Four honored at commencement

Two eminent professors, a noted actor and lecturer, and a Pontiac business and civic leader will receive honorary degrees at Oakland University commencement exercises Sept. 15.

The 2 p.m. ceremony in Baldwin Pavilion honors approximately 800 OU students who have completed their course work in July or August.

Receiving honorary doctorates are Lew Ayres, film actor and lecturer on world religions, and Harry Bober, founder of the International Center of Medieval Art and professor in the Institute of Fine Arts, New York University, doctor of humanities degrees; Kenneth A. Meade, adjunct professor of engineering at OU and former director of educational relations for General Motors, doctor of science; and Harold A. Cousins, businessman and first chairperson of the Pontiac Stadium Building Authority, doctor of laws.

These are the first honorary degrees awarded at OU since 1974. The current recipients all have ties to the institution. Ayres has presented his film "Alters of the World" on several occasions, and he will teach a credit course and continuing education program here this fall. Bober has been instrumental in helping the university build its art collection. Kenneth A. Meade has taught continuing education and engineering credit courses at OU, and he developed an unusual teaching laboratory in statics and dynamics. Harold A. Cousins has worked on the steering committee of the OU President's Club, given strong support to the Meadow Brook Festival and Theatre, and his gifts were instrumental in the construction of the Katke-Cousins Golf Course.

In addition, three OU alumni will be cited at the ceremonies for their many contributions to the OU Alumni Association and to the institution. All three have served on the association's board of directors.

Receiving Distinguished Alumni Service Awards are Detroit attorney David B. Lewis, class of 1965, current chairperson of the Oakland University Board of Trustees; Rochester realtor R. James Girardot, class of 1968; and Susan McKelvey, class of 1971. McKelvey, a resident of Rochester, is in the Marketing Department of Community National Bank.

Gwen Heard joins staff

Oakland University has chosen one of its own to become the employment manager at the institution.

Gwen Heard, 33, has accepted the manager's position after six years of administrative service in the City of Pontiac. At the time of her OU appointment she was acting personnel management administrator for the city. The new appointment is effective immediately.

Her OU duties include administration of recruitment and testing programs, and managing the CETA program, career development program, and assisting in the development of personnel policies and procedures.

Heard holds a B.A. degree from OU and she has served for three years on the Alumni Association Board of Directors. In addition, she is coordinator of the Black Alumni Association affiliate organization.

The new employment manager holds a master's degree in personnel administration from the University of Michigan. Prior to employment by the City of Pontiac she was an administrative analyst for the city of Des Moines, Ia.

Memberships include the American Society for Public Administration, the International City Management Association, and steering committee chairperson of the Michigan Conference of Black Public Officials. Heard resides in Pontiac.

Coaches join staff

Peter N. Hovland and Russell E. Smith have been named new women's swimming coach and men's tennis coach respectively.

Hovland graduated from California State University at Chico with a Bachelor of Arts degree and he earned his Master of Arts degree in physical education from the University of Northern Iowa. While at CSU, he swam for Ernie Maglisch, OU's present men's swimming coach, and was a member of California State University's four-time NCAA Division II national championship team. Hovland was a 23-time All-American swimmer and a national record holder in 13 events from 1972-76. Included among Hovland's other accomplishments are: recipient of California State University at Chico most outstanding senior scholastic athlete in 1976, recipient of the Far Western Conference most outstanding senior scholastic athlete in 1976, and team captain in 1974-75.

Smith has a Bachelor of Science degree in health, physical education and recreation from Seton Hall University. While at Seton Hall, Smith was a member of the athletic council. He earned his Master of Science degree with an emphasis in exercise physiology from Arizona State University. While at ASU, Smith was a graduate assistant, a tennis instructor, and an adapted physical education assistant.

Grant record is $3,883,930

Oakland University's grant activity for fiscal 1978-79 was well over the $3 million mark, the highest total ever recorded by the institution.

Figures from the Office of Research and Instructional Services show $3,883,930 in grant support topping the previous record of $3,829,696 achieved in 1977-78.

Lewis N. Pino, director of research and instructional services, notes that over the past five years the grant and contract totals have nearly doubled. He predicts a $5 million figure can be achieved by 1982 with proper staffing.

External support in the faculty research category has more than tripled over the same five year period, from $592,487 to the 1978-79 total of $1,883,567. The research category is an important measure of support. University officials say research grants help bring equipment money, prestige, and undergraduate and graduate student work opportunities to the institution.

Other categories of grant support include educational proposals where 26 proposals were funded for $1,378,083 and development proposals with 16 projects funded for $622,278. The $1,883,567 in research funding was realized from 44 funded proposals.

Pino listed the top ten units of the university in terms of total grant dollars for the past fiscal year. The leaders were the Institute of Biological Sciences, $682,562; the School of Engineering, $624,126; university-general areas, $497,562; the Department of Biological Sciences, $418,254; Student Affairs, $399,004; Department of Chemistry, $241,293; School of Human and Educational Services, $277,085; the Division of Continuing Education, $220,467; Urban Affairs, $216,265; and the School of Nursing, $132,716.

As an overview, Pino noted that the Institute of Biological Sciences had a significant increase in external funding during the just completed fiscal year and that the School of Engineering jumped from $187,850 in grants in 1977-78 to $624,126 in 1978-79.

Two new grants in sociology and anthropology suggest increased possibilities for funding in the social sciences and humanities, Pino said.

Parachute jump

Members of the Detroit Parachute Club will give a free demonstration of their sport Sept. 13 on the campus of Oakland University.

The first jump will be at noon with others planned throughout the afternoon.

The participants will leave the plane at approximately 10,000 feet, join hands and do "relative work" or maneuvers, then separate and engage their parachutes.

The jump target area is the open space adjacent to the Oakland Center and North and South Foundation Hall.

Each jump will be preceded by a showing of the film "Wings" in the Oakland Center. The jumping demonstration and film showings are sponsored by the OU Programming Society.

Julian Bond lectures Sept. 19

Human and civil rights leader Julian Bond will speak at Oakland University Sept. 19 on "Recent Changes in the American Political System."

The 3 p.m. address will be in the Crockery of the Oakland Center. The public is invited.

Bond has been nationally prominent since the 1968 Democratic convention where he challenged the hand-picked delegation of Lester Maddox, then governor of Georgia. Bond won that challenge leading to the end of the unit rule and paving the way for more open, representative delegations.

As one of the founders of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, he has participated in voting drives and sit-ins. More recently, he has devoted his energy towards such efforts as the Southern Elections Fund, the Voter Education Project, and the Southern Poverty Law Center.

In addition, Bond was named by Time magazine as one of the 200 outstanding young leaders for the future.

Mr. Bond's visit is jointly sponsored by the Pre-Law Society, CIPO, the Division of Student Affairs Lecture Fund, and the Vending Fund.

Additional information may be obtained by calling CIPO (377-2020).
