Pontiac Press Photo

'SALUTE' VOCALIST — All eyes won't be on the new 1958 Pontiacs and GMC trucks at Saturday's "Salute to Industry" show. The reason is charming Mrs. Gunvor Ryden, of 331 Pioneer Dr. She, along with another Pontiac singer, Pat Morris, will sing with the Bobby Barnes Combo during the introduction of the new cars and trucks.

Colorful Salute Will Greet
1958 Pontiacs, GM Trucks

A spectacle of color, glamor, rock 'n' roll music and the products of industry, both large and small, will bring the new 1958 Pontiac automobiles and General Motors trucks into the spotlight Saturday.

Residents of the Pontiac area will have their pick of three centers where the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce will present its "Salute to Industry."

There will be shows in a roped-off area on West Huron street between Saginaw and Wayne (9:30 to 11:30 a.m.), at the Miracle Mile Shopping Center (noon until 1:30 p.m.) and at Tel-Huron Shopping Center (2 to 3 p.m.).

The highlight of the entire day's activities will be the first showing of the all-new Pontiac cars and GMC trucks. All 16 styles of the new car will be featured.

There will be 12 new trucks, including two with the new air suspension system, as well as a new GMC bus.

While both young and old take a look at the new vehicles, the six-piece Bobby Barnes Combo will add an extra thrill with 15-minute shows of rock 'n' roll music.

TO SING WITH BAND

Pontiac's own Mrs. Gunvor Ryden and Pat Morris will sing several popular numbers with the band. It features Bill McLain as its own vocalist.

Not only will Pontiac's big industry — Pontiac cars and GMC trucks — be spotlighted, but six smaller industries will have static displays of their products mounted on six of the 12 trucks.

The industries include Universal Oil Seal, American Forge & Socket, Dowlat Foundry, Baldwin Rubber Co., Superior Metal Products Manufacturing Co. and Jig Bushing Co.

A long 30-vehicle caravan will take the show from place to place. Also included in the line of march and at the show spots will be a new house trailer from the Hutchinson Trailer Sales, 4301 Dixie Hwy.

The new cars will be driven by members of the General Motors Girls Club.

The caravan and shows are being arranged by the Industrial Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

in Talk Tonight

Scientific Announcement
May Point Way to Meet
Sputnik Challenge

FROM OUR WIRE SERVICES
WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower plans a surprise scientific announcement tonight in his major address to the nation aimed at easing America's Sputnik jitters.

The radio-television speech at 8 p.m. EST launches the President's "chins up" campaign to bolster public confidence in this country's scientific progress, as well as its basic military and economic strength.

Informed sources revealed that Eisenhower has a surprise in store, but would say only that it is in the field of science. It does not relate to any specific achievement by the United States, but apparently to future plans for meeting the Soviet challenge in the satellite and missile race.

The President may also offer some last-minute advice on his address earlier today at his weekly meeting with the top-level National Security Council.

Yesterday, U.S. earth satellite experts on the President's National Science Foundation met secretly, but when asked if the meeting had any relationship to tonight's address they replied: "not specifically."

TO ANSWER CRITICS

Eisenhower will be replying to some of the strongest criticism ever leveled at his administration when he goes on the air tonight to discuss the general subject of "Science and Security."

Russia's triumph in beating the United States to outer space has already turned into a boiling political issue, with Democrats and many Republicans demanding that the administration speed up U.S. satellite-missile programs.

The clamor was intensified this week as Sputnik II and its own (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Western Object Went That-a-way

Calls Flood State Police, Weather Bureaus

Report Strange Flying Objects

A flood of reports of mysterious flying objects hit police, weather bureaus and Ground Observer Corps stations in southeastern Michigan last night.

Observers saw white, orange and red lights dancing in skies between Detroit and Lansing.

The chief executive may get some last-minute advice on his address earlier today at his weekly meeting with the top-level National Security Council.

The other caller, from Oxbow Lake, told of a white object, a little larger than a baseball which danced about for "quite a time" and suddenly disappeared.

The U. S. Weather Bureau in Detroit said northern lights were visible in southern Michigan last night and may account for many of the sightings.

The bureau also said two jets flying over lower Michigan left condensation trails that glowed in the light of a full moon.

A number of police officers were among those spotting the colorful "objects." Several Eaton County deputies saw a red light in the vicinity of Charlotte that bounced along in a southerly direction at high speed.

Donald Miller, Decatur police chief, saw a light over the city early in the evening. He said it was orange at first, but turned red, then brown and was a mile in length.

Waldron Stewart, editor of the Adrian Telegram, saw a white light that later flashed red and green. At the same time, 8:40 p.m., personnel at Willow Run Airport reported almost identical sightings.

Weatherman Warns
of Shower Tonight

The Weatherman predicts rain for the Pontiac area late tonight, with a rather mild low of 42-46.

Tomorrow will be cloudy and rainy with temperatures falling. The high for tomorrow is expected to be around 50. Rain possibly changing to snow is in the forecast for tomorrow night. The low will be 32-36.

Saturday the outlook is for considerable cloudiness and colder with snow flurries.

Thirty-three was the lowest recorded temperature preceding 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac, 2 p.m. the mercury stood at a cool 44.

Announced by Mackie

Oakland Route Will Join Superhighways Leading to Detroit and Flint

By PETE LOCHBILER

DETROIT—Pontiac and Oakland County were scheduled for a new north-south expressway as State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie announced a 10-year expressway construction program for the Detroit metropolitan area.

Forty miles of the road from 11-Mile Road through northeast Pontiac to just south of Flint, should be built or under construction within five years, Mackie said.

At the north, the expressway would connect with the Fenton - Clio expressway leading northward to the Mackinac Bridge.

At the south, it should connect with the north-south Hastings-Oakland expressway in Detroit, in 10 years.

Mackie Calls for Cooperation

Says Area Freeways
Hinge on Agreements
on Local Routes, Costs

Realization of the network of expressways proposed today for Oakland County and Detroit is "contingent on agreement on route location and cost participation with affected communities," State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie stressed today.

"I must emphasize, the highway department is willing to make $632,000,000 available for sorely needed state trunk line improvements in the metropolitan area, and we have the engineering resources and know-how to build them," he said, "but the speed with which these budgeted funds for are spent depends entirely on agreement by local affected communities on route location problems and local cost participation as prescribed by law."

Mackie saw as the greatest single danger to the success of his program "internal squabbles within communities themselves about location, or conflicts between neighboring communities which are unable to agree on route location."

To the officials of affected communities he said this: "We are proposing only general route locations to serve vital traffic needs and will be ready to negotiate final locations as our planning proceeds."

"We are ready to build these expressways. We have budgeted the funds to build them."

NEEDS COOPERATION
"But the job cannot be done nor the money made available on schedule, unless, as our preliminary and final location studies get under way, we have your cooperation and support."

Mackie indicated that the expressway program could be accelerated if additional state or federal funds are made available.

Conversely, he said, if it attempts to divert anticipated state funds (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

The Oakland County expressway, according to Mackie's plans, runs east of Woodward and is designated as an interstate highway, eligible for 90 per cent federal aid.

The announcement came as Mackie revealed a State Highway Dept. plan to make some $632,000,000 in state and federal funds available for metropolitan expressway development.

CHANGE INDICATED

A State Highway Dept. spokesman indicated that Mackie may have changed his mind about extending Northwestern all the way across Oakland County to the Fenton-Clio expressway.

Mackie said that he was forced to go through with this project because $25,000,000 in bonds had already been sold by his predecessor.

However, the spokesman said, it may cost up to $20,000,000 to build the expressway as far as 11-Mile road.

Last month Mackie announced a 1 1/2 billion dollar program of expressway and highway improvement for outstate Michigan, but the north-south Oakland County expressway was not included in it.

At that time, Mackie said he was committed to the 35-mile long Northwestern expressway and could not afford to build a second major Oakland County highway.

129.8 MILES SLATED
Mackie's plan calls for 129.8 miles of new expressways and superhighways to be either constructed or on the drawing boards by the end of the 10-year period in 1967.

Of the 88 miles of expressways and super highways to be under construction or completed by 1967, 52 miles are in Oakland County.

Of the 41.8 miles to be built in the second five-year plan, 3.6 miles are in Oakland County.

Besides the north-south expressway, Mackie proposes in Oakland County during the first five-year plan:

Beaumont Hospital Faces
Greatly Needed Expansion

"Definite expansion plans are facing William Beaumont Hospital," said President Edwin A. Tomlinson today. "The emergency case load of this hospital is greater than the demand upon any other private hospital in the Metropolitan Detroit area."

President Tomlinson declares the requirements for all services far exceed the facilities. "In our first full year," he says, "we had 16,000 emergency cases and considered that absolute saturation."

This year the total will run close to 20,000. We are considering a plan which will elevate Beaumont into a medical center to serve a need beyond that of a community hospital. We feel this is important. Also, we are interested in studying methods to reduce the costs of hospital care.

"In our three years of operation we have used 238 beds to optimum capacity. It was planned to handle about 10,000 cases a year in addition to emergencies and we have gone 20 per cent beyond that each year. More than 7,500 babies have been born at Beaumont; and 18,000 surgical operations have been performed. Our services have been in the widest demand."

"We are badly in need of important capital funds to expand. All Oakland County needs additional services."

E. A. Tomlinson of 1056 Stratford Lane, Bloomfield Hills, has been president of Beaumont from the beginning and along with his current retirement from business, plans to give full time to the hospital problems if they require it.

Soviets Parade Military, Rocket Strength

By SERGE FLIEGERS

MOSCOW (INS)—An awesome display of Soviet military and rocket strength was paraded in Moscow's Red Square today to mark the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Most impressive of several new weapons shown were two giant rockets so big they had to be parked outside the square during the huge military parade.

BELIEVED ICBMs

The two giant rockets were believed to be intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Thirty-eight other rockets were pulled past the Lenin-Stalin mausoleum, where Nikita Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders proudly took salutes from the marchers.

These rockets ranged in size from slim, two-stage missiles to 70-foot-long, cigar-shaped flying

GETS ECSTATIC

The radio Moscow commentator, who was ecstatic in his descriptions of the rockets, said the missiles displayed "have no bounds and are capable of hitting any aircraft."

The diplomatic corps and western observers also were obviously impressed with some new jet-propelled rocket artillery whose range, according to the official news agency Tass, is many times greater than the rockets used by Russia in World War II.

A new type of tank which can be used in amphibious operations and two guns with barrels nearly 50 feet long also were in the marchpast.

There were more than 70 tanks in the parade and units from every gaped when the giant weapons thundered past the mausoleum in blue clouds of exhaust smoke.

FACES GLUM

Many Western diplomats watched the parade with glum faces.

The long barreled "cannon" are believed capable of firing atomic projectiles.

Star of the military showing which lasted only 18 minutes, was the arsenal of rockets that were swiftly hauled past the greatest concentration of Communist leaders ever assembled.

Eclipsed by the rockets but not much less important was a whole motorized airborne brigade, including fast little tanks that can be parachuted from planes.

The ceremonies began sharply at 10 a.m. with the ringing of the Spassky Gate chimes. The military rollpast was heralded

There was almost three million dollars in building permits issued in Waterford Township during the last two months, according to the building department.

There were 174 permits totaling $1,336,245 for homes, commercial business places, garages and additions for October. In the September report, 173 permits totaling $1,375,335 were issued. Commercial building totaled $295,200 for September, as compared with last year's figure of $196,000 for the same month. One of the largest single unit building permits issued last month, was for the new Oakland County Society for Crippled Children's Home on Telegraph road for $45,000. Shanley Quits Post With Ike

Reports Hint Interest in Smith's Senate Seat From New Jersey

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bernard M. Shanley has resigned as a White House aide amid reports he may try next year for the New Jersey Senate seat now held by Sen. H. Alexander Smith, a fellow Republican.

This was the second time Shanley, a 54-year-old, Bernardsville, N. J., lawyer, has stepped out as President Eisenhower's appointee. He quit that post in September 1955, but returned to it a few months later.

In announcing Shanley's new resignation yesterday, the White House gave no indication of his future plans.

Shanley's letter of resignation, dated last Monday, provided no hint. In it, he told Eisenhower "I feel it incumbent upon me to resign as your secretary and return to New Jersey." Eisenhower's reply, dated Tuesday, spoke of "personal considerations" necessitating Shanley's return to his home state. The resignation is effective immediately.

Reports are current that Shanley may seek Smith's Senate seat with Smith to become a special assistant to the President and ambassador to NATO. A White House spokesman said yesterday that Eisenhower has nobody under consideration for the NATO ambassador's post left vacant by the death of former Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga.).

GLASGOW, Scotland—An important new use for helicopters may be the killing of Scotland's bracken pest. Glasgow reports Bracken infests the land of thousands of farms.

Near Moffat a bracken-infested area has been sprayed from a low-flying helicopter and the results will be watched with keen interest by farmers all over Scotland for if they are successful big areas will be freed for cultivation.

Congressman Addresses Oakland Dems

Attacks Space Research Cuts

By PETE LOCHNER

Rep. Sidney R. Yates (D-Ill.) criticism of the Eisenhower administration last night for allowing "the Communist Sputnik to rise while the U.S. defense budget for research fell" was warmly received by one of the largest audiences at a Democratic fund-raising gathering in recent Oakland County history.

More than 650 persons crowded Pontiac Elks Temple, paying $13.50 per couple to hear Yates and see a battery of top Michigan Democrats who were honored guests.

FUNDS RAISED

It was estimated that well over $6,000 was raised at the affair, called the annual Oakland County Democratic Congressional banquet because funds from it will be used for the campaign of the party's 1958 congressional nominee.

County chairman Carlos Richardson believed that the unusually large attendance indicated an increased interest in the Democratic party in Oakland County.

Yates, a Chicago attorney who is serving his fifth term in Congress, criticized Eisenhower for failing to provide national leadership and Republicans for clumping a "new liberalism under the guise of modern Republicanism," while at heart remaining "more economy-minded than America."

REACH NEW HEIGHTS

Yates said that Russia "has soared to new heights just in the past year through the launching of their two 'Sputniks' while the United States 'has deliberately held up its satellite program by separating it as scientific from the military portion of the defense budget."

"Eisenhower has made a tremendous blunder in throwing away the opportunity for the U. S. to be the first nation in the world with a satellite in the sky."

The Illinois Democrat cited Eisenhower's willingness before

Traveling Costs Up for Brooks, Giants

CHICAGO (AP)—With the Dodgers in Los Angeles and Giants in San Francisco, transportation costs for each National League baseball club next season will increase by $35,000 to $40,000.

That was the estimate yesterday of Frank Lane, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, who attended the circuit's 1958 schedule-making meeting.

A schedule was adopted introducing major league baseball to the West Coast April 15, 1958 opening day, which sends the Los Angeles Dodgers to the San Francisco Giants. Other openers include Chicago at St. Louis, Philadelphia at Cincinnati and Pittsburgh at Milwaukee.

The U.S. Army Air Defense School at Fort Bliss, Texas, first had the long handle name of the U.S. Army Antiaircraft Artillery and Guided Missile School.

CUT OUT MORE

"Then when the Senate decided to cut only $1.25 billion, former Defense Secretary Wilson said it was alright to cut out more, as far as he was concerned," said Yates.

Defense budget trimming, plus the Eisenhower administration's policy of meeting debt limitations, has seriously curtailed the U. S. program for space research and development, Yates maintained.

Yates believed that the original Eisenhower budget, while criticized by many as too large, "was not too big for an expanding America."

RELEASE BRAKES

He said that "the brakes should be released on the country's tight fiscal policy," and that if Eisenhower assumed strong leadership in this respect, he would receive Democratic support in Washington.

"The Democrats should do more than just criticize Eisenhower's policies," Yates said. "They should go to the people with their own."

He said that "what this country needs most of all, is an end to the Eisenhower love affair" with big business.

"The President should end his anti-intellectualism and realize that the sole test of a man's value in Washington is not his ability to meet a payroll. We should have men of learning in government as well as men from business."

Yates was introduced by August Scholle, director of the Michigan (10). Also speaking was Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart.

Others at the speaker's table included: Sec. of State James M. Hare; Atty. Gen. Thomas M. Kavanagh; Treasurer Sanford Brown; Aud. Gen. Frank Szymanski; State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie; Democratic state chairman Neil Staeber; state vice chairman Adelaide Hart; national committeeman Thomas Quimby; Justice George Edwards; U. of M. Regent Irene Murphy; agricultural board member C. Allen Harlan and Oakland County Circuit Judge Clark J. Adams.

Claims Sputnik's Threat Needs Special Session

DENVER (INS)—Sen. John Carroll (D-Colo.) claims Sputnik II, the Russian satellite, is enough of a threat to U. S. survival to warrant a special Congressional session.

Carroll said yesterday national survival is at stake and urged the U. S. scientific program be taken from the military and put in the hands of what he termed "competent people."

Other Colorado Congressmen disagreed with Carroll, including GOP Rep. William S. Hill, who said the president has enough power and funds to meet the Russian scientific challenge.

Scientific Leadership Should Be U.S. Goal

With Soviet Russia's earth satellite "Sputnik II" or "Muttik," determinedly circling the globe, it brings to mind a memorable sentence some years ago by H. G. Wells. He said, "Civilization is a race between education and catastrophe."

We may all wonder, despite his terrific imagination, how Wells himself could have seen the challenging and ominous truth which the future would attach to this sentence.

The current satellites, along with the harnessing of atomic energy, threaten the entire world. We could have a catastrophe that would completely annihilate all life on our planet. Man now has the power to destroy himself.

But, ironically, this force which could destroy our civilization is the very force which holds out the greatest promise of man's progress since he learned to use fire.

Atomic energy or its counterpart is the key to the future. Nothing to date can equal its destructive power, and nothing shows more promise for peace. Industry, agriculture, medicine and virtually all activities of man can benefit from this enormous potential.

This great country of ours should be the leader. We are at the top or very close in most other phases of living today. Obviously we are lagging in scientific satellite experimentation.

Whatever measures are needed to regain our rightful position in this scientific age should be taken immediately.

The United Nations International Atomic Energy Agency which officially opened in Vienna in October is a big step toward harnessing the atom for peace. Similar agencies to cover satellites or their counterparts should be established.

This will be a job for the United Nations. The role we play will be vitally important in this constant fight for peace. We must be at the top or dominate the field in order to lead this important fight.

Russians Easing Off in Syrian War Talk

The Soviet charge in the United Nations that Turkey would attack Syria after the Turkish election on October 28, was, of course, completely unfounded.

King SAUD had offered to mediate the alleged quarrel and Syria's President KUWATLY eagerly accepted. Later Moscow sent word that mediation was only an effort to evade U.N. debate and KUWATLY hurriedly asked King SAUD to withdraw his offer. Thus was revealed the real instigator of these drummed up charges.

Two days after the supposed invasion of Syria was to have taken place, KHRUSHCHEV and BULGANIN turned up at a Turkish Embassy party in Moscow and toasted the Turks, Sputnik and peace. "Why talk about war, there'll be no war," said Communist Boss KHRUSHCHEV.

In a hard hitting reply to Russian Foreign Minister GROMYKO's charges that the United States was fomenting the invasion of Syria, U.S. Chief U.N. Delegate LODGE said:

"Here is a government which has been condemned by the U. N. three times in the past year for its actions in Hungary... accusing the overwhelming majority of the human race of wanting war... Here is the arsonist trying his best to start another fire and demanding the right to lead the fire brigade!"

Ambassador LODGE added the warning that the U.S. would not be stopped by threats from offering support to Middle East nations threatened by the Soviet Union; that we are strong and that our Allies are strong.

No U.N. resolution is now likely to be adopted. However, the Turkish-Syrian matter has served Soviet propaganda purposes and has succeeded in consolidating the pro-Communist regime of Syria's General BRIZRI. Perhaps that is all it was intended to do.

The Man About Town

Local Man Is Invited to Detroit Ceremonies Today

Sunrise: What's as gorgeous as a sunset—but with smaller audience.

In a dual capacity in Detroit today is

L. Harvey Lodge, taking part in the dedication of the John C. Lodge Expressway. As Oakland County's State Senator he represents his 600,000 constituents. In a personal way, he was invited because he is a nephew of the late John C. Lodge, in whose honor the expressway is named and who was a prominent resident of our county before going to Detroit, where he became mayor. When here he held a number of county offices, and had much to do with the development of the Pontiac area.

Holding many top committee assignments on the Oakland County Board of Supervisors during his incumbency from 1932 to 1946 was Ray E. Duncan of South Lyon, who died Tuesday at the age of 77. Ray's counsel and advice was eagerly sought and highly valued by his associates.

A reminder of the old fashioned property-destriving method of celebrating Halloween a half century ago is found in a clipping from the Pontiac Press of Nov. 1, 1907, sent by me

Hannibal Orentt, then of Pontiac, now living in Detroit. It tells of streets barricaded with vehicles, lumber and trash. The story closes with the statement, "They did everything but change the course of the Clinton River."

The Christmas tree trek already has started on the Dixie Highway. Hailing me at a gas station.

Gerald Funston, formerly of Pontiac, now of West Branch, had a Detroit-bound truck load. He says the first shipments largely go to merchants who spray them in preparation for window displays.

Being quite sure that they heard Sputnik late the other night.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Greenfield of Auburn Heights were happy to learn that it was a loose window blind. Mrs. Greenfield wonders if some of the other reports on contacting it are not just as authentic.

My highly valued editorial friend,

John Gray who issues that beautiful magazine, Michigan Conservation, has a common major trouble with me—making the home folks fully appreciate what nature has done for us.

A bevy of quail near the home of Eber Frostman of Lake Orion has increased from a single pair to over 50 in less than five years. They're almost as tame as chickens, and appear to thrive on their year round protection from hunters.

David Lawrence Says:

Segregation Wins in Virginia Vote

WASHINGTON—The Constitution is still what the people say it is. Two candidates for governor of Virginia—each opposed in varying degree to "integration" of the public schools—fought it out in the statewide election, and the Democrat, J. Lindsay Almond, who was generally believed by the people to be the sturdier defender of segregation, won out by a big majority.

This was the first important election in which the segregation-integration issue has played a vital role.

The Republican Party lost ground. It didn't even pool half of what Eisenhower did a year ago. As for the Democrats, they polled 60,000 more votes this time than the National Democratic Party did in the state last year.

The people of Virginia unquestionably voted against the doctrine which the Supreme Court advocated in its political decision of May 1954. Both candidates actually discussed various ways, supposedly legal, to circumvent the Supreme Court's argument that equal educational facilities cannot be satisfactory unless the races are mixed in the schools.

There was much talk during the campaign about "pupil placement" laws such as have been adopted in other states, notably North Carolina. These plans generally imply that there may be a "token" integration but that most schools would remain segregated.

It is hardly likely that such laws will be held "constitutional" by the present Supreme Court, since any form of racial separation—no matter how ostensibly reasonable—will probably be held invalid if it turns out that a considerable number of Negro students are barred from the public schools they desire to attend.

WON'T GET WAY

So, while the new regime in Virginia may be discussing alternatives to get around in a legal way the Supreme Court's decisions, it is not at all clear that the people of Virginia who voted against "integration" on Tuesday will have their way.

Most of the moves are in the nature of delaying actions, with the hope being expressed that time will ultimately make possible some form of compromise.

As for the political implications of the segregation controversy in other parts of the country, it is to be noted that in New Jersey, in the heavily populated Negro wards and communities, the Republicans actually lost voting strength as compared with a year ago while the Democrats won a big majority of the Negro vote throughout the state.

The trend in New Jersey was in favor of the incumbent, Governor Robert Meyner. A big majority thought he had made a good governor in the last four years. The Republicans gained about 83,000 votes as compared with the gubernatorial race four years ago, but the Democrats gained around 135,000.

GOP STAYED HOME Governor Meyner polled 247,000 more votes this week than Stevenson did a year ago, while about 712,000 Republicans who voted for like a year ago didn't vote for the Republican nominee for governor, Malcolm Forbes. Assuming that 247,000 of these supporters of the voted for Meyner, it still leaves unaccounted for about 465,000 Republicans.

This is somewhat the same story in New York City, where the total vote fell off about 150,000 as compared with the municipal election four years ago but very heavily indeed compared to a year ago in the presidential race.

Dr. William Brady Says:

Take Milk, Eggs, Meat for Good Health, Vite

The piece about the fine health people in the Loetschental Valley in Switzerland enjoy on their diet of milk, cheese, butter, eggs, whole grains and meat and vegetables brought numerous letters from readers who were born and raised in that part of Switzerland and all seem to have exceptionally good health and VITE. If you don't know just what VITE means, you poor soul, you had better slip me 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a copy of the booklet THE 7 KEYS TO VITE.

These Swiss men, women and children, it seems to me, are the best evidence that milk is a health food.

In the first place, milk (whether fresh whole milk or skim or separator milk or buttermilk) is the best food source of calcium. Cheese is the next best source of calcium.

