The long and winding line...

The Oakland Sail/Sharon LeMieux

Students packed into the Bookcenter the first week of school -- an estimated 10,000 -- to purchase books and supplies for the Winter term. Despite the additional personnel and cash registers to help with the additional traffic, many students found long lines awaiting them.

10,000 expected in first week

Bookcenter prepares for 20,000 students

BY STEVEN VILLET
Staff Writer

In the next three weeks, the Bookcenter personnel anticipate 20,000 students will pass through its doors.

Bruce Johnson, assistant manager, said that within the first week of the Winter term, he expects 10,000 students to make purchases or to check prices at the Bookcenter.

To handle the added traffic, Johnson, a 16 year veteran of the Bookcenter, said, "We've hired 10 to 12 temporary full-time employees... (and) added four additional registers, bringing the total to six rather than the two we normally have during the year."

Johnson said, "The first three weeks of each term is our rush period." He explained that during these periods, more than half of the yearly sales are made, amounting to approximately one million dollars.

Sales are not the only concern of the Bookcenter staff during rush periods: They also are watching for shoplifters. Johnson said, "We already caught one shoplifter last Monday... we'll probably catch about four or five more during the rush."

Once caught, a shoplifter is turned over to the Dean of Students and to Public Safety for prosecution.

Johnson said it is the Bookcenter's policy to discourage a shoplifter in the hope that he or she will return the merchandise, but he warned that concealment alone is grounds for prosecution.

"We do apprehend people because of (concealment)," Johnson said.

Study indicates increase in number of professional majors

BY KIM DIEHR
Staff Writer

A continued increase in the number of students who desire professional majors was reported by the Office of Institutional Research in a study it released Dec. 17.

The study, which counted credits, not heads, showed enrollment increases in Management, Elementary Education, Communication Arts and Psychology.

Enrollment declines were reported in English, Music, Theater and Dance.

Decreases were also cited in Engineering, Computer Science, Nursing, Health professions and Journalism.

The report attributed the declines to the increased number of restrictions placed upon admittance to these programs.

An important factor in determining the results of the report, is the students who are "undecided" upon which major they would like to pursue.

Academic freedom subject of two-day seminar; director from AIA to attend

BY LYNN TEEL
News Editor

Academic freedom will be discussed by OU professors and a representative from Accuracy in Academia during noon-time seminars Wednesday and Thursday in the OC.

The programs will examine the history and present state of academic freedom.

On Wednesday, a panel will analyze the McCarthy period in the United States and the Cultural Revolution in China.

The effects these social movements had upon the two cultures will be described by OU history and political science professors and several visiting scholars from the People's Republic of China.

Les Csorba, the executive director of Accuracy in Academia -- a liberal bias monitoring group based in Washington, D.C. -- will partake in Thursday's open panel discussion.

Also participating in the panel discussion are: Brian Copenhaver, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences; Brian Murphy, director of the Honors College; and Robert Waters, executive assistant of University Congress.

Congressmember Laura Saul will moderate the discussion and ask the panel such questions as: What is the definition of academic freedom? Does a "liberal" or "conservative" bias hurt current educational standards? Is there a "proper" method of teaching?

The participants also are being asked to give a brief statement of their opinion toward academic freedom and the current trend in monitoring instructors in the classroom.

The audience will be allowed to question the members of the panel.

Saul, who helped to organize the seminar, said the program is a result of many interested groups coming together as a result of the recent presence on campus of a classroom monitoring group, AIA.

"Professors and students don't like the idea of monitoring," Saul said. "People learn through dialogue and discussion."

Saul said OU was an easy mark for AIA because the student body basically is apathetic, and students are uneducated about the proper channels to go through for a complaint concerning a professor.

She said although AIA has a right to exist, "We have to look at the consequences of their actions... (and) have to make intelligent, informed decisions."

Many groups and individuals on campus have stressed the same view by passing resolutions and statements concerning OU's support for academic freedom.

Board of Trustees approves resolution against S. Africa

BY WENDY WENDLAND
Staff Writer

The OU Board of Trustees approved a resolution Dec. 11 condemning apartheid in South Africa and urging the state legislature into action.

In addition to declaring that apartheid in South Africa is "abhorrent, inhumane and repugnant to the principles of justice," the Board's resolution congratulated University Congress for its "concern and sensitivity" over the issue.

Dennis Washington, president of the Association of Black Students, and Sean Higgins, Commuter Council president, wrote the original Congress resolution condemning apartheid in South Africa.

"When I made a presentation to the Board, they were very receptive," said Washington. "They seemed to think it was long overdue."

"I was very happy about the Board's decision," Washington said. "I think it was a historic step. It's good when institutions of Oakland's caliber take a stand on such an important issue as apartheid."

The Board's resolution also resolved to support a bill in Michigan's legislature which

History professor receives National Endowment for Humanities award

BY WENDY WENDLAND
Staff Writer

A year of research and study in Latin America's largest country is in the near future for Mary Karasch, an associate history professor.

Karasch, a 43-year-old Lake Orion resident, recently won a national competition sponsored by the National Endowment for the Humanities entitling her to spend one year in Brazil.

"I'll spend most of my stay in the state of Goias, on the western frontier of Brasilia."

Karasch will be researching the social history of this area, studying 19th century settlement and population changes.

"During the 18th century, Goias had many gold mines and mining towns. Population was high. Then the gold mines went dry, and the population declined," Karasch explained. "It wasn't until the 19th century and the settlement of Brasilia that it started to grow again. I want to find out what happened to the people between the 18th and 19th century."

According to Karasch, little is known about what happened to the people of Goias between the mining boom and the development of Brasilia. Few articles have been written and none of them are in English.

Karasch is no stranger to Brazil. She taught at the University of Brasilia in 1977-1978 on a Fulbright scholarship. It was during this trip that she found something of interest.

