Six Drown in County Lakes Over Weekend

Lansing Areas Hit by Racial Violence

LANSING (AP) — Negro youths, incited by friction with white teen-agers, roamed through sections of Lansing early today in gangs as large as 30, smashing store windows and hurling bricks and rocks at passing automobiles.

Helmeted city police bearing shotguns, bayonets and ax handles brought the racial flare-up under control about three hours after it started.

Four policemen were injured by glass splinters and an undetermined number of motorists were treated at local hospitals for similar injuries.

Lansing police said the disturbance apparently was caused by friction between Negroes and white youths driving cars along the city's main thoroughfare, Washington Ave.

★ ★ ★

Four persons—three Negroes and one white—were arrested on charges which included carrying concealed weapons, inciting a riot, and looting.

WHITE YOUTHS

Police Sgt. Curtis Wash said the trouble was touched off by a group of white youths who assembled around 9:30 last night at a spot on Washington Ave. frequented by teen-agers on motorcycles and in cars.

Wash said the white youths "were cruising for trouble."

"We kept them broken up and moving," Wash said, "but news got to the west side (the Negro section), and Negro groups started over there."

Wash said the trouble began brewing Saturday night when there was what he called "a rumble" between Negroes and whites at a local bar.

Lansing Mayor Max Murningham cut short a vacation in northern Michigan to return here and tour the trouble spot.

ENTIRE FORCE

The entire Lansing police force was called out to maintain order. They were assisted by campus police from Michigan State University in nearby East Lansing, the Ingham County Sheriff's office, and Mason City police.

Michigan state police were placed on standby alert but were not called in.

Rocks and Jeers

Marchers Are Harassed

CHICAGO (AP) — Some 1,500 civil rights demonstrators marched through a crowd of some 2,000 jeering, rock-throwing whites yesterday in an all-white neighborhood on Chicago's Northwest Eide.

Solid walls of police protected the integrated band of marchers as they took their demands for open housing back to the streets of the Cragin section of Chicago for the third time.

It was the largest protest group to march since demonstrations calling for open housing began in white neighborhoods 10 days ago.

Intense hostility flared in the first half hour of the march. Firecrackers exploded at the feet of policemen. Rocks and bottles rained on the marchers

★ ★ ★

Police squadrons charged the hecklers. Several white persons who refused to obey police and fought back were clubbed and thrown into police vans.

FIRES SHOTS

A policeman fired several times above the heads of the mob.

Then a summer rainstorm took the edge off the violence.

The marchers trudged on in the rain, trailed by bands of hooting white teen-agers.

★ ★ ★

They stopped twice in the rain, for brief prayer vigils in front of two churches — one Lutheran, the other Roman Catholic.

PRIEST'S PRAYERS

One of the marchers, a Catholic priest, stood on the steps of St. Genevieve's Roman Catholic Church and said: "We pray we shall be forgiven for the hardness of heart that causes some of us to treat other individuals as less than persons and that leads some of us to prefer prejudice and dollars to love and justice.

"Forgive those, we pray, who break the city law in refusing to rent and sell housing to all men."

As the marchers left the church, white teen-agers screamed: "White power! Kill the niggers!".

★ ★ ★

By the end of the nearly four miles of march, 21 white hecklers had been arrested and dozens were injured.

WALLACE BOOSTED

"God bless white bigots," read the slogan on one of dozens of signs that greeted the civil rights demonstrators.

Others boosted the causes of Gov. George C. Wallace of Man Is Killed in Robbery of Texas Bank

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A gunman who held up the Inwood National Bank in northwest Dallas today shot and killed a man who attempted to halt the robbery.

The victim was identified as Herman Nachman, 43, an employe of Miracle Ford Co.

Witnesses said that when the sack containing the money broke, Nachman and two others in the bank tried to overpower the gunman as he bent down to scoop up the money.

Nachman was shot once in the back.

During the struggle, the bandit's shirt was ripped off. Witnesses said he had the initials "JB" tattooed on one arm.

UNDETERMINED AMOUNT

The gunman fled with an undetermined amount of money into an apartment area behind the bank.

Police began an intensive search of the area for a white man described as being about 30, weighing about 165 or 170 pounds with black hair.

Police said he was armed with a pistol.

Pact Is Signed

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Air crews of the Israeli national airline El Al yesterday signed a nine-month contract after yielding in some of their demands concerning pensions and length of the pact.

GIs Battle North Viet Regulars

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — American troops regained battle contact with North Vietnamese regulars today in the massive allied sweep in the central highlands called Operation Paul Revere.

★ ★ ★

A company of about 150 men of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Airmobile Division ran into about 500 of Hanoi's troops in the Ia Drang Valley and, surrounded on three sides, called in artillery shells and napalm strikes that put the enemy to flight. Cavalry units pursued them.

The cavalry company killed nine Communists and captured five in a preliminary brush of the battle, about 200 miles north of Saigon.

A spokesman said the company's casualties were moderate. There was no specific accounting of the dead and wounded.

About 15,000 American, South Vietnamese and Korean troops are engaged in the operation. The North Vietnamese had pulled back after heavy fighting in the first three days of last week.

FIREFIGHT

U.S. 1st Infantry Division soldiers killed five Viet Cong in a firefight near Phuoc Vinh, but saw an Air Force Phantom jet crash and burn after a strafing run in their support. Both the Phantom's crewmen were killed.

The action developed about 35 miles north of Saigon. The Phantom was the 120th fixed-wing aircraft lost in combat over South Viet Nam.

The U.S. Command announced American pilots encountered a near-record 24 Soviet-built missiles over North Viet Nam yesterday, when seven U.S. planes were shot down. It was the heaviest loss in a single day of the air war.

Under the command's revised information policy, a spokesman refused to say whether any of the planes were hit by surface-to-air missiles. He said only that they were lost to ground fire rather than to enemy planes.

Lawrence A. O'Brien

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's top political strategist is urging Democratic congressional candidates to campaign this fall in full support of the President's Viet Nam policy.

"In the coldest political terms," Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien said, "I've told these candidates the strongest political position they could be in is to support the administration's policy in South Viet Nam.

"I think the President is in damned good shape in the country," he added in an interview with the Associated Press. "In some areas he's stronger than in 1964.

"And I'm convinced from the polls and conversations around the country that the overwhelming number of Americans don't feel we should turn tail and walk out of Viet Nam."

O'Brien — chief organizer of John F. Kennedy's 1960 campaign for the presidency — has made some two dozen appearances in the districts of congressional candidates facing the toughest races this fall.

DETAILED REPORT

He keeps a detailed report on the races in every state. And while it's too early to predict in detail the outcome of the off-year election, O'Brien said he is not as concerned as some Democrats over the fate of the wave of young Democratic congressmen swept into office in Johnson's 1964 landslide victory over Barry Goldwater.

"Anybody who knows me knows I'm a pessimist," O'Brien said, relaxing on a sofa in his vast, dark paneled Post Office Department office. "But I'm cautiously optimistic that we'll do reasonably well in November. I'm sure the Republican party will not be able to point to any significant victory."

★ ★ ★

"We have unusual margins of about 2 to 1 in both House and Senate and in the governorships across the nation. Democratic registration, however, does not hold that margin over Republican registration.

'IN' PARTY

"Couple that with the historic record: The 'in' party suffers losses in an off-year nonpresidential election. These are the minuses working against us and would lead one to expect

Five Men, Boy Die in Separate Area Mishaps

Sheriff Calls String of Water Deaths the Worst in 12 Years

Five men and a 12-year-old boy drowned in six separate swimming accidents on Pontiac area lakes this weekend.

Oakland County Sheriff Frank W. Irons described the string of deaths as "the worst weekend of water fatalities" in the 12 years he has headed the sheriff's department.

Dead are:

Mervin Millen, 28, and his twin brother, Marvin Millen, both of 29½ Washington, Oxford.

Daniel Phillips, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Phillips of St. Clair Shores;

Fred Preston, 43, of 5505 Clinton River, Waterford Township;

★ ★ ★

William McClain, 42, of 2590 North, Highland Township.

BREAKS NECK

In addition, a Detroit man is in fair condition with a broken neck suffered when he dove from a Union Lake dock.

The bodies of the Millen brothers were recovered by divers late last night in about 30 feet of water at Stoney Lake in Oxford Township.

The wife of one of the victims told deputies the men had decided to go swimming about 9 p.m. after spending most of yesterday at the township park bordering the lake.

One of the brothers began gasping about 80 feet from shore, according to witnesses, and within minutes both men had disappeared.

DEAD ON ARRIVAL

Each was dead when taken from the waters of the lake about two hours after sinking beneath the surface.

The Phillips boy was dead on arrival at Avon Center Hospital after Romeo State Police pulled him from Cranberry Lake in Oakland Township about 7:30 last night.

Three companions told police the youth dove into about five feet of water at the end of a dock while playing, but failed to come to the surface.

Preston's body was dragged from two feet of water in Union Lake yesterday afternoon after witnesses said he dove headfirst from a dock into shallow water.

He was given oxygen by Union Lake firemen at the scene at the east end of the lake, but was dead on arrival at Pontiac General Hospital.

An autopsy was scheduled after a coroner indicated the victim may have suffered a broken neck in diving from the dock.

Field, who deputies were told suffered from a "blood disease," drowned yesterday morning when he slipped backwards from a raft on Cass Lake.

★ ★ ★

Witnesses said Field, a "strong swimmer," was climbing on the raft when he apparently suffered an "attack" and fell backwards.

7-HOUR SEARCH

His body was recovered about an hour later. An autopsy was to be performed today.

McClain was found by sheriff's divers shortly before 2 p.m. Saturday after a seven-hour search at Rowe Lake northwest of Milford.

He was last seen 200 feet from the shore of the lake Friday night, apparently swimming toward a sandbar. An autopsy

2 Teens Found Slain; Girl Said 3rd Victim

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) —within a week occurring less than a week after campus sniper Charles J. Whitman killed or fatally wounded 16 at the University of Texas in Austin. Whitman was killed by policemen.

Two teen-age cousins were found shot to death and stuffed into the trunk of a car near Fort Worth Sunday, and police pressed a search today for a 16-year-old girlfriend of one of the boys.

EDNA SULLIVAN

Asst. District Atty. Grady Hight said he had learned the girl had been raped and murdered and that her body was in the vicinity of Fort Worth. He did not disclose the source of the information.

* * *

Central Texas officers arrested two young men late Sunday and charged them with what Hight said were sexually motivated slayings.

Murder complaints were filed against Roy Green, 18, and Kenneth McDuff, 20, both from the Marlin, Tex. area. Hight said rape charges also would be filed.

TEXAS VIOLENCE

The multiple murder was the second case of Texas violence

A second girl escaped the night of terror and death when she refused an invitation to join the trio at the movie.

* * *

Rhonda Chamberlain, 16, of Everman, said young Dunnam invited her to accompany him but that she wasn't feeling well and declined. She said Miss Sullivan intended to spend the night at her home.

* * *

Acting on a tip, officers first arrested Green and then captured McDuff. Green surrendered without incident, officers said, but McDuff was taken into custody only after a burst of gunfire and a chase.

* * *

The bodies, punctured by multiple bullet wounds, were squeezed into the trunk of the Brand family car which had been abandoned on a lonely country road off U.S 81 south of Fort Worth.

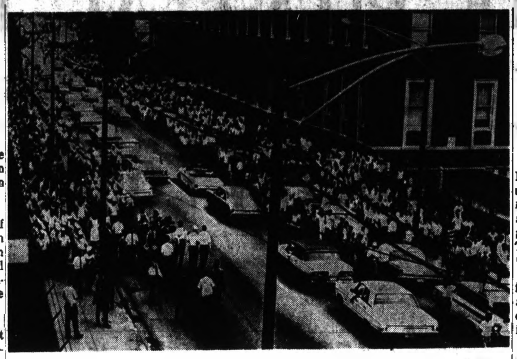

* * *

Investigators then ordered a widespread search for Edna Louise Sullivan, 16, of suburban Everman, who had accompanied young Brand and his cousin on a movie date Saturday night.

* * *

Although the girl has not been found, the sheriff said he had information that she had been raped and killed.

CIVIL RIGHTS MARCHERS JEERED — Civil rights marchers, preceded by helmeted policemen, march east on Fullerton Avenue on Chicago's northwest side yesterday. They were making their third appearance in the area to protest against real estate firms which allegedly refuse to rent and sell to Negroes. On the opposite sidewalk are massed white residents of the area, who jeered the marchers and tossed rocks at them.

Clues Hunted in Air Crash

1 Recorder Burns in 42-Death Accident

FALLS CITY, Neb. (AP) — Investigators learned today that one of two recording devices which may have held a clue to the cause of Saturday night's airliner crash, was burned beyond use in the crash that killed 42 persons.

* * *

The Braniff International Airways plane was in an envelope of flame when it plunged from a cloud into a soybean field about eight miles northeast of here.

However, there was a chance that another recording device may still be useful.

Ed Slattery, spokesman for a 12-man Civil Aeronautics Board investigating team, said Washington experts found heat had destroyed any record that was in the flight recorder. The device, pulled from the wreckage, was designed to keep a record of the plane's position and movements in the air.

* * *

He said CAB and factory experts were trying to decipher information in the cockpit voice recorder, which should reveal any cockpit conversation which took place within 30 minutes before the crash. Slattery said the cockpit recorder was recovered "in a rather battered condition."

EXPLOSION

An explosion flared as the plane hit the ground, and a witness shouted: "My God, the world is on fire!"

Antone Schawang, owner of the field where the plane crashed, was with his family in an automobile when the disaster occurred. "The sky seemed to light up," he said, as the burning plane crashed and exploded.

It was then that his wife shouted that "the world is on fire."

Alabama and the National States Rights party.

One knot of counter demonstrators carried a banner identified as the flag of the National States Rights party. It bore a red lightning bolt superimposed on a Confederate flag.

The marchers were led by Al Raby, head of the Coordinating Council of Community Organizations, and the Rev. James Bevel and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, aides to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

KING ABSENT

King, who was hit with a rock during a demonstration on the Southwest Side Friday, did not march yesterday.

He was in Jackson, Miss., attending the annual convention of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which he heads.

Noting the large number of marchers, Bevel shouted above the jeers of hecklers: "This is a great indication of the movement. We will not be intimidated by crowds and violence."

King and his aides have made Chicago the prime northern target city in their campaign to open housing and jobs to Negroes.

They focused in recent weeks on charges that white real estate firms sell and rent to white persons but not to Negroes.

A police squad car equipped with a loud speaker preceded the marchers and a police officer warned hecklers to disperse.

Many of them refused. Others retreated, then came back to display signs. One read, "Polish power."

The neighborhood is predominantly Roman Catholic. Many hecklers reserved their sharpest taunts for the nuns and priests who walked with the demonstrators.

PLEA FROM CLERGY

Earlier in the day priests and ministers at church services pleaded with their people to stay off the streets and ignore the marchers.

One priest told his parishioners: "All we have left is our respect for one another, so let's go out and act like Christians."

"Being a Christian is an act of love," said another priest, the Rev. Edward Rapp.

* * *

Father Rapp based his sermon on a Gospel (Luke 18: 9-4) in which Christ spoke a parable addressed to those who believed in their own righteousness and held everyone else in contempt."

In his Sunday sermon the Rev. Paul Sich of Holy Cross Lutheran Church told his congregation not to go to the demonstration at all.

Thief Is Sought in Break-In at East Side Home

A thief cut through a rear window screen, entered an East Side Pontiac home and took $90 in cash from a purse, early yesterday, the occupant told Pontiac police.

Jeffery Kerr, 20, of 162 S. Edith, said he discovered the break-in upon awaking yesterday morning.

After cutting open the screen, police said, the burglar raised an unlocked window to crawl into the home.

Investigators said they were "inclined not to believe" the break-in was the work of a suspect sought in connection with day 24 other molesting and prowling reports in the last two months on the city's east side.

"The suspect in the other complaints hasn't been known to steal," one detective said, "but that doesn't necessarily mean he wouldn't."

N-Blast Believed Set Off by Soviets

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — The Soviet Union may have set off a medium-size nuclear underground explosion last Friday.

Uppsala University's Seismological Institute reported today that it recorded an earth movement then and that it probably came from an underground explosion in the Semipalatinsk testing area in central Asia.

Janitor Arrested in Coed Slaying

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Police announced today the arrest of a janitor at the University of Colorado in connection with the slaying of a coed there.

He was booked as Joseph D. Morse, 37.

The girl, Elaura Jaquette, 20, of Grand Junction, Colo., was found beaten to death in a tower room of Macky Auditorium on the campus July 9.

big margin.

"I'm fairly convinced—although it's only August—that when the smoke settles the margin in the governorships and the Senate will stay about the same.

"That brings us to the House, and these are the regional contests that will be closely fought in many areas. Some estimate nearly 100 marginal districts and I know the Republican National Committee is pointing to 68 seats it reasonably hopes to capture.

"But I think there are two unique factors for us this year operating against the off-year tradition of losing seats.

"This freshman class of congressmen — the surprise winners in 1964 — has almost unanimously supported the President's foreign and domestic programs more than 90 per cent of the time. They've gone home weekend after weekend on the red-eye special to stand up

"Historically, this is most unusual. Most candidates who have ridden in on a president's coattails have promptly made some adjustment in their political views, backing off from the president's policy to improve their reelection prospects.

"I think the attitude of these young congressmen is going to pay off, because I think the mood of the country is strongly in favor of the Great Society program."

O'Brien said he finds even more impressive the work of the freshmen in taking "that shaky 1964 foundation and building on it with strong organizations and service to their constituents. That will make a big difference.

"What does this add up to? It's too early to predict a numerical outcome, but I'm as sure a sI can be that the Republican prediction of 50 or more new seats in the House just isn't going to happen."

2 Men Killed, Boy Hurt by Auto at Race

WHITE PIGEON (AP)—Two men were killed and a boy was severely injured Sunday night when they tried to help in a women's auto race at Mottville Speedway, just north of the Indiana-Michigan line.

* * *

Victims were Roy Elliott, 28, South Bend, Ind., and Delbert Leiby, 27, Rt. 2, White Pigeon.

Elliott died en route to a Sturgis hospital. Leiby, who was not identified until this morning, was pronounced dead at the scene.

Fred Durbin, 15, South Bend, was hospitalized with multiple cuts, bruises and a mild concussion.

CAR STALLED

Strike Talks Resume Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department called on union and management representatives today "to resume negotiations" in the month-old airline strike, while Congress deliberated legislation to end the walkout.

* * *

The Labor Department said Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz had summoned both sides to a meeting at 3 p.m.

It was the first time negotiators for the striking machinists union and five major airlines were to meet since the 35,000 strikers rejected a proposed White House contract settlement July 31.

* * *

Negotiators for the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists and the five airlines —United, Eastern, National, Northwest and TransWorld— were to meet in join sessions with Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds.

PLEA VOICED

The Labor Department action came after Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., of the House Commerce Committee, urged labor and management to settle the dispute to avoid legislation "you will regret the rest of your lives."

Staggers addressed his words to representatives of the union and airlines before calling the machinist's president, P.L. Siemiller, as the day's first witness.

* * *

Staggers said the Commerce Committee will meet in the early morning and at night, if necessary, to complete action on a Senate-passed bill under which the striking airline mechanics could be ordered back to work for as much as 180 days.

Cyclists Terrorize Muskegon

MUSKEGON (AP)—One man was injured and 12 persons arrested as unruly crowds of motorcycle riders ripped at high speed along streets, raced their machines through bonfires, invaded taverns and swam in the nude Sunday.

* * *

Muskegon County sheriff's men charged 11 men and a girl with disorderly conduct. Some were arrested for swimming nude, others for taking a motorboat from a man.

* * *

The disturbances broke out among an estimated 800 cycle riders who came to watch the 25th annual National Motorcycle Hill Climb Championships at Mt. Garfield, south of Muskegon off Lake Michigan.

200 TROUBLEMAKERS

State Police said at least 200 of the cyclists were troublemakers.

* * *

During the heart of disturbances, William Militello, 21, of Bay City, suffered a fractured ankle. He was admitted to Hackley Hospital in Muskegon.

* * *

About 50 sheriff's deputies and police, armed with tear gas, riot guns and rifles, watched over the crowd Sunday.

Earlier, police said, cyclists invaded a number of bars, throwing glasses, taking food off plates of patrons and breaking up dancing couples. One club closed. Seven others reported trouble to authorities.

* * *

In early morning hours, some cyclists who were camping near Mt. Garfield tore down a reviewing stand and two portable outhouses for wood to feed bonfires. Police said they raced their cycles through the flames.

CLUB INVADED

Officers said some cyclists exploded fireworks, tossed ammunition into fires and rolled flaming tires down the hill.

* * *

About 20 riders invaded the Pontaluna Country Club, a private club about a mile from the hill, police said. They said the cyclists toppled over chairs, grabbed food and drinks from patrons and barged out without paying for drinks.

* * *

Ten sheriff's men who answered the first trouble call late Saturday night said a crowd of cyclists turned back the officers, telling them they would be shot if they entered the hill area. The deputies left, returned with reinforcements and cordoned off the area.

Bell Telephone Official Seeks MSU Trustee Post

BIRMINGHAM — A Michigan Bell Telephone executive, Kenneth W. Thompson, of 735 Ardmoor, has announced he will seek nomination for the Michigan State University Board of Trustees at the Republican State Convention Aug. 26 and 27.

Thompson, who graduated from Michigan State in 1930, is assistant vice president in charge of operation at the Michigan Bell Telephone Co.

He is a trustee and vice chairman of the Michigan State University Development Fund and a director of the M. S. U. Engineering Alumni Association.

Thompson's current civic responsibilities include: board chairman and past president of the Michigan Safety Conference, coordinator for the United Foundation's major commerce unit solicitation and director and past president of the Greater Detroit Safety Council.

* * *

He is a member of the National Highway User Conference administrative committee and defense transportation Task Force, the Governor's Special Commission on Traffic Safety, the Greater Detroit Board of Commerce and the North Trails District Committee of the Boy Scouts of America.

Amendments regulating motorcycle rental agencies will be considered at tonight's commission meeting.

Besides establishing the distance required between rental agencies and residential districts, the amendment would also set up business regulations.

Rental agencies would have to maintain precise records of vehicle rentals, including the name of the person to whom the rental was made, his address, his driver's license number, the identity of the vehicle rented, the date and hour of its rental and the time of its return.

The agencies would also be required to furnish a hard, protective safety helmet to each renter unless the renter has one in his possession at the time he rents a motorcycle.

* * *

The amendment would also establish business hours for the agencies and the times of rentals and returns.

House Eyes Violence

Rights Action Shifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — House action on civil rights shifts today to a proposal that would bring the federal government into crimes of violence against Negroes and civil rights workers.

The provision almost has been ignored in the controversy over open housing. But many view it as the most important section of the 1966 civil rights bill.

It is designed to deal with murders, bombings and other acts of violence in which the states fail to prosecute anyone. Up to now the federal government has been unable to act because no federal law was involved.

The provision would make it a federal crime to use force or threats against Negroes exercising their lawful rights or against anyone trying to help Negroes exercise such rights. Penalties up to $10,000 and life imprisonment could be imposed.

LITTLE OPPOSITION

Despite the proposal's broad sweep, it is expected to encounter little opposition except from Southern members, who regard it as a flagrant invasion of states' rights.

The majority battle will be fought by Northern liberals over the word "lawfully" inserted by the House Judiciary Committee to designate the kind of activities the provision would protect.

The liberals say it would make the proposal law useless if a Negro were walking on the grass, speeding or violating some other minor local ordinance when attacked.

★ ★ ★

Rep. George W. Grider, D-Tenn., who put the word in the provision, has said it would apply only to "a valid law fairly and evenly applied." Minor ordinances would not affect the provision, he told the House during debate.

He said his intention is to make sure a policeman would not violate the proposed law if he shot a Negro who was burning or looting a store during a racial riot.

With mob violence tormenting several cities the House is expected to go along with Grider and keep the word in the bill.

HOPE FOR FINAL VOTE

House leaders hope to wind up action on the provision today, tackle the remaining section on school desegregation Tuesday and bring the bill to a final vote by Tuesday night or Wednesday.

In other weekend developments:

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen agreed with his Democratic counterpart, Mike Mansfield, that the bill when passed by the House should be sent to the Senate Judiciary subcommittee headed by Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C. Dirksen said he would leave to Ervin, an opponent of the bill, to determine when the bill would be reported back to the Senate.

★ ★ ★

Sponsors of the measure believe that, unless the Senate itself puts a time limit on the subcommittee's deliberation, the bill might be filibustered in the subcommittee and thus get no action in Congress this year.

But Dirksen, appearing Sunday on a TV program, said, "We are going to have a bill," although it may not contain the controversial open housing provision.

ATTACKS JOHNSON

James Farmer, former national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, accused President Johnson of yielding to a "political white backlash" in permitting what Farmer called a slowdown in civil rights action.

Farmer said in a New York radio interview Sunday on WCBS that the President should tour the slums, see the conditions under which people live and sense something of the frustration that they feel.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., urged adoption of legislation to eliminate de facto segregation in Northern cities which, he said, exists despite the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

"The Northern black people want something done about de facto segregation in the schools, because all predominantly black schools in America are inferior and second class," Powell said in a copyrighted interview in a news magazine.

Javits Hits 'Lack of Viet Frankness'

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., today charged the Johnson administration with a lack of frankness in discussing U.S. chances for a quick victory in Viet Nam.

He also accused the government of failing to show sufficient determination in pressing South Vietnamese leaders for reforms.

"In effect," Javits said, "the administration has not been straightforward enough to dispel the illusions about quick results and has not been forceful enough with the Saigon regime to press for implementation of the aspirations of the Vietnamese people."

'NOT OPTIMISTIC'

In a speech prepared for delivery at the national convention of the Disabled American Veterans Javits also said he is "not optimistic" about the course of the war.

"We are plunging forward, often armed with half-truths, hoping for some decisive military victory, for the miracle of a peace conference, waiting for it all to end as suddenly as it appeared," Javits said.

"These are illusions, illusions fostered by a false sense of optimism and nurtured by our own frustration. The facts are unpleasant, but unless we face them, we shall be carried step by step into a situation that few willed and that no one can control."

'REAL' OBJECTIVES

Avoiding the word "victory," Javits said the United States could "persevere" only through backing a strong, elected government in South Viet Nam and cautious and limited use of U.S. military power.

He called on the administration to set down the "real" American objectives in the war instead of "a whole kit of unconvincing reasons for our presence in Viet Nam."

★ ★ ★

"To dangle the prospects of a seemingly unlikely peace conference before our eyes is to invite public disillusionment and lack of confidence," he said. "And to pour more and more men and arms into Viet Nam and to widen the bombing targets without firmly set limits to our operations is to escalate unknowingly and unwillingly into a major Asian land war."

Lengthy Conflict in Viet Seen in Pentagon Studies

By GEORGE McARTHUR

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Two independent studies conducted within the Pentagon by top civilian and military brains suggest a war of attrition in Viet Nam could continue indefinitely.

Informants qualified to reflect military thinking said today both studies contain a lot of "ifs," but they are being taken seriously by the U.S. chiefs of staff as they wrestle with the problem of providing enough manpower for Viet Nam.

★ ★ ★

Both studies agreed that despite the massive air strikes on their supply lines, the Communists could exert the extra effort necessary to maintain about their present force levels in the south. The air strikes cost the Hanoi regime time, manpower and money, but not enough to stop the flow of supplies.

Both studies were based more or less on the assumption that U.S. troop strength would be somewhat below the 400,000-man level contemplated about the first of next year. In addition, it was assumed that Hanoi would continue to wage the war at about the level it has maintained for the past year.

The study conducted by the Marine Corps concluded that Hanoi could maintain its present effort indefinitely unless the U.S. sharply increased its forces.

A more recent study, instituted by the Army, concluded that the way the war is going at present, the Communist regime could hold out for eight years.

The Army report presumably placed more emphasis on air bombings since it was the most recent and was concluded after the recent strikes on oil and gasoline dumps within the Hanoi-Haiphong area.

Cambodian Raps U.S. 'Regimes'

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk said today the United States now has several governments with contradictory tendencies.

He said these are the State Department, the Pentagon, the White House and the Central Intelligence Agency.

★ ★ ★

Sihanouk made the remark with a smile at a news conference. He said this situation was one of the reasons he was not expecting any important results from the coming visit of presidential envoy W. Averell Harriman. Harriman is due here in early September.

Sihanouk spoke of the alleged attacks by South Vietnamese and American planes on the Cambodian frontier village of Anlong Trach July 31 and Aug. 2. He charged that the incidents were planned by "the American military in Saigon to block plans of their government." Sihanouk did not enlarge on the statement.

INFLUENCE ON TALKS

He said the incidents would necessarily have a great influence on the Harriman talks.

Sihanouk said the Harriman visit would in no case be the prelude to the resumption of diplomatic relations with the United States. Instead, he said, it would only be an exchange of views which would probably not produce concrete results.

Sihanouk said the present regime in Saigon was unrepresentative and the "real Viet Nam is Ho Chi Minh and the National Liberation Front." This was a reference to the president of Communist North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong in the south.

TV Image Ends Silence

LONDON (AP) — Seeing her own face on television shocked a deaf and dumb girl out of her world of silence, Scotland Yard reported today.

"That's me!" cried the 17-year-old girl as her picture appeared on the screen by her hospital bed.

She was found wandering in a London street 12 days ago. She could only communicate with the police by writing answers to written questions.

In her scribbled notes, the girl said her name was Katherine Simms and that she had been deaf and dumb since suffering a head injury a year ago. Her parents had been killed in a car crash since then, she wrote.

Police were unable to locate any relatives and arranged for Katherine's photograph to be shown on a television news program in the hope that friends or relations would see it.

"The shock of seeing herself on television brought back Katherine's hearing and speech," said a police spokesman.

Need Strong Legislation Against Crippling Strikes

In the light of several recent strikes that have severely crippled the nation—or extensive segments thereof — agitation increases for compulsory arbitration that is binding and final.

★ ★ ★

Certainly the right of a union to strike is an established part of the American system. It's a part of the vaunted freedom for which we've been world famous since our birth. At the same time, does a very tiny segment of the population have the right to tie up 200 million citizens?

How about their freedom?

Less than 40,000 transportation workers seem involved in the current trouble which means that each single worker can tie up 5,000,000, in theory.

One of the biggest problems in compulsory arbitration would be an equitable determination of what constitutes "the national interest." And an equally important corollary is: "who will provide the answer?"

★ ★ ★

The simple solution is "the President." But is this sufficient? Is it always equitable to both sides? Perhaps there should be a small committee of leading Congressmen. The whole question is one of great importance and it won't be settled lightly or easily.

But it must be settled.

★ ★ ★

A rapidly growing segment of our population is becoming increasingly articulate in declaring that the question must be faced. Sidestepping now becomes national cowardice.

"Freedom" is a basic right. But this right prevails as much for the suffering 200,000,000 as it does for the 40,000 who are aggrieved.

Foreign Aid . . . .

Is Congress awakening on the question of foreign aid?