Growing children who consume less than 1 1/2 pints (three glasses) of milk daily are likely to suffer from calcium deficiency.

Life expectancy in the Loetschental Valley is 100 years, and most persons, 80 to 90 years old, continue doing manual work.

Besides the letters from natives of the Loetschental, there were, of course, some from Yankee wise-acs.

A Yankee, in my lexicon, is any resident of North America. A wise-acre has a smattering of knowledge which makes him, in his own opinion, an authority on the subject.

These YAs are always setting me back on my heels. I wouldn't mind so much if they were not so supercilious about it. "For your information," they begin, "milk has a high fatty acid content and cholesterol is derived from fatty acids."

Now, if it were worthwhile to answer the YAs, I'd say: "Yours of month before last at hand and contents duly noted. In reply to same, I beg to state that cholesterol is a normal constituent of blood and tissues and serves various physiological functions. The cholesterol level in the blood is not indicative of anything in particular."

Let me quote a conclusion about this from Duncan's "Diseases of Metabolism."

"In view of the wide variation in the cholesterol concentration of the serum or plasma in health, apparent deviations from normal in the presence of disease must be interpreted with caution."

This whole question of the relation of cholesterol to health or disease is in the realm of theory, research and laboratory experimentation.

Medical merchants who are advising people to restrict their intake of such important foods as milk, eggs and meat on this account are, in my opinion, taking money under false pretenses.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Consider Future Before You Leap

Given called her boy friend's bluff. And though she lost him for three weeks, she won him for the rest of the school year. For boys like girls with "spunk". And if a coed doesn't have enough spirit and personality to hold a boy, giving him sexual liberties will not do the trick, either. So get hep to the true facts of life!

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE Case W-340: Gwen Q., aged 16, is the high schooler mentioned yesterday whose steady boy friend was making undue demands upon her for illicit sexual liberties.

"Dr. Crane, it will be awful to give him up," she wept, "for every body will know he has jilted me."

"We've been going together all year and I don't know what I'll do for a new boy friend."

"But I'll do what you suggest. My faculty adviser told me that, too, and my parents of course agree with you."

Please notice that Gwen is so afraid of being jilted and thus publicly humiliated, that she is almost willing to consent to an illicit affair just to keep in the social "swim."

That subtle coercion is what drives thousands of stupid girls into a sad mistake which warps their entire future lives.

Girls are notoriously poor gamblers! They hate to take a chance on losing a boy friend. If the latter threatens them, they tend to knuckle under and submit.

Then, when they are afflicted with venereal disease or preg-

Voice of the People

Suggests Other Ordinances for Teenagers to Submit

A teenage-sponsored curfew ordinance is being presented to the City Commission, and since teenagers have always been judged by the wayward few, their action is commendable.

May I suggest other ordinances for them to submit? Why not an ordinance to get mothers and fathers out of beer gardens by 11 p.m. instead of 2:30 a.m.; or one to prohibit lewd and vicious magazines and movies; and one to close all stores on Sunday and to close all retail stores at 5:30 p.m. on election days so help can vote; plus a recommendation that thousands of dollars be saved by eliminating painting of curbs since parking signs are in evidence everywhere?

If teenagers accomplish any of these things, they shall put my generation to shame and I shall applaud them for a job well done.

Reader Comments on Hospital Vote

The city and hospital officials were surprised and stunned at the bond issue failing to pass, but if they had taken the trouble to look around Pontiac, they needn't have been. Most of our homes are under the $15,000 class, and most of our people earn $5,000 or less a year.

This is a factory town, not Grosse Pointe or Bloomfield. These grandiose public buildings and luxurious schools are fine for wealthy communities, but the fact remains we have an empty hospital addition and a full public safety building. Let's put off some of these less needy projects and use our entire capital improvement fund to finish a floor at a time, if necessary.

Let the city budget its money and pull in its belt like we must do when the cost of living soars. As someone in this column wrote, perhaps it isn't the high cost of living, but the cost of high living.

Exquisite Cottage Not Quite Complete

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Back in 1881 Lucky Baldwin, the early California millionaire, built an exquisite Queen Anne Cottage here for his third wife.

The house has stained glass windows brought from Europe. White marble was brought from Vermont and dark marble from Tennessee.

The marble fireplaces probably were imported from Italy. The ceilings are 14 feet high and there are fancy chandeliers and tall narrow windows.
The elaborate house seems complete except for one thing. It does not have a kitchen. Food was prepared in a house on the other side of a small lake and transported to the Baldwin cottage by boat.

The San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge carries 22,000 vehicles every day.

Hare Cautions State Drivers

Foreign Car Owners Told to Keep Records of Diesel Fuel Bought

LANSING (AP) — Secy. of State James M. Hare cautioned today that owners of foreign-made cars burning diesel fuel are required by Michigan law to make monthly reports of fuel purchases.

In addition, a special permit is required for use of such a vehicle on a state highway.

Hare said that a number of requests for information on this feature of the law have been received lately from servicemen stationed overseas and apparently contemplating purchase of sports cars and their shipment back to this country.

Hare said the fuel purchase report and permit regulations are the same as those applying to diesel trucks and noted there is a state tax of six cents a gallon on this type of fuel.

Only Monday, he said, a Battle Creek vendor of diesel fuel, John Comark, was fined $150, assessed $150 costs and given probation of two years in a court case at Marshall.

Comark was charged with selling diesel fuel for use in motor vehicles without possessing the special dealer's license required by law, and with failure to collect and remit the state tax, Hare said.

An inter-state produce hauler from Florida recently was assessed a similar fine in the same court by Judge Blaine W. Hatch, he said.

Hare said that he believed there have been other evasions of the diesel fuel tax law and that his motor fuel tax investigators are on the lookout for this type of violation.

Peer Arouses Furor by Criticizing Queen

LONDON — A young British peer, Lord Altrincham, started a furor when he wrote, in a magazine he edits, that the Queen's way of speaking is "a pain in the neck."

He attacked the Queen and her Court ("almost all are of the tweedy sort") and has been getting "told off" ever since. "I not yet making the best of her opportunities. The candid friend is never popular."

However, Lord Altrincham said he was expressing his devotion to the Queen, "who is the symbol of what I care for most—the Christian tradition in our country and the unity of races within the Commonwealth. But I am sure she is

Alabama Study Club Plans Odd Program

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — A Montgomery, Ala., study club announced this general theme for the year's programs:

"Profound, Puritanical, Pertinent, Pithy Periodicals and Published Peeves, Plucked from Past and Present Pages."

Gives Predecessor Suspended Fine of $5

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. — Police Judge John E. Brown gave Ben Osuna, a local attorney, a suspended $5 fine for running past a stop sign.

Brown explained the suspension was "out of respect for your former position."

Osuna is a former Albuquerque police judge.

Ask Tighter Laws on Drunk Driving

GLASGOW — A fantastic increase in drunken driving accidents in Scotland has caused road safety committees to press for changes in the traffic laws.

In Glasgow there were 33 per cent more drunk driver cases in 1956 than in 1955 and in Edinburgh the cases were up 76 per cent. As many offenders are wealthy, a fine of even several hundred dollars is no deterrent. It is pointed out, "If necessary a law should be enacted disqualifying them for life," says Eric R. Lower, head of a safety committee.

Some committees suggest laws modeled after those of Sweden. There the police may arrest any driver they suspect has been drinking and he is immediately given a blood test and fined heavily if it is positive.

Little 'Goldilocks' Says She's 'Knucklehead'

ENID, Okla. — Service station Operator Mike Withers was taken aback by a reply from a blond little girl as he cleaned off the windshield of her mother's car.

"I'll bet your mother calls you Goldilocks," he suggested hopefully.

"She don't neither," shot back the youngster. "She calls me knucklehead."

Ask Gifted Child Why? As Well as What?

Fast Pupil Needs Richer Program

By JOHN BARROW
INS Staff Writer

If Johnny breezes through school with no effort, is he getting an even break? Are his classmates growing "think muscles" while he grows bored?

Few argue against the individual attention due the "gifted" child. The bugaboo—especially to a teacher with 40 pupils—is: How?

Some believe brighter pupils should be weeded out, given a special room and special teacher, and let run full tilt. Others say, skip them to a higher grade. But what about a second grader who has a fourth grade ability to read but a first grade proficiency in arithmetic?

Also, considering he must live "with all kinds" as an adult, many assert it's more wholesome to keep a child with his own age group—not the "artificiality of an elite corps." Loren Vaughn of Phoenix schools says:

"Our gifted children are not separated because we feel this would be bad for them as well as for the rest of the pupils. Our experience is that singling out the gifted child creates snobishness on his part."

"We operate under an 'enrichment program' for the brighter children whereby the teacher assigns special projects and special reading."

ENRICHMENT NEEDED

Enrichment, rather than speed-up, is urged by Superintendent J. W. Edwards of Portland, Ore., and Superintendent Mark Schinnerer of Cleveland whose systems are celebrated for their provisions for gifted children.

A similar view is held by California, Pennsylvania, Detroit, Blackstone, Mass., Kansas City, Omaha, Washington, D.C., and Chicago, among others.

While a Blackstone, Mass., class studied the "throne of England" and Queen Elizabeth's recent trip, Superintendent J. Francis O'Mara relates:

"One or more of the brighter pupils was assigned to do the background of the countries and people visited. This teaches them to research and analyze."

A Chicago board of education spokesman explains:

"While the others around him are asked 'what' questions, we ask the gifted child 'why.' And we prefer to stimulate him to think up special projects on his own, rather than simply to assign them."

In Denver, administrative assistant Jack E. Boyd says teachers try to break the classroom into groups of compatible learning levels and enrich the "gifted" program with advanced material and a wider variety.

Philadelphia groups its pupils according to subject. Superintendent Allen H. Welter says: "Those able to read exceedingly well go to a special group and are given books above grade level. The same holds true in other areas of study in which special talents lie."

Nine elementary school centers are used by St. Louis to develop a "high level of performance" and "efficient work habits" for brighter pupils. Assistant Superintendent William Kottmeyer says:

"Fast learners are identified in the fifth grade, enter the program in the sixth, and continue through the eighth."

NOT EGGBREDS

"The curious but common notion that segregation for education purposes is 'undemocratic' and that the products will therefore be a parcel of insufferably arrogant eggheads is being dispelled. Measures of social adjustment of these pupils show greater gains than in the academic areas."

Indianapolis operates 20 centers with accelerated programs. Superintendent Herman L. Shilber says: "They do not receive jump promotions, since they may not mature socially or physically as quickly as mentally."

"From 9th grade to high school, they have 'multiple track' curriculum. They might start English at a junior or senior high school level and increase to a freshman or sophomore college level."

Atlanta is "not particularly concerned with letting them skip grades," says Assistant Superintendent Roy W. Davis. He adds:

"Those who appear to have the ability are placed in special advanced classes where the curriculum is meaty enough for them."

California's methods vary. Donald S. Kitch, chief of the education department's supplemental services, says: "They may involve special consultants on the subject, moving the child up a grade, giving enrichment materials, hobby groups or special projects."

"Some districts have special classes where a particular teacher will handle several grade levels of gifted children."

California appropriated $40,000

this year for a special study of the needs of gifted children.

Northwestern University's professor of education, Paul A. Witty, longtime champion of the gifted child, says that overall, there's still a lack of suitable materials and teachers trained to deal with bright children.

But Witty added: "I think during the last 10 years there's been a tremendous improvement as indicated by the greater interest and effort made by public school people.

"It's one of the most heartening things I know in education today." (Next: Television—robot teaching?)

Man Struck by Car Reported Satisfactory

Rock R. French, 76, of 91 Fairgrove St., was admitted to Pontiac General Hospital Tuesday evening after being hit by a car at the intersection of Saginaw and Huron Streets, according to Pontiac Police.

French suffered leg cuts and shock, said a hospital spokesman, and is listed in satisfactory condition today. The driver, Louis E. Kuenzer, 71, of 832 Melrose St., is the officer that French walked directly into his path, leaving him no time to avoid the accident.

Prince Philip Receives Honor

President Gives Medal of Geographic Society for 'Questing Spirit'

WASHINGTON — Queen Elizabeth II temporarily stepped out of the limelight during the royal visit to Washington while Prince Philip was honored for service to geography.

President Eisenhower presented the National Geographic Society's Gold Medal to the Queen's husband in a ceremony in the White House. The medal is inscribed:

"To H.R.H. The Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, whose questing spirit has taken him to the far corners of the globe and brought to millions a better understanding of our planet and its peoples."

Last year, Prince Philip made a 40,000-mile trip around the world, visiting over a four-month period many of the remote and lonely outposts of the British Empire.

VISITS ISLANDS OF EMPIRE

In an article in a magazine, Prince Philip recalls, "I visited the Chatham Islands, 500 miles east of New Zealand, population 600; Graham Land, population 60; temporary inhabitants and several million penguins; the Falkland Islands, population 2,000; Tristan da Cunha, population 250; and St. Helena, population 5,000," in addition to such better-known places as Africa, the Seychelles, Ceylon, Malaya, Australia, and New Guinea.

During the ceremony Dr. Melville Bell Grosvenor, president of the Society declared:

"Such men as Hillary and Hunt, Peary and Byrd have added to the world's geographic knowledge by reaching the heights of Everest or the uttermost ends of the earth. But it is not necessary to go where no one has been before to achieve this purpose."

"His Royal Highness Prince Philip has accomplished it in a different way. His eagerness to go where the going was rough—his interest in the far away and hard to reach places—his concern with those of the Empire's subjects who seldom see his like—all these indeed brought to millions a new understanding of our world and its people."

The last Presidential presentation of a Society medal was made by President Eisenhower to Sir Edmund Hillary, Sir John Hunt, and the group that first climbed Everest. The ceremony was on February 11, 1954. Seven earlier Presidents have presented National Geographic Society medals: Theodore Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Coolidge, Hoover, Franklin Roosevelt, and Truman.

New York Buses First

NEW YORK — The first motorized bus service was introduced in the United States 50 years ago in New York City.

Manhattan Cave Dweller Happy in Vermont

By PHYLIS BATTLE
NEW YORK (INS) — Every intelligent man who is chained to a big city, by his job or by a brain washing love of quickness and noise, is doomed to wake up one morning and decide he is crazy. Why ain't I in the country? he is bound to say, where it's so peaceful.

Fortunately for the city's census, this sudden depression usually has passed over by noon, and the 14-carat city man is admitting to himself, over the first cigarette in the second pack, that he prefers Broadway to grass, and would rather be ignored by his neighbors than clucked about.

"Sometimes though, there is nothing you can do. The doctor says quit your job and go to the country — either that or pass out quick," Josef Petermann, formerly of New York and now of West Townshend, Vt., shrugs agreeably. "Under these circumstances, you get a move on."

It was seven years ago that Hungarian-born Petermann got his medical orders. He looked in the papers and saw an ad for a country "general store" in Vermont. (And people leaving New York prefer general stores, weekly newspapers and antique shops, two-to-one, over lemonade and hammocks.)

BOUGHT STORE

So Petermann bought the country store and with his wife he ventured into the great unknown of birds, trees and people who don't see many new faces — and rather like it that way.

"That store, it didn't do much business for a long time," Josef reported back to his happily frantic friends in New York. He was getting a long, expensive rest. But Petermann, recall, is of European descent and big city inclination, so he never stopped working "to woo the people."

He began by aging the local cheddar cheese himself; his wife became the local postmistress, in the front of the store; he restored all the antiques he could find and sold them for practically nothing to local Vermonters; he conducted a service to bring doctors to anybody who wanted them in the middle of the night. And all the time, he studied the local ore as no one had thought to do in this insular little town.

PUT UP SIGNS

When Petermann discovered that it was the old home site of the Taft family before they migrated to Ohio, he put up signs to guide tourists off the main routes to his hamlet. He also made a special stamp-cancellation mark for his wife to use on incoming letters: "West Townshend, Vt., birthplace, Robert A. Taft's ancestors."

Gradually, the small town folks from Vermont realized that the big city boy from New York was showing them how to live better and broader lives. West Townshend is booming with tourist business in the summer, and the country store, which seven years ago had 500 visitors a week, now has had 50,000.

Petermann never has worked so hard in his life, nor been so healthy.

On a nostalgic trip to New York, him, of course; but feel greener than usual inside at the sight of Switch' doctors. They laugh at his ruddy new complexion.

Old Landlord, Tenant Wage Furious Battle

DECATUR, Ill. (U. P.)—A landlord, 74, accused his tenant, 81, of spreading lies about him. The tenant took exception and jumped from his chair to punch his landlord in the nose. The 84-year-old tenant then grabbed a stove shaker and hit the landlord again. The landlord grabbed a baseball bat and took after his tenant.

After the fight the 74-year-old landlord went to a tavern for a beer. The bartender called for an ambulance, sheriff's deputies and a doctor.

The two oldsters required some stitching. Twelve stitches were taken in the head of the 74-year-old landlord and 20 in the scalp of the 84-year-old tenant.

TULSA, Okla. (U. P.)—Tulsa Police Chief Joe McGuire's request for more money to buy whiskey did not cause a commissioner to raise an eyebrow in dry Oklahoma. He wanted the money to buy whiskey from bootleggers for evidence.

Billions for Accidents

Broomfield will be present for the occasion and will present the dedicatory address. The view at top shows the complete school building, with the elementary section to the left. Lower photo is closeup of new shop rooms and lunch room of the high school.

Brandon Plans Dedication of New High School Sunday

BRANDON TOWNSHIP—A dedication program for the new Brandon High School will be held next Sunday at 3 p.m., in the school auditorium. Open house will be from 2 to 5 p.m.

William S. Broomfield, U.S. Congressman from Royal Oak will give the dedicatory address.

Invocation will be by the Rev. Isaac McPhee, Methodist pastor here, and the benediction will be by the Rev. John Hardy of St. Anne Church.

Supt. E. J. Hungerford is slated to introduce James F. Slattery who, in turn will introduce members of the Board of Education.

Brandon School band, under direction of Thomas Young, will play a musical group including the National Anthem, Seymour Lake Choir, directed by Mrs. Bernadine Miller will sing.

The new structure has 16 teaching stations. Student furniture for the building amounted to $6,000 while special furniture for biology, chemistry, labs and home economics department, arts and crafts and library totaled $35,000. Total cost of the building was $42,000. Rooms in both elementary and

Following the program, refreshments will be served in the new cafeteria by the School's hot lunch personnel.

Ground Beef Thief Stymies Troy's Chief

TROY—Police here would welcome the assistance of a "Dr. Watson" as they examine the list of properties taken from the Troy High School over the weekend.

About five pounds of ground beef, 22 pounds of butter, and 30 dozen eggs were stolen. A quantity of pepperoni is believed to have been eaten at the school.

Police Chief David Gratton is wondering, now, how one identifies ground beef.

He added that an attempt to open the office safe failed, apparently sending the hungry burglars on to the school cafeteria kitchen.

Parents of Linda Mae Bailey are Mr. and Mrs. Perry Bailey of 5667 Casey Rd., and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Walker, 5339 Hunters Creek Rd., are the bridegroom's parents.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore floor-length white nylon net, with a fingertip veil of illusion secured by a seed-pearl crown. Her flowers were orchids and carnations.

Mary Walker, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and Diane Bailey, sister of the bride, served as flowergirl. Billie Bailey, a brother was ringbearer.

Elmer Bailey, brother of the bride was best man and an attendant.

Ray Bromley headed the Rotarian committee which prepared and served the roast turkey dinner for about 200.

Toastmaster for the banquet was Robert Parenti. Ralph Curtis, president of the host group, welcomed the guests, and Ralph Hickmott Jr., responded for the guests.

The Oxford High School Choir, directed by Mrs. Dorothy Jean Valentine, provided music.

Tax notices will be mailed about Dec. 1.

The Board in its regular meeting Tuesday night, appointed Charles Robinson to fill a vacancy on the board of the Clarkston Community Center. Norman Jenkins and Orrie Adams were named for three-year terms on the same board.

Remain Silent When Arrested

Answer No Questions;
Keep Your Head; Know
Your Legal Rights

NEW YORK — Each year a surprising number of well-meaning citizens find themselves in criminal court. Automobile accidents are probably the most common cause.

According to an article in a recent issue of a national magazine, whether you are guilty or innocent the most important thing to remember when you are arrested is to keep your head. Even though a refusal to answer may seem an admission of guilt, do not answer questions.

The only information you are obliged to give the police is your name and address. Anything beyond this may be used against you at your trial.

Certain rights are also yours while you are under arrest. The police must allow you to make one telephone call to inform your family, a friend, or your lawyer of your arrest.

Don't discuss the case on the phone.

You should also remember that it is illegal for the police to hold you without entering the charge against you in the "police blotter." Your name here is your best guarantee of being released as quickly as possible.

In every state you have the right to the earliest possible arraignment. This consists in your coming before a local magistrate who hears the evidence and determines whether there are grounds for criminal action against you. He does not try to determine your guilt. He decides the nature of the charges and sets your bail. Since both these matters are most important you should have a lawyer with you during arraignment.

In all felony cases a grand jury indictment and a jury trial are necessary. A jury trial may take weeks and cost the accused thousands of dollars. If you cannot afford a lawyer, you have the right to request that the court appoint one.

Bing Crosby's real name is Harry Lillis Crosby. He is also a good song writer. His best known composition: "I Don't Stand a Ghost of a Chance With You."

Expert Reports Abortive Attempt to Launch Sputnik

PARIS (AP)—A Parisian astronomer said last night the Russians may have misfired one of their Sputniks in mid-August.

Paul Couderc of the Paris Observatory told a capacity audience that the Haute Provence Observatory in southeastern France noted a "bizarre object" in the sky the night of Aug. 19 going toward the Mediterranean.

"We now believe it was without doubt an abortive attempt at launching a satellite," Couderc said.

PADIHAM, England (AP)—A snail set fire to Miss Mary Hartley's house.

The moist little gastropod molar crawled into an electrical socket, causing a short circuit. Damage to the house was minor; to the snail total.

Make Thorough Study

DALLAS (AP)—Rep. Bruce Alger's (R-Tex.) staff is looking for cotton bolls complete with weevils. A letter from Mary Agnes Cox said her fourth grade class at Paxton, Ind., is studying cotton and asked: "Will you please send me some cotton bolls and a weevil if you can?"

No Visible Discontent in Russia

Reds Took Over 40 Years Ago Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—Forty years ago today Communists seized power in Russia. What's happened in that time? What lies ahead?

In 40 years the Russians have made astonishing progress in industry and science. The progress has been concentrated most notably on weapons, the atomic and H-bombs, jet planes, missiles and earth satellites.

That progress would have provided the Russian people with far higher living standards—if it had been devoted to peacetime goods.

In short, a couple of generations of Russians have been used—while forced to do without the modern conveniences and luxuries of the West—to bring Russia abreast of the West industrially in a rush.

There is no visible discontent in Russia. Living standards can be expected to go up continually as industrial-scientific development is expanded to meet more of the people's needs.

In one spot—the political system—Russia is still immensely backward. A comparatively small group of self-appointed leaders—perhaps 10 million out of more than 200 million people—still rule it by force.

Red party control is a little more relaxed than in Stalin's day. In time perhaps it too will undergo a change and become more democratic, permitting wider participation in government for one of two reasons: either through evolutionary change or the demands and pressures of the people as they become increasingly more educated and questioning.

No government remains fixed and frozen forever. History belies that thought.

On one thing the Red bosses of 1917 were wrong: they thought then world revolution was just around the corner. Disappointed in that, but aggressively crusading, they set out to bring about what didn't happen by itself.

In 40 years—by force and never by persuasion or open and free elections—communism has grabbed all of Eastern Europe, all of China, half of Viet Nam, and North Korea. Its influence is spreading in Asia and the Middle East.

The peoples of the European satellites have shown vast discontent with their Russian masters. That does not mean communism will not spread without the use of Russian armies.

There are such weapons as infiltration, seizure from within, persuasion and example. The industrial and scientific progress of who, still living in feudal societies, want to leap in a hurry into the 20th century. For many of them, who never knew democracy, communism may seem a faster way of getting places than a democratic society operating under capitalism.

As the years pass, and Russians live better, they will probably move more toward capitalism.

And the Western powers, to offset the gains of communism, may be forced to move more toward socialism.

Doctors say the left hand pockets of their suits wear out first. That's where they keep their stop watch to check pulse reactions.

Security for You

Living Outside U. S. Can Affect Payment

By RAY HENRY

Living outside the United States, except, in a Communist-dominated country, has no bearing on your right to Social Security payments if you're a U. S. citizen by birth.

But, there are some special provisions in the Social Security law covering you if:

1. You're an alien, earn the right to Social Security while living in the United States, leave the country and apply for payments while abroad, or

2. You're a naturalized citizen, leave the United States and apply for Social Security payments while abroad.

FOR ALIENS

Here's the story if you're an alien who leaves the country after earning the right to payments and applies for them abroad:

You can't collect payments for more than six months after you leave unless:

— You've lived in the United States or worked under Social Security for at least 10 years, or — The suspension of payments will affect treaty obligations of the United States which existed before Aug. 1, 1956, or — You're a citizen of a country which has a Social Security system which pays United States citizens who return to the United States to live, or — You became entitled to payments before Jan. 1, 1957.

