Giant Pacific Airliner Lost With 44 Aboard

Army Ordered Into Moon Field in Quick Switch

McElroy Says Work to 'Supplement' Navy's Project Vanguard

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army, some of whose scientists have claimed they could have launched a satellite long before Russia, has been given a chance to show what it can do in this field.

In a major switch from previous policy, Secretary of Defense McElroy last night ordered the Army to go ahead with preparations to fire artificial moonlets. Up to now, the American earth satellite program—project Vanguard—has been under the Navy exclusively.

★ ★ ★

The Defense Department announcement said the Army effort will "supplement the present Vanguard program."

READY TO GO

There were reports the Army might be ready to go in less than six weeks, after some modifications of rocket equipment. McElroy said the Army would use its Jupiter-C test vehicle — a huge rocket it used more than a year ago in firing a test device more than 600 miles high and 3,500 miles distant.

McElroy's action came against a background of criticism of the Eisenhower administration because Russia beat the United States into space with two earth satellites. The defense chief undoubtedly acted with the concurrence, if not at the specific direction of the White House.

The two Soviet space vehicles still are circling the earth at about 18,000 miles an hour. The first, a small sphere, has been aloft since Oct. 4. The second, launched last Sunday, is an elongated vehicle weighing 1,120 pounds. It is carrying a dog.

IGNORE DOG

A communique last night from Tass, the Soviet news agency, said Sputnik II was about to complete its 82nd circuit of the earth, covering more than 2,359,800 miles.

★ ★ ★

For the second consecutive night the Tass communique from Moscow made no mention of the satellite's dog passenger, Laika. There have been reports the Russians might try to parachute the dog to earth, but there was no sign such an attempt had been made.

Huge Armada Presses Search for Survivors

Stratocruiser 14 Hours Late on San Francisco to Hawaii Flight

HONOLULU (INS) — A massive air and sea search armada fanned out over the mid-Pacific with the break of day today in hopes of finding survivors of a Pan American World Airways Stratocruiser that disappeared with 44 persons late yesterday on a San Francisco to Hawaii flight.

As dawn came over the search area, the big four-engine, double-deck Boeing airliner had already been overdue more than 10 hours. The plane had not been heard from in more than 14 hours, when it radioed a routine position report approximately midway in its flight from the mainland.

Twelve search planes were already in the air, scouring hundreds of square miles of rolling Pacific along the track the plane may have followed toward Hawaii after radioing its last report.

Another eight planes were heading out to be in the search area by daybreak.

The area covered the length of the distance the big airliner had yet to fly to Honolulu when it radioed its last position — 1,160 miles — and at least 50 miles to either side.

★ ★ ★

Search craft were ordered out immediately when the plane failed to make its scheduled Honolulu landing at 9:45 p.m.

High, Chilly Winds Drive First Snow Into Pontiac

Icy air masses swirling over the Great Lakes brought bone-chilling winds to the mid-west, and Pontiac's first real snowfall of the season last night and today.

The freezing blasts and snow caused slippery roads and traffic jams all over the county this morning.

Woodward Avenue, from Bloomfield Hills to Pontiac was very icy during the late morning, and many cars were stuck at Long Lake Road as they tried to climb the steep hill.

Other main area arteries, M59, Dixie highway and Telegraph were slippery in spots and at intersections.

The Telegraph - Orchard Lake overpass was the scene of one tieup last night as a huge gasoline truck went partially off the road. Reports of accidents were scant, but many cars slithered off the pavement throughout the northern part of Oakland County this morning.

The gales last night, which reached 65 miles an hour, blew out plate glass windows at several business places, including the Miracle Mile Shopping Center. Flying branches and falling traffic lights were reported around the state throughout the night.

The winds dropped the water level in the Detroit River by five feet, forcing freighters to drop anchor and wait out the storm.

Several groups of duck hunters were rescued from mud flats and islands, while one group on Stony Island, off Grosse Ile, was to be removed today.

Snow was reported from most parts of the state, with five inches recorded at Houghton and two at Traverse City. Roads in the Cheboygan area are reported almost impassable due to snow.

While the winds diminished this morning, they will continue with snow flurries today and tonight, the weatherman says.

Pledges Money to Missile Czar

Senator Chavez Says Congress Will Support All-Out Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Chavez (D-NM) said today Congress will provide all the money needed for missiles development if President Eisenhower gives Dr. James R. Killian "head-knocking authority" to speed an all-out program.

★ ★ ★

Chavez said his Senate Appropriations subcommittee, which handles defense funds will be eager to consider any spending proposals Killian may draft. Killian president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology is Eisenhower's newly-named special assistant in charge of pushing American efforts to achieve weapons superiority in this dawning space era.

★ ★ ★

"In a time of national crisis such as this, Congress is not going to think about the budget. You can't figure national defense on a budgetary basis," Chavez said in an interview.

★ ★ ★

"But unless Dr. Killian has some head-knocking authority to put first things first we're not going to be any better off than we have been in the past."

★ ★ ★

In Reno Nev., Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass) told a Young Democrats convention last night he was pleased at Killian's appointment but he asked:

★ ★ ★

"Will he (Killian) be able to get the money he needs knock together heads in the Defense Department end the complacency and the confusion that now grip the administration over this issue?"

New Hudson Man Killed Crossing Road

A New Hudson man was killed instantly when he was struck by a car and truck last night on U.S. 16 just east of Pontiac Trail in New Hudson, according to State Police at the Brighton Post.

Police said David S. Taylor, 74, of 56733 Grand River Ave., walked into the side of a westbound car as he was crossing the highway about 7:15 p.m. The car, driven by Stewart P. Warren, 57, of Detroit, was closely followed by a truck which ran over Taylor, said police.

Oakland County Deputy Coroner Dr. William J. Padelford, said Taylor suffered multiple skull fractures and a concussion. His body was taken to Phillips Funeral Home in South Lyon. The driver of the truck was Wayland Ries, 43, of 6070 Linden Rd., Fenton.

Poles Predict Return of Dog

Report Laika Coming Back to Russia From Sputnik II Today

LONDON (INS) — Warsaw Radio, quoting a Moscow dispatch from the Polish news agency, said today that the space dog Laika was expected to return to Soviet territory from Sputnik II.

The broadcast did not elaborate.

Scientists at Mullard Observatory in Cambridge, England, failed to receive signals this morning on 40 megacycles, which is one of the two wave lengths Sputnik II has used.

Due to the possibility of natural interference the British observers were unwilling to say flatly that the satellite had ceased transmitting.

Spirited 5 Days Brings 30 Pct. of Goal

$187,115 Pledged to UF

The Pontiac Area United Fund campaign is off to a flying start with better than 30 per cent of its $612,000 goal pledged in five days.

As of today, the drive has received $187,115, of which $115,000 was pledged by General Motors, according to Dr. Dana P. Whitmer, campaign chairman.

"General Motors has again set the theme for the Pontiac Area United Fund drive," stated Dr. Whitmer. "We are greatly honored and encouraged to receive the check for $115,000. It reaffirms the significant role this great corporation plays in our automotive city."

The gift takes in the Pontiac Motor Division, GMC Truck & Coach Division and the Fisher Body Division. It does not include employee donations.

S. E. Knudsen, general manager of Pontiac Motor Division and a member of the United Fund's Board of Trustees, presented the check to Dr. Whitmer.

"We consider our full-hearted support of the annual Pontiac Area United Fund drive a civic obligation to the greater Pontiac community," Knudsen said.

The three week drive, scheduled to wind up with a victory luncheon on Nov. 26, will collect funds for the support of the United Fund's 55 health, welfare, recreation, counseling and character building agencies through 1958.

The GM firm gift enabled the giant Industrial Division, responsible for $404,273 of the campaign goal, to stand at 28 per cent of its goal. The division, under the chairmanship of George Watson, handles on-the-job solicitations as well.

★ ★ ★

Percentage - wise the Commercial Division, headed by Carroll Osmun, is setting the pace for the three United Fund divisions with 40 per cent of its quota already turned in.

Junk City Plans in Waterford

Hertler Says Residents Would Not Approve Incorporation Now

Plans for the incorporation of Waterford Township have been definitely scrapped, according to chairman of the Study Committee on Incorporation, David Hertler.

Reason for discontinuing the project is that residents would probably not approve the vote at this time because of inevitable additional taxation, Hertler said.

For more than two years, the study group has been accumulating information on incorporation proceedings, the growing need for a larger government, and the possibility of fragmentation of the township if it is not incorporated.

Petitions have been circulated and signed in the township for the incorporation, however, Hertler said that there is not enough public interest due to lack of education on the issue to warrant a special election.

"There is no doubt that Waterford Township will eventually vote to incorporate due to the terrific residential increase," Hertler said.

"In the meantime," Hertler added, "the study group will continue to function in an advisatory capacity until the public is ready to accept incorporation."

Crop Profit Seen Despite Big Fine

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Jack A. Harris of Fresno, who paid the government a record penalty of $965,595.84 for the right to market his 1957 cotton crop, which exceeds government allotments, said tonight he expects to make money.

★ ★ ★

"A lot of people have tried to make it look like I was doing something against the law," said Harris, 'but before I ever planted this cotton at Gila Bend, Ariz., I checked with the Department of Agriculture in Washington.

"I was told that I could plant all the cotton I wanted to—as long as I paid a penalty of 18½ cents a pound on my excess."

In Washington, Agriculture Department officials said Harris paid the penalty on about 10,436 bales of cotton. Earlier this year, he collected $209,000 from the department for retiring 1,660 acres from production under the soil bank subsidy program.

Months ago Harris called crop controls ridiculous. Asked how he feels now, he replied:

"I sure do think it's ridiculous. If you can pay this kind of penalty and still make money I feel we don't need planning controls and price supports.

"The current price of cotton is 36 to 37 cents a pound. It costs me about 15 cents a pound to produce. Even after paying the 18½ cents penalty there's something left.

"I believe we need some kind of cotton support for domestic consumption but I don't feel we should hold an umbrella over the business in foreign countries. I think we shoud be able to compete on world markets without controls or guarantees.

★ ★ ★

"Some stories have made it look like I was trying to pull something illegal," Harris said. "I was trying to prove this country doesn't need a support program for cotton."

The Day in Birmingham

Pleas for Salt Trucks Follow First Wintry Blow

By ALICE MORGAN
Birmingham Correspondent

BIRMINGHAM —Full scale winter blew into the area early this morning bringing back three familiar refrains:

"Where is my hand sled, where is the snow shovel," and "where are the salt trucks?"

Police throughout the area reported many calls for city, county and state road crews to bring the salt trucks into action.

In Bloomfield Hills and in Bloomfield Township, traffic jams were reported on Woodward and Telegraph, owing to slippery roads.

Birmingham police said that by 8 a.m. many motorists had reported extremely slippery street conditions.

Birmingham - Bloomfield Hills Zonta Club is planning two meetings on civil defense. The first will be next Tuesday at the Community House, with dinner being served at 6 p.m.

This meeting is under the direction of Mrs. John Warren, coordinator of Emergency Welfare Service for Oakland County.

Plans will be completed at this time for the Nov. 19 session, which will see the complete adoption of a civil defense program.

Hazel Welsh, president said the board meeting would be held at 5:30. Dinner reservations must be made by noon Monday, by calling MA 6-2565 or MA 6-3577.

The open house for Quarton School this year will be exclusively for fathers.

Sponsored by the PTA, the Wednesday night program will give fathers the opportunity to meet the school teachers and view classwork in progress.

Rounding out Quarton's observance of American Education Week, mothers are being invited to visit the homerooms of their children during school hours and observe actual classroom procedure.

Judge Arthur Moore will be the guest at the meeting of Altrusa Club of Greater Birmingham at the Community House Monday at 8:15 p.m.

Judge Moore will speak about the Camp Oakland Girls ranch, to be located on Lake Handsome. The camp will be operated as a year-round home for wayward girls and those from broken homes.

Currently, numerous womens' clubs in the area are raising funds for the establishment of the camp.

Contributions may be mailed to Treasurer Millard, 47 Amherst Ave., Pleasant Ridge.

Churches Plan Blood Collection

Pontiac Protestants to Sponsor Bank Monday at All Saints

The bank, under the leadership of the United Church Women of Pontiac, will be conducted from 2 to 8 p.m.

Mrs. A. H. Magnus, area bank chairman, reports this bank will be the only one conducted in Pontiac this month due to the cancellation of several other banks.

"We really are desperate for blood. We need 800 pints a month to meet our quota for Oakland County hospitals and unless this bank is successful, we will have to borrow blood from Detroit," she explained.

"We need a constant supply of fresh blood since whole blood is only kept 21 days," she added.

Since there will not be a community bank this month, donors may credit the blood they give Monday to any of the 55 Pontiac organizations which set up banks regularly.

In October, the bank supplied 938 pints to hospitals, which was over the expected 800-pint quota.

Airliner Missing With 44 Aboard

But the Coast Guard launched its full-scale search hours before that time.

Rear Adm. Stephen H. Evans, commandant of the 14th Coast Guard District, declared shortly before 2 a.m. that "time has run out" on the Pan American plane.

Adm. Evans said the Coast Guard was launching full-scale rescue operations immediately in view of having approximately 20 aircraft in the search area by daybreak.

Pan American officials at San Francisco International Airport, where the big plane took off at 11:30 a.m. yesterday, had estimated the plane had enough reserve fuel to keep it in the air until 3 a.m. today.

He said the planes would be searching a 50-mile belt on either side of the direct route the plane would have taken from the point where it last reported its position.

CARRYING 44

Aboard the Stratocruiser when it left San Francisco were 36 passengers bound for Hawaii and the Orient, and eight crew members.

The skipper, Capt. G. H. Brown of Palo Alto, Calif., gave no indication of trouble when he radioed his report to the Coast Guard cutter Minnetonka at weather station "November," approximately midway in the San Francisco to Honolulu flight.

The Minnetonka reported four-foot swells on the sea's surface, ceiling 5,000 feet and visibility seven miles.

ROUTINE REPORT

Capt. Brown radioed in his routine 5:04 p.m. report that he was 1,160 miles east of Honolulu.

The spot was not far from the place where another Pan American Stratocruiser ditched in the sea alongside the Coast Guard weather ship Ponchartrain on Oct. 16 of last year.

Settle Dispute at Willow Run

GM Transmission and UAW Come to Terms After 32-Day Strike

A dispute over local contract issues which had suspended production since Oct. 7 at the Detroit Transmission Division of General Motors was resolved last night with UAW Local 735.

Pending ratification of the settlement terms by union membership, the agreement reached by company and union negotiators will bring to an end the 32-day strike affecting some 6,000 hourly rated employes at the Willow Run plant.

O. William Habel, general manager of Detroit Transmission Division, said the production schedule followed prior to the strike will be resumed as "soon as possible."

"Special crews will be called in immediately following ratification to ready the plant so that the balance of the hourly rated employes working at the time of the strike may report on their regular shifts beginning Monday," Habel said.

Local 735 President Dave Mann announced that a ratification vote will be held at 9:30 a.m. Sunday in Local 900 auditorium, 29841 Van Born Rd., Inkster.

The dispute arose over provisions of the local seniority agreement, production standards and other non-economic issues.

The plant produces Hydramatic transmissions for Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Cadillac autos, some Chevrolet trucks, and GMC Truck and Coach Division.

The strike, which idled 6,000 hourly rated employes, threatened to cut off transmissions for some of GM's 1958 model cars and trucks.

Terms of the agreement between GM and the local were not announced.

tempt to bring the dog back to earth.

The last two official Soviet communiques on the Sctellite contained implications that Laika is dead or dying.

REACTIONS CONTINUING

Last night's communique omitted any mention of the dog. On Thursday night the official announcement distributed by the news agency Tass said only that telemetric measurements of the dog's reactions to space were continuing.

The last word from Moscow that the dog was doing well was a 12-hour-old report at 6 p.m. Friday (10 a.m. EST).

Moscow observers lean to two schools of thought on the dog.

One is inclined toward the conclusions of Prof. Kyril Stanyukovich, who declared in a recent radio interview that "for the first few days while the dog is still alive" the rotation of Sputnik II wouldn't have any ill-effects on the animal.

But Sputnik II has been in space for a week now.

The second school of thought believes that Soviet scientists will try to carry out the hope expressed by Stalin Prize-winner Prof. P. Isakov that by getting the dog back dead or alive science would be greatly benefited.

Isakov noted that by examining the dog's body, valuable data on the effects of cosmic rays and other space phenomena would be gained.

Union Soldier May Get Back Long-Lost Rifle

Pontiac's Civil War veteran who for decades has been keeping his eternal watch at N. Saginaw St. and Oakland Ave. may get his rifle back next week.

Stolen several years ago, the replica of a flint lock rifle he held may have been recovered in Waterford Township last night.

Officers Jack Hart and Merle Finkle spotted the rifle alongside Pontiac Lake road near Hospital road at 10 o'clock. They immediately thought of the missing Civil War gun and turned it over to Pontiac Police.

Hart described the imitation weapon as about 5 feet long and made of cast metal like hard tin. It seemed in good condition.

Capt. Joseph Koren of Pontiac said today that no attempt would be made to match it with the statue until Tuesday at the earliest since city offices are closed Monday.

"We want to check the records at City Hall to see who made the memorial and find out how the gun was fastened to the soldier," Capt. Koren said.

Friends Quote New Philosophy

Ingrid Lives for Children

By JOHN J. CASSERLY

ROME (INS)—"I am living for my children—all of them," is the new philosophy of life expressed by Ingrid Bergman.

Friends of the Swedish beauty who have visited her as she weathers the "great tragedy" of her separation from Italian director Roberto Rossellini quoted her philosophy today.

And her inclusion of the phrase "all of them" would mean her attractive 19-year-old daughter Jenny Ann Lindstrom by the husband she gave up for her love of the departed Rossellini. Ingrid has borne Rossellini a son and twin daughters.

Jenny Ann, a student at Colorado University, enjoyed a happy reunion with her mother in Europe last summer.

Friends say Ingrid has indicated for a long time she would like to have Jenny Ann come and live with her.

Those who have seen Ingrid in private say she could speak of nothing else but children.

"I'm thinking now only of that house in London for the children where they will be happiest," Ingrid was quoted as saying.

LEAVING FOR ENGLAND

Ingrid leaves for London on Sunday to make a new movie. Her son, Robertino, 7, and twin daughters, Isabella and Isotta, 5, will remain behind with relatives and join her later. She has given up the lease on her Rome apartment.

