

OAKLAND UNIVERSITY

News

104 North Foundation Hall
Rochester Hills, MI 48309-4401

A publication for faculty and staff

October 13, 1989

The Same Old Grind

A view straight down from the roof shows David Arnold grinding away on an exterior wall of Kresge Library. The library renovation is nearly complete and students are once again able to use the building in relative quiet. See page 3 for a brief note about some library services being moved to their new quarters.

Author Loren Estleman Featured Speaker at 28th Annual Writers' Conference

More writers than an editor can shake a blue pencil at will be on campus for the 28th annual Writers' Conference.

Sponsored by the Detroit Women Writers and the Division of Continuing Education, the October 20-21 event brings together hundreds of amateur and professional writers. They meet with other writers and editors in small workshops to hone their skills.

This year's event includes two featured speakers. On October 20, the dinner speaker at Meadow Brook Hall will be Loren D. Estleman. The author of 31 books, among them Silent Thunder, will offer remarks on Is There Anyone Out There? — Remembering the Reader.

Estleman's first book was published in 1976. He is known for his Westerns and Amos Walker detective series. He is a two-time winner of the Western Writers of America Spur Award and the Private Eye Writers of America Shamus Award.

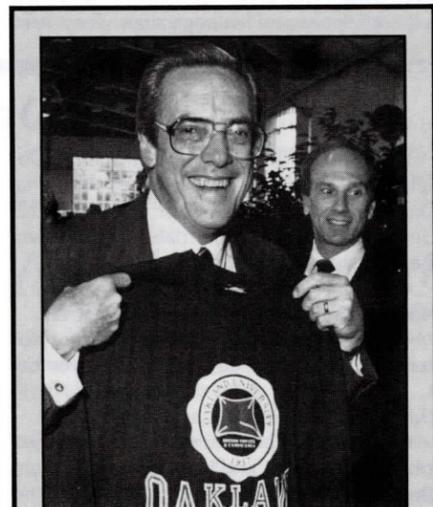

The October 21 sessions in the Oakland Center will feature luncheon speaker Shelby Hearon, a writer who has twice received the Texas Institute of Letters Jesse Jones Award, among other awards.

The deadline for the October 20 dinner, open to the public, is October 13. For regular workshops, the deadline is October 16. Call 370-3120 for complete details and fees.▼

Estleman

Former U.S. trade representative William Brock spoke on campus. See page 3 for details.

United Way Time Campaign Stresses Participation

Getting more employees involved in the United Way of Oakland County fund drive is the goal of this year's campaign.

Chairperson Terry Dibble, coordinator of special programs, facilities and health maintenance at Meadow Brook Health Enhancement Institute, hopes to top last year's 12 percent participation rate among university employees.

The monetary goal for the campaign is $28,500. Oakland's contributions will be added to those of other schools in an attempt to reach a $140,000 educational institutions' goal.

Pledge forms should already be in employees' hands. Dibble asks that they be returned by October 27.

To help spur interest in United Way, an informational presentation will be made from noon-1 p.m. October 23 in the Oakland Center Fireside Lounge. On the same day, from 10 a.m.-2 p.m., an exhibit booth will be set up in the OC Exhibit Lounge. Representatives will be on hand to answer questions and provide literature about United Way agencies.

Last year, according to United Way, its 60 member agencies assisted 180,000 Oakland County residents. Among the services supported are those dealing with alcoholism, drug abuse, child care, mental health, consumer protection and crime prevention. Last year, 148 OU employees received help from United Way agencies.▼

Fund-Raisers Add to Life of Meadow Brooks

Volunteers, bless 'em.

With the aid of a cadre of community volunteers and university staff members, three major projects during the past few months exceeded expectations.

The Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook Hall brought in a record amount, topping $210,000 for the first time. The one-day classic car show is the single largest fund-raising event for Meadow Brook Hall.

At Kresge Library, students will benefit from new books made possible by proceeds from the Glyndebourne Picnic. The black-tie event at Shotwell-Gustafson Pavilion raised more than $22,000 for the Friends of the Kresge Library.

A third fund-raiser, Picnic on the Grass XVII, raised $10,800 for Meadow Brook Art Gallery.

Margaret Twyman said the work of 300 volunteers made the Concours a success. Then there are the committee members who start planning in January and get together monthly. Add to that some subcommittees and you have a lot of planning sessions that rely on volunteer helpers.

The total amount includes gate sales from 10,128 visitors and proceeds from the art auction held the Friday evening before the Sunday event. Meadow Brook Hall received 25 percent of the sale prices and 10 percent of the sales of art on Concours day. Six hundred persons attended the art auction.

On the Saturday night before the Concours, approximately 700 persons gathered for a banquet at Shotwell-Gustafson Pavilion. Exhibitors, committee members, judges and others associated with the Concours attended.

Another factor that helped Meadow Brook Hall realize a greater profit from the show was that the first time, all 14 major trophies the judges awarded had corporate sponsors. Among those awarding the trophies were Robert C. Stempel, president of General Motors and Concours honorary chairperson, and Duane F. Miller, vice president of design engineering at Nissan Research and Development, and Concours chairperson.

Twyman said one of the reasons for the success of this year's show was the best weather in 10 years.

Dean Suzanne Frankie of the library said nearly 400 guests attended the swank picnic. The $22,000 enabled the Friends organization to complete its $100,000 pledge to the library made in 1985. Approximately $10,000 of the total was raised through a silent auction of 31 items, such as roundtrip airline tickets to London, a weekend getaway on Drummond Island, a trip to Toronto, golfing at Katke-Cousins Golf Course and the use of Cadillac Allante and Buick Reatta luxury cars.

