GM's '69 Fiscal Impact Locally Tops $466 Million

The impact of General Motors' three local operations on the area economy totaled $466.3 million during 1969, up nearly $2 million from last year.

The nearly half-billion dollar figure was contained in a joint year-end statement by F. James McDonald, general manager of Pontiac Motor Division and chairman of the GM Plant City Committee; Martin J. Caserio, general manager of GMC Truck and Coach Division; and Douglas E. Beaudry, manager of the Pontiac Fisher Body plant.

The statement noted that payrolls topped $367.3 million, nearing last year's all-time record of $370.6 million. GM's 1969 purchases from area companies for goods and services increased to $97.6 million, up approximately $5 million from 1968.

An additional $1.38 million was awarded to employes under terms of the GM suggestion plan for ideas to improve quality and efficiency of GM's products and manufacturing operations. Five GM employes received the plan's top award of $10,000 during the past year.

Combined GM employment during the year averaged 36,000.

During 1969, GM employes in Pontiac invested more than $8.8 million through payroll deduction in U.S. Savings Bonds, an increase of some $200,000 more than last year.

General Motors and its employes made a record contribution of $837,597 to the 1969 Pontiac Area United Fund. The record gift included $647,597 from employes and a $190,000 GM corporate gift.

In an attempt to help ease Pontiac's housing shortage, the GM Pontiac Plant City Committee announced in August that it would provide interest-free loans of up to $1.1 million to Pontiac's nonprofit block housing developer, Harambee Inc. Under terms of the unique banking agreement, several parcels of vacant land already have been purchased for development of new housing.

ELECTRIC FURNACES

In January, 1969, Pontiac Motor Division put its first electric arc furnace into operation. When the furnace change-over is completed in the mid-1970s, air pollution from the division's foundry virtually will be eliminated.

GM's concern for vehicle air pollution is also being emphasized with a recent start on construction of a 38,000-square-foot emissions control and carburetor testing facility at Pontiac Motor.

In addition, GMC Truck & Coach Division recently announced engine modifications to significantly reduce emissions from diesel-powered buses built since 1959.

GMC Truck & Coach completed construction of more than 700,000 square feet of new or remodeled facilities during the past year and announced plans to add 135,000 square feet of manufacturing space during 1970.

The division also will build a new parts warehouse near Willow Run Airport to increase distribution efficiency of 100,000 classifications of truck and coach parts to dealers and operators throughout the nation.

Among the production highlights of 1969 was the building of the 14-millionth Pontiac car.

Defense Spending Facing More Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials predict about 1 million fewer Americans will be involved in the nation's defenses as a result of budget cutbacks over the first 30 months of the Nixon administration.

Included in this calculation are reductions in uniformed members of the armed services, civilian employes of defense agencies and workers who have been employed in defense industries.

Amid indications of deeper cuts in defense, the administration is putting next year's budget in final shape for submission to Congress in January. Although President Nixon has been in office only a little more than 11 months, the new budget will run from mid-1970 to mid-1971 — carrying through the first 30 months of his administration.

With certain issues still unresolved, Pentagon sources are estimating a new budget of $73 billion to $75 billion in the bookkeeping year starting next July.

This would cut $2 billion to $4 billion from this fiscal year's spending level of about $77 billion.

Such a cut would carry defense spending about $6 billion to $8 billion below the final Johnson administration proposal for the current year. Since taking office last January, the Nixon administration has trimmed $4.1 billion from the Johnson figure for this year.

★ ★ ★

The reduction of the Vietnam war has been responsible for a considerable part of a planned savings for this year, but Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird also has ordered economies by closing bases, canceling and stretching out hardware programs, cutting back air defense, and laying up ships and air squadrons.

More is in prospect, including probable major base shutdowns in the coming year.

As the United States has reduced its troop commitment in Vietnam, the Pentagon has arranged for a slimming down of the armed forces. So far, nearly 270,000 men are being cut from the armed services rolls this fiscal year.

Civilian employment under the Defense Department is due to drop by about 73,000 this year.

With reductions in military procurement, officials indicate that defense contract employment may drop as much as 300,000 or so.

The Vietnam war is expected to cost the United States $23.2 billion this year, a drop of about $5.6 billion from last year. This is because the tempo of the war has been throttled down as the United tates has shifted emphasis to preparing the South Vietnamese to take over the major burden of the fighting and as the enemy has resorted to less intense offensive operations.

According to current projections, the cost of carrying on the Vietnam war at reduced level in the next fiscal year may slip to around $17 billion to $18 billion.

FAMILIES OF PRISONERS — Mrs. Margaret Fisher (center), one of a group of 58 wives and 94 children of American fliers missing or captured in North Vietnam, answers questions at a news conference at New York's Kennedy Airport yesterday. The group had just returned from a trip to Paris to obtain information about their loved ones from North Vietnamese officials. They were told that prisoner information would be released gradually to private U.S. citizens.

President Working on Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, working on his fiscal 1971 budget, said today one of his major problems is to offset a $2.5-billion revenue loss that would stem from the Congress-passed tax-reform bill.

★ ★ ★

The President, who has postponed a California holiday to work on the budget for the year starting next July 1, talked briefly and informally with newsmen.

★ ★ ★

While he did not say he would sign the tax bill into law, his remarks—including a reference to last-minute congressional moves to cut the expected revenue loss—was regarded as certain evidence he does not plan a veto.

★ ★ ★

Nixon also disclosed that the defense budget for the coming fiscal year will be smaller, as a percentage of the total budget, than at any time since World War II.

MAJOR DECISIONS AHEAD

Budget Director Robert P. Mayo said much of the fiscal 1971 budget already is in page proofs but Nixon said some major budget decisions face him in the next few days.

He won't make some of them until he reaches California, the President said.

When Nixon gets to California, press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said, the President will concentrate on preparations for the annual State of the Union message Jan. 22.

The President expects to go to California next Tuesday.

The chief executive, Mrs. Nixon and their daughter Tricia are expected to spend about two weeks at their oceanfront home at San Clemente.

POW Wives Get Thin Hope

NEW YORK (AP) — "If one daddy comes home as a result of this trip . . . it will be worthwhile," said the spokesman for a group of 152 American wives and children who spent Christmas Day trying to get information about their loved ones missing or captured in North Vietnam.

In a 21-hour round trip Thursday, the group flew to Paris, was rebuffed, then recalled by Hanoi officials and finally ended up back home carrying a thin message of hope — a promise that the North Vietnamese would "gradually" release the names of captives.

"For some of us, even so little represents hope on this day," said Margaret Fisher of Sebring, Fla. Mrs. Fisher was one of three representatives of the group that the North Vietnamese consented to see.

The Hanoi officials told the women that they were being used and duped by U.S. authorities. "Return home and tell your children that their fathers are murderers of North Vietnamese children," one woman quoted an official as saying.

TRIP PAID BY BILLIONAIRE

The 58 mothers and 94 children arrived in Paris on a grey, wet morning. Their trip was paid for by H. Ross Perot, the Dallas billionaire who was in Laos at the time seeking permission to transport gifts for captive U.S. servicemen by air to Hanoi.

The group boarded buses and French police escorted them to the North Vietnamese diplomatic mission office. The group was told that the Hanoi officials would see three representatives but not until today.

Before returning to Orly Airport the women asked to be taken to church and were escorted to Notre Dame Cathedral. Many were kneeling in prayer when a policeman ran in excitedly and announced that the Hanoi delegation had changed its mind and would see three representatives immediately.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Fisher said the meeting began with a 25-minute lecture on North Vietnamese history and policy. Then questions were allowed.

Would Have Won in 1968, Says LBJ in TV Interview

From Our News Wires

NEW YORK — Lyndon B. Johnson says he had no doubt that he could have been reelected if he ran for president in 1968 but that he felt his inability to unite the country would ultimately prevent him from administering the office to his satisfaction.

★ ★ ★

In a CBS-TV interview with Walter Cronkite taped last September, Johnson discusses his decision not to run again in 1968 and calls his wife, Lady Bird, "one of the wisest and certainly the most trusted counselors I've had." She did not want him to be a candidate last year, he said.

The former president believes Hubert H. Humphrey would be in the White House today had it not been for a few words Humphrey spoke at Salt Lake City.

He also relates that after he announced his decision not to run again Sen. Robert F. Kennedy visited him for "very friendly conversation" and told him, 'You're a very courageous and very dedicated man."

Johnson said he never wanted to be president of the United States and would have left the 1964 Democratic nomination open for the best man — "I assumed it would be Bobby Kennedy or Hubert Humphrey" — except that Lady Bird persuaded him to run.

Johnson regarded Humphrey's Salt Lake City speech, as a crucial turning point of the 1968 campaign. The speech was made late in October and went beyond Johnson's policies in proposing steps to end the Vietnam War. And LBJ felt this "detracted from his possibilities."

EX-PRESIDENT AND 'PERSUADER'—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson says he didn't want to run in 1964 but was persuaded by his wife, Lady Bird. But in 1968, he says, it was she, his most "trusted counselor," who persuaded him not to seek reelection. Johnson revealed the political sidelights in an interview with Walter Cronkite taped in Texas last September for broadcast by CBS tomorrow night. (Locally, it can be seen at 7:30 on Channel 2.)

Pilot's Pressure Suit Saves Bleeding California Mother

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—A test-pilot pressure suit has been used to save a young mother from bleeding to death, a medical report says.

Mary Phillips, 25-year-old mother of two, was in critical condition at Stanford University Hospital last September, bleeding uncontrollably following a minor operation.

Doctors had given her 46 pints of whole blood and 64 units of plasma in five weeks while trying without success nine surgical procedures for stopping internal hemorrhaging.

Now, she is living a normal life in her Sunnyvale, Calif., home.

Dr. Robert Mason on Sept. 23 suggested that doctors try a pressure garment, recalling that Dr. W. James Gardner of the Cleveland Clinic in Ohio had employed one in early brain surgery research.

Within four hours after a call from the Stanford staff, Dr. Alan Chambers of NASA's Ames Research Center at nearby Mountain View had delivered a modified pressure suit to the hospital.

It was placed almost immediately on Mrs. Phillips and stayed there for 10 hours. Overnight the bleeding stopped.

The pressure suit treatment was described in a report Thursday by Stanford University Hospital and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Dr. Ralph Pelligra, chief of the Ames Center's medical services branch, said the suit apparently reduced the pressure difference between the blood within the arteries and the tissues outside. Normal blood coagulation then resumed.

N. Viet Refuses Gifts for POWS, Eyes New Offer

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — North Vietnam refused today to admit H. Ross Perot and his two planeloads of Christmas gifts for American prisoners of war.

The Texas billionaire then proposed:

● To fly the 1,400 canned Christmas dinners in his cargo to Hanoi to be fed to North Vietnamese children orphaned by the war. He told a news conference the Hanoi regime is now considering this proposal.

● To fly the medical supplies, personal packages, mail and clothing to Moscow aboard his chartered airliners for relay to the prisoners by Soviet postal channels. Hanoi had told him to mail the packages via Moscow, but Perot said only by flying them in his planes could he beat the Dec. 31 deadline North Vietnam has put on accepting Christmas parcels.

● To inspect prisoner of war camps in South Vietnam, then travel to Hanoi, and to offer financial and other help to North Vietnamese families so they could send parcels to relatives held prisoner in South Vietnam. He said this would prove to Hanoi "that we are strictly humanitarian in our outlook—that we are interested in helping all prisoners, not just Americans."

REFUSED PERMISSION

Perot met for an hour and 35 minutes with the acting charge d'affaires of the North Vietnamese Embassy, Vu Tien.

"We were refused permission to fly our planes in," Perot told newsmen, "and I was refused permission to fly to Hanoi myself to present my proposals to the North Vietnamese government."

The 39-year-old computer magnate said he was disappointed, "but we are not giving up."

Perot said Vu Tien indicated that Americans should take an interest in the suffering of the people of North Vietnam.

MAJOR OBSTACLE

Perot said the major obstacle in his conversation with the North Vietnamese envoy was the "wall of suspicion" surrounding his mission. He said he would keep trying to convince the Hanoi regime that his project was entirely a humanitarian one, "in no way representing the United States government."

The normally ruddy-faced Perot was ashen as he walked from the embassy.

Perot said he chartered the two planes at a cost of $200,000. Traveling with him are more than 30 Red Cross workers, clergymen, newsmen and members of his organization, United We Stand.

The North Vietnamese Embassy in Vientiane attacked Perot and his organization on Christmas Eve as supporters of President Nixon's "aggressive policy." The embassy also accused Perot of wanting to "sabotage" the normal channels for sending gifts to prisoners of war. He has been advised to send his gifts to Hanoi through the Soviet postal system.

Girl Electrocuted While Bathing

An 18-year-old Romeo girl was electrocuted Wednesday at the home of her grandparents in Romeo when a portable heater slid from a ledge into the bathtub while she was bathing.

★ ★ ★

Dead on arrival at Almont Community Hospital was Alicia A. Peterson of 161 Dickenson.

Efforts to revive Miss Peterson at the scene of the accident — the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ford, 325 St. Clair — failed, as well as efforts by police and ambulance attendants en route to the hospital.

★ ★ ★

Miss Peterson was a Romeo High School senior and a member of the Church of God in Christ of Romeo.

Waterford Thief on Snowmobile

A burglar riding a snowmobile took $16,415 in cash and checks from the safe of the S.S. Kresge Store, 5010 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township, sometime Tuesday night.

David Hampshire, the store manager, discovered the larceny around 8:10 Wednesday morning, township police said.

★ ★ ★

After driving to the store on a snowmobile, the thief used a grapling hook to get onto the roof of the store, police said. He then slid through a roof ventilator to get inside the building.

Once inside, the bandit used a high-speed drill to get into the safe, according to police.

HIGHWAY HOLOCAUST — A tanker of propane gas burns uncontrolled on busy I-70 in Denver. Police said the flames burst out after the rig overturned Christmas Eve, tying up traffic. The driver, Charles Brunotte, 33, of Aurora, Colo., had minor injuries. Six firemen were hurt when a second tank exploded.

Policies Different on Gift Returns

Pontiac area merchants report that there will be no set over-all policy regarding exchanges or returns this year as in previous years.

J. L. Hudson's and Montgomery Ward stores in the Pontiac Mall have requested that Christmas gifts be returned by Jan. 3.

Federal's Department Store in downtown Pontiac has set Jan. 6 as the preferred date for exchanges to be completed.

The J.C. Penney Co. in the Miracle Mile Shopping Center and Sears and Roebuck downtown have no deadline for the exchange of Christmas gifts but would prefer to have presents exchanged as soon as possible, according to store spokesmen.

27 Trampled to Death

KINSHASA, The Congo (AP) — Twenty-seven persons, most of them between 8 and 15 years old, were trampled to death yesterday when an impatient crowd stampeded outside a football stadium in Bukavu. The Congolese press agency said 101 others were injured.

Other Clashes Reported

Israeli Planes Hit Arabs

By The Associated Press

Israeli warplanes attacked Arab guerrillas in Jordan today after they fired at an Israeli army patrol and placed two mines near a settlement, persons in the area southeast of the Sea of Galilee reported.

The sources said they saw two Jordanian army vehicles burning after the hour-long raid. They reported that the planes encountered light antiaircraft fire but returned unharmed.

In Amman, the Jordanian capital, the guerrilla command announced that its forces shelled three Israeli settlements before dawn with rockets and heavy mortars and caused damage and loss of life.

A Jordanian army spokesman also reported that Jordanian forces intercepted an Israeli patrol of three armed vehicles escorted by four helicopters as they crossed the border in Southern Jordan late yesterday.

The spokesman said one vehicle was damaged and three Israelis wounded in the ensuing clash. He said there were no Jordanian casualties.

Israeli spokesmen said there were shelling duels during the night at other points along the Jordanian cease-fire line and also across the Lebanese border.

The spokesmen also reported that Arab saboteurs blew up a section of railway in the occupied Gaza Strip.

On the Suez Canal front, Israel and Egypt traded artillery fire and the Israeli command said one Israeli was killed. The firing took place shortly after Israeli jet fighters made one of their longest raids on Egyptian targets since the 1967 Middle East war.

The Israelis said the 8½-hour attack was made to destroy surface-to-air missile sites that the Egyptians were trying to rebuild.

The Israeli spokesman said all the planes returned safely.

Birmingham

Police Chief Has Warning for Holidays

BIRMINGHAM — "Holiday pressures with their stepped-up social activities lead to tragic results for many families, Police chief Darryl Bruestle warns.

In his annual holiday traffic safety message, the chief noted that among the many facets of the holiday is the long list of traffic victims.

Chief Bruestle pointed to alcohol as the primary problem.

"Alcohol dulls our senses and deadens restraints that usually govern our behavior," he emphasized. "We do things we normally wouldn't do when we are under the influence of liquor."

CITES STUDIES

Chief Bruestle cited studies indicating that alcohol is involved in as many as half the fatal traffic accidents.

"These estimates involve no special time of year; but during this season of parties and celebrations, the exposure is greater and normal driving conditions are even worse," he said.

The Birmingham City Commission has approved a recommendation from the Department of Parks and Recreation that regulations, policies and rates concerning operation of the city's two golf-courses during 1969 be continued through 1970.

In a letter to City Manager Robert Kenning, Darrel C. Middlewood, superintendent of the Department of Parks and Recreation, noted that the 1969 golf season was "quite successful."

"The recommendations which were approved by the parks and recreation board and City Commission and implemented by the department in 1969 have shown us the courses can be self-supporting, although assistance from those outside the community is necessary," Middlewood's letter stated.

Middlewood said revenue for 1969 is $149,904 with expenses of $125,257, for a preliminary balance of $24,647.

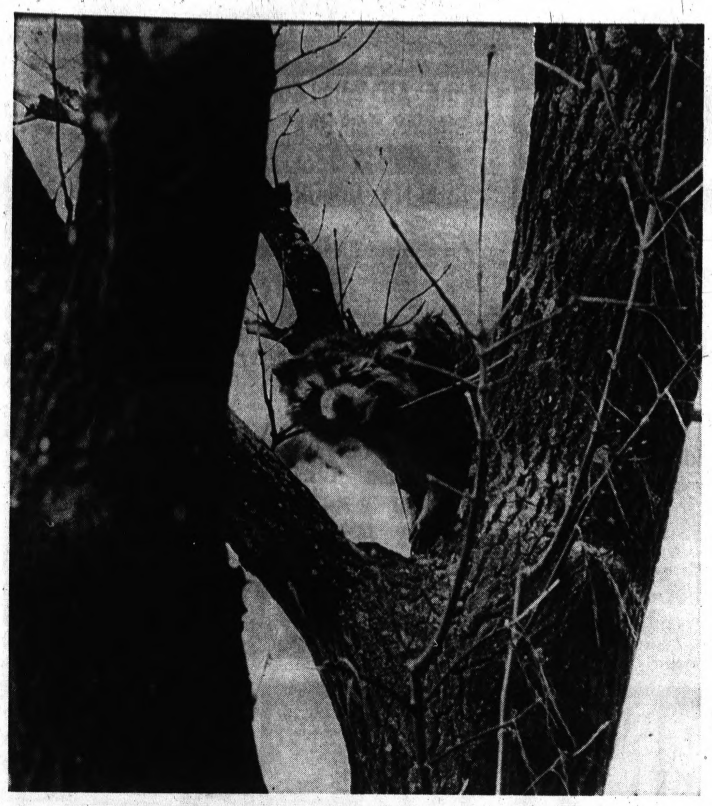

Edwin H. Webster, 4375 Oakgrove, has been elected president and a member of the executive committee of the American Institute of Steel Construction.

He will help direct the national organization representing 330 firms which account for the major portion of the annual output of fabricated structural steel in the United States.

RACCOON REFLECTIONS — "So I sez to myself: 'Here I am at Christmas and what have I got?' And then I answers: 'Why I got this beeootiful tree and soon all the leftovers I can find. Then the holidays will seem real.' And then I wonders: 'Why is it leftovers always make the holidays seem real?'"

UAW Local Brightens Needy Family's Holiday

By YOLANDA BENAVIDES

Old St. Nick has some local competition.

And the James Murphy family of 1138 Meadowlawn, Pontiac, couldn't be happier with the results: a hearty Christmas dinner, toys for the four children and three ordered-to-fit football helmets.

The Murphys are especially thankful for the shiny helmets, a gift of UAW Local 596 to their three smallest children —who are hemophiliacs.

Hemophiliacs or "bleeders," as they are commonly called, suffer from a hereditary disorder that prevents the blood from clotting — causing uncontrollable bleeding.

PRECAUTIONARY EFFORT

The helmets were ordered by the family doctor as a precautionary effort to protect the three energetic Murphy offspring: Cheryl, 7, Janis, 4, and 16-month-old Christopher.

"It hasn't been easy," says Mrs. Murphy, recounting the medical expenses and mental strain that develop from keeping tabs on three romping youngsters.

★ ★ ★

"We've never had to take them into the hospital for hemorrhaging, but if they ever injured themselves internally a small delay could mean their lives," she said.

To make matters worse, James Murphy was taken off the production line at Fisher Body some nine months ago because of a high blood pressure.

WORRIES A LOT

"I know he worries about the kids a lot," says his wife.

Apparently his fellow workers noticed it too. They donated a heartening $210 so the Murphys would have plenty of gifts under the Christmas tree as well as the new helmets.

"I just didn't know those kind of people were left in the world today. It would have been a pretty rough Christmas around here without them," said Mrs. Murphy.

"Now if I just knew how to thank them," she sighed.

Airmen at Rally Target of Probe

MOUNT CLEMENS — Two airmen attached to Selfridge Air Force Base here attended an anti-war rally in downtown Detroit Tuesday.

The airmen, identified as Charles Harris and Douglas Byers, questioned American Vietnam policy in statements at the rally.

Col. Kenneth Gunnarson, deputy commander at Selfridge has since ordered an "investigation" concerning their "statements."

Col. Gunnarson said this morning that purpose of the investigation was to determine whether the airmen made statements in violation of either Air Force regulations or public laws.

Both Airmen Harris and Byers are on normal holiday leave status. "They are wandering around at their own leisure," Col. Gunnarson cited.

'PATENTLY BOGUS'

James Lafferty, chairman of the Detroit Coalition to End the War Now, termed the inevstigation a "blatant effort to stifle their right to speak, by harrassing them with a patently bogus investigation."

Lafferty, an attorney, said, "The airmen said nothing that they didn't have a lawful right to say. Soldiers and airmen have a lawful right to speak out against the war."

★ ★ ★

An estimated 700 persons attended the rally.

Takes Last-Minute Wrap

Woe in Store(s) for Romney

TROY — The stores were crowded Wednesday afternoon with those people who wanted to get that last gift, or "the toy the boy had his heart set on."

Included in the crowd at Oakland Mall was George Romney, former governor of Michigan and now U.S. secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

Like many last-minute shoppers, Romney had his problems. He rushed around the shopping center looking for a freezer for his daughter, to give her at the Romney family gathering in Bloomfield Hills.

There was the freezer, all picked out. Romney took out his wallet for a credit card. There were no charge cards to be found.

CLERK BALKS

Son Mitt offered the use of his Sears and Roebuck charge plate, but the clerk balked when she discovered it was issued in Salt Lake City, Utah, where Mitt is a student.

Told he would have to wait an indefinite period in line at the upstairs credit office and already late for a downtown Detroit appointment, Romney gave up and paid cash.

★ ★ ★

Then he learned that delivery of the freezer couldn't be made until well after Christmas. He even offered to go the warehouse to pick it up.

Finally, the store came up with a picture of the new freezer and gift-wrapped it. The photo was placed under the tree for Romney's oldest daughter, Mrs. Llynn Keenan.

At least the picture showed that Romney's intentions were the best.

Romney's advice to last-minutes shoppers.

Utica School District Gets Aid for Programs

UTICA — The Utica School District has received a $21,188 Michigan Department of Education grant to help subsidize its special "community-schools" programs.

The special programs include elementary school enrichment classes, teen activities, adult enrichment courses, senior citizen activities and summer swimming and recreation.

The school district will be sharing $1 million set aside by the State Legislature this year as financial support for community-schools programs throughout the state.

The Utica funds will be used to help finance the salaries of five persons who will coordinate and supervise local community-school programs.

Teen Protesters Provide a Test for His Tolerance

By T. LARRY ADCOCK

My tolerance was severely tested the past two weekends when I couldn't seem to avoid phony protests.

I have given in to baser instincts and decided that some teen-agers are creeps. At least, I'm leaning that way.

★ ★ ★

But it wasn't all bad; it's Christmas, you know; all in all, it was bittersweet:

ADCOCK

It all started Saturday when my wife decided it would be quaint if she and I and our 3-year-old spent the day at the granddaddy of crowded shopping centers, Northland. Especially, since we already had our Christmas shopping done.

RAN THEIR COURSE

Those hellions, whose parents are the type who let them go "just out with the kids" on Devil's Night, ran their natual course, tipping litter baskets and setting them afire and parroting obscenities. I saw few who could have been over the age of 15.

The purpose of the Northland scene was to provoke a confrontation with police — as evidenced by the handbills distributed throuthout the center calling for exactly that.

★ ★ ★

The apparent theory is to spark sympathy for the darling children who were undoubtedly protesting the social evil of a small allowance. They indeed do get sympathy when four or five cops stand at the concourse and ask a family — my family of three, relatively straight-looking — where they are going.

"See? Gestapo, right?" You get the idea.

The previous Sunday, feeling fatherly, I thought it would be wonderful for the wife and I and our child to see Detroit's "Christmas Carnival" at Cobo Hall.

The teen-agers there were really swell. The 14- 15- and 16-year-olds shoved the little ones out of the way so they could slide down the slide through the giant snowman or walk through the tunnel of mirrors or get a better glimpse of "Oopsy the Clown.

The rock concert in the Cobo arena was apparently not enough. The teens had to muscle in on the entertainment one floor up for the Captain Kangaroo set.

And then . . . We were standing in the line to see Santa Claus with my 3-year-old at 5:20 p.m. and a voice came over the loudspeaker: "The Christmas Carnival will close in five minutes. Please leave."

STAYED IN LINE

After 25 minutes of waiting, we were right near the front of the line when Big Brother beckoned us to the exits.

But we stuck to our guns and stayed in line.

On the way home, we thought back on our weekend experiences.

. . . About the kids who screeched "pigs" at the Northland security guards in contrast to the teen-age girl who followed us through jam-packed Hudson's for several city blocks, no doubt, to give my daughter the mitten she retrieved from the floor . . .

And so I tell the tongue-clickers at Cobo and Northland: It's an isolated incident, so forgive and forget the creeps: it's Christmas, you know.

And I would say to those among the creeps who might some day have a worthy issue to protest — for there are a multitude: Be selective in protest and don't cry wolf.

State Road Toll Reaches 7 Over Yule Holidays

By the Associated Press

Multiple-car collisions on Michigan's slick highways accounted for five deaths during the early part of the Christmas holidays. Another two persons were killed in other highway accidents, including a car-snowmobile crash.

★ ★ ★

A Muskegon couple, Leo Hart Holm, 43 and his wife, Carolyn, 39, were killed last night in a three-car accident five miles east of Plainwell in Barry County.

★ ★ ★

A five-car pileup, on I-75 near Monroe Christmas Eve claimed the life of Mrs. Zafer Mertogul, 40, of Chicago. Her husband, Fevsi, and her 11-year-old niece, Aysle, were hospitalized in critical condition.

★ ★ ★

Kenneth Glaneman, 37, an off-duty Richmond policeman, died Christmas Eve when his auto and another vehicle collided in Macomb County's Lenox Township.

2-VEHICLE CRASH

Dennis Kim Wendling, 18, of Chesaning, was killed in a two-vehicle accident on M57 in Genesee County's Montrose Township last night.

James Fenlon, 30, of Cheboygan, was killed last night on U.S. 23 in Beau Grand Township when he turned in front of an oncoming car while riding on a snowmobile.

James Allen Nederhoe of Ada died Christmas Eve when his car went out of control on M21 near Grand Rapids.

Troy Woman's Spouse Escapes Reformatory

Morefield, 22, whose wife resides at 1830 E. Long Lake, Troy, and Arnold Histed, 21, escaped from the Ionia State Reformatory last night.

Both men were living in a dormitory in the trustee division of the reformatory. Authorities could find no trace of the escapees.

Morefield was sentenced in July to a 2-5 year prison term on an attempted statutory rape conviction. Histed was serving a 2-10 year sentence on a July 1967 breaking and entering conviction.

Time Bomb Shakes Monument in Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — A time bomb damaged Dublin's O'Connell Monument early today. No one was injured.

The blast broke the bronze figure at the base of the statue and damaged the rear of the base. An army bomb disposal squad declared the statue safe after an inspection.

Tax Bills Going Up in Milford Twp.

By LOIS FRIEDLAND

MILFORD TOWNSHIP—Taxpayers already staggering under higher bills this year may be forewarned that next year's rates will be even larger.

The current tax factor is one but the county has already indicated that the rate must rise to 1.1 in 1970 to keep the township's assessments on a par with surrounding communities.

Township Supervisor Robert Gorsline Jr. is currently studying the sensitive problem, but has yet to agree or disagree with the county's estimate.

Tax bills this year are based on a tax rate of $47.50 per $1,000 of State Equalized Valuation while last year's rate was $42.10 per $1,000.

SPOT CHECK

A spot-check by the state made earlier this year revealed that assessments of residential and vacant lands in the township needed the most adjustment.

This year's average 20-per-cent increase in land values reflects the higher assessed values for 1969, according to Gorsline.

Residential land values shot up 10 to 15 per cent while assessments of vacant land rose 30 to 50 per cent.

The township can handle the proposed increase for 1970 taxes either by adding a 0.1 factor—making a 1.1 total—or by raising the property assessments so people will become aware of the increase by the March board of reviews. The percentage of assessment increment has not yet been determined.

Gorslin commented, "I would not use a factor under any circumstances. I think people have a right to know. I can at least give them an approximation so they could figure in June about how much to save for December.

★ ★ ★

"When to warn people is a political question. Do you tell people assessments are going up in March at board of review time or wait until December when you get the tax bills and see the rate?" he asked.

Next November is an election month.

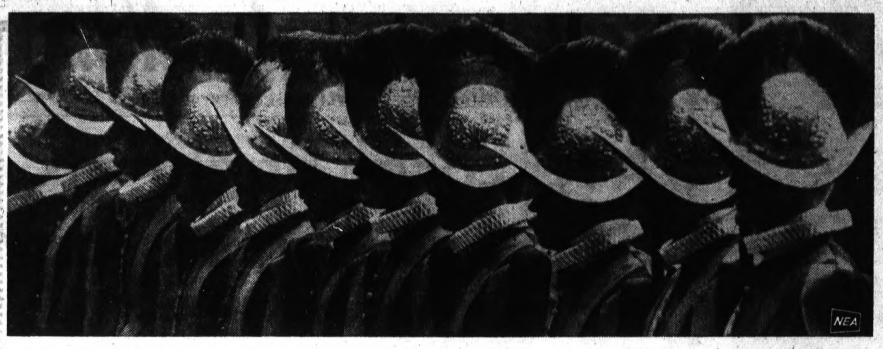

"Our only relief from increasing taxes will come if the state legislature acts to remove the heavy reliance on property taxes for school financing," said Gorsline.

"The problem of increasing values points out inequities in our system. In an area like ours, people move here to own acreage, yet they are penalized. It's like we're saying that we really don't want you here. If you come we're going to tax you right out of the house market.

'REGRESSIVE TAXATION'

"This is regressive taxation and I think it is discouraging to owners of private property. It's almost as if we are saying, 'forget it, rent an apartment, don't bother to settle'," he asserted.

Gorsline supports a drastic reduction in allowable property tax millage with a commensurate increase in the statewide income tax for the support of public schools. This would remove an unfair burden from the property owner, according to the supervisor.

A Christmas Day Jolt

Toys Lose Zip, Zap

By JEAN SAILE

What this country needs is a good five-cent battery, or even a good five-day battery.

Christmas is over at our house. You can tell, because all toys that are supposed to talk, tumble and quiver lie there dumb.

MRS. SAILE

The doll that tumbles is pooped, the one that shakes her head is drowsy, and the one that talks has morning-after throat.

★ ★ ★

The tape recorder is on slow speed, the walkie-talkie is audible only to six feet, the racing cars have motor trouble.

★ ★ ★

The crawl - over - anything truck can't navigate the nap on the carpet. The talking telephone has a bad connection.

And I hate to admit this, but there are battery snatchers afoot in the family room. The flashlight is hollow.

My youngest daughter pouts until somebody offers her life for the mechanical doll. Batteries have replaced imagination, and besides the battery casings make dolls resistant to good old pliable hugging.

Dad, who is also running out of charge, makes another trip to the drugstore for batteries.

There was a year when we figured we had the battery racket beat. We bought a battery recharger. This is the answer, we said smugly.

But the smugness was short-lived. Turned out anyone with a dead battery wanted a replacement "now," and a 30-minute session on the charger was less than adequate. Nobody ever remembered to put the battery on charge the previous night.

The only recourse, as we see it, short of a breakthrough in battery development, has to be a return to the good old-fashioned kind of Christmas toys.

There were dolls that were made only to be loved, trains that one pushed around the living room floor on imaginary tracks, and games that were played with know-how rather than buzzers.

And whatever happened to the old windup toy?

★ ★ ★

You could have purchased several hopping chickens or funny cars with the same investment that the average family socks into batteries today.

Snowmobile Use at Park to Start

The park, consisting of 700 acres, is located seven miles north of Rochester at 1480 W. Romeo in Addison Township. A warming house and refreshment stand will be open.

Pontiac Man Jailed in Southern Slaying

COLUMBUS, Miss. (AP) — Two men were jailed here Tuesday on murder charges in the pistol slaying of a 21-year-old Mississippi State University student at a local night club.

Raymond Marble, 32, of 191 Wall, Pontiac, and Unstead Gibbs, 25, of West Points, Miss., were charged following an investigation into the slaying of Joe Sharp of Starkville.

No Major Fighting in Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — No major fighting was reported in Vietnam today after allied forces ended their 24-hour Christmas truce. The three-day cease-fire proclaimed by the Vietcong was in its last hours, but U.S. and South Vietnamese forces had resumed combat operations Christmas night.

* * *

The allied commands charged the Vietcong and North Vietnamese with 111 attacks violating the truce and said 100 of the enemy were killed and 11 were captured. Allied casualties were 12 South Vietnamese troops killed, 25 South Vietnamese and three Americans wounded and two government soldiers missing, the commands reported.

U.S. B52s went back into action with raids in the northwest corner of South Vietnam, 76 miles northeast of Saigon and in the Mekong Delta about 50 miles southeast of Saigon.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands said there were no B52 missions or fighter-bomber sorties flown throughout South Vietnam during the 24-hour allied cease-fire. However, official sources said American helicopter gunships flew in support of allied ground troops threatened by enemy forces.

Both B52s and fighter-bombers continued to bomb the Ho Chi Minh Trail network through eastern Laos during the cease-fire in an effort to slow infiltration of North Vietnamese troops and supplies into South Vietnam, sources said.

* * *

The allied commands reported a sharp drop in casualties on all sides last week, and South Vietnamese headquarters attributed this to a 31 per cent decrease in enemy activity.

The U.S. Command said 66 Americans were killed, the lowest number since the week of Sept. 28-Oct. 4. This raised the total of American battlefield deaths to 39,893 since Jan. 1, 1961, and it appeared that the total would exceed 40,000 by the end of the year.

The U.S. Command also reported 713 Americans wounded last week, 836 less than the week before. South Vietnamese casualties were 411 killed in action, 10 less than the week before, and 1,019 wounded.

The allies reported killing 2,007 North Vietnamese and Vietcong last week, 582 less than the week before.

2 Women Found Strangled in Illinois

CARTERVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A bride of three months and a woman companion were found strangled with electrical appliance cords Thursday in a trailer home.

The victims were Wilma Rogers, 22, and Barbara Case, 25, who had been a bridesmaid at the Rogers wedding.

Sheriff Harold Farner said police were trying to find Mrs. Rogers' husband, Kenneth, an assistant manager of a Carbondale bookstore.

* * *

A car belonging to Miss Case was found abandoned near Ripley, Tenn., Thursday night.

The bodies were found in separate bedrooms. Miss Case was nude, police said, and Mrs. Rogers was clothed.

* * *

The Rogers trailer is about eight miles from where the body of a 13-year-old girl was found three weeks ago. The girl had been raped and strangled.

PAUF Is Over the Top

Seldom has the area had better year-end news than the announcement that the Pontiac Area United Fund had passed its 1970 campaign goal after two years of falling short.

Thanks to a dedicated army of volunteer workers who kept driving ahead a month after the official close of the campaign, a pledge total of $1,241,736 was achieved — $1,736 more than the target.

By way of frosting on the cake of community humanitarianism is the fact that the Pontiac area ranked first statewide and among the leaders nationally with its pledge increase of 15 per cent over campaign subscriptions of a year ago.

★ ★ ★

The generosity of area contributors will enable the 55 social agencies supported by PAUF to function to their fullest potential in providing the services so essential to the well-being of many segments of our citizenry.

Voice of the People:

Reader Gives Opinion on Nonpublic School Aid

Seems a lot of controversy surrounds the parochiaid issue. It has been stated by at least one august educator that this is a political issue. Since when do we play politics with our children's education? I believe it is a moral issue — a Christian issue. It has also been stated that to give aid to parochial schools is to take away from public schools. Take away what? For years we have contributed to the aid of public schools, plus kept our own schools going. How about giving us our fair due?

★ ★ ★

We save the taxpayers over $1 million a year by keeping the parochial schools open. With Waterford schools on half days now, what would they do with an influx of at least 2,000 students? As long as a child is getting an education in an accredited school, where is the gripe? Let's keep our parochial schools open and then our people will truly have a choice of education.

Suggests New Rule for Union Membership

I feel the U.A.W. is taking the working man's money for its own advantage, instead of helping the working man. There should be a rule that you must work for the company for 90 days and then join the union.

Cities Vie for Bicentennial

Charles Bartlett

America's 200th birthday is still six years away, but already the competition is getting hot among several cities for the honor of being chosen as the site of a planned International Exposition in 1976.

Boston and Philadelphia were the earliest and seemed the most logical candidates. Each has good claim to being the cradle of the Nation, though Philadelphia suffers from the possible handicap of having hosted the 1876 centennial observance.

