

STAFF BULLETIN

November 3-9, 1969

*Published weekly by University news service, 110 North Foundation
(ext. 2219). Deadline for submitting material is 5 p.m. Thursday.*

DIRECT CONTACT PLAN Pat Houtz (student affairs) reports that AWS is putting out an information booklet on Washington, D.C., for the benefit of those attending the moratorium November 14-15. One of the planned services is to provide students a list of faculty and staff members who will be in Washington at that time and who would be willing to be contacted in case of emergency. If that description fits you, please submit your name, address and phone number in Washington to Miss Houtz at 202 Wilson Hall by Wednesday, November 5.

CENTER OPEN LATER The Oakland Center will test an expansion of its open hours during the three-week period between today (Monday) and November 25. Manager Alan Scott said that a decision will be made at the end of that period as to whether use of the building justifies a continuation of the new hours. Under the new hours, cold food service will be available in the "scramble area" until 15 minutes after midnight and the snack bar (grill) will remain open each night until 12:30 a.m. The building will now be closed at 12:30 a.m. Sunday-Thursday, 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday.

PHONE BOOKS DELAYED Grumbling sacrilegiously that he has had to wait an unholy long time for a computer to act with its promised lightning speed, the man responsible for the new faculty-staff telephone directories reports that the books will not be published for at least two weeks. They were expected to be printed by early October. The heretical editor said he is thinking seriously about hiring two scribes to engrave next year's directory on stone tablets.

TALK SCHEDULED TODAY A Berkeley philosopher described by Richard Lyons (English) as "a scholar and an activist on the left" will give a lecture at 1 p.m. today (Monday) in the Oakland Center Gold Room on the topic "What Kind of Revolution Do Americans Need?" The speaker is Richard Lightman of the University of California at Berkeley, co-editor of a new journal, Socialist Revolution.

UF DRIVE TOPS GOAL The coordinating committee for the University's 1969 United Fund drive reports that 181 members of the University community made contributions totalling $7,770.46. The goal was $4,454. The committee expressed its appreciation for the cooperation of all who made this excellent showing possible.

BOOKS ON DISPLAY

An exhibition of books designed by Bruce Rogers (1870-1957) is currently on display at Kresge Library, through December 3. Rogers was a master typographer whose books, produced in this country and in England, were regarded as among the world's most beautiful volumes. Among his works, which number almost 500, are the two-volume edition of the Oxford Lectern Bible (1935) and a 37-volume edition of the plays of Shakespeare (1939-40).

SERVES AS SECRETARY

Dr. Daniel E. DeSole, a psychiatrist serving as a visiting lecturer of behavioral science with Allport College, has accepted an invitation of the American Psychiatric Association to act as secretary of the association's November 21 meeting in New York City. Topic of the session is "Organization of the Community."

ADVISING FOREIGN STUDENTS

Mrs. Adrienne Bodie has been appointed to the position of foreign student advisor, and faculty and staff are asked to urge foreign students to contact her if they have any questions or problems. Her office is in Room 4 of the Graham Health Center.

AP, CLERICAL-TECHNICAL STAFFERS PLANNING TO ORGANIZE

Separate but simultaneous moves are under way to establish organizations of administrative-professional staff members and clerical-technical staff members of the University. Both groups are concerned with improving communications between staff members and the central administration. Although representatives of each fledgling organization have stressed that neither is being established because of any current grievance, both groups are concerned about representation on University policy-making bodies and about individual job security.

AP staffers held an organizational meeting Thursday evening. About 50 attended the meeting and positive interest in establishing the group had been received by ballot from 40 more. There are 129 members of the AP staff. Those in attendance named a five-member steering committee to present plans for the organization, including a slate of officers and a set of by-laws, within a month. Committee members are Lewis N. Pino, William K. Marshall, Glen Brown, Richard Light and Hilda Hicks.

Clerical-technical staffers are now circulating petitions to determine how much interest there is in organizing. A group of 15 staffers is handling the preliminary planning and an organizational meeting is expected to be called this week.

MOVES BACK AUTONOMY

OU's efforts to gain independence from MSU were boosted last week by the introduction of a bill in the House to order the separation and by the endorsement of the State Board of Education for the move. The legislation was one of three introduced by Rep. George F. Montgomery, D-Detroit. The others called for independence of the University of Michigan's two affiliates in Flint and Dearborn. The Board of Education passed a resolution encouraging the MSU Board of Trustees "to begin the process that will eventuate in Oakland University becoming an independent university at the earliest possible date." The trustees are expected to vote at their December meeting on a resolution from the OU Senate asking for autonomy no later than January 1, 1971. Independence specifically would put OU under its own eight-member board, to be appointed by the governor.

U-M RESEARCHER TALKS

The department of sociology and anthropology will present a lecture and open discussion at 3 p.m. Wednesday in 128 Oakland Center on the topic "The Future of Poverty." The speaker will be Lou Ferman, research director of the University of Michigan Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations. Harry Gold and John Magney of the OU department will lead a discussion following the lecture.
