Everybody Loves the Irish

Sure, and It's a Fine Day for O'Tooles...and Smiths

By GEORGE TRUMBULL

'Tis a great day for the Irish, begorra. But why? What's so special and wonderful about the Irish?

Why is it on this annual green splattered St. Patrick's Day that everybody (at least many of us) yearns to have a little of the O'Shaughnessy, Kelly, O'Grady and Milligan rub off on us?

The Irish have two wonderful occasions on which to boast and exclaim, "Look at me, lad, I'm Irish." The first time is today when the Emerald Isle populace and their descendants celebrate the feast day of their patron Saint Patrick.

The second opportunity comes when their gridiron powerhouse—the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame—trample an opponent on a fall afternoon.

Is it their humor described as being as "witty as an Irishman" that makes all of us feel today as Irish as they are?

Why is it that so many of us strive to imitate the homely speech of the Irishman?

Not all of the happy cheering souls marching up Fifth Avenue in New York today are Irish. Not by a longshot.

But everywhere today the once-a-year Irish hopefuls will be sporting green ties, a shamrock in the lapel, and enjoying some green beer in the taverns and occasionally puffing on a clay pipe.

We'll be digging deep today for every Irish joke we have ever heard.

A few of us will be decorating themselves with an added prefix thermometer registered 32 at produce an Irish sounding mon-

The Toll Road--A National Paradox

By BURDETT STODDARD

To build or not to build toll roads is a question which spawned hot words and cold stares in Michigan for nearly two years.

On the state level, the "free-roads" seem to hold the upper hand.

The Michigan Turnpike Authority is sponsoring two bills in the State Legislature, without which it can neither finance the proposed pay-highways nor maintain its own administrative setup. Both appear to be dying in committees.

Measures are being hashed over in the U.S. Congress which would give a tremendous boost to road building across the nation by providing increased federal aid.

If the federal bills don't win passage, Michigan's toll road plan may again be heralded as the only way to get superhighways in a hurry.

In evaluating the Michigan picture, a background look at how toll roads are faring in other states seems appropriate.

Since pioneer horse-drawn carriage days, U. S. roads have vastly improved. The reason, to a large extent, has been the rise of modern toll highways after World War II.

By next fall, vehicles will be

Two Killed in Collision; Walled Lake Man Dies as Car Rams Trees

Two people died in a two-car smashup last night on Rochester Road near M59, and a Walled Lake man was killed when his car careened off West Maple Road near Inkster Road early this morning.

Victims of the Rochester Road accident were Edgar A. Plante, 26, of Royal Oak, and Mrs. Elva Marion, 72, of North Branch. Clifford E. Buck, 53, of Walled Lake was dead on arrival at Pontiac General Hospital.

Witnesses to the accident said Plante's car, driving south on Rochester Road, suddenly slewed broadside across the road directly in front of a car driven by Waller Marion, 70, of North Branch.

Marion and his daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Elg, 45, of Lansing, both were reported in satisfactory condition today in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. Their injuries were not disclosed.

Witnesses will make statements to Oakland County Prosecutor Frederick C. Ziem Monday. Sheriff's deputies said today, Marion was unable to make a statement last night.

Buck was killed this morning after his car ran off West Maple Road, hitting a guard rail and two trees.

Pontiac post State Police said Buck was alone in the car, and suffered a fractured skull in the crash. There were no witnesses.

French Premier, Cabinet Confer

Calls Special Session to Launch Drive Trying to Pacify Algeria

PARIS (U)—Premier Guy Mollet called his Cabinet into special session today to launch France's big new drive to pacify revolt-torn Algeria.

Bloody clashes continued in the seething North African territory.

French troops were on the way to swell France's 200,000-man fighting force in Algeria.

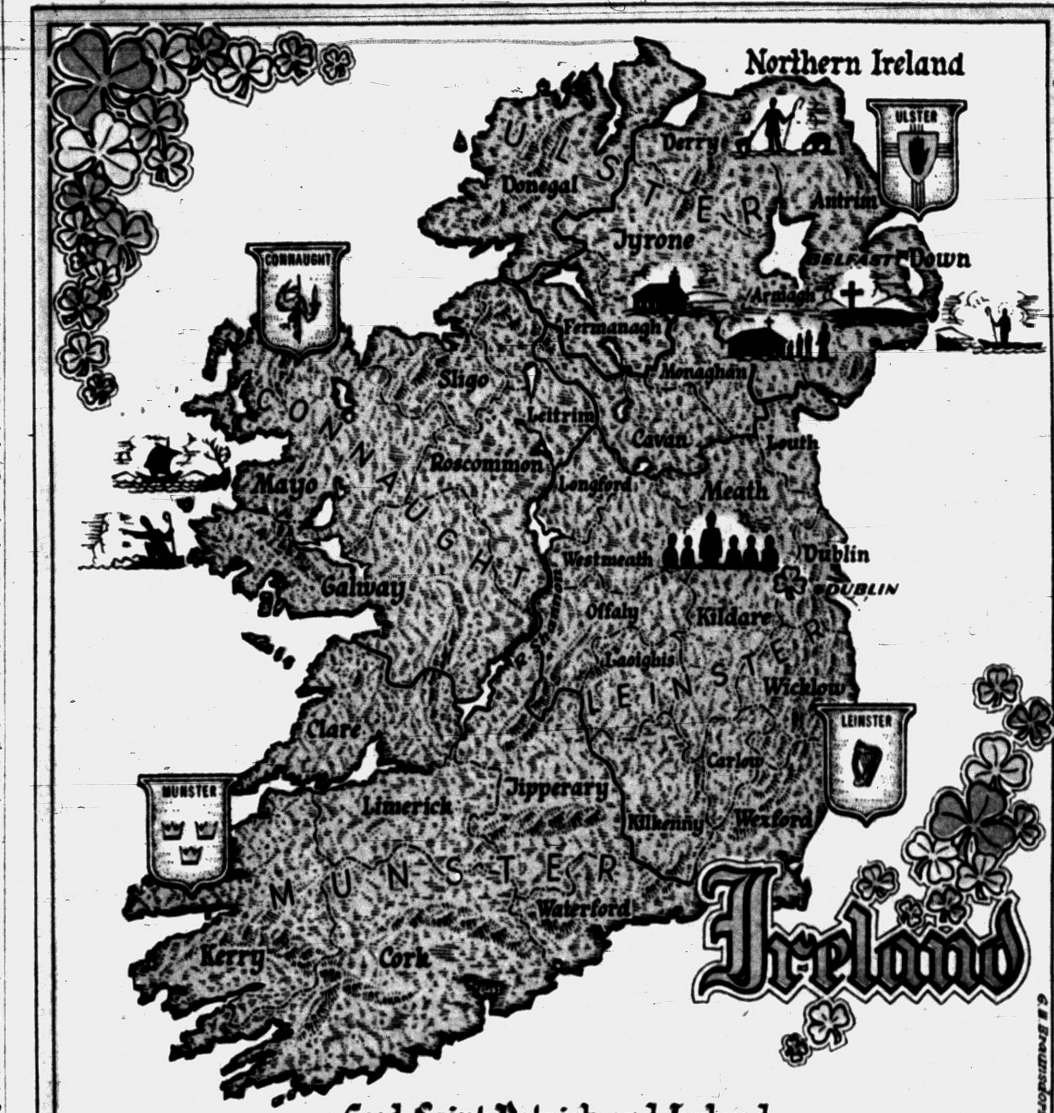

Resident Minister Robert Lacoste waited only the Cabinet's signal for his return to Algeria armed with broad new military, economic and administrative powers.

French troops in Algeria already were pushing their operations against the rebels at a fast pace. Paratroopers and mechanized units ambushed a big rebel force 150 miles east of Algiers yesterday. The French reported 107 rebels killed in the first stages of a skirmish that swirled into the night in an area of olive groves, grain fields and cork-oak forests.

The French reported only one French death. Alger's half million French and Arab population was clamped under a midnight to 5 a.m. in the wake of a series of hold-fire-raids.