After seeing her, the visitors related:

Meanwhile, Rossellini, the one-time idol of Ingrid's heart, is proving himself a good man at scripting a mystery, as well as directing.

Reports yesterday said Rossellini and an unidentified woman were seen in Geneva, Switzerland. But intensive checks of hotels and other sources in the Swiss city failed to turn up any trace of the director.

★ ★ ★

Nor was there any indication of the whereabouts of sloe-eyed Indian script writer Sonali Das Gupta —Rossellini's rumored romantic interest behind his break-up with Ingrid.

SECRET HIDEAWAY

There was much speculation that Rossellini had gone to the hideaway where Sonali has secreted herself since arriving in Europe.

★ ★ ★

Rossellini left Rome after the separation agreement he and Ingrid made was approved in court two days ago. They cannot be divorced in Italy.

Ingrid was a convincing picture of happy woman last night when she emerged smiling from her apartment to go to the Presidential Palace for the ceremonies accepting the Golden David, Italy's Oscar, for her work in the award-winning movie "Anastasia."

She was embraced and her hand warmly shaken by actors and directors at Quirinale Palace when she arrived.

Earlier in the day she played hostess to a surprise visitor — Rossellini's first wife, Renata de Marchis.

Renata termed the meeting a "friendly visit" after she and her son, Robert, emerged from Ingrid's apartment.

McElroy Orders Army to Enter Into Moon Field

effort was welcomed last night by Dr. J. Allen Hynek, head of the satellite-tracking program for the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass.

Hynek said that as far as he knows there have been no recent basic changes in the U.S. satellite program. He said all U.S. launchings presumably will be from Cape Canaveral, Fla., the nation's missile test center.

Before McElroy's announcement, Dr. John P. Hagen, head of the Navy-directed Project Vanguard, said the American public will be informed within an hour or so of the time when a U.S. earth satellite is launched.

Hagen said there will be a "definite announcement," but he declined to say whether it would come before or after the launching.

Previously announced plans for Project Vanguard call for sending up small test spheres sometime next month, with a fully instrumented satellite due for launching in Marh.

The Pentagon announcement said the "decision to proceed with an additional program was made to provide a second means of putting into orbit" a satellite carrying scientific instruments.

The Defense Department statement also said all the Project Vanguard test firings to date have met or exceeded the predicted performance "and there is every reason to believe that Project Vanguard will meet the announced schedule. . ."

Last summer, the Navy sent a first stage rocket engine to Cape Canaveral for a flight test, but the first stage wasn't fired until Oct. 23.

McElroy did not set any time limit in ordering the Army to go forward with preparations to launch "a scientific satellite by use of a modified Jupiter-C test vehicle."

While this device bears the name of Jupiter it is only remotely related to the intermediate range ballistic missile which the Army has developed. Actually, the Jupiter-C vehicle uses an Army Redstone ballistic missile, a much smaller weapon than the Jupiter, as the primary power plant. To this are added two additional power stages — a cluster of solid fuel rockets, and a final stage made up of a small cluster of the same rockets.

The Defense Department's decision to bring the Army into the satellite program obviously was predicated on an amazing demonstration of Jupiter-C capabilities more than a year ago when one such device reached an altitude of about 600 miles and traveled 3,500 miles out in the ocean to the southeast of Florida.

Since then, some civilian scientists in the Jupiter project have been saying privately that, if given the go-ahead, they could have launched a satellite with little further preparation.

The unofficial word today was that the Army might be able to modify its half dozen Jupiter-C vehicles for satellite work in something less than six weeks. That would make them ready for use in the preliminary launching tests next month—in the event the Navy can't meet the time table.

There was no immediate official explanation of how the Army would set about modifying the Jupiter-C for the satellite launching job.

Several obvious methods were apparent, including:

1. Use of the method planned by the Navy—putting a satellite sphere in the nose of the last of the three rocket stages, then releasing it when the rocket reaches an altitude of between 200 and 300 miles and a speed of about 18,000 miles per hour.

2. Taking a leaf from a possible method used by the Russians in launching their Sputnik II — using the expended shell of the last rocket stage as a satellite. Into this shell could be mounted data-reporting instruments.

Know the Weather

By E. H. SIMS

Is there much difference in the length of daylight in various parts of the United States?

Yes. At various times of the year there is quite a difference. For example, at the Winter Solstice, which this year comes on December 21st, there will be more than an hour's difference in the length of daylight in Maine and Florida. Florida will see the sun more than an hour longer on that day.

Yet at the autumnal equinox, and the spring equinox, the hours of daylight are practically the same in the northern and southern states. As is the case in December, however, at the Winter Solstice, the hours of sunshine are quite different in the northern and southern areas in June — at the Summer Solstice.

Then the days in the north are longer.

DC3 Down in Connecticut

2 Injured in Plane Crash

GREENWICH, Conn. (INS)—The pilot and co-pilot were injured when a twin-engined DC3 airplane crashed in Greenwich. Four other occupants of the plane escaped unhurt.

The plane was caught up by a strong gust of wind while trying to land at the Westchester County, N. Y., Airport. It crashed into a potato field on property owned by Holland Enterprises inside the Greenwich city limits.

Then it leaped a brick wall, which sheared off one wing, and came to a halt in King street at Rye Lake road. The plane did not catch fire, but fire fighting equipment from Greenwich and suburban Glenville was rushed to the scene to prevent gasoline which spilled onto the road from bursting into flames.

The pilot and co-pilot were taken to a Greenwich hospital where their injuries were said to be not serious. The pilot was identified as George Lemderman, 41, the co-pilot as Robert E. McEntee, 35. Both live in Hackensack, N. J.

The plane was owned by RCA. It was en route from the midwest to its home airport of Teterboro, N. J. Because of severe rain and stiff winds, the plane was steered to the Westchester Airport.

Capt. Lemderman said he was coming in for a landing when his plane was caught by a "freak wind" and hurled to the ground. The airport was about a mile away. The scene of the accident was near the Connecticut - New York State line.

Studebaker-Packard Loses $12 Million

Russia Contributes New Word

'Sputnik' Anglicized

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Six weeks ago few Americans had heard the word Sputnik. Today it's on the way into the dictionaries, as one of the Russian language's rare contributions to English.

★ ★ ★

In Russian, Sputnik means satellite in an astronomical sense (thus, the moon is a Sputnik of the earth) as well as in the sense of an artificial satellite. But in English all Sputniks are artificial.

The Russian word Sputnik also means a traveling companion. The Russian prefix "S" means with. The word "put" (pronounced "poot") means road, way or path. The suffix "nik" is commonly used to make a noun from a general root—and give it a diminutive sense.

The Russian word "Laika" doesn't seem to have caught on a swell. This is the given name and the name of the breed of the dog put up in Sputnik II.

In a specific sense Laika refers to a breed of dog common in Russia and Siberia. In a more general sense Laika—derived from "lai," meaning bark—is approximately equivalent to the English "bow-wow" and can be applied to any dog.

Postpone Hearing on Consumers Plan

LANSING (AP)—The State Public Service Commission announced that a hearing on a proposal to lift all restrictions on the deliveries of natural gas by Consumers Power Co. had been adjourned until an indefinite date.

The hearing originally was scheduled for Nov. 25.

Chairman Otis M. Smith said Consumers asked for a dely in the hearing because the utility said it would be better able to present evidence to support the proposal to lift all restrictions at a later date.

Smith indicated that the hearing probably will be held home time in December or January.

For Not Meeting Problems Head-on

London Paper Raps Ike

LONDON (AP)—The conservative Daily Telegraph today accused President Eisenhower of "refusing to meet problems head 'on" and said he personally should take charge of the U.S. millile program.

★ ★ ★

Newspapers in West Germany, meanwhile, were sharply critical of Eisenhower's speech Thursday night on American scientific progress. They used some of the most critical words ever directed against the President by responsible German papers.

Although Brrtish, French and West German officials expressed Although British, French and West German officials expressed satisfaction with the speech, West European newspapers generally were divided between enthusiasm and criticism.

The Daily Telegraph said in an editorial entitled "Americans looking for leadership":

"The American people today are not suffering from a crisis in technology but a crisis in confidence.

"It is not their scientists but their politicans who have failed."

In Germany, the independent Frankfurter Rundschau said Eisenhower's speech was "unable to satisfy and calm either all Americans or all peace-minded Europeans."

Security for You

Man Pays SS Tax Regardless of Age

By RAY HENRY

From Mrs. H. L. of Pittsburgh, pa.: "My husband was 65 on Sept. 9 and he plans to continue to work for his company as long as he's able. Does he have to keep on paying the Social Security tax on the pay he receives?"

Yes. As long as he has earnings that are covered by the Social Security law, he must pay the tax regardless of his age and even though he may be receiving Social Security payments.

From a reader in Kalamazoo, Mich.: "I retired a year ago and started receiving $87.30 a month in Social Security. I have a daughter over 18 who is mentally retarded and was so before reaching 18. I would like to know whether she is also entitled to some amount of Social Security due to my Social Security record."

Your daughter is eligible for monthly payments if the child is found to be dependent on you, is so physically disabled that she can not do any substantial work and is unmarried.

From B.F.F. of Parsons, Kans.: "Would you please tell me how I can get my name spelled right on my Social Security card? I applied for a card in June of this year and, somehow, an 'a' in my name ended up as an 'o' on my card."

The nearest Social Security office will make the correction if you want to make it in person. Or you may write to the office and ask that it be made.

★ ★ ★

From Mrs. T. K. of Oklahoma City: "My husband, a World War I veteran, died in August. His death was not caused by his war service. Is it possible for me to collect a pension from the government as his widow?"

You're entitled to a widow's pension if:

1. Your income is less than $1,400 a year if you have no dependents or $2,700 a year if you have dependents, and

2. Your husband served at least 90 days in military service some of it during the World War I period, and

3. You were married to your husband for at least five years, or you were married before Dec. 14, 1944, or a child was born of the marriage.

★ ★ ★

From C.D.W of Knoxville, Tenn.: "I have been paying on Social Security since it began in 1937 and have earned the maximum amount of income during that time. I am now 46 years old. I am considering a job with the government which is covered by Civil Service retirement and not Social Security. What would happen to my Social Security if I take the job and don't pay any more into Social Security?"

★ ★ ★

For a man who is now 46 to be entitled to Social Security at 65, he must have worked under Social Security for at least 10 years. Thus, you'll be entitled to payments at 65. However, the size of Social Security payments are usually based on your average monthly earnings from Jan. 1, 1951, to the time you reach 65, including all but five of the years when you weren't working under Social Security. Thus, your payments will be smaller than if you continued to work under Social Security rather than starting to work for the goverment.

(Questions on Social Security problems may be addressed to "Social Security," in care of The Pontiac Press. Questions will be answered by mail from the Pontiac office of the Social Security Administration. There is no charge for this service.)

Sparks-Griffin Presents a NEW SERVICE . . .

For many years Sparks-Griffin Funeral Home and other leading funeral homes knew no better way of recording and supplying to a family a description of flowers sent to their loved ones than by a written description on the back of each floral card.

Today we have a new service, exclusive in this community. We take a photograph in color of each floral tribute and through marvelous special processing are able to deliver them to each family we serve within two or three days after the funeral (exclusive of Sunday).

Now, when a family is ready to re-live in memory the comforting beauty of the flowers that were sent as an expression of love, respect or sympathy, these fine color pictures . . . each in its own folder with the card from the original flowers attached . . . provide an everlasting consolation. No printed description can take the place of these perfect color photographs.

Important, too, is the fact that no additional charge is made for this service. It is simply proof that we are continually seeking ways to serve still better the families of this community. Families may continue to call Sparks-Griffin Funeral Home, comfortable in the knowledge that IT COSTS NO MORE TO HAVE THE BEST!

Area Lucky to Have Hannah

President JOHN A. HANNAH of Michigan State University made a profound and lasting impression on 500 top flight executives Thursday noon.

Oakland and Macomb counties are tremendousiy fortunate to have a brilliant, energetic and capable individual at the top of all operations for the MSU branch here. Along with Vice Presidents D. B. VARNER and and THOMAS HAMILTON, we possess an educational and administrative trio that stands second to none in the nation.

★ ★ ★

First of all, we were blessed with rare good fortune when the Alfred G. Wilsons made their ten million dollar gift to MSU for a branch in this area. And then, our good luck piled higher when we found the direction rested in such efficacious hands.

★ ★ ★

Dr. JOHN A. HANNAH is a national education figure. He compiled an outstanding record as Assistant Secretary of Defense during the 18 months that MSU loaned him to the United States Government. Within the past 48 hours President EISENHOWER has named him to a six man Civil Rights Commission and appointed him Vice Chairman.

★ ★ ★

This area will watch its new University develop under the supervision of one of the world's top administrators and educators. In his talk here Thursday, Dr. Hannah outlined the tremendous possibilities ahead for the cultural, educational and aesthetic advancement of Oakland and Macomb Counties. The reception accorded him by his listeners was tremendous.

I look with absolute disfavor upon the decision of the American Cancer Society to "go it alone" by 1960.

From subsequent news stories, it develops that the Cancer societies in Southeastern Michigan will continue to stay in Community Chests where they are now. We applaud them vigorously for this decision.

Several years ago, Pontiac pioneered the idea of a United Fund with all agencies in one package. It saves the mounting wear and tear on nervous systems and results in much better campaigns and much more spirited work.

Today there are more than half a hundred entities dividing the money you give the United Fund.

Do you prefer a drive a week?

That's what Cancer suggests.

And if it doesn't it suggests one drive for 55 agencies AND THEN ONE MORE FOR CANCER.

THE PRESS will have no part of any attempt to wreck the United Fund. We mentioned this stand on two of the biggest and most liberal downtown organizations (The Community National Bank and Sears Roebuck) and each of them stated it would adopt precisely the same policy.

★ ★ ★

Red Cross once decided to "go it alone" in Pontiac. Their budget that year was $37,000 and the United Fund raised it 100 per cent. But national Red Cross officers declared they would stage an independent campaign.

Several months later they did. THEY RAISED $3,900.

Then they entered the chest and accepted the $37,000 (minus the $3,900 they had just wrangled together.)

The Amercian Cancer Society said they were "going it alone" in other communities "as they felt they'd get more." They might, in some places. If 55 agencies have one drive and Cancer has the only other one, they might actually profit until the public caught on.

How would the American Cancer Society come out if all 55 agencies had separate drives?

In deciding to stay in the Chest, the branches in Southeastern Michigan have decided wisely and well.

And in Conclusion . . . . . .

Jottings from the well thumbed notebook of your peripatetic reporter: Horrors! ! ! Last week we said MARTY RUMMEL had played a lot of tackle for SMU. Fie on someone. The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

Rembrandt was one of the most compassionate of painters. His portraits speak from their spiritual depth. Through frailty and strength, prosperity, poverty and tragedy, his art grew greater each year until his death. One of his earliest portraits is of his mother reading a Bible, from which she taught Rembrandt. Stories of the Bible were a theme for many of his masterpieces. His religious art reached the common man through the prints of his etchings, and when he died in poverty, the notary testified that Rembrandt's only possessions were, ". . . his clothing, one Bible, and the painting-apparatus."

Churches Begin Financial Drives

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

This second Sunday in November has in recent years become the day on which most American Protestant churches begin their annual campaign for the next year's financial support.

By general agreement among all the various organizations that rely on voluntary contributions to meet their expenses, November has been set apart as belonging exclusively to the churches. Although some local communities find that the agreement is not always strictly kept, the month is for the most part the churches' money-raising time.

The National Council of Churches has, since 1934, designated this day as Stewardship Day. The point of the day is to put the emphasis in the right place. Man's distribution of his money, says the Council, is a matter in which he is responsible to God. It is a matter of stewardship, for everything in the world, including the possessions man casually calls his own, actually belongs to God, and each man is God's steward in the handling of the portion assigned to his care.

★ ★ ★

The theme for today, and for the month's campaigns, is "To Give Is to Live," by which the Council seeks to remind each person he can find fullness of living only as he devotes to creative uses the material things God has placed in his hands.

MARTINMAS

More legends are told about St. Martin than about almost any other saint in the Christian Calendar. This is particularly remarkable when one reflects that Martin was one of the very early saints (fourth century) and those stories have survived for more than 1,500 years.

The best known of the legends is the one about his having cut his cloak in halves to divide it with a naked, shivering beggar. The beggar turned out to be Lord Jesus, who appeared to Martin in a dream that night to thank him. The incident led to Martin's immediate baptism and the beginning of a long career of service to his Lord.

Another legend has an element of humor in it. St. Martin, by this time Bishop of Tours (in France), was making a pilgrimage to Rome — on foot, of course, as befitted so humble a man. Satan showed up along the road and began to taunt him, saying a bishop should not be walking, that it was not consistent with his high position.

This went on until Martin had had about as much as he thought he ought to take, at which point he reached out and touched the Devil and changed him into a mule. He then mounted the mule and rode him the rest of the way to Rome.

Martin, when he became a priest, introduced a new note into the strategy of Christianity. Up to his time, the new faith was spreading all right, but only along the main roads, which meant its growth was largely in the cities. No missionary had ventured into the backwoods and rural sections, and consequently the people in those districts were still pagan and unsaved.

Woman Has Secret Yen to Become a Midwife

"I am 37 and have 7 children, two of which I delivered myself. Always had a secret ambition to become a midwife. Am I too old to start now? What schools teach midwifery? (Mrs. M.K.)"

★ ★ ★

"Twenty-five years ago, we dressed our children in socks and summer underwear the year around and let them go bareheaded or without extra clothing whenever they wished. We were bitterly censured by older people, but our children rarely had colds except when exposed to someone with an infection and they are all very healthy adults now . . . (Mrs. M.G.M.)"

DR. BRADY

Answer—Natch. Your children were lucky. I hope they'll give their children as good a break as they themselves received.

"Just one point in regard to natural childbirth and the like. What does one do in the third stage of labor if the patient begins to hemorrhage? (——,) M.D.)"

Answer — Same as one does for such bleeding in any case.

"Please send your booklet Preparing for Maternity, for which 35c and stamped, self-addressed envelope inclosed. I read Dr. Read's Childbirth Without Fear before my last child was born, and it helped me a lot . . . (Mrs. A.F.G.)"

Answer — Every prospective mother should read it — the author is Dr. Grantly Dick Read, the publisher Harper and Brothers, the price $2.75 at any bookstore, or borrow it at public library.

