Bill of Rights

Being the First Ten Amendments
OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

I
Freedom of Religion, Speech, and the Press; Right of Assembly and Petition

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

II
Right to Keep and Bear Arms

A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

III
Quartering of Soldiers

No soldier shall in time of peace be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner prescribed by law.

IV
Regulation of Right of Search and Seizure

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized.

V
Protection for Persons and Their Property

No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger, nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb, nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law, nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

VI
Rights of Persons Accused of Crime

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation, to be confronted with the witnesses against him, to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

VII
Right of Trial by Jury at Common Law

In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

VIII
Protection Against Excessive Bail and Punishments

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

IX
Constitution Does Not List All Individual Rights

The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

X
Powers Reserved to the States and the People

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

Our Constitution and its Bill of Rights are founded on the religious conviction that every human life is sacred. They assure freedom, and release the creative powers of men. As shield and armor, they protect life, liberty and property, for you and your children. Know and guard them well.

Five Top Men Ousted in Big Kremlin Shuffle

Willman Not Worried

Sees No Current Need for Probe of Police

Current bickering between Police Chief Herbert W. Straley and the Police Officers Assn. is nothing more than a "clash of personalities," City Manager Walter K. Willman declared Wednesday.

Willman said he saw no need for an investigation of the police department at this time, but added "there is room for improvement" and that "a study by a competent expert or experts would possibly do considerable good."

"As of now nothing has been presented to me that indicates there is anything seriously wrong in the police department except a clash of personalities of a few groups," he said.

Yesterday, city commissioners agreed that if the department affairs were to be probed, it would rest with the Civil Service Commission to perform the investigation.

The Press expressed in a Monday editorial that such an investigation is necessary. Donald S. Leonard, former State Police commissioner, was suggested for such a study.

The city manager said he would leave the selection of an investigator to the City Commission. He added: "I have a high regard for Leonard a a police officer, but there are others in the country as good."

Willman inferred that after the three-man commission has formulated rules governing jurisdiction over the police department, he would suggest a "study" be made.

Willman, who holds the post of director of public safety in addition to being city manager, earlier said he had "complete confidence in Straley."

The association, numbering some 95 officers, has announced it would favor an investigation of the department. Heads of the group say they have evidence against their ex-Marine major boss which warrants his ouster.

Willman said he has neither seen nor heard any charges against Straley.

"I have received minor grievances which are purely administrative matters," he added.

Building Falls, 3 Die, 8 Injured

Collapse of Old Stone Structure in Kansas Wrecks Adjacent Units

TONGANOXIE, Kan. (AP) — A time-weakened native stone building collapsed in a shattering avalanche that wrecked two adjoining structures and killed three men in this small eastern Kansas town yesterday.

Eight other persons, two of whom had to be dug from the tangled debris, were injured.

The three who were killed died while rescuers, themselves imperiled by masonry falling from partly standing walls, sought for more than four hours to free them.

The dead were Claude Reynolds, 76, retired McLouth, Kan., laborer; Charles Farrell, 25, McLouth farmer; and George Stephenson, 60, Tonganoxie cattle trader. They were in a pool hall on the first floor of the two-story main building, which collapsed into its basement.

Mrs. Earl Grady and Hobe Hall were dug from the wreckage. Mrs. Grady, who suffered a sprained back, was freed shortly after the crash but Hall, an employe of the pool hall, was trapped for nearly four hours. He suffered severe bruises, lacerations and shock.

Deputy Sheriff Elmer Parmer said the collapse apparently started Tuesday when part of the foundation of the 78-year-old two-story building gave way.

At 2 p.m. yesterday the west wall of the building collapsed outward against an adjacent barber-shop and cleaning establishment. This plummeted a second-story apartment through the street-level pool hall and into the basement. A portion of the east wall collapsed, wrecking a cafe.

Stalinists Out; Leadership Kept by Khrushchev

Molotov, Malenkov With Those Losing High Posts in Bloodless Purge

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev and his policies of peaceful coexistence abroad and government decentralization at home emerged victorious today from the biggest Kremlin upheaval since the Stalinist 1930s.

These policies and everything else the pudgy Communist party secretary stand for won the overwhelming approval of the Communist Party Central Committee that ousted his bitterest, diehard Stalinist opponents for opposing the softer line Khrushchev laid down at the 20th Party Congress in February 1956.

The sweeping reshuffle of the party leadership, announced last night, also left Khrushchev surrounded by men—and one woman—identified as supporters of his policies.

Five men were dropped from the party's ruling Presidium.

Nine new faces, most of them previously of minor importance, were added, and the membership was expanded from 11 to 15.

Specific charges against those ousted indicated a renewal of the Soviet drive for better relations with Yugoslavia and the West. Moscow radio said their removal "constitutes a further major victory in the cause of peace and cooperation between nations" because they had "impeded the stronger affirmation of a policy of peace and active co-existence." "But Pravda in an editorial just before announcement of the changes warned that no one would be permitted to go "against the majority in the party, against the Central Committee."

Iranian Death Toll Hits 750; May Exceed 1,000 in Battered Area

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Hunger, thirst and sickness today plagued the half million Iranians living in the earthquake-battered arc around the south end of the Caspian Sea.

Families who fled to the countryside after the violent shocks Tuesday faced the additional hazard of attacks by wild animals. Wolves were reported to have injured several persons who fled to the woods from the devastated villages of Rineh, Assack and Bijestan.

The known official death toll was 750, with prospects of rising to more than 1,000. More than 3,000 persons were missing from ruined villages, but many of these were believed to have found safety in the country.

It was the most deadly quake since a temblor in Algeria which killed 1,400 persons in September 1954.

Fifteen hundred persons were seriously injured in North Iran, more than 100 villages wrecked, and property worth more than 12½ million dollars destroyed. With telegraph lines down and roads blocked by avalanches, the only means of communication in much of the 50,000-square-mile area were runners and horsemen.

Storms Possible Today and Tonight

There was a possibility of scattered thunderstorms this afternoon and tonight in the Pontiac area.

Predicted high winds and severe thunderstorms failed to materialize yesterday afternoon and last night.

Heavy rain, which fell in Southeastern Oakland County communities missed the Pontiac area completely.

The Weather Bureau predicted partly cloudy skies today and tonight with a high today of 87 and a low tonight of 68.

In downtown Pontiac, the lowest temperature preceding 8 a.m. was 68.

Thomson Fires 69 in British Open

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Gene Andrews, former U.S. public links champion from Pacific Palisades, Calif., shot a 76 today in the second round of the British Open golf championship today for a 36-hole total of 154.

He had a 78 yesterday in his opening round over the 6,996-yard par 36-36—72 St. Andrews Old Course.

Peter Thomson of Australia, who is trying to win his fourth straight British Open title, came in with a 69 after a shaky 73 yesterday. This made him the leader among the early finishers.

WHO CARES ABOUT THE HEAT — Holiday weather was ideal for enjoyment of the many lakes and parks in this area. The above picture was taken at Pontiac Lake. Parks and public beaches were expected to accommodate capacity crowds.

Thousands Hit the Roads

Some predicted bad weather failed to materialize today as thousands of Oakland County residents crowded highways in the early morning on their way to swimming, golfing, fishing and picnicking.

Roads leading into Oakland County's lake area were also jammed with Detroit area people bound for a non-city holiday.

Both State Police and the Oakland County Sheriff's office reported full loads of police patroling the highways early in the day, with the vigil to continue far into the night.

Swimming and picnicking areas were crowded early in the day, with late comers expected to swell the load to the bursting point by mid-afternoon.

With the beaches crowded to capacity, safety officials repeated their earlier warnings about water safety in an effort to hold down an accidental drowning toll. Nationally, four had drowned by very early morning.

Police officials said they expect a rush on the highways just after dark and urged holidayers to head for home before that time, or much later.

Although many persons have the long, four-day weekend to celebrate the Fourth of July, enough are due back at work to create a traffic hazard late in the day, police said.

Many entertainment areas are planning fireworks displays to hold some cars from the road until after the rush. Some have other special entertainment planned.

Governor Williams will spend a busy holiday taking part in a series of parades, picnics and meetings which will carry him from Port Huron to Mt. Pleasant.

Parades, Picnics, Relaxing Mark Fourth of July

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In a gala mood, Americans throughout the nation today marked the 181st anniversary of our independence with parades, picnics, sports events of all kinds, fireworks displays and just plain relaxing.

The long holiday weekend—the last four-day Fourth celebration was in 1950—saw millions traveling by auto, bus, train and plane and headed for sun and fun at mountain and beach resorts.

With an estimated 45 million motor vehicles on the move, the National Safety Council urged care on the highways and hoped its grim estimate of 535 traffic fatalities would not materialize.

President Eisenhower was at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm, having flown there last evening from Washington.

American families in Japan spent a quiet Fourth of July. In Tokyo, U.S. Ambassador Douglas MacArthur II was host to American and Japanese dignitaries at an embassy reception.

Woman Killed in M87 Crash

Victim Is First Fatality of Holiday Weekend; Car Hit Truck

Oakland County recorded the first holiday traffic fatality in the state when a 59-year-old Clarkston woman was killed last night as thousands of motorists poured through the county headed for a long holiday.

Killed in a one car-tractor-trailer collision on M87 in Holly Township was Mrs. Florence Gallagher, of 4247 LaForest St.

Injured in the accident, which occurred around 9 p.m., were Mrs. Margaret E. James, 37, of 6839 Saline Dr., Waterford, and her three children, Michael M., 10, Donna C., 6, and Gary W., 4.

The injured were taken to Pontiac General Hospital where Mrs. James was admitted with a possible concussion. She was reported in good condition today. The three children were treated last night and released.

Sprouts Wings and Flies

'Car' Has Real 'Up' Swept Look

Yesterday morning, Leland (Dewey) Bryan, 33, of Milford, drove his auto down Highland road, turned right into the Pontiac Airport, unfolded some wings and took off.

OFFICIAL OK

Although Dewey had taken several test-flights in the unique Auto-plane in a cow pasture near his home, yesterday's performance was for the benefit of Joseph J. Manning, Safety Agent for the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

In spite of a gusty 25-mile-an-hour wind, Dewey came through with flying colors, and Manning presented the designer-inventor with a certificate permitting him to drive or fly his machine within a 25-mile radius of Milford for one year, the first government approval for the project.

Bryan is a mechanic at the General Motors Proving Ground and lives with his wife and three daughters at 597 Skinner Rd., Milford.

This is the second Auto-plane that Bryan and his father, Leland Sr., have built in their spare time. The tiny one-seater has an air-cruising speed of up to 90 miles per hour.

Two nine-gallon wing-tanks supply the fuel for the auto-plane, which has a tricycle gear with three small support wheels.

It's land-cruising speed is more than 60 miles per hour, and it weighs a mere 720 pounds. Dewey pushes it around on the ground with all the ease of wheeling a go-cart.

After yesterday's successful flight, Bryan plans to make his first "legal" trip by air—to work. With the consent of GM officials, he hopes to land on a strip designed for planes on the property.

WILL DRIVE HOME

After work, he plans to fold up the wings and drive it home on the highway—"to show people that it can be done."

Dewey explained that in building his auto-plane, he has learned how to make additional modifications, should he ever build another machine.

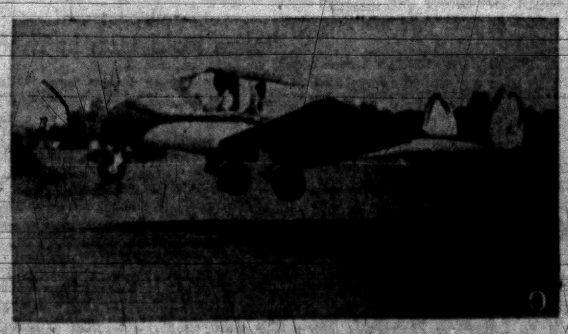
Improved sketches are on his drawing board at the present time. However—it takes financial backing, and Bryan is looking for that "angle" to help make his dream available for family use through mass production.



Up, Up, and Away

Opportunity to Become Dictator

Nikita More Powerful Than Ever

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev emerged today as a far more powerful figure than he has ever been—possibly with the opportunity of building himself into a dictator.

This was the assessment here of the situation in Moscow in the wake of the expulsion yesterday of four top Soviet officials from the Communist party leadership.

Ousted from the party's Central Committee and its powerful Presidium, or Politburo, were Georgi Malenkov, V. M. Molotov, L. M. Kaganovich and Dmitri Shepilov. They were accused of activities "directed at breaking up the party."

NO POLICY CHANGES

Since Communist party boss Khrushchev has been the dominant leader for several years, the expectation here is that the ouster of the four—apparently because they wanted to return to Stalinism in some respects—does not mean that basic Soviet foreign and domestic policies will be altered.

On the contrary, Washington experts believe that the policies of "peaceful coexistence," negotiating with the West on disarmament, seeking to extend Soviet influence in Asia and the Middle East, and trying to develop Russia internally will be pursued perhaps even more vigorously than before.

In the simplest terms, Khrushchev appears to have succeeded in ridding himself of several "no" men in the Presidium, the policy-making body of the party and the real center of power in the Soviet Union.

"STRESSES AND STRAINS"

The first official U.S. comment on the shakeup came from the State Department, where press officer Lincoln White said it demonstrates the "stresses and and strains" under which the Soviet system operates.

The ousters excited intense curiosity in the highest official quarters in Washington. While there had been some sign of spectacular events in the making, the actual removal of men whose names have been prominent in Soviet leadership for years struck this capital by surprise.

President Eisenhower met with the National Security Council yesterday afternoon shortly before Moscow radio announced the ousters. There was speculation the council discussed the impending move in Russia.

NO ONE TOO BIG

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said later that the Soviets had "telegraphed their comment on the ousters, but he replied "Certainly" when he was asked whether the White House had had any advance indication of what was coming.

He cited an editorial in yesterday's edition of Pravda, the Russian Communist party's newspaper. That editorial, published in advance of the ouster announcement, said no Communist was too big to be expelled from the party for straying. It mentioned no names.

Hagerty also cited cancellation of a scheduled visit to Czechoslovakia by Khrushchev and Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin, and postponement of an aerial review originally planned for a few days ago.

ABSENT FROM RECEPTION

Diplomats reported that in the past three days Molotov, Malenkov and Kaganovich had been absent from a diplomatic reception and an appearance at the Bolshoi Theater when other Presidium members were present.

Analyzing the Pravda editorial, State Department officials were struck by its emphasis on the determination of the party leadership to follow the anti-Stalinist line laid down at the 20th Party Congress in Moscow last year. That was the Congress at which Khrushchev made his direct attack on Stalin.

The significance of this element in the editorial seemed to be that Khrushchev was in control of the party line.

Ever since Stalin's death in March 1953, there has been periodic argument among top American specialists on the Soviet Union as to whether the system of committee rule which replaced Stalin's dictatorship could survive.

NO ANSWER FOR YEARS?

The answer may not be known for months or even years.

The one point on which there seemed to be general agreement was that Khrushchev, who has sometimes been described as "first among equals" or the "chairman of the board," stands out now as a very powerful man, able to decide the fate of those who too long and too persistently disagree with him.

The Day in Birmingham

Seeks Permit for Building First Four Story Dwelling

BIRMINGHAM—Presently zoned for terraces, property on North Woodward has come under a request for the construction of a four - story apartment, fronting Woodward.

According to the plans of Irwin I. Cohn, the remaining land area would be used for patios, gardens, flood control and purposes other than inhabitable building.

Cohn says terrace construction is "inadvisable," on the property. He points out that a four-story apartment will permit the same dwelling space with less land use.

Planners have already rejected his plea in the many discussions held on his holdings.

Following his presentation of suggested agreement, which would allow the construction of the city's first four-story dwelling, commissioners withheld any decision and set a hearing date for July 29.

Fireworks under the sponsorship of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce will be shown tonight at 9 in the football field at the high school. Last year's crowd of 15,000 is expected to be exceeded.

Birmingham firemen answered a total of 34 calls last month. Of the 27 reports of fire, estimated damages totaled $30. Five first aid runs were made and two false alarms received.

James M. Malcolm

Services for James M. Malcolm, 75, of 735 Ann St., will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow from Bell Chapel of the William R. Hamilton Co. here. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Malcolm died at his residence Tuesday after a long illness.

A native of Illinois, for the past 15 years he had been associated with the Michigan Employment and Security Commission. Prior to that he had been a plant manager for a manufacturer of heavy hardware in East Alton, Ill.

He is survived by his wife, Elizabeth B., and a son, James M. Jr., both of Birmingham.

the reshuffle—and the one most bitterly condemned — was stony-faced V. M. Molotov, 67-year-old Bolsheyik associate of Stalin, long-time premier and foreign minister and one of the West's most unyielding foes.

Georgi M. Malenkov, Stalin's successor as premier, and First Deputy Premier Lazar M. Kaganovich also were expelled from the Presidium and the Central Committee.

Former Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov lost his place as a candidate, or alternate, member of the Presidium and as one of the party secretaries. Economic expert Mikhail Pervukhin was demoted to candidate membership and Maxim Saburov, Russia's top economic planner until last December, was dropped from the Presidium.

Moscow radio today denounced the activities of Molotov, Malenkov, Kaganovich and Shepilov as "criminal" and "traitorous." In Stalin's time such charges would also most certainly have meant death. But the party committee's communique still referred to them as "comrades" and said they had not been expelled from party membership. Western observers considered this meant they would be treated leniently.

There was no indication, however, whether they would retain their posts in the Soviet government. Molotov is minister of state control, Malenkov is minister of electric power stations, Kaganovich was in labor control and Shepilov in party propaganda work.

Up the ladder to full Presidium membership went Mrs. Ekaterina Furtseva, the Soviet Union's top woman official and the first of her sex ever to reach the ruling Presidium; Marshal Georgi Zhukov, the defense minister; Central Committee Secretaries A. B. Aristov, N. I. Belyayev, Leonid Brezhnev and F. R. Kozlov; Otto Kuusinen, aged Communist of Finnish origin and one of the few surviving executives of the Comintern; Nikolai Shvernik, a member of Stalin's Politburo who had been demoted to alternate membership; and N. G. Ignatov, a provincial party chieftain and former secretary of the Central Committee.

The six holdovers on the Presidium are Khrushchev, Premier Nikolai Bulganin, Ukrainian party boss A. I. Kirichenko, trade expert A. I. Mikoyan, M. A. Suslov, leading Communist propagandist and ideologist, and Klementi Voroshilov, the figurehead president of the Soviet Union.

The Central Committee resolution accused Molotov, Malenkov, Kaganovich and Shepilov of favoring a resumption of the full cold war abroad and of opposing Khrushchev's plan for agricultural expansion and industrial decentralization at home.

It charged that all four men—and Molotov especially — opposed the foreign and domestic policies of Khrushchev and the rest of the Soviet collective leadership at every turn.

Three of the four, the party announcement said, submitted to the committee's decision and meekly voted for their own expulsion.

Molotov abstained — the only committee member to do so.

Girard's Japanese Bride Readies Wedding Clothes

KAGOHARA, Japan (AP) — William S. Girard's Japanese bride rented a flowered Japanese silk Kimono and gold-embroidered obi for $5.55 today to wear for her church marriage to the Ottawa, Ill., soldier.

Haru (Candy) Sueyama also picked out a plain gold wedding band to put on Girard's finger tomorrow during the religious rites in the little chapel at Camp Whittington.

Girard, 21-year-old Army specialist third class, is restricted to the camp pending the outcome of an international wrangle over whether Japan or the Army shall try him for killing a Japanese woman while on guard duty on a firing range.

The soldier and his 27-year-old fiancee were married according to Japanese law by the signing of documents Tuesday. But he said he would not consider them wed until a U.S. Army chaplain performs the religious ceremony.

Candy, who does not own a formal silk kimono, inspected dozens in one of Kagohara's largest stores. Finally she settled on a print of huge red peonies—traditionally used on happy occasions in Japan—splashed on a white and pale pink background.

The wide obi, or sash, is of pink silk with delicate gold embroidery. Underneath she will wear another kimono of snow white raw silk and on her feet will be white enameled thong sandals.

Candy said she had decided against the traditional high Japanese hairdo. Instead she will wear her hair in its usual Western fashion, with flowers in it.

Urges Knighthood for Producer Todd

LONDON (INS) — The London Daily Mirror devoted its entire front page today to the proposition that American Producer Michael Todd be given a knighthood.

The mirror, largest daily circulation newspaper in the world, recommended that Queen Elizabeth see Todd's "Around the World in 80 Days" because "it has captured the unchanging spirit of Britain . . and will sell the British spirit to the world."

Fourth of July Day of Fighting in Civil War

ANN ARBOR (AP)—Independence Day was just another day of fighting in 1863 during the Civil War.

A diary of a Union soldier, now at the University of Michigan historical collections, tells of artillery fire and foraging for food among the blue-clad troops.

It is the diary of Henry Mortimer Hempstead, who grew up in Marshall, Mich., before he joined the Union forces. Hempstead was in Tennessee when he chronicled his activities on July 4, 1863.

"When we reached camp," he wrote, "a dispatch had just come to headquarters announcing the fall of Vicksburg and the defeat of Robert E. Lee's army in Maryland or Pennsylvania. There was great rejoicing in camp."

History relates the fall of the Confederate citadel at Vicksburg, Miss., and the capture of 29,000 southern troops on July 4, 1863. It gave the north command of the Mississippi River and split the Confederacy in two parts. The campaign toward Vicksburg had lasted 17 battle-filled months.

The reference in the diary to Lee's defeat in "Maryland or Pennsylvania" was, actually, an account of the battle of Gettysburg. The date was July 3, 1863. That victorious Fourth of July holiday 94 years ago was, perhaps, the turning point of the Civil War.

Know the Weather

By E. H. SIMS

Where should you build your camp, or summer house, to get the breeze? If you place it in the bottom of a depression, or valley, will it be as well ventilated as it would on the top of a hill, or on the side of a slope?