Although your payments may be stopped after six months unless you are among the exempt groups above, your payments may resume if you return to the United States for at least a month.

FOR NATURALIZED CITIZENS

Here's the story if you're a naturalized citizen and you leave the United States and apply for Social Security while abroad:

You can collect Social Security payments by meeting the same requirements as a native-born citizen unless you stay outside the United States so long that, under U. S. naturalization laws, you're required to forfeit your citizenship.

If you have to forfeit your citizenship, you become an alien and fall under the rules of the Social Security law listed above which apply to aliens.

The United States naturalization laws automatically require most naturalized citizens to give up their citizenship if they return to their native land and remain for at least three years.

And, most people who are naturalized citizens and don't take up residence in their native land, but who remain outside the United States for at least five years, also lose their United States citizenship.

There are exceptions to these rules on loss of citizenship. So if you're a naturalized citizen and you're thinking of going abroad you should check before going whether you fit under one of the exceptions. You may be allowed to draw Social Security as if you were a native-born citizen.

Whether you're a citizen or alien, you can't receive payments in the Communist-dominated countries. This includes Albania, East Berlin, Bulgaria, China (except Hong Kong and Formosa), Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary, North Korea, Romania and Russia.

Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia aren't listed because they've been taken over by Russia. So, the same bar against sending checks to these areas applies.

The government will not allow payments to be made to be these countries because it's not sure that the eligible person will actually receive them.

Questions on Social Security problems may be addressed to "Social Security" in care of The Pontiac Press. Questions will be answered by mail from the Pontiac office of the Social Security Administration. There is no charge for this service.)

George Town, Ky. — This city will lose money on two men fined $500 each and given 30-day jail sentences. They elected "to lay out" the fine in jail.

Kentucky City to Lose Money on Jailed Men

That means each serves 30 days to pay off his fine at the rate of $2 a day. The extra 30-day terms add up to a total of 280 days for each.

Friend's 'Gift' Costly

Visiting Nurse Assn. Serves Area

ANGEL OF MERCY — Mrs. Anna Carry, 65, of 10 Bliss St., smiles at the visiting nurse, Mrs. C. E. Berden, during a regular visit. Mrs. Carry is recovering from a leg injury incurred in an auto accident. The Pontiac Visiting Nurses Assn. aids anyone who needs home nursing, with the Pontiac Area United Fund paying for those unable to pay.

Rain, Snow Overflow Streams in Mid-Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (U-P) — A five-day storm of rain and snow caused streams and rivers to overflow and isolate many residents of the desolate east-central Utah area some 180 miles from here.

There are no telephone lines to the area. It was not possible to get reliable reports but an estimated 200 persons were cut off by overflowing rivers washing out roads. Hardest hit was Hanksville, population 80. The flooding, which started Monday, was expected to ease today.

Best Year for Ramblers

DETROIT (U-P) — American Motors Corp. says that, with two months to go, 1957 already is the best sales year on record for its Rambler cars. AM says Rambler sales totaled 77,318 in the first 10 months, compared with 73,807 in 1956, the previous record year.

A moment's carelessness by another has meant months of pain, disability and mounting medical expenses to Mrs. Anna Carry, 65, of 10 Bliss St. But it also revealed to her one of the excellent services available to Pontiac area residents — the Pontiac Visiting Nurses Assn.

Mrs. Carry, whose husband, Ray, is one year from retirement at General Motors Truck and Coach, was riding with a friend on Jan. 12 when the collision occurred with the car of a teenage boy.

Mrs. Carry suffered a broken leg and it has incapacitated her to a large extent since. After coming home from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Mrs. Carry was in need of regular nursing to change dressings.

The Pontiac Visiting Nurses supplied this need and even today a nurse goes to Mrs. Carry's home three times a week to change surgical dressings following an operation on the leg in March.

AVAILABLE TO PUBLIC

"It is a comforting thought to know that a necessary professional service like nursing is available to the public through the association," Mrs. Carry said. "I am glad that Pontiac Area United Fund supports this vital service."

Mrs. Mary Paul, association director, a trained nurse herself has seven other professional nurses in her group.

The association provides bedside nursing in the home on a part-time basis. Those who can pay $4 a long visit and $3 a short visit with a graduated scale downward according to means. Many get this service free and the UF pays the bill.

parts of Bloomfield and Avon Townships and Troy.

PURELY LOCAL ORGANIZATION — A purely local organization, the Visiting Nurses were founded in 1921 by a group of Pontiac women to fill an apparent community need. Fifteen women serve on the board of directors.

The Visiting Nurses Assn. also is under contract with the Veterans Administration to give home nursing to approved VA patients.

One of a dozen independent nursing associations in Michigan, the Pontiac group truly lives up to the "angels of mercy" tradition of nursing.

Train Kills 5 Women at Indiana Crossing

LA PORTE, Ind. (INS) — Five women and a teenage boy were killed last night when their car was struck by an eastbound new York Central passenger train at a rural crossing near the La Porte St. Joseph county boundary line.

Dunes Park state police identified the dead as Mrs. Jean Vandenberg, 39, driver of the car; Mrs. Irene Williams, 45; her daughter, Mary Ann, 17; Mrs. William Barker, 52; Mrs. Aileen Spencer, 50, and her son, Michael, 11. All had lived near New Carlisle, Ind.

Officers said the driver of the car apparently had waited at the double-line track to let a west bound freight train pass and then started up into the path of the eastbound passenger train.

Venezuela to Build $98,000,000 Bridge

MARACAIBO, Venezuela — A $98,000,000 prestressed-concrete bridge across the Lake Maracaibo narrows, to provide direct land transportation from the important port and oil center, Maracaibo, to the central and eastern parts of Venezuela is expected to be completed by 1960.

It will be 5½ miles long and the central span will be high enough for the world's largest tankers to sail under. The roadway is to have two dual-lane automobile roads separated by a railroad track.

Mayor Proclaims Week for Youth Appreciation

By proclamation of Mayor William W. Donaldson, in cooperation with the Pontiac Optimist Club, this week has been set aside as Youth Appreciation Week.

The Optimist Club has supervised the setting up of various window displays by youth groups in the downtown area. Many of the stores on Saginaw street are sporting displays created by such groups as the Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, Y.M.C.A., and area boys' clubs.

This is in line with the proclamation which urges all citizens, particularly parents, to join in this appreciation of youth as a recognition of their accomplishments, and greet them with renewed and friendly confidence.

The movement was begun three years ago when Optimist Club officials said statistics revealed that 95 per cent of the Youth of America were citizens worthy of commendation, but the other five per cent got into most of the trouble.

Impartial Comment

DENVER (INS) — Colorado Chief Justice O. Otto Moore, on hearing he had been given a lifetime honorary membership to the Pawnee Indian tribe, said he now can greet reporters who want advance tips on Supreme Court decisions with a noncommittal "ugh" instead of the usual "no comment."

LOOK WHAT'S COMING — Mary Popour, Douglas Butters and Joey Saiz (left to right) seem to be quite excited that Will Rogers School fair will be held Saturday evening. Proceeds from the fair will be used to continue the community project at the school. This will include further landscaping and building a play-cave for the children.

Law Enforcement Heads Ask Solons for 3 Changes

LANSING — The 1938 legislature will be asked to legalize chemical tests for drunk driving, double the state driver license renewal fee and repeal the 1936 motor scooter law.

A committee representing all segments of law enforcement in the state decided yesterday to back the three objectives, all considered by lawmakers last spring and rejected.

Chemical tests now are utilized in Grand Rapids and Detroit to a limited extent, but are unwieldy to handle in court because expert witnesses must be called to back up findings in each case.

Statutory recognition would eliminate the need for special witnesses. In all, 28 states now recognize tests of the breath or bodily fluids when administered according to specific standards.

The scooter law, enacted in 1936, authorizes licensing of 14- and 15-year-olds as operators of motor-driven cycles of five horsepower or less.

The committee said experience with the law has demonstrated it is a hazard to the operators and others as well, and noted that drivers of automobiles can not be licensed until the age of 16.

Under the fee proposal, driver license renewals would cost $3 with $2 rebated to cities and counties for law enforcement expenses.

Cities and counties get a 50 cents cut from the present $1.50 renewal charge.

The recommendations were endorsed by representatives of the organized city police chiefs of the state, sheriffs, judges, justices of the peace, prosecutors and state police through action on their joint permanent legislative committee. Donald S. Leonard, former Detroit and state police commissioner, was re-elected chairman of the committee and Joseph A. Childs, present state police commissioner, as secretary.

EATONTOWN, N.J. — General MacArthur has returned. Officials of the Monmouth County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals shelter were not surprised to see the general, a mallard duck named by Boy Scouts. Year after year they have found a home for him.

State Nearing End of Scott Prosecution

LOS ANGELES (U)—The prosecution is nearing the end of its case against L. Ewing Scott, 61, former stockbroker who is on trial for the murder of his wife.

The will of Mrs. Evelyn T. Scott, 63, admitted as evidence yesterday, showed she left half her $600,000 estate to her husband and the rest in trust for her brother, E. Raymond Throsby.

Prosecutor J. Miller Leavy said

Political Workshops Set

KALAMAZOO (U)—The Michigan Citizenship Clearing House and the Republican State Central Committee will sponsor a training program at Western Michigan University Friday and Saturday for volunteer political workers.

A similar workshop for the Democratic Party is set for Dec. 6-7.

Army to Reduce Little Rock Force

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (U)—The Army prepared today to make another drastic reduction in the number of paratroopers and federalized National Guardsmen assigned to enforce integration at Central High School.

Gov. Orval Faubus said yesterday the federal government should remove all of the troops.

"I think they would have long before now if they had had a graceful way to do it," he said.

Announcement of the planned cut was made by Secretary of the Army Wilber Brucker at Washington. An Army spokesman said he expected the reduction would be made before the weekend.

The army will send back to Ft. Campbell, Ky., about 275 of the 500 troopers of the 101st Airborne Division now on duty here. About 900 of the 1,800 Arkansas Guardsmen still federalized will be released.

This is the second time the Army has trimmed the military forces guarding Central High, where nine Negroes attend classes with some 2,000 white pupils.

Junior Editors Quiz on HAIR

QUESTION: Why do some people have curly hair?

ANSWER: The easy way to answer this is to say you are born with curly or straight hair. But let's look more closely at your hair and see what we can find.

In the first place you probably have 100,000 or more hairs on your head. (I didn't count them but that's what the experts say.) Each hair is set in a socket called a follicle. Through the bottom of this follicle it receives the nourishment that makes it grow.

Now, if you take a very sharp knife and cut off a piece of hair, you might be able to see, through a very strong magnifying glass, that it is round in shape or oval in shape. The hairs that have round cross sections grow straight; those with oval cross sections are curly. The flatter the oval the tighter the curl.

FOR YOU TO DO: Clip one of your hairs, get a very strong magnifying glass and see whether you can tell if it is oval or round. And if you like, color this picture of two girls comparing their hair.

(For this suggestion Elizabeth Newland of Lake Charles, La., gets $10. Drop a postcard with your idea to Violet Moore Higgins in care of The Pontiac Press.)

Victory Attracts Dem Spotlight

Gov. Meyner Is Worker, Expects Action by Aides

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS

New Jersey's Robert B. Meyner has won himself another four-year stay at the governor's mansion, but he might possibly break his lease with the idea of moving into the White House.

Political savants agree that the governor's victory over Eisenhower-backed State Sen. Malcolm Forbes puts him strongly in the running for the Democratic nomination for president in 1960.

The 48-year-old, hard-working Meyner says he has no plans to run for national office, but if he found himself on the Democratic ticket in '60, he probably would not be entirely surprised.

For Meyner — who has been called Lady Luck's rosy-cheeked boy — has sparred frequently with fate during a hard childhood and an ambitious political career. Yet he always has managed to roll with the punches.

Of German extraction on both sides, Meyner was born July 3, 1908, in Easton, Pa. He did most of his growing up around Easton, and Phillipsburg and Paterson in New Jersey — all industrial communities heavily populated with foreign-born and second-generation Americans.

WORKED THROUGH SCHOOL

The son of a loom fixer, Meyner worked his way through grammar school in Paterson, helping the family with money, then worked through high school where he became class valedictorian, while serving an eight-hour shift on the looms.

He maintained the same fierce, industrious drive through Lafayette College in Easton, where he often earned $60 a week while attending school. He later worked two jobs while going to Columbia University law school.

After emerging in 1945 from the Navy, where he rose to lieutenant commander, Meyner continued the law practice he had left in Phillipsburg. In 1947 he tangled with Wayne Dumont Jr., in his first political test and won a seat in the State Senate.

Getting to be governor turned out to be not so difficult for the man who had distinguished himself as president of the Chamber of Commerce, director of the Phillipsburg Bank and a member of several civic groups.

WANTS QUICK ACTION
Running as a "clean shirt" Democrat, he breezed through to victory in 1953. During his first term as governor, Meyner won the reputation of being a hard worker who wouldn't let others sit idly by. His desire for quick action and direct decision often made him careless about amenities. He had no patience with a slow mind or double talk.

The governor makes a striking figure with broad shoulders, graying hair and good looks marred only by an off-centered nose. He has a ready sense of humor.

A most eligible bachelor, Meyner sorrowed many a female heart with his marriage to Helen Stevenson — a cousin of Adlai Stevenson — last January.

Report Debunks Flying Saucers

Air Force Says 10-Year Sifting Shows No Proof That They Exist

WASHINGTON (U) — The Air Force says its investigations of 5,700 reported sightings of flying saucers in 10 years have produced "no physical or material evidence" that such things exist.

The Pentagon issued this report last night after sifting of mysterious flying objects were reported this week from various parts of the country. Some of the reported objects were said to glow with a strange light and to have caused auto engines to stall.

Sightings of flying saucers have been reported from time to time over the past decade. Investigation has been handled by the Air Technical Intelligence Center at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton, Ohio. Previous Air Force reports on saucers have been along the lines of the one put out last night.

There have been suggestions that the new rash of sightings was inspired by Russia's launching of earth satellites.

In its report last night, the Air Force said "there is no physical or material evidence, not even a minute fragment, that a so-called flying saucer was ever found."

It also said there is no evidence that the alleged objects are interplanetary space ships, that they indicate developments beyond the range of current scientific knowledge, or that they pose any threat to the nation's security.

They Are Stylists for the Big Three

Today's Auto Designers Must Have Some of Artist, Salesman, Politician

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

DETROIT (NEA) — An auto designer must have the soul of an artist, the personality of a salesman and the ego of a politician.

The saying goes in this motor town that the designer creates the car while the automotive engineer has become just a pack rat who crams the machinery inside to make it run.

And the 1958 models, the most dramatic and colorful ever made, represent the most uninhibited creative endeavors of the car stylist.

But this could be the last year of their unbridled sway over the industry, which is why the politician's ego is necessary. Genial George W. Walker, vice president and director of styling for Ford Motor Co., says:

"You think and draw and sweat over a design and finally that's the one they're going to go with. That whole process is tough enough. Then comes the waiting for public acceptance or rejection. These ideas you've created, you realize, could make or break a multi-million dollar corporation. That's the worst of it. So you've just got to tell yourself you're right."

Walker's counterpart and good friend at General Motors, Harley J. Earl, has said about the same thing. The two men are startlingly similar in professional outlook and personality. They're both artists, extroverts.

Chrysler's boss of styling, Virgil Exner, fully qualifies for this fraternity. But he is too new at being a vice president to have developed quite the breezy, supreme confidence of the other two.

Walker grudgingly admits the existence of just a small cloud on their horizon. That's the chance that public taste in cars has taken a conservative turn.

"We know about this interest in economy and the boom in small cars because that's our job in styling, to keep up with the public's thinking," he says. "And if it turns out that this is a major trend you can be sure that we'll satisfy it as soon as possible," he adds.

The styling of the 1958 Fords was set two years ago and Chrysler and GM operate on about a two-year advance. But if this public interest in more modest cars has a serious impact on sales this year this period can be cut drastically, Walker admits.

"In fact," Walker reveals, "the 1949 car which suddenly reversed a whole trend in Ford design so successfully was designed in three months."

None of the auto designers like to contemplate a reversal of the past 10-year trend toward more luxurious cars. "Let's face it," Walker admits, "it's harder to design for an economy market."

But if economy does become a governing factor a new design medium has been developed which lends itself to cutting costs on cars. "The increasing use of sculptured sheet metal gives us greater flexibility in design than we have ever had," Walker explains.

He refers to being able to stamp out shaped quarter panels of sheet steel as the basic body of the car.

On the '58s, Chrysler's Exner has less reason for being tense during this period of new model introduction than Walker or Earl. There are practically no changes in the fin styling which proved such a great success for Chrysler on the '57s.

But Ford's ability to hold its big gains made this year, and its lead over Chevrolet, largely rest on what Walker has done on the drawing board, he admits.

And Earl takes responsibility for trying to get GM's more than 50 per cent share of the market back this coming year.

The "salesmanship" required of a car designer comes into play when the top brass of the company assemble to make the final decision on accepting a particular style treatment. This is the last step before detailed production planning can begin.

"So at this time of the year you're really not all alone in sweating out public reaction to your styling," Walker explains. "All of the officials who agreed to adopt your designs are stewing in the soup with you."

Utica Man Awaits Hearing on Slaying

A 34-year-old Utica factory worker, accused of clubbing his wife to death with a rifle butt, will remain free under $10,000 until a decision next month in his pre-trial examination by Macomb County's examining magistrate, Justice Francis A. Castelluci, of Bruce Township.

Testimony against Archie Wedge, of 6077 Higgins St. concluded yesterday with the introduction of a 20-page statement Wedge made to police following the slaying of his wife, Louise, 47, at their home Oct. 9.

In the statement, Wedge admitted he and his wife had argued bitterly in the past. On the night of the killing, he said, she had struck at him with the gun before he grabbed it and struck her, once on the head to subdue her.

Judge Castelluci, saying he wanted time to study the statement, indicated that he would announce Dec. 11 on what charge to bind Wedge over to Circuit Court for trial. At present, Wedge is charged only with common law murder, without the degree specified.

Fails to Get Into Orbit

BECKLEY, W.Va. (U. P.) — Daniel Palausky, 5, a satellite enthusiast, got the word on gravity first hand. The youngster, explaining the satellite theory to his sister, 4, leaped from his second-deck bunk in an effort to get himself into an orbit wound up in the hospital with a possible fracture of a bone in his foot.

Get Rid of That Planet

BIDDEFORD, Maine (U. P.) — Desk Sgt. Robert Labelle received two calls at police headquarters from the same woman. Both told him about a bright object in the sky which turned out to be the planet Venus. On her second call, Labelle said, the woman demanded "what are you going to do about it?"

1,500,000 More Women Than Men Among Middle-Aged Persons Life Expectancy Gap Widening in U.S.

By MERRYLE S. RUKETSER
INS Economic Commentator

A new maladjustment is plaguing the nation, and is resulting in an overproduction of widows. This is caused by the widening gap in the life expectancy in the United States of men and women. On average, the actuarial figures show that women are living six years longer than men. And a generation ago, the females were living only three years longer.

As a result, a score of life insurance companies are in the process of offering lower and hence more favorable insurance rates to the female of the species. Since the beginning of the century, the life expectancy of new babies, male and female, has increased by fifty per cent.

If I can judge by the reaction of ladies in the audience recently in Indianapolis Town Hall where I talked about these trends, women certainly don't look forward with relish to the prospect of finishing their lives without their mates.

The blow was softened a little when actual figures were cited to demonstrate that married men have the longest life expectancy of all males, and divorced men the shortest. Bachelors and widowers come next in survival qualities. CREATES IMBALANCE

The disparity in life expectancy has created an imbalance in the middle ages with an excess of females over males running about 1,500,000 persons, even though at birth there are 105 male babies for every 100 females.

The girls catch up in numbers at around age 24. If the disparity in the sexes continues, there is likely to be a clamor to liberalize restrictions on immigration at least among eligible unmarried males.

The recurrent inquiry from wives is what they can do or abstain from doing to extend the lives of husbands.

This is a serious national problem, and should not be approached frivolously or superficially.

There is no easy formula such as advising wives to "spend less." On the contrary, as already indicated, married men, ministered to by their wives, are, on the average, outliving the divorced men, the widowers and the bachelors.

The number-one killer of middle aged and older males is heart trouble and related conditions in the circulatory system.

LETUP ON PRESSURE

In addition to medical research into this cause of mortality, it seems to me that any letup on the pressure with which family heads work would be helpful.

The pressure does not stem from either extravagant family budgets, on the one hand, nor austere standards, on the other. It is my observation that the pressure comes from the fact that family expenses tend to become rigid, frozen and fixed, whereas the income of the breadwinner, especially among owners of enterprises and the self-employed in the professional groups, tends to be uneven, conjectural in amount, and, in varying degrees, speculative.

Thus inner pressure is heightened by the inequality of frozen expenses and variable income.

What wives can contribute is an effort to build flexibility into the family budget, with advance planning as to which less essential expenditures can be dropped when the family income sags.

Eventually necessity causes each family to cut its (spending) garment to its (income) cloth, but eventually it is too slow. For in the interim the family head may be under the type of pressure which shortens his life expectancy.

Thus in the life financial plan of every family there should be flexible items which can be shed promptly when and if necessary and desirable.

Some Wet Areas Spot Otherwise Dry U.S. Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There were wet spots in scattered areas of the mid-continent and the West Coast today but generally dry weather prevailed.

Wide areas of rain and scattered thunderstorms continued throughout northern and central Texas. Floods threatened in sections of northeast Texas.

The wet belt extended into Oklahoma and parts of Kansas, Louisiana and Arkansas, but falls were mostly light. Isolated drizzles were reported in the Mississippi Valley. Southerly winds from the Gulf of Mexico fanned northward over the Mississippi Valley and Great Lakes region, bringing a rise in temperatures. In the middle and upper Mississippi valleys, readings were as much as 15 degrees higher.

Fair and a little cooler weather was reported in the Ohio Valley and in most areas east of the Appalachians. Biggest cooling was reported in the mid-Atlantic states and parts of New England. Scattered showers were forecast in extreme northern New England.

Salute to Industry

You'd Be Surprised What They Can Do Today!

Today's most fascinating story is the story of industry.

Remember the man in the United States Patent Office who thought, decades ago, that nearly all the inventions and discoveries had been made that would be made.

Industry proves daily just how wrong this man was. Today industry is still pressing on towards better things, and, we trust, they always will.

Everyone moves ahead when industry makes history of the yesterdays.

But Most Gains May Be Made With Present Power

U. S. Scientists Seek Better Fuels

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP) — American military scientists are pressing broad research in a quest for new or improved fuels to power big missiles and satellites.

But any bid in the near future to recapture the lead which Russia has taken in rocketry probably will be made with existing, tested types of power.

A Russian broadcast claimed the use of "improved new instruments and sources of power" in the launching of Sputnik II last weekend, but the broadcast gave no details.
At present, fuel for the large missile and for the primary engines of planned satellite launchers are liquid—a combination of forms of hydrocarbons (which burn) and an oxidizer (usually liquid oxygen called "lox") which enable them to burn at altitudes where there is little or no natural oxygen to support combustion.

These liquid fuels have disadvantages. Their use requires a maze of plumbing in rocket engines; liquid fuel is heavy for the amount of energy it yields; it is difficult and dangerous to handle. There is a tendency toward solid fuels.

William M. Holaday, special defense assistant for guided missiles, said recently that the performance of solid propellants have been improved "to the point where they are nearing that of liquid propellants now used in current large liquid rockets."

He made those remarks at an address dedicating a rocket engine plant built by the Thiokol Chemical Corp. at Birmingham City, Utah. That plant, he commented, includes a chamber for testing rockets producing two million pounds of thrust. Holaday did not say that such rockets, using either liquid or solid fuel, are in existence now, but cited it as an example of goals in rocket development.

The trade publication Aviation Daily reports that the largest United States design, intended for the Titan ICBM, is of 300,000 pounds thrust. In contrast, Russia is described as having tested a rocket delivering 820,000 pounds, probably intended for use in the Soviet T-3 ICBM.