"Are bone meal tablets and kelp tablets as good as calcium and iodine tablets? (J.S.)"

Answer—Ground bone supplies calcium and dried kelp supplies iodine, so it would be a matter of convenience, taste and cost. I know of no advantage of the refined over the crude or vice versa.

"I don't suppose you would approve of taking —— to reduce. (C.W.R.)"

Answer — I wouldn't. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet How to Lose Weight. If you want also the booklet Rule for Reducing, inclose 35c in addition.

★ ★ ★

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Has Suggestion for Buses, Merchants to Get Business

It seems to me downtown merchants and City Bus Lines are missing an opportunity to get some of the business that's going to shopping centers. Merchants offer free parking for people shopping in their stores. Maybe a free bus ride home or a ticket negotiable for bus transportation, given with each purchase, would appeal to the public. It certainly would be worth a try. N. J. B.

Safety Group Tells of Its Purposes

While Mr. Shunck talks of how many new schools Waterford must build, no mention is made of safe facilities for our children to get to these schools. Our school board should see to the safety of our children as well as build schools.

We, as an independent safety group, have found no shortage of school buses, but of school board members who know how they are being operated. With efficient use of our buses, we're sure every child in the township who needs transportation could have it. We know buses are expensive and we don't have unlimited capital, but waste is a sickness and our school board has been exposed to this germ. We can afford buses, but we can't afford inefficient operation of them.

Our group isn't connected with any safety committees appointed by Mr. Shunck or the board. The safety we ask for our children is bus transportation until safe walking facilities are provided, and not in the form of gravel paths through woods and swamps. With a few common sense changes in operation of our buses, children could be riding to school instead of walking on highways of death.

How long is the government going to keep telling people they're seeing things when they report various flying objects?

While few people really believe little green men have emerged from flying saucers, there undoubtedly are strange forms of aircraft being sighted. If one would just stop and think, he would realize that our air force and our scientists are working on many projects we don't know about, and all aircraft must be tested before it can be used. For reasons of security, the government isn't going to release information about such things.

The fact that most of the sightings have occurred near our experimental testing grounds leaves little doubt that these strange objects are merely new types of aircraft that our scientists are experimenting with. It's even possible that some of these might be in the shape of saucers. So why worry about invasion from other planets? But I do think the government should admit that experimentation is going on and stop all this cloak and dagger stuff.

Waitress Wonders Where Money Is

We were told we would have a meeting before our new contract was drawn up, but that was three weeks ago and we haven't heard about a meeting since. It's about time we waitresses found out where our money is going. It's a fact we aren't getting anything out of it. We do know it isn't going to charity.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Crane Salutes Outdoor Editors

Chuck has given me some ideas that I hadn't thought about before, so I presume you readers will likewise enjoy them. It is high time we spoke up about the great defenders of America, of which the newspaper is tops. Thus, contrary to the usual modesty of editors, I am exposing some of their virtues so you can better appreciate them.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I always read your column and like your slant when you call the newspaper the 'University in Print.'

DR. CRANE

"So I wonder if you couldn't remind readers of still another helpful service that newspapers render via the Outdoor Editor.

"He is not to be confused with the sports editor, who deals primarily with professional and amateur athletics.

"The outdoor editor encourages nature Study, the Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls, conservation clubs, etc.

"He stresses summer camps and the proper handling of guns and fishing tackle. He stresses principles of good sportsmanship as they pertain to the kind treatment of animals.

"Actually, the outdoor editors of America write for the greatest assortment of sportsmen in our land, for fishing and hunting far overshadow all other sports.

"We also stress the conservation of our national resources, such as land and forests, lakes and streams. We help prevent the killing of fish by contamination of streams.

"So how about giving us a 'plug' before the millions of readers of your column from coast to coast?"

OUTDOOR EDITORS

Well, Chuck, I am happy to salute you and all your fellow faculty members on our great "University in Print," namely, the daily newspaper.

In fact, I had hardly realized all the splendid work which you perform, so I am personally indebted to you for giving us those facts.

And I know millions of readers will be more appreciative of your efforts to conserve the wildlife and natural resources of this great America.

Newspapermen are noted for their modesty so the usual editor leans over backwards to keep himself from being named in the columns of his own paper.

Which is all the more reason why an outside columnist should go to bat for the educators who comprise the faculty of this great "University in Print."

SPEAK UP

"If you want to be seen, stand up," runs an old story.

"If you wish to be heard, speak up.

"But if you wish to be appreciated, shut up:"

Alas, that is not always good advice. We are belatedly realizing that our people need to be told in every new generation about the great virtues of our "free enterprise" system.

And editors, too, have modestly "shut up" about their own tremendous educational contributions to human society.

So the average citizen fails to realize that in the 5 cent to 7 cent

And the newspaper reporters help the police ferret out crime and dig up hidden culprits.

They also place the spotlight on local corruption in government and misappropriation of funds.

Actually, the greatest protection of our American heritage of freedom is not our military forces, great though they be, but it is our press.

As a lifelong university teacher, I now see that the newspaper is the greatest educational force we possess.

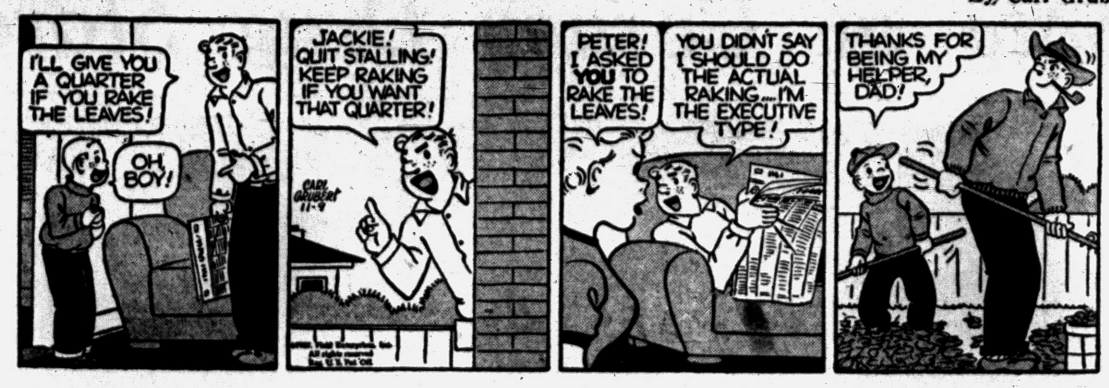

That's why I am glad to salute all my fellow "faculty" members who help contribute to this influential "University in Print," the newspaper.

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 3c stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

Won't Dismiss Suit for Libel

Judge Rules Officials Can Be Sued Just Like Anyone Else

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government official who makes defamatory statements for public distribution can be sued for libel just like anyone else, Federal District Judge Alexander Holtzoff says.

★ ★ ★

Holtzoff ruled yesterday that statements to the public by a government official may be desirable, but that this function is not conferred upon him by law.

★ ★ ★

The judge made the ruling in refusing to throw out one count of a libel suit brought by columnist Drew Pearson against Loyd Wright, former chairman of a presidential commission on government security.

★ ★ ★

Pearson contends Wright libeled him in a letter to Rep. Moss (D-Calif), and in a July 1 press release. Pearson asked damages of $176,000 on each of the two counts.

★ ★ ★

Holtzoff dismissed the count relating to the letter to Moss, who is chairman of a House subcommittee on freedom of information. The judge said Wright had the right and duty to respond to Moss' request for information.

20 Oakland Men Taken by Navy During October

The Pontiac naval recruiting substation has announced that a total of 20 Oakland County men were accepted for enlistment, and another for reenlistment, during the month of October.

★ ★ ★

The only Pontiac resident enlisting last month was Jerry D. Lawson of 26 Cross St. Those from nearby areas were James B. Morgan and Ronald J. Frizzle, both of Pontiac Township; Larry R. Thompson, James B. Hall and Harry L. Stickler, all of Waterford Township, and Michael J. O'Connell of West Bloomfield Township.

Other county enlistees were Ronald L. Castor and Harold E. Williams, both of Rochester; David L. Kay of Walled Lake; John E. Seaquist of Holly; Alan B. Walton of Clarkston; Richard L. Barbour of Farmington and Paul R. Stilwell Jr. of Milford.

Rounding out the list were Walter M. Nowosad and Fred J. Hines, both of Royal Oak; Jerome C. Kerr of Hazel Park; Marlowe D. Mackie of Clawson; Roy N. Lyon of Ferndale and Lyle S. Blank of Troy.

Judge's Chair Squeaks, Jury Solves Problem

ATLANTA (AP) — A woman juror gave Judge A. L. Henson a bottle of oil in Fulton Civil Court yesterday. The judge said Mrs. Ivan Allen Jr. explained it was for the judge's chair.

"It's squeaking is driving the jury crazy," the judge said he was told.

Wine Odor Intoxicating

TOKYO (INS) — A Japanese truck driver involved in an accident admitted to the judge that he had been drunk, but explained he had an alibi. The driver told the judge that his truck was loaded with barrels of rice wine and the wine gave off some very potent fumes.

Openings for Officers in Army Reserve

Lt. Col. Lloyd A. Gabler, commander of the 703d Tank Battalion, announced today that Fifth Army Headquarters has authorized the addition of several commissioned and non-commissioned officers to the local Army Reserve unit.

This comes after a freeze on officer assignments for over a year.

Openings for first and second lieutenants in Headquarters Staff, Medical Detachment, and A, B, C, and D Companies. Also available are noncommissioned officer vacancies for enlisted men with prior service.

"Because of age limits and the proficiency standards required of Reserve officers today, younger officers find many opportunities for promotion and interesting assignments," said Col. Gabler.

Men interested in further information about the Army Reserve program may visit the Reserve Training Center at 37 West Lawrence street from 8 a.m. to 5

Junior Editors Quiz on THE BIBLE

QUESTION: What was manna?

ANSWER: If you read the 16th chapter of Exodus you will learn how the Israelites, wandering in the desert while fleeing from Egypt, were kept from starving by manna, or bread, that fell from heaven and lay on the ground each morning like hoarfrost.

The daily portion for each person was about a quart and a half. "The taste of it was like wafers made with honey," says the Bible.

Some present day writers think that there is a natural explanation for all this. In the desert, they relate, grows a certain shrub from which a sugary sap falls to the ground when the shrub has been punctured by an insect. They think this was the manna of the Bible.

FOR YOU TO DO: For your Bible collection, color this picture and paste it in your scrapbook, or mount it on cardboard and cut out around the heavy outline. Fold on the dotted line (forward on the center and back on the end tabs) and stand it up.

Reflections

VETERAN'S DAY

J. L. VOORHEES

November 11th is a time of celebration for all of us. It was the end of a "war to end all wars." Many centuries before this quotation there was one, "And there shall be wars and rumors of wars." On this day we stand with bowed head with peace mercifully pillowing our heart and head, hoping, praying, that power, greed and selfishness will be erased from mankind. If, or when that time comes, November 11th, 1918, will have abiding significance.

M. E. SIPLE

Veterans of all wars agree with Benjamin Franklin when he said: "Let us beware of being lulled into a dangerous security—", with General Sherman when he declared: "War is an ugly, bitter business—." He concluded, "Glory does not lie in the wake of bloodshed and gory warfare." However much we may desire peace. Schiller sums it up very nicely: "The pious may not live in peace, if it does not please his wicked neighbor."

Veterans, we salute you.

Ask Nuclear Reactor for Tokyo Hospital

Dr. Willard G. Pollard, executive director of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, who is also an ordained Protestant Episcopal clergyman, proposed to the House of Bishops at its annual meeting that a nuclear reactor be given St. Paul's University and St. Luke's Hospital in Tokyo, Episcopal founded institutions, for study of the peaceful uses of the atom.

Such a gift, declared Dr. Pollard, could have enormous impact in demonstrating to the Japanese people that the church "can see ways in which God's creation can be sanctified to good purposes."

The reactor would cost $400,000 to build.

Confident Living

Give Up Conflicts, Hates, Fears, Sins for Tranquility

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

I have just heard that thirty million prescriptions for what are known as tranquilizing drugs were written in this country during the past twelve months. This doesn't mean that only thirty million people are taking tranquilizers; the number is probably far greater, because people who have prescriptions pass around their pills to their family, relatives and friends quite freely. One New York executive keeps an apothecary jar of them on his desk and offers a supply to all comers!

DR. PEALE

This indiscriminate use of drugs is supposed to relieve nervous tension. Perhaps it does. I don't know; I've never tried any of them. But I do know that there is considerable medical question about their effects.

For example, a recent report by Dr. S. D. Porteus, a famous psychologist and originator of the "Porteus Maze Test," frequently used in testing intellectual ability, points out that, in a study of patients under the influence of tranquilizers, although they showed a marked improvement in their ability to get along with other people, their intellectual abilities were markedly impaired.

PILLS FOR EVERYTHING

But the medical journals continue to report new drug discoveries. You can get pills to calm you down, pills to put you to sleep, pills to wake you up, pills to make you happy. You can even get pills that will keep you awake for a fixed period of time and then put you to sleep or vice versa. These are the signs of what might be called "the tranquilizer age."

Now, I do not mean to minimize the medical importance of these new drugs in helping people who are seriously ill, physically or mentally. But, for the rest of us, they offer only a temporary respite and no solution.

Drugs come and go, almost like women's fashions — but there are some things that are eternal. And knowing how to find and use them is the secret of knowing how to live in a tranquilizer age or in any age.

REAL PEACE NOT FOR SALE

So, if you and I want deep inner peace—real tranquility—we can get it, but we can't get it as easily as we can get a prescription filled at the corner drugstore. You don't have to have lived very long to have learned that nothing worthwhile comes easily.

"You can't get an education by merely paying your tuition — you have to work at it. You can't be a musician by buying a piano—you have to practice. But, when you do get it, you've got something worth having.

The way to keep inner peace in any age is the way of religion — faith and prayer and good works. It is giving up your conflicts, your hates, your fears, your sins, and turning your heart to God. If you can do this—and it isn't easy because it takes time and real effort—you can have what the Bible promises: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

★ ★ ★

Turn your heart to God and you can live without pills in this tranquilizer age.

Calls Flood Station on Church Radio Cut

Announcing that the weekly radio service of the First Church of the Nazarene, Wichita, Kan., was to be cut off the air after eight years, the pastor quoted the station manager as saying that all religious programming was to be eliminated because the city was "demanding a new concept in radio and that concept does not include religion."

★ ★ ★

"I cannot believe that our city has sunk so low that it doesn't want God or religion," the minister said in his broadcast.

The station was swamped with telephone calls, wires and letters of protest. The pastor was informed that his program would be continued.

Group to Study Religious Films

Commission Wants to Know Why They Are So Popular

What makes people stand in line for hours to see "The Ten Commandments" and "A Man Called Peter"? Why do songs like "Somebody Up There Likes Me" and "I Believe" make the "top ten" on the nation's juke boxes?

During the coming year a group of psychologists, theologians and artists in each of the five popular arts will attempt to find the answers.

Announcement of the first study of religion and the popular arts was made last week by Th Rev. Marvin P. Halverson, executive director of the Department of Worship and the Arts of the National Council of Churches, at its three-day annual meeting in New York.

"We want to find out to what extent our twentieth-century popular arts are genuine American art forms," he said, "and what makes them popular."

"People usually think of the Negro spiritual as our only real folk art with religious inspiration," Mr. Halverson pointed out.

"It is important to know what the fundamental religious values of people are today and if the current "popular" songs debase them or not." Other fields to be studied will be comics, movies, "soap operas" on radio and TV, and advertising art.

Church Youths Ask Emphasis in Social Problems

Helmar "Butch" Nielsen, is the new national chairman of the commission on Christian outreach of the United Christian Youth Movement.

At Estes Park, Colo., 170 delegates from 10 million young people in 27 denominations held United Christian Youth Movement meetings. Special emphasis was given to the areas of sex education, Christian citizenship and international relations.

Because of a shift toward younger dating and marriages and because it was felt that the church has neglected this vital aspect of life, the delegates called for greater Christian guidance in the field of sex education.

They believed the churches and denominations should provide more helpful study materials and training courses, and should lead in a critical but constructive evaluation of movies, TV shows and popular songs from the sex angle.

They said that pastors and seminary students should be given more adequate preparation to provide such guidance and urged youth participation in the national consultation on sex education, to be held next February.

Through many tribulations, we must enter into the kingdom of God.

35 Baptist Students Plan Tour in Europe

From mid-June to late July, 1958, a group limited to 35 Baptist college students will take a study tour to Europe.

They will spend three days in Oxford, England, receiving orientation and will then study the university, political and church scene on the continent.

Special emphasis will be placed on the student Christian movements visiting Baptist students and church leaders in Europe and visiting headquarters of the World's Student Christian Federation in Geneva, Switzerland. Mike Battsek will lead the tour in Europe.

Costs for the trip will be approximately $900 from New York. The group will fly round-trip to England. It will tour Europe largely by train and will stay in university communities.

New Spiritual Leader Installed

Rabbi N. Hershfield to Serve Congregation of Temple Beth Jacob

By MAX E. SIMON

Before the Holy Ark in the main sanctuary of Temple Beth Jacob, Rabbi Nathan Hershfield and Dr. Irving E. Gordon, president of the congregation, clasped hands last night to symbolize the union existing between the new spiritual leader of the temple and the congregants.

★ ★ ★

It was the most solemn moment of the temple sabbath eve service which saw the installation of Rabbi Hershfield as successor to Rabbi Sanford E. Saperstein.

Following worship and Torah services, Dr. Albert G. Minda, rabbi of Temple Israel, Minneapolis, Minn., delivered the installation address.

Dr. Minda, who has served his Minneapolis congregation for 35 years, told the congregants that something similar to a "marriage covenant" now existed between the temple worshippers and the rabbi, "a spiritual bond before the eyes of God."

He urged both the rabbi and the congregants to always remembers their commitment and responsibilities to the institution of the synagogue, "an institution which has survived for thousands of years despite the efforts of tyrants throughout the ages to wipe it out."

Dr. Hershfield, formally assuming his new office, told the congregation that Jews in America should strive to rebuild and strengthen their way of life. "The theme of 'sacrifice' has long been dominant in Jewish history," Rabbi Hershfield declared.

★ ★ ★

"That theme should be changed to one of redemption and construction. It is a wonderful task, and a joyous one to look forward to."

Cantor Bert Allen of Temple Beth El, South Bend, Ind., chanted the service for the occasion.

