electrical substation on Montcalm in Aaron Perry Park to Pontiac Motor Division's foundry.

★ ★ ★

The power company and Pontiac Motor are cooperating in the project. The substation will provide electricity which will enable the foundry to be run on electrical power eliminating the need for the huge furnaces which contribute to pollution.

STEP FORWARD

Neipling recommended approval calling it a step forward in eliminating pollution from the foundry.

In other action, the commission deferred for one week making recommendations to the Liquor Control Commission on reissuance of liquor licenses for bars and taverns.

The Liquor Control Commission asked that any objections to the annual reissuance be forwarded to the LCC.

★ ★ ★

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. said the commission would consider the question for a week before making any recommendations.

City Affairs

Commission Okays '68 Hospital Budget

City commissioners approved a 1968 operating budget for Pontiac General Hospital calling for expenses of $11,287,577 at a public hearing last night.

The budget was approved by hospital trustees last month.

Harold B. Euler, PGH administrator, told the commission that because of construction at the hospital and alterations to the hospital it would operate at 92 per cent of capacity during the year.

He predicted a total of 134,000 patient days with a bed complement of 398 daily.

Room rates are still under other area hospitals, Euler said.

He said he expected that the hospital would end up in the black at the end of the year as it has for nine of the past 10 years.

ESTIMATED COSTS

The budget estimates earnings from patients at $11,061,000. Expenses include $6,884,347 for salaries and wages, $865,420 for fees, $2,922,810 for other expenses, $315,000 for depreciation and $300,000 for alteration costs.

Other expenses include a variety of categories including administrative expenses, employes' insurance and social security payments, dietary expense, and expense for laundry, housekeeping, plant operation, maintenance and repair and nursing service.

Commissioners also approved the 1968 budgets for the water utility and sewage utility funds and for the parking systems operations.

★ ★ ★

The sewer utility budget calls for a budget of $904,000 for the year, some $47,365 under last year's.

Metered and flat rate service will account for $618,000, services outside the city for $129,000, sewer connections $115,000, interest, $38,000, and miscellaneous, $4,000.

SURPLUS ESTIMATED

The water utility budget will provide an estimated $219,663 surplus by the end of the year, it was estimated.

The parking systems budget calls for expenditures and revenue of $148,722, up $17,312 from last year.

School Panel in Waterford Airs Relations

More than 125 persons attended a meeting of the Waterford Township School District's citizens' study subcommittee on communications last night at Pierce Junior High School.

Several suggestions were made on how to improve communications between the schools and the community, which is the subcommittee's task.

In addition to subcommittee members, other citizens and school administrators attended the meeting which was conducted by Dr. Wendell Hough, a professor of education at Wayne State University.

Hough had previously introduced a confrontation technique of discussion which was experimented with last night.

The ideas suggested at last night's meeting will be compiled printed and distributed by M. Barrett Vorce, associate superintendent for instruction and personnel.

MEETING TO FOLLOW

Another meeting will follow at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 20, also at Pierce.

Also last night, several questions were asked regarding taxes and school finances with Joseph A. Giddis, associate superintendent for business, doing most of the answering.

Following the first part of the program, participants considered the proposed 1968-69 budget deductions because of inadequate funds.

Bids Are Taken on Loan Notes

The city administration will be receiving bids today on some $1,015,000 in preliminary loan notes for Pontiac's R44 urban renewal project area.

City commissioners last night authorized City Manager Joseph A. Warren to notify the successful bidder that his bid has been approved upon receipt of approval from the regional office of the urban renewal administration.

Police Raid NY Campus

STONY BROOK, N.Y. (AP) — A raiding party of 198 police stormed the State University campus here early today, routing 30 students out of their beds and charging them with a variety of felony narcotics violations.

The raiding party—not told in advance of the raid's purpose—arrived at the sprawling, still unfinished campus on Long Island's North Shore at 3 a.m., in 72 police vehicles.

★ ★ ★

They were quickly briefed, divided into 32 raiding teams and sent to the college's dormitories and a few nearby homes armed with a warrant for 38 students including a few coeds. Eight escaped the net and were still at large, police said.

Salvation Army Unit Acquires Detroit Service

The men's social service department of the Salvation Army has acquired Detroit's Christian Enterprise.

The entire operation of this augmented service will be supervised by Brig. Cecil C. Briggs, manager and director of the Men's Social Service Center in Detroit.

★ ★ ★

He said: "This new enlarged setup in combination with the present Men's Social Service Center and the Harbor Light facilities will provide 565 beds and 1,500 to 2,000 hot meals per day."

