Dock Strike Outlook Brighter

Both Sides See Hope for Early Settlement

150 Cargo Craft Idled; Queen Elizabeth Heads for Canadian Port

NEW YORK (AP) — Optimistic statements by both sides have raised hopes for speedy settlement of the dock strike idling ports from Maine to Virginia.

Spokesmen for union and management emerged from bargaining sessions last night in a more cheerful mood.

"With any reasonableness on the part of the union we can reach a contract tomorrow," said Alexander Chopin, chairman of the New York Shipping Assn., the employers group.

The strike of some 45,000 dockers from Portland, Maine, to Hampton Roads, Va., began Tuesday after an 80-day Taft-Hartley injunction cooling-off period expired.

The strike straitjacketed the New York waterfront, already beset by a tugboat strike now in its 14th day.

By late yesterday the dock walk-out had idled some 150 general cargo craft and some smaller passenger vessels.

The Cunard line diverted its giant liner Queen Elizabeth, originally due here tomorrow, to Halifax, Nova Scotia. Its 1,300 passengers will be brought to New York by train.

Before the strike, the IILA and the employers were in general agreement on a 32-cent hourly wage increase over three years in the basic wage of $2.48 an hour.

ARGUE BENEFITS
A dispute over fringe benefits—such as vacations, holidays, guaranteed working hours and lighter sining loads—is holding up final agreement.

Cargo vessels bear the brunt of a waterfront slump. Longshoremen, with slings and nets, load and unload such ships. Incoming craft, their holds bulging, sit helplessly at dockside or steam to another port to discharge their cargo.

Plenty of Heart in These Valentines

BE MY VALENTINE — That is the thought of second graders at the Webster School as they make cards for a Korean War orphan, Kim Chun Ok, whom the class has "adopted." From left, are Ronald Wood, Bobby Boyce, Elaine Bacow and Marjorie Heininger. Members of class bring nickles and dimes each week to pay for the little girl's support in a Korean orphanage. The project has stimulated the children's interest in foreign countries and has led to many class projects on Korea.

Recover Body of Drowned Girl

Police Find Victim in Rouge River to End Three-Day Search

DETROIT (AP) — Harbormaster police, working under flood lights, recovered the body of 12-year-old Geraldine Gatt from the icy Rouge River last night. Recovery of the body ended a three-day search.

The girl drowned Monday afternoon. Police said an 11-year-old playmate told them he pushed Geraldine into the river after an argument. He said he tried to pull her out but failed.

The boy was held overnight in a juvenile detention home and released to his parents.

Volunteers and skin divers had been searching for the girl's body since late Monday. Ice three to eight inches thick had been removed from 300 feet of the river's surface.

Geraldine and her companions had wandered out on the ice in a search for field mice.

The girl was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gatt. She drowned about 400 yards from her home on Detroit's southwestern city limits.

Kim to Get Her First Valentines

2nd Graders Adopt Korean Tot

Valentine's Day is the traditional time for "Hearts and Flowers," as the romantically inclined declare their sentiments toward the objects of their affections.

Consider then, a little seven-year-old Korean orphan, Kim Chun Ok, whose memories cannot go far enough back to recall her parents, lost in the blazing, bombed out ruins of Seoul.

Little Kim has probably never heard of St. Valentine or the day to which he gave his name, but after today she will. For Kim is receiving 31 valentines—from the pupils in Mrs. Alfred Rothweiler's second grade at Webster School.

These 31 youngsters have a special interest in Kim, for in a sense, they are her "family." Each week the children bring dimes to school and this money, $120 a year, supports Kim in the Wha Sung Babies' Home, on the outskirts of Seoul.

A REWARDING EXPERIENCE
"Adopting" Kim has been a rewarding experience for the class. Not only has it given them a practical lesson in charity, but it has opened up their young minds to a whole world across the sea where youngsters like themselves are growing up under handicaps unknown in America.

The project began last September with Mrs. Rothweiler, who heard of a Detroit class which had adopted a Korean orphan. Mrs. Rothweiler wrote to the Christian Children's Fund, Inc., Richmond, Va., for information and thus was "introduced" to Kim Chun Ok.

She discussed the project at length with her class and, noting their eagerness, decided to go ahead. But first, she wanted approval of the children's parents.

So each child was assigned a project of explaining part of the program to the parents at a meeting. When the mothers and fathers heard from their own youngsters how the class would adopt the orphan, they gave wholehearted consent.

Last Christmas, the class received a pleasant surprise — a Christmas card from Kim. With it came a letter to Mrs. Rothweiler from Kim's teacher. It was written in Korean, but fortunately an English translation was attached. The letter told of the fine progress Kim was making at her school which is located "down the road" from the orphanage.

A letter arrived too, from the Christian Children's Fund with a picture of Kim and the brief story of her background.

BABY BURIED IN RUBBLE
Kim was discovered by a Korean social worker, a Miss Lee, right after a heavy bombing of Seoul. She was leading her own children to safety when she heard a baby crying. Looking about, she found the infant half buried in rubble.

Mrs. Lee cared for Kim during the dark days that followed and finally placed her in the orphanage which was founded with funds from American soldiers and from Christian missionaries.

Now happier days have come for Kim and probably one of the happiest is this St. Valentine's Day when her 31 friends from that strange-sounding place called "Pontiac" in America remember her with cards they have carefully made.

Trims County in White

Old Man Weather Leaves Valentine

The weather man delivered his Valentine early last night, in the shape of the season's second heaviest snowfall.

A blanket of four inches forced the morning rush-hour traffic to a crawl throughout Pontiac and Oakland County. State and Pontiac police, and the sheriff's department, reported numerous non-injury accidents due to slippery conditions.

The outlook is for possibly a mixture of snow and rain tomorrow, with the temperature to hover around the 32 to 36-degree mark. Tonight's mercury reading is predicted to drop to around 16 degrees.

The city department of public works called out extra crews about 11:30 last night. The 30-man team, using 15 trucks, dumped approximately 75 tons of salt on city streets.

A spokesman for the county road commission reported "generally slippery roads throughout, but all passable." Two hundred tons of salt were spread by 30 spreaders, after 50 plows worked all night to clear highways.

HEADACHE TO SHOVELERS

Although the four-inch blanket failed to match the seven inches that covered the Pontiac area Jan. 9 it caused similar headaches to shovelers and motorists.

Local Automobile Club of Michigan service stations reported a rash of calls for wrecker service. Many stalled motorists were forced to wait up to two hours for aid.

Cleared runways at Pontiac Municipal Airport permitted normal service.

State police posts throughout lower Michigan report hazardous driving conditions.

