Diefenbaker on Spot as Ally Hit for Laxity

'Unusual Declaration' From Washington May Mean Ottawa Election

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, apparently taking sharp issues with Canadian Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker, has declared bluntly that Canada's defense forces should be equipped with nuclear weapons.

Although North American defense systems "using nuclear capable weapons" are necessary for effective protection against the Soviet Union's nuclear bomber fleet, the State Department said Wednesday night, the Canadian government has failed to come up with a practical plan.

The nuclear weapons issue has been hotly debated in the Parliament at Ottawa in recent days and has become a problem in Canadian domestic politics. In such circumstances a U.S. government declaration is highly unusual.

MAY BRING ELECTION

In Ottawa, there was widespread speculation the U.S. criticism would spark a general election call and a campaign fought on nuclear defense issues.

The statement, issued by the State Department and delivered to the Canadian Embassy, is also unusual because it is stripped of ordinary diplomatic language and lays down the Washington view of the North American defense problem in sharp, simple sentences.

"The Soviet bomber fleet will remain at least throughout this decade a significant element in the Soviet strike force," the statement said. "An effective continental defense against this common threat is necessary."

The statement said that although the Western alliance needs more conventional forces, conventional forces are no alternative "to effective NATO or NORAD defense arrangements using nuclear-capable weapons systems." NORAD is the joint U.S.-Candaian defense system against Soviet bombers.

The statement did not refer to Diefenbaker by name, but referred to various points made in the Canadian Parliament's nuclear weapons debate, in which Diefenbaker has participated.

Appearing upset when he returned to Ottawa today, Diefenbaker told reporters he did not

Sniper's Slug

Bullet Doesn't Match

The bullet which narrowly missed a Novi housewife yesterday was not fired from the same gun that killed a Bloomfield Township mother of five last Friday.

Last night Mrs. Gertrude Race, 40, of 28000 Dixon Road, barely escaped death when a bullet smashed through her bedroom window and hit the wall about three feet above her head.

Police at first thought the shot might have been fired by the same sniper that killed Mrs. Mary Godfrey, 38, while she was standing in the kitchen at her home at 983 Dursley Road.

A ballistics test of the two 22-caliber slugs by the State Police Crime Laboratory in Lansing today revealed, however, that the bullets do not match.

Mrs. Race, was the target of a sniper while she was reading the newspaper on the bed at her home.

FIND CASING

Sheriff deputies and detectives, called in to assist the Novi department, found a 22-caliber casing in the middle of Dixon Road.

It was found about 300 feet from the Races' home and was in line with the angle of fire.

The house is on the east side of Dixon Road and the first house just north of 12-Mile Road. The bedroom is on the south side of the house.

"The only similarity that has been established between the tragic shooting of last week and this one," said BeGole, "is that a woman was shot at through a window by a 22-caliber bullet."

15 MILES APART

About 15 miles separate the Godfrey and Race homes.

Another Bloomfield Township resident, Mrs. Lillian Hatton of 2063 Lakeward Lane, was shot at by a BB pellet Tuesday night. The pellet pierced a window.

"Mrs. Race was very lucky," said BeGole.

The casing and spent bullet were delivered to Lansing about 11 a.m. by Lt. Calvin Lapein of the Redford State Police post.

Mrs. Race had been playing with her youngest son in the bed-

Florida? Who needs it?

The water's great in Maceday Lake at this time of year — so claims a hearty group of Waterford Township residents.

Sound incredible?

It looks even more so to bundled spectators who stand shivering near the open area of the lake.

What do they see?

Bathing-suit clad stalwarts emerge from the Langs' boathouse, trot across snow and ice and then dive in the water.

Prospects Appear Favorable for Okay of Romney's Budget

LANSING (AP) — Chances appeared good today for passage of Gov. George Romney's record $547-million state budget for fiscal 1963-64 — but some Republican legislative leaders hinted it might be slimmed down a bit first.

The governor submitted his general fund budget to a joint session of the legislature yesterday. He said it would produce a $13.6 million surplus for reduction of the state's deficit, which stood at $85.6 million last July.

This sum, along with a $33-million surplus from revenues expected at the end of the fiscal year this June, will cut the state deficit by $46.6 million, Romney said.

Romney said that appropriation requests from the state's 120 agencies totaled $721 million, but these were trimmed by more than $170 million. The governor's recommendation called for expenditures of about $547 million in the agencies.

While applauding Romney's efforts to hold down on expenditures and cut the deficit, House Speaker Pro Tem Wilfred Bassett, R-Jackson, indicated he would push for even more cutting.

"I know from experience that it took great courage for the governor to pare $171 million from agency requests," Bassett commented.

"If we can reduce the deficit by another $20 million, instead of $13 million, it will still take three years to achieve solvency."

Voluntary Farm Controls Proposed by Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy insisted today that the government must continue to help manage farm production. But in a major reversal aimed at overcoming congressional opposition, he proposed voluntary instead of compulsory controls.

In a special farm message to Congress, he attached no price tag to his proposals. But an administration spokesman estimated that new programs for feed grains milk and cotton would reduce annual federal farm costs between $300 million and $500 million a year.

Farm aid programs have been costing about $3 billion a year.

Under his new recommendations, Kennedy would have the government pay farmers to reduce production of existing surplus products—feed grains and milk.

Last year he had urged, but without success, that Congress give the government power to set rigid production quotas and impose heavy penalties on overproducers.

These programs would have required producer approval at referendums.

Kennedy also recommended use of payments to solve a cotton marketing problem.

UNTOUCHED

Likewise, he made no control

No Showdown Develops Over GOP's Top Post

A showdown between supporters of two Oakland County candidates for the Republican state chairmanship failed to develop last night at the GOP's county convention.

A vote on a rules amendment showed almost even support for both Arthur G. Elliott Jr. and John A. (Jack) Gibbs.

The convention selected 161 delegates to the party's state convention Feb. 16 in Grand Rapids and approved several resolutions.

One resolution supported the proposed new state constitution.

A fight over endorsement of a candidate for the state's top GOP post was avoided when a letter from Elliott asked "that no resolution be introduced."

A resolution endorsing Elliott was expected until late yesterday afternoon when it was learned Elliott would not appear as scheduled.

He was to give a report on Gov. George Romney's administration.

County GOP Chairman Charles L. Lyle said 1,000 ballots were prepared for the expected battle.

However, some supporters of both candidates were said to be against a showdown and its possible resultant split at the county level.

Gibbs' supporters interpreted the developments as reflecting increasing support for their candidate.

One high Republican official known to favor Elliott said there was evidence of more support for Gibbs than he had expected. He said a showdown vote on an endorsement would have been close. However, he predicted Elliott would win at Grand Rapids.

In his letter, Elliott said he felt he should "be absent myself" because Gibbs was not able to attend and "this was the home county of both of us."

Delegates approved by a 104 to 88 margin an amendment to voting rules for the county's state convention delegation. The delegation is expected to split on the chairmanship issue.

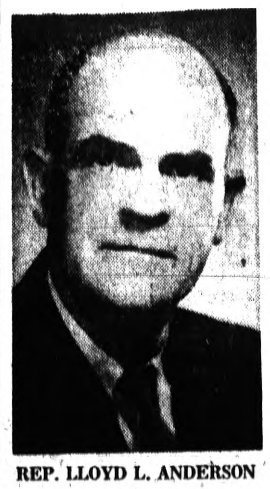
Solon to Keep Eye on Budget



REP. LLOYD L. ANDERSON

By JIM DYGERT

It was generally a sound budget, but there will still be room to wield the scissors.

Anderson represents Oakland County's First District.

He will have much to do with directing the path of the scissors from his new position on the powerful Ways and Means Committee of the State House of Representatives.

The committee controls what portions of the budget will go before the House for approval as appropriations.

TOWARD OLD AMBITION

Anderson's appointment Jan. 21 as one of nine Republican members of the 13-man committee not only put him among the House's GOP leaders; it also enabled him to realize a long-held ambition.

"I've always wanted to work directly on reduction of government spending," Anderson said. "Now I'll have the chance.

"I always thought the budgets were too high."

He named the state's welfare expenditures as an area where "I've always felt there was a lot of fat."

"I don't see how we can justify having the highest welfare costs in history in this time of prosperity," he says.

Anderson, now in his fourth term as a lawmaker, had requested the spot on the Ways and Means Committee. He had a taste of reviewing expenditures last session as a member of the Legislative Audit Commission.

Because the Ways and Means Committee devotes its full time to appropriations, meeting both morning and evening on some days, committee members hold no other House committee positions.

Anderson held seats on six committees and was chairman of

May Disclose Cuba 'Secrets'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department was reported today weighing the possibility of releasing long-secret testimony taken in a 1961 senatorial investigation of the Cuban invasion disaster.

The testimony, recorded in closed door sessions by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was said to have produced unanimity among high administration officials that no U.S. air cover was promised invading refugees.

But senators who heard the officials or read the record said it remained unclear whether three non-U.S. air strikes had been planned and one or more canceled—a point Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois has been belaboring in a personal investigation.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, called Wednesday for release of all of the testimony which would not affect national security.

Hickenlooper, a foreign relations committeeman, said there were "a number of unreconcilables" in the testimony. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Allen W. Dulles, then director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, then chief of naval operations, were among the witnesses.

RENEWED STUDY

Hickenlooper said release of the testimony had been discussed by Foreign Relations Committee members. But he said no formal had been taken. It was learned, however, that the transcript has been sent to State Department officials for renewed study.

"I would give great weight to the security people and their comments on what could be published," Hickenlooper said. "I would not want to see anything published that would adversely affect our security. But I would be perfectly willing for the rest of it to be published."

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., a committee member who heard the testimony, said he would not object to its publication although he would not urge it.

the Drainage Committee in the last legislative session.

The 54-year-old legislator, a right-of-way purchaser for the Oakland County Road Commission when he's not in Lansing, says his other main interest has been legislation affecting his district and the county.

He describes his political viewpoint as "more on the conservative side."

But, he adds, "I'm not a rock-ribbed conservative. I'm a Jeffersonian Republican."

Anderson was Waterford Township supervisor for six years prior to his election to the legislature in 1956. He lives at 3769 Lincolnshire St. in the township.

He notes one possible disadvantage to membership on the Ways and Means Committee: "It's easy to make enemies when you have to say 'No' to requests for budget increases."

Report Worst Traffic Mishap Month

BIRMINGHAM—December was the worst month in history for traffic accidents in Birmingham and total mishaps in 1962 increased 13 per cent over the city's previous three-year average.

Statistics released today by Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley revealed that a record 108 accidents occurred on city streets last month.

The number of personal injury accidents during the entire 12 months of 1962 increased 22 per cent over 1961 and 36 per cent over the previous three-year average, Moxley said.

There was a total of 844 traffic accidents last year, a 13 per cent increase over the previous three-year figure. The 1962 total included 614 property-damage accidents and 230 injury mishaps.

"Major crimes in Birmingham showed a slight decrease in 1962 as compared with 1961," Moxley said in his year-end report to City Manager L. R. Gare.

"There was an increase of 10 per cent, however, when the previous three-year average is considered.

"We completed our fifth consecutive year without a homicide or aggravated assault case," Moxley stated. "Robberies increased slightly, larcenies and auto thefts showed a decrease and burglaries showed no change from the previous three-year average."

Calling for more cooperation from motorists, Moxley noted that right-of-way violations and following too closely were the leading causes of accidents in December and throughout the year.

He called his cabinet into session 90 minutes ahead of the usual time and reliable informants said it discussed the position the government would take before Parliament.

Before the cabinet session, Diefenbaker conferred with Foreign Secretary Howard Green.

Also in Ottawa, the Social Credit Party leader, Robert Thompson, called the U.S. statement "a bombshell to say the least—it could be the spark to topple the government."

Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson, leader of the Liberals, the biggest opposition party, said he found it surprising the United States should issue such a statement.

But he blamed it on what he said were conflicting versions of defense policy given by Diefenbaker and Defense Minister Douglas Harkness in Commons debate last week.

Prosecutor George F. Taylor today warned that he would not hesitate to press murder charges against the parents of the Bloomfield Township sniper if they knowingly protected the slayer.

Taylor said he agreed with the police theory that the sniper who shot and killed Mrs. Godfrey was a "deranged teen-ager."

Taylor said if this was the case, it would be difficult for him to believe that the parents were not aware of their son's mental condition. He said "their very silence makes them guilty of murder."

Steam Up the Sauna!

"If spirits are low and sauna can avail nothing, then there is no cure," asserts an ancient Finnish proverb.

The Langs installed a sauna room in their boathouse at 3631 Dorothy Lane last April. In the enthusiasm for sauna, the boats have nearly been forgotten.

"Usually four to six of us gather in the room where a wood burning stove is heating a pile of stones," Langs explained.

"Water is poured over the stones at intervals and steam fills the room creating refreshing dry heat. This is in contrast to the humid steam of a Turkish bath."

"Then, there's a wonderful invigorating feeling," Langs said. "Tensions disappear and you feel clean from deep within."

After 10 or 15 minutes, the sauna bathers are ready for their icy dip. They move quickly out of the boat house, spend about 30 seconds in the lake and then return to the refuge of the warm room and begin the procedure all over again.

Sauna is a year-round ritual for them, and, the colder the weather, the more refreshing it is.

They have plunged into the water when the air temperature was as low as 8 degrees below zero. It was 5 above when the accompanying photo was taken.

"The water remains 32 degrees," he asserted.

The Langs derived their interest in the ritual, which is fast gaining popularity in this country, from their son-in-law Ronny Helin, who is of Finnish extraction.

Their first sauna room, constructed of wood as prescribed by Finnish tradition for maximum absorption of humidity, burned when the stove overheated.

Meredith In, 2nd Negro Out

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Negro James H. Meredith went through the lengthy process of registering for his second semester at the University of Mississippi today.

At the same time, the university turned away another Negro who appeared at the registrar's office.

There were no incidents. Military policemen and campus police kept a watchful guard over the campus.

The second Negro to try to enroll, Dewey Roosevelt Greene, 22, of Greenwood, Miss., appeared on the campus shortly before noon and went to the registrar's office.

Registrar Robert Ellis said he turned Greene away for the same reason he rejected his earlier written application — that he was unqualified.

Ellis said he told Greene he had sent a telegram yesterday informing him he wouldn't be accepted, and asking him not to appear on the campus.

He said Greene told him he hadn't received the telegram.

Ellis said he advised Greene he could appeal the rejection to the university's committee on admissions, if he wished.

Other legislative recommendations submitted in the message included:

—Legislation authorizing extension or the food stamp plan on a nationwide basis.

—Authorization of additional funds to keep out of crop production land retired under the Eisenhower administration soil bank.

—Authorize use of repayments on government rural power and telephone loans to set up a permanent revolving loan fund for these purposes.

Britain Looks to U.S. for Trade Aid

From Our News Wires

LONDON —Britain rebounded from a French blockade of its path to Europe today and sought help from the United States and other free world nations to bolster its sagging economy.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, bitterly denouncing the "folly" of French President Charles de Gaulle, called last night for a speed-up of trade and tariff consultations with Washington, the Commonwealth and Britain's six partners in the European Free Trade Area (EFTA).

The first top-level move in the British offensive was a meeting set for later today between Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Premier Jens Otto Krag of Denmark, one of Britain's partners in the EFTA.

Krag said after his arrival in London Wednesday he wanted to hear more of British plans "about how we can go further with EFTA," the seven-nation trading group created as a British-led rival to the Common Market six.

British political circles suggested strengthening and even enlarg-

Analysis on Pages A-8, B-7

REPORT EXPECTED

Krag was expected to give Macmillan a first-hand report on President Charles de Gaulle's offer to help Denmark join the Common Market without Britain.

In Washington, American officials are reported warning the European allies that if they allow French President Charles de Gaulle to seize leadership the United States may be forced to cut its defense commitments in Europe.

High-ranking U.S. officials expect de Gaulle may try to slash the close American and European ties as the next step after his veto of Great Britain's membership in the Common Market.

He seems to believe, U. S. officials said yesterday, that he can demolish American influence in Europe but retain the shield of U. S. nuclear strength.

Britain's failure to get into the Common Market may cause problems for officials charting U.S. trade policy, but none appeared today to be edging toward the panic button.

The news was accepted calmly in Washington. The feeling was that it might slow down the momentum but not divert the present U.S. drive to promote free trade in the West.

In Berlin Erich Mende, head of the Free Democratic Party, which is a vital part of West Germany's coalition government, today urged delay in parliamentary action on the Franco-German treaty because of France's veto of British entry into the Common Market.

Backs Tax Cut to Aid Jobless

Wirtz Wants to Block Rise in Unemployment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz said yesterday that unless a tax cut is enacted to stimulate the economy, unemployment could climb to 7 per cent of the labor force by 1967.

The unemployment rate has been running between 5.8 and 5.6 per cent in recent months. One of President Kennedy's goals is to reduce this to at least 4 per cent.

Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges told the committee the tax program was both "conservative" and "pro-business." He said it is designed to strengthen the position of business firms and commented that it is "one that businessmen from coast to coast should welcome."

Wirtz said that if the economy stays at its present rate — providing only nine of 10 new jobs needed for a growing population — the unemployment rate would rise to more than 7 per cent in 1967.

"This would be the intolerable price of just moving along as we have been," he told the congressional group.

Latest Map of Michigan Due Soon

LANSING (AP) — Now is the time to write for the official 1963 Michigan state high map if you want a copy as soon as it comes off the press.

The highway department advises that 600,000 maps will be printed and copies will be ready for distribution by mid-March.

Hundreds of changes are being made in the map, from last year's, mainly the result of new freeways being opened to traffic. Major improvements are larger blow-up maps of Michigan's major cities and larger strip maps of the state's major freeways.

Cities included in the insert maps are Detroit, Pontiac, Grand Rapids, Flint, Saginaw, Lansing, Jackson, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, Ann Arbor, Bay City, Muskegon, Midland, Port Huron and Benton Harbor-St. Joseph.

Free copies can be obtained by writing to the State Highway Department at Lansing.

Carbon Monoxide Overcomes Workers

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind. (AP) —Carbon monoxide fumes from a gas heating system got into a factory air conditioner system Wednesday and overcame 38 missile parts workers.

★ ★ ★

Four ambulances took the victims to Culver Hospital, but all except two were released after treatment. The two, Betty Peacock and Lucille Foster, were to be held overnight, but doctors said their condition was not serious.

★ ★ ★

Successful Launching by Pershing Missile

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The Pershing artillery missile, scheduled for operational deployment in Western Europe later this year, scored Wednesday night its 39th success in 46 test launchings.

The Army announced that the Pershing's guidance system tilted the missile after launching to simulate a jolt from hurricane-force winds. The Pershing then righted itself and sped to a target 200 miles away.

Utica to Ask $5.8 Million for Schools

Vote June 10 on Two Issues

Seek Building Funds, Increase in Millage

UTICA — A proposed new high school, administrative building and 60 additional classrooms are included in two bond issues which voters will decide in the regular school election June 10.

Also on the ballot will be a millage proposal which, if approved, will provide an additional three mills the first year it is in effect and 4.5 mills the second year.

The school board has agreed upon two separate bond issues — $5.5 million for the new high school and classrooms and a $300,000 proposition for a new administrative building.

This is a modified version of the $6,025,000 building program recommended by a school study citizen's committee last week.

"The greater part of the additional millage will be needed to pay the extra staff required to handle expected enrollment growth," School Supt. Fred Atkinson said today.

Presently operational costs are covered by a five-mill levy which expires in 1965.

ONE MILL INCREASE

Approval of the bond issues will result in a tax increase of about one mill, or $1 per $1,000 of state-equalized valuation, Atkinson said.

A three-year building program is planned, should the issues receive voter okay.

Two new 20-classroom elementary schools are included in the plans, as well as additions to the Switzer school, now under construction, and another school to be built next summer.

Improvements would be made at Disco, Auburnshire and Wiley schools.

Alterations are also proposed for Eppler, Shelby and Sterling junior high schools, as well as the present high school.

The program is designed to handle the population growth for at least the next three years, according to Atkinson.

Estimated cost of the new high school, the largest single project in the building program, is $2.75 million. This includes funds for the swimming pool a part of the high school plans.

2 Turkish Educators Tour Area Plant

They are studying the possibility of using prefabricated materials for new schools in Turkey. The Glidorama division manufactures sliding aluminum windows, window walls and curtain walls.

Gonul and Zorlu, who teach construction engineering at the Istanbul and Ankara branches, respectively, of Yapi Enstitusu (the Building Institute), have completed advanced studies in American architecture at Oklahoma State University under an AID (Agency for International Development) grant of the U. S. State Department.

Before returning to their homeland in February, they will visit a number of manufacturers of prefabricated building products.

"We are particularly interested in the use of prefabricated building products in school construction," Gonul stated.

"The government of Turkey has announced a program to build 1,700 new village schools for primary grades in the next ten years. We feel that prefabricated buildings will enable us to complete the program at the least cost and in the prescribed time."

After touring the Glidorama plant, Zorlu said, "American efficiency and high speed production methods are of course well known all over the world, but you can't really appreciate them until you see them yourself.

"We have been impressed, too, with the high quality of your American goods and the amount of effort you put into finding new products through your research and development activities."

Goldman said he felt fortunate to have had the Turkish visitors as guests. Their tour is being sponsored by the Bureau of Education of the federal government's Office of Health, Education and Welfare.

2 Suspended Officers Await Outcome of Probe

LIVONIA (AP) — Michigan's biggest bank robbery — the $153,000 daylight looting Tuesday of the Bank of Livonia's branch—was under investigation today with two policemen suspended on charges of neglect of duty and failure to use good judgment in trying to catch the robber.

James N. Jordan, Livonia police chief, said yesterday patrolmen Charles Nix, 30, and Archie A. Hewitt would remain suspended pending the outcome of the inquiry.

The patrolmen were in the bank when the robber, armed with a 45-caliber automatic pistol and carrying his loot in a paper bag, fled through a rear door. Police are still looking for him, apparently without a clue.

William Bruce, 27, a bank messenger, unlocked the front door to let the patrolmen in when they responded to a trouble call.

Bruce said, "Hewitt was in front of me and he could see that the employes were tied up. We could also hear the bandit trying to get out the back."

At this point, Bruce told investigators, "Hewitt turned around and said, 'Let's get out of here! There's a holdup going on!' "

Chief Jordan and Capt. Michael G. Vorgitch said they asked Hewitt why he didn't challenge the gunman inside the bank and got this reply:

The state's largest previous bank holdup was $65,000 from a Detroit bank branch in 1936.

Bank of Livonia officials said they had more than the usual amount of cash on hand Tuesday at the branch so they could cash Ford Motor Co. and Burroughs Corp. pay checks.

Suffers Hand Burns as Popcorn Blazes

ORION TOWNSHIP — An Orion Township woman suffered second - degree burns on her hands last night in a fire which started in the kitchen of her home.

Mrs. William Tallman, 890 Joslyn Road, was burned about 10 p.m. trying to put out a blaze started when popcorn she was popping caught fire. Flames shot through a kitchen ventilator and into the attic.

The Gingellville Fire Department had the blaze extinguished in an hour. There was no estimate of damage. Mrs. Tallman was treated by her personal physician.

Ban Lifted on Sewer Extensions

LANSING (AP)—The State Health Department has notified 14 southeastern Oakland County communities of the lifting of a five-year ban on sewer extensions.

Dr. Albert Heustis, health commissioner, said the action was based on the satisfactory progress being made in enlarging existing pollution control activities and because of the good start on the communities' relief drains system.

Heustis said the system, a portion of which will be operating in March and which is scheduled to be completed in 1964, promises to prevent the flooding of area basements and the pollution of the Red Run open drainage ditch.

Local officials were asked, however, to exercise care in granting sewer extension permits so as not to aggravate existing conditions before the relief facilities start full operations a year from now.

The new sewer will collect raw sewage from the 14 community systems and several other townships and feed it into the metropolitan Detroit sewer system for treatment and disposal.

Rochester Plan Opposed

Parke, Davis Hits Cityhood Again

AVON TOWNSHIP — Parke, Davis and Co. today reaffirmed its opposition to the Rochester City incorporation proposition to be voted on in the Feb. 18 primary.

In a letter to approximately 300 employes at the drug firm's Parkedale Farm, the company stated it was opposed to incorporation for these reasons:

(1) In recent years industrial expansion has taken place outside, not within cities. This is because the burden of city taxes impedes industrial growth.

(2) It is a known fact that when a new city is formed taxes go up. If the incorporation vote is favorable and the farm land at Parkedale is subjected to city taxes, the company will be forced to review its present long-range plans for this area.

Future expansion at Parkedale undoubtedly would be curtailed, and the feasibility of any company operations in this area would be questioned.

(3) Parke, Davis does not need or desire the city services normally afforded residents. The company already has helped the village financially to develop water and sewer systems, and satisfactory contracts exist to cover those utilities.

If incorporation is approved, however, the entire Parkedale Farm, including approximately 600 acres of vacant land, will be put under the burden of city taxes for unneeded city services, such as fire and police protection,

FAVORS STUDY

However, the company pointed out in its letter that it "does favor an independent study for the area by consulting engineers to determine all the facts necessary for any future city plans.

"To this end, Parke, Davis will assist in financing such a survey, if the proposed incorporation is voted down," a spokesman added.

The company's Parkedale Farm is in a section of Avon Township east of Rochester that is included in the proposed incorporation boundaries.

The present western and southern village limits would be retained under the city plan. The new northern boundary would be Tienken Road, and Dequindre Road would enclose the city on the east.

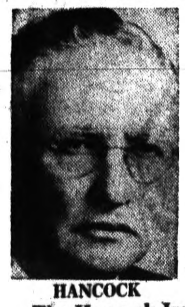
Homer V. Hancock

Pontiac loses a friendly, kindly and patient citizen in the death of HOMER V. HANCOCK.

★ ★ ★

For nearly half a century he was a staunch and loyal resident that always aligned himself with the positive, the constructive and the forward-looking movements in the community. Homer and Victor Hancock formed



HANCOCK

★ ★ ★

It is the conservative, dependable men like Mr. HANCOCK who form the basis for community growth and advancement. Truly, this faithful Pontiac citizen could look back upon his time and accomplishments here with satisfaction and the content that goes with a "job well done."

Another one of our especially "good and faithful servants" has quietly surrendered his share of the reins that guide a community and has sought everlasting peace with his forefathers.

Will British Change Driving on Left Side?

A vital piece of information of which we should all take note, comes from the Swedish government. It has just announced to the rest of the world that it will switch to driving on the right side of the road in 1967.

★ ★ ★

This leaves the British four years in which to mull over the fact that theirs will be the only country in Europe still driving on the left. While they have the weight of tradition on their side, it is one more area in which the British may feel they are being isolated from the continent.

One explanation for their custom is that, in the old days, riders kept to the left in order to use their swords to best advantage if they met with any obstacles on the highway.

Britain currently is facing opposition by France to her entrance into the Common Market. If the British do eventually join with the others, or if the much discussed channel tunnel is ever built, it is quite possible that their driving habits, along with a few other things, will have to be changed.

★ ★ ★

India Well Remembers Gandhi's Peace Aims

The Indian nation paid homage yesterday to MOHANDAS GANDHI, on the 15th anniversary of the Mahatma's assassination. He is probably remembered by everyone able to read as the man who went on hunger strikes advocating peace.

News dispatches indicate that all India participated in honoring the simple man who made a vocation of nonviolence. His anniversary caused such a stir that guns and sirens wailed out in his memory.

IN New Delhi, a guard of honor formed while the president and prime minister placed a wreath on his grave. All movement, including auto traffic, airplanes and the like, came to a standstill for a two-minute mourning period.

Radio stations were off the air, and citizens in schools, offices and other establishments stood in reverence.

The assassination of Gandhi came less than two weeks after he had ended his last hunger strike in belief that he had brought a reconciliation, or at least had ended the threat of war, between Hindu India and Moslem Pakistan.

Gandhi was killed by a Hindu fanatic, and his death robbed the world of a man who stood for only good will and peace for humanity.

Nehru was the political heir of the Mahatma, but his problems and the times are far different from those encountered by his predecessor.

With a world so out of joint, it is doubtful that Gandhi's creed could be followed today. He believed: "When a person claims to be nonviolent, he is expected not to be angry with one who has injured him. He will not wish him harm; he will wish him well."

We Don't Like to Be Pessimists, But---

David Lawrence Says:

New Taxes May Bring Discontent

WASHINGTON—It may take a little while before the new facts of tax life sink in and, when they do, there may be widespread discontent as the citizens discover that a tax cut is to be accompanied with a tax rise.

