Viet Forces Revolt Against Khanh

Rebel Chief Captures Key Saigon Centers

Catholic in Control; Reports Conflict on Fate of Past Leaders

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Military forces headed by a Roman Catholic officer revolted today against Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh's leadership and, without firing a shot, seized strategic centers of Saigon.

But an attempt seemed under way to nullify the coup, the eighth major upheaval in South Viet Nam's politico-military affairs in the last 16 months. The situation was tense.

U. S. diplomats launched consultations, evidently aimed at avoiding bloodshed.

Warplanes circled above the rebel-held Saigon radio station and tanks were drawn up outside it. Loudspeakers warned civilians to clear the area.

★ ★ ★

The rebel chieftain, Col. Pham Ngoc Thao, 42, said the commander of South Viet Nam's U.S.-backed armed forces was under house arrest, along with Brig. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, head of the air force. Ky put down a similar uprising against Khanh last Sept. 13.

CONFLICTING REPORTS

Conflicting reports, however, said Ky was safe and still in control of many of his fighters at the Bien Hoa base outside Saigon and that Khanh was at one of two provincial cities, Bang Tau or Nha Trang.

Thao, 42, and most of the other coup leaders are Catholics, a minority in this largely Buddhist nation.

A violent Buddhist reaction was predicted to their bid for power, which came 72 hours after the installation of a new government in which that sect was well represented.

★ ★ ★

DICTATORSHIP

Thao accused Khanh of running a dictatorship.

He said the strong man who has dominated South Vietnamese affairs for 13 months was interested only in money and power.

"No government can work under Khanh pressure," he said.

★ ★ ★

Thao said the Vietnamese ambassador to Washington, Lt. Gen. Tran Thien Khiem, would return to Saigon to join him in leading a new government.

In Washington, Khiem announced his full support for the military revolt against Gen. Nguyen Khanh.

★ ★ ★

He said in an interview today that if the present coup succeeds he will return to Saigon at

Discuss Saigon Action

LBJ Sees McNamara, Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson conferred today with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of State Dean Rusk on the topsy-turvy political situation in South Viet Nam.

★ ★ ★

While the White House did not say so, the latest upheaval in Saigon appeared to have come as an unwelcome surprise to Johnson administration strategists.

Johnson was informed of Saigon attempt to overthrow Gen. Nguyen Khanh "some time between 6 and 7 o'clock this morning," White House press secretary George E. Reedy said.

"The developments are being followed very closely. Information still is somewhat fragmentary."

In addition to discussing the situation with McNamara and Rusk, Johnson conferred with McGeorge Bundy, his special assistant for national security affairs, who recently carried out a presidential mission in Saigon.

Reedy was asked whether there had been a meeting of the National Security Council within the past 24 hours.

"No," he replied. "There may or may not have been meetings with some advisers."

It was understood that Johnson did meet late yesterday afternoon with some of his security advisers.

Spokesmen at the State Department declined immediate comment. Officials said diplomatic dispatches from the U. S. Embassy in South Viet Nam reported the political picture confused and unsettled.

According to one version reaching Washington through diplomatic channels an attempt at a military coup had taken place but it was yet clear whether it would succeed.

Rebel claims that South Viet Nam's armed forces commander, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, was under arrest were denied.

Viet Talks Again Urged

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — French President Charles de Gaulle renewed his call for an international conference to settle the Viet Nam crisis in a letter to Cambodia's left-leaning Prince Norodom Sihanouk published today.

1 Shot, 8 Hurt in Rights Clash

MARION, Ala. (AP)—One Negro was shot twice and at least eight other persons, including three newsmen, were beaten during a clash between Negro demonstrators and police on the first night march of the present voter registration campaign.

The march started quietly last night at the Zion Methodist Church on one corner of the attractive square in the center of this west central rural Alabama county seat of about 4,000.

About 500 demonstrators left the church and headed for the jail to protest the arrest of one of their leaders, James Orange. Police told them to disperse.

"We stood there a little while and turned around," said Albert Turner, president of the Perry County Civil League.

"One of the ministers in the group started praying. By that time state troopers had arrived."

He said the troopers "started pushing the crowd back toward the church, but our people couldn't get in the door because it was jammed.

"When they tried to go around the church to a side door the troopers beat them."

Police and Highway Patrol officials declined to comment on what followed. But there was clubbing and shoving and some rock and bottle throwing.

An FBI spokesman said some arrests were made.

In addition to the nine reported injured, Negro leaders said 15 or 20 members of their race were hurt but not enough to be hospitalized.

PATRICIA NEAL

Film Actress Still Critical

Suffers Two Strokes, Has Brain Operation

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Oscar winner Patricia Neal remained in critical condition today after brain surgery following two strokes.

The UCLA Medical Center said there was no change in her condition overnight.

★ ★ ★

Miss Neal arrived from England last week, looking radiantly well, speaking enthusiastically of the movie she was to start. After being stricken Wednesday, she was placed in the hospital's intensive care unit.

Nearby were her husband, British mystery short - story writer Roald Dahl, and their three children, Tessa, 8; Theo, 5, and Ophelia, 8 months.

The first stroke — another in a series of misfortunes that have dogged the 39-year-old star's career — occurred Wednesday night.

Rushed to the University of California at Los Angeles Medical Center, she suffered a second stroke and was taken to surgery.

★ ★ ★

Late yesterday her surgeon, Dr. Charles Carton, issued a terse statement: "Mrs. Patricia Dahl was brought in last night with severe intracranial bleeding. Brain surgery was performed. Her condition remains critical."

★ ★ ★

Miss Neal won her academy award as best actress last April for her performance as Paul Newman's slatternly housekeeper in "Hud."

$7-Million Loss in Tax Base Is Ahead for City

Stems From New State Laws Exempting Types of Machinery

Pontiac's tax base—the foundation for monies to operate local government—will have to weather a nearly $7-million storm over the next four years.

This is the estimated loss in tax base due to a 1964 statute that exempts tools, dies, jigs and fixtures from taxation.

In terms of revenue, the loss in Pontiac totals $284,268 to the city, county and school district, according to city officials.

The state has softened the blow to local units of government by providing for a decreasing reimbursement beginning in 1966 at 100 per cent and dropping 25 per cent each year.

Nevertheless, Pontiac will lose $6,950,028 in equalized valuation because of the exemption on tools, dies, jigs and fixtures.

City Manager Joseph A. Warren said that the actual loss to the city's general operating fund, if the loss in the tax base can not be made up by new construction, would total $69,500.

★ ★ ★

He said the only other loss would be $12,500 to the capital improvement fund, which is supported by a separate 1.5-mill levy.

Avalanche Buries 20; Still Threat

STEWART, B. C. (AP) — The threat of more slides grew today as 20 men—some hurt seriously—huddled in the ruins of a remote glacial valley mining camp waiting for help.

And the fate of at least 20 companions remained hidden under the rubble of a giant avalanche that thundered down on the Granduc Mining Co., almost wiping out the northern British Columbia copper mining camp on the edge of a glacier yesterday.

Sketchey reports from the scene indicate the miners were continuing to hunt for the missing men, but were hampered by darkness.

Vicious weather—high winds, snow and rain—prevented rescuers from getting to the mountain-ringed campsite. Recent warm weather and continued heavy rainfall brought fears of more slides before a way could be found to evacuate the camp.

★ ★ ★

Radio reports from the camp said 17 injured men were lying on a floor of an office building, some needing additional medical aid.

Some of the injured were pulled from a mass of mud, snow and ice that struck in midmorning. Others were among 40 men rescued late yesterday from a tunnel being dug into copper reserves under Le Duc Glacier, officials reported.

Canadian Army Lt. Col. Walter H. V. Mathews confirmed today in nearby Prince Rupert, B. C., that 40 were rescued from the tunnel. He said at least 20 men were missing, maybe still trapped in the tunnel or somewhere under tons of mushy debris.

The men were rescued by fellow miners using shovels because their power tools were buried, said Mathews who heads an evacuation center at this Canadian port 150 miles south of the camp.

Crippled Jet Lands 42 Safely at Tampa

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—A Canadian passenger jet with 42 persons aboard landed safely yesterday when the pilot discovered he had landing gear trouble shortly after takeoff.

The Air Canada flight, bound for Montreal, circled Tampa Airport for 90 minutes before touching down in what officials called a "normal" landing.

Decision Due on Cameras of Ranger 8

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Scientists guiding the Ranger 8 spacecraft to the moon face a critical decision—whether a final maneuver will be necessary to insure good pictures in the final plunge to the lunar surface tomorrow morning.

Radio contact with the 800-pound spacecraft has been far from perfect since its launching from Cape Kennedy Wednesday.

There was a time early yesterday when they did not know whether it had obeyed commands pointing it at the moon's Sea of Tranquility prior to the firing of a steering rocket.

Apparently it did obey properly. After long hours of tracking scientists determined yesterday afternoon that Ranger 8 probably would impact within 18 miles of its target.

But there was a chance its six television cameras might not be pointed at the best angle to take some 4,000 pictures as it crashes into the lunar surface at 5,800 miles an hour.

ENOUGH FUEL

Ranger 8 still has enough fuel to twist itself around in space if necessary so this is the dilemma faced by scientists today:

- They first must determine whether the cameras are pointed at the best angle.
- If not, they must decide whether to risk — in view of earlier communications difficulties — commanding the spacecraft to twist around to a different position.

Snow Blows, Mercury Dips

Nature proved it's still winter with 1 to 2 inches of new snow for the area yesterday.

In addition, the mercury dropped steadily during the night and early this morning hitting a low of 10 above. By 2 p.m. today, however, the mercury had risen to 17 in downtown Pontiac.

More agreeable weather is forecast for the weekend. Mostly fair skies with a low of 18 to 25 are expected tonight, to be followed by partly cloudy skies and warmer temperatures tomorrow. The high predicted is 33 to 38.

Employe Ideas Win $400,000

General Motors employes in the Pontiac area were full of ideas on how to make their jobs safer and easier last year. And the suggestions put nearly $400,000 in their pockets.

The money was only part of the record $7,868,184 received by GM employes in the U.S. and Canada through the GM Suggestion Plan during 1964.

In announcing the all-time high in awards, Louis G. Seaton, vice president in charge of the personnel staff, said today that 172,389 suggestions were adopted by the corporation, 5,790 in Pontiac alone.

Of the 60 maximum awards of $6,000 received by employes across the country, five of them went to local division workers. In addition, awards of $1,000 or more went to 56 other area employes.

Winning the maximum awards were Pontiac Motor Division employes Earl A. Boyea, 3228 Homestead, Waterford Township; Arthur R. Ripley, 6729 Amy, and Leonad F. Thiese, Kingfisher, both of Independence Township; and Fisher Body Division employes, John W. Neeson, 56 Putnam, and Eugene Soper, 153 Cherokee.

EXCEED TOTAL

The 1964 national awards exceeded the total paid out during the first 10 years of the plan and for the second successive year topped $7 million.

During 1963, the corporation adopted 168,615 suggestions for awards totaling $7,052,924.

The plan was established in 1942, and a total of more than $63 million has been awarded for approximately 1.4 million suggestions adopted by GM.

"Suggestions submitted deal with many phases of our business and result in safety improvement, better quality, improved manufacturing and handling methods and in material savings," Seaton said.

Seaton said, "The continued growth of the Suggestion Plan in all phases — number of employes participating, the number of suggestions adopted and the amount of awards — demonstrates the increasing awareness of GM employes of the many benefits of the program to themselves and fellow employes.

Ripley (second from right) explains his idea for an engine hose supporting bracket that won him $6,000 to the four other local GM workers who received the maximum award for suggestions last year. U. of M. Set to Expand Flint Branch

FLINT (AP)—The University of Michigan plans to continue expanding its Flint branch despite a request by Gov. George Romney that the state's schools go slow on major new projects.

Shortly after Romney asked Thursday that U. of M. delay expanding the Flint branch, Harlan Hatcher, university president, told Flint officials that "it seems to us to be the height of inconsistency to deny the wonderful work that has gone forward here or to put a stop to it on any grounds that have so far been advanced."

★ ★ ★

The Flint facility currently handles juniors and seniors but plans to begin full four-year courses in the fall of this year.

Hatcher said 250 prospective freshmen already have applied for entry this fall and that 126 have been accepted. He said, "We would be acting in the most irresponsible way ever if we did not accept this class.

INDEFINITE FUTURE

"It is incomprehensible that these Flint students must wait until some indefinite future when some not yet defined board makes some not yet defined new survey to indicate whether or not this is a proper way of educating these young people who will be too old to be educated by the time all these things are accomplished. We will go ahead in the autumn."

★ ★ ★

Hatcher, who was accompanied here by members of the university's board of regents and of the school's staff, said that while Romney had recommended money for expanded freshman classes at all the other state-supported colleges and universities, he had asked Michigan to delay expansion. Romney had asked the delay until the new State Board of Education completes a master plan for higher education in the state. He said the project could take from one to two years.

★ ★ ★

Hatcher said expansion of the Flint program required no enabling legislation because the branch college already existed. He said "the only thing required is that the legislature correct the injustice that has been recommended and make the appropriations."

He said the Mott Foundation, headed by philanthropist C. S. Mott, has pledged $2.4 million for additions to the Flint college buildings.

Remodeling Is Recommended

The cost of renovating the Oakland County Medical Care Facility for the care of tuberculosis patients was estimated at $96,000 to $116,000 this morning by County Engineer Joseph Joachim.

Joachim presented his figures to a special meeting of the supervisors' ways and means committee.

After discussion of Joachim's report, the committee voted to recommend to the board of supervisors that the board of auditors be authorized to proceed with the project.

The recommendation, along with several others dealing with the transfer of some 75 patients from the Oakland County TB Sanatorium to the medical care facility, will be presented to the board in its regular meeting Tuesday.

The plan is the result of the recent sale of the TB sanatorium to Oakland Community College, which hopes to take it over about April 1.

ONLY ALTERNATIVE

A special committee of county officials has determined that putting TB patients in the medical care facility, which is now set up as a noncontagious hospital, is the only alternative to sending them outside the county.

Several changes in the physical layout must be made, however, before the State Health Department will permit the facility to be used for the care of TB patients.

Joachim's report to the committee emphasized that his estimates may be subject to revision as the work progresses.

Daniel T. Murphy, chairman of the board of auditors, told the committee that money which had already been set aside to remodel the TB sanatorium can be used for the project.

WOULD LIKE MORE TIME

Joachim said that although he would like to have more time, enough of the project can be completed by April 1 to permit moving most of the TB patients into the medical care facility.

Kiefer Hospital in Detroit and Mayberry Sanatorium in Northville are available for temporary use by Oakland County TB patients if necessary.

Extensive remodeling of the medical care facility to meet State Fire Marshall requirements has been underway for nearly a year.

Cost of this work, which is about two-thirds completed, is approaching $185,000.

Some of it will have to be revised to comply with regulations regarding TB patients, Joachim said.

State Chairman Defends New Assessment Schedule

The Michigan State Tax Commission's revised assessment schedules on personal property were defended vigorously yesterday by Robert L. Purnell, commission chairman.

★ ★ ★

Purnell was guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Supervisors Inter - County Committee, held at the Botsford Inn, Farmington.

The new schedules have met "a good deal of resistance" from assessors and equalization directors in the metropolitan counties, Purnell said.

'But they are the result of extensive research, and we feel that they are as near perfect as they can be. We'll change them only if they can be proven wrong."

Designed to give Michigan industry a "tax break," the new schedules were issued last October.

They afford faster depreciation rates, resulting in lower assessments, on industrial machinery, tools and utilities.

OFFICIALS ALARMED

Officials of industrial counties are alarmed at the loss of tax revenue represented by the new schedules.

At the invitation of the commission, some counties, including Oakland, have prepared compromise schedules for the consideration of the commission.

The commission has not revised its original directive, however.

Purnell said research on the personal property tax structure in some cases went back to 1911.

He admitted that the new depreciation tables represent a "very drastic" revision in previous assessment schedules, but offered no solution as to how municipalities can regain the revenue loss.

A 1964 statute exempts tools, dies, jigs and fixtures from taxation but provides for decreasing reimbursement by the state over a five-year period.

County budget-planners object to the commission's most recent action because it will probably become effective this year, leaving no time to plan for revenue losses.

Oakland County officials are not yet able to determine how much revenue the county stands to lose under the new assessment schedules.

SOME LOSS OFFSET

Some of the loss will be offset by industrial expansion, but preliminary estimates are that the new depreciation schedules will cut the county's equalized valuation by several million dollars.

For Community College

Tutorial Plan Proposed

When the doors of Oakland Community College swing open this fall, students will be introduced to a new method of learning.

This, at least, is the plan of College President Dr. John E. Tirrell and associates.

A potentially controversial program of supervised self-instruction—a tutorial approach to learning—was presented last night to the six-member college board of trustees.

Although the board reacted favorably to the proposal, no action will be taken until its next meeting.

★ ★ ★

The tutorial program, as explained by college officials, seeks to bring the teacher and student together on a one-to-one basis as nearly as possible.

'CARREL' ARRANGEMENT

What this will mean to students is that they will be confronted with a "carrel" arrangement in the classroom instead of the traditional lecture situation.

Previously defined as a monk's study area, a "carrel" is a three-sided booth equipped for individual study, including such modern devices as a small movie projector and tape recorder.

As the student studies, according to the local educators, he is free to consult the teacher or tutor, gaining the advantage of the one-to-one relationship, which is the best approach for learning.

★ ★ ★

The tutorial approach is new but is not necessarily revolutionary, according to college officials.

BEST TECHNIQUE

The one-to-one approach has been demonstrated as the best technique, providing better learning.

The traditional lecture method will not be entirely abandoned, said Dr. Tirrell. It will be incorporated and used in the form of weekly "assembly" sessions for each course.

"The tutorial approach enables the community college," he added, "to make use of its uniqueness."

Dr. Tirrell explained the uniqueness as being the narrow range of programs with thousands of students taking the same course.

SAME CAST

The college president said the new method would not be cheap, but would not be any more expensive than the old 30-to-a-class arrangement.

Two basic features of the tutorial approach are that it provides feedback between the student and teacher, and gives flexibility for effective teaching.

The big advantages to the faculty are that the tutorial approach enables the continual evaluation of teachers and they in turn can learn about their teaching.

★ ★ ★

However, the tutorial method provokes strong reactions from teachers, say college officials.

FACULTY REACTION

So far potential faculty have either rejected it with "it will never work" or received it with eagerness.

"Educationally it is the most sound thing I've encountered. It can't fail," commented Dr. R. E. Wilson, college dean of instruction.

Local college officials, however, appear convinced the tutorial concept will work and will pass the acid test—the best educational program.

Oust Khanh in Viet Nam

the invitation of the coup leaders to give whatever help he can in returning his country to stability.

Khiem is a Buddhist former defense minister and ex-chief of staff of the Vietnamese armed forces sent to the diplomatic assignment in a Saigon shakeup last fall.

Saigon was quiet and by late afternoon no shooting had been reported.

★ ★ ★

Vietnamese Air Force planes circled the city continuously.

AIMED AT KHANH

Thao in a broadcast accused Khanh of swindling the military and the people.

He said his action was directed against one man — Khanh — and no one else.

There was great possibility of an attack by military units loyal to Khanh.

★ ★ ★

Khanh had been expecting trouble.

STILL IN CHARGE

Nearly the entire armed forces strategic reserve, normally held in Saigon to reinforce any field units in trouble, had been deployed to the provinces where forces loyal to Khanh presumably were still in charge.

These include two battalions of marines in central Bin Dinh Province and the large force Khanh led to Nha Trang for an attack on a suspected Viet Cong supply port.

Thao claimed he had the support of the 25th, 9th, 7th and 5th Army divisions, which are stationed in areas adjoining Saigon, plus part of the marine corps and part of the air force.

★ ★ ★

SMASHED THROUGH

Several M24 tanks smashed through the barbed wire barricades outside the navy headquarters and Khanh's house, which are on the same street.

Riding in one of the tanks was Col. Thao.

This happened about 1 p.m. Saigon time (midnight yesterday Eastern Standard Time).

★ ★ ★

At the same time, tanks smashed their way into the Saigon airport, blocking Vietnamese air force planes whose pilots were not on the side of the rebels.

CIRCLED SAIGON

About 10 Skyraider fighter-bombers, whose pilots apparently had been won over, took off and circled Saigon for the remainder of the afternoon.

Within 30 minutes all key military installations in Saigon had been taken by the rebels.

It was believed that troops from the 5th Division, based 15 miles north of Saigon, had occupied the installations with assistance of at least two marine battalions.

At 2 p.m., when Thao had received confirmation by radio that all objectives had been taken, a convoy of tanks and military trucks drove hurriedly through the streets to Saigon Radio Station.

There, Thao said in a broadcast, "This is not a coup d'etat but it is a military operation."

Confab Today for State GOP

Expect Elly Peterson to Be New Chairman

LANSING (AP) — Michigan Republicans meet today and Saturday to formally elect Mrs. Elly Peterson their chairman and to adopt a 1965 platform.

Mrs. Peterson has been tapped by Gov. George Romney to succeed Arthur Elliott, who announced his retirement last month after criticism mounted about the party's public relations.

Mrs. Peterson will become the first woman state chariman in GOP history.

CLOSING SPEECH

A 47-member preconvention resolutions committee has been working on resolutions and platform.

The most interesting could concern a call for fiscal reform.

Democrats asked for a new tax structure at their convention last weekend and Romney praised the declaration.

The governor would not say Thursday if he planned to recommend a similar resolution at the GOP convention.

SELECT OFFICERS

The convention also will select a new state central committee and vice chairmen.

Mrs. Romney was to highlight a women's policy-organization meeting this afternoon.

Ice Show Will Feature Fairy Tale Favorites

BIRMINGHAM — Two favorite fairy tales will be produced with a new twist here next week.

Sleeping Beauty, Snow White and the fascinating characters who have cavorted with them for generations will come to life Feb. 27 on the ice rink at Eton Park.

The rink, a half block east of the Lincoln-Eton intersection, will be the scene of the ninth annual outdoor ice show "Skaters Holiday of '65."

Skaters will be costumed as bunnies, skunks, birds, trees and fairies. Scenic backgrounds will include a fantasy castle, Snow White's house, a wishing well and spinning wheel.

The program is the climax of the season's ice-skating program at the park. The cast includes members of the Recreation Department's Figure Skating Club and 150 children who have participated in skating classes at the rink.

GRAND FINALE

A huge skaters' carousel is planned for the grand finale.

Tickets can be purchased at the rink only on the night of the show.

In case of rain, the show will be presented at 7:30 p. m, Feb. 28. The program is cosponsored by the Birmingham Recreation Department and Department of Forestry and Parks.

BEVERLY HILLS — The University of Michigan Symphonic Band will perform in a Thursday night concert at Wylie E. Groves High School.

The 8 p. m. concert will be staged in the auditorium of the school at 20500 W. 13 Mile.

Sponsored by the Music Parents' Club of the school, the program will finance music scholarships for talented orchestra and band members.

Tickets for the event are on sale at Grinnell Brothers, 299 W. Maple, Birmingham; Kay Baum, Inc., 166 W. Maple, Birmingham; and Dandy Drug, 31215 Southfield.

Nature Center Plans Viewed

A progress report on a proposed nature center in Waterford Township and an explanation of how it would serve the school system was presented last night to the Waterford Township Board of Education.

Donald Maxwell, science consultant for the school district, and Charles Welsh, principal at Riverside Elementary School, gave the report.

They said a group of some 75 persons from the metropolitan area has been planning the center for two years on an 82-acre site south of Hatchery.

The site formerly was used as a hatchery by the state. The group hopes to purchase the land soon and open the center this summer.

Welsh and Maxwell explained that development of the center, to be known as the Drayton Plains Nature Center, will be accomplished through grants and membership fees.

Due to its location in the central area of Waterford Township, the center will be easily accessible to students in the local school system.

Among the educational facilities planned for the center are nature trails, a museum and bird sanctuaries.

State Unit OKs Hatchery Sale

A proposed bill permitting the sale of the state-owned Drayton Plains Fish Hatchery to a private group for nature studies was reported favorably out of the Senate Conservation Committee yesterday.

Committee chairman Carl W. O'Brien, D-Pontiac, who introduced the bill, said it was "highly likely" that it would be approved once it gets before the Senate. It is expected that the bill will be up for a vote in 10 days.

Seeking to purchase the 82-acre site in Waterford Township is a nonprofit organization, Drayton Plains Nature Center, Inc. It has offered $42,000 for the property.

The state has not used the property for a hatchery for some three years.

"I am gratified to see that this fine group of citizens is interested in purchasing and maintaining it for the benefit of our children," said O'Brien.

That Boom Was Drill, Not Doom

Thousands of Oakland County residents were awakened about 4:30 a.m. today by sonic booms as Air Force fighters and bombers participated in a three-hour air defense exercise.

The explosionlike sounds brought a flood of telephone calls to area police and fire departments.

State Police at the Pontiac post received about 40 calls and the Farmington Township Police Department heard from some 30 startled residents.

An unidentified woman called Waterford Township police after hearing the booms and reported that she saw smoke and flame coming from the Pontiac Mall. A check of the area proved the report unfounded.

Say Radio Heir Didn't Kill Self

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — A special team of investigators today began a massive probe into the death of Zenith radio heir Eugene McDonald because of a coroner's jury ruling he did not commit suicide.

"It is the unanimous opinion of this jury that suicide be ruled out as the cause of death," said the eight - member panel yesterday. "Death occurred in the presence of one or more persons unknown . . ."

Pima County Atty. Norman Green immediately ordered a special team of investigators to look into several puzzling aspects of the case, including:

● The strange position by which McDonald grasped the barrel of the 22-caliber revolver with which he was shot in the back of the head. His body was found Feb. 3 in his rented home.

★ ★ ★

● Disappearance of the instrument used to slash both McDonald's wrists.

AGREES WITH FINDINGS

"I agree with the findings of the jury," said Green — who ordered the coroner's inquest in the first place in a rare move for an Arizona County attorney — "I was certain right along that there were other persons in the home at the time."

