Rumors Fly as 3 in GOP Urge Troop Withdrawal, and...

By STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Either President Nixon is on the brink of announcing the long-rumored unilateral withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam, or some antiwar Republican senators are staking out an all-out assault on the chief executive's position.

The trial balloons are in the air. Within a 24-hour period three Republican senators — two of them highly influential — have spoken on the need for a troop pullout.

News Analysis

The key Democrats who virtually hounded President Lyndon B. Johnson out of office on almost the same issue have remained silent.

Has Nixon given the Republican senators a signal?

IMMEDIATE START

On Thursday, Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., dean of the Senate GOP and senior Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called for the start of troop withdrawals "without delay."

Less than 24 hours later, Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., the assistant Senate Republican leader, said in a speech at Pittsburgh: "I urge the withdrawal of a substantial number of American troops from Vietnam."

★ ★ ★

And in Portland, Ore., freshman Sen. Robert Packwood said it was his "estimation" that Nixon already has made the decision to withdraw American fighting forces from Vietnam.

In the glossary of the Vietnam aviary, Aiken, Scott and Packwood are not considered purebred doves, although they are more closely aligned with that species than with the hawks. What is striking is that all three chose the same time to speak out.

NIXON TOLD OF SPEECH

Aiken, an independent maverick, said he told the White House several hours in advance that he would make his speech — the first assessment among Republicans on Nixon's Vietnam position. This may well be true.

But Scott, desperately trying to be loyal to a President more conservative than he is, chipped in last night with his plea for a "substantial" withdrawal of American troops.

There was no indication whether Scott, who attends weekly meetings with Nixon

. . . Pullout Planner Talks With Thieu

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command's top planner for troop withdrawals met last night with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, reviving speculation about American troop withdrawals.

The U.S. Mission reported Maj. Gen. Richard F. Shaefer, deputy to American commanding Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, met with Thieu at the presidential palace for 1½ hours. Also present was U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth S. Bunker.

★ ★ ★

Sources described it as a regular consultation meeting to discuss the results of the latest session of the Paris peace conference and map strategy for next week's session.

★ ★ ★

"There are a lot of propositions going on in Paris," said one source, "like developing positions and the problems and mechanics involved in mutual troop withdrawals, the matter of American prisoners of war and our position on the demilitarized zone."

American military sources said today any cutback in the 541,500 U.S. troops stationed in Vietnam hinges on three conditions.

They are:

★ ★ ★

- Some breakthrough at the Paris peace talks.

★ ★ ★

- A greatly reduced infiltration of North Vietnamese troops into the South.
- Improvement of South Vietnam's armed forces.

★ ★ ★

"Any change in American troop strength would require one or all three of these conditions," said one senior officer.

★ ★ ★

When South Vietnam's 1.6 million armed forces might be improved enough to allow the beginning of U.S. troop withdrawals is still open to question. July 1 has been mentioned as a target date.

President Thieu today renewed his offer of private peace talks with the Vietcong's National Liberation Front. But he added it "wouldn't be a good start" if the NLF continued to insist on dealing only with its five-point program for ending the war.

★ ★ ★

Referring to a statement Wednesday by chief NLF negotiator Tran Buu Kiem in Paris, Thieu said: "It is a good time to sit down together." Kiem had said the NLF is "ready to engage in discussions with other parties so as to make the Paris conference move forward."

★ ★ ★

Thieu indicated it was not clear in his mind whether Kiem was ready for talks with South Vietnam. He called on Kiem to put his words "into practice."

Kidnaper of Officer Killed in Texas Trap

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — Ila Faye Dent was in jail today after a 300-mile chase in Southeast Texas that ended with the death of her ex-convict husband, felled in a hail of gunfire.

Robert S. Dent, 22, suffered fatal shotgun and pistol wounds moments after he followed highway patrolman J. Kenneth Crone into an isolated farm house yesterday. The couple had held Crone hostage five hours in his patrol car during the chase.

★ ★ ★

Dent, convicted in 1964 and 1966 on charges of breaking into coin-operated vending machines, was shot in the face, neck and right arm after officers sprang a trap in the farm house.

It started when Port Arthur police reported they had chased a speeding sports car after midnight. Crone and other police sought the car for several hours.

COUPLE FLED

When they spotted the car they halted it with gunfire, but the couple inside—later identified as the Dents—fled into the woods. Bloodhounds were used in a search that was nearly halted when Crone received a call from a rancher about the couple.

★ ★ ★

Crone went to the ranch to answer. He said the couple had told the rancher that two hitchhikers had robbed them and stolen their car.

★ ★ ★

But the Dents drew weapons on Crone and forced him to drive them away in his car.

More than 50 patrol cars followed the couple and Crone during the chase that followed. The vehicles reached speeds of 95 miles per hour on narrow farm-to-market roads.

ASK FOR VISIT

Dent finally said he would free Crone if allowed a 15-minute visit with his stepchildren staying at the home of Mrs. Dent's parents near Bryan.

Officers had been waiting for about 45 minutes when Crone's patrol car rolled into the dusty farmhouse yard.

ZAKIR HUSAIN

India President Dies at Age 72

NEW DELHI (AP) — President Zakir Husain, an educator who became the first Moslem to attain his office, died today of a heart attack. He was 72.

Less than five hours after Husain's death, Vice President V. V. Giri, 74, a former trade union leader, was sworn in as his successor in the largely ceremonial role.

★ ★ ★

Prime Minister Indira Ghandi was on a tour of famine-striken areas in nearby Rajasthan state and left for New Delhi on hearing the news.

Husain was India's third president since it became a republic in 1950. He succeeded 79-year-old Dr. Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, who did not seek reelection after one five-year term.

★ ★ ★

Before he was elected president on May 9, 1967, Husain had served as vice president from 1962 to 1967. He entered politics in 1957 when he became governor of Bihar state.

3 Corporations, 3 Execs Guilty in Bathtub Plot

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Three companies and three executives have been convicted in federal court of conspiring to fix prices on an estimated $1 billion worth of plumbing fixtures.

Two of the firms—American Standard Corp., New York, and Borg-Warner Corp., Chicago — said yesterday they would appeal the conviction. A spokesman for the Kohler Co., Kohler, Wis., was not immediately available for comment.

★ ★ ★

Judge Louis Rosenberg ordered an investigation before sentencing the firms and Joseph P. Decker, American Standard vice president; Daniel J. Quinn, retired American Standard executive; and Norman R. Held, Kohler vice president.

The jury returned the verdict last night after five hours of deliberation. They had been hearing the case for 16 weeks.

John C. Fricano, special assistant to the U.S. attorney general for antitrust action, said the conspiracy began in a Chicago hotel room when the defendants agreed to drop their regular enamel bathtub lines and sell only more expensive acid-resistant tubs at inflated prices.

The defendants were the last of 15 corporations and eight individuals indicted by the government for antitrust violations in the plumbing fixtures industry. The others pleaded no contest and were fined a total of $390,000. Rosenberg sentenced several of the executives to prison.

Church Groups: End Tax Break

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of the nation's major church organizations have asked Congress to lift the traditional tax exemption for church-owned businesses.

The proposal from the National Council of Churches and the United States Catholic Conference got high praise from Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee which is writing a tax reform bill intended to lift the exemption anyway.

★ ★ ★

The proposal also appeared to be in line with the Nixon administration proposal that tax exemptions be eliminated for unrelated businesses operated by all nonprofit organizations.

The church statement was presented to Mills' committee yesterday.

"Such exemption makes available to churches a potential advantage over tax-paying organizations engaged in commercial business activities," the statement said.

But many church-connected businesses — such as The Christian Brothers wines corporation operated in California by the Roman Catholic order of the same name — are tax-paying ventures.

To Teach Rite-ing, Spell-ing?

ULTING, England (UPI) — A county council education adviser is opening a school for witchcraft.

★ ★ ★

For $3.60, a person can get six lessons.

The adviser, Derek Walters, said among other things he will teach:

- How to make love potions.
- How to control a person by bewitching a doll.
- How to deal with enemies (exact formula unspecified).

"I have had 60 applications in a few days to enroll in the school," he said. "Quite a few are from practicing witches who want to meet others with similar interests.

★ ★ ★

"It's not black magic, of course. That's too dangerous. I tried that once myself and cursed someone — It rebounded and almost killed me instead."

Walters advises the council in music lessons and has its permission for the witchcraft school.

PROTEST AT MSU — Members of Students for a Democratic Society harangue through a bullhorn for abolition of the Reserve Officers Training Corps at Michigan State in a rally on the banks of the Red Cedar. They dedicated May Day—Thursday—to Huey P. Newton, Black Panther leader serving a California prison term in connection with the death of a policeman.

Nixon 'Get Tough' Stance Assailed

New Turmoil Hits Campuses

New outbreaks of campus turmoil have struck in the East and Southwest as some academic leaders disagreed with President Nixon's 'get tough' stance on student unrest.

Black students took over the president's office for five hours at Southern Methodist University in Dallas yesterday while two major units of New York's City University were forced to close by violence.

★ ★ ★

More than 500 policemen cleared the Queens College campus after 40 Negro students marched through three buildings smashing windows and overturning furniture.

★ ★ ★

In Michigan, Highland Park Community College was closed at midday yesterday after the school's dean said he was threatened by some Negro strikers shouting at him: "Kill the man."

VIEWED PICKETING

Dean Paul Jones said the threat came as he went outside the school to observe picketing by members of the Association of Black Students.

About 40 pickets appeared at the school Thursday evening to reinforce their demands for more control over school affairs. They reappeared yesterday, carrying signs saying, "Give us a say in what happens. . ." and "We have the right to strike."

★ ★ ★

In announcing the school closing, Jones said he feared a confrontation between the strikers and students who wanted to go to class but were being kept out by pickets who linked arms and marched in front of the school's three main entrances.

About 60 per cent of the college 4,400 students are Negroes.

NIXON STAND BACKED

Two top Republicans — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and House leader Gerald R. Ford—both called for a clamp down on student disorders in line with "get tough" statements earlier this week by President Nixon and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Many delegates to the American Association of University Professors meeting in Minneapolis expressed sharp dissent with the Nixon administration view, and a resolution was offered condemning it as a "direct threat to academic freedom."

Hart to Discuss Extension of '65 Voting Rights Act

Some 650 Oakland County Democrats are expected to hear Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., push for an extension of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 tonight at Oakland University.

The occasion is the 12th annual Phil Hart Dinner at 8 at Vandenburg Hall.

Hart was Senate floor manager and chief strategist for the act, which expires this year.

In a speech prepared for tonight he reports the Voting Rights law should prove "an object lesson for those spokesmen more interested in generating hate than progress."

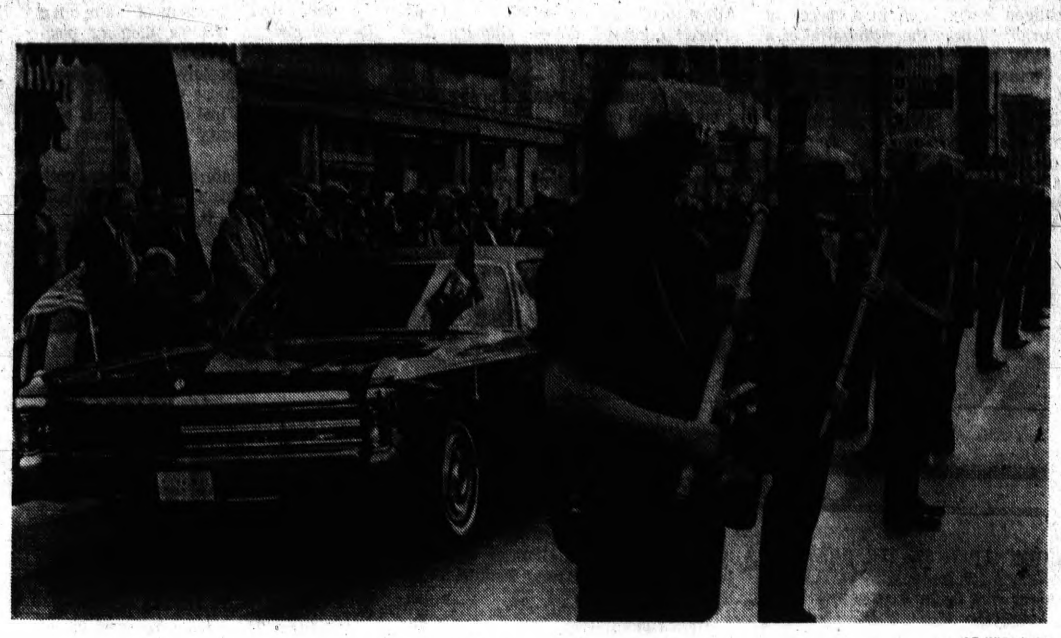

Since enactment, Hart says, 1.28 million Negroes have registered in the South, giving many of them "their first hope that Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia might prove decent places for blacks to live."

Hart's speech cites the following developments in southern politics in the past few years:

- Several hundred Negroes elected to public office.
- A South Carolina senator who has renounced his state government's "cover-up" of hunger and has urged more federal aid to the poor.

GOP Governors Ask Poverty Program Reins

AP Wirephoto

GOP GOVERNORS UNDER GUARD — The limousine bearing Wisconsin Gov. Warren Knowles arrives at the Phoenix Hotel in downtown Lexington, Ky., last night for the state dinner of the Republican Governor's Conference. The arrival route was heavily guarded against possible trouble from a group of demonstrators across the street.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Republican governors have served notice on the Nixon administration they want control of antipoverty programs in their states.

In the closing business sessions of their spring conference yesterday, the GOP state executives also demanded that they be consulted in advance about any policy decisions the administration may make with big city mayors in programs to attack urban programs.

★ ★ ★

Most of the governors will get an opportunity to chat with President Nixon today during the President's brief visit to Churchill Downs in Louisville to watch the running of the Kentucky Derby.

At their semiannual meeting, the governors sidestepped the controversial issues of Nixon's decision to deploy the Safeguard missile defense system and campus rioting. But they took the opportunity to tell Washington they are not satisfied with the way the new administration is structuring some of its programs.

In a unanimously adopted resolution, the governors urged that in reorganizing the war on poverty that Nixon consider channeling all its programs through executive agencies set up by governors in all of the states. They called for abolition of regional offices of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) which have bypassed the governors in the past.

A resolution authorized by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie of Illinois illuminated the friction between governors and mayors over the thrust of city programs. It demanded "notification and consultation" with governors when adminstration officials talk to the mayors.

"It is essential for the governors and their state administration to be kept informed on the relationships between the federal government and major city administration if the states are to be able to properly meet their rsponsibilities," the resolution said.

The governors registered their opposition to existing regulations which they said permit welfare recipients to determine for themselves their eligibility for aid, without investigation of their claims.

Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania told a news conference this regulation has contributed to increases in the welfare rolls in his state. New York, Michigan, Illinois and California in an era of general prosperity.

BEA, Board Stepping Up Salary Talks

BIRMINGHAM — Negotiators for the Birmingham Education Association (BEA) and the board of education have agreed to step up bargaining sessions in an attempt to reach a contract agreement by June 12, the district's summer recess date.

The board and BEA have met three times on a weekly basis and beginning Monday will hold two to three sessions per week.

★ ★ ★

Previous sessions have been limited to a point-by-point explanation of the BEA's proposals. No counterproposals have been made by the board.

★ ★ ★

The initial package proposed by the BEA asks for a total economic increase of $2.31 million. The average across-the-board salary increase would total $1,736 under that demand.

★ ★ ★

The salary range provisions under the BEA's proposal call for a $7,900 starting salary for a new teacher with a bachelor's degree to a maximum $15,010 for a masters degree and 11 years experience.

SMITH

C. Boyd Stockmeyer of 776 Arlington, Birmingham, president of Detroit Bank & Trust Co., has been named chairman of corporate leadership for Detroit's 1969 United Foundation Torch Drive.

★ ★ ★

Gail Smith of 3530 Franklin, Bloomfield Township, general director of advertising and merchandising for General Motors Corp. will be responsible for all promotional activities for the 21st annual United Foundation campaign.

★ ★ ★

Stockmeyer, who was chairman of the 1968 campaign's major commerce unit, will be responsible for enlisting the support of corporate leaders in the campaign. He will also serve as chairman of the UF's eighth annual honor awards luncheon scheduled May 14 in Cobo Hall.

★ ★ ★

Smith will begin immediately to enlist chairmen for the five major groups and 20 committees under his direction. These include campaign advertising, public relations, special events, speakers, films and promotional materials.

Hart Will Talk on Voting Rights

• A Virginia senator who spent his Easter vacation on a "hunger tour" of his state.

★ ★ ★

• A North Carolina senator who introduced a civil rights bill of "serious merit."

★ ★ ★

• A Georgia senator found in attendance at NAACP meetings and who has introduced a measure to strengthen the food stamp program.

5-YEAR EXTENSION

Hart, who this week put in a bipartisan bill to extend the act for five years, says:

★ ★ ★

"It would be tragic indeed if we allowed this exercise in democracy to end abruptly."

★ ★ ★

The Voting Rights Act, though aimed at the South, has significantly benefited the entire nation, Hart notes.

★ ★ ★

"It is clear that the poor—not just the black poor but all the poor—have gained a number of more sympathetic ears in Congress.

★ ★ ★

"And the Voting Rights Act must be somewhat of a jolting rebuff to those radicals in society who claim that our Constitutional process is too inflexible to admit needed change," Hart says.

Lodge Calls Proposal 'Politics'

Stadium Site Study Delayed

A resolution that would call for a State Senate study on location of a new sports stadium in Detroit was delayed by Senate vote yesterday.

The action, on a resolution supported by Sen. Sander Levin, D-Berkley, was attacked by Sen. L. Harvey Lodge, R-Waterford, who labeled it "conceived solely for political purposes . . . an affront to the County of Oakland."

The Senate voted to postpone a vote until May 12.

The State House also has legislation pending on the proposed stadium. Two House bills, calling for creation of a stadium authority and a special tax to support a stadium bond issue, are before the state affairs committee.

The committee held a hearing on the issue April 19. Rep. Loren Anderson, R-Waterford, voiced his opposition to the bills at the hearing.

The measures are interpreted as providing a means for Detroit to finance a new stadium to replace the aging home of the Lions and Tigers, Tiger Stadium.

Another group studying the stadium proposal is the Metropolitan Stadium Committee, set up with the teams' approval and made up of many metropolitan area businessmen and officials. This committee has eliminated proposed Detroit sites from consideration as being economically unfeasible.

Still under consideration are sites and proposals by the cities of Pontiac and Walled Lake and Taylor Township.

at the White House, informed the executive branch of his speech to the University of Pittsburgh Alumni Association.

In that speech, Scott said "I suggest a bold move to flush out the intentions of the other side.

"I urge the withdrawal of a substantial number of American troops," Scott said. "I hope that the White House will announce such a move in the near future."

Packwood went even further. "It is now a question of when it is to be announced, how it is to be announced, and how soon the withdrawal will begin," he said.

He speculated that "most of our troops" may be home "by the end of the year."

Backing up his speech, Scott said, "I make this recommendation because I believe the situation is ripe for progress.

"We need to prod the North Vietnamese out of the sea of propaganga and onto the high ground of real bargaining sessions," Scott said. "If North Vietnam responds with comparable actions of its own, we could then consider additional withdrawls."

TRUCK-TRAIN CRASH — Two Kalamazoo-area men were killed when a freight train slammed into the van they rode in. Both were dead at the scene. Police said the 30-mile-per-hour train pushed the truck 250 feet down the tracks and the gas tank exploded. The crash occurred at a grade crossing nine miles southeast of Kalamazoo.

School Aid Bill Nearing Floor in State House

LANSING (AP) — Action on a bill to appropriate more than $844 million for public schools resumes Monday in the House amid expectation of a token grant for parochial schools and a substantial boost in funds for Detroit.

An increase in the $115 million earmarked by the Senate for Detroit schools is expected to be made by the House Appropriations Committee, whose chairman, William Copeland, D-Detroit, said the bill hopefully would be ready for floor action Monday night.

Majority Floor Leader George F. Montgomery, D-Detroit, said he would seek to raise the state aid qualification to a required 14-16 mill range. The Senate considered that level but voted a 10-12 minimum -maximum. Districts now can qualify with a minimum of eight mills, up to 10 mills.

ACADEMIC QUESTION

Whether the parochiaid rider would be hooked on in committee or on the floor appeared academic compared with increasing signs of legislative acceptance of the principle of public funds for private schools.

One Senate Democrat estimated parochiaid could muster 23 votes among the upper chamber's 38 members.

Charles O. Zollar, R-Benton Harbor, is chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee that revised a Senate draft to $856,000 more than Gov. William Milliken's budget recommendations. He said a parochiaid allowance could spark a Supreme Court review of the concept.

Zollar indicated the Senate would look at any House-sponsored parochiaid amendment "but nothing that would take money away from public education."

Capeland at one time threatened to put any Senate school bill "on the bottom of the pile" while his committee stuck to House bills.

Yesterday, however, he conducted what amounted to a public House committee hearing on the Senate bill.

Kuhn Asks Ceiling on State Wage Tax

LANSING (AP) — A Republican state senator is seeking to limit state income tax to present levels.

Sen. George Kuhn, R-West Bloomfield Township, has offered a resolution that would amend the Michigan Constitution to set state income tax levels at 2.6 per cent for individuals, 5.6 per cent on corporations and 7 per cent on financial institutions.

At least one proposal to boost income tax levels, with proceeds to be earmarked for education is pending in the Legislature.

Kuhn's proposal, if adopted by a two-thirds majority of both houses, would appear on the November 1970 ballot.

"I have always been strongly opposed to an open-end tax policy," Kuhn said.

Area Man Plays Here With Navy Band

When the United States Navy Band arrived in Pontiac yesterday morning, the first one off the bus was Musician 1.C. Robert W. Phillips, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Phillips, 349 McPherson, Highland Township.

Phillips, 26, a clarinetist with the band, had about five hours between concerts to visit with his family whom he hadn't seen since Christmas. He left at 9 a.m. today for the next engagement in Aurora, Ill.

The band played two concerts yesterday at Pontiac Northern High School auditorium.

Phillips, who has played with the band for three years since he enlisted in the Navy in 1966, said "It's been a good experience, I have had a chance to study music and improve my playing."

FUTURE PLANS

Next year his tour of duty in the Navy will be over and he hopes to play professionally with a symphony orchestra if he doesn't decide to reenlist.

Phillips decided to become a musician while he was in junior high school and later played clarinet in the Milford High School Band, where he graduated in 1961. He attended Olivet Nazarene College in Illinois for two years then went to the University of Michigan where he obtained his bachelor's degree in music and played in the university band.

Since he has been with the Navy Band, Phillips has seen a lot of the United States in a short time. The band annually goes on a seven- or eight-week spring tour to different sections of the country. This year the tour is in the midwestern and eastern states.

The band is stationed in Washington D. C., during the rest of the year, playing for official functions which included the inaugural parade for President Nixon.

After awhile, being a member of the Navy Band is just sort of a routine thing, Phillips said, but there is a certain amount of excitement in meeting new people and traveling through interesting towns and cities in the country.

Cavanagh's Budget Cut by Council

DETROIT (AP) — In action that slashed Mayor Jerome Cavanagh's proposed city budget from $545 million to $500 million, Detroit Common Council Friday rejected Cavanagh's $45-million tax increase program.

However, the council did vote to raise sewer and water bills by $10 million a year in a substitute measure for Cavanagh's proposal to raise income and property taxes and imposing an excise amusement tax.

★ ★ ★

Council President Ed Carey, who's running for mayor this year, said the action "is a step in the direction of trying to restore the people's confidence" in the city.

City Comptroller Bernard Klein, however, said the "councilmen have dealt the city of Detroit severe body blows in terms of police protection and fiscal integrity."

WILL HE VETO?

Klein declined to predict whether Cavanagh would veto the council's actions on the budget recommendations. Cavanagh is not expected to return to Detroit until Sunday. He is in Rome attending ceremonies which elevated Archbishop John Dearden to cardinal.

The increased sewer tax would be collected with the water bills.

★ ★ ★

Spokesmen for the Detroit Metropolitan Water Services said the rate increase could be near 80 per cent. Councilmen, however, said the proposed increase would raise average homeowner bills 50 per cent.

House Clarifies Public Waters

LANSING (AP) —Redefinition of "public waters" and new controls over dredging and shoreline changes are contained in a bill that faces Senate action.

The change in the Inland Lakes and Streams Act received a quick, 91-0 approval and recommendation for immediate effect in the House Friday.

★ ★ ★

Introduced by Rep. Warren Goemaere, D-Roseville, the conservation committee cochairman, the bill seeks to clear up questions raised in a so-called "Martiny Lake" decision handed down by the State Supreme Court last fall.

Conservationists and sportsmen expressed fears that the high court decision meant county authorities could block public access to inland lakes and streams and arbitrarily change water levels.

PUBLIC PROPERTY

"We're making public property out of any moisture you can't soak up with paper tissue," Goemaere quipped after his bill was approved.

Public waters, under the House definition, would be:

"Those lakes and streams, excluding the Great Lakes, which are boatable by small craft or which are capable of supporting public (fishing) and which are accessible . . . without trespass on private lands, by . . . boating or wading."

★ ★ ★

The Natural Resources Department would have to be informed of any dredging projects.

Construction of canals, channels or ditches in lakes of less than 200 acres would be prohibited unless intended as boat slips.

Deputy Fired After Charge

DETROIT (AP) — A Wayne County deputy sheriff was fired Friday after being charged with accepting the earnings of a prostitute.

He is Patrolman Charlemagne F. Wilson, 32, who had been a courtroom guard at the county traffic court and juvenile court.

The alleged prostitute is 14 years old, according to the Detroit Police Department's women's division, which filed the charge against Wilson.

Wilson was to appear today for arraignment in Recorder's Court.

Also charged was Henderson Scott, 55, whom police said was not in law enforcement. Both men are charged with inducing a woman to engage in prostitution and with receiving her earnings.

Supervisors' Panel Airs ADC Complaints

The plight of ADC (Aid to Dependent Children) recipients was again dumped into the laps of members of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

The occasion was a hearing conducted by the supervisors' human resources committee, chaired by Robert F. Patnales R-Royal Oak.

What was revealed at the hearing was similar to what was disclosed last October to the former ways and means committee. The problems cited by the women then were almost the same, except that the problem of inflation has apparently worsened.

Miss Ora Hinckley director of social services, explained what is probably the crux of the problem—support levels for ADC children have not changed since 1961. The mothers and sympathizers have been staging protests and sit-ins in Oakland, Wayne and Washtenaw counties for almost a year.

Miss Hickley pointed out that, although efforts have been made to influence legislation, thus far no increases have been forthcoming. She did say that some increase might be expected by July 1. This may amount to $3 per month, per child, she said.

Payments to ADC mothers are administrered by state welfare agencies and come from state and federal funds. The county has no direct control over level of support, Miss Hinckley said.

The county does, however, have a clothing store from which parents have been allowed to draw clothing on an emergency basis for school opening.

The store got severe criticism from ADC mothers at yesterday's hearing. Examples were brought and held up for inspection by the committee. Some had shrunk after washing, other items were of extremely thin material. Most colors were garish.

County Auditor, Daniel T. Murphy, defended the quality of the clothing and insisted it was of "first-run" quality purchased for the county by jobbers. He said the recipients were given a choice of materials and sizes.

This was denied by those at the hearing. They further complained that the clothing offered was insufficient for school and that the children suffered "humiliation" in having to use the store and being readily identifiable when wearing the merchandise.

The emergency clothing for school allotment was described as having the following items: 1 shirt, 1 pants, two sets of underwear and a pair of tennis shoes. Some women said the underwear was insufficient and shrank when washed that the tennis shoes only lasted three weeks.

In describing support payments, it was indicated that a family of five would get the following each month: $125 for food; $15 for heat; $11 for utilities; $9 per child for incidentals. One woman pointed out this meant 83 cents a day.

The latter $9 item supposedly contains money for clothing, haircuts and other items. ADC mothers were particularly unhappy with the $9 figure.

Fees at the beginning of each school term were a particular sore point. Money for lockers, gym equipment, books, events, etc., are all called for in most schools, with high schools requiring the largest amount, near $10.

★ ★ ★

Besides individual testimony, appearing at the hearing were spokesmen from the Voice of Oakland County Action League and the County Federation of Mothers Clubs, and groups representing areas in Pontiac and the Royal Oak area.

★ ★ ★

Voicing sympathy with the ADC problem were most members of the committee. Harry Horton, R-Royal Oak, said, "The payments reflect an unrealistic attitude on the part of the federal and state government." William Richards, D-Ferndale, said, "I don't see how they survive without a telephone."

Several of the women complained of alleged arrogance and bullying tactics of some of the caseworkers at the county center office. Some of the women claimed they had been threatened with aid cutoffs if they attended yesterday's meeting.

The supervisors asked that the names of the offending caseworkers be given to county officials for action. Some of the women praised their caseworkers.

★ ★ ★

Chariman Patnales explained to the women the supervisors are new to the problems in the county. A new board was seated Jan. 1 after redistricting of the county.

★ ★ ★

He promised all the information gathered would be studied and that the committee's findings would be brought to the attention of the entire board of supervisors as soon as conclusions were reached.

Nixon Battle on Smut-by-Mail Has Support in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's call for a "citizens' crusade against the obscene" and new laws to battle smut in the mails has some ready supporters in Congress where two members already have compiled graphic evidence of the problem.

Reps. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., and Glen Cunningham, R-Neb., have assembled files which demonstrate what the President was talking about Friday when he proposed steps to block mail which is "unsolicited, unwanted and deeply offensive to those who receive it."

The congressmen have an array of pornographic literature forwarded to them by irate constituents who want such material kept out of the mails and out of the hands of the young.

"I've been around and I'm not easily shocked, but this stuff is terrible," Ichord said of the examples he received.

Nixon said Friday his administration will send three proposals to Congress shortly which would:

- "Make it a federal crime to use the mails or other facilities of commerce to deliver to anyone under 18 years of age material dealing with a sexual subject in a manner unsuitable for young people." A first violation would be punishable by up to five years in prison and a $50,000 fine.
- "Make it a federal crime to use the mails, or other facilities of commerce, for the commercial exploitation of a prurient interest in sex through advertising." The penalty would be up to five years and $50,000 fine for first offense and double that for subsequent convictions.
- "Extend the existing law to enable a citizen to protect his home from any intrusion of sex-oriented advertising — regardless of whether or not a citizen has ever received such mailing." This would fortify a 1967 law enabling any citizen to have his name taken off the mailing list whenever he receives material he regards as "erotically arousing or sexually provocative."

A Post Office Department official said an estimated $3 million first-year cost of the extended law could be recovered at least in part by charging some 2,000 mailers for lists of citizens they can't legally send their literature to.

"Mothers and fathers by the tens of thousands have written to the White House and Congress," Nixon said Friday in his message. The material which constituents forwarded to them showed sexual intercourse, homosexuality and various sexual deviations.

Ichord and Cunningham opened their files of these letters for a reporter shortly after Nixon's message.

2 U.S. Reds May Lose Posts

NEW YORK (AP) — Two U.S. Communist party officials who spoke out against the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia may lose their posts today when the party holds its elections.

The crisis of the party leadership which arose after the Russian move in August 1968 has been the underlying preoccupation of the 19th national convention, the first since 1966.

★ ★ ★

It became known for the first time Friday that Gilbert Green, leader of the New York State party and one who denounced the Soviet invasion, has been replaced.

★ ★ ★

Communist sources said Green's "resignation" occurred shortly after the September emergency session of the 80-member national committee in New York which was called to discuss the Czech crisis.

★ ★ ★

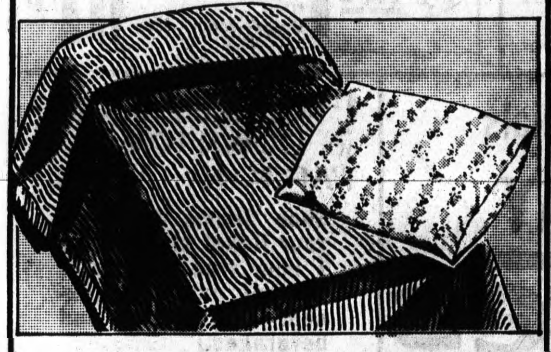

At that meeting, Green and other party leaders who spoke out against the Soviet action were reprimanded by the party hierarchy led by general secretary Gus Hall.

As a result, Dorothy Healley, leader of the Southern California Communist Party and a supporter of Green, may lose her seat on the national committee in elections scheduled to be held at the Towers Hotel, the convention headquarters. Today is the windup session of the four-day meeting of 275 delegates from 30 states.

Green also is expected to be unseated as a member of the party's ruling body.

Harmful Effect of Noise on Animals Is Becoming Known

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Noise is bad not only for man but also for beast.

The full impact of noise on the health of man has yet to be determined.

★ ★ ★

But, says the University of Georgia, its effect on laboratory animals is becoming known.

Noise, by general agreement among scientists, is unwanted sound. It may be jackhammers in the street, the scream of sirens or jet airplanes, an endlessly ringing telephone, the clang of garbage cans being emptied or an ill-fitting manhole cover, the clatter of power tools, the buzz of lawn mowers, the roar of autos or motor bikes inadequately muffled, the barking of dogs in the night, or even the ringing of cathedral bells or the dawn chorus of robins, cardinals, titmice, and mockingbirds.

VIOLINS DISTURB DOGS

If you don't like it, it's noise. According to the University of Georgia, researchers have discovered that dogs are annoyed by violin music.

When your cat drapes itself on top of the television set, according to other researchers, it isn't because it likes what it hears—it's trying to smother the thing.

★ ★ ★

Dr. W. B. Iturrian of Georgia's School of Pharmacy has been studying the effect of noise on mice of the sort used in medical research.

He found that noise can induce epileptic seizures in young mice and affect their growth.

★ ★ ★

Iturrian reported his research results at a recent international symposium here on laboratory animals. He said "noise pollution" should be eliminated from laboratory animal breeding rooms. He said "impact noise, such as hammering metal, is particularly troublesome." So is a busy telephone.

Police in Smut 'War'

We heartily approve the Pontiac Police Department's crackdown on the vendors of obscene literature.

The sale of smut in the form of paperbacks and pseudo magazines and newspapers, to say nothing of solicitation by mail, has reached flood proportions. It is the belief of police authorities that only by making the respectable element of the public conscious of the creeping threat to the morality of both young and old, and enlisting its support, can the evil be abated.

★ ★ ★

Arrest of three clerks in different establishments who were charged with selling obscene literature to minors was but the first round in a campaign aimed at the sale of pornography in its many forms.

★ ★ ★

The police department has its work cut out for it, however. The two-section State law (one affecting adults; the other, minors) under which warrants for the three accused were issued is cloudy in some respects, offering loopholes of interpretation. A serious defect is that the law does not explicitly make the proprietor of an establishment purveying obscenity equally culpable with the clerk who makes the sale.

★ ★ ★

Further to dilute enforcement of anti-smut laws is the hamstringing effect of rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court in reversing several convictions obtained in lower courts. The conclusions of that capricious tribunal make it virtually impossible legally to define obscenity.

★ ★ ★

But the public has in its hands the most potent weapon that can be brought to bear against the sale of pornography —the force of its own opinion. The exercise of it through persistent protest and publicity, even to the extent of withholding patronage from businesses whose wares include prurient "literature," will indubitably strike a telling blow for decency.

It's D-Day at 'Churchill'

"They're Off!"

It is the cry swelling from more than a hundred thousand throats at Louisville's venerable Churchill Downs as the three-year-olds break from the starting gate for the 95th running of the Kentucky Derby.

No single American sports event surpasses the Derby in tradition and national interest.

First run in 1875 as a 1½-mile race (it was changed to 1¼ in 1896), the classic attracts spectators from all parts of the Country and is viewed and heard by tens of millions via TV and radio.

★ ★ ★

The rewards for a first-place finish have risen astronomically from the $2,850 collected by the owner of the winner of the first Derby to the $113,200 that will go the ownership of the horse who this year graces the winner's circle.

The Kentucky Derby, followed by the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes is the foremost of a racing trilogy, although the latter two antedate it—the "Stakes" dating back to 1867 and the Preakness to 1873. Upon the equine head of the winner of these top turf tests, which is a rare achievement indeed, rests the mythical Triple Crown of turfdom.

★ ★ ★

Yes, as native son Irvin Cobb once remarked, "Until you go to Kentucky and with your own eyes behold a Derby, you ain't never been nowheres and you ain't seen nothin'."

Senator Tells of Legislative Grist Mill

By EVERETT DIRKSEN

There is good reason for those Americans who have made a special point of the fact that Congress is not grinding out a steady grist of bills and resolutions to indeed rejoice. If they will consider just what absolutely must be done in legislation for the day-to-day operation of our government and what the nation's lawmakers have contrived in addition, they will understand that it is a wonder that the process of legislation does not slow down entirely until it finally chokes on its own paper.

DIRKSEN

Let me tell you about the legislative grist mill.

★ ★ ★

There are certain measures which, for want of a better term, are called "must" measures. Obviously, the "must" category would include all the appropriation bills to provide money for payrolls and the other expenses of government. It would include tax reform, since simplification and modification of our tax structure and tax rates are long overdue.

★ ★ ★

It would include measures dealing with crime in all its phases, since crime has become a challenge to our social structure. It would include many, if not all, of the recommendations that the President will make to Congress, and it is anticipated he will send to this Congress as many as 25 or 30 messages dealing with Social Security, labor, agriculture, housing, urban development and foreign trade, among other vital matters.

But in addition to the President's recommendations, members of the House of Representatives and the Senate are free to introduce bills and resolutions on any subject they may desire. A look at the congressional scoreboard will indicate what is meant.

In the first nine weeks of the present Congress, the 435 members of the House have managed to introduce 8,000 bills, 587 joint resolutions, 181 concurrent resolutions and 335 House resolutions, for a total of 9,103. That is an average of 20 for each member of the House, quite a score from the standpoint of quantity. Quality as a measuring stick might be another thing.

★ ★ ★

The Senate, being a smaller body, was still not far behind. The score of the Senate is 1,679 bills, 84 joint resolutions, 14 concurrent resolutions and 170 Senate resolutions. That is an average of 19 or more for each senator.

The grand total for both the House and the Senate is more than 11,000. Pretty good work for the first nine weeks of the session. And you may well ask just what is covered by that avalanche of bills and resolutions. You name it, and it is there.

Those matters of legislation deal with airports, air-traffic control, reduced rates on airliners for the aged, disclosure of airline stock ownership and many other matters relating to the air transportation industry.

A substantial number of other proposals deal with the marketing of farm commodities, the hunger program, increase in grazing fees, marketing of apples, inspection of reindeer meat and other agricultural matters.

Then there are the endless numbers of bills dealing with a diverse variety of subjects, such as broadcast advertising of alcoholic beverages, experimentation on animals, bilingual education, pay raises for enlisted men in the armed forces, modification of the Selective Service Act, interest rates on U.S. savings bonds, award of a posthumous medal to the late Sir Winston Churchill, a bill to observe National Halibut Week, fair packaging and label bills, a bill to end the Nigeria-Biafra conflict, another requiring a danger-to-health label on whisky and all other alcoholic beverage packages, one to control obsence literature and bills prohibiting switchblade knives, air pollution and kidney transplants.

Why go on with this? You name the idea or hope or problem and there is bound to be a bill or resolution in this Congress to deal with it.

The items in the President's budget, which will include his recommendations in his various messages to Congress, will take about $190 billion, and this will be consummated in good time. But think of all the other legislative brain children and the clamor that has been brought to life and placed on the statute books. What would they cost, and does the nation need them?

Fortunately, only a small percentage of all that legislative grist will see the light of day. So I end where I began and borrow from the sacred parchment to help me make the important point: "Rejoice and be exceeding glad" that you may not get all the law you pay for.

The POWER of FAITH

BY WOODI ISHMAEL

The faith of ex-Air Force Pararescueman Steve Northern is attested to by the 51 men he saved from certain death while serving two tours of duty in Vietnam. At 22, Sgt. Northern has recorded more "combat saves" than any other person in aviation history. (A "combat save" is mostly under enemy fire, where the survivor would have met certain death or capture.)

While stationed at Da Nang he flew an average of 45 missions a month and on his days off he participated in Medical Civic Action Patrol flights, offering medical aid to local Vietnamese villagers in the area.

Northern has received four Silver Stars for "gallantry in action." He received his second star because he "volunteered to be lowered from his HH-3 helicopter to aid an immobilized survivor located in a position completely surrounded by hostile troops and gun positions." The citation continues, "Airman Northern carried the survivor to the hoist and shielded him with his own body as they were brought into the helicopter . . ."

Now a civilian, Steve Northern plans to attend El Camino Junior College, Torrence, Calif. Speaking of his experiences in Vietnam, Steve says his faith pulled him through the tight spots. "It kept me going when I felt like giving up." Upon learning that a pilot was down he called upon God to "get me there before the VC arrive." He feels his prayers were answered. He adds, "We picked up men and escaped when all the odds were stacked against a successful mission. Surely more than skill was involved."

Confident Living:

You Can Shake the Worry Habit

By NORMAN V. PEALE

Worry a lot? Better shake that habit. It can make a shambles of your health and impede success in life. Worry probably wrecks more happiness and well-being than any other mental habit.

Everywhere you run into worriers. At an airport I was impressed by a group of young men — magnificent physical specimens, all at least 6 feet 6. The check-in clerk told me they were the basketball team of a big university. One of these athletes approached me, saying, "I'd like to shake hands with you." Then, shifting uneasily from one foot to the other, he abruptly asked, "Do you think it's possible to break the worry habit? I've got it pretty bad. I've been a worrier ever since I was a kid. Now here I am in the university, on the basketball team, and doing all right in my studies, but still I worry all the time." I told him I'd send him something I'd written on the subject.

★ ★ ★

That same week, during a reception at a convention where I was speaking, a man in his forties confessed, "I seldom get plastered like I am now."

It was obvious he'd had more than one too many. I asked, "Why are you plastered now?"

He looked me in the eye and suddenly seemed cold sober. "Well, I'm in a heck of a fix," he answered. "You see I've been advanced to a higher executive position in my company. But don't congratulate me because I'm not equal to the job. I know I just can't handle it. And believe me, I'm worried sick."

Shortly thereafter I met a woman who sadly complained that she was getting old. "I'm alone in the world. I have friends, but my husband is dead and my children live in other places. I keep thinking, 'What will become of me? Suppose I get sick . . . Who will take care of me?' I lie awake at night worrying until I think I'm going out of my mind."

So it goes, from youth to old age — worry, the ancient enemy of the human spirit. Well, what can you do about worry?

We all have problems and, of course, must think them through. That is what the mind is for. But worrying is a very different proposition from rational thinking. Worry is fear-thinking. It gnaws ineffectually at the problem without getting anywhere except to make you tense and finally wear you out.

Dr. Charles Mayo, who with his brother, William, developed the great Mayo Clinic, stated, "Worry affects the circulation, the heart, the glands, the whole nervous system, and profoundly affects the health. I have never known a man who died from overwork, but many have died from doubt."

★ ★ ★

Robert Frost struck the same note: "The reason why worry kills more people than work is that more people worry than work."

There is indeed a close connection between worry and doubt. Doubt the inherent goodness of the Scheme of Things and you will become a sufferer from self-doubt. You will lose a wholesome confidence in your ability to take difficulties in your stride. The simplest remedy for this misery is faith.

Here is a letter from a Pennsylvania woman who had plenty to worry about but she cancelled it out with faith: "My parents were very poor," she writes, "but God supplied our needs. My father and mother were invalids by the time I was only half grown up. I took over the house and family at the age of 11. One morning after breakfast there was nothing left to eat for the rest of the day, or the rest of the month. I had been praying about it for days, for I could see it coming.

"Well, that day a stranger drove up, a woman I had never seen before and have not seen since. She said she had a dream that showed her we had no food and where we lived. She opened the trunk of her car. It was full of flour, potatoes and other foods. Nothing fancy, just plain stuff like we were used to. I have never doubted for food again.

"Later I questioned some friends who lived where that woman said she was from. They told me she was always doing odd things for people. They said most of her neighbors thought she was crazy. I know better.

