Honor City's First Baby of '60

Miami Vacation Airliner Explodes in Sky, 34 Die

Bodies, Debris Scattered Over Carolina Woods

BOLIVIA, N.C., (AP) — A National Airlines night coach flying nonstop from New York to Miami crashed with 34 persons aboard before dawn today in swampy woodlands near here.

"There will not be any survivors," said Deputy Sheriff H. G. Ratcliff. Twenty-four bodies had been recovered shortly after noon.

Reporters on the scene said the big plane appeared to have exploded in the air and debris and bodies were scattered over an area of 20 acres.

The other substitute plane, an Electra turbo-prop plane, reached Miami safely with 76 passengers and crew members.

The plane that crashed carried 29 passengers and a crew of five.

Its passengers included retired Navy Vice Adm. Edward Orrick McDonnell, who held a Congressional Medal of Honor and numerous other decorations for World War II service. He commanded an aircraft carrier in the Pacific.

Most of the passengers were easterners, bound for vacations at Florida's sunny resorts. The plane had been flying through rainy weather.

The watch on the wrist of a crew member found in the cockpit was stopped at 2:45 a.m., indicating that the crash occurred some 14 minutes after the pilot reported in by radio. He indicated no trouble at that time.

The possibility that passengers were aware of trouble before the crash was seen in the fact that a number of the victims were clad in Mae West life preservers. The life preservers on some had been inflated.

FATAL CRASH SCENE — Twisted wreckage marks the spot where 34 vacation-bound passengers of a National Airlines night coach met violent death early today. The plane is reported to have exploded in midair and showered the earth below with debris and bodies. The tragedy occurred near Wilmington, N. C. while the liner was bound from New York to Miami as a substitute for a canceled jet flight.

More to Attend Straley Talks?

If Herbert W. Straley negotiates some more with the city before he returns as police chief, he'll probably do it before the entire City Commission.

"One of Straley's supporters should sit on this committee," he recommended.

Debate ended after Commissioners Floyd P. Miles and John A. Dugan declared that any committee should be made up of all seven Commission members.

NO DECISION

Although no decision was reached, it was not likely that Mayor Philip E. Rowston would oppose a full committee if a new negotiation session were called.

"As far as I'm concerned, it is up to Mr. Straley or his representatives to ask for such a meeting," he observed.

Rowston, at the earlier request of several Commissioners, met last week with Straley in an initial airing of his plans for returning.

Straley's legal counsel, Clarence L. Smith, said then he believed it would take a few weeks and at least one more negotiation session before Straley goes back to the $9,000-a-year job from which he was fired last April.

ATTORNEYS PRESENT

Smith and City Attorney William A. Ewart also attended the meeting but Rowston was the only Commissioner present.

"There's two sides to the Straley question," said Landry. "It would be a tremendous show of good faith on the part of the city if at least one member of the opposition sat in on these negotiations."

Commissioner Milton R. Henry supported Landry. The two commissioners have sympathized with Straley and opposed George D. Eastman as public safety director.

The other five commissioners—

First in the Heart of '60: Washington (Sandra Kay)

Through the good timing of Sandra's arrival to this world, the Washingtons are feted as parents of Pontiac's newest resident of 1960.

This distinction makes them winners of a "First Baby" contest sponsored by The Pontiac Press in cooperation with Downtown Merchants Assn. and the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce.

As such, they are being honored by close to 20 area merchants who will bestow gifts on the couple and their newborn.

The first child to Laura and Lawrence Washington, 425 Branch St., Sandra made her entrance at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital at 12:02 a.m. on Jan. 1.

She tilted the scales at a robust 7 pounds and 11 ounces.

"And she has lots of hair," proclaims her father, an orderly at the hospital where she was born.

DEDUCTION GONE

Just a few minutes earlier and the Washingtons would have had a $600 tax deduction for 1959, the new daddy was reminded.

Was he disappointed?

"Not at all. We like it better this way," Washington beamed.

'Don't Be Hysterical About Reds in Space'

The President called for exploitation in this country of the idea that "man is a creature of God and dignity."

Eisenhower expressed his views in a brief informal talk to officials of the National Presbyterian Church. He attended morning services where he joined in prayer for success of the new session of the 86th Congress, convening today.

'Prejudiced Convention Case'

Black Should Quit: Porter

LANSING (AP)—A Republican senator says Supreme Court Justice Eugene F. Black, a Democrat, prejudiced a case before the high court and should resign.

"I am shocked by such conduct," said Sen. Elmer R. Porter (R-Blissfield), Senate Appropriations Committee chairman. "The governor should demand this man's resignation."

Told of the senator's remarks, Black said:

"Tell Porter to come up here (to the Supreme Court) and demand it himself, and then if he doesn't like what he gets he can go down and demand that the governor do it."

Porter, farmer and 23-year veteran of the Legislature, jumped on the Port Huron justice for handing out an opinion in a case moments after the court heard formal arguments. Normally, justices announce their decision jointly after lengthy consideration.

The case involves calling a constitutional convention, a subject long dear to Black's heart.

He announced from the bench yesterday that he wrote the 69-page opinion last September shortly after the pending suit was filed by Peter Bradt, Port Huron attorney. The opinion supported Bradt's view.

Bradt urged the court to overturn a 1949 ruling and declare that voters in November 1948 approved calling a special convention to rewrite Michigan's 1908 constitution.

The proposition received 811,

282 "yes" votes and 666,365 "no" votes. However, state canvassers held it was defeated under the 1949 ruling for failure to receive 1,170,815 votes — a majority of those cast at the general election for all candidates and propositions.

As attorney general in 1948, Black, then a Republican, challenged the ruling of canvassers then in office that a similar constitutional convention vote failed to carry.

Hot Inside and Out

APPLETON, Wis. (UPI)—James Von Boxtel, 20, told the judge the reason he was going 40 miles an hour in a 20-mile zone was that he wanted to get home with two pizzas before they got cold. He was fined $15 and costs.

Barbed Issues Face Congress

New Session Begins in Prodding Shadow of Election Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress convened today with two explosive issues on the early agenda and a presidential election breathing down its collective neck.

Civil rights and federal aid to education are the issues likely to figure in early battles. A half dozen other hot measures are bound to generate partisan squabbles and heated words.

Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) said today civil rights legislation can be passed by the House within the next two weeks if enough members want it.

That document will sketch the President's 1960 program in broad outline. Details of the program will be set forth in his budget message Jan. 18.

The second session of the 86th Congress will provide the sounding board for at least five senators eying the Democratic presidential nomination. Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who has an apparent stranglehold on the Republican nomination, also sits in the Senate as presiding officer.

In addition, 33 senators and all 437 members of the House are up for re-election or replacement in the fall.

In that atmosphere, the session may set a record for sheer volume of oratory.

ADJOURNMENT DATE

Party leaders already have set a tentative adjournment date—July 4, a week before the Democratic national convention starts in Los Angeles and three weeks before the Republicans gather in Chicago.

The 86th Congress can go to work in a hurry if it wants to.

LANSING (AP) — Beefing-up of the State Police force with 80 more troopers and five new posts has been suggested as one method of cutting Michigan's soaring highway death toll.

The recommendation was approved yesterday by the State Safety Commission following a discussion of Michigan's 34 road fatalities over the New Year's holiday — highest in state history. The 80 new troopers would bring state police strength to 1,235 officers and men. It was estimated salary and training of the recruits would cost $350,000.

The cost of new cars, uniforms and other equipment was not included in the estimate. There also was no estimate of the cost of the proposed new posts.

Gov. Williams said he had not yet decided on his budget recommendations for state police.

State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs said new posts were needed in Iron County, Sault Ste. Marie, the Tecumseh - Coldwater area, Portage Township south of Kalamazoo and the Shelby-Hart area near Muskegon.

"We'll particularly need a post at Sault Ste. Marie when the new international bridge there is opened," he said.

The commission also approved a recommendation by Hare that motorists with nine demerit points on their accident records be called in for group instruction sessions. At present, only those with 12 or more points for moving violations are being called in.

The State Administrative Board today approved release of $3,000 to permit the more intensive driver interview program.

The commission approved another try for legalization of drunk-ometer and similar tests for motorists suspected of drinking. The Legislature has beaten down all previous attempts to do this.

Some Making More This Way

Courtesy Rides Supporting Bus Drivers

By PETE LOCHBILER

Some are falling behind, but others reportedly are making more money now than they did driving buses.

Apparently there is strong sympathy to continue the strike within the ranks of the 38-member Local 1097 of the Amalgamated Assn. of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes Union, AFL-CIO.

That is the way the strike appeared yesterday — in its 31st day — at the corner of Huron and Saginaw streets.

Courtesy cars — bus drivers use their own autos for the service — whiz in and out of the intersection all day long, following the same schedules set up by Pontiac City Lines, Inc.

At busy hours, it's not hard for them to fill up with five passengers each.

GET DONATIONS

The bus drivers don't charge, but there is a donation box. And most donations amount to 25 cents — the price of a bus ride.

"Lots of times, though, people give us an extra nickel, dime or quarter," said one of the drivers, Roy Olson, 4869 Fenmore St., Waterford Township.

There are usually 20 courtesy cars in operation six days a week, said John Sytsma, local president, following established routes and schedules throughout the city.

Operating from 5:15 a.m. to 6:45 p.m. — except Sundays — and even later on Mondays and Fridays, the cars provide service for an estimated 1,000 regular bus riders, or one-quarter of the bus company's daily load in prestrike days.

A couple drivers are making up to $90 a week after expenses, said Sytsma. Drivers averaged a little

Reds Discover Calorie-Free Frying Oil

The Soviet news agency said Leningrad botanists, after a 25-year search, have discovered a fruit of the cactus family that contains oil which the human system does not absorb.

Taxi said the shrub, known as the nemesnils, has a fruit about the size of a cherry which contains nearly as much oil as olives. It tastes like coconut oil.

Cost of Vitamins?

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Bronx zoo submitted its annual budget request to city officials yesterday and said they didn't need more money even though feed costs have risen. The animals have been put on a diet — less feed, more vitamin pills.

Don't look for spring yet, but the forecast for Pontiac and vicinity is a little warmer for the next few days, with occasional snow flurries.

Temperatures will average from normal to three degrees below the normal high of 33, normal low of 20. Tonight's low is expected to be 10-16 degrees, with a high tomorrow about 30.

Winds at 10:15 a.m. today registered 16-30 miles per hour from the west. The temperature in downtown Pontiac was 23 at 1 p.m.

field, while the cockpit struck in woods 50 yards away.

"We heard an engine going chug-a-chug," he said, "like it was cutting in and out. Then it sounded like tin doors and windows ripping off. Then there was a big boom like dynamite."

Randolph arose and looked out the window. He could see nothing but a small flame, which soon went out. He returned to bed.

Early this morning their small son, McArthur, went to the field to see what happened and found the plane.

Emergency and rescue vehicles rushed to the scene. A light rain fell as rescuers searched for bodies.

Lester L. Edwards, a forest ranger, said it appeared to him that the plane might have exploded in flight. This opinion was shared also by Doyle Howard, a reporter on the scene from the Wilmington News.

The FBI sent its special disaster squad to the scene. This was requested by Charles Sharp, National's vice president. The squad of three fingerprint experts has identified more than 80 per cent of the victims of airliner crashes it has investigated.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pope John XXIII today appointed three new Roman Catholic bishops to fill posts in Dodge City, Kan., Youngstown, Ohio, and Providence, R. I.

The appointments announced here by Archbishop Egidio Vagnozzi, apostolic delegate to the United States, were:

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Marion F. Forst, vicar general of the diocese of Springfield — Cape Girardeau in Southern Missouri, to be bishop of Dodge City.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas F. Maloney, rector of the American College, Louvain, Belgium, to be auxiliary to Bishop Russell J. McVinney of Providence, and assigned the titular see of Andropolis.

Very Rev. Msgr. James W. Malone, superintendent of schools in the diocese of Youngstown to be auxiliary to Bishop Emmet M. Walsh in that diocese.

NEW OAKLAND ATTORNEYS — These eight of 26 Oakland County residents who passed their Michigan State Bar examinations in September were officially admitted to the Bar before the five Circuit Court judges in a ceremony yesterday afternoon. They are (from left) Milton Silverman, Jackie L. Banycky, Robert W. Carr, John N. O'Brien, Richard D. Kuhn, Walter J. Schrodt Jr., Robert W. Dahm, and John W. Gelder. Administering their oaths of office as counselors of law is Daniel T. Murphy Jr., county clerk-register. The others who passed their exams have been admitted to practice in other counties.

Hitler's Ideas Still Alive; Proven in West Germany

BONN, Germany (AP) — The current wave of anti-Semitic incidents points up the shakiness of democracy in West Germany.

Most of the men arrested in Germany so far in connection with the painting of swastikas and anti-Jewish slogans in public places are under 25, too young to have been Nazis in the Hitler era.

Yet these youths mouth Nazi slogans and heap vitriol on Jews.

It is all too clear that Hitler's ideas are still alive in Germany. Hatred still exists, waiting to be used by demagogues.

Few persons in authority take the new wave of anti-Semitic incidents as serious in themselves. But they see the episodes as of tremendous importance in what they indicate about Germans of today.

Desecration of synagogues and Jewish graveyards is nothing new in postwar Germany. Such incidents have been reported frequently in the past decade.

What is new is the response to a single incident—the swabbing of a swastika on the newly decorated Cologne synagogue on Christmas Eve and the daubing in black paint of the words "Juden raus" — "Jews get out."

Newspapers picked up the story and spread it into Germany and abroad. Like a forest fire, the swastikas and anti-Jewish phrases spread across West Germany and around the world.

It is a well known axiom of psychology that humans—particularly the immature—imitate each other. A sex crime well publicized will be followed by a wave of sex crimes.

The same appears true with synagogue daubing. Many of the swastikas have been crudely drawn and seem the work of juvenile delinquent types.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer claims that "wirepullers" are behind the anti-Semitic wave and that evidence has been turned up of a widespread campaign to discredit his government abroad. But no one as yet has offered any proof to substantiate claims of a concerted anti-Semitic campaign.

Abortion Case Airing Delayed

Charge Pontiac Doctor Was Part of Biggest Ring in State History

Examination in the Mount Clemens justice court of Dr. Jerome Robb, 2575 Hiller Rd., on charges of conspiracy to commit abortion has been adjourned until Jan. 22.

The osteopath, who has offices at 1142 W. Huron St., is one of nine persons accused of operating the biggest abortion ring in Michigan history.

Justice of the Peace Francis Castelucci today said he turned down Robb's motion to dismiss the case at the start of yesterday's examination.

"I couldn't allow it (the motion to dismiss the case)," said Castelucci. "Now they are going to Circuit Court to contest my ruling, claiming defective warrant and complaint."

Their examination "looks like a long one."

He said he expects at least 36 witnesses to be presented when the proceedings resume.

Authorities said they have knowledge of at least 100 abortions performed by the alleged ring, including three osteopaths and a chiropractor, during the last year.

Wife of Thurmond Dies After Surgery

WASHINGTON (UP) — Mrs. Jean Crouch Thurmond, wife of Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-SC) died today. She was 33.

Doctors said she was afflicted with a rapidly progressing malignant brain tumor.

The Thurmonds were married Nov. 7, 1957, while he was governor of South Carolina. She had been his secretary. He was 44 at the time and she was 21.

Deputies Help Save Dying Man

The Oakland County Sheriff's Dept. today is credited with helping to save the life of a man dying from loss of blood.

Sheriff's road patrol cars sped to county borders last night to pick up a rare blood type relayed by other police departments from Wayne and Macomb County hospitals.

McGoldrick had to undergo emergency surgery for extensive internal bleeding at 11 p.m. in Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. His blood type is O-negative. About six out of 100 persons have this type blood.

McGoldrick still is in critical condition, a hospital official said this morning, but would not have survived without the relay errand of mercy of the Sheriff's Department.

Blood was received from the Art Center Osteopathic Hospital in Detroit, Pontiac General Hospital and Mt. Clemens General Hospital.

Pontiac General Hospital also provided a special nurse from its staff to care for McGoldrick in the emergency.

Eye Output Hike at Steel Inking

Eight-Month Battle Over as Union, 11 Companies Sign Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industry and union officials looked forward today to cooperative efforts to boost steel production as formal signings ended their eight-month contract battle.

The United Steelworkers Union and the 11 Big Steel companies Tuesday signed the 30-month pact they hammered out in marathon negotiations last weekend. The union expects no difficulty in signing up 80-odd smaller companies.

"It's been a long struggle. It's over. We look forward to maximum cooperation to do the job we have ahead," said R. Conrad Cooper, chief negotiator for the companies.

Union head David J. McDonald chimed in, "If you think the American steel industry has been great, you ain't seen gothin' yet. Watch us do a job."

Union leaders at the signing ceremony cheered this hatchet-burying. Earlier they had given Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell a thunderous ovation at a closed door union conference. Mitchell sat in on the final negotiations and has given Vice President Richard M. Nixon main credit for ending the eight-month contract deadlock.

HAROLD E. MILLIKEN

Elect President for GM Club

Managers' Unit Picks Harold Milliken, Zone Head for Pontiac

Election of Harold E. Milliken as president of the General Motors Management club of Detroit for 1960 was announced today. Milliken is zone manager for the Pontiac Motor Division.

The club is an organization of General Motors management representatives in the Detroit area who meet regularly for programs of interest both to the automotive industry and to the community.

Milliken has been employed by the Pontiac Motor Division for 24 years. A zone manager for 13 years, he has held his current assignment since July 1956.

Pontiac General Granted Loan

City Commission OKs $450,000, Probably the Last Expansion Aid

A loan of $450,000 to complete the Pontiac General Hospital expansion program was approved last night by the City Commission.

City Manager Walter K. Willman said it would probably be the last financial aid to the hospital, and would be paid back in time out of hospital revenues.

Commissioners approved raising the money through notes sold in anticipation of 1961 tax collections earmarked for capital improvements.

The Municipal Finance Commission in Lansing will be asked for approval to sell the notes at a maximum interest rate of four per cent.

The money, if raised, will cover extra expenses involved in the remodeling of the hospital's east wing, Willman said.

Remodeling should be finished around March 1, he added, bringing the long, five-year expansion program to a close.

"Mr. Willman should be given credit for his steadfastness in completing the hospital," said Commissioner Robert A. Landry.

"We are all very much relieved that this is the final step in completing the hospital," said Mayor Philip E. Rowston.

"The City Commission has always given the city manager unanimous support when extra costs became apparent."

The expansion — including the addition — was planned in 1954 with a $3,000,000 general obligation bond issue. Since then, it has grown into a $5,000,000 project with the extra money coming out of capital improvement funds.

On a recommendation from Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley, the Commission has approved all-day parking on the west side of Eton road only, from Villa to Lincoln roads.

However, parking will continue to be prohibited on Eton road from Maple to Villa roads.

The restrictions had been in effect since November 1956.

"There are several businesses in the affected area that will benefit from the parking," Moxley said.

"If all-day parking along this stretch becomes a problem, we will post necessary signs to provide parking only at certain hours of the day."

Moxley said the "No Parking" signs had been placed prior to the widening of Eton road, but "now that the Eton widening has been completed it appears the traffic regulations can be modified."

A citation for distinguished service to agriculture will be presented to Merritt D. Hill of 965 E. Glengarry Circle, Bloomfield Township, Feb. 3 during Michigan State University's 45th annual Farmer's Week.

Commenting on the citation, Dr. Thomas K. Cowden of MSU's College of Agriculture said "Hill is a strong supporter of MSU and its agricultural program and represents Michigan's agricultural industry on numerous state and national committees."

Commission Mulls More Straley Talks

including Rowston— upheld administration's orginal decision to fire Straley 11 months ago and have continued to date to support City Manager Walter K. Willman's backing of Eastman.

Faced with the prospect of having a court decree delivered to him ordering Straley's reinstatement, Willman briefly broke a tight-lipped silence last night for the first time.

"I will abide by the terms of the decree," he said.

While acknowledging the legal compulsion to reinstate Straley, Willman made no indication as to whether a new move to oust him is being contemplated.

Delivery of the order is expected this week. It was delayed while Smith's secretaries were busy typing new copies.

"It came to our attention that there were a few minor changes that had to be made," he said.

The copies must be certified by the Ionia County Clerk before they can be returned to Pontiac as valid. Ionia Circuit Judge Morris K. Davis signed the original order last Wednesday, telling the city to reinstate Straley and give him his back pay.

It was Judge Davis who Dec. 8 overruled on technical grounds Straley's ouster by the former Civil Service Commission.

It was indicated that Eastman will continue as public safety director, even if Straley returns. But a move to have the Commission polled on the question failed.

"We have already voted on the Eastman question four times. The results have always been the same," said Rowston in reference to the four times Landry and Henry have tried unsuccessfully to oust Eastman.

Rowston had already called for a poll when Dugan and Commissioner Wesley J. Wood objected.

Smith told of a feud he is having with the Police Department, which has been under Eastman's personal direction for more than a year.

He claimed that a car owned by his son was damaged when impounded last week. Rowston told him to file a claim with the city attorney.

Even so, he nets a tidy profit for the few hours he puts in.

"So we haven't really felt any financial pinch yet," he explained.

Like Olson, Deel said he wants to continue the strike "until we win."

NOT ALL DO WELL

But not all drivers are doing well by the courtesy idle service. For instance, Mrs. Wilma Bell, 687 E. Madison Ave., who has three small children to support by herself.

Mrs. Bell drives an older car — a 1951 model — and last week cleared only $16.24. This was after $34 expenses.

She had to have a headlight replaced and a flat tire repaired with a new inner tube. These expenses cut into her earnings.

Mrs. Bell said she is going into debt at the rate of about $40 a week.

"But I'm still in favor of the strike. I was only making about $60 a week from the bus company."

Pontiac City Lines is a subsidiary of National City Lines, Inc. Strikes are also being waged against subsidiaries of the parent firm in Saginaw and Kalamazoo.

Drivers, whose top pay is $1.72 an hour, are asking for a 12-cent an hour package increase in all three cities, said Sytsma.

Up to last week, the bus companies refused any increase on grounds they couldn't afford it.

In Saginaw last Wednesday, the company offered a 7-cent an hour package, which the union rejected.

"But you could call the offer the first break so far in the strike," said Sytsma.

Negotiations, encouraged by state labor mediators, are to be renewed tomorrow in Kalamazoo. No resumption of negotiations in Pontiac has been scheduled yet.

To Attempt Contacting Other Beings

ANN ARBOR (AP) — An attempt to contact "intelligent beings" on other planets will be made this spring by several leading American astronomers, a University of Michigan space expert has revealed.

Prof. Fred T. Haddock, of the university's astronomy department, said most of the world's top astronomers agree such beings probably exist on many of the planets in the universe.

