India Starts 2 Attacks

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—India's army launched two new attacks into West Pakistan today and claimed it had forced a Pakistani withdrawal on the Kashmir front.

India reported Pakistani bombers were driven off in an attempt to attack New Delhi. An air force spokesman in Pakistan said the report was "completely false."

Defense Minister Y. B. Chavan told Parliament one Indian spearhead already was five miles deep into southeastern Pakistan.

Reports reaching New Delhi said this force captured Gandra, six miles inside the frontier about 220 miles east of Karachi, Pakistan's main port and naval base.

These accounts said the army was advancing toward Khapra, 15 miles inside Pakistan. The Defense Ministry could not confirm these reports.

Eye Revision of Tax Plan in Lansing Talks

Large State Surplus Indicates That Less Revenue Is Needed

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George Romney and a bipartisan group of legislators meet today to determine whether they should aim for a more modest tax increase in the next 2½ years because of the unexpectedly large surplus the state found in its treasury last week.

force the small Pakistani army to withdraw from southwestern Kashmir in order to defend the new fronts.

A REPRISAL

A New Delhi spokesman said the thrust into West Pakistan in the southeast was in reprisal for a Pakistani naval bombardment of the port of Dwarka, about 240 miles down the coast from Karachi.

This aroused speculation that Karachi was the Indian target. Karachi is headquarters of the Pakistani navy.

An Indian announcement said the naval attack on Dwarka caused no damage of military significance and damage to civilian life and property was still being assessed.

However, Radio Pakistan claimed the naval shelling destroyed military and radar installations at a base at Dwarka from which it said air attacks on Karachi were being made.

The broadcast added that Indian air force planes attacked the Pakistani navy ships and the naval guns shot down some of the planes. It said the Pakistani ships suffered no losses.

Guevara Now in Cuba, U.S. Sources Affirm

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ernesto (Che) Guevara is now in Cuba and has been ever since his return there from Africa in March, official U.S. sources affirmed today. (Earlier story on Page B-1).

Romney announced then that the surplus stood at an estimated $135.5 million.

He indicated the amount of new revenue the state will need in the next 2½ years may not have to be as large as originally thought.

He and the legislators had been backing a tax package pegged to personal and corporate income taxes, to produce $200 million in new money by mid-1968.

He indicated last week, however, that new revenue figures show a need for about $160 million in increased income to avoid deficits and to provide some program improvements.

AT PRESENT LEVELS

About $79 million would be needed if state services stayed at present level.

House Democrats are scheduled to meet in a caucus Friday to determine whether they want fiscal reform on the agenda for the fall session, opening next Tuesday.

The surplus announcement gave new ammunition to a number of legislators who do not want fiscal reform this year.

Romney has said repeatedly it would take "a political miracle" to get it now.

The proposed personal income tax of 3 per cent could be lowered slightly in rate because of the surplus or could have its exemptions increased from $600 to $1,000. Romney has said that any lowering of revenues would be done through the income tax.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Betsy pushed a six-foot wall of water across Florida's lower east coast today—the highest since the disastrous flood of 1926—and battered the Florida Keys with savage, 140-mile-an-hour winds.

The mighty tide, pushed by a raging east wind that followed the passage of the storm center, sent the Miami River surging out of its banks for blocks on both sides and into numerous industrial plants.

Elsewhere, the waves have swamped residential islands and sent salty floods pounding down the streets of Miami.

Fort Lauderdale and other cities.

Water surged three feet deep in Miami's palm-lined Biscayne Boulevard.

Not since the infamous storm of 1926, which sent Miami settlers streaming back northward and broke the back of the great Florida land boom, had a hurricane driven so much seawater ashore.

ESCAPED DAMAGE

The metropolitan areas of the Florida Gold Coast apparently escaped major damage from winds which peaked at 105 miles an hour at Miami, considerably lower than expected.

But word was still to come from the smaller communities along the Florida Keys over which the eye of the mighty storm passed, lashing out with the mightiest 140-mile-an-hour blows.

Despite the hours-long battering of wind and wave, only one death was reported.

Helen Cooper, 40, was electrocuted at Miami by a falling power line.

BELIEVED STRANDED

Fear rose, however, for nine persons believed stranded aboard three houseboats in a mangrove inlet at Ragged Key, south of Miami.

"We told them to abandon the boats," a Coast Guard officer said. "They waved us off."

As Betsy raged on westward across the narrow bottom of the Florida peninsula, aiming for the Gulf of Mexico and other coastlines ahead, word came that Nassau had been "stunned, shocked and badly damaged" by the hurricane.

But Etienne Dupuch, publisher of the Nassau Tribune and acting premier of the islands, said in a telegram to the Associated Press that "so far we have no casualties."

SEEMS MIRACULOUS

This seemed miraculous in view of the terrible 12-hour beating the Bahamian capital and its 50,000 residents took from the storm yesterday.

Probably the greatest damage dealt by the wind on the Florida mainland was the destruction of flimsy overhead power lines which knocked out electric service to 80 per cent of Miami and Fort Lauderdale customers.

This meant for many of them days of primitive living ahead without lights, refrigeration or cooking facilities.

House trailers were smashed and there was the other inevitable wind debris in the hurricane's wake—shattered windows, fallen signs, utility poles and trees.

GREAT DESTROYER

The water was the great destroyer. Along Collins Avenue, Miami Beach's famed "fashion row" was hit hard by the tide.

Water flowed three feet deep entirely across Key Biscayne, a resort and residential island off the mainland at Miami.

Three barges torn loose from their moorings by the wind knocked out the island's only escape route, the Rickenbacker Causeway. Its harbor was reported "in shambles."

Key Biscayne residents had been warned to evacuate the island, but the tide there was not as high as expected and there was no report of casualties.

OUT OF BANKS

Picturesque canals interlacing Fort Lauderdale surged out of their banks and put several luxury apartment islands underwater.

On the seashore at Hollywood, the tide chewed out a portion of the east wall of a big luxury hotel, the Diplomat.

Dirksen, LBJ Bills to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Everett M. Dirksen's legislative reapportionment amendment and President Johnson's immigration bill came out of the Senate Judiciary Committee together today.

Dirksen's proposed constitutional amendment to overcome the Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote decision was reported to the Senate without recommendation by a 9-7 vote.

The administration bill to abolish the national origins quota system of immigration was approved by a 14-7 vote.

At a committee meeting last week, after members deadlocked 8-8 on the reapportionment amendment, Dirksen blocked action on the immigration bill.

At today's meeting, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., broke the deadlock by voting to report out Dirksen's proposed amendment, although Dodd reiterated his opposition to it and predicted its rejection by the Senate.

OTHER FACTORS

Dirksen's amendment would permit factors other than population to be taken into account in apportioning one house of a state legislature if the people approved in a referendum.

A similar proposal fell seven votes short of the required two-thirds majority in the Senate last month.

In advance of today's committee meeting, Dirksen had indicated he had assurances his new proposal would be sent to the Senate. He said he was prepared to continue his blockade of the immigration measure unless his proposal was cleared.

Sun Plans Short Visit

Today's clouds will drift away by tonight leaving skies clear and temperatures a little cooler, the low 40s to 56.

North to northeasterly winds at 5 to 15 miles per hour will blow clouds back again tomorrow, and scattered showers or thundershowers Friday.

Temperatures will hit highs of 66 to 74 tomorrow.

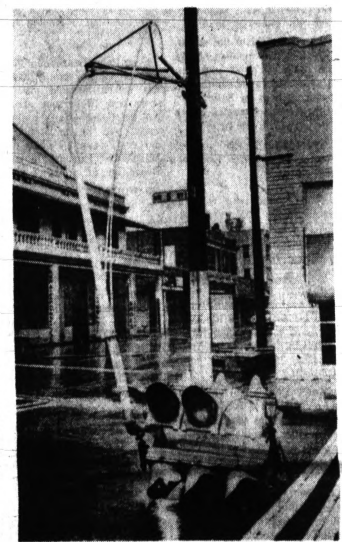

At 6 a.m. today the thermometer in downtown Pontiac registered 58. At 2 p.m. the reading was 64.

Local Traffic School Is Back in Session

Another class in the continuing series of traffic schools, cosponsored by the Pontiac police, the Auto Club and The Pontiac Press, will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the City Commission chamber in City Hall.

Emphasis will be placed on safe driving and school children.

Patrolman Billie Irwin will be the instructor for this, the fourth class in the traffic safety series.

Polio Drive Money

Gov. Romney heaped praise on Oakland County's citizenry last night for raising $200,000 for establishment of a community trust fund.

Engineered by the Oakland County Medical Society, the trust fund was officially announced at a dinner at Kingsley Inn, in Bloomfield Hills.

The fund stemmed from the oral polio immunization program of 1964 when county residents voluntarily paid approximately $420,000 for the anti-polio sugar cubes.

A surplus of $200,000 was realized after costs of the program were paid.

The trust fund will be used to benefit the following areas, according to Medical Society of officials.

AREAS TO BENEFIT

Medicine, religion, charities, education, science, civic activities, economics and the arts.

Last night, Dr. Zachary F. Endress, the society's president, gave the initial contribution to Gov. Romney, who represented Oakland County's citizens.

Romney, in turn gave the $200,000 check to Raymond T. Perring, chairman of the Detroit Bank & Trust Co., which will administer the trust.

NO REASON

"Considering that 10,000 persons will appear before the camera, I see no reason why we should give so much attention to an elected official," said Ingraham.

'Let's Be Fair --Take Hare Out of There'

Secretary of State James M. Hare is going to get the old heave-ho in Birmingham.

Not bodily. Just his photograph.

The photo is used to direct the eyes of driver's license applicants to the lens of the camera.

A suggestion yesterday by City Commissioner Carl Ingraham, a Republican, led to Hare's removal.

"No reason" would appear before the camera, I see no reason why we should give so much attention to an elected official," said Ingraham.

WELCOME BACK—Mrs. Everett Cooke, second grade teacher at Webster School in Pontiac, welcomes her students back to the classroom after a long summer vacation. Children throughout the area began returning to classes today.

Area Students Back to School This Week

Area school districts unlimbered their instructional machinery today as many elementary school children returned to the classroom for the beginning of another school year.

The educational plants will slip into high gear Friday—the first full day of classes for all students except kindergartners in Pontiac and most area school districts.

Catholic schools throughout the area also began classes today.

In the Waterford Township School District seventh and 10th graders reported to schools today. All secondary students will be in classes tomorrow, and Friday, all people will be at their desks.

Emmanuel Christian school begins classes tomorrow.

Kindergarten students in Pontiac are scheduled to begin school on Monday.

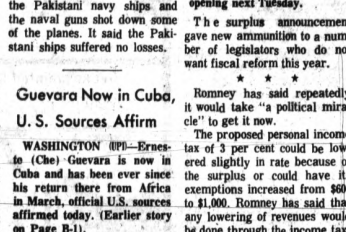

Although classroom doors did not open until today, preparations to welcome the more than 40,000 public and parochial students in Pontiac and Waterford Township began shortly after classes ended in June.

Many schools were given a complete face lifting; others received additions and were expanded.

Some teachers began reporting for work 10 days ago, and many instructors have spent the last week in classes and workshops, preparing for the school year.

The anticipated enrollment in the Pontiac schools is 20,040 students. Waterford Township schools expect approximately 18,000 pupils.

Sam has graduated from prisoner to parolee. He's been given the traditional warning: If he does with his second chance is largely up to him.

"I'll give him a try, anyway," said James Green (above) as he took possession of the Hills squirrel monkey yesterday.

Green, 27, W. Hopkins, was the highest of a half-dozen bidders who vied for the chance to bail Sam out of the Oakland County Animal Shelter.

He was incarcerated Aug. 29 when he bit a boy at the end of a two-week caper in Commerce Township.

Bus Service Will Begin for OCC

Bus transportation for Oakland Community College students will begin tomorrow with four buses in operation.

Shuttle buses will run hourly from the Auburn Hills campus to the Pontiac bus station beginning at 6:45 a.m. and from the Highland Lakes campus to the bus station starting at 6:40 a.m.

Both shuttle buses will arrive in Pontiac on the hour and return to the respective campuses at 25 minutes after the hour.

Beginning in the afternoon, buses will transport students from both campuses back to Pontiac on the half hour.

Besides the shuttle service from Pontiac, a bus will transport students from Ferndale to the Auburn Hills campus and another from Oak Park to the Highland Lakes campus.

HOURLY BUS
The Auburn Hills bus will leave hourly beginning at 7 a.m. from Nine Mile and Hilton.

Stops will be made on Hilton at 10 Mile and 11 Mile, on Woodward at 12, 13 and 14 Mile roads and on Adams at Maple, Big Beaver, Wattle and Long Lake roads.

The Highland Lakes bus will leave hourly from Nine Mile and Coolidge beginning at 6:45 a.m.

Stops will be made on Greenfield at 9, 10 and 11 Mile roads, on 11 Mile Road at Southfield, Lahser, Telegraph, Inkster and Middle Belt.

Other stops are scheduled on Middle Belt at 12, 13 and 14 Mile roads, on Orchard Lake Road at 14 and 15 Mile roads, on Maple at Farmington Road, Drake, Halstead and Haggerty and at Haggerty and Pontiac Trail.

Pontiac Area Chamber Will Meet Tomorrow

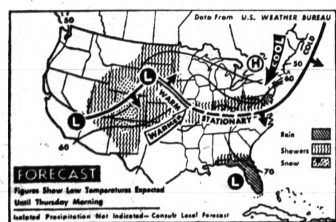

The membership committee of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce will meet tomorrow at 8 a.m. at the chamber offices to discuss the chamber's annual membership drive.

Richard Minewasser, chairman of the membership committee, said this year's slogan for the membership drive is "Beat 125 in '65."

Owners to Be 'Docked' if Stores Aren't Locked

BIRMINGHAM—Businessmen who fail to lock the doors of their establishments after closing hours will face court action in the future.

The City Commission last night made the oversight unlawful by adopting an amendment to the nuisance ordinance.

The amendment prohibits any owner of a business, commercial or industrial building to leave his door unlocked between the hours of 11 p.m. and 6 a.m.

It is designed to assist police in preventing unauthorized entries.

The new law is aimed at the store owner who habitually leaves his building unlocked, said City Manager Robert Kerning.

OWNER REFUSAL
He said there have been times when the owner has refused to respond to a call from the police department or takes a considerable length of time to come downtown to lock the doors.

The amendment does not ap-

Say Electrical System Likely Cause of Fire

Birmingham firemen have narrowed the probable causes of Sunday's Savings and Loan Association Building fire to the electrical system.

"The source, to the best of our knowledge, is the ceiling of the first floor in Lakes' Jewelers," Chief C. G. Nunnally said.

He would not yet venture an estimate of the damage done by the 5½-hour fire.

The chief noted the ceiling and floor of the second floor had crashed onto the ceiling of the first floor and were sagging precariously above displays in the jewelry store.

The items were removed to other offices.

Also formerly housed in the gutted building were the Birmingham Federal Savings and Loan Association, the Birmingham-Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce and several other offices.

Lyon Twp. Youth Is Crushed by Wagon Wheel

A 14-year-old Lyon Township youth was crushed to death by a wagon wheel last night when he fell from a cart while reaching for an apple.

Kenneth W. Piasecki, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Piasecki, 8920 Dixboro, was dead on arrival at McPherson Community Health Center in Howell shortly after 7 p.m.

State police said the boy was returning with a group of youths after picking corn in a field at 11 Mile and Napier. He was on the lead wagon in a two-wagon caravan pulled by a tractor.

Reaching for an apple hanging from a tree, he slipped and fell under the wheel of the rear wagon, witnesses told police.

Our Changing Schools—2

'Chemical Bond' Is Radical Change

(EDITOR'S NOTE: You start reading a new chemistry text book and, by the time you finish, you are already out of date. That's why new concepts, such as outlined in the following second of five articles on the revolution in the 30s, are being developed for high school students.)

By G. K. HOENFELD
AP Education Writer

RICHMOND, Ind. — This is what the knowledge explosion is, and what it means:

"If you started at the first of the year to read everything new in chemistry as it came out," says Dr. Laurence Strong, "by the end of the year you'd be 10 years behind."

It is because of this, and because as much has been learned about chemistry in the past 10 to 13 years as was ever learned before, that many of today's high school pupils are studying a "new chemistry" as part of a curricula revolution in U.S. education.

Strong, who has been head of the chemistry department at Earlham College here since 1962, said it all started in 1957 at a meeting of high school and college chemistry teachers at Reed College in Portland, Ore.

"The high school teachers complained that what they were teaching didn't suit them, and was not really relative to modern-day chemistry. For instance, one single textbook dominated the high school chemistry field — it gave the teachers little choice," he said.

CHEMICAL BOND

"I suggested a way out might be to organize a course around a key idea that chemists think significant. I further suggested that 'chemical bond' was such an idea.

"This is the idea that atoms are held together by forces to produce compounds. There are other concepts that could have been used.

"The high school teachers were interested, and asked us to do something about it. So we did."

The chemistry course which evolved from that Portland conference is known as Chemical Bond Approach, often referred to as "Chem-Bond" or simply "CBA."

TWO NEW COURSES

It was the first of two "new" chemistry courses, but it is not the most popular.

That honor goes to the Chemical Education Materials Study, known as "Chem-Study," developed at Harvey Mudd College, Claremont, Calif., and the University of California at Berkeley.

According to U.S. Office of Education figures, more than a million high school juniors study chemistry each year. Of these, about $8,000 are studying Chem-Bond, and about 250,000 are using Chem-Study materials.

Comparing the two programs, Strong said:

"Our Chem-Bond is the more radical departure from the traditional course. It looks less familiar to teachers, and they tend to consider our materials more advanced.

LABORATORY WORK

"Both programs emphasize laboratory work, but we have different kinds of experiments. I don't believe the difference would be very apparent to a college instructor — except, perhaps, in the phrasing."

The required laboratory equipment, Strong said, is about what a reasonably good high school would have anyway.

"We haven't tried to design new lab materials," he said. "We're trying to get them to use what they already have."

Would a father who had taken high school chemistry be so lost in the new program that he couldn't help his son with his homework?

LESS DIFFICULTY?

"I'd guess there would be less difficulty than in the new math, say," Strong replied. "But, you must remember, even the conventional courses have changed some in the past 20 years."

Strong said the percentage of high school pupils who study chemistry has remained fairly constant in recent years, although the actual number has gone up as school populations have increased. In biology, the percentage has been rising, and in physics it has been dropping.

"Chemistry today," he said, "is the key for going into biology and all fields allied with medicine, rocket, propulsion, plastics, solid state problems, and antibiotics."

Strong said the National Science Foundation wasn't particularly interested in the idea of a new chemistry course when it was first suggested to it in 1957. Two years after, however, the foundation sponsored a writing conference at which 19 high school and college chemistry teachers got together to write the first draft of the Chem-Bond materials.

REVISIONS MADE

Those materials were tried out in the schools and revised

Exam Asked in Holdup

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Robert W. Windom, 43, of Grand Rapids demanded examination Tuesday on a charge of armed robbery in the $45,581 holdup of a supermarket here Saturday night. Police Court Judge Robert Verrier ordered him held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Malaria is caused by a blood parasite transmitted from person to person through the bite of mosquitoes.

several times before commercial publication started in January this year.

"Unfortunately," Strong said, "some high schools are still using our earlier materials."

How is it working out? "We've followed some of our pupils from the trial period into college chemistry," Strong replied. "They seemed to do a little better; there were fewer that failed, more who got high grades."

Strong voiced an opinion shared with many scientists in different disciplines:

"If the elementary school science programs make a real difference in what the pupils bring to the high schools, then the high school science programs must be rethought and revised."

SCIENCE PROGRAM

"It's the elementary science program that will make the next big difference."

Even so, Strong said, "we have no plans now to revise our program. I would hope instead that someone else would come up with yet another program."

"I disagree with the physicists and the biologists who are trying to keep their own programs going. We all have our pet ideas, but we're not always going to be here. It would be best to try someone else's ideas."

(Note: The new biology.)

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many reasons of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plates dropped, slipped or wobbled as just the thing happens to you. Just acquire a little DENTURE, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not hurt. Gives "false color breath". Get DENTURE at drug counters everywhere.

FIGHT ASTHMA & BRONCHITIS TO SLEEP BETTER

At any time signs of wheezing, difficult breathing or coughing from asthmal, bronchitis or bronchitis, aggravated by air contamination, pollen, dust, smoke and pollen, take quick action. Use DENTURE, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not hurt. Gives "false color breath". Up to 35 Positions Facing Elimination in Extension Service

Michigan State University's Cooperative Extension Service plans to eliminate 30 to 35 positions this fall, Director Noel P. Ralston announced yesterday.

Ralston said the cutbacks are has been given no assurance that he will be retained in the extension service.

Lyle B. Abel, Oakland County extension director, said another 4-H agent will be sent to Oakland to replace Worthington.

AGREE TO SUBSIDY

The salaries committee of the board of supervisors has agreed to subsidize a second agent to replace Mrs. Montney, Abel said.

Ralston said rising costs for salaries and other expenses are forcing the staff reductions.

The State Legislature has appropriated about $2.5 million, just $269 less than last year, for operation of the extension service during the coming year.

The service, which is also supported by federal and county funds, currently has 461 staff members statewide.

Apparently no reductions are planned in the East Lansing administrative staff.

Lodge to Hold Dinner Dance

SOUTHFIELD — The Suburban B'nai B'rith lodge and chapter will hold their annual dinner dance at Congregation Shaarey Zedek Sept. 18.

The Golden Keys Orchestra will provide music for the 8 p.m. event.

Reservations, due by Tuesday, can be made with Robert Monheim, 5260 Cold Spring, West Bloomfield Township, or Ralph Miller, 156 Lake Park, Birmingham.

Unit Opposes City Hall Plan

Recommends Against Buying Post Building

WALLED LAKE — The committee studying the possibility of converting the Post Building to a city hall has recommended against purchase of the structure.

The committee reported that it was discouraged by the cost of the building and the necessary remodeling, although it did not cite any figures.

Receiving the report last night, the City Council tabled the topic for discussion at its Oct. 5 meeting.

It was noted that, in the meantime, Maynard Post, owner of the building, will have it appraised again.

When the council began consideration of the idea in June, Post reportedly was asking $42,000 for the downtown structure.

SALES FIRM

The two-sectioned building at 209 E. Walled Lake now houses Shuman Ford Sales, Inc.

The council in 1962 declined purchase of another existing unit, the Ramsey Building, and bought a four-acre City Hall site on West Maple.

The committee studying the Post Building was appointed by Mayor Wendell G. Kellogg Jr.

It consists of Councilmen Marshall Taylor, Frank Hamilton and Margaret Thibideau; former mayors Louis James and Milton Parrish; Hugh Hinkley, member of the city planning commission; and Forrest Hubbell, local developer.

Hart Guest of Honor

SAULT STE. MARIE (AP) — Sen Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., will be guest of honor Saturday at dedication ceremonies here of a 60-unit low rent apartment building for the elderly named in his honor.

Church Youths Plan Car Wash to Aid Avon Township Woman

ROCHESTER — Young people of the Bethany Pentecostal Tabernacle will give up their free time Saturday to help raise money for an Avon Township woman who faces a critical kidney operation.

The group will hold a car wash at the Shell service station on North Main from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

They hope to raise about $500 toward the cost of the $2,000 operation which Mrs. James Shontz, 24, of 1895 Tamm, must soon undergo.

She had the first two operations about a week ago when her deteriorated kidney was removed. A kidney machine is being used to purify her blood until the next operation when she will receive a new kidney, possibly from her father, Frank L. Farrell of St. Clair Shores.

One kidney was damaged in a childhood fall and removed several years later. Her remaining kidney has deteriorated

ART 'N' APPLES ENTRY—Mrs. Arthur W. Watson, 157 E. Hamlin, Avon Township, shows off some of the work she will enter in the Rochester Art 'n' Apples Festival Sept.

16-19. Mrs. Watson will also enter wood carvings, a hobby she took up about three years ago. Her work is just one example of the local art talent to be exhibited at the festival.

School Needs More Dogs for Training

ROCHESTER — Leader Dogs for the Blind, hit by a shortage of animals suitable for training, is seeking help in locating some.

Director Harold L. Pockington said there are 25 vacancies in a class scheduled to start soon and that about 50 dogs are needed.

"Last year we graduated 140 leader dogs with their masters. For this number it was necessary to enter more than 400 dogs in the training program, after screening more than 800 dogs," he said.

Pockington said the school is using German Shepherds, Labrador and Golden Retrievers between the ages of one year and 30 months.

In Independence Zoning for Apartments OK'd

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP — The Township Board last night approved a rezoning request for a multiple dwelling district on a parcel of land on Sashabaw Road across from Pine Knob Elementary School.

The applicants, Noble Hall and Clyde Reed, intend to construct apartment buildings on the site.

The request had previously been recommended for approval by both the Township Planning Commission and Oakland County Coordinating, Zoning and Planning Committee.

The land previously was zoned suburban farm district.

"In other business, the board heard a request by a group of people asking that six lots in Woodhill Lake Subdivision off Sashabaw Road be rezoned from commercial to residential district.