You probably know that a house built in a bottom doesn't get the breeze — but why? First, of course, it lies too low to feel the effects of surface winds as much as higher structures. But even more important, in some cases, is the fact that it lies out of reach of heat radiation movements.

A house on the side of a slope will experience the passage of warm air rising out of the lower areas in day and the descent of cold air at night, which means desirable ventilation in the summer. The house at the bottom of the slope will not feel the same effects, to any such degree.

So if you want to get maximum ventilation for your summer house or camp, build it on the side of a good slope, or atop a hill. This is just one consideration, however, and the job can be done with mechanical devices too, so do not overestimate the importance of natural ventilation — even though it is good to be aware of its processes, which can sometimes be utilized.

for miles headed north last night and early this morning.

Traffic fatalities in the nation up to 3 a.m. today stood at 14. There were four drowning victims and two deaths from miscellaneous accidents.

In Michigan, Clarence Johns, 55, of Hale, drowned when his boat capsized in Loon Lake, Iosco County.

The National Safety Council has estimated that the traffic death toll will reach 535 at the end of the four-day holiday. Death toll for July 4 last year was 137.

RECORD POSSIBLE

A new record for the Fourth of July holiday period would be set if the NSC's estimate is reached. The record of 491 was set during a four-day observation in 1950.

The fatal accident here occurred, deputies said, when a truck driven by Oscar William Fancher, 45, of Grand Ledge, stalled as it apparently was backing into a driveway off M87, a half mile west of Milford road.

The Gallagher woman was a passenger in the car driven by Mrs. James. The driver told officers she "saw a flash of light and then the crash."

Fancher told deputies he saw the James car approaching and attempted to flag it to a stop. He was not injured.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Sharpe Funeral Home in Clarkston.

Hurricane Death Toll Rises to 700

Damage to Property Nears $100 Million as Cleanup Continues

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Cleanup operations in the hurricane-battered fishing town of Cameron went on at high pitch despite the holiday today with latest estimates placing the death toll around 700 and property damage near 100 million dollars.

Sheriff Ham Reid of Calcaseiu Parish (county) told newsmen 301 bodies have been recovered. Parish Coroner Dr. Harry Snatic estimated "at least 400 more persons are missing."

Reid said an official list of the missing, the first such attempted, had been started with 58 names already entered. Of the 301 known dead, 112 were unidentified.

Identification continued to be one of the main problems due to the condition of the bodies.

Dr. Guillermo Vasquez, head of the local state health unit, said Cameron is not habitable now and added "there is no accurate determination" when it will be ready for its citizens to move back.

Three Men Injured in Accident on U.S. 10

Three men were injured last night in a two-car accident on U.S. 10 at Williams Lake road in Waterford Township.

Listed in good condition at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital are Bernard Hogan, 46, of Marquette and Joseph Biggler, 22, of Mt. Pleasant. Hogan suffered a possible black injury and Biggler a possible head injury, the hospital said.

Hogan's father, Michael, 81, of Marquette was released after treatment for minor cuts.

The accident happened when William DeRouse, 22, of 650 W. Walton Rd., attempted a left turn onto Williams Lake. His car was struck by Bernard Hogan's, travelling southbound in the opposite direction.

DeRouse, with whom Biggler was riding, said his vision was blocked by another car, State Police said.

Police Hold Man in Theft

Pontiac police today were holding a 22-year-old man for investigation of the theft of $52.50 from a beauty shop at 78½ N. Saginaw St.

He is suspected of removing a screen and entering the shop through a window about closing time Monday afternoon, Det. James Bale said.

An employe, Mrs. Frances Maciag, who was temporarily out of the shop, said the window was unlocked, Bale added. Mrs. Maciag lives at 97 Fairgrove Ave.

10,000 Bibles Going to Hurricane Victims

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas for Christ Evangelistic Assn. will distribute 10,000 Bibles to refugees from Hurricane Audrey, the director of the movement said yesterday.

The Rev. Bernard C. Morris of Dallas said the Bibles will be inscribed: "To our Louisiana friends, from your Texas neighbors, with Christian love."

Queen Loans U.S. Tight-Lipped Help

LONDON (INS) — The London Daily Express reported today Queen Elizabeth has loaned Harold E. Stassen a butler and three maids from Buckingham Palace to ensure security when he entertains during the London disarmament talks.

The newspaper said that during a recent house party given by the chief U. S. delegate to the talks, some officials made indiscreet remarks.

The palace staff is well known to be button-lipped security conscious, the Express noted, and will work for three months in Stassen's 12-bedroom house in swank Belgravia to cater to the delegates.

Traffic Ticket Awaits Return of Brewster

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A traffic ticket today awaits the return of Frank W. Brewster, West Coast head of the Teamsters Union, whose car was involved in a collision with a pickup truck Friday night.

Brewster, 60, was charged with running a red light in a citation issued yesterday on the recommendation of the police department. He and two passengers suffered minor injuries in the collision.

Reverse Fishing Story Just Isn't Fit to Print

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—The New Mexico Game and Fish Department's public relations office is nothing if not honest in its weekly report of fishing conditions over the state.

Today's mailed report devoted one cryptic sentence to fishing conditions at Alamogordo Lake.

The report said: "The report that cae straight from the confit to print. We suggest you wait a few days before planning a fishing trip there."

Lockheed Plans to Build Jet Engine Transport

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP)—A four-engine jet transport capable of speeds of 500 miles an hour and a range of up to 2,000 miles will be built by the Marietta division of the Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

Unions Are 'Obliged' to Invest Funds

WASHINGTON (INS) — Labor unions have been advised they have a moral obligation to invest pension and welfare funds in government-insured home mortgages.

Ben Levinson of Detroit, president of the Michigan Mortgage Corporation, told representatives of 67 unions at a mortgage clinic in Washington Tuesday that "there will be no new housing" without labor money.

He said banks and insurance companies have turned increasingly to corporate investments, creating a grkeat shortage of funds for housing.

Levinson claimed that of the $45 billion now in pension funds not enough to "stick in your left eye" goes into home mortgages. He blamed government agencies and veteran groups for not going directly to the unions with their stories.

No Matter How You Slice It

Americans Prefer Watermelons

WASHINGTON—No matter how you slice it, watermelon remains champion of summertime dessert delicacies.

Last year Americans devoured more than three billion pounds of melon. According to early indications, this year's crop of the succulent fruit will be larger.

VALUE RISES

At five years the value of the United States watermelon crop has risen from $3,000,000 to $45,000,000. The increase firmly puts watermelon growing, however precarious, in the realm of big business.

Though watermelon seems as typically American as corn on the cob, it is popular the world over and its culture started in ancient times, the National Geographic Magazine says. Egyptian art shows that this giant member (Citrullus vulgaris) of the cucumber clan grew in the Nile Valley thousands of years ago.

Watermelon was long considered a native of Asia, despite the suspicious circumstance that no wild varieties had been detected there or anywhere else.

It was the great missionary-explorer David Livingstone who solved the mystery of the watermelon's origin. He found huge tracts of watermelons growing wild in central Africa.

SWEET, SOUR

Africa's wild watermelons, incidentally, come sweet and sour. Not even local tribesmen can tell one from the other. They tap each fruit to determine whether the flesh is bitter or edible.

Cultivars of sweet melons have spread to all warm regions of the world. The vines like hot summer sun and sandy loam soil, but require only an average amount of rain.

Early colonists brought watermelons to the New World. The fruit was common in Massachusetts in the late 1620's. Florida Indians took to the immigrant melons with great relish and were getting them by the mid-1600's. The French explorer, Father Marquette, reported in 1673 that he'd found melons growing in the interior of the American continent.

EARLY RIPENERS

Today, commercial melons are grown extensively in Arkansas, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Colorado, and California. It is a risky business, for watermelons appeal to a host of pests as well as to people. Apart from the vagaries of weather, enemies include cucumber beetles, melon aphids, cutworms, wireworms, and such fungus misnomers as fusarium wilt, anthracnose, and downy mildew.

Even if a watermelon grows to sound, firm, fully packed maturity, it can fall prey to stem-end rot during shipment to distant markets. And though the fruit may reach market in perfect condition, rainy days may put the melon counter in the red.

Paradoxically, watermelon is classified as a fruit, botanically, yet belongs to a vegetable family and is cultivated as a truck crop. Contrary to popular notion, it contains less water than such vegetables as tomatoes, cucumbers, squash, and lettuce.

Not that it matters to the millions of Americans who wouldn't think of going through the summer without whacking open a big watermelon to get at the fruit, crisp, fruity-red fruit. Served, of course, ice cold.

Want a Good One? Here's How to Tell

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — A vegetable crop expert today passed out some helpful advice on that seeing marketing problem — how to pick out a good ripe melon.

Aroma is the key to it, advises Hatton K. Pratt, associate professor of vegetable crops at the University of California College of Agriculture. It ought to smell luscious at the blossom end, and that end opposite the stem end should be springy to soft.

"The melon flavor we pay for is the aroma," says he. "If you can't smell it coming out of the melon, it isn't there."

Imports of Raw Wool Rise 42 Pct. in Japan

TOKYO — The Japan Wool Spinners Association estimates Japan's raw-wool imports in 1956 amounted to 397,345 bales, 42 per cent more than in 1955.

Their value increased by 35 per cent—to $221,000,000. Imports from Australia increased by 31 per cent, to 68,500 bales, and constituted 70 per cent of the total. About half the remainder came from Argentina.

Summer Night in July a Heaven for Stargazers

ANN ARBOR (AP)—On a hot, sultry summer's night, the sparkle of the heavens can be readily enjoyed by star gazers, a University of Michigan astronomer says.

Headlining the heavenly show for July is a cast of stars from the milky way, says Prof. Hazel M. Losh. An added attraction this month is a galaxy of planets strung across the southern skies.

"The milky way spans the whole heavens and may be easily traced," Miss Losh says.

It can be followed for it looks like a path of stars girdling the heavens, she says.

Just after the July sunset, says Miss Losh, the five brightest planets are visible.

They are Jupiter in the southwest, Saturn in the southeast, Venus to the west, Mars to the left of Venus and Mercury, in late July, near Mars and Venus.

Oil Worker's Death Ruled Accidental

MOUNT PLEASANT (AP) — The death of John R. Stone, 55, of Mount Pleasant, whose body was found in his car by his wife, has been ruled as accidental by authorities.

Coroner A. H. Bradley of Midland said an autopsy showed Stone died of fractured ribs and a punctured lung.

Bradley said the man apparently was injured yesterday when the screen covering pumping machinery at an oil well flew off as Stone tried to start the apparatus.

Stone, an oil field worker, was found dead in his car at Pure Oil Co's. Reems C4 well in Isabella County by his wife who went to investigate when he failed to return home. Stone apparently went to his car in an effort to go for help after being injured.

Baby Found in Mailbox Placed in Foster Home

GRAND HAVEN (AP) — "Tommie RFD," the baby boy found abandoned in a rural mailbox, has been released from municipal hospital and placed in an Ottawa County foster home.

Probate court spokesmen said he will remain under foster home care until permanently placed for adoption.

Hospital nurses named the infant "Tommie RFD." They reported he had gained 11 ounces since he was brought to the hospital June 18 by rural carrier Robert Bethke, who found the boy in a box on his route near Port Sheldon.

Sheriff's officers said they still are without a clue to the boy's identity.

Why the Glorious Fourth Is Glorious

History has proved that the action of our colonies 181 years ago today was the second biggest event in all the world's history.

Shadowed only by that greatest event on Dec. 25 nearly 18 centuries before, it marked another start to free the world from bondage and oppression.

The discovery of America opened up new territory that had natural resources, ready for exploitation, that exceeded anything before known.

Assuming the throne in 1760, King George III found his country in such financial straits and was so cocky that he ordered the major portion of the expense of the long war with France be collected in taxes from England's American colonies.

The taxation was the heaviest ever imposed by a nation. The whole world, including the colonies, knew it meant stagnation and poverty.

This intolerable situation lasted only 15 years. The Revolution broke into fire at Lexington on April 19, 1775, our nation became official at Philadelphia on July 4, 1776, and victory was signed, sealed and delivered at Yorktown on Oct. 19, 1781.

The Declaration of Independence personally singles out George III with over 25 of the most drastic charges ever imposed against a monarch. He ordered that "every man of the 57 traitors who signed it be executed."

Our American people had the foresight and patriotism to set a world pattern.

That's why July 4 is the second greatest holiday on the world's calendar.

Canada's Problems

The recent change in the government of Canada after 22 years of Liberal rule is not likely to affect that country's present attitude toward the United States to any extent.

John G. Diefenbaker, the new Progressive Conservative Prime Minister and External Affairs Minister, faces one immediate difficulty. Two smaller parties, Socialist and Social Credit, may support him on many important issues, but they won't form an official coalition. A new election may be held in the fall in an effort to get a decisive Conservative majority.

Although Mr. Diefenbaker says there will be no change in Canada's policy toward the United States, there probably will be some in our economic relations but nothing that could be termed anti-American. On the eve of a flying trip to London for a meeting of Commonwealth Prime Ministers Mr. Diefenbaker said his country would want to stand in harmony with all the world and "especially with the Untied States."

In spite of great prosperity or perhaps because of it, Canada has difficult problems to solve. One of them is the $1.5 billion adverse trade balance with the United States. This has been offset by the influx of much needed development capital from this country. With a population of only 16 million such a trade deficit could be dangerous. However, a reversal of that trend would have little effect on our own vast economy.

Canada also has a surplus wheat problem and there has been some criticism of our crop disposal policy as damaging the Canadian grain market abroad. No doubt there will be further discussions on that matter.

In facing all these problems Mr. Diefenbaker can be assured of the understanding, good will and cooperation of the United States.

The hope held by many that the post office department would cut service drastically July 1 and fail to deliver bills died a hard death.

For several of its recent decisions the U.S. Supreme Court has been highly complimented — mainly by U.S. Communists and others of their ilk.

The Man About Town

Pontiac's First Car

Union Lake Man Helped on It; Was Its First Driver

Independence Day: Time for serious and sober reflection on how we got it.

Several answers have been received to our question as to who drove the first cars made in Pontiac. Up to date, the honors go to of Union Lake. He says he came to Pontiac from Chelsea with the people who were to make the Welch car. He worked on it in a shop on the east side of South Saginaw St., near the present South Boulevard, in 1903, and was the man who drove it out of the plant 54 years ago. Mr. Nickerson, then only 19 years of age, says this was the first car made in Pontiac.

I have it direct from General Chairman

Fred J. Niedelson

that the summer frolic of the Pontiac

A suggestion comes from

Arthur Freeling,

now of Lansing, that a Michigan state historical marker be placed on the grave of

Colonel Stephen Mack

in our Oak Hill Cemetery. Colonel Mack was the founder of Pontiac.

The family dog at the home of

Mrs. Rose Siborski

in Drayton Plains, prove that there's something in a name. Her neighbors say the roses always bloom well for Rose.

A card drifts in from

who is on a southern vacation trip. He drove through Louisiana soon after the big storm, and says many sections were devastated and most roads were blocked. The card was mailed in a town with the significant name of "Waterproof," which Harold says it wasn't.

The family cat at the home of

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Mertens

of Rochester snooped into a nest of young robins, and carried one to nest with her kittens. The old robins at first strongly resented the intrusion and kidnaping, but finally were reconciled, and now feed it worms—without molestation from the cat who cannot understand why it will not nurse with the other members of her family.

Driving a car for 20 years without an accident is the record of of 2174 Pontiac Drive. You may think you have done as well, but you probably haven't a job like Wilbur's. The greater part of that time he was a test driver, and covered around a million miles.

James Marlow Says:

Court May Throw Out Legislation

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a good chance the Supreme Court—judging from what it has already said—will throw out any law Congress passes now to keep a defendant on trial from seeing FBI files pertaining to his case.

The court—ruling in the case of Clinton E. Jencks in June—said "justice requires no less" than that a defendant see the files if they contain information bearing on the testimony of a witness against him.

The FBI and the Justice Department were so upset by this decision that Congress is rushing through a bill to tone down the effect of what the court did.

But if this bill becomes law, some future defendant—denied a look at the FBI files—is bound to test its validity by appealing to the Supreme Court. This is what happened:

Jencks, on trial for falsely swearing he was not a Communist, was confronted by two government witnesses who were not only Communists but paid undercover agents of the FBI.

They said they had given the FBI information about Jencks verbally and in writing. Their written information was in the FBI files.

A defendant has a right to try to impeach the testimony of a witness against him by trying to show he lied or had a bad memory. One way to try in this case was to compare the witnesses' testimony with what they wrote to the FBI.

It was traditional, but not a law, that a defendant himself couldn't see the FBI files. It was also traditional, but not a law, that he could ask the trial judge to look at them.

The reason: If the judge found anything in the files that might help the defendant, or discredit the witness, he could let that part of the FBI file become part of the evidence and therefore open to the defendant.

Jencks' lawyers asked the trial judge to do that. He refused. Jencks was found guilty and appealed to the Supreme Court. The court threw out his conviction. The ruling it gave is what upset the FBI and Justice Department.

Country Parson

"A sinner always can point to someone worse than he is—a saint can not."

Dr. William Brady Says:

Yanking Teeth No Cure for Troublesome Pyorrhea

"Dear Dr. Brady:

"I have got pyorrhea awful bad and got my gums about eat up and poison is going into my stomich. Doctor told me to have all my teeth pulled out but I can't get them out for we are very poor people and have not got the money. Can you tell me some other way to get rid of this poison in my stomich. My inetals is HLD thank you."

DR. BRADY

(No signature)

Let me say first that to the best of my knowledge there's no cure for pyorrhea.

Flow or pus (pyo-rrhea) from tooth-socket (alveolaris) or from pus-pocket in the gum doesn't poison the patient if it is swallowed, for the gastric juice disinfects or destroys it.

A kind of "poisoning" of the system — chronic blood poisoning or septicemia — may occur if pus-germs find their way from the tooth socket lining or pus-pocket into the blood. Such germs may be carried to some distant part of the body where they lodge and set up a secondary infection — focal infection.

In the early 20s, the doctor was likely to take a look in his patient's mouth and say, "Have your teeth extracted."

YANKED OUT

The dentist would put aside any compunction about removing sound teeth and yank them all. Thereafter the victim went from bad to worse.

No physician worthy of confidence would order extraction of one or many teeth without consultation with the dentist. And no self-respecting dentist would take such an order seriously.

First, a diagnosis of pyorrhea is no more indicative of what ails the patient than would be a diagnosis of bellyache or "that tired feeling."

Next, although I have squabbled with many dentists about it, it has been impossible to compose a positive definition of pyorrhea.

Now I propose that we call pyorrhea degeneration of the masticating equipment — bone, muscles, tooth sockets, gums, teeth — due to namby-pamby diet and nutritional deficiency. For further details read pages 43 to 49 of the booklet Save Your Teeth (35c and stamped, self-addressed envelope) and if you are really interested get from your public library the classic Nutrition and Physical Degeneration by Weston A. Price, M.S., D.D.S., F.A.C.D.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Women Have Dangerous Age, Too

Hilda's case is a classic for students of clinical psychology so scrapbook it. Thousands of wives like Hilda are troubled by such fears. Yet their husbands could often banish those fears by understanding the facts outlined below. So send for the sex booklet indicated and study it carefully.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case V-328: Hilda H., aged 29, is supposedly happily married.

"I have three children and love my husband," she protested, "but for the last year I have been growing afraid.

DR. CRANE

"Why, I get panicky at the thought of my husband being away from the house. I want him beside me all the time.

"And it is growing worse. Am I losing my mind, Dr. Crane? For when I am alone, I imagine I hear people knocking on the door and this scares me."

THE '29 PANIC

The age of 29 is one of the dangerous periods in the life of women.

For when girls of 29 look ahead to their dreaded 30th birthday, they tend to feel:

"Oh, goodness me! I'll then be old and on the shelf. But I feel that I haven't tasted all the joys of youth yet!"

Most of us who are well past 30 would look back to that youthful birthday as very desirable. But when girls are on the lower side of that figure, they often go into a mental tailspin.

Hilda is only 29, but her case is very similar to the typical menopausal fear of the wife of 45 who thinks she is on the shelf.

Hilda married the summer she graduated from high school. She was barely 18 then. And had her first baby within a year.

So she went directly from high school into marriage and became tied down with the usual wifely duties.

Since then, her three children have further complicated her life by making her feel like a stodgy old married woman.

And what adds another element to this particular case, is the fact that the young driver of a fuel oil truck caught her in his arms one day when her husband wasn't at home, and kissed her.

She tried to fight him off but he kissed her a second time before he let her go. And she upbraided him vigorously.

In fact, her violent protests to me about the incident were somewhat reminiscent of Shakespeare's statement that "she doth protest too much."

"PROJECTED" FEARS

Fears are often projected upon things that are basically attractive.

You are thus familiar with the old story about the spinster's excessive concern to look under her bed at night, lest a man be hiding there.

Sometimes such concern is a camouflage to cover up a secret wish.

And Hilda's case is an instance in point. She had been excited by the unexpected kiss. It had given her a throwback to her late teens when she was being courted.

And it fitted into her desire to taste some more youthful joys of life before that dreaded 30th birthday arrived.

However, her conscience imposed a censorship on such irresponsible thoughts, so Hilda kept asking her husband to stay at home.

She never felt safe when he was gone. And she kept hearing the sound of knocking on the door.

Like the moth at the flame, she was fascinated by the subconscious wish that this truck driver knock again and kiss her violently when she opened the door.

But she consciously tried to prevent such a recurrence by begging her husband to stay at home with her.

Her dread of being alone was an indication of her fear of temptation if she were all by herself. And she dreaded the temptation because she knew she was vulnerable to it.

So send for my booklet, "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 20 cents (non-profit). It will show husbands how to banish such fears on the part of their wives.

