AAUP, UNIVERSITY REACH TENTATIVE AGREEMENT

A tentative collective bargaining agreement between Oakland University and the OU Chapter of the American Association of University Professors was reached Tuesday, Sept. 10. The contract is subject to ratification by the AAUP membership and approved by the OU Board of Trustees.

University officials said the contract will be taken to the board for consideration at a Sept. 30 meeting. AAUP spokesmen said a membership ratification vote would be taken probably near that same date.

The contract provides for a 7.6 percent increase on minimum salaries, a step increase for continuing employees who are not at the top of their respective levels, some increases in health insurance benefits from the current carrier, and numerous changes and additions to the current language in the Faculty Agreement.

The most significant areas were discipline and discharge procedures, layoff and recall provisions, and tenure and re-employment procedures. Some additional funds were added to the university research funds and additional money was made available for faculty travel.

PFEIL WRITES COMPOSITION ON COMPUTER MUSIC SYSTEM

Clifford Pfeil, music, has completed a new composition "Mad Mountain Music," while working this summer at a computerized music studio at Iowa State University, Ames.

The work is for electronically produced sound and for cello, clarinet and voice.

Pfeil said the computerized music system was designed to enable a composer to convert his musical ideas into sound with the aid of a computer.

The computer is the workhorse, Pfeil says, and it carries out the composer's ideas quickly and accurately. It also does work that is physically impossible for the composer to do by himself.

Pfeil said the system at Iowa State can be used by a composer without special knowledge of computer programming. The computerized music system is being developed by Iowa State's music, computer science, and engineering departments, Pfeil said.