May Be Near Arrest of 'Jack the Stripper'

LONDON (AP) — British police may be getting close in their hunt for the man they call "Jack the Stripper" — a sex maniac who has strangled and stripped six prostitutes in a year.

★ ★ ★

Scotland Yard detectives seized bundles of women's clothing early today in a raid on a London garage and were reported questioning a man picked up in Shepherd's Bush, the West London district where the nude bodies of the victims were found.

★ ★ ★

Before the raid, police said they had two vital clues — a car license plate number and a description of a man seen with the last prostitute slain. She was Bridie Moore, 27, whose mutilated body was found Tuesday along a railroad line.

The woman told a friend the last day she was seen alive, on Jan. 11, that she was going to Brook Green in the Hammersmith district of West London. The garage raided today was near there.

Scientists took samples of oil stains and dust from the floor and walls of the garage to compare them with traces on the last victim's body.

It's Spring for Truck Drivers; but Word Didn't Get Around

Spring weight restrictions for trucks on state highways in the lower peninsula went into effect at noon today, the State Highway Department said.

★ ★ ★

The order requires that loads carried by commercial vehicles be reduced by about 25 per cent during the spring thaw.

★ ★ ★

Normal legal loadings will be allowed on most state highways that are on the all-season system.

★ ★ ★

A map showing the all-season highway system is available at Highway Department district offices and a truck weigh stations.

It wasn't snowing snow, you know — it was raining traffic accidents in Bloomfield Township.

There were 23 of them in a three-hour period yesterday.

The deluge started at 4:02 p.m., a couple of hours after it had started snowing in the county.

People forgot it wasn't spring and that winter was still here," Sgt. Robert Beauchamp commented this morning.

The township's five patrol cars went from one accident to another until 7:15 p.m.

Eight of the accidents involved injuries to persons but no one was hospitalized.

McNamara's Report to LBJ

May Suggest Change in Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara strongly hints he will recommend a change in draft policies when he reports to President Johnson on the problem in April.

★ ★ ★

McNamara, in a report to the House Armed Services Committee on the nation's military strength, indicated that some modification will be necessary in the Selective Service System because of a growing surplus in draft-age men.

And that, he observed, compounds the difficulty of deciding fairly which young men will be called up and when.

★ ★ ★

McNamara began reading his lengthy statement on the defense posture at a closed meeting of the committee Thursday. He returns today and is not expected to be able to finish his testimony before Tuesday.

IT ALL DEPENDS

"But it all depends on how many questions the committee members ask him," a committee source said.

In the censored and much shorter — it's still 207 pages — version made public Thursday, McNamara touched on practically every defense problem from jungle warfare and fallout shelters to manpower.

★ ★ ★

The defense secretary noted that President Johnson had ordered the manpower study last April.

"All reasonable alternatives to the present system, including the possibility of meeting our requirements on an entirely voluntary basis at some time in the next decade, are being explored," McNamara said.

PROBLEM ARISES

McNamara didn't mention it, but one problem has already arisen. Just the knowledge that a possible end of the draft is being considered, the Pentagon reports, has led to a drop in Army enlistments and a corresponding increase in the draft quota.

"While all our experience since the end of World War II underscores the important role of the draft in the proper manning of our armed forces, the large increase in the number of young men reaching draft age (18 years), beginning in 1965, will create a difficult problem of managing the draft in an equitable manner," the defense secretary said.

As an example McNamara said the number of men reaching age 18 last year was somewhat less than 1.5 million. This year the number will jump by about 500,000 and average about 2 million a year over the next decade.

Since the annual replacement needs of the military services are expected to stay relatively stable — about 10,000 per year in 1965-66— 'a declining proportion of the men eligible for the draft will need to be called up."

★ ★ ★

If there is no change in draft selection policies, McNamara said, "this trend would result in a gradual increase in the average age of induction and cause rising uncertainties among draft eligible men as to whether they would, in fact, be called.

Cubans Rebuild GM Buses; Red Ones Too Small

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Buses made in Communist countries have not worked out in Havana, but reconstructed General Motors buses are doing fine, a top Cuban transport ministry official said.

The capacity of buses made in Communist lands is too small for Havana, Jose Morales, deputy minister of transportation, said in a radio interview monitored in Miami Thursday night.

★ ★ ★

They are better suited for smaller towns in the provinces, Morales said. "A route serviced entirely by reconstructed General Motors buses has been initiated recently," Morales said. "In just three months, Cuban mechanics in Havana have rebuilt 26 buses."

Raw Sewage Plagues Residents

BRUCE TOWNSHIP — On a three-acre piece of property near Romeo stands an assortment of playground equipment.

★ ★ ★

But the children of the neighborhood cannot play on it.

Set up next to their home by Mr. and Mrs. William Bishop of 70310 Mellen for the use of their five children and others nearby, the playground area is in the middle of a stream of raw sewage.

Bishop, who has appealed for help to county, township and even state officials, says that the untreated sewage comes from a ditch across Mellen, under the road, and then out onto his property, running from front to back.

★ ★ ★

The possibility of legal action has occurred to Bishop, and he is awaiting advice from his attorney, William Butler of Roseville.

SEEKING SOLUTION

Mellen Street residents, meanwhile, are in the midst of a campaign to obtain sewer service from the Village of Romeo, which would alleviate Bishop's problem.

But Romeo officials want the Mellen Street residents to annex to the village to obtain the service, although the homeowners have said they are willing to pay the entire cost of the sewers, with no expense to Romeo.

The Mellen Street residents backed a "progressive administration" slate of candidates for village office this spring, but Monday's primary eliminated all of them.

★ ★ ★

They were Tony Galan, for president; Howard Pallister, Marvin Sieweke and Jack McFadden for trusteeships. Pallister and Sieweke are now on the council, while Galan and McFadden are former trustees.

LOOKING FOR SOURCE

While Bishop awaits legal counsel and the Mellen Street residents fight for sewer service without annexation, the Macomb

AREA NEWS

County Health Department is making dye tests to determine the sources of the sewage.

If the department's tests indicate, as Bishop contends, that inadequate septic tanks and tile fields across the street are responsible for the sewage on his property, a tangled legal problem could develop.

The County Health Department would have to take action if a definite health hazard from the sewage were indicated.

In view of the fact that annexation may be a condition of obtaining sewer service for those who are allegedly causing the pollution, a court would likely have to decide whether legal action should be taken against the residents, even if it meant indirectly forcing them to annex as a result of Romeo's position.

ALTERNATE CHOICE

Or the court could decide to instruct Romeo to give the residents their sewer service without annexation conditions.

In any case, according to the health department's chief sanitarian, Frank Murphy, sewers would probably be the only solution to the sewage problem.

Murphy pointed out that the soil in the area has poor drainage characteristics, making a large area necessary for an adequate tile field.

Evangelist to Hold Services at Church in Rochester

ROCHESTER — Dr. Bill Rice, noted evangelist from Murfreesboro, Tenn., will be conducting evangelistic meetings at the First Baptist Church, Walnut and Fourth, Sunday through Feb. 28.

Dr. Rice will be speaking at the Sunday services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. plus preaching every night at 7:30 during the week.

★ ★ ★

Eminently qualified by training and experience as an evangelist, Dr. Rice has also found time to hunt big game in Africa, is an experienced airplane pilot and works as a cowboy on his own Tennessee ranch where he raises horses and cattle.

He also has a unique ministry among the deaf. Because their oldest daughter was deafened by meningitis, Dr. Rice and his wife were made to realize there were 15 million deaf in America and many had never heard the gospel story.

Twelve years ago they began studying sign language and invited 12 deaf children to visit them at their ranch.

★ ★ ★

Out of this small beginning has grown a yearly camp devoted to deaf children on the Rice ranch.

CLASS FOR DEAF

As a direct result of Dr. Rice's meetings at the First Baptist Church last April, the groundwork for a Sunday School class for the deaf has been started and anyone interested can call the church for further information about it.

Mrs. Rice will be accompanying her husband and will be interpreting the services in sign language for any deaf people present. A coffee hour for the deaf will follow each nightly service.

Mrs. Rice also will be speaking each morning at 10 on "The Christian Wife's Responsibility to her Home and Husband."

Rev. Donald K. Olsen, pastor, invites everyone to attend any or all of the services.

Beautification Due for Pump Houses

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — A beautification program for the township's 11 pump houses will be undertaken this summer.

Property owners have objected to the condition of the pump house sites, which are a half acre to one acre in size.

★ ★ ★

The Township Board has given Charles Tressler, water department manager, the authority to purchase equipment necessary to keep the sites in shape.

Tressler estimated the tractor and other equipment needed to mow, level and seed the lots will cost $3,263.

Farmington Group to Offer Alternate Plan for Zoning

FARMINGTON — Residents protesting the establishment of an education-research-office zone in their neighborhood will present an alternate scheme to city planners Monday night.

The largest number of objections to the city's proposed new zoning ordinance have centered in the application of the zone to a 22-acre parcel in the western portion of the community.

The property on the northwest corner of Farmington Road and Freedom Drive now is the location of the Huron River Hunting and Fishing Club, the Glen Aquatic Swim Club and two or three houses.

In drafting the proposed zoning code, planners incorporated the new classification to encourage the development of campus-type laboratories and office buildings.

Neighbors of the single parcel which received the classification voiced objections at a Jan. 11 hearing on the ordinance.

By Feb. 8, they had 400 names on a petition protesting the move.

NOW SINGLE-FAMILY

The property in question now is zoned for single-family estates of not less than one acre.

Spokesman for the protesting property owners is Arthur D. Millard Jr., 33455 Alta Loma.

He and his neighbors have agreed to submit a plan indicating how the 22-acre parcel could be developed for residential use.

The planning commission will consider their ideas and other suggested modifications at an 8 p.m. meeting Monday before returning a final recommendation to the City Council Feb. 27.

Planners Get Zoning Law Change

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — A proposed zoning ordinance amendment regarding riparian rights has been referred back to the Township Planning Commission for the second time.

Township trustees want planners to take another look at it with the idea of making some changes.

Drafted last summer, the amendment would prohibit the use of an undeveloped lot to provide access to a lake.

A beach could not be the principal use of a parcel but could be accessory if a building had been constructed.

★ ★ ★

Township trustees in September returned the proposal to planners for clarification and possible revision.

HANDED BACK

Commission members discussed the matter with Township Attorney Joseph T. Brennan, decided the language in the amendment was clear and handed the proposal back to the Township Board.

William A. Alfs, 2775 W. Long Lake, has organized opposition to the amendment among lake-front residents throughout the township.

Some 75 of them appeared before the Township Board Wednesday and Alfs asked trustees to withhold approval of the amendment.

WSU Money Request Is Denied by Romney

DETROIT (AP) —A request by Wayne State University for $1,236,000 in additional funds has been rejected by Gov. George Romney.

The university asked for the money last month, saying it was needed to handle an unexpected enrollment increase. Romney said if the Wayne request was granted it would "morally obligate me to provide similar appropriations to the other universities experiencing enrollment increases over estimates."

Car Insurance Probe Sought

LANSING (AP) — Michigan legislators are calling for special committee investigations of auto insurance rate increases and cancellations.

Resolutions were introduced in both chambers Thursday asking for the probe.

The House resolution was a direct outgrowth of a two-day Detroit hearing on the problem earlier this week, backers said.

LANSING (AP) — The state's four new highway commissioners appear headed toward routine Senate confirmation, despite a hearing room shouting match Thursday between Democratic State Chairman Zolten Ferency and Sen. Garry Brown, R-Schoolcraft.

★ ★ ★

After Ferency and Brown clashed over a controversy surrounding an alleged bridge defect, the Senate Business Committee politely quizzed the four commissioners and aroused no apparent grounds for contesting the nominations from Gov. George Romney.

★ ★ ★

No date for a committee vote was set.

The four are Republicans Ardale Ferguson of Benton Harbor and Wallace Nunn of East Tawas and Democrats Charles Hewitt of Grosse Pointe and Richard VanderVeen of Grand Rapids.

NAMED BY ROMNEY

They were named by Romney to the bipartisan commission which, under the new constitution, replaces the partisan elected highway commissioner.

★ ★ ★

Ferency, following up a Democratic resolution adopted last weekend, told the committee it should look into how the commissioners were appointed and how they could select former Republican Rep. David Upton as an administrative aide at $15,000 a year.

Ferrency said Upton and Brown had "brought about unfounded allegations" concerning asserted structural defects in a bridge on I-94 east of St. Joseph.

Ferency and Brown yelled at each other over who had been pulling political tricks on whom in the bridge dispute and whether or not the structure was unsound. Authorities ruled the bridge was safe after additional concrete was added to it.

Ferguson, the commission chairman, told senators Upton was hired Feb. 1 for a three-month term as administrative assistant after he had helped the commission free of charge since November.

Ferguson said Romney's office had recommended Upton. President August Scholle and Democratic State Chairman Zolton Ferency, riled some Democratic legislative leaders.

★ ★ ★

The legislative auditor was created by the new state constitution to take over many of the audit functions of the formerly elected auditor general.

LANSING (AP) —Detroit accountant Albert Lee has only to come to the State Capitol and take his oath of office to become Michigan's first Legislative Auditor.

Democrats in the House and Senate gave him the job Thursday —despite Republican attempts to get some voice in the choice for the rich plum. He will take an eight-year post with an annual salary of $22,500.

★ ★ ★

The 54-year-old Lee was in bed with the flu, Democrats said, leaving the date of his oath-taking uncertain.

The House passed a resolution naming Lee on a 76-5 vote, in which six Republicans joined the Democratic majority. Five Republicans voted no and 26 abstained.

★ ★ ★

The Senate beat back a Republican amendment which would have created a five-member committee—including all the losing candidates—to advise the legislature on duties and functions of the new position.

The election carried there with 24 yes votes.

★ ★ ★

Democrats were able to ignore Republican protests because majorities in both chambers gave them strength to approve the auditor's appointment by themselves.

★ ★ ★

Competition between Lee and Detroit accountant Richard Austin had caused a behind-the-scenes split in Democratic and labor ranks. Both are long-term party workers.

WITHDREW NAME

Austin, who helped draw up the legislative redistricting plan that helped Democrats gain control of both houses, reportedly had expected to get the post without opposition. But he withdrew his name from contention a short time before Lee's selection was announced.

★ ★ ★

Lee, former secretary-treasurer of the State Board of Accountancy, had actively sought endorsements. The endorsements included Wayne and Macomb County AFL-CIO Councils. He also had Teamster backing.

Episcopal Group Supports Birth Control Programs

DETROIT (AP)—The Executive Council of the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan released a resolution Thursday advocating family planning programs by public agencies.

★ ★ ★

Pointing out that family planning information is available to persons who use the channels of private medicine, the resolution says as "a matter of simple justice the same services should be available to those who depend upon public agencies for medical care."

★ ★ ★

In contrast to recent Catholic positions on the matter, the statement calls for policy changes to permit investigators, staff workers and public health personnel to initiate conversation about family planning with their clients.

The council further endorsed publicly financed clinics placed at the point of need.

Nation Commemorates Marines' Key Victory

It was 20 years ago that U. S. Marines landed on the Japanese stronghold of Iwo Jima after three days of naval and air blasting.

But 750 miles south of Tokyo, possession of the eight-square-mile volcanic mass would greatly increase American bomber effectiveness against the Japanese homeland.

★ ★ ★

Japanese resistance was fierce, and after the initial foothold, gains were measured in feet — especially as units of the two Marine divisions pushed their way up the slope of Mt. Suribachi, a 546-foot-high extinct volcano.

Troops finally fought their way to the top, and on Feb. 23 planted the flag on the crater's rim, the celebrated photograph of which was to become the image for the Iwo Jima memorial in Arlington National Cemetery.

Not until March 16 was the last Japanese resistance ended. About 22,000 of the defenders had been either killed or captured. A total of 111,038 Americans had participated in the action, of which 75,144 were assault troops. U. S. forces suffered 21,000 casualties including 4,590 killed.

★ ★ ★

The costly invasion of Okinawa was still to come, but the ring around Japan was beginning to close and the sacrifice of American lives on terrible Iwo Jima had not been in vain.

Railroad Management Not Government Field

The Railway Labor Executives' Association has gone on record in support of government ownership and control of the railroad industry, thus reversing a pro private-ownership policy it had followed since 1920.

In justification of this strange switch, an Association spokesman criticized railroad management on several counts. The principal one seems to be what he described as "chaos" in the industry's labor relations. It is evident that the rail unions are loath to give up the long-established institution of featherbedding, and feel that it could be perpetuated under government ownership and political management with the taxpayers picking up the tab.

It would be some tab—as experience abroad, where government ownership prevails, tells us. According to an authority who spent a year studying railroads around the world, the government-owned systems of Europe run at an average overall deficit of about 20 per cent. This means that for every dollar they take in they pay out $1.20, with the taxpayers making up the difference. On top of that, the railroads pay no taxes.

By way of contrast, our own privately-owned roads must pay their own way along with some $500 million a year in taxes.

If U. S. carriers were socialized and operated under the same cost conditions as their European counterparts, they would run at a loss of $2 billion a year and would pay no taxes at all. For each dollar of revenue, the outgo would be $1.25. The deficit would have to be absorbed by the government in the form of taxation.

★ ★ ★

In World War I, let it be remembered, the government took over the railroads—and losses, despite rate and fare increases, ran to nearly $2 million a day. In World War II, the privately operated railroads not only did a far more effective job but paid over $3 million a day in Federal income taxes.

A recent nationwide poll found that the public rejects nationalization of railroads by a whopping 9-to-1 margin. It seems inconceivable that Congress would give serious thought to the unions' misguided proposals.

Old, New Chiefs Not Always Pals

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON—Presidents and former presidents get along — sometimes. They visit each other — sometimes. But there is no tradition of friendliness between them and sometimes there is little or no friendliness.

MARLOW

When President Johnson Wednesday had former President Dwight D. Eisenhower over to the White House to get his views on Viet Nam, it may have seemed normal because President John F. Kennedy had done the same sort of thing.

But anyone who thinks it's normal has a short memory.

There was a bitter gulf between Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Herbert Hoover. Through the 12 years of Roosevelt's presidency, Hoover never visited the White House and was never asked to.

Within a couple of months after succeeding Roosevelt in 1945, President Harry S. Truman asked Hoover to visit him to discuss the world's food problem and the two men became good friends.

★ ★ ★

But then the gap appeared again when Eisenhower became president, succeeding Truman in 1953. The long coolness between these two men ended only when Eisenhower visited Truman at his library in 1961.

FINALLY GOT TOGETHER

It was the first time either had called on the other since Eisenhower's inauguration eight years before.

The presidential race between Roosevelt and Hoover in 1932, wasn't pleasant and until World War II Hoover had been a constant critic of his successor.

After Truman took over and discussed world food needs with Hoover, he sent the former president around the world to make a food survey for him.

★ ★ ★

Eisenhower made use of Hoover's talents, for instance, in setting up another commission on government reorganization, with Hoover leading it.

STUCK SOME HARPOONS

Truman had opposed Kennedy's nomination in 1960 and stuck some harpoons in him. But, once Kennedy got it, Truman backed him. The two men remained friends thereafter.

And Kennedy consulted with Eisenhower, Truman and Hoover during the Cuban missile crisis in 1962. Truman, reportedly, was brought into a National Security Council meeting when the Kennedy administration decided to resume nuclear testing in 1961, after the Russians did.

Kennedy consulted with Eisenhower in places as far apart as Gettysburg and California.

★ ★ ★

For a president to consult with a former president from the opposite political party may be wise and helpful to the country. It also has political value in discouraging, perhaps, some criticism from the opposition.

Old Glory Led Uphill Victory On Iwo Jima

David Lawrence Says:

Congress Coalition Still a Power

WASHINGTON—Although the current Congress has been in session only a few weeks, it is already apparent that the overwhelming majority in both houses won by the Democratic party last autumn can be overturned at will by a coalition of Republicans and Democrats who may wish to oppose certain measures of the Johnson administration.

LAWRENCE

While coalitions have been in existence in both houses for the last 30 years, the new combination of Republican and Democratic votes is not likely to emerge on the same issues as have arisen in the past.

Thus, on civil rights questions, the coalition is not able to command a majority because the Northern Republicans vote with the Northern Democrats, and this constitutes a big majority.

It is, however, on economic issues which appeal to nonradical members in both parties that significant votes will be taken.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps the most striking example, however, of the influence of a coalition on domestic affairs was given in a little-noticed vote recorded early in the session when there was a technical motion before the House of Representatives dealing with rules changes.

The administration motion to prohibit any amendment to the package on the rules question received 224 votes, while 201 were cast against it. These 201 votes constituted a coalition of 78 Democrats and 123 Republicans. The 224 votes on the administration's side consisted of 208 Democrats and 16 Republicans.

If only 12 of the 16 defecting Republicans had stayed with the Republican majority and voted with the 78 Democrats, the administration would have been handed a serious and lasting defeat, and whatever rules changes were voted in the end would have been materially reduced in scope.

★ ★ ★

It could be argued that the Republicans on the opening day were in disarray, as they had just gone through a contest over their leadership, but the episode indicated nevertheless that House Democrats in large numbers showed they could vote independently of the White House.

★ ★ ★

In fact, in the Senate this independence is even more apparent than in the House.

There are other issues, too, on which a coalition will make itself felt.

Such instances, however, will not be frequent and the coalition's power will not be exercised except on very important legislation which could have repercussions in the next campaign.

★ ★ ★

For in the congressional election of 1966, which is about 20 months away, all members of the House and one-third of the Senate who will be seeking re-election will not be able to ride along on the coattails of the President, as was the case in 1964.

★ ★ ★

There are, moreover, many Democrats who were elected in the landslide of last autumn with a narrow majority, and this could easily be wiped out in the next congressional election. More and more, therefore, the new members will be watching popular trends.

★ ★ ★

One thing is clear—the Democratic party cannot command a majority without the aid of certain liberal Republicans, and the customary coalition cannot prevail today unless nearly all of the Republicans vote with the conservative Democrats, most of whom are from Southern states.

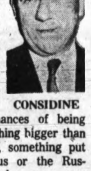
Bob Considine Says:

Getting Pretty Crowded in Outer Space Nowadays

NEW YORK — Getting mighty crowded in earth orbit circles.

Pegasus, which promises to replace dear old Echo I as the star of the space act, so far as naked eye observation goes, is busily reporting on how many times it gets clobbered with meteorites.



CONSIDINE

With its wingspan, which stretches out farther than the wings of a 707 or DC8, its chances of being belted by something bigger than a space pebble, something put out there by us or the Russians, is increased.

Such a collision would not necessarily knock Pegasus out of orbit and send it down to fiery destruction in the earth's thick atmosphere.

A crackup might simply break the colliding objects into smaller pieces and they would stay in orbit, along with such flying junk as burned-out booster stages and satellites which have gone on the blink and stopped transmitting, but haven't stopped orbiting.

Explorer I, our grapefruit-sized first satellite which put us in the ball game on Jan. 31, 1958, four months after Sputnik I, is still out there in a perfect 1,000 mile orbit, still yacking away with its particular gossip — which has to do with the weight of sun beams.

Never tires of it.

A note from an ex-convict, commenting on a recent piece here comparing the expertise of the Brink's robbers with some of the hopped-up punks now loose in the game, states:

"We, who served time, talk about the junkies and fiends of today with all the fire and outrage of exemplary First Citizens, laughing a little at ourselves for this bit of human hypocrisy, even though it is true that we were gentlemen when compared to today's (censored.)

"Once in Magistrate's Court a witness for the prosecution, who drove a truck loaded with expensive goods that was taken from him by bandits, when asked by the court if he had been beaten by the bandits replied, 'Oh, no sir, the crooks treated me like a gentleman, lighted cigarets for me and asked if I was comfortable. It was the cops who roughed me up and kept telling me to tell the truth and name the crooks.'"

In answer to Mr. P. Brown about higher milk bills, when Romney was seeking election he stated he would help the dairies. If stores were forced to sell milk at the same price as dairies, they wouldn't notice the loss and the milkman wouldn't be a dying occupation.

MRS. CATHLEEN KLENDER
CAPTAIN KIDD'S DAUGHTER

To answer the letter from P. Brown, Governor Romney was asked to stabilize the present price of milk. Independent and company-controlled retail milkmen are pressing the issue. Larger dairies undercut the retail salesmen by selling milk to cut-rate retail outlets. It should be obvious that dairy products and baked goods are used as leader items to get people into the markets more often.

Lack of Labor

The Jackson Citizen Patriot

Lemons and figs are going unharvested. The losses may run into the millions. Citrus fruits, vegetable crops, sugar cane are turning, as one writer put it, to "garbage" because they are not being harvested.

★ ★ ★

We are beginning to wonder if next summer may find highly perishable Michigan vegetable and fruit crops suffering the same fate for the same reason—lack of labor.

What is happening in Florida and California is a result of the refusal of Congress to extend a law which makes it possible for growers of specialty crops to bring in foreign labor for the harvest.

★ ★ ★

Labor leaders and socially-minded individuals have been criticizing the importation of labor. They argue that wages are too low, that domestic workers, given a decent wage, would take the jobs and really deserve them. The growers have argued that American workers, aside from those who make working the crops their own way of life, could not be recruited, especially for the "stoop" jobs.

The producers were right.

★ ★ ★

Despite frantic recruiting, the workers to do the jobs which require special skills simply are not being found. The loss to the farmers is in the millions. The law of supply and demand will force the consumer to pay higher prices.

★ ★ ★

A great deal of idealism went into the drive to have Congress cut off the supply of imported labor. It is easy to make a case for saving jobs for American workers instead of permitting migrant laborers to come from the south. But the hard realities of the harvesting of food are here now. The farmer can't pick lemons or harvest onions with ideals or with ringing speeches made by labor leaders.

It is too late for Congress to reverse itself and permit the savings of the crops now being lost. But it should take immediate steps to see that future losses are avoided.