"Three of my brothers are ministers and two are college professors. One is a real estate broker (successful), one a dentist and one a high-school teacher. Every one of them made his own way. Quite an accomplishment for the sons of a disabled coal miner who never knew where the next meal was coming from! Yes, people can make it no matter what, if they have faith working for them."

★ ★ ★

Actually, the quality of faith like that woman has is available to everyone. And where can you find faith of that sort? Well, in lots of places — in the night sky, in great religious teachings, in your place of worship, in the company of optimistic faith-filled people, in prayer — wherever reassurance and inspiration come strongest upon your mind. And to practice it, try memorizing affirmations of faith. Use them daily as thought-conditioners. Then tackle your problem in a spirit of positive thinking. Skip the negatives.

Voice of the People:

Taxpayer Is Opposed to Parochial School Aid

If my children must receive a "second-class" education because the government cannot channel enough of my enormous tax load back to the schools to give them a first-class education, then in good conscience I cannot pay one cent more to support parochial schools, nor will I allow one bit of the small return we get to go to support these schools.

★ ★ ★

If people want tax-supported schools they must obey the "no prayer in schools" law, have no teaching of religion in their curriculum, accept all students regardless of race or religion, and be prepared for student unrest and an almost total lack of parent interest. These are a few things they must expect in return for having a small amount of their tax money allocated to their schools.

★ ★ ★

I am certain the majority favored prayer in schools but we, being tax-supported, must obey the law. I suggest parochial schools keep Him in your schools and leave the government out.

'Congratulate Action of Board of Realtors'

Members of the Waterford Area Human Relations Assembly unanimously congratulate the Pontiac Board of Realtors for accepting the application for membership of Joseph. R. Singleton Real Estate Company. By this action the board has expressed a desire that this new association will prove to be mutually beneficial in working toward eliminating discriminatory practices regarding real estate matters in the Pontiac area. We hope other professional groups will follow this example.

'Bill Would Affect Federal Employes' Pay'

H.R. 217, introduced by Congresswoman Martha W. Griffiths of Michigan, would authorize the check-off of city income taxes from the pay of Federal employes without their consent. This will mean a third tax bite out of every Federal paycheck in all those states with both state and city income taxes. In the case of nonresidents it could mean a half dozen or more such bites if the nonresident performs work in several income tax cities. Before this bill slips by Congress unnoticed, I hope there will be a poll of all Federal employes to find out their wishes.

Expresses Concern for Condition of Nation

The recent article by David Lawrence, "Two Court Decisions Deleterious," should make the people of the United States wake up—when men can plot to kill our president or burn our flag and the U.S. Supreme Court turns them loose. Can't the government see that the Supreme Court is selling our nation down the alley to hoodlums and the Reds? Russia said they would take over the U. S. and never fire a gun. Being a senior citizen, I may not see it but unless someone wakes up fast, my children and grandchildren will suffer.

'Magazine Tells Negro History in Michigan'

Did you know that black loggers and lumber barons helped build Bay City? That black people were among the earliest pioneers and homesteaders in Michigan? Articles on law and order, education, black militant youth, economic development, black dentists, writers, architects and musicians, Michigan's first black bank, and an interview with State Senator Coleman A. Young are included in "Michigan Challenge," published by the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce in Lansing. Copies of these magazines should be in every school library in the state, every home and every church.

Question and Answer

On June 13 I plan to have a record party. I've looked all over for certain records and haven't found them. There are places to order them for $1 each, but I'm on an allowance and can't afford that much. I'm looking for a place to order them for less. Can you help me?

P. B. K.

REPLY

Try Wolverine Entertainers, Inc., 1782 Pontiac Drive, FE 4-9577. They sell records which have been played on jukeboxes for 25 cents each or 5 for $1. They may have the ones you listed, but if not, you might find others you'd like just as well for that price. Only thing is, you'll have to look through them yourself. The office is open until 5:30 every day but Sunday.

Question and Answer

In August 1966, we were involved in an accident. The man who hit us left town. Our attorney contacted Lansing but was unable to find out if the man had insurance, so we can't start suit. How can we find out if he was insured or was with the State's uninsured motorists' fund?

MRS. RONALD JONES
562 E. MADISON

REPLY

We talked with Mr. Brossard at the Vehicle Service Title and Registration Division of the Michigan Secretary of State's office. He said an application for that license number was made Feb. 12, 1966, indicating the car was insured with Buckeye Union. However, it may have been canceled or dropped, because on March 8, 1966, another application was made and microfilm of the application indicates the $35 uninsured motorist's fee was paid. Your attorney can get verification of these records upon request by calling Mr. Brossard's office at the Title and Registration Division, Area Code 517—373-2459.

Another Opinion on No Change in Time

I am glad I voted "no" to clock changing. I can see a big difference in my home; and my home and family are my primary concern. My children now get proper rest, the house grows quieter, faster; adults can relax, read, think. It's wonderful. Order has been restored.

States Views on Campaign Against Smoking

Today, for the first time, I refused to contribute to a fund dedicated to the improvement of public health. Donating to an advertising campaign to stop the use of cigarettes is just as objectionable as having my tax money used for the same purpose.

★ ★ ★

The Surgeon General has announced, in condemning cigarettes, "we have established their cause and effect in lung cancer." He ignores the percentage of unfortunate victims who never smoked a cigarette. A recent report shows the over-all use of cigarettes to be decreasing, while the incidence of lung cancer continues to rise.

★ ★ ★

It will be interesting, if these trends carry on, to learn how the present group of hysterical crusaders explain it.

It's great that the police want to clean up the sale of obscene literature in Pontiac. I believe they made one mistake in the arrest of the three last Tuesday. That mistake was entrapment.

Chief Justice Warren and his "supremes" sit on Capitol Hill and do nothing about the ignorant riff-raff who have taken over our campuses, yet wasted no time in taking prayer out of our schools after a handful of atheists demanded it. Comments on Subdivision 'Road' Dispute

Regarding the fence-cutting and road feud in the Maple Pointe Beach and Annex subdivisions, Commerce Township, the "sand trail" referred to, was the same kind of gravel road as all the private roads in both subdivisions. For 32 years the road was in daily use by cars, school buses, mail and milk trucks, ambulances, police, etc.

Woman Receives Lost Cash, Wallet 23 Years Later

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Mayme Kuehn lost her wallet with $21 in it on her way to collect unemployment compensation 23 years ago. She had just been laid off a wartime factory job.

This week $21 was mailed to her along with her Social Security card, a 1946 driver's license and pictures of relatives now dead.

The wallet's contents arrived in a plain envelope with an unsigned note saying an old man had found it on the street.

THINK ABOUT IT!

Some people wonder what kind of letter can be written to a bereaved family. Circumstances alter instances of course, but when an occasion requires a letter, maybe this general idea can guide you.

"No matter how well meant or how well written, words simply don't come easy for us to express our feeling at a time like this. You of course know our feeling. You know we will fondly remember a good person, a person many people were proud and fortunate to have as a friend.

A Higher Power made a decision. No one knows the reason. We simply have to accept it. You, your family, your friends — all of us — can be grateful for a gift of memories we fondly share with you. This precious, priceless gift is mostly yours, but not entirely. We value it too and always will . . . "

News in Brief

The sum of $50 was reported taken from a desk at the Golf gas station, 3351 Dixie, Waterford Township, yesterday. David Eastham, 34, of 2537 Desmond, the attendant, said he had left the station briefly to pick up a new car. Entrance was gained through a window in the bay door, according to Waterford Township police.

Roger Davis, an employe of the Italian American Club, 60 N. Tilden, Waterford Township, reported to police that someone broke a window in the club Thursday night and entered to take $10 in money and $85 in records and pool balls.

Thomas G. Hollingsworth, 41, of 125 N. Eastway yesterday reported to police the theft of $204 and a shotgun valued at $100 in a break-in at his home.

Ex-Car Dealer Innocent in Theft Plot

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A U.S. District Court jury has acquitted a former automobile dealer in suburban Amherst of all charges connected with an alleged stolen-car ring that operated between Detroit and Niagara Falls.

★ ★ ★

The panel cleared Charles E. Hettinger, 37, Friday night after six hours of deliberation that followed a 16-day trial conducted by Judge John O. Henderson.

★ ★ ★

Hettinger, who now lives in the Rochester suburb of Perfield, was president and general manager of C. Hettinger for Rambler Inc. when he was indicted April 3, 1968, on charges of conspiracy and receiving and concealing stolen vehicles that had crossed state lines.

The dealership has since gone out of business.

1 OF 7 HELD

Hettinger was one of seven men arrested by FBI agents in the case.

★ ★ ★

Of the other six, four have pleaded guilty to various charges and await sentence. They are Victor H. Strassburg, 38, and Michael A. De Fazio, 41, both of Niagara Falls; Crandall Johnson, 27, of Lewiston; and Walter Gordon, 24, of Madison Heights, Mich.

★ ★ ★

The others, James W. Wagner, 26, of Niagara Falls, and Frank Rudnick, 46, of Algonac, Mich., pleaded innocent and are still to be tried.

$1,000 Reward

Consumers Power Company offers a reward of $1,000 to anyone who provides information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person who injures, destroys, or tampers with the Company's property or facilities without authority and with the intention to interrupt or disrupt service, or who shall aid or abet in such acts.

Cabinet Supporting Wilson, but He Faces Stiff Party Test

LONDON (AP) — British Cabinet stalwarts are supporting Prime Minister Harold Wilson but he faces a serious challenge to his leadership of the Labor party and the House of Commons.

Parliamentary sources said 60 to 70 of the 348 Labor members in Commons support a campaign to replace Wilson. They said the next week could prove crucial.

Three Cabinet ministers in public speeches Friday night appealed for an end to the "wave of near-hysteria" surrounding the "Wilson must go" campaign and called for sober judgment.

★ ★ ★

Backers of the drive said these loyalists were admitting deep concern over the "Oust Wilson" movement.

But Wilson went to Chequers, his official country home, for the weekend and was reported to be unconcerned.

The immediate issue that brought the backbench rebellion to a climax was Wilson's determination to press ahead for reform in labor-management erlations, including strike control laws. These measures are detested by the trade unions that form the backbone of the Labor party's political support.

It was the latest in a series of grievances that alienated Wilson from important factions in his party. Many Labor MPs fearful of losing their seats cite the consistently dismal ratings the party receives in public opinion polls.

★ ★ ★

These dissidents are argue that Labor's best chance is to ditch Wilson, blame past troubles on him and prepare for the next national election in 1971 by choosing a new leader now.

Britain's parliamentary system allows this, and the opposition Conservatives used such a technique a decade ago.

But a prime minister who refuses to qiut under parliamentary pressure holds a trump card. He can dissolve parliament and force new elections. Should Wilson do this now, polls indicate some 200 Labor MPs would be almost certain to lose their seats.

The dissidents hope to avoid a snap election and at the same time convince Wilson to give way. They could pull this off two ways—either by a movement in the Cabinet against Wilson or through a no confidence vote against Wilson by party MPs.

★ ★ ★

With the Cabinet apparently behind Wilson, parliamentary sources say the rebels have a long way to go to get enough strength for a no confidence vote.

The minister most often mentioned as the favorite to replace Wilson, Home Secretary James Callaghan, has remained silent and aloof from the infighting. But, he has indicated he is not too enthusiastic about Wilson's reform bill for labor-management relations.

Another favorite, Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins, could play a key role by lining up behind Callaghan against Wilson. But Jenkins' supporters strongly discount this possibility.

W. Bloomfield Fire Raises Arson Query

A home under construction on Apple Ridge west of Swan Lake Drive in West Bloomfield Township burned to the ground shortly after midnight last night.

★ ★ ★

West Bloomfield Township police said arson is suspected. Neighbors reported hearing an explosion and a car leaving the scene.

★ ★ ★

The home was owned by Ivan Frankel Construction Co. of Huntington Woods, according to police. Police said the structure, still a shell, was estimated to be in the $50,000 to $60,000 class when complete.

Troy Man Dies of Gun Wounds

Troy police report Sherman R. Cannon, 36, of 1091 Glaser, Troy, died of self-inflicted gunshot wounds last night.

Cannon used a 38 caliber revolver. He was found outside the family home at 11:10 p.m., police said.

Woman Injured in I-75 Mishap

A Minneapolis, Minn., woman was injured yesterday when her car went out of control on a curve and rolled over on I-75 in Springfield Township.

Charla V. Wheeler, 24, is listed in fair condition with face cuts at Pontiac General Hospital. The accident occurred at 5:20 p.m. at the Dixie Highway overpass.

House OKs Criteria for Clean-Water Funds

LANSING (AP) — Acting with unaccustomed bipartisan unity, the House Friday approved two bills specifying how communities may apply for construction grants from bonds totaling $335 million for water pollution treatment and sewerage construction.

The bills now move to the Senate for further action.

★ ★ ★

Late attempts to add local interest amendments were rejected. The major, $285-million formula for state aid to federally backed local water antipollution projects passed 92-8, followed by an 85-10 vote for a $50-million formula for access sewers.

★ ★ ★

CONSERVATION PANELISTS

Anderson and Goemaere are co-chairmen of the conservation committee which substantially revised the criteria for judging which projects would be accepted for state aid.

House observers say the committee revisions, largely the work of Smit, a civil engineer, apparently eliminated most, if not all, pork-barrel lopholes.

Annual approval of local project applications would remain with the Legislature.

★ ★ ★

However, it would have only 45 days to act after receiving recommendations from the Water Resources Commission. A longer delay would mean automatic approval of the commission's list.

SCREEN OUT POLITICKING

Sponsors of the bill said that feature of the bill leaves complicated engineering decisions to technically qualified experts and should screen out most of the political wheeling and dealing that normally is part of legislative action on such bills.

★ ★ ★

Projects, instead, would be graded according to "point" scales estimating a community's pollution control needs as well as financial burdens.

★ ★ ★

To receive funds from the $285-milion bond, communitise would have to be eligible for federal aid, but only for construction begun after June 30, 1967.

★ ★ ★

The $50-milion bond, on the other hand, is deliberately restricted to communities which do not qualify for federal grants.

★ ★ ★

One problem, Anderson said in defending the bills from floor amendments, is that pollution far exceeds the money available to combat it. Revenue from the smaller, $50-million bond must be divided among communities now with any pollution treatment faciilties. Paying for what is actually needed would cost $500 million, Anderson said.

Striking Union Files Charges

Consumers Accused of Worker Blacklist

JACKSON (UPI) — The huge Consumers Power Co. and the striking Michigan Workers Council are sparring but not negotiating as a work stoppage against the gas and electricity supplier moved into its 26th day today.

The union, representing 5,200 Consumers employes, filed unfair labor practice charges against the company yesterday, alleging it had blacklisted unionists working on other jobs during the strike.

★ ★ ★

The Utility Workers also filed charges against General Motors Corp. and Detroit Edison Co., accusing the two companies of refusing to hire men whose names were on a list furnished by Consumers.

The union charged that Consumers had caused 70 men working for private line construction firms to lose their jobs. Consumers countered that it was "unaware of any facts that would justify the charge" filed with the National Labor Relations Board.

MORE VANDALISM

It also reported more incidents of vandalism to company property. But, as in the past, it carefully refrained from suggesting the vandalism was attributed to the union.

Consumers said five electric substations were hit in the Kalamazoo area. It said "unidentified persons" drained cooling oil from seven transformers at five locations, "apparently with intent to interrupt electric service to more than 5,000 customers."

★ ★ ★

Substations hit, Consumers said, were at Allegan, Saugatuck, Gunn Lake, Casco and Hopkins. Service was not interrupted "except for momentary interruptions" as some customers in the Allegan area were switched to other supply lines, a spokesman said.

New Airline Runs Late— for 43 Reasons

TRAVERSE CITY (AP) — Michigan's newest airline landed a flight at Traverse City 20 minutes late Friday night, but with 43 good reasons.

The president of Trans-Michigan Airlines, B. J. Hayner, was told 43 Michigan servicemen somehow were left stranded at Detroit's Metro Airport with no way home.

★ ★ ★

Hayner ordered Flight 211 and two other to fly all 43 of the men to Flint and Saginaw without charge.

Trans-Michigan 9irlines has been in operation only six days.

Actor Rip Torn, injured in a motorcycle accident, is in New York's Mount Sinai Hospital wearing a cast from his ankle to his thigh — but it won't stop him from starring in the film, "Tropic of Cancer."

Torn will play the scenes in his cast until he can walk again, according to Paramount Pictures. Filming, which was set to begin in Paris May 6, was set back two days because of the accident.

'Family Affair' Star Divorced

Brian Keith's wife has been awarded an interest in her actor husband's television series "Family Affair" as part of a divorce settlement.

Strike Is Averted

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit area construction strike has been averted at least momentarily as negotiators representing 2,200 ironworkers have presented new wage proposals to the Associated General Contractors. The new proposals grew out of a lengthy bargaining session Thursday. The contractors were given until Tuesday to reply.

The world petroleum demand in 1969 is expected to reach 42 million barrels a day in 1969, up 7 per cent over 1968.

New British Liner on Way to NY

ABOARD THE QUEEN ELIZABETH (AP) — The Queen Elizabeth 2 sailed out into the Atlantic Friday night on her maiden voyage to New York with an obligation to make up $5 million to $7 million in lost revenue for Britain's Cunard Steamship Line.

That's what canceled bookings and harbor charges cost the company while turbine trouble delayed the queen's first transatlantic voyage four months.

★ ★ ★

But she put her troubles behind her when she sailed from Southampton Friday morning, on a somewhat revised schedule.

"She's the most exciting thing to be launched since Apollo 9," said one Cunard spokesman.

The QE2 left her home port in drizzling rain, but with an old-style send-off — bands playing, streamers thrown and balloons floating over the water. A squadron of jets roared overhead in a farewell flyby.

The queen made a stop at Le Havre after a smooth and uneventful seven-hour trip across the English Channel.

The Queen was gingerly taken alongside by French tugs flying all the flags the crews could lay their hands on.

FAMED REDWOOD FALLS — After 90 years as a tourist attraction at Yosemite National Park, Calif., the world-famous Wawona Tunnel tree has fallen. An old photo shows a stagecoach bringing visitors through the tunnel of the 234-foot sequoia redwood. Park rangers believe the tree, estimated to be 1,500 to 2,000 years old, apparently fell in early winter but was hidden by snows.

400 to Start Tomorrow on London to NY Race

LONDON (AP) — About 400 contestants take off Sunday in a zany air race that poses more problems on the ground than up above.

The idea is to get from the top of the Post Office Tower in London to the Empire State Building in New York—or the other way around—as fast as possible.

★ ★ ★

To beat congested downtown traffic in the two capitals, the fliers will resort to helicopters, speedboats and even a rickshaw.

★ ★ ★

London's Daily Mail, sponsor of the race, has offered two prizes of $12,000 each for the shortest time each way. Other firms have added special categories with additional prizes totaling some $144,000.

21 CATEGORIES

The 21 categories range from supersonic jets entered by the Royal Navy to 80-mile-an-hour light aircraft. There is even a slot for ordinary airline passengers who let others do their flying for them.

Angus McPherson, the Daily Mail air correspondent, called the race "the most fantastic aviation event of the century."

Not all contestants will fly off at once. They have until next Sunday. The first to take off will be Anne Alcock, an 18-year-old niece of one of the pioneers of the first nonstop transatlantic flight.

She will descend from the top of the Post Office Tower in an elevator going 600 feet a minute. After that it's up to her how to get to the airport.

★ ★ ★

The race marks the 50th anniversary of the first nonstop transatlantic flight by Sr. John Alcock and Lt. Arthur Whitten Brown in 1919. They completed the 1,880-mile flight from St. John's, Nfld., to Clifden, Ireland, in 15 hours 57 minutes, flying a Vickers Vimy.

Britain's navy hopes to set a New York-London speed record in the race.

The navy has entered three Phantom supersonic jets built by McDonnell in the United States. They have extra-power Rolls Royce engines giving speeds around 1,400 miles an hour.

The Phantoms are 2-1 favorites with British bookmakers.

Chimp Learns Sign Language

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Two psychologists say they have taught a chimpanzee to communicate with them with dozens of hand signs designed for deaf humans.

Dr. R. Allen Gardner and his wife Beatrice reported to their colleagues at the University of Nevada Psychology Department Friday about training a 3½-year-old female chimp named Washoe. They have kept the wild-born animal at their home for three years, spending about 13 hours a day with it.

★ ★ ★

"Washoe uses over 70 signs and understands more than that," said Gradner. "I'm hoping for something more like conversation with more extended phrases." He said Washoe strings as many as four signs together.

The Gardners showed movies of Washoe responding to objects by making their sign — a toothbrush, key, bib, flower.

Reagan to Speak

LANSING (AP) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan will be the featured speaker at a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner May 13, the Republican State Central Committee has announced. The dinner, in Detroit, will mark Reagan's second appearance in the state in less than a year. He spoke last year in Grand Rapids.

Vet-Welcome Plan Is Urged by City Man

A Pontiac man is forming a committee to welcome home veterans of Vietnam.

"Most of the time there's no recognition for those kids fighting over there," said Harry C. Sallada, "and we seldom know when they return home."

Sallada, 793 Third, said several civic leaders contacted have shown interest and two city commissioners plan to introduce the plan at a future meeting.

"The way it would work," Sallada said, "would be for each district to take care of its own, with the parents notifying their commissioner when their son is to return."

"It wouldn't have to be anything elaborate, maybe just a pin from the city," said Sallada, a World War II veteran.

He said anyone interested in promoting the plan can contact him at his home.

GI Hero Is Hit by Pneumonia

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI) — The soldier was sick. He was enervated.

But he stuck it out when he came back to Grand Rapids and his home town of Caledonia this week from Vietnam to a hero's welcome and he never complained.

★ ★ ★

His name is Spec. 5 Thomas Van Putten. He had been held captive by the Vietcong for 14 months. He escaped and was picked up by a U. S. helicopter last month after struggling for 18 days through the jungles of Vietnam, barely keeping alive on fruit and frogs.

Van Putten, his tall frame gaunt from the ordeal, was taken to a hospital in Vietnam and later to Glenview (Ill.) Naval Air Station. He was flown here Wednesday and stood up under ceremonies at the airport here and in Caledonia where he was presented with a car and other gifts as the town of less than 1,000 population turned out.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Putten, had flown to Glenview for a reunion and returned with him to the grand Rapids area and home.

"We thought he was okay despite a severe cough, until Thursday night," the senior Van Putten said. He took his son to Osteopathic Hospital early yesterday.

★ ★ ★

There, the family doctor James C. Bricker, said the soldier had developed double pneumonia. But he said Van Putten's condition was good.

Dr. Bricker, said he consulted with Glenview, Ill., Navy doctors on Van Putten's case history and they agreed that he could remain here for a temporary stay.

"Free Vacation" Promotions

We have had numerous calls concerning promotions, originating mainly in Florida, who are offering certificates to the public promising "Free vacation." The "winner" must pay fees of $12 to $15 to get the certificate, so the "vacation" is not free, nor will the certificate provide a "vacation" since it offers use of a hotel room for a brief stay and the use of the hotel's facilities only.

The usual featues of a vacation, such as transportation, meals, beverages, taxes, tips, outside entertainment, telephone and other incidentals, are not included.

When it costs you . . . it is not free.

Besides the payment of a fee for the "free vacation" a number of terms and conditions must be met by the user before the certificate will be validated by the hotel or motel. There has even been a requirement that the user must be in a certain age group, must be married, etc.

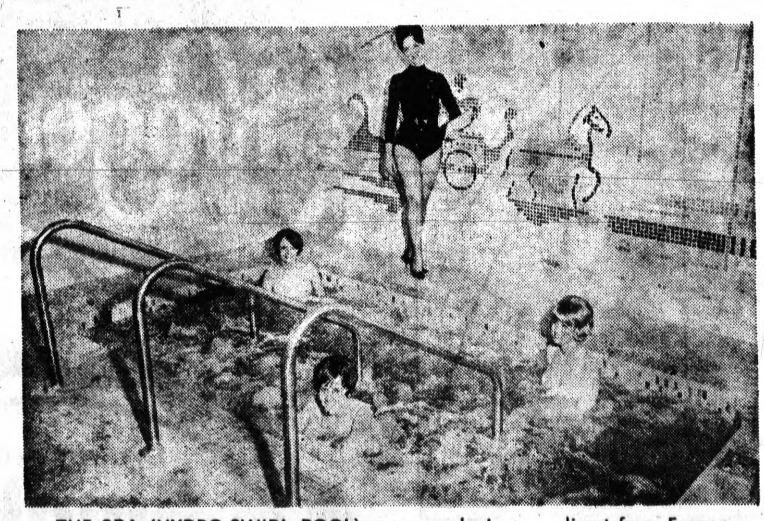

If used during the winter season, nominal daily charge is levied by the hotel. In the off-season there usually is no additional charge.

The Business Ethics Board urges recipients to read all the fine print on certificates in order to understand the many terms, limitations and qualifications contingent upon their use.

Tijuana Jail Stirs Prisoners to Freer, Profitable Life

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — For convicts at Baja California's state penitentiary, good behavior pays off. They can earn weekly conjugal visits and participation in the prison's free enterprise system.

The prison is a flourishing self-contained community where trusties roam freely within the walls.

Shops and industries provide profit for the ambitious inmate, and the prison will even lend him money to start his own business behind bars.

★ ★ ★

Warden of the facility on the outskirts of this border city is Antonio Martinez, a 49-year-old former salesman who believes that most convicts will respond if given the chance to work and make money.

Convict shops within the prison turn out furniture, mattresses, toys and other handcrafts. During the summer, the prison manufactures up to 2,500 bongo drums per week for shops catering to tourists in downtown Tijuana.

★ ★ ★

"We encouage the prisoners to work, but they don't have to and about one-third don't, Martinez said. "But for those who behave and work hard, life in here is not too grim."

Trusties in the factories and shops work on a cooperative basis and earn according to how much they produce. There's a radio repair shop, a tailor, a barber, a bathhouse, a grocery store and a restaurant, all run independently by the inmates.

"If a convict has a good idea for a business and needs money to start it, we advance the funds and he pays back the loan from his income," Martinez says.

About 720 prisoners are kept at the facility, across the border from San Diego, Calif., including about 30 U.S. citizens.

"We get a lot of Americans who have managed to get themselves arrested o marijuana charges so they can evade the draft in their own country," said Martinez. "A lot of Americans come in thinking they can buy their way out of this place, but they are in for a big disappointment."

Maximum penalty in Mexico is 30 years, but a convict can be given consecutive maximum sentences which keep him for life.

Many prisoners spend seven to nine months just waiting for trial under Mexico's judicial system which gives the judge up to a year to decide the case. Narcotics cases are not bailable in Mexico.

Trusties are free within the walls 24 hours a day, but they have to earn this privilege. New arrivals progress through a series of five tanks before they are made trusties.

Each tank allows progressively greater freedom, and the prospect of being made a trusty provides the prisoners with considerable incentive, says Martinez.

Trusties live two or three to a room in separate apartments in new buildings and can be alone with their wives one day a week.

"We have three visiting days a week and up to 1,500 persons come in on those days. It's just like a big picnic inside the walls then," Martinez says.

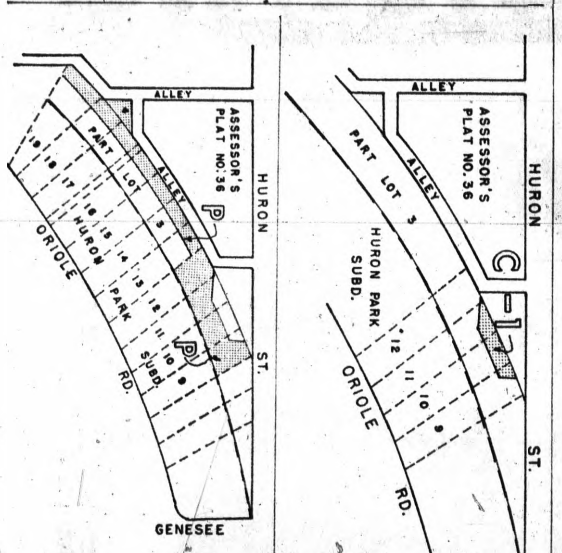

The prison was built in 1958 and for several years was surrounded only by wire fences. On foggy nights, prisoners sometimes scaled the fence and escaped.

This problem was solved by construction of a 30-foot wall, and there have been no escapes since then, although some have tried to tunnel under it.

One convict, a U.S. citizen, carried the free enterprise system beyond the allowable limits.

He was accused of operating an extensive stolen-car ring from inside the prison. Cars stolen in the United States were brought to the prison where identifying marks were changed. The cars then were sold either in Mexico or California. The man is still in prison but not in business.

For those who misbehave, there are small solitary cells.

Do we really want peace?

We talk about it, plan for it, and hope it will come into our lives.

But, are we willing to work for peace in our own hearts — where real peace must be won?

Christian Science teaches that a healing, satisfying peace can be found if we are willing to find for ourselves the spiritual peace that comes from God.

Hear a public lecture called "Peace is Individual" by ROY J. LINNIG, C.S., an experienced Christian Science practitioner.

Admission is free, everyone is welcome.

Scientists Weigh Gravity of Discovery of Superheavy Stars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There really are neutron stars spinning and flashing in the depths of space.

Their matter is so densely packed that a bit of it the size of a sugar cube weighs a billion tons.

★ ★ ★

They are only 120 miles in diameter, but their mass is equal to or greater than the suns.

Their magnetic fields are 20 trillion times as strong as the earth's.

Their gravitational attraction is so powerful that an astronaut trying to land on one would be torn apart before he got closer than 60 miles.

They may be the primary source of the immensely energetic cosmic rays which flood all space.

★ ★ ★

A year ago neutron stars existed only in theory. They now exist in fact.

This was the consensus of astronomers who participated in a symposium this week at the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences on Pulsars, those strange objects in the heavens which emit electro-magnetic signals at regular intervals ranging from 30 times a second to once every 3.75 seconds.

Pulsars were discovered in 1967 by British radio astronomers. Unable to explain the regularity of the radio pulses, some scientists wondered if they might not be an attempt at interstellar communication by advanced civilizations on planets of other solar systems in space.

This was quickly ruled out, however, and a year ago neutron stars were suggested as the source of the mysterious pulsation. Many astronomers scoffed at this notion. Meanwhile, 36 other pulsars have been located in our star family, the Milky Way galaxy.

Discovery of the neutron star-pulsar in the heart of the Crab nebula, 36 quadrillion million miles from earth, disposed of the notion that pulsar signals might be from intelligent beings.

The tremendous compressional forces of gravity which can shrink a sun to a body only 120 miles in diameter are hard to comprehend. One of the scientists tried to make it clear this way:

If the earth were so compressed, he said, "You could hold New York City in the palm of your hand."

JOAN WOODSIDE

Teen of Week Wants to Be Top Secretary

This week's Teen of the Week, Joann Woodside, a senior at Pontiac Northern, wants to become an executive secretary for General Motors when she graduates.

Joann, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Woodside of 153 W. Chicago, carries a scholastic average of 3.6 on a 4.0 scale. She has been a cheerleader for three years and serves as captain.

★ ★ ★

A staffer on the school newspaper, she also is a member of the Student Council advisory board and has been secretary of her class for the last three years.

Joann stresses the importance of high school students setting their goals at a challenging height early in their academic career. The goal must involve both personal and practical implications.

"It must make life meaningful, both at work and outside of it," she says.

State Aide Sees Fingerprint Ruling Making Light Impression

LANSING (UPI) — A recent U. S. Supreme Court decision on the use of fingerprints taken while a prisoner is illegally detained "will probably have a minimal effect in Michigan," according to Assistant State Atty. Gen. Stewart Freeman.

"The decision isn't a departure from the existing law," Freeman said in an interview. "It says you can't use certain evidence, but it doesn't say you can't obtain it.

★ ★ ★

"We may have problems in certain old cases, but I don't think you will find many people in prison here comparable to the Davis situation," he added.

The Davis case, which reversed a life sentence for rape, involved a young Negro boy in Meridian, Miss. John Davis was convicted in 1965 for the alleged attack on a white woman.

A DRAGNET

The court based its reversal on a set of fingerprints police obtained during a 10-day investigation of Davis and 23 other Negro boys. The search for a suspect was a dragnet, Freeman indicated, with fingerprinting and questioning part of the routine, though no warrants were issued.

"When they took the fingerprints, it was like taking something material from a car," Freeman explained.

★ ★ ★

Davis' lawyer objected to the fingerprint evidence being admitted at the trial on the grounds that it was the product of an unlawful detention.

★ ★ ★

The Mississippi courts upheld the notion that the "trustworthiness" of fingerprints as evidence exempt them from the provisions of "illegally seized evidence."

BACKS UP ACTION

Detroit Recorder's Court Judge George W. Crockett Jr. said the high court's ruling backs up his action of freeing several suspects after the killing of a patrolman in Detroit March 29. He objected to ballistics tests the police administered to the group.

"I view the decision as drawing a distinction between getting identifying information and getting information from a potential defendant for use against him at trial," Crockett said.

★ ★ ★

Freeman pointed out that this court ruling doesn't eliminate the use of evidence such as the fingerprints, but makes it clear that a court order must be obtained in certain instances before this material is introduced at the trial.

★ ★ ★

"The opinion doesn't say the suspects should have been released immediately. It is strictly confined to the question of should the fingerprints have been taken," Freeman said.

"So they (Supreme Court justices) were saying that if you arrest someone without probable cause (in the Davis case solely because he is black) you may have the right to take fingerprints, but you can't use them as substantial evidence."

Litton Hires 2 Ex-Officials at Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conglomerate whose defense contracts jumped more than 250 per cent last year has hired as vice presidents two men who were key Pentagon officials during the Johnson administration.

Thomas D. Morris, former assistant secretary of defense for procurement, and Alain C. Enthoven, assistant secretary of defense for systems analysis, joined Litton Industries immediately after leaving their Pentagon jobs with the change of administrations in January.

★ ★ ★

Morris had supervised the department's $45-billion-a-year program of contracting for research, supplies, services and equipment. Enthoven was the man credited with computerizing much of the Pentagon's decision making.

In 1967, Litton ranked 36th among companies receiving defense contracts with awards totalling more than $180 million. At the end of last year, Litton had jumped to 14th with defense contracts valued at nearly $466 million.

NAVY CONTRACT

In another development, the Navy announced Thursday the award of a potential $1-billion contract to Litton's Bingalls Ship-guilding Division to build a new multipurpose amphibious warfare ship designated the LHA.

Neither Morris nor Ethoven could be reached for comment on their new jobs.

Top government officials often take high-level industry posts when they leave their federal posts. This is particularly true of top Pentagon officials.

★ ★ ★

Last month, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., revealed that as of February, the top 100 defense contractors employed 2,072 retired military officers of the rank of colonel or Navy captain and above, an average of more than 20 per company.

Litton had hired 49, two and a half times the average. But the largest number of retired military officers was employed by aircraft and aerospace-oriented companies.

PRACTICE DEFENDED

Lockheed Aircraft Corp. employed 210; Boeing Corp. 169, McDonnell Douglas Corp 141; General Dynamics Corps. 113; and North American Rockwell Corp. 104.

Private industry defends this practice, saying that top Defense Department officials and military men know their way around the defense contracting field. Proxmire, however, sees the practice as potentially dangerous to the public interest with the possibility that these retired officials might some day be negotiating defense contracts with former associates and friends.

Soo Dedication

SAULT STE. MARIE (AP) — Dedication ceremonies are scheduled May 25 for the Shrine of the Missionaries, a 21-story tower built in honor of Christian missionaries active for more than 300 years in the Sault area. The ceremonies will be a highlight of Michigan Week.

All Saints Youth Visit Hospital Patients

Peter Armstrong Sings, Tells Stories

Sunday evening church can be fun.

That's what senior high young people of All Saints Episcopal Church think as they visit patients in Pontiac State Hospital every Sunday evening to sing, play games and just talk with each other.

There are actually two youth groups from All Saints active as volunteers, the seniors and the juniors, and they are on separate assignments.

★ ★ ★

It was Ted Panaretos, director of community relations department at Pontiac State Hospital, who started the first youngsters as volunteers on a diabetic unit about 10 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Perkins and Mrs. Palmer Strang have been instrumental in the perpetuation of the groups through the years. Mrs. Strang works with the junior youth. For the past several years diabetic patients are being serviced on a monthly basis by the junior high youth.

Speaking of the youngsters Panaretos said "I do know that these quite regressed patients living on MS - 5, a component of the medical-surgical division, look forward to the visits by All Saints youth.

"I also know that the ward nursing personnel swear by the kids and consider their efforts very helpful to the patients," he added.

★ ★ ★

According to Panaretos the senior youth started going to the hospital every Sunday night in November.

"What makes this group so unique," said Panaretos, "is that these teen-agers come to Pontiac State Hospital each and every Sunday night. They volunteer on Hall 2, (Genesee Division). This is a rehabilitative unit of males ages 18 through 64."

ONCE A WEEK

He went on to say "I helped the Rev. Tom Wilson and the kids get started but in all my years of setting up programs and coordinating volunteers I never, never thought, or expected a group of youngsters to visit our patients as often as once a week.

"Imagine! These teen-agers are giving up prime time Sunday evenings to make life happier and more meaningful to their friends, living on a ward 91 years old."

Dr. Jacinto Anaya, in charge of Hall 2, says he is very enthused at the communication established by All Saints seniors with their patient friends.

STUDENT

Young Thomas Wilson, one of the senior group, has this to say: "I really like visiting Pontiac State. Last week I thought I was tired of going, but then, I got to the steps of Hall 2, and saw young Billy standing at the door with his small secret grin.

"I realized how much the patients enjoy our visits. They really do. They miss us if we don't come, and now they look forward to it every Sunday. I don't know what we will do when summer comes."

"I hope we give them some sort of a model for reality. If I was there, I am sure I'd get awfully sick of sitting in the same place all day. I'd get to be nuttier than a fruit cake if not more so.

Harry Dunnigan, nurse on the hall, says: The Senior group from All Saints Church, accompanied by the Rev. Tom Wilson, assistant rector, and various parents from time to time, do their thing every Sunday evening.

"They come to Pontiac State Hospital where they entertain with music, games and just plain old friendly conversation, both the patients and themselves.

"When the group began coming to Hall 2 in November, it was on a pilot project basis as no young people had come to the hospital on a weekly basis before.

"The first few weeks were what might be described as a moderate success in that the very patient's general hesitant response to strangers was overcome by the young people, who felt they were alone in a new environment.

"As the weekly visits started to add up, it was apparent that the atmosphere was more relaxed and both the youth and the patients smiled and greeted each other with handshakes and words of welcome.

SMALL GROUPS

"The original semi-formal relationships were discarded and rather than a large group gathered in one spot, small groups were formed to play cards, checkers and various other games.

"These visits seem to have had an influence on the attitudes of both the patients and volunteer group. Most of the patients joined in one of the activities, rather than sitting around staring at the walls or pacing the hallway.

★ ★ ★

"The somewhat shy original approach of the unsure young people vanished as they discovered they were dealing with people who need and respond to kindness and friendly attitudes.

"It could be that the general public could learn something from this group who have won the respect and admiration of the hospital staff of the afternoon shift on Hall 2," Dunnigan said.

And here are comments by the Rev. Tom Wilson: "I am delighted with the response of both the students and the patients to these Sunday night visits.

"The students give themselves to this experiment unreservedly, joyfully and with a loyalty to their weekly commitment that is a pleasure to behold.

"They really care, and it shows up in the way they visit. They know a great deal about the personal history of many patients. This indicates the students are really listening to the men, and it further reveals a trust on the part of the patients toward these young people.

★ ★ ★

"Now, the time is ripe for teaching the students some basic facts regarding types of mental illness, the history and method of treatment, and the hopes of the staff for the future.

★ ★ ★

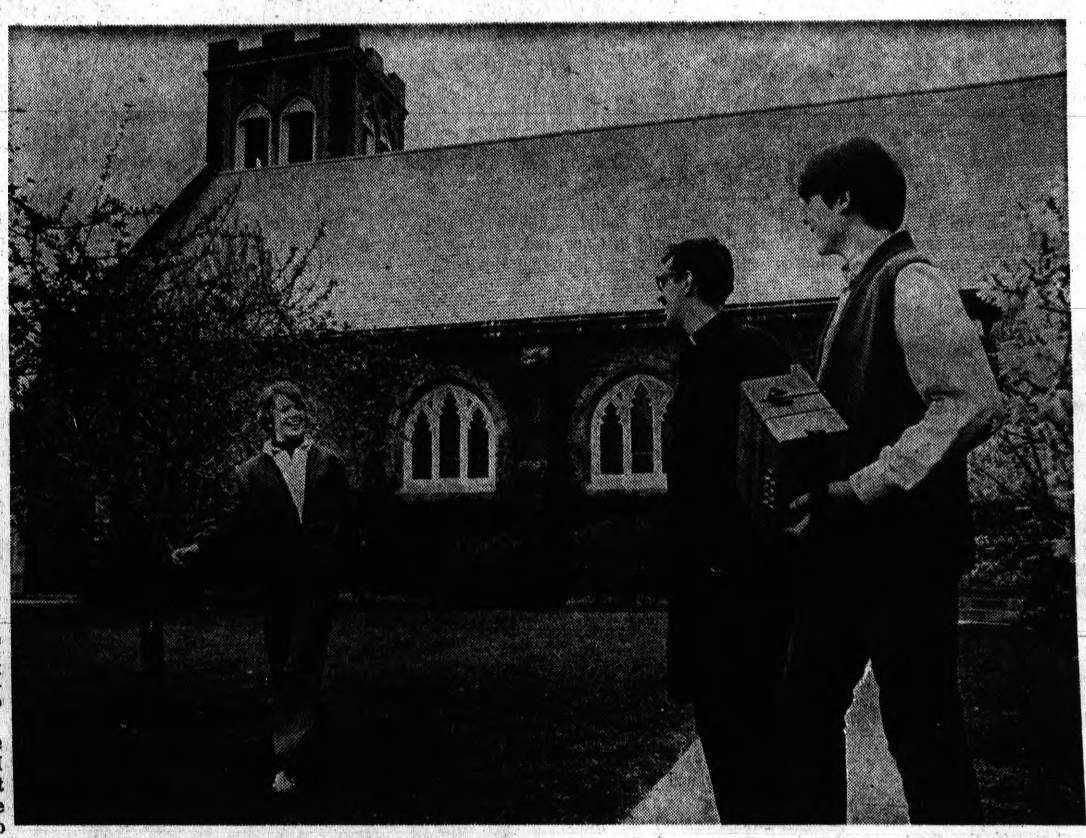

"It should be noted, if teaching had been done at first, it might have caused the young people to stumble over prejudged notions regarding the patients.

★ ★ ★

"As it is, knowing nothing, seems an advantage. The students have simply been open and I think they see things which the more knowledgeable tend to miss."

RECEIVE AWARD — Young people of First Social Brethren Church were awarded first place in the Youth Contest held in Gary, Ind. last week. Shown are Ann Carr of 54 Hudson with the trophy and Marshall Heatherly of 24 Jefferson holding the painting of the Lord's Supper on leather, a project of the church young people. Raymond Hull, teacher at Pontiac Northern High School, is youth leader.

Win First Place in Youth Contest

Last November young people of First Social Brethren Church, 316 Baldwin met to make plans for entering a youth contest of the denomination. They decided the project would be painting the Lord's Supper on leather.

★ ★ ★

Under the direction of Jim Judd three young people, Ann Carr, Gary Wiley and Marshall Heatherly, met each week and eventually completed the tracing and tooling.

The next step was to paint the drawing. With a rushed date the painting was completed the night before it was to be judged.

The three teen-agers journied to Gary, Ind., with high hopes of returning a winner and they did. First place was awarded the First Social Brethren Church youth.

COMPLETES COURSE — Robert Crichton Jr. of 2658 Genes, Pontiac Township (left), discusses studies and work accomplished to earn the Herald of Christ Award with his pastor, the Rev. Gordon Lindsay. Robert will receive the award during the 6:30 service tomorrow night in Five Points Community Church, 3411 E. Walton, Pontiac Township.