Good Saint Patrick and Ireland

St. Patrick spent his first six years in Ireland as a slave tending sheep near Ballymena. About A. D. 409 he escaped from his master and boarded a ship to Brittany. Some 25 years later he returned, commissioned by Pope Celestine to lead the Irish from pagan druidism. He established his first church in a barn at Saul. Putting the druids to rout during a Great Meeting of chieftains at Tara, he won permission from the Irish King to preach his Faith. It was here he first used the Shamrock to illustrate the Holy Trinity. In A. D. 444 he built a church on the site of the present-day Cathedral of Armagh. At Croagh Patrick he spent 40 days in prayer and drove the demons into the sea. Legend says that "For seven years thereafter No Evil Thing was to be found in Ireland." St. Patrick died on March 17, A. D. 493 near the spot he began his Holy Mission.

Excitable Robber Asks for Mercy Flees With Gems

An Oak Park man said he almost caught the thief who stole $50 worth of jewelry from his car parked on Crestwood St. last night. Bona Broder told Pontiac police that as he returned to the car a youth jumped out with his hands up exclaiming, "Don't shoot, don't shoot."

Broder, who did not have a gun, said the culprit then fled down an alley and jumped over a fence. He had forced open a car window, Broder said, snapped the lock on the glove compartment, and stolen three rings and a wrist watch.

Storms Spank Eastern States

26 Deaths Claimed as Snow, Sleet, Rain, Gale Bring Havoc, Tieups

NEW YORK (U)—Snow, rain, sleet and gales played havoc yesterday and early today in the Northeast and Midatlantic areas and ranging westward to Ohio. At least 26 deaths were attributed to the storm, coming just four days before spring.

All sections reported improved weather conditions today, but scores of communities lay under heavy blankets of snow, trying to unscramble transportation tieups.

A freak electrical storm lasted a half hour over eastern Pennsylvania. Thunder rumbled over New York City while snowflakes fell late in the evening.

The death toll stood as follows: Ohio, 6; New York, 6; Connecticut, 3; Maine, 2; Massachusetts, 4; and New Jersey, 3. Northern and central Ohio were buried under more than 10 inches of snow in some areas. Sixteen inches fell at Utica, N.Y. Airport, Montpelier, Vt., had nine inches of new snow, burying it under a depth of 30 inches. Some other New England sections reported more than a foot of snowfall.

In Fair Weather or Foul, the Irish March Today

NEW YORK (U)—Fair weather or foul, the wearers of the green march up Fifth Avenue at noon today in New York's giant St. Patrick's Day parade.

Street department crews worked during the night to clear the parade route of snow and slush piled up in yesterday's storm.

Parade chairman John J. Sheahan said last night the Irish would march whatever the weather. He said he expected more than 100,000 marchers.

Ireland's visiting Prime Minister, John A. Costello, is to witness the parade from the official reviewing stand.

VATICAN CITY (U)—Shamrocks rushed here from Ireland today brightened the apartment of Pope Pius XII on this St. Patrick's Day.

The shamrocks—called "trigofille" three leaves here—were air expressed by 400 fishing folk of Dumore East in County Waterford.

DENVER (INS)—Denver authorities, apparently unmindful of St. Patrick's Day, suspended a tavern's liquor license on the eve of the traditional Irish day.

The name of the tavern — Pat and Mike's.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (U)—Policeman Richard Johansen was about to commend Billy O'Connell, 32, for his sprightly, pre-St. Patrick's Day jig.

Then Johansen took a closer look and decided O'Connell was actually weaving. They booked him on suspicion of intoxication yesterday. Officers said O'Connell told them he was in this country illegally, and added:

"I'm glad you caught me. I'm homesick for Ireland and want to go back."

Police notified U. S. immigration officials, who are investigating.

Khrushchev Supposedly Accused Late Dictator of Killings, Blunders

LONDON (U)—Reports of a mounting Kremlin campaign to denounce Stalin are said to have sparked rioting in the dictator's home republic of Georgia.

Information reaching London said student groups paraded through the Georgian capital of Tiflis carrying banners and portraits of the once-revered leader and touching off disturbances.

The riots reportedly erupted March 7, two days after the third anniversary of Stalin's death went unsung in the Soviet press.

U. S. officials in Washington said they had unconfirmed reports that a number of persons were killed in rioting.

Diplomats leaving the Soviet Union say the country is seething with suppressed excitement over the reported savage attack on Stalin by Soviet party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

Khrushchev is said to have told the Communist party Congress that Stalin butchered his comrades, and committed blunders both in politics and war.

TIGHT CENSORSHIP
Reports reaching London said tight Russian censorship had been clamped on the story.

Khrushchev's reported denunciation of Stalin climaxed the anti-Stalin theme of the recent congress.

First hint the Kremlin leaders were planning to discredit Stalin came in a speech by Deputy Soviet Premier A. I. Mikoyan at the opening of the congress. Mikoyan lashed out at Stalin's political works as behind the times and not in touch with the Marxist-Leninist line.

Since then, the destruction of the Stalin myth has increased in tempo.

Nobel-Winner Daughter of Radium Discoverers Dies in Paris

PARIS (U)—Mme. Irene Joliot-Curie, Nobel prize winning physicist and daughter of the discoverers of radium, died today. She was 58.

She died in a Paris hospital. The announcement did not disclose the cause of death. She was the daughter of Pierre and Marie Curie, who gained world renown with their discovery of radium.

She and her husband, Frederic Joliot of Paris, were awarded the Nobel prize in chemistry in 1935 for the discovery of artificial radioactivity.

After World War II both Mme. Joliot-Curie and her husband were widely criticized for alleged pro-Communist activities.

The French government ousted her from its atomic energy commission in 1951. Her husband had been removed as head of the body a year earlier because of his Communist associations.

During World War I, Mme. Joliot-Curie worked with her famed mother in doing X-ray work for the army. After the war she assisted her mother in giving courses in radiology to nurses and American officers.

Later, with her husband, she concentrated on research into radioactivity of various materials.

Review Board to Hear Queries on Assessments One More Week

Pontiac taxpayers with questions and complaints on personal property assessments, have been urged to appear before the city Board of Tax Review next week.

The board will meet on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1 to 4 p.m.

City Assessor W. Raymond Ransom said next week would be the last of three weeks devoted to hearing questions or complaints on city assessments.

In the first week, some 279 persons seeking tax exemptions or reductions because of lower incomes appeared before the tax board. The second week was devoted to real estate queries.

"We find that 90 per cent of the people that come before the board are misinformed," Ransom said. "That is why we urge them to come in in order they are satisfied."

Those appearing before the board next week are requested to bring in their books in order that the assessment may be checked against them.

The chairman of the board is James F. Spence. Members are Jerry Kehoe, Vernon K. Archer, City Finance Director Oscar Eckman, and City Attorney William A. Ewert. Mrs. Bernice Savedge is clerk.

Royal Gypsies of U. S., Canada Wed in Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (INS)—A royal wedding took place in Windsor yesterday without the fanfare associated with the coming nuptials of actress Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier of Monaco.

In the Windsor ceremony, Princess Mary Miller, 20, of Windsor, became the bride of Prince Joseph Stanton, 30, of Louisville, Ky.

The Princess is the daughter of King Frank Miller, head of Canadian Gypsies, while the bridegroom's father is King Edward Stanton leader of the Gypsies in the United States.

The traditional Gypsy marriage ceremony was performed in Windsor's Italian hall, with the Rev. Steven Daniels of Pittsburgh, brother of the bridegroom, officiating.

A solemn phase of the marriage rite was the mixing of blood. The hands of both the bride and groom were pierced and the blood mixed together in a vessel.

The bride wore a gay gypsy costume and a heavy gold chain laced with gold coins, handed down from generation to generation.

The ceremony was attended by a hundred guests from many parts of the U. S. and Canada. The marriage had been planned by the parents of both parties since the birth of the princess.

Weary Solons Take St. Patrick Hiatu

WASHINGTON (AP)—Weary senators took the weekend off today for St. Patrick's Day speeches and other political duties before tackling the omnibus farm bill again sometime late Monday.

Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), who directs the legislative machinery, called for the recess last night after another nine hours of wrangling and voting failed to bring final passage.

Johnson told newsmen he could not guess when the Senate would complete action on the omnibus bill. That has been its main business since Feb. 22.

"I think we're making good progress," he said cheerfully. About 60 amendments still are pending although many of them probably will not be pressed.

Pontiac Official Receives Award

University Pays Tribute to Chief Engineer at Special Convocation

George A. Delaney, chief engineer of the Pontiac Motor Division, was honored by the University of Missouri this morning when he was presented the institution's honor award for Distinguished Service in Engineering.