CONDEMNATION The group is also seeking to have old homes condemned in the subdivision, which is a blighted area containing several dilapidated buildings, according to township officials.

The board also authorized purchase by the township of two new automobiles for the building inspectors.

Historical Marker to Be Dedicated in Farmington

FARMINGTON — The city's Quaker and Civil War heritage will be recalled Saturday with the dedication of a historical marker on the Municipal Building lawn.

Speaker for the 2 p.m. ceremony is Dr. F. C. Bald, University of Michigan history professor.

The marker calls attention to Farmington's designation as the first Quaker settlement in the state and the fact that it was a station for the underground railroad during the Civil War.

A special invitation to Saturday's ceremony has been extended to all descendants of Arthur Power, founder of Farmington.

Nursery Session Set

ROCHESTER — The Cooperative Nursery School will hold an orientation meeting for parents Tuesday at 8 p.m. at St. Luke's Methodist Church, 3980 Walton.

The purpose of the nursery school is to provide a planned environment in which preschool age children learn to play together and have an opportunity for creative expression in music, art and play.

The nursery school is for three- and four-year-olds. Three-year-olds meet Tuesday and Thursday while four-year-olds meet Monday and Wednesday.

Mrs. James Spenseller, 308 North Hill Circle, director and teacher, will be in charge of the three-year-olds and a group of four-year-olds.

A 1953 graduate of Ohio State University, she holds certificates in elementary and kindergarten education.

TAUGHT SCHOOL

She has taught second grade and nursery school in Plymouth, was a recreational director in Bucyrus, Ohio, and has been associated with the Rochester Nursery School for 3½ years.

Teaching the four-year-olds will be Mrs. James McAlpine, 21 Shagbark, Avon Township, an education graduate of Wheelock College in Boston. While there, she taught three-year-olds at the Harvard Pre-School Nursery.

She also has had experience teaching second grade and kindergarten in Newton, Mass., and teaching three, four- and five-year-olds at the Red Barn Nursery School, Rochester.

Information on openings may be obtained by calling Mrs. David Hunt, 2181 Charnwood, Birmingham.

School District Told to Annex

OXFORD TOWNSHIP — The North Oxford School District, a tiny district with an enrollment of 15 pupils in grades kindergarten through eighth, will soon have to annex to one of its larger neighbors to comply with a new state ruling.

When and to whom they will be annexed will ultimately be up to the taxpayers, but the Oakland County Reorganization Committee is stepping in Sept. 23 to hear the facts and make a recommendation.

Residents of the district will hold their own meeting tonight to "find out what is coming up" and "to let them make their feelings known," according to school board secretary Mrs. Helen Smith.

A Michigan statute now makes it mandatory for each school district to have a high school. North Oxford sends its five or six high school students to Dryden.

much problem there," said Brown. "Every year for the last 10 years, the Oxford board has, by unanimous roll-call vote, passed a resolution which says they are willing to accept the North Oxford district whenever they pose the question."

The people of North Oxford will have to take on the debts of whichever district they join. The district now levies only the allocated millage of 8.17, whereas Oxford levies 8.59 allocated mills, 4.80 mills for building debt and nine extra voted operating mills.

Because of the small enrollment, North Oxford also has an unusually high valuation behind each child. Its total valuation is $833,068 which makes about $38,000 per child. The state average is $11,000.

Dem Club Will Pay Tribute to Adlai

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — A tribute to the late Adlai Stevenson will be the subject of tonight's Farmington Democratic Club meeting.

The 8 p.m. session, which is open to the public, will be held in the community room of City National Bank of Farmington, 10 Mile at Orchard Lake Road.

Speakers who will honor the memory of the late United Nations ambassador are Rev. Robert M. Eddy, pastor of Farmington's Universalist-Unitarian Church, and Allen S. Rosenfield, editor of the Farmington Observer.

Photographs of Stevenson's visits to Michigan and books written by and about the two-time Democratic presidential nominee will be on display at the meeting.

About 85 per cent of the nation's butter is produced by 15 states, the leaders being Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, California and Washington.

FESTIVAL QUEEN — Mrs. Joe H. Williams of Taylor Township, was chosen last night as queen of Michigan Christian College's sixth annual Fall Festival to be held Oct. 9 at the college, 800 W. Avon, Avon Township. Mrs. Williams receives her crown from last year's queen, Mrs. Everett Golden, 660 E. Columbia, Pontiac. Votes at a penny apiece produced more than $1,000 toward money for a new girls' dormitory at the college.

Plan Mulled on More Days for State Fair

DETROIT (AP) — A proposal before the Michigan State Fair Authority would extend the length of the fair following record-breaking attendance for the 10-day event which closed Monday.

Total attendance for the fair was 1,000,206, the highest in its 116-year history. The old record was set in 1963 when 1,006,308 persons passed through the gates.

The Fair Authority said Monday that before a plan to extend the fair by one or more days could be decided upon, several organizations and associations would be consulted to determine the most feasible way to expand the event.

Exhibitors at the fair carried away hundreds of award ribbons and more than $120,000 in premiums.

'Spudtacular' Shows Off Potato Crop

GREENVILLE (AP) — Showing off progress in its booming potato business, Michigan opens a two-day "spudtacular" today amid fields which are yielding a reported 1,000-plus bushels an acre.

A main feature is dedication Thursday of the $3.5 million potato processing plant of Ore-Ida Foods, Inc. Gov. George Romney will be main speaker.

The plant plans to employ as many as 400 persons processing up to one million pounds of potatoes a day into frozen or dehydrated consumer products.

One of the plant's storage houses—as long as two football fields—will hold an exhibit of potato planting, tillage, spraying, harvesting, sorting and packaging equipment.

DEMONSTRATIONS

Visitors will see demonstrations of irrigation and potato harvesting equipment on the Ferris Christiansen farm near McBride today and on the Beus-Peterson farm near Greenville Thursday.

The Beus-Peterson farm, with 1,400 acres of potatoes under irrigation, is twice the size of Michigan's next largest potato farm.

Ersei Beus, his son, West, and son-in-law, Delbert Peterson, came to Greenville last fall from Obolvo, Wash., where they had grown potatoes for another Ore-Ida plant.

The Michigan Potato Industry Council and Michigan State University are cosponsors of the spudtacular.

CROP ON RISE

In 1960, Michigan had 365,000 acres planted in potatoes. The industry declined until in 1962 acreage was down to 45,000.

Between 1964 and 1965 it climbed to 52,000 after the 1964 crop brought nearly $27 million.

MSU crop scientist Leyton Nelson says several recent developments are behind what appears to be the largest Michigan potato crop in 20 years.

He said legislative action allowing organization of the Michigan Potato Industry Council helped.

"This organization has put renewed vigor into variety research at MSU that has resulted in some promising new varieties with consumer acceptance," Nelson said.

BIG INROADS

"Upper Peninsula growers, with the russet burbank variety, have made big inroads on Midwestern and Chicago markets," he said.

AMA Easing Fight on Bills

Compromises Found on New Legislation

By Science Service
WASHINGTON — The anti-administration image of the American Medical Association is rapidly softening under Dr. James Z. Appel's leadership.

The AMA president has revealed that the membership's objection to imminent legislation on heart disease, cancer and stroke will include some 20 amendments proposed by the AMA and approved by the administration.

A recent meeting with President Lyndon B. Johnson and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John W. Gardner resulted in amicable prospects for lessened opposition to the bill.

President Johnson told the AMA advisory committee that he could not support deferral of Bill H.R. 3146 (a similar bill already has been passed by the Senate) which has aimed at establishment of regional medical centers for the study and treatment of the three leading killer diseases.

Dr. Appel said the President did, however, "direct Secretary Gardner to work with the AMA committee to make the bill less objectionable."

Many of the 20 amendments accepted by the Administration, said Dr. Appel, "are substantial and will allay many of the fears the medical profession had about the original bill."

Dr. Appel said the AMA still cannot support the House bill as amended but the amendments now agreed to and adopted by the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce "certainly make the bill much less objectionable."

At the AMA convention in New York last June, Science Service reported that the organization's House of Delegates would wage its next major battle on the report of the President's Commission on Heart Disease, Cancer and Stroke, but that an advisory committee was being set up to discuss the report.

Capital Punishment—1

Legal Experts Still Sharply Split on Death Penalty

EDITOR'S NOTE: The trend seems to be against the death penalty but the arguments for and against still vary violent. UPI's national reporter, in the first of three dispatches on the subject, covers some of these arguments and the history of capital punishment.

By HARRY FERGUSON
UPI National Reporter

WASHINGTON — Each morning for 12 years and five months Edgar Labat and Clifton Poret have awakened wondering whether they were going to die in the electric chair. They have lived under the death sentence longer than any person in the history of the U.S. penal system.

The two negroes were convicted in Louisiana on March 23, 1953, for "aggravated rape" of a New Orleans woman. Under state law the death sentence is mandatory. Labat and Poret have been tried three times and convicted three times.

Their lawyers have kept them out of the electric chair by raising legal questions about the exclusion of Negroes from the grand jury and the trial juries.

The story of Labat and Poret never caught the attention of the world as did the Caryl Chessman case in California, even though they have spent more time in the shadow of death than he did.

But Chessman is dead and these two men are still alive. Thus when the argument rages among the experts about capital punishment, Labat and Poret suddenly become the most famous prisoners in this nation.

DIVIDE SHARPLY

No moral or legal question of our time has divided the experts so sharply than whether any government should execute a man for any reason whatsoever. The trend in the world and in this nation is against capital punishment, but the argument remains as violent as ever.

Is it inhuman torture to keep Labat and Poret wondering for more than 12 years whether they are going to die and, if so, when? Does capital punishment deter crime? Do men who have committed murder go forth to kill again when they are paroled from a prison sentence?

A nonexpert, trying to form an intelligent opinion about the death penalty, finds himself in a thicket of contradictions with no sign posts marking a way out. Should we look for a moral judgment in, for instance, the Bible:

"Whoever sheds the blood of man, by man shall his blood be shed."—Genesis.

"Thou shalt not kill."—Exodus.

Or should we depend on a legal judgment, like this:

Ramsey S. Clark, deputy attorney general of the United States, recently sent a letter to Congress saying the Justice Department was opposed to capital punishment on principle.

DEFENDS IT

But Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation — an arm of the Justice Department — defends capital punishment. "We must never allow misguided compassion to erase our concern for the hundreds of unfortunate, innocent victims of bestial criminals," Hoover maintains.

Persons opposed to capital punishment cite this fact: Vermont, which has the lowest homicide rate in the nation, has abolished the death penalty except in special cases. Alabama, which has the nation's highest homicide rate, retains the death penalty.

WOMEN'S Nadons WEAR
MIRACLE MILE
SHOPPING CENTER

PONTIAC MALL
OPTICAL CENTER
Open Evenings 'til 8:30 882-1113

At first glance, this seems to be a conclusive argument, but the fact is that the statistics can be used to prove almost anything.

Some states have abolished capital punishment and then gone back to it, sometimes because of the commission of a crime that receives much publicity.

Over the last three decades, the number of executions has dropped from 199 in 1935 to 15 in 1964.

SENSITIVE ISSUE

Governors, who hold the power of life and death over convicted murderers, are sensitive to the issue of capital punishment.

The Indiana legislature abolished the death penalty, but Gov. Roger D. Branigan vetoed the legislation on the grounds that the voters should decide in a referendum.

The Tennessee House defeated a bill to abolish capital punishment by one vote. Whereupon Gov. Frank G. Clement went to the death house and commuted the sentences of five convicted murderers on the grounds that men should not be put to death on such a thin vote.

Men still are capable of lapsing into savage, senseless killings as Adolf Hitler did in the execution of 5 million Jews. But over the years there has been an increasing concern and reverence for the life of the individual.

BECAUSE OF RELIGION

History is filled with instances of thousands of persons killed, not for violation of civil or criminal law, but because of the religion they held.

(Tomorrow: Are the innocent ever executed?)

State's Fiscal Future in Lawmakers' Hands

Ironically, the gratifying strength of Michigan's financial position may prove an obstacle to passage of Gov. ROMNEY's fiscal-reform package that would preserve it.

With the treasury deficit of some $80 million when ROMNEY took office in 1962 now converted to a $135.5 million surplus — $7.5 million higher than that foreseen less than 60 days ago — legislators may drag their feet in passing a tax-revision package before the 1966 election.

Nevertheless, a projection of the State's fiscal outlook clearly indicates the need for increased revenue in the years ahead if Michigan is not to sink back into the financial morass in which it wallowed under 14 years of Democratic leadership prior to ROMNEY's move into the Statehouse.

The governor, a brilliant businessman before throwing his hat into the political ring, brings a financier's acumen rather than a politician's expediency to the all-important function of sound management of the State's finances.

In submitting his well-conceived, conservative 1965-66 budget, ROMNEY pointed out that in providing minimum expansion of educational facilities and long-neglected social services, it was necessary to draw on the current surplus, with the prospect that inevitable, built-in increases in the 1966-67 budget would entirely erase it — unless new sources of revenue were enacted.

The governor's tax-revision program submitted a year ago and defeated mainly by defecting key members of his own party, envisioned $200 million in new revenue. But because of the steady improvement in the state's economy, there is likelihood that that objective will be trimmed to a lesser amount with commensurate easing in some particulars of the proposed tax schedule.

The fact that revenue from taxes and other income have risen substantially above reasonable estimates, contributing to Michigan's present financial vigor, is poor justification, however, for awaiting the proverbial rainy day before repairing the State's fiscal roof.

With the certainty of periodic cyclical fluctuations in the over-all economy, no business, government or family could remain solvent indefinitely by predicating future income on a comparatively brief period of record-breaking prosperity.

Though predictably reluctant to pass augmented tax measures, traditionally unpopular with the electorate, the Democratic legislative majority, the first in 30 years, has a golden opportunity to eschew narrow political considerations and join Gov. ROMNEY in a statesman-like, bipartisan move to effectuate a badly-needed fiscal reform program for Michigan, when it convenes this month.

Albert Schweitzer

The Great White Doctor died Saturday night and his mortal body now lies in eternal sleep in Lambarene, the community in Gabon, Africa, where for a half century he served his beloved natives.

Born in Germany, ALBERT SCHWEITZER early distinguished himself as a musician and a scholar in the realm of theology and philosophy. He authored literary works of note on all of those arts.

But at age 30, the winner of the 1952 Nobel Peace Prize felt the pull of his life's calling and took up the study of medicine in preparation for fulfillment of his role in service to humanity.

On completion of his medical training, SCHWEITZER and his bride sailed for what was then French Equatorial Africa and built a primitive hospital.

His work was interrupted by World War I, during which he was interned by the French as a German. But in 1924, the medical missionary returned to Lambarene to rebuild the hospital that he found in ruins.

The new center grew from 50 to 200 beds, and subsequently a leper colony was established to care for 300 of the afflicted.

SCHWEITZER and his wife, who died in 1957, visited the United States in 1949. During their two-month stay, he delivered at Aspen, Colo., the principal address at a convocation of scholars marking the 200th anniversary of the birth of Goethe, on whom the speaker was considered a leading authority.

Though his earthly mission ended at 90, the spirit of Albert Schweitzer and his dedication to the cause of humanity will live on through the ages.

God rest his sublime soul.

Free Bargaining Now a Myth

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — This country is unlikely to see again a big strike in any industry where a prolonged shutdown would seriously hurt the general welfare or the national economy.

President Johnson was using kid gloves when he persuaded the steel industry and the steel workers last week to reach a settlement without a strike. He simply pressured them into it and offered suggestions they accepted.

If he had failed, undoubtedly he would have obtained an injunction to postpone a strike 90 days. If at the end of that time there was still no agreement, he could have asked Congress for action to prevent a strike.

These steps might seem harsh in a society which long prided itself on a tradition of free, collective bargaining. But he would have been no more drastic than other presidents before him.

For most of American history labor had little protection from the law. Management didn't have to bargain with a union. It could shut down its plant. It could get court injunctions to stop a strike.

The change came in the 1930s. In 1932, under the Norris-LaGuardia Act, Congress made it almost impossible for a judge to issue an injunction against a strike.

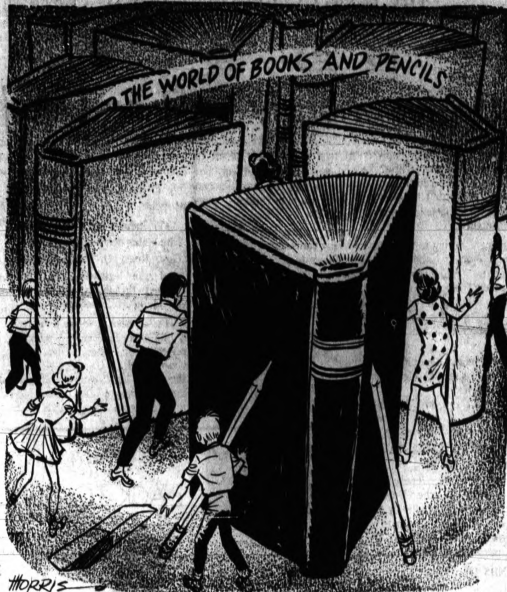

In 1947, after a fantastic spasm of post-war strikes, Congress passed the Taft-Hartley Act putting restraints on labor and permitting an 90-day injunction against a strike which might injure the country badly.

In 1959 President Dwight D. Eisenhower tried to return to the old hands-off philosophy and let a steel strike start. It lasted a record-breaking 115 days. Then he got an 90-day injunction to stop it and it was settled. No president is likely to try that again.

Free collective bargaining in any vital industry has become an American myth. It's free only negotiations stall and a strike threatens. Then the government steps in, mildly at first, tougher when it's necessary.

Back Into The Maze!

David Lawrence Says:

GOP Ignores Facts in Vote Drive

WASHINGTON — The Republicans have apparently decided to go after a substantial segment of the Negro vote in the big cities, which, according to some polls, is at least 90 percent Democratic.

But at the same time, the LAWRENCE Republicans seem to be ignoring the fact that large numbers of white voters in the Democratic party in northern cities are dissatisfied with the extremism that has been developing in the "civil rights" controversy.

The Republican strategy may be perceived in a new "position paper" on "human rights and responsibilities," which has just been issued by the Republican National Committee in coordination with a Republican Coordinating Committee.

A few words at the beginning of the study refer to recent violence, but there is no effort to fix responsibility on the Democratic party for permitting the disturbances to intensify. The Republican paper declares:

"Respect for law and order in our free society is basic to our survival as a nation. Violence, illegal breach of the peace of any kind by any mob, weakens the fabric of this nation, and undermines the American goal of equal opportunity under law for all our people."

"Indeed, to be achieved, this goal must rest unswervingly on respect of the law—all the law—of the land. We believe in, and we pledge ourselves to vigorous law enforcement at every level of government—local, state and national."

NOT FAR ENOUGH

But then the Republican pronouncement proceeds to accuse the administration of not going far enough in granting "civil rights" under existing laws. Most surprising is the way the Republicans unequivocally claim credit for the provisions of the 1964 civil rights law which permit the use of federal funds to bludgeon states into desegregating public schools. The Republican statement says:

"This is an instrument for compliance that was advocated and sponsored by Republicans in Congress."

There is some criticism, moreover, of the administration for delay in implementing existing statutes which "ban discrimination by employers, labor unions, and employment agencies."

The position paper in a general way charges the Democrats with failing to live up to their obligations.

NOT ONE WORD

But there is not a word in the entire paper that questions the constitutionality of what has been done to deprive the states of the power to deal with their own affairs.

Nor is there any criticism of the federal government's usurpation of the right to determine the qualifications for voters, though the Constitution specifically gives this right to the states.

The document on the whole, however, is an example of the failure of the Republicans to recognize realistically that they are only assisting the Democrats when they demand that even more extreme measures be taken to assure "civil rights" and when they disregard the protests being voiced throughout the country against the invasion of other rights, including the violation of state and local laws through demonstrations and incitement to disorder.

The Republicans who are issuing "position papers" seem still unaware of the dissatisfaction that is sweeping the country and the political potentiality of the issue.

Public opinion is often far ahead of some political leaders.

Capital Letter:

Dems Still Get Chuckle Out of Eisenhower Goofs

By RUTH MONTGOMERY

WASHINGTON — At a cocktail party hosted by Lady Bird Johnson's indispensable press secretary, Liz Carpenter, and her newsmen husband the other evening, a long-time Republican official confessed that he had never before been invited to the White House, until to the recent ceremony honoring Herbert Hoover's memory.

He confided that he was standing alongside former Republican National Chairman Leonard Hall and President Eisenhower's favorite brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, when a LBJ read the now-famous telegram in which Ike "regretted" not being able to attend the Hoover ceremony, but explained that he had a previous engagement at a golf tournament in Pennsylvania.

President Johnson read the wire with a perfectly straight face, but it was obvious that he was getting a political bang out of the opportunity to show that his Republican predecessor gave a chance to pay honor to the only other GOP president in the last 36 years.

Len Hall, scarcely believing his ears, turned to Milton Eisenhower and muttered, "Who writes those darn-fol telegrams for Ike?"

"He writes them himself," Dr. Eisenhower whispered back. This reminded another Republican guest of an unrecorded footnote to President Eisenhower's famous goof at a White House conference during the 1960 campaign.

Asked what Vice President Nixon had done to help formulate U.S. policy, he replied that he'd try to think of something if they'd give him a week.

The guest, a top presidential assistant during the Eisenhower administration, disclosed that after the press conference like told his staff to search the records and prepare a list of policy actions in which GOP presidential candidate Nixon had played a prominent part.

"We came up with a good-sized list for him," the former aide grinned, "but at the next week's press conference no one asked him the question."

The Oklahomaan

Prestige of the United States Supreme Court and respect for it has declined measurably the past decade. President Johnson's present appointment of Washington attorney Abe Fortas to the court does little to improve its image.

Without impugning the appointee's personal integrity his selection is questionable simply because he lacks judicial experience or even a high professional reputation as a lawyer. His principal qualifications seem to be that he has been a loyal party worker, a confidant to the president, and has been prominent in that half-world of influential fixers in the nation's capital.

There will be opposition to his appointment. The manner in which the administration has been able to get the senate to dance to its piping makes Fortas' confirmation almost inevitable. He has been on the fringe of wheeler-dealer activities which, although not legally cited, have not always been in the public interest. This is part of the dual standard for public relations-party worker types.

The Supreme Court is the final arbiter of constitutional interpretation and therefore of the nation's laws. Although it can be criticized for creat-

'Need Action to Increase City Police Force'

My compliments are extended to Chief Hanger for letting the people know how we stand with our police protection. If there is a need for 45 more men, let's hope the City does something about it now.

I have noticed that there are many unmarked police cars answering calls. Can't the City afford to equip these cars? It is understandable why the radar car isn't fully equipped, but why not also equip the radar men with helmets like Detroit and Bloomfield Township?

Let's hope our City thinks less about working on an industrial park at this time or at least until they bring up our police force to handle what we have now.

ing legislation in the guise of interpretation, it remains part of our triangular system. His decisions are far-reaching. Its membership should be above reproach or suspicion. At a time when the Court's prestige is at a low point the president could have done something to restore it. Instead of professional competence, the criterion now appears to be party politics and influence peddling.

Also disquieting is the apparent lack of a national program to recruit workers to replace the braceros. We have the anomaly of rioting in Watts, partly precipitated by unemployment, while only a few miles away crops have been rotting in the field because there was no one to pick them.

There may be some practical reason why some of the unemployed are not suitable. But it is probably also true that the majority of the unemployed in Watts have farm backgrounds. One of the complaints of the small farmers who have had to rely on untrained help to replace the skilled Mexicans, is the great loss of produce due to improper harvesting.

But surely in the thousands of unemployed in Watts and in adjoining states, there must be a considerable number of men, now receiving relief checks, who could have been recruited for the farm emergency. From every angle it appears that Mr. Freeman acted hastily in barring Mexican immigrants until he had worked out a system that would be a substitute for the old one.

OK Rezoning for Apartments Opposite Hospital

Rezoning was approved last night to permit construction of two large apartment complexes on land across from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

The two projects by Charles L. Langs and Dr. John R. Yivissaker, respectively, will be erected on land on both sides of the projected East Boulevard extension, between Woodward and the railroad tracks.

The City Commission approved the new Residential-3 zoning.

A related request from Langs for commercial rezoning for a portion (6.69 acres) of his property along Woodward was referred to the City Planning Commission.

The rezoning is sought to permit a shopping center adjacent to the projected apartment complex.

A contract with Stanley B. Jones of Pontiac for $40,488 worth of site improvements on R20 and R44 urban renewal properties also was okayed last night.

Rezoning was introduced for a shopping center on the west side of Baldwin between Montcalm and Merrimac. The City Planning Commission recommended that final approval be held up until an acceptable plot plan had been presented.

The commission set Sept. 28 for final action.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. was the only commission member to vote against the rezoning.

Taylor, who said he was in favor of the shopping center, indicated he thought the plot plan should go through the City Planning Commission.

Final commercial rezoning was approved last night for two lots, one south of 723 Portland and the other south of 724 Wing.

Also last night, a proposal to vacate a portion of the alley parallel to and between Thorpe and Mark, Liberty to the alley parallel to Huron, was introduced. A public hearing was set for Oct. 12.

