Colombian Beauty Wins World Title

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Luz Marina Zuloaga, 19-year-old Miss Colombia who has only been kissed once, today was the new Miss Universe.

The Latin American beauty who captured the international crown for the second straight year for South America, was breathless with excitement and disbelief last night as she received the Miss Universe crown. Flash bulbs popped and the 4,500 persons in the Long Beach Municipal auditorium applauded.

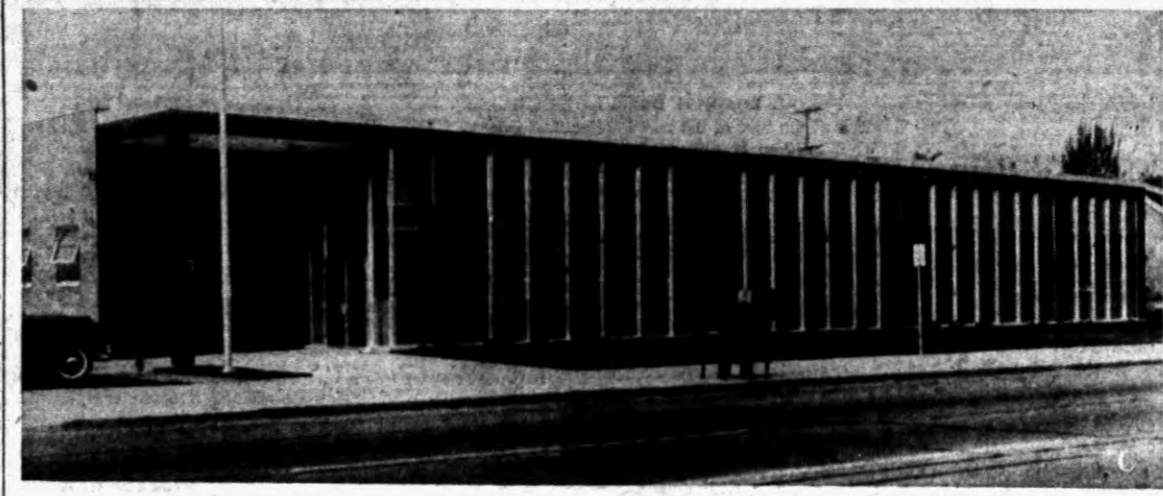

Miss Zuloaga, a shapely 25½—23½—35½, won the crown and $11,000 in cash, a new convertible and contracts worth $6,000 that go with it, over 54 foreign and 45 domestic beauties.

Runners up were, second, Miss Brazil, Adalgisa Colombo; third, Miss Hawaii, Geri Hoo; fourth, Miss U.S.A., Euryne Howell; and fifth, Miss Poland, Alicja Bobrowska.

The choice of a South American entrant was considered an upset for the number of curvaceous blonde beauties from Europe. Miss Poland was the only European to be named in the finals.

Beirut Fighting Grows Fiercer

Bloody Clash Lends Urgency to Efforts for Peace in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—A bloody clash between rebel and government forces, the worst since American troops landed two weeks ago, lent new urgency today to diplomatic efforts to resolve the Lebanese crisis before full-scale civil war erupts.

Unofficial reports said 14 persons were killed and another 12 wounded in fighting last night. The fighting was concentrated in an area at the foot of the rebel-held Al Khayad Hill, highest in Beirut. Rebel snipers and government troops traded rifle fire from adjoining rooftops for some time.

None of the 10,000 U.S. Marines and paratroops in Beirut was involved.

The clash provided new fuel to fears that unless a settlement is reached soon there would be an eruption of full-scale fighting between the rebels and government forces — with the U. S. troops camped in "no man's land."

The diplomatic negotiations to find a presidential candidate satisfactory to both sides were continuing almost non-stop. The 66-man Lebanese cabinet is scheduled to meet Thursday to elect a successor to President Camille Chamoun.

Rebel leader Saeb Salem already has warned, however, that his supporters would boycott the elections unless Chamoun and the U.S. forces are removed first.

Prospectors Dig Bargains in Gold Rush

Merchants opened a month-long celebration of "Gold Rush Days" Friday with a dazzling display of special bargains.