A graduate of the school, Delaney was among five who were presented the annual prize at a convocation which highlighted Centennial Engineering Week.

In conferring the award, Huber O. Croft, dean of the College of Engineering, cited Delaney for his accomplishments as director of the American Standards Assn., and national president of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Others who received similar recognition: J. Brownlee Davidson, agricultural engineer and educator; William G. Purdy, authority on space navigation and rockets; Louis H. Winkler, metallurgical engineer; and Proctor Thomson, quality control expert.

Delaney joined Pontiac Motor in 1934 as an electrical engineer, and in 1946 was named to his present post.

Toll Road Argument Rages Across Nation

Turnpike, hit the financial jackpot.

But while these and some other toll roads returned handsome profits, others have lagged far behind original estimates.

Many truckers refused to utilize Ohio's 240-mile, 336-million-dollar turnpike after it opened last October. They balked at paying as much as 12.4 cents a mile, compared to 1.2 cents a mile for motorists.

Engineers predicted the Ohio road would receive 73 per cent of its revenue from trucks, but in the first three months of operation it totaled only 32 per cent.

So, later-day toll roads in America constitute both successes and threatened failures. What would happen in Michigan?

The Michigan Turnpike Authority says its north-south and Detroit-Chicago projects would pay if combined in one operation, with more lucrative sections overcoming losses on other stretches. The turnpikes could be coordinated with state freeways, it maintains.

But the State Highway Department says differently. It asserts freeway construction would have to be seriously curtailed near the turnpikes to force enough cars on the pay-roads to keep them in the black.

It might take a modern Cassandra to say who is right.

5 British Soldiers Hurt Rebel Dead in Cyprus

NICOSIA (INS)—One Cypriot nationalist was killed and five British soldiers were wounded today when terrorists ambushed a patrol of military vehicles.

British authorities said at least 12 terrorists armed with automatic weapons and bombs attacked the vehicles as they rounded a narrow, hairpin bend in the mountains near Khandria, 35 miles southwest of Nicosia.

The British said that after a sharp exchange of fire the nationalists fled, leaving the body of their dead comrade behind.

Patrol cars and reinforcements were rushed to the scene and commandos combed the area.

The wounded British soldiers were hospitalized.

Immediate curfews were imposed on seven villages in the vicinity.

Harry's Happy Margaret Chose Dem Fiance

NEW YORK (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman says he's glad daughter Margaret's fiance is a Democrat but it really wouldn't have mattered.

Truman arrived here by plane yesterday en route to Scranton, Pa., for a speech tonight before the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

On hand to greet Truman at La Guardia field were his daughter and future son-in-law, Clifton Daniel, New York newspaperman.

Truman kissed Margaret and shook hands with Daniel, saying "Nice to see you."

Asked whether a non-Democrat could marry into the family, Truman laughed and said:

"I don't think there's a thing in the world to that."

"I'm awfully glad he is a Democrat, but he's Margaret's choice and anyone who's Margaret's selection is okay with me. He suits me fine. He's a fine gentleman."

Khrushchev was also quoted as saying Stalin was sitting next to Malenkov when Malenkov denied he was in the Kremlin.

The embassy had no comment.

Liquor 'Haul' Finds Outlet at Police Emptying Spree

It was a sight to break a tippler's heart. Pontiac police yesterday poured down the drain enough alcohol for a month of "lost weekends."

The occasion was the traditional "dumping party," held whenever the stock of confiscated bottles threatens to overflow.

"It's the law," explained Det. Sgt. William Nesbitt of the vice squad, who supervised the two-hour session in the basement of police headquarters.

Besides 1,256 pints of beer, 68 quarts of wine and seven pints of gin, 22 pint bottles and five fourth-fifth bottles of whisky were opened and emptied, as well as four and one-half gallons of moonshine.

The stuff was taken mostly in raids on gambling joints and "blind pigs," said Nesbitt. Bottles were sealed with tape when necessary, he explained, and later used as evidence.

The supply had been accumulating for 15 months, said Nesbitt.

Malenkov Mum on Nikita's Blast

Ex-Red Boss Pampered by London Newsmen of Assault on Stalin

LONDON (AP)—Former Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov said today he had not studied in detail accounts of Nikita S. Khrushchev's reported denunciation of Stalin. But he added he might have something to say after studying the reports.

A reporter asked Malenkov his reaction to London newspaper stories saying Khrushchev had denounced the late premier in a speech before the recent Soviet Communist party congress in Moscow.

Malenkov, who was deposed as premier by Khrushchev, replied: "I have time to study it I will perhaps have something to say."

Malenkov, who was about to enter London's Battersea power plant, was next asked:

"Are you still friendly with Khrushchev?"

Malenkov, who is now minister of power stations, turned around at this question and replied in stern tones:

"Yes, of course I am still friendly with him."

Malenkov's comments were made in Russian and translated. The questions were put to him by newsmen accompanying him on his three-week tour of British power installations.

Malenkov gave no outward sign of being ruffled by Western reports of unrest in Russia in the wake of denunciations of Stalin, his former boss.

Accuse Soldier in Rape-Killing

AWOL GI, 17, Says He Beat, Attacked Widow 83 Years Old

NEW YORK (AP)—A 17-year-old AWOL soldier, accused in the rape-slaying of a partially blind, 83-year-old widow, was quoted by police as saying he beat and assaulted Mrs. Ola Murdock because "I felt like killing someone."

Pvt. Ronald Wayne Cooper was seized as he stepped off a bus from upstate New York. At first Cooper denied the killing, which took place in his home town of Ogdensburg. Then, police said, he broke down and confessed after being confronted with his blood-stained jacket and shirt.

"For a long time I've had a desire to kill a woman. I like to see people suffer... I know I'll still have the desire to kill if I'm let loose," he was quoted.

Mrs. Murdock, a retired school teacher, died Thursday after being found unconscious Wednesday in her ransacked apartment. She had suffered a double skull fracture, a broken nose, broken jaw, and nine crushed ribs.

Cooper was a neighbor of Mrs. Murdock and often did odd jobs for her.

On the same day Mrs. Murdock was attacked, Cooper was freed of an assault charge brought by a 73-year-old Ogdensburg woman when the youth's mother agreed to pay the woman's medical bills.

In the Army a little more than two months, Cooper was absent without leave from Ft. Dix, N.J.

He was booked on a charge of "homicide, hold for other authorities."

West Germany Plans to Become A-Nation, Too

BONN, Germany, (AP)—West Germany plans to become an atomic nation, too.

Freed from Allied postwar restrictions, the federal republic is trying hard to catch up with peaceful atomic experience in the United States, Soviet Russia, Britain and France.

But there will be no production of atomic weapons. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government has pledged that West Germany will not engage in the production of ABC weapons (atomic, bacteriological, chemical).

Instead, research will be concentrated on nuclear physics, the construction of atomic reactors and the industrial use of atomic energy.

TODAY'S ASSIGNMENT FOR:

JUNIOR EDITORS

Saint Patrick

The great St. Patrick was once a slave. The son of a landlord in England, he was kidnapped by wild Irish sea raiders about 400 years after the birth of Christ and for more than six years herded swine for them in Ireland.

At last he managed to escape to France where he became a monk, and was given the name Patrick. A dream told him that the Irish were calling on him to return as a missionary, and he spent 14 years preparing for this.

Patrick returned to Ireland in 432 with the Pope's blessing and the title of bishop. He had to gain the good will of the tribal kings, and so well did he succeed that it has been said there were "no Christians in Ireland when he began, no pagans when he died."

He chose the humble little shamrock, which grew everywhere, as the symbol of his faith, and it is said drove all the snakes into the sea. He died at last on a March 17 and this became his feast day.

You can color this picture (make the shamrock green) paste it on cardboard, and cut it out. Now, fold it on the dotted lines and it will stand up.

Wormy Cigarettes Bring Sorry Reply

LANSING (AP)—The State Agriculture Department is sorry, but it can't do anything about wormy cigarettes.

Miles A. Nelson, head of the bureau of foods and standards, reported he received the complaint about the wormy cigarettes from Grand Rapids.

"Since they certainly would not be edible," Nelson ruled with regret, "they don't come under our jurisdiction."

City Makes Handbills on Windshield Illegal

DEARBORN — Putting advertising handbills under the windshield wipers of parked cars is against the law in Dearborn.

