Beat finals stress at pre-holiday event

By Jeff Samoray, OU Web Writer

Stressed about term papers or final exams? Oakland University's Center for Student Activities has planned an event that will help to celebrate the holidays while relieving the stress of preparing for finals. The event, called "'Twas the Week before Finals," will be held Thursday, Dec. 4, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Oakland Center Gold Rooms.

Activities at this pre-holiday carnival include:

- a celebration of Christmas, Hanukah, Kwanzaa and Ramadan;
- stress-relief zone with board games;
- snowman building;
- picture taking with the Grizz;
- decorating holiday cards for the elderly;
- canned food drive benefiting the Food Bank of Oakland County;
- prizes, giveaways and free food.

"The event creates a place for students to hang out, have fun and show their holiday spirit without worrying about finals," said Sara Crampton, coordinator of student leadership development.

For more information, contact the Center for Student Activities at (248) 370-2400 or csa@oakland.edu.