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 3c stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

To Disgruntled Mother-in-Law about your dressed-up, party-going daughter-in-law, did you ever stop to think maybe that's the way your son wants his wife to look? He married her because of his choice, not yours.

I have a daughter-in-law and a married daughter. They didn't have the training I did when younger, but their homes and meals are just as good or better than mine, and I'm supposed to be a good cook. When they entertain, they do an excellent job.

Readers Disagree on Court Editorial

It is distressing to learn that a reputable newspaper is so lacking in knowledge of actual facts as to make such ludicrous statements as in the scathing and emotional criticism of the Supreme Court. Only three members of the present court were appointed by President Roosevelt. Since the total court consists of nine members, any school child can readily see that three members would be quite inadequate to carry any decision. Of the remaining justices, two were appointed by Truman and four by President Eisenhower. You are, of course, entitled to take issue with the Court's recent decisions, but your attempt to trace them to Roosevelt is hardly worthy of any editorial column.

Elizabeth F. Parris
Orchard Lake

The editorial about the Supreme Court is the type that does more harm than good. Did the writer weigh carefully his words and their effect? What were his motives? What did he seek to accomplish?

If his purpose were to invoke thoughtful study of the issues, he is honor bound to present an analysis of the cases and the facts on which the Supreme Court made its decisions. Then he must show why he would have decided differently.

How else can he expect us to write intelligent letters or even to do intelligent thinking?

Mrs. Eldred Mathes
2674 Sylvan Shores Dr.

I'd like to take issue with the editorial that states it's a matter of record that the Supreme Court trouble with which we're now saddled started with Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Four members of the Supreme Court were appointed by Eisenhower, three by Roosevelt and two by Truman. Since Clark and Burton (Truman-appointed) have spoken out against the recent rulings, there can be no claim of agreement between Roosevelt and Truman appointees.

The agreement rather is between appointees of Roosevelt and Eisenhower, two of the greatest Americans of our century. I, for one, approve their rulings as right and just, but let's give credit or blame (whichever you prefer) where it rightfully belongs.

Another Is Sick of Advice to Wife

I certainly agree with the lady that wrote about keeping husbands content. It makes me sick to read how to stay pretty and yet cook the meals, clean the house, mind the kids, paint the house, mow the lawn and so on, while the husbands go fishing, bowling or stops and has a few beers with the boys. But let the wives stop and have a few beers with the girls and they're disgraced. Why don't these story writers print something on how to keep wives happy and not how to keep husbands from straying? Instead, they should print "How to Keep the Wife from Straying." Men just don't know how lucky they are!

Mistreated Wife

Still Discussing Teacher's Job

My mother is a teacher and I know she works hard, and she and all teachers deserve a rest. It's not that they're exactly sacred, but they work hard. With 35 to 40 little kids in one room for six or seven hours, Sick of Their Complaints would be tired, too.

My mother and most teachers take summer courses to teach children of such people as Sick of Their Complaints. Such people need a knock in the head and I'd like to be the one to do it. Maybe those who want school year around just want to get rid of their children for awhile. Nice parents, aren't they?

If there were school 12 months, there would be less kids going to school than there are now.

Peeved, and I Mean Peeved

All those who are mad at the teachers should just try teaching for a week or two. Maybe they'd change their minds about what a soft job it is.

Ex-Teacher

I'm not a teacher, but I give them plenty of credit. I think it's fine if they can take the summer off. Most of them could probably afford it if they'd budget their money over the entire year for which they're paid. But I should think they'd be glad to have the opportunity to supplement their incomes for three months each year. I sure would.

Adventist Scores Modern Gadgets of Housewives

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Are today's housewives more like production line foremen rather than helpmates in the home?

A Seventh-Day Adventists leader thinks so and last night told a regional meeting of the church group that American homes would be happier if women had fewer labor saving gadgets and did more work.

Said Arch O. Dart of Washington, assistant secretary of the Educational Department of the General Conference of Adventists:

"The sense of personal service to husband and family largely has been lost by American women who are, for the most part, engaged in running mechanized homes like foremen in a factory as the result of labor-saving devices. . ."

"Overworked husbands striving to maintain the high standard of living demanded by modern wives come home — not to a restful haven — but to a woman eager to plunge into the social swim to keep up with the Joneses."

SAC Will Use Snark

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Strategic Air Command, America's threat to any would-be attacker, will be armed with Snark-guided missiles. The Air Force says these missiles can carry nuclear warheads to targets across oceans.

Plans for quantity production of the eight-ton, jet-powered missiles were announced yesterday with the award of a 73-million-dollar contract to Northrop Aircraft, Inc.

FEDERAL DEPT. STORES Saginaw at Warren, Pontiac OPEN EVERY NIGHT TO 9 Monday through Saturday

IN THE SHADOW OF HISTORY — Even though it looks menacingly top-heavy, this ancient relic of the grandeur that was Rome suits these two youngsters fine as they study their lessons in its shade. Threatened by the future of expanding modern-day Rome in background, this link to the past is part of an ancient aqueduct. The domed structure in left background is one of Rome's newest churches, San Giovanni Bosco, which is still under construction.

3 Alone on Huge Liner While Crossing Ocean

NEW YORK (INS)— How would you like to have a luxurious 45,000-ton yacht, complete with an 800-man crew, at your service for an ocean crossing?

This was the way three lucky Americans, paying a combined fare of $690, made a dream crossing from Le Havre, France, to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Pascual of New York and Mrs. Paulette Decker of Coxsackie, N.Y., were the only persons who answered a French line notice that the giant Ile de France would sail immediately on the settling of a shipping strike June 23.

By day the Pascuals and Mrs. Decker roamed the cabins and salons intended for 1,400 passengers. At night, they usually put up in the first class accommodations, though none had paid the first class fare.

Every evening of the six-day voyage the Pascuals dined with Capt. Raoul de Beaudean, master of the liner. Mrs. Decker, a poor sailor, could not join them regularly.

When the liner docked in New York yesterday Chief Purser Guy Duclos said that, though the trip had been the most unusual of his 27 years at sea, he was looking forward to the eastbound sailing.

After a week of nearly total inaction, he looked forward to 700 Europe-bound tourists, which, he said, would mean "more animation" at sea.

Junior Editors Quiz on NATIONAL BIRD

QUESTION: What bird almost became our national emblem?

Answer: It's hard to believe now, but the turkey almost won the honor over the eagle.

In 1787, our nation's fathers chose the bald eagle as the national emblem. The emblem pictured the eagle with its wings outstretched, a shield on its chest, an olive branch in one claw and a batch of arrows in the other. On the national coat of arms, the eagle carries a scroll in its beak which says: "E Pluribus Unum." This Latin phrase means, "From many, one," symbolizing that the United States grew from many peoples and states into one nation.

There was a move, however, to make the turkey the national symbol. Benjamin Franklin thought it should be made the emblem because it was prominent in our history since the time of the Pilgrims and was native to the New World. The bald eagle is also found only on this continent. The first coin bearing the eagle in the U. S. was minted in 1789.

FOR YOU TO DO: Trace your own picture of an eagle. Lay a quarter down on a table with the eagle side up. Put a piece of paper over the coin, holding it tight against the coin's surface. Shade the paper with a lead pencil and you'll see the shadow of the eagle come through.

Owosso High Teacher Retires After 31 Years

OWOSSO (AP) — Rep. Adrian de Boom (R-Owosso) has retired as a teacher at Owosso High School after serving 31 years.

A representative since 1949, de Boom also plans to retire from that job at the end of his present term in 1958.

Australia has more than three million square miles of domain and of this vast area an estimated one million square miles lie in the tropics.

'I Forgot the Aspirin'

London Moans en Masse After Mike Todd's Party

LONDON (AP) — One of Europe's better mass hangovers gripped hundreds of Londoners yesterday in the bleary wake of American showman Mike Todd's champagne-for-everybody party.

"Wow," shouted Todd at 4 a.m. "I knew I forgot something. I forgot aspirin and headache powders. Every guest should have been furnished with some."

As dawn broke over London, at least 500 guests were still enjoying themselves at Todd's large expense.

Aly Khan and his girl friend, French model Bettina, were riding pink and purple horses on the merry-go-round.

Sir Hartley Showcross, the stern-faced attorney general in the last Labor government, danced the rhumba to one of the 16 bands.

Singer Eddie Fisher was mistaken for a waiter as he rushed a trayload of champagne to his table.

U.S. Ambassador John Hay Whitney stepped in a deep mud puddle.

And so it went.

Todd threw the party to celebrate the London premiere of his movie "Around the World in 80 Days." The Duchess of Kent and her daughter Princess Alexandra represented the royal family at the film but didn't stay for the party.

For the all-night binge, Todd bought out the Battersea amusement park—where James McNeill Whistler used to paint things other than his mother—and hauled his guests across the Thames in a fleet of ferries.

"You never know," smirked the host, "something about the party and the picture might sneak into the papers."

Sneak was hardly the word.

"Wild and wonderful and brash and noisy," said the Daily Herald. "London has never seen anything like it."

"Mike Todd pulled his greatest ever stroke of ballyhoo," reported the Daily Mirror, "by turning the center of London into a fantastic Victorian carnival."

"Mad, marvelous, gaudy, supercolossal, stupendous," the Daily Sketch gushed.

The host blew his top almost as many times as the corks blew out of the giant champagne bottles he had flown over from France.

The first explosion occurred when Mrs. Todd — film star Elizabeth Taylor — had to wait for some blue-blooded guests who were late.

"Hell," shouted hubby, "she's having a baby this fall. What would you do if your wife wuz having a baby: Gangway!" And he rushed Liz to a seat.

Biting a white-gloved hand, the mother-to-be commented: "He worries too much about this baby. I hope it's a girl. I am sure the world is not ready for another Mike Todd yet."

Yards of crimson chiffon trailed from her sun-bronzed shoulders to the floor. Her ruby and diamond earrings and necklace glittered.

"We've got to get back to America Thursday," Liz said. "I've got to see my doctor and find out when the baby's due. At the moment I feel it might happen tonight."

But it didn't.

Ike and Mamie May Vacation on Cape Cod

OYSTER HARBORS, Mass. (INS) — Exclusive Oyster Harbors on Cape Cod appears to be in the running as a possible summer vacation site for President and Mrs. Eisenhower.

Clifford Roberts, prominent New York broker and friend of the President, has rented a white, five-room estate, which is within easy distance of the Oyster Harbors Golf Club.

Six secret service agents reportedly made a check of last week. They made a thorough inspection of security aspects and found that Oyster Harbors is an island which can be reached only by one drawbridge. The golf course is considered to be one of the finest on Cape Cod.

A White House spokesman said the Eisenhower's vacation plans are not yet final, but admitted that Cape Cod is now uppermost in their minds.

Previously the Eisenhowers had been reported considering an exclusive estate at Eastern Point, Gloucester, on the north shore.

Hot Weather Blocks Deliveries in Alaska

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Hot weather blocked delivery of weekly mail and fresh food to nine American scientists and some U. S. airmen living on a floating ice island near the North Pole.

Two Air Force C47s circled the island for 12 hours before returning to Barrow, 500 miles south, for refuelling before coming back to Ladd Air Force Base here.

Capt. James H. Graham Jr. and Lt. Lloyd S. Kurth, pilots of the planes, said it was impossible to land on the ice landing strip of the island because it was too soft.

Public Works Director Can't Please Everybody

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Officials of suburban Strathmore Manor seem to be having an easy time, except for Public Works Director William Durz.

After the officials reported they were taking a "summer vacation" because they "have nothing to do," Durz said he'd be happy too if people would just stop fussing.

He said they "fussed" at him until he converted an unused lot into a playground. Then they fussed some more because children playing there made too much noise.

Agricultural and pastoral products comprise more than 80 per cent of Argentina's total export volume.

Bob Considine Says:

Only Dice Are Cool in Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS (INS) — It's been running 105 degrees Fahrenheit here in this pleasant gambling Gomorrah.

The only thing cool in town is the dice.

Free Aspirin, Tender Sympathy.

The Bomb That Didn't Go Off is still causing more talk about town than the ones that did.

A terrifying hush settled over the desert test site when nothing happened at the climax of that God-like "count down" . . . four...three...two...one...zero.

Just a terrible brooding silence, with men huddled in their trenches, scientists crouching in the blockhouses, reporters and cameramen standing braced on News Nob, the pre-dawn darkness accentuated by heavy density goggles.

A helicopter chattered to the scene from the protection of a nearby mountain. Its radio was in tune with a loudspeaker jeep. And it was a nameless pilot who broke the stunned spell.

"Who wet the wick?" he asked, loud and clear over the speakers.

NOT SO HONORED

Test Hood, the big one suspended from a balloon, was not named in honor of some of the secret owners of Las Vegas hotels.

The biggest hit in town is the show at the Flamingo, starring Jack Benny and Gisele MacKenzie. People are flocking to it as if it were a "marker" window.

Their violin duet climaxes one of the finest nightclub acts ever devised. It's Benny's first such appearance, and the master is just super.

Gene Murphy, bugle-blower for Wilbur Clark's Desert Inn, says, "This town has succeeded in giving the tourist more than the wheel and the table. People come here how to play golf on our championship course, or for the boating and fishing on Lake Mead.

True, too. The Desert Inn's golf club is more mirage than reality. The waters that created this oasis and keep it lush are pumped up from six springs on the property. It uses 1,500,000 gallons a day, off-setting the sun.

Lake Mead, which backs up for well over 100 miles behind that incredible shoulder named Hoover Dam, contains enough water to give everybody on earth 9 gallons.

A LITTLE HUTCH

Speaking of Clark, he and his wife Tony recently displayed their new home on Ed Murrow's "Person to Person." Quite a little hutch. Two bedrooms. It cost $250,000.

A closed-circuit television hookup takes a picture of whoever steps to the front door and flashes it inside. A flick of a button, mounted on a control panel next to Clark's bed, lowers another TV set out of the ceiling halfway across the room.

He can change stations, sharpen tuning, and even shut the damn thing up and send it back to its cave, without moving out of bed.

Helps Pay Mounting Bills

Child Leukemia Victim Assisted by Small Town

SHERWOOD (AP) — For the second time in a year the people of this tiny town in West Michigan are reaching into their pockets to help pay the skyrocketing bills of a child afflicted with leukemia.

This time the victim is 3-year-old Susan Kay Musolf, blue-eyed and brown-haired daughter of a small farmer who lives in this village of 305 persons.

Susan Kay came down with leukemia last November, about the same time the town's first victim, 3-year-old Danny Steel, died of the blood disease.

She has been in University Hospital at Ann Arbor for tests which confirmed she is a leukemia victim. Her condition was listed as critical for a time. Now she is back at home, thin and frail, but able to get out and play.

The instigator of both the funds to help defray medical expenses of child leukemia victims here was Marshall Howell, village clerk.

SECOND DRIVE

Howell, 60, and the father of a healthy 25-year-old student at Western Michigan University at Kalamazoo, led a drive here and in Sherwood Township — population 709 — that raised $2,200 to help pay the Steel boy's doctor, hospital, medicine and transportation bills.

Howell conducted his campaign mainly through the mails during the eight months before the stricken boy died.

"We got $2,200 — about half as much as we needed to pay all the boy's bills," Howell said.

This time Howell has enlisted the aid of helpers who are going from door to door asking for contributions.

So far the campaign has netted about $450.

Susan Kay's father, Tommy Musolf, works his small farm and does some work in a factory at Battle Creek. There are three other children in the family — 10-month-old Michael, 8-year-old John and 9-year-old Karen.

Thieves Sew Up $11

Thieves stole more than $11 from the Riley Sewing Shop, 43½ N. Saginaw St., Monday night when thye entered the second-story shop through an unlocked window.

Police report access to the window was gained from the roof of Mark Jewelers, 45 N. Saginaw St., a single-story building next to the sewing shop.

To Tell if Man-Made Moon Has Been Successfully Rocketed

Show Off Largest Electronic Brain in Earth Satellite Tracking Program

WASHINGTON (INS)—The biggest electronic brain in the earth satellite tracking program was unveiled Tuesday on Washington's Pennsylvania Avenue.

Scientists demonstrated how the master machine may tell within 20 or 30 minutes after launching whether an artificial moon has been successfully rocketed into its orbit.

GIVES LOCATION

Within the same time, as a dividend, the giant brain will tell precisely where a satellite will be at each one minute interval during the next four hours.

The brain, now installed at the "Vanguard Computing Center," consists of a big roomful of refrigerator-sized electronic cabinets. Its nerve system is a net of communications linking it to 10 "maintrack" stations in North and South America.

The result of its vast operations, sometimes involving 40,000 mathematical calculations per second, shows as a point of light moving across a map of the world. A window display of the satellite "scope" is to be arranged during the launchings next year.

People who have difficulty remembering telephone numbers could use one of these machines—which cost $2,400,000 to build. It can "remember simultaneously" 8,000 numbers, and can "store" three million numbers in its magnetic-core memory.

Dr. Paul Herget, director of the Cincinnati Observatory and a leading consultant on the satellite project, explained how the machine may know within less than a half hour whether a "moon" has been created.

When a satellite is launched from Patrick Air Force Base on the Florida coast, it should be over the island of Antigua 1,000 miles away in about 12 minutes.

Delicate instruments on Antiqua will flash the first report back to Washington. Then about 15 minutes will be required for the computer to tell the world the satellite's exact speed and position.

Herget said the report from Antigua may be insufficient for long-range predictions. The scientists may have to wait about an hour, until the satellite is approximately over San Diego, Calif., in its first circuit around the earth, before they are absolutely sure it is successful.

Complicated as they may seem to the public, Herget regards the computing machines operations as comparatively simple.

What the stations provide, he said, is a series of "point directions," measured to within an accuracy of 1,000th of a second in time, from which the circling object's speed, latitude and altitude can be determined.

When given sample information, the machine came up within a few minutes with these answers—the hypothetical satellite was 243 miles above the earth, its orbit was "fairly circular," and it would round the earth in 93 minutes and 53 seconds.

The operations, according to Herget, are a little like those of a shrewd Greek named Eratosthenes, who correctly determined the circumference of the earth more than 2,200 years ago by putting a straight stick in the ground and measuring the angle of the shadow. The rest was "pure mathematics."

Hold Salesman in Car Deals

Auto Agency Owned by Summerfield, Son in Flint

FLINT (AP) — A 28-year-old car salesman has been charged with embezzling $5,057 from the auto agency owner by Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield and his son.

James A. Stranberg, 28, waived examination at his Municipal Court arraignment yesterday. He was bound over on $400 bond by Judge Dale C. Scholle for Circuit Court hearing next Monday.

Detective Capt. Lauren Herfurth said Stranberg had falsified records and insurance policies in the sales of new cars. A spokesman for the auto agency said there was no loss to customers.

Stranberg told detectives he did not profit from the financial deals. Rated as a top salesman, he said he cut the price of cars to make sales, then tried to make up the difference by arranging financing with loan agencies.

Bond for Stranberg was posted by Arthur Summerfield Jr., who said money involved in the deals was covered by a fidelity bond.

Herfurth said Stranberg's operations came to light last May when he sold a car to a Flint woman and filled out checks for her because she had broken her eyeglasses.

The woman complained when an insurance policy did not arrive, and police said an investigation showed Stranberg had made the checks out to himself.

Donegal County Booming Again

Doughty People Bring New Life to Ireland's Famed Tweeds Center

WASHINGTON — Where the Atlantic lashes the rockfingered west coast of Ireland, a doughty people are bringing new life to an age-old industry.

County Donegal, home of the famed Donegal tweeds, stretches greenly along the coast. Though a part of the southern Republic of Ireland, it reaches farther north than any point in Northern Ireland, the National Geographic Society says.

The tweeds, woven for centuries in white cottages with thatched roofs, are now being produced on a larger scale. Mechanization and an increase in home-weaving help Ireland's trade position and provide more work for her people.

Sections of Donegal are as green and fertile as a farmer could wish, but much of the farm land is seriously afflicted by the rocks that give fabled beauty to the landscape. A tiny field, walled round with stones, may be the result of generations of farmers taking the stones from the earth. More likely, it was made in reverse by a farmer and his wife who carried the soil there in baskets.

Poor land, however, can still support sheep, which accounts for the wool-wise ways of the Donegal Irish.

Though in the same latitude as mild climate — which provides Labrador, Ireland has a very mild climate — which provides Donegal with another source of income.

The Gulf Stream carries to its shores warmth from the tropics, allowing even palm trees to grow there. Irishmen and visitors alike throng to ocean resorts such as Bundoran for swimming and golf. Fishing for the salmon and trout of Donegal's streams attracts others.

Earlier travelers were moved by piety and desire for conquest. St. Patrick worked and prayed there; thousands of pilgrims have followed in his steps and worshiped at his shrines. Danish and English invaders overran Donegal, but were unable to maintain their sway.

Shirley Temple Plans to Appear in TV Series

HOLLYWOOD (INS) — The chestnut curls that millions of small girls once copied were gone today when Shirley Temple, now a chic suburban housewife and mother, conducted her first Hollywood news conference in some years.

The Shirley of today is a brunette with close-cropped, carefully waved hair "the way my husband likes it."

The screen's onetime dimpled darling, Mrs. Charles Black in private life, is back in filmland to return to work. But this time she will be hostess and narrate a series of 16 one-hour fairy tale classics, and perhaps occasionally star, in a TV series for NBC, scheduled to be launched next Jan. 12.

"Both my husband and I are happy about my new work," Shirley said, "because it will take so little time. I'm hoping to handle it in just one day a month."

Shirley lives with her husband and three children, Susan, 9; Charlie, 5, and Lori, 3, in Atherton, fashionable suburb south of San Francisco.

The former child star said only one of her children shows a desire to follow her famous mother's footsteps.

"That's Lori, who look a lot as I did when I was her age," said Lori's mother. "The children love to see my old pictures and Charles shows them at home. I go to bed."