A recently enacted ordinance holds responsible the handbill distributor and the advertiser, and provides penalties of up to $500 fine or 90 days in jail, or both.

To Replant Coconuts

COLOMBO, Ceylon — Ceylon's Government has approved a program under which 150,000 acres of coconut trees will be replanted before 1964. Seedlings and fertilizer will be issued to growers at subsidized prices.

There are national forests in 38 states of the Union, Alaska and Puerto Rico.

The program, which begins at 6 p.m., is open to the public.

Asks How to Prevent Borrowing

Woman Advised to Use Frankness in Refusing Cousin

By EMILY POST

The following letter comes from a young woman: "Will you please tell me if there is any way to be tactful and say 'no' at the same time? I don't know what to say when my cousin, who is just my size, comes in and asks to borrow my things."

"I felt sorry for her once when she needed a dress badly and that is how it all started. Is there any way I can refuse without hurting her feelings?"

Answer: I know of nothing except frankly saying you are sorry but they are your best things and you really cannot lend them. This, I think, is the best solution, since a pretended excuse of any sort is like a lie which always trips you in the end.

"Dear Mrs. Post: Someone told me it wasn't in good taste to send out birth announcements for a second or third baby. In other words, announcements could be sent for the first addition to the family but not for any other. If this is true, how else do you let friends and acquaintances know the news?"

Answer: It is entirely proper to send announcements for each baby (no matter how many one has) to friends who would be interested. Such announcements do not obligate anyone to send a present.

"Dear Mrs. Post: When one goes to a tea or reception where there is a receiving line, is it correct to keep on one's gloves until the refreshment table is reached, or should one remove the right glove to shake hands?"

"My friends say the latter is correct, but I think one looks foolish wearing one glove and holding the other. What is your opinion?"

Answer: Men of course remove their gloves, women correctly keep theirs on.

Shakespeare's Going to Pot--Via TV

By EMILY BEISER

HOLLYWOOD (INS) — Shakespeare is going to pot. At least he is in this country—and especially on television.

So quoth John Carradine of the lanky limbs, the low liquid voice and the Bard-on-Avon complex.

"It would cost a network—or I should say a sponsor—two-and-a-half hours of air time and $500,000 to produce Shakespeare as it should be produced on TV," the actor declared.

"In the first place," he pointed out, "a sponsor shouldn't embark on such an undertaking with any idea of making money. It would have to be strictly a prestige program to promote good will instead of bars of soap."

"Commercialism should be kept out of it and money should be no object!"

Carradine thinks the way Shakespeare is produced today (for the most part) turns up a "terrible salad."

CAN'T CRAM

"You can't cram 'Romeo and Juliet,' 'Othello,' or any other Shakespearean play into an hour—or even an hour and a half," he blasted. "It's bound to be emasculatory!"

In the second place the paper-thin actor doesn't think there's really much point in putting Shakespeare on TV anyway.

"There's really no object to it," he said. "50,000,000 people see it and then it's all over for 10 years! Who's going to pay to see it on the stage after they've been exposed to it on a video screen?"

Furthermore, John let it be known that he's the greatest Shakespearean actor alive and after all, he can't be every place at once.

Good Shakespearean actors are as scarce as Monoclonal princes according to Carradine.

NO HAMLET NOW

"There hasn't been an American Hamlet since John Barrymore," he declared. "There was Raymond Massey, of course, but then he's Canadian."

The actor noted with a certain air of frustration that Britisher Maurice Evans "came to this country and cornered the Shakespeares."

peare market, but the only thing he does really well is Richard II."

"Most Shakespearean actors today are of a very low order," he lamented. "That includes men and women. Why, there's not a woman alive who's fit to play Juliet."

Carradine remembered with approval Louis Calhern's "King

Lear." Douglas Fairbanks' "Romeo" (1929) and recalled that Robert Mantell was the last of the truly great Shakespearean actors.

What does it take to do Shakespeare? "Oh just the usual I guess," Carradine grinned. "You have to be a damned good actor, have a voice, a brain, be an artist with a sense of poetry—in short, a genius!"

Marilyn Robertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hubbert Robertson of Waddington road, was married this afternoon to John Forman Lutz. He is the son of Karl Lutz of Pittsburgh. The ceremony was performed in Kirk of the Hills.

Bette Davis, in Her Heyday, Wore Crown as 'Queen of the Oscars'

This is the sixth of seven articles by the "First Lady of Hollywood" reporting dramatic moments in the "Oscar" awards. The awards for 1935 will be announced March 21.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
HOLLYWOOD (INS) — During her heyday as a Warner Brothers star, Bette Davis wore the crown of "Queen of the Oscars." If Bette was not actually capturing the prize (she won two Oscars for "Dangerous" in 1935 and for "Jezebel" in 1938) she was blithely giving every other nominee the scare of her life.

Bette was nominated for Oscars nine times—a record that has not been topped even by her closest competitors: Olivia De Havilland (two Oscars for "The Heiress" in '49 and "To Each His Own" in '46, plus five nominations); Barbara Stanwyck (four nominations, no Oscar); Greer Garson (Oscar for "Mrs. Miniver" and three nominations); Jane Wyman (Oscar for "Johnny Belinda" and two nominations); and Ingrid Bergman (Oscar for "Gaslight" and two nominations).

Amusingly enough, queen Bette—she of the clipped speech, the wide, poppin' eyes, unruly hair and gift for the highest dramatics—was getting her most persistent competition from a curly-haired youngster who was the child idol of America, Miss Shirley Temple!

Shirley never really was up for an Oscar. But every year Miss Dimples was being touted for a "Special Award" for her fabulous talents. In 1934, she got it! There was hardly a dry eye in the house as the tot of tots received her golden Oscar (cut down to size) and had her picture taken with Claudette Colbert (the grown-up winner that year for "It Happened One Night"). Shirley's award still stands and holds the record as perhaps the most sentimental event of Oscar nights.

But getting back to la Davis, there was much more than just the winning of top dramatic honors in her long and perennial list of nominated performances and pictures.

Putting it on a crassly commercial basis, every time Bette was "up" for an Oscar, it added millions and millions in cash to the boxoffice "take" on her pictures.

'BEST' MEANS CASH
Early in the game, starting back in '28, producers found out that having the "Best Picture" or picture with the "Best Actor" or "Best Actress" in the cast spelled an added fortune in the bank. From the beginning, the rivalry was spirited. Later, unfortunately, it sometimes became bitter.

"Gone With the Wind" was one of the biggest moneymakers ever filmed. But after it practically swept the Academy Awards card in 1939, picking up

"Best Production," "Best Actress" (Vivien Leigh), "Best Supporting" (Hattie McDaniel), and "Best Directing" (Victor Fleming) Oscars, it doubled and tripled its earnings in releases in this country and in Europe. It's still being shown.

The same may be said for those other card-sweepers, "The Best Years of Our Lives," "Casablanca," "From Here to Eternity," and several others. But if these cash-cleanup winners were giving producers ideas to win the Oscars at any cost, actors were also beginning to get the cash bee in their bonnets.

Such stars as Jimmy Stewart, Gary Cooper, William Holden and other topnotchers began to look around and take stock of the "stock," if you know what I mean. As well as stalling in top pictures, particularly those of Oscar-nominated importance, they decided they wanted to be cut in on percentage deals.

JIMMY BOWS OUT
It was soon after Jimmy Stewart won his actor award for "Philadelphia Story" that he bowed out of a straight-salary contract at MGM and went out on his own to make his percentage deals. When he signed with Universal International for three films giving him 50 per cent of the "take," an entire industry gasped. His westerns and adventure pictures for this company, plus outside deals, have made Jimmy many times a millionaire.

Gary Cooper, a two time Oscar winner (for "Sergeant York" in 1941 and "High Noon" in 1952) was not far behind Jimmy in asking for a percentage of his films and organizing his own company. Now practically everybody is in the act.

William Holden has his own organization. John "Duke" Wayne has made a fortune from his own company—and I've never won for best actor," John laughingly tells you.

Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis, Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, and, oh, to list them all would fill the rest of this page, are all in the producer-star field, hoping sometime (and make it soon!) to come up with an Oscar-winning picture or performance. Marlon Brando, last year's lucky winner, is also in the act and will soon make independent films.