And they report that the crowds of prospectors hit pay dirt at every turn. Guided by the special ads in Thursday's paper, shoppers flocked to their favorite stores and service outlets.

Kuhn's Auto Wash had cars lined up around a whole block for a time. Stores, among the many reporting a big day included Stapp's Juvenile Booterie, Diem's Shoe Store, Kresge's, Lions Store, Kirby's Shoes and J. C. Penny Store at Miracle Mile.

The "Gold Rush Days" continue well into August; and there's still plenty of nuggets for the looking.

Army Launches Explorer IV From Cape Canaveral

Expecting to Ascertain If 38-Lb. Satellite Goes Into Orbit Later Today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—A Jupiter C rocket with Explorer IV on its tip streaked into the skies today in an Army attempt to place the bullet-shaped satellite in an orbit that would cross Russia.

The big rocket, bearing fire, bored into a blue sky and turned on a northeastward arc on a course just off shore from the Carolinas and New England. It carried the heaviest satellite—38 pounds—so far launched by this country.

It would be at least an hour, after reports are received from range stations, before it could be announced whether the new American moon had achieved its hoped-for orbit.

The Jupiter C blasted off from the missile test center about 10 a.m. (EST).

The National Academy of Sciences in Washington will announce whether the little satellite joined Explorer I, Vanguard I and Russia's Sputnik III in circling the earth.

TO SEEK DATA
The Army said the 80-inch "moon" was designed primarily to gather information on radiation in unexplored areas outside the earth's atmosphere.

Explorer IV was chosen to be the first U.S. satellite aimed at passing over Soviet soil.

There was no living creature in the satellite, only equipment to measure cosmic rays and radios to transmit the information (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Artist Sketches Tense Scenes in Mideast

Jordan Braces for Revolution

EDITOR'S NOTE: How does the tension-ridden Middle East appear to an artist? Howard Brodie, artist-author of "The Power of Faith," toured the Middle East this spring in search of material for his drawings. While there he could not help being impressed with the feeling of crisis in Jordan. Here he tells of the soldiers and people he met in words and sketches.

By HOWARD BRODIE

"Revolution within a month" was the last rumor I heard in Jordan. I could feel the tension of this area during my sketching trip earlier this year. While walking on the Mount of Olives I heard shots and thought hunters were near by. Three men had been shot in a border incident.

Jerusalem was cut in half by barbed wire, mines, and machine guns. There was only one gate through which a foreigner could cross and if he crossed it, he could not return. At night I heard the heavy footsteps of patrols along the border fifty feet from my hotel room.

Other than for his red head-dress, the Arab soldier looks like a British soldier. His winter coat looks American. The head-dress, aside from keeping the head warm in winter, shaded in summer, and offering protection from dust and insects, communicates hidden meanings in its folds; draped across the mouth might mean anger, one fold across top of head means a bachelor looking for a girl.

The Arab soldier reflects the hospitality of his people: coffee and tea are offered upon introduction. I've had about ten cups of Turkish coffee in one day while meeting people. I visited an army camp and after coffee and cake sketched soldiers. Many were reluctant to pose for pictures would be used in anti-Arab propaganda.

The camp had impressive buildings and compared favorably with our army camps, and reminded me of them with the round of radio music and lines of laundry. The officers and men were intelligent and courteous.

On the Jerusalem-Jericho highway I passed the Good Samaritan Inn. Permission to sketch was denied since it was a military post. However, the mounted policemen poured me coffee and offered to cook a meal. They maintain order and patrol for Communist infiltrators. They are impressive in black boots and chartreuse head-dresses on their mounts. They purchase their own horses.

The visit was interrupted by the visit of district commander, who informed the post a convoy of government officials would be passing en route to Amman. Guards were posted along the fifty-mile highway stretch which passes the Dead Sea. There were army camps along the sea and patrol boats on its waters.

At sundown on Bethlehem road workmen in Arab robes moved up to the border, carrying weapons for their hours of national guard duty. The regular army wears red head-dresses, the reserves yellow head-dresses, the mounted police chartreuse, the police gold.

