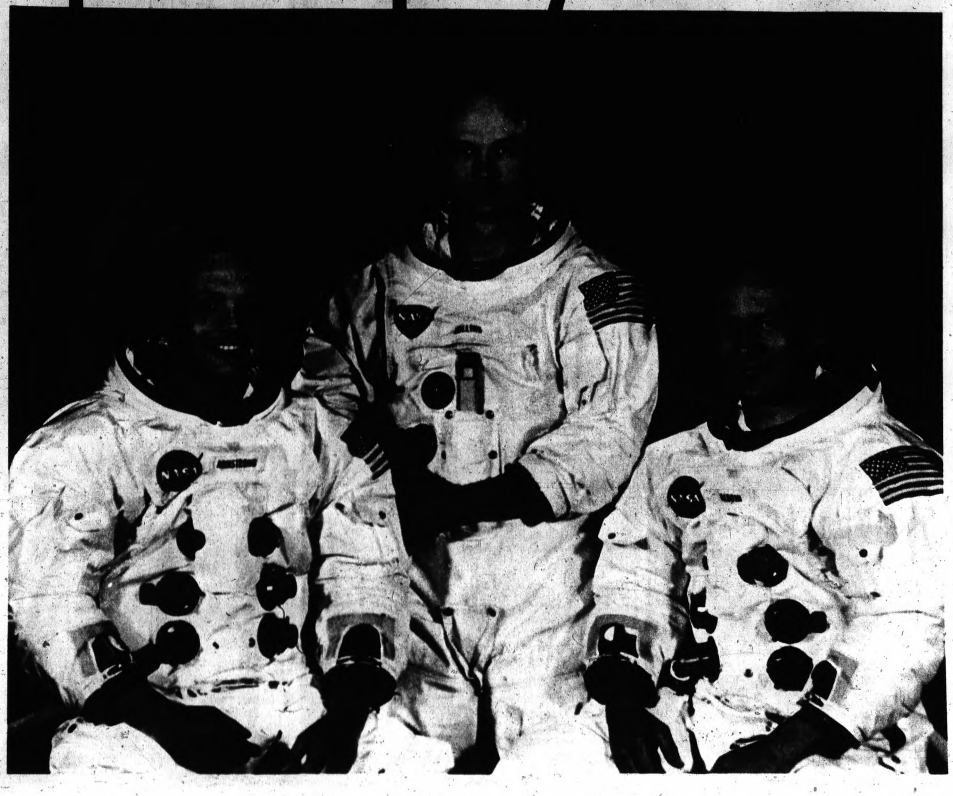
Apollo Rapidly Leaves Earth Behind



U. S. Moon Pioneers Are Neil Armstrong (Left), Michael Collins And Edwin Aldrin Jr.

Ship Pivots to LM, Spent Rocket Left

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With the men and their ship working perfectly, America's Apollo 11 astronauts hurtled through space today on a voyage of the ages, the first attempt to land men on the moon.

★ ★ ★

Civilian commander Neil A. Armstrong, 38; Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., 39, and Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Collins, 38, continued a performance that had been flawless since launch. They delicately separated their command module from a spent booster and then linked with the moon lander, still housed in the booster.

The trio started their historic journey on a Saturn 5 rocket that thundered from Cape Kennedy right on schedule at 8:32 a.m. (Pontiac time) and shot them into an orbit 118 miles high.

Two and one-half hours later, the still attached Saturn third stage fired again to hurl Apollo 11 out of earth's orbit and start it fleeting toward the moon.

★ ★ ★

Half an hour after this maneuver, the astronauts separated their command ship from the rest of the assembly, pivoted around 180 degrees and gingerly poked its harpoonlike docking mechanism into a connecting device in the nose of the moon landing ship, or lunar module, cradled atop the third stage.

The two ships, locked nose to nose, streaked outward on the voyage of the ages toward their distant target.

SPENT BOOSTER DITCHED

After nearly an hour, the astronauts pulled the lunar module LM out of its garage in the third stage and the spent rocket started into an orbit of the sun.

The firing of the third stage increased their speed from about 17,400 to 24,200 miles per hour, enough to break the grip of earth's gravity.

TWICE-BLAZED TRAIL

It sent them on the lunar trail blazed twice by man in the last seven months —by the Apollo 8 and 10 astronauts who came tantalizingly close as they orbited earth's only natural satellite.

"That Saturn gave us a magnificent ride," said Armstrong.

"It certainly looks like you're on your way," mission control replied.

"We have no complaints about any of the three stages on that ride," Armstrong reported.

★ ★ ★

The Apollo 11 crew planned to coast for three days, firing themselves into orbit 69 miles above the moon early Saturday afternoon to set the stage for the landing attempt.

CREW BUSINESSLIKE

During their first hours in space, the astronauts were very businesslike as they checked spaceship systems. There was very little conversation from the orbiting craft.

Related Stories, Pictures, Pages A-5, C-16

The Cape Kennedy launch was right on schedule.

★ ★ ★

"Houston, be advised the visual is go today," one of the astronauts said shortly after the spacecraft left the ground. "They finally gave me a window to look out."

Armstrong's first words on achieving orbit were very businesslike.

ORBIT CONFIRMED

"The booster has been confirmed for orbital flight. Both spacecraft are looking good," he said. He referred to the still-attached third stage of the Saturn 5 which was to ignite later to boost Apollo 11 toward the moon.

The astronauts were to circle the globe for 2½ hours to make certain the spaceship's thousands of systems were functioning. Then, at 11:16 p.m. they were to restart the still-attached third stage of the Saturn 5 to start toward their target, 250,801 miles away.

★ ★ ★

Barring problems, these three Columbuses of the space age are to sail outward across a quarter-million-mile ocean of space for three days and fire themselves into Lunar orbit just 69 miles above the moon on Saturday.

They are to follow the trail blazed twice in the last seven months, by the pioneers of Apollo 8 and 10.

LANDING SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon, Armstrong and "Buzz" Aldrin are to detach a lunar module and fly it down to a landing at the Sea of Tranquillity. Early the next day they are to fulfill a centuries-old dream by walking on and exploring the lunar landscape.

Civil defense officials estimated more than a million persons, the largest crowd ever to witness a Cape Kennedy launching, watched as the great rocket lifted away from earth.

Thousands had camped overnight on beaches and other vantage points. Roads were jammed early this morning.

Among those who watched the start of the moon mission from Cape Kennedy were former President Lyndon B. Johnson, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Armstrong's wife, Janet, and their two sons, Eric, 12, and Mark, 6.

MEN OF PEACE

The astronauts go to the moon as men of peace, bearing the flags and messages of many lands.

They may not make it. For Apollo 11 is not only man's most ambitious space adventure but also the most dangerous.

Blacks Confront Commissioners

By ED BLUNDEN

A group of leaders and citizens of the black community last night confronted the City Commission with reports of police brutality and civil rights violations.

Reports of growing unrest, demands and thinly veiled threats were made.

★ ★ ★

The group addressed itself directly to two recent incidents:

● Fire Chief Charles D. Marion's four-week suspensions of two black firemen for having moustaches too long.

● The forceful arrest on July 11 of two black community workers in front of the Hayes Jones Center.

UNION JOINS PROTEST

Joining the protest over the firemen, officers in the Pontiac Fire Fighters Association charged Chief Marion was in violation of the union contract in handing out the suspensions.

Secretary Anthony Zagrafos and Treasurer Allen Watts said the fire chief violated two clauses of the contract. One section calls for not changing work requirements without negotiation. The other calls for a 60-day notice before policy changes.

★ ★ ★

District 4 Commissioner F. Jack Douglas said he agreed entirely with the Fire Fighters Association officials.

Watts also added he had knowledge that an official fire vehicle had been used to haul anti-fair housing literature during the city campaign of last year.

He also claimed the chief had brought the literature into the fire station and said he (Watts) was expected to be called to testify in the incident and was prepared to do so.

Marion today denied the charge, claiming he "knew nothing about any fire vehicle being used to haul such literature."

★ ★ ★

The black firemen, the only two of their race on the 143-man force, told the commission they were also bringing suit in Circuit Court.

Chant Is Raised, 'Bird' Lifts Off

By HARRY J. REED
Editor, The Pontiac Press

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla.—Even before the first orange tongues of flame burst into life beneath Apollo 11, the chant began:

REED

"Go, bird, go."

The thousands viewing the launch from grandstands rose to their feet as the countdown came over the loud speaker.

Cameras and binoculars at the ready, they concentrated their every fiber on the slim black-and-white spacecraft glistening five miles away across the sand and swampland.

I had the feeling that the assembled prayer-power alone could have raised the three astronauts off pad 39.

LATECOMERS SCRAMBLE

Latecomers delayed by the enormous volume of traffic were still scrambling for position as the 363-foot missile slowly began its fantastic journey.

Shock waves from the awesome power plant could be felt as the bottom of the Saturn 5 cleared the top of the gantry.

★ ★ ★

The power plant was lifting 7.5 million pounds, more and more rapidly, as I recalled from yesterday's tour data that only 43,000 pounds would be coming back.

Noise from the viewers reached a screaming pitch, but was overpowered by the volcanolike rumble of the thrusting engines.

TEARS OF EXCITEMENT

People were crying from sheer excitement, waving their arms as if to help lift the rocket on its way. Cries of "beautiful . . . fantastic . . ." and again "go, go, go" were heard.

The thousands of birds frightened from the nearby wildlife refuge at the first rumbles began settling back again as Apollo 11 left its well-wishers as specks on a planet which would soon greatly diminish from the vantage point of the three spacemen.

★ ★ ★

Those precious moments of launching seem very personal. You tend to tune out

El Salvador Troops Push Toward Honduran Capital

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP)—Ignoring a call from the Organization of American States for a cease-fire, El Salvador pressed its invasion of Honduras today and demanded that the Honduran army "surrender before being defeated on the battleground."

Diplomatic sources in San Salvador said Salvadorean forces appeared to have penetrated as much as 20 miles inside Honduras.

★ ★ ★

A seven nation peace-keeping committee dispatched by the OAS arrived in San Salvador last night to seek a cease-fire in the two-day-old war, but there was no immediate indication of success.

The Salvadorean army said it had penetrated 20 miles into southwest Honduras. A second column to the north was nearly 10 miles inside the border.

2 TROOP COLUMNS

Salvadorean government sources said the army was driving toward the Honduran capital of Tegucigalpa in two columns — one of tanks, artillery and motorized vehicles moving along the American Highway, part of the Pan-American Highway, and the other an infantry force marching through the mountains.

The capitals of both countries were under curfew and blackout last night.

Twelve planes, eight of them Honduran, reportedly have been shot down.

Fighting was reported savage and often hand-to-hand along the border. Casualties were high, but no figures were available.

Honduran planes yesterday bombed the international airport outside San Salvador and a Standard Oil of New Jersey refinery 25 miles away. El Salvador admitted several gasoline storage tanks were hit, and the column of smoke could be seen in the capital.

Skies to Cloud Up; Showers Forecast

Today's sunny skies are expected to become overcast tonight as clouds move in, bringing showers and possibly thundershowers.

Variable cloudiness and warm temperatures, with a chance of afternoon showers or thundershowers, are forecast tomorrow. A chance of showers and cooler temperatures are forecast for Friday.

Temperatures will fall to 67 to 73 tonight and reach a high of 82 to 88 tomorrow.

A sunny 72 was the low temperature before 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac. The mercury had climbed to 91 by 2 p.m.

Cash ADC Payments for Clothing Backed

Cash payments may be paid to Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) mothers to provide emergency clothing relief, if the County Social Services Board gets its way.

About 40 ADC mothers showed up at the board of supervisors' human resources committee meeting yesterday and learned, along with committee members, that the social services board favors cash payments over clothing allotments supplied by the county's clothing store at 1 Lafayette in Pontiac.

Supervisor Robert F. Patenales, R-Royal Oak, chairman of the committee, read a resolution from the social services board drafted Monday which claimed the county store was not answering the needs of welfare recipients and called for "devising another method."

Patenales and members of his committee questioned Mrs. Ann Rumsey of the social services board and Miss Ora Hinckley, social services director, on what other method should be used.

They were told cash payments on a "needs basis" should be provided for the clothing of welfare children.

The method proposed by Mrs. Rumsey and Miss Hinckley would be similar to what was followed in Wayne and Washtenaw counties last year. The emergency relief payments would be available upon request by the ADC mothers from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31.

Since the social services board is the "policy-making" body, it will be up to them to finalize details on the system proposed for providing ADC emergency relief clothing, county officials indicated.

The supervisors' human resources committee is expected to get the social services board's proposal for relief payments later this month and will then make its recommendations on funding which must be approved by a vote of the full board of supervisors.

A plan to open up a temporary emergency clothing center in south Oakland County, which was to be decided on at tomorrow's meeting of the board of supervisors, now will be scrapped.

The county's existing clothing store will remain in operation, however, until such a time as a new method and financing are approved for the emergency ADC clothing.

Last year emergency clothing relief for ADC mothers averaged $47 per child. Miss Hinckley expressed the hope this year's program wouldn't go over $50 per child.

Under the existing method of using the county clothing store, costs are expected to total $200,000 for the program this year.

100 PCT. PARTICIPATION?

Eligibility for the emergency relief wouldn't be changed, Miss Hinckley pointed out. She said, however, 100 per cent participation by the ADC families would be a possibility under the proposed cash payment program.

Costs for the program were funded on a 60-40 ratio by the county and state, respectively, last year.

The county's share totaled $78,000 for the four-month period September through December. After Jan. 1 this year, the county continued the program and bore all the costs, which have exceeded $73,000 for the first six months.

★ ★ ★

The county clothing store would probably be continued in operation to service other welfare programs and clothe children in the foster parent program and those at children's village. Officials have stated there has been no complaint on the quality of clothing and service from these other areas.

★ ★ ★

In Use of Fraudulent Patent

Drug-Sale Monopoly Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration, trying to lower spiraling drug prices through vigorous antitrust enforcement, has charged seven major drug firms with using a fraudulent patent to monopolize sales of a leading antibiotic.

The government, in a three-count civil suit, also demanded at least $25 million in damages — probably much more—from two of the companies, Charles Pfizer & Co. Inc. and American Cyanamid Co.

★ ★ ★

The action marked the second time in a week Justice Department antitrust enforcers moved against drug patents in a concerted drive for more competition in the industry.

In yesterday's suit, filed in federal court here, Pfizer was accused of obtaining a fraudulent patent in 1955 on the drug tetracycline, the nation's largest selling broad-spectrum antibiotic.

The department claimed Pfizer got the tetracycline patent by withholding information and making "false and misleading statements" to the U. S. Patent Office.

The government said Cyanamid made deceptive statements to back Pfizer's patent claim in exchange for a licensing arrangement that allowed the two firms to maintain holds on antibiotic sales.

In addition to Pfizer and Cyanamid, five other leading drug producers — Bristol-Myers Co., Olin-Mathieson Chemical Corp., Squibb Beech-Nut Inc., E. R. Squibb & Sons Inc. and the Upjohn Co.—were charged with conspiracy to monopolize the tetracycline trade.

That count stemmed, the government said, from licensing agreements under which Pfizer, Cyanamid and Bristol-Myers would manufacture the drug and all seven firms could sell it in dosage form.

The complaint also asked the court to cancel the Pfizer patent and prohibit the firm from collecting royalties on tetracycline.

Henry Called to Testify at New Bethel Exam

DETROIT (UPI) — Milton R. Henry, a vice president of the Republic of New Africa, was called to the stand to testify yesterday in a surprise move during the pretrial examination for a 20-year-old New Yorker accused of gunning down a Detroit policeman last March.

Henry, a Pontiac lawyer who is also the defense attorney for Rafael Viera, refused to answer many of the questions asked by the prosecution, Asst. Wayne County Prosecutor Michael Connor. Viera is charged with first-degree murder in the death of rookie Patrolman Michael Czapski outside the New Bethel Baptist Church late on the night of March 29.

Trial Board Gets Brutality Charge

A committee appointed by the Pontiac Area Planning Council (PAPC) to investigate the arrest of two black community workers has taken the case to the Police Trial Board.

The probe concerns the forceful arrest last Thursday of Kenneth Walker, employe of Harambee Inc., and Elick Shorter, social director for the Pontiac Area Urban League. The men were apprehended after a struggle in front of the Hayes Jones Community Center and face charges in District Court of creating a disturbance and resisting arrest.

Black community leaders have charged that police used brutality in the case and that Shorter only was trying to act as a peacemaker in the incident.

Asked to enter the case Thursday, the PAPC appointed a three-men investigative committee: Edward Barker and Dr. Robert R. Turpin, both of the PAPC Task Force on Race Relations, and Samuel Baker, chairman of the Pontiac Human Relations Commission.

Barker, in a statement yesterday, informed Vice Chairman Charles M. Tucker Jr., PAPC vice chairman, that his committee had conferred with Isadore Goode, chairman of the trial board, and Police Chief William Hanger.

"Both have stated without reservation that the trial board is readily available for the full protection of individual rights . . . the public will be informed as to the judgment and resultant action of the trial board decision," Barker said.

Legislators Push for Adjournment

LANSING (UPI) — Facing the probability of adjourning today until the middle of September, Michigan lawmakers were prepared to roll up their sleeves and clean up as much as possible on their bill-packed calendars.

First in priority was about $1.2 billion worth of 1969-70 budget bills. Joint legislative conference committees have been working for weeks seeking compromises on the bills and their reports were ready for presentation to members of both chambers for debate.

Included in these bills are appropriations for the state's colleges and universities and departments of social services and education.

Earlier in the session, the legislature adopted a resolution authorizing the state to go on paying its bills and writing checks according to last year's appropriations.

Birmingham News

Sign Plan Felt Ill-Advised

BIRMINGHAM—Johnson, Johnson and Roy Inc., designer of Birmingham's urban plan, feels establishment of special districts for sign control in Birmingham would be ill-advised.

In a letter to the City Commission, the consulting firm said establishment of such districts on the basis of speed zones and traffic volumes would be extremely difficult, requiring extensive research and study.

★ ★ ★

The guidelines for resulting standards, the firm feels, constantly would be under attack for adjustment.

"For example, a sign at the beginning of a row of shops which is large enough to be readable for a fast-moving vehicle obviously blocks views to succeeding shops down the line.

"The next shop in line would then have a legitimate reason to request a larger sign with possibly even a further projection, which essentially is the beginning of the age-old battle of the signs and subsequent deterioration of the environment," the letter said.

The firm also believes such an ordinance would be difficult to control. "Its complexity would negate its original intent," the consultants said.

"What must be kept in mind is the goal of the sign ordinance, which is to contribute toward a unique Birmingham image of quality.

"Hunter Boulevard is a particularly important zone to convey since it inherently is the only view that large numbers of people have as they pass through the city of Birmingham. Because of Hunter Boulevard's critical location, it dramatically reflects what the community is trying to do," the letter added.

In its meeting this week, the City Commission awarded a contract for construction of concrete sidewalks in an area bounded by Pierce, 14 Mile, Southfield and Brown to the J. J. Barney Inc.

The low bid was $41,603.03. There were three other bidders.

SEPTEMBER START

Construction is expected to begin by the end of September with completion scheduled for Oct. 25.

City Engineer William T. Killeen said the low bid is about 1 per cent higher than the engineer's estimate.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The City Commission has appealed an Appellate Court decision that upheld a Circuit Court verdict on a petition for rezoning the Virginia House property, on the southwest corner of Woodward and Lone Pine.

The Circuit Court decision held that two acres of the three-acre parcel should be rezoned from multiple family residential to commercial.

The rezoning petition was filed about two years ago.

Report on Firing of Euler Out by Friday--Birnkrant

When will some facts be known about the firing of Harold B. Euler, former administrator of Pontiac General Hospital?

Maybe Thursday, maybe Friday.

This was the answer given a delegation of about 30 citizens and employes of the hospital at the City Commission meeting last night. It was the fourth straight week a delegation asked the commission why the Hospital Board of Trustees fired Euler.

City commissioners have confessed they do not know why Euler was dismissed.

'BEST INTERESTS'

Euler was fired June 17 by the board and given no other known reason but that it was in "the best interests of the hospital."

City Attorney Shirwin Birnkrant last night revealed negotiations have been going on between himself and Euler's attorney, Clarence Patterson.

He said, "It is my expectation that everyone concerned will be satisfied by a report I will have by Friday."

Birnkrant also pointed out that the hospital board meets at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the hospital. However, he was not sure the trustees would announce anything at that time.

WANT A SOLUTION

City commissioners, obviously tiring of the issue, indicated they wanted a solution.

Mayor Pro Tem T. Warren Fowler Sr. said, "I'll be looking to hear from you." He said the City Commission was prepared to hold a special meeting after the hospital board meeting. He said the commission had been checking city ordinances to see what rules applied to the hospital board, but did not elaborate.

★ ★ ★

Fowler and other commissioners said they were getting increasingly concerned about the continuity of care for patients.

Czech Calls for Rights

PRAGUE (AP) — Justice Minister Vaclav Hrabal of the Czech Republic called today for lighter penalties against persons who try to leave the country illegally and for giving prisoners more rights.

Saigon Tells Reds: Respond Now

PARIS (UPI) — A Saigon delegation spokesman today said if the Communist side at the Vietnam peace talks "really wants a negotiated settlement, this is the time to respond."

Referring to the offer by South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to let the Vietcong participate in jointly controlled and internationally supervised general elections, the spokesman said:

"They cannot keep rejecting our offers. They must realize this is a fair and generous offer on our part."

The spokesman stressed the Saigon and Washington delegations would give the Communists "plenty of time and patience" when the 26th session of the talks takes place tomorrow.

He said many South Vietnamese support the view of Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, coordinator of the Saigon delegation, who has said he would recommend withdrawal from the talks if the Communists reject Thieu's latest offer. He would not call Ky's statement "official Saigon policy."

He pointed to last Friday's statement by Ambassador Pham Dang Lam of South Vietnam that there were "limits" to patience and goodwill, but said this did not mean the Saigon delegation was contemplating a walkout.

★ ★ ★

Thieu's latest proposal will be officially presented to the Communists tomorrow.

Pontiac Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. and I arrived here Monday afternoon, in preparation for today's space shot.

Mayor Taylor was one of 12,000 civic leaders of the nation invited by Vice President Spiro Agnew and NASA officials to view the Apollo 11 launch.

★ ★ ★

He was allowed to invite a guest to join him, and asked me.

The astronauts were keeping in shape right up until blast-off, so we felt duty-bound to do the same. A dip in the hotel pool and a leisurely stroll after dinner was our plan.

Orlando has downtown problems similar to Pontiac, with vacant stores quite common.

ORLANDO PROPOSAL

In our hotel, the Downtown Orlando Council had a presentation Monday night of plans for a multilevel plaza and redevelopment, and we stuck our heads in the door as the presentation was being assembled.

"Looks like the same problems here as at home," Taylor said.

Most of yesterday was spent in a comprehensive, five-hour guided tour of the NASA facilities.

As our GMC air-conditioned bus left the hotel, one cheery NASA man said "good luck," which brought a few nervous laughs.

I wondered whether they'd ever lost a tour, or just what he meant.

CHRISTMAS ON ROUTE

During an hour's ride to the Cape, we passed through a small town called 'Christmas' and sure enough they had a decorated Christmas tree in the center of town. It stays up, year-long.

★ ★ ★

We picked up a NASA engineer who was doubling as a tour guide, and headed for our first stop, the mission briefing room.

As the room darkened for a 30-minute film on our space program, I noticed a series of lighted numerals in one corner.

It was a countdown clock, clicking off the seconds to launch time.

We were told there was a five-hour launch "window" from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m. (Pontiac time) today. If any delays held up the firing beyond 1 p.m. It would have to be delayed until Friday, or next Monday.

Longer delays would push the blast-off back another 28 days. If Apollo 11 failed, Apollo 12 would go up in September, and in November if today's shot is successful.

In the vehicle assembly building, which is large enough to stack the cubic footage of three pentagon buildings, we saw several other Apollo rockets being prepared.

This 750-foot-high building receives the Saturn rockets in sections, and then workers assemble them vertically. If the space shots themselves are awesome, the buildings and machines which bring them about are equally so.

As each new wonder was explained to us, I began to realize how such a venture could cost $24 billion.

Highlights of Proposed Sex-Ed Guidelines

(EDITOR'S NOTE—A set of sex education guidelines drawn up by a committee appointed by the State Board of Education was presented to the board last week. The official in the State Department of Education who worked closest with the committee writes the following summary of the recommendations.)

By DR. LEON WASKIN
Deputy Assistant Superintendent
Michigan Department of Education
Written for UPI

The guidelines on sex-education and family-planning information as developed by the state advisory committee are based on several fundamental concepts.

The first is that the role of the school in sex education is one of cooperation with the home and the church. Each has a distinctive contribution to make,

* * *

The second concept is that sex education, as defined in Public Act 44 of 1968, is considerably broader than education about human reproduction and the physilogy of sex.

Specifically, the law says?

"Sex education is the preparation for personal relationships between the sexes by providing appropriate educational opportunities designed to help the individual develop understanding, acceptance, respect and trust for himself and others.

RESPONSIBLE USE

"Sex education includes the knowledge of physical, emotional and social growth and maturation and understanding of the individual needs.

"It involves an examination of man's and woman's roles in society, how they relate and react to supplement each other, the responsibilities of each towards the other throughout life and the development of responsible use of human sexuality as a positive and creative force."

The third concept is that, if there is to be a genuine involvement of parents in the sex-education program, decisions about what shall be taught, what materials will be used at the different grade levels, and what methods will be followed shall be made at the local district level.

* * *

The guidelines suggest techniques through which such parental involvement may be secured.

They also stress the fact that Michigan laws on sex education, by retaining decision making at the local district level, provide the needed flexibility to safeguard the wishes of both those holding minority and majority viewpoints in any community.

The fourth concept incorporated into the guidelines is that sex education as defined in the law should not be taught as a separate subject or incorporated totally into any one curriculum area such as health education or family-life education.

This fact means that many teachers rather than a few specialists need to be involved in the sex-education program.

PREPARING TEACHERS

Because of the situation, the guidelines include recommendations for modification of the preservice education of teachers in our colleges and universities to include greater consideration of sex education in the professional preparation of prospective teachers.

Also included are recommendations that extensive in-service education programs be established by local and intermediate districts and by the State Department of Education to improve the knowledge and competency of teachers now on the job.

Similar in-service education programs are recommended from other resource specialists who might be involved in school sex-education programs, such as physicians, nurses, clergymen, social workers, etc.

The guidelines present a number of specific recommendations on how school staffs can organize for developing a wholesome sex-education program and how such a program can be integrated into the school curriculum.

The importance of evaluation is stressed.

* * *

Guidelines on socially deviant sexual behavior recommend that at the elementary level consideration of the topic be limited to minimizing the dangers of child molestation.

With older students, school personnel should depend upon current legal, medical and religious concepts and definitions.

Guidelines for family-planning information, the only guidelines actually required by PA 44 of 1968, define family planning as "the making of responsible decisions by prospective parents about the moral, ethical, physical, social and economical issues which have an effect on the bearing and raising of children.

FREEDOM OF CHOICE

"Within this context of responsible parenthood, parents have the right to freedom of choice as to the number and spacing of children in their family. They may choose whether or not to limit the number of their children.

"Their choice of whether or not to limit the number of their children should be based on the concern for quality of life of all the family members."

In no sense is family-planning information in the school program to be interpreted as teaching specific methods of birth control.

* * *

Concepts are listed that may be brought up for group discussion that will help students make responsible decisions about parenthood based upon accurate information, respect for human dignity, and thoughtful consideration of their own value systems as developed by the family and church.

Ferndale Bias Reported

DETROIT (AP) — The Ferndale School District, charged by the federal government with discrimination against black students, once held racially segregated picnics for its black and white graduating seniors, a longtime resident of the area testified yesterday.

Mary Morris, 70, told a federal examiner that the traditional senior "skip day" picnic in 1948 was canceled because Negro students wanted to attend the whites-only picnic.

Mrs. Morris was a witness in the Federal Health, Education and Welfare Department's attempt to prove charges of racial discrimination against the school district.

It is the first such case started by HEW outside the South. A decision against the district could mean a cutoff of federal funds.

* * *

Mrs. Morris' charges regarding the picnic stood up under cross-examination by the school district's attorney, Burton Schifman.

* * *

In the picnic incident, she said, she and other Negro mothers had first protested the separation plans. She said the blacks were to go to Detroit's Belle Isle while the whites had a picnic scheduled at Twin Beach, where Negroes were then not allowed to go.

Dean Named Chief of School District

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) —Albert C. Johnsen, dean of business affairs at Lake Michigan College in Benton Harbor, has been appointed superintendent of schools in Godwin Heights.

* * *

Johnsen, 58, has nearly 30 years experience as a school administrator. He has been superintendent of schools in Chelsea, Willow Run and Benton Harbor.

* * *

He succeeds Dr. Jerry J. Herman who resigned to head a school system near Buffalo, N.Y.

Five More Metro Hearings Urged on Sex-Ed Proposals

LANSING (AP) — State Board of Education member James O'Neil of Livonia today asked for five additional public hearings on proposed sex education guidelines for the public schools. One is proposed for Oakland County.

O'Neil objected that only one hearing, scheduled for tomorrow morning, will be held in Detroit. This hearing takes in an area representing 50 per cent of the population of the state and is in violation of the spirit of the one man-one vote rule, he said.

Other hearings have been scheduled for Friday afternoon at Grand Rapids and Flint and Monday evening at Lansing, Gaylord and Marquette.

O'Neil said in fairness to the populous southeastern section of the state, hearings also should be held in Macomb County, Oakland County, Washtenaw County, northwest and northeast Wayne County.

NOT INCLUDED

O'Neil further protested that his own set of nine guidelines for the proposed sex education program were not included among those sent out to the public.

He further said not enough copies of the guidelines were available.

★ ★ ★

"Only one copy, chained to a desk, was available at the Lansing public library," he commented.

A board resolution, O'Neil said, provided that his guidelines be included among those available for study by the public before the hearings were held.

"If Ira Polley (state superintendent of public instruction) can't follow a simple board order, he should resign," said O'Neil.

In response to a question, O'Neil said he had "none whatsoever connection, nor do I ever intend to be connected with, the John Birch Society."

Spokesmen for the Michigan State Medical Society had said the John Birch group was behind much of the opposition to sex education in the public schools.

"The vast majority of the people still hold to the puritanical code," O'Neil said.

He said he believed in sex education in the public schools, but not starting at kindergarten throughout the entire curriculum of study and not without the consent and advice of the parents.

★ ★ ★

He further said the concept of family planning also takes in the field of birth control, forbidden under Michigan law.

★ ★ ★

O'Neil further objected it was unfair for board members to hold two of the hearings on one day and three on another simultaneously. He further said it was unfair for the parents, particularly fathers, to hold three of the hearings during the day.

Mystic Coming to Help Solve Girls' Murders

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Peter Hurkos will be coming to Ann Arbor after all.

Despite a breakdown in earlier plans for the Dutch mystic to come to this southeastern Michigan city to help solve a series of brutal slayings of young girls, new plans have been made and he should arrive next week.

★ ★ ★

However, instead of the $2,500 plus expenses that he first expected to receive, Hurkos is now asking only for expenses, about $1,000. The money, from an anonymous source, is already available said a spokesman for the citizens' group sponsoring Hurkoes' visit.

★ ★ ★

The original attempt at hiring Hurkos, who normally displays his alleged psychic powers in nightclubs, was made by Mr. and Mr. Archie Allen, head of the citizens' group. The plan for Hurkos to come last Sunday was cancelled when the Allens failed to raise the money.

HIPPIES STUDENTS

Allen, 29, who deals in real estate and other business ventures, said the group he heads is composed mostly of hippies, students and young Ann Arborites.

★ ★ ★

The murders Hurkos is coming to investigate are those of seven young girls killed between July 1967 and July 1969. The first two, killed in the summers of '67 and '68, were coeds at Eastern Michigan University in nearby Ypsilanti.

★ ★ ★

Five girls have been killed in Ann Arbor since this April— three University of Michigan coeds, one Romulus, high school dropout and an Ypsilanti eighth grader.

Police have charged Ernest Bishop Jr., 23, of Ann Arbor in connection with the last murder, that of U-M graduate student Margaret Phillips.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Gray was associated with his father and brother in the operation of the Gray Elevator, for more than 50 years a Romeo landmark.

★ ★ ★

He was a charter member and past president of the Romeo Rotary Club, a life member of Romeo Masonic Lodge 41, F&AM, a member of Romeo Chapter 17 of Royal Arch Masons, past commander of Romeo Masonic Commandry No. 6, and a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity and the Romeo Congregational Church.

★ ★ ★

Hare Names Top Assistant

LANSING (AP)—Secretary of State James Hare has named Walter C. Elliott of Detroit as chief assistant secretary of state.

Elliott joined the Department of State in 1961 as Detroit branch manager and was named assistant secretary of state for urban affairs in 1966.

He is a member of the Democratic State Central Committee.

★ ★ ★

Hare said Elliott, a Negro, will be the department's policy executive for Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Genesee, Livingston and Washtenaw counties.

Hare said the appointment was in line with his policy of placing "strong renewed emphasis on helping solve the problems of urban Michigan."

"Jobs are important," Hare said. "We have always tried to work in the employment of nonwhites. Several are in supervisory capacities with our department."

Hare said he was particularly proud of two new projects in urban areas pioneered by his department.

The first, he said, is to get qualified nonwhites into positions as safety and enforcement officials.

The second, Hare said, is the driver rehabilitation clinic aimed at helping those who have difficulty obtaining driver licenses.

Computer to Aid Ford Testing of '70 Continentals

WIXOM (AP) — The 1970 Lincoln Continental and Continental Mark III built here will be driven through a simulated computerized road test before shipment, an official said today.

Frank E. Zimmerman Jr., general sales manager for the Lincoln-Mercury Division of Ford Motor Co., said the luxury cars will be rigidly inspected to eliminate bugs and maladjustments.

★ ★ ★

Servicemen will correct any deficiencies discovered with the computer gear which will be supplemented by a medical stethoscope and an electronic sniffer.

The stethoscope will be used to detect wind noise and the sniffer to discover small leaks in the freon-charged air conditioning system.

Zimmerman said the examination at the end of the assembly line would be "comparable to a sophisticated flight test."

Zimmerman said the new Lincoln Continental "has been completely redesigned and reengineered," constituting "the most dramatic change since its introduction in 1961."