At Five Points

Earns Highest Achievement

Robert Crichton Jr. will receive the Herald of Christ Award at the 6:30 p.m. worship service tomorrow in Five Points Community Church, 3411 E. Walton, Pontiac Township.

★ ★ ★

Since the formation of Christian Brigade for Boys in 1937 only 311 boys in North America have followed through to earn the Herald of Christ Award, the highest achievement award.

REQUIRED

The Herald award requirements primarily test leadership development and maturity in Christian living. According to Pastor Gordon Lindsay, one Bible School president said he believed the work involved in earning this award was equivalent to one year in a Bible School.

★ ★ ★

Robert Crichton chose first to work in the program of Brigade technician for the achievement award. It was necessary to work in the basic sciences, a planned Bible reading, a doctrinal study of the Scriptures and the building of a motor.

He completed the work before the age of 16.

TOO YOUNG

Since he was too young to receive a Herald for Christ Award and not satisfied just to wait until the required age, Robert decided to work in another field of achievement, the field of airman.

★ ★ ★

As an airman he chose to draw a plan and scale of an airfield for a town of 20,000 population, indicating the proper hangar and terminal facilities.

★ ★ ★

He worked with aircraft design, and construction, Bible study and memory work.

Another requirement was a 2,000 word theme on "Christian Living and Witness."

★ ★ ★

The Rev. Mr. Lindsay said the Brigade points of valor are honor, courage, chivalry, purity, loyalty, obedience and dedication.

Mt. Olive Baptist Sponsors Tea, Show

A See and Taste Tea will be held in Mt. Olive Baptist Church, 458 Central, from 4 to 6 p.m. tomorrow.

★ ★ ★

Goria Passmore will narrate the fashion show presented by members of the church during the afternoon.

★ ★ ★

Chairman Mrs. Henry A. Carroll is assisted in planning by Mrs. Eugene Dorris and Mrs. Leola Green.

Missionaries in Conference

The Missionary Conference at Gingellville Baptist Church will open with a banquet at 6 p.m. today. Sessions will continue through Wednesday. All evening services are at 7 p.m.

The Rev. George Dee, missionary to Rhodesia, will be principal speaker and show a film, "Ivory Kingdom" tonight.

The Rev. and Mrs. Jerry Fawley who just returned yesterday from Nigeria with baby Denise will speak Sunday morning. He was a former missionary intern at the Gingellville Church.

The Rev. Gordon Donelson, assistant director of Missionary Internship in Farmington, will preach Monday evening.

★ ★ ★

The Rev. V. L. Martin, presently pastor of Sunnyvale Chapel and former missionary to The Netherlands Antilles, will speak and show slides Tuesday night.

Pastor Martin's son, the Rev. Tony Martin and wife on deputation plan to go to The Netherlands in September as missionaries.

Speaking Wednesday evening will be the Rev. Olin Hendrix, field secretary of Far Eastern Gospel Crusades.

★ ★ ★

Schedule Lectures

Why the battle for enduring peace in the world must be won individually will be discussed in a public Christian Science lecture in First Church of Christ, Scientist at 8 p.m. Friday.

Roy J. Linnig of Chicago, Ill., will be the speaker in the church, 164 W. Lawrence, with the subject, "Peace Is Individual." The lecture is open to the public.

★ ★ ★

Linnig was an executive with a national food supply company until a few years ago, when he resigned to devote all his time to the public ministry of Christian Science healing.

OXFORD

"Who Is Your Brother's Keeper" is the title of a Christian Science lecture to be presented by Neil H. Bowles C.B.S. at 8 p.m. Friday in First Church of Christ, Scientist, 715 Washington, Oxford.

Mr. Bowles withdrew from his business in 1942 to devote full time to the public practice of Christian Science healing.

Since becoming a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship in 1958, he has traveled widely in Europe as well as the United States and Canada.

He is presently a recognized teacher of Christian Science in his home town, Atlanta, Ga.

Opening lead—♥9

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

South looked over dummy and could count only eight tricks. It would require some sort of miracle to find a ninth but there were plenty of possibilities and South was not inclined to give up.

He let East hold the first trick with the jack of hearts to see what would happen. East shifted to a spade and South played low. For all he knew, East might have led away from the queen and returned the suit.

★ ★ ★

The best South could do was play some clubs and he led four rounds, winning the last one in dummy. East discarded two diamonds, a spade and a heart.

★ ★ ★

Now South led dummy's last heart. East put up the queen, which was allowed to hold the trick. Then he led his last spade. South won and cashed his last club. West discarded his jack of diamonds and East had to blank his king in order to hang on to two hearts.

★ ★ ★

At this point South led his singleton diamond. West, who had been playing along mechanically, played the five spot. East had to win with the king and lead a heart to give South the last two tricks with the ace and 10.

★ ★ ★

West made a very bad play when he failed to rise with his ace of diamonds and set declarer by cashing his last spade, but we have to give a lot of blame to East.

There is a well-known principle of bridge that when you give a player a chance to make a mistake, he may do so. East had two ways to save his partner.

★ ★ ★

The first by playing a diamond when he was in with the queen of hearts. The defense would promptly cash two diamond tricks to set the hand. The other was for East to discard his king of diamonds on that fifth club. In that case, West would surely have taken his ace.

What is your opening bid?

A—Bid one heart. Your hand is mighty good but not in the two-bid range.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner responds two diamonds. What do you do now?

Answer Monday

One Suit-Her, Others Didn't

BULANDSHAHR, India (AP) — Three suitors and their parents showed up simultaneously at a nearby village to claim the same undecided rich girl in marriage.

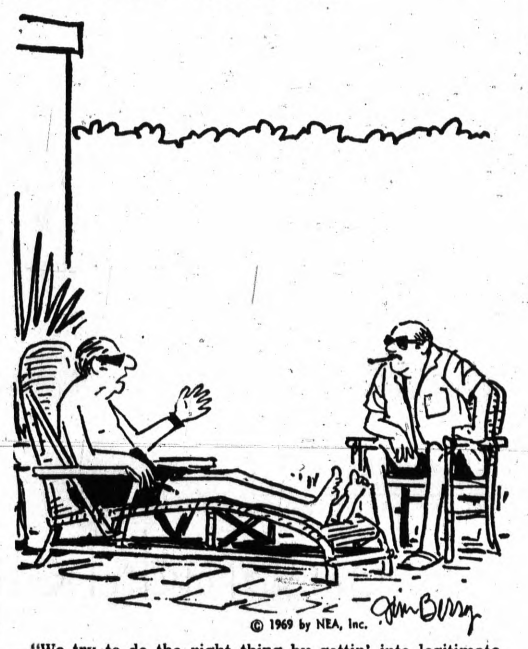

Things were tense until village elders decreed the girl should see each boy separately then make up her mind. She did, and the rejected youths with good grace stayed on to attend the wedding.

Summer Concert Season to Mark Sixth Annual Meadow Brook Festival

Despite the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's currect master union contract problems, the executive committee of the Meadow Brook Festival is going ahead with plans for opening the season July 3.

The Thursday night concert, featuring Emil Gilels, pianist, will mark the beginning of the sixth year that summer music has come to the Oakland University campus.

Sixten Ehrling will conduct the Detroit orchestra, relinquishing his baton to Henry Lewis on July 24-25, Roger Wagner, July 26-27 and Julius Rudel, Aug. 14-15.

A Festival first is an additional ninth week Aug. 28-31, during which the New York Philharmonic will give four performances under the direction of Karel Ancerl and Seiji Ozawa.

The American Ballet Theatre returns to the Baldwin Pavilion for six performances, Aug. 5 through 10.

In a season of many highlights the Festival's presentation July 26-27 of Verdi's great Requiem Mass is sure to stand out. Roger Wagner will conduct the Detroit Symphony and the Meadow Brook School of Music Chorus for the events.

Soloists will be Nancy Tatum, soprano, Nedda Casei, mezzo-soprano, John McCollum, tenor, and Thomas Paul, bass.

Soloists appearing with Sixten Ehrling include Emil Gilels, pianist, July 3-6; Itzhak Perlman, violinist, July 10-13; Myung-Wha-Chung, cellist, July 17-18; Maurizio Pollini, pianist, July 19-20; Vladimir Ashkenazy, pianist, July 31-Aug. 3; Geza Anda, pianist, Aug. 21-22; and Elisabeth Schwarzkopk, soprano, Aug. 23-24.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Operatonal costs for the program are in excess of $500,000 and made possible through the vision and imagination of the Festival's executive committee, this year headed by Ford Motor Company vice president Marvin L. Katke and his wife.

The committee offers season ticket holders a variety of series choices. Subscribers may choose Thursday, Fridays, or Saturdays at 8:30 p.m., or Sundays at 6:30 p.m.

A complete season of nine weeks is available as is a split series of the first or second four weeks with the ninth week, featuring the New York Philharmonic, offered as an option if available.

John Fernald Company to Offer Shaw's Famed 'Saint Joan'

George Bernard Shaw's Saint Joan, the last production of the Meadow Brook Theatre's 1968-'69 season, will open a five week run at Oakland University on Thursday, May 22 at 8:15 p.m.

Saint Joan was first produced by the Theatre Guild in New York on December 28, 1923, three months before it opened in London. It was an instant success with the public and has remained one of the most popular of Shaw's plays.

Written at the height of Shaw's long career, the work illustrates all of his characteristics as a dramatist and theatrical genius.

FRENCH HEROINE

Shaw uses the story of the martyred French peasant girl who rode at the head of an army to drive the English from her country to comment on the way in which the forces of Church and State can combine to defeat truth and goodness in mankind. The play offers deeply passionate, serious drama, richly spiced with Shaw's unique and incomparable sense of humor.

John Fernald will direct this final production of the season which will run through June 22. Shakespeare's Troilus and Cressida, currently playing at the Meadow Brook Theatre, will continue through Sunday, May 18.

She Complains New Neighbors Are Unfriendly

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: Newcomers complain quite a lot about the unfriendly people here. It would be difficult for me to count the number of times I have entertained newcomers, but they very seldom return my hospitality.

My friends have had such experiences also. We have made up our minds that we will call on a newcomer once and if they don't return this first call or be friendly in some manner, we will forget they exist. — "Fed-Up"

★ ★ ★

Dear "Fed-Up": I have written time and again about older residents being friendly to newcomers. Your letter reminds me that I have rarely mentioned the newcomers' obligations. They should very shortly repay the kindnesses by an invitation to their home.

It is unthinkable that any person moving into a new area should not show gratitude for such friendliness by adhering to a simple rule of etiquette — that whenever possible one repays an invitation as soon as he can.

But one note — don't limit your efforts to one call on newcomers. Try two or three times, because people can be terribly shy about being "pushy" in a strange community.

Unexpected Dinner Guests Becoming Sunday Habit

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Every Sunday our mother serves dinner between 12:30 and 1:00. Recently, certain relatives have been coming to visit us at exactly that time. Before we know it, they have their coats off and they stand there. Naturally, Mom asks them to stay for dinner. They have six in their family and we have seven in ours. What kills us is that they know perfectly well that we have our Sunday dinner around that time.

Abby, we are writing this for our Mom because she is such a sweet, kind-hearted person she wouldn't say anything to hurt their feelings, but feeding SIX extra people every Sunday is getting too much for her. Can you give us a solution? MOM'S KIDS

DEAR KIDS: Sitting down at a table for 13 every Sunday, especially when preparations have been made for only seven, can be pretty unlucky for the hostess. But if she's too timid to speak up, there's nothing you can do. (P. S. After a while these "unexpected guests become expected.)

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: Why are so many educated, well-bred people so sloppy about R. S. V. P. invitations?

Several of my friends have gotten married recently, and beautiful engraved "R. S. V. P." invitations were sent, and the number of responses they received was pathetic!

One of the girls had 296 acceptances, and over 400 guests showed up! (She assumed that those who didn't respond were not coming.)

Another friend of mine had to make over 100 telephone calls to find out who were planning to attend.

I simply cannot understand why people will not take a few minutes to write a short note or make a telephone call. Please print this. I have a feeling I am not alone. APPALLED

DEAR APPALLED: You are not alone. Those who ignore R. S. V. P. invitations are lazy, disorganized, thoughtless, or careless.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: Someone gave me this little piece, which I think is just about the most beautiful thing I have ever read. She said you wrote it. Did you? "FLYING FOR WESTERN"

DEAR FLYING: No. But I wish I had. I shall publish it with the hope that if anyone in my reading audience knows the author he will share it with me.

"Woman was created from the rib of man.

She was not made from his head to top him.

Nor out of his feet to be trampled upon.

But out of his side, to be equal to him,

Under his arm, to be protected,

And near his heart, to be loved."

Carillonneaur and professor of Campanology at the University of Michigan, Percival Price, is scheduled for Aug. 17 with Fred Fahrner, music director of Christ Church Dearborn, presenting the final recital on Oct. 5.

All performances are at 4 p.m. except for Mrs. Buchanan's first recital on June 1 at 3 p.m.

The public may attend the recitals while sitting in their cars or on the church lawn.

72-Year-Old Takes Third Wife

KOTA BELUD, Malaysia (AP) — The groom was twice as old as the bride's father. His 14-year-old wife cost him 10 buffaloes, seven multi-colored rugs and $66.

Haji Alik Bin Sapi, 72, a farmer and shopkeeper, married 14-year-old Kungam Binte Sakil in a Moslem ceremony Thursday. The event was billed as Sabah's "wedding of the year."

It was the third marriage for Alik, a widower. A daughter from his first wife is 37, and a daughter from his second marriage is now a married woman of 32.

The new groom commented today: "I have got someone to look after me until the end of my days. I expect to live for another 20 years yet."

Design Grads Follow Fashion Trend

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A peek into fashion's future indicates the well-dressed woman of 1979 may not look very different from her style-conscious sister of today.

The Parsons School of Design offered that peek Wednesday when it presented its annual fashion show of clothes created by its graduating students.

The would-be Norman Norells and Chester Weinbergs generally chose conservative shapes and styles.

Skirts were extremely short or down-to-the-floor, no midis or maxis. Shapes were fitted through the bust and waist with free-flowing skirts.

SEE-THROUGH NIXED

The youngsters also scorned the see-through look, although they bared much of the body with cut-outs and halter tops. Simply jersey dresses, with a bib in front and lacing in back were offered in black, burgundy and navy for both day and evening wear by several students.

There were fewer pants than one might have expected from students of the trouser revolution. When slacks were presented, they always formed part of an ensemble, topped by tunics, sleeveless vests or tweed suit jackets.

★ ★ ★

One unusual costume included a black and white tweed wool dress worn over white linen shorts which peeped out for about an inch under the hem of the skirt.

Several students made interesting use of fabrics, combining panels of tweeds and jersey, suede and shiny leather or wool and satin.

FAVORITES

Among the hits of the show was a simple evening shirtwaist with short skirt. The front of the dress was made of layers of white organdy, the back of black velvet.

The dress was designed by Joel Kruger, 20, of Silver Spring, Md., who won the Norman Norell "Gold Thimble" award for his styles.

Other students who received Gold Thimbles from noted American designers were Betsy Gonzalez of New York City who won the Chester Weinberg and Donald Brooks awards; Jann Johnson of Sacramento, Calif., who won the David Kidd award; Louis Dell'Olio of Elmont, N.Y., who won the Ilie Wacs award; and Linda Fox of New York City, who won the Leo Narducci award.

★ ★ ★

Bill Robinson of Clark, N.J., won the John Moore Gold Thimble for outstanding resort wear, the J. C. Penney Student Designer-of-the-Year award and the Penney coat award.

OCC Student Art Show Slated at Pontiac Mall

Monday will mark the opening of a week-long showing of some 60 Oakland Community College students at The Pontiac Mall.

Among works collected from students at OCC's three campuses will be paintings, drawings, prints, sculptures, ceramics, graphics, commercial art and three-dimensional designs.

Many of the pieces to be exhibited in the south Mall area will be on sale. The show closes Saturday evening.

Mikel Ida Beeman and Peter Hunt Seaton spoke vows Friday. Their parents are the Wentworth E. Beemans of Royal Oak and Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Seaton of Orchard Lake.

Attired in a day length dress of medallion lace over satin, with long sleeves and high round neckline, Mikel Ida Beeman was escorted to the altar of Our Lady of Refuge Catholic Church Friday evening where she spoke vows with Peter Hunt Seaton.

Mrs. Darylynn Ango was matron of honor for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth E. Beeman of Royal Oak, formerly of Birmingham.

John M. Seaton was best man for his brother. They are the sons of the Louis G. Seatons of Orchard Lake.

A reception in Orchard Lake Country Club preceded the couple's departure for a honeymoon in Florida. They will reside in Detroit.

Family Has Own Language for Hunger

By BETTY CANARY
NEA Writer

Throughout the years there are periodic attempts to come up with a universal language and I think the idea is a good one. The language barrier is real enough between the English-speaking peoples. Even within a country (including the United States) the different dialects can lead to misunderstanding or no understanding.

I was thinking about this yesterday while reading an article about malnutrition and actual starvation in this country. I was interrupted by my youngest daughter who came sailing into the room to announce. "I'm hungry." I decided at the time to make a one-day list of expressions that might be misunderstood or incomprehensible to other children.

The list got out of hand so I don't have a complete record for the day. However, we had several shouts of "I'm starved, and we had an "I'm dying," besides my eldest's usual histrionics of clutching his throat and lurching about as he cried "Food, give me FOOD!"

"What's for a snack?" was asked three times while "The peanut butter is GONE," and "Somebody ate ALL the cookies!" were said twice.

Dinner table conversation, liberally sprinkled with my hisses of "Stop that!" included, "I hate ham," and "Isn't there anything except peas and carrots?" and "Oh, are we having vanilla ice cream AGAIN?"

I find such remarks irksome at any time and I realize this is because my parents always insisted I eat everything on my plate. I was supposed to chew 15 times and say nothing. (Actually, things got so bad that I believed if I didn't eat all my mashed potatoes, somebody dropped dead in Poland.)

Because of what I considered my parents' misguided zeal, and also because I believe a heaped-up plate leads to over weight and too much emphasis on food can laed to emotional problems, I have not followed their example.

We practice, "Just taste it so you'll learn to like it." I have also tried teaching them to say, "No, thank you," instead of "I hate ham," but nobody's perfect.

Although I didn't get a complete list, the children's remarks and mine seemed to come up with one definition for food around here and that definition is "plenty." This, I am sure, is a word which would never come to mind when some children hear "dinner" or "hungry" or "food."

I have tried to explain the differences to my children. They have seen pictures of starving children in this country and I have explained that the bloated bellies mean starvation and not fat. We went without a meal one day, although this experiment produced not one real hunger pang.

Adhesive Fringe Is Custom Touch in Home Decor

Joanna's Self-Adhesive, looped and tasseled fringes are good news for the do-it-yourself crowd. These press-on fringes are a fast, long-lasting way to give a custom look to a ready-made window treatment. Applied in single or multiple rows to custom or to less expensive stock shades (ready-mades cut to size on the spot) the fringe produces an instant decorative effect.

Additional fringe may be added around the window frame, to curtains, valances and cornices; and to lamp shades. Its uses as a pick-up accent are unlimited. The fringe adds sparkle wherever it goes — and it stays put.

Tunic Stylish

Long, sleeveless tunics over lightweight slacks are a spring and summer fashion must. The outfits can go for daytime or evening wear, depending on the fabric.

Bicycling Pair Cross Continent

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — After a journey of nearly six months on a bicycle built for two, Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy completed their 4,000-mile trip here from New York City.

Mrs. Kennedy, who suffers from a serious asthma condition, had been advised by her doctor to leave New York. "We couldn't afford the trip by airplane," explained Kennedy. "So we decided to make the trip by bike."

They traveled 10 hours a day, camping out at night in state and national parks.

Guest Day Noted

Guest day of the Pontiac Woman's Literary Club, Monday, will be observed with a 12:30 p.m. luncheon in the Wenonah Drive home of Irene Dawson.

Mrs. Arthur Dewey of Rochester will review the book, "Christy," by Catherine Marshall.

Reservations are requested for the luncheon.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

You do not have to lose your figure because you have a baby! You do not have to become overweight, or thicken through the middle permanently. You do not have to acquire a sagging bustline. Most of these are unnecessary if you will adopt a few preventive measures.

★ ★ ★

As I urged yesterday do not add fatty deposits to your figure during pregnancy. Also be sure to wear brassieres which are designed to give added support to the increasing weight of your bust. This is essential for the preservation of your bustline. It also makes you more comfortable. Maternity girdles are a matter of choice unless there is some unusual condition. Some women like them and some don't.

★ ★ ★

During these important nine months, good posture is even more essential than usual. It will add to your comfort and protect your figure. The tendency is to develop a swayback stance to compensate for the increased weight in front. This is the worst thing you can do because it throws your pelvis off balance, causing it to slant forward and downward.

EXTRA STRAIN

This places an extra strain on the abdominal muscles and often causes backache. Do not let your hips sway out back behind you. Try to tuck them under. Your knees must be relaxed (not bent) in order to do this. Check yourself many times a day. If you hold your pelvis correctly, the bones will support the baby as they should.

Here are a few more hints to make you comfortable and keep you pretty.

Do not miss your daily walk. Take short rest periods scattered through the day. Elevate your feet while resting. The seat of a chair will do when sitting. Place your feet on the foot of the bed or on pillows when lying down.

Be sure to have a bathmat for your tub and also a non-slip bath rug by the tub to minimize the danger of a fall. Buy a longhandled bath brush. You will find this and spray-on lotions and powders helpful when bending becomes difficult.

NO HIGH HEELS

Do not wear high heels. They place a strain on ligaments and muscles which are already under stress. They make good posture almost impossible. Wear low or medium heels. This makes a fall less likely, too.

Pay no attention to the notion that you cannot get a good permanent while pregnant. Experts tell me that this is not true. Get one if you need it. In fact pay special attention to your grooming, your hairdo and makeup, during this time. Women may have a tendency to become careless because they tire more easily than usual and their figure dampens their interest in clothes.

★ ★ ★

Look your prettiest when you are loved best. It will lift your own morale and make your husband happy.

LEADS AT NEW ORLEANS — Frank Bears of Louisville, Ky., hits from a sand trap on the second hole of the New Orleans Open and still ended up with a birdie. Beard fired a second round of 67 to lead the tournament with a 134 total.

Second Round 67 Gives Beard Lead

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Steady Frank Beard reeled off a second consecutive five-under par 67 Friday, fought off a host of challengers, and assumed the second round lead in the $100,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament with a 36-hole score of 134.

★ ★ ★

Beard, from Louisville, Ky., was 10-under par for the trips over the 7,090-yard, 36-36-72 Lakewood Country Club course but was far from secure as the field again launched a massive assault against par.

In fact, it took a score of 143 — one under par — to make the cut for the final two rounds, with 78 getting under the wire.

★ ★ ★

Tied for second at 135 were Dave Hill, who had a 68, and young Jack Harden Jr., who had a 67.

Harden, who has won only $100 on the tour this season and had to qualify for this event, lost a share of the lead when he bogied the last hole.

★ ★ ★

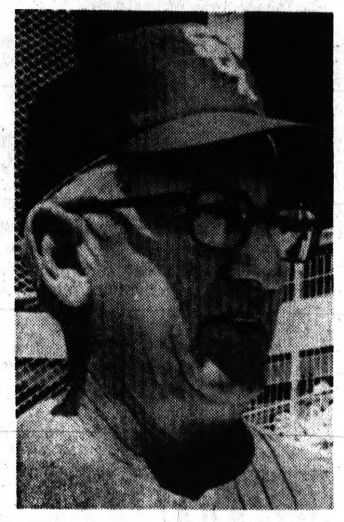

Two strokes off the pace at 136 were Johnny Pott and young John Jacobs, a Vietnam veteran. Each had a second round 68.

★ ★ ★

New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles matched the course record with a 64, eight under par, giving him a 137 and a tie at that figure with Joel Goldstrand, 67; Jack McGowan, 66; Herb Hooper, 70; Larry Hinson, 68; Johnny Stevens, 69, and Kermit Zarley, who shared the first round lead but went to a 71.

MOVES UP — Long-time major league coach Don Gutteridge (lower photo) occupies the manager's chair today following Chicago White Sox manager (top) Al Lopez's resignation last night due to health reasons. The veteran White Sox aide will guide the club through 1970 at least.

Yastrzemski's Slugging Ruins Radatz's Effort

BOSTON (AP—Manager Mayo Smith has a new battle cry for his faltering Detroit batters—"Let's dump the slump."

And they can take a lesson from Carl Yastrzemski, who blasted himself out of the hitting doldrums Friday night with two homers and a double that scored all of Boston's runs in a 3-2 win over Detroit.

★ ★ ★

Yastrzemski — the American League's batting champ for the last two season—had entered the game with a meager .202 hitting average and only 11 runs batted in.

"I don't know what happened to me," he said. "I had a great spring and felt stronger than ever. Then I guess I started pressing at the start of the regular season and the next thing you knew I was in a slump.

NEEDS PROOF

"I still hope I'm out of it now. I still hope to put together about three straight good days to prove it to myself," he said.

A dismal Mayo Smith—haunted by the memories of hitting rampages by World Champion Tigers last season—said "We're still not hitting a lick. It isn't just one or two guys. It's all of them.

"We're long overdue to bust out. Maybe when one guy does, everyone will follow. Our pitching has been surprisingly good," he said.

★ ★ ★

The teams collide again at Boston today with Mickey Lolich (2-1) who has wound up two weeks of Air National Guard camp— on the mound for Detroit. Rookie Fay Jarvis (1-1) will start for Boston.

WILSON INJURED

Detroit is 4½ games behind Baltimore in the American League's Eastern Division and one behind Boston.

Detroit pitcher Earl Wilson was forced to leave the game after the second inning. In the top half, the righthander pulled a thigh muscle wile running the bases.

And, said an unhappy Wilson, his pitches were "the best stuff I've had all year too."

Smith said Wilson's muscle pull "is up high. It doesn't appear too serious, but we'll have to wait and see."

The Red Sox jumped to a 1-0 lead as Yastrzemksi belted a homer into the center field bleachers with two out in the first inning.

Bill Freehan put the Tigers ahead in the second with a two run homer. Yastrzemski then tied in in the sixth with his runscoring double.

Yaz broke up a pitching duel between Sonny Siebert and Detroit and reliever Dick Radatz with a long shot over the Detroit bullpen into the bleachers in right with two out in the eighth inning.

The Tigers tried to rally with two out in the ninth when Freehan doubled. However, Sparky Lyle relieved Siebert and preserved the victory. It was Siebert's first win since Boston acquired him in the deal that sen Ken Harrelson to Cleveland.

Green Ousted in North-South Golf Tourney

(Special to The Press)

PINEHURST, N.C. — Pete Green, 28 year old amateur from Orchard Lake Country Club, was just 19 years old when he reached the semifinals of the North-South Amatuer golf championship in 1960.

Yesterday it was 21 year old Wake Forest senior Joe Inman who eliminated Green from the tournament in the semifinal round, 4-3.

In the other semifinal round, Lanny Wadkins, a 19 year old freshman at Wake Forest eliminated Bob Lowry, 38 year old insurance salesman from Huntsville, Ala., 2 and 21.

Last year it was another Wake Forest student Jack Lewis of Florida who won the tournament, but he was a first round loser this year.

★ ★ ★

Green was unable to recover after some tough luck on the front nine, especially at the 5th hole where his fairway shot landed behind a tree.

His swing was limited and he was forced to hit out into the fairway, taking a double bogey-6 and losing the hole.

Inman and Wadkins had all night to talk about their 36 hole finale today. They are roommates here, Wadkins holding the title of Southern Amateur champion and Inman, the Carolinas Open Champion.

LOSES AT PINEHURST — Pete Green of Orchard Lake ended up with a double bogey-6 after hitting behind this tree on the 5th fairway in the North-South Amateur Golf Championship at Pinehurst, N.C. Green lost in the semifinal round yesterday to Joe Inman a 21 year old Wake Forest senior, 4 and 3.

Lopez's Stomach Can't Digest White Sox Losses

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Al Lopez, one of baseball's most successful managers, resigned Friday from the helm of the Chicago White Sox because of a pro-longed stomach ache.

The surprise announcement was made during an off day prior to the opening of a two game series with Minnesota and Don Gutteridge, a long time Lopez lieutenant, was named his successor through the 1970 season.

★ ★ ★

Lopez, who led the Cleveland Indians to the American League pennant in 1954 and repeated with the White Sox in 1959, first retired as Sox manager after the 1965 season and was replaced by Eddie Stanky.

Stanky led the club to a pair of fourth place finishes and barely missed winning the 1967 pennant only to have the club go into total collapse last season after opening the campaign with a 10-game losing streak.

Stanky was fired and Lopez resumed the managerial reins July 14. He quickly brought back most of his coaching staff, including Gutteridge.

FINISHED EIGHTH

Shortly after his return, however, Lopez underwent an appendectomy and was sidelined most of what remained of the 1968 season as the White Sox struggled to finish eighth in the 10-team league.

Lopez and the Sox had high hopes for the 1969 campaign but the end for the 60-year-old Lopez came as the Sox faltered with an 8-9 record and lost their last two games to Kansas City, an expansion team.

★ ★ ★

In announcing his resignation, Lopez said he has been troubled with stomach pains since last November when he suffered a spasm.

"I've been on pills since then and I've got to get off of them," said Lopez. "I've tried to stick things out but the condition isn't getting any better."

TROUBLE SLEEPING

"My stomach has been giving me a fit. I've had a history of a bad stomach and this is one reason I quit before. "I had a rough Thursday night following our 5-4 12 inning loss at Kansas City. I didn't sleep hardly at all. I decided to give it up Friday morning and called (general manager) Ed Short to tell him about my decision," he added.

Guttridge has had no major league managerial experience, although he managed in the minor leagues with St. Louis and Pittsburgh in the National League and St. Louis and Boston in the American League.

Gutteridge, 56, coached for the Sox from 1955 to 1966. He left the Sox during Stanky's regime to scout for the Kansas City A's and returned as a White Sox coach two days after Lopez returned as manager.

'Crusader' Brown Lets Pete Rozelle Try Persuasion

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football's 26 club owners were on their way home today after another session of realignment meetings that proved inconclusive but at which there was enough significant movement to satisfy even Paul (The Crusader) Brown, of the Cincinnati Bengals.

Brown, the most outspoken of the American Football League's owners on the subject of realignment, left the arena in favor of Pete (The Persuader) Rozelle.

★ ★ ★

Brown with the only trophy he insisted on — a decision favoring a 13-13 restructuring of the 16-team National Football League and 10-team AFL—and turned the problem of implementing that to the commissioner of both leagues.

Rozelle thus becomes the focal point for the complex problem that has evolved, finding three NFL teams to move to the AFL, by anyone of the many methods at his disposal: Talking. Talking more. And talking still more.

"We came here committed to get a 13-13 arrangement," Brown pointed out. "That's reasonably settled. Now we're just sitting tight to see what their (NFL) program is, give our opinion and then cast our vote. The 13-13 was our big oband we certainly should give him the time he needs to accomplish it. I know his aims are the same as the Bengals. Pete is trying real hard to bring it all off and in the final analysis I have every confidence it will be consummated."

"Pete Rozelle has a very difficult job jective.

Big Four at Post in Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Big Four and a quartet of questionable challengers went to the post today in the 95th running of the most famous race in the world—the Kentucky Derby.

★ ★ ★

Favored in the betting the day before the race was Majestic Prince, the pride of the West Coast who became part of Frank McMahon's stable when his trainer paid $250,000 for him two years ago.

With $183,756 already in the Derby till—before the betting windows opened this morning, Majestic Prince was listed at 8-5 with Florida Derby winner Top Knight second choice at 5-2.

★ ★ ★

The early bird betters made Claiborne Farm's Dike third in the betting at 7-2 and Arts and Letters, Paul Mellon's Blue Grass Stakes winner, next at 4l.

Other in the field included Ocean Roar, 21-1; Traffic Mark, 30-1; Fleet Allied, 4-1, and Rae Jet, 60-1.

Chiefs Tie for Mott Crown

Last Jones' Mark Threatened

Rolly Garcia is threatening the last remaining record former Pontiac Central star Hayes Jones has on the books.

Garcia figured in three first places yesterday — including a long jump of 23 feet six inches — as Central tied Flint Northern for first place in the Mott Relays at Flint Northwestern.

Both schools scored 46 points and PCH won the toss for the trophy.

In other meets, Imlay City downed Lapeer, 62-56, and Chippewa Valley defeated Avondale, 69-40.

Jones' school and state hurdle marks have been eclipsed since he graduated from Central in 1956, but the 23.8's long jump remains as PCH and state records. He also has the Saginaw Valley mark of 23-3, but Garcia probably will wipe that out in this year's SVC meet.

Given the right conditions, Garcia could change the school and state listing, too.

WINNING DISTANCE

Horace Davis, who would be the county's best long jumper if it wasn't for his teammate, celared 22-3¾ in the relays to give PCH a combined winning distance of 45-9¾.

Campy Russell and Roger Butler both topped six feet in the high jump for first place with a height of 12 feet. Butler cleared 13 feet in the pole vault and Bob Malone went 12 for a second place combined 25 feet.

Larry Moses (50.3) and Ken Long (50.1) ran 440 legs and Garcia (22.5) and Leonard Smith (22.6) sprinted the 220s as PCH won the medley relay in 2:26.5.

Garcia, Davis, Jerry Cato and Cary Wiley took the shuttle hurdles in 57.7. Moses, Long, Daryl Wilcox and Gerald Williams went 3:25.1 in the mile relay for second.

The distance medley and 440 relay teams were both fifth.

NO POLE VAULT

Chippewa Valley outdistanced winless Avondale, 69-40, in their dual meet. The Yellow Jackets managed firsts in only three of the 13 events. There was no pole vault competition.

Thursday, Birmingham Groves won nine events in topping Northwest Suburban rival Livonia Franklin, 65-53, while Utica Stevenson limited Kettering's winless Captains to five firsts and claimed a 75-44 triumph.

Greg Wood ran a :10.2 winning race in the 100 and took the 220 in :23.7. Bill McClarnon doubled in the hurdles at :15.9 (highs) and :20.5 (lows).

Both ran legs on the Falcons' 880 relay unit which was caught in 1:33. Speedster Dave Anderson anchored both relays, helping them to a 3:27.5 mile relay victory.

Kettering's Kevin Reabe flashed to a :49.8 win in the 440-yard dash, and the Captains (0-6) also took the pole vault, mile relay, 880-yard run and mile run.

Mark Dodge won both hurdles and Ron Harson captured the 100 and 220 (22.6) as Imlay defeated Lapeer. Bob Johnson set a Lapeer school record by vaulting 12-6.

In the Central Michigan Relays yesterday, Shepherd won the Class C title and Unionville captured the "D" crown. Classes A and B are participating today.

Almont's two-mile relay team of Boomer, Smith, Frank and John Bachalzky won in Class D in 8:53.6. Jon Van Wagner of Novi was second in the "C" high jump and Novi was third in the middle distance relay.

INTER-LAKES LEAGUE

Stevenson	4	0	Farmington	1	3
Waterford	3	1	Walled Lake	1	3
Northern	3	1	Lathrup	0	4

Livonia Stevenson enjoys sole possession of first place in the Inter-Lakes Conference baseball race after whipping Farmington yesterday, 12-2.

Pontiac Northern and Waterford each have a 3-1 record as result of the Huskies' 4-3 triumph over the Skippers in another game while Walled Lake Central was scoring three times in the top of the 7th to defeat Southfield Lathrup, 5-2.

Waterford scored twice in the top of the third when Frank Ballard homered and Jim Smith tripled and scored on an error.

A walk to Rob Clancy, a stolen base and single by Larry Heltsley produced one PNH run, Larry Crivea homered for another and Paul Redman's rbi double in the bottom of the 6th produced the winning tally.

★ ★ ★

Rick Hortsman with two hits, including a homer and 3 rbi's led Stevenson. Vick Forrester also had two hits and Tony Himmelspach homered in the game which saw Farmington commit six errors to give up five unearned runs.

A two-run double by Billy Welsh broke up a 2-2 tie for Walled Lake, he then stole third and stole home for the three runs.

ORIOLE OUT STEALING — Baltimore's Brooks Robinson (right) is a mite short of the plate as New York Yankee receiver Frank Fernandez moves out to meet him with the ball firmly in his bare hand. The play occured in the eighth inning of last night's 5-1 Orioles' win at Yankee Stadium. Pitcher Mike Cuellar, who was the batter at the time, watches Fernandez retire Robinson.

Kansas City Sweeps Two From Angels

By the Associated Press

Dick Bosman is taking big strides toward forgetting his past as one of the American League's worst pitchers.

Bosman is trying to erase the memory of last season's dismal 2-9 record with a 3.69 run average with Washington. He is well on his way, if Friday night was any indication.

★ ★ ★

The 25-year-old right-hander in only his second full major league season, hurled a one-hitter as the surprising Senators whipped Cleveland 5-0, raising his record to 3-1 and lowering his ERA to 2.10.

The only hit off Bosman was a broken bat single by Tony Horton just over the outstretched glove of shortstop Ed Brinkman in the second inning.

In other games, Mike Cuellar pitched Baltimore by the New York Yankees 5-1, and Kansas City took a doubleheader from California 9-4 and 3-2.

Not scheduled were Minnesota and the Chicago White Sox, whose manager, Al Lopez, quit during the day because of ill health.

FANNED SEVEN

Bosman, who only allowed three other base runners on walks, struck out seven in saddling Luis Tiant, a 21-game winner last year, with his fifth defeat without a victory. Bosman also singled in two runs in the fourth inning to make it 3-0 as the surprising Senators retained second place in the East Division.

The Senators, at 14-11, are off to the best start of any Washington team since the 1952 club was 14-10.

★ ★ ★

Cuellar, 3-2, followed his 6-0 shutout over the Yankees last Sunday with a four-hitter, allowing only an unearned run in the sixth inning.

The Orioles, winning for the 16th time in 22 games while New York dropped its fourth straight, beat Fritz Peterson, 3-3, with three runs in the fourth. Boog Powell's looping double drove in two runs and he scored on a sacrifice fly by Dave Johnson.

Danny Cater, who singled in a run in a four-run first inning, broke a 6-6 sixth inning deadlock for Oakland with a two-run, bases-loaded single off former teammate Jack Aker, 0-2.

RELIEF HELP

But the A's needed reliever Paul Lindblad, 1-0, to preserve the victory. He entered after Rich Rollins doubled home Seattle's final run in the seventh and got the last out in that inning, and then retired three straight hitters in the ninth after Tommie Harper had opened with a triple.

Paul Schaal broke a 2-2 tie with a run-scoring hit in the fourth inning and Bob Oliver followed with a three-run homer to give Kansas City its first game victory behind rookie Steve Jones, 2-1.

Oliver then ended a 1-1 deadlock in the fourth inning of the nightcap with a single and Schaal followed with a decisive run-scoring hit in the three-run inning.

Dick Drago, 1-0, pitched a five-hitter, outdueling Andy Messersmith, 0-2, who gave only three hits—all in the fourth—in eight innings.

Phillies' Star Misses Plane

By the Associated Press
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rico Carty marked his return by flying out, but Richie Allen stayed away after missing two chances to fly.

Carty, who missed all last season because of tuberculosis, played for the first time this year Friday night and helped Atlanta to a 7-4 victory over Los Angeles with a sacrifice fly.

★ ★ ★

Philadelphia, on the other hand, defeated St. Louis 7-2 despite the absence of Allen, who remained in Philadelphia after missing two planes.

In other National League games San Diego stopped Cincinnati 8-5, Houston trimmed San Francisco 3-1, and Pittsburgh downed Montreal 7-3.

Carty, whose return to the lineup had been delayed by a dislocated shoulder, came to the plate as a pinch hitter in the sixth inning with the bases loaded. His fly ball drove in Clete Boyer with the run that tied the game 4-4.

"I was nervous when all those fans stood and applauded," the 28-year-old Brave said. "But after I swung the first time I felt great. I knew I had to do something, and it turned out okay. It's wonderful to be back. I just wish I could play regular."

NOT AT PARK

Allen is supposed to be a regular—he's hitting .346 with three homers and 10 runs batted in—but there are times he's absent from the lineup because he's not at the park.

He wasn't there Friday night because, his wife explained to the Phillies by telephone, he missed his planes. The first was the team plane that left Philadelphia at 8 a.m. Mrs. Allen said he missed that one because he was delayed by heavy traffic.

★ ★ ★

She said her husband would take the 4 p.m. flight. But 2½ hours after 4 p.m., Mrs. Allen called again to say Richie had missed that flight, too. She explained that he was going from airline counter to airline counter and missed the plane in between.

Fortunately for the Phillies, Larry Hisle made the plane and had a very prominent place in the lineup. The rookie outfielder collected four hits, drove in two runs and scored two.

After Carty's sacrifice fly tied the game for Atlanta, Orlando Cepeda put the Braves ahead to stay with a two-run double in the seventh. Hank Aaron homered for Atlanta while Willie Crawford and Tom Haller connected for the Dodgers.

Al Ferrara, a former Dodger, blasted San Diego past Cincinnati, rapping a pinch-hit, grand slam home run in the fourth. All four runs were unearned, the result of an error by Tony Perez.

★ ★ ★

Jim Wynn drove in all three Houston runs against San Francisco's Gaylord Perry with two homers, and Pittsburgh downed Montreal with the help of the wildness of the Expos' pitchers.

★ ★ ★

Larry Jaster helped the Pirates start a four-run outburst in the fifth inning by throwing wild on a bunt, and two of the runs came across on wild pitches by Dan McGinn and Carroll Sembera.

Seek Women for Softball in Rec Play

The Pontiac Parks and Recreation Department's slowpitch softball program has been so well accepted that program director Dick Cain is now looking for women players.

Now entering its fourth season, the men's leagues are expecting to have at least 20 teams.

★ ★ ★

Cain reports two women's teams have already expressed interest in playing this summer. If two more are found, a lague will be organized to play week nights around 6:30 p.m.

All groups or individuals interested in playing, managing or sponsoring a team should contact him at the recreation office in City Hall.

★ ★ ★

The final men's slowpitch managers' meeting will be 7 p.m. Wednesday at the eprsonnel office conference room. Entry fees must be paid by then and all teams should be represented.

Playing rules, scheduling and league allignments will be discussed.

Early Deficit Hurts

BOWLING

One final spree highlighted the conclusion of the Huron Bowl Classic League last Friday — the 80-man circuit compiled a 198.6 average on the final night although no one topped the 700 mark.

Joe Foster rolled a 696, Bob Garrett had a 604, so did Neil Ricketts, Bob Lawson hit 687, Ed Gibbs 686, Joe Prey 677, Gary Greene 672 and Jerry Perna 668.

Ed Jostock, who led the league with five 700's during the year, lost the high average honors when he couldn't keep pace with Gibbs on the final outing. Gibbs finished just over the 209 mark while Jostock slipped just under it with his last low 600.

Team champion Herks Auto Supply was blanked and finished with a four-point edge on Hartford Roofing who was three points up on Autobahn Motors.

MASTER OF MASTERS

Sportsman's Bar, the second-half winners of the Wonderland Lanes Masters League, this week claimed the over-all title by spilling first-half champion Conklin - Palmer, 3230-2757 in the rolloff.

Jack Henkel's 706 and Jim Goodale's 674 led the showdown effort, which included 1081-1094 back-to-back games.

The North Hill Lanes Classic still has one week to go, and then there'll be a rolloff for that title. Last week Rick McCotter had a sizzling 222-248—690 for Young's Men's Wear as it swept four points. Fran Bertram hit 2302-31—639 for City Glass, and Dick Duvall 228—617 for Rochester Glass.

Jack Richards' 216-246—662 stood out in the 300 Bowl Classic. Paul Sweell rolled a 233 and Bob Garrett a 232. Hal Mather hit a 235.

AIRWAY SCORES

Other closing big scores recently were Dick Wagner's 236 and Bob Field's 235 in the Airway Lanes Four Towns Methodist Church League loop, a 219 by Marilyn Johnson in the Airway First Women's League which was won by Boucard's Greenhouse, and a 223 by Irma Steed in the Airway Bowlerettes circuit.