Recently, however, both Washington and Miami (Miami?) made impressive presentations before the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, which was created by a joint resolution of Congress in 1966.

It takes time to stage an international exposition and the selection of a site "must be resolved as soon as possible," says Chancellor WALLACE STERLING of Stanford University, who was named chairman of the commission by President NIXON last July.

In the meantime, he suggests, America should work to remedy its shortcomings as well as celebrate its successes in anticipation of the bicentennial year.

"We can honorably put our virtues on parade, and we can do so with musical fanfare, but the sound of such music will fade away and little will be left but a dying echo unless we seek to brighten the future by attacking and trying to solve the problems which beset us today."

Fittingly enough, each of the cities making presentations has a common theme—urban renewal.

In urbanized, second-century America, urban renewal is tantamount to national renewal.

Church Story Falls on Deaf Ears

WAYNE, Pa. — The timidity of church leaders in expanding the roles of their institutions to meet the mood and needs of the times is a puzzling rejection of the experience of the Central Baptist Church here.

BARTLETT

The happy story of this suburban church's involvement with problems that reach well beyond its Main Line parish borders is now 18 months old.

It began when the deacons decided, shortly after the assassination of Martin Luther King, that the time had come for reasonably affluent churches like their own to become something more than places of worship.

★ ★ ★

They agreed to propose that the church mortgage its property and spend the proceeds on projects designed to create "a more just and humane society."

They settled upon a commitment of $100,000, a sum approximately equal to the church's annual budget and hopefully large enough to provoke debate in other churches.

The church membership, some 375 upper middle income persons, approved the move 127 to 43 after a four-hour debate.

CONSEQUENCES

Some of the consequences were predictable. A small group that included some wealthier members withdrew from the church, maintaining its purposes had been distorted.

The publicity generated by the decision attracted a record number of new members, mostly young people delighted to share in these new concerns. To date some 30 members have left against 50 who have joined.

Weekly contributions run at a high average of $10 per family.

Interest is kept alive by the visits of spokesmen from the 12 projects in which their funds are invested.

SHARP IMPACT

Since the projects range from day-care centers to an electronic training program in West Philadelphia, the reports by these spokesmen, delivered from the pulpit during the regular services, have a sharp impact upon the suburban congregation. None of the projects has been a failure to date.

★ ★ ★

The experience has made evangelists of some leading laymen who maintain that the fund has benefited the church and its members more than it has helped anyone else.

These laymen go wherever they are invited to try to inspire other churches to follow the initiatives of the Central Baptist Church.

This is where the disappointment lies. Not one church in the Philadelphia area has been moved to take a similar step.

★ ★ ★

"Only a minority feels the mission of the church lies outside the walls of the church," says William McLear, a stockbroker who screened the applicants for church money. "Most people are satisfied with theology as it is. They just want to worship once a week, be comforted, and perhaps inspired a bit."

'Legislators Need Lessons in Basic Economy'

It's about time legislators try to adjust current and future spending to presently available revenues. I retired eight years ago and have found it necessary to adjust my wants to available retirement income, due to increased prices as a result of the constant inflation. I am not permitted to vote myself a handsome raise. My former employer does not increase my retirement benefit just because the cost of living has gone up; we eat fewer potatoes.

★ ★ ★

Possibly the school systems and other governmental agencies that owe their existence to the overburdened taxpayers should take a few lessons in basic economics. There is a limit to the maximum amount the taxpayer can donate, and that limit has about been reached.

He Makes Hairline Decisions

You don't have to build a better mousetrap. Just come up with a new treatment for baldness and the world —the male world—will beat a path to your door.

According to a men's hair stylist in New York, the main cause of baldness is illness of the scalp—dandruff, excessive dryness or oiliness. And just as the body needs good nutrition for good health, so does the hair.

Thus, upon examination of a few strands of a patron's precious hair under a microscope, he may recommend:

For broken or split ends — a formula of green peas mixed in a blender with eucalyptol shampoo; for seborrheic dandruff — string beans and coal tar shampoo; for athreptic bulbs — green peas and sulfopreteel shampoo; for "dry" seborrhea — celery and egg and rum shampoo; for peladic bulbs — cabbage and eucalyptol shampoo.

The client, whose baldness pattern is 999 times out of 1,000 determined by the genes he inherited from his parents, can then go home and look in that mirror, mirror on the wall and tell himself it isn't so — for a little while longer.

Adults Have the 'Fun,' Steal Yule From Kids

ALLENHURST, N. J. — The trouble with Christmas is that the parents and grandparents take it away from the kids.

The elders feel they have full rights to the holiday because they pay for it. It is they, not the moppets, who buy the tree, fill the larders, cook the goodies, decorate tree and house and outside yard, and, most trying of all, assemble the mechanical gifts.

CONSIDINE

One of the prime reasons for the generation gap between parent or grandparent and innocent child is the self-imposed anguish of the gaffers as they go about the post-midnight job of putting together some toy or device they assumed would come completely assembled.

You are bleeding around the knuckles. You have developed a permanent charley horse in your good leg. You have gotten into 14 arguments with the old lady, who tried to tell you what you were doing wrong.

CAN'T GO TO BED

All that you know by the dawn's early light is that if the little angel doesn't flip over your handiwork when he first sees it, you'll give him a swift kick in the stomach.

At this point you should go to bed, but that's not possible in this post-Dickens year of 1969.

You've got to take pictures of the unrestrained joy of the children, don't you? Not to do so would be, well, un-American.

You don't want your kids to be deprived of a full photographic record of their merry Christmas. So you start getting everything in readiness for their cavalry charge into the room where stands the glittering tree.

CAMERAS NOT READY

In the middle of these deliberations an awakened small child breaks through and starts delightedly for a toy. You swing a Little League bat at the little girl in her nightgown and drive her out of the room. The cameras aren't ready. Her tears wake up the other children and they, too, must be restrained until things are all set for their joyful entrance.

Well, now the kids have started to disassemble all the assembled toys and eat the tree. But there's no rest for the weary parent/grandparent.

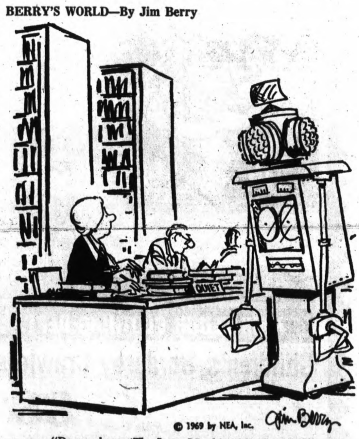

★ ★ ★

He must now start mixing the traditional yuletide eggnog. It makes him a little nauseated and does much damage to the kitchen. He loathes eggnog. He's a martini man. But mix he must. It must be ready when the neighbors drop in during the afternoon, to get away from their own punch bowls.

Yes, we sure spoil our kids. They don't know how lucky they are.

Campus Volunteers Unsung Heroes

WASHINGTON (NEA)—We all know, when we stop to think about it, that most students are not engaged daily in campus violence, and that very few are members of hate groups.

CROMLEY

Occasionally we learn (through reports compiled all-too-infrequently) of the hundreds of thousands of students quietly going about the day-to-day work of helping other people.

This reporter recently has been sent details about this kind of old-fashioned activity at one campus — Stanford University — as compiled by a student, Sue Cribari, from Fresno.

What this young woman has dug up is this:

One-fourth of the Stanford Law School student body is signed up with the Stanford Legal Aid Society.

They help men and women in distress who can't afford to hire a lawyer. Representatives work with outside legal aid groups at Redwood City and East Palo Alto under superivision of an attorney from the law school through a Stanford grant.

CLEARINGHOUSE

The Volunteer Services Center at Stanford is a clearinghouse for a sizable amount of such volunteering.

Through the center, students are steered to projects in which they help foreign students learn English, entertain blind Vietnam war veterans and hospital patients, help minority youngsters get temporary jobs, check into reports of housing discrimination, study suicide prevention, teach mentally retarded children to swim or join a tutoring program.

In the last year, the center has placed more than 800 students in activities helping their neighbors.

One senior in economics, for example, apparently on his own, began a math tutorial program for black transfer students at two nearby schools — Gunn High School and Terman Junior High — with seven students from Stanford and 12 from Gunn as tutors.

PROJECT BLOSSOMS

This semester the project has blossomed with 31 Stanford and 80 Gunn student tutors in a variety of subjects. With a grant from the San Francisco Foundation the group has bought a mobile classroom.

Members of the Stanford Black Student Union spend up to 15 hours a week giving on-the-spot tutoring to floundering pupils at Ravenswood High School in Palo Alto.

★ ★ ★

What is important about these programs is not that so much is being done by one school — Stanford. What is significant is that so far as this reporter is able to determine, the Stanford activity is duplicated at hundreds of colleges and universities throughout the country.

To this reporter, a student who volunteers 500 hours a year tutoring black children is far more impressive than a student who marches with banners. (This is not to argue that some students don't do both.)

How Americans Celebrated

Highlights of Christmas Feast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans celebrated Christmas Thursday with traditional trees and turkeys with trimmings, in churches with carols and candlelight services and in family gatherings across the land.

In Washington President Nixon and his family received a brief White House visit by former First Lady Mamie Eisenhower before they began their dinner Thursday. Mrs. Eisenhower dined with her sister, Mrs. G. Gordon Moore.

★ ★ ★

In New York, the Salvation Army served 1,000 turkey dinners to destitute men and women. Later, 200 derelicts from the Bowery—an old skid row inhabited by an estimated 6,000 alcholics—attended a Salvation Army Christmas party featuring performances by children.

The Bowery men sat along the walls while children of the Salvation Army staff sang, played and recited poems.

"These are the loneliest guys in the world," said Capt. Don Edeen of the Salvation Army. "They like to have kids around. So we brought them children for Christmas."

In Los Angeles, about 300 persons, mostly Mexicand and Mexican- Americans who are supporting a strike and boycott of California grapes, went to St. Basil's Roman Catholic church to seek the support of James Fancis Cardinal McIntyre, who was celebrating midnight Mass.

Five persons were arrested after the demonstrators pounded on the church door. Police said four were charged with conspiring to start a riot and a fifth was charged with assaulting a policeman. Several persons reported minor injuries.

In Jackson, Miss., Roman Catholic Bishop Joseph B. Brunini asked Church leaders to join in a fight against racial hatred in the wake of recent federal school desegregation orders.

'TIME IS RIPE'

Speaking during his midnight Mass sermon on Christmas Eve, Brunini said, "I think the time is quite ripe for such a united voice that it will be heard throughout Mississippi."

At Tucker Prison Farm, Ark., sixteen children of two families were given a Christmas Day party by the inmates.

Of the 307 inmates, 250 voted to contribute their $1 Christmas gifts, provided by the state, to buy presents for the children who were reported to come from families in "dire need."

In Honolulu, Mrs. James F. Armpriest said she learned her husband, a Navy engineman 1st class, had been "bumped" from a scheduled flight from Cam Ranh Bay, Vietnam. She said she had spent all her money so she and her two daughters could travel to Honolulu for a Christmas reunion.

WON'T GO HOME

Mrs. Armpriest said she would not return to her home in Cathedral City, Calif., until her husband received his rest and recreation leave in Honolulu. Navy fficials said they would expedite Armpriest's visit.

Meanwhile, Willie "The Actor" Sutton celebrated Christmas in seclusion in New York. The infamous bank robber and escape artist wan released from prison Wednesday after erving 17 years.

AP Wirephoto

HE COUGHED IT UP — Gen. Beauregard Jackson Jr., a feisty Dachshund belonging to the Walter Hawthornes of Richmond Va., looks a little sheepish after being forced by a veterinarian to "cough up" a tattered $100 bill. The bill was a Christmas gift. Fortunately, there is enough of the bill left to make it legal tender.

Heart, Lungs Transplanted in New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 43-year-old man suffering from terminal emphysema was given a new heart and lungs on Christmas Day in an operation of a kind that had been attempted only once before.

A team of 14 surgeons at New York Hospital, headed by Dr. C. Walton Lillehei, transplanted the heart and lungs of a 50-year-old woman who died of a brain hemorrhage into the man's body in a 3-hour and 13-minute operation.

★ ★ ★

A hospital announcement last night said the patient was "progressing satisfactorily." No further information is expected until later today.

A hospital spokesman said the names of both donor and recipient were being withheld at the request of relatives.

PRIOR ATTEMPT

The only previous heart-lung transplant was performed in Houston Sept. 15, 1968, by Dr. Denton Cooley of St. Luke's Hospital. Two-month-old Debra Lynn Lee received the heart and lungs of a day-old girl.

★ ★ ★

The operation had never before been attempted on a patient suffering from emphysema.

City Holiday Mailings Less, Earlier Than '68

There was less Christmas mail and earlied mailings in the Pontiac area, according to Postmaster William Donaldson.

Donaldson said earlier mailings this year eased the buildup of mail that has occurred during the week before Christmas in past years.

Total volume of mail for Dec. 1 to Dec. 22, 1969 was about 10½-million pieces in comparison to last year's total of just over 11-million pieces, Donaldson said.

He added that the Christmas mail was processed much faster this year with the use of the Mark 11 edger, stacker, facer and canceler, installed at the Post Office just prior to the holiday season.

NO EXTRA HELP

No Christmas substitutes or assistants were used this year, he said.

Post office employes, along with other federal employes, were granted an extra holiday — today — by President Nixon.

Yule 'Best Ever' as Family Learns PCH Grad Alive in N. Viet

Christmas was "the best ever" for the family of a Pontiac Central High School graduate, who Tuesday night was reported alive and well in a North Vietnamese prisoner of war camp.

Mrs. Shirley Odell of Mount Clemens, the wife of Maj. Donald E. Odell, 35, formerly of Pontiac, had not known since Oct. 17, 1967, whether her husband was alive or dead.

He had been reported by the Air Force as shot down over North Vietnam at that time.

* * *

Mrs. Odell received word Tuesday night from Randolph Air Force Base, Tex., that a letter from her husband was among the 131 prisoner letters brought back to the United States by visitors on a peace mission to North Vietnam.

"It's very, very exciting," said Mrs. Odell. "My children are on Cloud 9. The 3-year-old boy doesn't understand completely, the 5-year-old boy is out of his skin with excitement, and the two girls, 8 and 10, just jumped up on a chair and shouted, "He's alive! He's alive!"

* * *

Odell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fleig, who lived in Pontiac for many years, are now residents of Mount Clemens. Odell's brother, Eugene, still lives in the Pontiac area.

* * *

Odell met and married his wife 11 years ago. He enlisted in the Air Force at 18, then became a pilot after attending Officers Candidate School.

REASON TO CELEBRATE — Mrs. Shirley Odell, wife of Maj. Donald Odell, a Pontiac Central graduate reported alive and a prisoner of war in North Vietnam after being missing for 26 months, celebrates the "best Christmas we've ever had," with children (from left) Carol, 10; Paul, 5; David, 3, and Barbara, 8.

Storm Hits Southeast and Heads to North

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The East's first major crippling storm of the winter blew up the coast today lashing winds and dumping more than a foot of snow in some locations. Traffic was snarled in the major metropolitan centers.

The same storm system battered the Southeast Thursday with tornadoes, driving rain and snow. One twister ripped into Kaplan, La., a city of 10,000, leaving one dead and eight injured.

A Weather Bureau spokesman said the snow today would turn to rain from New York City south along the coast while the storm center pushed north through New England.

Rain began falling early today in downtown Washington, D.C., after 4.3 inches of snow had accumulated. Roanoke, Va., had 15 inches of snow and Charlottesville, Va., 13 inches with snow still falling in both cities.

DAY OFF

The thousands of government employes who drive to work in Washington from Virginia and Maryland suburbs were not faced with the task of confronting the snow-clogged highways today. President Nixon earlier this week gave federal workers today off for an extended Christmas vacation.

Commuting promised to be difficult in New York City where police reported hundreds of motorists had abandoned their cars on the streets as the wind-whipped snow piled in drifts. Towing efforts were under way.

Nearly 3 inches of snow had fallen on New York by 3 a.m. and the total accumulation was expected to be 4 to 6 inches with winds from 35 to 45 miles per hour.

Weathermen said the snow extended from Georgia up the coast through New England and as far west as the Great Lakes.

WARNINGS IN EFFECT

Heavy snow warnings were in effect for the western portion of North Carolina with up to 4 inches expected. West Jefferson, N.C., in the mountains, recorded 16 to 18 inches of snow by 10 p.m. Thursday.

Telephone and electric lines were down in a large area in North Carolina.

Fifteen counties in Maryland put emergency snow plans into effect, requiring use of snow tires or claims on designates main arteries. Accumulations 5 to 10 inches were reported in the state.

Up to 11 inches of snow was reported in Pennsylvania.

Upstate New York, under a blanket of white with more snow expected, went through one of the coldest Christmas Days since the Weather Bureau began keeping records. Albany had a record 22 degrees below zero in the early morning—the coldest temperature ever recorded there in December.

The snow started about midnight in southern New England with predictions of 6 inches for most of the six states except coastal regions in southeastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Mixed Reaction to Nixon Move

Foreign Press Eyes Troop Cut

LONDON (AP) — British newspapers gave a mixed reception to President Nixon's announcement last week that 50,000 more American troops are being withdrawn for Vietnam by next April.

"President Nixon's cautiously optimistic statement and the accompanying situations both in Vietnam and on the American home front are the most encouraging almost since serious fighting began," said the conservative Daily Telegraph.

"The (antiwar) demonstrators are now in disarray, while public opinion is giving impressive majority support for the President's policy of transferring the burden of the war to the South Vietnamese as fast as possible consistent with safety."

The liberal Guardian sounded a warning: "Is it realistic to hope that what half a million American soldiers failed to do can be accomplished by withdrawing them? When the Americans have gone, or nearly gone, Hanoi will still be there. If the North is tired now it can recover, and if it is divided it can regain its unity."

'SHIFT AWAY'

The independent Times of London said the President's speech indicated "a shift away from the hopes of a settlement" toward the prospect of "prolonged if smaller scale fighting in which American participation will grow less and less."

★ ★ ★

Japan's biggest newspaper, Asahi Shimbun, said the administration has shifted "from its previous two-point policy for ending the war—political settlement through negotiations and military settlement on the battlefield—to a single policy of military settlement."

★ ★ ★

How can Nixon say that top importance is being placed on the Paris talks when the U.S. delegate as well as his deputy have been withdrawn, and moreover it has been made clear that the appointment of their successors is not expected to be made in the immediate future?" the paper asked.

★ ★ ★

In West German, the Frankfurter Allgemeine called with withdrawal announcement "a political Christmas gift." The newspaper said the "opposition in the United States is crumbling. . . . the masis for a new Vietnam policy has become more stable."

'DECEITFUL TRICKS'

Communist newspapers in Hong Kong said the troop withdrawals "are only deceitful tricks that do not change America's policy of prolonging the war and occupying Vietnam forever."

★ ★ ★

Stewart Steven, foreign editor of the London Daily Express, wrote after a visit to the United States that "Democracy is being tested to the utmost."

★ ★ ★

"There are evils in this society," he said "but the Americans are beginning to tackle them with a vigor and above all with an honesty which is both compelling and refreshing . . .

★ ★ ★

"The '70s will still find the Americans looking for their spiritual goal—the truly just society. By the '80s I believe they will have found it."

★ ★ ★

In the Soviet Union, the Communist party newspaper Pravda accused America of a campaign to exterminate the Black Panthers. The paper's New York correspondent, N. Kurdyumov, wrote of the recent killings of Black Panthers:

★ ★ ★

"Political terror has always been a feature of American 'democracy' . . . the U.S. reaction has never stopped at physical extermination of Negro leaders when methods such as intimidations, bribes and provocations proved ineffective."

Heart Devices Seen in 1970s

Veteran Researcher Makes Prediction

By WILLIAM L. VAUGHN

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — A Japanese scientist believes the trailblazing human heart transplants of the late 1960s may give way in the coming decade to manmade devices ranging from boosters to entirely artificial hearts.

The prediction comes from Dr. Tetsuzo Akutsu, one of the world's recognized authorities in artificial heart development.

He has been perfecting several devices in the laboratories of the University of Mississippi Medical Center's School of Medicine.

The estimate cannot be taken lightly from a veteran researcher who performed a successful implantation of an articicial heart into an animal as long ago as 1957, and in the dozen years since has developed 20 of the 30 functional artificial hearts.

SHORT-LIVED

However, underscoring the need for further advances is the length of survival of the 1957 research dog and a sheep that earlier this year set a world's record for survival with an artificial heart implanted by Akutsu's team. The first dog lived about two hours. The sheep lived 55.

★ ★ ★

Even the 55-hour success which might allow time for a donor heart to be obtained is below the criteria Akutsu sets for implantation of artificial heart devices in humans.

"I would say, if we can get long survival, for instance 80 per cent of the experiments with animals can survive for 10 days, then I think it's time to use it in patients who are waiting for donor hearts," he said.

★ ★ ★

Akutsu's artificial hearts remove any element of luck from a functional viewpoint. Mechanically, the problems are mostly solved. The heart is made of silicone rubber with an impregnated dacron web for strength and an external compressed air source provides power to perform the heart's pumping functions.

2 ADVANTAGES

Two immediate advantages over organ transplants are evident: lack of rejection factors and availability of "hearts."

In their place stands an almost equal bugaboo: blood clotting. A breakthrough on this problem would place the 10-year goal of permanent artificial hearts within reach.

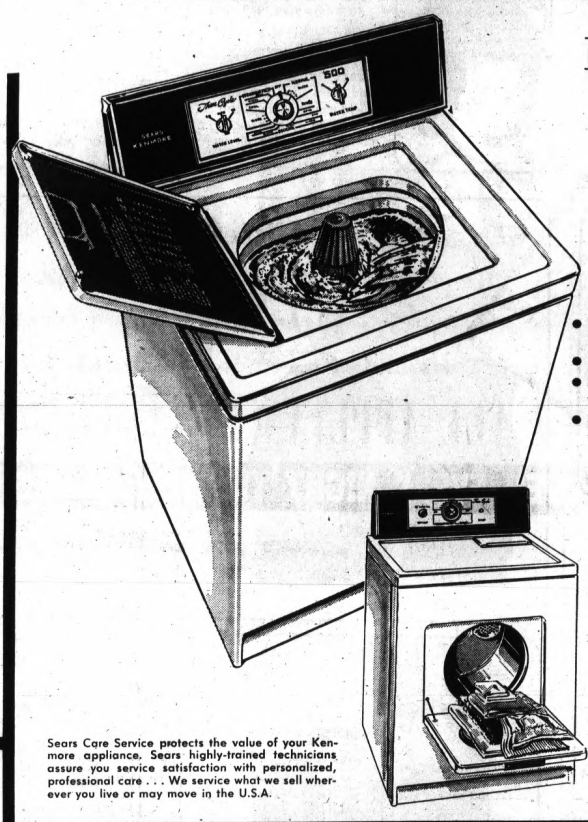

★ ★ ★

What is needed, said Akutsu, is for polymer chemists to develop a material specially for the medical field, one that does not cause clotting.

Dame Judith Anderson

Famous Actress Is Preparing to Play Hamlet

(EDITOR'S NOTE—To be or not to be a woman, that is the question casting the title role in "Hamlet." Dame Judith Anderson has decided the part can be played as well by a woman as a man and she is prepared to suffer the slings and arrows of outHamlet in a new production.)

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK — For Dame Judith Anderson the time has come to fence, run, shout — and close her ears.

It is all part of the veteran star's preparation for an extensive tour as the dark hero of Shakespear's "Hamlet."

"I'll be getting advice from all sides," she says, explaining the subliminal deafness, "but I don't want to hear any theories about the role or how a woman should play it."

* * *

The assorted callisthenics, for the next few months on the beach by her California home, are standard Anderson procedure and preproduction discipline, born of long experience in widely assorted roles.

Performing the Melancholy Dane has been in her mind since an almost-production on Broadway a decade back, and has come about now chiefly because of her blunt distaste for what's going on in today's theater.

CALLED DISGUSTING

"There isn't anything I want to see or hear," she snubs. "You hear about 'Hair' and 'Oh! Calcutta!', 'and it's all disgusting to me."

As for fresh scripts that come her way — "I don't want to waste my remaining years waiting for something that I have respect for." Besides, doing Hamlet is "my way of communicating with and doing something for youth."

* * *

Dame Judith likes to recall those long lines of students at the box office when she travelled cross-country several seasons ago with compact editions of "Macbeth" and "Medea," her most famous chacterization.

"Hamlet" is to be a full-size version, using the very test used in Sir John Gielgud's 1937 production, in which she portrayed Gertrude. Doing five performances a week, the six-month tour will mainly play schools and universities from coast to coast, with a single performance at New York's Carnegie Hall.

NO BIG NOTIONS

"It isn't that I'm avoding criticism," says Miss Anderson with an on-stage majestic wave of the arm, "but I'm not setting out with any idea of pitting myself against the great male Hamlets either.

This is going to be a production without any tricks — and that might start a whole trend, mightn't it?"

* * *

With her auburn tresses — trimmed to mannish, unhippie length, the dynamic little artist will fit herself further to the part by wearing a black pullover with slacks, rather than leg-tight hose.

Although she has ranged widely from classics to contemporary drama to Jerry Lewis comedy in a career spanning more than half a century. Dame Judith has never before essayed a male part, somehow having even overlooked Peter Pan.

IRRESTISTIBLE LURE

Hamlet has, however, proved an irresistible attraction to distinguished actresses over the centuries, from Sarah Siddons in 1775, to Charlotte Cushman in 1851, Sarah Bernhardt in 1899, and Eva Le Gallienne and Siobhan McKenna in recent years.

* * *

"The majority of great parts are written for men," Dame Judith Declares. "I don't think of Hamlet as either male or female. It encompasses every emotional note on the scale."

* * *

Paul Gregory, for whom she worked in "John Brown's Body," is sponsoring the tour and many direct. Until rehearsals start, the star prefers "to absorb rather than learn the lines."

The only point upon which Miss Anderson begs privacy is her precise age, even though it's a matter of public record.

GRANDMOTHERLY AGE

"It's just, "she says as her blue eyes twinkle, "I don't want some college youngster seeing it and saying, "ye gods, she's older than my grandmother."

* * *

Dame Judith just hopes that performances will soar like the dress rehearsal of the Gielgud production which stands out so brilliantly in her memory.

* * *

She recalls, too, having seen Walter Hampden in the challenging role years ago.

"I wrote in my diary, 'Scholarly performance, but one must be inspired to play Hamlet.'

* * *

"Maybe someone will say that very thing about me," she slowly adds, "but there will still be reward. The stage is the place for an actor to be, more than in film or television.

"I like that curtain to go up and the heart to stop with great expectancy."

Regime on Formosa Is Considering Reorganization of Its Army

By LEONARD PRATT

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Nationalist China is thinking about reorganizing its 375,000-man army for the first time since Chaing Kai-shek's government retreated to Formosa in 1949.

U.S. military advisers say the plan would mothball several divisions of the Nationalists' two field armies and provide the rest with up-to-date arms and equipment.

★ ★ ★

"We're teaching them the lessons of Vietnam and Israel," said Maj. Gen. Richard C. Ciccolella, "and those are the lessons of firepower and mobility, not of numbers."

Ciccolella, head of the U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG) on Formosa, is guessing that the Nationalists will accept the plan.

The reorganization looks like the answer of Chiang Ching-kuo, Chiang Kai-shek's son and heir-apparent, to the Nationalists' two most pressing military problems. These are cuts in U.S. military aid over the last two years, and a lack of middle-level officers.

In 1967 the military assistance program to Formosa spent $90-100 million. This program and the MAAG staff it pays for have been cut by more than half since then. The Nationalists had to make up the difference. So far the armed forces have been kept at levels equal to those Chaing brought with him from mainland China in 1949.

MAAG estimates the military takes 46 per cent of Formosa's national budget. That depends on how you figure it; some point to various hidden funds and disguised expenses to indicate actual military costs take some 60 per cent.

Whatever the true figure, it is high for an island with Formosa's economic ambitions.

NONPRODUCTIVE NEEDS

Moreover, much military spending goes to largely nonproductive needs—pay, allowances and retirement benefits for 175,000 servicemen who have retired since 1955.

The government's second military problem is more of its own making.

★ ★ ★

"The way they're going now, they'll run out of captains and majors in two years," said one U.S. officer.

The reason is poor pay.

A master sergeant receives $44 a month and a lieutenant general $96, though perquisites boost this base pay somewhat.

The average Taipei truck driver earns $79 a month; a business clerk $101.

One result of the army's failure to keep up with Formosa's booming economy is that only four of 100 draftees stay in the service after their two-year hitch is up. Another is that those who remain in the army are older career men. Thus 72 per cent of the army is either under 25 or over 40, with the middle-age category of captains and majors taking up only 28 per cent of all men in uniform.

MAAG feels the army is top-heavy, with 1,200 generals and more sergeants than privates. Junior officers have little hope of promotion, and their morale sometimes shows it.

To deal with these problems, MAAG has presented a comprehensive restructuring plan which is receiving "favorable consideration," Ciccolella said. "If they accept the plan," he added, "they'll have an army four to five times as effective as it was three years ago, in terms of delivery of firepower, mobility and unit control."

Several divisions would be put on reserve status to save money.

President Chiang's annual military review was not held this year largely because of the gasoline and ammunition the three days of exercises would have burned up. Savings such as this will go toward raising military pay scales to make them more competitive with civilian jobs, under the MAAG Plan. The draft system which currently inducts almost everyone eligible, will also be restructured.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps the most important new item to enter the Nationalist arsenal is the UH1H helicopter that has proven itself in Vietnam. Under a coproduction program, Bell Helicopter Co., Burbank, Calif., is training Chinese technicians in the United States and producing major parts for assembly in Formosa. The island will gradually take over parts manufacture with the aim of producing 50 helicopters on their own by 1972.

★ ★ ★

Recently delivered F5 fighters are replacing F86s of Korean War vintage, and older F100s or F104s. Several hundred tanks have been received from Vietnam under a salvage arrangement.

Formosa is producing its own M14 rifles, machine guns, ammunition, trucks and radios, also on a coproduction basis.

LESS COSTLY

Before 1968 U.S. Army vehicles damaged in Vietnam had to go to either Japan or the United States to be repaired. Ciccolella arranged to have the work done here for one-quarter of what it would cost in Japan and one-tenth what it would cost in the United States. Transportation costs also are lower. Estimates call for a $5.4-million Nationalist profit on this work in 1970. Such profits are spent buying military equipment from the United States.

If and when the Nationalists accept the reorganization package it will probably not be announced, but effected quietly behind the heavy curtain of secrecy that surrounds military activities here.

Gen. Chaing Ching-kuo, 59, has made a reputation as a military man and as a government administrator. Recent cabinet appointments, though bearing his father's seal, have all gone to nonpolitical experts, not to Kuomintang politicians.

Viet Corruption Fight Failing

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. and South Vietnamese officials are agreed that corruption is an evil that must be curbed if the war is to be won. But all the talk has led only to meager results.

In 1966, Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky, now vice president, threatened summary executions for war profiteers. A firing squad shot a Chinese millionaire. But no one was impressed. Government officials and military officers continued to live off bribes, payoffs, kickbacks and squeeze.

★ ★ ★

In 1967, Premier Nguyen Van Loc, a Ky protege, promised "to eradicate corruption and bad practices from the top to the bottom" of the government. Nothing was done.

★ ★ ★

In 1968, Loc's replacement, Premier Tran Van Huong, a man respected for incorruptibility, made the fight against corruption the highest priority effort of his administration.

NO ACTION BY THIEU

Huong sent President Nguyen Van Thieu the dossiers of more than 60 high-ranking officials and military officers who had been charged with corruption. Thieu did not act on the charges.

In late 1969, the Inspectorate, an 18-man watchdog body specifically charged with fighting corruption, recommended the transfer of an army general.

Gen. Nguyen Van Toan, commander of the 2nd Infantry Division, was accused by the Inspectorate of using military trucks to transport costly cinnamon for private profit.

This was an important test case, since it was the first time a South Vietnamese army general had been officially charged with corruption.

PROMOTION

President Thieu refused to dismiss and transfer Toan as the Inspectorate had recommended. He promoted the general instead.

Since then, the Inspectorate has been considered a toothless tiger.

Thieu's problem is that if he moves against generals and colonels who are growing rich off the war, he would undercut some supporters. He cannot afford to alienate the men who brought him to power.

What makes the situation more difficult is that corruption may touch the most effective battlefield commanders. Gen. Toan, for instance, is considered a good fighting man.

'UNPRECEDENTED'

"To punish a general for corruption would be unprecedented," said a diplomat as the "Cinnamon Case" involving Gen. Toan drew to a close. "I'm afraid that as long as the war goes on, the other generals simply will not permit that to happen."

Over the years, there have been periodic crackdowns on vendors of stolen or illegally purchased U.S. post exchange goods.

But these raids hurt only the small fry in the trade. The big fish, for example those involved in black market money manipulations, have continued to go about their business undisturbed.

At the lower levels of the Saigon government, inflation contributes to corruption.

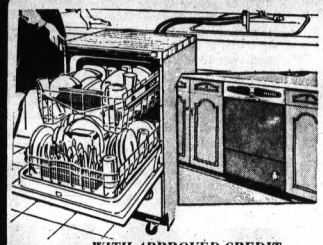

With prices constantly rising as a by-product of the war, underpaid civil servants and policemen are practically forced to demand bribes in order to survive.

Asset Underlies the Scottish Kilt

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Scots should guard their national identity as an asset worth money, a government report on tourism contends after a three-year survey.

"The kilt and tartan have given us a recognizable image from Tokyo to Montreal, and a head start over other countries with no such handy visual label," it said.

Need for More Black Doctors Is Stressed

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.
Executive Director, National Urban League

It's generally agreed that there is a shortage of doctors and other health personnel in America, but in the black ghetto that shortage has reached crisis proportions.

YOUNG

Most white doctors set up their practices outside the ghetto, and there aren't enough black doctors to serve the millions of people in the ghettos of our cities. And the situation is worse in rural areas.

Only about two per cent of the nation's doctors are black, and that figure isn't likely to change in the coming years. About 36,000 students are enrolled in medical schools, and less than 900 are black.

But the majority of these students attend Meharry or Howard—the two Negro medical schools. So less than one per cent of the students attending nearly 100 other medical schools are black.

MANY SCHOOLS DISCRIMINATORY

The reasons are many. Medical education is long and expensive; beyond the reach of most poor youngsters, or even of those from many middle-class families. Medical schools, although most have changed their policies now, have a history of discriminating against blacks, so many students are discouraged from pursuing medical careers.

Then too, misleading test results often bar students from entrance to medical schools, although such tests aren't good predictors of professional success. Present admissions criteria have to be revised.

* * *

Black students have to be educated to consider careers in the medical profession, and the medical schools and professional organizations have to be educated to their responsibility for increasing the opportunities — through special recruitment and training programs — available to black students.

It's especially important to interest high school students in medical careers — and high school guidance counselors who so often steer black students away from medicine or from other professions, have to be educated to the new opportunities available to black students and to the need to motivate youngsters to aspire to the top.

SCIENCE STUDENT CONFERENCE

Such an educational job is part of the purpose of a conference held by the Black Science Students Organization of New York's City College last weekend. It was an example of the constructive work being done by so many concerned black students and their organizations.

It's vitally important that governments and medical schools expand the numbers of black medical students. One way, of course, is to admit more blacks and provide the financial assistance that will enable poor young men and women to carry on their educations.

* * *

Another way would be to open up professional opportunities for men who have served in medical units in the armed forces. Thousands of young men who never saw the inside of a college have been performing medical work under combat conditions. Special programs to bring them into the medical profession after they leave the army should be set up.

Increasing the numbers of black doctors and medical men won't automatically solve the health problems in the ghetto, but it would go far in improving the way health services are delivered to the poor.

DUAL HEALTH-CARE SYSTEM

We now have a dual system of health care. The well-off can afford to buy good medical treatment. They get regular checkups and get proper care when ill.

But the poor must travel for miles to the nearest clinic where they spend hours waiting on hard benches for treatment. The care they get is relatively casual and almost always aimed at curing, rather than preventing, disease.

* * *

Recruiting more black doctors or more doctors from poor families will go a long way towards reforming this system of neglect. A medical corps of concerned professionals is needed to help bring better services to neighborhoods through health clinics and outreach programs, and through a more humanistic approach to the health needs of millions of citizens.

Refugees Take Themselves off Welfare

DA NANG, South Vietnam (UPI) — Five thousand refugees in this coastal city are taking themselves off the welfare roll at a personal cost of about $60,000.

For four years, they have lived in a squalid camp of tin and cardboard shanties. Their homes, some hardly bigger than doghouses, are infected with rats and permeated with disease.

The refugees, however, have had enough.

Last September, a new settlement of cement-block duplexes with individual outside latrines began to take form on a sandy 50-acre plot near the South China Sea. The first families are scheduled to move there in a few weeks.

REFUGEE COMMUNITY

The fledgling village, known as Dong Phuoc, is one of hundreds of refugees communities in South Vietnam. Most have been built and financed and maintained, directly or indirectly, by Saigon or Washington. But Dong Phuoc is different.

The 852 refugee families, the last among Da Nang's 382,000 residents, are paying for nearly half the project's $250,000 cost themselves. They are constructing the 426 units themselves. Nowhere in sight is there any U.S. equipment or servicemen.

"When the military gets involved in these projects, often all they care about is getting the job done," said Thomas McKee, the U.S. refugee adviser to Da Nang. "They don't care what the people want, and as a result the people don't show much interest."

Most of the refugee families moved into Da Nang from outlying districts around Dien Ban, 15 miles south, in 1965. They moved, officials said, either to find more security or to seek economic advancement provided by Da Nang's inflated economy.

'STAYED OUT'

U.S. advisers admit the villagers' enthusiasm could wear thin and Dong Phuoc might become another shantytown like their present settlement one mile away. In that community, the latrine is a nearby field and the garbage dump is any one of the dirt paths winding between the rows of shacks.

* * *

"But this time we've stayed out of the projects," one American said. "We haven't tried to shove anything down their throats. It's up to the people, not us, whether it works or fails."

Artist Puts Max Fashions Out on a Limb

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Hot on the heels of the maxifashions, we now have the Max fashions - avant-garde artist Peter Max, that is.

Actually, they're not only on the heels, but also on the toes, calves, knees and thighs of a new collection of hosiery that bears his cosmic designs.