The acquisition means an important expansion of Salvation Army's Social Services in the metropolitan Detroit area. The Social Service Center sends out pickup trucks for usable discards in the home.

Alano Center Slates Film

New U-M Bylaws Would Oust 2 VPs

ANN ARBOR (UPI)—Two top University of Michigan vice presidents would be forced to leave their posts if the university's regents adopt a proposed change in their bylaws, the campus newspaper said today.

The Michigan Daily said it has learned that the regents have generally agreed to a proposed bylaw revision which would require top executive officers to retire at age 65.

Marvin L. Neihuss, executive vice president, and William L. Stirton, vice president and director of the U-M Dearborn Center, would be affected by the revision. Neihuss is 65; Stirton will be 65 in March.

New Jail Funds Will Be Sought

Funds will be sought tomorrow for the first phases of a new jail for Oakland County. The request will go to the Board of Supervisors at their meeting 9:30 a.m. at the County Courthouse auditorium.

The ways and means committee will seek funds to draw up specifications and will recommend methods of financing the new structure.

Third Transplant of Heart Slated

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Dr. Christian Barnard said today he will perform a third heart transplant operation in March following a tour of the United States and Latin America.

Barnard did not say who the third patient will be.

He said his second transplant patient, Dr. Philip Blaiberg, was progressing "very well" after 15 days with his new heart.

2 Columnists Ruled Liable

Dodd Seeks Damages for Use of Stolen Files

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has ruled columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson are liable for damages for using documents stolen from the office files of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.

The summary judgment against the columnists was made Tuesday at Dodd's request in U.S. District Court. But Judge Alexander Holtzoff said the question of damages would have to be settled at a later trial.

★ ★ ★

Dodd is suing Pearson and Anderson for $1 million.

The columnists have conceded writing articles based on material allegedly taken from Dodd's files by several of the senator's employes. The articles dealt largely with the Connecticut Democrat's finances.

Dodd was censured by the Senate June 22 for using political funds to pay personal bills.

STOLEN INFORMATION

Holtzoff said his ruling concerned only whether a person is liable for damages if he receives purloined documents and uses the information they contain.

The judge rejected Dodd's contention that his rights to privacy were violated.

★ ★ ★

"The court concludes that the publication of the material of which the plaintiff complains is not protected by the cloak of the right of privacy, because the publication relates to his activities as high-ranking public officer . . . in which the public has an interest," Holtzoff said.

Holdup Victim Plays Dead; Suspects Held

FLINT (AP) — Police captured two men at a roadblock today after a gasoline station attendant who was robbed and shot three times "played dead" in a snow-covered field to save his life.

State Police arrested Bill Bingley, 23, of Grand Blanc and Robert Riley, 22, of Flint at a roadblock on U.S. 23 just south of Brighton.

★ ★ ★

The service station attendant, Dennis Allen, 19, of Midland, was reported in satisfactory condition in Hurley Hospital at Flint, suffering gunshot wounds of the cheek, head and shoulder.

Allen told police the two bandits robbed him of $30 at the Kayo filling station where he worked in Flint.

FORCED RIDE

Riley forced him to ride to a field off U.S. 23 south of Flint, Allen said.

The men shot him three times, he told officers, and he lay face down in the snow without moving until they left.

Allen walked to a nearby house and alerted police.

FBI Agents Kill Man in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — FBI agents shot and killed a 23-year-old man in Detroit today when they attempted to arrest him on an Alabama warrant charging him with armed robbery and kidnaping.

The man was identified as David Lee Jones, who was shot when he leaped out of bed as the FBI agents entered his room in a YMCA on Detroit's East Side. The agents said they mistakenly thought Jones had a gun.

State GI Killed

New Power Steering for GM Pickups

GMC Truck & Coach Division today announced a new system of power steering for GMC pickup trucks.

The system, offered as an option on GMC half, three-quarter and one-ton models, is designed to give trucks the same ease of handling enjoyed by passenger car drivers, the company said.

★ ★ ★

Consisting of a rotary-valve power gear and high-pressure hydraulic pump, the system is a product of the Saginaw Steering Gear Division of GM.

Driver effort to turn front wheels while stopped is only 2.5 pounds and response to the steering wheel is quicker and more positive than on previous truck steering systems, the company said.

Stabbing Case to Circuit Court

Man, 28, Charged With Murder Attempt

A 28-year-old man charged with the attempted murder of two brothers was bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court at his examination yesterday before West Bloomfield Township Justice Christian Powell.

Circuit Court arraignment is set for Jan. 31 at 9 a.m. before Judge Philip Pratt.