Barbara Landry Speaks Vows With K. D. Mitchell

Two-hundred guests attended the Saturday morning wedding of Barbara Landry and Kenneth D. Mitchell performed in St. Vincent de Paul Church.

Barbara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Landry of South Parke street. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mitchell of Marion avenue are parents of the bridegroom.

For her wedding Barbara chose a gown with Chantilly lace bodice, a Peter Pan collar and alternate rows of lace and tulle on the skirt.

Securing her veil of illusion was a crown of seed pearls. The bridal bouquet was comprised of white roses and carnations.

Shirley Landry, maid of honor, was her only attendant. She was gowned in periwinkle blue accented with a light blue bow and streamers in the back, and she carried white and pink carnations.

Marvin Landry served as best man.

The bridegroom's mother wore a black and white print dress with white accessories and corsage of white carnations.

For a northern Michigan trip the bride changed to a blue sheath dress with white accessories. The couple will reside in Lake Orion.

Hilda Levin Says Vows in Detroit

Becomes Bride of Harold I. Patterson in Church Rite

Hilda Levin and Harold I. Patterson were married Friday at 6 p.m.in Ward Memorial Presbyterian Church, Detroit. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Bartlett L. Hess.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Astolf Levin of Evelyn court. Mr. Patterson resides on Arden lane in Birmingham.

For her wedding the former Miss Levin chose a waltz-length dress of white imprted hand-embroidered organdy. The gown featured a soft V-neck collar and tiny sleeves, and was fashioned with a full skirt.

The bride wore matching gauntlets and a garden hat. She carried a colonial bouquet of white stephanotis and small white rosebuds.

For her only attendant the bride chose her sister, Mrs. James Barling, to serve as matron of honor. She wore a gown of white organdy over blue with a blue sash and hat. She carried a nosegay of white stephanotis and rosebuds trimmed with blue.

ASSIST BRIDEGROOM

Dwight L. Allen of Bay Village, Ohio, served as the best man. Seating the guests were William L. Martin of Birmingham and Jack Keith of Silver Springs, Md.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Levin wore a champagne-colored lace dress with a small velveteen hat and an orchid corsage.

A buffet dinner was served for 100 friends and relatives at Rotunda Inn.

For a motor trip East the new Mrs. Patterson changed to a delft blue dress with short fitted jacket and matching feather hat.

The bride graduated from Eastern Michigan College and did graduate work at the University of Michigan. Mr. Patterson was graduated from Temple University.

Civic Group Lists Dates for Concerts

Dates have been announced for the next season's concerts of the Waterford Township Civic Music Association. Opening the series will be Stan Freeman, pianist and musical humorist, who will perform on Oct. 3.

On Nov. 2, "America's first lady of ballet comedy," Iva Kitchell, will entertain concert goers. The Eger Players will perform the seventh of February. This group features French horn and strings in a variety of combinations.

James Pease, "one of the outstanding bass-baritones in the music world today," will close the season with a concert on March 5.

Cards will be mailed to members of Waterford Township Civic Music Association before the concert season begins.

Program Begins

Brownie Troop Nine from Joslyn Avenue United Presbyterian Church began its summer program Tuesday. The girls spent a field day in hikes and nature exploration. Mrs. Richard Hagberg and Mrs. Woodrow Walker were in charge.

Showing great imagination were Donald Bradford, who chose to be an alligator; Carla Bradford, who entered the parade as Miss Fourth of July; Charles Grimes, who came as a mail box; Stan Newell, who dressed as a show man, and Robin Ballard, who depicted fireworks.

Children Greet Holiday With Gay Dress Parade

The Sylvan Shores Improvement Association's annual Independence Day children's parade featured some unusual and imaginative costumes again this year. "Going native" was Ronda Ballard, who dressed as an Argentine girl. Susan Adams preferred to come as a gypsy and Sally Crocker chose to be an Hawaiian dancer.

Mr. and Mrs. Roderic P. Appold were married Saturday. She is Fern Lucille Erickson, daughter of the Lennie T. Ericksons of East Mansfield avenue. He is the son of Theodore Appold of Denver, Colo., and Mrs. Hertha Appold.

MR. and MRS. RODERIC APPOLD

Fern Erickson Becomes Bride Before 150 Guests

In an afternoon ceremony Saturday in All Saints Episcopal Church, Fern Lucille Erickson became the bride of Roderic Paul Appold. The Rev. C. George Widdifield performed the 4 o'clock service in the presence of approximately 150 guests.

Fern Lucille is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lennie T. Erickson of East Mansfield Ave. Roderic, of Des Plaines, Ill., is the son of Theodore Appold of Denver, Colo., and Mrs. Hertha Appold of Des Plaines, Ill.

For her wedding the bride was gowned in blossom-white tulle combined with Chantilly lace. Iridescent paillettes frosted the lace forming the short-sleeved bodice styled with a sweetheart neckline.

A wide sash of taffeta defined the midriff terminating at the back in a looped bowknot and hem-length streamers. A pointed apron accented the front of the bouffant ballerina-length skirt.

A lace princess cap, frosted with iridescent paillettes and outlined in scallops of tiny pearls, secured her tiered veil of silk illusion. She carried an arrangement of white roses and stephanotis on a prayerbook.

GOWNED IN BLUE

Mrs. Gerald M. Copenhaver served her sister as matron of honor, wearing a ballerina-length gown of delphinium blue lace and silk organza over taffeta. Her headpiece of artificial lilies-of-the-valley matched her gown. She carried a cascade arrangement of deep pink carnations.

Lois Erickson, sister of the bride, and Marla Appold of Des Plaines, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids.

Their ballerina-length gowns were of pale blue nylon chiffon featuring draped cowl necklines and sleeveless bodices. They wore matching headpieces outlined in tiny pearls and carried cascade arrangements of pink carnations.

Attending the bridegroom were Paul Jankovsky as best man and Mark Appold of Des Plaines, brother of the bridegroom, and Terry Williamson of Detroit as ushers.

Rose Kneale Room in Stevens Hall was the setting for the reception for which Mrs. Erickson chose an afternoon dress of light blue lace over taffeta with white accessories and a white orchid corsage.

TRAVEL TO OZARKS

The bridegroom's mother wore a smoke gray dress of silk shantung with white accents and accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

For the honeymoon trip through the Ozarks, the bride changed to a cream beige suit with beige and white accessories and the corsage from her bridal bouquet. The newlyweds will reside in Manhattan, Kan.

How Does Lender Ask Repayment?

Reader Is Seeking Tactful Method of Requesting Money

By EMILY POST

"Dear Mrs. Post: I would like to know how one tactfully goes about asking a person to whom he (or she) has loaned money to pay it back. I am faced with this very ticklish situation and would appreciate any help you have to offer."

Answer: You might say to the person who owes you the money, "I find that I am very hard up just now, and it would help me very much if you could repay the money I loaned you."

"Dear Mrs. Post: I have invited two women friends to spend the weekend with me at my house in the suburbs. I work in the city as do these two friends. I plan to meet them Friday evening after office hours and we will take the train out together. I am wondering if I am supposed to pay their train fare."

Answer: Each should pay her own train fare.

"Dear Mrs. Post: We dine out quite often and are in doubt as to what is correct in the following situation: After we give our order to the waitress, she usually brings salad and rolls and puts them on the table. Is it correct to eat the salad and rolls before the main course is served?"

Answer: Rolls are almost always put on a restaurant table at the beginning of the meal and may be eaten at any time. Salad is very rarely served before the rest of the meal but in localities where this is customary, it may be eaten at once or later as one wishes.

Advice by Experts Taken Too Literally

Walking Directions Confuse Many

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

A lovely walk is a beautiful thing to behold! I have written many times in this column about how to develop a smooth, flowing, graceful gait. However, letters which come to me make me realize that some advice which is given about how to walk is misunderstood by readers.

For instance, a recent letter shows confusion over the admonition to "place each foot directly in front of the other." Two of the usual defects in propelling ourselves along are: (1) The habit of waddling from side to side instead of reaching forward with each step: (2) Toeing out.

The advice to place each foot directly in front of the other should not be taken literally — it was designed to give you the feeling of doing so in order to counteract the two tendencies mentioned above. If you want to practice, draw a line and place the inside of each foot on the line.

Another mixer-upper: Some experts say, "Keep the knees slightly bent while walking." They do not really mean for you to go about as though you are ready to take off for the hurdles, but rather suggest that you keep your knees relaxed.

Unless you have a feeling of relaxation in the knees you will overextend them and produce a jumpy effect as though you were on springs. When the knees are tense you will also find that your pelvis is in poor balance. The hips should be pulled under and the abdomen held in.

ARM MOTION

Directions for arm motion also bewilder many. Let your arms swing naturally as you walk, the right arm swinging forward as you step forward with the left foot and vice versa.

However, if you swing them with a vigorous motion it is unattractive and makes you appear to be propelled along by your arms. Usually the arms should not swing much further forward than the middle side seam of yuor dress or suit.

Of course, when you are walking briskly outdoors for exercise the swing can be more emphasized.

Practice just these three suggestions and your walk will become much lovelier.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Grace," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 57 to Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press.

Tomorrow: "Wrong Method of Carrying Books Can Harm Spine."

The advice to place each foot directly in front of the other should not be taken literally — as this girl is doing.

Future Events Are Scheduled by Niblick Club

The meeting of the Niblick Club was held Tuesday with golf and luncheon at the Pontiac Country Club.

Mrs. Ben Bowman presided at the meeting. Mrs. Manly Young, golf chairman, reported that the husbands' party will be held July 28 at the Pontiac Country Club, with golf and a dinner afterward.

Mrs. N. E. Durocher invited the Niblick members to her summer home on Harsens Island for golf and luncheon July 16.

Mrs. Jay Ford was welcomed as a new member. Following the business meeting, members enjoyed playing bridge.

Employers Sense Hidden Shames

BY ANNE HEYWOOD

If you have a good opinion of yourself, it's going to show; if you have a bad opinion of yourself, that's going to show, too.

We don't realize the extent to which people can tell how we feel about ourselves. We put on the price tag and people "buy" us at our own estimate.

Somehow we just can't kid ourselves, either. If we're doing something mean or unethical, no matter how we try to hide it, our appearance and behavior indicates that all is not well.

I thought of this the other day when I was interviewing a man in my church group.

He was the type employment agencies call "top placeable." He was good-looking, in his late 30ths, went to the right college, had the perfect experience; but he wasn't landing a job.

REAL TENSION

He was disturbed about it, so we had a private talk. I could see that there was a deep underlying nervousness about him. Under the surface calm, there was real tension.

Employers sense that and don't hire the nervous person.

When I asked what was the matter, he assured me, too brightly, that all was well; it was just that he didn't seem to be able to get a job.

I decided it was more fair to tell him what I thought.

"Are you doing anything that goes against the grain of your own ethics?" I asked. "You look as if you don't have much use for yourself."

SENDING NO MONEY

Then out it all came. He and his wife were not sending any money to his elderly mother.

"We can't afford to," he said defensively.

We talked about it and discovered that if they did a little economizing — without depriving themselves of anything they really needed — they would be able to send the old lady a little extra money to help her keep body and soul together.

"My advice," I told him, "is to decide this minute that you're going to send your mother a certain amount every month when you get your job."

He agreed. Before that week was over, he had a job — because he began to like himself again.

If you like yourself, other people like you — employers included!

It isn't easy, this problem of caring for older people.

If it is a problem of yours, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I'll send you some books that may be of help to you and to your older relatives.

Don't think you can get away with neglecting them. If you do neglect them, you'll pay a price for it!

MR. and MRS. GLYN R. STONE

Jane A. Millard Gowned in Lace, Net Over Satin

Jane Ardee Millard became the bride of Glyn Raymond Stone Saturday in Memorial Baptist Church. The Rev. Gerald H. Rapeljo performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a ballerina-length gown of lace and net over satin. A Peter Pan collar and long sleeves tapered to points over the wrist were features of the fitted bodice.

Her fingertip veil fell from a pearl and sequin-trimmed tiara. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, centered with an orchid on a white Bible.

Jane is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Millard of South Edith street. Glyn's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Glyn Stone of South Sanford street.

Mary Jean Stone, sister of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Luana Melberg, Janet Weber and Kay Banks.

Frances Moriarity wore a white nylon dress and carried a basket of rose petals for her duties as flower girl.

GOWNED IN ORCHID

A ballerina-length gown of lace netting over orchid taffeta accented by a round neckline and puffed sleeves was worn by the maid of honor, who carried a miniature fan of yellow lace trimmed with puffballs and feathered carnations.

The other attendants were gowned in yellow in the same style as the maid of honor. They carried fans of orchid lace trimmed with puffballs and feathered carnations.

Attending the bridegroom were Richard Bell as best man and James McIlroth, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Roger Rapelje and Gerland Spangler as ushers. Michael Harroun served as ringbearer.

For the reception held in the church parlors following the ceremony, Mrs. Millard chose an avocado green linen dress with white accessories.

Mrs. Stone wore a navy blue linen dress with white accessories.

Mitt Protects Hands While Washing Walls

You can wash walls, woodwork, and tiling with sudsy water and not even get your hands wet. That is, if you wear an inexpensive mitt made of heat-sealed waterproof vinyl plastic in a gay polka dot or floral pattern.

It's padded with thirsty foam rubber and has a built-in packet that holds soap or detergent to keep the mitt luxuriously lathered as you use it.

Wash it in clean suds after each use, then hang to dry by a convenient metal eyelet punched into the cuff.

Foundation for Fall

Fashion's silhouette for fall is easy, relaxed . . . yet it demands figure definition — a rounded and lifted bust-line, a molded waist, controlled hips, slender thighs. Matching the shape of outer fashions, foundation garments also match their mood . . . a mood of elegance, a luxury look.

Deluge of Gifts Won't Win Daughter-in-Law's Love

Mother's Attempt to Force Affection Will Make Girl Feel Trapped

By RUTH MILLETT

A prospective mother-in-law, whose son is her only child, says, "I am practically standing on my head trying to make Bob's fiancee like me. I've bought her so many things, she says she is getting embarrassed. But I told her I had never had a daughter and she would just have to let me spoil her."

Does this sound like the ideal mother-in-law, one any girl would be lucky to get?

If your first answer is "Yes," think again. She is trying to force and buy love and gratitude. For every gift she gives, she is sure to expect an "Aren't you wonderful" response.

And with every gift she is saying, "You simply have to love me. We've got to be as close as my son and I have been. If you want anything less, you will be a most ungrateful girl."

And that isn't likely to win any mother-in-law the easy, affectionate relationship with her daughter-in-law that she would like to have.

DON'T FORCE ISSUE

A wise mother-in-law won't try to force affection from her son's wife. She won't force gratitude from her with an over-abundance of giving.

She won't seem so eager to be liked and accepted that she makes the daughter-in-law feel uneasy, uncomfortable and trapped.

Friendship with a daughter-in-law is won the same way that friendship with anyone is won—by liking, by admiration, by acceptance and patience. And, of course, by a certain amount of letting alone.

Most women want to be liked by their daughters-in-law. But the ones who have the best chance of it aren't the ones who force the issue. Being content to let affection grow gradually is the safe and sensible course.

Sisterhood, Temple Sponsor Cook-Out

The Sisterhood and members of Temple Beth Jacob held their annual cook-out at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Horwitz on James K boulevard.

Serving on the preparation committee for the recent affair were Mrs. Horwitz, chairman; Mrs. Benjamin Bisgeir, Mrs. Joseph Nonsanchuk, president of the Sisterhood; Dr. Maurice Thome and Mr. and Mrs. Al Steinman.

Mix Rice, Chicken

A luncheon dish of fluffy white rice and slices or cubes of leftover chicken is bright and delicious when topped with a piping hot sauce made by heating together over the direct flame on the top burner, one can of frozen condensed cream of shrimp soup and ½ can milk. Finish with a sprinkling of snipped parsley.

MR. and MRS. WAYNE SCHOTZ

The First Assembly of God Church was the scene of the wedding of Florence Frame to Wayne Schotz. She is the daughter of J. C. Frame and Mrs. Sarah Frame of Dexter, Mo. The bridegroom, who lives on Prospect street, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Schotz of Holly.

Couple Exchanges Vows

Florence Frame and Wayne Schotz were married in the First Assembly of God Church.

For her Saturday wedding the bride chose a gown of Chantilly lace featuring a Sabrina neckline on the fitted bodice. The sleeves were fitted and tapered to points. The bouffant skirt was of Chantilly lace with a pleated tulle insert.

Her headpiece of embroidered sequins and pearls held a fingertip veil of French silk illusion. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and an orchid.

Serving as her sister's maid of honor was Betty Frame. The bridesmaids were Ruth Nations, Marjorie Musgrave and Ester Rodererequez. The maid of honor wore a mint green dress and the bridesmaids wore pale orchid. The flower girl was Linda Cromwell, a niece of the bridegroom.

The best man was David Schotz. Seating the guests were Quinton Rundall, William Cramer and William Turner. The ringbearer was Janes Randall Nix.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Frame wore a navy nylon dress over net with white accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a light blue lace dress with white accessories.

The bride is the daughter of J. C. Frame and Mrs. Sarah Frame of Dexter, Mo. The bridegroom, who lives on Prospect street, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Schotz of Holly.

This summer, sew daughter and yourself pretty frocks that match.

Wallpaper Gives Room Period Look

NEW YORK (INS) — You can give a room a period feeling with real punch if you pick the proper wallpaper.

The decorators in New York department stores set the tone of the room — and its time in history — by the type of wallpaper they hang.

A bold gold and white regency stripe paper, for instance, was the dominant note in a bedroom. The rug was dark charcoal, and black frames were used on the black and white prints that added further wall interest.

A gold upholstered settee and gold hardware on the light tan wood furniture blended in with the color scheme.

A French provincial look was given another room by the use of a fancy wallpaper featuring tiny green cross-stitches on a white background. The paper on each wall was framed with a border of sketched green grape, flower and leaf clusters.

Apricot was the highlight color of this room, adding a slightly muted touch of brightness to the light green.

The provincial look was heightened by the use of white-painted furniture with curved legs and claw feet.

State Preference

When your host offers you a choice of drinks, don't think you are being easy to please by saying "It doesn't matter. Anything is all right for me." He is asking so that he can give you your preference. So give it, if you want to be a help.

MR. and MRS. ROBERT C. BLOME

Margaret G. McColl and Robert C. Blome were married Saturday in First Christian Church. She is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. D. D. McColl, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. Blome of Dallas.

Uncle Performs Wedding for Margaret G. McColl

Altar bouquets of white gladioli decorated First Christian Church Saturday at 8 p.m. for the wedding of Margaret Gertrude McColl to Robert C. Blome. The bride's uncle, the Rev. D. K. McColl of Wichita, Kan., performed the ceremony.

The bride's gown was a full-length imported Swiss organdy creation of her own design. The gown was fashioned with short sleeves, a boat neckline and appliqued medallions on the sleeves, neckline and full skirt.

A seed pearl tiara held her fingertip veil. The bride carried pink rosebuds and white stephanotis on a Bible.

Janet McColl, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. The other attendants were Carol Blome of Dallas, Tex., sister of the bridegroom; Audrey Mooy of Eagle Park, Ind., the bride's college roommate, and Mrs. Frank Zimmerman of Newport, Ind.

The maid of honor wore a dress of embroidered Swiss organdy over peacock blue taffeta with a blue cummerbund. The bridesmaids wore identical gowns in American Beauty rose. Each attendant carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations and red roses.

The flower girl, Sherry Simpson of Colorado City, Tex., wore a white dotted Swiss dress with a blue cummerbund and carried a basket of rose petals.

ASSIST BRIDEGROOM

The bridegroom's brother, Bruce Blome of Dallas, assisted as best man. Brothers of the bride, Dougald, William and Donald McColl, seated the guests. Larry Chambers of Iola, Kan., was the ringbearer.

Immediately following the ceremony, the guests were received in the church dining room.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. D. D. McColl of Dwight avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. Blome of Dallas are the bridegroom's parents.

Mrs. McColl wore a pink lace over taffeta dress with pink and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations and pink rosebuds. For her son's wedding Mrs. Blome chose a pale blue taffeta dress with blue and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds and white carnations.

For traveling through southern Canada the bride changed to a Nile green cotton dress with white accessories. She wore a corsage from her bridal bouquet. The newlyweds will live in Indianapolis.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Blome graduated from Purdue University.

Delicate, dainty lace emphasizes angularity but heavy lace feminizes the large bone structure and suits the robust.

Fashion Hits Bottom

By OLGA CURTIS
INS Women's Editor

NEW YORK (INS) — Fashion has hit bottom, and I've proved it.

For the sake of impartial fashion reporting, I encased myself firmly for one whole day in Christian Dior's newest idea: The uplift panty girdle designed to give every woman that Marilyn Monroe walk.

But what can you do? The Marilyn Monroe walk can be had only if you've got the Monroe-type of natural resources to start with.

French fashion czar Dior wasn't thinking of Miss Monroe when he launched the uplift girdle in Paris a few months ago. The announced intention was "to take years off a woman's figure in the back."

"A woman doesn't look pretty in the back," explained Dior, "wearing an ordinary panty which makes her look wide and broad across the bottom."

BRA SHAPING

So the uplift girdle was created: "A panty girdle that looks like any other in front, but is shaped in back like an oversize bra.

The corset firm that adapts Dior designs for the U. S. tried the garment and decided that it didn't conform to American women's slim dimensions.

"We spent three months working out the problem," says corset expert Sam Traub. The problem? Traub explained delicately that sitting down wasn't comfortable.

This week, Traub proudly presented the "perfect uplift" for the rear: A panty girdle with two gleaming oval-shaped satin inserts at back. Each insert is individually tucked and shaped.

This reporter tested the first edition of the new model, which will be in stores in September. The uplift panty girdle was certainly comfortable, if a bit unusual in sitting balance (it causes a certain amount of teeter-totter motion).