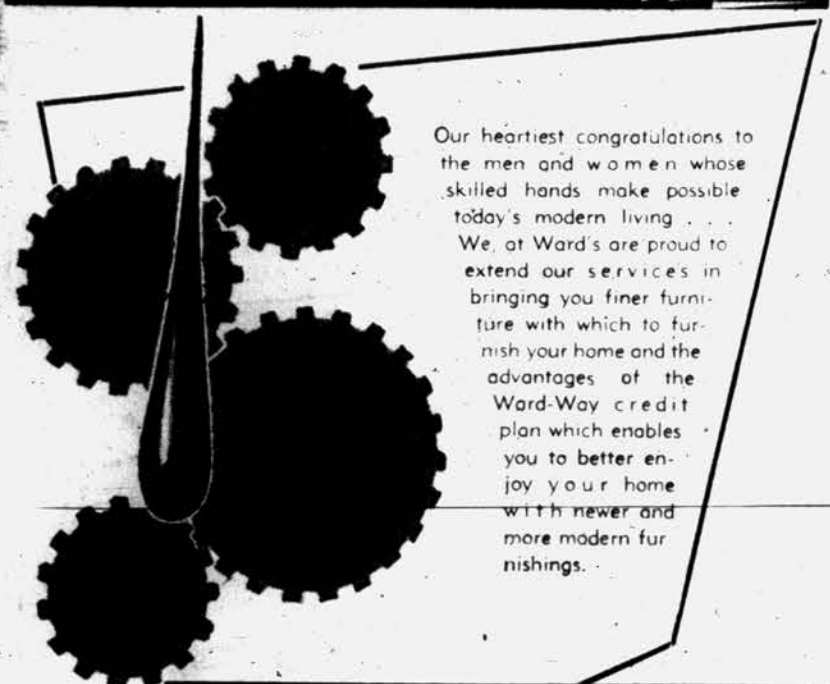

In the search for better fuels, one path has led toward the use of elements to boost the heat energy content of conventional carbons—as additives are used in automobile gasoline.

The magazine Missile and Rockets, does not appear to share Holaday's view that the use of solid fuel for big rocket engines is close. It suggests that such fuel for operational use of intermediate range ballistic missiles may be about five years away.

Patrol Spots Teeners

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Highway Patrol Lt. Weldon Wood — Gov. Raymond Gary's official chauffeur — spotted a car weaving through traffic near the state capitol here, and gave chase. Wood turned on his siren as the two cars sped across town, finally nudged the official auto against the car, pushing it from the street. He turned two teen-age boys over to other patrol troopers.

Our Space Medicine Meany Praises Reported Up to Par Textile Union

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The chief of the Department of Space Medicine at Randolph Air Force Base here said yesterday "in the field of space medicine, we're not behind anyone. The same things the Russians are finding out with their dog, we're finding out with men."

Dr. Hubertus Strughold, head of the department at the School of Aviation Medicine, said the stationary cabin used in testing man's reaction and ability to endure space flight has provided a tremendous fund of information. "We're ready now for space flight, insofar as space medicine is concerned," he said in an interview.

He said there are some questions which can't be answered until a satellite is actually placed in flight, "but we could be ready today, or tomorrow, for such a step. All we need is for the technology to get ready."

Strughold has been working for the U.S. Air Force on space medicine projects since 1947. He said the work of the Russians possibly could eliminate some minor experiments by Americans necessary to launching of their own satellite.

As for the medical end of the problem, the doctor said Russian efforts thus far had confirmed many of the Randolph experiments.

Strughold said the space cabin simulator at Randolph is the "only one of its type in the world—that we know about."

In the sealed cabin, men are subjected to conditions that presumably would prevail in space with the necessary aids and protective devices that have been perfected during the school's experiments.

"We're not so far behind as people think," Strughold said.

Grandfather Discovers He's Not in Condition

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — "I wasn't as smart as I thought I was," admitted James Sinecek after he was brought to Medina Hospital.

The 66-year-old grandfather said he was trying to "show my grandchildren a thing or two" about bicycle riding. He fell off and broke a leg.

Says Cleanup Action Means UTW Qualifies to Stay in AFL-CIO

NEW YORK (AP)—AFL-CIO President George Meany says cleanup action by the 41,000-member United Textile Workers Union means the UTW qualifies for continued membership in the merged labor organization.

The UTW was one of three unions the AFL-CIO Executive Council charged with corruption last month. The others were the Teamsters and Bakers unions.

Two top officials of the UTW since have resigned. They are Anthony Valente, president, and Lloyd Klenert, secretary-treasurer. Among AFL-CIO charges against Valente and Klenert was that they used $37,000 of union money to make down payments on homes.

The UTW, an AFL union before the labor merger, is not to be confused with the larger Textile Workers Union of America, a former CIO affiliate.

After conferring yesterday with seven international officers of the UTW, Meany told newsmen: "If this board (the seven officers) says it will meet all instructions, we'll trust them. I believe they are still trade unionists." He said the UTW has agreed to hire a new accountant and put in a new accounting system. The union said Joseph Jacobs, in accordance with AFL-CIO demands, has been removed as Southern organizer and would be dropped as union counsel.

NEW YORK (AP) — James T. Farrell's papers are to be deposited permanently with the University of Pennsylvania. Other writers whose manuscripts are there are Theodore Dreiser and George Seldes.

Lightning Strikes Often

WASHINGTON — Lightning bolts strike 40 to 60 times a year within the average square mile in the United States.

The Proxy Murder ... by Erle Stanley Gardner

Perry Mason Cries 'And You Never Dated Her?'

THE STORY SO FAR: Jerry Conway is a man of many talents. He is a stockholder in the Gifford Farrell company, a discharged employee, and a man who has been in the business of buying and selling guns for some time. He is a man who has been in the business of buying and selling guns for some time. He is a man who has been in the business of buying and selling guns for some time.

Chapter 22
"I planted a couple of time bombs on Farrell," Mason said. "The police haven't made any public announcement as yet, but I think they've identified the corpse."

"Who is she?" Conway asked.
"A Rose Calvert who worked in a brokerage office, and ..."
"Rose?" Conway exclaimed.
"Of course I know her. She works in the brokerage office that handles my accounts. That is, she did work there. I think she left two or three months ago. I haven't seen her for awhile."

"You used to talk with her?"
"Yes."
"Did her along?"
"Yes."
"Ever date her?"
"You aren't kidding?"
"No."

"She's married, Mason. It's Mrs. Calvert."
"And you never dated her?"
"No."
"Never tried to date her?"
"No."
"But you did kid her along?"
"She liked to kid. She was jolly and liked attention from the customers."

"The masculine customers," Mason said.
HAD A GOOD FIGURE
"That's right. She had a good figure and she knew it."
"All right," Mason said, "now here's where you let your hair down and tell me the truth. Did you try to do any gun juggling?"
"What do you mean?" Conway asked.
"I know it was a temptation," Mason said. "You felt that you had been framed. You felt that Gifford Farrell was back of it. You didn't want to sit still and take it."

"You probably felt that if you could get rid of that fatal gun and substitute another gun in its place there was no way on earth they could ever prove that it was the fatal gun that you had taken away from that girl in the scintillas."
Conway said, "You've probably been reading my mind."
"All right," Mason told him. "What did you do about it?"
"Nothing. You're my lawyer. I followed instructions."
"You didn't try to switch guns?"
"No."
"You were tempted?"
"I thought of it."

Mason said, "In a case of this kind, you really can't tell what to do. If you switch guns you've got the other people in an embarrassing position. They can't swear that the guns have been juggled without disclosing their own guilty knowledge."
"The whole crux of their frame-up depends upon getting you to tell a story that sounds improbable on its face, something that sounds like a desperate attempt to account for having the fatal gun in your possession, as well as a list of stockholders which somehow must have been taken from Rose Calvert. You add to that the fact that you asked for mail under an assumed name, went up to a room in which the body was subsequently found, entered that room with a key, and it builds up to a pretty darn good case of first-degree murder."

"It gives me the creeps to hear you summarizing it," Conway said.
"Well, don't worry too much about it," Mason told him, "because there's one weak point in the case."
"What's that?"
"They had to force you to take the fatal gun," Mason said. "The weak link is that fatal gun can be traced."
"You've traced it?"
"Yes."
"Who bought it?"
"You did."
"What?" Conway shouted.
"What are you talking about?"

"You bought it," Mason said. "At least you authorized its purchase."

"What are you talking about? I never saw this gun before in my life."

"That may be," Mason said, "but apparently some three years ago the cashier convinced you that he needed a gun for protection and you authorized the purchase of a weapon at the Pitcairn ..."

"Heavens, yes! I remember it now," Conway said, "but I never even saw the gun. The voucher came through and I put my okay on it. The cashier was the one who went down and bought it."

"What happened to that cashier?" Mason asked.

"He died eight or ten months later."

"While Farrell was with the firm?"

"I believe so."

"And what happened to the gun?"

"That I don't know."

"You didn't check it?"

"Good Lord, Mason, the Texas Global has options on potential oil land scattered halfway across Texas. I'm trying to figure where the oil deposits are, how much we can afford to pay, how deep we should go with our wells ... I had no time to go take an inventory of the property in the desk of a cashier who dies suddenly."

"Exactly," Mason said. "That's the weak point in the scheme. Farrell had just as good access to the gun as you did, and when it comes to proving motivation or having connection with the corpse, Farrell is in a very delicate position. He had been playing around with this young woman, had taken photographs of her in the altogether, and his wife was planning to name her as co-respondent in a divorce suit."

"Oh-oh," Conway said.

"So," Mason told him, "if your nose is clean, and if you didn't try to get smart by juggling weapons around between the time you left my office and the time I took the number off that gun, I think we can get you out of it. I know we can put you in such a position that the district attorney won't dare to proceed against you without more evidence."

Conway drove for awhile in silence, then said, "Mason, don't underestimate Gifford Farrell. He is not a sound thinker, but he has a chain lightning mind. He'll completely dazzle you with the brilliance of his thinking. He'll reach some conclusion after a scintillating mental exhibition, and then for some cockeyed reason or other the brilliant conclusion will turn out to be unsound."

"I know the type," Mason said. "Well, don't underestimate him."

Conway pleaded, "He's clever, he's ingenious and he's utterly ruthless."

Mason nodded.

WHAT DO I DO?

"Now what do I do at the District Attorney's office?" Conway asked.

"You tell them the truth," Mason said. "Unless I stop you, keep on talking."

"Tell them the entire truth?"

"The entire truth."

"That might call for a little thought here and there."

"It calls for nothing," Mason said. "You have no guilty knowledge of the crime. You know what happened, and your job is to convince the officers. The minute you start getting cagey and trying to withhold something, or emphasizing one fact and minimizing another, trying to spread gilt paint over the truth, they'll know exactly what you're doing. They've had so much experience with liars, they can just about tell when a man starts lying."

"All right," Conway said, "I'll tell them the truth. But I'm worried about that gun."

"I was at first," Mason told him, "but I'm not any longer. When it comes to a showdown we can probably prove that Farrell took that gun out of the cashier's desk, or at least had more opportunity than you did."

Conway thought things over for several minutes, then said, "Mason, I'm afraid that you may be trying to oversimplify this thing."

Mason lit a cigarette. "Just quit worrying, tell the truth, and leave the rest to me," he said.

Promptly at nine o'clock Mason held the door of the district attorney's office open for Jerry Conway.

"Perry Mason and Mr. Conway," he told the secretary at the outer desk. "I told the police I would be here at nine o'clock with my client to answer questions. We're here."

The girl at the desk said, "Just a moment!"

She picked up the telephone, put through a call, then said, "You may go in, Mr. Mason. Right through those swinging doors and all the way down the corridor, the office on the far left."

Mason and Conway walked down the long corridor, opened the last door on the left.

Hamilton Burger, the big, barrel-chested district attorney, sat behind the desk facing the door. He was flanked by Lt. Tragg, one of the most skilled investigators in the homicide department, a uniformed police officer, and Alexander Redfield, who did ballistics work for the authorities.

The spoils of a tape recorder on the table were revolving slowly.

Hamilton Burger said, "Good morning, gentlemen. I have decided that this interview should be recorded. I trust there is no objection?"

"None whatever," Mason told him.

TALK IS MONITORED

"Thank you," the district attorney said sarcastically. "I may also state for your information that there is a microphone in this office, and the conversation is also being monitored by a police shorthand reporter."

"Quite all right!" Mason said. "This is my client, Gerald Conway, gentlemen."

"Sit down," Hamilton Burger invited. "What is your occupation, Mr. Conway?"

"I'm president of the California & Texas Global Development and Exploration Company."

"As I understand it you had occasion to consult Mr. Mason some time last night?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you remember the time?"

"It was, I believe, shortly before seven o'clock."

"And how did you get in touch with Mr. Mason?"

"I looked up a night number in the telephone exchange, called it, was directed to the Drake Detective Agency, and so managed to get in touch with Mr. Mason."

"And what did you want Mr. Mason to do?"

"I wanted him to advise me in connection with a disturbing incident which had happened in the Redfern Hotel."

Hamilton Burger glanced suspiciously at Mason. "You're going to let him tell his full story?"

"I'm going to let him tell his full story," Mason said.

"All right, go ahead," Hamilton Burger said. "Go right ahead."

Conway told about the mysterious telephone calls, about the offers to give him the list of stockholders who had given proxies to Gifford Farrell's proxy committee.

He told about his hesitancy, his final decision to have a meeting with the mysterious Rosalind.

He told about calling in, his secretary to take down the conversation, about going out and following instructions to the letter, about the telephone call which had been received while he was waiting at the booth in the drugstore.

Conway then went on to tell about his trip to the Redfern Hotel.

Mason said, "Just a minute. I want to interrupt for a couple of questions."

"Later," Hamilton Burger said. "I want to get his story now."

"I'm sorry," Mason said, "but you have to know a couple of things in order to understand the full import of that story. About the time element, Mr. Conway, you had been told that the telephone would ring at six-fifteen?"

"That's right."

"When did the telephone ring?"

"It was a few minutes earlier than that."

"What difference does that make?" Hamilton Burger asked.

"It makes a lot of difference, as I will be prepared to show later on," Mason said. "Now one other thing, Mr. Conway, when that call came in, that is the one you received at the drugstore, it was a woman's voice, was it not?"

"Yes."

"Was it the same voice that you had heard earlier? In other words, was it the voice of the woman who had described herself as Rosalind?"

"I'm not certain."

Mason said, "I don't think my client understands the full import of this, gentlemen. But the point is that the woman who described herself over the telephone as Rosalind was going to call Mr. Conway at six-fifteen and tell him to go to a certain place to get the information he wanted. When she called the pay station at six-fifteen there was no answer. The reason was that Mr. Conway had already received his erroneous instructions and was then on his way to the Redfern Hotel."

"Why would someone give him erroneous instructions?" Lt. Tragg asked.

"You be the judge of that," Mason said. Now go on, Conway, and tell them what happened."

Conway described his trip to the hotel, the envelope that he had received containing the key to room 729. He told of going up to the room, knocking at the door, receiving no answer, then being tempted to retrace his steps, turn in the key, and call the whole thing off.

However, he pointed out, the prospect of getting the information which would be of the greatest value to him was too much of a temptation. He had used the key, had gone in. With dramatic simplicity he described in detail his adventure with the young woman who was clad only in the scantiest of apparel.

CONWAY TELLS OF PANIC

Then Conway described the panic which had gripped him when he realized the weapon he had taken from the young woman had been fired once, and recently. He decided he should consult Perry Mason.

"And what did Perry Mason advise you to do?" the District Attorney asked.

Mason interposed with an urbane smile. "At this point, gentlemen, my client's story ends, except for the fact that he found a paper containing a list of stockholders who had sent in their proxies in his car. This list which I now hand you contains Conway's initials on each page, and also my initials are on each page."

"My client's car is parked downstairs and I reported that fact to the police before we came up and suggested they would want to search the car."

"My client has nothing to say about anything that happened after he consulted me. I am perfectly willing to answer questions from that point on. However, you must realize that the advice of an attorney to a client is not anything which can be produced in evidence and questions about it should not be asked."

Hamilton Burger's face slowly purpled. "As a citizen, you're bound by laws the same as anyone else. Whenever you try to conceal a weapon with which a murder has been committed . . . ?"

"A murder?" Mason asked.

"A murder!" Hamilton Burger shouted. "A murder was committed with that weapon!"

"But I didn't know there had been a murder. Conway didn't know there had been a murder. He only knew that he had taken possession of a weapon under circumstances which made the whole thing look suspiciously like a frame-up. He called on me to investigate. I investigated."

"But as soon as you investigated," Burger said, "you went to that room and encountered a corpse."

"That's right."

"And then you knew that the gun was the murder weapon?"

"Indeed I did not!" Mason said.

"I didn't know it was the murder weapon. I don't know it now."

"The hell you don't!" Burger shouted. "Anyone with the intelligence of a two-year-old kid would have known it, and you're not that big a fool. Where's the gun?"

Conway took the gun from his pocket and passed it across to Hamilton Burger. "It's loaded," he said.

Burger looked at the gun, handed it to Alexander Redfield.

The ballistics expert looked at the gun, swung open the cylinder, looked at the exploded shell, took a sharp, pointed engraver's tool from his pocket and etched on the shells the relative position which they occupied in the cylinder shut, and dropped the gun in his pocket.

"Now then," Hamilton Burger said, "I want to know what happened last night. I want to know where this man was all night."

"What does that have to do with it?" Mason said.

"It has a lot to do with it," Burger said. "He resorted to flight."

"To flight!" Mason said.

"You're damn right he did!" Burger said. "Don't think the police are entirely dumb, Mason. We found out about Conway a short time ago, after we had identified the corpse. We found out that Conway had gone up in the elevator of your office building last night, that he had gone to Paul Drake's office that an hour or so later your estimable secretary, Della Street, came up in that elevator, that shortly afterward Conway went down and just a few moments later Della Street went down. I think the inference is fairly obvious. You would be more available and where I could call on him at night without disturbing anyone or attracting undue attention."

"Mr. Conway, for your information, gentlemen, was at the Gladdell Motel. He occupied Unit 21, and I'm quite certain you will find that he registered under his own name. It is certainly not flight for a person to go to a motel and register under his own name, driving his own car, and registering the correct license number of that car."

"All right!" Burger shouted, "then why did you withhold this evidence until nine o'clock this morning?"

"What evidence?"

"This gun! The one that Redfield has. The murder weapon."

"But I don't know it's a murder weapon," Mason said. "I knew that you wouldn't be at your office until nine o'clock in the morning. I made arrangements with Mr. Conway to come here at the earliest possible hour this morning. We arrived just as soon as your office opened. In fact, I think an investigation would disclose that you are here unusually early this morning because you wanted to question my client."

"That's just a run-around," Hamilton Burger said. "You should have given this weapon to the police last night, and you know it."

"Why?"

"Because a murder was committed with it."

"Oh, I certainly hope not," Mason said. "Oh, I certainly do hope not, Mr. District Attorney. That would complicate matters!"

"You mean you didn't have the slightest idea that this was a murder weapon?" Burger asked sarcastically.

"How would I know it was a murder weapon?" Mason countered. "No one even told me how the young woman died. They told me to get out of the room and stay out of the room. The police didn't reveal the result of their investigations to me. Was she killed with a revolver?"

"She was killed with a revolver, and this is the murder weapon, the one which you folks were concealing from the police all night!"

Alexander Redfield cleared his throat. "May I say something, Mr. Burger?"

"Not now!" Burger said. "I demand that Mr. Mason give us an explanation."

"And you did?" Hamilton Burger asked.

"I did," Mason said. "For your information, that is a revolver which was purchased some three years ago by the Texas Global Company for the protection of its cashier."

"I can assure you, gentlemen, that I have been quite busy trying to get information in this case so that I could be of some assistance to you this morning."

"You went to Elsinore last night!" Hamilton Burger charged.

"That's right, I did indeed!"

"Why?"

"Because I felt there was a possibility Mr. Norton Barclay Calvert, who lives in Elsinore, could shed some light on the identity of the corpse."

"All right," Hamilton Burger said sarcastically. "Now tell us just what intuitive reasoning made you think you could shed light on the identity of the corpse?"

Mason said, "There isn't any explanation because I am not prepared to concede the premise on which you are acting. I don't know that it's the murder weapon. I did feel that an attempt was made to frame my client with a gun which had been discharged somehow. I wanted to try and find out something about that gun and where it came from."

Chiefs in Nyasaland Greet Queen Mother

ZOMBA, Nyasaland — Nyasaland put on a proper show to celebrate its first royal visit, when Britain's Queen Mother recently spent several days there on her African tour.

Silver poles carried colorful banners every few yards from Chilika along the 60 miles of road to Zomba.

Their farmlands forgotten, thousands of Africans stood for hours along the highways to get a glimpse of the Queen Mother as she flashed by in her Rolls Royce, specially bought for her visit by the Nyasaland Government. More than 100 African chiefs expressed their homage to the Queen Mother, who wore her diamond tiara by day for the first time.

The chiefs presented a dazzling array of costumes of every kind and color. One had a complete leopardskin suit with matching tie. One leader was Chief Somba who rules 123 villages in the Blantyre district.

Population of Latin America's nations is now about equal to that of the United States and Canada.

STRONG BEAUTY — Japan's latest movie star Masayo Banri warms up for a judo session. The 20-year-old girl, holder of a first rank in the art, is dangerous as well as beautiful.

salute to industry

Industry makes Pontiac and Oakland County a good place in which to live! And it is appropriate that we pause in our work today and recall the obligation all of us have to the management-labor team which is industry.

Management stakes years of research, huge sums of money on producing the goods that are of benefit to all of us.

Labor gives its loyalty, intense effort and craftsmanship so that all of us will find true value in the goods made by industry.

Industry makes our country a good place in which to live! And in America, management and labor have the necessary freedoms to make industry great. Management has freedom of open competition for customers' dollars and labor has the freedom to bargain for its rights. It is a good combination — free management, free labor, in a free country — and all of us are better off for it!

Let us salute labor and management today — the successful team that has brought growth, comfort and security to Pontiac and Oakland County!

Color of Skin Tells Kind of Sweet Potato

Does the family prefer dry sweet potatoes or moist sweet potatoes? If your family likes potatoes that remain moist after cooking, choose those with red or pinkish skins.

suggests the MSU Marketing Information Agent, Mrs. Josephine Lawyer. The drier sweet potatoes are brown or tan skinned and are mealy when cooked.

Whether you choose moist or dry potatoes, look for those that are smooth and fairly plump. Pick sweet potatoes that are similar in color and shape; that are bright and clean. From now through November, sweet potato prices are lower than at other times of the year. Team them with other "in season" foods such as apples and pork for successful fall meals.

Try Sherried Cranberries

The Spanish bring out the flavors of cooked fruits with sherry, and to find out how successful this trick can be, try adding two tablespoons of nutty amontillado or sweet oloroso type to your cranberry sauce, just after you take it from the stove. If you're using cranberry sauce already prepared, sprinkle the sherry over it just before you serve, grating over this a little orange or lemon rind.

Never use candles on a luncheon table unless the day is dark and they are lit.

Salt Squash Before Baked

Serve acorn squash cooked this delicious new way. Halve an acorn squash and scoop out insides. Rub insides thoroughly with salt. Then add a pat of butter, sprinkle with brown sugar, and bake until done. Squash will have a wonderful nut-like flavor.

Spread crackers with butter or margarine and place in a shallow pan or on a piece of aluminum foil; bake in a moderate oven until lightly browned.

Marinade Adds Flavor

Marinate lamb or veal in a mixture of oil, salt, pepper and a dash of garlic. Do this for 3 to 4 hours before roasting, basting or turning the meat frequently.

Cranberries and Chicken Ideal Salad Mates

Gone are the days when frills and furbelows and "something a la King" were synonymous with ladies' luncheons. But it's still fun to plan fare that's frankly feminine—and that means it has to be pretty as well as good to eat. High on the list of feminine favorites are party-perfect molded salads. And, with the fresh cranberry season in full swing, what could be more colorful than a rosy-hued ring of tangy berries combined with chicken and crisp celery? Artfully seasoned it is, too, to bring out the full tart-sweet tang of fall's most versatile fruit, which, as always, complements the blander chicken.

Cranberry Luncheon Salad
4 cups fresh cranberries
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 cup water
2 tab. spoons unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons water
1 cup diced celery
1 cup diced cooked chicken or turkey
2 tablespoons horseradish
Dash aromatic bitter
1 teaspoon grated onion
In a saucepan combine cranberries, sugar and water. Cook until berries pop. About 10 minutes. Soften gelatin in mixed lemon juice and water, stir into hot cranberry mixture until dissolved. Cool berry mixture, then about 2 cups dressing.

place in refrigerator to chill until very thick. Stir diced celery, chicken and seasonings into chilled cranberry mixture.

Spoon into 5-cup ring mold (or 10-12 half-cup molds) and chill until firm. To serve, unmold on platter and fill center with deviled eggs and/or chopped crisp greens. Makes 8-10 servings.

Creamy Salad Dressing
Fold together 1 cup rich mayonnaise and 1/2 cup heavy cream stiffly whipped. Season to taste with favorite herb or spice. Makes 2 cups dressing.

Mallowcots Combine Sweet, Tart Flavors

Keep some sweet snack on hand for unexpected holiday entertaining. Old English fruit cake from your grocer's ready-to-eat cake department, Mallowcots, and a warm beverage are a perfect easy-to-fix combination.