French Prestige

The National Observer

To this country's disadvantage, for sure, are the latest batch of proposals by President de Gaulle of France.

Most notably, he wants to revise the United Nations charter and in the process bring the Red Chinese into a proposed rejuvenation conference as a full partner. We gather he would ignore the Nationalist Chinese as not existing.

He also wants to negotiate the reunification of Germany "by Europe itself" (leaving out the United States and Great Britain but including Russia). This, even though the United States, Soviet Union, Britain, and France are committed by agreement to share in the reunification.

★ ★ ★

And he wants to return to the gold standard. That has some merits, but as de Gaulle puts it the chief motive seems to be reducing the power of the dollar and pound sterling as mediums of exchange.

Well, you can't criticize the Frenchman for being a Frenchman; everyone knows he is out to build up French prestige, and if the only way he can make France larger is to make the "Anglo-Saxons" smaller, it is his province to try.

★ ★ ★

But you don't have to buy it. As for ourselves, we will stick with our national self-interest and continue to regard the general as an interesting example of how not to advance a national self-interest.

Quiet but Inconvenient Period

Town Lived Without Phones

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — This city of 44,000, which boasted one of the nation's first dial telephone systems in 1907, has gone three weeks with telephone service ranging from dead silence to makeshift party lines limited to emergency calls.

An insurance agent commented: "It's the first time I've had any peace for years."

* * *

Teen-agers found they could convey most vital information to one another at school, without gluing themselves to the phone a couple of hours each night.

Not one housewife had to climb out of the tub and inform a telephone salesman she wasn't interested in new siding on the house, or buying more magazines.

WILL BE GLAD

With all that, Richmond's citizens will be glad when the General Telephone Co. restores the normal service that was stopped abruptly Feb. 4 by a $1-million fire in a switching center.

The last normally completed call was to the Fire Department. One to the company's general manager, William Rigdon, was stopped in the middle when the connection melted.

* * *

Richmond quickly realized the telephone blackout wasn't simply a matter of uninterrupted naps and undisturbed households. Suppose the house caught fire, you heard a burglar at the window, the baby became desperately ill, or a business emergency came up?

* * *

With 18,000 telephones dead, officials realized they had a potentially dangerous situation on their hands.

RADIO TO RESCUE

General Telephone, aided by rival Bell companies, threw all of its resources into restoring emergency services — but it was radio that prevented inconvenience from becoming tragedy in the early days of Indiana's biggest communications blackout.

Companies which used radio to direct taxicabs, fuel trucks and other business vehicles, sent them to strategic locations. Radio- equipped local and state police cars went to hospitals, police and fire stations.

* * *

Amateur and citizens band radio operators manned strategic points.

A radio communications center in the city building received all flashes on fires, imminent births and other emergencies and relayed them to appropriate departments, by radio, auto or runners.

HOOKED IN

The telephone company first hooked in the police station, fire department and hospital to emergency switchboards. It then spotted free telephone booths around the city.

* * *

By last Monday, it had all private phones on a temporary network of four-party lines. A special temporary telephone book was published as a supplement of the Palladium-Item newspaper.

* * *

The threat of castastrophe was over. But more than 300 men and women from 14 states will be working until midsummer before regular dial service is restored.

U.N. Assembly Session Ends on Stormy Note

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The General Assembly ended one of the stormiest sessions in U.N. history Thursday night and recessed until Sept. 1 after the United States checkmated an Albanian move to force an East-West showdown.

Applause rang out as Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson announced that the United States would agree to a procedural ballot demanded by Albania and would not challenge the Soviet Union's right to vote.

Red China's U.N. spokesman, Halim Budo of Albania, boasted that he had strong support. But a 97-2 vote swamped his demand that the assembly organize for normal business. There were 13 abstentions, of which France was the only major power. Mauritania voted with Albania.

The assembly approved by acclamation an interim budget and the appointment of a multination committee to study the problem of U.N. peace-keeping.

SHARP EXCHANGE

The assembly adjourned at 7:51 p.m. following a sharp exchange in the closing moments between Stevenson and Soviet Delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko.

Criticizing Stevenson for announcing that he was withholding the U.S. challenge on voting rights, Fedorenko declared, "The United States cannot set itself up as an arbiter on whether this forum can vote or not."

Stevenson retorted that he had thought the Soviet Union wanted to avoid a showdown at this stage and demanded to know why Fedorenko did not voice his objections before the ballot.

Since Dec. 1 the assembly had been restricted to general policy debate by the refusal of the Soviet Union, France and other nations to pay peace-keeping assessments and the determination of the United States to demand that their votes in the assembly be taken away under Article 19 of the U.N. Charter.

THREAT OF WALKOUT

Article 19 specifies that any nation two years in arrears on its payments loses its vote. The Soviet Union, which contends peace-keeping assessments are illegal, threatened to walk out if the article was invoked.

A showdown was averted by agreement to take up only matters that could be approved unanimously, without a roll call vote. But with all such business exhausted, most delegates agreed to a long recess while further peace-keeping negotiations were held.

But on Tuesday, Budo threw the assembly into turmoil with his demand that the assembly organize.

The Albanian move, which few doubted had Red China behind it, would have necessitated an assembly vote and forced the U.S.-Soviet showdown.

Since then, key delegations conferred and came up with the U.S. agreement to a procedural vote.

Senior Day Is Today

By KAY KOSMA

Today at Pontiac Central High School the class of 1965 was honored. Traditionally the day of the last home basketball game is senior class day.

With the "Spirit of '65" as their theme, seniors were allowed to dress up and wear ribbons that were sold on Wednesday. The money from these ribbons went to the student social fund to help pay for senior and junior prom expenses.

★ ★ ★

During the school day the varsity-faculty basketball game was held with a special section for the seniors. At tonight's game a section will be reserved for seniors.

At half-time the seniors on student council, senior cheerleaders, senior class officers and the homecoming court will be honored.

★ ★ ★

Tonight is parent night for the cheerleaders. Parents of the cheerleaders are invited to come to the game and sit in a special section.

OUT FOR DINNER

After the game all the cheerleaders with their parents will go out for dinner.

Cheerleader officers are Jill Dearing, captain; Carol Gray, secretary-treasurer; Jo Johnson, historian; and Sue Huntzinger, quartermaster. Mrs. Charles Smith is their adviser.

Last Saturday Central's girls' track team competed in the A.A.V. meet at Pershing High School in Detroit.

★ ★ ★

The meet, sponsored by the Detroit Track Club, with Hayes Jones as chairman, was divided into two divisions. Central's girls were in the novice division.

ON TEAM

Girls on the team are Jackie Mitchell, Delores Lawrence, Janice Penson, Janis Watkins, Linda Seay, Lorraine Johnson, Esther McDaniel, Salena Johnson, Shirley Brown, and Val Jean Charles. Physical Education teacher Joan Bennett is the girls' sponsor.

The WKHS 75-voice choir will sing one of the major choruses from Haydn's "Creation" featuring soloists Sharon Loftness, Paul Heiple and Robert Spring.

A setting for two choirs of Psalm 150 will also be presented. Ann Peterson will sing a Finnish folk song "Lost in the Night", and Clark Hobby will sing the tenor solo in "Ride the Chariot".

The Girl's Ensemble and the Gleemen will present arrangements of such favorites as "Michael Row the Boat", "Ezekiel Saw de Wheel," "Imagination," and "Bye Bye Blues."

★ ★ ★

Tickets may be purchased from any member of the vocal music department or at the door.

TEACHER WINS

James Ewer, art teacher at Waterford-Kettering, was chosen by a panel of judges as having "the best in the show" at the third annual art exhibit at the Pontiac Mall in which displays of oil, mixed media, water color and graphics of artists in Oakland County were displayed. Ewer also took a first in oils and in graphic arts.

Following the basketball game with Romeo tonight, an after-game dance will be held in the Waterford-Kettering gymnasium.

Ski team members along with coach Gerald Thomas will participate in the State Regionals Meet at Cadillac tomorrow morning.

Early risers tomorrow can watch WK girls' ski team, winners of a recent interscholastic ski meet, on television. The program is scheduled for 7:30 a.m. on channel 7.

Troy High Experimenting With Rotating Schedule

By ANITA CAPRON

Troy High School is experimenting with the rotating schedule. The schedule allows for 70-minute classes which occur in various time periods during the week.

A student who regularly had English first hour would find his weekly schedule arranged so that it would meet four times a week, at a different time each day.

By meeting in this manner an X period is gained each week. This X hour could be used for pep assemblies, concerts, lectures, clubs or anything outside of regular classroom hours.

The new routine began on Monday and will last through next week. The majority of students liked the rotating schedule because of the variety and extended class activity time.

Seek Single Trial for Hubbard, Officers

DETROIT (AP) —U.S. Attorney Lawrence Gubow moved Thursday to consolidate charges of civil rights law violations against Dearborn Mayor Orville Hubbard and two Dearborn police officials.

Gubow's motion, if accepted, would permit a single trial for Hubbard, Police Chief Garrison Clayton and Safety Director George Lewis.

Federal Judge Wade McCree Jr. is scheduled to hear the motion at a hearing March 1. McCree also is scheduled to preside at the trial.

The three Dearborn officials have been indicted by a federal grand jury for allegedly denying police protection to a Dearborn home owner whose home was being stoned by a mob which mistakenly thought the home was being sold to Negroes.

5-DAY SEARCH

Hubbard, who led federal agents through a fruitless five-day search before being arrested Tuesday, said the single trial "doesn't appear to be something we'd fight."

A second count in the indictment charges the three men with conspiring to deny police protection in the same incident.

Hubbard pleaded innocent to both charges, calling them "ridiculous" and stating he was not in Dearborn when the Labor Day, 1963, incident allegedly occurred.

Clayton and Lewis pleaded innocent on both charges Dec. 18.

Hubbard, mayor of predominantly white Dearborn for 23 years, is free under $5,000 bond set by Federal Judge Mackrowicz at Hubbard's arraignment Tuesday.

Bill Aimed at Hubbard

'No Office for Offenders'

LANSING (AP) — Two Negro Senators say they plan to introduce a bill in the Michigan Legislature forbidding public office to anyone who has been convicted of a federal Civil Rights Act violation.

Sens. Basil Brown and Coleman Young, both Democrats from Detroit, admitted their bill was aimed at Dearborn's Mayor Orville Hubbard.

Hubbard is accused of conspiring and failing to protect a citizen's property against a mob which believed mistakenly he had rented or sold to a Negro. No trial date has been set. Hubbard pleaded innocent.

The proposed bill would read: "Any person convicted of violating the federal Civil Rights Act . . . shall be ineligible to hold, be a candidate for, or be elected to any public office, municipal or state, for a period of 10 years after such conviction."

Federal officials contend Hubbard's alleged failure to protect the citizen's property and to enforce state law violated an 1870 civil rights statute.

Travel Unit Is Urged to Aid State Tourism

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's tourist industry leaders Thursday night called for establishment of a department of travel to boost the state's competitive position in tourism.

At a Lansing meeting with the legislators, sponsored by the East Michigan Tourist Association, tourist spokesmen said "special emphasis is needed to maintain the growth of the second largest industry in Michigan's economy."

Additional jobs were created for 1.5 million Americans last year, the President disclosed in his Economic Report.

In Senate Today

Succession Bill Eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today takes up a constitutional amendment aimed at settling any uncertainty over presidential disability.

The measure, riding a wave of support, was almost certain to pass despite the opposition of some who feel it is much too detailed for inclusion in the Constitution.

The proposal was sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh Jr., D-Ind., and had administration backing. It would set ground rules for a vice president to take over as acting president when the chief executive was physically unable to carry out his duties.

It also would provide for filling a vacancy in the vice presidency.

★ ★ ★

There is virtually unanimous agreement in the Senate that a constitutional amendment is needed to deal with the two problems.

IS CONCERNED

But Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who prepared an alternate to the Bayh proposal, said he was concerned that details included in the Bayh Amendment would not fit all future situations.

He proposed a more flexible approach. It called for a constitutional amendment merely to give Congress authority to adopt legislation to deal with details of presidential inability.

The Constitution now empowers Congress to deal with presidential succession.

★ ★ ★

A compromise between the Bayh and Dirksen proposals was offered by Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky. He proposed adoption of the Bayh proposal with an added section to allow Congress to adopt legislation to change the procedures in the future.

Sources said both Dirksen and Cooper were expected to support the Bayh amendment if their own proposals failed.

GLENWOOD PLAZA—North Perry Street at Glenwood

Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt Says:

Hemorrhage Causes Postnatal Disease

BRANDSTADT

Q—Following the birth of my baby I did not menstruate for three years. Last January I started again. Two doctors told me I have Sheehan's syndrome. What is the cause and what is the usual treatment?

A—Just after you had your baby you must have had a severe hemorrhage.

As a result of such a hemorrhage, the blood flow to the pituitary gland is reduced and the gland undergoes degeneration for want of enough oxygen. That is the cause of Sheehan's syndrome.

The degree of severity varies but failure of the breasts to produce milk and failure to menstruate are common symptoms. There may also be loss of body hair and low blood pressure.

Prompt and adequate treatment of shock and hemorrhage following delivery will prevent this syndrome or limit it to a very mild form. Some victims gradually improve with time.

* * *

Giving pituitary hormone does no good but thyroid, adrenal and ovarian hormones may be helpful. Most doctors advise against another pregnancy in women who have had this disease.

Q—A few years ago when I had my annual physical examination, my doctor told me I didn't have enough hemoglobin in my blood, so he gave me Trinsicon.

When I moved out of the state, I couldn't get it without a prescription. Why is this?

A—Trinsicon is a combination that contains liver and stomach extracts, vitamins B-12 and C, iron and folic acid.

It is given for anemia but is obtainable only on a prescription because the folic acid masks the nerve damage that may occur as a complication of the anemia.

Trinsicon-M is made without the folic acid and may be purchased without a prescription.

Q—What causes von Recklinghausen's skin disease?

A — In this hereditary condition, areas of darkly pigmented skin occur chiefly on the back and abdomen. There are also many soft tumors of various sizes all over the body.

Although these appear to be skin tumors, they are really nerve tumors within the skin.

The condition is painless and does not affect the victim's general health but may be somewhat disfiguring.

Because there are so many of these small tumors, removal is out of the question except for those few that may be so large or so located that they cause discomfort from pressure.

Urges Quick Action on Traffic Safety

DETROIT (AP) — A campaign to encourage the legislature to swiftly adopt new traffic safety laws was urged yesterday by Robert P. Briggs, executive vice president of Consumers Power Co.

Briggs told the Traffic Safety Association of Detroit that its members should get behind a campaign to "check the upward spiral of traffic accidents."

* * *

He suggested it create a committee to get the public behind the program as well as local businessmen, labor organizations and civic leaders. Once this support was aroused, he said, it should be "directed toward urging their representatives and senators to vote in support of traffic safety measures before them."

More School Employes Get Raises in Waterford

A pay increase for nonteaching personnel in the Waterford Township school system was authorized last night by the board of education.

Maintenance, engineering and custodial employes will receive a 2 per cent increase on basic salary. Bus drivers were granted a hike of five cents per hour.

Estimated cost of the increase for the balance of the current school year is $3,500 which will come from unappropriated state aid.

The wage adjustments will become effective Monday.

* * *

School Board Trustee Eldon C. Rosegart, chairman of the board's personnel committee, said he felt the nonteaching employes were entitled to the increase because of a similar increase for teaching personnel granted two weeks ago.

BENEFITS PLANS

Teachers were granted approximately 2 per cent of their basic salaries to provide hospital and medical insurance benefits.

In other business the board authorized seeking bids on a proposed structure for the Waterford Township High School athletic field to be used as a concession booth and press box.

Plans call for a 20-by-20-foot concession stand with a 20-by-8-foot press box above it. Block and brick construction is specified with aluminum siding on the press box.

* * *

Bids will be opened at the March 4 meeting of the board.

OK SIGNING

Also last night the board approved signing of an easement and right-of-way to Waterford Township to construct, maintain and repair water and sewer lines at the new Mason Junior High School.

* * *

Based on preliminary projections of an enrollment increase from the present 15,755 to 16,136 next year, the board authorized the hiring of 22 additional teachers to meet the need.

The board also accepted a teacher resignation and granted a one year leave of absence to another teacher.

Public Hearing in Orion Twp.

To Discuss Rezoning of Gravel Pit Land

ORION TOWNSHIP — A public hearing on rezoning for a proposed subdivision on reclaimed gravel pit land will be held at 8 p.m. today by the zoning board.

The township hall hearing is expected to inform the zoning board of the feeling of area residents about having a new subdivision on Indianwood Road, running from Newman Road to the railroad tracks.

Developer Douglas Colwell of Walled Lake plans to build single-family dwellings and some multiple dwellings on the property, owned by Warren Smith of Oxford.

The multiples would go on a small portion of the property near the railroad tracks.

Three man-made lakes are also planned for the subdivision, if rezoning from land use to residential is approved by the zoning board, and later, by the township board.

Big Business Faces Curbs Aimed at Curtailing Dollar Drain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration set voluntary but painful targets today for curtailment of the dollar drain caused by private overseas loans and investments.

In swift follow-ups to President Johnson's personal appeal Thursday to some 350 businessmen and bankers assembled at the White House, the Commerce Department and Federal Reserve Board:

Called on every company that had $10 million or more of export sales or overseas investments last year — some 400 to 500 corporations — to reduce their net outflow of dollars 15 to 20 per cent.

★ ★ ★

Asked each such company to notify the Commerce Department in advance of every new foreign investment project exceeding $10 million for an advisory ruling on whether the outlay is "in the national interest."

Imposed on the banking industry a voluntary ceiling for foreign lending. Outstanding credits to foreigners, said the Federal Reserve Board, should be held in 1965 to a level not more than 5 per cent above the total outstanding last Dec. 31. This apparently would reduce new loans to less than one-third the 1964 total.

QUESTIONNAIRES

Began drafting, at the Commerce Department, questionnaires and periodic reports for companies in the $10 million-plus class, to keep tabs on each firm's own "balance of payments" record.

Set about organizing, under direction of Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor, a "balance of payments advisory committee" of businessmen. Among other things, it will help draft guidelines to distinguish "desirable" from "undesirable" foreign investments.

★ ★ ★

"I know this will involve some pain, and it will mean passing up some profits," Johnson told the big businessmen who thronged the East Room to hear his appeal for "voluntary partnership."

But their country, their businesses and their stockholders "will all be better off for it" in the long run, Johnson promised.

MILD REMINDER

And he backed up his plea with the mildest of reminders that if the $3-billion payments deficit is not sharply reduced by voluntary means, the government can enforce compliance by legislation.

"As President, I pledge whatever actions prove necessary to keep our economy strong and our dollar sound," he said.

★ ★ ★

Only a few hours before this hint of the big stick, the Treasury had given industry a carrot. It relaxed its depreciation rules to assure corporations some $700 million in tax benefits which they stood to lose this year under the depreciation guidelines adopted in 1962.

Only 40 per cent of the companies which have been taking bigger tax write-offs since 1962 have been able to speed up their machinery and equipment outlays sufficiently to qualify for continued benefits in this tax year, the Treasury said.

The two senior Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee, Sens. John J. Williams of Delaware and Frank Carlson of Kansas, complained that the President acted without prior consultation with Congress' tax writing committees and said the legal basis for his action was cloudy.

Ford Eyes Foreign Plans 'To Use Outside Funds'

DETROIT (AP) — Chairman Henry Ford II said Thursday Ford Motor Co. plans to finance its current expansion in Europe and Canada "through funds generated outside the United States.

This disclosure was contained in a statement in which Ford said his company "will maintain a direct and continuing interest in measures to correct the nation's balance of payments situation."

★ ★ ★

Ford said he was giving "careful study" to President Johnson's recent call for government and private action to bring an end to the country's balance of payments deficit.

"I am sure," Ford added in his statement, "that most American businessmen do not welcome the prospect of artificial restraints on good and useful employment of American capital abroad."

HENRY FORD II

BIG CONTRIBUTION

"Ford Motor Co. for years has been a substantial contributor to the net inflow of funds to the United States. During the period 1950-1954 our company's international operations resulted in a gain of more than $3 billion in the United States balance of payments."

★ ★ ★

"In 1964 alone," Ford continued "our international operations resulted in a net inflow to the United States of $408 million in foreign exchange to the United States; for 1963 the figure was $319 million."

Gambling Called a Tradition at Nevada Prison

CARSON CITY (AP)—Modernizing the Nevada State Prison can't be done overnight. Take the mater of gambling by inmates, for instance.

★ ★ ★

A firm hired to study the prison recommended authorities eliminate gambling behind the walls.

Gov. Grant Sawyer pointed out that gambling was not allowed at the new minimum security unit, opened this fall.

"As we are not allowing gambling there, it will go a long way to solving the problem," he said.

But it may be some time before officials halt gambling at the older main prison because there's little opportunity there for other forms of recreation, the governor said.

★ ★ ★

Behind-the-walls gambling has been a tradition at the prison for many years.

He's Too Popular to Write Off

Powell Is a Paradox as Both Negro and Politician

NEW YORK (AP) — Baptist minister and bon vivant, master politician and scorner of the rules of politics — these are but two of the paradoxes of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y.

In Congress Thursday he charged that court judgments against him, which prevent him from returning to the Negro Harlem district he represents, were designed to keep him from fighting police corruption in Harlem. The judgments total $262,000.

★ ★ ★

Powell delights the people he represents, but he may not visit them for fear of arrest. He exasperates many leaders of the civil rights movement, but they may not write him off. He's too popular.

A man close to Powell's career explains: "People are willing to forgive him anything, saying that one day he'll change. The thing is that for many Negroes he is able to say the things they are unable to say because they can't say them without losing a job or getting into some trouble. Adam lets off steam for them."

ADAM CLAYTON POWELL

20 YEARS AGO

Twenty years ago last month, Powell entered Congress as representative of Harlem, the nation's largest black metropolis. Now he presides as chairman of the powerful House Education and Labor Committee.

Despite an absentee record that would cost a congressman his seat in many another district, Powell earns the grudging respect of his colleagues through the functioning of his committee — whose work is as important to President Johnson's great society as it was to the late President John F. Kennedy's new frontier.

★ ★ ★

Then he dilutes the respect by traveling with pretty committee aides at government expense, or keeping his young third wife on his congressional payroll at $13,000 a year.

"That Adam, he's a caution!" says one affectionately forgiving woman member of the 157-year-old Abysinnian Baptist Church. The 10,000-member church formerly served by his late father, Adam Sr., is both the pulpit of Powell the pastor and the power base of Powell the politician.

NOT PREACHING

But he hasn't preached there since October.

The muscular, 6-foot-3 handsomely mustached Powell hasn't been seen much lately in his home district. There is the matter of the unpaid libel judgment outstanding along with two arrest warrants for contempt of the courts where the winner sought to collect.

★ ★ ★

Herein is another irony. The man who successfully fought off an eight-year effort of the federal government to hang an income tax evasion conviction on him, lost a fight to a Harlem widow suing him for defamation of character.

"The king is dead!" exulted Esther (Mommy) James when a jury awarded her $241,500 in the million-dollar action against Powell for calling her, in a 1960 television broadcast, a graft collector for corrupt police.

'HE'S DEAD'

"Adam Clayton Powell is dead! Now he will just have to keep his mouth shut. He's dead in Harlem."

That was on April 4, 1963. Her glee was premature.

★ ★ ★

Powell, since reelected, was far from keeping his mouth shut.

And Mrs. James, now 68 and vowing to live to 99 if it takes that long, still hadn't collected Powell's money.

JACKED BACK UP

The judgment was reduced on appeal to $46,500, then jacked back up to $210,000 last week when a jury found that Powell transferred his assets to relatives after the original award.

The fight to collect the money raged through a half-dozen state and federal courts. Only last month the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear it and Powell's appeals had reached a dead end.

★ ★ ★

Although Mrs. James still hasn't got the money, her lawyer, Raymond Rubin, says he expects to collect soon.

There is still another Powell paradox, one residing at the very core of his public existence.

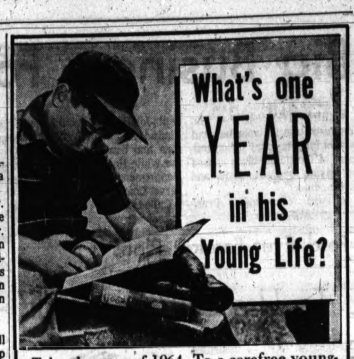
AS NEGRO

Powell, 56, grew to power and attention as a Negro. He campaigned as the grandson of a branded Virginia slave.

But the memoirs of the Rev. Adam Clayton Powell Sr. made no mention of such a forebear. The light-skinned congressman in later years voiced the suspicion that his grandparents might have been a plantation owner and a Cherokee Indian woman.

★ ★ ★

"It could well be," Powell said, "that I don't have a drop of Negro blood in my veins."



Take the year of 1964. To a carefree youngster it was a time to play, study, and play some more. Meanwhile there were riots in Panama, and quakes in the land of the midnight sun. Great figures such as Hoover and MacArthur passed on as the Great Society was being born. There were headlines almost daily on the war in Viet Nam, and on riots in the streets of the north and south. The Warren Report reminded the world of a tragedy still in everyone's mind. Other events crowded in.

They are recorded for now and forever in The Associated Press' 300-page volume.

Mother Kills Four Sons, Self

CLEVELAND (AP)—A young mother and her four sons were shot to death in their east side home late yesterday in what police said was murder-suicide.

Police said the mother shot her sons and then reloaded the gun and took her own life by firing a bullet into her forehead shortly after telling a friend in a telephone conversation that she intended to kill herself and her family.

Dead are: Mrs. Doris Johnson, 27, and her sons, Donald 7; Ronald, 5; Arnold, 3, and Ernest, 11 months.

Police said Mrs. Johnson had been under psychiatric care and that twice in recent years she had undergone major kidney surgery. She had been separated from her husband, William, for more than a year.

Because of the separation, Mrs. Johnson and her sons were receiving funds from aid to dependent children.