Chairpersons for this year's Glyndebourne were Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Battenberg III. He is vice president and group executive of Buick-Oldsmobile-Cadillac.

Kiichi Usui, art gallery curator, said 161 buyers registered this year. Silk jackets painted by 44 artists were auctioned. A different twist was holding a silent auction this year inside the gallery in Wilson Hall for some of the pieces. A tent outside was used for the picnic and a live auction. Holding the picnic at the gallery also exposed the gallery to the visitors.

The Picnic on the Grass was chaired by Mr. and Mrs. James B. Fitzpatrick. It was the first event of the Meadow Brook Art Gallery Associates under the direction of Fitzpatrick, who is president of the group.

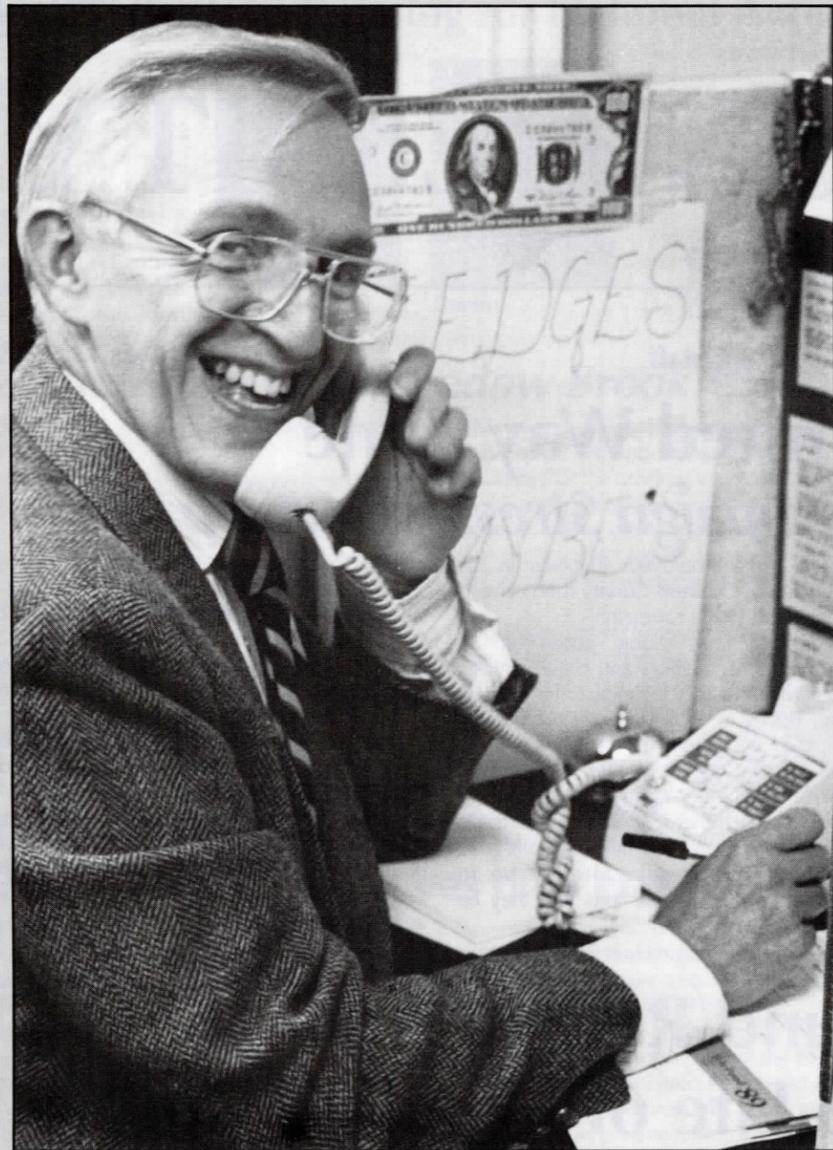

Usui says special recognition is due several volunteers who made the picnic possible: Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Barron, Mr. and Mrs. Sean Fitzpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. David Handleman, Kempf Hogan, Dr. and Mrs. Ahmet Karaca, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Piku, Mr. and Mrs. John Rines, Mr. and Mrs. Ramon von Drehle and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Youngren.

Usui notes that Friends of Meadow Brook, an exhibition featuring the works of selected picnic artists, will be at the gallery from November 26-December 20.▼

Lafayette String Quarter?

Violinist Sharon Stanis of the Lafayette String Quartet goes semi-incognito to prepare for her own recital sans the other three LSQ members. Although in a playful mood now (you can be that way when you're good), Stanis will be all business when the performance begins. The concert features Stanis and two guest performers. See page 4 for details.

Associate Professor Robert Facko, music, helped get Telefund '89 off to a good start by obtaining $785 in pledges from alumni. During the first four nights of the fund drive, volunteer callers raised $34,096 for university programs from 1,066 donors. The campaign continues until December 14. To volunteer, call 370-4247. Photo by Art Stephenson.

Our People

If you have a news item about yourself, send it to the News Service, 104 NFH.

PRESENTATIONS

- John Stella, rhetoric, communications and journalism, conducted an interview with Noam Chomsky on WCAR-AM on the program, Natural Alternatives. Stella hosts the show each week. Chomsky is world-renowned for his work in linguistics and has lectured at OU in the past on his research. He has become known as one of America's leading dissenters as an acute critic of U.S. foreign policy and a subversive American media. He was featured in two segments of the PBS series, Bill Moyers' World of Ideas.