Max Bottom roared to a 254-225—698 on the final night of the Huron Bowl Wednesday Nite A League. Tom Yerk hit a 672, Doc Delany a 275, Paul Rodriguez at 258 and Paul, Jr., a 254. Higginbotham Siding reigns as the team champ.

Cooley Lanes Our Lady of Refuge loop saw Acme Container trip second-half titlist Gniewek's Trophies, 3005-2950 in the rolloff for the season laurels.

Billy Parker of Blatz Beer finished off the season doing what no one else could all year — he matched Frank Guibord's opening night 267 game for the league high. Parker rolled a 626 series in doing it.

The 300 Bowl Saturday In and Outers Birds League reported a 245—607 for George Argyros, and a 236 by Bill Palmer. Chuck Messer had a 244—608 and Bill Mihalek a 235—617 in the Pontiac Motor Inter-Office league.

Ray Postal spilled the pins at a 245 pace and Bob Lozelle at a 230 tempo for one game last week in the Jimmy Dey Ambets loop at Savoy Lanes.

Titan Gridders Set 7 Games

U. of D. Club Opens With Hillsdale

The University of Detroit 1969 football schedule was announced today by Jim Leary, Director of the Club Sports Department. Included in the seven-game slate will be U-D's first varsity encounter since the sport was discontinued in 1964.

The Titans will open at Hillsdale College on September 13. Other road stops include two visits to the Buffalo, New York area to meet Canisius and St. Bonaventure and a trip to Seton City, New Jersey to play St. Peter's College.

★ ★ ★

U-D will entertain Niagara, Marquette and St. Louis University.

The Marquette game will be the 1969 Homecoming for the University of Detroit.

This will mark the third year for the club under Leary's tutorage. The Titans finished 3-0 in 1967 for a No. 4 national ranking. Last season, U-D won three, lost one and tied one, and were rated No. 7 by the National Club Football Service.

Catholic Loses Fourth Straight

Oak Park Remains Unbeaten in Loop

Pontiac Catholic spotted Royal Oak St. Mary five runs in the first inning and couldn't make up the deficit in suffering a 5-4 loss Friday afternoon for its fourth straight defeat in the Northwest Catholic section race.

Coleader Farmington Our Lady of Sorrows edged Detroit Country Day, 3-1, in a nonleague outing. Royal Oak Shrine downed Detroit Benedictine, 3-2, in the AA Section; while Birmingham Brother Rice (2-1) lost a 5-3 verdict in the Central Division to Catholic Central.

★ ★ ★

Undefeated Oak Park made up one of its Northwest Suburban AA rainouts with a 6-0 conquest of Livonia Franklin as Elliott Blumberg raised his own log to 7-0 and the Redskins' to 9-0.

Novi, bidding to become the first Class C team ever invited to the Pontiac Invitational Tournament, trimmed South Lyon, 7-4, despite being outhit 10-8. The Wildcats have lost only once in six starts, while Class B South Lyon now is 5-3.

END SLUMP

Tom Joyce of Clawson (4-3) limited Bloomfield Hills Lahser (2-6) to two hits in registering a 2-1 victory that snapped the Trojans' two-game losing skid.

Cranbrook rallied for four runs in the third inning as Sandy Heavenrich doubled home the first two and scored the tying tally, then yielded a decisive four-spot on one hit to Detroit Thurston in the fifth inning and suffered a 10-8 loss.

★ ★ ★

Eric Greyerbiehl withstood Tom Jamnik's single and solo home run plus a double and single by Tom Fisher to hold off Pontiac Catholic (1-4 over-all).

YIELD RUN

Dan Blouin had a triple to figure in both runs as FOLS (5-1) broke a scoreless tie in the fourth inning at Country Day. Mike Hart limited the losers to one hit but yielded a final inning run that snapped Sorrows' shutout innings streak at 24.

Tom Szostkowski's three hits backed batterymate Burt Garavaglia's four-hit hurling for Shrine. Winner Blumberg drove in three runs with two hits for Oak Park.

★ ★ ★

Paul Faulkner's homer in the first and four runs on three hits by Jon VanWagner featured Novi's victory; and Bill Miller's two-run single brought Clawson from against Lahser.

Driver Namath Pays $50 Fine but Not Drunk

MIAMI (AP) — Superbowl hero Joe Namath was found innocent of drunken driving Friday but had to shell out $50 for speeding.

"I got a fair shake," said Namath as he peeled off the $50 fine in lieu of a four day jail sentence.

★ ★ ★

Natty but sleepy-eyed at his 9 a.m. trial, Namath jetted down from New York to face charges stemming from an early morning incident April 14 in which he admittedly cursed the policeman who flagged down his speeding convertible. He was charged with speeding, drunken driving and driving without a license.

Judge Arthur Winton said Namath submitted to a chemical test shortly after he was arrested on the 79th street Causeway, a nightclub lined strip connecting Miami and Miami Beach.

"Results showed .02 per cent blood alcohol—meaning he was sober under the law," said the judge in finding the New York Jet quarterback innocent.

The judge dropped a charge of driving without a license after Namath produced his Pennsylvania driver's license.

Birmingham Seaholm suffered its first baseball loss in league play Friday falling victim, 4-1 to Royal Oak Kimball.

Hazel Park meanwhile defeated Ferndale in the bottom of the eighth as Dennis Purgatori doubled home the winning run, 3-2.

In the other league game, Southfield routed Berkley 9-0 as Bub Muiter pitched a two hitter.

Kimball scored twice in the third inning when Rick Campbell singled, Bill Turkington doubled and Jerry Welsh hit a triple.

Turkington had two hits for Kimball.

Hazel Park tied the score in the bottom of the 6th on a squeeze bunt by Mark Pruss and then won it in the extra inning.

Southfield's Lance Korthals led the Blue Jays' attack on Berkley with three hits and five rbi's. Dave Timassey and Jim Manchel each had two hits.

3 New Prep Grid Coaches in Picture

WL Western Picks Evans

Bobby Hill Selected at Utica Stevenson

New coaches have been named at Utica Stevenson, Walled Lake Western and Birmingham Groves high schools.

George Evans is moving from the basketball job at Ferndale St. James to WL Western which will open next fall. He has a 62-42 mark at St. James in five seasons.

★ ★ ★

He also will be an assistant football coach as well as teach English and specialized reading. He, his wife and their three children live in Madison Heights.

FORMER FIREBIRD

Stevenson has handed its football reins to Bob Hill, a physical education and swimming instructor at the school who also has coaching experience at Carson City, Armada and with the Pontiac Firebirds of the Midwest Football League.

The diminutive Hill is replacing Jerry Thomas who has been promoted to the job of athletic director for Stevenson. As junior varsity coach, Hill produced a 10-7-1 record at USH.

Hill won 11 letters at Alma College after starring at Roseville Eastland H.S.

CHANGES MIND

Groves reportedly has landed former Eastern Michigan University All-American gridder Terry Hurley, who coached St. Clair Shores Lake Shore last fall, to be its new grid mentor.

★ ★ ★

The school lost its first choice when he accepted the job and then backed out earlier this week. The 30-year-old Hurley earned 14-letters at Lake Shore before matriculating to EMU, where he gained NAIA recognition.

Hurley has agreed to take the job but still must receive the approval of the board of education.

Two Aces Hit at Bald Mt.

Their methods differed but two golfers this week found the formula for mastering the deceptive 170-yard 17th hole at Bald Mountain Golf Course.

Detroiter Keith Goodman used a seven-iron Sunday to drop his drive into the cup and he finished with an 83 for the round. It's his second hole-in-one.

★ ★ ★

Tuesday night in the General Motors Truck and Coach League, Larry Bergo of Pontiac negotiated the valley with a three-wood to record his first ace. Walt Nurek, Harry Strom and Ed Reddish witnessed Bergo's shot.

Net Tourney Set May 10-11

A tennis tournament for three age groups will be held at Cranbrook school, May 10-11 starting at 9:00 a.m.

★ ★ ★

The classes will include 5th to 7th graders, 8th graders and 9th graders and boys and girls can register by calling Mr. Davisson at 644-1600.

Two new tennis balls is the only requirement for entry.

Local Doubles High

When action resumes this weekend at Westgate Bowl in Grand Rapids, Oxford's Fran Bertram and Joe Bonfiglio of Pontiac will be hoping the doubles entries in the Men's State Bowling Tournament aren't on target.

Bertram and Bonfiglio pooled their efforts last Sunday for a 1354 actual and 1411 handicap score to grab second and fourth place, respectively.

Bertram had a 681 actual, including a 258 game, and Bonfiglio rolled a 267 in a 673 series.

Another Pontiac area doubles team scoring well but not craking the top ten was Billie K. Smith and Don Fennell. They combined for a 1315 handicap score. Smith hit 663 actual.

Tom Augello bowled 695 actual (725) and Joe Myers a 687 (705) in the singles. Just missing the top five in actual all events was Al Schupbach with his 1982. Bob Garrett and Tom Augello were other local bowlers who topped 1900.

★ ★ ★

None of the Pontiac area teams were close to the top 10, although several fine showings were reported. West Side Lanes had a 3187.

Schupbach's 710 sparked Pontiac Janitor Supply to 3173; Art Pearson hit 656 and Myers of 641 in the Oxford Merchants' 3159; while Art Newby (652) and Charles Beach (640) led Moose Lodge No. 182 to a 3125 total.

Walled Lake, Orion Score Golf Wins

Led by Jim Wallace's 27 and Doug Jessep's 39, Walled Lake defeated Lahser in a golf match at Edgewood CC, 200-212 yesterday.

★ ★ ★

Lake Orion had Tom Wiseman and Hoyt Sreicks with 40s as the Dragons won over Claswon, 165-184 at Bald Mountain.

Detroit Kegler Takes Top Spot in Tournament

CHICAGO (AP) — Louis F. Burr of Detroit rolled an eight-game series of 1,653 Friday night to take the lead in the $512,256 Petersen Bowling Classic.

Burr, 31-year-old production control employee who attends night school at the University of Detroit, could win $38,850 if his lead holds when the tournament ends July 20.

Burr, who wrested the lead from Jack Brown of Chicago, had games of 185, 195, 223, 196, 204, 202, 222 and 226.

Brown had held the lead with 1,627, one pin more than Roger Hutton of Braidwood, Ill., who dropped to third.

Milliken Accomplishments in 1st 100 Days Examined

By JAMES PHILLIPS

LANSING (AP)—Gov. William G. Milliken took the executive mantle from George Romney and has set out to save the state's cities, restore its natural resources, revise its school financing system—and most important, some say, keep the budget balanced.

What has he accomplished in his first 100 days as governor?

- He has guided a public school aid bill through the Republican-controlled Senate, but faces a tough battle in the Democrat-dominated House where he is likely to run into more money and aid for parochial schools.
- He may have deferred a crisis by calling for the Legislature to meet in the fall for a complete financial revision of the school system.
- He has steered a delicate course on parochiaid, refusing to oppose it as Romney did, but leaving it to the Legislature to find the money for it.
- He has made a forthright stand on the urban crisis — to the chagrin of suburban and rural interests — by urging that the lion's share of a state recreation bond issue should be used in the cities.

Taking the oath of office Jan. 22 following the resignation of Gov. Romney, the soft-spoken, 47-year-old Milliken has taken a tough stance on the prime issues of the urban crisis and school financing.

He established an office of urban affairs located in Detroit as one of his first acts. He urged spending more than half of the $100-million recreation bond issue in urban areas, and said he would permit the city of Detroit to raise its income tax if approved by the city council and Legislature.

He called for a blue-ribbon panel to revamp the system of school financing, and report its findings in October. At that time, he said, the Legislature could act on specific proposals advanced by the committee.

Despite the clamor for immediate school aid reform, Milliken told the Legislature last month that "It would not be responsible to attempt now to rewrite the state aid formula, because school districts must know immediately how much state money they can expect this year.

"It would not be responsible to ask the people to accept a state tax increase for schools without being able to assure them at the same time of a benefit increase," he added.

For those reasons, he said, he urged delaying action until autumn.

He drew heavy fire for two of these proposals — advocating a delay in school aid reform and urging that more than $50 million of recreation bond funds be spent in urban areas.

Critics pointed out that Milliken called the financial crisis of the schools "paramount," and in the next breath said it would be irresponsible "to try to deal with such complex problems in the crush of an already crammed legislative session."

GOV. WILLIAM MILLIKEN

Sportsmen across the state charged the governor with breaking faith with the voters, saying the recreation bond issue had been sold on a 70-30 basis with only $30 million to be spent in urban areas.

The remainder would be used for state projects such as campgrounds, state parks, wetlands, and fish hatcheries.

Milliken, however, said toward the end of the campaign last November that the 70-30 formula had been discounted. And he added:

"I believe our greatest need, and therefore our greatest obligation, is to place expanded recreational opportunities within reach of the greatest number of people.

"Parks are rarely accessible to those living in the inner city, particularly the inner city of Detroit. Michigan's most urgent need for expanded recreation opportunities is in urban areas."

On the school aid issue, Milliken emerged triumphant — at least in the first round. The Senate this week passed an $845.44-million school aid bill. The amount is within $1 million of Milliken's recommended $85 million school aid hike for the coming year.

The House has yet to act on the Senate-passed measure.

The recreation bond issue is still before the Legislature.

Other proposals such as aid to nonpublic schools, distribution of water pollution abatement funds and general appropriations are still pending.

Milliken has vowed, however, to stick to his proposed budget and avoid deficit financing.

The governor's first apparent defeat came when the federal government adopted an interim level on the amount of DDT permitted in fish sold on the open market.

After more than 28,000 pounds of coho salmon were seized because of apparent health hazards caused by high concentrations of DDT, the governor called a five-state governor's ference to explore means of alleviating the flow of hard pesticides into the upper Great Lakes.

After the meeting, the governor urged the federal government to delay any action on setting a tolerable level of DDT in fish sold commercially until certain studies were available for review.

The federal government, however, did not wait, setting the tolerable level at five parts per million—an action that the governor thought was made in haste.

The governor will have his next confrontation with the Nixon administration later this month when he is expected to meet with Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Romney to discuss ways to build and finance low cost housing—a matter Milliken considers essential.

Milliken already has explored the housing problem with several other industrial states' governors, including Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

Whether the industrial states' governors' views will prevail remains to be decided.

Thus, after three months in office, Milliken has savored victory and tasted defeat.

It appears doubtful that he will relax his fighting posture as the Legislature draws to a close in the coming months, and he probably will occasionally prod Washington to do jobs that he feels are financially impossible for states to accomplish.

In the near future, however, the governor probably will stay close to Lansing so that he can deal intimately with the Legislature as it acts on bills that he feels would improve the "quality of life" and those that he believes would impair the future of Michigan.

To many Capitol observers, he apparently is attempting to live up to the challenge he outlined in January when he said:

"It is my greatest hope that my administration will be known for its compassion, its idealism, its candor and its toughness in pursuit of public ends."

Hare Cautions Drivers

LANSING (AP) — Thousands of Michigan motorists are needlessly exposing themselves to suspension of their driver licenses, reports Secretary of State James Hare.

Hare said his driver services division is starting to receive a daily stream of protests and complaints from drivers whose licenses suddenly have been suspended.

★ ★ ★

Hare said he also has reason to believe some of the courts are not fully aware of the new legislation causing the situation.

Under a new law, a traffic violator is given a maximum of 40 days to appear in court. If he fails to appear, the court notifies the Department of State which immediately suspends the driver's license until the failure to appear has been settled to the satisfaction of the court.

GIVEN CLEARANCE

"Such a suspension," Hare said, "has nothing to do with the original violation as concerns other penalties. It is simply imposed for failure to appear in court."

★ ★ ★

When the case is settled, the court is supposed to provide the offender with clearance for reissuance of his license. This card must be sent to the driver services division along with a $2 fee for license reissuance.

★ ★ ★

"There seldom is justification for failure to appear in court," Hare said. "But I'm sure if more drivers understood this law, there would be fewer failures to appear. A license suspension just isn't worth ignoring a summons for what in most cases is a minor violation."

Animal Trainer Rates High for His Tiger-Smooching Act

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Just because he kisses a tiger on the maw twice a day, Gunther Gebel-Williams has been able to buy only $20,000 in life insurance.

"And the premium goes up every two years," he said.

BOYLE

At 34 Gunther is the new superstar of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, an animal trainer so highly thought of in Europe that it bought up an entire German circus just to get his services.

His animal troupe includes nine tigers, 17 elephants, 40 horses, 50 pigeons, and 10 parrots.

ACT'S HIGH POINT

The tiger Gunther smooches, Bengal, is one he raised from a cub. In the climax of his act he sits astride Bengal who is mounted on the back of an elephant.

"People in the audience rarely realize how difficult it is to get tigers and elephants to perform together," he said. "They are natural enemies. In India 20 per cent of baby elephants are killed by tigers.

★ ★ ★

"But I got the elephants used to Bengal when he was a cub. Most tigers can't stand to be touched. But Bengal loves for me to tickle him under the chin."

Gunther, a slender, blue-eyes man with startling yellow hair, is as handsome as a movie star and has attracted some interest among movie moguls. But the circus remains his world.

IN CIRCUS AT 12

"I was born in a small town in East Germany," he said, "and came to the circus at 12 when my mother got a job as a wardrobe seamstress. She left after three months, but I stayed on."

The owners of the circus, the Williams family, adopted him and he quickly became an acrobat and skilled bareback rider. By the time he was 20 he had an act of his own with five elephants.

★ ★ ★

A man of leopardlike grace and vitality, Gunther works in the ring without a gun or chair. He avoids the loud dramatics of the Clyde Beatty school of animal training.

"You do it with your voice and the impression of strength you give the animals," he said. "They must respect you and feel that you understand them.

"But with tigers you must all the time be like Tarzan."

TNDLESS PATIENCE

The task requires almost endless patience. It takes Gunther six months to teach a tiger to roll over on command. He spent a year perfecting the act in which he, Bengal and the elephant form a pyramid.

"You cannot tell a wild animal he simply must, must, must learn to do a trick today. You must feel that perhaps he will do better tomorrow."

★ ★ ★

Gunther's arms are deeply scarred by claw marks from his surly charges. But he bears them no malice.

"When these things happen, it is always your own fault," he remarked philosophically. "It happens only when, during training, you get too close to them — so they claw you."

HAND BITTEN

Once Gunther was bitten through the left hand when he entered the small cage of a tiger he thought was sick.

★ ★ ★

"He wasn't sick at all," he said. "As I bent over, he sank his teeth in my hand. What did I do? What was there to do? I hit him in the nose with my fist, and he let go."

National Park Expanded

WASHINGTON — A slumbering volcano on Hawaii's island of Maui has been assured a mantle of green.

More than 4,300 acres of the beautiful Kipahulu Valley now enhance the beauty of Haleakala National Park. The land lies on the east slope of one of the world's largest craters.

Measuring 20 miles in circumference, Haleakala's crater could hold almost all Manhattan. Even the tallest skyscrapers would not rise above the edge, the National Geographic Society says.

The valley land, descending all the way from the 3,000-foot-deep crater to the Pacific Ocean, was added to the park by the Nature Conservancy and conservationist Laurance S. Rockefeller.

Upper slopes will be preserved in a natural state for scientific purposes. The area is one of the few remaining places on earth where plants and birds have evolved without man's interference.

About 300 inches of rainfall yearly pound thick forest and dense underbrush, discouraging visitors.

Fish Story Beats All

OSAGE, Iowa (AP) — Paul Johanns has a real fish story to tell about the one that got away when he was fishing recently in the Cedar River near here. He hooked a big catfish, but it got away.

When he started home, he realized that his car keys were missing and decided they had slipped from his shirt pocket when he was leaning over the water trying to land the fish.

A week later, he returned to the same spot and this time successfully landed a catfish. When he got it home and started cleaning it, there were the car keys, nestled snugly in the fish's stomach.

Indiana Man Is Collector of Log Cabins

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Charles Hord Ray collects log cabins — real ones — not models — and furnishes them with authentic and working equipment.

Ray and his family live on a farm near here where the cabins, brought from other places, are rebuilt. He carefully numbers every log so that the restoration can be exact.

★ ★ ★

"My interest in pioneer living began at an early age," Ray explains. "Each year I visited my grandfather here and lived in a double log cabin on this farm, which he bought in 1890."

One room of this same cabin, probably built around 1817, has been set aside to display spinning and weaving methods of pioneer women. A two-story yellow poplar log cabin, was made into a replica of Terre Haute's first tavern, the Eagle and the Lion, which opened July 4, 1817.

It contains an oak bar, pewter tankards, hickory-bound barrel, bellows organ and other furnishings of the period.

FOUR DIE IN EXPLOSION — This is what was left of a chemical plant in the northwest outskirts of Mexico City yesterday after an explosion which killed at least four persons. The blast, which blew out windows in a three-mile radius, injured 110 — mostly children in a school two blocks from the plant site. Two persons were missing.

Car Hits 33 Dancers at Austin Street Party

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Thirty-three of nearly 1,000 University of Texas students dancing in a street suffered injuries, none apparently serious, as a car rammed through their midst Friday night.

Police rescued two Negro students in the car as an angry crowd tried to break into the locked automobile. Officers lodged an aggravated assault with a motor vehicle charge against Robinson H. Parsons Jr., 19, of Houston, identified as the driver. They released his male companion.

★ ★ ★

Hospital attendants said two broken legs appeared to be the most serious injuries.

City officials had refused to issue a permit for the block party earlier. They reported the dance was blocking traffic and ordered that cars be permitted to pass prior to the incident.

CLIMBED ABOARD

John Bryant, a reporter for the Austin American, told of seeing the vehicle pass most of the dancers as a number climbed onto its fenders and hood.

Suddenly the driver stepped on the gas and several persons fell off the vehicle, Bryant related.

★ ★ ★

He said, "about 35 of the men and women started chasing the car and screaming, 'get the s.o.b.' . . . the band was playing very loudly. I could see him (the driver) turn around and point his car toward the mass of people.

★ ★ ★

"He floorboarded the car again with his lights off and drove straight into the blocklong mass of dancing people . . . he plowed into the mass of people going an estimated 60 miles per hour. Eighty per cent of the people didn't even know what was happening."

PUT INTO REVERSE

..Once the car stopped "and then all of a sudden he put the car in reverse and floored it again. He went backward for about 75 feet," Bryant said.

★ ★ ★

"More people were smashed by the car . . . all this time people were screaming, the band was still playing and people still didn't know what had happened."

MSU Provost Gets New Job

EAST LANSING (UPI) — Dr. Howard R. Neville, 43, Michigan State University's chief academic officer, yesterday was appointed president of Claremont (Calif.) College, effective Sept. 1.

★ ★ ★

The announcement was made here by MSU officials and in Claremont by the school's board of trustees. Neville has been at MSU since 1952, serving as provost since 1963.

An Old Dutch Cookbook Says:

"Throw papa down the stairs—his hat
And make shut the door."

So, throw papa down the stairs his hat make shut the door already and point him north on US 10 to Davisburg Rd. Then west to beautiful Lake Braemar and ask him to buy a lot at the present low prices on this lovely spot.

See the well build quad level model home. (Open for the present Sat. and Sun. PM. Hours 2 to 5) at the low price of $35,500. Blacktop drive (to be installed). Eavestroughed. Lawn (to be seeded). 3 bedrooms. 2½ baths. Large carpeted family room with fireplace. 2 car attached garage. Thermopane picture living room window and dining room doors. Huge storage room. Utility room. Large walk in cedar closets and many other features. We call this "Our House With No Round Corners" because the builder didn't cut any. House can be duplicated on any other Lake Braemar lot for $32,000, at present price.

Lake lots, good shore, fishing from $6300 to $6750. Off Lake lots on Braemar with privileges $3500 and $3600.

After seeing this scenic, highly restricted area — if papa doesn't buy a lot and build a house — you may even consider holding papa's hat and throwing papa down the stairs, but you wouldn't.

Inflation is Different things to different people.

To us it's paying 50 cents for parking to avoid paying $1 fine for over parking, while going in to pay 10 cents for a 5 cent cup of coffee. Quoted from T. C. News, Winter Garden, Florida.

BUT
The price of this farm is not inflationary — at $1750 per acre — in an area where land is selling for $3,000 per acre.

Approximately ½ mile road frontage, approximately 1 mile lake frontage. By surveyors report: 87 workable acres out of 113. Some of the 113 acres extend into the lake. Has the making of a beautiful development with island or recreational area or overnight camping site. On Nelsey Rd. just off Andersonville Rd.

Opposition Voiced on Rec Fund Split

TRAVERSE CITY (AP) — A majority of speakers Friday at a public hearing opposed giving urban areas the biggest chunk of a $100-million state recreation bond issue.

About 80 persons attended the hearing in Traverse City, second of four sessions being held around the state by the House and Senate conservation committees to determine public sentiment on division of the bond money passed by Michigan voters last November.

★ ★ ★

The majority of several dozen persons testifying urged a 70-30 split in the recreation funds, under which the bulk would go for state parks and other projects in outstate areas, with 30 per cent put to use of cities.

Frank Walsh, Bay County recreation director, supported a 30-30-40 split backed by Gov. William Milliken. Under this plan, more than half of the $100 million would end up in heavily populated areas.

CHAMBER OFFICIAL

Bingham McClellan, a Michigan State Chamber of Commerce official, urged a 70-30 split.

State Rep. Michael Dively, R-Traverse City, backed the 30-30-40 plan. He said its proposed provisions for local and statewide recreation projects would cover people in all parts of the state. Dively said this split would make the outdoors available to the poor in crowded cities as well as to affluent sportsmen.

Rep. Joseph Swallow of Alpena endorsed the 70-30 proposal and urged that the Legislature keep faith with the voters. He said if it did not, this could affect future school bond issues.

Richard McClellan, Gov. Milliken's representative at the hearing, was asked if the governor had committed himself to the 70-30 plan during his re-election campaign.

McClellan replied that the governor had reassessed the program after the vote for recommendation of the recreation bill, and didn't feel there had been a commitment on his part.

Conservationists generally backed the 70-30 split.

Kiley in 'Quest' of Lead in 'Man of La Mancha' Film

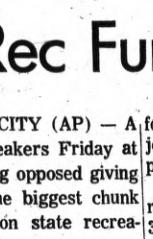

NEW YORK — Richard Kiley was sitting in "21" a small drink in front of him, when a man came over and said, "I'm sorry, I've got a wife who's highly frustrated."

"Who hasn't?" Kiley said.

"And she wants to know what the hell soap opera you play in," the man said.

"I've never been in a soap opera," Kiley replied.

"Now don't tell me that!" the stranger boomed. "You always play the nasty villain like Boris Karloff. You're like the guy in the grey hat. I can't think of your name."

WILSON

"It's Richard Kiley," Richard Kiley confessed.

★ ★ ★

"That's what comes of wearing beards in shows," Kiley said. The now 47-year-old ex-star of "Man of La Mancha," who justifiably feels that "Impossible Dream" (correct title, "The Quest") sort of belongs to him, is not likely to be recognized on the street especially when he doesn't have on a beard or a toupee.

"We're sweating out the movie," he said. "I've been mentioned for the picture but so has everybody else, including Richard Burton. I played it on Broadway for a year and a half — then in Los Angeles and San Francisco . . ."

He paused, to reminisce.

"The night of the opening, Nov. 23, 1965, we had a party at One 5th Av. The first review, on TV, spoke of 'how embarrassingly sentimental Richard Kiley was singing "Impossible Dream."'

"The party quickly emptied out and I thought, 'Back to the drawing board with my doodles.' I'm a doodler and they've paid off. The next morning my wife put the reviews on the table. The TV review was the only one that was not a rave.

County Gets School Funds

Oakland County school districts have received an advance appropriation of $1,460,298 under the U.S. Elementary and Secondary Education Act's grant program for the 1969-70 school year.

The Title I grants, earmarked for programs for disadvantaged youngsters, will be distributed directly to 26 school districts in the county.

★ ★ ★

Oakland intermediate school districts works in cooperation with the state department in allocating funds to the local districts.

This appropriation is only an advance. An additional undetermined amount under the Title I program will be appropriated later, according to school officials.

Effect of TV Violence on Children Is at Issue

By WILLIAM B. MEAD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The average American child watches television from three to five hours a day. By the time he reaches adolescence, he has been exposed for about 20,000 hours to whatever influence TV may exert on his attitudes and behavior.

If a child watches the kind of programs that are standard fare on the big networks, he sees a great deal of violence.

★ ★ ★

A study made last July showed that television watchers witness, on the average, one violent death an hour.

These facts give rise to several questions which are causing concern and controversy among public officials, social scientists and broadcasters:

Is television feeding American youngsters an excessive diet of violence? How much violence is too much, and who's to decide? Does television violence warp the minds and values of growing children and breed violence in real life?

DIFFERING OPINIONS

A reporter exploring these questions encountered vehement differences of opinion, often affected by the fact — coincidental or not — that the first generation of American youths reared from infancy in the television age is the same generation that has been involved in ghetto riots, campus strife and other forms of rebellious behavior ranging from drug use to "confrontation" political tactics.

Child psychiatrist Fredric Wertham blames television for much of this disorder.

★ ★ ★

He contends the medium has produced a "generation of violence worshipers."

But Dr. John P. Spiegel, a psychiatrist and head of Brandeis University's Lemberg center for the study of violence at Waltham, Mass., cautions that television may be merely a scapegoat for much deeper social ills.

MORE RESEARCH

"There is no evidence one way or the other on the effect of violent stimuli from the media," Spiegel told UPI in an interview.

The networks agree and contend more research is needed. But some concerned authorities warn that reforms cannot and need not await solid scientific proof, which might take years to acquire.

★ ★ ★

One such concerned authority is Otto N. Larsen, a University of Washington sociology professor who wrote a book about media violence.

"We do have more conclusive evidence about the effects of media violence than some media spokesmen would have you believe," Larsen said recently.

HEALTH PROBLEM

"In my judgment, social science knowledge about the effects of media violence resembles medical knowledge about the effects of cigarette smoking . . . the weight of the evidence designates televised violence as a national health problem."

With increases in violent crime and other disorders, the subject of television and its effects has moved from the academic to the agenda of government.

★ ★ ★

The President's Commission on Violence, formed by President Lyndon B. Johnson following the assassinations of Martin Luther King and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, held three days of hearings on TV fare last December and is preparing a report.

In March, Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., called the presidents of CBS, NBC and ABC before his Senate communications subcommittee for a public scolding on the same subject.

SELF-CENSORSHIP

At Pastore's insistence, the networks — specially NBC and ABC — promised to stiffen industry self-censorship procedures and the U.S. surgeon general began a $1-million study on the effects of television.

The goal is to produce a report as detailed and definitive as the 1964 report which condemned cigarette smoking as a primary cause of lung cancer.

★ ★ ★

"I want you to know that I join you in supporting the proposed one-year study of the possible relationship between scenes of sex and violence on television and antisocial behavior among young people," President Nixon said in a letter to Pastore endorsing the study.

The concern is shared by the public. In a nationwide poll taken by Sindlinger & Company in March, 67.5 per cent of 1,554 Americans questioned agreed with the theory that television and movie violence cause violence in real life. In a similar poll last June, only 49.8 per cent agreed when asked about the same theory.

SAD COMMENTARY

In an interim report, the President's violence commission released a survey concluding that 40 per cent of poor Negro children, 30 per cent of poor white children and 15 per cent of middle-class white children consider television an "accurate portrayal of life in America."

In a speech last September, S. I. Hayakawa, a speech professor who since has gained fame as president of restive San Francisco State College, likened television to "a powerful sorcerer . . . a storyteller and a spinner of dreams" who snatches children from their parents for several hours a day.

★ ★ ★

"For one-fourth or more of their waking hours from infancy onward, they live in a semantic environment their parents did not create and make to attempt to control," Hayakawa said. ". . . Is it any wonder that these children, as they grew to adolescence, often turned out to be complete strangers to their dismayed parents?"

Spiegel and his associate at Brandeis, political scientist Ralph Conant, do not discount the possibility that television may have a harmful effect. But they hold little respect for the theories of Hayakawa or Wertham.

'NOT SCIENTIC EVIDENCE'

"Opinions are not scientific evidence," Spiegel said.

"We have a lot of things going on in our society that are out of kilter with our dream of ourselves. We don't want to look at the violence in ourselves so we say it's not in ourselves—it's on TV."

★ ★ ★

But Spiegel agreed that the networks should "try to reduce the amount of purely visual or auditory stimuli — plain blood and gore — and the amount of shooting."

The sound of violence, he said, may be worse than the sight of it.

TOO EASY

Dr. W. Walter Menninger of the famed Menninger Clinic in Topeko, Kan., says it is too easy to make "television the bogeyman."

"I think you overlook the capacity which all healthy people have to develop and distinguish between reality and fantasy," says Menninger, a member of the President's violence commission.

Not only is fantasy different from life, contend television's defenders, but violence and conflict in drama have their positive effects.

They provide a release from "disturbing emotions," says Jack Valenti, a former White House aide who now represents the movie industry.

VALID THEORY

Spiegel calls this "sublimation," and says it is a valid theory tracing back to Greek drams. "You have to have tragedies," he said. "It's the way people get their tragic feelings and aggressions out of their system."

This is music to the ears of network men. "Conflict has been an essential part of the drama since its origins," says Julian Goodman, NBC president. ". . . The depiction of violence often serves to make a morally instructive point or to condemn acts of violence."

★ ★ ★

However, Wertham and other critics contend that what's true for literature, the stage and even movies is not necessarily true for television, which comes into the home, attracts children and reaches millions of people far less sophisticated than the average theater goer.

While denying the accusation of purposeful violence, television leaders admit that rough stuff draws viewers.

TURN AWAY

CBS President Frank Stanton told Pastore's subcommittee that when shows are too "sanitized," few watch them. "When we put documentaries of fine music on the air, they turn away from it and go for a western," Stanton said.

All three networks promised Pastore their schedules next fall would have fewer "action-adventure" shows and fewer violent scenes in the ones that remain. Critics are dubious.

★ ★ ★

Despite all the words, reports, studies and public badgering of network leaders, government officials hesitate even to speculate about television censorship. Virtually all those concerned begin by sternly drawing the line against any talk of imposing rules on television news, which is clearly protected by the free press guarantee of the Constitution's First Amendment.

Beyond that lies the question whether the First Amendment also covers television entertainment.

★ ★ ★

"I do not see how we could adopt a regulation to put a limit on violence without violating the First Amendment," says Rosel H. Hyde, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission.

Pastore appears to agree. "Congress can't get into this business of censorship," he told the network presidents.

Wrong Guess Costs LA Doctor $40,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three and a half years ago, Donald L. Correll was told he would die within 12 months. He didn't.

Friday, a Superior Court jury awarded the 49-year-old bus driver $40,000 in damages from the doctor who made the fatal diagnosis.

Correll had testified that the doctor's warning had prompted him to quit his job, losing 18 years of seniority and pension rights.

2 Hamlets Ill, Show Is Off

LONDON (AP) — Hamlet is "not to be" at the Royal Opera House for a while.

The performance was canceled for the fourth time Friday night because Victor Braun, who previously withdrew from the title role for three performances because of laryngitis, suffered a relapse, and his understudy, Donald Rutherford, was forbidden to sing, also on medical advice.

The audience got its money back.

Home Modernization Guide

Today The Pontiac Press has an Extra Bonus for you! There are two Special Sections about homes.

This section of ten pages presents many, many ideas about maintenance, modernization, and utilization of unused space. You will find new decorating and decor suggestions. New materials, how to use them, and the firms that provide them will also be found in this section.

The following eighteen page section is headed with beautiful, brilliant Spectra-Color presentation of one of the newer homes in this area. Realtors and Real Estate Firms have prepared special advertising in these pages showing the great assortment of new homes now available. Many will be open this weekend for your inspection. Jody Headlee, Pontiac Press Home Editor has gathered stories of the new homes, new features, new designs for you, too . . . it's all here for your reading pleasure!

CONTEMPORARY RANCH—with individual touches that warrant more than a passing glance. Protruding beams from the bedroom wing and the garage are among the eye-catchers. Note, too, the trellised arrangement at the front of the roof, adding light and interesting shadows.

Contemporary Has Duo-Styled Appeal

The first thing that strikes you about this four-bedroom ranch is its rustic yet elegant facade.

That may sound like a paradox, but the clean lines, vertical windows and over-all simplicity give it elegance, while the stone material, supplemented with vertical siding, gives it the rustic character.

★ ★ ★

Throughout the entire house, there is a combination of formality and informality, of sophisticated design and intimacy.

The main entrance features a a spacious portico recessed into the building and is flanked by a planting bed. A trellised roof over this bed gives additional light.

The portico smoothly leads into a welcoming foyer, which has a slate floor recalling the exterior slate on the portico.

FIREPLACE

One immediately catches a glimpse of the living room's stone fireplace, which also carries out the rustic quality of the exterior.

Architect Samuel Paul has located the sunken living room directly off the foyer. Two steps below it, in addition to the fireplace, is a planter separating the living room from a gallery leading to the kitchen.

On the living room side, the planter is high enough to provide adequate wall space for furniture.

Sliding glass doors off the living room give access to a covered porch and to a large open terrace.

Towards the front and off the gallery is the formal dining room.

INFORMAL AREA

The informal area — consisting of kitchen, family room and covered porch — is adjacent to both the living and dining rooms. There is easy access to the main entrance and service doors.

There is an entry from the two-car garage directly into a service hall which also has a door to the outside.

★ ★ ★

Off this hall are a stairway leading to the basement and a lavatory and clothes closet.

The laundry room, convenient to the family room-kitchen area, includes a sink and space for a washer-dryer and for either a pantry or other storage.

There is direct access from these spaces to the out-of-doors.

KITCHEN

Featured in the U-shaped kitchen is a communications - planning desk which could include anything from favorite recipe books, writing materials, telephone, intercom to a portable TV, in addition to the dishwasher, refrigerator, built-in range with attractive hood, and an abundance of counter space and cabinets.

There is easy access from the kitchen to the formal dining room covered porch and to the family room, which is extended from the kitchen, making it one huge area.

★ ★ ★

The bedroom wing includes a master suite and three other bedrooms.

The suite has a large bedroom area, a dressing room with a walk-in closet and mirrored walls and vanity, and a full bath with a stall shower. It is an excellent combination of luxury and privacy.

The other bedrooms are serviced by a centrally located bathroom equipped with a double vanity, tub and shower.

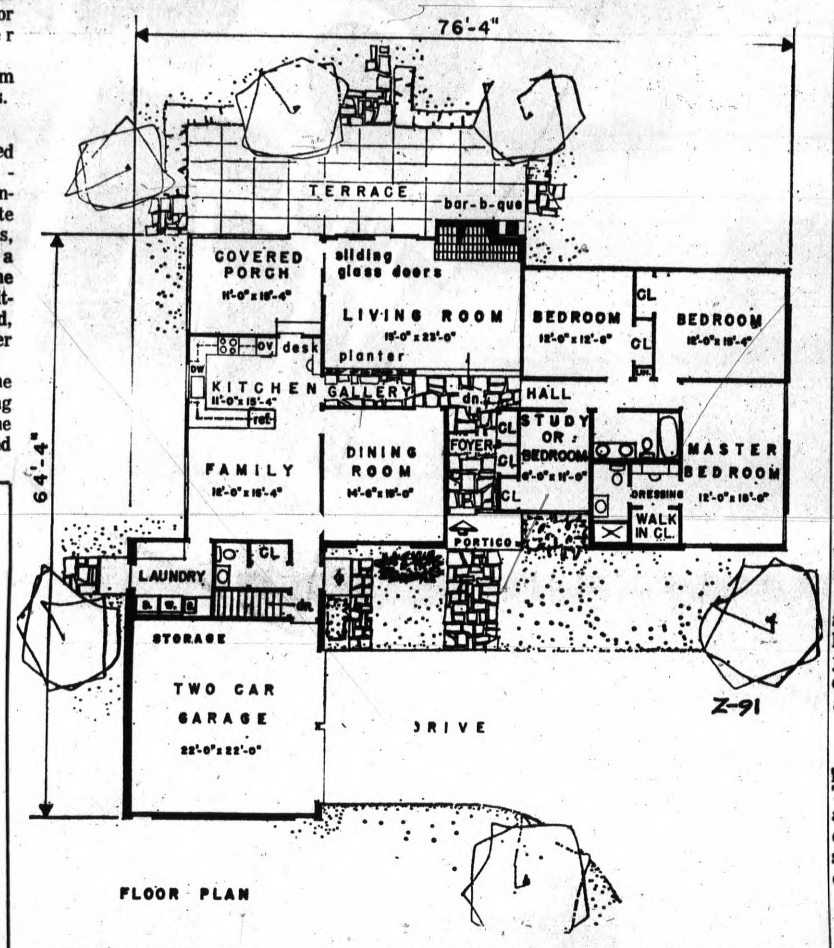

BEDROOMS

All bedrooms are off the central hall and there is closet space in abundance.

Stone and vertical board-and-batten are combined in the exterior, with protruding beams adding a distinctive appearance to this distinctive house.

Z-91 STATISTICS

Design Z-91 has a living room, dining room, kitchen-family room, four bedrooms, two baths and a lavatory, with a habitable area of 1969 square feet. There is an over-sized two-car garage, a laundry and service area, a covered porch, an open terrace and a partial basement. The over-all dimensions, including the garage, are 64'4" by 76'4". Where brick is more available or more desirable, it can be substituted for the exterior stone without imparing the character of the design.

FLOOR PLAN

FLOOR PLANS—Attractive foyer serves as practical starting point for excellent circulation pattern, enabling traffic to move freely to all parts of the house. Covered porch and rear terrace, both accessible from the living room, assure pleasant outdoor living.

Design Bath for Elegance

Let yourself go when planning a bathroom improvement project!

If you've long admired some of the eye-catching bathroom designs featured in home magazines, consider the almost unlimited choice of materials and accessories now available.

More homeowners are taking the time to design bathrooms that are attractive as well as practical. Taking a leaf from the adventurer's notebook, many build a design around a foreign locale, such as Hawaiian or European traditional.

Accent panels often are used in these treatments to create visual interest. One of the most effective ways to accent a bathroom area, is to install a 5-by-5 foot mural panel in the tub-shower recess. These plastic-finished hardboard panels, which can be installed over old walls or solid backing, are highly-resistant to heat, moisture, and humidity.

MURAL PANELS

There are many attractive designs in the line of mural panels. Matching white side panels are available for use in conjunction with the murals in a tub-shower installation. Gold anodized moldings are available at local lumber dealers for use with the murals.

HEIR APPARENT—Brilliant colors in a nursery create a lively, cheerful mood that appeals to the newest member of a family. Bright turquoise carpeting sets off white furniture, color-coordinated with gay vinyl wallpaper. Carpeting is made of newest of man-made fibers, easy to clean and ideal for children's rooms.

Accessories Spark Room

Accessories will bring the excitement and personality to your rooms. They will make your rooms come alive and will complete your decorating theme or mood.

The items that you select for accessories should be a reflection of your interests and those of your family.

★ ★ ★

Paintings, pieces of sculpture and objects of art, should, for example, be of situations and scenes which are known and enjoyed by those persons using the room. If your husband loves sports, why not have a painting showing his favorite sport? For a hunter — a scene of quail, for a fisherman — a quiet lake, for the skier — a crisp winter setting.

Should you enjoy plants and flowers, you may wish to turn a room divider into a miniature greenhouse. It will be a perfect separation for a living-dining room, as well.

FUNCTIONAL

Remember, too, that small chests or commodes, usually thought of as accessory pieces, can be very functional when used in lieu of an end table, or for bedside or hall tables.

Lamps should also be selected for appearance as well as for lighting. Just as costume jewelry, they add drama. Today's selections feature beauty as well as function.

★ ★ ★

Be sure to remember to use pillows when you accessorize. They are always popular and available in endless selections of color, size and fabric. This season they are very lovely in cut and crushed velvet . . . and in many patterns and prints.

Sometimes there are pieces of ceramic and other treasures which you acquire on a vacation or holiday. Why not include them in your accessorizing? They will add much personality as well as decoration.

MIX OR MATCH

And, when it comes to accessories, it is mix and match as you wish, with selection and arrangement being most important.

Morning Mood Bright, Cheery?