It just could be.

★ ★ ★

Currently, the House expressed the desire that our help be denied countries with programs contrary to our own policies. Also, the House refused to vote any confirmation of a five year plan which the Administration had submitted with a big ingratiating smile.

★ ★ ★

The Senate shows some signs of becoming as practical about this as the House. We have spent more than $100,000,000,000 (note to composing room and readers: one hundred billion is correct) among 100 nations. Most of them grab this largesse with one hand and wave us towards their borders with the other.

★ ★ ★

Personally, I think Congressmen have "heard from uneasy voters back home" who will enter the polls in November and cast a very significant vote.

Bobby Kennedy . . . .

In New York, the Democratic party is folding up before Bobby Kennedy. Ever since the youngster crashed the gates of a State in which he isn't a resident, he has built himself into a greater and greater power.

★ ★ ★

Now, Tammany seems to have capitulated itself and the fledgling exercises the top single voice in this great and historic State. Part of the electorate look upon this as a spectacular acquisition and triumph. And part view it as a political catastrophe.

What do YOU think?

Hard to Answer . . . .

Here's a question that's rather hard to answer. I've heard it several times in one form or another:

How can we rightly expect the world to leap to our aid in Viet Nam when we don't raise a finger to help the foes of communism in Russia, China, Cuba, Hungary, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Albania, etc?

★ ★ ★

If you have a clear, concise and conclusive answer, we'll run it in top position in The Voice of the People.

And in Conclusion . . . .

Jottings from the well thumbed notebook of your peripatetic reporter:

When Brigitte Bardot and Gunther Sachs flew the Atlantic and thence to Las Vegas, she said it was "for privacy." Now it develops a French magazine is paying $50,000 for an "exclusive" on the details. . . . . Last week TV programs spoke of "the Merry Christmas season" and one of the characters wished us all a "Happy New Year." Aren't you people glad the newspapers don't provide you with a January 5th issue in August?

New York's 154th annual Paris Ball next April will cost $350 a couple—probably a national record for that sort of thing. Oakland University has charged $100 and debated $150—peanuts in Gotham. . . . . Overheard: "My teen-age daughter just discovered you can talk to people without waiting for a dial tone." . . . . . Castro came to life the other night and sounded off for two hours and a half with a characteristic attack on our President and other national leaders.

The Associated Press reports that you readers are still very eager for accounts of Gemini activities but that you don't want all the details you craved a few flights back. . . . . Overheard: "He's a model teen-ager. He brushes after every meal and sees his barber once a year." . . . . . Whether you supported him or not, President Johnson is one of the hardest working Chief Executives this nation ever had . . . . . Dept. of Cheers and Jeers: the C's — police work on Speck murders; the J's — current handling of the airline strike.

The Too-Handy Answer To Anything!

David Lawrence Says:

Political Overtones at Wedding

WASHINGTON — Nearly everything that happens nowadays has some political overtones — and a wedding in the family of a president is no exception.

LAWRENCE

Certainly no wedding, even of a president himself, ever has gotten the public attention or attracted the visual interest of the nation as did the Nugent-Johnson marriage.

The European newspapers, in their comments, were not quite sure what to make of it all. For the groom hadn't been in the public eye before and, instead of being a conspicuous socialite, he was just a plain, well-educated, mid-western American.

The television networks and the radio and press covered the affair with more publicity from coast to coast than had been given heretofore to a social event of any kind in Washington.

★ ★

Politically speaking, the impression was a helpful one for the president. The American people may brush aside the monarchical instinct as inconsequential, but it emerges every now and then as they seem to enjoy their own kind of "royal" customs and display.

MEANS VOTES

President Johnson, of course, became better known to the millions who saw him on television, and people on the whole got a favorable image of him and his family.

This means votes, especially among those persons who are more or less indifferent to speakers in political campaigns, including a president. Hence, it was a lucky thing for Mr. Johnson that the occasion arose, since an opportunity was afforded for a huge audience to see him at an unusual event.

While there is no way of estimating how many votes may have been gained, there is also no way of measuring what losses occurred.

The fact that the wedding was held in a Roman Catholic church, instead of in the White House, naturally pleased many Catholics who up to a few years ago were doubtful whether a Catholic could ever be elected president.

On the other side, however, it might be wondered how many non-Catholics were a little annoyed that so much publicity was centered on a Catholic Church wedding.

There were at least three Negro couples in attendance, including Robert C. Weaver, the secretary of housing and urban development, and his wife. None of the prominent civil-rights leaders — or labor leaders, for that matter —was present.

On the whole, President Johnson had a satisfactory day in the world of politics. More people saw the President and his family and got a close-up look than it was ever politically the good fortune of any predecessor in the White House to attract in a single spectacle.

Bob Considine Says:

Author Gets 'Irish Up' Over Blast by Russian

NEW YORK — Pravda's book assassin, M. Kraminov, recently put a blast on Cornelius Ryan's massive and masterful "The Last Battle." It deals with the Battle of Berlin and is the thrilling end product of enormous research by Ryan and his assistant, Prof. John Erickson of the University of Manchester, England.

CONSIDINE

According to Kraminov, Ryan had only cursory knowledge of the "really intricate military situation in the last days of the European war.

"He pursued a definite aim to prove that the battle for Berlin was not the decisive stage in the end of the war, and that the Soviet armies, striking the last blow at Nazi Germany, allegedly did not render special service to the European people, to all mankind."

Kraminov can say that again, Ryan told me today with a great deal of Irish outrage.

★ ★ ★

"The whole world recognizes the sacrifices of the Russian people and their soldiers in their fight against the Nazis; and certainly the Red Army liberated eastern countries that had been under the Nazi yoke," the former war correspondent said.

'ANOTHER MEANING'

"But the term 'special services' has another connotation to people such as the Poles, Czechs, Hungarians, Latvians, Estonians, Albanians and Rumanians.

"As the Russians 'liberated' these people they also cynically absorbed them into the Communist realm. In truth, as we all know, in the closing days of the war the role of the Red Army was more political than military.

"Indeed, if Kraminov had taken the time to read the memoirs of such men as Marshals Koniev, Zhukov, Chuikov, or even the Red Army's own regimental journals, he might be more enlightened as to the Soviet objectives of the Red Army at the closing stages of the war.

"In many of these journals which are now appearing for the first time in Russia there are numerous accounts of the breakdown of discipline among Soviet troops who ran amok in such capitals as Warsaw, Berlin, Vienna, Prague and Belgrade.

"To the dismay of many Soviet marshals and generals, many of the Red Army divisions indulged in atrocities and brutal rape which forever will remain as an embarrassment to the Soviet defense forces.

"The truth is that the 'special services' of the Red Army will never be forgotten by the countries they liberated. The fact is that the Soviets in many, many places did the unforgivable — as victors they acted worse than the Nazis they had defeated."

Writer Praises Press for Support of Cavanagh

With the John F. Kennedy era behind us, we have come to acquaint ourselves with the courageous battles fought on the political front of America. In turn, we have become aware of the conviction with which courageous stands have been supported by men of moral courage and integrity.

Such was the case of Harold A. Fitzgerald—breaking with tradition and popular sentiment —in supporting the deserving, if unsuccessful, candidacy of Jerome P. Cavanagh for the United States Senate.

Williams to Slay Dragons in Washington?

I see our majority of minorities has spoken again. Apparently twelve years of "jackassim" wasn't enough. There is little doubt that our labor stooge will soon be astride his white charger heading for the round table in Washington. One can but imagine what dragons he will slay with his long lance of liberalism.

If his aim is true he might even be able to wipe out a few more of our basic rights. We certainly have a lot of champions working at it these days.

Driver and Boys Have a Narrow Escape

Tuesday night, just after dark, I was driving out West Walton just west of the water tower, when I saw a small light flickering toward me on my side of the pavement, appearing to be some distance ahead. Suddenly, it was right in front of me and I had to stop so fast that the car behind me squealed and slid to avoid hitting me.

★ ★ ★

Three small boys riding bicycles, two of them carrying small flashlights, are very fortunate that I and the driver behind me were able to stop in time.

I hope parents will be careful to see that such things are not allowed to happen, for the children's sake and for the driving public.

Question and Answer

A good friend of mine is constantly being accused of being insane by her husband and members of her family. Is there any place that gives a test so she could show the old boy who is actually cuckoo? Also, I think it would be a tremendous asset to our community if a mental health clinic was established where parents could take their children to have them checked for retardation.

CURIOUS

REPLY

Community Mental Health Services at 1 Lafayette gives psychiatric evaluations. In the event it is advisable, the person is referred for treatment. In cases of family problems or personality adjustment, he may be referred to Family Service.

The Oakland Child Guidance Clinic (FE 5-6171) will make appointments with parents who suspect retardation problems with their children. Community Mental Health Services hopes soon to have in operation a clinic dealing specifically with retardation.

A Winsome Tyro

The Atlantic Monthly

It seemed something of a joke on California two years ago when George Murphy turned Republican politician and put on a performance that scuttled White-House-wise Pierre Salinger right off the political set and sent an amiable Hollywood hoofer to the U. S. Senate.

★ ★ ★

Nobody in California is joking about the star performance Ronald Reagan is giving as Republican candidate for governor, least of all the startled Democrats. The role has captured the man. Months of persuading audiences "It is time for an ordinary citizen to bring the fresh air of common sense to government" have transmuted Ronald Reagan. Goldwater conservatism has been mellowed by Reagan until it sounds like comfortable American folklore. Reagan is not drawing lines and daring voters to step across; there are no "either with me or against me" imperatives. "Just hear me out," he begs. Then, with his most winsome actor's gesture of appeal he tempers the hard core of conservatism with his own personal assertion of goodwill, his earnest assurance that we can indeed, all of us, just by working together, somehow solve the problems of this old world. His reassertion of old-fashioned American optimism has managed to sweep the skeptical moderates of the Republican Party in California overwhelmingly into his camp.

★ ★ ★

"The best minds are not in government," Reagan recently stated. "If any were, business would hire them away." Government, he suggests, is just not all that difficult. Interweaving sweeping attacks on welfare dependency, extravagance in the poverty program, vice on the campuses, indolence among the unemployed, unemployment insurance as a "prepaid vacation plan," and government intrusion into private freedoms, Reagan evokes a tantalizing reincarnation of the old, authentic American derring-do, translated to the political scene. The Good Guys always win.

CLEANUP TIME — A group of teenagers clean up a vacant lot in the Watts section of Los Angeles, scene of an upheaval a year ago. Watts is planning a three-day "Watts Summer Festival" Friday through Sunday, complete with jazz concerts, a basketball game and a carnival for the children. Organizers of the festival call it a demonstration of the capacity of the community to work in its own behalf.

Commemorate Riot

Festival in Watts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Watts, the hub of bloody rioting that ripped this city one year ago, will observe the anniversary this weekend with a festival — the arts and all that jazz.

Billed as the Watts Summer Art & Jazz Festival, the three-day event will run Friday, Saturday and Sunday and includes concerts by top rhythm-and-blues artists, a parade, dancing and a large art exhibit.

* * *

The emphasis is on the constructive, says Stan Sanders, 23, a Negro and former Rhodes scholar now attending Yale Law School. He returned to Watts to help with the festival.

"The revolt of last year marked the end of Watts' passivity," says Sanders. "This year's festival is within the new tradition of positive, forceful community action."

CULTURAL ATTRACTIONS

Strong emphasis is also laid on the exclusively Negro aspects of the festival's cultural attractions. Watts, in effect, has invited the entire city to attend the festival.

The festival starts Friday night at Jordan High School's athletic field with a four-hour jazz concert. Other jazz sessions are Saturday afternoon and evening, with a long roster of Negro stars.

* * *

On the vacant lots of 103rd Street, grimly dubbed "Charcoal Alley No. 1" because of arson last year, tent shows will portray Watts' first efforts at community uplift and offer plays, dancing a discotheque and two tents full of paintings and sculpture by Watts' artists.

In six days of violence, beginning Aug. 11, 34 persons were killed, 1,032 were injured and $40 million in property was destroyed. Sporadic outbursts of minor violence have troubled the area ever since.

Slain Nurses Get Diplomas

CHICAGO (AP)—Graduation diplomas have been awarded posthumously by South Chicago Community Hospital to six student nurses slain last month with two Filipino nurses in their South Side townhouse.

The diplomas were accepted Sunday by friends and parents of the six dead girls. They were presented by Josephine Chan, director of nursing at the hospital.

The hospital also announced it is sending certificates to the parents of the other two victims of the July 14 massacre. They were registered nurses from the Philippines doing graduate work.

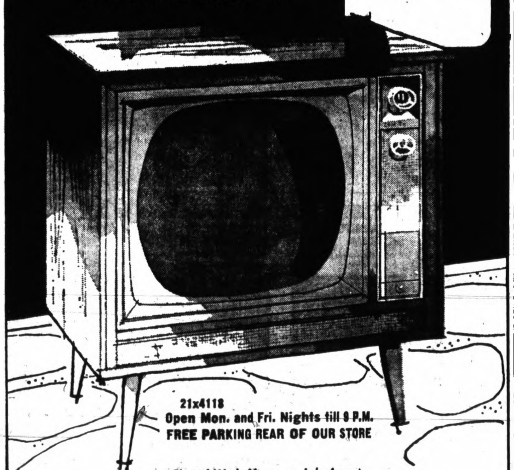

Miss Corazon Amurao, 23, the survivor of the mass killing, started her graduate work later than her slain countrymen and was not a member of the graduating class.

The ceremony was held in the Little Theater in McCormick Place, a lake front convention hall.

This AUGUST There's a Method To Our Madness!...

It happens every August . . . The appliance business gets that "low-down blues feeling." Who needs winter entertainment appliances in August? Not much summer left to enjoy the comfort of air conditioning. Maybe the old refrigerator will hold out. Why worry about it now. Even if you can get a new air conditioner for a mad $69 . . . or a new top name-brand refrigerator for $99 at Highland just because it's August! What other month of the year can you get a brand-name COLOR TV for just $279 or a stereo hi-fi console for just $89 . . . a Detroit Jewel gas range for $69 . . . or a Westinghouse dishwasher for $99? There's a method to our madness. We've deliberately reduced everything to save you more dollars this August than ever before. That way you may decide to buy that refrigerator or TV RIGHT NOW! Maybe you'll even buy two appliances and save twice as much. Everything is marked down, including new 1967 models. Everything is top-quality and top-name brand. Floor models are priced accordingly. If price is your only reason for not buying at Highland during August — better get a new reason.

Runoff Vote in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — An estimated 450,000 Arkansas Democrats will select a nominee for governor Tuesday in a runoff primary in which the state's relationship with the federal government has been the most heated issue.

The candidates are Jim Johnson, 41, an outspoken segregationist and a critic of President Johnson, and Frank Holt, 55, who has pledged to continue the state's policy of cooperation with Washington.

★ ★ ★

Waiting to face the Democratic winner in the general election is Winthrop Rockefeller, who easily won the Republican nomination for governor two weeks ago.

Behind Rockefeller is a revitalized Republican party and the Democratic nominee is not assured of election as he once was in this traditionally Democratic state.

COFEATURE

A cofeature of the runoff is a race for Congress in the 4th District between two young lawyers, David Pryor, 31, of Camden and Richard Arnold, 30, of Texarkana. They are seeking a seat vacated last February by the resignation of Rep. Oren Harris, who became a federal judge.

Most of the voter interest, however, has centered on the governor's race which, for the first time since 1954, does not involve Gov. Orval Faubus. Faubus is retiring after 12 years in office and he has not endorsed a candidate in the primary.

★ ★ ★

Johnson has contended, however, that Holt has Faubus' tacit backing and that the political organization which has supported Faubus through the years is fully behind Holt.

Holt has denied any Faubus connections. He has pegged his runoff campaign on criticism of Johnson's stand on state-federal issues and contends that election of Johnson might mean disaster for many federal aid programs.

Johnson, while assailing Washington in every crossroads speech, has denied that he would end any federal programs and has pointed to the continuation of such programs in Alabama where many of his views are propounded by Gov. George Wallace.

Holt charged in a speech last week that Johnson and his "apostles of discord" were trying to make Arkansas "a last-ditch battleground in a war against the 20th century."

★ ★ ★

Holt has said that he does not like many things that Washington does, specifically some of the guidelines on public school desegregation, but he says he would negotiate to soften the guidelines rather than fight them.

Ferency Rally Is Hosted by Swainson

MANCHESTER (AP) — Former Gov. John B. Swainson held an old-fashioned political rally for Zolton Ferency Sunday and netted the Democratic gubernatorial candidate $18,500 for his campaign.

★ ★ ★

Swainson, a Wayne County Circuit Court judge, was Democratic governor of Michigan for one term until he was beaten in the election by Republican George Romney, Ferency's opponent.

★ ★ ★

At $30 a family, several thousand men, women and children converged on the Swainson farm in southwest Washtenaw County for a "Zolton Ferency Family Day."

The crowd ate hot dogs and hamburgers and heard political pep talks by Ferency and former Gov. G. Mennen Williams, the Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate.

It's Luci and Pat

'Frisbees' in Bahamas

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Patrick and Luci Johnson Nugent were honeymooning today at a spacious and secluded waterfront villa.

The President's daughter who wore dark glasses, and her husband, using the name "Mr. and Mrs. Frisbee," went practically unrecognized on the jet airliner they took from New York Sunday along with six other honeymoon couples.

* * *

At Kennedy Airport, only one man, seeing them pass by, turned to his wife and said, "There's Luci Johnson."

Preceded by two Secret Service men, Pat and Luci were the last passengers to board the plane at Kennedy and the first to leave the Pan American flight when it touched down here. A waiting white limousine whisked them away to "Capricorn," the $250,000 home of Rebekah Harkness-Kean, socially prominent philanthropist.

JOIN COUPLE

On the 2½-hour flight, the Nugents sat in the first-class section next to newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Larry Buczkowski of Pittsburgh. The Buczkowskis later said they did not recognize the Nugents. The five other couples rode in the economy section.

They each had steak dinners on the plane. The 19 year-old bride, under drinking age, had a soft drink while Nugent, 23, ordered vodka, a stewardess said.

* * *

After the couple were driven to the villa, a chain was quickly placed across the drive. "Capricorn" is about eight miles west of Nassau, on the western side of New Providence Island some three miles from Lyford Cay, famous millionaire's resort. Thick foliage borders the estate on three sides and on the fourth is a private, white sand beach.

On the other side of the world, while his brother was marrying Luci in Washington Saturday, 1st Lt. Gerard Nugent, 24, of the U.S. Marine Corps, slept on a canvas cot amid the boom of artillery near Hill 65, Viet Nam.

ANNIVERSARY

Sunday was Lt. Nugent's first wedding anniversary. Two weeks after his marriage, he was off to Okinawa and then to Viet Nam. He has about one more month in Viet Nam and already has orders to report to Camp Pendleton, Calif.

The reassignment reportedly was made before Marine Corps officers had any idea of the impending marriage of Pat and Luci.

Back in Washington, the White House, which had been closed to tourists since Thursday afternoon because of the hectic wedding preparations, was being spruced up for public tours today. It usually is closed to tourists on Mondays as well as Sundays.

There was no offifcial word on whether the multitude of wedding gifts received by Luci and Pat would remain at the White House or be shipped to Austin, Tex., where the Nugents have rented a duplex.

Some of the gifts came from royalty and heads of state. King Baudouin and Queen Fabiola of Belgium sent a lace table centerpiece; King Hassan II of Morocco four elaborately ornamented native costumes; Emperor Haile Salessie of Ethiopia gold ornaments; and President Charles de Gaulle of France a porcelain tea and coffee set.

Secret Service Agents on Trail of Newlyweds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unlike other girls named Johnson who were married last Saturday — as well as those named Smith, Brown, Jones or otherwise — Luci Johnson Nugent had to take a complement of Secret Service agents with her on her honeymoon.

It's the law.

The Secret Service, in addition to such unglamorous duties as running down counterfeiters, is charged with protecting the immediate family of the President.

So when Luci, 19, or her older sister, Lynda, 23, leave such closely guarded precincts as the White House or the LBJ Ranch when the President is in residence there, at least one agent, frequently more, always goes along.

CASE IN POINT

This was the case when just-married Luci and Patrick J. Nugent left on their honeymoon following their marriage Saturday.

As a matter of fact, the agents presumably knew the secret destination of the newlyweds — it turned out to be the Bahamas — and some of them went ahead to do what is called an advance. This involves looking over the premises to be used before the arrival of a member of the President's family.

* * *

But for those who may be concerned about the lack of privacy for Luci and Nugent, it isn't as bad as it might seem.

Agents are trained in discretion and how to be inconspicuous and, once satisfied that all's well from a security standpoint, take up their vigil some distance away.

OUT OF VIEW

Just as in the case of the President, when the Johnson girls travel by plane, agents are always aboard, but since they are dressed like other young men, fellow passengers often are unaware of their presence.

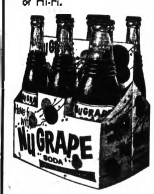

And when they travel by car, agents keep watch.

On some occasions, an agent, looking exactly like a friend, rides in the back seat.

Other times, such as when Luci drives about in her two-seat sports car, agents follow in another car.

Birchers, Housing Law Big Issues in California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Condemnation of The John Birch Society and possible repeal of California's open-housing law stood today as prime issues between Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Ronald Reagan, his Republican gubernatorial opponent.

Brown challenged Reagan to repudiate the Birch Society as a dangerous political extremist group. Reagan again refused.

And a 1966 state Republican platform adopted Saturday urged "repeal or amendment" of the national publicized Rumford Act barring housing discrimination.

TOUCHY ISSUE

That posed a touchy issue for the Democrats' state convention next weekend in Sacramento. What stand to take on the law, strongly backed by Negroes and a white minority, but renounced by a vast majority of white voters in a 1964 statewide ballot?

Center of the three-year-old controversy is the Rumford Act. Passed in 1963 by the Legislature, it bans racial or religious discrimination in the sale or rental of most publicly assisted housing in California — a majority.

* * *

Enough voters signed petitions in 1964 to put the matter on the November ballot, and by a 2-to-1 margin the law was nullified. But a 5-to-2 State Supreme Court ruling overturned the vote, upheld the law and sent the issue to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Democrats recall that the former White House press secretary, Pierre Salinger, credited his opposition to the 1964 anti-Rumford initiative as a main reason for his U.S. Senate race defeat by Republican George Murphy, who took no position on the act.

SUPPORTED LAW

Democrats also adopted a strong plank favoring the law in 1964, and opposing the antiopen housing proposal. Republicans took no stand that year.

Saturday, the Republican state convention overrode Negro protests and adopted a civil rights platform plank recognizing minority group housing problems but urging: "The repeal or amendment of the Rumfor Act of 1963 and its replacement or amendment by constructive legislation which protects the free choice and constitutional rights of all citizens."

* * *

Reagan, who favors repeal of the law but disagreed with the 1964 statewide ballot, had approved the platform's wording along with the other statewide GOP candidates.

He stressed, however, at a Saturday night speech "I repudiate bigotry and racism and all those who are guided by it."

* * *

James Flournoy of Los Angeles, a Republican state central committee member and a Negro, asserted: "When you use the word 'repeal' you are automatically slapping one million Negroes in the face. I beg of you don't deny me as a Negro the opportunity to go into my community and try to sell the Republican party."

PAINT REAGAN

Brown and Robert Coate, Democratic state chairman, have launched a full-scale attempt to paint Reagan as carrying the hopes of ultraright wingers.

Coate said that if the GOP convention "had adopted a plank condemning political extremists by name, they would have been vigorously opposed by Reagan, who depends on the support of Birchers and other extremists in his campaign."

GOP Fears Wallace to Help LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Republicans are beginning to fear that Gov. George C. Wallace may become a political asset for President Johnson in 1968 if Wallace's wife is elected Alabama's governor.

The installation of Lurleen Wallace in the governor's chair next January probably would signal the start of a campaign by Wallace for president. He had a whirl at the Democratic nomination in 1964.

* * *

As the symbol of the so-called "white backlash" against Negro civil rights demonstrations, Wallace got 42.8 per cent of the vote in the Maryland presidential primary. His mark was 29.9 per cent in Indiana and 25 per cent in Wisconsin.

3RD PARTY ROUTE

Republican leaders think Wallace may not go chasing rainbows in the Democratic ranks next time but may follow the third party route pioneered in modern times by Sen. Strom Thurmond — then governor of South Carolina — when he collected 39 electoral votes in 1948.

If Wallace steps into the 1968 presidential contest, Republican strategists think he will take more electoral vaotes away from their candidate than from Johnson.

* * *

As of now, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon seems to have a greater appeal in the South than any other potential GOP nominee.

There also is some Republican worry about Wallace's potential impact outside the South.

'COULD TAKE VOTES'

One GOP strategist put it this way: "If that fellow could get on the ballot, he could make it hard for us to carry Ohio, Indiana and some other northern states. He could be taking votes away from us where it hurts."

Wallace would be dead politically if his wife is defeated for the Alabama governorship. He would lack a base of operations and the demonstrated ability to continue his winning ways — by proxy in this case — in his home state.

In this situation the Republicans expect to pour on the campaign and financial coal for Rep. James D. Martin, the GOP candidate for governor.

Martin was one of five Republicans who won House seats in Alabama in 1964.

Strike Brings Traffic Snarl in Italy

ROME (AP) — A 24-hour strike halted all public transportation in Italy today except for the national railroad.

Municipal and intercity buses, streetcars, subways and privately operated trains were stopped as workers represented by both Communist and non-Communist unions walked off their jobs.

The government mobilized army buses and trucks, and private truck companies also helped. Extra police squads were assigned to handle the resulting crush of automobile traffic in Rome.

The strike, called for higher wages and fringe benefits, came at the height of the Italian vacation season.

TOKYO (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says it would be a "serious mistake" for any Asian country under U.S. protection to develop its own nuclear force to counter Red China's.

McNamara said in an interview with a Japanese magazine:

"Under no conceivable circumstances, would you develop as large a nuclear force as we presently have, so it would be an utter waste for you and for others who are in a similar position."

RHODES, Greece (AP) — The Greek government has halted plans to expel 400 Turkish subjects from the Dodecanese Islands.

An agreement between the Greek and Turkish governments was worked out over the weekend permitting Turkish subjects to remain on Greek soil only as long as the Turkish government permits Greeks to remain in Turkey.

Reds Choose Right Time, Place to Set Up Major Battleground

PLEIKU, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Communists have chosen the right time and the right place if they have decided to make the central Vietnamese plateau a major battleground.

That is the conclusion of senior U. S. military officers after a week of sporadic fighting in which the North Vietnamese made the most of the persistent rain and the jungle.

American units were cut off twice because of bad weather. A company from the 25th Division held out against overwhelming odds, a platoon from the 1st Cavalry, Airmobile Division was overrun.

These two actions were comparatively small but they demonstrate vividly how the weather can cut down the performance of the most modern army drastically.

The 1st Cavalry has 470 helicopters, and some of them were only five minutes flying time from the surrounded platoon. None of the helicopters could be used because visibility was down to zero.

Reinforcements had to slog on foot through the rain-drenched jungle. They took all night to cover 4,000 yards.

★ ★ ★

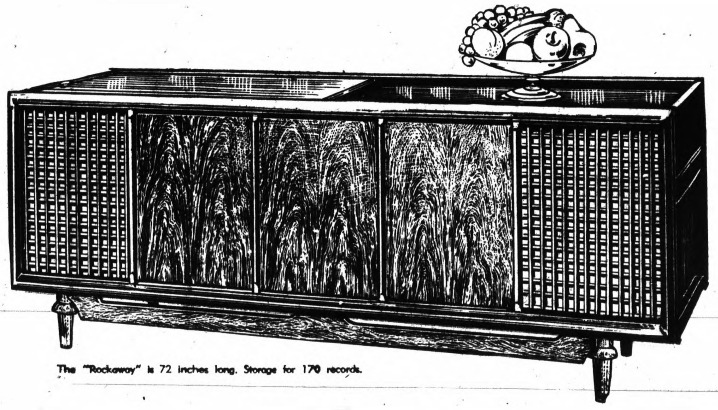

The Communist forces have been quick to take advantage of the rains and mists that began sweeping across the broad, central plateau adjoining Cambodia on the night of July 24. U. S. intelligence officers determined that North Vietnamese troops began moving into Viet Nam in at least five different locations, ranging from Ia Drang Valley on the south to north of Dog Co.

Only Teen-Agers Get Selves Into Such Situations

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Growing pains are really wonderful. Some day the memories of those teen years will send you into gales of laughter.

It's a time when everything seems so important, and life is full of all sorts of minor frustrations.

For example, have you ever:

- Tried to make the biscuits come out even with the gravy. (It's hard to succeed).
- Had two invitations for the same night after a dateless month (Always happens).
- Been able to make the gas last so you won't have to fill up the car before taking it home (The last drop usually goes at the witching hour.)
- Crammed to get better grades so that you can get your allowance increased? (Marks are lower than usual.)
- Tried to get rid of a blemish before a big dance (It gets worse).
- Waited interminably for the phone call that really counts? (Like waiting for a pot to boil.)
- Made tremendous progress on a diet and then get an invitation to "the picnic?" (Potato salad and all that sort of thing.)
- Tried to acquire a suntan before anyone sees you white, white winter skin? (Everyone makes it but you).
- Make the soda last until the ice cream is finished? (It's worth a prize).
- Been able to get into that special dress you've been saving for a big event? (The pounds came from nowhere).
- Had a fellow bring flowers for the big dance without giving him the nudge? (Or two or three nudges).
- Been in a cloudburst just as you are about to step into his convertible with the top down? (And your friends will never see you if he puts it up).
- Had your mother give your age away when you've pretended to be older? (And noted the hurt expression on the deceived one's face).
- Had to go home before the pizza pie was served? (A gustatory blows of huge proportion).
- Raced against time to get those socks finished before his birthday? (Only to find that his feet had grown).
- Waited impatiently to find out if you are a candidate for summer school? (You'll lose if you have something wildly exciting that you want to do instead).
- Worried that no one will ask you to dance? (You looked so grim, that no one did ask).

Style, Her Doing

A girl's fashion education begins the first time she looks in a mirror, but a boy becomes clothes conscious only when this same girl becomes interested in him, says Ron Postal of the National Council of Men's Fashions.

Government Funds Aid School Budgets

The effects of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act—which has brought $3,220,748 in federal money to Oakland County schools this year — will be felt in increasing degrees.

Federal money will account for 3 to 4 per cent of the nearly $100 million that will be spent to operate schools in the county this year.

Initial programs for educationally deprived children began last January when $2,680,000 was granted in Title I assistance to local school districts. Title I funds are given directly to individual districts for programs and materials.

One of the programs covered by this grant provided special training at Oakland Schools for 37 teachers to work with educationally deprived youngsters.

* * *

Faculty members from Pontiac, Waterford Township, Lake Orion, Troy, Avondale, Farmington and Holly gained the background necessary to set up reading improvement programs in their own districts.

READING CLINIC

Their full-time, eight-week courses included lectures as well as supervised practice in the Oakland Schools Reading Clinic.