Skiers will welcome a prediction by the Weather Bureau that more snow is headed for upper Michigan.

The low in Pontiac preceding 8 a.m. was 19 degrees. At 1 p.m., the mercury registered 26 degrees.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The father of a 13-year-old boy forfeited his driving privileges for six months rather than have his son believe he could grow up ignoring the law.

Carl Ray Heyser pleaded guilty in Quarterly Court to drunken driving. He was fined $100 and his driver's license suspended for six months.

Defense Attorney Robert Zollinger said Heyser decided to plead guilty when he heard his son say, "My dad is going to beat this charge in court."

Heyser said "I'd rather lose my license and pay a $100 fine than have my boy grow up thinking he can disobey the law."

13 Others Hurt Fleeing Blaze in Council Bluffs

Oldsters Carried Out, Race Past Flames on Crutches, Wheelchairs

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP) — Fire that "all of a sudden" enveloped a three-story rest home killed 14 patients yesterday.

Thirteen other patients and employees needed hospital treatment, with one patient listed today as in critical condition.

Altogether 17 patients, 10 employees and three children of the home manager, Kenneth Patin, were carried from the blazing building, hobbled out on crutches, sped their wheelchairs onto the hilltop lawn of the 71-year-old structure or raced out on foot.

Many of the 13 found dead in the tangled mass of debris died in their beds. The 14th victim died in a hospital.

Firemen who answered the alarm within four or five minutes after it was sounded told in trembling voices of seeing one woman kneeling in prayer in her bed as flames swirled over her.

Firemen could find no survivor who could immediately tell them what started the fire. Today fire officials dug through masses of debris in a search for the cause. The home—in which one person

$300,000 Fire Hits Downtown Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Fire destroyed a four-story building in the Diamond Market section of the downtown business area last night.

Fire Chief Stephen Adley estimated damage at $300,000. About 35 firemen were overcome by smoke. Cause of the fire was not determined.

Flames broke out through the roof. The fourth floor caved in and the area at 3rd and Market streets was showered with sparks.

Iowa State Health Commissioner Edmund C. Zimmerman said that following a Jan. 30 inspection he withheld renewal "pending certain corrections at the home."

MEETS REQUIREMENTS

But the Council Bluffs public service director said he and a Health Department inspector looked over the home last month and it met requirements for fire safety. He said an automatic fire detection system was recently installed.

Most of the victims were helpless invalids, most of them past 60 and some in their 80s and 90s.

Challenge GOP 'New Look'

Hart Lashes Out at Lindemer Vote

A swat at Michigan Republicans' "new look" was taken last night by Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart as keynoter of the Oakland County Democratic convention.

Hart challenged the voting record of Lawrence B. Lindemer, new Republican State Chairman, on fair employment practices legislation.

Saying the GOP's new look has "strange and disturbing angles," Hart maintained that Lindemer's vote in the House of Representatives in 1952 "killed" the FEPC bill.

"Although advertised now as a young liberal," Lindemer voted then with the 46-45 majority against the legislation, Hart charged.

Rep. Walter T. McMahon of Hazel Park bolstered a second charge Hart made about the same occasion. Hart said that 25 Republicans left the chamber "in disgust" as another Republican argued in favor of the bill.

McMahon recalled that Lindemer was among them. McMahon said he was present at the session and heard Lindemer later second a motion to return the bill to committee.

Saying Lindemer "seems to be waving a tarnished sword as he sets out to do battle for what he calls 'Eisenhower-Republicanism,'" Hart said Lindemer should be asked if he is still opposed to (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Businessman Wilson Spends 4 Years in Washington

(The accompanying article is reprinted from U.S. News & World Report, an independent weekly news magazine published at Washington. Copyright 1957 United States News Publishing Corporation.)

WASHINGTON — When Charles E. Wilson came to Washington four years ago to head the Defense Department, he was president of General Motors, the biggest corporation in the world.

Mr. Wilson had a salary that, with bonuses, was bringing him nearly $600,000 a year. He gave that up for a $22,500 annual stipend, to help President Eisenhower apply some business methods to running the Government.

In Washington, the first thing Mr. Wilson ran into was a demand that he sell his General Motors stock. He did so — for an estimated $2,450,000. Then he watched the stock increase in value until, even in today's somewhat depressed market, his holdings would have a value of $4,795,605, or some $2,345,000 more than he is believed to have received for them.

There were other difficulties. Mr. Wilson is a cheerful, friendly man who likes to speak his mind.

He did so, and it sometimes got him into trouble. Not long ago President Eisenhower publicly rebuked him for implying that the National Guard sheltered draft dodgers during the Korean war.

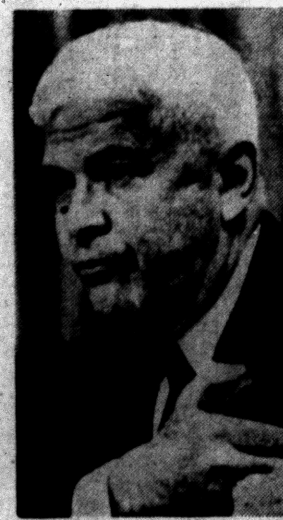

Mr. Wilson found that, in Washington, politics and its pitfalls are always present, must ever be kept in mind.

He learned, too, that business methods are not necessarily applicable to government—profit is not an objective.

As president of General Motors, Mr. Wilson was the boss. Orders were carried out quickly and meticulously. It didn't work that way in Washington. Here he found himself hemmed in by bosses, by people who must not be offended.

The Wilson ideas and projects could be overruled in several places, including the White House, the State Department and Congress. Orders sometimes got lost in the many echelons of the Pentagon and the military services, which presented a defense in depth against important changes.

Now, despite disappointments, Mr. Wilson remains much the same unassuming man who took over in 1953, amiable, cheerful and confident.

SECRETARY WILSON

... A man who speaks his mind, but gets results.

More attention has gone to his occasional controversial statements than to his activities. Nevertheless, he has solid accomplishments behind him. His personal imprint is on the Defense Department and the defense establishment.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Military men say the Secretary has given the Defense Department a better organization, that he has contributed substantially to creating a line of command that is clear and to establishing objectives that are generally understood.

When Mr. Wilson took over, the Korean war was on. Money was no object. The important thing was time, getting production and deliveries from industry.

After the armistice, his job was to reduce production and still keep the national defenses adequate, a task that created endless arguments with Congress.

On account of the Korean war, Defense Department spending stood at $3.7 billion dollars for the fiscal year 1953. Mr. Wilson trimmed that to $4.3 billions in 1954 and $5.5 in 1955. Since (Continued on Page 20 Col. 1)

Quiz Planned on Speed Trap

Prosecutor to Question Waterford Officers on Drivers' Charges

Oakland County Prosecutor Frederick C. Ziem plans a further meeting with Waterford Township police officers, before rendering a conclusion about reports of a "speed trap" for motorists on Dixie Highway.