FILLED WITH CONTRACTS

Because anything you can say about the awards is filled with contracts, it is amusing to me that the man whose films have made the most cold, hard cash around the world—and I mean Cecil B. De Mille, the veteran 74-year-old "Master" of the Megaphone—never has won a "Best Picture" "Best Director" Oscar in his life.

It wasn't until 1932 that an embarrassed academy decided that something had to be done about the fabulous C. B., so the director, whose name is as famous as any star he has directed was invited into the spotlight to receive the Irving Thalberg Memorial Award for his "outstanding contribution to motion picture production."

It must have handed C. B. a private chuckle as he thought to himself that without an Oscar to his name (until '32) all his movies had made was money—and some of the world's greatest stars!

McCarroll, Malkim, Crofoot

Three School PTAs Elect Officers

School PTAs electing officers for the ensuing year this week were McCarroll, Malkim and Crofoot. The meetings were held at the respective schools.

Crofoot PTA
Dr. F. Robert Wollaefer spoke to members of Crofoot PTA Thursday evening. Dr. Wollaefer, of the Oakland County Child Guidance Clinic, also presented the film, "Child Development."

The movie dealt with children's emotions and the part of the parent in working with a child's emotions. Stressed was the fact that different ages present different problems to the child. A discussion was held following the movie on fear, anger, jealousy and happiness of a child.

Dr. Wollaefer was introduced by Mrs. Roland Stephenson who also presented candidates to the PTA. Mrs. Stephenson was elected president; Mrs. Leon Smith, vice-president; Mrs. Mayna Baker, teacher vice-president; Dr. Roy V. Cooley, father vice-president; Mrs. Ralph Rotsel, secretary; Mrs. Norman Brown, treasurer; Mrs. John Stephenson, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Thomas Fowler, historian.

McCarroll PTA
Mrs. Reid Graham was elected president of the McCarroll PTA Wednesday afternoon. Her slate of officers include Mrs. Orville Chambers, vice-president; Harold Brown, father vice-president; Mrs. Sidney Olson, secretary and Mrs. William Killen, treasurer.

Elected as council delegates were Mrs. Grover Remley, Mrs. Ferris Stevens and Mrs. C. P. Schmidt.

Announcement was made of the State PTA Convention in Detroit April 24-26 and also the District Spring Conference in Royal Oak, May 9.

The school orchestra under the direction of Eldon Rosegart presented several selections. Orchestra members were Priscilla Wilkinson, Sharon Ware, Barbara Bailey, Eddy Lewis, Gene Anderson, Don Mackey, Terry Fields, Audrey Ladd, Lewis Cascadden and Dayne Thomas.

Others were Ronald Crenshaw, James Gramzo, Charles McMichaels, Karen Wellington and Janice Buehre.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Helen Lane's homeroom. Serving on the committee were Mrs. Joseph Carry, Mrs. Melvin Glover, Mrs. Nolen Davis, Mrs. Clyde Elliott, Mrs. Walter Loren, Mrs. Clarence Phillips and Mrs. Stewart Heard.

Malkim PTA
Mrs. Carl Vedane, teacher vice-president, presided at the Thursday meeting of Malkim PTA. Lucille Amnden conducted election of officers.

Mrs. Stanley Boyd is president for the 1936-37 year, Mrs. Howard McConnell is vice-president; Mrs. Carl Vedane, teacher vice president; Howard McConnell, father vice president; Mrs. Hurler Pace, historian; Mrs. Robert Kayga, treasurer; Mrs. Joseph Watson, secretary; Mrs. Dick Solomon, parliamentarian; Mrs. Robert Gilroy, council delegate and Mrs. Lyle Young, council delegate.

Hurley Pace, head of the Cub Scout program, outlined the objectives and procedures of the organization. Stressing the need for activities for small boys, Mrs. Pace urged the parents to help build a better club.

A panel on Special Services in the Pontiac School System included Mrs. Ruth De Rousse, vision technician; Mrs. Ila Mae Rebeck, speech correctionist; Mrs. Evelyn Gottschalk, hearing consultant; Josephine Bulla, school nurse and Frances Priest, visiting teacher. Lillian Davidson served as moderator.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Charles Heinisch, Mrs. Robert Kayga, Mrs. Ray Hartung, Mrs. George Jones and Lamont Wertz.

Central PTA
Family Fun Night was held at Central School Thursday evening. Robert Martin, father vice-president, presided.

Mrs. Sam Hale, program chairman, presented Mrs. Ray Meiser who sang "Mother Machree." Irish songs were sung by the group.

Miss Adams called for the square dancing enjoyed by PTA members and their children. Games and stunts were under the direction of Mrs. Elmer Stoltenberg.

Benefactor Gets Reward From Orphan She Helped

By ANNE HEYWOOD

On St. Patrick's Day, I always think of Kitty, an Irish cleaning woman we had when I was a little child. She came to our house one day a week and we always looked forward to it.

Kitty was what is known as a jewel, but she was a lot more than that.

Hard-working and cheerful, she was one of the happiest women I ever knew. She had five other families to whom she went for a day a week and she loved us all.

Kitty was very plain-looking—downright ugly, as she used to admit cheerfully enough. She had been orphaned at a very early age, but her memories weren't too dreary.

My sister and I used to listen for hours while Kitty, polishing silver or waxing floors, would tell us tales of the orphanage.

HAD PLAYMATES

"We had playmates, that's for sure," Kitty would say. "But the two things we didn't have," she added, her eyes clouding over. "was love from grownups and silly presents."

"The grownups on the staff were nice enough, but too busy for playing with the kids. And the presents we got were common-sense, useful things."

"I used to think I'd sell my soul for some trinkets or silly toys. But we never got them."

However, Kitty was not one to take life lying down. As soon as she was making money—not much, but her six days a week of work brought in more than she had ever dreamed of—she began doing something about the orphanage in town.

She visited there every Sunday and took a mountain of silly trinkets. She spent several hours, playing with the children and probably kept them laughing merrily all the while.

QUARTER OF INCOME

She must have put a quarter of her income into those presents, week after week after week. To say nothing of spending a good half of her only day off over at the orphanage.

Years later, when I was married, we invited Kitty to the wedding. We hadn't seen her for years, but we had an address where she could always be reached. She came, looking like a million dollars.

Eventually I got the story. One of my orphans, a shy little girl, had turned out to have a beautiful singing voice. She had gotten a scholarship and was now a rich and successful opera singer.

But she had never forgotten Kitty, whose love and trinkets had so cheered her as a child. Kitty was now her personal maid, at a good salary, and accompanied her all over the world. "Even" Kitty told me, beaming, "a trip to Ireland while my lady was visiting in London!" (Copyright 1936)

Pontiac High Playcrafters Excel in 'Strange' Comedy

The Pontiac High School Playcrafters under the direction of Miss Mary Parrish added another especially fine production to their list of successful plays when "Strange Boarders," a comedy farce in three acts, opened Thursday evening.

Outstanding in the lead role of Cordelia Tuttle was Barbara Kenney. She played the role of the flighty yet lovable middle aged spinster who tries, for the sake of her two foster daughters, to run a respectable boarding house.

Miss Kenney received excellent support from all the members of the cast, and the action moved along quickly.

Robert Greenberg as the inventive Professor Harriman, Ray Freebury in the role of the genial but sponging Captain Winkle, and Ken Lenigan as John Todd, faithful suitor of Miss Cordelia added much to the success of the play. Bob Greenberg especially as the eccentric professor provided the audience with many laughs.

Donna Chilvers as Candy Fenway, and Sharon Boyce as her sister Glory Fenway, were the two delightful foster daughters of Miss Cordelia. Don North playing Lon Dagget was the convincing love interest of Candy Fenway. Sharon Boyce, the younger of the two daughters was at times a lovable pest.

The action of the play centered around the intrigue of crooks with money trying to catch up with other crooks. The group of bank robbers were a convincing lot. Jack Larson as the morbid, Smiley, henchman to the "boss" Boston Benny played by Dick Kors was terrible in a comical way. Barbara Welch and Judy Lauckner as Amity Haines and Priscilla Haines did a good job as the "double-crossing gun molls." Charles Williams in the role of the suave Deacon added to the complicated plot.

Deserving note as the "proper and crusading town busy-body, Myrtle Hodge," is Pauline Logsdon. Pauline made the character sympathetically despicable.

Jo Ann VanTassel rounded out the cast as Susie, a little girl who has heard from her mother that all the people in Miss Cordelia's board-

Two Fabrics Add Appeal to Youthful Party Dress

Mr. Mort gives us a double entendre in this young party dress that was originally made in lace over satene.