The suspect, Fred Parkkila of the Walled Lake area, is free on $10,000 cash bond.

He stood mute at his arraignment in Justice Court Jan. 3.

★ ★ ★

Parkkila is charged with stabbing Thomas and Randall Ryan, 21355 Farmington, Farmington, during a 3:30 a.m. melee at a New Year's Eve party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Barr, 6551 Drake, West Bloomfield Township.

Three other people are believed to have been injured by a group of seven male attackers at the party, township police said.

Miami Track Is Closed by Purse Dispute

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hialeah Park canceled the opening day races of its 41st season today when jockeys joined horsemen in a boycott of the queen of American racetracks.

When the jockeys failed to report, the track announced it would not open today. It added negotiations were continuing between the track and horsemen demanding a bigger share of purse monies.

The Royal Poinciana Handicap, today's scheduled feature race, will be run Thursday, Hialeah announced, and entries will be taken for Thursday's other races.

Earlier, three of the scheduled 10 races were canceled after only 33 horses were entered. Usually, about 100 would be entered for a 10-race card.

The boycott could cost the track heavily.

Midcontinent Likely to Get January Thaw

By the Associated Press

Subzero cold stung parts of the Northeast today and frosty temperatures extended deep into Florida, but a January thaw was in store for the winter-weary midcontinent.

The mercury settled to 16 below zero at Montpelier, Vt., and Houlton, Maine, before dawn.

Similar earmuff-and-mitten temperatures were scattered westward into Upstate New York.

★ ★ ★

A cold snap which has hung onto the Southeast since the first of the year crept deeper into Florida, pushing thermometer readings down to the 20s in northern sections and to the lower 30s as far south as Tampa.

Tallahassee residents shivered in a 21-degree predawn chill, colder even than Denver, high in the Colorado Rockies, where it was 29.

WARMING TREND

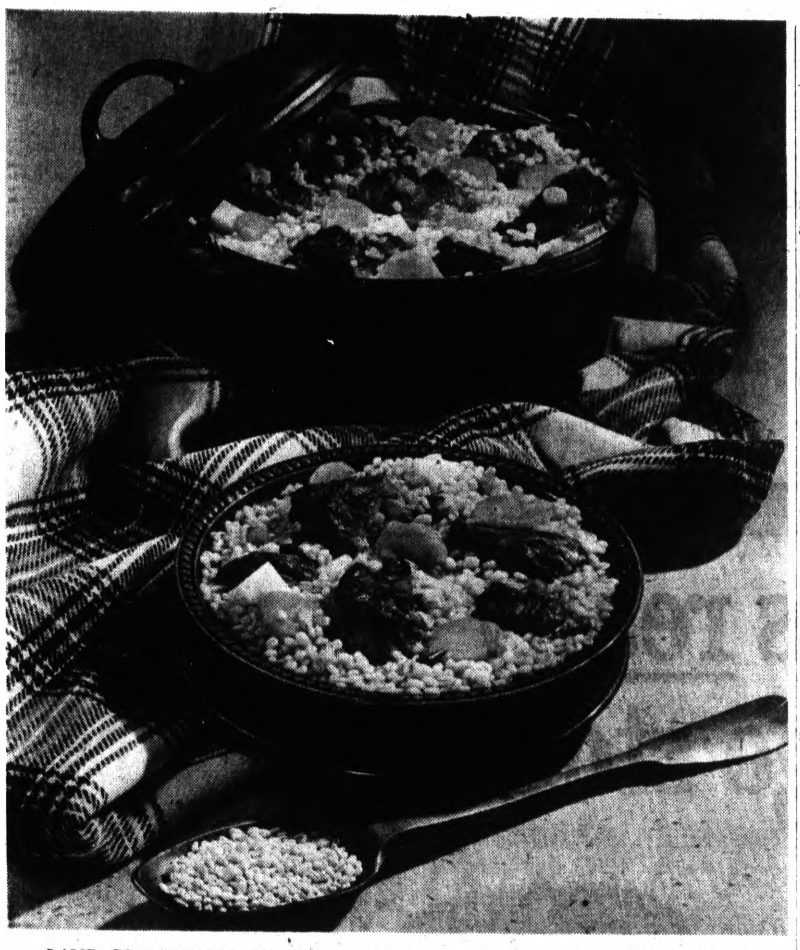
Overnight temperatures were in the 20s and 30s in much of the midcontinent, too, but that was mild for that region. The Weather Bureau indicated a general warming trend would extend from the plains to the Appalachians by nightfall.