To prepare Mallowcots, steam-dense oyster stew and 1 1/2 cups dried apricots to soften but not cook. Blot apricots on paper towels, shredded process cheese. Heat, stir marshmallows in half, stirring constantly just until cheese melts. Moisten two edges slightly, and is melted. Makes 4 servings.

press between apricot halves, sandwich style.

Add Zip to Oyster Stew

With the holiday season rounding the corner, you won't have a worry in the world if you plan on good oyster stew for a hungry crowd. Here's what you do for 4 servings. Heat 1 can (10 ounces) frozen condensed oyster stew and 1 1/2 cups milk slowly; stir often. Add 1 cup person might have to eat, besides the usual egg, meat, bread and butter and cereal, about 30 servings.

It's a Gourmet's Delight

Don't miss the opportunity of serving fresh cooked broccoli over slices of turkey or chicken and then spooning some of your favorite cheese sauce over each serving. Now just a flick of paprika for color and that's all.

Without milk, to get the adult requirement for calcium alone, a person might have to eat, besides the usual egg, meat, bread and butter and cereal, about 30 servings.

ings of vegetables and fruits a day.

Sent to "Doughboys"?

It is a well-known fact that an army must be adequately fed to be victorious. But did you know that some of the bread that fed the Union Armies during the Civil War was baked in the capitol in Washington D. C.? Ovens were set up under the Senate wing and 16,000 loaves of yeast-raised bread were baked daily and sent to Union forces.

GOURMET DUCKLING — Gourmet dishes take to liquid spice... like a duck to water! Real New Orleans molasses-liquid spice is the just right piquant basting that changes a plain duckling into a gourmet dish that's a delight to behold.

Molasses Gives Duckling Oomph

When entertaining is on the agenda — or you're just in the mood to serve the family an entertaining meal — why not plan something a bit unusual. A tender young roast duckling, for instance, basted with a zippy guess-what! this is sauce.

Duck has always been considered a glamour food in this country — and glamorous it is... but also not as budget-banned as you may think. Price compares favorably with all-purpose chicken, and the proportion of duck meat to bone is high.

No need to fuss with duck, either. The duckling is ready to cook as is. That leaves plenty of time for adding the special touch all your own. And easy is the touch when you use the surprise New Orleans trick—molasses! Known to the pioneers of the prairies as "long sweetening," molasses was a staple, part and parcel of many an everyday dish. Today, the molasses of old New Orleans, with its built-in iron-rich goodness for top energy performance, is the liquid spice with spark.

New Orleans Roast Duckling
1 4-5 pound duckling (ready-to-cook weight)
Salt
1 lemon quartered
1 large orange, sliced thin
4 slices pineapple, halved
1 cup orange juice
1 cup real New Orleans molasses
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon ginger
Green grapes (optional)
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons water

Salt body cavity and add lemon. Truss bird for roasting, place in shallow pan and prick well with fork. Roast in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) 2 hours, or until crisp and brown. Pour off drippings.

Arrange orange and pineapple slices alternately around duck. Combine orange juice, molasses, sugar and ginger. Bring to a boil and pour at once over fruit. Brush duck well with a little of the sauce. Return to moderately hot oven (350 degrees F.) and roast an additional 25 minutes, basting duck with sauce several times.

Serve duck garnished with fruit slices and small clusters of green grapes. Skim fat from sauce remaining in roasting pan. Mix cornstarch and water, combine with sauce and cook rapidly until thickened. Serve with duck. Makes 4 servings.

Broil Crumbed Oysters

Pick over oysters after draining, then dip in melted butter. Now roll the oysters in fine dry bread crumbs mixed with a dash of salt and broil, turning to brown on both sides. Good with lemon wedges!

Special Meat Prices Lure Shoppers Today

We all shop with cents, but do prices of the year. If you like potatoes that remain moist after cooking, choose those with red or pinkish skins. The drier sweet potatoes are brown or tan skinned and are mealy when cooked.

Whether you choose moist or dry sweet potatoes look for those that are smooth and fairly plump. Pick sweet potatoes that are similar in color and shape; that are bright and clean.

Cranberries are at their peak in November also with about 42 per cent of the annual total coming to market. There is a larger crop than last year with current prices about 30 to 35 cents a pound. Look for plump dry berries to insure freshness.

To insure ripeness select cranberries that are firm with a shiny bright appearance. Avoid berries that are soft and shriveled and have a dull appearance. Cranberries are seldom sold by varieties although you may see them in shades of red from bright to dark. The shapes, too, may vary: The smaller dark red berries will usually keep better than the large ones.

Double Decker Pork Chops
1 quart soft 1/2-inch bread cubes
1/2 cup chopped tart apples
1/2 cup chopped cranberries
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon crumbled sage
8 pork chops, 1/2-inch thick (about 1 1/2 pounds)
Combine soft bread cubes, apples, cranberries, sugar, salt and sage. Arrange 4 pork chops in an 8-inch square baking dish. Cover chops with stuffing and arrange remaining pork chops on top. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1 hour. Invert onto serving platter. Yield: 4 servings.

Processors and retailers are co-operating also. Now pork cuts are trimmed closer and more fat is removed before they are offered to the consumer. You can buy a better pork product than was generally available a few years ago.

A further reduction in wholesale fryer prices is passed along to the retail shopper this week. However, when one considers that it takes 1 1/3 pounds of ready-to-cook broiler or fryer per person these cannot be placed in the economy bracket. Turkey is a thrifter buy.

Retailers report that the small "beltsville type" turkeys are higher because supplies are shorter. Frozen fish make it possible to stay in tune with the budget. Frozen cod, haddock, ocean perch and halibut and fresh perch can be served for about thirteen cents per serving.

PRODUCE — No radical changes are evident at produce counters. Apples, squash, cabbage, potatoes, onions, carrots and other fall offerings make vegetable and fruit selections easy.

November will see the peak supply of sweet potatoes at the lowest

Anchovy Cheese Balls

Mix cream cheese with bits of anchovies, turn into a small bowl and refrigerate. When firm, shape into a ball and roll in minced parsley. Nice to serve with crisp crackers and tomato juice for a first course.

If your sponge cake is dry, it may be that you have overbeaten the egg whites or baked the cake too long.

Tomato Sauce Is Useful

To 2 tablespoons hot oil, 1/2 green pepper, chopped, and 3 tablespoons instant minced onion, add 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1 teaspoon chili powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon savory leaves and 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper. Break tomatoes up with a fork and cook until sauce thickens slightly, about 10 minutes. Serve over rice, omelets, or fish dishes.

Preparing Brussels sprouts? Tear off any outer wilted leaves and cut a thin slice from the bottom of each stem. Then make a cross cut in each stem with a small sharp knife; this gashing is said to shorten cooking time.

Frozen Meat Needs Care in Cooking

For top quality and best flavor—cook frozen meat from the frozen state. All frozen meats lose part of their juices during thawing.

No water—no cover please! Place roast, fat side up, on rack in shallow roasting pan. Use this method for roast rib or sirloin of beef, leg of lamb or veal, and pork loin roasts.

Easy with the heat—A slow oven 325 degrees—thaws the meat, allows it to cook evenly, and keeps juices and flavor in.

From freezer to broiler—broil steaks and chops 4 to 6 inches from the heat. Test doneness by cutting a slit V in the steak or chop.

Pan broiling—no fat need be added to frying pan. (If meat is very lean, a tablespoon of fat may be needed.) Figure on about twice the time for pan broiling frozen steaks and chops as for fresh.

Jam Won't Ruin Diet

No need to give up jelly, jam or marmalade while striving for a trimmer figure. A tablespoon (20 grams) of these toothsome sweets contains only about 50 to 55 calories. Calories that satisfy because both fruit and sugar is real food. But watch it! It isn't what but how much you eat that throws the calorie sheet out of balance.

Josephine Lawyer Gives Apple Hints

Apples in autumn add up to apple pie. And for the best pie, choose a tart apple that holds its shape when cooked. Jonathan and Northern Spy make good apple pie, states the MSU Marketing Information Agent, Mrs. Josephine Lawyer. Allow 6 or 8 apples for a nine-inch pie or two six-inch pies. Apples by the box, peck or basket may be your choice. If so, do not rush to buy the big ones.

Medium and small apples give more pounds when you buy by the container. Apples in autumn mean pies, bread, doughnuts, cakes and many other dishes for your eating pleasure.

Salty French Bread

Cut slices in a long loaf of French bread, being careful not to go through bottom crust. Cover each slice with softened butter, then sprinkle with salt. Heat loaf in moderate oven until butter melts—serve hot.

Season Roasting Meat With Special Cup

OAKLAND, Calif. (INS)—It's old-fashioned to handrub seasonings on meat. Now you season a roast all the way through the meat with a new cooking aid. It's called a chef's pressure sealer, and it's an aluminum leak-proof cup with a perforated stem. The cup holds any combination of seasoning salts, tenderizing agents or wines. The perforated stem is inserted in the roasting meat or fowl and the seasonings are "pressure forced" evenly throughout.

Serve Flaming Fruit Cake

Flame your fruit cake for dramatic fall or holiday serving. Fruit cake is easy to flame by soaking sugar cubes in lemon extract for about five minutes. Place sugar cubes in soft drink bottle caps covered with foil. Place four or six cubes around the cake plate and light.

We Eat Less but Better

Americans are likely to be eating slightly less food—following a trend of several years—but most of the cutback is in foods like potatoes and bread. The nutritive value of their meals—including proteins, vitamins and minerals, will be about the same next year as this.

Use wooden spoons for stirring sauces and other foods because they won't scratch the pans.

Area Meat School Held Here

Pontiac Press Home Editor

"You can almost tell the day of the week by the cut of meat being served in some homes," Moreland Martin, a representative of the National Livestock and Meat Board, told his audience at a Meat School held Monday at Madison Junior High School. Over 150 people attended the afternoon and evening sessions.

Sponsored jointly by the Livestock and Meat Board and the Cooperative Extension Service of Michigan State University, the school included sessions on the place of meat in the diet, supply and demand and inspection. Mr. Moreland spoke also on selecting, storing and cooking meat and demonstrated carving techniques.

"It is possible," he said, "to serve a different cut of meat every day in the year." Homemakers tend to get in a rut and to buy the same cuts of meat every time.

At the present time the annual consumption of meat is 163½ pounds per capita and is going up. But the amount of time it takes to earn a pound of meat has decreased from 34 hours to 19. Since 1933 beef has been the most popular meat. Before that time it was pork.

Hint of Garlic Adds Piquancy to Beans

New flavor for snap beans.
Frue's Snap Beans
1 package (8 ounces) frozen French-style green beans
Water
Salt
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup sliced blanched almonds
¼ teaspoon paprika powder
Cook beans according to package directions, using the amount of water and salt called for; drain and keep warm. Melt butter in 6-inch skillet over moderately low heat. Add almonds and cook until lightly browned, stirring constantly. Sprinkle with garlic powder. Add almonds to beans, tossing together well and reheating if necessary. Makes 4 small servings.

Ever serve broccoli in a cream sauce topped with bacon strips for lunch?

Roberta Hershey, MSU Extension Specialist in Foods and Nutrition, spoke on the role of meat in the diet. She stressed the importance of having protein in every meal so that the supply of this essential nutrient is built up in the body. It is better to have a small amount of protein at every meal rather than a large amount at one and none at another.

The protein needs of teenagers was also discussed. This period of a person's life is one in which large amounts of protein foods are needed. A teenage girl, for instance, needs twice as much at this age as at any time in her life. Many teenagers get less than half of what they need. To help teenagers get more protein it is suggested that between-meal snacks be meat snacks. Otherwise, your adolescent will fill up on sweets and starches. Meat Apples—meat between two slices of apple—make an interesting after-school snack. Dips like Ham with Curry Cottage Cheese or a bacon and cream cheese dip will allay hunger pains. The hot dog and hamburger so universally loved by kids of all ages are excellent meat snacks. So is pizza with its protein-rich cheese topping. Here's a suggestion for a teenage party, whatever hour it may be held:

Bacon and Bananas
8 bananas
12 slices bacon
Cut bananas in half. Roll with slices of bacon and fasten with toothpicks. Broil or bake in a moderately hot oven until bananas are tender and bacon is crisp. Turn frequently.

Basic Cheese Sauce Savory Topping

Cheese Sauce
2 cups grated (½-pound) cheddar cheese
½ cup homogenized milk
1 egg
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt
Put cheese and milk in top of double boiler over very hot (but not boiling) water and stir constantly until cheese melts and mixture is smooth; make sure water does not touch bottom of upper part of double boiler. Remove from heat.

Beat egg enough to combine yolk and white; stirring constantly and vigorously, pour cheese mixture into egg. Return to double boiler and stir in mustard, paprika, Worcestershire sauce and salt to taste. Cook and stir a few minutes longer to cook egg. Serve at once over broiled tomatoes. Makes about 1½ cups.

Can of Clams Good Scalloped

It would be hard to surpass the flavor of clams. That's why clam chowders are so popular—to say nothing of clams on the half shell, clam bakes, fried clams. You may not have the fun of digging these shellfish from the sand, but you'll find all grocers, supermarkets and delicatessens stocked with canned minced clams, one of the most versatile of foods.

A can on your kitchen shelf means a flavorful stew when the clams are combined with seasoned milk and butter. When blended with cream cheese, minced clams make a smooth dunking sauce. Add them to a thin white sauce or canned marinara, for a delectable spaghetti sauce. The addition of cracker crumbs, green pepper and celery to the seafood makes a main dish of Scalloped Clams.

Scalloped Clams
2 cans (8 oz.) minced clams
½ cup cream
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups coarse cracker crumbs
1 cup butter or margarine, melted
¼ cup green pepper, chopped
¼ cup celery, chopped
Paprika
Drain clams, reserving liquor. Add green pepper and celery. Add enough clam liquor to cream to make ½ cup. Mix cracker crumbs with melted butter. Butter individual baking dishes and cover bottom of each with a layer of buttered crumbs. Cover with clam-vegetable mixture and seasoned liquor and cream. Finish the top with crumbs.

Dot with butter. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees) about 10 minutes, or until brown. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Purple Plum Pie Adds Lightness to Heavy Meal

NEW YORK (INS)—The symbol of Thanksgiving to most healthy, well-fed Americans, is the "groggery board"—the table full of rich, mouth-watering foods.

After a heavy meal such as is served in most U. S. homes, it's a good idea to introduce a "change of pace" dessert—one with a sweet tartness to it. Instead of the usual pumpkin pie, you might want to follow up the Thanksgiving turkey with Purple Plum Parfait Pie.

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
½ cup hot water
1 cup canned purple plum juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 pint vanilla ice cream
1 cup drained dried canned purple plums
1 baked nine-inch pie shell, cooled

Dissolve gelatin in hot water in two-quart saucepan. Add plum juice and lemon juice. Add ice cream by spoonfuls, stirring until melted. Then chill until thickened but not set (30 to 40 minutes). Fold in drained plums. Pour into pie shell. Chill until firm (40 to 50 minutes). Garnish with whipped cream and plum slices.

Honey Taste Delicate One

If you like honey on waffles, you will love it in applesauce. Add it to sweeten to taste just before canning. You can "honey up" pears too. Just substitute honey for half or more of the beet or cane sugar called for when making syrup for canning. After syrup is made, add a teaspoon of pure vanilla and about ¼ teaspoon ginger for each cup of syrup.

Thick Chops With Stuffing Hearty Dish

like pockets in bone side instead. Pockets there will be smaller but will stay closed without lacing. Sprinkle pockets with salt and pepper.

Spoon stuffing in lightly. It will still be fluffy after cooking if you don't pack. Fasten openings with two or three toothpicks, then lace with string and tie.

First, stand chops on the fat edge in a hot skillet to melt enough fat for browning. Now slowly brown both sides. Adjust toothpicks so the chops lie flat.

When the chops are nicely browned (this takes about 15 minutes), season with salt and pepper. Pour ¼ cup water into skillet and cover tightly.

Cook over low heat, at a simmer, 1½ hours or till tender. Be sure the chops are well done. To test, cut a chop an inch along the middle of the bone. No pink should show.

Finely diced celery and chili sauce are good additions to mayonnaise to be used on a shrimp salad.

BROILED PEARS ACCENT — To accent the flavor of lamb kabobs you can serve broiled fresh pears. They are an interesting partner for broiled luncheon sandwiches or any roasted meat.

Broiled Pears Accent Lamb-Vegetable Kabobs

If you're looking for something new, a bit unusual to "spring" at your next buffet supper, try this combination of broiled pears and lamb kabobs. It's a tasty, rather exotic combination that will appeal to the hearty appetites of your men guests and to the sophisticated tastes of your female gourmets.

Perhaps you've not yet tried broiling fresh pears. If not, you've a flavor treat in store for you. Broiled pears are a round the clock favorite, for they're delicious with breakfast ham or bacon... are an interesting partner for broiled luncheon sandwiches... and are perfect accompaniment not only for kabobs as in this recipe, but with baked ham, roast beef, spare ribs, stuffed pork chops or pork roast.

BROILED PEARS WITH LAMB KABOBS

Broiled Pears
 2 fresh pears, halved and cored
 2 tablespoons butter
 2 tablespoons melted butter
 2 cups cooked rice
 1 1/2 pounds boneless lamb
Marinade for Lamb Kabobs
 Mix together thoroughly:
 1/4 cup vinegar or wine vinegar
 1/4 cup salad oil
 2 teaspoons salt
 1/4 teaspoon mono-sodium glutamate
 1/4 teaspoon pepper

1 bay leaf
 1/4 clove garlic
 Cut lamb into 1 1/2 inch cubes; cover with marinade and refrigerate several hours or overnight, turning meat occasionally.

Kabobs

Beginning with a piece of lamb, thread each of six skewers with meat, onion half, green pepper slice, mushroom cap and tomato half in any desired order. Brush meat and vegetables with generous amounts of melted butter. Arrange skewers on broiler rack and broil about 3 inches from heat source for 15 to 20 minutes, turning and brushing with melted butter frequently. If desired, lamb may be lightly broiled, onions and pepper slightly parbroiled before threading on to skewers. Makes 6 kabobs.

Broiled Pears

About 5 to 8 minutes before kabobs are done, arrange pear halves on broiler pan. Brush with honey and melted butter. Broil until lightly browned. To serve, heap rice in center of platter; top with kabobs and garnish with broiled pear halves. Serves 6.

Honey Glazes Corned Beef

There's more to corned beef than cabbage. Here's a recipe that turns boiled corned beef into a company roast. And there will still be enough left over for hash or to combine with cabbage. If you are partial to that famous Irish dish.

Corned beef is readily available now, prepackaged in 3 to 4 lb. sizes. These compact cuts make an attractive roast and this special seasoning glaze makes corned beef taste like heaven.

Honey-Spiced Corned Beef

1 1/4 pound corned beef
 1-3 cup honey
 2 teaspoons kitchen bouquet
 2 tablespoons prepared mustard
 3 tablespoons brown sugar
 Cook corned beef according to directions. Combine remaining ingredients and spread over top of corned beef. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, until corned beef is hot and glaze is browned, about 30 minutes. Brush with glaze several times during baking. Makes 8 servings.

Housewives can reduce their milk bills by as much as 25 percent by using dry milk solids when practical instead of fluid milk.

Dunkable Food Dips in Shrimp

If thoughts of your Christmas list keep bobbing up in the back of your mind, you'll be glad to know there's a new gift-boxed book for the party-givers among your friends. ("Cocktail Companions" written by Marian Courtney and published by Wilcox and Follett Co., New York and Chicago, $2.50.) A variety of hot and cold canapés, pick-up sticks, nibbles are included in "Party Companions." In addition to an informative miscellany, entitled "Suggestions." These to cover what to serve at a "cocktail" party, a sherry party, your husband's poker party. "Dips" are given a generous section; and since they are so popular now the Shrimp Association of the Americas brings to your attention this Shrimp Bar Harbor for crisp crackers, melba toast or celery sticks and other dunkable foods.

Shrimp Bar Harbor

1 1/2 pounds shrimp, cooked, cleaned and ground
 8-ounce package cream cheese
 1 small clove garlic, minced
 1 medium onion, chopped fine
 1/4 cup mayonnaise
 1/4 cup milk
 Salt and pepper
 Cream the cheese, add mayonnaise and milk and beat well. Add garlic, onion, shrimp, salt and pepper and mix well. Let stand an hour or so to blend the flavors before serving.

Broiled Cake Icing Made With Coconut

Coconut Butterscotch Cake

1 package yellow cake mix
 6 tablespoons butter
 1/4 cup firmly-packed dark brown sugar
 1 can (3 1/2 ounces) flaked coconut
 3 tablespoons heavy cream
 1 teaspoon vanilla

Make cake according to package directions baking in a square pan (9 by 9 inches) required time. Remove from oven and allow to stand in pan on rack to cool a short while.

Mix the butter and sugar, then mix in the coconut; add cream and vanilla; mix well. Spread quickly over partially cooled cake in pan. Place under broiler and broil slowly about 5 minutes. Remove; cut in pan while still warm and serve at once. Some of the topping will seep into cake and be delicious.

Cream a half cup of honey with a quarter cup of butter and serve with hot baking powder biscuits.

Marinated Beef With Mushrooms Exotic Treat

If you are tired of serving the same old thing for Sunday or company dinner, try wine-soaked beef with mushroom sauce for an exotic change. It's a continental treat, but it's really economical and quite simple to prepare.

Marinated Beef

2 1/4 to 3 lb. pot roast
 1/4 cup white wine
 2 tablespoons salad oil
 2 tablespoons vinegar
 1/4 cup chopped onion
 1 clove garlic, minced
 2 teaspoons salt
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 2 tablespoons fat
 2-oz. cans tomato sauce
 Mix all ingredients except meat, fat and tomato sauce. Place meat in shallow pan and cover with marinade. Let stand 2 hours. Drain. Keep marinade. Brown meat in hot fat. Place in shallow baking pan. Cover with marinade and tomato sauce. Cook uncovered in 325-degree oven for 2 hours or until tender. Turn after first hour.

Mushroom Sauce

1 box mushrooms
 1 medium onion, chopped
 1 clove garlic, minced

1/4 cup butter or margarine
 3 tablespoons white wine
 Wash mushrooms. Saute onions and garlic in butter until soft. Add mushrooms and cook over low heat until brown. Add wine and heat for two minutes. Add to meat during last half hour cooking time in oven.

Fig Mixture Has Many Uses

This mixture is good for sandwiches, cookie filling, cake filling, rolled in balls for candy, thinned for ice cream topping, between soda crackers or graham crackers.

About 20 dried figs
 1 cup seedless raisins
 10 graham crackers
 1/4 cup peanut butter
 1/4 cup strawberry jam
 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Remove the stems from the figs. Then run the figs, raisins and graham crackers through the food grinder, using the coarse blade. Then stir in the peanut butter, jam and lemon juice. Blend to make a well mixed mass. Store in the refrigerator in a closed jar. Will keep for a week if kept cold.

RICH PUMPKIN PIE — Nothing like it — at this time of the year, especially. This recipe for rich pumpkin pie calls for spices in the pastry as well as in the pie. Try it for a change.

Spices Added to Crust, Filling

Perhaps the world's most touching tribute to a favorite dessert is Whittier's poem on pumpkin pie:

And the prayer which my mouth is Too full to express
Swells my heart, that thy shadow
May never be less!

This season of the year, there's nothing like it — rich pumpkin pie, flavored with molasses as luscious as the pumpkin itself! Encased in a tender, spicy crust, topped with whipped cream and a judicious nut or so — it is indeed enough to make poets produce poems and the rest of us to simply gorge. In fact, Mr. Whittier seems to have done both!

Here's a recipe that makes the most of this truly golden opportunity:

Spiced Pastry
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup vinegar
3 tablespoons orange juice or other citrus fruit juice.

Sift dry ingredients together. Cut in shortening. Mix together vinegar and fruit juice and add to dry ingredients. Mix lightly with a fork. Roll dough 1/4-inch thick and line 2 8-inch pie plates. Cut off with pastry knife one inch beyond edge of the pan. Turn the border under to make a rim around the pan. Press rim between thumbs and forefinger to make scalloped edge. Set aside.

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup New Orleans molasses
1 1/2 cups strained, cooked or canned pumpkin

Makes 6 generous servings.

Crush Crackers for Cheese Taste
An oldtime favorite dish, corn pudding, has just appeared in a new version with a special "plus," the rich tangy flavor of cheese. A perfect selection for Thanksgiving Day menus, "Pilgrim Corn-Cheese Pudding" gets its distinctive cheese accent from the tasty inch-square cheese crackers used in making it. Easy, and delicious! Here's how to make it:

"Pilgrim Corn-Cheese Pudding"
1 1/2 pound, 1-ounce can cream style corn
2 tablespoons minced onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 cup coarsely crumbled cheese crackers
4 eggs, well beaten
2 cups scalded milk
2 tablespoons melted butter

Heat oven to 325 degrees (moderately hot oven). Grease a 1 1/2-quart casserole. Combine corn, onion, salt, pepper, cracker crumbs and beaten eggs in a bowl. Stir in milk. Pour mixture into casserole and drizzle with melted butter. Set casserole into a pan of hot water and bake, uncovered, for 1 1/2 hours, or until firm and lightly browned on top. Makes 6 generous servings.