LAWRENCE

While the net change may be a slight reduction in taxes for the individual, the psychology that will prevail is that the government is giving something with one hand and taking it away with the other.

For while it is easy enough to show that taxpayers in all brackets may come out with a slight cut in taxes, the person who makes out a return will have the feeling that somehow the government, though reducing his tax rate, is trying to get nearly all of it back by a penalizing system of amendments to the tax rules.

The biggest source of dissatisfaction is the so-called 5 per cent "floor" on all deductions.

Whether it be a charitable contribution, the interest on one's house mortgage, losses sustained that are not covered by insurance, or even allowance for state income and property taxes paid, the fact remains that the new rules would deprive many taxpayers of a part of the deductions enjoyed almost since the day when the present income tax laws and regulations were first written.

A person who made out his will years ago now faces some substantial changes which will mean he will leave his wife or children less money than had been contemplated.

Why should a legal document drawn up years ago as a trust, for instance, suddenly be affected by a retroactive tax law?

To cut through human habits and customs and revolutionize them on the theory that this is a desirable "tax reform" is to damage the party in power.

The planned-deficit policy will be vigorously debated. While the average man may feel the subject is over his head, the chances are that, after all the hullabaloo about tax reductions, if he winds up with tax savings of only a few cents a week — as the government goes into the red by many billions of dollars — he will finally say, "let well enough alone."

For if the proposed tax plan goes through, there will be many individuals who will be adversely affected, and many nonprofit institutions will find it hard sledding.

Tax rules operate in so many different sectors that there are bound to be some who benefit or who are not materially affected.

The administration's gamble is that there will be more money overall to spend, and that this will bring prosperity and thus decrease unemployment.

But there's a difference between a "planned" deficit, such as is being proposed, and those deficits of the past which came naturally as the business curve turned downward.

Deliberately to plan to put the government into the red by many billions serves notice on everybody. It means that somehow there has to be a psychology of spending rather than saving on the new tax reductions.

But the confusion that may result from the far-reaching penalties that the new tax law would impose could cause a period of hesitation in the economy which would be costly all around.

Politicians are supposed to be smart enough to watch out for the votes of big groups. The taxpayers constitute the biggest single group in the whole population.

But millions of them will be dissatisfied with the new plan when they make out their income tax returns early in 1964.

It may be too late then to remedy the political mistake that will have inflicted deep wounds and created widespread discontent.

Bob Considine Says:

Billions Allowed Defense; Mere Peanuts for Science

NEW YORK—This country will spend $50 billion for defense during the coming fiscal year.

But then we will turn around and invest only comparative peanuts to further science, without which it could eventually become impossible for us to implement the more sophisticated weapons of defense or stay abreast of the Soviet Union in the creation of new weaponry.

CONSIDINE

To a sobering degree, we are a first rate power in the nuclear and space ages today simply because of know-how inherited from abroad.

Persecution drove to our shores the incredible array of Einstein, Fermi, Bohr, Meitner, Szilard, Wigner, Teller and dozens of other physicists, engineering wizards and laboratory dreamers who did so much to create the first atomic and hydrogen bombs.

Einstein, Fermi, Bohr and others are gone and the years will claim the others. But will there be adequate American replacements to face the awesome challenges that confront this land in the future?

An alarmed student of the situation, New York financier and science apostle, Alfred A. Strelsin, writes:

"The shocking lack of interest on the part of the President and the apathy of our Congress on the furtherance of science studies in this country is appalling.

"It is true that the humanities are the backbone of a cultured and educated nation, but the sciences protect it. Most educators are steeped in the humanities and thus the sciences receive only their reluctant interest

"A national effort must be made to inculcate the youth with the desire to study the sciences. Unless you impregnate the minds of the youth with the romance and excitement of science education on the high school and elementary level, you will never have graduate scientists in the colleges.

"If you examine the last Soviet appropriations you will note an increase of some 40 per cent in their budget for science studies over last year.

"Impoverished China has this year increased its science appropriations by almost 50 per cent in the dollar equivalent of some $600 million. We provided through our National Defense Education Act a measly $30 to $35 millions for science equipment and facilities, and even that provision is due to expire next year unless extended by this Congress.

"We must create our own scientific giants to carry on the work of tomorrow and bring into force the new developments that will result from the ages in which we find ourselves," Strelsin concludes.

Florida's Senator George Smathers said that he agreed with former U.S. Ambassador to Cuba Earl T. Smith, that there was a "clique in the State Department," which is determined to perpetuate the existence of Castro's Communist regime.

In Washington:

Useless to Probe Cuban Assault

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Republicans on both sides of the Capitol, clamoring for an investigation of the disastrous Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba two years ago, might well take a leaf from the book of their late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

EDSON

He had a rule or operations policy which went something like this, though it was never recorded on tape or put down on paper in quotation marks:

Don't bother about the details of what went wrong yesterday. If mistakes were made, learn what you can from them for future guidance. But yesterday's mistakes are part of the situation as it exists today. That's what we have to concentrate on, to decide what we're going to do about it tomorrow. Don't spend too much time looking backward or refighting yesterday's battles. Keep your eyes on what's ahead.

The common sense of this approach might have some moral value in it for the Democrats, too. What stirred up this furor as much as anything else was Atty. Gen. Robert E. Kennedy's interview denying there had been any promise of U.S. air support for the Cuban invasion fiasco.

President Kennedy now confirms no U.S. air cover was planned. If there had been U.S. air cover, says the President, it might as well have been an American invasion.

Sen. Wayne Morse's Foreign Relations Subcommittee on Latin America investigated all this soon after it happened. He has been offering his colleagues a look at his closed hearings record of two years ago, but he has had few takers.

But even if the attorney general had not reopened this old sore, the Cuban controversy might have been revived by New York GOP Sen. Kenneth B. Keating. He insists that Russia is continuing its military build-up on the island, though the missiles and the jet aircraft have been removed.

The President in his last press conference tried to give reassurance that this situation was under constant surveillance. He says that only one Soviet supply ship has arrived in Cuba since the withdrawal of offensive weapons. It may have brought arms. The President also admits that there are still 16,000 to 17,000 Russians in Cuba.

This is of course a legitimate subject for investigation. It is focused on what might happen next, not on past mistakes.

Senator Morse again moved quickly into this situation, calling Secretary of State Dean Rusk and CIA officials to testify in closed hearings. This may head off further washing of dirty American linen in public, but probably not.

To see the Senate or House or both of them in a joint committee investigation of what went on two years ago might be just another exercise in futility.

It recalls the Pearl Harbor investigation of 1947 which ran for seven months, and the Senate investigation of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's dismissal by President Truman, which ran for four months in 1951. The latter ended with only a minority report signed by eight Republicans, the majority voting not to issue any formal findings.

There was political motivation in these investigations, just as there is in today's pressure for dredging the mud from the Bay of Pigs once more. It is hard to see how this will contribute anything to getting Castro and communism out of Cuba, which is the major objective ahead.

Political observers also wonder what the Republicans can gain from it. The probe would be all over and forgotten long before the 1964 elections. It is also recalled that former Sen. Homer Capehart, R-Ind., tried to make Cuba the big issue in his campaign for re-election. He was defeated.

Voice of the People:

'Raise Legal Voting Age? Then Hike Draft Age, Too'

The person who wrote about raising the voting age should think about the draft age. If a young man is old enough to die for his country at 18, then he is old enough to vote. Why not raise the draft age to 31?

One I understand was the operating doctor and the other came to see me a few times. Now I'm waiting to see how many other statements I'll receive.

State's Colleges Seek Way Out of Student Jam

(Editor's Note—A big upsurge in the number of high school graduates seeking entry into college is expected in 1964-65. How will Michigan colleges handle the problem?)

By DWIGHT PITKIN
Associated Press Writer

The postwar babies of 1946-48—now teen-agers crowding the high schools—soon will be flocking to the colleges seeking a higher education in a technological age.

For some time Michigan school administrators have been planning how to handle this tidal wave. They estimate the number of applicants for college entry will double in the 1964-65 period.

Dr. Lynn M. Bartlett, state superintendent of public instruction, said all of Michigan's state-supported universities and colleges will be faced with a terrific problem. Approximately 80 per cent of the college students in Michigan are in state-supported schools.

Enrollment in the state's nine schools for higher education now is around 109,000, an increase of almost 23 per cent since 1958.

Facilities are being expanded but not at the rate desired by school administrators. Bartlett noted that the state schools requested $78,271,590 last year for new buildings and got $14,273,638 from the legislature.

Bartlett pointed out that it takes at least two years to complete a school building.

LEGISLATURE HIT

Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University, said the legislature has not faced up to the problem of providing new facilities.

There is still time to provide facilities for the big bulge in enrollment if the legislature acts quickly, Hannah said. But he added there is no time to waste because "it takes about two years to turn money into useful facilities."

Hannah said a 20 per cent increase can be expected in the freshman class of 1964, but he said that doesn't mean the whole enrollment jumps 20 per cent immediately. That means, there is still time to start an expansion program.

Supt. Bartlett said enrollment could be curtailed by raising college entry standards, but he declared it would be "a tragedy" to eliminate many fine young people from an opportunity for higher education.

* * *

At this time, officials at the universities do not contemplate tightening entry requirements. They're pushing building programs as rapidly as finances permit, and they're planning on making fuller use of present facilities.

University of Michigan limits the number of freshmen on the basis of ability and emphasizes graduate studies. But it will continue to admit as many freshmen as facilities permit and at the same time retain emphasis on graduate studies.

U. of M., which now has two semesters and a summer school, is going on a three-semester basis next September, and this should enable the school to handle a bigger enrollment. The university in effect will be making full use of its facilities by operating the year around.

4-QUARTER SYSTEM

Michigan State University has been on a four-quarter system for some time and has spread the enrollment throughout the year. It doesn't get the bulk of the load at any one time.

MSU has been building dormitories that include classrooms, laboratories and libraries. The idea originally was to put living and learning together but the extra classroom facilities will help take care of an expanding enrollment.

Wayne State University in Detroit started several years ago to make plans for the enrollment bulge by limiting enrollment to degree courses. A switch to the quarter system last fall was intended to make maximum use of facilities the year around. WSU also has been shifting programs to schedule classes Monday through Saturday.

* * *

The universities face a problem in persuading more and more students to enroll in the summer term.

Merritt M. Chambers, visiting professor of higher education at the University of Michigan, said theoretically the university could handle a half more students by operating the year 'round.

* * *

"It won't happen for a number of reasons," he said. "We have been running a summer session with half as many enrolled as for a regular semester. People think of going to college in the fall.

"Success will depend very greatly on something we don't know about. Will the people flock in? They won't right away. It will take several years to find out."

GRAND VALLEY NEXT

Michigan will have a 10th four-year college next fall when Grand Valley College opens its doors at Allendale in Ottawa County 12 miles west of Grand Rapids. It is expected to enroll at the start approximately 240 students.

Bartlett and other school administrators believe the state's expanding system of junior, or community, colleges may absorb many of the youngsters clamoring for college entry.

"There has been a fantastic growth in the community college enrollment," Bartlett said.

Michigan now has 16 junior colleges with an enrollment of 35,000 in the freshmen and sophomore years. Another junior college will open in Wayne County this fall.

* * *

In 1961, the junior and community colleges asked the legislature to appropriate $5 million for buildings and got $1 million. In 1962, they asked and obtained an appropriation of $1,281,250.

The community college at Muskegon, which was founded in 1926, has completely outgrown its original plant and now operates in 11 buildings, including portions of the YWCA, the public library and art gallery.

Only 35 per cent of its students come from Muskegon while 65 per cent are from surrounding communities. Muskegon County voters are expected to ballot this spring on a proposal to create a countywide community college district, provide money for buildings and operation and set up a board of control.

Other communities have plans for expansion of their junior colleges.

MSU's Hannah said, "We are going to need more junior colleges." He said there is pretty general recognition "that there ought to be a good two-year junior college, a community college, within commuting distance—say 25 or 30 miles—of all youngsters in the state, wherever they can get enough of them together to make a junior college an economically feasible operation."

TAKE PRESSURE OFF

U of M's Chambers, former executive director of the Michigan Council of State College Presidents, said junior colleges can take the pressure off the big universities and put the college where the student lives.

Junior colleges can offer liberal arts and technical or subprofessional courses. He said a wide variety of programs can be offered students who might flunk out in a liberal arts course. Chambers also suggested adult education programs where a skilled worker can upgrade himself by learning the things he wants.

U. of M. associate professor of sociology David Goldberg, who is program director of the Institute for Public Administration, said it would be a greater error for Michigan to admit everyone who wanted to go to college.

"We will be even more selective in the future," he said. "It can't be avoided and maintain quality.

"We're getting better students each year. They're fantastically bright."

Goldberg declared that barring out-of-state students would harm the quality. He noted that pressures are being exerted more each year to bar them.

The pressure could be lessened, he said, if there were other institutions to accommodate students who do not measure up to the university's high entry standards.

Goldberg suggested institutions that provide a more technical kind of training to give young people skills that will enable them to function in a changing technology.

"There will be some great changes in the labor market in the next decade," he predicted. "It will be tough to provide jobs for youngsters entering the labor force. We are going to have a tough time explaining the constantly high proportion of unemployed."

Escapee Jailed for Kidnaping

One of two former Ionia State Hospital inmates charged with kidnaping and raping a 19-year-old Farwell housewife in August 1961, was sent to Jackson Prison Tuesday for 12 to 25 years.

John T. Auld, 44, was sentenced on the kidnap charge by Oakland County Circuit Judge Stanton G. Dondero. Auld pleaded guilty to kidnaping Jan. 14.

Auld and James G. Styes, 34, were accused of kidnaping the woman and her 15-year-old brother and raping the women in West Bloomfield Township after escaping from Ionia.

Prolonged Strikes Cost Millions

Miners at the U.S. Steel Corporation's Robena mine complex in Pennsylvania and 130 St. Louis street department employes remained off their jobs.

Each day of the prolonged wave of labor unrest was running into millions of dollars. The price to the New York economy alone was placed at $3 million daily.

Florida Gov. Farris Bryant said the railroad strike was hurting his state, already feeling the pinch of a frost-damaged citrus crop.

NEWSPAPERS

The two sides remained separated by a package gap of $24.23 per man per week. The publishers have offered a $10 raise and the union has demanded a $34.23 package.

Other issues included automation, the use of "bogus" type for resetting advertisement mats, "outside tape" that is used to set linotype automatically and a common contract expiration date.

The Cleveland Press unit of The Newspaper Guild reversed itself and voted to continue negotiations on the key issue of union security.

Guild members at the other Cleveland paper, The Plain Dealer, accepted the publishers proposal for a maintenance of membership clause with a seven-day escape period.

The two papers have been struck since Thanksgiving.

Negotiations continued today between the publishers and the Guild and the photo-engravers who were reported to be ready to become the fifth union to go on strike.

TRANSPORTATION

The strike of the Transport Workers Union against the Philadelphia Transportation Co. entered its 17th day with talks scheduled at the state Capitol in Harrisburg.

The State Supreme Court was expected to rule today on the legality of a receiver appointed for the firm last week. Mediators said the receivership has stalled fruitful negotiations.

The receiver was named as a result of a suit by the city of Philadelphia which owns $200 million worth of transit equipment used by the company under a lease.

More than a million daily riders were without trolley, bus or subway-elevated transportation. Some 5,600 workers were idled.

A company spokesman said the major issue now was the financial package. Negotiators agreed on a 33-cent package two weeks ago, and the union accepted but the firm rejected it. Another key issue was union demands for retaining a no-layoff clause.

A federal judge ordered the Jacksonville, Fla., Terminal Co. to accept about 2,000 rented freight cars from the railway, beginning at 1 p.m. EST today, despite the threat of immediate picketing.

The railway also withdrew its offer of a percentage wage increase for the 1,200 striking employes as the first face-to-face negotiations since the strike began ended in deadlock.

The 11 nonoperating unions have demanded a 10.28 cent pay increase, recommended by a White House committee last year. The railroad had offered a 5 per cent hike spread over 18 months.

If the terminal was closed by pickets, all rail service through Jacksonville, which serves a major part of Florida for mail, fruit, package express and tourist transportation, would be halted.

A union leader said in court Monday workers would picket the terminal if it handled railway cars.

OTHERS:

Striking miners near Carmichael, Pa., said they wanted a safety dispute at Robena complex, where 37 miners were killed Dec. 6, settled before they returned to work.

The dispute broke out Tuesday after a lampman refused to leave his post to go to another part of the mine and he was dismissed.

The union said if the lampman had gone to another part of the mine he would have violated a safety rule.

St. Louis streets director Alfred H. Beck said he would not seek an injunction against 49 city employes engaged in a sympathy walkout. He said the men would return to work in an emergency.

Some 23 men were fired Monday after they refused to work on a salt pile in subfreezing weather. The 49 walked off in protest to the dismissals.

Can Adenauer Keep Walking Tightrope?

(Editor's Note — The French president's veto of British entry into Europe has placed West Germany's chancellor on a spot. In this dispatch United Press International's chief correspondent in Bonn analyzes the dilemma.)

By WILFRIED SALIGER

BONN (UPI) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is walking a tightrope between Paris, London and Washington, possibly without a safety net.

With his expected retirement only seven or eight months off, the crusty, 87-year-old chancellor apparently thinks he can keep his balance. His chief cabinet members take a longer range view and they are uneasy.

The ink on the historic Franco-German friendship pact is hardly dry and Adenauer does not want to turn his back on his friend, French President Charles de Gaulle.

Yet de Gaulle seems to be doing his best to dismantle the system of American-led alliances that has protected Europe since 1945, and Adenauer knows that only the United States — not de Gaulle — can defend West Germany and her isolated outpost in Berlin.

So the chancellor plays for time.

The obvious question is why did not Adenauer tell de Gaulle in Paris last week to change his opposition to British membership in the Common Market or forget the Franco-German pact.

The key is in Adenauer's personality. A native of Rhineland, which borders France, Adenauer has been a lifelong Francophile. Reconciliation with France has been his prime target since he returned to politics at the age of 73 and became chancellor of West Germany.

Aides who have worked with him for 10 and more years say they had never seen Adenauer so deeply moved as when the two grand old men of Europe sealed their friendship at a Solemn High Mass in Reims Cathedral last July.

Adneauer's personal experiences with Britain, on the other hand, have been mainly negative. As mayor of Cologne in the 1920's he had to deal with British occupation troops. After World War II the British first restored him as mayor and then fired him for "incompetence." He has not forgotten.

Moreover, Adenauer has a great personal admiration for de Gaulle.

On British membership in the Common Market, Adenauer was at best lukewarm, never enthusiastic.

He is a great politician but not a man of economics. The advantages of a Common Market with Britain and the dangers of a possible trade war between two European economic blocs without Britain do not impress him.

NIGHTMARE FOR ERHARD

The possible dangers are a nightmare to Adenauer's economics minister and most likely successor, Ludwig Erhard. But the outspoken and shrewd economist is no match for Adenauer in the political arena.

So Erhard waits for the chancellor to step down.

Overthrowing Adenauer now that his honorable exit is in sight would, in this country, be tantamount to desecrating a national monument.

Foreign Minister Ferhard Schroeder, more skilled at politics than Erhard, lets Adenauer have his way. But in a quiet, diplomatic manner he makes it understood by Germany's partners that in due time there will be a change.

This is not to say that the Bonn-Paris friendship would go overboard when Adenauer leaves. But de Gaulle will run into some formidable German opposition, unless he changes his plans.

That, obviously, is why both de Gaulle and Adenauer wanted to sign their Paris pact last week, and why Adenauer finds himself on a tightrope between Paris on the one side and London-Washington on the other.

HAPPY NEWS — Marine Pfc. Jack Moon of Saginaw learned yesterday that his expectant wife Eva will be allowed to remain in this country instead of being deported after her temporary student's visa expires. Moon met his wife while she was studying nursing in Saginaw.

Drop Deportation Action Against Marine's Wife

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deportation proceedings against the Filipino wife of Pfc. Jack Moon of Saginaw, Mich., are being dropped on the recommendation of Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

★ ★ ★

This development was reported yesterday by Rep. James Harvey, R-Mich., who made public a letter from Immigration Commissioner Raymond F. Farrell saying:

"You will be pleased to learn that the secretary of state recommended that the foreign residence requirement of the immigration and nationality act be waived in behalf of Mrs. Moon.

★ ★ ★

"The recommendation is being forwarded to the district director at Los Angeles, Calif., who then will be in a position to take favorable action on the application and will notify Mrs. Moon when such action is taken."

Farrell's letter to Harvey came after the congressman had interceded in behalf of the Moons.

The immigration service previously had ruled that Mrs. Eva Dinsay Moon, 24, would have to leave the country. It said she had agreed in writing before coming to the United States that she would return to the Philippines after competing her nurse's training.

Mrs. Moon is expecting a baby within two weeks.

Hits Marking on Freeways

DETROIT (UPI)—The Automobile Club of Michigan has urged the State Highway Department to mark freeway entrances and exits by both names and numbers.

In a letter to Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie, the auto club said the No. 1 complaint of motorists is the confusion arising about where to get on and off Michigan's freeway network.

Spaak Niece Married

PARIS (UPI) — Belgian movie starlet Catherine Spaak, 18-year-old niece of Belgian foreign minister Paul-Henri Spaak, was married in a civil ceremony here yesterday to Fabrizio Capucci, 22, brother of fashion designer Robert Capucci.

The United States has a population density of 50.5 persons per square mile.

U.S. Students Top 40 Million

It Costs $19 Billion for Public Education

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are more than 40-million pupils enrolled in the nation's public schools, and it is costing $19.1 billion to educate them, the National Education Association (NEA) reported yesterday.

In its annual report on school statistics, the NEA also noted there are 1.5-million classroom teachers in the public schools, drawing an average annual salary of $5,735. The current salary figure shows a $220 increase over the 1961-62 school year.

The total enrollment in elementary schools is 26,374,830, an increase of 687,693 over last year. High school enrollment is 13,633,082, an increase of 627,632.

Of the total cost, $15.5 billion is for current expenditures, the NEA said; Another $3.6 billion is being spent for capital outlay—school construction and interest payments on school bonds.

Last year's current expenditures were $14.3 billion.

Current expenditures for pupils in average daily attendance is $432, compared to $415 last year. The state-by-state figures vary from a low of $230 in Mississippi to a high of $620 in Alaska.

High school teachers are still being paid more than those in elementary schools, the report said, although the gap is narrowing. The average for high school teachers is $5,995, for elementary school teachers $5,560.

States in the Far West pay the highest average annual salary, $7,161. The average in the Middle Atlantic states is $6,114, in New England $6,099, in the Southwest $5,557, in the Northwest $5,166 and in the Southeast $4,750.

Believe Egg Really Ancient

UTSUNOMIYA, Japan (AP) — A fossilized egg unearthed at a construction site is at least 20 million years old, scientists estimated yesterday.

No such a find ever has been reported in Japan before.

The fossil is about the size of a hen's egg. Utsunomiya University geologists based their estimate of its age on the Earth stratum where it was found Jan. 19. They are making further study of its age and nature.

SEE THEM SAW — Two counselors supervise a log-sawing contest at Clear Lake camp earlier this week for Calhoun County school children. The temperature was 17 above, but this didn't seem to bother the youngsters. The counselors are Karen Welling of Western Michigan University and Steve Richmond of Antioch College.

Battle Creek Area Students Out in the Cold—and Like It

By ART MIDDLETON
Battle Creek Enquirer and News

BATTLE CREEK (AP) — While most adults maneuvered to stay out of the 17-degree cold, 50 Calhoun County school children had the time of their lives on a two-mile hike through the snow Tuesday.

Another 50 youngsters plowed through knee-deep snow drifts on a nature study expedition. A third group alternated in sliding down a steep, slick hill on single-runner ice scooters and taking part in wood-sawing contests.

This was part of a day in a week of activity for 150 youngsters at Clear Lake Camp, an outdoor classroom for thousands of Battle Creek area fifth and sixth graders for the past 15 years.

The 130-acre camp, 15 miles northwest of Battle Creek is owned and operated by the city's public school system which in 1947 was presented the $500,000 facility by the W. K. Kellogg Foundation, a pioneer in the concept of school camping.

IDEA COPIED

Since then several hundred camps have cropped up across the nation. About a dozen operate on a year-around basis.

The temperature was six below zero Tuesday when reveille sounded in two icicle-fringed dormitories, one occupied by 87 boys and the other by about 60 girls. A half hour later the youngsters raced 25 yards across the snowy campus to the dining hall in the main building.

The day's schedule included lunch planned and cooked over outdoor fires by the pupils. It was supervised by the classroom teacher who accompanied the class to camp and by one of the three counselors who comprise the staff of the camp director, Dr. Donald C. Randall. He is assisted by his wife, a nurse, and two cooks who prepare meals served by the pupils.

Each week finds a new group of children eight to 12 years of age at the camp A fee of $9.50 covers meals and accommodations. For cannot pay there is a special fund. During the school year, the camp is host to some 3,600 youngsters.

Until 1961 it was feared the New Zealand kakapo, a parrot, was extinct. Then four were captured in Fiordland, an area of mountains, forests and lakes in southwestern New Zealand.

More Troops Lost by Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top U.S. commander in the Pacific said yesterday Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam have been losing five times as many men in battle as the government forces over the past few months.

Adm. Harry D. Felt cited these increasing Communist losses as one reason for saying that "All trends are favorable to the government side" in the war to suppress the Red insurgents.

★ ★ ★

"These trends just don't happen by themselves," Felt said in a statement.

"They result from a will to fight to remain free and from a brave and expanding leadership."

In a statement for a news conference, Felt mentioned a sizable list of signs which he interpreted as hopeful. He said:

—"There has been a steady decline of armed attacks by the (Communist) Viet Cong. The weekly average during the first month of this year is less than half the weekly average during the early months of 1962."

—There has been no buildup of large-scale Viet Cong operations, and only rarely is there an attack of battalion size.

—Over the past few months, five Viet Cong have been killed for each government soldier lost in combat.

—The Communists are losing more weapons to the government troops than they are capturing—significant because the Viet Cong have relied on captured weapons for much of their resupply.

College graduates accounted for 7.7 per cent of the adult population in 1960, census figures show. This is almost a 25 per cent increase from 1950.

Antichild Vaccine On Its Way

CHICAGO (UPI)—The President of the Population Council of New York said today that within 10 years a woman may be able to be vaccinated against pregnancy.

★ ★ ★

Frank W. Notestein, whose organization promotes birth control throughout the world, told newsmen that the pills used in birth control today were in the development stage 10 years ago.

"It takes a long time to get these devices from the research stage to the practical," he said.

Notestein, here to address the annual meeting of the Planned Parenthood Association, predicted that at the present rate of growth, there will be seven billion people in the world by the year 2,000.

"The worst of it is that the most rapid growth is likely to come precisely in those regions and classes that can least afford it," he said.

Notestein was told that 82 per cent of the mothers receiving help under the Aid to Dependent Children program in Illinois were not living with a legal husband and that critics contend a tentatively approved policy to supply these women with contraceptives would encourage immorality.

"By not providing them with such measures, we are encouraging illegitimacy," he replied. "I think a woman who has two or three illegitimate children doesn't need to be encouraged.

Notestein said research on birth control devices may provide every religious group with an acceptable medical answer to family planning needs within 10 years.

Junior Editors Quiz on SEAPLANES

QUESTION: Wouldn't it be better to pick up astronauts with seaplanes?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: Think of yourself as the pilot of a seaplane who has located an astronaut's capsule bobbing up and down in smooth ocean swells. Fortunately, the water is calm enough for you to come down on the surface.

You taxi up to within hailing range. "We'll heave you a line," you shout through the megaphone, "and pull you aboard through the water."

"What about my capsule?" the astronaut yells back. "Too heavy for me to handle," you have to tell him. "I'll radio the waiting ships—they'll pick it up later."

"Thanks, but I'll stick with my capsule," calls the astronaut. "It's jam-packed with valuable records and equipment—I couldn't leave it!" A situation like this wouldn't happen the way astronauts' capsules are actually picked up—by helicopters, as shown in the picture.

These wonderfully useful little "egg-beaters" can hover directly over a capsule, lower lifting gear and pick up the capsule, astronaut and all and then buzz him over to the nearest navy ship.

FOR YOU TO DO: Pretend you are the pilot of that seaplane once more—only this time with waves too rough to land on and with a sinking capsule you're supposed to rescue. What would you do—wish you had a helicopter? That's right!