But it did not, as promised, make me look like Marilyn Monroe going away.

Easy to Keep Garden Tools — From Rusting

Any gardener worth his crop usually has a small fortune tied up in tools — such as spades, hoes, and rakes.

A little effort will keep them in workmanlike condition all season at practically no cost. The only requirements are hot water, soap or detergent, and paste wax.

Immerse the tools in hot suds to soak away hardened earth and dirt, then remove the remainder with a stiff brush.

Rinse in clear hot water, dry metal parts thoroughly, and give them a light coating of paste wax. This staves off rust and keeps earth from clinging to metal surfaces while the tools are in use.

Use your dryer to fluff and remove summer dampness from pillows.

Lightning Hits at Highest Spot

If Your Hair Stands Up, Hit the Ground Quick, You're a Target

If you are outdoors in a threatening thunderstorm and you notice a sensation that feels like your hair is beginning to stand on end, you may be getting set to become a lightning target.

Best thing to do, according to the Lightning Protection Institute, is to lie down immediately — in a ditch or depression if possible.

By lying prone you may cease to be the "highest object in the area" in which positive electrical ground charges congregate in order to be as close as possible for an explosive meeting with their negative opposites contained in storm clouds.

Yearly toll from lightning in the nation is about 600 persons killed, two and half times that many injured and more than $100,000,000 in property loss.

Much of this could be avoided, the institute says, by observing some simple rules.

DANGER OUTDOORS

Lightning's danger is more often great to people whose occupation or hobbies keep them outdoors. The most hazardous period occurs just before a storm, when dark clouds gather in the sky and the atmosphere actually feels charged.

The most dangerous places are on the golf course, in a boat, swimming in the water, atop a hill, at the beach, under an isolated tree, near a wire fence, clothesline, overhead wires or towers, or riding a bike, tractor, horse or farm machinery.

Saftest places to be are in a building protected with lightning rods and grounds, in a steel-framed building, or in your car.

If this protection is not available, find a ravine, cliff, ditch or cave to hide in or under. Or, lie flat on the ground.

If you are indoors in an unprotected building, don't stand in doorways or near open windows. Keep away from metal objects, the fireplace, sink, telephone and television set.

Ethel Changes Mind on Washington Shows

NEW YORK (AP) — A couple of ladies have helped persuade Ethel Merman to change her mind.

The star of "Happy Hunting" has made it a practice not to tour with shows following their Broadway run. Hereafter, however, she promises Merman shows will visit Washington.

Miss Merman made the vow to 600 guests after listening to pleas while attending the annual Congressional Club breakfast in the capital.

The pleas were by Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower and Mrs. Earl Warren.

BIG BANG — This balloon will go off with an extra big bang—it is the 75-foot plastic balloon under which the next nuclear device will be suspended for firing in the Nevada atomic test series. The balloon, shown here with a dummy shot attached, will be anchored 1,500 feet above the desert by steel cables.

New Orleans Maintains Dixieland Jazz Tradition

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — When the sun goes down over Jackson Square and hot dog vendors roll their little white carts through the narrow lanes of New Orleans' famous French Quarter, the unmistakable sounds of Dixieland jazz, blue but bouncy, emanate from dozens of neonlighted doorways along Bourbon and Royal Streets.

New Orleans is still the only city in the country with a bona fide musical tradition all its own.

The tradition began more than a century ago with the slow, sad beat of the bayou funeral processions, quickened its pace to get in step with the old time parades and clambakes and added a few brassy strains when it moved inside the nightclubs and dancehalls. Despite the slow refinements of time, Dixieland has managed to preserve its distinctive style and flavor. Even stripteasers playing the Crescent City have had to convert their convolutions to the hypnotic fourbeat rhythm of this municipal mania.

Over the years Dixieland has produced such immortals as Jelly-roll Morton, King Oliver, Bunk Johnson, Kid Ory and Sidney Bechet. Even today New Orleans boasts some of the best jazz musicians and jazz bands in the country, playing the old familiars like "Milenburg Joys," "High Society" and "Muskat Ramble" in an endless variety of traditional styles.

One half of the band may be playing "Washington and Lee Swing" while the brass section tootles away on "Listen to the Mocking Bird," but anyone who complains misses the humor underlying much of Dixieland.

Record companies have not been remiss in discovering the delights of this traditionally American music and the city where it is still played best.

Listening to recent releases is like strolling through the Quarter on any muggy summer night. There's Sharkey Bonano wrapping his old black derby around the rim of a hot and brassy trumpet on "A Night in Old New Orleans." There's sedate and dignified George Lewis, born 1900—the same year as Louis Armstrong—playing it slow and sad, like in the old days, on Riverside and Southland labels. And the king himself, ol' Satchmo Armstrong, on "Jazz Classics," rips into "Mahogany Hall Stomp" with his sizzling trumpet or gargles his way through the vocals of "I'll Be Glad When You Dead, You Rascal You."

Jazz contralto Lizzie Miles, pleads with Bill Bailey to please come home in English and then does it again in Cajun French in case he didn't get the message the first time.

VIK records, an RCA label, combines the new and the old with a four-volume Dixieland Festival that features Santo Pecora, probably the best jazz trombonist going; Buglin' Sam DeKemel, who gave up his waffle vending cart to peddle hot jazz in the key of G on a regulation Army bugle; the late George Girard, a gifted jazz trumpeter who died famous in his native city at the age of 26, and Tony Almerico, who helped to take jazz out of the saloons and into the salons with his now famous Sunday afternoon jam sessions at the Parisian Room.

Sees Menace in Hitchhikers

J. Edgar Hoover Urges Holiday Drivers Avoid 'Dangerous Gamble'

WASHINGTON (INS) — J. Edgar Hoover, on the eve of the long Fourth of July weekend, warned the nation's motorists last night that picking up hitchhikers is a "dangerous, blind gamble."

The FBI chief said the holiday period and the whole vacation season will bring to countless citizens and families an invitation "to play a fateful game of chance — with life and death the possible stakes."

The nation's top law enforcement officer pointed out in the monthly FBI enforcement bulletin that the hitchhiking menace has "been nurtured by the American tradition of extending a helping hand."

However, he warned, this is an era when vicious youthful hoodlums, fleeing criminals and sex maniacs are increasing in number. The average motorist, or even a trained police officer, officials noted, cannot pick out a criminal type by appearance alone.

Hoover said: "it is almost unbelievable that the average citizen, who carefully takes precautions against allowing strangers into his home, will frequently give so little thought to picking up trouble in the person of the unknown wanderer."

RECALL CRIME

He recalled one of the worst crimes ever recorded in FBI files — that of William Edward Cook, who shot to death a family of five — father, mother and three small children — and threw their bodies into an abandoned mine shaft near Joplin, Mo. The family had given Cook a "lift" on the highway.

The FBI director declared that "it is vitally important to stamp out the popular misconception that 'courtesy of the road' demands 'giving a lift.'"

He continued: "offering a ride to a stranger, like passing on a hill or a curve, is a dangerous, blind gamble. In neither case can the motorist foresee what is ahead. Will the additional passenger be a pleasant companion or one of that band of violent criminals responsible for a crime of murder, manslaughter, rape or assult-to-kill every 4.1 minutes of 1956?"

45 Oakland Men Enlist in Marines

The U.S. Marine Substation in Pontiac has announced a bumper crop of enlistees for the month of June. A total of 45 Oakland County men, 33 of them in the Pontiac Marine Platoon, enlisted during the month.

Although all 45 were flown to San Diego, Calif., for 12 weeks of recruit training, those in the Pontiac Marine Platoon will go through training together in the same group.

Members of the platoon from Pontiac are: Richard M. Doyon, of 57 Park Place; James M. Coppage, of 98 W. Union St.; and Charlie E. Ratcliff, of 252 Rapid St.

Others include: Richard D. Schveier, of Commerce Township; Donald James Popour, of Pontiac Township; William G. Stone, of Keego Harbor; Mack E. Starick and Terrence T. Shenks, both of Orchard Lake; Lee F. Labenby, of Drayton Plains; William G. McIlrath, William A. Bush, and Thomas J. Kerr, all of Walled Lake; and Winston C. Farmer, of Clarkston.

Also in the special platoon were: Michael J. Lapham, of Farmington; Charles W. Mayers, of Holly; Richard W. Kelly, Ronald Cinader Jr., and Richard T. Trawick, all of Troy; Paul A. Howcroft, of Birmingham, and James Zalenski, of Huntington Woods.

Joining the platoon from Berkley were: Sean O. Whalen, Ralph J. Broaddus, Richard E. Demara, Edward E. Spaeth, Willard B. Spring Jr., David C. Junnola, James H. Curtis, and Robert L. Simkins.

Rounding out the platoon, from Royal Oak were: David E. Reiber, Leonard E. Lucy, Wayne E. White Jr., Graeme R. Miller, and Carlin Paul Cross.

Remaining June enlistees from Pontiac were: Michael David Morrow, of 301 Willard St.; Anthony Peter Zegrafes, of 120 Ruth Ave.; and Billy Gene Willis, of 49 Niagara Ave. From Ortonville were Charles Lloyd Brandt, Larry Joe Burns, and Leon Richard Filhart.

Completing the list of enlistees were: Ira Howard Jackson, of Waterford Township; Raymond J. LaPratt, of Keego Harbor; Robert Bruce O'Neill and LeRoy J. Vogt, both of Drayton Plains; and Andrew Edward Smith and Lawrence Eugene Smith, of Holly.

All 45 will be transferred to Camp Pendelton, at Oceanside, Calif., for five weeks of individual combat training upon completion of the 12-week recruit training program. They will then get a 15-day leave before being assigned to a post or station.

Old Colonial Lighthouse to Receive New Dome

CAPE HENRY, Va. (AP) — The old Cape Henry lighthouse, whose fish oil lamps guided ships into Chesapeake Bay for 90 years until 1881, is getting a new dome.

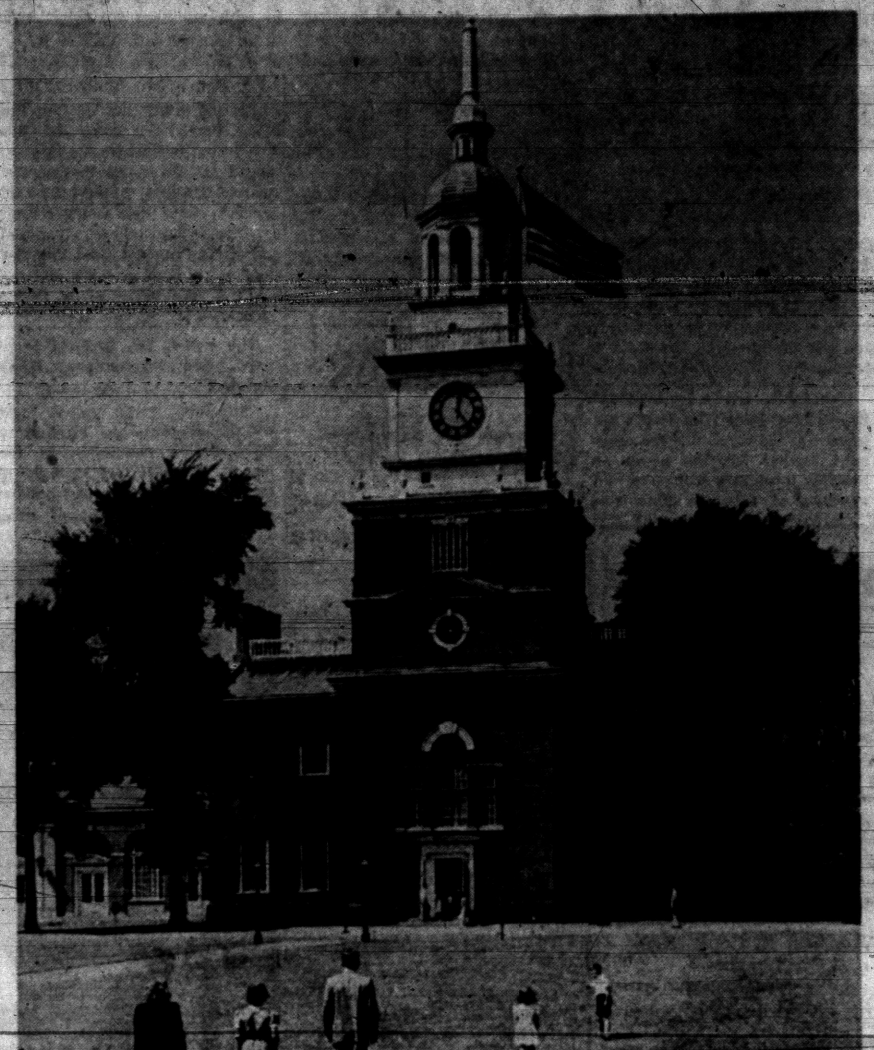
The old light, near the point where Virginia's Jamestown colonist first landed in 1607, was built in 1791-92. George Washington appointed the first lighthouse keeper.

The lighthouse was neglected from 1881 to 1930 when Congress deeded the structure to the Assn. for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities.



REPLICA IN DEARBORN — Famed Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence was signed, takes on new meaning on each 4th of July. The well-known Philadelphia shrine has a counterpart in Dearborn, where Henry Ford copied the original to house his famous museum. The building is an exact replica, including architectural mistakes. As in the original group, Independence Hall is in the center, the City Hall at the extreme left and the County Court House at the extreme right.

U. of M.'s Rocket Researchers Probe High Into Atmosphere

July 1 marked the opening of the International Geophysical Year, and scientists at the University of Michigan Engineering Research Institute are preparing for it by initiating one of the most ambitious air research projects in history.

The over-all operation, sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the Armed Forces Laboratories, involves several universities, and the firing of some 60 two-stage Nike-Cajun high altitude rockets from U.S. launching sites at Guam and Fort Churchill, the latter is located in Canada, on Hudson Bay.

MANY INSTRUMENTS

Planned as part of the U.S. contribution to the forthcoming 70-nation Geophysical Year, the rockets will be instrumented to measure water vapor distribution, the earth's magnetic field, cloud structure, pressure, temperature, density, cosmic rays and auroral particles in the upper atmosphere.

The studies are expected to reveal far more "about the weather" than has ever been known. Until rocket research made upper atmosphere study possible, man's knowledge about the causes of weather phenomena was restricted to what he was able to observe near the surface of the earth.

Much has been learned in the past decade, but the forthcoming studies will be the biggest attempt yet made to probe the higher regions of the atmosphere.

What is learned will contribute significantly to an understanding of such occurances as tornadoes, hurricanes, electrical storms, and may eliminate the car wash as an indication of rain.

SPACE TRAVEL NEAR

The studies, too, should reveal a good deal of the information needed before man can leave the confines of earth in space-traveling rockets. We are very near the point where manned rockets could be launched into outer space.

But what happens to such a carrier soaring through the upper air at the tremendous speeds required to kick a space ship free of earth gravity on its way to the moon or Mars? And how does it come back?

Huge meteors traveling at ultra-high speeds disintegrate completely when they hit the upper atmosphere. Disintegration would be the fate of a rocket returning from a space trip unless it has some means of checking its speed when it approaches earth.

Scientists hope to obtain some answers to these problems through a better understanding of the relatively unexplored body of air surrounding our planet.

The University of Michigan will launch about one-fifth of the proposed rockets from the Fort Churchill site, with attention focused on upper atmosphere pressure, density and temperature.

100 MILES UP

Information from the upper atmosphere will be transmitted to earth-bound listening stations by measuring devices that will soar some 80 to 100 miles above the earth.

Rockets designed to reach into the upper atmosphere and beyond must be able to withstand extremely high temperatures caused by aerodynamic heating. Weight problems are also a critical factor —every pound saved adds an extra 3,000 feet to the altitude the rocket can attain.

The Nike booster is the first stage of the rocket—the Cajun is the instrument carrying second stage. The missile is 26 ft. long and weighs 1,535 lbs. at takeoff.

When fired, the Nike booster burns out in 3.3 seconds, at an approximate height of 6,450 feet. Top speed during this initial stage is Mach 3.2 times the speed of sound.

Air drag pulls the first stage away from the second as the rocket coasts for about 11 seconds reaching an altitude of approximately 29,300 ft. At this point the second stage Cajun ignites, accelerating for 3 seconds before burning out at 41,000 ft.—reaching a maximum speed of Mach 6.3 and continuing to rise until it reaches its trajectory peak of 528,000 ft. (100 miles.)

Chicago Now Pays 25c for City Ride

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicagoans started paying one of the highest cash fares in the nation today for a ride within the city on a bus, trolley, subway or elevated train.

The Chicago Transit Authority decided Tuesday to raise the fee —now 20 cents—to 25 cents in cash or 22½ cents if a token is used.

Available information shows that only one city charges as much as a quarter. That's Cincinnati, where the 25-cent fare is graduated to 30 cents beyond a four-mile limit and to 35 cents beyond seven miles.

Ten tokens will sell for $2.25. Tokens, if anybody wanted to use them in the recent past, cost 20 cents each—the same as the cash fare.

Mosque Opens in Washington

Serves 1,000 Moslems in Nation's Capital; Ike Officiates

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A new tie between Arab and United States relations was made June 28 when President Eisenhower officially opened the Islamic Center in Washington.

Its existence is unknown to people in many parts of the country, but the Center is fast becoming popular with tourists to the nation's capital.

STRANGE CHANT

Motorists driving along busy Massachusetts avenue can sometimes hear a strange chant rising above the traffic. Although not understood by most of them, the melodic words hold a special meaning for the city's 1,000 Moslem population. The chant is calling them to prayer.

It is broadcast by a tape recorder five times a day from a slender, gleaming tower with a graceful bulbous top rising high above the green trees on both sides of the wide avenue.

The exotic-looking structure is the only mosque in the United States that fulfills all the Moslem traditions. With its two adjoining divisions, the mosque is known as the Islamic Center.

The center cost more than a million dollars and has a dual purpose. It provides a place for prayer and offers an educational program to better acquaint Americans and people from Moslem countries with each others' culture.

3 PARTS

The center is divided into three connecting parts, all made from white Alabama limestone. The wing flanking the right side of the mosque houses the offices of the director and his staff.

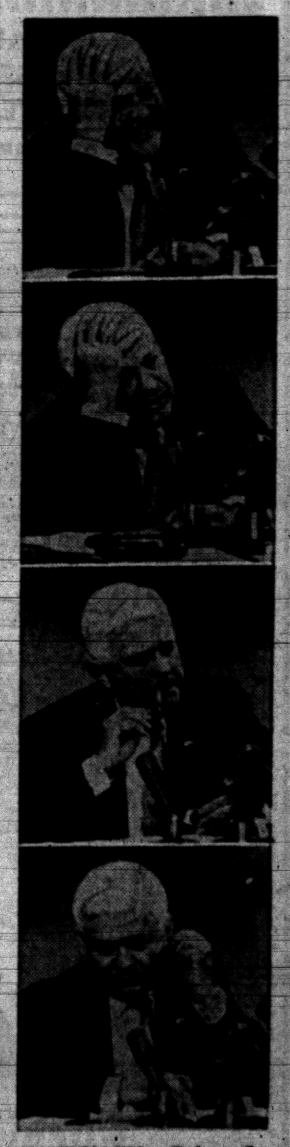
The left wing contains a library above which is a room to be used as a museum. A lecture hall seating 300 persons is in the basement.

Fifteen Moslem countries financed the center's construction. Requiring almost seven years to build, much of its interior was decorated by craftsmen brought from several of these countries for the job.

When a Moslem walks through the courtyard to enter the mosque, he passes a flowing fountain made of pink marble. As he faces Mecca, inside the place of worship, he is surrounded by columns and walls inlaid with colored Turkish tiles.

He kneels on thick carpets from Iran, the smallest of which requires at least two men to lift. Hanging above his head is a bronze and nickel chandelier weighing more than two tons which was donated by Egypt.

Sermons are delivered from a handcarved pulpit inlaid with ebony and ivory. While praying, he is cooled by a 150-ton air conditioning system. This is the only mosque in the world with that particular comfort.



MANY MOODS — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson runs the gamut of emotion during a question-and-answer session with newsmen at the Pentagon. Starting off with a big smile (top), Wilson shifts into a pensive mood; lights a cigarette and winds up scratching his ear as he ponders a puzzling question.

BE PREPARED — When the Boy Scouts, 50,000 strong, hold their annual National Jamboree they set up old fashioned trading posts to barter for goods brought from home towns all over the nation. Enterprising Jack King, a 14-year-old Scout from Pasadena, persuaded actress Jayne Mansfield that 50 autographed pictures of her would give him a big start in the trading post at this year's jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa. Said Jayne, "Fifty Thousand Boy Scouts want my picture?"

SAVED THEIR PENNIES — Richard D. Gamma, 21, and Elva Mae Cox, his 18-year-old fiancee, have literally been saving their pennies in order to buy a marriage license. Over a period of seven months and 27 days they amassed 363 pennies. The license cost $3.60, so they paid the clerk (right), at the Little Rock, Ark., courthouse for the license and used the extra three cents for the parking meter.

Detective Claims New Data Proves Dr. Sheppard Innocent of Slaying

(Jack Lotto covered the trial of Dr. Samuel Sheppard in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1954.)

By JACK LOTTO
INS Staff Writer

A private detective claimed today he has uncovered new evidence and three witnesses to prove the "complete innocence" of convicted wife-killer Dr. Sam Sheppard.

The assertion was made by veteran New York investigator Harold B. Bretnall of the eve of the third anniversary of the sensational July 4, 1954, bludgeon murder of Marilyn Sheppard in Bay Village, Ohio, a Cleveland suburb.

Bretnall hinted he knows the identity of what he termed the "real perpetrator" of the vicious slaying for which the handsome osteopath is serving a life sentence.