When baked custards are taken out of the oven, they should be removed at once from their hot-water bath.

Venison Goulash Recipe Found in Special Book

If you have deer hunters in your family, now is the time to read "The Venison Book" by Audrey Alley Gorton of Vermont, the friend of hunters. It tells how to dress, cut up and cook your deer.

Venison Goulash
2 pounds venison cut in 1 1/2-inch cubes
3 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons bacon fat, beef suet or olive oil
2 cloves garlic
1 large onion, sliced or chopped fine
1 tablespoon paprika
1/2 cup red wine
1 quart boiling water or stock
Salt
Tomato paste (small can)

Canned tomatoes may be added; if canned tomatoes are used, the amount of water or stock should be reduced.

Roll pieces of meat in flour, pressing flour into them. Melt fat in skillet and cook onion slowly until transparent and golden brown. Add meat, browning well. Add seasonings and liquid. Stir well and cover. Cook slowly until meat is very tender—3 or 4 hours.

More stock, water, or wine may be added if it boils away, although slow cooking should prevent this. Sour cream may be added to the goulash just before serving.

Fancy Name for Soup
Let's start dinner off with a Bisque: Saute 1 tablespoon finely chopped green pepper, 3 tablespoons instant minced onion and 1 cup cooked shrimp in 2 tablespoons butter. Add 10 1/2-ounce can tomato soup, one of cream of mushroom soup and 2 cans of milk. Flavor with a teaspoon chili powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt and a dash of ground black pepper. Heat thoroughly.

With broiled or roast venison serve any vegetable you would normally have with meats of this texture and cooked in this manner. With venison steaks you can limit yourself to a starch vegetable or a paste to catch the sauce, a tossed salad and French bread.

There is great variety in garnishes, led by currant jelly, good preserves, spiced crabapple, chutneys, your own best pickle relishes and horseradish sauce.

Try Your Hand at Tartar Sauce
What are scallops without tartar sauce?

Tartar Sauce
1/2 cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons minced onion
2 teaspoons drained capers (minced)
2 teaspoons minced sweet pickle
2 teaspoons minced green pepper
2 teaspoons minced parsley

Mix together the mayonnaise, onion, capers, pickle, green pepper and parsley. Chill half an hour or so (to blend flavors) before serving in tiny paper cups.

Start '57 Holiday Dinner With Cheery Cup of Soup
Serve a Friendship Cup for a cheery beginning to the big Thanksgiving Day feast. It's a heartwarming appetizer, quick and delicious, says the November issue of a home magazine.

Combine one can each condensed tomato soup, beef broth, and water; add 1/4 teaspoon each marjoram and thyme. Simmer two minutes; dot with butter. Top each cupful with a saltine, toasted and parsleyed. So the cracker floats, hold by opposite sides, close to soup; let go.

Poole Hardware Opens at Miracle Mile

Poole Hardware, a long established Pontiac firm, has just opened the doors of a new store at the Miracle Mile Shopping Center, Telegraph and Squire Lake roads, in Bloomfield Township.

Managing the new, modern store will be Richard C.

RICHARD C. POOLE

Poole of 28335 Westbrook Pkwy., Birmingham, Poole, with many years of experience in the retail hardware business, is also co-owner of the establishment.

The store, designed with the shopper in mind, will offer 4,000 square feet of spacious shopping area. Each department is set off by a different pastel shade.

A complete line of general hardware, housewares, paints and sporting goods will be supplemented by a large and unusual gift department.

The gift department—a relatively new idea in hardware stores—will offer many varied gifts for showers, weddings, birthdays and, of course, the coming Christmas holidays.

The store will offer a complete department of early American wood, glass and copper furnishings. There are also complete gift wrapping facilities offered.

All merchandise is smartly displayed on shelves and racks arranged to make items easy to find. The quick self-serve system is facilitated by a large check-out counter at the front of the store.

The other Poole Hardware store is located at 131 Oakland Ave., where the firm has been serving the public for 60 years.

Says Nationalism Sweeps All Asia

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—With a sense of urgency, America's largest conference on Asia plunged into its first full day's session today.

"A tidal wave" of nationalism is sweeping the peoples of the East, Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter told the 1,500 delegates last night at the opening session of the sixth National Conference of UNESCO.

Speaking in the same gift War Memorial Opera House where the United Nations was created 12 years ago, Herter told in urgent terms of his recent trip to Asia where he saw the Federation of Malaya born as a sovereign nation. He noted there had been 10 such sovereign births in the Orient since World War II.

"It would be a dull person indeed who would not conclude that a drive for freedom and self-determination has swept the perimeter of Asia with the force of a tidal wave," he said.

"But I was more deeply impressed with a feeling of matching intensity that I encountered in many places. This was the realization that illiteracy, sickness, misery and the other tragic components of a sub-marginal existence were not for them, or for anyone, a necessary condition of life."

Noting that America's amalgam of cultures comes mostly from the West, Herter declared: "I think it is time we turned east toward Asia to listen and to learn. The delegates attending this conference have a rare opportunity to set a pattern which can be adopted from here, at the Pacific gateway, all the way to my home city of Boston."

Learning from Asia, Herter said, was one of the "new dimensions in diplomacy" which he discussed. He called for mutual realization among all peoples that they are dependent on one another.

He said today's diplomat is responsible for the "dynamic development" of cultural interchange, and may be called upon to do anything "from negotiating the export of a nuclear reactor to distributing a new strain of wheat."

Cultural diplomacy, however, isn't always directed toward understanding alone, and Herter warned that it sometimes serves as "a mask to disguise the pursuit of narrow political advantages."

The test, he said, is whether a nation is willing to import culture as well as export it.

Saginaw's United Fund Goes Over the Top

SAGINAW (AP)—Saginaw's United Fund drive is over the top with collections of $749,650, five per cent above the $709,455 goal.

It was the first time the Saginaw fund drive had accomplished the goal since 1953.

Insurance Men Eye Future for Space Policies

ALBANY, N.Y. (INS)—It may be years before humans join Sputnik's pooch in outer space—but insurance men already are thinking of the future.

J. Doyle Dewitt, president of the Travelers Insurance Co. of Hartford, Conn., forecasts that insurance agents will offer accent policies to spacemen "as soon as the hazards are known."

In a telephone interview with the Albany Times-Union, Dewitt saw only one blot in an otherwise rosy vista of new business—that was in claims settlement.

The insurance man readily granted that the industry would not require a corpus delicti to pay off a death claim, but he wondered where celestial lay suits would be tried. "Perhaps there is a court up there," he theorized.

Detroit to Try Again on Port Bond Issue

DETROIT (AP)—The Port of Detroit Commission says it plans to try again to get voter approval of public-financed port facilities to handle St. Lawrence Seaway traffic.

Voters rejected a proposal to borrow $9,500,000 for the facilities by a slim margin in Tuesday's municipal election. The proposal needed a 60 per cent majority to pass—it received nearly 59 per cent. The commission indicated in a statement issued Wednesday afternoon that it will seek to bring the matter before voters again at the next election.

Ads Cost Over Million

OTTAWA (AP)—In the 1957 fiscal year the Canadian Government Travel Bureau spent approximately $1,300,000 on advertising, all of it in the United States, to advertise Canada's tourist attractions.

100 Army Locomotives in Cocoons in Utah

OGDEN, Utah—The Army depot at Ogden has 100 railroad locomotives "moth-balled" in cocoons for use in an emergency.

At a cost of $2,200 per engine, whose average value is $90,000, the 45-to-131-ton locomotives have been wrapped with a layer of burlap-like cloth and sprayed with three coats of plastic material plus a coating of tar and an outside film of aluminum paint.

Timely Benefit Show Delights Audience

Pontiac Beats Soviet to Moon ---in 1957's High Fever Follies

By MARGARET BROWN
A Pontiac scientist and his assistants have outdone Russia in reaching the moon. As far as this year's production of High Fever Follies is concerned, that is.

In last evening's opening performance in Pontiac High School Auditorium, the show was cleverly put on the road when ladies and gentlemen of press, flash-bulbs popping, notebooks ready, and press cards tucked in their feed bags, charged on stage from a midst a pleasantly surprised audience.

Their assignment? To interview a seemingly peculiar little scientist, played by P. Eugene Miller, who claimed to have made a rocket ship to the moon out of tinkler toys and who had concocted a detectable gundrop designed to prevent meteorites from bombarding a space ship while in flight.

GUISE FOR SECRECY

The doctor's outlandish quirks, however, even to the point of tossing gundrops to a charmed audience, proved to be a guise for secrecy, for several scenes later found the space ship crew soaring through space, frantically eating gundrops as meteorites danced about the space ship.

Mayor William Donaldson was commander of the craft with a crew consisting of Fred Fuller, Ralph Merkowitz, Dr. F. Milton Hathaway and Bob Morrison, the romantic lead who thought it was all a joke until he awoke on the moon.

Background music for the lunar drama was provided by Mary Clancy, pianist, and Tom Montgomery, at the organ, who aided the fast-paced performance by humorously inserting wolf whistles, runs and aptly placed staccato notes for comical scenes.

Producer-director William W. Merrill succeeded in winning his audience by adding timely references to the Soviet Sputnik and Muttink, local persons and places, and popular commercials.

MISS MOONGLOW

Highlighting the evening was the crowning of Miss Moonglow, Nancy Donaldson, representing the Amies' Club, by Carl I. Flath, director of Pontiac General Hospital. By distributing canisters for the penny-a-vote method of selecting the Moon-Miss, Nancy netted over $1,000 for the hospital.

Several specialty numbers especially seemed to please the opening night audience. Sue Clark and Sherry Everett demonstrated the moon's small gravitational force in a series of high leaps, twists and somersaults on a trampoline. As Luna, queen of the moon, Mrs. La Von Ryden set audience toes tapping with a sprightly version of "Let's Go on a Moonlight Swim," assisted by lovely lunar girls.

Mrs. Robert Anderson of fared a snappy rendition of "Oh, What a Little Moonshine Can Do," while Warren Simonds presented a humorous monologue, "Somebody Else, Not Me," in reference to flying to the moon.

When Fred Fuller sang the two lovely numbers, "If I Loved You" and "Hey, There," the rustle of programs was heard as first nighters checked to see who possessed the fine tenor voice.

Producer-director William W. Merrill succeeded in winning his audience by adding timely references to the Soviet Sputnik and Muttink, local persons and places, and popular commercials.

McCarroll Dedicates New Room

Multi-purpose room of McCarroll School was dedicated Wednesday evening.

Among those who participated in the ceremony were the Rev. Milton Bank of Central Methodist Church, Dr. Otto Hutziger, assistant superintendent of schools; William H. Anderson, Board of Education member. Mrs. N. Reid Graham, president of McCarroll PTA; John Dugan, City Commission member, and Arthur Reis, father vice president of McCarroll PTA.

Dr. Hutziger made presentation of the building, which was accepted by Mr. Anderson, Mr. Dugan and Mr. Reis.

Girl Scouts Meet Today for Workshop

Members of the Northern Oakland Girl Scout Council, Waterford and Pontiac districts combined, met at the Naval Reserve Station today for a Christmas craft workshop.

Display booths included aluminum craft, stuffed dolls, Swedish weaving, ceramics, China painting, and Brownie craft.

Mrs. Howard Fletcher, first vice president of the council and Mrs. Clifford Neville, Pontiac district chairman, acted as co-chairmen for the affair.

By JUDITH L. CLEMENCE
Women's Editor, Pontiac Press
LOS ANGELES — Designers of California swimwear have the girl choosing a bathing suit this year between the devil and the deep blue sea. The inferno theme is the only way to describe the blazing colors and intricate styling that goes into these designs.

Fred Cole (Cole of California) opened the showings

"Jolie" was designed by the late Christian Dior exclusively for Cole of California. Tiny pleats etch the bodice and the back dips down to evening gown louness.

Wednesday at the Beverly Hilton Hotel with two golden-horned devils sprinting down the runway.

FIRE AND BRIMSTONE

This was an introduction to the fire and brimstone colors, combinations like voltage green and electric blue, smoulder orange and fire pink.

Maurice Handler carried the theme further with a suit which he termed "Fire Eater." The horizontally striped creation was done in flame yellow, scarlet and blue on white. These same brilliant colors were seen in the DeWeese Designs collection. Aquatone and sea orange were combined in one sheath suit.

The Taj look appears as one of the highlights of Gantner's collection. The fabric gleams in red, orange and gold Oriental brocade. The back of the suit is shirred and a slim separate shirt is slashed at the sides.

Second in importance to color in swimwear is styling. Designers have done more to help girls with figure problems than ever before. For instance, a kilt skirt over a sheath gives the swimmer freedom and sleekness of a maillot, but the skirt adds thigh flattery.

HIGHER AND WIDER

Necklines are higher and wider and backs are much lower. Novelty backs from bow trim to spider web straps are much in evidence. The trend is toward simpler, smoother bodice and the lean look of the sheath.

The important fabrics are knits, latex, cotton, dull satin, silk and softer metallics. Oriental influence is seen in silhouette, fabric and detail. Slit skirts, frog fastenings, high mandarin necklines and the use of satin and brocade polished cottons all help bring the Orient to the beach.

Rose Marie Reid's swimsuits continue to have the same figure-flattering designs. The sheath suit dominates the collection whether in knits, cottons, cotton-voiles, wool or latex. Specialty numbers are done in the new shimmering metallic threads, some with jeweled bodices.

DEFINITE TREND

The sweater look in swimsuits is a definite trend out here on the West Coast. Gantner displayed this look in a red one-piece suit with the two-piece look. Cotton knit down the front makes the cardigan, and the same knit is used for a hip band.

The sheath also dominates the Catalina swimwear collection. The straight shorts leg line and low V-neck backs are seen repeatedly. Very low-backed suits are done without zippers.

Catalina displayed the cotton satin suit in several shades of pink worn by Natalie Wood in the movie, "Marjorie Morningstar."

Newest of the swimwear creators is Elisabeth Stewart. The silhouette in this collection has a look of restraint and understatement in design. An example is the swimsuit with skirted boy shorts, square neckline and double-breasted pearl button trim.

WILLOWY LINE

Caltex designs reflect the long, unbroken willowy line. Emphasis also is on fabrics, colors and the uncluttered look.

The two-piece suit, designed to look like a one-piece suit, is given more attention by this firm. This is to aid the shorter or longer-waisted woman. One suit fits neatly into the boy short leg and is self-adjusting for the short or tall.

All for now. We'll tell you the California dress story tomorrow.

Teens Stand Ready to Aid Parents

By EUGENE GILBERT
President of the Gilbert Youth Research Co.

Have you heard anyone say that modern young people have not the love and respect for their parents that was common a generation or two ago?

It's odd if you haven't because criticisms of that sort are as common today as they were in the last century and for hundreds of years before that.

To pin down the truth or falsity, we put some leading questions recently to 600 youngsters all over the country.

It would be interesting to find out what answers middle-aged people would give to the same questions about their parents.

These questions were toughies—not ones that could be answered with platitudinous generalities. Instead they got down to what seemed to us the nub of the matter:

Questions Asked in This Survey

Do you expect to support your parents in their old age? Will you do so willingly if you have to?

Do you think it is fair if you will have to?

Would you have your parents live with you if they are dependent on you?

If not, where would you have them live? In their own home? In an old age home? Some other place?

What are your feelings in general about taking care of your parents should the need arise?

Are today's youngsters willing to support their parents in their old age? Do they stand ready even to take their aged parents into their own homes?

HEARTENING REPLIES

The answers were as heartening as anything we have come up with in quite a while.

Not only are these representative teenagers willing to honor their fathers and mothers, but practically all are ready and willing to support their parents if they have to.

And our experience is that the answers given by a carefully selected sample such as this are truly representative of the country as a whole.

The comments of two teenaged girls just about summed up majority thinking on the subject.

"I feel that after all they've done for me, I could never repay them and anything I could do for them would be done willingly and with pleasure," said Judy Glas of New Orleans.

"They took care of me in my youth and I should be more than happy to take care of them in their waning years," added Carole Sue Thorpe of Alpha, Mich.

SOME RELUCTANT
Comments from a 3 per cent minority indicated they too would help support the old folks in most cases but reluctantly.

"I would do so in an emergency," said an Arkansas girl.

"I'd sure hate to have to take care of them," said a Berkeley, Calif., boy. "But I guess I would if necessary."

Frank, a Los Angeles youth, balanced carefully on the fence with his comment:

"I don't think my parents would ever ask me to do it."

In some families of more than one child, the youngsters were ready to help but they felt the contributions should be shared.

HALF RESPONSIBLE

"I would do it because I would feel it half my responsibility as I'm sure my brother would help," said an Alexander City, Ala., girl.

"I think my brothers and sisters four per cent said it would be better if they did not.

"My parents are always welcome into my home, whether it be for a weekend or forever," said Mrs. Janice Schwartz of Baltimore.

"My mother would be welcome at our home or my dad but not both," a state of Washington girl noted. "If possible, they would live alone, but close to us."

Father Trese Is Speaker of the Day

Volunteers Given Awards at Pontiac State Hospital

Pontiac State Hospital's chapel was the setting Wednesday afternoon for the third annual tea for individual volunteer workers and organizations.

Opening the program with musical selections was the hospital orchestra. This group made up of patients at the hospital played throughout the program.

Medical Superintendent Dr. Ivan A. LaCore gave a speech of introduction. He stressed the fact that the stigma of mental illness is not entirely removed from the community and that volunteer workers can help get rid of that stigma.

Speaker of the day was the Rev. John A. Trese, Father Trese is Catholic chaplain for Pontiac State Hospital. He pointed out that the work of the volunteer cannot be overestimated. "Volunteers," he said, "affect the lives of people (patients) they meet."

Father Trese went on to say that volunteers can give the patients affection and a pattern, which are things the mentally ill person needs.

AWARDS PRESENTED

Dr. James McHugh of the child psychiatry program presented awards to the Foundation for Aid to Emotionally Disturbed Children.

Birthday Club, Alpha Alpha Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha, Beta Theta Chapter of Lambda Chi Omega, Shrine Club of Pontiac, Birmingham-Bloomfield Branch of Needlework Guild of America, and Live Wire Club.

Awards were given to Women's Alliance of Birmingham Unitarian Church, Psychiatric Aide Association, General Motors Girls' Club, Catholic Charities Volunteers, Birmingham Junior League, Mrs. Morrey Ager, Jack Frost, Elizabeth Conner, Joseph Franz, Rebecca Ann Odell, Mrs. J. E. Bartholomew, Vivian Machauer, Beryl Blackett, Arvesta Shaffer, Madeline Glynn and Mrs. Stella Kraft.

Following the presentations, a coffee hour was held in the social room of the chapel.

Modern gas ovens with extra-large capacity give best results when baking pans are staggered on the oven racks. For best heat circulation, place pans at least one inch from the wall of the oven or the side of another pan.

Mrs. Stella Kraft, chairman of Greater Detroit Council, B'nai B'rith; Arthur Heaton, president of Oakland County Citizens Committee; Mrs. Donald Bergeron and the Rev. John A. Trese got together at the tea after the award-giving and exchanged a few verbal notes.

Hats Aren't Vital to Designer Loper

Milliners may insist that a hat is necessary to complete a woman's wardrobe, but designer Don Loper disagrees.

"Hats went out in 1935, and no woman looks pretty in this season's monstrosities," Loper says firmly.

The Hollywood designer says women should wear only what flatters them, and if hats don't flatter—no hats. He believes mostly in "the little black dress" as the basis of fashion, because:

"Any woman is always smartly dressed in a simple black frock. It is a woman's best buy, because it is always in style."

Scrubbing of Feet Has Dual Purpose

Scrubbing your feet serves more than one purpose. It removes odor and roughness. Feet retain perspiration more than other parts of the body because they are always enclosed.

So scrub them with a brush (soles too) and plenty of suds. A pumice stone gently rotated on the heel and balls of the feet while feet are still wet will discourage calluses.

SANDRA KAY CAPPELL

Mrs. Corrine Cappell of Perkins street announces the engagement of her daughter, Sandra Kay, to Kenneth E. Eagleton. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Myrtle Eagleton of Edith street and the late Mr. Eagleton. For the ceremony to be held in St. Vincent de Paul Church the bride-elect has asked her sister, Mrs. Clare C. Olsen, to act as matron of honor, with Arlene and Eleanor Cappell serving as bridesmaids. Harry Eagleton will be his brother's best man and Jay and S. Conway Cappell will seat the guests.

Avoid 2nd Engagement Celebration

Large Party Given to Announce Girl's First Betrothal

By EMILY POST

"Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter was engaged a year ago. At that time my husband and I gave a large reception at the country club in honor of the engagement. Soon afterwards, however, the engagement was broken."

"My daughter is now going with another young man and they expect to become engaged shortly. Would it be in good taste for us to give a second party for her, or would it be best to simply announce the engagement in the newspapers without any fanfare?"

Answer: It would be in better taste to avoid a second large engagement party.

"Dear Mrs. Post: I enjoy sending Christmas cards and send out a great many of them. Of course I receive a good many, too, which I appreciate, but I do not send cards in order to receive them. Last year I did not receive cards from several people to whom I sent cards and my sister thinks that I should eliminate them from my list this year."

"She thinks that their not sending me cards means that they would like to stop the exchange of Christmas cards and that if I send them cards this year they will feel obligated to return them. I can't see this at all, but I would like your opinion on the matter."

Answer: As you enjoy sending them you may continue to do so even to those who do not return them, especially if your friends know how you feel about these cards.

"Dear Mrs. Post: Isn't it ill-bred, not to apologize for dialing a wrong number? I have often gone to the telephone and have had the person on the other end hang up without a word of apology after discovering that he (or she) had the wrong number."

"This infuriates me and to my way of thinking is the height of rudeness. Will you please discuss this in your column?"

Answer: I agree with you. A person should always say, "I'm sorry." A well-bred person says this instinctively.

Watch Out for Bad Habits in Sitting and Walking

Posture Vitally Affects Appearance

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Few women know what a big difference posture makes in their appearance. I suggest that those of you who read this column begin today to observe the way women carry themselves.

You will immediately realize how different a certain woman would look if she held her abdomen in, how much more attractive another would appear if she did not have round shoulders or if her head did not protrude, or what great improvement it would be if yet another corrected her swayback.

Of course, the beauty value of good posture will be impressed upon you also by looking at those women who have a lovely carriage. Through observation only can you truly estimate the importance of this to every woman who wishes to look her best. It is especially vital as one grows older because most folks have a tendency to slump.

Here are some habits to watch out for: Slumping in chairs and hyperextending the knees while walking. The latter throws the hips back and leads to swayback.

Women spend hours in cars, especially when their children are at the age when they must be taken hither and thither practically all day long. The way you sit in a car has a lot of influence on your figure. If you slump you will get round shoulders and creases in the neck.

How's your posture? This is a most important part of your being well groomed and attractive.

WRONG HEIGHT

The habit of working at kitchen tables which are either too low or too high leads to poor posture. Overcome the temptation to stand with one foot forward and that leg relaxed and one hip higher than the other.

Remember that the way you sit or stand while talking, working, driving a car, sewing, reading, playing cards, knitting or playing the piano molds you into the woman you are.

Here are the vital points to remember: Shoulders and knees should be relaxed — spine straight — abdomen in — chest lifted — hips tucked under — neck stretched as it is when you push toward the ceiling with the TOP of your head.

This may all sound dull and boring but the results of good posture are exciting.

If you would like to have my exercises to correct round shoulders, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 7 to Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press.

Tomorrow: "She's Far From Hopeless — Hip Exercises Suggested."

Be Diplomatic in Urging Hubby to Take It Easier

It Might Be Risky to Make Big Fuss Over Health of Middle-Aged Man

By RUTH MILLETT

A wife writes: "About a year ago I made up my mind that I was going to make my middle-aged husband's health one of my main concerns."

Not having any desire to be a widow, and seeing several of my husband's overworked colleagues drop with heart attacks, I went to work to try to get my husband to start taking it easy.

The other evening I dragged him home from a party before he was ready to leave so that he could get a good night's rest. He had told me earlier the next day was going to be particularly trying.

"I began to wonder if in making my husband face the fact that he has reached an age when he ought to slow down I might not be setting him up as an easy mark for the first young woman who takes it into her mind to make him feel young."

"Am I just being silly, or is there a possibility of such a thing happening?"

The point is, the wife who feels she ought to urge her husband to slow down, have regular physical checkups and see that he eats properly has to be a diplomat.

DEMANDING JOB
She should base her plea that he take things a little easier on the grounds that his job is demanding and that he is carrying a bigger load than any man ought to carry.

She should be careful in dragging him away from parties not to act like a mother hen clucking over a chick. She doesn't have to explain that they are leaving early so that her husband can get his rest.