At the installation service, a letter was read from Pontiac Mayor William Donaldson bringing greetings from civic leaders.

The Rev. Duncan D. McColl spoke on behalf of the Pontiac Ministerial Association, and Dr. Leon Fram, the state's senior rabbi, extended greetings for the Michigan Association of Reform Rabbis.

Participating in the worship service were Mrs. Joseph J. Nosanchuck, sisterhood president; Dr. Maurice Thome, brotherhood president; Mrs. Kenneth Hoard, young marrieds president; and Geoffrey Siegal, youth group president.

A reception in honor of Rabbi and Mrs. Hershfield was held after the service in the social hall.

Rabbi Hershfield was ordained by the Hebrew Union Congregation of Cincinnati in 1947 and awarded the degree of Master of Hebrew Letters.

For the past six years, he has served congregations in Charlotte and Gastonia, N. C.

During this time, he served on the board of the American Red Cross, was a member of Rotary Club and participated in all interfaith and community endeavors.

Baptists Bring Far East Heads to U.S. for Study

The increasing collaboration of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies and the indigenous Christian leaders of overseas fields is well illustrated by an important series of consultations now under way.

All ten of the overseas mission secretaries and 13 national Baptists (four of them women) from various mission fields have been brought to the United States for two months of planning concerned primarily with the programs and policies of overseas administration.

The crowded schedule of activities (Sept. 25 to Nov. 22) includes appropriate receptions, tours of denominational and interdenominational offices, many days of general and area conferences.

Also included are two weeks of workshop sessions at Green Lake, participation in the November meetings of the Boards at Green Lake, and a limited number of church visitations and speaking engagements.

The areas represented are Burma, Thailand, Japan, Hong Kong, the Philippines, India (Assam, South India, and Bengal-Orissa), Belgian Congo, and Europe.

And if I should distribute all my goods to feed the poor, and if I should deliver my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.

I am the vine; you the branches: He that abideth in me and I in him, the same beareth much fruit; for without Me you can do nothing.

Says Automation Need Not Be Feared

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (INS)—Pope Pius XII said this week that mankind has nothing to fear from automation, provided the industrial technique is used to develop man's "intellectual and spiritual life."

★ ★ ★

However, the pontiff warned, "If man succumbs to the temptation of the always-easier life and, still greater, the pleasures of the senses," then he will derive a new slavery and certain moral decadence."

The pope addressed industrial representatives of the organization for European economic cooperation. He praised the OEEC as the forerunner of European unity.

Bible Translated Again

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A new English translation of the Bible, taken from the ancient eastern Peshitta which renders the scriptures in Christ's native Aramaic, is being published by the A. J. Holman Co. here. The version, the result of 30 years work by Syrian scholar Dr. George Lamsa, has been hailed by several church leaders as a major contribution.

The film, "Red River of Life" will be shown at noon Tuesday in the Elks Temple at the Christian Men's Club regular luncheon meeting.

CROP Trucks Start '57 Drive

Farm Families Unite to Provide Grains for World's Needy People

The big trucks with their banners proclaiming "Another Load of Corn for CROP" have started rolling as the 1957 Christian Rural Overseas Program drive gets into high gear in the nation's vast farmlands.

Through CROP, farmers and other church families unite each year in providing grains and other relief products for the world's needy.

"When the 1957 returns are all in," declared Elvin Frantz, Illinois State CROP director, "it is anticipated that cash and commodities contributed will represent a value of $175,000." He emphasized that most of the food products collected are not now surpluses so "CROP steps in where the churches' Share Our Surplus program does not operate."

Mr. Frantz also announced that CROP Corn Cleaning Day has been set for November 16. On this day, he said, Illinois farmers with corn still on the ground open their fields to young people from local churches, who have a real "field day" gleaning for CROP.

Rev. John Nolin, Iowa state CROP director, also announced that the state's goal for 1957 is 125,000 bushels of corn—in kind or cash equivalent.

CROP non-surplus foods are distributed through Church World Service centers in 26 countries overseas where need is the only basis of determining who shall receive it.

CROP is a program of Church World Service, the relief and rehabilitation agency of the National Council of Churches.

Switzerland Stars in Aiding Refugees

Responding to a United Nations appeal on behalf of Hungarian refugees in Austria and Yugoslavia, the Swiss Government sent a check for Swiss Francs 4,550,000 ($1,063,084).

Earlier in the year Switzerland made over $18½ million available to assist the freedom-seeking Hungarians.

Swiss annual contributions to UNREF are also generous. Switzerland leads all other countries in the admission of Hungarian refugees according to population ratio.

It has welcomed 10,869, which is a ratio of 216.2 refugees per each 100,000 of its national population of 5,023,000.

Jews Pray for Calm

NEW YORK (AP) — Th Synagogue Council of America, representing all three branches of American Judaism, has called on the 4,000 Jewish congregations in this country to set aside special periods of prayer for "brotherly reconciliation" in the Little Rock, Ark., school integration conflict.

Indian Reservation Youth Learn Christian Kindness

Christian friendliness took a new turn this summer when 60 little Indians from California reservations were invited to spend some weeks in the homes of American Baptists of the Oakland area.

★ ★ ★

The experience was like a visit to a foreign land for most of the moppets. Despite the strangeness and excitement of each day's adventures, the children quickly discovered that they were among friends, sharing a rich fellowship of Christian love and faith.

The same spirit that moves American Baptists in rural New York to welcome city children into their homes during the summer was at work in the Eastbay experiment.

From San Pablo to Centerville, 50 Baptist families engaged in the program of sharing with Indian boys and girls, ages 8 to 14, from the Round Valley and the Fayetteville reservations, north of Ukiah.

Most of them had never been off reservation. One day they would have to make their way in the big outside world. This was their first glimpse of the wonders — and the hazards — of city life — and they had a ball!

The program grew out of the efforts of Mrs. Enid Hilton, a Mendocino County social worker, who enlisted the help of the American Friends Service Committee for the Westbay area and the Northern California Baptist Convention for the Eastbay area.

Mrs. Jesse H. Parker, formerly a Christian Friendliness missionary, directs the International-Interracial Fellowship Commission of the Convention, which enlisted the cooperation of American Baptist homes in the program of hospitality.

Assemblies of God, 10th Ranking Denomination

Statistics released in the 1958 Yearbook of American Churches indicate the Assemblies of God is the 10th ranking denomination in Sunday School enrollment in the United States.

★ ★ ★

The revised church ranks also placed the denomination eighth in number of ministers, ninth in church, 28th in church membership, seventh in Sunday School workers and teachers, and eighth in number of Sunday Schools.

Included in the national release of statistics was The First Assembly of God, located at 210 North Perry St., local congregation of the denomination.

According to the Rev. Wesley C. Wibley, local pastor, the church has a current Sunday School enrollment of 500.

The denomination has averaged opening one church a day for the past 6 years.

Churches of the Assemblies of God number 7,929 in the U.S. and some 8,747 abroad. Membership of the American Assemblies of God is approximately 471,115.

Although the number of churches placed the denomination ninth, membership wise it is 28th. However, many of the churches have no roll and others place little emphasis on membership, the Rev. Wibley stated.

The Sunday School enrollment of the Assemblies of God is more representative of the size of the denomination, the Rev. Wibley indicated. As of 1956 Sunday Schools had 878,080 members and 88,296 workers and teachers. A drive is underway to boost enrollment to one million by 1960.

★ ★ ★

The Proxy Murder

By ERLE STANLEY GARDNER

Copyright 1957

THE STORY SO FAR: Jerry Conway is alarmed by an advertising campaign Gifford Farrell, a discharged employe, is conducting to obtain proxies and oust Conway at a stockholders' meeting. In a mysterious telephone call, a woman calling herself Rosalind offers to supply Conway with a list of the proxies Farrell has acquired. Through he suspects a trap, Conway agrees to follow directions, and obtains a key to an hotel room for the meeting, but instead of finding Rosalind, there's a young woman scantily attired. She points a gun at him, which he takes from her. Since the gun has been fired recently, Conway suspects a frameup and calls Perry Mason, attorney. Mason and Paul Drake, a detective, go to the hotel room and find a woman murdered. Mason traps Evangeline Farrell into admitting she is Rosalind. She is divorcing Farrell and wants to help Conway. Farrell is having an affair with Rose Calvert, a secretary. Mrs. Farrell obtains carbons of the proxy list. Mason identified the body as Rose Calvert. Farrell must have had Conway's telephone tapped and had a girl call Conway, giving erroneous instructions, just before the call he was expecting from Rosalind. The proxy list planted in Conway's car doesn't compare with the list Mason has. Mason called upon Rose Calvert's husband to see photographs for identification. The gun Conway gave the District Attorney is not the murder weapon.

Chapter 24

Farrell was in his thirties, a tall, broad-shouldered, thin-waisted, well-dressed individual. His face was bronzed with outdoor living. A hairline mustache emphasized the curve of his upper lip.

He had smooth, dark eyebrows, dark, glittering eyes, so dark that it was impossible to distinguish the pupils. His hair was cut so that sideburns ran a couple of inches below his ears. He was wearing a brown plaid sport jacket, and gabardine slacks.

"You know Mr. Conway," Hamilton Burger said.

Farrell's thin lips came away from even white teeth in a smile. "Indeed I do," he said. "How are you this morning, Jerry?"

"Good morning, Giff," Conway grunted.

"And this is Mr. Perry Mason," Hamilton Burger said. "He has just accused you of trying to frame his client, Mr. Conway."

"I have done nothing of the sort," Mason said smoothly. "I have simply pointed out to the district attorney that I felt my client was the victim of a frame-up."

"Well, you said that it was a frame-up over this proxy battle in Texas Global," Burger said.

A FRAME-UP?

"I did indeed," Mason said. "And I am quite willing to state that I think the probabilities are, mind you, gentlemen, I say the probabilities are that the attempted frame-up was because of that proxy battle, and if there was a frame-up, then I believe there is a possibility Mr. Farrell should be considered suspect."

"There you are," Hamilton Burger said.

Farrell kept his eyes on Mason and said, "I don't like that."

★ ★ ★

Mason surveyed the man from head to foot and said calmly, "No one asked whether you liked it or not."

"Just a minute!" Hamilton Burger said.

Hamilton Burger said, "Farrell, what do you know about a gun that was purchased by the Texas Global Company for the protection of its cashier. The gun was purchased three years ago."

Farrell frowned in concentration, shifted his eyes from Mason to Burger, said, "I'm afraid I know nothing, Mr. Burger.

"Now think carefully," Burger said. "The gun was purchased and I understand was turned over to the cashier who . . ."

"Do you know who okayed the invoice?" Farrell asked.

"Mr. Conway has admitted that he probably did."

"I said I thought I might have," Conway corrected.

Once again Farrell's teeth flashed. "Well, gentlemen, there's your answer!"

Mason said, "I take it you know the young woman who was found dead in the Redfern Hotel, Mr. Farrell?"

Farrell's eyes were impudent. "What if I did?"

"You knew her rather intimately, I believe."

"Are you making an accusation?"

"I don't have to answer your questions. I'll answer questions asked by the police and by the district attorney."

"This Rose Calvert was doing some work for you?" Hamilton Burger asked Farrell.

"Yes sir. She was. She was doing some very confidential work. It was work that I didn't want to entrust to a regular stenographer. I wanted someone who was outside of the business, someone whom I knew I could trust. I chose Mrs. Calvert.

"Now I will say this, gentlemen. In some way, it leaked out that she was doing this work, and an attempt was made to get her to deliver information to Mr. Conway. Conway offered her five thousand dollars in cash for copies of the work she was doing, listing the stockholders who had sent in their proxies. She refused the offer."

'THAT'S A LIE'

Conway said angrily, "That's a lie! I never talked with her in my life—that is, about that work. I didn't know she was doing it!"

Farrell said, "I have her assurance that you did."

The district attorney looked at Conway.

"That's an absolute falsehood," Conway said. "I never rang up Mrs. Calvert in my life. I knew her only as a young woman who was in the brokerage office where I transacted my individual business, and much of the business of the Texas Global.

"I used to chat with her, in the way one would chat with an employe under conditions of that sort. I didn't know her otherwise."

"How well did Farrell know her?" Mason asked.

"I'll conduct this inquiry, Mr. Mason," Burger said.

"In case you're interested," Mason told him, "Mrs. Calvert's husband says that Gifford Farrell knew her quite well in fact, too well."

"And that is a falsehood!" Farrell said. "My relations with Rose Calvert were a combination of business and friendship."

"Ever buy any clothes for her?" Mason asked.

Farrell said, "I did not, and anyone who says I did is a damned liar!"

"Then," Mason said, "I have talked with a liar who says that you bought her a Bikini bathing suit. You sent a mail order to one of the magazines that advertises things. — However there's no use questioning your word, because the mail order records will show that."

HE WAS SURPRISED

Farrell's face showed startled surprise. His eyes which had been glaring at Perry Mason suddenly shifted. He became conscious of the circle of men who were regarding him with keen interest, their trained eyes taking in every flicker of facial expression.

Farrell took a deep breath, then once more this teeth flashed in a quick smile.

"I'm afraid, Mr. Mason, that you have been making a mountain out of a molehill. It is true, I did send away for one of those Bikini bathing suits. It was just a gag. I intended to use it as the basis of a practical joke in connection with one of my associates."

"I can assure you that the suit had nothing to do with Rose Calvert."

"Then how did it happen," Mason asked, "that she put the suit on?"

"She didn't!" Farrell snapped.

"Then how did it happen that you took her picture with the suit on, a picture which was posed in your bedroom while your wife was in New York?"

Try as he might, Farrell couldn't keep the dismay from his face.

There was a long period of silence.

"Well?" Hamilton Burger asked. "We're waiting, Farrell."

Farrell said, "I don't know what the idea of this is. I came up here to do anything I could to help find the murderer of Rose Calvert. I didn't come up here to be cross-examined by some attorney who is trying to shield the murderer and drag a lot of red herrings across the trail."

Chemise War Rages in West

This cocktail suit in summer blue peau de soie has a short petaled jacket over a dainty white imported lace blouse. Note the voluminous petaled hem skirt. The grown is by Marusia-Travis Banton.

Butterfly wings in curved layered panels form an effective gown by California's Werle. White French silk pouf taffeta is delicately edged in black French lace flows into a gracefully scalloped hem and strapless shoulder line.

This slim sheath has golden daisies scattered on the silk fabric. Designed by Bill Pearson for Harou of California, the neckline is draped into a soft cowl, front and back, tied in bows at the shoulder. There also is a fishtail hemline at the back of the skirt.

Some California Stylists Refuse to Design Sacks

After-Five and Party Collections Mix Fitted Dresses, Shapeless Costumes

By JUDITH L. CLEMENCE
Women's Editor, Pontiac Press

LOS ANGELES — The war with the chemise still rages here in California. Friday's showings consisted of after-five and party dresses in the higher-priced brackets.

Silks and linens, taffetas and chiffons are the favored fabrics for the high-fashioned dresses. Georgia Bullock opened the showings with several chemise dresses. There is a difference in the chemise done by this designer, however.

Dresses are semi-fitted and don't fall sack-like as we have seen earlier in the week. Some dresses have deep, plunging necklines, but are filled in with scarves, and all dresses can be stepped into and zipped.

MRS. CLEMENCE

Sequined necklines, harem skirts and flowing back panels characterized this collection of after-five dresses. A fashion award winner, Miss Michael designs all of the dresses Gracie Allen wears on her television program.

ALSO FEMININE

Also believing in the feminine, dressy clothes is Peggy Hunt who refuses to design a chemise. A typical dress is a linen cocktail sheath with a square neckline and contrasting bands of Chantilly lace for the feminine look. Many dresses have an illusion yokes of silk marquisette.

★ ★ ★

Termed "The Jazz Age," the Harou collection features lowered waistlines, harem skirts, cowl necklines and panels. This firm has a definite feeling for the chemise. But the fitted sheath is also popular.

Colors are orange ice, artichoke green and lemon yellow. Skirts are about 15 inches from the floor. The deep plunge back was shown filled in with white jeweled fabric, but the dress also is worn with the back open.

★ ★ ★

Looser bodices are significant in Werele's spring styles, but there's no sack look. Trimness at the hip balances upper fullness of a blousy top. The tunic or cutaway tunics have a place in this group. One cutaway of silk taffeta on a hand-knit dress was from the group designed for Loretta young.

NOVELTY DESIGNS

Those funny costumes showed, up, too. Werele does an overdress and just-below-the-knee pants for leisure time. Just to top it off is a big bow at the midriff.

★ ★ ★

The lantern skirt was outstanding in the John Carter collection. A modified barrel shape, it is held in position by an under ruffle and tapers to narrow slimness.

Harem tunics in vibrant colored prints in silk and taffeta were specialties with the designers. One exquisite harem-skirted dress was of floral bouquet affeta.

Daytime dresses were done in jersey, silk linens, prints and taffetas. (Perle Mesta sat with the fashion group to choose dresses for her own wardrobe from Marusia.)

There'll be a little more fashion news for you Monday. Right now we're packing suitcases for a weekend in Palm Springs where we'll be guests of the Men's Apparel Guild in California.

Retirement No Fun for Executive

Had to Find New Activities, Friends to Fill Gap

By BEAULAH STOWE

"Six months after I retired I felt so discouraged I thought I had lost everything that made life worth living" says Charles H. a former vice president of a railroad.

Mr. H. found that he lost his job and income with retirement. He also lost his business friends prestige and his identification. He became less in demand on civic committees where his job had been the basic reason for his selection.

He felt that he and his wife were invited only out of kindness when they were included among the guests of their former business associates.

★ ★ ★

"Mrs. H. explained it this way" he says. "She said that she was used to being 'nobody' except my wife. But my whole life had been aimed at becoming 'somebody' and I did it and then it was all taken away."

OFFERS IDEAS

Mr. H. has three suggestions for men who were successful in business and who feel stripped of their identification when retirement comes:

1. Find a new identification: as deacon in your church as chairman of a community fund drive as operator of a summer camp for boys as an expert in stocks and bonds or wood carving.

2. Cultivate friendships. You have more time than you have ever had before to seek out and become acquainted with people you would enjoy knowing. You have more time to answer letters and renew ties with scattered family and friends.

3. Organize your days into regular pattern. Include several hours of work in each day. House yard or mental work. The will to work may lead you back into a new career or a new kind of activity.

Q—"Can you tell me how my wife and I can live in the city on our retirement income of $105 a month? I am 72 and my wife is 69."—D. R.