Remnants of the recent siege of snow and severe cold remained in some sections. Schools in an estimated 15 Kentucky counties still were closed by snow and icy roads. Electrical power was restored to 2,000 homes in the Hopkinsville, Ky., area Tuesday for the first time in three days.

★ ★ ★

Light rain dampened coastal communities in Washington and Oregon. The same storm system scattered snow inland to Idaho and Western Montana.

Some early morning temperatures and conditions: Boston 11 cloudy, New York 18 cloudy, Philadelphia 21 cloudy, Washington 25 partly cloudy, Atlanta 26 clear, Miami 49 clear, Detroit 19 partly cloudy, Chicago 17 cloudy, Minneapolis-St. Paul 25 clear, St. Louis 27 clear, Kansas City 36 clear, Dallas 40 clear, Denver 29 cloudy, Phoenix 47 partly cloudy, Los Angeles 55 clear, San Francisco 48 clear, Seattle 38 rain, Anchorage 18 partly cloudy, Honolulu 75 cloudy.



LAMB SCOTCH BARLEY SOUP — A soup plate of homemade Scotch Barley Soup does much to satisfy appetites on cold winter days. Here, lamb neck slices, a variety of vegetables and barley blend together in a well-seasoned broth.

Economical Lamb Cut for Soup

Is there a Scottish plaid or an echo of bagpipes in your background? Some of your friends can undoubtedly lay claim to both . . . perhaps you can, too . . . but it really doesn't matter that much. What is important is the Scottish thriftiness . . . a respect for the ha'penny . . . that we might acquire.

In feeding your family, for instance, how far does your meat dollar go? Do you take advantage of best meat buys such as a rolled lamb shoulder roast, or lamb shanks?

One of the very best whole meal soups credited to the people of Scotland is Scotch barley soup. It's filling, flavorful and simple to put together, calls for lamb neck slices and is perfect for blustery weather.

Its cost won't exceed your meat budget, yet you'll have a satisfying supper to place before your family.

Lamb Scotch Barley Soup

2 pounds lamb neck slices
2 ribs celery, cut in chunks
1 medium onion, sliced
1 clove garlic, crushed
2½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon peppercorns
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1 large bay leaf
2 quarts water
½ cup pearled medium barley
2 cups sliced carrots
1½ cups diced white turnips
½ cup sliced scallions
Chopped parsley, optional

In Dutch oven, combine lamb, celery, onion, garlic, 2 teaspoons salt, peppercorns, monosodium glutamate, bay leaf and water. Bring to boil; tightly cover and simmer 1 hour. Strain; remove excess fat* from broth.

Measure broth; add water if necessary to measure 1½ quarts. If desired, remove meat from bones. Return broth and lamb to Dutch oven. Bring to boil; stir in barley. Simmer covered 30 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Add ½ teaspoon salt, carrots and turnips; continue cooking covered for 20 minutes. Stir in scallions; simmer covered 10 minutes longer. Turn into soup tureen and sprinkle with parsley, if desired.

*For ease of removing fat, chill several hours or overnight to solidify fat.

Quick Rolls Are Seedy

Triangle Thins, quickly popped into the oven when the first guest arrives, bake quickly and deliciously — their special magic is toasty brown sesame seed.

Triangle Thins

1 can refrigerated crescent rolls
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon milk
1 tablespoon sesame seed

Unroll dough and separate into the 8 marked triangles; cut each triangle in half making two smaller triangles. Place on a lightly greased cookie sheet.

With a fork, beat together the egg yolk and milk; brush each triangle with this mixture, then sprinkle with sesame seed. Bake in 375 degree oven 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes 16.

Good Soup to Serve at Lunch Time

Here's a delicious way to treat a soup from the pantry-shelf.

Vegetable Shrimp Chowder

1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed cream of vegetable soup
1½ cups milk
1 can (4½ ounces) shrimp, rinsed in cold water and drained
2 tablespoons minced green pepper

Into a 1-quart saucepan turn an undiluted soup; gradually stir in the milk. Add the shrimp and green pepper. Heat slowly, stirring occasionally until extremely hot, but do not boil. Makes 3 hearty servings.

Caramelized Apples Served With Ice Cream

Most families appreciate the special attention of being served a homemade dessert. Sometimes you would like to satisfy that particular need but just don't have the time for long and involved dessert preparations.

★ ★ ★

For the homemaker who values her time but is always concerned that the needs of her family are satisfied, here is a nine-minute dessert.

Buttercrunch Apple Saute is that handy recipe. Fresh apples are sauteed in brown sugar and butter and then topped with a unique flavored ice cream.