Cheer up your mornings by making your kitchen breakfast area more colorful.

Paint your table and chairs snappy shades of red, blue, green, yellow or orange. Put your personal stamp on your work by painting flowers or bright abstract designs on the backs of the chairs.

Even the legs and spindles of the chairs can be individualized. Band blue chairs in red or white, green chairs in yellow.

★ ★ ★

If you can't decide on a color scheme, let each member of the family choose his favorite and paint each chair a different color.

Newest Piano Artfully 'Aged'

Women who used to fret for fear something would "leave a mark on the piano" have done an about-face.

★ ★ ★

Now they're insisting on piano finishes that have been intentionally spattered and marred, which is really what "distressing" amounts to.

★ ★ ★

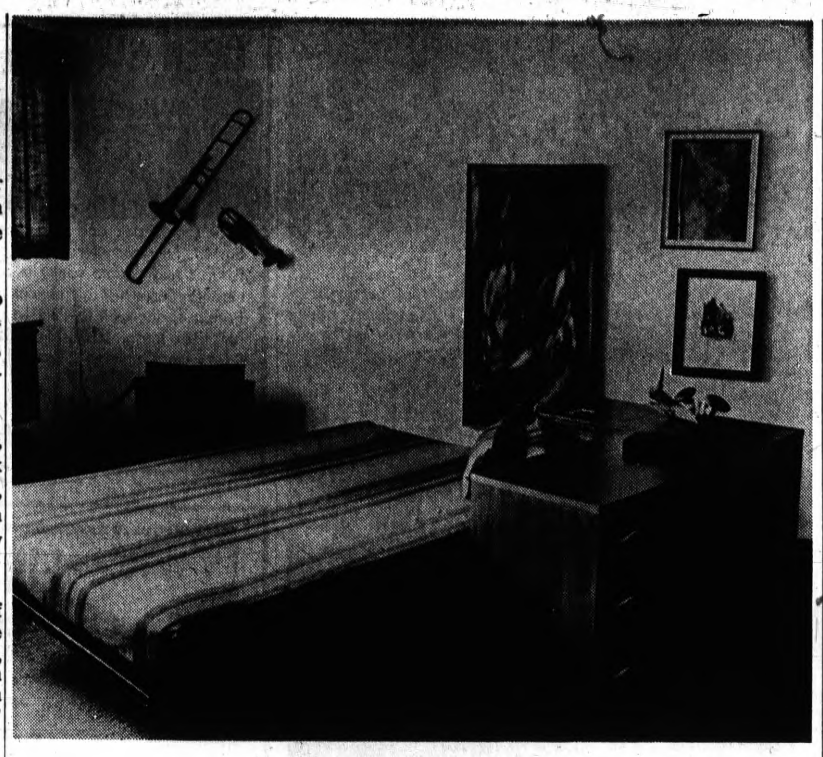

So reports Constance Wagner, consultant to the Story & Clark Piano Company, Lincolnwood, Ill., where fine furniture design is regarded as highly as quality inner construction.

★ ★ ★

Among the most popular of all piano finishes just now are continental cherry, Spanish oak, traditional pecan, and Spanish pecan, all of which feature a ready-made patina of "age," the consultant reported.

CONSOLE PIANO

"And the console piano, somewhat taller and larger in tone than a spinet, is the nation's choice for music at home," she added.

Pontiac Press Photo

BED ISLAND—Mrs. Leon W. Lewis of Bloomfield Hills created a bed island to efficiently use the space in her master bedroom. "I did it to complement the built-in wall cheses," said Mrs. Lewis. Striped madras cotton in the spread and pillows emphasizes the colors in the abstract, "The Woman," by Mrs. Lewis. She also created the driftwood piece on the drawered cabinet headboard.

Carpet Adds Comfort, Beauty

What's new for your home? A very old product.

Long before primitive man discovered the refinements of furnishing a home, he found that an animal skin did wonders for a cold floor.

★ ★ ★

Nomadic tribes wove coarse fabrics and carried their comfort with them in the form of rugs, as protection against the rigors of outdoor life.

Skilled craftsmen of the earliest civilizations wove pictures into their rugs, and sultans and princes were greeted with carpets unrolled before them.

Does it sound familiar?

Homemakers today still believe in protecting their family's comfort and well-being — and cover cold floors with carpets and rugs.

OUTDOOR LIFE

Active families are making outdoor life more comfortable, with carpets designed for safety and beauty around pools and on patios.

Modern rugs and carpets are made by craftsmen, with patterns and textures skillfully designed for today's homes. And the red carpet is still unrolled as the traditional sign of welcome, whether for visiting dignitaries or astronauts aboard a recovery ship.

★ ★ ★

There are a few changes, however — some very important ones.

For one thing, carpets are no longer just a luxury for the wealthy. Modern technology has brought them within the reach of everyone.

For another thing, carpets and rugs are no longer reserved for special occasions, or restricted to the "front parlor." They're very much a part of everday living — all over the house, and outside, too.

Because there are more uses for carpets and rugs than ever before, there are more varieties now available.

There are heavy-duty carpets designed for maximum traffic in public buildings, less expensive qualities for less demanding use in the home.

★ ★ ★

There are elegant styles for the most formal settings, carpets with built-in practicality for kitchens and family rooms.

NATURAL, MAN-MADE

Carpets and rugs are now made from both natural and synthetic fibers, permitting greater flexibility in design and price. With a variety of raw materials at their disposal, manufacturers can produce more diversified products for individual consumer demands.

★ ★ ★

High-speed production methods now make it possible to produce hundreds of yards of carpeting in a fraction of the time formerly required.

★ ★ ★

The result is the ability to supply carpets and rugs to meet an ever-growing demand, with savings passed along to the consumer.

★ ★ ★

With new equipment, manufacturers can now offer a broader variety of styles, many of them formerly produced only by costly and tedious methods.

Brighten Household, Get Ready for Fun

It will take more than a spring cleaning to give those same old furnishings a new look for the spring and summer entertaining season.

Yet you can revive each room in the house and supply an air of freshness without undergoing major furnishing expenses.

Here are 12 things you can do at relatively low cost.

- Replace window treatments which have seen better days with the new one inch Venette blind. These provide the same sun control protection and privacy of standard styles, but add a lighter, airier look to every room, especially the living room and dining room.
- Paint each door of your home in a color which matches the decor of the room it opens into.
- If you have a fireplace, give it a new coat of paint.
- Buy new towels for the bathroom and install a new shower curtain or a shower door.
- Line closet walls with patterned wallpaper.
- Put new mats around your paintings or photographs in different colors than the old ones.
- Get rid of the old lamp shades and replace them with ones with new designs and colors.
- Get new book ends and a few new books.
- Give your lighting fixtures the once over and add one or two new striking ones.
- Put new waste baskets in each room.
- Replace ordinary switchplates with decorative ones.
- Strategically place flower boxes or pots in hallways or rooms and change flowers or plants as the seasons progress.

You may not want to do all of these things, but even doing a little bit will make a lot of difference in the way your home looks and you feel.

Double Your Pleasure

Share Your Collections

"Collecting" things, from pennies to precious gems, seems instinctive to human nature. Whether the collection is kept in boxes under the bed or in the bank vault, satisfaction comes from acquiring and then looking for more.

But the great pleasure really comes from showing them off — to yourself, to your family and to your friends. Whatever form your prized possessions take — be they personal treasures of past times and places, or a particular category such as Waterford glass or Sevres porcelain — your collection can be either a dust-catching eyesore, or it can be a dramatic element in your decorating scheme. It all depends how you display it.

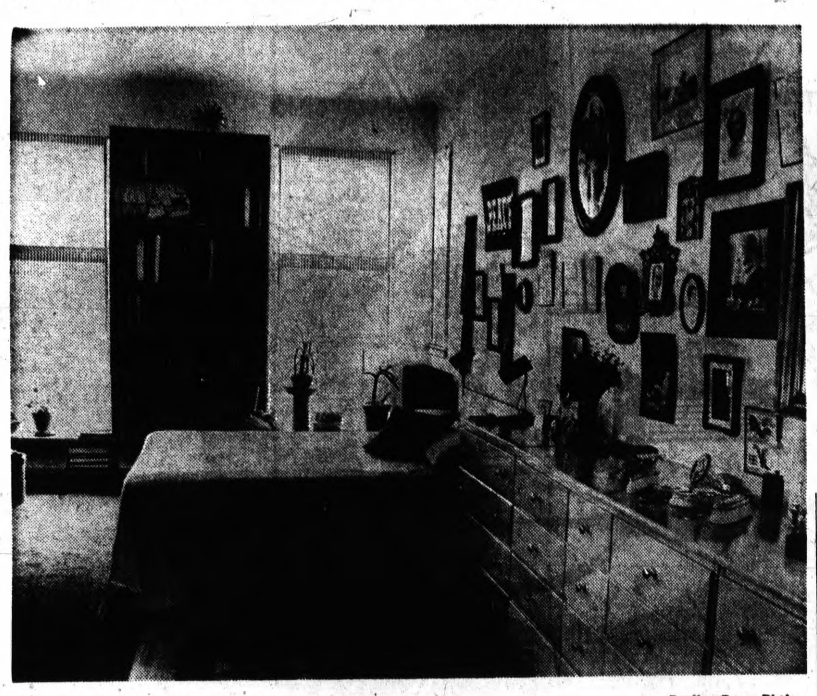

Curio cabinets, etageres, vitrines, breakfronts and china closets have been part of the furniture scene for many centuries. Individual wallhung brackets serve well for vases or porcelain pieces, too. Fine crystal can be shown to advantage if it is backed by mirrors and sidelighted for effect, for example.

Wall displays are effective also.

The important thing to remember is that a collection functions most effectively as a decorative asset if it is related in some way to the rest of the room. If your decor is not formal enough to accommodate the more traditional furniture often used for collections, there have been other more recent developments.

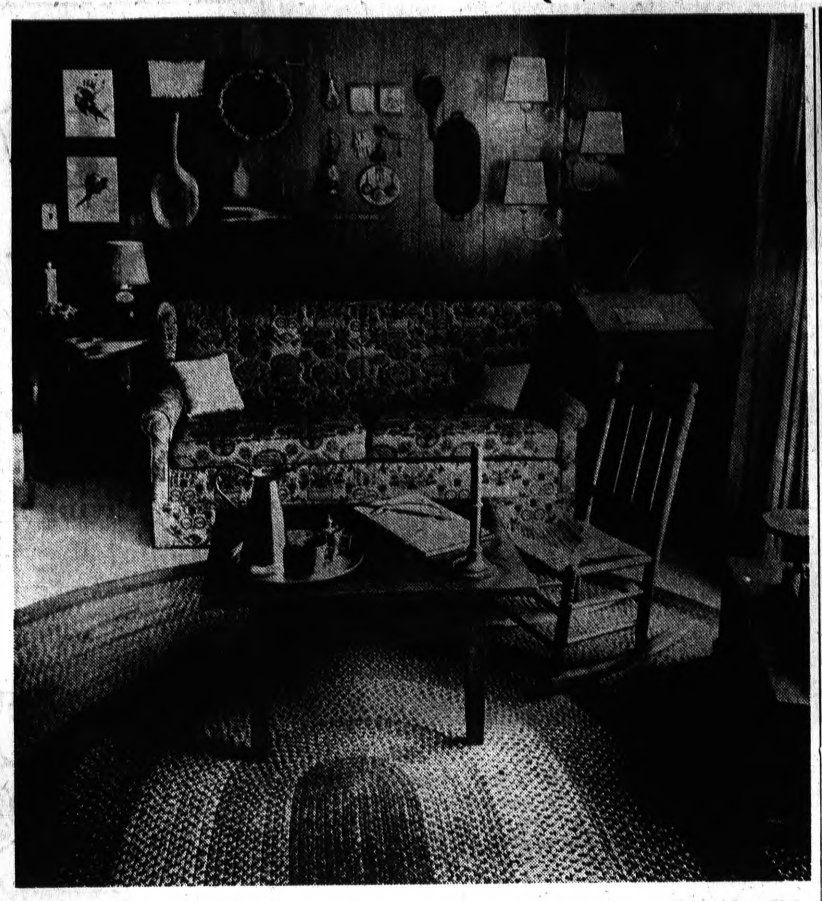

In contemporary rooms, for example, collections can be displayed on a wall-hung grouping of shelves and cabinets.

So whether the things closest to your heart are worth anything or nothing — except to you — give them the setting they deserve.

Pontiac Press Photo

FEELING OF WARMTH — Family portraits add touches of warmth to the wall above the master bedroom chests in the Richard G. Knight home in Birmingham. Collections of this type become even more valuable to their owners as the chubby-cheeked child develops into a young man or woman. How pleasant to display the bits of the past where they can be enjoyed rather relegating them to an album or box where they can be so easily forgotten.

Pontiac Press Photo

WALL GROUPING—Memories highlight the wall in the paneled family room of the David Bateses in Bloomfield Township. "I wove that place mat as a camp project for my mother when I was ten-years-old. My sister decided to wash it one day she put it in the washer and it shrunk to its present size," Mrs. Bates chuckled as she remembered. Included in the arrangement are wooden paddles, old keys, a miniature lantern and antique doll's dishes mounted on a wooden round.

Water, Water Everywhere in American Home Scene

Americans already are the best-plumbed people in the world, and things will get even better. There are over 40 ways that water can be used in the home to make life more comfortable, convevnient an beautiful for every member of the family.

Our use of water has increased 60 per cent in the last 10 years and will double in the next five. This revolution in home standards is called Water-Righting. These are among the features of a Water-Right Home:

- A bathroom for every bedroom or, alternately, two full baths and a powder or mud room. At least one bedroom has a vanity lavatory.
- Food waste disposer, dishwasher and double-bowl sink in the kitchen.
- A laundry area with water and drain facilities.
- An entertainment center in the family room, featuring hot and cold running water, ice maker, and teakettle-hot water dispenser for instant drinks.
- Such outdoor features as an entertainment sink, hot and cold running water and drinking fountain on the patio.
- A 50-gallon water heater and automatic water conditioning equipment.
- hydronic (hot water) heating system that's "zoned" into logical living areas, each with its own temperature controls. (Bathrooms are warmer, bedrooms cooler, etc.) Humidifiers to add moisture to the air during the heating season.
- Leakproof faucets and automatic temperature controls for shower and bath.
- A sump pump to eliminate danger of basement flooding. A supplemental water system in water-short areas, consisting of a well, electric pump, controls and storage tank.

★ ★ ★

- Such features to assure quality plumbing as adequate-size pipe, shutoff valves at the fixtures, etc.

The Water-Right Home will change your family's living habits. But you don't have to wait until you own a new home to get its benefits. Many can be added to existing homes to upgrade living standards and increase the home's resale value.

Design Spice Wallpapers

Trying to find a new way to bring some warmth and charm into your home? Many times you can find the answer with wallpapers, with their many designs, patterns, prints and murals. In addition to bringing the design excitement you are looking for, wallpapers can be used to set off your furnishings.

The coming season's selection of wallpapers and coverings is larger and better than ever before. The attractive patterns range from traditionals and prints to modern motifs and an assortment of contemporary art. You'll find stripes, geometric designs, scenics, florals, polka dots, checks, squares and also soft and elegant damasks.

Looking at the flocked and embossed papers, you'll see patterns, paisley and small prints in brilliant colors. And the combination of the vinyl coatings and non-fade color pigments make care an easy matter.

Then, for the do-it-yourself decorator, there is an equally large selection of the easy-to-hang prepasted papers. This category has a number of the scenic and panel patterns, many of which need only be dipped in water before hanging.

VARIANCE

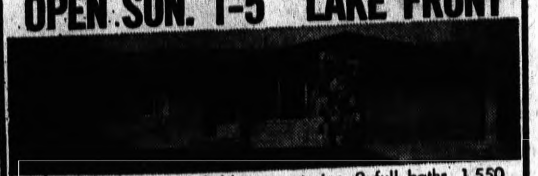

And, the designs vary from floral and tree effects to nature scenes, to city street scenes, contemporary figures or characters from well known fiction and novels.

Shorten Room With Light Paint

To shorten a long narrow room, paint the wall at one end a lighter color than the other walls.

If the ceilings in your home are high, you can bring them down by painting them dark colors.

OPEN SUN. 1-5 LAKE FRONT

To Upgrade Environment

Nursery Industry Hails Beautification

While Vietnam, inflation and crime seem to be preoccupying the nation, the American nursery industry is concerned, now that Lady Bird Johnson no longer occupies the White House, that the crisis of the environment might lose out and be swept aside with other Johnson programs.

Robert F. Lederer, executive vice president of the American Association of Nurserymen, explains that in order to keep the many problems of our environment and national beautification a topic of public concern, his industry is planning to take action on several fronts.

He explains his predicament this way:

"Of course we're going to miss the vitality of Lady Bird Johnson and her efforts to improve our man-made and natural environment. Almost single-handedly she developed a new awareness in Americans of the natural beauty we have in this country and the ugliness we have created.

Because of her leadership, cities and towns across the nation have working beautification organizations and most governors have established beautification commissions.

MOVE AHEAD

"Now we're going to have to move ahead on our own initiative, drawning support wherever we can. Too much good has been done in the past few years for us to sit back, relax and lose the momentum that has been created. There can be no question that Mrs. Johnson struck a chord with millions of Americans."

Lederer said that his first task is to encourage President Nixon to provide continuity to present government environmental programs. Lederer doesn't see a need for more government programs, but rather a "tightening up and concentration on" existing efforts. He plans to offer the services of his organization to the new Administration and hopes to work closely with both President and Mrs. Nixon on beautification matters.

★ ★ ★

Lederer is particularly encouraged on this count and believes that the new President will not only lend support to beautification, but sees a possibility that President Nixon will enlarge upon the concept of beautification to give greater force to such problems as pollution and urban noise control.

Second, Lederer said his organization plans to launch a major national promotional and educational program to the homeowner and to business and industry early next year. It is already deep in planning and preparation for this step.

NATIONAL PROGRAM

The national promotion program, slated to begin early in the spring of 1970 will encourage homeowners, businessmen and industrialists to improve the landscaping and appearance of their properties. National magazines, network, radio, and extensive public relations activities will be used in this effort.

Finally, the nursery industry hopes to work closely with individual government agencies, business and industry, and trade associations interested in national beautification to develope cooperative projects.

★ ★ ★

"A high-level, national task force is what we really need," Lederer said. "It would include top people from the White House, appropriate government agencies and from interested industries and would concentrate on idea-generating, planning and coordination.

"All of us have our special interest programs which we wouldn't want to give up or even dilute. But most of us could take on additional beautificaton projects in a cooperative effort."

The American Association of Nurserymen represents about 2,000 large nursery and landscape companies in an industry that sells about $2 billion of plant material each year.

Smart Homeowners know that for the very best in lawn and garden needs we can't be beat on price or quality.

Eliminate Clutter

It Pays to Organize

Consider putting your closets on a "business basis" before you call in a carpenter to do extensive remodeling so that you will have more closet room, suggests Ivor J. Allsop of Bellingham, Wash., an inventor of closet accessories.

You've got to discard something when you put something new in a closet, he says. That's how many big stores and catalog companies operate stock; otherwise America's stores would be nothing but clutter, he explains.

★ ★ ★

A good place to start this plan is in a man's closet, where order can be established quickly, he suggests.

Architects will eventually plan closets better — they seem to be getting the pitch. But, meanwhile, make the best of what you can work with by departmentalizing everything keeping only useful wearables, he advises.

LARGE CLOSET

If the man's closet is a large open one with a clothes rod across the top, you may make it more useful by putting a series of small shelves down one side of it.

Sweaters, brief bag and even dress shirts may be put on the shelves. The floor level under such an arrangement may be used for luggage. Put coats and suit jackets on the rod.

★ ★ ★

Under jackets, another arrangement should be made for pants hangers. (Pants should hang separate from jackets, he says.) Under coats, you'll have room for shoe racks.

A man's closet need not be messy wether he has two or 22 suits if everything is placed, stacked neatly and discarded promptly.

Four years ago, Allsop introduced a new type of men's boot holder, and he has parlayed the original idea into a number of different styles from the single "shoe-in."

ROTATING UNITS

There are rotating units that hold up to four pairs of shoes, or eight pairs when stacked.

The idea grew out of necessity, he explained at a recent homes show where his shoe-valet was displayed in a room setting.

"I was in the ski business and we rented ski boots. At quitting time everyone rushed in with wet boots and we had to figure out some way to tree them in a hurry, plus a way to aerate them, so I originated a unit that would adjust automatically to the length of the boot in one motion and permit shoes to return to size after they were dry."

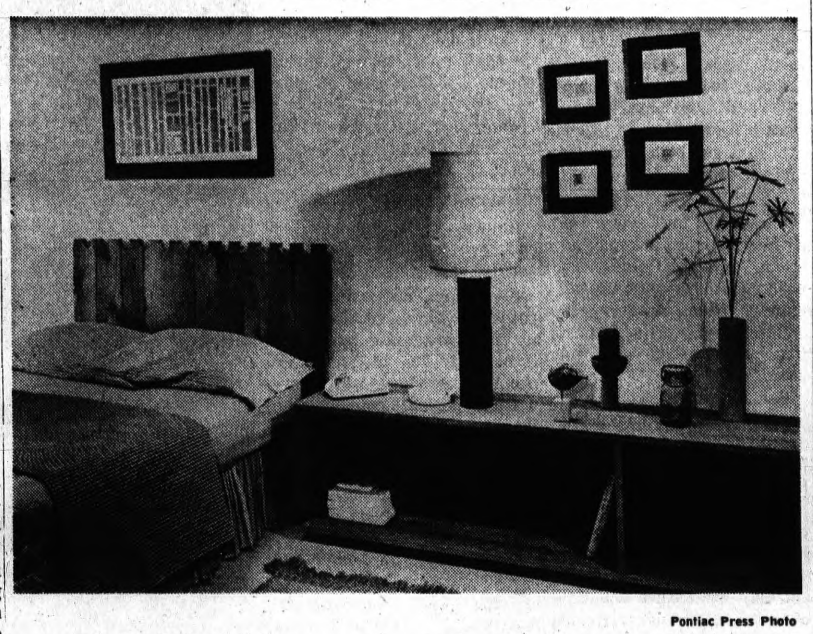

Individual units may be mounted on closet doors; rotating units have storage space for slippers and shoe-shining equipment.

★ ★

Now inventor Allsop is thinking "pants hangers."

"There must be a better way to hang pants than over wire hangers. I think they should hang from the cuffs, but they need good support," he says.

The western hemlock tree, which grows to a height of 125 to 175 feet, springs from a seed so tiny that 400,000 of them weigh only a pound.

Pontiac Press Photo

MASTER BEDROOM—Rough sawn cedar was transformed into a scallop-detailed headboard and open-faced cabinet by Irving Levinson of White Lake Township. Completing the room's decoration details are sand beige carpeting, a sculptured gold throw rug and white walls. Ink sketches of steel men mounted on barn wood dress the wall above the cabinet. A steam pipe lamp and an arrangement of nail flowers in a steel pipe container add height to the cabinet's top arrangement.

Multi-Bath Homes Gaining Attention

By LEROY POPE
UPI Financial Writer

The bathroom is getting increasing attention among homebuilders, according to a maker of plumbing fixtures.

Architects are beginning to think in terms of "the baths" instead of just the bathroom, says Vincent Cannon, a vice president of the Eljer plumbingware division of Wallace-Murray Corp.

★ ★ ★

"For the present the trend is reflected mainly in the increased installation of Finnish sauna heat baths and the larger number of houses with three bathrooms," Cannon says.

★ ★ ★

"The proportion of new houses with only one bath has dropped from almost 50 per cent in 1960 to around 18 per cent this year. The proportion with three baths has grown from only a little over 1 per cent to about 14 per cent."

SUITE

By the end of the century, Cannon says, the bathroom may become a suite of rooms, including an exercise room, a sun room and a relaxing room for joint use by the whole family much as the Romans used to relax in the bath.

"There will be chambered cubicles for the more personal functions," he says. "Perhaps the suite will be called the family hygiene rooms."

LUXURY

In many luxury houses, according to Cannon, there will be parallel bathroom systems, the sunbathing and relaxing baths to be used by the family in togetherness and a small separate bathroom adjoining every bedroom.

These small bathrooms for the bedroom will be made economically feasible by new designs of fixtures — into a single prefabricated assembly embodying lavatory, shower and commode in a single unit that can be installed rather cheaply.

★ ★ ★

In larger bathrooms and the "family hygiene rooms," styling of the rooms and the fixtures likely will become increasingly sophisticated and more colorful, Cannon says.

Offer Bonus Storage Units

Vertical furniture, which effectively utilizes floor to ceiling space that otherwise might be wasted, is a practical solution to the problem of limited storage and display space for prized possessions.

A wide selection of vertical furniture components called Spacemaker feature shelves, chests, cabinets and desks attached to floor to ceiling spring-loaded aluminum poles.

The versatile Spacemaker systems by OMNI are quickly and economically installed. New units can be added or existing units can be rearranged to meet changing family needs.

They won't mar floors, walls or ceilings, and can be packed up and moved to a new home or apartment.

OILED WALNUT

The components are hand-crafted in a classic design and finished in oiled walnut. Shelves and work-table desks may be ordered with white or walnut pattern plastic laminate surfaces.

The solid extruded aluminum poles are offered in natural, black, gold and bronze anodized lustre finishes.

Rich Colors, Greet Spring

Rich, sunny colors that lift the spirit and delight the eye in all seasons are most evident in fresh, new dining ensembles just now reaching the market.

Notable innovations include sprightly pineapple or muted avocado in hardy enamel finishes for metal bases of chic new tables and chairs.

A manufacturer of metal dining furniture, weds its new colors with melamine table top in marble, olivewood, or subtle pecan wood tones.

Check to Be Sure

Sawdust Trails May Mean Termites

A collection of tiny wings stacked outside a house in springtime strikes terror into the hearts of homeowners.

The debris means that colonizing termites have shed their wings after finding new nests.

★ ★ ★

The wood-chewing insects thrive in moderate climates.

In the United States most termites live below the frost line in vast underground complexes, the National Geographic Society says. Shunning light, the insects bridge exposed areas with a covered arcade of mud or wood fiber and saliva.

BUILD TOWERING NESTS

Remotely related to the roach family, termites are gregarious and create elaborate societies. In the tropics, nests may tower 20 feet and house 3,000,000 workers and soldiers.

Individually weak but collectively strong, members of a termite community perform duties within a strict caste system. Workers toil ceaselessly for their society, repairing passages, caring for larvae, and feeding the queen and soldiers.

★ ★ ★

Armed with saw-tooth mandibles, soldiers constantly guard against ants — a traditional enemy.

Some sentries have developed syringelike heads to squirt enemies with corrosive liquids. Others merely flip workers away from harm, or sound the alarm by knocking their heads on wood.

The prolific queen perpetuates a colony by laying up to 30,00 eggs a day. Her abdomen swells to grotesque proportions — sometimes four and a half inches long. Workers measure only about a quarter of an inch.

GROW SEASONAL WINGS

Termites belong to the order Isoptera, meaning "equal wings." However, only queens and males have wings — grown for their colonizing flight — and they lose them when enough food has been found to start a new colony.

Termites dine on almost anything containing cellulose, a major wood constituent. The voracious insects have devoured furniture, clothing, railroad tickets and labels from cans.

★ ★ ★

They may turn up anywhere. A few years ago termites descended on Pitcairn, one of the South Pacific's most remote islands. The unwelcome visitors had stowed away in a church organ shipped from New Zealand.

Termites respect neither power nor authority. The creatures have dined on Japanese temples, reveled in Paris landmarks, and chewed at the Vatican. An American newsman once found them infiltrating the Kremlin.

Sawdust is a frequent symptom of trouble. One householder discovered his house was threatened "when I noticed sawdust trickling down from beams holding up the living room ceiling."

Pine Mill Output Doubles Production

An estimated 5,000 lumber mills are operating in the 12 Southern Pine producing states, as compared with 13,000 10 years ago.

However, the volume of Southern Pine lumber produced in 1968 was actually higher than the 1957-59 average. Thus, average output, per mill, has doubled during the decade.

In general, there are fewer but larger mills with closer control over quality and better utilization of the timber harvest.

To protect the end grain of fence post tops and fence boards nailed vertically, use a 2x6-inch cedar cap board.

Family Room Embraces Space for Myriad Functions

A good family room is like a space capsule; it contains nearly everything needed for life support. That, at least, is the aproach taken by Interior Designer Binnie Kramer, A.I.D., whose family room plans are both intriguing and sensible.

"Of course, different people have different requirements," said Mrs. Kramer, "but for most young, active families, ambidextrous space is the biggest need. Combine the functions of several rooms into one, and you get both convenience and versatility."

★ ★ ★

Illustrating her theory, Mrs. Kramer designed a family room for a Portland, Oregon, home which functions variously as a laundry room, sewing center, children's playroom, home office, hobby shop and guest room.

But, by merely closing a door or drawer, any of its worktime operations literally disappears. Remaininig is an attractive informal living room.

Built-ins are the secret of the room's chameleon-like quality. For laundry, Mrs. Kramer designed roomy closets holding not only the washer and dryer but also clothes bins, treating sink, ironing board, and shelving.

In the washer-dryer closet, a window admits daylight and a fan exhauts moist air.

★ ★ ★

On an adjoining wall, a cupboard-counter installation houses the home office at one end and the sewing center at the other.

Good ideas include mounting the sewing machine on a pull-up board, like those used for mixers, and designing a section of counter that flips out to a four-foot-wide dressmaker's cutting board.

SEPARATE CABINET

Games, craft supplies, the children's toys and books are in another cabinet.

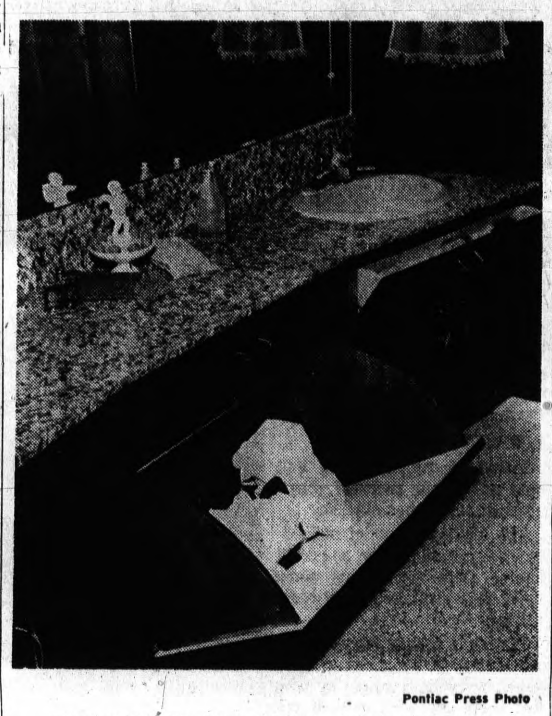

Even furniture is multi-purpose. Three couches built for the family room have thick foam pads set into box-style frames containing storage drawers. Two are twin-bed size; the third is only half as big.

Mounted on ball casters, the pieces can be pushed under wall-hung black bolsters to become sofas or pulled out to be used as beds.

Along with its purposeful built-ins, beauty also was woven into the family room's design. Butterscotch carpeting covers the floor, and couches, bolsters and window shades feature a bold cotton plaid of butterscotch, white and olive.

Walls and built-ins were tailored in vertical grain western hemlock lumber.

Countertops are white, and Chinese red appears in accessories.

TIP-OUTS — The Rudy Schulers of Oxford Township put the tip-out principle to work in a utility drawer and a built-in laundry hamper in the private bath opening off their master bedroom. The room's ebony formica is highlighted by shell chips in clear plastic.

Douse Fire First for Safety's Sake

Man-Made Fibers Give Home Carpets a Boost

Carpet has burst out of its living room bubble and is going everywhere.

Who knows? — When the first astronauts land on the moon, there just might be a red carpet rolled out to greet them.

★ ★ ★

And back here on earth, it's no longer unusual to walk into a house to find every room carpeted, with even a few area rugs atop wall-to-wall.

But if carpet is going everywhere, can any carpet go anywhere? There's no simple answer to this question.

ALL-PURPOSE USE

Some carpets are specially designed for all-purpose use, but look like traditional carpet.

These are usually called "indoor-outdoor" carpet. Not surprisingly, most of this type of carpet actually ends up inside the house. Because the color is added while the fiber is still in a liquid state (before it actually becomes yarn), the color is an integral part of the fiber and resists fading and stains.

★ ★ ★

This makes carpet of such fibers well-suited for active in-home areas like kitchens, dens, and game rooms, in addition to pool sides and patios.

Then, too, there are needlepunched carpets.

FELT-TYPES

These are the felt-like carpet that are also sometimes called "indoor-outdoor." And they, too, can usually go everywhere.

Relatively inexpensive and easy to install, one probably wouldn't put them in a living room but they're excellent for the kitchen, a child's room or other busy rooms.

★ ★ ★

Because there is no pile, dirt or spillage doesn't easily affect this carpet and, when used outdoors. They can be cleaned simply by hosing them down.

An interesting idea with needlepunched carpet is to put it on the wall. It takes an expert to install it, but the feeling of warmth and the sound control can make it worth the investment.

CARPET WALLS

And with the carpet on the wall, you don't need to worry about how to make a bare wall look interesting — the carpet does it all.

One of the most exciting developments in needlepunched carpet is prints.

Now you can find interesting patterns, from Spanish motifs to geometric designs, which give this type carpet a new fashion dimension.

★ ★ ★

And the carpets are extremely durable. So durable, in fact, that some companies guarantee qualifying needlepunched grades of acrylic fiber for three years. Such carpets are called Wear-Dated, just as in apparel and domestics.

Another trend underfoot in the carpet industry is developing fibers with special built-in properties.

BOON TO UPKEEP

Now, there are attempts to create fibers which will give carpet antisoil, antistatic characteristics.

There have been several such fibers around, but they have been used mainly for lobbies, offices and other public areas.

★ ★ ★

Cadon, an improved nylon from Monsanto, offers significant improvement in soil resistance and anti-static properties over regular nylon.

And while increased functionalism is added to carpets made with the fiber, aesthetics are not impaired.

ELEGANCE

In fact, Cadon has a richer luster, which gives a warm look of elegance.

Because of high performance combined with high style, such carpets could go everywhere except outdoors, but likelihood is they are better suited for living rooms, foyers, halls, bedrooms, dining rooms and dens.

And, of course, there are the general carpet classifications where you must determine what your needs are.

VERSATILE

For example, the great bulk of carpet manufactured today is applicable for general, non-specific use.

These are carpets such as those made of Acrilan or Cumuloft nylon fibers.

You wouldn't put them pool side, but there is no reason you would not want to carpet almost any area in your house with these carpets.

The question is simply whether your particular needs require carpet with particular, built-in qualities.

And, in the majority of cases, this is unnecessary.

Shoppers' Comfort

Stores Carpet Floors

"Shopper's feet" may be a complaint of the past, if one current trend continues.

All across the country, shoppers are discovering new comfort underfoot in supermarkets, drugstores, department stores — all with carpet on the floor.

★ ★ ★

The walking involved in the weekly marketing trip may not be lessened — but it's certainly more pleasant.

There's more than comfort involved, however, in this additional use of carpet. Store owners and managers are as pleased as their customers with the trend — for some very business-like reasons.

★ ★ ★

For one thing, don't think it will cost you more to shop in such an apparent atmosphere of luxury. The exact opposite is true.

Carpet reduces store maintenance costs simply because it takes less time to vacuum than to scrub, wax and polish — thus, lower labor costs.

In many stores, carpet is an important aid in reducing another item of overhead — breakage. The jar or box knocked from a shelf lands in safety on the carpeted floor, without loss or messy spills.

The noise problem, too, is overcome with carpet on the floor. Carpet is an acoustical floor covering which stops noise at the source and, again, provides a more restful, pleasant atmosphere for shoppers.

It frequently eliminates the need for other acoustical treatments in the building — another savings for store owners and managers.

All this — and color, too. The decorative atmosphere provided by carpet is a bonus for harried shoppers, an attractive background for merchandise.

If you haven't yet shopped in a carpeted store, you have a pleasant treat ahead of you. Just try it and see!

Lumber on Move in South

By the early 1900s, lumber manufacturing had been in progress in the South for three centuries and the incidence of cutover lands was increasingly and disturbingly evident. It was then generally believed that the Southern Pine forests were on the verge of extinction.

Amid this atmosphere of gloom, a group of far-sighted lumbermen introduced the practice of forestry to the region. These fathers of forestry were convinced that cutover areas could be reseeded naturally if brush fires were controlled.

★ ★ ★

They also felt that if trees were thinned as they grew rather than left in an overcrowded condition with only mature and small defective trees removed from time to time to make room for younger trees, a vast new forest would replace the old within sixty years.

★ ★ ★

Those dreams have since materialized. During the past quarter century, nearly 48 million acres of tree farms have been developed in the South — many by lumber companies. Tree farming has proven that with proper care of land and trees, permanent timber supply can be maintained.

NEW TECHNIQUES

Not only does the Southern Pine lumber industry grow, protect and otherwise manage trees, but it has also developed manufacturing techniques which are conservationist in character.

★ ★ ★

For example, sawlog debarking permits the conversion of slabs, edgings and other leavings of the saws to pulp chips for paper mills. About 20 per cent of the South's total raw material for pulpwood production now comes from the leftovers of lumbering.

Your Forced Air Furnace Needs Periodic Maintenance

Just because your furnace is working doesn't mean that it is working efficiently.

You can reduce fuel bills, make your house warmer and save wear and tear on your heating plant by keeping it tuned up.

★ ★ ★

The output of the furnace may not be increased, but less heat will be going up the chimney to warm the cold outdoors.

In a hot-air system, remember that effectiveness depends on efficient air distribution. One way to keep the warm air coming through the registers is to keep them clean.

VACUUM

Give them a regular vacuum cleaning along with the floors. Once every season you may wish to take them apart for a more thorough cleaning.

Keep the filter on the furnace clean. Changing the air filter at the beginning of the heating season is not enough. Imagine how much better the air would flow through the system with no filter at all.

★ ★ ★

Since that is impossible because dust would be blowing through your home all the time, do the next best thing by impeding the flow of air as little as possible.

As a layer of dirt builds up on the air filter, less warm air enters the house and more of it goes up the chimney. The furnace works harder to heat the house to the desired thermostat setting.

The blower should be kept clean. With the power turned off or the thermostat turned to a low setting so that the furnace and blower will not go on, clean out all dirt.

DUST, LINT

Dust and lint tend to accumulate on the fan blades, cutting down on their efficiency.

Check the fan belt for wear. Make certain it is not too slack. Replace worn belts.

★ ★ ★

Examine ductwork for leaks. Warm air escaping from seams in the ducts is warm air that is not heating your upstairs rooms. Seal these areas with special aluminum tape made for ducts.

Dampers on ducts leading to various rooms control the flow of warm air to these rooms. If temperatures vary two or three degrees from the thermostat setting, try adjusting the dampers.

A damper full open will offer no hindrance to a flow of air. Closing slightly will close off the flow of air and at the same time cause more heat to be sent to an adjacent room.

Why warm the cold outdoors?

FAN CONTROL

Make certain that the fan control (this is on the furnace) is working properly. The thermostat in your house turns on the heat but there is an interval before the fan goes on.

This is so that the fan does not distribute cold air to the house. When the air in the furnace is warm enough, the fan will go on if the control is properly set.

Once the heat is off, the fan will continue for a few minutes to distribute the last bit of warm air.

Making adjustments is the job of a trained man with proper equipment. But simple observation on your part will tell you if adjustment is necessary.

★ ★ ★

Check your thermostat if your house cools off too much before the furnace goes on and if it stays on too long. Rotate the control in either direction.

If it moves through more than a couple of degrees before the furnace goes on or off, something is wrong. If blowing out dust and wiping off controls have no effect, install a new thermostat. They are inexpensive.

Future Wealth From Nut Trees

With America decreasing its supply of valuable walnut by exporting millions of board feet of high quality logs each year, what this country needs, among other things, is a few more "Johnny Walnutseeds."

"Johnny Walnutseed," so proclaimed by the American Walnut Manufacturers' Association, is R. W. Daubendiek, who operates the Decorah (Ia.) Nursery, world's largest producer of black walnut seeds and seedlings.

★ ★ ★

Daubendiek has planted well over 1 million walnut trees for landowners.

"One thousand dollars invested in walnut plaintings in 1969," he says, "should bring a return of about $1 million in the next 50 years."

Build a Seat by Window

If your child's room has a standard size double-hung or casement window, why not build a storage window seat underneath?

Children love window seats, and if it's built 18 inches deep front-to-back and fitted with drawers, it can serve as a dresser.

★ ★ ★

Even better, make the unit one foot wider than the window on either side, or about six feet long overall.

Then frame the window on each side with a bookshelf unit reaching from window seat to ceiling.

BUILD SHELVES

Build shelves opening to the seat rather than out to the room, and your youngster will have a delightfully private nook in which to read, daydream and watch the world.

Reading lights can be attached to the bookcase frame, and the window can be curtained with a Roman shade attached at the ceiling line.

Watch Rose Leaves for Sign of Trouble

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

There are early visual symptoms to sound a trouble alarm for your rose bushes. Watch the leaves carefully.

Healthy rose bushes generally will have glossy green leaves with well-defined veins.

The Minnesota Rose Society has prepared a trouble and treatment chart:

• Foliage and veins pale green color. Weak spindly stems. Small flowers. Starts at bottom of plant and translocates. Poor growth.

• Leaves become brown or scorched on tips or edges. Noticed on lower and older leaves. Translocates. Slow stunted growth.

• Center of leaves remain green: edge turns brown, curls and dries up. Uneven growth appears at top of plant.

• Yellow or purple discoloration. Veins remain green. Normal growth. Leaves fall prematurely from bottom of plant upwards.

• Foliage pale in color. Veins are yellow. Appears at top of plant. Foliage pale green. Veins remain green. Stems turn yellow. Appears at top of new growth.

• Crowding of leaves, appears excessively healthy. New foliage malformed, mottled, may yellow. Found at top of plant.

• Pale spots on new foliage. Interveinal chlorosis mottled. On older leaves. Appears at to of plant.

• Chlorotic, small, thick leaves on short internode of stem. Failure of growing tops to develop.

They may indicate a deficiency of:

NITROGEN, necessary for: Plant cell growth. Plant respiration.

PHOSPHATE, necessary for: Root and stem growth. Color and substance in blooms.

POTASSIUM, necessary for: Formation of sugars and starches. Root and stem system. Color and substance in blooms.

CALCIUM, necessary for: Cell wall growth. Root development.

MAGNESIUM, necessary for: Green pigment for chlorophyll. Vital for photosynthetic process.

SULPHUR, necessary for: Root development. Protoplasm for growth.

IRON, necessary for: Catalyst in producing chlorophyll. Regulate respiration in plant cells.

★ ★ ★

BORON, necessary for: Sugar and starch transfer from cell to cell.

MANGANESE, necessary for: Enzyme systems.

ZINC, COPPER, MOLYBDENUM, Ensymatic process. Root metabolism.

These ailments may be corrected with applications of these rected with applications of these (O) organic or (I) inorganic fertilizers:

(O) Blood meal, cotton seed meal or manure. (I) Nitrate of soda or ammonia sulfate.

Glass Installation Not a Difficult Chore

Windows do break now and then. It could be due to a carelessly tossed or batted baseball, or a slingshot whose young owner didn't know it was loaded, or a wind-blown branch broken from a nearby tree in a storm.

While there are places in almost every town that will repair a broken window, they are not as accessible as they once were when every corner hardware store also handled odd jobs such as that.

★ ★ ★

You can, however, buy glass. Hardware stores, hardware departments of large stores, paint stores, almost all carry glass.

And while you can, with practice, learn to cut glass yourself there is seldom any need to. Most establishments that sell glass also will cut it to size.

MEASURE

The important thing in installing glass is to measure properly. Measure from inside of the sash opening.

Deduct ⅛ of an inch from both length and width. This will allow for the expansion and contraction of the frame with changes in the weather.

★ ★ ★

Measure more than once so that you are quite certain of the dimensions.