Island Queen Passengers View Kensington Park Scenery

Riverboat Resumes Cruises

MILFORD TOWNSHIP — Passengers are again boarding the old Mississippi-type riverboat for 45-minute cruises on Kent Lake, in the Kensington Metropolitan Park.

Captained by Lewis Underhill III, the Island Queen slips out of its berth near Martindale Beach, carrying some 60 passengers on each cruise.

★ ★ ★

"Over 300,000 persons have taken rides aboard the Island Queen," said Underhill.

★ ★ ★

He noted that the excursion boat was built in an old red barn in Saugatuck and introduced at Kensington in 1956.

The boat usually carries 20,000 to 30,000 passengers a summer.

The boat is propelled over a six-mile course by a stern wheel that can make the craft move forward or in reverse. A new Perkins Diesel engine installed in 1968 supplies the power.

Underhill said the boat can travel over sand bars in just four feet of water. The most difficult job of piloting the craft is adjusting to the wind conditions on the lake, he added.

★ ★ ★

"Never has anyone fallen overboard yet," said Underhill cheerfully, adding that awnings are lowered to protect passengers from sudden rain squalls.

"On hot summer days, everyone likes a cooling ride. It is a a quiet trip" he added, noting that the tour gives views of the picturesque park, the beach sites and, at time, the ducks and geese on the lake.

PRIVATE CHARTER

Tour charges are 25 cents for children through 12 years of age and 50 cents for adults. Regular cruises are scheduled from noon through 6 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.

The boat is also available for private charter before and after the regular runs and also operates on weekends in the summer and fall.

Springfield Twp. Parents Accept Medal for Dead GI

SPRINGFIELD TOWNSHIP — The Bronze Star with a V for Valor has been awarded posthumously to Pfc. David F. Head, a medic killed in action in Vietnam while carrying a wounded soldier to safety.

The medal and four others — the International Defense Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, Good Conduct Medal and Purple Heart — were accepted recently by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Head, 5050 Edgar.

★ ★ ★

The 20-year-old soldier was killed Jan. 22 near An Khe.

Head distinguished himself while administering first aid to soldiers wounded by sniper fire. As he carried one of the seriously wounded, he was killed.

CLARKSTON HIGH GRAD

A 1966 graduate of Clarkston High School, Head had attended Pontiac Northern until his senior year.

★ ★ ★

Before entering the Army in June 1968, Head was employed as an attendant nurse in the medical-surgical division at Pontiac State Hospital.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Donald Dawson, director of the Meid Medical-Surgical Division, said that one of the four experimental units in the new research laboratory will be named in Head's honor.

★ ★ ★

Nurses and attendants at the hospital have also established a scholarship fund in Head's name which will provide financial help for employes seeking to further their education.

VIP Seats Given Participants in Poor People's Drive

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Leaders of the Poor People's Campaign, here to demonstrate against poverty, had front seats today for the Apollo 11 launching.

★ ★ ★

"I'm proud of those three men, the astronauts," the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, leader of the antipoverty group, told a church rally Tuesday night in nearby Cocoa. Then he led about 300 marchers to the city hall for a midnight demonstration.

★ ★ ★

"America has mixed-up priorities," he said. "I'm happy because we're going to the moon, but I'd be just a little more happy if we had learned how to live down here on the earth."

★ ★ ★

Abernathy, successor to the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., met the nation's top space official Tuesday and was invited "to hitch your wagons to our rockets" in a fight to solve humanity's problems on earth even as three astronauts readied for man's greatest adventure beyond his world.

VIP SEATS

Abernathy and other members of the Poor People's Campaign were assured of VIP seats by Thomas O. Paine, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, during a meeting near Gate 3 of the Kennedy Space Center.

★ ★ ★

Paine said he would provide VIP passes to the launch viewing site for 10 families—at the request of Abernathy, who is president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

★ ★ ★

Paine told Abernathy and about 100 followers who marched a short distance: "We feel the space program is a program for all Americans. We don't regard it as a program against the antipoverty program.

"We'd like to see you hitch your wagons to our rockets and we hope the space program will encourage this country to tackle other problems."

★ ★ ★

Paine also said: "If it were possible for us not to push the button and solve the problems with which you are concerned, we would not push the button" to launch the moon rocket.

★ ★ ★

The two men met after Abernathy—leading a scruffy brown mule, one of four in the demonstration—had walked about 100 yards across a field.

Moon Attends Lunar Launch

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be a Moon at Cape Kennedy for today's Apollo 11 moon shot.

His name is Martin.

The Atomic Energy Commission sent Information Officer Martin Moon to the cape in case anyone has any questions about the radioactive plutonium heater aboard the spacecraft.

The heater is designed to keep seismic instruments warm during the long cold nights on the moon. The real moon, not Martin.

Police Silenced

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two patrolmen had difficulty Tuesday radioing an investigation of a complaint. When Patrolmen Victor Bono and R. G. Roussell returned to their car, they found the radio microphone had been stolen.

Apollo Shot at a Glance

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Here are the facts and figures of the Apollo 11 mission:

Astronauts: Civilian Neil A. Armstrong, 38; Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., 39; Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Collins, 38.

Purpose: After attaining lunar orbit, Armstrong and Aldrin fly a landing craft to man's first landing on the moon on Sunday. They are to walk on moon for 2½ hours Monday, setting up scientific experiments, gathering soil samples and determining ability to work in one-sixth gravity field.

Total length of time on moon: 22 hours, after which they . sdl rende;1

Total length of time on moon: 22 hours, after which they rendezvous with Collins orbiting in command ship.

Flight duration: Eight days, 3 hours, 19 minutes.

Rocket: Three-stage Saturn 5, which, with Apollo spacecraft, stands 363 feet tall. It is the world's most powerful booster, with first stage thrust of 7.7 million pounds.

Cost of mission: Saturn 5, $185 million; Apollo 11 command ship, $55 million; lunar module, $41 million; launch operations, including recovery forces, $74 million. Total $355 million.

Total cost of Apollo program to date: $22 billion.

Moon Lift-Off Is Critical Point

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — There are several critical points in the mission of Apollo 11, but one of the most critical is the rocket firing that lifts the top stage of the moon lander off the moon's surface.

It is, said Floyd Bennet of the landing anaylsis branch at the manned spacecraft center, "similar to earth launch but without a Cape Kennedy to help you out."

IN THE SPOTLIGHT — The Apollo 11 space assembly is bathed in light last night as it sat on its launch pad at Cape Kennedy, awaiting the start of the historic voyage to the moon and a planned landing by two of the three astronauts in the crew.

Mott Students Score

Those who have stereotyped today's youth as "hopeless, helpless and lazy" have another reason to re-examine this mental pigeonhole which is so easy, convenient, and untrue.

★ ★ ★

Waterford Mott students took to their athletic field with rakes, and shovels on hot days last week, to ensure football action this fall.

Contractors who were supposed to do the job had sent up distress flares. They couldn't get the job done before the football season was due to begin.

★ ★ ★

Students, parents, players, and school officials took up the challenge and their yard tools. A few blisters and sore backs later, the job was done.

★ ★ ★

That field will mean a lot more than a football site to the hard workers who made its completion possible.

Latitude a 'Teaching' Need

There is nothing wrong with demands by black students that colleges offer courses in Negro history and culture. Such studies are long overdue and a necessary part of the process of dispelling the myth of Negro inferiority, a myth that has infected white and black alike for generations.

What is less praiseworthy is the exclusive element in this current trend — the demand that black studies be a separate part of the curriculum and be held in separate facilities, and especially the contention that only black teachers are qualified to teach them.

★ ★ ★

For it is one thing to say that the white man probably does not understand the black man, does not empathize with him, does not appreciate his history, his aspirations, his needs. It is quite another to say that the white man CANNOT understand, empathize, appreciate.

★ ★ ★

If this is true, then it must also be true that the black man cannot understand the white man. If a white teacher is inherently disqualified from teaching about the poetry of LANGSTON HUGHES, for example, then no black teacher can possibly talk about EMILY DICKINSON.

To take it further, no teacher living today can teach anything about the history that happened before he was born because he did not live through it. No American can give a course on Asian culture because he is not an Asian. No native-born speaker of English can teach French because he was not raised in France.

Black students are not, interestingly enough, demanding that only white instructors teach them about European history. If they did, they would see immediately the fallacy of their unspoken premise.

★ ★ ★

If that premise were true, that people cannot understand each other, have nothing to offer each other, unless their racial and cultural backgrounds are the same, then what hope would there be for any of us?

Flying Joker Lands Fine

One thing Americans have not lost is their sense of humor, but sometimes it is expensive.

Despite the warnings and publicity, some airline travelers have made joking references to plane bombings, or diversion of flights to Cuba. This can be costly kidding.

★ ★ ★

The most recent case is a Washington, D.C. churchman and attorney. Boarding a flight he jokingly asked the stewardess how long it would take for the plane to get to Cuba.

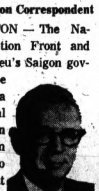
That was enough to get him hauled off the plane, and into court. The $200 fine levied by a Boston judge made the levity anything but light-hearted.

Travelers are advised that airline employes are poor "straight men," and wit and whimsy should be left at home, or relegated to the pilot's competence or the stewardess's legs.

S. Viet Faces Political Stalemate, Too

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The National Liberation Front and President Thieu's Saigon government are locked in a major political stalemate in South Vietnam which is no less significant than the bloody impasse on the battlefields.



BIOSSAT

The NLF's formation of a provisional government was, among other things, an acknowledgement that the front's political struggle for the vital allegiance of larger and larger numbers of South Vietnamese was not going well.

★ ★ ★

The provisional government, embracing also the secondary Alliance of National Democratic and Peace Forces, is a new net intended to draw in wavering or uncommitted elements of South Vietnamese society and suggest to America and the world — at heavy cost to Saigon — the advancing "legitimacy" of the Vietcong.

Off the record of the NLF and the Alliance (formed in early 1968 for the same purpose, though on a less pretentious scale), the new political mechanism probably will not succeed.

NOT TRYING

But, by the same token, the Saigon government is not widening its popular base, either.

Worse still, it is not trying. In fact rather than welcoming new, diverse, and often healthy opposing elements, Thieu and other leaders have discouraged them. In critical instances, they have repressed them.

★ ★ ★

There is nothing really startling in this, of course, since Saigon governments from the time of the 1954 Geneva accords have been characteristically inhospitable to new elements they perceived as potentially threatening to their power.

If, as now seems likely, the American military role in Vietnam is hereafter destined to diminish at a fairly steady pace, Saigon will obviously need all the home-based support it can get to survive more or less on its own.

NEEDS SYMPATHY

And it will need sympathy abroad which, as a basically repressive regime for all its new constitutional forms, it does not enjoy today.

It has been saved from itself, sometimes too thoroughly, by the great American military presence and the persistent inability of the NLF, the Vietcong and related groups to make the enduring political alliances they need in South Vietnam.

★ ★ ★

Estimates by allegedly detached observers in Saigon suggest that the NLF and its "provisional government" today could command no more than 15 per cent of the South Vietnamese population as either hard-core or sympathetic supporters.

Hard-core strength is figured at around 750,000, but this includes some 300,000 Vietcong and civilian members of the NLF.

★ ★ ★

Should these figures be even just roughly accurate, Hanoi's present reluctance to sanction early elections in South Vietnam is understandable.

However firm Hanoi stands against such a test today, its leaders know they will have to pay some price for the withdrawal of major U.S. forces from Vietnam. Internationally supervised elections are the obvious American bargaining weapon.

David Lawrence Says:

Why Ship Arms? Laird Tells

WASHINGTON—Despite all the rhetorical outbursts on the subject of commitments abroad which lately have been coming from members of the Senate Relations Committee, the facts of international life today are catching up with the theorists who think the United States can forget about military support for peoples in distant lands.

LAWRENCE

Melvin Laird, who used to be a member of Congress and now is secretary of defense, has had a chance to get a look from the inside at what the dangers are to the United States.

This is why his testimony yesterday before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in support of an authorization of $375 million for military help abroad, was unpleasant but significant.

The secretary pointed out that the Moscow government is moving into various parts of the world either to stir up trouble or to arm potential allies.

BASIC INSTRUMENT

He said: "The Soviet Union continues to employ military assistance as a basic instrument of political infiltration. Soviet arms deliveries have raised concern about the level of armaments in the horn of Africa, as well as in the Middle East and North Africa.

"The Soviet Union has been the principal supplier of arms to India. Recent reports indicate that it is shipping weapons to Pakistan as well.

★ ★ ★

"There is little doubt in my mind that military assistance will continue to be used as a major instrument of Soviet policy over the foreseeable future."

Secretary Laird declared, moreover, that "It would be foolhardy to expect early abatement of fear of aggression in Europe" and that he sees in prospect a continued instability in Asia.

'CONSTANT THREAT'

He added: "In Latin America and Africa, there is a constant threat of terrorism, guerrilla warfare and insurgency.

"Another very troublesome area with serious implications for our arms-transfer policy is the Mediterranean basin. Soviet naval operations have steadily accelerated in the Mediterranean Sea, being at a higher level in 1969 than in either of the two preceding record years."

★ ★ ★

While the Soviets talk about their desire for peace in the Middle East, Laird reminded Congress, arms are flowing from Moscow into Egypt and other Arab countries.

The Soviet Union, of course, is not the only troublemaker. The Red Chinese government is supporting insurgency movements and revolutions in the Far East and elsewhere.

★ ★ ★

North Korea, for instance, has become increasingly bellicose. The Defense Department thinks this will necessitate continuing military support from the United States for the armed forces of South Korea.

Isolationism can hardly be justified, therefore, as a policy for the United States as long as the Soviet Union is engaged in a worldwide conspiracy which can plunge this nation at any moment into a nuclear war.

Bob Considine Says:

24 Years Ago Today, the Atom Age Began

CAPE KENNEDY—Twenty-four years ago, on the dot, man reached for another realm and found it, just as astronauts Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins hope to embrace the moon.

CONSIDINE

On July 16, 1945, the predawn heavens over a forlorn stretch of desert in New Mexico, near Alamagordo, was rent asunder by a blinding light.

The scientific midwives attending the birth of the atomic age peeped in awe through crudely smoked glass and beheld the billowing, seething mushroom cloud.

★ ★ ★

Some of those assembled at this climax of the best-kept major secret in the nation's history had suspected that it wouldn't work: the fission would not come off.

Others toyed with the thought that it would not only work but work too well; it would set up a chain reaction in the oxygen and nitrogen of the earth's atmosphere and the world would be stripped of all life in a flame-engulfed second or two.

FIGURED OUT

The immortal Enrico Fermi had figured out that it would 1. work and 2. yield the equivalent of an explosion of 20,000 tons of TNT—which it precisely did.

And so the world changed to mushroom shape.

The Soviet Union had already planted spies in key spots, notably Dr. Klaus Fuchs at Los Alamos. It was not long before the U. S. S. R. had its own bombs, and —for a time, at least—a better method of delivering them. The mushroom still hangs over the world.

The Apollo 11 mission climaxes a project that has cost 12 times as much over a similar stretch of development time as did the $2-billion Manhattan Project that probed to the explosive core of that infinitesimal solar system, the atom.

THOUGHTFUL PHYSICISTS

The test at Alamogordo meant one thing to the military, another to the thoughtful physicists, many of them refugees from Hitler.

Sixty physicists who did work on it to bring it to its Alamogordo plateau signed a petition addressed to Gen. George C. Marshall, imploring him never to use it against a civilian population.

★ ★ ★

One physicist formally applied to be strapped to the Hiroshima bomb and die in its conflagration.

We still believe, by and large, that space is for peace, just as we doggedly insist that atoms are for peace, too.

Voice of the People:

Reader States Opinion of ABM System Backers

The proposed ABM system may be construed as a symbol which symbolizes manifold qualities of our political leaders who support it. I believe politicians supporting this program may be characterized as irresponsible, irrational, and self-indulgent. I feel they are irresponsible in that they grossly neglect the domestic crisis within America by expending funds on ABM; funds that would better serve our Nation if they were allocated and dispensed for the prevention of domestic dilapidation and stagnation.

★ ★ ★

I believe they are irrational in that they wish for this country to commit itself to a program that averts the hope for peace, accelerates the arms race, and represents a futile effort of defense against nuclear weapons. Not only will the investment to construct an ABM system deprive America of vast sums of money, the consequences of that system, such as arms proliferation, will continue to drain U.S. funds perpetually. Any increase in nuclear armaments should be considered as detrimental to efforts for ultimate peace rather than contributive to National defense.

★ ★ ★

The Republican party is not focusing its attention on the welfare of the people if it invests the people's taxes into a project that can serve nothing more than the interests of big business.

Offers Opinion About the Problem at PGH

Did it ever occur to the people at Pontiac General Hospital that Mr. Euler might prefer to let the matter drop? I agree with Mr. Yeager that Mr. Euler must know why he was dismissed. If not, I'm sure he is most capable and can do what has to be done to satisfy himself. It's obvious the board members are trying to protect someone but the press and public won't let them. Most people are afraid their own curiosity won't be satisfied.

★ ★ ★

Another man was fired, Mr. Euler replaced him and the hospital improved; so it's possible there are other capable men who may also do a fine job if given the chance.

Question and Answer

Could you please tell me where I can write to find out if it's possible to homestead on the moon?

MARIS

REPLY

That's really thinking ahead. However, even the astronauts can't stake a claim to the moon as U.S. territory. Under the 1967 U.N. space treaty, all celestial bodies have been internationalized, and all activities on them are under international law, including the U.N. Charter. Only very preliminary laws have been established, and a group of diplomats at the U.N. must formulate others which will extend not only to include all possible lunar situations, but those on other planets when exploration puts men even farther into space. For information on further development of space law, you could write Space Treaty, United Nations, New York, N.Y.

Question and Answer

Several years ago Rep. William Huffman, D-Madison Heights, was indicted as part of the Pratt Grand Jury proceedings. He wasn't prosecuted by Prosecutor Bronson nor by present Prosecutor Plunkett. Can you advise of the status of this case now?

INTERESTED CITIZEN

REPLY

Jack Bain of Southfield has been appointed special Asst. Attorney General to pursue these indictments. He tells us the indictment still stands. Preliminary examination was held before the Honorable Jack Baldwin, Justice of the Peace. However, it was then adjourned and changeover to District Court system has slowed down subsequent action. However, Mr. Bain tells us examination will be set for that case probably within the next six weeks.

Fitness

Los Angeles Times

Los Angeles soon may have not only the best county fire department in the country but also the healthiest.

★ ★ ★

Alarmed over the high incidence of heart disease among county firemen, the Board of Supervisors ordered a compulsory program of daily exercise and annual medical examinations to be prepared for department members.

Supervisors sounded the alarm when a study showed that 906 years of experienced manpower have been lost since 1966. Last year alone the county paid out $617,494 in overtime due to heart attacks among department personnel.

★ ★ ★

The proposed fitness plan calls for firemen — and deputy sheriffs — to engage in both exercise and sports programs. Performance tests would be given annually as well as medical examinations.

★ ★ ★

Even the cooks at firehouses would be advised on how to run a more "healthful" mess that will help cut down on the buildup of cholesterol and protect hearts.

We think this is an idea that can be adopted for fire departments and for police officers everywhere.

Irate Blacks Confront Commission Over Incidents

Frederick Milton was suspended July 1 under a strict code on grooming issued by the chief June 24. Daniel Sowell was suspended yesterday. Each got four weeks, which could cost each about $800, and each could be fired after that time if he failed to comply or the code is not changed. Milton said he had the moustache five years ago when he was hired.

He called it "a badge of my ethnic group affiliation."

Milton repeated the allegation he had made at two previous commission meetings — that Chief Marion had suspended him because he reported "Impeach Judge Crockett" petitions posted in the main fire hall.

Chief Marion was reportedly out of town on city business when the petitions were posted, but he admitted having signed one.

Marion asserted this morning that the suspensions had nothing to do with the petition.

"I merely feel that a smart appearance is fundamental to the image of the professional fireman. I think the public expects this.

* * *

"With that in mind, regulations had to be imposed — and everybody seems to be ignoring the fact that a white man also was suspended for violation of the grooming code," Marion responded.

Firemen Donald Racine was suspended recently for sideburns that were too long, but his suspension was lifted when he trimmed them to conform to the order.

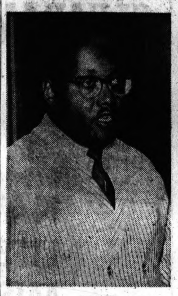
* * *

Milton demanded, "What are you (the commission) going to do about Chief Marion's violation?"

He added, "it's a sad commentary when I have to go outside my immediate government (the commission) to get action."

He referred to his contemplated District Court action and also to possible action by the Michigan Civil Rights Commission (MCRC).

The Pontiac Fire Civil Service Commission is also expected to hear the case.



DR. JOSEPH R. GRAYSON

ANTHONY ZAGRAFOS

The incident at the Hayes Jones Center involves the arrest of Kenneth Walker, 27, of 97 S. Jessie, an employe of Harambee Inc., and Elick Shorter, 25, of 529 Judson, social director for the Pontiac Area Urban League.

Issuing a statement was Dr. Joseph R. Grayson, president of the Urban League. He labeled the incident a demonstration of growing "police militancy . . . growing in avalanche proportions in the Pontiac community."

Dr. Grayson said Shorter, "while carrying out his duties as an associate director of the Urban League, attempted to act as a buffer and peacemaker . . . As a result he was beaten, arrested and charged.

"Although Shorter identified himself, the only thing the police had against him was the fact that he had a black face," the statement charged.

The statement also said, "Police excesses against black people are well-known. The incident of Shorter, a law-abiding hard-working citizen, profoundly illustrates and depicts that it makes no difference what status a black man may attain in Pontiac, in the eyes of the police he has no rights."

Dr. Grayson demanded the police department be purged of all personnel who have no respect for black people and other minorities.

Walker was not mentioned in Dr. Grayson's statement. Police claim Walker initiated the incident by calling them "White pigs."

James Hawkins, principal of Bethune School, related another incident which he said involved the same two officers in the Shorter-Walker case—patrolmen Raymond C. Hawks and Clarence Yuill.

He said one of the men had fired a shot at a burglar about three months ago at the school. The bullet had penetrated a window, and Hawkins said he had been frustrated in his attempts to investigate the matter. He said he feared a child was involved, because break-ins at schools are mostly by children.

Others in the audience claimed the same two patrolmen had been involved in other incidents.

Albert Munson, director of the Black Cultural Center, suggested what he termed "tension-reducing things"— a citizens review board; taking away some of the heavy armaments (riot guns, machine guns) the police carried into the black community; and psychiatric training and examination to be sure individual police are qualified to work in the black community.

The City Commission took no action on the complaints but urged that the matters be brought before the agencies involved, the Fire Civil Service Board, Police Trial Board and Pontiac Human Relations Commission.

Samuel Baker, chairman of the latter commission, said his group intended to hear the matter. Audience members charged the group had done nothing in past cases.

Baker said "We are functioning . . . this is our test. We want to make it so we can live in this city and be proud of it."

Another agency investigating the police incident is the Pontiac Area Planning Council (PAPC) which set up a special three-man committee last Thursday.

The Michigan Civil Rights Commission is also investigating both matters, it was indicated by Clarence Simuel, MCRC employe.

He said the city was using delaying tactics in civil rights complaints and that the MCRC had cases dating back to 1967 which had not been resolved.

Two of the commission members were absent from the meeting, Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. and Robert C. Irwin, District 2. Mayor Taylor was at Cape Kennedy to observe the Apollo 11 flight as a guest of Vice President Spiro Agnew, and Irwin was reported on vacation.

Bigger Parking Mall

Street Extension Set

Another move to help the traffic flow and parking situation in downtown Pontiac was taken by the City Commission last night.

The commission ordered a $40,000 street extension for the inner loop system inside Wide Track. The project will extend Wayne from Lawrence to Pike.

This cuts through an existing parking lot, but the city also announced plans to extend the parking mall on Saginaw between Pike and Lawrence.

Construction companies were asked to submit bids by next Monday. Financing is entirely from the major street fund, mostly supplied the city from state gas and weight tax rebates.

The commission also:

● Awarded two contracts for street projects — $94,940 to A. and A. Asphalt for street patching and $124,610 to Rose Construction for previously approved sidewalk projects in various locations in the city.

● Vacated the intersection of Parkhurst and Chandler streets to provide for the Human Resources Center to be constructed by the Pontiac School District. The streets will end about one-half block short of the intersection in cul-de-sacs.

● Authorized sale of short-term urban renewal notes for $1,013,000 to Detroit Bank and Trust. The five-month notes, part of urban-renewal financing, went at an interest rate of 5.42 per cent.

* * *

● Named C. V. McLaughin of 193 Mohawk to the Pontiac Human Relations Commission for a term ending Dec. 21, 1971.

● Sent two rezoning requests to the Planning Commission: seven lots in the Pioneer-Telegraph Subdivision on Telegraph south of Voorheis and a parcel on Perry between Ridgemont Apartments and the Yankee store. Commercial zoning is sought for both, now residential.

Wheeler Flies to Viet to Assess Lull

SAIGON (AP) — A lull continued across South Vietnam's battlefields today as Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, flew here from Washington to assess the four-week-old slowdown in the war.

The U.S. Command reported 16 Communist shelling attacks Tuesday night and early today, none of them resulting in serious casualties or damage.

* * *

One American was killed and six wounded in the only reported ground action, the ambush of a U.S. truck convoy north of Saigon Tuesday.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday that U.S. forces are still under orders to maintain maximum battlefield pressure on the enemy. But under senatorial prodding, he said: "This whole matter is under review." This was taken in Washington to mean that the Nixon Administration is considering the possibility of scaling down U.S. offensive operations in response to the slack-off in enemy action.

SHRUGGED OFF

The U.S. Command has shrugged off the possibility that the lull, which began June 21, might represent a de-escalation by the enemy or have other political significance. U.S. officials in Saigon say the slowdown more likely is for regrouping and reorganizing before another "high point" in the Communists' summer campaign.

Captured documents and other intelligence data suggest strongly that another "high point" will occur before the end of July, officers say.

Allied field operations have continued at their usual levels. The sources said U.S. strategy is one of "preempting enemy operations and stirring up the battlefield" by conducting many small-scale patrols and searches to find arms and supply caches while keeping the enemy moving and off-balance.

Informed sources said preemptive operations in the first six months of 1969 have netted more than 3,000 tons of food, 1,002 tons of ammunition, and more than 9,000 weapons.

VEHICLES DAMAGED

The U.S. Command said the convoy ambushed Tuesday was 65 miles north of Saigon when North Vietnamese troops opened fire from both sides of the road. The trucks raced through the rocket grenade and rifle fire and reached their destination, although some vehicles were damaged, U.S. sources said.

* * *

Armored troops guarding the convoy and helicopter gun-ships attacked the enemy positions, but a ground sweep afterward yielded only one enemy body.

U.S. troops searched the northern slopes of Black Virgin Mountain near Tay Ninh City and found nothing but "a bunch of caves and empty bunkers," a military source said. Enemy soldiers who had been holed up in the mountain "may have pulled off, but some may still be in the mountain," the source said. "There are still plenty of hiding places up there—it's loaded with deep caves and bunkers."

U.S. fighter-bombers, artillery and B52s pounded the northern slopes of the mountain last week and again Monday after intelligene reports indicated that the troops there were ready for an offensive against Tay Ninh City.

UNDER CONTROL

The South Vietnamese government claimed today that a record 85.6 per cent of the country's population now lives in areas under its control.

The government's June report on the pacification program said the population controlled by the Vietcong had shrunk to 6.9 per cent, with the other 7.5 per cent living in "contested" areas.

This represented an increase during the month of 1.4 per cent in the population under government security. The government says its control has been climbing at an average rate of about 1.3 per cent per month.

Let down on the distinctive dryness, the delicate flavour of Gordon's Gin? Never! Every bottle is based on Mr. Gordon's original 1769 formula. So you pour a drier drink in 1969. Informal Word From Soviets

Mid-August Arms Talks Start?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union could begin in the second week of August, according to word of a completely informal and unofficial kind from the Russians, administration sources report.

Policy makers here still are shaping their position. But it is hoped the information is correct because the administration is said to want some sort of moratorium set for at least part of the nuclear weapons family before the year is out.

Official word is expected with the return of Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin from Moscow consultations.

The United States, officials say, is ready to cede on-site inspection for the preliminary moratorium, say, on further missile deployment by either side. This would be monitored by existing intelligence methods.

With a preliminary freeze in effect, the negotiators could then move toward a master agreement for halting all kinds of strategic nuclear weapon deployment—with on-site inspection.

The central issue in the negotiations is whether the two great powers can freeze their weapons systems at about the present level and thus save billions of dollars and rubles over the next few years, or whether they can obtain relative security only by continuing to escalate the arms race.

* * *

President Nixon's advisers reportedly believe that if negotiations can begin soon enough and move fast enough, they might produce a freeze which would be effective on the most advanced weapons types before they pass a point of no return.

U.S. Sues Bobby Baker, Seeks 'Influence Money'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has sued Bobby Baker for part of the money the government claims he obtained peddling influence while secretary to Senate Democrats.

The civil damage claim was filed in U.S. District Court here Tuesday, only two days before expiration of the six-year limitation on government action against one Baker contract.

* * *

The Justice Department also asked that Baker, now free while aepealing a 1-3-year prison sentence, be forced to give a full accounting of his net worth.

Accusing the former South Carolina farm boy of conflict of interest, the complaint asked for Baker to show how his net worth increased from $11,000 to about $1.7 million during eight years in the Senate post.

MAJORITY SECRETARY

Baker served as majority secretary while former President Lyndon B. Johnson was Senate Democratic leader. He resigned under fire in 1963 after being charged in a civil suit with influence peddling.

Indicted in 1965, he was brought to trial two years later and convicted on two counts of tax evasion, two counts of theft and one of fraud.

* * *

His latest appeal, now before the U.S. Circuit Court here, alleges evidence against him was obtained through illegal wiretaps.

Foundryman Sues in Loss of Arm

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — A Muskegon foundry worker, who lost his right arm in an industrial mishap last November, filed suit for $225,000 in federal court here, claiming the manufacturer marketed an unsafe machine.

* * *

Joe Grant, an employe of the Lakey Foundry Corp., filed the suit against Demmler Manufacturing Corp. of Kawanee, Ill. Grant claims the Demmler edge blow core machine was improperly designed and did not comply with Michigan laws requiring suitable safety devices.

2 Teens Borne on Bad Trip by the Pills

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md. (AP) — Two teen-aged boys admitted to local police that they "went out of this world" last weekend before coming down hard on "a bad trip" induced by a unique vehicle.

One of the boys told police the "drug" they used was birth control pills.

Sgt. Warren L. Taylor of the local police department said they found the two boys sitting in the bushes of a local cemetery after being called to the scene by a caretaker.

* * *

Both boys, one aged 15, the other 16, were "talking about their bad trip" and "flying high," according to Sgt. Taylor.

'LITTLE PILLS'

After being taken to a local hospital, the older of the two admitted having taken three birth control pills a short time before. The other youth said he had taken "some little pills" but he "didn't know what they were," the sergeant related.

* * *

The boys wouldn't disclose the source of the pills, but one said he'd paid "a dollar apiece" for them. The two boys were released to the custody of their parents.

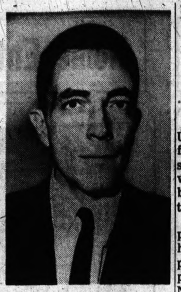
A New Worry for Senators: Job Shaves Years Off Life



SEN. CLAIBORNE PELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Claiborne Pell has turned up some discouraging data for the seniority-conscious Senate: on the average, its members don't live as long as other people.

The 52-year-old Rhode Island Democrat termed that finding depressing—and had it printed Saturday in the Congressional Record.

★ ★ ★

Pell reported that as of the date a man takes office in the Senate, his life expectancy is 5.9 years less than that of the average American male of the same age.

The data are in a study of the longevity of senators published in The Statistical Bulletin. The life-expectancy figures are based on tables prepared by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

1,619 SENATORS

The study covers 1,619 men elected or appointed to the Senate from the time of the first Congress in 1789 to the end of 1966.

Things took a turn for the better between the Civil War and 1930, when senators actually tended to live slightly longer than other Americans.

★ ★ ★

But over the last 25 years covered by the study, the life expectancy for senators was 5.9 years less than the average.

The longevity table for that period, beginning in 1931, covers 337 senators, 144 of them now dead.

Their average age on taking office was 52 years; their average age at death was 69.

INCREASED PRESSURES

"This record may reflect the increased pressures on and the more onerous duties of our legislators in the depression years, during World War II, and over the period when the United States assumed global responsibilities," the study reports.

It goes on to say that the mortality rate since 1930 actually is more unfavorable than the table indicates, because senators tend to come from higher economic and social levels of the nation. The mortality rate for that group actually is about 10 per cent lower than the average for the nation.

The study reports also a steady rise in the average age of men becoming senators, from 45.4 years in the era before the Civil War to about 52 years since the turn of the century.

★ ★ ★

It notes that two men entered the Senate when they were over 80. Andrew Jackson Houston of Texas became a senator at the age of 86, in 1941, but died within two months. John Wolcott Stewart of Vermont took office in 1908 at the age of 82, and lived to be almost 90.

LIVED LONGEST

It records also the statistics of Sen. Cornelius Cole of California, elected in 1867 at the age of 44. He served one term, then lived to be 102 years old, thus becoming the longest-lived senator.

One statistic that didn't make the study: Sen. Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island, the man Pell succeeded, lived to be 98.

The suicide rate in Denmark was lower in 1968 than it has been for 40 years.

He Fought in Our Civil War

Soldier's Letters Denounce Protesters

JERSEYVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A Union soldier's letters to his family during the Civil War show that soldiers in Vietnam were not the first Americans to be disenchanted with war protesters at home.

Henry W. Phillips of Company F, 7th Illinois Regiment, had little good to say about the pro-Confederates, called Copperheads, who lived in the North.

"It seems by the letters we are getting that the Copperheads are doing as they please," the soldier wrote.

"Why don't the people clean them out?" Phillips asked.

"All I can say, if the people are foolish enough to let them go on with their works, they must suffer the consequence."

He described the Copperheads as "the foundation of this rebellion."

And he spoke of another familiar theme, division. "Now if the people of the North were united, this war would soon come to an end," he said.

Former Jerseyville magistrate Arthur Thatcher found seven of the soldier's letters recently inside a book placed in a cigar box.

"As I recall, they were left with my secretary about five years ago. She never did find out who the man was who left them" Thatcher said.