Steelworkers Resume Talks

Open Negotiations With Can Industry

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The steel industry viewed with restrained but puzzled optimism today the planned resumption of contract negotiations between the United Steelworkers union (USW) and the can and container industries.

Bargaining is to resume next Tuesday in New York, one day after the union's international tellers in Pittsburgh begin their official count to determine the winner of the USW's Feb. 9 presidential election.

A UPI tabulation shows challenger I. W. Abel holding about a 4,000-vote lead over incumbent President David J. McDonald. About 575,000 of the union's 967,000 members voted.

The fight reached such torrid levels last month that the can, container, aluminum and basic steel industries asked for and received a recess until the turmoil was resolved.

★ ★ ★

But, a steel source told UPI, while the new round of talks could presage a similar resumption soon with the steel industry, the lack of a clear-cut winner in the leadership battle leaves the union in a position where it cannot bargain with a single voice. Management does not know how to interpret this gambit.

'Big Brain' Watching

Beware, Risky Drivers

LANSING (AP) — Watch out bad driver — "Big Brain" will be watching you.

The biggest mechanical brain in Michigan's Department of State, a brand new, four-ton electronic computer, is being put to work on the problem of the erring driver.

The first job the new computer will undertake in the safety field will be to sort out the records of more than 300,000 drivers with seven or more points for moving violations.

It is expected the computer will have the entire file of these drivers on magnetic tape by July 1.

It will then take only one and one half hours to update the file on a daily basis.

"Once these files have been converted, we'll have access to detailed data which should give us some real insight into some of our major traffic problems," said Secretary of State James Hare.

"This information is not available because of the tremendous manpower it would take to dig it out of our files."

The electronic machine, rented by the department for $7,100 a month, also can make specialized searches — such as for all those with drinking-driving records.

In addition, it will be able to print up to 500 warning letters a day and will handle many regular chores for the department.

U.S. Quizzes Soviets on 'Leaky' Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is seeking more information on a Soviet explosion which sent radioactive material into the atmosphere.

The underground blast occurred Jan. 15. The limited test-ban treaty forbids nuclear explosions in which radioactivity passes beyond the testing nation's boundaries.

U.S. aircraft picked up traces of radioactivity in the Sea of Japan area.

Since then, the United States has said it is checking to see whether the Russians violated the treaty. The Soviets say the radioactivity leaked inadvertently and was insignificant.

State Department Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said yesterday that one U.S. query has been answered, and "we have now gone to the point where we have asked for further elaboration."

McCloskey declined to reveal what questions have been asked of the Soviets.

APOLOGY: Hungary has expressed regret for last Saturday's student break-in at the U.S. legation in Budapest.

State Department Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said the apology was made yesterday to U.S. Charge d'Affaires Elim O'Shaughnessy in Budapest.

Bela Szilagyi, deputy foreign minister for Hungary, was quoted as saying Hungary would take steps to prevent a recurrence, and that his government was "prepared to arrange compensation for damages."

★ ★ ★

State Department reports said about 200 students, mostly Africans and Asians, were involved in the incident. Windows were mashed and some furniture was damaged.

The action was described as a protest against U.S. retaliation bombings in North Viet Nam.

MOON MAP: Scientists of the geological survey have prepared the first detailed contour map of a portion of the moon's surface, using a new technique they developed, the Interior Department announced today.

The map was prepared from photographs taken last July 31 by the Ranger 7 spacecraft near its point of impact with the moon.

A survey spokesman said similar photographs may be obtained by Ranger 8 Saturday. This would permit detailed mapping of a second lunar area.

The areas might become the landing areas for astronauts in the future, the spokesman said.

The area already mapped is the size of a small urban lot, about 95 by 80 feet, and is located in the Mare Cognitum area of the moon. The map shows contours at about four-inch intervals and defines with clarity the ridges, depressions, and minute craters of the lunar landscape, the spokesman said.

Astrogeologists at the survey's laboratories in Flagstaff, Ariz., developed the map using a specially designed photometric technique.

Photographs of high resolution were seanned with an electronic instrument that determined the density of the photographic emulsion. "Light" and "dark" areas of a photographic image as related to shadow, surface texture, and direction of slope were then converted to elevation references by mathematical formula.

The scientists used the last photo transmitted by the Ranger 7 as their model. This picture was made 0.176 seconds, or 1,000 feet, before impact.

Bill Introduced Easing Distillery Ownership Rule

LANSING (AP) — Legislation which would allow many distillers and rectifiers to begin manufacturing in Michigan was introduced Thursday by Sen. Stanley Novak, D-Detroit.

Novak's bill would remove the requirement that at least 25 per cent of the stock of such firms be owned by Michigan citizens before a State Liquor Commission manufacturing license can be issued.

Novak said that officials of Heublein, Inc., informed him they will build a $4 million distillery and rectifying plant in Allen Park if the legislation passes.

The firm now is located at Hartford, Conn., and Menlo Park, Calif.

Big School Aid Bill Introduced as Counter to Romney Measure

LANSING (AP) — A school aid bill following the Department of Public Instruction's request for a $91 million improvement was introduced in the legislature Thursday — but promptly was termed merely a vehicle for discussion by one of its sponsors.

★ ★ ★

Sen. Gerald Dunn, D-Flushing, said the bill was designed to counteract Gov. George Romney's budget recommendation for a $46.3 million increase in school funds.

He said it represents the program of State School Superintendent Lynn Bartlett, but would be altered depending on whether fiscal reform and related measures are adopted this year.

Dunn said new revenues would have to be found—or current funds redistributed — before such a big school increase could be considered.

BIGGER INCREASE

It would increase school aid to $260 per pupil from the present $236.50. Romney proposed $242. Spokesmen estimate the bill's increase would cost the state $35 million.

★ ★ ★

The $7 million lid on aid to hardship districts would be removed and an expanded program would provide $32 million. Combined with local funds, this program would assure every pupil $380 in operating money, less transportation and special education costs.

★ ★ ★

The bill includes a $7.5 million appropriation to aid in establishing or improving programs specifically designed to benefit underprivileged children. Romney proposed $2 million.

Romney's program proposed a $46.3 million increase in overall primary and secondary school aid—half that advocated by Bartlett. About $11.6 million was necessary to merely maintain existing programs in the face of expanding population.

The school aid formula has stirred debate since Romney submitted his budget. He said raising it any higher than $242 would make it too difficult to get the formula completely revised as he says must be done.

Bartlett and many educators sharply criticized the governor's recommendations so far as too low.

★ ★ ★

Thursday's bill was introduced by education committee chairman Rep. Lucille McCollough, D-Dearborn, and Sen. Dunn.

Senate cosigners were three Democrats and two Republicans.

Foot-Long, Then Some

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—During open house ceremonies at a meat packing company here, a 350-foot-long hot dog was on display. The hot dog weighed 160 pounds, was made in a Kansas City plant and transported to Arkansas in a refrigerated truck. The frankfurter was one and a quarter inches in diameter.

An estimated $150 million will be spent to advertise candy in the nation this year, a $50 million increase over 1964.

Ruling Awaited on Leo Lion

MORRISTOWN, Pa. (UPI)—A three-judge court withheld a decision today on a petition by towing service operator seeking to keep his pet, 317-pound Leo the lion.

★ ★ ★

Attorneys representing Howard Sautter of Willow Grove contended in Montgomery County Court yesterday that Abington Township had no legal right to adopt a so-called "wild animal" ordinance.

The ordinance bans the possession of wild animals as pets in the community.

It was adopted last December after residents complained that Leo was dangerous and smelly.

★ ★ ★

Sautter, who keeps the lion in a garage behind his home, said the animal is gentle, clean and quiet.

The ordinance calls for a fine of $300 a day for each day it is violated, but Sautter has not been arraigned under the law.

Leave Food for Hostess After Party

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: We are a group of youg married couples. Every so often we get together at each other's houses and have a party.

As none of us are too well off financially, we make it a Dutch treat party. That is, each couple brings something in the line of food to the party.

One of the women always takes the particular food she brought home with her if there is any of it left at the end of the evening. I think this is very bad manners on her part and that it should be left at the house where the party took place.

May I please have your opinion on this?

A: Taking home any of the leftover food she brought to the party is not so much bad manners as it is niggardly, and I agree with you that it should be left at the house where the party took place.

Q: The other evening unexpected visitors arrived while we were still having dinner.

I asked them to go into the living room and told them we would join them shortly.

Was this the proper thing to do, or should I have asked them to sit down at table with us?

A: It would have been more courteous to have asked them to sit with you while you finished your dinner and offered them a cup of coffee.

Q: I would like to know if it would be proper to give my fiance a sport jacket for his birthday.

I know this is something he would like very much but wondered about the propriety such a present. Would it be in bad taste?

A: A sport jacket is wearing apparel and as such would not be a proper gift to give your fiance until he becomes your husband.

Watching arrivals at the celebrity luncheon Thursday in the Village Woman's Club are Mrs. Guy D. Hitt of Birmingham (left), co-chairman of the Birmingham Town Hall series, with Mrs. Aline Saarinen of NBC who also appeared at the closing lecture today in the Birmingham Theater.

Aline Saarinen Defines Art

By MADELEINE DOEREN

Aline Saarinen captivated Thursday's Birmingham Town Hall audience with the provocative question, "What About a Cultural Explosion?"

★ ★ ★

This immediately dispelled any disappointment at the change from the programmed subject, "Collectors and Collecting." She spoke of the 'comfort class' and their 'sniping from ivory towers.'

★ ★ ★

Today, in the Birmingham Theatre, she closed the Town Hall 1964-5 season with a repeat performance.

"As the economical level rises," Mrs. Saarinen commented, "the mass audiences viewing television are unwittingly 'hooked' into an occasional art program when they really turned on the set to check up on Viet Nam.

★ ★ ★

"Billboards are not the art show of the public. One does not acquire art appreciation by working out a great painting as a jig-saw puzzle."

REAL QUESTIONS

Two burning questions of the day, she said, are, "What about us as individuals and what about us as a society?

"Our lack of the 'awareness of living' is showing if our ultimate goal lies in dashing from an art talk to a symphony committee meeting, then perhaps to hear a book review and so home to see what's thawing for dinner."

★ ★ ★

"Beautification is the 'in' word today in Washington," Mrs. Saarinen says, "as evidenced in projects like air cleaning, preventing river pollution, burying overhead wires and more discretion on the part of road builders."

★ ★ ★

Sleek and slim in her coatdress of charcoal plush over a lighter gray silk skirt, Mrs. Saarinen was enthusiastic about her New York dressmaker Herma who is making gowns for the Veiled Prophet ball in St. Louis, Mo. This is a pre-Lenten gala patterned after the Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

Mrs. Saarinen, a graduate of Vassar College, has been associate art critic and editor of the New York Times. She holds a master of arts degree from the Institute of Fine Arts at New York University.

She appears once a week on the Today program over NBC and is an NBC correspondent covering the area of 'manners, morals and culture.'

She is also seen on the NBC Sunday Show and occasionally on the Huntley-Brinkley hour.

★ ★ ★

A former Bloomfield Hills resident, she was married to the world-famous architect, the late Eero Saarinen.

Their son Eames who is 10, lives with his mother in New York when on vacation from the Lochland School in Geneva, N.Y.

★ ★ ★

When asked "How Far Is Modernization Going?" at the celebrity luncheon in the Village Woman's Club, Mrs. Saarinen deplored the demolition of the old Detroit city hall and other Victorian buildings in Detroit.

WHAT IS ART

She summed up her concept of art with the remark, "It takes a little knowledge and a heck of a lot of effort, listening and looking.

"One should learn to be discerning and not just select an art object to be in the swing of things or because it is this year's model. Ask yourself: "why you would take it home."

AFS Show Scheduled by College

Mrs. Charles McLaughlin of Mohawk Road hosted the adult meeting Wednesday evening of the American Field Service (AFS).

AFS sponsors bus trips for its foreign students before they return to their overseas homes.

There will be a bus stop in Pontiac July 9-11 with 44 foreign students. Area families will host the students.

★ ★ ★

On Feb. 27 and Feb. 28 there will be a fund-raising project called "Ford Caravan of Music" at the Masonic Temple, Detroit. It will be sponsored by Oakland Community College.

Governor and Mrs. George Romney and AFS students will be guests. Tickets are available from AFS members.

They're Home

Mr. and Mrs. Gladwin Breeze of Mohawk Road have returned from a two-week trip to the Hawaiian Islands.

Hazy Outlook

Excuses Are Transparent

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 years old and I have never been kissed.

ABBY

To tell you the truth, I have never even been on a real date. I am not bad-looking, but I wear glasses. I am beginning to wonder if maybe that isn't my trouble.

I am not too shy, although I don't throw myself at boys, either. I can also carry on a pretty good conversation.

At the rate I'm going, I'll be an old maid. Can you help me?

DATELESS

DEAR DATELESS: Eyeglasses rarely, if ever, cost a girl popularity. But they provide a handy excuse, which is easily seen through.

For a girl to be popular, she must develop the kind of personality other people enjoy.

The first step is to quit thinking about yourself and concentrate on making the other person comfortable.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: A man who would make a perfect husband has asked me to marry him. My problem is his mother.

She dominates him. When he was a child, she divorced his father and devoted her whole life to raising Hal. I have to hand it to her. She did a fine job. He is beautifully educated, has a wonderful personality and is well-respected in the community.

He's 41 and lives with his mother. He says when we marry, SHE will live with us. His friends tell me they would not wish a mother-in-law like her on their worst enemy.

She is not the affectionate, gushy type, but she seems to like me. (Hal says I am the first girl to pass her inspection.)

She is 60 and in good health. Hal told me that he owes his mother "everything" and she will always come first. I love this man, but wonder about the chances of a good marriage.

A VIRGO

DEAR VIRGO: You're luckier than most women who are engaged to a Mamma's boy. He has told you in advance exactly where you will stand — behind his mother, which is a poor second for any wife.

Don't marry him unless you enjoy feeling sorry for yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I have been having nightmares every night for the past few weeks.

First, let me tell you that I am a 38-year-old wife and mother. My husband is reasonably good to me, and while my life isn't always moonlight and roses, I am by nature a happy, friendly, but rather quiet person.

I keep dreaming the same terrible dream over again. I dream that I am in a big lake and I am an expert swimmer (which I am not) and I am with people who can't swim.

They are drowning and I could save them if I wanted to, but I just let them drown and it doesn't seem to bother me a bit. What do you make of that, Abby?

Please don't send me to a psychiatrist. He would think I am crazy.

HAVING NIGHTMARES

DEAR HAVING: It would appear that your dreams are the result of deep guilt feelings. Are you in a position to help someone, but have chosen to look out the window?

If the nightmares persist, see a psychiatrist. I assure you he won't think you are "crazy."

Group Hears Policy Talk

After a buffet dinner in the Waldron Hotel Wednesday evening, members of the Insurance Women of Pontiac heard Neil S. Ullrick of the General Adjustment Bureau speak.

Multi Peril policies, commonly called SMP policies were explained and reviewed before the group.

Plans were discussed for the annual "Bosses Night" to be held in May.

Walt Disney Films to Be Featured

A double bill from the Walt Disney studios will make up The Detroit Institute of Arts' "Great Stories in Film" program on Saturday.

"Alice in Wonderland" is Disney's full-length animated color cartoon treatment of the Lewis Carroll classic. "Man and the Moon" is a realistic simulated account of man's first flight to the moon.

★ ★ ★

The film program will be shown in the museum auditorium at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Terrified Child Needs to Contact Mother

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: I am staying with my daughter who is still too weak from a serious operation to take care of her two children. But I do not think I am doing any good here.

Though her little boy is even-tempered, her daughter, 5, is selfish and spoiled.

She screams and bangs at her mother's door when she is resting; and if I try to comb her hair, screams for her mother to do it for her.

She has no pity at all for my daughter's weakness....

ANSWER: Your deepest fear is losing this ailing daughter of yours, isn't it? You share it, you know, with this obstreperous child of hers.

* * *

The only difference between you is that you can act on your fear by helping your daughter to get well.

Your granddaughter can't—she's too little to cook and clean and nurse. She's powerless to act on her fear of losing her mother.

All she can do about it is to insist on physical contact which reassures her that mother is still available.

MOTHER LEFT

After all, mother has just been restored to her after disappearing into the nameless dangers of a hospital. She disappeared once before, too, when her little brother was born.

And before this last disappearance, God knows what grown-up anxieties in her home have suggested the terrifying, permanent loss of mother.

Instead of trying to pull her away from her mother's door, tie a string to the door and give it to her to hold while you comb her hair.

Let her carry light trays to mother.

Give her one of mother's nightgowns to take to bed at night.

Seeing in her the same anxiety you feel yourself, you might find all kinds of comforting ways to bring her close to her mother.

Then, you would stop appearing to her as the enemy who is trying to divide her from the person from whom she already has been divided so many frightening times.

BOTH ALIKE

She is experiencing exactly the same frustration as you would experience if you now left your daughter.

Divided from her, your fear for her would begin to overwhelm you. You'd try to deal with it by keeping in constant contact with her, too.

You'd try to maintain touch with her by using connecting telephone lines.

* * *

That's why I suggest the connecting string on her mother's door. It's her telephone line when she has to be separated from the person you both love so much.

"Her" pant jumper at left in exclusive linspand, a fifty-fifty blend of Avril and cotton, has the look of linen and just enough stretch to give when and where it should, about $15. On the right, it's "Her" pant skirt in linen-look linspand with "Her" action-back X-Pan cotton knit pullover. Pant skirt, about $11; X-Pan shirt, about $6.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Willis of Fairview Street, Avon Township, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sylvia Bertha to Gerald Robert Carman, son of the Kenneth Carmans of Blaine Avenue.

Vary Use of Linens

From time to time, vary the fold line of regularly used household linens.

This increases their life by preventing the fabric threads from weakening.

As it is correct that a tablecloth only display one seam, fold them once lengthwise and roll them on a cylindrical object such as a mailing tube. And store.

Pare Thin

Never cut thick parings when peeling potatoes. To do so is to throw away food as the most valuable part of the potato is directly under the skin.

Easy Potholder for Beginner

Fold a dish cloth twice to form a square. Crochet a simple edge around it.

Form a hanger on one corner with the crochet and you have a jiffy pot holder, one that is cheery and will wear well.

Lady Juror Keeps Silent

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—"Coats and ties are required for jury duty," read the summons received by Mrs. Jack Griffin here.

The first woman to serve on the jury here in St. Augustine's 400-year history, Mrs. Griffin turned to an etiquette book for advice on proper dress — and found none.

* * *

So she selected a conservative suit without a hat and carried gloves.

Under Florida law, women are not selected for jury duty unless they volunteer.

Mrs. Griffin was one of six women in the county who volunteered.

The odds are heavily against the women being drawn from a jury list of some 700 qualified persons.

* * *

Since it was a civil case, she was allowed to go home in the evening to her family with instructions not to discuss the case with anyone.

That was the most difficult part of her experience, for she reported, "There I was, just dying to talk to someone about my experience and I couldn't say a word."

Colored Keyboard Is Piano News

Soft color now brings new warmth to the traditionally stark white piano key. New plastic keys in color let you match — or complement — your decor with a keyboard tinted a warm pastel yellow, red, blue, green, gold, pink, or beige.

* * *

These color keys are molded of Celcon acetal copolymer which is warm to the touch and has unusual durability. This new high-strength material from Celanese Plastics Company resists chipping and cracking.

Spilled drinks, food or cleaning chemicals can be simply wiped away without leaving stains.

The new pastel keys also can be used to simplify piano teaching.

* * *

You can help the young beginner in your house by matching color to tone — using one pastel shade for each note of color sequence for each octave.

These colorful piano keys in eight pastel shades, including the traditional white, are made by Kolor Kee Company, Saginaw, Mich.

Beta Theta Phi Hears Talk About Europe

Mrs. Clifford Maison showed films and discussed her trip to Europe before members of the Beta Theta Phi sorority, Beta chapter.

The Thursday evening meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Duane Hamilton, Illinois Avenue.

* * *

Mrs. Albert Kingsbury acted as cohostess at the meeting where a contribution was made to the Bill Quist scholarship fund.

Plans were discussed for the joint sorority fashion show and the March 20 dinner for husbands and guests. Dr. and Mrs. M. C. Worster of Orchard Lake will host the dinner.

Shades Are Important in Decorating

There may not be anything new under the sun, but decorative window shades make news for keeping out its glare — while adding a bright and cheery look at the windows.

Modern technological knowhow has given us an endless variety of shade cloths that maintain their washability in both handsome room-darkening and translucent textures.

Designs range from delicate, embroidered lawn, shantung, and plisse, to smart boucle and homespuns with a handwoven look.

What's more, they all boast an exciting new color palette that makes them blend beautifully with fabrics, wallpaper, and floor coverings.

Give Cleanly

The Needlework Guild, a charitable organization which collects new clothing and linens for distribution to needy families, has two strict rules.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

If you started my Eight-Week Beauty Improvement Plan when it first began in this newspaper, you should be feeling pretty proud of yourself.

Some of you may not have started at the beginning. At any rate you are all seeing results by now which give your vanity a big boost. Isn't it a wonderful feeling?

Even though it will be necessary to have your clothes altered again at the end of the eight weeks, I think you should fit them now to your present figure. Don't wait to begin enjoying your new silhouette.

This will give you a little prize you deserve along the way, and will encourage you to stick to your routine until the end of the program.

KEEP EXERCISING

If you did not have 20 pounds to lose and have already reached your ideal weight, keep on with the figure-molding exercises and special hair and skin care to see how lovely you can be in three more weeks.

The exercises will streamline your figure. I hope by then you will have found the habit of exercise and a beauty routine so successful and rewarding that you will continue.

* * *

You also deserve another prize now. Ask your husband to take you out for dinner for a change, or if you are not married, have dinner with a friend at a good restaurant.

You can splurge once in six weeks! Actually, you can have a very good dinner and still not go too far over your daily allowable calorie intake.

The following ideas are important and are valuable for any woman who gains weight easily.

HOW TO ORDER

If you order a seafood cocktail, order the tomato-catsup sort of dressing with it instead of mayonnaise.

- Beware of the crackers which come with it and the soup. You may have a couple, but if you are not careful, all the crackers and butter will disappear. You can eat a lot of calories before you even start on the main course.
- Choose clear soup instead of cream soups. It is possible to get 1200 calories from just these first two courses.
- Choose meat or fish or fowl instead of casserole dishes.
- Order a baked potato and splurge with butter on it instead of potatoes au gratin, scalloped or fried.
- Do not stuff on rolls—maybe one.
- If you only do this once every few weeks you may have any dessert you wish. As a general habit select fruit or jello or an ice.

Warm Bath?

In Old High German, the word "bahen" or "bajan" meant to warm.

* * *

This may be the origin of the modern word, "bath"—a pleasant sudsy way to warm up on a chilling winter day.

Have You Tried This?

Waffles Must Rise

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

You'll have to get up a bit early on Sunday if you're going to have yeast waffles for breakfast. Perhaps you could get them mixed, then sneak back to bed while they're rising.

Mrs. L. D. Bigelow is today's cook. She brought her recipe to the Pontiac Press cooking school last month.

YEAST WAFFLES
By Mrs. L. D. Bigelow

¼ cake compressed yeast
2 cups milk, scalded
1 tablespoon sugar
4 tablespoons butter or lard
2½ cups sifted flour
1½ teaspoons salt
2 eggs

Dissolve yeast in milk which has been cooled to lukewarm. Add sugar. When dissolved, add rest of ingredients.

Let stand three or four hours until batter rises. Bake in hot waffle iron.

Litterbugs Are Getting Scarce

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — One Wichita man is now a firm believer in not throwing litter from a car window.

While driving with his wife, he tossed some paper out the car window. His $500 diamond ring went with it.

Tension Has a Good Side

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE V-410: Helene Z., aged 34, is a jittery wife.

"Dr. Crane," she asked during a forum discussion, "wouldn't it be a great boon to the human race if we could eliminate tension?

"Millions of people are neurotic, as you just mentioned in your speech today.

"And they develop peptic ulcers, spastic colitis, angina pectoris and other nervous ailments.

"Which is why they become tranquilizer addicts!

"So wouldn't it be wonderful if everything were calm and peaceful?"

No, it would be terrible!

For peace and quiet are a synonym of a sleepy, non-productive person or nation!

Take your choice — it's a matter of creation vs. stagnation!

And creation requires tension, raised blood pressure, stage fright and "cold" sweat.

You can exude buckets of hot sweat in a Turkish bath or lolling in the sun on a humid summer afternoon.

Meanwhile, you haven't created a single shoe or loaf of bread or public speech or poem!

So be grateful for the "cold" variety of perspiration since that means you are in gear and moving upward on the rungs of the ladder to success.

HE'S NOT CALM

No boxer is calm and relaxed just before the fight. Nor is a college debater nor salesman nor even a man proposing to his sweetheart!

Indeed, one of the greatest boons for civilization would be 10,000,000 more Americans with peptic ulcers!

For peptic ulcers are the badge of a go-getter in a fighting arena, whether that be business, the professions or the boxing ring.

Actually, however, God Almighty intended us to put on the pressure at the office, store or factory, but then lay aside those productive tensions when the quitting whistle blows.

* * *

The people who develop neurotic symptoms haven't learned the deft art of letting go of their tension when the day's battle has ended.

Tensions (and worries) are actually the greatest producers of advancing civilization.

But teach yourself to set them down after 5 p.m.

DROP LOAD

A suitcase or traveling bag is also a wholesome aid for going places, but when you get on the train or plane, you smart folks set them down, don't you?

* * *

Alas, a lot of people still figuratively hold their suitcases after they get on the plane or train!

Which means, they remain tense, so they chain smoke or swill down hard liquor to anesthetize their brain.

Manicures Easy With New Tool

Guaranteed to end the band-aged-finger syndrome forever is a trim little nailgrooming implement, a new arrival at the cosmetic counter.

If you have ever, inadvertently, been snagged by a sharp pair of cuticle scissors, whether in your hands or those of a manicurist, Revlon's new "Cut-Trim" is for you.