State Gets $16.2 Million Under JFK Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) Under President Kennedy's proposed education program, Michigan would get $16.2 million of the $400 million which the federal government would spend in the next fiscal year on aid to public elementary and secondary schools.

Consumers Power Asks for Reduction

LANSING (AP) — Consumers Power Co. yesterday asked the State Public Service Commission for permission to lower electric rates for residential customers who use electricity for home heating.

The company said about 2,000 of its 900,000 electric customers are involved.

★ ★ ★

Customers heating with electricity would pay the same rate for the first 500 kilowatt hours of electricity per month but would be given a reduction of 7½ per cent on additional electricity.

The company estimated the saving at $24 a year to the average customer affected.

British Exec Admits He's a 'Common' Drunk

LONDON (UPI) — Business executive Henry Phillips, fined $56 yesterday for drunken driving, blamed his plight on Britain's failure to enter the Common Market.

★ ★ ★

"When I heard the news, I suppose it went to my head," Phillips told the judge.

U.S. Must Assess Position in World Economy

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK — Rival trading blocs in Europe may increase competition for American farmers and manufacturers in other parts of the world as well as across the Atlantic.

The rivalry could lead to stepped-up drives to send more foreign goods into the United States. And it can change the scope and ground rules for American bargaining on tariffs and other barriers to foreign trade, on which high hopes had been built after Congress gave the President unprecedented powers to wheel and deal with other governments.

DAWSON

While Europe and the rest of the world simmer down after French President Charles de Gaulle's veto of British entry into the Common Market, American producers and exporters will reassess their position in the fast-changing world economy.

Trading already was getting tougher—and Soviet raids on some countries weren't helping any. American investment was arousing opposition in some European countries. And imports here were rising faster than exports—with half of the gain scored by Western Europe and Japan.

Some American businessmen think the French-British split will mean weaker competition than they had expected if Britain and other European outsiders joined the Common Market. They also have been counting on signs that the Common Market's big industrial spurt of recent years was slowing down, that labor costs were rising there, and that the United States might get concessions that would let more American products into Europe—in return for further lowering of remaining barriers here against imports.

But Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America and former head of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce warns that many American businessmen are underestimating the growing economic strength of the European trading bloc.

He told some 300 of them at a dinner Wednesday night of the Council for International Progress in Management that the power of the Common Market isn't going to drop much, if any, despite the new and complex issues raised by de Gaulle's blackballing of Britain.

He conceded there might be some leveling off in American investment in the Common Market. In 1958 this came to $391 million; in 1960 it rose to $473 million and in 1961 went to $734 million, with 1962 figures believed to have been about as high. A slowdown might have been in the cards anyway.

AMERICAN FEARS

The thing that many Americans fear is that the British-French split may mean tightening up of protection moves, to the harm of American producers.

The rival camps may work harder to cut costs at home and push lower-priced goods abroad. Wooing of Latin American and other U.S. markets may grow more ardent.

And surplus production in Europe, if consumer consumption there slows its growth rate, could seek an outlet in the rich American market. If Britain turns to stronger ties with British Commonwealth nations, American manufacturers, and especially farmers, may find the going harder than ever.

They would only add to the problems of increasing the U.S. growth rate and somehow halting a continuing deficit in our financial transactions with the rest of the world. This balance of payments deficit, if continued too long, could revive a run on American gold reserves and undermine confidence in the long-term strength of the dollar.

Economic Solution Sought for the Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — A six-man U.S. mission arrived here today to seek a way to stanch the economic hemorrhage bleeding the Congo to death.

Harlan Cleveland, U.S. assistant secretary of state, heading the group, said he also will discuss a cutback in U.N. military strength following the end of Katanga Province's session. The world organization has more than 20,000 men under arms here, and the United States pays the biggest part of the bill.

TO HEAR PROBLEMS

During their 10-day stay the Americans will be told of these grave problems:

1. Runaway inflation, due to political unrest and massive government deficits, has boosted prices in Leopoldville more than 65 per cent in the last year.

2. Lack of goods to buy in the interior is destroying the incentive for small farmers to produce more than their own needs creating food shortages in cities.

3. There is no work available for about half the work force. Millions of dollars worth of machinery lies idle for lack of spare parts.

FINANNCES MYSTERIOUS

4. The finances of mineral-rich Katanga, which supplied the Congo before independence with about half its foreign exchange earnings, are a mystery.

5. Thousands of tons of coffee, tea, palm oil and other produce are being smuggled out of the Congo, depriving the central government of taxes and foreign currency.

6. Much foreign aid has been used to plug leaks in the economy rather than to cure economic ills.

7. The central government lacks the power and trained personnel to impose unpopular economic solutions on the nation.

COSTLY DISPUTES

8. Disputes among the 21 provinces created last year resulted in serious breakdowns in local administration and sometimes in bloody fighting.

Designed to reduce tribal emnities, the hastily drawn boundaries of the new provinces have multiplied tribal squabbles. Hardly any of the new provinces is self-supporting and local leaders incite fellow tribesmen to go on the warpath to seize natural resources in the next province. Nearly 400 people were killed in one recent clash over a lumbering concession in Kasai.

ADDED STRAIN

9. Premier Cyrille Adoula's offer of places in the central army to members of the Katanga Gendarmerie will place an added strain on the already over-extended budget. The move probably will swell the army to more than 40,000 men.

U:N.Secretary General U Thant appealed for more than $19 million in contributions from U.N. members in 1963 to finance the world organization's civilian operation in the Congo. U.S. officials here, who have channeled most of America's aid to the Congo through the U.N., hope plans covering several years can be worked out with the world body.

Officers Are Elected for Hospital Credit Unit

Leon G. Reene of 140 Elizabeth Lake Road has been elected president of the Pontiac State Hospital Employees Credit Union.

Also elected were Wilber E. Alsup, 133 LeGrande Ave., vice president; George Hilliker, 4913 Maycrest St., Waterford Township, treasurer; and Lyle A. Ferguson, 51 N. Eastway Drive, clerk.

Quaint Old American Frauds Outlawed by FTC

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Over the years, the "going out of business" sale has been as much a part of the American scene as the overdue charge account.

If records were available I suspect they would show that several fortunes have been built by enterprising merchants who made a business out of going out of business.

WEST

It appears, however, that this road to riches has now been closed.

The Federal Trade Commission, in a case this month, took the position that a merchant shouldn't advertise a "going out of business" sale unless he actually is going out of business.

Gad, sir! This is the sort of thing that is taking all of the profit out of bankruptcy.

The next thing you know the FTC will be demanding that "fire sales" include a conflagration.

FTC ON GUARD

As the patron saint of the American consumer, the commission, which undertakes to protect us from our own gullibility, has handled several other cases recently that I thought were of more than run-of-the-mill interest.

★ ★ ★

One of them involved a television commercial for a kitchen knife. It showed a salesman demonstrating the sharpness of the knife by cutting a nail in half.

The FTC charged that the commercial was deceptive on the ground that the salesman actually was using the back of the knife. It may have a point there, although it wouldn't matter to me personally.

When I get so mad I could eat nails, I don't really care which side of the knife they are carved with.

For that matter, any knife that would sever a nail would be a big improvement over the kitchen cutlery at my house. On some of the knives the handles are sharper than the blades.

THINK OR THWIM

Another recent case concerned a claim that a swimming aid "makes anyone unsinkable." The FTC said the device "will not, of itself, prevent all users from sinking."

The commission further alleged that the "money back guarantee" was misleading.

There also was a case involving table linens that were packaged in green and white boxes bearing a trade name that included the word "Erin" and showing a picture of a shamrock.

The FTC charged that the packaging misrepresented the origin of the linens, which were made in Japan. I would have guessed they were made in Denmark.

What's Ahead for Europe?

Common Market Questions Answered

By The Associated Press

A. Quick sum-up on the Common Market crisis:

Q. What is the Common Market?

A. Established by the treaty of Rome in 1957, the European Economic Community was inaugurated Jan. 1, 1958, as an economic association of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The goal was the integration of economies within 12-15 years and the formation of common tariff treatment for the rest of the world.

Closer political affinity was expected to be an outgrowth. On most issues, the six are ahead of schedule and their economies are prospering.

Q. How big is the Common Market?

A. The six nations have a population of 180 millions — about equal to the United States — in an area roughly one-sixth the size of the continental United States.

However, associate common colonies, and much of the Common Market's raw materials is drawn from them.

As a completely integrated trade group, the Common Market could rival the United States.

Q. Why did France veto Britain?

A. Charles de Gaulle said Britain's economy is unsuitable for integration in Europe now. Privately, de Gaulle is known to aspire to a French-led Europe he feels can become a third force between East and West. He also wants to reduce American influence in Europe. As a Common Market member, Britain would have fought French domination and striven for continued American leadership of the western alliance.

Q. What now for the Common Market?

A. The economic integration likely will proceed, but the movement toward political union will stagnate.

Italy and the Benelux countries wanted Britain in to offset the French politically.

Medical 'First' Fails; Ex-Marine Loses Leg

BOSTON (UPI)—The husky ex-Marine's left leg literally hung by threads when he was rushed to the hospital from the accident scene.

William Hunt's leg was more than 90 per cent severed when he was crushed between a rubbish truck and a car Jan. 15. But the all important sciatic nerve was intact and a team of surgeons decided the leg might be saved.

In a six-hour operation, working with the nerve, two muscles and some bridges of skin still connected halfway up the thigh, they restored Hunt's limb.

The 37-year-old father of seven children was reported progressing well and doctors were hopeful the operation would prove successful.

On Tuesday they drained an area in the leg and found evidence of infection. Later the limb began to hemorrhage internally into the tissues and the doctors made their decision.

They amputated Hunt's leg yesterday at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. Officials said the infection enadngered not only the leg but also Hunt's life since such infections can spread rapidly.

Had the operation been successful it would have been the first time doctors had restored a limb as large as a leg.

Surgeons at Massachusetts General Hospital last May reimplanted the severed arm of Everett Knowles, 13, of Somerville. Doctors say it still is too early to determine whether the boy will regain use of the arm that was cut off by a tram.

Duke Shows Contempt for Little Sports Car

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The utter contempt in which most self-respecting car-chasing dogs hold sports cars was dramatically illustrated here by Duke, the German shepherd-boxer owned by John Milan Jr. After chasing the family car awhile, Duke decided to cross the road. A speeding sports car appeared over the hill with no time for Duke to reach the shoulder or the car to brake.

Hard-Headed Frenchman Sniffs at Allies

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — The Russians and Red Chinese weren't getting along, but after one look over the Berlin wall at what's happening in the West they can start dancing in the streets.

It's a mess.

MARLOW

Away back in the summer of 1961 President Kennedy was anxious to work out some settlement with the Russians on Berlin. French President Charles de Gaulle disdained to take part. West Germany belittled American ideas and efforts.

★ ★ ★

By last May Kennedy was so burned up he told a news conference:

"It isn't difficult to say you shouldn't do this or that, and at the same time some countries do not play as active a role as we've been willing to play in an attempt to work this out."

SWIPE AT ALLIES

Just a few days before, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara had taken a swipe at this country's NATO allies for not meeting their agreements in providing forces for the alliance.

★ ★ ★

The United States had 400,000 troops in West Germany, the British only 51,000, and de Gaulle, busy with a war in Algeria, had his troops there. NATO is supposed to have 30 divisions; it has only 24.

★ ★ ★

De Gaulle was miffed at the United States anyway. He's trying to make France a nuclear power, and the United States wouldn't share its atomic know-how with him.

The United States promised to put five of its Polaris missile submarines into the NATO defense, but under American command—although under the technical control of NATO.

★ ★ ★

This country wasn't happy at the thought of its various NATO partners eventually all having nuclear forces of their own. So last November it suggested an integrated European nuclear force within the NATO framework.

BLOW TO DE GAULLE

This would be a blow to de Gaulle's ambitions for a strictly French nuclear striking force. Kennedy was still bothered by the NATO partners' failure to put their share of conventional forces, like troops, into NATO.

He said so in his televised interview in December. He said the six American divisions in NATO are the best equipped and "they can fight tomorrow, which is not true of most of the other units."

Then, reviewing all this country has done over 15 years to help Western Europe with men, money and weapons, he said "I think it is a fantastic story."

Americans felt the NATO forces were so understrength they would have trouble blunting even a moderate Soviet attack.

But it was also in December that Kennedy offered both the British and the French Polaris missiles. They'd have to make their own nuclear warheads for them. The British bought the idea. Not the French.

De Gaulle said that would take some thinking.

UP IN AIR

"Still up in the air was the idea of a multinational nuclear defense in Europe. Meanwhile, Britain wanted to get into the European Common Market with France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

Then de Gaulle let go! He wanted no part of the American idea of a multinational nuclear defense, he didn't want the Polaris missiles, and he didn't want Britain in the Common Market. In effect, what he said was: He wanted a Europe for the Europeans.

This also, in effect, said he considered the British outsiders. It could even be taken to mean he wanted the United States to get its troops out of Europe although France couldn't even defend itself against Russian attack without U.S. help.

Kennedy in a news conference last week snapped at de Gaulle. And Wednesday British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan took a hard poke at him without mentioning him by name.

The Belgians, the Italians and the West Germans were burned up at the Frenchman. The French sat pat. The United States put on the air that things would work out. The British didn't know what was going to happen.

And the rest of the partners in NATO and the Common Market can't even guess what's next. De Gaulle acts like a man with a halo. He doesn't feel he has to argue. He just states.

Elder Citizens Prefer Living in Urban Area

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — More and more senior citizens are chosing to spend their "golden years" in the city despite the problems of urban living.

Dr. Wilma Donahue, chairman of the gerontology division of the University of Michigan, said while the city puts some strain on finances and often means social isolation, most aged city dwellers want to remain where they are.

Dr. Donahue said the city offers such advantages as hospitals, doctors offices, large shopping centers, sporting events and public transportation.

She said increasing numbers of elderly persons do not want to live with their children, but that their hard-earned leisure time often hangs heavy on their hands.

Another advantage of the city is the fact that special housing is being developed for senior citizens where they can find companions of similar age with special services conveniently located.

"And despite the low demand for older workers, there still are more jobs available in the city than in the country," she said.

British Private Back From E. German Hiatus

BERLIN (UPI) — A British spokesman announced yesterday that British Army Pvt. Gilbert Paul Jenkerson has returned from Communist East Germany where he was absent without leave for more than two years.

Officials said Jenkerson told them he became fed up with life in East Germany.

Sergeant Chief-of-Staff

LOME, Togo (UPI) — Sgt. Emmanuel Bodjolle, leader of the recent coup that resulted in the assassination of President Sylvanus Olympio, has been appointed chief-of-staff of Togo's army, it was announced yesterday.

Marking Time in Middle Age

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—How can you tell if you are middle-aged?

Sometimes your best friends won't tell you. On the other hand, wives usually make a man feel older than he is by constantly cautioning him. "Remember, you are not as young as you used to be." Who ever actually is? Nobody.

BOYLE

But there are certain ways a man can discover for himself whether he has reached the shady side of life's slope.

★ ★ ★

For example, you are probably middle-aged if—

You can still remember what Theda Bara and Wallace Reid looked like.

They seem to be making staircases longer and the stops higher and farther apart.

RETIRED BEACHCOMBER

You daydream about retiring to Florida on $250 a month instead of living as a beachcomber with a dusky native lass on some South Seas isle.

The boss starts rewarding you with a pat on the back, in place of a pay hike, figuring you no longer have the courage to look for a better job.

The people you associate with talk more often of security than they do of opportunity.

Any man under 40—or any girl under 35—bores you after 15 minutes.

You'd rather listen to a discussion on gallstones than an argument about baseball.

The desk at your office holds more empty aspirin bottles than letters you wouldn't want your wife to see.

Every new blizzard reminds you of one in your youth that was ever so much worse. They just don't have winters like that any more.

DESSERT PANGS

You can no longer enjoy a dessert at lunch without a feeling of guilt—and a stomach pang later.

No woman you can call by her first name still has the same color hair she did when you first met her.

Instead of acquiring new and interesting vices, you spend more and more time trying to get rid of your old and dull bad habits.

You quit reading the comic strips in the newspapers, but find the obituaries of total strangers oddly fascinating.

People don't seem as honest or as idealistic as they used to.

You're so tired of living through international crises you wouldn't walk across the street to see Fidel Castro get a free shave from Nikita Khrushchev.

Everything you see today reminds you of something that was better in the old days.

'Dead Man' Still Lively at 78 Years of Age

Pierre Garcia, believed to have succumbed to pneumonia, brought his funeral services to a halt by raising his arm.

He walks with a cane now but he's ready for action any time.

House of Dior Set to Unveil Line Today

PARIS (UPI)—The house of Christian Dior moved to the center of the fashion stage today to hand down its edict on what women should wear this spring.

Designer Marc Bohan, chief creator at the house founded by the late Dior, had prepared his collection with great care for the audience of nearly 500 fashion reporters.

Before the show opened, activity was feverish—and that means downright hectic in the fashion world — in the gray-and-white Dior salon on Avenue Montaigne.

Slender models hurried in and out of the salon for last-minute rehearsals in the parade of some 200 outfits.

Each suit, coat and dress had been in the works for two months, but at the last minute Bohan still was making changes — shortening a sleeve here or ripping off a flower there.

EMPLOYS 400

A multimillion-dollar business was riding on whether the collection was a success. Dior employs about 400 persons in the Paris salon and its subsidiary salons in New York and London.

In addition to selling handmade original fashions to wealthy women here, Dior sells models to big stores for reproduction, sells ideas to manufacturers and also markets perfumes, gloves, sweaters and other ready-to-wear.

Five designers yesterday introduced their versions of how the world's well-dressed women should look. Maggy Rouff, Guy Laroche, Jacques Heim, Carven and the House of Patou generally called for full shoulders, narrower skirts and suits that hide the female figure from the waist up.

Rouff, a Paris institution since the 1930s, showed a feminine, wearable collection of suits with narrow skirts and loosely-fitted jackets at a new length — mid-hip. Her coats all had three-quarter sleeves, including some in stiff black lace for evening.

Laroche unveiled suits with slim skirts and jackets cut like a man's shirt, including a small pointed collar and small buttons down the front.

OUTFITS DRESSIER

Heim's suits also hide the female curves, but his outfits are dressier. The Heim suit jacket showed wide bell sleeves to the elbow and was so loose it almost billowed in back. He belted many suits and coats with leather cord or drawstring, high above the natural waistline, but casually to keep the extra-bulky upper silhouette.

Suits at the house of the late Jean Patou, designed by German-born Roland Karl Logerfeld, had slightly wider shoulders and longer jackets. Patou is known mainly for evening clothes, and Logerfeld obliged with a breathtaking line.

Many gowns shimmered with beaded embroidery. One white pique short evening dress had pique roses sewn all over it, but it was a mystery how the wearer could sit in bumpless comfort.

DEAR ABBY: I am being married for the second time. The wedding will take place in the minister's study with only a few guests present.

ABBY

I would like to wear a white silk cocktail suit. I have been told by several of my friends that I should not wear white because white stands for maidenhood.

PROPER LEE CONCERNED

DEAR PROPER LEE: The traditional white bridal gown originated in the early Saxon days, when the poorer brides wore plain white robes to indicate they had no wealth and were not responsible for their husband's debts.

The white bridal costume has more economic significance than moral. So wear the white silk suit, and better luck this time.

DEAR ABBY: Do all wives make themselves out to be housekeeping martyrs, or is my wife the exception?

There are just the two of us, and our home is equipped with an electric washer, dryer, ironer, cooking range, blender, can-opener, grinder, coffeemaker, floor polisher and every other work-saving device you can name.

But my wife complains she is "overworked." We even have a maid to run these gadgets while my wife plays cards five afternoons a week. So what should I do?

EARL

DEAR EARL: Buy her an automatic card shuffler.

DEAR ABBY: About a month ago I was caught with cigarettes in my purse. I lied to my mother and told her they belonged to a friend of mine.

She found out I lied and I was grounded for a month. I promised I would never smoke again.

I was in the drug store with another girl and we were smoking. A friend of my mother's saw us and told my mother immediately.

Now I am grounded for I don't know how long. The worst part of it is that now my mother has lost all trust in me.

I don't really know why I smoked after I promised I wouldn't. I suppose I just wanted to feel big and bad. How can I get my mother to believe that I have learned my lesson and I will neither smoke nor lie again?

TRULY SORRY

DEAR SORRY: It will probably take a long time for your mother to regain confidence in you. There are no short-cuts. The only way you can build trust and confidence is by being completely honest in all things from now on.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: We are parents of a very active 11-year-old boy who is the leader of his neighborhood gang. We are proud of his qualities of leadership, but he wants too much freedom too soon.

We have a full half-acre lot behind our house where our son and his gang have always played.

Now he is trying to persuade us to let him build a tree house in a wooded area three blocks from our home. We don't like this idea, Abby.

Are we being overly-protective? None of the other mothers is in favor of the tree house either. What do you think?

SMALL TOWN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Tree houses are for the birds. You need not apologize for refusing to let an 11-year-old boy have a tree house in a wooded area three blocks from home. Stick to your decision.

★ ★ ★

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, in care of The Pontiac Press.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to Abby, in care of The Pontiac Press, for Abby's new booklet, "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS."

All Rise When Toast Is Proposed

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: As a senior citizen, I have attended many functions such as 75th birthdays, golden wedding anniversaries, testimonial dinners etc. It is usual at these functions for someone to propose a toast to the guest of honor.

It has been my observation that everyone (except the honored guest) rises for a sip of wine when the toast is proposed.

At a recent testimonial dinner I was reprimanded for standing. I was told that the guests should remain seated except when honoring the President, a head of state, king or queen, etc. I would appreciate an answer at your convenience.

A: When a toast is proposed to anyone, all rise except the person who is being toasted.

Q: As a student at a small college, the following question has come up and I am submitting it to you for the correct answer.

On occasion we have a well-known speaker come to our school to address the student body. The speaker is usually introduced by the dean.

Is it proper for the students to rise and applaud after the speaker is introduced, or do we remain seated and applaud only after he or she has finished speaking?

A: It is courteous for the audience to applaud after the speaker is introduced, but it would be very unusual for them to rise except for a very notable person.

When the speaker has finished talking, the audience, of course, applauds enthusiastically.

Q: Will you please tell me what is correct in the following instance?

A young man and woman are walking down the street together, another man, whom the young woman knows, passes and greets her, tipping his hat.

I say the first man should tip his hat in return. A friend of mine disagrees with me and says it is not necessary for him to do so.

Help Junior Eat His Food

Had trouble with Johnny eating his breakfast cereal lately? Well, here's a charming Swedish Christmas tradition that might turn the tide in your direction . . . According to Swedish legend there is a tiny Santa Claus creature called a "tomte" who lives invisibly on Swedish farms—each farm having its own "tomte."

On Christmas Eve either the mother or the children of the house set a bowl of oatmeal just outside the door and in the morning it is always empty, eaten, of course, by the "tomte." There probably isn't a small boy or girl in all of Sweden who doesn't eat his cereal and his spinach for at least a week after Christmas with that kind of pressure on him.

THIS IS A TEST!

In an effort to evaluate the effectiveness of newspaper advertising, we of Sheldon's Town House have decided to sell our regular $1.05 Fish and Chip Dinner for 69c. This is not a sales gimmick or promotional stunt! This dinner will be sold for carryout or to eat in our dining room.

This dinner will consist of 2 delicious Haddock Fillets, French Fries, Cole Slaw, Hot Garlic Rolls and Tartar Sauce. We are fully aware of the fact that this dinner is far beneath the standard price for this area. However, let us emphasize again that this is a test to determine the value of newspaper advertising and the price and dinner will be exactly as stated and will be served from 11 A.M. to 10 P.M. Friday, February 1st only. There will be people on duty to receive your telephone orders Thursday and Friday from 7 A.M. to 8 P.M., so plan to have a fish dinner Friday and place your order as early as possible so that you may return to your work or play in a short time. To place your order, call MY 3-9970 . . . Sheldon's Town House Restaurant, 4 North Broadway, Lake Orion.

Driver of Blind Is Top Volunteer

Clarence Hutson of 2025 Beverly, Sylvan Village, has been selected Volunteer of the Month by the Women's Division of the Pontiac Area United Fund for his outstanding contribution of volunteer service as a driver for the Motor-Aide Corps of the Pontiac Area United Fund.

Mr. Hutson regularly drives five blind people to braille classes held each Wednesday at the Oakland County Society for Crippled Children.

"Although drivers are usually asked to drive no more than once a week," said Mrs. Robert Hefty, Motor-Aide chairman, "Mr. Hutson calls to inquire if there are any assignments that need to be filled."

A tall, handsome man with a warm smile and a courteous manner, Mr. Hutson is rated "tops" by those he drives regularly.

Mr. Hutson, a widower, retired in 1947 after forty-two years with the U.S. Post Office Department. He first heard of the need for Motor-Aide drivers a year ago.

TO CLASS, TREATMENTS

Since joining the corps last February, Mr. Hutson has made 89 trips for the blind and handicapped, driving them to training classes as well as for medical and therapy treatments.

When asked what prompted him to respond to the appeal for drivers, Mr. Hutson said that it provided him with something to do in his spare time while doing something for others.

When spring comes, Mr. Hutson also will be busy in his yard and garden. He conservatively described the size of his garden to Mrs. Joseph Fox, Women's Division publicity chairman, as "larger than some and smaller than others."

* * *

Mr. Hutson is proud of his 53-year membership in the Royal Order of the Masons, Harmony Lodge No. 8, Urbana, Ohio. He is a member of the Trinity Methodist Church in Keego Harbor. His daughter, Mrs. John Haviland, and two grandsons reside in Orchard Lake.

Mrs. Hefty stated that volteers such as Mr. Hutson have made it possible for the Motor-Aide program to increase its service. During the past year 49 men and women in the Motor-Aide Corps have made a total of 615 trips.

Drivers furnish their own cars and gas. Any qualified driver with two or three spare hours a week can be of service, according to Mrs. Hefty.

All assignments are referred to Mrs. Hefty by professional members of local community agencies to verify the need. Those interested may call the Pontiac Area United Fund for further information.

Cooled Icing Won't Stick

On taking them out of the refrigerator, put aside for a few minutes cakes that are wrapped in waxed paper. You will find that the paper easily comes off the cooled icing.

Next time you give a baby shower, ask the guests to bring their gifts wrapped in baby diapers instead of in paper.

Bake Cake on Lowest Rack

An angel food cake is best baked on the lowest rack of the oven. If placed higher, the top portion will brown too quickly and will cause the cake to test done before it is baked through.

Of Dark Bedroom

Help Child Unlearn Fears

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE 0-446: Terry T., aged 8, has a severe phobia.

"Dr. Crane," his worried mother began, "Terry recently developed a terrible fear of the dark.

"He never used to be afraid of sleeping in his own bedroom with the lights out.

DR. CRANE

"But I guess he heard some horror tales from one of our baby sitters a few months ago.

"Any way, ever since then he has been actually panicky and so tense and fearful at night that he gets sick at his stomach.

"He wants us to leave the light on and his door open when he goes to bed.

"But his daddy ridicules his fears and refuses to leave the light on. So Terry shivers and cries until I don't know what to do.

CONTROLLING EMOTIONS

There is no natural terror of the dark. Such a fear must be learned, as Terry probably acquired his dread from ghost stories told by the babysitter.

But whatever can be learned, can also be unlearned!

Start out by playing the familiar game of hide-and-seek. Let daddy hide, while mother and Terry hunt him.

Soon daddy can hide in Terry's bedroom with the lights on. When mother and Terry find daddy, they should laugh and exude extra enthusiasm and delight.

Later, daddy can hide in Terry's bedroom clothes closet but with the bedroom lights on, and also the closet light on.

Finally, daddy can hide in the closet with its light off but the bedroom lights on. And later, he can even hide in the darkened closet with the closet light off and the bedroom lights off.

MAY TAKE WEEKS

It may take several weeks to "uncondition" fear of the dark, but this is the standard method by which we psychologists urge you parents to free your child from undue terror of the dark.

★ ★ ★

You can profitably employ some logical arguments, too, but logic alone will seldom banish an emotional habit that has developed.

But in line with logic, you can inform your child that God makes the dark to rest our eyes.

It is also a protective blanket which permits many small animals to feed in peace and quiet.

The dark also quiete birds and other noisy creatures that would otherwise keep us awake and make our sleep more fitful.

