2015

DONOR HONOR ROLL

Dear Alumni and Friends,

On behalf of the students, faculty and staff at Oakland University I want to thank you for your generosity and support during 2015. We are so grateful for the many opportunities that your gifts provide to our students and faculty. By supporting scholarships, academic programs and facilities like learning labs and student centers, you are ensuring that OU provides an exceptional education to every student on campus. Your generosity is also leading the way for the University to attract and retain renowned faculty who will accelerate our research programs and impact the community in countless ways for years to come.

Your friendship and your gifts are transformational here, and we value our relationship with every donor. We are humbled and proud that you have chosen to support Oakland University and we are committed to being excellent stewards of your gift and your trust. I hope that you will visit us on campus often and help us promote the endless potential of the University we all love.

With gratitude,

Angie Schmucker

Lifetime Giving Societies

Gifts made to Oakland University make a tremendous difference in the lives of Oakland students. Thanks to donor support, Oakland University can continue its tradition of delivering excellence while educating the leaders of tomorrow.

In appreciation for these gifts, donors receive recognition through membership in one of several giving societies. These societies honor individuals who contribute a minimum of $10,000 over their lifetime and corporations that contribute a minimum of $50,000 in cumulative gifts. Oakland is grateful for the generosity of the individuals, corporations and foundations that have made the following giving societies possible.

► Professor Emerita Linda Hildebrand, CAS '79, reviews an OU student newspaper that will live on digitally through a gift from dear friend and fellow Professor Emerita Janet Krompart. The women met at the Kresge Library in 1976 and worked together until 1996.

Krompart-Hildebrand Digitization Fund ensures OU past not forgotten

Professors Emerita Linda Hildebrand, CAS '79, and Janet Krompart first met during a job interview in 1976, developing a friendship that flourished as they worked together at the Kresge Library until 1996.

"She has a great sense of humor, a big heart, a warm and loving personality and the wonderful ability to make and keep friends," Hildebrand said of her friend.

Krompart's son, Lee, said, "Linda has been an important part of our life. We spent many Thanksgivings together and up until 2012 when my mom moved to the Chicago area near us, Linda was always there."

Krompart held several different positions at OU over the years, but her expertise in Asian studies served her well as she catalogued all the Chinese language publications that were added to support academic programs.

With knowledge of several Asian languages, Krompart had worked as a translator of captured Chinese documents in post-war Japan during the Korean Conflict. After her discharge from the Army, she worked at the East Asian Library at UC-Berkeley, her alma mater. She moved to the Detroit area in 1968, driving with her husband at the time and two children (her daughter Lucia died in 2001) in a VW Beetle.

At the time of her retirement in 2013, Hildebrand was the coordinator of Special Collections and Archives. Today she volunteers at the Archives, inventorying and organizing various collections under the direction of the current archivist, Dominique Daniel, Ph.D., associate professor, University Libraries.

Lee and Leona Krompart wanted to honor Hildebrand's longtime friendship with their mother, but were not sure how.

"When we decided to do something as a thank you, we knew she would not take anything for herself," Lee said. "Kerry Burke (Major Gifts Officer at Kresge Library) gave us the idea for a donation to the library honoring their friendship."

Through a generous donation from the Krompart family, the University Libraries will be able to digitize OU school newspapers dating back 55 years.

Nancy Bulgarelli, formerly interim dean, University Libraries, said the $50,000 donation will fund digital projects and collections, which may include new equipment, hiring student assistants or outfitting the space to better function as a digital lab.

"This is a special project of Linda Hildebrand, since so much of the University's history is contained in these student newspapers," added Bulgarelli, associate professor and director of the OUWB School of Medicine Medical Library. "Another high-priority project will be to digitize approximately 1,000 historical photographs from the Archive's collections."

The first project using the funds will be to digitize, edit and preserve 100 selected student newspapers and create descriptive data and other metadata about the records. The collection will cover several titles, including the Oakland Observer (1965-69), Focus Oakland (1969-74), the Oakland Sail (1975-87), and the Oakland Post (1987-present), and consist of nearly 26,400 scanned pages.

Digitizing the collections and making them available online will provide easily accessible information for students, researchers, University offices and anyone interested in the history of the University.

When she learned that the Kromparts wanted to make the donation honoring her friendship with their mother, Hildebrand was stunned.

"Lee and Leona Krompart deserve to be recognized and lauded for their decision to make this gift to Oakland," she said. "I am amazed and honored that the donation would recognize my long and special friendship with Janet."

Hildebrand is also thrilled that OU's past will be preserved through the digitization. "The student newspapers provide a treasure trove of information on student concerns, their activities and all sorts of campus events, all presented from a student's point of view," she said. "Even the advertisements are informative."

Study abroad donor encourages ‘investigating the world’

Hearing Patti Finnegan Sharf describe the places she has visited is like listening to the plot of a good adventure book. As a young woman, she bicycled across Europe with friends, hitching a ride once the group reached the hills of Bavaria. She swam in the Amazon, and in Africa taught young children who she said were “glad to have someone educate them, even if it was on dirt floors.”

These and other journeys are more than vacations for Finnegan Sharf — they are eye-opening experiences that foster an appreciation of one’s own and other cultures.