The major portion of Title I grants were spent by local school districts to buy books and other instructional materials their own budgets did not furnish.

The first deliveries of the new materials were made early in the spring, with the remainder expected to be ready for use by the time school starts.

* * *

Two grants have been made to Oakland Schools under Title II of the act. Title II funds are designated for improvement of instructional media and, in Michigan, are handled by the intermediate, or county, school districts.

One of Oakland Schools' grants is for $19,000 to cover a survey of the number and quality of teaching materials other than books now available in the schools.

Another phase of the survey will be the planning of an effective system of making libraries of film, tape recordings and other learning materials available to classroom teachers throughout the county.

* * *

A $40,000 grant will begin a professional library for teachers and school administrators. A library committee headed by William Tillman, Lamphere Schools curriculum director, has put films and professional journals at the top of the priority list.

$454,458 GRANT

The benefits of a $454,458 grant to Oakland Schools under Title III should be felt in every district before the second semester begins in February.

Title III of the act provides funds for model or exemplary programs.

In Oakland County, the money will finance the training of 45 teachers, pay their salaries and program costs for reading improvement programs in elementary and secondary schools and for high school speech correction classes.

* * *

At least one model program is to be set up in each of the 29 districts in the county.

Benefits to students from a grant of $37,290 to design new mathematics courses should be evident in the 1967-68 school year.

The money was made available to give teachers time and resources to plan high school mathematics courses for young people who will not go to college.

* * *

Dr. David Wells, director of instruction for Oakland Schools, will direct the study.

Slow, Fast Pupils Can Pace Selves

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Ralph Andersen never went beyond the seventh grade, but he has perfected a machine that will help youngsters to read, write and spell early in life.

He calls it the "Andersen Learning Lab," or the "Andersen Phonics Lab."

Andersen admits having been a "slow-learner" in school. Some 30 years later, he developed a machine to help others over the rough early years when reading, writing and spelling are crucial for the "bestowed honors" of a classroom.

His machine works this way:

A pupil sits in a booth, attaches earphones and watches a lighted glass box before him. The letter "A" appears over the lighted glass, and a voice on the earphones pronounces "A."

With a pencil, the pupil traces the letter on paper to the best of his ability. This goes on through the alphabet.

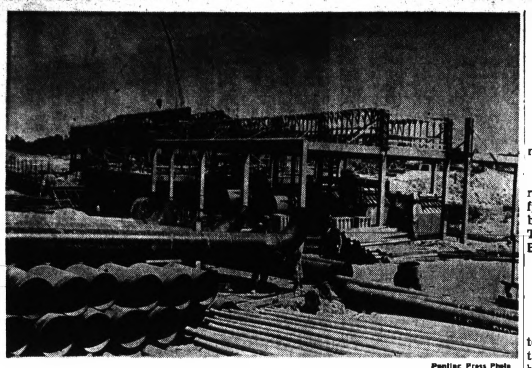

Andersen's machine is rigged so that teachers can change from letters to small words to which first graders are accustomed.

Once patented and announced, Andersen sold a number of the contraptions. His biggest order, for 28 machines, went to the elementary schools of Indio, Calif.

"Each child can advance individually according to his natural abilities," Andersen said. "He competes only with himself."

Not Committed

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Parents examining the report cards sent home with their children from Parkrose High School found this reminder on the card in bold type: "The parents' signature indicates that the report has been examined, not necessarily approved."

OCC'S THIRD CAMPUS — Construction of buildings on Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus is moving at full speed this summer to permit opening of the facilities by fall 1967. The $16-million complex is growing on a 147-acre site south of I-696 between Farmington and Orchard Lake roads in Farmington Township. The community college, is about to begin its second year of operation on its Auburn Hills and Highland Lakes campuses, in Pontiac and Waterford townships respectively.

OCC Geared to Needs of Community

The goal of persons associated with Oakland Community College is to make the college "in fact as well as in name, a facility geared to the needs of the community," according to OCC President John E. Tirrell.

"As we enter into our second year of operation, I am pleased at the progress we have made thus far, but neither the board of trustees nor those of us at the college can afford the luxury of looking back — the magnitude of the job yet to be done is far too apparent," Tirrell said.

Oakland Community College was established by the electorate of Oakland County June 8, 1964. Just 15 months later it opened its doors on two campuses to 3,860 students, a record opening enrollment for a community college to this time.

An anticipated 4,500-5,000 student body is expected for this September and projections indicate an enrollment of 12,000-15,000 by 1970.

Implementation of the Independent Study Approach used at the college — wherein a student can study in a learning laboratory at a time convenient to him rather than be bound to regularly scheduled classes — has attracted national attention.

Educators from Florida to California are continuously visiting the college to see for themselves how the instructional program works and to ask questions of those responsible for the administration of the program.

The present record for distance traveled to visit OCC is held by the deputy director, Department of Education of the Republic of Bechuanaland, a British protectorate located near the Union of South Africa, which will obtain its independence in September.

Innovation at OCC is not limited to the instructional program, Tirrell said.

The new Orchard Ridge Campus, presently under construction in Farmington Township, for all intents and purposes will be a campus without classroom

"It is our intent," OCC Board Chairman George Mosher stated, "to have our buildings reflect the instructional program rather than put our program into an attractive structure.

"We were quite pleased," Mosher continued, "when the plan for the Orchard Ridge Campus received an award citation in architectural exhibit competition in the recent annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators.

"Work on the Orchard Ridge Campus is progressing very well and we are eagerly looking forward to September, 1967, when students will attend that campus for the first time."

INTEREST GREAT

Interest in the instructional approach to be offered by the college was such that upwards of 3,000 applications for teaching positions were received, according to OCC Vice President for Instruction Albert A. Canfield.

"When we completed staffing for the first year," Canfield said, "we discovered that our faculty members had resided, worked, or had obtained academic degrees in Michigan Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Indiana, Oregon, New York, Colorado, Massachusetts, Kentucky, Iowa, Illinois, New Mexico, Tennessee, Missouri, Kansas, Florida, Rhode Island, Maryland, Texas, Minnesota, North Carolina, New Jersey, and Canada, Ecuador, Guatemala, France, Spain and Guam.

"We have been extremely fortunate in this regard," Canfield added, "for it is certainly healthy to have students expose to competent instructors who bring with them first-hand knowledge of other states and countries."

The peril of having top-flight personnel already have left their mark on OCC, for three key people have been tapped for other positions, Canfield said.

He noted Joe U. Davenport, former dean of the Highland Lake Campus, has been appointed president of Colorado Mountain College; Director of Campus Development Lloyd H. Van-Buskirk was appointed business manager for the newly created Washtenaw Community College; and English Prof. William M. Boast was selected by a newly formed arm of the Peace Corps for an overseas assignment.

Color Cards Match Pupils to Buses in Bloomfield Hills

Color the bus green — or you may not have any passengrs!

* * *

Color itself, whether green, red or another hue, is the identifying mark of the right school bus for youngsters attending the Traub Elementary School in Bloomfield Hills.

For them, a colored card in the window of the school bus means it's their bus or the wrong bus.

Traub School's coloring system is one of three identification innovations which are used by schools in the Bloomfield Hills School District.

* * *

Other elementary schools use a lettering system while an 'adult' numbering system marks the buses for senior and junior high school students.

IDENTIFICATION

Bus identification, however, is only one of the numerous problems faced by the district as it attempts to transport nearly 5,000 of its students to 11 schools. Most of the problems must be, and are, solved during the summer months.

Before school reopens in September, new buses must be ordered and old buses disposed of, maintenance and safety certification must be completed before the buses are put into service, drivers must be hired and trained, intricate scheduling of 55 buses on a precise and safe timetable must be completed and distributed, fuel contracts signed, and may more minute details completed.

Accomplishment of these tasks is the responsibility of Transportation Director Erwin Johnson, Dispatcher Ervin E. Thomas and their staffs.

* * *

Some measure of the tasks is apparent by the successful results of the 1965-66 school year, results which must be reported to the Michigan State Department of Education and which must meet the standards set by the State.

Last year 4,755 students were transported by the school buses an average of 2,281.3 miles per school day. Of these students, 3,385 were fully eligible for transportation by State standards.

In addition, seven buses were assigned to pick up 509 parochial school students in the Bloomfield Hills School District and five van-type vehicles transported 48 special education students to schools outside of the district.

* * *

An increase in students is expected in the forthcoming school year, says Erwin Johnson.

FLEET UPDATED

In the latter part of this summer, 31 new buses arrived to replace older vehicles in the Bloomfield Hills fleet. These buses, plus those which will remain in service, were required to meet a stringent inspection by the police department.

"All public school buses must be inspected," Johnson said. "State aid for transportation will not be granted for buses for which there is no service report on file indicating good or serviceable condition."

Three experienced mechanics and three assistants spend each summer repairing and cleaning the buses. Several of the vehicles are reconditioned by commercial firms where major work is done.

* * *

Police inspectors check all mechanical parts and all accessories before issuing the necessary certification.

Meanwhile, Thomas and his assistant, Lois Eason, work hard preparing the 135-150 schedules for school opening.

These all had to be produced in quantity for distribution to school children. Each of the 11 Bloomfield Hills schools received quantities for their needs.

Complexity of scheduling is almost as difficult to explain as it is to complete. The results of the dispatcher's work can be seen at any of the schools a few minutes before school begins each morning.

Each of the bus drivers has followed a route which schedules the stops and timing precisely, each arriving at the school 15 minutes before class begins.

The activity begins when drivers, mostly women, arrive at East Hills Junior High School at 6:30 a.m. to start work.

They make their morning trips in the afternoon until, by 5:45 p.m. each day the children have been safely transported to and from school and the buses are back in the garage being readied for the next day's work.

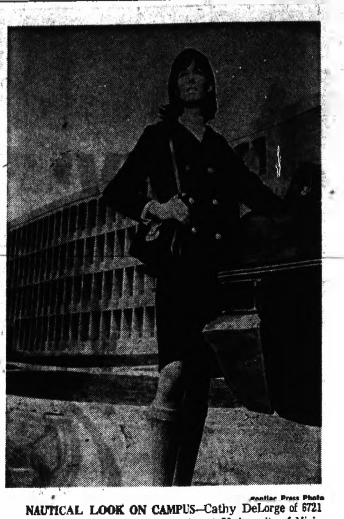

*

Drivers, five of whom are new this year, are predominately housewives. Forty-two are women and there are 11 men. Each works five and a half hours, the per diem minimum required by the school district.

Many spend extra hours driving special outings on weekends; to ski resorts for the ski club, to other schools for meetings, etc.

Each driver must pass stringent physical examinations before they are hired by the school district. Each is trained in a three year training program while they are on the job.

Training sessions are generally held after working hours at one of the schools.

TEACHER TALK—Harry Hahn, professor of education at Oakland University, explains to a group of Oakland County teachers the language arts approach to teaching children to read. The language arts method is one of three approaches being studied by Hahn under a $60,000 federal grant.

In Reading Research Program

Pupils Become Authors

By L. GARY THORNE

"What youngsters need more than anything else is a personal secretary, someone to listen."

This is the novel solution advocated for the continuing "why Johnny can't read" syndrome by an Oakland University reading expert.

Harry T. Hahn, OU professor of education, is in charge of a large-scale reading research program probing ways in which Johnny can learn to read.

The "personal secretary" approach, whereby young students — first and second graders — dictate their expressions to be recorded by a teacher, is one aspect of the language arts method of teaching reading.

* * *

It is one of three teaching methods being tested in the research program that takes in 36 classrooms across Oakland County.

FEDERAL FUNDS

The project, financed through a $60,000 grant from the U. S. office of Education, is in its second year.

Involving 700 to 900 youngsters, the three methods under study include the language arts approach (LAA), the Initial Teaching Alphabet (ITA) and the traditional basic reader approach.

While crediting each method with its own advantages, Hahn is obviously excited by the language arts approach.

* * *

The OU professor said the object is to use the children's own language. Even the most culturally-deprived youngsters are able to communicate.

"We seek to get them to elaborate," he explained. "Reading after all is talk written down."

The child as early as the second day of school may dictate (write) a story with the teacher as his "personal secretary."

* * *

The story, said Hahn, is usually of the child's own experiences. "This gets them interested." The pupil is then allowed to draw pictures to illustrate the story.

BUDDING "AUTHORS"

Through the use of cardboard and special covering, "books" are made for the students and the youngsters become "authors."

"We build their self-esteem. Boy, are they proud," said Hahn.

Prior to the story writing, students learn individual letters and their respective sounds.

Hahn said both the students and teachers find LAA exciting.

* * *

While the language arts approach has enjoyed a revival since experiments were conducted in the late 1950's, Hahn said the ideas are not new.

ITA is not new either. Conceived by Sir James Pitman, the ITA method teaches children to read through the use of demonstrating a better sound-symbol relationship thant the traditional 26 letters.

* * *

According to Hahn, the biggest benefit of ITA has been that it taught teachers to be innovators, releasing them from old teaching methods.

The control group in the reading research is youngsters learning to read from the traditional basic reader. This approach has as its basic advantage the controlled, step-by-step sequential development of reading skills, according to Hahn.

And "why can't Johnny read"?

* * *

Hahn said reading research has isolated five factors why some Johnnies can't read.

Usually such students: (1) can't elaborate, (2) can't use extension words, like "as" and "because," (3) often take fixed positions about things, (4) have limited vocabularies, and (5) use incomplete sentences.

Personal Secretaries may combat these shortcomings," he concluded.

Maintenance Men Busy Through Summer

New Look Brightens Pontiac Schools

In the excitement of returning to school this fall, it will be pretty easy for Pontiac youngsters to overlook the accomplishments of the men who spent their summers sprucing up the schools.

The students will be getting acquainted with new classmates and teachers and comparing their new back-to-school outfits.

But the work of the school district's operation and maintenance employes will be there in the background, contributing to the feeling of newness.

Several of the improvement projects have been handled by outside contractors.

However, most of the work is being done by the 210 employes who are under the supervision of Cloyd I. Houts, director of maintenance, and William J. Carr, director of operation.

SERVICE CENTER

From the service building at 650 N. Saginaw, crews of men go daily to the district's 36 schools while others remain in the shops at headquarters.

One of the projects certain to be noticed by pupils is the complete rehabilitation of the Eastern Junior High School auditorium. Highlighting the project is replacement of the 38-year-old plywood seats with upholstered ones.

At Lincoln Junior High School, a new electric stage panel will be installed in the auditorium.

* * *

While painting is done at all of the schools, the entire third floor of Pontiac Central High School will receive new coats of paint.

Some new lights also are to be installed at Pontiac Central and at Owens, Malkim, Willis and Webster elementary schools.

At Washington Junior High School, the heating plant is being converted from coal to gas and at Owen Elementary School the boilers are being moved from under the building into a new addition.

* * *

Malkim's water lines are being connected to city mains, discontinuing use of a well there.

OUTSIDE PROJECTS

Outside, the workers have blacktopping projects at Willis, Wisner, Irving, Crofoot and Franklin elementary schools. The Wisner parking lot also will be marked for Pontiac Central's drivers' training program.

Site development projects have been undertaken at Crofoot and Alcott elementary schools while sidewalk work is being done at Kennedy and Madison junior high schools and Whitfield, McCarroll, Franklin, Irving, Frost and Bethune elementary schools.

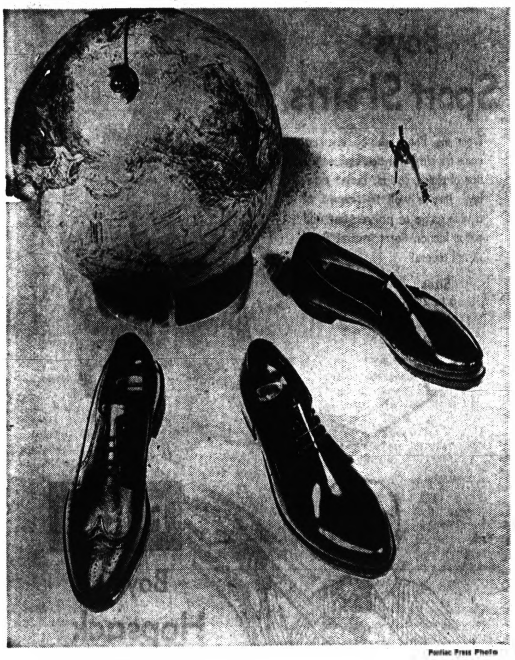

Throughout the district, an extensive landscaping effort is being made, including the installation of underground sprinkling systems and planting of shrubs and trees at several sites.

FURNITURE PROGRAM

The program to rehabilitate classroom furniture is carried out at the service building.

School officials estimate that 8,000 to 10,000 pieces of furniture are refinished there annually and that about half of this work is done during the summer recess.

Each year, then, about 20 per cent of the school system's furniture is refinished. This work is credited with keeping the district's budget allocation for purchase of new furniture at a relatively low $35,000.

DESK DUTY — Two Pontiac School System painters—Neal Cook (left) of 2574 Litchfield, Waterford Township, and Gene Campbell of 142 Perkins — refinish the tops of desks which will be used by young students this fall. They are among 210 operations and maintenance workers now getting the district's schools in shape for the return of teachers and pupils.

Graduates who just framed diplomas are now framing replies to job questionnaires.

New School Year Promises to be Important in Waterford

The 1966-67 school year promises to be one of Waterford's more important years, according to Dr. Don O. Tatroe, superintendent Waterford Schools.

With the authority granted by the voters in June, nearly every school, except the newest ones, is slated for a needed remodeling project or addition to improve its facilities.

TATROE

Each elementary school will receive a multi-purpose gymnasium and library if it does not already have these facilities this year. Needed classrooms will be added and other improvements to sites and parking areas are to be made.

Lights are to be added at the Kettering athletic field, a track will be constructed at the Township field, and new seating will be provided at both schools. A new high school and elementary school will also be started.

So, 1966-67 will be a significant year because of construction of new school facilities. But it will also be important for the improvement being made in the educational program and materials.

Large numbers of new library books have been acquired. The pupil-teacher ratio has been reduced. The quality of the teaching staff is at an all time high. Some 326 students are enrolled in data processing classes.

VOCATIONAL CLASSES

The vocational classes and coop program may continue to maintain the higher holding power achieved in recent years (90.4 per cent of the 1962 ninth graders were 12th graders in 1965, up from 66 per cent seven years ago).

New classes in electronics and radio production are offered in this year's curriculum. The highly successful ITA (initial teaching alphabet) and other reading experiments are continuing. The community school and adult education offerings will be still larger this year.

And the learning improvement center program will become fully operational and effective in helping to remediate early learning problems.

* * *

The cloud on the horizon, however, is still the unsettled contract with the Waterford Education Association, though every responsible effort is being made to conclude an agreement before the opening of school.

Recruitment Campaign Is Successful

The moment of truth for the prospective Pontiac teacher comes when Lewis A. Crew asks himself, "Would I want this person to teach my children?"

L. CREW

The director of instructional personnel services has had many an occasion to ponder this question during recent months as he worked toward filling 195 vacancies before school starts.

And his three children have played an important, if unknowing, role in the selection of nearly that number — and the rejection of hundreds of others.

Crew this year was required to conduct a more extensive recruitment campaign that ever before. In 1965, for instance, 150 new teachers were needed.

* * *

VACANCIES

"We had by far the largest number of positions this year," he said. "But by the time school starts, they all will be staffed except for a few specialized positions, which always is the case."

Crew noted that all new teachers will be fully certificated and that all will hold at least bachelors' degrees.

Good grades and high performance in practice teaching are other considerations.

* * *

"We're getting more and more selective each year," he said.

Of the 195 vacancies he needed to fill, about 40 were additional positions for program improvement.

"The board of education has been real generous this year," Crew commented.

* * *

Some 20 teachers had to be hired to handle the district's anticipated enrollment increase over last year.

RETIRING TEACHERS

Another 32 vacancies were created by teachers who retired.

"A significantly large number of teachers are going back to college for further training," Crew said, noting that many have received fellowships for advanced study.

"Then there are the usual problems of marriage and maternity," he said. "There are very few moving from the system to get a better job."

Pontiac School System's teacher recruitment drive started early in February when Crew sent lists of anticipated vacancies to 75 of the institutions accredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

Revised lists of the positions to be filled were sent out at least once a month thereafter.

On the list of needed instructional personnel this year were positions for 73 secondary and 82 elementary teachers, with the rest being in specialized areas.

PROSPECTIVE TEACHERS

Crew and five other central administrators in February began visiting 27 Midwestern colleges and universities to interview prospective teachers.

In line with the school board policy aiming at racially-balanced faculties, the administrators travelled to six predominantly Negro teacher-training institutions, five of which are in the South.

Crew estimates that 50 per cent of his new teachers will come straight from colleges and universities.

If favorably impressed with a candidate, Crew invites him to visit Pontiac for further interviews.

Working to his advantage in attracting teachers to Pontiac, Crew said, are the district's location and a favorable salary schedule with a base pay of $5,800.

However, salary usually is not foremost in the minds of young people embarking on a teaching career, Crew said.

He cited a National Education Association study of the behavior patterns of college graduates, which indicated location is the prime factor for elementary teachers.

For those on the secondary level, subject preference predominates.

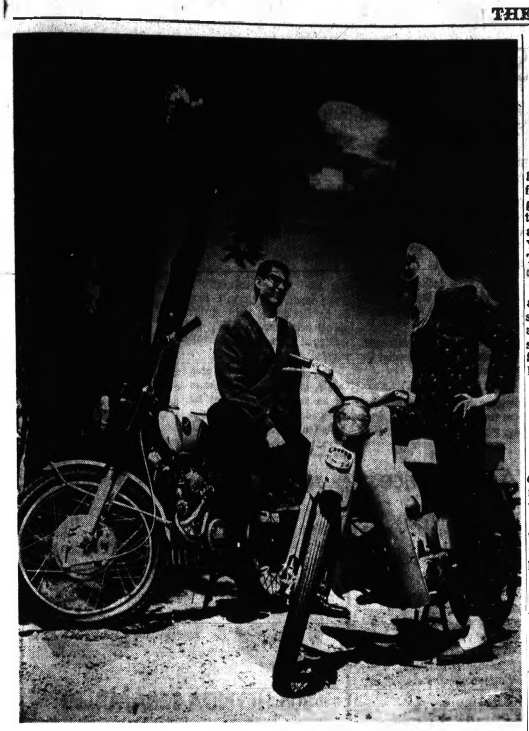

Weighing these factors, Crew is confident there will be less that 10 vacancies on the instructional staff when school opens.

Federal Funds Aid Summer Program

Elementary school pupils from low income West Bloomfield Township families were given an opportunity to develop their reading and speaking abilities, according to Raymond Young, program director of the Title 1 Remedial Reading course.

The increased capabilities, according to program aims, should generate more positive attitudes toward self and schooling in the 75 participants from Roosevelt School and Our Lady of Refuge Parish.

The project was funded by federal money apportioned under the provision of the Elementary-Secondary Education Act of 1965.

Eleven teacers met the students in a one to eight ratio four hours a day, five days a week during late June and July.

A speech correctionist, a counselor, and a teacher aid also worked with the group.

PROGRAMMED MATERIALS

In the classroom, students worked with Science Research Associates programmed materials on vocabulary and comprehension.

Peabody Language Development Kits containing material to stimulate story telling and verbal discussion were also utilized.

These kits show the student that what he says can be written down.

* * *

Frequent field trips furnished new background experiences for many of the children.

Visits to a bank, an aquarium, stores, and a train ride from Pontiac to Detroit provided concrete images to use in their writing.

"Significant success is possible because we are actually meeting the child at his own level," said Young.

The hoped for gains in reading ability and positive attitudes toward self and schooling are currently being evaluated.

There were 4.1 million births last year in the United States. The estimate for this year is 4.5 million.

School Project Involves Computer

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Twelve elementary school children taking part in an experimental project at Stanford University can't talk back to their teacher. But then the teacher can't talk back to them.

The students, from a nearby Palo Alto grammar school, are taught by computers.

Dr. Patrick Suppes, head of the Institute of Mathematical Studies in Social sciences, cautioned that the computers are not designed to replace live teachers.

"Teachers now spend between one and one and a half hours a day just looking over the work books of their students. That kind of work can be eliminated with the use of computers," he said.

Dr. Suppes and his team are operating on a $1.5 million Carnegie Corp. grant, one of the largest ever made to a private institution.

The students answer questions flashed on the machine's screen either with an electric stylus or a typewriter keyboard.

The computers store a record of his answers and analyze his progress.

Oakland Schools Will Launch Sessions in Language Arts

By DAVID COOK

Forty-five Pontiac area teachers will begin the 1966-67 school year next month with a new view of the classroom.

In two separate sessions, the first beginning Sept. 6, they will undergo special training at the Oakland Schools service center to help implement a series of experimental language arts instruction courses.

Upon completion off the 8-week course, the teachers will return to schools throughout the county to start into motion five courses aimed at improvement in reading, writing, and speaking.

Techniques and aims of the five courses have been defined by the federal government, which also provided for their implementation with a $454,300 grant under Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

One of the projects, aimed at junior and senior high school students, will set up a 1,000-book reading room at the participating school.

TEACHER TRAINED

The reading room will be conducted by a teacher sent by the participating school for special training next month.

Books will include novels, drama, poetry, short stories, and nonfiction. The reading level of the books will range from sixth grade through college.

"We're hoping that students can get 'hooked' on books at this age as opposed, perhaps, to getting hooked on tobacco," commented Oakland Schools Supt. Dr. William J. Emerson.

* * *

Frequently a student who reads widely and reads self-chosen books will carry over this knowledge to writing, speaking, and critical thinking."

Another of the programs also deals in reading habits and techniques, but focuses on students in grades 7-8.

"This is not the kind of situation where we have nonreaders," Emerson said.

"These people can read, but their skills haven't been sharpened up to the point where they can attack junior and senior high school subject matter."

NEED HELP

"They need technical help," he said, "help that in most cases is available only from a specialist."

The other three programs are fundamentally remedial in their aims.

Two, designed for use in elementary schools, deal with improvement in reading and writing, while a third is directed toward "poor speech habits" in junior and senior high school students.

* * *

One of the elementary programs, to be used in the second and third grades, is described by Emerson as an attempt to avoid "years of wasted experience."

TENDER AGE

"These children are at a tender age," he explained. "In cases where they don't seem to be developing, this project should help their reading and writing at a time when it really counts."

The other elementary project is basically an extension of the same approach at the 4-6 grade level. Students will be given assistance in "reading independently for academic purposes."

The secondary school speech program, Emerson emphasized, "is not for students having speech anomalies." A speech anomaly is a speech irregularity.

"Rather," he said, "we want to get at this problem of slovenly articulation and failure to speak properly.

"In our society mature people are expected to adhere to some standards of articulation and some standards of appropriate speech.

"When people don't observe these standards, they aren't listened to as strongly as they should be and are generally not as effective as employes or persons."

Movies Used in Classroom

Motion pictures are being used experimentally to loosen up tongue-tied students.

After a series of showings of pictures, such as "Hud," "High Noon," "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," and "Citizen Kane," English teachers have found classes eager to comment on issues raised in these movies.

"You wouldn't believe it," said a teacher in a Chestnut Hills, Pa., prep school, "but some of my students identified with the hero and considered themselves losers like him.

"Others felt that Hud was really a winner because he'd maintained his self-respect even though he could never hope for another pool hall job."

Another teacher commented that his students swept into an analysis of middle-class values after seeing a movie, something they would never have questioned without this stimulus.

"OTHER HALF"

Others saw for the first time "how the other half lives," and expressed the thought that human decency could be maintained even in a slum setting.

Previously, the class had resisted the usual weekly theme, confession "they had nothing to say."

Now, the teacher reported, they wrote with fluidity and feeling.

* * *

Sponsors of the film project, the Motion Picture Association of America, Inc., are particularly pleased because the showings have had great impact in schools in disadvantaged areas, where students are notoriously inarticulate.

Idea Different in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Don't teach your baby to read or you may damage him for life, the official organ of the South African Teachers Association has warned parents.

* * *

"Science cannot yet foresee the psychological and physical evils that could affect a person who has been forced to develop his intellectual capacity before the time prescribed by nature," it said.

A child should only be taught to read and write about the time when his teeth change, said the journal, "Education."

Before that time a child is still in a state of growth. Exposing a child before his sixth year to reading means stealing, or wrongfully employing, forces which should be used to form a strong and healthy body, it said.

Friction can create temperatures up to 275 degrees in automobile tires.

Appearances Affect Way He Behaves

Many schools require uniforms as a standard of dress. Uniforms reduce differences between individuals and put all on a nearly even basis as far as appearance is concerned. They become an effective disciplinary tool.

* * *

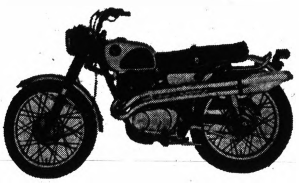

Administrators find that students have a different feeling about themselves when they are physically clean and when their clothes are clean. Students who are always clean and appropriately dressed are better equipped to enter all phases of school work. They are good school citizens.

* * *

Everyday school clothes are important. Behavior usually matches a student's dress. Extreme variations in dress may result in disciplinary problems, delinquency and school dropouts.

A pattern of sloppy appearance and inattention to school work results in poor grades. Good study habits generally result when appearance in dress is upgraded.

In Waterford School District

Construction Projects Readied

Progress will be the byword this forthcoming school year in the Waterford Township School District.

Three projects, totaling about $1 million, are near completion and will be ready for use this fall.

New construction, estimated to cost $10.8 million, will soon get under way, thanks to voter consent in the June 13 election.

Included in the current construction program are two new elementary schools — Cherokee Hills and Manley — and an addition to a third, Riverside.

* * *

Located on Wewoka Road, Cherokee Hills School is expected to accommodate about 221 pupils in the 1966-67 school year.

Its serious sewerage problem was solved by the city of Pontiac's offer to provide sewer service.

The school will have as its principal Mrs. Bessie Hoppenrath, who held a similar post at Stringham School.

Manley Elementary School, located on Van Zandt Street, was named after Frank J. Manley, the father of Flint's nationally-renowned community school program.

* * *

Donald L. Smith will take over as principal at Manley, transferring from a similar job at Lotus Lake School. Enrollment will be an estimated 379.

Boundaries of Waterford Village, Drayton Plains and Monteith schools have been changed to create an attendance area for Manley School.

The Manley attendance area is bounded by Hatchery Road, Airport Road, Williams Lake Road, Dixie Highway and the homes on the east side of Frembes.

* * *

The attendance areas of Leggett and Donelson schools have been altered to create the Cherokee Hills School attendance area, bounded by Elizabeth Lake Road, both sides of Marion and Lorraine Manor Subdivision.

NEW SCHOOLS

The two new schools increase the number of elementary buildings in the Waterford Township School District to 28.

In addition, there are three junior high schools and two high schools.

Voter acceptance of two bonding proposals on the June 13 ballot will provide a new high school at Pontiac Lake and Scott Lake roads, a new elementary school in the Crescent Lake area and widespread alterations to existing buildings.