"While I was teaching in Brasilia, I also did some exploring. Once I went exploring in an old mining town and I found some old parish records that I will be able to use as sources."

The parish records she found contained records of baptisms, marriages and deaths of the people of Goias during the 19th century.

To make this trip, Karasch will have to take an unpaid leave of absence from OU. During this time, the NEH will be paying her salary, although Karasch said that it is a little less than what she's currently earning at OU.

Were it not for the NEH's financial support, however, Karasch said she would never be able to finance the trip.

Karasch submitted a proposal for the funding of the project to the NEH in June, 1985. Proposals from history instructors across the country were judged by a panel consisting of several scholars with a background in history.

The panel chose Karasch's proposal, and she was notified in December.

Karasch, who was reported to Accuracy In Academia during the Fall 1985 semester, said she was a little "anxious" about whether or not this would hurt her chances to win.

AIA is a Washington, D.C., based group that monitors liberal bias in the classroom.

"You never know about those kinds of things," Karasch said. "I think it was all a matter of timing. Fortunately, the Accuracy in Academia list came out after the judging was pretty much completed."

Karasch said she first "got hooked" on Brazil while studying Portuguese at the University of Wisconsin.

Karasch is the fourth OU history professor since 1980 to earn the NEH award. The three past winners and the official title of their projects is as follows: Joseph Klaitz, NEH 1981-82, European History, "Culture and Society in 18th Century Alsace;" Richard Tucker, NEH 1982-83, South Asian History, "Environmental History of the Western Himalayas Under British Colonial Rule;" and Lawrence Orton, NEH 1983-84, European History, "Intellectuals, Students and Jews: Repression in Poland in 1968."

The Oakland Sail/Sharon LeMieux
History professor Mary Karasch lectures her class. Karasch received a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities and will go to study and research in Brazil for one year.

PCS office offers job-hunting seminars

BY STEVEN VILLET
Staff Writer

The Placement and Career Services office will be offering 14 seminars this month to help students obtain both permanent and summer employment.

For the next three weeks, the PCS office, 275 Vandenberg, will host seminars covering resume preparation, locating a job and interviewing for one, choosing a career and summer employment.

Johnetta Cross Brazzell, director of the PCS office, suggested that all students -- no matter what their class standing -- take advantage of these seminars.

Brazzell said, "The purpose of these seminars is to expose students to the information they will need to access the job market."

Brazzell's experience reveals that some students wait too long before approaching the placement staff for career guidance. She said, "Our services aren't just for seniors . . . students should contact us in their junior year and, at the latest, the beginning of their senior year."

The seminars are designed to help students focus on their career goals.

Brazzell said, "No matter what the class standing, these are the skills students need to have now . . . they (students) should take the opportunity to attend as many of these seminars as possible."

For further information on the seminars or individual career counseling, contact the PCS office at 370-4240.

Report says headphone wearers are really lonely

BY LYNN TEEL
News Editor

The report ruined it.

Never again will I look at a person wearing a walk-man or hear loud music without wanting to send that person to the nearest counseling center.

The National On-Campus Report recently had an article explaining that students who walk across campus wearing headphones or who spend all their time engrossed in video games are not what they appear to be.

No. They are lonely souls who never heard of social interaction and cannot carry on conversations with people.

They are calling for help, and we're not hearing them over the noise of their music. Callous.

I realize the study has valid points and that some of the students wearing headphones may indeed be isolating themselves.

But I still will never be able to see another person wearing a walk-man without wondering, "Is that person isolating him- or herself from what could otherwise be a good friendship?"

I'm almost positive I'll lose sleep at night worrying about this.

The report recommended extending a friendly hand (not too friendly, however) to these lost and wandering people, and having patience with them.

Very well to advise, but I can just imagine some confrontations between the readers of the National On-Campus Report and the non-readers who don't realize they're lonely and depressed.

Some walk-man fan will be innocently walking to class when some do-gooder comes up from behind and, ripping the headphones off the person's ears, dashes them to the ground.

"Pardon me, but did you just smash my walk-man?"

Smiling humbly and realizing he has just liberated a lonely wallflower, the do-gooder will say, "Well, shucks. Yes, I did. I saved you from a life of loneliness and heartache. I've rescued you from the realms of soup for one. I've freed you from your self-imposed chains of solitude and spending New Year's Eve with your dog. I've . . ."

"You broke my walk-man, you little freak. And now I'm gonna break you!"

Such is life. But the report ruined an enjoyable part of it.

Anybody want to buy some headphones cheap?

EDITORIAL

Carnival festivities are seldom noticed

Did you know that Oakland has a Winter Carnival? If you don't, don't feel too bad--few of the university population do.

Why is it that universities like Michigan Tech have such spectacular Winter Carnival activities, while OU's often go unnoticed?

It's not that there aren't plenty of events to keep students entertained during carnival time. Coordinators of OU's Winter Carnival have packed over a week with Winter Olympics, dances, and games for students and faculty of all types.

Some may argue that the event is not publicized enough, that they never heard of it. But we only have to look a little to see banners, posters and advertisements all over campus, yet participation in the events are often minimal in comparison with the participation that other schools get in such activities.

How many students have actually seen an advertisement for Central Michigan's End of the World Party? Not too many, but just about everyone has heard of it. How? Word of mouth. It is here that OU is lacking.

This has a lot to do with tradition, reputation, and most importantly, school spirit.

No one at OU ever seems to get overly-enthused about anything, unless, perhaps it is has to do with book prices or scandal. You often hear students complaining about this or that, but you seldom hear them speaking with pride about OU or its activities.

Because OU is a fairly new school, traditions are few and far between. It is much harder to start a tradition than to keep one going, and the Winter Carnival seems to be sputtering along at the starting line.

If we really want the Winter Carnival to take off (or even finish the race), we've got to take the time to get involved, to take advantage of all the fun things that it has to offer. So what if it isn't as big as Michigan Tech's Winter Carnival? That type of success takes time, participation and spirit. We have to start somewhere.