The 30-year-old exponent of art nouveau for the masses followed his initial success with psychedelic posters by putting his bold and colorful imprint on clocks, toys, towels, dishes, napkins, ashtrays, scarves, stationery and even the sides of buses.

* * *

Now, looking for new spaces to conquer, Max has gone out on a limb — and given a new meaning to the term "leg art." His brilliant-hued geometrics, flower fantasies, constellations and clouds are placed strategically at various levels from below the miniest skirt, on down to the foot, where even a maxicoat enthusiast can show her colors.

GALAXY OF STARS

In between there are designs just above the knee, as well as a galaxy of stars that enhances the countour of the upper leg, a portion of female anatomy the artist feels has been outrageously neglected.

"An over-all hosiery pattern doesn't really mean anything for the leg," insists the long-haired, black-mustached, colorfully clad Max. "The structure below the kne is different from that above, and the leg has to be designed, with emphasis on certain areas."

* * *

Although the daring ornamentation is admittedly "beamed at the young spirited individualist who wants to establish her own identity to create her very own version of fashion," he adds that "any woman with a well-shaped leg can wear them."

The posters with which Max achieved instant fame a few years ago hang in museums all over the world, but he considers his most important galleries the store counters where items that bear his designs are sold.

PRESENT TREND

"The present art trend," he says, "is to put work on products, canvas and everything that can take a graphic reproduction."

Born in Germany, the softspoken artist came to this country via Shanghai, Tibet, Israel, where he studied astronomy, and France. He became interested in yoga, and in Paris found Swami Satchidananda, persuaded him to come to New York, and now they work together at the Integral Yoga Institute.

* * *

Though his head may be up in the clouds in pursuit of cosmic wisdom, when it comes to innovative commercialism, Max's feet are planted on the ground as firmly as he hopes feminine feet will be planted in his starstudded stockings.

Yule Storybook for the Blind

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Unlike most Christmas storybooks for children, "Expectations" is printed on presses that use no ink and checked for errors by readers who cannot read, with their eyes.

It's a storybook in Braille for blind youngsters.

Some 4,000 copies of "Expectations" have been requested from the Braille Institute of America Inc., which compiled it. The hefty volume contains six complete contemporary books for children, plus modern stories and poems.

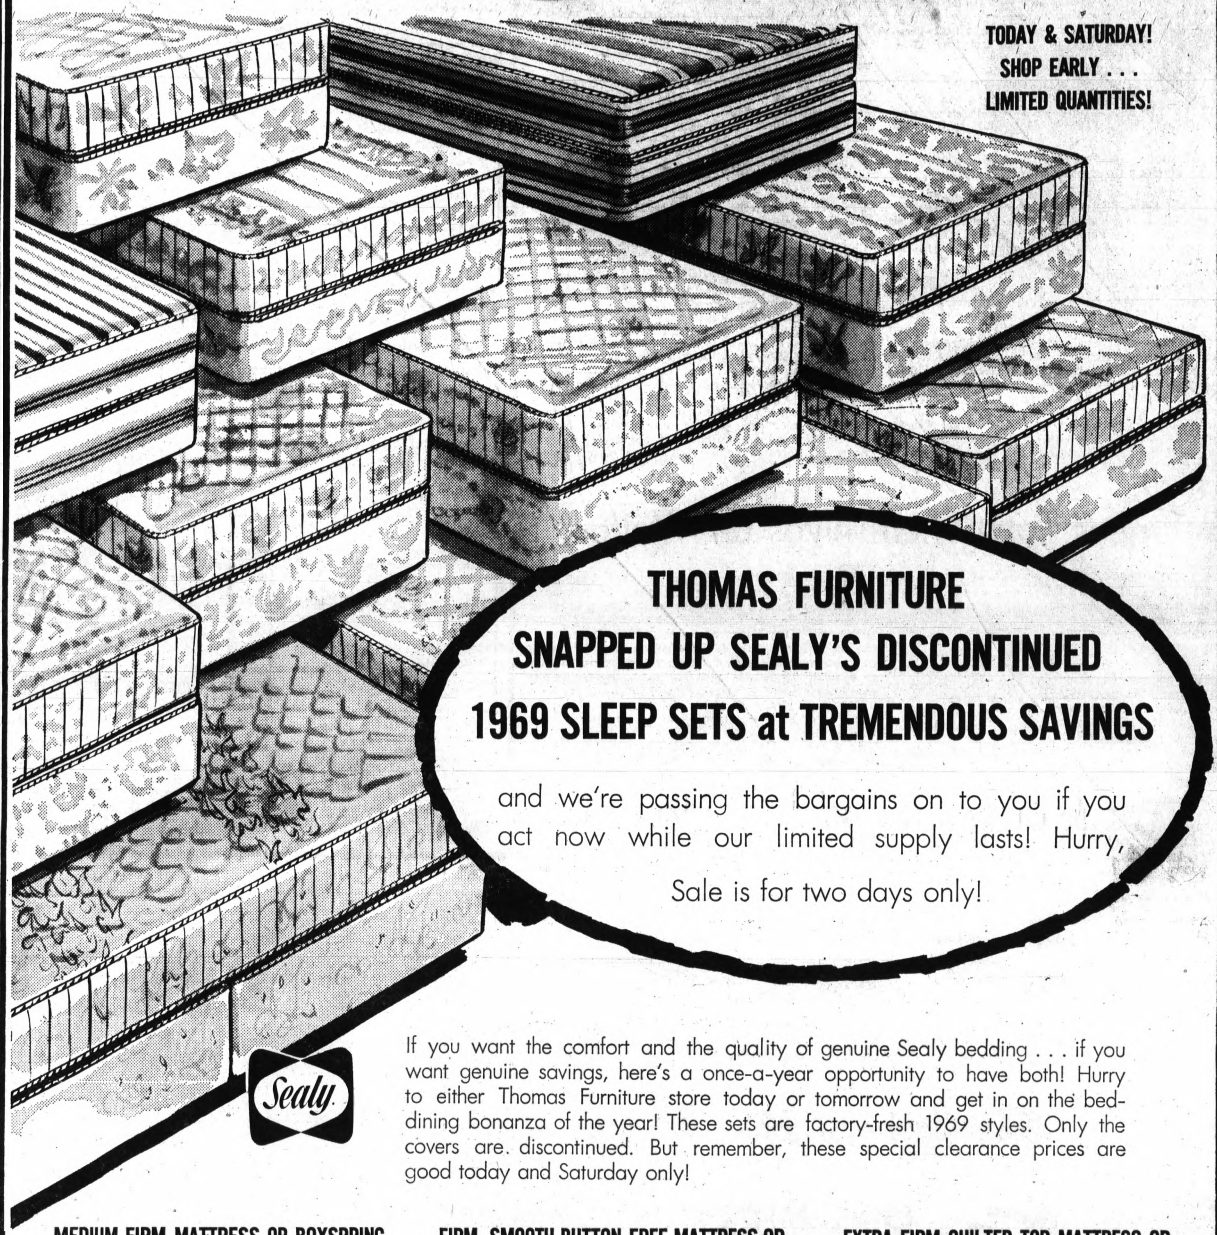

Betty Kalagian, editor of the volume, said the institute is making it avaliable to blind children in grades three through six. The $5 per volume cost is being covered by donations.

"Blind children like the same reading material as sighted children," Mrs. Kalagian said, but Braille readers often appreciate material that appeals to senses other than sight.

So "Expectations" also includes two pages of embossed "touch and see" pictures.

A thought for the day: American poet Edwin Markham said, "why build these cities glorious if man unbuilded goes. In vain we build the world, unless the builder also grows."

Wives Wait, Hope, Pray for Return of Missing Vietnam Servicemen

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a four-part series concerning the wives of American servicemen missing in action in Vietnam.)

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

VIRGINIA BEACH, VA.—"One chute opened. For 15 months, we didn't know whether it was my husband's chute or not. You sit back and you live one day at a time. Then you get through today, tomorrow. You don't look ahead. I can't believe that next year I'll be in the same situation."

Mrs. Brady, smartly dressed in a burgundy blouse and tweed culottes, is aware of profound personal changes.

★ ★ ★

"I'm not as selfish as I was," she says. "Everything was going so well for us. Each job he asked for, he got. He wanted to be squadron commander—he got it.

"We had an awful lot. We lived in the mainstream of life. One has to stop and think what is important about life. I respect it a great deal more now than ever before."

Jean Ellison, whose husband, Navy Cmdr. John Ellison, Layton, Utah, was shot down three years ago, has this to live on for hope: her husband's name was once brought back by a released prisoner.

NO WORD

Does she write? Every month. She's never had a reply.

"For a long time, we didn't know anything. I chose to believe he was alive. Then I had this word . . ." said Jean.

They were married 14 years when he was shot down —17 now. They have four children.

★ ★ ★

When Cmdr. W. E. Wilber, of Millorton, Pa., was shot down over North Vietnam 18 months ago, someone on the ground from the downed plane made contact with a wing man from their carrier.

"That's my hope. That's what I've gone on," says Jeanne Wilber, whose wavy short hair frames a soft, oval-shaped face.

★ ★ ★

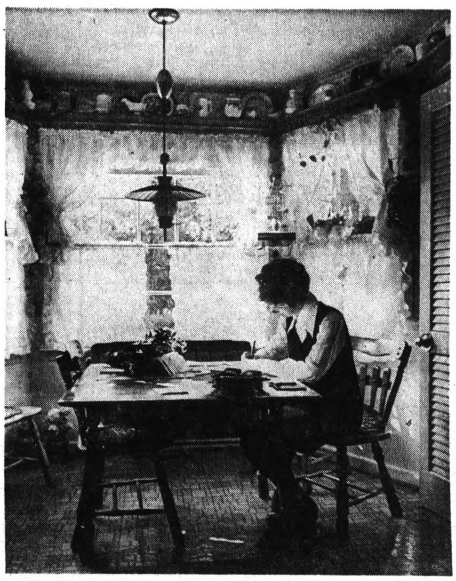

"I was home for my Dad's death, when I heard that he was missing in action. And that night, I was looking out at the darkness and I just knew Gene (her husband) was alive. I really felt it. I'd know if he were dead."

This gentle, soft-spoken woman is as sure of her husband's strength as her own.

★ ★ ★

"I knew Gene's mind and strength before he left. This surely will sustain him. We know he has a Comforter . . . or we wouldn't have this peace over our house, the way we do. When the Lord made us, He made us truly one."

Mrs. Wilber fills her time caring for her youngsters and serves as choir director for the Founder Methodist Church.

Mrs. Jeanne Wilber writes from Virginia Beach, Va., the letter to her husband permitted once a month by North Vietnam's government for prisoners of war. Navy Cmdr. W. E. Wilber was shot down 18 months ago. His wife has had no word of his condition; does not know whether he is alive or dead or whether her letters are ever received.

Is Heart Trouble a Hoax? Wife Should Ask Doctor

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: After being married to Lester for eight years, he developed a heart condition. He was able to work at his job, but he did less and less around the house, until now he just won't do a thing. I do all the yard work, painting, and everything there is to do when you own a home.

A friend came by the other day and saw me shoveling snow. He asked me why I was breaking my back that way and I said, "Well you know Lester can't do this on account of he has a heart condition." All he said was, "Why don't you wise up?" Then he drove off.

Now this has started me to thinking. Lester can go fishing and hunting and do all the things he likes to do. He even drives 500 miles to visit his folks. He says it "relaxes" him to drive. I would ask his doctor, but he and Lester are friends. So could you please find out if driving 500 miles is "relaxing?" It tires me out. Thank you.

ANXIOUS TO HEAR

DEAR ANXIOUS: It tires most people out. But I think what you really want to know is whether your husband has been putting one over on you. His doctor is the one who can tell you what a man in Lester's condition can and cannot safely do. I suggest you ask him. And don't assume that because he and Lester are "friends," they are in kahoots. Most doctors are on the up and up.

DEAR ABBY: Linguistics is a science — not a guessing game. If you want the etymology of the word "COP," here it is:

Without going back beyond Latin, the modern word is derived from "CAPARE," meaning "to seize or take captive."

There was an Old English word COPSE meaning "fetters" and this word also became "COPS." (CUFF and possibly HANDCUFF are derived from this root.)

The "constable on patrol" type of explanation is what is called "folk etymology," which means that it is often clever, sometimes convincing, but utterly without factual foundation. "COP" is a legitimate word for policeman, and not an acronym. Very truly yours,

FREDERICK MONTESER, Ph.D.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's parents have recently retired and moved to our town in order to be near their only child — my husband. They are fairly well off now, and have helped us out financially in the past.

The problem is that we have a new baby, just three months old, and every night the grandparents come over here and pass the baby around between each other until he is so fretful that he cries for hours after they leave.

I have asked my husband to drop a hint in their direction to leave the little guy alone, but my husband says, "They aren't hurting the baby. I think you're just looking for some reason to hurt my parents' feelings." Then he accuses me of being ungrateful for all his folks have done for us. That's not true. I AM grateful, but not enough to jeopardize my baby's health.

I am desperate enough to pack up my baby, and leave my husband to his parents. I have wonderful parents of my own living in another state who would be glad to have me. Please help me.

NEW MOMMY

DEAR NEW: Be fair. Do you really fear that the health of your baby will be jeopardized because your in-laws "handle" him so much? I suspect that other things are bugging you. Don't pack up and go anywhere. Try to understand the real reasons for your irritation. I think you probably need someone to talk to. How about your clergyman?

DEAR ABBY: For 27 years my husband and I have had a very good marriage. Then out of the blue, five months ago, I found him in the arms of a young woman who lived in one of our apartments. I kicked him out, and now he is living openly with HER. We haven't even had a preliminary hearing in court yet, so you can imagine how shocked I was to learn that a close relative of MINE had invited my husband and this woman to her home for dinner.

I think that by doing this she is condoning what he did. Am I wrong? Also, if my husband is invited to dinner or any function and he brings HER, uninvited, would it be in order to ask them to leave?

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED: In answer to your first question, NO. To your second, YES.

Best Christmas Present of All Arrives at Gary E. Downey Home

SHIRLEY GRAY

If Santa Claus did happen to sail right over the Gary E. Downey home on Kirkshire in Birmingham without stopping Wednesday night, it's doubtful if the man of the house even noticed.

His Christmas present had already been delivered — a bouncing baby boy, born Dec. 12 at Beaumont Hospital. Says Mrs. Downey, the former Sally Cunningham, "Gary's in Heaven — he can't believe it!"

Little Gary Edward Jr. is the couple's second child. Their daughter, Blair, is three.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Cunningham and the William D. Downeys, all of Bloomfield Hills.

HONEYMOON

Newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Rodney F. Kimberley, are honeymooning in balmy Nassau after their wedding Saturday.

The bride is the former Barbara Anne MacDonald, daughter of Ford Motor exec Harold C. MacDonald and Mrs. MacDonald of Bloomfield Hills. Rodney's parents are the Donald F. Kimberleys of Royal Oak.

After Nassau, it's back to work — Barbara to teach elementary, Rodney to toil at the family business.

The William T. McNaughtons hosted a brunch recently at Orchard Lake Country Club in honor of son William Jr. Bill and his bride of not quite a year, Edie, are visiting here from Fort Rucker in Alabama, where he is in helicopter training.

The pair will be here until Jan. 4, then back to the base, where he expects to graduate to the status of warrant officer in February.

Neatness Counts

Job Applicants Should Take Heed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's businessmen have become increasingly tolerant of beards, mini-skirts and other "now" styles on current employes but they often refuse to hire job applicants sporting the mod look.

A survey, sponsored jointly by the American Society for Personnel Administration and the Bureau of National Affairs Inc., drew responses for more than 150 personnel executives from a cross-section of American business. These were the results:

- Almost 80 per cent of the employers would take a clean-shaven individual if other things were equal. But 80 per cent of the firms either had no objection to a beard on an already-hired employe, or would object only in extreme cases.
- Almost 60 per cent of the companies said they would be likely to reject a woman applicant who appeared in a mini-skirt but 45 per cent of the employers said they have no objection to mini-skirts on employes. Another 41 per cent said they have no set rule.
- About 90 per cent of the employers said they would turn down a male applicant with shoulder-length hair and the same percentage said they also object to their employes wearing long hair.
- Long sideburns and mustaches have won general acceptance.
- Fifty per cent of the firms absolutely forbid see-through blouses on employes and almost all indicated they would be unlikely to hire a woman applicant who appeared in one.
- An Afro hairstyle on a black applicant would be acceptable by 47 per cent of the companies for women and 41 per cent for men. It would be regarded as a negative factor for both sexes by 42 per cent of the companies and 16 per cent said they would flatly refuse to hire a man wearing one and 11 per cent said they would reject such a woman.

Birth Control Pioneer Fled Prosecution

NEW YORK (WMNS) — A woman who fled a trial for what she considered an unjust law is the heroine of two new biographies for adolescents — "Margaret Sanger: Rebel with a Cause" by Virginia Coigney and "Margaret Sanger: Pioneer of Birth Control" by Lawrence Lader and Milton Meltzer.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Sanger ran away to Europe in 1914 after her arrest for sending birth control propaganda through the mails, which remained an illegal act until 1936.

★ ★ ★

The dedicated fighter for woman's "absolute right to dispose or withold herself, to procreate or to suppress the germ of life" was arrested eight other times. For opening the country's first birth control clinic, she served 30 days in jail.

★ ★ ★

In the last years of her long life (she died in 1966), the impetuous rebel with melting charm helped finance scientific investigations that eventually led to history's most reliable contraceptive — the birth control pill.

Quake Victims Give Thanks

By RICHARD M. SUDHALTER

BANJA LUKA, Yugoslavia (UPI) — The snow kept falling heavy and deep on Banja Luka. Viktoria Gamberger slammed her door shut against the cold.

"We've celebrated Christmas together every year since the war, giving thanks for what the years brought us," she said, stamping snow off her boots.

"We did it this year, too — we had a lot to be thankful for."

With a nod of her greying head, the 50-year-old grandmother indicated an assortment of clothes cupboards, mirrors and chairs lining the walls of the 12x12-foot wood and tarpaper shack.

★ ★ ★

"This is all we have left — but we're lucky to have even that," she said. "Come here. I'll show you something."

She led me to the shack's lone window, no more than a foot square. Through it, through the snow and gathering dark, I could see a heap of stone, brick and timber with half a dozen persons working atop it.

"That used to be our house. It collapsed completely when the earthquakes came," she said. "We were lucky to get out alive."

HOMELESS

Twin earthquakes devastated this Central Yugoslav city Oct. 26-27; 80,000 persons were made homeless.

This shack now houses Viktoria, her daughter, son-in-law, two nephews and a baby born immediately after the quakes. It will be their only home at least until spring, perhaps even longer.

"It's not all that bad," Viktoria said. She put water on the electric stove. "We got electricity two days ago. That means we can at least cook."

But the old wood-burner in the corner still supplies the heat. It's cheaper, and nights in Banja Luka are plenty cold these days.

The Gamberger family's problem is far from unique. Banja Luka now faces a winter which may yet prove a worse disaster than the earthquakes.

Thousands of families are housed in converted railway freight cars, barns, automobile trailers, cellars, garages, converted buses, and in friends' apartments.

★ ★ ★

But officials say more than 7,000 persons have disregarded warnings and moved back into unheated, condemned buildings.

"There's nothing we can do about it now," an official said.

"We don't have the manpower to go over every house and apartment building to root them out. But they're in terrible danger. The snow alone, or a strong wind could collapse any number of these buildings without warning at any time."

Viktoria Gamberger sipped a cup of steaming tea and reminisced.

"In years past we celebrated Christmas the way all Roman Catholics in this country do," she said. "It doesn't matter that it's not a legal holiday — everyone observes it in his own way.

"We had dinner of roast suckling pig, stuffed cabbage leaves, soup, potatoes, vegetables, cakes. We had a big tree in the house all covered with colored decorations. At midnight we all went to mass at the church down the road."

The church is an empty skeleton, stark against the snow. Cooking a large meal in the sardine-can conditions of the shack would take a miracle of planning and a lot of help.

A tree, officials said, would be a fire hazard.

"The important thing is that we're warm and well," Viktoria Gamberger said.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kevern of Silverside Drive will be honored by their children at a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at Central United Methodist Church in observance of their golden wedding anniversary. The couple married Dec. 31, 1919, in Painesdale. They have resided in Pontiac since 1923. Their children are Donald of Clarkston and Ronald of Rochester. There are five grandchildren.

New Washer-Dryer Designs Fit Laundry Into Kitchen

Why didn't they think of it before! Moving the laundry into the kitchen. The convenience of a laundry area here is obvious to every housewife. It cuts, steps, saves time and space, gets you out of the basement and puts you at the hub of your household. The new washer-dryer sets are designed to harmonize with or match your other appliances — width, height and depth fit right in with them.

When you remodel a kitchen to include a laundry center, at least one other improvement is usually necessary — a floor covering that can withstand moisture and wipes up quickly. One of the most popular, according to The Better Floors Council, is vinyl asbestos tile. This versatile and popular flooring withstands strong soaps and bleaches as well as grease from cooking.

Many of the new patterns are ideally suited for a kitchen-laundry. The embossed patterns that resemble brick, pebble, slate, mosaic or Spanish tile lend a cheerful informality to the room. Such tile is easy to care for and it wears and wears. You can install the tile yourself and save that fee — which will go a long way toward paying for the new washer-dryer.

Women Succeed in Most Fields

REGINA, Sask. (AP) — Complete equality between men and women in the labor force will never occur until it is biologically possible for men to bear children, says Doris Caven, president of Regina's Business and Professional Women's Club.

Since that's unlikely to happen, she says, employers must change their thinking and realize today's women are successfully combining careers and marriage.

Children May Copy Pattern Set by Adults

EAST LASING, Mich. — Your child may run away because he's trying to "get away from it all," or because he can't live up to your standards. He's frustrated.

In any case, "jump into his shoes," advises a Michigan State University family life specialist. "Think like he does and tell him that you understand."

Mrs. Gail Imig, the Cooperative Extension Service specialist, says the child may be imitating an escape pattern set by his parents. Or he may just want attention. And he'll do anything for it, even if it results in punishment.

★ ★ ★

Of course, running away is not always serious. The child may have been looking for a friend's house, or decided to go for a walk and went too far.

"Parents don't always take into account the many things their child is experiencing as he goes through the many stages of growing up." Mrs. Imig says.

EMPATHY

"Children need someone to feel the way they feel and to see things as they do. A lack of empathy can result in frustration with the child trying to 'get away from it all' — a very adult reaction."

Mrs. Imig suggests setting aside some special time of the day or week when the child can be with at least one of his parents.

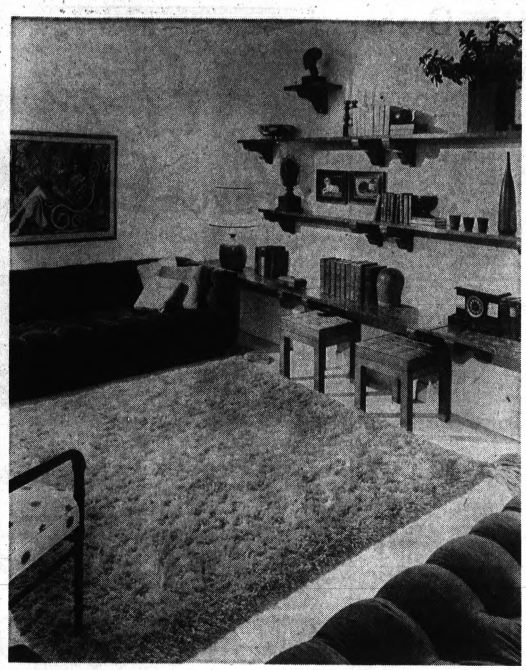

"This is one of the best ways to show love," she says. "Children know their parents are busy, and they appreciate this time set aside for them."

★ ★ ★

It is at these moments of "togetherness" that parent and child can talk. This is when the fears, joys and problems can be discussed, rather than hidden. This type of security will make it less likely that a child would ever want to run away from home, says Mrs. Imig.

Store in Plastic

Deep shag rugs are bringing the luxury-look of carpeting into modern homes. This pile rug with double tassels finishing each corner is featured in mandarin orange. Make Hair Your Crowning Glory

Hair can make or break your appearance, but if you are faithful to some basic hair care practices you can have shiny, beautiful hair all year long. Now's the time to help all that emerging new hair to become the most beautiful hair you have ever had, so resolve to:

- Faithfully brush your hair every day. Not the old-fashioned 100 strokes, which is too much of a good thing, but brush lightly to distribute natural oil over the entire hair's length, to exercise your scalp, and to increase circulation.
- Wash your hair whenever it needs it. Frequent shampooing will not hurt your hair if you use gentle baby shampoo so as not to strip it of all the natural oils that give it shine and manageability.
- Have the dead ends trimmed every few months. No matter what your hair length this will stop it from becoming unruly at the ends.
- Protect it from harsh winds in winter and sun in summer. Use conditioners and cream rinses whenever your hair shows signs of dryness.
- Find a simple, becoming style that does not require teasing, and constant sleeping in curlers, which can ruin any kind of hair.

Clean Chopper

Use a well-lathered percolator brush to remove the food particles that get caught in the small openings and blades of your food chopper. After brushing, wash quickly in hot water and soap and rinse. Wipe the parts carefully with an absorbent towel before replacing.

Better to Renovate or Buy New?

By ANNE TAYLOR
AP News Feature

With mortgage money often difficult to obtain, many homeowners who had intended to move to better quarters as their financial state improved, are renovating their present home instead.

There is a simple financial explanation for this: Loans for home improvements are more easily obtained than mortgages. Banks like to make such loans because the money is tied up for fewer years and interest rates are relatively high.

However, this ease of borrowing could be a trap to any homeowner who expects to recoup his money completely when he sells. It is entirely possible that potential buyers will be unwilling to pay the full price of improvements.

This is difficult for some people to understand, for in the past two years they have seen prices on some houses jump as much as 20 per cent. Why shouldn't they get back their investment — and more?

There are at least two reasons. The first has to do with the U.S. economy, which is now badly inflated. It is unlikely that the present 7 per cent rate of inflation will continue. And, hopefully, neither is the housing shortage going to go on indefinitely.

The result is that the pressures now on housing may be relieved a bit in the 1970s. Certainly there is likely to be inflation to some degree and housing prices may rise. But don't count on huge increases in the future.

The second reason is that in renovating a property there is a tendency to over - improve. The typical situation goes something like this:

Unable to obtain a suitable home in another community, and perhaps unable to obtain a mortgage as well, a homeowner decides instead to pour a lot of money into his present home and bring it up to his new and higher standards.

The property is 15 years old and the most recent sales in the neighborhood have been for about $24,000. The average family in the area is young. By custom, these families have moved on as their financial condition improved, and have been replaced by families "moving up."

The Homeowner we are concerned with decides to put in a swimming pool, panel a recreation room, build a two room addition by lifting the attic roof. He installs an extra bath as well, bringing his total bill to $11,000.

His living quarters now are palatial in relation to the efficient, practical homes around him. So long as he continues to live there these surroundings will pay off in comfortable living. But, when he comes to sell he might be in for a shock.

Remember, the people who might be interested in moving into the neighborhood would not be the kind looking for swimming pools and other expensive features. They couldn't afford them.

In addition, logic indicates that a house so superior to those around it would be pulled down in price to a level more common for the neighborhood. A house on which $35,000 was spent might not sell for that in an area of $24,000 homes.

A similar disappointment may await a homeowner who expects to be paid for the sweat and labor and tender loving care he has put into his dwelling, or for the emotional ties he has to the property. You don't get paid for intangibles.

What should you do when faced with the problems we describe? Go ahead if you feel that the investment will be returned in better living conditions. But think again if you're hoping that some future buyer will pay full value for your investment.

Potted Daisies

Daisies of sorts are blooming in kitchens. So says the maker of a new line of pots and pans decorated in a daisy motif. The flowery pattern is achieved via cream white posies on red background.

Aids to Dressing

Openings in clothing for the physically limited child should be large enough so the child can dress himself. Some types of openings to look for: full-length openings in snowsuits, large over the head type openings in dresses, and expandable neck openings in undershirts.

Leave Lights On

Tightly drawn blinds are a tip to burglars. Leave them partially closed if you're going to be away for a while. Authorities also recommend using an automatic timing device to turn lights on and off at night in one or two rooms of your home.

Peau de Soie for Bride

MRS. GUFTASON

A gown of peau de soie in an Empire style with lace and seed pearl accents was selected by Terry Diane Lovejoy for her marriage Saturday to Robert Victor Gustafson.

Milford Presbyterian Church the setting for the candlelight exchange of vows and reception.

★ ★ ★

Trudy D. Nasby and Myron W. Tupper III assisted the couple as maid of honor and best man.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield S. Lovejoy Jr. of Milford carried a bouquet of Stephanotis and chrysanthemums with an orchid for her wedding.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Albert V. Gustafson of Lake Forest, Ill.

The couple are honeymooning in New York.

Teller Banks on TV, Tube for Security

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — A Fresno bank teller has become a television personality right on her job.

The bank has replaced Mrs. Jean Fryer's teller booth with a console and television cameras that allow her to see her audience — some 90 drive-in bank customers a day — and they also can watch her on a television screen above their cars.

It's one of the first such operations in California.

★ ★ ★

Seated behind her complicated console far from customers in the lower-level drive-in area, Mrs. Fryer can see everything that transpires in the drive-in area via television cameras. That includes an occasional dog who happens to trot through.

When a patron drives in she surveys the person to determine any unusual banking transactions and check for security risks.

She then hits a switch and her face appears on a screen in the customer area. She converses with the customer on a two-way speaker while the patron places checks, cash and other banking paper in a tube in which the parers are pneumatically whisked to Mrs. Fryer's desk.

Papers and cash are returned to the customer the same way.

Branch manager William J. Fossat says the new system is much faster than the customary teller window transactions. He said the security factor is 100 per cent foolproof.

Charles Whitman Not Forgotten

One day in August, 1966, a student named Charles Whitman climbed a tower on the Austin campus of the University of Texas, and began a shooting spree that left 15 dead and 31 wounded. In recognition of this dubious achievement, two psychiatrists have given the name "Whitman syndrome" to cases of dangerous homicidal impulses among college students.

★ ★ ★

Drs. L. Kuehn and John Burton urge immediate consultation when the syndrome is recognized. In addition to hospitalization and emergency psychotherapy, they suggest the use of a major tranquilizer such as thioridacine (Mellaril).

Use Deodorant

After a bath, use a deodorant under your arms. Soap and water start you out fresh and clean, and a deodorant helps keep you that way.

MRS. McDONALD

Pair United on Saturday

An afternoon ceremony in First Baptist Church of Lake Orion was chosen by Beverlee Joann Hare of Cedarville, Ohio and Bruce Wayne McDonald for their wedding Saturday.

A reception in the church parlors honored the newlyweds.

Honor attendants for the couple were Evelyn Hare and Steven Andrews.

Gowned in velvet with lace accents, the bride carried a bouquet of roses. She is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Donald Hare of Sao Paulo, Brazil.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. McDonald of Lake George Road, Orion Township is honeymooning with his bride at Frankenmuth.

Name Causes of Dandruff

Nervous tension is one of a number of factors that can combine to cause dandruff, according to the physician-author of a family medical guide. Others, he writes, include "lowered resistance due to poor physical condition, an infecting germ, and lack of absolute cleanliness."

The doctor suggests that to help clear up dandruff, the hair, scalp, comb and brush must all be kept scrupulously clean.

Medicated shampoos help keep dandruff under control. The newer ones, such as pHisoDan, are also used as a regular shampoo after the condition clears, to help prevent reinfection.

New Booklet on Ovens to Help Homemakers

Homemakers who are shopping for a new range find it to be an exciting adventure particularly in this day of self-cleaning models which come in a variety of shapes and sizes as well as colors.

In her search for the right unit for her kitchen, the homemaker may be surprised to learn that there are two types of oven cleaning systems — pryolytic and catalytic.

★ ★ ★

In order to help the consumer understand the advantages and disadvantages of the two methods, a booklet, entitled "facts You Should Know Before Buying Any Self-Cleaning Oven Range," has been prepared by the General Electric Company. It was GE that developed and introduced the first automatic self-cleaning oven range in the fall of 1963.

The booklet describes the pyrolytic method as a "completely automatic, self-cleaning system because the oven actually cleans itself like new when the dial is set for "self-clean."

The "continuous cleaning" or catalytic coated oven system, the booklet declares, will "require some manual cleaning along with utmost caution to prevent damage to the delicate catalytic surface."

BY HEAT

The word pyrolytic may be defined in this fashion: "Pyro" for heat and "lytic" meaning to dissolve. In other words, soil accumulated on the oven from cooking is decomposed by means of heat.

The cleaning cycle takes from one and one-half to three hours, depending on the amount of soil. Upon completion of the cycle the inside walls of the oven are sparkling clean . . . nearly as clean as the day the oven was purchased. And everything is automatic — all that the homemaker has to do is set the controls and let the range do the work.

★ ★ ★

The catalytic method is a "continuous cleaning" system rather than self-cleaning. A coating containing a catalyst, bonded to oven walls or panels, is intended to cause a chemical reaction that oxidizes food soils as they occur during cooking. However, normal usage does not include heavy spillovers. The catalytic method positively does not clean the racks and, in many ovens, the oven floor is not coated with a catalyst. These items, along with the inside of the oven door, must usually be scoured by hand.

★ ★ ★

Complete details on both systems are given in this booklet, which is free, and readers may obtain copies by writing the Consumers Institute, General Electric Company, Appliance Park, Louisville, Ky. 40225. Homemakers considering the purchase of a new range should read this booklet on self-cleaning models.

Ceremonies for Couple

Columbia Baptist Church was the setting for the Saturday evening wedding of Sharon Sue Jackson to Gary David Ratledge.

A reception in the church parlors honored the newlyweds.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Dwayne Whitlock and Dallas Ratledge assisted the couple as matron of honor and best man.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jackson of West Preda Street chose a gown of sata peau with Chantilly lace accents. She carried a bouquet of roses with lilies of the valley.

★ ★ ★

College to Teach Vineyard Culture

NAPA, Calif. (AP) —Courses in vineyard culture, Napa County's leading industry, will be offered at Napa Junior College next fall.

Louie Martini, local wine maker and chairman of the committee that recommended the program, said there is a demand for the course in view of the expanding wine industry.

"There has been tremendous amounts of money spent in new wineries and new plantings," he said. "There are now more than 14,000 acres of grapes in the county." He predicted an increase to 25,000 acres of vineyard in 10 years.

To Be Blow by Blow Battle During Halftime Festivities

INTERLOCHEN — Interlochen may have no football team, but two of its former varsity players will be blasting at each other Jan. 1 in the annual Rose Bowl classic in Pasadena, Calif.

Robert Burstein and Robert Radock, who sat together as members of the Interlochen Arts Academy's Studio Orchestra, will be on opposite sides of the field during the New Year's Day game in which the University of Michigan meets Southern California.

Burstein, a tuba player, also was a member of the Academy's Orchestra and Band while Radock handled one of the trombones in the Band. Both young musicians were graduated from the Academy in June, 1969. Burstein is from Van Nuys, Calif., and Radock is from Michigan's home town of Ann Arbor.

This marks the first time these two Interlochen Arts Academy musicians will be facing each other as competitors in a sporting event and they couldn't have picked a more prestigious match for the meeting than the Rose Bowl.

★ ★ ★

It will be a "battle of the bands" at half-time for these two Interlochen alumni.

Men Exhibit Side Effects of 'the Pill'

DUSSELDORF, Germany (WMNS) — Women swallow oral contraceptives but some men exhibit psychological side effects, suggests a German professor of obstetrics at the university here.

In an article in a medical journal, Dr. H. Molinsky says that a psychologically mature man has a favorable response to the pill's removal of the fear of an unwanted pregnancy. His wife's "greater security and independence can lead to an enrichment of love."

★ ★ ★

But, says the physician, neurotic men may condemn birth control pills for devious reasons. A resentful husband may feel more secure if his wife is constantly pregnant. A resentful husband may wish to punish his wife by making her pregnant. A man who needs to prove his potency may find his sexual interest lessening because he needs the hazard of pregnancy to stimulate him.

★ ★ ★

"It is not that the oral contraceptives themselves are harmful," Dr. Molinsky believes, "but that they mobilize the fears which are already present in a psychically-damaged personality. These deviations cause oral contraception to be viewed unrealistically."

Beard for Boys

BOLIVAR, Mo. (AP) — Gary Redford of Bolivar thinks there must be some sort of power in a beard. After he had been the father of three daughters, he decided he wanted a son and felt that wearing a beard might produce the desired results. It worked better than he thought. Recently his wife presented him with twin sons.

Judy Selects Clothes for Eastern Tour

From Women's Wear Daily

Judy Agnew is going abroad for the first time today but she'll pack the same way she always has. A friend who sews but is not a dressmaker has made her two new dresses in orange sherbet and lime green packable lightweight polyester knits.

She has two more dresses she bought for herself. One is a pink crepe formal gown with a rounded neckline embellished with ruby red stones which also trim the border of the long sleeves, and a felt belt.

★ ★ ★

This she will wear to the Inauguration Ball of President Marcos of the Philippines in Manila. The other outfit is a lightweight classic soft wool dress with a slightly flared skirt, matching scarf at the neck and matching pill box hat, which she will wear to the Inauguration ceremonies.

★ ★ ★

She also bought a new red wool coat with gold buttons on an angle starting from the shoulder which she will wear in the two cold countries, Nepal and Afghanistan.

THREE

For the official dinners in all 10 countries Judy has chosen three gowns from her wardrobe — her pink satin Inaugural Ball gown with capped sleeves, a lime green crepe with long sleeves and a white sleeveless crepe with jeweled trim and a V-neckline.

To go with her formal dresses Judy will take evening shoes, hanging earrings and white kid, long and short gloves. In addition to these, she will take several cocktail dresses in pastel shades. She has been briefed to avoid black and white in countries where these colors symbolize mourning and to avoid red and yellow in countries where these are reserved for royalty.

There's nothing "uniform" about nurse's uniforms these days, which is all to the benefit of the patients as well as the nurses. Here, a ribbed knit jersey of polyester and nylon takes a cue from fashion's current preoccupation with peasantry to shape a pretty, dirndl skirted shirtdress for the girl on duty. Cuffed, three-quarter sleeves, ever so gently bloused, add charm and femininity. A wide self belt emphasizes a neatly narrowed waist.