The precision-made "Cuti-Trim" is amazingly simple but masterfully-devised. The white plastic handle, carefully curved at one end pushes back cuticles gently and firmly.

At the other end is a hand-ground stainless steel cuticle or hangnail trimmer, its v-shape forming a knife-edged notch. It has been making the rounds of the women's department at The Press. It works!

* *

"Cuti-Trims" cleverly design to protect the delicate area around the nails which cannot possibly be 'butchered' by misguided paring, which often happens when scissors or nippers are used.

Russia Again in China-U.S. Squeeze

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

If, in Viet Nam, the Russians find themselves in a squeeze play between United States and the Red Chinese, it is not the first time.

In Viet Nam, the theory is that Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin's first intent on his recent visit the North Viet Nam was to urge a "political settlement" of the Communist-supported war in South Viet Nam.

NEWSOM

This portion of his mission failed because of the Red attacks on American installations and the United States' prompt response.

The subsequent swift march of events contained the danger that Russia, even though reluctantly, might become involved in the war itself.

Whether or not the stepped-up attacks against the Americans were timed to coinside with Kosygin's visit, the results fit in nicely with Red Chinese policy.

Either the Russians would have to do something or forfeit their claims to be the defenders of the Socialist world and their hopes for a new voice in Asia.

The Chinese then would be the gainers in the struggle for leadership of world communism.

Other instances come to mind.

Back in 1958, during the Mideast crisis, former Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev first proposed a summit conference in Geneva or "anywhere else" and then agreed to a counter proposal by President Eisenhower that a big-power meeting be held in the United Nations Security Council.

There followed a secret meeting in which the Chinese vetoed the idea of a meeting which not only would include the United States but the Nationalist Chinese as well. Khrushchev bowed to the Red Chinese and the meeting was never held.

The Khrushchev-Eisenhower meeting in 1959 engendered the short-lived friendly "spirit of Camp David." After it, Khrushchev once more visited Peking.

"We, on our part, must do everything possible to prelude war as a means for settling outstanding questions."

U2 INCIDENT

Then came the U2 spy incident over the Soviet Union and the collapse of the Paris Summit conference in May, 1960.

High-level negotiations between the Soviet Union and the United States were in fact suspended for more than a year, until the Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting in Vienna in 1961. In the meantime, the Red Chinese continued to press Moscow hard.

So it was familiar reading when at the week's 15th anniversary of the Chinese-Soviet treaty of friendship, the Chinese declared coexistence with the United States "out of the question" and demanded "concrete action."

WILSON ATTENDS LUNCHEON — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson puts a glass to his lips yesterday during the annual luncheon of the Parliamentary and Scientific Committee at a London hotel. In Paris, it was announced Wilson had been invited to meet with President Charles de Gaulle and Premier Georges Pompidou April 1-3.

But He Digs Pure Gold

Rock Compares Movie-Making to Mines

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Rock Hudson sees a similarity between making movies and laboring in a mine.

"I like not working," said the big film star.

Next week he starts his 50th picture since 1948.

BOYLE

"I dread it—having to go down into the mines for 10 weeks," he remarked.

"A sound stage is really quite a bit like a mine. It's dark and it has no windows. I never see daylight—and turn the nicest greenish-white."

But Hudson doesn't dig coal in his mine. He brings up pure gold.

* * *

A big, shy, near-sighted kid from Winnetka, Ill., he sang in a high school glee club and church choir before going to Hollywood. He served in the Navy. He worked as a truck driver, piano mover, and mail carrier.

His first screen test in 1947 was so poor that one studio for a time showed it to other beginners as an example of poor acting.

RHINESTONE YOUTH

But his rhinestone youth has long since turned into a diamond brilliance.

He touches the industry where its heart is—the box office cashbox. Now, feeling a bit camera weary, he'd like to try Broadway.

* * *

"I'm looking for a good musical role," he said. "I've been taking singing lessons for a year."

At 39, this 200-pound, 6-foot-4 inch actor probably is the man most U.S. women would rather be cast up on a desert isle with. What kind of a person is he?

WHAT HE LIKES

"Well," he said, enjoying the question, "I like coffee, nice people, old clothes, old cars, new cars, leftover foods, skin diving, sailing, skiing, water skiing, hockey, wood paneling, hand-rubbed wooden antiques, old silver, paintings, sculpture, the feel of marble, candlelight, Technicolor films, harmony in song, heat waves, electric fans, desserts, mashed potatoes and gravy, scotch.

"And I like clean sheets, good service, moonlight, fireplaces, traveling, yodeling, reading fantasy tales, biographies, reference books, do-it-yourself books, making tape recordings of good music, playing the piano — but just for myself — remodeling houses, opera, limericks, the month of July, excitement in my life, kitchens, and Julie Andrews."

* * *

What doesn't he like?

"Well," he said, enjoying the game even more, "I don't like purple, pink or lavender, eyeglasses, brass plate, women with lacquered hair, lipstick, brown eyes, modern hotels, modern furniture and most modern architecture, short people, bad posture, abstract art, oriental music, bad actors, bad producers, bad directors, bad scripts.

"And I don't like exit signs, weak coffee or weak men, cigars, hats, slow drivers, small talk, politics, worry and boredom, delays, being told a store doesn't have a shirt in my size, air conditioning, the month of March, mohair couches, fringed lampshades, telephones and television, stubborn people who know I'm right but won't admit it, shag rugs, veneer, big rings, fishing, rain, raisins, the smell of chlorine in swimming pools, and lizards. I really detest lizards."

Now you know Rock Hudson.

Criticism Is Cutting to Rock 'n' Roll Fan

HUEHUETOCA, Mexico (UPI) — Fabian Reyes Hernandez was recovering today in a local hospital from a bloody run-in with two "culture-lovers."

The two told Reyes Hernandez, 17, to stop playing "that annoying loud rock 'n' roll music" on a jukebox yesterday. The youth refused and the other two pulled out knives and stabbed him three times.

2 Cities Have Hands Out

Tax Problem on Thin Line

DETROIT (AP)—Employes of the ITE Circuit Breaker Co. are walking a thin line on an extremely taxing problem.

If they move to one side of the line they are taxed in Detroit. On the other side the suburb of Hamtramck has its hand out. Both cities levy one per cent income taxes.

It got so bad that company officials had a line drawn through the plant. That, they figured, should make it easy—some 480 employes on one side of the line were taxed in Detroit, the other 320 in Hamtramck.

Then two men volunteered the information that they sat in chairs in Detroit and worked at desks in Hamtramck.

HARRIED DEPARTMENT

The harried bookkeeping department decided to settle the problem by taxing employes according to where they worked Jan. 1.

* * *

The company determined which side of the line the employe worked on last Jan. 1 and sent his tax to the appropriate city.

The system worked fine.

Then another employe came forward. It seems that on Jan. 1 he was driving a fork lift truck all over the plant. . . .

Senate Argues Negotiated Viet Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican congressional leaders have stepped up their opposition to a negotiated settlement of the war with Viet Nam.

GOP Senate leader Everett M. Dirksen charged in a floor speech Thursday that advocates of a settlement propose to "run up the white flag before the world and start running away from communism."

★ ★ ★

Earlier in the day, House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford declared in a statement some Democrats want the United States to pull out of Viet Nam and "retreat to Pearl Harbor."

With Democrats divided on the issue, debate over Southeast Asian policy forced the Senate into another late session.

MANSFIELD STEPS IN

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield stepped into the debate to argue against equating negotiations with surrender and appeasement.

Mansfield said of Dirksen: It is "a profound reassurance to know that the great senator from Illinois can be counted on to put the best interests of the nation first in any critical situation."

★ ★ ★

But, Mansfield told the Senate, it was "entirely proper" for Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and George S. McGovern, D-S.D., to suggest consideration of negotiation "which might lead to a prompt end to the bloodshed."

Close associates said Mansfield was concerned that speeches by Dirksen and other critics of Church and McGovern might be designed to foreclose any thought of negotiations, at least in the foreseeable future.

OUTER DEFENSES

Dirksen, in a reply to the Senate speeches Church and McGovern made Wednesday, said "if we don't man the ramparts of freedom on our outer defense line from Korea to South Viet Nam, we'll inevitably be facing the enemy on the inner line from Alaska to Hawaii."

"To negotiate in South Viet Nam while Communist aggression is spreading throughout the entire Southeast Asia peninsula," Dirksen declared, "is like a man trying to paint his front porch while his house is on fire."

★ ★ ★

Dirksen told a reporter he is trying to "put a stop to this negotiation talk" in this country for fear it will be interpreted by Communists and non-Communists as a sign of weakness.

"I don't think we should even talk about it at all until there is some good faith evidence from the Communists that they will keep the agreements they already have made on Southeast Asia. "You don't hear the Communists talking about negotiations."

REPLY TO DIRKSEN

Both McGovern and Church took the floor later in the day to reply to Dirksen.

"I regard his remarks," McGovern said of the Republican leader, "as good oratory and bad logic. I have never advocated running up a white flag and I don't advocate it now.

★ ★ ★

"But neither do I believe that every problem in the world can be solved by bigger wars or even by waving the American flag on the floor of the United States Senate."

★ ★ ★

McGovern went on to say:

"It doesn't require any particular bravery to stand on the floor of the Senate and urge our boys in Viet Nam to fight harder, and if this war mushrooms into a major conflict and a hundred thousand Americans are killed, it won't be United States senators who die."

'FINE PATRIOT'

Church said Dirksen "is a fine patriot, but he's no better patriot than any other members of this body" and called the white flag charge "contrary to the facts." He added he saw no purpose in questioning the courage of those who would find a political, rather than a military solution, in Southeast Asia.

★ ★ ★

Church said the Republicans gave enthusiastic support to President Harry S. Truman's decision to enter the war in Korea, but when the casualty lists began to grow and the going got tough, it quickly became "Mr. Truman's war" and the principal campaign issue of the Republicans in 1952.

Driver's Permit to Be Restored for Armless Man

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—The Lancaster County Court has ordered the state to reinstate the driver's license of Ray Meyers, armless since birth.

Meyers, 54, who has been driving only with his feet for 29 years and never has been in an accident for which he was blamed, had lost his license in November.

A computer in the Bureau of Motor Vehicles in Harrisburg threw out his application for a renewal.

He took a fresh driving test on Jan. 23.

Two county judges ruled yesterday that Meyers' license should be restored.

Proved in Viet Nam Skies

Copters Win Place as U.S. Weapon

Craft Can Bring Troops In Fast Where Needed

By COL. RAY CROMLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Military Analyst

WASHINGTON — The men in the two low-flying lead helicopters head leisurely over Viet Cong hamlets. They're "sitting ducks," tempting targets for Red guerrilla fire.

They're meant to be.

* * *

A short way behind are several helicopters loaded with specially trained troops. If a gullible Viet Cong unit fires at the decoys, the spot is noted and the helicopter-borne troops land and attack.

This type of decoy-ambush is as old as scouts and cavalry. But it's also symbolic of how far the military helicopter has come since its awkward combat area trials in Korea, when some experts predicted it couldn't possibly live in battle zones.

There have been hairy accounts of helicopter tragedies and of massive but ineffective helicopter-borne military sweeps against Viet Cong who couldn't be found.

* * *

But Army analysts and their computers will turn out calculations which show that on the average you would have to go out on 6,600 chopper sorties these days before being shot down by enemy ground fire.

MORE SORTIES

These men say that between Jan. 1, 1962, and Nov. 1, 1964, U.S. helicopters flew more than 416,000 sorties in South Viet Nam.

They were hit 1,100 times. Sixty-five were shot down by ground fire. Thirty-seven of these have been retrieved, repaired and returned to duty. That's a net loss of 28 choppers from enemy action for 416,000 sorties.

Fifty-eight other helicopters were lost in accidents.

Make no mistake about it. There have been some boo-boos. There was the helicopter with the weak tail (since corrected). There are the repeated foul-ups in communications resulting in helicopters arriving after the Cong have vanished.

* * *

As the Viet Cong get better antiaircraft weapons, flying gets rougher for the choppers.

But as a result of experience in South Viet Nam and the two-year-long tests with the experimental Air Assault Division, it is now probably that the Army will organize a permanent Air Assault Brigade, which will move into battle largely transported by helicopters.

After experience is gained with this brigade, it is expected that a number of additional helicopter-borne infantry brigades will be organized and be attached, as occasion demands, to one or another of the Army's 16 divisions.

* * *

How such brigades will operate can best be told by describing a helicopter-borne troop sortie in South Viet Nam. These are becoming highly specialized operations.

HEAVY GUARD

The main body, of course, is composed of troop-carrying helicopters. These are guarded front, rear and on the close flanks by a unit of armed choppers whose job is to take out the ground fire immediately below and on the close right and left.

Over and around all this is "air cover" provided by a fistful of regular-fixed-wing Air Force airplanes. These take on strong fire ahead and farther out on the flanks. Scout helicopters go ahead to act as a "point" to draw fire.

This is the general type of organization that Army men expect in future wars where U.S. troops are carried into battle by helicopter over or near enemy-held territory.

* * *

However, an Air Force officer comments, 'This will work only where we have absolute air superiority."

SOME WEAKNESSES

Plans are afoot to eliminate several helicopter weaknesses exposed in the Viet Nam operations.

Now being experimented with is a helicopter with short, stubby wings and a small auxiliary motor, which in tests has flown at 242 nautical miles an hour.

Industry men have proposed developing 400-mile-an-hour choppers. These higher speeds would make the helicopters less vulnerable in flight. They would also make possible much greater speeds during take-off and landing — when helicopters are most easily shot down.

* * *

Because American helicopters in Viet Nam have been outgunned on occasion by Red ground fire, many of the new choppers will be armed with 50-caliber machine guns.

BETTER ARMOR

Better armor is being designed to protect vital spots in the helicopters and the men who fly them. Meanwhile, some chopper men fold up armored vests and sit on them.

* * *

To sum up: helicopters have their weaknesses, but if you've got to get men in quickly where there are no adequate airfields, choppers will do the job at a lot lower cost in losses than trucks, and they're normally more effective than parachutes or light planes.

* * *

They likely will be the Army's guerrilla war workhorse until there's an effective vertical take-off plane, which may be some time in coming.

AWAITING THEIR TURN — With smoke billowing around their heads, these people hang their faces out of a window stretching for fresh air and await their turn for rescue during a four-alarm fire in downtown Minneapolis. Damage to the Physicians and Surgeons Building was estimated at $1 million. There were no injuries.

Rights Unit Is Probing Racist Groups

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—The activities of the Ku Klux Klan and other racist groups were under fire today as the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights investigated alleged racial discrimination in Mississippi law enforcement.

The five-day hearing was to resume at 10 a.m. with several witnesses from Madison, Leflore and Washington counties slated to appear. The commission will conclude its probe tomorrow.

A total of 18 persons — including Negroes and law enforcement officers from three counties in south Mississippi —testified yesterday about a wave of beatings, bombings and other violence which swept the state last year.

Most agreed, however, that tensions had eased following recent statements by state officials and civic leaders urging law and order.

The commission, headed by Dr. John A. Hannah of Michigan State University, closely questioned witnesses regarding activities of the Klan and other white supremacist groups, such as the Americans for the Preservation of the White Race (APWR).

OFFICIAL BEATEN

Ottis Matthews, a white labor union official, testified he was stopped on the road and beaten last November after criticizing the Klan for trying to interfere with integration of facilities at the Masonite Corp. plant at Laurel.

After the beating, he said, his local issued a warning that any other efforts to stop or assault a union member would be met with gunfire and death.

The tall, 41-year-old union leader said he had been forced from his car at gunpoint, blindfolded and flogged with a leather strap.

"At one point, I told them if they didn't quit beating me, they were going to kill me," he said, "but they kept on for a short time."

BULLY TYPES

He branded such persons as "mentally defective" and the "bullying type" but added some of their leaders were businessmen and "should be better-type people."

Matthews said a vigorous investigation was continuing in the case. He said law enforcement officers in the Laurel area were "free of Klan influence" and were doing all they could.

2 Policemen All Zipped Up in 3-Wheeler

SAN ANGELO, Tex. — San Angelo police are now aware that a zipper does not always work. Capts. John DeMent and Richard Palmer took the police department's new three-wheeler out for a trial spin when they went home for lunch.

After eating, DeMent stopped to pick up Palmer. Mrs. Palmer came out to look over the new vehicle.

* * *

She zipped up the curtains after the men had crowded into the cab, but when they reached the station Palmer and DeMent discovered that the zipper wouldn't zip from the inside.

* * *

By turning on the siren, blaring the horn and flashing the red lights they attracted the attention of other officers and were freed.

Arrest Ends for Archbishop

Leaves Confinement in Prague for Rome

ROME (AP) — Archbishop Josef Beran of Prague arrived in Rome today, ending 16 years of confinement or restriction at the hands of Czechoslovakia's Communist government.

The 77-year-old prelate came to the Vatican for the ceremonies next week at which he and 26 other prelates will be made cardinals by Pope Paul VI.

* * *

CTK, the Czechoslovak news agency, said he would not return to Prague and that Pope Paul had appointed Dr. Frantisek Tomasek apostolic administrator in Prague.

Previously the Vatican had sought to get Czechoslovakia to let Archbishop Beran return and take up his duties as archbishop. But Vatican sources said the archbishop had requested the appointment of an apostolic administrator.

* * *

An apostolic administrator runs a diocese or an archdiocese in place of a bishop or archbishop who is prevented from carrying out his duties.

OFFICIAL POSITION

Thus Archbishop Beran will officially continue to hold the Prague see, but his duties will be handled by the administrator.

Archbishop Beran was arrested in 1949 with thousands of other priests after the Communists took over Czechoslovakia.

He was formally freed two years ago but was restricted to a monastery and not allowed to resume his church functions because he refused to take an oath of allegiance to the Communist government.

* * *

CTK said Dr. Tomasek had taken the oath of allegiance to the Czechoslovak Socialist republic.

SIMILAR ACCORD

This indicated that the Vatican and the Prague government had reached an accord similar to that between the Vatican and Communist Hungary, where the bishops also were permitted to pledge allegiance.

* * *

The Vatican-Czech accord may also include provisions for the filling of 11 vacant sees in Czechoslovakia.

Romney Urges 'Bigotry War'

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Michigan Gov. George Romney urged Republicans Thursday night to wage a "war on bigotry" and, to help it along, appoint a Negro deputy to the national GOP chairman.

* * *

Speaking to "the Minnesota U.S.A. Rally," Romney said, "we can ignore this duty and this opportunity only at our peril.

"For I am convinced," he said, "that a party which temporizes on great issues, compromises with basic American principles, and ducks the challenges of history, will forfeit its right to leadership and jeopardize its own existence."

The Michigan governor suggested a five-point program for the "war on bigotry."

* * *

He urged Republicans to act as individuals against prejudice, to encourage voluntary remedial action, to marshall "the full resources of community and state governments," to support "all needed federal action against discrimination" and to work within the Republican party itself.

Good Case of Measles

FONTANA, Calif. (AP) — "I have the measles, your honor," defendant Walter A. Treamer, 33, of Fontana announced Thursday in Justice Court after a jury had been impaneled.

Treamer was fined $110 and given a suspended 30-day sentence.

The First World War

The Race to the Sea: 12

Written By PHILIP VAN DOREN STERN for Newspaper Enterprise Association — Illustrated By John Lane

After the German advance had been stopped at the Battle of the Marne early in September 1914, both sides realized the western ends of their lines were exceedingly vulnerable.

A series of rapid encounters took place, in which each army tried to outflank the other.

Before these battles began, however, the Germans besieged Antwerp late in September and compelled the Belgian army to evacuate the city.

What was left of this army made their way along the coast to the Yser River, which flows from France through Flanders to Nieuport.

* * *

They defended that tiny corner of Belgium so well that they kept it free throughout the war. At the end of October, the locks at Nieuport were opened to let in the North Sea, which flooded the low ground and helped to protect the area.

FIGHT ON FOOT

Meanwhile, on Oct. 12, British, French and German cavalry met head-on in the sector between La Bassee and Armentieres.

They did not fight on horseback but on foot, as dismounted Union and Confederate cavalrymen had done during the later part of the Civil War.

The Germans were stopped but only temporarily, for they were stronger in men and guns.

* * *

On Oct. 20 they attacked the British in front of Nieuport. And on that same day British troops arrived at Ypres (rhymes with zebra) to defend the ridge east of that important communications center.

HOTLY CONTESTED

Starting on Oct. 30, Ypres became one of the most hotly contested sectors of the war. Shells kept falling there for four years.

From Nov. 11 to 22, 1914, the fighting around Ypres (or "Wipers") as the British called it, was so intense that there were 250,000 casualties on the field.

And as was so often to be the case in this war, nothing decisive was accomplished.

* * *

The armies were still using obsolete tactics against modern quick-firing, long-range weapons.

HIGH COMMAND

The high command had to learn the lesson the hard way —over mountains of corpses. In order to learn, nearly a whole generation of young men was sacrificed.

* * *

The Western Front was now complete. It extended 400 miles from the Swiss border to Nieuport on the North Sea.

It was to remain almost unchanged for four years while incredibly bloody struggles went on to gain a few feet of land that was often lost again, in the seemingly endless conflict.

Snow Dumped on East Areas

By The Associated Press

Snow fell across northern sections of the Midwest into New Hampshire today.

Heaviest amounts were in northeastern Ohio, with more than two inches in a six-hour period at Youngstown and Canton, Ohio. Freezing drizzle pelted some northern Ohio cities. The snow also fell in North Dakota, Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, New York and into parts of New England.

* * *

Cold air preceded the snow from the northern Great Lakes into the middle and northern Atlantic Coast regions.

Except for fog along the northern Pacific Coast, dry weather was reported in most other parts of the nation.

The mild weather pattern in most of the western sections developed in the Southeast. Coldest weather was in northern Minnesota with below zero temperatures. Subzero cold also was reported in parts of Michigan.

* * *

Early morning temperatures ranged from 13 below zero at Hibbing, Minn., to 76 at Key West, Fla.

REDS REPAIR U. S. EMBASSY— Russian workmen in Moscow repair the U. S. Embassy yesterday. Rioting students demonstrated outside the building last week against the American bombing of North Viet Nam. Windows were broken and ink splattered. After the U. S. protested, the Russians agreed to make repairs.

China Demands U.S. Pullout

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China demanded today that the United States get out of South Viet Nam. It said a U.S. pullout is the only way peace will come to the war-torn country.

The Chinese statement, based on an editorial in the official Peking Peoples Daily, also hinted that Red China has no intention of negotiating a settlement to the crisis in Southeast Asia.

The editorial was broadcast to Tokyo in English by the official Communist news agency New China.

"Peace in Viet Nam can be had at any time," the Chinese Communists said, "But it can only be after the U.S. aggressors have withdrawn from South Viet Nam and certainly not before."

★ ★ ★

U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara discussed South Viet Nam in Washington yesterday, calling it the "keystone" to peace in Southeast Asia.

WILL STAND BY

Other American officials, including President Johnson, have declared on previous occasions that the United States will stand by its commitment to help South Viet Nam fight off the threat of a takeover by Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

Communist China and North Viet Nam have been backing the guerrillas.

Russia announced its intent to build up North Viet Nam's "defense potential" following U.S. air raids against the Hanoi regime in retaliation for guerrilla attacks on American installations in South Viet Nam.

Unofficial reports have reached Saigon that Soviet-built ground - to - air missiles already have reached North Viet Nam.

Communist China admitted U.S. air and naval superiority but said the outcome of the guerrilla war will be decided on the ground, where it claimed the United States was losing.

The editorial also said that America's allies are deserting the United States on the question of Viet Nam policy.

Kremlin: Party Controls Military

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Kremlin today reaffirmed the Communist party's role as supreme leader of all Soviet armed forces.

★ ★ ★

The restatement came in the form of a new attack on Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, former defense minister who was ousted from his job in 1957. It had the effect of squashing any claims by professional military men to the right to set Russian military policy.

"Problems of Communist party history," an organ of the ruling central committee, reiterated 1957 charges that Zhukov had tried to place the army above the Communist party.

"The party and its central committee uncovered, and in time destroyed, the dangerous line of former Defense Minister Zhukov who tried to limit the leading role of the party, to downgrade the significance of the military Soviets, the political organs and party organizations," the monthly magazine said.

★ ★ ★

"The main source of the might of our army and fleet lies in the fact that the Communist party is their organizer, leader and teacher," the magazine claimed.

ANOTHER STALIN

Former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, referring to Zhukov, once said, "The trouble with him was that he fancied himself another Stalin."

"Well," Khrushchev added, "Zhukov is not even half a Stalin or a quarter of Stalin."

Whatever the manifold reasons for Khrushchev's own fall from power last October, disagreement with his detractors on the secondary role of the armed forces does not appear to have been one of them.

★ ★ ★

There has been no apparent change in Soviet military policy, and now the 11-man committee which succeeded Khrushchev has made it clear that it alone and not the military establishment is making that policy.

They have fully endorsed Khrushchev's views on Zhukov.

★ ★ ★

The new blast against Zhukov also serves to squelch rumors, which arose after Khrushchev was dumped, to the effect that Zhukov would be "rehabilitated."

An electric dryer puts sunshine in your laundry room and a bright spot in your bank book

An electric dryer dries clothes evenly, like the sun—only better because electric heat is gentler, more controllable than the sun. Colors don't fade. Clothes stay bright. So does your bank book. Here's why.

Model for model, an electric dryer costs from $20 to $40 less than a gas dryer. And if you buy now from one of the many dealers participating in the special sale that's going on, this lower price includes installation. So you save more, right from the start.

You also save in the long run . . . because electric dryers cost nothing for electrical repairs or labor, thanks to Edison's no-charge service. Based on manufacturers' repair policy premiums, this repair service can save you up to $200 over a 10-year period.

And it doesn't matter where you buy your electric dryer, so long as you're an Edison customer. (This is the only no-charge dryer service offered by a utility company in this area.) Look into a modern electric dryer now at your appliance dealer's or Edison office.