The long bodice has a neckline squared in front, nice and low in back, and is finished off with ribbon lacing in and out. The skirt is gored and gathered.

Easy to make, since the pattern is hand cut and perforated, the dress has a special quality made up in two fabrics such as lace and satene, lace or sheer over a print or chiffon over a texture, cut and worked as one.

It is equally smart in one fabric such as taffeta, surah, shantung, novelty cottons. This pattern is cut to designer measurements, not standard pattern measurements.

Religious Programs in All Schools Urged to Be Dedicated Sunday

LANSING—A resolution urging that local school boards throughout Michigan be encouraged to institute religious programs including a non-sectarian prayer service at the beginning of each school day was introduced in the state legislature here.

Rep. Leonard E. Wood (R-Detroit) is the sponsor.

"If the people of this nation are to meet the challenge of the atomic age and of automation," the resolution said, "there must be general spiritual awakening without regard to creeds. A nation is no stronger than its moral fiber."

It added that the United States is "in the midst of a religious revival and a return to the beliefs that have made it great."

Methodists to Build

BOULDER, Colo.—A million-dollar home for retired persons will be built east of here by the Colorado Methodist conference. Construction is slated to begin by July 1, 1959.

The Rev. Ben H. Christner of Pueblo has been named executive director of the project.

When the Pilgrim Holiness Church, located on the corner of Fairmont and Baldwin avenues, is dedicated tomorrow at 2:30 p.m., the Rev. R. C. Hawkins of Indianapolis, Ind. will preach the sermon.

The Rev. Mr. Hawkins was pastor of the church from 1941 to 1946 during the time when the lots were purchased for the new church. He is now general secretary of Church Extension of the Denomination.

The Rev. William N. Miller, superintendent of the East Michigan Conference, will be guest speaker Sunday evening.

In October of 1932, the Rev. A. M. Frink, held a revival meeting in a building on the corner of Howard and North Saginaw streets.

Mr. Frink was district superintendent of Pilgrim Holiness Churches for the state of Michigan at that time.

At the close of the meetings, a church was organized with seven members.

Later, the church was moved to the corner of Baldwin and Columbia avenues, and from there to the site near the corner of Fairmont and Baldwin.

The corner lot was bought, and the new building started in 1949 under the leadership of the pastor, the Rev. C. V. Holstein.

In 1950, the present pastor, the Rev. E. C. Swanson, came to the church. During the last four years, the congregation has done much of the work to finish the building.

The auditorium, which seats 325, is trimmed in golden oak with indirect lighting in the ceiling. The pews are of golden oak upholstered in coral colored naugahide. The balcony will seat nearly 100 persons.

The building, valued at about $100,000, will be dedicated with less than a $20,000 debt.

Rev. R. W. Wright to Talk

Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock Mt Zion B. C. of Detroit will be at the Providence Missionary Baptist Church, 311 Bagley St. The Rev. R. W. Wright will be guest speaker.

The Cornelian Corner presents Dr. Bruno Bettelheim in a seminar from 2-4 p.m. Sunday afternoon, at Christ Church, Cranbrook. He will discuss "The Development of Conscience."

Born in Vienna, Dr. Bettelheim is professor of Educational Psychology at the University of Chicago and head of the Sonia Shankman Orthogenic School.

He has written several books and articles for professional journals. He is a fellow and diplomate of the American Psychological Association, a member of the Chicago Psychoanalytic Association and the American Philosophical Association.

Native of China Speaks to Men

Dr. James Cheng, Noted Surgeon, Will Address Presbyterians

Dr. James Cheng, medical director of the Oakland County Tuberculosis Sanatorium, will address the Men's Club of First Presbyterian Church Wednesday, following dinner at 6:30 p.m.

Dr. Cheng, a distinguished thoracic surgeon, is a native of China. Dr. and Mrs. Cheng were trained in mission schools there.

Later they both came to this country for further education. Dr. Cheng served his internship in Detroit.

Returning to China, Dr. Cheng practiced in Shanghai. Following the famous kidnapping of Chiang Kai-shek by the Communists, he became medical adviser to the generalissimo.

He continued his medical service to his people during the days of the Japanese occupation and during the years of freedom that followed.

When the Chinese Communist advance began, Dr. Cheng was forced to leave the Chinese mainland.

Eventually he went to Hawaii and then came to the United States where he has gained a wide reputation in his specialty.

Reservations for the Men's Club may be made at the office of the First Presbyterian Church.

Says Religious Study Is Vital School Issue

CHICAGO (RNS) — A specialist in school law declared here that the most important legal issue in education today is religious instruction. He called segregation one of the least important of the major school law questions.

Dr. E. C. Bolmeir of Duke University, Durham, N.C., addressed the National Association of Secondary School Principals here.

He said that the legal principles for religious instruction are still in the evolution stage, whereas today's young people are clearly indicating that they will put an end to segregation in schools.

Dr. H. H. Savage to Speak at Perry Park Baptist

The Perry Park Baptist Church will not only be dedicating the new church building Sunday but will be celebrating the 30th anniversary of the Sunday School.

Dr. H. H. Savage, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will speak at the dedication at 3 p.m.

At the morning service, the Rev. Hilding Bihl, minister of Perry Park, will preach and in the evening at 7:30, Ralph Pardee, church Youth Director, will bring the message.

On March 14, 1926, a group of young people from the B.Y.P.U. of the First Baptist Church, started an afternoon Sunday School in one of the three "portable buildings" that then comprised Emerson School.

Ralph Pardee was the leader in this work. The Sunday School later used all three buildings and when the basement of the present Emerson School was completed, moved to that location.

During World War II, the property at Baltimore and Cameron streets was purchased and the church basement was constructed. The plans for the church building are the work of Mrs. Ralph Pardee, a registered architect, and the wife of the founder of the church.

The congregation worshipped in the basement for 10 years before starting the present structure. Apart from the heating, plumbing and electrical work, the construction has been the work of the members.

Among the directors and pastors following Mr. Pardee have been James and Robert Savage who are now missionaries in South America, and the Rev. Robert Fischer, present pastor of the St. Clair Shores Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Pardee are the "Breakdown of Family Structure" to Be Theme of Adult Institute

The 8th session of the B'nai Israel Adult Institute will take place on Monday evening at 8:45 p.m.

Speaking on the theme: "The Breakdown of the Family Structure" will be Estella Martin, director of the Oakland County Family Service Bureau.

Miss Martin, a native of Providence, R. I. received her Ph. D. degree from Pembroke College and Brown Univ., and subsequently attended the Smith College School for Social Work for her Master of Social Science Degree.

In addition to a five year tenure with the Family Service of Cincinnati, she occupied positions at the Rhode Island State Hospital for Mental Diseases.

During World War II, Miss Martin served overseas with the Hospital Service of the American National Red Cross at North Africa, and in several European countries. Arriving in Pontiac in the year 1946, she was assigned the task of heading the newly established family service agency known as the Pontiac Family Service Center.

In 1950, this agency merged with a small family agency in the southern part of the county, to form the present agency, the Family Service of Oakland County.

Following Miss Martin's address Rabbi Henry Hoshander will deliver a brief discourse on Judaism and family life after which refreshments will be served.

'Tithers Anonymous' Pledge During Lent

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (RNS)—Two hundred and thirty members of First Methodist church here became "Tithers Anonymous" for the 40-day period of Lent.

The 240 title cards, dropped into a pledge box during the communion service, were unsigned.

The Rev. Roy D. Williams, pastor of the church, said he chose the name because "their identity is unknown to any but themselves and God."

The cards read: "In grateful appreciation for all God has done for me and in token of my love for Christ and His Church, I agree to tithe my income during the 40 days of Lent and to give my tithe to my church during that period."

Preparations for the pledges were organized by the church's stewardship committee.

Churches Hold Special Events Michigan Week

The Rev. Harold N. Skidmore, D. D., Lansing, superintendent and minister Michigan Congregational Christian Conference, will serve as chairman of Spiritual Foundations Day for Michigan Week, May 20-26, Russel Swaney, general chairman announced today.

Swaney, who last year served as Wayne County Michigan Week chairman, is head of the Detroit Federal Reserve Bank.

The full committee, including leaders from various denominations, will be announced shortly, Dr. Skidmore said.