Paul Franklin, coordinator for the Winter Carnival, said "Anyone who is in Oakland Center will know that something special is going on, no ifs, ands, or buts about it."

But just knowing that something is going on isn't enough, anyone can be an observer. It's time that more of OU's students stopped being spectators and joined in on the fun.

When more people get involved, there is more fun to be had. And if everyone has a lot of fun, word gets around.

And that's how campus events start to grow. Friends get more friends to attend and before long it becomes a traditional event, one with a reputation for being a good time; one that draws in not just the OU population, but local community members and students from other colleges as well.

OU's Winter Carnival has a long way to go before it reaches such notoriety, but that doesn't mean that it won't be fun. Traditions have to start somewhere, and OU's small, seemingly unimportant Winter Carnival has the potential.

The theme for this year's Winter Carnival is "Celebrate", and maybe it's time that the students at OU did just that.

Letters to the Editor

Two alumni give three cheers for professor monitoring group

Dear Editor:

We recently heard a ghostly squeal, the type that usually emanates from Washington when a congressman's pet project is cut from the budget. We wondered from whence it came. We have now learned it was none other than the "liberals" on the faculty at our alma mater Oakland University. It seems that two Oakland students have had the unmitigated gall to suggest that truth in labeling should apply to a professor's course description. The academic left, who would have no seats in government and to whom the freedom of information act is a sacred text, are aghast and outraged that students would want to be told in advance that the Latin American history course they would take is in large a Sandinista cheerleading session.

If a professor wants to use his course to apologize for leftist dictators rather than present an evenhanded strongly academic offering, it does not strike us that it is a great blow to academic freedom for students, who are paying good money for the course, to be informed of its nature. Three cheers for the students and for Accuracy in Academia. The squealing is music to our ears.

ABS will pay tribute to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

By KIM DIEHR
Staff Writer

The Association of Black Students will pay tribute to the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., on the inaugural celebration of the national holiday set aside to honor the civil rights leader on Jan. 20.

At 2 p.m. in the Crockery, a panel of professors will talk about the changes for blacks in such areas as economics, voting rights and integration, since the death of Dr. King in 1968.

Panelists will include Professor Donald Morse, from the Rhetoric and English department; Professor Algea Harrison, from the Psychology department; Professor De Witt Dykes and Professor Wallace Strauss, both from the History department.

The Gospel Choir is scheduled to perform after the discussion session.

At 6 p.m., also in the Crockery, Lonnel Coats, an OU student, will recite one of Dr. King's speeches.

Dr. King would have been 57 years old this year if he had lived.

On April 4, 1968, at the age of 39, Dr. King was assassinated in Memphis, Tenn., by James Earl Ray, a white escaped convict.

In 1964, Dr. King won the Nobel peace prize for his "non-violent resistance" attempt to gain social, political and economic equality for black people.

The seminar is supported by Keith Kleckner, senior vice-president for university affairs and provost; University Congress; The OU Chapter of the American Association of University Professors; the Honors College; and the Campus Information and Programs Office.

Wednesday's seminar will be in the Fireside Lounge of the OC from noon to 1 p.m.

Thursday's program is scheduled in the Crockery, from noon until 2 p.m.

The seminars are free for all who wish to attend.

would force the state to divest a portion of its stock holdings in companies doing business with South Africa.

OU sold its stock in such companies -- General Motors and Texaco, for example -- more than a year ago, according to Robert McGarry, vice-president of finance and administration.

The funds from these stocks were reinvested in other securities, McGarry said.

This tree died of a heart attack.

Carving hearts on trees seems harmless enough.

But the fact is, it cut short the life of this majestic oak.

By gouging into the bark, vandals crippled the tree's vascular system. So, like thousands of other innocent victims each year, the tree slowly died.

But the fight against vandalism is gathering strength from the example of Lynn Brauer and Carol Eichling.

When vandals girdled a 300 year old Chinquapin Oak near their Marthasville, Missouri home, they wrapped the wound in sphagnum moss and tended the tree daily, despite blizzard conditions.

If not for the severe winter, arborists feel the Chinquapin might have survived.

We believe miracles can take root. When people care enough.

With no students on campus, or cars to leave parking tickets on or dorm parties to watch over, what did Public Safety do over Christmas break?

Not much.

Mel Gilroy, assistant director of Public Safety, said, "It has been real quiet, real dead over break."

However, Public Safety did arrest a male who was wanted by the West Bloomfield Township Police Department for a homicide in early December, which could very well have begun the rumor that someone was murdered on campus during Christmas break.

Gilroy said the biggest problem since the semester started is parking.

"For some reason folks go away for three weeks and absolutely forget how to park," Gilroy said. He estimated that Public Safety writes 300 to 400 tickets a week.

He explained that when the weather grows worse, people do not like to walk farther than they have to, and start parking on the edge or ends of rows. This does not allow enough room for fire trucks in case of emergency, and to maintain order in the parking lot, Public Safety must give out tickets and tow cars when necessary.

Gilroy predicted larceny to be the number one crime in the residence halls and in the parking lots this semester.

"We are vulnerable to property crime . . . a lot of vandalism happens on the weekends when people are drunk," said Gilroy.

Gilroy also said that Public Safety has a crime prevention center that gives presentations in dorms to teach people to be more careful.

Recruiting officers to hold interviews

Call for Nominations: Annual Teaching Excellence Award

Oakland University takes pleasure in announcing its annual Award for Excellence in Teaching. The award, including a cash stipend of $1,000, will be presented to a member of the Oakland University faculty at the Fall 1986 Commencement.

Names may be placed in nomination by any member of the Oakland University community, including students, alumni, staff and faculty. The letter of nomination should contain sufficient supporting statements to permit an initial review of the nominee. It might address one or more of the following criteria: superior classroom performance; innovative instructional practice; high educational standards; maintenance of a productive or inspirational learning environment; and concern for students. Nominations will be accepted through January 27, 1986.