* * *

Cost of the high school is estimated at $4 million and the elementary school at $595,000.

Included in improvements earmarked for existing schools are construction of gymnasium-multipurpose rooms at 20 elementary schools for an estimated $2.5 million and 13 new primary library-instructional materials centers for about $480,000.

Bonds will be sold to finance construction of the new projects, followed by advertising of bids and awarding of contracts before actual construction begins.

* * *

Also earmarked for construction during the 1966-67 school year are three new pedestrian overpasses to upgrade walking safety conditions for schoolchildren in the township.

* * *

Financed jointly by the school district and township, the overpasses will be located on Scott Lake Road for Cherokee Hills pupils, on Pontiac Lake Road for Leggett School pupils and on Williams Lake Road for Schoolcraft pupils.

The township presently boasts two pedestrian overpasses on Elizabeth Lake Road near Stringham School and over Walton Boulevard near Mason Junior High School.

SAY, ARE THESE THE WILDEST? — New fashion frames in white shell from Nu Vision Optical, downtown.

Volunteers Aid Is Tutorial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tutoring has almost taken on the proportions of a national movement, the National Education Association (NEA) reports.

This is true especially when it comes to children whose homes have been unable to provide them with the cultural background that makes for success in school.

Typical of the tutorial programs: the North Carolina Volunteers. This group, sponsored by the North Carolina Fund, aimed to help lift people out of poverty row.

The volunteers have found that some of their most needed and appreciated work is one form or another of academic tutoring.

At the North Carolina Advancement School in Winston-Salem, where potentially good students are given a crash program in improving skills and attitudes, volunteer tutors from nearby colleges add to the emphasis on individualized instruction.

* * *

Another typical tutoring program operates in Providence, R. I. College and high school students tutor elementary school youngsters needing special help. The project is known as "Operation Uplift."

The NEA said many Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA) are young persons who want to help fight the national war against poverty.

Service-minded young men and women are working with the Job Corps, Neighborhood Youth Corps, and in many other ways to help the less lucky enjoy a fair share of the opportunities which keep life on the up-beat, the NEA said.

Voters approved $2,306 million in school bonds last year, an increase of $199 million over 1963.

Check List for Parents

Is Your Child Ready for Kindergarten?

Parents are teachers too.

At no time is this more evident than when a child enters kindergarten.

Whether the child starts school well-prepared for the program of learning depends a great deal on whether his parents understand what is required and have been doing something about it.

Mrs. John Butler, assistant director of elementary education for the Pontiac School System, has listed some of the ways parents can prepare their children for school.

First of all, the child must realize that he is important, Mrs. Butler said.

DESIRE TO LEARN

Call him by name, praise him for every successful task, respect his ideas, listen to and try his suggestions, help with his activities when necessary and help him develop the desire to learn.

Also encourage, but do not force, him to try different tasks, she said. And urge him to ask questions.

Parents can help preschool children to develop adequate oral vocabularies.

Children will not learn to read words they cannot use when talking.

Through conversation, young children should learn to use words which describe tastes, smells, sounds and mathematical concepts — like "many," "few," "large," "small," "before" and "after."

Common names of many foods often are not known by children who enter kindergarten, Mrs. Butler noted.

* * *

Visual discrimination is an important key to a child's success in kindergarten and, later, when he learns to read.

RECOGNIZE DIFFERENCE

Youngsters who cannot distinguish between the words "was" and "saw" probably cannot see the difference between an oak leaf and a maple leaf, or between two pictures that are similar but different.

A child must learn to hear similarities and differences in sounds before he can experience success with the school phonics program, according to Mrs. Butler.

Teach the child to listen carefully, she said.

* * *

Ask him how many different sounds he can hear in the neighborhood, on television, in nature and in the city.

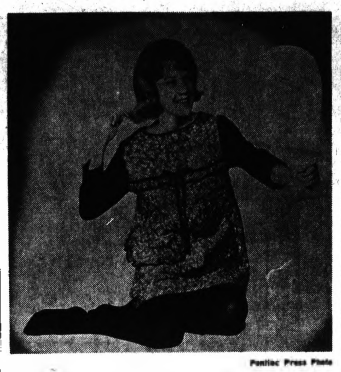

Muscular coordination can be built through activities like cutting with scissors, using crayons, sand and water play, climbing and playing with toys.

Preschool children should be able to follow directions, tell about events in sequence, take care of personal needs, dress themselves, share playthings, identify colors, learn some concept of time and count objects rather than just list numbers by rote.

* * *

They also should be able to use their senses of taste, smell, touch, sight and hearing.

Before entering kindergarten, the child should believe that school is important and that his teacher and principal are friends rather than disciplinarians.

Available at Winkleman's, Tel Huron Shopping Center.

Elementary School Classrooms Added

New classrooms, libraries and conference rooms are being added to eight elementary schools in the Pontiac District's current $1.2 million building program.

By the time school starts, additions are to be completed at Franklin, Whittier and Emerson elementary schools.

Portable units containing two classrooms each will have been installed at Owen, Hawthorne and Wisner schools.

Construction projects at Rogers and Herrington schools are not expected to be finished until November.

* * *

The building program is aimed at keeping pace with an anticipated enrollment increase of 400 pupils this year and at permitting the schools to come closer to their goal of assigning only 25 pupils to each classroom.

NEW WING

Largest project is the new wing at Herrington, which will double the size of the building.

The Herrington project covers 10 classrooms and a library. It will give the school the equivalent of 24 classrooms, although four of these constitute an orthopedic unit.

Also being completed as 20-classroom units are Franklin and Emerson schools.

Six classrooms and three conference rooms are being added to Franklin, while the addition at Emerson contains four classrooms, three conference rooms and a library.

Construction at Franklin allows provision for special education classes.

The conference rooms are smaller than regular classrooms — with about 225 square feet compared to 900 square feet of floor space.

* * *

In the more compact rooms, the teachers can work with individual pupils or groups of four or five youngsters who need help in a specific area. The rooms also will be used by visiting teachers, nurses and psychologists.

ROGERS ELEMENTARY

At Rogers, the addition, includes four classrooms and a library. The basic 10-room unit was designed to permit construction of this addition and another containing six rooms when enrollment increases dictate the need for extra space.

Renovation of an area which formerly was part of Jefferson Junior High School will give Whittier Elementary School a new library.

The board of education's decision to add portable units rather than permanent rooms to the other three schools was based on the age and locations of the buildings.

* * *

Officials note it is not economically feasible to put new rooms on a building that is already 40 years old and that it would be difficult to tie in existing corridors, plumbing, heating and so forth.

OU Workshop Puts Finger on Study Skills

By PAT McCARTY

The modern high school graduate on the threshold of higher education has a multitude of surprises in store for him.

To absorb some of the shock of adjusting to life on college and university campuses, 135 students this summer participated in Oakland University's Precollege Study Center program.

The intensive four-week workshop, which ended Friday, included training in study skills, enrichment classes, recreational and cultural activities plus a taste of campus living.

Of the total, 120 participants enrolled in the full program and 15 took one or more of the three enrichment courses offered in composition skills, mathematics and science.

★ ★ ★

One student, Thomas Rice, traveled from his home in Japan to attend the workshop in preparation for entering Iowa State University.

NOTEWORTHY — Learning how to take notes in "briefhand" are two Meadow Brook School of Music students, John Lyons of 23061 Britner, Bingham Farms, and Carolyn Thomas, 31275 Franklin, Franklin. Their work is checked by Harold J. Abrams, who devised the notetaking system. Abrams is director of Oakland University's Precollege Study Center.

STUDY SKILLS

A special study skills class also was conducted for 24 Meadow Brook School of Music students.

While the majority of the precollege workshop students commuted to campus daily for the classes, 43 stayed in OU dormitories.

The girls were housed in Fitzgerald and the boys in Pryale dormitory, with resident advisors assigned to each living unit.

This is the highest number of students to live on campus since the residency provision was added to the program three years ago, according to Harold J. Abrams, director of the study skills workshop which has been conducted at OU since 1961.

The preparatory workshop also is offered in the spring and fall when students attend classes on 15 consecutive Saturdays.

But the program is expanded and intensified during the summer session, Abrams said.

★ ★ ★

Emphasis of the curriculum is on the four study skills classes — reading and comprehension, vocabulary development, study skills and notetaking.

NOT REMEDIAL COURSE

"This is not the course for kids who need remedial help—it moves too swiftly," Abrams stressed.

Some of the students already have completed a year of college and others who enroll are adults returning to college after a lapse in their formal education.

But the courses primarily aid precollege students.

★ ★ ★

"In American students, the awareness of learning comes relatively late in life," Abrams said. "After high school, they take stock of themselves. They have the skills but are not knowledgeable in the use of those skills."

These young people also are aware of the attrition rate at colleges at the end of the freshman year.

Abrams noted that the workshop participants, particularly those who live on campus, develop a more independent outlook during the program.

EXPLORE SCHEDULE

Here they can explore their schedule without parental pressure, they are given more responsibility and they learn how to live with strangers.

"The biggest thing they have to adjust to is the fact that they're guiding themselves," Abrams said. "For instance, they don't go home, read a chapter and regurgitate it in class the next day."

The reading and comprehension class is aimed at increasing speed.

★ ★ ★

"Any student can be assured he will double his reading rate during the workshop," Abrams said, noting that some participants have built themselves up to 4,000 words a minute with 90 to 100 per cent comprehension.

The national average for college freshmen lies between 300 and 350 words a minute.

Abrams calls it a "nongimmick school of reading."

"BRIEFHAND"

A system of "briefhand" devised by Abrams is taught in the notetaking sessions. It is based on phonics and brief forms.

The students also learn how to use the library, how to schedule their time and how to study for a test.

They can enroll in one or two of the enrichment courses, which are conducted on a seminar basis.

★ ★ ★

There they are presented with a problem and seek a solution on the basis of their background.

Abrams said that these classes will be expanded next year to include definite areas of study in mathematics and the sciences.

With enrollment limited, time is assured for individual counseling by Abrams and seven other members of the faculty.

★ ★ ★

An informal atmosphere prevails during non-class hours.

Among the extracurricular activities offered are the Meadow Brook Festival; trips to stage shows, cinema, a baseball game and a coffee house; on-campus presentation of silent movies; dances; and parties.

Abrams noted that diagnostic testing is done at the beginning and end of the course. Parents and schools are notified of the results.

All staff members have broad backgrounds in education, psychology, counseling and the behavioral sciences, he noted.

Abrams is an Oakland Schools consultant who has headed the workshop since its inception.

Other faculty members are assistant director Samuel J. Yarger, psychologist and elementary school principal in Royal Oak; Raymond M. Kaluzynski, director of special education for the Carmen Schools near Flint; and E. Dale Freeman, Southfield High School mathematics teacher.

Also on the staff are Ray H. Lawson, Michigan Education Association president and head of Rochester High School's English department; Bert Mecsey, Hazel Park principal; Donnie Smith, Oak Park Schools psychologist; and Mrs. Mary M. White, Bloomfield Hills High School counselor.

Whole Ensemble Is to Be Washed

When you select back-to-school fashions for your youngster, make sure ensembles with fall's new "total look" are totally washable.

★ ★ ★

The National Cotton Council reminds you to check hang tags on each garment in a coordinated outfit. Linings and trims on a cotton outfit should be as washable as the garment itself.

Here's another tip. If a two or three-piece ensemble is to remain coordinated, all pieces should always look fresh and clean . . . so wash them the same number of times.

Waterford Registration Dates

Registration dates for the forthcoming school year have been listed for all students planning to attend junior and senior high schools in Waterford Township School District.

★ ★ ★

Roy J. Alexander, coordinator of secondary schools, emphasized that the junior high schools and senior high schools are on different registration schedules.

He also stressed that each school will be open only one night for registration.

Students from Waterford Township and Waterford-Kettering high schools can register from 8 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Aug. 25-26-29-30 at their respective schools.

★ ★ ★

In addition, high school students can register from 7 to 9 p.m. Aug. 30.

Students from Crary, Pierce and Mason junior high schools can register from 8 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 2:30 p.m. Aug. 30 and 31 and Sept. 1.

Junior high registration also will be conducted from 7 to 9 p.m. Aug. 31, according to Alexander.

Well Suited for Campus

Pant suits are off and running and have taken the lead as the most important sportswear item for back-to-school and campus wear. Little boy jackets with cuffed trousers in corduroy prints rate top billing as do pea jackets and stove pipe pants, some with a military and British influence and all tailored in luxurious wide wale corduroy. Muted prints and shades of plum, camel, cranberry and brown complete the fashion picture.

Start Day Right

A nourishing breakfast is a must for the school child, as it prevents mid-morning slump. Milk should always be included.

Good Teacher Is Dedicated

What makes a good teacher? Researchers have been trying to find out for half a century, and still aren't quite sure.

But apparently it is something that springs from an inborn capacity.

There are many facets to it. One of these, says the dean of the School of Education at Northwestern University, B. J. Chandler, is altruism.

DEDICATED

A good teacher must be altruistic enough to devote effort above and beyond the call of duty.

Such altruism plus sensitivity to the human needs of his students stems from a good moral upbringing and a teacher's own experiences in home and school.

"Some people naturally see themselves living a life that points them to do something for others as well as themselves," Dean Chandler comments.

A real teacher thinks a lot about his students and has a deep sense of satisfaction that in teaching he is having a part in shaping the future of his country, even though in another occupation he might make a lot more money.

Good teaching, Dean Chandler adds, doesn't depend on the possession of a master's or doctor's degree.

It does depend to a considerable extent on getting inquiries from students, instead of just telling them things.

Another authority, Frank Lloyd, director of the pre-collegiate school of the University of Chicago, says that enthusiasm and a sense of humor are important factors in teaching success.

"You have to recognize the ridiculousness of the world," he explains.

A good teacher, moreover, has a basic respect for a student's intelligence and his interests.

Community Schools to Expand Program

Five new secondary school programs developed as staff studies by Pontiac school administrators are scheduled to be put into operation this fall.

Total cost of the new programs is estimated at $30,580, of which $4,636 is reimbursable under state and federal aid programs.

The biggest of the new projects in terms of expense is the planned establishment of an additional community school program, permitting further expansion of building usage in the school district.

Full-time community schools with a salaried director presently exist at Jefferson-Whittier and McConnell Elementary.

Part-time programs are in operation at Bagley, Bethune and Franklin schools.

LOCATION NOT ANNOUNCED

While school officials have not yet announced the location of the new community school, they have obtained board of education approval to hire a full-time director at a salary of $9,342.

Additional costs for secretarial and custodial work and program materials bring the total cost to $13,992, of which $3,000 will be reimbursed under federal aid.

Assistant Superintendent of schools William J. Lacy said the new community school should make "a significant contribution to improved home-school-community relations."

Three new programs expected to be operable in 1966-67 aim at improved vocational development.

One, titled a "work-study" project, enables "vocationally disadvantaged" high school students to work in school libraries, bookstores and offices and perform clerical functions for pay of $1 an hour.

It will cost the school district $8,000, with the remaining $32,000 provided by the federal government under the Vocational Act of 1963.

Also scheduled for introduction this fall is a pilot program in training licensed practical nurses.

PERSONNEL SHORTAGE

Maurice C. Prottengeier, director of vocational education, said the program would cost $5,895.

He cited a "shortage of trained personnel" and "employment opportunities in hospital occupations" in drawing up the proposal.

The third vocation-oriented program involves rental of additional data processing equipment for senior high school business education courses.

Funds were approved to rent two additional key punches and an accounting machine, with the expense for a 12-month program estimated at $3,780.

Another proposal, while not designed specifically for vocational purposes, is directed at students not bound for college.

The project, costing $2,500, will enable the Pontiac school district to begin development of a "new mathematics" curriculum for pupils not in college preparatory work.

WOMEN'S SECTION

Today's Young Homemakers

Student-Wife Cherishes Time

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Women's Editor

After Mrs. Charles Tabar receives her degree from Oakland University this Saturday, she's going home and iron.

Peggy Coppersmith Tabar is one of an increasing number of young homemakers; she's a coed bride.

And as all women who take courses or have an outside job know, she has found that something gets slighted. In Peggy's case, it's been the ironing.

There just isn't enough time to go to school, do the necessary studying and keep up on all the housework, she says.

TRAILER LIVING

Married in April, the Tabars set up housekeeping in a trailer. This is an ideal setup for a young couple.

Not only do they get a complete home, but it comes furnished. The construction of today's trailers makes housekeeping simple. You just have to have some time.

Peggy had a week between her marriage and the start of her last semester at OU. That's probably the last relaxed period of time she's had since then.

She'll have a few weeks after graduation to get herself and her home reorganized. Then she's going to work.

* * *

Peggy is the most recently married of our young homemakers. She celebrated her 21st birthday in July.

Unlike Janice Simmons who had had the responsibility of cooking for a family while she was in high school, Peggy had only the casual training that girls get from their mothers.

But she is an efficient young lady and finds cooking not too great a problem. She also is becoming a good seamstress.

What does she think of being married at a relatively young age?

"It's fine. I don't think, the age matters so much. When you find the person you love, that's the time to get married."

* * *

There are a number of other young couples, some of them also OU students, in the trailer park. The Tabars have not had a great deal of time to socialize, but do enjoy their neighbors.

They're crossword puzzle fans and like to play bridge.

Or, they are equally happy spending an evening at home listening to records and playing with their black kitten, Puddy Tinkle.

Boy Is Far From Blameless

Still Takes Two to Tango

DEAR ABBY: I would like to tell that M. D. a thing or two, and I am referring to the one who said that the boys who get girls in trouble are not punished enough. Why should a boy be punished for taking what is thrown at him?

I have two teen-age sons who don't have to call the girls. The girls call them. I have seen some notes that some girls passed to one of my sons, and it was a disgrace!

These were girls from nice families, too. We have tried to teach our sons that sex is something to be learned together as man and wife, not something to fool around with before marriage.

But the girls nowadays call the boys "chicken" if they try to stick by these rules. So, quit blaming the boys when it's the girls who do all the chasing.

MOTHER OF BOYS

* * *

DEAR MOTHER: It still takes two to tango. And if a boy doesn't want to face the music, he had better not dance to it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently spent the weekend as the house guests of some so-called friends. They have a beautiful pushbutton home with every modern convenience imaginable. There is nothing too good for them or for their children.

The guest room was a shocker! We could not have been more surprised or insulted had they sat down to a dinner of steak and served us hamburger. Their guest room was furnished with a broken down old bed, no dressing table, no mirror, and a few little odds and ends of mismatched chairs and so on.

The light was so poor we could scarcely see at night. We would like to know what your reaction would be to such an experience.

INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: Don't take it personally. I'm sure your friends did not "de-furnish" their guest room especially for you. They obviously do not want guests.

Will This Pensioner Be Able to Manage?

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant In Money Management

"How much will I need to live on when I retire?"

This question comes most often from readers who are still in their 50's, living fairly comfortably, but with a worried eye on the continuing rise in costs. Many of them planned regular savings or investments years ago, before inflation reared its head. Now they are wondering just how these plans will work out.

MARY FEELEY

This is especially true of those who find they would like to retire a few years early. Taking stock right now will give you a more realistic idea of the manner in which you can expect to live in two, five or 10 years from now.

Here's a letter from a worried single woman of 53:

* * *

Dear Miss Feeley:

I am a single woman and can, if I wish, retire in two years at 55. I would like very much to do so. My question is whether the inflationary trend would make this a dangerous financial chance?

* * *

I have quite carefully calculated that my pension at 55 should be about $450 a month. My take-home pay now is $470 a month, because in addition to taxes and Social Security, I pay $90 per month into my pension.

Since pension contributions have always been high and in times past our salaries were low, there was not too much opportunity to save. But I will continue to be covered by Blue Cross, Blue Shield and a major medical policy in retirement, to which I will not have to contribute.

How much do you figure the $450 a month I'm counting on at 55 will be worth in spending power?

A.K.B., New York City

* * *

Dear A.K.B.:

If the cost of living continues to rise at from 1.5 per cent to 2 per cent a year, your $450 will be worth from $387 to $423 at age 62. But there's a real concern that the cost of living will go up even faster and higher than today's percentage rate.

However, at 62 you can apply for Social Security to pad out a shrinking income, if the dollar continues to buy less and less.

Remember, too, that your on-the-job expenses will be cut back. So you should be able to start a small investment plan at age 55 — an investment that is geared to the "cost of living" dollar rather than to a fixed dollar.

* * *

As a starter, your retirement budget at 55 could be set up up like this:

Rent, utilities, and food at home per month, a total of $260; clothing, $30; Personal Allowance, $40; Miscellaneous (church, charitable contributions, gifts), $20; Medical, $20; Recreation, $40; savings and investment plan, $40. Total, $450.

* * *

Dear Miss Feeley:

I am about to sell some land at $100 an acre. Will I have to pay the government anything in taxes, since this is inherited property?

T.J., Sequin, Texas

Dear T. J.:

Yes, you'll owe Uncle Sam some of that cash — if you sell this property for more than the fair market price it would have brought at the time of the decedent's death.

Recorded sales of similar property at or near that date could establish the fair market price. Any gain between your selling price and the "fair market price" must be reported as ordinary income. If you have held this property over six months, report the income as long-term capital gain.

Car Escapes--- Is Careful

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — "Have you seen your car lately?" an across-the-street neighbor inquired of Mrs. Richard Newcomb.

"Certainly, it's in my garage," said Mrs. Newcomb.

★ ★ ★

But it wasn't in her garage; it was across the street on the neighbor's front lawn. All by itself it had rolled down the sloping driveway, over the curb opposite and through a thick hedge, without touching a passerby or nicking a building.

The hedge bent down with the impact and sprang up again. The car was driven back to its own garage without leaving so much as a rut in the neighbor's lawn.

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. I have a problem with my eye lashes. I admit that I use a lot of mascara. Will this make the lashes break? Why are they falling out? Will they grow back? I am a young girl.

* * *

A. I do not think that mascara makes lashes break, especially if you remove it carefully. Use cream for the waterproof kind. Apply it gently to the lashes and then remove the cream and mascara carefully with a piece of cotton. Do this several times until you are sure that there is none left.

* * *

If your mascara is not waterproof, wet a piece of cotton and simply press it against your lashes. Repeat this until the cotton remains white. Always remove mascara before going to sleep at night.

Some shedding of lashes is normal. New ones grow back. If the shedding is severe, you should have a physical checkup. There may be an underlying reason.

* * *

Q. I am overweight and am now on a diet to lose but most of my weight seems to be in my thighs. Will dieting slim them down or will I have to exercise too? People never think I am much overweight as I am because most of the weight is in my thighs.

* * *

A. If you are overweight, you will have to diet. This will make you small all over, including the thighs. However you will still be out of proportion unless you take thigh slimming exercises. This is one of the cosmetic values of exercise. It distributes the pounds more attractively.

WHAT HAPPENS

Q. In hear all the time that lubricating creams make hairs grow on the face. I have been using one for some time now, and it does seem to me that I have more hair on my face.

Young Men Interested in Manners

By ELIZABETH L. POST

I am delighted to publish this letter as the prize-winner this week because it came as such a pleasant surprise to me to find that a college fraternity was so interested in good manners.

Dear Mrs. Post: My observant mother saw your article "Doing the Right Thing" and saved it for me. It was saved not because my etiquette needed correcting, but because every week I must convey "the proper thing to do" to 20 fellows at a fraternity house.

I must admit that there is room for improvement not only in mine but many people's etiquette.

* * *

I am a junior at the University of Washington and I decided to pledge the Forestry Fraternity (Tau Phi Delta) this quarter.

In so doing, I was chosen to be the "Emily Post" of our pledge class. This involves giving a short speech on etiquette (table manners) each Monday night at dinner.

I am sure that if my letter proves most interesting you, your complimentary book, "Etiquette," will be very helpful.—Joseph Fielding.

Dear Mr. Fielding: You didn't ask me any questions in your letter so my answer is going to contain a few questions of my own. I wish my readers who could answer any of them would write to me.

Are there any other universities or fraternities which encourage this sort of program? If so, are the subjects considered limited to table manners, or do they get into wider fields — dressing, dating procedures, etc.?

Do other fraternities or sororities have any other types of programs to promote good manners? Are books on etiquette available in their libraries?

Come on, you college students, prove to me that an interest in doing things right is not on the wane — I'll send free books to the college organizations which are making the greatest efforts to upgrade the word "etiquette."

Congratulations to you, Mr. Fielding, for your efforts, and to your fraternity for choosing you!

To Children of Culturally Deprived

CAP Extends a Helping Hand

By LOIS MANDIBERG

The little boy wants . . . and needs . . . a friend.

And a friend best describes the cultural aid volunteer who meets him weekly.

They are brought together through the Cultural Aid Program (CAP) created to offer children from culturally and economically deprived areas experiences unavailable in their own classroom or community.

The program, organized by a group of Pontiac area women with the assistance of the Pontiac Elementary Schools, provides a one to one friendship for students whom teachers think would benefit.

The child and the adult visit for half an hour weekly — during school time — to read, walk, work with arts and crafts, or just to talk.

They quickly discover that what they do isn't important but that the communication they establish is.

AWAKEN CURIOSITY

For such friendships can awaken a child's curiosity and expose him to the sense and sounds of his community so that he learns of things that he never dreamed existed.

The new things seen and the words learned from reading and trips in downtown stores often passed but never entered, enlarge the pupil's vocabulary.

And as he understands more, he does better in class and becomes more interested in what's happening to himself.

One woman took a child up to her husband's office where they played with the adding machine. Another volunteer and her friend explored a hotel since the girl had never been in one.

The original group, organized by the late Mrs. A. J. Levin of Franklin, began at a coffee klatch.

Representing the Pontiac School system at the gathering was Gerald White, elementary education director.

By 1965 there were sixty women participating with the majority of them visiting at least two children weekly.

STEERING COMMITTEE

After Mrs. Levin's death, last February, a steering committee was formed to run the program.

"We already have 100 volunteers for the 1966-67 school season," said Mrs. Noel Buckner, current chairman. "But there are so many students."

Mrs. Buckner lives at 2633 Cove, West Bloomfield Township.

A volunteer's only requirement is a sincere desire to help stimulate a child's intellect and curiosity, according to Mrs. Buckner.

The older boys want men to "talk" with.

There's even a one day orientation during which regular teachers show volunteers how to communicate with the child through the use of language arts, such as reading, painting and the high points of the new math.

White insists that CAP is not a tutorial program but a means to stimulate the student's mind. Also, that the orientation is to familiarize the volunteer with the students school work so they have a common knowledge bond.

WORK TOGETHER

Each child's teacher is free to make suggestions to the volunteer how the child's classroom work may be enriched or what the student particularly enjoys.

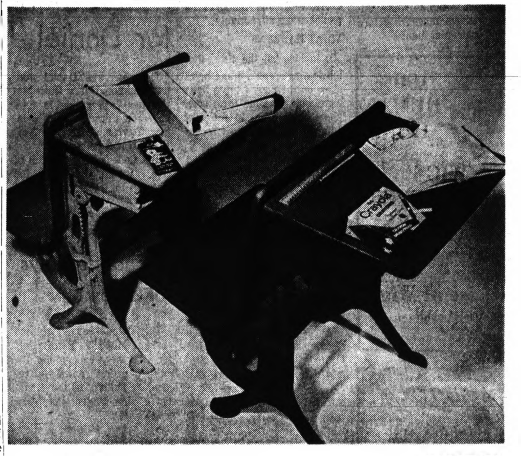

Rewards for the volunteer are many. Watching a child gaze wide-eyed at that same elevator you use automatically offers a fresh view of life agree many volunteers.

"When he slips his hand into yours and says he trusts you it's a thrilling experience," commented Mrs. Buckner.

She believes that this program is so rewarding "because you're working on a person to person basis; not with a committee where you only make policies."

Follow Directions

Mothers who follow manufacturers laundering directions will find it easy to keep their children's wardrobes looking neat and fresh with no more effort than it takes to lift the clothes in and out of the washer and dryer.

FOR THE DESK SET — School supplies will soon be the order of the day for grades one through 12 in the Pontiac school system. Simms Brothers, downtown, is offering an early selection of all needed items.

Handicapped Blind Taught New Skills

A small group of handicapped blind children in New York City are now learning things once thought impossible, thanks to the dedication and persistence of a group of parents.

The parents are members of the Association for the Advancement of Blind Children.

Many of them have children who are described as the multi-handicapped blind, with learning and emotional difficulties in addition to their lack of sight.

Mrs. Selma Shenkin, president of the group, explains that these children were not being served by the public school classes for the blind or by the voluntary agencies helping the handicapped.

★ ★ ★

She says that last October, the Association, formed about eight years ago to provide services for blind children, began a program of home teaching to help the multihandicapped youngsters.

FORMAL CLASS

In March, the Association opened a formal class for eight of these children, held in a classroom of one of the city's public schools.

"We couldn't leave these kids sitting home vegetating," Mrs. Shenkin explains.

The school, which Mrs. Shenkin says costs about $750 per week, is financed completely by private funds, although the Association is trying to get some money from the city, state or federal government.

★ ★ ★

"We already have a waiting list," she says, and explains that no one really knows how many of these youngsters there are in the city.

"We want to demonstrate that these children can be worked with," she says, and adds that even the simplest tasks are an accomplishment for youngsters who have trouble simply communicating.

Dr. H. Pryor, co-director of the school, describes the children in the school as "brain injured blind children.

★ ★ ★

"Brain injured means the child has a perceptual disfunctioning.

"The mind does not interpret properly," although the child is not mentally retarded.

Program Held for Preschoolers

Inspired by the area Cultural Aid Program (CAP), Donald R. Ostrander, principal of Mark Twain Elementary, organized a similar Saturday morning program for prekindergarten children.

Twenty teen-agers served as the volunteers.

Spotlight on Art-Reading Programs

Pontiac School District's first comprehensive elementary art program and consideration of a new reading program for fourth through sixth graders are in store for the 1966-67 school year.

Providing impetus for both will be the district's first art specialist for the elementary schools and a new reading specialist for the system.

Art specialist Otha Whitcomb and reading specialist Dr. Dorothy Heagy are to arrive here later this month.

Dr. Heagy now is assistant professor of education and director of the reading laboratory at Washington State University.

★ ★ ★

Teaching since 1939, she has worked with first through eighth graders and university students.

DEGREES

Miss Heagy earned her bachelor's degree at Millersville (Pa.) State Teachers College, her master's at Duke University and her doctorate at Pennsylvania State University.

One of her duties here will be to coordinate the work of a faculty committee studying new reading programs for the upper elementary grades.

The committee will be composed of representatives of each elementary school, two principals, three helping teachers, Dr. Heagy and Gerald White, director of elementary education for the school district.

★ ★ ★

"We will study new reading programs now on the market and recommend one or more to the superintendent for adoption," White said.

MEETINGS

Meeting about twice a month, the group is expected to make its recommendations next April or May.

White noted it has been nine or 10 years since this program has been changed, although the program for the primary grades was altered three years ago.

Whitcomb, who has taught in Ohio schools since 1951, earned his bachelor's degree at Bowling Green State University and master's at Columbia University Teachers College.