Finnegan Sharf recently created a $550,000 planned endowment for Oakland University’s Study Abroad programs.

“Opening one’s experiences is important to making them aware of the world and really appreciating what they have,” said Finnegan Sharf, whose late husband Stephan Sharf pledged more than $21 million to the University in the past 15 years. “My hope is that when the students come back, they’ll educate others here and help over there.”

Her aspirations align with the University’s mission to increase enrollment in study abroad programs. President George W. Hynd’s long-term goal as part of the University’s strategic plan is a 300 percent increase.

“Oakland University has had a commitment to understanding the non-Western world since our founding,” President Hynd said. “With nearly 30 different study abroad programs today, our focus is to continue on that path. Patti’s gift will significantly help the University expand its global reach to better prepare our students for careers in a global environment. We thank her for that.”

Finnegan Sharf met three students who embarked on summer study abroad programs made possible with her gift.

Justin Jones, majoring in Environmental Science and Japanese Language and Literature, planned to stay in the Japanese city of Hikone for eight months. Jones said he “jumped for joy” on discovering he received Finnegan Sharf’s scholarship.

“To get the scholarship literally means everything to me,” said Jones, who added that he planned to use his time in Japan to increase his understanding of the Japanese language. “I want to walk away with a deeper understanding of Japanese culture and a broader outlook on society as a whole.”

“My hope is that when the students come back, they’ll educate others here and help over there.”

Khayriyyah Muhammad Smith, an International Relations and French major, travelled to Paris for two purposes: write her Honors College thesis on French political parties and how they attract youth, and brush up on her French.

“There’s not really a lot of primary research for my (thesis) topic since it’s such a new thing, so I’m going over there to be able to do interviews with youth for this political party. That’s really exciting,” she said, “because I never thought I would be doing international research.”

Ian Lancaster, the third student, travelled to Orléans, France, where he collected data in different areas in France for a philosophy research paper. Lancaster, who speaks French and knows some German, said he could not wait to become immersed in the culture: “I have a proclivity toward languages.”

Finnegan Sharf said she gets excited by students who are truly interested in their endeavors. “I want students to have that kind of enthusiasm, and to incite people to investigate the world.”

The path to caring ...

Scholarship established for non-traditional nursing students

Sometimes when you make a plan, life gets in the way.
That doesn't mean, however, that a dream to devote a career to caring for others won't pan out.

Even if you have to begin again at 40.

Entering the field straight out of high school as a licensed practical nurse, Marlene A. Kucinski, BSN, RN, spent part of her 38-year nursing career in the St. John Hospital System, with the last 13 years as a medical psychiatric nurse. She also worked as a case manager at Blue Cross Blue Shield.

"When I was 17, I obtained my LPN at Detroit Practical School of Nursing immediately after high school," Kucinski said. "Eventually, I realized I wanted more education to advance in my career and to expand what I could do for others."

Working full time, raising children and the responsibilities of a family made it a slow-going process, but at 40, Kucinski obtained her RN degree at Macomb Community College. Then she entered Oakland University's RN-BSN program, taking one class at a time, and graduating in 2000.

- ◀ Marlene Kucinski earned her BSN, RN from OU's School of Nursing in 2000 while working full time, raising children and taking one course at a time. In tribute to Marlene's perseverance, her sister established an endowment that will enable students who return to school later in life to pursue their dreams of a nursing career.

Admiring her sister's determination and perseverance as a non-traditional student, Dianne May established a $50,000 endowment in Marlene's name through the Edwin and Jeanette May Foundation of Bonita Springs, Florida. The first Marlene A. Kucinski RN-BSN Endowed Scholarship in the School of Nursing was awarded last fall to Benjamin Bolcer, a student in the Accelerated Second Degree program.

"The award is designed to encourage individuals to pursue their goals, even at a later age ... to let people know you can do it, even if the plan takes a detour," Kucinski said. "You can't stop learning. You don't have to be a 17-year-old to begin or enhance your career. People have full lives, and it may take doing just a class or two at a time, but it can be done."

Marlene Kucinski with Benjamin Bolcer, recipient of the first Marlene A. Kucinski RN-BSN Endowed Scholarship in the School of Nursing. Bolcer, a student in the Accelerated Second Degree program, graduates in April 2016.

The Marlene A. Kucinski RN-BSN Endowed Scholarship is designed to lighten financial stress for busy students who wish to enhance their careers, even if they are enrolled in just one class at a time.

School of Nursing Interim Dean Gary Moore, Ph.D., RN, said the award will lighten the financial stress of pursuing the dream of a nursing career.

"Nursing school, with its technologically advanced simulation labs and state-mandated faculty-to-student ratios, can be more costly than other programs," Dr. Moore said. "Working while in college is the number one reason for attrition. Scholarships remove some of the financial pressures for students, making academic achievement the main focus. Additionally, it rewards the hard work of conscientious students."

Students who are bilingual will be given preference for the award.

"We want to enrich cultural competence in the nursing profession," Kucinski explained. "It is essential for patients who do not speak English to be able to communicate how they feel and understand what is happening."