New Post Office Open for Business Monday

Pontiac's new main post office, a new 150 by 280 foot building at 735 West Huron street, will be open for business Monday morning.

Some 200 postal employees will work in and from the new building.

The Huron Gardens branch is closing today and its staff will be transferred to the present post office in the downtown area, which will be known as the Federal branch. About 60 employees will work in this branch, serving the downtown business area.

Official dedication of the new building will be held sometime in August, on a date still to be determined.

With the opening of the new $850,000 building, new service hours have been announced:

The lobby will be open 24 hours a day, giving access to the 1,000 lockboxes available there.

All windows except money orders, postal savings and bulk mail will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, according to Robert C. Miller, acting postmaster. These hours will also be in effect in the old post office building on East Huron street. Noon is closing time on Saturdays.

The bulk mail window will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and the hours of the money order and postal savings windows will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Eleven windows can operate at once in the new building during rush seasons, according to Miller.

The largest room in the building is a 20,000 square foot work room. Here the sorting and distribution of incoming and outgoing mail is (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

Missing Boy, 4, Found Drowned

Discovered in Slough; 100 Had Sought Child All Night Near Oscoda

OSCODA — State Police radioed from the search scene today that a 4-year-old boy missing overnight from his Oscoda home had been found drowned in a slough known as the Dead Au Sable River.

The scene is four miles south of Oscoda.

The child was Mark Soulliere. He vanished from the backyard of his home clad only in white shorts late yesterday.

More than 100 State Police soldiers sheriff's deputies and volunteers had hunted for the boy.

When she couldn't find the tot who had been playing in the backyard Mark's mother called State Police.

An all-night search turned up no clues.

Nearby Wurtsmith Air Force Base where the child's father T. Sgt. Zane Soulliere is assigned sent two helicopters to join the search. East Tawas State Police brought in a bloodhound.

Sgt. Soulliere currently is on a temporary duty assignment in Arkansas. The mother was alone with Mark and four other sons the oldest 11.

Another tragedy struck the family two years ago. An only daughter died in a fire which destroyed their home.

Cocktails in the Space Age

Some Thoughts on a Weightless Crisis

By JACK STILLMAN

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—The bartender on the Mars Express will have his hands full. But he will have one advantage: his dry martinis will really be dry.

If he's not careful, they'll be so dry the gin will be floating on one side of the lounge and the vermouth on the other.

The root of the problem is weightlessness in space. If no satisfactory answer to this phenomenon is found before man begins traveling from one planet to another, the bartender's union will probably be lobbying for prohibition.

For instance, what will the bartender do about his ice cubes?

They won't stay in the convenient bucket if they have no weight. He'll have to keep them on a leash to prevent them from wandering across the bar and mixing with the customers.

And how do you pour gin out of a bottle if the liquid would just as soon go up as down?

You could work the gin to the neck of the bottle and then, with a professional wrist motion, pull the bottle away from the gin, leaving just enough for one martini.

Clumsiness, of course, would not be fatal.

The gin would just hover there, and a real particular customer could whip out a ruler and insist that the bartender lop off any excess and herd it back into the bottle.

Next comes the vermouth. The problem is similar, but the solution could provide a bartender with a grand opportunity for demonstration of skill.

The vermouth will be stored in an atomizer (as most martin drinkers wish it were now).

Once he has the gin hanging in a glob over the bar, the Mars Express bartender will spray a fine cloud of vermouth around it.

Then comes the olive, and on the Mars Express it can be placed on the bottom, on the side, or on the top. A twist of the wrist would give it a twirling motion, so that the olive would perform a tiny orbit all its own at the top of the martini.

Finally, there is the problem of consumption. Drinking a martini on the way to Mars will be quite a challenge.

You could punch it with a soda straw, inhale it, or pull it apart with your fingers.

None of these methods sounds entirely satisfactory. But if the bartender manages to mix it, the least the customers can do is drink it.

LUTHERANS BELIEVE THE BIBLE IS FOR EVERYONE

What good does an earth satellite do you? It depends on whose satellite it is—and on what its purpose is.