Remind the child that hens go to roost at dusk, and so do other birds except for a few, such as owls.

Tell your child, too, that there are no such things as ghosts, but many ignorant people still get scared of such imaginary terrors.

By slow degrees you can thus build up a child's courage by associating pleasure with the dark.

To give him more assurance, too, either let him have a brother or sister to share his bedroom or a live puppy or else toy animals, like a wooly lamb or cloth dog which he can cuddle in his arms as a relaxing bedfellow.

For children ascribe animate qualities to such toy creatures and the latter then serve partially in lieu of a brother or sister.

Write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 5 cent stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

Easy Form of Embroidery

Crewelwork is an easy form of embroidery done with a special wool. Once the technique is understood it is easy to do and the effect is striking. Crewel is effective for use in home decoration: on pillows, chairs, curtains, bedspreads. It is also chic and different when used as accents on clothing. Sweaters may be made dressy by the use of crewelwork; skirts can be given a striking accent either at the waist or around the hem.

Polly's Pointers

Converts Tackle Box

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My wife and I both read your column and I suggested this one for her.

She was always looking for her sewing things which seemed to be here, there and everywhere, so I took my fishing tackle box, painted and decorated it with flower transfers.

This makes one of the handiest sewing boxes she has used. I equipped the top tray with scissors, a colorful felt pad for needles and pins and added her thimble, thread and so on.

The bottom section is used for darning wool, patching material and a small box for buttons. So here is my pointer sent in for the gals from a rare male. ED

DEAR POLLY — When pressing drapes, I find it easier if they are done on the living room rug with a clean sheet under them. An extension cord will permit you to move the iron up and down the drapes with ease. MRS. D. D.

DEAR POLLY — Glue a piece of felt or flannel on the inside of your hat box lid as a handy place to keep hat pins. Hats and matching pins are always together when needed.

Use a penny sucker as a tongue depressor when checking a child's sore throat and the child will be a willing patient. MRS. R. A. S.

DEAR POLLY — When or before your start to knit with two balls of wool, run the ends through paper straws to prevent tangles. MRS. H. V. E.

GIRLS — If an idea appears in the column that is the same as the one you sent in, please do not be annoyed, for the other reader's letter had an earlier postmark than yours. We often receive many duplicates of the same hint. Do keep sending these wonderful suggestions. We all appreciate them and I only wish each and every one could hit the Polly Dollar mark. POLLY

Share your favorite homemaking ideas . . . send them to Polly in care of The Pontiac Press. You'll receive a bright, new silver dollar if Polly uses your idea in Polly's Pointers.

Elimination Is Secret for Being Chic

Audrey Hepburn, starring with William Holden is "Paris When It Sizzles," is a perennial style leader and fashion setter who is always topping the Best Dressed List. Miss Hepburn has a few well chosen words of advice for those women who would like to emulate her and other smartly-dressed women of the world.

"Elimination is the secret of chic!" she says.

Audrey puts the words to the deed and with a surprisingly small wardrobe for a personality of her magnitude, keeps her things simple in cut and line and color and carefully avoids those "little extras" which can kill even the most expensive outfit.

Audrey advises women to "stay away from too much or too large jewelry. If you have just one set of earrings or one small string of pearls you have an adequate jewelry wardrobe. You can become identified with one small gold pin and you become chic when it is worn, even by itself, every day."

Moving Requires Tricky Packing

By MARGERY McELHENY

CHICAGO (UPI) — It's the small, rarely used article, not the large piece of furniture, that causes trouble when you move. This will be discovered by some 40 million people who move in the next year.

The reason: "settling in" creates even bigger headaches than getting packed and it's the little things that cause problems at unpacking time.

Take these steps to make the job easier:

— Lighten the load at both ends of the trip by getting rid of unused possessions. Follow the "two-year rule" and discard, or give away, anything that hasn't been used, cleaned, inspected or worn for two years.

But don't be too ruthless with the children's battered toys. Youngsters need some reminders of the first home to help them adjust to their new environment.

— Take inventory of what you have and the storage space available in your new home. Use the tape measure to find out whether your linens will fit into the linen closet or the books into the built-in book cases.

You have to know the approximate dimensions and volume of various types of articles to determine how much shelf or drawer space must be allotted to them.

— Plan to store things at point of use. This means keeping laundry supplies near the washer, potholders near the kitchen stove and umbrellas in the coat closet.

— Check to see if your new cupboards have adjustable shelves so you can change them to accommodate tall books, bottles, pitchers and the like or to eliminate waste space above short or flat articles.

About Reducing, Beauty

Old Wives' Tales Remain

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

There are many "old wives' tales" concerning reducing and beauty care still floating about. It seems impossible to blast these out of the feminine mind.

Some of these stories remain because they suggest an easy way to lose weight and others linger on because of misunderstood experience.

Among the former are such ideas as: "You will lose weight if you drink lemon juice or you will lose weight if you stand up for 20 minutes after each meal."

It's a comforting idea that you can gulp lemon juice and stand up for a few minutes after eating and watch the pounds drop away, but it is not true.

The idea that cutting hair will make it grow faster and come in thicker belongs to the misunderstood experience group of old wives' tales. Facial hair is apt to increase at middle age.

Around the time of menopause, some women notice new dark facial hairs. They remove the hairs with a tweezer and when the growth increases (as it would have anyway) they blame it on the cutting.

Electrolysis is the only method of permanent hair removal. Often women feel that these treatments have been unsuccessful because the growth of facial hair continues.

There is no scientific evidence that shaving the legs increases the rate of growth and thickness of the hairs. Actually, the only living part of the hair is beneath the skin.

Neither is there any truth in the idea that cutting the hair on your head will make it grow faster and thicker.

Not only is lemon juice sour to drink—its effect on weight reduction is sour, too. Drinking lemon juice will not cause you to lose weight.

If you would like to have my leaflet, "Superfluous Hair," send a 5-cent stamped, self - adressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 53. Address Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press.

Cooked Potatoes Given Unusual Treatment

BY JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

Today's recipe is for an unusual potato dish. It comes from Mrs. David Ligon who says it is an old family recipe. When we talked with Mrs. Ligon early this month, she told us she had a new baby and a little girl just over a year old.

Mrs. Ligon had called us earlier to ask about freezing cooked red cabbage. She experimented with it and found it froze very well. She reheated it in the deep well cooker of her stove.

QUAK-COILSHUN
(Potato Patties)
By Mrs. David Ligon

4 cooked potatoes
1 cup cheese
½ cup raisins
1 egg
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt

Put potatoes and cheese through a food chopper. Add rest of ingredients and shape into 3-inch cakes.

Brown in hot fat. Serve with apple sauce or melted butter and cinnamon and sugar.

Keep All Those Diamonds Clean

To retain the sparkle of diamonds, immerse the stones for five minutes in warm water, soap and one tablespoon of ammonia to two cups of water. Brush them lightly with a toothbrush. Rinse in clear, fairly warm water, then dip them in alcohol and drain on a soft tissue until completely dry.

Remove Mark From Vinyls

To remove crayon or pencil marks from vinyl surfaces, dampen a soft cloth with lighter fluid and rub marks lightly. They come off easily, with no damage to the vinyl.

Memories of Battle at Stalingrad Linger 20 Years After

(Editor's Note—Eddy Gilmore has returned to Russia, to see some of the areas he covered as a Pulitzer Prize correspondent in the years 1941-53.)

By EDDY GILMORE

STALINGRAD (VOLGOGRAD), U.S.S.R. (AP) —Twenty years ago today, weary, frostbitten and half-starved units of Hitler's once unbeatable army surrendered in the bloodstained ruins of Stalingrad.

The capitulation of the once proud Wehrmacht was a great turning point in the most terrible war in history.

For the Soviet army, it was the supreme victory.

For a large part of the free world—staggered by an almost unbroken series of Nazi and Japanese victories—it was the moment when Allied victory became more than a hopeful dream.

In a message to the defenders of this city on the high west bank of the Volga River, President Franklin D. Roosevelt said:

"Your courage fortitude and devotion during the siege of Sept. 13, 1942 to Jan. 31, 1943 will inspire forever the hearts of all free people."

Said Britain's wartime leader, Sir Winston Churchill:

DEJECTED GERMAN

Within that house, in understandable dejection, sat Friedrich von Paulus.

A tall, gaunt soldier of the old German army, Von Paulus had commanded Hitler's broken legions, encircled in a temperature of 37 below zero at Stalingrad.

Only a matter of hours before Von Paulus gave up, Hitler made him a field marshal and added, in what must be one of the most hopeless and desperate messages of war:

"Never in history has a German field marshal surrendered."

With Soviet artillery pounding the German positions and disaster as apparent as the Russian winter, Von Paulus had turned to his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Schmidt, and asked:

"In God's name," replied Schmidt, "Send for the Russians."

He did and surrendered.

By Feb. 2, the last German soldier had surrendered at Stalingrad.

I can't remember the exact date but it must have been just after this that soldiers of Soviet General Chuikov, one of the victors of Stalingrad, led us to Paulus' wooden house. After six or eight minutes, the door opened.

STREAM TO PRISON

Over to one side of the house, an unending stream of German prisoners straggled silently down the short west bank of the Volga and across the ice and a timber bridge to prison camps.

The field marshal gave his men a long, dismal look. Then his gaze slowly turned to us.

One of us who spoke German began what we hoped would be an interview:

"What is your name?"

"Von Paulus," he replied in a flat voice utterly without emotion.

"Why for so long did you refuse to surrender?" someone asked.

At that the muscles in the field marshal's face tightened and his eyes narrowed, but he made no reply.

Instead, he turned around and, without a gesture or a word, went back inside the house.

A Soviet officer shrugged and said:

"He isn't the talkative type."

With Soviet escorts, we toured the ruins of this city. One point of interest was a battered building which had come to be known as Pavlov's house.

Against the dirty snow, the wrecked tanks, the abandoned German materiel of war, the masses of icy rubble, Pavlov's house stood out like a single tooth in an aged peasant's mouth.

As the Soviets related it, Sgt. J. J. Pavlov and three other soldiers had somehow held out against night and day attacks through 58 days of sheer hell, from Sept. 27 to Nov. 14.

HOUSE IMPORTANT

The house, dominating a square, was strategically important.

All over Russia he was referred to as the house manager.

Better than anything else, perhaps, this act exemplified the patriotism of the Soviet people in World War II.

Today, 20 years after, you hardly would know Stalingrad was a city in which the Germans lost over 132,000 men and where 123,000 were captured, a city in which men fought hand to hand, from building, from room to room.

It has been rebuilt greatly and parks — welcome when the hot winds blow up from the south in summer—cover most of the city battlefield.

★ ★ ★

An old apartment house and an old factory are preserved as national monuments to the battle that helped turn the tide of World War II.

FIGURED IN COMMITTEE

A year after his surrender, Von Paulus figured as the chief name in a new Soviet-sponsored "Free Germany Committee." Many former German officers in it became prominent in organizing Communist East Germany.

But Von Paulus apparently spent most of his time in a camp near Moscow until 1953, when he returned to East Germany. He once told newsmen he was making his living writing. But no book by him was ever published in East Germany. He died there of a stroke in February 1957.

In recent years articles in the Soviet press have built up Soviet Premier Khrushchev as the architect of the victory at Stalingrad. In Khrushchev's de-Stalinization campaign the city that was the scene of the great battle was renamed Volgograd.

Bread's a Real Winner; Rolls, Too

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

Do you know what Mrs. Charles Pylman baked first in the new electric range she won at last week's cooking school? Bread. Best of all, she brought us a loaf. It's delicious.

Anoter reader called to ask for bread and rolls. Maybe she will find what she wants today. We'll give you another assortment next week.

Buttermilk bread has long been a favorite at our house. The loaf is so white and so even textured it makes excellent toast.

Try having a loaf ready when the youngsters come home from school. What a treat! Father will enjoy it later on at dinner time. Then you'll have some left for breakfast tomorrow.

GOLDEN BUTTERHORNS

BUTTERMILK BREAD

1 cup buttermilk
3 tablespoons sugar
2½ teaspoons salt
1-3 cup shortening
1 cup warm water (not hot —110 to 115 degrees)
1 package active dry yeast
5½ to 5¾ cups unsifted flour
¼ teaspoon soda

To measure flour, dip nested dry measuring cups into flour, level off with straight-edged spatula.

Scald buttermilk. Stir in sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Sprinkle yeast over warm water in mixing bowl. Stir to dissolve.

Add milk mixture. Add 3 cups flour, soda. Beat until smooth. Add enough remaining flour to handle easily.

Turn onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, about 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, greased side up.

Cover with cloth and let rise in warm place (85 degrees) until double, about one hour, or until impression remains when touched gently with finger. (If kitchen is cool, place dough on a rack over a bowl of hot water and cover completely with a towel.)

Punch down, round up and let rest 15 minutes on lightly floured cloth-covered board. Cut in half. Flatten each piece into an oblong, 9x7x1 inch.

Place sealed side down in two greased loaf pans, 8½x4½x2¾ inches. Cover. Let rise in warm place (85 degrees) until center is slightly higher than pan, about one hour. Heat oven to 400 degrees (moderately hot). Bake 35 to 45 minutes, or until well browned and sounds hollow when tapped. Makes two loaves.

★ ★ ★

Crisp tender rolls make any meal a feast. Flaky little butterhorns are made from refrigerator dough. You can keep the dough up to a week, but it's better when used sooner than that.

BUTTERHORNS

2 packages yeast, compressed or dry
½ cup water (lukewarm for compressed yeast, warm for dry)
1½ cups milk
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
¼ cup shortening
5½ cups sifted enriched flour (about)
2 eggs

Soften yeast in water. Scald milk. Add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Add two cups flour. Beat well. Add softened yeast and eggs. Mix well. Add enough more flour to make soft dough.

★ ★ ★

Turn out on lightly floured board or pastry cloth and knead until smooth and satiny. Place in lightly greased bowl, cover and put into refrigerator or let rise in warm place until doubled (about 1½ hours).

When light, punch down. Let rest 10 minutes. Shape the desired amount of dough into rolls and let rise until doubled (about 45 minutes).

Form remaining dough into smooth ball. Grease surface lightly, cover and put into refrigerator. If dough rises in refrigerator, punch it down.

When wanted, remove dough from refrigerator and punch down. Mold at once in any desired shape. Or, if preferred, let dough stand in warm room for an hour before molding.

To make butterhorns, roll 1-3 of dough into circular shape about ¼ inch thick. Cut in pie-shaped pieces. Brush with melted butter or margarine and roll up, beginning at wide end.

Place on greased baking sheet and let rise until doubled (about 45 minutes). Bake in mderately hot oven (400 degrees) 15 to 20 minutes. Makes about 2½ dozen rolls.

Sweet rolls always make a hit at breakfast. We often make them after dinner at night and serve them hot for a late evening snack. Then they're ready to be heated the next morning for breakfast.

ORANGE ROLLS

1 package yeast, compressed or dry
¼ cup water (lukewarm for compressed yeast, warm for dry)
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup melted shortening
3 cups sifted enriched flour (about)
1 egg
1 tablespoon shredded orange rind
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

ORANGE SUGAR

¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon shredded orange rind

Soften yeast in water. To orange juice add sugar, salt and shortening. Add 1 cup flour and beat well.

Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled (about two hours). When light, punch down. Let rest 10 minutes.

Roll out to rectangle 12x18 inches. Brush with melted butter or margarine and sprinkle with Orange Sugar. Fold over in thirds to form rectangle 12x6 inches.

With sharp knife cut into strips ¾ inch wide and 6 inches long. Roll ends of each strip in opposite directions and bring together to form circle.

Seal ends and place on greased baking sheet. Let rise until doubled (about 45 minutes). Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 15 to 20 minutes.

Bake Cabbage Shreds With Cheese Sauce

Cover with a rich cheese sauce and top with chopped or slivered almonds. Bake in moderate oven about 15 minutes.

Tastier Potato Pancakes

Pineapple Goes Into Bean Salad

This exciting new pineapple salad has all the flavor and personality of San Francisco's bustling North Beach. A colorful trio of beans—kidney, lima and green—mingle with the golden pineapple chunks, green pepper and celery slices several hours before serving. Then a piquant sweet sour dressing made with pineapple syrup and accented with dill is gently tossed with the fruit and vegetables.

North Beach Pineapple 'n' Bean Salad

- 1 (14-ounce) can pineapple shunks
- 1 (1-pound) can red kidney beans
- 1 (10-ounce) package frozen lima beans
- 1 (9-ounce) package frozen cut green beans
- 1 green pepper
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- ¼ cup wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon dry mustard
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon dried dill
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- ¼ cup olive oil

Drain pineapple, reserving syrup, and kidney beans well; turn into large bowl. Parboil lima and green beans just until barely tender. Drain well and turn into bowl.

Remove stem and seeds from green pepper; cut into small chunks. Add, along with celery, to pineapple and beans. Cover and chill several hours.

Blend ½ cup pineapple syrup, cornstarch, vinegar, mustard, pepper, dill sugar and salt together in small saucepan. Cook and stir over moderate heat until mixture thickens, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; beat in oil. Cover and chill.

Instant Candy

Quick and nutty: melt a 6-ounce package of semi-sweet chocolate pieces over hot (not boiling) water, then stir in about ¾ cup salted peanuts. Turn into a small pan and chill before breaking into pieces.

Date Nut Squares Always Good

You can serve this sweet fresh from the oven with whipped cream; or you can store it a few days in a tightly covered container and offer it as cookie bars.

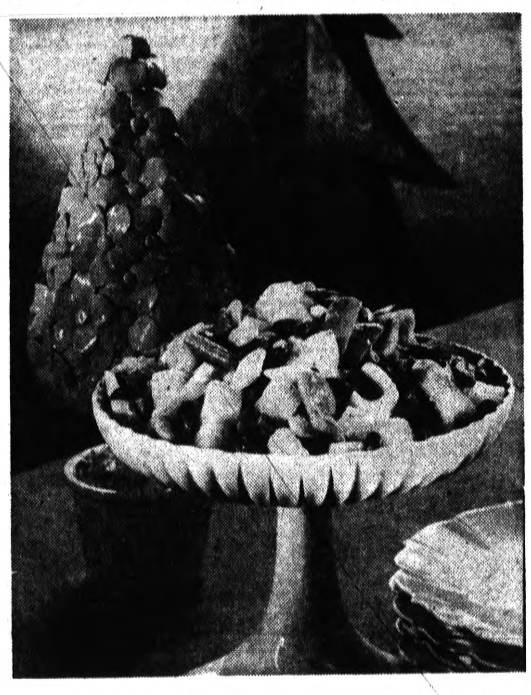
Date Pecan Squares

- 1 cup sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1 package (8 ounces) pitted dates (finely cut)
- 1 cup pecans (coarsely chopped)

Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Beat eggs until thick and ivory colored; beat in the vanilla, then gradually the sugar. Fold in the sifted dry ingredients, dates and pecans. Turn into a 9-inch square baking pan.

Bake in a moderate (350 degrees oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean —45 minutes. Cool in pan; cut into squares; remove with spatula.

Ever slice par-boiled sweet potatoes thin and fry in a generous amount of fat in a skillet?



PINEAPPLE 'N' BEANS — A variation on the popular bean salad with a sweet sour dressing is one that has chunks of golden pineapple added to it. For an unusual accent add a bit of dill.

Everest Experimenters Test New Foods, Containers

This may never happen in the ordinary kitchen, unless the husband is an astronaut. It is a kitchen "nightmare," now tamed by food and packaging experts and destined to make home food preparation easier in the not too distant future.

Prepare complete and tasty dinners such as "fresh" shrimp curry with rice, or "fresh" chicken with all the trimmings from soup to pudding— and do it nine months before the eating, with no refrigerator.

It's already being done by the 1963 American Mt. Everest Expedition, first United States-led group to tackle the world's highest peak in far-off Nepal.

The big test, after successful field trials on Mt. Rainier in western Washington state, is an unbelievable 15,000 of these full course "box lunches" on one huge order.

They are being eaten by hungry U.S. scientist - climbers this winter and spring in the steaming jungles of Nepal near the Red China border and on Mt. Everest nearly five miles straight up.

Special new foods in tough "paper box" containers, some of which are expected to become familiar to astronauts in coming years, started arriving in Seattle, Wash., as early as Sept. 15 for the huge meal preparation job. The latest freeze-dried and "instant" foods are the expedition's staples, along with canned delicacies.

The 20 United States scientist-climbers, who expect to reach the top of the world in May or June, will be the first mountaineers ever to eat like credit-card guests of a plush restaurant.

And many of their new food and packaging techniques will make the American housewife's kitchen chores much easier in the near future, according to the expedition's packaging consultant.

He is Robert O. Lee of Portland, Ore., an official of one of the expedition's backers, Georgia-Pacific Corp., which made the unusual paperboard boxes to protect food and scientific supplies from extreme heat and cold, moisture and rough handling for a 12,000-mile trip half way around the world.

Lee, who led the 1961 American climbing expedition on Mt. Talung near Mt. Everest, predicts that the current tests with special foods and tough, lightweight containers "could revolutionize many time-honored concepts of food processing and handling."

All 13 tons of food, plus 5 tons of scientific and mountaineering equipment, have been leading a tough life in recent weeks.

The six-week ocean trip to hot and humid Calcutta started Dec. 15 when menu selection and packing was completed. After a plane trip from Calcutta to Kathmandu, capital of Nepal, comes the tough 180-mile jungle haul on the backs of native porters to the base of Mt. Everest.

Then the real climbing starts — and extra ounces of weight seem like pounds.

Among the most intriguing new foods are freeze-dried chicken, shrimp, pork chops, corn, spinach, meat bars and even hamburger that taste fresh and delicious when water is added to the dehydrated, almost weightless servings. Featherweight containers were needed to take advantage of this weightlessnes.

Food and containers were tested on an extended Mt. Rainier climb in western Washington state, staged by expedition members late in 1962 with Georgia - Pacific observers.

Food collected from many parts of the United States is for the 20 scientist-climbers, plus 32 Nepalese Sherpa high - altitude porters and climbers.

The latter group will live comfortably on local foods purchased in Nepal, but potentially dangerous to American stomachs.

See Canadian Blast at U.S. Censure

OTTAWA (AP) — Informed political sources predicted today that Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's conservative government will try to regain its parliamentary majority by rejecting U. S. government criticism of Canada's failure to arm with nuclear weapons.

With a general election expected by spring, political observers looked for a revival of Diefenbaker's successful 1958 Canada first campaign, which gave the conservatives a landslide victory. They lost their majority last June, although remaining the largest party in the House of Commons.

Conservative campaigners are expected to demand of the electorate: "How do you like the United States telling us what we should do?"

The U. S. State Department criticism yesterday found Diefenbaker's government already under heavy fire from opponents in Commons for its hesitancy in reaching a concrete decision on nuclear warheads for its Bomarc missiles in Canada and its bombers flying for NATO in Europe.

The State Department in effect contradicted Diefenbaker and Defense Minister Douglas Harkness on a number of key points they had made in Commons.

People of all political persuasions in Ottawa generally felt the State Department went too far. The statement was issued while Diefenbaker was flying to Toronto for a speech, and he said on arrival he had no knowledge of the U. S. action.

'BOMB SHELL'

The Social Credit party leader, Robert Thompson, called the American statement "a bombshell to say the least—it could be the spark to topple the government."

Lester B. Pearson, chief of the Liberals, the biggest opposition party, said he found it surprising that the United States should issue such a statement. But he blamed it on what he said were conflicting versions of defense policy given by Diefenbaker and Defense Minister Douglas Harkness in the Commons debate last week.

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic party, said he was shocked by the U.S. statement and demanded an emergency debate in Commons.

"It's rather extraordinary procedure for the government of another country to issue a statement which in effect corrects the statement made by the prime minister of Canada," Douglas said.

Diefenbaker's Conservative party lost its majority in Commons in the general election last June, winning 115 of the 265 seats. An election this spring has appeared certain, and here was considerable feeling that the U.S. intervention might hurry it. The U.S. statement seemed likely to make nuclear defense a major issue.

★ ★ ★

Basically, the opposition parties — the Liberals, Social Credit and the New Democrats — are opposed to arming Canada with nuclear weapons. Pearson, however, has said that since Diefenbaker committed Canada to them some time ago, he should honor the commitment and then negotiate out of the nuclear role.

DEFINITE POLICY

Diefenbaker told Commons last Friday that his government has "a definite policy" for accepting nuclear arms under certain terms but that he did not see how Canada's joining the nuclear family would help the West's deterrent capacity. He said his government would hold up a decision on nuclear warheads until the meeting here in May of the NATO council of ministers.

The view here was that U.S. patience—after several months of talks with the Canadians—had run out. Diplomats said the Kennedy administration appeared well aware that its criticism could stir up anti-American reaction. But they said the administration was prepared to take this risk to get across its point that Canada must take a bigger part in North American defense.

The prime minister refused to comment on the U.S. statement Wednesday night. He was expected to discuss it at a regular cabinet meeting today.

The United States claims that Canada's Bomarc missile bases at North Bay, Ont., and at La Macaza, Que., could serve the double purpose of protecting Montreal and Toronto and bolstering the U.S. Air Force Strategic Air Command.

Diefenbaker had said the Bomarc missile was not designed to protect Canada but to strengthen the Strategic Air Command.

Staebler Hits Governor as 'One-Sided'

Romney Defends 'Truth' Statement

LANSING (AP) — Gov. George Romney has run up against the problem that working newsmen live with every day—the obligation to report "the truth," and to space it from that which is merely "interpretation."

The topic came up yesterday as the governor engaged in a long-distance exchange of volleys with Rep. Neil Staebler, D-Mich., over the state's proposed new constitution.

★ ★ ★

In a published report from Washington, Staebler raked the governor for having told the Michigan Press Association here Saturday that he didn't believe the press "has the responsibility to give equal space to things that are not so."

Romney made the remark while taking Democrats and other foes of the proposed new document to task for "half-truths, distortions, misrepresentations and misunderstanding."

Staebler accused Romney of seeking to promote himself politically, having a "do it my way or else" approach and added that something is not necessarily true just because Romney says it is.

"Who is to say what is not so?" asked the congressman. "Romney? He feels anyone who disagrees with advocacy of the proposed constitution is in error . . .

"He is saying that these people who oppose the proposed constitution should not be heard."

DENIES CHARGE

In a response to Staebler's criticism, the governor denied that he seeks to impose his viewpoint on the unwilling or to silence opponents.

"There's nothing in which I believe more fervently than the right of individuals to make their own free choice and decisions," he said.

Romney repeated his contention that newsmen should obligate themselves to expose the "distortions and half-truths" which he claims constitution foes are using in their campaign.

"The question is whether the obligation of balanced reporting in a free press includes giving just as much space to things that the writer knows aren't true (as to those which he knows are true)."

He added that he wouldn't try to tell newsmen how to do this, however, because they know more about dealing with it than he does.

CITES COMMENTS

Romney cited some of Staebler's own published comments on the constitution as examples of what he was objecting to, including the congressman's statement that the new document would weaken the power of the administration, increase that of the legislature and thereby make worse an impasse between the two.

"This is just not so," said Romney. "The new constitution increases the executive responsibility of the governor and improves the traditional balance between the legislative, judicial and executive branches of government."

"The opponents of the constitution say it would lessen the protection for the people," he went on. "But it allows for court appeals and legislative review of decisions by state administrators, and I believe this increases the protection for the people."

Romney also told newsmen he believed all organizations opposing the new constitution, which will be voted on in April, are "special interest groups."

"I've looked for one that isn't," he said, "but I haven't found it."

He said some of the groups which support the new document, by the same token, also are doing so for "special interest."

Cook Apple Slices to Eat With Pork

Remember the dinners at Grandma's house? Everyone sat around the big table for a hearty meal with all the trimmings.

One of those "trimmings" Grandma liked to serve with her pork roast was apple slices. She would cook them in a frying pan with butter, sugar and lemon rind. Perhaps she would add a touch of spice.

Next time you're serving roast pork, please your family with your version of Grandma's Apple Slices. The flavor blends perfectly with the meat.

Pork Loin Roast—
Grandma's Apple Slices

4 to 6-pound pork loin roast
Salt and pepper
Grandma's Apple Slices

Have backbone removed from loin. Season. Place fat side up on rack in open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb reaches center of thickest part. Be careful that thermometer does not rest in fat or on bone. Do not add water. Do not cover.

Roast in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until meat thermometer registers 185 degrees F. Allow about 35 to 40 minutes per pound for roasting. Serve with Grandma's Apple Slices.