Rapelling Hobby Ties Coed Up

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — "It's just like flying," says 19-year-old Jan Lewis of her hobby, "rapelling," a sport that involves sliding down a rope off a cliff or some other steep structure.

A sophomore in secondary education at Auburn University, the petite 94-pound coed was introduced to rapelling by other students whose interest had been spurred by an advanced counter-guerrilla program here. A jump from an 85-foot cliff is the highest she has taken — and it was her first.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Marietta of Lennox Street announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol Diane, to Pvt. Gary L. Leach, USA. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jess J. Davis of Signet Street. The prospective bridegroom has attended Grand Rapids School of the Bible and Music where his fiancee is presently a student.

Cosmetic Makers Eye Huge Black Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Black is beautiful, the cosmetic industry agrees, but why not make it more so? The question was posed at a conference on cosmetics for Negroes.

Cosmetics for the $35 million Negro market is the industry's newest challenge, says Steve Tuckman, publisher of Cosmetics Fair magazine.

"Negro women are no longer following the 'white image,'" Tuckman said. "Instead, they are vibrant with the awareness that they are black and beautiful."

★ ★ ★

Shep Goldman, a cosmetic buyer for a Brooklyn department stoe, said that prior to the concept that "black is beautiful" whites never talked about black cosmetics.

"It is an exciting and growing phase of industry — an exciting concept," he said. "There must be a rethinking on the part of the cosmetic industry."

Flori Roberst, who used a scientific approach (based on skin pigmentation) to develop a cosmetic line just for black women, feels that the Negro market is "vast and sometimes widely misunderstood."

OWN THING

"The black woman wants and needs her own line," she said. "And it must be a coordinated collection on the first class level.

"There is really nothing in the existing white lines that can satisfy the spectrum of the Negro complexion. Adding a shade or two to the existing lines is not the answer."

Vicki Ford, a young black copywriter for Black Vanguard — a newly established black advertising and marketing agency — agrees that black women do want their own cosmetic line.

"We don't want something just extended in a hurry," she said. "We want something special — with quality and prestige."

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

There is no doubt that the sedentary life is a handicap as far as best health and beauty of figure are concerned. This is particularly true when one's work requires sitting at a desk much of the day. This penalizes a woman with special figure defects.

Expanding hip and thigh measurements, often referred to as "the office broadside," are two of the most usual results. You can help avoid these by sitting in your chair correctly. Either sit on the edge of the chair with your back straight or all the way back in the chair, back straight and hips touching the back of the chair.

★ ★ ★

Notice the difference in pressure when you slump midway in the seat!

Also here are a douple of exercises you can do at your desk to counteract the "office broadside." Contract your hip muscles. At point of greatest tension hold for a count of six. Relax muscles slowly. Do this several times during the day.

Another: Sit a little forward in your chair. Place one foot on the outside of each front leg of the chair. Keep your feet in this position as you try to pull your knees together. Hold at point of highest tension. Repeat two times.

Perhaps the next most usual figure defect due to sitting at a desk for many hours is slumping posture, or round shoulders. Try to remember to sit with your back straight. Don't drop your head forward. Also do this exercise several times when at work.

★ ★ ★

Take hold of the seat of the chair, a bit back of the center, and pull up as though you were trying to lift yourself and the chair off the floor. Head should be slightly back. Hold for six counts at point of greatest tension. Do this two or three times daily.

★ ★ ★

If any of you readers would like to have the isometric exercises I have selected for you, send 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the booklet, "Isometric Exercises for Women." Address Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press, Dept. E-600, P. O. Box 9, Pontiac, Mich. 48056.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I've misplaced any instructions you may have given about sewing with satin fabric. Now I'm just about to begin a satin dress and I'm afraid to tackle it. Can you give us any little tips for a professional look?

Mrs. J. M.

Dear Mrs. J. M.:

Satin is once again a newcomer to the world of fashion, it goes along with the "wet look." There are some techniques that are important because this fabric must be treated with tender loving care.

* * *

It's best to cut each piece of your garment in the same direction (use cutting instructions for fabrics with nap). Actually, satin doesn't have a nap, but does have a sheen that is changeable.

Don't machine stitch or press any darts or seams unless you are certain the fitting will be perfect. You can't take these marks out once they have been put in.

Always use a new sewing machine needle to avoid a blunt point tearing the fine threads of the fabric. When pinning is necessary, use very fine needles instead—such as a size 10 or 11 to avoid pinholes. Never sew over pins.

When pressing, press very lightly on the wrong side, never on the right side of the fabric. Satin should have a soft, rolled, unpressed look. Many of the better dresses will have a separate piece of bias interfacing applied in the hem for a softer, rolled look.

* * *

Don't avoid sewing with satin, it's a wonderful looking fabric, but keep these instructions handy for quick reference. Satin is used today for daytime as well as nighttime clothes, at-home clothes, blouses and whatever.

* * *

Dear Eunice Farmer,

When a blouse pattern calls for buttons down the back, is it possible to use a zipper instead without changing the shape of the blouse?

Mrs. J. D. H.

Dear Mrs. J. D. H.:

Yes, it is possible and often works much better than those "hard-to-button" buttons that keep popping open.

Cut your pattern on the fold line for the button extension. The center back marks will be used for the zipper. Use a long zipper and finish the blouse in a closed seam for the last two inches. This opening will be large enough to slip easily on and off.

* * *

Mrs. Farmer tells you more about how to adjust and personalize your pattern in her booklet, "Your Pattern and You." If you would like to have this booklet, send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of The Pontiac Press, Dept. E-600, P.O. Box 9, Pontiac, Mich. 48056.

Dear Mrs. Farmer,

I just finished a cape out of wool and am trying to bind the edges with leather. I bought a strip of fake leather which the clerk told me would work and be much less expensive than real leather. I can't get a smooth binding especially around curves. Is there any way this can be done?

Carol J.

Dear Carol J.:

The strips of fake leather that are sold in some shops do not have enough give or flexibility and will not stretch enough to go around curved edges. Real suede or capeskin leathers have a natural give to the skins. There is no grain to leather and it can be cut in any direction. Perhaps you could buy half of a skin. The extra money will be more than worthwhile when you see the finished results.

Refine Natural Endowments With Artful Use of Lipstick

A woman's expression is often effected by the attitude and shape of her lips, according to famed beauty authority Max Factor, who maintains that practiced, controlled use of lip color enables any woman to create good-looking, contoured lip lines. Here are a few suggestions. To prevent droopy lips, cut the curves with straight lines from the center to the corners at a slight upward slant.

Widen a small mouth by brushing on a clearly defined outline of color just outside the natural lip line. Fill in with a fashionable shade of lipstick. If your mouth is too generous, carry your foundation make-up slightly over the natural lip line and powder carefully. Then, trim the mouth by applying the guiding outline of color just inside the natural lip line. Balance a crooked mouth by adding to the side that is narrow.

To apply any of the above lip corrections perfectly, you need two shades of lipstick — one the darker tone that is used for outlining and another paler tone to use all over the lips including the corrected outline. Choose creamy-textured lipsticks which glide on easily and help keep lips looking and feeling smoothly supple.

MRS. BIEN

Newlyweds Honeymoon in Florida

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Bien (Penny Dianne Webster) are honeymooning in Florida following their Saturday wedding.

St. John Fisher Chapel was the setting for their evening exchange of vows. A reception in Bloomfield Centre followed the ceremony.

Honor attendants, the bride's sister, Lois, and Michael Harrington, greeted guests with the couple.

* * *

Gowned in velvet with Alencon lace appliques, the bride carried a bouquet of Stephanotis with holly. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Webster of Argyle Street.

* * *

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. John Bien of Bywater Street, Commerce Township.

Tear-Jerker Still Favored

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — The legendary opinion of the past is still a bit magical.

The onion was the symbol of unity, eternity, and immortality. It is also said onions healed diseases and even cured baldness.

* * *

"The onion today is still a bit magical in the many ways it can be used," says Aline Coffey, nutritionist at the University of Vermont Extension Services.

"Its uses range from dips to casseroles; from salads to main dishes. It can be used equally well with beef or with poultry."

Each variety has its own unique flavor, she notes, which helps make the onion versatile and helpful in planning meals.

Dye to Match

To make matching skirts and sweater outfits, first make or buy the skirt, then purchase a length of white fine quality wool and dye or have it dyed the exact shade as the skirt. Always dye the material before it is made into a garment.

Readers Becoming Instant Authors

By BETTY CANARY
NEA Writer

I was happy to see the advertisement announcing a new bookstore and I was there on opening day.

Opening any small business is a big step for a man, but opening a small book store is a real adventure into the unknown. (Perhaps a baker can tell by the weather how many chocolate cupcakes he will sell this afternoon but how does ANYONE calculate the number of copies of "Joy of Cooking" will be needed as gifts for brides?)

Not that I went merely to encourage a new shop owner. I went to see the books. As you would expect, there were mysteries, travel books and novels and children's story books and reference books and a few of the kind of books a person never reads but buys because they look so impressive on a coffee table.

* * *

The kind he buys for gifts. The kind he gets as gifts. The kind he looks at and thinks, "Wow! Did they pay a pretty penny for THIS!" and places, unopened, on the coffee table. The kind of book that could and would, if you'd only read it, take you through the ages with fifes and drums, or give you a complete and illustrated history of stained glass church windows.

I found myself wondering about the bread-and-butter items in a bookstore. There must be some books he knows will sell steadily and daily, I said to myself. Which books? I asked myself. I would have asked the store owner but he was busily rebuilding a display of Dr. Spock paperbacks that had been scattered by a toddler and I figured he had enough worries.

* * *

After browsing around, I came to the conclusion that only horoscopes could be outselling the "How to . . ." books. There were lots of autobiographies on the shelves but, if we're going to approach this thing in a reasonable way, we must assume a person has done something before he writes about a lifetime of doing it.

Actually, the bookstores, if they did some research here, might discover they have some kind of life-cycle customer going.

First, our mythical customer buys a horoscope. This, of course, is necessary in order to discover if he's got any chance of doing anything.

Second, after discovering his likes and leanings — based upon where Jupiter was at the time of his birth — our customer is ready to buy a book telling him how to do something.

A NEW ONE

Third, our customer, having now become proficient in knitting, going around the world on 50 cents a day or making a million dollars, sits down and writes a book about it.

* * *

Depending upon what he has learned from the second book, the third book — the one the customer writes — is entitled, "Sweaters and Booties: My World," or "My Porthole View of the World," or "A Lifetime for Moneymaking, or. How I Got 40 Years for Counterfeiting."

* * *

"Life" and "world" are the most-often-used words in titles of autobiographies. The whole idea of the title is to get across to potential readers that you have a whole new thing going and if he'll only shell out $6.95, he can view the thing through a small, square window and feel just rotten because he never learned to knit argyle baby booties, etc., etc., etc.

Debt Is Paid

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Mrs. Manly Witt of St. Joseph received a letter from Gower, Mo. recently. In it she found $15 in currency and an unsigned note which said the money was in payment for an "old doctor bill." Mrs. Witt's father was Dr. J. C. Guinn who practiced medicine in Gower for many years. He died 32 years ago.

Birds of Feather?

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A 30-year-old Denverite was unable to find his attorney when he appeared in U.S. District Court here to face a narcotics charge. He discovered his lawyer also had been arrested on a narcotics charge.

Nix Drugs, Driving

The homemaker who drives under the influence of drugs — just a tranquilizer or two, antihistamines or sleeping pills — presents a threat to traffic safety not unlike that of the drinking driver, authorities contend.

Men's Resort Clothes Bright and Lively

Picture a man in a bold, striped double-breasted sport coat, "stovepipe" slacks, body shirt and two-tone shoes. That's the way the average man will dress on his cruise or southern resort vacation this winter, according to the Men's Fashion Association.

"Even more sedate vacationers," says Ken O'Keefe, MFA Fashion Director, "leave their style inhibitions behind in the snowy north. They go for bright hues and vivid designs."

Bold, blazer stripes were never stronger in style. They appear in shirts, slacks, sweaters, sport coats, swimwear and, of course, in blazers. However, blazer stripes are only part of the picture as grouped stripes, bordered stripes, multi-stripes and some that defy description star in the tidal wave of "verticals."

Stripes get strong support from highly contrasted windowpanes, full-scale plaids and assorted checks. It is a fact of fashion that these boldly patterned coats, shirts or sweaters call for unpatterned slacks or walk shorts. On the other hand, checked, striped or printed pattern slacks require an unpatterned jacket.

★ ★ ★

Not too many years ago a double-breasted jacket was a custom tailored vanity. Now double-breasted sport coats and blazers have reached new highs in popularity, and they equal and often surpass the single-breasteds in numbers. But, as most fellows know, double-breasteds mean more than one model, with a great deal of variation in the number of buttons.

Most popular is the two-to-button style. The newest double-breasted model has six-buttons, one-to-button — a revival of the look of the '30's.

Single-breasted jackets get the full fashion treatment, too. Sport coats now include two-, three- and four-button closures. Styling is imaginative with much wider lapels and pocket flaps, deeper vents and some distinctive styles with fancy-backs and military-type bellows pockets.

Take your pick of three slack models for cruisewear. These range from the "standard" tapered legs, to the stylish flared models, to the newest straight "stovepipes."

Knitted fabrics in sport coats and slacks are fashionable and practical as well. The knits have plenty of "give" for comfort but still recover their shape quickly. They are lightweight and porous for coolness, hold a press, and shed wrinkles with amazing facility. You can't ask for much more.

DARING

A man on a cruise is likely to be just a little more daring. In his sport shirts he favors the close-fitting body shirt. Some emphasize the shape still more with stripes and patterns running at right angles at the seams. All sport shirts will have longer-point collars and many will use deep "designer tones" as well as lighter "frosted" hues.

Knit shirts revert to the collar and placket models so popular before turtlenecks took over. There will also be many more sweater shirts in warm weather yarns as well as basque-type crew-necks and mock turtles.

Among the best new cruisewear sweaters are the sleeveless pullovers with V-necks, another revival of the 1930's. They have a neat look when worn with short sleeve shirts and also "wear well" under sport coats.

Shoes for your cruise show less hardware for decorative work and rely more on leather details, broader lasts, wider toes and a further use of straps in place of laces. Some young men will like the black-and-buff or brown-and-buff leather combinations while all-whites and whites with either brown or black trim get the nod from both young and mature fellows.

★ ★ ★

Men traveling on cruise ships as well as those headed for dressy resorts will find formalwear an essential. This year, white dinner jackets come back to supplement the rich colors and pastels worn with black formal trousers. There will also be tartan formal trousers as well as tapestry-types to be worn with either black or white dinner jackets. Double-breasted tuxes are very "in."

Sound Blasts Have Effect on Infertility

NEW YORK (WMNS) — Can a ringing in her ears make a woman pregnant?

Well, not all by itself, but it may help.

Dr. Claude Meyer, assistant professor at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, has successfully used blasts of piercing sound to induce ovulation in women with sex gland deficiencies. Their gonads goaded into action, six out of 10 infertile women ovulated, and one became pregnant.

★ ★ ★

The treatment, effective for only one monthly cycle, consists of stop-and-start sound — two-hour sessions during which, repeatedly, one minute of high decibel pure sound is succeeded by nine minutes of silence. Sessions take place on three consecutive days followed by a similar course a week later.

Patients usually emerge with ringing ears, headaches and nausea but without any permanent damage.

House Ruth Built Beautiful, Functional for Today's Woman

Part of Ruth Richmond's great influence is that she wields an elegant claw hammer, whether she is designing a dreamy bachelor digs for Cary Grant or a two-family home for the town banker.

And if all the homes she has designed and supervised the construction of were placed end to end, the result would be the longest Main Street in the state of Florida.

Mrs. Richmond, vice president of Richmond Construction Co. in Sarasota, Fla., has marched a steady stream of some 8,000 homes from her designing board to vacant lots, priced from $10,000 to $60,000.

As busy as the 105-pound bee that she is, Mrs. Richmond sets aside an important part of her day to work on her current project: the planning and designing of luxury homes to be erected on the secluded, lush tropical isle of Harbour Cay, in the Bahamas.

HOUSE PLANS

"I am drawing up house plans for Cary Grant, Hugh O'Brien, and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and please don't ask if Doug's home will include a chandelier or two," said Mrs. Richmond.

What does she visualize for Cary?

"Heavy on the masculinity," said Ruth. "With lots of redwood and pecan. And baths, cabanas, a sauna and swimming pool. I'd want to do the interior walls all white to match that marvelous suntan."

Mrs. Richmond's first and true professional love is the drawing board where her rivals are completely male. Some of these very same males raised a skeptic eyebrow when she hung up her shingle in Sarasota.

Even the appearance on an office wall of a framed document which attested to the fact that she was the only licensed building contractor in the county with an "A" rating failed to win the men over. But they learned quickly that her ideas were sound and accepted her. The greatest tribute, perhaps, came when they sought her out for advice.

VERSATILE

Mrs. Richmond not only builds houses but she is a licensed member of the National Society of Interior Designers, which is a handy little combination for buyers who want their dream house built to their specifications and decorated right down to the last initialed guest towel.

Mrs. Richmond is a successful home builder and decorator because her creative instincts are harnessed to the needs of the prospective buyer. A home should reflect the owner's personality, but many of today's builders unfortunately standardize sizes and shapes of rooms

One of her trademarks is the kitchens of her homes. Each cabinet, shelf, counter and appliance is scaled to the lady of the house.

"The kitchen is the heart of the home," said Mrs. Richmond. "Everything revolves around it. It must be bright, cheerful and well ventilated. If the woman of the house is five feet tall, then everything should be scaled to her size—no standing on chairs to reach a top shelf."

WIFE, MOTHER

And she comes by this training naturally, for, above all, she is a wife and mother. Her husband, Lawrence, is president of Richmond Construction, and her son, Roger is a space architect, and the oldest, Glenn, is an architectural engineer.

Ruth Richmond said that the Long Island Railroad was, in a way, responsible for her success in Florida.

★ ★ ★

"All that commuting to the city was so exasperating, that my husband and I just upped one day and moved to Florida," said Ruth. "Larry went almost immediately into construction and I began to help him by making sketches, drawing plans and became more and more involved."

Brooklyn-born, Mrs. Richmond attended New York City's Cooper Union College and Pratt Institute, where she majored in art and architecture. In 1942, she took a sabbatical from her professional career to have her family, and the sabbath continued until her two boys were in junior high school.

WOMAN'S PROVINCE

Mrs. Richmond firmly believes that the field of home design is a woman's province.

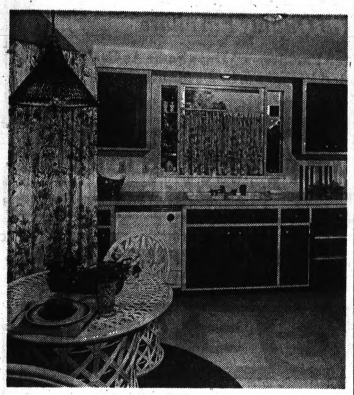

"Some of my male associates aren't going to like that statement," she grinned, "but it is the truth. Men are a whiz at designing train stations, airline terminals, clubhouses, but when it comes to a home, well, it's a woman's place, isn't it?"

Reaching the age of 65 can be fun if you live in one of the "Colony Homes" designed by Ruth Richmond, the only woman contractor in the U.S. with an "A" rating (which permits her to design and build structures up to three-family size). These homes, located throughout the state of Florida are priced at $20,000 each. The designer combines color and scale to create a sweeping living room. Contemporary couches convert into extra beds and pull-up chairs and a marble-top cocktail table provide an intimate grouping in front of the large picture windows. The dining area (rear) is easily screened by a small scale credenza. In her home designs for retirees, Mrs. Richmond stresses simplicity and minimum maintenance.

Mrs. Ruth Richmond, celebrated home builder-designer-decorator, relaxes on the terrace of the house she built for herself and her family in Sarasota, Florida. The louver boards in the ceiling can be opened to permit the entrance of sunshine and light. A hemp rug supports a comfortable setting of barrel-base wicker chairs, a cocktail table and colorful floor pillows. The view of the Gulf of Mexico from the terrace is breathtaking.

Ruth Richmond discards everything that isn't functional. Wall cabinets are hung to conform to the height of the woman of the house. No reaching, stretching or bending here. A drop light illuminates a wicker breakfast table and chairs. Gay prints on wall and window create a sunshine-and-flowers atmosphere.

Steam Dirt Out

Americans pour about 183 million tons of pollution into the air each year. A deep-cleansing mist will gently steam away harmful pollutants that clog facial pores.

Color It Warm

For spring, favorite colors in women's ready-to-wear are vermilion red, willow green, tulip yellow, and in blue, all shades from navy to the palest sky blue.

An Eye-Catcher

STERLING, Kan. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Leon Thompson, operators of a motel here, are displaying an advertisement which has caught the eye of honeymooners. It says simply: "Groom $5, Bride Free."

Leather Lingers

Leather goes on into spring. Designer Geoffrey Beene combines leather jackets with jumpsuits. And the jumpsuit runs through almost every major designer collection.

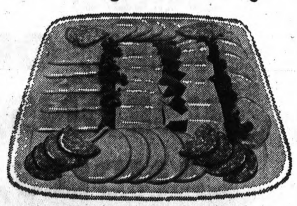

Treat Menopause

Menopausal, or "change-of-life," symptoms can be treated successfully without sex hormones, according to a Navy medical team. They found that a combination of ergotamine, belladonna, and a barbiturate in long-acting capsules, Bellergal Spacetabs, "significantly" alleviated hot flashes, insomnia, nervousness, dizziness, and hyperirritability.

Style for Shades

Flowers, stripes, fringe — the choice is yours — as window shades have become high fashion. Dozens of hem styles from broken scallops to straight fringed edges are available. Order valances to match the hem treatment. Almost all styles are washable or treated with a washable coating.

Master Auctioneer at Top NY Gallery

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The image of the auctioneer as a fast-talking, incoherent barker of bric-a-brac is dispelled at the distinguished Parke-Bernet Galleries. The famed New York auction house recently made international headlines when it sold a diamond to Cartier's for $1.05 million — and Elizabeth Taylor bought it from them.)

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK—John Marion is a man who can cost you $1 million at the drop of a hat. Or the twist of an ear. Or the tug of a nose.

He is chief auctioneer at the Parke-Bernet Galleries on Madison Avenue and the man who sold the jewel to the jeweler which now bejewels Elizabeth Taylor.

* * *

In Marion's world—as anyone else's—money talks, but the customers don't. No jumps to his feet to shout a bid as an antique collector might at a farm auction. At Parke-Bernet the most valued trait is discretion.

Only occasionally is it possible to glimpse a dignified nod or a hand lifted to tap forward a gold pen.

DISTINCTLY AUDIBLE

Yet Marion, his voice amplified by microphones, spiels ahead in confident vocal stride, nonstop yet paced slow enough for every word to be distinctly audible, even when an observer can see no bids at all.

At an important Impressionists' sale in October, for Renoir's "Dede au Chapeau Fleuri," he is saying: "At 40,000. At 45,000 on the right side of the room now, at 45 thousand 500 dollars now on the right, 45,000 against you, sir. At 50,000 dollars, 50,000 dollars. Sold for 50,000."

* * *

A person can come to Marion ahead of time, tell him he's interested in bidding on lot No. 30 in the catalog and doesn't want anyone to realize that he's bidding. So the two of them work out a secret signal.

Marion says, "Of course you have to put them in a chair where you can see them. You make a little note to look for them, but it's not difficult to remember. On a pressure sale you have to concentrate a great deal anyway."

NEVER MOVED

The auctioneer adds, "What might become the most famous bidding signal to date was Robert Kenmore's for Cartier for Miss Taylor's 69.42 carat diamond on Oct. 23. He was standing up against the wall at the extreme right of the salesroom and he crossed his arms. He said he'd be bidding until he put his arms down at his side.

"He never moved, just watched the bidding, and he looked calm to me.

* * *

"We had another man at that jewelry sale bidding for a private person and he had to be so secret that I never looked at him. We assigned one of our bid spotters to watch him only. He was interested in every big piece in the sale. Even now we're not permitted to say who he was, or he'd never come back. When you make it one man to watch one man, it becomes pretty easy to set up private signals."

Marion knows the regular bidders at Parke-Bernet, but he doesn't confine his scrutinizing to them. "At the Impressionists' sale there was a man who'd never bid at another sale and he bought $800,000 worth of paintings," he recalled.

BEST SHOT

Sellers bring things to auction, Marion says, instead of selling them some other way, because "They're giving themselves the best shot at getting top dollar. They're exposing their items to competition.

"If the owner of the big diamond—and I can't tell you who it was—had walked into Cartier's and said, 'How much would you give me for this?', I don't think Cartier would have said $1,050,000—but that's what they paid for it here.

* * *

"We had seven people who bid over half-a-million dollars for it."

Cartier subsequently sold the stone to the Richard Burtons.

It's possible that Marion didn't expect the diamond to sell for more than a million dollars, either—although he won't say what he expected—because he started the bidding at $200,000.

AP Photo

SPOTTING THE BIDS — John Marion, chief auctioneer at the Parke-Bernet Galleries in New York, sits in a high, pulpitlike box, with microphone, pencil and tiny gavel — the banging of which has worn the left arm of the desk.

It isn't a hard and fast rule, he says, but he often starts the bidding at about one-third of what he expects the final bid to be.

Marion says, "I look at these auctions as a public marketplace or a stock exchange of art. A minor part of all the trading is done through auction, but I think trends are set."

* * *

On Oct. 15, 83 paintings were auctioned for $4,422,250, setting a world record for a single day sale of Impressionist and modern works. One of those set a world record for a Degas, selling for $550,000. Previous high for a Degas had been $410,000.

The Oct. 23 jewelry sale brought a world record, too—the $1,050,000 diamond, more than three times the record set when Elizabeth Taylor's agent bought the 33.1-carat Krupp Diamond at Parke-Bernet in May 1968.

SOME FLOPS

But not everything is a booming success. Sometimes the buyers don't show up. Last November, Marion auctioned the Permacel Express, a three-car train, for $75,000, and Parke-Bernet decided there was a big market in trains. Marion went to Denver to auction the 12-car, no-engine Denver Zephyr. No buyers. No sale. Marion says, "I'd love to forget about it."

Half of Parke-Bernet's turnover is in paintings, but there also are sales of antiquities and ethnographical art; books, manuscripts and autographs; prints; furniture, rugs and decorations; jewelry; coins and antique cars. Everything sold in the building is exhibited for three days to a week before, in the building's galleries.

* * *

Items to be sold come from estates, private collections, attics, institutions, foundations that somebody has given something valuable to, "people who just go around looking for things to sell at auction." Pope Paul VI gave the United Nations a papal cross and ring for the relief of starving children. Marion auctioned those for the United Nations in 1964 to a Chicago dealer for $64,000.

About half the total number of objects Parke-Bernet auctions sell for under $250. Some bidders are collectors who get a kick out of bidding for themselves; some are agents for collectors; some are dealers building up stock.

'SYSTEMS' DIFFER

Like horse bettors, bidders' "systems" differ. Some like to sit where Marion can't see them, so their bids will have to be relayed to him by bid spotters and he won't know who's bidding. Some think they'll get the item cheaper if they don't join in the bidding at the start.

Bids sometimes also come in by telephone while the auction is going on and ahead of time by telegram and cablegram. One painting which was bought on a bid cabled from Europe in the big Oct. 15 sale, Parke-Bernet found later was bought by a New Yorker who just wanted to be supersecret about it.

Marion's father, Louis, started working at Parke-Bernet at age 16 and worked up from the mailroom to become chief auctioneer and president of the company.

In 1961, he auctioned Rembrandt's "Aristotle Contemplating the Bust of Homer" to the Metropolitan Museum of Art for $2,300,000—still the world's record price for any single item sold at auction. He retired in 1964, when Sotheby's and Company of London, largest auction house in the world, bought a controlling interest in Parke-Bernet, largest auction house in America.

A VICE PRESIDENT

John Marion stayed on. Now, at 36, after nine years as a Parke-Bernet auctioneer, he is chief auctioneer and one of two vice presidents. Last year he auctioned more than $20 million of goods.

Marion says there are a zillion theories about the best time of day or best time of year to hold a sale, but he doesn't subscribe to any of them.

"I think if you're selling something that is really in demand, you could auction it at midnight on the 4th of July in Central Park and have standing room only."

Russia's Gromyko: Durable Diplomat

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Soviet leaders come and go, but Andrei Gromyko seems to go on forever. For almost three decades he has consistently echoed the Soviet line, in the United Nations and from the halls of the Kremlin. Only of late has the man nicknamed "Grim Grom" begun to bend a little.)

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A wag once said that if Andrei A. Gromyko were half as well-known in the Soviet Union as he is in the United States he'd have been purged long ago.

For nearly a quarter century, the bettle-browed statesman has intoned the Kremlin's views from the rostrum of the U.N. General Assembly or growled out another "nyet" in the Security Council, as either the Soviet delegate to the world body or on his almost annual visit to New York as Soviet foreign minister.

Even before that, since 1939 in fact, Gromyko has been making the scene at important diplomatic and social functions in this country.

There is probably no Soviet official who knows the United States and Washington policy as well as this dour diplomat.

WINED AND DINED

And probably no Russian has hobnobbed with so many American millionaires. During his years at the United Nations, Gromyko has wined and dined with a parade of wealthy, influential individuals from Bernard Baruch to Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Gromyko's ability to hold his own in the Soviet hierarchy for 30 stormy years that saw many higher officials purged out of this world or plunged into oblivion is a measure of this enigmatic figure.

★ ★ ★

As a career civil servant, he has executed foreign policy but rarely, if ever, made it. Thus he has managed to avoid responsibility for mistakes that unseated his superiors.

When Nikita Khrushchev was premiere, he is reported to have said of Gromyko: "If I tell my foreign minister to sit on a block of ice and stay there for months, he will do it without back talk."

Andrei never did talk back, in public at least, and he is still sitting tight while the ousted Khrushchev is a nonperson, all but forgotten by his countrymen.

For years, Western diplomats have watched Gromyko's melancholy features as one would a barometer, seeking some hint as to which way the Russian winds were blowing.

★ ★ ★

Biting attacks on the United States or its allies were expected, but a fleeting smile or a casual hint that East-West agreement on some issue was possible would send them to the telephone to contact the home government.

The truth is that Gromyko is a barometer who faithfully reflects the thinking of his government; no more, no less.

'NOT IMPORTANT'

When a reporter once asked him for something personal for use in a descriptive article, Gromyko snapped: "My personality does not interest me."

At home, Gromyko has never ranked high on the Soviet table of organization, which may explain his durability. He was not tapped for membership on the powerful, prestigious Politburo, but is a member of the Central Committee along with about 125 others.

On the infrequent occasion he has been photographed with members of the Kremlin command, Gromyko has shown a talent for looking inconspicuous.

To understand a man like Gromyko and his seemingly blind devotion to an ideology, one must remember that he is the product of a generation that grew up under the revolution and never knew anything else.

YOUNGEST EVER

At the age of 30, Gromyko was sent to Washington as counselor at the Soviet Embassy. In 1943, at 34, he was ushered into the Oval Room of the White House to present his credentials to Franklin D. Roosevelt as ambassador from the Soviet Union, the youngest big power envoy ever assigned to Washington.

At social functions, Gromyko usually stood apart from the chattering crowd, gazing glumly at an untasted Scotch.

Gradually, he began to unbend and take part in the small talk at dinner parties. He even tried an occasional ponderous joke.

When a San Francisco matron asked his opinion of American women, Gromyko stole a phrase from Queen Victoria and said, "I am not impressed."

JUST JOKING

Seeing the lady's face redden with annoyance, he quickly added: "Madame, that is a joke."

In 1946, Gromyko was assigned full time to the United Nations and began a career of vetoes, boycotts and diatribes that was to make him famous in the Western World.

★ ★ ★

When Gromyko staged his first walkout from the Security Council in a squabble over Iran, he caused a sensation that brought newsmen and photographers running.

In 1957, The Kremlin ousted Dmitri Shepilov as foreign minister after only eight months in office and gave the job to Gromyko, who has held it ever since.

EFFICIENT

Gromyko may not make Soviet policy, but he carries it out with an efficiency that gives his opponents gray hair. His favorite ploy is to throw up one roadblock after another when negotiating on a major issue, then give a little ground. When the other side begins to think it has made a point, he throws up another roadblock.

There is no record of Gromyko ever making a diplomatic mistake.

As his tour of duty in the United States lengthened, Gromyko's sense of humor improved somewhat. Asked what he thought about "flying saucers" after a rash of sightings, Gromyko gazed owlishly at his questioner.

"Some attribute them to the British for exporting too much Scotch to the United States," he commended. "Others say it is a Russian discus thrower who does not know his own strength. I do not think either version is correct."

MORE THAN ROBOT

Sometimes Gromyko's temper flares, proving that he can be more than a superrobot. When asked to comment about a charge by a former Soviet official that all Russians of any importance were spies, Gromyko snapped back: "When a dog has nothing to do, it licks its underbelly. Sometimes this attracts spectators."

Gromyko apparently regards the United States not as a place of domicile but as an object of scrutiny. Asked how he liked living in America, he quickly corrected the interviewer.

★ ★ ★

"I work here," he said.

Gromyko is aware that as a diplomat he is less than popular with the Western side, and it apparently bothers him. One day after a particularly bitter round of debate on a cold war issue, he gazed gloomily out of the window and noticed rain beating on the U.N. terrace.

"Now they'll blame this on me," he muttered to an East European colleague.

HE RESPONDS

Ne also rsponds to any show of cordiality by the West. In 1965, when Charles de Gaulle was trying to warm up France's relations with the Kremlin, he laid down the red carpet for the visiting Gromyko.

★ ★ ★

"Nothing like this had ever happened before, and he was obviously delighted," said a West European delegate who was there. "He even smiled at the photographers."

PRIME TIME: The Life of Edward R. Murrow. By Alexander Kendrick. Little, Brown. $8.95.

This is much more than a biography of one of the key figures in radio and television for a quarter of a century. Kendrick has utilized the story of Murrow's life and career to examine the nature of — and comment upon — the whole broadcasting industry.

He has had plenty of elbow room for his purpose, as the book runs more than 500 large pages.

★ ★ ★

As a biographer, the author is thorough and illuminating. As a chronicler of broadcasting, he quite clearly has his own viewpoint — that since the heyday of Murrow and a few others (Elmer Davis and Fred Friendly among them), the electronic media have skidded down into compromising "corporatism" and bland, money-making, soporific entertainment.

★ ★ ★

This is a sympathetic biography, written by an experienced broadcaster and a former Murrow colleague — sympathetic in the sense that it carefully explains Murrow's position in some controversial situations.

But it also concedes some of his errors and his failures to communicate with certain people he dealt with.

★ ★ ★

As a portrait of a major public personality and a creative force in the new media, the book is highly detailed, colorful and complete. In addition it catches the whole spirit of an era of American life, giving pulse and breath to yesterday's history.

THE SEASON: A CANDID LOOK AT BROADWAY, by William Goldman. (Harcourt, Brace & World, $6.95)

Goldman is a name namer. He is gutsy and opinionated. He not only hatchet jobs what he dislikes, he suggests sane alternatives.

He hits upon all the mixed ingredients of the Broadway scene — critics, Jews, homosexuals, theater-parties, producers, stars, corruption, business.

★ ★ ★

He despises critics ("they are putrescent"). He loathes the "British is better" syndrome and longs for more home-grown work.

He cites the popularity of Mike Nichols as reflecting our current tastes: "What Mike Nichols is, is brilliant. Brilliant and trivial and self-serving and frigid. And all ours."

He feels "no new talent" is the major reason for current Broadway doldrums.

Broadway is also, and he thinks this significant, light years away from attracting youth.

(Stephen E. Rubin (UPI)

THE PROMISE. By Chaim Potok, Knopf. $6.95.

At about the midpoint of this novel, the narrator, Reuven Malter, looks into the synagogue of his best friend's father and reflects:

". . . so much of my life had once been tied to the things I had experienced inside that synagogue and all of it seemed strange to me now, quaint, almost exotic, as if it were a movie set or something I were watching an author describe in a historical novel."

Which is much the same feeling one gets after reading this novel. Potok is a good writer, and yet there is the feeling throughout that one is "watching an author describe." The technique holds as the book is being read, but put it down and interest fades.

The characters lack the substance to live on in the mind after the eye has left the page. Reuven's struggles to become a rabbi generate interest as they are being read about, but as soon as the reading stops the interest stops.

PHIL THOMAS (AP)

MENCKEN by Carl Bode, (Southern Illinois University Press, $10)

Sadly, Henry Mencken seems so dated, so far removed from the turbulent United States of the 1960s.

The battles he waged against such early century sins as purism and hypocrisy appear of little more moment today than squabbles over etiquette.

Still, this excellent biography recounts the exhilarating life of a major journalistic and literary figure born to criticize and condemn.

It is as a writer and observer that Mencken will be remembered, and the biography's author, an English professor at the University of Maryland, presents him in careful detail, sometimes too much detail.

★ ★ ★

But we come to enjoy the life style of the "Sage of Baltimore" and to understand his influence on America's thinking and letters.

GLENWOOD PLAZA — NORTH PERRY AT GLENWOOD

Pooch Has World's First Atomic-Powered Heart Pacemaker

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — A shy foxhound named Brunhilde, sporting the world's first atomic-powered heart pacemaker, is serving as a pioneer in an experiment which could mean a blessing for thousands of cardiac patients.

* * *

The brown-eyed, 4-year-old pooch is alive and well in her cage at the National Heart Institute here almost seven months after the device—two-thirds the size of a cigarette package—was implanted beneath her skin.

Her progress is being watched closely by researchers who view the tiny atomic battery as a possible eventual replacement for the nonatomic pacemakers being used by at least 20,000 Americans, including Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court.

* * *

Each year, about 5,000 new pacemakers are being implanted to maintain normal heartbeat in patients with "heart block." This condition usually results from disease-induced injury to the heart's natural pacemaker, a module of tissue which regulates the heart's pumping action.

MUST BE REPLACED

Conventional pacemakers are powered by mercury-cell batteries which must be replaced every two or three years. This requires reopening the implant area in the patient's chest, as was done recently in Justice Douglas' case. While this is a simple and minor surgical procedure, it is inconvenient and expensive. Also, occasional battery failure can pose an emergency situation.