Records in the office of the Illinois adjutant general show that Henry W. Phillips of Brighton joined the 7th Illinois Regiment at Bunker Hill in Macoupin County, Ill., on Jan. 28, 1864.

A letter written in Rome, Ga., on July 15, 1864, explains why Phillips enlisted.

"I expect you think it hard that I left you, father," the soldier wrote, "But I feel it's a most sacred cause that I am engaged in, although undergoing many hardships each day.

★ ★ ★

"My bosom burns the more with patriotic love for my bleeding country. Man God hasten the time war shall cease . . .

"Once more I long to see our starry banner wave over these United States in triumph," he said.

Phillips never saw his nation reunited. Records show he was killed defending Altoona Pass in Georgia on Oct. 5, 1864.

Quotations From Mayor

Daley's Malaprops Compiled Into a Book

CHICAGO (AP) — "Gentlemen, get the thing straight, once and for all—the policeman isn't there to create disorder, the policeman is there to preserve disorder." Mayor Daley told a news conference after the 1969 Democratic National Convention.

★ ★ ★

The statement by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley is contained in a recently published book called "Quotations from Mayor Daley," a collection of published Daley comments.

Some examples:

"They have vilified me, they have crucified me, yes, they even criticized me."

'HIGHER PLATITUDES'

"That is unreasonable reasoning."

"Together we must rise to ever higher and higher platitudes."

" . . . For the enlightenment and edification and hallucination of the alderman from the 50th Ward."

★ ★ ★

"Ladies and Gentlemen of the League of Women Voters."

The 125-page paperback is published by Pocket Books of New York and was compiled by Peter Yessne.

The book is similar to last year's best-selling "Quotations from LBJ." The Daley book is divided into sections such as electoral success and police and community relations and ends with a section of the mayor's famous garbled English syntax.

★ ★ ★

Asked about the book at a news conference, Mayor Daley said he knew nothing about the book, adding that he was probably misquoted.

A total of 1.4 million workers were employed in the U.S. aerospace industry in 1968.

Town's Plea on Gls Denied

MIDLAND PARK, N.J. (AP) —The Pentagon has denied this small Bergen County town's request that its soldier-sons be exempted from future duty in Vietnam.

Mayor Cornelius A. Pontier had asked President Nixon for the exemption after a seventh man from the community of 8,200 was killed in the war zone last month.

★ ★ ★

The Pentagon informed Pontier in a two-page letter that it could not single out Midland Park soldiers for special treatment. The Pentagon has given the same response to similar requests from other communities in the past.

Pontier said his community will abide by the decree.

"Ours is a small, patriotic town," the mayor said. "We as a borough will do what our country wants. We still cannot remove from our hearts the grief visited upon us by unfortunate military action.

"But we feel as though we have done what is right. We've asked the question and received an answer. I feel that I have closed the chapter on the incident."

★ ★ ★

Pontier, who was backed by Midland Park's service groups in his request, had made a similar petition to the Pentagon last year.

But Most of Nation Has Ample Water

Cropland Drought Is Feared in South

WASHINGTON (AP) — Croplands are parching in rainless Southern areas, but most of the nation and Canada has ample water in natural and manmade storage to get through the worst of the summer.

So reports the Geological Survey after gauging stream flows, measuring ground-water levels and checking depths of lakes and reservoirs in the 50 states and the southern provinces of Canada.

Fears of the worst drought in a decade or more are building in parts of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Tennessee, where temperature readings of 100 degrees or more have been reported for days.

But favorable is the word government hydrologists have for the water sources outlook this summer for the nation at large. The Survey's latest monthly review assures "adequate summer water supplies for irrigation throughout most of the West and for use by most large cities across the country" and adequate soil moisture from past or recent rains except in the South and Southwest.

ENOUGH IN DETROIT

Among cities with a favorable outlook for water this summer are Boston—with almost two years supply on reservoirs—New York, Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Detroit, Louisville, Shreveport, Memphis, St.Louis, Milwaukee, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Some cities face possible shortages and restrictions before summer's end. This list includes several communities in Massachusetts, Baltimore and Baton Rouge, La.

★ ★ ★

Even the Potomac River, whose flow ebbed to near record lows in the latter part of June, perked up some last week. But the hydrologists warn that with the federal capital and suburban communities absorbing 45 per cent of the river's flow in the first week of July, more soaking rains are needed throughout the basin to see the area comfortably through the summer.

United States supply of untapped coal is estimated at about 3.2 trillion tons.

2 Can Sight Goal of Earth

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — While Apollo astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin are preparing for the all-important rocket firing to lift their moon landing craft from the moon's surface, their ultimate destination will be in sight.

A space agency official says if they look straight up through the docking rendezvous window in the top of the lander they will be able to see the earth during the first part of the rocket blast.

'Czech Reforms Indelible'

NEW YORK (AP) — Deposed Czech leader Alexander Dubcek has told a magazine interviewer the political reforms that cost him his job "cannot be erased."

The interview, by Danielle Hunnebelle, appears in the current issue of Look.

★ ★ ★

"The essential political line is still the same," Dubcek is quoted as saying. "What happened here cannot be erased."

He added: "Everything will not go on as before. We are working under other conditions. But progress unfolds spirally, and always upward; the development of a new human society cannot go backward."

★ ★ ★

Dubcek lost his job as secretary of Czechoslovakia's Communist party after the Soviet-bloc invasion of his country in August 1968. He is now chairman of the Federal Assembly.

Agricultural research over the past century has produced scores of far-reaching and diverse products. Among them: commercial penicillin, wash and wear cottons, concentrated fruit juices, faster growing pine trees and air-pollution detectors.

Proper Name Is the Best Way, Advice Offered

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband's father is living with a lovely woman who is not free to marry him. How does one introduce them without embarrassment to anyone? We have always said, "I would like you to meet Dad and his wife Mary." The problem could be easily solved if we referred to them as Mr. and Mrs., but we feel that this is wrong. — Mrs. X.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mrs. X.: The only correct introduction is her own name — with no further explanation. If she is as lovely as you say, her manner and dignity will forestall questions and criticism.

OFFERS SEAT

Dear Mrs. Post: You'll never believe this, but while my mother and I were standing on a crowded train, someone tapped my arm. A boy I know who was sitting next to his father offered me his seat. I felt that my mother should have the seat, though it was obviously intended for me. I thanked him kindly and somewhat awkwardly (I felt) and turned him down. What should I have done? — Sue.

★ ★ ★

Dear Sue: It is hard to believe, but so nice to read! You were right in refusing to sit down while your mother remained standing. The best answer would have been, "Thanks so much but I think my mother needs a seat more than I do." He really should have offered her the seat first, in any case.

★ ★ ★

However, if you felt that the above remark would have embarrassed him — or your mother — you did the next best thing by turning down his offer.

Mother is taking the teacher training course in Montessori methods which is using the facilities of the center this year. The youngsters are enrolled in the school two days a week during the summer. With twins younger and two other children older than these two, Dorothy Feaheny has plenty of pupils with which to practice teaching at home.

Adult Teachers Play, Too

Name of 'Game' Is Montessori

By JANET ODELL
Women's Editor, The Pontiac Press

Getting down on the floor and playing with toys is part of the daily schedule for 19 women and one man. These individuals, in their fourth week of a training program, are studying to be teachers of the Montessori Method.

The first such training program in Michigan is using the facilities of the Laurel Montessori Center on Airport Road. David R. Weinberg is the director.

After six weeks of lectures, discussions, observation and reading, many of the group will go on as interns for nine months in Montessori schools before becoming certified teachers. Others are taking the summer program to help them with jobs they already have, teaching the under-privileged or the handicapped.

Over 60 years ago, Italian-born Maria Montessori originated her principles of programmed learning in a prepared environment. She believed it important for the children from three to six to learn "ground rules of human behaviour."

It is a highly individualized program that teaches self-discipline. Contrary to many nursery school programs, the Montessori method does not stress social adjustment. Dr. Montessori did not consider it a necessary condition to the purposes of education.

The last week of the training course will be devoted to an Orff Music workshop. Carl Orff, a German opera composer and teacher, believes in encouraging children to make their own music. He uses instruments, speech training for sound and rhythm and emphasis on improvisation.

Two Catholic nuns on scholarships will put their training to work in Detroit's inner city. One woman from Vermont is sponsored by WIN, a work incentive program. The students come mainly from Michigan, with two from Canada and most of the rest from nearby states.

We asked Mr. Weinberg what hints we could pass on to mothers of preschoolers; things they can do to help children develop. Both he and Mrs. Weinberg who is the demonstration teacher during the twice-weekly observation sessions, stress consistency. They also stress making clean-up and putting away as much a part of playing as the actual activity.

Other suggestions are:

- Arrange the child's room in an orderly way with everything in the same place very day.
- Limit toys and games to a workable number.
- Show the child how. Be careful to show each step in a way that the child can repeat it after the adult is finished.
- Show without speaking. This frees the child to watch what the adult does and not watch his mouth.

After observing the group of preschoolers for about an hour, we wandered around the bright orderly room, looking over the equipment. We had been impressed with the fact that as soon as a child was through with something, he put it away without being told.

USE TRAYS

All of the equipment is on trays which makes it easy to carry. Any of the following could be assembled by parents with little or no expense.

- Three empty saucers and a dish of beads in three colors.
- Two empty cups and a dish of beans in two colors. Both of these are for sorting. We watched one youngster do this six or eight times in a row before he tired and got out something else.
- Two plastic pitchers with about half a cup of rice in one. The youngest student, a girl about two-and-a half, poured the rice back and forth, back and forth for about 10 minutes. She carefully picked up the few grains of rice she had spilled each time.
- Two small glass or plastic pitchers, one half full of water for pouring.
- A basket full of squares of material. There were two of each kind for the children to match. They are smooth, shiny, rough, soft, etc. This develops the sense of touch.

A few of the 61 suggestions offered by Weinberg include walking on a two by four or climbing up and down a step ladder; washing and cutting fruit or vegetables; sorting and manipulating screws; polishing, mopping and dusting; thinking of words that rhyme; raking and shoveling and digging.

Most of us underestimate the abilities of young children. And many are impatient. Others can't be bothered to let children do things slowly, awkwardly and sometimes with rather disastrous results.

But seeing what youngsters can do in a controlled environment makes me almost wish my two were young again. Almost . . .

This young moppet is so busy concentrating on getting the right plug in the right hole that she completely ignores the photographer. She is two and a half years old.

Washing one's hands is serious business. A set-up like this would be easy to duplicate at home. There's a large plastic pail under the table for waste water and paper towels nearby for wiping. Showing the children how to wash their hands is part of their training.

Tell Them Your Decision or Take Risk of Damages

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently moved into a very nice, one-bedroom apartment which we furnished ourselves.

Last evening some neighbors we hardly know stopped by for a drink, and the woman said, "You said you were going away on a two-week vacation in September, so would you mind if we used your apartment for some friends who will be visiting us at that time?"

Before I could open my mouth, my husband said yes (after two martinis). I could have brained him.

After they left I told my husband I didn't want strangers using our apartment, and I didn't feel I owed our neighbors that kind of favor.

My husband says he thinks I'm right, and now he's sorry he said yes, but he hasn't the guts to tell them we've changed our minds. Well, I haven't got the guts to tell them either, but I don't want to turn this apartment over to strangers, so what do you suggest?

STUCK

DEAR STUCK: People without "guts" are frequently stuck. Your husband should tell your neighbors you've reconsidered. But if he can't gather the "guts," you must. The alternative is to let them come and take your chances.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: For the past year I have had a very good cleaning woman once a week. Recently she mentioned to me that one family she works for on a similar basis pays her when they go on their vacation even though she doesn't do anything for them while they are away.

Is this customary? And why do you think she mentioned it?

OAK PARK

DEAR OAK: No, it's not customary, but it's good insurance against losing a valued employe. And she probably mentioned it to you because she hoped you'd take the hint.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: May a tired office manager say a few words to job hunters?

For the past week I have been interviewing girls for the job of "typist" in an office, and I am absolutely amazed at what I have seen and heard.

One girl applied for the job in capri pants, sneakers, and carrying her poodle. Another came in faded jeans with her hair in great big rollers! One even came in a see-through blouse. And she had a cigaret in her mouth the whole time.

Some women have the attitude that they are doing you a favor just offering themselves for employment. Others don't seem to care whether they get the job or not.

The help wanted ad in the newspaper stated the hours, typing speed, and all the details of the job, and you'd be surprised at the number of girls who didn't want to work "those hours," and so help me, some said they couldn't type! Now, why did they bother to apply?

AMAZED

DEAR AMAZED: Because, believe it or not, some people apply for a job hoping they won't get it.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: To "HER MOM," who was heartsick because her daughter confessed that she was pregnant, and all the elaborate plans for a lovely church wedding had to be canceled.

Our daughter had the same problem, but she solved it another way. She went ahead and had the big church wedding as scheduled, and after 10 years of a childless marriage, we learned the truth.

Not wishing to disappoint their parents and cause a scandal, she and the boy she loved decided on an illegal abortion.

Mom, be glad your daughter had enough faith in you to confide. I know how heartsick you were to have to cancel all those wedding plans. I can also imagine how embarrassed you felt before your friends and relatives. But please, don't hold it against your child. Forgive her. You'll be glad you did.

Edith Gerhard Weds David Wacker

MRS. DAVID E. WACKER

Gowned in lace over taffeta, Edith Davey Gerhard repeated vows with Boiler Technician 2.C. David Edward Wacker in Christ Church Cranbrook Saturday. She carried roses and Stephanotis.

He is the son of the Leonard Krausses of Detroit. Miss Forsythe is a senior at the University of Michgan, her fiance's alma mater.

Two Couples Repeat Vows During Rites

Chapdelaine-Yost

Mary Frances Yost, became the bride of Radioman 2.C. William K. Chapdelaine, USN, at a wedding ceremony recently in St. Michael's Catholic Church.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter F. Yost of Plymouth chose a gown of Lutesong satin trimmed with Venetian lace. She carried a bridal bouquet of Stephanotis, roses and daisies.

Honor attendants for the couple were Anne Laessle and Paul G. Chapdelaine, the groom's brother. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Chapdelaine of Edison Street.

Following a wedding reception at Holiday Inn, the couple left on a honeymoon trip to northern Michigan. They will be at home in Puerto Rico, where the bridegroom is stationed.

$600 Dresses the Issue

Dirksen Is Feeling Backlash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen thought he made a good point in advocating a pay increase for Vice President Spiro T. Agnew when he said Mrs. Agnew has to spend $600 for party dresses she can only wear a few times.

* * *

But the Senate Republican leader ruefully admitted Monday he's been "catching hell" for his remarks since making them at a news conference last week.

* * *

Dirksen had said, in advocating a salary increase from $43,000 to $62,500 for the vice president, that Agnew is "hurting financially."

U * *

As an example, he said Mrs. Agnew could only wear a party dress to fancy parties two or three times, then had to go out and buy a new one for $500 or $600.

* * *

"I don't know why I ever said that," said Dirksen. "I have been catching hell for it. My mail is full of letters from women who say they don't pay $600 for a dress."

* * *

He's also got the word from Mrs. Agnew.

"Judy has sort of denied she pays $600 for a dress," he said. "I wish I hadn't said it."

Karen Brockie, Thomas Rohrer Exchange Vows

Mrs. Emile B. Sauve Jr. and Frederick Rohrer stood as honor attendants at the marriage of their sister and brother, Karen Louise Brockie and Thomas William Rohrer.

The newlyweds received guests in the church parlors of Central United Methodist Church folowing the Saturday afternoon ceremony.

* * *

The bride's gown of Italian organza featured daisy and seed pearl accents. Her rose bouquet had an orchid center.

Longevity Recipe

NEW YORK (AP) — Early to bed is the recipe for longevity given by Mrs. Charlotte Geissler as she celebrated her 105th birthday at a nursing home here. "I've always gone to bed early," she points out, "and I never smoked or drank alcoholic beverages." She is proud of the fact that she voted until she was 100.

Flower Talk

THE VIRGINIA DAY FLOWER

The Virginia Day Flower, which is officially called the Commelina Virginica, is named for the early Dutch botanists, Kasper and Jan Commelijin. These two men devoted most of their life to the study of plants and flowers. They loved flowers and did all they could in the study of different types of flowers.

The lovely flowers are found in damp shady places from southern New York south and west to Missouri. The plant is erect, stout stemmed, and grows two to three feet high. It is the most common of the spiderwort family.

We too love flowers and give each arrangement our own personal touch.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I literally "eat" each and every word you write. Do you have any idea what an inspiration you are to those of us who try to do our own sewing?

I really goofed this time. I forgot that you suggested not using the fold line of the fabric for any section of our garment that will show. I didn't refold my fabric as you told us to do and now I have a crease that simply won't come out marching right down the center front of my dress. Please come to my rescue and help save a dress that just reeks "homemade."

Mrs. S. N.

Dear Mrs. S. N.

Happily, there are some ideas you may use and perhaps they will give your dress so much more zip that you'll be happy you goofed. You didn't mention the type of fabric you used so I shall give you several ideas. First, you could use one of the marvelous striped grosgrain ribbons straight down the front, perhaps also using the same ribbon for a belt. If the fabric is a solid color, you could use any of a variety of embroidered edgings, some of the very newest looks are achieved by using a band of heavily embroidered cotton lace about three-four inches wide as a decorative trim down the center front of your dress.

This could be repeated at the hem. If you desire, you can place the lace edging at the hem so that the lower edge of the lace comes at the exact finished edge of your dress. After the lace has been secured, cut away the fabric from behind the lace and you'll have the very newest "see-through" look!

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. Mildred L. White, San Diego, California, is this week's winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her following suggestion.

"After completing an A-line skirt with a bias band for the waistline instead of the conventional type waistband, I found that the waist was too large. I was determined not to remove the band, I proceeded to use a large darning or needlepoint needle, threaded the small round elastic through my needle and ran it through the bias band. Two rows of elastic could be used if more strength is needed. The elastic has eased the waistband to the right size and is actually the best fitting skirt I have. No matter how my waistline fluctuates monthly, my skirt fits—what joy!

Dear Mrs. Farmer:

I know you hate to repeat questions, but I am one of your readers who have never before made a dress with a fitted bodice because I was encouraged to learn to sew when all the styles were perfectly straight with no fitting through the bodice.

* * *

My first venture with a shirtwaist dress has almost made me give up sewing. I have a large rib cage and when I put the darts in the bodice for a fitted look, it is not the least bit flattering. This might be my problem from now on so please give me some workable answer.

Mrs. S. K.

Dear Mrs. S. K.:

For those of you who do have this kind of figure, please clip this column for future reference since I cannot repeat the some question very often.

When you select a pattern that has a fitted bodice with a waistline seam, it is better to look for a pattern that has a dart at the side seam as well as one under the bustline for fitting. If there is only one dart in the pattern, it would be too large to eliminate.

* * *

You will proceed by making the dart at the side seam but eliminate the dart under the bust. Instead of the dart, you could make one or two small unpressed tucks or simply gather the section under the bust using the same amount of fabric that you would have taken up in the dart. You will have almost the same effect but a slightly softer bodice that won't call attention to the large rib cage.

* * *

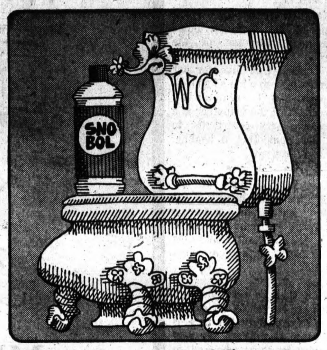
If you have a problem with sleeves, send for the booklet "All About Sleeves." It gives you detailed directions on setting in a sleeve so that it hangs correctly with that molded look. Please include 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request and mail it to Eunice Farmer in care of The Pontiac Press, Dept. E-600, P.O. Box 9, Pontiac, Mich. 48056.

Karen J. Alexander Is Engaged

The betrothal and late August wedding plans of Karen Jean Alexander and David M. Kent are announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Alexander of Schoolhouse Drive. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. James Kent of Houghton.

The bride-elect attends Michigan State University, her fiance's alma mater.

At the beginning of this year, the Institute of Life Insurance reports, 42.9 million persons were enrolled in some type of retirement program other than Social Security.



A nickel's worth of Sno-Bol sanitizes, deodorizes and removes rust stains from your you-know-what.

General purpose cleaners are fine for most jobs. But not for cleaning toilet bowls. They don't deodorize, sanitize, and remove rust stains like Sno-Bol.

Liquid Sno-Bol cleans in seconds while it deodorizes and sanitizes. It's faster and more efficient than any dry bowl cleaner. You can pour Sno-Bol full strength to remove rust stains and calcium deposits. And it works better and costs less than other leading bowl cleaners.

Mace Users Apologize

ALBION (AP) — Albion police Monday apologized to wedding guests whom they maced Saturday in an attempt to arrest an 18-year-old at the wedding.

* * *

The police used Mace on the crowd when they tried to clear the site of the wedding reception, the Parker Inn, because of difficulty in arresting Marcus Ware, 18.

* * *

The trouble began when police tried to arrest Ware at the wedding reception. Ware was a guest there and was wanted on an assault and battery charge.

* * *

A brawl started and moved to the Parker Inn, and police said they had no choice but to use Mace to clear the hall.

FIVE ARRESTS

Two policemen and two civilians were treated for injuries and released. Five adults, including the father of the bride, were arrested on charges ranging from obstructing a police officer to possession of numbers slips.

Sisters' Scooter a 'Yellow Peril'

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — There is no need for Sister Teresa Margaret to sound the warning bell of a battery-operated scooter she rides over the eight miles of corridors at St. Mary-Corwin Hospital here. Soft trills of laughter usually signal her approach.

"The Yellow Peril" is the nickname given the scooter operated by the Sisters of charity director of nursing service as she cruises the six floors of the hospital. The yellow scooter travels at 2-4 miles per hour.

There's a Rug for Every Room

Dramatic accent for a cozy fireplace setting is a whimsical area rug designed by Dorothy Liebes exclusively for Bigelow-Sanford, Inc. Called "Floral Wheel" it is a circle of blue, red, and white flowers spinning against a moss green ground. From the new Lo Ronde collection of round area rugs, available in any size, any colors. The charming rug is set off by an elegant expanse of wall-to-wall carpeting in a rich shade called "Martini." Line available locally.

Imaginative designer, Paul Krauss has conquered space and created a room to function twelve months of the year. The once summer-only porch was winterized, furnished with airy furniture and carpeted in Bigelow's "Richleigh" green carpeting to retain the outdoor effect. For the exclamation point in the room, Mr. Krauss selected the handsome textured area rug "Escalier," also by Bigelow-Sanford, Inc.

Baste and barbecue without fear of spills and splashes with this new area rug underfoot. Part of a new collection of geometric patterns by Regal Rugs, Inc., the rug is named "Maze" and features a tufted design of Herculon on a woven backing of the same olefin fiber. The rugs are stain-repellent, moisture-resistant and mildew-proof. Line available locally.

New Image for Volunteers

In an effort to revitalize America's pioneering spirit, the Oakland County Volunteer Bureau has launched a new image of the volunteer sector. Citizenry seeking involvement in social concerns will now be entering into "Community Careers."

The new public theme was designed by Mrs. Geraldine Clemmons, Director of the Bureau. "We wish to re-create the original true love for our country by emphasizing, through a "Community Career," that the volunteer is a very necessary contributor to the development of a healthy, dynamic society.

* * *

Today, more than at any other time in this history of our nation, men and women volunteers are being recognized as a very important asset in the entire panorama of community services."

* * *

The Oakland County Volunteer Bureau, a division of United Community Services, is geared to establish a sense of direction for those who wish to contribute to healthy community relations.

* * *

In effect, the Bureau officially represents all health, social welfare agencies; hospitals; County, State, Federal government agencies; the broad field of education; character building agencies; recreational and cultural institutions.

* * *

Volunteers may select a "Community Career" by designating the preferred area of interest encompassing Education; Crime and Delinquency; Human Rights-Urban Programs; Human Relations; Mental Health; American Red Cross; General Office; Medical Hospitals and Nursing Homes.

The Bureau, located at 231 South Woodward, Birmingham serves all of Oakland County and Metropolitan Detroit. Office hours are 8:30 to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Polly's Pointers

Makes Ideal Holder

DEAR POLLY — I love house plants which I always had scattered on window sills throughout the house. My kids no longer used their saucer sled so I have put it to excellent use. I bought it into the house, painted it white inside and out, then spray-painted sparingly with gold for an antique look, filled it with sand.

* * *

I then arranged my potted plants in it. The taller one are in the center and the shorter ones around the edges. The sand absorbs the drain water from the pots. — PLANT LOVER

PLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — My daughter and son-in-law, who have several almost-new sets of no-iron double-sized bedsheets, have just bought a king-sized bed so I would like to know if there is any way I can make over the sheets they have (only used twice) as they were rather expensive.

* * *

They also have a quilted striped bedspread. I hope some of the readers can give me some ideas other than buying new sheets and bedspread. — ROSE

* * *

DEAR POLLY—When Donna is opening a small can of juice she should make a slit in the top instead of cuting out the whole top. Lots of razor blades can then be dropped into the empty can where they will stay until the can is full.

* * *

If kept where it can be seen, the can's looks can be improved by covering it with pretty adhesive-backed paper. When full, just throw it away and there is no danger of a child getting into the can. — MRS. E.L.R.

Female Justice of the Peace Completing Mate's Term

MARBLE FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Using the knowledge gained in observing her late husband at work, Mrs. C. B. Wall is completing his four-year term as Justice of the Peace.

"But observing and accepting full responsibility are two different things," she says. "People have been most helpful and I have found that almost everyone in assuming such a job started just as I have had to . . . with experience as their teacher."

★ ★ ★

When Judge Tom O'Donnell asked her to fill the term, she weighed the responsibilities connected with the position for some time before deciding her husband would have wanted her to accept the remainder of his term, nearly two more years.

Auto Inspector Paid to Be Fussy

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — Mrs. Barbara Short of Littleton is the "Fussy Lady Inspector" for a motor car agency here. She gives last minute inspections to all new cars just before they go to buyers.

She "fusses" about tiny squeaks, rattles, stains on the floor mats, loose bolts or anything else she can find which she considers unsatisfactory. The conditions are corrected before the buyer drives out with his car.

Slain Kenya Leader Feared for His Life

NEW YORK (AP) — American friends of Tom Mboya say he told them four months before he was shot down in Nairobi, Kenya, July 5 that he feared an attempt on his life.

Mboya, on his last visit to the United States in March, said he thought political enemies wanted him out of the way as a possible successor to Kenyan President Jomo F. Kenyatta.

The 38-year-old Mboya, Kenya's minister of economic planning and development, revealed his fears at the home of businessman Robert Gabor in Great Neck, N.Y. Two other friends, real estate executive Frank C. Montero and stock analyst William X. Scheinman, were present.

"I'll never forget it," Montero said Tuesday. "I was sitting directly opposite him and I had the distinct feeling that I had never seen him more apprehensive or concerned. He was embarrassed to be showing his feelings."

A few days after he left the United States, Mboya wrote Scheinman from Uganda and said his enemies were getting "nervous and desperate." He added: "An attempt is obviously to be made to precipitate a crisis—and maybe an army coup! Security will become more urgent now—things have started."

Here's a Diet That Can't Lose

3 Meals, 3 Snacks and Plenty of Beer

LONDON (UPI) — So you need a diet? How about this one:

Breakfast—oatmeal with plenty of milk and sugar. Bacon and eggs (or sausages and kidneys). Toast with marmalade or honey.

Morning break—pint of milk with buttered toast.

★ ★ ★

Lunch—thick soup, roast meat with potatoes and vegetables, rice pudding, cheese and biscuits.

Afternoon break—tea and sugar with cakes or biscuits.

★ ★ ★

Dinner—hors d'oeuvres, fish and French-fried potatoes, apple pie, cheese and biscuits and a glass of stout.

AND THEN . . .

And finish the day with milk and a sandwich for a nightcap.

How much weight will you lose? Absolutely none. Dr. Robert Kemp hopes, in fact, that it will add a few pounds for this is a diet for that forgotten group who are too thin. Yes, there are plenty of them around.

★ ★ ★

In a new booklet, "So You Need a Diet?" published by the British Medial Association, Dr. Kemp says it is just as hard, if not harder, to put on weight if you are constitutionally lean than it is to take it off if you are the well-covered type.

"Many lean people already possess a good appetite so that steps to increase the appetite will be ineffective," Dr. Kemp said.

PLENTY OF STOUT

"However, there may be room for a definit snack in midmorning, midafternoon and at supper time. Additional milk in the shape of two or three pints a day is sometimes very effective. So, for that matter is the same amount of beer or stout . . . an increase in bread and other starchy foods such as rice and cereals could be safely advised."

★ ★ ★

Dr. Kemp's booklet stresses the importance of choosing the right diet for specific aims (such as reducing, heart disease, arterial trouble, etc.). He says that many of the changes thought to be due to old age are in reality due to a poor diet.

★ ★ ★

"It has long been said," he went on, "that a man is as old as his arteries and, in the normal course of events as we grow older, our arteries become less elastic and more rigid. Nevertheless with good management they can last up to 100 years."

Decision Due in Conflict of Interest Case

Conflict of interest must be waived by the board of supervisors at its meeting tomorrow in order for the low bid on the county's proposed $2.3-million service center building to be awarded.

Supervisor Christian F. Powell, R-West Bloomfield, is the brother of the contractor and a vice president and director of the company in which he is a minority stockholder.

If the supervisors fail to waive the conflict of interest concerning Powell, the costs for the service center building could go up $44,000, the difference between the Powell company's bid and the next low bidder, Collenson Construction Co. of Midland.

$2-MILLION LIMIT

Collenson bid $2,136,000 on the project. The Powell bid was $2,092,000.

An additional $300,000 will have to be appropriated for the service center which will house the DPW, drain commission and service faeilities and operations department. The board set a limit of $2 million on the project earlier this year.

★ ★ ★

Establishment of a $500,000 revolving fund for the road commission to finance construction and improvements in subdivision roads in townships in the county is also expected to be acted on tomorrow by the supervisors.

The $500,000 would have to come out of the county's unappropriated nontax revenues at year's end, if approved by the supervisors.

★ ★ ★

The revolving fund, if established, would allow immediate financing for badly needed subdivision road improvements in townships this year.

Large Bull Ant Blamed in Crash That Kills Cleric

MELBOURNE (AP) — A large ant led to a car crash that killed a clergyman, Melbourne City Coroner's Court was told Tuesday.

Two cars collided after a woman driver brushed the ant from the collar of the clergyman who was her passenger. Coroner Harold W. Pascoe found that the Rev. Charles Lewis Greenwood, 77, died by misadventure, adding: "This matter was understandable but not excusable."

★ ★ ★

The woman, Louise Doubikin, in a statement read at the hearing, said she saw a bull ant moving along the Rev. Mr. Greenwood's collar toward his neck, looked away from the road to remove it, and crashed.

Fire Marshal's Office Unsafe

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — State Fire Marshal Arthur Ramey told newsmen Tuesday that 300 of about 800 state buildings do not meet fire safety standards —then found out that one hazard was the roof over his head.

Ramey had said combustible ceiling material is the most widespread fire hazard.

★ ★ ★

A photographer asked about the ceiling in Ramey's office, rented recently from a private owner in downtown Topeka.

Ramey took a knife, extracted a sample from a ceiling tile, and touched a flame to it. It went up in flames.

Ramey expressed amazement and chagrin, but noted that the room has an automatic sprinkler.

$750 Theft at City Home

A city man told police last night thieves entered his home yesterday afternoon and made off with several items valued at more than $750.

Dannie H. Campbell of 216 Central said a portable television, a tape deck, two human-hair wigs and a woman's fox-collar coat were taken.

★ ★ ★

War on Foundations Shortsighted at Best

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.
Executive Director, National Urban League

YOUNG

At this time, when we hear so much about how important it is for the private sector to become involved in voluntary efforts, a major attack has been launched on organizations doing just that.

Proposed changes in the tax laws include provisions that could just about wipe out any meaningful work for social progress by foundations.

The proposals include: a 5 percent tax on foundation income, a ban on voter education programs, and a ban on attempts to influence government decisions. There are others, too, but these are the most damaging.

The proposed tax on income would yield only about $60 million and probably cost more to collect than it would bring in. But schools, hospitals, and other beneficiaries of foundation grants would feel the pinch. And the government would probably have to spend even more money to take up the slack caused by reduced foundation support of such institutions.

The ban on voter education drives is totally unjustified. The creation of an informed electorate and the education of citizens to get them to register and vote is something the government itself should be doing. Instead, it's been left to foundations to support such projects.

ACTIVE INTEREST

A democracy can only survive if its citizens take an active interest in political questions and vote.

Stopping the foundations from such activities can only increase voter apathy and nonparticipation. And it might even lead some to believe that social change can't be accomplished by the ballot.

Preventing foundations from "influencing government decisions" is also ridiculous. It's so vague that it can be interpreted to mean that a foundation couldn't sponsor a meeting on a social problem, for fear that a government official may attend and be "influenced."

Internal Rvenue regulations already on the books stop foundations from lobbying openly or giving their support to those whose major efforts are overtly political. Simple enforcement of these is enough to stop whatever abuses exist.

OTHER ABUSES

Other abuses, such as creation of private foundations as a tax dodge for the wealthy, can easily be handled by whatever law or regulation is required. And the foundations themselves have proposed that a new office be set up to regulate such activity.

But if the new law isn't aimed at the minor abuses that may exist by some fringe foundations, why has it been proposed?

It appears to be a politically inspired effort to punish foundations for their newly discovered interest in racial and urban problems.

Several foundations have pioneered in voter registration drives among black people in urban centers and in the South. They've also supopted civil rights groups and others interested in making democracy work.

So the word has gone out among the backlashers: Punish the foundations. But the real loser is the country.

West's Odd-yssey

Timetable of a Trip

The Lighter Site
By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — During the past fortnight, it fell my lot to make a cross-country drive in the company of a middle-aged woman, a teen-aged girl, a 7-year-old boy and a 1-year-old baby.

WEST

You might think that the stomachs, kidneys and somnolent habits of a group as diverse as this would be wildly uncoordinated. But such was not the caes.

★ ★ ★

It all blended into a rhythmic pattern which worked out something like this:

8 a.m.—Begin journey.

8:11 a.m.—Baby becomes fretful.

SHE'S TRYING

8:15 a.m.—Woman starts trying to get baby to sleep.

9 a.m.—Baby goes to sleep.

9:04 a.m.—Boy announces he needs to go to bathroom.