Ziem said today he intends personally to quiz officers concerning numerous complaints of police irregularities that lead, allegedly, to drivers being ticketed unfairly. No date has been set.

Officers were asked Monday, he said, by Assistant Prosecutor Robert D. Long about complaints made by 64 persons whose names were furnished by a Flint driver, Jack S. Masin, who claims he was wrongfully ticketed twice.

Masin said the complaints were forwarded to him as a result of his public denouncement of township tactics in Flint, where he manages a department store.

Ziem said the investigation was requested by Atty. Gen. Thomas M. Kavanagh, to whom Masin first appealed. His office is trying to track down complaints that can be traced to individual officers, Ziem said.

Main charges include: Officers up the actual speed of cars when ticketing violators; officers wearing civilian clothes while in uniform; officers stopping cars at night to foot drivers; and officers pounce on victims before they have had time to slow down for speed zones.

Police Chief Frank Van Atta, flatly denying the allegations, has stated the crackdown on speeders has saved lives and property and will continue.

Van Atta produced a file of letters from residents, some who admitted receiving tickets, saying they were in favor of the enforcement policy.

FEPC, even after its "excellent" record since 1955.

County Democrats passed resolutions supporting Gov. Williams for the Presidency in 1960 and giving Hart "strong support for whatever high office he may aspire to."

Endorsement was given to two area candidates, Mrs. Irene E. Murphy of Birmingham and William H. Harvie of Lathrup.

Mrs. Murphy, formerly a social welfare administrator in Detroit and a relief administrator in the Philippine Islands seven years, is running for University of Michigan regent.

Harvie, a Southfield Township road contractor, is a candidate for State Highway Commissioner. He was with the Wayne County Road Commission 10 years with the State Highway Department another 10 years.

Another candidate, Lynn M. Bartlett of Grosse Pointe, was endorsed for Superintendent of Public Instruction.

A delegation with 114 votes was selected to attend the state spring convention Feb. 23 in Grand Rapids where candidates for 10 offices and posts will be nominated.

Elected chairman of the delegation and of last night's convention was Thomas C. Holland, secretary of the county committee. Holland, of 38 Elizabeth St., is political action chairman and FEPC, chairman of Rubber Workers Local 125 at Baldwin Rubber Co., where he is a tester.

Holland called on Democrats "to finish the job we started last fall. I'm sure this county can become Democratic soon," he said.

Others who addressed the convention last night were McMahon, Rep. Leslie H. Hudson of Pontiac, former governor Murray D. Van Wagoner and county chairman Carlos D. Richardson.

Van Wagoner asked for support of another State Highway Commissioner candidate if Oakland County delegates decide, as the state convention progresses, to switch from Harvie.

He is T. C. Banagel of Kalamazoo, who also served on the highway department during Van Wagoner's years as commissioner. Van Wagoner said, however, that Harvie is "a very good man for the job."

Harvie said that last night he also gained endorsement from Detroit's 16th Congressional District.

Judge Offers Aids to Better Procedure

Police department heads from all over the county listened to Circuit Court Judge Clark J. Adams' "constructive criticism" yesterday rather than the words of praise usually offered by a guest speaker before an influential group.

Adams spoke at the second meeting of the Oakland County Law Enforcement Association.

He suggested to the police chiefs that their officers prepare more complete and accurate reports, with as many details as possible, to avoid snags in the court procedure of a criminal case. He also advised that "clean arrests," made right at the scene of the misdemeanor, are imperative.

"Incidents have arisen where persons have been convicted in both probate and circuit courts and then have been able to take their case to a court of appeals because of negligence in these two matters," said Adams. "An accurate report and a clean arrest will prevent this sort of thing."

Adams also encouraged the police chiefs to use their influence on attorneys to get their cases tried promptly.

"There is not much you can do legally about this thing," said Adams. "It is up to you to use your influence. A case two years old tends to make poor witnesses out of everybody. It is almost a miscarriage of justice and leans toward bad administration. I know our dockets are overloaded, but let's do all we can to correct the situation."

State Police Commissioner Joseph Childs also appeared as guest at the meeting. He lauded the formation of the newly organized group, saying that occasions such as yesterday's meeting enable problems of law enforcement to come to light. Childs was presented with the association's first honorary membership.

Waterford Police Chief Frank Van Atta, president of the association, appointed legislative, membership, publicity and traffic and safety committees at yesterday's meeting. The next session will be held March 13.

Waterford Township board meeting for Monday night has been postponed until the following Friday at 7:30 p.m., according to supervisor Lloyd Anderson.

The meeting was postponed because of the primary election, Monday.

Poll to Seek Out Traveling Habits of U.S. Tourists

American travel habits are being sought this month by the Bureau of the Census, U. S. Department of Commerce starting Wednesday.

The survey will be conducted in the Detroit and Oakland County area in connection with the monthly Current Population Survey of employment and unemployment which also covers 329 other sections of the country.

The poll will seek to find out: trips taken by members of the household, places visited, distances traveled, length of trip and methods of transportation. The facts, when compiled, will be used in planning and providing travel facilities and accommodations for the American public, according to John E. Tharaldson, acting regional supervisor of the bureau's Detroit field office.

Plans on Way for New Center

Blueprints to Be Handed to Salvation Army in Next Two Weeks

Architectural drawings for Pontiac's proposed Salvation Army Social Service Center at 118 W. Lawrence St., are being completed and should be ready in the next two weeks, according to Major Ernest Alder, assistant manager of the Detroit Service Center.

After plans are completed, advertising for bids will follow, the official said. "Then we'll have some sort of time table on the project," he added.

The firm of Leo J. Heenan, of Pontiac, has been hired as architect.

The Salvation Army bought the former two-story Whitfield, Walter & Dawson wholesale grocery warehouse for $180,000 last July.

A $150,000 remodeling job will provide for an outlet store, garage and shops, and a dormitory to house some 75 to 100 men that seek rehabilitation.

February Brings Coldest Weather of Winter Season

ANN ARBOR (INS)—A University of Michigan astronomer declares that February weather should turn out to be the coldest of the winter season.

Hazel M. Losh, associate professor of Astronomy, said that this is due to the "lag of the season." She explained:

"The atmosphere acts like a blanket and holds back some of the heat that falls on its surface. For some time after the winter solstice (Dec. 21), the northern hemisphere is losing more heat at night than can be replaced effectively by the sun during the shorter-than-average days."