Scientists, using the most modern and sensitive equipment, will try for the first time to contact other planetary life by intercepting messages they may be transmitting from billions of miles out in space.

Equipment designed to tune in on radio signals sent by beings on other planets has been installed at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Green Bank, W. Va., and will begin operation within the next few months, Haddock said.

Later, a similar device may be set up at the University of Michigan's newly-finished giant radio telescope atop nearby Peach Mountain.

Scientists operating the device will hunt for signals flashing through space on the 21 centimeter radio frequency band.

"A civilization technically able to communicate with us would know that the 21 centimeter line exists," Haddock said. "Nearly all aspects of the wave length make it the ideal frequency choice for trying to contact life on other planets."

Tommy Manville Gets 11th Marriage License

NEW YORK (UP) — Tommy Manville, 65, the marrying millionaire, took out a license today to make a 20-year-old waitress his 11th wife.

She is Christine Erdlen, who came to the United States several years ago from Heidenheim, Germany, a small town near Stuttgart.

He told newsmen he was attracted to her because.

"She was a working girl. She loves home life. She's a wonderful cook. She does not care for the theater or night life and she doesn't drink."

She said of him: "He has a good sense of humor. He's a good housekeeper. He's good looking."

Manville said his 11th marriage would be performed Jan. 11 at 11:30 a.m. by State Supreme Court Justice Harry B. Frank.

Five Die, Schools Close, Travel Stops

Southwest and Dixieland Sloshing in Deep Snow

By The Associated Press

A fast-moving snowstorm which hit the Southwest swept into the South today, leaving a heavy blanket of white from Arkansas into North Carolina. Dixie shivered in the first big snowstorm of the winter.

The season's first big snowfall —and the biggest in many years in some areas — curtailed travel, closed schools and disrupted telephone and power service. The storms were blamed for at least five deaths.

The far-ranging storm dumped a snow covering that stretched from eastern New Mexico, Oklahoma and the northern third of Texas eastward through Arkansas, southern Missouri and Tennessee into Kentucky, southwestern Virginia, the western Carolinas and north Georgia.

Arkansas sloshed through the biggest snowfall in 38 years. The season's first storm dumped nearly 13 inches in Little Rock and from 2 to 7 inches in most of the state.

Heaviest snowfalls in years were reported in many areas. The seven inches at Nashville was the deepest in nine years. Crossville, Tenn., was hit by eight inches, Memphis four and the snow was expected to reach depths of 10 inches in the East Tennessee mountains.

Sleet added to the treacherous conditions on highways and on railroad tracks. Bus and train travel was delayed. Some plane flights were canceled.

The storm in the Southwest forced schools to close, stalled scores of motorists and made driving hazardous. At least two deaths were blamed on the storm in the Southwest. Three others were reported in the Southeast. Three persons were missing in a private plane in the Southwest storm belt.

Snow measured up to 10 inches in the central Texas Panhandle and nearly a foot in parts of Oklahoma. Two to 6 inches fell in New Mexico.

Men Dump Theirs on Others

Strong Women Weak Over Fears

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK—At last, in this age of allegedly weakening males, studies have come up with an area in which men are considerably stronger than women.

It is in the fear department.

Men are not necessarily braver than women, but they have fewer anxieties and fears and phobias.

One might assume this is because men are too preoccupied with their work to be fearful, or that they get about the world more and can look realistically at danger and face it without flinching.

University of California researchers report that, even in children, girls' apprehensions lead boys' by a considerable margin.

Obviously then, female fear must originate in the role as mothers peering through the dark for unseen dangers to their families . . . though science does not, or cannot, officially confirm that.

Fear affects most people physically. Some do not even know they are afraid. Some may not know what they are afraid of. But the fact that intense anxiety is present can be seen in the following symptoms.

LISTED IN ORDER

These typical physical reactions to fear, compiled by Yale University scientists after studying hundreds of Americans, are listed in order of frequency of occurrence:

Pounding heart and rapid pulse.
Trembling.
Sweating of palms.
Cold sweat all over the body.
Prickling sensation of scalp and back.
Faintness, or a weak feeling.

Tests also show that a state of anxiety makes a woman, or man, far more sensitive to pain. Seventy-five per cent of the pain which is felt when a person is tense and emotionally jittery vanishes entirely when he relaxes.

The Illinois Institute of Technology, studying middle class America, says the most common fear is anxiety over finances. Others: Health, concern over making the right impression in business and society, worries over marriage, fear of personal inadequacy and lack of confidence.

CHANGES WITH AGE

A man's typical fears change with age. From 25 to 30, the chief fear is worry that he will not make a good impression on others; early 30s, most of his worries are involved with sexual morality; 33 to 35, philosophical or spiritual convictions cause trouble; mid-30s, financial fears; early 40s, health, job and domestic difficulties. From mid-40 on, greater tranquility sets in.

Fear is highly contagious. At University of California, 22 psychiatrists made tests which showed that one can be instantly affected just by listening to voice recordings of persons who are anxious.

Honesty, sincerity and intelligence are the greatest enemies of fear.

Psychiatrists at the University of Leyden tested 2,500 persons whose personalities had been carefully analyzed. They found that anxiety was three times as great among those who were given to evasion or story-telling. The honest, candid ones had far fewer worries.

Another test shows that people with high IQs are lower in fear than the lesser-informed.

The most effective way for overcoming fear is to share it with another person, instead of brooding over it.

You may leave your wife, or your psychiatrist, a fearful wreck. But you will feel better.

Re-elected were Arthur B. Springarn, president; Alfred Baker Lewis, treasurer; and Roy Wilkins, executive secretary.

African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church Bishop Stephen G. Spottswood was named vice chairman and Dr. Harry J. Greene of Philadelphia, assistant treasurer.

Second Straight Record Detroit Steel Week Due

DETROIT (UPI) — A second straight week of record production is planned by Detroit area steel mills this week, Iron Age, national metalworking weekly, said Tuesday.

The weekly said 155,470 tons of steel are scheduled for production this week. The total is 101.2 per cent of the rated operating capacity of the Detroit mills.

Last week's 154,695 tons was equal to 100.7 per cent of rated capacity and bettered by 60 tons the former record set the week ending in March 1959, Iron Age said.

The earth's air above one square inch of surface at sea level has a normal weight of 15 pounds, according to scientific calculations.

State GOP Predicts Resurgence

By DALE ARNOLD

LANSING (UPI) — A new decade has dawned for Michigan politics, with Democrats hoping for more of what the last 10 years brought and Republicans certain things will be different.

Whatever fate has in store for the '60s, most politicians today aren't expecting a repeat of the 1950-50 era which saw Democratic strength appear to a degree not seen in the Wolverine State since the Civil War.

Ten years ago, Gov. G. Mennen Williams was winding up his first term as Michigan's chief executive — a term Republicans were calling his last.

He's been back in the capitol every election since.

The present power of Democrats is quite a switch from Williams' second term when he was the only Democrat on the State Administrative Board and marked as the leader of the party.

Some observers think Williams is not the Democratic Party in voters' minds now as he probably was a few years ago.

QUESTION UP IN AIR

If the governor doesn't run for a seventh term, that question probably will be answered on the basis of what Williams' replacement does.

State Republican Chairman Lawrence Lindemer views the next 10 years with optimism while admitting there was a "gradual decline" in GOP strength in the state during the '50s.

"We've gone through a painful re-evaluation of methods and procedures," said Lindemer. "The last couple of years have seen a trend upward for Republicans in Michigan and we anticipate the trend will continue."

Democrats made their gains largely through organization. One spokesman said Democrats in the early '50s and subsequent years began running candidates in GOP strongholds where the Republican office seeker seldom before had been challenged.

Many Democratic county committees were only paper organizations with a county chairman and no other workers. The '50s saw that change and the vote change with it.

Republicans saw the Democratic gains during the decade came partly because more new residents of Michigan were Democrats rather than Republicans.

Republicans took "no effective countermoves" to fight the Democratic gains, said another observer, but he credited Republicans with "awakening and meeting the challenge."

"We saw a reversal of the trend in the 1958 election and last spring," he said. "Michigan Republican losses were minimal compared to the nation and we're planning on a major breakthrough in November."

Democrats are predicting continued growth, but few are expecting the rate to be as sharply upward as in the last decade.

But whatever happens, one political analyst put his finger on it when he said:

"There is much we need to know about the complex network of influences which come to a focus in the privacy of the voting booth."

The one who has the final say is the voter.

However, Caseload for Nation Rose 85 Pct. During 1959

LANSING (AP)—The number of paralytic polio cases in Michigan declined sharply last year while the caseload of the country as a whole rose about 85 per cent over 1958.

The federal government said the nation counted 5,661 paralytic cases through Dec. 26 compared to 3,090 for a similar period last year.

In Michigan, the 1959 total was cut to 145 from the 541 cases recorded in 1958, reported Dr. F. S. Leeder, director of disease control for the State Health Department.

Leeder said a drop was expected after the 1958 polio epidemic which centered in Wayne County.

"In addition," he added, "the 1958 outbreak also stimulated much immunization last year."

Leeder said the health department was still urging unvaccinated persons to get their polio shots which, he noted, provide up to 85 per cent protection against the disease.

Out-of-Doors Magazine Editor Resigns Post

LANSING (UPI)—Gene Little has resigned his position as editor of Michigan Out-of-Doors, the official publication of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, it was announced Tuesday.

MUCC Executive Director Jashan L. Rouman said he was accepting the resignation with "reluctance and regret." Little said he has had other outdoor writing and photography job offers he felt he could not refuse.

Boss Condemns, Labor Defends Industrial Make-Work Practices

By ROGER GREENE
AP Staff Writer

In New York's Grand Central Station, a New Haven-bound train sat on the track for 25 minutes while passengers fumed and the engineer waited for a yard man to clean the locomotive's dirty windshield.

Chided for delaying the train's departure, the engineer explained:

"A couple of days ago I cleaned a dirty windshield myself, but I won't do it again. It's not my job. The maintenance foreman shouldn't have put the engine on the line in the first place with a dirt-clogged shield like that."

The nation's railroads, pressed by stiff competition from autos, trucks and airlines, say this "not-my-job" attitude is a key factor in forces that are crippling railroad efficiency and saddling the industry with ruinous costs. They call it "featherbedding."

The unions reply, in effect:

"Supposing you had just finished a hard day's work at a desk job and the boss told you to mop up the office because the charwoman hadn't showed up. Would you do it?"

The railroads and other industries have always trod gingerly around the explosive issue of jurisdictional work rules. As a result, a fantastic maze of regulations has grown up across the years.

EXAMPLE CITED

. . . Engine crew members were registering off duty at Hastings, Neb., when they were instructed to move their engine to a nearby track . . . They claimed—and received—an extra day's pay for the few minutes of extra work, on the ground that it constituted a recall to work.

. . . The crew on a West Coast passenger train collects a 50 per cent bonus for performing "freight service" on the run between Portland, Ore., and Spokane, Wash., because the train carries a sealed freight car between those two points five days a week—even though the freight car is not touched en route.

Industry spokesmen say many of the work rules are so old that nobody remembers how they originated. Down the years, the rules have been interpreted and reinterpreted countless times by arbiters and umpires in various disputes, so that today they fill volumes.

But the unions say the rules developed as labor's answer to a long history of management abuses, such as the speedup.

"Railway employes could point to case after case where workers have been abused beyond the limits of human endurance. That's why we have the rules."

Some economists, on the other hand, say the featherbedding dispute is merely the symptom of a far graver problem—automation.

Union leaders concede that in the current strike-threatening rail dispute, they are battling to save thousands of jobs from disappearing amid the tremendous mid-century upsurge of automation with its labor-saving devices.

The railroads are by no means alone in their charges of featherbedding practices, which they claim also "bleeding off" the savings expected from expensive new automatic equipment.

In a sense, it might even be said that the universal "coffee break" is featherbedding, because it involves getting paid for time not worked.

Among conditions reported in some areas:

In the building industry, carpenters sometimes refuse to handle prefabricated panels, and still cling to the old handsaw when a power saw would do the work five times faster.

PAINTERS ADAMANT

Painters demand double wages for using a spray gun; in some cities, house painters refuse to use a brush wider than four inches.

Similarly, plumbers often refuse to use prethreaded pipe. When it comes already threaded from the factory, they cut off the threaded end and rethread the pipe by hand.

In the printing industry, union rules say all local advertising arriving at a newspaper plant in the form of plates or ready-to-use mats must be reset by hand, proofread and corrected. The "bogus" or "dead horse" type, unused, is then dumped into the hell-box and melted down.

A steamship company says it needs only 10 men to operate a baggage conveyer, but the union requires it to hire twice that number. Some of the extra hands take turns pressing a button.

In the theater world, four standby musicians get $70 a performance for listening while two pianists play the accompaniment in a Broadway revue. And a one-man show, like Victor Borge's solo performance, requires at least four stagehands, by union rules, although the theater says one stagehand could do all the work.

The union reply to management cries of featherbedding is generally this: The work rules grew from management abuses, and are calculated to insure decent working conditions, prevent speedups and management arbitrariness, and to promote job security of workers. Any specific abuses, they contend, are subject to negotiations.

The steel industry, in the recent long strike, aired charges of "loafing, featherbedding and unjustifiable idle time," but centered its fire chiefly on a demand for greater flexibility in changing work practices.

Along the way, the steel companies raised the much-publicized case of the air-conditioned crane cab. This was the incident in which a steel company provided a relief operator for a two-man crane crew because of intense heat in the crane cab as it hovered over the soaking pit.

Then the company air-conditioned the cab and dropped the relief man, thereby drawing a protest from the United Steel Workers Union that the company was improperly changing work conditions.

As it turned out, investigation disclosed that the umpire, in ruling on the dispute, rejected the union's complaint.

The auto industry has been singularly free of featherbedding friction — it has never striven as a major issue in contract negotiations.

Company and union officials are both reluctant to comment on the mystery of how the auto industry has managed to escape featherbedding controversies which have plagued other fields.

Privately, an industry spokesman said the answer is that the auto companies have never allowed featherbedding practices to get started.

And he added:

Steel Strike Settlement Happily Allows Nation to Move Ahead

With the steel strike out of everyone's hair, the nation can again resume a normal course. Probably both sides are dissatisfied with the results, but the country-at-large is happy to have the thing settled.

Apparently, Vice President Nixon and Labor Secretary Mitchell deserve a lot of credit, and it will definitely add to the political prestige of both men at a time when they will be very happy over any extra kudos that come their way.

However, The Press is convinced that one Dwight D. Eisenhower had more to do with it than either. He may not have actually "been in there pitching" but off stage he was brandishing a big stick that all parties to the controversy could see without the aid of binoculars. "You monkeys will solve this thing," said the President, "or I'll father some legislative action that will bring about a settlement, willy nilly."

The man wasn't bluffing.

He meant it.

Furthermore, both the unions and the companies were uneasy over any conclusions that might have eventuated without letting them even have a peep at the idea until it was launched.

What does "now" mean?

When steel goes up, so many things are affected that it is difficult to evaluate the full damage done to the national economy. This country already has price levels too high. We're underpriced right now on a score of important items by foreign nations and every time we add to our costs, we are reducing the hours of our own working men by making the path easier for outside competition.

Hard pressed for any glib criticisms of the settlement, Democrats have started moaning over the fact the final decision wasn't reached sooner. But the Dems are just as happy over the end of negotiations as the rest of the nation. Unemployment on a national basis benefits no one.

Pontiac is now prepared to move forward with GMC Truck and Coach, Fisher Body and Pontiac Motor Division guaranteed a flow of steel that will allow them to operate "as usual." Also, the quality should return to normal levels. During the temporary resumption of work, the character of the steel was poor at times, but the companies had an "or else" attitude and the steel workers apparently weren't too interested. Anyway, those unhappy days are gone now and the entire Pontiac area should start ahead on a sound basis in 1960.

Facts Reveal Drivers Alone Can Stop Death

Certainly this wholesale slaughter could not be blamed on weather. Nor should the finger be pointed at State Police or local traffic officers.

The fault lies with the drivers themselves. And, from all reports and explanations, one reason stands out: CARELESSNESS.

This one reason is apparently responsible and the underlying cause for most of the accidents. In an interview Capt. S. G. Curtis, commander of the Michigan Traffic Safety Bureau, listed these five reasons:

1. The law was broken. In 85 percent of all the accidents a violation of the law occurred.
2. Drivers gambled beyond the range of their headlights.
3. Excessive speed. Drivers were going so fast in some cases that they left the road and lost control, smashing into something.
4. Drinking and driving.
5. Dirty windshields.

Going over these points, it is easy to understand that if we increased our traffic officers by the thousands we would not eliminate these causes.

The cold hard facts of the matter are the drivers themselves are responsible. Through some appeal or self-education program, all drivers must be appraised of these five facts and their responsibility.

Most of us want to live a while longer and we could if each licensed driver would assume his or her proper safety precautions.

Hunt Is Made for Oldest Person Born on that Day

Parking: What is such street sorrow.

Early in leap year this column is starting a hunt for its oldest reader who was born on Feb. 29. Send in your nominations.

As it happens only once in every four years, it is quite a distinction to have been born on that extra day. Such people technically have a birthday only one-quarter as often as the rest of us.

While it will be impossible to publish the names of all of them, we're particularly anxious to learn of those who are eligible to qualify for our verbal orchids —80 years or more of age.

Long prominent in conservation work in this area, and well known throughout Oakland County is just installed as a new circuit judge in our neighboring Genesee County.

Soon celebrating his 88th birthday,

Edmund M. Taylor

of 17 Bellevue Ave., still is rich in his stories of hunting.

Meaning of the Fabulous Sixties

in Michigan, now running in these columns, indicates that they are supremely worth reading.

Eight pups in a litter born to the dog of

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Maggio

of Drayton Plains are all males, quite a record in dogdom.

My Flint correspondent sends word that

of Holly has enlisted in the navy in that city, also that of the same Oakland County village has joined the U.S. air force.

Ronald M. Huntley

A few more days of near zero weather will make safe the ice on our lakes. This column will tell you when.

Good greeting and well wishing:

New Peace Symbol?

David Lawrence Says:

Again It's the Public That Pays

WASHINGTON — A "political" settlement—the kind that solves no basic problems but merely postpones indefinitely their solution—has emerged from the steel controversy.

Economic issues, particularly the inflationary effects which can diminish further the purchasing power of the dollar, were disregarded. Already there is talk that the administration has given up its fight for labor-reform legislation at the coming session of Congress and prefers to put it off for the time being.

This fateful turn of events has come about because the union leaders knew how to play their politics. They found their opportunity in catering to the political ambition of Republican leaders.

For weeks and weeks artificial pressure was built up on the Democratic side through governors, senators and representatives. But this was a case where the Democrats were not in charge of the executive branch of the government and could do little to bring about a settlement.

So finally it was rightly assumed that the political benefits of a possible settlement had to be dangled alluringly before the Republican leaders, and that strategy worked.

There were two men "inside the official family" who were fair targets for the union strategists—Vice President Nixon and Secretary of Labor Mitchell. Both could see political benefits arising from playing a conspicuous part in settling the steel strike.

DEMS WOULD DO IT, TOO

But logical though this may seem to the politically minded—and Democrats under the same circumstances would have done the same thing—the fact remains that the country has suffered a severe setback. The momentum developed in recent months for a change in existing laws governing monopolies has been slowed down perceptibly.

Just why should a small group of men representing management and labor unions be permitted to shut down a whole industry? The American system has hitherto called for competition, as contrasted with the Khrushchev system of state control of management and labor unions.

The 11 steel companies bargained as a unit only because all their workers were combined in a single union against them. Uniform rules and contract provisions have been insisted upon by the union, and this is a means of fixing labor costs and, indirectly, prices throughout a whole industry.

Is Congress now to forget all about these monopolies, and, as is reported, just because it is an election year, look the other way and avoid what is called a ticklish subject? Why has the administration weakened on the fundamental principle involved? Who is to pay the bill for the enormous economic loss suffered by the American people during the 116-day steel strike?

Can a loss like that be ignored and a billion-dollar increase in wage costs now be imposed, which must necessarily encourage other unions to make similar wage demands?

These are basic issues, and yet the talk today is along the line of surrender of principle. Many members of Congress are superficially hailing the end of the steel strike and even the method by which it was settled as a salutary development, though it really doesn't get at the root of the evil of industry-wide strikes.

The steel companies put up an unprecedented battle, but had to capitulate in the end. They couldn't stand up against threats of hostile legislation and pressure exerted by the incumbent administration in Washington. The labor unions acceded to the terms of the settlement because they got nearly everything they wanted and also preserved their own solidarity.

Small wonder that the steelworkers' wage policy committee of 171 cheered Secretary of Labor Mitchell at his meeting with them after the steel settlement was announced!

The Country Parson

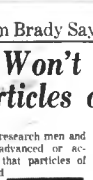

"Folks find it hard to thank the Lord for all He's provided — when they think they deserve so much more."

Dr. William Brady Says:

Teeth Won't Be Harmed by Particles of Sugar

Many dentists, research men and teachers, have advanced or accepted the idea that particles of sugar permitted to remain on the teeth, undergo fermentation by bacteria, particularly the lacto-bacillus, which is naturally present in various foods and in the mouth, producing lactic acid, which eats into the enamel and thus starts a cavity.

I take no stock in this idea. If a wee bit of lactic acid so produced were allowed to remain on the tooth surface, so protected that the saliva could not rearch it, it is conceivable that a mite of enamel might be dissolved and a minute cavity started — but I wouldn't believe this unless I saw it happening.

Any tract of lactic acid that might be produced in the mouth by fermentation of a particle of sugar by lacto-bacilli, would be neutralized by the slightly alkaline saliva and washed away so that it could hardly etch or eat a hole in the tooth.

The lacto-bacillus, present in various foods, especially in fresh milk; sour milk; buttermilk; cultured milk such as Bulgarian, Acidophilus; curdled milk such as yogurt; various kinds of cheese, sauerkraut, etc., is almost always present in the mouth.

You must not assume that I approve of unrestricted consumption of sugar at meals or between meals.

Excessive consumption of sugar in numerous forms makes youths and young adults more susceptible to caries or decay of the teeth, because sugar in any form is so easy to eat and so quickly converted into heat or energy that the individual who consumes an excess of it doesn't want or need other food, that is, not immediately. And sugar supplies no minerals, no vitamins at all. Therefore one who gets most of his calories from sugar inevitably suffers from malnutrition.

His bones, glands, heart and other muscles and his teeth do not get the calcium they must have. Softening and cavity formation are results of calcium deficiency.

All sorts of foods canned, packaged, "ready-to-serve or "pop in the oven," including soups, meats, cereals, salad dressings, vegetables are sugared up to make them yum-yum.

