John Dodge House gets new phone system

To make it easier for the Oakland University community to reach University Relations staff located at the John Dodge House, OU has introduced a new and improved telephone system.

By calling John Dodge House at the new number — (248) 370-3700 — you can reach staff members from the following teams: Advancement Services, Alumni Relations, Constituent Research, Planned Giving and the President's Club. Sue Goepp, vice president for University Relations and executive director of the OU Foundation, and Tim Broderick, associate vice president for development, also can be reached at this new number.

The John Dodge House fax numbers remain the same.

During regular business hours, the receptionist will direct your call to the appropriate extension. After hours, an alphabetical directory feature will help you reach the person you're calling.