As long as this rate of heating falls below the rate of cooling, the temperature continues to drop. The professor said that during February, also, the days are growing noticeably longer until by the end of the month the sun will be shining for more than 11 hours.

Five Firemen Injured Fighting Detroit Blaze

DETROIT (INS)—A raging five-alarm fire virtually destroyed a plumbing and steamfitter supply company in Detroit yesterday with damage estimated at $600,000.

Five firemen were injured fighting the blaze that gutted the Con-Devisser Co. and caused minor damage to four other structures. Twenty-two firefighters fled the two-story brick building only minutes before the roof collapsed. Thirty-five employees were evacuated from the structure.

Dense smoke from the fire was visible in the downtown area and hundreds of spectators were attracted to the scene. William R. Hutton, Con-Devisser executive vice president who estimated damage, said records of accounts receivable totaling $100,000 also were lost.

Your Income Tax

This is one of a series of articles prepared by the U. S. Internal Revenue Service to help you prepare your Income Tax Return.

FULL-TIME STUDENTS

Do you have a son or daughter that earned $600 or more during the taxable year? Did your son or daughter attend a recognized educational institution for at least 5 months during the year and engage in fulltime study? If so, he or she is a student — regardless of age — and you may claim that child as a dependent — if you furnished more than one-half of their support. This would include board, room, clothing, books, etc.

Night school or correspondence courses are not considered as being full-time study. A scholarship is not considered in determining support.

The student is required to file his own return if he had $600 or more of gross income, even though you claim the exemption deduction.

If your son or daughter was 19 or older — and did not attend school during the year — but had $600 or more of gross income — you cannot claim an exemption.

Boys Identify Youth as Slayer

Pals of Victim Point to Royal Oak Teenager in Detroit Court

Companions of a 14-year-old Wayne boy bludgeoned to death Sept. 4, pointed out Tommie Rollins, 19, of Royal Oak Township, Wednesday as the youth who struck the fatal blow.

The identifications were made in Detroit's Recorder's Court by Donald Rondeau, 16, of Wayne, the victim's brother, and Terry Brand, 14, of Plymouth, an uncle.

They told Judge Gerald Groat and a jury of 13 women and one man that Rollins struck Gerald Rondeau from behind with a tire iron as the boy was walking away.

Rollins, Horace Collier, 18, and Odell Gray, 18, all of Royal Oak Township, are charged with first degree murder.

OFFERED RIDE

The three, and a juvenile companion, offered the boys a ride as they were standing at Woodward and Eight Mile road. When they refused, one of the occupants allegedly jumped out and struck Gerald.

Donald and Terry, the witnesses, told the court they helped Gerald to his feet and across Woodward to a parking lot, where he collapsed. The boys were on their way home from the Michigan State Fair when the assault occurred.

Officers Display Mixed Emotions Over Wives' Unit

Pontiac Police officers have mixed feelings about their wives organizing an auxiliary to the officers' association.

One member has a strong opinion, however, it was shown last night. One too many ballots turned up after the second vote on allowing the formation of the auxiliary.

The first secret ballot ended in a 17-17 deadlock. After the fraud found on the second ballot, it was decided to put the ballot box in the station and let the members drop their votes in later.

Some 38 wives of police officers met last week, elected officers, and decided to ask their husbands if they could back them up in work problems, social events and civic participation.

Also under discussion by the women was campaign plans to inform voters about the April 1 charter amendment putting police officers under civil service, and throwing out the trial board.

Last week some of the officers met with members of the trial board to discuss proposed revisions in the board's operation. An attorney is preparing an opinion for the association concerning the possibility that if civil service is adopted, officers will have to live within the city limits.

It's Our Own Money

Can't See Federal Aid

DETROIT (INS) — A Detroit advertising executive says Americans who apply for government grants are, in effect, bribing themselves with their own money.

Ross Roy, speaking before a luncheon meeting of the downtown Rotary Club yesterday, declared: "There's no such thing as federal aid. It's a distribution of our own money."

Roy said that by applying his theory to the state of Michigan, it would cost taxpayers $150 million to get back $48 million over a four-year period because the state bears a disproportionate share of the federal tax burden.

The Day in Birmingham

Major Crime Trends Up Says Chief Ralph Moxley

BIRMINGHAM — Major crime trends were up-graded in the city last year, according to the annual report of Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley, submitted this week to City Manager Harold K. Schone.

With a 9.7 per cent increase in the overall picture, Moxley cited burglaries as the major jump, with an upswing of 19 per cent. Larcenies also showed an increase, while reported rape and robbery remained static at one.

Auto thefts dropped 39 per cent, Moxley reported.

Although there was a crime increase during the year, cases cleared by arrest increased from 71 to 140 over the previous year.

The juvenile report showed a brighter picture, with an 11 per cent reduction from the 181 juvenile arrests in 1955.

Malicious destruction of property, liquor law violations and carrying concealed weapons were the only three classifications showing 1956 increases, Moxley reported.

He said the one retirement and seven resignations in the department were counterbalanced by the hiring of nine new men.

The one additional man was assigned to parking control to handle increased parking areas which have brought about more restricted parking on streets.

50 Lawmakers Flunk Car Inspection Test

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (U) — Maryland legislators ran their automobiles through an inspection line today to test the effectiveness of a bill to require such inspections annually in Maryland.

All 50 who participated flunked. So did a bunch of other people who decided to test their autos just for the laughs.

Joseph G. G. Robinson, chairman of the Safety Committee of the Baltimore Junior Chamber of Commerce, said of 185 cars tested in the special project, only eight passed.

Fat, Besides Being Unflattering, Is Also Menace to Good Health

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is the fourth in a six-part series about a new concept in weight control—re-education of eating habits instead of tricky diets. Gaynor Maddox, outstanding authority on nutrition, is aided in the following account by Dr. Norman Jolliffe, New York City's nutrition director and author of the best-seller "Reduce and Stay Reduced."

BY GAYNOR MADDOX

NEW YORK (NEA) — Too much fat on the body can be dangerous — especially if you hope to live a long time, according to Dr. Norman Jolliffe, forthright and controversial director of nutrition in New York City's Department of Health.

"Any sound reducing diet should get less than 30 per cent of its calories from fat. Nevertheless, our per capita consumption of fat in the United States is now over 41 per cent of our total calories," he stated.

That high fat consumption may very well explain why obesity has become a national problem and why our deaths from heart afflictions are so disproportionately high, he added.

Jolliffe, a fellow of the American College of Physicians, associate professor of nutrition at Columbia University and formerly on the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council, is one of an increasing number of leading American scientists who believe obesity and over-consumption of fats constitute our No. 1 health problem.