The former Senate Crime Committee investigator claimed a pair of Marilyn's red leather bedroom slippers in his possession provide a "significant" new clue.

ON SOLES

Something on the soles of the size six slippers, Bretnall declared, allows she made a post-midnight trip out of the house shortly before she was killed by 27 blows on the head around 3 a.m. He said he was not prepared at this time to explain the slippers' significance.

Cleveland Chief Assistant Prosecutor Saul Danaceau scoffed at the suggestion the pregnant mother left the house or that the three new witnesses had anything of value to offer. Despite his disbelief, however, Danaceau said his office was willing to check out "anything of significance."

He added:

"We don't know anything about any red slippers. There was never any evidence that she was out of the house. As far as we are concerned the case is closed. The courts have upheld our position. But, we take the position in this, and any case, that if anyone comes in with anything we think ought to be checked out, we'll do it."

Dr. Sam's two brothers, meanwhile, indicated that for the time being they have given up their long court battle and are now pinning their hopes on investigators such as Bretnall to find new evidence to clear their younger brother, Dr. Sam has steadfastly claimed a "bushy-haired intruder" clubbed his wife to death and then knocked him unconscious in two battles.

The oldest, Dr. Richard Sheppard, told International News Service:

"We have given up—at least for the present—any attempt to fight Sam's conviction in the courts. We still feel strongly in Dr. Sam's innocence and believe there still are a lot of unanswered questions."

The U.S. Supreme Court last November refused to intercede in the case and while the widespread and expensive family hunt for new information goes on, Dr. Sam—now No. 98860 in the Ohio penitentiary—is working as a clerk.

TOOTH FRAGMENT

Bretnall, one-time UNRRA investigator, insisted that a fragment of tooth found under the murder bed—and never identified—supports his contention that someone else committed the crime.

As for the three "new potential witnesses," the investigator said they "were in the immediate vicinity of the Sheppard home near the time the murder was committed."

He added:

"These persons evidently were not available at the time of the trial. One of them had fled the jurisdiction of the court."

Bretnall, who has been working on the case for nearly two years, predicted:

"Dr. Sam's complete innocence will be proven and the real prepetrator of the crime will be apprehended as a result of my investigation now in progress."

Asked whom he suspected, Bretnall replied cryptically:

"The answer to the Sheppard case riddle still lies in Bay Village."

To which Danaceau retorted:

"Rhetorical conversation is of no legal value."

An innocent victim of the brutal murder which brought Cleveland's most spectacular trial was little "Chip" Sheppard. He slept soundly in the next room as his attractive mother was slain.

"Chip," now 11, lives with his uncle, Dr. Stephan Sheppard and is in the fifth grade at Rocky River (Ohio) elementary school. He is now spending a summer vacation at a camp in Canada.

"He is very well adjusted to everything," Dr. Richard said of the boy. "He has been incorporated into Dr. Steve's family."

Asks Business, Labor to Help

Ike Says Government Alone Can't Assure Stable Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said that business and labor will have to help hold the line against inflation because the government alone cannot keep a stable economy.

Asked at his news conference about the effect of a steel price increase of $6 a ton, Eisenhower said he doesn't know the exact details of why this price increase was ordered and doesn't want to pass final judgment on the action.

But he said he stands firmly on the idea that the government alone cannot keep a stable economy.

A reporter questioned Eisenhower's recent statement that a "considerable" rise in the cost of living could be attributed to higher food prices.

Eisenhower at first questioned whether he had used the word "considerable" but when the reporter said he was reading from a news conference transcript the President said he should not have used that word.

Eisenhower said that of course food price increases contributed to some extent in raising living costs. He said the government is trying to raise the prices farmers receive for their products. But he said there is so much spread between prices on the farm and at the market place that not much of the living cost increase is accounted for by rises in farm prices.

4-H Competition at MSU Draws 28 County Youths

Oakland County 4-H Achievement Booth winners will go to Michigan State University Tuesday to compete with south Michigan county winners in the selection of state show entries.

Five boys and five girls will be chosen by Friday to exhibit their booths, which detail their 4-H careers, at the August State Show. Winners will go on to the Washington, D.C., 4-H Club Congress.

Going to MSU are 28 youths from Oakland, headed by the county winners, Judy Crawford of Milford and Bill Middleton of Lake Orion.

In a separate category, dress review, Miss Crawford and Frances Williamson of Waterford Township will compete as county winners.

Those chosen in dress review, the making and modeling of dresses, will go to the state show, with the winners there going on to Chicago for the national finals.

Railroad Whistle Posts Have Become a Rarity

ST. LOUIS — Railroad whistle posts are now a rarity, but not long ago they could be seen at danger points on every line. They were large white posts, usually wooden, on which was painted a big black "W."

Below this was painted a series of long and short lines that told the engineer how many and what kind of blasts to give on the whistle. Now most railroads use simple guides, such as a large "X," to indicate to the engineer that he is nearing a crossing.

Youth Takes Over Antique Business

LONDON—Derek Crowther, just 21, recently took control of one of the world's most famous antique businesses, with royalty among its patrons.

He will run the business while his grandfather is in jail. The grandfather, John Alvert Crowther, 74, was jailed for nine months in London for receiving four Adam fireplaces which were stolen. As boss of Sylon Lodge, at Isleworth, England, Derek received scores of messages from peers, film stars, and business men pledging their continued support.

As he walked the 10-acre grounds of the lodge, among statues of heraldic beasts, huge vases, bronze bird cotes and fountains, Derek said: "I want the governor to find things in better shape when he returns than when he left. I suppose royalty won't be able to come here now, but they are only prestige customers."

Baby Knorke Regards German Girl as His Mama

Nurse Lives With Gorilla--Likes It

By SEYMOUR TOPPING
(For Hal Boyle)

BERLIN (AP)—"Living alone with a gorilla can be fun."

So says Rosemarie Hohler, a petite 24-year-old German nurse with gentle brown eyes.

She knows. She has just spent three months in a hospital isolation room caring day and night for Knorke, an ailing baby gorilla.

Knorke, aged 20 months and worth $5,000, is a hairy 28-pound bundle of mischief with a toothy flashing grin. The Berlin Zoo flew him in from the French Cameroons to replace Pongo, a giant gorilla who was bayonetted to death in World War II by Russian soldiers.

When Rosemarie first entered Knorke's life last March, he was a sad-eyed homesick little ape stricken with infectious paratyphoid, a fever fatal to many gorillas.

Rosemarie, a nurse at West Berlin's City Hospital, volunteered to go into quarantine with Knorke to save his life. Zoo experts said Knorke would have a better chance to pull through if he were cared for by a woman he could come to love as his foster mother.

But doctors warned Rosemarie that she could never return to her nursing profession if she contracted the lingering paratyphoid fever.

"It was a big risk," Rosemarie concedes.

Rosemarie set up housekeeping for herself and the gorilla in a small barely furnished, sealed-off room at City Hospital.

"At first I was afraid of the little black devil because the first time I took him into my arms he bit me," said Rosemarie. "But soon I came to love him better than I would a child."

And how did Knorke feel?

"The first night he was afraid and sat up in his cage. He would begin to cry everytime I turned off the light.

"But then as we were together, he began to love and respect me. He knew that I was helping him. If I tried to go out, he would follow me whimpering. That was proof that he loved me.

"When Knorke was naughty, I would spank him. Then he would put his face in his hands and after a while look up at me with big disappointed eyes. Most of the time he would obey me after he had been spanked."

Knorke got steadily better on a diet of baby milk formula, soft-boiled eggs and fruit.

By day, Rosemarie and the gorilla would romp in the room.

"He was lots of fun," she says. Knorke would duck under the bed, race around the room and then leap into Rosemarie's arms, burying his flat nose in her hair and gently nipping her ears.

The big problem for Rosemarie, like for any parent, came at night when Knorke would stubornly refuse to go to bed.

The nurse learned it was best to put him in a big bag and dump him directly into his wooden cage. The cage stood near Rosemarie's steel hospital cot.

Knorke feels well now, although he will never be entirely free of paratyphoid. He has been taken to the zoo hospital where visitors can view him in a big glass cage.

Rosemarie has gone along to take care of him. She works days at the zoo. When she leaves, Knorke cries for her like a child.

To cheer up the gorilla, the zoo gave him a playmate, Oki, a young chimpanzee. But Knorke beat up Oki and the chimp had to be taken away.

"I shall stay with Knorke for another one or two years until he is almost grown up," says Rosemarie. "Then he won't need a mother."

In about five years Knorke will be full grown, about 6 feet tall and weighing around 550 pounds.

"I wonder if I can play with him then," mused Rosemarie.

Elephants Remain in Doomed Valley

GWEMBE, Rhodesia — Africans have been convinced that they must leave Northern Rhodesia's Gwembe Valley, doomed to vanish under the gigantic Kariba Gorge project, but the elephant herds are fighting back, Gwembe reports. Some 60,000 natives are being moved to new villages on the hills looking down on the gorge before the valley is drowned under 150 feet of the harnessed waters of the Zambesi.

But the elephants, 1,000 strong, won't budge. Game rangers, in their drives to oust the elephants, employ many native villagers, both men and women, in human chains moving up from the valley floor. One chain was attacked by a big elephant cow. Men and women scattered and the maddened cow impaled one woman on its tusks. As fast as the villages are evacuated, baboons move in to riad them.

Blueberries Dot Holiday Pie

For the Fourth of July or any other special holiday, here's a new blueberry pie, served plain or with whipped cream. Any leftover pie may be stored in the refrigerator, covered with an inverted pie plate.

Blueberry Chiffon Pie

One package lemon chiffon pie filling mix
½ cup boiling water
½ cup very cold water
½ cup sugar
2 cups fresh whole blueberries
2 cooled baked 8-inch pie shells

Place mix in a large, deep mixing bowl. Add boiling water and mix thoroughly. Add very cold water and beat vigorously with rotary beater or at highest speed of electric mixer until mixture is very foamy—takes about 1 minute.

Add sugar and beat until filling stands in peaks—takes 1 to 3 minutes. Fold in blueberries. Pour into pie shells. Chill until set, about 2 hours. Serve plain or with whipped cream.

A HOLIDAY TREAT — For a special holiday treat make a blueberry chiffon pie. Top it with a star of whipped cream. The filling is made from the new lemon chiffon pie mix and blueberries.

Europeans See Victory in Purge

Full Party Control Won by Nikita Khrushchev in Battle With Stalinists

LONDON (AP) — West European observers agreed today that the big purge in the Kremlin was a victory for Nikita Khrushchev. Yugoslavia's Communist regime saw it as a move toward peace, but others adopted a wait-and-see attitude about the effect on Russia's relations with the West.

The shakeup was hailed by the Communist parties in Western Europe, the Old Guard Stalinist regime in East Germany and the Poles, straining to loosen their ties with the Kremlin.

London morning papers agreed the purge put Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev in the driver's seat. But they said the Khrushchev the West must now face will be tougher than the smiling Khrushchev who appeared on American TV screens a few weeks ago.

"In the Soviet Union and in the East European countries," commented the independent Times of London, "the upheaval will be taken as meaning that the stubborn old brakes on the 'liberalizing' policy have gone and Khrushchev will at last have his head.

"Whether all the errors in foreign policy, now put at (ex-Foreign Minister V. M.) Molotov's door, will be corrected has to be seen."

The Conservative Daily Mail said, "Khrushchev has shown himself to be cunning, ruthless and unreliable. We of the West must treat with him and the regime he dominates, but we should be foolish to trust either."

In Rome, the organ of the ruling Italian Christian Democrat party said the shakeup "might lead to new hopes for cooperation with the Western World." But this, Il Popolo went on, "depends solely . . . on the wishes of only one man—even if this man is the well-intentioned Khrushchev."

The official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug described the purge as "a positive contribution to international cooperation." This was an echo of the interpretation broadcast by Moscow radio.

Dublin's New Lord Mayor

Helped Build Skyscrapers

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

Dublin's new lord mayor is looking forward to visiting America and viewing once again the skyscraping skyline of New York City.

"I helped create it, you know," James Carroll said shortly after taking over the top administrative post of Ireland's ancient capital city.

His traveling plans fit right in with the "foreign policy" of the man he tied in the election, and defeated by drawing the right slip of paper out of a hat: Robert Briscoe.

Briscoe was the Jewish lord mayor who toured America and New York this year on behalf of Irish tourism, textiles and whisky. He had won the post of lord mayor last year by getting the right straw after tieing with another councilman.

This time when he tied Carroll, Briscoe lost and Carroll got "the luck of the draw," Carroll added, in his rolling Irish brogue:

"Certainly I'm going to come to New York—and I'll be there for next year's St. Patrick's Day parade. I won't miss that for anything.

EX-PLASTERER

Like Briscoe, the new lord mayor spent a number of his younger years in New York during the mid-1920's. He learned to be a plasterer.

"I worked," he reported in an interview, "on the bank of Manhattan building, the Chrysler and the Empire State Building . . . also in Macy's and Bloomingdale's."

He brought his childhood sweetheart over "from County Clare," married her, and they had their first of seven children in New York in 1928.

The young family returned to Ireland. Carroll found the need for plenty of plastering in Dublin and started his own successful firm.

He had backed Eamon De Valera "during the troubles" and got into politics three years ago by running for a seat in parliament. He lost but two years ago he was elected to the city council, voted for Briscoe last year, and this time for himself—thus creating the tie that made him lord mayor.

Apple Drive Snowballing

Clubs From 3 Counties Meeting July 11 at West Bloomfield Township

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The agricultural project adopted by the Kiwanis Club of West Bloomfield Township—that of pushing the sale and use of Michigan apples—is blossoming out in all directions.

A month ago, West Bloomfield Club members hoped to turn their project into a county - wide campaign during 1957. This goal called for the participation of all 15 Oakland County clubs.

Now, however, the idea has attracted the interest and support of clubs in neighboring Wayne and Genesee counties.

It now appears that a grand total of 57 Kiwanis clubs will participate in the drive, including 18 in Genesee county and 24 in Wayne county.

Major aim of the project is to familiarize Michigan families with a home product. Kiwanians intend to get Michigan apples into the kitchens of nearly every home in the tri-county area.

Co-chairmen of the campaign are John C. Finlayson, Kiwanis District No. 5; Eugene Miller, District No. 1 and M. B. Dabler, District No. 12.

Finlayson, a member of the West Bloomfield club, is credited with being the major force behind the idea. Miller is a member of a Detroit club while Dabler is a member of the Holly club.

Clubs from the three counties are expected to send representatives to the next meeting of the group slated for 8 p.m. Thursday, July 11, at West Bloomfield Township Hall, 4460 Orchard Lake road.

Among items to be discussed and considered are the following:

Mailing of information (recipes, etc.); gift packaging of apples; use of balloons for advertising apples; merchandising contests (judging of store displays); distribution pie contests; sale of apples for youth programs; cooperation with Michigan Apple Commission and advance publicity.

Play Program for 6 Weeks Set for Imlay

IMLAY CITY — The Community Chest, with support from the local school board is sponsoring a summer playground program. Opening last Monday, the program will continue for six weeks. A variety of activities are planned under the supervision of Carl Mortland, Lyle Powers and Julie Knight.

Children up to seven years of age go in the morning and the older ones in the afternoon. Sessions are from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday afternoons those interested in shop work will journey to the school while Wednesdays are to be used as special event days. Swimming will be held on Thursdays.

To Cut Down Walker's Hill, Says Hursfal

CLARKSTON — Duane Hursfal, Independence Township supervisor, was a guest at the recent annual meeting of the Clarkston Gardens Improvement Assn. He stated that Walker's Hill on Walton road would be cut down and black-top would be applied to M-15.

The Rev. William Richards, pastor of Clarkston Methodist Church, offered the use of the church parlors and facilities for future meetings.

The annual election of officers was held and Devere Gaines was elected president for the coming year. Terry Thomas is senior vice president; George Brinkham, junior vice president, and Walter Dalton and Parker Bates were elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

PRETTY (AND) EXPENSIVE — Built at a cost of approximately $1,500,000 a mile, this scenic highway runs between Muehlhausen and Hohenstadt, Germany. Only slightly over four miles long, the road cost more than $6,500,000 to construct, requiring soaring bridges like this one at Todsburg, and a tunnel.

Orion Center Group Has Reached 392

ORION TOWNSHIP — The charter members of the Orion Community Center, Inc. has reached 392.

The Board of Directors appointed Thomas P. Shearer of Birmingham from a field of eight, to do the architectural drawings. He has made preliminary sketches of both modern and colonial design and a flexible floor plan previous to his appointment because of his interest.

The Board is planning a barbeque on the site as their money making event for the summer. The date has not been set.

Fawns are devoid of any telltale scent but the mother deer takes on an additional odor in order to lure away possible predators which might harm her hidden offspring.

Jeanne Sutphen, Hugh Wnuk Wed at Nuptial Mass

NORTH BRANCH — Jeanne Sutphen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sutphen, and Hugh Wnuk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wnuk all of North Branch, pledged their marriage vows at a High Nuptial Mass at SS Peter and Paul's Catholic Church here at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Rev. Edward Sobczak officiated at the service.

George Weingartz of North Branch was the groom's attendant, while Jeanne was attended by Betty Skwirsk.

A post-nuptial breakfast was held at an Imlay City hall, where a reception took place at 8:30 in the evening.

A tornado advances across the earth at a speed of 20 to 40 miles an hour.

Substitutes for Chief of Area Rotary Club

WALLED LAKE — Charles E. Hutton, vice-president of the of the Walled Lake Rotary Club took over as presiding officer of the club this week in place of Leslie C. Churchill, who recently suffered a heart attack.

The gavel and other articles of the president were presented to Hutton by retiring president, Harvey Segnitz at the annual past-president's night at Waldenwoods, Monday.

Elmer Conrad, officiating for the past presidents association, welcomed Segnitz into that group.

Speakers for the program were Judge Arthur Moore and Judge George Hartrick in a program with L. B. Miles as toastmaster.

CHAPTER 34

As soon as I was close enough to recognize the four mounted men in front of John Mathers' cabin, I realized that Irv Costello and Eric Brahms were the two inside. Curly King's father was among the men who waited. The other three were, like him, little ranchers from the south end of the valley.

I spoke when I reined up and stepped down. They greeted me guardedly. I walked through the open door and none of the four raised a hand against me. I stopped just inside the door, motioning for Nela and Scott, who stood against the wall beside the stove, to be silent.

An expression of relief warmed Nela's face as she saw me.

Mathers was in bed, his face still bandaged. Costello and Brahms stood facing him, with their backs to me. Costello was pounding a fist into an open palm to emphasize what he was saying. "We've got nothing against you personally, Mathers. It ain't your fault some of your farmers are trying to steal our grass. But as long as any of you are in Easter Valley, it's an invitation for more to come in."

As I listened, I felt a lot easier. I had expected Costello to be far more belligerent than he was. I knew then that I could handle him.

Brahms echoed Costello's words. "We ain't pushing you, Mathers, but we expect you to travel as soon as you're able."

Mathers hadn't moved. He lay on his back much as he had the day before. He said, his voice strong and clear: "If a man exists to perform only the bodily functions that he must do to remain alive, he is not a man in any real sense except the physical. I have long been convinced there is more to life than that. I have searched for the missing parts as long as I can remember, and while I will not say I have found them I will say I am beginning to get their feel. If I left, I would lose it; and I cannot afford to lose something it has taken me half a lifetime to find." He closed his eyes. "Gentlemen, I am not leaving."

Brahms had some admiration for Mathers, I think. Stubborn courage was something he understood and admired. But Costello took a step forward as if he aimed to throw Mathers bodily out of his own cabin. Brahms put an arm in front of him. I couldn't stay out of it any longer.

"You've got one or two things wrong, Irv," I said.

Costello glared at me, his to see me there.

Brahms grinned. "Howdy, Will. I hear you done a little moving yesterday."

"A little," I said. "Merle Turner's dead. Last night I shot, and killed Gene Dillingham. Kathy Morgan is leaving the valley."

They had heard about Turner from Red and Curly, but that was all. There was more to be told, and I thought it was better to say it at once, while they were still off balance. I said: "I'm buying Sarah's half of the Box P. She's moving to Canon City. Maybe you hadn't heard, but Nela and I are married. John Mathers is my father-in-law."

Costello glared at me, his swarthy face red, not knowing what to say. But Brahms let out a whoop and walked across the cabin to where I stood and held out his hand.

"You sure kept a good thing secret, Will! Congratulations on getting a mighty purty bride." He cuffed me on the chest.

"There's another thing," I said. "I bought Delaney out. I figured he wasn't an asset to the community. He wanted to get out, so I accommodated him. I figured my father-in-law could run the store."

Costello still stood there and stared at me, the corners of his mouth working. I knew I had him because he wasn't a man who could make a stand by himself.

Brahms said: "You've been downright busy, Will. I never cottoned to Delaney, neither. Mathers ought to make a real good counter jumper, hadn't he, Irv?" Brahms winked at me. "I figure we can convert him. Don't you, Will?"

"If I hadn't thought so," I said, "I wouldn't have bought the store. I've been thinking about the nine families that are on the West Fork, Irv. The only cash crop they can count on is hay. Far as I'm concerned, I'd rather pay them to raise it and haul it than piddle around with it myself. I think most of the boys will figure the way I do."

"I would," Brahms said. "What do you say, Irv?"

Costello was backed into a corner now because he was a notoriously poor hay raiser. "Yeah, I guess it'll work out." He cleared his throat. "This puts a different light on things, Mathers, you being Beeson's father-in-law. Naturally, I got no objections to you staying in the valley."

He walked out. Without a word, he stepped into the saddle and started down the road. The four men who had been waiting outside stared after him, uncertain; then they looked at Brahms, who lingered in the doorway, holding out his hand to me again.

"Irv's all right. He jumps in head first. That's his trouble." He shook his head dubiously. "I dunno why he talks me into things like he does."

"We'll make out all right now," I said. "You'll see, Eric."