Grandma's Apple Slices

6 cups sliced, unpeeled apples
2 tablespoons white sugar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
3 tablespoons butter or margarine

Combine apples, sugars, salt and lemon rind. Melt butter or margarine in large frying-pan. Add apple mixture and cook, stirring occasionally, until apples are tender, about 5 to 10 minutes. 6 to 8 servings.

Let Guests Assemble Their Salmon Salad

Attractive and time saving is a serve yourself salmon salad plate. Open both ends of a can of chilled salmon; gently slip from can. Place drained salmon on a bed of crisp lettuce on a salad platter.

Use Up Cheese

Odds and ends of several soft-type cheeses in the refrigerator? Mix them together thoroughly, shape into a pattie form and chill. Roll in chopped walnuts or pecans, patting the nuts into the surface, and serve with crackers at snacktime.

Mixed Grill Is Ever Popular

Beef patties, broiled to a rich, appetizing brown hue, can be served with pride at any meal. One can give them a touch of style by wrapping each patty in a bacon strip. The bacon helps the patties hold their shape and adds its own flavor to the meat.

A mixed grill of beef patties and vegetables is appetizing in appearance as well as satisfying. It makes any meal a bit festive.

Quickly cooked vegetables, such as tomatoes, are good with beef patties, or cooked vegetables, for instance potatoes or carrots, may be reheated as part of a mixed grill.

BEEF PATTIES

Set regulator for broiling. Place patties on broiler rack. Insert broiler pan and rack so that the top surface of the patties is about 3 inches from the heat. Broil on one side until browned, 8 to 10 minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

Turn patties and place tomato halves, cut side up, on the broiler rack with the meat. Continue broiling until patties are browned and tomatoes are cooked, about 8 minutes. Season.

★ ★ ★

A tossed salad of green vegetables or a mixed fruit salad makes a good accompaniment. This is a substantial menu for a special luncheon and with the addition of another vegetable is hearty enough for dinner.

Do Try to Obtain Special Ginger

Mandarin Fruit Cup

3 small grapefruit
1 can (11 ounces) Mandarin oranges
Crystallized ginger or maraschino cherries

Pare grapefruit so no white membrane remains; cut sections away from dividing membranes. Mix grapefruit sections and oranges, including syrup. Chill. Garnish with slivered ginger or cherries; if cherries are used, some of the cherry juice may be added to the fruit cup. Makes 6 servings.

GROUND MEAT — Beef patties are given a touch of elegance when wrapped in bacon strips and served with broiled tomato halves. Mixed fruit salad is also a menu item.

Different Crust for Dumplings

Good Apple Dumplings

Bran Pastry (recipe below)
6 medium apples (pared and cored)
6 tablespoons plus ½ cup light brown sugar
1 teaspoon plus 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup boiling water

Roll out bran pastry into a rectangle (18 by 12 inches); cut into six 6-inch squares; place an apple in center of each. Fill core cavities with a mixture of 6 tablespoons brown sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg; dot with 1 teaspoon butter.

Moisten edges of pastry with water; bring together opposite corners of each square and seal; prick pastry well with a fork. Place in a baking dish (11¾ by 7½ by 1¾ inches). Bake in a very hot (450 degrees) oven 15 minutes.

Dissolve ½ cup brown sugar and 2 tablespoons butter in boiling water; pour a little of it over dumplings. Reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees) and bake 45 minutes, pouring portions of the remaining syrup over dumplings at 15-minute intervals. Serve warm.

Bran Pastry: Crush ¼ cup ready-to-eat bran cereal into fine crumbs and mix with 1½ cups flour and ½ teaspoon salt; cut in ½ cup shortening; stir in about 4 tablespoons water.

Cook Pintos, Ham Bone for Flavor

Island Beans

1 package (1 pound) pinto beans (2 to 2¼ cups)
Water
1 bay leaf
1 ham bone
½ cup olive oil
2 medium onions (peeled and chopped)
1 large green pepper (chopped)
2 cloves garlic (minced)
Salt and freshly ground pepper

Rinse beans; add 6 cups water and soak overnight. Drain and turn into a kettle with 6 cups fresh water, the bay leaf and ham bone. Bring to a boil; cover and simmer, adding water as necessary to keep beans well covered, until tender—about 2 hours.

Remove bay leaf and ham bone. Dice any meat on ham bone and return meat to beans. Drain beans; use liquid in a soup.

Cook onions, green pepper and garlic in hot olive oil in a skillet until onions are yellowed; add to beans with salt and pepper to taste. Reheat over boiling water.

Serve over steamed rice with a topping of minced mild sweet onion. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Scone Crust Is Berry Topper

Quick Blueberry Pudding has old-fashioned goodness updated by using frozen blueberries. Top each warm serving generously with cream or ice cream for a perfect ending to a family meal.

Quick Blueberry Pudding

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups drained frozen blueberries (two 12-ounce packages) or 1 pint fresh blueberries
¾ cup sugar
2 cups sifted enriched flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
1 egg, beaten
¾ to 1 cup milk

Melt butter or margarine in 8-inch square pan. Mix blueberries and ¾ cup sugar and turn into pan. Spread evenly.

Sift together flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, baking powder and salt. Cut or rub in shortening until mixture is crumbly. Combine egg and ¾ cup milk. Add liquid to flour mixture and stir only until flour is moistened. Add more milk, if necessary, to make a stiff batter.

Spread batter evenly over blueberries. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees) 45 to 50 minutes. Serve warm or cold with cream or vanilla ice cream, if desired.

Makes one 8-inch scone pudding, 6 servings.

If self-rising flour is used, omit baking powder and salt.

Here's a Favorite Cake Back Again

An odd recipe, but it tastes okay! Cooks remain interested in it, so here's a new version.

Tomato Spice Cake

2 cups flour

1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon each nutmeg, cloves and allspice
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 egg (well beaten)
½ cup vegetable oil
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup raisins

Sift together the flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and spices. Stir baking soda into tomato sauce and add to sifted dry ingredients with egg, oil, walnuts and raisins; mix well. Turn into two greased 8-inch layer pans.

Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven for 25 minutes. Turn out and cool. Fill and frost with fluffy white or lemon-butter icing.

Kind of Jam Will Change Taste of Cooky

Jam Cookie Bars

1½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon cloves
½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
1 egg
¼ cup milk
¾ cup very thick jam

Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and cloves. Cream butter and sugar; beat in egg thoroughly, then milk. Gradually stir in sifted dry ingredients until blended.

Turn about half the batter into a buttered pan (7 by 11 by 1½ inches); spread evenly. Carefully spread small spoonfuls of the jam over batter with a small spatula. Spread remaining half of batter over the jam, using the same technique.

Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven 25 minutes. Cool on wire rack; cut into bars and remove with spatula.

Recipe Has Touch of Italian Cook

Parmesan Cauliflower

1 medium head cauliflower
1 cup boiling water
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons olive oil

Remove any large leaves and tough base from cauliflower; break or cut flowerets from center core; wash thoroughly in cold water. Boil rapidly, in a covered saucepan, with the boiling water and salt just until tender—about 8 minutes; drain.

Arrange flowerets in a heated shallow serving dish; sprinkle with Parmesan. Heat olive oil in saucepan and spoon over cheese. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

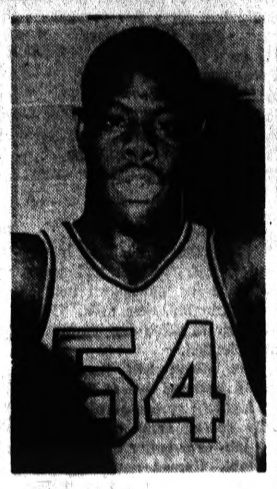
Chiefs Transfer Makes Debut

PCH on Road; PNH, WTHS Home Friday

Central Visits Southwestern in Loop Game

Huron Street Quintet Needs Win to Keep in Contention



BOARD MAN — Big McKinley Jones, 6-2 and 200 pounds, leads Pontiac Central's strength on the boards. Jones has averaged 16 rebounds a game for the Chiefs, who travel to Flint Southwestern Friday night.

Coach Art Van Ryzin has the Chiefs flying high with a four-game win streak that includes 69-49 drubbing of highly touted Saginaw last Friday.

The same Trojans (perhaps somewhat wiser) rebounded Tuesday with a 70-58 over Southwestern on their court. However, Van Ryzin saw the clash and was impressed by the Southwestern team's ability.

"They're a good ball club," he noted. "The game was close until late in second half when Southwestern ran into personal foul trouble."

The PCH mentor was impressed by the Colts' defensive strength and picked out guards Jerry Yarbrough and Steve Braun as solid backcourt men. Center Carl Cmejrek, 6-2, also attracted favorable attention.

COLTS' CYCLE

It is more than just Southwestern's ability that bothers Van Ryzin. The Colts have performed in a consistent pattern this season in their eight games.

They win one and then lose one; and they have not been beaten at home. The scales will be tilted in their favor Friday.

Central has its problems. Forward Gerald Henry is suffering with a leg injury and has seen limited practice time this week. McKinley Jones, rebound specialist, also has missed practice time with a skin irritation.

Reserve center Harry Lawrence will be out two weeks with a knee injury and two other Chiefs — Ernie Pickett and Al Keel — have been defeathered for disciplinary reasons.

The Orange and Black will only have nine players suited up for the Flint trip, and that includes a newcomer who has yet to play one minute in a PCH game.

Chicago transfer student Lester Hardiman will be making his debut, perhaps as a starter in place of the injured Henry. The 6-4 versatile performer is expected to give the state's 12th ranking Class A team in the weekly AP poll some much needed depth for the stretch run.

The Chiefs are in second place in the Saginaw Valley Conference, tied with Saginaw and Flint Central at 5-2. The latter two will play at Flint Friday.

Huskies Meet Walled Lake in I-L Tilt Clash

The Inter-Lakes Conference basketball championship may be decided in the next eight days.

The Huskies (5-0) can take a step toward an early coronation Friday by knocking off Walled Lake (3-2) in the PNH gym. A victory at Farmington (3-2) a week later would clinch a share of the crown.

Should Waterford (2-3) dump Farmington Friday and Southfield (0-5) ambush Walled Lake next week, Northern would be crowned.

The Huskies were stung by the latest AP Class A prep ratings that dumped them from 13th to 18th. Even a 17-point victory over Berkley last week couldn't keep them ahead of on-rushing Pontiac Central.

This will make Walled Lake's bid for an upset doubly tough. The Vikings and PCH are the only teams to give Northern any real trouble in its last seven games.

SKIPPERS HOME

Waterford will be striving to reach the .500 mark in league play.

The Skippers lost a close tussle with Farmington earlier and will have the home court advantage this time.

Aging Sugar Takes Dupas in 10 Rounds

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson still is plodding down that long, long road with an unpopular split decision over Ralph Dupas added to his 23-year record.

"It's disgusting. It makes you want to retire," said Dupas, the stunned loser Wednesday night at the Miami Beach Convention Hall. "I clearly won and didn't get the decision. What can you do to win."

"I was lucky I caught him with that good punch in the seventh round," said Robinson. "But it was a little high. I thought I won but then, I never question the officials' decision either way."

OLD PRO

Robinson, now 42 and a veteran of 167 pro fights dating back to 1940, when Dupas was only 7 years old, was given the votes of referee Billy Reagan, 98-96, and judge Barry Pearlman 97-94. Judge Jim Ruby voted for Dupas 98-94. The AP also had Dupas out front, 98-94.

The crowd of 6,232 that paid $25,558, one of Miami Beach's best fight gates, booed the decision. Most of the newsmen at ringside thought Dupas was the winner.

'M' Warm-Up Cooled by Hot Titans, 83-70

DETROIT (UPI) — The Michigan basketball team "warmed up" for its weekend meeting with arch Big Ten rival Michigan State by shooting a cool 28 per cent from the floor last night.

The result was the Wolverines' third straight loss as the University of Detroit manhandled them, 83-70.

It was not known whether Buntin will be ready for the Spartans Saturday at East Lansing.

Buntin's departure had no effect on the game, however. The Titans were coasting with a 71-60 margin at the time of his injury on the shooting of Dzik and John Scharmm.

However, the Titans broke it open with an 11-point outburst in three minutes, while the Wolverines could muster only two points, and put the contest on ice.

Detroit set the stage for the upset early as the Titans sped to a 14-1 lead in the first five minutes of the game. The Wolveriens didn't score a field goal until the contest was 14 minutes old, when Bob Cantrell finally broke the ice with a basket.

Hurler 'Rolls' Perfect Game

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Minnesota Twins southpaw Jack Kralick, who last August came within a whisker of pitching a perfect game, has realized the feat at last—but in a different sport.

Kralick bowled a perfect 300 game at a bowling alley in suburban Bloomington Tuesday. He was not competing in a league, but had two companions to verify the 300.

Kralick was within two outs of a perfect game victory over Kansas City last Aug. 26 when he walked pinch-hitter George Alusik on a 3-2 count. He retired the next two batters in order, owever, to notch a no-hitter.

Inter-league Play AL 'Straw'—Bavasi

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The argument that inter-league play would develop new baseball fans "is a lot of bunk," says General Manager Buzzie Bavasi of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

At best, Bavasi says, a schedule calling for regular season games between American and National League teams "might have a novelty value for one season."

He says American League proponents of the plan are "reaching for the straws" in their bid for higher attendance and want the National League to help solve their problem.

Bavasi was asked by Herald-Examiner columnist Melvin Durslag to comment on inter-league play in light of renewed discussion of the idea in the Sporting News.

"Big league baseball," Bavasi said, "is not like pro football. We are not one league divided into two divisions. We are two separate leagues. We are competitors and we must keep our individuality.

"Secondly, it is only the American League that leans to inter-league play. Our league voted against it last year, 10-0. The American League never favored it, either, when it had Ruth and Gehrig and DiMaggio and a few others like them. . . .

"Say, for instance, that the Senators played three games a year with each team in the National League. That's a total of 30 games, meaning that the club must cut down on its games with American League teams. For the three they play with the Dodgers, they give up three with the Yankees. So where are they?

"Along with the Dodgers, Giants and Braves, they also must take the Mets, Colts and Cubs. So where are they again?"

Wings Score 6-1 Victory in New York

Veteran Winger Hits Goal Twice to Push Bid for 2nd Place

By The Associated Press

★ ★ ★

Howe, who will be 35 a month from today, continues to show the younger fellows in the league just how it's done. The powerful right winger scored twice and contributed a picture-book assist in the Wings' 6-1 lacing of the Rangers in New York Wednesday night.

MOVE UP

The victory, in the only game played, enabled Detroit to move to within three points of Toronto and Montreal, tied for second, and five points of league-leading Chicago. The fourth-place Wings also pulled away from the fifth-place bulge over New York.

Howe, a four-time scoring leader, collected three points, giving him 49 for the season. This placed him just one point behind the co-leaders, Frank Mahovlich of Toronto and Johnny Bucyk of Boston. Howe moved past Andy Bathgate of the Rangers, who was blanked and dropped to fourth with 48.

Howe's pair of goals, his 23rd and 24th, boosted his 17-season career output to 526. He's just 18 goals away from the all-time record of 544 goals, held by Maurice (The Rocket) Richard, former Canadiens' star.

★ ★ ★

Parker MacDonald, Howe's linemate and an ex-Ranger, also was instrumental in the Detroit success. He whipped in a pair of tallies in less than a 2-minute span in the second period with the score tied 1-1.

TWO GOALS

MacDonald's goals were his 22nd and 23rd and gave him six against New York this season. The Wings have beaten the Rangers six times against two ties and two losses.

Norm Ullman and Val Fonteyne were the other Wings' marksman while Larry Cahan averted a New York shutout.

Ranger goalie Gump Worsley was kept busy with 50 saves. He's turned aside 193 shots in his last four games. Hank Bassen, continuing his formidable goal-tending as Terry Sawchuk's replacement in the Detroit nets, made 32 saves.

LION HITS SLOPES — What happens when a 6-foot-5 and 255 pound pro football player hits the ski slopes? Big Dan LaRose, offensive tackle of the Detroit Lions, made his first attempt at the sport this week at Mt. Holly and the results are evidenced by The Press camera. Coming down the slope, LaRose finds throwing blocks against trees a little tougher (lower photo) than blocking opposing linemen. The tree refused to move.

Pontiac Northern held on to third place in the North Suburban Swim League by scoring a breath-taking 53-52 victory from Southfield in the Huskie pool last night.

In another league meet, Fitzgerald stayed on top of the league with a 3-0 mark by handing Madison its first loss in nine meets of the season, 67-38.

Northern's Carl Cascaddan set a varsity record in the most exciting event of the day as he nudged Southfield's Andy Wilson in the 100 yard breaststroke. Cascaddan's time was 1:07.6 while Wilson came in at 1:07.8.

Cascaddan also was the winner in the 200 individual medley with Rick Johnson coming in second.

Double victories were scored by Bill Jones in the 200 and 400 freestyle events for Ftizgerald while Bill Anderson won the 50 and 100 events.

Take 1 Stroke Lead in Amateur Tourney

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A Canadian amateur and her Savannah, Ga., partner took a one-stroke lead into today's second round of the 72-hole National championship.

Marlene Streit and Hobart Manley, who won the title as a team in 1953, shot 34-37 for a par 71 in the alternate shot tournament Wednesday.

Tied one stroke back were two teams. They were Jean Ashley of Chanute, Kan., and Jack Penrose of Miami Beach and Barbara Fitton of Hamilton, Ohio, and Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N.C.

NFL Looks for Top TV Bid

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The new television contract for the National Football League's title game is expected to result in frantic bidding that will top the old high of $615,000 in the pact that expired with the 1962 game.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Wednesday he would call for bids prior to the spring meetings, the date and site of which have not been set.

As the contract jumped from $200,000 to $615,000 in the last negotiation, a healthy increase is probable, possibly as high as $750,000 for one game.

"I hope for a substantial increase," said Rozelle, who will handle the deal. "Of course, this is a lot of money for one game."

Rozelle said there was no chance of turning over the title game to closed circuit television but admitted there was a possibility of closed circuit telecast in the home area, normally blacked out for title games.

SPRING MEETING

The contract for regular season games runs through 1963. That calls for $4,650,000 a year. The owners will discuss instructions for bidding on a renewal at the spring meeting.

In 1962, the regular season games were carried by one network (CBS) and the title game by another (NBC).

★ ★ ★

The NFL completed its regular business Wednesday. The owners will work out their pre-season exhibition schedules before leaving for home today. Each club will announce its schedule later.

The owners left the Pottsville, Pa., claim to the 1925 title to the spring session after appointing a three-man committee to look into the matter.

Pottsville won the championship but Joe Carr, the league President, took it away and crowned the Chicago Cardinals (now the St. Louis Cardinals) when Pottsville played—and won—a post-season game with the Four Horsemen and the Notre Dame All-Stars. Carr claimed Pottsville invaded the home territory of the Frankford, Pa., Yellow Jackets by playing the game in Philadelphia.

Jack Mara of the New York Giants, Art Rooney of Pittsburgh and Frank McNamee of Philadelphia will check the evidence. The Cardinals, not wishing to be rushed into a matter hanging for 38 years, asked for more time to assemble information.

PLAYOFF BOWL

The league renewed the Playoff Bowl game at Miami's Orange Bowl for one year. The game, played between the second-place teams in the league's Eastern and Sunday following the title game.

One minor rule change will give the offensive team more room to operate in a punting situation inside its own 15. To avoid the chance of the goal posts hindering the punter, the ball will be moved sideways to the hash marks 20 yards from the sidelines.

A proposal to keep the clock running in the last 2 minutes, even in case of injury, if a team had exhausted its legal timeouts was defeated. Another proposal, designed to eliminate the possibility of a safety being scored on a holding penalty in the end zone, was tabled until spring.

Indiana Swimmers Give Only 1 First

BERLIN (AP) — It took the World's best time in the 400-meter individual medley to keep touring Indiana University swimmers from a sweep of an international meet Wednesday.

The only loser was world record holder Ted Stickles, who bettered his listed best time but lost to Germany's Gerhard Hetz. Hetz was timed in 4 minutes, 45.8 seconds to 4:50.1 for Stickles. Neither time will be submitted for world recognition, however, since the meet was held in a 25-meter pool. For world record recognition, a mark must be made in a 50-meter pool. Stickles' listed record for the event is 4:51.0

Tom Stock and Chet Jastremski each scored two victories—Stock winning the 100-meter backstroke in 1:01.6 and the 200-meter backstroke in 2:11.1, and Jastremski taking the 100-meter breaststroke in 1:08.9 and the 200-meter breaststroke in 2:30.0. Larry Schulhof won the 100-meter butterfly in 1:00.1.

Ridan Defeats Kelso, Jaipur

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Ridan, Jaipur and Kelso, three of America's top race horses, met for the first time Wednesday at Hialeah Park and Ridan scored an impressive triumph.

Mrs. Moody Jolly's star ran the 7 furlongs in the excellent time of 1 minute 22 4-5 seconds and was 3¾ lengths in front of George D. Widener's Jaipur at the end.

★ ★ ★

H. O. H. Frelinghuysen's Merry Ruler, an English-bred, finished third and Mrs. Richard C. duPont's Kelso was fourth, with David Shaer's Misty Day completing the field.

Ridan and Jaipur each carried 127 pounds while Kelso was top weighted at 128. Merry Ruler had 117 and Misty Day only 113.

It was the first start of the new year for both Jaipur, 3-year-old champion of 1962, and Kelso, horse of the year in 1960, 1961 and 1962, and both obviously needed the race.

Ex-WMU Pitcher Awaits Season

Rookie Has Hope With Tigers

FLINT—Bob Anderson, whom the Detroit Tigers are counting on heavily in 1963, is confident he can pitch in the American League.

Anderson, the ex-Western Michigan University star, isn't bothered by the transition from the National to American League, he said. He was traded to the Tigers from Chicago Cubs in exchange for Steve Boros, an infielder.

Bob Scheffing tells me there isn't that much difference between the leagues. He pays a of tribute to Mickey Mantle, however," the 26-year-old right-hander said.

Anderson, veteran Tigers Al Kaline and Hank Aguirre, were in Flint to discuss the club's 1963 prospects on their pre-season tour of Michigan cities.

Anderson's role has not been determied, general manager James Campbell said, indicating that manager Scheffing may go with Anderson either as a starter or reliefer.

"Bob worked under Scheffing for three years with the Cubs and we're confident he can help us tremendously. If not, we wouldn't have made the deal for him," Campbell remarked.

The general manager also said the Tigers were not banking on Frank Lary "until we can see if he can pitch this year." Lary was bothered by a sore arm throughout the 1962 season.

"As far as we're concerned, Lary doesn't exist in our minds. If he can pitch, he'll be a plus factor," Campbell said.

STRONGER

Kaline commented that the league would be stronger this year and that "breaks may decide the pennant race. We've made some good trades which should help, particularly getting Gus Triandos and Whitey Herzog from Baltimore. It's too easy to win the pennant on paper in the winter but we'll be in there all the way."

Aguirre drew applause while talking about the enlarged strike zone. He said, "it'll probably help my hitting."

Serious again, Aguirre said he expected the new strike zone to help pitchers since "it'll give us the low pitch when we like to use it in a tight situation."

Campbell, in discussion 'Tiger rookie, mentioned Stanley, a Grand Rapids outfield candidate; Wille Smith, a lefthanded pitcher who was 11-1 in the winter league and Bill Freeham, a catcher signed off the University of Michigan campus.

He also said the Tigers were counting on young pitchers Bill Faul, Doug Gallagher and Howie Koplitz in 1963.

Blackbourn Doing Fine

HOUSTON (AP) — Lisle Blackbourn, 63, former Marquette and Green Bay Packer football coach, underwent surgery in Methodist Hospital Wednesday to correct an abdominal aneurism.

Hospital attendants said Blackbourn was doing fine. They said he was expected to remain in the intensive care unit of the hospital for a few days.

Jackson Asks Okay for Harness Dates

LANSING (UPI) — An attempt to gain dates for a 42-day harness racing season at Northville Downs was on file in the state supreme court today by the Jackson Trotting Association.

★ ★ ★

The association asked the high court to order state racing Commissioner Edgar Hayes to allow it to conduct a harness meeting at the track in Northville instead of the Jackson County fairgrounds.

This was the third consecutive year the association's request was turned down by the racing commissioner.

Association officials said Hayes was ready to approve the application to switch their meet from Jackson to Northville because of inadequate facilities at Jackson, but changed his mind after talking to former governor John B. Swainson.

★ ★ ★

Swainson told Hayes the proposed change should not be allowed because, since the governor lost his office in the November election, "he would no longer have a rostrum from which to defend the decision."

Tough Foes for Contenders

2 Big Tests in W-O

★ ★ ★

Two of the challengers — Bloomfield and Holly—face acid tests Friday. The Barons go to revived Northville and Holly entertains unpredictable Clarkston.

First place West Bloomfield hosts Clarenceville. Brighton goes to Milford.

Northville came to life last week against Clarkston. The Mustangs have been rated a better team than their record shows and apparently jelled against the Wolves.

Coach Ed Weichert's shakeup in the Hills varsity last week paid off with 88 points against Clarenceville. The Barons, however, have been alternating good and poor games and according to this routine it's time for another shaky performance.

★ ★ ★

VERY UNPREDICTABLE

Clarkston is even more unpredictable than Hills. The Wolves have played very well in some games, particularly the night they tripped Holly, but they have stumbled badly in others.

Holly ran into a first class ambush at Milford in its last outing and another defeat may prove too costly to overcome.

West Bloomfield is expected to have easy sledding. The Lakers won handily at Clarenceville in December. A victory over the Trojans coupled with losses by Bloomfield Hills and Holly would leave the Lakers two games ahead of the field.

Milford would be tied for third place instead of battling to stay out of the cellar if the Redskins hadn't lost a close game to Brighton and then been rudely jolted by Clarenceville.

3 Prep Swim Records Set

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Three national prep school swimming records were broken Wednesday as Williston Academy defeated Springfield Technical High School 65-29.

David Tyler III of West Hartford, Conn., set two freestyle records, breaking in each instance a mark set by Steve Rerych of Peekskill, N.Y., Military Academy in 1962.

Tyler was clocked in 49.2 seconds for the 100-yard freestyle, cutting a full second off Rerych's previous high. He posted a time of 1:51.2 for the 200-yard freestyle. Rerych's 200-yard record was 1:54.2.

The other mark was set by William Charbonneau of Northhampton, Mass. He was clocked in 1:06.5 for the 100-yard breaststroke, breaking the record of 1:06.9 held by George Green Jr. of Lawrenceville, N. J., Prep.

Alouettes Remove Moss' Double Hat

MONTREAL (AP)—Perry Moss is out as coach and general manager of Montreal Alouettes, and speculation about the reasons behind his "resignation" ranges all the way from the outright sale of the Eastern Football Conference club to the hiring of Hamilton Tiger-Cats Coach Jim Trimble as Moss' replacement.

★ ★ ★

The announcement of Moss' departure was made Wednesday by Ted Workman, owner and president of the Alouettes. Workman said Moss tendered his resignation at a special meeting of the club's board of directors and that it was accepted "with regret."

He said the sudden move was the result of unspecified policy differences.

"As a coach I knew that some day I would be fired," he said. "I just didn't know the day. I guess this is it."

Cinci-Drake Clash Tops College Card

From Our Wire Services

The University of Cincinnati, moving methodically toward its first unbeaten basketball season in 55 years and an unprecedented third straight NCAA championship, will be out to claim its 34th straight victim when it plays host to Drake tonight.

Second-ranked Loyola of Chicago, boasting a 19-0 record and priming for a possible showdown with top-ranked Cincinnati in the post-season tournament, also is at home against Washington University of St. Louis.

Despite an awesome 15-0 mark this season, Cincinnati still has a long haul to clinch the Missouri Valley Conference championship and thereby earn an automatic bid to compete in the NCAA tourney, which it has won the last two years.

The Bearcats are 4-0 in league play, but can boost this figure against conference foe Drake, which is 7-8 overall. However, St. Louis is still very much in the running for MVC honors with a 4-1 showing and Cincinnati has two games remaining against the Billikens.

KEY GAMES

Cincinnati hasn't completed an unbeaten season since 1907-08. Following tonight's encounter with Drake, the Bearcats will have eight games remaining in regular season play, including a key encounter with St. Louis on Saturday.

Loyola plays a different sort of game than Cincinnati. While the Bearcats rely on stopping their opposition with the nation best defense, the Ramblers try to run the other team off the floor and are averaging just under 100 points a game.