They do not necessarily recommend a low fat diet, but they positively do recommend a diet not too high in fat.

In order of increasing importance, Jolliffe listed his compelling reasons for recommending a diet not too high in fat.

1. Butter, margarine, cooking fats and table spreads in general use are so high in calories that careless use of them can lead to a pound of extra weight in a short time.

2. Fat calories from these foods are mostly "empty" calories. They do not supply their share of essential nutrients. Butter makes only a very minor contribution in vitamin A, margarine in A and D. Cooking fats and table spreads are devoid of these nutrients, all of which can be much better obtained in other foods. When a person eats large amounts of these "empty" calories, he becomes either obese or gets insufficient amounts of amino-acids, vitamins and minerals to constitute a balanced, adequate diet.

3. His most compelling reason: No prudent person can ignore the evidence that high fat diets are associated with a high prevalence of atherosclerosis—the cause of coronary thrombosis.

In the United States, which has the highest fat consumption in the world, more men between the ages of 45 and 65 are afflicted with coronary thrombosis than in any other country in the world.

"Certainly, the high-fat diet now used by most Americans must be changed to one of 30 per cent or less of total calories from fat if the national waistline and life span is to be improved.

"A sizable fraction of those calories should come from marine and unprocessed vegetable sources (not butter, margarine, etc., the so-called 'hard' fats, but from the liquid, unprocessed fats such as oils from soybeans, corn, peanuts and olives)."

He advised further the restriction of fat milk consumption, such as whole milk, condensed and evaporated, to use in coffee and on cereal.

"Don't think you are committing an unpardonable nutritional sin by cutting down on milk," he added. "No single food is absolutely necessary.

"Many more people are living in good health who haven't tasted milk since childhood than there are those who regularly use two glasses of it daily," he explained.

In his office, proofs of the second and revised edition of his best-selling guide to the overweight, "Reduce and Stay Reduced," covered his desk. He is a man of action, in his early fifties, slender, amiably pugnacious and enjoys his family and social life.

But he cautions the social drinker, particularly if he is overweight. "Let's face it. Hard liquor—whisky, gin, brandy, rum—averages about 100 calories to the ounce. The usual drink therefore adds about 150 calories to your daily total. That's about the same number contained in more than two slices of bread," he pointed out.

"Now this is what happens to the man or woman who likes a few drinks before dinner. Either he cuts down on food he would have eaten otherwise, thereby keeping his calorie intake as it should be.

"But this cutting down on food may result in an inadequate intake of essential nutrients and cause a deficiency disease. Or on the other hand, the alcohol may stimulate his appetite and increase his consumption of food calories, thereby adding to his obesity."

ADVICE TO USE

Before I left his busy office, he put his best advice to the overweight into capsule form:

Never, but never, eat beyond satiety.

Never, but never, go back to your old eating habits.

Never, but never, go back to a high fat diet.

He stood up briskly, took two pages from the forthcoming edition of his book and thrust them into my hand. "Here are two diet patterns, one for men, 1,500 calories, the other for women, 1,200 calories.

"On them, they will take off weight and stay well. If the woman is unusually large, tell her to use the man's diet.

"If the man is small, he should use the woman's diet. In any case, say my greeting for 1957 is this — enjoy it in good health."

Award Girl $30,000 for Damage to Vision

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A District Court jury yesterday awarded a 16-year-old school girl $30,000 damages for an eye injury caused last year by a flying blackboard eraser in a classroom.

The girl, Patricia Ann Burge, a music student, had sought $48,500 from six boys who she said had been tossing the erasers while the teacher was out of the room. A doctor testified the girl lost 80 per cent of the vision in the right eye which cannot be corrected with glasses.

Fear Records Lost in Blaze

Books Thought Burned in Spectacular Fire at Detroit Firm

DETROIT (AP)—Officials of the Coon-Devisser Co. said today they feared valuable records were lost in the spectacular blaze that virtually destroyed the distributing firm yesterday.

Three persons were injured and five buildings damaged in the half a million dollar fire.

Twenty-two pieces of equipment and 125 firemen were called to quell the blaze.

Dense smoke, billowing high into the sky, attracted thousands of spectators.

The building is located on Detroit's near west side, not far from the entrance to the Ambassador Bridge.

The company is a distributor of plumbing supplies, heating and ventilating equipment. The 40-year-old frame and brick building houses offices and warehouses. Three companies have facilities in the building.

Fire Chief E. J. Blohm who estimated damage said the fire broke out in a storage balcony about 60 feet from the building entrance. The fire fed on cardboard boxes containing paper-wrapped insulation material, he said.

More than 30 employees, including 15 women, fled the building. The fire struck minutes after the Coon-Devisser books had been audited. W. R. Hutton, executive vice president, said he feared most of the company's records had been destroyed.

DETROIT (AP)—Today is "Roger Valentine Day" in suburban Dearborn.

The 2½-year-old boy is dying of leukemia, a blood disease.

His father James Valentine, a postman, said he used to write letters to the boy, who lives to receive mail.

A Detroit newspaper, telling of the child's condition, printed the parents' wish that Roger could be showered with letters.

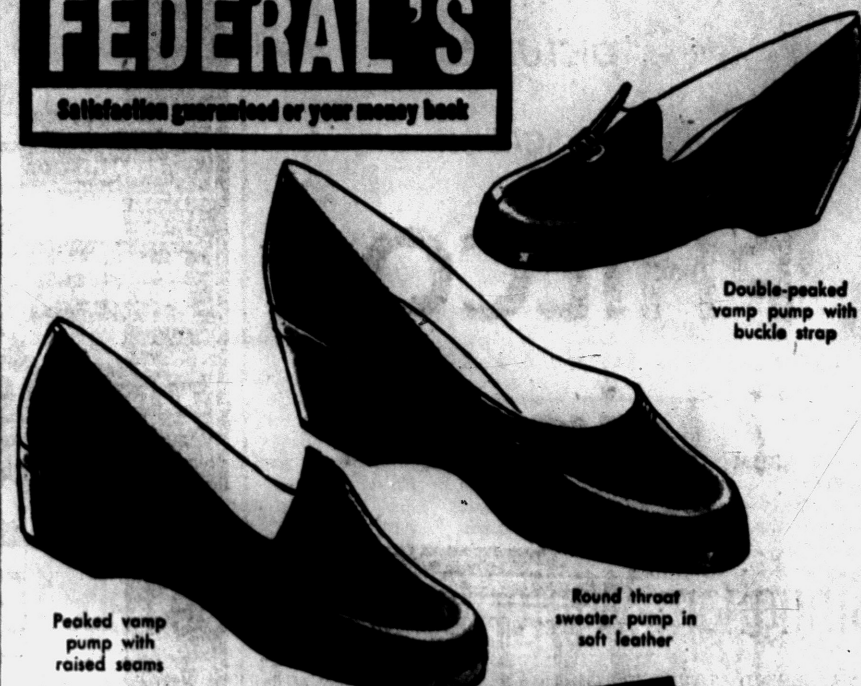

On hand are some 10,000 cards and letters wishing Roger a "happy St. Valentine's Day."