For mountain climbers, soldiers on forced march, marathon runners, football players or channel swimmers, sugar in any form — candy, chocolate bar, sweetened tea, pop — is the best emergency food or ration to stave off exhaustion or collapse for a while. For steady diet or everyday indulgence sugar in any form is cheat food.

Signed letters not more than one page or 300 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene not disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

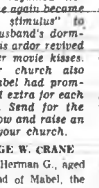

Weight Loss Is of Benefit to Many

When Mabel regained her girlish figure, she again became the "adequate stimulus" to resurrect her husband's dormant emotions. His ardor revived and he gave her movie kisses. Meanwhile, her church also profited, for Mabel had promised to donate $1 extra for each pound she lost. Send for the diet booklet below and raise an extra $100 for your church.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE D - 445: Herman G., aged 43, is the husband of Mabel, the fat wife mentioned yesterday.

She had complained that he seldom kissed her and had also confided that their marital life was a platonic arrangement.

DR. CRANE

So she and two of her neighbors started dieting. On my dehydration 10-day plan, Mabel lost 10¼ lbs. This brought her down from 168 to 157¾ and all within a mere 10-day period.

Her morale was thus high and she was quite willing to continue. But after that first 10 days you can shift from 800 calories per day to 1,200 which seems magnificent in contrast to your previous 800-caloric quota.

Mable now lost two lbs. per week. After 10 more weeks, therefore, she had dropped to 137 lbs. She vowed to keep on till she reached 125.

But as soon as she got under the 140-pound mark, she said her husband began to perk up in his attitude toward her.

FATTIES ARE FUNNY

You fat wives may be comediennes; but you can't expect to compete very well with the seductive sirens who have the slender figures.

Fat people are suggestive of clowns and funny men on the stage. Fat women can also be jolly and provoke laughter, but men usually don't associate them with a "Lover's Lane" or a date under a romantic moon.

Wives, you can't even expect to feel like a sports roadster with the chassis of a truck. No streamline. It isn't obese girls that win your husbands away from you, as you know very well!

So fight fire with fire. If a slender siren tempts your mate away from you, then regain your former girlish figure and the odds will shift back in your favor.

And that's exactly what occurred with reference to Herman and Mabel. When his wife dropped below 140 lbs. she began to revive his earlier courtship ardor.

Love cannot effectively be promised for future delivery, despite that romantic bit of idealism in the wedding ceremony.

You must re-incite or resurrect love by regaining the type of figure that originally was what we psychologists call the "adequate stimulus" to make a man's pulse race and his blood pressure soar.

"Dr. Crane," Mabel told me exultantly, "Herman no longer drops into an easy chair with the newspaper when he enters the front door.

"Instead, he now comes out to the kitchen at once. And he volunteers kisses me. But they are no longer casual little pecks on my cheek or a fatherly type of kiss on the forehead.

"No, indeed! He now seizes me and gives me a kiss like those shown on the movie screen!

"Why, I haven't seen him and this ardent for 15 years! In fact, he even suggests a movie date. So my loss of 30 lbs. has rejuvenated Herman.

"But I plan to go on down to 125 lbs. though Herman says I am O.K. just as I am.

Dr. Crane, one of my neighbors has lost 28 lbs. already and the other is down 25 lbs. We agreed to contribute $1 per pound to our church so this diet has restored my youthful figure; won my husband back again, and added almost $100 to our church just from us three women."

Send for the booklet "How to Lost 10 lbs. in 10 Days," enclosing a stamped, return envelope, plus 20-cents (non-profit). Use it as a project for raising money for your church the next 3 months.

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 9c stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

Voice of the People

'Stiffen Laws Governing Tractors on Highways'

Another 12-year-old, driving a farm tractor on a main highway after dark without lights, has been killed in a collision. This age group bulks large among accidents involving farm tractors on Michigan highways.

We urge strong measures be taken to stem this bloodshed. We object strenuously to increasing careless and improper use of tractors on main trunk highways without due regard for safety rules.

The State and County authorities must begin immediate enforcement of laws regarding use of tractors on highways, and a bill should be passed to put more teeth in the laws and at the same time bring in revenue. Place a license on all tractors used on State highways. Force them to have adequate lights and safety equipment required by law of all private car and truck operators. This is only for those used on State or Federal highways.

'Couldn't They Pick a Scholar?'

Our Waterford school board did not even have sufficient general background to re-name our school after a scholar.

Thomas Edison was a great man and you might name a park, an electronics lab or a civic swimming pool after him, but the records indicate he would have had trouble getting through Waterford High.

He was a genius along his special line—none greater—but his modern I.Q. rating might have amazed the Waterford school board. He isn't exactly the man to pick for a high school.

And even if they'd selected George Washington Lincoln, we taxpayers would be up in arms for we like "Waterford" better and we built the school and paid for it. It belongs to us, name and all, and not to a few stubborn individuals as the board seem to think.

Rockefeller says he won't accept the nomination for vice president, but he'll have a hard time doing anything later if he refuses to answer the call should the party decide he's the man they need now. Income Tax Father Dies at 96 in Seattle

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The man who introduced the income tax amendment in the U.S. Senate died in a nursing home here Tuesday.

Norris Brown, 96, had lived in Seattle since retiring from law practice in Nebraska at the age of 80.

He was a Republican senator from Nebraska in 1907-13. In 1909, he introduced a resolution which sent to the states for ratification the constitutional amendment legalizing income tax.

MSU Military Figure Barney Slayton Dies

LANSING (AP)—Barney D. Slayton, 71, a retired Army master sergeant and long a familiar figure on the Michigan State University campus, died Tuesday at Lansing.

He enlisted in the cavalry in 1912 and served in an expedition against the Moros in the Philippine Islands and in France during World War one, where he participated in the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Miss America of 1956 Loses Her Mother

NATCHEZ, Miss. (AP) — Mrs. Magdalyn Mead, mother of Lynda Lee Mead, Miss America of 1960, died suddenly at her home here early this morning.

Her famous daughter was weatherbound en route from Chicago to New Orleans and it was reported she may attempt to fly into Natchez by way of New Orleans.

Mrs. Mead was the wife of Herbert J. Mead, president of Bluff City Motors Co.

Solons Studying Florida Laws

State House Members Probe Trading Stamp Acts in Tallahassee

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UP)—Four members of the Michigan House of Representatives who are members of an interim committee making a study of trading stamp legislation visited here Monday.

They came to Tallahassee for a briefing by state comptroller Ray E. Green on the 1959 Florida law which requires trading stamp companies to register with the state, prove financial stability and file a bond assuring redemption of outstanding stamps.

Committee members said two trading stamp companies operating in Michigan failed recently and the group was set up to develop legislation to protect stamp holders.

The Michigan legislators are Reps. Allison Green of Kingston, committee chairman and Republican floor leader in the House, Willard Bowerman of Lansing, Roy Apley of Mount Clemens and John Bowman of Roseville.

Green said the committee also is studying the workings of Florida's Legislative Council and Legislative Reference Bureau and state audition procedures in Florida.

Two-Door Corvair Coupe in Production

DETROIT (UPI)—Chevrolet has begun production of a new two-door coupe for its Corvair line, Edward N. Cole, Chevrolet general manager, announced today.

Shipments of the new model to dealers are now under way from Chevrolet assembly plants at Willow Run; Kansas City, Mo.; and Oakland, Calif., Cole said.

The five-passenger coupe is distinguished from the Corvair four-door sedan by a sharper sloping roof line and large rear wheel openings. Basic dimensions of the new rear-engine car are the same as the Corvair sedan.

The main difference inside the new coupe is that it has a split front seat. A fold-down rear seat which provides 13.3 cubic feet of added luggage space is standard equipment on the coupe as well as the sedan. An optional equipment available on the sedan also is available on the coupe.

Factory list prices on the coupe are $50 less than on corresponding four-door sedans. They are $1,810 for the 500 series and $1,870 for the 700 series, not including taxes or handling charges.

Segregate Only White Theater in Alabama County

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (UP) — A theater with separate screens and seating facilities for white and Negro patrons is scheduled to open here Saturday.

The Macon Theater in downtown Tuskegee has been closed since 1957 shortly after Negroes began a boycott against white merchants in protest against a local law which changed the city boundaries and excluded most Negro voters.

Irvin plans to use three Negro employes to operate the Negro side of the theater.

The building provides identical facilities for both races. It has separate ticket offices, entrances and concession stands.

The Negro side has 336 seats and the white side 324.

Canada's Population Up

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canada's population increased by 366,000 during the first 11 months of 1959 to reach 17,550,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports.

Wisconsin University Bucks Loyalty Oath

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—The University of Wisconsin has become the first land grant institution to take a stand against the loyalty affidavit requirement of the National Defense Education Act.

Faculty members voted to ask the next session of Congress to eliminate the loyalty affidavit provision as a condition of eligibility for students who wish to borrow money to continue their educations.

The act asks students borrowing money to sign an affidavit saying they are not members of organizations listed as subversive by the U.S. attorney general's office and do not believe in them.

Cleveland School Board Elects Negro President

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Ralph W. Findlay, 54, an insurance agent, has become the first Negro ever elected president of the Cleveland Board of Education.

Findlay, a member of the Board for eight years and its former vice president, succeeds Charles A. Mooney, a St. Marys native, who unexpectedly decided not to seek another term.

Loses Out in Court Over Racial Housing

BALTIMORE (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that use of government water does not make a housing development a public agency within bounds of the Constitution's ban on racial discrimination.

Hackley claimed he was illegally denied a home at Edgewood Meadows, near the center, because of his race. Under an agreement between the developers, the county and the Army, the development will be supplied with excess water from the post.

Arson Suspected in Fire at Brooklyn School

NEW YORK (AP) — A small fire broke out Tuesday night in a Brooklyn Hebrew school while 80 children were in classes. No one was hurt, and the fire was brought under control quickly.

Fire officials said the fire was suspicious. They investigated a report that three small boys were seen playing in the classroom where the fire started.

The fire was in the building housing the Yeshivath Sharith Hapletah, on which a swastika recently was painted.

For Drinking and Other Reasons

32 Drivers Lose Licenses

The drivers licenses of 32 Oakland County residents have been revoked or suspended, according to the Michigan Secretary of State's Office in Lansing.

Those losing the right to drive because of drunk driving convictions were:

John O. Nye, 26456 Richie, Madison Heights
Clifford H. Swarts, 1651 Rosman, Royal Oak

Manuscripts for "The Man Who Came To Dinner" will be distributed among the members for discussion at the 8 p.m. meeting at the Community Activities Center, with a mid-March presentation planned according to Mrs. William Ackerson, president.

Guest speaker for the evening will be Ted Nerr, business manager for the Lansing Civic Theater Assn. He will discuss the progress of similar organizations of surrounding communities.

Organized last July, the Lakeland Players recently presented "Arsenic and Old Lace." Although all proceeds have not been recorded an approximate figure of $150 net profit for the group has been estimated.

Emerson M. Winding of 21036 Bethlawn, Ferndale, had his license because of drunk driving and unsatisfied judgment.

Also losing their licenses were Mykola Wadyaz of 23409 Oneida, Oak Park, for being unable to pass a test, and Eugene C. Hartzell of 720 N. Blair, Royal Oak, and Melvin J. Williams of 2000 Royal, Berkley, both for driving while their licenses were suspended.

'Dinner' to Follow 'Arsenic'

Players at Work Again

With a successful "first play" now a thing of the past, the Waterford Township Lakeland players group will meet tonight to make plans for a second production.

Time Runs Out for Judy, 17, to Find Jinty

Judy, who lives in St. Thomas, Ont., has been searching for her year-old female Alsatian shepherd for more than a week in the Detroit area. The dog escaped from a railroad baggage car in Detroit Dec. 23.

Judy's search has been futile thus far. And she only has until Thursday to find the dog because her immigration permit runs out then. But Judy says that if she doesn't find Jinty by then she will go home, get her British passport and return to continue the search.

Bitter Appraisal of Gaza Life

Nothing to Do but Marry, Die

By DAVID HINNAWI

AL SHATI CAMP, Gaza Strip (AP) — "There is little else to do, but marry and die," said Amina Hasan, an Arab refugee woman explaining the high marriage rate among the 340,000 refugees jam-packed in the Gaza Strip.

For 13 years Amina Hasan has been living in a refugee camp near Gaza along the Egyptian-Israeli border. Last year she turned 18 and, as do most refugee girls her age, got married right away.

In this refugee camp, only two things seem to happen — the young marry, and their time comes, the old die," said Amina.

"Otherwise the days are exactly the same, except for changes in weather."

Amina's refugee husband, Ahmed Hasan, also had nothing else to do — he just passed 20.

"Getting married is no problem here," he said. "You don't have to worry about supporting your wife, getting a job or finding a place to live in.

The 'agency' takes care of all that," he added with more bitterness than gratitude in referring to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA).

Hasan and his wife live in a one-room brick house built by the U.N. agency. Both are jobless. There is little work in the over-populated, underdeveloped Gaza Strip and too many idle refugees who lost their homes and property in Palestine in the Arab-Israeli war of 1948.

At the end of each month UNWRA gives Hasan a ration totting up to 1,500 calories per day per person—the minimum required to keep a man's body operating provided he does no work.

The Hasans are expecting a baby, but this does not worry them. They are pleased, for more than one reason. Amina will, at last have something to do, and there will be more food. The baby, according to UNWRA regulations, will receive a full ration. Moreover, there is a special grant of milk and eggs during pregnancy and the first months after the child's birth.

This is one reason more than 500 babies are born each month in the refugee camps of Gaza.

Under UNWRA regulations, newlyweds get separate lodgings away from their parents. And parents encourage their children to marry because UNWRA declares that if a refugee family earns more than 15 pounds a month ($45), the family will be considered self-supporting and not in need of rations. Thus if one member of a family earns more than 15 pounds a month, the rations for the whole family are cut off, regardless of how large the family is.

So a refugee family often urges a working son to marry, form a new family of his own and permit the parents to keep their rations.

Streamline Handling of Zeus Development

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The Army Tuesday announced a system of streamlined management designed to push development of the Nike Zeus antimissile as fast as possible.

Col. John G. Zierdt, chief of staff of the Army Ordnance Missile Command, was named deputy commander of the Army Rocket and Guided Missile Agency to head the program.

The Army announcement said Zierdt "will in effect become Mr. Zeus."

Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Command, said:

"By installing this management system, we will be able to swing as much of the Army's resources as may be necessary behind the Zeus development. Whether these resources are within the government or our contractor organizations."

Schools After Hike in State Support

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Education Assn. (MEA) will ask the Legislature for a three per cent increase in state school aid support in 1960-61. The MEA estimated this would cost $8,161,800.

Schools are due to receive $272,600,000 during the current fiscal year under the present aid formula which provides for $2.05 per pupil plus a 3¼ deductible millage factor. Deductible millage provides for higher aid for the poorer school districts.

The MEA estimated the three per cent increase would mean setting the per pupil formula at $2.08½.

The MEA board of directors approved the drive for the increase as necessary to meet the increased cost of education in the state. The MEA also estimated schools would have an additional 55,000 pupils in 1960-61, bringing total enrollment to 1,687,000.

Seventeen Join Navy Here in December

The Navy Recruiting Station in Pontiac has announced that 17 men from Oakland County enlisted through its office during the month of December.

The lone Pontiac man was Oliver Parker of 83 E. Huron St., who re-enlisted for four years.

Other recruits included Dale R. Sherwood, Michael Janowski and Gurdon Mackenlans, all of Rochester; Harley L. Hinmen of White Lake Township and Peter Ruese and James Regan, both of Walled Lake.

State Licenses Ford Auto Insurance Firm

LANSING (AP) — The State Insurance Department has licensed a new automobile insurance firm created by the Ford Motor Co. It will be known as the American Road Insurance Co. of Dearborn.

Ford previously set up its own car-financing company to handle loans for auto buyers.

The new insurance outfit, with a three million dollar paid-in capitalization will work closely with the finance firm.

Louisiana Voters Will Choose Long's Successor on Saturday

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Louisiana voters Saturday pick the man who will step into lame duck Gov. Earl K. Long's much-traveled shoes.

Segregation is one issue that may decide who does the stepping.

The choice for governor lies between Deputy Sheriff Joe Morrison, four-times elected New Orleans mayor, and Jimmie H. Davis, rural-bred hillbilly songster who rose to governor in 1944.

Morrison, 47, is a polished, intelligent politician. He has campaigned feverishly to be the state's first Catholic governor in 90 years, drawing strength from his sprawling metropolis and Southern Louisiana's Cajun bayou lands where he stumps in French.

Davis, 53, appears deceptively reserved, politically shrewd. He has the backing of the leading segregationist candidate, most of the state's newspapers, and Protestant North Louisiana.

In the Dec. 5 first primary, a record turnout of 842,609, Long's ticket was soundly trounced. Since then, the 64-year old governor has faded from the picture.

Morrison held a 65,000 vote lead over Davis as they led 11 candidates, Morrison got 279,000 votes to Davis' 214,000.

Both candidates had soft pedaled the segregation issue in the first primary. But the issue suddenly loomed large when State Sen. William M. Rainach, leader of the staunch segregationists, finished a surprising third with 143,000 votes.

Morrison blunted the setback by picking up the support of the fourth and fifth candidates—State Comptroller William Dodd and former Gov. James A. Noe, Long's running mate.

The campaign has grown in the crucial last weeks into a bitter struggle.

Davis accused Morrison of having the support of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People and Teamsters President James R. Hoffa. Morrison charged Davis once ran an integrated night club in California and wrote a book of off-color songs in the 1930s.

Davis said Morrison pulled New Orleans downhill among Southern cities, and Morrison complained Davis won't meet him in open debate.

The winner will meet Republican nominee Francis C. Grevemberg and States Rights nominee Kent H. Courtney in the April 19 general election. But that's counted only as a formality, as the Democratic primary victory is tantamount to election.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass
Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get FASTEETH at drug counters everywhere.

Home Heating Rivalry to Intensify This Year

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The New Year will see new zip in the rivalry over heating American homes.

Electric utilities—long a stepchild in the home heating family—are driving hard now to get a bigger share of the market. Today, about half a million homes are heated electrically. The industry's goal is two million homes within eight years or less.

Oil, gas and coal—old-time rivals—each are trying hard to increase their sales to home owners. Gas now leads, with oil second and coal trailing after years of having had the market to itself.

It's a big market. Americans are spending between five and six billion dollars this winter to heat 46 million homes. In the northern half of the nation the average bill is estimated at $225.

The National Fuelolf Council says oil heats 17 million homes, mostly in the North; gas 20 million, largely in the South and West near the source of natural gas supplies; and hard and soft coal seven million.

The Gas Appliance Manufacturers Assn. says that counting both central and direct heating, gas is used in 39 million homes.

All four—gas, oil, coal and electricity—stress new equipment and methods that make them more economical and efficient.

Edison Electric Institute feels that the interest in electric space heating has grown out of the use of household appliances. It says consumer demand spurred utilities to offer lower rates for heating homes and manufacturers to come out with new devices.

New equipment research has been pushed by General Electric, Westinghouse, Edwin Wiegand, Hotpoint, Borg-Warner, Carrier, McGraw Edison and others.

Cost of electricity has been a chief factor in holding this form of heating back in most areas. But E. O. George, vice president of Detroit Edison, says another has been the need for quality construction in homes. To be economical, electric heating systems require effective insulation, tight structure and attention to details. He adds that architects and builders now are cooperating.

Smog, Lung Cancer Link Isn't Detected

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Science has been unable to show any relation between community air pollution and lung cancer, the director of the University of Michigan's Institute of Industrial Health said today.

Dr. Seward Miller said there is "no substantial statistical, epidemiological or research evidence that breathing polluted air in our communities causes lung cancer."

He said studies have identified one substance in motor vehicle exhausts which can cause skin cancer in mice, but high concentrations of the substance have failed to produce lung cancer even during extended periods of exposure.

Packing Plant to Close at Menominee Jan. 30

MENOMINEE (UPI) — The Plankinton Packing Co. announced today it plans to close its factory here Jan. 30.

F. R. Clymer, manager of the Milwaukee Plankinton plant, said he went to Menominee to inform the 60 workers at the Upper Michigan facility.

He said the Milwaukee plant will take over work done by the Michigan plant that has been operating for the past 48 years.

Adult Education Classes Set

Twenty-four non-credit courses designed especially for adult students will be offered by Michigan State University Oakland for the winter term which begins next Monday.

The courses cover the fields of business and engineering, the humanities, the fine arts and applied skills. All are taught by the university faculty or academically qualified persons from business or industrial organizations of the Pontiac area.

All courses are 10 weeks in length.

The emphasis in these programs is upon the subject matter, without the restrictions of the formal credit courses," said Dr. Lowell R. Eklund, director of the MSUO continuing education program.

"In this way we are able to adapt courses to fit the specific educational needs of the group and use instructors who often are daily in the field they teach in our evening courses."

There are no academic prerequisites and all adults of the community are invited to participate in the program, Eklund said.

He urged interested persons to contact the Continuing Education Division of the university as soon as possible, since registration will be limited in all classes.

BUSINESS AND ENGINEERING

ACCOUNTING FOR MANAGEMENT PROBLEMS: A course especially designed for business administrators, managers, attorneys and other management personnel giving an understanding of accounting data and financial statements, their uses and analyses.

The class will be from 7-10 p.m. Mondays beginning Jan. 11. Aubrey Roberts will be the instructor. Tuition: $35.

PUBLIC AND PROFESSIONAL SPEECH: A course designed to meet special needs of business and professional persons in persuasive speaking. Emphasis will be on individual participation and criticism.

Class will be from 7-10 p.m. Tuesdays beginning Jan. 12. Dr. John Sattler will be the instructor. Tuition: $35.

CREATIVE PROBLEM SOLVING: A course designed to serve the needs of middle and top management for development of skill in creatively solving management problems and in methods improvement.

The class will be from 8-12 a.m. Saturdays beginning Jan. 16. Dr. Robert Bolda will be the instructor. Tuition: $35.

ENGINEERING ADMINISTRATION: A seminar course especially for engineering supervisors and for engineers who wish to prepare for supervisory positions. Guest lecturers will participate.

The class will be from 7-10 p.m. Tuesdays beginning Jan. 19. Dr. James Boyce will be the instructor. Tuition: $40.

INTRODUCTION TO MANAGEMENT: A course designed for those who may aspire soon to supervise the work of others, those presently engaged in supervision, and those who desire knowledge in the solution of management problems.

The class will be from 7-10 p.m. Mondays beginning Jan. 18. Alex Capaulis will be the instructor. Tuition: $35.

ELECTRICAL MACHINERY: A course on the theory and application of electrical machines.

Class will be from 7-10 p.m. Tuesdays beginning Jan. 12. Robert Alfonsi will be the instructor. Tuition: $35.