Letters of nomination should be addressed to:

Coordinators hope for success

Winter carnival to be held

BY DALE BERNARD
Staff Writer

"Celebrate" is the theme for this year's events during Winter Carnival, running Jan. 17-26.

Comedian Alex Cole kicks off the festivities early with a concert at 8 p.m. Thursday Jan. 16 in the Oakland Center Auditorium, presented by the Student Program Board Mainstage.

The official Winter Carnival Opening Ceremonies will be held at noon Friday, Jan. 17 in the Crockery Alcove in the Oakland Center. "Anyone who is in Oakland Center will know that something special is going on, no ifs, ands or buts about it," said Paul Franklin, coordinator of Winter Carnival. He added that the opening ceremonies and the following reception at 1 p.m. in the Fireside Lounge will be impossible to ignore.

This year's semi-formal Winter Ball promises to be an evening of non-stop dancing and fun. The band, The Continentals, is a 10-piece group with a big band sound. The music includes hits from the nostalgic 30's and 40's right up to the moving and shaking of the 80's. In addition to the sounds of the Continentals, there will be a D.J.

playing more dance music between the band's sets. Interested parties are reminded to sign up non-student guests for the ball by Jan. 17 at the Campus Ticket Office. Admission is free.

The coordinators of Winter Carnival are celebrating this year's better organized and streamlined presentation of the event.

This is especially true for the traditional Winter Olympics held during the festival. Franklin comments, "I'm happy to say that the Winter Olympics this year are better planned than at least the last four years."

One of the new events in the Olympics this year is the Snow Shoe Flipper Race in which contestants must complete a lap wearing snow shoes and a lap wearing swimming flippers. The race begins at 5 p.m. on Jan. 23.

The College Bowl is the cerebral highlight of the competitive activities. Teams of four students are asked questions covering a range of general knowledge and challenging each team's collective intellects. The winning team receives an all-expense paid trip to Ohio State University to compete in regional competition. The College Bowl kicks off at noon on Jan. 25.

Commuter students are not forgotten in this winter fun. The OU Connections Dance Party held in the Crockery at 9 p.m., Jan. 25, is an effort to give commuter students the chance to meet and mingle with residence halls students.

The plethora of enticing events culminates Jan. 26 with a "Less Filling" vs. "Tastes Great" touch football game at 1:30 p.m., followed by the traditional Superbowl Party at 3:30 p.m. in the Fireside Lounge.

For more information on any Winter Carnival event, stop in at the CIPO office.

Beat the winter blues with skis

BY ANNE HOOPER
Features Editor

The holidays are over and to most people the snow is no longer pretty and the cold weather is becoming less tolerable. But it's probably going to get a lot colder before it gets warmer.

There's an adage that says, "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em." One way to do that is to take advantage of the cross country ski rental on campus.

Oakland students, faculty and staff may rent skis or snowshoes from CIPO for $2.50 per hour. Daily rental is $5. Weekend and weekly rates are also available.

There are three trails for varying levels of skill and maps are available in CIPO.

Cross country skiing is a good way to enjoy the natural beauty of the campus. One student who took advantage of it, junior Rick Meeks said, "I saw two deer out here last year. No one believed me though."

Meeks was teaching his friends Karl Heid, sophomore, and Michelle Cosens, freshman, to ski.

"I've gone downhill so I thought it would be easy. It's not," said Heid.

Meeks, who has been cross country skiing for about eight years, added that it's not hard to learn, it just takes a little coordination.

It's best to ski when the paths have been beaten down by other skiers, said Meeks. He said the Metroparks groom their trails to foster good conditions.

What's a good place to ski? "Behind Meadowbrook Hall is popular," said Meeks.

One mistake inexperienced skiers make is wearing layers of clothing. They don't realize how warm the body stays during all that movement, even in cold weather. Meeks recommended that skiers wear sunglasses to block out the glare of the sun.

If you're inexperienced and you don't want to tackle the trails by yourself, Independence Oaks County Park in Clarkston offers lessons on Saturday mornings. For the next four weeks, the Detroit Free Press will fund the cost of the ski rental. The lessons will cost $10. You must register a week in advance.

Also at Independence Oaks, a carload of county residents can go ice fishing or ice skating for $2.50.

Snowmobile trails are available at Addison Oaks County Park in Oxford, as well as ice fishing, ice skating and sledding. Admission is the same for all county parks. Yearly permits can be purchased for $15.

New Year resolutions meaningless for some

BY MARYANNE KOCIS
Staff Writer

It seems that new year's resolutions have become almost an extinct species at OU. But those aspiring individuals who manage to set goals contend that they usually keep them.

"I don't make them every year but when I do, I usually try to stick with it--unless something better comes along!" said Kim Greene, Sweet Sensations cashier. Her resolutions include making the dean's list and losing a few pounds.

One confident student, Steve Kracht said, "I have no vices that I would like to stop, so I don't make new year's resolutions. Besides, the new year is nothing special."

SPB offers winter film series

BY TIM MARINE
Staff Writer

From Godzilla to Goonies to Great Teams, the Student Program Board 1986 Winter movies offer something for everyone.

"Godzilla Mania", "Romance", and "Great Teams, Part II" are the three theme series to be shown Wednesdays at 8 p.m. in 201 Dodge Hall.

January is dedicated to fans of guts and gore--it's Godzilla month.

"Love Story" and other favorite tear-jerkers will highlight February, appropriately slated for romance.

"Harold and Maude", a comedy about a wealthy teenager who falls in love with a cocky old lady is a highlight of the third series, to be held in March.

SPB films will also be shown on Fridays at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m., and Saturdays at 3 p.m. in 201 Dodge Hall.