Buttercrunch ice cream, a butterscotch flavored ice cream that is filled with chunks of nut toffee candy, completes this dessert's special flavor.

Unique yet familiar, this apple-ice cream combination is similar in flavor to popular hot apple pie a la mode but without the trouble of preparing pie crust. You prepare it on top of the stove.

Buttercrunch Apple Saute

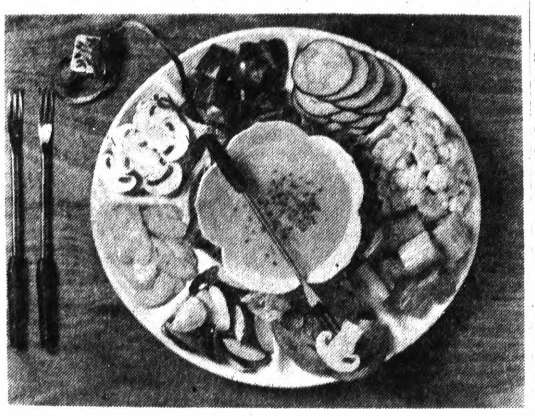
2 large apples, pared and cut in 1 inch wedges
¼ cup butter
¼ cup dark brown sugar
Buttercrunch ice cream

Melt half the butter in a frying pan. Add 2 tablespoons brown sugar and half the apples. Saute over medium heat until lightly browned and caramelized. Follow the same procedure until all the apples are sauteed.

To serve, top apples with a generous scoop of buttercrunch ice cream. Makes 4 servings.

Favorite in Past

Glas celery vases of one design or another were popular wedding gifts in the 19th century. Today some of the rarer vases are worth several hundred dollars.



FRUIT CHIVE DIP — Combine ¼ cup cornstarch; two cans (6 oz. each) frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed; one can (6 oz.) frozen concentrated pineapple juice, thawed; two cups water and two tablespoons frozen chopped chives. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until sauce bubbles and thickens. Serve hot or cold. Surround with quartered radishes, sliced raw carrots, raw "cauliflowerets," green pepper squares, cucumber slices, tomato wedges, raw mushroom slices, celery slices with forks for spearing and dunking.

Apple Cup Salad

Red apple cups make holiday salads festive. Scoop out a Golden or Red Delicious apple, filling it with a tasty fruit salad of chopped apple, white grapes, marshmallows, and chopped nuts. Top with mayonnaise, a sprig of mint.

Red Wings Fighting Slump

Sid Abel Eyes Aggressiveness

Detroiters Trying Rookie 'Sky Line'

MONTREAL (AP)—Manager-Coach Sid Abel says his Detroit Red Wings will have to be more aggressive if they hope to break a five-game winless string against the Montreal Canadiens tonight.

"If we're going to be a contender, we've got to play it tougher," Abel said. "We know we will have to play shorthanded against Montreal, but we've got to get in there and hit."

★ ★ ★

The Wings will be without forwards Dean Prentice and Paul Henderson, tonight and Floyd Smith is a doubtful starter.

In order to bolster the sagging front line, Abel recalled Gary Marsh from Fort Worth in the Central League Monday. Marsh had one goal and three assists in five games with the Wings earlier this season.

★ ★ ★

Prentice underwent surgery to correct infected sinuses in Detroit Monday but is expected to rejoin the team for Saturday's game at Pittsburgh.

INJURED FOOT

Henderson is still recovering from a dislocated shoulder and Smith remains hobbled by a broken bone in his foot.

Defenseman Kent Douglas underwent treatment for a pinched nerve Tuesday, but made the trip to Montreal. Abel said the injury is an old one and requires periodic treatment.

★ ★ ★

Bruce MacGregor, with a sprained ankle, and Bart Crashley, suffering from a bruised hip, made the trip, but Henderson remained in Detroit.

Shula Eyes 'Revenge' in Pro Tilt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach Don Shula, whose Baltimore Colts were knocked out of the Western Conference title race by the Los Angeles Rams in the National Football League, plans to get "revenge" in Sunday's East-West Pro Bowl game.

Shula—joking, of course — is back at what he calls the scene of the Rams' 34-10 "crime" as coach of the West team, which includes eight Rams.

★ ★ ★

"On kickoffs, you know we have what we call the 'suicide team' which goes down on the kick," Shula declared. "My plan is to include among the 11 players on this team the eight Rams.

"I've picked the guy who goes down first to destroy the wedge of blockers. He will be Roman Gabriel, without a question."

Gabriel happens to be the Rams' quarterback.