A—It can't be done. Go to your children and see if they will give you some help. And go to the county welfare board and see if there is any other pension payment you would be entitled to receive short of charity.

Look After Stags

In a crowd where there are mostly married couples but there are also one or two lone women present, the husbands should not neglect to look after the latter.

"Belmont Shore" is the name designer Peggy Hunt gives to this Irish linen ensemble. Contrasting self bands are accented with embroidery. The matching straightline coat is of linen.

Goetz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Goetz of Orchard Lake. Albert is a senior in business administration; Walter, an electrical engineering junior.

Medical Group Hears Tax Talk

Nelson Young and J. Fred Lawton spoke to 40 members of Oakland County Medical Auxiliary when that group gathered for a dinner meeting Thursday at Devon Gables.

Overskirt Can Update Old Dress

★ ★ ★

Worn this way the dress top looks like a blouse, while the dress skirt becomes a petticoat foundation. After work you can take off the tweed skirt and be ready for a party in the beige silk dress.

Dior shows a slit overskirt as part of a sports outfit. The basic garment is in one piece combining a front-buttoned top with knickerbocker pants, all of black and white checked wool. You wear it for golf, weekends in the country or a long car trip.

With this basic outfit comes a red wool skirt slit up to the waist on both sides to give a glimpse of the pants. You button on the skirt for lunch in the clubhouse, for evening in the country or when you get out of your car on a trip.

Holy Trinity Church of Concord, N. H., was the setting for the Nov. 3 wedding of Katherine Theodorou and George G. Rallis. Louis C. Theodorou is the bride's father. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Nicholas D. Rallis.

MRS. GEORGE G. RALLIS

Pontiac Man Takes Bride in New Hampshire Rite

Katherine Theodorou and George G. Rallis were united in marriage Nov. 3 in Holy Trinity Church of Concord, N. H. The Rev. George Karahalios performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lewis C. Theodorou of Concord, N. H., and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Nicholas D. Rallis of Judson street here.

The bride's silk organza gown featured an oval neckline decorated with decals of Alencon lace and seed pearls. The gown was fashioned with a loose cumberbund effect, long toros, with long pointed sleeves, and a bouffant skirt which fell into a chapel train.

Always Follow Principles of Good Nutrition

Eat Right, Increase Zest for Life

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I wonder how many of you actually put into practice what you read and know about nutrition? How many of you make it a point to give your body, everyday, the foods it needs for health? Is this a hit and miss matter with you, or is it a daily habit?

★ ★ ★

If you are casual about it, you are missing one of the most exciting adventures of modern times. There seems to be no doubt that in the near future the youthful portion of life will be greatly prolonged and many chronic diseases avoided through improved nutrition

Today it is a shame not to put into practice what is already known about this science which is so important to us personally.

Today let us review a few of the primary tenets of good nutrition. During the war all of you saw the government's Food Guide frequently, but it doesn't hurt to recall the advice it promoted.

We need the green and leafy vegetables. Two servings daily is best. One is absolutely necessary. Then we must have the citrus fruits or others which are high in vitamin C. The citrus juices or fruits are the best sources.

We should also have two or more servings of fruits and vegetables not in classifications already mentioned.

OTHER REQUIREMENTS

We require one serving of meat or fish or fowl daily and at least five eggs a week. We must also have our quota of bread and cereals and must have some fat in our diet.

★ ★ ★

Milk and cheese are an important part of the protein family. These are important foods for the adult as well as the child. Skimmed or fat-free powdered milk is a splendid item for the reducing diet since both bring you so much health value and are so low in calorie count.

Skim or fat-free milk has only half the calories that whole milk has. Every reducer and most adults should have two glasses a day as a protective food.

If you once make up your mind to eat correctly, you will keep the general principles in mind when planning your menus. It really is not a complex job and will increase your zest for life.

Don't let good nutrition be a hit or miss matter with you. Make it a point to give your body every day the foods it needs for health.

Only 225 Soldiers Still in Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Only 225 federal paratroopers remained on duty in the Little Rock school integration crisis today after a second contignet of 101st Airborne Division soldiers went back to Ft. Campbell, Ky.

The Army also announced yesterday that it had started defederalizing half of the last 1,800 Arkansas National Guardsmen still on federal service.

About 8,500 Guardsmen were demobilized late in October. Their month-long tour of active duty cost the government $1,754,681 in pay and allowances, an Army spokesman said yesterday.

Paratroopers and Guardsmen are enforcing a federal court order for integration of nine Negro students at 2,000-pupil Central High School. President Eisenhower ordered the airborne troops to Little Rock and federalized the entire Arkansas Guard of 10,500 men on Sept. 24, the day after a mob rioted at Central High.

DENVER (INS) — Denver District Judge Robert H. McWilliams Jr. modified the usually strict news blackout for jury members during the weekend recess of a murder trial by permitting them to watch football on television. But the judge refused the jurors permission to read the Sunday comics.

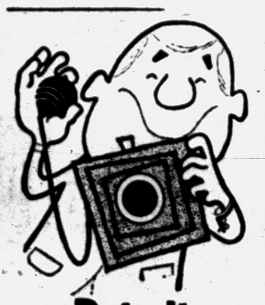

Both Flow Same Way

LONDON (INS) — It's possibly going to be easier for travelers at London Airport now that this instruction has been issued: "To facilitate the smooth flow of passengers, it is imperative that the escalators at all times operate in in the same direction as the passenger flow."

Kiss Needed to Sail

HARTLEPOOL, Eng. (INS) — Bo'sun Bob Foster was fined for disobeying his captain's command after a court was told that the trawler Fairy Cove sailed a day late because Foster had an argument with his wife and refused to sail without the customary good-bye kiss from her.

Fighter Planes Turn Into Tankers Quickly

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. — A low-cost "buddy" aerial-refueling system that can turn fighters into tankers and back again in a matter of minutes has been developed by an aircraft manufacturer here.

★ ★ ★

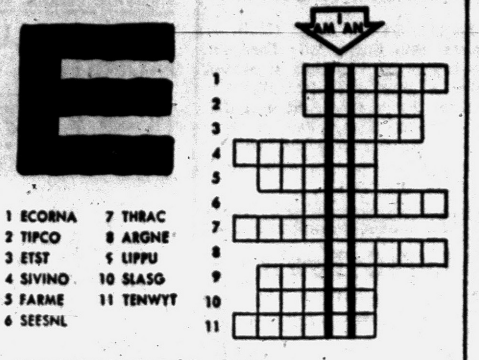

The system was designed for supersonic fighter planes, but can be used successfully on slower-flying craft, the manufacturer says.

WALL AQUARIUM — Kathy, aged eight, finds the tropical fish in the wall aquarium fascinating. On either side there are built-in bookshelves, with one slanting shelf for magazines. Walls in this room are Philippine mahogany. The ceiling is acoustical tile. This room is the newest part of the house.

Your Neighbor's House

Causeway Joins Island to Mainland

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor

In the middle of an island—their own private island—the Edwin Lees have built themselves a home. From the front windows one sees only lake and marshy shore and, way across the water, a few houses. There is a feeling of privacy and space.

At the back of the house civilization comes closer. Just beyond the causeway leading to the Lee home there is a regular settlement of houses. Not too many blocks away the roller coaster at Walled Lake Amusement Park rears up against the sky.

It was more than 10 years ago that the Lees laid the foundation for their home. At that time they set their sights higher than they realized. When they saw the original plans weren't materializing, they came down to earth, made some practical revisions and finished the house.

What was to be a two-car garage is now the master bedroom. The car does very well in a carport. The foundation wall for the living room still juts up outside the front walls. But it does all right as an edge to the garden.

Except for the plaster in the bedroom and the radiant heat, the Lees did all the work themselves. Mrs. Lee did every bit of the painting and varnishing. "What a job!" she sighs — but with pride.

She says they're still taking out walls here and there. In fact, while we were photographing the house we discussed the possibility of recessing the piano in the living room wall where it joins the utility room.

The 40 x 70 house is red brick with knotty cedar paneling on the gable ends. The trim is white. For a partial roof on the carport the Lees used yellow corrugated fibreglas. A further touch of color was in evidence when we saw the house; one small gaudy maple hung over the water's edge and lent brilliance to the exterior.

Inside, all floors are tan asphalt tile. The living area of the house has knotty pine paneled walls finished in a honey tone. The bedrooms are plastered and painted.

The entrance which is a side one is into the laundry room. All one wall has storage closets on it; and plans call for more storage cabinets mounted on the laundry walls.

Because of the 12-foot picture windows on either side of the corner, the living room is flooded with light. On each side of these large windows there is a smaller one. Where the living room extends out beyond the rest of the house that corner is windowed also.

★ ★ ★

To supply the yards and yards of material called for to cover this expanse of glass, Mrs. Lee went to the bedding department and bought sheets. The pale yellow muslin is just right against the paneled walls.

FRIENDSHIP STONES

One entire side of the room is dominated by the stone fireplace. Some of the rocks are immense. Some are friendship stones that were gifts; others are vacation souvenirs. The hearth is red tile.

★ ★ ★

An aqua sectional sofa is placed so that it faces the fireplace. All tables are blonde. There's a comfortable rocker next to the fireplace. Near the upright piano the Lees' daughter, Kathy, has a shelf for her keepsakes, as well as a small desk.

Two years ago they planted a gift poinsettia after Christmas. Now it reaches the ceiling and bends over. Last Christmas, Mrs. Lee said it had 12 huge blooms on it. Growing to just ordinary size at the other end of the planter are mums, coleus and tuberous begonias.

In the doorway between the living room and the kitchen, a big square table has been built in. Covered in beige Formica, its edges are bound in steel. It is a good-sized work table and can seat six persons with ease. The chairs have red plastic seats and backs.

Red is repeated in the counter tops. Storage cabinets are fir in a deep redwood finish. Mrs. Lee used yacht varnish on them for a shiny finish, while the walls have a dull finish. At the windows which look out on the carport the curtains are beige.

POPULAR ROOM

Beyond the kitchen is the family room. This newest part of the house is the most popular. Here the family gathers to read and watch television. Here they can watch the wall aquarium full of tropical fish.

The walls in here are Philippine mahogany. The ceiling, like the living room one, is acoustical tile. The matchstick bamboo draperies are aqua. The furniture includes a big leather lounge chair and a green sofa. Bookshelves are built in.

In the bathroom a glass block

ON AN ISLAND — The Edwin Lee house is built on a small private island in Shawood (or Mud) Lake. Located southeast of Walled Lake, the Lee house is close to civilization on one side but out in the "wilds" on the other. The house has a brick exterior with cedar paneling on the gable ends. The Lees planned and built their home themselves.

Pontiac Press Photos by Tom Gerls

UNIQUE PLANTER — In a space between the floor and the outside wall the ground has been left exposed for a planter. That huge plant covering half the window is a poinsettia! In this room walls are knotty cedar. The large fireplace is made of field stones, some of which are friendship stones, other vacation momentoes. Pale yellow draperies hang at the 12-foot picture windows. Both floor and ceiling are tiled, the former with asphalt vinyl; the latter with acoustical tile.

SQUARE TABLE — A square table has been built into the kitchen doorway. Serving as both work and eating space, it is Formica covered. Kitchen walls are paneled like the living room. The built-in cabinets are fir with a redwood finish. The windows over the sink look out into the carport.

Choose Wax Carefully

Use only water base wax on asphalt and rubber tile floors, caution M.S.U. home economists. In naphtha-base wax the napthan is a solvent which softens and pits asphalt or rubber tile and causes colors to bleed.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

FIRST FLOOR PLAN — Five rooms and a bath are carefully arranged for maximum livability on the first floor of this story and a half house. In this plan the living room is at the rear where it overlooks the back terrace. Bedrooms are at the front.

Avoid overheating a new house and shrinkage will be kept to a minimum. Experts advise owners to keep room temperatures at not more than 70 degrees fahrenheit.

Cloistered Garden Area Design Feature of Home

The architect, Edward J. Baar of Seattle, Wash., got his inspiration from the far western school of home builders in nearly all regions of the country.

So we have selected this plan as HW-77 in The House of The Week series in the thought that its simplicity and sound planning will appeal to a wide variety of home lovers.

Shielded in front by a high masonry wall, and enclosed also by a wall of the house and the front porch, the garden adds strong aesthetic value to the entrance.

At first glance, this house gives the appearance of being a split level. Actually, all living areas on the first floor are on the same level. The upstairs area, however, raises the roof of the main section of the house above the roof of the right wing, creating this split level effect.

AMPLE SPACE ON SMALL PLOT

Being a story and a half type, this house has the added advantage of providing ample living space on a limited plot.

The first floor includes five rooms — two bedrooms, living room, dining room and kitchen plus a bath — and the upstairs has space for two additional bedrooms and a bath plus storage space.

Yet, the overall dimensions of the main section of the house are only 45 feet 4 inches by 34 feet 5 inches.

The front garden area, although not large, is adequate for a modest gathering. For outdoor entertaining on a larger scale, there is a rear terrace extending the full breadth of the main section of the house.

The entrance porch, reached by a walk which borders one side of the driveway, leads into a flagstone foyer. At one end of the foyer is the entrance to the living room; at the other end are the stairs to the upstairs area.

CEILING IS SLOPED

The living room abounds in smartly designed features. The ceiling is sloped, dipping toward the large sliding glass doors and panels which separate the living room from the rear terrace.

Wood-paneled closets embrace the fireplace on either side. Indirect lighting, overhead, extends the length of the living room at the high side of the ceiling.

The living room, with a sense of spaciousness because of its unobstructed view of the terrace, is extended unbroken into the dining room, which in turn has direct access to the kitchen although a shelf and broom closet divider effectively separates the kitchen from the dining room.

Sliding glass and aluminum doors and fixed glass panels extend virtually the entire length of the rear of the house, with a clear view of the terrace from the living room, the dining room and the kitchen.

BASEMENT HANDY TO KITCHEN

The kitchen, itself, is orderly arranged and the range, sink and refrigerator are set in the shape of an "L." There is space for a breakfast nook, and there is direct access from the kitchen to the stairs leading down into a large basement recreation room.

The basement also has space for heating units, laundry facilities and for a workshop and storage closets. The fireplace at one end of the basement recreation room is a part of the same fireplace unit upstairs in the living room.

The basement also can be reached by an outside stair at the left end of the house. The exterior design of the left side of the house is made more interesting by a large dormer section extending out from the two upper bedrooms.

Hand split wooden shingles have been selected for the roof. And vertical siding has been used on all exterior sides of the house to give contrast to the horizontal brick wall dominating the front.

Build a small concrete apron out from this rear garage door, and the utility of the garage is increased. Drive through the garage onto the apron for washing the car.

If you have a boat on a trailer, drive the car onto the rear apron and let the trailer remain under cover of the garage for working on the boat.

Statistics

The first floor of The House of The Week HW-77 has 1,220 square feet; t he second floor has 636 square feet, and the garage has 410 square feet. The overall dimensions of the main section of the house are 34 feet 5 inches by 45 feet 4 inches. The two-car garage adds 19 feet 8 inches to the length of the house.

Silent Servants at Work

Every home modernization project is likely to bring employment to a number of "silent servants" in the form of automatic controls. Among the many used in the gas appliance and equipment industry are the automatic shut off valve that shuts off the flow of gas if the pilot light is not lit. Variations of this device, sometimes used in combination with other controls, are used in range ovens and clothes dryers, as well as in water heaters and many types of househeating equipment.

Decorating Tricks Will Glamorize Smallest Bath

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Women adore pretty bathrooms, and every woman secretly wishes she could have one like the Romans enjoyed.

An attractive bath-dressing area may be engineered at little cost and with a minimum of effort in a small space. One displayed recently involved fabric and companion wallpaper in a tile pattern in shades of pink, olive and turquoise, and a do-it-yourself dressing table that was suspended from the ceiling.

The shower curtains were made by taking the straight piece of fabric, hemming and attaching it to the shower rod with large, brass drapery clips, so that no grommets were needed in the curtain. A clear shower curtain was used behind the print to give the necessary protection.

The inexpensive dressing table unit is a space saver and easy to make. Select a shelf in the size desired of a light weight plywood or hardboard, cover it with marbelized paper (the kind the goes on at contact) and suspend it from the ceiling with a decorative cord.

Picture cord will do the trick. Or attractive chains to match plumbing fixtures might be more desirable. Fasten the cord to the shelf on each side with small brads. Then suspend the shelf from the ceiling.

One of the new type towel racks that resembles a music stand is ideal for the small bathroom set up because it doesn't take up too much space. Or use one of the towel cabinets that come in a combination of brass and glass, and offers support for the hanging table.

A matching print may be used to cover a seat pad if you like, and companion wallpaper on a small wastebasket.

The floor tile could be black and white sequin pattern, plain white or black. The idea is to carry out the marble and tile theme.

If a family has outgrown its bathroom, any small space—a hall, under-the-stairs area, or closet space—may be converted into a shower-stall type of bathroom, even if larger accommodations are not within the budget.

Shop No Longer a Man's World

One of man's last retreats in the home — his workshop — is being invaded by the ladies. The reason: Some of today's portable electric tools are so lightweight and easy to operate that it's fun for the gals to use them.

In fact, home tool specialists of Thor Power Tool Company, Chicago, report that women shopping for tools as gifts for their husbands often make their selection with the idea of picking a tool they can use themselves.

So with the woman as well as the man of the house in mind, Thor has developed an unusual new speed drill that weighs only 4 pounds, is less than 9 inches long overall, and can be used not only as a drill but as a jigsaw, sander, and polisher!

Refinishing old furniture or smoothing and completing unfinished furniture long have appealed to many women. Now they're easily done, with no muscle-work, with an electric tool. Even do-it-yourself projects, such as making decorative wooden animals for display in the yard, present no problem to the gals — although they usually want some of hubby's advice before starting the job to be sure they use the electric jigsaw attachment to the utmost advantage.

A versatile tool such as the four-in-one speed drill can be used for sanding down rough spots in wall refinishing, too, or for polishing the family automobile if desired. The sander and lambswool bonnet polisher are easily attached to the drill for such tasks.

Whatever the job, there's no doubt that the home workshop no longer is "no-woman's-land." But far from being angry about it, most men are happy to have another interest to share with their wives.

Midget Portable Washer Boon to Travelers

NEW YORK (AP)— A portable washing machine, weighing only nine pounds, which can be set down in any convenient sink, tub or large pail, is among new products this week.