"The Killing Fields" on January 24-25 and "Prizzi's Honor" on March 7-8 are two critically acclaimed films on the weekend list.

Also in the weekend series, "The Breakfast Club", "Beverly Hills Cop" and "Rambo: First Blood Part Two" are popular favorites.

All SPB movies cost one dollar.

Meadow Brook's 'Angel Street' on target

Richert Easley plays the devilish Inspector Rough in Meadow Brook Theatre's "Angel Street."

BY K.J. JONES
Theater Writer

(Angel Street continues through Jan. 26 at Meadow Brook Theatre. Call 377-3300.)

Tormented, neglected Mrs. Manningham hears noises at night from the top floor of her gas-lit Victorian manse. Her quirky, scoundrel husband forbids her to go upstairs and leaves the house at odd hours for places unknown.

This has the makings of one of Meadow Brook Theatre's typical, talent-wasting whodunits a la Agatha Christie, but director Terence Kilburn has really put together a talented group of actors in a suspenseful five-character melodrama called Angel Street.

Patrick Hamilton's 1938 play was originally titled Gaslight and became Angel Street upon coming to Broadway in 1941. The film version starred Ingrid Bergman.

What's remarkable about Hamilton's play is its disinterest in being a crafty mystery, and its focus on the torture/liberation of Bella Manningham (played by Bethany Carpenter). Although there's a natural building of excitement, there's an unconventional ending that gives the work a gratifying worth. It's the A Doll's House of stage mysteries.

Bethany Carpenter portrays hysterical, frenzied women like nobody else, and her repertoire is sprinkled with them (Childe Byron, My Sister in This House, Suddenly Last Summer). Her work in Angel Street is commendable because she resists the urge to overact in a genre that demands overplaying: melodrama. She's brutally passionate. This just might be one of her better recent roles and you don't expect it from a hokey melodrama.

When Mr. Manningham (played too rigidly by Meadow Brook semi-regular George Gitto) goes for one of his evening walks into the London fog, scruffy, scotch-toting Inspector Rough (played by Richert Easley) appears in the Manningham living room to tell Mrs. Manningham she's married to a murderer.

"I've been in many a tighter corner than this," says Inspector Rough, with his wisecracking eyes. Easley has a pliable, mustached face that belongs on a Disney character and he's having a good old time bobbing his head and gliding around the stage, which is filled by Peter Hicks' 1880's set. Easley lets the natural suspense written into his character come through, too: suspicious, we wonder whether or not he's a real police inspector.

Barbara Barringer continues to be fine (she plays the housekeeper), and it's good seeing a competent local actress like Liz Zweifler here, too. She plays Nancy, the saucy maid. Bravo to Kilburn for allowing new healthy talent like Zweifler and Chris Darga (he was in Present Laughter) to come to Meadow Brook.

If Meadow Brook insists on mounting stage mysteries, Angel Street is the kind to go with.

career in ENGINEERING MANAGEMENT

For highly qualified students in Engineering, Physics, Chemistry, Mathematics or hard sciences, the Navy's Nuclear Power Program offers the opportunity to earn over $1000 per month during your final year in college. For especially qualified persons, this benefit may be available for the final two years of college.

After graduation, you will receive graduate level training valued at $30,000 and begin work as a technical manager with immediate responsibility and authority. This is the only program of its kind in the world.

To qualify you must be between the ages of nineteen and twenty-six, be a U.S. citizen, be in good health and meet stringent academic requirements. Minimum educational requirements include at least one year of Calculus and one year of Calculus-based Physics. You must also have at least a 3.0 G.P.A. overall with a 3.0 in major.

The Navy Engineering Representative will be on campus Thursday, Jan. 16, 1986. Sign up at your Career Placement Office before Friday, Jan. 10, 1986 to be interviewed by our Navy Representative, or call us at 1-800-922-1703.

Student fantasizes campus subway system

BY TIM MARINE
Staff Writer

No upper class student should be subjected to the harsh winter conditions while traversing the campus.

A Student Subway, or S.S., built at OU (or beneath it) could ensure that juniors and seniors wouldn't get frostbitten between classes.

The S.S. would be exclusively for juniors and seniors, who've probably walked at least 1329.6

miles between classes in their first two years in school.

Currently, there's no real privileges for passing the halfway point in one's educational career. The most noticeable change occurs in the tuition bill—an increase of $7 per credit hour. The financing for the S.S. could balance that higher tuition rate.

Freshmen and sophomores would be assessed a $60 per semester fee to pay for the construction of the S.S. After it's built, the fee could pay for the operation of it.

Freshmen and sophomores would be encouraged to stick out their full four years at OU by the chance to ride the S.S. when they reach the halfway point.

Students transferring to OU as juniors would be assessed a $30 per semester fee, because they didn't pay any of the cost for the subway as freshmen or sophomores. But they would get to use the S.S. like all other upperclassmen.

OU could also educationally diversify through the S.S. construction. A major in construction could be offered, with classes like Pipefitting 100 and Bulldozing 200. These classes, all held outdoors, would emphasize practical experience. Using student labor that pays for the opportunity to gain that experience would help keep the project's costs down.

The S.S. project would offer something to everyone then.

Relief offered for New Year's Eve hangover sufferers

BY TIM MARINE
Staff Writer

The only New Year's Day resolution for New Year's Eve party animals is to reduce the peak of their horrendous hangovers.

So, as a public service to the suffering, here's a few hangover helpers.

Try the "Stallone Swallow." Gulp four raw eggs as "Rocky" did in training in his first movie. Pretty soon, you'll feel like punching out a rump roast.

Then there's the 'Ewell Gibbons Shake.' This banana,

Freshmen and sophomores would gain incentive to progress to juniors' and seniors' level, who would in turn benefit from their class rank. Of course, upperclassmen wouldn't have to pay anything to ride the S.S. For those of us without rich parents or full scholarships, this would be known as our free ride through school.

wheat germ, ice milk, cottage cheese, granola, grape nuts and bean sprouts concoction will put you out of your misery, maybe permanently.