"I figure so," he said, and stepped outside. He raised a hand to me as he mounted. "Might as well get along home, boys," he called, and the five of them started down the road slowly, as if they were in no hurry to catch up with Costello.

What could have been a shooting scrape had sputtered out, and I suspected Costello was still trying to figure out how it happened. Nela could hold back no longer. She ran to me.

"Will, Will," she said, "I don't know what they would have done if you hadn't come!" She kissed me, and I held her close for a long moment.

Nela drew back and looked at me questioningly. "Is it true? What you said about buying Sarah's half of the Box P."

"True as gospel," I said. "We've got to give her until tomorrow noon; then you move in, and from then on you're running it. The work's all yours, too, including cooking for three men."

"I'm not afraid of the work, Will," she said. "It was Sarah."

We walked to Mathers' bedside, my arm around Nela's waist. I said, "I didn't intend to spring the store thing on you this way, but it seemed the best way to do it, with Costello here." I dropped Dillingham's money belt on the bed. "There's the rest of your cow money. At least it isn't all lost. How about the store? Will you take it?"

"I'll be glad to," he answered. "I want to stay in the valley, and maybe the store is where I belong. I've had a lot of time to think lately. I talked too big and dreamed too big, and I got flattened out. But I don't feel as bad as I did. We did accomplish something in bringing nine families here. It looks as if they have every chance of staying and being happy and prosperous, thanks to you."

"That what you meant about finding what you were searching for?"

"Partly," he said, "but there's something else. My trouble was, I got my eyes off the stars I'd been looking at. Since I've been lying here in bed I've rediscovered a simple truth I should never have forgotten. You don't build a Great Tomorrow unless a lot of Great Todays have gone before."

"Why," I said, "I guess that's right."

Nela said briskly, "I'll get supper started."

She crossed the room to the stove. I followed her. I said, "Nela, our troubles aren't over."

She wrinkled her nose at me. "Do you think I'm the kind of woman who believes you get married and live happily ever after? Well, I'm not. I'll work for you and I'll have your children and I'll always love you; but I've got an awful temper, and one of these days you'll find that out."

I laughed. I just couldn't help it. I felt good all the way through.

"Well, now," I said, "I'll bet I will."

'Birth of a Nation' Movie May Arouse New Storm

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD (INS) — A happy and safe Fourth of July! I notice with interest that "The Birth of a Nation" is being reissued and opens in Los Angeles on July 10.

It's appropriate to speak today of this screen classic produced by the master, David Wark Griffith, because no other film has ever set off more firecrackers before and after release.

I reviewed it in a Chicago theater after it had originally been turned down by the censors as tending to incite racial hatred. Just a few of us were permitted to get an advance look at D. W.'s explosive masterpiece.

Even though the paper I worked for editorialized against it, I set out on a one-woman campaign that "Birth of a Nation" be shown because of its greatness.

Later when the case was brought to court, I was one of Mr. Griffith's witnesses, resulting in a friendship which lasted until his death.

Now, "The Birth of a Nation" is being reissued when civil rights are a burning issue before our legislatures. It will be very interesting to see if once again it creates a national commotion.

BUT NOT TOGETHER

Lana Turner and Lex Barker will be in London at the same time, but not together. Lex leaves July 20 to star in "The Puzzle" for James O. Radford Productions, in cooperation with Anglo-Amalgamated, an English production company.

Ludwig Gerber is the executive producer, and Carol Matthews will be Lex' femme interest.

Lana is starring in her own independent picture, "Another Time, Another Place," and each picture will have its quota of English talent. Although Lana and Lex had an amicable divorce settlement, there is a bitterness that is known to their intimates.

I asked Fred Astaire to tell me about Barrie Chase, whom he has been seeing often these days.

"Barrie is 23, a beautiful ambitious girl who is a fine dancer and actress, and under contract to MGM," he told me, and went on to say they had first met when he was making "Silk Stockings."

I asked Fred if they had any marriage plans. "We have never mentioned marriage," answered Fred, "and are just good friends. We have much in common and are very congenial together. I don't believe a young girl like Barrie would want to marry me anyway."

That IS the understatement of modesty of the year.

ROLE WITH RILEY

At the marriage of my neighbor, Jill Asher, last Saturday, I had a chance to talke to her brother, Tony, 18 years old. T ony tells me that after he serves in the Coast Guard he's going into serious acting.

A little while later Patricia Harris, casting director for "The Life of Riley" TV show, saw Tony, who is tall, slender, blond and looks like his beautiful mother, Laura La Plante, with the result that Tony gets a good role in the next TV "Life of Riley."

He's been brought up in the theatrical business. His mother was a famous silent movie star, and his father, Irving Asher, is a producer.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Happy Fourth of July and happy birthday to Eva Marie Saint, Louis B. Mayer and all others born on our national holiday. When Eva Marie was asked how she planned to celebrate the double holiday she said, "At home—it's my maid's day out!"

Lita and Rory Calhoun are giving a dinner tomorrow night for Ricardo Montalban before he takes off for New York. The Imperial Gardens is the place and the motif is Japanese.

Cynthia Lemmon and Cliff Robertson were married in a church ceremony in Peoria, Ill., last Friday. That's the home of Cynthia's parents.

Jimmy Van Heusen is in UCLA Medical Center trying to get that slipped disc to behave itself. He may undergo surgery.

Applications for admission to West Point have greatly increased since the "West Point" TV series. Ziv Productions is receiving a special citation for presentation of these patriotic shows.

We like that thought of the new comedienne, Sue Carson, who says whenever a man kisses her hand it throws her into confusion and she says to herself, "I wonder if my mouth is dirty."—Earl Wilson.

Tears, Diets Assist Women to Outlive Men

WASHINGTON (INS) — Tears and diets may be the reasons why women are hardier than men.

It has been fairly well established that the female outlives the male and more than matches the so-called "stronger sex" in stamina.

Latest figures of the National Office of Vital Statistics show the life expectancy of a baby girl born today is 71 years while that of a baby boy is 65.5 years.

A vivid, although tragic personal illustration of these figures occured this week when a Houston, Tex., married couple became lost in desolate, parched Big Bend National Park.

Mrs. Clifford F. White survived the six-day desert ordeal but her husband was found dead of heat prostration. She told rescuers he suffered from an ulcerated stomach condition.

Ulcers are one of the typical American male ailments. Together with heart disease and violent deaths (accidents, sucides and homicides), emotional disorders help account for the excess of male deaths over female deaths.

They also help show how the truly weaker sex can learn to match the female in longevity and stamina.

Experts like Dr. Wilson T. Sowder of the florida state board of health explains the greater male accident rate in this way:

We train our boys to take more chances than girls — to play for keeps and be "manly."

Emotionally, the boy is told to "get in and slug it out." At all costs, he should "keep a stiff upper lip."

At the same time, the girl may learn to react to adversity and emotional problems with passive tears — an outlet that eases nervous tensions and allows the female to bounce back faster.

Ulcers, mental breakdowns and other disorders rooted in part in tense nervous behavior, may be the price the male pays for his inability to cry or release emotions.

More than half of the 210,000 annual excess in male deaths over female deaths in the U. S. can be accounted for by heart disease.

This suggests a fundamental, inborn biological difference rather than childhood training. In fact, women do have a hormone protection against certain heart diseases, at least through the menopause.

But Felix Moore of the U. S. Public Health Service's National Heart Institute suggests another cultural factor may be at work here.

"Today's woman," he observes, "is more figure conscious than ever before. Less weight and less childbearing may mean less heart strain. The American male, on the other hand, certainly works less than his pioneer ancestors and carries more poundage."

Buenos Aires Mob Rips Down U.S. Flag

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—A band of 500 demonstrators shouting Peronist slogans ripped down a U.S. flag last night. Police scattered the mob with clubs and tear gas and restored the flag to its staff on a local branch of a New York bank.

Several persons were arrested in clashes with the police.

The demonstrators were part of a crowd at a rally held by followers of leftist presidential candidate Arturo Frondizi, who is bidding openly for support from the followers of ousted dictator Juan Peron.

At the rally Frondizi's mouthpiece Raul Damonte Taborda attacked pro-American regime of Provisional President Pedro Aramburu.

Gets Bad Start: Can't Circulate

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Arthur S. Ricketts is one circulation specialist who found he couldn't circulate.

Arriving from Oklahoma City, Okla., to become head of the circulation department of the Louisville Free Public Library, Ricketts stopped in a drug store to make a few telephone calls.

However, the store closed while he was in the booth.

Fortunately, Ricketts had another dime in his pocket. He used it to call police who put him back in circulation.

Lives Up to Its Name

WASHINGTON — The Colorado River, one of the greatest waterways in the United States, is 1,450 miles long, National Geographic Magazine says. Living up to its Spanish name, colorado (red), the river flows heavy with mud and is said by old-timers to be "to thick to drink and too thin to plow."

'Mind Own Business' Car Rescuer Is Told

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — State Highway Patrol Sgt. Billy Fallaw and a passerby raced for a driverless car they saw rolling slowly down the street.

The passerby won the race, jumped in the car and got it stopped with a quick grab at the emergency brake, when up puffed the disheveled and disgusted owner, gasping:

"For gosh sakes, why don't you mind your own business! I'm trying to push it to a filling station!"

Expert Believes
Injuries to Increase Without Spring Drills

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Abolish spring football practice and football injuries will increase, says an expert on the subject.

Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood puts it this way:

"Football practice is a re-learning situation as is the warmup period before a game. Continuous re-learning through repeated practice is a vitally important part of conditioning, and the player who is in top condition rarely gets hurt."

Dr. Eastwood recommends spring training emphasis on blocking and tackling, with scrimmage only in the final week, if at all. He also advocates English rugby competition instead of scrimmage or squad games, tumbling drills to train a player to protect his head and neck when falling, more adequate warmup before a player enters a game, more thorough medical examination of players, having a physician on the bench during games and better engineered helmets.

Dr. Eastwood, associate dean of Student activities at Los Angeles State College, for 15 years has been chairman of the football fatalities committee of the American Football Coaches Assn. Annually he analyzes football injuries and fatalities.

His report on 1956, issued yesterday, lists 17 player deaths in 1956 of which 12 were in high school football, three in unsupervised sandlot play and one each in college and semi-pro football. The total was slightly under a 26-year average of 17.44 but well above the 1955 total of 10.

Skaff Replaced at Charleston

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Frank Skaff was fired yesterday as manager of the Charleston Senators after the Detroit Tiger farm club dropped its ninth straight game.

Bill Norman, 47-year-old special assignment scout for Detroit this year, was named to succeed Skaff as manager of the American Assn. club.

Norman managed Augusta to a 4th place in the class A South Atlantic League last year and said he will observe the Senators in the role of "efficiency expert."

Charleston lost 14 of its last 17 games before the switch and had dropped to seventh place in the American Assn. standings.

Union's Early Edge Pays Off

Local No. 594, CIO city leaguers didn't waste any time winning their Class A baseball contest, last night.

With two down in the opening session, the Union took advantage of a walk, a single, and doubles by Neil Ricketts and Dave Cooper to chase across three tallies. These runs proved enough to beat Michigan Giants, who managed only a pair of counters. Final count was 6-2, Union getting additional tallies in the second (1) and third (2).

Win boosted No. 594's status to 8-3, just behind Shaw's.

Don Picman, MSU player, hurling his first game for the Union, went five innings and got credit for the victory. John Fleser, another MSU man, signed only recently, broke up a Giant rally in the sixth with a fine diving, shoestring catch of Ernie Nelson's smash to centerfield.

Drives in 8 Runs as Yanks Win
Yogi Puts on Fireworks of His Own

NEW YORK (INS)—The Yankee pennant surge is official. Yogi Berra is starting to hit.

The slow-starting Bombers, preseason choices to run away with the American League pennant, still are a bit behind schedule. But they've reached one objective, the traditional Fourth of July milestone, in first place, and from here in it could become a rut.

Casey Stengel's swashbucklers stretched their lead to three games yesterday by defeating Boston 10 to 0 for their 7th straight victory and the 18th in their last 21 games.

They got great pitching again—this time a three-hitter by Bob Turley, who has been something less than sensational heretofore. But the big news was Berra. The stocky catcher, limping along with a .233 average in his worst big league season, drove in eight runs with two singles, a three-run homer and an RBI grounder.

The homer was his 12th of the year and the 250th of his career.

And while the Yanks got hotter, the second-place Chicago White Sox continue to fade. This time, Virgil Trucks and Tom Morgan of Kansas City combined to pitch a 5-to-0 shutout and drop them three games off the pace.

In a night game Baltimore climbed within half a game of the fifth-place Tigers by downing Washington 8 to 3, with the aid of six errors.

Trucks and Morgan allowed the White Sox only five hits as the Athletics achieved their second shutout of the season, but intense heat forced the 38-year-old Trucks to quit after five innings. He was credited with his seventh win in eight decisions, Billy Hunter and Lou Skizas helping out with homers.

First baseman Jim Lemon was charged with three Washington errors, two in the second inning when Baltimore scored five times to sew up the game.

75,000 Watch Soccer

MEXICO CITY (INS) — The Mexican National Soccer team eliminated Canada from the world cup soccer championship last night with a 2-to-0 victory before 75,000 fans at University City stadium. Mexico next will face the winner of the Central American playoffs, expected to be Costa Rica, for the right to go to the world finals in Sweden next year.

Wimbledon Has Feature

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (INS)—The Wimbledon tennis story becomes a tall tale today when lanky Althea Gibson of New York meets 16-year-old British prodigy Christine Truman in a women's singles semi-final.

The 29-year-old American, favored to become the first Negro to win a Wimbledon title, is five feet, ten and a half inches tall. Her English opponent is an inch taller.

An all-Australian men's final for Friday was set up yesterday when defending champion Lew Hoad and second-seeded Ashley Cooper advanced as anticipated through the semi-finals.

The 22-year-old Hoad, favored to become the first champion to repeat since 1938, blasted his way to a 6-4, 6-4, 7-5 victory over Sweden's Sven Davidson. Cooper, the 20-year-old who won the Australian championship last winter, defeated fellow Aussie Neale Fraser, 1-6, 14-12 6-3, 8-6 in a two-hour-and-20-minute power duel.

Badly outclassed in men's singles, U. S. hopes for other titles were enhanced when the Misses Gibson and Hard defeated Britain's Pat Hird and Angela Mortimer, 6-3, 6-0, in a women's doubles quarter-final.

But the "old guard" suffered a blow in mixed doubles when 33-year-old Vic Seixas of Philadelphia and 34-year-old Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., were upset by Luis Ayala of Chile and Thelma Long of Australia, 9-7, 1-6, 6-3.

Coast Track Reports 1st Triple Dead Heat

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — A crowd of 23,300 waited 12 minutes while the placing judges viewed the photos of yesterday's fourth race at Hollywood Park, then let out a mighty whoop as a triple dead heat for first place was flashed on the electric tote board.

Joe's Pleasure, Challenger Tom and Leaful figured in the racing oddity, and Challenger Tom's supporters must have done a few flips as he paid $4.80 to win, $5 to place and $5.10 to show.

But that's the way things sometimes happen in the unpredictable sport of racing. The win, place and show pools all are separate entities in figuring the payoff, and the bettors liked Challenger Tom to win more than they did to show.

It was the sixth triple heat in North American turf history, the first in California.

Police Win 'Rainout'

A three-run third inning produced the winning run for the Pontiac Police in a city softball (International) league game, yesterday. Police defeated Pontiac State Hospital 12-2, collecting seven additional tallies in the bottom of the fifth. Hospital was tied at 2-2 at the end of the second frame, but was blanked rest of the way.

Keego had a 3-1 edge up to the top of the fifth inning when three singles and an error combined to produce three tallies including the winning counter.

Detroit Ready to Move, Says Tiger Manager

Cleveland Must Have Had Different Ideas in Winning, 6-0

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jack Tighe had a feeling about the Tigers' opening game with Cleveland yesterday. He said he felt the team was ready to "move."

He meant upward, despite the outcome which left the Tigers on the short end of a 6-0 shutout and the long end of a 4-12 record for their last 16 games.

Whatever Tighe meant when he said he "sensed" the players were acting differently — "as though they were ready to start winning"—wasn't obvious yesterday as southpaw Don Mossi broke a three-game losing streak for the Indians, holding Detroit to six hits.

Harvey Kuenn was the only Detroit player to get as far as third base—and that was on an error by right fielder Rocky Colavito in the eighth inning.

Duke Maas gave up five runs before he was yanked in the 7th inning for Al Aber who yielded the other tally.

It was Maas' fourth straight setback in a 1-7 season showing.

The Indians picked up nine hits for runs in the second, third, and fifth inning and three more in the seventh.

The Tigers threatened only in the 8th. Kuenn and Bill Tuttle put together consecutive singles after Dave Philley, pinch hitting for Don Lee, struck out.

Kuenn took third when Colavito made a wild throw after catching Charlie Maxwell's deep fly to right. But Al Kaline forced Tuttle, ending the inning.

Carrasquel broke the scoreless deadlock in the second inning, blasting his sixth home run of the season deep into the left field stands.

Paul Foytack and Billy Hoeft face Ray Narleski and Early Wynn in today's holiday double header.

Baker Gains Prestige by Beating Ortega

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Larry Baker, a hungry fighter from Indianapolis, punched his way into boxing's big money ranks last night by outpointing Mexico's Gaspar Ortega in a televised 10-rounder at Miami Beach Auditorium.

Baker, a 3-1 underdog, actually owed his victory to a two-point penalty inflicted on Ortega for foul punches but the crowd thought the Indiana boy was a winner in any case and roared its disapproval when it was announced that Judge Fred Aaronson had voted for Ortega.

From the Press Box

BY BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

Ed Katalinas, new director of scouts for the Detroit Tigers, can spout out names like a tobacco auctioneer selling his product.

The difference is, Ed isn't selling. He's developing a crop of boys for Tiger baseball and he makes it a point to know them all by name.

He is sure that someday they will make Tiger fans forget about these recent drought years.

The position is a new setup for the Tigers. Katalinas, who brought names like Wertz, Kaline, Foytack, just to mention a few, to Briggs Stadium, is now responsible for coordinating the scouting activities of 21 full time and 100 sub scouts.

A native of Shenandoah, Penn., Katalinas has been in the Tiger organization since 1940 and in recent years he has also been in charge of the Tigertown plant in Florida.

"The Tiger farm system was never as organized as it is now," said Katalinas, "and in only a few short years of the existence of Tigertown, we are beginning to see the results in our farm teams."

"You can be sure these results will be bearing fruit for the Tigers before long," he added.

Ed points to the farm teams which are enjoying their best seasons in history under the Tiger rule.

Durham of the Carolina League, Idaho Falls of the Pioneer League, Valdosta of the Georgia-Florida League, Augusta of the Sally League, Birmingham, Montgomery and all except Charleston have been in the thick of their respective races.

"There are a lot of these youngsters who are certain to make the grade," said Katalinas.

He lists Jack Bowen, catcher at Valdosta, a sure bet to end up at Briggs Stadium.

SOME GOOD FIRST BASEMEN

Looking at the big problems which have plagued the Tigers this year, especially at 1st base and in the pitching department, Ed sees the biggest help coming from the farm system at these positions.

Fred Gladding (10-3) and Phil Kliewer (7-3) at Valdosta, Bob Dustal (10-4) at Idaho Falls plus several others are outstanding prospects.

Big Kent Hadley, one of the best looking prospects at Tigertown last Spring is destined to make the move from Augusta upward to the Majors before long.

"He's a good consistent first baseman, and we really have a few other fine looking first base prospects also in Dick Colone at Durham and Jay Cooke at Idaho," he commented.

When Tigertown operations get underway next spring, Ed will be there again to head the activities. He knows every Tiger scout personally, and in organized baseball that is a tremendous asset.

"Our system is bound to produce," said Katalinas, "at least the other Major League organizations must think so, because we've had several of them asking us for the layout and organizational setup of Tigertown."

Lead by One Game
Redlegs Chase Burdette

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Cincinnati Manager Birdie Tebbetts is indulging in a little holiday crowing in his best New England tenor, the tubby little manager has three good reasons:

1. A full game lead in the National League.

2. A victory, after two years and nine defeats, over Milwaukee's Lew Burdette.

3. George Daniel Crowe, a heretofore nondescript first baseman who has been capably minimizing the absence of slugger Ted Kluszewski even if he isn't in Ford Frick's All-Star class.

In topping Milwaukee 7-5 and dumping the Braves down to third place, they not only expanded their first-place standing in the league free-for-all but did it at the expense of Burdette, Birdie's "favorite" righthander since the early-season spitball episode and Cincinnati's whammy guy for more than two years.

Lew, 9-0 with Cincinnati since May 26, 1955, trudged off in the sixth inning after having allowed 10 of the Redlegs' 11 hits and all seven of their runs. Crowe, ripping along at a near-Kluszewski pace with a .289 average, 32 extra base hits including 16 homers, and 47 RBIs touched it off with a two-run homer.

Dipping to third, the Braves trial the Redlegs by 1½ games and are a half game back of St. Louis, which moved into second place by edging Chicago 5-4. The other contenders, Brooklyn (three games back) and Philadelphia (down by 4½) were idle along with New York and Pittsburgh.

Two Close Scraps for Midget League

Tigers and the Orioles of the city Midget league yesterday highlighted the loop's action with a pair of close wins. Tigers dumped Boys Club 5-3 and Orioles edged the Senators 6-4.

A 3-2 Boys Club lead in the fourth was wiped out by the Tigers in the bottom of the fifth on a series of hits and errors. Orioles broke a fifth inning tie in the sixth with a two-run splash, while blanking their foes the last two frames.

Middlecoff's Deliberate Golf Has Britons Upset

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Cary Middlecoff, America's chief threat in the British Open Golf Championship, was five strokes behind the leaders today and outspokenly defending his deliberate style of play after the first round at the Royal and Ancient Club.