Apartment dwellers who don't have the space for a large washer, traveling men, families on vacation or even college students may like this 14-inch-high machine with a four-way washing action. It is built to get a four-pound load of wash clean in seven to ten minutes. It's made by AMI Incorporated, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Remove Wax, Then Paint

You must not try to paint over wax. Your job will not be a success. First remove all traces of wax with turpentine or one of the products prepared especially for that purpose. Use clean rags for the final clean up.

Reproduction of Wood Panels Within Budget

Woodgrain room paneling, for many years the hallmark of the gentry, now has come within the reach of today's budgeted family. Handsome woodgrain reproductions, so real that even experts can't detect them, are as near as the lumber yard.

These realistic replicas of genuine woodgrain patterns are offered in wide panels, 16"-wide planks or blocks of that dimension. They have a protective surface of baked melamine plastic with a soft luster finish that never needs refinishing. It is kept clean by occasional damp-wiping.

Unlike the originals plastic-finished hardboards are factory-finished and are ready immediately following installation without laborious finishing on the job.

Both in size and fastening features, these planks and blocks are designed for speedy application. Just 3-16-inch thick, they have tongue - and - groove edges and special metal clips that simplify installation. Since the only tools needed are a saw, hammer and level, the home craftsman can install them readily, using a special wallboard adhesive. All nailing is hidden, leaving neat joints.

For individual wall and ceiling treatments, planks and blocks may be combined or wood grain directions changed.

One house in fifty built last year had no bathroom, reports the Plumbing Fixture Manufacturers Association.

New Gas Boiler Has Expandability

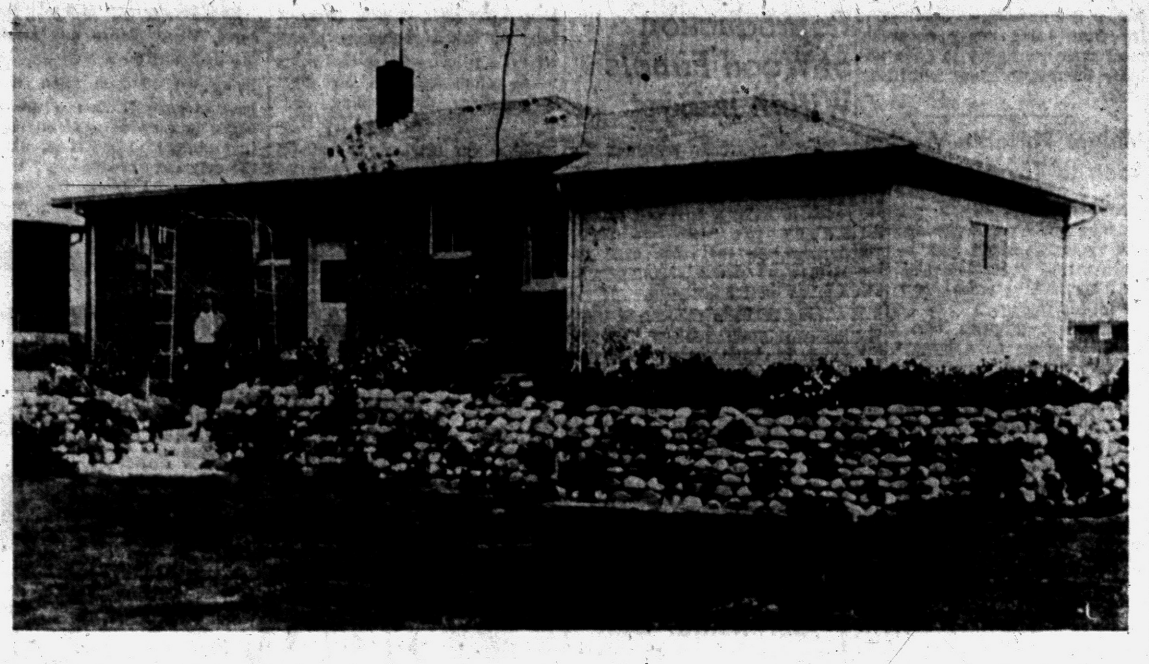

Many water heaters are giving the family the cold shoulder these fall mornings. Reason: Family has grown up or increased in size, additional bathrooms have been added, and automatic dishwashers and clothes washers installed.

The practical and thrifty solution is the purchase of a new correctly sized automatic gas-fired water heater. With these automatic heaters, there is never any "hot water fadeout." There is plenty of hot water for normal uses as well as for abnormal demands when company comes.

Quality construction and precision engineering are combined with operating economy in the latest types of automatic gas storage water heaters.

Some of the important points which characterize a quality water heater are efficient burner, dependable and quick-acting controls, adequate insulation, durability, and attractive appearance.

When a faucet starts dripping, have it repaired immediately or hard-water mineral deposits may appear on the basin.

BACKWARD GLANCE — Now, when chilly winds and rain are sweeping the countryside, it is good to look back upon summer and its flowers. An aftermath to the Home Section featuring fences and walls is this picture of the Alton Guy home at 1339 North Cass Lake road. Mr. and Mrs. Guy built up this rock wall and planted the flowers. A constant reminder of the many hours of back-breaking work this wall entailed, it is a distinctive addition to their new house. Other fences and walls will appear from time to time.

Use New Paint for a New Look

AP Newsfeatures

Paint manufacturers — well aware of the modern housewife's insatiable desire to make her home more and more distinctive — keep turning up with new ways to enable her to do it.

The method goes like this:

First you paint the wall (or walls) of the room to be dotted in the usual fashion — using a dominant color for this base coat. When this paint is dry, the polka dots are sprayed out of an special aerosol spray container which does not require any extra attachments — you simply remove the brass valve pin from the nozzle spray head and are ready to go.

The size of the dots is determined by the distance you hold the can away from the wall: the further away, the smaller the dots. Dots of many colors can be applied without waiting for each to dry.

To get the feel of the operation, be sure to practice with the spray can first on a large piece of cardboard before moving to the painted wall.

For those in search of a period look, there is a new way to refinish old furniture by giving it a highly decorative antique appearance. The gimmick is specially prepared gold dust which can be added to the regular line of the manufacturers multicolored paint colors.

Combinations of jade, black and gold, blue and gold, or white, black and gold are just a few of the decorative possibilities.

The spraying can be done with regular paint sprayer equipment or with the paint sprayer attachment of your vacuum cleaner. The base paint has a consistency which make it possible to spray the new paint on to old furniture without removing the old finish. No special sanding is required.

If this talk about special effects gets you thinking about undertaking a major paint redecorating project, here are a few reminders about how to use color:

. . . A ceiling in a lighter shade than that used on the walls will always give an impression of height.

. . . If your stone or brick fireplace sticks out like a sore thumb in a small living room, try blending it in with its background wall by painting it the small color as the wall. This will make it less obstrusive and thus cause the room to appear larger.

Position Is Everything in New 'Relaxabed'

That position is everything in life was proved electronically at the National Homefurnishings Show, held recently. One of the exhibitors demonstrated "The Electronic 'bed," in which a simple lever control raises both the head and foot of the bed to any combination of positions.

A boon to convalescents, orthopedics, or just plain luxury-loving people, the Relaxabed eliminates the need for cranking or other "strong-arm" tactics. The occupant simply presses the control until the bed stops in the desired position for reading, meals, televiewing or relaxation.

Many Types of Loans Ready for Home Owners

Home modernization now can be financed a number of ways without straining the family budgets.

Banks, lending institutions, and even the Federal Government offer loans with liberal terms to homeowners trying to increase the value and comfort of their homes. An example of improvements which qualify for loans is the addition of extra baths and powder rooms. Another is the remodeling of an old bathroom, reports the Plumbing Fixture Manufacturers Association.

Here are the types of loans available for home modernization:

OPEN-END MORTGAGE. An open-end mortgage simply means a homeowner can borrow on his present mortgage. The new loan can be repaid by raising the present monthly mortgage payments the same and extending repayment period of the mortgage contract. In either case, the interest rate of the additional loan stays the same as in the original mortgage.

SECOND MORTGAGE. Many mortgage holders grant home improvement loans to borrowers with good credit. These are called second mortgages and the house is used as security. They generally carry lower interest rates than non-mortgage plans.

CONVENTIONAL PROPERTY IMPROVEMENT LOAN. Some agencies will lend up to $2,500 for modernization. Here the borrower must repay the money within three years.

TITLE I HOME IMPROVEMENT LOAN. The Federal Housing Administratoin insures low-interest home improvement loans from qualified lending agencies. For a one-family house the loan insurance limit is $3,500. Repayment periods range up to five years on amounts of $600 or more.

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION-INSURED LOAN. Veterans may set aside part of their "GI" mortgage guarantee for home improvements. The VA will insure 60 per cent of a loan from private banking institutions up to a maximum of $7,500. The interest rates are 4½ per cent and repayment time limit is 30 years.

DIRECT VETERANS ADMINISTRATION LOAN. The VA offers direct home improvement loans in roughly 2,500 counties where other adequate financial help is hard to obtain. Such loans usually have low interest rates.

OWN PLAN LOAN. Many banking institutions have their own special plans for home improvement loans. These generally provide liberal credit terms.

PERSONAL LOANS. Such loans usually have short repayment periods and higher interest rates. However, they may be obtained easily for amounts up to $2,500.

INSTALLMENT CONTRACT. Many dealers offer credit and installment plans. For example, a glamorous, up-to-date third bathroom could be installed in a home for a little money down and easy monthly payments.

Folder Gives Paneling Ideas for 'Rec' Room

Play, lounging, and recreation provide the big theme of today's living. As a result recreation rooms are becoming more important in today's homes.

★ ★ ★

Western pine paneling is a popular choice for the recreation room. The natural grain combined with the color to suit the individual taste of the homeowner create a proper atmosphere for recreation and relaxation.

★ ★ ★

To show the wide range of modern effects that can be created, the Western Pine Association has developed six striking new finishes. They are shown in a new folder in color, "Fine Finishes for RECREATION ROOM Paneling and Woodwork." The folder reproduces the colors, tells how to achieve them, and pictures some outstanding recreation rooms.

For a free copy, write to: Western Pine Association, Yeon Building, Portland 4, Oregon. Ask for the "Recreation Room" folder.

The finishes, all of which permit the natural grain and texture of the wood to show, include: Yellowstone, a mixture of burnt umber and chrome yellow; Green Glacier, a combination of chrome green and chrome yellow in oil with mineral thinner; and Paiute Paint, which consists of dabs of various basic colors applied in random fashion. The ideas may be useful for other rooms of the house as well.

Look Upward for Room

Most homeowners know of ways to re-do basements, but many overlook attic remodeling. This area is particularly adaptable for conversion to a boys' dormitory when the floor is made of rugged materials that won't buckle from roughhouse play.

Make Storage in Doorstep

A backdoor storage step can be easily constructed by the home craftsman. The project has many uses: it can be used as a scraping board to clean muddy shoes before entering the house; it is a base for trash cans elevating the cans and thus preventing the bottom from rusting; or modified with a cabinet-type enclosure it can be used for general storage.

The length of the step can be varied to individual circumstances. It is suggested that the home craftsman use naturally durable or treated wood.

Butt-joint construction is used throughout; all pieces should be cut with the help of a miter box to assure square ends. The frame and top boards are made of 2 by 4-inch lumber. The front and rear frame members are 9 feet long; the sides 16-¾ inches long. The 26 boards for the top are also cut to a length of 16-¾ inches.

The legs are six pieces of 4 by 4-inch lumber. Support strips for the top are made of 1 by 2-inch lumber. Cut the strips to fit between the legs.

First, assemble the frame. Next, position the legs 1⅝ inches below the top edge of the frame and fasten them in place. Use waterproof glue and No. 10 flathead wood screws 3 inches long. The center legs are placed at the midpoint of the frame.

The support trips are attached with glue and No. 10 flathead wood screws 2½ inches long. Finally, the top boards are attached to the fram with 10-penny finishing nails.

Countersink all screws and set the nails. Wood putty is used to fill the holes. Finish the project with a good outside paint.

A WIND BREAK—How many times have you wished for a windbreak that you could move when the wind or sun changed directions? Here is a slick one. Made of lightweight western red cedar boards, these panels can be moved around the edge of the patio. A metal rod in each lower corner fits into pre-set steel pipes. The cedar will last for many years.

FOR SAFETY'S SAKE — Exposure to light for only a few minutes causes a new, spray-on, luminescent paint product to glow for hours, says the manufacturer.

Glowing Safety Paint Comes in Spray Can

So new that it's started to glow in only a few markets across the country, is a luminescent, paint-like product that can be sprayed onto any suitable surface.

It's just one member of a new family of safety marking materials designed for home or industrial use.

Among other items in the line: a tape, similar to an adhesive tape, that can be used to mark danger areas with bands of glowing phosphorescence; a tumbler for bathroom or sickroom use that glows in the dark; ready-printed signs for posting at danger spots.

Signs would seem to be most suited for industrial or institutional use.

The phosphorescent ingredient that gives the material its ability to glow in the dark is nontoxic and nonradioactive. So says the manufacturer.

The spray-on product is applied exactly as you would use any spray paint or other liquid packaged in aerosol-pressured spray cans.

For best results, the manufacturer suggests that the spray be used on a white, or nearly white background. For that reason, a coat of white paint should be applied over darker surfaces to be sprayed and allowed to dry thoroughly before the luminescent spray is used.

Three or four coats of the material are applied to the surface to be marked, and each coat should be allowed to dry before the succeeding coat is added.

As little as five or 10 minutes exposure to sunlight or artificial light is sufficient to make the material glow for hours in dark areas, it is said.

Uses for the product include: spray for risers of basement steps, around fuse box, light switches, on low-overhanging beams, pipes and projections in basements, for spotting near valves and shut-off's on piping, meters and other home controls.

For the latter use, it is suggested that the spray be applied to a cardboard or panel that is hung near the piping; sweating of pipes might impair its efficiency.

Mask areas that you plan to spray. Like any sprayed material, it will spatter surrounding surfaces unless you take this precaution.

Christmas ornaments made of cardboard or old battered ornaments could be sprayed with the material. When lights of the tree are out there will still be a softly glowing beauty to the tree.

Marking danger spots outdoors on garage or other buildings of home or farm is also possible, if the luminescent material is used in a protected or semiprotected area and safeguarded with a further coat of a special, clear, spray.

Outdoor application is said to last up to a year, if properly applied and protected. Indoor application is said to last indefinitely.

Permanent Filters Need Fall Cleaning

Most new air conditioning units have permanent filters—which do not need to be replaced, but do need to be kept clean.

The method is to lift the filter out, shake off loose dust, then dip it up and down in hot soap or detergent suds. This loosens and removes the greasy soot which the filter has captured.

Disposable filters need to be washed the same way, but since they will take only a couple of such treatments a season, they need to be replaced occasionally with new ones of the same size and make.

Cedars of Lebanon Grow in One Spot

The cedars of Lebanon, north of Palestine, are justly noted for their size and beauty. Comparatively few remain; the most famous group is near the village of Tripoli, 6,000 feet above the sea. They do not grow in any other part of Palestine.

Solomon made a bargain with Hiram for cedar wood for his temple, and Hiram said to him: "We will cut wood out of Lebanon . . and we will bring it to thee in floats (or rafts) to Joppa . . ."

Glass Etching Done Safely by Power Grinder

Paste a drawing or a photo that you wish to copy on the under surface of the glass In case you don't want to use the original, make a tracing and attach it Be certain that it cannot tear loose during the etching.

Carefully "grind" along the outline on the top surface with your hand grinder "Do-it-yourself" planners of Thor Power Tool Company, Chicago, recommend that pointed grinding stones be used for the fine lines Etch the broad lines with the sides of these stones.

Top Grade Not Needed

All select grades of softwood yard lumber take natural finishes well. The higher select grades are used for the highest quality interior and exterior finish. C and D grades serve many purposes just as well, especially when the natural markings of wood are desired for their decorative effect.

Venezuela Plans Building of Powerful A-Reactor

CARACAS — Venezuela is making long-range plans for peaceful use of the atom. Its Institute for Neurology and Brain Research is building a pilot plant on a mountaintop near Caracas.

When completed in 1965 the over-all cost of the project will be $50,000,000. One of the world's most powerful nuclear reactors is being built at the plant, where 27 buildings have been constructed. The layout constitutes a complete community, with its own roads, stores, water supply, housing, and sanitary services.

Hi Fi Growing Glamorous

Styling for hi-fi is currently undergoing the same growing pains experienced by its TV cousin several years ago. However, there is now available a wide range of cabinet styles to fit nearly every type of interior decorating scheme.

Hot Water Your Friend

To preserve the new look in your new home, your gas water heater is an important silent partner. Linoleum or tile floors won't stain or discolor if you wash them frequently with hot water and suds. Smudges on painted walls can be removed with hot suds. Washable home furnishings will keep looking new if laundered in hot suds that actually remove all the dirt.

Too Easy Home Credit Drives Prices Upward

The prospective American home buyer who may be waiting to buy a home on the basis of "no money down, or next to no money down," probably has a long wait in store for him.

Roy M. Marr, president of the United States Savings and Loan League, said recently that until the past two years, many of the homes built since the close of World War II were sold with no down payments or with fractional down-payments.

"But it is highly unlikely that we will see much, of this type of home financing for some time to come," Marr said in a speech before the Oklahoma Savings and Loan League in Oklahoma City, Okla.

The League president urged that various segments of the housing industry assume the responsibility of "informing" the American public that the unusually "easy" home financing that prevailed in the decade after World War II was "the exception, not the rule."

"I believe it is a legitimate responsibility of the industry to tell the home buying public that when inflationary pressures exist, as they have in recent years, that the best interests of the home buyer himself are served by not making home credit too easy," said Marr.

"The record is pretty clear. Every time home credit has been too easy since World War II, that is, every time down-payments have been too low, the result has usually been to inflate and increase the cost of home building and the prices of homes."

"Certainly it is no favor to the home buyer to make his down-payment requirement so low, if by so doing, the price he must pay for his house is increased."

"The easier credit is, the greater the number of home buyers in the market. Houses are sold easily, not enough attention is given to keeping building costs in line, and the higher costs are usually added to the mortgage balance.

"The reverse is also true. When credit is tightened, buyers are not so numerous, the housing market is more competitive, and the pressure is on the housing industry — builder, material maker and the building trades — to offset higher costs with greater productivity and economies.

"In times of high national prosperity, therefore, the ultimate effect of somewhat tighter credit is to produce better values for the home buyer, and give him more for his money."