You will have to remove all of the old glass. Wear gloves to protect your hands while you do this job. Some putty will break out in chunks.

PROPER TOOLS

Use a knife or a wood chisel on the putty that doesn't. Be careful when you cut so that you do not gouge the wood.

★ ★ ★

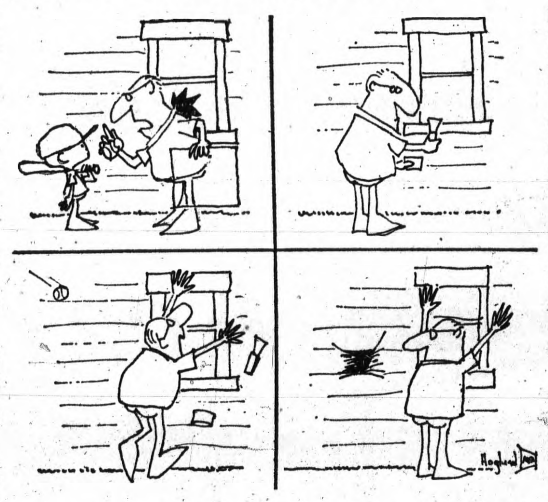

If the putty is stubborn, soften it with a soldering iron. Just touch the hot iron to it for a few moments.

You will notice small pieces of metal imbedded in the wood as you work. These are glazier's points and they should be removed, too. If you can't get them out with your fingers, use pliers or the edge of a putty knife.

Every tiny bit of putty, every glazier's point must be removed or the new glass will break when it is pressed into place.

LINSEED OIL

With the frame clean, brush on linseed oil where you will be setting new putty. This will prevent the new putty from drying out quickly.

Replacing a broken window is an easy task.

If you use glazing compound instead, the linseed oil is not absolutely necessary but it won't hurt since it keeps the wood in good condition.

★ ★ ★

Glazing compound will last longer than putty, will not dry out.

Whichever you use, take a small handful and roll it between your hands until it is the shape of a pencil. Press this into all four channels where the new glass will go.

TIGHT SEAL

This layer of compound will provide a smooth bed and a tight seal for the glass. Before you put the glass in place, sight along its surface.

There is a slight curve in it. The concave side (the inside of the curve) belongs on the inside of the window.

★ ★ ★

Now you will need glazier's points. If the old ones are bent or rusty, use new points. Tap them into the wood every four or five inches.

Now roll out some more putty and press it firmly into place all around the glass. Then take a putty knife and draw its edge along the fresh putty with a firm stroke to bevel it. Make it look like the other windows.

Wait a few days before painting. Meanwhile, clean the glass of putty stains with a turpentine-soaked rag.

Quality Building Ideas Accepted Necessities

Slate entryways, ceramic tile, wood paneling — these are just a few of the quality building products introduced first in expensive houses and now "standard" in many homes.

The maverick is aluminum siding. This product has reversed the process by starting as an economical remodeling product.

★ ★ ★

Now it is being increasingly accepted for both new residential construction and remodeling on homes valued at $75,000 or more.

Aluminum siding's wider use for homes in every price bracket can be traced to growing interest of home owners in building products offering low maintenance.

WEARY OF PAINTING

Suddenly, it seems, almost everyone is tired of painting every five or six years at heavy expense. Instead of saying "well it's time to paint again" the home owner is more likely to begin looking at possible alternatives.

The home owner knows that aluminum siding has been on the market for many years — for over 20 to be specific.

Further, today's product reflects the research and development efforts of industrial giants including the aluminum and paint producers, working in cooperation with aluminum siding manufacturers.

★ ★ ★

As a conservative estimate, the product has been installed on over 3,000,000 homes, with an excellent level of customer satisfaction.

The complaints which do occur can largely be traced to the installation itself.

★ ★ ★

Many manufacturers now have sepcial training programs underway to insure complete home owner satisfaction.

Dishwasher Hastens Cleaning

The sale of electric dishwashers has more than doubled in four years, and close to 10 million women now own one. There are several reasons for this surge in popularity.

Manufacturers have improved the product at the same time that they've lowered the price. The new models require almost no prerinsing or scraping except for the largest food particles. There are more wash and rinse cycles, so everything from delicate stemware to heavy pots and pans can be washed.

★ ★ ★

Some models have filtering devices that remove food particles after the wash cycle, so they can't be redeposited during the rinsing. Others liquify the particles and flush them away.

Some models have a prerinse-and-hold cycle that enables the homemaker to put in breakfast or lunch dishes, give them a quick rinse, then hold them until after the evening meal.

SAVE TIME, WATER

Thus the entire day's dishes can be washed at one time, saving on water, electricity and detergent. The new models are quieter and easier to load too.

Mothers with large families like automatic dishwashers because they're great time-savers. Working women like them for the same reason.

Washing dishes automatically is healthier since the dishwasher uses hotter water than human hands can stand.

Builder Has a Plan to Prevent Slums

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS
UPI Correspondent

The brand new communities taking shape today — what will they be like in 20 or 30 years?

The answer, of course, lies with the people who inhabit them. Will they care enough over the years to keep up the property, or will successive owners care less and less, letting the area slip gradually into disrepair and finally, into blight, creating yet another slum?

★ ★ ★

A large Tucson-based land developer thinks he has the answer to slum prevention in a new city concept that makes property owners financially responsible for the orderly development and perpetual maintenance of surroundings as a condition of ownership.

Joseph Timan, president of Horizon Corp., calls his concept the "Equity Cities" plan and has put it into practice in a preplanned community near El Paso, Texas.

COMMUNITY

Here, Timan says, land and home ownership is extended to include a partial ownership in the surrounding community through payment of a small annual fee into a trust fund administered by elected representatives of the property owners.

Thus residents not only own their houses and lots; they also have a "stockholder interest" in their community.

Timan hopes that by thus giving people a real stake in their environment slums and blight can de prevented from gaining a foothold.

★ ★ ★

He believes the Equity Cities plan is an appropriate solution to the "slowly building crisis of the suburbs," described in the report of President Johnson's Task Force on Suburban Problems.

The 10-man commission found that crime, decay and pollution problems of the suburbs are growing at the same rate as in the big cities.

PRACTICE

Timan's concept is being put into practice at the Horizon Corporation's Mountain Shadow Estates, designed by Victor Gruen Associates, Inc., to comprise six distinctive villages on a 14,000-acre tract.

Upon buying land in the community, Timan explained, each new property owner becomes a member of a nonprofit corporation known as the Horizon Communities Improvement Association, Inc.

★ ★ ★

Each property owner is assessed $10 yearly, per lot or living unit. Industrial and commercial property is assessed at $3 per 1,000 square feet.

The money goes into a banking trust fund to be used only for the purposes detailed in the convenants outlined in the articles of incorporation of the association.

No investor can drop out of membership which, along with the annual assessment, is part of irrevocable convenants running with the land for four years.

The HCIA fund is administered by a board of directors elected annually by the membership.

Timan noted that the boards of directors of organizations like HCIA are meant to function outside of local government, with no powers except to enforce cleanups, order repairs of facilities and make design improvements.

★ ★ ★

Timan sees two key benefits to investors in communities established under the Equity Cities plan:

- It provides an assured pool of money for the orderly development of the community, thus protecting the investment of property owners.
- It provides financial means and an organization devoted to the maintenance, beauty and continuing enhancement of the entire community, thus diminishing the likelihood of slums and blight.

"To be sure," Timan says, "full development of an Equity city will take time, perhaps 20, even 30 years. But it is a virtual certainty that when it does reach maturity the community will not be a tired, decaying patchwork like so many towns today.

"It will be a clean, well-kept, up-to-date community, ready for the 21st Century."

Ensemble Can Brighten Bath

The hardest part of most home decorating projects is deciding where to begin — particularly if budget and time limitations will delay the completion.

An easy answer, at least for the bathroom in need of glamorizing, is offered by a maker of carefree knitted deep-pile accessories.

★ ★ ★

Four-piece basic bath ensembles consisting of luxurious lid and tank covers, plus a 24x36-inch oval rug, are designed to transform any drab bathroom into a real color showcase.

The sets are perfectly matched in a wide range of vivid hues and dainty pastels, plus basic black and white. They make ideal gifts, too. Luxury Mona Lisa ensembles, featuring a new polyester-acrylic blend you can dry automatically after washing.

Electricity Is Good Bargain

Electricity is proving to be one of the best bargains available to the American family. While the cost of living has increased by 121 per cent in the last 25 years, the cost of electricity has decreased by 44 per cent.

And Americans are taking advantage of this inexpensive source of power. The majority of the country's households now have at least nine different electrical appliances. The most popular are: radios, refrigerators, television sets, toasters, vacuum cleaners, clothes washers, steam irons, food mixers and coffeemakers.

★ ★ ★

Electricity is also being used in another way in the home which is becoming more popular according to General Electric's Construction Market Development Operation — electric heating and cooling — for total-electric living.

Today, almost 3.5 million homes are heated by electricity. By 1975, it is estimated that nearly 7.5 million homes and apartments will enjoy the advantages of electric climate control systems. In 1968 alone, over 350,000 electrically heated living units were added to the national total.

ADVANTAGES

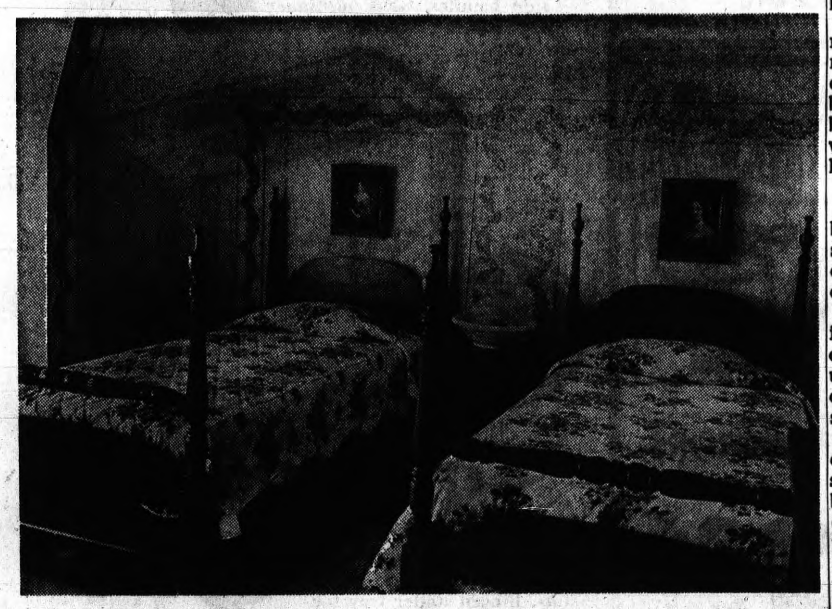

The inherent characteristics of electricity provide many advantages over traditional heating fuels. Electricity allows each room to be individually heated to the desired temperature. It is quiet since the system contains few, if any moving parts. No chimney heat loss is experienced with electric heat because no chimney is necessary — no waste gases are produced.

Flameless electric heat also makes house cleaning chores much easier since there is none of the soot or grime produced by heating systems using combustible fuels — and a feature welcomed by today's busy homemaker.

★ ★ ★

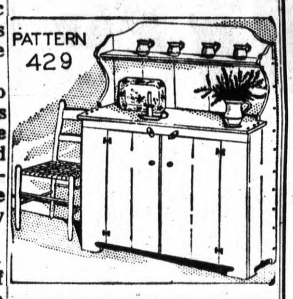

An ever growing number of builder-developers are likewise selecting electric heating and cooling for their apartment complexes and single-family communities because of its inherent features such as increased design freedom, more usable space, easier and faster construction, and greater tenant satisfaction.

In addition, the variety of different electrical heating systems available permit the builder to use the system and equipment precisely suited to the requirements of the climate and the structure he is building.

Formal Elegance Marks The Living Room's Predominately French Decor In Mr. and Mrs. George Lindoerfers' Spacious Trilevel In Novi Township

Rebuilt Twice in Four Years

BY JODY HEADLEE
Home Editor, The Pontiac Press

Gutted by fire twice in four years, the rebuilt home of the George Lindoerfers stands as a monument to one family's courage.

A defective lighting fixture and and unsuspected electrical overload caused the tragedies.

★ ★ ★

"The fires were terrible," said Mrs. Lindoerfer, her attractive face clouding with memories. "Not only did we lose two of our favorite poodles, Si Belle and Black Becky, but so many of the things a family collects — things that can never be replaced, like baby pictures — were all destroyed too.

"If I have any word of warning," she said nodding her head in emphasis, "it's make sure you're adequately insured."

Rebuilt by the Niemla Construction Co. of Farmington, the trilevel's interior decor was implemented by Mrs. Lindoerfer.

★ ★ ★

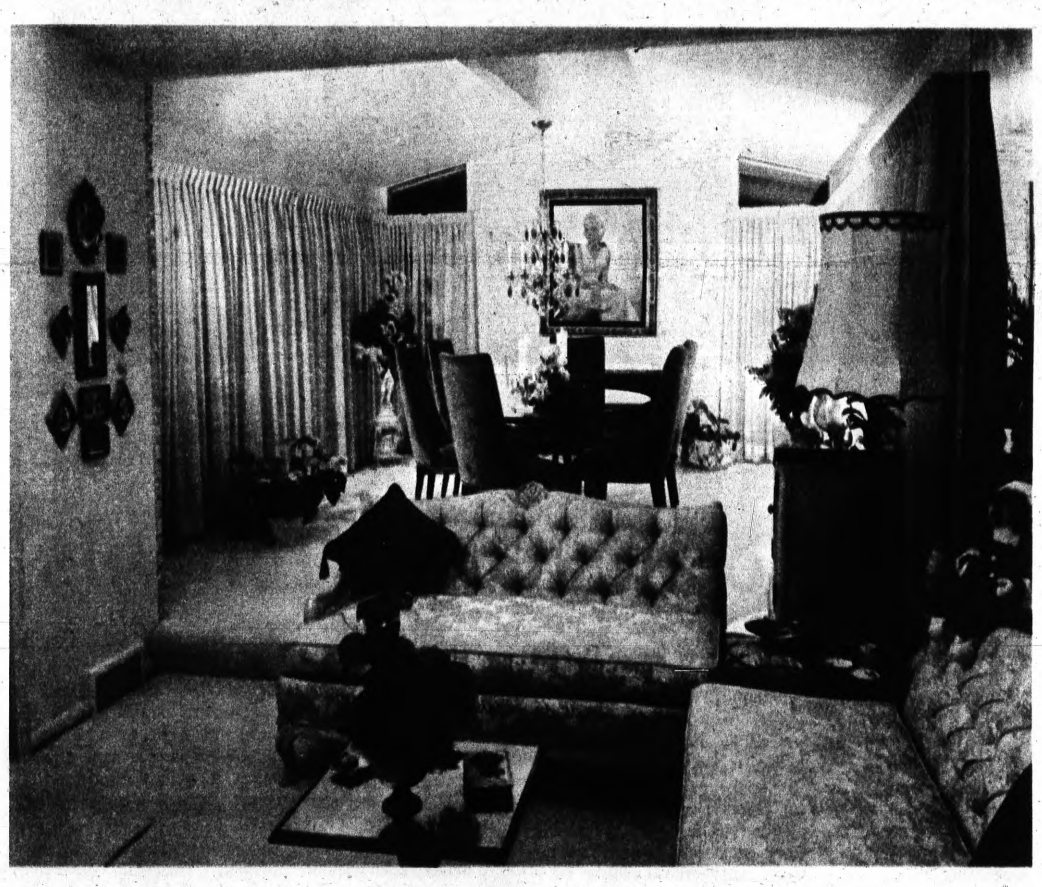

Rich brocades, deep-piled carpeting and luxurious velvets in royal purple, white and shocking pink foster the feeling of elegance in the formal living and dining areas.

On the wall beneath the ceiling planter is a collection of dog paintings by Mrs. Lindoerfer.

"The one in the center is Si-Belle," said Mrs. Lindoerfer, "And the miniatures are of Black Becky and the three we have now, Susie, Jo and Sam."

One step leads to the formal dining area enclosed in glass to overlook the patio and pool. The base of the glass-topped table resembles a massive flower nestled in tree branches.

Nationwide System Can Assist Local Governments

The inauguration of the commercial computer as a public service is now underway. Until this writing, most applications of electronic "think power" have been jealously guarded by select users, and even the nation's legislators have taken a back seat and are required to compute their own opinions of the federal budget by means of pencil and paper.

In Columbus, Ohio, there is a relatively small group of men who have dedicated themselves in the preparation of a highly specialized computer service designed to protect as well as serve the average citizen.

NEW COMPANY

The new company has been named the Compraisal Corporation, and this designation is the result of joining two words . . . computer and appraisal. The nationally available service offered is totally different from any other in the U.S. in that it has been developed to provide momentary market value estimates for single-family residential property for the purpose of tax assessment.

Available to local government tax authorities on an as need basis, the service is capable of saving local tax payers millions of dollars each year in performing the difficult task of estimating home values and the follow-on job of assessing taxes.

★ ★ ★

With the advent and availability of the computerized service, the home owner is assured of a degree of accuracy never before possible in determining the value of his home as well as the application of local tax rates to his property.

MAXIMUM EQUITY

In addition to accuracy, the service assures maximum equity for the taxpayer and a maximum of honesty via the electronic capability of the most powerful computer facility ever put to this end use, anywhere in the world.

With the "market-approach-to-value" about to replace the time worn and certainly other than equitable method of providing assessent values by determining replacement cost, the computerized program renders all decisions based on a total analysis of comparable sales.

In rendering this service to a local taxing government, the program provides a means of analyzing both qualitative and quantitative data on as many as 140 variables on literally thousands of property sales. The resulting decisions relating to the fair market value for individual properties have already proven to present the highest known degree of accuracy.

HOW PROGRAM WORKS

The order of events are as follows. An adequate random sample of verified home sales for individual areas is first programmed and thus becomes the "data bank." Up to 140 data items may be entered for each omparable sale used by the program. (Data from a single source is never relied upon, and many sources are utilized to provide a cross-check of information.) The data bank is kept current by a daily recording of sales.

Properties to be appraised are inspected, and physical characteristics of each are recorded on tailored-to-the-area data in-put sheets supplied. Special information pertaining to individual properties relative to social and economic conditions of neighborhoods are also noted.

★ ★ ★

As inspections are completed, data entry sheets are transmitted for processing.

Data from each property inspection sheet is keypunched on several computer cards which are then presented to a verifier which assures the accuracy of each computer in-put card.

Information is then introduced into the computer for permanent storage and reference.

UP-TO-DATE

Verified sales in each area serve to constantly up-date the data bank (actually on a daily basis). Computer analysis for property value takes into consideration all physical characteristics such as age, size, condition, number of rooms and baths, etc., as well as location, and social and economic conditions.

From this point on, each sale, fed to the data bank, serves to make a contribution to the valuation process. The myriad sale is then statistically analyzed in the computer and an accurate value judgment is expressed as a "number" . . . a number which is the estimated fair market value for a given single-family residence.

★ ★ ★

Once the market approach method of estimating value is completed, a "fail-safe" program takes over. In addition to valuation, details of the most recent comparable sales in the subject neighborhood can be set forth for documentation of the valuation conclusion.

Utilizing a powerful computer capability, preloaded with all specific data having measurable impact on real estate value, the service can offer taxing authorities a reduction in operating costs and maximum taxpayer equity.

AVAILABLE NATIONALLY

Values to the assessor don't stop there. The nationally available service can reduce the local assessment cycle, provide authorities with access to a perpetual data bank and facilitate reevaluation of their entire tax portfolio as needed.

The follow-on advantages are, of course, obvious. The service can save local governments many dollars each year, the computer approach provides maximum equity for the taxpayers themselves. Further, it is only a short step to provide authorities with the actual tax for each residence within any given municipality.

The digital computer utilized for assessment valuations is a powerful third-generation system. Principal on-line components of the system include: a high-speed central processor with associated core memory of 65,536 60-bit words and a 1 microsecond access time; ten peripheral and control processors, each with its own additional core memory of 4096 12-bit words; a 171 million-character disk file; four disk pack drives; six magnetic tape units; one time sharing multiplexer; two 1200-card-per-minute card readers; two 250-card-per-minute card punches; two 1000 line-per-minute printers; one 500-line-per-minute printer; a Calcomp 565 plotter; one paper tape reader-punch; and one remote terminal consisting of a card reader, printer, and keyboard display.

The ten peripheral and control processors, together with other design and organization features of the 6400, permit a high degree of concurrency in component operation. Under the SCOPE operating system, a number of jobs can be undergoing some form of input-output or peripheral processing simultaneously.

In addition, different jobs may reside in central memory at the same time and share the central processor for computation. Instruction execution times in the central processor are at most a few microseconds.

10-Point Timetable Will Take Confusion Out of Moving

The difference between a move that is harried, hasty and fatiguing and one that goes smoothly is advance planning.

If a move is in the offing, there are numerous things that have to be done in a limited period of time. The wise family makes preparations as far in advance as possible and follows a "thing to do" timetable.

★ ★ ★

Here's what your moving timetable might consist of:

● Make an inventory of your belongings, not forgetting garage, attics, basements and storage areas. Set aside goods you do not plan moving and make arrangements to dispose of them.

★ ★ ★

● Call movers to go over with them what will be moved, get estimates and find out what additional services they offer. When you decide on which mover you will use, set a moving date well in advance.

● If your mover will do the packing, you need only concern yourself with plants, pets, and jewelry, things which cannot go in the van. If you plan doing the packing, obtain proper cartons and packing instructions from the mover and space the packing job over several days, not the last day or two.

INFORM UTILITIES

● Let the telephone company, electric and gas company, water company, milkman, post office, school, bank, doctor, etc. know you are moving; obtain necessary records and papers; arrange for discontinuance of services; send change of address cards to magazines, friends, insurance, etc. Arrange with service firms to disconnect heavy appliances and prepare them for shipment.

● Write ahead to your new location to arrange for the starting up of the same services you are discontinuing in your old one.

● If you are moving long-distance, plan your route in advance (your interstate moving firm can help you here) and make advance overnight sleeping arrangements.

★ ★ ★

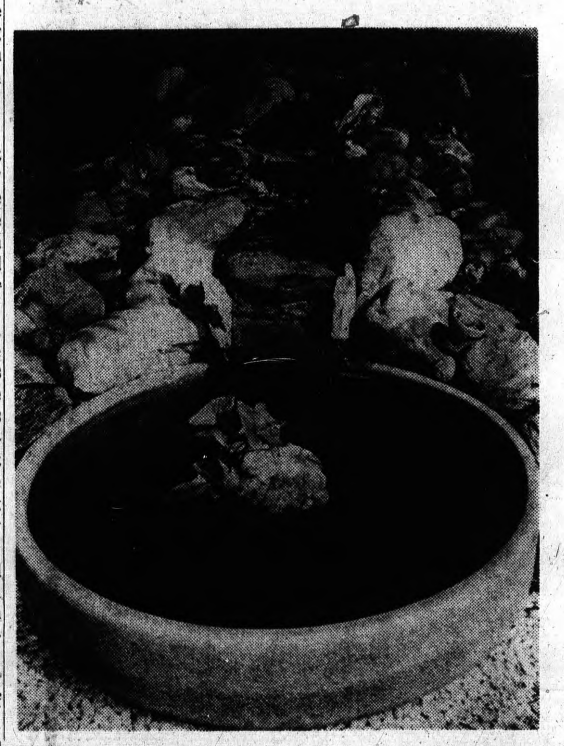

● Make a list of the things you will take with you in your car such as a change of clothes; toiletries; first-aid kit; prescriptions; bottles; formula.

● If you have small children, arrange for them to spend moving day at friends or relatives. This will cut down on their and your undue excitement.

● Make sure you have sufficient cash, travelers' checks or certified check to pay the mover when he unloads, unless you have made credit arrangements in advance.

● Don't try to do everything at once. If you start early enough, you can give yourself one moving chore each day and have everything accomplished by moving time with a minimum of strain.

Are You Ready to Fight Fires

Does your home have a fire extinguisher?

Every home should be equipped with one or some form of firefighting apparatus.

★ ★ ★

Standard galvanized steel pails used for household chores should be kept in a central location to be used as water buckets in case of emergency.

Better than fire-fighting equipment (important as it is) is fire prevention.

CLEAN HOUSE

A clean house seldom burns, local fire prevention officers point out in urging home owners to take a close look at their properties for fire hazards.

Homemakers are urged to check their closets, attics, garages and basements for flammable items such as old clothes, oil rags, newspapers and magazines.

Furnaces, ranges, water heaters and other heating units should be examined carefully by a competent serviceman.

★ ★ ★

Don't use flammable fluids indoors. Tightly-closed fire-safe steel cans should be used to store all fuel needed for any motors used around the house.

Solution Stops Mildew

It is important to remove all areas of mildew from your house before repainting.

Otherwise, the growth will continue through the new coat of paint.

The following solution is effective for cleaning such areas: 3 ounces of trisodium phosphate (found in Oakite, Soilax and Spic and Span); 1 ounce detergent (such as Tide, All, Calgonite); 1 quart of household bleach; and 3 quarts of warm water. Scrub the solution onto the affected area with a medium soft brush. Rinse thoroughly with fresh water.

Fire kills about 11,500 persons yearly in the United States. Nearly 30 per cent of the victims are children.

Burn Trash in Covered Container

Spring housecleaning usually brings out a wealth of trash, much of which can be burned.

This material should be burned in a way that eliminates the possibility of having the fire get out of hand, fire safety experts caution.

★ ★ ★

They suggest the best way is to burn the material in a metal rubbish burner.

These burners have perforated sides and covers which permit the trash to burn rapidly without danger of having flaming particles float away to adjoining buildings.

Competition for Mortgage Market Funds Most Keen

Inflationary pressures and the search for protection of capital have brought about major changes in the structure of the mortgage money market, according to the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The report of the annual spring mortgage study of NAREB's Department of Research added, "Expectation that inflation will continue has led investors to reassess equity versus fixed-yield holdings. Others, believing that correction of the inflationary spiral will be a lengthy process, are taking a breather in the short term market."

★ ★ ★

Thus, the competition for mortgage funds is keen between the single-family residential and the income property sectors.

The study, based on returns from 190 realtors for the single-family residential picture and 108 realtors for the income property situation, must be viewed in light of the dates involved. The questionnaires were mailed March 10, and the returns closed two weeks later for tabulation. Both the prime and discount rates have been raised, and banks' reserve requirements have been increased in the interim.

The NAREB study found housing demand strong, with savings and loan associations continuing as a source of home financing in many areas. However, the insurance companies have all but vanished from the home mortgage market, preferring instead an equity or near equity position.

For some communities, the outlook is relatively bright with local investors meeting home mortgage requirements. Areas more dependent on the interstate flow of funds face harsher times, particularly in those areas in which usury law ceilings are below the current average of conventional loans.

Availability of conventional loans in the new home market, was considered moderate in 45 per cent of the responses and ample in 34 per cent, down from the 45 per cent ample supply six months earlier.

Similar loans for existing homes in good neighborhoods were considered in moderate supply by 42 per cent of the responses and ample by 33 per cent. Six months ago, 43 per cent reported ample supplies and 46 reported moderate supplies of mortgage funds. Availability was listed as tight in the remainder of the areas.

As expected, the NAREB study found average interest rates had risen substantially, but, even so, do not reflect fully market conditions because of statutory ceilings. Conventional loans on new homes were reported at 7.50 per cent for 43 per cent of the nation, 7.75 for 19 per cent, and 7.00 for 20 per cent. These compare with 7.00 per cent for 37 per cent of the nation last fall, 7.25 in 28 per cent, and 7.50 in 23 per cent. Rates varied in other parts of the country.

HOME MARKET

In the existing home market, a similar pattern exists with 7.50 per cent noted in 38 per cent of the responses and 7.75 in 22 per cent. Six months ago, 34 per cent reported rates of 7.00, 29 per cent reported 7.25, and 25 per cent reported 7.50.

The NAREB report noted "there is little optimism in the outlook for the VA-guaranteed home mortgage market. The same competition from business property, with its attractive yields and participation potential, is effective here as in the FHA single-family market.

"The optimistic outlook expressed last fall regarding FHA home mortgages did not materialize, and this disappointment clouds the future in many communities. On the other hand, in some areas, lenders whose past interest in FHA loans was minimal are reported to be entering the current market. The could be an important source," the NAREB report predicted.

For income properties, investors are placing a greater emphasis on equity holding or some form of income participation. The report found a number of types of "equity participation" or "inflation protection" in use and noted a recent trend toward a combination of participation in gross and in net receipts.

★ ★ ★

"There is very little financing of large projects today that does not involve equity participation. Higher ratio loans are being granted in a majority of cases but the question is moot in some areas because of the shortage of capital," the report said.

INTEREST RATES

Interest rates on conventional financing of multi-family new construction have risen sharply in the past six months. Rates for high-rise apartments of 200 units or more are reported at 8.25 per cent and 8.50 in a majority of cases.

★ ★ ★

The 8.50 per cent rate was quoted by 39 per cent of the cities and 8.25 was reported by 29 per cent. Six months ago, 38 per cent reported an 8.00 per cent rate, 28 per cent reportd 7.75, and 25 per cent reported 7.50. Demand for loans has continued strong and the volume of multi-family starts is high.

★ ★ ★

Rates on modest sized (20-59 units) projects were reported at 8.50 per cent by 45 per cent, 8.25 by 18 per cent and 8.00 by 18 per cent.

Supplies of funds for new high rise buildings of 200 units or more were reported moderate by 44 per cent of the areas and tight by 40 per cent. Modest sized projects (20-59 units) had a harder time getting funds, reported tight in 55 per cent of the areas and moderate in 33 per cent.

"Despite high interest rates, augmented discounts in some cases, and equity participation in most large developments, resources are limited in most communities. Reports of moderate or tight (conditions) predominate for each of the six classes of new apartment construction covered in the survey.

"The sale and financing, or re-financing, of existing multi-family buildings competes with new construction for mortgage loans. Interest rates average a little higher.

"The practice of charging discount points had continued and increased," it was noted.

Despite the strong credit position of borrowers who offer as security a prime location commercial property with a national credit lease, loans are less accessible than they were six months ago and are more costly. A moderate supply of funds is reported in 48 per cent of the areas, about the same ratio as six months ago (47 per cent), but tight conditions have increased from 14 to 31 per cent.

Prevalent interest rates of 8.00 per cent to 8.25 are reported in a majority of cases, where six months ago the rate was more likely 7.50.

VALUABLE SPACE—"I could never get along without it," confessed Ruhmann, opening the door to compact convenience. Movable shelves house books and reference papers to keep them handy should a difficult question arise.

MAN AT WORK—"It's not always neat," confessed Mrs. Ruhmann, speaking of her husband's study. "But it certainly is convenient." The hide-away study can be hidden from view simply by pulling shut its two folding doors. A telephone extension adds to the area's effectiveness.

DOLL HOUSE—The doll house at Dr. and Mrs. Charles R. Beckers in Avon Township is off limits to their daughters Mindy 3 and Heather 2 . . . at least for a few years. The three-story is Mrs. Becker's hobby and is complete from the nesting chicken in the crate near the front porch to the tiny mice in the catch-all attic under the eaves. "My husband built the house," said Mrs. Becker, "but I finished it." The upholstered furniture pieces, quilts and rugs were all made by Mrs. Becker as was the tiny weather vane. Panels of Plexiglas protect the collection from curious fingers and dust.

Transform Linen Storage Into Gift-Wrap Center

A linen closet can be a gift wrapping center, too, when properly designed. Include one long shelf that pulls out breadboard style to become a work counter.

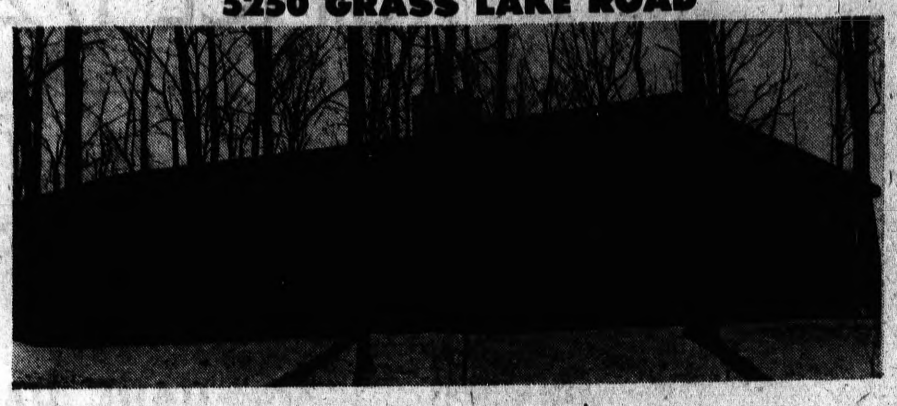

Add a tall compartment for rolls of gift paper on end; secure them with a length of elastic.

★ ★ ★

Folded paper can go in shallow wire bins on the back of the door. Put ribbon spools over a dowel nailed to a base of 2x4; store on a shelf.

Customized Touch in Home Sought

Prospective homebuyers today seek individuality in a home — whether or not it is a custom house.

Dramatic use of materials is often a way to provide a "customized" touch.

★ ★ ★

Bedroom walls and floors of ceramic tile, for example, have long been a feature of Mediterranean houses and, in individual colors, patterns and textures, can provide impressive decorative effects.

Arrange Bath Storage Area

Do you have an old-fashioned bathroom with lots of space but no place to put anything?

That's typical of many bathrooms in older homes, where fixtures are widely separated with nothing but bare walls beteeen.

★ ★ ★

The solution is a remodeling job that includes well-planned built-ins. For example, a free-standing lavatory can be replaced with twin lavatories mounted in a countertop.

The space under the extended counter can be devoted entirely to drawers, entirely to shelves or to a combination of both. Alternately, one section can be fitted with a pullout clothes hamper.

TWIN BOWLS

Of course, the twin bowls in the countertop are a convenience in themselves, especially during the morning rush hour. Moreover, the lavatories come in a wide range of styles, so that they can really become the focal point of a beautiful new bathroom.

Another bare wall in the room can be devoted to floor-to-ceiling cabinets with handsome fronts. Most old-fashioned bathrooms also have plenty of room for medicine cabinets with two and even three compartments and a wide expanse of mirror that gives the bathroom an overall look of luxury.

★ ★ ★

Another way to utilize waste space in an old bathroom is to turn it into two complete bathrooms or to partition it in such a way that the tub is on one side and the lavatory and water closet on the other.

Wood Hues Vary in Acceptance

Different people like different wood finishes. Scandinavians prize the orangy-gold coloring of Douglas fir paneling and cabinetwork and usually finish this wood clear.

Americans often prefer more subtle wood tones and will stain fir a darker shade or bleach it to palest beige.

Ingenuity Becomes Determining Factor

A good year for the single-family home market if realtors display ingenuity in finding financing was recently predicted by the president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Among the favorable factors for this segment of the industry noted by John Cotton, San Diego, are that household formations are continuing at a rapid rate and that "more people have higher wages and many have higher take-home pay than ever before. He added in his speech that taste, expectations, and demands are high for luxury and quality.

Turning to the financial situation, Cotton observed, "Whether we like it or not, the current high (interest) rate is the inevitable result of supply and demand as it relates to money. If interest on our commodity were not at a higher rate than that on commercial loans, our lenders would be out of the market in this period of short money supply."

He said also that in this period of increasingly high interest rates, there is a less gloomy side, which is the amount of the "constant."

"This term 'constant' refers to the total annual installment of principal and interest on a real estate loan," Cotton explained. "If I paid $75 monthly on a $10,000 loan, my total payment would be $900 annually, or 9 per cent of $10,000, or 9 per cent 'constant'."

In the late 1920's, he continued, an interest rate of 8.4 per cent was not at all unusual, but generally there was no payment on principal at all until maturity, "and so the constant was 8.4 per cent — perfectly manageable in a householder's budget.

"Between 1933 and 1940, the Home Owner's Loan Corporation, FHA, and institutional sellers charged 5 or 6 per cent interest on a 10- to 12-year payout. One per cent payment per month was usual. This meant a 12 per cent annual constant.

"This fit into homemakers' budgets in that era."

Cotton continued by recalling that as the interest rates have risen, the extended life of loans has increased, too.

"A few years ago, an 18½-year loan at 6½ per cent developed a 9¼ per cent constant." Later, a 20-year loan at 7 per cent developed approximately a 9¼ per cent constant and so did a 22-year loan at 7½ per cent and a 25-year loan at 8 per cent. Now a 30-year loan at 8½ per cent develops a 9¼ per cent constant.

He commented that today's 9¼ per cent constant is well below the 12 per cent constant to which most home buyers were accustomed in the 1930's.

Pine Industry Doubles Harvest

The extent to which industrial forestry has progressed in the South can be appreciated from the fact that in 1968 the growth of Southern Pine once again exceeded the rate of harvest despite these immense 1968 product yields:

- Nearly 7 billion board feet of lumber — enough to build a million homes.
- The bulk of the South's pulpwood, which accounts for three-fifths of the nation's total supply.
- About 2.4 billion square feet of plywood — 17 per cent of the nation's total.
- More than 80 per cent of the nation's pressure treated wood poles — plus growing quantities of glued laminated lumber, chemicals and other products.

The South has 47 million of the nation's 73 million acres of tree farms.

Chemical Warfare Save Bird Friends

Recently, Conservationists and Audubon Clubs have joined forces with an archenemy — chemical warfare — in an attempt to save bluebirds and purple martins from possible extinction.

Ravaging larvae, deposited in bluebird and purple martin nests by the blow or bluebottle fly or by the screwworm fly, are killing off large numbers of young nestling birds through a parasitic, blood-sucking process, according to alarmed Audubonists.

★ ★ ★

The hand-operated "plunger" type insecticide duster is being recommended by conservationists and Audubon Clubs throughout the U.S. in their modern-day fight to save bluebirds and purple martins.

Cited are members of the Grand Rapids Audubon Society, leaders of a move to organize bird lovers throughout the Midwest and Atlantic Seaboard for the purpose of restoring bluebird populations and conserving other valued species. The bird lovers claim that effective control measures are both simple and inexpensive.

Periodically dusting the bird's nest and eggs with a one-half or one percent roetenone powder — long time favored as a general dusting powder for canaries, parakeets, and other household pets — will bring larvae and nest mites under control.

Roetenone is readily available in pet shops, variety, hardware, and garden stores. The dusting procedure is simple, and the hand duster is inexpensive and easy to use.

★ ★ ★

After the loading cap is removed from the duster, the roetenone powder is poured in, then, a few short pumps of the handle, with the nozzle aimed directly into the entrance hole of the bird house, will eliminiate all existing larvae and mites.

For complete protection, repeat once a week from the time the nest is completed, until the first egg is hatched.

Grand Rapids Audubon Society officials claim that when the above recommended procedure is followed, dusting does not interfere with the birds' nesting habits, and the birds will return to the nest immediately.

Special care, however, should be taken so as not to disturb the next while it is being built.

Garden Mural Brightens Walls

Here's a different idea for a basement party room. Paint a garden mural on the walls, using a snapshot of your own garden as a guide.

★ ★ ★

Frame the mural with a wainscot of picket fencing. Paint the ceiling yellow, use lots of yellow and gold in furnishings, and you'll think you're in the sunny outdoors.

Floor Meets Eye, Choose Carefully

It's the floor that first meets your eye when you enter a home for the first time. Consequently, the flooring material used in a foyer or entrance hall is very important and should be chosen carefully.

You can't go wrong with a quality material such as ceramic tile. Tile, the trade association notes, is not only a highly decorative surfacing, but it's easy to clean and will last the life of your home.

City Land Shortage Is Housing Problem

By JAMES L. SRODES
UPI Correspondent

George Romney will have many problems when he takes over as the Nixon administration's Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. But none so tough as the shortage of land.

As big as it is, this nation of ours has a land shortage — a scarcity of suitable land for the construction of moderate-priced housing and a critical shortage of land for all purposes where it counts most — in the cities.

★ ★ ★

How firmly the former Michigan governor takes charge of developing a landuse policy for this nation will determine in large measure on how successful we are in meeting both housing needs and the demands of our mushrooming cities.

And the pressure is on.

A series of reports by the President's Commission on Urban Problems carries a warning from the Johnson administration to those who will be shaping policies for the next four Republican years.

The Commission surveys of land use in urban areas showed that land values have doubled in the last 10 years, thereby putting tremendous pressures on housing costs, on industrial and transportation development and on basic urban planning.

★ ★ ★

To compound the problem, one of the studies showed that at least 20 per cent of central city property in 160 major cities is sitting idle as vacant lots.

★ ★ ★

"Tremendous increases in the value of taxable land in this country — from $269 billion to $523 billion between 1956 and 1966 alone — explain many of the most urgent problems of the cities and their suburbs," said Commission Chairman Paul H. Douglas.

RISING PRICES

"The rising prices of land and the expectations they generate have been major factors in the high cost of housing and are among the most important causes of wasteful land-use patterns.

"The picture is not wholly grim however. These same rising land values, if properly tapped through changes in state, local and federal tax systems, can and should be primary keys to solving the financial crisis that plagues so many of our cities."

★ ★ ★

With about one-third of all city land owned by governments, the wasteful use of land owned by private sources takes on larger proportions.

★ ★ ★

About one-third of all private land is in the urban centers in vacant lot form with another third being "wasted" by residential use, the survey found.

★ ★ ★

Industrial use by commercial firms, manufacturers and railroads usually takes up between 8 and 16 per cent of the land in larger cities, the survey said.

ZONING

With revision of urban zoning laws, changes of tax structures to favor full use of property in the city centers, and a massive dollor assault on housing construction, the nation's urban areas could offer a better future to its inhabitants, the Commission concluded.

Floor Support Bears Weight of House

According to the Southern Pine Association, floor supporting structures have three vital responsibilities:

- bearing the weight of the entire house;
- holding home and foundation together under stress of violent winds;
- walking comfort.

Lumber is extensively used for floor structures because of its resilient strength — an ability to sustain and cushion the shock of great loads. But not just any kind will do.

★ ★ ★

The association recommends lumber that has been properly seasoned and pre-shrunk before being surfaced to final size. Seasoning assures the ideal balance of stiffness and resiliency for walking comfort.

It's also a key safety factor since nails will not loosen in pre-shrunk lumber as they do when unseasoned material dries in service.

Avoid Damage

Water from a leaky pipe can cause untold damage in a matter of minutes. That's why every adult in the family, including teen-agers, should know where to turn off the water in case of an emergency.

Crisp Air Given by Felt, Boards

Can't find just the right headboard for your soon-to-be-redecorated bedroom? There are more ways than one to skin this tabby.

★ ★ ★

A leading California designer got a "wow" effect by combining painted boards with felt. The room's color scheme was green-and-white, so he applied green felt to the walls with double-faced tape.

★ ★ ★

Then he nailed white-painted, 1x6-inch boards over the felt, spacing them about two inches apart.

★ ★ ★

The three-dimensional treatment was carried across the entire headboard wall, but lamps with opaque white glass shades were hung from the ceiling on either side of the bed to define the headboard area.

Modern Househunter Seeks More Than Shelter in Household

Good design, good looks and good materials are making the difference in today's house sales.

Housing experts state that it's no longer enough to offer homeowners a house that provides shelter, especially if those homeowners are second-time buyers and have learned through experience what they want in a home.

Commenting on modern homeowners' demands, the National Association of Home Builders says that good house proportions, attention to exterior line and beauty, and an emphasis on durability and low maintenance are sure ways of appealing to the buying public.

Homeowners' requirements also include: rooms that permit both family living and individual privacy; easily accessible — and private — outdoor areas such as an atrium or shielded patio; sensible room arrangements and good traffic patterns, and lots of convenient storage space.

PROPER MATERIALS

The combination of low care, long wear, and good looks is easy to achieve — inside and out — say the experts, through the proper use of building materials.

An interior example is the extensive use of hardboard paneling, which is attractive, sturdy and easy to clean, in hallways, recreation rooms, dining areas, and even bedrooms and living rooms.

To meet exterior requirements, many builders use asphalt roofing shingles which offer efficient weather protection and are designed by the manufacturer for many years of maintenance-free service.