The Memphis dentist shot a par-equalling 72 in yesterday's first four of the rugged Old Course, but disturbed his golfing fellows a good deal by the three hours, 18 minutes he required to play the 18 holes.

While the royal and ancient fathers ruled the two-time U. S. Open champion had played in "reasonable time," (actually reasonably fast by American tournament standards), Middlecoff replied frankly to the complaints.

"I hope the gentlemen who complained will decide some day they are good enough golfers to come to the United States," he said. "When they arrive they will be in strange conditions and playing with a different sized ball. We will see then if they are any faster than I was."

The co-leaders were Eric Brown and Laurie Ayton, both of Scotland, with 67's over the 6,996 yard course which plays to a 36-36—72 par.

Australian Open champion Bruce Crampton followed with a 68 and Bobby Locke, the veteran South African, was tied with three others at 69.

Frank Stranahan of Toledo had a 74. Gene Andrews, Pacific Palisades, Calif., opened with a 78 and the other U. S. entry, Air Force Lt. Frank Keck of Champaign, Ill. was at 83.

DELIBERATE—Dr. Cary Middlecoff has the Britons unhappy about his slowness on the golf course in the British Open. Dr. Middlecoff was even par-72 after the first round as players backed up behind him.

Ace at Highland GC

The first ace in three years at Highland Golf Club was fired Tuesday when Ray Utley of Flint, playing with three others, hit the 160-yard 9th hole with a 7-iron. He has been playing golf only five years and he carded a 73 for the round.

Old Models Run Friday at M-59

Top Stock Car Drivers, Holiday Fireworks Come to Pontiac Speedway

Old model stocks will grab the spotlight Friday night in a nine-event auto racing program at the newly-paved Pontiac Speedway.

Tomorrow's show is sanctioned by the Michigan Modified Stock Car Racing Association, marking the 1st time that an old model program at the M59 track has been approved by the MMSCRA.

The 25-lap feature will climax the show and a large field is expected, including many of the Monday night television favorites like George Cooper, Jack Goodwin, Jimmy Hasselle and Wayne Bennett.

Speed trials will begin at 7 p.m. with the 1st race getting under way at 8:30. A holiday fireworks display will conclude the program.

Modified hardtops return to the Pontiac oval Sunday afternoon, with leading drivers competing for a guaranteed $1,000 purse. Preliminaries start at 1 p.m., followed by the 1st race at 2:30.

Jones Is Winner Again in Paris

PARIS (AP) — Hayes Jones of Eastern Michigan College won the 110-meter hurdles yesterday in an International meet here between American track and field stars and athletes from Great Britain and France.

Jones zipped home in :14.4.

His was one of nine of 12 events captured by the Americans.

Sime won the 100-meter dash in 10.4 seconds; and Sowell captured the 800-meter run in 1:47.3 in other top performances.

One-Hitter, Knotted Tilt

Dick Lamphere tied up the Pontiac Sluggers in a city recreation league game last night for a one-hit victory for his R & R Cartage club for one of two highlighted contests. Lamphere fanned 14 on the way to his 18-1 win in Class E.

A pitchers' battle between Roger Williams of Lake Orion and Gene Buchanan and Wally Liley of Oxford wound up in a 5-5 knot when darkness halted the Class E scrap.

Cartage clinched the game in the opener with a 3-run blast. Sluggers got their single tally in the second. Oxford led after the 3rd frame when they took a 5-2 edge over Orion, but a run in the 6th and two more in the 7th tied it up.

Most games in Class F were runaways for the winners. However, Boys' Club dumped Tel-Huron Tigers 12-0 on a fine two-hitter by Darryl Thorpe who struck out five.

John Dalrymple, Lakepointe Country Club pro, finally learned his status for the National PGA tournament at Dayton, July 17-21.

Last week the PGA told Dalrymple there had to be a play-off with Eldon Briggs and himself for the final Michigan spot in the tourney. Sunday, Briggs beat Dalrymple 70 to 72, but yesterday Dalrymple learned another contestant withdrew and he was given the spot.

Dr. Monroe Recalls Athletic Days

Remember the Sports Stars of Yore?

(This is the first of a series of articles about some of the great athletes of the past from Pontiac and the Oakland area. Today we feature Dr. John D. Monroe from the sports era of 1910. Tomorrow, one of the city's great sports figures, Goodloe Rogers, will be featured.)

Oakland County's top man in the field of health was once a handy man to have around a basketball court or football field during his prep school days at Pontiac High.

Dr. John D. Monroe, who organized the first Michigan health service here in 1926 and still heads the county department, has to really sit down and think awhile to tell you about his athletic days of 1910 through 1912.

"I can't remember most of the fellows I played with or against, although I do come across a familiar name now and then," said the busy doctor. He recalls Goodloe Rogers as one of his former teammates and that one of the teams included another fellow who became a doctor and one who is now a dentist.

Dr. Monroe was a basketball starter three years and a 1st stringer in football for two. His best memory is of the 1910 hoop aggregation which reached the state playoffs before bowing to Detroit Central.

"They didn't have the elaborate setup they have now and we played in an old building," he said today trying to picture the years gone by once more.

DR. JOHN D. MONROE

Among the victims of that strong hoop contingent was Oberlin College of Ohio which played the Chiefs while here on tour. "We also met Olivet College that year and lost. We played the colleges to add more games," explained the oldtime forecourt ace.

He never was connected with baseball although he did play one high school game by accident. "They picked me up one day when they were going to Mt. Clemens and were short one player. I think I had one fielding chance that day and muffed it. I guess I lost the fly in the wind," laughed the doctor.

Dr. Monroe's active sports days ended and he turned his attention to medicine after leaving high school except for playing some Alumni games and officiating. This was brought about largely because there was no athletic program at Wayne where he went to study medicine.

His titles in the medical field have been numerous down through the years. He holds the longest service record in state health work, and has been active for many years in the battle against cancer, cerebral palsy and tuberculosis.

The Pontiac native is a former president of the Michigan Health Officers Association and has held offices in numerous medical societies.

Dr. Monroe has little opportunity to get to ball games now but follows as closely as possible through television, radio and the newspapers.

Plans Set for 'Outdoorama'

Multi-Lakes Conservation association's annual "Outdoorama" has been set for Aug. 17-18 at the M-L club grounds at 3860 Newton Rd. Walled Lake.

Sportsmen, women and youngsters will all have a part in the event, with many awards for winners. Skeet, trap shooting, small and bigbore rifle matches, horse-shoes and archery contests have been set up. A "medalist" event to determine Michigan's most versatile sportsman is a top feature.

Funds from the "Outdoorama" go to further conservation and youth programs.

A novice gun-dog trial is also a part of the affair, at which top area and national sports figures will appear in exhibitions.

'2 Years of College Enough for Most'

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—James B. Conant, former president of Harvard, said today that two years of college work "is about all that a considerable fraction of our youth can take."

Conant, in a speech prepared for the National Education Assn. convention, recommended wider development of junior colleges.

For many students, he said, the urge to go to work, "to have an end with going to school, overcarries the attraction of college life."

"I doubt," he said, "if four-year colleges or universities can provide as well for this type of student as can a good local two-year community college.

HOMEMADE HILL — Because terrain around the General Motors Technical Center is relatively flat, GM's engineering staff built this one-way steel hill. Resembling a missile launcher, the "hill" has a 35 per cent grade for testing transmissions and brakes. A Pontiac "Bonneville" goes up the ramp, the first car to use the hill.

Joyful Ending to 54-Day Ordeal: Pilot Joins Wife

NEW YORK (AP)—Air Force Lt. alive three weeks after being listed officially as dead, arrived today for a joyful reunion with his wife, parents and relatives.

Steeves, 23, still gaunt from his harrowing 54-day battle for survival in the California Sierras, rushed from a plane at LaGuardia Field into the arms of his happy wife Rita, 21.

Overcome with emotion, Steeves shyly mumbled "Hello."

Rita surveyed the beard her husband had grown during his ordea, and declared: "You look horrible."

As TV cameras and photographers went to work, someone called out, "Kiss him."

Said Mrs. Steeves, laughing: "I don't know where to. He's unapproachable."

Steeves grinned and fingered his chin growth. "I plan to shave it off as soon as possible, although I'm pretty used to it by now," he said.

Steeves lost 60 pounds from his plane exploded and he parachuted to a mountain pass.

City Man Hit by Car While Crossing Street

A pedestrian, John Bell, of 388 Midway Ave., who told Pontiac police he was crossing South Saginaw street in the middle of the block yesterday afternoon as traffic was stopped for a red light, was struck by a car and is listed in good condition at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital today.

Bell suffered bruises and possibly a fractured pelvis when hit by the southbound car of Martin J. Karmal, 56, of Bay City, police said.

Bell explained that he had begun picking his way through a group of halted northbound cars when the light changed. He then tried to run across the southbound lane and was hit by Karmal, police said.

New Broadway Trend Extended to Animals

NEW YORK (AP)—The new Broadway trend of having alternates appear in place of lead performers at certain performances each week has spread to the animal kingdom now.

Robert Weede, of "Most Happy Fella," and Rex Harrison, of "My Fair Lady," who began the time-off schedule, have been joined by Salomey of "Li'l Abner." Each Wednesday matinee another porker substitutes on-stage while Salomey appears before the camera for a series of film shorts.

Meets His 'Daddy' Sam

Satchmo Enjoys 57th

WASHINGTON (INS)—Satchmo's all set to share another birthday with his Daddy Sam, and cats all over will agree that this Fourth of July fireworks jive is mainly for Louis Armstrong.

Which is to say that the no doubt greatest jazz trumpeter alive is 57 today, and solid celebrating is in store when he gets to Newport, R.I., for the jazz festival there.

An ornate birthday party is planned by sponsors of the affair, and Satch could hardly wait while finishing an engagement in the nation's capital, where he referred to Uncle Sam as "daddy."

If Satch seems to feel more like a son than a nephew, it could be because he is the acknowledged "Ambassador of Jazz" from the U.S. to nearly everywhere else in the world.

"A note's a note in any language," the satchelmouth told an interviewer in summing up how he had sent potentates jumping and African natives rioting in eight tours overseas, one sponsored by the State Department.

Louis had just visited the White House, where he had lunch with Vice President Richard M. Nixon and the executive staff. He talked about Africa, where he "toured right behind Nixon," and showed the piano-musically-inclined vice president a picture of Satchmo in striped diplomat's pants.

"I saw everyone except Eisenhower. Was he home?" Satchmo told his band as he strolled, familiar white handkerchief in hand, from the White House gate to a bus which took them to the District of Columbia prison to entertain convicts.

"I like to make the boys happy, do the boys some good," he explained. Some 1,600 inmates in the prison yard listened as raptly as if they were in Carnegie Hall, roared with applause after every number and made Satch a member of their "Society of the Underdog."

Armstrong had a perfect background for membership. He started playing the trumpet 44 years ago while serving an 18-month term in the New Orleans waif's home for shooting a pistol on New Year's Day.

Louis was made bugler, and he calls it "the biggest break I ever had." Until recently, he donated his trumpets to the home "for some promising young man to learn on."

As far as Satchmo is concerned, but for a few exceptions the new crop of musicians just doesn't have what the oldtimers had.

Barber Shops Close All Over South Africa

DURBAN, S. Africa — Barbershops are closing all over South Africa because of the lack of barbers, Durban reports. When the South African Hairdressers' Employes' Union met to consider the situation, N. J. Moir, secretary, was spokesman.

He said the average pay for a male hairdresser (barber) is about $35 a week yet he has to "dress like a gentleman" for the sake of customers. Barbers are the lowest paid tradesmen in the country, he said, having a responsible yet shockingly paid position. Apprentices just won't sign up. "Where can you get a lad today to start at $3 a week?" he asked.

Big Game Credited With Sixth Sense

MOZAMBIQUE — A sixth sense must have warned wild animals to leave the vicinity of the Zambesi River in Rhodesia in time to escape the floods which brought chaos to the Caprivi Strip this year, some animal experts say. George Michael, big game hunter and wild life film producer, is one who believes this. He said in Salisbury that not only large animals but the smaller varieties, reptiles and even insects seemed to have been forewarned. An example is the increased activity of ants preparing their defenses before a storm. Elephant herds, in particular, have an uncanny instinct, he said. They became restless long before the floods and moved to other areas. In Mozambique he saw great flocks of finches leave their nesting area. Two days later a hurricane struck.

Duty Imports Set Mark

BOSTON — For the first time since 1910, dutiable imports in the United States last year exceeded free imports. To achieve this record, dutiable goods increased by nearly a billion dollars over 1955, or 18 per cent.

Bomb Giveaway Brings Protest

Senators Cool Toward Ike's Suggestion We Share Knowledge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) said today he doubts Congress would readily agree to furnish Russia with information on how to make a "clean" hydrogen bomb.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) said, "I would be careful about giving our formula away."

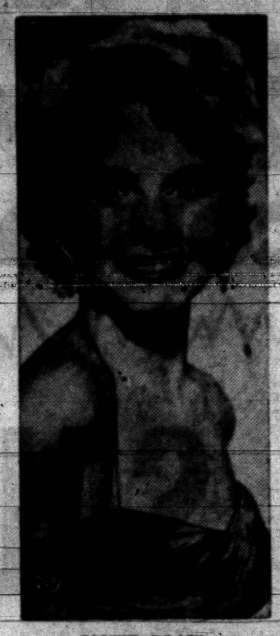
President Eisenhower said at his news conference yesterday that some top nuclear scientists had told him they favor telling Russia and other nations how to make a "clean" bomb as soon as the United States proves it knows how to produce one. Eisenhower didn't state his views on the questions, but he indicated he was willing to accept the guidance of the scientists.

Earlier, Eisenhower noted that some scientists have informed him that they had succeeded in eliminating about 96 per cent of radioactive fallout from such devices, and that, given another four or five years of testing, they could produce a fully "clean" bomb.

Any such transfer of weapons information would require amendment of the Atomic Energy Act. Knowland, the Republican floor leader, indicated that might be difficult to get.

"I doubt that Congress would be prepared to turn over any weapons information to the Soviet Union," he said.

Mansfield, acting Democratic leader, said in a separate interview: "Before we agreed to give them any information we certainly should have an ironclad agreement, backed by escape-proof inspection arrangements, to do away with the building of the bigger bombs and a disarmament plan which would cut down defense expenditures for all countries."



JANET BLAIR

Claims Caesar Wasted Talents

But Actress Refuses to Let Video Experience Cloud Her Future

BY DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — Janet Blair keeps her lovely face looking ahead. She doesn't look back. And it's just as well, because she's just finished a year that she reluctantly admits was full of disappointment.

She doesn't like to talk about her year as the leading lady in the Sid Caesar company.

She prefers to think and talk about the plans and possibilities that lie ahead — offers for Broadway and Hollywood and television that have flooded in since the Caesar show went off the air.

"Although the Caesar show was a disappointing experience professionally," Janet says, "I learned a great deal. Certainly I had a chance to observe the brilliant Caesar, Carl Reiner and Howard Morris create and construct their marvelous sketches and satires.

"Some of it was bound to rub off on me, so I feel I've learned a great deal about comedy and comedy characterizations."

MORE CAREFUL

And she doesn't say it, but it's easy to read between her words and realize that the chief thing she learned was to be more careful about what she gets herself into.

She took the Caesar offer, over several others, because she felt it would give her more of a chance to show off her versatility — acting, singing, dancing, comedy.

There were promises, big promises. One was that the first five shows would be written around her, to launch her — but she quickly found she was permanently in drydock.

"I felt, at the first rehearsal," she says, "that perhaps I'd made the wrong decision. I was forced into the role of a straight woman and that was my function, primarily, for the rest of the season."

She never had a chance, and the public soon realized it. Others in the Caesar camp knew it, too. Some say he was unhappy over the publicity his two previous leading ladies — Imogene Coca and Nanette Fabray — had received, and was determined it wouldn't happen again.

And so, while Janet Blair was officially supposed to be his vis-a-vis, he never gave her a chance to show off her versatility.

NO SOUR GRAPES

She's very anxious that no one gets the impression she's bitter or a repository for sour grapes. It isn't that. She makes her statements reluctantly, unwilling to hurt anyone.

But others aren't so unwilling. It's easy to learn, for example, that at least two of the show's sponsors complained to Caesar that he wasn't using Janet Blair enough.

The network, NBC, has file drawers full of letters asking the same thing, "Why doesn't Janet Blair do more on the show?"

She'll just say yes, she tried, but she won't go into details about why her attempts were rebuffed.

So it was a terribly frustrating year for the gal who'd played Nellie Forbush in "South Pacific" on the road for more than three years without once missing a performance, for the gal who'd starred in many top movies and TV shows, for the gal who'd agreed to do the show with such high hopes.

BUT IT'S HELPED

But, strangely, the show has helped her. A year ago, she received many offers; now, she has more than ever before.

She's going to be very careful about what offer she takes. There'll be no repetition of the disappointment of this season.

It's all worked out for the best, she feels now. "I learned so much," she says, "that's going to help me. If you stop learning, you stop living."

So she's looking ahead again.

Civil Rights Bill Debate Nearing

Filibustering May Be Limited if Objectionable Parts Are Modified

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern foes indicated today they might pass up one opportunity to filibuster against the civil rights bill if agreement can be reached to modify what they regard as its most objectionable features.

The battle over the legislation, already passed by the House and placed on the Senate calendar by an unusual parliamentary maneuver, will be joined Monday after the holiday weekend.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California served notice of this late yesterday after President Eisenhower reiterated that he regards the measure as moderate.

Eisenhower said his objective in urging enactment of the legislation is to prevent anyone from "illegally interfering" with a citizen's right to vote.

But Southern opponents, led by Sen. Russell (D-Ga), contend the measure goes far beyond this. They say it would enable the government to force integration in Southern schools and racial mixing in other public places.

Knowland said that at Monday's session he will move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the civil rights bill—a motion that is subject to being filibustered.

However, Russell told him that in the early stages of the discussion of this motion, "the speeches will be of no greater length than those ordinarily made" by senators to make their position clear.

Sen. Ervin (D-NC) is expected to lead off for the Southerners with a speech opposing the new authority the bill would give the attorney general to seek federal court injunctions against violations of voting rights or other civil rights.

Under this enforcement procedure, persons accused of violating such injunctions could be jailed for contempt of court without a jury trial.

Interviews Himself on Independence Day

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Now is the time for all good men and true to think about Independence Day. I think I will interview me on the subject.

Naturally, I will try to throw myself a few curves like all the tough TV interviewers do today.

"What thoughts, if you ever have any thoughts, do you have about Independence Day, Mr. Wilson?" I ask myself, knowing that this dope (me) hasn't any.

"Well, I'll tell you, Mr. Wilson"—stalling to try to think up a good one—"we don't have any independence here in a big city like New York. I gave up my independence when I left Ohio."

"Do you mean, when you left Ohio and got married?" (Interviewer emits nasty laugh trying to rattle me.)

"No, sir"—being sweet about it—"we don't have independence of action here in New York Town."

"Just where, Mr. Wilson"—I am now becoming very overbearing to me—"would you have more independence than right here in the greatest city in the world?"

"Why, that's easy"—I smile modestly showing even white false teeth—"in Independence, Mo., or in Independence, Cal., Ind., Ia., Kan., Ky., La., Miss., O., Ore., Va., or Wis.," I shoot back.

"You must have been a train-caller!" he heckles.

"No sir a hog-caller," I admit bashfully.

"Oh, yea? Let's hear you call some hogs!" he shouts skeptically.

"Personal friends of yours or strangers?" I ask quietly, leaving him furious.

"Anyway," he demands, "what liberty did you have in your old home town that you don't have today in New York City?"

"Liberty Magazine!" I retort with downright brilliance. "Frankly, in New York, there's no place to pitch horseshoes or pitch hay. All you can pitch here is woo."

"I suppose you pitched horseshoes and hay back where you came from?" he needles me.

"Yes sir, I pitched horseshoes down in an alley beside of Grinny Tester's barbershop on the Fourth of July after the parade. I hit the peg so much with my horseshoes even pitching at night that the kids thought they were sparklers going off."

"You were pretty good?"

"I was—ha ha—something of a ringer."

11 Marines to Face Pretrial Hearings

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—A pretrial investigation to determine if court-martial proceedings are warranted against 11 Marines accused of maltreatment of prisoners was ordered yesterday.

Capt. Albert H. Wilson said he would await the outcome of the investigation before carrying out announced recommendations that seven Marines here be taken before special courts-martial.

The pretrial inquiry, the counterpart of a grand jury, is necessary before Wilson can institute general court-martial proceedings against four Marine guards at the brig.

Wilson said the names of the men and details of the cases would not be made available until Rear Adm. R. S. Clarke, chief of the Naval Air Advanced Training Command here, has decided on the recommendations.

Tractors Dangerous on Public Highways

URBANA, Ill. (INS)—An Illinois University College of Agriculture official says operating a tractor on public roads is more dangerous than driving a car.

O. L. Hoggsett, extension safety specialist, noted that farm tractor accidents take more than 1,000 lives a year.

Hoggsett listed excessive speeds as the major cause of tractor accidents. One third of all tractor fatalities occur on public roads.

The safety specialist also declared the accident rate among teenaged operators is "far too high." He urged that adults give young drivers careful instruction and supervision before allowing them to guide the tractors alone.

Hoggsett also urged farmers to remember that fatigue is often a factor in tractor accidents.

Escapes Serious Injury as Car Rolls Over

A woman driver escaped without serious injury yesterday when her car rolled over on the gravel shoulder of Opdyke road north of Square Lake road.

Mrs. Velma Davis, 38, of 20738 Arnett Ct. was released from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital after examination for possible facial injuries.

Pontiac police quoted her as saying she had swung too far to the left while passing another vehicle. Her wheels hit the soft gravel, spinning her car over, she explained.