NINE PACKERS

Thre remaining three on the special team, Shula continued with a wide smile, will all be from the nine Green Bay Packer players here for the game.

Shula said he hadn't decided on all three Packers but one would be Don Chandler, whose speciality is field goals.

★ ★ ★

Coach Otto Graham of the Washington Redskins, who will guide the East, countered with a similar bit of strategy. His "suicide" team will include the world's fastest football player, Bob Hayes of the Dallas Cowboys, whose talents are utilized in catching long passes.

It was all in good fun at the annual pre-Pro Bowl luncheon attended by both squads. Graham, who starred in the first five All-Star games here, starting in 1951, promised the fans:

"You'll see a fine football game."

Bearcats Halt Bradley

Tall Center Spurs Cincinnati

By United Press International

Rick Roberson is a bearcat in deed as well as word.

Roberson, the strapping 6-foot-9 center of the Cincinnati Bearcats, wears his team's nickname like a badge of honor and is at his tenacious best against the toughest opposition, as high-scoring Joe Allen of Bradley can readily testify.

Allen, the Braves' slick pivot, carried a 25.1 point average into Tuesday night's game against 17th-ranked Cincinnati and barely got out with his life as Roberson manhandled him in pacing the Bearcats to a 77-66 victory.

The loss knocked Bradley out of a first place tie with Louisville in the Missouri Valley Conference race and elevated Cincinnati into a second place deadlock.

Roberson, whom coach Tay Baker calls "as strong a rebounder as there is in college today," held Allen to seven points and scored 23 himself as the taller Bearcats raised their MVC record to 3-1 and overall mark to 10-3. Cincinnati meets Louisville, 4-1 in league play, in a regionally televised contest on Saturday.

★ ★ ★

DePaul overcame Niagara and Calvin Murphy 79-72 in the top intersectional game on a sparse national schedule.

Tom Tracy, DePaul's high scorer with 24 points, popped in a pair of jump shots from the key in the final minutes to stifle a Niagara rally led by Murphy, who finished with a game high of 36 points.

Central Michigan Pads Home Streak

MOUNT PLEASANT (AP) — Central Michigan breezed to its 30th consecutive home court basketball victory Tuesday night with six players in double figures as the Chippewas dismantled the University of Windsor 104-57.

★ ★ ★

Led by senior Willie Iverson's 18 points, Central boosted its over-all record above .500 to 8-7 in the nonleague game, which gave the Chippewas a string of five consecutive triumph.

Central, with a 56 per cent shooting average, led at the half 51-26.

Windsor, now 5-6 for the year, was paced by 16 points from senior Bob Navetta.

I Bet You Didn't Know

Everybody always associates Babe Ruth with the Yankees, but how many fans know he also played with two other teams in the big leagues? . . . Can you name the teams Ruth played for, beside the Yanks? . . . Answer is the Red Sox and the Braves.

★ ★ ★

Who was the first American to run the mile in under four minutes? . . . His name: Don Bowden . . . He ran his sub-four minute mile while he was a student at the University of California in 1957.

★ ★ ★

Here's a basketball puzzler for you . . . Suppose a team gets many fouls called on it, with one player after another fouling out and soon they have no substitutes to replace the disqualified players—and they have only four players left . . . They can't put the required five players on the floor . . . What happens then? . . . Does the game stop? . . . The official rules say a team must keep on playing even if it has only four or fewer players remaining.

Investors Apprehensive

Market Down in Active Trade

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market dipped in active trading early today.

In the first half hour of trading the Dow Jones Average of 30 Industrials declined 2.66 to 884.48.

Declines of individual stocks held a narrow margin over advances.

★ ★ ★

Brokers said investors seemed apprehensive over the possible market reaction of proposals to be made by President Johnson in his State of the Union message tonight.

GNP RISE

However, they felt that the 1967 fourth - quarter rise in the Gross National Product should encourage potential buyers of stock.

Rubbers, aircrafts, nonferrous metals and chemicals were mostly lower.

Opening blocks included Raymond International, up ⅛ at 20 on 12,000 shares; Eaton Yale, off ½ at 32 on 12,500 shares, Riegel Textile, up ⅝ at 48¾ on 10,300 shares.

★ ★ ★

The Associated Press 60-Stock Average declined 2.4 to 321.3 Tuesday.

Pontiac Kennel Club Show Draws 80 Breeds

Pontiac Press Photo

ICY SUCCESS — Robert Reinke, 3520 Frankman, Waterford Township, holds the largest—12 inches—of a nice splake catch taken last weekend at Maceday Lake. His sons, Ron (left) and Randy, joined in the action. Several limit catches of the brook-lake trout hybrid have been made on the lake with minnows the best bait.