A hearing was also held last night on the construction of a water main in Columbia from Cloverlawn to 280 feet west.

COLLECTION CENTERS

The commission approved contracts establishing four neighborhood drug-stores as collection centers for water and sewer bill payments. Some area bank branches were also set as collection centers.

The City Commission upheld recommendations from the planning commission to deny rezoning for 499 W. Huron and 383-389 W. Kennett. The request for both parcels had been for commercial rezoning.

A rezoning request for a lot near the northwest corner of Auburn and East Boulevard, along with a alley vacation request, was sent back to the City Planning Commission after lengthy discussion.

A drive-in restaurant — Dogs & Suds — was proposed for the corner, which is currently zoned commercial. The rezoning petition sought commercial rezoning for an adjacent lot, now zoned residential-3, and the vacating of an alley that runs in between.

A protest petition, signed by nearby residents, opposed the projected drive-in.

The rezoning request was referred back to city planners because of arguments presented by an attorney for the landowner.

The attorney claimed the drive-in could be put there anyway and the only question was whether to rezone the remaining lot in an already commercial area.

Public hearings were set for Sept. 21 on curb, gutter, grade, gravel and related work on Madison, Emerson to Kettering; Bennett, Howard to Baldwin, and grade and gravel for the alley east of Joslyn, Westbrook to LeBaron.

Final public hearings were held on similar street improvements on Lookout, East Boulevard to Astor; University, Colgate to Walton, and Spruce, Mount Clemens to Bigham.

City Manager Joseph A. Warren reported last night that the city had received notice from the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) that the federal agency would not speed up the handling of the city's request for south-board air service.

Warren said that this did not mean CAB would not consider the request, but merely would not give it any priority.

Commission Meets Monday

The City Commission will meet on Monday next week instead of Tuesday, as regularly scheduled.

The commission set the Monday meeting last night. Commissioners, along with many city administrators, will be away next week from Tuesday through Friday at the annual Michigan Municipal League convention in Grand Rapids.

Monday's meeting will begin at the regular 8 p.m. starting time.

Commission Again Says City Won't Give Up Airport

The city's position in 2-year-old negotiations with Oakland County over the sale of Pontiac Municipal Airport was reiterated last night.

City Commissioners said flatly that the city would not give the airport away as county officials have indicated it should.

District 4 Commissioner Leslie H. Hudson prompted last night's discussion of the airport's sale by talking on approving a three-stall addition to Hangar No. 3.

Hudson objected to city taxpayers paying for improvements at an airport that was used primarily by county residents. He claimed few city residents actually used the local airfield.

He noted that the city was faced with a shortage of funds for other improvements, specifically, local streets.

100 PER CENT COST

Hudson said that present improvements were going in at a 100 per cent cost to city taxpayers, while the city would pay only 16 per cent of such improvements if made a county-operated airport.

The commission voted 5-1 to apply for state and federal funds to finance part of the costs of the three-stall addition to the hangar. Total estimated cost is $35,947.

The city currently has $12,000 promised from the federal government, while the state has promised $6,000.

City officials will seek to up

R20 Project Plan Okayed

Enables Submission to Federal Authorities

The City Commission gave a "go" sign last night to the city's revised plan for the R20 urban renewal project.

The commission put its stamp of approval on the bulky R20 plan, enabling its submission to Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency officials.

HHFA has already given a preliminary approval to the revised project plan, changing the project's financing and boundaries.

Roughly 4.9 acres have been added to the project, including two buildings — A now-vacant supermarket building and a warehouse building.

These buildings, according to Urban Renewal and Planning Director James L. Bates, will be torn down when the revised plan is finally okayed.

The gross cost, under terms of the revised R20 plan, will be upped from $8.8 million to $10.3 million. The net costs of the project will also increase from $6 million to $8.7 million.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. said that the city could still stop the projected improvements. He said the commission was approving only the forms to make application for the state and federal grants.

The hangar addition would house fire fighting equipment.

Meantime, Hudson agreed with his fellow commissioners that the city should maintain the airport.

Hudson said the county was in essence stating, "Don't call us, we'll call you," in the negotiations over the airport.

COUNTY WAITING

He characterized the county as sitting back and waiting "till we give in and give the airport to them for nothing."

The city has contended in negotiations that municipal taxpayers need a return on their investment.

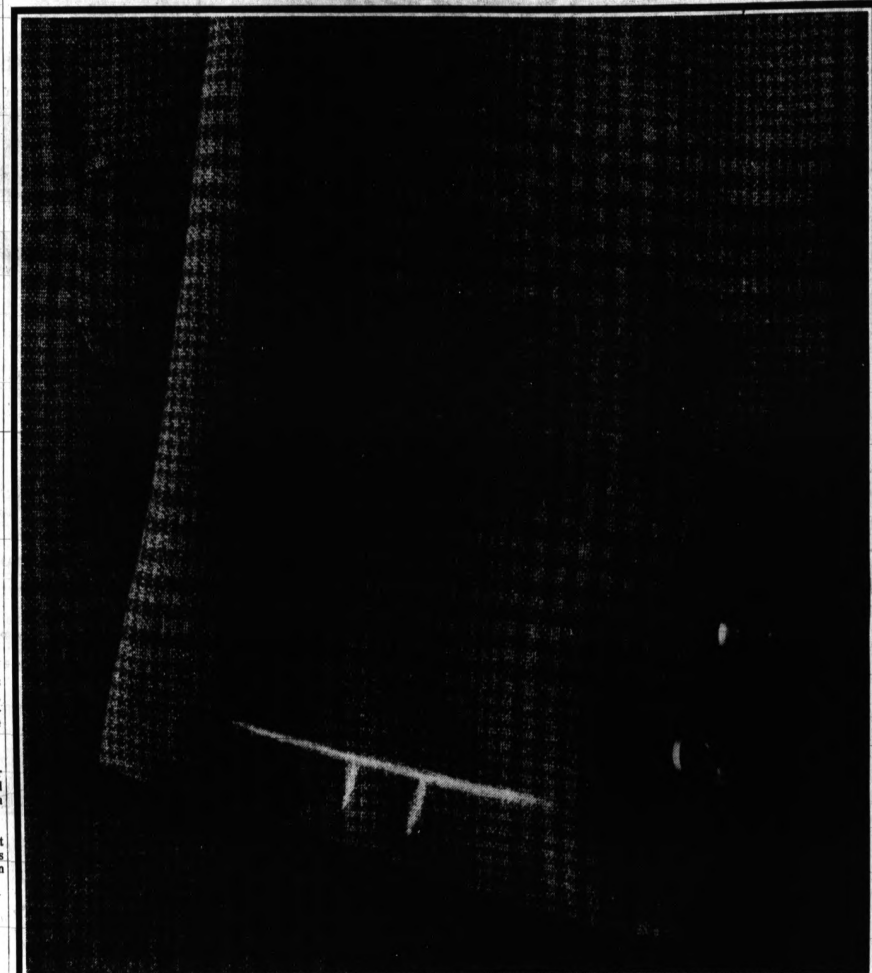

Hudson said the city has not been too tough in negotiations.

He claimed that the issue was merely: "What is needed more, a three-stall addition at the airport or better roads in the city?"

DIFFERED ON PRICE

Sale talks earlier this year reached a stalemate as city and county officials differed on a price for the airport.

The county ordered an audit of the airport's books and was slated to receive delivery on the audit early this month.

Republicans Urge Big U.S. Troop Cutback in Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders said today the United States should slash its troop strength in Europe, leaving a small detachment as evidence of a U.S. commitment to help defend European allies.

The party's top policy-making council advanced that recommendation and eight others in a position paper on the dollar and international finances.

"No nation can long endure as a first-class power dressed in a shabby currency," the Republican coordinating committee said. "Today, the dollar is the strongest currency in the world. But there is apprehension that it will not remain so."

The Republicans said America's balance of payments deficit and dwindling gold reserves add up to a critical situation.

6-MONTH STUDY

"The Democratic administration has not only failed to deal effectively with these conditions," the committee said, "but has contributed to making them worse."

A task force headed by the former budget director, Maurice H. Stans, drafted the position paper after a six-month study. The 27-member coordinating committee approved the report in a closed session Aug. 30.

It was made public today and the Republican National Committee said 5,000 copies of the paper, in pamphlet form, will be distributed to economists, political scientists and others who deal with international monetary problems.

The committee said a substantial reduction in the U.S. military establishment in Western Europe is overdue.

It said there are some 700,000 military and associated personnel there now. That means about $1.5 billion a year in overseas spending, about half the annual balance of payments deficit, the coordinating committee said.

"The Western European countries should be able to marshal their own conventional forces against invasion, backed by our continuing firm commitment to assist in their defense," the committee said.

"A small detachment of our forces can serve as evidence of this commitment," it added, "backed by our newly demonstrated ability to airlift reinforcements swiftly to any place in the world from central bases in the United States, and by our strategic air and missile striking forces."

Increase in Steel Prices Not Expected to Be Hefty

By NEIL GILBRIDE
PITTSBURGH (AP) — The big question after the multimillion dollar steel settlement is how much of the added labor costs will be passed on to the public in price increases over the next three years.

Informed sources do not expect the kind of hefty price increases on basic steel prices that roused the ire of the late President John F. Kennedy in 1962.

The steel package adds up to the seemingly incredible total of nearly a billion dollars in new labor costs over the life of the contract. From the third year on, when the full cost of the settlement is in effect, it will add $500 million every year. This is based on government estimates that every penny in steel labor costs is worth $10 million a year. Both the union and industry decline to put a total cost estimate on the settlement, but privately do not quarrel with the government figure.

BIG FACTOR

A big factor tending to offset the extent of price hikes is the rapid automation of steel mills. The automation began in earnest after Kennedy beat back $6 per ton increases, forcing the industry to seek other means of making up for increased labor costs.

President Johnson called the current steel settlement a non-inflationary one, but it obviously exceeded White House wage-price guidelines.

In fact, Johnson deliberately eliminated a reference to the guidelines from the text of his statement announcing the steel agreement last Friday.

The original text said the agreement was squarely within the guidelines.

Prices were not specifically discussed in the White House talks which led to the settlement, but they obviously were a major factor.

Peace Corpsmen Underrated

Volunteers Fool Psychiatrists

By Science Service
CHICAGO — Forty-four Peace Corps volunteers performed their jobs in Ghana with a success that apparently confounded the predictions of psychiatrists.

Results of a competence study conducted by Dr. Brewster Smith of the University of California, Berkeley, were revealed at the convention of American psychologists here.

On the basis of extensive interviews, Dr. Smith and an assistant evaluated each volunteer performance in Ghana. Their observations bore no relation to the predictions of a team of psychiatrists who had rated the volunteers before they left.

Dr. Smith believes that the lack of correlation can be partially accounted for by the "overconcern" of psychiatrists for "adjustment and mental health." This emphasis can blind psychiatrists as well as psychologists to aspects of personality such as commitment and courage.

One volunteer, for instance, had not impressed the psychiatrists or the training staff. He was a "loner," quiet and awkward in social situations. However, he found a perfect vocation in teaching, said Dr. Smith, and did a "splendid job" in Ghana. He is currently engaged in a "very promising" career.

EMPHASIZED HANDICAP

The California psychologist feels that psychiatrists in this case paid too much attention to the man's social handicap and too little to his "guts" and ability to respond to a challenge.

Volunteers fell into six basic personality patterns, developed by rating and organizing the volunteers' own assessments of their experience and competence. There was little correlation between this evaluation and judgments of Peace Corps administrators as well as psychiatrists.

Canada's Pearson Calls General Election for Nov. 8

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson Tuesday night scheduled a general election Nov. 8 in an attempt to win a majority in the House of Commons for his Liberal party.

It will be Canada's fifth general election in eight years.

In the 1963 election, the Liberals won only 129 of the 265 seats in Commons and since then have governed, with the support of minor parties. Pearson, announcing the election, said his party's position had become increasingly shaky during the summer.

"I believe that the Canadian people want to solve the big problems, to get on with the important tasks facing them, to get on with the job of building the new Canada," he said in a radio-television address.

NEED CONFIDENCE

"For this high purpose, they can best be served by a government at Ottawa which has the confidence of Canadians in every part of the country, as represented by a majority of supporters in the House of Commons."

Former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, whose Conservative party won 95 seats in 1963 and was the chief opposition, charged that Pearson called the election to escape "a vote of nonconfidence in Parliament for his failure to clear up the mess which has struck into the highest echelons of the Liberal government."

Diefenbaker said corruption would be the chief issue of the campaign. Pearson's government has been rocked in the past year by two bribery scandals involving government aides and a former Cabinet minister. Diefenbaker and leaders of other opposition parties also attacked Pearson for holding an election on the basis of the 14-year-old electoral map which now is in the process of revision.

STILL IN PROCESS

The prime minister, in his broadcast, said the new boundaries of the country's electoral districts probably would not be completed before 1967. To wait for this, he said, would subject Canada to "increasing uncertainty and factionalism because no party has a clear majority."

The campaign is Pearson's fourth as leader of the Liberal party and Diefenbaker's fifth as Conservative leader. Pearson is 68, Diefenbaker 70.

In Canada, as in Britain, a government can stay in office for as long as five years unless it is defeated on an issue of confidence. A prime minister, however, can dissolve Parliament and call new elections at any time.

In the outgoing Parliament, the Liberals held 127 seats, the Conservatives 92, New Democrats 18, Creditists 13, Social Credit Party 9, and independent 2. There are four vacancies.

Finnish Envoy Is Front-Runner for Presidency in U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Finland appears to be the front-runner, at the moment in the maneuvering for the job of president of the 21st General Assembly.

But no candidate has so far been nominated. Delegations are still maneuvering behind the scenes to find a candidate with a broad base of support among all nations.

The chances of a Scandinavian being elected president soared last week when the African group decided not to press for a second term in the presidency.

Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana, who was president in 1964, had declared himself "available" for another year, but the Africans decided not to buck the unwritten agreement which governs the rotation of the presidency.

This year is a "European" year according to that agreement. The Africans were at one time talking of asking for a second straight year for themselves on the grounds that Quaison-Sackey did not have a full presidential term because the assembly was paralyzed by the financial crisis.

UNPOPULAR

But they abandoned this plan when it proved unpopular with other groups.

The term "Europe" covers both the Eastern and Western blocks, but an East European has never been elected to the presidency.

Britain and France, as permanent members of the Security Council, are ineligible. Italy, Belgium and Holland have shown no interest in the job, and Spain and Portugal would find it hard to get the necessary number of votes.

Thus the choice narrowed to the Scandinavian countries and Austria. The Scandinavians had earlier said they would not put up a candidate against an African, but the withdrawal of Africa from contention removed this barrier.

A new one threatened to arise however when Yugoslavia was mentioned as being a candidate.

Disputes promptly arose as to whether Yugoslavia could be considered an Eastern or a Western European nation: her candidate was understood to be former Foreign Minister Koca Popovic.

Among the Scandinavians there was understood to be general agreement on Finland as the most likely choice for the presidency.

Two other men spoken of as candidates asked that they not be considered: Norway's ambassador Sivert Nielsen because of the fluid political situation in his country and Denmark's Foreign Minister P. E. Haekkerup because, in his own words "I don't intend to be a candidate."

That left Finland's ambassador to Sweden Ralph Enkell as the front-running candidate. Finnish delegates here were reported to be telling other delegates Enkell would be a candidate for the presidency only if he ran unopposed.

The Western European group will meet today to consider the situation again. It was thought possible the group might endorse Enkell as a candidate then, provided the question of Yugoslavia's candidacy was cleared up.

This would clear the way for his election unopposed. All other blocks were expected to fall into line once the Western Europeans decided among themselves.

It's a Matter of Self-Defense

Man's Survival Depends on 'No' Ability

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Man's ability to survive today depends on his ability to say no. There are so many things clutching at a man's mind, time and pocketbook that he has to adopt a negative attitude as a matter of self-defense. If he can't learn to say no, the pressures of civilization will eat him alive.

He will get into situations that even Houdini couldn't extricate himself from. He will go under.

DEAF EAR
To endure, a fellow must learn to turn a deaf ear to enticing suggestions. For example, here are a few commonplace invitations that can lead only to confusion, bankruptcy, regret or disaster:

"It's only a small friendly game, and we'll put a limit on the size of the bets. You'll be home before midnight, I promise you."

"But supposing I am the one to go first, Henry. Would you met someone who was really attractive? Now tell me the truth."

"Let me pick up the tickets for the show, and you handle the dinner tab for the bunch. Okay?"

"Try one of these. It's a recipe I made up myself. You mix a quart of gin, a quart of creme de menthe, a pound of brown sugar, three ounces of prune juice and —"

CRACK WALNUTS

"I don't care how many fillings you've got, Henry, anybody can crack walnuts with his teeth. There's a trick to it—it's all a matter of leverage. Open your mouth, put the walnut right there, and —"

"We'd appreciate it very much if you'd accept the chairmanship of our PTA committee on readership problems in the sixth grade. It will take only a few minutes of your time each month."

"In recognition of your standing as a leader in the community, we are letting you in on the ground floor of a business opportunity that comes only once in a lifetime."

"Dad, these kids don't believe me when I tell them you used to throw 50 yard passes in high school. Here's our football. Show 'em how easy it is."

SPEAK RIGHT UP

"Don't let it floor you just because I'm the boss and this is my idea, Henry. If you don't think it is sound, speak right up and say so."

"Anybody can dance the frug.

Come on, step out on the dance floor and I'll show you."

"Buy now, pay at your leisure."

"Be a sport, Dad. If you make the down payment, I'll save up and meet all the installments. Cross my heart I will."

IT WON'T HURT

"What if you are on a diet? One little piece of chocolate cake won't hurt you."

"You don't have to tell him that kind of language from him, dear, even if he is an officer of the law. Tell him who you are."

"The price may seem a bit high for a house this old, but we can practically guarantee you against loss. Confidentially, we hear the state plans to build a six-lane highway right through this land."

"Just climb out from behind that wheel, Buster, and I'll show you what I mean."

BRING IT BACK

"Why not take it home on approval? If your wife doesn't like it, you can always bring it back."

"What if the tax people have challenged your 1962 income return. Don't let 'em bluff you. Threaten to take them into court. They'll back down."

Yes, it's the invitations a man rejects that add years to his peace of mind.

Bill Okayed on Oswald's Rifle

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill to give the government permanent possession of the rifle with which President John F. Kennedy was killed has passed the House and gone to the Senate.

The rifle — and the .38 caliber revolver used by Lee Harvey Oswald, Kennedy's assassin, to kill Dallas policeman J. D. Tippit — are in an FBI storage vault.

But John J. King of Denver is suing the Justice Department to get possession of the weapons. He said he paid Oswald's widow $10,000 for them, with another $35,000 to be paid on delivery.

The government has obtained two postponements in the U.S. District Court suit. Justice Department lawyers must file an answer by Sept. 23.

During House debate, Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, asked if the legislation would provide government payment to King. Rep. Byron Rogers, D-Colo., said that is a matter for the courts to decide.

PROTECTION

Another bill approved by the House and sent to President Johnson would provide Secret Service protection for the widow and children of a president for four years after his death.

Rep. William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, said threats have been made against Mrs. Kennedy and her children "on at least more than one occasion."

Huey Long's Son Recalls Flamboyant Life of the 'Kingfish'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Thirty years ago today, Kingfish Huey Long was shot down by an assassin in the Louisiana state capitol. Russell B. Long, his son who was 16 at the time, is now assistant Democratic Senate leader. In this exclusive interview, Sen. Long gives his view on his father's political career and on circumstances surrounding the assassination.)

By CARL F. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty years after an assassin's bullet struck down Kingfish Huey Long, "we're not only doing most of what he advocated but we've even gone beyond it."

His son, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the flamboyant "Kingfish" whose controversial "share the wealth" politics carried him from the backwoods of northern Louisiana to the U.S. Senate, was shot Sept. 8, 1935, in Louisiana's 32-story state Capitol building at Baton Rouge. He died two days later.

"No one should be too rich and no one too poor" was the way he felt, the senator said in an interview. Sixteen at the time his father was assassinated, he is now assistant Democratic leader of the Senate.

Welfare programs, government construction of highways and hospitals, abolition of poll taxes, and free education are just some of Huey Long's programs that have long since become law, the senator said, adding that the Social Security and welfare benefits go beyond what he envisioned.

President Johnson has said he used to come over to the Senate and listen to Huey Long speak, the senator added, noting that a large part of the President's education and anti-poverty programs bear marked similarity to the Kingfish's ideas.

There have been differences, too. "We've tried to help people own their own homes," he said. "He tried to give it to them debt free."

When Huey Long refused to resign as governor upon election as senator, opponents accused him of being a dictator. He finally left the governorship a year later after his close friend, O. L. Allen, had been elected governor.

STATE SCANDAL

After Long's death, many of his associates, including Richard Leche who had been elected governor on the Long ticket in 1936, were sent to jail on various charges including fraud and income tax evasion in what became known as the "Louisiana scandals."

The Kingfish made no secret of his many relatives on the state pay roll, contending they deserved it because "they were among my political supporters of longest and most arduous service."

"By any objective standards," the senator contends, "he was the best governor Louisiana ever had. He was a doer, and he was enormously popular with the people."

"Many people have told me,"

Long said, "that they consider Huey Long responsible for Social Security."

NEEDED WEAPON

"They think (President Franklin D.) Roosevelt became interested in it because he needed something to build a backbone against some of the headway Huey Long was making."

"He never told me he was planning to run for president but as a politician I could see all the signs," Sen. Long said.

"I think he figured as a third party candidate he'd run well to the left of Roosevelt and pull enough votes away from Roosevelt that the Republicans would win. Then, in four years, he'd be the Democratic candidate and would be elected."

"A lot of wealthy Republicans would have helped him. They wanted to beat Roosevelt but they thought they might have created a Frankenstein. They certainly didn't agree with anything Huey Long was for."

HARD TO TELL

"I just don't know if he ever would have been elected," the senator said.

At the time of his assassination, Huey Long was only 42. Like his life, Long's death stirred controversy. The alleged assassin, Dr. Carl Weiss, was shot to death by Long's body-guards within seconds of the Kingfish's assassination and some have accused them of shooting the senator.

"There's no doubt in the world" that Weiss did it, the senator said.

In the two days that he lay dying, Long said, his father asked his doctors: "I don't know why that boy did that. Who is he? Why did he do it?"

LOST POSITION

The senator says the main reason he knows is that the judicial district which Weiss' father-in-law represented on the State Supreme Court had been restricted, forcing the judge to retire rather than face almost certain defeat.

Pakistan-India War Dangerous Problem for the West--Rusk

NEW YORK (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk Tuesday night called the India-Pakistan fighting "a very dangerous problem" for the West because, he said, it is a threat to the containment of communism.

Rusk made the statement during a 3½-hour NBC television special, "A American White Paper: United States Foreign Policy."

"If these two countries (India and Pakistan) could find peace with each other, the subcontinent could be impregnable from the point of view of defense and safety from the outside," Rusk said. "We have very large stakes in the peace of the subcontinent."

Rusk did not mention Red China by name but his statement on the fighting was in response to NBC commentator Chet Huntley's remark that, "in the conflict going on tonight in Kashmir, only China, pressing out from her borders into southern Asia, can be the winner."

the special broadcast, also reiterated the policy of the Johnson administration on Viet Nam.

Who can forget, he said, "that it was only 10 years from the seizure of Manchuria to Pearl Harbor, about two years from the seizure of Czechoslovakia to the outbreak of World War II in Western Europe?"

HOPES EXPRESSED

"Don't you remember the hopes expressed in those days that perhaps the aggressor would be satisfied by this next bite and then he would be quiet? And we found that ambition and appetite fed upon success and the next bite generated the appetite for the following bite. And we learned that by postponing the issue, we made the result more terrible."

Also discussed on the program were the relation between the United States and her European allies.

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville spoke of France's demands for a reorganization of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He said that when NATO was formed, it was based on a Europe dependent on the United States, a dependency he said no longer exists.

"We believe that NATO should be completely reorganized to give European countries more responsibilities," the foreign minister said.

OTHER OPINIONS

Other European political figures had different opinions about the importance of the United States in Europe.

French President Charles de Gaulle's "idea that you could achieve the reunification of Germany without the United States is sheer nonsense," said former British Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker.

West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder concurred.

"I cannot imagine that negotiations on the reunification of Germany could be conducted without the participation of the United States," he said.

Johnson Has 1st Meeting With Crime Probe Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson intensifies the national spotlight on crime in a first meeting today with the commission he summoned to probe causes and cures for this "malignant enemy in America's midst."

The 19-member group plunges without formalities into its first full working session, fortified by a $1.1-million congressional appropriation to finance the President's demand for the first systematic, nationwide study of lawlessness, law enforcement and the administration of justice.

Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach opens the two-day session. Although this is the first formal gathering of the group, its work has been under way since shortly after its membership was selected by the President in late July.

The President then described the membership as "a cross-section of American life." In addition to the attorney general as chairman, the commission includes three judges; nine lawyers, including the present and several past presidents of the American Bar Association; and former Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers.

Katzenbach recommended his own director of criminal justice, James Vorenberg, on loan from the Harvard Law School, to direct the full-time staff.