* * *

In contrast, the atomic-powered version is designed to last at least 10 years, and possibly 20, without replacement. It is fueled by the same radioactive material, plutonium 238, which is powering scientific instruments on the moon. Heat from the radioactive material is converted directly into electricity by a device called a thermocouple.

* * *

Brunhilde and her masters, the Atomic Energy Commission and the National Heart and Lung Institute, are engaged in the tests designed to explore the reliability and safety of the atomic pacemakers prior to possible first trials in humans within two or three years.

The AEC has spent $1.7 million in 3½ years of developmental work.

UNDER $3,000

While unable to forecast what commercial models would cost, AEC scientists say they're hopeful it could be under $3,000.

* * *

Present models cost between $550 and $1,000, plus $200 to $500 for the initial implantation operation. Battery-replacement operations range in cost from $150 to $250. Dr. Charles Hufnagel, famed Georgetown University Hospital heart surgeon, says he favors replacement operations about every two years.

* * *

So far, all goes well with the dog-testing—so well that two more foxhounds have received similar implants since Brunhilde got hers on May 26.

And, four more dogs are ticketed to get them in the next few weeks.

SMALL BULGE

Brunhilde looks like any other foxhound—except for the small bulge made by her nuclear-battery pack beneath her black, brown and white belly-coat.

And her dogtag is special. It contains the legend:

* * *

"This dog has a surgically implanted radioactive capsule. There is no hazard as long as the capsule remains intact. Call the National Institutes of Health immediately."

Brunhilde's cage, and the cages of the other dogs equipped with these atomic batteries, are kept under lock and key except for times when the dogs are taken out on leashes for exercise in the yard outside the building.

* * *

Experts from the radiation safety division regularly prowl around the room with their instruments to see if any radioactivity is present.

VERY SHY

Brunhilde, described by her keepers as very shy with strangers, seemed singularly unimpressed by life on the frontiers of science when visited by a reporter.

She went back to snoozing as Dr. Sidney Levitsky, the surgeon who implanted the pacemaker, and Dr. Joseph Pierce, a veterinarian, reported that:

• "Everything is going normally. The pacemaker seems to be functioning the way we expected it would . . . Brunhilde is acting the same way now that she did prior to the operation—dull days of just sleeping and eating."

* * *

• Brunhilde has shown no signs of insidious "radiation sickness," such as loss of hair, or failure of her implantation wound to heal. The latter has long since healed.

This indicates that there has been no damage-induced leakage of radioactive material from its capsule within the tiny battery. Brunhilde's activities —such as banging against her cage—subject the device to more stress than most human wearers would, the doctors said.

Sometime next spring, about a year after her implant imperation, doctors said Brunhilde may be gently put to sleep forever so that definitive post-mortem studies can be made.

* * *

Forty-four states levy sales taxes, with some $10.4 billion raised from this source in 1968.

PAWN IN EXPERIMENT — Brunhilde, a 4-year-old foxhound with an atomic-powered heart pacemaker implanted beneath its skin, is petted by lab technician Mike Brenigan at the National Heart Institute in Bethesda, Md. Sometime next spring, doctors say, Brunhilde may be put to sleep forever so that definitive post-mortem studies can be made.

Cracks Fixed at Memorial to Jefferson

By National Geographic Society

WASHINGTON — Travelers who come to Washington, D.C., with a check list of things to see may have to cross one item off the agenda: the Jefferson Memorial, for the time being, can be admired only from afar.

Closed for repairs since Oct. 15, the memorial is scheduled to reopen in late next month.

* * *

Contrary to some reports, the memorial is not sinking slowly into the Tidal Basin. The massive rotunda, situated on steel pilings driven to bedrock, is structurally sound, but the surrounding foundations rest on unsettled land reclaimed from the Potomac.

As a result, some sidewalks and retaining walls around the memorial have cracked or buckled, required the current million-dollar repair project.

The shifting of the memorial's foundating does not surprise National Park Service officials.

22 Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying,
23 Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Em-man-u-el, which being interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Joseph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife:
25 And knew her not till she had brought forth her firstborn son: and he called his name JESUS.

Food Programs Surveyed

Aid Not Reaching Poor

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

Last summer, more than 200 young Quakers spent their college vacations interviewing poor people.

Under the aegis of the American Friends Service Committee, they covered 35 representative U.S. counties, stretching from Maine to California.

Their purpose was to find out whether federal food programs are reaching all or most of the people who need them.

The findings have now been published. They are pretty shocking.

FEW GET AID

Here are a few typical examples:

In Clayton county, Georgia, 2,140 families live below the official poverty level ($3,000 annual income for a family of four), but only 306 are getting food under the surplus commodities program.

In Delaware county, Pennsylvania, 18,141 families are below the poverty level, but only 1,904 are getting food stamps.

In Riverside county, California, 13,000 families are below the poverty level, and 8,463 are getting commodities.

In Alleghany county, Maryland, 5,210 families live below the poverty level, and 609 receive food stamps.

* * *

Because circumstances vary so widely from one county to another, the Quaker group refrained from any attempt to project a nationwide average. But the unmistakable fact that stands out from the survey is that very large numbers of poor people — probably condiderably more than half — are NOT being helped by present government food programs.

Since the survey was conducted, Congress has substantially increased the funds available to provide free school lunches for needy children. It also raised the annual appropriation for food stamp distribution from $280 million to $610 million.

ACTIONS WILL HELP

These actions will help. But the Quaker study indicates that millions of genuinely hungry families will still remain outside the coverage of the food programs.

The college and high school students who conducted the survey sought to find out why some families are not getting food aid which they plainly need.

One major reason, they discovered, is that large numbers of poor people "have never heard of food programs."

Very few counties are making an aggressive effort to notify all eligible families of the availability of help.

NOT THEIR BUSINESS?

Many officials told interviewers they didn't feel it was their job to go out and drum up business.

Some said the program would be swamped with applicants if too many people found out about it.

* * *

In some areas, language is a barrier. Information about food programs is made public only in English, while many of the poorest people speak only Spanish or an Indian language.

Transportation is another serious barrier.

MUST TRAVEL

To receive food stamps or commodities, the head of a poor family must travel in person to a distribution center that may be many miles from his home, and which often is not easily accessible by public transportation.

These difficulties could be — and some day probably will be — alleviated by government action.

* * *

In the meantime, is there any reason why church and civic groups cannot take on the job of searching out poor families, telling them about food programs, and providing them with transportation to the distribution center?

This would seem to be an eminently practical opportunity for voluntary service on the community level.

Divers Recover Bodies of Couple

ALPENA (AP) — State Police skin divers were used to recover the bodies of an East Grand Lake couple, who died when their snowmobile crashed through the ice at Grand Lake.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zerbe, died Wednesday. Authorities said Zerbe was 46 and his wife was about 30. The snowmobile broke through the ice about three-fourths of a mile from shore.

Top Director Makes Films to Suit Himself

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Youth audience? Adult audience? When Stanley Kramer makes a movie, he tries to please only one person: Stanley Kramer.

★ ★ ★

"And I haven't always succeeded too well," the veteran but still boyish producer-directed remarked. "But you must do what pleases you—not an audience you're supposedly creating for."

★ ★ ★

Latest producer-association surveys indicate most moviegoers are between 12 and 24 years old. Many producers are tailoring themes and stories accordingly. Kramer, whose outstanding films range from "Champion" and "High Noon" to "Judgment at Nuremberg" and the current "Secret of Santa Vittoria," says this trend may be a mistake.

★ ★ ★

"The youth-oriented film of 1968, '69 and '70 may be a drag by 1971' " he argued in an interview. "We'd better make films that are good, up-to-date, aware, even revolutionary. That doesn't necessarily imply that they're youth oriented."

NOT AIMED AT YOUTH

Even his current project, "R.P.M." starring Anthony Quinn in a story of campus revolt, is not aimed specifically, he says, at youth.

"It's a story of the student rebellion from our point of view, Quinn's and mine, as members of the establishment. And I don't know what that is.

★ ★ ★

"I'm what might be termed in a loose sense a discarded liberal," Kramer reflected. "For years I was dealing with films made in spite of the establishment, so-called, until someone told me it was me!"

★ ★ ★

He sympathized with a black man's problems in a white army in "Home of the Brave," challenged fundamentalists in "Inherit the Wind" and warned that the bomb could destroy the world in "On the Beach."

The "discarded liberal" image emerged with "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," starring Sidney Poitier as a black man engaged to marry a white girl. Some critics said the racial problem was unrealistic, scientist Poitier too nearly perfect.

"All the things the picture took its belaboring about were on purpose," said Kramer.

INTENDED

"The bogus sophisticates couldn't see that the ultrasophistication was intended. All the people had to be beautiful so that if the match was not consummated it could only be because the man was black."

Kramer, 56, who started in the industry 37 years ago as a $30-a-week junior writer, said his film subjects have been "just things that attracted me, things in which I believed.

★ ★ ★

"I feel the ncessity for making a commitment, for establishing hope that what in many ways is a shoddy society. I think leadership is lacking in society, and those of us who are part of it should lead.

"Who's not for ending ghettos, taking pollution out of the air, ending the war? If you'r going to do something about it, you've got to step on somebody's toes."

Fire Loss Less in City in '69

Pontiac firemen answered more alarms in 1969 than in '68 and put out more fires, but figures show a substantial reduction in fire fatalities and financial loss.

★ ★ ★

In the 11-month period of January to November 1969, alarms totaled 1,898 over last year's 1,609. Total number of fires in 1969 were 1,222, compared to 960 in 1968.

★ ★ ★

Fire losses, however, totaled $674,436 in 1969, a marked drop from the $1,227,030 lost in 1968. Eighteen persons died as a result of fire in 1969, whereas 42 died in 1968.

★ ★ ★

Rescue and emergency calls — including accidental and false alarms, smoke investigations and resuscitator calls — remained about the same. There were 676 calls in '69 and 649 in 1968.

Herrington Hills Residents Work to Keep Integration

Rather than fight integration as do some homeowner groups, members of the Herrington Hills Residents' Association on Pontiac's east side have organized to keep integration.

The association was formed in July on the crumbling foundation of the Herrington Hills Home owners' Association, by residents of the 13-year-old community north of Featherstone and east of the Grand Trunk Western Railroad tracks.

★ ★ ★

The bylaws of the new association state that its purpose is to protect the rights and interests of the members, to maintain the residential character of the neighborhood and adjaareas, to increase the sense of civic responsibilities of its members and to promote a feeling of neighborliness and friendliness among its members.

"The structure of the organization is not unique," explains Robert F. Jackson, city commissioner for the area, "but the fact that it is not egocentric is."

BLOCK REPRESENTATIVES

Each street of the neighborhood has two block representatives who meet with other representatives every two weeks. The block representative report personally to those on their street.

In addition there are meetings for the entire association at least once every three months.

★ ★ ★

Residents talk about anything at the meetings from unshoveled walks to citywide elections.

★ ★ ★

Kenneth A. Jahnke, chairman of the association, said problems usually are solved with a phone call or letter.

"An organization usually carries a lot more weight than an individual," he said.

'RELATIONS IMPROVE

"Neighborhood relations have improved since the association started," commented Barry Sikes, a block representative. "My neighbor is more than a white man. I know Joe now."

"We began to look at each other as people instead of just objects," another member said.

★ ★ ★

Just as the new association was being organized last summer the lower east side of Pontiac was hit by a series of fire-bombings. Two occurred in Herrington Hills, while one was at Commissioner Jackson's home just outside the subdivision.

"We like to believe that the association contributed to the stopping of these bombings," Jahnke said.

COHESIVE FORCE

He added that the August bombings may have been a force in bringing the people of the neighborhood together.

"We became very active after that occurred," he said.

Jahnke noted that realtors also became very active after the fire-bombings.

"My phone used to ring once a week with realtors wanting me to sell," Jahnke said. "They told me I didn't have to put up a for-sale sign and that they had cash to buy me out on the spot."

Commissioner Jackson said he had no count on the number of people moving in or out of the community.

BROKERS' PRACTICE

"There is a question of whether white brokers in Pontiac are showing Herrington Hills to white buyers," he contended, however.

"The association is interested in seeing an honest marketing situation, not a put-up job," he added.

In spite of any possible problems with realtors, Jackson said the value of the homes has increased over the years from about $13,000 to between $17,500 to $19,500.

The residents association is working with those outside the neighborhood in an effort to improve the entire area, Jahnke said.

INTEREST IN APARTMENT

Plans are being made to meet with the builder of an apartment building adjacent to the Herrington Hills Elementary School, to assure that a true mixture of tenants is possible.

"We want not only a racial mix," Jahnke said, "but a mixture of professions and incomes."

★ ★ ★

In addition, representatives of the residents' association attend every meeting of the City Commission and school board.

The parks and recreation department contributes the use of the Herrington Hills Elementary School gymnasium two nights each week for adult and youth activities.

Also supporting the association's efforts is the 761st Tank Battalion, Allied Veterans Association, which contributed funds toward the group's family Christmas party last week.

WORKING TOGETHER — Members of the Herrington Hills Residents' Association worked together last weekend for a community Christmas party, one of several ways in which the organization is attempting to keep the racially mixed neighborhood integrated. The association's chairman, Kenneth A. Jahnke (left) of 1246 Maurer, is helped in constructing a creche for the event by Joseph Napier (center) of 1264 Maurer and Robert Harrold (right) of 405 Bay.

U.S. May Get 'Golden Fleece' Sheep

By National Geographic Society

WASHINGTON — A tested champion may be coming to the United States to do battle with a new challenger.

The champ is a sheep.

★ ★ ★

It is not an ordinary sheep, but an Australian merino of a type renowned for 2,000 years because it produces the finest of all wool. Some call the merino "the sheep with the golden fleece."

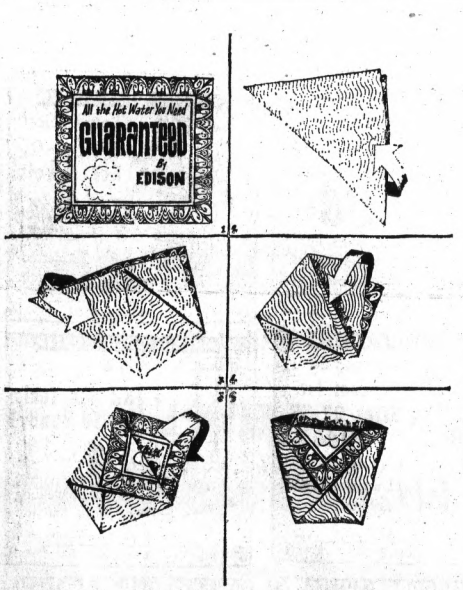

The challenger is the synthetic textile industry, already crowding wool's hold on 8.5 per cent of the world's textile-fiber market.

MIGHT ALLOW 300

After a 40-year ban on exporting rams, Australia might now permit 300 to be sent to the states during the next 12 months. The aim is to help improve flocks and aid a woolen industry fighting severe competition against synthetics, the National Geographic Society says.

★ ★ ★

Some Australian sheepmen still oppose the move, though varieties of merinos are found throughout the world. With final lifting of the ban other nations would also be expected to import Australia's highly successful strain of merinos to help maintain the world's supply of fine wool.

Cycling Clergy to Rap With Rock Fans

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Two sideburned, motorcycling ministers are out to coax young fans to "turn on to Jesus" while they groove to soul music at a festival near here this weekend.

The Rev. David Holt and The Rev. Chuck Brickel decided several weeks ago the 50,000 youths expected by promoters at a three-day rock festival should get a dose of religion in the bargain.

But they won't give them the old-fashioned kind.

The two youthful Baptist ministers and a team of 150 volunteers will fan out over the Miami-Hollywood Speedway Dec. 27-29, putting psychedelic New Testaments in every hand that reaches out.

Brochures that tell the readers Jesus "was strung out naked on that junky wood" will accompany bumper stickers urging: "Turn on with Jesus."

CYCLE IN CROWD

Holt, a motorcycle enthusiast, said he planned to ride his bike through the throngs of youngsters. Brickel, who has never riden a motorcycle, will hang on behind Holt.

Holt said "The true hippie is willing to let everybody do his thing. This is our thing."

Festival promoter Norman Johnson gave Holt permission to deliver a sermon from the main stage Sunday. The minister said he wants to do it because he believes it is a way to make Chritianity relevant to the needs of young people.

"They know they haven't found the answer to life, and they're hungry for it," the stocky clergyman said.

* * *

"We've found that purpose in Christ and we want to share it with them."

* * *

To research the project, Brickel visited the November Palm Beach Rock Festival and said he left appalled at the mud-mired event.

Draft Side Effects Are Uncertain Now

BY JERRY T. BALUCH
AP Newsfeatures

WASHINGTON — The military services are now wondering what effect the new random system will have on the Reserves, the National Guard, ROTC and on enlistments in the active forces. The experts are guessing, but admit at this point they don't really know.

BALUCH

Under the old system it was figures that about three-fourths of those who joined the Reserves, National Guard and ROTC did so because they could choose their service and have a better chance of picking their assignments than they would if drafted.

There will be the same incentives for those facing the draft under the new system but far fewer people will have the draft hanging over their heads — with vulnerability reduced to one year.

So indications now are that those with very low numbers are planning to rush into one of those beat-the-draft systems. But there are few vacancies in Reserve and Guard units and won't but until those in now complete their six-year military obligations.

WOULDN'T BE FREE

A man can't drop out of the Guard or Reserve and be free because he has what seems like a safe draft number. If he fails to keep active as required to fulfill his six-year military obligation he still can be called to two years active duty regardless of his draft number. The same applies for those who have signed up for ROTC scholarships. And even those with two years active duty can still be called up for 45 days.

One view is given by the Navy, which is considered to have more comfortable and safer billets than the other services.

★ ★ ★

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chief of naval operations, said in a recent interview in U.S. News & World Report that about half those who enlist are motivated by the draft.

The draft change, he said, could result in "a temporary drop in the quality, but I think in the long run, we can build that back up again and maintain the numbers required."

MORE COMFORTABLE

Neither the Navy nor the Air Force has had to turn to the draft so far because they offer more chances of comfortable assignments than the tougher life of the Army and Marines, which have to use the draft to keep up to strength.

Probably there'll be a big rush of enlistments by those with low numbers. And then there'll probably be a dropoff but whether it will be so much as to reduce the current high rates is yet to be seen.

Enlisting, however, is the best way to get your military obligation out of the way quickly, even though you serve three years or more active duty rather than the two-year draft. Or if you have a low number and want to get it over with you can enlist for the draft ahead of your call.

No doubt many who have low numbers will turn to the Guard and Reserves as vacancies open up, but whether the units will be kept filled by these is a big question mark. One top official in this field told me "we may have to start recruiting again."

More Draft Changes

One factor that's been lost sight of to a degree, in all the publicity about the new draft system, is that there are likely to be more changes in the rules next year, with Congress committed to hearings on a variety of proposals.

These range from abolishing the draft to such things as: restoring graduate student deferments; ending all deferments; broadening the conscientious objector status to include those opposed to the Vietnam war; having more uniform national standards for draft boards; opening national service alternatives to the military draft; letting men challenging their draft status be represented before draft boards by attorneys.

Another factor is that Gen. Lewis B. Hershey is being forced out after his long reign as Selective Service director. His successor may have ideas that could change the picture too.

The Fine Point

So much has been written about the new draft system I'll confine myself here to trying to point up some of the trickier aspects that may still be bothering you:

In talking to youngsters and their parents I find many still don't understand that you who were eligible for numbers in the Dec. 1 drawing keep those numbers and alphabetical sequence from now on even though you may be deferred for a year or two in college. The numbers and letter to be drawn next December will be only for those who turn 19 during 1970.

If you're in one of the low "sure" call-up numbers, or even in the middle "maybe" class you can take away some of the suspense by asking your draft board to arrange for you to take your physical exam as soon as you can and you'll know if you're qualified on that score. Then you can plan your future with more certainty. If you take the early physical it doesn't affect one bit when you're called.

LOTS OF FIGURES

As to what your chances of being drafted next year are, you hear lots of figures. Mostly they put the safe-from-call line anywhere from the low 100s to the high. But some draft boards, such as in Michigan and New York, say they're scraping the barrel and will hit into the 300s.

The odds of being called next year generally are lower, however, then they will be in future years, unless draft calls drop drastically. That's because this first-time lottery includes everybody from age 19 through age 25 so nobody escapes his one year of vulnerability.

When you consider that about half who take their physical flunk and there are so many deferments, we'll end up with about 850,000 draft eligibles. It's estimated that about 290,000 will join the Reserves or enlist. That leaves 560,000 to fill the expected draft call totay of 250,000, by Pentagon calculations.

As I noted earlier, only those who turn 19 during 1970 will be in the bowl next December, so that makes the odds considerably higher during 1971. However, no figures have been forecast yet.

SEPARATE OPERATION

The same numbers for call-up won't be picked each month nationally. Each board will operate separately, picking its available low numbers, so some will run ahead of others. But to keep them from getting too far apart Selective Service long has had a system of keeping things fairly even through assignment of draft quotas to the states and among each state's various boards.

If you lose your deferment any time during 1970, such as by graduating from college, flunking or dropping out, you immediately become eligible for the draft. If your number has come up before you lose your deferment that puts you first in line to be drafted. If your number hasn't come up before you lose your deferment you wait like everybody else with your number.

Space Backers Touchy on Cost Comparisons

JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Advocates of space exploration don't much like it when critics compare space costs with those of other government programs.

They say this is like comparing apples and oranges and is therefore irrelevant. Maybe they're right. It would be hard to prove that Congress would vote more money for the poor, say, if it voted less for space. But the space enthusiasts are pretty good themselves at making wide-swinging cost comparisons.

★ ★ ★

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) is spending about $4 billion a year on its manifold projects. Somebody has estimated that Americans fork over some $6 billion a year for treatment of their pets by veterinarians.

Dr. Thomas O. Paine remarked recently that "The women of America spend more money doing their hair every year in the beauty parlors than we spend on our space program."

COMPARISON MADE

Paine, of course, was not saying that if women would spend less on their hair, we could spend more on space. Nevertheless, he did make the comparison.

William A. Anders, the Apollo 8 astronaut who is now executive secretary of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, a White House agency, carried this kind of comparison a bit further.

★ ★ ★

While NASA was spending what it spends on space exploration, Anders said in a speech, "our fellow citizens were spending:

"Nearly $4 billion for nondurable toys and throwaway sports supplies.

"4.7 billion for foreign travel.

"Over $6.5 billion in amusements."

NOT NASA OPERATIONS

Hairdos, toys, vacations abroad, amusements generally hardly come under the heading — as NASA's operations do — of federal programs.

But what we spend on them may, as Paine appeared to suggest, have something to say about "the priorities of our society."

★ ★ ★

Anders cited the value of weather and communication satellites, the promise of earth resources studies for space, the scientific harvest to be reaped by space probes of the planets, and the potentialities of industrial laboratories and factories in orbit.

"Without the space program," Anders said, "none of these could be bought at any price. The taxpayer has a real bargain here."

★ ★ ★

The former astronaut said the costs of NASA programs "are about equal to our alcohol tax revenue." But he quickly added:

"Please don't get the impression Bill Anders is telling you to drink twice as many martinis so that we can pay for our space program."

Campaign, Japan Style-Bows, Short Speeches

TOKYO (AP) — Campaigning Japanese-style, Eiichi Tanaka urges the crowd:

"Please place my head back on my body. They have been separated by dissolution of the parliament.

"Every vote is needed to put me together again so I'can work in your interests. Your gracious vote on Dec. 27 is most welcomed."

Tanaka, 68, wears a white chrysanthemum in his coat lapel. He is an expert in judo, karate and archery and once served as Tokyo metropolitan police chief.

'TOUGH ELECTION'

"This is going to be a tough election," he tells a friend. "I'm going to need every possible vote."

He is running to keep his seat in parliament, where he belongs to the ruling Liberal Democrats headed by Prime Minister Eisaku Sato. He is one of 13 candidates vying for three seats in the First Electoral District, made up of large and small industries, various businesses and residences.

★ ★ ★

Tanaka says he is the friend of the people—particularly merchants of small and medium-sized enterprises—since he was reared in Asakusa, the colorful East Side of Tokyo and the scene of many old Japanese woodcut prints.

"People are apt to misunderstand me for a bureaucratic politician," Tanaka says. "But I was born the son of a small textile house. My father failed in his business so I had to work in a pharmacy, as an assistant to a calligraphy artist, a kozo (apprentice) in an inn and a clerk in a government office. Because of my background, I fully understand merchants and the masses."

'WEAK POINTS'

A self-made man who graduated from the elite prewar Tokyo Imperial University law school, he tells his constituents:

"Tanaka is a human being. He has his weak points, his faults and his shortcomings. He has made mistakes. That's because he is still a freshman in politics.

"You the voter, however, have helped him in four previous elections. He has met previous election pledges. He promises to fulfill further responsibilities and live up to your expectations.

"But he cannot do this with his head and body separated. They must be united, and to do this he needs your vote in this most crucial election to face the crucial years ahead with you in 1970s."

SHORT APPEAL

Tanaka campaigns in an automobile equipped with a loudspeaker. Election regulations allow him to make a "short simple appeal." He cannot speak on any policy matters unless the car comes to a full stop. All campaign speeches must be delivered at school auditoriums or designated public places.

Tanaka meets the people with a bow from the waist. He cannot display the flamboyance of the Western politician. No baby kissing. Japan's election law forbids gimmicks.

Among his competitors are a middle-of-the-road Democratic Socialist, Yoshikata Aso, 46, and a pro-Peking Socialist, Kenichi Hirosawa, 50, both also up for reelection. The three are being hard-pressed by the Communist and Komeito candidates.

The Communists, having disassociated themselves from the hard-line Red Chinese, are riding on the popularity of Tokyo's Gov. Ryokichi Minobe, whom they and the Socialists put into power. Komeito (Clean party), the political arm of the Buddhist Soka-Gakkai, having made a phenomenal debut in carefully selected regions in 1967, is entering candidates in more areas. Tokyo's First District happens to be one of them.

STRONG BID

"Komeito is making a strong bid," Tanaka says, adding he will be lucky if he gets as many votes as in 1967.

Tanaka and his campaign assistants work from dawn to almost midnight. While his campaign vehicle rolls about the district he calls via loudspeaker for "your precious, gracious vote." In the evening he appears at three assemblies in three different auditoriums to speak 10-20 minutes. He carefully selects his topics—ranging from Okinawa, the U.S.-Japan security treaty, the Soviet-occupied northern islands, and war and peace in Vietnam, to domestic issues such as education and students, rising household prices, small and medium-sized enterprises. The idea is to suit his audience.

For the first time this year candidates can project their image on television and directly appeal to the voter in his living room. Each is allowed two 30-second biographical introductions plus a 4½-minute speech. Every candidate must face the camera full-face from the chest up. He cannot lean back or forward or even turn his head. His name and the district he is running in appear on a slab in front of him. Outside Tokyo, candidates in Osaka, Kobe and Kyoto may make four TV appearances of the same length. All appearances must be taped in advance.

On the walls of Tanaka's campaign headquarters in an old bank building are hundreds of telegrams from well-wishers. A small Shinto shrine, a tiny bottle of sake rice-wine, and a large Daruma doll, with only one eye painted black, decorate an improvised shelf. The Daruma's blank eye is to be filled in, if Tanaka is reelected, to signify an achievement.

FLOW OF CALLERS

There is a flow of callers, male and female in various dress, including party big wheels, friends and neighbors and some doubting Thomases. The party executives call to map out strategy, the visitors to extend encouragement. Tanaka must restrict his hospitality to green tea and paper-thin rice cookies. To his campaign workers he cannot serve more than 45 lunches—worth 42 cents or less. All this is set by law.

He is allowed 2,000 posters on display boards that must conform to a specified size. He is permitted 25,000 vote-soliciting postcards including those sent on his behalf by his supporters. The law also defines the candidate's maximum election expenditure in ratio to voters.

In a similar way Japan elects all 486 members of the lower house of the Diet.

Secrecy Back in Diplomacy

By K. C. THALER

LONDON (UPI) — Secret diplomacy, banished by the major Western powers after World War II as the product of an authoritarian policy concept, has staged a remarkable comeback.

The United States, once the most outspoken opponent of secret diplomacy, has significantly taken the lead to restore it, if only on an experimental basis.

★ ★ ★

The key test case now in operation is the Soviet-American talks in Helsinki on the possibility of limiting strategic arms (SALT).

The outcome may determine the future of interstate relations in the 1970s.

POLICY SHIFTS

Western postwar policy, moving away from the earlier practice of secrecy, shifted toward full-scale open diplomacy by the mid-1940s. It has since determined the major East-West developments of the past quarter century.

Cold war diplomacy was essentially an open diplomacy, with the West, at any rate, giving full publicity to its major policy moves and designs.

International negotiations proceed in the limelight of full publicity, to the point of being overpublicized at times.

The postwar peace conferences, the many Big-Four negotiations, the summit meetings, the Far Eastern conferences all enjoyed utmost publicity, often on a blow-by-blow basis.

Critics of open diplomacy have argued that greater discretion might well have helped to produce better results.

The current Helsinki talks between Russia and the United States have evidently taken this counsel. It stands out as an example of secret diplomacy with both sides keeping silent on the progress of their effort to an unprecedented degree in modern times.

Peruvian Party Is in Trouble

Faces Squeeze-Out From Military Regime

By JOE McGOWAN JR.

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Peru's military government seems to be trying to squeeze the once-powerful APRA party out of existence.

The army leaders have never publicly suggested this as a goal of their revolution, but many political observers don't doubt that it is indeed an important aim.

They suggest that the military rulers will be willing to step aside for an elected government only after they have seen APRA die—and avenged a blood debt that goes back 40 years.

Hatred between the army and the American Popular Revolutionary Alliance, a leftist but anti-Communist organization, dates to July 1932, when an APRA mob stormed a sleeping army unit in the northern city of Trujillo, killing more than 70 soldiers and civilians.

STRUCK BACK

The army struck back, rounding up all males in the area and summarily executing any whose shoulders bore bruises such as can result from firing a rifle.

Although APRA has for years been the strongest single party in Peru, it has never been allowed to occupy Pizarro presidential palace. Its leader, Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, has nearly reached the presidency three times, but each time has been thwarted by military force.

★ ★ ★ ★

Things looked good for Haya when elections were called for last May. In many eyes, President Fernando Belaunde's Popular Action party was riddled with corruption and out of favor, leaving the field open to Haya.

Some of these same observers reason that the army generals used expropriation of International Petroleum, a Standard Oil subsidiary, as a means of taking power from Belaunde and thwarting APRA at the polls.

ELECTION CANCELED

The military rulers canceled the election. They say there will be a return to the ballot box only after they have achieved a number of social and other reforms.

This could mean 5 or 10 years.

Meanwhile APRA may fade from the Peruvian scene, for a variety of reasons.

Age has tamed Haya de la Torre—he is 74. Further, years of iron rule by Haya deprived the party of young, trained leaders. Haya's successor in waiting, Armando Villanueva, has none of the Haya magic.

The military government's program of reforms contains many of those espoused by APRA. The generals are embarked on an ambitious program of agrarian reform. Thus a major APRA rallying cry has been virtually silenced.

CONTROLS UNION

This is especially true in the northern sugar-producing regions around Trujillo, where APRA was founded and where it traditionally controlled sugar-estate unions.

Today, with promises of their own land and of profit-sharing, the workers are losing interest in the promises of a party whose future is uncertain.

★ ★ ★

President Juan Velasco delivered a serious blow to APRA strength in mining unions in September when he overruled his own labor minister and authorized a pay increase demanded by the Communist union at Cerro de Pasco.

The APRA unions at other mines had accepted a minimal increase laid down by the military government. The Communist union rebelled and ordered a march on Lima by miners, wives and children.

The marchers were stopped by riot police at a mountain pass well outside Lima, but Gen. Velasco stepped in and approved the demanded increase. His action provided a powerful propaganda weapon to the Red-dominated unions.

When Velasco made a tour of the northern region, the government turned on all its propaganda organs and Trujillo's Plaza de Armas was jammed with an enthusiastic crowd. The mayor and council boycotted this appearance and did not fly the flag over the city hall.

Police boss Gen. Armando Artola immediately ousted the APRA city officials and put in a pro-government group. The en-

Dry Days Can Jolt the Unwary

By National Geographic Society

WASHINGTON — Dry winter days can shock innocent victims.

Static electricity often jars the unwary who walk across a carpeted floor and then touch a metal desk, door knob, or filing cabinet.

★ ★ ★

Some people store more static electricity than others. The family of a highly charged Briton hugs him after the working day only if he remembers to knock on metal before coming home.

"I always touch the metal filing cabinet at the office," he says. "There's a flash and then I down to normal."

SETS OFF CHARGES

Substantial charges sometimes occur when clothing of certain materials is suddenly separated. Military personnel have been cautioned on the danger, especially when handling explosive fuels.

Unlike current electricity which flows through a wire, the static variety spreads over the surface of all objects.

Both contain electrically charged particles of the atom, known as electrons. The particles are so small that thirty thousand trillion trillion weigh less than an ounce. Six million trillion must pass through the filament of a 100-watt bulb to keep it burning one second.

In the home and office, friction between shoes and rugs sometimes builds up an excess number of the negatively charged electrons in the shoes and hence the body. The extra electrons jump to grounded objects — a filing cabinet or a less-charged person — creating a spark.

High summer humidity reduces static electricity. By absorbing moisture, the air and many materials become more conductive, allowing static charges to leak off.

In contrast, lightning, one of the most powerful forms of static electricity, seems more prevalent on hot, muggy nights.

A thundercloud somehow works as a wind-driven dynamo. Studies suggest that positive and negative charges build up until their mutual attraction becomes so great that electrons shoot from one pole to the other. The current generates light, heat and sound.

Lightning bolts may measure several miles in length, but are only about one to six inches in diameter. They flash from cloud to cloud and ground to cloud, as well as from cloud to earth, traveling up to 55 miles a second.

★ ★ ★

A lightning bolt's heat combines nitrogen and oxygen. The nitrogen oxides dissolve in rain, forming dilute nitric acid and a form of oxygen called ozone that gives air its pungent odor during a storm. The acid reacts with minerals in the earth to form plant-nourishing nitrates.

The less-spectacular, everyday form of static electricity helps man, too. It has been put to work in nuclear research, industrial painting processes and office copying equipment.

Hockey His Salvation in Hard Iowa Winter

By DAVE WHITNEY

DES MOINES (AP) — It only took us two winters, but we finally found out what Iowans do when the frost gets on the pumpkins and harvest time is over.

Our first winter in the Hawkeye State last year found us generally wrapped up in a blanket huddling around the fire place and brooding about what someone had against us by shipping us from Florida to Iowa in November.

Not so this winter. We've found a salvation—one that sends you out to cool off in cool weather. It's called hockey.

The team is called the Des Moines Oak Leafs, but they actually play in Urbandale, a suburb of Des Moines.

If that doesn't confuse you, the game will. The closet we had ever come to a hockey game was batting a beer can around a lake when we were in school in Missouri.

ABRUPT END

Our hockey career ended abruptly when we hit a patch of thin ice and fell in.

That first night, the most we learned about the game is that icing is something besides what comes on cakes and a face-off isn't necessarily what you have with the frau when you come tiptoeing in loaded with martinis.

More interesting than the game were the fans. Girls in miniskirts and goose-pimpled legs, farmers in overalls, outdoorsmen in hunting jackets—fans just about every shape and size in the book.

But, they all had one thing in common. They could make a lot of noise, and it was evident that the Oak Leafs were their team.

FANS NO. 1

Now, the Oak Leafs aren't what you'd call the top of the professional hockey stack — in fact, they're in the International Hockey League, just one or two jumps out of the amateur ranks.

But to Oak Leafs fans they're No.1, win or lose.

To protect yourself, there are a couple of basic rules to remember.

● When the guys in the green and white uniforms get clustered around that well-padded fellow at the other end in a different color outfit, you jump up and yell your fool head off.

● When you jump up and yell your fool head off, make sure you don't step on the cup of beer sitting under the seat next to you, or you don't empty yours down the back of the guy in front of you.

CROWD JOINS IN

Really, it's a crowd participation game. In a town where you couldn't draw a crowd of 300 people if you were giving away $1 bills, they pack 4,500 spectators into an ice arena with a seating capacity of 4,000.

When one person jumps up to yell, the whole crowd has to. It's like a can of sardines cheering on their favorite shark.

They even have two Urbandale policemen to guard the penalty box. As one of them put it: "The fans around here get so excited they jump out of the stans and pour beer on the players in the penalty box." And, the games' most consistent fan is a slightly built, mild, dental technician named Randy Boyd.

Randy spends all day building false teeth, but when the Oak Leafs are home, the nights become a second heaven. Equipped with a battered bugle —"I got for something like $13.98"—he wandered into the arena three years ago and blew "charge" as the Oak Leafs were about to make a big play.

SEASON PASS

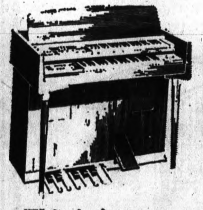

He's been there every night since, and "They even give me a season pass now." His only two bugle calls are "Charge" and "Taps," the latter reserved for the final minute when the home team wins and the fans shout the visitors off the ice.

When spring comes, the snow melts and the final hockey game is played, those faithful Oak Leafs followers go back to their farms and offices and spend the summer dreaming of heroes of past seasons.

The memories must have some type of cooling effect when you're plowing a cornfield in the hot summer sun, because one of the few times you feel warm in an Iowa winter is when you walk out of the ice arena into a snowbank.

Black African-Power Carries Big Weight in U.N. Forum

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U.N. Secretary General U Thant has called the 24th session of the General Assembly "an assembly of the poor against the rich, the weak against the strong, the young against the old."

It was chiefly the Africans who made it so.

* * *

Much to big-power discomfort, they blocked anything that didn't please them and had all their points gain U.N. acceptance.

An experienced U.N.-watcher remarked: "Once Africans had a lot of bark, but no bite. They are getting it now."

'SEEMS SLIPPING'

The 126-nation world forum, approaching its quarter-century mark, seems at times to be slipping into the grip of black diplomats from the emerging continent.

* * *

Their influence ranges from Swaziland's barefooted lobbying diplomats, in their red togas with bone necklaces, to Liberia's Miss Angie Brooks, president of the General Assembly who wears a turban and a flowing African robe.

* * *

Only about 20 years ago, African states at the United Nations numbered three—Ethiopia, Liberia and Egypt. They were invited to the meetings of the Asian group mainly out of courtesy.