MATHEMATICS REFRESHER FOR ENGINEERS II: A course for engineers and others wishing a comprehensive review of mathematics.

Class will be from 7-10 p.m. Thursdays beginning Jan. 14. Hubert Stephens will be the instructor. Tuition: $35.

THE STOCK MARKET AND INVESTMENT ANALYSIS: A course introducing students to stock market operations, interpretation of investment and financial news, operation of mutual funds, setting up an investment program and the operation of tax-free municipal bonds.

Class will be from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Wednesdays beginning Jan. 13. Alexander Riker, will be the instructor. Tuition: $30.

HUMANITIES

ANALYSIS AND APPRECIATION OF MUSIC: A course designed to increase the enjoyment of serious music through greater knowledge of its elements, structure and background.

Attention will be given the lives and times of the great composers of the past.

Class will be from 1:30-3:30 p.m. Thursdays beginning Jan. 14. Chester Stevenson will be the instructor. Tuition: $35.

MODERN BRITISH AND AMERICAN DRAMA: A course analyzing outstanding plays of contemporary writers as statements of social and moral values; spiritual backdrop of modern industrial civilization. The course includes study of Shaw, Eliot, Fry, O'Neill, Williams and Miller.

Class will be from 7-10 p.m. Mondays beginning Jan. 11. Dr. Wilbur Schwab will be the instructor. Tuition: $35.

PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION: An introduction to the considerations of religion in contemporary philosophical writings of James, Bergson, Russell, Santre, Jaspers and Cuvmac; concepts of modern theologians such as Tillich, Maritain, and Buber.

Class will meet from 7-10 p.m. Tuesdays beginning Jan. 12. Dr. William Kilpatrick will be the instructor. Tuition: $35.

MODERN PHILOSOPHIES OF MAN: This course provides an understanding of some of the dominant trends in contemporary thought through study and analysis of five important books by great contemporary philosophers, each presenting a view of the nature of man and relation to his environment. The works of Bergson, Cassirer, Mead, Fromm and Frankel.

Class will be from 7-10 p.m. Thursdays beginning Jan. 14. Dr. Richard Burke will be the instructor. Tuition: $35.

WESTERN CIVILIZATION SINCE THE FRENCH REVOLUTION: A course which considers the impact of the French Revolution on European thought. Topics included the weight of modern positivism and communism in the writings of Comte, Marx and Lenin; and the problems of twentieth century world peace.

Class will be from 7-10 p.m. Wednesdays beginning Jan. 13. Dr. Richard Straka will be the instructor. Tuition: $35.

SPANISH LANGUAGE: An introductory course in Spanish. Topics include the origins of Spanish, its place in the world family of languages; Spain and Spanish culture. 100-1700 A.D.

Class will be from 7-10 p.m. Mondays beginning Jan. 18. J. David Danielson will be the instructor. Tuition: $35.

Humphrey Looks Into Primary in Ohio

WASHINGTON (AP)—Aides of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) held open today the possibility he may yet enter Ohio's presidential preference primary.

"We'll take a look at Ohio," a Humphrey spokesman said, in the light of Ohio Gov. Michael V. DiSale's announcement Tuesday that he would run as a favorite son pledged to Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass).

The New York Fishing Company was the first commercial corporation in America. It was chartered on Jan. 8, 1875.

State Easing Job Austerity

Relaxes Restriction on Filling Vacancies; Also Okays Purchases

LANSING (UPI) — Michigan Tuesday eased its austerity program somewhat regarding the filling of job vacancies.

The State Administrative Board approved a "modest relaxation" of the curtailment program which saw a virtual halt in job replacement.

State Controller James Miller said today's approved change was "more a shifting of responsibility of certain aspects of the curtailment program."

Under the change, an individual agency can fill vacancies occurring on or after today, if the vacancy is under the third level of Civil Service classification and if the "agency head is convinced that established service will be impaired seriously if they are not filled."

"These changes permit a flexibility to agencies they haven't previously had," Miller said.

Miller said it would be possible also to go ahead with purchase of equipment and supplies for the completed sections of the new Boys Vocational School at Whitmore Lake and the Plymouth State Home and Training School.

Positions for these institutions' completed sections will also be filled, Miller said, as the Legislature has appropriated for them.

A State Police recruit training school also will begin about March, he said. There are presently about 41 trooper vacancies. The schools were stopped during the extreme clamp down on state spending.

The out-of-state travel ban was eased slightly also as authority was given an agency to permit travel for one employe.

Ferris Institute Fourth Largest Pharmacy School

BIG RAPIDS (UPI) — Ferris Institute's pharmacy enrollment is the nation's fourth largest, according to the American Assn. of Colleges of Pharmacy.

The ratings cite numbers of students in the last three years of a pharmacy curriculum. Ferris has 340 students in the bracket. It is led by Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science, Brooklyn College of Pharmacy and University of Illinois College of Pharmacy.

Ruled Innocent of Calling Santa Dirty Names

Two men charged with calling Santa Claus dirty names were found not guilty Tuesday by Municipal Court Judge Cecil B. McCallum.

The two young witnesses against them couldn't remember what the men allegedly had said, they told Judge McCallum.

Herbert S. Holdsworth, 21, of 2 Park Pl., and James C. Dunn, 20, of 3075 Baldwin Rd., Pontiac Township, were arrested on Dec. 16 on a complaint by Mrs. Louise Grimmet, of 1333 Stanley St.

She told police that when a man dressed as Santa Claus passed her sons, Enoch, 9, and Kenneth, 7, the men, working nearby, called Santa dirty names.

The construction workers had been charged with using obscene language in the presence of minors.

U.S. Is Buying 340 Ramblers

But GM Wins Largest Contract, With Chrysler Second, AMC Third

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The federal government is buying 340 Rambler American models — its first major purchase of compact cars.

The announcement was made yesterday by a General Services Administration spokesman. He said the purchase from American Motors was one of the results of bidding for $10,732,672 contracts in the annual buying of vehicles by the government.

General Motors won the largest contract. The corporation is to supply 54 cars, six station wagons and 3,733 light trucks under terms of a $5,983,747 contract.

The GSA spokesman said Ford did not win any contracts in the bidding.

Purchased from S-P were 8-cylinder Larks. They are not considered compact cars by the GSA, although the 6-cylinder models are.

No Corvairs or Valiants were included in the General Motors and Chrysler contracts.

Asks Liquidation of Insurance Firm

LANSING (UPI) — State Insurance Commissioner Frank Blackford today asked that liquidation begin for the Michigan Surety Co., Lansing, because the firm was "completely insolvent."

The firm, dealing in 42 states in bail bonds, insurance of long range truck shipments and surety bonds, is broke to the extent of $1,145,238 and reserves are impaired to the extent of about $487,173, Blackford said.

The company has been operating under special permission of Ingham County Judge Louis Cassis since early November when receivership proceedings were suspended pending an audit of the company by Joseph Froggatt & Co., New York.

Blackford said three other firms, in Cincinnati, Ohio, all under common management with the Michigan Surety Co., were in the same general condition and that receivership proceedings had been initiated in Ohio against at least one of the other companies.

The other companies named were Surety Underwriters, Inc.; Willmark Agency, Inc., and Agency Corp. of America, Inc.

De Gaulle Will Open U.S. Visit April 22

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle will open his visit to the United States April 22 and will remain until the end of the month. He will visit Canada April 19-22.

Vote to Purchase Equipment for Area College

Meeting in the multi-purpose building on the college campus, the 200 members present also approved the bylaws for the organization formed shortly after the school opened last fall.

Standing committees also were formed.

Speaker of the evening was J. Harvey Dykes, minister of the Vinewood Avenue Church of Christ, Detroit. In his talk he said it was much easier to reap life's full benefits by discovering proper conduct and behavior early rather than to be a "latecomer."

Refreshments were served by the St. Clair Shores and East Detroit groups. Community singing was led by Mrs. James Sneed of Pontiac.

Sen. Green, at 92, Just May Run for 5th Term

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—The nation's oldest U.S. senator, 92-year-old Theodore Francis Green (D-RI), hasn't made up his mind whether to seek a fifth senatorial term.

He told newsmen Tuesday he didn't know whether he will retire or seek reelection.

The oldest man ever to serve in Congress, he would be 98 years old if he completed another term.

Aiming for Better Government

Area Citizens Group Launches State Probe

Sharing the mutual conviction that objective study of Michigan's problems will facilitate their solution, the Northeast Oakland County chapter of Citizens for Michigan began group investigation of three areas of state government last night.

Then they adjourned into three individual study sessions to determine which specific problems they thought would most warrant their investigation and discussion.

The new chapter, the first organized in the state, is composed of registered voters from Oxford, Addison, Orion and Oakland townships. Membership now numbers near 50 persons representing all four townships.

The three areas the group was divided into for study were "State Services"; "Financing State Services" and "Structure and Organization of State Government".

The individual groups went over bibliographies of pertinent literature and selected pamphlets and books available that they wished to read before the next session Jan. 19. It also will be held at the Oxford Township Hall.

The statewide committees will obtain expert counsel on the problem issues and exchange information with local chapters to guide each study group toward acceptable solutions.

Local chapter comments then will be utilized by the state study committees in preparing a final statement of problems.

Subsequently, a preliminary statement of recommendations will be submitted to the local chapter.

The final step will be preparation of a statement of facts, on the state level, and a draft of recommendations.

Lanphar said, "The purpose of CFM is to find out from the grass roots, the thinking citizens, what they think can be done to improve state government in Michigan."

"The conclusions they reach will be made public so action can be taken and political candidates from both parties can determine their platforms to work for good state government," he added.

State Approves Troy Borrowing

Bonds Will Be Issued to Cover Construction of School, Additions

TROY — Borrowing of $2,300,000 by the Troy School District to finance construction of a new elementary school and additions to the high school and existing grade schools was approved yesterday by the State Municipal Finance Commission at Lansing.

The money will be raised through general obligation bonds approved by a scant 13-vote margin at Troy polls in October.

Of the total amount of the bond issue approximately $1,336,000 will be used to build additions to Troy High School to house an increase of 800 pupils.

The rest of the money is earmarked to cover the cost of completing six elementary school projects including the construction of a new elementary school in the north central section.

Other improvements will include the addition of 17 schoolrooms throughout the district and improved sewage treatment and storage facilities at Poppleton and Big Beaver schools.

Schools Superintendent to Address Stiles PTA

AVON TOWNSHIP — The speaker at tomorrow night's regular meeting of the Stiles School PTA will be Avondale Schools Superintendent LeRoy R. Watt.

He will give a brief talk on the local school system, both present and future.

The session is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. Refreshments will be served by the third grade homeroom mothers.

Announce Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Burnell of 5157 Pine Knob Lane, Clarkston, announce the engagement of their daughter Kaye Gark to Edward Bricker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bricker of 2017 Imlay City Rd., Lapeer. No wedding date has been decided.

Evans Supervisor of Shelby Township

SHELBY TOWNSHIP — Lorin E. Evans, 40, township clerk, has been promoted to township supervisor succeeding Steve S. Skula, 40, who resigned recently to accept a Michigan National Guard appointment.

Evans' salary is raised from $6,500 to $7,000 with the promotion. His position as clerk was filled by Township Trustee William Peper, 28, by vote of the township board.

Skula, whose resignation became effective Jan. 1, left to accept appointment as defense supervisor for the Michigan National Guard. He had 11 years' experience as a Guard reserve.

All new township officers' terms run until April, 1961.

MRS. JAMES M. MARSH

Marsh-Young Rite Performed by Candlelight

ORCHARD LAKE — Honeymooning in northern Michigan are area newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. James M. Marsh following a double-ring candlelight wedding at the Orchard Lake Presbyterian Community Church.

The bride is the former Phyllis Ann Young, daughter of Mrs. Lucille Young, 3258 Winterberry Rd., Orchard Lake. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James I. Marsh, 13170 Middlebelt Rd., Farmington.

Joanne Higgins of Detroit was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mary Beth Grenlin of Ann Arbor, the bride's sister Mary Young, Dawn Menton of Orchard Lake and Marsha Marsh, sister of the bridegroom.

Best man was Donald Schuster of Farmington. Ushers were Ed Fulton, Ross Byron and Dewey Nichols, all of Farmington, and Robert Dwyer of Green Lake.

When the newlyweds return from their honeymoon they will reside in Ann Arbor where both attend the University of Michigan.

22 Vie for King, Queen Titles

LAKE ORION—Twelve boys and 10 girls have entered the contest for Snow King and Queen to reign over Lake Orion's Winter Carnival Jan. 29-31.

The deadline for registration was yesterday.

To be eligible for competition, candidates had to be between 16 and 21 years of age, single and residents of either Lake Orion or Orion Township.

During the contest three judges will interview each candidate individually and grade them on poise, personality, appearance, enthusiasm and character.

The competition will start at 7:30 p.m. Judges will be Mrs. Brace Beemer of Orion Township, Dr. Jersey Loewith of Metamora and "Chuck" Lewis of a Pontiac radio station.

Six semifinalists will be picked. Then canisters with pictures of the runners-up will be placed in local stores and residents will vote for their favorites, each vote costing a penny.

Prizes for the winners will be ski equipment or complete ski outfits from the B-Bar-B Western Supply Store, Rochester.

Their majesties' names will be announced at the opening of the three-day celebration which will feature snow sculpture and ice fishing contests and other seasonal events.

Walled Lake Cab Fare Cut

Ease Food-Handler Rules

WALLED LAKE—Food handlers, when renewing their licenses here, will not be required to take a complete examination as a result of an amendment passed by the City Council last night.

The amendment to the food-handlers ordinance states that only a TB test or x-ray examination will be required annually.

The petition to amend the ordinance was presented to the Council early in November by City Health Officer Dr. W. R. Rech.

Rech had told the Council that the amendment would be in keeping with those of other cities in the area.

The Council also agreed on the installation of meters in the city's two cab companies, and rates that will be charged.

The city attorney was directed to draw up an ordinance so it can be passed upon at the next Council meeting.

The ordinance will call for a charge of 40 cents for the first third of a mile and 10 cents for each additional one-third mile.

Present rates are 65 cents for the first mile and 45 cents for each additional mile.

Plans for a new subdivision in the northernmost part of the city were presented to the council so that recommended changes by the city planner could be discussed, but no action was taken.

Auburn Heights Club Opens Skating Rink

AUBURN HEIGHTS — The Auburn Heights Rotary Club has constructed a public skating rink behind Avondale Junior High School, 2900 Waukegan St.

The rink, now open, is constructed so that hockey can be played separate from the main skating area.

Milford Firm Faces Crisis

Hearing on Bankruptcy Petition Filed by Three Ex-Employes Begun

MILFORD — A federal district court jury in Detroit has begun hearing testimony on an involuntary bankruptcy petition filed against an electronics manufacturing firm here.

Referee Joseph C. Murphy will hear the trial on the petition filed last March by three former employes of the Powertone Corp., 111 W. Liberty Rd.

President of the company Robert H. Voigt claims the firm is solvent and could meet its obligations if the U. S. Navy would settle a $328,000 bill he said is due on a defense contract.

Voigt, who asked for the jury trial, said the company owes $154,000 and lists assets at $18,416.

He charged that James F. Williams, who was named manager by the firm's board of directors, following Voigt's long correspondence ("war" with the Navy, "ran the company into the ground."

Powertone's troubles came about when a research and development contract, was inadvertently awarded as a fixed price contract, Voigt claims.

2 Exchange Students to Discuss Education

COMMERCE TOWNSHIP — Two foreign exchange students will discuss their views of American education at the Commerce School PTA meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in the school's multi-purpose room.

Special Teaching Classroom Open in Avondale

The Avondale Board of Education, under the guidance of the Oakland County Board of Education, has opened a Special Education Type "A" classroom at Avondale Junior High School.

This is the third classroom for special education children in the Avondale School system. It offers this special type of instruction not only to children in the Avondale schools but also to children in other school districts in the county.

The new classroom will be equipped with a special industrial arts area and a complete home-making unit, to become a self-contained facility.

Fowlerville Tot Killed

FOWLERVILLE (AP)—Bruce Randolph Curtis 3, of Fowlerville, was killed Tuesday when he ran into the path of a car in front of his home.

So 1960 is Leap Year! My goodness, the single gals can't possibly be leaping at the eligible guys any more than they have been the last three years . . . Great news for parents: A food company's going to put out a cereal that gives kids less energy. —Earl Wilson.

This bali breton by Brandt features the new season's smart lilac shade, Spring Haze. The brim, sweeping high in front, fits nicely at the back of the head. Fuchsia grosgrain is used for the band and bow. At right, Damozel revives the Greta Garbo slouch in oatmeal milan. Turquoise taffeta circles the crown and the same shade is carried through in the soft face veil.

Paris Goes Garbo

Pale Make-Up Good Cover Up

(NEA)—The mature woman, who wants to be as fashionable as during her younger years, should pay particular attention to her choice of make-up colors.

MSUO Offers Nurses Class in Social Welfare

"Interviewing in Social Welfare" is the course being offered for the winter term 1960 by Michigan State University Oakland to nurses interested in securing their bachelor's degree. Mrs. Myrtle Reul from Michigan State University will be the instructor.

Classes will begin tonight at 7. Any interested person may call MSUO to reserve a place in the class. Registration will be open for another week.

Those nurses interested in a refresher course in nursing practices and procedures should contact the McAuley School of Practical Nursing.

Wayne State University, in cooperation with the Oakland County District Nurses' Assn. will again offer a program to all Oakland County nurses if there are a sufficient number of nurses interested in participating.

Discourtesy Not Meant, but Was Felt

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I am in my mid-twenties and live at home with my parents. Last Sunday my brother and sister-in-law came over to visit us. During the course of the afternoon I received a telephone call from a friend, asking me if I would like to go to the movies with her about seven o'clock.

I said I would, and when seven o'clock came I excused myself, said good-bye and went out. I have heard that my sister-in-law was quite put out because I went out and left them, and thinks me very discourteous. My brother and his wife very seldom stay later than 8:30, and inasmuch as they came primarily to see my parents, I saw no discourtesy in going out at that time. Was I wrong to leave?

Answer: If you had accepted the invitation to the movies before your brother and his wife came, it would have been proper for you to explain this to them on their arrival and then to have left at seven o'clock. As things were, however, before accepting the invitation you should have told them about it and asked them if they minded your leaving at seven.

Dear Mrs. Post: When an invitation to a large luncheon is sent by several hostesses, is it necessary to send an acceptance to each one, or is it sufficient just to write to one of them, and if so, to which one is it sent?

Answer: You send your reply to the person you know the best. If you know them all equally well you send your answer to the first name on the list.

Dear Mrs. Post: When playing cards, is it good manners to pick up your cards and start assorting them before the dealer has finished dealing them out?

Answer: The cards should not be picked up until all have been dealt out.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it in good taste to wear diamonds—such as a necklace, bracelet, etc., in the daytime? I have been told that diamonds—except a diamond ring—are properly worn only in the evening and that a woman of good taste never wears them in the daytime.

Answer: In the daytime, it is not good taste for a woman to wear so many diamonds that she can be described as "dripping with diamonds," but to wear a few is quite proper.

Silver Tea Planned by MOMS

MOMS of America, Inc., Unit 2, were Tuesday guests of Mrs. Chester C. Brown at her home on Wards Point drive. A "schoolgirl" lunch preceded the business meeting conducted by Mrs. E. K. Vanderlind.

Mrs. Frank Emery gave the devotions and reported on Christmas presents given by the unit to veterans at Oakland County Tuberculosis Sanatorium.

Plans are being completed for a silver tea to be held in April.

Church Class Maps Drive for New Members

Preceding a steak supper, devotions were read by Glenn Johnson. Games were directed by Albert Potter and Fred Sage.

Mrs. Sage was elected social director.

Precious Milk Cleans Plants

(NEA)—Milk is the perfect cleanser for plant leaves. Just dip a sponge in milk and wipe off the leaves of house plants.

This will clean the leaves and leave them glossy in the bargain. It also will make the plants richer in color.

Finger Press for Drip Drys

Gold Star Mothers Convene

Chapter Nine of American Gold Star Mothers, Inc., held its monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon at Disabled American Veteran's Hall.

Mrs. J. A. Green of McKinley drive will entertain the group for luncheon and cancer pad sewing session next Tuesday afternoon.

Plans were made by the group to attend a luncheon and card party in Royal Oak sponsored by Chapter 14 on Jan. 21.

For Women's Chorus

Audition Month

January is audition month for the Pontiac Women's Chorus. The group, which is sponsored by the Pontiac Department of Parks and Recreation, welcomes prospective members at this time.

A simple audition on any of the three remaining Tuesdays in January at Mark Twain School at 7:30 p.m. is all that is necessary to join this group, according to membership chairman Mrs. James Absher of Lincolnshire street.

Under the direction of George Scott, the chorus presents concerts several times a year. The next performance is a joint appearance in February with the MacDowell Male Chorus.

MARIE PRUETT

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey E. Pruett of Blaine avenue announce the engagement of their daughter Marie to Terrell D. Orr. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll T. Orr of Omar street. A June wedding is planned.

BONNIE L. VALLAD

LOLA S. DUNBAR

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gilliam Dunbar of North Johnson avenue announce the engagement of their daughter Lola Sharon to William Walter Mabry, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Milton Mabry of Henry Dale street, Auburn Heights. A June 25 wedding date is set.

ZELMA ANN LIECHTY

June nuptials are planned by Zelma Ann Liechty, whose engagement to Dennis Warren has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Liechty of Sheridan street. Her fiance's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Max Warren of Edison street. A June wedding is planned.

SANDRA MAY FREESE

A fall wedding is planned by Sandra May Freese, whose engagement to Gary Momany has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lisle A. Freese of Scotwood avenue. Her fiance is the son of Mrs. Basil Momany of Clintonville road, and the late Mr. Momany.

Abby Says 'Grab Him'

She Doesn't Love Her Beau With Great Excited Emotion

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two little boys, 3 and 4. I have another child on the way. My husband died six months ago when our tractor overturned on him.

Our pastor is begging me to marry him. He spends every spare minute trying to help me and the boys, and they love him very much. I am 27, and he is 33.

My problem is I admire and respect this man, but I don't love him with the exciting kind of love every woman dreams about. He says it doesn't matter that I don't love him that way and that I will learn to love him because he will make me happy.

I want my children to have a father and I know this man will make a good one. Is it possible to build a marriage on this foundation? UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Run, do not walk to the nearest altar. Mutual admiration and respect are often a sturdier foundation for marriage than "the exciting kind of love every woman dreams about."

DEAR ABBY: I had to laugh when I read the letter from the poor lady who said her husband refused to be seen walking on the street with her if she wore eyeglasses.

I have the same trouble with my wife. Only it is in reverse! My wife can't see a foot in front of her face without glasses. She has a small fortune invested in glasses and they are all in her drawer.