She doesn't have to do a lot of talking about his cutting down on fattening foods, etc. She can do more by planning menus carefully and not tempting him with fattening foods than by a lot of talk.

It might be dangerous for a wife to make a middle-aged husband begin to feel old by making a big fuss over his health. But with a little tact she can look after his health without making him determined to prove that he is just as young as he ever was.

The "Miss Korea of 1937" who was entered in the "Miss Universe" contest at Long Beach, Calif., is named Miss Okay Park. She is 22, pretty and O.K.

MR. and MRS. P. J. MATERNA

An open house, marking the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Materna of Lowell street, will be held Nov. 12 at the South Tilden avenue home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Pagacich. A High Mass in their honor will be celebrated at St. Michael Church that day. Mr. and Mrs. Materna have two other children, Donald Materna and Mrs. O. D. Loomis, both of Pontiac.

Sorority Gives Clothing Items for Ingathering

When the Alpha Chapter of Beta Theta Phi sorority met at the Drayton Plains home of Mrs. Jack R. Greathouse Tuesday evening, each member presented two identical articles of clothing for the Needlework Guild's Ingathering.

In the business meeting the group voted to donate a sum of money to the Girls' Ranch at Camp Oakland.

Plans were discussed for a cooperative dinner to be held at the home of Mrs. L. H. Cross on Lexington avenue in early December.

President Mrs. Hubert Johnson appointed Mrs. Greathouse chairman of the dinner, which will be combined with the yearly Christmas party.

Oiling Helps Renew Vim, Vigor of Nails

Oiling will help put vim and vigor back in your nails. This is true for brittle nails that break or split easily. Any oil will do; just rub it on.

An application before going to bed is always good. But more important when your nails start to chip, check your diet to see if there is a deficiency.

How to Make Closet Into Drawing Board

DOVER, O. (INS)—The back of a closet door can be converted into a handy, ample-sized drawing and writing board in a child's bedroom.

According to the manufacturers of a pre-finished hardboard paneling (Marlite), this is how to do it: Cover the door with the paneling, mounting the hardboard with either adhesive or screws. The surface, of baked plastic, can be marked freely with washable crayons and readily cleaned with a damp cloth.

The firm says a white board is excellent for legibility — especially important for homework — and blends with any decoration scheme.

U.N. Assembly Favors Disarmament Talks in Spite of Soviet Refusal

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (U.P.)—Western delegates were elated today over the thumping majority given their call for new disarmament talks—but no one seemed to know how to get the Russians to negotiate again.

The 57-9 vote accorded the 24-nation proposal by the General Assembly's top Political Committee brought predictions from some that Russia would reconsider her vow not to meet with the 12-nation Disarmament Commission or its five-nation subcommittee.

Chief U. S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge declared that, in view of the heavy vote, he could not believe "the Soviets would choose to bring on their heads the obloquy and condemnation of the whole world community as those who sabotage peace."

Diplomats said privately, however, that any quick Soviet back-down was unlikely in view of Russia's emphatic stand and her declaration after the vote that the 24-nation plan had served only to drive "negotiations into a final deadlock."

The Western elation appeared to stem mainly from the feeling that the vote isolated Russia from three-fourths of the Assembly on the vital arms issue. The Soviets failed to muster any support in opposing the plan except from their own bloc. Fifteen nations abstained—Communist Yugoslavia, India, Burma, Ceylon, Indonesia, Afghanistan, Finland, Egypt, Syria, Ghana, Japan, Nepal, Saudi Arabia, Sudan and Yemen.

The vote assured the resolution the two-thirds approval it needs for formal adoption by the 52-nation general assembly.

But the chilling fact remained that there would be little point in the four Western subcommittee members—Britain, France, the United States and Canada—reviving the arms talks without Russia sitting in.

Jury Declares UAW Innocent

Absolved of Charges Union Violated Corrupt Practices Act

DETROIT (U.P.)—A federal court jury yesterday found the United Auto Workers Union innocent of charges it violated the Corrupt Practices Act by sponsoring a series of television programs before the 1954 election.

The jury of 10 women and 2 men returned the verdict after two hours of deliberation. The UAW was charged with illegally attempting to influence election results by sponsoring nine television programs in 1954.

Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the UAW, hailed the verdict as "complete repudiation of false charges made by Republican politicians... that the UAW was operating illegally in its educational programming."

The government's case hinged on the contention that the UAW sought to influence the 1954 election by plugging UAW-favored candidates on the nine union-sponsored telecasts. All candidates appearing on the program were Democrats.

UAW witnesses, including President Walter Reuther, testified the programs were designed to inform UAW members of the issues and were not beamed to the general public although televised from a commercial station. The UAW said some Republican candidates had been invited to appear but none accepted.

Flu Still Going Strong

WASHINGTON (INS) — The Public Health Service reported today that there were at least 1,250,000 new cases of influenza or influenza-like disease during the week which ended last Saturday.

Soviets Parade Military Might

Malinovsky told his soldiers the Soviet Union would continue the fight for peace.

"We fully understand that a new war with nuclear weapons would mean the end of humanity," he declared.

Referring to the Sputnik launchings, the new defense minister said this was only the first step in the conquest of space and that no force in the world can hinder the progress of communism.

He accused the U.S. of carrying out a policy of aggravating tension, declaring:

HATCH PLOTS

"The enemies of peace are hatching plots against peace in the Near and Middle East. They have increased the campaign of blackmail against Syria and are provoking Turkey against her..."

"Today as never before Soviet arms are able to repel any aggressor. They are welded around the Communist Party and the Leninist Central Committee and will be worthy of the faith of the people."

Malinovsky, dressed in a steel blue uniform with mortarboard epaulets, took salutes from crack units of the Army and Navy while standing upright in a powder gray open Zis limousine.

stopped in front of each unit and declared: "I congratulate you on the 40th anniversary of the October Revolution."

The soldiers and sailors answered full-throatedly: "Hurrah. We wish you good health."

The civilian section of the parade followed immediately upon the military marchpast with the Spartak Sports Club contingent carrying a large model of the earth with two rotating sputniks.

School children broke parade ranks when they passed the tribune to present flowers to the Soviet leaders.

Thunderous applause greeted a column of scientists who hoisted aloft models of sputniks, atomic power stations and electronic computers.

Portraits of Marx, Lenin and Engels and those of present Soviet government and party leaders were carried by the civilian marchers in a sea of Red flags and banners honoring the revolution.

From the Press Box

BY BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

Michigan State could finish the Big Ten season next week with a 5-1 record by beating Minnesota. Yet Ohio State could also lose only one game and win the conference title and get the inside track to the Rose Bowl.

This is because MSU plays only six Big Ten games and the Buckeyes play seven.

It doesn't seem fair that playing an extra game should mean the difference between first and second place. Michigan State could better its record against a team like Northwestern and match Ohio State, but it is the poor scheduling setup in the Big Ten which is at fault.

While some teams play six games, others play seven and eight. When the conference faculty representatives meet in December, the scheduling problems will be a main topic of discussion.

MSU FAVORS 7 GAMES

At the football writers' luncheon this week, MSU faculty representative Dr. Harold B. Tukey and athletic director Biggie Munn both agreed that the conference should set up a seven game round robin.

Another favorable point was to have a 10 game schedule instead of nine, thereby allowing three intersectional contests.

"We go on record favoring the 10-game schedule with seven-game conference round robin," said Dr. Tukey, "and I'm sure it will be brought up at the December meeting. The outcome, however, is a different story."

"They may decide on an eight-game round robin and two intersectional games, or they may decide to play only nine games all within the conference," he added.

To play a nine game schedule and limit it strictly to a Big Ten round robin would hurt the conference.

"Eliminating our intersectional rivalries would hurt the prestige of the conference," said Dr. Tukey, "we would not favor a nine-game round robin."

DITTO FROM THE PRESS BOX

It looks like Shrine High School of Royal Oak will become the 9th member of the Suburban Catholic League. The thought seems to be that the Knights are too small for their present league.

Reports of dissension have leaked out concerning the East Detroit High skid in football. With some highly touted personnel, the Shamrocks have lost three straight in their league.

A laudatory comment must be made for the Pee Wee Football League of Pontiac. A total of 364 boys and 50 parents and adult coaches participated in a well organized program.

Kubek, Sanford Selected Top Rookies in Majors

NEW YORK (U)—Versatile Tony Kubek, who wasn't even on the New York Yankees' roster in spring training, and Jack Sanford, a pleasant pitching surprise to the Philadelphia Phils, today were named Major League Rookies-of-the-Year for 1957.

Kubek was selected as the American League's outstanding freshman and Sanford captured the National League rookie award. A 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Assn. of America, composed of three from each big league city, participated in the annual poll.

Kubek was a unanimous choice, receiving 23 votes. Frank Malzone of the Boston Red Sox was named on one ballot. Malzone, however, had been previously declared ineligible by the Board of Directors since he had 103 official at bats in 1956.

Sanford was named on 16 ballots. Teammate Ed Bouchee, a solid-hitting first baseman, was next with four votes. Pitcher Dick Drott of the Chicago Cubs received three votes and outfielder

Discuss Minor Loop Realignment Today

NEW YORK (U)—Leslie O'Connor, President of the Pacific Coast League, was hopeful, but reluctant to discuss specific aims in fear of "muddying the waters" before today's special meeting with Commissioner Ford Frick to study realignment problems facing baseball's top minor league.

O'Connor will tackle the problems arising from the Giants' and Dodgers' shift to San Francisco and Los Angeles in a conference with Frick, George Trautman, President of the National Assn. (governing body of the minors), and representatives of the two National League clubs.

"We have some ideas of just what cities we would like to move into," said O'Connor, "but several are now in other leagues and we don't want to put them in the same situation we are in. I'm hopeful, however, that we can work out a realignment today."

BIG BAD WOLF—One of the state's outstanding quarterbacks, Jerry Gross of Bay City Central, will give Pontiac High woes tomorrow night in Wisner Stadium when the Chiefs tangle with the 2nd ranked Wolves.

Auburn, Hawks Top Defenders

Iowa's Defense Best Against Rushing; UD in 8th Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Defense, once junked as being too subtle for the average fan, suddenly has made a comeback in major college football on the unbeaten records of such national powers as Auburn and Iowa.

Auburn tops the list in total defense for the fourth consecutive week. Iowa, once tied, is No. 1 in rushing defense. Detroit's Titans are 8th.

And every major unbeaten club in the nation is among the leaders in one defensive category or another — while less than half of them are up there in offense.

Only Texas A&M, the leader in this week's Associated Press poll, is missing from the undefeated powers that show up high in the defense statistics released today by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau.

Auburn, getting stingier each game, has permitted an average of but 136.7 yards a game in the six played to date. The only team to do better for the first six games of any season in the past nine years was the 1955 Auburn bunch, who permitted only 132 a game—and then were rapped from the unbeaten list with a 27-13 defeat by Tulane in game No. 7.

Campbell Sends His Bluebird to World Mark

CONSTON, England (U)—Britain's Donald Campbell set a new world record in his boat Bluebird II today with an estimated average speed of 239 m.p.h.

Campbell, who recently returned from the United States, had two runs over the Misty Coniston water at an estimated 260 m.p.h. and 218 m.p.h. The record is an average of both.

The Briton broke his own world mark of 225.63 m.p.h. Campbell's time for the two runs was 9 minutes, 27 seconds.

Halimi Undisputed Bantam Champion

Rallies to Win Split Decision Over Macias

French Slugger Turns Boxer to Pull Ahead in Late Rounds

LOS ANGELES (U)—A rugged little French-Algerian named Alphonse Halimi who last night out-slugged and outboxed Raul Macias of Mexico for the undisputed World Bantamweight championship.

A crowd of 20,000—at least 8,000 of them countrymen of the Mexican fighter—were on hand when the two little scrappers squared off under the dazzling ring candelabra at Wrigley Field.

The night was cool, but the fighters set a torrid pace that was to continue over the 15-round route.

As expected, Halimi, the rock-hard onetime Algeria street fighter tried to turn the nationally televised match into a slugfest. Fighting from a half crouch, he pressed forward throwing hooks and uppercuts to the Mexican's body and head.

And Macias, renowned for his boxing deftness, played the Frenchman's game. In the early rounds, the little gamecocks battled head-to-head in a bruising war of infighting.

"Box him, box him," urged Macias' manager, Pancho Rosales.

"I can't jab him," said Macias, "bleeding from the nose. He's on top of me, I can't keep him away."

Nevertheless, Macias fought Halimi on fairly even terms. Both fighters landed some dandy, chopping hooks to the body and head. But neither was shaken badly.

"In the sixth I realized I couldn't knock him out. I knew I'd have to box him, Halimi said later.

Halimi made the switch from infighting to long range jabbing about the 10th round, and proceeded to beat the Mexican at his own game.

Halimi held a reach advantage of almost two inches. He made the most of it, too, pulling ahead of all score cards in the last five rounds.

The split decision was greeted with lusty boos by the Mexican's constituents.

Referee Mushy Callahan cast his vote for Macias, 144 to 141, under California's 10-point system.

Judges Frankie Van and Dynamite Jackson decided the bout. Van carded 148-141, and Jackson 147-147, both for Halimi, who had been recognized by the World Boxing Championship Committee and Boxing union of Europe. The Associated Press scored it even.

Atlanta (U)—Being selected national Lineman of the Week is only the second-best present Georgia Tech center Don Stephenson, received this week.

Pretty Karen Stephenson presented Don with a husky son, Donald Keith, Tuesday and any other honor naturally has to take a back seat.

Besides, being named Lineman of the Week for spectacular play against Duke is old stuff to Stephenson. He won the honor last year in Durham and repeated with his sterling play here Saturday when Tech upset the Blue Devils 13-0.

Bay City After 7th Victim

Pontiac Is Den for 'Wolves'

Bay City Central has a fitting nickname—the "Wolves." Every team except two in the last 17 games have literally been thrown to the Wolves in the Saginaw Valley and on the Michigan prep grid-irons for the past two years.

Friday night Pontiac High School will tangle with the Wolves in its own den at Wisner Stadium and coach Jesse MacLeay has done some lineup shuffling with the hope of containing the vaunted Bay City attack.

Disappointed with the poor blocking and tackling in the Flint Northern game a week ago, MacLeay has rearranged a few players.

Harrison Munson, who has seen very little action offensively this year, will get the starting nod at right half and also be in the defensive backfield.

Ray Smith, a junior, has been given the nod to start at right end and Nick Shorter, a scrappy little halfback, is also expected to see duties with both platoons.

Junior end Tom O'Brien, who suffered a leg injury in the Northern game, will be out of action, as will guard Willie Duncan, who is out with a knee injury.

Several players on the PHS squad were disciplined for breaking training rules and will not play Friday.

Bay City, with its vaunted aerial attack led by junior Jerry Gross, is not exceptionally big in the line, but the Wolves are very mobile and recover quickly.

"Our offensive attack is obviously centered on our passing game," said Bay City coach Elmer Engle. "The proportionate yardage passing in comparison to running is three to one," he added.

The Wolves have gained 1,300 yards through the air this year for 16 touchdowns.

Gross uses end Bob Bishop and halfback Ken Swinicki as his main targets, however, with its diverse aerial weapon, at least five other Bay City players figure well in the pass receiving department.

"I don't want anything more than to have our boys do their best," said MacLeay, "we are well aware of Bay City's strength, but we must realize that in this sport anything can happen."

Bay City has romped over six opponents with ease and only number one ranked Midland with its huge forward wall were able to stop the Wolves, 20-14.

The Wolves have vanquished Owosso, 48-0; Birmingham, 47-6; Bay City Handy, 33-12; Flint Central, 47-6; Arthur Hill, 26-6; and Saginaw, 41-0.

Northville Favored to Win Title

Blue Chip Game at Holly

By CHUCK ABRAIR

The chips are down at Holly come Friday night in what is expected to be the "game of the year" in the Wayne-Oakland League.

It will match the loop's only unbeaten teams as defending champion Northville invades the Bronco lair in hopes of taking a big step towards wrapping up another title.

Despite the tie, Holly could wrap up its 2nd Wayne-Oakland crown by winning this one. It is the Broncos final loop outing while Northville will have two more to taking things easier fearing possible injuries to key men. "We know we're in for a tough game. Holly has a good team," was his comment.

Northville must be ranked the favorite. The Mustangs have had a wide offensive edge and will have a weight advantage of 11 pounds per man among the starters.

The Wayne County school has scored 146 points and allowed 46, while Holly has 118 against 25 giving the latter the defensive edge. Comparative scores are just about even against similar rivals.

Swift Dick Biery gives the Mustangs the edge on speed. He has 60 points and is one of the area's top breakaway runners.

Rugged Bob Letson is Holly's most consistent ground gainer and scorer from his fullback post. The 185-pounder has 42 points. Bill Walker (24) and Bob Starnes (18) of Northville and Bronco's Bill Taylor (30) and Amos Bradsher (18) are the other offensive sparkplugs.

Sportsmen Honor Hardesty

110 at Appreciation Party

Ben T. Hardesty, Pontiac resident, national and international skish, bait and fly-casting champion, was the "toast of the town" last night.

Ben was honored for his achievements in the art of handling a fishing rod, line and lure by 110 sportsmen of Pontiac and the metropolitan area. He received an engrossed parchment certificate from co-host Henry Gotham who with Ben Jerome Jr., came up with the idea for the party at the City Club Room of the Waldron. Another surprise gift from the assembly was a handsome color TV set.

Hardesty was introduced by Michigan Outdoor's Mort Neff who related Ben's activities in exhibitions and actual fishing exploits. Ben explained the methods of scoring by which he won the International Casting Federation's first world all-around title this fall, in Kiel, Germany. Hardesty won six of eight competitions leading to the title.

Among the guests at the affair were Elmer Pettengill of Pontiac Motors, Wally Burkemo, outstanding professional golfer from Frank-

Lead in Grapevine Race Tied Up

Playing the hunches on the close ones has cost Bruno Kearns, season-long leader of the grapevine, the lead and as result Chuck Abair has pulled into a tie.

The troublesome games were Rochester's win over Romeo and Birmingham's victory over Port Huron.

Now this week presents a couple of toughies. The Holly-Northville game should be a humdinger, and Lake Orion will have its high state ranking jeopardized for the next two weeks by Romeo and Holly.

It looks like the tie will be broken in the St. Mike-St. James clash. St. James is a slight favorite and is Abair's choice. Kearns has his fingers crossed that the Mikes will come through.

Amen, we say for this week.

Naval Academy Admits Prep School Support

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Assn. is "trying to find a way" for the Naval Academy to legally continue its prep school support of athletes, Capt. Slade Cutter, athletic director, reported today.

"We're in violation" of present rules, admitted Cutter who began the Navy's customary three-year stint as athletic director last summer. He said the NCAA "has been very helpful" in trying to reach a compromise in its rules to sanction what Cutter declares is an "above board" Academy effort to help athletes get through prep school before enrollment at the Naval Academy.

The NCAA forbids all such aid before or after graduation although Cutter said the Naval Academy has been doing it before enrollment for years. The Military Academy at West Point has done the "same essentially," he said. The original Navy football squad as listed for the season numbered 47 out of which 24 went to prep school and six to other colleges as freshmen.

Capt. Cutter claimed this preparatory training is necessary for most boys to gain entrance and stay in the Naval Academy. He said that 80 per cent of the entire enrollment of 3,800 has such extra study.

The "significant" difference between Naval Academy help for athletes and the so-called athletic scholarships of other colleges, Cutter said, is that Navy first considers academic need.

If further academic study is indicated, Cutter said, then an alumni foundation takes over and secondarily determines what financial aid is required.

Invite 'Insurance Entry'

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Eddie Schmidt was invited as an "insurance" United States entry in the Washington, D.C. International yesterday after a Laurel official criticized other American owners for withdrawing their horses from the $100,000 race.

Junior Back Key in OSU Title Bid

CHICAGO (INS) — If Ohio State wins the Big Ten football title and the automatic berth to the Rose Bowl, Don Clark, junior left half-back must be given much of the credit.

The powerful Buckeye runner leads the Western Conference in three departments — rushing, scoring and total offense.

Asked what he thought about his Akron, O., player coach Woody Hayes said:

"If we should win the Big Ten title, Clark will be largely responsible. I really feel that without him in the lineup, we would not be leading the conference."

M' Harriers to Run

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Michigan will compete in the Big Ten cross country championships for the first time in three years Nov. 16.

Track coach Don Canham said he would send a seven-man delegation to the meet in Chicago. The last time the Wolverines entered in 1954 they won.

Asked to compare Clark with former Buckeye great Howard (Hopalong) Cassidy, Hayes answered:

"That's an awful unfair question. Especially when I don't like to compare players. With Clark still in the middle of his junior season, I think it would be unfair to him.

"Cassidy was the finest football player I ever had at Ohio. There was no doubt about it. He did everything well. In all fairness to Clark, though, he hasn't had the kind of blocking that Cassidy had.

"Don is a fine football player. He is a fast runner and he hits the line hard. He still has another season to go but I would not go out on a limb and say Clark is a great player.

"He is our best back. He does everything well. I couldn't ask anything more of him."

Statistics bear Hayes out: Clark leads all Big Ten ball carriers with 459 yards in 81 rushes for a 5.7 yards per try. He has scored 42 points on seven touchdowns and leads in total offense with 473 yards.

As a sophomore, Clark was the ninth best rusher in the land. He gained 797 yards in nine games to lead all his teammates. His running mate, Jim Roseboro, gained 712 yards. With Roseboro graduated, Clark has had to bear the brunt of the offense.

An excellent blocker, many times he leads the interference.

He possesses an ideal blend of speed with power and is probably the best "stop-and-go" runner in the conference. He goes outside as well as inside and his ability to reverse his field has caused many a defensive back to miss a tackle.

Last Saturday Clark had his finest day by scoring four touchdowns to tie a Big Ten mark.

His real test, however, will be Saturday when Ohio State plays Purdue.

Duffy, Terry Rely on Shillelagh

Wolverines Workout for Illini

Ailments Hinder 'M'

ANN ARBOR (U)—It hasn't been readily apparent during games, but little nuisance injuries have cut down the effectiveness of the Michigan football game this season. Minor ailments have been a complaint of coach Bennie Oosterbaan ever since practice began, and he repeated it today.

"Most of our injured players have been able to play," Oosterbaan said. "But the work they missed during the week can't be made up. They don't learn our new stuff without practicing."

"This has been the worst wave of injuries in many seasons."

Aide Bob Holloway was in agreement with his boss. Holloway played defensive end on the unbeaten teams of 1947-48 and now he oversees the weekly installation of Michigan's new defense pattern. His work is hindered by the large number of absentees each day.

"I can't recall anyone ever being hurt during 1947 and 1948, except Dick Knapthorn," Holloway said. "He missed two games, but no one else ever got hurt."

Most of Michigan's regulars have been sidelined either once or twice during practice, but only Dave Bowers and fullback John Herrnstein have been lost for games.

Bowers will be out for the rest of the season with a fractured shoulder.

Herrnstein's painful ankle kept him from playing in two games. He returned against Iowa last week but wasn't able to duplicate his jarring running of last year. It's doubtful if he will this season. Most of his efforts will be confined to defense.

Nuisance injuries have kept end Gary Prahst and quarterback Jim Van Pelt inside the training room, too.

Prahst was to have filled the shoes of Ron Kramer, but he hasn't had the chance although he was well enough to appear in every game.

"Prahst has been hurt in three spots," Oosterbaan said. "He's never been sound. First it was a knee, then a hip and now a shoulder. He kept getting hurt in every game."

Van Pelt is ailing with a pulled leg muscle that may force him out of Saturday's Illinois game. He first hurt his leg in September.

Michigan has only today's full-scale workout and tomorrow's brief drill scheduled before flying down to Champaign for their game with the Illini.

Campus Stations to Carry MSU-ND

EAST LANSING (U)—The Michigan State-Notre Dame football game, a sellout for month, will be televised Saturday — but to a limited number of viewers.

Station WKAR-TV, university operated TV station, will carry the game on channel 60 starting at 1:00 p.m. EST. MSU officials said today. The telecast will be relayed to Notre Dame's station WNDU-TV in South Bend, Ind.

In Michigan, the telecast will be beamed for a 65 mile radius of East Lansing but only sets equipped with ultra high frequency transmission will be able to pick it up.

Irish Coaches Struggle for Lucky Trophy

Each One Swings Stick Saturday When MSU Faces Notre Dame

EAST LANSING (U)—A Shillelagh, as everyone knows, is the stout stick Irishmen use to beat each other over the head in the spirit of fun and games.

And a Shillelagh is the personal trophy coaches Hugh (Duffy) Daugherty of Michigan State and Terence Patrick Brennan of Notre Dame, a pair of Irishmen, will be fighting for when their football teams run headlong into each other here Saturday.

If the sellout crowd of 76,000 watches closely, they'll see Daugherty swinging the stick as he masterminds from the bench. If he wins, he keeps possession. If not, he's honor-bound to deliver it to Brennan.