★ ★ ★

9:05 a.m.—Driver berates boy for not going to bathroom before trip started. Boy claims he was prevented from doing so by driver's insistence that everyone be in car by 8 a.m. Woman verifies boy's claim.

9:06 a.m.—Stop at service station to let boy go to bathroom. Stopping of car causes baby to wake up.

RESUME JOURNEY

9:13 a.m.—Resume journey.

9:14 a.m. — Baby becomes fretful.

9:15 a.m.—Woman begins trying to get baby to sleep again.

10 a.m.—Baby goes back to sleep.

10:04 a.m.—Teen-age girl announces she is starving.

10:05 a.m. — Driver berates girl for not eating breakfast before trip began. Girl claims she was prevented from doing this by driver's insistence that everyone be in car by 8 a.m. Woman verifies girl's claim.

FINALLY, FOOD

10:08 a.m.—Stop at drive-in restaurant to let girl get cheeseburger for breakfast. Stopping of car causes baby to wake up.

10:23 a.m.—Resume journey.

10:24 a.m.—Baby becomes fretful.

10:25 a.m. — Woman begins trying to get baby to sleep.

11 a.m.—Baby goes to sleep.

11:04 a.m.—Boy announces he is dying of thirst.

BABY UP AGAIN

11:08 a.m. — Stop car at service station to let boy get drink of water. Stopping of car causes baby to wake up.

11:11 a.m.—Finally reach city limits and begin cross-country drive.

SHIFT IN FOCUS—Writer-director Francis Ford Coppola hails the motion picture trend from studio sets to authentic locations. Here he's shown lining up a shot, on location, for "The Rain People."

Camera Angles

Film Sets Are Out

By IRVING DESFOR
(c) Newsfeatures

Motion pictures have focused in a new direction lately, away from the artifical sets of major studios in world film centers like Hollywood and out to natural locations for authenticity and believability.

Francis Ford Coppola is one of the new wave of young film directors encouraging the trend to location shooting and he has a major new film to back up his belief . . . "The Rain People."

★ ★ ★

The film was made with a mobile movie caravan, a flexible story idea and a basic script subject to spontaneous improvisations. Moving around at random, it took four months and 20,000 miles of U. S. countryside to complete.

"It convinced me," Coppola said, "that the Hollywood-type studio which operated like a film factory is outmoded. That system is expensive, time-consuming and deals with substitutes — not originals.

AN ADDED TOUCH

"Today it is technically easier to shoot real people in real situations in real environments. To end up with something special, however, requires an added imaginative touch and camera artistry."

Evidently the 30-year-old bearded director has that extra creative touch for he revealed he will be making five more "personal" films for Warner Bros.-Seven Arts, distributors of "The Rain People."

Coppola's role as a movie impersario started very early in Detroit, his hometown. When only 8 years old, he made a film about himself from 8mm family movies. The neighborhood kids were invited to see them . . . at a fee.

While majoring in theater arts at Hofstra University, he directed plays, wrote book and lyrics for an original musical and received theatrical awards. In 1960 he went to UCLA for a Master's degree in cinema. While still a student, he wrote, directed, won a screen writing contest and spent a summer in Dublin directing a film.

BECAME WRITER

After graduation, Coppola became a screen writer for Seven Arts. With some major films among his credits, he was given the opportunity to direct a film of his own: "You're a Big Boy Now," written originally as his master's thesis at UCLA. It won an Academy Award nomination. Last year he had the experience of directing a big studio film with a multimillion-dollar budget: "Finnan's Rainbow."

"The dream of modern film maker, however," he noted, "is to make a 'personal' film on his own with complete freedom of action and expression. That's what I had in mind with 'The Rain People.' "

The story is about a distraught housewife who leaves her husband early one rainy morning and starts driving aimlessly around the country. Coppola, with his mobile movie studio caravan, was able to incorporate local color, people and events into the film story as they came across them.

"We shot as we went along," he recalled, "not knowing exactly what we were going to end up with. The acting by the cast was often spontaneous.

ENOUGH FOR TWO

"We returned with four hours of film, enough for two separate films. One could have been a look at the U. S. from a tourist's point of view. The second was a story of two human beings.

"We had to make a choice and we picked the story of two people."

Junior Editors Quiz on PAINTINGS

QUESTION: What are the different kinds of painting?

ANSWER: Once, artists had the job of picturing life realistically. Then came the camera, making realistic pictures so easily and quickly that the artist felt himself outmoded. Some artists went on making realistic pictures and many still do.

Others began to experiment with effects difficult for a camera to duplicate. The impressionists painted the fleeting, hazy effects of color and light. The surrealists tried to represent the queer world of dreams. Then came the abstractionists, who have dropped any resemblance to nature and seem content with splotches and shapes, or with something which shocks.

We asked our artist to comment. "Abstraction is a fashion," he said, "which I think both the artists and the public are getting tired of — how can one see a lot in pictures which are made to look empty?

"I would like to see artists forget about shocking anybody, turn back to nature, learn to draw beautifully and paint beautiful color. Abstractionsits have a right to paint the way they want to, but their fashion shouldn't dominate everything else. Each artist should feel free to find his or her own self-expression."

Milliken Says State Board Acting Properly on Sex Education

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken yesterday stated the State Board of Education is acting "in a responsible and satisfactory way" in its hearings on proposed sex education guidelines for public schools.

★ ★ ★

"I think the basic responsibility (for sex education) rests within the home and the parents themselves," Milliken stated at a news conference.

★ ★ ★

But too often parents fail to educate their children, Milliken said, and the public schools must assume the responsibility.

However, he warned that public hearings on the proposed guidelines must be conducted "with an attitude of civility."

DECRIES TUMULT

"You cannot arrive at the truth with hissings, boolngs and jeerings," the governor said.

On other matters, the governor:

● Supported investigations in Medicaid payments to insure that patients receive the best possible treatment.

Housing Growth

Some 26 million new housing units will be needed during the next 10 years which will need some 10 million acres of land.

● Said he had no preference "at this time" for a Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1970.

● Stated he would be "inclined" to withhold state school aid payments to school districts that practice segregation.

● Called it "reasonable to assume" that Smith, Hinchman and Grylls would be the architects of the proposed state capitol but that "the options were still open."

Thieves Busy

Over the last four years an estimated $5 million has been stolen from New York City's parking meters.

★ ★ ★

● Indicated he would veto a bill to give the State Liquor Control Commission autonomy within the Commerce Department.

Small U.S. Military Contingent Still Required in Peru

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Although Peru has ordered the American military mission to leave, the United States is expected in the near future to bring in a new, small military group to handle programs under other standing agreements.

Gift military equipment "now in the pipeline" will probably continue to arrive for the next two years, one source says. Such military assistance to Latin American countries has been terminated, but arrangements for hardware which had been prepared prior to the termination mean that shipments will continue for some time.

* * *

The United States also has in effect its agreement to provide training in the United States and Panama for Peruvian military personnel.

For these reasons, at least a small group of American military people will be required in Peru to process training applicants and to supervise handling of military equipment.

One year ago, the United States had 80 military personnel here with Army, Navy and Air Force missions, plus the embassy attaches and officers working with the Peruvian Coast and Geodetic Service.

That number had been reduced to 35 mission personnel by the start of 1969, largely because of the cuts in military assistance in Latin America.

Then on May 23, the Peruvian government ordered the military missions to leave in reprisal for U.S. suspension of credit sales of military equipment to Peru.

Following the lifting by President Nixon of the ban on military sales, Foreign Minister Gen. Edgardo Mercado said the American military missions probably could return if the United States asked.

Perils of 20th Century

Parthenon Fights to Survive

By the National Geographic Society

After 2,400 years atop one of history's most famous hills, the Acropolis in Athens, Greece's marble-columned Parthenon is struggling for survival. Its principal enemy? The 20th century.

Air pollution continues to corrode the temple's honey-colored Pendelic marble, and the vibrations produced by jet airliners flying overhead loosen the fragments of the ancient stone.

Weather adds to the deterioration. Rain and frost split the brittle marble, and dampness gnaws at the foundation.

In recent years, archeologists have offered a number of suggestions for preserving the temple. One of the most imaginative proposals calls for encasing the sanctuary within an unbreakable, air-controlled glass cage.

PHIDIAS' STATUE

For nine centuries the shrine served as Athena's temple, embracing within its tall columns Phidias' dazzling gold and ivory statue of the goddess.

★ ★ ★

Conceived by Pericles who strove to create an Athens of immortal beauty, the temple was labored over by hundreds of architects, sculptors, and artisans for 15 years. Phidias paid skilled workmen 1½-to-2 drachmas a day — about 35 cents — and occasionally fired men for slow, wasteful or imperfect work.

Despite the modest wage scale, the Parthenon, in Plutarch's words, cost "a world of money." Most of the expense was incurred in the purchase of marble, bronze, ivory, gold, ebony and cypress.

In the fifth century A. D., the temple became a Christian church; the roof was removed, and the statue taken away. Centuries later, invading Turks turned the shrine into a mosque.

POWDER EXPLOSION

The Parthenon suffered its severest damage in 1687, when a powder mazazine stored inside the temple exploded in a Venetian attack. The blast ripped out the entire central portion.

Each year some 27 million Americans are hospitalized.

Metro Trailer Use Under U.S. Average

DETROIT (UPI) — Life in a mobile home takes a backseat to the pleasures of an attic, a basement and the spaciousness of a permanent home for southeastern Michigan residents, according to a recent study.

★ ★ ★

A mobile home study prepared by TALUS (Detroit Regional Transportation and Land Use Study) revealed Monday that although the trailer life has increased substantially in the seven-county region, it remains far below that for the nation as a whole.

★ ★ ★

Statistics showed that 2.75 per cent of the U.S. population reside in mobile homes, but in southeast Michigan only 1 per cent live in trailers.

There were 22,000 thefts of truck cargoes in 1968, compared with 16,000 in 1966.

Thousands of Boy Scouts Converge on Idaho Park

FARRAGUT STATE PARK, Idaho (AP) — Tens of thousands of Boy Scouts will be on the move this week toward northern Idaho for the Seventh National Boy Scout Jamboree, while two former Scouts try to make it all the way to the moon.

Jamboree officials say they expect about 35,000 Scouts and leaders to converge on Farragut State Park for the beginning of the Jamboree on Wednesday, the day of the scheduled Apollo 11 moonshot.

If all goes well, Neil A. Armstrong—a member of the Apollo 11 crew and a former Eagle Scout—will set foot on the moon next Sunday.

Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., also a former Scout, is to join Armstrong several minutes later.

The Scouts, like millions of others throughout the world, will have an opportunity to watch the Apollo 11 flight on television.

Some may get a chance to see themselves on television as well. At least two networks plan to have crews on hand at the Jamboree to record the Scouts' views after the moon landing.

But Jamboree Scouts will not spend all their time watching television. Their seven days at Farragut will be filled with a wide range of activities—including canoeing, archery, hiking, cooking and competition in Skill-O-Ramas, such as bridge building, axmanship, folk dancing and guitar playing.

Competition in several athletic events also will be included.

The Scouts also will be encouraged to get acquainted with each other and develop ideas on how they can implement the Jamboree theme, "Building to Serve," in their daily lives.

Senators Near 2nd Place

Triple Play Only Tiger Glory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Triple plays are rare but the one the Detroit Tigers pulled on the Washington Senators—the first in the American League this year—was even rarer—and it was witnessed by President Nixon.

Unfortunately for the Tigers, the Senators got more runs Tuesday night and won 7-3 for their fourth straight victory to move within a game of third place and in striking distance of second place in the American League's East Division.

In the bottom of the fifth, the Senators had the bases loaded after scoring three runs when Detroit's Daryl Patterson was relieved by Don McMahon.

McMahon's first pitch was hit by Ed Brinkman on the ground to third baseman Don Wert, playing in close to protect against the bunt.

TWO RELAYS

Wert moved a couple of steps to third, stepped on the bag, wheeled and threw the ball to Ike Brown at second, who then relayed to first Baseman Bill Freehan to end the inning.

Detroit's Al Kaline, who has been in the major leagues since 1953, said he had never seen a triple play pulled off on a ground ball.

"I bet you can count those kind on two fingers," he said. "I've seen them on line drives and when it would be a double play but a guy tries to score and gets nailed at the plate. But I've never seen one of those.

"We are lucky the pitcher was running to second base, Kaline said. "If it had been another player, he would have taken the second baseman out on the play because Brinkman's not that slow."

Winning pitcher Barry Moore, 8-4, had singled to reach first and was the middle out in the play.

CAN'T REMEMBER

Washington Manager Ted Williams, who played for the Boston Red Sox from 1939 through 1960 except for five years in the military service, also couldn't recall a grounder starting a triple play.

"Wasn't that something," he said. "And the ball wasn't hit that hard. God, it was so easy.'

President Nixon, making his fifth trip to Robert F. Kennedy Stadium to see the Senators play, brought along astronaut Frank Borman.

★ ★ ★

Washington owner Bob Short, with whom the Presidential party sat, and Williams agreed that Nixon is "really an enthusiastic fan."

"He certainly has done a lot for baseball," Short said.

Tim Cullen of the Senators his first homer of the season, a double and a single in four trips, driving in four runs and scoring twice.

Nixon, who had his daughter Julie and her husband, David Eisenhower with him, stopped by the Senators dugout and shook hands with several of the players, before talking briefly with Williams. He also went into the umpires dressing room and signed some autographs.

Offensive Guard Is Acquired by Lions

Veteran offensive guard Leon Donohue was traded Tuesday by te Dallas Cowboys to the Detroit Lions for an undisclosed draft ctoice, the Cowboys announced.

Donohue was a starter in 1966 and 1967 when the Cowboys won the Eastern Conference title in the National Football League.

The 6-foot-4, 245-pounder was injured in 1967, underwent surgery and was out last year when he failed to recover sufficiently.

Donohue, a San Jose State graduate, is a seven-year veteran who started in the NFL with the San Francisco 49ers and went to Dallas in a 1965 trade.

Training camp opened for Lions' rookies yesterday evening and one of the top prospects to sign was Jim Yarborough, a tackle from Florida.

General Manager Russ Thomas admitted the possibility of other trades before the regular season starts.

The rookies will be working out for the remainder of the week at Cranbrook and Sunday the veterans are expected to enter camp bringing the squad to 77 by Monday's opening drills.

State Matmen Bright Spots on U.S. Team

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Michigan wrestlers have provided most of the high spots for the United States as it flounders in the Junior World Wrestling Championships in Boulder, Colo.

The Soviet Union and Bulgaria are dominating the show in Greco-Roman wrestling, with the Russians Tuesday making up for Bulgaria's roaring start Monday.

★ ★ ★

Only Doug Willer of Berkley, Mich. and Alan Thompson of Orange, Calif. scored victories for the American team, while all the winners from Monday's competition failed to repeat.

Bill Davids of Hazel Park, came from behind against Luben Choyzoupov of Bulgaria at 105 pounds, but had to settle for a tie in the last five seconds.

Another Michigan wrestler, Bernard Gonzales of Madison Heights, also made a comeback attempt, but fell to Mitsuhiro Kondo of Japan, 9-7.

Bill Eisenheimer of Madison Heights, a winner in Monday's competition, fell Tuesday to Torbjorn Gilbert of Sweden in 2:25.

Pizza, Reabe Gain Honors in Flint Meet

FLINT — George Pizza won two events and placed third in another here yesterday in the Flint Olympic Development All Comers Track and Field Meet, but Kevin Reabe continued to reap most of the honors for Pontiac area thinclads.

Competing in the junior division, Pizza won the shot put in 49-2½ and the javelin in 15-53½ and placed third in the discus.

Reabe set a new junior division meet record in the 440 by circling the Flint Northwestern oval in 49.1. He also placed second in the two-mile in 10:00.2, losing to Flint Keasley's Dave Baker (9:43.3).

This enabled Baker, who is returning to action after fracturing a leg during the indoor season—he won the Huron relays two-mile in 9:31, to edge Reabe as the outstanding junior performer in the meet.

Mike Shepherd of Ferndale won the senior 440 in 48.9 and Bobby Malone of Pontiac took the junior pole vault by clearing 13 feet, his best effort in competition.

Firebirds' Linebacker 'Just Melts'

Some like it hot!

That is, some football players like Jon Izer of the Pontiac Firebirds.

Izer, a football product from the Massilon area of Ohio who came to Pontiac three years ago to play for the Firebirds, has shed nearly 30 pounds in his weeks of football drills.

"I'm just melting away," he said, "but I like it this way."

Izer started practice with the Firebirds at 268 pounds.

ADDS POUND

"I added a pound since yesterday, 'Im up to 241, "he jested today as the Firebirds were getting ready for their Midwest Football League exhibition game Saturday night in Wisner Stadium against the Detroit Cowboys.

With Steve Szabo, the trim Pontiac Central wrestling coach, who goes 235, and the arrival of Tom Cecchini, former U. of M. captain who goes 225, the Firebirds figure they could have the best trio of linebackers in the MFL.

★ ★ ★

The speedy Cowboys will test the Firebirds, who expect to be the top contender in the Central Division of the MFL, along with Flint, Lansing and Detroit.

Game time Saturday is 7:30 p.m. and tickets can be obtained from area Eagles' lodges. State Eagles' marching units and drum corps are competing here Saturday and the winning units are slated to perform at halftime of the game.

The Firebirds open the regular season at Wisner, Saturday August 2 against the new Grand Rapids entry which is in the Central Division of the MFL.

Third 'Setback' for Racing Yacht

No. 1 Finisher Scratched From Lead

MACKINAC ISLAND (AP)— Although first across the finish line for the third year in a row, the 70-foot sloop Norsaga out of Milwaukee lost its third successive Chicago-to-Mackinac Island yacht race Tuesday on the basis of corrected time.

The Norsaga, owned by Harry Ziemann, swept across the finish line here at 3:14 a.m. Tuesday, 35 minutes ahead of the next boat in the fleet of 176 which set sail Saturday for the 333-mile haul up Lake Michigan and through the Straits of Mackinac.

The Norsaga's elapsed time was 60.4955 hours, but as the scratch boat of the race the big sloop had to give time to every other in the handicap race.

Bay Bea, another large Class A boat, posted a corrected (handicap) time of 57.7818 hours and thus appeared to have nailed down both the Class A and overall championship, although a final winner winner may not be known until today.

Boats still were strung out for many miles down Lake Michigan at 3 p.m., when only 30 of the 176 starters had arrived here.

Although finishing second, Bay Bea was given a 3-hour, 56-minute and 3-second advantage over Norsaga by handicapers, and many of the smaller boats a much greater advantage, some as much as 9-plus hours.

SLOWER RACE

The 1969 race, 71st in the series, was one of the slower ones. The record of 31 hours and 14 minutes was set in 1910 by the 108-foot schooner Amorita, but the modern record for boats limited to 73 feet or less was set last year by the Norsaga at 37 hours and 40 minutes.

Boats ran into at least three pools of calm on Lake Michigan and some were slowed by a calm which settlld over the Straits of Mackinac after the three lead boats passed early Tuesday.

★ ★ ★

Inferno, owned by James P. McHugh of Chicago, trailed Bay Bea, owned by Pat Haggerty of Dalla and sailing out of the Sturgeon Bay, Wis., Yacht Club.

Section 1 (Class A) boats with the best corrected times finishing Tuesday were:

1. Bay Bea, Sturgeon Bay, Wis., 57.7810 hours.

BACK TO EARTH — Catcher Russ Gibson of the Boston Red Sox starts back to earth after leaping high for a wild throw from the outfield in last night's second game of a doubleheader with New York. Ron Woods of the Yankees slides across home in this eighth inning action while an unidentified Boston player chases the ball. The Yanks won, 4-1, after dropping the opener, 7-2.

Oriole Hurler Backed by Run-Scoring Sprees

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles again scored a lot of runs for Tom Phoebus, but the blocky right-hander hurled a strong game in beating the Cleveland Indians 5-1 Tuesday night.

"Tom made a lot of good pitches," Manager Earl Weaver said, "and some of the hits off him were a little cheap."

While bringing his record to 9-2, Phoebus gave up eight hits including a first-inning homer by Larry Brown. Two of the subsequent hits never left the infield and another was a blooper.

The hardest hit ball was a game-opening drive by Jose Cardenal, caught by Baltimore center fielder Paul Blair on a spectacular over - the - shoulder grab at the fence.

* * *

Blair also fielded a two-out single by Brown in the fifth and threw Ken Suarez out at the plate. After that, Phoebus allowed just two hits and retired 11 batters in a row before Hawk Harrelson's infield hit with two outs in the ninth.

Twins' Dugout Needler

Special Place on Bench

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — There's no sign, but the far end of the Minnesota Twins' dugout is reserved for Bob Allison and Frank Quilici.

They can be seen at their station, giving somebody the needle or hollering encouragement.

* * *

They have been busy. The Twins have taken a big first place lead over Oakland in the American League's West Division. The Twins currently carry a six-game winning streak and have won 15 of their last 17 games.

For Allison, the holler guy role is a new one. The handsome, 6-foot-4 outfielder had been a regular for 10 seasons. Now, Manager Billy Martin platoons him to play only against left-handed pitching.

The 35-year-old Allison has appeared in 41 of the Twins' 89 games with four homers and a .242 batting average. He had 22 homers and 52 RBI last year.

"One of the reasons for our great spirit on the club this year is Allison," says Martin. "Even though he hasn't played a great deal, he's been our leading cheerleader on the bench."

Bosox' Smith Hitting .462 This Month

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Smith is whaling the daylights out of the ball at a fantastic .462 clip so far this month for the Boston Red Sox.

Only a poor start in April has kept the 24-year-old centerfielder from becoming the leading hitter in the American League. If his torrid July pace continues it appears virtually certain he will oust Rod Carew of Minnesota from the No. 1 spot.

* * *

Going into today's games Carew led the AL hitters with .358 average. Smith was second with .352.

Smith connected for six straight hits Tuesday as the Red Sox split an afternoon doubleheader with the New York Yankees before Stan Bahnsen, who won the second game for the Yankees 4-1, cooled him off in his last three times at bat.

The Sox had won the opener 7-6 thwarting a Yankee rally in the ninth by throwing out at the plate what would have been the tying run.

Third of Season

No-Hitter in City 'A' Tilt

The season's third no-hitter and a clutch relief job kept the Class A city baseball league's second-place struggle a deadlock between the R. T. Clippers and Talbott Lumber.

Gary Richardson of Talbott twirled the no-hitter as the lumbermen caught up to longtime nemesis Dick Goldsworthy of C.I.O 594 with a 3-0 triumph.

The Clippers matched Talbott's 11-6 mark when Jim Horner came in to replace struggling Bob Martin and fan the final Carl's Golfland batter to preserve a 5-4 victory.

The Clippers held a 5-0 lead after three innings but starter Santos Sanchez, who gained his first mound win of the season, tired in the fifth and Martin replaced him.

INCONSISTENT

Richardson's hitless effort was anything but a masterpiece. He walked nine batters — including one in every inning but the last when he retired the side in order — and struck out 10.

He whiffed three of the final four C.I.O. batters in dropping the unionmen out of fourth place. Craig Deaton doubled in a run in the first, and Les Littlejohn hit a solo homer in the second to tie for the loop lead. Both of his circuit clouts have come in the last five days.

The victory is Richardson's fifth in six starts. He now has 60 strikeouts to rank second in the circuit.

Heavy Runmaking in Junior Baseball

The pitchers benefitted from some heavy runmaking Tuesday in the city junior baseball program.

Eight of the 12 winning teams managed 10 or more runs and one losing team, the Optimists' Widget International unit, posted 11 tallies in defeat.

Two of the more lopsided games occurred in Class E where the combination of stingy pitching and heavy scoring resulted in both games being called after five innings.

NEARLY PERFECT

Dave Trevino of the Optimist missed a perfect game when Doug Ball of the Auburn Heights Boys' Club No. 2 team singled with one out in the fifth inning of the Optimists' 10-0 victory.

Rusty Martin also tossed a one-hitter but had some errors behind him in a 15-1 victory for the Eagles Lodge 1230 over Darnell's Collision.

A five-inning no-hitter was recorded by Bryan Wilson of the Met Club Yankees in Widget National play. He also homered in the 11-6 win over the Pontiac Police. Jack Adams hit a round-tripper to give the Optimist a 3-2 win over Aladdin Vending.

CLASS D DUEL

In a key Class D contest, Mike Prince's bases-loaded single in the eighth inning handed the F.O.P. Yankees a 7-6 win over Rochester in a battle for second place.

Pitcher Doug Gaines of McCullough Realty blasted a three-run homer and three singles for four other runs batted in while holding off Elmer's Ashland, 16-9, in the other "D" activity.

Willard Leads Trans-Miss

Match Play Starts in Golf Tournament

DENVER (AP) — Brain Willard, who admits he has never won anything of importance, will attempt to remain the top man today as match play begins in the Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament.

The former University of Maryland golfer from Hyattsville, Md., won medalist honors Tuesday in leading 63 golfers in qualifying for the final round.

* * *

The 21-year-old Willard carded a 36-hole total of 140, two shots ahead of runnersup Alan Miller of Pensacola, Fla., and Warren Simmons, an instructor at the Air Force Academy near Colorado Springs.

Ed Hopkins, last year's runnerup from Dallas, finished with a 150.

NOT COMPETING

The defending champion, Bill Hyndman of Philadelphia, was not able to make the tournament this year so he was replaced by Bob Clark, the NCAA champion from California State at Los Angeles.

Odom's Arm, Bat Lead Kansas City Win

SEATTLE (AP) — John "Blue Moon" Odom lashed a three-run homer and pitched the Oakland Athletics to a 6-2 victory over the Seattle Pilots Tuesday night.

Odom's homer capped a five-run Oakland rally in the sixth inning and wiped out a 2-0 Seattle lead built on Don Mincher's 15th homer of the year.

Session in Royal Oak

Baseball Clinic Slated

Young baseball players from ages 10-17 will have an opportunity to improve their skills in August when the Major League Baseball Players Association will hold a baseball clinic in Royal Oak at Woodward and 13 Mile.

This year, the clinic is taking a departure from past programs where major league players merely demonstrated their skills by having the pros watch the youngsters in action and then offer them suggestions.

FOUR GROUPS

Players will be classified as pitchers, catchers, infielders, and outfielders, and will be separated into two age groups: 10-13, and 14-17.

Among the major leaguers to be present will be ex-Tiger Hal Newhouser and 20-game winner Ray Herbert.

For three sessions, the younger group will pay $25 and the older players will pay $30.

The clinic in Royal Oak is one of five in the Detroit area under the sponsorship of Sports Promotion Inc. Others are in Livonia, Roseville, Detroit and Wyandotte.

Teen-Age Golf Queen Makes Study Plans

OAK PARK, Ill. (AP) — A teen-ager who would like to become a veterinarian is stealing the limelight at the Women's Western Amateur Golf Tournament.

"We live on a 58-acre farm near New Castle, Pa., and I've been riding and loving horses since I was 3 years old," says Mary Jane Fassinger, at 17 the youngest player in the field.

* * *

"I would like to become a veterinarian and I'm going to start in that direction by majoring in biology when I enter Sweetbriar College in Virginia this fall."

The attractive blonde is seeking to become the first player in the history of women's western golf to win the Western Junior one year and the prestigious Amateur the next.

She captured the junior crown last fall at Lake Geneva, Wis., and was only two over par for the tough Oak Park Country Club course in trouncing Sharon Klump of Sylvania, Ohio, 5 and 4 in Tuesday's Opening round.

Penn's Rowing Coach Retires After 19 Years

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Burke, one of the most successful and inventive coaches in college rowing has resigned from his post at Penn after 19 years, The Associated Press learned Tuesday night.

The 55-year-old Burk retires at the peak of his career as a crew coach. His Penn boats won the last three Intercollegiate Rowing Association titles on Lake Onondaga in Syracuse.

NAMATH'S REPLACEMENT — Babe Parilli, who is currently replacing Joe Namath as the New York Jets' quarterback, poses in front of a picture of the 'retired' Super Bowl hero in the Jets' Hemstead, N.Y., training camp. "I hope for the team's sake Joe comes back," said Parilli. "If he doesn't, this will be my biggest challenge."

Miss Lauer Running Out of Challengers

Until another challenger comes along, 18-year-old Bonnie Lauer of Edgewood County Club will probably be in the favorite's role for most every tournament in the Women's District or amateur play this season.

A 15-year-old golfer, Pat Young, of Meadowbrook, will be first to concede this. Miss Young played par golf in the 53rd Women's State Close Championship at Dearborn yesterday, but Miss Lauer still took a 3-2 match play decision.

ANOTHER FAVORITE

Another favorite in the tournament, Nancy Patch of Farmington, played par golf in defeating Mrs. T. H. Guething of Orchard Lake, 7-6, while Mrs. John Hume Jr., the 1942 champion easily eliminated one of the top players in the WMGA, Mrs. Max Evans, 8-6.

Recent University of Miami (Fla.) graduate Janice Elias of Grand Rapids won a big match in ousting Mrs. Keith LeClair of Barton Hills, 3-2, while another ex-Champ Mrs. H. G. Marquardt of Gowanie solidly defeated Mrs. Robert McKee of CC of Detroit, 5-4.

Susan Barle of Indianwood trimmed ex-Pontiac city champion Mrs. Chris Miller of Farmington, 9-7, while Orchard Lake's Mrs. W. L. Mosher won over Mrs. K. C. Martens of Meadowbrook, 3-2.

Match play continued today at Dearborn CC.

Big Doubleheader Tonight

Top City Slowpitch Teams Win

Three of the top four Class A American League men's slowpitch softball teams posted wins last night as warmups for the big city league doubleheaders showdown this evening involving all four of them at Northside Park.

The city's top team, Conn's Clothes, embossed its record to 17-1 with an 18-2 romp over Miracle Lounge. J. A. Fredman (15-3) tied for the runner-up spot by trimming Designers Cabinet Shop, 13-5.

The night's best game found fourth-place Local 596 pulling out a 4-3 triumph with a three-run seventh inning against Oxford Mattress. The union tangles with Fredman's tonight after Conn's attempts to avenge its lone defeat in a 7 p.m. meeting with The Pontiac Press.

Tuesday's results included two surprises in the B League. Pontiac Piston came from behind twice to upset National loop leader Peterson's Beauty Salon, 5-3; while the Press' B unit (4-10) stunned Eagles Lodge 1230 (6-8) with a 16-5 pounding.

Only two of Conn's 10 players failed to notch at least two hits and Larry Peet and Larry Douglas each posted three safeties in its 20-hit barrage. The winners broke open a 3-2 ball game with a six-run fourth inning.

Fredman's had 18 hits, three by Frank Eifler, afte spotting Designers a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Local 596 came from behind in the seventh on a clutch three-bagger by Bob Moore who scored the tying marker on Joe Rainge's single. Jerry Orr's fly ball plated Rainge with the game-ending tally.

Gene George, who had three hits, led off Pontiac Piston's decisive two-run fourth with a single, and doubled home Jim Jones (who also doubled) with an insurance run in the fifth in the upset of Peterson's (13-3). The Piston-makers (8-7) took over third place with the victory.

* * *

The Press B unit scored five times in the first and six more in the second for its most impressive win of the summer. John Landsbarger cracked four singles to produce four runs as the leadoff man.

Ex-Major League Players Named Japan All-Stars

TOKYO (AP) — Two former U.S. major league baseball players have been named to the Japanese All-Star squad for three games this year.

Selectors Tuesday included Don Blasingame, 37, second baseman of the Pacific League's Nankai Hawks, and Dave Roberts, 34, outfielder of the Central League's Atoms.

Blasingame played with St. Louis, Cincinnati and San Francisco before joining the Hawks in 1967. Roberts formerly was a member of the Baltimore Orioles and Houston Astros.

The three All-Star games will be played in Tokyo July 19, Osaka July 20 and Fukuoka on Kyushu July 22.

Second Half Record Still Unblemished

Milford Hardware kept its unblemished second-half record with an easy 18-6 conquest of C. & L. Construction Tuesday night in the Milford Slowpitch Softball League.

Daily Real Estate (3-1) stayed on the leaders' trail by outslugging Emily's Pure Oil, 17-12, in the other contest.

Bob McFarland's four-for-four with a triple was good for five RBI's, while Mike Yeager's three hits drove in four runs to highlight the victory by the hardware team.

Products Team Strengthens Hold on Second Place

Imperial Molded Products strengthened its hold on second place in the Walled Lake industrial Slowpitch Softball "A" Division by thumping Lawson Manufacturing, 13-5, last night.

Carpentry Engineering pulled off its second straight last-inning victory by overtaking Williams Research, 10-9, in the other game. Carpentry trailed, 9-7, entering the seventh inning.

Fred Koby drove in the winning run with his third hit.

The Thompson brothers were too much for Lawson's. Ron slugged a solo homer and Larry drove in four runs as Imperial upped its mark to 10-3.

Maryland 300 Won by Petty

David Pearson's Bid Runs Out of Gas

BELTSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., drove his 1969 Ford to victory Tuesday night over runner-up David Pearson of Spartenburg, S.C., in the fourth annual Maryland 300 at Beltsville Racway.

The official outcome of the race was held up 40 minutes before Petty was declared winner in a Beltsville record of 77.02 miles per hour on the half-mile track, finishing in 1.56:51.

★ ★ ★

With two laps remaining in the 150-mile race Pearson ran out of gas, had to go to the pits and lost the lead to Petty, who carded his sixth NASCAR Grand National victory of the year, taking home a $14,700 purse.

Petty, all-time stock car money winning racer, hadn't won since September, 1967, when he took the checkered flag at Beltsville.

Coach Predicts U.S. Win

EAST LANSING (AP)—Danny Litwhiler, assistant coach of the U. S. entry in the 17th annual world amateur baseball championships, predicts a sweep.

"I think we'll win it all," said Litwhiler, Michigan State University baseball coach, "but it could be tough."

Last fall, the Spartan coach took the winning U.S. entry to the Post-Olympic International Baseball Tournament at Mexico City.

★ ★ ★

The championship will start Aug. 15 in the Dominican Republic.

Entries in addition to the U.S. and the Dominican Republic include Mexico, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Costa Rica, Colombia, Venezuela, Guatemala and the Dutch Antilles.

Litwhiler said a number of other nations wanted to attend but couldn't afford the expense. These included Australia and Japan, he said.

Head coach of the U.S. entry is Jack Kaiser, baseball coach at St. John's (N.Y.) University.

The U.S. Baseball Federation currently is selecting an 18-man squad from 177 nominees submitted from around the country.

Litwhiler said he expects Michigan State to be represented by at least one player—pitcher Dan Bielski.