- Peter Binkert, linguistics, presented Word Order, Concord, and Short Term Memory, to the Michigan Linguistics Society at Eastern Michigan University. He will present Syntax, Parsing, and Short Term Memory at the annual meeting of the Linguistics Society of America in Washington, D.C., on December 30. The society allows only a few long papers (45 minutes) each year, and this will be one of them.

- William Connellan, provost's office, presented a paper on national faculty hiring projections in Louisville, Ky. The presentation was part of a two-day workshop for university presidents and members of boards of trustees. The conference was sponsored by the Kentucky Council of Higher Education.

- Andrea Eis, art and art history, has a photo-installation, Cassandra's Room, in the exhibition, Michigan Connection: 15 Photographers, running from October 13-November 10 at the Detroit Artists Market.

CONFERENCES

- Rebecca Warner, sociology, and Judith K. Brown, anthropology, attended the conference,

The Oakland University News is published every other Friday during the fall and winter semesters and monthly from June-August. Editorial offices are at the News Service, 104 North Foundation Hall, Oakland University, Rochester, MI 48309-4401. The telephone is 370-3180. Copy deadline is noon Friday of the week preceding the publication date.

- James Llewellyn, senior editor and news director

- Jay Jackson, staff writer

- Rick Smith, photographer

Menopause: A Midlife Passage, at the University of Kentucky. Brown presented a paper, In Her Prime: Cross-Cultural Perspectives on Middle-Aged Women.

HONORS

- Jane Goodman, Continuum Center, and Howard Splete, education, have been selected and trained to be part of a national cadre of trainers for the new National Career Development Guidelines of the National Occupational Information Coordinating Committee. The guidelines include statements of desired student or client competencies, counselor competencies, and institutional capabilities that provide the underpinning for a comprehensive career development program. They are tailored for five program settings, including community and business organizations, post-secondary institutions, high schools, middle and junior high schools, and elementary schools.

- Albert Lederer, business administration, has been appointed to the Editorial Review Board of the Journal of Database Administration. The first issue is scheduled for next spring.

New Faces

Additions to the university staff in recent weeks include the following persons:

- Deborah A. Watson of Troy, Office of the Registrar.

- Theresa Ankney of Mt. Clemens, Department of Public Safety.

- Peggy S. Lee of Warren, Department of Public Safety.

- Daniel W. McNeil of Waterford, Department of Public Safety.

- Carolyn L. Moss of Pontiac, Board of Trustees.

- Nola C. Puvalowski of Lake Orion, Department of English.

- Roland Schemers of Rochester Hills, Office of Computer Services.

- Debora Zalewski of Utica, Meadow Brook Health Enhancement Institute.

- Judith Ann Arnold of Rochester, School of Human and Educational Services.

- Phyllis Hunt of Pontiac, Marriott.

- Theresa MacKillop of Clawson, Department of Public Safety.

SATE Conference Looks at Teachers of '90s

Working and prospective teachers will learn techniques, from time management to enhancement of students' self esteem, in The Total Teacher: Strategies for the '90s.

The November 18 conference in the Oakland Center is designed for elementary and secondary school personnel. The sponsor is the Student Association for Teacher Education.

Keynote speaker will be teacher and media personality John M. Delle-Monache. His topic is So You Want to be a Teacher, But are You Equipped for the Kids of the '90s?

Delle-Monache holds an undergraduate degree in education and a master's in mass communication. He has been honored for his work in the areas of education and illiteracy and, in addition to his media work, he teaches at Henry Ford Community College. His lecture will be at 9 a.m.

Student President Sandra Agazzi says participants should register by November 1. Information on costs and conference sessions can be obtained by calling her at 264-4953 or 264-1067.▼

Seminar Focuses on How to Teach About Religion in the Classroom

Learning how to teach religion has become more of an issue than whether to teach it.

Oakland University, Birmingham Public Schools and Rochester Community Schools are sponsoring a November 2 seminar on the topic for secondary school teachers and administrators throughout the state.

The Conference on Teaching About World Religions in Secondary Schools will be held from 9 a.m.-3:45 p.m. in Meadow Brook Hall. The Center for International Programs is the sponsor.

Topics will include strategies and methods for teaching about world religions, the psychology of religion, philosophy of religion, history of religions, Jewish fundamentalism in Israel and the Arab-Israeli dispute and many others.

Conference sponsors say the teaching of world religions in the classroom is growing. Although the Supreme Court has barred the promotion of religious beliefs or classroom prayer, it has upheld the right to discuss religion in a wider scope or curriculum, such as including it naturally in social studies or literature offerings.

Participating OU faculty members will be Peter J. Bertocci, professor of anthropology; Richard W. Brooks, associate professor of philosophy; Vincent B. Khapoya, professor of political science; Lawrence G. Lilliston, associate professor of psychology; Gary Shepherd, associate professor of sociology; William C. Fish, associate professor of education; Richard J.

Burke, professor of philosophy; Leonardas V. Gerulaitis, professor of history and coordinator, Religious Studies Program; and Munibur Rahman, professor of Hindi-Urdu, South Asian and Middle Eastern Studies.

T.K. Vernkateswaran, professor of religious studies, University of Detroit, and Charles Mabee, professor of religious studies at Marshall University, round out the program.

Additional information about the conference can be obtained by calling Carlo Coppola, director of the Center for International Programs and professor of Hindi-Urdu, at 370-2154.▼

Discounted Tickets Offered for 'Les Miserables'

You can see Les for less.

Pat Nicosia, budget director, has obtained two discounted ticket blocks for the musical Les Miserables at the Fisher Theatre in Detroit. The 7:30 p.m. performances are November 12 (150 tickets) and November 19 (100 tickets).