But you can't argue with success and it will take a major upset to prevent Loyola from sweeping its final eight contests and completing an unbeaten campaign.

None of the other top 10 teams are in action tonight.

GAMES LAST NIGHT

In leading games Wednesday night, Wake Forest moved back into a first place tie with Duke in the Atlantic Coast Conference by beating North Carolina State, 79-70; West Virginia romped over Florida, 114-67; and Detroit upset Michigan, 83-70.

Wake Forest, trailing 40-34 at halftime, put on scoring spurts of nine and 11 points in the second half to register its 13th straight home court victory and boost its conference mark to 7-0. The Deacons will meet third-ranked Duke in the first of their two showdowns next Wednesday. Richard Carmichael scored 18 points to pace Wake Forest and Dave Weideman added 17.

Rod Thorn registered 26 points and Jimmy McCormick added 25 as West Virginia broke a two-game losing streak. The Mountaineers opened with a full court zone press and coasted home after building an early 26-5 bulge.

Elsewhere, Manhattan defeated Army, 84-59; Navy stopped Virginia, 78-66; Temple routed Lehigh, 65-33; La Salle edged Delaware, 64-62; Louisiana State outlasted Loyola of New Orleans, 72-69; Louisville toppled Western Kentucky, 81-66; Oklahoma City beat Regis, 79-61; and Houston nipped Texas A&M, 58-57.

Wilt Hits 50 but Celts Win

BOSTON (AP) — It was pretty much the same old story: Big Wilt did the scoring and the Boston Celtics did the winning.

San Francisco's Wilt Chamberlain and Boston's Bill Russell, the top offensive and defensive players in the National Basketball Association, resumed their personal dual Wednesday night.

It was the sixth victory in as many starts against the Warriors this season for the defending champions and increased their division lead to 8½ games.

THREE-PLY

Sam Jones was second high man for the winners with 21 points, while Russell tallied 23 and outrebounded Chamberlain, grabbing 21 off the boards to Wilt's 17. Big Bill also chipped in with eight assists.

West broke a 112-112 deadlock with 20 seconds left in the first game and the Lakers added another two points to the lead before Al Butler was allowed to score untouched in the final second.

The Knickerbockers came up with a good third period and grabbed an 84-76 advantage heading into the final frame. But the Lakers ran nine points in a row, took over the lead and it was a two-point difference one way or the other the rest of the way.

Redskins Hope to Hold Lead

Oak Park is on a honeymoon atop the Oakland A League basketball standings, but this happy phase may come to abrupt halt a week from Friday.

The Redskins are expected to maintain their lofty perch this Friday when they host Avondale. But looming in the future are back-to-back engagements with Troy and Clawson.

Other Oakland A games will be Madison at Clawson and Fitzgerald at Troy.

The Oak Park gym has always been a trouble spot for Avondale. Added is the fact that Oak Park has a talented team

Lake Orion is beginning to roll and it is doubtful if Oxford will be able to stop the Dragons.

Windsor Stable Blaze Destroys Prize Stock

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP)—Fire of unknown origin raged through a stable in suburban Sandwich Township early today killing 10 show horses and causing damage estimated at more than $150,000.

The blaze at the stables of Dr. Alfred Thomas of Detroit was discovered about 1 a.m. by a motorist passing the cement block building 10 miles south of Windsor.

Flames fanned by a light East wind licked through the T-shaped structure before the horses and a prize registered cow in calf could be led to safety.

'Peanuts' Pay Way for Cubs' Coaches

CHICAGO (AP) — The sale of hot dogs, peanuts, other eats, and drinks at Wrigley Field last baseball season more than paid $100,000 freight of the 12-man coaching staff employed by Chicago's managerless Cubs.

Otherwise, the club's direct baseball operations showed a whopping deficit, with total losses at almost one-quarter million.

The figures came out at the annual gathering of stockholders Wednesday. The meeting was conducted by Vice President John Holland. President P. K. Wrigley was in a hospital for a hernia operation. His son, William, a member of the nine-man board of directors, also was absent.

INK RED

The ink was not as red as one might think. The Cubs went into the hole for $902,445 in their direct operations. But they helped fill it with revenue of $662,451, mainly from television-radio and rental from the Chicago Bears football team.

Actually, then, the over-all loss were $239,994.

In 1961, the Cubs showed a profit of $29,166, with the help $410,000 realized in the sale of players in the National League's expansion draft.

To get right down to the nub of things, direct expense for baseball operations was $2,255,157. The money from concessions was $300,008 and gate receipts at home and on the road amounted to $1,052,710.

The Cubs' home attendance was a major league low of 609,802, a decrease of 63,200 from 1961.

"Some recently published articles have indicated that other clubs in the league have expressed concern over the large drop in their 1962 share of the receipts," the Cubs' statement said. "This decline (in Chicago) amounted to $2,000 per club for the entire season, or $220 a game. Of the clubs showing a decrease in 1962, the Cubs' 63,200 was the smallest, with the Milwaukee decline of 334,500 being the largest."

Bradds Gaining in Big 10 Race

OSU Cager Positioned to Challenge Rayl

CHICAGO (AP)—Gary Bradds of Ohio State is closing in strongly on Indiana's Jimmy Rayl in the Big Ten basketball scoring race, statistics showed today.

Rayl, who has played only three conference games, has a 31.3 point average. Bradds in five games has 30.8.

The duel should sharpen in the next few days with Indiana, unbeaten in conference action, host to Northwestern Saturday and traveling to Illinois Monday for a pivotal game in the championship race. Ohio State is at Purdue Saturday but is idle Monday.

From Rayl and Bradds the scoring race tapers off to an average of 25.8 by sophomore Bill Buntin of Michigan. Others in the 20's are Rich Falk, Northwestern, 22.8; Mel Garland, Purdue, 21.7, and Dave Downey, Illinois, 20.0.

The most accurate scorers are Terry Kunze of Minnesota who has hit 66 per cent from the floor, and Indiana's Tom Bolyard at 60.5.

Jo-Jo's Michigan Bell Garner Rec Cage Wins

In another Class D contest, Al Keel hit 25 markers as Neopolitan conquered The Chiefs, 57-45.

The league leading Local No. 594 whipped Town & Country, 62-47, as Bill Campbell hit 16 points and Sammy Cole 15.

Michigan Bell remained a half-game behind the unionmen by pinning a 53-42 defeat on Columbia Avenue Baptist. The churchmen fell two games off the pace by losing their second in two nights.

The winners led 31-20 at halftime but George Ratledge's sharp shooting brought Columbia to only a 42-40 deficit early in the final quarter until it faded before the telephone men's fast break offense. Ratledge finished with 24 points for the game's high mark.

Tonight's action in the city will see Westside Recreation attempt to tie for the Class A lead by defeating Colonial Lumber in a seven o'clock meeting at Madison Junior High School.

In the eight-thirty nightcap, the Pontiac Police team will be after its second upset victory of the week and undisputed possession of third place in the Class C circuit when it meets Michigan Bell.

Lions' Coach Gets Setback

Edwin J. Anderson, general manager of the Lions, told a newsman that Wilson will not get an okay to sit in the NFL sessions. Anderson added that even if the Lions sold some stock to Wilson, it would not in itself qualify Wilson for the NFL meetings.

Wilson reportedly has been seeking a status equal to that of Vince Lombardi, general manager-coach of Green Bay and George Halas, owner-coach of the Chicago Bears.

No. 2 Unfortunate for British Sleds

IGLS, Austria, (AP) — Britain suffered heavy losses in accident-studded workout runs today for the four-man bobsled championships when both British teams crashed and two crewmen were injured.

The United States No. 2 sled also crashed but the crew was not injured.

All three crashes occured on virtually the same spot, a tricky, drawn-out No. 2 curve where the teams, zooming in at top speed, tried to gain valuable seconds by seeking the shortest line of descent.

Britain's No. 2 and three teams also crashed there in Wednesday's qualification runs.

Action Packed Films to Be Shown Saturday

John Jay, famous director and narrator of ski film, will present an action packed colored film of the Alpine World Championships Saturday night at Bloomfield Hills High School at 8:00 p.m.

The championships which were held in Chamonix, France and Zakopane, Poland, were filmed with high speed cameras showing a jumper's spectacular flight and the two mile decent on the slopes of Mt. Blanc.

Snowplow for Brakes

Skiing Tips by Toni Sailer

By TONI SAILER

Your first straight descent — or "Schuss" (German for shot) — should be followed by 20 or 30 more to help you acquire a sense of balance.

To increase your stability, put in such little extras as going down without poles, arms stretched sidewards, lifting one foot and then the other, bending of knees into low crouch (which you'll need at high speeds), and twisting of hips with arms out.

Now you schuss.

But how do you stop?

There are various methods of braking and halting. The basic one is the "Snow Plow." You start by going down straight with skis parallel.

At a given point, you press your heels outward. Thus the rear ends of your skis come apart while the tips stay close together, forming a "V" open in the rear.

The skis rest on their inside edges, producing a braking action which, depending on how hard you press the edges into the snow, slows down your speed and brings you to a halt.

Throughout this process your knees should remain slightly bent and your point of gravity should be in front of you.

Watch out for your ski tips. They should be about two inches apart. Don't cross them or you'll fall.

★ ★ ★

So far you have learned to go down straight. The next thing is "traversing" steep slopes where you don't want to schuss.

Here, another important element comes into the picture: To put your weight onto the proper ski.

This calls for introduction of a new term: "uphill ski" and "downhill ski."

Never forget this: Your weight should always rest on the downhill ski, never on the uphill. Your body leans away from the slope. The steeper the slope, the more your body leans outward.

Otherwise, with your weight on the wrong (uphill) ski and body leaning toward the slope, gravity pulls you the wrong way and the skis slip away from under you.

Now try this: Skis parallel, uphill ski slightly forward, weight on downhill ski, uphill shoulder slightly forward, knees slightly bent. There you go.

Pirates Add Trucks

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates added former Detroit Tiger pitcher Virgil Trucks to their coaching staff Wednesday. Trucks, 43, and a 17-year veteran in the American League, joined the Pirates in 1960 as a batting practice pitcher.

WINNIPEG (AP) — The Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League today announced the signing of Dave Raimey, 195-pound halfback from the University of Michigan. He has been Michigan's leading scorer for two years.

European Skaters Meet

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP)— Some 50,000 are expected to jam Ullevi Stadium here this weekend to watch the Soviet Union and Sweden challenge Norway's supremacy in the European Speedskating Championships.

A record field of 39 from 14 nations will compete in the races Saturday and Sunday that will serve as a dress rehearsal for the world championships in Japan later this year.

Best kickoff return in the Big Ten in 1962 resulted in a 90-yard touchdown dash for Bob Klein of Ohio State against Northwestern.

Player, 3rd, Warns Foes

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)— Harold Kneece and veteran Gardner Dickinson, each with opening rounds of 66, paced the $50,000 Palm Springs Golf Classic today, but a hot Gary Player was close by with 67.

"I hope this doesn't sound like I'm bragging, but I can truthfully say my game right now is the best in my life," said the South African star.

His was the best card of golf's big three. U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus shot a 69 and defending champion Arnold Palmer had to scramble for a par 71 over the Indian Wells course. It is rated one of the easier of the four courses used in the marathon 90-hole tournament.

BACKGROUND OF THE NEWS — SPECIAL REPORT

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Explorer 1, the onetime chatterbox which discovered the Van Allen radiation belt, whirls silently around the earth today on its fifth birthday.

The 30.8-pound cylinder long ago lost its radio voice, but it reigns as the oldest man-made inhabitant in space. The two Soviet Sputniks which preceded it into orbit no longer are aloft.

Advancements have been spectacular since Explorer 1 placed the United States firmly in the space race with the Soviet Union on Jan. 31, 1958.

Nine men—five Americans and four Russians—have rocketed into space.

The United States has launched an almost unbelievable total of more than 110 successful satellites and deep space probes. Soviet scientists have sent up 31.

RUSSIAN 'FIRSTS'

The Russians, with superior rocket power, have recorded a number of impressive spectaculars: the first satellite, the first man in space, the first to hit the moon, the first to photograph the lunar backside and the first to have two pilots circling the earth simultaneously.

The broader American program has given this nation a great lead in probing puzzles of the universe and making space work for man.

Communications satellites have relayed television programs between continents; Tiros packages have transmitted thousands of weather pictures, including the birth of hurricanes; Transit vehicles are providing ships and submarines with all-weather navigation beacons in the sky; Explorers and other satellites are measuring radiation, magnetic fields, cosmic dust, the sun and world's first closeup electronic look at another planet; and hush-hush military satellites are spying behind the Iron Curtain.

U.S. TELLS PLANS

The Soviet Union's future plans are cloaked in secrecy. But the step-by-step U.S. program has been laid out clearly for the next decade.

★ ★ ★

America's major goal is to land astronauts on the moon before the Russians and to do it before 1970. A so-called ideal launching date of Jan. 14, 1967, at 3:34 p.m. Cape Canaveral time, has been considered as a potential goal for the Apollo lunar flight. If this date is met—and most planners doubt it will—Americans would be on the moon within 10 years after Explorer 1 shot into the sky.

★ ★ ★

The ideal time is based on relative positions of the earth and moon; illumination conditions in the chosen landing area near the Sabine Crater; predicted solar radiation activity, and expected readiness of a booster rocket, a capsule and numerous other ingredients.

Before the three-man Apollo team is moon-bound, a number of critical milestones must be passed, a number of problems solved.

MORE PRACTICE

To gain further experience in prolonged space flight, astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr. is scheduled to make what may be the final Project Mercury ride next April 2, an intended 34-hour mission.

This will be the longest U.S. manned space trip to date, but far short of the record 94-hour, 35-minute flight of Soviet cosmonaut Andrian Nikolayev.

In 1964, the two-man Gemini craft is to start a series of flights intended to keep astronauts in space for periods up to two weeks and to check techniques for rendezvousing with other orbiting craft. Perfection of rendezvous is essential for Apollo lunar flight.

Meanwhile, unmanned packets of instruments will continue to explore space, the moon and the planets. Ranger and Surveyor vehicles are to orbit and land on the moon to investigate thoroughly the selected Apollo landing area.

SATURN MOVES ON

Development is proceeding on the mighty Saturn C5 rocket, whose 7.5-million pounds of thrust is to carry the Apollo moonship.

The man entrusted with molding Saturn and overtaking the Soviet moon will be staggering. Original estimates ran as high as $40 billion. But James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, reported earlier this month that the price tag will be under $20 billion.

Union's rocket power advantage is the same who headed the team which launched Explorer 1—former German rocket expert Wernher von Braun.

The cost of landing men on the moon in the next few years an estimated 300,000 persons in hundreds of plants across the nation will be involved in preparing for the lunar flight.

★ ★ ★

Some U.S. experts doubt that the Soviet Union can devote as much money, resources and manpower to such a program without seriously sacrificing needed production in other areas. But others point out that the Soviets have pulled surprises before in space and that the race to the moon should be an interesting one.

Also re-elected were Leo Martell, 85 Dwight St., vice president; Garland Hale, 835 N. Perry St., treasurer and manager; and Ferdinand Bowden, 290 Vinona St., Commerce Township, clerk.

The Board of Directors declared a 4½ per cent dividend, totaling $1,700.

Con-Con President Eyes MSU Office

LANSING (AP) — Stephen Nisbet — who was president of the constitutional convention and now is recuperating from two heart attacks — has told Republican officials he's available as a GOP candidate for the Michigan State University Board of Trustees.

★ ★ ★

Nisbet made it clear, however, that his availability has certain conditions — that on doctors' orders he will not be able to attend the GOP convention in Grand Rapids Feb. 15-16, nor will he be able to campaign for the MSU post.

★ ★ ★

But Nisbet said his doctors say his recovery would be sufficient for him to take over MSU trustees duties next January, if elected.

Nisbet suffered a heart attack Sept. 23 while visiting Erie, Pa., then had a second Oct. 21 while recuperating.

Earth Tremor Shakes Portions of Colorado

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A fairly strong earth tremor shook parts of Denver Wednesday and was felt as far away as Boulder, 35 miles northwest.

The Rev. Joseph V. Downey, seismologist at Regis College, said the tremor was the strongest since those of early December. There were two after-shocks, one at 4:10 and the other a minute later. No damage was reported.

More than 700 trade fairs will be held in 61 countries in 1963.

Pay Hike Displeases City Employes

By DICK SAUNDERS

The amount appropriated for pay and benefit hikes was the only item openly opposed Tuesday when the 1963 city budget was adopted.

And several other commissioners indicated a comparative study of pay rates in other metropolitan area cities was heeded.

VOICE COMPLAINTS

Representatives from the Pontiac Firefighters Association (PFA) and Pontiac Police Officers Association (PPOA) openly voiced dissatisfaction with this year's pay increase — one per cent across the board.

Since 1961, city employes have operated under the Yarger Pay Plan.

This was the result of the Yarger Study and Report which created wholesale adjustments upward in paychecks of most city employes. It also set up a classification of pay rates more in line with other metropolitan area cities.

Once the new plan went into effect, employes automatically got step increases in pay as determined either by length of service or promotion.

The commission has little control over such fixed charges as the city's share of pension payments, social security, insurance and unemployment compensation.

These amounts are annually determined largely by fluctuations in employment or rates set by outside agencies.

CONTINGENT FUND

Annual pay increases and increased benefits granted by the commission over and above the fixed increases, come from the contingent fund.

Last year, with a contingent fund of $138,100, the commission approved a two per cent pay hike plus additional payment toward Blue Cross-Blue Shield premiums.

The total package amounted to $110,000. Another $10,000 went toward hospital insurance for retirees. This left $17,000 in the contingent fund for emergencies.

This year the commission started with a contingent fund of $85,000.

Employe wage and benefit requests started at about $200,000.

The ultimate result was a one per cent pay hike and full payment of Blue Cross-Blue Shield premiums amounting to a $90,600 total increase for city employes.

The contingent fund was raised to $111,418 to accomodate this. The fund also included $13,625 for a free-parking plan on downtown metered lots.

News Analysis

A four per cent contingent fund is the commonly accepted standard in budget preparation, according to Robert A. Stierer, city manager.

Following the "standard", the 1963 operating budget would have a contingency of about $228,855.

Administrators and commissioners say they are keeping it substandard by some $117,437 in an effort to hold the tax rate down.

Among the fixed costs, the city is paying $164,130 more this year than in 1962 toward employe pensions.

DUE TO NEW PLAN

Most of the pension increase is due to the new pension plan for fire and policemen, approved by voters at last April's election.

It alone adds $108,589 to the city's 1962 pension costs.

The fire and police associations both argued that a one per cent pay hike would not be sufficient to keep pay levels in line with comparable cities.

The PPOA spokesman claimed that pay rates, for policemen at least, would rank among the lowest in cities using comparable pay plans.

Commissioner Bottom voted against the proposed pay hike because he said it was not adequate, especially for police and firemen.

★ ★ ★

Bottom argued that "there are certain pay classifications in the Yarger Plan that are much lower than they should be.

'NOT ENOUGH'

Applying a one per cent increase isn't going to help any in making the individual adjustments necessary."

Mayor Robert Landry asserted that some $737,300 had been cut from original requests for operating funds from department heads since budget preparation began early last fall.

In view of the large cutback, the estimated tax rate needed to support the budget will be $1.12 per $1,000 of assessed value higher this year than in 1962.

"We (the commission) would rather settle for something now than let it drag out until after the tax board of review sets the city's total assessed valuation this spring."

★ ★ ★

He questioned employe claims that the city was not living up to recommendations in the Yarger Plan.

Stierer supported Landry saying that the step increases have been followed accordingly since the plan went into effect.

Landry, however, recognized a need to study the plan, but not until after July 1, since many comparable cities are run on a fiscal year basis.

★ ★ ★

Commissioners Dick M. Kirby and William H. Taylor were for the across-the-board pay hike instead of treating groups of employes separately.

May Convert Unused Space

Eye Sanatorium for Welfare Patients

Oakland County officials today are weighing the possible conversion of unused portions of the Tuberculosis Sanitorium for care of chronically ill welfare patients.

The state fire marshal's office recently ordered the county to revamp its medical care facility.

To comply with the orders would cost over $1 million, county officials estimated.

★ ★ ★

A special committee of the United Community Services suggested:

1. Convert a part of the TB Sanitorium and the nearby nurse's home;

2. Place over half of the welfare patients in private nursing homes.

The program, including costs for conversion, would cost about $300,000, according to the committee.

It would entail a phasing out of the medical care facility as an infirmary for the care of welfare patients.

The committee didn't recommend closing the facility immediately.

County officials, members of the ways and means committee of the County Board of Supervisors, said the transition, if approved, would be accomplished slowly to ease the hardship on the patients.

Most of these are elderly persons, many of whom would be placed under a strain by any move, Welfare Director George Williams noted.

The special committee was formed in October after the United Community Services was retained for $15,000 by the board of supervisors to conduct a county health and medical care study.

★ ★ ★

The study isn't yet completed and the committee's recommendation regarding the TB sanitorium came as an interim report.

It suggests placing 60 of the welfare patients at the sanitorium, 40 in the nurse's home and 110 in private nursing homes.

Sufficient beds are available in each instance, according to the report.

The ways and means committee turned the report over the county welfare department for consideration.

Old Grecian Formula

Meet 'Atlas' With an 'A' Record

By DICK HANSON

When George Corbin arrived at Michigan State University Oakland four years ago he was a 120-pound weakling who got D's.

The first semester, Corbin, 21, of New Baltimore, was barely able to lift a book much less a barbell, his professors recalled.

Determined to become a red-blooded scholar (a sound mind in a strong body the ancient Greeks called it), Corbin bore down hard on both books and bar bells.

He gradually was able to lift both with equal ease, achieving the dean's list and a scholarship in the semester just ended.

Whereas he could barely put 80 pounds over his head as a freshman, Corbin can now press 140 pounds, once again proving the wisdom of the Greeks.

George is a big man with the girls on campus today. Not only can he carry their books, but he can tell them what all those words mean.

After graduating in April as a member of Oakland's charter class, Corbin plans to go to graduate school, on his way to becoming a psychiatrist.

He is working his way through now that he as the muscles to do it.

Pontiac General Forced to Turn Away Patients

Pontiac General Hospital is being forced to play hard to get.

Cancelation of scheduled admissions has become a daily procedure with the hospital recording its highest occupancy period in recent years.

Average occupancy for the first accounting period of 1963 was 100.1 per cent, said Harold B. Euler.

"This is the highest rate for any period since our building program began in 1958.

★ ★ ★

"Since the first of the year," he noted, "we've had high occupancy in all areas of the hospital including the mental health unit."

WAITING LIST

Euler said there has been a waiting list on two occasions for beds in the mental health unit. Last night, 22 of its 23 beds were occupied.

★ ★ ★

Cancellation of scheduled admissions has been running about 10 per day in the hospital due to the heavy load.

It was 96.9 per cent in the same period of 1961 and 98.6 per cent in 1960.

Gets State Prison Term for Statutory Rape

Jack White, 26, of 1789 June St., Avon Township, was sentenced Tuesday to 1½ to 10 years in Jackson Prison for his Jan. 5 statutory rape of a 13-year-old girl.

White pleaded guilty to the charge Jan. 14 before Oakland County Circuit Judge Stanton G. Dondero, who pronounced sentence.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Responsibility for the National Guard and other civilian reserve forces will be centralized under a three-star general, the Army said yesterday.

WALTER O. BRIGGS III

Named Chairman of GOP Committee

Oakland County Republican Chairman Charles L. Lyle yesterday announced the appointment of Walter O. Briggs III of 320 Suffield St., Birmingham, as chairman of the public relations committee for the county GOP.

Currently chairman of the Young Republican Federation, Briggs has been a member of the Oakland County Young Republican Club since 1959.

Expect Action on Rooms for Handicapped

Oakland County's school superintendents will act Wednesday on a proposal to add 30 classrooms for mentally handicapped children to the county's present 117.

Eleven of the additional rooms are recommended by the county's Department of Special Education for mentally retarded youngsters of junior high and senior high school age.

The proposal asks an increase from 10 to 19 in the number of "adjusted study" rooms for children with severe behavior problems. State aid for this program was approved last year.

Other programs in which expansion is recommended are those for the deaf and hard-of-hearing and the blind and partially sighted.

Three school districts entitled to rooms for the deaf and hard-of-hearing have not yet put them into operation, according to Special Education Director Paul Thams.

Fears Currency to Be Scarce

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon said yesterday a shortage of coins and dollar bills may develop unless outmoded silver legislation is changed soon.

★ ★ ★

Dillon spoke at a get-acquainted meeting with the House Banking and Currency Committee under its new chairman, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex. Patman has scheduled a series of such sessions with agency officials.

In discussing legislation coming up this year, Dillon said the Silver Act should be repealed. It provides for the support of the price of silver at 91 cents an ounce and is "pretty out of date," he said, since the current world market price is $1.25 an ounce.

The proposed legislation, Dillon added, would provide for issuing federal reserve notes in $1 denomination. All $1 bills now are silver certificates.

★ ★ ★

Dillon said silver certificates, which must be backed by a specified amount of silver, would not be eliminated but added that federal reserve notes would give more flexibility and make more silver available for coinage.

Staebler Says Gov. Wants Only His Way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic congressman-at-large Neil Staebler yesterday advised Gov. George Romney to change some of his ways and accused the governor of exhibiting a "do it my way or else" political philosophy.

Staebler's anger apparently was aroused by a remark attributed to Romney in a speech Saturday at the annual meeting of the Michigan Press Association in East Lansing.

Romney had told the newspaper men that some Democratic and union publications were being unfair in their efforts to block adoption of the proposed new state constitution.

Staebler described the GOP governor as "self-righteous" and added "he feels anyone who disagrees with advocacy of the proposed constitution is in error. He wants only his side told."

Today some 19,000 pople, mostly Christian Arabs and Semites of Canaanite or Jewish stock live in Bethlehem.

Don't Tamper With Successful Formula

Box-Office Chemistry Pays Off for Movie Makers

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — All chemistry doesn't happen in laboratories. There's an important intangible in the movies which the trade calls box-office chemistry.

For instance: The box-office hit of the year is the teaming of two oldtimers—Bette Davis and Joan Crawford in "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?"

Fans came out in droves to see these famed scene stealers claw each other.

DON'T CHANGE

Once a successful formula is found, it doesn't pay to change it.

Doris Day was recently named the screen's top box-office draw. No one can quite play the all-American maiden as well as Miss Day. And no wolves are more attractive than Rock Hudson who chased her in "Lover Come Back" and Cary Grant in "That Touch of Mink."

Then Doris changed the format and leading man in "Jumbo." It's a delightful picture but even MGM admits that it is disappointing at the box-office.

In her next picture, "The Thrill of It All," Doris, the virtuous, will be chased by another attractive wolf—James (Maverick) Garner.

Then there's the yearning of a second banana who wants to be leading man. Dean Martin is one of the screen's most successful second bananas in his movies with Jerry Lewis and Frank Sinatra.

But when he becomes a leading man to Susan Hayward in "Ada" or to Lana Turner in "Who's Got the Action?", you can shoot off a cannon in the theater.

Box-office chemistry is a formula that has to be mixed just right, else the public won't buy the product.

MM TOPS AT COMEDY

She hated those roles although no one could do them better. In "The Misfits," she played an overly dramatic loser. The picture flopped.

Few stars nowadays can carry a movie alone. Those who do know what they do best and consistently do it.

Among the few:

Jerry Lewis, always the nut who louses up everything, especially dignity. Wayne and Greg Peck, the taciturn commanders who get the job done no matter what the odds or foe.

Liz Taylor, a great natural actress and beauty, is a femme fatale and knows it. They tried to cast her in "Two for the Seesaw," as a plain Bronx beatnik who loses her lover. Liz nixed it.

★ ★ ★

Marlin Brando and Sinatra are superb actors, both Oscar winners. Both have great effect on women. Their roles are always geared to that audience.

LONE FLOP

Brando's lone flop came when he played the lover of Italy's Anna Magnani. Women wouldn't buy his making love to an older woman, especially one who can travel incognito just by combing her hair.

Betty Grable, long a box-office queen, knew what she did best. She once floored Darryl F. Zanuck by turning down a dramatic role in a big budget movie.

"I know my audience," said Betty. "I'm the truck drivers' delight. They want to see me backstage in tights."

★ ★ ★

He played a roue making love to a young girl in "Love in the Afternoon" and a coward in "They Came to Cordura."