Asphalt shingles have the added advantage of adaptable good looks, because they are available in a variety of colors, including white, black, pastels and blends which allow color coordination between the roof and other exterior elements of a house.

There are even "earth" and "forest" colors — shades of brown and green — which make it easy to harmonize the roof with the house site and surroundings.

OTHER FEATURES

Other exterior features that are getting attention from builders and buyers are: windows which add to good house proportion, permanent color and no-paint sidings, and authentic architectural styling — homeowners who want a contemporary house will no longer settle for one glass wall and a modern-looking planter.

Early American, Modern Follow

Spanish Fad Tops Decorating Scene

Ole! . . . it's Spanish that is tops in the season's furnishings designs, closely followed by Early American and modern styles. And, reports from the International Home Furnishings Market held at the American Furniture Mart, Chicago, indicate that homemakers looking for designs with a French or Italian flair will also find them at their favorite retailer.

The Spanish has selections that range from the very ornate, rococo and baroque treatments to relatively simple lines. And, there are many elements of romance design from Mexico, Central America and from Peru in particular.

★ ★ ★

The manufacturers have increased the use of carvings, moldings and detailings of historic origin. These features are very, very wood-like in appearance but in some cases are of manmade materials.

Homemakers turning attention to modern will find that the space age has definitely arrived . . . the concepts, forms, lines and shapes as well as the materials are all of the next century. They are being applied today for our fast paced living and include glass, plastic, vinyl and the synthetic fabrics.

Chic is the appearance of 1969's modern : . . which may have some of its design elements taken from the 1930's and 1940's . . . culturally speaking, but that's all. The big, heavy, overstuffed and "marshmallow" look is gone. Modern has been scaled and refined to fit into today's homes and with today's philosophy of jet living.

Modern, because of its crisp, fresh look, has a decorating appeal hard to pass up along with its comfort, warmth and flexibility of uses — made possible by the design and styling innovations.

Also exciting to the eye are the applications of Plexiglas . . . which seems to be able to do or be most anything: a chair, table, lamp shade, lamp base, shelving or storage unit, as well as chair or sofa frame. And many new colors, as well as smoked and clear versions of Plexiglas will be shown in the stores.

Walking hand-in-hand, there also is chrome, steel, brushed aluminum and glass.

It is important to note that the wood finishes, as well as the laminate and plastic surfaces, lacquered and painted surfaces, will also be found in this season's fresh modern.

When you look at upholstered modern you'll find silhouettes that are trim and slim—decked out in an endless selection of patterns, prints and fibers, both synthetic and natural.

Early American for 1969 will have a bigger variety of fabric and finish selection than ever before. Plus, it will have refined, scaled styling offering colonial and country selections that are smart and sophisticated, fitting right in with today's sonic pace.

Careful inspection of the Early American will show that the manufacturers have applied many of the fine, classical style elements. In addition, some have borrowed from the country styles of France, England and the Mediterranean countries as well.

Early American will have a greater number of pieces and items in the collections and groupings than in the past. There will be the unusually shaped tables that you can use in a limitless number of settings, there will be desks of all sizes, storage units and casegoods pieces — all with refined scaling.

The fabric selections for Early American will be limitless, making suitable furnishings choice for country, suburban or high-rise city living. And, looking at finishes, you'll see that the distressed finish continues along with a growing popularity of the dark and almost black finishes.

But, if your choices are in the French and Italian, you will find selections to meet your needs. They will also be scaled and refined to meet today's modern building and smaller room sizes.

LUXURY

And, you'll find them with upholsteries that are rich and luxurious in appearance and touch. You'll be pleased with the many, many decorative carvings and detailings on the chair backs, table bases and legs.

Now, looking at lamps and accessories you'll see that manufacturers have made definite relationships with the furnishings styles. There will be a vast selection of interpretations of Spanish, Italian, English, Early American, plus smart looking modern.

★ ★ ★

The modern lamps, in particular, are of clear and gray lucite, or plastics, or glass and plastic combinations. There are also offerings in simulated woods, metals and wood-like carvings or plastics. The size and scale of all the lamps and accessories has been done with the scale and shape of the furnishings in mind . . . be it Early American, Spanish, Italian or modern.

★ ★ ★

When you look at the offerings in juvenile, you'll find that there is a gay selection of colors and patterns on beds, chests, chairs, dressers and storage units. And, like the adult furniture, they are Spanish, Mediterranean, Early American and provincial in styles.

The colors range mostly in the pastels, of course, which are used extensively on the wood and metal pieces. It is to be noted that the plastics and synthetics have also caused many innovations in the juvenile offerings.

Avoid Circuit Overload Woe

Home do-it-yourselfers who use electrically powered tools often forget overloading circuits can be dangerous.

A power tool manufacturer says extension cords often are inadequate to a job requiring a lot of electric power.

★ ★ ★

Current-carrying capacity of extension cords depends on wire gauge and length of cord. Long, light cords overheat tools because large portable tools requiring high voltages get only low voltages through them.

Safety measures require proper fusing, thus avoiding overloading a circuit. The two-receptable plug can be converted to a three-pronged plug which provides proper grounding and is safer.

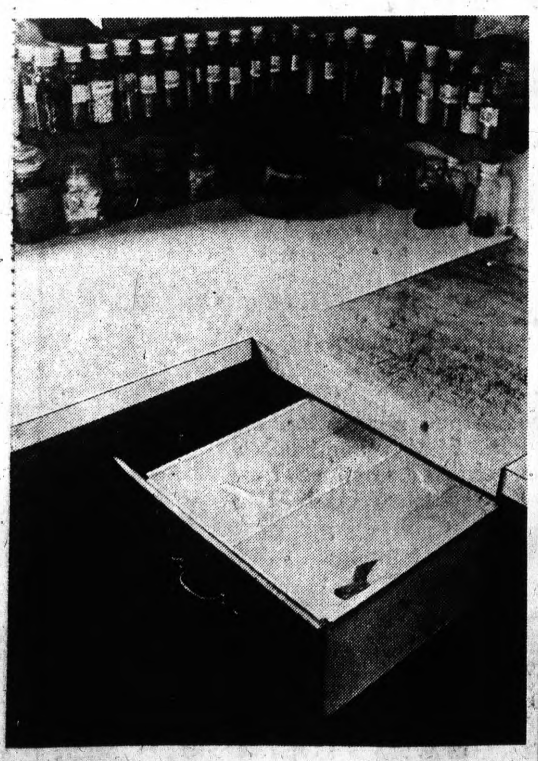

UNPLUG

Other hints are: Unplug cord before fitting drills in the drill chuck. Watch your fingers when using a circular saw.

If children are around, unplug a power tool when absent from a job.

Prevent Accident

The kitchen, bath and laundry areas of the home are troublesome spots for accidents due to slippage. One way to help reduce the probability of slippage in those areas is to have the floors covered with unglazed ceramic tile which never needs waxing and is slip-resistant.

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP—Ceramic tile highlights the three-bedroom ranch home offered by Frushour Realty of 5730 Williams Lake, Waterford Township. The model, available at a base price of $20,500, is located at 5900 Wellington, Independence Township. Vinyl windows insure comfort and maintenance ease. A window wall opens from the dining room onto patio deck.

Treat Fireplace as Work of Art

Fireplaces usually become the focal point of a room and so many different forms are available today that they can also be treated as a piece of sculpture.

★ ★ ★

Availablility of fireproof surfacing materials like ceramic tile for both walls and floors also adds to the plasticity with which a fireplace can be handled within a room.

With Proper Maintenance

Wooden Siding Will Last

Wooden siding will last a long time if cared for; it will last a long time even with a little neglect.

But in the latter case small defects might develop which could lead to more serious trouble later on.

★ ★ ★

A frequent inspection of siding will prevent trouble. Look for cracks, splitting boards. Notice if boards are warped or loose. Look for open joints.

These will permit moisture to enter, causing paint to peel and eventually causing the siding to rot.

EASY TO REPAIR

Cracks are easy to repair when they are small. If taken care of there may be no need to replace lengths of siding later on.

Small cracks can be filled with calking compound or putty (white lead variety). Use enough and pack it in.

★ ★ ★

With the cracks filled make certain that the edge of the board is tight against the one below. If the board is loose nail it down.

Since old siding may split, drill pilot holes for the nails first. When you have the board nailed down as tight as possible, calk if any space remains.

COUNTERSINK NAILS

Countersink the nail heads below the surface and fill the remaining tiny holes with putty.

Sometimes it is too late to make minor repairs. If any siding is badly split or rotted then it must be replaced. The easiest and neatest way to repair is to remove and entire length of siding and replace it.

★ ★ ★

If this isn't possible you will have to cut out the bad piece of siding, being careful not to damage the good siding above and below it.

Removal will be easier if you pry up the board before you try cutting it. Drive wedges underneath to lift it. Then cut through the board with a handsaw.

PREVENT DAMAGE

If a small strip of wood remains under the piece of siding above, it can be removed by first cutting the nails holding it with a hack saw. Then dig out the strip.

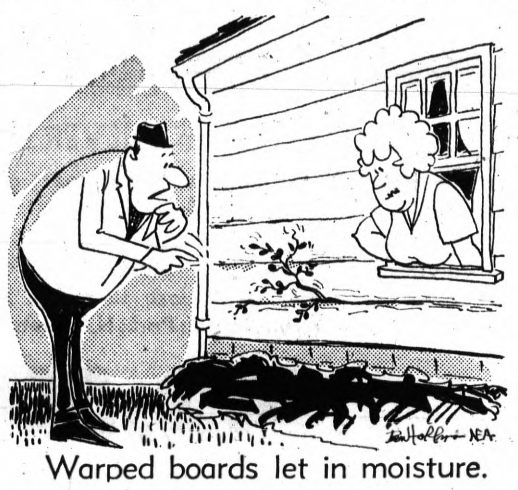

★ ★ ★

Cut a new piece of siding so that it matches the old exactly. Drive it gently into place, placing a block of wood against the lower edge before hammering.

NEW SIDING

With the new siding in place, nail it down with a few nails along the lower edge. Set these and cover with putty.

Paint to match and the job is done.

Warped boards let in moisture.

Dining Rooms Regain Favor

Formal dining rooms are steadily regaining the popularity they had a few decades ago.

However, formal dining rooms of today bear little resemblance to those of yesteryear.

★ ★ ★

For one thing, the word "formal" as it defines dining room is no longer synonymous with delicate. Easy-to-clean, durable surfacing materials such as ceramic tile have replaced the dainty, not-so-durable materials that used to adorn the walls and floors in dining rooms of old.

★ ★ ★

This is not to say that the surfacings available today are less decorative. In fact, the decorative abilities of most wall and floor coverings have been greatly enhanced over the years.

Ceramic tile, for example, is available in a profusion of colors, designs, textures, sizes and shapes, permitting imaginative uses in stylish motifs.

Man-Made Materials Zoom

Furnishings Feature Space Age Flair

The world of tomorrow becomes more exciting every day with trips to the moon, to outer space, and travel around the world a simple day's journey.

Homemakers already are using and living with furnishings that have a space-age flair.

★ ★ ★

Much of the news in furnishings this season concerns the use of man-made materials and plastics.

One such plastic is urethane. It is a very versatile plastic capable of taking on many shapes, forms and colors.

It is strong and can withstand much punishment . . . and yet it is flexible so as to be molded in the free-flowing shapes of today's chairs and sofas.

Urethane will also make possible walls and ceiling for houses that will revolutionize home building.

Urethane walls for example will be available as stacking units to be placed as organized in a variety of shapes.

★ ★ ★

These walls will be strong and capable of bearing the load of heavy "work walls" such as in a kitchen, a bathroom or laundry.

Block floors, with radiant heating units, will be popular. They'll be cushioned so that they are soft, but with a hard, long-wearing surface.

The use of the plastics for ceilings will allow for many carvings, reproductions of art or design, as desired.

CUSHIONED CEILING

The days of the flat, dull ceilings overhead will soon be gone. Ceilings will also have cushionings for sound conditioning.

Looking at furniture, we find today that many of the big furniture items, such as sofas and chairs, are easier to move and have free-flowing lines.

This is because they have frames of plastic which is light, but strong.

★ ★ ★

Even the heavy armoires, sideboards, bookcases and buffets of the future will be made with these man-made materials.

Again, they will have many decorative and ornate features — just like the carefully sculptured wood — but they will be lighter in weight, making cleaning and moving less of a chore.

Manufacturers will also be able to mold a chair to fit your body.

★ ★ ★

Imagine, your size might be fed into a computer which in turn would set up the ingredients and machinery for molding your very own personal chair!

Give Mattress Proper Care

A quality mattress is designed to provide you with long-lasting comfort.

It requires a minimum of care, but proper treatment will assure that your mattress serves you well.

Here are the easy mattress care rules.

A new mattress should be turned, end for end and side for side, once a month for the first six months. After that, turning the mattress once or twice a year is siffucient.

Unless it's the reversible kind with a different firmness on each side, a foam mattress usually doesn't need to be turned.

USE PAD

Alays use a mattress pad to protect the bedding from dust, and dirt. It's also a good idea to use a cover on the box spring.

Launder the mattress pad once a month. At the same time, open the windows and air the mattress for an hour or so.

Go over the mattress once a month with the upholstery attachment of your vacuum cleaner or a whisk broom to remove surface soil.

Give box springs the same treatment at mattress turning time. Never beat a mattress and never bend or roll it when turning or moving.

Rafter Adds to Efficiency

When roof structures are formed with wood trussed rafters, interior partitions are not needed for roof support and the house is initially built as one large enclosure.

This minimizes weather delays. Floor plan and partioning are greatly simplified. Most living areas can be divided with space-conserving storage type partitions. The result is more space for family living.

Wood trussed rafters constitute one of the most efficient areas of engineered lumber component construction. Preshrunk, all-purpose graded Southern Pine is extensively utilized in their fabrication.

Nature reseeds most of the West's forest lands, but industry and government also plant millions of tree seedlings each year.

Hardboard Strips Great in Garage

Foot-wide strips of ¼-inch hardboard serve well for garden tool and miscellaneous implement storage in a garage. Simply mount the strips at approximately eye-level so that the handles will clear the floor.

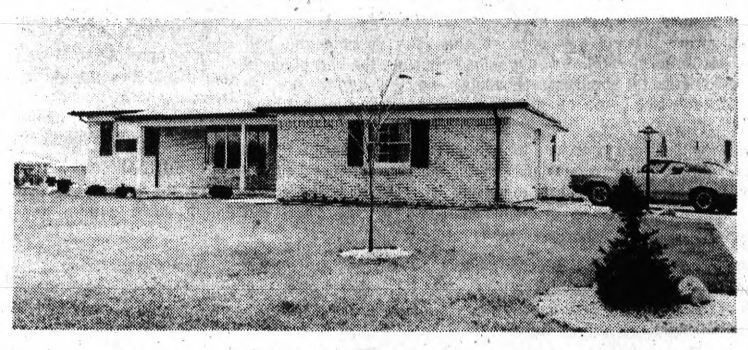

They may be attached directly to wall studs or to furring strips on a solid wall so that the fixtures will have clearance.

Primed and painted, the strips will improve the appearance of the garage. A factory-finished patterned style also is available.

★ ★ ★

Where extensive storage is required, full-size 4x8-foot panels are recommended. A complete line of heavy-duty fixtures is available.

Carpet Textures, Colors Exciting and Tempting

When you shop for a new carpet, your biggest problem may be to limit yourself to just one!

New colors, textures and patterns are more tempting than ever before, and the broad range of choice may seem confusing at first. Actually this wide variety makes shopping easier — and gets you off to a good start in finding the best carpet value for your home.

★ ★ ★

There are two very good reasons for deciding on style first when you buy a carpet or rug.

First, carpet is basic to room decorating. You'll expect to live with your carpet for a long time — and unless you like the way it looks in the first place, you won't be happy with your choice, regardless of price, quality, fiber content or other factors.

KEEP IT PRACTICAL

Second, carpet appearance should be judged with an eye to practicality. Style is more than just personal fancy — it's directly related to the way your carpet will "wear" in terms of appearance.

Take color, for example. Which colors do you really like best in your surroundings? Or, which ones do you rule out immediately as colors you couldn't stand for any length of time?

★ ★ ★

It helps to think in terms of "color families" — golds, greens, blues or reds, for example.

Once you've decided on your favorite, you can look at a variety of carpet styles in that group.

WIDE VARIETY AVAILABLE

You'll find that you can have your favorite color in a carpet that's as practical as it is pretty. If you like blue, for example, and are choosing a carpet for a heavy-traffic area you can select a tweedy mixture of blue tones, or a pattern with blue predominant — both more practical underfoot than a solid pastel blue carpet.

Texture can also be chosen with an eye to practicality. A dense, tight-looped or tight-twist texture is more apt to hold its own in a heavy-traffic area than a soft plush texture, for example.

How practical do you have to be? The answer depends on the area where your carpet will be used, the living habits of your family and your own preference in maintenance.

A light beige, for instance, might have to be cleaned frequently in a family room with an outside entrance — but would present no problem in an upstairs bedroom.

★ ★ ★

Very light or very dark colors are generally best reserved for more formal living areas or rooms not subjected to heavy traffic and outside soil.

Carpet care is easy — but busy homemakers usually prefer carpets that don't "show every footstep."

MAINTENANCE

To get carpets that are both easy to maintain and easy to look at, remember to consider both decorative and functional aspects.

Actual carpet wear, of course, depends on more than just appearance — but selecting appearance is the first important step in getting good value.

More than one-third of the children killed in home fires in the United States annually are alone in the house when the fire starts.

Put Land in Walnuts for Profit

Looking for extra income? Then put idle land into walnut trees. That's the advice of forestry experts in the "walnut belt," which includes Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Walnut logs and trees consistently bring higher returns than other species. Walnut wood is highly prized for its unique beauty and properties.

★ ★ ★

Good places to grow walnut are unused ground along lanes or in areas too small to farm, rough areas not suitable for agriculture but with good, moist soil, stream bank and open ditch margins and well drained bottom lands, and openings in existing wood lots.

Spring is the best time to plant walnuts although they also may be planted in the fall. The process is simple.

HEAVY SOD

For heavy sod areas, first strip the sod from an area at least 15 inches square. Then dig a hole two inches deep, plant one nut and tramp dirt over the hole.

For soft ground, just press a nut into soil with your heel, kick a little dirt over it and firm with the foot. Or use a sharp stick or iron bar to make a hole two inches deep and plant the nut.

★ ★ ★

For protection against squirrels, the tin can method is favored. Use a number two can or larger.

Punch a one-inch hole in the bottom of the can, with the jagged edges out; or cut a cross in the bottom of the can and turn the corners out.

GOOD SOIL

Put about an inch of good soil in the bottom of the can, place a walnut in the center and fill with good soil.

Then plant the can, with the punctured end up. The top of the can should be about half an inch below the ground surface.

Then pack soil around the can and tramp firmly.

BEAMED CEILING—Beams mark the cathedral ceiling in the winged colonial (located on Thendara Drive near Algonquin) built by Jack Raisin. A full-size brick fireplace with a raised hearth adds a cozy touch of comfort to the spacious room. Five additional models are available for inspection in the development.

Long, Hot Summer Approaches

It's never too early to make outdoor home improvement plans and right now is an excellent time to do something, although the hot days may seem far away.

The homeowner can do many things in May that will have him sitting cool and pretty in June.

Here are some "think cool" home improvement plans.

- Make a list of needed improvements and get literature from manufacturers on the different products available today.
- Talk to local specialists to get ideas, suggestions, and estimates.
- Arrange for an improvement job to be scheduled and completed in early spring so the family can enjoy it during all of the warm weather.

If you want too late, everyone will start getting busy — local firms with other customers, you with spring planting, fertilizing, mowing and pruning.

If you are looking for aluminum window awnings to spruce up the looks of your home, keep it cooler during warm weather, and keep the sun off rugs, draaperies, and furniture, there's a wide choice of awnings available, Rabbitt says.

You can choose from high gloss, low gloss, and metallic colors; roll-up, see-through, horizontal, and vertical panels.

Metal awnings can be constructed to permit diffused light to enter the rooms while keeping the direct rays of the sun out. Their ventilated design doesn't trap hot air against the windows. Their sturdy construction has the approval of national building code organizations. Their two-coat baked enamel finish gives you beauty that will last for years. And they are guaranteed not to chip, peel, blister or crack for years.

For a free set of architectural-type sketches which will give you a better idea of how your home looks after awnings are installed, write to Awning Sketches, Alcan Aluminum Corporation, 100 Erieview Plaza, Cleveland, Ohio 44114.

Money Squeeze Advances Search for Easy Upkeep

U.S. homeowners, caught in the squeeze of rising property taxes and the desire for pleasurable use of leisure time, search for money-saving, maintenance-free materials to "keep up" their homes.

Seven out of eight homeowners in the land have discovered aluminum screening is one material that, over the years, is maintenance-free and therefore a money-time saver, according to the Insect Wire Screening Bureau, New York City.

★ ★ ★

The 7 to 1 ratio of homeowners who prefer aluminum screening was disclosed by three independent consumer survey studies made in 1961, 1965 and February 1966.

This overwhelming preference is directly related to the properties of aluminum.

Explaining this, the Bureau says that the rustproof screening doesn't streak or stain siding; it doesn't attract dust and dirt electrostatically, and being metal, is not flammable and will not burn or melt at temperatures created by matches or cigarettes.

In most areas of the country, aluminum screening will last as long as the material on which it is installed. Special coatings give the product long life in corrosive atmospheres, such as salt spray and chemical fumes.

★ ★ ★

Homeowners also like the screening because it provides the strength needed for satisfactory service during storms and high winds; scratching by animals' claws, children's toys, etc. Aluminum screening doesn't stretch excessively, won't billow and tear at the frame after a long period of use. Therefore, aluminum screening does not have to be replaced often.

EASY TO CARE FOR

Contributing further to its low maintenance, money-saving advantages is the fact that animals and insects will not eat aluminum.

Rodents and gnawing insects (such as grasshoppers) cannot eat through the metal screening to reach food and objects on the other side.

Ultraviolet rays of the sun do not damage or weaken the screening and it does not fade or rot.

★ ★ ★

Manufactured in conformance with U.S. Commercial Standard and U.S. Government specifications, aluminum screening quality is rigidly maintained by each Bureau member, who tops these requirements with his own quality control measures.

Breakfast Bar Is Easy to Build

An easy-to-build breakfast bar saves work for the homemaker and is a great place for mid-day and midnight snacks, too. A free plan tells how to build it, as well as a divider wall and cabinets.

Wall and counter surfaces in this kitchen-family room are plastic-finished hard board, which is resistant to heat, moisture, food stains and general wear. For a copy of free plan No. 106, which has full details on improving your kitchen, write a postcard to Handyman Plans, Marlite Paneling, Dover, Ohio. 44622.

DECORATING IDEA — Irving Levinson of White Lake Township mounted xeroxed copies of etchings on black burlap and grouped them in a series of ten on his master bedroom wall. The turtle and her children were made by Levinson from the end piece of an antique barn beam. "I couldn't see buring it in the fireplace;" said Levinson, "so I used it." The scallop detail on the base of the vanity bench duplicates that of the nearby headboard. Gold velvet pillows complete the bench.

Model Home Idea Source

Where to locate the family room?

Since that's a question that many families are asking, now is a good time to find out how the leading architects and builders are answering the question.

★ ★ ★

Take a tour of the many model houses on display and note the plcaement of the family room. The basement still is one of the most popular family spots of course, but many new split-level homes have the popular family room on one of the intermediate levels.

In larger homes, one of the upstairs bedrooms can be transformed into a comfortable family room if it isn't needed for sleeping quarters.

OUTSIDE 'INSIDE'

Also, many families like to bring the "outside inside" by putting the family room at the back of the house and using one wall of glass.

When inspecting the family rooms in model houses, notice how the decorator considers easy maintenance as well as good appearance. Since today's family room is used for entertaining, children's games and other activities, it must be able to withstand hard wear.

★ ★ ★

Washable prefinished paneling is used in many family rooms to establish a "child-proof" decor. This plastic-finished hardboard comes in high-fidelity woodgrains, modern colors and patterns, and handsome textures. It can be damp-wiped clean; never needs refinishing and is available at local building materials dealers.

Fire Safety Rules for Your Family

Fire rules you and your children should heed:

- Never leave small children alone or unattended.
- Show your babysitter the escape routes from your home and give instructions on the right way to call the fire department.
- In case of fire, the important rule is: Get everybody out fast, and don't go back in.
- Keep a safe distance from flame and spark sources.

Lumber Output

Twelve western states produced 22.6 billion board board feet of softwood lumber in 1968, more than 70 per cent of the nation's total and enough to build 2,260,000 average size homes.

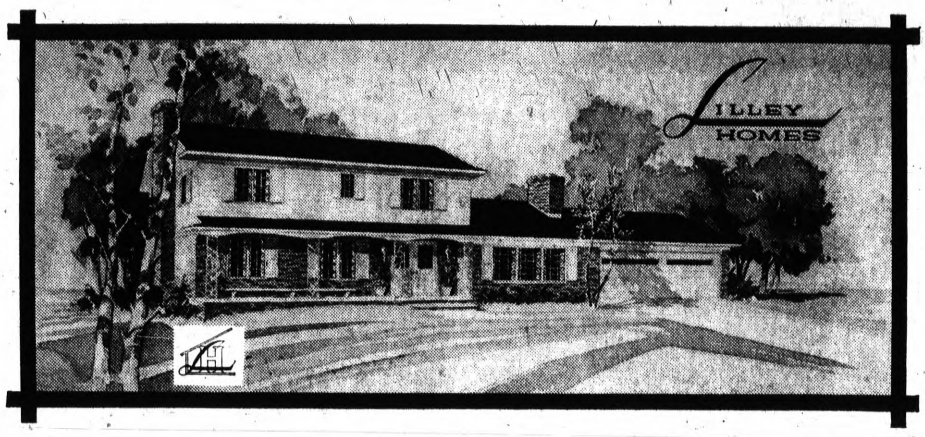

Plastic Baskets Foster Neatness

Plastic laundry baskets appropriately labeled for each member of the family can help train children and untidy husbands in picking up and putting away — and be a boon to the washerwoman.

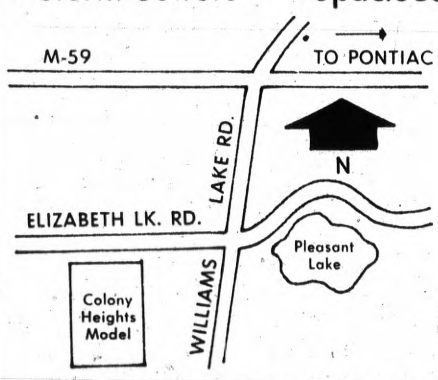

A convenient bin for linens and waterproof ceramic tile walls and floors in the laundry will also ease housekeeping chores.

Fresh Offerings Add Flavor

Fresh offerings for virtually all tastes are sprinkled through a week otherwise laden with reruns.

Afternoon offerings today feature the Detroit Tigers against the Red Sox in Boston (1 p.m., Channel 2) and the Philadelphia Phillies against the Cardinals in St. Louis (1 p.m., Channel 4).

Then there's the big daddy of horse races, the Kentucky Derby (4 p.m., Channel 2).

★ ★ ★

Sports offerings continue Sunday afternoon, with more Tigers-Red Sox action (1 p.m., Channel 2) and, on the links, the New Orleans Open (3 p.m., Channel 4).

Later in the day the focus shifts to a James Cagney-narrated rerun, "Smokey the Bear," a musical fantasy about the cub who became the symbol of the U. S. Forest Service fire-prevention campaign (5:30 p.m., Channel 4).

In prime-time hours, Andy Williams hosts Aretha Franklin, Roger Miller and Sergio Mendes and Brazil '66 in a special, "H. Andrew Williams' Magic Lantern Show Company" (10 p.m., Channel 4).

★ ★ ★

Contemporary music lovers will find Monday a groove. The Grammy awards show, "Best on Record," will feature a flock of favorite artists as well as the announcement of the record of the year (8 p.m., Channel 4).

Tuesday, Mike Douglas hosts the 12th annual America's Junior Miss Pageant, at Mobile, Ala. (7:30 p.m., Channel 4). And NBC's "First Tuesday" focuses on poverty in the Southwest, Dr. Denton Cooley, a primitive New Guinea village, Soprano Beverly Sills, Oman — a British protectorate on the Arabian Gulf — and the 78th convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution (9 p.m., Channel 4).

Then Jimmy Durante will join the Lennon Sisters in a preveiw of their new fall show (10 p.m., Channel 7).

Wednesday's Music Hall, second of two from London, features Donovan (9 p.m., Channel 4). And CBS Playhouse is back with "Shadow Game," a drama which bares the inner thoughts of a happy crew of office workers, caught on the 50th floor in a power blackout (9:30 p.m., Channel 2).

This Week's Cover

William Windom and Alexandra Hay are two of the people caught in a 50th floor office during a power failure on "Shadow Game", Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

Beverly Sills, American soprano who is opera's newest star, will be featured on NBC's First Tuesday this week.

Rumors Fly as 3 in GOP Urge Troop Withdrawal, Aide...

MAKE OVER PAGES

By STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Either President Nixon is on the brink of announcing the long-rumored unilateral withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam, or some antiwar Republican senators are staking out an all-out assault on the chief executive's position.

The trial balloons are in the air. Within a 24-hour period three Republican senators — two of them highly influential — have spoken on the need for a troop pullout.

News Analysis

The key Democrats who virtually hounded President Lyndon B. Johnson out of office on almost the same issue — have remained silent.

Has Nixon given the Republican senators a signal?

IMMEDIATE START

On Thursday, Den. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., dean of the Senate GOP and senior Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called for the start of troop withdrawals "without delay."

Less than 24 hours later, Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., the assistant Senate Republican leader, said in a speech at Pittsburgh: "I urge the withdrawal of a substantial number of American troops from Vietnam."

★ ★ ★

And in Portland, Ore., freshman Sen. Robert Packwood said it was his "estimation" that Nixon already has made the decision to withdraw American fighting forces from Vietnam.

In the glossary of the Vietnam aviary, Aiken, Scott and Packwood are not considered purebred doves, although they are more closely aligned with that species than with the hawks. What is striking is that all three chose the same time to speak out.

NIXON TOLD OF SPEECH

Aiken, an independent maverick, said he told the White House several hours in advance that he would make his speech — the first assessment among Republicans on Nixon's Vietnam position. This may well be true.

But Scott, desperately trying to be loyal to a President more conservative than he is, chipped in last night with his plea for a "substantial" withdrawal of American troops.

There was no indication whether Scott, who attends weekly meetings with Nixon

...Pullout Planner Confers With Thieu

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command's top planner for troop withdrawals met last night with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, reviving speculation about American troop withdrawals.

The U.S. Mission reported Maj. Gen. Richard F. Shaefer, deputy to American commanding Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, met with Thieu at the presidential palace for 1½ hours. Also present was U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth S. Bunker.

★ ★ ★

Sources described it as a regular consultation meeting to discuss the results of the latest session of the Paris peace conference and map strategy for next week's session.

★ ★ ★

"There are a lot of propositions going on in Paris," said one source, "like developing positions and the problems and mechanics involved in mutual troop withdrawals, the matter of American prisoners of war and our position on the demilitarized zone."

American military sources said today any cutback in the 541,500 U.S. troops stationed in Vietnam hinges on three conditions.

They are:

★ ★ ★

- Some breakthrough at the Paris peace talks.

★ ★ ★

- A greatly reduced infiltration of North Vietnamese troops into the South.
- Improvement of South Vietnam's armed forces.

★ ★ ★

"Any change in American troop strength would require one or all three of these conditions," said one senior officer.

★ ★ ★

When South Vietnam's 1.6 million armed forces might be improved enough to allow the beginning of U.S. troop withdrawals is still open to question. July 1 has been mentioned as a target date.

President Thieu today renewed his offer of private peace talks with the Vietcong's National Liberation Front. But he added it "wouldn't be a good start" if the NLF continued to insist on dealing only with its five-point program for ending the war.

★ ★ ★

Referring to a statement Wednesday by chief NLF negotiator Tran Buu Kiem in Paris, Thieu said: "It is a good time to sit down together." Kiem had said the NLF is "ready to engage in discussions with other parties so as to make the Paris conference move forward."

★ ★ ★

Thieu indicated it was not clear in his mind whether Kiem was ready for talks with South Vietnam. He called on Kiem to put his words "into practice."

Kidnaper of Officer Killed in Texas Trap

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — Ila Faye Dent was in jail today after a 300-mile chase in Southeast Texas that ended with the death of her ex-convict husband, felled in a hail of gunfire.

Robert S. Dent, 22, suffered fatal shotgun and pistol wounds moments after he followed highway patrolman J. Kenneth Crone into an isolated farm house yesterday. The couple had held Crone hostage five hours in his patrol car during the chase.

★ ★ ★

Dent, convicted in 1964 and 1966 on charges of breaking into coin-operated vending machines, was shot in the face, neck and right arm after officers sprang a trap in the farm house.

It started when Port Arthur police reported they had chased a speeding sports car after midnight. Crone and other police sought the car for several hours.

COUPLE FLED

When they spotted the car they halted it with gunfire, but the couple inside—later identified as the Dents—fled into the woods. Bloodhounds were used in a search that was nearly halted when Crone received a call from a rancher about the couple.

★ ★ ★

Crone went to the ranch to answer. He said the couple had told the rancher that two hitchhikers had robbed them and stolen their car.

★ ★ ★

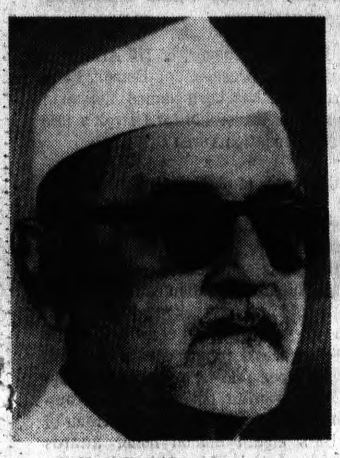

But the Dents drew weapons on Crone and forced him to drive them away in his car.

More than 50 patrol cars followed the couple and Crone during the chase that followed. The vehicles reached speeds of 95 miles per hour on narrow farm-to-market roads.

ASK FOR VISIT

Dent finally said he would free Crone if allowed a 15-minute visit with his stepchildren staying at the home of Mrs. Dent's parents near Bryan.

Officers had been waiting for about 45 minutes when Crone's patrol car rolled into the dusty farmhouse yard.

ZAKIR HUSAIN

India President Dies at Age 72

NEW DELHI (AP) — President Zakir Husain, an educator who became the first Moslem to attain his office, died today of a heart attack. He was 72.

Less than five hours after Husain's death, Vice President V. V. Giri, 74, a former trade union leader, was sworn in as his successor in the largely ceremonial role.

★ ★ ★

Prime Minister Indira Ghandi was on a tour of famine-striken areas in nearby Rajasthan state and left for New Delhi on hearing the news.

Husain was India's third president since it became a republic in 1950. He succeeded 79-year-old Dr. Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, who did not seek reelection after one five-year term.

★ ★ ★

Before he was elected president on May 9, 1967, Husain had served as vice president from 1962 to 1967. He entered politics in 1957 when he became governor of Bihar state.

3 Corporations, 3 Execs Guilty in Bathtub Plot

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Three companies and three executives have been convicted in federal court of conspiring to fix prices on an estimated $1 billion worth of plumbing fixtures.

Two of the firms—American Standard Corp., New York, and Borg-Warner Corp., Chicago, said yesterday they would appeal the conviction. A spokesman for the Kohler Co., Kohler, Wis., was not immediately available for comment.

★ ★ ★

Judge Louis Rosenberg ordered an investigation before sentencing the firms and Joseph P. Decker, American Standard vice president; Daniel J. Quinn, retired American Standard executive; and Norman R. Held, Kohler vice president.

The jury returned the verdict last night after five hours of deliberation. They had been hearing the case for 16 weeks.

John C. Fricano, special assistant to the U.S. attorney general for antitrust action, said the conspiracy began in a Chicago hotel room when the defendants agreed to drop their regular enamel bathtub lines and sell only more expensive acid-resistant tubs at inflated prices.

The defendants were the last of 15 corporations and eight individuals indicted by the government for antitrust violations in the plumbing fixtures industry. The others pleaded no contest and were fined a total of $390,000. Rosenberg sentenced several of the executives to prison.

Church Groups: End Tax Break

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of the nation's major church organizations have asked Congress to lift the traditional tax exemption for church-owned businesses.

The proposal from the National Council of Churches and the United States Catholic Conference got high praise from Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee which is writing a tax reform bill intended to lift the exemption anyway.

★ ★ ★

The proposal also appeared to be in line with the Nixon administration proposal that tax exemptions be eliminated for unrelated businesses operated by all nonprofit organizations.

The church statement was presented to Mills' committee yesterday.

"Such exemption makes available to churches a potential advantage over tax-paying organizations engaged in commercial business activities," the statement said.

But many church-connected businesses — such as The Christian Brothers wines corporation operated in California by the Roman Catholic order of the same name — are tax-paying ventures.

PROTEST AT MSU — Members of Students for a Democratic Society harangue through a bullhorn for abolition of the Reserve Officers Training Corps at Michigan State in a rally on the banks of the Red Cedar. They dedicated May Day—Thursday—to Huey P. Newton, Black Panther leader serving a California prison term in connection with the death of a policeman.

Nixon 'Get Tough' Stance Assailed

New Turmoil Hits Campuses

New outbreaks of campus turmoil have struck in the East and Southwest as some academic leaders disagreed with President Nixon's 'get tough' stance on student unrest.

Black students took over the president's office for five hours at Southern Methodist University in Dallas yesterday while two major units of New York's City University were forced to close by violence.

★ ★ ★

More than 500 policemen cleared the Queens College campus after 40 Negro students marched through three buildings smashing windows and overturning furniture.

★ ★ ★

In Michigan, Highland Park Community College was closed at midday yesterday after the school's dean said he was threatened by some Negro strikers shouting at him: "Kill the man."

VIEWED PICKETING

Dean Paul Jones said the threat came as he went outside the school to observe picketing by members of the Association of Black Students.

About 40 pickets appeared at the school Thursday evening to reinforce their demands for more control over school affairs. They reappeared yesterday, carrying signs saying, "Give us a say in what happens. . ." and "We have the right to strike."

★ ★ ★

In announcing the school closing, Jones said he feared a confrontation between the strikers and students who wanted to go to class but were being kept out by pickets who linked arms and marched in front of the school's three main entrances.

About 60 per cent of the college 4,400 students are Negroes.

NIXON STAND BACKED

Two top Republicans — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and House leader Gerald R. Ford—both called for a clamp down on student disorders in line with "get tough" statements earlier this week by President Nixon and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Many delegates to the American Association of University Professors meeting in Minneapolis expressed sharp dissent with the Nixon administration view, and a resolution was offered condemning it as a "direct threat to academic freedom."

To Teach Rite-ing, Spell-ing?

ULTING, England (UPI) — A county council education adviser is opening a school for witchcraft.

★ ★ ★

For $3.60, a person can get six lessons.

The adviser, Derek Walters, said among other things he will teach:

- How to make love potions.
- How to control a person by bewitching a doll.
- How to deal with enemies (exact formula unspecified).

"I have had 60 applications in a few days to enroll in the school," he said. "Quite a few are from practicing witches who want to meet others with similar interests.

★ ★ ★

"It's not black magic, of course. That's too dangerous. I tried that once myself and cursed someone — It rebounded and almost killed me instead."

Watlers advises the council in music lessons and has its permission for the witchcraft school.

Hart to Discuss Extension of '65 Voting Rights Act

Some 650 Oakland County Democrats are expected to hear Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich. push for an extension of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 tonight at Oakland University.

The occasion is the 12th annual Phil Hart Dinner at 9 at Vanderburg Hall.

★ ★ ★

Hart was Senate floor manager and chief strategist for the act, which expires this year.

In a speech prepared for tonight he reports the Voting Rights law should prove "an object lesson for those spokesmen more interested in generating hate than progress."

Since enactment, Hart says, 1.28 million Negroes have registered in the South, giving many of them "their first hope that Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia might prove decent places for blacks to live."

Hart's speech cites the following developments in southern politics in the past few years:

- Several hundred Negroes elected to public office.
- A South Carolina senator who has renounced his state government's "cover-up" of hunger and has urged more federal aid to the poor.

GOP Governors Ask Poverty Program Reins

AP Wirephoto

GOP GOVERNORS UNDER GUARD — The limousine bearing Wisconsin Gov. Warren Knowles arrives at the Phoenix Hotel in downtown Lexington, Ky., last night for the state dinner of the Republican Governor's Conference. The arrival route was heavily guarded against possible trouble from a group of demonstrators across the street.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Republican governors have served notice on the Nixon administration they want control of antipoverty programs in their states.

In the closing business sessions of their spring conference yesterday, the GOP state executives also demanded that they be consulted in advance about any policy decisions the administration may make with big city mayors in programs to attack urban programs.

★ ★ ★

Most of the governors will get an opportunity to chat with President Nixon today during the President's brief visit to Churchill Downs in Louisville to watch the running of the Kentucky Derby.

At their semiannual meeting, the governors sidestepped the controversial issues of Nixon's decision to deploy the Safeguard missile defense system and campus rioting. But they took the opportunity to tell Washington they are not satisfied with the way the new administration is structuring some of its programs.

In a unanimously adopted resolution, the governors urged that in reorganizing the war on poverty that Nixon consider channeling all its programs through executive agencies set up by governors in all of the states. They called for abolition of regional offices of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) which have bypassed the governors in the past.

A resolution authorized by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie of Illinois illuminated the friction between governors and mayors over the thrust of city programs. It demanded "notification and consultation" with governors when adminstration officials talk to the mayors.

"It is essential for the governors and their state administration to be kept informed on the relationships between the federal government and major city administration if the states are to be able to properly meet their rsponsibilities," the resolution said.

The governors registered their opposition to existing regulations which they said permit welfare recipients to determine for themselves their eligibility for aid, without investigation of their claims.

Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania told a news conference this regulation has contributed to increases in the welfare rolls in his state. New York, Michigan, Illinois and California in an era of general prosperity.

Birmingham

BEA, Board Stepping Up Salary Talks

BIRMINGHAM — Negotiators for the Birmingham Education Association (BEA) and the board of education have agreed to step up bargaining sessions in an attempt to reach a contract agreement by June 12, the district's summer recess date.

The board and BEA have met three times on a weekly basis and beginning Monday will hold two to three sessions per week.

★ ★ ★

Previous sessions have been limited to a point-by-point explanation of the BEA's proposals. No counterproposals have been made by the board.

★ ★ ★

The initial package proposed by the BEA asks for a total economic increase of $2.31 million. The average across-the-board salary increase would total $1,736 under that demand.

★ ★ ★

The salary range provisions under the BEA's proposal call for a $7,900 starting salary for a new teacher with a bachelor's degree to a maximum $15,010 for a masters degree and 11 years experience.

Hart Will Talk on Voting Rights

★ ★ ★

● A North Carolina senator who introduced a civil rights bill of "serious merit."

★ ★ ★

● A Georgia senator found in attendance at NAACP meetings and who has introduced a measure to strengthen the food stamp program.

5-YEAR EXTENSION

Hart, who this week put in a bipartisan bill to extend the act for five years, says:

★ ★ ★

"It would be tragic indeed if we allowed this exercise in democracy to end abruptly."

★ ★ ★

The Voting Rights Act, though aimed at the South, has significantly benefited the entire nation, Hart notes.

★ ★ ★

"It is clear that the poor—not just the black poor but all the poor—have gained a number of more sympathetic ears in Congress.

★ ★ ★

"And the Voting Rights Act must be somewhat of a jolting rebuff to those radicals in society who claim that our Constitutional process is too inflexible to admit needed change," Hart says.

Stadium Site Study Delayed

A resolution that would call for a State Senate study on location of a new sports stadium in Detroit was delayed by Senate vote yesterday.

The action, on a resolution supported by Sen. Sander Levin, D-Berkley, was attacked by Sen. L. Harvey Lodge, R-Waterford, who labeled it "conceived solely for political purposes . . . an affront to the County of Oakland."