★ ★ ★

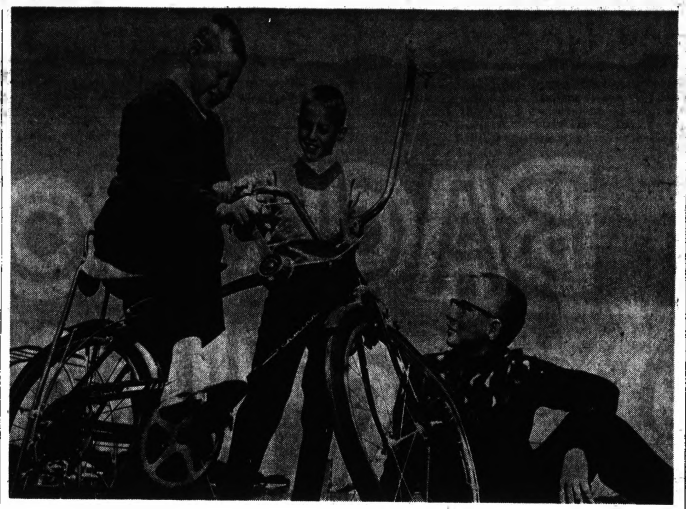

He also has studied at the John Herron Art Institute in Indianapolis, Ind.

Whitcomb will "take a leadership role in developing an art program for the city," White said.

Although plans for the program will be formulated after Whitcomb's arrival, his duties generally will involve the presentation of workshops and demonstration lessons for teachers, districtwide purchasing and advising the central office personnel, White said.

Jim Wilson, right, of 154 North Main, Clarkston, and his twin brothers, Don (left) and Ron will all be returning to Clarkston Elementary School this year. These fashions from the Lion Store, Bloomfield Miracle Mile Shopping Center, will insure their good looks. Jim is wearing a pair of mod hopsacking pants by Farah and crew neck sweater with authentic Scandinavian design by Robert Bruce. Both the twins are wearing Billy the Kid instant wear hopsack pants in regular or slim sizes. Each wears stretch action knit sweaters by Huntingdon with V neck and saddle shoulder in heather tones.

Variety Available

Slip-ons with bows are gaining over laced shoes on the formal footwear scene for men. The ungored slip-ons for fall feature elasticized toplines. Patent is the favorite leather. Some have removable bows in a variety of colors so the well-dressed male can wear shoe bows that match his dinner jacket.

Container for Crayons

Coffee cans with plastic lids can be colored with various scraps of paint that you find around the house. Put children's names on the sides with black paint. The small cans so treated make a nice gift if crayons are put inside and the lids put on.

Innovations Under Study at Waterford

By HUDSON WILLSE

Several innovations are being planned for Waterford Township Schools, both on the primary and secondary levels.

* * *

Subjects under study on the secondary level include educational television, exceptional children programs, flexible scheduling, modular scheduling, independent study and instructional materials center.

Also being considered are large and small group instruction, nongradedness, programmed learning, team teaching and unit or concept curriculum.

The exceptional children programs are earmarked for students not conveniently grouped into a class because of limitation or advanced standing.

* * *

Students involved are the talented, gifted, academically superior, reluctant learners, physically handicapped and those with exceptional reading problems.

ACCENT ON INDIVIDUAL

Nongradedness is a concept of school organization which makes it possible for the individual student to pursue any course in which he is interested and has the ability to achieve without regard to grade level or sequence.

Large and small group instruction involves a varied scheduling technique.

At times, 15 or less students will be with a teacher.

* * *

At other times, 100 or more students would be assigned to a single classroom with one or more teachers in charge.

Unit or concept curriculum breaks down courses into specific concepts or units.

The student is expected to contribute more than in the traditional plans.

* *

History may be taught around the units of liberty, justice, equality, economic system systems, social class, self-government, and technological development.

ENGLISH

English may be taught in units of novel, short story, essay, drama, poetry and humanities.

Flexible scheduling refers to a schedule system involving classes of varying size within and between courses and provides for instructional groups which meet at varying frequencies and for varying lengths of time.

Modular scheduling divides time into small units (15 or 20 minutes) which can be grouped in such a way to provide for classes varying in length.

Programmed learning (teaching machine) arranges materials to be learned in a series of small steps. They are designed to lead a student through self instruction from what he knows to the unknown of new and more complex knowledge and principles.

Auto-instructional methods pertain to the complete package — program construction, presentation by book or machine and the student's activity as he learns from the procedure.

* * *

Included among innovations in Waterford primary schools are a perceptual motor skills program, industrial arts activities and winter camping at a facility near Brighton.

A seven-school project will be initiated whereby teachers will attempt a new approach to second grade instruction to continue the advantages of first grade initial teaching alphabet (ITA).

The number of classrooms using the ITA approach to reading in the district will be increased from 23 to 26, according to school officials.

Covert, Silver Lake, Houghton and Monteith schools will experiment with new teaching methods for social studies.

* *

Burt School will join McVittie in using the Lippincott approach to teach reading, while Four Towns School will use the Roberts linguistic method.

An elementary guidance program will be instituted at Haviland and Four Towns schools, under the direction of the district's first professionally-trained guidance teacher, Fred Ebey.

Women Not to Be Athletic Pros

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — The total education of the college woman should be the school's aim, not just a scholarship offered because of her highly developed sports skill, says a woman educator.

Dr. Katherine Ley, associate professor in the University of Michigan physical education deparment, fears that some of the athletics programs for women may become nothing more than attempts to find the most highly skilled so they can bring home medals in international competion.

"We must not give athletic scholarships to women who have earned less than average grades," she said.

"There is no future for college women as professionals."

Pontiac Holds Orientation

Pontiac School System's orientation program for new teachers will be held Aug. 29-Sept. 1, the week before classes begin.

Teachers new to the district will be invited to attend four-day workshops in various curriculum areas.

"This is an orientation to the curriculum and teaching procedures of the school district," said Assistant Schools Supt. William J. Lacy.

The eight workshops are designed for new elementary teachers, elementary librarians, special education teachers, guidance counselors, secondary mathematics teachers, secondary language arts teachers, secondary social studies teachers and elementary physical education teachers.

* * *

A "Welcome to Pontiac" program will be held Sept. 2. The morning program at Pontiac Central High School will give new teachers the opportunity to meet officials of the city and school system and to learn what services and opportunities are available to them.

In the afternoon, they will meet with principals at their respective schools.

SHE KNOWS—Her experience with kindergartners has taught Mrs. Jack Copenhaver what to expect when school opens this fall—namely, the unexpected. Classes vary, she said, just as the personalities of the individual children differ.

Everything's Coming Up Fun

Now, Kindergartners Predict Future

By PAT McCARTY

The doors of Education swing wide to admit one small boy.

He pauses there on the threshold of the academic career which will affect his entire future.

What are his thoughts as he awaits initiation into the Brotherhood of Knowledge?

"I'm going to play a lot," the preschooler responds.

* * *

"School is just playing and having fun," one of his peers announces.

IN AGREEMENT

"There'll be paints and blocks and all kinds of toys," another chimes in.

Five youngsters planning to enter kindergarten at LeBaron Elementary School this fall got together recently to discuss their expectations.

The preschool panelists included Lisa Durnen, daughter of Mrs. Barbara Durnen, 593 Third; Daniel Gill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Choral Gill, 765 First; and Charles Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Reynolds, 599 First.

Also Matthew Shuart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shuart, 727 E. Mansfield, and Christine Wrinkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wrinkle, 670 E. Beverly.

The consensus of opinion among the preschoolers was that they'll be doing the same thing in school that they're doing at home — only more of it.

And those activities foremost in their minds can be classified under the heading "play."

* * *

"It will be different, though," Lisa volunteered.

MORE PLAYMATES

For one thing, there will be a greater variety of playmates.

All of the children were looking forward to making new friends.

Chris admitted she probably would be homesick at first.

"But I'll have a good time," she said.

The small fry were unanimous in their enthusiasm for artistic endeavors.

Lisa is going to concentrate on pictures of boys and girls, while a picture of a house appeals more to Chris.

"I'm going to make a picture of a bike," Chuck proclaimed.

"Me too," said Matt, who also recently acquired a two-wheeler.

Danny allowed that a picture of a bicycle might be kind of fun, but he declared, "I'm just going to sit."

Although he wants to be a veterinarian — and can even pronounce it — Danny can't see that school will do him much good.

"That's right," Matt said, defending his friend's career plans, "They're not supposed to go to school — just to the hospital."

To add variety to the routine of drawing pictures, Chuck said he would color some.

He also expects his teacher to tell him stories.

Indicating that he's prepared for the start of school, Chuck counted his fingers aloud for the group.

Chris and Matt said they thought new clothes would be in order.

CREATIVE

"I got a book and a purse," Lisa said. "I can write an elephant."

"An elephant's easy," Danny said. "Just write down a nose."

In a separate interview, one of LeBaron's three kindergarten teachers discussed her views on the first year of school.

Mrs. Jack Copenhaver of 3695 James, Pontiac Township, has formulated her opinions over the 15-year period she has been teaching kindergartners and first graders at the school.

NOT SURPRISED

Mrs. Copenhaver wasn't at all surprised at the attitudes of the youngsters.

But she knows something they don't know about this playing business.

"The free activity of playing IS learning," she said. "They learn how to get along with one another and how to share things, for instance."

* * *

Meeting new children, becoming their friends and learning how to cooperate with them represents a big hunk of the kindergarten curriculum.

"We'll get into more formal learning later in the year," Mrs. Copenhaver said. "But at first they have to get used to the idea of coming to school, used to the room, used to the building."

Adjustment problems will vary with the child, she said.

* * *

"Some haven't learned to listen," she said. "We teach them to listen — and to hear.

"We also give children a little responsibility. We give them a job to do and let them know they have to follow through."

As the year progresses, kindergarten teachers ease their young charges into areas which will prepare them for the work they'll do in fifth grade.

The children find out about the sounds of letters and about some of the things you can do with numbers. They learn that the shape of a ball is called a "circle."

* * *

"It's very informal," Mrs. Copenhaver said.

Leaving this sort of thing for later, the children will spend the first days of school in group play. They'll be encouraged to get acquainted with each other and with the classroom equipment.

What does the equipment include?

* * *

Matt or Chris or Lisa or Danny or Chuck could have told us.

"Well," said Mrs. Copenhaver "there's a sand table, big blocks, an easel, clay, crayons, puzzles, peg boards, the doll corner, a wooden train big enough for them to ride on, a playhouse, wagon, teeter-totter, slide, little car, balls, a rocking

THEY KNOW — Pausing in their summer play, these prospective LeBaron Elementary School kindergartners list their expectations for school—namely, play, play and more play. The preschool panelists are (from left) Lisa Durnen of 593 Third, Matthew Shuart of 727 E. Mansfield, Christine Wrinkle of 670 E. Beverly, Daniel Gill of 765 First and Charles Reynolds of 599 First.

School Districts Need More Teachers

By JANICE KLOUSER

Wanted: Teachers. Particularly in special education. Apply to most any area school district.

Area school authorities may have to resort to such want ads if all else fails in their quest for the seemingly elusive school teachers.

With school opening in little more than a month many officials in charge of teacher recruitment are wondering if they are going to fill their quotas in time. They face the prospect of too many children and not enough teachers.

Some superintendents say the teacher shortage is more acute this year than it has been in the past several years. They say they are further behind in hiring than they were last year at this time.

What is responsible for the shortage?

FEDERAL PROGRAMS

Two of the educators blame it on the newly created federal programs.

"The impact of Title I monies into the schools has created the shortage," said Walled Lake Schools Supt. George G. Garver.

"The remedial reading programs and reduced class sizes have created a greater need for teachers and the pool hasn't grown in proportion with the need."

He said college officials have told him that the numbers of requests for each candidate are overwhelming.

IN AGREEMENT

Holly Schools Supt. Russell D. Haddon agreed saying that the federal programs are taking the good classroom teachers.

Haddon said he may have to resort to hiring teachers who do not have their degrees. Those teachers with 60 to 90 hours towards a degree may teach for 90 days with a special certificate.

One with more than 90 hours may work a year with a special certificate.

In addition to eight elementary teachers and one secondary teacher, Haddon needs an elementary music teacher and an elementary school librarian but says he has little hope of getting them.

Special education teachers for the mentally and perceptually handicapped are particularly hard to find, according to several of the superintendents.

"That's where our real need is," said Rochester's Ronald Kevern who admits to being better off than those in some of the surrounding districts.

* * *

He said Rochester's recruiting situation is no worse than it has been other years at this time.

45 VACANCIES

Utica officials still have about 45 vacancies to fill. They have already hired 115.

The problem is compounded this year because there are four new elementary schools to fill with teachers.

The district still needs a diagnostician, a visiting teacher, reading specialists, and vocal music and elementary art teachers.

In Oxford, Schools Supt. Roger Oberg's biggest problem is finding physics and chemistry teachers.

TEACHERS NEEDED

In addition to a physics and chemistry teacher at the high school, he's looking for a special education teacher at the junior high, visiting teachers, speech correctionists, first and third grade teachers, elementary vocal teachers and an elementary librarian.

"We got a late start recruiting this year," he said, "because we waited until we got our master contracts out."

Lake Orion Schools Supt. Lewis Mundy is also finding the recruiting problem more severe this year, "especially in the elementary grades." He needs about 20 elementary teachers and about six secondary teachers.

Troy and Huron Valley school districts are apparently luckier than the others.

Troy Assistant Schools Supt. Boyd Larson has hired 50 teachers so far and needs only four more. Of the four, three are special education teachers.

"For some reason or other we've been real lucky this year," he said. "I guess we got a good start."

* * *

School Supt. Dr. Truman Owens of the Huron Valley district said he had some difficulty earlier in the year but that hiring has been easier during the last few weeks.

He said he needs "maybe one or two" secondary teachers and a few in the lower grades.

OU Experts Reveal Correct Study Tips

Good intentions often pave the way to bad grades.

The student who starts the year with vigor may soon find himself slipping if he hasn't developed correct study habits.

The experts at Oakland University's Precollege Study Center have some solid suggestions on note taking, reading and preparation for tests.

Their ideas can be put to work by high school students as well as those enrolled in colleges and universities.

* * *

To students taking lecture notes, they issue this warning—don't overburden yourself.

MEANINGFUL NOTES

- Keep the notes concise but meaningful.
- Use symbols for frequently written words, and be systematic in the use of these symbols.
- Write on only half a page of paper, leaving the other half vacant in case the instructor backtracks or indicates further relationships between ideas.
- State the main points covered by the instructor, rather than attempting a verbatim account.
- Omit subordinate details that are common knowledge.
- The less interest you have in a subject, the more you need to concentrate on good note taking.
- Finally, review and rewrite your notes in an organized manner.

Study outside the classroom also involves the development of good procedures.

GUARD AGAINST

Habits to guard against in reading are subvocalization and regression, the experts say.

Do not let yourself fall into a pattern of excessive lip, head and throat movements while reading.

This slows you down, as does the unnecessary habit of glancing back to sentences you already have completed.

Learn to concentrate on your lessons — develop the ability to resist distractions.

Also concentrate on finding the main points or key sentences in the assigned chapter. If a summary is provided, read this before tackling the entire chapter.

Build up your ability to take in word groups at a glance, rather than reading one word at a time.

* * *

To test yourself now, draw a line down the center of this column. At the top of the column, look at the word through which the line runs. On the next line, look at two words, then three and so on until you can read the column a full line at a time.

TEST PREPARATION

When preparing for a test, tell yourself all you know about a topic before reviewing your notes or underlined material. Then skim read the material to see what you missed and study to fill in the gaps.

In line with this, the experts advise students to answer the easy questions on a test first, allowing themselves more time for the difficult ones.

Restate difficult questions in your own words as the first step in thinking of the answer.

For students taking a foreign language, the experts suggest they develop a system for practice — think of a language as something you practice rather than study.

* * *

Again in composition skills, they urge students to make a special effort to use the correct English forms in everyday speaking and writing.

When you receive back tests and daily assignments, immediately substitute the correct English forms for errors.

Keep these papers and compositions, regularly re-reading and re-evaluating them.

* * *

All students are urged to review the results of diagnostic or survey-of-skills tests which help to locate the areas causing most difficulty.

Once you know your weaknesses, set out to improve yourself in these areas.

ITA Wins Nod in Waterford

Waterford Township School District officials believe it is possible they have found a new and better way to direct children's learning through initial teaching alphabet (ITA).

Recent tests given to Waterford first and second graders indicated that pupils learning by ITA outscored pupils learning through regular methods in three of four categories.

ITA taught children who learned the new method the previous year ranked higher in reading, spelling and word study skills.

In arithmetic, ITA and regular method (traditional orthography) pupils rated about even.

* * *

Pupils from the 23 ITA and 23 regular method classrooms participated in the tests.

OFFICIALS IMPRESSED

School officials were impressed to the extent that three additional ITA classrooms have been planned for the 1966-67 school year.

The project showed that:

- There was a difference between the two groups in word recognition and silent reading, favoring ITA.
- There was a difference between the two groups in achievement in June, favoring ITA.
- In the amount of reading, it was evident that ITA children read far more than regular method pupils.
- There was a difference in word recognition skills — ITA groups scored more than one-half year higher than regular method pupils.

* * *

- There was a difference in spelling skills. At the end of the year, tests showed that ITA pupils were five months more advanced. (This was accomplished even though ITA children were not taught spelling.)
- Subjective judgment, based on the reams of writing done by ITA pupils and the limited writing done by regular method pupils, suggests a superior writing attitude and production by ITA pupils.
- In a test given last October to second graders, ITA pupils wrote longer stories and used more correctly-spelled words.

* * *

- ITA children develop and maintain a good attitude toward reading.

Dr. Marshall C. Jameson, retiring coordinator of elementary schools in the district, is impressed with the ITA method.

* * *

"I am convinced that, even if their reading medians had only equaled, not surpassed their regular method counterparts, this approach to reading and learning would be worth adopting," he said.

ITA Reading to Be Dropped

The radical Initial Teaching Alphabet "doesn't look as though it's going to last" as a method of teaching youngsters how to read, according to a Pontiac School System official.

Gerald White, director of elementary education for the school district, said Pontiac's ITA experiment would be discontinued this year.

Like other methods, the ITA's success depends on the quality of the teacher using it, White noted.

"A superior teacher will teach youngsters to read regardless of the system used," White said.

* * *

The ITA, which makes use of 44 phonetic symbols rather than the traditional 26 letters, has been tried in a number of Oakland County school systems and has been greeted with enthusiasm in several.

FIRST GRADE

In Pontiac, the ITA experiment was conducted in a first-grade classroom at Baldwin Elementary School.

Study of the first group of youngsters to learn to read by this method continued during their second grade, or transitional period.

School officials will continue to keep tabs on these pupils this year to determine "if they are better readers in the third grade for having had ITA in the first," White said.

* * *

However, the ITA no longer will be used on the first-grade level.

For the experiment, a control group was chosen at Wisner Elementary School where pupils were taught by traditional means.

"Most children are learning to read with the traditional alphabet," White said. "There is no evidence they can learn any better with the ITA, unless it is being used by a superior teacher."

White noted it would cost "thousands and thousands of dollars" for the school system to convert to ITA.

He also said use of the method would be complicated in a district in which youngsters are highly mobile, transferring in and out of the school.

Bicycle Fatalities Are Preventable

A large share of the nation's annual bike fatalities could be prevented if youngsters were drilled on these safety rules.

Check out the mechanism of your bike before long trips and every few weeks in any case.

* * *

Don't dart out of alleys or from behind parked cars without making sure the sidewalks and streets are clear.

Know and obey traffic regulations.

* * *

Don't carry another person on your bike; it upsets the steering and balance.

OPENS IN FALL—At one time faced with no sewerage outlets, Cherokee Hills Elementary School now appears ready to open in September on schedule. The city of Pontiac has offered sewer service to the school and about 50 nearby residential lots in an agreement with Waterford Township. Negative ground tests ruled out the possibility of a septic system for the school as was originally planned. Cherokee Hills is located on Wewoka Road.

No Smoking on Campus Rules Student Council

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Women students have been forbidden to smoke at a South African university — by other students.

The Students' Representative Council of Pretoria University decided to enforce a "no smoking on the campus" rule for graduate and under graduate women students and threatened them with fines of up to ($280) or expulsion if they flouted the ruling.

An editorial in Peredeby, official organ of the Council, lectured: "Smoking among women is something which has never had a place among the Afrikaner group.

It is a habit which simply cannot be reconciled with the high moral standard, dignity and inherent decency of the Afrikaner women — and this applies equally to loudness and the abuse of alcohol."

NARROW

The editorial defended the stand by adding: "If it is narrow to limit free individuals where they ignor the honor and reputation of thousands of others, then we are narrow with pleasure."

The move instantly brought scalding criticism from some of the university's women students. Miss Anna Steenkamp, 26, said: "We have married women with children among the women students. Are these women to be told where and when they can smoke by pimply adolescents who, until recently, were themselves smoking in the school toilets?"

At nearby Witwatersrand University in Johannesburg students also came under fire, but this time from university authorities who were dismayed at the dress of some of them.

"We have already found students wandering through the main halls in bare feet," complained a spokesman. "We find that many first-year students need a hint about clothes — especially the women, who tend to turn up in trousers."

Early Examination Needed on Eyes

HOUSTON (UPI) — Ann McQuade, who works with the nation's nurses in connection with the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, says parents should consider eye examinations for their children long before they are of school age.

Watch a child's eyes from the age of six months, she said.

"If an eye continues to turn out or in after that period, consult a physician," she advised. "It is too late for many defects when a child reaches school age."

New Programs for County Deaf Children

Children in Oakland County with hearing deficiencies have a special reason to look forward to the opening of schoolhouse doors this fall.

Under the auspices of the state and county boards of education three Bloomfield Hills schools will be offering special programs aimed at deaf and hard of hearing students on the prekindergarten, junior high and high school levels.

Dr. Paul Thams, director of Special Education for the Oakland County Board of Education, said that the new programs have been made possible by last year's passage of the Michigan Special Education Act.

The new legislation provides for the establishment of deaf education centers to benefit county deaf students.

It will be financed by the state and the county on a 60-40 percentage basis.

* * *

The Bloomfield Hills school system was chosen, according to Thams, because of its central geographic location in the county and because of the willingness of its school officials to participate in the program.

HIGH SCHOOL CENTER

The Bloomfield Hills High School will be the only center for deaf high school students in the county, according to Thams.

There are more schools in the county offering programs for the lower grades since a greater number of children are involved in those age groups.

Mrs. Kay Pearson, head of special education in the Bloomfield Hills schools, indicated that about seven youngsters, aged from 2½ to 5 years, have enrolled for the preschool course.

The class, to be taught by Mrs. Jean Rotolo, was initiated at Vaughn Elementary School last year.

"The general aim of the preschool course is to encourage the children to associate and communicate with each other," said Mrs. Rotolo.

"The daily sessions will be run," she said, "along the lines of a nursery school."

* * *

"Outdoor and indoor games, growing plants, cooking and nature study will be included in the activities, along with basic instruction in lip-reading and speaking.

JUNIOR HIGH CLASS

The junior high class will be at the East Hills Junior High School. As yet, however, no teacher has been found for the position.

Present plans for the junior high and the high school programs call for as much integration of the deaf students with the regular students as possible.

Nine youngsters, aged 14 to 17, have enrolled for the high school course to be taught by Bruce Denno. A second teacher maybe added before the September school openings.

* * *

Denno said his course would emphasize regular academic subjects.

Courses will also be offered in driver education, shop, physical education, art and home economics.

Mrs. Pearson pointed out, "the ultimate aim of the program is to graduate the students and prepare them for jobs and for integration into society."

* * *

A job placement service will be provided, she added.

Special equipment, such as overhead projectors and group hearing aids, will help teacher and student.

* * *

"But," said Mrs. Pearson, "nothing has been found yet to replace the blackboard and chalk as the teachers' mainstay."

Despite Enrollment Increases

Pontiac Schools Accentuate Individual

The bigger it gets, the more individualized it gets — this is the apparent incongruity Schools Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer sees in the growth pattern of the Pontiac School System.

WHITMER

During the 12 years he has headed the district, Whitmer has seen enrollment increase by 6,283. Eleven new schools have been built and 382 teaching positions created to accommodate this influx.

However, greater than the cold statistics has been "the development of the educational program in both scope and quality, with a particular effort to meet the individual needs of the child," Whitmer said.

He noted this emphasis is not peculiar to Pontiac, but has been reflected in educational ideas across the nation.

* * *

Federal programs are one more effort to individualize instruction, Whitmer said, citing as an example the help given to preschoolers in Project Head Start.

HEAD START PUPIL

The Head Start pupil is guided on the basis of the specific deficiencies he must overcome to successfully enter school.

"For years and years, we had mass education," Whitmer said. "If you couldn't jump through the hoop, you fell by the wayside. The thrust now is to give people what they need so that nobody drops by the wayside."

Listing the physical changes in the district during the last 12 years, Whitmer noted enrollment was 16,917 in 1954 and is expected to be 23,200 this fall.

* * *

While there were 631 instructional staff members in 1954, there will be 1,013 this year.

The district's 25 schools 12 years ago included a high school, four junior highs and 20 elementary units. Now there are 36 schools, including two high schools, six junior highs and 28 elementary buildings.

Noting that the teacher-pupil ratio has decreased appreciably, Whitmer said there are two factors involved — reduction in the size of classes and the addition of service programs.

* * *

The trend toward greater individualization can be seen in both factors, the superintendent commented.

COUNSELING GAINS

"For instance, guidance counseling has developed during this period," he said. "We now have the equivalent of 30 counselors while we had two in 1954."

The district's elementary library program also has been initiated during Whitmer's tenure.

Each elementary school this year will have the half-time services of a librarian, while there were none 12 years ago.

* * *

Whitmer recalled that there were about 10 staff members working in special education in 1954.

"This year there will be 70 special education classroom teachers, speech therapists, visiting teachers and school psychologists," he said.

These are among the areas in which the Pontiac School System has expanded "to keep pace with our complex society," he said.

As for the future, Whitmer expects the growth to continue at a steady rate.

"We are building every year," he concluded.

School Buildings Tend to Be Bigger

New school buildings in the United States tend to be large, with secondary schools designed for as many as 3,000 students; few have capacities of less than 500.

The majority of the elementary schools being built today accommodate from 500 to 1200 students.

A SUNNY SMILE — Who wouldn't smile, claims Linda Renirie, of 1361 E. Highland, Highland freshman at University of Michigan, in this outfit? Seated on the grounds of the Howard C. Baldwin Pavilion, she models a two-piece cotton printed suit with Kodel. The color of this double breasted suit is loden with white. Peeking out from the neckline is a sleeveless Kodel and cotton blouse that never needs ironing. From Hudson's Budget Store at The Pontiac Mall.

New Math Program for Oakland Schools

The Oakland School system will instigate a new math program for the elementary grades this fall.

"This program is just another step in Oakland's desire to keep pace with modern mathematical advances" said Dr. David Wells, director of Instruction and mathematics of Oakland schools.

"The central theme will be problem solving.

"Special emphasis will be placed on the mathematical ideas of numeration; numbers, a way of naming them and how they operate; geometry; algebraic expressions; and measurements," he added.

* * *

The new math teaches the student how to make intuitive mathematical judgements based on understanding rather than on rote memory.

MANIPULATION

The students will learn ways of naming and operating numbers through the manipulation of familiar objects as an abacus; while experiments with pipe cleaners will teach the geometric properties of shapes as circles and squares, and ways of measurement.

"So many older people dislike math because they were forced to memorize rule after rule without actually understanding how anything worked." said Wells.

The new math teaches the student how to understand his mathematical manipulations. If the student understands what he's doing, according to Wells, he will probably enjoy and remember the operations performed.

* * *

The new program, based on a seven textbook series titled "Elementary Mathematics," published by Harcourt, Brace and World, runs from kindergarten through the sixth grade.

A major problem, according to Wells, will be creating supplementary material to simplify the transition for students trained under the old system.

Mathematics teachers will attend a fall workshop to learn how to adapt these students to the new program.

Wells believes over two-thirds of the Oakland County school children will be studying similar forms of new math by winter.

Waterford Administrators Honored

New administrators of the Waterford Township School District will be welcomed at a dinner Aug. 25.

Four administrators have been hired from outside the district, another will return after a 1-year stay in Flint as a Mott fellow and a few others will assume different positions during the 1966-67 school year.

Coming to the Waterford School District are Donald E. Youmans, Mrs. Dawn Y. Davis, John Pagen and Maurice D. Pelton.

Youmans, 30, is the new coordinator of community school services.

* * *

He replaces Robert Lawyer who remains with Waterford Township Schools as supervisor of accounting.

SEEKING DOCTORATE

Youmans, presently working toward a doctorate degree at Michigan State University, was a Mott intern in school administration this past year.

He is married and the father of three children.

Mrs. Davis, 38, will be the new principal at Stringham Elementary School, replacing Mrs. Bessie Hoppenrath who has been named principal of the new Cherokee Hills Elementary School.

* * ⅞

A graduate of Bob Jones University, Mrs. Davis received her master's degree from Michigan State University.

Her most recent position was with Oakland University where she was assistant coordinator of student teachers.

Pagen, a Mott fellow this past year, will serve as an administrative assistant, replacing Dr. V. M. Kerensky who assumed a position at a Florida university.

Presently working toward his doctorate at Wayne State University, Pagen, 39, has served as a junior high school science and mathematics teacher.

JOHN PAGEN

FORMER PRINCIPAL

He also was an elementary school principal six years in the Harper Woods School District.

Pelton, 35, succeeds retiring Dr. Marshall Jameson as coordinator of elementary schools.

Pelton, who was to have completed his doctorate studies at Michigan State University this summer, is a former teacher and principal in the Birmingham school system.

He also has served as director of elementary schools at Wooster, Ohio.

OTHER CHANGES

Returning to the district as principal of Pierce Junior High School after studying as a Mott fellow for one year is Paul O'Neill.

He will replace William Aebersold as Pierce principal. Aebersold has been granted a sabbatical leave at Wayne State University.

Thomas Keller, elementary physical education instructor and community school director in the Waterford system, has been named principal of Lotus Lake School.

⅞ * *

Outgoing Lotus Lake Principal Donald L. Smith will take over as principal of the new Manley Elementary School.

Send Balanced Meal

Lunchbox Contents Affect Child's Day

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

One more month and the lunch boxes come out of hiding. Although more and more Oakland County schools have hot lunch programs, there are thousands of students who still carry their own mid-day meal.

If you use a basic formula for packing lunches, you'll be sure to provide your child with the necessary foods.

* * *

Pattern his lunch after the federal school lunch: two ounces of lean meat, fish, poultry, cheese or the equivalent (peanut butter); vegetable; fruit; bread and butter; and milk.

Sandwiches will take care of much of this meal. Add raw vegetables — wrap the lettuce for the sandwich separately to keep the bread from getting soggy — fruit and something for dessert.

If milk is not available at school, send it in a vacuum bottle.