Both pictures were top grade efforts but the public wouldn't buy Cooper as anything but the straight-shooting marshal.

NEWBORN GNU — That three-letter word of crossword puzzles makes three moves to solve the problem of standing up on its own legs in New York's Bronx Zoo. Born Monday, it is the first white-tailed gnu born in the zoo in 14 years and stands about two feet high, weighing about 35 pounds. Gnus, if this is news to you, are African antelopes.

Sothern Swings Tonight

Leopardess Ann's Back Despite the Lions

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — "A leopard can't change her spots," says Ann Sothern of her return to show business after 21 months.

It'll be a swinging Sothern on Andy Williams show over NBC tonight. She will sing some numbers and dance the bossa nova, and she admits that it's great to be back.

THOMAS

"A lot of people didn't even know I had been gone," she said between rehearsals. "I guess they are used to seeing reruns of my television shows.

★ ★ ★

"But, except for some panel shows in New York which I love to do, I haven't done a thing professionally since the last series. What have I done? Well, you might say that I have devoted those 21 months to my daughter."

LIONIZED TISH

"She is being lionized," said Ann with a mother's pride. "It almost frightens me, except that I know Tish can handle it."

Her confidence is due to the close relationship she has maintained with her daughter. "I think I've done a good job," she remarked. "At least I've tried real hard. It hasn't been easy, because for 14 years Tish and I have lived in a manless world." (Ann was divorced in 1947 from actor Robert Sterling).

She now lives in New York because Tish is going to finishing school there. Ann doesn't agree with another Californian-turned New Yorker, Joan Fontaine, that marriage is for the birds.

"Both Tish and I like men, despite our manless life," said Ann. "In another year or so, it will be time for her to leave the nest. And then I'll get married. Prospects? Sure, I've got a lot of beaus in New York."

Meanwhile the urge to act is coming back. When she finished her second series—she had made over 200 films in seven years on television—she thought she could quit forever.

She has made a pilot film for yet another series, this one casting her as a widow who inherits her husband's role as mayor of a small town. NBC is high on its chances and may spot it in next season's lineup.

Does she want to work that hard?

"Ask me later, if it sells," she replied. "I think it would be fun. At least it would get me away from the sophisticated kind of comedy that I did for seven years. I can't seem to convince anyone that I can do anything else."

Parakeets Bleached by Chlorine in Pool

MIAMI (AP) — Mama parakeets may have a hard time teaching their small fry not to run away when the word gets around about the bird that spent a night in its owner's swimming pool.

★ ★ ★

The parakeet survived by perching on a fixture but its blue feathers were bleached by the pool's chlorine.

★ ★ ★

Governor Sees Car Sales Drop

Romney Says Economy Is Generally Healthy

LANSING (AP) — Automobile sales probably will go down in the 1963-64 fiscal year, says Gov. George Romney, former president of American Motors.

Romney said in his budget message yesterday he expects that car sales will decline about 6 per cent.

"Yet the general tenor of the economy is healthy," Romney said. "If no marked upturn can be expected, neither is any marked downturn anticipated."

Most observers, he said, believe the economy will be stimulated by federal government policies, particularly a cut in the income tax.

The current economic activity, Romney said, has been highlighted by near-record automobile production, a surge that began in the last quarter of 1962.

Romney said this apparently was influenced by the shortage of 1962 cars at the end of the model run and the desire of fleet and rental buyers to take advantage of new depreciation allowances and investment tax credits.

A lot of bargain-hunters, he said, were converted to 1963 model purchases.

Despite the expected decline in auto sales, it is expected that revenues in Michigan will incline modestly upward, Romney said.

This type of forecast, Romney said, presupposes a different economic structure than people in Michigan have supposed the economy to be when they remember the vigor of the 1950s.

"It is well to realize that the Michigan economy of the present time is fundamentally different from the economy of the 1950s," he said.

A shift in defense production and decentralization of the auto industry contributed to the change, he said.

By waxing wire clotheslines they can be protected from corrosion by weather.

Nuns Praying for Railroad

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—The bankrupt New Haven Railroad is being prayed for by a group of Benedictine nuns.

"So far," he said Wednesday, "every bad storm that has come from the West this winter has missed us."

Smith said the nuns had been given old railroad ties to repair a barn at their community in Litchfield. Their letter of thanks included a promise to pray for the railroad.

Smith had come to the state capital to plead for state subsidies.

Accompanied by Dividend Boost

Mart Makes Brisk Recovery

NEW YORK (AP)—A dividend boost by Standard Oil (New Jersey) accompanied a brisk stock market recovery early this afternoon. Trading was active.

★ ★ ★

Even before the world's largest oil producer announced a five-cent increase in its first quarter dividend, the list showed signs of steadying and of scattered recovery from yesterday's decline.

★ ★ ★

A string of sizable blocks of Jersey Standard at a slight markup in price preceded the dividend news, after which it again expanded its gain.

GENERALLYY LOWER

The market was generally lower at the start but, even then, progress, helped by news of a string of new defense contracts and by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's plans to keep U.S. defense spending at a high level.

★ ★ ★

Some steels recovered slightly from their sharp drop of yesterday. Motors went to the upside after early hesitation. Oils and nonferrous metals were generally higher.

Chrysler advanced 2 and General Motors was steady. Continued buying in these issues was ascribed by brokers to expectations that these companies might hike their dividends when their directors meet next week. American Motors and Ford were fractional gainers.

U.S. Steel, whose drop in yearly earnings depressed yesterday's market, recouped a fraction. Bethlehem lost a fraction. The second biggest steelmaker reports on finances and operations after the market close today.

IBM rebounded a couple of points and Polaroid was up about 3.

Bond Prices Little Changed

Over-the-counter dealers in U.S. government securities quoted a few intermediate and long maturities up 1/32 or so but most of the list was unchanged from yesterday's close.

Tax Authors Consider Cuts

May Include Excise Levies With Reductions

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Congressional tax writers, in a surprise move, may consider cuts in federal excise taxes as well as the income tax reductions proposed by President Kennedy.

The federal government now has excise taxes on more than 100 goods and services ranging from local telephone calls to matches. They include liquor, cigarettes, new automobiles, auto parts and accessories, radios, television sets, sporting goods, theater admissions, pool tables, jewelry and furs.

The House Ways and Means Committee is weighing the advisability of broadening next month's tax hearings to hear pleas from retailers, manufacturers and others who want such excise taxes reduced.

However, the proposal may never get off the ground. Some of the retailers who have been pressing for a chance to testify on excise taxes were reported today to be having second thoughts.

Some of them were understood to feel that administration opposition would doom any chance for excise tax cuts and the only result might be to touch off a "buyers strike" that would hurt sales of furs, jewelry, refrigerators and other items.

Demand Is Renewed for Soybean Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — The steep declines of the past two days brought out a renewed demand for soybean futures today and prices of all contracts turned strong in early dealings on the board of trade.

The grains were mostly slightly easier in draggy transactions which traders said included only scattered commercial buying.

Moderate selling which appeared to have been an overnight accumulation of profit cashing weakened a few soybean deliveries at the start, but the offerings were quickly absorbed and the opening losses were eliminated within a few minutes.

★ ★ ★

The demand again appeared to be speculative establishment of long positions.

Controls in '62 Kept the Economy Steady

By ROGER E. SPEAR

WELLESLEY, Mass. — Where have we been? Where are we? Where do we appear to be going in business and in investments in 1963?

Last year, 1962, was characterized by two outstanding developments in business and finance, neither of which was generally expected.

Early last year most businessmen and economists expected a business recession. It did not develop. Few expected a really severe decline in stock values. We had one.

Statistical evidence of the strength of business is shown by the fact that big gains to all-time-record highs were made last year in gross national product, national income, personal income and personal consumption expenditures.

These occurred in spite of the severe stock market decline. The decline really began in the spring of '61, when many of the so-called high-flying glamour stocks started to slide.

Then, between November 1961 and June 1962 the Dow-Jones average dropped over 200 points and tens of billions of dollars were wiped off security values. These securities were owned by an estimated 16-million investors.

I think that is very important. Any economy which can not only withstand such a slaughtering of values, but can simultaneously move on to new records, is a strong economy.

CONTROLS CYCLES

One of the most fundamental and basic reasons for this inherent economic strength is the increasing number and use of governmental controls developed to stem business recessions and to prevent excessive booms.

Perhaps the most important of these controls was the Employment Act of 1946. This act says in substance that if a depression starts, it is the function of the government to take all possible means to stop any increase in unemployment and any business letdown.

The government has been and is able to control the economy. So a ceiling has been placed on incipient booms, and a floor has been placed under business and stock market declines. We no longer experience the wide swinging business cycles of the past.

This factor of government control of the economy cannot be passed over without touching on the currently proposed income tax cuts and income tax law revisions.

There is little, if any, question about the fact that our present income tax structure adversely affects incentive and inhibits economic growth. It is to the credit of the Kennedy administration that an effort is to be made to do something about it.

The present plan calls for a net reduction in corporate and personal income taxes of approximately $10 billion.

Unless government expenditures are sharply reduced, this means that an $8- to $10-billion government budget deficit (probably to be spread out over two or three years) will be piled on top of what already promises to be $5- to $10-billion deficits immediately ahead.

'TRANSITION DEFICIT'

This is referred to as the "transition deficit," because it is expected that tax cuts will provide economic growth, in the end increase the government's tax take, and eventually balance the budget.

This is a tremendous, calculated risk. If it works, it could mean great prosperity in the mid and late 1960s, and I can see the Dow-Jones average reaching new historic highs.

If it doesn't work, we are headed for serious problems. Much will depend on whether corporations and individuals spend the money that they save in taxes—which is quite a different thing from the government's taking it from us and spending it.

Q) "By rights, I should be pushing up the daisies. I am old, and I lost most of my money years ago in drilling for oil that wasn't there. I have an income of $2,000 a year which is ample for my needs, plus about $1,000 in the bank. I would like to fool around with some low-priced speculations. What would you advise?" J.M.

A) I advise you to leave your money in the bank. If I may say so, you seem to have an indomitable zest for life, and I believe that the daisies will have to wait for quite a while.

Searching for profits in low-priced speculations is quite likely to parallel your drilling for oil that wasn't there. Money has been made in low-priced stocks and will be made again, but generally by those who can afford to spread the risk among a number of such situations. You simply cannot do that with your very limited capital.

Q) "I have just sold my business for a substantial sum which I will have to invest. I am over 70 years old — inflation has no terrors for me, but income tax has. A friend suggested tax-exempt securities. Do you approve? And could you tell me what return I could get?" R. G.

A) I certainly approve, in your circumstances.

Tax-exempt bonds are very secure and readily marketable — if bought in round amounts and in coupon form. I do not know what your income bracket will be, if it's as high as 50 per cent, a municipal yielding 3 per cent would give you the equivalent of a 6 per cent return on a taxable investment.

Municipals and other tax-exempt securities come in all shapes and sizes. Good short term issues such as Dallas Water Revenue 2¾'s of 1965 sell on a 1.85 per cent basis. On longer term bonds, you can get 3.20 per cent on City of Philadelphia's, and 3.15 per cent on New York City's.

Business Notes

Charles W. Crouch, of 778 E. Square Lake Road, Bloomfield Township, will head a newly created Scheduling, Planning and Control Department of the Argonaut Realty Division, General Motors Corp., it was announced today.

In addition, Edward G. Baran, 850 S. Pemberton St., Bloomfield Township, was named to head a newly created Design Department within the division.

The new departments were created to bring closer liaison and added efficiency to the division's construction activities, division manager James J. Edwards said.

Scranton Jabs Administration on Economics

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania says the Kennedy administration passed up an opportunity to help the nation's economy in 1961 when it ignored the need to cut government spending and taxes.

Scranton criticized administration fiscal policies last night at a Republican fund-raising dinner here. It was his first public appearance outside Pennsylvania since he was inaugurated more than two weeks ago.

The new Republican governor said:

"As a result of the administration's action, they piled up a deficit and the economy failed to rally with the strength it could have.

★ ★ ★

"Now, we are faced with the possibility of heavy tax cuts, badly needed, but without spending cuts, and the economy will surely suffer for it."

To Hear Hoffa in Complaint on Pressure

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee voted today to hear James R. Hoffa's complaint that government pressure is preventing Teamsters Union officials from being bonded.

Hoffa, Teamsters Union president, was invited to appear at a closed meeting of the House Education and Labor Committee tomorrow morning. Representatives of the Labor and Justice departments also were invited.

Hoffa has written to all members of the committee complaining that Justice Department pressure on insurance companies is making it difficult for the union to post the surety bond required under the Landrum-Griffin Act for officials who handle union funds.

Rep. William H. Ayres, R-Ohio, offered the proposal to invite Hoffa to appear tomorrow.

Ayres, who described himself as a foe of the Teamsters Union president, told newsmen later he thinks it only fair that the committee hear from all parties to the issue raised by Hoffa.

"If what Hoffa says is true the executive branch has gone far beyond the intent of the law," Ayres said. "The bonding provision was never intended to bust a union."

Would Allow Liquor Bill

LANSING (AP) — Gov. George Romney says he would allow a bill to permit the sale of liquor on Sunday in Detroit to become law without his signature.

Such a bill is expected any day now in the legislature, following up the Detroit Common Council's decision to permit Sunday liquor sales as a boost to convention business.

The proposal, legislative observers say, probably will be introduced as an amendment to the existing state statute, worded so as to permit Sunday sales in cities over one million population.

Romney, who does not drink alcohol, said he is "not one who believes you can bring about moral or religious reform through law, but rather that we should rely on education and persuasion."

To drink or not to drink, he said, "is a personal decision."

Opens Shoe Store, Specialty for Junior

The store, which specializes in children's shoes, also contains a complete line of orthopedic footwear, Lewis said.

Lewis, who has been in the shoe business 13 years, was previously employed by Stapp's Juvenile Booterie in Pontiac.

Corporation Is Formed

E. J. LaForest has announced the formation of a new corporation, Permandock Corp., to be located at 160 St. Johns St., in Highland.

The corporation, LaForest said, will manufacture, sell and install permanent lakefront docks.

LaForest, president of the firm, said he expects to be in production in April or May.

He named John A. Doran III of Highland and L. Mack Oakley of Clarkston to the board of directors.

Person Requires Calcium Each Day

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY

Whenever calcium "deposits" occur in arteries, joints or other parts of the body it is as a consequence of disease — inflammation, infection, degeneration, injury or strain.

If there is any scientific evidence that the deposit of calcium in any organ or tissue of the body is the cause of arteriosclerosis, hardening of the arteries, joint disability, arthritis, rheumatiz or other ailment, this statement of what I believe to be the truth should be challenged by a reputable physician or scientific investigator who thinks he or she knows better.

Now S. H. K., age 70, says her doctor ordered her to cut down on the amount of milk she drank — she was drinking two glasses a day — because she was getting too much calcium, as shown by her lame knees! (Punctuation is her own.)

Obviously the lady's doctor does not know that the body of a healthy person contains 2¼ pounds of calcium, over 99 per cent of it in the bones and teeth, a relatively small fraction of it in the nerves, muscles, organs and tissues (the blood is a tissue).

Obviously the doctor doesn't know that a healthy person needs not less than 12 to 15 grains of calcium daily to avoid manifestations of nutritional deficiency (as described in detail in booklet, "The Calcium Shortage" — 35 cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope).

MILK BIG HELP

Milk is the best food source of calcium. Two glasses of milk a day would supply nearly two thirds of the calcium requirement, but the basic health diet, the pattern on which to build your own diet to suit your requirements, includes at least three glasses of milk daily, as well as other good sources of calcium, such as cheese, eggs, greens, nuts.

The bones become depleted of their store of calcium (1) in advancing age, (2) when a person is confined to bed for weeks or months, or (3) when for any reason a person does not get enough exercise, the equivalent of walking three to six miles daily. When the bones are depleted of calcium they are more likely to be broken by minor accidents. This is the scientifically determined truth.

Sunshine vitamin D is essential for good assimilation and utilization of calcium. D is one of the vitamins present in whole milk, cream or butter, but in order to get the minimum daily requirement of vitamin D from this source one would have to consume not less than 1½ pints of whole milk (three glasses) or the cream or butter equivalent.

By exposure of as much skin as possible, short of scandal, to the ultraviolet or vertical mid-day midsummer sunlight, one can manufacture enough vitamin D to maintain good metabolism.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

B58 Changes Made; Plane Flies Again

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — The Strategic Air Command (SAC) announced yesterday that flight control systems modifications have been made on B58 Hustler bombers and supersonic training flights have been resumed.

The Air Force had suspended faster-than-sound flights by the B58s since last September when a Hustler crashed in Indiana, killing its three-man crew.

SAC headquarters here said the first flights of the new training schedule were made yesterday along a 500-mile corridor between Cotulla, Tex., and Oklahoma City.

SAC said investigation of the Indiana crash showed that a flight control systems malfunction caused structural failure of the aircraft. Modifications are now being made to the aircraft, SAC said.

B. Jay Becker of New York has been one of the best players in the world for a long time and his brother, Skippy of Philadelphia, has not been far behind. Each has two bridge playing sons and while the second generation of Beckers has not threatened their parents, all four boys will be life masters soon and all will be real credits to the game just like their fathers.

Mike Becker, sitting North, felt that his single raise of clubs was a slight underbid. Hence, after his brother, Steve, cue bid spades, Mike decided to cue bid in hearts and Steve went on to six clubs after East bid five diamonds.

West opened the king of diamonds and shifted to a spade. At this point it might appear that Steve was going down, but it did not look that way to Steve.

He won the spade, entered dummy with another club, ruffed dummy's third spade and proceeded to run off the rest of his nine card suit.

★ ★ ★

The last club squeezed West. He had to hang on to the jack of spades, because dummy held the ten spot in back of him. The only way he could do that was to blank his king of hearts. Now Steve discarded that ten of spades from dummy and made the last two tricks with the ace and queen of hearts.

Asks Florida to Probe Case

Michigan Pair's Home Sold Without Notice

LANSING (AP) — Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley has asked the Florida attorney general to investigate the case of a Jackson couple who lost their $7,000 retirement home because of foreclosure of a $446 materialmen's loan.

Kelley wrote Florida Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin that the image of the state of Florida is being impaired by newspaper and radio publicity on the case.

The couple had lived in Jackson for 18 years and planned to move permanently to the home they were building in Florida, Kelley said.

When they went to Florida, he said, they were told by neighbors that their $7,000 home had been sold for $1,000 to satisfy a $446 lien.

The couple never received notice of the intent to file a claim or of the filing of the lien, Kelley said.

Kelley asked the Florida attorney general to investigate, particularly to determine whether the statutory and constitutional rights of the couple were protected. He asked to be advised on any action taken, saying this was "an apparent injustice."

Judge Rules Schools Not Discriminating

HAMMOND, Ind. (AP)—A federal judge ruled yesterday that there is no racial discrimination in Gary's school district boundaries.

"The problem is not one of segregated schools, but one of segregated housing," said U.S. District Judge George N. Beamer in rejecting a suit by the parents of 100 Negro pupils.

Their petition contended the school district boundaries were drawn to perpetuate racial segregation in the city.

But Judge Beamer said he could see no reason to abolish the neighborhood school system just because one race would be predominant in some schools.

"Either by choice or design," the judge's opinion said, "the Negro population of Gary is concentrated in the so-called central area, and as a result the schools of that area are populated by Negro students."

He said the parents had failed to prove that these students have inferior instruction or curriculum.

Iceland Pays Cancer Fund Tax Levy

NEW YORK (AP)—In Iceland, cigarette smokers are raising a treasury for cancer education and research.

A special tax of half a cent per pack has been levied, the money to go to the Icelandic Cancer Society. The society expects to reap about $50,000 a year, all above its current annual income of $10,000 to $20,000, says Dr. Niels Dungal, society president.

Part of the money raised when smokers smoke will go into a campaign to urge people, especially teen-agers, not to smoke. If this succeeds, the revenue from the cigarette tax will go down.

Iceland apparently is the first country to earmark a tax on cigarettes for such purposes, Dungal said in an interview during a visit to the United States. The tax took effect Jan. 1.

The society hopes to give regular smear tests for early detection of cancer of the cervix to all women aged 25 to 60 and to seek causes of stomach cancer.

Dungal, professor of pathology at the University of Iceland, is among those who blame cigarette smoking as a cause of lung cancer, a position challenged by some others, including the tobacco industry.

Defense Dept. Backs Space Plane Studies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department is backing research that may produce by the late 1960s or early 1970s a piloted space plane able to take off from an airfield, fly into orbit and then land.

★ ★ ★

The Air Force project, known as "Advanced Hypersonic Manned Aircraft," would be a big step beyond the Dynasoar manned space glider, which would be boosted into orbit by a huge Titan III rocket.

★ ★ ★

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara referred to the project Wednesday in one paragraph of his lengthy report to the House Armed Services Committee.

"This is an extremely advanced concept which envisages an aircraft that can take off from a conventional airstrip and fly directly into orbit and return," McNamara said.

★ ★ ★

Before deciding whether to start on a very costly development, McNamara said, Air Force scientists are setting out to solve certain basic problems.

STUDY PROPOSALS

These problems involve propulsion and the structure of a winged space plane that would have to endure the stresses of flying through the atmosphere at up to 18,000 miles an hour.

The defense secretary offered no time estimate. But it is known Air Force scientists believe they could achieve such a craft by the end of this decade or early in the next one.

As the Air Force sees it, such a plane could have a variety of uses: to intercept, inspect and perhaps knock down hostile or suspicious satellites; to serve as a platform for putting manned or unmanned U.S. satellites into orbit.

Initially, space planes might operate in orbits 300 to 500 miles from earth. Later they might cruise in orbits 1,000 miles out.

The space plane got off to a $1-million start two weeks ago, grew included in the new budget, reportedly for somewhat more than to $19 million last year and is that amount.

Cooperation Helps Trap Ex-Convict

Robert Wildey, 21, of 3351 Perrin St., Waterford Township, was arrested by patrolman Dick Beckman at 2:45 a.m. and charged with breaking into four area homes between 2 a.m. and the time of apprehension.

Wildey allegedly entered the home of George C. Scott, 3435 Curwood St. about 2:30 a.m. and asked Mrs. Scott if he could use the phone. She fled to the basement and called for help on a citizens band radio and the intruder fled.

The distress call was relayed to police already in the area investigating other break-in reports. Wildey was apprehended near his parked car at 4446 Louella St.

Wildey, who was sentenced to Jackson Prison in March 1959 for the beating and robbery of a White Lake Township man, told police he was having car trouble and was trying to telephone a wrecker.

Other homes entered were those of Carl Methner, 4446 Louella St.; Arnold Mercier, 4110 Farner St.; and Ford Dailey, 2940 Wesson St. He fled from two of the homes when occupants woke up and from the third when a telephone rang.

U. S. Budget Bureau Backs Up Director

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U. S. Budget Bureau has come to the defense of Director Kermit Gordon in the wake of a demand by Senate Finance Committee Chairman Harry F. Byrd that he be fired.

The dispute centers on whether Gordon supports the goal of a balanced budget. The bureau says he does. Sen. Byrd says Gordon's testimony to a congressional committee Tuesday shows he doesn't.

While the White House declined comment, the Budget Bureau fired back a statement later saying that Gordon had been misquoted. The statement, issued with Gordon's approval, said the quote attributed to the director "is based on an apparent misunderstanding of the testimony."

Actress Davis Tries Want Ad to Locate Work

Actress Bette Davis, filling in for Raymond Burr on "Perry Mason" tonight, has never been the type who sits back quietly when she feels action is demanded.

"Situation wanted, woman — artist . . . mother of three — 10, 11 and 15 — divorcee. American. Thirty years experience as an actress in motion pictures. Mobile still, and more affable than rumor would have it. Wants steady employment in Hollywood (has had Broadway). Bette Davis, c/o Martin Baum, GAC. References upon request."

Her reason: "I was just flinging down the gauntlet to the bankers who wouldn't finance a picture with me in it."

Foster Parents to Be Honored

Foster parents who board children under the jurisdiction of the Oakland County Juvenile Court will be honored at a banquet Wednesday.

Of the 226 foster parents who operate 113 boarding homes for dependent and neglected wards of the court, some 170 are expected to attend the 6:30 p.m. dinner at All Saints Episcopal Church.

Contributions from private donors are financing the event, according to Juvenile Court Director James W. Hunt.

Probate and Juvenile Court Judges Arthur E. Moore and Donald E. Adams also will speak.

Brigitte Wins 2nd Divorce

The judgement provided no alimony and split the custody of their only child, 2-year-old Nicolas, to periods of six months per year for each parent.

Upholds Charging for Use of Beach

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A plan to charge nonresidents for summer use of the city beach has been upheld by State Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk. An opinion released Wednesday by Mosk's office approves a proposed ordinance that would restrict free use of the beach to Laguna Beach residents.

The opinion said serious problems of congestion and beach sanitation have developed and the city is entitled to relief. There is some opposition to the ordinance, however, and its passage is not assured.

Sentence City Youth for Attempted Burglary

Miller C. Webb, of 312 Hughes St., was sentenced by Oakland County Circuit Judge Stanton G. Dondero. Webb pleaded guilty Jan. 16 before Judge Dondero.

Finally Explain 'Black Box'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. officials have now removed most of the wraps from the celebrated "black box" which has played a prominent role in nuclear test ban talks with Russia.

What emerges is not a black box at all—although it started out as that—but a vault with a floor space of perhaps 200 square feet.

The mysterious name has been abandoned, and the device now has the entirely prosaic title of "unmanned seismic station."

President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev recently exchanged letters about placing a number of these stations in the United States, Britain and Russia to check against secret underground nuclear tests.

Which side first proposed the original "black box" is a subject of dispute. At any rate, it came up at a conference of international scientists in London last September.

As then discussed, it was a box in which the West would place seismic instruments which measure earth tremors.

The box was to be sealed and the Russians were to fly it to agreed locations in the Soviet Union and return it later to be opened and the data read.

POSSIBLE JOGGLE

The trouble was that U.S. government scientists feared it would be theoretically possible — even though vastly complicated — for the Russians to fly the box to the wrong area of Russia and joggle it subtly so as to reproduce the normal earthquake data for another area in which they would be secretly testing.

What U.S. officials now propose is a vault which the Russians would build in a tunnel or a hole in the ground. International teams would place in it six seismometers.

Three of these would measure earth tremors traveling near the surface. Three would measure those traveling deep under ground.

All would record the data on a magnetic tape, which would move at between one-tenth and one-hundredth of an inch per second, and possibly also on film.

The vault would have a tamper-proof door, and international teams would visit it periodically to remove the tapes for analysis.

Engineering the tape recorders is one of two parts of the vault which the United States has not yet worked out in detail. The other is the power supply, which preferably would be from power lines but could be batteries, propane gas generators or radio isotope power units.

Moscow radio commentator Boris Belitsky said last night that a Soviet blueprint for the stations is ready, but he gave no indication it would be unveiled before an agreement is signed.

He gave only a vague description, saying the black boxes would use magnetic recording equipment to collect and evaluate seismic disturbances within their range.

Peter Lorre, Tour-Weary, Almost Falls From Stage

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Peter Lorre almost toppled off the stage of one of the 40 metropolitan theaters he and Boris Karloff visited in promoting their horror-chiller picture, "The Raven." They traveled by bus, Karloff taking it well despite his 75 years, and an old sports injury which has turned into arthritis, leaving him with a slight limp. After Lorre almost tumbled from the stage, a friend said, "Make no mistake—Peter was weary, not beery."

WILSON

Kim Novak was a slight pain-in-the-neck to theater box-offices some recent nights—for she's been ordering three good seats to the hits—and the theaters like to sell seats in pairs. But the ticket-sellers forgave her when they learned that the second seat was for her escort (usually Dr. Lee Winston or publicist Martin Goldblatt)—and the third was for her mother, visiting her from Chicago.

Kim went into a hospital to lick a virus. Cured, she easily passed physical exams by doctors who had to approve insurance for her while she films "Of Human Bondage" in London—and she flew to London Wednesday.

The kurvaceous Kim Sisters, from Korea, now at the Latin Quarter, confessed on our Hampshire House mike that they were greatly baffled by American traffic lights when they arrived here and worked in Las Vegas.

"It was so hot—120 degrees—and we had on our long dresses that were extra hot," related the older sister, Sooka Ja.