Tutor Can Be Solution

Word Knowledge Is Vital in New Math

By LESLIE T. NASON, Ed. D.

Dear Dr. Nason: My fifth-grade son is studying the Modern Mathematics. In trying to help him, we have discovered that he lacks an understanding of words.

He admits his carelessness in this regard and realizes that he must change. He is willing to work at it but no one, including his teacher, seems to know how he should go about catching up his back vocabulary so that he can understand what is going on in the class at present.

A.B., Fresno, Calif.

I compliment you on uncovering what is probably the key factor in your son's difficulties with arithmetic.

This is one situation in which tutoring can be a real solution to the problem. A tutor can start at the beginning of the course and help your son build up an accurate word knowledge while at the same time helping him understand his daily work.

Solicit the cooperation of his teacher and help him patiently. He not only has much back work to master, but a very bad habit to overcome.

Dear Dr. Nason: I have a three-year-old son who is very alert for his age. He is not, a genius, but he learns and memorizes things quickly.

My problem is how much should I try to teach him? I have been told that a mother should not teach a preschool child too much, since teachers have their own method of teaching, and the result is a very mixed-up child.

Will you please try to help me with my problem?

A.S., Fort Smith, Ark.

Read your small son the stories he likes to hear. Talk with him about what you have read, about the places he goes with you and the things he sees. Be sure to let him do a lot of the talking.

Help him gain a good facility in the use of words and knowledge of their meanings. If he tries to read and asks about words, answer his questions carefully.

Dear Dr. Nason: Has the teaching of handwriting changed drastically since I was in school or is my son's case an exception?

My third-grade son is allowed to hold his pencil in a tight fist, with only the lead showing beyond his fingers.

His handwriting, by the way, is scarcely legible except when he takes time to practically draw each letter. Is this a trend or are we just unlucky?

A.A., Sacramento, Calif.

This has been a trend but, fortunately, the trend is reversing. Alert teachers are again giving handwriting more attention.

The pencil should, indeed, be held comfortably and extend at least half-an-inch beyond the end of the fingers for a right-handed student.

Because we write from left to right, a left handed student must extend the pencil on extra half-inch in order to see what he is writing.

By OSWALD JACOBY

Nine East-West pairs in the world championship team trials arrived at six hearts on almost nine different lines of bidding.

JACOBY

They were allowed to play the slam at eight tables and everyone made it without any trouble. At most tables South opened a diamond. Declarer would rise with dummy's ace and discard one of his clubs. Then he would lead a club toward his own hand. North would take the ace and lead a trump but it would be too late. East would still be able to ruff two clubs in dummy.

The slam would still make with a trump lead but it would require a successful spade finesse since after taking his ace of clubs North would lead a second heart.

One North-South pair refused to settle for letting their opponents play six hearts. Somehow or other North decided that his opponents were going to make six hearts and that a save was indicated. Hence he bid six no-trump over West's six hearts. This was a most unusual "unusual" no-trump and clearly asked South to bid his better minor suit. Therefore, South ignored his seven card spade suit and dutifully bid seven clubs.

West doubled and opened his singleton club and when the smoke cleared away South had managed to gather in only two tricks and East and West gathered in 3200 points instead of the mere 1430 that a slam would have brought them while North and South undoubtedly came close to establishing a record for being set in 1964.

Bill to Fight Air Pollution

LANSING (UPI) — Rep. William Copeland, D-Wyandotte, has introduced a bill to create a state air pollution control commission.

★ ★ ★

The bill, he said, parallels unsuccessful attempts that have been made for "the past eight or 10 years." But this time it has a chance, he said.

★ ★ ★

"This bill has the backing of every major industrial firm in the state," Copeland said. "They're afraid that if they, don't cooperate voluntarily with the state, they will face federal intervention."

★ ★ ★

Past measures, he said, usually have passed the House only to die in the Senate because of opposition primarily from one Michigan firm. He would not name the firm.

The bill, he added, has bipartisan support and the backing of local communities.

FURIOUS MOTHER — Actress Anna Kashfi tells newsmen in Santa Monica, Calif., yesterday, what she thinks of the court decision to award custody of her son to her former husband, Marlon Brando. The boy, Christian Devi Brando, 6, must live with Brando's older sister in Illinois.

Public Works Officials See City Facilities

A tour of Wide Track and the city's sewage treatment plant highlighted the meeting here yesterday of the Detroit Metropolitan branch of the American Public Works Association (APWA).

Pontiac officials hosted the monthly meeting.

The six-hour meeting featured a talk by Milton Heywood, traffic coordinator from the traffic division of the State Highway Department.

Heywood discussed the concept of Wide Track Drive.

Also speaking at the meeting was Harold Kelley of Jones, Henry & Williams, consulting engineers on the treatment plant.

COOPERATION

A dinner session featured a talk by Jerry Mudie, supervisor of the civic and community affairs department, Detroit Edison Co. He spoke on the cooperation between utility companies and cities.

Custody of Son, 6, Is Won by Brando

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — From the strife of one of Hollywood's stormier marriages to the tranquility of farm life in Illinois—

This is the change of worlds awaiting the 6-year-old son of Marlon Brando and Anna Kashfi, following a court ruling Thursday at the end of one of filmdom's longest custody battles.

★ ★ ★

Miss Kashfi exploded at the decision which gave Brando temporary custody of Christian Devi on condition that he be raised by Brando's elder sister, Frances Loving, in Mundelein, Ill.

Miss Kashfi stormed out of the courtroom, banging doors, and outside the courthouse told a newsman: "This baby is my whole life, I bore him. Where in the hell was Marlon Brando when the child was being brought up?

UNKNOWN WOMAN

"And now a judge gives him to a woman I don't even know. Is this justice?"

The actress, her eyes dark, said: "I am not through fighting. I will subpoena the judge and whole — damn court."

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Loving, testified at the five-day trial. She's active in the PTA and her husband has been president of the local Board of Education. He's an instructor at the Chicago Art Institute.

Brando not only agreed to the move but actually suggested it to Superior Court Judge Laurence J. Rittenbrand.

UNREAL WORLD

"I don't want my son to grow up in the unreal world that is Hollywood. I don't want him to have to live up to the sensationalized image of his father."

The trial was punctuated by spicy testimony. Charges of unnamed nude bed partners were hurled by both sides.

★ ★ ★

And Brando himself declared that he married Miss Kashfi in 1957 only "because she was with child and I wanted to give the boy a proper beginning in life."

He also said that a 5-year-old son by his present mate, Mexican actress Movita, was conceived before marriage. And that he has an illegitimate son, now two, by Tarita, the Tahitian beauty who was his costar in "Mutiny on the Bounty."

Brando admitted that he had made mistakes in his life but "three beautiful sons derived from those mistakes, so I guess you can't call them mistakes."

★ ★ ★

"My only regret is that I didn't have three sons by one woman instead of three sons by three women," he said.

Farmer's Pigs Left at Fair

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP)—Personnel of the Kansas State Fair found a real forgetful farmer.

Thity-five pigs bought at an auction remained at the fair several days with no one claiming them. Wallace White, fair secretary, checked records and found the pigs were sold to Leonard Drumright of Harper, Kan.

Dumright, much embarrassed, said he bought a number of pigs at the sale and just forgot the last 35.

Ask George Peppard

Behind Scenes Isn't All Roses

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD—Sometimes a movie star's life is not quite as rosy as it seems from an exterior view. Case in point: George Peppard.

A year ago the capable young actor seemed to have the world in his grasp. He had been starred in "The Carpetbaggers," a film with obvious commercial potential, and his life and career was considered in salutary shape.

THOMAS

★ ★ ★

The real situation?

"I hadn't worked in six months, I was falling deeper into debt, my mother died, and I was undergoing a divorce."

PERSPECTIVE NOW

Peppard can now view that dismal period with some perspective. He hadn't worked because MGM wouldn't allow him to, because he balked at reporting for a movie, "Operation Crossbow." He was also rankled by his contract, which was signed before he became a box-office star.

He held firm against the studio despite mounting debt. The outcome?

"I ended up having to do three pictures, instead of six under the old deal," he said. "I made 'Operation Crossbow,' but MGM added performers like Trevor Howard, Johnny Mills, Richard Johnson, Lilli Palmer, as well as Sophia Loren to the cast."

Now he is able to cash in on his popularity. The cash is good: $350,000 per picture, plus a percentage. He is enjoying the first of such fees at Warner Brothers in "The Third Day," with the romance of his life, Elizabeth Ashley. After a 10-day vacation in Hawaii, he reports to southwest Africa for Joseph E. Levine's "The Sands of Kalihari," then returns to MGM for "Merrily We Roll Along."

FUTURE BRIGHT

And so, despite a heavy cold and a reaction to his tetanus shot for the African trip, the world looks better to George these days.

The impetus to his career came from the resounding success of "How The West Was Won," in which he and Debbie Reynolds played the only continuing characters, and especially from "The Carpetbaggers." He shrugs off the critical knocks the film received.

★ ★ ★

The other factor in George's improved outlook is the electric Miss Ashley, star of "Barefoot in the Park" on Broadway and "Ship of Fools" in films. She paid $35,000 to escape the play and accompany him to England.

Miss Ashley played his wife in "The Carpetbaggers." I asked him if he thought they will marry.

"I don't think so," Peppard answered candidly. He said she is still married to actor James Farantino. Her lawyers have just advised her against a Mexican divorce.

"So she will be getting a California divorce," he said. "That means a year's residence here, then a year until the divorce is final. And after two years, well, who knows?"

'Eyes Not Equipped for Modern Use'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Why Johnny needs glasses is that modern society demands too much of his eyes, an official of the Better Vision Institute maintains.

The more man has developed skills to avoid manual labor, the more he has substituted tasks that rely on his eyes — like writing a computer program for a missile or reading fine print on frozen food packages — the better chance he will need glasses, said August Nelson.

"It's not the kind of demand that nearly two million years of human evolution has equipped our eyes to cope with," he told the California Optometric Association here yesterday.

Novel Experiment May Help Stutterers

BACKGROUND OF THE NEWS — AP SPECIAL REPORT

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "If a person knows he is stuttering, well, I guess most people would say, 'Why doesn't he just slow down and stop doing it?'"

Dr. Joseph G. Agnello, 32, director of Temple University's speech and hearing sciences laboratory, who posed the question, knows it isn't that simple, although he wishes it were.

★ ★ ★

Agnello is one of the estimated two million Americans afflicted with the not-so-funny handicap.

Combining both personal experience and his rigorous professional training, Agnello has designed a novel experiment which he hopes will shed light on the causes of stuttering and perhaps contribute to its treatment.

In a way, the experiment dates back to a conversation in a neighbor's kitchen. Agnello was disturbed to find that his stuttering got worse when he sat near the kitchen table. His neighbor, a music teacher, touched the tabletop and noticed it was resonating, like the sounding-board of a musical instrument, to Agnello's voice.

This odd observation, plus more technical considerations, started Agnello wondering: Could stuttering be linked with the way a person hears his own voice?

★ ★ ★

Drowning out the voice with meaningless "white noise," through earphones, had been found to allow many stutterers to speak, temporarily, more easily.

"They've said it's a distraction," says Agnello. "But I think it's more than that. I think you've broken the loop."

'THE LOOP'

By "the loop" he means the theory that the stutterer's hearing of his own verbal stumble somehow sparks another stumble in a self-repeating cycle.

Agnello plans to return the stutterer's own voice, instead of white noise, through the earphones, but with a difference. Using a little electronic "gimmicking," he can change voice characteristics before they reach the ear, and observe their effect on speech.

★ ★ ★

Some preliminary testing has already been done with a delayed voice return, or "delayed sidetone".

One question to be answered is the length of the unit involved in a "loop" response: It could be anything from the highest audible sound wave to a whole word or phrase.

SYLLABLE

"Most of the literature says it's the syllable," Agnello explains. "We feel the trouble may be in the transition from syllable to syllable.

"A delay of about two-tenths of a second causes the most trouble. That's about the duration of syllable, so they start overlapping," he adds. "They claim you just can't beat the system. It's bound to affect your speech in some way. It can even induce artificial stuttering in a normal person."

During the next year, aided by the university and a $3,600 grant from the National Institute of Mental Health, Agnello and his associates, assistant director Dr. Henry Goehl and research assistant Miss Hazel Coblenz, will run delayed "sidetone" and other tests on half a dozen stuttering subjects.

★ ★ ★

"We can't discard supplementary therapy such as psychotherapy," he says.

MACHINE CUREO

"We're not so naive as to think we just stick a person in a machine and cure him. I'm saying it is highly possible to build a system to break that loop to serve as a reconditioner and aid in therapy."

Stuttering generally begins early in life, frequently with a child's first attempts at speech, but it does not appear to be hereditary.

★ ★ ★

Agnello himself is married and has three children, 3, 4, and 5 years old.

"And, thank God," he says, "they all talk normally."

According to the National Safety Council, the most frequent causes of auto accidents in the U.S. during the past year were speeding, failing to yield the right of way, changing lanes carelessly and driving while intoxicated.

Junior Editors Quiz on BIRDS

QUESTION: How fast do a hummingbird's wings beat?

ANSWER: The hummingbird is a truly tiny creature, no bigger when born than a bumble bee. Yet in spite of this, it is an outstanding flyer.

As we look at one darting from blossom to blossom, his wings make only a blur. This is because the hummer's wings can move as fast as 60 to 70 times a second.

It is this speed which gives a humming sound and provides the bird's name. Modern speed photography has enabled us to see what the hummer's wings in flight really look like (lower picture).

These birds can hover motionless in the air, and actually fly backward.

In winter, hummingbirds perform perhaps a most remarkable flying feat.

Working south to Florida, these mighty mites strike out boldly across the Gulf of Mexico. Without rest or food they fly 500 miles to the Yucatan peninsula.

Then they keep on migrating toward their winter homes in various parts of Mexico, Central and South America.

FOR YOU TO DO: The migrations of birds are high among nature's wonders and much remains to be learned about them. Make a list of the birds you see this spring in your area.

Gets Along With Everybody

Smiling Gringo Trader Is 'Mr. Big' in Western Amazon Jungle

LETICIA, Colombia (AP) — To the 5,000 natives of this steaming river port, he is Mike, the smiling Gringo with the ready helping hand, the slap on the back and the timely word of advice.

He will lope out into the hot sun to aid an illiterate Indian.

He is the man to know — and who knows almost everyone along this stretch of the Amazon some 2,000 miles west of its Atlantic mouth and just south of the equator.

* * *

Mike is Michael Tsalickis, 37, the son of Greek immigrants who live at Tarpon Springs, Fla. He came to Colombia in 1950.

His world is the western Amazon and the jungle which surrounds this primitive trading post on the Colombia, Brazilian and Peruvian frontier.

MICHAEL TSALICKIS

DEADLY PIRANHA

It is the world of the man-eating catfish which will pull a native under in a flash if he is so foolish as to try a swim, of the deadly piranha of the tributaries, and of dense vegetation which can obliterate a crashed plane in three days.

Mike calls it just about the finest place on earth.

* * *

Admittedly an operator of first rank, Tsalickis dabbles in everything while concentrating on his main business of trapping jungle animals for U.S. markets.

"I get along fine with everybody," he says. "I keep in good with the priest, the Colombian government and all of the foreign consuls. I defend anyone who is in the right."

BIGGEST EMPLOYER

He has:

—Built up his animal business to the point where he is Leticia's biggest private employer with 26 full-timers, many part-timers.

—Provided thousands of Indians with an animal and tropical fish market.

—Brought about the first regularly scheduled airline service to Leticia.

—Pestered officials until Leticia got regular postal service and a bank.

—Prompted the U.S. Navy to equip a modern 50-bed hospital here.

—Launched a program for distribution of CARE packages.

—Established a tourist agency, a small brick factory and trucking business, and, in the capital of Bogota, a retail outlet for tropical fish.

* * *

On the side, he escorts occasional tourists on alligator hunts. He also serves as father-confessor for American drifters and down-and-outers who wash up on the sandbars.

A man of medium height and rangy build, Mike speaks with the soft accent of Floridians, rapid gestures emphasizing his pent-up energy.

BEGINS EARLY

The day begins at 5 a.m. when Mike strides down to the riverfront, Leticia's market place.

Traders arrive well before sunup, their canoes loaded with bananas, pineapples, red peppers, animal skins, firewood and fish — if the river is at low-water stage.

* * *

Mike mingles with all, buying perhaps a bunch of bananas here and a monkey there.

More important is the exchange of information — river conditions, animal sightings, what's in good supply, what isn't.

Mike ships a charter plane of animals and fish to stateside zoos and research organizations about every three weeks.

A typical shipment may include woolly and spider monkeys, a fresh-water pink porpoise, ocelots, jaguars, anteaters, armadillos, turtles, boa constrictors, and tropical birds and fish. Piranhas are prohibited by U.S. law.

* * *

The market tells Mike where to go and what to look for.

An Indian may remain in the bush five or six weeks hunting items. Mike can't say just how many Indians trap for him but the figure is likely in the thousands over the years.

Once the traders have disposed of their offerings, Mike heads back up the dusty or muddy street — depending on the season.

Calls halt him every dozen yards or so.

AP SPECIAL REPORT

A native woman asks for a CARE package. Mike may or may not promise her one. She is a widow with children, but others are more needy.

* * *

A man has a moving problem and Mike tells him to use the battered Tsalickis flat-bed 1955 truck free of charge.

A missionary reports he produced some tomatoes with some seeds that Mike gave him but the rats got them.

NEAT STUCCO

It may take Mike an hour to get to his home, a neat stucco building shaded by bamboo and banana trees where he resides with his Brazilian wife and children. Out back his animal crews already are at work in the pens.

Mike may decide to take off for a week or so in search of game. He travels by outboard motorboat and lives off the land while in the bush.

* * *

"Everything you need is in the jungle," he says: "For animal cages, we use tree branches and strip off bark to secure them. If there is a rainstorm, we can hack out a shelter in 30 minutes."

Most trails extend only three or four miles into the jungle. Few men venture much farther. The Amazon is the main highway, with all but the fringes of the dense jungle unpenetrated.

GOOD LIVING

Mike does not profess to be a millionaire but makes a good living. Although expenses are high, a pink porpoise will bring $1,750 in the United States and squirrel monkeys from $15 to $40 each. One of his monkeys, he says, rode an early U.S. experimental rocket and survived.

"I like the people — the Colombians, Brazilians, Peruvians and Indians," he says.

* * *

"The Indian is the one that needs help. They are good people but need somebody to push them. Otherwise he will lie around in his hammock all day.

"He needs somebody to teach him something about the soil and how to work it, how to raise crops instead of depending altogether on the river."

* * *

Mike has ideas along those lines.

He has asked for Peace Corps farm specialists and hopes soon to see truck gardens blossoming along the mighty river he calls home.

Dirksen Is Treated for Upset Stomach

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen was treated Thursday night at the Capitol by a cardiologist for what the physician, Dr. Joseph A. Bailey, described as "a little tummy upset."

The Illinois senator, 69, was then taken by Bailey to the physician's home and later reported resting comfortably there.

"Everything is all right," the heart doctor said after putting Dirksen to bed. "He'll probably be back in his office tomorrow."

To Area GM Employes

Suggestions Worth $400,000

General Motors employes in the Pontiac area were full of ideas on how to make their jobs safer and easier last year. And the suggestions put nearly $400,000 in their pockets.

The money was only part of the record $7,868,184 received by GM employes in the U.S. and Canada through the GM Suggestion Plan during 1964.

In announcing the all-time high in awards, Louis G. Seaton, vice president in charge of the personnel staff, said today that 172,389 suggestions were adopted by the corporation, 5,790 in Pontiac alone.

Of the 60 maximum awards of $6,000 received by employes across the country, five of them went to local division workers. In addition, awards of $1,000 or more went to 56 other area employes.

★ ★ ★

EXCEED TOTAL

The 1964 national awards exceeded the total paid out during the first 10 years of the plan and for the second successive year topped $7 million.

During 1963, the corporation adopted 168,615 suggestions for awards totaling $7,052,924.

The plan was established in 1942, and a total of more than $63 million has been awarded for approximately 1.4 million suggestions adopted by GM.

★ ★ ★

"Suggestions submitted deal with many phases of our business and result in safety improvement, better quality, improved manufacturing and handling methods and in material savings," Seaton said.

Pontiac Tax Base to Fall $7 Million in Next 4 Years

Pontiac's tax base—the foundation for monies to operate local government—will have to weather a nearly $7-million storm over the next four years.

This is the estimated loss in tax base due to a 1964 statute that exempts tools, dies, jigs and fixtures from taxation.

In terms of revenue, the loss in Pontiac totals $284,268 to the city, county and school district, according to city officials.

The state has softened the blow to local units of government beginning in 1966 at 100 per cent and dropping 25 per cent each year.

Nevertheless, Pontiac will lose $6,950,028 in equalized valuation because of the exemption on tools, dies, jigs and fixtures.

★ ★ ★

City Manager Joseph A. Warren said that actual loss to the city's general operating fund, if the loss in the tax base can not be made up by new construction, would total $69,500.

★ ★ ★

He said the only other loss would be $12,500 to the capital improvement fund, which is supported by a separate 1.5-mill levy.

PATRICIA NEAL

Star Critical After Strokes, Brain Surgery

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Arriving from England last week, Oscar winner Patricia Neal looked radiantly well and spoke enthusiastically of the movie she was here to start.

Today she lies in the intensive care unit at the UCLA Medical Center, in critical condition after two strokes and emergency brain surgery.

Nearby were her husband, British mystery short - story writer Roald Dahl, and their three children, Tessa, 8; Theo, 5, and Ophelia, 8 months.

The first stroke — another in a series of misfortunes that have dogged the 39-year-old star's career — occurred Wednesday night.

Rushed to the University of California at Los Angeles Medical Center, she suffered a second stroke and was taken to surgery.

Late yesterday her surgeon, Dr. Charles Carton, issued a terse statement: "Mrs. Patricia Dahl was brought in last night with severe intracranial bleeding. Brain surgery was performed. Her condition remains critical."

8th Coup in 16 Months

1 Shot, 8 Hurt in Rights Clash

MARION, Ala. (AP)—One Negro was shot twice and at least eight other persons, including three newsmen, were beaten during a clash between Negro demonstrators and police on the first night march of the present voter registration campaign.

The march started quietly last night at the Zion Methodist Church on one corner of the attractive square in the center of this west central rural Alabama county seat of about 4,000.

About 500 demonstrators left the church and headed for the jail to protest the arrest of one of their leaders, James Orange. Police told them to disperse.

"We stood there a little while and turned around," said Albert Turner, president of the Perry County Civil League.

"One of the ministers in the group started praying. By that time state troopers had arrived."

He said the troopers "started pushing the crowd back toward the church, but our people couldn't get in the door because it was jammed.

WERE BEATEN

"When they tried to go around the church to a side door the troopers beat them."

Police and Highway Patrol officials declined to comment on what followed. But there was clubbing and shoving and some rock and bottle throwing.

An FBI spokesman said some arrests were made.

In addition to the nine reported injured, Negro leaders said 15 or 20 members of their race were hurt but not enough to be hospitalized.

SHOT TWICE

The man who was shot was identified as Jimmie Lee Jackson, 26, of Marion. He was shot twice in the stomach and was in critical condition in a Selma hospital.

Five other Negroes were hospitalized in Selma.

Richard G. Valeriani, an NBC correspondent, was clubbed on the head and taken to the Perry County Hospital at Marion. Six stitches were needed for a wound at the base of his skull.

20 Still Buried in Avalanche

More Slides Feared; Weather Slows Work

STEWART, B. C. (AP) — The threat of more slides grew today as 20 men—some hurt seriously—huddled in the ruins of a remote glacial valley mining camp waiting for help.

And the fate of at least 20 companions remained hidden under the rubble of a giant avalanche that thundered down on the Granduc Mining Co., almost wiping out the northern British Columbia copper mining camp on the edge of a glacier yesterday.

Sketchey reports from the scene indicate the miners were continuing to hunt for the missing men, but were hampered by darkness.

Vicious weather—high winds, snow and rain—prevented rescuers from getting to the mountain-ringed campsite. Recent warm weather and continued heavy rainfall brought fears of more slides before a way could be found to evacuate the camp.

★ ★ ★

Radio reports from the camp said 17 injured men were lying on a floor of an office building, some needing additional medical aid.

Some of the injured were pulled from a mass of mud, snow and ice that struck in midmorning. Others were among 40 men rescued late yesterday from a tunnel being dug into copper reserves under

PHAM NGOC THAO

Leader of Latest Take-Over Said to Know 'Too Much'

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Col. Pham Ngoc Thao, the leader of the latest coup in Saigon, is the man who knows too much.

The soft-spoken, 42-year-old officer once headed the intelligence service of Communist leader Ho Chi Minh, the president of North Viet Nam.

He perhaps knows as much as any other man about the private lives of important people in South Viet Nam.

Thao, who had been a close associate of strongman Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh since the latter seized power 13 months ago, was considered a prime target last September of an abortive military coup against Khanh.

He said he knew the revolt was being planned two weeks ahead of time.

★ ★ ★

"They know that I knew too much about all of them," he said in an interview then.

AGAINST FRENCH

Thao, a southerner, fought with the Communist Viet Minh for nine years as a regiment commander against the French colonial forces.

He became Ho Chi Minh's intelligence chief in 1948 for a year but quit the Communists after the French collapsed at Dien Bien Phu in 1954.

"I was never a Communist, but I believed deeply in the liberation of the country," he said.

★ ★ ★

He returned to Saigon, worked for commercial firms and went into government service when President Ngo Dinh Diem offered him a commission.

ROSE QUICKLY

With his knowledge of the Viet Cong movement, he rose quickly and was made province chief of Kien Hoa, a Communist stronghold.

In the field, he won a reputation as an effective fighter against the Red guerrillas though some of his tactics were considered highly unorthodox.

He used to release Viet Cong captives after indoctrinating them against their own propaganda.