Here are two sandwich fillings that are just a bit different. Both will freeze. A frozen sandwich tucked into the lunchbox thaws nicely by noon.

CRUNCHY PORKWICH

4 ounces cooked pork (about 1 1-3 cups gound)
2 tablespoons toasted almonds
½ cup applesauce
⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
8 slices enriched bread
Butter or margarine, softened
Lettuce leaves

Put pork and almonds through coarse blade of food grinder. Add applesauce, nutmeg and salt. Blend well. Spread butter or margarine on bread, spreading to edges.

Spread filling on four slices then close with remaining bread slices. Wrap in moisture-vapor proof material and freeze.

Add lettuce leaves just before serving. Makes 4 sandwiches.

CALIFORNIA SANDWICH SPREAD

OUNCE PACKAGE CREA
1 8-ounce package cream cheese
1 whole fresh California orane
⅓ cup chopped walnuts
½ cup chopped dried prunes, apricots, dates, or raisins

Soften cream cheese. Ream juice from orange, reserving juice to moisten spread. Cut orange peel into thin strips, then dice fine.

Combine orange peel, nuts and chopped dried fruit with softened cream cheese. Moisten with enough orange juice to make smooth spreading consistency, (about 3 tablespoons). Makes filling for 6 to 8 sandwiches.

For something in the dessert line, make sweet sandwiches with store cookies and butter frosting. Or mix cream cheese with applebutter and spread on vanilla wafers.

If you are baking cake, spoon some of the batter into well-greased corn-stick pans and bake. You'll have little individual cakes in an unusual form. Frost or not, as you desire.

* * *

Coconut Scotch Squares are easy to pack in lunchboxes. You may have to hide some for that purpose if the family knows you've made them the day before.

COCONUT SCOTCH SQUARES

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup butter, melted
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
½ cup flaked coconut
Confectioners' sugar (optional)

Sift flour with baking powder. Combine brown sugar and butter; stir in eggs and vanilla. Then blend in flour mixture. Stir in nuts and coconut. Spread in 13x9-inch pan.

Bake at 325 degrees about 40 minutes, or until cake tester inserted into center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes.

Remove from pan and cut into squares or bars. Roll in confectioners' sugar. Makes 1½ to 2 dozen.

Youngsters Learn Cost of Living

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teacher Eleanor Cook's first-grade approach to thrift is described in the Journal of the National Education Association.

She used the school's lost and found box, asking some children in the West Hartford, Conn., school to inventory contents.

* * *

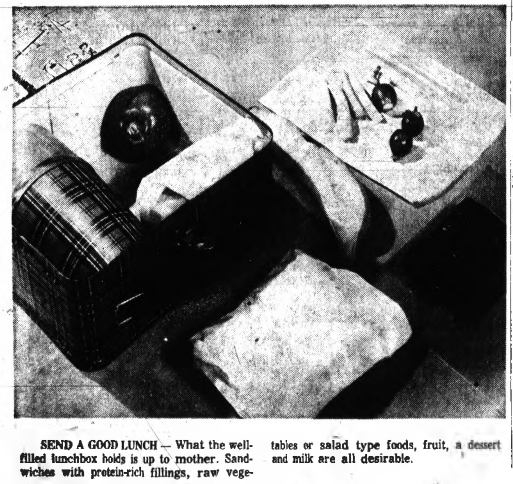

The class then looked through newspaper advertisements to determine the current price for each item.

The children were shocked to learn that their carelessness with belongings was so costly.

Students Raise Money for Gifts

A movie camera and projector, donated by Waterford Township High School students, have been received by U.S. servicemen in South Viet Nam.

Funds for the project were raised at a high school dance.

SEND A GOOD LUNCH — What the well-filled lunchbox holds is up to mother. Sandwiches with protein-rich fillings, raw vegetables or salad type foods, fruit, a dessert and milk are all desirable.

Heavy Summer Program Utilizes Pontiac Schools

The casual observer easily could have toured Pontiac this year and never realized that summer vacation was in progress.

Both high schools, all six junior highs and 12 of the district's elementary schools were in use for programs which attracted more than 5,000 youngsters and adults.

Never before have Pontiac schools been so extensively used during the summer, according to William J. Lacy, assistant superintendent for instruction and pupil personnel services.

Much of the activity can be attributed to federally-supported programs in the district.

* * *

The school system put to work for the first time during the summer funds included in its $426,390 grant for 1965-66 under provisions of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

BUILD SKILLS

Under the act, it set up an experimental project at Mark Twin Elementary School to build the learning skills of underachieving youngsters who will enter the fourth grade this fall.

The program, which ran from June 27 to last Friday, involved 300 children who teachers determined would be handicapped if they entered fourth grade at their present performance level.

Language arts skills were stressed in the classes, which included a half-day of formal instruction and a half-day of enrichment activities like field trips, free reading and parent conferences.

A favorable teacher-pupil ratio was one feature of the program. The staff included 20 classroom teachers, nine special reading teachers, three librarians, three physical education instructors, a principal, a visiting teacher, a psychologist, a nurse, one full-time clerk and two half-time clerks.

Enrollment for the district's federally supported School Community Action Programs was estimated at 1,815. The program at Jefferson Junior High School, which also services Franklin and Whittier elementary schools, operated on a full-time basis.

Running on a half-time basis were the SCAP activities at Bethune and Bagley elementary schools.

Weekly attendance figures for McConnell Community School, sponsored by a Mott Foundation grant, averaged 800-plus.

PROJECT HEAD START

The six Project Head Start centers and their enrollment figures were Bethune, 75; Bagley, 60; Whittier, 45; McConnell, 60; Alcott, 60; and Frost, 105.

The district's summer speech correction program was expanded this year to involve 210 youngsters.

Children with severe speech problems attended half-day sessions at Herrington, LeBaron, Webster and McConnell elementary schools and at Pontiac State Hospital.

* * *

Working with the children in small groups or on an individual basis were eight speech correctionists.

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC

Another program expanded this year was that for elementary and junior high school pupils taking instrumental music lessons.

Some 210 youngsters were enrolled in the classes at Pontiac Northern High School, Owen Elementary School and Jefferson, Lincoln and Washington junior highs.

Regular summer school sessions were conducted at Pontiac Central, Washington Junior High School and Crofoot Elementary School.

* * *

Enrollment figures were 600 on the senior high level, 130 for junior high and 75 for the elementary program.

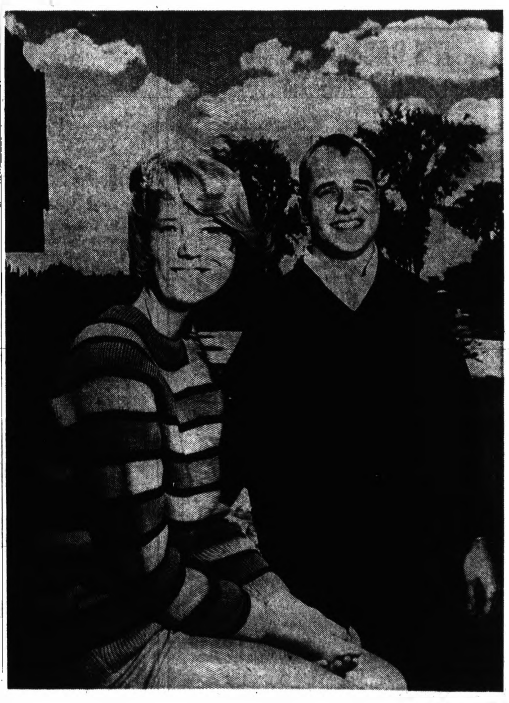

While all of this activity was going on in school classrooms, some 697 persons were being taught how to handle cars under the direction of Pontiac driver education instructors.

Sonic Booms Plague Students

Jet bombers zooming over a Lake Worth, Texas, high school sent students scurrying underground, but not in fear of an air raid.

Sonic booms from a near-by air base were causing a daily ten per cent loss in teaching time, so a completely sound-proof new school with 18 classrooms was built underground at a cost of $495,000.

A child born in 1960 has a life expectancy almost twice as long as one born in 1840 (75.5 years vs. 38.7 years).

Professor Earns 2 Doctorates

What compels a 45-year-old professor to give up his job and go back to school for a second PhD?

"An interest in a vital subject and a strong desire for modern training," retorts Dr. William C. Forbes, now 48, and an associate professor of biology at the Oakland University who just received his second doctorate.

Forbes believes that an educator's worth increases with two degrees because of the extended variety of knowledge.

Forbes, with doctorates in science education and in the life sciences, has assignments in both the School of Arts and Sciences and in the School of Education.

★ ★ ★

The route to this position started 25 years ago with an A.B. in chemistry and an M.A. in zoology from Kent State University.

NIGHT SCHOOL

While stationed with an army unit in New York City, Forbes decided he might as well go to night school at the Teacher's College, Columbia University.

"It seemed like a rational choice, good security," Forbes said.

By 1949 Forbes had his security in the form of a doctorate in science education.

★ ★ ★

Armed with this paper, Forbes made a living in the educational world as an associate professor, first at the State Teachers College in Alabama, then at Willimantic State College in Connecticut, and later at Wayne State University in Detroit.

This man's desire to see the broader spectrum of education led him into the post of director of science education and consultant to 32 school districts for the Oakland County School Board of Education in 1957.

He later became coordinator of science education for the Birmingham School District.

★ ★ ★

An intellectually restless man, Forbes continually sought more knowledge. Through the summers he did research in the field of cytogenetics — and finally decided that he didn't know enough about the life sciences.

BACK TO SCHOOL

He went back to school for three years of classwork and writing resulting in a thesis on the cytogenetics of turtles and a 1966 doctorate from the University of Connecticut.

That there's a woman behind every successful man is very true in Forbe's case.

"Without my wife's urging I would never have gone back."

"She stayed at home with the children" continued Forbes who could only come home one weekend a month.

Home for this family is at 2875 Chadwick, Waterford Township.

"I couldn't work during those years," he continued. "A National Institute of Health grant paid for my schooling but my wife's teaching salary from Donelson Elementary in Waterford Township supported the family."

The children, three of whom are currently studying science, also backed their father's educational ventures. They spent days collecting turtles for his research proects.

CAMPERS

During the summers of 1963-65 the family camped near the university so they could be together and help Dr. Forbes study.

"Reverting from teacher to pupil was an education itself," Forbes commented dryly.

"It was a subduing experience."

"College courses are taught differently than they were a decade ago. There's less textbook learning, more reading from contemporary journals and more research," said Forbes, who tries to teach his own classes the importance of individual thinking.

Forbes, in the process of redesigning his own courses to fit the changes, also added "biology is more molecularly oriented today."

This soft-spoken man has firm ideas about teaching.

"Today's science professor aims for the frontier of his chosen field and teaches the material accordingly," he said.

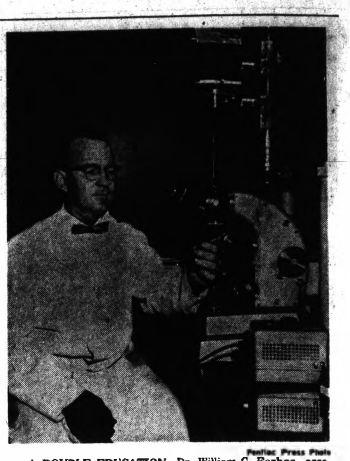

LARGER CONTEXT

Forbes insisted that learning is multisensory and that science must be taught in a larger context than the traditional class room.

"A good teacher," Forbes declared, "should be a master moderator weaving the students thinking and his own into a broad pattern supplemented by practical experimentation."

In the future, he would like to weave several world-wide reptile collecting trips into his usual responsibilities.

"I still have several provocative questions to answer," he said thoughtfully.

Pete Jackson Is 'New Goliath' of GAM

County Golfer Ousts Stevens in Finals, 3-2

State's No. 1 Amateur Is Loser to Member of Oakland Hills

By FLETCHER SPEARS

Bud Stevens of Livonia is a golf king without a throne today.

The Goliath in Michigan's amateur ranks, Stevens captured the Michigan Medal Play, State Amateur and Golf Association of Michigan crowns in 1965.

In competition earlier this year, he surrendered the first two titles, and he dropped the third one yesterday to Royal Oak's Pete Jackson in the finals of the GAM tournament at Franklin Hills Country Club.

The 33-year-old Stevens, who can literally knock the ball out of sight, breezed through the preliminaries and was an odds-on choice to get rid of Jackson in a hurry.

But Jackson, 27, general manager of the Seazons Window Manufacturing Company in Ferndale, stayed out of trouble with a steady game and ended Steven's GAM reign with a 2 and 1 victory in the 36-hole finals.

COMPLEXION CHANGES

The end came when it looked like Stevens, one down going into the par-4, 427-yard 17th, might even the count going into the 18th.

* * *

Stevens boomed a drive on the dogleg 17th across a water hazard and the ball came to rest in the fairway about 100 yards from the green.

Jackson, the 1965 Oakland Hills club champion, stayed away from the water, hitting his ball down the middle but it rolled across the fairway and stopped in the short rough.

Well back of Stevens, Jackson pulled out a four-iron and knocked the ball about 20 feet short of the pin. Stevens, needing a birdie-3, used a wedge trying to get in close to the cup, but he used a little too much power and the ball sailed over the green and stopped 40 yards behind the cup.

* * *

Steven's chip shot hit on the downhill slope and rolled 30 feet away and his first putt finished six feet short.

CONCEDES PUTT

Jackson stepped up, tapped the ball within a foot of the cup and Stevens conceded the one-footer to end the match.

* * *

In the morning round, Jackson fired a 73 to Steven's 76 and finished 3-up after 18 holes over the 6,820-yard, par-72 layout. The two were even after 15 holes, but Stevens ran into some trouble with his sand shots and Jackson took 16, 17 and 18 to go 3-up.

After a seesaw front nine of the afternoon round, Stevens cut the deficit to 2-up on the par-5, 478-yard 11th when he hit a drive and then lashed a four-wood shot two feet from the pin and wound up with an eagle-3.

They halved the 14th with par-4s, and on the 298-yard 15th, Stevens' drive landed 30 yards from the green and his chip shot hit the flagstick and dropped down a foot from the cup. He subsequently tapped in for a birdie-3 while Jackson two-putted for a par and saw his lead dwindle to 1-up.

* * *

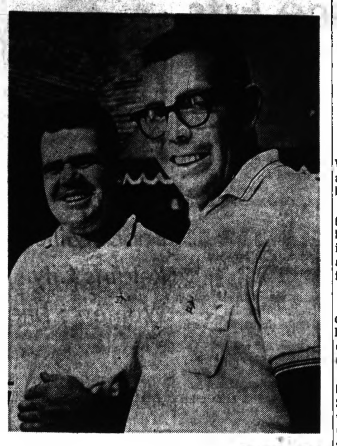

Stevens' big chance came on the 16th hole, a 219-yard par-3, when he and Jackson missed the green with their tee shots.

SINKS 6-FOOTER

Jackson's chip rolled 20 feet past the cup, while Stevens' rolled his chip five feet past. Jackson's first putt stopped six feet short, but he knocked it in for a bogey and ended up halving the hole when Stevens' putt stopped on the lip of the cup.

"That was the turning point," said Jackson of the putt on the 16th green. "I needed it."

In a family duel on Saturday, Bud Stevens whipped his brother Don in the semifinals, 6 and 4. Jackson disposed of Detroiter Bill Albright in his match, 3 and 2.

Horton Bangs Ball With 'Little Help'

DETROIT (AP) — Even when Willie Horton is hitting the ball all over the place he needs a little help.

The Detroit Tigers learned this Sunday when Horton hit home runs in each game, batted in six runs and raised his average to .285 with a 6-for-9 performance.

* * *

But the best the Tigers could do was split a twinbill with the Boston Red Sox, winning the opener 9-2 and dropping the second game, 7-6 in 10 innings.

"He's really been stinging the ball," acting manager Frank Skaff said. "And, he made a whale of a play catching that (Tony) Conigliaro drive in the seventh inning.

"I'll say one thing for all of the boys today—they never gave up," Skaff added.

BIG INNING

The Tigers, held to two hits by Darrell Brandon in the first six innings of the nightcap, exploded for six runs in the seventh to take a 6-4 lead.

Carl Yastrzemski tied things with a pinch two-run homer in the ninth and rookie third baseman Joe Foy won it with a solo homer in the 10th.

* * *

Horton, the big gun in the rally, started the inning with a solo homer. He singled in the final two runs in his second appearance in the frame.

Jake Wood's pinch - single scored two runs and Norm Cash's single sent home the other.

The Red Sox argued at length that Al Kaline swung at a 3- and-2 pitch which would have ended the inning. But umpire Nestor Chylack ruled it was a ball and awarded Kaline first base.

"We not only thought it was a strike, we know he swung at it," Red Sox Manager Billy Herman said. He did not elaborate.

Ex-Tiger George Thomas was ejected for telling one of the umpires he should have helped on the call.

The Tigers appeared on their way to pulling the game out in their own half of the 10th when Horton and Jim Northrup hit back-to-back singles to open the inning.

LEAPING STAB

But Boston catcher Mike Ryan made a leaping stab of Orlando McFarlane's low foul bunt and doubled Horton off second. Jerry Lumpe singled but Dick McAuliffe forced Lumpe to end the game.

* * *

The Tigers had eight extra-base hits among their 10 safeties in the first game, including solo homers by Don Wert, Norm Cash and McFarlane.

HELPED BY AN ERROR—Detroit Tigers' shortstop Ray Oyler dives after the ball after dropping it for an error as Boston Red Sox infielder Eddie Kasko gets to second base safely in the sixth inning of the first game of a twinbill in Detroit yesterday. The Tigers won the game anyway, 9-2, but lost the second, 7-6.

Dressen Hospitalized in Serious Condition

DETROIT (AP) — Charlie Dressen, Detroit Tigers manager, entered the hospital again Sunday — this time for what has been described as a probable acute kidney infection — casting further doubt whether he'll ever return to the bench again.

The Tigers front office, however, refused to comment on Dressen's possible future with the club. His condition is listed as serious.

James A. Campbell, vice president and general manager, said, "I do not have any comment other than we will pay close attention to the reports from the hospital."

Dressen, 67, who suffered his second heart attack in 14 months last May 16, had been recuperating in Detroit. He recently went on a trip to Syracuse, N. Y., to watch some of the younger players on Detroit's No. 1 farm team.

Tigers officials first said Dressen entered the hospital early Sunday because of a persistent cough.

HIGH FEVER

An afternoon report from the hospital revealed that Dressen had been admitted with a high temperature, "probably due to an acute kidney infection."

The report said there was no evidence of further heart damage.

Dressen is under intensive care and will undergo further tests.

* * *

The Tigers had hoped to reach a decision on Dressen's possible return to the bench next week when a doctor's report on his heart condition was expected.

"Charlie will have a job in the Tigers organization as long as I have one," Campbell said last week.

Coach Bob Swift, who took over for Dressen, entered the hospital July 14 for what later was diagnosed as lung cancer.

Coach Frank Skaff assumed managerial duties when Swift left and has been in charge since.

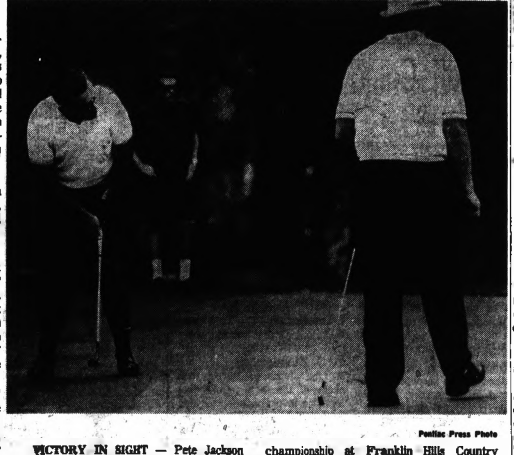

Cassius Clay Looks Ahead After Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — Cassius Clay was back in Chicago today for a conference with Black Muslim leader Elijah Muhammed, a little rest and consideration of his financial and managerial situations before preparing for his next heavyweight title defense.

Clay paused between planes in New York Sunday to note that he was coming to Chicago to visit Elijah Muhammed "as I always do after a fight."

He had just returned to the United States from London, where he had knocked out Brian London of England in the third round of a scheduled 15-round title bout Saturday night.

It was his 25th consecutive victory as a pro, his fifth successful title defense in a row, his second in 10 weeks in England and his last under his current contract with the Louisville, Ky., sponsoring group that matured him from the amateur ranks to the most valuable title in professional sports.

Gives NL Pitchers Headache

By The Associated Press

John Roseboro objected to aspirin tablets, so now he's giving National League pitchers headaches.

Roseboro handed out some headaches as the Los Angeles Dodgers trounced Houston 14-3 and took over the league lead for the second straight Sunday.

* * *

The Dodgers, who had fallen from the top after moving into first place last Sunday, grabbed a one-percentage-point lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates, who lost to Cincinnati 9-7, and a three-point margin over the San Francisco Giants, who downed Chicago 9-6.

Roseboro contributed three hits to the Dodgers' 20-hit onslaught and scored three runs. The performance was typical of those the veteran catcher has been having since he decided pre-game batting practice was for other guys.

"I used to hit, hit and hit some more in the cage," Roseboro explained. "I would have my timing down perfect. Then I would go into the game and I was no good. After batting-practice lollipops, pitches in the game looked like aspirin tablets."

SWEET BAT

As far as the Dodgers are concerned, Roseboro's hitting — since he kicked the batting practice habits — has been sweeter than a lollipop.

Through May 31, the 33-year-old Roseboro batted .240. Since then, without the aid of pre-game hitting, he has hit .348, bringing his season average up to .310, by far the best on the team.

That's not bad for a player whose lifetime average is .245.

* * *

In other NL games, Atlanta blanked Philadelphia 3-0 and St. Louis and New York split a pair of 4-1 games.

Aiding Roseboro in the Dodgers' attack against Houston were Lou Johnson, Ron Fairly and Jim Lefebvre, who each drove in three runs, and Willie Davis, who rapped four hits. Fairly, who also had four hits, and Johnson homered.

Another Johnson, Cincinnati's Deron, helped drop Pittsburgh from first place. He drove in four runs, including three with a sixth-inning double that proved decisive. Roberto Clemente drove in five Pirate runs, lashing two singles and two homers.

San Francisco rallied for four runs in the seventh inning, the last two on Cap Peterson's single, in stopping a three-game losing streak. The rally wiped out Chicago's 4-3 lead and helped Gaylord Perry gain his 17th victory against two defeats.

Tony Cloninger pitched a five-hitter against Philadelphia. The Braves' hurler also doubled home a run in the seventh. Rico Carty homered for Atlanta in the second.

* * *

Tim McCarver's two-run homer in the sixth powered St. Louis past New York in the opener. Bob Gibson won his 14th game with ninth-inning relief from Hal Woodeshick.

The Mets came back in the second game behind a pair of run-scoring singles by Ron Swoboda. Jack Fisher stymied the Cardinals on six hits.

Golf Triumph for Californian

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Jim Wiechers is allergic to grass and bothered by asthma, but he showed no signs of it in winning the Western Amateur Golf championship.

The 21-year-old Californian found the Pinehurst Country Club grass to his liking as he shot a four-under par 68 Sunday in defeating Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael, Calif., 1-up.

Wiechers, a 210-pounder from Atherton, Calif., said he goes to a doctor for shots once a week to keep down the grass allergy.

Nats Stadium Is Tough for AL Leaders

Orioles Hold 1 Win on Diamond at D.C. This Season

By the Associated Press

It isn't that Baltimore Manager Hank Bauer doesn't like the nation's capital. He just wishes his American League leading Orioles didn't have to play in D.C. Stadium.

The Orioles hold a close 8-6 edge over the ninth place Washington Senators this year, but seven of those victories have come in their own Memorial Stadium.

* * *

Baltimore has managed only one victory in six outings in Washington.

The two clubs are scheduled to meet four more times this season, a doubleheader in Washington Friday, a single game in Baltimore Saturday, and the final one in D.C. Stadium Saturday.

* * *

"I don't know what's wrong with the club when they play here," Bauer said Sunday after Washington defeated the Orioles 6-2. "I wish I did, then maybe we could do something to correct it."

WINNING MARK

The victory was the Senators eighth in the last nine games between the two clubs here. Despite losing seven of eight in Baltimore this season, the Senators show an 11-8 record against the Orioles starting Aug. 13, 1965.

* * *

As he dried himself off after his shower, Bauer merely shook his head when asked about the remaining games in D.C. Stadium.

"I'll be glad when they're over," he said.

In other American League games, Detroit beat Boston 9-2 in the first game of a doubleheader, but dropped the second to the Red Sox 7-6 in 10 innings. Chicago beat California 9-8 in 10 innings. Cleveland won a doubleheader from New York 6-4 and 5-3 and Minnesota split a pair with Kansas City, winning 2-1 and bowing 4-2.

NEEDED RUNS

Wayne Causey tripled in two runs in the 10th for Chicago as the White Sox scored four extra-inning runs in their victory over California. And they needed every one of them, because California came right back with three of their own in the 10th, but reliever Dennis Higgins struck out the last two batters and preserved the triumph.

* * *

Fred Whitfield, who lives for Yankee pitching, hit two homers and drove in four runs in Cleveland's first victory over New York, and Rocky Colavito contributed the winning two-run double in the eighth inning of the nightcap. Chuck Hinton had five hits, including a homer, in the two games.

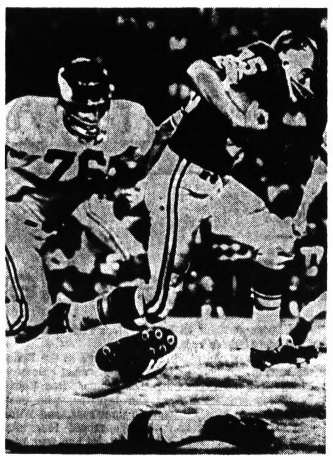

* * *

Don Mincher's two runs batted in gave Minnesota the opening-game victory, and Dick Green's pair propelled Kansas City to the nightcap triumph. Dave Boswell, who went five innings of the opener before leaving with a stiff shoulder, raised his league-leading strikeout total to 165.

SQUEEZED OUT — Catcher Jim Berg of CIO No. 594 puts the tag on Teamsters' first baseman Dave Gottschalk in the seventh inning of their Class A game at Jaycee Park yesterday, foiling the Teamsters' bid to tie the game at 6-6 With Gottschalk on third and one out, the Teamsters tried a suicide squeeze but batter Mike Dodge (left) missed the ball and Gottschalk was an easy out. CIO won, 6-5.

LONG GAINER—Fullback Tom Nowatzke of the Detroit Lions charges through the Minnesota Viking line for a 17-yard gain in their exhibition game Saturday night at New Orleans. Giving chase is Paul Dickson (76). The Lions and Vikings played to a 6-6 tie with all scoring done by field goals.

The lid closes on the regular City Class A baseball race this evening as CIO No. 594 tries to wrap up a berth in the playoffs in a game against league - leading Teamsters.

A playoff in the scramble for tournament berths is assured despite the outcome of tonight's game at Jaycee Park. Game time is 8 p.m.

If the Teamsters win, they'll sew up the league title while CIO will take on M.G. Collision in a playoff for the fifth spot in the tournament.

In the playoffs this year, the league champ will stand by while the next four teams engage in a one-game knockout to determine which squad takes on the champion in a two-out-of-three series.

* * *

If the Teamsters (15-5) lose tonight, they'll have to play the Clippers (15-6) for the title and a berth in the finals.

LEADER FALLS

CIO, with an 11-9 record, spoiled the Teamsters' bid for the title yesterday by posting a 6-5 victory on the Jaycee field.

* * *

In other games yesterday, the Clippers pinned a 9-1 setback on Evans Equipment, and Cranbrook gained a forfeit victory over Talbott Lumber.

CIO scored twice in the fourth on two walks, an error, a hit batsman and a fielder's choice, and the winners used three of their four hits in shoving across three markers in the fifth frame.

Catcher Larry Johnson clouted a two-run home run and added a pair of singles in sparking the Clipper attack. The winners collected 13 hits.

New Shoe Fits Buffalo Bills

By The Associated Press

The Buffalo Bills' new shoe may turn out to be a perfect fit and the San Francisco 49ers' quarterback may be sitting pretty, but how far can the Cleveland Browns expect to go on a 42-year-old toe?

Booth Lusteg, heir apparent to Pete Gogolak as Buffalo's place-kicking specialist, booted the American Football League champions to a 19-13 exhibition victory over the Boston Patriots Sunday.

* * *

Meanwhile, San Francisco's John Brodie, who ended a holdout last Wednesday by signing a long-term contract reportedly in the neighborhood of $750,000 watched from the bench as the 49ers bowed to the Dallas Cowboys 24-13 in a National Football League pre-season test.

* * *

Saturday, 15-year veteran Lou Groza accounted for Cleveland's only points with two field goals as the Browns, making their initial start without Jimmy Brown in the backfield, took a 16-6 beating from the Los Angeles Rams in an NFL warm-up.

Lusteg, who didn't play football as an undergraduate at Boston College, kicked four field goals and an extra point against the Patriots, all but filling the gap left in the Bills' attack when Gogolak departed for the NFL's New York Giants.

"He showed us he can kick under pressure with accuracy and distance," Bills Coach Joel Collier said. "He just about has our kicking job wrapped up."

* * *

Lusteg kicked field goals from 18, 28, 42 and 47 yards out and converted after rookie Allen Smith sent the Bills in front with a three-yard scoring plunge in the fourth quarter.

NOT EFFECTIVE

George Mira, who filled in for Brodie at San Francisco, connected on one touchdown pass but was generally ineffective against the Cowboys' rough pass-rush. Don Meredith threw two TD passes to flanker Pete Gent in the first period, sending Dallas ahead to stay.

* * *

In other NFL games St. Louis trimmed Atlanta 20-10, Philadelphia shelled Chicago 40-21, and New York edged Pittsburgh 16-14.

San Diego buried Miami 38-10 and Kansas City downed Denver 32-30 in other AFL exhibition play.

Lions' Defensive Unit Performs Well

Sikes Won't Have to Tote Bag Anymore

CLEVELAND (UPI)—It will be some time before R. H. Sikes has to carry his own clubs again.

The young Springdale, Ark., golf pro, who toted his own bag while winning the U.S. Public Links championship in 1961, came from behind in the $100,000 Cleveland Open golf championship Sunday to pocket a $20,000 first prize check.

That brought his earnings for the year to $65,257.28, with 13 events still remaining on the tour.

Trailing veteran Bob Goalby by one stroke entering the final round, the 25-year-old Sikes, after shooting a record-breaking 63 over the 6,777 Lakewood Country Club layout Saturday, carded a 35-33—68 for a 72-hole total of 268, another course record.

Two Positions in Question 'Impressive'

Both Defensive Teams Effective in 6-6 Tie at New Orleans

From Our Wire Services

The Detroit Lions' defense didn't collapse in the opening exhibition game of the season against the Minnesota Vikings Saturday night in New Orleans as many thought might happen without Joe Schmidt and Sam Williams.