And Katzenbach has assured the President and the commissioners their first full meeting will be no ceremonial affair, but an intense attack on a national crime rate that has increased five times as fast as the population in seven years.

The commissioners are being formed into several groups, each of which is to be helped by specialist panels covering the entire range of crime, from the manner of its punishment on to prospects and hopes for its cure.

7 PANELS NAMED

The seven panels named by Katzenbach signify the scope of the task—public safety, administration and organization of police forces, corruption, criminal justice administration, youth crime, correction and one panel to cover broad issues of criminal punishments and the relationship of race and poverty.

President Johnson has given the commission until next summer to provide a final report and recommendations. Before then, Katzenbach hopes the commission will have completed detailed findings in the major areas of investigation.

Officials Split on School Services Law

LANSING (AP) — Because of the timing of it, Michigan's new auxiliary services law will force school districts to "take these services away from the children who are now getting them and give them to someone else," a Macomb County educator complained Tuesday.

The charge was denied by state school officials.

John Hailtema, head of special education for Macomb County, made his complaint at a meeting called by the State Board of Education to review proposed rules for administering the new state law. It provides special services to parochial and private school students.

IN EFFECT

Acting State School Supt. Alexander Kloster, who hopes to have the rules in effect by Sept. 20, said later:

"There is no valid reason to believe this; no facts to indicate that it will happen. Such a statement assumes a lack of resources—but this year the legislature and the federal government are making the resources available."

The law provides such services as crossing guards, visiting teachers and nurses, remedial reading and programs for the mentally and emotionally disturbed and handicapped—to all students on an equal basis—public or nonpublic.

Hailtema's remarks drew scattered applause from local school administrators from across the state in a meeting otherwise devoted primarily to the technicalities of the new law.

Hailtema said later he was not opposed to the law, but he complained that it is to go into effect in the school year opening this month in Michigan.

PAST DEADLINE

"Budgets for the year are already in effect; we're past the deadline for notification by the nonpublic schools of their needs for the year," he said. He suggested that implementation of the law be postponed for a year.

"In Macomb County, the state pays only 47 per cent of our costs for special education," he added.

"That is no longer true," Asstant State School Supt. Harold Brown said later. "This session of the legislature has removed other ceilings on special education and allows state payment of 75 per cent of the cost."

Delay of the law for one year would be contrary to the intent of the statute and, thus, illegal, said State Attorney Eugene Krasky.

EXPECT NO PROBLEMS

John Vandenberg, chairman of the Grand Rapids Coordinating Council on Education, quoted school officials there as saying they anticipated no problems. The council, he said, included representatives of public, Catholic, Lutheran and Christian schools.

"We can't make rules that will solve every problem in every school district," Kloster said. "What we need is a spirit of cooperation."

Canada Frees Mafia Suspect Immigration Office Conducting Hearing

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP)—A 38-year-old American, said by a former Detroit police commissioner to be a leading figure in the Cosa Nostra, left a jail cell here Tuesday after three days detention.

Sam Finazzo, a sometime resident of Detroit, was arrested Saturday at his summer cottage at Kingsville, Ont., after Canadian immigration authorities said he was prohibited from entering Canada.

George Edwards, former Detroit police commissioner, has testified before a U. S. Senate committee that Finazzo was in the so-called Detroit-Windsor ring of the $100-million-a-year crime empire.

Finazzo was instructed to return to Detroit immediately after an immigration hearing. Bernard Cohn, a queen's counsel retained by Finazzo, would not say if his client had been released on a security bond, although he said "it is customary in cases of this kind for a security bond to be posted."

Cohn said he presumed the hearing, which is in recess, would resume "within a few weeks."

NO PROBLEM FOR THEM — Five ducks swim unconcerned past a car partially submerged in southwest Omaha, Neb., yesterday following early-morning flash floods. Thousands of Omaha residents were forced from their homes after a night of storms resulted in the rising of two suburban streams. In 1964, flash flooding took seven lives in the locality.

Cuban Says Guevara Is Still Alive

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A former Cuban diplomat said he believes Ernesto (Che) Guevara is alive and directing guerrilla activities in Colombia, Cuba and South America.

Odon Alvarez de la Campa, who until recently was a firm supporter of Fidel Castro, disclosed reports Guevara was killed during the early days of the revolution in the Dominican Republic.

Alvarez said there have been similarities between the guerrilla methods of Guevara and current guerrilla activities in Colombia, Cuba, Peru and Venezuela.

He said Argentine-born Guevara, who was Castro's economic czar, has "gone underground" to run these activities.

Alvarez until March was counselor of the Cuban Embassy in Madrid. He lost both his hands in the explosion of a dynamite charge he was planting during Castro's struggle against the regime of dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Twins Mothers Club Moves Its Quarters

The Twins Mothers Club of Oakland County begins its sixth season at 8 p.m. Thursday in a new meeting place—the Pontiac State Hospital employees' lounge.

Dr. Stanley E. Reynolds, a Commerce Township dentist, will be the speaker, informing club members on normal child growth and development and twin comparisons.

Dr. and Mrs. Reynolds are parents of twins, Robert and Robin.

Officers for this year are: Mrs. Al Cesaro, president; Mrs. Robert Green, first vice president (program chairman); Mrs. Donald Hawes, second vice president (membership chairman); and Mrs. Bernard Cybul, recording secretary.

Completing the officers list are: Mrs. Alfred Quesnell, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Richard Schwarz, treasurer.

ALSO WORKING

Chairmanships are delegated to: Mrs. Robert VanMeer, Mrs. David Carlock, Mrs. Jerry Hockey, Mrs. Thomas Kastler and Mrs. Frederic Koby.

Other chairmen are: Mrs.

Jon Springall, Mrs. Jay Draper, Mrs. Donald Lovett, Mrs. Douglas Sullivan and Mrs. Theresa Willock.

Hostesses for Thursday's gathering are Mrs. Hockey and Mrs. Sutton.

Meetings on the second Thursday of each month are open to all mothers or guardians of twins or other multiple birth youngsters.

Mrs. Hawes may be contacted for further information.

Art Center Is Toured by Women

Dr. Harold Furlong, president of the Pontiac Creative Arts Center, Inc., recently conducted a tour of the old City Library on Williams Street.

FOR CITY

This building is to become an art center for the city as soon as enough money is available to do necessary renovations.

Seventeen women, representing city organizations and the Pontiac Society of Artists, participated.

The City Commission has signified willingness to help with the renovation of heating installation, electric wiring and plumbing.

TAX-EXEMPT

Meanwhile, the Internal Revenue Department has certified the Art Center as a tax-exempt organization, meaning that donations, contributions, and the like are tax deductible.

Arthur Rooks, owner of the Rooks Gallery, will speak before the Pontiac Society of Artists at a meeting at 8 p.m. Friday in the Community Services Building.

Installation of officers will also be on the evening's agenda.

Those assuming new duties will include Mrs. Russell Pockes, president; Mrs. Garfield Richardson, vice president; Mrs. Herbert Swingle, secretary; and Arthur Hayes, treasurer.

Ann J. Hoffman Weds John May

A reception in Rotunda Country Inn followed the recent vows of the John L. Mays (Ann Jane Hoffman) in St. Benedict's Catholic Church.

BRUSSELS LACE

Brussels lace fashioned the bodice of a gown of white satin for the daughter of the Sam Hoffmans of Sylvan Shores Drive.

She wore a short illusion veil and carried a ball of blue carnations.

SISTER

With Mrs. Earl J. Schulte, her sister's honor matron at the ceremony performed by Rev. Richard Thomas, were bridesmaids: Ann Barrett, Marilyn May and Diane Tee. The bridegroom, son of the Harry Mays of Utica, had Ralph Mitchell for his best man. Guests were seated by John Hoffman, Robert Krawchuk and Edward Rousseau.

The newlyweds will honeymoon at Cape Cod.

She holds a degree in public health nursing from the University of Michigan where her husband received his master's degree in physics.

Ann Jane Hoffman, daughter of the Sam Hoffmans of Sylvan Shores Drive and John L. May, son of the Harry Mays of Utica were wed recently in St. Benedict's Catholic Church.

'Estate Planning' Talk Is Heard by BPW Club

By MADELEINE DOEREN

The Community National Bank was host to the Pontiac Business and Professional Women's Club at a dinner program Tuesday in the bank's lounge with the provocative name "Club Overdraft."

Roger P. Rummel, assistant vice-president of the bank, presented Roger Coplan, trust consultant of the Detroit Bank and Trust Company.

His talk on "Estate Planning" was illustrated with film charts outlining the best ways of using and disposing of properties during one's lifetime and after death.

Because of its proximity to trust talent in the Detroit area, Community National does not maintain a trust department but is developing trust service as part of its facility to customers by appointment only.

FIVE CLASSES

The passing of property according to Mr. Coplan, falls into five categories: by contract, joint property, intestacy, by will and by gift.

In assessing one's estate, he said, one includes not only tangibles like home, furniture, cars, personal effects, stocks, bonds, life insurance, but also employee benefits.

He left his audience of some 40 members with a better concept of a situation which, if not handled judiciously, can be costly to heirs of an estate.

PLANNERS

The evening's program was arranged by the club's personal development committee with Vera Adams chairman, assisted by Mrs. Edward Eichmeier, Mrs. H. E. Gottschalk and Mrs. W. O. Coxen.

Hostesses were Mary Elsenor Lockman, Mrs. George Pudduck, Mrs. Russell Brackett and Mrs. Coxen.

Mrs. Raymond Cole, president, introduced new members: Mrs. Clifton Gabies, Mrs. Robert Spears, Jo Ellen Crawford, Mrs. Lulah McCully and Mrs. Eichmeier.

A NOTE OF SYMPATHY

Q: The father of a friend of mine died. This friend is married and has her own home. Her mother is still living. I do know the mother but not very well.

PEDESTRIANS

Q: When going up or down a flight of stairs, or when walking on the street, is it not an act of courtesy that the "keep to the right" rule be observed by pedestrians?

A: Yes, but unfortunately there are many who do not follow it.

The Emily Post Institute cannot answer personal mail, but all questions of general interest are answered in this column.

Mrs. Charles Schmidt, chairman of the publicity committee will be in charge.

Hostesses will include Mrs. Floyd Yeaman, Mrs. George Harshbarger, Mrs. James McMichael, Mrs. Milo Furney, Mrs. Beulah Anderson and Mrs. Schmidt.

Wrong Reason to Throw a Gala

Host Party for Gifts?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last week my husband and I gave a housewarming party in our first new home. We sent out invitations to 16 couples saying it was a housewarming.

Everyone came, but only one couple brought a gift. I was so hurt and embarrassed.

ABBY: I didn't know what to think. Yesterday one of my friends told me she would have brought a gift, but one of the other invited guests took it upon herself to call up everybody and spread the word that it's not etiquette for people to give a housewarming party for themselves, and therefore it wasn't proper to bring a gift.

She said a "real" housewarming party, where a gift is in order, is one that is given by friends for the new home owners.

Abby, if we had known this we never would have given that party. We went to a lot of expense entertaining those people with drinks and food. That girl sure had her nerve. But was she right?

NOT UP ON ETIQUETTE

DEAR NOT UP: "Etiquette" is a matter of common sense. When friends call on a couple in their new home for the first time, it's customary to bring a gift.

Your friend, the self-appointed authority on etiquette, could use some pointers on what's proper. However, if you gave the party only to harvest the gifts, the crop failure was just.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I gave a party at my home for a large group of women. Before going home at least six women asked me for some cake and sandwiches (and even asked) to take home to their husbands and children.

Now Abby, I am thrilled when my guests enjoy the refreshments I serve, and I want them to eat their fill.

But it disgusts me when they expect me to send home enough food for them to feed their families. I have children who enjoy leftover cake and sandwiches, too.

It seems that some people just want an extra meal for nothing. Please put this in your column for people who make a habit of doing this. And sign me—

How to Get Away From It All

By JANET ODELL

Ever wish you could get away from the telephone, simply your housekeeping and travel? Mrs. Richard Morgan, a homemaker who lives at Pontiac Lake did all three things this summer.

She, her husband and their three children went from South Haven to New Orleans in a homemade houseboat.

"We had a ball," says the exuberant Mrs. Morgan. But then, Jean Morgan would "have a ball" almost any place. She is an enthusiastic person to start with.

This boat trip has been a dream of her husband for years. But ingenuity was needed to fill in where money was scarce.

HUMBLE BEGINNING

The 21-by-8-foot boat was made from a razed garage and an old trailer. A neighbor offered the lumber in a four-car garage to Rick Morgan if he would tear it down.

The boat was built like a big Norwegian "pram" which Mrs. Morgan says will mean something to boat buffs. It was powered by a 15 horsepower outboard motor and sails — sometimes both at the same time which is poor boating practice, but effective.

There was plenty of room on the deck for the family sunbath.

Becky, 17; Peter, 15; and Tim, 12, took shifts with their dad steering and navigating.

Mrs. Morgan was boss in the cabin.

At her insistence, this wasn't too primitive. It was tall enough so that all could stand easily.

At one end was a double bunk for the parents — their feet were tucked under the deck. At the opposite end, three bunks from the trailer gave sleeping space for the children.

NOTHING FANCY

Housekeeping and cooking were pared down to essentials. Until the family reached Cape Girardeau, Miss., they shopped daily. After that, the towns were farther apart.

Small towns were much easier for them than cities like Chicago or St. Louis.

"I'm sure we walked five miles to find a laundromat in St. Louis," moaned Mrs. Morgan.

A two-burner gasoline stove and a plastic foam cooler cooked and kept the food. A gasoline lantern gave enough light for nightly reading sessions.

Breakfast and dinner were hot meals; lunch consisted of sandwiches and cool drinks.

When the Morgans tied up behind a sandbar, they would sometimes break out the barbecue grill and cook on that.

The boat was towed from Pontiac to South Haven. On July 10, all gear aboard, the family embarked.

They followed the lake shore to Chicago, then took the ship canal into the Des Plaines River, the Illinois River, and finally the Mississippi at Grafton, Mo.

Forty-two days after leaving Michigan, they tied up at a New Orleans marina.

Five days of sightseeing later, and the money from the sale of the boat in their pocket, they flew home in four hours.

The new rules on airplane luggage had just gone into effect so they were able to bring home the dismantled anchor as well as 10 pieces of luggage without extra charge.

Once more landlubbers, the Morgans have a host of memories and hundreds of feet of film to remind them of a 1,500-mile trip on their "Bounty."

Reception in the Elks Temple, Rochester, followed the recent vows of Wanda Jean Schenkenburger and Charles Danny McAdams before Rev. Charles Rooney in St. Michael Catholic Church. Their parents are the Willis Schenkenburgers, North Opolite Road, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McAdams of VanZandt Street. Wearing an Empire gown of white peau taffeta and French lace, the bride carried white orchids. The couple left for a northern honeymoon.

De-Grease First

Copper cleaners can't work efficiently on greasy surfaces. Soda and rinse copper pans with hot water both before and after applying a copper-cleaning product to remove discoloration.

Wallpaper Is Old

First used in the 1500's, wallpaper remained somewhat of a rarity until the 18th century, when it became the dominant wall covering, replacing tapestries and fabric in popularity.

Make Living Quarters More Flexible

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

In this era of "stretchies"—One Size Fits Everybody—what we really need is "stretch-housing." A home or apartment that expands to fit the existing number of people in the family—and then shrinks back to fit the ones who are left after the young have gone.

However, until that handy invention comes along, there are other ways of making your living quarters more flexible. One of these solutions is the so-called sofa bed.

With the high price of rents—and the cost per square foot of building a home—the young couple or growing family on a modest income might well consider investing in a sofa-bed. There is also the lounge-chair or love-seat bed which affords hospitality for a single friend or relative, when otherwise you'd have no way of putting up an unexpected guest overnight or for a weekend.

If you consider that the cost per square foot for building an extra bedroom can be estimated at from $12 to $15, and that the rental for an extra bedroom in an apartment can be about $25 a month, the cost of a sofa bed doesn't seem too expensive.

Prices generally range from $90 to $400, and you can expect years of service for that investment.

Take your time in selecting this piece of furniture, because in a small home or apartment it should give you decorative as well as functional value for your money. There are four basic types to choose from: the jackknife, trundle, hidden-mattress style, and the studio lounge.

One type may have a back that drops down to the level of the seat, to form a bed 42 inches wide, with storage space for linens beneath the seat. Some of the newer "hidden-mattress" styles have frames that take up a minimum amount of space, yet convert to queen-size beds, or provide extra-long mattresses. And you have a choice of foam or spring mattress.

Two career women I know who share an apartment decided to replace their regular living room sofa with a version of the sofa-bed—and had it covered in a fine raspberry silk. It's a handsome piece of furniture just as is.

Along with the improvement in styling of the convertible, or "hidden" bed, there is a new approach, psychologically, to this type of furniture. Today's homemaker has no desire, or reason, to pretend that the sofa or the lounge chair or the studio couch isn't also a bed! She's proud of the fact that she's got double her money's worth.

Dear Miss Feeley: I am buying a dairy farm, and I have no experience in this field. Would like to know where I could get information or books, on use of farm equipment, plowing, milking, planting, etc.

W. Z., Long Island City, N. Y.

Dear W. Z.: I'd say you're going to need more in the way of help than a quick reading course in dairy farming. The man who can teach you the most, probably, and will prove a competent, willing advisor is the county agent.

I suggest he's the first man to contact in the county where your farm is located. Look for him at the county court house. If he's not there, somebody will tell you where to locate him.

Dear Miss Feeley: Many years ago, under a payroll deduction plan where he was employed, my now deceased husband purchased Treasury Bonds. I was co-owner. I have lost them, and foolishly never kept a record of the numbers. Can I have them traced?

M. H., Long Island City, N. Y.

GEMS—Jewel of an Idea

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—GEMS is the symbol for Good Emergency Mother Substitute classes conducted each year by the Women's Auxiliary to Maricopa County Medical Society.

Because of GEMS, hundreds of babies in this area are safer and happier.

The course is available to anyone 12 years of age or over, although no specific age is recommended for baby sitters.

After its second year of sponsoring the GEMS plan, the auxiliary received a National Safety Council Award.

Those taking the six-week course doubled the second year and continued growing during the third year.

MRS. W. PACKARD JR.

Trip North After Vows for Couple

The First Unitarian Universalist Church in Detroit was the setting for the recent marriage of Linda Karen Grashoff to Willard Chadwick Packard Jr.

WHITE ROSES

Daughter of the A. Walde-mar Grashoffs of Kendry Drive, the bride wore a full-length gown of off-white peau de seau with silk illusion veil. She carried white roses and Stephanotis.

Erika Wilinski attended as honor maid, along with Judith Packard and Susan Turner, who were bridesmaids.

The bridesroom, son of the senior Mr. and Mrs. Packard of Southfield, had Gerald Bernadotte for best man. Seating guests were James Packard, Jerold Grashoff and William Case.

After a church reception, the newlyweds left for a northern honeymoon.

A Feminine Frill

Add a feminine touch to daughter's room with a supply of flowers from the dime store. They can be wound around a discarded electric cord to make an attractive flowering vine.

Saves Wallpaper

Before you drive a nail to hang a picture on a wall, slit the paper with a razor blade and fold a tab down. If you decide to remove the picture later, take out the nail and paste the paper tab back in place.

Really Big Yawn

WHY IS THIS WATCH CALLED A CERTIFIED CHRONOMETER??

OMEGA Constellation

Self-winding, calendar-dial Chronometer, $185. Other Constellation $175 to $1900.

The rating of "chronometer" is reserved for timepieces of exceptional accuracy which have undergone 250 hours of rigid testing...in extremes of heat and cold. The peerless accuracy of every Omega Constellation is certified by an official Swiss Testing Bureau. So exacting are these tests, less than one out of every 50,000 watches qualifies for this coveted rating. In addition to official chronometer tests, Constellation's 26-jewel automatic movement receives 1497 quality-control inspections during manufacture...ensuring longer life.

Powered by gravity, the Omega Constellation winds itself as you wear it. Without hand-winding, or power-cells which frequently need replacing, it will run for years and years, as long as you wear it. Calendar-dial models tell the exact date as well as the precise time...automatically. The Constellation is one of the world's finest watches. Ask for free Omega style brochure.

Operating Expenses Count

Gross Earnings vs. Net

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
Paul R., aged 38, is a clergyman in a small city.

"Dr. Crane," he grumbled, "you seem to take the side of business men against the professors and clergymen."

"But I don't see anything far in an economic system that lets me DR. CRANE earn only $6,000 per year, after 7 years of undergraduate and college training."

"For many men in this very city, who may not even have finished college, earn far more."

"And my doctor gets $17,500 per year, yet I spent as many years in college as he did."

"So is it any wonder that even we clergymen defend socialism?"

GROSS VS. NET

Probably 90 per cent of Americans have little idea of the difference between "net" income versus "gross."

For most Americans are wage earners or are on salaries.

If you are a school teacher or clergyman or on the payroll of any firm that gives you a regular weekly wage, then you are probably almost as blind to the true facts of economic life as is Rev. Paul.

So I reminded him that his $6,000 salary was "net" or take-home pay, whereas the $17,500 income of the physician, dentist, mortician, florist, grocer, farmer or any other person operating his own enterprise, is NOT take-home pay!

"You also have a parsonage, manse or rectory furnished, on top of that $6,000 salary, don't you? I queried and he nodded."

But those other folks who are struggling to keep their heads above the whirlpool of bankruptcy, must rent a home, and this must come out of their $17,500.

In Rev. Paul's city, his parsonage alone means an extra income of $1,200 per year on top of his $6,000 salary.

But Rev. Paul also is furnished a secretary. His parishioners pay her salary. It doesn't come out of his $6,000.

But the doctor or other business man pays at least $3,000 in that same city for a secretary or nurse.

The Reverend also gets a free office in the church building, but the medic, dental surgeon, mortician or grocer must rent his office or sales room, which is probably another $1,500 per year, to be deducted from that $17,500 intake that Rev. Paul enjoys.

Furthermore, the clergymen get free telephones, desks, chairs, office furniture, typewriters, and even postage stamps and stationery!

VOLUNTEER HELP

A clergyman may also have an assistant or a paid youth worker, too, but the "free enterprise" man must pay the salary of any such additional nurse or assistant out of his $17,500 gross.

Besides, the clergyman has very little invested in equipment but when my son Daniel opened a little dental office in a town of 600, it cost him over $15,000 just for the two dental operative chairs, cabinets, instruments, etc.

Insurance, payroll deductions for Social Security which free enterprise workers must contribute for their employees, plus dozens of other petty costs, such as accounting and auditing fees, cut into that $17,500 gross very seriously.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, enclosing a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for postage and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Sandra Lee Brown became Mrs. Ronald Wallace Fritz in a recent ceremony in the Lake Orion Methodist Church. The couple left for northern Michigan after a dinner-reception in the Gingsville Community Club. Their parents are the Forrest J. Browns, Baldwin Road and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace W. Fritz of Lapeer. Chantilly lace and white silk bon-bonazine fashioned the bride's chapel-length gown for the rite performed by Dr. Robert Hudgins.

Polly's Pointers

Call Reinforcements

DEAR POLLY - My children, from the youngest to the teen-ager, were always bursting the seats of their shorts and slacks. I was forever getting out the sewing machine to repair them. Sometimes they were beyond repair.

After much experimenting I finally found it saves a lot of worry and trouble to reinforce new ones immediately after they are bought. I turn the garment inside out and sew a piece of cotton tape (any color will do as it does not show) over the back seam from about two inches above the crotch to three-quarters of the way up. I run the stitching back and forth a few times to give it extra strength. It is as simple as that to prevent seam-splitting.

IRENE

DEAR POLLY - I had so much trouble keeping my dress shoes in order in my one closet before I made shoe bags out of unbleached muslin. Old denim jeans also would make good ones. I made a small hem in the top of each so I could run a drawstring through the top. The drawstrings are the color of the shoes in the bag to make it easy to pick out the color I want to wear.—D. A. S.

DEAR POLLY - A widowed friend of mine has solved the problem of cooking good meals for one living alone. She always cooks in quantities to provide four meals.

The extra portions are put on television dinner trays, wrapped and labeled and put in her freezer. With a little extra planning she always has a complete meal waiting for her.

If she should have an unexpected guest or two, those extra tray dinners can easily become company meals, all home cooked, ready to heat and serve. There is no lack of variety to her well-balanced meals.—MRS. B.

Share your favorite home-making ideas . . . send them to Polly in care of The Pontiac Press. You'll receive a dollar if Polly uses your idea in Polly's Pointers.

The junior Raymond John Smiths (Rosand Carmen Soriano) left for a honeymoon in Upper Michigan after recent vows in St. Vincent de Paul, Catholic Church. The bride chose a gown and train of white peau de soie for the ceremony, followed by reception in the CAI Building. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Soriano of Ferry Street and the senior Smiths of Le-Grande Avenue.

Off on an eastern honeymoon, are Orville Gross of Cross Street and his bride, the former Jacqueline Baggett who chose the Stone Baptist Church, Auburn Heights, for their recent vows and reception. Lace-appliqued white taffeta fashioned the bride's gown and train for the rite performed by Rev. Laurence Dickens. The newweds' parents are the Jessie H. Baggetts, Mildred Street, and Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Gross of Jackson, Ky.