For the junk food junkie, try the "Castle Cram." Eat a dozen White Castle hamburgers in five minutes. They'll soak up any booze left in your system, though your fat, cholesterol and sodium counts will soar.

The "Maalox Method" will let your stomach know who's master. Swallow a shot of Maalox for every shot of booze you drank on New Year's Eve. If you can't recall your exact alcohol stats, drink the whole bottle.

An alcoholic gymnast can "hangup a hangover." Simply hang upside down from a horizontal bar. No, I don't mean the bar you got drunk at New Year's Eve.

The unambitious New Year's Eve reveler can just pretend that New Year's Day doesn't exist. Nothing like a 24-hour nap to put some life back in the system. Just make sure that your head is above the sheets, lest someone thinks there's no life at all.

Whatever you do, don't watch any parades or football games. All those flowing floats, twirling batons and punted pigskins will only make you sicker than you already are.

Nominations for outstanding AP's being accepted

Nomination forms are now available for the 1986 Outstanding Administrative Professional Award. All members of the university community may submit nominations. Departments and individual employees should have received nomination forms through the university mail. Students may pick up forms in the CIPO office, 49 Oakland Center. Forms are also available by calling or stopping by the Budget Office, 100 North Foundation Hall, 370-2370.

The objective of the award is to recognize an Administrative Professional employee for outstanding contributions to the University's mission of excellence. Nominations can be made for an AP's entire service record or for a single outstanding achievement. The criteria are as follows:

1. Spirit of cooperation.
2. Extraordinary effort.
3. Support of institutional mission
4. University service.

"My resolution is not to look back, to look forward, to try to make the best of this year."

--Alisa Stamps, commuter from Detroit.

"I don't see why they need to be made New Year's Day. They should be made when they're needed. People who make them on New Year's Eve don't keep them anyway."

--Gary Amick, senior

"I didn't think about it...I should have made one about studying harder."

--Rhonda Nelson, sophomore commuter.

Philip Singer, professor of anthropology and sociology, is another non-believer in the concept. "New year's resolutions are like yo-yos. If you want to play yo-yo with yourself, make a new year's resolution. I just don't believe in them."

Lisa Dollinger, a student who works in circulation at the library, said that as far as she can remember, this is the first time she's ever made one. "My resolution is every girl's goal--to lose weight."

One anonymous student contended that this year was the first time he ever made a resolution for the new year. "I'm going to go with the one and only: tighten up and lose some weight."

Freshman Michelle Pytlesky said that her new year's resolution was "not to get any more OU parking tickets, or any parking tickets at all for that matter. I got enough of them last semester."

"I'm not into resolutions. It's any other day to me. The new year is the same as last year," said sophomore James Bragg.

Student Renee Coreg's advice is to "take things one day at a time and set your goals as you go along, that way you will have a better chance of making it."

New year's resolutions mean different things to different people. Some may find them helpful while others see no purpose in them at all. Some resolutions, like rules, are made to be broken, while others actually help those who are willing to stick to them. It just depends on what works best for each individual.

Ferris State cools off hot Pioneers, 94-78

BY PETER AUCHTER
Staff Writer

After winning seven of their last eight games, the Pioneers came out flat at home Thursday, allowing GLIAC rival Ferris State to rally past them in the second half for a 94-78 victory.

The Pioneers never got untracked, but managed to hang close to the Bulldogs most of the game.

"We didn't play very well," Coach Greg Kampe said, "and there was no excuse for it."

The loss dropped the Pioneers to 8-5 overall and out of a share of first place at 2-1 in league play entering Saturday's game with Wayne State. Ferris State upped its mark to 7-4 overall and 3-0 in the GLIAC.

During their hot streak, the Pioneers defeated Hillsdale, Illinois Institute of Technology, Northeastern Illinois, St. Mary's College (Orchard Lake), the University of Michigan-Dearborn, Aquinas and Northwood. Their only defeat came at Quincy College (Ill.) by just three points.

Oakland was ranked second in the region before Thursday's loss.

"We played great, everything was going our way," Kampe said of the streak.

New year starts on down note for women cagers

BY TIM DYKE
Staff Writer

The new year has not been kind to the women's basketball team.

After cruising through a tough non-conference schedule in 1985 with a 10-2 mark, the Pioneers have fallen on hard times in GLIAC play, losing to Northwood Institute 87-76 and Ferris State 62-60 last week.

Hosting Ferris State Thursday night, the Pioneers (10-4 overall, 1-2 in league play) made a late surge but fell short after being down by as much as 10 points in both halves.

"We are going to have to learn that we can't let our opponents get a 10-point lead and then try to come back," Coach Sue Kruszewski said.

"We didn't play well," she said. "We were outthrustled, we couldn't break their press, and we couldn't put the ball in the basket when we needed to."

Howze assaults record books

Thoughts at large:

All-GLIAC forward Chris Howze has fine-tuned his scoring touch in recent weeks -- setting several records in the process -- to lead the Pioneers to wins in seven of eight games before Thursday's loss to Ferris State.

The 6-3 senior is averaging 20.6 points a game in the final season of his brilliant career, and needed just two points in Saturday's contest with Wayne State to pass Tim Kramer (1,615 points) and move into second place on the all-time Oakland scoring list.

Howze tossed in a school-record 52 points in the Pioneers' 104-95 victory over the University of Michigan-Dearborn during the Christmas break. With the scoring spree, he became just the fourth player in Oakland history to pass the 1,500 career point mark, joining Carvin Melson (1969-73), Kramer (1975-79) and Mike Mohn (1980-84).

He canned 19-of-28 from the field and converted 14 of 17 free throws against the Wolves to break Melson's previous single-game mark of 48, set against Grand Valley State in 1972. The 14 free throws edged another Melson record, 13, also set in 1972.