'Payday' in St. Louis, While Redlegs Celebrate 'May-Day'

By Associated Press

It was payday in St. Louis and May-day in Cincinnati.

Warmed by the cushion of freshly drawn paychecks in their wallets, the Cardinals responded by battering Philadelphia pitchers for 17 hits and ripping the Phillies 8-2 Tuesday night. It marked the 23rd consecutive time that the Cards have won on a payday—a streak that extends back to August 1967.

Cincinnati's Lee May, who hits his homers in bunches, had a bunch against Atlanta in a twi-night doubleheader which the Reds split with the Braves. May connected twice in each game and drove in 10 runs in the twinbill as the Braves took the opener 9-8 before the Reds salvaged the nightcap 10-4.

OTHER GAMES

Elsewhere in the National League, New York nipped Chicago 5-4, San Diego rapped San Francisco 10-3, Pittsburgh walloped Montreal 9-3 and Houston outlasted Los Angeles 10-7.

If the Cards played as well the rest of the month as they do on the first and 15th—those are paydays for all major leaguers—manager Red Schoendienst would have no problems.

★ ★ ★

Julian Javier, Curt Flood, Joe Torre and Mike Shannon each tagged three hits for St. Louis and rookie Chuck Taylor, making his first major league start, went the route for the victory. Taylor also batted in two runs.

May, who socked six homers in three consecutive games back in in May, tying a major league record, had two in each game against the Braves including the first grand slam of his career.

He knocked in five runs in each game, raising his season totals to 27 homers and 73 RBI.

May's first game performance was overshadowed by Atlanta's Bob Aspromonte, who pinch hit a single in the eighth inning and then smacked a three-run homer in the ninth inning that gave the Braves their victory. Hank Aaron hit his 534th career home for Atlanta, tying him with Jimmy Foxx for fourth place on the alltime list.

Al Weis stroked a three-run homer—only the fifth of his eight-year major league career—helping the New York Mets take Chicago. Ken Boswell also homered for the Mets and Ron Taylor saved the victory for Gary Gentry after consecutive eighth inning homers by Billy Williams and Ron Santo knocked out the New York starters.

San Diego exploded for six unearned runs with two out in the fifth inning, knocked out Juan Marichal and beating San Francisco. Tito Fuentes' error opened the gates for the Padres. Ollie Brown unloaded a three-run homer for San Diego and Willie McCovey connected for the Giants.

Carl Taylor drilled a homer and two-run double in an eight-run Pittsburgh first inning and the Pirates pounded Montreal. Richie Hebner also homered in the first for Pittsburgh and Luke Walker won his first major league game on a three-hitter. Rusty Staub and Bob Bailey homered to account for all the Expo runs.

Houston wiped out a five-run deficit, tying Los Angeles in the fourth inning and then pushed across three more runs in the sixth to beat the Dodgers. Norm Miller, who had driven in two runs in the Astros' big fourth, knocked in the tie-breaking run with a single in the sixth.

DNR Magazine 'Losing Money'

HIGGINS LAKE (AP) — The State Natural Resources Commission has announced an appropriations reduition will force it to cut down the free mailing list of its conservation magazine.

The department asked for $71,000 to support the magazine but was given $50,000.

The magazine, "Michigan Natural Resources," is published six times a year and costs $4 on an annual subscription basis.

Among those to be cut from the free mailing list will be newspapers, schools, libraries, sportsmen's clubs, legislators and other state officials.

Five Gridders Cut by Ottawa

Americans released included Steve Conley, a halfback from North Dakota State; Bennett Galloway, a half from the University of South Carolina; Mike Holtzatfel, a tight end from Notre Dame, and Bernard McNeil, a split end from Morris Brown College.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Ever wonder what the biggest pay any athlete ever got for ONE performance? . . . The record is held by a boxer — Gene Tunney — who was paid $990,000 for his heavyweight title fight against Jack Dempsey in September, 1927.

Did you ever hear of a horse race in which the LAST horse to cross the finish line is the winner! . . . This kind of race is getting more popular in several parts of the country and may become a big thing sometime in the future . . . The race cannot be fixed because the jockeys do not ride their own horses, being assigned a different one a moment before going to the post — therefore, each man rides as fast as he can to keep ahead of his own horse and not hurt its chances of winning.

SUCCESS STORY — Fred Rhyme, 44, of Compton, Calif., is getting rich on worms. He's the owner of a business that expects to sell 250 million worms this year to fishermen, pet shops, universities and zoos. Only one per cent, however, go to the anglers for bait.

250 Million Worms, but Few Anglers

COMPTON, Calif. (AP) — Fred Rhyme expects to sell about 250 million worms this year. He keeps about 30 million on hand all the time.

Contrary to what you might expect, only 1 per cent of them go to fishermen for bait.

★ ★ ★

A monkey will eat 10 to 25 a day, depending on his size. A soft-billed bird will eat two or three. Reptiles deem them delicious. And they're very popular with goldfish.

So Rhyme's main customers are pet owners, pet shops, universities and zoos. They buy worms because they're so nutritious, rich in Vitamins A and B, with 12 of the 16 elements found in living tissue.

BETTLE LARVA

Rhyme's worms, larva of the beetle Tenebrio Molitar, are tan, about an inch long, and wriggly. Each beetle produces about 50 worms wich have a life span of 90 days.

The 30 million he keeps on hand eat 1,000 pounds of bran a day. For moisture they munch cactus—6,000 pounds a week.

★ ★ ★

Rhyme, 44, started 10 years ago in his garage, with the help of his wife; Betty. A painting contractor, he liked to fish. He got a batch of worms from a friend who tired of raising them as a hobby.

The garage space has grown to about 16,000 square feet of space in two commercial buildings. The worms, tended by staff employes, occupy 7,000 wooden trays.

The worms are shipped in boxes containing 24, or in cloth bags filled with wheat bran and a little cactus, in batches of 40,000.

★ ★ ★

The price ranges from $3.25 to $4.80 for 5,000, depending on the quantity over that. Retail prices to casual fishermen is a penny apiece.

There were some problems along the way, he says—"I guess I've hauled $20,000 worth of my mistakes to the dump."

Junior Shotgun King

Rochester Teen Sights Title

Young Walter Gwara of Rochester is improving with age in state trapshooting circles.

The 16-year-old shooter won the Michigan junior championship last weekend at Mason by breaking 194 of 200 clay birds. He won the junior handicap crown in 1968 after picking up the sub-junior title the previous year.

★ ★ ★

Gwara, 1809 Willowood, is a student at Rochester high school.

Keith Struble of Pontiac won the Class C title with 195. Kathy Sedlecky of Ann Arbor captured the women's championship. She broke 195 birds.

Gerald Storrer took the Michigan championship in a three-way shootoff with Greenville's Jack Van Hoose and Saginaw's Art Hickey. All three broke 199, but Storrer cracked all 25 birds in the extra round.

SECOND PLACE

Van Hoose was runnerup and Hickey took the AA title. John T. O'Connor won Class B with 197 and Phil Nichols clipped 193 for D honors. Both are from Lansing.

Class A ruler was Jackson's Dave Chamberlain with 198. Scott Morton of Eaton Rapids captured the sub-junior crown with a 196. Morton also won the Class D doubles and the Michigan state preliminary handicap championship.

★ ★ ★

Bill Slack of Sturgis broke all 100 targets to win the Michigan doubles title. The A championship went to Gerry Grimes, Birmingham, with a 99 in A; Ken Reaune, Grosse Ile, with a 98 in B; Harvey Mudge Jr., Monroe, with a 93 in C; Mary Lou Kollar, Springport, with a 89 in the ladies bracket; and Liegh Lohrke, Albion, who copped the junior crown with an 86.

Non-resident men's doubles champion was Ray Doss, an Ohioan, who broke 99 birds. A Louisiana entry, Gail Pierson, made her long trip well worth while by taking non-resident women's honors with 92.

WALTER GWARA
State Trapshoot Champion

In the preliminary handicap, Katy Sedlecky, Ann Arbor, ruled a state women's champ with a nifty score of 99. Glen Stenstorn, Dowagiac, topped the juniors with 91, and Phil Graves, Adrian, posted an identical score to take sub-junior honors.

Jack Batz, a Hoosier, fired a perfect 200 to lead all singles shooters and take high non-resident honors. Other non-resident awards were: Class AA, Ken Reitz, Ohio, 199; Class A, Kahn Peterson, Wisconsin, 99; Class B, Mel Meyer, Ohio, 195; Class C, Robert May, Indiana, 196; Class D, Doug Rowell, Connecticut, 195; junior, Garrett Henfey, Ohio, 199; and lady, Laura Mote, Ohio, 190.

Special resident awards went to Walter Dailey of Negaunee, high veteran (age 65 or over) with 98 of 100; Pat and Steve Lawrence, Southfield, high husband and wife with 379 of 400; and high parent and child, Joe and Bob McDaniels of Grosse Pte., 380 of 400.

Pontiac Area Conservation Club Formed

The rebirth of a Pontiac Area Conservation Club is being planned this summer with meetings scheduled every other Tuesday beginning July 22 for youngsters approximately 10 to 16 years old.

The group will probably take numerous field trips and one meeting a month will be conducted as a program and the other will be a business meeting.

Members will probably catalogue plants and animals in the local area, but projects will be largely determined by the membership after the group is organized.

Trout Pond Conversion Should Be Beneficial

By DON VOGEL

Conversion of Oakland County's special trout ponds to warm water fisheries is being met by a few grumbles, but these aren't too loud.

The obvious benefits should silence the handful of critics. Instead of having a put-and-take trout situation for the first couple of weeks of the season, the ponds should afford good fishing for bluegills, perch and possibly black bass through the summer.

★ ★ ★

Bald Mountain, Fenton, Davisburg, and Pettibone ponds and Foley lake will appeal to the bank fishermen who find it difficult to locate such places because of No Parking and No Trespassing signs.

These will be places where children can be taken with a reasonably good chance of catching some fish.

Ron Spitler and his fisheries crew at the Department of Natural Resources' Pontiac Lake district office don't have all the plans firmed up. One or two of the ponds may continue to receive some trout stocking.

ANOTHER YEAR OF GROWTH

The small Fenton pond already is being used for a bass rearing station. Smallmouths have been stocked in Foley lake and recent nettings indicate they should reach a legal 10 inches by this time next summer.

The nets also turned up several 12-inch brown trout.

★ ★ ★

Two-story lakes such as Maceday, Cass, Union and Silver probably will continue to be stocked with trout. But the obvious thinking is toward better panfish and black bass angling. And that's what most of the fishermen are after during the year.

Additional pike spawning marshes also are planned.

WHAT ABOUT SOME WALLEYES?

Now that the good things have been mentioned it's time to air one of my long-standing complaints. How about some more walleyes?

★ ★ ★

The answers from DNR fish personnel over the years are consistent:

"They're too difficult to raise," or "We don't know enough about them."

If walleyes are so hard to raise how come Minnesota, New York and Pennsylvania raise them by the millions? Even Ohio's mixed up conservation program produces sufficient walleyes for stocking its many man-made lakes.

The "we don't know enough" is probably the best answer in Michigan. Throw in the fact that this state doesn't have enough hatcheries to produce salmon, trout, panfish, bass, muskies and other sport fish and it's easy to see why an over-all fish program is lacking.

CLINTON RIVER TOO SILTY

And don't bother pointing a finger at the old Drayton Plains hatchery. The water of the Clinton River is so silty that it's impossible to keep a fish alive in the small holding ponds for more than a week.

The large rearing ponds absorb the silt much better, but it's still a bad situation. Besides, the site is now a nature center.

★ ★ ★

Overemphasis on the salmon program and some problems at the Wolf Lake hatchery probably will curtail the normal trout planting operation this summer.

The recreational bond revenue will help ease the hatchery situation, but not as much as hoped, thanks to legislators listening to about everyone but the people who voted for issue.

LAWMAKERS SEEM CONFUSED

Speaking of those lawmakers in Lansing, it's beginning to look as if they either don't know what's going on or can't make up their minds or both. They reject an issue one day and pass it the next. The Senate voted 29-4 to put all state reverted tax lands — much of it now state parks and forests — on the sale block; the House slashed a Senate approved fish appropriation bill.

The chairman of the Senate Conservation Committee went to the most recent Natural Resources Commission meeting and, in some quiet lobbying, tried to talk the commissioners into lowering antlerless deer permit quotas. He looked silly when only the representative of the Michigan Deer Hunters Association stood up at the meeting and asked for lower quotas.

★ ★ ★

This group has always supported a ban on antlerless seasons in the past. It was the quietest commission deer session in years with DNR proposals approved almost intact.

It's unfortunate that this isn't an election year. Many of the lawmakers would find embarrassing questions waiting for them when they hit the campaign trail. I bet they don't act as confused in 1970 when representatives and senators will be out hustling for votes.

They know that people have short memories.

Deep Water Fishing Pays

Bluegills, Bass Active in Area Lakes

Fishing interest starts to slack off about this time every year, but it isn't because the fish are uncooperative.

Bluegills and bass consistently hit all summer, even during the hottest period. However, techniques that were successful early in the season aren't too effective after June and many fishermen turn to other interests.

Bluegill fishermen who know the "spots" are taking deep-water roach on crickets and grasshoppers from White, Orchard, Union, Oxbow, Grahame, Crochet, Deer, Orion, Lakeville and many other area lakes.

The patient bass angler is scoring well on big bass by inching nightcrawlers and plastic eels along the bottom in deep water. Pine, Square, Pontiac and Louise lakes are good bets.

Night fishing for rainbows have been very good on Cooley, Maceday and Square lakes. Huron Point in Lake St. Clair has been good for perch and bass.

Partial Payments of Federal Funds Given Michigan

Partial payments totaling about $884,000 in federal funds have been allotted to Michigan's wildlife improvement programs for the new fiscal year which began July 1.

The early apportionments to this state are part of $24 million in Pittman-Robertson and Dingell-Johnson monies which the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife has earmarked to help underwrite similar programs throughout the nation.

This fall, the federal agency will draw from the P-R and D-J funds to make additional allotments to each state's fish and game restoration projects for the current 1969-70 fiscal year.

Wilderness Plan Includes Seney

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal official urged today the inclusion of portions of wildlife refuges in four states in the national wilderness preservation system.

John S. Gottschalk, Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife director, endorsed bills to include over 28,000 acres in Florida, Maine, Mich. refuge, Maine; 25,150 acres in the Seney refuge, Michigan, and 29 acres in the Gravel Island and Green Bay refuges, Wisconsin.

FLIPPED INTO SUCCESS—Flip Wilson, 34, is a top star on the comedy scene. Flip quit high school because he was ashamed that he had only a dime a day to spend for lunch. Last year he earned over $500,000.

Laughs Fill Coffers

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "My accountant estimated my income last year would be $200,000," said Flip Wilson, "but I actually earned $500,000.

"Now things are looking up. If I can have two more years like that, I'm going to move out of the poverty area."

The 34-year-old Negro performer, a top star on the comedy scene, has spent most of his life in the poverty area. His present success is a tribute to a self-determination that would be a credit to any Horatio Alger hero.

★ ★ ★

Born Clerow Wilson—"I don't know why they hung that first name on me"—Flip is one of 34 children of a Newark handyman. In his childhood he lived in three foster homes.

DIME FOR LUNCH

"I quit school at 16 because I was ashamed that I had only a dime a day to spend for lunch," he recalled recently between shows at the Americana's Royal Box.

"I was a good student, and the other kids looked up to me. But I guess I kind of looked down on myself because I was so poor."

★ ★ ★

He then spent nearly four years in the Air Force and won the nickname of Flip because of the humorous skill with which he delivered troop information talks.

He made the great decision of his life in 1954 when he was earning $40 a week as a bellhop and part-time clerk in a San Francisco hotel. One night, when a performer failed to appear for the hotel's show, Flip volunteered to fill in for him.

APPLAUSE DECIDED HIM

"The applause I got made me decide right then what I wanted to do the rest of my life," he said. "I wanted to make people laugh.

"I learned there is a theory among great comedians that it takes 15 years to develop a rounded, stand-up comic, and I decided I would do just that.

"Since there is no school for humor, I haunted the book stores and read everything I could on the subject. I studied the routines of all the great comedians of the past in order to help find one of my own. I stayed up at night learning to write my own material.

"I gave up everything else—my apartment, what money I had, and the security of a steady job. I gave them up irrevocably. If you have a goal and don't give up everything else to it irrevocably, you're bound to fail, because that shows you aren't sincere."

PASSED HAT

Flip polished his talent through painful years in which he hitchhiked from city to city, gave performances in night spots where he passed his hat among the audience.

He managed to achieve his 15-year goal in 12 years. An appearance on Johnny Carson's "Tonight" show in 1966 won him national attention. Since then he has become a supper club star, a favorite guest star on major television shows. In prospect are a television special and a television series of his own.

★ ★ ★

Flip has no fears of running dry. He still prefers to write his own materials. He has a $2,000 library of books on comedy and a file of 300,000 jokes.

"The main thing, however, is that I'm a pro," he said. "An amateur tries to make you laugh. A pro does make you laugh.

NO PROBLEM

"I've never found my race a problem. An audience doesn't care about your color. Either you're funny or you're not.

"My greatest satisfaction in life has been that I set myself a 15-year goal—and stuck to my program. Now I just want to enjoy my work and have fun.

★ ★ ★

"Hungry guys make the best comics and prizefighters. But a prizefighter has to knock out only one guy at a time. Today the comic is trying to knock out 200 million."

There'll be no more dime lunches for Clerow Wilson.

Armstrong Will Get Fast Sample in Case of Rush

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) One of the first tasks facing Apollo 11 Astronaut Neil A. Armstrong when he reaches the surface of the moon on foot will be to collect what the space agency calls a "contingency sample."

★ ★ ★

This will be about two pounds of moon material scooped up almost immediately just in case something should force an early departure from the moon.

The sample assures that some lunar dirt and rock fragments will come back to earth in a pocket on the left leg of Armstrong's space suit.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Don L. Lind, a scientist-astronaut, says the assumption is that, no matter what happens, "he'll always come home with his pants on."

San Francisco Bay originally was spread over 680 square miles but landfill has claimed much of the marshy areas and now only 435 square miles remain.

For Nerve Deafness and Deafness in later life

Mr. Kisch, N. Y., (Special) Thomas G. Brownlie, M.A., internationally Known Hearing Aid Expert—Founder of Sound Ear, Inc. and Creator of the Sound-Ear Hearing Aid, announces that for the first time science has found a way to hearing so tiny as to be almost invisible when worn, so and easy to use that the user forgets he is wearing them, so light gets its assistance.

"Many students are specifically designed for those who have found that little extra clarity in conversation while watching television, at a concert, in the theatre, or in Church.

A new booklet called "Rehabilitation Help for the Nerve Deafened Using a Hearing Aid" has been published by the manufacturers of science to resolve that a hearing difficulty is no longer a problem today, in order to obtain the above mentioned free booklet, write to Brownlie Laboratories, Dept. 1800, 121 Smith Ave., Mt. Kisco, N. Y., 10549. A postcard will do.

Commuter Airlines Come Under Attack for Lax Safety Rules

ATLANTA (UPI) — The booming commuter airline business does not have the same strict safety requirements of large airlines, and federal and industry experts are worried.

The debate over commuter airline safety was reopened last week when an Air South twin-engine Beechcraft plunged into a rural Georgia pasture from a clear sky, killing all 14 aboard.

Although commuter airline officials insist their federal regulations are rigid, the statistics show it is not as safe to fly on a commuter plane as it is to fly on a big airliner.

So far during 1969, commuter and charter air services have had 22 accidents which killed 87 persons. On major airlines, 53 have died in 33 accidents. Between 1966 and 1967, fatal commuter accidents increased 32 per cent.

BUSINESS BOOM

The commuter airline business itself is experiencing a boom. In 1964, 15 companies were flying 83 commuter planes. In 1968, 250 agencies had more than 1,200 planes in the air.

Both the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and the Air Line Pilot's Association (ALPA) are concerned.

★ ★ ★

Capt. Lee Hines, an ALPA official, said that if major airlines continue to sell through tickets onto commuter operations, every small plane in the business should be labeled:

"Caution: This airplane could be hazardous to your personal safety."

MORE POSITIVE IDEAS

Other suggestions are more positive.

The FAA, for example, plans a new battery of regulations for commuter airlines.

Under present regulations, commuter planes are not required to carry weather radar, nor must they have the sophisticated weather dispatching systems the bigger airliners must have.

★ ★ ★

Maintenance requirements are weaker for commuter airlines, and commuter pilots must have a minimum of 500 hours flying time, while airline captains must have at least 1,500 hours.

The ALPA also says that many airports served by commuter airports are poorly lighted, have substandard runways and generally lack an instrument-landing system.

ONE LEVEL OF SAFETY

The ALPA want the commuter to be held to the same stringent regulations as the major carriers.

"We feel that when a person buys a ticket for a scheduled flight, he is entitled to the same protection on a trunk flight. There should be one level of safety for air passengers," said L. H. Moudon, chairman of ALPA's air worthiness committee.

★ ★ ★

Joseph J. O'Connell Jr., chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, has expressed fear that increasing competition in the commuter market may result in "inexperienced management or cutting economy corners," both of which could compromise safety."

Bob Forrest, an official for Air South, said his company feels the present commuter safety regulations are "quite rigid" and "commuters are actually under closer scrutiny than the major air carriers."

RECORD-KEEPING TASK

Forrest said more regulations would cause an impossible record-keeping task for the operation. Other owners have complained of the difficult financial burden more rules would create.

The FAA stresses that the commuter industry has grown too rapidly for the smarl of governmental red tape to keep up. And officials point out that most commuters, as well as the big airliners, operate above the minimum standards set by the FAA. The captain of the ill-fated Air South Beechcraft, for example, had more than 8,000 flying hours to his name.

★ ★ ★

But the safety experts, like ALPA's Moudon, say the commuter standards are still "drastically softer" and they want a change.

Pollution Threatening Rare Bay That Glows

By National Geographic Society

WASHINGTON — Puerto Rico's remarkable Bahia Fosforescente — Phosphorescent Bay — faces deterioration unless protective steps are taken.

Pollution and other factors also threaten two nearby "bays of fire," the National Park Service warned in a recent report.

★ ★ ★

The service offers several plans to maintain the delicate environmental balance that permits dinoflagellates — tiny creatures that produce sparks of chemical light — to survive and create "burning seas."

Photographs by Dr. Paul A. Zahl, senior natural scientist of the National Geographic Society, accompany the study. The photographs, including the first known color pictures of the ghostly glow of Bahia Fosforescente, originally illustrated an article by Dr. Zahl in the July 1960 National Geographic.

STRANGE ATTRACTION

The article "brought national prominence to the remarkable Bahia Fosforescente," the National Park Service said. "Prior to that time, the strange attraction of the bay was known only in Puerto Rico and by a handful of visitors to the island."

On the basis of field studies preceding the article, Dr. Melville Bell Grosvenor, then president of the society and now editor-in-chief, suggested that the park service study the bay.

★ ★ ★

The park service completed its investigation in March 1960, and agreed that the unusual bay should be protected. In 1967 the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico asked the park service to develop the recently completed plan.

Bahia Fosforescente and Bahia Monsio Jose on the mainland and Cano Hondo on nearby Vieques Island, part of Puerto Rico, are among the few bays in the world that support large populations of dinoflagellates, which produce the phenomenon known as bioluminescence.

LIKE MILKY WAY

For as long as men have sailed the seas, they have marveled at the eerie light.

One early mariner reported that the glow near the water surface made it seem as if the Milky Way "had dropped down into the ocean, and we were sailing through it."

★ ★ ★

A host of plants, as well as animals, carry their own tiny lanterns. One species of unicellula-shaped plant looks like a facsimile of a small night lamp.

Bioluminescence also appears in fireflies that scatter living sparks about gardens, and bacteria that shine on decaying fish. Fungi, marine fungi, damages, snails and millipedes.

WAR USE

In World War II, Japanese soldiers used bioluminescence in jungle warfare. Fearful that a flashlight would reveal their position, they carried small vials containing the dried remains of tiny marine crustaceans called Cypridina, the "sea firefly."

★ ★ ★

The animal secretes two chemicals, luciferin and luciferase, which — when mixed with water — produce a dim light just bright enough to illuminate a map or message.

Late Leo McCarey Was One of the Greats

Film World Passed Him By

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — By the time of his death last week, the movie world had passed Leo McCarey by. But in his heyday —the 1930s and 1940s—he was one of the screen's great stylists, and a rare individualist as well.

A director like McCarey couldn't function in today's Hollywood. He used to give studio bosses fits with his eccentric work habits. His usual routine was to report to the set at 9 a.m. and begin playing the piano. A full crew and cast, including expensive stars like Cary Grant, Ingrid Bergman, Bing Crosby or Irene Dunne, waited around while McCarey tried to compose tunes—he was eternally hopeful of writing a hit song.

In midmorning the director might say, "All right, let's shoot it."

Then he would run the players through a long and wondrously comic scene which he had been improvising while he picked out tunes on the piano. would complete Very often, he a day's work in 20 minutes.

THOMAS

SILENT-FILM ERA

McCarey learned his mode of operation in the silent-film era when production costs were cheaper and invention was everything. He used the technique to direct early comedies with Laurel and Hardy, the ones considered classics today.

He moved into the big time in the talkie period, directing "The Kid from Spain" with Eddie Canton, "Milky Way" with Harold Lloyd, and the brilliant "Ruggles of Red Gap" with Charles Laughton in an indelible characterization.

"The Awful Truth," starring Cary Grant, Irene Dunne and Ralph Bellamy, was perhaps the best-of the wacky comedies.

McCarey hit this peak in 1944 with "Going My Way," a huge success for Paramount and an Oscar winner for the director, Bing Crosby and Barry Fitzgerald. Defying the tradition that sequels are never as successful as the original, McCarey again cast Crosby as the easy-going Father O'Malley in "The Bells of St. Mary's," with Ingrid Bergman as a nun. The film made even more money than "Going My Way."

Those were great times for Leo McCarey. An ebullient, fun-loving man, he enjoyed spinning yarns over multimartini lunches. He had an Irish fondness for spirits, a faculty shared by his brother Ray, a director of lesser fame.

His immense success with "Going My Way" and "The Bells of St. Mary's" seemed to have been Leo McCarey's undoing. He turned serious—often a fatal error for a comedy creator.

To Alcoholic, There's No Such Thing as Just 1 Drink

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first of a three-part series on alcoholism in Oakland County.)

By DIANNE DUROCHER

"An alcoholic is a cunning, baffling, deceiving type of person who has crossed an imaginary line into the world of alcoholism and can never successfully return to social drinking."

The speaker was one of the more than 25,000 alcoholics living in Oakland County. His name is Bill and he knows what it is to be caught in the syndrome of alcoholism.

★ ★ ★

Seven years ago he was "mentally, physically and emotionally dependent on alcohol" and his story sheds some light on why and how an individual becomes an alcoholic.

"In retrospect, I realize that I first began drinking a lot for reasons of insecurity and fear of responsibility. Then I drank progressively more and more until I developed a psychological reaction that I couldn't function without liquor."

'WENT THE ROUTE'

His eyes narrowing thoughtfully, the handsomely dressed executive continued, "I went the whole route — blackouts, where I didn't know what I was doing for several hours; driving accidents; nights in jail; and getting fired from a good job.

"Then, one unbelievable night, after drinking myself into oblivion, I fell off a bar stool and broke my leg.

"That did it. After 'drying out' in the hospital, I finally admitted to myself that, for me, drinking was a big problem," Bill explained.

"Later, following the advice of my wife and friends, I turned seriously to Alcoholics Anonymous—and managed to stay sober. The first year I attended about 450 meetings; now I make at least two a week and more when the need arises."

RECOVERED ALCOHOLIC

Bill is a sober or recovered alcoholic, who has learned that for him there is no such thing as "just one drink." He knows that the first drink is the only one he can control and he doesn't take it. Whether sober or drinking, an alcoholic is always an alcoholic.

'To Them, There Really Are Such Things As Pink Elephants'

The majority of alcoholics are in the addictive stage, continually baffling themselves and their families and friends with their dependence on alcohol.

Hundreds of definitions of alcoholism have been supplied by experts in medicine and law, but the nature of alcoholism remains a mystery.

"Two men could live next door to each other, encountering the same problems and anxieties. One could be an alcoholic and the other not, because of an X-factor that no one can explain," said Mrs. Francis Kessler, director of the Oakland County Alcoholism Information Center.

ALL WALKS OF LIFE

Mrs. Kessler, who annually interviews about 250 alcoholics said, "I talk to alcoholics from all walks of life, from bricklayers to attorneys and doctors.

"By the time I see an alcoholic individual, whether he makes $9,000 or $50,000 a year, everyone is out of step but him," she said, adding, "He has so many reasons for drinking that I couldn't begin to explain."

The main reason for alcoholism is said to be a combination of physical, psychological and sociological factors, though sometimes it appears to be all mental or physical, she said.

Today's statistics show that one alcoholic in five is a woman, and the percentage of alcoholic women who come to the center is even less, Mrs. Kessler said.

HOUSEWIFE IGNORED

Researchers compile their statistics mainly from employment records in business and industry and from doctors' and clinical reports, often missing the alcoholic housewife, so the figures are indefinite regarding women, she said.

In recent years more young people have contacted the center for help on their own, or at the suggestion of a school counselor, she said.

Last year she talked to about 70 youths with an average of age of 17.

A registered nurse, Mrs. Kessler has directed the alcoholic information center since 1956 when it was a Pontiac-based agency.

BECAME COUNTYWIDE

It became countywide about two years ago when it was incorporated in the Oakland County Health Department and moved to its present location in Southfield.

The center provides information on alcoholism and refers alcoholics to other sources for help including social agencies, hospitals, religious advisers and private doctors and in the majority of cases to AA.

Mrs. Kessler also spends a tremendous amount of time counseling the wives and husbands of alcoholics.

"There are many alcoholics who may never find sobriety. Some may have three or four hospitalizations before they finally stop drinking. Those who stop after the first trip to the hospital are the lucky ones," she said.

Except in instances where doctors will admit alcoholics to hospitals under a secondary diagnosis, such as a liver ailment or some other physical side-effect, Mrs. Kessler must go outside of Oakland County to provide facilities and care for advanced alcoholics who need help.

"It is very sad to see a person with alcoholic withdrawal symptoms. They may become very irritable or violent, and many have hallucinations," she said. "to them there really are such things as pink elephants.

"They are sick because they are alcoholics and they need medical attention."

Mrs. Kessler refers most of the people she interviews to Alcoholics Anonymous groups throughout the county. There are 750 AA members in Oakland County willing to help another alcoholic who wants assistance at any time of the day or night.

All persons dealing with alcoholism in the county work together, she said, adding "Where one doesn't work, another will. They all need each other."

Area Hippie-Types—a Brotherhood of Disenchantment

By YOLANDA BENAVIDES

Tomorrow's Establishment is socially disenchanted. Disenchanted with a war they feel is morally wrong, laws they feel are racially unjust and an educational system they think to be far behind its times.

Such disenchantment is seen in recent conversations with so-called Pontiac area hippies. Hippies, at least for this summer.

★ ★ ★

They see the biggest fight as gaining an equal voice in the decision-making of the society that will soon be their inheritance.

★ ★ ★

"The world has changed so since our parents were our age. Their answers just don't fit today's problems, my problems. That's why I've got to find my own answers," says Oakland Community College sophomore Pam Irvin, 1614 Witherbee, Troy.

For example, "Do I believe in God? Yes, of course, only because I believe there has to be an afterlife, a place better than this. But again, it's not the same type of faith that my parents believe in. It's not Episcopal or Lutheran. It's just a belief in God."

NEW BROTHERHOOD

Why does she join the new brotherhood of long-hairs whose trademarks are Indian packsacks, leather head bands, peace insignia necklaces and Levis?

Of course, there's the "weekend hippie" type (for lack of a better name) who goes along with the trend because it is THE trend, says sociology major Anne Slocum of 683 Half Moon, Bloomfield Township.

★ ★ ★

However, for the disenchanted majority, it is a brotherhood, a way of being free, a way of outwardly withdrawing from the outside world, a world where they see too many social injustices, too mabny people unequal.

What happens when its time to join the forces and get a job?

'I'LL GO ALONG'

"Of course, I'll have to go along with society and dress like the rest," mused a curly haired OCC student, his locks framing his face and reaching his shoulders.

"But until then, I'm not going to worry about it. My hair feels good, I feel good.

★ ★ ★

"You see I've been there before," he said, as he reached for the worn Marine ID car, a lone reminder of shorter hair days. "And I'm in no hurry to get back."

"Why do we dress differently? Because, unlike our parents, we're not afraid to be individuals," was the answer from a youth resting with friends at their 'hippie" sanction — a shaded corner at Shain Park in Birmingham.

SHAPE UP'

"My parents told me to shape up and reform or ship out until I cut my hair and take my place in society again," blurted another.

"They never stop to think that we're a part of society right now. I mean, whose to say who's not in society and who is? Why do they have to make all the rules?" asked a third.

★ ★ ★

What is their society?

Individuality, freedom from the 9-5 time-clock existance that rules their parents, a freedom, by the way, which many admit is temporary.

It's a brotherhood, a smile, an understood two-fingered V for peace greeting, an afternoon of rapping (talking) with friends under the warm sunshine, or sharing peaches at Shain Park.

Moon Visit Old Hat to Buck

Christopher Columbus had his Vikings.

Edwin Aldrin, Neil Armstrong and Michael Collins may have their historical challengers as well — in the form of Buck Nelson and his (some say imaginary) pal "Little Bucky."

★ ★ ★

Who arrived first in America? Historians are still arguing.

Who will arrive first on the moon? NASA will say Armstrong. Some will say Buck Nelson or Little Bucky or others.

'MY TRIP TO MARS . . ."

Buck Nelson, nearly 90 years old, recently paid an extended visit to the Sherman Lowery family, 90 Buffalo, Clarkston.

Buck is the author of "My Trip to Mars, the Moon and Venus." In his heyday, the mid-1950s, Buck entertained the press and the believers at his "Buck's Mountain View Ranch", in Mountain View, Mo.

★ ★ ★

Nelson's visit with the Lowery family created heightened interest in the Oakland County Space Club, a group of a purported 100 people led by Mr. and Mrs. Lowery.

The group is particularly interested in Nelson's friend, "Little Bucky," and Nelson's exhibits from Venus.

TEACHES ON VENUS

Little Bucky and Buck are in regular communication. Little Bucky teaches English in a Venus high school, according to Mrs. Fannie Lowery. He left the earth many years ago in dissatisfaction. Venus offered a "better life."