Wash the Rods

Make it a rule to wash off the curtain rods with a sudsy cloth before re-hanging newly-laundered curtains or draperies.

Before You Paint

If the old paint on the home is just faded, dirty and chalking, the only preparatory work needed is to dust the surface before painting.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice:

My daughter is planning a late fall wedding and would like to wear velvet. Since I have never sewed on velvet, would you please give some information on linings and just plain handling?

Mrs. M. H. K.

Dear Mrs. M.H.K.:

Since velvet will be more popular than ever this fall, your question is very timely and I am hoping all of you will clip this column for future reference. These same instructions will hold good whether you are simply making a collar, trim, or a complete velvet garment.

All pieces of your garment must be cut in the same direction, against the nap. Use fine silk pins, however, remove them before stitching as they would leave a mark. Facings may be cut of matching taffeta to eliminate bulk.

A velvet garment is generally not lined unless you need the lining for shaping. If you do, use either a woven or unwoven interfacing. The weight would depend on the type skirt you are making. By all means use interfacing for the neckline, jacket fronts, collars, etc.

Machine stitching works best if you use 10 to 12 stitches per inch. Also, raise the presser foot slightly to release the pressure. If you have trouble with the top layer shifting as you stitch, ease or push it back as you stitch, using small closed scissors or a long sturdy pin. If you have a zig-zag machine, baste with the longest and widest stitch. When sewing the seam permanently, reverse the fabric and your seams should be perfect.

*Pink the seams or hand-overcast. A needle board is best for pressing velvet; however, if none is available, use Mrs. I. M.'s suggestion about pressing over another piece of velvet.

Remember that velvet must be steamed, NOT ironed. After a thorough steaming, immediately put hems, seams, or facings firmly with a stiff brush. This will give the desired flat edges without any press marks.

Velvet is flattering, the colors are exciting, and it's so very new this year, so please don't be afraid of it.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. Irma Mannello, Waterbury, Conn. is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix pressing board for the following suggestion.

"If you don't want to invest in a 'velvet board' for pressing velvets, pin a piece of scrap velvet, nap side up, on your ironing board. Place right side of garment so that it is facing the velvet on the board and lightly press with a steam iron. Use plenty of steam and very little pressure, it works beautifully!"

Good Reminder

The best time to think about papering a room is right after the room has been papered. Write down the number of rolls it took to do a room, then paste that number to the back of a picture. It's a handy reminder for the next time around.

Frailty Is Woman?

Ironing amounts to weight lifting. Most homemakers lift a three and one-half pound iron 200 times an hour which adds up to the equivalent of lifting 4,200 pounds after six hours of ironing.

Farm Proposal Under Attack

Administration, Labor

Critical of Senate Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate version of President Johnson's farm bill was under attack from two quarters today — organized labor and, to a lesser extent, the administration itself.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., called up the measure for debate with the hope that work on it could be completed by the end of the week. But there were signs of a full-scale battle in prospect over the big bill.

The farm package proposed new four-year price support programs for wheat, cotton, feed grains and wool. In addition, the Senate Agriculture Committee added two "riders," which drew the ire of labor.

One provision would urge the President to lift the federal shipping regulations that critics believe prevent sale of U.S. surplus wheat to Russia and her East European satellites.

The other would switch from Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz to Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman the power to determine if foreign workers (Mexican "braceros," Canadian potato-diggers, West Indian fruit-pickers and the like) are needed on U.S. farms.

NOT ACCEPTABLE

An AFL-CIO spokesman said the Senate farm bill would "not be acceptable" to labor if the two riders were retained. And the labor federation's Maritime Trades Department called both provisions "obnoxious," and promised to oppose the whole bill unless they are dropped.

The administration criticism centered on the Senate's wheat proposal, which would give farmers higher supports than the farm bill passed by the House.

Administration farm officials were passing the word they regarded the proposal as too costly. They were also reported prepared to back a strong fight to rewrite completely the cotton program approved by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

The committee's cotton plan would keep basic price supports to farmers near current levels and would boost the bonus price support payments offered growers who help reduce surpluses by voluntarily cutting acreage 25 per cent. Export subsidies also would be made flexible to boost overseas cotton sales.

But current subsidies (about 6 cents a pound) paid to the domestic textile industry to permit it to purchase raw cotton at the same low price charged foreign buyers would be cut to 3 cents. Thus, cotton costs to U.S. textile mills would rise somewhat.

In place of this program, the administration was expected to support an effort to substitute a program modeled basically on the House-approved plan.

This would cut out both export and domestic-industry subsidies and replace them with direct government support payments to farmers.

Talks to End AMC Strike Going Slowly

KENOSHA, Wis. (UPI) — Company and union officials and federal mediators continued to make slow progress today in their exhaustive efforts to end the 16-day-old strike against American Motors Corp.

Talks resumed yesterday after a three-day Labor Day week-end recess for "cooling-off," and a company spokesman reported more progress than in any previous day of talks. He refused, however, to forecast an imminent end to the walkout, begun Aug. 23 by United Auto Workers Local 78.

The strike has halted production of 1966 Ramblers at AMC, Wisconsin's largest private employer. Some 11,000 members are on strike at the two plants here, and 5,000 workers at the Milwaukee body plant also are idled as a result.

The strike has begun to take its economic toll in both cities. In Milwaukee, the county welfare department reported yesterday that 34 AMC workers have applied for relief and 726 for government surplus food.

MSU Archaeologists Work Rich Find of Indian Artifacts at Grand Traverse

EAST LANSING (AP) — A Michigan State University archaeological expedition, digging up Michigan history, reports striking it rich in Grand Traverse County.

An old Indian village, 1,300 by 350 yards in area, has yielded some 50,000 pieces of pottery, weapon points, elbow style Indian pipes and patterns of houses.

While trader goods in the village indicated the site might have been occupied at the time the earliest French traders came to the upper Great Lakes, MSU teams also were digging this summer at three sites in Missaukee County and at Fort Michilimackinac in Mackinac County.

WAYS OF LIFE

Their purpose in the Grand Traverse and Missaukee diggings is to trace back to prehistoric times the differences in the ways of life between Indians who lived north and those who lived south of a line from Saginaw Bay and Grand Traverse Bay.

In Missaukee County, the searchers discovered three sites believed to have been circular forts with four-foot earthen walls. The forts measured up to 200 feet in diameter. This type of enclosed site is thought to have been occupied about 1000 A.D.

Weapon points, skinning knives and pokers were found within the forts.

Charles E. Cleland, curator of anthropology in MSU's museum, is directing the excavations.

SUPERB SITE

He rates Fort Michilimackinac as "probably the finest historic site in the eastern United States. The preservation of the site is superb."

MSU personnel have been providing data and materials to the Lansing architectural firm which is planning restoration of the fort, which began in 1960.

Discoveries at the fort this summer included gun parts, religious objects, ceramics, tableware and buttons.

First Lady, Daughter at Retreat in Rockies

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. (UPI) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and her daughter, Lynda, were guests today in the "honeymoon" cottage at Laurence Rockefeller's J-Y Ranch — and romance was in the air for Lynda.

The First Lady and Lynda, 21, arrived here yesterday to spur Mrs. Johnson's national beautification campaign.

They also wanted a few days of mother-daughter companionship in the spectacular setting of the Rockies before Lynda returns to the University of Texas for her senior year.

Their host put them up in a rustic log cabin which had been built for New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's son, Steven, when he was newly wed. It has a breathtaking window view of the Grand Teton range, a roaring rock fireplace and is decorated in an Indian motif.

The man who is keeping Lynda company on her four-day stay is Brent Eastman, 25, of Evanston, Wyo., a medical student at the University of California.

PARK GUIDE

Eastman was Mrs. Johnson's National Park Service guide on her Snake River rubber raft trip last summer and he took Lynda on a similar float trip last July.

Eastman, who will be student body president at California this year, also was escort for the President's daughter to a square dance and rodeo on her last visit.

The prime purpose of Mrs. Johnson's trip was to deliver a banquet speech before the American Forestry Association and the National Council of Garden Clubs.

In her talk, she said, "Americans are not just talking about beauty, they are acting."

U.S. Sues in Natchez Race Strife

NATCHEZ, Miss. (UPI) — The Justice Department moved into this river city's racial controversy yesterday, filing suit to end public school desegregation.

This was one of the major demands made by Negro leaders and turned down by city officials earlier in the week as 650 National Guardsmen stood by to hold down violence.

The suit was filed at Biloxi as civil rights leader Charles Evers announced plans to bring reinforcements from across the nation for a stepped-up drive here.

"The movement in Natchez has just begun," Evers said. "Natchez has been known as a symbol of resistance to civil rights and we intend to make it a new symbol of the civil rights struggle."

The last of the National Guard units pulled out yesterday after four days of patrolling the streets with rifles and bayonets.

TEMPERS COOL

Temper had cooled in the city, and Gov. Paul Johnson pulled them out but warned they would be quickly sent to any potential trouble spot.

Adams was one of a minority of Mississippi counties which made no move to comply with federal regulations calling for desegregation.

However, a local Catholic school was quietly desegregated yesterday by at least seven Negro children.

Tension grew here after a bomb attack on local NAACP President George Metcalfe's car Aug. 27 gave impetus to the civil rights movement. Metcalfe was hospitalized with multiple injuries.

'Bonded' Look to Cars

Shoots Up in Popularity

LEICESTER, England (UPI) — A firm here reports that within two weeks it has sold more than 36,000 stickers designed to give cars the "James Bond look."

The stickers, which sell for a nickel each, give the car the appearance of being riddled with bullet holes.

Naming of 2 Civilian Astronauts for '66 Gemini 8 Flight Likely This Week

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The first civilian astronauts to fly a Gemini space mission are expected to be named this week.

Top sources say Neil A. Armstrong and Elliot M. See Jr. will pilot Gemini 8, a two-day mission.

dovous and docking mission expected early next year.

Armstrong, 35, a Korean war veteran from Wapakoneta, Ohio, and See, 38, of Dallas, Tex., were backup crewmen for Gemini 5 astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr., who last week completed a record flight of 190 hours and 55 minutes.

Sources say the Gemini 8 crew must be named soon so they can start the tough, grinding training schedule. A Manned Spacecraft Center spokesman said today the selection probably would be made this week from the astronaut pool — which totals 33.

Armstrong, who was shot down over Korea but parachuted safely behind United Nations lines, is a former X15 test pilot. He had charge of astronaut training before being picked to the Gemini 5 crew last February. He is expected to be named command pilot.

See was a test pilot for General Electric Co. before being named an astronaut in 1962.

Cooper and Conrad still are briefing doctors, scientists and engineers on details of their 120 orbits. Armstrong and See have been taking part in the sessions.

Two Gemini flights will be flown before Gemini 8. The next one, Gemini 6, is expected Oct. 25, with Navy Capt. Walter M.

Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford aboard. It is scheduled for two days and will be the first attempt to link two vehicles in space. Gemini 8 will continue to perfect the maneuver, considered vital for moon missions.

Gemini 7, a 14-day mission, is expected in December. Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman and Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell are the prime crew.

Correspondent Tells of Controversial Principles Schweitzer Used in Serving Africans

EDITOR'S NOTE: Associated Press correspondent Andrew Borowiec visited Dr. Albert Schweitzer at his jungle hospital several times during the last years of the famed humanitarian's life. Last week he returned to Lambarene as Schweitzer lay dying. In this dispatch he tells of some of the controversial principles which governed the doctor's service to Africa.)

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
LAMBARENE, Gabon (AP) — "This place has been my life," said Dr. Albert Schweitzer. "When I die, I would like to remain here."

Schweitzer was 89 when he spoke these words last year outside the weather-stained hut where he lived.

A few steps away, in the lush tropical grass, was the grave of his wife, Helene. She was buried almost under the window of the man who had brought her to Africa to help him serve the continent's primitive people.

Today Schweitzer lies beside her, as he wished. He died Saturday night after a stroke and was buried Sunday.

HERE TO HELP

"I am here to help. I am not asking for anything. I am just a doctor in Africa," he liked to say.

His hospital — his lifetime's work — sits in a clearing on the banks of the brownish Ogooue River that cuts through Gabon's rain forest toward the Atlantic.

Visitors normally land at the Lambarene dirt airstrip and travel to the hospital in narrow dugout canoes hugging the coast under drooping mangro trees.

To most, the hospital is a shock.

OPPOSITE SCENE

Instead of neat wards and the smell of antiseptics, there are corrugated iron shacks, camp fires set up in the muddy, filth-strewn earth outside, pigs and ducks waddling in the dirt.

African patients lie on makeshift beds, members of their families crouching beside. White nurses in old pith helmets move about swiftly.

No one counts on Africans to help. No one believes in teaching them Western methods.

Dr. Schweitzer's concept was simple — he had come to Africa to help, not to preach or civilize. He established a hospital for Africans in the heart of Africa where Western concepts and methods were not applicable.

MANY TURNED

For years he was a hero and virtual saint in the eyes of an admiring world. When the colonial empire began to crack and new, sovereign African states emerged, many turned against Schweitzer, calling his methods derogatory to African dignity.

Schweitzer ignored the critics and continued his work. Occasionally, he would explain his point of view:

There was no need to install showers or latrines — his patients returned to their mud huts in the rain forest and would never use them again.

Life in the hospital had to resemble as much as possible the life in a primitive African village. There was no point in applying European standards of hygiene — the patients would lose their native immunities.

THERE TO WORK

His doctors and nurses were there to work and to cure. They had no time to teach.

The patients kept coming steadily. In 1958, the hospital treated 3,800 Africans; in 1962, 6,000.

The old doctor's views on modern Africa were just as controversial as his hospital. In recent years he preferred to keep them to himself — too many people called him a colonialist. But he believed most Africans had to have the supervision and guidance of Europeans for many years to come.

Made famous by books and countless newspaper reports, Schweitzer's hospital has attracted hundreds of white helpers since its creation in 1925.

RECENT STAFF

In recent years, the staff consisted of a half dozen doctors, 12 to 15 nurses and perhaps a score or more others, including secretaries, dietitians and all those who came just "to help Dr. Schweitzer."

Some were devoted missionaries. Others were attracted by Schweitzer's magnetic personality. Some were friendly crackpots.

Some used the hospital to further themselves commercially. One doctor didn't hide that he liked to spend summer vacations working in Lambarene because his pictures with Schweitzer were very helpful publicity.

Schweitzer accepted them all.

"Anybody who wants to help has a place here."

He kept a steady working pace despite the burden of age. "I feel admirably — admirably bien," he told me in his Alsatian French on his 90th birthday.

He normally rose around 6:30 a.m., when the morning mist was lifting over the waters of the Ogooue. He spent the first hour of the day in prayer and meditation.

At 7:30 he breakfasted with his white staff in the hut serving as the dining room. The menu invariably consisted of oatmeal, a one-egg omelet, french-fried potatoes and fruit.

After breakfast he liked to walk through hospital grounds, occasionally stopping to look at the wards and chat with patients or to careen an animal.

"It's man's duty to love animals," he would say. "One must be good not only to humans but to all creatures."

His love for all living creatures extended to flies and mosquitoes.

"Don't kill them. Invite them to go elsewhere instead," read typewritten instructions posted in staff rooms.

ANSWERED MAIL

Schweitzer spent most of the morning at his old desk in the hut housing the central pharmacy. There, amid the barking of dogs and the chatter of patients lining up for medicine, he suggested answers to letters from admirers and dictated thanks also conferred with staff members on administrative matters and mapped plans for additional construction.

One or two secretaries in white smocks were usually at his side.

All work stopped at the noon bell. Lunch was served an hour later. The menu was generally based on vegetarian principles; Schweitzer did not eat meat.

A period of rest followed before Schweitzer again was at his desk, dressed in a white shirt and a black bow tie.

It was there that he received visitors, always smiling and friendly.

In the evening, after supper, Schweitzer presided at hymn singing by his staff. It was usually at that time of the day, when tropical dusk rapidly covered the forest and the river, that the staff's quarrels and differences disappeared and the purpose of Schweitzer's life and work emerged clear and simple.

He explained it on his 90th birthday, in a vague answer to his critics, recalling how two Africans asked him to build a hospital.

"You must not build it up into heavens. You must put it down on the earth," they told him.

"I realized that they had a clear conception of a hospital for black people. They did not want a big building of six floors but houses on ground level where they could cook their meals outside their rooms."

"We started our work and it became a success."

Spartans Tuning Up for UCLA

EAST LANSING (AP) — Scrimmage was scheduled for Michigan State today as the Spartans sped preparations for their football opener a week from Saturday, at home against UCLA.

Workouts were cut back to one-a-day Tuesday. Heavy hitting already has been costly in injuries and coaches hope to avoid making any more crimples.

Gene Washington, junior pass-catching ace, now is expected to be out for a week with a compound finger dislocation.

George Webster, a key defensive man, will be sidelined for about the same time with a pulled thigh muscle.

Maurice Haynes, a 6-foot sophomore end, has been standing in for the 6-foot-3 Washington, Larry Lukasik, a junior with defensive experience, has been running in place of Webster.

The scrimmage in Spartan Stadium was planned as an aid to help coaches decide on starters for both the offensive and defensive lineups plus their main replacements.

Coaches Test 'M' Defense in Scrimmage

ANN ARBOR (AP)—Big Ten champion Michigan will begin gearing up today or Thursday for its football attack against North Carolina, the Wolverines first opponent this season.

Coach Bump Elliott Tuesday set up the tentative timetable to begin work against North Carolina plays. Michigan opens its season Sept. 18 at Chapel Hill, N.C.

The Wolverines ran through concentrated defensive drills against short passes and runs Tuesday.

All-American Bill Yearby missed the practice session because of a light intestinal virus and was replaced by junior tackle Bill Hardy of Detroit.

Third team end Clayton Wilhite worked out despite his knee which was sprained in last Saturday's scrimmage.

On an adjacent field, freshman coach Dennis Fitzgerald assembled 65 newcomers to begin practice for the new Wolverines team.

Flint Turns Down Arrows' Offer

The Pontiac Arrows, with a powerful gridiron display in the Midwest Football League when they routed the Flint Blue Devils 61-4, in the league opener last Saturday, aren't apt to have their roster fattened by the other MFL teams.

LEN CRISTMAN

"We're not going to fatten the Pontiac pot," said president of the Flint team after Arrows' coach Lyle Wells made an offer to Flint for defensive tackle Jim Richendollar, the center of controversy between the two teams in pre season training.

Pat, an end, decided to go along with Mike and he quit the team.

TO GET QB

Cristman, however indicated that the Flint team had its sights set on obtaining another quarterback from some other source and "I expect to make a deal with him in the next few days."

Richendollar, the 275-pound ex-wrestling coach from Southfield, played for Flint on a non-league basis last year.

When the Arrows moved from Mt. Clemens to Pontiac, he thought he could join the Arrows and be in practice sessions for several days before Flint notified him that he would be held to his contract. He thus went back to the Blue Devils.

The Arrows, with Sweetan playing only a half, were near-perfect in their first game. Sweetan hit on nine of 13, two of which were dropped by receivers, and he passed for three touchdowns. He also ran for 42 yards and kicked seven points.

Bill Harrington, Pontiac Central teacher, played most of the second half at quarterback and completed the rout for the Arrows.

A CROWD OF 1,800

sitting under a roof of umbrellas watched the game at Winder Stadium. Arrows' officials expected 3,000 for the contest and felt the rain prevented reaching this figure.

Saturday night the Arrows meet Sturgis, a team which is playing in a non-league capacity this year, hoping to gain entry into the MFL in 1966.

Sturgis lost its opener last week to Milan, 28-8, while Dayton surprised defending champion Lansing, 26-7.

Next week, Saturday night Sept. 18, Pontiac will play host to Dayton in a game which should pit the MFL's top challengers against each other. Lansing is also regarded a strong challenger.

TIRE TALK

Now is an excellent time of year to take a good hard look at the tires on your car with approaching winter driving in mind.

If inspection shows scalloped or irregular wear on front tires, take your car to a trusted front end man for a checkup. Wheel alignment costs a lot less than tire wear. And in passing, avoid bargain basement wheel alignment jobs advertised at those ridiculous prices. Pontiac has its full share of competent front end shops, locally owned, manned by trained mechanics. You'll find the price of a full and correct wheel alignment costs a lot less than the hurried job of a man trying to give you your $3.88 worth.

Now take a look at those rear tires. Here's a place to baby yourself. If you've never enjoyed the peace of mind and convenience of winter treads before, do it this year. Positive traction in heavy snow, quiet smooth ride on dry streets, winter treads today are a common sense, economical investment in driving confidence—no matter what the weather.

Our repair shop is working at capacity right now to meet the need for winter treads this fall. We hope you'll treat yourself to this pleasant driving experience. If you'd like to see why we claim our winter tread is biggest, heaviest, and best, drop in—we'll show you.

Wayne State Needs Backs

DETROIT (UPI)—More than 50 Wayne State University football players began practice Tuesday as the Tartars get set to defend their Presidents' Athletic Conference title in their last year in the conference.

With 14 lettermen returning, mostly in the line, new head coach Vera Gale will have to find a new starting backfield where graduation claimed five players, including two all-conference selections.

Keane Will Return as Yankees' Pilot

NEW YORK (AP)—Johnny Keane, first-year manager of the slump-ridden New York Yankees, will be signed to a one-year contract to manage the team again in 1966. The Associated Press learned Tuesday night.

A source close to Keane said the grey-haired, 53-year-old pilot already has agreed to terms with the Yankees and only the formal signing remains.

There has been widespread published speculation that Keane would be fired because of the 1965 decline of the Yanks.

City Meeting Slated for Touch Grid Pilots

The Pontiac Parks and Recreation Department's first managers' meeting for the men's touch football program will be 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at City Hall.

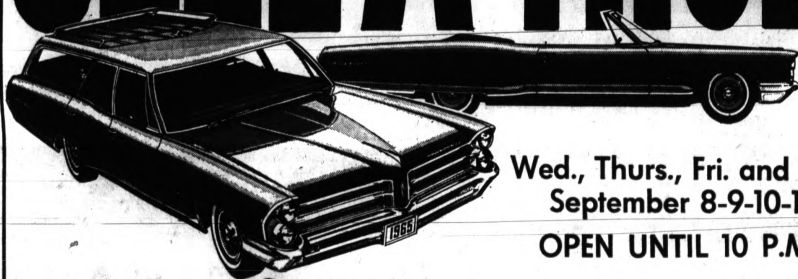

All teams interested in playing in the seven-man league should have a representative in the conference room of the Health Department on time to discuss rules, playing procedures and scheduling.

Bag Bears Hard Way

Seven Pontiac hunters took part in the brief September bear season in the Upper Peninsula the hard way.

Homer Pace, John Wiscombe, Ronald Bailey, Jack and Howard Crampton and Ron and Jim Austin took five black bears while hunting near Munising last week.

Instead of using dogs to rout out the bears, this group drove the swamps on foot much the same as a deer drive. All used 30-06 rifles with 180-grain bullets.

Eight bears were seen by the hunters.

Elk Permit Draw Today

A computer will start clicking off the numbers of this year's successful elk hunting applicants this afternoon in a data processing room in the basement of the Stevens T. Mason building in Lansing.

As soon as the machine has completed the job of selecting 300 elk licenses from more than 35,000 applications, it will be immediately pressed back into action to pick permit holders for this fall's history-making turkey hunt in Allegan county.

The total operation is expected to take only about one hour.

When the last of 400 turkey permittees is selected from slightly more than 13,000 entries, Conservation Department office workers will start processing all applicants for return mailing to hunters.

Unsuccessful elk hopefuls will get some consolation in the form of $25 license deposits which will be returned to them.

Field Trial Sept. 18-19

The annual field trial of the Irish Setter Club of Michigan will be Sept. 18-19 at the Highland recreation area.

The trail is open to all setters—Irish, English and Gordon—in all but the dual dog stake. The open limited all-age stake is open to all pointing breeds.

Entries close at 9 p.m. on Sept. 14 at 4140 19th Mile, Utica. Live pheasants will be used.

Department Shelves Empty of Book Maps

Heavy demands have exhausted the Conservation Department supply of county map books for each of the state's three regions—

the Upper Peninsula, the northern half of the Lower Peninsula and Southern Michigan.

Safe Boating Class Slated in Pontiac

The U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary will start a safe boating class Sept. 16 at the Naval Reserve Training Center, 469 South Blvd. East.

The nine-week course will cover all phases of basic seamanship, including rules of the road, knots and splices, aids to navigation, piloting, fueling safety and legal requirements.

Sessions will be from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Registration will begin at 7 p.m. the first night. A small fee will be charged to cover instructional materials.

Waste of Time on Two Lakes

Fishermen going to Heart and Crystal lakes after tomorrow will be wasting their time. The Conservation Department is poisoning fish in Heart, located in the Bald Mountain recreation area this afternoon. Crystal, in the Holly area, is scheduled for treatment tomorrow.