But do you think she will wear them? Not on your life! When we go to a party I have to lead her around like a seeing eye dog so I can tell her who's coming and what is going on. Half the time she doesn't know what's being said because she can't see their faces. Tell that man who refuses to be seen with his wife because she wears glasses that he's got holes in his head.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem you have never heard of before. My husband, who is 36, steals money from our children. Money they have earned and money sent to them for birthdays and holidays. He knows the children are never forgotten on such occasions and because there are six of them, their relatives make a practice of sending them money instead of gifts.

My oldest son worked all summer (where my husband works steady) and the boss gave my husband the money to give to my son. My son never saw the money and was ashamed to tell the boss he never got it.

Is there some way I can make my husband return what he has stolen from the children without calling the police? I hate to make a jailbird out of the children's father.

NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO: Perhaps you could induce him to return the money he has stolen from the children by threatening to call the police.

Your husband is a heartless and unprincipled scoundrel and doesn't deserve the protection you are giving him. Don't waste your time appealing to his sense of decency. He apparently has none. All he can understand is the fear of punishment from the law.

Green Lakers Will Meet

The Green Lake Women's Club will meet Monday noon at the Green Lake Community House for luncheon and a card party. Mrs. Richard Schmid, chairman, has assembled unusual door and table prizes from her recent European trip.

Textured Look Goes to Legs

(UPI)—Short skirts have put legs in the spotlight again, but the leggy look is textured, instead of bare. There are tweed and shadow checked stockings to go with tweed suits, walking shoes and the new tapered boots. Twill and jacquard hosiery teams with tailored suits with long jackets and the dress-maker walking pump.

Honeycomb and vertical lace patterns go well with soft suits and dresses and tapered slippers. For country wear are ribbed and feather-stitch types. Dressier outfits call for pique, lace, and keyhole weaves. For evening, there are lace and paisley print stockings, worn with furry sandals.

Christiana Nancy Sturgis was united in marriage to Marine Pvt John Arthur Bilbey on Dec. 26 at the First Free Methodist Church.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sturgis of Fourth avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bilbey of East Colgate avenue are parents of the bridegroom.

Precaution Most Important

Diabetic Must Watch Feet

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

As I mentioned in this column a short time ago, many diseases show symptoms in the feet. It is the greatest importance for the diabetic to give his feet special care. It is a well-recognized fact that the feet are danger spots in this malady.

Careless cleaning or the use of self-medication, may bring disastrous results. A diabetic ulcer may develop and these are sometimes difficult to heal. Sometimes they do not heal and amputation may be necessary. Precaution is DRAMATICALLY important.

According to the National Foot Health Council the feet should be bathed in warm soapy water daily. Cleanliness is most important. The diabetic should purchase a thermometer in order to test the bath water. This should not be more than three or four degrees than body temperature.

DIABETIC SHOULD

Dry the feet thoroughly but do not rub too hard and use cotton for drying between the toes, taking care not to pull the toes too far apart because this might cause cracks.

Use cocoa butter or olive oil or hydrous lanolin on his feet and lower limbs if they are dry and scaly.

Sponge the feet with alcohol if they perspire too much. Borated powder is soothing when used between the toes and on the feet.

Examine the feet once a week for any irritant such as corns, cracks, rashes, sores of any sort or raw places or blisters.

SHOULD NOT

Try to treat himself for any foot troubles but should see a physician, podiatrist or chiropodist.

Use pads or salves or a razor blade, strong antiseptics or any such things on his feet.

Walk about barefooted, and should use slippers in a shower in order to avoid cuts, ringworm or other infections.

The feet of one who has diabetes should be examined by himself or his family once a week and most physicians advise their diabetic patients to have their feet examined by a chiropodist or podiatrist once a month. This sort of care may save you much discomfort and might even save your life.

The diabetic should dry the feet thoroughly but should not rub too hard and should use cotton for drying between the toes, taking care not to pull the toes too far apart because this might cause cracks.

A Hostess Must See the Guests Off Safely

By RUTH MILLETT

If you are planning a cocktail party, don't forget your responsibility for doing all that you can to make sure your guests get safely home.

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Fraternal Order of Police has asked me to pass on these reminders for after-party safety:

Don't urge alcohol on the guest who would just as soon not drink. Have soft drinks and fruit juices handy for the nondrinker. And above all, don't make him feel that he should drink. (My own P.S.: Don't let any of your guests heckle the nondrinker, either.)

Keep a sharp eye on the weather. Abrupt temperature changes can turn even your own familiar street into a slippery deathtrap while the party is in progress. (My observation: If driving conditions are bad and getting worse all the time, don't be afraid to break the party up.)

PROVIDE COFFEE

Don't let your guests go home without providing hot coffee for them. (P.S. again: Have plenty of food and serve it EARLY in the evening. It's better to feature the food than drag out the drinking.)

Be particularly watchful for the over-imbiber. If he's driving, urge him to take a taxi, let someone else take him home, or drive him yourself.

One last P.S.: This will probably be your most difficult problem, so let's hope you don't have such a guest.

But if you do, get him home safely and then, if you like, cross him off your future guest lists.

It's enough of a job to give a party, without having to be responsible for the safety of guests who don't know how to say "No" to the drink that is going to be one-too-many for the road.

Shellac Child's 'Masterpieces'

(NEA) — Fingerpainting by youngsters and their school art attempts make delightful, different pictures to hang at home.

Grin at Troubles, and Feel Better

(NEA) — Next time your youngest child wipes his jellied hands on a clean shirt, the dog takes over your best house slippers and the faucet leaks, try a little smile.

This is a big order. But experts on the subject claim laughter eases many irritations and tensions.

Beauty at 54 Means Many Years of Care

(NEA)—Recently, a beautiful actress named Dolores Del Rio was married. The news cameras, none too kind at the best, showed her to be a real beauty. But the astonishing thing is that her age is given as 54. She was a star in motion pictures of the 1920s.

She looks a good twenty years younger than her age. So it's easy to deduce that she is a firm believer in rest and relaxation.

She is undoubtedly disciplined about her beauty care.

But the interesting point in all of this is that Miss Del Rio's beauty has not faded in the years when many other Hollywood actresses have lost their looks quite completely.

Though she was endowed with beauty to start with, so were the others. So it's clear that she took care of the good looks given her.

Put Your Achievements in Perspective

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

As little boys, the sons of actor Joel McCrea knew that their father worked in pictures; but raised on a ranch instead of in Hollywood, they knew nothing of the kind of idolatry the town concocts for movie stars.

One day, on a visit to New York, it burst upon them. Their father had taken them out to show them Central Park.

Nearby, a group of youngsters fishing in the park lake suddenly recognized in actual flesh the screen image of the handsome, brave, heroes Joel McCrea had played in their local theatres. And screaming with admiring excitement, they besieged him for autographs.

When McCrea finally made his escape, the son who now plays with him in TV's "Wichita Town" asked testily:

"What was the matter with those kids? What did they want you to sign all those pieces of paper for?"

"I'd known I'd have to come up with an answer some day," Joel McCrea told me in reply to my question on the effects of movie-star parents' fame on children. "So what I said was, 'The kids made that big fuss over me because I'm good at making them believe in the niceness of the guys I play in pictures.'"

Sometimes, though you and I aren't on the receiving end of the extravagant flattery given to movie stars, we too, get praise in the presence of our children.

Just as often, we either pooh-pooh it out of a false sense of modesty or swallow it wholesale out of a false sense of pride.

Joel McCrea made neither of these mistakes. He neither allowed his flattering fans to deflate his own appreciation of his success nor did he allow them to exaggerate it.

He simply expressed his own respect for his work, and from what I saw of his sons' affection for him, has won the same kind of realistic respect for it from them.

Much nonsense has been written about the evil effects of parents' fame on Hollywood children.

What produces the evil effects is not the concocted fame but the parents' overevaluation of it.

All of us parents, in or out of the movies, must respect our own achievements whether other people choose to overpraise or minimize them.

Today, superficial child psychology has taught us to fear honest respect for our successes lest it discourage children from achieving theirs.

This fear is not so constructive as we think.

HAND CARE
by Edythe McCulloch
With Christmas bills coming in and first of the year taxes and what-not . . . it is nice to know that there is something that doesn't cost any money . . . We can all have beautiful hands for an investment of time . . . and time alone. Since our hands reveal the years, it is well worth while to keep them youthful. Invest your time this way:
1 Apply lotion every time you put your hands in water.
2 Use hand cream at night and work in well.
3 Work cleansing cream in with a handbrush if hands are very soiled.
4 Push cuticle back as you towel dry and reach for the hand lotion.
5 Wear gloves every time you step out of doors.

Have to Buy, Can't Pass by?

NEW YORK (UPI)—Motivational researchers probing supermarkets report that there are five basic customer types:

Compulsive (not sure of what she wants, so she buys everything); security seeker (knows what she wants, but feels insecure unless the larder is constantly filled); planful (works with a list and knows comparative prices); scatterbrain (doesn't know how to keep house, forgets things while shopping); lonely one (shops a little at a time because supermarket excursion is a social venture).

Ex-Newspaper Woman Now 'Exterior Decorator'

By MARY PRIME

NEW YORK (UPI) — A former newspaper reporter and copywriter has become an "exterior decorator" for women.

"It started as a hobby seven years ago, when a friend asked me to help her daughter," said Madeleine Christopher (who is Mrs. John Morris in private life). Other friends began asking for her advice, and finally she opened a fashion and beauty consulting service, American woman-in-style. In addition, she owns a public relations agency.

More than 2,000 women from 13 to 65 years have sought advice from Miss Christopher in the past year. Customers come from Quebec, the east coast and the south. About a third are women with cerebral palsy or other afflictions. A small percentage are working women, often nurses. Most are housewives — women whose children are grown, or wives of junior executives.

Customers start with an hour's consultation costing $10.

Miss Christopher analyzes a woman from head to toe and suggests a new hair style, make-up, cosmetic surgery if needed, foundation garments, jewelry and other accessories. She often recommends hair rinses but discourages middle-aged women from dyeing their hair. If a woman needs to go on a diet, Miss Christopher suggests she do so.

Working on the theory that it takes 30 days to form a habit, Miss Christopher sends women home to practice putting on make-up. They master first one side of the face, then the other. When they can do it easily, they return for Miss Christopher's approval — without charge.

Additional consultation is available, and the director will go shopping with a customer for a $3 fee, although she prefers to let women shop on their own.

Pecans Provide Protein in Meatless Patties

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor

Many families have reason to have meatless meals which makes homemakers eager for new recipes. In the one today ground pecans take the place of meat, providing the necessary protein.

* * *

Mrs. William D. Gallant of Cedar Island Lake is today's cook. She is an active church worker.

MEATLESS PATTIES
By Mrs. William D. Gallant

1½ cups rolled oats
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sage
3 eggs
1 cup ground onions
1 cup ground pecans

Mix and let stand for several hours. Form into patties. Fry in cooking oil and place in shallow baking dish. Cover with sauce and bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

Sauce

6 tablespoons shortening
1 can (4 ounces) mushroom pieces
6 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon soy sauce
2 cups water (include juice from can of mushrooms)

Two Favorites Join Forces

Chicken-and-vegetable casseroles make good eating at any time of year, but during and after the holidays these time-saving, nutritious combination dishes are especially welcome. Chicken-Corn Casserole combines two of our most popular American foods — tender, juicy broiler-fryers and whole kernel corn. It is so easy to prepare and so delicious you'll make it a regular on your year-round menus. The crunchy bread crumb topping adds interesting texture.

This meal takes little time for final preparation if you cook the chicken early in the day, or use leftover chicken and broth — perhaps stored in the home freezer.

Team our hearty main dish with buttered broccoli spears, a grapefruit and avocado salad, and for company dinners another American favorite—apple pie, a la mode of course.

Chicken-Corn Casserole

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
2 cups chicken broth
Salt, pepper
1 lb. can whole kernel corn
2 cups diced, cooked chicken
1 cup soft bread crumbs
¼ cup (½ stick) melted butter or margarine

Melt the butter or margarine. Blend in the flour until frothy. Add chicken broth all at once and stir until sauce comes to a boil. Season to taste. Grease wide casserole, and put in half the corn, then half the chicken. Pour over half the sauce. Repeat layers.

Mix bread crumbs with melted butter or margarine. Spread over top. Bake, uncovered, in a moderate (350 degrees) oven 30 minutes. Finish off under broiler a minute or so if you like crumbs dark brown and extra crunchy. Makes four servings.

It's the Little Things That Attract Attention

A mustard bun wrapped around a miniature hot dog will be the talk of the party this season. Use the recipe for yeast rolls on the package of biscuit mix. Add 2 tablespoons prepared mustard with the liquid in the recipe.

Shape the rolls to fit Vienna sausages or miniature frankfurters. After baking, split the buns, toast under the broiler and butter lightly. Surround a chafing dish of hot sausages with the toasted buns.

Shrimp Deviled Eggs

Mash drained canned shrimp and add them to the egg yolk and mayonnaise filling for stuffed eggs. Be sure to drain the shrimp, rinse them in cold water and drain well again before using.

Bananas Rolled in Pastry Become Dessert 'Boats'

Dessert after a sumptuous meal must be something special, it's both traditional and expected. Here is a new idea to try on the family that's sure to make a hit. Although a little out of the ordinary line of dinner desserts, it'll be a favorite with the children even before the first delicious bite.

Banana Boats with Lemon Sauce

Pastry for 8 inch double crust
3 large or 6 small bananas
½ cup lemon juice
4 candied cherries
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg white beaten with
2 tablespoons sugar
Golden raisins

Using your favorite pastry recipe, roll pastry into a 10 x15 inch rectangle. Cut into six 5-inch squares. Peel and dip bananas in lemon juice and place diagonally on squares (cut large bananas in half). Sprinkle each banana with sugar.

Roll up like jelly roll by starting at one corner. Shape into crescents and pinch open ends together. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Brush with egg white.

Bake 15 to 20 minutes, or to a golden brown. Use square of construction paper pierced with skewer, for boat "sail." Top each boat with a candied cherry "sailor," and sprinkle golden raisins around boats, for further decorations.

Lemon Sauce

½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1½ cups boiling water
½ cup white corn syrup
½ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter

Blend sugar and cornstarch. Stir in boiling water thoroughly. Add syrup and salt, and cook and stir until mixture is thick and clear. Add remaining ingredients, and cook over low heat until well blended. Makes two cups sauce.

French Toast Bettered With Apricot Nectar

Dip enriched bread slices into the nectar-egg mixture; brown in hot fat on both sides. To serve: Top toast with honey, cut into triangles and arrange on a platter in a sunburst design.

Ideas on Using Plentiful Onions

If you've forgotten how onions can put more zip and zest into your meals, try a new onion recipe today. Right now there are extra big quantities of onions in the stores, which is why you'll find onions on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's List of Plentiful Foods this month.

You can add onions to creamed soups, use them in crisp vegetable salads and in combination sandwiches. Or try cooking a few of the minced onions with steamed and boiled potatoes, and combine them with other vegetables such as peas and green beans in casserole dishes.

Small-sized onions, known as "broilers," may be served with butter, creamed with a small portion of seasoned cream or white sauce or served with a cream sauce to which has been added diced crisp bacon or minced ham. Another interesting variation is to blend a small portion of tangy cheese with the cream sauce or sprinkle it over the creamed vegetable just before you send it to the table.

For French frying, you'll find the large-size Spanish onions are ideal. Slice them about an eighth of an inch thick, separate the rings and dip them in fritter batter or coat them with egg and sifter bread crumbs. Fry them in deep fat, or pan fry them if more convenient until a golden brown. They're delicious to serve as a vegetable and attractive as a garnish for roasts, chops and steaks.

When you buy onions, select ones that are bright, clean and hard, with dry skins. Watch for moisture at the stem end, as it may indicate decay at the heart of the onion. Store them in a cool, dry, well-ventilated room.

Pomegranates Are Exotic Touch for Fruit Salad

If you'd like an exotic touch, pomegranates at about 25 cents each, might be the answer, says Josephine Lawyer, Consumer Marketing Information Agent for Oakland County.

These are the thick skinned, apple-shaped fruit that may have some bronze to brownish coloration over the basic red or purplish color. It has tart, crimson, jewel-like seeds that are delicious additions to salads (especially cottage cheese salads)' ices and gelatin desserts.

Mushrooms Become a Glamor Dish

Stuffed Mushrooms

12 to 18 medium-sized mushrooms (about 1 pound)
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons grated onion
½ cup crushed round Butter-type crackers (18)
2 tablespoons heavy cream
Salt, pepper

Wipe mushrooms with damp cloth; separate caps from stems. Chop stems fine; there should be about 1 cup loosely packed.

Melt 2 tablespoons of the butter in a 10-inch skillet; sauté mushroom caps in it, covered. Add 2 tablespoons more of the butter to the skillet with the onion and chopped mushroom stems; cook gently.

Mix in cracker crumbs and remaining butter until butter melts. Mix in cream, salt and pepper to taste.

Stuff mushroom caps with this mixture. Heat thoroughly in a moderate or hot oven or slowly under broiler. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Niceties of Tea Include Candy

Tea for two offers no problem but when those occasions arise where you are called on to manage an afternoon social, your difficulties increase. Here's a solution to having tea ready in quantity, yet served at the right strength and flavor to please each guest.

Set a silver tea pot filled with triple strength tea before the one who is "pouring." Alongside it have a silver or china pot of boiling water so that each cup can be diluted as necessary.

Arrange milk pitcher, plate of lemon slices with cloves, and a dish of After Dinner Mints on the table. One or two mints added to each cup of hot tea will flavor it sufficiently for those who want a bit of sweetening.

Most important thing to remember is to have plenty of boiling water ready throughout the service.

Never Throw Them Out

If a cake recipe leaves you with extra egg whites or egg yolks, home economists at Michigan State University suggest you hard cook them. Then sieve the egg yolks and chop the egg whites for salad garnishes.

Add Some Wheat Germ to Corn Muffin Mix

Somehow, nothing seems to turn an ordinary meal into an occasion more easily and effectively than a hot bread. And, when the hot bread is as distinctive and tasty as these Wheat-Corn Sticks, it's apt to become a frequently-served specialty-of-the-house.

The bread sticks start the easy way with a packaged mix. But, by simply increasing the amount of liquid from two-thirds cup of milk to one cup, and adding a half cup of wheat germ, they're given a touch of individuality which contributes a wonderful nut-like flavor and generous amount of essential nutrients—protein, B vitamins, iron and others.

Wheat-Corn Sticks

1 13-ounce package corn muffin mix
1 egg
1 cup milk
½ cup wheat germ

Place corn muffin mix in mixing bowl; add egg, milk and ½ cup wheat germ. Blend until dry ingredients are well moistened. Batter will be lumpy. Almost fill depressions in heated, well-greased corn stick pans. Sprinkle tops with wheat germ.

Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) 15 to 20 minutes. Serve while hot. Makes 16 bread sticks.

(If desired, half-fill greased muffin cups and bake 15 to 20 minutes. Or spread batter in greased 8- or 9-inch square pan and allow 20 to 25 minutes baking time.)

To Shape Corn Sticks

A cast iron pan with seven grooved depressions gives Wheat-Corn Sticks their attractive shape. The pre-seasoned, ready-to-use pans are available in housewares sections and specialty stores for less than two dollars.

To prevent rust and keep the pans in perfect condition, follow these suggestions:

1. After using wash pan with hot, soapy water.

2. Avoid using a scouring pad when possible but, if used, re-season the pan by brushing it with an unsalted fat (vegetable shortening or salad oil) and heating it in a slow oven.

3. After each washing, dry the pan thoroughly in the oven or on top of the range. As further protection against rust, brush it lightly with salad oil and cover it with foil or saran wrap.

4. When ready to use, rinse the pan in soapy, then clear water, to remove the oil which may have turned rancid. Dry thoroughly. Brush lightly with salad oil and place in oven to heat while the corn stick batter is mixed.

Thaw Frozen Milk Bottles Inside Refrigerator

It doesn't happen often, but if you discover that the milk left on your doorstep on an exceptionally cold morning appears to be partly frozen, you need not be concerned about its quality.

Place the milk in your refrigerator at once where it can thaw gradually, says dairy expert, Dr. George Shadwick. Then it will be just as fresh and well-flavored as usual.

Parsley Everywhere

When you buy a bunch of parsley there are lots of ways to use it. Add it, minced, to egg-salad or tuna sandwiches that are to go into the lunch box; to potato or chicken salad; to cottage cheese to be served with a fruit salad; to a cream-cheese and clam mixture that is to be used as a spread for crackers.

Good Diet Always Includes Breakfast

Pontiac Press Home Editor

Top of the morning to you—and what did you have for breakfast today? We're off on one of our pet subjects, one on which we feel strongly.

Machines perform best when they are well cared for and are given the proper fuel. People function best when they are well cared for and fed regularly. That means breakfast too.

Researchers have discovered that teen-age girls and their mothers are the worst offenders in the breakfast-skipping habit. The mothers should know better and the girls should learn better. (After all, gals, you're going to be the mothers of future athletes and belles of the ball; how about a foundation of good health?)

Researchers have also found that the "greatest number of dishes or specific kinds of food" turn up at breakfast. This is in accord with what we have always said—eat anything that appeals to you at breakfast time, but EAT.

Maybe it's soup that sounds good on a dark, dreary morning. If you are a person who doesn't care much for milk, here is a way to get it into your diet. Choose a soup you can dilute with milk. Crackers or hot toast will taste good with it.

Are you looking for a new way in which to serve eggs? Try baking them in English muffins . . . like this:

Eggs Baked in English Muffins

4 large English muffins
2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
4 eggs
4 teaspoons cream or milk
¼ cup grated process cheese

Cut the center from each English muffin almost to the bottom with a (3-inch) cookie cutter and work circles out with a fork or knife. Spread center of muffins and cut-out portion with butter and place on a baking sheet. Break an egg into each muffin cup. Put 1 teaspoon cream and 1 tablespoon cheese on each egg.

Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 15 minutes, or until eggs are soft cooked and set. Serve the cut-out portion with each egg. Yield: 4 servings.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture defines a good breakfast as a meal that gives you protein, vitamins, and minerals — materials needed to build and repair the body and to help keep you healthy; (2) provides fuel for body energy; (3) tastes good.

Florida Sunshine Glazed Rolls

1 package (14½ ounces) roll mix
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
2 tablespoons butter
⅔ cup orange juice
1 cup sugar, divided
Broken nut meats, optional
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Prepare roll mix according to package directions adding 1 tablespoon rind to dry mix.

To make glaze, combine in saucepan remaining 1 tablespoon orange rind, butter, orange juice and 2/3 cup of the sugar. Bring to a boil and boil for 3 minutes. Divide the syrup between 2 round 9-inch layer cake pans. Place Brazil nut slices in syrup if desired.