★ ★ ★

The Senate voted to postpone a vote until May 12.

The State House also has legislation pending on the proposed stadium. Two House bills, calling for creation of a stadium authority and a special tax to support a stadium bond issue, are before the state affairs committee.

The committee held a hearing on the issue April 19. Rep. Loren Anderson, R-Waterford, voiced his opposition to the bills at the hearing.

The measures are interpreted as providing a means for Detroit to finance a new stadium to replace the aging home of the Lions and Tigers, Tiger Stadium.

Another group studying the stadium proposal is the Metropolitan Stadium Committee, set up with the teams' approval and made up of many metropolitan area businessmen and officials. This committee has eliminated proposed Detroit sites from consideration as being economically unfeasible.

★ ★ ★

Still under consideration are sites and proposals by the cities of Pontiac and Walled Lake and Taylor Township.

Rumors Fly on Withdrawal To Teach Rite-ing, Spell-ing?

at the White House, informed the executive branch of his speech to the University of Pittsburgh Alumni Association.

In that speech, Scott said "I suggest a bold move to flush out the intentions of the other side.

"I urge the withdrawal of a substantial number of American troops," Scott said. "I hope that the White House will announce such a move in the near future."

Packwood went even further. "It is now a question of when it is to be announced, how it is to be announced, and how soon the withdrawal will begin," he said.

He speculated that "most of our troops" may be home "by the end of the year."

Backing up his speech, Scott said, "I make this recommendation because I believe the situation is ripe for progress.

"We need to prod the North Vietnamese out of the sea of propaganda and onto the high ground of real bargaining sessions," Scott said. "If North Vietnam responds with comparable actions of its own, we could then consider additional withdrawls."

School Aid Bill Nearing Floor in State House

LANSING (AP) — Action on a bill to appropriate more than $844 million for public schools resumes Monday in the House amid expectation of a token grant for parochial schools and a substantial boost in funds for Detroit.

An increase in the $115 million earmarked by the Senate for Detroit schools is expected to be made by the House Appropriations Committee, whose chairman, William Copeland, D-Detroit, said the bill hopefully would be ready for floor action Monday night.

Majority Floor Leader George F. Montgomery, D-Detroit, said he would seek to raise the state aid qualifiction to a required 14-16-mill range. The Senate considered that level but voted a 10-12 minimum -maximum. Districts now can qualify with a minimum of eight mills, up to 10 mills.

ACADEMIS QUESTION

Whether the parochiaid rider would be hooked on in committee or on the floor appeared academic compared with increasing signs of legislative acceptance of the principle of public funds for private schools.

One Senate Democrat estimated parochiaid could muster 23 votes among the upper chamber's 38 members.

Charles O. Zollar, R-Benton Harbor, is chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee that revised a Senate draft to $856,000 more than Gov. William Milliken's budget recommendations. He said a parochiaid allowance could spark a Supreme Court review of the concept.

Zollar indicated the Senate would look at any House-sponsored parochiaid amendment "but nothing that would take money away from public education."

Capeland at one time threatened to put any Senate school bill "on the bottom of the pile" while his committee stuck to House bills.

Yesterday, however, he conducted what amounted to a public House committee hearing on the Senate bill.

STOCKMEYER SMITH

Stockmeyer, who was chairman of the 1968 campaign's major commerce unit, will be responsible for enlisting the support of corporate leaders in the campaign. He will also serve as chairman of the UF's eighth annual honor awards luncheon scheduled May 14 in Cobo Hall.

★ ★ ★

Smith will begin immediately to enlist chairmen for the five major groups and 20 committees under his direction. These include campaign advertising, public relations, special events, speakers, films and promotional materials.

Area Man Plays Here With Navy Band

When the United States Navy Band arrived in Pontiac yesterday morning, the first one off the bus was Musician 1.C. Robert W. Phillips, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Phillips, 349 McPherson, Highland Township.

Phillips, 26, a clarinetist with the band, had about five hours between concerts to visit with his family whom he hadn't seen since Christmas. He left at 9 a.m. today for the next engagement in Aurora, Ill.

The band played two concerts yesterday at Pontiac Northern High School auditorium.

Phillips, who has played with the band for three years since he enlisted in the Navy in 1966, said "It's been a good experience, I have had a chance to study music and improve my playing."

FUTURE PLANS

Next year his tour of duty in the Navy will be over and he hopes to play professionally with a symphony orchestra if he doesn't decide to reenlist.

Phillips decided to become a musician while he was in Junior High school and later played clarinet in the Milford High School Band, where he graduated in 1961. He attended Olivet Nazarene College in Illinois for two years then went to the University of Michigan where he obtained his bachelor's degree in music and played in the university band.

Since he has been with the Navy Band, Phillips has seen a lot of the United Sttaes in a short time. The band annually goes on a seven- or eight-week spring tour to different sections of the country. This year the tour is in the midwestern and eastern states.

The band is stationed in Washington D. C., during the rest of the year, playing for official functions which included the inaugural parade for President Nixon.

After awhile, being a member of the Navy Band is just sort of a routine thing, Phillips said, but there is a certain amount of excitement in meeting new people and traveling through interesting towns and cities in the country.

Kuhn Asks Ceiling on State Wage Tax

LANSING (AP) — A Republican state senator is seeking to limit state income tax to present levels.

Sen. Georget Kuhn, R-West Bloomfield Township, has offered a resolution that would amend the Michigan Constitution to set state income tax levels at 2.6 per cent for individuals, 5.6 per cent on corporations and 7 per cent on financial institutions.

At least one proposal to boost income tax levels, with proceeds to be earmarked for education is pending in the Legislature.

Kuhn's proposal, if adopted by a two-thirds majority of both houses, would appear on the November 1970 ballot.

"I have always been strongly opposed to an open-end tax policy," Kuhn said.

Police in Smut 'War'

We heartily approve the Pontiac Police Department's crackdown on the vendors of obscene literature.

The sale of smut in the form of paperbacks and pseudo magazines and newspapers, to say nothing of solicitation by mail, has reached flood proportions. It is the belief of police authorities that only by making the respectable element of the public conscious of the creeping threat to the morality of both young and old, and enlisting its support, can the evil be abated.

★ ★ ★

Arrest of three clerks in different establishments who were charged with selling obscene literature to minors was but the first round in a campaign aimed at the sale of pornography in its many forms.

★ ★ ★

The police department has its work cut out for it, however. The two-section State law (one affecting adults; the other, minors) under which warrants for the three accused were issued is cloudy in some respects, offering loopholes of interpretation. A serious defect is that the law does not explicitly make the proprietor of an establishment purveying obscenity equally culpable with the clerk who makes the sale.

★ ★ ★

Further to dilute enforcement of anti-smut laws is the hamstringing effect of rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court in reversing several convictions obtained in lower courts. The conclusions of that capricious tribunal make it virtually impossible legally to define obscenity.

★ ★ ★

But the public has in its hands the most potent weapon that can be brought to bear against the sale of pornography —the force of its own opinion. The exercise of it through persistent protest and publicity, even to the extent of withholding patronage from businesses whose wares include prurient "literature," will indubitably strike a telling blow for decency.

It's D-Day at 'Churchill'

"They're Off!"

It is the cry swelling from more than a hundred thousand throats at Louisville's venerable Churchill Downs as the three-year-olds break from the starting gate for the 95th running of the Kentucky Derby.

No single American sports event surpasses the Derby in tradition and national interest.

First run in 1875 as a 1½-mile race (it was changed to 1¼ in 1896), the classic attracts spectators from all parts of the Country and is viewed and heard by tens of millions via TV and radio.

★ ★ ★

The rewards for a first-place finish have risen astronomically from the $2,850 collected by the owner of the winner of the first Derby to the $113,200 that will go the ownership of the horse who this year graces the winner's circle.

The Kentucky Derby, followed by the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes is the foremost of a racing trilogy, although the latter two antedate it—the "Stakes" dating back to 1867 and the Preakness to 1873. Upon the equine head of the winner of these top turf tests, which is a rare achievement indeed, rests the mythical Triple Crown of turfdom.

★ ★ ★

Yes, as native son Irvin Cobb once remarked, "Until you go to Kentucky and with your own eyes behold a Derby, you ain't never been nowheres and you ain't seen nothin'."

Senator Tells of Legislative Grist Mill

By EVERETT DIRKSEN

DIRKSEN

There is good reason for those Americans who have made a special point of the fact that Congress is not grinding out a steady grist of bills and resolutions to indeed rejoice. If they will consider just what a bsolutely must be done in legislation for the day-to-day operation of our government and what the nation's lawmakers have contrived in addition, they will understand that it is a wonder that the process of legislation does not slow down entirely until it finally chokes on its own paper.

Let me tell you about the legislative grist mill.

★ ★ ★

There are certain measures which, for want of a better term, are called "must" measures. Obviously, the "must" category would include all the appropriation bills to provide money for payrolls and the other expenses of government. It would include tax reform, since simplification and modification of our tax structure and tax rates are long overdue.

★ ★ ★

It would include measures dealing with crime in all its phases, since crime has become a challenge to our social structure. It would include many, if not all, of the recommendations that the President will make to Congress, and it is anticipated he will send to this Congress as many as 25 or 30 messages dealing with Social Security, labor, agriculture, housing, urban development and foreign trade, among other vital matters.

But in addition to the President's recommendations, members of the House of Representatives and the Senate are free to introduce bills and resolutions on any subject they may desire. A look at the congressional scoreboard will indicate what is meant.

In the first nine weeks of the present Congress, the 435 members of the House have managed to introduce 8,000 bills, 587 joint resolutions, 181 concurrent resolutions and 335 House resolutions, for a total of 9,103. That is an average of 20 for each member of the House, quite a score from the standpoint of quantity. Quality as a measuring stick might be another thing.

★ ★ ★

The Senate, being a smaller body, was still not far behind. The score of the Senate is 1,679 bills, 84 joint resolutions, 14 concurrent resolutions and 170 Senate resolutions. That is an average of 19 or more for each senator.

The grand total for both the House and the Senate is more than 11,000. Pretty good work for the first nine weeks of the session. And you may well ask just what is covered by that avalanche of bills and resolutions. You name it, and it is there.

Those matters of legislation deal with airports, air-traffic control, reduced rates on airliners for the aged, disclosure of airline stock ownership and many other matters relating to the air transportation industry.

A substantial number of other proposals deal with the marketing of farm commodities, the hunger program, increase in grazing fees, marketing of apples, inspection of reindeer meat and other agricultural matters.

Then there are the endless numbers of bills dealing with a diverse variety of subjects, such as broadcast advertising of alcoholic beverages, experimentation on animals, bilingual education, pay raises for enlisted men in the armed forces, modification of the Selective Service Act, interest rates on U.S. savings bonds, award of a posthumous medal to the late Sir Winston Churchill, a bill to observe National Halibut Week, fair packaging and label bills, a bill to end the Nigeria-Biafra conflict, another requiring a danger-to-health label on whisky and all other alcoholic beverage packages, one to control obsence literature and bills prohibiting switchblade knives, air pollution and kidney transplants.

Why go on with this? You name the idea or hope or problem and there is bound to be a bill or resolution in this Congress to deal with it.

The items in the President's budget, which will include his recommendations in his various messages to Congress, will take about $190 billion, and this will be consummated in good time. But think of all the other legislative brain children and the clamor that has been brought to life and placed on the statute books. What would they cost, and does the nation need them?

Fortunately, only a small percentage of all that legislative grist will see the light of day. So I end where I began and borrow from the sacred parchment to help me make the important point: "Rejoice and be exceeding glad" that you may not get all the law you pay for.

The POWER of FAITH

BY WOODI ISHMAEL

The faith of ex-Air Force Pararescueman Steve Northern is attested to by the 51 men he saved from certain death while serving two tours of duty in Vietnam. At 22, Sgt. Northern has recorded more "combat saves" than any other person in aviation history. (A "combat save" is mostly under enemy fire, where the survivor would have met certain death or capture.)

While stationed at Da Nang he flew an average of 45 missions a month and on his days off he participated in Medical Civic Action Patrol flights, offering medical aid to local Vietnamese villagers in the area.

Northern has received four Silver Stars for "gallantry in action." He received his second star because he "volunteered to be lowered from his HH-3 helicopter to aid an immobilized survivor located in a position completely surrounded by hostile troops and gun positions." The citation continues, "Airman Northern carried the survivor to the hoist and shielded him with his own body as they were brought into the helicopter . . ."

Now a civilian, Steve Northern plans to attend El Camino Junior College, Torrence, Calif. Speaking of his experiences in Vietnam, Steve says his faith pulled him through the tight spots. "It kept me going when I felt like giving up." Upon learning that a pilot was down he called upon God to "get me there before the VC arrive." He feels his prayers were answered. He adds, "We picked up men and escaped when all the odds were stacked against a successful mission. Surely more than skill was involved."

Confident Living:

You Can Shake the Worry Habit

By NORMAN V. PEALE

Worry a lot? Better shake that habit. It can make a shambles of your health and impede success in life. Worry probably wrecks more happiness and well-being than any other mental habit.

Everywhere you run into worriers. At an airport I was impressed by a group of young men — magnificent physical specimens, all at least 6 feet 6. The check-in clerk told me they were the basketball team of a big university. One of these athletes approached me, saying, "I'd like to shake hands with you." Then, shifting uneasily from one foot to the other, he abruptly asked, "Do you think it's possible to break the worry habit? I've got it pretty bad. I've been a worrier ever since I was a kid. Now here I am in the university, on the basketball team, and doing all right in my studies, but still I worry all the time." I told him I'd send him something I'd written on the subject.

★ ★ ★

That same week, during a reception at a convention where I was speaking, a man in his forties confessed, "I seldom get plastered like I am now."

It was obvious he'd had more than one too many. I asked, "Why are you plastered now?"

He looked me in the eye and suddenly seemed cold sober. "Well, I'm in a heck of a fix," he answered. "You see I've been advanced to a higher executive position in my company. But don't congratulate me because I'm not equal to the job. I know I just can't handle it. And believe me, I'm worried sick."

Shortly thereafter I met a woman who sadly complained that she was getting old. "I'm alone in the world. I have friends, but my husband is dead and my children live in other places. I keep thinking, 'What will become of me? Suppose I get sick . . . Who will take care of me?' I lie awake at night worrying until I think I'm going out of my mind."

So it goes, from youth to old age — worry, the ancient enemy of the human spirit. Well, what can you do about worry?

We all have problems and, of course, must think them through. That is what the mind is for. But worrying is a very different proposition from rational thinking. Worry is fear-thinking. It gnaws ineffectually at the problem without getting anywhere except to make you tense and finally wear you out.

Dr. Charles Mayo, who with his brother, William, developed the great Mayo Clinic, stated, "Worry affects the circulation, the heart, the glands, the whole nervous system, and profoundly affects the health. I have never known a man who died from overwork, but many have died from doubt."

★ ★ ★

Robert Frost struck the same note: "The reason why worry kills more people than work is that more people worry than work."

There is indeed a close connection between worry and doubt. Doubt the inherent goodness of the Scheme of Things and you will become a sufferer from self-doubt. You will lose a wholesome confidence in your ability to take difficulties in your stride. The simplest remedy for this misery is faith.

Here is a letter from a Pennsylvania woman who had plenty to worry about but she cancelled it out with faith: "My parents were very poor," she writes, "but God supplied our needs. My father and mother were invalids by the time I was only half grown up. I took over the house and family at the age of 11. One morning after breakfast there was nothing left to eat for the rest of the day, or the rest of the month. I had been praying about it for days, for I could see it coming.

"Well, that day a stranger drove up, a woman I had never seen before and have not seen since. She said she had a dream that showed her we had no food and where we lived. She opened the trunk of her car. It was full of flour, potatoes and other foods. Nothing fancy, just plain stuff like we were used to. I have never doubted for food again.

"Later I questioned some friends who lived where that woman said she was from. They told me she was always doing odd things for people. They said most of her neighbors thought she was crazy. I know better.

"Three of my brothers are ministers and two are college professors. One is a real estate broker (successful), one a dentist and one a high-school teacher. Every one of them made his own way. Quite an accomplishment for the sons of a disabled coal miner who never knew where the next meal was coming from! Yes, people can make it no matter what, if they have faith working for them."

★ ★ ★

Actually, the quality of faith like that woman has is available to everyone. And where can you find faith of that sort? Well, in lots of places — in the night sky, in great religious teachings, in your place of worship, in the company of optimistic faith-filled people, in prayer — wherever reassurance and inspiration come strongest upon your mind. And to practice it, try memorizing affirmations of faith. Use them daily as thought-conditioners. Then tackle your problem in a spirit of positive thinking. Skip the negatives.

Voice of the People:

Taxpayer Is Opposed to Parochial School Aid

If my children must receive a "second-class" education because the government cannot channel enough of my enormous tax load back to the schools to give them a first-class education, then in good conscience I cannot pay one cent more to support parochial schools, nor will I allow one bit of the small return we get to go to support these schools.

★ ★ ★

If people want tax-supported schools they must obey the "no prayer in schools" law, have no teaching of religion in their curriculum, accept all students regardless of race or religion, and be prepared for student unrest and an almost total lack of parent interest. These are a few things they must expect in return for having a small amount of their tax money allocated to their schools.

★ ★ ★

I am certain the majority favored prayer in schools but we, being tax-supported, must obey the law. I suggest parochial schools keep Him in your schools and leave the government out.

'Congratulate Action of Board of Realtors'

Members of the Waterford Area Human Relations Assembly unanimously congratulate the Pontiac Board of Realtors for accepting the application for membership of Joseph. R. Singleton Real Estate Company. By this action the board has expressed a desire that this new association will prove to be mutually beneficial in working toward eliminating discriminatory practices regarding real estate matters in the Pontiac area. We hope other professional groups will follow this example.

'Bill Would Affect Federal Employes' Pay'

H.R. 217, introduced by Congresswoman Martha W. Griffiths of Michigan, would authorize the check-off of city income taxes from the pay of Federal employes without their consent. This will mean a third tax bite out of every Federal paycheck in all those states with both state and city income taxes. In the case of nonresidents it could mean a half dozen or more such bites if the nonresident performs work in several income tax cities. Before this bill slips by Congress unnoticed, I hope there will be a poll of all Federal employes to find out their wishes.

Expresses Concern for Condition of Nation

The recent article by David Lawrence, "Two Court Decisions Deleterious," should make the people of the United States wake up—when men can plot to kill our president or burn our flag and the U.S. Supreme Court turns them loose. Can't the government see that the Supreme Court is selling our nation down the alley to hoodlums and the Reds? Russia said they would take over the U. S. and never fire a gun. Being a senior citizen, I may not see it but unless someone wakes up fast, my children and grandchildren will suffer.

'Magazine Tells Negro History in Michigan'

Did you know that black loggers and lumber barons helped build Bay City? That black people were among the earliest pioneers and homesteaders in Michigan? Articles on law and order, education, black militant youth, economic development, black dentists, writers, architects and musicians, Michigan's first black bank, and an interview with State Senator Coleman A. Young are included in "Michigan Challenge," published by the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce in Lansing. Copies of these magazines should be in every school library in the state, every home and every church.

Question and Answer

On June 13 I plan to have a record party. I've looked all over for certain records and haven't found them. There are places to order them for $1 each, but I'm on an allowance and can't afford that much. I'm looking for a place to order them for less. Can you help me?

P. B. K.

REPLY

Try Wolverine Entertainers, Inc., 1782 Pontiac Drive, FE 4-9577. They sell records which have been played on jukeboxes for 25 cents each or 5 for $1. They may have the ones you listed, but if not, you might find others you'd like just as well for that price. Only thing is, you'll have to look through them yourself. The office is open until 5:30 every day but Sunday.

Question and Answer

In August 1966, we were involved in an accident. The man who hit us left town. Our attorney contacted Lansing but was unable to find out if the man had insurance, so we can't start suit. How can we find out if he was insured or was with the State's uninsured motorists' fund?

MRS. RONALD JONES
562 E. MADISON

REPLY

We talked with Mr. Brossard at the Vehicle Service Title and Registration Division of the Michigan Secretary of State's office. He said an application for that license number was made Feb. 12, 1966, indicating the car was insured with Buckeye Union. However, it may have been canceled or dropped, because on March 8, 1966, another application was made and microfilm of the application indicates the $35 uninsured motorist's fee was paid. Your attorney can get verification of these records upon request by calling Mr. Brossard's office at the Title and Registration Division, Area Code 517—373-2459.

House OKs Criteria for Clean-Water Funds

LANSING (AP) — Acting with unaccustomed bipartisan unity, the House Friday approved two bills specifying how communities may apply for construction grants from bonds totaling $335 million for water pollution treatment and sewerage construction.

The bills now move to the Senate for further action.

★ ★ ★

Late attempts to add local interest amendments were rejected. The major, $285-million formula for state aid to federally backed local water antipollution projects passed 92-8, followed by an 85-10 vote for a $50-million formula for access sewers.

★ ★ ★

CONSERVATION PANELISTS

Anderson and Goemaere are co-chairmen of the conservation committee which substantially revised the criteria for judging which projects would be accepted for state aid.

House observers say the committee revisions, largely the work of Smit, a civil engineer, apparently eliminated most, if not all, pork-barrel lopholes.

Annual approval of local project applications would remain with the Legislature.

★ ★ ★

However, it would have only 45 days to act after receiving recommendations from the Water Resources Commission. A longer delay would mean automatic approval of the commission's list.

SCREEN OUT POLITICKING

Sponsors of the bill said that feature of the bill leaves complicated engineering decisions to technically qualified experts and should screen out most of the political wheeling and dealing that normally is part of legislative action on such bills.

★ ★ ★

Projects, instead, would be graded according to "point" scales estimating a community's pollution control needs as well as financial burdens.

★ ★ ★

To receive funds from the $285-milion bond, communitise would have to be eligible for federal aid, but only for construction begun after June 30, 1967.

★ ★ ★

The $50-mililon bond, on the other hand, is deliberately restricted to communities which do not qualify for federal grants.

★ ★ ★

One problem, Anderson said in defending the bills from floor amendments, is that pollution far exceeds the money available to combat it. Revenue from the smaller, $50-million bond must be divided among communities now with any pollution treatment faciilties. Paying for what is actually needed would cost $500 million, Anderson said.

Striking Union Files Charges

Consumers Accused of Worker Blacklist

JACKSON (UPI) — The huge Consumers Power Co. and the striking Michigan Workers Council are sparring but not negotiating as a work stoppage against the gas and electricity supplier moved into its 26th day today.

The union, representing 5,200 Consumers employes, filed unfair labor practice charges against the company yesterday, alleging it had blacklisted unionists working on other jobs during the strike.

★ ★ ★

The Utility Workers also filed charges against General Motors Corp. and Detroit Edison Co., accusing the two companies of refusing to hire men whose names were on a list furnished by Consumers.

The union charged that Consumers had caused 70 men working for private line construction firms to lose their jobs. Consumers countered that it was "unaware of any facts that would justify the charge" filed with the National Labor Relations Board.

MORE VANDALISM

It also reported more incidents of vandalism to company property. But, as in the past, it carefully refrained from suggesting the vandalism was attributed to the union.

Consumers said five electric substations were hit in the Kalamazoo area. It said "unidentified persons" drained cooling oil from seven transformers at five locations, "apparently with intent to interrupt electric service to more than 5,000 customers."

★ ★ ★

Substations hit, Consumers said, were at Allegan, Saugatuck, Gunn Lake, Casco and Hopkins. Service was not interrupted "except for momentary interruptions" as some customers in the Allegan area were switched to other supply lines, a spokesman said.

New Airline Runs Late— for 43 Reasons

TRAVERSE CITY (AP) — Michigan's newest airline landed a flight at Traverse City 20 minutes late Friday night, but with 43 good reasons.

The president of Trans-Michigan Airlines, B. J. Hayner, was told 43 Michigan servicemen somehow were left stranded at Detroit's Metro Airport with no way home.

★ ★ ★

Hayner ordered Flight 211 and two other to fly all 43 of the men to Flint and Saginaw without charge.

Trans-Michigan 9irlines has been in operation only six days.

RECEIVE AWARD — Young people of First Social Brethren Church were awarded first place in the Youth Contest held in Gary, Ind. last week. Shown are Ann Carr of 54 Hudson with the trophy and Marshall Heatherly of 24 Jefferson holding the painting of the Lord's Supper on leather, a project of the church young people. Raymond Hull, teacher at Pontiac Northern High School, is youth leader.

Win First Place in Youth Contest

Last November young people of First Social Brethren Church, 316 Baldwin met to make plans for entering a youth contest of the denomination. They decided the project would be painting the Lord's Supper on leather.

★ ★ ★

Under the direction of Jim Judd three young people, Ann Carr, Gary Wiley and Marshall Heatherly, met each week and eventually completed the tracing and tooling.

The next step was to paint the drawing. With a rushed date the painting was completed the night before it was to be judged.

The three teen-agers journied to Gary, Ind., with high hopes of returning a winner and they did. First place was awarded the First Social Brethren Church youth.

At Five Points

Earns Highest Achievement

Robert Crichton Jr. will receive the Herald of Christ Award at the 6:30 p.m. worship service tomorrow in Five Points Community Church, 3411 E. Walton, Pontiac Township.

★ ★ ★

Since the formation of Christian Brigade for Boys in 1937 only 311 boys in North America have followed through to earn the Herald of Christ Award, the highest achievement award.

REQUIRED

The Herald award requirements primarily test leadership development and maturity in Christian living. According to Pastor Gordon Lindsay, one Bible School president said he believed the work involved in earning this award was equivalent to one year in a Bible School.

★ ★ ★

Robert Crichton chose first to work in the program of Brigade technician for the achievement award. It was necessary to work in the basic sciences, a planned Bible reading, a doctrinal study of the Scriptures and the building of a motor.

He completed the work before the age of 16.

TOO YOUNG

Since he was too young to receive a Herald for Christ Award and not satisfied just to wait until the required age, Robert decided to work in another field of achievement, the field of airman.

★ ★ ★

As an airman he chose to draw a plan and scale of an airfield for a town of 20,000 population, indicating the proper hangar and terminal facilities.

★ ★ ★

He worked with aircraft design, and construction, Bible study and memory work.

Another requirement was a 2,000 word theme on "Christian Living and Witness."

★ ★ ★

The Rev. Mr. Lindsay said the Brigade points of valor are honor, courage, chivalry, purity, loyalty, obedience and dedication.

Mt. Olive Baptist Sponsors Tea, Show

A See and Taste Tea will be held in Mt. Olive Baptist Church, 458 Central, from 4 to 6 p.m. tomorrow.

★ ★ ★

Goria Passmore will narrate the fashion show presented by members of the church during the afternoon.

★ ★ ★

Chairman Mrs. Henry A. Carroll is assisted in planning by Mrs. Eugene Dorris and Mrs. Leola Green.

★ ★ ★

A service of Holy Communion will be observed at the 7 p.m. worship hour.

3 New Prep Grid Coaches in Picture

WL Western Picks Evans

Bobby Hill Selected at Utica Stevenson

New coaches have been named at Utica Stevenson, Walled Lake Western and Birmingham Groves high schools.

George Evans is moving from the basketball job at Ferndale St. James to WL Western which will open next fall. He has a 62-42 mark at St. James in five seasons.

★ ★ ★

He also will be an assistant football coach as well as teach English and specialized reading. He, his wife and their three children live in Madison Heights.

FORMER FIREBIRD

Stevenson has handed its football reins to Bob Hill, a physical education and swimming instructor at the school who also has coaching experience at Carson City, Armada and with the Pontiac Firebirds of the Midwest Football League.

The diminutive Hill is replacing Jerry Thomas who has been promoted to the job of athletic director for Stevenson. As junior varsity coach, Hill produced a 10-7-1 record at USH.

Hill won 11 letters at Alma College after starring at Roseville Eastland H.S.

CHANGES MIND

Groves reportedly has landed former Eastern Michigan University All-American gridder Terry Hurley, who coached St. Clair Shores Lake Shore last fall, to be its new grid mentor.

★ ★ ★

The school lost its first choice when he accepted the job and then backed out earlier this week. The 30-year-old Hurley earned 14-letters at Lake Shore before matriculating to EMU, where he gained NAIA recognition.

Hurley has agreed to take the job but still must receive the approval of the board of education.

Two Aces Hit at Bald Mt.

Their methods differed but two golfers this week found the formula for mastering the deceptive 170-yard 17th hole at Bald Mountain Golf Course.

Detroiter Keith Goodman used a seven-iron Sunday to drop his drive into the cup and he finished with an 83 for the round. It's his second hole-in-one.

★ ★ ★

Tuesday night in the General Motors Truck and Coach League, Larry Bergo of Pontiac negotiated the valley with a three-wood to record his first ace. Walt Nurek, Harry Strom and Ed Reddish witnessed Bergo's shot.

Net Tourney Set May 10-11

A tennis tournament for three age groups will be held at Cranbrook school, May 10-11 starting at 9:00 a.m.

★ ★ ★

The classes will include 5th to 7th graders, 8th graders and 9th graders and boys and girls can register by calling Mr. Davisson at 644-1600.

Two new tennis balls is the only requirement for entry.

Local Doubles High

When action resumes this weekend at Westgate Bowl in Grand Rapids, Oxford's Fran Bertram and Joe Bonfiglio of Pontiac will be hoping the doubles entries in the Men's State Bowling Tournament aren't on target.

Bertram and Bonfiglio pooled their efforts last Sunday for a 1354 actual and 1411 handicap score to grab second and fourth place, respectively.

Bertram had a 681 actual, including a 258 game, and Bonfiglio rolled a 267 in a 673 series.

Another Pontiac area doubles team scoring well but not craking the top ten was Billie K. Smith and Don Fennell. They combined for a 1315 handicap score. Smith hit 663 actual.

Tom Augello bowled 695 actual (725) and Joe Myers a 687 (705) in the singles. Just missing the top five in actual all events was Al Schupbach with his 1982. Bob Garrett and Tom Augello were other local bowlers who topped 1900.

★ ★ ★

None of the Pontiac area teams were close to the top 10, although several fine showings were reported. West Side Lanes had a 3187.

Schupbach's 710 sparked Pontiac Janitor Supply to 3173; Art Pearson hit 656 and Myers of 641 in the Oxford Merchants' 3159; while Art Newby (652) and Charles Beach (640) led Moose Lodge No. 182 to a 3125 total.

Walled Lake, Orion Score Golf Wins

Led by Jim Wallace's 27 and Doug Jessep's 39, Walled Lake defeated Lahser in a golf match at Edgewood CC, 200-212 yesterday.

★ ★ ★

Lake Orion had Tom Wiseman and Hoyt Sreicks with 40s as the Dragons won over Claswon, 165-182 at Bald Mountain.

Detroit Kegler Takes Top Spot in Tournament

CHICAGO (AP) — Louis F. Burr of Detroit rolled an eight-game series of 1,653 Friday night to take the lead in the $512,256 Petersen Bowling Classic.

Burr, 31-year-old production control employee who attends night school at the University of Detroit, could win $38,850 if his lead holds when the tournament ends July 20.

Burr, who wrested the lead from Jack Brown of Chicago, had games of 185, 195, 223, 196, 204, 202, 222 and 226.

Brown had held the lead with 1,627, one pin more than Roger Hutton of Braidwood, Ill., who dropped to third.

Butch Beard Picks NBA

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Atlanta Hawks Friday signed their No. 1 draft Butch Beard, a 6-foot-3 guard from Louisville.

Opposition Voiced on Rec Fund Split

TRAVERSE CITY (AP) — A majority of speakers Friday at a public hearing opposed giving urban areas the biggest chunk of a $100-million state recreation bond issue.

About 80 persons attended the hearing in Traverse City, second of four sessions being held around the state by the House and Senate conservation committees to determine public sentiment on division of the bond money passed by Michigan voters last November.

★ ★ ★

The majority of several dozen persons testifying urged a 70-30 split in the recreation funds, under which the bulk would go for state parks and other projects in outstate areas, with 30 per cent put to use of cities.

Frank Walsh, Bay County recreation director, supported a 30-30-40 split backed by Gov. William Milliken. Under this plan, more than half of the $100 million would end up in heavily populated areas.

CHAMBER OFFICIAL

Bingham McClellan, a Michigan State Chamber of Commerce official, urged a 70-30 split.

State Rep. Michael Dively, R-Traverse City, backed the 30-30-40 plan. He said its proposed provisions for local and statewide recreation projects would cover people in all parts of the state. Dively said this split would make the outdoors available to the poor in crowded cities as well as to affluent sportsmen.

Rep. Joseph Swallow of Alpena endorsed the 70-30 proposal and urged that the Legislature keep faith with the voters. He said if it did not, this could affect future school bond issues.

Richard McClellan, Gov. Milliken's representative at the hearing, was asked if the governor had committed himself to the 70-30 plan during his re-election campaign.

McClellan replied that the governor had reassessed the program after the vote for recommendation of the recreation bill, and didn't feel there had been a commitment on his part.

Conservationists generally backed the 70-30 split.

MTU Gets Grant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Office of Education Friday approved a $300,000 federal grant to help construct a $7.8-million 11-story mechanical engineering department building at Michigan Technological University in Houghton.

'La Mancha' Star in Quest of 'The Quest' Movie Lead

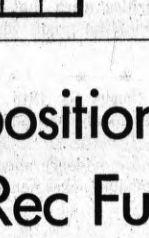

NEW YORK — Richard Kiley was sitting in "21" a small drink in front of him, when a man came over and said, "I'm sorry, I've got a wife who's highly frustrated."

"Who hasn't?" Kiley said.

"And she wants to know what the hell soap opera you play in," the man said.

"I've never been in a soap opera," Kiley replied.

"Now don't tell me that!" the stranger boomed. "You always play the nasty villain like Boris Karloff. You're like the guy in the grey hat. I can't think of your name."

WILSON

"It's Richard Kiley," Richard Kiley confessed.

★ ★ ★

"That's what comes of wearing beards in shows," Kiley said. The now 47-year-old ex-star of "Man of La Mancha," who justifiably feels that "Impossible Dream" (correct title, "The Quest") sort of belongs to him, is not likely to be recognized on the street especially when he doesn't have on a beard or a toupee.

"We're sweating out the movie," he said. "I've been mentioned for the picture but so has everybody else, including Richard Burton. I played it on Broadway for a year and a half — then in Los Angeles and San Francisco . . ."

He paused, to reminisce.

"The night of the opening, Nov. 23, 1965, we had a party at One 5th Av. The first review, on TV, spoke of 'how embarrassingly sentimental Richard Kiley was singing "Impossible Dream."'

"The party quickly emptied out and I thought, 'Back to the drawing board with my doodles.' I'm a doodler and they've paid off. The next morning my wife put the reviews on the table. The TV review was the only one that was not a rave.

County Gets School Funds

Oakland County school districts have received an advance appropriation of $1,460,298 under the U.S. Elementary and Secondary Education Act's grant program for the 1969-70 school year.

The Title I grants, earmarked for programs for disadvantaged youngsters, will be distributed directly to 26 school districts in the county.

★ ★ ★

Oakland intermediate school districts works in cooperation with the state department in allocating funds to the local districts.

This appropriation is only an advance. An additional undetermined amount under the Title I program will be appropriated later, according to school officials.

Offer Bonus Storage Units

Vertical furniture, which effectively utilizes floor to ceiling space that otherwise might be wasted, is a practical solution to the problem of limited storage and display space for prized possessions.

A wide selection of vertical furniture components called Spacemaker feature shelves, chests, cabinets and desks attached to floor to ceiling spring-loaded aluminum poles.

The versatile Spacemaker systems by OMNI are quickly and economically installed. New units can be added or existing units can be rearranged to meet changing family needs.

They won't mar floors, walls or ceilings, and can be packed up and moved to a new home or apartment.

OILED WALNUT

The components are hand-crafted in a classic design and finished in oiled walnut. Shelves and work-table desks may be ordered with white or walnut pattern plastic laminate surfaces.

The solid extruded aluminum poles are offered in natural, black, gold and bronze anodized lustre finishes.

Rich Colors Greet Spring

Rich, sunny colors that lift the spirit and delight the eye in all seasons are most evident in fresh, new dining ensembles just now reaching the market.

Notable innovations include sprightly pineapple or muted avocado in hardy enamel finishes for metal bases of chic new tables and chairs.

A manufacturer of metal dining furniture, weds its new colors with melamine table top in marble, olivewood, or subtle pecan wood tones.

Sawdust Trails May Mean Termites

A collection of tiny wings stacked outside a house in springtime strikes terror into the hearts of homeowners.

The debris means that colonizing termites have shed their wings after finding new nests.

★ ★ ★

The wood-chewing insects thrive in moderate climates.

In the United States most termites live below the frost line in vast underground complexes, the National Geographic Society says. Shunning light, the insects bridge exposed areas with a covered arcade of mud or wood fiber and saliva.

BUILD TOWERING NESTS

Remotely related to the roach family, termites are gregarious and create elaborate societies. In the tropics, nests may tower 20 feet and house 3,000,000 workers and soldiers.

Individually weak but collectively strong, members of a termite community perform duties within a strict caste system. Workers toil ceaselessly for their society, repairing passages, caring for larvae, and feeding the queen and soldiers.

★ ★ ★

Armed with saw-tooth mandibles, soldiers constantly guard against ants — a traditional enemy.

Some sentries have developed syringelike heads to squirt enemies with corrosive liquids. Others merely flip workers away from harm, or sound the alarm by knocking their heads on wood.

The prolific queen perpetuates a colony by laying up to 30,00 eggs a day. Her abdomen swells to grotesque proportions — sometimes four and a half inches long. Workers measure only about a quarter of an inch.

GROW SEASONAL WINGS

Termites belong to the order Isoptera, meaning "equal wings." However, only queens and males have wings — grown for their colonizing flight — and they lose them when enough food has been found to start a new colony.

Termites dine on almost anything containing cellulose, a major wood constituent. The voracious insects have devoured furniture, clothing, railroad tickets and labels from cans.

★ ★ ★

They may turn up anywhere. A few years ago termites descended on Pitcairn, one of the South Pacific's most remote islands. The unwelcome visitors had stowed away in a church organ shipped from New Zealand.

Termites respect neither power nor authority. The creatures have dined on Japanese temples, reveled in Paris landmarks, and chewed at the Vatican. An American newsman once found them infiltrating the Kremlin.

Sawdust is a frequent symptom of trouble. One householder discovered his house was threatened "when I noticed sawdust trickling down from beams holding up the living room ceiling."

Family Room Embraces Space for Myriad Functions

A good family room is like a space capsule; it contains nearly everything needed for life support. That, at least, is the aproach taken by Interior Designer Binnie Kramer, A.I.D., whose family room plans are both intriguing and sensible.

"Of course, different people have different requirements," said Mrs. Kramer, "but for most young, active families, ambidextrous space is the biggest need. Combine the functions of several rooms into one, and you get both convenience and versatility."

★ ★ ★

Illustrating her theory, Mrs. Kramer designed a family room for a Portland, Oregon, home which functions variously as a laundry room, sewing center, children's playroom, home office, hobby shop and guest room.

But, by merely closing a door or drawer, any of its worktime operations literally disappears. Remaininig is an attractive informal living room.

Built-ins are the secret of the room's chameleon-like quality. For laundry, Mrs. Kramer designed roomy closets holding not only the washer and dryer but also clothes bins, treating sink, ironing board, and shelving.

In the washer-dryer closet, a window admits daylight and a fan exhauts moist air.

★ ★ ★

On an adjoining wall, a cupboard-counter installation houses the home office at one end and the sewing center at the other.

Good ideas include mounting the sewing machine on a pull-up board, like those used for mixers, and designing a section of counter that flips out to a four-foot-wide dressmaker's cutting board.

SEPARATE CABINET

Games, craft supplies, the children's toys and books are in another cabinet.

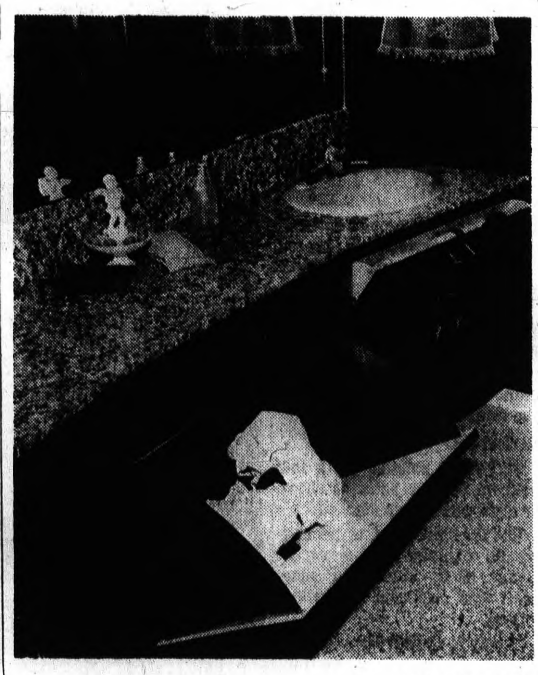

Even furniture is multi-purpose. Three couches built for the family room have thick foam pads set into box-style frames containing storage drawers. Two are twin-bed size; the third is only half as big.

Mounted on ball casters, the pieces can be pushed under wall-hung black bolsters to become sofas or pulled out to be used as beds.

Along with its purposeful built-ins, beauty also was woven into the family room's design. Butterscotch carpeting covers the floor, and couches, bolsters and window shades feature a bold cotton plaid of butterscotch, white and olive.

Walls and built-ins were tailored in vertical grain western hemlock lumber.

Countertops are white, and Chinese red appears in accessories.

TIP-OUTS — The Rudy Schulers of Oxford Township put the tip-out principle to work in a utility drawer and a built-in laundry hamper in the private bath opening off their master bedroom. The room's ebony formica is highlighted by shell chips in clear plastic.

Douse Fire First for Safety's Sake

Camp fires not entirely extinguished are a primary cause of forest fires. Take along a galvanized steel pail on your next camping trip.

Fill it with water and douse your camp fire thoroughly before leaving the area. If the fire is still smoldering, douse it again.

Pine Mill Output Doubles Production

An estimated 5,000 lumber mills are operating in the 12 Southern Pine producing states, as compared with 13,000 10 years ago.

However, the volume of Southern Pine lumber produced in 1968 was actually higher than the 1957-59 average. Thus, average output, per mill, has doubled during the decade.

In general, there are fewer but larger mills with closer control over quality and better utilization of the timber harvest.

To protect the end grain of fence post tops and fence boards nailed vertically, use a 2x6-inch cedar cap board.

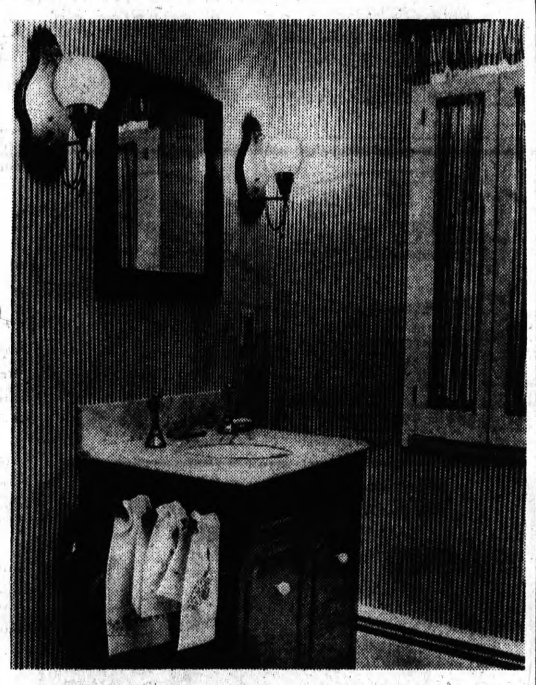

HOMEBUYER HINTS

1. Don't rely on verbal agreements, get it in writing and consult an attorney BEFORE you sign anything.
2. Have the home examined inside and out, by an impartial expert BEFORE you make an offer. (Some people need to have a house fall on them before they will take a hint.)

Our inspection requires 3 to 5 hours and covers a check-list of hundreds of items. You get a 15 to 17 page detailed report of our findings and advice. Service is expert, prompt and courteous. References available.