★ ★ ★

"Out of 100 prisoners I release," he explained, "most are still Viet Cong who will come back to fight us again. But some will have lost their taste for fighting. And maybe one or two will have come over to our side, willing to serve as agents for us."

Military Units Under Control of a Catholic

Reports Conflict on Fate of Past Leaders; Situation Said Tense

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Military forces headed by a Roman Catholic officer revolted today against Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh's leadership and, without firing a shot, seized strategic centers of Saigon.

But an attempt seemed under way to nullify the coup, the eighth major upheaval in South Viet Nam's politico-military affairs in the last 16 months. The situation was tense.

U. S. diplomats launched consultations, evidently aimed at avoiding bloodshed.

Warplanes circled above the rebel-held Saigon radio station and tanks were drawn up outside it. Loudspeakers warned civilians to clear the area.

★ ★ ★

The rebel chieftain, Col. Pham Ngoc Thao, 42, said the commander of South Viet Nam's U.S.-backed armed forces was under house arrest, along with Brig. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, head of the air force. Ky put down a similar uprising against Khanh last Sept. 13.

CONFLICTING REPORTS

Conflicting reports, however, said Ky was safe and still in control of many of his fighters at the Bien Hoa base outside Saigon and that Khanh was at one of two provincial cities, Bang Tau or Nha Trang.

Thao, 42, and most of the other coup leaders are Catholics, a minority in this largely Buddhist nation.

A violent Buddhist reaction was predicted to their bid for power, which came 72 hours after the installation of a new government in which that sect was well represented.

★ ★ ★

Thao is a former aide of Khanh who, in the late 1940s, served as both a line officer and information chief for Ho Chi Minh in the Communist fight that eventually drove the French from Indochina.

DICTATORSHIP

Thao accused Khanh of running a dictatorship.

He said the strong man who has dominated South Vietnamese affairs for 13 months was interested only in money and power.

"No government can work under Khanh pressure," he said.

★ ★ ★

Thao said the Vietnamese ambassador to Washington, Lt. Gen. Tran Thien Khiem, would return to Saigon to join him in leading a new government.

In Washington, Khiem would

Must Decide on Ranger Camera Angle

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Scientists guiding the Ranger 8 spacecraft to the moon face a critical decision—whether a final maneuver will be necessary to insure good pictures in the final plunge to the lunar surface tomorrow morning.

★ ★ ★

Radio contact with the 800-pound spacecraft has been far from perfect since its launching from Cape Kennedy Wednesday.

There was a time early yesterday when they did not know whether it had obeyed commands pointing it at the moon's Sea of Tranquility prior to the firing of a steering rocket.

Apparently it did obey properly. After long hours of tracking scientists determined yesterday afternoon that Ranger 8 probably would impact within 18 miles of its target.

★ ★ ★

But there was a chance its six television cameras might not be pointed at the best angle to take some 4,000 pictures as it crashes into the lunar surface at 5,800 miles an hour.

ENOUGH FUEL

Ranger 8 still has enough fuel to twist itself around in space if necessary so this is the dilemma faced by scientists today:

- They first must determine whether the cameras are pointed at the best angle.
- If not, they must decide whether to risk — in view of earlier communications difficulties — commanding the spacecraft to twist around to a different position.

On the basis of what they knew at the time, however, scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said yesterday that Ranger 8 should land at 4:57 a.m. tomorrow and take better pictures than Ranger 7 last July 31.

A decision on whether to attempt the critical but possibly hazardous maneuver just before impact is expected to be made sometime this afternoon.

AP Photofax

WAITING FOR PICTURES — Technicians monitoring the receiving equipment at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., await the first television signals from Ranger 8 as it approaches the moon. The shot is expected to hit the moon tomorrow morning.

Snow Blows, Mercury Dips

Nature proved it's still winter with 1 to 2 inches of new snow for the area yesterday.

In addition, the mercury dropped steadily during the night and early this morning hitting a low of 10 above. By 1 p.m. today, however, the mercury had risen to 16 in downtown Pontiac.

★ ★ ★

More agreeable weather is forecast for the weekend. Mostly fair skies with a low of 18 to 25 are expected tonight, to be followed by partly cloudy skies and warmer temperatures tomorrow. The high predicted is 33 to 38.

U. of M. Plans Flint Expansion

Romney Request for Restraint Ignored

FLINT (AP)—The University of Michigan plans to continue expanding its Flint branch despite a request by Gov. George Romney that the state's schools go slow on major new projects. Thursday that U of M delay expanding the Flint branch, Harlan Hatcher, university president, told Flint officials that "it seems to us to be the height of inconsistency to deny the wonderful work that has gone forward here or to put a stop to it on any grounds that have so far been advanced."

★ ★ ★

The Flint facility currently handles juniors and seniors but plans to begin full four-year courses in the fall of this year.

Hatcher said 250 prospective freshmen already have applied for entry this fall and that 126 have been accepted. He said, "We would be acting in the most irresponsible way ever if we did not accept this class.

INDEFINITE FUTURE

"It is incomprehensible that until some indefinite future when some not yet defined board makes some not yet defined new survey to indicate whether or not this is a proper way of educating these young people who will be too old to be educated by the time all these things are accomplished. We will go ahead in the autumn."

Hatcher, who was accompanied here by members of the university's board of regents and of the school's staff, said that while Romney had recommended money for expanded freshman classes at all the other state-supported colleges and universities, he had asked Michigan to delay expansion. Romney had asked the delay until the new State Board of Education completes a master plan for higher education in the state. He said the project could take from one to two years.

Hatcher said expansion of the Flint program required no enabling legislation because the branch college already existed. He said "the only thing required is that the legislature correct the injustice that has been recommended and make the appropriations."

He said the Mott Foundation, headed by philanthropist C. S. Mott, has pledged $2.4 million for additions to the Flint college buildings.

For Community College

Tutorial Plan Proposed

When the doors of Oakland Community College swing open this fall, students will be introduced to a new method of learning.

This, at least, is the plan of College President Dr. John E. Tirrell and associates.

A potentially controversial program of supervised self-instruction—a tutorial approach to learning—was presented last night to the six-member college board of trustees.

Although the board reacted favorably to the proposal, no action will be taken until its next meeting.

★ ★ ★

The tutorial program, as explained by college officials, seeks to bring the teacher and student together on a one-to-one basis as nearly as possible.

'CARREL' ARRANGEMENT

What this will mean to students is that they will be confronted with a "carrel" arrangement in the classroom instead of the traditional lecture situation.

Previously defined as a monk's study area, a "carrel" is a three-sided booth equipped for individual study, including such modern devices as a small movie projector and tape recorder.

As the student studies, according to the local educators, he is free to consult the teacher or tutor, gaining the advantage of the one-to-one relationship, which is the best approach for learning.

★ ★ ★

The tutorial approach is new but is not necessarily revolutionary, according to college officials.

BEST TECHNIQUE

The one-to-one approach has been demonstrated as the best technique, providing better learning.

The traditional lecture method will not be entirely abandoned, said Dr. Tirrell. It will be incorporated and used in the form of weekly "assembly" sessions for each course.

"The tutorial approach enables the community college," he added, "to make use of its uniqueness.

Dr. Tirrell explained the uniqueness as being the narrow range of programs with thousands of students taking the same course.

SAME CAST

The college president said the new method would not be cheap, but would not be any more expensive than the old 30-to-a-class arrangement.

Two basic features of the tutorial approach are that it provides feedback between the student and teacher, and gives flexibility for effective teaching.

The big advantages to the faculty are that the tutorial approach enables the continual evaluation of teachers and they in turn can learn about their teaching.

★ ★ ★

However, the tutorial method provokes strong reactions from teachers, say college officials.

FACULTY REACTION

So far potential faculty have either rejected it with "it will never work" or received it with eagerness.

"Educationally it is the most sound thing I've encountered. It can't fail," commented Dr. R. E. Wilson, college dean of instruction.

Local college officials, however, appear convinced the tutorial concept will work and will pass the acid test—the best educational program.

neither confirm nor deny that statement. He said, however, the uprising came as no surprise to him.

Khiem is a Buddhist former defense minister and ex-chief of staff of the Vietnamese armed forces sent to the diplomatic assignment in a Saigon shakeup last fall.

Saigon was quiet and by late afternoon no shooting had been reported.

★ ★ ★

Vietnamese Air Force planes circled the city continuously.

AIMED AT KHANH

Thao in a broadcast accused Khanh of swindling the military and the people.

He said his action was directed against one man — Khanh — and no one else.

There was great possibility of an attack by military units loyal to Khanh.

★ ★ ★

Khanh had been expecting trouble.

STILL IN CHARGE

Nearly the entire armed forces strategic reserve, normally held in Saigon to reinforce any field units in trouble, had been deployed to the provinces where forces loyal to Khanh presumably were still in charge.

These include two battalions of marines in central Bin Dinh Province and the large force Khanh led to Nha Trang for an attack on a suspected Viet Cong supply port.

Thao claimed he had the support of the 25th, 9th, 7th and 5th Army divisions, which are stationed in areas adjoining Saigon, plus part of the marine corps and part of the air force.

★ ★ ★

The first signs of the coup came at the waterfront near Khanh's armed forces headquarters.

SMASHED THROUGH

Several M24 tanks smashed through the barbed wire barricades outside the navy headquarters and Khanh's house, which are on the same street.

Riding in one of the tanks was Col. Thao.

This happened about 1 p.m. Saigon time (midnight yesterday Eastern Standard Time).

★ ★ ★

At the same time, tanks smashed their way into the Saigon airport, blocking Vietnamese air force planes whose pilots were not on the side of the rebels.

CIRCLED SAIGON

About 10 Skyraider fighter-bombers, whose pilots apparently had been won over, took off and circled Saigon for the remainder of the afternoon.

Within 30 minutes all key military installations in Saigon had been taken by the rebels.

It was believed that troops from the 5th Division, based 15 miles north of Saigon, had occupied the installations with assistance of at least two marine battalions.

At 2 p.m., when Thao had received confirmation by radio that all objectives had been taken, a convoy of tanks and military trucks drove hurriedly through the streets to Saigon Radio Station.

MILITARY OPERATION

There, Thao said in a broadcast, "This is not a coup d'etat but it is a military operation."

State Chairman Defends New Assessment Schedule

The Michigan State Tax Commission's revised assessment schedules on personal property were defended vigorously yesterday by Robert L. Purnell, commission chairman.

★ ★ ★

Purnell was guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Supervisors Inter - County Committee, held at the Botsford Inn, Farmington.

The new schedules have met "a good deal of resistance" from assessors and equalization directors in the metropolitan counties, Purnell said.

'But they are the result of extensive research, and we feel that they are as near perfect as they can be. We'll change them only if they can be proven wrong."

Designed to give Michigan industry a "tax break," the new schedules were issued last October.

They afford faster depreciation rates, resulting in lower assessments, on industrial machinery, tools and utilities.

OFFICIALS ALARMED

Officials of industrial counties are alarmed at the loss of tax revenue represented by the new schedules.

At the invitation of the commission, some counties, including Oakland, have prepared compromise schedules for the consideration of the commission.

The commission has not revised its original directive, however.

★ ★ ★

Purnell said research on the personal property tax structure in some cases went back to 1911.

He admitted that the new depreciation tables represent a "very drastic" revision in previous assessment schedules, but offered no solution as to how municipalities can regain the revenue loss.

A 1964 statute exempts tools, dies, jigs and fixtures from taxation but provides for decreasing reimbursement by the state over a five-year period.

County budget-planners object to the commission's most recent action because it will probably become effective this year, leaving no time to plan for revenue losses.

Oakland County officials are not yet able to determine how much revenue the county stands to lose under the new assessment schedules.

SOME LOSS OFFSET

Some of the loss will be offset by industrial expansion, but preliminary estimates are that the new depreciation schedules will cut the county's equalized valuation by several million dollars.

That Boom Was Drill, Not Doom

Thousands of Oakland County residents were awakened about 4:30 a.m. today by sonic booms as Air Force fighters and bombers participated in a three-hour air defense exercise.

The explosionlike sounds brought a flood of telephone calls to area police and fire departments.

State Police at the Pontiac post received about 40 calls and the Farmington Township Police Department heard from some 30 startled residents.

An unidentified woman called Waterford Township police after hearing the booms and reported that she saw smoke and flame coming from the Pontiac Mall. A check of the area proved the report unfounded.

Officials at Selfridge Air Force Base said planes from bases at Lockborne, Ohio, Wurtsmith and Selfridge participated.

Confab Today for State GOP

Expect Elly Peterson to Be New Chairman

LANSING (AP) — Michigan Republicans meet today and Saturday to formally elect Mrs. Elly Peterson their chairman and to adopt a 1965 platform.

Mrs. Peterson has been tapped by Gov. George Romney to succeed Arthur Elliott, who announced his retirement last month after criticism mounted about the party's public relations.

Mrs. Peterson will become the first woman state chariman in GOP history.

Republicans are bringing in newly elected Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., for their featured speech at the main convention session Saturday. Murphy is a former song-and-dance man who upset onetime White House press secretary Pierre Salinger in the November election.

CLOSING SPEECH

A 47-member preconvention resolutions committee has been working on resolutions and platform.

The most interesting could concern a call for fiscal reform.

Democrats asked for a new tax structure at their convention last weekend and Romney praised the declaration.

The governor would not say Thursday if he planned to recommend a similar resolution at the GOP convention.

SELECT OFFICERS

The convention also will select a new state central committee and vice chairmen.

Mrs. Romney was to highlight a women's policy-organization meeting this afternoon.

20 Are Still Buried in B. C. Avalanche

Le Duc Glacier, officials reported.

Canadian Army Lt. Col. Walter H. V. Mathews confirmed today in nearby Prince Rupert, B. C., that 40 were rescued from the tunnel. He said at least 20 men were missing, maybe still trapped in the tunnel or somewhere under tons of mushy debris.

The men were rescued by fellow miners using shovels because their power tools were buried, said Mathews who heads an evacuation center at this Canadian port 150 miles south of the camp.

Suicide Ruled Out in Zenith Heir's Death

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — A special team of investigators today began a massive probe into the death of Zenith radio heir Eugene McDonald because of a coroner's jury ruling he did not commit suicide.

"It is the unanimous opinion of this jury that suicide be ruled out as the cause of death," said the eight - member panel yesterday. "Death occurred in the presence of one or more persons unknown . . ."

Pima County Atty. Norman Green immediately ordered a special team of investigators to look into several puzzling aspects of the case, including:

• The strange position by which McDonald grasped the barrel of the 22-caliber revolver with which he was shot in the back of the head. His body was found Feb. 3 in his rented home.

★ ★ ★

• Disappearance of the instrument used to slash both McDonald's wrists.

AGREES WITH FINDINGS

"I agree with the findings of the jury," said Green — who ordered the coroner's inquest in the first place in a rare move for an Arizona County attorney — "I was certain right along that there were other persons in the home at the time."

Green, however, refused to say whether he thought McDonald was killed deliberately.

'He recalled his theory that a struggle could have resulted in the shooting. He speculated the pistol could have discharged when McDonald grabbed for it "by instinct."

Green said he would like to know the exact movements of all the 23-year-old multimillionaire's friends during the time death could have occurred — the 13½ hours between 10:30 p.m. Feb. 2 and noon Feb. 3.

TO IMPOUND ARTICLES

In other developments, Justice of the Peace Toby LaVetter signed an order to allow authorities to impound all articles in the $50,000 home.

The inquest resumed yesterday after a week's recess with testimony by pathologist Joseph Beaman of the Veterans Administration Hospital here.

"McDonald found the hardest imaginable way to commit suicide, if he did," Beaman said. "It is possible, but highly improbable."

Ice Show Will Feature Fairy Tale Favorites

BIRMINGHAM — Two favorite fairy tales will be produced with a new twist here next week.

Sleeping Beauty, Snow White and the fascinating characters who have cavorted with them for generations will come to life Feb. 27 on the ice rink at Eton Park.

The rink, a half block east of the Lincoln-Eton intersection, will be the scene of the ninth annual outdoor ice show "Skaters Holiday of '65."

Skaters will be costumed as bunnies, skunks, birds, trees and fairies. Scenic backgrounds will include a fantasy castle, Snow White's house, a wishing well and spinning wheel.

★ ★ ★

The program is the climax of the season's ice-skating program at the park. The cast includes members of the Recreation Department's Figure Skating Club and 150 children who have participated in skating classes at the rink.

GRAND FINALE

A huge skaters' carousel is planned for the grand finale.

Tickets can be purchased at the rink only on the night of the show.

In case of rain, the show will be presented at 7:30 p. m. Feb. 28. The program is cosponsored by the Birmingham Recreation Department and Department of Forestry and Parks.

BEVERLY HILLS — The University of Michigan Symphonic Band will perform in a Thursday night concert at Wylie E. Groves High School.

Nature Center Plans Viewed

A progress report on a proposed nature center in Waterford Township and an explanation of how it would serve the school system was presented last night to the Waterford Township Board of Education.

Donald Maxwell, science consultant for the school district, and Charles Welsh, principal at Riverside Elementary School, gave the report.

They said a group of some 75 persons from the metropolitan area has been planning the center for two years on an 82-acre site south of Hatchery.

The site formerly was used as a hatchery by the state. The group hopes to purchase the land soon and open the center this summer.

★ ★ ★

Welsh and Maxwell explained that development of the center, to be known as the Drayton Plains Nature Center, will be accomplished through grants and membership fees.

CENTRAL AREA

Due to its location in the central area of Waterford Township, the center will be easily accessible to students in the local school system.

Among the educational facilities planned for the center are nature trails, a museum and bird sanctuaries.

Crippled Jet Lands 42 Safely at Tampa

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—A Canadian passenger jet with 42 persons aboard landed safely yesterday when the pilot discovered he had landing gear trouble shortly after takeoff.

The Air Canada flight, bound for Montreal, circled Tampa Airport for 90 minutes before touching down in what officials called a "normal" landing.

State Unit OKs Hatchery Sale

A proposed bill permitting the sale of the state-owned Drayton Plains Fish Hatchery to a private group for nature studies was reported favorably out of the Senate Conservation Committee yesterday.

Committee chairman Carl W. O'Brien, D-Pontiac, who introduced the bill said it was "highly likely" that it would be approved once it gets before the Senate. It is expected that the bill will be up for a vote in 10 days.

Seeking to purchase the 82-acre site in Waterford Township is a nonprofit organization, Drayton Plains Nature Center, Inc. It has offered $42,000 for the property.

The state has not used the property for a hatchery for some three years.

"I am gratified to see that this fine group of citizens is interested in purchasing and maintaining it for the benefit of our children," said O'Brien.

Nation Commemorates Marine's Key Victory

It was 20 years ago that U. S. Marines landed on the Japanese stronghold of Iwo Jima after three days of naval and air blasting.

But 750 miles south of Tokyo, possession of the eight-square-mile volcanic mass would greatly increase American bomber effectiveness against the Japanese homeland.

★ ★ ★

Japanese resistance was fierce, and after the initial foothold, gains were measured in feet — especially as units of the two Marine divisions pushed their way up the slope of Mt. Suribachi, a 546-foot-high extinct volcano.

Troops finally fought their way to the top, and on Feb. 23 planted the flag on the crater's rim, the celebrated photograph of which was to become the image for the Iwo Jima memorial in Arlington National Cemetery.

Not until March 16 was the last Japanese resistance ended. About 22,000 of the defenders had been either killed or captured. A total of 111,038 Americans had participated in the action, of which 75,144 were assault troops. U. S. forces suffered 21,000 casualties including 4,590 killed.

★ ★ ★

The costly invasion of Okinawa was still to come, but the ring around Japan was beginning to close and the sacrifice of American lives on terrible Iwo Jima had not been in vain.

Railroad Management Not Government Field

The Railway Labor Executives' Association has gone on record in support of government ownership and control of the railroad industry, thus reversing a pro private-ownership policy it had followed since 1920.

In justification of this strange switch, an Association spokesman criticized railroad management on several counts. The principal one seems to be what he described as "chaos" in the industry's labor relations. It is evident that the rail unions are loath to give up the long-established institution of featherbedding, and feel that it could be perpetuated under government ownership and political management with the taxpayers picking up the tab.

It would be some tab—as experience abroad, where government ownership prevails, tells us. According to an authority who spent a year studying railroads around the world, the government-owned systems of Europe run at an average overall deficit of about 20 per cent. This means that for every dollar they take in they pay out $1.20, with the taxpayers making up the difference. On top of that, the railroads pay no taxes.

★ ★ ★

By way of contrast, our own privately-owned roads must pay their own way along with some $500 million a year in taxes.

If U. S. carriers were socialized and operated under the same cost conditions as their European counterparts, they would run at a loss of $2 billion a year and would pay no taxes at all. For each dollar of revenue, the outgo would be $1.25. The deficit would have to be absorbed by the government in the form of taxation.

★ ★ ★

In World War I, let it be remembered, the government took over the railroads—and losses, despite rate and fare increases, ran to nearly $2 million a day. In World War II, the privately operated railroads not only did a far more effective job but paid over $3 million a day in Federal income taxes.

A recent nationwide poll found that the public rejects nationalization of railroads by a whopping 9-to-1 margin. It seems inconceivable that Congress would give serious thought to the unions' misguided proposals.

Old, New Chiefs Not Always Pals

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON—Presidents and former presidents get along — sometimes. They visit each other — sometimes. But there is no tradition of friendliness between them and sometimes there is little or no friendliness.

MARLOW

When President Johnson Wednesday had former President Dwight D. Eisenhower over to the White House to get his views on Viet Nam, it may have seemed normal because President John F. Kennedy had done the same sort of thing.

But anyone who thinks it's normal has a short memory.

There was a bitter gulf between Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Herbert Hoover. Through the 12 years of Roosevelt's presidency, Hoover never visited the White House and was never asked to.

Within a couple of months after succeeding Roosevelt in 1945, President Harry S. Truman asked Hoover to visit him to discuss the world's food problem and the two men became good friends.

★ ★ ★

But then the gap appeared again when Eisenhower became president, succeeding Truman in 1953. The long coolness between these two men ended only when Eisenhower visited Truman at his library in 1961.

FINALLY GOT TOGETHER

It was the first time either had called on the other since Eisenhower's inauguration eight years before.

The presidential race between Roosevelt and Hoover in 1932, wasn't pleasant and until World War II Hoover had been a constant critic of his successor.

After Truman took over and discussed world food needs with Hoover, he sent the former president around the world to make a food survey for him.

★ ★ ★

Eisenhower made use of Hoover's talents, for instance, in setting up another commission on government reorganization, with Hoover leading it.

STUCK SOME HARPOONS

Truman had opposed Kennedy's nomination in 1960 and stuck some harpoons in him. But, once Kennedy got it, Truman backed him. The two men remained friends thereafter.

And Kennedy consulted with Eisenhower, Truman and Hoover during the Cuban missile crisis in 1962. Truman, reportedly, was brought into a National Security Council meeting when the Kennedy administration decided to resume nuclear testing in 1961, after the Russians did.

Kennedy consulted with Eisenhower in places as far apart as Gettysburg and California.

★ ★ ★

For a president to consult with a former president from the opposite political party may be wise and helpful to the country. It also has political value in discouraging, perhaps, some criticism from the opposition.

Old Glory Led Uphill Victory On Iwo Jima

David Lawrence Says:

Congress Coalition Still a Power

WASHINGTON—Although the current Congress has been in session only a few weeks, it is already apparent that the overwhelming majority in both houses won by the Democratic party last autumn can be overturned at will by a coalition of Republicans and Democrats who may wish to oppose certain measures of the Johnson administration.

LAWRENCE

While coalitions have been in existence in both houses for the last 30 years, the new combination of Republican and Democratic votes is not likely to emerge on the same issues as have arisen in the past.

Thus, on civil rights questions, the coalition is not able to command a majority because the Northern Republicans vote with the Northern Democrats, and this constitutes a big majority.

It is, however, on economic issues which appeal to nonradical members in both parties that significant votes will be taken.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps the most striking example, however, of the influence of a coalition on domestic affairs was given in a little-noticed vote recorded early in the session when there was a technical motion before the House of Representatives dealing with rules changes.

The administration motion to prohibit any amendment to the package on the rules question received 224 votes, while 201 were cast against it. These 201 votes constituted a coalition of 78 Democrats and 123 Republicans. The 224 votes on the administration's side consisted of 208 Democrats and 16 Republicans.

If only 12 of the 16 defecting Republicans had stayed with the Republican majority and voted with the 78 Democrats, the administration would have been handed a serious and lasting defeat, and whatever rules changes were voted in the end would have been materially reduced in scope.

★ ★ ★

It could be argued that the Republicans on the opening day were in disarray, as they had just gone through a contest over their leadership, but the episode indicated nevertheless that House Democrats in large numbers showed they could vote independently of the White House.

★ ★ ★

In fact, in the Senate this independence is even more apparent than in the House.

There are other issues, too, on which a coalition will make itself felt.

Such instances, however, will not be frequent and the coalition's power will not be exercised except on very important legislation which could have repercussions in the next campaign.

★ ★ ★

For in the congressional election of 1966, which is about 20 months away, all members of the House and one-third of the Senate who will be seeking re-election will not be able to ride along on the coattails of the President, as was the case in 1964.

★ ★ ★

There are, moreover, many Democrats who were elected in the landslide of last autumn with a narrow majority, and this could easily be wiped out in the next congressional election. More and more, therefore, the new members will be watching popular trends.

★ ★ ★

One thing is clear—the Democratic party cannot command a majority without the aid of certain liberal Republicans, and the customary coalition cannot prevail today unless nearly all of the Republicans vote with the conservative Democrats, most of whom are from Southern states.

Bob Considine Says:

Getting Pretty Crowded in Outer Space Nowadays

NEW YORK — Getting mighty crowded in earth orbit circles.

Pegasus, which promises to replace dear old Echo I as the star of the space act, so far as naked eye observation goes, is busily reporting on how many times it gets clobbered with meteorites.