Long a leader in Michigan church circles, Dr. Skidmore is a past president (1954) of the Michigan Council of Churches and has served as president of the Superintendent's Council for the Congregational Church.

Representing the latter group, in 1953 he was a delegate to the International Congregational Council, St. Andrews, Scotland.

The day, which has evoked considerable interest the past two years, has prompted considerable state-wide church activity. Churches have held special events to commemorate the day and pastors have used their sermons to discuss the spiritual aspects of

Decries Forcing of Integration

Bishop Sees Harm in Segregation but Blasts Banning Methods

NEW ORLEANS (RNS)—The Rt. Rev. Gerald Francis Burrill, Episcopal Bishop of Chicago, said here that racial integration should not be forced into existence.

He said that segregation is "obviously contrary to the law of God" but force was not the way to get rid of it.

The bishop was here to preach at a retreat in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church.

"You don't make people good by laws," he said. "They should be willing to do the right thing because God wants them to do so, not because a law is forcing them in that direction."

Bishop Burrill said that "in carrying out the directives of our conscience and the recent decision of the Supreme Court, the controversial matter is not what to do but how to do it."

"I have the deepest sympathy and understanding for the people of the South and realize that the 'Yankees' are in an entirely different culture," he declared.

"If everyone is patient and doesn't lose his temper the solution will be found."

Finns Mostly Lutheran

HELSINKI (RNS)—Membership in the Evangelical Lutheran (State) Church of Finland totaled 4,100,822 in 552 congregations as of Jan. 1, 1955. This was about 94 per cent of the country's 4,215,900 population.

The figures were given in the Finnish Statistical Yearbook for 1955, published here.

He attended Rizarios Seminary in Athens, Greece, and after graduation studied at the University of Athens. At the same time, he attended the German Academy of Athens for German language and literature.

After receiving his degree, he was elected an assistant in the Theological School of the University of Athens.

In 1946, the Rev. Dr. Siagris was invited for special studies in comparative religion and philosophy by the Union Theological Seminary of Columbia University.

In the United States, he attended Columbia University and the General Episcopal Seminary of New York for four years. He has made special research and study in Indian religions and Buddhism.

As an author, Dr. Siagris is known for his last book entitled, "Amida Buddha, the God-Saviour They Longed For."

A painter in his spare time, the new pastor of St. George, has given two exhibitions at Columbia University.

His wife, Liouby, is also a theologian. She was graduated from the University of Athens, the French Academy and Columbia University.

Iowa Paper Launches Religious News Page

IOWA CITY, Ia. (RNS) — A full page of religious news was launched as a regular Saturday feature of the Daily Iowan, student newspaper of the University of Iowa here.

In addition to announcements of church and student services, the page carries interviews and features relating to religion at the university. Pictures also are published.

Canadians Hear Moslem Sheikh

Toronto Church Scene of Islamic Lecture by Touring Arab

TORONTO, Ont. (RNS) — Canadian religious history was made here when Sheikh Muhammad Bahjat Al-Bitar of Damascus, Syria, a Moslem holy man, preached on the Islamic faith in a Christian church.

The appearance at Bloor Street United church was the first engagement in a lecture tour of Canada and the United States by a team of two Moslems and two Christians under the sponsorship of the Continuing Committee for Moslem-Christian Cooperation.

Purpose of the tour is to focus attention on cooperation between the two faiths as "a force for world peace."

Prior to the meeting, the party were guests at a luncheon given by Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto Council of Churches.

Sheikh Al-Bitar, who has made seven pilgrimages to Mecca, presented a striking picture in his gray robe and red turban, wound about with a white scarf.

He said that although he had addressed Christian groups in many lands this was the first time he ever had spoken in a Christian church.

He told the congregation that Islam and Christianity had many things in common but "unfortunately too few people realize it."

Seven Protestant Groups Organize Unit in Alaska

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (RNS) — Representatives of seven Protestant denominations formally organized an Alaska Association of Churches at a two-day meeting here. Also present at the meeting were representatives of the Air Force and Army chaplaincy in Alaska.

The Rt. Rev. William J. Gordon, Jr. of Fairbanks, Protestant Episcopal Missionary Bishop of Alaska, was elected president of the new association. The Rev. Fred McGinnis of Anchorage, Alaska superintendent for The Methodist Church, was named vice-president; and the Rev. James Austin of Anchorage, Alaska secretary for the Church of God (Anderson, Ind.), secretary-treasurer.

A constitution adopted at the meeting described the association as "a vehicle through which the churches of Alaska can accomplish cooperatively that which each could not accomplish individually."

The scene of the fire was the day room where the prisoners had been permitted to go for a recreation period.

Johnson said Vincent Cucci, 29, accused of slaying his wife and their three children, was the leader of the disturbance. He has been convicted of slaying one of the children but has an appeal pending.

The demonstration ended when the condemned men, at Johnson's order, went back to their cells.

11 Actresses Make Movie Without Sign of Friction

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (U)—The least envied man among film directors is David Miller, who has the tough task of guiding 11 actresses in a movie about women.

Miller, 25-year veteran of film making despite his youngish looks, is directing "The Opposite Sex." It's a modern, musicalized version of "The Women," written by the ambassador to Italy, Clare Boothe Luce. Now well into the shooting, Miller says his dolls are happy as larks.

NOT TRUE IN 1939

Such was not the case in the first filming of the play (1939). It starred such high-powered people as Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Rosalind Russell, Joan Fontaine, etc. Reports are that the queens would vie to see who could arrive on the set last.

The new version has such figures as June Allyson, Ann Sheridan, Joan Collins, Dolores Gray, Ann Miller, Joan Blondell, Vivienne Segal, Barbara Jo Allen (Vera Vague) and Alice Pearce.

"We haven't had any problems," remarked director Miller, not even pausing to knock on wood. "All the girls have been as nice as they can be."

WELL BRIEFED

"Before production started," Miller added, "I had them come to my office individually and rehearse their parts. I wanted them to understand and be satisfied with their characterizations. In a picture with so many characters, you're apt to lose sight of some of them if they're not firmly in mind beforehand."

Discover Solution for Coating Metal

Heat acts as an accelerator to corrosion. In consequence, protecting the surfaces of metals which must operate under high temperatures is a challenge to manufacturers of coatings and finishes.

Jet engine cowlings, for instance, require coatings which will not only stand up under heat, but will also withstand abrasion and impact from incidental handling.

Manufacturers of industrial chemical coatings, members of the paint, varnish and lacquer industry, have provided one answer by formulating coatings based on resins which resist high temperatures and can be modified in the final formulation to provide other desirable characteristics of toughness and flexibility.

Don't fail to use a special undercoater when paint is to be applied over stain or varnish.

The three-bedroom brick homes have attached double garages, brick fireplaces with log storage space, ceramic tile baths and Crosley kitchens. The large living rooms have studio ceilings and a dining ell. Buyers have the choice of several elevations and a basement or a family room. Lots are 84x120 feet. A model is open daily. The homes will be ready for occupancy some time after the first of April. Prices start at $23,500.

The four gates shown above are all designed for use with fences of contrasting material such as brick or stone walls; hedges, metal or wood or special dimensions. Gates and fences that are selected to harmonize with the landscape and style of architecture can add charm to the homestead. Pattern 453 is 25c by mail. Another pattern which is 38c contains directions for making and erecting 18 different styles of low fences with gates to match is available by mail for 25c. Economist Says That More New Homes to Be Erected During Next Ten Years

More new homes will be built in the next decade, than in the fabulous 10 years following World War II, members of the Builders Association of Metropolitan Detroit were told this week.

Nathaniel H. Rogg, chief economist of the National Association of Home Builders, pointed out that his forecast of a continued upward trend in home building contradicts forecasts of a few years ago based on the fewer family formations due because of the low birth rates of the 1930's.

Between now and 1960, Rogg told the Builders, housing starts should remain in the 1.2 to 1.3 million range achieved in 1955. Total dollar volume, however, should exceed recent high levels because houses are becoming larger each year, with the 4-bedroom size probably being most popular by 1960.

More homes in the next few years will be contemporary in design and they will be built with more processed materials and manufactured component parts. The builder, Rogg continued, will become more and more an assembler and merchandiser.

For the next few years at least, land for building sites will be a major problem, Rogg predicted. Periodic tightness of mortgage funds will plague the industry, even as now, and a few materials shortages may pop up, although cement, steel, gypsum and lumber manufacturers are pushing tremendous expansion programs.