Security for You

Job or Remarriage Can Affect Eligibility

It was just another ordinary day in 1955 for the manager of the Waukegan, Ill., Social Security office until the lady visitor leaned over and whispered in his ear: "I've got a confession to make." Then, in hushed tones, she unfolded her story.

She and her three children had been getting Social Security checks since the early '40's following the death of her husband.

But, she'd neglected to report that she had gone back to work in September, 1944, and had remarried in April, 1946.

Before the office manager could tell her that she should have asked to have the checks reduced when she went back to work or, at least, when she remarried, she ended her story and said she'd see him tomorrow.

The next day she was back, a brown paper bag in her hand. In the bag were 119 checks which she'd carefully saved since September, 1944.

By the time the office manager had finished tabulating the checks, he had assured the lady that no drastic measures would be taken to penalize her. She left smiling and relieved without explaining why she saved the checks.

Despite the happy ending, the story has a serious moral:

You have a legal obligation to tell your Social Security office of any changes in your status which may affect any payments you're getting. If you don't do so, you may not only have to pay back all the money you wrongfully collected, but you may have to pay a penalty. In extreme cases, you may have to go to court, be fined or, perhaps, sent to jail.

One change in your status which frequently affects your right to Social Security payments: Marriage. For example: Suppose you've been getting payments as a 64-year-old widow and you remarry. If your payments are based on your dead husband's Social Security record, your remarriage automatically makes you ineligible to continue to get the payments. Thus, you're required to tell your Social Security office that you've remarried.

Going back to work also may affect your right to Social Security payments. In general, if you earn more than $1,220 a year you're not eligible to all the monthly payments for that year and you should get in touch with your Social Security office if you reach that limit. Also, if someone in your family dies who's been receiving Security payments, the Social Security people should be told so that the payments can be stopped.

If you start receiving disability payments after July 1 from the Social Security Administration and, later, your disability is relieved, you are required to let the Social Security people know.

For children receiving payments due to the work record of a parent, the time to tell the Social Security office is when they reach 18 or marry, whichever comes first. The office must also be told if a child getting payments starts earning more than $1,200 a year.

One good rule: If you're in doubt about your eligibility to payments, let the Social Security office know about your doubts.

(You may write Ray Henry in care of this newspaper, about your own Social Security or retirement problem. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin.)

Draft Road Proposal for April 1 Ballot at Commerce

Resolution Is OK'd by Board

Commerce Business Men Meeting Weekly to Aid Community

COMMERCE TOWNSHIP — A proposal calling for improvement of roads in Commerce Township is now being drawn up by a Detroit attorney and will be on the April 1 ballot.

The Commerce Township Board did not receive the proposal from its hired attorney in time for discussion at its regular monthly meeting held last night in the Township Hall.

The board has already approved a resolution to place the issue before the voters. Exact wording and details of the proposal will not be known until the board receives complete legal advice.

The proposal, if approved, will involve a tax increase.

A proposed program for road improvement is the end result of a considerable amount of research work conducted by the Commerce Township Road Study Committee, headed by Ewald E. Schaffer.

The newly organized Commerce Commercial Committee, comprised of businessmen in the Commerce area, will meet at 1 p.m. each Thursday here at the main fire station.

The committee received permission last night from the Commerce Township Board to hold its weekly meetings in the main fire hall. Representatives of the committee made their request at the board's monthly meeting held in the township hall.

Dr. Andrew H. Berry, who was instrumental in organizing the Commerce businessmen, revealed that the committee's main purpose is to promote community spirit.

Other functions of the committee will be to solve common problems and to promote consolidated advertising in newspapers. Each Thursday meeting will consist of a luncheon and business discussion.

Council Seats Remain Open

See Three Positions With Deadline Near in Lathrup City

LATHRUP — There is no indication to date as to who will file for the three City Council seats in the April 1 election here.

Councilmen Richard N. Cogger and Frederick O. Johnson are expected to file for re-election. Administrator Leonard A. Watchowski has said.

Watchowski said the only other name mentioned so far in speculation is that of Clubwoman, Mrs. Dorothy Zetell.

Deadline for filing petitions is Monday.

Councilwoman Kathryn Feyerisen, whose term would have expired this spring resigned Jan. 7.

The resignation climaxed efforts by Miss Feyerisen and Mayor John G. Campbell to oust Watchowski when the council split last summer in argument over Lathrup's "volunteer" policy force.

Cogger and Johnson sided with a council majority that backed Watchowski in the face of criticism by Campbell and Miss Feyerisen.

San Francisco Pioneers in Low-Cost Project

Housing Planned for Senior Citizens

SAN FRANCISCO (INS) — During World War II and the immediate postwar years it was persons with children who were most likely to encounter the "No Vacancy" sign on any housing that would fit their needs and their purse.

Now it is the aged, the persons seeking small but cheerful accommodations at a price to fit their pension-dictated budgets, who are experiencing the most trouble renting apartments.

A major break for these "senior citizens" has just occurred in San Francisco where the city's housing authority has given its go ahead to the $3,000,000 Yerba Buena Annex designed to provide the elderly with homes befitting their needs and their finances.

The low-rental project, which John W. Beard, executive director of the housing authority expects to have completed in two years, will be one of the first in the nation. He expects no trouble whatsoever in finding tenants since San Francisco Chamber of Commerce figures show that 1 in 10 in the city is over 65.

The average rental will be about $42 a month with utilities and garbage disposal.

MORE FACILITIES
 There will be these additional facilities:
 Elevator service, the complete elimination of stairs with ramps used instead; hand rails in the bathrooms; non-skid floors; electric cooking to minimize possibility of accidents, and a large senior recreation center, the first of its kind in the west.

"It might actually be the first of its kind in the nation," Beard said. "It will be run by the Park and Recreation Department of the city, will have rooms for reading and parlor games; space for mild outdoor activity; lecture rooms and space for hobbies. There will also be space for a doctor's office and for the Department of Public Health office."

"The entire project will have ample space and be housed in a separate building. In addition to the project, it will also serve other senior citizens in the surrounding community."

The housing development, which will cover a full city block, will have some 20 studio apartments but the majority will be one-bedroom size.