Henry Vondett, district fish supervisor, said the department sterile bluegills in order to study the quality of fishing in a lake where there is no reproduction. "There is still some doubt that we will be able to obtain sterile bluegills," said Vondett. "We don't receive any by next spring we'll restock Heart with regular bluegills and bass."

Crystal will be stocked with sub-legal black bass later in the fall as part of the department's study of one specie lakes.

Vondett said Teepie lake in the Highland area will be poisoned later this year and trout introduced.

Fresh Plums Offer Good Eating

By JANET ODELL
Pioneer Press Food Editor

Despite all the advances in storage and freezing techniques, there are still some foods that are best eaten in season. Plums are one of them.

Plums have been on the market for about a month and have nearly the same amount of time ahead. It's a short season, one to enjoy fully.

The Northwest Purple Plum Industry suggests you make a jellied salad.

This is the kind you give "the girls" for a luncheon main course or serve as a dessert at the close of a heavy meal.

Plum Jellied Salad

¾ cup granulated sugar
¾ cup water
1 package lemon gelatin
½ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind

1 cup coarsely-cut peeled tart apples

¼ cups seeded white grape halves

¼ cup coarsely-cut walnuts

½ cups coarsely-chopped fresh purple plums

To prepare the plums, wash, cut in half, remove seed. Using a cutting board and sharp knife, cut each half once lengthwise, then twice crosswise. This keeps the plums in firm even-sized pieces, not possible with chopping.

Bring sugar and water to the boiling point, mixing well. Stir the gelatin into the hot syrup. Add orange juice and rind. Chill. When it starts to thicken, stir in remaining ingredients.

Pour into a 1½-quart mold, well-oiled. Chill until firm. Turn out on chilled plate and garnish with salad greens, fruits if desired.

Serve with mayonnaise to which a little orange juice and rind have been added, with whipped cream folded in if you like. Or, a cooked fruit salad dressing may be used, with or without whipped cream folded in.

A quicker plum salad may be made with cottage cheese. Press the cut side of fresh plum halves all around a mound of cheese. Garnish with fresh blueberries on seedless green grapes.

Treat the family to summer plum pudding if you're looking for an interesting dessert.

Summer Plum Pudding
2 cups graham cracker crumbs
5 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Carrot Relish

Want a quick relish? Grate carrot and mix with lemon juice and sugar. Cover and chill the mixture for a couple of hours before serving to allow flavors to blend.

¼ teaspoon nutmeg
4 tablespoons melted butter
4 tablespoons water
2 cups sliced plums
Mix crumbs, sugar, spices, butter and water. Arrange crumb mixture in alternate layers with plums in individual baking dishes, topped with ice cream. Makes 4 servings.

Plum sherbet comes out a luscious color and is so simple to make in your refrigerator.

Plum Sherbet

1 dozen purple plums

Juice of 1½ lemons

Grated rind of 1 lemon

1 cup sugar

1½ cups buttermilk

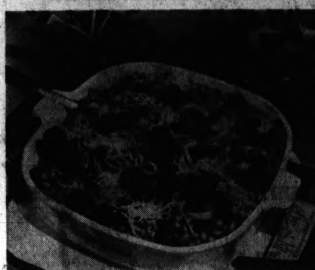

Pinch salt

Simmer plums (in just enough water to keep them from sticking to the pan) gently until tender, about 10 minutes. Pit and puree the plums. Add the lemon juice and rind.

Add about 1 cup of sugar, more if desired. Simmer slowly until sugar dissolves. Cool mixture and add buttermilk and salt.

Pour into refrigerator tray and partially freeze. Remove mixture from tray and whip until fluffy-smooth. Return to refrigerator tray and freeze until firm.

Serve in sherbet glasses with whipped cream as a garnish or in alternating layers for a parfait. Makes 4 servings.

DUDE RANCH BEANS — One whiff of Dude Ranch Bean Bake and the family will come running. Canned kidney beans, pork and beans and miniature sausage balls receive a flavor bonus of onion and green pepper. At serving time it's dotted with horseradish and a sprinkling of grated cheddar cheese.

Two Kinds of Beans Mix in Ranch Recipe

Chances are you've spent some time vacationing at a Dude Ranch, or perhaps just wished you could. Here is where at dawn family and friends meet to ride in the wide-open spaces. Then, at dusk the scene shifts to the campfire site for talking and singing while the stars twinkle overhead.

But, when not talking, there's eating, and the specialty is beans.

Nudge your memory a bit, and back may come the whiff of an outdoor barbecue... big juice hamburgers and franks sizzling over the coals with an open kettle of beans, seasoned with pork, simmering to piping hot.

Dude Ranch Bean Bake is the next best thing to the variety. It matches the easy-going tempo of informal dining and is accustomed to pleasing with hearty filling fare.

It's spiced with onion rings and green pepper and at serving time dotted with prepared horseradish and a sprinkling of grated cheddar cheese.

Dude Ranch Bean Bake

½ pound sausage meat

1 slice bread

1 large onion

1 green pepper

2 cans (1 lb. each) pork and beans
1 can (1 lb.) red kidney beans
1 to 2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
¼ cup grated cheddar cheese
Combine sausage with finely shredded bread. Form into small balls. Lightly brown balls in skillet. Add sliced onion and coarsely chopped green pepper; cook mixture three or four minutes. Add pork and beans and drained kidney beans; mix gently.

Cover and cook over low heat, stirring occasionally. At serving time, dot top of mixture with horseradish and sprinkle with cheese. Six servings.

Cooked giblets from chicken or turkey in the refrigerator? Dice or slice the giblets and add to creamed eggs served on toast.

FRESH PEACH SOUFFLE en MERINGUE — French by name, so American in appeal — that's Fresh Peach Souffle en

Meringue. This fruit-filled souffle in a spicy meringue is destined to become a family favorite.

Evening Salad Has Elegance

Why not try an elegant supper salad for serving before or after the outdoor concert.

Seafood Salad in a Melon Shell
2 each honeydew or Persian, or 1 each Cranshaw or Casaba melons
2 cups cooked lobster, crab or shrimp, in chunks or flaked
1/2 cup seedless green grapes
1 tablespoon ginger ale
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 cup mayonnaise
fresh mint or lemon wedges

Cut the melons in half lengthwise, remove the seeds and cut enough of the melon meat to make 4 cups of balls.

Cut the melon shells into 6-8 large wedges and remove any pulp that is left after cutting the balls. Wrap shells in foil or plastic wrap and chill.

Combine melon balls with seafood, grapes, ginger ale and lemon juice. Chill thoroughly until just before serving time.

When ready to serve mix drained seafood mixture with mayonnaise and spoon salad into chilled melon shells. Garnish with fresh mint or lemon wedges.

Just serve with hot bread, iced tea and cold dessert. Makes 6-8 servings.

Dieting Easy With Salad of Crabmeat

Why worry about calories in summer?

This season, above all, is a boon for the weight-watcher. Salads like this delicious Crabmeat beauty, with its zesty yogurt dressing, offer delectable low-calorie eating.

The cool companion is iced coffee, virtually without a calorie to count. It can be prepared almost effortlessly, either with instant coffee or with regular coffee poured over coffee ice cubes.

Make the cubes by quick-freezing extra breakfast coffee in your refrigerator ice tray.

CRABMEAT SALAD
3 cans (7 1/2 oz. each) King crabmeat

1 cup sliced celery
1 medium cucumber, peeled, scored and sliced
1 medium green pepper cut in this strips
16 cherry tomatoes, halved
Salad greens
Low Calorie Dressing

Combine first 5 ingredients and arrange on salad greens. Serve dressing separately. Makes 6 servings.
Low Calorie Dressing: Combine 1 cup plain yogurt, 1/4 cup mayonnaise, dash Tabasco, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; 1/4 cup chili sauce, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon sugar, dash pepper, 1/2 teaspoon dried dill weed. Mix well and chill. Makes 6 servings.

Polish Ham

The term "Polish" has been associated with a popular sausage product for many years, and for hams originating in Poland. Therefore, explains the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Meat Inspection Division, its use is not permitted in connection with other meat products.

Peach Souffle Filling Fills Meringue Crust

Praises for the golden peach and for your culinary skills will mount sky high when you serve Fresh Peach Souffle en Meringue. This thoroughly Americanized fruit, the peach, helps create a French masterpiece in just a few easy steps.

The base of this pie is a meringue, but ordinary by no means. Spiced with cinnamon and nutmeg and with finely chopped pecans folded in, this meringue becomes a French creation of unforgettable quality.

The souffle filling is an luscious and light as the golden peaches that flavor it so well—because of the extra creaminess of whipped evaporated milk.

Fresh Peach Souffle en Meringue

1 egg white
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 1/2 cups finely chopped pecans
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup sugar
1-3 cup water
2 cups sliced fresh peaches
1/4 teaspoon almond extract
2-3 cup evaporated milk, partially frozen
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Beat egg white in small bowl of electric mixer until frothy. Gradually blend in salt; then 1/4 cup sugar. Beat until stiff. Fold in cinnamon, nutmeg and chopped pecans.

Spread on bottom and sides (not rim) of a well-buttered 9 inch pie plate. Bake in preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) 10 minutes. Cool; then chill.

To prepare filling, combine gelatin and 1/2 cup sugar in a medium size saucepan. Stir in water and peaches. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly; boil 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in almond extract.

Mash peaches slightly with

Fried Oatmeal Slices

Love Syrup, Butter

For fried oatmeal slices, prepare oatmeal according to package directions for flaky oatmeal. Pour into ungreased loaf pan. Cut into 15 slices.

Pan-fry in small amount of butter until golden brown, about 10 minutes per side. Serve with butter and syrup. Makes 8 servings.

Cool Frosty Cream Chilled or Frozen

Cool as the snows of Mount Everest—that a dessert developed to tempt the palates of your guests. Mount Everest Desert is cool to cook and cool to eat.

Mount Everest Desert

1 (15-oz.) can sweetened condensed milk
1/2 cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1 pint (2 cups) sour cream
1 (3 1/2-oz.) can coconut
1/2 pint (1 cup) heavy cream, whipped

In a large bowl, blend sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice and rind. Fold in sour cream and coconut. Spoon into individual parfait glasses or dessert dishes. Chill in refrigerator 2 hours or until set. Garnish with whipped cream to serve.

NOTE: If desired, this dessert can be frozen. Place individual desserts in freezer for 3 hours or until mixture is frozen. Garnish with whipped cream after removing from freezer.

For Pretty Food

A French ball cutter is inexpensive and helps to make such pretty fresh fruit cups for summer use. Use the cutter for preparing balls from cantaloupe, honeydew and watermelon; mix with seedless green grapes and serve for dessert with scoops of fruit sherbet.

Scald the Milk

When you are making a soft custard to serve over fresh fruit — strawberries, raspberries or peaches — stirring time will be cut down if you use scalded milk.

Blueberry Turnovers Hit the Spot

Turnovers are a tasty pastry, especially when the dough has been turned over a filling made with luscious fresh cultivated blueberries.

A little boy once said when these turnovers appeared on the table that he guessed he was supposed to turn them over and look at the other side before he ate them, but he really wasn't interested in the "other" side. Only the inside.

And this is an interesting filling. The wonderfully-flavored blueberries delight the taste buds and the consistency is perfect for "pick-up-and-eat" turnovers.

Since this particular pastry form is so popular with youngsters, it should always be made so that it can be eaten that way as well as with a fork.

Add this recipe to your file of blueberry recipes. And use the file often during the short time that this most favorite of berries is in season.

Blueberry Turnovers

1 cup soft butter or margarine
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1/2 cup milk
2 cups fresh cultivated blueberries
1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
Grated rind of 1 orange
2 egg whites
1/2 cup sugar

Mix together butter or margarine, sugar, salt, egg yolks, flour and milk until well blended and a soft dough is formed. Chill for 1 hour. Roll out dough to 1/4 inch thickness and cut out 5 to 6 inch rounds.

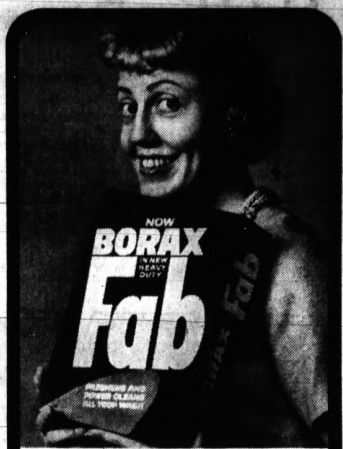

Mix blueberries with brown sugar, tapioca and orange rind. Spoon filling on rounds. Moisten edges of each round with a brush dipped into water.

Fold dough over filling and press edges together. Prick top with a fork and put turnovers on a greased cookie sheet.

Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually beat in sugar. Brush mixture on top of turnovers. Bake in a preheated hot oven (400 degrees) for 10 to 15 minutes or until turnovers are lightly browned. Yield: 12 turnovers.

TURNOVERS — These tasty Blueberry Turnovers can be eaten "out of hand" by youngsters impatient with waiting for a fork and plate. For them, serve with milk to which a few drops of grenadine have been added.

Aid Has Done Little for Poverty-Stricken, Rat-Infested Haiti

By LOUIS UCHTELLE
PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti
— Rats infest Haiti. They nest in the thick grass of a peasant's hut and feed on his meager crops. They seem to own the country road at night as they flit back and forth in the headlights.

The U.S. government once tried to do something about the rats. Mongooses were introduced into the country. But the project failed. The mongooses, instead of attacking the rats ate the peasant's chickens, adding to his burden.

For many Haitians, the mongoose project is a fair illustration of the effectiveness of foreign aid in the Western Hemisphere's poorest nation. One hundred million dollars has been spent to aid Haiti since World War II. Most of it came from the United States. But the deterioration of the country seems to continue. Much of the aid was for road construction and maintenance. Yet the 200-mile ride from Port au Prince to Les Cayes, a southern port city, takes more than 15 hours by jeep today. It was a four-hour trip by car in 1957, the year Francois Duvalier became president.

EQUIPMENT SITES

Near Les Dayes a huge earth mover sits abandoned on a rise in the rutted road. The initials "U.S.A." are stenciled on the doors. Weeds grow through the engine hood. Peasants in the neighborhood say the earth mover blew a tire six years ago. Before a new tire was obtained, the road project stopped and the earth mover was forgotten.

In the potentially rich Artibonite Valley, a dam and irrigation system stands as a monument to what U.S. officials describe as corruption and inefficiency in the Haitian government. More than $30 million, borrowed from the Export-Import Bank, went into the project. The money was exhausted before electric generators were installed. They were left to rust in the fields.

The Duvalier government no longer maintains the dam and the irrigation canals. They are clogged with silt, limiting agricultural development of the valley.

One aid project has been successful in recent years, and its success helps explain some of the failures. In 1961, Duvalier signed a $3.5-million credit agreement with the International Development Bank. Under it, an institute of agricultural and industrial development was established as an autonomous branch of the Haitian government. The director, Jean Dole, a U.S. citizen, assumed control over money and hiring.

The institute set out to provide financial and technical assistance for the small peasant farmer — and also a market for his product.

This was the key feature. In the Haitian feudal economy, the peasant farmer doesn't conceive of a good market for a good crop. Cotton, growing nearly wild, always has been purchased by Port au Prince merchants for five or six cents a pound.

The institute, through a series of small loans to peasants, encouraged proper cultivation of a better grade of cotton, then paid 10 cents a pound.

The program started slowly.

as skeptical peasants used their loans to buy fertilizer, insecticide, seed and advice from the institute. In a matter of months, the yield on many tiny holdings jumped from 200 to 1,000 pounds per acre. The number of participating farmers in the volunteer program went from 136 in 1962 to 1,053 in 1964 to 4,600 this year. The 1965 production was 5.2 million pounds of the highest grade cotton Haiti has seen in generations.

Red Tax Hits U.S. Reporters

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union, angry over a state tax levied on Russian newsmen in New York, announced yesterday it will raise the taxes of all American correspondents in Moscow.

The increase will be retroactive to Sept. 1, Soviet officials told the U.S. Embassy. The amount of the new tax and the exact form it will take were not known.

Utah Canyon Ordeal Ends for Trapped Hikers

ZION NATIONAL PARK, Utah (AP) — Ordeal by flood was over today for 42 wilderness hikers trapped almost three days by rains which swelled the Virgin River in Zion National Park's deep Zion Narrows.

The last of the hikers waded out, sometimes in water up to their armpits, late Tuesday.

The last were a party of nine led by Iron County Sheriff Otto Fife of nearby Cedar City. He led a party of 21 which began the hike Saturday, when weather forecasts indicated it would probably not rain.

It did rain early Sunday before dawn, and some hikers said the water rushing through the canyon sounded like jet airplanes.

Some of Fife's party left the canyon before he and the last eight came out late Tuesday.

Fife, 64, said he had kept the last eight because he was worried about their physical condition, and was afraid to tackle the canyon until he was sure the water wouldn't rise further.

The canyon has sheer walls rising in places 1,500 feet. A man can stretch out both arms and touch either side in places. Hikers have to wade the river most of the way because there are no banks.

For three days people had been saying about Fife: "Otto will bring them through. He'll round them all up and make them stay put until it's safe to move."

"I'm glad to be here," Fife said. "But this didn't cure me. I'm taking another party through Sept. 28 — if they aren't too scared."

ASKS FOR EXCUSE

"The children were worried about missing school and one of them asked me for an excuse for his teachers. But I'm going home now — I'm a couple of days late myself. I hope they don't fire me."

Before Fife and his party came out, five Californians who had been feared missing walked to safety.

They were preceded by two 16-year-old boys who told park rangers the Californians had left before they did. How they passed the Californians remained a mystery.

The Californians told a story of clinging to ledges and trees, and crouching behind a waterfall when water poured through the gorge Monday.

Les Frazin of Los Angeles said, "If there was anybody up there who didn't believe in God, he does now."

Only one person was injured, Alan Keller of Orem, Utah, whose leg was hit by a log during the height of the flood. He limped out Tuesday and was flown to a Salt Lake City hospital for treatment.

Water Levels Vary in State

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's ground water levels during August remained higher than a year ago, but the Thumb and south central areas came close to record lows for the month, the U.S. Geological Survey says.

Rainfall was above normal in the central and southern Lower Peninsula and slightly below normal elsewhere in the state.

Wanted: French Ambassador to U.S.

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press International
PARIS — One of the toughest jobs in France is going begging at the moment — that of French ambassador to Washington.

Whoever gets it will be in the unenviable position of having to explain and defend to President Johnson the often unpredictable, prickly nationalist odd-man-out policies of French President Charles de Gaulle.

The job has become vacant following nomination of Herve Alphand, French ambassador in Washington since 1956, to the post of secretary general of the French Foreign Office.

Although nothing official has been said yet, two possible candidates have been tipped as being in the running for the Washington job.

The leading contender is believed to be Charles Lucet, 55, a plump, balding career diplomat who has been head of the Quai d'Orsay's political department since 1959.

KEEPS INFORMED

In that capacity, Lucet has been in on a lot of French foreign policy-making during the entire six years of de Gaulle's Fifth Republic.

He also has served two stints in the Washington embassy — one in 1935 as a young attache and the second from 1955-59 as minister-counselor, ranking second only to the ambassador himself.

Lucet speaks good English. He also had an unblemished "Gaulist" record during World War II — something that still counts in making such appointments.

The second most frequently tipped contender is Etienne Burin des Rozziers, 52, who has been secretary general of de Gaulle's Elysee Palace since 1962 and, in that capacity, one of the general's closest aides and confidants.

Burin des Rozziers is an Oxford-educated career diplomat with an English-born wife. His wartime record also is spotless.

He was de Gaulle's personal aide-de-camp in London and Algiers in 1943.

In recent years, he has held a number of important foreign service jobs, including that of ambassador to Poland from 1958-62.

Alphand and his socialite wife Nicole were close friends of the Kennedy clan but never seemed to hit it off with the Johnsons.

NY Suburb Reaffirms Ban on Girl's Horse

NEW YORK (AP) — Can a horse named Mr. Magoo find happiness with a 13-year-old girl in a New York suburb?

No, said the Village Board of Bayville, on Long Island, Tuesday night. The board reaffirmed its previous decision that Karen Southard's brown horse is not a domestic animal and therefore can't be kept in the village.

Karen's father, Ernest S. Southard, vowed today that he'll fight on.

"I have to," he said. "After all, I promised her she could have a horse."

BUILT STABLE

Southard built a stable last November in a 62-by-105-foot fenced area by his $35,000 home for Mr. Magoo, a quarter horse. Quarter horses are a breed known for their speed up to a quarter of a mile.

This brought happiness to Karen and Mr. Magoo, but not to some of the Southards' neighbors.

They complained that Mr. Magoo was a nuisance and violated a village ordinance against keeping nondomestic animals.

The board agreed Tuesday night, charging the horse causes "an odor offensive to the immediate neighbors, a disturbing collection and emission of dust in the surrounding area and a safety hazard to pedestrians in the narrow village roadways."

CONSIDERATION

However, the board added that it recognizes "the affection

Miss Southard has for the horse... and enjoins her to explore the possibility of harboring Mr. Magoo in nearby areas permitting horses."

"We are not going to put Mr. Magoo out to any boarding stable," said Southard. "He wouldn't have enough room to run around."

"We'll take our case to Nassau County Court next and to the U.S. Supreme Court if we have to," he said. "Karen is going to keep Mr. Magoo."

Late Spring, Poor Summer Cast Shadows Over Western European Wine Growing

PARIS (AP) — Western Europe's wine growers are holding their breath for a spell of prolonged sunshine as harvest time approaches. But even if they get it, the prospects of most will be only middling.

Major wine growing areas had a late spring and the worst summer in decades. Almost everywhere the grapes are late, although generally sound. But they may not reach ripe fullness without two to four weeks of sunshine — the rarest occurrence of the season.

The harvest normally starts about now for early varieties, ending in October with festivals from the Iberian peninsula to Austria. This year, most areas will start one to three weeks late — six weeks in the Beaujolais region near Lyon.

The first grapes picked so far, in southwest France, aroused little optimism. They were immature and low on sugar, hence low in alcohol content. Elsewhere, the quality was feared largely compromised. Acidity was reported climbing in many vineyards.

Only the quantity seemed promising. France's Loire Valley has been promised sunshine beginning about Sept. 10, spurring optimism for the Anjou and muscadets.

South around Bordeaux, even steady sunshine from now on would produce only medium qualities of the region's usually dry and strong reds and sweet whites. Growers of the rich, full-bodied burgundy said their prospects are poor if the last three weeks of September are as cold and wet as the first.

In the champagne country, growers nursed their plants back after some violent early storms, only to see continued low temperatures threaten to wreck the grapes before maturity.

Sapin's winter storms cut deeply into the potential of Castile and Leon Province. Much of Italy's crop was saved from the disastrous floods last week because most vines grow on the hillsides. But there was major damage on the coastal flat west of Rome where government vineyards produce the dry pale maccarese. The broad Po Valley around Verona, where prized dries are produced, was also harmed.

Doctor Accused of Trying to Poison Wife

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — Dr. Robert E. Boehme was accused yesterday of attempting to kill his second wife, Mary, by injecting her with poison.

The Port Orchard physician was acquitted in 1963 of attempting to kill his first wife, Dorothy, in the same manner.

Pierce County Prosecutor John G. McCutcheon Jr. filed a first-degree assault warrant against the 45-year-old doctor and he was arrested at 11 a.m. in Port Orchard. The warrant was signed by Justice of the Peace Elizabeth Shackelford and bail was set at $25,000.

Dr. Boehme had no comment to make when he was arrested. McCutcheon said the charge was filed following an intensive investigation by Tacoma detectives Anthony Zatkovich and Ted Strand working in conjunction with Kitsap County authorities. The information against Dr.

Boehme contends that the doctor attempted to kill his wife by injecting poison into her system while she was a patient at St. Joseph's Hospital here.

BEING TREATED

Mary Boehme was in St. Joseph's being treated for a skull fracture suffered when a plank fell on her in a boathouse. Her brother and her father were with her when that accident occurred.

563 Holiday Road Toll Record

CHICAGO (AP) — Traffic accidents killed 563 persons on the nation's highways during the 78-hour Labor Day weekend, a record number for the holiday period.

The previous record of deaths in traffic accidents during the final summer holiday period was 507 set in 1963. Last year, there were 531 deaths.

Another 25 persons died in boating accidents during this year's holiday period and 45 persons drowned.

The National Safety Council had estimated that between 500 and 600 persons would die in traffic accidents between 8 p.m., local time, and midnight of Labor Day.

It was the third 78-hour holiday weekend of 1965—and all three established records for number of traffic deaths.

Memorial Day weekend was marked by 474 deaths, and 551 persons were killed over the Independence Day period.

An Associated Press survey of traffic deaths in a nonholiday period covering 78 hours from 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 20, to midnight Monday, Aug. 23, showed 451 fatalities.

Junior Editors Quiz on LEAVES

QUESTION: Why do green leaves on a tree look blue from a distance?

ANSWER: In our picture, Doris is trying her hand at landscape painting in oils. She is sketching on Otsego Lake, near Cooperstown, N.Y., where James Fenimore Cooper wrote his romantic novels of pioneering and Indian life. In front of Doris is the round "Council Rock" where Indians used to sit during pow wows.