Now 40 countries represent the continent. They outnumber the Asians and on vital issues often split with them.

BLACK POWER

When united on an issue, they can stifle any important item by any power in the General Assembly. When they unite with the 30-member Asian group or the 23-nation Latin bloc, no combination of alliances can block the Africans from ramming a resolution through the assembly.

At the session that closed last week, over a quarter of the items under debate concerned Africa.

* * *

Even the U.N. Secretariat is feeling the winds of change from Africa. Africans in senior staff posts now number 19, up almost 100 per cent from four years ago and enough to overtake those from Latin America in that level.

The African ambassadors are mostly in their late 30s or early 40s. They seem bent on a calculated and cautious course to make the United Nations stronger.

SERVING AIMS

Then, they feel they can use their numerical superiority to have the United Nations serve their economic and political aims. When economic aid or political agreements carry U.N. approval, major powers may be hesitant in raising objections—although their money chiefly supports U.N. operations.

Africans sit patiently through all debates, huddle briefly and then come up with solid unity resolutions.

They rarely lose.

* * *

But at times they are said to have such great faith in their strength at the United Nations that they ignore consulting others, even the United States and the Soviet Union.

* * *

This was the case, for instance, on the resolution again calling for the use of force to crush the white minority rule in Rhodesia. The African proposal won easily. U.S. Delegate Frederick Sackstеder complained, after America's negative vote, that he "regretted the failure of the cosponsore to consult adequately."

* * *

At other times some African appeals simply cannot be opposed by the major powers. A "Manifesto on Southern Africa" says in part, for example:

"Our stand toward southern Africa involves a rejection of racialism, not a reversal of the existing racial domination . . . We would prefer to negotiate rather than destroy, to talk rather than kill. We do not advocate violence, we advocate an end to violence . . ."

* * *

That won immediate praise from U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost as "one of the most important political documents to emerge from Africa." Lord Caradon of Britain called it eloquent.

* * *

Africans by no means confine their jaunt into international prominence to the United Nations. This year they succeeded in taking a seat from the Asians at the International Court of Justice.

With close collaboration from Latin Americans, the Africans increased to three their representation in the 15-man court.

* * *

Privately African diplomats tell of rivalries within the group. Some cite the intense jockeying for leadership of the bloc, still yet unclear. Some assail Botswana, Lesotho and Swaziland as remaining under the financial orbit of South Africa. Others point out the division of the delegations over the Biafran war.

On most matters, however, Africans present a united front and leave most differences, as one diplomat puts in, "back in Africa or in the back room — never on the assembly floor."

That is likely one of the chief reasons why this session emerged as one of the poor against the rich, the weak against the strong, the young against the old.

Wilson Submits Year's List of 'Best,' 'Biggest,' 'Most'

BY EARL WILSON

New York — Here we go again with our annual delirium . . . we're picking 1969's Bests in Show Business . . . the tops (and in some cases, the topless) of Broadway, Hollywood and Las Vegas . . . we hope you agree to a degree.

WILSON

Best Songs: to me, Peggy Lee's "Is That All There Is?" by Jerry Lieber and Mike Stoller, and O. C. Smith's "Little Green Apples" by Bobby Russell. But the Colony Record Shop says the biggest selling record (4,000,000 plus) was "Sugar, Sugar" by Don Kirshner's "The Archies" (animated TV characters on CBS). Also the 5th Dimension's "Age of Aquarius," Oliver's "Let The Sun Shine In," the Beatles "Abbey Road," Tom Jones' "Delilah," and Bob Dylan's "Nashville Skyline," Simon & Garfunkel's "Book Ends," Engelbert Humperdinck's "A Man Without Love."

Surprise of the Year: Gail Renshaw, Miss World-USA, walking off with Dean Martin. Woman of the Year: Barbara Streisand, with "Hello, Dolly!" and "Funny Girl" both on Broadway marquees — and Katharine Hepburn who plays Katharine Hepburn in "Coco" and gets away with it. New Gal Star: Ali MacGraw.

Biggest Comebacks: John Lindsay, Mae West, Cassius Clay, George Chuvalo and Jim Aubrey who became the new MGM lion. Best Las Vegas act: Elvis Presley.

Biggest Rock Star: Liz Taylor. She got the biggest rock. Biggest TV audience: Neil Armstrong's. Second: Teddy Kennedy's. Lady who cause most gasps, comment and headlines: Jackie Onassis. Biggest false alarm (a scoop published by me) Joe Namath's retirement from football. Most overworked word: Permissive. Most permissive permissiveness: Pornographic weeklies sold openly on newsstands in NY (a new one emerges almost every week).

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Richard Burton & Liz Taylor were mysterious this trip to NY — did not display the Big D — also had one very private night with close friends before taking off for Hollywood . . . Two detectives who broke the Sharon Tate murder case attended Barbar Streisand at her Hollywood premiere of "Hello, Dolly!" — and all was orderly. Barbara returned to NY for more scenes in "Owl & the Pussycat."

Buddy Greco's new record hit, "Double Life," was written expressly for him by Paul Anka . . . The Larry Finlay's party at Alfredo's really swang . . . Donald Flamm gave a brunch to show his guests how the new Gulf & Western Bldg. in Columbus Circle didn't spoil his view.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: George Bernard Shaw once attended a dull party where the hostess inquired, "Are you enjoying yourself?" He replied, "Yes, but that's all I'm enjoying."

WISH I'd SAID THAT: "New Yorkers always mutiny but never desert." —Harry Hershfield.

EARL'S PEARLS: "Santa comes down the chimney and your money goes down the drain." —Arnold Glasow.

A Church at Durham, N.C. has a parking lot sign that says "Thou Shalt Not Park Here — Nor Steal This Sign" . . . That's earl, brother.

Colombian Military Vows Election Neutrality

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The armed forces have taken pains to say they remain neutral and have no intention of interfering in politics in 1970—a presidential election year in Colombia.

Statements to this effect form the Defense Ministry and the armed forces commanders come at a time when the talk in Bogota is about the presidential aspirations of Gustavo Rojas Pinilla, the former dictator.

* * *

It is rumored that if Rojas wins—and experts give him a chance—the military will block his inauguration.

The only times in this century that Colombia's armed forces got directly involved in politics and government were in 1953 when Rojas came to power in a coup and in 1957 when he was thrown out.

CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

This week the defense minister, Gen. Gerardo Ayerbe Chaux, said in a Christmas message:

"The armed forces maintain political neutrality and act without swerving against the enemies of order and of the tranquillity of the citizenry."

* * *

Statements of other military commanders in Colombia have been more specific, saying that the armed forces will respect the election results, no matter who wins.

A split in the ruling National Union—a coalition of Liberals and Conservatives—over its candidate for the presidency has given Rojas his best chance for a return to power since he reentered politics in the mid-'60s.

LIBERAL ENDORSEMENT

Rojas also got a boost by winning the support of a Liberal senator, Ignacio Vives, who has a following among the workers and peasants.

Rojas in his speeches contrasts the prices of essential goods during his rule with what they are now.

* * *

The current president, Carlos Lleras Restrepo, is a Liberal, and his support in the campaign is for the National Union's official candidate, Misael Pastrana Borrero, 46, former ambassador to Washington. Pastrana is a Conservative.

Under Colombia's law, the Liberals and the Conservatives alternate the presidency every four years. In 1970 it is the Conservatives' turn. But the party is split, and two other leading Conservatives have entered the race as National Union dissidents.

* * *

Some experts feel that unless the National Union overcomes the split in the Conservative side of the coalition and decides on a single candidate, Rojas may be able to swing the election. He, incidentally, is also a Conservative.

In a recent newspaper poll, one of the Conservative dissidents, Belisario Bentancur, 46, was the most popular candidate. The other candidate is former Foreign Minister Evaristo Sourdis, 64, who is likely to run strong in the northern coastal area where he was born.

Driver of Crane Is Electrocuted

MIDLAND (AP) — A crane struck a 46,000-volt power line, killing the driver, Donald Lester Lowery, 37, of Mount Pleasant.

The accident, which happened Wednesday near Midland, also interrupted electrical service temporary to about 8,000 customers in Midland and Saginaw counties.

History Is Rewritten by Avid Wargamers

By JIM CROSSLEY
NEA Writer

We now have with us a game growing so complicated that it will one day require a computer for efficient play.

Ever hear of "wargaming"?

★

Last August, this elite hobby came of age at Lake Geneva, Wis. The second national convention of the International Federation of Wargaming was held there. Several hundred attended and the hobby problem now is growth, rather than survival.

Wargamers at play do their best to rewrite history. A number of firms manufacture game boards which recreate historic battles, like Gettysburg, Waterloo, D-Day or Battle of the Bulge.

ESTABLISHES ITSELF

"The hobby has established itself as chess, checkers and bridge have done before," says Leonard Lakofka, a vice president of the international federation. "However, the hobby allows for variation and complexity these other games only hoped for."

In its simplest form, the game is played on an authentic layout of the battleground in question.

★ ★ ★

Summoning knowledge and strategic brain power, two opponents, or teams of opponents, mastermind the clash of arms all over again.

The original troops, supplies and machines of war are deployed in the form of stacks of cardboard markers.

CLASHES OCCUR

Clashes occur when piles intercept each other on the battlefield grid.

Complex rules involving tossing dice add an element of chance — though this element is supplementary to the skill involved.

Even so, a computer would help.

"In naval warfare, for example," says Lakofka, "ship A fires on ship B in one of the more basic situations. There are 13 factors, at least, that must be decided yes-no to arrive at the outcome. By hand calculation it takes three people 30 minutes to resolve the battle of 40 ships, using four charts, dice and probability tables, plus a slide rule or two."

COMPLICATIONS

There are endless complications which experts can add to other versions of the game.

That seems to be the magnet which draws the fan and not warmongering, even though it is true that, in its infancy, the hobby was characterized by teen-agers, who founded clubs with military names, officers and medals to award.

★ ★ ★

"We are sick and tired of hearing from nutty bleeding hearts that our games foster the climate analogous with aggression," states an item in the periodical, "The General," published by Avalon Hill, makers of many of the popular wargame kits.

With a might learned, no doubt, by hours of battlefield maneuvering — in miniature — Lakofka drops a salvo on the same target.

FASCINATION

"Competition is the fascination. After all, in war man is most competitive and the players use it as a release."

Birds have the keenest vision of all living things.

Dip and Hot Appetizers Will Tempt Your Guests

OPEN HOUSE MENU — An open house during the holidays is a perfect way to entertain guests. Serve a steaming bowl of Wassail Sherry and fill the table with Crab Dip, Hot Deviled Ham Bites and Sausage Quiche Lorraine and you're guaranteed a successful party.

The Christmas holidays provide an excellent time to entertain guests. One wonderful way to include all of your friends is with an open house. Set the time for several hours and let people arrive and leave at will.

Greet them with steaming cups of Wassail Sherry, a delightful drink that will warm them even on the chilliest days. A buffet table filled with hot and cold hors d'oeuvres will keep you free to hostess the guests.

WASSAIL SHERRY

3 cans or bottles (32 fl. oz. each) apple juice
4 bottles (4/5 quart each) medium or sweet sherry
¾ cup sugar
1 lemon
2 sticks cinnamon
10 whole cloves
6 whole allspice
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon mace
12 small baked apples

Heat apple juice to simmering; add sherry, sugar, thinly sliced lemon and spices, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Cover and let stand on low heat for several minutes (do not let boil).

Put apples in the bottom of a warm punch bowl and strain the apple juice mixture into it. Makes about 6 quarts. Serve with spoons.

CRAB DIP

1 can (5½ to 7½ oz.) crab meat
1 cup dairy sour cream
3 tablespoons chili sauce
¼ cup chopped green onion
2 teaspoons prepared horseradish

Mix drained, flaked crab meat, sour cream, chill sauce, onion and horseradish; chill several hours to blend flavors. Serve with crackers and 2-inch celery chunks for dipping. Makes about 2 cups dip.

HOT DEVELED HAM BITES

1 can refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
1 large can (or 2 small cans) deviled ham
1½ teaspoons instant minced onion

Unroll dough, separate into 8 triangles along serrated lines. Cut each into 2 equal triangles from shortest side to the opposite point. Combine deviled ham and onion. Spread about a teaspoon of deviled ham mixture down the center of each triangle, roll each into crescent shape.

★ ★ ★

Place on an ungreased cookie sheet; cover tightly and refrigerate until baking time. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for 15 minutes until golden brown. Serve warm. Makes 16 appetizers.

SAUSAGE QUICHE LORRAINE

Pastry for two-crust pie
1 can (9 oz.) Vienna sausages
1¾ cups shredded Swiss cheese
6 eggs
2½ cups heavy cream
½ teaspoon salt
Dash nutmeg
Dash cayenne
Paprika

★ ★ ★

Roll pastry on a floured surface to a 12 x 18-inch rectangle. Fit into a 15½x10½x1-inch pan; trim sides level with top of rim. Chill crust until baking time.

Sprinkle crust with part of the drained, sliced sausages (reserve rest for garnish), then with cayenne; mix well. Pour into crust; top with remaining sausage slices and sprinkle with paprika.

★ ★ ★

Bake in 425-degrees oven for 15 minutes; reduce temperature to 300 degrees for 25 minutes. Quiche is done when a knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Cut into 2-inch squares and serve immediately. Forty servings.

Include Yogurt in Salad Bowl

The Cinderella of the dairy foods world just has to be yogurt.

Once hidden in health food stores, this tangy first cousin of cottage cheese and buttermilk has blossomed out with fresh fruit flavors and a creamy new consistency. It's also the darling of the low-calorie crowd because of its minisucle 31 calories per ounce.

True yogurt aficionados still prefer it plain. But if your're a neophyte, yogurt — like olives — takes some getting used to. Try the plain yogurt as a substitute for sour cream in recipes.

★ ★ ★

Here's a salad which substitutes plain yogurt for sour cream in the dressing — at one-third the calories.

YEAR-ROUND SALAD

Dressing:
½ teaspoon celery salt
½ teaspoon onion salt
1 cup (eight ounces) plain yogurt

In a small bowl, combine celery and onion salts; stir in yogurt. Cover and chill.

Salad:
6 strips bacon, cooked and crumbled
1 medium head lettuce, torn
2 grapefruits, peeled and sectioned
2 oranges, peeled and sectioned
¾ cup sliced radishes (about twelve)

In a salad bowl, toss together bacon, lettuce, grapefruit and orange sections, and radishes. Top with dressing. Makes eight to ten servings.

Cook Winter Breakfast Over Charcoal Grill

Any family will enjoy a Sunday morning breakfast cooked over wood charcoal briquets. It's an adventure that needn't be confined to the summer months. Many homes today have a fireplace in the family or recreation room or the living room itself. That's the center for this pleasant way to start the day.

There are excellent grills which can be set into the fireplace, or you can construct your own from an old refrigerator shelf or oven rack set across bricks.

Line the bottom of your grate or grill with double thick aluminum foil and use wood charcoal briquets for a fine cooking fire. The foil helps concentrate the heat of your fire, and later on makes ash disposal simple.

★ ★ ★

While you enjoy the good wood aroma of the briquets, you can prepare quite a feast that includes juicy ham steaks, sunny-side-up eggs, baked bananas, hot buns, and beverages. Here's how.

BARBECUED HAM 'N' EGGS

Form pans about 6"x3" from double thick pieces of foil, turning up the edges ½ inch all around and mitering corners to hold secure. Make as many as necessary so each person has an individual pan.

Place pans on the grill over a moderately hot fire and drop in each 1 teaspoon of butter. Have fully cooked, ready-to-serve style ham cut in individual portions. Dip in barbecue sauce; then place each portion in a pan. Brown quickly, turning once.

Drop one or two eggs in each pan at this time, sprinkling the eggs with salt and freshly ground pepper. Cook about ten minutes in all and serve right in the little pans.

BAKED BANANAS

Place peeled firm bananas on squares of heavy duty foil. Add a few sprinklings of lemon juice and a dot of butter. Wrap banana in foil and grill about 6 minutes, turning once.

HOT BREADS IN FOIL

Wrap your choice of coffee cake, buns or doughnuts in foil packages. Warm them while the grill fire is kindling; they stay hot for a long time. You can also heat flaky rolls in foil, insert butter or your favorite marmalade beforehand. Open and serve when ham and eggs are ready.

★ ★ ★

This is a wonderful party breakfast for overnight guests, or for nearby friends invited to share the weekend hospitality. Breakfast around the fireplace sets a leisurely tone to the day.

★ ★ ★

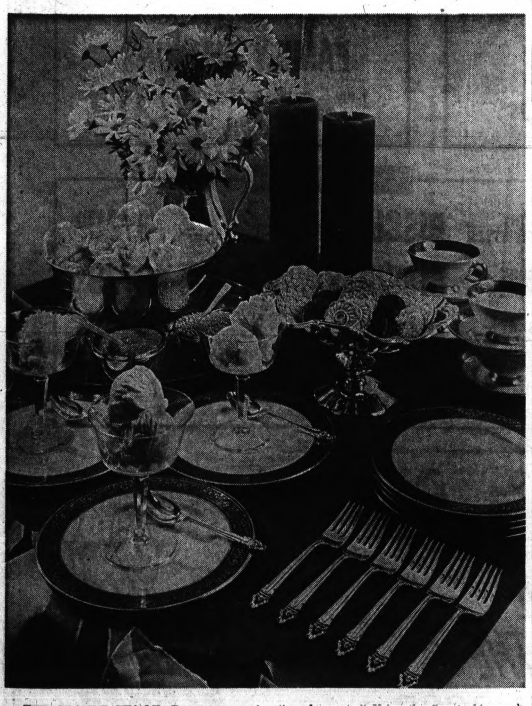

It's a pleasant idea for an all-family meal too. Everyone who faces a working Monday deserves a festive Sunday.

Cool Over Steak

For a good-tasting meat entree, quickly sear filet steaks and place each on a large foil square. Brown chopped onion in butter; stir in sliced California ripe olives, canned liver pate and pepper. Heat through. Spoon mixture over steaks. Fold foil edges to seal. Place on cooky sheet and bake to desired doneness.

Breakfast Treat

Breakfast takes on a new approach with Baked Apple and Oatmeal. Core large cavities in apples; pare and cook 5 minutes in a syrup of 1 part sugar and 1½ parts water. When soft and tender, remove apples and fill cavities with hot cooked oatmeal. Serve with sugar and cream.

THE GRANDE FINALE—Dress up your dinner with dessert designed for the creative guest. Serve great balls of ice cream, with sparkle drops, chips and nuts. The guest may choose his favorite or have a "conglomerate." Using the finest china and everything else silverplate. "Paul Revere" large bowl, little silver bowls, silver pitcher for daisies and Super Silver "Emperor" flatware pattern is the "Grande Finale!"

BANANAS CABANA—Here is a spectacular dessert to do in front of your guests. This flaming dessert comes from New Orleans.

Flaming Bananas Are Dessert to Talk About

From that city of great eating — New Orleans — comes this dessert. It is one of those spectacular "little nothings." Like the "little nothing" dress it is made with basic ingredients, but put together and presented with a decided flair.

You just saute bananas in butter, cinnamon and orange liqueur, then flambe them with rum. Serve blazing over ice cream and you'll have a dessert that tastes like you spent all day making it.

It is easiest to ignite Bananas Cabana if you use 151 proof rum. Then be sure to warm the rum with the rest of the ingredients for about one minute. Stand back and strike a match to the bananas. Use long handled spoons and serve the blazing hot bananas over ice cream.

★ ★ ★

This dessert is just perfect when you have last minute dinner guests. At dessert time, bring out a chafing dish and tray with all the ingredients measured out for Bananas Cabana.

Set in front of your husband and let everyone watch and drink in the marvelous fragrance, as he assembles this dessert with ease. (Tuck this recipe in a corner of the tray for his reassurance.)

BANANAS CABANA

¼ cup butter
6 bananas, halved lengthwise
½ cup brown sugar
Dash of ground cinnamon
1 tablespoon orange liqueur
½ cup rum
6 large scoops of vanilla ice cream

In a chafing dish or medium skillet, melt butter until it bubbles. Saute bananas in butter until golden, about a few minutes on each side. Sprinkle brown sugar and cinnamon over bananas.

Pour liqueur and rum over bananas and heat about one minute. Ignite with match. Serve blazing over ice cream. Makes 6 servings.

Nutrition Plus

Nutrition and flavor plus is the feature of this Saturday luncheon idea. Grind a can of luncheon meat and mix with some pickle relish, horseradish, Worcestershire sauce and prepared mustard. Form into small balls and place on top of two cans of macaroni with cheese in a casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. The family will really eat it up.

Beef round of chuck is usually used for Swiss Steak.

Unflavored Gelatine Boon to Serious Dieter

Let's face it — one of the smartest ways to diet is to use the foods that are naturally low in calories.

And, you know it yourself. To stay slimmer, you just have to change your way of eating — period.

Fortunately, there is one remarkable food that helps you accomplish this without drugs or starvation — with a minimum of will power and fortitude and with a maximum of enjoyment.

That food is your sparkling old friend, unflavored gelatine, more beautiful than ever in new food fashions. Beautifully low in calories, too: only 28 to an envelope.

But the important fact that this unflavored gelatine is all protein (adding nutrition and bulk to an incredible variety of dishes), with not a grain of sugar or sweetener in sight, makes it the greatest ally a dieter can ever have. That's why, it's included in many specialized diets.

★ ★ ★

Here are tempting slim-line recipes for Chicken Buttermilk Loaf and Chocolate Chiffon Dessert to get you started on a positive approach to dieting.

CHICKEN BUTTERMILK LOAF

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
1 cup cold chicken bouillon
½ cup buttermilk
2 to 3 teaspoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
1 cup diced cooked chicken
½ cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Sprinkle gelatine over bouillon in saucepan. Place over low heat; stir until gelatine dissolves, about 3 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in buttermilk, lemon juice, rind, salt and Tabasco. Chill until mixture is consistency of unbeaten egg white.

★ ★ ★

Fold in chicken, celery and parsley. Turn into a 2½-cup mold or small loaf pan. Chill until firm. Unmold. Yield: 3 servings, 84 calories per serving.

CHOCOLATE CHIFFON DESSERT

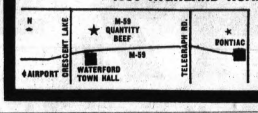

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup sugar, divided
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup unsweetened cocoa
3 eggs, separated
1½ cups skimmed milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix together gelatine, ¼ cup sugar, salt and cocoa in saucepan. Beat together egg yolks and milk; stir into gelatine mixture. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatine dissolves and mixture thickens slightly, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Chill, stirring occasionally, until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; gradually add remaining ¼ cup sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold into chocolate mixture. Turn into 4-cup mold or individual serving dishes. Chill until firm. Yield: 8 servings, 110 calories per serving.

Delicious Salad

Toast whole blanched almonds in a shallow pan in a moderate oven; toss with mixed greens, apple slices, orange sections and clear French dressing for a wonderfully festive salad.

MEAT COOKERY Quiz

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Smoked Shoulder Roll (Butt).

Q. Where does it come from? How is it identified?

A. It comes from the pork shoulder (butt). The meaty boneless eye of the shoulder is smoked and cured. Fat, rather than covering the roll, is distributed throughout meat. This roll is thicker in diameter than Canadian-style bacon.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. By roasting, cooking in liquid, broiling, panbroiling or panfrying. To roast, place meat on rack in open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb is centered. Do not cover or add water. Roast in a slow oven (300 degrees F. to 325 degrees F.) until well done (170 degrees F.) To cook in liquid, cover roll with water. Tightly cover and simmer 1½ to 2 hours or until meat is tender, allowing 35 to 40 minutes per pound.

Cranberry Delicacies Are Welcome Hostess Gift

CRANBERRY SPECIALTIES — Gifts from the kitchen make welcome guests when you take along these fresh cranberry delicacies. Here you see Frosted Cardamon Cranberries, Cointreau Cranberries, Spiced Cranberries and Cranberry Mincemeat Conserves.

Whether you're a "drop-in" or an invited guest, you're bound to be welcome if you take along a colorful gift of cranberries for your hostess. How about a tastefully wrapped jar of Frosted Cardamon Cranberries . . . Cointreau Cranberries . . . Spiced Cranberries . . . Cranberry Minecemeat Conserves?

Wouldn't you love to receive one of these holiday treats yourself? So will she.

Fresh cranberries are in season now so take advantage of this year's crop of plump and juicy red berries while they're available and perform some holiday magic in the kitchen as gifts for your friends.

And while you're at it, purchase more than you need at the time and freeze them for use later on. Just pop the berries, box and all, into the freezer. When you're ready to use them, you'll find them red and plump as ever and ready to be cooked without thawing.

FROSTED CARDAMON CRANBERRIES

1 egg white
1 pound fresh cranberries
3 cups sugar
1 teaspoon ground cardamon

Beat egg white until slightly foamy. Rinse cranberries and dry between paper towels. Combine sugar and cardamon in a shallow platter. Pour cranberries into egg white. Toss until cranberries are well coated. Remove cranberries a small amount at a time (use a slotted spoon to drain excess egg white) and toss in sugar mixture until well coated. Repeat using all cranberries.

★ ★ ★

Place cranberries on a shallow pan in a single layer and let dry at room temperature until coating is crisp. Store in an air-tight container at room temperature. Makes 4 cups.

COINTREAU CRANBERRIES

2 cups fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained
½ cup cointreau
½ cup clear corn syrup
1 can (12 ounces) mandarin oranges, drained

In a sauce pan combine cranberries, cointreau, and corn syrup. Bring to a boil and simmer 5 to 10 minutes or until cranberries are tender. Spoon alternating layers of cooked cranberries and mandarin oranges into sterlized jars.

Cover with hot syrup in which the cranberries were cooked. Seal, cool and store. Makes about 3 cups.

SPICED CRANBERRIES

3 cinnamon sticks
12 whole cloves
2 whole nutmegs
1 lb. fresh cranberries
2 cups granulated sugar
½ cup water

Combine all ingredients in a large saucepan. Bring to a boil, lower heat and simmer 5 minutes. Spoon into sterilized glasses leaving whole spices in syrup. Seal, cool and store. Makes 2 pints.

CRANBERRY MINCEMEAT CONSERVE

2 cups fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained
½ cup sugar
2 cups prepared mincemeat
½ cup slivered almonds
Grated rind of 1 small orange

In a saucepan combine all ingredients and simmer until cranberries are tender, about 10 minutes. Spoon while hot into sterilized jars. Seal, cool and store. Makes about 4 cups.

Italian Puffs Have Unusual Filling

The Christmas holiday in Italy begins Christmas Eve and lasts until Jan. 6, or Epiphany. Gifts are exchanged on the Eve of Epiphany. They are brought by Befana, a stern, rather forbidding female who enters through the chimney and rings a bell to announce her arrival.

Children in Italy used to place their shoes on the hearth for Befana, but stockings are used today. Good children receive gifts while bad ones will find bags of ashes in their stockings.

Exchanging visits with friends and family is an Italian Christmas tradition. Hospitality decrees that callers be greeted with coffee and a sweet.

Fried dessert puffs are a seasonal specialty. Typical of these are ravioli-shaped Calcionetti filled with an unusual orange-flavored chocolate mixture and deep fried in peanut oil. The golden puffs are sprinkled with powdered sugar and served with tiny cups of strong black coffee.

★ ★ ★

Italian cooks choose peanut oil for frying dessert pastries like these because it is tasteless and does not impart any flavor to cooked foods.

CALCIONETTI

1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
⅛ cup sugar
1 square (1 ounce) semi-sweet chocolate, grated
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
¼ cup light corn syrup
2 tablespoons orange juice
2 tablespoons rum
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ teaspoon almond extract
2 cups unsifted flour
4½ teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
⅓ cup peanut oil
⅓ cup ice water (about)
Confectioners' sugar

In a small bowl mix together bread crumbs, ¼ cup sugar, chocolate and orange peel; set aside. Measure corn syrup in a 1-cup measure. Add orange juice, rum, vanilla extract and almond extract; stir until mixture is thoroughly blended.

Pour over bread crumb mixture; stir until mixture is thoroughly moistened. Cover; set aside.

In a bowl mix together flour, 4½ teaspoons sugar and salt. Gradually add ⅓ cup peanut oil, tossing with fork as oil is added. Rub mixture through fingers until it resembles coarse meal. Gradually add ice water, tossing with fork until mixture leaves sides of bowl and forms a stiff dough.

Divide dough in half. On an unfloured board, roll one piece of dough to an 8x12-inch rectangle. Cut into twenty-four 2-inch squares; set aside. Repeat rolling and cutting with remaining half of dough, leaving on board after cutting.

Form prepared filling into 24 balls about 1 inch in diameter; place in center of 24 dough squares; flatten balls slightly. Top each with a second square of dough; pinch ends tightly to seal, then press with tines of fork.

Fry in deep hot (375 degrees) peanut oil, turning until golden brown on both sides, about 2 minutes. Drain on paper towels. Sprinkle generously with confectioners' sugar. Serve warm. Makes 2 dozen.

Olives and Corn Chips Make Different Chili

All across the country thousands of teen-agers are responsible for part or all of dinner preparation. Some kids even do the family shopping.

If you've a daughter who does the lion share of the food preparation for the family — or simply if she likes to cook for her friends — here's a recipe she'll find particularly fun to try.

Texas Chili 'n' Chips is mildly spiced chili con carne — but with a "kicker" teens will love. The chili is served over crunchy corn chips!

★ ★ ★

There's nothing complicated about the recipe preparation — simply brown ground beef and simmer in rich, thick canned tomato sauce. Canned tomato sauce gives chili con carne "just right" consistency as well as blending in the unmistable freshness of sun-ripened tomatoes.

CHEESE TOAST

If she has time, your teenager can make cheese toast to accompany Texas Chili 'n' Chips. Cut white bread slices diagonally in half. Toast on one side under the broiler. Then brush the untoasted side with very soft butter and sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese.

Return to the boiler long enough to heat the cheese until bubbly and golden brown.

★ ★ ★

Complete supper with wedges of lettuce with thousand island dressing and ice cream sundaes.

TEXAS CHILI 'N' CHIPS

1 pound ground beef
1 onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
1 cup sliced celery
2 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce
½ cup water
1 can (2½ ounces) sliced ripe olives, drained (optional)
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 to 2 teaspoons chili powder
Corn chips

★ ★ ★

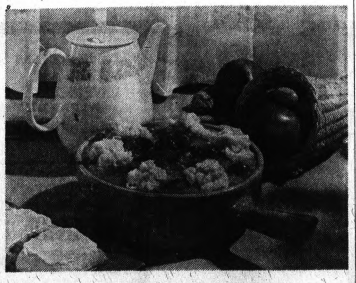

In large skillet brown ground beef. Add onion, green pepper and celery and cook until tender; pour off fat. Add tomato sauce, water, olives, salt, pepper and chili powder. Simmer 20 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Garnish edge with border of corn chips and center with whole olives and parsley if desired. Serve chili over more corn chips. Makes 4 servings.

Season Shrimp for Perfect Salad

Perfect take-off for elegant dinners: Coarsely chopped California walnuts, toasted and generously sprinkled with garlic salt, mixed with one-pound cooked, cleaned shrimp, one cup sliced celery and drained fruit from an 11-ounce can of Mandarin oranges.

Marinate in ½ cup oil-and-vinegar French dressing for ½ hour before serving. Taste and season with more garlic salt if desired. Makes four to six servings, either in cocktail glasses or as a first course salad, garnished with crisp greens.

HARVEST CASSEROLE—In skillet, brown 2 pounds beef cubes in 2 tablespoons shortening; pour off fat. Stir in 1 can each condensed golden mushroom soup and tomato soup. Add one-third cup water, 1 large clove garlic, minced, ¼ teaspoon savory and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Pour into 2-quart casserole. Cover; bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Stir in 1 package (10 oz.) frozen Brussels sprouts. Cover. cook 45 minutes more. Top with mounds of mashed sweet potatoes (use about 2 cups or 1½ pounds); cook, uncovered for 15 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Serve Steaming Hot Soup to Drive Chills Away

There's a nip in the air and a zip in the wind. Here comes winter, with all its frosty fun. Time for getting the skates sharpened and the wax on the skis. Time for getting out the soup tureen and getting in some friends for a warm-up party to welcome winter in.

This is a party you can improvise on the spur of the moment, any time of day. You need little more to make it a success than a hospitable spirit, a supply of condensed soup on the shelf, and some big-soup recipes.

★ ★ ★

You'll want some bread for toasty croutons, and perhaps some apples to crunch and nuts to crack. But that's about all. The important part of the party is the soup, warming and wonderful.

Be sure to make enough of it. Appetites get healthier as the days get colder. And, make it good and hearty, to satisfy the men.

One of the many advantages of using double-rich condensed soup as a base in your big-soup recipe, is that by adding extra meat, vegetables, croutons, and other embellishments, you can end up with a soup just as substantial as you want it to be.

HAM AND TURKEY HOT POT

1 cup diced cooked ham
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons slivered green pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed turkey noodle soup
1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed vegetable soup
1½ soup cans water
Garlic croutons

Brown ham and cook onion and green pepper in butter until tender. Stir in soups and water. Heat; stir now and then. Serve with garlic croutons. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Tureen shown holds 5 quarts (about 4½ times this recipe). Bowls hold 12 ounces each.

SAVORY STOCKPOT

1 can (10¾) ounces) condensed vegetable and beef stockpot soup
1 soup can water
½ cup cooked peas with pearl onions
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Dash garlic powder
Chinese noodles or shoestring Potato sticks

Combine soup and water; add peas with pearl onions, parsley, and garlic powder. Heat; stir now and then. Serve with Chinese noodles. Makes 2 servings.

SOUPER PARTY — A spur-of-the-moment party that makes warm friends of chilly guests features a big soup, made with double-rich condensed soups. This one combines turkey noodle and vegetable soups, adds the embellishment of diced cooked ham, green pepper, and garlic croutons.

Cottage Cheese Adds Texture

If you think only of salads when you see cottage cheese, you'll reconsider if you try this recipe.

COTTAGE CHEESE CUSTARD

2 cups creamed cottage cheese
2 large or 3 small eggs
½ teaspoon salt
¼ to ⅓ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Beat cheese until smooth. Beat eggs only until yolks and whites are blended. Add salt and sugar; stir to blend. Add cheese gradually, stirring briskly. Add vanilla and lemon rind; pour into 4 or 5 custard cups, filling them to within ¼ inch of the top.

★ ★ ★

Sprinkle with nutmeg, if desired. Set in a shallow pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 20 to 25 minutes, or until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Do not overbake or custard will become watery.

Remove from hot water, cool slightly, then chill thoroughly. Serve plain or with any desired fruit sauce. Makes 4 large or 5 moderate servings.

Adds Flavoring

Brown bread crumbs add texture and flavor to salads, green beans, broccoli, Brussels sprouts. Sprinkle coarse bread crumbs with sugar and saute in butter for a few minutes.

Brush Biscuit Top With Buttermilk

Mix 2 cups flour, 1 tablespoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon soda and ½ teaspoon salt in a bowl. Cut in ⅓ cup margarine or butter with a fork or 2 knives until mixture is crumbly. Stir in ¾ to 1 cup buttermilk all at once. Add more milk if needed to make a soft dough.

★ ★ ★

Knead dough gently about 10 times on lightly floured surface. Pat or roll about ½ inch thick. Cut dough with knife into squares or with a floured 2-inch biscuit cutter.

★ ★ ★

Place biscuits on baking sheet; brush tops with a little buttermilk. Bake at 450 degrees Fahrenheit 12 to 15 minutes until lightly browned. Makes 12 biscuits.

Haywood Turning Pro Listed Second

'M' Upset of Ohio State Rated No. 1 Sports Story

By The Associated Press

The University of Michigan's upset victory over Ohio State was the state's top sports story of 1969, according to a survey of Associated Press broadcasters, sports editors, and staff.

The game that set the Wolverines up for their Rose Bowl trip received 567 points out of a possible 570. There were ten points for first, down to one for tenth.

Bo Schembechler, Michigan's head football coach, got fifth spot with his appointment as coach, and his team's 8-2 record. Woody Hayes and his Ohio State Buckeyes were one of the nation's top-ranked teams before they met Schembechler's boys on Ann Arbor's artificial turf. Michigan won 24-12 before 103,588 fans, a national record for a regular season football game.

Second on the list was the Spencer Haywood story. The University of Detroit sophomore All-American quit school to play with the professional American Basketball Association. The former Olympic star signed for a six figure bonus with the Denver Rockets.

Bill Gadsby's dismissal as coach of the Detroit Red Wings just after the start of the 1969-70 National Hockey season was the number three story. The Wings search for a coach is still on.

TONG FINISH

Voted into fourth place on the poll, were the Detroit Lions. The Lions finished strong, besting the Capitol Division champion Minnesota Vikings to win third place in the Bloody Western Conference. The 9-4-1 record is the best in six years. It was uphill all the way, as the Detroit club fought injuries, a weak offense, and the weather.

Fifth was Bo Schembechler's 8-2 record at Michigan his first year as head coach.

Voted sixth in the balloting was the Detroit Tiger's second place finish in the American League's new divisional baseball setup. Baltimore finished first, won their play off, only to lose the World Series to the New York Mets of the National League.

Judged seventh biggest story of the year in the opinion of the AP editors and broadcasters was the Michigan Golf Classic in Walled Lake. Larry Ziegler won the $100,000 tournament in a playoff with Homero Blancas. The story centered on the failure of the sponsors to produce the prize money.

SUDDEN DEPARTURE

The eighth major story again involved the Tigers. Johnny Sain, their miracle working pitching coach was fired. Sain had been critical of manager Mayo Smith's handling of the Detroit pitching staff.

Number 9 was the state basketball tournament, in which Class A was won for the second year in a row by Grand Rapids Ottawa Hills. They outscored the same team, Ypsilanti, both years. Class B champions were River Rouge, and Marquette Bishop Barga took Class D in their last year as a separate school.

Jackson, Michigan golf pro Dave Hill won the Buick Open at Grand Blanc, to become one of the Professional Golf Association's top money winners. The story of Dave's victory was the tenth on the list.

Michigan Loses Glenn Doughty

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Glenn Doughty leaned on his crutches, gazing at the big Christmas tree in the lobby of Michigan's hotel headquarters in Pasadena.

