Grizz Facts: A look at URM student graduation rates

Thirty-eight percent of underrepresented minority (URM) students entering OU in 2012 graduated within six years, exceeding the previous high of 34 percent. As indicated in the chart below, this increase narrowed the gap in six-year graduation rates between URM students and white students to 20 percent.

The four-year graduation rate for URM students experienced a sharp decline for the 2014 cohort, though it remains the third highest rate on record.