CONSIDINE

With its wingspan, which stretches out farther than the wings of a 707 or DC8, its chances of being belted by something bigger than a space pebble, something put out there by us or the Russians, is increased.

Such a collision would not necessarily knock Pegasus out of orbit and send it down to fiery destruction in the earth's thick atmosphere.

A crackup might simply break the colliding objects into smaller pieces and they would stay in orbit, along with such flying junk as burned-out booster stages and satellites which have gone on the blink and stopped transmitting, but haven't stopped orbiting.

Explorer I, our grapefruit-sized first satellite which put us in the ball game on Jan. 31, 1958, four months after Sputnik I, is still out there in a perfect 1,000 mile orbit, still yacking away with its particular gossip — which has to do with the weight of sun beams.

Never tires of it.

A note from an ex-convict, commenting on a recent piece here comparing the expertise of the Brink's robbers with some of the hopped-up punks now loose in the game, states:

"We, who served time, talk about the junkies and fiends of today with all the fire and outrage of exemplary First Citizens, laughing a little at ourselves for this bit of human hypocrisy, even though it is true that we were gentlemen when compared to today's (censored.)

"Once in Magistrate's Court a witness for the prosecution, who drove a truck loaded with expensive goods that was taken from him by bandits, when asked by the court if he had been beaten by the bandits replied, 'Oh, no sir, the crooks treated me like a gentleman, lighted cigarets for me and asked if I was comfortable. It was the cops who roughed me up and kept telling me to tell the truth and name the crooks.'"

Two Readers Comment on Price of Milk

In answer to Mr. P. Brown about higher milk bills, when Romney was seeking election he stated he would help the dairies. If stores were forced to sell milk at the same price as dairies, they wouldn't notice the loss and the milkman wouldn't be a dying occupation.

CAPTAIN KIDD'S DAUGHTER

To answer the letter from P. Brown, Governor Romney was asked to stabilize the present price of milk. Independent and company-controlled retail milkmen are pressing the issue. Larger dairies undercut the retail salesmen by selling milk to cut-rate retail outlets. It should be obvious that dairy products and baked goods are used as leader items to get people into the markets more often.

Discuss Allowing 18-Year-Olds to Vote

In answer to Carol Glover, I am in favor of 18-year-olds voting. However, if the overly-protective parents would realize that in some states 18-year-olds are permitted to drink and vote, they could possibly believe their 18-year-olds are grown and able to conduct themselves in an orderly manner if given the chance.

Lack of Labor

The Jackson Citizen Patriot

Lemons and figs are going unharvested. The losses may run into the millions. Citrus fruits, vegetable crops, sugar cane are turning, as one writer put it, to "garbage" because they are not being harvested.

★ ★ ★

We are beginning to wonder if next summer may find highly perishable Michigan vegetable and fruit crops suffering the same fate for the same reason—lack of labor.

What is happening in Florida and California is a result of the refusal of Congress to extend a law which makes it possible for growers of specialty crops to bring in foreign labor for the harvest.

★ ★ ★

Labor leaders and socially-minded individuals have been criticizing the importation of labor. They argue that wages are too low, that domestic workers, given a decent wage, would take the jobs and really deserve them. The growers have argued that American workers, aside from those who make working the crops their own way of life, could not be recruited, especially for the "stoop" jobs.

The producers were right.

★ ★ ★

Despite frantic recruiting, the workers to do the jobs which require special skills, simply are not being found. The loss to the farmers is in the millions. The law of supply and demand will force the consumer to pay higher prices.

★ ★ ★

A great deal of idealism went into the drive to have Congress cut off the supply of imported labor. It is easy to make a case for saving jobs for American workers instead of permitting migrant laborers to come from the south. But the hard realities of the harvesting of food are here now. The farmer can't pick lemons or harvest onions with ideals or with ringing speeches made by labor leaders.

It is too late for Congress to reverse itself and permit the savings of the crops now being lost. But it should take immediate steps to see that future losses are avoided.

French Prestige

The National Observer

To this country's disadvantage, for sure, are the latest batch of proposals by President de Gaulle of France.

Most notably, he wants to revise the United Nations charter and in the process bring the Red Chinese into a proposed rejuvenation conference as a full partner. We gather he would ignore the Nationalist Chinese as not existing.

He also wants to negotiate the reunification of Germany "by Europe itself" (leaving out the United States and Great Britain but including Russia). This, even though the United States, Soviet Union, Britain, and France are committed by agreement to share in the reunification.

★ ★ ★

And he wants to return to the gold standard. That has some merits, but as de Gaulle puts it the chief motive seems to be reducing the power of the dollar and pound sterling as mediums of exchange.

Well, you can't criticize the Frenchman for being a Frenchman; everyone knows he is out to build up French prestige, and if the only way he can make France larger is to make the "Anglo-Saxons" smaller, it is his province to try.

★ ★ ★

But you don't have to buy it. As for ourselves, we will stick with our national self-interest and continue to regard the general as an interesting example of how not to advance a national self-interest.

Leave Food for Hostess After Party

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: We are a group of youg married couples. Every so often we get together at each other's houses and have a party.

As none of us are too well off financially, we make it a Dutch treat party. That is, each couple brings something in the line of food to the party.

One of the women always takes the particular food she brought home with her if there is any of it left at the end of the evening. I think this is very bad manners on her part and that it should be left at the house where the party took place.

May I please have your opinion on this?

A: Taking home any of the leftover food she brought to the party is not so much bad manners as it is niggardly, and I agree with you that it should be left at the house where the party took place.

* * *

Q: The other evening unexpected visitors arrived while we were still having dinner.

I asked them to go into the living room and told them we would join them shortly.

Was this the proper thing to do, or should I have asked them to sit down at table with us?

A: It would have been more courteous to have asked them to sit with you while you finished your dinner and offered them a cup of coffee.

* * *

Q: I would like to know if it would be proper to give my fiance a sport jacket for his birthday.

I know this is something he would like very much but wondered about the propriety such a present. Would it be in bad taste?

A: A sport jacket is wearing apparel and as such would not be a proper gift to give your fiance until he becomes your husband.

Watching arrivals at the celebrity luncheon Thursday in the Village Woman's Club are Mrs. Guy D. Hitt of Birmingham (left), co-chairman of the Birmingham Town Hall series, with Mrs. Aline Saarinen of NBC who also appeared at the closing lecture today in the Birmingham Theater.

Aline Saarinen Defines Art

By MADELEINE DOEREN

Aline Saarinen captivated Thursday's Birmingham Town Hall audience with the provocative question, "What About a Cultural Explosion?"

* * *

This immediately dispelled any disappointment at the change from the programmed subject, "Collectors and Collecting." She spoke of the 'comfort class' and their 'sniping from ivory towers.'

* * *

Today, in the Birmingham Theatre, she closed the Town Hall 1964-5 season with a repeat performance.

"As the economical level rises," Mrs. Saarinen commented, "the mass audiences viewing television are unwittingly 'hooked' into an occasional art program when they really turned on the set to check up on Viet Nam.

* * *

"Billboards are not the art show of the public. One does not acquire art appreciation by working out a great painting as a jig-saw puzzle."

REAL QUESTIONS

Two burning questions of the day, she said, are, "What about us as individuals and what about us as a society?

"Our lack of the 'awareness of living' is showing if our ultimate goal lies in dashing from an art talk to a symphony committee meeting, then perhaps to hear a book review and so home to see what's thawing for dinner."

* * *

"Beautification is the 'in' word today in Washington," Mrs. Saarinen says, "as evidenced in projects like air cleaning, preventing river pollution, burying overhead wires and more discretion on the part of road builders."

* * *

Sleek and slim in her coat-dress of charcoal plush over a lighter gray silk skirt, Mrs. Saarinen was enthusiastic about her New York dressmaker Herm who is making gowns for the Veiled Prophet ball in St. Louis, Mo. This is a pre-Lenten gala patterned after the Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

Mrs. Saarinen, a graduate of Vassar College, has been associate art critic and editor of the New York Times. She holds a master of arts degree from the Institute of Fine Arts at New York University.

She appears once a week on the Today program over NBC and is an NBC correspondent covering the area of 'manners, morals and culture.'

She is also seen on the NBC Sunday Show and occasionally on the Huntley-Brinkley hour.

* * *

A former Bloomfield Hills resident, she was married to the world-famous architect, the late Eero Saarinen.

Their son Eames who is 10, lives with his mother in New York when on vacation from the Lochland School in Geneva, N.Y.

* * *

When asked "How Far Is Modernization Going?" at the celebrity luncheon in the Village Woman's Club, Mrs. Saarinen deplored the demolition of the old Detroit city hall and other Victorian buildings in Detroit.

WHAT IS ART

She summed up her concept of art with the remark, "It takes a little knowledge and a heck of a lot of effort, listening and looking.

"One should learn to be discerning and not just select an art object to be in the swing of things or because it is this year's model. Ask yourself: 'why you would take it home.'

Hazy Outlook

Excuses Are Transparent

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 years old and I have never been kissed.

To tell you the truth, I have never even been on a real date. I am not bad-looking, but I wear glasses. I am beginning to wonder if maybe that isn't my trouble.

ABBY

I am not too shy, although I don't throw myself at boys, either. I can also carry on a pretty good conversation.

At the rate I'm going, I'll be an old maid. Can you help me?

DATELESS

DEAR DATELESS: Eyeglasses rarely, if ever, cost a girl popularity. But they provide a handy excuse, which is easily seen through.

For a girl to be popular, she must develop the kind of personality other people enjoy.

The first step is to quit thinking about yourself and concentrate on making the other person comfortable.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: A man who would make a perfect husband has asked me to marry him. My problem is his mother.

She dominates him. When he was a child, she divorced his father and devoted her whole life to raising Hal. I have to hand it to her. She did a fine job. He is beautifully educated, has a wonderful personality and is well-respected in the community.

He's 41 and lives with his mother. He says when we marry, SHE will live with us. His friends tell me they would not wish a mother-in-law like her on their worst enemy.

She is not the affectionate, gushy type, but she seems to like me. (Hal says I am the first girl to pass her inspection.)

She is 60 and in good health. Hal told me that he owes his mother "everything" and she will always come first. I love this man, but wonder about the chances of a good marriage.

A VIRGO

DEAR VIRGO: You're luckier than most women who are engaged to a Mamma's boy. He has told you in advance exactly where you will stand — behind his mother, which is a poor second for any wife.

Don't marry him unless you enjoy feeling sorry for yourself.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have been having nightmares every night for the past few weeks.

First, let me tell you that I am a 38-year-old wife and mother. My husband is reasonably good to me, and while my life isn't always moonlight and roses, I am by nature a happy, friendly, but rather quiet person.

I keep dreaming the same terrible dream over again. I dream that I am in a big lake and I am an expert swimmer (which I am not) and I am with people who can't swim.

They are drowning and I could save them if I wanted to, but I just let them drown and it doesn't seem to bother me a bit. What do you make of that, Abby?

Please don't send me to a psychiatrist. He would think I am crazy.

HAVING NIGHTMARES

DEAR HAVING: It would appear that your dreams are the result of deep guilt feelings. Are you in a position to help someone, but have chosen to look out the window?

If the nightmares persist, see a psychiatrist. I assure you he won't think you are "crazy."

Group Hears Policy Talk

After a buffet dinner in the Waldron Hotel Wednesday evening, members of the Insurance Women of Pontiac heard Neil S. Ullrick of the General Adjustment Bureau speak.

Multi Peril policies, commonly called SMP policies were explained and reviewed before the group.

Plans were discussed for the annual "Bosses Night" to be held in May.

Walt Disney Films to Be Featured

A double bill from the Walt Disney studios will make up The Detroit Institute of Arts' "Great Stories in Film" program on Saturday.

"Alice in Wonderland" is Disney's full-length animated color cartoon treatment of the Lewis Carroll classic. "Man and the Moon" is a realistic simulated account of man's first flight to the moon.

* * *

The film program will be shown in the museum auditorium at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Designed to appeal to children of school age — and their parents — the films are open to the public without charge. Children under 12 years are admitted when accompanied by an adult.

Areme Unit Held Initiation Rite

Areme Chapter No. 503, Order of the Eastern Star, conducted initiation ceremonies Monday in the Roosevelt Masonic Temple.

Initiated into the Order were Mr. and Mrs. John Page and Mrs. Alex Penilo.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. William Cox and Mrs. Kenneth Bain.

Tutor Can Be Solution

Word Knowledge Is Vital in New Math

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D.

Dear Dr. Nason: My fifth-grade son is studying the Modern Mathematics. In trying to help him, we have discovered that he lacks an understanding of words.

He admits his carelessness in this regard and realizes that he must change. He is willing to work at it but no one, including his teacher, seems to know how he should go about catching up his back vocabulary so that he can understand what is going on in the class at present.

A.B., Fresno, Calif.

I compliment you on uncovering what is probably the key factor in your son's difficulties with arithmetic.

This is one situation in which tutoring can be a real solution to the problem. A tutor can start at the beginning of the course and help your son build up an accurate word knowledge while at the same time helping him understand his daily work.

Solicit the cooperation of his teacher and help him patiently. He not only has much back work to master, but a very bad habit to overcome.

Dear Dr. Nason: I have a three-year-old son who is very alert for his age. He is not a genius, but he learns and memorizes things quickly.

My problem is how much should I try to teach him? I have been told that a mother should not teach a preschool child too much, since teachers have their own method of teaching, and the result is a very mixed-up child.

Will you please try to help me with my problem?

A.S., Fort Smith, Ark.

Read your small son the stories he likes to hear. Talk with him about what you have read, about the places he goes with you and the things he sees. Be sure to let him do a lot of the talking.

Help him gain a good facility in the use of words and knowledge of their meanings. If he tries to read and asks about words, answer his questions carefully.

Dear Dr. Nason: Has the teaching of handwriting changed drastically since I was in school or is my son's case an exception?

My third-grade son is allowed to hold his pencil in a tight fist, with only the lead showing beyond his fingers.

His handwriting, by the way, is scarcely legible except when he takes time to practically draw each letter. Is this a trend or are we just unlucky?

A.A., Sacramento, Calif.

This has been a trend but, fortunately, the trend is reversing. Alert teachers are again giving handwriting more attention.

The pencil should, indeed, be held comfortably and extend at least half-an-inch beyond the end of the fingers for a right-handed student.

Opening lead—♦ 9

By OSWALD JACOBY

Nine East-West pairs in the world championship team trials arrived at six hearts on almost nine different lines of bidding.

JACOBY

They were allowed to play the slam at eight tables and everyone made it without any trouble. At most tables South opened a diamond. Declarer would rise with dummy's ace and discard one of his clubs. Then he would lead a club toward his own hand. North would take the ace and lead a trump but it would be too late. East would still be able to ruff two clubs in dummy.

The slam would still make with a trump lead but it would require a successful spade finesse since after taking his ace of clubs North would lead a second heart.

One North-South pair refused to settle for letting their opponents play six hearts. Somehow or other North decided that his opponents were going to make six hearts and that a save was indicated. Hence he bid six no-trump over West's six hearts. This was a most unusual "unusual" no-trump and clearly asked South to bid his better minor suit. Therefore, South ignored his seven card spade suit and dutifully bid seven clubs.

West doubled and opened his singleton club and when the smoke cleared away South had managed to gather in only two tricks and East and West gathered in 3200 points instead of the mere 1430 that a slam would have brought them while North and South undoubtedly came close to establishing a record for being set in 1964.

Some Blue Chips Recover

Stock Mart Turns Scrambled

NEW YORK (AP)—Some blue chips recovered in a scrambled stock market early today. Trading was moderately active.

Averages were bolstered by du Pont, up 2, Eastman Kodak, up 1, and Texaco, up a good fraction.

A mixed pattern prevailed, however, among such major groups as steels, motors, nonferrous metals, utilities and chemicals. Oils were mostly unchanged.

Another political-military upheaval in Viet Nam plus the fact that Monday will be a stock market holiday were factors that bred caution.

Airlines relinquished their recent strong market leadership. United Air Lines, which fixed the price for a new issue of convertible debentures, lost a fraction. Eastern and Pan American also lost fractions.

Aerospace issues continued to rise on balance but gains were slight.

IBM resumed its comeback with a rise exceeding a point.

Among larger blocks were: Consolidated Edison, off ⅝ at 93½ on 11,700 shares; and Northern Natural Gas, unchanged at 61 on 24,000 shares.

UNCHANGED

U. S. Steel, Jersey Standard and Anaconda were about unchanged. Chrysler lost a fraction, Ford eased, General Motors edged higher.

★ ★ ★

Opening blocks included: Pan American World Airways, off ¼ at 32⅛ on 14,000 shares; American Telephone, up ¼ at 66⅞ on 5,500; and Texaco, up ½ at 79½ on 4,000.

Thursday, the Associated Press Average of 60 Stocks rose .5 to 331.6.

Teen Violence Rips Brooklyn

2nd Day of Rioting Tied to School Boycott

NEW YORK (AP)—For the second straight day, a mob of Negro teen-agers ran wild on downtown Brooklyn streets, throwing bricks at policemen and smashing store windows in an outgrowth of a school boycott.

Police, who used 100 officers including mounted patrolmen to quell Thursday's disorder, arrested 22 persons. Seventeen of them were between the ages of 13 and 18, picked up on disorderly conduct charges.

★ ★ ★

Five adults, including a minister, were arrested for violating the state education law by promoting school truancy.

Eighteen were arrested Wednesday on similar charges as 400 Negroes clashed with 100 white students from St. John's University, next to the board of education building.

WATER PISTOL

The latest rioting, which lasted for one hour at its height and stretched for four hours in sporadic outbreaks, was triggered when police apprehended a 14-year-old boy on a picket line because he was carrying what appeared to be a gun. It was a plastic water pistol.

The Rev. Milton A. Galamison, the Negro boycott leader, charged police with brutality.

★ ★ ★

"Down South they have used dogs against us. Here they are using police on horseback and this is worse than using dogs."

Galamison insisted the boycott, which started Jan. 19 and now has affected 27 schools and caused absences of 5,500 pupils, is aimed at speeding up integration plans outlined by the state education commissioner.

IRRESPONSIBLE LEADERS

James B. Donovan, school board president, denounced "irresponsible leaders" of the boycott.

Donovan said children were being used "shamelessly as pawns."

★ ★ ★

"We must all understand that the present boycott is not a legitimate demonstration for civil rights," he said in a statement. "It is lawless, scornful of the welfare and educational needs of children, and desperate to the point of inciting violence."

★ ★ ★

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy, termed "ridiculous" charges mounted police rode too close to demonstrators.

"People ought to obey the law and keep their children in school," he said.

Soviets Expel U.S. Newsman

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today expelled Adam Clymer, Moscow correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, accusing him of slapping a policeman's face during demonstrations outside the American Embassy Feb. 9.

Clymer denied the charges and the U.S. Embassy told the Russians it felt the expulsion unjustified. Clymer, who has been assigned in Moscow since last spring, agreed to leave with his wife by Feb. 26. Soviet officials said a visa would be granted to another Sun correspondent.

Tass said Soviet authorities could have prosecuted Clymer for "hooligan behavior" but decided only to expel him. Clymer was beaten by students rioting outside the U.S. Embassy against U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam.

He tried to get through police lines into the embassy for medical treatment and was taken into custody, but later released.

Clymer, 27, is a native of New York City and a Harvard graduate. He has been employed by the Sun for 2½ years.

If Used for Expansion

Tax Cut Economy Spur

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK—New tax relief for business in 1965 is shaping up as a further nudge to keep prosperity rolling.

It is hoped that business will put its tax savings into new plants and equipment and that this expansion will help everyone prosper sooner or later.

DAWSON

The amounts and even the scope of some of the tax relief is yet to be spelled out. But business is either sure of or promised these tax cuts:

- Federal tax rates on corporate profits will drop another notch this year, just as individual income rates will.
- Excise taxes will be cut. Just how much and what categories will be included is yet to be disclosed. While consumers will be the first obvious gainers from elimination or reduction of these sales or manufacturers' taxes, business firms expect to profit through increased sales.
- Postponement of new rules on depreciation deductions are promised. Not every business firm can profit from this easing of restrictions, but enough can so that the U.S. Treasury's collections are expected to drop by $700 million.

RULES REVISED

Depreciation rules were revised in 1962 and the department of commerce reported that corporate tax receipts dropped by $2.3 billion as a result.

But this year the Treasury was to put into effect tests designed to make sure that corporations don't write off their equipment faster than they actually replace it.

★ ★ ★

Now the Treasury says it will postpone the tests and give companies more time and relaxed methods of compliance.

The rules originally were intended as a spur to business spending for modernization. But the postponement, President Johnson says, should save $700 million in taxes this year.

EXPECTED DECISION

Many business firms had been expecting this decision and tailored their expansion programs for 1965 with the relaxed depreciation rules in mind. They say, however, that they would have had to curtail their spending plans if the postponement failed to materialize.

Business and the Treasury had been at loggerheads for years over depreciation rules. The 1962 revision pleased most companies, but still left some industries contending they are discriminated against.

The complicated rules now cover 75 industrial categories. The rules state just how fast different types of machinery and other property can be depreciated on a company's books for purposes of deductions in figuring corporate income taxes.

Business claims that obsolescence sets in so fast in this age that some machines must be scrapped before they can be written off. Another complaint is that often machines must be replaced by much more expensive equipment, so that depreciation allowances on the old do a company little good in raising money to buy a newer model.

WRITTEN OFF

On the books, depreciation is written off as a cost of doing business. But the actual cash from tax savings goes into corporate reserves. Thus money can be used in ordinary business activities. Or it can be used to finance expansion and modernization.

It is this $700 million of political expansion funds—along with much larger sums from income and excise tax cut—that the administration hopes will keep prosperity rolling and perhaps increase the rate of economic growth.

Vehicle Sales at 10 Million?

'65 Car Pace Topping Predictions—Ward's

DETROIT (AP) — With 1965 auto sales so far "surpassing even the most optimistic industry forecasts," Ward's Automotive Reports predicted Thursday that this will be the nation's first 10-million-unit year.

Reporting new car sales from Jan. 1 to Feb. 10 running 26 per cent ahead of record 1964, Ward's forecast a 13 per cent gain for this year's first half over the similar year-ago period.

"Taking shape with this surge in business and buyer confidence is a year of at least 8.7 million new car sales, including imports, and a volume of as much as 10.1 million if truck sales are included," said the industry statistical agency.

The all-time, over - all sales peak of 9.4 million units was hit in 1964. This included 8.1 million cars and 1.3 million trucks.

TOPS FORECASTS

Ward's said that "the terrific early 1965 selling pace in new cars and trucks is surpassing even the most optimistic industry forecasts laid down as recently as four weeks ago."

The agency said first-quarter sales "will crowd the record for any quarter of 2.1 million domestic - made new cars established in April - June last year."

It added that this year's April-June sales "should top" the January-March quarter, now half finished, by as much as 10 per cent.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. "I am 50 years old and work as a bookkeeper. I have $10,000 in the bank and own 42 American Telephone; 100 Bargain Town, U.S.A.; 50 Avnet. I have substantial losses in the last two. I am thoroughly ashamed that I bought these on a tip and I hope I have learned a bitter and costly lesson. What shall I do with the stocks I own and shall I invest any more money?" D.K.

A. Your Telephone stock should be retained.

Avnet is essentially a wholesaler of electronic items and this is not a growth business. There is a moderate amount of speculative attraction to the stock because of its control of the Shaw process of precision casting, and I would be inclined to hold at current levels.

Bargain Town has recently changed its name to Retail Centers of the Americas, but that does not mitigate the fact that operations were at a deficit in the 9 months ended Oct. 31, 1964. I advise you to sell.

I would at this time invest no more than $3,500 of your cash reserves in 40 Safeway Stores and 20 Consolidated Edison.

Q. "We are a family with 5 children. We own our home which is paid for, also a 2-family house which will not be free and clear for 9 years. Would we be better off is we sold the 2-family house and put the money in stocks, or are we better off keeping it? We know nothing about securities." D.C.

A. This is a difficult question to answer without knowing more about the location and rent ability of the 2-family house you own.

If it is in a good neighborhood, is fully rented and pays you around 6 per cent net after all expenses, I should hesitate very much to sell it at this time. Good rental property is a splendid hedge against inflation.

Tax Tips

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The following income tax information is furnished by the Internal Revenue Service.)

QUESTION: I am a single person. My income from wages, on which income tax was withheld, was $8,800. I also had dividends of $280. Would the amount of my dividends prevent me from using Form 1040A?

ANSWER: You are not prevented from using Form 1040A. The requirements for the use of Form 1040A are as follows:

(a) Income must be composed of wages from which income tax was withheld, and "other income" of not more than $200.

(b) Total income must be less than $10,000. In your case, the taxable dividend income to be entered on your return is $180 since you are entitled to exclude $100 from dividends received from domestic corporations. You therefore met the above requirements because your total income is only $8,980 and your "other" income is less than $200. If you use Form 1040A, however, you may not claim the dividends received credit, which for 1964 is 2% of your taxable dividends.

For the answer to YOUR question, call your local Internal Revenue Service office.

French Official, LBJ Will Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has an opportunity today to familiarize himself with the latest development in French President Charles de Gaulle's thinking when he receives French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

Although White House press secretary George E. Reedy called the meeting "primarily a courtesy call."

There was some speculation it may pave the way for a conference between the two heads of state.

Couve de Murville is expected to stress in his talk with the President the de Gaulle view that the interests of all countries would best be served in Viet Nam by a negotiated settlement of the war there.

Johnson is thinking about a visit to Europe later this year, but all plans were put aside temporarily when the crisis in Viet Nam reached a new, dangerous phase.

★ ★ ★

The President is known to be willing to meet de Gaulle in Paris. This is acceptance of the French view that de Gaulle's visit here in 1963 for President John F. Kennedy's funeral should be repaid by Johnson's going to the French capital.

Whether Couve de Murville will touch on the numerous issues on which the two countries do not see eye to eye depends mainly on Johnson, officials believe. The Frenchman has been conferring also with Secretary of State Dean Rusk.