In most cases, sizing a wall before applying wallpaper is not necessary if the wall has paint on it. But bare plaster walls or any other unfinished surfaces require sizing before putting on the wallpaper.

Bay City Central Rolls Over Pontiac, 39-0

Wolves Net 363 Yards Despite Wintry Blasts

Chiefs Are Outclassed by State's 2nd Ranked Football Team

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

Classy Bay City Central warmed up the frozen turf of Wisner Stadium last night for 276 yards rushing and 87 yards passing to whip an earnest Pontiac High team, 39-0 before a blanketed sparse crowd.

The 40 miles-per-hour winds played tricks with the ball in the air on punts and point attempts and even on the ground. Several times the official stopped play to return the ball to its position after the wind moved it.

Half-frozen fingers didn't hamper quarterback Jerry Gross from completing eight of 13 passes, although Bay City did stick more to the ground than in any of its other games.

Two bad punts paved the way for Bay City's two first half touchdowns. The Wolves took over on the PHS 44 after a 15 yard punt and in nine plays Gross went over from the two and scored with 55 seconds left in the first period.

On the next Bay City drive from the PHS 43, following a punt which was partially blocked, the Chiefs held on the four yard line and took over.

Dick Whitmer was forced to punt out and Bay City started its second touchdown march from the 39 with Gross passing twice to end Jim Schultz for 16 and nine yards. Fullback Ken Carey went the final yards.

Two quick touchdowns in the third period made it 25-0 for Bay City with Ken Swincicki going four yards for one and Gross passing to Bob Bishop 29 yards for the other. The point came on a pass from Gross to Schultz.

In the 4th quarter Bay City marched 79 yards with Gross going over from the two. He also added the point to make 32-0 and the final Wolves' touchdown came in the final seconds.

Bishop took the ball on an end-around and as he was scampering 32 yards for the score the gun went off and Lonnie Lowrey added the point on a run with no time left to make it 39-0.

The final BC touchdown came after the Wolves stopped a Pontiac bid on the four yard line and they marched 96 yards. The Chiefs started on their own 26 and with a 49 yard run by Larry Douglas to the Bay City 25, the march ended on the four yard line.

Guard Charley Brown and Whitmer were the defensive thorns for Bay City in the first half.

All-state end candidate Schultz was spectacular both ways. He blocked two punts, one partially, knocked down a pass, caught five passes for 47 yards and made it rough for the PHS offensive attack. He suffered a serious leg injury in the last minute of the third period was carried from the field.

In other SVC activity last night, Flint Northern warmed up for its clash with Bay City next week by beating Arthur Hill 20-7 while Saginaw was dumping Flint Central, 12-0.

RO Kimball Ends Season Beating Birmingham, 7-0

Royal Oak Kimball finished its first season of football by scoring a 7-0 upset over Birmingham on the Maples' gridiron last night with Larry Wasen accounting for the lone tally on a 90 yard run from scrimmage in the third period.

This gave the new Royal Oak school a record of four wins, two losses and a tie for its first year under coach Prentice Ryan.

The Knights got to the Birmingham five in the first quarter, and the Maples marched to the Kimball three in the second quarter. On this drive Birmingham had a first down on the three and failed in four ties to hit pay dirt.

With a 4-4 record, Birmingham Goes to Royal Oak Dondero next week to end the season.

Dondero meanwhile eked out a 13-7 victory over Ferndale with Gary Banks getting both Royal Oak touchdowns and Roger Sutton going 30 yards for Ferndale's tally. Chuck Molenda added Ferndale's point.

Hazel Park stayed in the unbeaten ranks with a 25-6 victory over class 'B' Garden City. Hazel Park has not clinched the EML title as yet. The Vikings still must play Port Huron and East Detroit in the league.

Port Huron dropped a 12-0 decision to 5th ranked Grosse Pointe while East Detroit fell for the 4th straight time to Hamtramck, 24-6.

Falcons Clinch Tri-County Title

The Falcons had things pretty well wrapped up after eliminating Romeo lost week and just put on the finishing touches in one of the most lopsided area games of the year.

Another loop contingent, Lapeer, tallied all its points in the 1st half to whip Flint St. Michael, 24-7. Tom Hubbell went 89 yards for one of the Lapeer tallies.

South Lyon Defeated in Title Game, 12-7

Two touchdowns with only 1:21 of game time remaining gave Manchester a 12-7 win over South Lyon last night in their League of the Lakes championship football game at Manchester.

The Lions had enjoyed a 7-0 lead since the 1st quarter on Jim Tanner's 12-yard touchdown run and Tom Underhill's conversion. A 20-yard TD pass and a fumble recovery in the end zone handed South Lyon its heartbreaking loss.

Utica Scores 12-0 Win

Utica won its second game of the season by dumping Lakeview 12-0 on 2nd and 4th period touchdowns. A 14 yard pass from Mike Bortmann to Reed Bannow following a Lakeview fumble on the 16 accounted for the first TD.

Avondale Surprises Troy, 7-7

Orion Defeats Romeo, 19-14, to Stay Clean

By BILL CORNWELL

If the Dragons of Lake Orion High School can get past Holly next week, a man-sized task, they will complete an undefeated-untied football season.

Coach Ted Sela's Oakland B League champions fought off a fighting Romeo team Friday night on Orion's wind-swept gridiron for a 19-14 victory and their 7th straight win of the 1957 campaign.

Jim Drake scored two touchdowns, his 15th and 16th of the year, and Doug Storey tallied the other as Michigan's 7th ranked squad kept its perfect mark intact.

It was winless Avondale, however, which provided yesterday's real shocker. The Jackets still haven't won any, but they battled Troy to a surprising 7-7 tie in an afternoon Oakland B game at Troy.

Avon got away to a 7-0 lead in the 1st quarter on Chuck Nurek's 61 yard touchdown gallop and Jerry Hill's conversion from placement and the Jackets held their advantage until the 4th period.

Troy averted an upset when Gary Littleson passed to Wayne Figley for a TD play covering 40 yards. Dave Stokes knifed through the line for the tying extra point. The Colts finished their schedule with a 5-2-1 record.

Romeo apparently disregarded Orion's high state rating. Coach Ted Engdahl's Bulldogs bounced back from a 13-0 halftime deficit to make a serious bid for an upset and the Dragons were thankful for their narrow verdict.

Obviously suffering a letdown after winning the Oakland B title last Friday, the Dragons lacked their usual speed and drive and they were repeatedly hamstrung by five-yard penalties, 13 in all.

Romeo fumbles set up both of Orion's 1st half touchdowns. Midway through the 1st quarter Ross Waite recovered a fumble on the Romeo five yard stripe and the Dragons scored in three plays with Storey going across from the one.

Late in the 2nd period Orville Cromwell fell on a bobble on the Bulldog 37 and after two passes failed, Nick Niera tossed a short one over the line to Drake who raced 37 yards for a TD. Storey converted on a plunge.

The Bulldogs cut Orion's edge to 13-7 in the 3rd period with a 54-yard march climaxed by Dave Proper's touchdown smash from the four. Butch Dallwitz passed to Buddy Dodge for the extra point.

Drake swept 12 yards around end for Orion's insurance TD with 2½ minutes of game time remaining.

Dallwitz threw to Gary Douglas for a scoring aerial spanning 65 yards and Bob Galan kicked the point, then the Bulldogs recovered an Orion fumble at midfield and took two whacks at pay dirt before the clock ran out.

In other games last night featuring Oakland B teams, Madison defeated Detroit Benedictine, 19-0, and Fitzgerald took a 40-18 licking from unbeaten Warren.

GAIN NULLIFIED — Pontiac fullback Dick Whitmer tears into the open for a 15 yard gain with halfback Gary Nuttall of Bay City ready to make the tackle. The gain was for nothing however as it was nullified by a penalty. The Chiefs lost to the powerful Wolves, 39-0 in a Saginaw Valley game.

Clawson Rips Oxford, 52-0

The crushing defeat finished a dismal football campaign for the Wildcats, who won only once while losing five and tying one. Clawson now has a 6-1 record with Oakland B foe Madison left to play.

Fullback Lowell (Newt) Acton scored four of Clawson's eight touchdowns on runs of 40, 40, 20 and 5 yards. John Volk tallied twice on 50 and 30-yard jaunts, Dave Rehse romped 20 yards for another TD and Dale Schreder hit from 10 yards out.

Volk made two extra points while Rehse and Bill O'Dell got one apiece. The Trojans held a 33-0 halftime lead and coach Bob Acton benched all of his seniors after intermission.

Sports Cars Vie Today

Walled Lake Turns Back Milford, 25-13

Halfback Jim Pierce ran for 3 touchdowns Friday night at Walled Lake to pace the Vikings to a 25-13 triumph over Milford in the final game of the 1957 football season for both schools.

Pierce, a fleet-footed junior, traveled 10, 4 and 1 yards for his scores after Frank Fink had given the Vikings a 6-0 lead in the 1st quarter with a four yard scamper.

Southfield, Inter-Lakes Conference champion, rounded out an undefeated season yesterday afternoon at Southfield. The Jays spotted Redford Union a 7-0 edge, then bounced back to win going away, 25-7.

Walled Lake's victory gave the Vikings a successful 6-2 record this year. It was also a satisfying autumn for the Redskins, who wound up with a 5-3 mark.

Pierce's 3rd TD in the 4th quarter put the game out of Milford's reach. Don Proulx made Walled Lake's lone extra point while Terry Anderson converted for the Redskins.

Union hit pay dirt with seven minutes gone in the 1st quarter, but never was a contender after the Jays got rolling. Tom Ridley's 35 yard scoring dash in the last 30 seconds of the 1st period sent the Jays off and running.

Ridley put Southfield ahead for keeps with a three yard plunge, then Joe Moore raced 42 yards for a touchdown and Bob Filar passed to Ken Yauch for a TD play covering 52 yards. Dick Jusino kicked Southfield's only bonus point.

The two teams battled through a scoreless 2nd half as the Jays ended their season with seven wins and one tie.

Northville Nears W-O Crown; Clarkston Falls, Hillsmen Win

By CHUCK ABAIR

A pair of costly fumbles and a lost kicking tee combined to prevent the Holly Broncos from winning the Wayne-Oakland League championship with a golden opportunity within their grasp last night.

The strong Mustangs would have to lose both of their remaining games, one of which is against winless Clarenceville, in order to miss repeating. Such an occurrence would leave Holly and West Bloomfield tied for the top prize.

The fact that Holly's kicking tee for placements could not be found in the final seconds may have decided the outcome. Losing coach Al Gratsch wanted to go for a field goal with his team in a huddle on 4th down at the Northville 12. But the tee could not be found in time and a running play was stopped ending the final Bronco threat.

Holly dominated the last half with its powerful running. The home team, trailing 14-0 at halftime, drove 82 yards for its 3rd quarter tally and 88 more in seven plays for the last period TD.

Coggins got the first TD on a 19 yard dash and Leston went over from the six for the other. Failure to convert the first point was the damaging blow. Phil Tinsman elected to run the point rather than kick against the wind.

The Oakland County school dominated the game offensively with 13 1st downs to 7 and 265 yards rushing to 148. There were no passes completed. But the football was bouncing the wrong way for the locals.

Fumble recoveries had started Northville on its way to both its scores in the opening half. The 1st occurred at the Holly 35 and four plays later rugged fullback Bill Walker broke through 27 yards on a quick opener.

The teams exchanged bobbles with Northville taking over on Holly's 12. Walker went over again, this time from the nine. Center Wade Deal's extra points were the deciding factors in the title battle.

There was only one other league game last night. In that one, Brighton pulled a minor upset beating Clarkston 12-7 after trailing. Jake Berson and Jim Paddock scored for the winners to offset Leroy Parks' six-pointer.

Bloomfield Hills broke a five-game loss streak by besting Oak Park 12-0 in a non-loop afternoon contest hindered by strong winds. Jim Kearney scored both Baron TDs.

49ers on Road 2 Games Ahead in West Sector

Lions at Philadelphia With 3-3 Mark; Browns Meet Steelers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The San Francisco 49ers, preseason nobodies who are now the somebodies to beat in the Western Conference, begin a cross-country road trip tomorrow as the National Football League moves into the last half of the schedule.

The 49ers top their division by two full games, built on a 5-1 record, but it will be a month of Sundays before they return to the home lot at Kezar Stadium Dec. 8. Stopovers at Los Angeles tomorrow, then Detroit, Baltimore and New York all figure to be less than hospitable. The 49ers have folded on the road in other seasons. It could happen again.

The Baltimore Colts and Detroit Lions, tied for second in the west with 3-3 records, also are both visiting teams tomorrow, but then Detroit is at home three straight and Baltimore two out of three.

The Lions are rated four points better than the Philadelphia Eagles tomorrow, and the Colts' game with the Washington Redskins is listed as pick 'em. The 49ers are three-point underdogs.

Other second-half openers are the Chicago Cardinals at New York Giants, Green Bay Packers at Chicago Bears and Pittsburgh Steelers at Cleveland Browns.

A victory for the Steelers at Cleveland would throw the Eastern Conference into a two-way tie, and possibly cause a triple tie if the Giants also whipped the Cards.

The Browns lead the division with 5-1. The Steelers and the Giants are both 4-2.

The Browns are favored by seven points and the flu-weakened Giants by nine. The Bears, preseason somebodies who are now well-beaten nobodies, also are accorded nine points over the Packers.

Both have 2-4 records as do the Rams for a three-way tie for fourth in the west. The same situation exists in the east with the Cards, Redskins and Eagles the deadlocked clubs.

★ ★ ★

The San Francisco-Los Angeles game pits the league's leading ground-gainer, Tom Wilson of the Rams, against the league's most spectacular passing combo—quarterback Y. A. Tittle and end R. C. Owens of the 49ers.

Father Helped Him in Baseball

Kubek Gives Dad Credit

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Tony Kubek of the New York Yankees says his dad and Yanks manager Casey Stengel were responsible for his winning the 1957 honors as American League Rookie-of-the-Year.

The 22-year-old Milwaukeean returned from a hunting trip yesterday and learned for the first time that members of the Baseball Writers Assn. had made him their unanimous choice for the honor, which was announced Thursday.

"I feel pretty good about it," Kubek said as he supposed "I was given the award because I was able to play so many positions."

Serving as Jack-of-all-trades for the American League champion Yankees, Kubek played every position but first base, right field, pitcher and catcher.

Kubek said his dad, Tony Sr., an outfielder with the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Assn., played a big role in his success "because he kept me in a baseball atmosphere from the time I was able to walk."

★ ★ ★

He said Stengel helped him when the manager "had enough confidence in me to let me play all the positions." Kubek said that whenever he was moved to a new post Stengel would show him how to play it, and then tell him, "'just go out there and play it the best you can.'"

★ ★ ★

He joined the Yankees last spring after three years in the minors wanting to play shortstop.

As for next year, Kubek said, "I'll just have to wait and see where Casey wants me to play." He added he'd still like to be the Yankee shortsop.

In picking his personal highlight of the 1957 campaign, Kubek said it came when he hit two homers and drove in four runs in the first World Series game played in Milwaukee. One of his darkest days of the season came in the final game when Kubek commited a costly error as Lew Burdette shut out the Yanks and beat them for the third time in the series.

★ ★ ★

Sharing Rookie-of-the-Year honors with Kubek was Jack Sanford of the Philadelphia Phillies who was voted National League honors.

Ortonville Ends Season Happily With 28-0 Win

Ortonville closed out its 1957 football season on a happy note last night by whipping Webberville, 28-0, before an appreciative Dad's Night audience at Ortonville. It was the 5th victory in eight games for the Blackhawks.

Dave Kowalsky broke the scoring ice in the 1st quarter with a 51 yard run off tackle. Later in the same period Larry Follis cracked over from one yard away following a blocked punt by Arnold Hungerford and Chuck Graves.

Follis scored again with a two yard plunge in the 2nd stanza. The Hawks' final TD came in the 3rd period on a 20 yard pass from Gary Williams to Graves, who fumbled with Hungerford scooping up the ball and going the remaining 25 yards.

Graves tallied two extra points and Follis and Kowalsky each converted once.

Big 10 Tops List

Big Games in Midwest

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Underdog Southern Methodist hopes to upset the Texas Aggies, the nation's number one team, in the top game of the Southwest tonight.

The game at 9:00 p. m. at College Station lists Texas A&M as 10 point favorites.

SMU surprised Texas a week ago and an upset could jumble the Southwest Conference race and knock A&M from the top spot.

★ ★ ★

COLUMBUS, O. (INS)—Ohio State's hopes for the Big Ten football title receive a severe test today as the Buckeyes battle Purdue's dangerous Boilermakers at Columbus.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (INS)—Oklahoma's Sooners, seeking their 47th straight football victory, are three-touchdown favorites to beat Missouri's upset-conscious Tigers today before 40,000 fans at Columbia.

The Tigers have not defeated Oklahoma since 1945 and are hopeful they can turn the trick in this battle.

EAST LANSING (INS)—Michigan State's powerful football team rates a two-touchdown favorite to beat Notre Dame's fighting Irish when the rivals collide today before an estimated 76,000 fans at East Lansing.

Michigan State has won five of the six games it has played thus far this season and the Irish have a 4-1 mark—losing only to Navy.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (INS)—Michigan's Wolverines were slight favorites today to beat Illinois in an important Big Ten football game before 47,000 fans at Champaign.

IOWA CITY, Ia. (INS)—An underdog Minnesota football team will be out to atone for its two 1957 losses today when it battles undefeated Iowa at Iowa City in a Big Ten conference game.

A crowd of 58,000 will see the 51st game in a series that began back in 1891.

Dales Visit Mikes Sunday

Bone-crunching Bill Tunnicliff and his Ferndale St. James teammates come to town Sunday afternoon to meet St. Michael in a Suburban Catholic League football game at Wisner Stadium. Kickoff time is 3 o'clock.

St. Frederick hopes to end a two-game losing streak tomorrow afternoon at Center Line against unpredictable St. Clement and Orchard Lake St. Mary plays host to winless Royal Oak St. Mary in other league contests.

St. Benedict of Highland Park and St. Rita, both unbeaten and untied, collide at Hazel Park in Sunday's all-important SCL battle. It is the final game of the season for each team and the winner will pocket the league championship.

St. Mike's vaunted defense, which has yielded an average of only one touchdown per game thus far, will have its hands full stopping the rushes of Tunnicliff, 195-pound senior fullback.