The regular $25 upper balcony ticket can be purchased by any Oakland employee or student for $16. Nicosia says the theatre is unwilling to discount any other seats for this production, regardless of ticket-block size.

To obtain tickets, send a check made payable to Pat Nicosia, 100 NFH. The deadline is October 17 for the November 12 performance and October 24 for the November 19 performance.▼

United Way at Work

The stereotype of a juvenile delinquent is a teenage dropout from a broken home, living in a ghetto.

Research shows, however, that although this may sometimes be true, there is no such thing as a certain type of young person who becomes delinquent and another type who doesn't. Data collected over the past 25 years have shown repeatedly that delinquent behavior is widespread among youth from all backgrounds, regardless of economic status, educational background or parental permissiveness.

Experts say that to prevent unacceptable behavior, young people need less negative labeling, less negative peer pressure and more opportunities for personal growth, learning and interaction with positive role models.

A contribution to United Way of Oakland County provides funds for a number of charities offering programs for young people.

The Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, for example, offer much more than safe, fun camping. They help boys and girls develop to their fullest potential and become competent and resourceful adults. Through special programs and workshops, and by constantly interacting with positive role models, members develop self-confidence and lifelong values. They learn to think for themselves, enabling them to combat peer pressure.

Research shows that delinquency is a behavior learned in social interaction, primarily within intimate personal groups.

United Way charities, like the Boys and Girls Clubs in Pontiac and Auburn Hills, the Brandon-Groveland-Ortonville Joint Recreation Commission, Community Activities, Inc., in Waterford and a number of others provide a recreational atmosphere during the summer and after school. Young people can develop healthy friendships with those who share similar values.

For information about youth activities and the organizations mentioned, call your United Way at Work representative or First Call for Help at 456-8800.

Jobs

For information on position openings, call the Employee Relations Department, 140 NFH, at 370-3480.

- Master trades V, AFSCME, Campus Facilities and Operations.

- Receptionist-security guard, miscellaneous, MeadowBrook Hall.

Funding Opportunities

The Office of Research and Academic Development has details about sources of external funding. Stop by 370 SFH or call 370-3222. Unless noted, proposal due dates are unknown.

Department of Education

- Student Literacy Corps program, January 2.

National Endowment for the Humanities

- Humanities young scholars awards, November 1; and visual artists forums, November 1.

U.S. Institute of Peace

- International peace unsolicited grants, October 1, February 1 and June 1.

Department of Energy

- Human genome research, December 15; prefreshman engineering program, October 30.

National Institute on Deafness and Other Communication Disorders

- Behavioral, etiological and physiological aspects of stuttering, October 1, June 1 and February 1.

Department of Interior

- Water resources research grants, November 21.

Environmental Protection Agency

- Environmental health and biology research, February 16 for environmental health and March 17 for environmental biology; and visiting scientists and engineering program, February 26.

National Science Foundation

Exploratory research small grants, any time after October 1.

National Endowment for the Arts

Music professional training, October 24.

Bits & Pieces

Machines Vend Condoms

Condoms will soon be available on campus through vending machines in the Oakland Center and Vandenberg Hall.

Condoms have been, and will continue to be, available at Graham Health Center in combination with educational programming.

The decision to dispense condoms "is based on a deep concern for the health of our students, and should not be interpreted as advocating or condoning premarital sex. This is consistent with the other health-related services and programs offered through our counseling and health centers," said David Herman, dean of students.

Virgil Thomson Dies

Composer and former music critic Virgil Thomson died September 30 at his New York City home at age 92.

Thomson spent June 12-18, 1988 at Oakland as McGregor Professor in the Humanities and Arts. He conducted a master class, gave a public lecture and participated in a special film and concert presentation that featured his music.

Thomson was the only person to win a Pulitzer Prize for a film score. He was a noted critic with the now-defunct New York Herald Tribune, famous for his wit and insight.

While at Oakland, Thomson commented on what it's like to read what critics say of his own compositions. "If the review is favorable, I think the reviewer is a wise man. Otherwise, I think he's a nitwit or in the pay of my enemies."

Talk Looks at Abortion

Maryse E. Long of Michigan-Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights will speak on Whose Body is it, Anyway? in a free program in the Oakland Center.

Long's talk will be at noon in the Fireside Lounge. The event is sponsored by the Jewish Students Organization, Women's Studies and Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity. For information, call 370-4257.

Library Plans Move

Kresge Library is inching closer to the day when construction work will be only a memory.

The staff asks for patience on October 17 when the reference materials will be moved to their new location. The circulation staff was scheduled to be moved earlier this week.

A formal dedication ceremony for the renovated building will be held November 8. Additional details will be announced in the October 27 issue of the Oakland University News.

Turn Yourself into a Loser

By losing weight, that is, you can gain good health and shape up your body.

Another six-week session of low-impact aerobics begins October 23 at Lepley Sports Center. The Monday and Wednesday classes will run from 5:15-6:15 p.m.

The program is designed for those just beginning to exercise, for persons who are 15 pounds or more overweight, for those who prefer a more moderate workout or for persons with orthopedic problems.

Space is limited. The fee is $20; sign up by October 20 at Lepley Sports Center.

Tuned in to the World

That new 10-foot satellite dish on top of Varner Hall means that Oakland can now receive television signals that are unavailable from regular broadcast or cable TV.

George Preisinger, manager of the Instructional Technology Center, says the dish can receive both C and KU band microwave signals from geosynchronous satellites. What that means is the university can now pull in teleconferences, professional association meetings, telecourses, seminars and foreign language programs in 112 Varner.