There will also be certain apartments set apart for families with young children, since a study of housing for older persons has shown that they like to have children in the neighborhood.

Older persons will be given preference for occupancy of the majority of the units, however.

During the business meeting members voted to send a teacher to the Conservation Training School to be held July 14-Aug. 24 at Higgins Lake.

The group also went on record as favoring the use stamp for entry to Michigan state parks, to help finance the upkeep.

Mrs. Tubbs, president, appointed Mrs. C. O. Sloan and Mrs. G. H. Lasley to assist in forming a junior garden club.

Godmother Negligent About Duty

Fails to Send Gift or Card on Child's First Birthday

By EMILY POST
 A reader explains: "Four years ago close friends of ours asked my husband and me to be godparents for their child. We have remembered this child ever since at Christmas and birthdays with very nice presents."

"When our son was born we asked the wife of the couple to be his godmother. Our son was a year old recently and his godmother not even as much as sent him a card."

"I was very much put out over this in view of the fact that we have been very generous to their child. Under the circumstances, don't you think we would be entirely right to discontinue our present-giving to their child?"

Answer: I certainly do unless they are in very straitened circumstances and you are very well off.

"Dear Mrs. Post: Is it rude, or in bad taste, to leave plastic coverings on furniture, such as living room sofa and chairs, when entertaining guests—especially when they are expected and there would be time to remove them? This may seem a rather far-fetched point of etiquette, but it has caused much criticism and I would appreciate your opinion."

Answer: It is not rude to leave them on, but it shows indifference to the beauty of your home. I would say that keeping the plastic covers on the furniture is very much the same as keeping on a house apron when expecting guests.

"Dear Mrs. Post: When brick ice cream is in individual paper wrappers, is it proper to leave the wrapper on when serving it to the guests, or should it be removed before serving? At a recent dinner party the hostess left the paper wrappers on and I wondered if this was correct?"

Answer: Wrappers should be removed before serving ice cream.

Washington Wives Have Inauguration

Mrs. Williams of Delaware Directs Bipartisan Club

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON — Wives of congressmen had an inauguration of their own to launch the opening of the new Congressional Club year, but the fact that the new President is a Republican had nothing to do with party politics. It's a club rule that the office alternate between the two major parties.

Mrs. John J. Williams, wife of the Republican senator from Delaware, elected to the two-year term, succeeds a Democrat, Mrs. Omar Burleson, wife of the congressman from Texas.

Members of the new board are representative of both parties from all parts of the United States.

Mrs. Williams, a handsome and friendly woman, has been active in the club since 1947 when her husband, the wealthy owner of a grain and poultry business, was first elected to the Senate.

The Williamses met at a dance in their home town of Millsboro, Del., and were married in 1924. They live in a 12-room white clapboard house to which they commute by motor from Washington every few weeks while Congress is in session.

OTHER HOMES
In the capital they maintain an apartment at the Mayflower Hotel. They have a summer home at Rehoboth Beach, Del. Their daughter, Blanche, is married to J. R. Baker Jr., of Millsboro, and has three little girls, Janet, 11, Lora, 8, and Holly, 5.

Mrs. Williams collects dolls and now has more than 200, mostly foreign ones picked up on travels.

Mrs. John J. Williams, wife of the Republican senator from Delaware, is the new president of the Congressional Club, made up of wives of Congress members.

in Europe and South and Central America.

Pat Nixon, wife of the vice president and head of the Senate Ladies' Club, recently gave her a doll she brought back from Korea.

As a senator's wife, Mrs. Williams has had to cut down some of her activities, but she still finds time to keep up the weekly column on her Washington activities she has been writing for eight years for the Wilmington Morning News.

Right now, the new club president is deep in program plans for the next two years, including the 1958 golden jubilee celebration of the club.

SPECIAL EVENTS
Among this year's special events will be a reception for President and Mrs. Eisenhower, a reception for the chief justice, a spring "brunch" for Mamie Eisenhower and a Founders' Day luncheon.

Other new officers of the club include the wife of Sen. Wallace F. Bennett (R-Utah) and the wives of Reps. Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark), Michael Feighan (D-Ohio), Walt Horan (R-Wash.), L. H. Fountain (D-NC), J. Arthur Younger (R-Calif.), Paul C. Jones (D-MO) and Clifford G. McIntire (R-Maine).

The twentieth anniversary of the Dorcas Guild of Central Christian Church was celebrated Wednesday in Friendship Hall with a luncheon and program.

Tables were decorated in the Valentine motif and centered with large birthday cakes.

The invocation was given by the Rev. G. W. Gibson and devotions were presented by Mrs. Gibson. Mrs. J. H. Moon and Mrs. Roy Riley gave a skit depicting the history of the Dorcas Guild.

Mrs. Nora Willis, president, welcomed the guests and Mrs. Leonard Carter, Mrs. Maggie Bailey and Mrs. Florence Rich were hostesses. Members quilted and sewed cancer pads following the program.

Everybody Has Creative Talents

By ANNE HEYWOOD
Anything that can be done, can be done creatively. People forget that. They tend to think of poetry, art and literature as being "creative" and everything else as just ordinary.

But a creative artist can exist at any level and can work with any materials. It lies entirely within the person.

Moreover, any of us can decide to become creative. If we want to. It requires a change in point of view, not a change in environment or talents.

Sue is a case in point. Sue went to college and had a good time but didn't work any more than was absolutely necessary. Then she married and raised a family, all now married themselves.

Through the 15 years that I've known her, Sue has been complaining about her lack of creative ability.

She had no talent, she had no time, no opportunity. Finally, I got sick of listening to her and told her so.

END OF FRIENDSHIP
For a while, it looked like the end of our friendship. She disappeared and I saw nothing of her.

But last week a very interesting thing happened. Sue called and asked me over to her house.

I hardly recognized the place—it was like an enchanted bower. Sue had built shelves all around and had them filled with the most attractive and healthiest-looking house plants I have ever seen. Sue herself was glowing.

"I read an interesting book," she said, "which pointed out that spark. It said we should stop looking for it and just start doing something that interests us."

"I've always loved plants and had a green thumb, and meant to do something about it—when I had time. But I suddenly realized that I'd never have any more time than I have right now."

AWARE OF WORLD
"So I got started. And it's been such fun! It has made me happier and more aware of the world around me. I really feel like a creative type, believe it or not!"

And that, although Sue may not know it now, is only the beginning. Once we unleash the creative instinct within us, it goes to work in every area of our lives.

We get healthier, more popular, wealthier—better off in every way. It doesn't matter in what area our creative instinct lies—the important thing is that we develop it.

Sometimes, as in Sue's case, a philosophical concept will be the thing that triggers it.