Both Duffy and Terry were young assistant coaches who succeeded their bosses in 1954. Daugherty took over from Biggie Munn, who became athletic director after building MSU to its present position as a football leader. Brennan was hand-picked by the equally successful Frank Leahy on his retirement from coaching.

Daugherty had a hard time with a 3-6 won and lost record his first year. Brennan went sailing through with a 9-1 winning season.

A fan gave Duffy the Shillelagh to carry before the Notre Dame game to change his luck. State was beaten by missed conversions, 20-19, and Daugherty handed the stick over to Brennan with the wry remark: "I didn't bring me any luck, you take it."

Daugherty bounced back in 1955 with a 9-1 season, including his Rose Bowl win, while Brennan was enjoying a good 8-2 year. When Michigan State won the annual struggle with Notre Dame, 21-7, Daugherty got his forgotten Shillelagh back again.

Michigan State had a 7-2 season including a 47-14 runaway over the Irish last year. Brennan was temporarily down with only two wins against eight losses. So Daugherty kept possession.

But when two Irishmen are fighting over a sentimental trophy, how can you pick any favorites?

MIAA Passers Wage Battle

Hillsdale's Doug Maison has moved into the runner-up spot in the MIAA passing department.

The lanky Dales' quarterback completed a flock of passes for 177 yards last week against Kalamazoo in his team's 48-0 romp and trails Adrian's Fred Hobart by just 88 yards.

Hobart, who has gained 602 yards, and Maison, who has 32 completions in 49 attempts, will face each other Saturday night at Adrian and will decide the league passing championship at that time.

Dick Nash and Don Vangilder continue to lead in MIAA rushing. Nash carried 22 times against Alma for 81 yards. Vangilder carried 23 times for 102 yards. Nash has a 435-yard total in 110 carries while his teammate has 375 yards in 73 carries. These two backs are far ahead of the rest of the field.

Leon Harper of Adrian still leads the pass receivers with 16 receptions for 352 yards.

Area 'B' Gridders Bid for Honors

By BILL CORNWELL

The Pontiac Press will announce its 2nd annual All-Oakland County football teams within three weeks and top candidates for post-season honors are now being named by area coaches.

In yesterday's list of three articles, the Class A high schools grabbed the spotlight as coaches from the county's 11 "A" schools holds nominated players from their own squads deemed worthy of all-star billing.

Today it's the Class B schools under discussion as grid mentors around the county name their choices for the 1937 honor eleven. There are 15 "B" schools in Oakland, the county's largest representation.

Lake Orion, Oakland B League champion, has six candidates for all-star notice in the opinion of coach Ted Sela.

Halfback Jim Drake and quarterback Nick Niera are Sela's backfield choices while center Orville Cromwell, tackles Walter Cuduhufsky and Ralph Chittick, and end Jack Schaeffer are rated tops up front. Sela calls Schaeffer the most overlooked player on the squad.

Art Paddy's No. 1 candidate at West Bloomfield is Johnny Lucadani, a slick passing quarterback who has harassed all opposition this fall with his over-hand wizardry. Other worthy Lakers are fullback Alvin Dubois and center Don Bradley.

The leading candidate on Holly's unbeaten club is tackle Phil Tinsman, whom coach Al Gratsch calls a strong college prospect. Tinsman, a 195-pound senior, has booted 12 extra points for the Broncos this year. Also entitled to careful study is Bob Letson, Holly's block-busting fullback.

Clarkston's Ed Hintz picks Jim Carnean as his best all-star gridder. Carnean stands out offensively at guard and is a terrific defensive linebacker, Hintz says.

Tackle Dennis Alexander and end Leroy Parks also deserve attention.

Halfback John Volk, who has averaged nearly 18 yards per carry this season, is high on Bob Acton's list at Clawson. In addition, Acton likes center Pat Haley, guard Ken Munyan and tackles Larry Lomako and Roger Lance.

Avondale's Chuck Nurek, offensive fullback and linebacker on defense, has been a standout with a losing team, opines coach Frank Crowell. He is Avon's top ground gainer and the leading tackler. Dick Yeager's finest prospect at Milford is quarterback Pat Kelley, a clever T-formation operator. Others are fullback John Zeeman and end Terry Anderson, bruising fullback Jim Kearney, end Tom Sharp and center Bill Martin are Don Hoff's prize pupils at Bloomfield Hills.

Troy's Joe Bechard has gone out on the limb for his field general, quarterback Wayne Figley. The Colt mentor likewise endorses guard Leo Valko, linebacker Bill Jennings, tackle Rick Aebel, guard Ben Burkland and halfback Dave Stokes.

Lloyd Martin, a 225-pound tackle, has been named by Oxford's Dick Figg. "He is an intelligent, aggressive player who loves football," Figg said.

Center Lloyd Asbury, captain of Cranbrook's improved team, gets the vote of coach Fred Campbell. The Crane pilot also praised halfback Stu Clark, but the flashy ball-carrier is a post-graduate student and therefore ineligible for honors.

Coach Don Scott at Madison supports Dave Robinson, whom Scott thinks is the best defensive halfback in the area. Robinson plays end on offense, but it's his defensive ability that draws Scott's praises.

Shrine, which finished its season without a victory, has an outstanding tackle in sophomore

Red Wings Call Olson Up From Edmonton Club

DETROIT (AP)—The injury-ridden night

Red Wings have called up forward Dennis Olson from their Edmonton farm club.

The rangy 185-pounder currently is the Edmonton team's leading scorer with 10 points in seven games. He was the Western Hockey League's "rookie of the year" while playing with the Westminster club last season.

Olson will make his National League Hockey debut in the Red Wings' game with Montreal to-

LA Group Fighting Dodger Park Plan

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A busy group of citizens armed with pencils and paper is causing the National League in general and the Los Angeles Dodgers in particular a lot of worry these days.

They're getting signatures on petitions calling for a vote of the people on the plan to turn 300 acres of city-owned land over to the Dodgers for a ball park. If they get enough, it could prove very embarrassing to Dodger President Walter O'Malley and the Los Angeles city officials who invited him here.

The move for a referendum started when the city council approved by a 10-4 vote an ordinance transferring the Chavez Ravine property to the Dodgers. Councilman John Holland leader of the four-man opposition, vowed that the fight wasn't over, and so far, at least, he's making good on that promise.

A citizens committee to save Chavez Ravine was formed to push the referendum. Holland is its guiding light, visiting the office every day and directing the strategy, which is simply to get 51,767 valid signatures on the petitions.

Committee officials are reluctant to say how many signatures they have acquired in the three weeks they've been at it, but talk enthusiastically of the "hundreds" of volunteers now gathering names and express satisfaction they will have the required number by next Thursday's deadline.

The city clerk's office, which will have the job of counting the signatures and checking their validity, estimates that at least 75,000 signatures will be needed to assure 51,767 good ones.

If there are enough names, the ordinance approving the Dodger deal is automatically held up until settled by a city-wide vote.

And if the matter is going to be put to a vote, the chances are it won't be until next June, since no municipal elections are scheduled before then and the cost of a special election would be high.

So there is a distinct possibility O'Malley will have to mark time until the middle of next summer before he can even start on his dream park. Which means his Dodgers may have to play two seasons in tiny Wrigley Field, which seats 22,000 fans and can't measure up as a major league park in any category.

The other National League owners will have to approve the use of Wrigley Field—and the prospect of traipsing across the country for two years to play before 22,000 people might not win their support.

There is talk the 100,000-seat Coliseum may be adapted to base-

Tough Romeo Threatens Oakland B Grid Kings

Lake Orion football coach Ted Sela is a constant "worrier" and this week is certainly no exception. The pilot of the Oakland B Bulldogs is worried about the Bulldogs' next grid-iron opponent, and his fears are not without just cause.

Sela sees trouble ahead for his undefeated team Friday night when they collide with the twice-beaten Bulldogs at Lake Orion. Romeo fully warrants that anxiety.

Coach Ted Engdahl's charges pose a serious threat to Orion's chances for a spotless 1957 record.

Although Sela is the "worrier" kind, his Bulldogs look good enough to take care of Romeo. Their blinding speed and versatile attack are potent factors in their behalf.

Nick Niera, a brilliant passer and picked T-formation quarterback, and Jim Drake, sensational fleet-footed halfback, spark an offense equally dangerous on the ground and through the air. Speed merchants Jim Neph, Doug Storey and John Schoff add depth to the attack.

The Dragons, who clinched the Oakland B title last week with a 20-7 win over Troy, will be protecting a perfect 6-0 record plus their 7th place rating in the state Class B poll.

In other non-league battles Friday, all under the lights, Oxford invades Clawson, Madison entertains Detroit Benedictine and unbeaten Warren visits Fitzgerald.

TOP MAN ON THE TOTAL POLE

A total of almost $10,000,000,000 was spent for advertising last year... and nearly a third of it was spent in daily newspapers, $3,235,600,000, to be exact.

That's more money in newspapers than ever before... more than in any other medium... more than in TV, radio, magazines and outdoor combined. And 1956 wasn't unusual.

Every year, newspapers are on top of the total pole. The reason is simple. For results, newspapers can't be topped.

Newspapers . . . $3,235,600,000
Television . . . $1,209,900,000		Magazines . . . $794,700,000
Radio $570,700,000		Outdoor $199,600,000

To Boost Northern Michigan Income

Eye Home Products

MT. PLEASANT (AP)—Home-made products—pine ash trays, wrought iron candlesticks and the like—could boost northern Michigan's income by millions of dollars, representatives from 33 counties were told.

Some 350 delegates from throughout northern Michigan met Tuesday at Central Michigan College to talk over organization of a guild or association to promote products turned out by hundreds of home-craftsmen in the area.

More than 100 exhibits of locally made arts and crafts products were on display to point up the possibilities for such a project.

"In industry built around artists and craftsmen in the 33 counties north of the Bay City-Muskegon line could be the long sought answer to the region's industrial needs," said Les Bieder-man, Traverse City broadcast executive.

His views were echoed by Myron Riggs, publisher of the Cheboygan Tribune and chairman of the Northern Michigan Development Council, which sponsored an all-day conference.

Riggs said home industry in northern Michigan brings in about 15 million dollars a year, but could be increased several times over with proper organization. He said retail centers should be set up in every city and village for sale of Michigan-made merchandise.

The Straits of Mackinac Bridge, he noted, should bring more tourists to northern Michigan than ever before, raising the sales potential for locally-made products.

Miss Kathryn Fitzgerald, deputy commissioner of the New York

State Department of Commerce, said her state already has built up a big home craft industry.

"The things you make in the home and small shops that have the extra touch in quality can command higher prices," she said. "In competition with articles of automated industry they will find a ready market if they are well made."

Electronics in Medicine

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—An electronic device developed for oil exploration is being used in finding and tracing nervous disorders. The $10,000 machine was developed by Magnolia Petroleum Co. for use in prospecting geological structures below the surface. Because its depth of electrical penetration was not enough, it was donated to the Baylor University College of Medicine.

In Marrakesh, Morocco, a spot of ground where sultans once exhibited the heads of traitors is now a parking lot.

Kashmir Holds 2 Distinctions

Land of Enchantment Is Perennial Problem for United Nations

WASHINGTON (AP)—In international circles, Kashmir holds two titles to distinction. It is a land of enchanting beauty and a perennial problem on unsettled accounts of the United Nations.

Disputed by Pakistan and India for the past decade, this Himalayan region of purple, snow-capped mountains and flowering valleys became a Moslem-Hindu battleground after the partition of India.

The struggle ended in an armed truce and cease-fire line that left the state's northwestern portion under Pakistan control and the rest with predominantly Hindu India.

Geography, history, and basic cultural differences combine to make a natural buffer territory of the two-part state officially known as Jammu and Kashmir, the National Geographic Society says.

Its population is estimated at less than 4,500,000. Its area encompasses 82,250 square miles—a little less than that of Kansas which it resembles in no other way.

Reaching from the plains of northwest India to Himalayan peaks of more than 28,000 feet, Jammu-and-Kashmir terrain rises in such abrupt steps that it has been called a "House of Many Stories."

Northern Kashmir includes the barren and sparsely settled mountain districts of Gilgit and Ladakh. Jammu, in the south-west, is a transitional region linking the plains with the Himalaya foothills. Between lies the idyllic Vale of Kashmir, watered by the Jhelum River.

To many, the Vale of Kashmir seems a mysterious and inaccessible Shangri-La. Actually, tourism long has helped to sustain its fragile economy.

Ordeal Before Footlights
Broadway Actor Views Opening Night Emotions

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK (AP)—What happens to an actor on opening night of a Broadway show?

Take the case of Ricardo Montalban, who just opened in the calypso caper, "Jamaica." Some of his ordeal is described in his feelings the moment before he went on stage.

"You talk about a man's life flashing before his eyes as he is drowning—that is exactly how I felt. I thought of everything: my mother, my father, my boyhood, dreams I have had."

"I thought what would happen if the play was a flop; how I would have to take my wife and four children back to California. I wondered if my voice would hold up. Then I heard the overture and suddenly I was faced with that terrible moment of having to go on."

Ricardo's ordeal was made worse by a cold he had picked up during the tryout run in Boston. When he arrived at the Imperial theater at noon before opening night, his voice was hoarse. He did a run-through whispering his lines and talking his songs.

Then he went home for a half-hour rest. He was back at the theater at 6:15.

"I always get there early," he explained. "I'm the kind of a guy who sleeps with three alarm clocks. I've always got to be sure I'll be there on time."

He started getting ready for the show at 6:30, aided by a dresser and makeup man.

"Between the acts, I felt terrible," Ricardo said. "I was depressed. I thought I wasn't getting across. I guess it was a natural letdown after five weeks' rehearsal and six weeks on the road. I determined I would try ever harder in the second act."

When it was all over the applause at the curtain calls was heartening. Well-wishers jammed into his dressing room to offer congratulations.

Instead of Sardi's, Ricardo went to a small party given by a dentist friend on Park Avenue and dropped in at the Waldorf celebration for the cast given by his co-star, Lena Horne. From the others, Ricardo learned that the reviews were generally good.

Jamaica's slim plot was mundanely knocked, but the Harold Arlen music and the jobs by Miss Horne and Ricardo were praised.

Ricardo got to bed by 4 and awakened to find more congratulations and the assurance of a lengthy run.

"Coming back to the stage has been good for me," he reflected. "MGM spoils you; you get used to the red carpet and limousines waiting for you. On the stage, you learn to carry your own bags and live in hotel rooms, not suites. I think I'm much better equipped to face the future now."

Jayne Mansfield Gets Ring From Strong Man

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Now it's official: Jayne Mansfield and Mickey Hargitay are engaged.

Hargitay, professional strong man, gave the blonde actress a 10-carat diamond ring shortly after she returned here yesterday from a personal appearance tour of Europe.

Both have been divorced and Miss Mansfield has a 7-year-old daughter.

Change in Land of Don Quixote

Dams Harness River Where Fictional Knight Tilted at Windmills

WASHINGTON — A river flowing from the plateau where Don Quixote tilted at windmills is bringing a prosperous new era to the badlands of West Central Spain.

The Guadiana winds through a bleakly beautiful area that cradled Spain's greatest fictional character—and its greatest conquistadors.

Though rich in pride, this has long been one of the poorest regions of the Iberian Peninsula. Now huge dams are being built to harness the Guadiana's sun-coppered waters for irrigation and industry.

It was near the source of the river's main branch, in La Mancha, that Cervantes' lovable knight-errant set out on extravagantly idealistic sallies with his squire Sancho Panza.

The good knight's presence is still vividly felt in sunny, white-washed towns of the plateau. The people pepper their talk with pithy proverbs uttered by Don Quixote.

PEASANTS QUOTE
And there is hardly a peasant, however unlettered, who cannot quote from Cervantes' classic especially the opening line: "In a village of La Mancha the name of which I have forgot, there lived not so long ago one of those gentlemen who always have a lance in the rack, an ancient buckler, a skinny nag, and a greyhound for the chase."

The windmills that Don Quixote mistook for giants remains a distinctive feature of the landscape. They stand 12 feet tall on hillocks, flailing their grotesque arms in the hot, dry breeze.

Spellbound travelers can almost believe Don Quixote's contention that a magician changed actual giants into windmills "in order to deprive me of the glory of overcoming them."

Westward stretch the lonely plains of Extremadura, a rural region pressing against the Portuguese border. Here a new family of giants—the dams—is rising on the Guadiana.

G. W. Bunbury of Dublin, Eire, claimed a world record for shorthand after writing 250 words a minute for 10 minutes.

MAKING A COMEBACK—The forerunner of all modern calculators and electronic computers, the ancient abacus is making a comeback in St. Louis, Mo., where teachers are using it to teach first and second graders fundamental arithmetic. The abacus is a perfect aid for the teachers, who can prove visually for the kids that two plus two equals four by moving the colored balls on the rods. Mrs. James Gillilan explains how it works to a group of her students.

Hal Boyle Says:

Carter, Dean of Underwear, Recalls Styles

NEW YORK — Horace A. Carter never wanted to be president of the United States.

All he ever wanted to do was sell underwear to the presidents and the people who voted for and against them.

At 88 Carter, durable as a hickory fence post, is the dean and kingpin of the nation's prospering underwear industry. He is president and treasurer of the William Carter Co., which this year expects to do a record $5-million-dollar business.

"We have outfitted most of the presidents since Theodore Roosevelt," recalled Carter, who still gets up at dawn as did his father, William, who landed here from England 100 years ago with about $2.50 in his pocket.

"President Taft was so large that we had to make special garments for him. Calvin Coolidge took considerable pride in his underwear. He wore ankle-length one-piece union suits made of silk and wool—the same style the year around.

The underwear firm was founded by William Carter, who as a boy had knitted hosiery for the Prince of Wales, in the family kitchen in West Needham, Mass., in 1865.

At 16 Horace entered the firm and worked a 60-hour week.

"In addition I had to milk two cows, and feed the horses, swine and chickens," he recalled. "In my spare time I took correspondence courses."

One item once popular with elderly ladies—the "belly warmer," a wool wraparound worn about the midriff—was discontinued.

"It didn't hurt me. Responsibility and travels thousands of miles each year, Carter has a simple New England philosophy.

"The Almighty's been with me," he said. "I try to enjoy what's good, to live frugally and moderately, to keep interested in everything and everybody."

Throughout his life Carter has had no hobby, except the occasional writing of poetry.

"I gave that up around the second World War," he said, his old eyes twinkling, "for fear people might think I was eccentric."

"It was a bit daring for that day," he chuckled.

A rugged individualist who still keeps a firm hand in the business

Husband-Sharing Approved by Hitler

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Adolf Hitler planned nationwide husband-sharing to repopulate Germany after World War II, says Dr. Oron J. Hale, University of Virginia professor, who tells of it in an article for the Journal of Central European Affairs.

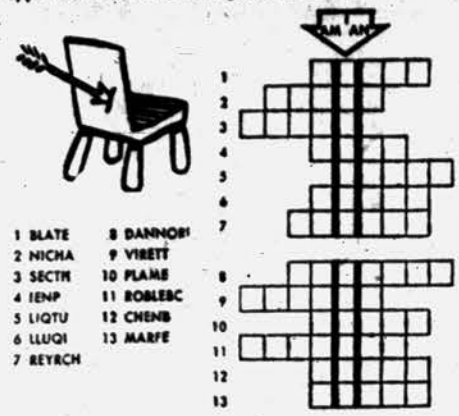

Dr. Hale, who served as U.S. Commissioner for Bavaria after the war, translated the only full copy known of a talk Hitler made to an intimate circle of assistants in 1944.

Hitler believed the success of his plan would depend upon finding acceptable terms, and names for relationships of men with war widows and spinsters, and the resulting children.

Dr. Hale says the plan was to be kept secret until after the war because of possible adverse effect on the morale of soldiers.

Louis Nye Set for Own Series

Pert Kelton on Leave
From Lewis Show for Broadway Role

By JACK O'BRIAN

NEW YORK (INS) — The cast of the huge two-hour NBC-TV General Motors special Sunday, Nov. 17, will include Helen Hayes, Don Ameche, Kirk Douglas, Dan Dailey, Cyril Ritchard, Dinah Shore, Eddie Bracken, Pat Boone and Patrice Munsel.

The script is by Helen Deutsch, whose theme is "Pursuit of Happiness," with possibly one more star to come—preferably Deborah Kerr.

Louis Nye, Steve Allen's "Gordon Hathaway," also Jack Parr's playmate for many years, signed to star in his own TV series, "Fancy Dan," to be made in Holly-wood.

Pert Kelton, of the Robert Q. Lewis comedy gang, is on leave rehearsing for a Broadway musical, "The Music Man." . . . She'll also play a lead in Nat (Bilko creator) Hiken's TV series, "The Magnificent Mont-ague."

Wonderful irony of show business—Pat Boone's brother announced he would sing under the name of Nick Todd in order not to ride to the Hit Parade on Pat's white shoes, but every time Nick appears he gets introduced as Pat Boone's brother—including by Pat Boone.

Patti Page is getting recognition in her home state of Oklahoma: A stretch of U.S. 66 near Tulsa will be renamed "Patti Page Highway."

Of 117 new TV shows last season, only 64 survived; their costs (says Sponsor mag) ranged from Playhouse 90's $117,000 to $14,500 for Lawrence Welk.

"Have Gun, Will Travel" is an adult Western, all right. . . . Instead of "like I said," the hero says, "as . . ." Never get Win- ston for a sponsor that way.

Bowling shows are so successful, one Midwest station next will try a sneak test of a pocket billiards show.

Federal Trade Commission is going after ridiculous medical claims in TV-radio commercials. . . .

HIGHWAY AUDIENCE
Total of car radios now is (Niel- sen says) 38,500,000, of which 6-24,000,000 are in the topmost car listening day—Sunday.

Capsule observation of stone- faced NBC newsmen Chef Hunt- ley: He has a vocavocated upper lip. . . .

Kitty Carlisle's elaborately grand, chic, diva manner will yet do her in. . . .

Phil Silvers wants to direct his series. . . .

Old pro Tommy Henrich (ex- Yankee ballplayer) joined the Mut- ual network as a sports spiker. . . .

Life Insurance Firms
in U.S. Total 1,242

NEW YORK — The number of life-insurance companies in the United States totaled 1,242 on June 30 this year, an increase of 103 in a year and 738 more than in 1940. More than 85 per cent of the 700-odd companies started since 1950 were in the South and West.

For Not Being Hungry, Kay Certainly Can Eat

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Dear Mother: It's letter-time again and I thought you might like to hear how your son was the dinner partner of Rex Harrison's pretty bride, Kay Kendall . . . and how she almost ate all of your son's dinner.

"I had an enormous dinner before I came," she announced on arriving at the Tony Gallucci's so Mrs. G. (Magda Gabor) just gave her a chair at the table beside me.

"I couldn't touch a thing!" she insisted, but she touched my salad till it was gone, and also my second salad till it was gone, and then some meatballs, and dessert . . . laughing, protesting that she wasn't hun- gry and please bring her some more.

"Eva Gabor is the only woman who eats more than I do," Kay said. "Eva is a female pig."

Kay—who'll be on Polly Bergen's TV show again next week—declared Polly "is a wonder- fully kind person." She con- fessed to buying Rex a Rolls Royce for his upcoming 50th birthday (on her earnings from "Les Girls") and said it was to have been a surprise—but that Rex found out about it.

"That's too bad," I sym- pathized. "Who told him?" "I did," she said. "I couldn't keep it!"

Patrice Munsel sure sur- prised me when she said she's asked a Dr. Kreslneck of Dallas to hypnotize her out of the cigarette habit.

"Cigarettes make my voice raspy," Pat said. I figured she must smoke incessantly. "Actu- ally," she said, "I only smoke one cigarette a day, but I have to have it—and I can't stop!"

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .
When Joe E. Lewis entered Beth Israel Hospital for a jaw operation, he gave as his permanent address, "Belmont Park" . . . Felt sorry for John Crosby miffing lines on his "Seven Lively Arts" debut and calling Hemingway "Hemingway."

He'll do better when she uses contact lenses, though . . . Dane Clark frankly hustled customers for his wife Margo's art ex- hibit at the Hammer Galleries. She uses one name, Veres — "It's more continental," Dane says.

Nat (King) Cole bought the first box for the L. A. Dodgers' home games . . .

Debbie Reynolds will now sing in the rockabilly field, re- cording "Hungry Eyes."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "It's a wise crack that knows its own father." The late Raymond Clapper.
TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "Well, if I called the wrong num- ber, why did you answer the phone?"—James Thurber . . . That's earl, brother.

St. Ignace Man
Starts Fund to Preserve Ferry

ST. IGNACE — Restaurant owner Gregory Gystakis, 65, yesterday deposited $2,000 to what he called "a carryover purchase fund."

He hoped the donation would snowball into a fund to obtain one of the Straits of Mackinac ferries as a permanent museum and tourist attraction in St. Ignace harbor.