SEES TIGHT LAND CRISIS

The land situation, particularly acute in metropolitan centers such as Detroit, will be the number one problem all over the nation. Rogg said it shows some signs of easing here in the next few years because of the concentrated attack of the Builders Association of Metropolitan Detroit. The Builders Association, he pointed out, last year pushed through the Legislature and a statewide referendum a bill providing a $200,000,000 revolving fund under which poor school districts can obtain funds for construction of schools. The same formula now is being applied to the water and sewer problem in a bill drafted by the Builders Association and about to be introduced in the State Legislature.

When means are provided for financing these utilities, Rogg said, the pressing problem of costly land will fade away.

The housing boom of the last 10 years, the Builders were told, has produced the most revolutionary social changes in this country since 1776, a revolution which passed almost unnoticed. As late as 1940, Rogg said, a presidential fact-finding committee found that home ownership "is not possible nor probably even desirable for the majority of Americans." Today more than half of the nation's families own their homes.

The tenement flat since 1940 has given way to a home in the suburbs. Home ownership has doubled since then. Today more people live in their own homes than dwelling units existed in 1930. In fact, builders were told, all the homes built since the war, if set on 60-foot lots, would form more than 35 strips across the United States.

One-Thermostat Home Losing Favor in U.S.

The one-thermostat home is being frozen out of the American housing picture.

An insistence upon greater personal comfort is accelerating the trend in U. S. homes toward multiple-thermostat systems to more sensitively adjust indoor temperatures to outdoor weather. This fact came out in a summary of 1955 operations of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co., world's largest automatic controls maker and inventor of the home thermostat.

In a report to stockholders on last year's activities, officials of the company said the home buyer's continued preference for the ranch-type house and the new interest in split-level design had stimulated installations of zoned heating systems. A zoned system is one that makes use of individual thermostats to control temperatures in two or more areas of the house. Generally, these are the sleeping, working and living areas of a house.

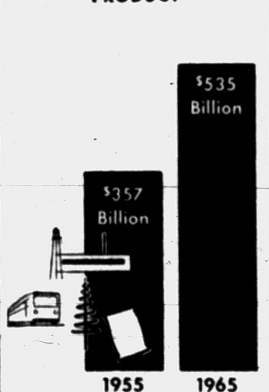

They also reported that this firm's unique system of electronic thermostats placed both outside and inside the house and linked to an electronic control "brain," had become increasingly popular.

With respect to the expanding use of central air conditioning equipment in the home, the company reported it was working to develop standardization of controls for such systems. During 1955 it introduced a new control panel and year-round thermostat for central air conditioning equipment.

Nation's Growth Linked to Expanded Sanitation Facilities

Many of the changes in the American way of life within the last decade have been related to the industrial expansion of the country and the growth of the American Community.

As a result of this industrial progress and community growth, Americans will live better in 1965 than they did in 1955, the Sanitary Engineering Committee of the National Clay Pipe Association reports.

However, full modernization of the Nation's existing sewage and water facilities is necessary in the next ten years if this country is to continue its growth and progress.

The combination of industrial growth and rapid population increase has placed a burden on present sewage and water facilities. Thousands of miles of underground clay pipe lines are needed to carry wastes to disposal plants. Vitrified clay pipe is recognized as the one material that provides all the qualities necessary to satisfy the exacting demands of sanitary structures. Clay pipe resists all the effects of acids and other caustic substances that are found in sewer systems.

Modern sanitary systems constructed of clay pipe play an everyday role as guardian of the health of the people. They are one of the city's lifelines, carrying away deadly wastes.

Children's Room Can Be Smart

Double Decker Beds, Vivid Colors Enhance Youngsters' Domain

NEW YORK (INS)—One way to give children an added incentive toward keeping their room neat is to make it a nifty looking room.

Turquoise is a masculine but bright shade for the very young man of the house. Why not try, as did the decorator of a New York department store, a turquoise and black pebble tweed rug, with turquoise and black upholstered chairs.

A double decker bed is fun for the young ones, and also a space saver. Even if you don't have two sons, perhaps junior might like to have friends sleep overnight.

The bed can be painted turquoise to match the color scheme of the rest of the room, with deep red, well-wearing corduroy spread. A wooden detachable guard is a good idea so the child

In the "upper" can't fall out. Paint this turquoise, too.

For drawer space, try lining one wall with low chests. The department store room setting did, placing two desks facing each other at right angles to the bureau so that they stuck out into the room.

Family Should Help Mom in Spring Housecleaning

Mother needn't overwork herself during spring housecleaning, if she uses her head instead of her back. The solution is simple: put hubby and the kids to work and it'll take a lot of the burden off tired Mom.

If she makes a game out of it with time limits and prizes, the work will go faster and everyone will enjoy it. Dad may see through the stunt but a clever wife can always overcome his objections.

The man of the family can be put to work on the heavier chores, such as cleaning the attic, garage and basement. He can also move the heavier furniture around for Mom and the kids to clean behind.

When Dad cleans the attic, garage and basement, he should have several steel baskets handy in which to carry rubbish outside.

Windows, walls and floors can be washed by the whole family. Mother can delegate a certain number of windows to each child for cleaning. Whoever washes his windows faster and better can be given a prize of a dish of ice cream as refreshment before starting on the next job. Provide each child with his own pail, sponge and squeegee.

The kids also can straighten up their own rooms and closets, to save Mom time and energy. A neat room is easier to clean than a messy one.

Home 'Skeletons' Revealed for Dramatic Loveliness

Architects have borrowed an idea from designers of women's fashions, who find that to reveal is divine.

Today the once hidden skeleton or frame of a house is being cleverly revealed as architects use the texture, grain and beauty of exposed wooden beams, rafters and ceiling to add character and charm to the contemporary home.

Warren Weber, prominent western architect and member of American Institute of Architects, says specified so that higher grades of this new trend in home design which utilizes more and more of the structural members of the overhang roofs.

Weber points out that designers have a wider range of opportunity to use both structural and appearance grades of such nationally popular lumber as Douglas fir or west coast hemlock when planning the frame of a new home.

He observes that both fir and hemlock lumber can be carefully specified so that higher grades of this new trend in home design which utilizes more and more of the structural members of the overhang roofs.

Build Wood Unit for Garbage Can

You can build an attractive unit into the backyard fence that not only makes garbage cans dog-proof but forms a good-looking screen.

Best of all, this trash can bin is so easy to build from fir plywood and do-it-yourself plans that it's a cinch for the home handyman. On the inside of the fence, this bin forms a handsome box-type unit with a lid on top. On the other side, the garbage or trash cans slide out easily when the sanitation truck comes around.

Besides hiding the sometimes unsightly trash cans, this bin will foil any inquisitive dog which might try to tip the lid off.

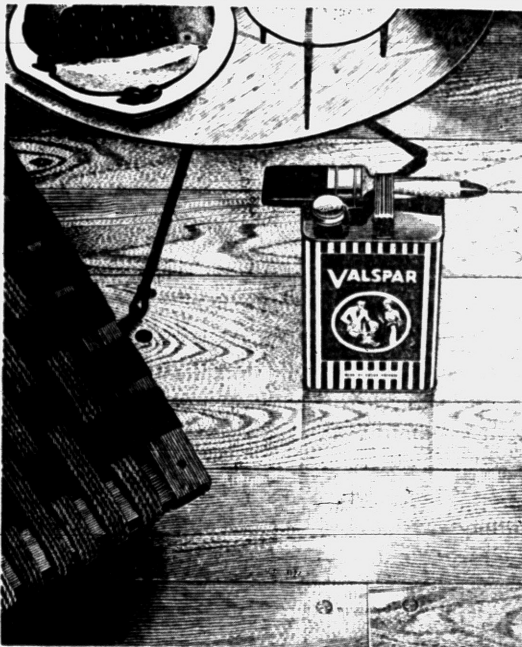

When made from exterior-type plywood with its 100 per cent waterproof bond, the bin will last indefinitely. You can build it twice as big for two cans.

There is no charge for the simple do-it-yourself plans for this bin at the Douglas Fir Plywood Association in Tacoma 2, Washington.

A mops sock makes a good applicator for waxing a floor. Fill the sock with paste wax, then run it lightly over the floor. The light pressure is sufficient to release enough wax for an even job.