Onion Ring Topping

Top creamed snap beans with French-fried onion rings if you want good flavor and texture contrast. Canned condensed mushroom soup, flavored with Worcestershire sauce, makes an excellent "cream sauce" for this dish.

When dough is double in bulk, place on floured board; knead 20 strokes. Roll into a rectangle 12x18 inches. Spread with melted butter; sprinkle with remaining 1/3 cup sugar and cinnamon. Roll as for jelly roll; cut into 1-inch slices. Place rolls, cut side down in pans. Syrup must not be hot when rolls are placed in it.

Let rise until double in bulk (about 1 hour). Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Yield: 1½ dozen rolls.

Brown Sugar Toast

1 cup brown sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons milk
12 slices enriched bread toast

Cream brown sugar and butter together until light and fluffy. Blend in milk and lemon rind. Spread brown sugar mixture on one side of each toast slice. Place toast, spread side up, on an ungreased cookie sheet. Toast under low broiler heat for three minutes, or until brown sugar mixture bubbles. Serve immediately. Yield: 6 servings, 2 slices toast per serving.

Endive Recipes to Get Prizes

Because of the interest in the recipe contest for Belgian Endive last year, the Association has decided to repeat this competition.

Cash prizes will be awarded for unusual recipes using Belgian Endive as a salad, cooked vegetable, appetizer, soup, entree or other adaptable method of preparation. Prize-winning recipes will be judged by a panel of food experts with a first prize of $100.00, a second prize of $50.00 and third prize of $25.00.

Recipes should be sent to Margaret Herbst, Belgian Endive Association, Room 607, 101 Park Avenue, New York 17, N.Y. All recipes submitted shall remain the property of the Association. The deadline for the Belgian Endive Contest will be April 1, 1960.

Take It Easy

When you are preparing garlic bread, you'll find that one or two cloves of garlic (crushed) will be plenty to add to a quarter pound (one-half cup) of butter or margarine.

Reporter Filled With Awe on Seeing Miracle of Birth

(Editor's Note: This is the seventh in a series of articles about births witnessed recently by Pontiac Press reporters as the fortunate of Pontiac hospitals, doctors and the mothers. A reporter forbearing it was more than an academic experience as his wife was due and was expected to give birth to their first child.)

By HARVEY ZUCKERBURG

Listen to this, men and future mothers, for it comes straight from the shoulder of a guy who has witnessed the revered supreme miracle on this earth.

It is unimaginable that the deepest canyon, the highest mountain, the breadth of oceans could afford the feeling of communion with heaven and this world as the sight of a mother giving birth to her child.

ZUCKERBERG

This layman observer was stricken dumb with the awe of it and jubilant at once when, in the immaculate delivery room of a Pontiac hospital, a handsome woman saw her newborn for the first time.

"Bless its beautiful heart," the mother sobbed joyfully. "I wanted it so bad. Thank you dear God."

Following is the series of recent events as the drama unfolded from the time Mrs. Allen (a fictitious name) arrived at the hospital through her care during labor and delivery until both she and baby embraced a blissful sleep.

A WARM GREETING

When Mr. and Mrs. Allen walked into the hospital lobby at 4 p.m. they were approached quickly by a nurse. She greeted them warmly and asked the husband to register his wife at the desk.

She placed the expectant mother in a wheel chair and took her to the labor suite of the lying-in section.

Mrs. Allen was given a hospital gown and put to bed. The nurse examined her, listening for the baby and checking the progress of the labor. She then called the patient's physician.

Obstetrical preparation was given Mrs. Allen and instruction from the nurse of what she could expect in the delivery room and what would be expected of her in labor.

The house doctor entered the room and performed an examination for the possibility of medical or obstetrical abnormalities. He is directly responsible for the patient during his tour of duty and works with and under the supervision of the patient's attending obstetrician.

Before the nurse left Mrs. Allen (she thereafter stopped in for periodic checks), she instructed her to ring at any sign of bleeding, breaking of the water bag, unusual contractions or sensations or at any time for any reason.

WAITING BEGINS

"Tell me when you feel a backache or when the contractions get stronger and closer together," the nurse said.

The waiting began.

It had a peaceful effect on her, relieving the discomfort and allaying her anxiety. It did not fog her mind.

Almost seven hours from the time she was admitted, close to 11 p.m., Mrs. Allen felt stronger contractions and a bearing down sensation.

Her attending physician had arrived. He ascertained that she was ready for delivery.

The contractions were coming at two to three minute intervals.

The dark haired woman was transferred to a litter and at 10:50 p.m. wheeled into the delivery room. A team of four was present: her obstetrician, the house doctor, a circulating nurse and the anesthetist.

Her body was placed gently in a side position on a table to receive an anesthetic agent in the back. This "saddle block" method of anesthesia removed all sensation from the perineum, the area through which the baby would be born.

Mrs. Allen did not become groggy and was to remain completely alert and aware of what was to go on throughout the delivery.

She was returned to a reclining position. The doctors placed her legs in stirrups.

This provided a source of energy as well as having a readily available vein in which to introduce, if required, any medication or blood.

The obstetrician, who had left the room to scrub and freshly gown himself again, returned to the delivery room. He put on rubber gloves and while holding a steady conversation with Mrs. Allen, he draped her with sterile sheets.

A contraction seized the mother's abdomen. The doctor examined with his hand to feel the position and which part of the baby would present itself first.

"What do you want," the doctor asked as he worked. "Do you care?"

"I have two boys and two girls," said the mother. "I don't care, just so long as it's healthy."

Her body relaxed for some moments. Then another contraction gripped her. The doctors worked quickly and efficiently.

"Push right down here," one of them told her. "Hold it down as long as you can. That's it. Once more and we'll be all set. When I tell you to give me a push, I want you to. At the next contraction."

"Blood pressure is 110 over 80," he reported to the obstetrician. "Pulse 80. Respiration is 18."

"Fine," came the satisfied answer. "Thank you."

"There's another contraction starting now," the doctor told the woman. "Now, as long as you can. Push down hard.

"Now, we'll have to help it down," he said as he inserted the forceps.

"My first baby was forceps," said Mrs. Allen as the doctor worked.

(As is usual with saddle block anesthesia, the doctor explained afterward, the mother could not muster sufficient force to deliver unaided. He elected to use the forceps.)

The doctor had inserted the instrument in the perineum and fitted the forceps about the baby's head. By gentle traction he aided the baby in its passage through the birth canal.

"Is the head first?" Mrs. Allen asked anxiously.

"Oh yes. It's fine," the doctor assured her.

As the head became visible through the perineum, the obstetrician made a small one inch incision with a blunt point bandage scissors to make more room.

CHILD IS BORN

When the head was in a position to be delivered, he placed one hand beneath the perineum. While holding the head in position, he removed the forceps.

Again, gentle traction was provided by the doctor's hand and the baby's head was ushered out.

"It isn't a blue baby, is it doctor?" the mother asked.

"No, no, of course not," he comforted her, working quickly to remove the mucus and other secretions from the mouth and nose of the baby, allowing it to breathe.

"Can I watch the baby being born?" asked Mrs. Allen.

"Alright," her physician replied, still busy with the work at hand. "Look in the mirror. Can you see alright?"

"Is it a girl?" asked Mrs. Allen.

"Don't know yet," was the answer.

Then the obstetrician delivered the shoulders, buttocks and feet. It was 11:12 p.m.

He lifted it free and almost in the same wondrous moment placed the infant on the mother's abdomen for her to see.

"IT'S A GIRL"

"It's a girl!" he announced.

"Can you see it?" the nurse asked simultaneously. "It's a girl!"

"Oh, bless its beautiful heart," cried Mrs. Allen. "I wanted it so bad. Thank you dear God. Oh, it's a doll baby. It's mamma's baby."

"Oh, I'm so thankful," the mother of five replied. "You doctors are so nice here. You've been so nice to me."

"You did very good," said the doctor as he clamped the umbilical cord before severing it. He handed the baby to the nurse who took her little footprints and the mother's fingerprints and attached beaded plastic identification bracelets to both their wrists.

The nurse then placed the infant in a warming basket so as not to get chilled at the 75 degree room temperature. Its home for the previous nine months had been a warm 99 degrees.

Curled up in a blanket in the basket, the infant gave its first tiny wail.

Meanwhile, the doctor had returned his attentions to the mother. Remaining to be delivered, the placenta (afterbirth) followed with the slightest pressure by the physician on the woman's abdomen.

EVERYTHING'S FINE

He then examined the birth canal for any possible injury which may have incurred during the delivery. Finding nothing amiss, he repaired the small incision with 15 stitches.

Once sewn up, the incision was barely visible.

A pad was placed over the perineum and the patient's legs were removed from the stirrups. She was transferred to a stretcher and as she was taken from the delivery room, her third girl child was brought from its warming basket and placed in her arms.

Mrs. Allen had been in the delivery room not more than 25 minutes.

Both were wheeled down the hall together to the nursery.

There was the proud father to greet them both.

"It's a girl," said the doctor, shaking Allen's hand. "Congratulations."

"You didn't think I was going to have a girl, did you sweetie?" the mother asked her husband standing beside her stretcher. "Do you like her?"

"Oh yeah," he beamed down at them both.

The baby was taken into the nursery. She weighed in at seven pounds and 15 ounces. The father bid them both goodby until the next day, and Mrs. Allen was taken to her room. She said she was too excited to sleep.

I, too, was too excited to sleep that night. I am to relive the experience shortly, for the first addition to our family is expected on Jan. 9, our doctor says.

And if I am asked at first sight if I like my newborn, I shall as eloquently reply, "Oh yeah."

Lions Sign Two Leading Draft Choices

Scholtz of Irish, LSU's Rabb Ink 1960 Contracts

Detroit Front Office Also Expects to Land John Robinson

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Lions, seeking to bolster a porous line and pep up their passing attack, today announced the signing of two top draft choices—quarterback Warren Rabb of Louisiana State and center Bob Scholtz of Notre Dame.

Anderson announced earlier that Rabb's running mate in the LSU backfield, halfback Johnny Robinson, was under contract to Detroit. But Robinson is reported ready to play for Houston in the new American Football League.

"We confidently expect that Robinson will be with the Lions in 1960," Anderson said, "as we feel sure that he signed with the Lions prior to accepting terms with the other team."

The Detroit front office chief also reiterated that "the Lions are prepared to make a court case of the Robinson contract if it becomes necessary."

Rabb, a 6-foot-1, 195-pounder, has been a team leader on the LSU club that won the national championship in 1958 and lost only one game during the regular 1959 season.

Although LSU was primarily a running team, Rabb passed for 12 touchdowns the past two seasons, completing 78 of 155 tosses for 1,013 yards.

Scholtz, a 6-foot-4, 230-pounder from Tulsa, Okla., "is regarded as perhaps the top offensive center prospect to come into the pro ranks this year because of his tremendous blocking ability and quickness," Anderson said.

With Tobin Rote all but rounted out of the Detroit lineup next season because of contract troubles, Rabb will battle Jerry Reichow for the No. 2 quarterback spot behind Earl Morrall.

A nationwide television audience saw Rabb and company take a 21-0 pasting from Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl game. There is no sign whether Rabb can make it as a pro quarterback. He was rushed off his feet all afternoon by Mississippi charges.

However, as far as the pros are concerned, the Lions' offensive line was little better all last season. Rote and Morrall spent most of their time climbing out from beneath a pile of opposing linemen as Detroit posted a 3-8-1 season record.

To solve the line troubles, Anderson and coach George Wilson seek heavy on beefy forwards in the recent draft, especially from tackle to tackle.

Their two top center draftees were Scholtz and Jim Andreotti of Northwestern. But with Andreotti signed to play Canadian football next season, Scholtz is even more important in beefing up the center of the Detroit line.

Scholtz, an outstanding linebacker for the Irish, will concentrate on offense with the Lions. Wilson said preliminary plans call for him to play center so that Charlie Ane can be sent back to tackle.

However, it's still not certain whether Ane will return for another season. Before leaving for his native Hawaii, the big veteran admitted he had retirement under consideration, but hadn't made up his mind.

De-Sta-Co Skaters Win

Jim Berg and Dick Plourde each scored two goals last night as Detroit Stamping Co. walloped the Detroit Hirons, 6-1, in a Detroit Senior Hockey League game at Harry Heilman Field. Jon Shaw and Don Airde made one goal apiece to complete the scoring for De-Sta-Co, which now has a 4-2 league record.

All-Star Pin Points

THUMB SHOULD FEEL LOOSE
By JOE WILMAN

Many bowlers ask about my grip. "How deep should I bury my thumb in the thumb hole?"—that's a common question at my clinics.

I believe the thumb should always feel loose and comfortable in the thumb hole. Never put it in so deep that it feels tight, cramped, or uncomfortable in any way.

Also, never put it in so far you can't get it out easily. The thumb comes out first in delivering the ball, and it should come out easily.

Make sure your thumb hole is large enough. Too small a hole can also cause your thumb to stick when it should come out.

If your thumb sticks from burying it in the thumb hole, don't go down six feet. Vary the depth a bit each time and see how it affects your delivery.

Main thing is to be sure the thumb doesn't stick as you release the ball. As you continue to bowl, your thumb may swell up, forcing you to keep the thumb out more to avoid sticking.

Contract Options a Sore Spot for NFL Clubs

Rote's Case Poses Problem

DETROIT (AP)—The squabble between quarterback Tobin Rote and the Detroit Football Co. points up a situation that could snowball into a major shootout between the National Football League and its infant rival, the American Football League.

Rote failed to come to terms with the Lions last year, and played out the one-year option on his 1958 contract. Now he's free to bargain for himself.

It Rote could play out his option, what's to keep other players from doing the same thing?

"Nothing," replied Edwin J. Anderson, president-general manager of the Lions, "except that we will urge strongly that our players sign contracts."

The possibility exists that players might be intrigued by the new league and prefer to leave the door open for switching to the AFL. By using up an option, a player could receive the same salary he got the season before, and make himself a free agent.

Anderson admitted that some of the salary figures being tossed around by owners in the new league "must seem mighty attractive."

"But our players are going to have to decide this thing for themselves," he added. "They must weigh all the factors. Our players are well taken care of. They go first class all the way.

"They get all the things that go with an established organization — medical insurance, hospitalization, pension, insurance, and good salaries — and I don't believe this new league can offer those things overnight. There's a great expense involved in setting up an organization, more than most people realize, and frankly I don't believe some of these people are in a position to lose a lot of money with their new league."

Anderson recalled that when the current owners took control of the Lions, it took them four years to show a profit and five years to win a title.

"And we had players, organization, a 55,000-seat stadium — something on which to build," he stressed. "The other league has none of these things. Unless their owners are prepared for the three to five-year building program, then I believe they are in for a great shock."

The American Football League is giving the NFL quite a battle for some of the top rookies, and a hot dispute over various contract signings may get a thorough court test.

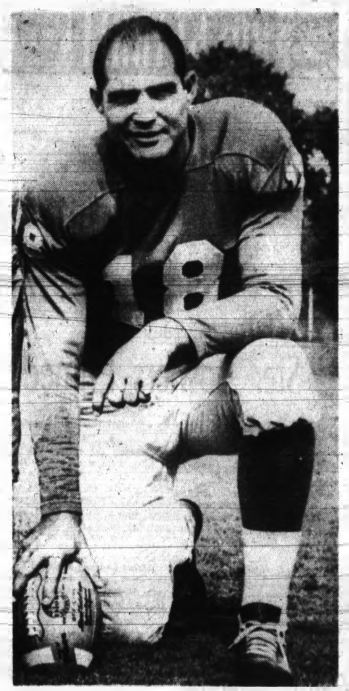

Anderson figures there will be quite a battle for some of the veteran players, too.

"No doubt the new league will approach our players about playing out their options so they can jump to the AFL," Anderson predicted. "And I assume we'll lose some of our veterans. This thing could be a field day for the veterans who are over the hill. They might be real stars in the new league for a couple of seasons."

"They've hired coaches and committed themselves in some cases for three to five years," he added. "But I think some of the people involved fail to realize what a tremendous struggle they have before them. Whether they like it or not, the difference in the quality of football between their league and ours is going to be about the same as the difference between high school and college ball."

DON'T WANT ME — Tobin Rote is looking for a new quarterbacking job after he quit the Detroit Lions in a contract dispute. He was in Toronto talking to the Argonauts of the Canadian League and he was quoted as saying "They don't want me in Detroit, and I got blamed for the bad season last year."

Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain and Oscar (Big O) Robertson mean little to Roger Rowell, who plays his basketball in the little Upper Peninsula village of Channing. Rowell blistered the bucket for 67 points last night in setting what's believed to be a Michigan high school record as Channing, a Class E school, drubbed Michigamme, 105-55.

Wings, Toronto Battle Tonight

Second Place on Line in NHL Tiff at Maple Leaf Gardens

TORONTO (AP)—The Detroit Red Wings have more than a higher cash reward at stake in their battle for second place in the National Hockey League.

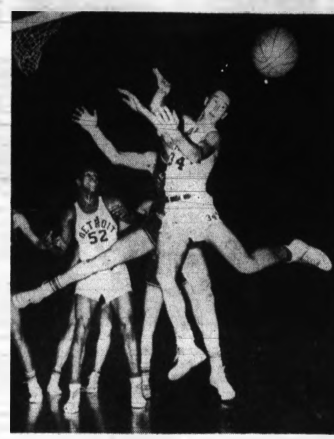

Having snapped their recent winless streak, the Wings now are in solid shape in their quest for a Stanley Cup playoff slot. They have a 12-point bulge on the fifth-place Chicago Black Hawks.

Barring another tailspin such as last year's, the Wings should make it safely to the playoff scramble in March.

Second place is the prize in tonight's game here with the Toronto Maple Leafs. Detroit and Toronto are tied for second with 42 points, 11 points behind Montreal.

The Wings' have several reasons for making second their major objective over the remainder of the season. First of all, more money goes to the second place finisher.

But just as important, the runnerup won't have to meet the Canadiens, who have first place just about wrapped up, in the opening playoff round. That difficult task goes to the team finishing third.

COUNTY CAGER IN ACTION — Larry Hughes of Walled Lake, a guard on the U. of D. highly ranked basketball team, looks like a windmill as he tries for a rebound in the game against Creighton, Monday. Hughes, a Press All-County ace in 1956, helped the U. of D. cause with 19 points and he is currently carrying a 10.7 average on the team.

Home Folks See Dick McGuire's Pistons Lose

NEW YORK (AP)— Dick McGuire appeared before the home folks last night in his new role as coach of the Detroit Pistons. It was an unsuccessful debut.

McGuire, who became coach last week, had played his college basketball at St. John's University, Brooklyn.

But the former popular favorite of New Yorkers could do nothing to keep the Pistons from dropping a 121-110 decision to the Knickerbockers in the second half of a National Basketball Assn. doubleheader.

The Detroit - New York game was an affair between rival playercoaches. However, coach Carl Braun of the Knicks led his bustling squad to victory in a five-minute surge in the third quarter and another scoring spree in the final period.

Gene Shue dumped in 23 points and Big Walt Dukes added another 20 to keep the Pistons in the game until the New York team broke it open with their late surges.

Appeal in Offing to Get Canoe Trials For State

NILES (UPI) — An appeal will be made for holding the qualifying round of the 1960 U.S. Olympic canoeing regatta in Michigan this summer.

Raymond A. Dodge of Niles, chairman of this year's Olympic canoeing fund, said today he will be in Washington, D. C., Saturday to work on behalf of bringing the event to the state.

The site Dodge has in mind is on the St. Joseph River north of Buchanan along the Red Bud trail in Berrien County.

"I am going into this with confidence," said Dodge, "there are a lot of factors in Michigan's favor."

Dodge said, however, that "politics" will also figure in the site selection.

Six locations are under consideration to host the competition in which this country's canoeing team for the Rome Olympics will be selected. Two of the most favorable sites besides the St. Joseph River are the Potomac river near Washington, D. C., and the Hudson River in New York.

Dodge said that by holding the qualifying round in Michigan, midwesterners would have an excellent chance of getting to know the sport, which up to now has most of its popularity in the East.

Dodge's plans call for the event to take place late in July, lasting six days. Three days would be spent in qualifying free agents and three days in qualifying team entries.

A U.S. Olympic team of 11 men and one woman is expected to be picked during the six days to compete in Rome early in September.

PNH Tankers Lose; Visit Fitzgerald

Pontiac Northern swimmers, with a 2-4 record, lost last night to Warren High School 49-47 and will meet Fitzgerald tonight in a North Suburban League meet at Fitzgerald.

PNH led going into the final event last night, but Warren took the freestyle relay with a pool record to take the meet.

Fitzgerald, a strong choice to win the league title, has a 3-0 dual mark and has 12 lettermen with strength in the breaststroke and sprints.

Also tonight, Southfield goes to Utica, and tomorrow Madison Heights is host to Thurston. On Friday, Pontiac Central goes to Bay City, Birmingham is at Kimball and Dondero hosts Wyandotte.

Contracts of 2 Claimed Valid by Grid Loop

Continental and AFL Circuits Both to Ask Congressional Help

From Our Wire Services

New rival professional leagues in baseball and football are both making congressional matters of their problems in competing with existing major leagues and the National Football League.

Commissioner Joe Foss of the American Football League last night defended two controversial contracts AFL teams have signed with LSU players and said he would take the troubles to a congressional committee.

The New Continental baseball League is also counting on a congressional push to its drive toward status as a third Major baseball league.

Continental president Branch Rickey plans to negotiate with baseball commissioner Ford Frick in getting recognition and cooperation.

After talking to Frick and other major league leaders, Rickey may return to Washington and tell Congress "what need there is, if any, for legislation on our behalf."

Congress may listen. A senator and subcommittee spokesman showed support for the Continental League yesterday when Rickey and William Shea, founder of the League, made a quick trip to Washington.

Senator Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY), said a third league "is the answer to expansion of this great sport." He volunteered to act as mediator in any disputes that might arise among the leagues over players and franchises.

In the football squabble, which has come out into the open, Foss called pros and colleges the contracts Billy Cannon and Johnny Robinson signed with Houston and Dallas of the AFL.

Foss said the two LSU stars "signed immediately upon completion of their college eligibility and I must conclude that those contracts are both prior and valid."

He thought the senate's anti-monopoly committee, headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) should know of the stumbling blocks encountered by the AFL. "Before too many days pass, I'm going to Washington to visit that committee," Foss said.

"An earlier signing as claimed by NFL teams would have jeopardized their collegiate eligibility to play in the Sugar Bowl and would have violated NCAA rules," said Foss. The Lions claim they have Robinson signed to a contract and the Rames claim the same player. Contra.

Lee and Britt Gain Starting Berths

QB Jobs Appear Settled for Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—Cincinnati's Jack Lee for the North and Georgia's Charley Britt for the South appeared Tuesday to have won the starting quarterback posts for Saturday's Senior Bowl game.