"You get so close and all of a sudden it's gone," he moaned, as he waited to travel with Dr. Gerald O'Conner, the team physician, to the UCLA medical center.

★ ★ ★

"You dream about this all your life," he said, visibily disappointed that he will miss the Rose Bowl game New Year's Day against Southern Cal.

Doughty, the Wolverine's second leading ground gainer with 762 yards and a 4.9-yard average per carry, was injured in practice Wednesday. O'Conner said the injury is a torn ligament in his right knee and the sophomore tailback was scheduled to undergo surgery today.

"It was just one of those things," Doughty said. "I got hit from behind, twisted my leg and that was it."

"It's a shame that a young sophomore like Doughty misses a chance to play in the Rose Bowl," said U-M Coach Bo Schembechler after the injury.

TAYLOR TO START

It will be even more of a shame if anything happens to tailback Billy Taylor, who started in place of Doughty midway through the season when Doughty suffered an ankle injury. Taylor went on to gain 808 yards and he will start Jan. 1 against USC with third stringer Lance Scheffler backing him up.

Although Doughty is disappointed with the bad Christmas news, he is not bitter.

★ ★ ★

"I did get to fly out here and I have met a lot of nice people," said the 6-foot-2, 196-pounder. "The weather is nice and the trip to Disneyland was a great experience."

The ankle injury he suffered that gave his job to Taylor is gone.

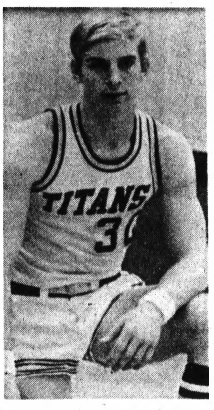

"As a matter of fact, it stopped bothering me just since I came out here," he said.

Two days after Michigan arrived here last Thursday, Schembechler said Doughty was running better in practice than Taylor and would start if the Rose Bowl was the next day.

Doughty said his knee would probably not be completely healed in time for next spring practice.

"But I'm not through," he said with determination. "I'm only a sophomore and there is still another chance to come here for a Rose Bowl."

Single workouts were scheduled by Schembechler and USC Coach John McKay for today.

Titan Ready for City Clash

'Title Week' Continues

Titans Invade PNH Gym

Pontiac Northern, having lost its last two outings, raises the curtain on act two of "City Title Week" tomorrow night by hosting Pontiac Catholic.

The Huskies, who won their first three games before losing back-to-back contests to Livonia - Stevenson and Pontiac Central, will be in the favorites' seat in the 8 p.m. encounter.

★ ★ ★

In Catholic, the Huskies are facing their third straight unbeaten opponent of the year. The Titans are riding a 7-0 mark and are atop the Catholic A-West division.

Northern will be counting hesvily on its speed and the scoring efforts of Charles Moncrief in its bid to get back on the winning track.

Another potential high scorer is Dave Clancy, who hit for 30 points to lead all scorers in the Huskies' 84-70 loss to Central Tuesday night.

SLIGHT EDGE

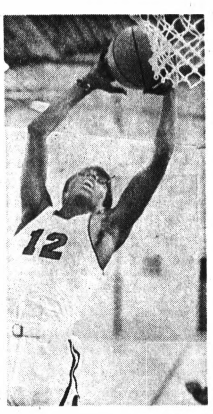

The two teams will be nearly equally matched in height but Northern's quickness may prove the deciding factor in the game.

Depth, defense and free-throw shooting are Catholic's strong points and if the Titans are to pull off a win it will have to be primarily on the strength of those areas.

Two of the finest performers in the area — Northern's Moncrief and Catholic's Sam Brady — will square off against one another and attempt to carry their respective teams into the winner's circle.

PNH won the first meeting between the schools last season.

The contest will wrap up the 1969 portion of the basketball campaign for both clubs, who swing back into action when schools resume sessions after the holidays.

Rams, Vikings Set for 'Survival' Game

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — A 30-man work force put the final touches on Operation Clean-Up at snow-blotched Metropolitan Stadium today as the final few seats went on sale for Saturday's National Football League struggle for survival between the Los Angeles Rams and Minnesota Vikings.

The crew worked around the clock clearing the last traces of snow from the 47,900-seat park —setting for Saturday's Western Conference championship game.

★ ★ ★

Originally, plans called for a 300-man crew in anticipation that the snow removal problem would be huge. But snow which began falling Wednesday ended Thursday morning, enabling the smaller crew to handle the job by themselves.

★ ★ ★

At the same time, the last hardy souls trekked to the Viking ticket offices for the final 1,000 tickets remaining and the less hardy souls made final last-minute preparations for trips to motels outside the 75mile television blackout radius.

COLD OUTPOST

There, in the warmth of a heated room, they will be able to watch the game on CBS television beginning at 2 p.m., EST, whie the players and the fans in the stadium will be subjected to whatever weather surfaces Saturday in this cold, northern outpost.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, both teams continued workouts at separate locations in the Twin Cities today, fitting into place the last pieces of the game plans they will throw at each other in this battle for the National Football League's Western Conference title.

★ ★ ★

And, with just 24 hours remaining before the game that will send the winner into the NFL championship game Jan. 4 against the survivor of Sunday's Cleveland-Dallas contest, concern about the weather seemed to have been somewhat subordinated to talk about the teams —and their similar personalities.

"I think we're not only equal," said Vikings Coach Bud Grant, "but similar in our style of play and our strengths."

FRONT FOURS

The similarities in personality ranged from the mental toughness of the two teams, best exemplified by the leadership qualities in quarterbacks Roman Gabriel of the Rams and Joe Kapp of the Vikings, to the fierceness of the opposing Front Fours.

"We have a lot of solid citizens on this club," said Rams' Coach George Allen. "Every winning team has to have leadership from within. We have so many leaders if I'd mention four or five I'd leave someone out, so I won't mention any names."

★ ★ ★

"This club isn't based on individuals," said Grant. "We put the team ahead of the individual. There's no question that Joe does. When he was voted a Most Valuable Player award he refused to accept it on the basis there is no most valuable."

Kapp, of course, has been the picture of leadership for the Vikings this season, a passer more renowned for his ability to take a physical beating and come back for more than to throw a perfect spiral.

The snow had been plowed off the field so the Vikings could use it to prepare for tomorrow's National Football League title game with the Los Angeles Rams.

Forlorn Kings Find Gift Bag Void for Them

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It wasn t exactly a ho, ho, ho holiday for the Los Angeles Kings.

Removed 3,000 miles from home by the National Hockey League schedule, the Kings absorbed a 7-1 shellacking from Boston on Christmas night. That, believe it or not, was an improvement over the night before, Christmas Eve, when the Kings were beaten 8-1 at Toronto.

★ ★ ★

In other NHL games Thursday night, Philadelphia trimmed Oakland 3-1 and Minnesota tied Chicago 4-4.

Phil Esposito led the Boston rout with two goals and two assists while Ken Hodge also scored twice and Bobby Orr, the NHL's leading scorer, picked up a goal and an assist, increasing his point total to 50.

Orr has 40 assists in 33 games and, barring injury, is a cinch to shatter both the assists and scoring records for defensemen. Both records were set last year with Orr accumulating 64 points and Chicago's Pat Stapleton picking up 50 assists.

GOAL EXPLOSION

The Kings and Bruins were scoreless for one period before unassisted goals by Esposito and Derek Sanderson in the first 1½ minutes of the second period triggered a six-goal Boston explosion.

In addition to his goal and assist, Orr picked up four stitches in a second period fight with Bill Flett. Orr and Flett both got two minutes minor penalties at 5:42 of the period and were out of the penalty box less than 15 seconds when they tangled again, incurring majors at 7:55.

The victory stretched Boston's unbeaten string against the NHL's West Division to 16 games.

★ ★ ★

Philadelphia scored all of its goals in the first period to knock off Oakland and take over third place in the West.

The Flyers struck quickly, bunching all of their goals in eight minutes, 54 seconds, with Jim Johnson, Dick Cherry and Simon Nolet hitting.

Doug Favell, making only his fifth appearance in goal for Philadelphia, gained his first victory, kicking out 31 shots. Gerry Ehman's second period goal spoiled his shutout.

Minnesota came back from a two-goal deficit to gain the tie with Chicago.

★ ★ ★

Tommy Williams and Bill Goldsworthy scored third period goals that drew Minnesota even with Chicago. Charley Burns and J. P. Parise had the other North Star goals while Stan Mikita scored two goals and Bobby Hull and Gilles Marotte one apiece for Chicago.

The tie stretched Minnesota's winless streak to seven games but kept the North Stars unbeaten against Chicago. Minnesota won the first two meetings between the two teams.

Statisticians Should Like Playoff Game

DALLAS (AP) — Sunday's playoff in the Cotton Bowl between Dallas and Cleveland for the NFL's Eastern Conference title is a statistician's dream.

The Cowboys lead the league in seven offensive and six defensive categories. Safety Mel Renfro led the league in interceptions with 10 in the individual categories.

★ ★ ★

The game should provide an interesting test between the Cowboys' strong pass rush and the Browns' excellent pass protection. The Cowboys dropped opposing quarterbacks 55 times in 14 games—third highest total ever.

Cleveland's offensive pass protectors have allowed their quarterback to be dropped only 20 times this season, three shy of the record set by the Los Angeles Rams.

RANKED SECOND

Dallas placement specialist Mike Clark is the second leading scorer in the NFL for the second straight year. The former Texas A&M star has kicked 20 of 36 field goals and 43 extra points.

The quarterbacks for each team, Craig Morton of tne Cowboys and Bill Nelsen of the Browns, are fifth and sixth in passing. Morton has completed 162 aerials for a 53.6 per cent average. Nelsen has hit 190 for a 54 per cent completion average.

★ ★ ★

All-NFL running backs Calvin Hill of Dallas and LeRoy Kelly of Cleveland will match their running skills. Hill finished second in the league in rushing with 942 yards. Kelly is 7th with 817 yards.

The Cowboy-Brown winner will meet the winner of Saturday's Los Angeles-Minnesota game for the NFL title and a berth in the Super Bowl.

Motor City Tourney Opens Tonight at U-D

DETROIT (AP) — The University of Detroit basketball team begins its 18th Motor City Classic tonight against Pittsburgh in the second game. Minnesota and Bowling Green meet in the opener.

Minnesota is favored slightly to win the tournament. The Gophers entered with an unimpressive 3-4 record. Bowling Green is 1-2 while Pittsburgh has a 1-3 record and Detroit is 1-6.

Toledo Bids for Tangerine Bowl Crown

By The Associated Press

College football's post season program continues tonight with the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla., matching unbeaten Toledo against Davidson, champions of the Southern Conference.

It's a cinch Al Larson won't break this one up. But only because he s not playing in it.

Larson kept his post season game-breaking record intact Christmas Day taking an interception 88 yards for the touchdown that put the North in charge and set up the 31-10 victory over the South in the 22nd annual Shrine All-Star Game at the Orange Bowl in Miami.

Larson also starred a week ago when his school, Nebraska, trounced Georgia 45-6 in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex.

The North was leading 14-10 in the early stages of the fourth quarter but Florida State's Bill Cappleman had the South moving downfield when Larson picked off his pass at the 12-yard line. The Nebraska star sprinted down the sideline for the TD and then, moments later, the South's eighth fumble of the game set up a one-yard TD plunge by Jim Carter of Minnesota, wrapping it up.

TOP PLAYERS

Rutgers' Bruce Van Ness, a running back for the North, and Clovis Swinney of Arkansas State, an offensive guard for the South were cited as the game's outstanding players.

The quarterbacks were expected to be the show in today's Tangerine Bowl game. Toledo's Chuck Ealey and Davidson's Gordon Slade both like to throw the football and their matchup could result in a high-scoring game. Toledo was 10-0 and ranked No. 20 in The Associated Press major college football poll. The Rockets romped to the Mid-American Conference crown.

Ealey was named the conference's back of the year—first time ever that honor has gone to a sophomore. He completed better than 50 per cent of his passes and gained 1,281 through the air and ran for 267 more.

★ ★ ★

Davidson finished at 7-3, its best football season in history. Slade was the man most responsible, passing for 2,177 yards, 21 touchdowns and completing 61.7 per cent—best average in the country.

Tennessee Grid Mentor May Not Leave Florida

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)— Doug Dickey will send the Tennessee Volunteers he now coaches against the Florida Gators he may soon coach in the silver anniversary Gator Bowl football game Saturday.

In these bizarre circumstances, Dickey's team is favored by just under a touchdown to defeat that of the man who may become his boss, Ray Graves.

★ ★ ★

While the teams prepared for their first meeting since 1955, reports erupted that Graves will forsake the head coaching job and remain at Florida solely as athletic director. Dickey, it was said, would return to his alma mater as head coach.

Although both coaches tried to quiet the fast flying reports lest they affect the players, an evasive statement by Dr. Stephen O'Connell, University of Florida president, gave them credence.

The game didn't need any added attention. All 70,000 seats will be filled by the noon EST kickoff and a national television audience (NBC) will get to see the two teams battle for prestige and improvement over their rankings of 11th for Tennessee and 15th for Florida when the final AP poll is taken after all the bowl games.

Magicians at PCHS

Marquis Haynes and the Fabulous Magicians basketball team will be in Pontiac Sunday for a game at Pontiac Catholic at 8 p.m. The Pontiac Catholic faculty will supply the opposition. Sponsoring the contest is the Parent-Teacher Guild.

Pistol-Packing LSU Following Rainbow

Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern California and Washington gets right into the swim of things and Pistol-packing Louisiana State takes a dip in the Pacific as the holiday season peels open a package of college basketball tournaments tonight.

Winner of the Southern California-Washington match in the opening round is expected to be in the running for the championship of the Far West Tournament at Portland, Ore. And LSU puts national scoring leader Pistol Pete Maravich on display in the Rainbow Classic at Honolulu, Hawaii.

★ ★ ★

Despite the favorite's role given to 10th - ranked Washington and 12th-ranked Southern Cal, Coach Steve Belki of last year's champion Oregon team says: "We haven't been dethroned yet."

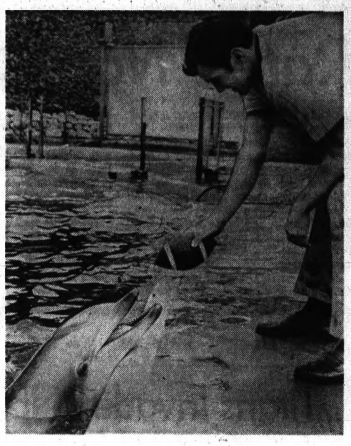

The tourney may produce a likely challenger for the Pacific-8 crown, held by second-ranked UCLA. Illinois and Washington State could give the Far West tourney's two top teams some trouble.

★ ★ ★

Maravich, who has been scoring more than 46 points a game this year, is third on the NCAA career scoring list and needs 311 points to overtake the No. 1 man, Oscar Robertson.

MUST WAIT

But Hawaii fans will have to wait until Saturday to see LSU's red-hot gun in action. Louisiana State will meet Submarine Forces Pacific (SUBPAC) in the second game that night.

Pistons Tripped in Last Second

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only one second remained in the National Basketball Association game Christmas day when Detroit center Walt Bellamy outmaneuvered New York's Willis Reed to score and put the Pistons ahead 111 - 110.

But — incredibly, fantastically — the Pistons still blew the game, losing to the Knicks 112-110.

It was Reed who did it to the Detroiters.

Just after Bellamy's basket, the Knicks' Walt Frazier looped a high, arching pass from the sidelines over Bellamy's head and Reed leaped under the basket and banked his catch on in. The final buzzer sounded as the ball dropped through the net.

In other NBA action Thursday Baltimore held off Philadelphia 121-113, San Francisco stopped Cincinnati 124-120 in overtime and Boston bowed to Phoenix 127-116.

TOP SCORER

Bellamy had earlier missed two free throws that could have cinched the game. Jimmy Walker was top scorer for the Pistons with 32 points. Detroit center Bellamy scored 20 of his 24 points in the second half.

Reed was the game leader with 33 points.

The fourth period saw the score tied five times and never more than four points separated the teams, during the final period.

Chattering about the one-second game saver, Frazier explained, "We call that the Boston play because Russell and the Celtics used to work it. I try to get the ball as close to the basket as possible without hitting the rim.

"We practice it all the time, but it never worked before," he said. Reed picked the basketball from the air beside the net and flipped it in for the win.

In the American Basketball Association, Washington trounced Pittsburgh 131-112 and Los Angeles beat Kentucky 105-101.

FIRST SUCCESS

Phoenix' triumph over Boston was the first over the Celtics in the Suns' two-year history. Center Jim Fox, with Bill Russell to contend with, scored 31 points, followed by Paul Silas with 25 and Gail Goodrich with 24. Don Nelson paced Boston with 21.

Baltimore canned six free throws in the final minute to stave off Philadelphia despite a 41-point performance by the 76ers' Billy Cunningham.

Cunningham, who also grabbed 13 rebounds, scored 26 points in the second half and pulled the 76ers to 115-113 with less than a minute to go. But after missing a shot in an attempt to tie the score, he fouled out with 41 seconds left and two free throws each by Gus Johnson, Jack Marin and Kevin Loughery accounted for the final spread. Marin led the Bullets with 31 points.

Gabriel, Kapp Will Guide West Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterbacks Roman Gabriel of Los Angeles and Joe Kapp of Minnesota today were named to guide the West against the East in the 20th annual Pro Bowl football game Jan. 18 in Memorial Coliseum.

Eight Minnesota Vikings and seven Rams were selected on the 34-man team by National Football League coaches and the game management.

★ ★ ★

Gabriel, recently voted by The Associated Press as Most Valuable Player in the NFL, will be making his third straight appearance in the Pro Bowl. He relieved Earl Morrall of Baltimore last year and led the West to a 10-7 victory.

This will be Kapp's first appearance.

Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears, voted Back of the Game in 1967 and 1968, missed last year's game because of a knee injury but will be on hand for the 1970 engagement.

★ ★ ★

Only Jim Brown of the Cleveland Browns won three such awards.

The West leads in the series, 12 victories to seven for the East.

Notre Dame 11 Invades Stronghold of Top Team

DALLAS (AP) — Notre Dame head football Coach Ara Parseghian brought his ninth ranked Fighting Irish to Texas today eager to return to preparations for a New Year's Day clash with No. 1 ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

The Irish were scheduled to arrive at Dallas' Love Field at 11:40 a.m. and hoped to get in a workout session in the afternoon at Cobb Stadium.

★ ★ ★

Parseghian has lamented the fact that the Irish had not had any contact work since the final game Nov. 22 against Air Force. Weather conditions also forced the Irish indoors for practice prior to the Christmas holiday break.

Parseghian said Texas should have a conditioning advantage because the Irish hadn't been able to work but Texas offensive coach Bill Zapalac said conditioning wasn't that much of a factor in bowl games.

★ ★ ★

"I don't think any team has an advantage on the conditioning," Zapalac said. "When you prepare for a bowl game, you don't work like for regular season games.

★ ★ ★

"I don't mean you don't try to win the game, it's just an honor to be selected and you don't work quite as hard. So I don't think anybody has a conditioning advantage."

★ ★ ★

Also on Friday's schedule for the Irish was a news conference for Parseghian and the traditional western hat presentation to the Irish team.

DON CARTER'S BOWLING TIPS

SHOULDER-DROPPING — Did you ever have anyone tell you you're "letting your shoulder drop"? Many bowlers will not wisely, yet not really know what to do about it. Keeping the shoulders level, however, is important.

The best way to insure against shoulder-dropping is to have a firm intention to reach out as you deliver the ball. This will help you get the ball out across the foul line accurately.

Facilities Added at Alpine Valley, Mt. Holly Areas

Alpine Valley and Mount Holly, already rated as two of the finest major metropolitan ski facilities in the Midwest, have expanded this year.

Joe Kosik and Willis Stoick, co-owners, have added improvements that bring the total capacity of Alpine Valley to 5000 skiers per day and Mount Holly to 3000.

★ ★ ★

At Alpine Valley, another chairlift has been added, bringing its total to six, the most in Southern Michigan. Another addition to Alpine Valley is an advanced run of more than 1200 feet, which will be the longest and highest in lower Michigan.

Mount Holly has undergone half-million-dollar improvement program in the last year. These include starting the development of an intermediate beginners area that will handle 2,000-3,000 skiers.

Mount Holly has also constructed a new chairlift which is the longest in Southeast Michigan. This new chairlift is part of a five-year program instituted by Stoick and Kosik to build 12 chairlifts, bringing Mount Holly's capacity to from 6,000 to 8,000 people a day.

At both Alpine Valley and Mount Holly, snow-grooming equipment has been added, including powder-making equipment for grinding up the snow.

Snowmobiling Is Good Along Northern Trails

Michigan snowmobilers will find the best snow conditions in the Upper Peninsula this weekend, with fair to good conditions in select areas of the northern Lower Peninsula, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

There is still too little snow for snowmobiling in southern Michigan.

In the Upper Peninsula, very good conditions are reported near Tahquamenon Falls, with 10-inches of snow on the ground. In the Bessemer area, there are 18-inches of snow with more falling. At Rapid River, good conditions are reported with five-inchs of snow.

At Ishpeming, there is an eight to 10-inch base with identical conditions reported near Marquette. Excellent conditions are reported near Newberry, with 10-inches of snow while near Manistique conditions are good with a six to eight-inch base.

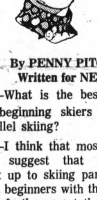

Throughout west Michigan, conditions vary from good to poor. Rain has been reducing the base at Ludington and Muskegon, Indian River and Ionia. However, good conditions are reported at Thompsonville, with six inches of snow; Houghton Lake, with a four-inch base; Baldwin, with six-inch base.

Conditions also range from good to poor throughout east Michigan. Near Alpena, conditions are good with a four-inch base; near Grayling, good, six-inch base; Port Austin, fair with under a two-inch base; Gaylord, very good, seven-inch base. Poor conditions are reported at Mio, Oscoda, and Tawas.

Penny For Thoughts
On Skiing

By PENNY PITOU
Written for NEA

Q—What is the best method for beginning skiers to learn parallel skiing?

A—I think that most instructors suggest that beginners work up to skiing parallel. We start beginners with their skis a little farther apart than is probably necessary. At that stage, they need two things to stand on. The first time a skier gets his skis together is in a traverse and if you ever try to traverse with them too far apart, it can be a very uncomfortable feeling. We never start beginners with their skis smack together because it's their last step in natural progression and not their first. Before they can ski parallel, they must progress from snow plow to a stem turn to stem christie. Then, the next step is getting the skis parallel. A lot of people never get past the stem christie because, if they're making slow stem christies, they find it very difficult to get their skis together. Reaching the parallel skiing plateau is difficult, but it can be done by the adaptable beginner in four or five lessons.

NFL West Title on Line

Teams Evenly Matched for Tilt

In the final league statistics, he was rated the No. 10 passer in the league, but there is little doubt he was as big a force in the club's 12-2 record in the Central Division as the defensive unit which set a NFL record for least points allowed, 133, and least yardage, 2,720.

Gabriel, on the other hand, was rated the No. 4 passer statistically but was no less a leader than Kapp in bringing the Rams through to the Coastal Division title with an 11-3 record, while running off with The Associated Press' MVP award.

OTHER SIMILARITIES

The similarities in Gabriel and Kapp were matched during the regular season by similarities elsewhere in both line-ups.

Not one receiver — neither Jack Snow nor Wendell Tucker of the Rams nor Gene Washington nor John Henderson of the Vikings — cracked the top 10. And the leading rushers, Dave Osborn for Minnesota and Larry Smith for Los Angeles, were well down the list in 10th and 12th, respectively.

But while neither the rushers nor the receivers were outstanding statistically, both Front Fours were—so much so that the statistics were unable to decide the arguments over which defensive line is better.

In the most dramatic element of defense, getting to the quarterback, there was little separating them. Los Angeles' front line of Deacon Jones, Merlin Olsen, Coy Bacon and Diron Talbert sacked the passer 50 times. The Minnesota front line of Jim Marshall, Alan Page, Gary Larsen and Carl Eller dropped passers 49 times.

If one team has an edge then it is in a different area. And the two factors that might turn the game are the weather and momentum—both on the side of the Vikings.

A cold day and-or a frozen field undoubtedly would aid the Vikings, who have lived with and played under those conditions far more often than the Rams, a fact acknowledged freely by both Allen and Grant.

THREE SETBACKS

As for momentum, the Vikings lost their final game to Atlanta 10-3 but the Rams dropped a 13-7 loss to Baltimore for their third loss in succession, a fact that does indeed worry a proven performer such as the veteran Olsen.

"We would very much have liked to have winning momentum going into a game like this," said Olsen. "You lose two or three, instead of stepping on the field with all the confidence in the world you're stepping on the field wondering what's going to go wrong this time."

Bridge Tricks From Jacobys

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

Everyone who plays rubber bridge has run across the gallant defender who is always bidding one more to keep his opponents from scoring below the line. The gallant defender is not likely to win much, because it turns out that most of his sacrifices either cost more than what they are intended to save against or that the opponents were already too high.

In top-grade competition, the problem of taking a sacrifice is really a delicate one but the man who can handle these situations to the best advantage is going to win a lot of IMPs for his team.

* * *

East's two-spade opening was one of those weak two bids that are almost standard in top-level American bridge today. Bobby Goldman of the Aces also opened two spades. Against Bobby, South overcalled with three diamonds, Billy Eisenberg jumped to four spades and Bobby played the hand there.

He lost the first three tricks but had no trouble making the rest. When North showed out on the first trump lead, the finesse against the queen became proven.

* * *

Bob Hamman, sitting South, elected to jump to four diamonds. West bid four spades and now Mike Lawrence made a fine decision and went to five diamonds. He would have gained a whole barrel full of IMPs for his team if East and West had gone to five spades, but Paul Soloway, sitting East, doubled.

West opened with three rounds of clubs. Soloway was able to overruff dummy and score a heart trick later on to collect a 300-point penalty but the Aces showed a profit of 120 points, worth three IMPs.

Junior Editors Quiz on SKUNKS

QUESTION: Why are skunks black and white?

* * *

ANSWER: The colors and patterns on wild animals are there to be used. Animals such as birds and rodents, which have many enemies, have colors that help conceal them. And animals which prey upon others have protective coloration which allows them to creep up on their prey unseen.

But the skunk's bold, contrasting splotches of black and white make him stand right out like a neon light. What's the reason he makes himself so conspicuous?

The skunk has one of the most successful methods of protection against enemies ever given to any animal. When threatened, he wheels around and ejects a stream of liquid at the intruder. This has such a nauseating, sickening odor that other animals and men keep as far away as they possibly can.

The skunk's bold colors tell every one who he is. He wants to be seen.

As for the spray, one of the particular reasons people who know about skunks keep well away from them is that this evil-smelling liquid is extremely difficult to remove from clothes or skin.

(You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

TEEN DATING HINTS: Spotlight on LEO. These are individuals tonight who lead the way — and who make valid suggestions concerning theater, concerts, motion pictures. AQUARIUS is concerned about permanency — or lack of it — in connection with special relationship. CANCER could get stuck with check. VIRGO could find blind date intriguing. Romance shines for ARIES. This is a theater night, and many persons are dramatic, overstating certain factors. GEMINI could be one who gets confused finding places. LIBRA makes new friends and has special date wish fulfilled.

* * *

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Creative forces are emphasized. Welcome change, travel, variety. Be receptive to ideas which may be unorthodox. Special honor connected with children is distinct possibility.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your basic needs can be fulfilled. Feel that you can accomplish — then spread good will. This will act in manner to bring you assignments — and accolades.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Follow directions. Otherwise, you could get caught in traffic jam. Be specific about details. Accent on relatives, short journeys. You're going places — be sure it is not in a circle.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money, income potential, personal possessions in these are spotlighted. A change works in your favor. Obtain hint from ARIES message. You are due for financial boost.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get what you need. You may want something different. But basic requirements come first — and are likely to be fulfilled. Include family members in any special event.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Much today occurs in clandestine manner. Means all is not what appears on surface. Join forces with one whose standards are high. Otherwise, you could become involved in unhavory situation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your desire to love and be loved is heightened. You receive encouragement. A friend offers material support. Today could mark the start of something big.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): One in position of authority may need some special treatment. Adhere to principles but make intelligent concession. Finish rather than start projects.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may see people in different light. You go places which were familiar — but there is aura of excitement. Record your views. Get them on paper.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Welcome chance to delve into mystery. What you uncover could prove profitable. Mate, partner has some definite ideas about what to do with money. Protect your own security.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on public relations, your dealings with partner or associate whose actions directly affect you. Be flexible. You can expand. But be positive concerning legal requirements.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are sensitive to challenge. Bring creative imagination to bear on everyday affairs. Moderation could be key to ultimate achievement. Remember promises about diet, health.

IF SATURDAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have an affinity for the underdog. You can accept responsibility if you feel cause is just. Often, others burden you with their problems. A new start will blossom into ultimate success.

Graft Virtually Unheard of in British Municipalities

LONDON (AP) — Graft? Corruption? Crime bosses with a voice at City Hall? The men who run Britain's cities say it can't happen here.

It doesn't, if public records can be believed.

* * *

Britain's more than 1,200 local governments spend about $12 billion a year—15 per cent of the gross national product and potentially rich pickings for someone out to swindle the system.

But the Local Government Ministry in London says it can't remember a municipal bribery case of any size. A national newspaper concluded after its own investigation, "The scope for corrupt practices is considerable, but there is no doubt that the amount of corruption is very small.' '

LAYERS OF LAWS

Town administrators say one answer lies in layers of laws that bind the hands of anyone making a threatening gesture toward the public till.

Overlapping legal jurisdictions make it hard for a politician to build an empire. There are also lingering traditions of nonpartisan government and employment practices unmoved by shifts in political winds.

* * *

Perhaps more important, crime remains largely local and comparatively unorganized in Britain. Gambling is legal, and police say they've been able to keep international underworld syndicates from moving in on the narcotics trade, prostitution or extortion rackets.

"We deny the existence of the Mafia here," a Scotland Yard spokesman says. "It has not taken hold in this country."

LARGEST BOROUGH

Across the Thames River, less than a mile from Scotland Yard, begins Lambeth, with 330,000 people the largest of London's 32 semiautonomous boroughs. The Oval cricket ground, the famed Old Vic Theater and the Lambeth Palace residence of the Archbishop of Canterbury relieve its blocks of industries and working-class neighborhoods.

In its location along a major waterway and within a large metropolitan region, Lambeth resembles Newark, N.J., an industrial American city of 400,000 across the bay from New York. Lambeth officials raise their eyebrows in disbelief at developments in Newark, where Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio and 14 others have been charged with extorting $250,000 from a firm doing business with the city.

* * *

Lambeth's associate town clerk is James Smith, 53, a bluff, dark-suited lawyer.

"There is certainly some corruption in British local government," he says. "But it's remarkably little. In my 14 years here, I can recall only one incident—a complaint that one of our chaps was putting some pressure on club licenses.

'NOTHING TO IT'

One basic safeguard against corruption, Smith says, is the strict control the national government exercises over municipalities. Parliamentary law defines the limits of local powers so precisely that "We can't even open an ice cream stand unless it says so."

Annual public audits, authorized by Parliament 100 years ago, are carried out in all communities by visiting teams from the Local Government Ministry.

* * *

"The cases of default uncovered by the audit are very rare," a ministry spokesman said.

HAS OWN AUDITS

Reg Ravalde, 58, conducts his own audits as Lambeth treasurer accountable for the borough's $48 - million budget. Of that, about $13 million is subsidy from the national government, which examines contracts before they are signed in cases where it earmarks funds for specific projects.

"I don't see a penny of the borough's money," Ravalde observes. "No invoice is paid except after independent examination. I don't even have access to checks—they are issued by cashiers."

This principle of not concentrating too much power in any one place pervades British municipalities organized on the committee plan. Under Lambeth's 70-member elected Borough Council are 13 committees that manage 16,000 municipal housing units, 180 miles of road, parks, liberaries, sewers and a range of welfare services.

In many communities police owe no direct allegiance to local officials. Lambeth is policed by the London metropolitan force, controlled from Scotland Yard.

Employes in many municipalities, from the top down to the typists, are hired through selection committees and are virtually immune against dismissal when the party in power changes.

Lambeth, once a Labor party stronghold, voted the Conservatives in 18 months ago. The new councilors removed none of the borough officers.

Despite all the built-in safeguards, men like Smith and Ravalde admit that a determined swindler could still find a way. There are no foolproof means of detecting a cash bribe from a landowner who knows that his land would be worth 10 times more if the council let him build a gasoline station on it.

* * *

The chairman of the local-government department of the Liberal party commented recently, "It is no accident that many people still believe that one gets elected to a local council in order to line one's pockets. Let us not deny that there is a substantial amount of truth in this belief."

* * *

But a spokesman for the local government information office said, "Basically, people in England seem to be honest in public affairs, even when they may not be in their personal ones. If they see any jiggery-pokery, they do something about it."

That was the attitude of one member of a planning committee in a northern country who was offered $12,000 if he would approve a building project.

"I turned down the application simply because it was bad county planning," he said. "After all, that's why they had thought it necessary to try bribery in the first place."

29 Have Dinner on Kansas Man's Open Invitation

WINFIELD, Kan. (AP) — Twenty-nine persons ate Christmas dinner Thursday with Louis E. Prather, 83. He had invited anyone who wanted to come.

Thirty-six years ago Prather spent Christmas Day alone at a service station he operated three miles west of Belle Plaine, Kan.

* * *

"It brought tears to my eyes to spend Christmas alone," Prather said Thursday. "That's why I'm rejoicing tonight."

He gave his first blanket invitation to Christmas dinner last year when 27 persons showed up.

* * *

Prather, who still does carpentry on house repair jobs, was assisted by eight neighbors and members of the Seventh Day Adventist Church. They volunteered to fix the food for this year's dinner.

So, Lets Hail Weathermen

Forecasters Need Place in Sun

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Weather Service will be observing its 100th anniversary in February, and it behooves us all to celebrate accordingly.

WEST

But, outside of blowing up a few weather balloons, what is "accordingly?" A good question, sir or madam, and you have come to the right place for the answer.

When the disc jockey on my car radio finished reading the day's weather forecast the other morning, he noted that a new forecast would be available in 15 minutes. As he said this, I couldn't help thinking how discouraging being a weather forecaster must be.

I mean, here some knowledgeable, dedicated weathermen had prepared what I regarded as truly excellent forecast. It sounded solid and reassuring, with just a bit of poetic lilt. The forecaster obviously had put his heart and soul into it.

LIFE SPAN SHORT

Yet it would have a life span of only an hour or two before being revised.

In my day, weather forecasts were mure durable. A good forecast in those days would last you up to 12 hours, maybe longer. But everything lasted longer then.

Anyway, I got to thinking what a pity it was that weather forecasts had become so transitory and expendable. And it was then that I got this idea for the weather service's centennial celebration.

What have in mind is having President Nixon appoint a panel of distinguished meteorologists to serve as judges in the selection of America's 10 all-time greatest weather forecasts.

TOP FORECASTS

These would be engraved on plaques and hung in the weathermen's Hall of Fame, to be created by act of Congress.

Each December after that, the panel would pick the year's 10 top forecasts, which also would be enshrined in the hall.

In addition, the hall could be used for honoring other outstanding achievements. Let's say, for example, that Charlie McCirrus of the Thunderhead City, Utah, weather bureau, ran up a record of 19 consecutive "partly cloudys and mild with scattered afternoon thudershowers." His bust would be installed in the hall.

Chances are that on 10 of those 19 days there wasn't a cloud in the sky. But that is beside the point. This would be an award for consistency, not accuracy.

Pinpoint forecasting could be honored with the "Silas" award named for Silas Peabow, a South Clods, Vt., dairy farmer and amateur meteorologist, who once broke his leg when he was blown off the barn roof while repairing a weathervane.

The Gourmet Adventures of Jayson's

Remember these tips when you're shopping for fresh vegetables. But in season-when quality is high; buy only what you can store properly and use without waste; avoid rough handling. The following are just a few vegetables that are available all year: Peas (peak of season March to June) — should be young, tender, and sweet with light green, slightly velvety pods that are well-filled with peas. Avoid flat color or wilted . . . Squash (most plentiful early fall to late winter.) — should be heavy for its size with a hard, tough rind. Avoid those with cuts, punctures or sunken spots . . . Broccoli — should have firm, compact clusters of small buds. Avoid those with thick stems, opened bud clusters or yellowish color.

WINTER IN IOWA — An Amish man guides his sleigh across a snow-packed road near Kalona, Iowa, where up to six inches of fresh snow had fallen earlier this week. The first storm of winter left behind enough snow to guarantee a white New Year's Day.

Schools in Area Set Unified Voting Dates

Oakland County school districts favoring unified election days for presenting financial issues will hold cooperative elections this spring and fall.

The first Tuesday in May has been selected by a committee of the Oakland County Superintendents' Association at the direction of their boards of education.

★ ★ ★

To allow for a 30-day interval following August primary elections, the fall date will alternate between the fourth Tuesday in September in even-numbered years and the second Tuesday in September in odd-numbered years.

In 1970, the election dates will be May 5, June 9 and Sept. 28.

ADVANTAGES CITED

A major advantage in cooperative election dates is the opportunity to coordinate efforts in registering and informing voters of the issues, according to Dr. George Garver, superintendent of Walled Lake Consolidated School District and acting committee head.

Garver also noted that the unified election would eliminate possibility of a negative chain reaction caused by millage failures in neighboring districts.

★ ★ ★

A cooperative effort of this nature could also utilize resources and leadership of Oakland Schools, the intermediate district of Oakland County, according to Garver.

"No district is obliged to hold elections on the dates selected," Garver said.

"If a board of education feels the needs of the district require another election date, that board is free to pick its own date. However, the majority of board members of this county seem to feel that the schools and voters will benefit from this kind of cooperation."

A proposal calling for a unified election dates was endorsed by the Oakland County Schools Board Association in October.

Uses Wednesday's Momentum

Stock Market Inching Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, using the momentum of Wednesday's rally, inched higher this afternoon in light trading.

Volume was light due to a New York area snowstorm and the fact that many companies were closed as part of the Christmas holiday.

During the first hour of trading, 1.7 million shares changed hands on the New York Stock Exchange, compared to 3.27 million for the same period on Wednesday.

"Because of the light volume," commented Larry Wachtel, Bache & Co. vice president, "today's market performance may be inconclusiv as far as establishing any sort of trend."