Unfortunately for Detroit however, Minnesota's defense was just as effective and a pair of field goals was the best either side could muster in the 6-6 tie.

Replacements for Schmidt and Williams were impressive, giving the Lions some assurance at the linebacking and defensive end positions.

Veterans Mike Lucci and Wally Hilgenberg apparently showed little more savvy about the middle linebacker slot than given credit for, and Ernie Clark showed he wasn't ready to be pushed into the "other man" role.

* * *

Clark made several outstanding plays in the Viking backfield, and intercepted two passes, one for a touchdown which was nullified for an offside penalty.

Lucci started in the middle linebacker position and performed almost flawlessly and Hilgenberg, playing some on the left side and some in the middle, looked just as impressive to the coaches.

PRESSURE ON BACKS

Another youngster, second-year man Larry Hand, started at the right defensive end spot which Williams had occupied and showed he could put a little pressure on opposing backs himself.

The Detroit offense which faltered badly last year showed some rough edges in head coach Harry Gilmer's view, faltering on execution and assignments.

* * *

The offense moved to Minnesota's 29-yard line midway in the second quarter, giving Wayne Walker the opportunity to boot his first field goal of the season. And again in the third quarter, got down to the 27-yard line, from which he kicked another field goal, leaving the game in the eventual 6-6 tie.

Fred Cox kicked both of Minnesota's field goals, in the first quarter from 37 yards and in the third quarter from 27 yards.

Both Gilmer and Minnesota coach Norm Van Brocklin allowed two quarterbacks to do all the work.

* * *

Van Brocklin used his ace signal caller — Frank Tarkenton — and back-up man Ron Vanderkallen while Gilmer went with Milt Plum and George Izo, saving young Karl Sweetan and Tom Myers for later action.

Plum completed 12 of 23 passes for 92 yards with two interceptions and Izo, frequently the victim of a Minnesota blitz when the offense line failed to hold, had only one for three.

The Lions will make their 1966 debut in Detroit on Thursday night, meeting the St. Louis Cardinals.

In the handicap division, Dorothy Condon turned in a 117 and with her handicap of 55 wound up with a net 62 to lead the way. Marbara Childress was second in the handicap class with a net 71.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Relief pitcher Larry Bearnarth has been optioned to Jacksonville of the International League by the New York Mets. He will be replaced on the roster by outfielder Jim Hickman, who will soon be taken off the disabled list where he has been since fracturing his right wrist May 13.

Troy Golfer Loses

Retains Publinx Title

Special to the Press

PORTLAND — Dr. Wayne Kramer of Flint joined some select company Saturday by claiming his second State Publinx Golf championship in a row at Portland Country Club.

* * *

The 25-year-old dentist trimmed Jack Floch of Troy in the finals, 5 and 3, to become only the third player in Publinx history to win back-to-back titles.

Pontiac's Mike Andonian who now lives in California, owns the record for consecutive victories with three. He took the title in 1956-57-58. The other player to win two in a row beside Dr. Kramer was Doug Wilson of Ypsilanti in 1960-61.

Dr. Kramer, 6 feet and 165 pounds who owns about every open title available in Flint, knocked off six opponents in a row en route to the title and finished 27-under-par through 100 holes over the tricky 6,007-yard, par-71 layout.

* * *

Dr. Kramer, defending champion in the Flint Publinx and Amateur tournaments to be played later this season and winner of the Vehicle Open earlier in the year, was under par in every match and wound up with a 67 in downing Floch Saturday.

FIRST TIME

Floch, 38, wood model maker for Fisher Body Division in Warren and a member of Rochester No. 2 publinx team, made it to the finals of the state tournament for the first time and played well before running into the hot game of Dr. Kramer.

* * *

Floch was nine strokes below par going into the match against Dr. Kramer, and he finished one-under in the finals.

Top Seed Takes Junior Net Title

KALAMAZOO (AP) — Steve Avoyer of San Diego, Calif., ended his role as a bridesmaid Sunday in the finals of the National Junior and Boys, Tennis Championships.

* * *

The top-seeded Avoyer defeated fourth-ranked Tom Leonard of Arcadia, Calif., 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, for the junior title.

Six Champs in Golf Play

SEWICKLEY, Pa. (AP) — Defending champion Jean Ashley of Chanute, Kan., and five other former titlists led a field of 124 into the qualifying rounds of the Women's National Amateur Golf Championship today.

Today's and Tuesday's rounds over the par-73 Sewickley Heights Golf Club course will pare the field of 32 for the start of match play.

Miss Ashley, 27, a schoolteacher, captured the crown last year by beating former champion Anne Quast Welts of Mount Vernon, Wash., 5 and 4 in the final at Lakewood Golf Club in Denver, Colo.

Post Track Triumphs

TURKU, Finland (UPI) — John Pennell won the pole vault and Bill Toomey the 400 meters Sunday in an international track meet. Pennell vaulted 16-9 while Toomey, a decathlon star, was clocked in 46.6 seconds.

TOM SCHRAW

Charges in Palmer-Style

The 15-year-old Schraw, 11 strokes off the pace going into the final 54 holes Saturday, turned in 18-hole scores of 35-30-35 — 100 for an over-all total of 458, a stroke ahead of Steve Van Roekel.

* * *

VanRoekel went into the final 54 holes with a four-shot advantage over Tom Hillsey, but he slumped to a 34-39-39—112 and fell victim to Schraw's charge.

* * *

Hillsey wound up third with 462 strokes, followed by Kelley Kammer (465), John Stormer (469) and Gary Klann (478).

2-Hitter Gets Playoffs Going

Two-hit pitching by Ted Whary carried McAnnally Auto Sales to a 4-0 victory over Dixie Tool in the opening round of softball playoffs in Waterford Township Saturday night.

In another game of the two-game knockout tournament, Lakeland Pharmacy turned back Midget Bar, 11-6.

In action this evening, Hillcrest Nazarene meets Midget Bar at 7 and Buckner Finance takes on Dixie Tool at 8:30. All four teams have lost one game so the losers tonight fall from the tourney.

Whary struck out 10 and walked two in keeping the auto squad in the tourney. Tom Minella paced the offense with a pair of singles.

Lakeland collected only six hits but sandwiched them around 10 Midget Bar errors in the easy victory. The winners held a 7-0 lead after three innings.

Win 1st Places

Three Pontiac motorcyclists won first place in the Brighton Scrambles Sunday.

Chuck Fordyce took A heavyweight; Bill Kinsley, B heavyweight; and Roger White, A lightweight.

SPARKS ON SWIMMING

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the nineteenth in a series of 20 articles in which author and swimming coach Christian B. Sparks offers tips on swimming for beginners and experts.)

By CHRISTIAN B. SPARKS

The body in the butterfly stroke goes through a wide range of undulation or up-and-down motion (like a wave).

The lower leg, the hips, and the head are the principal parts in the range of motion and their co-ordinated movement gives us our closest study of man mimicking the bodily motion of a swimming fish.

However, in learning the stroke, I advise that you not try to imitate the undulation but just try to learn the rhythm of the arm and leg strokes and the undulation will fall in place.

The first objective was to get the feel of the rhythm that comes from two kicks of the legs for each complete stroke (cycle) of the arms.

* * *

Each time the arms come forward in the recovery, the head is thrown forward into the water and the swimmer submerges while the legs rise to position for kicking (See figure 1 in Article No. 18).

IN WATER

The arms enter the water outside the body line, press downward and outward, supporting the body momentarily and stopping its downward motion.

It is at this time that the legs come downward in the first dolphin kick (See figure 2 in Article No. 18). The arms then begin to bend and pull in a wide "V" pattern with the hands coming closest together just under the stomach. During this phase of the arm stroke the legs rise in preparation for the second kick (see figure 3 in Article No. 18). The head comes above the water for breathing in the pull phase just before the hands reach their closest point.

At this stage of the stroke, the pull ends and the push begins by driving the hands under and around the hips with a vigorous push (See figure 4 in Article No. 18), the momentum of which carries the arms out of the water for the recovery.

At the moment of the greatest thrust of the push, the legs come downward in the second and strongest dolphin kick (See figure 4 in Article No. 18).

* * *

This combination of push and kick provides the greatest propulsive force of the stroke and provides the momentum and upward lift for the recovery of the arms (See figure 5 in Article No. 18). Again, as the Arms come forward, the head is thrown forward (if it is up for breathing) and enters the water simultaneously with the entry of the arms.

When the arms enter the water, a new stroke cycle begins.

Arrows Have Ton of Weight Up Front

Two immovable forces ran into each other when the offensive and defensive lines of the Pontiac Arrows battled each other in the full dress intra-squad scrimmage yesterday at Wisner practice field.

The Arrows, who open their exhibition season Saturday night at Rochester High school field against the Flint Blue Devils, has over 2,000 pounds of human weight bumping heads with the front four on defense and the interior five on offense.

With 245-pound center Lyle Hildrebrand on the offensive line are tackles Len Centala, 6-4 and 255 and Jim Richendollar at 6-2 and 275; and guards Chico Johnson, 6-2 and 255 and Bob Mallendeck at 6-3 and 265.

Defensively, the Arrows countered with Dick Storms and Eric Hatcher at ends going 6-1 and 240 and 6-4 and 245. The tackles are Bill Feddler at 6-4 and 265, and two-way tackle Larry Oetting at 6-2 and 240.

Others are Bill Shepherd a 6-4 and 250 pounder, Larry Scroby 6-feet and 240 and the "little" linemen in the group Mike Leiberman, 6-2 and 225, and veteran Jerry Brown 5-11 and 225.

With Bill Harrington, Ron Bishop and Jim Sytek throwing the ball, the Arrows struck a couple times through the airlanes for touchdowns with end Bill Leonard topping the receivers.

The Arrows will meet an equally potent and huge gathering of linemen when they face the Dayton Colts in the first home appearance at Wisner Stadium, Saturday night August 20th.

Is France Planning Viet Ploy?

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press International

There is speculation among officials in Paris that President Charles de Gaulle might revive the idea of a Geneva conference on Cambodia as a ruse to get both sides in the Viet Nam War to the peace table.

The idea was kicked around 18 months ago but came to nothing because Communist China opposed it.

De Gaulle, it is speculated, might revive it during his three-day state visit to Cambodia at the end of this month.

HUK FRIENDS—If a current Philippine congressional inquiry is successful, the government should be able to identify soon local officials who are either Communist Huks or Huk collaborators.

★ ★ ★

It is an open secret in Manila that town and village officials in central Luzon have been openly fraternizing with the Huks, partly out of fear but mostly out of a desire to hang on to their influential positions through a live and let live deal with the dissidents.

AUGUST LULL — Barring unforeseen developments a period of doldrums is expected in Moscow during August.

★ ★ ★

Top Soviet leaders are to head southward for their annual vacations on the Black Sea coast.

But as usual it will be a combination of work and play with a good part of the Kremlin apparatus moving to the Yalta-Sochi area.

It is customary for foreign Communist leaders to spend a few weeks this time of the year in those resorts and have private, unpublished talks with Soviet rulers.

★ ★ ★

Italian party chief Luigi Longo already has arrived.

BUMPER CROP — With harvesting already completed in the southernmost areas of the Soviet Union and proceeding at a stepped-up tempo elsewhere, reliable reports indicate a bumper crop.

★ ★ ★

The enormous wheat orders in Canada — $800 million over the next three years — are to be used chiefly for re-export and building up Soviet reserves.

QUEEN'S SUITE — Persistent but unconfirmed rumors in Paris say President Charles de Gaulle would like to invite Queen Elizabeth II of Britain for a state visit to France to inaugurate the newly furnished apartments in the Grand Trianon Palace at Versailles.

Officials deny knowledge of such plans but workers at the palace even have named one suite of apartments "The Queen's Suite."

NATO MOVES — Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, the Allied supreme commander in Europe, is expected to make recommendations to the NATO Council in the near future for a new supreme allied headquarters (SHAPE) in Belgium.

It is hoped at least to start the move by April 1, 1967, the deadline set by President Charles de Gaulle for Allied troops and bases to get out of France.

Cost Jump Reported on TFX Warplane

WASHINGTON (AP) — The costs of a big military project — the controversial TFX warplane and its Phoenix air-to-air missile weapon system — have skyrocketed, Defense Department figures show.

The department made the multimillion-dollar increases known in reply to series of questions submitted by the Associated Press.

★ ★ ★

The Pentagon figures show the cost of the TFX, known as the F111, to be about $5 million for the Air Force version and $8 million for the Navy model.

In 1962, there was testimony before Congress that the unit cost of the F111 would be about $2.9 million.

ORIGINAL COST

The original estimated cost of developing the Phoenix system was $137 million. The cost now is $258 million and the weapon still reportedly is having guidance and control problems.

The Pentagon said the reasons for 85 to 90 per cent of the increased costs were "government change orders to improve the capability and increase the versatility of the F111."

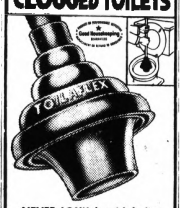

★ ★ ★

The Air Force version of the F111 — the F111A — is being built at Fort Worth, Tex., by General Dynamics, while Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., Calverton, N.Y., is building the Navy's F111B.

The F111 was selected by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara despite the recommendation of a 235-man evaluation board that a Boeing Co. design be accepted.

McNamara said the General Dynamics design would ultimately save the Defense Department $1 billion.

Picture on Bill Causes Worry

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — Tanzania's new 100-shilling bill, with its picture of a Masai warrior tending cattle, has the government worried.

* * *

The tribesmen, great cattle-tending fighters of northern Tanzania, believe the picture proves that all cattle in the country belong to them.

The tribesmen have a strong penchant for rustling — it's just part of a warrior's adult life. The practice leads to tribal wars and many deaths.

COMPLICATION

The picture on the money has complicated the problem.

Second Vice President Rashidi Kawawa, on a Masailand tour, warned the warriors not to take the picture literally.

"It doesn't mean the Masai are more important than other people," he said.

Kawawa also threatened that the government would use aircraft to trace cattle thieves if necessary.

Americans need bigger mailboxes. During a recent 20-year period, the population rose 35.7 per cent, but the amount of mail increased nearly 130 per cent.

Tht chances are one in 50 that you will get diabetes. Although it can strike any time after birth, you are statistically most likely to get this disease if you are fat, female, over 40 and live in a northeastern state. You are also about five times as likely to suffer diabetes if someone in your family had the disease.

If you're having trouble financing a son through college here, maybe you'd save money by sending him to a university in Japan. The annual cost to a student there comes to as little as $461, including tuition and other fees.

Although there is a national shortage of psychiatrists, it is comforting that they tend to concentrate where they can do the most potential good. A survey found that in Washington, D.C., there are about 28 psychiatrists per 100,000 population, a higher ratio than in any other U.S. city.

Do you know who has the legal right to decide where the family shall live? Generally speaking, it's the husband—since he is the person legally responsible for the family's support. And that usually means Mama has to live where Papa has his job, whether she likes it or not.

Post Office Losing Zip?

DETROIT (UPI) — The U.S. Post Office Department must be having a little trouble putting zip in its ZIP code system.

For example, Detroit Postmaster Edward Baker has announced that Oct. 10-15 has been designated as ZIP code week for Detroit.

But the announcement from Baker was a little late. He made the announcement Friday but it was delivered in the mail to the Detroit bureau of United Press International Saturday.

'Russia First' Program: Blow for Party?

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Kremlin leaders at the recent Supreme Soviet (Parliament) session illuminated a "Russia First" program which is virtually certain to deepen the conflict in world Communist ranks.

The approach to foreign affairs was cautious and worried. On the domestic side, the session indicated continuing concentration on a program to build the economy so that it might measure up to and compete effectively with capitalism, even if this might require the use of capitalist tools.

* * *

The leadership candidly let it be known that the contest for friends abroad would be pursued with Soviet national interests as the most important yardstick.

All this will serve to confirm in the minds of those Communists, including the Chinese, who put world revolution before all else, that the "revisionist" Kremlin leadership is beyond redemption.

News Analysis

LACK OF BOMBAST

Priority has been given to the internal economy. With characteristic lack of the bombast which marked the regime of Nikita S. Khrushchev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin quietly read the riot act to ministers responsible for the domestic economy.

Ministers and economic bosses were warned that the U.S.S.R. is in danger of falling too far behind in its bid to rival the American economy. The party and government, he made clear, are far from satisfied with the current state of affairs, despite gains in the agriculture and light industry sectors. These gains, Kosygin said, were not sufficient. Improvement in quality and quantity of consumer goods was too slow in coming. Equally slow was the production of new articles for the consumer.

* * *

"Of the greatest importance for us," Kosygin said, "is the problem of speeding up scientific and technical progress in the national economy because in an age of stormy scientific and technical revolution, a lag in this sphere would bring tremendous losses to the national economy and mean a drop in the pace of economic competition with capitalism."

* * *

More than half of his address of 15,000 words dwelt on these themes. In the field of foreign affairs, he said the U.S.S.R. would continue to aid developing countries but added significantly that such aid "will be in accord with the economic interests of the Soviet Union itself."

Fewer than 1,000 words of the Kosygin speech dealt with Viet Nam. He said what was expected of him in some respects, promising further Soviet aid to the Communists and denouncing the Americans. But he also suggested that relations with the United States could be better, and he proposed that the U.S.S.R. and the United States go forward with a treaty on nonproliferation of nuclear weapons, despite the tension in Asia.

'HOLY ALLIANCE'

This attitude on the part of the U.S.S.R. leadership has been inflaming Red Chinese rage. Peking points to such statements as proof that the Russians have a "Holy Alliance" with the Americans to contain China.

The anxiety of the Russians about the international situation — which could interrupt the Soviet domestic economy effort — was underscored in a statement by the Supreme Soviet.

Addressing itself to all parliaments and governments, it said: "There can be no delay in eliminating the seat of war in the Indochinese peninsula. . . . the serious danger threatening world peace must be averted."

Thus far, the Kremlin has declined to take an initiative for peace in Viet Nam. But as the split with Red China deepens — as it probably will — the Soviet leaders may be less inhibited by Peking's accusations.

Christian Science is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year.

Always a Hot Time in This Old Town

PRESIDIO, Tex. (AP) — A bulky, red-faced rancher came out of a grocery store, dumped supplies into his pickup and wiped a forefinger under his hatband. "Mighty hot," he said.

"It sure wouldn't surprise me any if it hit 110 again today," said Oliver Harper, hardware merchant and official weather reporter.

* * *

It was almost a normal day in Presidio, by default the hottest town in the United States.

"We're feeling the heat a little more than usual," Harper said, "because it's humid. Clouded up and rained 14 drops last night."

In 1943, the government decided it needed a weather reporting station on the Mexican border halfway between Del Rio and El Paso. Harper and his wife agreed to become weather reporters.

Day after day, Harper turns in the highest reading in the nation. But, he said, that's only because some hotter towns don't have weather reporters.

WARMER TOWNS

"Some places in California and Arizona could skin us alive every day." No doubt that's true. Presidio's record is 117 degrees, six below the Texas record of 123 in Rio Grande City. California's Death Valley once recorded 134.

Presidio is an unincorporated village of about 1,070 population in the Big Bend, the huge wedge of mountain, canyon and desert cut out of Mexico by a southward hook of the Rio Grande.

* * *

There is one paved street—Texas Highway 170. The few flowerbeds feature ocotillo and other cactus. But cotton, alfalfa and melons grow in irrigated fields near the Rio Grande.

Presidio's reputation for heat undoubtedly is more impressive in the East than in the Southwest. A day in Presidio when the temperature is 110, and the humidity about 5 per cent, is considerably more bearable than a day in, say, Indianapolis or New York, when it's 95 degrees with 65 per cent humidity.

GOOD INSULATION

Most buildings in Presidio are built of adobe—sun-dried mud bricks that may be the best insulating material known. Also, residents use evaporative coolers, a convenience known to the arid West long before the humid East had air conditioners.

So the people of Prtsidio can laugh about the heat—and for another reason, too.

Mrs. Dick Cross, who runs the Presidio Motel, thinks the town's reputation helps business.

"Lots of people come here just to see if it's that hot."

Helium Sighted by Telescope

By Science Service

LONDON — Radio waves broadcast by helium in the Milky Way galaxy have been detected by using the 60-foot radio telescope at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., four U. S. astronomers reported here.

The discovery confirms a prediction made several years ago by the Russian astronomer, N. S. Kardashev. The radio waves were made by neutral helium atoms changing from one highly excited state to another.

Observations of light from the sun and other stars long ago showed the presence of helium in stars and interstellar space.

The radio radiation has so far been picked up only at three wavelengths. However, detecting excited helium at any radio wave frequency opens up literally hundreds of channels for studying the matter between stars in the Milky Way.

Such measurements give scientists valuable clues to the structure and composition of the Milky Way, the galaxy of millions of stars in which the sun and its planets, including earth, are located.

Slum Housing Role of Business Viewed

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.
Executive Director
Urban League

American business has a well-earned reputation for efficiency and ability to turn a profit out of the most unlikely enterprise.

YOUNG

It is also beginning to realize that with wealth comes responsibility and many companies are doing well in opening up expanded opportunities for Negro workers.

But industry has a long way to go yet before it fully lives up to its social responsibilities.

Ideally, American business would like to make a profit and perform a social service at the same time. Such an opportunity exists in rehabilitating slum housing.

At a time when business finds that the billions it has pumped into foreign ventures are slow in earning a fair return as start-up costs and the costs of entering a new market abroad eat into earnings, many companies might look with profit at the housing in their own back yards.

Every city in the nation has its share of dilapidated buildings, decayed with age and neglect, which house the poorest people in the city who cannot afford better. Often these slums house Negroes who can afford better but are cut off from the open market by discrimination in the sale or rental of housing.

New York City alone has more than 330,000 apartments in buildings which were erected before 1901 and another 825,000 apartments almost that obsolete.

NATIONWIDE

The nationwide market for rehabilitating these substandard structures could run to over $30 billion. This is an enormous market, one which few companies can afford not to enter. One major company has already done so in a well publicized project.

The U. S. Gypsum Co. bought several buildings on East 102nd Street in New York's East Harlem. Using refined construction techniques, they stripped the building down to its outer walls and then rebuilt the interior — clean, modern apartments.

When one building was finished, they moved on to the next, thus avoiding large-scale disruption of the neighborhood. Three-fourths of the new apartments were rented to the tenants who lived there before.

Of course, rents went up, but the tenants were certainly getting more for their $80 than they were for $40. The new owners also hired a project manager who made it clear that repairs would be made and that the buildings would not be allowed to lapse into their original state.

A NEW PRIDE

This concern was transmitted to the tenants who take great pride in their new homes, thus proving that it is neglect by slum landlords that breeds neglect on the part of tenants.

When the potential profits of slum rehabilitation begin to sink in, and companies take advantage of this new opportunity, a new face will be put on the nation's slums.

Border Guards Cut Lights, Flee

BERLIN (UPI) — Two Communist East German border guards short-circuited searchlights while on patrol yesterday and fled to the American sector of West Berlin. Both were in uniform and took their weapons with them.

Shooting Suspect and Victim Both Face Charges

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Indalia Lluveras, 23, New York City, who ran naked into a street to tell police she shot two of three persons holding her captive, was to be arraigned today on charges of assault and battery by firearms.

Also to be arraigned were one of her alleged victims, Robert Washington, 23, with a bullet wound of the neck, and Major McFadden, 22, who was not injured.

The other alleged victim, Mary Morris, 17, suffered a bullet wound of the right hip. She was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Neighbors heard shots coming from an apartment yesterday afternoon and saw a naked woman dart from an alley beside the apartment building.

One woman neighbor gave Miss Lluveras a pair of shorts which she donned and then ran to a police car and blurted out that she shot two persons and had been held captive since she was abducted from New York 10 days ago.

At the same time, Hahnemann Hospital reported that a man had brought in two persons with gunshot wounds.

Police went to the hospital and arrested the three.

Washington and McFadden were charged with assault with intent to kill Miss Lluveras who was shot at when she jumped from a first-floor window into the alley.

Police said no charges of abduction or kidnap would be filed against the two men and indicated Miss Lluveras came willingly.

Rainmaker Stakes All

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — With an eye on the sky and the hope it wouldn't stay dry, pluviculturist Edmond Charles Jeffery spent the day waiting for rain.

"I'm going to prove once and for all," Jeffery declared Sunday, "that rainmaking is a science, not a myth. You can expect rain by Monday."

Jeffery of Los Angeles stakes his reputation as a rainmaker on chemicals atop a tower 50 miles east of San Diego, near the Morena Reservoir.

He claims to have rediscovered the rainmaking secrets of Charles Mallory Hatfield, the most famous of the local rainmakers.

FORGOT MONEY

Hatfield, hired in 1916 to alleviate the city's drought, left town without his $10,00 after one of the worst rainstorms in history nearly washed the city away.

Jeffery said his chemicals will bring two inches of rain within 10 days.

Opening lead—♥ Q.

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

The late Hal Sims was asked, "When So-and-so thinks for 10 minutes on a play, what does he think about?"

Hal replied, "He is naturally a slow thinker so the first two minutes are spent in deciding what to do. The next two go on getting an alibi ready if his play doesn't work. The last six go in figuring how to blame his partner."

JACOBY

South did not like his four spade contract. It looked as if he would have to lose one trick in each suit. Could he work out an end play and get an opponent to lead away from the king of diamonds? At least it was worth a try.

He didn't spend much time finding a way to blame his partner. True, North had bid but North had failed to respond to one spade and North did hold an ace.

Was there any way to make the hand by sheer power? South finally saw that there was such a way and decided to try it.

He won the heart lead and led his deuce of trumps to dummy's six. He needed two sure trump entries to dummy.

East won with his ace and led back a heart. South went right up with his other high heart and led the seven of spades to dummy's eight. Then he played a low diamond from dummy. East took his king. He had nothing better to do.

Then he cashed his ten of hearts and led a club. South went up with the ace, took his queen of diamonds, entered dummy with the ten of spades and discarded his jack of clubs on the ace of diamonds.

He was lucky, but he had given the cards a chance and they had rewarded him.

What is your opening bid?

A—Bid two clubs! Six clubs is a close second choice and we have no objection to a one-club opening. You can be sure if you do open one club that someone will bid against you and you will get a second chance.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You bid two clubs and your partner responds two spades. What do you do now?

Court Orders IRS to Refund Money

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has been ordered by U.S. District Court to refund nearly $1 million to Boys, Inc., of America—a Dallas charity that derived a large part of its income from a California horse-racing track.

The IRS had claimed the money that it collected was taxes on profits paid to the organization indirectly by the Del Mar Race Track. Boys, Inc., contended the money was rent from real property and not taxable.

Korean Officer Dies in Fight Between Units

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — One South Korean officer drowned and about 40 others were seriously injured today when about 120 South Korean marines attacked an air force training school before dawn, news reports said.

The reports said the marines from the Chinhae naval base, 170 miles southeast of Seoul, were retaliating for an attack Sunday by air force officers on several marine officers.

The two groups battled with fists, sticks and stones.

One marine lieutenant drowned in a creek as his outnumbered group retreated over a fence.

Uruguay Chief Returns

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Uruguay's chief executive, who left his post five days ago to protest the delay in adopting a presidential government, was to return to the helm today.

Alberto Heber withdrew from the presidency of the nine-man government council Wednesday after charging other leaders of his Blanco party with blocking a constitutional amendment to replace the governing council by a president.

The proposal must be adopted by Aug. 27 if it is to be put to a referendum during the Nov. 27 general election. Supporters of the reform reportedly have enough votes to put it through but a filibuster by opponents may delay passage.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

Dems Battling Over Governor Nomination

Minnesota Rift Puts VP on the Spot

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Democrats are embroiled in a bitter intramural battle over the nomination for governor, much to the discomfort of the state's foremost party member — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Humphrey stands with the party regulars, backing the party's endorsed candidate. It will be at least a minor embarrassment to him if the regulars lose in the Sept. 13 primary.

If the Democratic scrapping should open the door for Republicans to take over the state in the November election, there undoubtedly would be pressure on President Johnson to seek a different running mate in 1968.

A key figure is Gov. Karl F. Rolvaag, 53, an old party ally of Humphrey, the "basement governor" who waited out a four-month recount in the Capitol basement before squeaking into office by 91 votes in 1963.

Rolvaag was dumped by the party convention this year, with the endorsement going to his 1964 running mate, Lt. Gov. A. M. Keith, after 20 ballots on the question of whether Rolvaag could win a second term.

Humphrey stayed out of the convention fight but immediately afterward embraced Keith and advised Rolvaag to step aside in the interest of harmony. Rolvaag decided to run anyway.

Humphrey says he won't campaign. He has, however, released a top aide, Ronald Stinnett, to work for the endorsed Democratic ticket in Minnesota — including Keith.

A tangle of 29 candidates will fight it out for nomination to eight state offices in the Democratic primary. All but one of the convention-endorsed candidates has opposition from party mavericks.

TOP TURNOUT FORECAST

The secretary of state has forecast a record voter turnout of more than 700,000 votes.

Rolvaag appears to be riding a wave of sympathy following the slap by the party convention. He has picked up heavy labor support in Minneapolis-St. Paul, an area that casts more than 40 per cent of the Minnesota vote, and leads Keith in at least one public opinion poll.

Republicans, with few contests of their own, talk gleefully of crossing over in the primary, permissible in Minnesota. GOP leaders warn against dabbling in enemy affairs, but thousands of Republicans may well vote for Rolvaag to embarrass the Democratic party, from Humphrey down.

★ ★ ★

The GOP danger is that Rolvaag will pile up enough momentum to carry him to victory over the Republican candidate, 55-year-old Harold LeVander, a South St. Paul attorney who will be making his first campaign.

Rolvaag claims he is undismayed by lack of Humphrey support. "I consider him a social and political friend and I expect him to remain so after the primary," he says.

Obviously Not a 'Police' Dog

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A watchful watchdog proved embarrassing to two policemen making their rounds in a squad car yesterday.

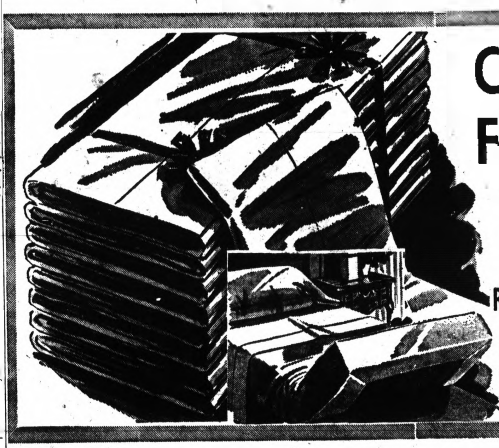

The officers had to call the Animal Rescue League to remove the animal when the dog prevented them from getting out of their car to make their nightly rounds.

The average American drank just under one gallon of wine in 1965, a slight increase over the previous year.

In West Bloomfield Dispute

Teachers Ask Labor Board Mediation

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The West Bloomfield Education Association has announced it will seek mediation from the Michigan Labor Relations Board in its contract disputes with the board of education.