Deceptively fast for his size, Tunnicliff has scored 12 touchdowns for the Dales this fall and he is currently averaging a whopping 12.5 yards per carry. A talented southpaw passer, quarterback Jim Grasel, adds versatility to the attack.

The Shamrocks have defeated Orchard Lake, St. Clement and Royal Oak in their last three outings while compiling a 4-2 record to date. St. James has won four out of seven.

St. Fred's Rams have dropped their last two games, with St. Rita and St. Ben, the league leaders, administering the beatings. St. Fred's overall record is 2-3. St. Clement has won only once in seven starts.

The Orchard Lake Eaglets, carrying a 2-3 mark, should have little trouble brushing off the Irish, who enter their last game of the year with a dismal 0-7 slate.

Coaches, Writers Vote

Pick Small College Stars

DETROIT (AP)—College coaches along with sports writers and broadcasters are voting this week and next to determine the second annual Associated Press All-State small college football team.

The AP, through its many newspaper and radio members throughout Michigan, selected a small college All-State team last year for the first time.

Named to that 1956 honor team were backfield men Tom Scvhwalbach of Northern Michigan, Bob McNamara and Jim Podoley of Central Michigan and Nate Clark of Hillsdale.

The first team line was made up of ends Andy Kincannon of Hillsdale and Leon Harper of Adrian, tackles Ben Paolucci of Wayne State and Ollie Porter of Central Michigan, guards Dave Trippett of Hillsdale and John Sweet of Kalamazoo, and center Jim Dahlman of Albion.

The 1957 All-State team will be announced later this month and members of both the first and second teams, along with coaches from all 15 of the smaller colleges (excluding Michigan State, Michigan and Detroit) will be honored at a luncheon in Marshall, Mich., on Dec. 3.

Minor Loops Have Attendance Decline

COLUMBUS, O. (INS) — Minor league baseball attendance declined slightly in 1957, but the average for the 193 clubs was nearly the same as last year.

Minor league chief George M. Trautman said today that the total paid attendance, including post-season playoffs and all-star games, was 15,496,684.

The average total attendance for the minors this season was 80,294 per club, compared to 80,336 for 212 clubs in 1956, Trautman said.

He pointed out that total paid attendance for the majors during the past season was 17,015,814.

Chicago Makes Grid Proposal

CHICAGO (AP)—A new proposal to revive intercollegiate football at the University of Chicago will be submitted to a faculty council next month, says Athletic Director Walter L. Hass.

Hass said last night the bid will be made in conjunction with his "favorable" report on a physical education course, stressing football fundamentals, now offered by the university.

The Maroons dropped Big Ten football in 1939 because of a change in university policy and inability to compete against power teams in the Western Conference. They last won a Big Ten grid title in 1924.

Sophomore Grid Player Dropped at Toledo U.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—The University of Toledo said its starting football center, sophomore Jim Nemeth, has been dropped from the team for breaking training rules.

It's the sort of thing you hate to do and we don't do it lightly," said Larche of the action. "Nemeth was one of the fastest men on the team despite his size and had tremendous potential."

Almont Ends Perfect Year

Wind and rain couldn't stop Almont yesterday afternoon as the Raiders ended a perfect football season with a 26-0 win over Dryden in a Southern Thumb League game at Dryden.

★ ★ ★

Quarterback Gary McAlvey scored twice for the Thumb loop champs, both times on one-yard sneaks. Frank Hartway plunged two yards for a touchdown, Ken Taylor ran five yards for another, and Walt Griffin and Hartway each made an extra point.

Almont tallied once in each quarter while rolling to its 8th victory in as many starts. Dryden finished its 1957 slate in reverse — no wins, eight losses.

Brown City came from behind to defeat visiting North Branch, 14-6. One-yard plunges by Bill Thomas and Doug Graham wiped out a four-yard TD run by Talcott of North Branch in the 1st period.

The young Barons bowed only to Brighton while beating every other opponent easily. Bloomfield coached by Hal Trott, finished with a total of 151 points scored and allowed only 26.

Offensive star of the team was Bill Jones, who had 10 of the 23 touchdowns.

Fuel Injection Lacks Appeal

New Car Buyers Shun High-Priced Optional Equipment

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT (AP) — Fuel injection systems with price tags running into hundreds of dollars still lack the appeal car makers expected but more makes of cars will have them as optional equipment in 1958.

The attitude in trade circles toward fuel injection contrasts sharply with that of a year ago when the units first were announced for conventional American-built cars. It was said at that time that fuel injection would be the major engineering development for the year ahead.

Relatively few of the injectors were sold. And, with their still high price tags there is no indication of an expanding demand for them in 1958. When they can be made available at a price comparable to that of a multiple-barrel carburetor they undoubtedly will find a broad market, even in the high-volume lower-price field.

When Chevrolet announced fuel injectors a year ago the price was announced at $484. Another system, electronically-actuated had a $395 tag. This quite obviously was too heavy an "extra" item for the car buyer asked to pay around $75 a month and more for 30 months and more for his vehicle.

The fuel injection system with fine nozzles spraying fuel directly into combuston chambers provided faster response to acceleration; it increases power and by more accurate measuring of fuel requirements provides better economy.

Some engineering authorities say they believe a system much less costly than those so far announced will be introduced within the next few years. Test track demonstrations have emphasized the quicker response to acceleration that comes with fuel injection. There has been some difference of opinion regarding other claimed advantages.

Some of the several engineering firms that have been developing fuel injection have said their product will be ready for the market early in 1958. Whether any of them have succeeded in lowering production costs has not been disclosed.

Probably to be a profitable item for the auto makers fuel injection will have to become popular in the lower priced car field. That price bracket represents somewhere around 65 per cent of the total market. It also represents buyers who generally have to bargain narrowly in the purchase of new vehicles.

Employment Dip in October

Sharp Increase Seen in Last Half of Month Following Layoffs

The annual layoff in Pontiac motor vehicle plants, due to model changes, accounted for a brief decrease in employment at mid-October, a monthly report from the Pontiac branch of the Michigan Employment Security Commission showed.

The layoffs in the plants changed around Oct. 14 when most returned to jobs, showing a sharp increase in employment toward the last half of October.

At that time, non-farm employment was 68,300 as compared to 69,800 at mid-September. The plants accounted for a 1,600 drop, while a minor gain of 100 in metal plants made up the 1,500 monthly difference.

There was a decrease for the same period of time of 200 workers in services, 100 in transportation and 100 in government.

At the midpoint of the month, unemployment reached 8,500, up 1,500 from September. The unemployed made up 10.6 per cent of the total labor force of 80,000. This compared with 8.8 per cent in September and 6.5 per cent a year ago.

Unemployment insurance checks issued in October reached the highest on record for the Pontiac office, according to Paul Kimball, branch manager. There were 23,427 checks totaling $856,411 issued.

Identify Firms Named in Probe

State Companies Listed as Paying for Presents Given to Unionists

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Rackets Committee yesterday provided fuller identifications of companies named in its hearings as having paid for Christmas gifts distributed to labor union officials by an agent of Nathan W. Shefferman.

★ ★ ★

A list of the firms, which gave the addresses of none of them, had been placed in evidence Tuesday. It attracted little attention in the investigation in which the committee accused Shefferman of illegal and improper union busting tactics.

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) contended this included the giving of gifts in efforts to place union officials under obligation to Shefferman and to George Kamenow, then his Michigan agent.

The committee had placed the list in evidence as compiled, it said, from Sheffman's books, which gave no indication of who actually received any gifts financed by the companies. Committee aides said there is no present plan to call officials of the firms for questioning.

The firms, and the years in which they were recorded as reimbursing Kamenow for Christmas gifts to union officials, included:

Detroit, Mich.: Albert's, Inc., $100 in 1955 and $100 in 1956; Boston Store $100 in 1956; Charlie's Oldsmobile $100 in 1956; Famous Furniture $100 in 1953; Good Housekeeping Shops $50 in 1953, $50 in 1954 and $50 in 1955; Hot Point Electric $100 in 1955 and $100 in 1956; Ernst Kern Co. $100 in 1953, $100 in 1954 and $.00 in 1955; Re-Steel Service Co. $100 in 1955; Robinson Furniture $50 in in 1953, $51.50 in 1954, $100 in 1955 and $150 in 1956; Service Parking $206 in 1954, $200 in 1955, $200 in 1956; United Shirt Co. $51.50 in 1954, $225 in 1955, $225 in 1956.

Hoffa Trial Delayed Until November 19

NEW YORK (INS) — Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa has gained a postponement of his perjury trial until Nov. 19 from a New York federal judge—despite the pleas of federal prosecutors.

★ ★ ★

Federal Judge Frederick Van Pelt Bryan adjourned the case yesterday to provide time for a ruling on the admissibility of state-obtained wiretap evidence against Hoffa.

There was a good chance that if the U. S. Supreme Court ruled the wiretaps could not be used, Judge Bryan would dismiss the indictment against Hoffa, the Teamsters president-elect.

Judge, Sheriff Even Up Scores in Parking Battle

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Score one round for the sheriff and one round for the judge in the heated contest over that "unauthorized" parking spot near Vermilion County Courthouse.

Round one went to Probate Judge John Unger when he cited Sheriff William G. Hendrickson for contempt because the law officer towed his car away.

The car was parked, said Hendrickson, in a place reserved for the sheriff's office. For towing it away — and refusing to bring it back — he was sentenced to two days in his own jail. He was released on bond and said he would appeal.

But Hendrickson won round two yesterday. When he towed the car away for the second day in a row, Judge Unger had to post $1,000 bond to recover the auto.

He posted the bond before Justice of the Peace Robert Briggs, and got his car back on a writ of replevin. Under such a writ seized property can be recovered by putting up cash equal to twice the value of the confiscated property.

Jack Soble Confesses How Reds Stole Atomic Secrets in 1943

(Leader of a Soviet spy ring in the U.S. for 15 years, Jack Soble is now behind federal prison bars. Soble and his wife, Myra, recently were nabbed by the FBI and confessed espionage charges against them. Before going to prison, however, Soble told the dramatic, true chronicle of his experiences. It is a story that reveals the innermost secrets of the Soivet spy network—how sex and liquor are used to pry secrets from Americans, how agents are recruited, how secret rendezvous are arranged. This is the first of 12 articles).

By JACK SOBLE
(Written with Jack Lotto)

Moscow's red square was a sea of bunting, red flags and portraits of Marx, Lenin and Stalin. It was Nov. 6, 1947—the eve of the 30th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

In the Kremlin, as we were all to read the next morning, 3,000 Communist Party leaders at a special session of the supreme Soviet leaped from their seats and cheered wildly at what they were hearing.

★ ★ ★

Soivet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov had announced "The secret of the atomic bomb has long ceased to exist!"

★ ★ ★

That same evening, I learned something Molotov didn't tell his audience. It was one of Russia's most closely guarded secrets — a secret never disclosed until this very moment: The name of the Soyiet agent who changed the coures of history by smuggling atomic secrets out of the United States in 1943-44, even before the U.S. had exploded its first bomb.

GETS NEW ORDERS

I was in Moscow in 1947, after six years of busy spy activity in America, to receive important new assignments from the top men of the Russian world-wide espionage headquarters.

My services for the Soivet Secret Police went back to 1931. I was recruited in Berlin where I had completed my college education, under a "take it or else" edict—"Work for us," a Soivet secret agent there warned, "or you will never see your wife again!"

KREMLIN LIKE RESULTS

Although Trotsky's discovery of what he had called my "treason" cut the assignment short, I apparently had performed my role well from the Kremlin standpoint. For the next seven years I edited important Communist newspapers in Russia, including anti-Nazi papers smuggled into Germany.

Then in 1940, I was sent to the United States to execute espionage assignments as the price of saving my parents and other members of my family from Siberia. In the U.S. under direction of Soviet diplomats, I became supervisor, paymaster and recruiter of espionage agents.

In 1947, having received my American citizenship, in accordance with NKVD (secret police) orders, I had slipped into Moscow via Czechoslovakia from Paris posing as a Red Army officer, "Colonel Dorow."

After an evening of wining and dining, our chauffeured car drove past the Kremlin and halted a short distance away, at the Metropole Hotel opposite the Bolshoi theatre.

ZUBILIN GOT DRUNK

The large doses of cognac and vodka had had their effect on one of my two drinking companions — Major-General Vassili M. Zubilin, who had been my boss in America. He was staggering drunk.

Zubilin, a short, squat, bespectacled, ugly-looking man, was now head of all Soivet intelligence activities outside the Soviet Union.

My other companion, a man known mysteriously as "Alexej" and I half dragged, half-carried the general through the lobby of the cavernous, tarnished gilt lobby with its dirty red plush carpets to the three-room suite the NKVD had reserved for me.

"Alexej" and I gently deposited Zubilin in bed and went to the sitting room, where we resumed our drinking and began reminiscing about our experiences in the "decadent" United States.

WAS MYSTERIOUS MAN

"Alexej" was a Russian Secret Police Agent who ostensibly was only Zubilin's chauffeur. It was apparent, however, from the way his identity was guarded, and his treatment, that he was far more important than was generally believed. He was one of Zubilian's closest henchmen. In all the years I knew and worked with "Alexej," I never was able to determine his full, or real name.

As the evening wore on, and helped along by the vodka, Alexej and I began exchanging more and more intimate confidences.

I expressed the belief that Comrade Zubilin had certainly come a long way since our last encounter three years before. He was then only second secretary in the Soivet Embassy in Washington.

Now, I said, he was a big man in Russia, in charge of all espionage.

SPILLS SECRET

His flushed face pressed against my ear and heard a whisper that made by body tinge wtih excitement!

"He is the man who brought to the motherland the atomic secrets of the accursed United States."

I was stunned. I couldn't believe that my boss, a man who oblivious to my presence, he pulled open the door to my suite and craned his neck in both directions.

Relieved to find no one in sight, Alexej turned and glared at me, as though I were to blame for what he had done.

"You must help me, comrade," he pleaded. "Please, I beg you. Your lips must be sealed, or our lives will be forfeit. You must never mention what you heard. It will mean the firing squad for both of us."

Reveals Missile From Space

Nose Cone Displayed to Nation by Ike as Sign of U.S. Progress

WASHINGTON (AP)—An experimental missile nose cone that returned unharmed from a trip into space was displayed to the nation Thursday by President Eisenhower. He used it as a visual example of America's progress in missiles development.

★ ★ ★

The cone stands about 32 inches tall and is about 20 inches in diameter at the base. Robert Montgomery, Eisenhower's television consultant, estimated the cone weighs about 300 pounds.

It feels like concrete, but its pitted outer surface has the look of asbestos. Its color is off-white.

Eisenhower, who displayed considerable interest in the cone before the broadcast, pointed it out to his nationwide audience and said:

★ ★ ★

"One difficult obstacle on the way to producing a useful long range weapon is that of bringing a missile back from outer space without its burning up like a meteor, because of friction with the earth's atmosphere.

★ ★ ★

"Our scientists and engineers have solved that problem. This object here in my office is an experimental missile—a nose cone. It has been hundreds of miles to outer space and back. Here it is, completely unharmed—intact."

It sounded like something new, but the development of a nose cone capable of withstanding reentry heat was reported last August.

★ ★ ★

An Associated Press story from Washington on Aug. 14 said in telling of a test with an Army Jupiter intermediate-range missile at the Cape Canaveral, Fla., test center:

"Further success with a rocket-powered missile whose nose cone returned to sea level without being destroyed by friction heat was reported today to have been achieved by the Army."

★ ★ ★

The story recounted reports that the missile went to an elevation of 400 miles, reached a top speed of 12,000 miles an hour, traveled 1,200 miles and hit within a quarter of a mile of the target point.

Urge Secession From AFL-CIO

Building Trades Want Unions to Quit Unless Rights Are Assured

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Building Trades Council has urged AFL building trades unions to secede from the AFL-CIO if no agreement is reached on jurisdictional work and job rights.

The Detroit group, representing 65,000 workers, adopted such a resolution at its meeting and sent copies of the resolution to councils in other cities across the country.

The building trades unions claims a membership of 3½ million.

Jurisdictional disputes between the AFL unions and the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department are one of the major problems in the AFL-CIO merger.

Last week at the IUD convention in Washington, union officials said no solution had been reached.

★ ★ ★

The AFL-CIO's department has proposed arbitration of all jurisdictional and job rights issues between the various union groups. AFL groups are said to demand an agreement assuring them of retaining their traditional jurisdiction.

Railroad Battling to Discontinue Passenger Line

LANSING (AP) — The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad will be allowed to present additional evidence to support its petition for discontinuance of passenger train service between Grand Rapids and Petoskey.

Otis M. Smith, chairman of the State Public Service Commission, announced that the hearings will be opened at Manistee, Dec. 16 and probably will continue for a week.

Prisoners Stage Play

JACKSON (AP) — Southern Michigan Prison will present an all-inmate musical comedy Friday night, Nov. 15, with proceeds to go toward furnishings for the new all-faith chapel. The show is entitled "Flim Flam for Tonight."

'The Fabulous Infant'

Television Looks at Itself on Show Slated Sunday

By CHARLES MERCER

Operating under the "why not?" theory, "Wide Wide World" (NBC-TV) will do exactly that on Sunday in a 90-minute program appropriately entitled "The Fabulous Infant." It will be a look at the past 10 years of television, at its present and its future.

A notable feature of the show will be the return of "Mr. Television" himself, Milton Berle—not as a comedian, but as a serious commentator on the problems of performers in the medium and the problems of television in developing and maintaining talent.

"The program will be not a tribute to television, but the story of television," says "Wide Wide World" executive producer Barry Wood.

And the producer of this particular show, Herbert Sussan, emphasizes that the other major networks CBS-TV and ABC-TV, have offered the fullest cooperation.

STARS OF YESTERDAY

Thus the viewing audience will see in the opening segment of the program brief kinescopes of dozens of the TV stars and lesser constellations of yesteryear.

It will in part answer the question of "What did television promise 10 years ago?"

To demonstrate that the talent of the future in large measure depends on relatively unknown performers on local stations, the cameras will turn to local performers and programs in Omaha, Boston, San Francisco, Detroit, Columbus, Ohio, and Springfield, Mo.

An interesting phenomenon of television performers — "the big break" — will be seriously discussed by Ernie Kovacs who suddenly rose to popularity on the basis of a single half-hour program after years of being a very funny fellow in the medium.

Sussan and Wood say that while the show will not stress the technical aspects of television, the people behind the cameras will be given their day before the cameras.