CAI Building Site of Sunday's Event

Dogs representing 80 breeds will parade before the judges Sunday in the annual Pontiac Kennel Club show.

★ ★ ★

Judging of the 602 canines will get under way at 9 a.m. in the CAI Building on Williams Lake Road in Waterford Township. The top showman will be determined about 6 p.m.

The owner of this dog will receive The Pontiac Press Best-in-Show Trophy.

"Having a total of 80 breeds is almost unbelievable," said Mrs. E. A. Kraft, secretary of PKC and show chairman. She also pointed out that almost 25 per cent of the entry is comprised of dogs in the working group.

Entries were limited to 600 this winter and Mrs. Kraft said this number was reached one week before the Jan. 9 deadline. Well over 250 entries were received by the Bow Dog Show Organization, superintendent for the show, after the limit had been reached. These were returned.

The size of the CAI building resulted in the limit being placed. This also is the reason there will be no obedience competition.

Judges are Raymond H. Beale, Orchard Park, N.Y.; Kenneth W. Given, Syracuse, N.Y.; Anthony Stamm, Kalamazoo; and Henry H. Stoecker, Holmdel, N.J.

Beale will select best-in-show.

TOP ENTRY

German shepherd dogs lead the entry list with 38. Irish setters are next with 36 followed by 27 Doberman pinschers, 25 Afghan hounds and 24 rough collies. There will be 33 miniature, toy and standard poodles.

Some of the more unusual breeds are Komondorok, Pulik, Rottweiler, bullmastiffs, Great Pyrenees, Belgian Tervuren and Briard.

This is an unbenched show meaning the dogs can be removed from the building when eliminated from competition.

Junior showmanship is scheduled for 2 p.m. Group selection will get under way about 4:30.

Splake Active on Area Lake

Panfish, Pike Angling Reported Spotty

Action on splake continues good at Maceday and rainbows have been hitting at Teeple Lake.

★ ★ ★

This information tops the ice fishing news in the area. Bluegills are spotty and the crappie fishing has slowed at Kent Lake. Few pike are being taken — on tipups or spears — and perch have been inconsistent on Saginaw Bay and Lake St. Clair.

This is the first winter that splake, a cross between brook and lake trout, have been legal in Oakland County.

Numerous limit catches of five splake each have been made at Maceday. Minnows are the best bait, fished in four to seven feet of water. The splake average about 10 inches.

FAST GROWTH

These hybrids were stocked in Maceday in the fall of 1966 as three-inch fingerlings. No rainbows have been planted in the lake since 1964.

★ ★ ★

Some pike are being taken at Lake St. Clair in the Middle channel and Muscamoot Bay. Few large ones, however, are showing up. The Houghton Lake Tipup Town Festival will be the next two weekends with a variety of activities planned.

FISHEYE VIEW — A fisheye view from a fisheye lens produced this picture of ice angler Otto Schneider, 65, Lannon, Wis., on Pewaukee Lake. Schneider went fishing 70 times last winter and is well on the way to bettering that mark this year.

Liberalize Beaver Trapping Laws

Trapping regulations adopted by the State Conservation Commission will allow a generally liberal harvest of beaver and a more conservative harvest of otter.

★ ★ ★

They are patterned much after last year's regulations which resulted in a good yield of more than 14,000 beaver and some 600 otter.

One major change from last year will lengthen the season in the Upper Peninsula west of the eastern borders of Baraga and Iron counties. The season there will be from March 2 to April 22. The bag limit will be eight beaver and two otter.

Trapping regulations through the rest of the Upper Peninsula and the Lower Peninsula will generally follow 1967. For all but a few special areas the bag limit will be six beaver and two otter.

In the southern third of the state, otter will be out on the legal trapping list and one animal will be allowed.

★ ★ ★

The Haymarsh State Game Area in Mecosta County will be reopened to beaver trapping under a permit system but only 15 permits will be allowed.

Hunting Ban Hearings Contrast

The initial public hearings held yesterday by the state's new hunting area control committee were as different as day and night.

In the morning session at the Orion Township hall, residents spoke in favor of closing six sections of the township to hunting, citing danger to "life and buildings."

No one spoke against the requested closures.

The committee moved to Shelby Township in the afternoon. Nine persons objected to any curtailment of hunting in sections of the township. There was no support for the ban.

Regular members of the committee will be Kenneth McCord, a law enforcement executive in the Conservation Department's Lansing office; and Major Paul Gaboury of the State Police headquarters in Lansing.