The two showed sharply in lengthy dummy scrimmages as the opposing coaches started putting together their line-ups.

Ewbank worked All - American Jim Mooty, who starred on offense in Arkansas' Gator Bowl victory over Georgia Tech, almost entirely as a defensive back in the morning and afternoon drills.

Backfield mates with Mooty on defense were Warren Rabb of Louisiana State, Cowboy Woodruff of Mississippi and Lamar Rawson of Auburn.

Ewbank's forward wall on defense included Mel Branch, LSU, and Hugh McInnis, Mississippi Southern, ends; Lebron Shields, Tennessee, and Harold Olson, Clemson, tackles; and Zeke Smith, Auburn; Ken Kirk, Mississippi, and Max Fugler, LSU, as linebackers.

Gail Cogdill, Washington State, and Don Norton, Iowa, ends; Bob Yates, Syracuse, and Andy Stynchula, Penn State, tackles; Bill Craig, Villanova, and Jerry Shetler, Minnesota, guards; Bill Lapham, Iowa, center; Lee Grosscup, quarterback; Ed Kovac, Cincinnati, left half; Gerhard Schwedes, Syracuse, right half, and Bob Jarus, Purdue, fullback.

The linebackers were Jimmy Joyce, Maryland; Rod Breedlove, Maryland; and Don Hitt, Oklahoma State; and the defensive backs were Bob Bercich, Michigan State; Mark Johnston, Northwestern; Don Ellersick, Washington State, and Tony Banfield, Oklahoma State.

Discipline, Free Substitution on NCAA Agenda

Shamrocks Win, Rams Bow

The fortunes of basketball warfare last night felt in opposite directions, for the two Pontiac parochial school fives, as play was resumed in the Suburban Catholic League.

Playing on their home floors, St. Michael defeated a strong Ferndale St. James club 52-38, while St. Frederick bowed to a surprisingly effective St. Rita outfit, 61-43. Victory was the 3rd against one defeat for Shamrocks. Rams' defeat was their 3rd in four starts.

In the only other SCL contest of the night, a fast-improving St. Clement club squared its season's record at 3-3 with a resounding 42-38 win over Royal Oak St. Mary.

Shamrocks and the Dales battled on even terms during the first quarter, at Madison Junior High court, with the lead changing hands several times. Jim Niebauer's battlers held a two-point edge at halftime 24-22, but saw it slip away in the 3rd period, when Dales moved in front 34-33, as the session closed.

But the North Siders were not to be denied. Right off the bat, Shamrocks went to work on a string of 12 points in the first one and a half minutes of the finale. That settled the issue, with Mikemen winding up their winning splurge with 19 points against only four for the visitors.

There was a lot of desire, a lot of drive on the Shamrocks' side, with Tom Dabbs, Don Mountain and Dick Williams figuring strongly in that last-period outburst. Dabbs, with 20, was tops for the night. George Drake had 11, and Neil Kiernan's 18 was the Dales' only double - figure effort.

Coach Gene Wright said today that lack of desire probably hurt the Rams most in their loss to the Vikings. Rams were offforms on floor shots, particularly missing many easy close-in and layups, losing too many rebounds. However, 10 players figured in the St. Frederick scoring, led by little Mike Reed's 18 points.

Vikings, on the other hand, had four players hitting in double figures, paced by John Bucec with 14.

After Reed opened the scoring with a looper, Rams never again were ahead, trailed at one time by 20 points, when the half-time count was 36-16. Rams outscored their visitors in the finale, 17-12, but were too far back to catch up.

Reed, Craig Thomson, Rudy Yapo and Dave Lufkin showed hustle, and probably will get starters' spots Saturday, against St. Michael.

One or More Schools Face a Slap Today

Platoon Football Issue to Be Studied by Rules Body Next Week

NEW YORK (AP)—The nation's college football coaches, required to both play and recruit by the rules, were looking ahead—

To later today, when the powerful policy-making council of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. was expected to discipline one or more schools who have broken the rules of the NCAA.

To next week, when fellow coaches who comprise the NCAA football rules committee, meet in Miami Beach, to consider the American Football Coaches Assn.'s recommendation for a return to unlimited substitution.

There were 13 member schools under investigation by the committee on infractions as the 54th annual NCAA convention opened today with round table discussions.

How many of the investigations will result in action by the council was, as usual, top secret. The NCAA never discloses identity of the schools, unless they are found guilty.

The number currently on probation was reduced to nine yesterday when Memphis State completed a two-year probationary period, and the NCAA council, satisfied that the institution is living up to the athletic code, restored it to full eligibility. That means Memphis State, with a 7-1 record, will be eligible for an at-large berth in the annual post-season NCAA university division basketball tournament.

Montana State College appealed for a revision of a two-year probationary term incurred Oct. 27, 1959, but the NCAA council turned down the appeal. It was based on new evidence and a claim of procedural error in the case.

Other schools currently on probation are Mississippi, Gustavus Adolphus, Wyoming, Seattle, North Carolina State, Auburn, Southern California and Arizona State University.

The football coaches, conducting their 37th annual meeting, will hear a report today from Lou Little, ex-Columbia coach and chairman of the AFCA Football Rules committee, in which it is recommended to the NCAA rules committee that free and unlimited substitution be permitted for the first time since 1952.

The college coaches also backed the present point-after-touchdown option and the wider distance between goal posts. Both resulted from controversial rule changes in recent years.

The chances of the NCAA committee adopting the free substitution rule do not appear to be good. Of the eight coaches or former coaches on the committee, four are known to be opponents of free substitution. They are Dave Nelson of Delaware, Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma, Jess Neely of Rice and John Roning of Denver.

Other voting members are Norm Daniels of Wesleyan, Frank Howard of Clemson, Ivy Williamson of Wisconsin and Leo Harris of Oregon.

Gen. Bob Neyland of Tennessee, committee chairman, votes only in case of ties. He is a member of the old guard who believes a football player should be complete offensively and defensively.

The NCAA Rules Committee is under no obligation to follow the recommendation of the AFC committee.

Last year the NCAA committee liberalized substitution by permitting a "wild card" player to be inserted whenever the clock was stopped and not be recorded against the substitute maximum.

Many of the coaches believe the NCAA committee, as a form of compromise, may further liberalize the "wild card" rule by permitting one substitute at a time even when the clock is running.

All-Star Bowlers Primed

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—The nation's outstanding bowlers warm up today for a shot at the title they want most to win.

A preview program, including practice games and opening ceremonies, will be held today on the shining new 24-lane layout in Omaha's Civic Auditorium where the 19th annual All-Star bowling tournament gets going full blast tomorrow.

The national individual match game championship, worth $10,000 to the winning man and $5,000 to the top woman, is considered the prize plum in bowling.

Pontiac's Monroe Moore is participating in the All-Star event. He will start bowling Thursday.

Defending the men's title will be Billy Welu, a 6-4 native Texan now bowling out of St. Louis, Mo., whose body english is as well-known as his strike ball. The young giant, who is balding at 27, edged past Ray Bluth, also of St. Louis, in the 1958 All-Star at Buffalo, N.Y.

Marion Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich., nailed down her seventh All-Star championship last year by beating Merle Matthews of Long Beach, Calif.

They will face last year's runners-up and the largest field in the history of the tournament when the rolling starts at 8 a.m. tomorrow. There are 336 entries — 240 men and 96 women — representing 38 states this year.

Today's ceremonies include welcoming speeches by Nebraska Gov. Ralph G. Brooks, Omaha Mayor John Rosenfalt, Joseph F. Paulus, president of the sponsoring Bowling Proprietors' Association of America, and BPAA executive director Howard C. Seehausen.

Amen Resigns as Grid Coach at Wake Forest

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP)—Billy Hildebrand is expected to be elevated to the head football coaching position at Wake Forest College Friday at a meeting of the Board of Trustees. Paul Amen submitted his resignation as head coach in a surprise move announced yesterday.

The 35-year-old Hildebrand, who captained the 1945 Mississippi State team, was Amen's top assistant and handled the line coaching. He had been on Amen's five-man staff since coming here with the former head coach prior to the 1956 season.

Amen, named Atlantic Coast Conference Coach of the Year twice in his four seasons at the helm of the Deacons, said at a news conference he had accepted a position in the personnel department of a bank in Winston-Salem. He was honored as Coach of the Year after the 1959 season and 1956.

Female Athlete of the Year

Maria Bueno Wins Award

By The Associated Press

Maria Ester Bueno, a Brazilian school marm turned tennis player, Wednesday was voted Female Athlete of the Year for 1959 in the annual Associated Press poll.

Miss Bueno, 19, won both the Wimbledon and U.S. championships. She defeated Darlene Hard, 6-4, 6-3, at Wimbledon for the title and won the U.S. crown at Forest Hills by turning back Britain's Christine Truman, 6-1, 6-4.

She spent most of the year touring the world and figures she appeared in about 35 tournaments and won 19 of them.

Maria received 128 of the 288 first-place votes cast by the nation's sportswriters and sportscasters.

The only other gal to collect over 100 first-place votes was Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., the women's professional golf champion. Miss Rawls drew 102 first-place votes. She won 10 tournaments, and wound up as the year's high money winner at $26,774.39.

Chris Von Saltza, teen-age swimmer from Saratoga, Calif., won an unprecedented five gold medals in the Pan - American Games, and finished third in the balloting with 43 firsts. Lucinda Williams, Tennessee State sprinter, who won both the 100 and 220 meters at the Pan - American Games, was fourth with nine firsts.

Ilsa Konrads, the female half of Australia's famous brother-sister swimming duet, who holds practically all the world records from 800 meters up, was fifth with two votes for first.

Others on the list, each with one first, included golfers Louise Suggs, Mickey Wright and Beverly Hanson, bowlers Sylvia Wene and tennis player Mrs. Beverly Fleitz.

Forddy Says His Revamped MSU 5 Might Surprise

EAST LANSING (UPI) — Coach Forddy Anderson said today he doesn't think the loss of center Art Gowens and guard Art Bechinski will badly hurt defending Big Ten champion Michigan State's basketball team.

Anderson, preparing the Spartans for arch-rival Michigan's invasion of Jenison Fieldhouse Saturday, said he "probably won't know until game time" how he's going to juggle the lineup to compensate for loss of the two starters.

"But I can tell you one thing," he said, "we may have a few surprises. The team and coaches don't agree with the fans who think the team will be badly hurt by our latest losses."

Gowens and Bechinski, in addition to reserve forward Bill Pauline, are scholastically ineligible as a result of classroom failures in the fall term.

Jones, Jensen Pace Welden 'D' Triumph

Dave Jones netted 26 points and teammate Dan Jensen added 17 to lead Welden's to a 59-46 victory over the Jefferson Jets in a Class D City League basketball game last night at Lincoln Junior High.

Bob Graves tallied 15 points and Ed Martin had 11 for the Jets. Welden's trailed at halftime, 27-22, but ran away from the opposition after intermission.

The Pledges landed three players in double figures, headed by John Hurd's 15 points, as they defeated the Elks, 48-43, in the other Class D game. Allen Manley made 16 points in a losing cause to take individual scoring honors.

Drug, L&C Quints Win Waterford Tilts

Drayton Drug nosed out Airport Speedway, 46-45, and Lytell & Colegrove handed Johnson & Anderson a 70-42 licking in Waterford League basketball games last night at Isaac Crary Junior High.

Kevin Clauser scored 20 points in Speedway's losing cause while Maurice Larsen had 11 for the Druggists. Mike Carry led L&C with 24 points and Fred Millron made 15 for J&A.

3 More Years for Andy

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Coach Andy Gustafson and assistant Walter Kucheiski of the University of Miami Tuesday were hired for three more years, President Jay F. W. Pearson announced.

Press Trophy 'Target' for PKC Show, Jan. 24

By The Press Outdoor Editor

Pontiac area "dog people" are looking ahead to the section's most important show and obedience trial for the winter season. Pontiac Kennel Club today announced its midwinter, unbenched all-breed show and obedience competition for Jan. 24. The show takes place in the main garage area at Pontiac Retail Store, 63 Mt. Clemens street, its location for the last three years. The fine Pontiac Press best-in-show award is the big "target."

This is a sanctioned AKC affair, and annually attracts top-notch entries from all over the country, with an entry list of many breeds and varieties, totaling more than 600, last winter. It is expected this year's list will equal, if not surpass that for 1959. Entries close Jan. 12 at the office of A. Wilson Bow, show superintendent, 9999 Broad St., Detroit.

JUNIOR SHOWMANSHIP COMPETITION

Besides the main competition, from which PKC members will withhold their dogs, will be the usually highly interesting junior showmanship contest and the obedience training event. Entries for obedience will be limited to 55, with awards for highest scoring dog and first in each class.

Show chairman is the veteran Ed A. Kraft, and co-chairman, PKC prexy Volney R. Cotton, Allan Seeler and chairman, PKC prexy Volney R. Cotton, Allan Seeler and Mrs. Kraft complete the committee.

SECRET WEAPON STILL WINNING

Six years old, and a veteran field trial campaigner, Farmer's Secret Weapon is still going strong around the big nationally-accredited circuits for bird dogs. The Weapon, who has accumulated some 18 wins, including the recent South Carolina open all-age trials at Barnwell, S.C. and international in Canada last August, is owned, raised and developed by the J. S. Farmer Kennels here.

Secret Weapon won the $1,500 featured event in the Barnwell trials competing against more than 50 other nationally-rated dogs from 12 states. He is a white and orange pointer, and was handled by Phil Brousseau of Kline S.C. Weapon's next outing will be at Waynesboro, Ga., in the southern championships.

REWARDING ICE-FISHING JAUNT

One of the biggest, if not THE heftiest rainbow taken from Oakland county waters was the 6-pound, 14-ounce specimen taken by a five-year old ice-angler. As far as this column recollects there has never been a bigger trout caught in this area, and Keith Beaupre's prize, (his dad, Bill, and brother Dave helped land it) is without argument the largest taken by ice-fishing, here. This type of angling was made legal for the first time on Jan. 1, and fishermen will enjoy it (by hook and line) this month and through February (2 months).

"The big 'bow gave us 25 minutes of battling at the end of a 2-pound test line," Beaupre reported. "We had him up at least 15 times, but he would dive headlong, and it was a tough job to work him back again. He finally tired and we got him out.

Impatient ice-fishermen were advised again today to be careful of venturing out on ice that is not yet fully safe. It takes four to six inches of hard ice before being really safe for persons to walk on it — but don't try driving a car on it at that thickness!

FAMILY AFFAIR — Bill Beaupre (2335 Indianwood road, Lake Orion) and his sons, Keith, five (left), David, nine (right), are avid fishermen, and all had a hand in landing the fat rainbow dad Bill displays. Keith hooked the 6-pound, 14-ounce lunker on a short rod, using a 2-pound test nylon line and a minnow. The trout, taken on Oxbow Lake, will be mounted.

Shooters Name Officers

The two rifle and pistol groups from Oakland County Sportsmen's club have named their 1960 officers, and are now making plans for a active and interesting season of competition.

Kjell Danielson (OCSC Rifle & Pistol Club) and George Forstrom (D. R. Wilson Rifle & Pistol Club), head the two groups as presidents. Cash Bond is OCSC's rifle committee chairman and also will handle publicity.

Both groups are presently affiliated with the National Rifle Assn., the Michigan Rifle & Pistol Assn., and the Southeastern Rifle & Pistol Assn. They are also contemplating affiliation with the active Saginaw Valley Rifle & Pistol Assn., and have in mind the creation of a .38 caliber league.

Preparations are now under way, Bond says, for a .30 caliber mid-winter match. The event will take place outdoors. Shooters will fire 10 shots standing, 10 shots rapid-fire sitting, at 200 yards.

D. R. Wilson club—Charles Wyman, vice president; Fred Mayer, secretary-treasurer; Bob Wagoner, instructor.

High, Hard Throw Just Stunned Quail

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) — Curtis Fray, former University of Richmond baseball star, had bagged six quail and was hoping his companion would catch up. Just then he saw a quail settle on a tree limb and knocked it cold with a mock orange. The bird recovered and took off just before Dr. Leon Slavin could pick it up.

Winter Classes for Obedience Ready to Start

Demonstration dates have been set and applications for enrollments are now being received for three area obedience training classes for dogs.

The demonstrations and classes will be conducted by Southern Michigan Obedience Training Club, which has for many years been responsible for the institution of training groups, with the purpose of making better canine citizens, better behaved and more companionable pets.

Information may be secured by calling FE 2-7749 (Whitfield class), MI 7-0155 (Bloomfield Hills) and FE 4-6093 (Waterford).

State Also Issues Warnings

Tips for Ice-Fishermen

Fishermen might do well to heed a few tips and warnings offered by the Conservation Department before making their outings on the ice this winter.

All shanties must be identified on the outside by the owner's name and address. Letters must be of insoluble material and not less than two inches high.

Last winter's deep snow and freezing rains left many shanties firmly anchored in the ice. To avoid the problem this year, it is suggested that fishermen elevate their shanties with blocks of some type. Items used to do this must also be removed when the season ends.

Persons driving their cars on the ice are urged to use extreme caution since they may endanger other fishermen as well as themselves and their riders. Ice should not be taken at "face value," especially when it is to be subjected to the load of an automobile.

Fishermen are advised to be wary of thin ice near shorelines. Discolored ice is one reliable sign of weak areas. Tree branches or other suitable markers should be placed at large, freshly-frozen holes and other danger spots.

Fishermen are warned not to dump debris on the ice. Persons caught dumping litter on lakes face a $100 fine and/or 30 days in jail.

RARE ALBINO — Wildlife experts estimate that in only one instance in 10,000 an albino raccoon shows up. A rare albino ringtail (above) was taken near Bedford, Ind., a few days ago, by Kenneth Kern, 22. Kern downed the 15-pound, off-white specimen with a revolver shot. It had the characteristic pink eyes of the true albino. "Red" Kern's hound treed the coon.

Hunting dogs sometimes come up with the darndest things, besides running or finding game.

W. C. (Bill) Cardinell, who owns and runs a string of snappy little beagles, reports a find by one of his hounds during a practice run a few days ago.

"I heard the dog yipping, and when it just stayed put and kept yipping, I went over to see what it had—thought maybe it had some game cornered."

Cardinell was surprised to find a find a shiny quarter, was dumbfounded when the dog dug up another quarter, a dime and a nickel. "Maybe I ought to train that beagle as a money hound," he commented. The human scent, Cardinell explained, probably attracted his dog to the coins.

Town Brags About Its Shootin' Gals

KEARNY, N.J. (AP)—The old West may brag of Annie Oakley, but Kearny residents can tell you about 30 such young ladies.

The rifle-toting lassies, ranging in age from 12 to 18, form the girls team of the Police Athletic League rifle squad. Sixty boys are also members of the club.

Since the gals joined in the shooting they have won two trophies for marksmanship, one for highest aggregate score and one for sub-junior small bore eastern states championship.

Bird Count Totals 1,558

Along with all other Audubon clubs in the United States, the Pontiac Audubons made their annual Christmas-period bird count, checking in with 1,558 identifications, from 25 species. Eleven members spent eight hours in the field, despite fog and rain.

Each club works a specified area. That for the Pontiac group was a seven-mile radius circle around Lake Orion. This was the 2nd annual Pontiac club count and its figures will be sent to U.S. Department of Interior to aid in bird migration information.

English sparrows (876), starlings (178), 74 tree sparrows, 73 mourning doves, 61 bluejays, 54 chickadees, 42 juncoes, 40 goldfinches and 30 cedar waxwing; comprised the bulk of the count, that also included one redbreasted nuthatch, a lone redwing blackbird and a single marsh hawk and cowbird. Mallard ducks, redtail, red-shoulder and sparrow hawks, hairy and downy woodpeckers, titmice, white-breasted nuthatches were also identified.

The club, which meets 2nd Wednesday of each month at Hawthorne school, convened at Mrs. John Plassey's home in Orion before making the field trip.

Both Predator, Game Animal

Way Sought to Clear Up Status of Bobcat

ALL OUTDOORS, Mich. (UPI)—Michigan's split personality "little lion" is, without a doubt, the most elusive gray ghost of the outdoors.

He's "split personality" because in the Upper Peninsula he's considered a predator and is hounded, and in the lower peninsula he's called a game animal and "protected" by a Dec. 15-March 15 hunting season. In the lower, he's a respected beast while in the U. P. he's a villain!

Michigan's littliest lion is, of course, the bobcat. This is one animal in the woods you rarely ever see.

Next weekend, the Michigan Bowhunters Assn. plans a two-day bobcat hunt near Onaway in Presque Isle county. Last year a similar hunt near Cedarville found the bowhunters setting a "record."

While not a single cat fell before the mighty archers, there was a record number of hunters on snowshoes in one place at one time.

The bobcat isn't really a lion, but is a cousin to the larger Canadian lynx, a few of which still prowl the Upper Peninsula. Lynx reside in "tall timber" country while the smaller bobcat is a creature of the swamps.

Officials of the Michigan Bear Hunters Association have been battling to remove the bounty from the bobcat in the U. P. to preserve this mighty tough little beast as a game animal.

How many cats are there in the state? Nobody really knows. The conservation department said one of the biggest bounty years in the U. P. saw 840 bobcats killed. This was done in an area of 16,000 square miles, a lot of territory around each of the little cats.

Danish Singer Plans to Marry Indiana Man

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Danish singer Birthe Wilke plans to marry a young American soon, but he isn't the man she met in Florida and came here to visit.

The 23-year-old brunette and Donald F. Tagmeyer Jr., 21, who lives in neighboring Mishawaka, applied for a marriage license here Monday. Miss Wilke has been living at the home of Tagmeyer's parents since early December.

She met Tagmeyer after coming here last Sept. 23 to visit in the home of John Spagnolo, 21, a fruit store clerk whom she had met on a vacation in Florida.

Singing Students Set for Mexico

12 From Waterford Will Attend Summer College Program

Twelve Waterford Township High School students from the choral music department have been invited to attend the Technological Institute of Monterrey, Mexico next summer, according to choral director Richard J. Meier.

This the first time that a group from the northern part of United States has been invited to participate in the summer college program, which is sponsored by a group of Mexican industrialists.

Side trips to Horsetail Falls, Garcia Caves, and the Huesteca Canyon along with fiestas in Mexican homes, and promenades in the main square are included in the program.

The students will be given a 25-hour course in Spanish and five hours of vocal ensemble. All students will take at least 10 class hours a week with a maximum of 40 hours.

The group of students, as yet not named, will present several programs for the churches and civic groups in Monterrey as the Waterford Township High School Mixed Ensemble, State of Michigan, U.S.A. They will leave Pontiac by train July 14 with two faculty sponsors and return Aug. 28.