Doris notices the difference between the leaves close by and the color of the leaf-covered mountain far away. To see the difference, color the light part of the close-up leaves bright green and the distant hills a smoky faint blue.

Distance is blue because the earth's atmosphere scatters the variously colored light rays, but the blue ones, which are the shortest, scatter most widely through the sky (upper right) and so give a blue tint to the air.

When you see a distant object, the air between makes it bluer and also lighter because of the water vapor in the air. So, distant leaves look lighter and more toward the bluegreen, and with more distance the whole mountain begins to have a light smoky blue look.

This is a very beautiful effect, and if Doris can match the colors, it will give to her picture a wonderful feeling of air.

FOR YOU TO DO: We can't all be Dorises, but we can all look at close-up leaves, contrasts these with more distant ones and see the blue in the air. This will make you realize how painting can open one's eyes to beauties in nature.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures
Important photographic news by Polaroid, Kodak and Sylvania has interrupted the normally placid summer routine of the country's camera fans.

The news lifts the curtain from a couple of the nation's best-kept photo industry secrets in planning and production.

Polaroid has unveiled a new 10-second camera which sells for under $28.

And a joint Kodak-Sylvania demonstration reveals an ingenious "flashcube" development in flash photography, along with a line of eight cameras for which it has been adapted.

With its remarkable low price, the newest Land camera Model 20, called "The Swinger," produces eight pictures in black-and-white from each roll of Polaroid film.

MUST BE COATED

Each measures 2½x3 inches, is finished in from 10 to 15 seconds and must be coated for permanence.

The Swinger is an all plastic camera with a rigid white body, a revolutionary photo-meter viewfinder system and a red, white and blue theme.

The red knob adjusts the lens opening for proper exposure; the white button top is pressed down to snap the picture; the blue section on back of the camera is a thumb grip enabling one to pull out the exposed picture sandwich until it stops automatically for its 10-second finishing.

The Swinger's remarkable photometer system is the first of its kind: A red window in the viewfinder says "NO" until you squeeze and turn the red knob to the proper lens opening, upon which there is a visible change to "Yes."

NOT ENOUGH LIGHT

If it doesn't change, that means there isn't enough light for regular exposure and you should use flash.

The flash receptacle is part of the camera's front and accepts tiny AG bulbs. With flash, you turn the red knob to the distance from the subject, thereby setting the proper lens opening at the same time.

Model 20 has a fixed speed of 1/300th second, is automatically focused from two feet to infinity in bright sunshine, uses 200 ASA film.

All in all, Dr. Land has scored quite an achievement in producing the magic of 10-second photography at a box camera price.

TEAMWORK

The Kodak-Sylvania teamwork on the "flashcube" is also noteworthy.

Basically, it is a tiny unit of four blue AG flashbulbs with a single circular socket which can be fired one after the other as fast as the finger can press the button if the camera is motorized.

After each shot, the transparent cube unit turns on its socket to bring a fresh bulb into position. When the fourth bulb is fired, the cube lifts out and a fresh unit of four is put into place.

The compactness and convenience of the four-bulb flashcube are major factors in its appeal.

BUILT-IN REFLECTOR

Each cube, though only 1½ inches on each side, has a built-in reflector for each bulb so that at first glance it looks like a tiny, shiny Christmas tree ornament.

The blue flashbulbs can be used indoors or outdoors with all daylight-type color films and with black-and-white.

A sleeve of three flashcubes (12 flashbulbs) will sell for just under $2.

While Sylvania developed the flashcube, Kodak redesigned its line of Instamatic cameras and two new 35mm cameras to make use of its ingenious convenience. The Instamatics range from its simplest fixed-focus model (104) to its motorized, automated f-2.8 model (804), each of which features drop-in cartridge loading.

In addition there are two easy loading, automated electric-eye f-2.8 camera using regular 35mm film cassettes, one of which is motorized for automatic film and flash advance.

Missionaries' Adopted Daughter Is Child Left for Dead in Jungle

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Fifteen months ago, Jennie Blinco was born — and almost died — in a Venezuelan jungle. Her mother, a member of an Indian tribe which practices infanticide, choked her with a vine after giving birth.

Today, Jennie is the healthy, missionaries' adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Blinco, New Tribes missionaries, who are visiting here with Mr. and Mrs. Ted J. Kuhn, Mrs. Blinco's parents.

"Jennie was found in the jungle just outside the only Christian village in the Guacra tribe," Mrs. Blinco said. "The Guacra are one of the most primitive tribes on earth and they practice infanticide regularly."

"Jennie's mother was visiting a village near our base camp when Jennie came. She went off into the jungle in the middle of the night and bore her, then strangled her with a vine and left, thinking Jennie was dead. That afternoon, some of the village Indians heard a baby crying in the jungle."

Blinco, a native of Cumberland, England, said the child was "more dead than alive" when it was brought to them from the village of Tama Tama, near the headwaters of the Orinoco River.

Jennie still has the fading white scars made by jungle ants which attacked her in the forest.

Her throat shows a fine scar from the vine.

The Blincos plan to return to Venezuela early next year, taking Jennie along. New Tribes missionaries, operating under an interdenominational Protestant missions board, work with primitive tribes.

HEALTHY GIRL — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blinco hold their adopted daughter, Jennie, 15 months, who they saved in the Venezuelan jungle. The child was choked and abandoned by her mother, a member of a tribe that practices infanticide.

Rioting May Leave Mark on '66 California Elections

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Rioting in Los Angeles Negro slums has converted next year's California elections into "a new ball game," says Hale Champion, chief political adviser to Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Champion, who is state finance director, isn't alone in believing the nation's worst racial outbreak in recent years has changed the ground rules for the struggle for political control of California.

But nobody knows the ultimate effect in a state where Republicans are trying to end eight years of Democratic administration and give their party an early boost in the 1966 presidential race. Brown's aides say he'll seek a third term in 1966, although the governor hasn't publicly announced his plans.

Will there be a white backlash protest against a governor who has always fought hard for civil rights?

NOT POLITICAL

The Republican state chairman, Dr. Gaylord Parkinson, says he doesn't think so, adding that the riots aren't a political issue.

"Republicans are as concerned as Democrats," he said.

U.S. Sen. George Murphy of California, a Republican, charged, however, that the riots were the result of "a political mess created under the Democratic administration."

Many Democrats believe the eruption in the slums of Watts has posed a deep problem for Democrats, already worried about holding the loyalty of white residents of the suburbs.

The riots have given a boost, they say, to Los Angeles Mayor Samuel W. Yorty, who is considering running against Brown in the Democratic primary next June. He has steadfastly defended the city's police chief, William H. Parker, against Negro accusations of police brutality.

HELD IN ESTEEM

Assemblyman Mervyn H. Dymally, D-Los Angeles, whose district is in the riot zone, said Brown is held "in great esteem" by Negroes.

"But I think Yorty has picked up strength in the valley," said Dymally of the suburban San Fernando Valley section of Los Angeles. "And there are more votes in the valley than in any area."

Even before the riots, Democratic strategists expressed fear of voter rebellion in Los Angeles County's nominally Democratic white suburbs.

Don Bradley, who will help run Brown's reelection campaign, recalled that the registered Democrats in the "predominantly white low-income areas" rejected party civil rights leadership last year and voted for an initiative nullifying antidiscrimination housing laws. The measure won in Los Angeles County by almost a million votes.

NONMINORITY

To Bradley, these occupants of homes in Downey, El Monte and parts of the San Fernando Valley are the "nonminority wage earner here from the Southwest or South. The party is too liberal for them."

Republicans also have their eyes on the suburbs, hoping to carry the state on a tide of votes from the mushrooming residential tracts in Los Angeles Orange and San Diego counties and elsewhere.

But California's GOP is still locked in an ideological struggle between the conservatives who followed Barry Goldwater in last year's presidential primary and the moderates who backed Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

"How can we lose?" asked Robert Finch, the former Richard M. Nixon aide who is seeking the GOP nomination for lieutenant governor. "Through the same kind of searing, irresponsible bloodletting we had in 1964, 1962 and 1958."

ACTOR'S PLANS

Looking toward the 1966 primary, backers of actor Ronald Reagan say he will announce his candidacy for governor late in the year.

The moderates, anticipating a fight against Reagan, are awaiting a decision from U.S. Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., on whether he'll abandon years of U.S. Senate seniority and return home for a primary fight. Increasingly impatient, many moderates are looking toward former San Francisco Mayor George Christopher.

Broadway Star of '20s Dies in NY at 62

NEW YORK (AP) — Catherine Dale Owen, 62, a Broadway actress named one of the world's 10 most beautiful women in 1935, died Tuesday. Miss Owen, who made her American stage debut in "Little Women" in 1920, later appeared in motion pictures before retiring in 1935. Miss Owen, who was married to Homer P. Metzger, retired advertising executive, was born in Louisville, Ky.

'Will Prevent Army Violence'

Dominican Leader Cheered by Rebels

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Provisional President Garcia-Godoy indicated Tuesday night he will prevent army violence against civilians who support the Dominican rebels.

Rebel leaders have complained that civilians sympathetic to their cause have been beaten up and arrested by troops from the armed forces training center. It is commanded by Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin, who helped out President Juan Bosch in 1963 and fought the rebels this year.

In his first speech in the rebel sector, Garcia-Godoy assured a big, cheering crowd that its constitutional guarantees would be respected.

Observers said this meant he would withdraw troops from the northern part of Santo Domingo, where severe repression of civilians has been reported. The reports have not been confirmed, but Dominican troops are known to occupy positions outside their normal locations.

FINANCES DISCUSSED

Garcia-Godoy conferred for nearly an hour with Col. Francisco Caamaño Domo and other rebel leaders. The president told newsmen finances were among the topics discussed but he did not elaborate.

A crowd gathered outside rebel headquarters and asked the president to speak.

From a second-floor window, the glass of which was shattered in the June shelling of the rebel area by U.S. troops, Garcia-Godoy told the crowd: "I can assure you that the guarantees you desire will be yours today."

The president said he would guarantee that "your lives will not be harmed, that you'll be able to return to your homes and that prisoners will be released."

He was greeted with cheers when he indicated important announcements were forthcoming. It was believed the government would announce orders for troops to withdraw from the northern sector of the city.

Crash Hospitalizes

Oakland Twp. Man

An Oakland Township man is in satisfactory condition at Pontiac General Hospital following an auto accident at 8:45 last night in Addison Township.

Oakland County Sheriff's deputies said Keith G. Churchill, 39, of 1005 W. Roman was traveling south on Rochester Road when he lost control of the car he was driving, went off the road and struck a tree.

George Raft Pleads Guilty to Tax Charge

Movie actor George Raft pleaded guilty yesterday in Los Angeles to one count of federal income tax evasion, but said it was the result of a mistake.

Raft, 48, was indicted last week on six counts of tax evasion for the period 1958-63. When he is sentenced Sept. 28, the judge will dispose of the remaining counts.

Raft faces a possible maximum penalty of $5,000 fine and three years in prison on the single count.

The indictment charged that Raft paid no taxes on $65,000 income from 1958 through 1963. During that period he had a gross income of more than $250,000, the U.S. attorney's office said.

James Meredith to Attend Columbia

James H. Meredith, the Negro whose enrollment at the University of Mississippi touched off racial violence on its campus, has been accepted by Columbia University Law School in New York.

Meredith, who will register on Monday, has a $2,000 Columbia scholarship grant for tuition and books and a two-bedroom apartment. His wife, Mary Jane and their 5½-year-old son, James Jr., will join him Sunday.

At Columbia, Meredith said, he intended "to devote all my time to study and become as professional as I'm capable of becoming."

Maceday Plat Goes to Board

Planning Commission Deadlocked on Issue

Waterford Township Planning Commission last night submitted the final plan request for Maceday Woods No. 2 Subdivision to the Township Board without recommendation following a dead lock vote among its eight members.

Last night's action came after four months of controversial discussion, stemming from a new township ordinance which requires that all subdivisions be developed with paved streets, sidewalks, curbs and gutters.

The developer, Don White, contends that he is not compelled to comply with the new ordinance, which was adopted last February.

In other business last night, the commission began interviewing to select a consultant for the "701" planning program — financed largely by federal grants.

Representatives from three firms are being considered for the position.

OCC Chief Cites Education Needs of Wayne County

John E. Tirrell, president of Oakland Community College, today cited the desperate need for a community college system in Wayne County.

Speaking before the Detroit Rotary Club, Dr. Tirrell encouraged the Rotarians to make it their responsibility to aid in establishing needed higher education facilities.

Detroit voters will go to the polls next March to consider a proposal to authorize a community college system.

Aid May Be Halted

U.S. Warns India, Pakistan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Without saying so directly, the United States is warning India and Pakistan that they stand to lose their substantial American economic aid if they continue to fight.

The State Department announced Tuesday a halt in military assistance to the two countries claiming they both were using U.S. equipment in their war over Kashmir.

The threat of a suspension of economic assistance is implicit in word from officials that the matter is still being considered.

A halt in aid appears to be Washington's trump card at the moment. Otherwise, the United States has put its power and influence behind the peace mission of U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant.

LEJ HOPEFUL?

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana described President Johnson today as hopeful the United Nations could bring about a cease-fire.

Mansfield and other Democratic congressional leaders told reporters at the White House the fighting between India and Pakistan over Kashmir was discussed in considerable detail at their weekly breakfast meeting with Johnson.

Mansfield said Johnson expressed "his great concern and the hope the United Nations could bring about a settlement of this most serious situation."

U.S. policy may be further outlined by Secretary of State Dean Rusk. He is scheduled to testify at a meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today.

Dialing the Razor Keeps Him on Edge

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON — A month or so ago I bought one of those so-called adjustable razors. It has a dial with eight settings, one of which is supposed to be just right for my skin and beard.

I am willing to concede that the fault may lie with me, rather than with the razor, but that purchase has proven to be one of the greatest mistakes of my life.

The once simple act of shaving has become a nightmare of complexity, frustration and agonizing indecision. It is making me a nervous wreck.

The trouble is that after weeks of daily experimentation I still haven't been able to determine which of the settings is the right one for me.

The first time I used the razor, I set a dial at one and began shaving as usual except that after each stroke I would move the dial up a notch.

I worked my way up to 7 before I ran out of whiskers, but the results were inconclusive. The settings all seemed to have about the same degree of sharpness, closeness, blade drag, etc.

CHANGED DIAL

The next time I shaved, I set the dial at 8 and dropped to a lower digit after each stroke. That system was equally unconvincing. No single setting stood out above the rest in speed or performance.

The only thing I noticed definitely was that the dial would or wouldn't turn. It usually took me to shave. Both mornings I was late for work.

It then occurred to me that perhaps moving the dial one digit at a time provided too gradual a change to be detectable. So the next morning I started at 1 and then immediately leaped to 8.

This time the change was perceptible, but I couldn't decide whether it was for better or worse. I spent the rest of that shave switching back and forth between 1 and 8.

LATE AGAIN

The only result was that I was late for work again. I simply couldn't choose between them.

I then decided that changing the setting after each stroke did not provide an adequate basis for comparison. The next morning I gave myself a complete shave with the dial set on one. Then I moved up to two and so on.

I got to work on time all right but the results were negative. By the time I reached five, I had already forgotten what one, two and three were like.

Since then I have tried all sorts of combinations, keeping an elaborate chart. I discovered that one setting was best for my chin, another for my upper lip and still another for my neck and cheeks.

At present there appears to be only one way out of the dilemma. I will have to grow a beard.

Defect 3rd Harmonic Frequency

New Way Discovered to Study Stars

By Science Service

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — A new way of studying the stars, using the radio waves objects in the sky sent out, has been discovered at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory, Green Bank, W. Va.

Two radio astronomers there have found another frequency at which hydrogen, the most abundant element in the universe, broadcasts its presence.

Bertil Hoglund, a visiting astronomer from Sweden, and Peter G. Mezger have detected the third known emission line of hydrogen.

It was spotted at a frequency of 596 megacycles during July in the Omega Nebula, which is a bag cloud of ionized hydrogen located in the constellation Sagittarius, the archer. Radio waves at the same frequency have since been detected from the Orion nebula and several other sources of ionized gas.

The discovery will permit astronomers to study the motions and physical conditions of gaseous nebulae in the Milky Way, the giant pinwheel of multitudes of stars in which the sun and its planets, including earth, are located.

Analyzing radio waves of the new hydrogen line will be particularly valuable for distant nebulae that cannot be photographed by optical telescopes.

because too much interstellar dust intervenes.

SOVIET OBSERVATION

A Soviet scientist, N. S. Kardashev, pointed out in 1959 that it should be possible to detect the hydrogen emission line just discovered. Last year, two Soviet groups announced observations of this and one other hydrogen radio emission.

"Their published results were marginal and needed confirmation," it is reported.

The National Radio Astronomy Observatory officials said the results of the 140-foot radio telescope, only recently completed.

Ever since radio astronomers in 1951 first measured hydrogen radio waves at a wavelength of 21 centimeters, the possibility of detecting other emission lines of cosmic hydrogen has been explored. An important difference between the 21-centimeter line and the 5.96-centimeter line (500 megacycles) is that the former is produced by the nuclei of hydrogen atoms as the nuclear spin changes, while the latter results from an electron falling from the 11th to the 10th orbit.

'Greek Drama to Be Reborn'

High Hopes Are Held for Ypsilanti Theater

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who hopes to make ancient Greek drama "come alive" for audiences in Ypsilanti, Mich., arrived in New York Tuesday aboard the Queen Elizabeth.

Alexis Solomos, 47, former director of the Greek National Theater, told newsmen he hopes to "present Greek tragedy not as something out of a museum but to make it live and get into the blood of the American theater-going public."

Solomos, who attended Yale University, and the New School of Social Research in New York, said he has high hopes for the theater festival in Michigan.

He was accompanied by his wife, Katherine, and two daughters, Katherine, 11, and Alexandra, 10.

NEW THEATER

Solomos said he will be artistic director of the Ypsilanti Greek Theater, which will present ancient Greek tragedies and comedies in a newly-constructed amphitheater. Students from Eastern Michigan University will assist in the productions as part of their drama courses.

"We hope to make it not just another summer festival but an international center of Greek drama," Solomos said in an interview.

The director, who has headed the Greek National Theater since 1949, said Ancient Greek dramas "can be compared to a Hitchcock movie if it is properly done."

"For example," he continued, "look at the popularity of 'Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf.' It brings out various inner truths in a savage manner just as the ancients did."

UNKNOWN WORKS

Solomos, who helped direct several off-Broadway productions in New York between 1946 and 1949, said that until 15 years ago ancient drama was unknown to the general public even in Greece.

Detroit's Supremes

Trio Has Million-Dollar Touch

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Take three Detroit girls, give them glamor trappings and a new rock 'n' roll sound, and what do you get? In the case of the Supremes, a million-dollar enterprise.

Within the brief space of a year, Diane Ross, Florence Ballard and Mary Wilson have been converted into world travelers earning fortunes with their songs. They were in Hollywood on one of their breakneck tours, picking up more look with appearances on the Red Skelton and Dean Martin television shows.

I caught up with the girls at CBS Television City, whence they had reported for the first Skelton show of the year.

DANCES, SHOWS

"We started singing together seven years ago, when we were 14 and 15," reported Diane. "We sang at dances and shows around Detroit."

"In those days, we called ourselves the Primettes. But when we started recording last year, we needed a better-sounding name, so we picked the Supremes from a list that the secretary at the record company had compiled. It sounded pretty good."

Their first record, "Where Did Our Love Go," sounded more than good to the teen-agers who buy most of today's single records. A million and a half copies went over the counters in this country, another half-million in England. The Supremes seem unable to produce anything but hits, having followed with such solid sellers as "Baby Love," "Come See About Me," "Stop in the Name of Love," "Back in My Arms Again," "Nothing but Heartaches" and "Mother Dear."

These instant classics are whipped up for them by three Detroit boys who write for Motown Records. The Supremes' style is now termed "The Motown sound," which has to be heard to be understood.

HARD TO DESCRIBE

"I can't describe it," Diane admitted, "and I don't think anybody has been able to. It's just there."

The lives of the three girls have changed immensely in the past year, mostly for the better. On the good side is the money, which they are husbanding with care.

"We all bought houses for our parents, but otherwise the money goes right into the bank," Diane said. "You never know when the whole thing will blow over."

They are taking steps to see that it doesn't. They made a tour of Europe and plan more overseas trips to broaden their world market. They are passing up teen-oriented one-nighters for nightclub dates which could attract the more mature audience. And they are developing more numbers to appeal to the oldest.

"We know that rock 'n' roll singers come and go," explained Diane. "We want the Supremes to be more than just a novelty."

New Format for Emmy Show

TV Awards Limited to 4 Broad Categories

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The stormy, oft-criticized Emmy awards will present an entirely new format to television viewers Sunday night at the annual presentations for excellence in video programming.

The show will be telecast nationally (via NBC) on the eve of the new television season, as contrasted to previous spring-time award ceremonies held at the tail-end of the TV year.

This year the 17-year-old presentations will be made in four broad areas:

1. Outstanding program achievements in entertainment (shows).
2. Outstanding individual achievements in entertainment (actors).
3. Outstanding achievements in news, documentaries, and sports.
4. Outstanding individual achievements in news, documentaries and sports.

In past years the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences was torn by internal strife over a welter of categories and public outcry at the confusion and conflict inherent in the awards system.

SIMPLIFIED

Under the leadership of writer Rod Serling, current academy president, the Emmys have been simplified but there are still currents of dissatisfaction about lumping diverse programs and performances into overall categories.

The two entertainment categories hold the most interest for viewers.

Among the nominees, selected by a special academy committee, it is possible that none, one or several may win awards as voted by a second "blue ribbon" committee chosen by the academy.

Here are the outstanding programs nominated: "The Andy Williams Show," "Bob Hope Presents the Chrysler Theater," "The Dick Van Dyke Show," "Hallmark Hall of Fame," "The Man from U.N.C.L.E.," "Mr. Novak," "My Name Is Barbara," "Profiles in Courage," "The Defenders," "The Magnificent Yankee," "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color," "What a Wonderful World of Burlesque," "Wonderful World of Burlesque," "Xerox Specials."

Few of the top 10 shows, as determined by the ratings this year, have been nominated — an apparent disregard for public preference.

The first national Emmy awards were made in 1949, as compared with the ancient Oscar who had his beginning back in 1928.

Seeks to Effect Tax Relief Law

LANSING (AP) — Rep. H. James Starr, D-Lansing, plans to introduce legislation next week aimed at insuring that senior citizens can get tax relief goes into effect in the 1968 tax year.

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said last week that tax relief would not take effect in 1968 unless the legislature adjourns for the year by Sept. 30.

Under the constitution, legislation becomes effective 90 days after final adjournment unless two-thirds of the members of each house vote to give it immediate effect.

The legislature returns next week for a fall session and chances appear slim for adjournment before Sept. 30.

Insurance Chief to Hear Blue Cross

DETROIT (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner Allen Mayerson is scheduled to hear a plea today by Blue Cross for a 5.75 per cent rate increase.

Blue Cross, Michigan's largest hospitalization insurance plan, wants the rate hike because of what a spokesman earlier termed "added obligations and costs."

The United Auto Workers Union Tuesday urged Mayerson to postpone the hearing, calling it "untimely" because material submitted by Blue Cross in support of its request was not made available until Tuesday.

Eastern Legislator Claims Pole Ahead of Columbus by 16 Years

BOSTON (AP) — In a corner of the Massachusetts State House is a champion of the legend that Jan of Kolono, a Polish navigator, discovered America 16 years before Columbus.

That corner is occupied by State Comptroller Joseph Alecks who served up the legend this week along with hot kielbasa, Polish ham and Jewish rye bread.

"My man should have a proper niche in our history," said Alecks, whose father emigrated to the United States from Kolono, Poland, home town of the forgotten navigator.

IN 1476

It was in 1476, said Alecks, that Jan sailed the ocean blue in the service of Christian I, King of Norway and Denmark. Columbus, then 25, was still in Genoa.

Like Columbus, Jan was headed elsewhere when he reached the shores of America. He had set out to investigate the fate of Norwegian colonies in Greenland.

Jan reached Labrador and then sailed down the East Coast to about where Delaware is today, Alecks said.

Fate intervened. Alecks claims, to keep Jan out of most history books. Jan died on the voyage home before he could report his discovery to King Christian.

"HISTORICAL FACT"

Alecks said he doesn't object to Columbus getting top billing. What riles the comptroller is that most history books ignore Jan.

Alecks cited two histories of America to back up his claim. One, by Justin Winsor, former librarian of Harvard, was published in 1889, the other, by William Cullen Bryant and Sidney Howard Gay, was published in 1876.

"I think they ought to have all this stuff in history books. It's historical fact."

"For all I know," he said, "my father could have been a descendant of this courageous navigator."

Alecks said he is undecided whether to file a bill seeking legislative recognition for Jan.

Deputy Who Charged Ticket-Fix Wants to Aid Probe

DETROIT (AP) — A Wayne County sheriff's deputy who accused two of his superior officers of fixing traffic tickets said Tuesday he wants to serve as an investigator for a one-man grand jury probing the charges.

Dep. Lewis E. Huddleston, 33, said he would ask grand juror Circuit Judge Edward S. Piggins to appoint him as an investigator.

