PROGRAMS WELCOME NEW STUDENTS

An exciting school year of new student programs is planned to enhance the out-of-class and in-class experiences of new students entering Oakland, fall semester, 1975. The programs will begin with social events on Friday, Sept. 5 (see calendar, page 4) and will continue with seminars on such topics as "Living with Roommates, Parents and Groups," "Developing Academic Survival Skills," "Loneliness," and "Personal Budgeting."

A special feature of the new student programs will be "crash tutorial" sessions for a two-week period at mid-term and final times. The tutors will be made available through the efforts of the Skills Development Center and various academic departments.

The programs for winter semester will include career exploration programs and other programs yet to be planned by the Freshman Advisory Council. This includes student and staff members from commuter services, Residence Halls, Special Programs, student organizations, and the undergraduate advising and counseling departments.

A complete calendar of New Student Week Programs is available in the above mentioned offices.

OU ENGINEERS TAKE FIRST PLACE

Oakland University engineering students won two first place awards in an August 12-16 national competition on alternative energy sources. More than 100 schools competed in the event held in Albuquerque, N.M.

The university won first place for its design of a wind turbine machine. The university won another first place for having the best electrical system output in the wind energy area of the competition. Oakland University did not have an entry in the solar energy category.

The contest was sponsored by SCORE (Student Competitions on Relevant Engineering). The nonprofit corporation was established in 1971 by the academic engineering community to sponsor national student engineering design contests. This was OU's first entry in a SCORE competition. The 1975 theme was alternative energy sources.

Oakland University's entry was a wind machine consisting of a 22-foot high shaft mounted on a tripod stand. Three four-foot by ten-foot sails were attached. The sails and shaft turned horizontally in the wind to drive an output gear.

OU students who worked on the wind machine design are: Mel Buss, Chelsea; Dave Gallup, Bloomfield Hills; Mickey Galper, Southfield; Bob MacFarland, Lake Orion; Dave Pocholok and Steve Rumancik, Sterling Heights; Mike Sigilai, Pontiac; and Erik Vigmostad, Mt. Clemens.

In a separate competition, OU won third place in a "student innovations" category. The teams judged each other to decide the most innovative entries.

FACULTY SALARY OPTIONS MUST BE CHOSEN BY SEPT. 10

The 1974-75 faculty agreement provides that a faculty member may elect to have his/her yearly salary paid in nine installments rather than 12. It is also possible for a faculty member on a nine installment pay schedule to revert to a 12 month basis. Unless authorization for a change in payment schedule is received in the Office of Employment Relations by Sept. 10, each faculty member will be paid in 1975-76 under the same schedule that was in effect for that faculty member during 1974-75.

OU APPROPRIATION SLASHED BY $135,000

Governor William Milliken, through the Bureau of the Budget, has cut one percent or $135,000 from OU's general fund appropriation for 1975-76.

The new appropriation figure is $13,358,100. The university received a $12,706,500 appropriation in 1974-75.

The university was notified of the one percent cut on Aug. 27. Almost every state agency and all public colleges and universities were effected. The money obtained from the cuts will be used to establish a "contingency fund to meet later revenue deficiencies." Should the state's financial picture improve, the funds could then be distributed to OU and to the other institutions.

BICENTENNIAL ESSAY COURSE OFFERED

Oakland University and the Detroit Free Press are cooperating to offer an American Forum course this fall. During the term, the newspaper will run 13 bicentennial essays written by scholars from throughout the United States. The essays will be supplemented by class discussions and lectures.