"Generally, the people on other planets in our solar system are more advanced socially. Earth is regarded as one of the most backward planets in the solar system. There are planets, however, that are not as advanced as is earth," Mrs. Lowery explained in an interview.

★ ★ ★

"(On Venus) . . . there are no wars. Everything operates peacefully and orderly. They have various races. Each race has its own continent. They do not hate each other. The races move about occasionally, in perfectly friendly fashion . . . but they live separately," Mrs. Lowery said.

Mrs. Lowery aided Buck Nelson in the writing of his book. Today, Buck is almost unintelligible due to his age. He travels about the country, staying with die-hard believers of his adventurous voyages into space.

WHAT OF ASTRONAUTS?

What opinion do Mrs. Lowery and her associates hold of the American astronauts?

"All they're doing is finding out things we've said for years. When they get to the moon, they'll just find a desolate, dusty planet is all," Mrs. Lowery said.

Seen as Technical Bounce

Stock Mart Holds Onto Gains

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market held onto most of its gains in fairly active trading early this afternoon, with some analysts attributing much of the advance to a technical bounce.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 5.85 at 847.01. The DJI, off 2.01 at the close of trading Tuesday, had been ahead 6.79 at 11 a.m.

★ ★ ★

Gains led losses by about 600 issues.

The market's sharp early advance was attributed, in part, to a continuation of the bargain hunting that got under way late in Tuesday's session.

"After the severe drop the market has had recently," they said, "it became so oversold that a lot of stocks became sort of irresistible to bargain hunters."

★ ★ ★

They noted, however, that the economic uncertainties which long have been reported as weighing on the market remain and added the rally could flicker out.

The successful launching of the Apollo 11 moon shot was credited by an analyst as "helping the general morale a bit."

★ ★ ★

Grumman, which built the lunar module, was up ¾ at 29¾; McDonnell Douglas, which built the Saturn rocket, gained ½ to 29¼; and North American Rockwell, builder of the command module, gained ½ to 30¼.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.9 at 300.6, with industrials up 3.2, rails up .9, and utilities up .7.

Men Scoffed at Goddard's Rocket Dream, and Now . . .

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Harry F. Guggenheim, president and editor-in-chief of Newsday in Garden City, N.Y., was for many years a close friend and supporter of Dr. Robert H. Goddard, the father of modern rocketry. Goddard's research and experiments, many of which were supported by the Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, paved the way for the Apollo project.)

By HARRY F. GUGGENHEIM
Distributed by The Associated Press

Our thoughts are crowded this week with the prospect of man's greatest space adventure, the courage of the astronauts who will make it, and the skill of thousands of scientists and engineers on whose efforts Apollo 11 will ride to the moon.

For some of us old enough to remember the earliest attempts at flight in this country, there is a special place in our thoughts today for Robert H. Goddard. He was to the moon rocket what the Wright brothers were to the airplane.

* * *

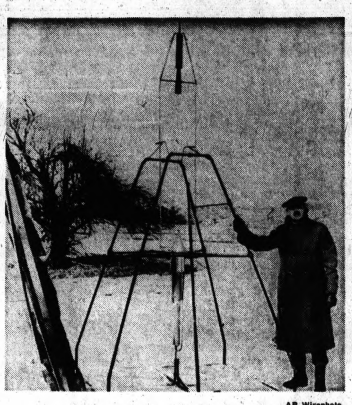
He has been dead now for almost 25 years. He died without the fame that accrued to the Wright brothers in their lifetime. But he died still believing that man would one day shatter the fetters of earth's gravity and stride majestically into the vast reach of space.

Goddard was a physicist and professor at Clark University in Worcester, Mass., when I first heard of him. In 1898, when he was 16, he read H.G. Wells' "War of the Worlds" which, as he would later write personally to Wells, "made a deep impression. The spell was complete about a year afterward, and I decided that what might conservatively be called 'high altitude research' was the most fascinating problem in existence."

LIFE LONG TASK

He devoted himself to that problem with prodigious energy for the rest of his life.

Goddard began to experiment with small rockets as early as 1908. Eleven years later he published a paper entitled "A Method of Reaching Extreme Altitudes," which espoused the theory that rocket power could lift a large payload to great heights if the rocket were designed to use its fuel effectively.



AP Wirephoto

FAR CRY FROM APOLLO — Dr. Robert H. Goddard stands with man's first liquid-propellant rocket at Auburn, Mass. March 16, 1926. It traveled 184 feet in 2.5 seconds.

He was careful to mention the possibility of lunar landings only casually, lest he frighten away potential sponsors. But despite his almost indifferent mention of the subject, the press seized upon the paper with gross exaggeration. The headlines were all similiar:

* * *

"Modern Jules Verne Invents Rocket to Reach Moon"

"Aim To Reach Moon With New Rocket"

"Savant Invents Rocket Which Will Hit Moon"

CAUSED HUMILIATION

None of this was so, of course, but the effects were to cause Goddard considerable humiliation.

Goddard was embarrassed—he had intended to stress only the scientific aspects of his research—but he was not deterred. He continued his experiments, without public attention, and on March 16, 1926, launched the first liquid propelled rocket. It rose 41 feet and traveled 184 feet in 2.5 seconds.

* * *

The flight was so inconspicuous, however, that no one paid any attention. Goddard himself considered it a feat equivalent to the Wrights' first airplane flight.

* * *

Three years later, on July 17, 1929—almost 40 years to the day before Apollo 11 would take off for the moon—Goddard tried again. This time he had a model 11½ feet long, 26 inches wide, and weighing 35 pounds when empty. It rose 20 feet above the 60-foot launching tower, turned right, rose another 10 feet and then crashed to earth 171 feet away.

'A PLANE CRASH'

Goddard instantly considered the experiment a success. But as he and his associates were surveying the scene, according to his biographer, Milton Lehman, "they heard the shriek of a siren. They looked up to see a police patrol car, two ambulances and a convoy of automobiles stopping in Aunt Effie's farmyard. Two policemen, perhaps expecting catastrophe, inspected the rural scene, saw the steel tower, and asked questions . . . Neighbors were saying that an airplane had crashed and exploded."

Goddard tried to quiet the policemen's fears, but two reporters who had come with them were already inspecting the charred field.

* * *

"The moon-rocket man," one reporter said. "How close did you get this time?"

Again Goddard was adrift in a sea of publicity. Lehman wrote: "He wanted to tell the public that, yes, the rocket would be man's great prime mover. Yes, it would eventually reach the moon. But the public kept asking the same old question. When would it happen? When will your rocket do what you say it can do?"

FEARED HEADLINES

"The headlines and front-page stories were all that he feared. They made him out as a reckless moon seeker, a public amusement." His neighbors in Worcester, afraid that "Moony Goddard" was going to wipe them all out in some mad experiment, demanded that he remove his tests. Goddard was distressed.

But, ironically, that very publicity was to give him a new lease.

* * *

At that time, Charles A. Lindbergh was a guest in my home in Port Washington, N.Y. I had met him when he came to Roosevelt Field for his historic flight to Paris. He got back, much to my surprise, and subsequently became a consultant for the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics. This was a fund created by my father to promote research and education in aeronautics and to help encourage flying as a means of transportation. I was then the fund's administrator.

'TOO LIMITED'

Lindbergh and I had talked on several occasions about the potential of space flight. He had often expressed the opinion that airplanes, confined as they were to the earth's atmosphere, would ultimately prove too "limited" for the full scope of man's aspirations.

* * *

On this particular day, we were discussing the work of the fund, when Mrs. Guggenheim interrupted us to read aloud from the New York Times an item about a rocket exploding near Worcester, Mass., the day before. When she finished reading the fascinating account of the scientist and his problems with his neighbors, I suggested to Lindbergh that he visit this man Goddard in behalf of the fund and discuss his work.

* * *

Lindberg did call, and Goddard, quite surprised, invited him to come to Worcester.

From the meeting, Lindbergh returned impressed by the scientist and his ideas. We agreed that support should be obtained to underwrite Goddard's experiments. Lindbergh made the case to my father, Daniel, as I left to begin my duties as ambassador to Cuba. Daniel Guggenheim endorsed our proposals and agreed to provide the funds for a two-year period. After his death, the Daniel and Florence Guggenheim Foundation took up support of Goddard's work until 1941.

GAVE UP TEACHING

These grants made it possible for him to give up teaching and, for the first time, to devote his full energies to rocket research. They also enabled him to move from New England, where his neighbors regarded him as a nut, to Roswell, N.M., where he would have freedom, privacy and open space.

During the years that followed, I was able to observe the man and his work first-hand. I was deeply touched by his modest, self-effacing manner, his cheerfulness, and his optimism.

* * *

His disappointments were considerable. Once, in 1935, Lindbergh and I journeyed to Roswell to watch a test flight. It failed. He refused to accept it as any more than a temporary setback, a problem to be solved. He did solve it.

* * *

By 1940, Goddard had built a rocket that was very similiar to the German V2 missiles which were to assault London three years later. Goddard and I visited Washington to urge military leaders to consider the military potential of rockets, but they were not interested. It was not until the end of the war that the oversight was obvious. Questioned by Army officers about the devastating V2, a German scientist incrediously replied: "Why don't you ask your own Dr. Goddard?"

FOOTPRINTS ON THE MOON

The first complete story of the great space that developed into "a national act of heroism."

A human, non-technical document, it is based on extensive interviews with the unsung, backstage workers in this magnificent effort—as well as with the astronauts themselves.

The author, John Barbour, has been covering space shots since 1957 for The Associated Press, and is known as one of the best writers on this assignment as well as one of the most knowledgeable.

In his account he includes much previously unpublicized material, including information on how the decision was made to accept the challenge of Russia's sputnik and aim for the moon.

Not only the 70,000 word text, but the more than 100 photographs in full color make this a memorable volume that doubtless will become an heirloom in thousands of households the country over.

What Breed of Men? — Profiles Depict Trio on Flight of Apollo 11

Neil A. Armstrong

Armstrong Recalls Mild Contempt for Mercury Astronauts

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — Neil A. Armstrong recalls feeling a mild contempt for the original Mercury astronauts when they were picked in 1959 to train for space flights.

Armstrong, a civilian pilot, had already flown to the edge of space in a black rocket with wings called the X15.

"We had spent years developing the rocket airplane concept and Mercury looked like a dark horse to us," the astronaut recalls. "We tended to regard the Mercury people as inexperienced intruders in our business."

★ ★ ★

The Mercury flights put man into space and into orbit and Armstrong soon decided to try to join the "inexperienced intruders."

He was in the second group of astronauts slected.

If all goes well on Apollo 11, the blond, blue-eyed, quietly spoken spaceman will be the first human to set foot on a world other than earth.

It's ironic that Neil Alden Armstrong will make his mark in history walking, for he's unique among the astronauts in his strong distaste for exercise.

That distaste was evident in him as a boy in Wapakoneta, Ohio, a town of 7,000 where Armstrong was born and spent the last years of his boyhood.

He was born Aug. 5, 1930 in a farmhosse outside of Wapakoneta. He came before the doctor.

"There was not time to go to the hospital," says his grandmother, Mrs. William Korspeter, a widow who lives on the farm.

Armstrong is the oldest son of Stephen Armstrong, an Ohio state employe for more than 30 years.

"My husband was a state examiner at the time," recalls Viola Armstrong, the astronaut's mother, "and we had to move around. He audited the county records. We would do an audit, which would take about a year, and then moved on."

★ ★ ★

The family lived for a time in Cleveland where the boy who would later fly to the moon began his lifelong fascination with flight, his mother says.

Armstrong took his first flight when he was 6. The family was living at Warren then.

The astronaut's father slowly moved up the ladder in the state government and finally settled in Wapakoneta in April 1944.

The astronaut lived in Wapak, as Ohioans abbreviate the name, only about three years.

He began riding his bicycle to a small grassy airfield three miles out from Wapak.

When Neil was about 15, his mother says, "He asked if we would permit him to take some flying lessons in the afternoon and go to work out at the airport so he could just get the feel of those planes and get close to them," she recalls.

When Armstong turned 16 in 1946, he became eligible for a pilot's license and didn't waste any time. He won the license and happily rode home on his bicycle. He was yet to learn to drive a car.

In 1947, Armstrong graduated from high school at Wapakoneta and won a scholarship in the Naval Air Cadet program. He entered Purdue, majoring in aeronautical engineering.

He went on active duty with the Navy after his sophomore year and earned his wings to become a jet pilot. At 19 years old, he was in aerial combat over Korea.

★ ★ ★

In 10 months of combat, Armstrong was shot down once, lost a wing tip another time and got 78 bullet holes in his second aircraft.

After 3½ years in the Navy, Armstrong returned to Purdue.

During his senior year, he met Janet Shearon, a sorority beauty queen. They married in 1956.

Armstrong graduated in 1955 with an aeronautical engineering degree and went to work for the National Advisory Council on Aeronautics in Cleveland. He transferred to NACA's High Speed Flight Center at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., and started to work on the X15.

'We've been fortunate to live in this page of history, and I've been lucky to participate in man's exploration of his surroundings.'

In 1962 Armstrong was selected with the second group of spacemen.

Most newsmen consider the astronaut hard to interview. He'll answer most questions with a monosyllable if he can and sometimes just a nod, but he did say, "We've been fortunate to live in this particular page of history," he wrote his former teacher, "and I've been uniquely lucky to be able to participate so intimately in man's exploration of his surroundings."

WIFE, TWO SONS

Armstong lives with his family in a two-story home surrounded by trees in El Lago, a small community near the Manned Spacecraft Center. He and his wife have two sons, Eric, 12, and Mark, 6.

When Armstrong steps on the moon, it'll be the culmination of a 26-year-old personal dream.

What does a guy do when he's reached the ambition of his life at age 38?

Asked recently if he hoped to again fly in space after Apollo 11, Neil Armstrong replied with characteristic brevity:

"I anticipate being available," he said. And, to him, that closed the subject.

Edwin E. Aldrin

Aldrin's Early Habit of Excellence Has Never Worn Off

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. started a habit of excellence early and never lost the knack.

From infancy to the threshold of the moon, people who have known Aldrin remember him as a perfectionist.

A grade school principal recalls that he had an IQ of 150 and was always near the top of his class.

"Buzz Aldrin wouldn't settle for anything that wasn't excellent," says one of his high school teachers.

★ ★ ★

"He was eager," recalls a friend. "Nobody had to get behind him and prod him."

"Everything was geared and aimed at perfection," says his college track coach.

To those who have known him, it came as no great surprise that Buzz Aldrin had been picked to fly the module that will make man's first attempt to land on the moon.

"If anybody can do it, Buzz can," said a fellow astronaut.

Aldrin is remembered also for a dedication that seemed to mask and cover all else.

"Buzz was one of those kids that had a mind that was really fantastic," recalls Al Hartman, principal of Aldrin's elementary school in Montclair, N.J. "But he would sometimes shrink into his shell."

A technician who worked with Aldrin for months remembers him as "a brilliant engineer and crackerjack pilot, but a totally gray personality."

"Aldrin has a good sense of humor," says astronaut Frank Borman, "But it's hidden sometimes by his dedication."

Aldrin was born on Jan. 20, 1930, in Montclair, and lived there until college. He is the only son of a retired Air Force colonel who was a pilot in the early days of American aviation. Prophetically, the maiden name of Aldrin's late mother was Marion Moon.

The astronaut, now a 39-year-old Air Force colonel, said he got the nickname of "Buzz" from his parents.

Aldrin's father said his son showed his above average intelligence early. He was placed in kindergarten at the age of 4 and started the first grade a year early.

After his first year in school, recalls Hartman, Aldrin was "handled as a special individual along with others like him, only more so."

Aldrin graduated from high school in 1947, achieving As and Bs and finishing in the top 10 per cent of his class.

He had a scholarship offer from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy.

He chose West Point, his father said, because he was "a nut on football" and the academy offered more athletics.

Aldrin was too small for football, but made the track and field squad as a pole vaulter. He was dedicated to staying in shape.

Of 475 in the academy class of 1951, Aldrin graduated third. He chose to take his commission in the Air Force and went into flight training. He received his wings in 1952 and went to Korea in the closing months of the war there.

Aldrin flew 66 combat missions, downing two enemy jets and crippling another.

He returned on leave to New Jersey and married Joan A. Archer of Ho-Ho-Kus, a girl he had met before going to Korea.

After he served at three posts in the United States, the Air Force sent Aldrin to Bitburg, Germany, as a flight commander with a tactical fighter wing.

★ ★ ★

When he approached the end of his three-year tour there, Aldrin said he realized he'd better look for something to do besides fly airplanes.

Aldrin was accepted at MIT in a two-year program leading to a master's degree and sponsored by the Air Force. But after a year, he asked for a year's extension to work for a doctorate.

He earned the degree in astronautics in 1963. His thesis was on orbital rendezvous, and a system he suggested for this critical space maneuver later was adopted in part for the Gemini and Apollo programs.

The National Aeronatics and Space Administration chose Aldrin as an astronaut in 1963 and three years later gave him a chance to prove he could perform a rendezvous as well as talk about it.

★ ★ ★

Aldrin flew as pilot on the Gemini 12 mission commanded by Navy Capt. James A. Lovell.

When a radar failed, Aldrin and Lovell, for the first time, performed a space rendezvous using on-board computations, linking with a previously launched Agena target vehicle.

With the two craft locked together, Aldrin opened the spacecraft, hatch and spent more than 5½ hours walking in space. This record still stands.

The successful four-day mission was the last Gemini shot. Aldrin then turned his training and his perfectionism toward Apollo and the moon.

★ ★ ★

Aldrin, his wife and their three children live in Nassau Bay, a small community near the Manned Spacecraft Center where several other astronauts also live. The Aldrins' children are J. Michael, 13; Janice, who will be 12 in August; and Andrew, 11.

'Buzz Aldrin wouldn't settle for anything that wasn't excellent.' 'Everything was geared and aimed at perfection.'

Michael Collins

Collins Likes the Moon-Shot Job---but Not the Publicity

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — Michael Collins is delighted to be Apollo 11's command module pilot, but he wishes the whole world didn't know about it.

He dreads the publicity that will follow.

"I'm not really big on parades and speeches and that sort of thing," he says. "I enjoy going where I want to go when I want to go without people following me around. I would prefer to remain anonymous."

Collins, a 38-year-old Air Force lieutenant colonel, will be the command module pilot on Apollo 11. He'll stay in a 69-mile orbit of the moon while Neil A. Armstrong and Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. fly down for man's first landing on the moon.

He feels lucky to be making this flight, or for that matter, any flight.

His flying days came very close to ending last year.

Collins was named the command module pilot last year for Apollo 8. He was training to make man's first flight around the moon, but he began to notice strange things happening with his legs.

He was losing sensation in one leg. He noticed his reflexes were decaying and occasionally, unexplicably, he fell down.

Flight surgeons found the problem. A bone spur growth on a vertebrae was affecting the nerves to his legs.

Collins was removed from the crew of Apollo 8, grounded, and sent to an Air Force hospital.

"Things looked pretty dark at the time," he recalls.

Surgeons told him they could either arrest the deterioration, or, in a more dangerous operation, cure it altogether. Collins chose the more dangerous surgery and the chance at a total cure.

★ ★ ★

The operation was a success, but he had to wear a neck brace for several weeks.

Apollo 8—the flight he was washed out of—flew around the moon last December. He was only able to watch from the sidelines, acting as the spacecraft communicator.

But in January, Collins was tapped for the big flight, Apollo 11, man's first attempt to land on the moon.

It's ironic, he notes, that had it not been for the surgery that took him out of Apollo 8, he never would have been named to fly on Apollo 11.

Collins, who calls himself "an Army brat," was born in Rome, Italy. His father, the late Maj. Gen. James L. Collins, was stationed there as military attache in the U.S. Embassy.

He remembers Rome not at all, but it was only the first of more than a half-dozen places he lived as a boy. The family followed Gen. Collins from assignment to assignment.

Mike's brother, James L. Collins Jr., became a career officer in the paratroopers and is now a brigadier general. He also has two sisters.

An uncle is Gen. J. Lawton (Lightning Joe) Collins of World War II fame.

Mike attended St. Alban's School, an Episcopal boarding prep school in Washington, and masters there remember his determination to earn appointment to the U.S. Military Academy.

"He was preparing very obviously for the Military Academy and his main concentration at that time was in math and science," recalls John C. Davis, who taught Collins Spanish.

Davis said Collins was on the wrestling team and "an outstanding wrestler."

Even this, though, was part of his West Point program.

The astronaut graduated 13th in a class of 31 at St. Albans and got his West Point appointment.

He graduated from West Point in 1952 and shocked his mother by taking his commission in the Air Force and planning to become a pilot.

Collins earned his wings and began flying jet fighters at a number of bases.

A fuel explosion while he was taking part in "war games" almost cost him his life, but Collins talks of it almost as a lark.

He said the fuel exploded in a compartment behind him, ripping a hole in the cockpit.

Collins bailed out with no problems.

The pilot met a girl from Boston, Patricia M. Finnegan, while he was in France. She was a short, attractive brunette who worked there for the U.S. Air Force.

"We had dinner together and that was kind of it," she says. She and Collins dated for a year and then married in France.

Collins was content to spend his career as a fighter pilot until the selection of the Mercury astronauts in 1959 seemed to open new horizons.

He was passed over in the second selection of spacemen, but was chosen the third time around.

His first flight was the three-day Gemini 10 mission in July 1966 with Navy Cmdr. John W. Young. Collins twice walked in space during the highly successful mission.

The Collins live in Nassau Bay, a group community five minutes from the Manned Spacecraft Center and the Astronaut's office. The Aldrins live just around the corner, and four other astronaut houses are within view of the Collins home.

There are three Collins children, Kathleen, 10; Ann, 8; and Michael, 6.

Opening lead—♥J

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

There must be many more unlucky bridge players than lucky ones. At least, our experience has been that, for every person who concedes that he is lucky, we find 10 who complain about mistreatment by the gods of chance.

We sympathize with unlucky players. That is, when they're really unlucky. When they bring on their own bad luck, we sympathize with their partners.

South wanted to go to three no-trump after his partner raised him to two but he couldn't count more than the bare 16 points he needed for his no-trump opening.

When he looked over dummy, he was glad he had bid correctly. He counted six easy tricks. All he needed to get to eight was to set up dummy's diamond suit. He won the heart lead in his hand and went right after the diamonds.

★ ★ ★

Diamonds didn't break 3-3 as he had expected but South had a one-track mind. After East took the third diamond and led a second heart, South led another diamond to set up the last one in dummy. East won and led a spade to West. West cleared the hearts and, although South did cash one extra diamond trick, that still left him one short of his contract.

South complained about bad luck. Suits never broke for him.

★ ★ ★

He was right that diamonds had been anything but his best friend this time but he had no right to blame luck for losing his contract. When East won the third diamond and led a second heart, South should have abandoned the diamond suit and tried to double finesse in clubs.

Unless both club honors were held by West, this would give South three club tricks and his contract.

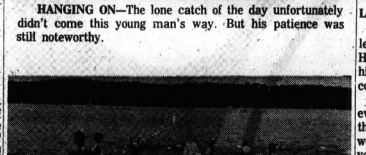
HANGING ON—The lone catch of the day unfortunately didn't come this young man's way. But his patience was still noteworthy.



COOLING OFF—This quartet from the Pontiac Boys' Club delights in a moment of horseplay while taking a cooling dip at Kensington Park's beach yesterday.

300 Boys' Clubbers Play as City Swelters

Armed with beach towels, swimming trunks, fishing poles and small tubs of fresh worms, some 300 members of the Pontiac Boys' Club cut out yesterday for the open air of Kensington Metropolitan Park, south of Milford, while the city sweltered in 90-degree heat.

The outing, a joint effort of the main branch at 530 E. Pike and the extension unit at 124 W. Columbia, was under the direction of acting director Charles A. Haviland.

★ ★ ★ ★

Relaxation — boy style — is constant movement, starting from the moment they swarmed off the bus.

For those that brought their trunks — and those inclined to give in to temptation anyway — there was the sandy beach a few yards from the picnic area as well as the boat launch for fishing enthusiasts.

OTHERS EXPLORED

Still other boys explored the area around picnic headquarters, where several Boys Club directors, including board President James Clarkson, readied the chow.

★ ★ ★ ★

And chow there was, including some 1,250 hot dogs and enough cokes for 1,500 drinks, one gallon of mayonnaise, five gallons of ketchup, bags of peanuts — and whatever the local snack bar had to offer, preferably ice cream sticks.

★ ★ ★ ★

To complete a perfect day there were assorted prizes donated by a number of local and area businessmen.

★ ★ ★ ★

Probably the biggest winner, however, carried his prize under his belt to the tune of 16 hot dogs and 10 cokes. The giant eater was unidentified.

Hospital of Stars Is Crippled by Strike of Nurses

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The famed Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, where many of screendom's stars came for treatment, has been crippled by a strike of most of its 294 nurses.

The maternity pavilion is closed, only the most urgent surgery is performed and the patient population is down from a normal capacity of 508 to about 120.

★ ★ ★ ★

Since the strike began June 10, some of the nurses have returned to their jobs and some new nurses have been hired, bringing the nursing staff to about the same number as the patients remaining.

The nurses say their chief demand is recognition of the California Nurses Association, a professional group, as their bargaining agent. The hospital has been mum on the issues.

Supervisor's Thrift Earns Him a Blast

A proposal from County Supervisor Dennis M. Aaron, that board members travel "tourist" class to the National Association of County Officials' convention was treated roughly by the supervisors' finance committee yesterday.

Supervisors' chairman Charles B. Edwards Jr., D-Madison Heights, said he had returned Aaron's first-class airline ticket and booked him on a tourist flight at Aaron's request.

★ ★ ★

He said it was the prerogative of supervisors to travel as they liked but "supervisors from a first-class county should go first class."

The national conference is being held in Portland, Ore., July 27-30.

LEVELS A BLAST

Carl W. O'Brien, D-Pontiac, leveled a blast at Aaron, D-Huntington Woods, charging him with poor attendance at county meetings.

"Huntington Woods doesn't even have a representative on the board," he said, "maybe if we allow him to phone in his vote they will have."

★ ★ ★

Supervisor George N. Grba, D-Pontiac, chairman of the supervisors' finance committee, said Aaron's proposal to have supervisors fly at tourist rates on county business was "demeaning to our office."

Aaron stated in his letter to the finance committee that the county could save $1,000 if everyone traveled tourist class to the Portland convention, July 27-30.

Card of Thanks 1

WE WOULD LIKE TO thank our friends, neighbors, and others who have been so kind during our recent loss. A special thanks to Pastor C. Davenport, The Orrin M. (Ted) Gibbons Family.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY OF Paul E. Umphrey Jr., who passed away two years ago today.
God took him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts we love him still;
His memory is as dear today,
As in the hour he passed away;
We often sit and think of him,
When we are all alone;
For memory is the only friend,
The grief can call its own.
Sadly missed by Nancy and son Curtis.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF Henry G. Wisbon (Ben) who passed away July 16th, 1968:
God saw you getting weaker; dear,
He did what He thought best;
God whispered "Come home to rest".
No one knows my heart aches,
And no one sees me weep,
I shed my tears, while others are fast asleep.
Sadly missed by wife, Mrs. Grace Wisbon.

IN MEMORY OF HELEN Waters, God planned to make the world a gift,
Surpassing every other,
And we have had our share in it,
For we had you dear mother.
Sadly missed by Del, Pat and Sue.

"There's nothing so devastating as having a cherished belief clobbered"

AND IF YOU HAVE CHERISHED A BELIEF — that there was a large family — you're about to have that belief clobbered when you see this older house. The house was built over 127 years ago owner admits. On the old stage coach route from Pontiac to Lansing. First settlers home of Pontiac. There was a blacksmith shop, doctor's office, and a large family style coach barn for changing of horses every mile. It has 1½ baths, large two-car garage, fireplace and lovely lake view. The exterior is in excellent condition, this lake living will not require any maintenance free with its aluminum siding. If you would like to invest, call us for help. O'Neil Realty 674-2222.

People in the News

President Nixon, with astronaut Frank Borman as his guest, responded just as other Washington baseball fans when the Senators' Tim Cullen walloped a second-inning home run against the Detroit Tigers.

The President jumped to his feet and applauded.

* * *

Nixon stayed through the entire game last night, his fifth appearance at Washington Stadium this season, then went into the Washington and Detroit dugouts and chatted with the players.

Accompanying the President and Borman were David and Julie Eisenhower, his son-in-law and daughter.

The Senators won, 7-3.

Stennis' Son Starts Political Career

John H. Stennis, 34-year-old son of Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., has embarked on his own political career.

Young Stennis, a Jackson, Miss., attorney, won a seat yesterday in the Mississippi House of Representatives.

Humphrey to See Soviet Leaders

Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who has been in the Soviet Union on a private visit since July 9, says he's sure he will see some Soviet leaders during his stay in Moscow.

Humphrey declined, however, to say yesterday whether they would include Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev, President Nikolai Podgorny or Premier Alexei Kosygin.

"I think I will have a very useful visit," the former vice president said.

Agnew Quick With Quip to MDs

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was quip from the hip in an appearance yesterday before the annual meeting of the American Medical Association in New York.

With reference to the role reportedly played by the AMA and Senate Minority Leader Everett Dirksen in blocking Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch's selection of Dr. John H. Knowles as Finch's health assistant, Agnew fired off these one-liners:

"I bring you greetings from Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare ex-officio Everett Dirksen . . .

"If he gets sick," Agnew said of Finch, "He'll take care of himself . . ."

Agnew also said Finch holds no ill feelings for the AMA. Finch told him so, Agnew said, "when I bumped into him last night in a Christian Science reading room."

A Look to Future

Writer Assesses Apollo

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — With man scheduled to fly to the moon today, it seems appropriate to present an interview with Ray Bradbury, the incomparable science - fiction writer.

DU BROW

On NBC Radio's "Monitor" program this past weekend, he discussed the Apollo 11 moon mission and its significance to mankind.

* * *

Here are remarks of the master craftsman who has so often written of the future with genius and compassion:

"The events of this summer, of this project," he said "are commensurate with the event two billion years ago when mankind came out of the seas of earth and made do on the land, and survived, and finally built cities, and came to this summer where we look on the stars and envy the birds, and take off and fly into space.

THE GREAT MYSTERY

'But it has everything to do . . . with immortality. We've been asking the questions for thousands of years. We've gone to our theologians. We've said, 'What is life? What is it all about? What are we doing here?' The great mystery stands at the center of everything.

* * *

"The theologians have tried to help us, and in some cases have. But the mystery remains. And we've gone to our scientists and we've said, 'Tell us about the atom and the molecule and the stars.' And they've done their very best. But the mystery remains.

* * *

"So now we come to this time when we've asked ourselves, 'Why bother being alive? Why be born upon this earth if we must die? What are our chances for survival?' And suddenly the space age gives us our huge chance to survive forever.

* * *

"Once we make it to the moon, once we touch down on Mars, once we move on out to the stars and go to planets revolving around stars so far away we can't even imagine it — once we do this we become the thing that we've always want to become and that is immortal.

'RACE GOES ON'

"The whole race goes on then, and the gift of life passes from hand to hand. We don't have to stay here. The race doesn't have to die. It doesn't have to be destroyed by the dying of the sun, or the super-explosion of the sun.

* * *

"And in the future, generations of people will look back to this summer and say, 'Oh how wonderful it must have been to have been alive then when this huge step which insures the victory over time and space and eternity for all of us, how wonderful to have been alive when that happened.' "

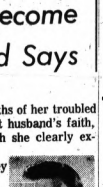
Judy Resolved to Become a Catholic, Husband Says

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Judy Garland in the last months of her troubled life resolved to convert to Catholicism, her last husband's faith, and abandoned her wish to be cremated which she clearly expressed in a will made in 1961.

This is now revealed by her widower, Mickey Deans.



WILSON

"We talked it over often," says Deans. "She wanted to convert because I am a Catholic." A will in his possession, made after their marriage, makes no mention of cremation. Her body, now in a retaining vault, will eventually be placed in a crypt in Ferncliff.

Deans, whose attorneys say is entitled to a legal share of her estate, is uncertain about claiming it. One friend commented sadly: "Poor Judy, with all her talent and all her adulation, her bequest was mostly debts and taxes."

* * *

Steve Rossi and Slappy White do a fine, brave, imaginative job in the first "integrated night club act" at the American Royal Box, starting with Slappy saying, "The Black Panthers want Rockefeller to join 'em—he can start a riot by just showin' up."

* * *

The humor's ethnic but innocent by today's standards. Mets Pitcher Jerry Koosman loved it. "First time I had to work with an Italian; that's what happens when you owe the Mafia money," Slappy (ex-husband of Pearl Bailey) said. He claimed he plays whitejack in Vegas and "fed the poor people's parade from the crap tables to the slot machines."

Availability and Cost of Drugs Are Major Factors in Misuse

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second in a series on drug use and abuse by Dr. Stanley Einstein a clinical psychologist, executive director of the Institute for the Study of Drug Addictions and editor of the International Journal of Addictions.)

DRUGS, MYTHS AND ADDICTIONS

By STANLEY EINSTEIN Ph.
(Written for NEA)

NEW YORK — We really don't know why people as a group misuse drugs, but there are three general theories advanced by various scientists.

Genetic or physiological theories have little meaningful evidence to support them. They do not help us understand why, for example, the majority of persons who experiment with drugs do not get more involved.

★ ★ ★

Psychological theories are of two kinds, personality development and learning theories.

The personality theories assume that something very upsetting, or traumatic, has occurred in the person's development which then results in drug misuses.

OBVIOUS DIFFICULTY

An obvious difficulty with this theory is that many very upsetting events have occurred to many people who have not turned to drugs.

Interviews with the treatment of drug users don't necessarily result in evidence of early childhood traumas.

★ ★ ★

The learning theories generally assume that the drug user has become conditioned or trained to respond to signals both inside and outside of himself that result in drug misuse.

This theory leaves unanswered why people start using drugs and continue to use them, stop and perhaps return to drug use.

ASSUMPTION

Social or environmental theories are basied on the assumption that drug use is socially contagious and that certain environments or communities are more likely to lead to drug use than other environments.

But there is no evidence that drug use, particularly the continued use of drugs, is socially contagious.

★ ★ ★

Drug users are part of every segment of society, in the United States and throughout the world.

Any given family, living in any kind of neighborhood, may have no drug users, one drug user or more.

IMPORTANT FACTORS

The availability and cost of drugs are two of the important factors determining drug misuse.