Huddleston said he and four other former members of the sheriff's road patrol could provide Piggins with valuable information.

"Let's face it, we haven't been wrong yet," Huddleston said. "We'll be passing on information (to Piggins) that we're halfway home on."

HAS HOPES

"I'm hoping he realizes that," he added. The other four are deputies Johnnie Talley, Robert L. Jones, James Huddleston, and resigned deputy Gene Baker.

Huddleston was one of the deputies who accused Sgt. Paul Paciorek and Inspector Dan D. Martin of the alleged ticket fixing.

Paciorek has said he fixed thousands of tickets. He said he fixed the tickets on Martin's orders in "85 to 90 per cent" of the cases.

MOVING JURY

Judge Piggins, meanwhile, announced he was moving his grand jury operation from a courtroom in the City-County Building to other facilities in the old County Building.

"We feel the quarters there are more adaptable to our needs and we can work with less interference because there is less traffic," Piggins said.

Piggins declined to say whether any witnesses had been called so far. A number of persons had been observed entering his closed courtroom.

WELCOME BACK — Mrs. Everett Cooke, second grade teacher at Webster School in Pontiac, welcomes her students back to the classroom after a long summer vacation. Children throughout the area began returning to classes today.

Area Students Back to School

Area school districts unlimbered their instructional machinery today as many elementary school children returned to the classroom for the beginning of another school year.

The educational plants will slip into high gear Friday—the first full day of classes for all students except kindergartners in Pontiac and most area school districts.

Catholic schools throughout the area also began classes today.

In the Waterford Township School District seventh and 10th graders reported to school today. All secondary students will be in classes tomorrow, and Friday, all pupils will be at their desks.

Emmanuel Christian school begins classes tomorrow.

Kindergarten students in Pontiac are scheduled to begin school on Monday.

Although classroom doors did not open until today, preparations to welcome the more than 40,000 public and parochial students in Pontiac and Waterford Township began shortly after classes ended in June.

Many schools were given a complete face lifting; others received additions and were expanded.

Some teachers began reporting for work 10 days ago, and many instructors have spent the last week in classes and workshops, preparing for the school year.

The anticipated enrollment in the Pontiac schools is 22,943 students. Waterford Township schools expect approximately 16,000 pupils.

Eye Revision of Tax Plan in Lansing Talks

Large State Surplus Indicates That Less Revenue Is Needed

LANSING (AP) — Gov. George Romney and a bipartisan group of legislators meet today to determine whether they should aim for a more modest tax increase in the next 2½ years because of the unexpectedly large surplus the state found in its treasury last week.

Romney announced then that the surplus stood at an estimated $135.5 million.

He indicated the amount of new revenue the state will need in the next 2½ years may not have to be as large as originally thought.

He and the legislators had been backing a tax package, pegged to personal and corporate income taxes, to produce $200 million in new money by mid-1968.

He indicated last week, however, that new revenue figures show a need for about $169 million in increased income taxes to avoid deficits and to provide some program improvements.

AT PRESENT LEVELS About $79 million would be needed if state services stayed at present level.

House Democrats are scheduled to meet in a caucus Friday to determine whether they want fiscal reform on the agenda for the fall session, opening next Tuesday.

The surplus announcement gave new ammunition to a number of legislators who do not want fiscal reform this year.

Romney has said repeatedly it would take "a political miracle" to get it now.

The proposed personal income tax of 3 per cent could be lowered slightly in rate because of the surplus or could have its exemptions increased from $600 to $1,000. Romney has said that any lowering of revenues would be done through the income tax.

Children began to read from their own vocabularies, dictated stories to the teacher, wrote their own stories and advanced into printed books.

USED READER SERIES

To insure high interest, the third group used a standard basal reader series new to the teacher.

"There were greater differences in the results of individual teachers in the project than there were in the three approaches to instruction which were employed," stated Dr. Harry P. Hahn, project supervisor, in a preliminary report.

According to Dr. Hahn's report, children taught with ITA have greater ability in reading words aloud, but language arts taught youngsters are superior in paragraph comprehension.

Children learning from basal readers had a slight edge when tested for their skill in reading paragraphs aloud.

Children with high intelligence ratings did significantly better in the language arts classes.

The problems little boys encounter in learning to read were evident in all three approaches.

While they did as well as the girls on a battery of tests given in September, they lagged significantly behind the girls on word meaning and paragraph comprehension tests administered in June.

India Hits West Pakistan With Two New Attacks

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India launched two new army attacks into West Pakistan today after reporting Pakistani bombers tried to attack New Delhi but were driven off.

Defense Minister Y. B. Chavan told Parliament one Indian ing Pakistan units in the Chhamb area of Kashmir to withdraw.

Thus India opened three fronts in West Pakistan, the third one being in the Lahore sector about 110 miles south of Chhamb.

Reports from Pakistan, however, said all Indian troops had been driven from Pakistani soil on the Lahore front.

The object of the multiple Indian attacks appeared to be the small Pakistani army to withdraw from southwestern Kashmir in order to defend the new fronts.

A REPRISAL A New Delhi spokesman said the thrust into West Pakistan in the southeast was in reprisal for a Pakistani naval bombardment of the port of Dwarka, about 240 miles down the coast from Karachi.

This aroused speculation that Karachi was the Indian target. Karachi is headquarters of the Pakistani navy.

An Indian announcement said the naval attack on Dwarka caused no damage of military significance and damage to civilian life and property was still being assessed.

The Chinese also urged India to "withdraw" its armed forces and "stop all acts of aggression and provocation against China in the western, middle and eastern sectors of the China-Indian border."

The note, issued by the Chinese Communist Foreign Ministry and sent to the Indian government, was broadcast by Peking's New China News Agency.

The protest came one day after Communist China accused India of aggression against Pakistan and warned it was "strengthening its defenses and heightening its alertness along the China-Indian borders."

LATEST NOTE

In the latest protest note, Communist China charged that Indian troops crossed the China-Sikkim boundary on four successive occasions in July and five times in August.

Communist China said the latest incidents "are by no means accidental, occurring as they did at a time when the Indian government was carrying out armed suppression against the people of Kashmir and unleashing and expanding its armed aggression against Pakistan."

"Facts have proved once again," the note stated, "that India has not the slightest respect for its neighbors, but makes incursions, harassment and encroachments upon them whenever there is a chance."

He was incarcerated Aug. 29 when he hit a boy at the end of a two-week caper in Commerce Township.

TOWNSHIP MYSTERY

A monkey of mystery, he had been sighted in the township several times before his capture.

However, Radio Pakistan claimed the naval shelling destroyed military and radar installations at a base at Dwarka from which it said air attacks on Karachi were being made.

The broadcast added that Indian air force planes attacked the Pakistani navy ships and the naval guns shot down some of the planes. It said the Pakistani ships suffered no losses.

Polio Drive Money to Help Community

Gov. Romney heaped praise on Oakland County's citizenry last night for raising $200,000 for establishment of a community trust fund.

Engineered by the Oakland County Medical Society, the trust fund was officially announced at a dinner at Kingsley Inn, in Bloomfield Hills.

The fund stemmed from the oral polio immunization program of 1964 when county residents voluntarily paid approximately $420,000 for the anti-polio sugar cubes.

A surplus of $200,000 was realized after costs of the program were paid.

The trust fund will be used to benefit the following areas, according to Medical Society officials.

AREAS TO BENEFIT

Medicine, religion, charities, education, science, civic activities, economics and the arts.

Last night, Dr. Zachary F. Endress, the society's president, gave the initial contribution to Gov. Romney, who represented Oakland County's citizens.

Romney, in turn gave the $200,000 check to Raymond T. Perring, chairman of the Detroit Bank & Trust Co., which will administer the trust.

Romney told the audience that more of the same voluntary action is needed to make this a better society in which to live.

REDUCE COSTS

"We can keep down the cost of government if we do these things," asserted the governor.

He urged people to perform duties "not because we have to, but because we want to."

"This is the thing that made this country. This is what we must do."

Romney stressed the need for more volunteer workers in private and public organizations.

"We could use thousands more in our state in mental health, youth work and education," he said.

India Violated Border--China

Note Urges Halting of 'Aggressive' Acts

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China protested today against what it claimed were "successive serious violations" of Communist China's territory and sovereignty by Indian troops.

China demanded that India "dismantle" all military structures "built beyond or on the China-Sikkim border."

The Chinese also urged India to "withdraw" its armed forces and "stop all acts of aggression and provocation against China in the western, middle and eastern sectors of the China-Indian border."

The note, issued by the Chinese Communist Foreign Ministry and sent to the Indian government, was broadcast by Peking's New China News Agency.

Miami Misses Full Force of the Hurricane

Report Highest Tides Since 1926; Keys Hit by 140-M.P.H. Winds

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Betsy swept the lower Florida east coast today with the highest tides since the hurricane of 1926 and hurled her mightiest 140-mile wind gusts at the Florida Keys.

Storm tides running six feet above normal pushed the Miami River out of its banks and spread it out for blocks on both sides.

Other tides overflowed residential islands and sent muddy floods coursing through the streets of Miami and other cities.

One death had been reported. Helen Cooper, 40, was electrocuted in Miami by a falling power line.

Not since the 1926 killer hurricane, which sent residents streaming back north and broke the back of the great Florida boom, has a storm driven so much seawater ashore in the Miami area.

WE WERE LUCKY

"And we were very lucky, at that," said forecaster Gilbert Clark. "The highest tides were just north of the eye—in the area around Homestead 29 miles south of here. If the eye had crossed the coast a few miles farther north, we could have had a 16-foot tide."

The 1955 storm raised the tide level to 11 feet.

The sea flowed across Key Biscayne, a residential and resort community, over much of Miami Beach, and surged two to three feet deep down Miami's Biscayne Boulevard. But with the fall of the east wind as the hurricane passed, the water was expected to recede rapidly.

Word came from Nassau that the Bahamian capital might have come through yesterday's 12-hour beating without loss of life.

Local Traffic School Is Back in Session

Another class in the continuing series of traffic schools, sponsored by the Pontiac police, the Auto Club and The Pontiac Press, will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the City Commission chamber in City Hall.

Emphasis will be placed on safe driving and school children.

Patrolman Billie Irwin will be the instructor for this, the fourth class in the traffic safety series.

Sun Plans Short Visit

Today's clouds will drift away by tonight, leaving skies clear and temperatures a little cooler, the 48 to 56.

North to northeasterly winds at 5 to 15 miles per hour will blow clouds back again tomorrow, and scattered showers or thunderstorms Friday.

Temperatures will hit highs of 56 to 74 tomorrow. At 6 a.m. today the thermometer in downtown Pontiac registered 58. At 1 p.m. the reading was 64.

Bus Service Will Begin for OCC

But transportation for Oakland Community College students will begin tomorrow with four buses in operation.

Shuttle buses will run hourly from the Auburn Hills campus to the Pontiac bus station beginning at 6:45 a.m. and from the Highland Lakes campus to the bus station starting at 6:40 a.m.

Both shuttle buses will arrive in Pontiac on the hour and return to the respective campuses at 25 minutes after the hour.

Beginning in the afternoon, buses will transport students from both campuses back to Pontiac on the half hour.

Besides the shuttle service from Pontiac, a bus will transport students from Ferndale to the Auburn Hills campus and another from Oak Park to the Highland Lakes campus.

HOURLY BUS

The Auburn Hills bus will leave hourly beginning at 7 a.m. from Nine Mile and Hilton.

Stops will be made on Hilton at 10 Mile and 11 Mile, on Woodward at 12, 13 and 14 Mile roads and on Adams at Maple, Big Beaver, Waukegan and Long Lake roads.

The Highland Lakes bus will leave hourly from Nine Mile and Coolidge beginning at 6:45 a.m.

Stops will be made on Greenfield at 9, 10 and 11 Mile roads, on 11 Mile Road at Southfield, Lahser, Telegraph, Inkster and Middle Belt.

Other stops are scheduled on Middle Belt at 12, 13 and 14 Mile roads, on Orchard Lake Road at 14 and 15 Mile roads, on Maple at Farmington Road, Drake, Halsted and Haggerty and on Haggerty and Pontiac Trail.

Pontiac Area Chamber

Owners to Be 'Docked' if Stores Aren't Locked

BIRMINGHAM.—Businessmen who fail to lock the doors of their establishments after closing hours will face court action in the future.

The City Commission last night made the oversight unlawful by adopting an amendment to the nuisance ordinance.

The amendment prohibits any owner of a business, commercial or industrial building to leave his door unlocked between the hours of 11 p.m. and 6 a.m.

It is designed to assist police in preventing unauthorized entries.

The new law is aimed at the store owner who habitually leaves his building unlocked, said City Manager Robert Kenning.

OWNER REFUSAL
He said there have been times when the owner has refused to respond to a call from the police department or takes a considerable length of time to come downtown to lock the doors.

The amendment does not apply to buildings where there are guards or custodians.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS.—Cranbrook Institute of Science this fall will sponsor a series of lectures entitled "Staff Scientists' Reports."

Geared to the adult audience with specialized aspects of science emphasized, the reports will be presented in addition to illustrated lectures and film programs.

The first of the series will be held at 8:30 p.m. Sept. 15 in the auditorium of the science institute.

Dr. Warren P. Sloutamire will discuss pollination, particularly unusual pollination mechanisms developed by plants.

Tickets for the lecture can be purchased at the door.

breakdown in religion, morality, and home life which affects our youth. He quoted figures showing that 73.8 per cent of the state's major crimes are committed by youth 21 years and younger.

More alarming, said the governor, is that 56 per cent of Michigan's major crimes are committed by youth 16 and under.

"We no longer should be concerned about the government playing an adequate role in our society," said Romney, "but whether the individual, family, and private institution are going to play an adequate role."

Address stated that one of the advantages of the trust is that its funds can be used in a flexible manner based on the changing demands of the community.

According to the Medical Society, the community trust is a nonprofit Michigan corporation which will accept gifts, grants, bequests and similar contributions for worthwhile projects.

The board of trustees, consisting of nine community leaders, will invest the monies.

Members are Circuit Court Judge Phillip Pratt, Probate Judge Donald E. Adams, Dr. Endress, Dr. Worth W. Henderson, Jack W. Hutson, Adolph F. Klein, Vincent J. McAvoy, Don E. Ahrens and Charles E. DeVlieg.

"The sizable interest on investments, which shall be realized annually, will be turned back to the community in the form of grants for innumerable projects to directly benefit Oakland County and its citizens," said Dr. Endress.

Lyon Twp. Youth Is Crushed by Wagon Wheel

A 14-year-old Lyon Township youth was crushed to death by a wagon wheel last night when he fell from a cart while reaching for an apple.

Kenneth W. Piasecki, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Piasecki, 8920 Dixboro, was dead on arrival at McPherson Community Health Center in Howell shortly after 7 p.m.

State police said the boy was returning with a group of youths after picking corn in a field at 11 Mile and Napier. He was on the lead wagon in a two-wagon caravan pulled by a tractor.

Reaching for an apple hanging from a tree, he slipped and fell under the wheel of the rear wagon, witnesses told police.

Rare Plants Destroyed in New York City Fire

NEW YORK (UPI)—A $250,000 fire, possibly the work of arsonists, destroyed a rare collection of exotic plants and flowers at the New York Botanical Gardens last night.

Police said flames roared through a two-story service building reducing it to a charred wreckage. All the orchids and other rare tropical plants in four adjacent greenhouses were destroyed.

Retrial Denied for Killer Foster

A request by convicted slayer Carl F. Foster for a new trial was denied yesterday by Circuit Judge Frederick C. Ziem.

Foster's court appointed attorney Joseph L. Hardig said he would appeal the ruling to the State Court of Appeals.

Foster was found guilty July 21 of strangling his first wife Angela 17 months earlier. The verdict was reached by Ziem, who heard the case without a jury.

The 29-year-old former Pontiac factory worker was already serving a 10-15 year prison term for manslaughter in another killing when he was convicted. He was sentenced to life imprisonment for killing his wife.

Make Living Quarters More Flexible

Consultant in Money Management

In this era of "stretchies"—One Size Fits Everybody—what we really need is "stretch-housing." A home or apartment that expands to fit the existing number of people in the family—and then shrinks back to fit the ones who are left after the young have gone.

However, until that handy invention comes along, there are other ways of making your living quarters more flexible. One of these solutions is the so-called sofa bed.

With the high price of rents—and the cost per square foot of building a home—the young couple or growing family on a modest income might well consider investing in a sofa-bed.

There is also the lounge-chair or love-seat bed which affords hospitality for a single friend or relative, when otherwise you'd have no way of putting up an unexpected guest overnight or for a weekend.

If you consider that the cost per square foot for building an extra bedroom can be estimated at from $12 to $15, and that the rental for an extra bedroom in an apartment can be about $25 a month, the cost of a sofa bed doesn't seem too expensive.

Prices generally range from $90 to $400, and you can expect years of service for that investment.

Take your time in selecting this piece of furniture, because in a small home or apartment it should give you decorative as well as functional value for your money. There are four basic types to choose from: the jackknife, trundle, hidden-mattress style, and the studio lounge.

One type may have a back that drops down to the level of the seat, to form a bed 42 inches wide, with storage space for linens beneath the seat. Some of the newer "hidden-mattress" styles have frames that take up a minimum amount of space, yet convert to queen-size beds, or provide extra-long mattresses. And you have a choice of foam or spring mattress.

Two career women I know who share an apartment decided to replace their regular living room sofa with a version of the sofa-bed—and had it covered in a fine raspberry silk. It's a handsome piece of furniture just as is.

Along with the improvement in styling of the convertible, or "hidden" bed, there is a new approach, psychologically, to this type of furniture. Today's homemaker has no desire, or reason, to pretend that the sofa or the lounge chair or the studio couch isn't also a bed! She's proud of the fact that she's got double her money's worth.

Dear Miss Feeley:
 I am buying a dairy farm, and I have no experience in this field. Would like to know where I could get information or books, on use of farm equipment, plowing, milking, planting, etc.
 W. Z., Long Island City, N. Y.

Dear W. Z.:
 I'd say you're going to need more in the way of help than a quick reading course in dairy farming. The man who can teach you the most, probably, and will prove a competent, willing advisor is the county agent.

I suggest he's the first man to contact in the county where your farm is located. Look for him at the county court house. If he's not there, somebody will tell you where to locate him.

Dear Miss Feeley:
 Many years ago, under a payroll deduction plan where he was employed, my now deceased husband purchased Treasury Bonds. I was co-owner. I have lost them, and foolishly never kept a record of the numbers. Can I have them traced?

M. H., Long Island City, N. Y.

Dear H. M.:
 Report the loss of the bonds to the Bureau of the Public Debt, Division of Loans and Currency Branch, 536 South Clark Street, Chicago 5, Illinois.

Miss Jansen Dons Gown of Organdy

The Richard Randall Lees (Nancy Jo Jansen) who chose the West Bloomfield Baptist Church for their recent vows and reception, are at Niagara for a honeymoon.

A nylon tulle veil complemented the bride's tiered gown of Swiss-embroidered white organdy previously worn by her sister Mrs. Richard T. Nash, who was honor matron.

They are the daughters of the Thomas L. Jansens of Orchard Lake.

Bridesmaids were Pamela Moncher, Mrs. Robert C. Lee, and Bonnie Lee, flower-girl at the rite performed by Rev. John S. Meyer.

Larry Lee stood as best man for his brother. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joy E. Lee of Oxbow Lake Road, White Lake Township. Robert C. Lee and Melvin Kero ushered.

MRS. W. PACKARD JR.

Trip North After Vows for Couple

The First Unitarian Universalist Church in Detroit was the setting for the recent marriage of Linda Karen Grashoff to Willard Chadwick Packard Jr.

WHITE ROSES
 Daughter of the A. Waldegrave Grashoffs of Keweenaw Drive, the bride wore a full-length gown of off-white peau de soie with silk illusion veil. She carried white roses and Stephanotis.

Erika Wilinski attended as honor maid, along with Judith Packard and Susan Turner, who were bridesmaids.

The bridegroom, son of the senior Mr. and Mrs. Packard of Southfield, had Gerald Bernadotte for best man. Seating guests were James Packard, Jerold Grashoff and William Case.

After a church reception, the newlyweds left for a northern honeymoon.

A Feminine Frill

Saves Wallpaper

Before you drive a nail to hang a picture on a wall, slit the paper with a razor blade and fold a tab down. If you decide to remove the picture later, take out the nail and paste the paper tab back in place.

Really Big Yawn

ALTON, Ill. (AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Slack, 38, gave a big yawn and her mouth stayed open for five hours until a doctor shook her head and her dislocated jaws went back in place.

GEMS—Jewel of an Idea

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—GEMS is the symbol for Good Emergency Mother Substitute classes conducted each year by the Women's Auxiliary to Maricopa County Medical Society.

Because of GEMS, hundreds of babies in this area are safer and happier.

The course is available to anyone 12 years of age or over, although no specific age is recommended for baby sitters.

After its second year of sponsoring the GEMS plan, the auxiliary received a National Safety Council Award.

Those taking the six-week course doubled the second year and continued growing during the third year.

A CERTIFIED CHRONOMETER?

The rating of "chronometer" is reserved for timepieces of exceptional accuracy which have undergone 260 hours of rigid testing...in extremes of heat and cold. The peerless accuracy of every Omega Constellation is certified by an official Swiss Testing Bureau. So exacting are these tests, less than one out of every 50,000 watches qualifies for this coveted rating. In addition to official chronometer tests, Constellation's 24-jewel automatic movement receives 1497 quality-control inspections during manufacture...assuring longer life.

Powered by gravity, the Omega Constellation winds itself as you wear it. Without hand-winding, or power-cells which frequently need replacing, it will run for years and years, as long as you wear it. Calendarial models tell the exact date as well as the precise time...automatically. The Constellation is one of the world's finest watches. Ask for free Omega style brochure.

Bag Bears Hard Way

Seven Pontiac hunters took part in the brief September bear season in the Upper Peninsula the hard way.

Homer Pace, John Wiscombe, Ronald Bailey, Jack and Howard Crampton and Ron and Jim Austin took five black bears while hunting near Munising last week.

Instead of using dogs to rout out the bears, this group drove the swamps on foot much the same as a deer drive. All used 30-06 rifles with 180-grain bullets.

Eight bears were seen by the hunters.

Ornithology Course Offered at Oakland

A course in amateur ornithology will be offered this fall by the continuing education division of Oakland University.

Field trips will be included in the 10-week course that will cover identification, ecology, migration, classification and structure of birds found in Southeastern Michigan.

The first session will be Sept. 27 at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Daniel S. McGeen, president of the Michigan Bird Banding Association and former president of the Pontiac Audubon Club, which is co-sponsoring the course, will be the instructor.

Elk Permit Draw Today

A computer will start clicking off the numbers of this year's successful elk hunting applicants this afternoon in a data processing room in the basement of the Stevens T. Mason building in Lansing.

As soon as the machine has completed the job of selecting 300 elk licenses from more than 35,200 applications, it will be immediately pressed back into action to pick permit holders for this fall's history-making turkey hunt in Allegan county.

The total operation is expected to take only about one hour.

When the last of 400 turkey permits is selected from slightly more than 13,000 entries, Conservation Department office workers will start processing all applicants for return mailing to hunters.

Unsuccessful elk hopefuls will get some consolation in the form of $25 license deposits which will be returned to them.

Field Trial Sept. 18-19

The annual field trial of the Irish Setter Club of Michigan will be Sept. 18-19 at the Highland recreation area.

The trial is open to all setters — Irish, English and Gordon — in all but the dual dog stake. The open limited all-age stake is open to all pointing breeds.

Entries close at 9 p.m. on Sept. 14 at 4140 18½ Mile, Utica. Live pheasants will be used.

Department Shelves

Empty of Book Maps

Heavy demands have exhausted the Conservation Department supply of county map books for each of the state's three regions — the Upper Peninsula, the northern half of the Lower Peninsula and Southern Michigan.

Reprints of the map books have been ordered but they will not be on the shelves of the department's publications room this year.

Safe Boating Class Slated in Pontiac

The U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary will start a safe boating class Sept. 16 at the Naval Reserve Training Center, 469 South Blvd. East.

The nine-week course will cover all phases of basic seamanship, including rules of the road, knots and splices, aids to navigation, piloting, fueling safety and legal requirements.

Sessions will be from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Registration will begin at 7 p.m. the first night. A small fee will be charged to cover instructional materials.

Waste of Time on Two Lakes

Fishermen going to Heart and Crystal lakes after tomorrow will be wasting their time. The Conservation Department is poisoning fish in Heart, located in the Bald Mountain recreation area this afternoon. Crystal, in the Holly area, is scheduled for treatment tomorrow.

Henry Vondett, district fish supervisor, said the department sterile bluegills in order to study the quality of fishing in a lake where there is no reproduction.

"There is still some doubt that we will be able to obtain sterile bluegills," said Vondett. "If we don't receive any by next spring we'll restock Heart with regular bluegills and bass."

Crystal will be stocked with sub-legal black bass later in the fall as part of the department's study of one species lakes.

Vondett said Teplee lake in the Highland area will be poisoned later this year and trout introduced.