"We had been warned not to cross the street against a red light, but to walk when we found a green light. We went to one light —it was red. Another block. It was red. We walked about 10 blocks, always a red light. Finally, I asked a man, 'Where can we find a green light?' Nobody had told us the lights changed."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "Husbands," claims George Kirby, "are very lucky. They don't have to kiss somebody who doesn't shave all weekend."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "My wife now lives on a budget—but it's Barbara Hutton's budget." (Danny Thomas).

MEMORABLE QUOTES: A friend of Fred Allen's once pointed up at a plane and said, 'I'd love to be up there with that." Fred answered, "I'd hate to be up there without it."

"The average American kid," says Jesse Kaplan, "would gladly go to the moon—but not the corner store for a loaf of bread." . . . That's earl, brother.

Single Day's Air Crashes Kill 25; Still Search for 1

A search of northern New Mexico's rugged mountains turned up the bodies of two crewmen killed when a Strategic Air Command (SAC) B52 bomber crashed and burned.

An inquiry into the Kansas City crash was being conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Civil Aeronautics Board, and Continental Airlines.

An air traffic control officer said "everything was normal right up to the last moment" when pilot Joseph Smith prepared to land at Municipal Airport.

The Viscount, on a flight from Midland, Tex., to Kansas City, tore into a Missouri River levee, fell apart and burned.

Dog Adopts Rejected Cub

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A bear cub, rejected by its mother, has been adopted by a mongrel dog.

The Russian brown bear cub, which weighs less than a pound, was taken from its mother and placed with the dog after the mother bear killed others in her litter.

He said the cub will grow larger than the 15-pound dog in a few weeks, but still will require nursing.

County Lawyers Plan to Provide Legal Information

A speakers bureau to provide legal information as a public service has been formed by the Oakland County Bar Association, it was announced today.

★ ★ ★

Robert Templin, publicity chairman for the county Bar Association, said qualified speakers will be made available to organizations and associations to talk on a number of legal topics.

★ ★ ★

Among the subjects the speakers will cover are taxes, buying and selling property, jury duty, domestic relations and the functions of a lawyer.

Won't Let India Forget Him

Menon Maneuvers With Less Power, Urgency

BACKGROUND OF THE NEWS — AP SPECIAL REPORT

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Private secretaries bustle in and out of the cluttered office-sitting room in the little house across the street from Prime Minister Nehru's residence. Frequently a secretary signals a call on the specially made telephone, inscribed "Presented to Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon."

The intensity with which the wiry man answers calls—scowling and speaking curtly or smiling and turning on his charm—is the same. But the atmosphere has changed since Menon was forced out of Nehru's cabinet.

The sense of power and national urgency is gone. The sense of political maneuvering remains as he keeps busy making speeches.

Since he became just another member of Parliament last November, Menon has been campaigning around India like no ordinary member. In fact, although not technically, he leads his own political party—a collection of leftist members of the Congress party and independent leftists with strong Communist support.

MYSTERIOUS LINKS

Menon works closely with the people who also work with Communists. His cause is championed by publications, some with mysterious financing, which also back Communist causes.

It is an open question whether Menon really controls this ill-defined but clearly aimed group. Some observers have suggested in the past that the pro-Communists supported Menon only because he looked as if he had a chance of taking over the Indian government after Nehru.

The fact that they have not deserted him since his dismissal from the cabinet could mean they have nowhere else to go. More likely it means that at the age of 65 Menon still is not to be counted out of the Indian political picture.

Menon was forced out of the cabinet by charges that he failed to prepare against the danger of Communist China. Nehru bowed to the attacks with great reluctance.

"I deeply regret to part with you," Nehru wrote Nov. 8 in accepting Menon's resignation. "I hope that it will be possible in the future to utilize your high abilities in the cause of the nation."

SOME FEARED HIM

Some critics feared Menon would continue to be an unofficial adviser to Nehru, walking across the street for late night talks as he has done for years.

This seems to have happened rarely.

Before he entered the cabinet, Menon made his name abroad as leader of India's delegations to the United Nations. He continued to lead them as defense minister. Nehru now ducks questions on who will lead the delegation, saying it is a long time before the General Assembly opens next September.

What the future will bring for this controversial figure depends partly upon the attitude of the Chinese Communists. Another clash between India and China would further hurt the leftist cause in India; improved relations might help it.

U.S. Rips Into Canada

Pressures Ally to Equip With Nuclear Arms

Speculate in Ottawa Criticism May Bring Call for Election

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, apparently taking sharp issues with Canadian Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker, has declared bluntly that Canada's defense forces should be equipped with nuclear weapons.

Although North American defense systems "using nuclear capable weapons" are necessary for effective protection against the Soviet Union's nuclear bomber? bomber fleet, the State Department said Wednesday night, the Canadian government has failed to come up with a practical plan.

The nuclear weapons issue has been hotly debated in the Parliament at Ottawa in recent days and has become a problem in Canadian domestic politics. In such circumstances a U.S. government declaration is highly unusual.

MAY BRING ELECTION

In Ottawa, there was widespread speculation the U.S. criticism would spark a general election call and a campaign fought on nuclear defense issues.

The statement, issued by the State Department and delivered to the Canadian Embassy, is also unusual because it is stripped of ordinary diplomatic language and lays down the Washington view of the North American defense problem in sharp, simple sentences.

"The Soviet bomber fleet will remain at least throughout this decade a significant element in the Soviet strike force," the statement said. "An effective continental defense against this common threat is necessary."

The statement said that although the Western alliance needs more conventional forces, conventional forces are no alternative "to effective NATO or NORAD defense arrangements using nuclear-capable weapons systems." NORAD is the joint U.S.-Candaian defense system against Soviet bombers.

The statement did not refer to Diefenbaker by name, but referred to various points made in the Canadian Parliament's nuclear weapons debate, in which Diefenbaker has participated.

In Ottawa, the Social Credit Party leader, Robert Thompson, called the U.S. statement "a

Sniper's Bullet Misses

Mother Nearly Shot

A Novi mother of four narrowly escaped death in her home last night when a sniper's bullet passed within three feet of her head.

It was the second sniping incident in Oakland County since a Bloomfield Township mother of five was killed by an unknown gunman Friday night.

Yesterday, Mrs. Gertrude Race, 40, was the apparent target of a sniper while she was reading the newspaper on the bed at her home at 28000 Dixon Road.

★ ★ ★

FIND CASING

Sheriff deputies and detectives, called in to assist the Novi department, found a 22-caliber casing in the middle of Dixon Road.

★ ★ ★

It was found about 300 feet from the Race's home and was in line with the angle of fire.

The house is on the east side of Dixon Road and the first house just north of 12-Mile Road. The bedroom is on the south side of the house.

"The only similarity that has been established between the tragic shooting of last week and this one," said BeGole, "is that a woman was shot at through a window by a 22-caliber bullet."

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Mary Godfrey, 38, of 963 Dursley Road, was fatally shot in the head last Friday while she was standing in her kitchen.

15 MILES APART

About 15 miles separate the Godfrey and Race homes.

★ ★ ★

Another Bloomfield Township resident, Mrs. Lillian Hatton of 2063 Lakeward Lane, was shot at by a BB pellet Tuesday night. The pellet pierced a window.

"Mrs. Race was very lucky," said BeGole.

The casing and spent bullet were turned over to the state police to be sent to Lansing for comparison with the bullet that killed Mrs. Godfrey.

Mrs. Race had been playing with her youngest son in the bedroom just before the shooting, about 7:45 p.m. An overhead light was on and the curtains pulled apart.

★ ★ ★

Make Sure the Sauna Is Plenty Steamed Up

Florida? Who needs it?

The water's great in Maceday Lake at this time of year — so claims a hearty group of Waterford Township residents.

Sound incredible?

It looks even more so to bundled spectators who stand shivering near the open area of the lake.

What do they see?

Bathing-suit clad stalwarts emerge from the Langs' boathouse, trot across snow and ice and then dive in the water.

Prospects Appear Favorable for Okay of Romney's Budget

LANSING (AP) — Chances appeared good today for passage of Gov. George Romney's record $547-million state budget for fiscal 1963-64 — but some Republican legislative leaders hinted it might be slimmed down a bit first.

The governor submitted his general fund budget to a joint session of the legislature yesterday. He said it would produce a $13.6 million surplus for reduction of the state's deficit, which stood at $85.6 million last July.

This sum, along with a $33-million surplus from revenues expected at the end of the fiscal year this June, will cut the state deficit by $46.6 million, Romney said.

Romney said that appropriation requests from the state's 120 agencies totaled $721 million, but these were trimmed by more than $170 million. The governor's recommendation called for expenditures of about $547 million in the agencies.

While applauding Romney's efforts to hold down on expenditures and cut the deficit, House Speaker Pro Tem Wilfred Bassett, R-Jackson, indicated he would push for even more cutting.

"I know from experience that it took great courage for the governor to pare $171 million from agency requests," Bassett commented.

"If we can feduce the deficit by another $20 million, instead of $13 million, it will still take three years to achieve solvency."

Voluntary Farm Controls Proposed by Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy insisted today that the government must continue to help manage farm production. But in a major reversal aimed at overcoming congressional opposition, he proposed voluntary instead of compulsory controls.

In a special farm message to Congress, he attached no price tag to his proposals. But an administration spokesman estimated that new programs for feed grains milk and cotton would reduce annual federal farm costs between $300 million and $500 million a year.

Farm aid programs have been costing about $3 billion a year.

Under his new recommendations, Kennedy would have the government pay farmers to reduce production of existing surplus products—feed grains and milk.

Last year he had urged, but without success, that Congress give the government power to set rigid production quotas and impose heavy penalties on overproducers.

These programs would have required producer approval at referendums.

Kennedy also recommended use of payments to solve a cotton marketing problem.

Under the present cotton setup, foreign buyers get U.S. cotton at much lower prices than domestic users. Hence, the domestic users have been placed at a price disadvantage in textile markets and use of cotton at home has declined.

UNTOUCHED

Likewise, he made no control

No Showdown Develops Over GOP's Top Post

A showdown between supporters of two Oakland County candidates for the Republican state chairmanship failed to develop last night at the GOP's county convention.

A vote on a rules amendment showed almost even support for both Arthur G. Elliott Jr. and John A. (Jack) Gibbs.

The convention selected 161 delegates to the party's state convention Feb. 16 in Grand Rapids and approved several resolutions.

One resolution supported the proposed new state constitution.

A fight over endorsement of a candidate for the state's top GOP post was avoided when a letter from Elliott asked "that no resolution be introduced."

A resolution endorsing Elliott was expected until late yesterday afternoon when it was learned Elliott would not appear as scheduled.

He was to give a report on Gov. George Romney's administration.

County GOP Chairman Charles L. Lyle said 1,000 ballots were prepared for the expected battle.

However, some supporters of both candidates were said to be against a showdown and its possible resultant split at the county level.

Gibbs' supporters interpreted the developments as reflecting increasing support for their candidate.

One high Republican official known to favor Elliott said there was evidence of more support for Gibbs than he had expected. He said a showdown vote on an endorsement would have been close. However, he predicted Elliott would win at Grand Rapids.

In his letter, Elliott said he felt he should "be absent myself" because Gibbs was not able to attend and "this was the home county of both of us."

Delegates approved by a 104 to 88 margin an amendment to voting rules for the county's state convention delegation. The delegation is expected to split on the chairmanship issue.

Solon to Keep Eye on Budget

REP. LLOYD L. ANDERSON

By JIM DYGERT

It was generally a sound budget, but there will still be room to wield the scissors.

Anderson represents Oakland County's First District.

He will have much to do with directing the path of the scissors from his new position on the powerful Ways and Means Committee of the State House of Representatives.

The committee controls what portions of the budget will go before the House for approval as appropriations.

TOWARD OLD AMBITION

Anderson's appointment Jan. 21 as one of nine Republican members of the 13-man committee not only put him among the House's GOP leaders; it also enabled him to realize a long-held ambition.

"I've always wanted to work directly on reduction of government spending," Anderson said. "Now I'll have the chance.

"I always thought the budgets were too high."

He named the state's welfare expenditures as an area where "I've always felt there was a lot of fat."

"I don't see how we can justify having the highest welfare costs in history in this time of prosperity," he says.

★ ★ ★

Anderson, now in his fourth term as a lawmaker, had requested the spot on the Ways and Means Committee. He had a taste of reviewing expenditures last session as a member of the Legislative Audit Commission.

Because the Ways and Means Committee devotes its full time to appropriations, meeting both morning and evening on some days, committee members hold no other House committee positions.

Anderson holds seats on six committees and was chairman of

May Disclose Cuba 'Secrets'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department was reported today weighing the possibility of releasing long-secret testimony taken in a 1961 senatorial investigation of the Cuban invasion disaster.

★ ★ ★

The testimony, recorded in closed door sessions by the Senate Foreing Relations Committee, was said to have produced unanimity among high administration officials that no U.S. air cover was promised invading refugees.

But senators who heard the officials or read the record said it remained unclear whether three non-U.S. air strikes had been planned and one or more canceled—a point Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois has been belaboring in a personal investigation.

CALLS FOR RELEASE

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, called Wednesday for release of all of the testimony which would not affect national security.

★ ★ ★

Hickenlooper, a foreign relations committeeman, said there were "a number of unreconciables" in the testimony. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Allen W. Dulles, then director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, then chief of naval operations, were among the witnesses.

RENEWED STUDY

Hickenlooper said release of the testimony had been discussed by Foreign Relations Committee members. But he said no formal had been taken. It was learned, however, that the transcript has been sent to State Department officials for renewed study.

"I would give great weight to the security people and their comments on what could be published," Hickenlooper said. "I would not want to see anything published that would adversely affect our security. But I would be perfectly willing for the rest of it to be published."

★ ★ ★

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., a committee member who heard the testimony, said he would not object to its publication although he would not urge it.

Ole Miss to Get Second Negro

Expect Enrollment Along With Meredith

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — James H. Meredith returned to the University of Mississippi campus today, checked in at his dormitory, and then headed for the area where second-semester registration is under way.

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) —Dewey Greene Jr., 22, a Negro Navy veteran, was expected to try to enroll today at the University of Mississippi where the student body was on strict notice not to demonstrate against the return of James H. Meredith.

There was a possibility Meredith, 29, the school's only Negro student, would register for the next semester today. He announced in Jackson yesterday he would return to "Ole Miss" either today or tomorrow.

Sources close to Greene of Greenwood, Miss., said last night he would report to the campus this morning in an effort to register.

At Clemson, S. C., a College official said that campus life was "completely back to normal" yesterday, two days after the historic admission of Negro student Harvey Gantt.

Activity is "just as normal as I have ever seen it," said Joe Sherman, public relations director for the previously all-white college.

Britain Looks to U.S. for Trade Aid

From Our News Wires

LONDON —Britain rebounded from a French blockade of its path to Europe today and sought help from the United States and other free world nations to bolster its sagging economy.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, bitterly denouncing the "folly" of French President Charles de Gaulle, called last night for a speed-up of trade and tariff consultations with Washington, the Commonwealth and Britain's six partners in the European Free Trade Area (EFTA).

The first top-level move in the British offensive was a meeting set for later today between Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Premier Jens Otto Krag of Denmark, one of Britain's partners in the EFTA.

Analysis on Pages A-8, B-7

Krag said after his arrival in London Wednesday he wanted to hear more of British plans "about how we can go further with EFTA," the seven-nation trading group created as a British-led rival to the Common Market six.

British political circles suggested strengthening and even enlarging EFTA might help make up for what Britain lost through being excluded from the European Community.

REPORT EXPECTED

Krag was expected to give Macmillan a first-hand report on President Charles de Gaulle's offer to help Denmark join the Common Market without Britain.

In Washington, American officials are reported warning the European allies that if they allow French President Charles de Gaulle to seize leadership the United States may be forced to cut its defense commitments in Europe.

High-ranking U.S. officials expect de Gaulle may try to slash the close American and European ties as the next step after his veto of Great Britain's membership in the Common Market.

He seems to believe, U. S. officials said yesterday, that he can demolish American influence in Europe but retain the shield of U. S. nuclear strength.

Britain's failure to get into the Common Market may cause problems for officials charting U.S. trade policy, but none appeared today to be edging toward the panic button.

The news was accepted calmly in Washington. The feeling was that it might slow down the momentum but not divert the present U.S. drive to promote free trade in the West.

In Berlin Erich Mende, head of the Free Democratic Party, which is a vital part of West Germany's coalition government, today urged delay in parliamentary action on the Franco-German treaty because of France's veto of British entry into the Common Market.

the Drainage Committee in the last legislative session.

The 54-year-old legislator, a right-of-way purchaser for the Oakland County Road Commission when he's not in Lansing, says his other main interest has been legislation affecting his district and the county.

He describes his political viewpoint as "more on the conservative side."

But, he adds, "I'm not a fock-ribbed conservative. I'm a Jeffersonian Republican."

Anderson was Waterford Township supervisor for six years prior to his election to the legislature in 1956. He lives at 3769 Lincolnshire St. in the township.

He notes one possible disadvantage to membership on the Ways and Means Committee: "It's easy to make enemies when you have to say 'No' to requests for budget increases."

In the case of wheat, he threw the full weight of his office behind a new mandatory wheat control program to be submitted to a grower referendum in the spring.

The administration spokesman said the shift from compulsory to voluntary controls for feed grains and milk was dictated by the prospects that the new Congress, like the previous one, would reject rigid limitations.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Other legislative recommendations submitted in the message included:

—Broadening of the Agriculture Department's program for training unemployed rural residents for nonfarm jobs and skills.

—Legislation authorizing extension or the food stamp plan on a nationwide basis.

—Authorization of additional funds to keep out of crop production land retired under the Eisenhower administration soil bank.

—Authorize use of repayments on government rural power and telephone loans to set up a permanent revolving loan fund for these purposes.

Report Worst Traffic Mishap Month

BIRMINGHAM—December was the worst month in history for traffic accidents in Birmingham and total mishaps in 1962 increased 13 per cent over the city's previous three-year average.

Statistics released today by Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley revealed that a record 166 accidents occurred on city streets last month.

The number of personal injury accidents during the entire 12 months of 1962 increased 22 per cent over 1961 and 36 per cent over the previous three-year average, Moxley said.

There was a total of 844 traffic accidents last year, a 13 per cent increase over the previous three-year figure. The 1962 total included 14 property-damage accidents and 230 injury mishaps.

"Major crimes in Birmingham showed a slight decrease in 1962 as compared with 1961," Moxley said in his year-end report to City Manager L. R. Gare.

"There was an increase of 10 per cent, however, when the previous three-year average is considered.

"We completed our fifth consecutive year without a homicide or aggravated assault case," Moxley stated. "Robberies increased slightly, larcenies and auto thefts showed a decrease and burglaries showed no change from the previous three-year average."

Calling for more cooperation from motorists, Moxley noted that right-of-way violations and following too closely were the leading causes of accidents in December and throughout the year.

Steam Up the Sauna!

The Langs installed a sauna room in their boathouse at 3631 Dorothy Lane last April. In the enthusiasm for sauna, the boats have nearly been forgotten.

"Usually four to six of us gather in the room where a wood burning stove is heating a pile of stones," Langs explained.

"Water is poured over the stones at intervals and steam fills the room creating refreshing dry heat. This is in contrast to the humid steam of a Turkish bath."

"Then, there's a wonderful invigorating feeling," Langs said. "Tensions disappear and you feel clean from deep within."

After 10 or 15 minutes, the sauna bathers are ready for their icy dip. They move quickly out of the boat house, spend about 30 seconds in the lake and then return to the refuge of the warm room and begin the procedure all over again.

★ ★ ★

Sauna is a year-round ritual for them, and, the colder the weather, the more refreshing it is.

They have plunged into the water when the air temperature was as low as 8 degrees below zero. It was 5 above when the accompanying photo was taken.

"The water remains 32 degrees," he asserted.

The Langs derived their interest in the ritual, which is fast gaining popularity in this country, from their son-in-law Ronny Helin, who is of Finnish extraction.

More Troops Lost by Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top U.S. commander in the Pacific said yesterday Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam have been losing five times as many men in battle as the government forces over the past few months.

Adm. Harry D. Felt cited these increasing Communist losses as one reason for saying that "All trends are favorable to the government side" in the war to suppress the Red insurgents.

★ ★ ★

"These trends just don't happen by themselves," Felt said in a statement.

"They result from a will to fight to remain free and from a brave and expanding leadership."

In a statement for a news conference, Felt mentioned a sizable list of signs which he interpreted as hopeful. He said:

—"There has been a steady decline of armed attacks by the (Communist) Viet Cong. The weekly average during the first month of this year is less than half the weekly average during the early months of 1962."

—There has been no buildup of large-scale Viet Cong operations, and only rarely is there an attack of battalion size.

—Over the past few months, five Viet Cong have been killed for each government soldier lost in combat.

—The Communists are losing more weapons to the government troops than they are capturing—significant because the Viet Cong have relied on captured weapons for much of their resupply.

College graduates accounted for 7.7 per cent of the adult population in 1960, census figures show. This is almost a 25 per cent increase from 1950.

Antichild Vaccine On Its Way

CHICAGO (UPI)—The President of the Population Council of New York said today that within 10 years a woman may be able to be vaccinated against pregnancy.

★ ★ ★

Frank W. Notestein, whose organization promotes birth control throughout the world, told newsmen that the pills used in birth control today were in the development stage 10 years ago.

"It takes a long time to get these devices from the research stage to the practical," he said.

Notestein, here to address the annual meeting of the Planned Parenthood Association, predicted that at the present rate of growth, there will be seven billion people in the world by the year 2,000.

"The worst of it is that the most rapid growth is likely to come precisely in those regions and classes that can least afford it," he said.

Notestein was told that 82 per cent of the mothers receiving help under the Aid to Dependent Children program in Illinois were not living with a legal husband and that critics contend a tentatively approved policy to supply these women with contraceptives would encourage immorality.

"By not providing them with such measures, we are encouraging illegitimacy," he replied. "I think a woman who has two or three illegitimate children doesn't need to be encouraged.

Notestein said research on birth control devices may provide every religious group with an acceptable medical answer to family planning needs within 10 years.

Help Junior Eat His Food

Had trouble with Johnny eating his breakfast cereal lately? Well, here's a charming Swedish Christmas tradition that might turn the tide in your direction . . . According to Swedish legend there is a tiny Santa Claus creature called a "tomte" who lives invisibly on Swedish farms—each farm having its own "tomte."

On Christmas Eve either the mother or the children of the house set a bowl of oatmeal just outside the door and in the morning it is always empty, eaten, of course, by the "tomte." There probably isn't a small boy or girl in all of Sweden who doesn't eat his cereal and his spinach for at least a week after Christmas with that kind of pressure on him.

THIS IS A TEST!

In an effort to evaluate the effectiveness of newspaper advertising, we of Sheldon's Town House have decided to sell our regular $1.05 Fish and Chip Dinner for 69c. This is not a sales gimmick or promotional stunt! This dinner will be sold for carryout or to eat in our dining room.

This dinner will consist of 2 delicious Haddock Fillets, French Fries, Cole Slaw, Hot Garlic Rolls and Tartar Sauce. We are fully aware of the fact that this dinner is far beneath the standard price for this area. However, let us emphasize again that this is a test to determine the value of newspaper advertising and the price and dinner will be exactly as stated and will be served from 11 A.M. to 10 P.M. Friday, February 1st only. There will be people on duty to receive your telephone orders Thursday and Friday from 7 A.M. to 8 P.M., so plan to have a fish dinner Friday and place your order as early as possible so that you may return to your work or play in a short time. Driver of Blind Is Top Volunteer

Clarence Hutson of 2025 Beverly, Sylvan Village, has been selected Volunteer of the Month by the Women's Division of the Pontiac Area United Fund for his outstanding contribution of volunteer service as a driver for the Motor-Aide Corps of the Pontiac Area United Fund.

Mr. Hutson regularly drives five blind people to braille classes held each Wednesday at the Oakland County Society for Crippled Children.

"Although drivers are usually asked to drive no more than once a week," said Mrs. Robert Hefty, Motor-Aide chairman, "Mr. Hutson calls to inquire if there are any assignments that need to be filled."

A tall, handsome man with a warm smile and a courteous manner, Mr. Hutson is rated "tops" by those he drives regularly.

Mr. Hutson, a widower, retired in 1947 after forty-two years with the U.S. Post Office Department. He first heard of the need for Motor-Aide drivers a year ago.

TO CLASS, TREATMENTS

Since joining the corps last February, Mr. Hutson has made 89 trips for the blind and handicapped, driving them to training classes as well as for medical and therapy treatments.

When asked what prompted him to respond to the appeal for drivers, Mr. Hutson said that it provided him with something to do in his spare time while doing something for others.

When spring comes, Mr. Hutson also will be busy in his yard and garden. He conservatively described the size of his garden to Mrs. Joseph Fox, Women's Division publicity chairman, as "larger than some and smaller than others."

Mr. Hutson is proud of his 53-year membership in the Royal Order of the Masons, Harmony Lodge No. 8, Urbana, Ohio. He is a member of the Trinity Methodist Church in Keego Harbor. His daughter, Mrs. John Haviland, and two grandsons reside in Orchard Lake.

Mrs. Hefty stated that volteers such as Mr. Hutson have made it possible for the Motor-Aide program to increase its service. During the past year 49 men and women in the Motor-Aide Corps have made a total of 615 trips.

Drivers furnish their own cars and gas. Any qualified driver with two or three spare hours a week can be of service, according to Mrs. Hefty.

All assignments are referred to Mrs. Hefty by professional members of local community agencies to verify the need. Those interested may call the Pontiac Area United Fund for further information.

Pontiac Press Photo

Volunteer of the Month Clarence W. Hutson of Sylvan Lake is a driver for the United Fund Central Volunteer Bureau. He is shown helping Ralph Beers of Franklin Road and Miss Effie Browing of Pearsall Avenue into his car. Both are blind.

Bake Cake on Lowest Rack

An angel food cake is best baked on the lowest rack of the oven. If placed higher, the top portion will brown too quickly and will cause the cake to test done before it is baked through.

Fears Currency to Be Scarce

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treausury Douglas Dillon said yesterday a shortage of coins and dollar bills may develop unless outmoded silver legislation is changed soon.

★ ★ ★

Dillon spoke at a get-acquainted meeting with the House Banking and Currency Committee under its new chairman, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex. Patman has scheduled a series of such sessions with agency officials.

In discussing legislation coming up this year, Dillon said the Silver Act should be repealed. It provides for the support of the price of silver at 91 cents an ounce and is "pretty out of date," he said, since the current world market price is $1.25 an ounce.

The proposed legislation, Dillon added, would provide for issuing federal reserve notes in $1 denomination. All $1 bills now are silver certificates.

Dillon said silver certificates, which must be backed by a specified amount of silver, would not be eliminated but added that federal reserve notes would give more flexibility and make more silver available for coinage.

Staebler Says Gov. Wants Only His Way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic congressman-at-large Neil Staebler yesterday advised Gov. George Romney to change some of his ways and accused the governor of exhibiting a "do it my way or else" political philosophy.

Staebler's anger apparently was aroused by a remark attributed to Romney in a speech Saturday at the annual meeting of the Michigan Press Association in East Lansing.

Romney had told the newspaper men that some Democratic and union publications were being unfair in their efforts to block adoption of the proposed new state constitution.

Staebler described the GOP governor as "self-righteous" and added "he feels anyone who disagrees with advocacy of the proposed constitution is in error. He wants only his side told."

Today some 19,000 people, mostly Christian Arabs and Semites of Canaanite or Jewish stock live in Bethlehem.

Some Resistance Seen

Stock Market Continues Slide

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued its decline early today but increasing resistance to losses was seen in scattered sections of the list. Trading was moderate.

Losses of most key stocks were fractional, a few going to a point or so.

Aerospace issues moved generally higher. Small gains were posted for North American Aviation, United Aircraft, Douglas Aircraft, and Boeing.

A number of space age defense contracts were announced, including a $29-million contract for Boeing's Minuteman missiles.

U.S. Steel, whose drop in annual profits was cited as a big factor in yesterday's decline, erased an early loss and nudged to the upside. Bethlehem, which reports on profits and operations after the market close, was easy.

Lukens Steel dropped more than a point but most of the big producers held their declines to fractions.

U.S. Smelting ran into a new flurry of speculative demand and spurted 2 points or so.

Prices were generally lower on the American Stock Exchange. Most changes were small. Losers included Paddington "A," Molybdenum, Crane Carrier, Creole Petroleum, Heli-Coil and Kaiser Industries. Among gainers were Cobb Arner, Ogden Corp. and Aerojet-General.