During World War II, when opiates weren't smuggled into the United States, we didn't have a heroin problem.

Marijuana today is easily available and relatively inexpensive. The World Health Organization has estimated its use by 200 million persons throughout the world.

It may be a difficult pill for us to swallow, but as a nation, Americans have bought the notion that there is some substance, rather than some person, for whatever ails us.

GENERAL ENVIRONMENT

In that sense we might have to consider our general environment as being one big drug "pusher" or drug carrier.

But what of the reasons for drug use given by users to rationalize their use?

I use LSD because it shows me the real reality.

Reality is what each person experiences. For the disturbed person, his hallucinations are real. For the neurotic, his anxiety is real.

The reality that is experienced while high on LSD has to do with many factors — some personal, some related to the drug. But LSD, or any other drug, doesn't make reality more real or less real — one's experience is simply a real one.

I take drugs for kicks.

Kicks are very personal experiences and are totally unrelated to what drugs actually do.

★ ★ ★

Drugs relieve pain, cut through anxiety and depression and stimulate us. They don't really change who we are — although they may exaggerate or help bring to the surface what we are.

★ ★ ★

When we experience "kicks" it is because we have whatever it takes to do so. The basic ingredients for what we experience are already there.

In using drugs to trigger the experience, we help to convince ourselves that we don't have what it takes to create the "kicks" through our own abilities, talents and strengths.

I use drugs to feel more comfortable with people.

It may be comforting to know that meeting the dream person at that party is helped along by a drink, a cigarette, perhaps even a pill.

With a glass in one hand, a cigarette in the other, a tranquilizer in the system, we've taken care of our body. But the drink, the smoke and the chemicals don't add up to our feeling and thoughts, our hopes and plans.

If we are indeed to engage the feelings and concerns of others, they will have to come to accept us as we are. They will have to come to trust us — and we will have to trust them.

★ ★ ★

Trust isn't swallowed, smoked or injected — it's lived through.

You Have to Be a Better Meat Shopper

By JANET ODELL
Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

If you think we're devoting more pages than usual to meat these days, you're right. Every time I go shopping for food, I get more perturbed at the cost of meat. I keep trying to find new recipes to help readers. We just have to become better shoppers if we're going to win the battle.

There's no use screaming that some one must be making a huge profit, because no one is. The man back at the ranch has to pay more for his supplies, labor and transportation. This is the story all down the line until the meat gets into the counter of your favorite store.

* * *

And, as I have noted in the past, we are all buying more meat, especially beef.

You may have to change some of your previous buying habits. If you're accustomed to buying loin pork chops, perhaps you'll have to switch to blade chops. The same high quality protein is found in all pork.

Some stores offer mixed packages of chops at a relatively cheap price per pound.

If you're accustomed to buying only the round bone pot roast, consider a blade bone roast. The meat quality is the same and the cooking not one bit different.

* * *

You may switch from fully cooked boneless ham to partially cooked bone-in ham at a saving sometimes of a dollar a pound. If you don't want to make pea soup in this kind of weather, wrap up the ham bone and freeze it until fall when pea soup will taste wonderful.

* * *

Ground chuck has only a little more fat in it than ground round. You can make do with it unless you are on a strict low fat diet. And when regular hamburger costs 20 cents a pound less than ground chuck, even the larger proportion of fat in the former doesn't make it a poor buy.

* * *

If beef stew meat seems high, buy it, anyway. But marinate it in a tasty marinade, French dressing or wine and use it for kabobs. You need only four or five cubes of meat for each skewer, along with vegetables and or fruit.

* * *

You can, of course, go in heavily for fish, poultry, cheese or egg dishes. But I'm trying to keep meat in your diet too.

Here's a trio of new recipes for you to try.

PORK CHOPS WITH FRESH PINEAPPLE-ORANGE SAUCE

6 thick (1 inch) pork chops
1 tablespoon shortening
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ginger
⅛ teaspoon curry powder, optional
¾ cup orange juice
1 tablespoon sugar
½ 1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup water
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
4 thick (½ inch) slices peeled fresh pineapple or 4 large slices canned pineapple cut into thirds.
2 large or 3 medium oranges, peeled and cut into quarters.

* * *

Brown pork chops well on both sides over moderate heat in hot shortening in heavy stove-to-table or other skillet. Drain off excess fat.

Combine salt, ginger and curry powder; mix and sprinkle over chops. Pour orange juice into pan; cover and cook chops slowly until fork tender, 35 to 45 minutes. Remove chops from pan and keep warm.

Stir sugar, cornstarch and water together until smooth; stir in orange rind. Pour into the pan drippings; stir until thickened. Arrange chops and fruit in skillet; cover and heat, 8 to 10 minutes. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

POTATO-FRANK PUFF WITH MUSTARD SAUCE

2 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
1 envelope (7-serving) mashed potato granules
2 eggs, well beaten
2 tablespoons snipped parsley
8 frankfurters

Generously butter a souffle dish or a 2-quart casserole and sprinkle with bread crumbs to coat bottom and sides. Prepare potatoes according to package directions; reserve ¼ cup prepared potatoes for Mustard Sauce. Beat eggs and parsley into potato.

* * *

Cut 3-inch pieces from frankfurters and slice in half lengthwise. Line sides of baking dish with frankfurter pieces, placed vertically with rounded side out. Thinly slice remaining frankfurters crosswise; stir into potato-egg mixture.

Spoon into prepared dish, pushing potato between frankfurters. Bake in 350 degree oven 50 to 60 minutes or until puffed and golden.

* * *

Loosen around edge with a knife. Invert onto a heated serving plate. Serve hot with Mustard Sauce. 8 servings.

Mustard Sauce: In a small saucepan, blend the reserved ¼ cup prepared potato, ½ cup milk, 1 tablespoon prepared yellow mustard, and 1 teaspoon instant minced onion. Heat slowly to serving temperature, stirring constantly.

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS
Meat Balls

1½ pounds ground beef (chuck, round or hamburger meat)
¾ cup fine bread or cereal crumbs
½ cup finely chopped onion
¾ cup milk
1 egg
1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons shortening
1 beef bouillon cube, optional
½ cup hot water

Sauce

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk or half and half

* * *

Combine beef and next 8 ingredients; mix well. Shape into 20 to 24 balls. Brown balls in shortening, over moderate heat, turning as necessary to brown evenly. Dissolve bouillon cube, if used, in water; pour over meat. Cover; cook gently until meat is well done, 20 to 25 minutes. Pour into casserole.

* * *

Melt butter or margarine in saucepan; stir in flour and seasonings. Add milk or half and half all at once; stir until mixture thickens. Pour over meat balls and serve. About 6 servings.

* * *

Both meat balls and sauce can be chilled before combining. Pack into insulated bag or portable refrigerator and carry to picnic site. Heat slowly to serving temperature.

Avoid Rich Dressing if You're Dieting

Here's a low-calorie salad that may be served with a rich dressing.

ORANGE SALAD

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 cups orange juice
1 cup finely diced celery
Membrane-free sections from 2 medium oranges, drained

Sprinkle gelatin over 1 cup of the orange juice to soften — about 5 minutes. Heat remaining 1 cup of the orange juice to boiling point; add to softened orange juice; stir to dissolve. Add celery and orange sections; turn into half-cup molds or 6-ounce custard cups.

Chill until set. Unmold. Garnish with lettuce and, if desired, serve with Roquefort dressing for non-dieters.

Shredded Lettuce Goes Into Soup

Are you a "yes, tomorrow" dieter? Yes, it is tough to diet today but remember, tomorrow is bikini weather. Diet tip: "slim six" canned soups (ones that are less than 60 calories per 7-ounce serving) are great for easing hunger pangs and putting variety into the skinny menu. Try this slim sipper.

In a saucepan, combine 1 can (10½ ounces) condensed consomme, ½ to 1 soup can water and 1 cup shredded lettuce. Simmer about 10 minutes, stirring now and then. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Ice Cream Treat

Elegant, easy-to-fix ice cream treat: Serve brownies . . . hot from the oven, if possible. Top with vanilla or peppermint ice cream and a smooth chocolate sauce. For color, add one maraschino or minted cherry.

Bananas Add Flavor to These Doughnuts

Bananas have a mellow flavor. Have you tried adding that welcome flavor to doughnuts? Incidentally, bananas help keep doughnuts fresh and moist longer.

With today's fast-heating and controlled electric fry pans it is very easy to turn out a batch of "fried cakes" without the bother of deep fat and constant temperature checking.

* * *

These new banana doughnuts are great as a breakfast treat, or any time during the day with coffee or milk.

* * *

Try them split and buttered, spread with cream cheese or jelly. Or eat them New England fashion with sharp Cheddar cheese.

BANANA DOUGHNUTS

4 cups sifted flour
4½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup shortening
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup mashed ripe bananas
Melted fat or salad oil to depth of 2 inches in pan

Preheat oil in fry-pan to 375 degrees. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and sugar.

* * *

Cut in shortening. Add eggs and bananas; blend with spoon until flour is taken up. Turn onto floured board and roll to ⅜-inch thickness. Cut with floured 2½-inch doughnut cutter.

Fry until doughnuts are golden brown, turning once (about 45 seconds on each side; "holes" will take less time). Drain well. Makes 2 dozen.

BOURBON BARBECUE SAUCE — Mix together: 1 cup catsup, ⅓ cup Bourbon, ¼ cup each molasses and vinegar, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 teaspoons soy sauce, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 cloves crushed garlic and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Let stand several hours. Use as a marinade and basting sauce for hamburgers, frankfurters, spareribs and other meats. Makes about 2 cups.

Soup Mix Base for New Dip

This first course makes plenty!

Avocado Dip Platter

4 ripe avocados
1 envelope (1⅜ ounces) onion soup mix
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup commercial sour cream

* * *

Halve and peel avocados. Mash fine with a fork; or force through a sieve or food mill; or puree in an electric blender or with an electric mixer. Mix avocado with onion soup mix (just as it comes from the envelope), lemon juice and sour cream.

* * *

Turn into a bowl. Serve on a platter with carrot and celery sticks and potato chips. Makes 3½ cups dip.

TORTONI BOMBE — This quick Tortoni Bombe combines frozen strawberries and peaches with frozen whipped topping and a crunchy graham cracker shell for an impressive, special-occasion dessert.

Creamy Dessert Frozen in Bowl

Tortoni is an ice-cream-like dessert of Italian origin with a frozen whipped cream base that's flavored with rum and usually contains almonds, macaroons and maraschino cherries.

When frozen and served in small paper cups, it is known as Biscuit Tortoni. In Rome and Sicily, however, where elaborate frozen desserts are popular, tortoni often is molded into great architectural structures with elaborate garnishes and decorations.

★ ★ ★

This quick adaptation which is shaped in a mixing bowl is made the modern way. Frozen whipped topping provides the base and frozen strawberries and peaches add bright color and flavor (other frozen fruits, singly or in combination, may be substituted).

★ ★ ★

Packaged graham cracker crumbs are used for the crunchy shell but, if you prefer to be more traditional, an equivalent amount of macaroon crumbs may be used.

QUICK TORTONI BOMBE

Crumb Crust

1¼ cups packaged graham cracker crumbs
3 tablespoons chopped almonds
3 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup butter, melted

Fruit Filling

1 package (12 ounces) frozen sliced peaches, thawed
1 package (10 ounces) frozen strawberry halves, thawed
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup chopped almonds
1 teaspoon rum extract
1 carton (9 ounces) frozen whipped topping, thawed

★ ★ ★

Combine crumbs, almonds, sugar and butter. Mix well; press mixture firmly against the bottom and sides of a 1½-quart mixing bowl. Chill.

MIX FRUITS

Drain peaches and strawberries, pouring fruit syrups into a small saucepan. Sprinkle gelatine on fruit syrup; let stand a few minutes to soften. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatine is dissolved. Chill until syrupy. Dice peaches.

Fold almonds, rum extract, diced peaches, strawberries and whipped topping into gelatine mixture. Spoon mixture into crumb-lined bowl. Cover with plastic wrap or foil and freeze until firm.

When ready to serve, loosen edge of dessert with a knife. Dip mold in hot water for a few seconds, then place serving platter on mold and invert. Tap to loosen. If desired, decorate with additional whipped topping. Cut in wedges while frozen and serve about 15 minutes after cutting.

Makes 1 1½-quart mold or 8 to 10 servings.

Note: If desired, substitute an equivalent amount of macaroon crumbs for the graham cracker crumbs. To make them, crush whole macaroons in a plastic bag or whirl the cookies in an electric blender).

Wilt Head Lettuce for Good Salad

Old-fashioned wilted lettuce is still popular, and several readers have asked for a recipe.

Wilted Lettuce Salad

6 slices bacon, diced
1 head lettuce
1 tomato diced
¼ cup green onion, sliced
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons vinegar

Fry bacon until crisp; drain, reserving 1 tablespoon fat. Tear lettuce into bowl; add tomato, onion and seasonings. Combine vinegar and bacon fat; bring to a boil. Toss with salad. Crumble bacon over salad. This can be done in a chafing dish for at-the-table service.

Beans 'n' Kraut

Try this all-in-one frank sandwich made your own specialty with a unique bean relish: Combine 1 can (16 ounces) pork & beans with tomato sauce and 1 cup drained sauerkraut (if desired, cut strands with kitchen shears). Serve as relish with frankfurter sandwiches. Makes 2½ cups or enough for 8 to 10 sandwiches.

Heart Recipient Ist on Social Security

Kalamazoo (UPI) — Philip T. Barnum, 50, Kalamazoo, has become the first heart transplant to receive Social Security benefits.

Barnum, Michigan's first heart transplant patient, has steadily gained strength since his September 1968 operation at University Hospital in Ann Arbor.

★ ★ ★

He goes fishing and does a limited amount of work in his field of accounting.

Barnum received his first Social Security checks, totaling $1,600 for compensation from Decmeber to May.

TELLS OF ALLOTMENT

Glen D. Price, Social Security field representative, said Barnum will receive $151.20 a month from Social Security until he is able to return to gainful activity as accountant and manager of the West Main Street license plate office here.

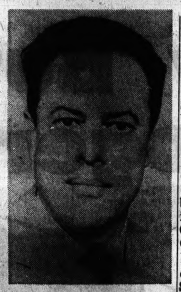
★ ★ ★

He has done a limited accounting business over the phone three or four times a week and says, "I hope it won't be too long until I get back to work, but I don't know . . ."

★ ★ ★

Barnum, a native of Mount Pleasant, is the 51st transplant patient of record. His bills have exceeded $40,000. He has received donations of $20,000 to date and other bills have been paid from other sources.

Patrick Hassett, district manager of the Social Security Administration, said as far as he can determine, Barnum is first to qualify for disability under Social Security as a transplant patient.



PHILIP T. BARNUM

Plane's an Odd-Looking Duck, but It Flies

WALLINGFORD, Pa. (AP) — Engineers look at the Blue Stoose, and say "It can't possibly fly." It has no rudder, no elevators and no ailerons.

But pilot George C. Spratt doesn't know the airplane is not supposed to fly—so he flies it.

Spratt, 65, who lives here, built the Blue Stoose at a shop in Media and flies it out of Charlestown, Md., over the Chesapeake Bay.

Spratt's Blue Stoose is powered by an outboard motor, and Spratt guides it by tipping the wing.

Spratt said his father, the late Dr. George A. Spratt, was trying to invent airplanes during the later stages of the 19th century and knew the Wright brothers.

"Father always said they got off on the wrong foot," said Spratt. "They built a plane with rudder and ailerons and a fixed wing, and conventional airplane builders have been making them that way ever since."

His plane has a boat-shaped hull 17 feet long with oversized fins at the rear. The propeller is between the fins.

In flight the hull is suspended from a 24-foot long wing, which is hinged so it can be tipped from side to side and up and down.

TWO MECHANISMS

In the cockpit beneath the wing, the pilot controls the direction of flight by two mechanisms. One is the steering wheel which has controls connecting with the wing. When the pilot turns the wheel to the right, it causes the right section of the wing to dip, putting the plane in a bank to the right. A turn to the left has the opposite effect.

The other mechanism is the motorcycle handlebar, which also contains the accelerator. This control causes the entire wing to move as a unit and directs the craft up or down. However, the pilot said it is seldom needed for that purpose.

★ ★ ★

Spratt said he named it the Blue Stoose for William B. Stout, an airplane designer, and the goose.

He said he thinks the plane could be mass-produced for about $3,500.

China Decries U.S. Films

TOKYO (AP) — American films are corrupting Soviet teenagers, Communist China charged Sunday.

The New China News Agency said in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo that by letting Western films be shown under the pretext of cultural exchange, the Soviet Union was allowing itself to become "the concocter and salesman of bourgeois poison.

★ ★ ★

"When sexy films or gangster films are shown," the news agency said, "the Soviet revisionists pretentiously put up a 'No Admittance for Children Under 16' sign only to arouse greater curiosity among teenagers."

Showing such films, the broadcast continued, has led "quite a number of youths to corruption, degeneration and crime."

The Communist Chinese blast came at a time when films from all over the world are being shown at the Moscow Film Festival. The American entry is "2001—A Space Odyssey."

50 Astronauts Remain Active

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Fifty astronauts remain active from the original total of 66 selected to participate in this country's effort to put man on the moon in this decade. Eight astronauts have died, eight have resigned or transferred.

Three of the eight died in a fire at Cape Kennedy in January 1967, four in plane crashes, one in an automobile accident.

About $5 billion is spent annually to keep the nation's food and drug supply free from contamination and to prop-

Translation of Foreign Names Spells Trouble for Ivan

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians succeed in a lot of things, but attaining facility in the English language is not one of them.

This even goes for the names of American Communist leaders.

★ ★ ★

When Gus Hall was in Moscow recently he was introduced at a news conference as "Hell Guess."

This blooper illustrated the chronic Russian confusion over the letters G and H in translating foreign names. The Russians also seem to have a gift for mixing up foreigners' first and last names.

COMPROMISE

Hall's first name threw the translators for a loop anyway because spelling it straight in Russian would have made him "Goose," the same word in Russian and English. The compromises makes him "Guess."

Another classic deformation is the name of the former U.S. vice president, pronounced here as "Goobert Hemfry."

Under the Russian system of translating, Havana becomes Gavana, Hamburg is Gamburg, Hawaii is Gavaii and the American film capital is Gollywood. A Hollywood Western movie comes out in Russian: Gollyvoodski kovboyski film.

The trouble does not end with proper names.

DISASTROUS

American expressions are popular among the English-speaking Russians, but the results are sometimes disastrous.

A Pravada writer, Yuri Zhukov, demonstrated his knowledge of English recently by introducing an article on rumors of a change in Vietnam policy thus:

"It's cooking something in Washington."

Since this sentence appeared in Pravda in English, the author went on the explain that this is an old American expression that means "Something is being cooked in the Washington kitchen."

Occasionally a glaring error in some public sphere goes unnoticed for weeks. The first translation for the movie "Room at the Top" was "Mansarda" in Russian advertisements.

Mansarda is the Russian word for attic.

Russians learning English are badly handicapped by their lack of contact with native English speakers, causing them to fall into the trap of outdated slang.

One young diplomat, anxious to show how hard he had studied his English, was telling a group of Americans about his fellow-students who couldn't make the grade in the Institute of Foreign Languages.

"These you would call nincompoops, yes?" he asked.

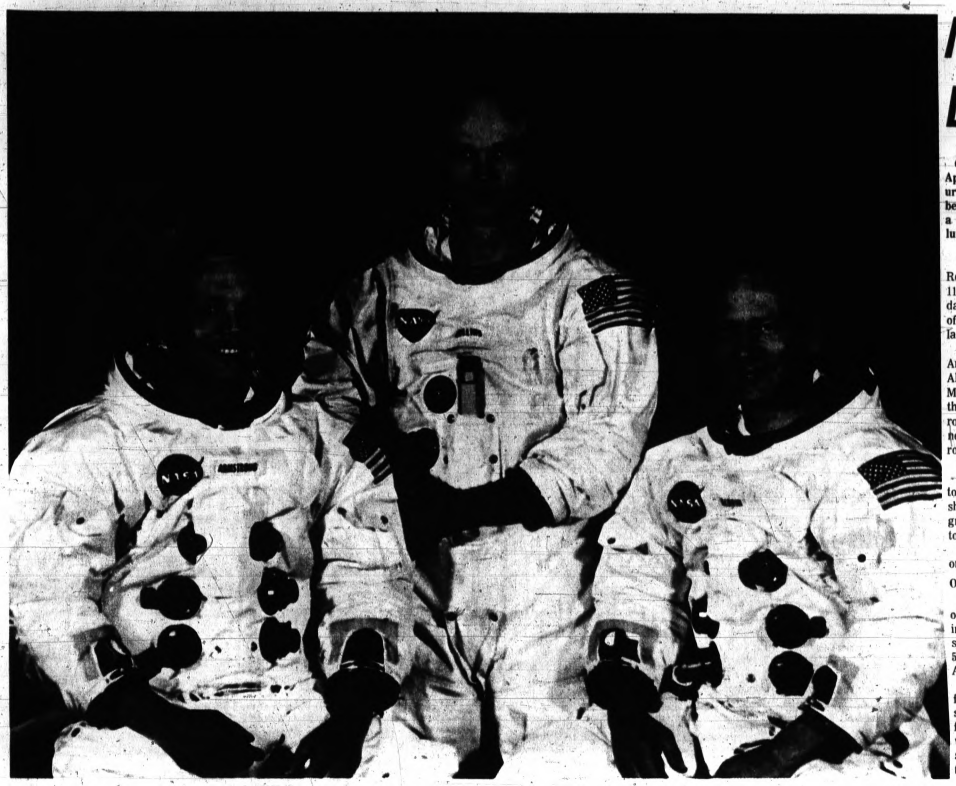
Apollo Leaves Orbit, on Lunar Path



U. S. Moon Pioneers Are Neil Armstrong (Left), Michael Collins And Edwin Aldrin Jr.

Moon 3 Days Away; Landing Is Sunday

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 11 astronauts restarted their Saturn 5 third-stage engines and shortly before noon left earth orbit, heading on a path for the moon and their historic lunar-landing mission.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Reaching for a dream, America's Apollo 11 astronauts soared into earth orbit today and passed the vital first milestone of the voyage of the ages, an attempt to land men on the moon.

Civilian commander Neil A. Armstrong, Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Collins started the journey on the awesome power of a Saturn 5 superrocket that thundered from Cape Kennedy at 8:32 a.m. (Pontiac time) with a roar heard 'round the globe.'

★ ★ ★

"Houston, be advised the visual is go today," one of the astronauts said shortly after the spacecraft left the ground. "They finally gave me a window to look out."

Armstrong's first words on achieving orbit were very businesslike.

ORBIT CONFIRMED

"The booster has been confirmed for orbital flight. Both spacecraft are looking good," he said. He referred to the still—attached third stage of the Saturn 5 which was to ignite later to boost Apollo 11 toward the moon.

The astronauts were to circle the globe for 2½ hours to make certain the spaceship's thousands of systems were functioning. Then, at 11:16 p.m. they were to restart the still-attacked third stage of the Saturn 5 to start toward their target, 250,801 miles away.

★ ★ ★

Barring problems, these three Columbuses of the space age are to sail outward across a quarter-million-mile ocean of space for three days and fire themselves into Lunar orbit just 69 miles above the moon on Saturday.

They are to follow the trail blazed twice in the last seven months, by the pioneers of Apollo 8 and 10.

LANDING SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon, Armstrong and "Buzz" Aldrin are to detach a lunar module and fly it down to a landing at the Sea of Tranquillity. Early the next day they are to fullfull a centuries-old dream by walking on and exploring the lunar landscape.

Civil defense officials estimated more than a million persons, the largest crowd ever to witness a Cape Kennedy launching, watched as the great rocket lifted away from earth.

Thousands had camped overnight on beaches and other vantage points. Roads were jammed early this morning.

Related Stories, Pictures, Pages A-5, C-16

Among those who watched the start of the moon mission from Cape Kennedy were former President Lyndon B. Johnson, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Armstrong's wife, Janet, and their two sons, Eric, 12, and Mark, 6.

MEN OF PEACE

The astronauts go to the moon as men of peace, bearing the flags and messages of many lands.

They may not make it. For Apollo 11 is not only man's most ambitious space adventure but also the most dangerous.

★ ★ ★

The astronauts and space officials warned in advance that the flight might have to be aborted at any time, even up to the moment of lunar touchdown.

And if the two astronauts do land, there is a remote chance they could be stranded on the moon, with only two days of oxygen and no chance of rescue.

EAGLE A SYMBOL

The astronauts have chosen as their symbol the drawing of an eagle swooping to the cratered surface, its talons gripping an olive branch.

As is the manner of men, Armstrong and Aldrin will plant an American flag on the surface as a symbol of conquest. But they will not claim this territory for the United States. To make this clear they will leave behind a plaque bearing these words:

★ ★ ★

"Here men from the planet earth
"First set foot upon the moon
"July 1969 A.D.
"We came in peace for all mankind."

MOON ASSIGNMENTS

They are to gather precious rocks from this new world, deploy scientific instruments and determine how well man in a bulky space suit can operate in the unfamiliar one-sixth gravity field on the moon.

Armstrong and Aldrin are to spend about 2½ hours outside. In all they are to be on the moon less than a day.

But in that time they will have opened the limitless frontier of space a bit further. The rocks they bring home may provide clues to the origin of the moon, the earth and even the solar system—and set the course for future expeditions to probe the universe beyond present imagination.

If all goes well, much of the world will watch the entire lunar surface activity beamed live via television from a camera the astronauts are to mount 30 feet away from their landing craft.

Television provided millions with a ringside seat for the blazing start of the momentous mission. Much of the world stood still as the 363-foot Saturn 5 roared into the sky.

Blacks Confront Commissioners

By ED BLUNDEN

A group of leaders and citizens of the black community last night confronted the City Commission with reports of police brutality and civil rights violations.

Reports of growing unrest, demands and thinly veiled threats were made.

★ ★ ★

The group addressed itself directly to two recent incidents:

- Fire Chief Charles D. Marion's four-week suspensions of two black firemen for having moustaches too long.
- The forceful arrest on July 11 of two black community workers in front of the Hayes Jones Center.

UNION JOINS PROTEST

Joining the protest over the firemen, officers in the Pontiac Fire Fighters Association charged Chief Marion was in violation of the union contract in handing out the suspensions.

Secretary Anthony Zagrafos and Treasurer Allen Watts said the fire chief violated two clauses of the contract. One section calls for not changing work requirements without negotiation. The other calls for a 60-day notice before policy changes.

★ ★ ★

District 4 Commissioner F. Jack Douglas said he agreed entirely with the Fire Fighters Association officials.

Watts also added he had knowledge that an official fire vehicle had been used to haul anti-fair housing literature during the city campaign of last year.

He also claimed the chief had brought the literature into the fire station and said he (Watts) was expected to be called to testify in the incident and was prepared to do so.

Marion today denied the charge, claiming he "knew nothing about any fire vehicle being used to haul such literature."

★ ★ ★

The black firemen, the only two of their race men on the 143-man force, told the commission they were also bringing suit in Circuit Court on the constitutional question.

Chant Is Raised, 'Bird' Lifts Off

By HARRY J. REED
Editor, The Pontiac Press

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla.—Even before the first orange tongues of flame burst into life beneath Apollo 11, the chant began:

REED

"Go, bird, go."

The thousands viewing the launch from grandstands rose to their feet as the countdown came over the loud speaker.

Cameras and binoculars at the ready, they concentrated their every fiber on the slim black-and-white spacecraft glistening five miles away across the sand and swampland.

I had the feeling that the assembled prayer-power alone could have raised the three astronauts off pad 39.

LATECOMERS SCRAMBLE

Latecomers delayed by the enormous volume of traffic were still scrambling for position as the 365-foot missile slowly began its fantastic journey.

Shock waves from the awesome power plant could be felt as the bottom of the Saturn 5 cleared the top of the gantry.

★ ★ ★

The power plant was lifting 7.5 million pounds, more and more rapidly, as I recalled from yesterday's tour data that only 13,000 pounds would be coming back.

Noise from the viewers reached a screaming pitch, but was overpowered by the volcanolike rumble of the thrusting engines.

TEARS OF EXCITEMENT

People were crying from sheer excitement, waving their arms as if to help lift the rocket on its way. Cries of "beautiful . . . fantastic . . ." and again "go, go, go" were heard.

The thousands of birds frightened from the nearby wildlife refuge at the first rumbles began settling back again as Apollo 11 left its well-wishers as specks on a planet which would soon greatly diminish from the vantage point of the three spacemen.

Those precious moments of launching seem very personal. You tend to tune out

APOLLO LIFTS OFF—The Apollo 11 rocket and spaceship with three astronauts aboard lifts off its pad at Cape Kennedy this morning, embarking on its historic moon-landing mission.

El Salvador Troops Push Toward Honduran Capital

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP)—Ignoring a call from the Organization of American States for a cease-fire, El Salvador pressed its invasion of Honduras today and demanded that the Honduran army "surrender before being defeated on the battleground."

Diplomatic sources in San Salvador said Salvadorean forces appeared to have penetrated as much as 20 miles inside Honduras.

★ ★ ★

A seven nation peace-keeping committee dispatched by the OAS arrived in San Salvador last night to seek a cease-fire in the two-day-old war, but there was no immediate indication of success.

The Salvadorean army said it had penetrated 20 miles into southwest Honduras. A second column to the north was nearly 10 miles inside the border.

2 TROOP COLUMNS

Salvadorean government sources said the army was driving toward the Honduran capital of Tegucigalpa in two columns — one of tanks, artillery and motorized vehicles moving along the American Highway, part of the Pan-American Highway, and ther other an infantry force marching through the mountains.

The capitals of both countries were under curfew and blackout last night.

Twelve planes, eight of them Honduran, reportedly have been shot down.

Fighting was reported savage and often hand-to-hand along the border. Casualties were high, but no figures were available.

Honduran planes yesterday bombed the international airport outside San Salvador and a Standard Oil of New Jersey refinery 25 miles away. El Salvador admitted several gasoline storage tanks were hit, and the column of smoke could be seen in the capital.

Skies to Cloud Up; Showers Forecast

Today's sunny skies are expected to become overcast tonight as clouds move in, bringing showers and possibly thundershowers.

Variable cloudiness and warm temperatures, with a chance of afternoon showers or thundershowers, are forecast tomorrow. A chance of showers and cooler temperatures are forecast for Friday.

Temperatures will fall to 67 to 73 tonight and reach a high of 82 to 88 tomorrow.

A sunny 72 was the low temperature before 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac. The mercury had climbed to 87 by 12:30 p.m.

Cash ADC Payments for Clothing Backed

Cash payments may be paid to Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) mothers to provide emergency clothing relief, if the County Social Services Board gets its way.

About 40 ADC mothers showed up at the board of supervisors' human resources committee meeting yesterday and learned, along with committee members, that the social services board favors cash payments over clothing allotments supplied by the county's clothing store at 1 Lafayette in Pontiac.

Supervisor Robert F. Patenales, R-Royal Oak, chairman of the committee, read a resolution from the social services board drafted Monday which claimed the county store was not answering the needs of welfare recipients and called for "devising another method."

Patenales and members of his committee questioned Mrs. Ann Rumsey of the social services board and Miss Ora Hinckley, social services director, on what other method should be used.

★ ★ ★

They were told cash payments on a "needs basis" should be provided for the clothing of welfare children.

The method proposed by Mrs. Rumsey and Miss Hinckley would be similar to what was followed in Wayne and Washtenaw counties last year. The emergency relief payments would be available upon request by the ADC mothers from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31.

Since the social services board is the "policy-making" body, it will be up to them to finalize details on the system proposed for providing ADC emergency relief clothing, county officials indicated.

The supervisors' human resources committee is expected to get the social services board's proposal for relief payments later this month and will then make its recommendations on funding which must be approved by a vote of the full board of supervisors.

A plan to open up a temporary emergency clothing center in south Oakland County, which was to be decided on at tomorrow's meeting of the board of supervisors, now will be scrapped.

The county's existing clothing store will remain in operation, however, until such a time as a new method and financing are approved for the emergency ADC clothing.

Last year emergency clothing relief for ADC mothers averaged $47 per child. Miss Hinckley expressed the hope this year's program wouldn't go over $50 per child.

Under the existing method of using the county clothing store, costs are expected to total $200,000 for the program this year.

100 PCT. PARTICIPATION?

Eligibility for the emergency relief wouldn't be changed, Miss Hinckley pointed out. She said, however, 100 per cent participation by the ADC families would be a possibility under the proposed cash payment program.

Costs for the program were funded on a 60-40 ratio by the county and state, respectively, last year.

The county's share totaled $78,000 for the four-month period September through December. After Jan. 1 this year, the county continued the program and bore all the costs, which have exceeded $73,000 for the first six months.

★ ★

The county clothing store would probably be continued in operation to service other welfare programs and clothe children in the foster parent program and those at children's village. Officials have stated there has been no complaint on the quality of clothing and service from these other areas.

★ ★

In Use of Fraudulent Patent

Drug-Sale Monopoly Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration, trying to lower spiraling drug prices through vigorous antitrust enforcement, has charged seven major drug firms with using a fraudulent patent to monopolize sales of a leading antibiotic.

The government, in a three-count civil suit, also demanded at least $25 million in damages — probably much more—from two of the companies, Charles Pfizer & Co. Inc. and American Cyanamid Co.

★ ★ ★

The action marked the second time in a week Justice Department antitrust enforcers moved against drug patents in a concerted drive for more competition in the industry.

In yesterday's suit, filed in federal court here, Pfizer was accused of obtaining a fraudulent patent in 1955 on the drug tetracycline, the nation's largest selling broad-spectrum antibiotic.

The department claimed Pfizer got the tetracycline patent by withholding information and making "false and misleading statements" to the U.S. Patent Office.

The government said Cyanamid made deceptive statements to back Pfizer's patent claim in exchange for a licensing arrangement that allowed the two firms to maintain holds on antibiotic sales.

In addition to Pfizer and Cyanamid, five other leading drug producers — Bristol-Myers Co., Olin-Mathieson Chemical Corp., Squibb Beech-Nut Inc., E. R. Squibb & Sons Inc. and the Upjohn Co.—were charged with conspiracy to monopolize the tetracycline trade.

That count stemmed, the government said, from licensing agreements under which Pfizer, Cyanamid and Bristol-Myers would manufacture the drug and all seven firms could sell it in dosage form.

The complaint also asked the court to cancel the Pfizer patent and prohibit the firm from collecting royalties on tetracycline.