What the Holy Bible can do for you also depends upon whose book it is and what its purpose is.

The Christian Church says, "The Holy Scriptures... are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus. All Scripture is given by inspiration of God." (II Timothy 3, 15, 16)

Don't dismiss that claim lightly. When the headlines announced a satellite, you believed it. Give at least as serious consideration to the claims of the Christian Church whose message has changed our world more than any space missile. Closer to home, the fact that your Lutheran neighbors, who are (on the whole) a fairly stable lot, believe the Bible is God's Word to man should make you take a serious second look at this book.

At first you might think it's an enemy missile for sure. It tells you that your nature is evil and your death will mean an eternal exile from God. But once you train your sight on the Gospels, you'll see it's on your side. You'll see God is on your side! He has given you a way to salvation through the work of His Son, Jesus Christ. The Bible urges you to accept His love and be saved!

It took sixteen centuries to launch the Bible's sixty-six books. Their orbit has expanded through the years. If you have read this far, the Bible's message has reached you, too! Accept it. Check in with the Church. Make this weapon yours!

Confident Living

New Start Is Possible Despite Past Failures

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

His name was Jim. He was a big man, but shy. He was a salesman. His company employed a large sales force and Jim's record was nearly the worst of all. It seemed only a question of time before his employer would have to let Jim go.

PEALE

Yet, only a year after his superiors had decided to give Jim one last chance, he passed every other salesman employed by his company to become its top producer. At the annual sales meeting, the sales manager called Jim up to the platform to give him the prize for being top man for the year. As the manager handed him a check he said: "Jim, you're a mystery to us. You've never been anywhere near the top in sales before, but now you've reached it. Besides, you came up from the bottom of the list. How did you do it? I want you to tell the boys here."

Jim was embarrassed. "There's really nothing I can tell them," he said. "I just got hold of something that changed me and made me a new man."

"What was that?" the manager asked curiously.

"I simply found thirteen lucky words—and they've been worth their weight in gold to me. You see, when I was told you were going to fire me if I didn't improve, I got to thinking. I went home that night, gave my wife some money and told her to take the kids to the movies because I wanted to be alone. I sat in my chair thinking, and believe me, boss, I was pretty honest with myself.

"Well, after a while, I happened to see an old Bible my mother had given me but which I hadn't looked at for years. She told me if I ever got into trouble I'd find an answer to it in that Book. Well, I was in real trouble. Maybe this was the time. Anyway, I took it from the shelf, blew the dust off it, and began to leaf through it, reading here and there. There were lots of good things in it, but it wasn't until I was almost going to close it in discouragement that I found exactly what I must have been looking for."

Talking religion wasn't his line, but he continued doggedly. "I found these thirteen words: 'Behold, I make all things new... He that overcometh shall inherit all things.'"

"Well, those words struck me like a ton of bricks. If anyone needed to be made new I was the man!"

"I closed the Bible, got down on my knees and prayed to God to make me a new man: to help me stop being such a flop in life. I meant this prayer too, and I felt much better. Then my wife and kids came home and we went to bed. I had the best sleep in weeks. I felt more peaceful and confident.

"The very next morning, I repeated those thirteen words to myself several times. And because I was determined to change everything about me and make it all new like the words said, I went downtown and bought a complete new outfit and took it home. Then I undressed, got into the tub and scrubbed myself as hard as I could. It seemed like I wanted to wash all the failures off of me. Then I dressed and, before going out, knelt down and prayed for God's help and guidance. I looked in the mirror on my way out, and, believe it or not, I actually looked like a new man. I know that sounds crazy, but it's the way it seemed.

"I said, 'God, I'm going out now to make my calls and do the best I can, with your help.' I found myself taking a lot more interest in the people I called on. I was more enthusiastic. I began to sell, and I realized I was enjoying myself. Everything perked up because I was perked up. I guess that's all there is to it."

The man who told me about this said that at this point you could hear a pin drop. Then, suddenly, there was cheering such as had never been heard before at any sales meeting. Jim's friends had seen actual proof that a man, with God's help, can make himself over, despite past failures, and start life anew. There are always new beginnings for new men. (Copyright, 1958)