Kucinski is thrilled to be connected with the award. "It really makes me feel good to know this scholarship will be helping others who are working and striving to become more educated to fulfill their dreams, even — and especially — later in life."

Stinsons commit $5M to student success in SBA, Athletics

Alumni Craig and Ann Stinson pledged $5 million to Oakland University to be used in the two areas they are most passionate about — the School of Business Administration and the Department of Athletics.

The Stinsons' gift will enhance the Stinson Student Advancement Center in the business school and name the Stinson Family Student Athlete Development Center in Athletics.

Longtime Oakland donors, the Stinsons anticipate that their latest gift will help improve future success among business students and student athletes.

"The gift is being designed to help students bridge the gap between finishing their academic careers and becoming productive members in the working world," Craig said.

The Stinsons always mention the pride they feel when they see the quality of Oakland University graduates. They want to make sure Oakland continues to have the best academic opportunities and programs available for students well into the future.

"The Stinson family has a long history of philanthropy supporting students in our Oakland University community," President George W. Hynd said. "We are extremely grateful to Craig and Ann for their latest gift which will help us accomplish our mission and reach our primary strategic goal of student success."

"We love the state of Michigan and this wonderful university! We can see that President Hynd has quickly understood the allure of OU," Craig said. "He is a strong leader, and we want to help him achieve his vision and help him change the culture on campus and in the community. We want Oakland to be recognized as one of the great universities."

Craig added that he hopes that this gift will be inspirational for others in a position to help Oakland University achieve greatness.

"We have been inspired by the vision and leadership for transforming OU from good to great by both Steve and Patti Sharf and Hugh and Nancy Elliott," Craig said. "Now, Ann and I have a chance to follow in their footsteps and hopefully inspire others after us."

The Stinsons' ties to the School of Business Administration trace to their student days, where both say that Oakland taught them to fight for what they believe in and be unafraid to challenge the status quo. Craig graduated with a degree in Finance in 1984 and Ann graduated with a degree in Marketing in 1983.

According to SBA Dean Michael Mazzeo, "Craig and Ann have been tireless supporters and given back through many gifts to the School of Business Administration. They continually find ways to provide advantages to our students, faculty and staff."

The Stinsons' connection to OU Athletics reaches even further back.

When Craig was in ninth grade, he went to a summer basketball camp in Indiana. He thought he was a good player, but his camp counselor suggested otherwise, leaving Stinson with the thought that he had better focus on another career path.

His counselor was none other than Oakland University men's basketball Coach Greg Kampe.

Since returning to the area, Craig has rekindled his relationship with Coach Kampe and others in the Athletic Department to continually improve the student athlete experience.

"Ann and I know that our varsity athletes work extremely hard to balance academics and athletics and we want to make sure they have the tools they need to succeed in the classroom and on the playing fields," Craig said. "A strong Athletics program brings recognition for the University and teaches the same skills consistent with our own personal values."

"We want Oakland to be recognized as one of the great universities."

Athletics Director Jeff Konya said he shares the Stinson family's vision for Oakland.

"We both know where we want Oakland athletics to be," he said. "We want to be winning championships and graduating students who have the skills they need to succeed in the game of life."

Craig served on the search committees for Oakland University president in 2014 and School of Business Administration dean in 2013. He chairs the SBA's Board of Visitors and has served on the Athletics Department advisory board for several years.

Ann is a strong supporter of Oakland University Athletics. She hosts major donor events for the President's Invitational Golf Classic and was instrumental in the OU Student Athlete Development Center planning and awareness campaign.

Ann has been a member of the Meadow Brook Hall Ladies Committee for three years. The Ladies Committee hosts various fundraisers and supports the Hall's conservation efforts. She was also a member of the former President's Campaign Council for the University.

Craig and Ann Stinson have made numerous prior gifts to the University, totaling over $530,000, which have supported SBA programs. They have been instrumental to the success of the President's Invitational Golf Classic, which has raised more than $1.5 million for Oakland University Athletics.

In 2008, the couple joined friends R. Hugh and Nancy Elliott to establish an SBA matching gift challenge and helped raise nearly $400,000 during the School's 40th anniversary.

Craig received the Distinguished Alumni Service award from the Oakland University Alumni Association in 2010. Mr. and Mrs. Stinson were named Oakland University's National Philanthropy Day Distinguished Volunteers in 2013.

The Alfred G. Wilson Society

Cumulative gifts of $25,000 – $49,999. This society is named in honor of Alfred G. Wilson, whose vision and financial commitment led to the establishment of Oakland University.

The Black and Gold Loyalty Society recognizes contributions from donors who have made gifts of any size to Oakland University consecutively for three or more years. Oakland University created this society to acknowledge the important philanthropic role that consistent, annual donors play in the University's mission. The black and gold diamond symbol denotes this society.

Thank You For Your Gift

Published on Sep 29, 2015 | At Oakland University, we have a long-standing history of generosity from our supporters. Oakland University started as a gift from Matilda and Alfred Wilson by the donation of their land and their resources. Because you choose to be an active partner in our academic community, our students have had opportunities they never dreamed of when they first entered our campus.

Last year, donors like you helped...