Henry Called to Testify at New Bethel Exam

DETROIT (UPI) — Milton R. Henry, a vice president of the Republic of New Africa, was called to the stand to testify yesterday in a surprise move during the pretrial examination for a 20-year-old New Yorker accused of gunning down a Detroit policeman last March.

Henry, a Pontiac lawyer who is also the defense attorney for Rafael Viera, refused to answer many of the questions asked by the prosecution, Asst. Wayne County Prosecutor Michael Connor. Viera is charged with first-degree murder in the death of rookie Patrolman Michael Czapski outside the New Bethel Baptist Church late on the night of March 29.

Trial Board Gets Brutality Charge

A committee appointed by the Pontiac Area Planning Council (PAPC) to investigate the arrest of two black community workers has taken the case to the Police Trail Board.

The probe concerns the forceful arrest last Thursday of Kenneth Walker, employe of Harambee Inc., and Elick Shorter, social director for the Pontiac Area Urban League. The men were apprehended after a struggle in front of the Hayes Jones Community Center and face charges in District Court of creating a disturbance and resisting arrest.

Black community leaders have charged that police used brutality in the case and that Shorter only was trying to act as a peacemaker in the incident.

Asked to enter the case Thursday, the PAPC appointed a three-men investigative committee: Edward Barker and Dr. Robert R. Turpin, both of the PAPC Task Force on Race Relations, and Samuel Baker, chairman of the Pontiac Human Relations Commission.

Barker, in a statement yesterday, informed Vice Chairman Charles M. Tucker Jr., PAPC vice chairman, that his committee had conferred with Isadore Goode, chairman of the trial board, and Police Chief William Hanger.

"Both have stated without reservation that the trial board is readily available for the full protection of individual rights . . . the public will be informed as to the judgment and resultant action of the trial board decision," Barker said.

Saigon Tells Reds: Respond Now

PARIS (UPI) — A Saigon delegation spokesman today said if the Communist side at the Vietnam peace talks "really wants a negotiated settlement, this is the time to respond."

Referring to the offer by South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to let the Vietcong participate in jointly controlled and internationally supervised general elections, the spokesman said:

"They cannot keep rejecting our offers. They must realize this is a fair and generous offer on our part."

The spokesman stressed the Saigon and Washington delegations would give the Communists "plenty of time and patience" when the 26th session of the talks takes place tomorrow.

He said many South Vietnamese support the view of Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, coordinator of the Saigon delegation, who has said he would recommend withdrawal from the talks if the Communists reject Thieu's latest offer. He would not call Ky's statement "official Saigon policy."

He pointed to last Friday's statement by Ambassador Pham Dang Lam of South Vietnam that there were "limits" to patience and goodwill, but said this did not mean the Saigon delegation was contemplating a walkout.

★ ★ ★

Thieu's latest proposal will be officially presented to the Communists tomorrow.

Legislators Push for Adjournment

LANSING (UPI) — Facing the probability of adjourning today until the middle of September, Michigan lawmakers were prepared to roll up their sleeves and clean up as much as possible on their bill-packed calendars.

First in priority was about $1.2 billion worth of 1969-70 budget bills. Joint legislative conference committees have been working for weeks seeking compromises on the bills and their reports were ready for presentation to members of both chambers for debate.

Included in these bills are appropriations for the state's colleges and universities and departments of social services and education.

Earlier in the session, the legislature adopted a resolution authorizing the state to go on paying its bills and writing checks according to last year's appropriations.

Birmingham News

Sign Plan Felt Ill-Advised

BIRMINGHAM—Johnson, Johnson and Roy Inc., designer of Birmingham's urban plan, feels establishment of special districts for sign control in Birmingham would be ill-advised.

In a letter to the City Commission, the consultanting firm said establishment of such districts on the basis of speed zones and traffic volumes would be extremely difficult, requiring extensive research and study.

★ ★ ★

The guidelines for resulting standards, the firm feels, constantly would be under attack for adjustment.

"For example, a sign at the beginning of a row of shops which is large enough to be readable for a fast-moving vehicle obviously blocks views to succeeding shops down the line.

"The next shop in line would then have a legitimate reason to request a larger sign with possibly even a further projection, which essentially is the beginning of the age-old battle of the signs and subsequent deterioration of the environment," the letter said.

The firm also believes such an ordinance would be difficult to control. "Its complexity would negate its original intent," the consultants said.

"What must be kept in mind is the goal of the sign ordinance, which is to contribute toward a unique Birmingham image of quality.

"Hunter Boulevard is a particularly important zone to convey since it inherently is the only view that large numbers of people have as they pass through the city of Birmingham. Because of Hunter Boulevard's critical location, it dramatically reflects what the community is trying to do," the letter added.

In its meeting this week, the City Commission awarded a contract for construction of concrete sidewalks in a area bounded by Pierce, 14 Mile, Southfield and Brown to the J. J. Barney Inc.

The low bid was $41,603.03. There were three other bidders.

SEPTEMBER START

Construction is expected to begin by the end of September with completion scheduled for Oct. 25.

City Engineer William T. Killeen said the low bid is about 1 per cent higher than the engineer's estimate.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The City Commission has appealed an Appellate Court decision that upheld a Circuit Court verdict on a petition for rezoning the Virginia House property, on the southwest corner of Woodward and Lone Pine.

The Circuit Court decision held that two acres of the three-acre parcel should be rezoned from multiple family residential to commercial.

The rezoning petiton was filed about two years ago.

Report on Firing of Euler Out by Friday—Birnkrant

When will some facts be known about the firing of Harold B. Euler, former administrator of Pontiac General Hospital?

Maybe Thursday, maybe Friday.

★ ★ ★ ★

This was the answer given a delegation of about 30 citizens and employes of the hospital at the City Commission meeting last night. It was the fourth straight week a delegation asked the commission why the Hospital Board of Trustees fired Euler.

City commissioners have confessed they do not know why Euler was dismissed.

★

'BEST INTERESTS'

Euler was fired June 17 by the board and given no other known reason but that it was in "the best interests" of the hospital."

City Attorney Shirwin Birnkrant last night revealed negotiations have been going on between himself and Euler's attorney, Clarence Patterson.

★ ★ ★

He said, "It is my expectation that everyone concerned will be satisfied by a report I will have by Friday."

Birnkrant also pointed out that the hospital board meets at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the hospital. However, he was not sure the trustees would announce anything at that time.

WANT A SOLUTION

City commissioners, obviously tiring of the issue, indicated they wanted a solution.

Mayor Pro Tem T. Warren Fowler Sr. said, "I'll be looking to hear from you." He said the City Commission was prepared to hold a special meeting after the hospital board meeting. He said the commission had been checking city ordinances to see what rules applied to the hospital board, but did not elaborate.

★ ★ ★

Fowler and other commissioners said they were getting increasingly concerned about the continuity of care for patients.

your friends or those seated nearby in your excitment.

But once the rocket is gone, everyone seemed to turn to someone else to express their personal evaulation of the historic event.

UP AT 4 A.M.

Memories of the fitful slumber of last night, the 4 a.m. rising to catch the a.m. bus, the slow trip over jammed roads — it all fades in importance.

You feel like part of history just being there.

Pontiac Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. and I arrived here Monday afternoon, in preparation for today's space shot.

Mayor Taylor was one of 12,000 civic leaders of the nation invited by Vice President Spiro Agnew and NASA officials to view the Apollo 11 launch.

★ ★ ★

He was allowed to invite a guest to join him, and asked me.

in shape right up until blast-off, so we in shape right up until blast-off, so se felt duty-bound to do the same. A dip in the hotel pool and a leisurely stroll after dinner was our plan.

Orlando has downtown problems similar to Pontiac, with vacant stores quite common.

ORLANDO PROPOSAL

In our hotel, the Downtown Orlando Council had a presentation Monday night of plans for a multilevel plaza and redevelopment, and we stuck our heads in the door as the presentation was being assembled.

"Looks like the same problems here as at home," Taylor said.

Most of yesterday was spent in a comprehensive, five-hour guided tour of the NASA facilities.

As our GMC air-conditioned bus left the hotel, one cheery NASA man said "good luck," which brought a few nervous laughs.

I wondered whether they'd ever lost a tour, or just what he meant.

CHRISTMAS ON ROUTE

During an hour's ride to the Cape, we passed through a small town called 'Christmas' and sure enough they had a decorated Christmas tree in the center of town. It stays up, year long.

We picked up a NASA engineer who was doubling as a tour guide, and headed for our first stop, the mission briefing room.

As the room darkened for a 30-minute film on our space program, I noticed a series of lighted numerals in one corner.

It was a countdown clock, clicking off the seconds to launch time.

We were told there was a five-hour launch "window" from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m. (Pontiac time) today. If any delays held up the firing beyond 1 p.m. It would have to be delayed until Friday, or next Monday.

Longer delays would push the blast-off back another 28 days. If Apollo 11 failed, Apollo 12 would go up in September, and in November if today's shot is successful.

In the vehicle assembly building, which is large enough to stack the cubic footage of three pentagon buildings, we saw several other Apollo rockets being prepared.

This 750-foot-high building receives the Saturn rockets in sections, and then workers assemble them vertically. If the space shots themselves are awesome, the buildings and machines which bring them about are equally so.

As each new wonder was explained to us, I began to realize how such a venture could cost $24 billion.

Biafra Flights Resume

TORONTO (AP) — A Canadian relief organization has resumed flights to Biafra but can supply only enough food and medicine for hospitals and sick bays, a spokesman says.

Ken Davis, managing director of Canairelief, said last night the organization averaged two flights a night from the island of Sao Tome last week. But he said the flights have been increasingly difficult since the Nigerian air force has been beefed up with Russian fighter planes.

QUICK SERVICE ON MOST MODELS

Adults learn by doing too. Enrolled in the Montessori teacher training program, this trio sees how the equipment works. At the left is Mrs. Robert J. Murphy, North Williams Lake Road, mother of two and former teacher of emotionally disturbed children. She wants to know where she's going, she says. The couple at the right are the Willis Huntings of Northville who intend to begin their own Montessori school after they are certified teachers.

Proper Name Is the Best Way, Advice Offered

Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband's father is living with a lovely woman who is not free to marry him. How does one introduce them without embarrassment to anyone? We have always said, "I would like you to meet Dad and his wife Mary." The problem could be easily solved if we referred to them as Mr. and Mrs., but we feel that this is wrong. — Mrs. X.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mrs. X.: The only correct introduction is her own name — with no further explanation. If she is as lovely as you say, her manner and dignity will forestall questions and criticism.

OFFERS SEAT

Dear Mrs. Post: You'll never believe this, but while my mother and I were standing on a crowded train, someone tapped my arm. A boy I know who was sitting next to his father offered me his seat. I felt that my mother should have the seat, though it was obviously intended for me. I thanked him kindly and somewhat awkwardly (I felt) and turned him down. What should I have done? — Sue.

★ ★ ★

Dear Sue: It is hard to believe, but so nice to read! You were right in refusing to sit down while your mother remained standing. The best answer would have been, "Thanks so much but I think my mother needs a seat more than I do." He really should have offered her the seat first, in any case.

★ ★ ★

However, if you felt that the above remark would have embarrassed him — or your mother — you did the next best thing by turning down his offer.

Mrs. Thomas J. Feaheny Jr., Chickering Lane, Bloomfield Township arrives at the Laurel Montessori Center with daughters Laura, 4, (left) and Ellen, 3. Mother is taking the teacher training course in Montessori methods which is using the facilities of the center this year. The youngsters are enrolled in the school two days a week during the summer. With twins younger and two other children older than these two, Dorothy Feaheny has plenty of pupils with which to practice teaching at home.

Name of 'Game' Is Montessori

By JANET ODELL
Women's Editor, The Pontiac Press

Getting down on the floor and playing with toys is part of the daily schedule for 19 women and one man. These individuals, in their fourth week of a training program, are studying to be teachers of the Montessori Method.

The first such training program in Michigan is using the facilities of the Laurel Montessori Center on Airport Road. David R. Weinberg is the director.

After six weeks of lectures, discussions, observation and reading, many of the group will go on as interns for nine months in Montessori schools before becoming certified teachers. Others are taking the summer program to help them with jobs they already have, teaching the under-privileged or the handicapped.

Over 60 years ago, Italian-born Maria Montessori originated her principles of programmed learning in a prepared environment. She believed it important for the children from three to six to learn "ground rules of human behaviour."

It is a highly individualized program that teaches self-discipline. Contrary to many nursery school programs, the Montessori method does not stress social adjustment. Dr. Montessori did not consider it a necessary condition to the purposes of education.

The last week of the training course will be devoted to an Orff Music workshop. Carl Orff, a German opera composer and teacher, believes in encouraging children to make their own music. He uses instruments, speech training for sound and rhythm and emphasis on improvisation.

Two Catholic nuns on scholarships will put their training to work in Detroit's inner city. One woman from Vermont is sponsored by WIN, a work incentive program. The students come mainly from Michigan, with two from Canada and most of the rest from nearby states.

We asked Mr. Weinberg what hints we could pass on to mothers of preschoolers; things they can do to help children develop. Both he and Mrs. Weinberg who is the demonstration teacher during the twice-weekly observation sessions, stress consistency. They also stress making clean-up and putting away as much a part of playing as the actual activity.

Other suggestions are:

- Arrange the child's room in an orderly way with everything in the same place very day.
- Limit toys and games to a workable number.
- Show the child how. Be careful to show each step in a way that the child can repeat it after the adult is finished.
- Show without speaking. This frees the child to watch what the adult does and not watch his mouth.

After observing the group of preschoolers for about an hour, we wandered around the bright orderly room, looking over the equipment. We had been impressed with the fact that as something, he put it away without being told.

USE TRAYS

All of the equipment is on trays which makes it easy to carry. Any of the following could be assembled by parents with little or no expense.

- Three empty saucers and a dish of beads in three colors.
- Two empty cups and a dish of beans in two colors. Both of these are for sorting. We watched one youngster do this six or eight times in a row before he tired and got out something else.
- Two plastic pitchers with about half a cup of rice in one. The youngest student, a girl about two-and-a half, poured the rice back and forth, back and forth for about 10 minutes. She carefully picked up the few grains of rice she had spilled each time.
- Two small glass or plastic pitchers, one half full of water for pouring.

A basket full of squares of material. There were two of each kind for the children to match. They are smooth, shiny, rough, soft, etc. This develops the sense of touch.

A few of the 61 suggestions offered by Weinberg include walking on a two by four or climbing up and down a step ladder; washing and cutting fruit or vegetables; sorting and manipulating screws; polishing, mopping and dusting; thinking of words that rhyme; raking and shoveling and digging.

★ ★ ★

Most of us underestimate the abilities of young children. And many are impatient. Others can't be bothered to let children do things slowly, awkwardly and sometimes with rather disastrous results.

But seeing what youngsters can do in a controlled environment makes me almost wish my two were young again. Almost . . .

This young moppet is so busy concentrating on getting the right plug in the right hole that she completely ignores the photographer. She is two and a half years old.

Pontiac Press Photos by Rolf Winter

Washing one's hands is serious business. A set-up like this would be easy to duplicate at home. There's a large plastic pail under the table for waste water and paper towels nearby for wiping. Showing the children how to wash their hands is part of their training.

Tell Them Your Decision or Take Risk of Damages

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently moved into a very nice, one-bedroom apartment which we furnished ourselves.

Last evening some neighbors we hardly know stopped by for a drink, and the woman said, "You said you were going away on a two-week vacation in September, so would you mind if we used your apartment for some friends who will be visiting us at that time?"

Before I could open my mouth, my husband said yes (after two martinis). I could have brained him.

After they left I told my husband I didn't want strangers using our apartment, and I didn't feel I owed our neighbors that kind of favor.

My husband says he thinks I'm right, and now he's sorry he said yes, but he hasn't the guts to tell them we've changed our minds. Well, I haven't got the guts to tell them either, but I don't want to turn this apartment over to strangers, so what do you suggest?

STUCK

DEAR STUCK: People without "guts" are frequently stuck. Your husband should tell your neighbors you've reconsidered. But if he can't gather the "guts," you must. The alternative is to let them come and take your chances.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: For the past year I have had a very good cleaning woman once a week. Recently she mentioned to me that one family she works for on a similar basis pays her when they go on their vacation even though she doesn't do anything for them while they are away.

Is this customary? And why do you think she mentioned it?

OAK PARK

DEAR OAK: No, it's not customary, but it's good insurance against losing a valued employe. And she probably mentioned it to you because she hoped you'd take the hint.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: May a tired office manager say a few words to job hunters?

For the past week I have been interviewing girls for the job of "typist" in an office, and I am absolutely amazed at what I have seen and heard.

One girl applied for the job in capri pants, sneakers, and carrying her poodle. Another came in faded jeans with her hair in great big rollers! One even came in a see-through blouse. And she had a cigaret in her mouth the whole time.

Some women have the attitude that they are doing you a favor just offering themselves for employment. Others don't seem to care whether they get the job or not.

The help wanted ad in the newspaper stated the hours, typing speed, and all the details of the job, and you'd be surprised at the number of girls who didn't want to work "those hours," and so help me, some said they couldn't type! Now, why did they bother to apply?

AMAZED

DEAR AMAZED: Because, believe it or not, some people apply for a job hoping they won't get it.

★ ★ ★

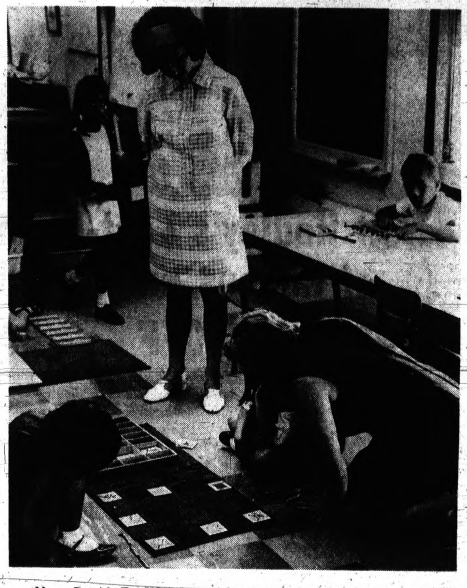
DEAR ABBY: To "HER MOM," who was heartsick because her daughter confessed that she was pregnant, and all the elaborate plans for a lovely church wedding had to be canceled.

Our daughter had the same problem, but she solved it another way. She went ahead and had the big church wedding as scheduled, and after 10 years of a childless marriage, we learned the truth.

Not wishing to disappoint their parents and cause a scandal, she and the boy she loved decided on an illegal abortion.

Mom, be glad your daughter had enough faith in you to confide. I know how heartsick you were to have to cancel all those wedding plans. I can also imagine how embarrassed you felt before your friends and relatives. But please, don't hold it against your child. Forgive her. You'll be glad you did.

ANOTHER GIRL'S MOM



Mrs. David R. Weinberg, demonstration teacher, watches as Mrs. John M. Penberthy of West Hamlin Road, Avon Township checks with a young student. The boy in the background spent the entire morning working on fractions. What looks like a mirror in the background is a one-way pane of glass that hides the room where observers sit.

After Yesterday's Losses

Stock Market Bounces Back

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market bounced sharply higher in fairly active trading early today, as the technical rebound which helped it cut its losses late Tuesday continued.

The Dow Jones industrial average at 10:30 a.m. was up 5.24 at 846.37.

Gains led losses by about 375 issues.

★ ★ ★

Among early blocks:

Western Pacific R. R. Co., 20,000 shares at 30, off 2⅛; United Aircraft, 10,700 shares at 56½, off ¼; Boeing, 16,000 shares at 36, up ½; and Xerox, 15,000 shares at 90, up 1¼.

Gains of a point or more were shown by Polaroid, Teledyne, Westinghouse, and Ling-Temco-Vought.

OPENING PRICES

Opening prices included:

Eastern Air Lines, up ¼ at 18 on 24,000 shares; City Investing preferred B, up ¼ at 42¾ on 22,100 shares; Benguet, up 1⅜ at 25 on 17,900 shares; Occidental Petroleum, up ½ at 34¾ on 14,700 shares; and Sperry Rand, up ¼ at 52 on 14,000 shares.

★ ★ ★

The market closed lower again Tuesday, although it managed to trim its early sharp losses in late trading. Bargain hunting and a statement by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird that he believes "we've certainly turned the corner" toward peace in Vietnam were credited by analysts with helping the market.

★ ★ ★

The Weapons involved: multiple, independently targeted reentry vehicles — MIRVs — with which the nuclear warheads on one missile could be aimed against several different targets.

★ ★ ★

Three scientists were called to testify on the MIRV controversy. The committee is considering a resolution proposed by Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., which urges that the United States halt MIRV tests so long as the Soviet Union does the same.

40 COSPONSORS

Brooke has enlisted 40 cosponsors for his MIRV resolution, thus bringing it within 10 votes of a Senate majority. His aides say private pledges of support from other senators put the total past a majority.

★ ★ ★

Brooke's resolution asks that President Nixon propose an immediate U.S.-Soviet moratorium on MIRV tests.

★ ★ ★

The Pentagon said June 13 the United States is going ahead with the testing of MIRV warheads for Minuteman and Poseidon missiles.

The MIRV issue has come up repeatedly in the Safeguard debate.

NIXON NONCOMMITTAL

Senate sources said the administration has thus far maintained a noncommittal attitude toward the Brooke resolution.

In the Safeguard contest, President Nixon was said to be firmly opposing any compromise.

ABM Critics Open 2nd Front

Seek to Halt Tests of Multiple Warheads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate foes of the Safeguard missile defense plan are campaigning on a second front, seeking a halt in testing of multiple warhead offensive weapons.

While the Safeguard debate rumbled on, that companion issue was before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today.

Maybe, Just Maybe, Slowdown Is Coming

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — Slowly, the slowdown appears to be approaching. Nobody can say with certainty that it is coming, because the signs could be only fluctuations. But a pattern could be developing.

CUNNIFF

To some, such as government economists who have worried and warned that inflation was eroding the economic structure, the signs appear like fissures of sunlight as the storm clouds recede from the horizon.

★ ★ ★

To others—workers whose wage increases have exceeded price increases, businessmen who have managed to jack up prices exorbitantly, those with equity investments—a slowdown is the approach of bad weather.

To recite the cliches: the economy shows signs of cooling off, the fires of inflation may be turning to ashes, the economy shows indications of losing steam. The needles do not yet point down, but they are quivering.

FAINT SIGNS

The extent of any slowdown cannot be forecast accurately even by the finest government devices. Many statistics, in fact, indicate months of advance still are ahead. And some economists foresee years of moderate inflation.

★ ★ ★

But, there are these first faint signs that a reduction in the flow of money to the economy—a direct result of the Federal Reserve turning off the spigot—is having some effects:

● The rate at which the nation's production of goods and services is growing has been halved in the past year.

★ ★ ★

● The barometer of consumer sentiment, as measured by the University of Michigan, has begun to show a very slight drop, indicating that buyers will be a bit less inclined to purchase certain goods.

★ ★ ★

● Gains in personal income have begun to show evidence of leveling. Still rising, of course, but not with much energy.

★ ★ ★

● For the second straight month, retail sales in June failed to advance.

★ ★ ★

● Home building, which was crawling along at a pace far below the nation's needs, has begun to drop off again in reaction to tight money and the high costs of mortgages.

★ ★ ★

● The Chrysler Corp., among others, has begun retrenching. A big expansion program has been delayed because of a belief that the anti-inflation drive will indeed slow the economy and perhaps reduce demand for automobiles.

★ ★ ★

● A few wholesale price reductions have shown up here and there. And, believe it or not, the asking prices of some homes are dropping because potential buyers can't get up the down payments or meet mortgage terms.

★ ★ ★

None of these indicators can be replied upon as infallible. While consumer sentiment may not be as high as it was a few months ago, for example, consumers still are borrowing heavily. But they are the best criteria available.

DANGER EXISTS

If the economy does cool off, and if inflation is brought down from its current 7 per cent rate to something less than one-half that, will it mean that the economy has finally be stabilized?

Not at all. In fact, in steering anything as ponderously large as the U.S. economy, especially when the response lags behind the signal by six months or more, the danger always exists that the wheel will be turned too far.

★ ★ ★

The consequences of such a miscalculation would be recession. As of now, the probability is small. It is there, however, for the government is purposely driving the economy in that direction.

The big question now is when to let up on the anti-inflation drive in order to keep the ship from sailing beyond the mark and into recession.

Successful Investing

Q. You have mentioned three-dimensional photography as an emerging industry. Please give me the names of companies working in this field. — E.V.

A. The technique of producing three-dimensional images dates back many years. During the Victorian Era the stereoscope provided 3-D pictures in every parlor. Then came the "magic lantern" or stereopticon. In 1947 and 1948, telescopes, information storage diagnosis of eye disorders, study of certain blood diseases, character tively involved ICC- recognition, human identification and radar signal processing.

Of the many laboratories thought to be working on this optical process, most are either privately owned or represent divisions of large corporations.

The following companies actively involved in laser holography are suitable only for risk accounts: Conductron, Electro-Optical Systems, Optics Technology, Spaceray and Technical Operations. For more conservative investors, Perkin-Elmer Corp. is suggested.

COOLING OFF—This quartet from the Pontiac Boys' Club delights in a moment of horseplay while taking a cooling dip at Kensington Park's beach yesterday.

300 Boys' Clubbers Play as City Swelters

Armed with beach towels, swimming trunks, fishing poles and small tin of fresh worms, some 300 members of the Pontiac Boys' Club cut out yesterday for the open air of Kensington Metropolitan Park, south of Milford, while the city sweltered in 90-degree heat.

The outing, a joint effort of the main branch at 630 E. Pike and the extension unit at 124 W. Columbia, was under the direction of acting director Charles A. Haviland.

* * *

Relaxation — boy style — is constant movement, starting from the moment they swarmed off the bus.

For those that brought their trunks — and those inclined to give in to temptation anyway — there was the sandy beach a few yards from the picnic area as well as the boat launch for fishing enthusiasts.

OTHERS EXPLORED

"Still other boys explored the area around picnic headquarters, where several Boys Club directors, including board President James Clarkson, readied the chow.

* * *

And chow there was, including some 1,250 hot dogs and enough cokes for 1,500 drinks, one gallon of mayonnaise, five gallons of ketchup, bags of pretzels, and whatever the local snack bar had to offer, preferably ice cream sticks.

* * *

To complete a perfect day there were assorted prizes donated by a number of local and area businessmen.

* * *

Probably the biggest winner, however, carried his prize under his belt to the tune of 16 hot dogs and 10 cokes. The giant eater was unidentified.

Hospital of Stars Is Crippled by Strike of Nurses

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The famed Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, where many of screen-dom's stars came for treatment, has been crippled by a strike of most of its 294 nurses.

The maternity pavilion is closed, only the most urgent surgery is performed and the patient population is down from a normal capacity of 508 to about 120.

* * *

Since the strike began June 10, some of the nurses have returned to their jobs and some new nurses have been hired, bringing the nursing staff to about the same number as the patients remaining.

The nurses say their chief demand is recognition of the California Nurses Association, a professional group, as their bargaining agent. The hospital has been mum on the issues.

Supervisor's Thrift Earns Him a Blast

A proposal from County Supervisor Dennis M. Aaron, that board members travel "tourist" class to the National Association of County Officials' convention was treated roughly by the supervisors' finance committee yesterday.

Supervisors' chairman Charles B. Edwards Jr., D-Madison Heights, said he had returned Aaron's first-class airline ticket and booked him on a tourist flight at Aaron's request.

* * *

He said it was the prerogative of supervisors to travel as they liked but "supervisors from a first-class county should go first class."

The national conference is being held in Portland, Ore., July 27-30.

LEVELS A BLAST

Carl W. O'Brien, D-Pontiac, leveled a blast at Aaron, D-Huntington Woods, charging him with poor attendance at county meetings.

"Huntington Woods doesn't even have a representative on the board," he said, "maybe if we allow him to phone in his vote they will have."

* * *

Supervisor George N. Grba, D-Pontiac, chairman of the supervisors' finance committee, said Aaron's proposal to have supervisors fly at tourist rates on county business was "demeaning to our office."

Aaron stated in his letter to the finance committee that the county could, save $1,000 if everyone traveled tourist class to the Portland convention, July 27-30.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY OF Paul E. Umphrey Jr., who passed away two years ago today.
God took him home it was His will,
But in our hearts we love him still;
His memory is a dear today,
As in the hour he passed away;
We often sit and think of him,
When we are all alone;
For memory is the only friend,
The grief can call its own.
Sadly, missed by Nancy and son Curtis.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF Henry G. Webber, (Ben), who passed away July 16th, 1968:
God saw you getting weaker, dear,
So He did what He thought best.
God whispered "Come home to rest",
And you did.
No one knows my heart aches,
And no one sees me weep,
I shed my tears, while others are fast asleep,
Sadly missed by wife, Mrs. Grace Webber.

IN MEMORY OF HELEN Waters.
God planned to make the world a gift,
Surpassing every other,
And we have had our share in it,
For we had you dear mother,
Sadly missed by Del, Pat and boys.

President Nixon, with astronaut Frank Borman as his guest, responded just as other Washington baseball fans when the Senators' Tim Cullen walloped a second-inning home run against the Detroit Tigers.

The President jumped to his feet and applauded.

★ ★ ★

Nixon stayed through the entire game last night, his fifth appearance at Washington Stadium this season, then went into the Washington and Detroit dugouts and chatted with the players.

Accompanying the President and Borman were David and Julie Eisenhower, his son-in-law and daughter.

The Senators won, 7-3.

Stennis' Son Starts Political Career

John H. Stennis, 34-year-old son of Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., has embarked on his own political career.

Young Stennis, a Jackson, Miss., attorney, won a seat yesterday in the Mississippi House of Representatives.

Humphrey to See Soviet Leaders

Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who has been in the Soviet Union on a private visit since July 9, says he's sure he will see some Soviet leaders during his stay in Moscow.

Humphrey declined, however, to say yesterday whether they would include Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev, President Nikolai Podgorny or Premier Alexei Kosygin.

"I think I will have a very useful visit," the former vice president said.

Agnew Quick With Quip to MDs

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was quip from the hip in an appearance yesterday before the annual meeting of the American Medical Association in New York.

With reference to the role reportedly played by the AMA and Senate Minority Leader Everett Dirksen in blocking Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch's selection of Dr. John H. Knowles as Finch's health assistant, Agnew fired off these one-liners:

"I bring you greetings from Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare ex-officio Everett Dirksen . . .

"If he gets sick," Agnew said of Finch, "He'll take care of himself . . ."

Agnew also said Finch holds no ill feelings for the AMA. Finch told him so, Agnew said, "when I bumped into him last night in a Christian Science reading room."

Judy Resolved to Become a Catholic, Husband Says

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Judy Garland in the last months of her troubled life resolved to convert to Catholicism, her last husband's faith, and abandoned her wish to be cremated which she clearly expressed in a will made in 1961.

This is now revealed by her widower, Mickey Deans.

"We talked it over often," says Deans. "She wanted to convert because I am a Catholic." A will in his possession, made after their marriage, makes no mention of cremation. Her body, now in a retaining vault, will eventually be placed in a crypt in Ferncliff.

WILSON

Deans, whose attorneys say is entitled to a legal share of her estate, is uncertain about claiming it. One friend commented sadly: "Poor Judy, with all her talent and all her adulation, her bequest was mostly debts and taxes."

Steve Rossi and Slappy White do a fine, brave, imaginative job in the first "integrated night club act" at the American Royal Box, starting with Slappy saying, "The Black Panthers want Rockefeller to join 'em—he can start a riot by just stowin' up."

★ ★ ★

The humor's ethnic but innocent by today's standards. Mets Pitcher Jerry Koosman loved it. "First time I had to work with an Italian; that's what happens when you owe the Mafia money," Slappy (ex-husband of Pearl Bailey) said. He claimed he plays whitejack in Vegas and "fed the poor people's parade—from the crap tables to the slot machines."

★ ★ ★

Steve interviewed Slappy ("first Negro vice president") "Where do you stand on marijuana? . . . Very high . . . On your last trip South how did you travel? . . . Fast."

Then Steve blacked up and Slappy whited up and they said, "Why can't we, all get together and share God's grace?"

Sen. Eugene McCarthy's friends anticipate an immediate announcement of a marital split . . . June Havoc's ghost in her haunted house on W. 44th St. was a money-maker; she sold out at a profit . . . Gypsy Rose Lee, who sold her town house here, now lives palatially in the highest point in Beverly Hills, with her bedroom so high up she doesn't have any blinds.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Van Harris suggests a publisher put "Goodbye, Columbus" and "Portnoy's Complaint" in one volume and call it "The Gripes of Roth."

A Look to Future

Writer Assesses Apollo

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — With man scheduled to fly to the moon today, it seems appropriate to present an interview with Ray Bradbury, the incomparable science-fiction writer.

DU BROW

On NBC Radio's "Monitor" program this past weekend, he discused the Apollo 11 moon mission and its significance to mankind.

★ ★ ★

Here are remarks of the master craftsman who has so often written of the future with genius and compassion:

"The events of this summer, of this project," he said "are commensurate with the event two billion years ago when mankind came out of the seas of earth and made do on the land, and survived, and finally built cities, and came to this summer where we look on the stars and envy the birds, and take off and fly into space.

THE GREAT MYSTERY

'But it has everything to do . . . with immortality. We've been asking the questions for thousands of years. We've gone to our theologians. We've said 'What is life? What is it all about? What are we doing here?' The great mystery stands at the center of everything.

★ ★ ★

"The theologians have tried to help us, and in some cases have. But the mystery remains. And we've gone to our scientists and we've said, 'Tell us about the atom and the molecule and the stars.' And they've done their very best. But the mystery remains.

★ ★ ★

"So now we come to this time when we've asked oursleves, 'Why bother being alive? Why be born upon this earth if we must die? What are our chances for survival?' And suddenly the space age gives us our huge chance to survive forever.

★ ★ ★

"Once we make it to the moon, once we touch down on Mars, once we move on out to the stars and go to planets revolving around stars so far away we can't even imagine it — once we do this we become the thing that we've always want to become and that is immortal.

'RACE GOES ON'

"The whole race goes on then, and the gift of life passes from hand to hand. We don't have to stay here. The race doesn't have to die. It doesn't have to be destroyed by the dying of the sun, or the super-explosion of the sun.

★ ★ ★

"And in the future, generations of people will look back to this summer and say, 'Oh how wonderful it must have been to have been alive then when this huge step which insures the victory over time and space and eternity for all of us, how wonderful to have been alive when that happened.' "