Call 370-2463 if you wish to lock onto a signal — other than a football game.

Fortress Europe? Brock Urges American Business to Tap Stronger European Marketplace

It took only a few centuries, but Europe has finally pulled itself together.

Economically, politically and socially, changes are taking place rapidly that will have widespread implications, even to Southeastern Michigan.

In a process that former U.S. trade representative and Secretary of Labor William Brock called "the most important economic event of this entire century," 12 western European nations have streamlined their internal and external trade regulations to unite the continent and make manufacturing much more efficient. As a result, by 1992 Europe will become a much stronger economic force, giving it the kind of clout enjoyed by the United States and Japan.

"We're going to have to look at the world in a different way," Brock said.

The process, dubbed Project 1992, has also come to be known as Fortress Europe by those who fear Europe will become a protectionist market, freezing out American and Asian products.

Brock spoke at Oakland on October 3 at the fourth annual Business Forum sponsored by the School of Business Administration Student Board and Ameritech Publishing, Inc. He is less fearful about protectionism and more so about American businesses failing to respond to the challenge posed by a united Europe.

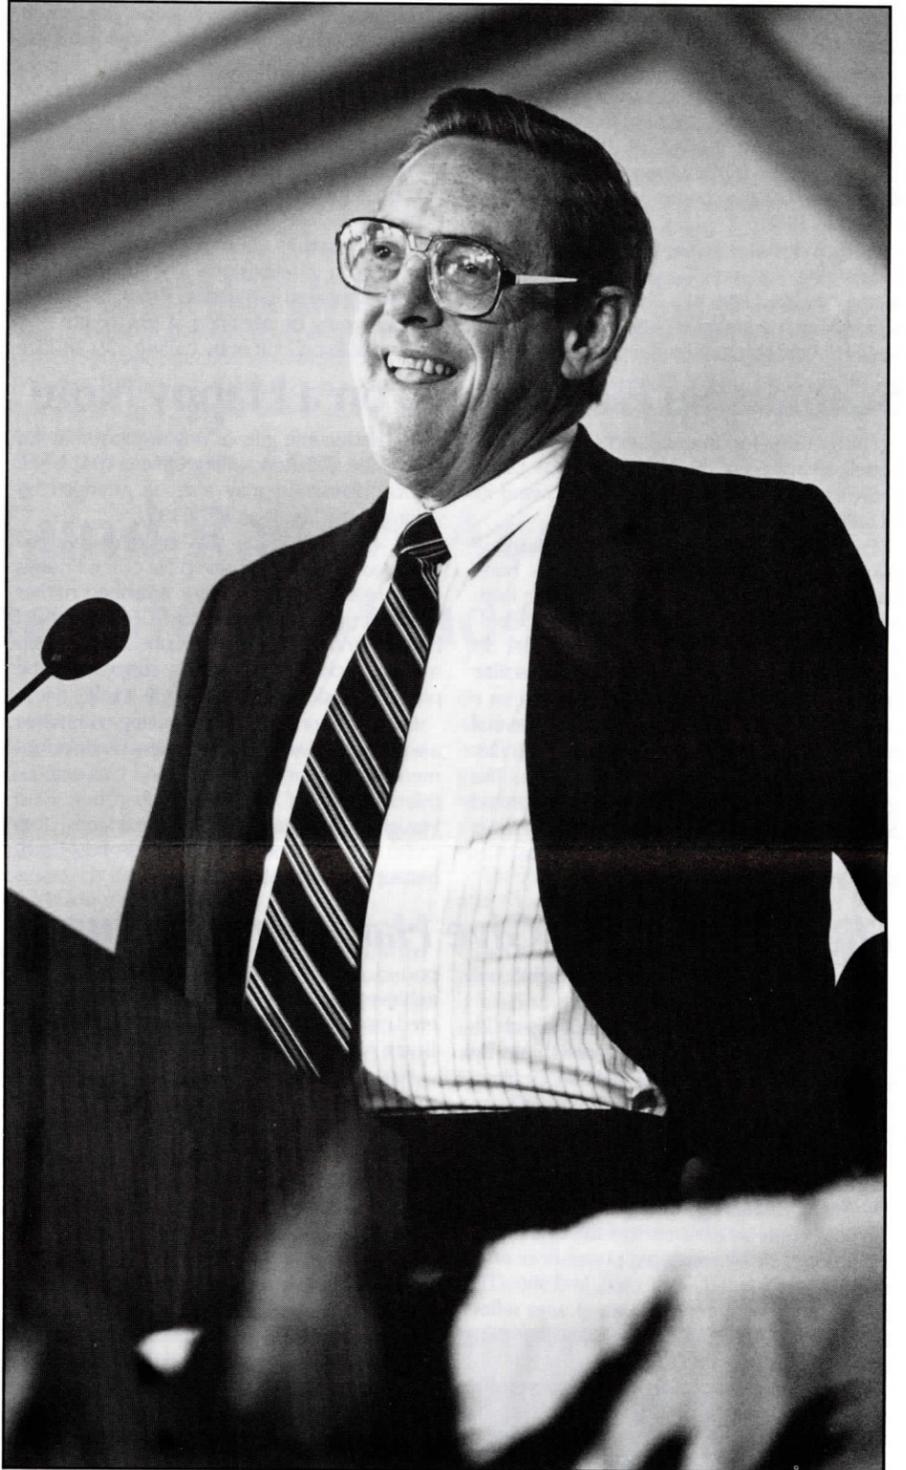

Brock said some American businesses have already taken steps to ensure a place in the market, but there are laggards who "are aware currency and how to sort out tax problems. The Value Added Tax, which ranges from 0 percent to 38 percent among the 12 nations, provides about 40 percent of the revenue for the French government. France, understandably, resists some of the proposed changes.