If you feel stymied and at a loss and totally "uncreative," send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I'll send you my recommended list of books on philosophy. You may, within one of them, find the words that will trigger your own creative instinct. (Copyright 1957)

Upsets Scramble League Races

By BILL CORNWELL
Some crazy things can happen during a basketball season and this one is certainly no exception. Take the Oakland County area prep leagues, for example.

When the 1956-57 season began, anticipated conference power immediately established themselves as clear-cut favorites. Their roads to the title seemed paved with roses.

Even at the midway point there was no drastic change in the picture. Then a chain of lightning-fast events jumbled the championship scene completely.

This is especially true in the case of the Oakland B and Wayne-Oakland leagues as the campaign enters its final stages.

Troy quickly established itself as the team to beat in the Oakland B loop by mowing down everything in sight—at home. But when the Colts took to the road, they were rudely jolted by Avondale and Fitzgerald.

The revitalized Jackets, after a miserable start, now find themselves tied with Troy for the lead.

Avondale can't let up now or the long, uphill struggle to catch the Colts will be wasted. The Jackets clash with a dangerous Lake Orion quintet Friday night at Orion while Troy is entertaining Clawson.

Northville, an expected Wayne-Oakland stronghold, is still setting the pace. But the Mustangs have also suddenly hit stormy weather.

Holly scrambled the situation by dumping the Mustangs Tuesday and permitting "dark horse"

Clarkston to become a definite title contender.

Clarkston's big chance arrives tomorrow night when the runner-up Wolves, trailing Northville by only one game, collide with the Mustangs on the Clarkston court. A co-championship is at stake for the Wolves.

The Inter-Lakes Conference appears headed for a two-way split of honors unless strong Farmington assumes the role of "spoiler" by upending either Walled Lake or Berkley, the co-leaders.

Berkley and the Vikings have lost one apiece to each other. The Bears go to Farmington tomorrow while Walled Lake invades the Falcon nest a week hence.

East Detroit looks a cinch to win the Eastern Michigan League crown, but Ferndale could jump back into contention by beating the Shamrocks Friday at Ferndale.

Pontiac's drive for the Saginaw Valley title is not yet secure and Almont is not safely through the woods in the Southern Thumb circuit.

Only the Suburban Catholic and South Central races are decided. The SCL campaign is finished and Highland Park St. Benedict owns the trophy. Powerful Imlay City has already clinched the South Central diadem.

STRIKE HELPS HERE—Using a pin to simulate a bat and a bowling ball, Nellie Fox shows the photographer how big a baseball looks to him when hitting for the Chicago White Sox. The second baseman is the proprietor of a kidding establishment at Chambersburg, Pa. He's in the groove here, too.

Bruins in Tie for 2nd

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Detroit Red Wings, who not too long ago were considered a shoo-in for the National Hockey League title, today faced a double barreled threat from the Montreal Canadiens and the Boston Bruins.

The Bruins, undefeated in their last four games and beaten only twice in their last 10 outings, moved into a second place tie with the Canadiens last night by playing a 2-2 tie with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Bruins and Canadiens each have 64 points, four less than the Wings. But Detroit has the advantage in that it has played two less games than Boston and one less than Montreal.

The deadlock also lifted the Leafs, who have only five ties to show on the credit side for their last nine games, within one point of the fourth place New York Rangers, who are at Detroit tonight.

Don McKenney gave Boston a 1-0 at 3:27 of the first period but Tim Horton tied it up near the 16-minute mark. Vic Stasiuk came right back with the Bruins' second goal. Then midway through the second period George Armstrong brought Toronto even again and that was all of the scoring.

BOUGHTON — June Turner of the Michigan State News established a first at Michigan Tech's Dee Stadium over the weekend. She became the first woman in the stadium's 55-year-old history to sit in the press box.

Miss Turner cover's hockey for the Michigan State University Daily.

The lady sportswriter however, had little to be enthusiastic about as MSU lost 5-3 and 6-2 to Tech's huskies.

One 'Yes' Needed to OK Big 10 Code

CHICAGO — An affirmative vote by either Indiana or Northwestern apparently is all that is needed for adoption of the Big Ten's athletic financial aid program.

A majority vote will be required to carry it when faculty representatives and athletic directors have a special meeting in Chicago Feb. 22.

The unofficial count favors it by 5-3. Purdue yesterday officially joined Illinois, Michigan, Michigan State and Wisconsin in favoring the plan. Iowa and Minnesota have reaffirmed negative votes expressed when the new code was presented for conference action last December.

Northwestern is expected to vote on the matter next Monday or Tuesday. It voted "yes" in December.

Indiana voted "no" previously, as did Ohio State. Dick Larkins, Ohio State athletic director, refused to disclose his school's position on the matter but said that it was decided at a meeting of the athletic board Feb. 8.

"There's a chance Indiana may not make a decision until the meeting Feb. 22," said Frank Allen, Hoosier athletic director.

"There is a possibility that Indiana's faculty representative, Prof. John F. Moe, will be sent to Chicago with an open mind."

If both Indiana and Northwestern vote "no" the resulting 5-5 tie would kill the legislation which took nearly three years and study by a succession of special committees to develop.

The proposed code would permit a Big Ten university to grant financial aid to an athlete based on actual need determined by a set formula.

The new rule would apply only to freshmen entering next September and would not affect students now attending Big Ten universities.

"We know this plan will work," said Dean V. C. Freeman, Purdue's faculty representative. "We've been following a similar system at Purdue for years, for all students, not just for athletes."

Mixed Foursome in Second Round

Quast, Brown Battle Hoenig-Riley Tandem in Match Play

BOCA RATON, Fla. (P) — Don Hoenig of Wethersfield, Conn., and Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., meet Ann Quast of Marysville, Wash., and J. Walcott Brown of Manassquan, N.J., today in the top duel of the National mixed foursomes golf tournament's second round of match play.

Miss Quast, defending champion, and Brown defeated W. B. Merry and Ellen Gery, both of West Palm Beach, Fla., 6 and 5 without difficulty yesterday. Their opponents today eliminated Jack Cendoya and Lourdes Mestries, Cuban champions, 7 and 6.

Ann Richardson of Columbus, Ohio, and co-medalist Jack Penrod of Miami Beach are pitted against Judd Brumley of Greenville, Tenn., and Judy Bell of Wichita, Kan.

The Richardson-Penrose team disposed Robert Chandler of Washington, D.C., and Jerome Miller of Stamford, Conn., 6 and 5. Brumley and Miss Bell defeated Dave Smith, Winston-Salem, N.C., and Marge Burns, Greensboro, N.C., 3 and 2.