They will be joined by the township supervisors and a representative of the county sheriff's department at each hearing.

Supervisor John Lessiter and Sheriff Frank Irons joined the committee for the Orion hearing.

★ ★ ★

The committee was established by the last Legislature to help solve problems created by expanding construction in areas open to hunting.

The committee convenes at the request of a township board and holds a public hearing to air the problem. It then conducts an investigation and makes recommendations to the Conservation Commission. Another public hearing is held on the recommendations before the commission takes final action.

The result of the commission action is then placed before the originating township board for approval or rejection.

Waterfowl hunting on Lake Orion and other lakes in the area has created a safety problem, according to residents who spoke at the Orion meeting. They are requesting that sections 1, 2, 3, 10, 11 and 12 be closed to hunting.

★ ★ ★

Trespass violations, shooting from the water too close to homes and shot striking buildings and falling in yards were arguments pressed for closing the sections.

Boat Show Will Feature New Products

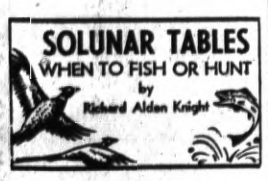
Four new features will highlight the Sixth Annual Michigan National Boat, Sports and Vacation Show in Cobo Hall from Jan. 27 through Feb. 4.

The most striking of these will be the public debut of the first houseboat manufactured by Chris Craft.

The two largest sailboats ever at the show, a 50-foot Columbia and a 40-foot Cal, will be displayed.

A new camper-boat product, the Hobo, will be introduced to Michigan boat show audiences for the first time. A Canadian product, the Hobo is a camper trailer which converts into an amphibious power boat.

Robert M. Gordon, president of Exhibitions, Inc., producers of the Michigan show, announced that approximately 200 different boats would be on display.



The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables.

Snowmobile Regulations Object of Special Study

LANSING (AP) — Lawmakers and several state agencies are studying proposed legislation designed to register and regulate the use of snowmobiles in Michigan.

Representatives of the Legislature, State Police and Conservation, Highway and State departments met Monday with members of the Michigan Snowmobile Association to review a proposed bill drawn up by the association.

★ ★ ★

Another meeting of interested agencies and the association will be held in Lansing on Jan. 29 in an attempt to draft a bill satisfactory to all concerned, said Sen. Thomas Schweigert, R-Petoskey.

★ ★ ★

"While there were differences of opinion expressed on several points," said Schweigert, "we feel we are not far apart."

STREET USE

State Police officials were particularly concerned, he said, over dangers involved in use of snowmobiles on streets, county roads or highways because the vehicles are hard for motorists to see.

On the other hand, association officials were worried that banning snowmobiles from using portions of highways would, in some instances, stymie cross country safaris now being promoted by snowmobile groups.

Schweigert said there also were questions regarding the roles of the various agencies in regulating use of the vehicles, the cost of a registration fee, what agency should be given funds to construct snowmobile trails and which should administer them.

Also of concern were question of whether all operators or just owners should be required to present a certificate of registration when stopped by a peace officer, and age limits, if any, of operators.

Department Opens Trainee Positions

Ten different trainee job classes with the Department of Conservation are open for examtaking applications from persons who have earned college degrees or hope to by Oct. 1.

★ ★ ★

The deadline is 5 p.m., Jan. 29, to apply through the Civil Service Commission in Lansing in a bid to qualify for open competitive tests covering these trainee positions:

Aquatic biologists, biometricians, conservation resource planners, fisheries biologists, foresters, game biologists, geologists, land appraisers, park interpreters and park managers.

★ ★ ★

For more information about these trainee classes and the minimum requirements covering them, contact the Civil Service Commission or the personnel division of the Conservation Department in Lansing.

Easy Ice Victory for Lake Superior

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) — Lake Superior State College took a 2-0 lead into the third period Tuesday night, then scored eight times in the final frame to defeat St. Cloud State College 10-0 in an International Collegiate Hockey Association game.

★ ★ ★

Salmon Program Now Under Way in Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Charles Lloyd, head of the state Fish Management Bureau, reports that the Wisconsin Conservation Division is preparing for a coho stocking program in the Great Lakes next year.

A Bayfield hatchery is raising 160,000 cohos, and 90,000 more will be raised at the Nevin Hatchery near Madison, Lloyd told the State Conservation Commission.

★ ★ ★

"We will be making a token planting of salmon in Lake Michigan next spring to determine what they'll do," he said.

Lloyd said other Great Lakes have begun salmon planting.

The commission approved spending $3,600 for 20,000 pounds of salmon food.
