IN THE SPOTLIGHT

An accidentally discovered site has given Richard Stamps, assistant professor of sociology/anthropology, and seven of his students, the chance to use their archaeological skills close to home.

Stamps, who has worked on an archaeological site in Port Huron the last few summers, was contacted several weeks ago after a construction crew building a new home in Oakland Township unearthed some human bones. Stamps and seven of his previously trained students volunteered to visit the site and began digging.

"There was much interest in the site on the local level," Stamps says. "We were able to mobilize a crew which worked on a rotating basis." Digging in 14 one-meter square pits, the crew discovered remains from 14 different skeletons.

"They were buried in different positions, some with their bodies flexed, some extended, some with their heads turned." This usually has some significance, Stamps says. Five artifacts were also found, he says, a small number for the size of their site.

Stamps has not dated the site, but says there are many similarities between it and the Younge Site in Lapeer County, which dates from 900-1300 A.D.

The style of arrowheads found in Oakland Township, a fragment from an Indian smokers pipe, and the fact that a hole was drilled in the skulls are similarities with the Younge Site, Stamps says.

The township site is now closed for the winter and construction will continue on the home, Stamps says. "It (construction) will not damage the site," Stamps says, and he and his crew hope to return to do more work in the spring.

SPORTS

The athletic department is offering an inexpensive way for faculty, staff, and their families to enjoy the school's winter athletic contests. The Pioneer Pass is available for $15 and allows admission to men's and women's basketball games, men's and women's swimming meets, and wrestling matches, a total of 34 events in all.

The pass is available from any athlete or by calling the athletic department at 7-3190.

POTPOURRI

The annual Christmas at Meadow Brook Hall will open Wednesday, November 30, and continue until Sunday, December 4.

Nineteen Detroit-area florists have selected a room in the 100-room mansion to decorate. The designers will create individual displays reflecting carols playing in the rooms as visitors tour the hall.

During Christmas at Meadow Brook, the hall will be open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. every day but Wednesday, November 30, which has been set aside for group tours.

In addition to the floral displays, two ethnic organizations have planned displays. The Ukrainian Comfy Knitters of Dearborn Heights will interpret the Ukrainian song, "Carol of the Bells," and the Wawel Folk Ensemble of Detroit (Polish) will design their display around "Good King Wenceslas."

Santa Claus will also be waiting in Knole Cottage for children or adults. Patrons' parties are planned for December 1, 2, and 3. Tickets for the reception, dinner, and tour are $32.50 per person.

Visitors may also visit the carriage house adjacent to the hall during the day for refreshments or to buy unusual candles.

General admission for Christmas at Meadow Brook Hall is $4.00, $3.00 for senior citizens, children under 12, and groups of 20 or more. Knole

Cottage tours are 50 cents per person. For reservations or further information, call 7-3140.

A new Alan Ayckbourn farce, Table Manners, will open a four-week run on Thursday, November 24, at 8:30 p.m. at Meadow Brook Theatre. Table Manners is part of The Norman Conquests, a trilogy of three comedies by Ayckbourn, which was a hit in London and on Broadway.

The plot of Table Manners is set in motion by Norman, an assistant librarian whose mission in life (in his words) is to make people happy by seducing every woman in sight, including his own sisters-in-law.

Opening week performances are scheduled at 8:30 p.m., Thursday and Friday, 2 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. on Saturday, and 6:30 p.m. on Sunday. For the following three weeks, performances will be at 8:30 p.m., Tuesday through Friday, 6 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. on Saturdays, 6:30 p.m. on Sundays, and 2 p.m. on Wednesdays. Tickets are available by calling the box office at 7-3300.

The OU News will not be published next week. The next issue will appear on December 6.