Howze, who Coach Greg Kampe felt at the start of the season was a definite All-America candidate, won't be able to top Melson's record 2,409 points. He has grabbed 575 rebounds, ninth on the career list, and should move up to sixth by the end of the season. He also has a shot at breaking Mohn's record 108 games played, with appearances in 14 of the Pioneers' remaining contests.

He earned GLIAC Player of the Week honors for the second consecutive week by scoring 61 points and hauling in 16 boards to lead the Pioneers past Aquinas Dec. 30 and Northwood Jan. 4. He canned 13 straight shots from the floor against the Rockets to set yet another school mark.

The new year is starting out in typical fashion for Detroit sports teams. The Pistons are mediocre, the Lions missed the playoffs once again, and the Red Wings sport the worst record in the NHL. But the Tigers managed to sign Kirk Gibson by the Wednesday midnight deadline -- barely.

The major league owners appear to have banded together and instituted a ban on long-term contracts -- limiting pacts to three years -- in an effort to drastically curb (eliminate?) free-agent bidding and skyrocketing salaries.

A crop of free agents that included Gibson, Carlton Fisk and California Angels' reliever Donnie Moore received no offers from teams other than their 1985 clubs. This from free-spending owners such as the Yankees' George Steinbrenner and Atlanta's Ted Turner, who have shelled out millions in recent years for players of average talent?

Gibson had no choice but to accept the Tigers' offer, or reject it and hope that one of the teams would break and come up with a better offer, which wasn't likely.

The player's association and the owners will definitely have a date in court over this situation.

The Red Wings are putrid, but they will probably still make the playoffs because a) the NHL has a ridiculous playoff system, allowing 16 of the 21 teams to make it, and b) the Wings are lucky enough to have Toronto in the same weak division to edge for fourth place.

Freshman guard Johnny Johnson brought the fans to their feet with several dazzling passes to teammates for easy buckets in the Pioneers' 94-78 loss to Ferris State Thursday.

The 5-9 newcomer from Detroit Southwestern scored 14 points and grabbed 10 rebounds. He leads the team with 74 assists on the year, but is shooting just 42 percent from the floor.

He can be both spectacular and mistake-prone at times, but it appears Coach Greg Kampe has recruited a gem for his program.

Choosing a long distance company is a lot like choosing a roommate.

It's better to know what they're like before you move in.

Living together with someone for the first time can be an "educational" experience.

And living with a long distance company isn't any different. Because some companies may not give you all the services you're used to getting from AT&T.

For instance, with some companies you have to spend a certain amount before you qualify for their special volume discounts. With some others, voice quality may vary.

But when you choose AT&T, there won't be any surprises when you move in. You'll get the same high-quality, trouble-free service you're used to.

and never gave the Pioneers breathing room once they got on top.

Midway through the first half the Bulldogs opened up a 20-12 lead and threatened to take control of the game early, but senior forward Randy Strunk answered the challenge with a scoring blitz of his own.

After completing a three-point play, Strunk tossed in a pair of buckets to pull the Pioneers within striking distance at 22-19.

The teams then exchanged field goals until freshman guard Johnny Johnson and senior guard Rob Skinner hit jumpers to put the Pioneers in front 39-35 with 2:31 left in the half.

Chris Howze blew past Bulldog defenders for the final basket of the half as Oakland took a 42-39 edge into the lockerroom.

Things fell apart for the Pioneers in the second stanza when they turned the ball over frequently -- 11 times in the second half, 16 for the game.

The Bulldogs converted the turnovers into points and the Pioneers found themselves down by 11 with six minutes left.

"We have a better team than we showed tonight," Kampe said. "We just didn't execute."

A Johnson layup with a minute left sliced the deficit to 84-78, but Ferris slammed the door on the Pioneers' hopes by sinking 10 straight free throws in the final minute to ice the win.

Strunk paced the attack with 21 points and Howze and Johnson each tossed in 14. Johnson also pulled down a team-high 10 boards.

Skinner added 11 points and nine rebounds, while sophomore guard Scott Bittinger chipped in with 10 points.

For the Bulldogs, junior guard Robert Alexander pumped in a game-high 26 points, 6-6 senior forward Kurt Stevens scored 19 and freshman guard Jarvis Walker added 18.

In earlier action the Pioneers defeated Northeastern Illinois 85-72 at home Dec. 13. They struggled early, but put the game away with a 20-7 scoring run with four minutes left in the half.

Skinner scored 18 points, Howze 14 and freshman forward John Henderson 12.

The Pioneers continued their winning ways the following day at home with an 86-76 trouncing of St. Mary's.

Strunk netted 15 points and grabbed nine boards to lead the way.

At UM-Dearborn Dec. 19, Howze single-handedly dismantled the Wolves by pouring in a school-record 52 points in the 104-95 victory.

"(Howze) played great during the Christmas break," Kampe said. "I'm expecting him to be the leader of the team."

At Quincy, Ill., Dec. 21, the Pioneers suffered their lone defeat of the break, 71-68, despite Howze's 20 points.

Howze canned a school-record 13 straight field goals during a 38-point performance to lead the squad past Aquinas 98-88 at home Dec. 30.

Johnson collected 16 points and dished out 12 assists to keep the Rockets off-balance most of the game.

The Pioneers started the new year out on a high note when they whipped league rival Northwood 98-83 in Midland Jan. 4.

After struggling for much of the contest, the Pioneers scored 11 straight points midway through the second half to put the game away.

They set a school record by hitting 22 of 29 field goal attempts in the second stanza, a .759 percentage.

Strunk and Howze were the big guns, scoring 26 and 23, respectively.

The Pioneers host of pair of Upper Peninsula schools this week.