* * *

Rosemary Gustafson, secretary of the teachers' group, said that contract negotiations which began last March have reached an impasse.

Although both negotiating teams have agreed on some points, in-service training, class size, length of day, teacher evaluation and the salary schedule are still in dispute.

James Maker, president of the teachers' group, has said that teachers are asking for 65 per cent of the board's operating money for the 1966-67 school year as a basis for the salary schedule.

The present salary schedule for teachers with bachelor's degrees is $5,300 starting salary and $8,200 after 12 years.

MASTER'S DEGREES

Teachers with master's degrees receive $5,700 starting salary with a maximum of $8,800 after 12 years.

The teachers expect to hear from the Michigan Labor Relations Board early this week about setting up a hearing for both the board of education and the West Bloomfield Education Association.

Area News

Food Inspection Office Gives 'Meaty' Replies

The telephone rings often at the six regional offices of the Michigan Department of Agriculture's Food Inspection Division. While many of the inquiries are easily answered, some pose knotty problems.

Recent consumer inquiries included these:

"I wonder if you could come check the slivers of what looks like glass in some canned tuna." This call from a housewife.

"How can I tell if someone stole a loin out of a quarter of beef that I paid for?" A butcher this time.

"Is there any way to tell if what I bought really was pure maple syrup?" telephoned a man who didn't like the taste of his sweetening.

TEEN LAMENT

Then a teen-ager's voice: "I bought a spool of tape for my tape recorder, but while I paid for 150 feet, I only got 143 feet. What do I do now?"

As all such complaints are within the realm of responsibility of the Food Inspection Division, each was checked out by one of the inspectors who serve every community in the state. Here's what they found:

"Glass" in canned tuna turned out to be harmless phosphate crystals which commonly occur in canned seafood. They dissolve in vinegar, food inspectors advise.

* * *

Stolen loin? Through painstakingly working a jigsaw puzzle in meat, the butchered portions of the beef quarter were reconstructed to prove to the butcher's satisfaction that he had not been gypped.

SYRUP TEST

Adulterated maple syrup? Yes, there's a test for this at the Michigan Department of Agriculture's laboratory in East Lansing, where inspectors send samples. The syrup in question proved to be pure maple, but low on sugar content, probably due to insufficient evaporation.

Following through on the magnetic tape complaint, the inspector found the purchased spool to contain more than advertised. The fault lay with the footage recorder on the teen-ager's set; it gave an incorrect reading.

Food inspectors are responsible for protecting consumers against short weight, short count, unsanitary conditions in food handling and processing, as well as enforcing labeling requirements on hundreds of commonly purchased products.

* * *

While the above complaints were solved without recourse to the law, in many cases seizures are necessary, and often court action is taken to protect the public.

In 1965, department food inspectors placed under seizure 20 million pounds of various products for failure to comply with food or weights and measures laws. Court convictions numbered 287.

Post Office Award Given

Lake Orion Drivers Get Safety Citation

LAKE ORION — The Lake Orion Post Office vehicle fleet has been cited for meritorious safety performance by the Chicago regional director of the Post Office Department.

The citation was issued to postal installations with improved accident prevention records in fiscal 1966.

In announcing the award to his employes, Lake Orion Postmaster William Bonning said, "Courtesy is the key to good vehicle operations and to patron respect which we have earned, as symbolized by this award.

"We, in all branches of government service, are determined to improve our accident experience in cooperation with the President's safety program — U.S. Mission Safety 70," Bonning said.

The citation is an annual award presented to postal installations which have five or more vehicles. Evaluation is made on the basis of past performance standings showing lower accident costs, fewer casualties and less vehicle accidents.

In addition to the fleet award, each of the vehicle operators in the Lake Orion post office receives an individual safe driver award from the National Safety Council for each year without a preventable accident.

All of the Lake Orion drivers were cited for an accident-free year except one, who has not been with the post office a full year.

Those receiving individual awards were Gordon Brown, Phil Ryckman, Harold Fisher, Arnold Dworin, David Cole, Robert Gehrig, Route 2 driver, and Thomas Teller, Route 1 drive.

Bonning said the drivers had 14 consecutive accident - free months.

Ground Broken for S. Lyon School

SOUTH LYON—Groundbreaking ceremonies were held yesterday at the site of the new South Lyon High School at 9 Mile and Pontiac Trail.

The new school is being financed by a $2.7-million school bond issue approved last June. Completion date is set for Dec. 1, 1967.

Besides school board officials, representatives of the arthitectural firm of O'Dell, Hewlett & Luckenback, and the general contractor, Gleason Contracting, were on hand for the groundbreaking.

Fair Housing Days Slated in Rochester

ROCHESTER — Friday and Saturday of next week have been designated Fair Housing Days by the Rochester Area Human Relations Council.

Several booths will be set up in downtown Rochester on both days offering information on the issue of open occupancy and on the Human Relations Council itself.

"Our aim is to increase public understanding of the facts concerning integrated communities," said Mrs. Hugo Swan, council chairman.

"We believe that people in the Rochester community have the good will and understanding to deal fairly with open occupancy," she added.

* * *

Chairman of the Fair Housing Days Mrs. Robert Williamson said, "The literature available at our booths will provide sound facts to refute common misunderstandings about this issue."

Youths Sought in Break-In INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP—Two youths seen fleeing the rear of a supermarket early yesterday are sought by Oakland County Sheriff's detectives in connection with a $700 break-in at the store.

Albert Rizzo, manager of the Foodtown Market, 5529 Sashabaw, said the money was taken from a cash register, money box, and coin vending machine.

* * *

Investigators were told that two boys, one carrying a canvas moneybag, were seen running away from the store about 1:30 a.m. yesterday.

Deputies said the center post of the building's rear door had been pried aside, permitting a lock tumbler to fall out of place.

Women's Group Schedules Fete

LAKE ORION — The Lake Orion Women's Club will hold its annual scholarship benefit luncheon, fashion show and card party Aug. 18.

The "Day in the Country" event will begin at 12:30 p.m. in the Undercroft of St. Mary's of the Hills Episcopal Church at 2512 Joslyn. Mrs. Stewart Prahner, 244 N. Washington, is chairman.

Sewer System Decision Due

ORCHARD LAKE — The City Council will decide tonight whether the city will participate in the proposed seven-community Clinton-Oakland Sewage Disposal System.

If the council accepts the contract, the city would pay 1.3 per cent of the $18.5-million total cost of the system.

* * *

The cost to the city would be about $200,000, which would be spread over a period of 35 years. The cost to the average householder would run to about $25 per year.

* * *

No sewers will be constructed in the city as a direct result of a contract approval. The city would have a system to connect with, however, when the need for installation of a sewage system arises.

State Gives OK to Holly Spur Track

HOLLY — The Michigan Public Service Commission has authorized the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Co. to construct a spur track crossing Rosette Street in the village of Holly.

The request for the spur came from the McDaniel Tank Manufacturing Co. of 714 N. Saginaw, which manufactures underground tanks.

The company has recently built on an addition so that the track would enter the building for loading purposes.

Rosette is a secondary street and gravel surfaced. Speed is restricted to 25 miles per hour with traffic estimated at 35 vehicles daily.

In issuing the authorization, commission chairman Peter B. Spivak said the crossing should be protected by warning signs and reflecting crossing signs.

Ypsilanti's Greek Theater May Have to Close Doors

YPSILANTI (UPI) — The much-heralded Ypsilanti Greek Theater, just five weeks old, may close its doors Friday because it is losing $18,000 per week, it was revealed yesterday.

Although the theater attracted 84 critics to its opening night June 28, its patronage has not kept up with costs.

It has taken plenty of extra money from backers on the theater to meet the $34,000 payroll each week. The theater is netting about $16,000 per week.

The theater, an Ypsilanti civic project which gets backing from various other groups in southeastern Michigan, has gained prominance with its two plays thus far.

* * *

Dame Judith Anderson was featured in "The Oresteia," and Bert Lahr had the lead in "The Birds."

SEATS 1,920

Theater performances are given at the Eastern Michigan University stadium in Ypsilanti which seats 1,920 persons. On many nights the theater is more than 60 per cent empty.

Although patronage has been good from Chicago, Toledo, Ohio, Lansing, Mich., and Windsor, Ont., the Detroit turnout has been disappointing.

A special bus service has been initiated from Detroit to Ypsilanti, 35 miles away. It will include dinner and a ticket to the theater for a flat price.

* * *

The theater must meet its payroll again Friday and its backers are working round the clock to come up with the money to keep the enterprise alive.

PLAYING IT TOUGH—Actor Aldo Ray (right) smashes a bottle over the head of Lon Chaney Jr. in a scene from their new movie, "Welcome to Hard Times," now being filmed at MGM studios in Hollywood. Aldo is essaying a new screen image: brute heavy. "I think—I hope—this will give me about a 10-year boost in film roles," Aldo said in an interview.

Aldo Ray a Brute in New Type of Role

By HOWARD C. HEYN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The studio air conditioning is cut off for the next take and the barroom set is simmering under a blaze of floodlights.

"Let the laugh go all the way this time, Aldo," says director-writer Burt Kennedy. "Remember, you've never had more fun in your life."

Moments later massive Aldo Ray, a mad movie killer, smashes a bottle of whisky on the head of Lon Chaney Jr., and bartender Chaney goes off the payroll in an alcoholic bath.

Just possible this will give you a hint that actor Ray is essaying a new screen image: brute heavy. You would be right.

HOPES FOR BOOST

"I think — I hope — this will give me about a 10-year boost in film roles," said Aldo, kicking aside the remnants of the sugar-glass bottle and mopping tea-whisky off his shirt.

"I've played heavies before, but usually in comedy or at least in parts that had some humorous overtones. But there is simply nothing in this character to arouse any sympathy whatever. He epitomizes the devil."

* * *

In "Welcome to Hard Times" the only thing Aldo loves is violence. It is a motiveless, psychopathic violence, during which he kills seven persons and burns down the town of Hard Times, supposedly in South Dakota.

When four survivors manage in a year to rebuild the little settlement, Aldo comes back and burns it down again. As you've already guessed, he dies with the village this time.

It's grim stuff indeed Kennedy, who wrote the script, has made certain that no trace of sentiment is inspired by this sadistic bully, who doesn't even have a name. He is known only as "the man from Brodie."

When an extra gets a few words of dialog he becomes a bit player and gets more money. But Aldo is a star who never speaks a word from start to finish in this saga of hard times. The only vocal sound he makes is the maniacal, rasping laugh that breaks forth in the very nastiest places.

All of this is a far cry from the Aldo Ray who met fame in "Miss Sadie Thompson" in 1954. All, except for the rasp in the laugh, which vaguely recalls the gravelly speech that had become his film trademark over the years. Now he says nothing.

* * *

He manages to speak louder in action, however, in a performance that is almost too realistic. He is not a mute; just mean.

This is a different Aldo Ray in other respects too. Two years ago he hadn't made a Hollywood movie in eight years, although he had made some films abroad. Four years ago, when he returned from a part in Italy, both Ray and career were in a bad way.

BALLOONS TO 280

Aldo is a hearty, gregarious six-footer who loves to eat and drink. Since he is of Italian extraction he overdid both in Italy, and he hit Hollywood weighing 280 pounds with no roles in sight.

A crash diet — on the wagon — pared him down to 210. He made a bookkeeper of his business manager and started handling his own affairs. He bought and sold property profitably.

Things began looking up and roles came along. His present villainous job is his fourth picture in two years, and with star billing. The time between roles he devotes to his properties.

Left U.S. Farm

Rebel Still in Australia

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI) — Stanley Yankus, the Douglas wheat rebel who denounced United States farm controls and went to Australia seven years ago during a wave of international publicity, is still in Australia—and still thinks he was right.

The onetime Cass County chicken farmer apparently plays for keeps. He has become an Australian citizen, although his wife and three children still remain American citizens.

Yankus auctioned his 100-acre farm and 3,000 chickens in 1959 after tossing in the sponge in his fight against the government. He was fined over $5,000 for growing wheat on his farm in defiance of government restrictions. Yankus fed the wheat to his chickens — he didn't sell it.

The embattled Cass County farmer paid the fines and left in protest to "increasing controls and the something-for-nothing philosophy."

* * *

In a report from the land of down under via air mail letter Yankus says:

NO PURPOSE

"You wanted to know how things are going. At the moment, I cannot find any purpose for a splash of publicity on myself. The publicity back in 1959, did not achieve what I hoped it would. I believed that I had the right to own my farm and run it as I saw fit. Very few Americans agreed with me.

"I realized that I could not re-educate the farmers who believed in government handouts. The only one I can change is myself. That's why I left the U.S.A.

"Speaking of changes, I have quit smoking cigars. I've also become an Australian citizen. None of the rest of my family has become Australian yet.

* * *

"I don't believe in trying to force anyone in my family to do something they don't want to do. Few people give much thought to citizenship. A citizen does not deserve a merit badge.

"The jails of every country in the world are filled with citizens. Whatever achievements we earn are in spite of citizenship. In effect, I have said I intend to live in Australia permanently."

LIVES IN GRANGE

Yankus lives in Grange, South Australia, and is a salesman of appliances.

"While reading an interesting booklet published by the Rampart College, in Larkspur, Colo., I found this thought provoking sentence:

'Can you take from one man, his property, and give it to another without creating hatred.'

"Probably most of the fights in this world can be traced to the hatred that develops when one man's property is taken away from him and given to another."

Just Complaint by Tobacconist

WISBECH, England (UPI) — Authorities here put up an anti-smoking poster on the side of a house, but promptly covered it up after the owner of the building complained.

The owner runs a tobacconist's shop in the building.

Space Engine Gets Hard Test

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — An engine which will be the astronauts' lifeline back to earth from the moon starts tonight its most grueling test yet — a 14-day simulation of the first manned Apollo mission.

Officials say the test will be the final qualification for the Apollo moonship's service module engine prior to the mission, which may come later this year.

Clamped in a static test stand at the test facility east of Las Cruces, the service module engine will be fired at intervals timed to simulate the numerous firings, followed by "coast periods," of an Apollo mission.

When Apollo astronauts go to the moon, the service module will be one of the most versatile and important components on their moonship. The module is an unmanned unit which powers the manned spacecraft over the final leg of the trip to the moon and all of the return trip.

Launch Set for Photo Satellite

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — A picture-taking satellite is ready to be launched toward an orbit around the moon by an Atlas-Agena rocket tomorrow, ending a three-week lapse in space probes.

* * *

The shot, first here since Gemini 10 astronauts John Young and Michael Collins were orbited July 18, will mark another step in America's effort to clear the way for manned landings on the moon by 1969.

The 850-pound photographic laboratory is designed to swoop within 26 miles of the lunar surface every 3½ hours to snap closeup pictures of potential Apollo astronauts landing sites.

It also will attempt to get a bird's-eye view of the Surveyor I spacecraft resting on the moon's Sea of Storms.

The Lunar Orbiter, first of five camera-carrying moon satellites, will take up to 353 pictures of nine different areas of the moon.

* * *

Scientists hope to compare the Orbiter's pictures with some of the 11,237 ground views taken by Surveyor to broaden their knowledge of the lunar landscape and to select suitable landing sites for Apollo's lunar module.

The Orbiter is scheduled to begin its 240,000-mile voyage to the moon with a launch at 11:07 p.m. (Pontiac time) tomorrow.

Wounds Claim Sniper Victim

17th Person to Die in Texas Massacre

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Charles J. Whitman's reign of terror claimed its 17th victim today one week after the sniper raked the University of Texas campus with a barrage of gunfire from the tower of the main building.

Karen Griffith, 17, of Austin died early today at Brackenridge Hospital, a spokesman said. She had been in critical condition since a bullet from Whitman's rifle slammed into her chest last Monday.

* * *

One other person, Mary Gabour, 41, of Texarkana, Tex. was in critical condition at Brackenridge with head wounds.

Authorities expected today a report which may show whether Whitman had taken a drug before his massacre.

GOOF BALLS

Officers found so-called goof balls with Whitman's body after he was slain by two Austin policemen.

An earlier autopsy report did not mention any drugs but the report expected today will include tests of blood samples.

It was one week ago today that Whitman killed his mother, Mrs. C. A. Whitman, and his wife, Kathleen, 23, and then barricaded himself on an observation deck above the 27th floor of the university's main building.

Armed with an arsenal of guns and pistols, he fired for 90 minutes at anyone within range, killing 13 persons and wounding 31.

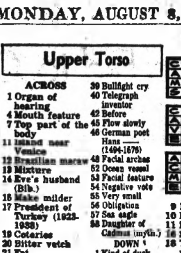

Besides Mrs. Gabour, 13 other persons remain in Austin hospitals with less serious wounds.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Beatles Lose More Fans in Philippines

MANILA (AP) — Laguna, a province south of Manila known for its religious fervor, has made a complete break with the Beatles, Philippine News Service reported today from Manila.

The news agency said priests have been urging parishioners not to play Beatle songs.

* * *

The furor was touched off by a remark reportedly made by Beatle John Lennon that "Christianity was on the way out" and the Beatles "are now more popular than Jesus."

However, Manila's radio stations said yesterday they had no plans to ban Beatle music from their programs.

Laguna Province has a population of over 400,000.

Newspaperman Dies in London

LONDON (AP) — Bernard Rickatson-Hatt, 68, former chief correspondent of Reuter's and for many years the news agency's correspondent in Washington and New York, died in a London hospital Sunday night.

The veteran newsman was hospitalized with meningitis and had been in a coma since Friday.

Seek Husband in Wife-Killing

LINCOLN PARK (UPI) — Police continued their search today for the husband of a 24-year-old mother of two whose bullet-riddled body was found in her home Saturday.

Police said Mrs. Diane Kovach was found by neighbors who had planned to take her and the children on a picnic.

Her husband, Valentine Kovach, 25, had been seen leaving the house shortly before his wife's body was discovered. He took the two children, Johnnie, 6, and Billie, 3, to his parents' home.

Lincoln Park police said Kovach's mother was quoted as saying her son told her of the shooting.

'Strangler' Lewis, Ex-Wrestler, Dies

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — Robert H. Friedrich, known to millions of old-time wrestling fans as Ed (Strangler) Lewis, died Sunday in the Veterans Administration hospital here. He was 76. Lewis earned more than $3 million during a professional wrestling career that spanned 44 years. He lost only 33 of the 6,200 matches he appeared in. He was the heavyweight wrestling champion from 1920 to 1932 when he was defeated by Gus Sonnenberg, a former Dartmouth football star. Friedrich spent much of his last 25 years working with young boys.

Astronaut's Daughter, 3, Is Hit by Car

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Kimberly Lind, 3-year-old daughter of new astronaut Dr. Don L. Lind, remained in serious condition today after she was struck by a car during a family outing here Saturday.

A spokesman at John Sealy Hospital said Kimberly was "holding her own" after the accident, which occurred on Galveston's West Beach as she darted from the surf into the car's path.

Lind, 35, was named in April as one of the 19 new astronauts. He still is in training at the Manned Spacecraft Center. He has four other children, all 10 or younger.

Forecaster Wilson Visions Nancy on Road to Riches

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—We lead off our Fearless Forecasts today with the prophecy that Nancy Sinatra Jr. is going to become a millionaire in her own right. With Ed Sullivan paying her $10,000 an appearance, and her new sexy image making her a box office draw in "The Wild Ones," while "Boots" and "Friday's Child" are big record hits, she's hot — and so amiable, carefree and friendly with it. We further prophesy that Nancy Jr.'s going to remain nice.

WILSON

Another FF: Tourists are going to fall in love with NY's sidewalk cafes. They've a strictly American touch—such as the Griddle Pancake shop sidewalk cafe at 53rd & 7th, or the "Continental Cafe" next to the Taft. Sipping your aperitif or even having beer and pretzels, you can watch the NY characters waggle by.

The word "in" will soon be out if it isn't already . . . There'll be another Goldwater-for-President boom . . . "The Monkees"—four talented boys including David Jones who was a singing star of "Oliver"—will be pushed into great TV prominence by ABC and Screen Gems, with the help of "Monkee" jokes smacking of elephant jokes.

* * *

Jilly's on W. 52nd St. will become a big tourist haunt because of Frank Sinatra's table and private phone in the back (Peter Lawford used the phone one night when Frank wasn't there) . . . Barbara Burgess, of Washington, D.C., one of the Wilson Girls in Columbia's "Murderers' Row" with Dean Martin, is going to hit it big in Hollywood.

Broadway, with two new office buildings going up at 53rd St. ("Celebrity Corner"), is going to take on a positively antiseptic appearance . . .

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Maureen O'Sullivan (now at Westport Playhouse in "The Subject was Roses") is unhappy about an interview that was headlined "Meet Frank Sinatra's Mother-in-Law" . . . N.Y. Jets footballer Joe Namath's having his penthouse apt. decorated by designer Allan Kirk, with suede sofa, rosewood walls, a round bed with satin sheets.

Sammy Davis, a partner at the Living Rm., brought Peter Lawford along to watch comic Leany Kent. Also on hand: Jack E. Leonard, Ed McMahon, Milt Kamen . . . A Florida hotel group reportedly plans a big resort in the Catskills, asked the Concord's Phil Greenwald to produce its shows.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Larry Mathews reports his wife attended her first day at cooking school, and brought the teacher a baked apple.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Taffy Tuttle described a small, dull town: "They're so far behind the times they still sell 4c stamps."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Middle age is that time of life when it's harder to find temptation than it is to resist it."

EARL'S PEARLS: No matter how small a town is, you can generally find someone at the gas station to give you the wrong directions.

The current beach trend, says Jimmy Randolph, is to expose everything to the sun—except the eyes . . . That's earl brother.

Saugatuck JP Denies 'Overload'

SAUGATUCK (UPI) — Thousands of vacation-minded teenagers and young adults have created quite a headache for law enforcement officials in this Lake Michigan resort but Justice of the Peace Erv Kasten says he doesn't need any help.

In fact, he resents the inference that he isn't tough enough on violators.

Thousands of college students from Michigan and other states have packed the area beaches weekend after weekend and arrests on many holiday periods have gone over the 100 mark.

Most of them are misdemeanors such as minors drinking beer and traffic violations.

* * *

Richard Hoffman, head of the 18-member Saugatuck-Douglas Civic Association, said the group is recommending a second justice of peace to help handle the big load and relieve Justice Kasten of some of the clerical work involved.

ISSUES DENIAL

Kasten Saturday denied that he was too busy. "If they want a kangaroo court, they can have it," and said he took exception to charges of leniency.

He said each case was tried on its merits.

Kasten said it would be impractical to hand out $100 fines and 10-day jail terms. "There would be so many appeals the courts wouldn't know which way to turn," he said.

* * *

The justice said that recommendations to close taverns on major weekends, "would turn this into the biggest bootleg town you ever saw . . . then we would need five justices of peace."

Hoffman's group will meet with the city council this week on their proposals.

Give Him Air

SWINDON, England (UPI) — Passengers approaching the inquiry window at the railway station found a baffling notice reading "Open for air only."

Minister Agrees With Beatle

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A South African clergyman said Saturday Beatle John Lennon was right that the shaggy foursome "are more popular than Jesus Christ."

"If the Beatles came to Johannesburg on a Sunday churches would be empty," said the Rev. Mervyn Moore. "He (John) is a silly young cuss. But he is right all the same."

In other words, I wanted to be certain I could scrutinize the contestants closely without standing.

creating the impression that I was leering at them.

It was while working on my squinting technique that my wife and I had our misunderstanding.

She still insists that I had too much glint in my squint.

But that is a small price to pay for the advancement of okra.

As Wife Watches

Newsman Eyes Beauty Judge Role

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As we were walking along the sidewalk en route to a movie we passed a young woman of pleasing countenance and proportions.

WEST

I wheeled around and watched the fair damsel until she disappeared into a drug store.

"Control yourself, Old Paint," my wife admonished. "If you stop to ogle every girl in sight we'll miss the last feature."

"I'm not ogling," I replied indignantly. "I'm practicing."

* * *

There are many important civic duties that newspapermen occasionally are called upon to perform. One of these is serving as judges at beauty contests.

UNIQUELY QUALIFIED

Sponsors of such events recognize that newsmen, being trained as observers and disciplined to objectivity, are uniquely qualified to hand down sagacious and impartial decisions.

Besides that, appointing a newsman as one of the judges is usually a sure-fire way to get publicity.

Having never been one to shirk my duties as a citizen, I will soon be heading for Tells, Tenn., to help select the queen of the 1966 West Tennessee Okra Festival. It is a heavy responsibility.

* * *

Because of my deep-seated dedication and devotion to okra, I'm am terribly anxious that it be represented by the best queen possible.

WRONG CHOICE?

If I should make a wrong choice in this contest, I could never forgive myself.

Over the years I have picked quite a bit of okra but I have never before picked an okra queen. Therefore, I have gone into intensive training to prepare myself for the assignment.

My first task was to get fixed clearly in my mind just what qualities an okra queen should possess.

* * *

Ideally, I decided, she would be green, fuzzy and spiny.

DIDN'T FIT

However, in looking over the photographs of contestants in this year's festival, I did not see any girls who fitted that description.

The next step was to practice looking at pretty girls, both to sharpen my perception and to develop what is known as an impersonal squint.

In Soviet Union

Envoy Opens Yank Exhibit

KHARKOV, U.S.S.R. (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler opened today an American exhibition that he called part of an important Soviet-American exchange at a time of poor political relations.

Kohler opened a display of hand tools in this Ukrainian industrial city 400 miles south of Moscow.

* * *

In a speech prepared for the occasion, the ambassador noted that this was the eighth U.S. exhibit to tour the Soviet Union under Soviet-American cultural exchange agreements. The eighth Soviet exhibit will tour the United States early next year.

"It is my hope that these exchanges will continue and will grow," Kohler said. "Perhaps we need to remind ourselves particularly of their importance and their purpose at a time when political relations between our governments are not as good as they might be."

'UNDERSTANDING'

The exhibits "help create a climate of understanding and good will between our two peoples," Kohler said. "Such a climate cannot but facilitate the search for solutions to political problems and the maintenance of peace in the world."

* * *

The Soviet Union recently canceled some sports events with the United States under the cultural exchange agreement. The war in Viet Nam was cited as the reason for the cancellations.

The hand tool display centers on a "do it yourself" theme. Tools by 85 manufacturers are shown by 20 Russian-speaking American guides.

* * *

Kohler said it was intended "to show one cross-section of how and for what our people live."

'Need Outlet? Call Batman'

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dr. Robert E. Terwilliger told his parishioners in New York Sunday that the Batman television series provided a "much-needed emotional and almost religious" outlet for many viewers.

* * *

Terwilliger spoke informally after morning worship at All Saints Episcopal Church in Manhattan.

He said Batman's "miracles are the kind modern man likes most — not supernatural but scientific," but also said that many Americans have a penchant for "practical messiahs."

* * *

He added that the TV show was a "second-rate" emotional release, because it was grounded in a world of fantasy where total good triumphs completely over total evil.

Jazzman Rites

NEW YORK (UPI) — A funeral was scheduled today for Bud Powell, the jazz pianist who led the bebop movement in the 1940s. Powell died last week at the age of 40.

Junior Editors Quiz on SPACE

QUESTION: How far out does space go?

ANSWER: Mankind has been searching for the answers to the questions Jerry and Jack are asking for thousands of years.

There have been many answers given, but none on which all people seem to agree.

Many feel that the human mind is too limited to be able to grasp the immensities which lie beyond our planet.

They feel that only God understands these matters. Meanwhile, scientists are probing the distances of space with new instruments such as the radio telescope.

Strange bodies, the quasars, have been located, extremely far away.

Scientists measure vast distances in space by "light years"—meaning how far light can travel in one year, over six million-million miles.

In 1964, quasar 3C 147 was located at a distance believed to be 7 billion light years away from earth.

Objects still further out have since been seen, such as quasar 3C 9, located in March of 1966.

The furthest distance man has observed now stands at about 7½ billion light years.

Astronomers emphasize that they are not certain they have determined the distance of the quasars correctly.

FOR YOU TO DO: What lies beyond the quasars we do not know, yet new observations are continually being made. Watch your newspaper to keep up with progress in this field.

Space Data Fed to Computers to Help Simulate Lunar Landing

By Science Service

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. — Information from Surveyor's lunar landing and from the Gemini space flights is being fed as soon as it is available to a series of computers on Long Island that are helping with practice for the manned landing on the moon.

The Lunar Excursion Module, which will carry astronauts to the moon around the end of this decade, is already being flown by computer simulation at the Bethpage, L. I., laboratories of the Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp.

The simulation technique, using a team of digital and analog computers, gives scientists accurate information about the LEM's future performance on or near the moon's surface.

In this way, errors of design and other problems can be spotted and solved under conditions that represent no danger to the astronauts or to costly equipment.

A report on the LEM simulation was given by Robert W. Kress and Gerald D. Fogel of Grumman at a scientific computing symposium here, sponsored by International Business Machines Corp.

Mr. Kress is director of guidance navigation and control-test —LEM. Mr. Fogel is chief of computing sciences.

Burma Surgeon's Path Is Followed by Hospital

By PETER BOOG

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Namkhan Hospital, in the wilderness of northeast Burma, is carrying on the tradition of humanitarian service set by its legendary founder, "Burma Surgeon" Gordon Seagrave.

All missionary hospitals, including Namkhan, were nationalized last year by Burma's military government. At Namkhan service is still free and, while Seagrave's American assistants have been replaced by Burmese, his famed nurses are still there.

The hospital previously operated with a $10,000 yearly government grant and about $20,000 in private contributions from the United States, mostly in the form of medicines.

Now the Burmese government provides approximately $60,000 annually to help the hospital service a wider area than it did during Seagrave's time.

NEVER SUFFICIENT

Some 200 nurses serve in the hospital, all Seagrave trained.

Funds were never sufficient and medicine was scarce.

Now a substantial budget allocation has been provided to insure adequate medical and operating facilities.

Seagrave built the hospital when he moved into Namkhan village, in the fertile Shwei River Valley bordering China, in 1922.

VARIETY OF EQUIPMENT

He started with a variety of medical equipment scrounged from Johns Hopkins Hospital.

From its small thatched hut beginnings, the hospital grew to the modern plant that it was when Seagrave died in March 1965.

Today the hospital continues to serve some 10,000 Shan and Kachin tribesmen.

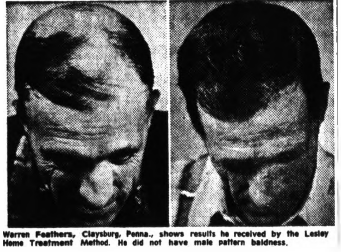

Seagrave's nurses — he trained more than 1,000 in his lifetime — are the backbone of the hospital. He once said his major contribution in Namkhan was the nursing corps.

The nurses won their spurs in battle during World War II.

Under the command of Gen. Joseph Stilwell, they served in field hospitals despite heavy bombing and enemy harassment, and cared for thousands of troops. Two nurses who were awarded medals are still on the staff.

Many of the nurses are full-time instructors in a special training center set up by Seagrave. Others provide the only medical assistance available in remote villages.