The deregulation has also created competition among nations. Firms like Ford, AT&T and General Electric have invested billions of dol-

Although Brock urged American companies to ready themselves for increased trade opportunities with the Europeans, other experts have warned that the Europeans may not welcome Americans anyway. Business Week noted that Europeans are intensely loyal to native companies and do not see American products as being sufficiently high in quality.

The former U.S. trade representative under

William Brock addresses a noon Business Forum luncheon at Shotwell-Gustafson Pavilion. He also later spoke to students in the Oakland Center in a program sponsored by the Student Life Lecture Board and the Student Program Board.

“
We're going to have to look at the world in a different way.
”

Europe is over there, some where."

What Americans will notice is that the competition from Europe will increase. "It's very good now, but it's going to be a lot better," he said. Brock said that for American consumers, even greater choices will be available here. "It means we're going to have to get tough and compete ourselves."

Brock predicts that large multinational firms from the United States and Asia will counter Europe's moves by strengthening their European presence through mergers and acquisitions.

"The Japanese are well-prepared for 1992 — as usual," Brock said. "They do not intend to be caught off-guard."

Brock said that within Europe, there will be a shakeout as companies streamline operations and take advantage of new efficiencies. Business Week magazine reported in December 1988 that the deregulation already in place means that for the first time since Napoleon, a driver can haul cargo from Amsterdam to Lisbon across four borders with a single piece of paper in hand. Before, it took two pounds of documents.

The move to pull the European Community together resulted, Brock said, from seeing how well the United States did economically. Unemployment was high, and no new jobs were being created. "They called us the Great American Job Machine," he said.

Europeans, he said, "followed the Law of Holes — when you're in a hole, stop digging."

Within Europe, there is still great disagreement over whether to move toward a single lars in Spain, where labor and benefit costs are cheaper than most of the other countries within the formal European Community. Labor unions in particular are angry that jobs are leaving one country for another. In countries with long-established socialistic policies, political disruption could result.

Europeans also worry that their traditional small- and medium-size retail businesses will be endangered by deregulation.

President Reagan said the American auto companies have been "ahead of the curve" when it comes to establishing a European presence. The real question, Brock said, is whether other industries are also willing to put their houses in order.

If they do, "Europe is going to be the most exciting opportunity of this century," he predicted.

— By Jay Jackson

Actor Lew Ayres to Present Retrospective on Laurence Olivier

Actor and film-maker Lew Ayres will profile the late Sir Laurence Olivier and other film geniuses October 19 in the second program of the Enigma of Genius series.

Ayres, a colleague and friend of Olivier, will comment on the genius of Olivier and on the medium of film as seen through the eyes of producers, writers and performers. Ayres starred in the classic film, All Quiet on the Western Front, and continues to act in films and occasionally on television.

The program will be from 7-9 p.m. in Meadow Brook Hall. Enigma of Genius is sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education and the College of Arts and Sciences. Advance registration is suggested. Faculty and staff members may attend for $3. Call the CE office at 370-3120 to register.

Ayres will also conduct a two-day seminar, God of Evolution, on October 21-22 at Sunset Terrace. The course is a presentation of his views on the reconciliation of religion and science, based on his book of the same name.

He will present and comment on his film, Altars of the World, during the seminar. The film is about comparative religion and presents the ideas of French philosopher Teilhard de Chardin. Ayres has also assisted in producing a cassette/slide presentation of the ideas of de Chardin.

The seminar will meet from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. October 21 and from 1-4:30 p.m. October 22. The registration fee is $50 if the seminar is taken without academic credit and includes lunch on October 21. Faculty and staff may register with a 15 percent discount. Call 370-3120 to register.

The seminar is also available with two hours of academic credit awarded. To register, call the Department of Philosophy at 370-3390.▼

Two Students in Running for National Acting Award

Two students who appeared in a play at the Center for the Arts have been nominated for a national acting award.

Tracy Wade, an OU student, and Debbie Domm, an Oakland Community College student, will compete for the Irene Ryan

Wade

Domm

Award presented by the American College Theatre Festival. The award is named for the actress best known for her role as Granny on The Beverly Hillbillies.

Wade played Puck and Domm was Hermia in the production of A Midsummer Night's Dream. The play was the first joint theatrical effort of OU and OCC.

Wade and Domm will compete against 110 other nominees in Fort Wayne, Ind., in January for a regional award. The winner will then compete in Washington, D.C., for the national title.

During the regional competition, each contestant will give two monologues. The regional winner will receive a $1,000 scholarship.▼

Scoundrel Lurks in Meadow Brook Theatre

Beware the scoundrel at Meadow Brook Theatre.

No, he's not a critic from some daily newspaper, but the lead in Alexander Ostrovsky's classic comedy.

Meadow Brook has opened its 24th season with a new version of The Diary of a Scoundrel. Ostrovsky's revelation of human shenanigans continues through October 29. The production is an adaptation by Erik Brogger that Berkeley Repertory Theatre commissioned and premiered in 1986.

"Ostrovsky is known as the father of modern Russian theatre," says Terry Kilburn, artistic director. "In The Diary of a Scoundrel he makes a humorous commentary on the foibles of the newly rich that's just as pertinent today as ever."

Glumov, a penniless young man armed only with his quick wit and unflappable ability to flatter, finds that the quickest way to get the pot of gold is to appeal to the vanities of the rich. In a series of baldly outrageous maneuvers, he climbs up the social ladder. When his diary is found, his manipulative prowess is put to a new test.