Lake Superior State will visit Lepley for an 8 p.m. game Thursday, and Michigan Tech, led by sharpshooters Jan Stage and Dave Besonen, will visit at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Michigan easily wins dual meet

U-M too tough for Pioneers

BY MIKE JORDAN
Staff Writer

The Pioneer women's swimming team was trounced by a strong University of Michigan team 82-56 at Lepley Friday.

Both teams were coming off hard training over the Christmas break, making it more difficult for both teams to compete.

"We swam 15,500 yards yesterday and we put in another 7,500 this morning," Michigan coach Jim Richardson said. "We're training through because we needed two weeks of solid training and we only had about a week and a half for Christmas vacation."

"I didn't think we should interrupt our training for a dual meet."

Pioneer coach Mary Ellen Wydan said that her team started a new phase of training that would make the swimmers somewhat tired and sore.

The Wolverines virtually ran away with the meet from the start. After winning the first two events to open a nine-point lead, they went on to win eight more events, although the Pioneers were less than five seconds behind the first-place finisher in six of the 10 Michigan victories.

Freshman Ginnie Johnson took firsts for the Pioneers in both the 100-yard butterfly and the 200 IM, while sophomore Nancy Schermer won the 500 freestyle.

The 400 freestyle relay team of Bonnie Gleffe, Linda Scott, Kim Pogue and Schermer also emerged victorious for the Pioneers.

Scott was edged out in the 100 freestyle by Michigan's Becky Fenson by only .22 seconds.

Both Richardson and Wydan were happy with the way their teams performed.

"I've only been at Michigan for three months so I don't know much about Oakland," Richardson said. "I know the old coach, Ernie Maglischo, so I do have respect for the program.

"We just go out to do our best. I was really pleased with the way we swam coming out of the training."

"I think we swam as good as we could have," Wydan said. "Michigan has a good team and I was pleased with the way we swam."

"Linda Scott swam well. She is recovering greatly from the car accident that she was in last August."

Michigan swept the top three places in both the 1- and 3-meter diving. The Wolverines have the 1984 U.S. Olympic diving coach, Dick Kimball, as their head diving coach.

While on Christmas break, Pioneer diver LeeAnn O'Neill qualified for the NCAA Division II championships in both 1- and 3-meter diving at the Mike Peppe swimming meet in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

The Pioneers' next meet will be at home against Purdue at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

A woman speaks frankly about Premenstrual Syndrome.

Do you remember, several years ago there used to be a TV commercial for some headache remedy? The daughter said,
"Mother, please - I'd rather do it myself!"
Then she took a couple of pills and felt fine.

Well, life isn't always that simple.
Many women are tormented by unexplainable depression, irritability, headaches, pain, fatigue, or a sense of just being "out of control" every month.

When this happens on a regular basis, it may be a symptom of
P.M.S., Premenstrual Syndrome.
This chemical-hormonal disorder is now recognized by the medical profession as affecting up to 40 percent of all women of childbearing age. Happily, though,
P.M.S. can now often be successfully treated and controlled through medical, psychological and nutritional guidance.

If you are a woman who is experiencing all, or some, of these symptoms, or are a man concerned about this condition in a woman you care about, call the P.M.S. Institute. It's a group of highly qualified, board certified gynecologists, psychologists and psychiatrists, trained in the diagnosis and treatment of P.M.S.
Your health insurance may cover
most of the costs.

Real life problems can't be handled as easily as in a TV commercial, but it's reassuring to know that help for the pain, frustration and anxiety of Premenstrual Syndrome is available.

Bulldogs with 30 points, canning 13-of-23 shots from the floor.

Sophomore forward Sarah Knuth -- one of several team members recovering from a flu bug -- led Oakland scorers with 15 points while also grabbing six boards.

Sophomore Cherry Wilks added 12 points and freshman forward Celeste Sartor 10.

"We need more intensity on the floor. Ferris intimidated us and we didn't get the shots we needed," Kruszewski said. "I hope we can learn from this experience and grow from it."

With as many as seven players fighting the flu, the Pioneers fell to Northwood in Midland Jan. 4.

"Northwood is an aggressive, physical, senior-oriented team, one of several that I believe has a chance to win this league," Kruszewski said. "We let them get a big lead and had to play catch up, and you don't win games that way."

Northwood jumped to a 37-25 halftime lead and shot 70 percent from the floor in the second stanza to ice the win.

Point guard Margaret Boyle led the Pioneers' attack with 21 points, Knuth tossed in 14 and junior center Lisa Quinn added 10.

Ringin' 1985 out with a bang, the Pioneers defeated Northern Kentucky -- ranked No. 7 nationally in Division II -- 59-55 at home Dec. 30.

Coupled with the team's fast start, the victory earned the Pioneers honorable mention status in the national poll, and boosted them to No. 3 in the Great Lakes region.

"It was a total team effort," Kruszewski said. "We were the dominant team that night -- we beat them with our defense."

Sonja Pearson tallied 12 points to lead the scoring while Quinn grabbed 13 rebounds and Boyle dished out nine assists.

The Pioneers' stifling defense enabled them to crush Ohio Northern 82-61 at home Dec. 28. It was one of the best defensive efforts of the year, Kruszewski said.

Quinn pumped in 19 points and snared 11 caroms to lead the way. Boyle recorded seven assists.

The Pioneers finished third in the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee tournament Dec. 21-22, losing the opener 72-56 to St. Ambrose College (Iowa) and coming back with an 82-66 victory over the National College of Education.

"We knew St. Ambrose was a solid team. We really didn't perform well, so I'm glad we were able to regroup and follow up with a victory," Kruszewski said.

Knuth tallied 11 points against St. Ambrose and Boyle pumped in 15 against NCE.

With a string of important league contests on the horizon, the Pioneers traveled to Wayne State Saturday. Results were not available at press time.

The squad hosts Lake Superior State at 6 p.m. Thursday, and Michigan Tech Saturday at 1 p.m.