Tax selling, which has dampened the market for the last several weeks, appeared to be abating, he added.

Still influencing the market was investor optimism arising from remarks by Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors. He said late Tuesday that the present tight money policy could not continue indefinitely without having the economy drift further below its potential for growth. His statements were credited with triggering the Wednesday's rally that pushed the Dow Jones average to its highest level in more than three weeks.

Norman Rockwell—

BETTER THAN EVER AT 75!

Norman Rockwell is America's best-known and most loved American artist. The warmth, humor and humanity of his pictures contain a universal appeal that hurdles generations (and generation gaps) with the greatest of ease. He is a sort of pictorial Mark Twain whose paintings have probably been seen and enjoyed by more people than those of any other American artist who ever lived.

Norman Rockwell was born in a New York City apartment in 1894. He completed one year of high school before deciding to waste no more time on formal education. Instead, with money he had saved doing odd jobs, he entered art school—actually, two art schools. He attended the National Academy of Design in the mornings, and the Art Students' League in the afternoons. Before long, he was illustrating books, and drawing pictures for such magazines as Boys' Life. Then, on May 20, 1916, when he was 22, his first cover appeared on the Saturday Evening Post.

It was a relationship that was to encompass some forty years and 350 covers, and was to make him the country's—and perhaps the world's—most famous illustrator. In recent years he has contributed paintings to many other magazines. During World War II he interpreted the Four Freedoms in a series of paintings which found their way into more American homes than any other works in the history of American art.

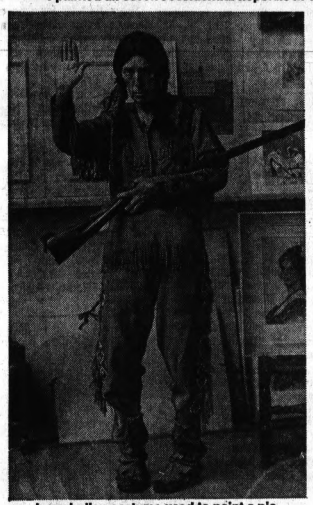

A hale, hearty and energetic 75, Rockwell lives and paints in a studio in his home at Stockbridge, Mass. He is also an active member of the Guiding Faculty of Famous Artists School of Westport. The demand for his work continues unabated, and he is booked up for commissions a full year ahead. Honors continue to accrue to Rockwell. A recent one-man show of his paintings in a New York gallery brought a rave review from the New York Times, and he was the subject—and guest star—of a one-hour special on national television called "Norman Rockwell's America."

"I painted all seven Presidential hopefuls in 1968 . . ." This one of Nixon was painted after the election.

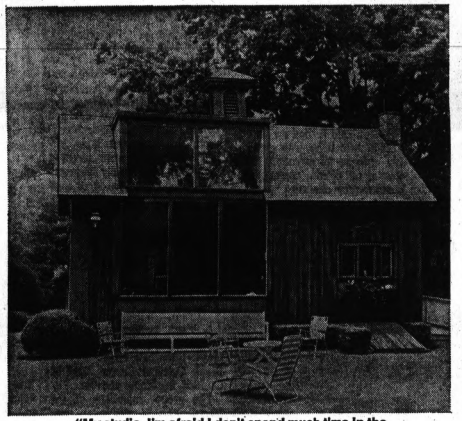

"I look like a Fine Art master" said Norman Rockwell, and offered "a less pompous photo."

"Just me and a model and critic."

"My studio. I'm afraid I don't spend much time in the foreground chairs."

"My wife, Molly, and I ride every day —unless it's raining we ride about five miles."

"Here I am painting Lincoln—he was 6 foot 4 inches high and my client wanted his figure lifesize."

"I have painted four pictures of the moon shot for publication. The originals are all hanging at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington."

AF Tells of Rescue of Downed Flier

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force told today of a successful, 51-hour effort to rescue a downed fighter-bomber crewman from enemy-held country but raised more questions than it answered concerning the incident.

In a six-page news release, the Air Force omitted such details as what country the rescue occurred in, what caused the plane to crash, what happened to the pilot of the plane, where the rescue helicopters came from and who their heroic pilots were.

* * *

An Air Force spokesman said he could not say why this information was omitted. The only additional information he could furnish was that the rescue happened "earlier this month."

By not saying that the rescue took place in South Vietnam, the Air Force left the impression that it was in Laos. U.S. planes regularly bomb enemy infiltration routes there.

The crewman, identified by the Air force as 1st Lt. Woodrow Bergeron Jr., of New Orlean La., spent part of three days after he was downed dodging enemy bullets and searchers while using the small radio that all U.S. pilots carry to lead rescuers to them.

Sixteen times, rescue helicopters flew in under fighter-bomber support in attempts to pull Bergeron out of the jungle, but each time enemy fire drove them off.

Once Bergeron, scaled a steep embankment and the big "Jolly Green giant" chopper came to within six feet of him. But it had to pull away because of heavy fire.

* * *

Bergeron went without sleep for 51 hours after parachuting from his disabled F4 Phantom fighter-bomber. He lost his pistol while trying to dig into a hiding place.

Once he abandoned a hiding place in a clump of bamboo for a safer spot. A few minutes later, three enemy soldiers came to the bamboo clump and fired into it.

* * *

On the third day, with propeller-driven A1 Skyraiders bombing and strafing the enemy positions—sometimes so close that the bombs' impact lifted him slightly off the ground—Bergeron got into the middle of a river. On the second try, a helicopter was able to lower a cable hoist to pull him to safety.

FIRST DAY OF FREEDOM — Willie "the Actor" Sutton, one of the more colorful bank robbers of yesteryear, watches children romp at a Long Island pond on Christmas Day. Released on parole on Christmas Eve, Sutton, 68, spent Christmas Day seeing things he missed most during his 35 years in prison. Rues Life of Crime

Gangster Wins Parole

NEW YORK (AP) — "I am probably the best living example of the fact that crime doesn't pay. The money I stole never did me any good. It was small payment for so many years of imprisonment," says Willie "The Actor" Sutton, the bank robber and escape artist.

* * *

Sutton spoke Christmas Day in a copyright New York Daily News article, a day after he was released from prison.

* * *

The convicted bank robber, 68, was released from Attica State Prison Wednesday by the Department of Corrections, following a preholiday review of his case.

Katherine Bitses, Sutton's lawyer, told newsmen he spent Christmas in seclusion here, adding, "I think he deserves a day of grace."

NEWS CONFERENCE

Mrs. Bitses said she and Sutton would hold a news conference today.

* * *

Recently, Sutton had 1952 sentences of 20 years and 30 years set aside. He has spent the last 17 years and more than half his life in prison.

The former bank robber and escape artist said he wants to help "straighten out" young people who are thinking about a life of crime.

"I would go anywhere and speak to any group where I might be of help," he wrote.

* * *

Sutton said he has a check for $169.37 which he was given on his release as payment for 17 years of prison work, minus commissary charges.

* * *

Sutton criticized "the long hair they wear today." However, he added, "I love the girls' miniskirts and am glad they lasted until I got out."

Yule Tree an Ohio '1st'

WOOSTER, Ohio (UPI) — The first Christmas tree in the United Stages was trimmed here in 1847, according to the Ohio Department of Development.

* * *

August Imgard, a young German immigrant, brought the custom to America when he came to join other members of his family who had settled here. He was born in Bavaria and missed the entertainment and observance which had marked Christmas in his homeland.

* * *

So Imgard decided to have a Christmas tree.

There were other reasons — Albert and Mary Imgard, his nephew and niece. He knew a Christmas tree would bring added joy to them.

* * *

August went into the woods near Wooster and chopped down a spruce. From the village smith, he obtained a star fashioned of tin. Paper decorations were made, and America's first Christmas tree appeared in all its glory in the Imgard home on December 24, 1847.

* * *

The Ohio development department says this is the first documented evidence of a Christmas tree anywhere in the United States.

* * *

The novelty appealed to the good people of Wooster. Children and grownups flocked to the Imgard home to see the magnificent tree. Soon, the whole village was gathered about the home.

* * *

The following year, nearly every home in the tiny town was bright with a gaily decorated evergreen of its own.

The custom spread. Before long, all Ohio had adopted the Christmas tree, and then the entire nation.

In Memoriam 2

DECEMBER 26, 1964
In loving memory of Gerald S. Beamer.
God took him home, it was His will
But in our hearts, we love him still,
His memory is as dear today,
As in the house he passed away.
We often sit and think of him,
When we are all alone.
For memory is the only friend
That grief can call its own.
Dottie, Jerry, Laurie, and Mark.

IN LOVING MEMORY of Rosa Edson, who passed away Dec. 26, 1968. Sadly missed by family.

FCC Chief Disclaims TV 'Muzzle'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Communications Commission Chairman Dean Burch, disclaiming any idea of trying to muzzle commentators, says he will continue to seek out transcripts of television news commentaries.

"I have a lot of interest in things that go out on the television without necessarily suggesting that I propose to do anything about it," Burch added in an interview.

Burch, in one of his first acts after taking office on Oct. 31, telephoned TV network heads for transcripts of commentaries on President Nixon's Nov. 3 speech on Vietnam.

Any suggestion that he and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew are trying to destroy the networks is "a bunch of hooey," Burch said. Agnew has attacked what he termed "instant analysis and querulous criticism."

★ ★ ★

Burch said he has not proposed to do anything about the commentary. His purpose for reading the transcripts is "really a matter of information more than anything else," he added.

Burch also said he may seek voluntary industry cooperation in an effort to curb obscenity problems on television and radio.

The problems, he added are "not so much on movies. We have some people who contend that slipping out profanity from a movie is destroying the artistic integrity.

"We have a problem of phonograph records which . . . if you understand them, they have very rough lyrics. We have a very difficult problem dealing with live coverage of news . . . where what I would consider terribly offensive language is used . . ."

Leave Reminder

When you wash the children's lunch boxes at night, put in them the notes they must take to school next morning.

You won't forget them in the hustle and bustle of getting the children off to school in the morning.

Son, Wife of Hess Can't Discuss Visit

Wolf Ruediger Hess says he and his mother were required to sign statements that they would discuss neither their pre-Christmas visit to his father Rudolf Hess nor the state of his father's health.

Hess, 32, and his mother, Ilse Hess, paid a visit in West Berlin Wednesday to Hess, 73, once a deputy of Adolf Hitler, now under treatment at a British military hospital for ulcers. Hess is serving a life sentence in Spandau prison as a war criminal.

A Look at TV

Hour of Music Pleasant

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — One of the things television does superbly is present music in a simple format.

A fine example of this was the Christmas afternoon hour of Tchaikovsky's music by two fine soloists accompanied by an excellent orchestra.

MISS LOWRY

The CBS broadcast, called "S. Hurok Presents —Part III" had Mstislav Rostropovich, cellist, and Emil Gilels, pianist, in concert. Each of the Russian artists was introduced briefly by impressario Hurok, and the rest of the time there was only the sound of their music and sight of their faces and hands to claim one's attention.

★ ★ ★

The timing of the program, during the letdown after the holiday, was particularly felicitous.

★ ★ ★

During the evening there was nothing much on the TV screen to keep the viewer tied to his easy chair. The "Family Affair" kids got involved with hamsters. Chief Ironside nailed a modern-day Fagin and saved a good but misled boy from a life of crime—not the best effort of the series. Jim Nabors and guest star Kay Starr had a dandy medley of country songs amid a so-so variety hour. Superthief Alexander Mundy of "It Takes a Thief" disguised himself in a beard to hunt a secret formula and a murderer among some weird people—more old-fashioned creepy atmosphere than story lines.

He's Fighting Fear of Flights

NEW YORK (AP) — Nathan Cott, a businessman too terrified of flying to go up in an airplane, has gotten together about 40 other plane-fearers, and they hope to be airborne soon.

★ ★ ★

"Over the years I have lost well over $100,000 because I wouldn't fly," said Cott, a heating company executive. "And vacations! Don't talk to me about vacations! I have been to Florida 144 times by train," he said, with obvious exaggeration.

A few months ago Cott decided to overcome his fear. He placed a small advertisement in a number of newspapers, soliciting others similarly fearful, and received more than 400 replies.

The result was a nonprofit organization called "Fly Without Fear." Members pay $10 to join and $5 for each weekly meeting.

The group has hired a psychologist, and it meets to discuss members' terrors and act out their reactions to imagined flights.

Next month they'll invite ground controllers and safety experts to tell them the facts of flying.

★ ★ ★

At one of the meetings the psychologist, Dr. Marvin L. Aronson, said 99 per cent of those who fly have some fears about it.

A young woman stood up and said angrily, "I am not just a little afraid. I am terrified. You just don't understand."

SQUIRMED IN CHAIR

At another point a big, red-haired man squirmed in a folding chair as he imagined himself sitting in an airplane. What would he do?

"I try to see if the person next to me is sympathetic."

"What do you mean, sympathetic?"

★ ★ ★

"I mean, if the other guy looks like he's also frightened out of his mind about flying."

Nobody laughed. Most of the others at the meeting nodded or murmured agreement.

FIRST QUESTION

Cott said he always feared flying. After World War II, when he was looking for a job, "The first question I asked was not what the company was paying but would I have to fly."

"You can imagine the impression that created," he said. "You know how bad I was? I lived near Kennedy Airport, and I liked the jet noise because I hoped if it became too loud, my wife might grow to hate airplanes as much as I did."

★ ★ ★

Cott said the "final straw" came when he found that a merger deal involving the company he heads would have required several trips a year to Germany. "That ended the merger," he said. "I decided to become positive about air travel instead of negative."

GM's '69 Fiscal Impact Locally Tops $466 Million

The impact of General Motors' three local operations on the area economy totaled $466.3 million during 1969, up nearly $2 million from last year.

The nearly half-billion dollar figure was contained in a joint year-end statechairman of the GM Plant City Committee; Martin J. Caserio, general manager ment by F. James McDonald, general manager of Pontiac Motor Division and of GMC Truck and Coach Division; and Douglas E. Beaudry, manager of the Pontiac Fisher Body plant.

* * *

The statement noted that payrolls topped $367.3 million, nearing last year's all-time record of $370.6 million. GM's 1969 purchases from area companies for goods and services increased to $97.6 million, up approximately $5 million from 1968.

An additional $1.38 million was awarded to employes under terms of the GM suggestion plan for ideas to improve quality and efficiency of GM's products and manufacturing operations. Five GM employes received the plan's top award of $10,000 during the past year.

Combined GM employment during the year averaged 36,000.

During 1969, GM employes in Pontiac invested more than $8.8 million through payroll deduction in U.S. Savings Bonds, an increase of some $200,000 more than last year.

* * *

General Motors and its employes made a record contribution of $837,597 to the 1969 Pontiac Area United Fund. The record gift included $647,597 from employes and a $190,000 GM corporate gift.

In an attempt to help ease Pontiac's housing shortage, the GM Pontiac Plant City Committee announced in August that it would provide interest-free loans of up to $1.1 million to Pontiac's nonprofit block housing developer, Harambee Inc. Under terms of the unique banking agreement, several parcels of vacant land already have been purchased for development of new housing.

ELECTRIC FURNACES

In January, 1969, Pontiac Motor Division put its first electric arc furnace into operation. When the furnace change-over is completed in the mid-1970s, air pollution from the division's foundry virtually will be eliminated.

GM's concern for vehicle air pollution is also being emphasized with a recent start on construction of a 38,000-square-foot emissions control and carburetor testing facility at Pontiac Motor.

In addition, GMC Truck & Coach Division recently announced engine modifications to significantly reduce emissions from diesel-powered buses built since 1959.

* * *

GMC Truck & Coach completed construction of more than 700,000 square feet of new or remodeled facilities during the past year and announced plans to add 135,000 square feet of manufacturing space during 1970.

The division also will build a new parts warehouse near Willow Run Airport to increase distribution efficiency of 100,000 classifications of truck and coach parts to dealers and operators throughout the nation.

Among the production highlights of 1969 was the building of the 14-millionth Pontiac car.

More Cuts Foreseen in Defense Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials predict about 1 million fewer Americans will be involved in the nation's defenses as a result of budget cutbacks over the first 30 months of the Nixon administration.

Included in this calculation are reductions in uniformed members of the armed services, civilian employes of defense agencies and workers who have been employed in defense industries.

Amid indications of deeper cuts in defense, the administration is putting next year's budget in final shape for submission to Congress in January. Although President Nixon has been in office only a little more than 11 months, the new budget will run from mid-1970 to mid-1971 — carrying through the first 30 months of his administration.

With certain issues still unresolved, Pentagon sources are estimating a new budget of $73 billion to $75 billion in the bookkeeping year starting next July.

This would cut $2 billion to $4 billion from this fiscal year's spending level of about $77 billion.

Such a cut would carry defense spending about $6 billion to $8 billion below the fnal Johnson admnstraton proposal for the current year. Since taking office last January, the Nixon administration has trimmed $4.1 billion from the Johnson figure for this year.

* * *

The reduction of the Vietnam war has been responsible for a considerable part of a planned savings for this year, but Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird also has ordered economies by closing bases, canceling and stretching out hardware programs, cutting back air defense, and laying up ships and air squadrons.

More is in prospect, including probable major base shutdowns in the coming year.

As the United States has reduced its troop commitment in Vietnam, the Pentagon has arranged for a slimming down of the armed forces. So far, nearly 270,000 men are being cut from the armed services rolls this fiscal year.

Civilian employment under the Defense Department is due to drop by about 73,000 this year.

With reductions in military procurement, officials indicate that defense contract employment may drop as much as 300,000 or so.

The Vietnam war is expected to cost the United States $23.2 billion this year, a drop of about $5.6 billion from last year. This is because the tempo of the war has been throttled down as the United tates has shifted emphasis to preparing the South Vietnamese to take over the major burden of the fighting and as the enemy has resorted to less intense offensive operations.

* * *

According to current projections, the cost of carrying on the Vietnam war at reduced level in the next fiscal year may slip to around $17 billion to $18 billion.

Defense financial experts say that procurement, rather than troop strength, accounts for significant fluctuations in the total cost of the war.

For example, much of the decrease from last year is traceable to more than $3 billion reduction in procurement of bombs, other ammunition, various vehicles and aircraft.

FAMILIES OF PRISONERS — Mrs. Margaret Fisher (center), one of a group of 58 wives and 94 children of American fliers missing or captured in North Vietnam, answers questions at a news conference at New York's Kennedy Airport yesterday. The group had just returned from a trip to Paris to obtain information about their loved ones from North Vietnamese officials. They were told that prisoner information would be released gradually to private U.S. citizens.

President Working on Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sunny California will have to wait a few days while President Nixon remains in snowy Washington to consider the kind of post-Christmas problem worrying many other Americans—the budget.

The President had planned to leave this afternoon for San Clemente, Calif., but Nixon decided yesterday he would stay at the White House to work on the federal budget he must submit to Congress next year.

He has put off his California trip until next week, probably Tuesday. The chief executive, Mrs. Nixon and their daughter Tricia are expected to spend about two weeks at their oceanfront home.

After working Christmas Eve and part of Christmas Day on the new budget, Nixon switched his holiday vacation plans so he would remain in Washington to have further conferences with his economic advisers.

WORK IS DELAYED

Work on the budget was delayed by late congressional action on appropriations bills for the current fiscal year—some of which are still unsettled.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President also will spend some time over the weekend studying the massive tax reduction and reform bill passed by Congress. There has been no official word from Nixon whether he would sign the measure which also boosts Social Security benefits by 15 per cent effective next Thursday.

The President is expected to work on his State of the Union message during his California vacation.

POW Wives Get Thin Hope

NEW YORK (AP) — "If one daddy comes home as a result of this trip . . . it will be worthwhile," said the spokesman for a group of 152 American wives and children who spent Christmas Day trying to get information about their loved ones missing or captured in North Vietnam.

In a 21-hour round trip Thursday, the group flew to Paris, was rebuffed, then recalled by Hanoi officials and finally ended up back home carrying a thin message of hope — a promise that the North Vietnamese would "gradually" release the names of captives.

"For some of us, even so little represents hope on this day," said Margaret Fisher of Sebring, Fla. Mrs. Fisher was one of three representatives of the group that the North Vietnamese consented to see.

The Hanoi officials told the women that they were being used and duped by U.S. authorities. "Return home and tell your children that their fathers are murderers of North Vietnamese children," one woman quoted an official as saying.

TRIP PAID BY BILLIONAIRE

The 58 mothers and 94 children arrived in Paris on a grey, wet morning. Their trip was paid for by H. Ross Perot, the Dallas billionaire who was in Laos at the time seeking permission to transport gifts for captive U.S. servicemen by air to Hanoi.

The group boarded buses and French police escorted them to the North Vietnamese diplomatic mission office. The group was told that the Hanoi officials would see three representatives but not until today.

* * *

Before returning to Orly Airport the women asked to be taken to church and were escorted to Notre Dame Cathedral. Many were kneeling in prayer when a policeman ran in excitedly and announced that the Hanoi delegation had changed its mind and would see three representatives immediately.

* * *

Mrs. Fisher said the meeting began with a 25-minute lecture on North Vietnamese history and policy. Then questions were allowed.

Would Have Won in 1968, Says LBJ in TV Interview

From Our News Wires

NEW YORK — Lyndon B. Johnson says he had no doubt that he could have been reelected if he ran for president in 1968 but that he felt his inability to unite the country would ultimately prevent him from administering the office to his satisfaction.

In a CBS-TV interview with Walter Cronkite taped last September, Johnson discusses his decision not to run again in 1968 and calls his wife, Lady Bird, "one of the wises and certainly the most trusted counselors I've had." She did not want him to be a candidate last year, he said.

The former president believes Hubert H. Humphrey would be in the White House today had it not been for a few words Humphrey spoke at Salt Lake City.

* * *

He also relates that after he announced his decision not to run again Sen. Robert F. Kennedy visited him for very friendly conversation" and told him, "You're a very courageous and very dedicated man."

Johnson said he never wanted to be president of the United States and would have left the 1964 Democratic nominatin open for the best man — "I assumed it would be Bobby Kennedy or Hubert Humphrey" — except that Lady Bird persuaded him to run.

EX-PRESIDENT AND 'PERSUADER'—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson says he didn't want to run in 1964 but was persuaded by his wife, Lady Bird. But in 1968, he says, it was she, his most"trusted counselor," who persuaded him not to seek reelection. Johnson revealed the political sidelights in an interview with Walter Cronkite taped in Texas last September for broadcast by CBS tomorrow night. (Locally, it can be seen at 7:30 on Channel 2.)

Pilot's Pressure Suit Saves Bleeding California Mother

STANFORD, Calif. (AP—A test-pilot pressure suit has been used to save a young mother from bleeding to death, a medical report says.

Mary Phillips, 25-year-old mother of two, was in critical condition at Stanford University Hospital last September, bleeding uncontrollably following a minor operation.

Doctors had given her 46 pints of whole blood and 64 units of plasma in five weeks while trying without success nine surgical procedures for stopping internal hemorrhaging.

* * *

Now, she is living a normal life in her Sunnyvale, Calif., home.

Dr. Robert Mason on Sept. 23 suggested that doctors try a pressure garment, recalling that Dr. W. James Gardner of the Cleveland Clinic in Ohio had employed one in early brain surgery research.

Within four hours after a call from the Stanford staff, Dr. Alan Chambers of NASA's Ames Research Center at nearby Mountain View had delivered a modified pressure suit to the hospital.

It was placed almost immediately on Mrs. Phillips and stayed there for 10 hours. Overnight the bleeding stopped.

The pressure suit treatment was described in a report Thursday by Stanford University Hospital and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Dr. Ralph Pelligra, chief of the Ames Center's medical services branch, said the suit apparently reduced the pressure difference between the blood within the arteries and the tissues outside. Normal blood coagulation then resumed.

N. Viet Refuses Gifts for POWS, Eyes New Offer

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — North Vietnam refused today to admit H. Ross Perot and his two planeloads of Christmas gifts for American prisoners of war.

* * *

The Texas billionaire then proposed:

• To fly the 1,400 canned Christmas dinners in his cargo to Hanoi to be fed to North vietnamese children orphaned by the war. He told a news conference the Hanoi regime is now considering this proposal.

• To fly the medical supplies, personal packages, mail and clothing to Moscow aboard his chartered airliners for relay to the prisoners by Soviet postal channels. Hanoi had told him to mail the packages via Moscow, but Perot said only by flying them in his planes could he beat the Dec. 31 deadline North Vietnam has put on accepting Christmas parcels.

* * *

• To inspect prisoner of war camps in South Vietnam, then travel to Hanoi, and to offer financial and other help to North Vietnamese families so they could send parcels to relatives held prisoner in South Vietnam. He said this would prove to Hanoi "that we are strictly humanitarian in our outlook—that we are interested in helping all prisoners, not just Americans."

REFUSED PERMISSION

Perot met for an hour and 35 minutes with the acting charge d'affaires of the North Vietnamese Embassy, Vu Tien.

"We were refused permission to fly our planes in," Perot told newsmen, "and I was refused permission to fly to Hanoi myself to present my proposals to the North Vietnamese government."

* * *

The 39-year-old computer magnate said he was disappointed, "but we are not giving up."

Perot said Vu Tien indicated that Americans should take an interest in the suffering of the people of North Vietnam.

MAJOR OBSTACLE

Perot said the major obstacle in his conversation with the North Vietnamese envoy was the "wall of suspicion" surrounding his mission. He said he would keep trying to convince the Hanoi regime that his project was entirely a humanitarian one, "in no way representing the United States government."

The normally ruddy-faced Perot was ashen as he walked from the embassy.

* * *

Perot said he chartered the two planes at a cost of $200,000. Traveling with him are more than 30 Red Cross workers, clergymen, newsmen and members of his organization, United We Stand.

The North Vietnamese Embassy in Vientiane attacked Perot and his organization on Christmas Eve as supporters of President Nixon's "aggressive policy." The embassy also accused Perot of wanting to "sabotage" the normal channels for sending gifts to prisoners of war. He has been advised to send his gifts to Hanoi through the Soviet postal system.

Miss Peterson was a Romeo High School senior and a member of the Church of God in Christ of Romeo.

Waterford Thief on Snowmobile

A burglar riding a snowmobile took $16,415 in cash and checks from the safe of the S.S. Kresge Store, 5010 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township, sometime Tuesday night.

David Hampshire, the store manager, discovered the larceny around 8:10 Wednesday morning, township police said.

* * *

After driving to the store on a snowmobile, the thief used a grapling hook to get onto the roof of the store, police said. He then slid through a roof ventilator to get inside the building.

Once inside, the bandit used a high-speed drill to get into the safe, according to police.

HIGHWAY HOLOCAUST — A tanker of propane gas burns uncontrolled on busy I-70 in Denver. Police said the flames burst out after the rig overturned Christmas Eve, tying up traffic. The driver, Charles Brunotte, 33, of Aurora, Colo., had minor injuries. Six firemen were hurt when a second tank exploded.

Police Chief Has Warning for Holidays

BIRMINGHAM — "Holiday pressures with their stepped-up social activities led to tragic results for many families," Police chief Darryl Bruestle warns.

In his annual holiday traffic safety message, the chief noted that among the many facets of the holiday is the long list of traffic victims.

* * *

Chief Bruestle pointed to alcohol as the primary problem.

"Alcohol dulls our senses and deadens restraints that usually govern our behavior," he emphasized. "We do things we normally wouldn't do when we are under the influence of liquor."

CITES STUDIES

Chief Bruestle cited studies indicating that alcohol is involved in as many as half the fatal traffic accidents.

"These estimates involve no special time of year; but during this season of parties and celebrations, the exposure is greater and normal driving conditions are even worse," he said.

The Birmingham City Commission has approved a recommendation from the Department of Parks and Recreation that regulations, policies and rates concerning operation of the city's two golf-courses during 1969 be continued through 1970.

In a letter to City Manager Robert Kenning, Darrel C. Middlewood, superintendent of the Department of Parks and Recreation, noted that the 1969 golf season was "quite successful."

"The recommendations which were approved by the parks and recreation board and City Commission and implemented by the department in 1969 have shown us the courses can be self-supporting, although assistance from those outside the community is necessary," Middlewood's letter stated.

Middlewood said revenue for 1969 is $149,904 with expenses of $125,257, for a preliminary balance of $24,647.

Edwin H. Webster, 4375 Oakgrove, has been elected president and a member of the Executive committee of the American Institute of Steel Construction.

He will help direct the national organization representing 330 firms which account for the major portion of the annual output of fabricated structural steel in the United States.

Policies Different on Gift Returns

Pontiac area merchants report that there will be no set policy regarding gift exchanges or returns this year as in previous years.

J. L. Hudson's and Montgomery Ward in the Pontiac Mall have requested that Christmas gifts be returned by Jan. 3.

Federal's Department Store in downtown Pontiac has set Jan. 6 as the preferred date for exhanges to be completed.

The J.C. Penney Co. in the Miracle Mile Shopping Center and Sears and Roebuck downtown have no deadline for the exchange of Christmas gifts but would prefer to have presents exchanged as soon as possible, according to store spokesmen.

27 Trampled to Death

Other Clashes Reported

Israeli Planes Hit Arabs

By The Associated Press

Israeli warplanes attacked Arab guerrillas in Jordan today after they fired at an Israeli army patrol and placed two mines near a settlement, persons in the area southeast of the Sea of Galilee reported.

The sources said they saw two Jordanian army vehicles burning after the hour-long raid. They reported that the planes encountered light antiaircraft fire but returned unharmed.

In Amman, the Jordanian capital, the guerrilla command announced that its forces shelled three Israeli settlements before dawn with rockets and heavy mortars and caused damage and loss of life.

A Jordanian army spokesman also reported that Jordanian forces intercepted an Israeli, patrol of three armed vehicles escorted by four helicopters as they crossed the border in Southern Jordan late Thursday.

The spokesman said one vehicle was damaged and three Israelis wounded in the ensuing clash. He said there were no Jordanian casualties.

Israeli spokesmen said there were shelling duels during the night at other points along the Jordanian cease-fire line and also across the Lebanese border.

The spokesmen also reported that Arab saboteurs blew up a section of railway in the occupied Gaza Strip.

On the Suez Canal front, Israel and Egypt traded artillery fire and the Israeli command said one Israeli was killed. The firing took place shortly after Israeli jet fighters made one of their longest raids on Egyptian targets since the 1967 Middle East war.

The Israelis said the 8½-hour attack was made to destroy surface-to-air missile sites that the Egyptians were trying to rebuild.

The Israeli spokesman said all the planes returned safely.

No Major Fighting in Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — No major fighting was reported in Vietnam today after allied forces ended their 24-hour Christmas truce. The three-day cease-fire proclaimed by the Vietcong was in its last hours, but U.S. and South Vietnamese forces had resumed combat operations Christmas night.

* * *

The allied commands charged the Vietcong and North Vietnamese with 111 attacks violating the truce and said 100 of the enemy were killed and 11 were captured. Allied casualties were 12 South Vietnamese troops killed, 25 South Vietnamese and three Americans wounded and two government soldiers missing, the commands reported.

U.S. B52s went back into action with raids in the northwest corner of South Vietnam, 76 miles northeast of Saigon and in the Mekong Delta about 50 miles southeast of Saigon.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands said there were no B52 missions or fighter-bomber sorties flown throughout South Vietnam during the 24-hour allied cease-fire. However, official sources said American helicopter gunships flew in support of allied ground troops threatened by enemy forces.

Both B52s and fighter-bombers continued to bomb the Ho Chi Minh Trail network through eastern Laos during the cease-fire in an effort to slow infiltration of North Vietnamese troops and supplies into South Vietnam, sources said.

* * *

The allied commands reported a sharp drop in casualties on all sides last week, and South Vietnamese headquarters attributed this to a 31 per cent decrease in enemy activity.

The U.S. Command said 66 Americans were killed, the lowest number since the week of Sept. 28-Oct. 4. This raised the total of American battlefield deaths to 39,893 since Jan. 1, 1961, and it appeared that the total would exceed 40,000 by the end of the year.

The U.S. Command also reported 713 Americans wounded last week, 836 less than the week before. South Vietnamese casualties were 411 killed in action, 10 less than the week before, and 1,019 wounded.

The allies reported killing 2,007 North Vietnamese and Vietcong last week, 582 less than the week before.

2 Women Found Strangled in Illinois

CARTERVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A bride of three months and a woman companion were found strangled with electrical appliance cords Thursday in a trailer home.

The victims were Wilma Rogers, 22, and Barbara Case, 25, who had been a bridesmaid at the Rogers wedding.

Sheriff Harold Farner said police were trying to find Mrs. Rogers' husband, Kenneth, an assistant manager of a Carbondale bookstore.

* * *

A car belonging to Miss Case was found abandoned near Ripley, Tenn., Thursday night.

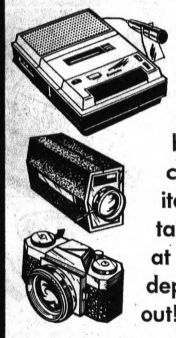

The bodies were found in separate bedrooms. Miss Case was nude, police said, and Mrs. Rogers was clothed.

* * *

The Rogers trailer is about eight miles from where the body of a 13-year-old girl was found three weeks ago. The girl had been raped and strangled.

Colombian Military Vows Election Neutrality

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The armed forces have taken pains to say they remain neutral and have no intention of interfering in politics in 1970—a presidential election year in Colombia.

Statements to this effect form the Defense Ministry and the armed forces commanders come at a time when the talk in Bogota is about the presidential aspirations of Gustavo Rojas Pinilla, the former dictator.

★ ★ ★

It is rumored that if Rojas wins—and experts give him a chance—the military will block his inauguration.

The only times in this century that Colombia's armed forces got directly involved in politics and government were in 1953 when Rojas came to power in a coup and in 1957 when he was thrown out.

CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

This week the defense minister, Gen. Gerardo Ayerbe Chaux, said in a Christmas message:

"The armed forces maintain political neutrality and act without swerving against the enemies of order and of the tranquillity of the citizenry."

★ ★ ★

Statements of other military commanders in Colombia have been more specific, saying that the armed forces will respect the election results, no matter who wins.

A split in the ruling National Union—a coalition of Liberals and Conservatives—over its candidate for the presidency has given Rojas his best chance for a return to power since he reentered politics in the mid-'60s.

LIBERAL ENDORSEMENT

Rojas also got a boost by winning the support of a Liberal senator, Ignacio Vives, who has a following among the workers and peasants.

Rojas in his speeches contrasts the prices of essential goods during his rule with what they are now.

★ ★ ★

The current president, Carlos Lleras Restrepo, is a Liberal, and his support in the campaign is for the National Union's official candidate, Misael Pastrana Borrero, 46, former ambassador to Washington. Pastrana is a Conservative.

Under Colombia's law, the Liberals and the Conservatives alternate the presidency every four years. In 1970 it is the Conservatives' turn. But the party is split, and two other leading Conservatives have entered the race as National Union dissidents.

★ ★ ★

Some experts feel that unless the National Union overcomes the split in the Conservative side of the coalition and decides on a single candidate, Rojas may be able to swing the election. He, incidentally, is also a Conservative.

In a recent newspaper poll, one of the Conservative dissidents, Belisario Bentancur, 46, was the most popular candidate. The other candidate is former Foreign Minister Evaristo Sourdis, 64, who is likely to run strong in the northern coastal area where he was born.

Driver of Crane Is Electrocuted

MIDLAND (AP) — A crane struck a 46,000-volt power line, killing the driver, Donald Lester Lowery, 37, of Mount Pleasant.

The accident, which happened Wednesday near Midland, also interrupted electrical service temporary to about 8,000 customers in Midland and Saginaw counties.

So, Lets Hail Weathermen

Forecasters Need Place in Sun

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Weather Service will be observing its 100th anniversary in February, and it behooves us all to celebrate accordingly.

But, outside of blowing up a few weather balloons, what is "accordingly?" A good question, sir or madam, and you have come to the right place for the answer.

WEST

When the disc jockey on my car radio finished reading the day's weather forecast the other morning, he noted that a new forecast would be available in 15 minutes. As he said this, I couldn't help thinking how discouraging being a weather forecaster must be.

I mean, here some knowledgeable, dedicated weathermen had prepared what I regarded as truly excellent forecast. It sounded solid and reassuring, with just a bit of poetic lilt. The forecaster obviously had put his heart and soul into it.

LIFE SPAN SHORT

Yet it would have a life span of only an hour or two before being revised.

In my day, weather forecasts were mure durable. A good forecast in those days would last you up to 12 hours, maybe longer. But everything lasted longer then.

Anyway, I got to thinking what a pity it was that weather forecasts had become so transitory and expendable. And it was then that I got this idea for the weather service's centennial celebration.

What have in mind is having President Nixon appoint a panel of distinguished meteorologists to serve as judges in the selection of America's 10 all-time greatest weather forecasts.

TOP FORECASTS

These would be engraved on plaques and hung in the weathermen's Hall of Fame, to be created by act of Congress.

Each December after that, the panel would pick the year's 10 top forecasts, which also would be enshrined in the hall.

In addition, the hall could be used for honoring other outstanding achievements. Let's say, for example, that Charlie McCirrus of the Thunderhead City, Utah, weather bureau, ran up a record of 19 consecutive "partly cloudys and mild with scattered afternoon thudershowers." His bust would be installed in the hall.

Chances are that on 10 of those 19 days there wasn't a cloud in the sky. But that is beside the point. This would be an award for consistency, not accuracy.

Pinpoint forecasting could be honored with the "Silas" award named for Silas Peabow, a South Clods, Vt., dairy farmer and amateur meteorologist, who once broke his leg when he was blown off the barn roof while repairing a weathervane.

The Gourmet Adventures of Jayson's

Remember these tips when you're shopping for fresh vegetables. But in season when quality is high: buy only what you can store properly and use without waste; avoid rough handling. The following are just a few vegetables that are available all year: Peas (peak of season March to June) — should be young, tender, and sweet with light green, slightly velvety pods that are well-filled with peas. Avoid flat color or wilted . . . Squash (most plentiful early fall to late winter.) — should be heavy for its size with a hard, tough rind. Avoid those with cuts, punctures or sunken spots . . . Broccoli — should have firm, compact clusters of small buds. Avoid those with thick stems, opened bud clusters or yellowish color.
Here's a tip you'll really enjoy — for delicious meals and excellent service come to JAYSON'S, 4195 Dixie Highway at Hatchery Rd., Drayton Plains, 673-7900.