Paul DeBoy plays Glumov. Previous appearances at Meadow Brook were Brick in Cat on a Hot Tin Roof and Camille in A Flea in Her Ear. Broadway and Hollywood actress Jeanne Arnold appears as Glumov's mother. She was Ellen Mason in television's The Guiding Light and last appeared at Meadow Brook in Harvey.

Tickets may be obtained at the theatre box office in Wilson Hall or by calling 370-3300.▼

Scholarship Fund Moves on a Happy Note

Fund-raising for an endowed scholarship to benefit members of the Meadow Brook Estate show ensemble is nearly two-thirds toward its $15,000 goal.

Patrick Nicosia, a member of the scholarship planning committee, says $9,000 has been raised. The funds are being applied to the Robert W. and Elaine M. Swanson Endowed Scholarship. Swanson retired this summer after 30 years with the university, most recently as vice president for developmental affairs.

The Meadow Brook Estate is the commercial music program show ensemble within the Department of Music, Theatre and Dance. The group has traveled throughout the United States. This past spring, the group made its second tour to Department of Defense installations in Europe.

Tax-deductible gifts of any amount may be sent to the Gift Accounting Office, 104J NFH. Payroll deduction may also be arranged by calling Pattie Harris at 370-4194.

All who contribute $25 or more will be included in the membership list of the Friends of the Meadow Brook Estate. Members names will be printed in the programs of the annual holiday and spring benefit concerts. Complimentary tickets to the spring concert will be provided to donors at certain gift levels.

Others serving on the organizing committee are David Rodwell, vice president for developmental and alumni affairs; David Lias, executive director of the President's Club; Fred Houghten, a member of the President's Club and a former chairperson of its Steering Committee; and Swanson.▼

Flight Pioneer to Give Hammerle Lecture

The "father of human-powered flight" will land at Oakland for a guest lecture.

Paul MacCready, who never lost his childhood exuberance for learning how things fly, will deliver the third annual William G. Hammerle Memorial Lecture at 3:30 p.m. November 9 in 201 Dodge Hall. A reception will follow the free lecture.

MacCready's topic will be The Process of Design by Technology and Nature.

The lecture series is named for William G. Hammerle, a well-respected professor of engineering at Oakland who died in 1986. The series brings lecturers to Oakland who reflect Dr. Hammerle's approach to solving interesting problems.

MacCready is chairman and chief executive officer of AeroVironment, Inc., a diversified company providing services and products in alternative energy, aviation and other interests.

He is internationally known for his work with both human- and solar-powered aircraft and land vehicles. He designed the Gossamer Condor, which made the first sustained, controlled flight by a heavier-than-air craft powered solely by the pilot's muscles. The aircraft is displayed at the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C.

MacCready also worked on the design and testing of the GM Sunraycer, a solar-car project of General Motors and its Hughes Aircraft subsidiary.

Two years after Gossamer Condor, MacCready created the Gossamer Albatross, a 70-pound craft with a 96-foot wingspan that achieved the first — and only — human-powered crossing of the English Channel by air. Pilot Bryan Allen made the trip in under three hours.

Twice, MacCready's efforts were rewarded with the Henry Kremer Prize. The first was an award of $95,000, and the second $213,000, which was the largest cash prize in the history of aviation.

MacCready's AeroVironment team, under DuPont sponsorship, developed two solar-powered aircraft. In 1980, the Gossamer Penguin, piloted by his son Marshall, made the first climbing flight powered solely by the sun. In 1981 the rugged Solar Challenger traveled 163 miles from France to England at 11,000 feet.

MacCready built the aircraft to draw attention to photovoltaic cells as a developing energy source for home and industry and to demonstrate DuPont's advanced materials for lightweight structures.

Since that time, MacCready has won numerous other awards, including two speed prizes in 1984 for the Bionic Bat (a 70-pound, human powered aircraft). The plane also explored new technologies leading toward practical, long-duration unmanned vehicles and quiet, slow-speed piloted craft.

Among MacCready's awards are the Guggenheim Medal from the American Institute of Aeronautics.

For information about the lecture, call 370-2217.▼

Jeanne Arnold and Paul DeBoy are the lead actors in 'The Diary of a Scoundrel.'

Recital Brings on Some 'Romantic Duos'

One-quarter of the Lafayette String Quartet will perform at Oakland in her own recital.

Sharon Stanis will present Romantic Duos with guest performers Michael Parker, piano, and Deborah Dunham, double bass. The recital will be at 3 p.m. October 29 in Varner Recital Hall.

The program consists of Mozart's Sonata in G Major, Cesar Franck's Sonata in A Major, Leos Janacek's Sonata, Chopin's Mazurka in A minor, Fritz Kreisler's Liebesleid and Giovanni Bottesini's Grand Duo Concertant.

Stanis has been a member of the Lafayette String Quartet since its inception. She is faculty member at Oakland and the Center for Creative Studies-Institute of Music and Dance in Detroit.

Parker is a member of the accompanying staff at the Cleveland Institute of Music and was an associate instructor in piano at Indiana University. Dunham has been a member of the Rochester (N.Y.) Philharmonic Orchestra since 1987. She plays an instrument made in 1767 by Lorenzo and Tomaso Carcassi of Florence, Italy.

Tickets are $10 general admission and $5 for senior citizens and students. Call the Center for the Arts box office at 370-3013.▼

SHES Greets Grad Students

Oakland will host an open house October 25 for students interested in graduate programs in education.

Faculty members from the School of Human and Educational Services will meet prospective students from 4-8 p.m. in 128-130 Oakland Center.

Graduate programs are available in counseling; curriculum, instruction and leadership (K-12); early childhood; educational administration; elementary education; reading and language arts; and special education. A doctorate in reading is also offered.

Call 370-3050 for information.▼

Events

CULTURAL

Until October 29 — Diary of a Scoundrel opens at Meadow Brook Theatre for four weeks. Admission. Call 370-3300 for dates and times.

October 15 — Opening of Brewer collection of contemporary art and Tagore gift of Chinese art, 2 p.m., Meadow Brook Art Gallery. Free. (Note date change from October 8.) Call 370-3005.

October 15 — Detroit Concert Band in A Musical Kaleidoscope, 3 p.m., Varner Recital Hall. Admission. Call 370-3013.

October 29 — Romantic Duos recital with violinist Sharon Stanis, pianist Michael Parker and double bassist Deborah Dunham, 3 p.m., Varner Recital Hall. Admission. Call 370-3013.

November 2 — The Boys Next Door opens at Meadow Brook Theatre. Admission. Call 370-3300 for dates and times.

ETCETERA

October 16 — Lecture, Whose Body is it, Anyway? with Maryse E. Long of Michigan-Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights, noon, Oakland Center Fireside Lounge. Sponsored by Jewish Students Organization, Women's Studies and Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity. Call 370-4257.

October 17 — Academic Edge Toastmasters, 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m., 225 Hannah. Brown-bagging permitted. Guests welcome.

October 17 — College of Arts and Sciences Faculty Lecture Series with Jon Yates, biological sciences, speaking on Tropical Diseases, noon, 128-130 Oakland Center.

October 18 — Seminar, Black Male Survival in America, 11 a.m.-3 p.m., Oakland Center. Free. Sponsored by Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity. Call 370-4455.

October 18 — Lecture, Alternatives to Racism: Malcolm X vs. King, with James Graham and Roy Kotynek, noon, Oakland Center Fireside Lounge. Sponsored by Catholic Campus Ministry, Jewish Students Organization, United Ministry in Higher Education and Honors College.

October 18 — Women of Oakland University Brown Bag Lunch Series, Backyard Birdwatcher, with Pam Bigley of Birds-Eye View, noon-1 p.m., 128-130 Oakland Center. Call 370-3370.

October 25 — Lecture, Varieties of Student Activism: '60s-'90s, with Hosie Hillie and Mel Gilroy, noon, 126-127 Oakland Center. Sponsored by Catholic Campus Ministry, Jewish Students Organization, United Ministry in Higher Education and Honors College.

October 25 — School of Business Administration Career Information Day, 11 a.m.-3 p.m., Oakland Center Crockery. Sponsored by SBA and Office of Placement and Career Services. Call 370-3250.

October 25 — Women of Oakland University Brown Bag Lunch Series, Women and Witchcraft, with Professor Joseph Klaitis, history, noon-1 p.m., 128-130 Oakland Center. Call 370-3370.

October 25 — Law School Forum, 11 a.m.-2 p.m., Oakland Center Exhibit Lounge. Sponsored by Office of Placement and Career Services. Call 370-3250.

November 1 — Lecture with Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young, 2:30 p.m., Oakland Center Crockery. Admission. Sponsored by Student Life Lecture Board and the Student Program Board. Call 370-2020.

November 7 — Academic Edge Toastmasters, 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m., 225 Hannah. Brown-bagging permitted. Guests welcome.

November 8 — Lecture, Student Dissent: What Can We Learn from the '60s? with Associate Professor Gary Shepherd, sociology, and David Herman, dean of students, noon, Oakland Center Gold Room A. Sponsored by Catholic Campus Ministry, Jewish Students Organization, United Ministry in Higher Education and Honors College.

COURSES

The Division of Continuing Education has begun its Educational Voyage Series, including Classics of Western Tradition and Enigma of Genius programs. Call 370-3120 for a brochure. Reduced fees for employees available; some persons may be eligible for career development funds.

Meadow Brook Health Enhancement Institute offers an exercise-education program for adults with insulin- and noninsulin-dependent diabetes. The program focuses on strategies for life enhancement. Interested persons will learn about exercise, nutrition and self-care measures, and may participate in three medically supervised exercise sessions per week. Call 370-3198.

ATHLETICS

October 13 — Women's volleyball with Northern Michigan University, 7 p.m., Lepley Sports Center.

October 14 — Women's volleyball with Michigan Tech University, 1 p.m., Lepley Sports Center.

October 14 — Men's and women's swim teams alumni meet, 2 p.m., Lepley Sports Center.

October 17 — Women's volleyball with Wayne State University, 7:30 p.m., Lepley Sports Center.

October 25 — Men's soccer with Siena Heights College, 3 p.m., Lepley Sports Center.

October 28 — Men's soccer with Lewis University, 2 p.m., Lepley Sports Center.

FILMS

October 13-14 — Rain Man, 7 and 9:30 p.m. Friday and 3 p.m. Saturday, 201 Dodge Hall. Admission.

October 14 — Lord of the Flies, 7 p.m., 201 Dodge Hall. Admission.

October 20-21 — Say Anything, 7 and 9:30 p.m. Friday and 3 p.m. Saturday, 201 Dodge Hall. Admission.

October 27-28 — Pet Semetary, 7 and 9:30 p.m. Friday and 3 p.m. Saturday, 201 Dodge Hall. Admission.

October 28 — Faster Pussycat, Kill! Kill! 7 p.m., 201 Dodge Hall. Admission.

GRANTLAND®

127