TOP ATTRACTION—The Pontiac Chapter of the Society for Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc., will be hearing a great deal from this foursome. They are the Easternaires, of Jersey City, N.J., medalists in the 1959 SPEBSQSA international championship contest. The quartet will headline the local chapter's annual Holiday of Harmony show Jan. 23 at the Pontiac Northern High School auditorium. Singing groups from throughout Michigan and the Midwest will appear as well as the Yankee Misses of Royal Oak, international champs in the Sweet Adeline competition for girls. Tickets may be purchased from any local chapter member.

Symington Sits By; May Be in Primary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) said Tuesday he is not formally seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, but will not object if his name is entered in the Oregon preferential primary May 20.

"I'm not an avowed candidate and I'm not entering any primaries," Symington told a news conference. "I think my name probably will go on the ballot in Oregon, but I have no plans to campaign."

Enterprising Plans Scrapped at Junk Yard

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—The Per Fit Co., a scrap firm, is in the process of moving to a new location. Two men in custody today at police headquarters apparently didn't know that.

Police said Lafayette Pruitt, 18, and Duane D. Maxwell, 21, stole about five tons of junk from the old Per Fit warehouse and tried to sell it to the firm at its new office.

Detective Wilbur Beemer and Patrolman Dennis Booker said the plan fell flat when a company employe recognized items offered for sale from a truck driven by Pruitt. Maxwell was picked up at his home. The officers said the men admitted taking some 23 barrels of junk valued at about $300.

The first public bath and washhouse was opened on Jan. 1, 1852, by the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

Education in 60s to Be Demanding; Horse Days Gone

(Editor's Note: This is the third of 10 articles on the State of Michigan and the Fabulous '60s. The President of the University of Michigan takes a look at college education needs.)

By DR. HARLAN HATCHER
President, University of Michigan

ANN ARBOR (AP) — The decade ahead is not one which is likely to give much encouragement to the static, the complacent, or the commonplace in education any more than it is in other fields of human endeavor.

In simple fact, change is apt to be the most important single feature in the development of higher education in the 1960s.

For one thing, the sheer pressure of numbers to be educated will keep Michigan's colleges and universities in a "boom market" throughout the period.

There is no gainsaying the fact that nearly twice as many students will be demanding a college education by 1970 as we have enrolled in all our institutions today.

These students already are with us, in our elementary and secondary schools. Are we then to deny them an opportunity for higher education?

Clearly, the requirements for an educated citizenry and for trained personnel in a rapidly expanding society, as well as the personal development of these young people, demand that they be educated to the fullest extent of their capacities.

In concrete terms this means facilities for higher education in the state must roughly be doubled in the next 10 years. It also means that we shall face an unprecedented demand, one which looms as a national emergency, for additional qualified teachers for our colleges and universities.

But there is still another aspect of higher education in the '60s which calls for serious thought and dynamic leadership.

It concerns the rapidly expanding frontiers of knowledge in just about every field of human endeavor. In truth, this might be called an explosion of knowledge, so abruptly has it been thrust upon our institutions of higher education.

There was a time not long ago when a bachelor's degree was considered adequate for most fields of study.

The trend today is clear and the future will see it accelerated: Advanced study beyond the bachelor's degree is becoming more and more necessary as the volume of knowledge to be imparted keeps growing at an accelerated pace.

Who would have dreamed 10 years ago, for example, that the University of Michigan would now be offering complete new programs in nuclear engineering and astronautics?

These fields, and many others, constantly are demanding increased specialization and study most of it as the graduate level.

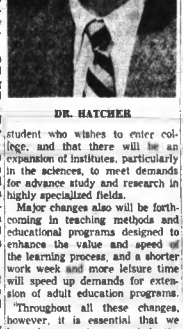

GRADUATE LEVEL TREND

To a university such as Michigan, this trend has profound significance. Already heavily devoted to graduate work—40 per cent of the student body is in graduate or graduate-professional study—the university faces pressures all its own whatever the decision on how to provide opportunities for the state's growing undergraduate population.

The decade ahead also will bring about other demands and other needs which may make the past 10 years seem like a period of ease and little progress.

Space does not permit more than a mention of some of the major changes which almost certainly lie ahead.

It seems clear, however, that our universities and colleges are approaching a four-semester year with a 12-month academic calendar, that higher and higher admissions standards will require greater concentration and effort from the student who wishes to enter college, and that there will be an expansion of institutes, particularly in the sciences, to meet demands for advance study and research in highly specialized fields.

Major changes also will be forthcoming in teaching methods and educational programs designed to enhance the value and speed of the learning process, and a shorter work week and more leisure time will speed up demands for extension of adult education programs.

"Throughout all these changes, however, it is essential that we keep foremost in our minds the concept of quality.

We cannot achieve our educational goals, and we cannot remain in the forefront of world leadership, unless we resolve first of all that we shall not give up the excellence we have obtained, that we shall not succumb to the temptation merely to divide up what we have into smaller parts.

Some 20 million families will be formed in the United States in the next decade. Right now they have none of the goods or services of our American economy: No houses, no cars, no refrigerators, no television sets, and no professional and other services. What is even more important, their 75 million new children have no hospitals and doctors, no baby foods and vitamins, no books and schools.

Are we then merely to parcel out what we have to meet these needs? Of course not. The siren song of normalcy is one which pleads for no change, no vision and no future. In reality it pleads for defeat.

MUST BE CREATIVE

Our responses in higher education, as in all fields of national endeavor, must be to create new abundance, in the tradition of America, and with these new resources to advance inland from our present narrow beachheads.

If we can meet this challenge, we may someday look back on the 1950s as "those horse-and-buggy days."

Barnes insisted, "I know a big black hairy bear when I see one, and I saw one. There were lots of people. We all saw it. I just want to find some of them so I can prove it. I don't know why my wife won't believe me."

British Solons Comparative Paupers

Congress Richly Endowed

A salary of $22,500 a year, comfortable air conditioned offices, government-paid help, free postage stamps and telephone calls and the promise of a pension are provided the American legislator.

Each of the 537 congressmen has his own offices and personal staff, housed in four big office buildings.

Senators have a new $6,000,000 miniature railroad to carry them between the Capitol itself and their office buildings.

Until recently, some senators were limited to three-room office suites. Completion of a second Senate office building at a cost of $25,000,000 expanded this.

Similarly, conditions will improve for House members within a few years when a third office building is finished as part of a $100,000,000 construction program now under way on Capitol Hill.

Each senator may hire as many clerks as he can fit into an allowance that ranges up to about $140,000 a year for a senator from a large state. The top assistant to a senator may be paid as much as $18,416 a year.

For House members, office payroll allotments run about $35,000 a year, with a $13,345 annual limit on the salary of a top assistant. A House member may have eight clerks—nine, if his district is particularly big.

Each congressman is entitled to spend up to $1,200 a year to rent space back in his home district, plus $600 for his expenses of running that office.

Each is entitled to free mailing privileges for business letters. In addition, a congressman may draw up to $400 worth of airmail and special delivery stamps annually.

There are free telegraph and telephone privileges. A senator's allowance runs from $3,000 to $10,000 a year. House members have a comparable allowance based on a complicated formula.

There are stationery allowances, too. For a House member this is fixed at $1,000 a year.

Further, there are taxpayer-subsidized radio and television studios for recording broadcasts to the voters back home. Gym facilities, including a small swimming pool for senators. Free haircuts for senators. An allowance of 20 cents a mile to cover travel to and from each session of Congress.

And when a lawmaker leaves Congress, voluntarily or not, he may be entitled to a sizeable pension. Members can belong to a contributory pension system providing a maximum of $18,000 a year on retirement.

Ingrid's Daughter, 21, Gets $12,000 in Cash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ingrid Bergman's daughter, Jenny Ann Lindstrom, has been given $12,000 which was being held in trust for her.

A judge approved a final accounting of a guardianship set up in 1947 to handle monetary gifts to Miss Lindstrom from her parents.

Miss Bergman, 44, and Dr. Peter Lindstrom, 53, were divorced in 1950. Their daughter became 21 last Sept. 20. She is attending Mills College, Oakland, Calif.

Dr. Lindstrom and a bank were guardians of the money.

The father is married to the former Dr. Agnes Rovanek, a pediatrician. Miss Bergman, who has married three times, is the wife of Lars Schmidt, Swedish businessman.

Churchmen Hit Anti-Semitism

Incidents Against Jews Stir Religious Leaders in U.S., Abroad

By The Associated Press

Religious leaders today voiced abhorrence at the global rash of anti-Jewish incidents. They called for firmer commitment to principles of brotherly love among all men.

They described the widespread anti-Semitic acts as an offense to all faiths.

There also were appeals for social measures and fuller educational efforts to erase vestiges of prejudice and racism, particularly in Germany.

"I regard the anti-Semitic incidents as a disgrace for the entire German people," said Bishop Otto Dibelius, of Berlin, stalwart battler through the years against both nazism and communism.

He is titular head of Germany's Evangelical Lutheran Church, and his diocese spreads into both East and West zones.

"I can only appeal to Christianity in Germany to do everything in its power to prevent such incidents in the future," he said.

The spate of painted swastikas and Jew-denouncing slogans in public places began in Germany 14 days ago, and has since erupted in Britain, the United States, South Africa, Italy, Australia, Norway and Austria.

Grain Prices Lower in Snail-Pace Trade

CHICAGO (AP) — Activity in the grain futures market was at a very slow pace again today with prices generally slightly lower all around in early transactions.

The feed grains were the steadiest commodities on the board. Scattered buying in those pits was related to reports of heavier livestock feeding.

Trade advices that wheat is moving into commercial channels in somewhat heavier volume caused some selling of the nearby months.

Wheat was ⅛ to ⅝ cent a bushel lower near the end of the first hour. March $2.03⅜; corn ⅛ lower to ¼ higher, March $1.13⅛; oats unchanged to ⅛ lower. March 75¼; rye ¼ to ½ lower. March $1.25⅝; soybeans ⅛ lower to ¼ higher, January $2.11⅝.

Ghana Welcomes Macmillan So Quietly

Premier Kwame Nkrumah and other government leaders turned out to greet Macmillan at the flag-draped airport, but there were only about 2,000 non-official civilians on hand.

The road leading from the airport to the city was deserted, and there was no sign of the swarm of police that customarily turns out to greet a visiting leader.

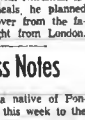

Macmillan said before leaving England last night that his month-long, 20,000-mile tour was intended to demonstrate Britain's interest in African problems and "our desire to share in the work there."

"This prime minister can't be a very big fellow," said a cab driver. "When (Guinea President Sekou) Toure comes, this road has police everywhere."

Macmillan was scheduled to lunch and dine with Nkrumah today. Between meals, he planned to rest and recover from the fatigue of the flight from London.

Business Notes

J. D. Miller, a native of Pontiac was named this week to the post of assistant regional manager, Dodge Division, Chrysler Corporation, for the San Francisco Region. The announcement by J. L. Baughman, regional manager, said that Miller would have responsibilities for Dodge in northern California, Utah, Idaho, and a portion of Nevada.

MILLER

Miller first joined Chrysler in 1957 at the Detroit Training Center as staff specialist. In 1958 he was transferred to the Corporation's facility in Anaheim, Calif. Miller was appointed business management manager for Dodge's San Francisco Region in July of 1959, a position he has held until his present promotion.

He and his wife, Marian, live in Redwood City, California, with their three children, Karen, 13, Kathryn, 4, and James, 2.

Selling Stocks Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Pretty brisk selling sent the stock market to a sizable decline early this afternoon as fears of tight money combined with profit-taking on a five-day advance.

Losses of fractions to a point or so hit a wide range of pivotal issues.

Steels and motors were active lowers as trading exceeded the pace in yesterday's rally, the strongest in three months.

A boost in the rate on brokers' and dealers' loans put a crimp in transactions of the large investors and at the same time raised apprehension that the interest hike would be just a forerunner of further steps toward tighter credit.

The market was mixed at the start. A succession of big blocks was traded as the ticker tape ran as much as three minutes late for a period of 13 minutes. The tape lagged again very briefly in the first hour.

Losses of a point or so were taken by U.S. Steel, Bethlehem and Jones & Laughlin.

Chrysler, down more than a point, paced the decline of big three autos, the others taking fractional losses. American Motors rose about a point. Studebaker-Packard eased.

Most of the leading rails took fractional losses. Illinois Central held its own and Chesapeake & Ohio advanced slightly.

Texaco fell more than a point. Other prominent oils dropped fractionally.

DuPont and Merck fell about 2 each. Losses of about a point were shown by United Aircraft, Radio Corp., American Smelting, General Electric, Texas Instruments and American Tobacco.

Ousted Officers Plan to Appeal

8 Royal Oak Township Goodfellows Were Fired in Alleged Shortages

Ousted Royal Oak Township Fire Chief Sam Mitchell and seven other firemen and policemen fired from their posts after being accused of pocketing Goodfellow funds said today they plan to appeal to the township's Civil Service Board for reinstatement.

A jury yesterday found Mitchell not guilty of the theft charges. He was tried before Huntington Woods Justice of the Peace James Renfrew in Royal Oak Township Justice Court.

The other seven men who intend to appeal are ousted firemen James Anderson and Edward Tennant and former Police Chief William Ware, Police Sgt. James Gatewood, patrolmen Edward Wilson, William Boyd and Annies Ruffin.

They, along with Mitchell and their attorneys, will meet with the Civil Service Board at 7 p.m. today in the Township Hall. A review of their case will be made and a date set for the appeal.

They were charged Dec. 14 by state police detectives who said they had distributed $75 in marked money to the accused, of which only $5 was turned in.

Ware was found guilty at an earlier trial, while Gatewood was acquitted on the same charge. Their cases were heard by Royal Oak Township Justice of the Peace Lonnie Cash.

He declined to hear Mitchell's case, however, stating he was too busy.

Dr. Sullenberger Gains Victory

A technical legal victory was gained yesterday by Dr. Neil H. Sullenberger and other defendants in the $250,000 lawsuit brought against them by the widow of a Union Lake man on whom the Pontiac surgeon operated. The patient died a month later.

Former Circuit Judge Theodore F. Hughes granted the defendants' motion to void the original declaration, which attorneys claimed was too wordy and did not contain a plain and concise statement of the cause of action."

At the same time, the judge allowed the attorney for the plaintiff, Mrs. Marion L. Mero of 1845 Larkspur Rd., to file an amended declaration. The suit still stands.

Mrs. Mero contends in her lawsuit that Sullenberger admitted he "goofed" during an ulcer operation on her late husband Eli in 1957.

She named Pontiac General Hospital, its Board of Trustees, the city, the hospital's medical staff and its executive and credentials committees as codefendants. She said they were negligent in allowing the controversial surgeon to remain on the staff.

Judge Hughes said the present 60-page declaration "does not confine itself to a statement of the cause of action."

"It does contain many statements and exhibits which, if found admissible on a trial of the merit, would be evidence, and if found inadmissible would be prejudicial of the right of the defendants," the judge ruled.

He denied the motion of two other doctors named in the suit to be dropped as defendants.

Honors Await Sam Rayburn on 78th Birthday

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.), seemingly as peppery and vigorous as he was 20 years ago, observes his 78th birthday today.

Congratulatory telegrams and letters were waiting for him at his office, and a stream of colleagues was ready to greet him even before he went to the House chamber to gavel open the new session of Congress.

Business on Capitol Hill was expected to be cleared away in time for him to attend two downtown functions in his honor—a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Dale Miller of Dallas, Tex., and a dinner by the Women's National Press Club.

Rayburn, whose 15-year service as speaker is unequaled, has been a member of the House continuously since March 4, 1913.

No Doubt That He Wins

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Damasco Montenegro, 40, today was named "the fattest man in Peru" in a weeks-long contest conducted by a local television station. His weight: 458 pounds.

It's Leap Year, Dear!

DENVER (UPI) — Confirmed bachelor Joseph A. Griffith told newsmen yesterday that if he ever gets married it probably won't be till he's 100. Griffith was celebrating his 99th birthday.

News in Brief

Roy T. Romo, 28, of 440 Third St., pleaded guilty to reckless driving yesterday before Municipal Judge Creel Nesbitt. He was fined $100 and $10 probation costs, placed on six months probation, and ordered to attend the Oakland County Driver Safety School.

Eugene G. Hill, 49, of 56 Clark St., pleaded guilty Tuesday to a drunk driving charge and was sentenced to pay a $100 fine plus $20 costs or serve 30 days in the Oakland County Jail by Orion Township Justice Helmar G. Stanback.

Jerry C. McFarland, 21, of 245 S. Edith St., paid a fine of $50 plus $25 costs yesterday after pleading guilty to drunk driving before Avon Township Justice Luther C. Green.

Robert H. Colburn, 47, of 707 Carnes, Fenton, Tuesday pleaded guilty to drunk driving before Waterford Township Justice Patrick K. Daly and paid a $100 fine and costs.

THE CORVAIR COUPE—This is the new 2-door Corvair being built by Chevrolet Division of General Motors. Shipments to dealers are now under way. The new addition to the rear engine compact line, the coupe has the same basic dimensions as the 4-door Corvair sedan, but has its own distinct sport styling motif. This is accented by a split front seat and a new roof design which features a large sloping rear window.

Pontiac City Affairs

Stierer Gets New Title

During a regular agenda devoted largely to new appointments to recently vacated posts, Robert A. Stierer was named assistant city manager last night by the City Commission.

Stierer, 39, has been City Manager Walter K. Willman's administrative assistant three years. During that time, he has functioned as Pontiac's unofficial assistant city manager.

The actual title—provided by the city charter—was held by former City Engineer Lewis M. Wrigas, who retired Thursday.

Stierer's new title was recommended by Willman. It does not involve a pay raise.

James M. Carlisle, who has replaced Wrenn, was appointed street administrator in transactions with the State Highway Department.

Resolutions were adopted honoring Wrenn and two other long-time city officials who retired Dec. 31 —former City Assessor W. Ray Ransom and Joseph B. Jewell, former director of public works.

In other business, a hearing was set for next Tuesday on intention to construct a combined sewer on the north side of Walton Blvd. from New York to Cartisle.

A breakdown of the price estimate put the assessed cost at $3,499 city cost at $1,945 and the cost for a 20-foot-wide lot, $120.

In a routine letter, the Water Resources Commission notified the city it had complied with the first deadline in an order to construct new sewage treatment plant facilities by the end of next year.

The first deadline was Dec. 1, 1959, by which time the city had to win State Health Department approval of its expansion plans. The next deadline is July 1. The city is under orders to have new facilities under contract by then, but there is little expectation that this deadline will be met, due to lack of financing.

Heard Talking Dog, Claim Two British Newsmen

LONDON (AP)—Two British newsmen are ready to swear they have interviewed a talking dog.

The dog, Corky, says "I'm a clever lad" as well as other inanities, the newsmen claim.

Ronald Boyle of the Yorkshire Post said it was only when he produced two independent witnesses that his news editor got interested.

Gilbert Johnson, a London Daily Herald reporter who also met Corky, said:

"As sure as I'm sober, the dog spoke . . . I give you my word that I met the talking dog in a public house (bar)."

Boyle describes Corky's voice as loud, distinct and rather like that of trumpeter Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong. Johnson thought Corky's pronunciation wasn't perfect. But said he understood it.

Former Gets 30 Days for Cruelty to Animals

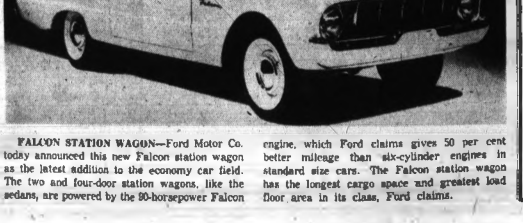

DETROIT (AP) — Orvel Hamilton, bachelor farmer and machinist was convicted today of cruelty to animals.

A jury of three men and two women in Justice Court of rural Sumpter Township returned the verdict at 1 a.m. after yesterday's trial in council chambers of the township hall. Justice Court itself was too small to accommodate the crowd of spectators.

Hamilton was sentenced to 30 days in the Detroit House of Correction and fined $100 in court costs.

Asks Banking Report

LANSING (AP)—State Banking Commissioner Alonzo L. Wilson today issued a call for a report on the condition of all state chartered banks and trust companies as of the close of the business day on Dec. 31, 1959.

FALCON STATION WAGON—Ford Motor Co. today announced this new Falcon station wagon as the latest addition to the economy car field. The two and four-door station wagons, like the sedans, are powered by the 90-horsepower Falcon engine, which Ford claims gives 50 per cent better mileage than six-cylinder engines in standard size cars. The Falcon station wagon has the longest cargo space and greatest load floor area in its class, Ford claims.

Chief of Polish AF Defects—Is Report

LONDON (AP)—Reports reaching Polish emigre circles today said Gen. Frey-Bielecki, Communist chief of the Polish air force, has fled from Poland to Yugoslavia in his own MIG jet.

If true, the defection would be one of the most important from the Soviet bloc since World War II.

Frey-Bielecki took command of the Polish air force after Wladyslaw Gomulka had taken over the Polish Communist leadership in October 1956. Previously he had been deputy to a Soviet commander, Gen. Turkiel.

Qualified diplomats here said they had no first hand confirmation of the reports.

Register Papers, Receipts Down From Last Year

Compared with December of 1958, the Oakland County Register of Deeds Office last month took in 500 fewer papers and $1,570 less in receipts.

According to Clerk-Register Daniel T. Murphy Jr., there were 12,264 papers ($17,997) handled last month. December of last year saw 12,764 papers ($19,568) coming into the office.

A breakdown of the 12,264 papers shows: 2,413 deeds ($3,954); 1,185 real estate mortgages ($4,084); 6,138 chattel (personal property) mortgages ($6,138); 1,893 miscellaneous papers, mostly liens ($3,145); 615 photostats ($649); 11 miscellaneous items, mostly abstracts of chattel mortgages ($17); one notice ($.25); and eight bills of sale ($8).

Fire in Roseville Ruins Auto Parts Factory

DETROIT (AP) — Fanned by high winds, fire of undetermined origin last night destroyed the interior of an auto parts factory in suburban Roseville, causing an estimated $500,000 damages.

No injuries were reported as flames whipped through the one-story brick building of the Detroit Unit Exchange Co., Inc. The firm rebuilds automatic transmissions and assembled clutch housings.

Nabbed by Rochester Police

Fine 115-M.P.H. Speeder

ROCHESTER — A 22-year-old Rochester speedster who led police here on two chases up to 115 mph before his arrest early yesterday morning, was fined $65 plus $10 court costs for reckless driving today.

Foyd S. Falls of 402 Second St., also paid a $5 fine for driving with an expired operator's license stemming from an earlier arrest for speeding the same night. The speeding charge for driving 60 miles an hour in a 25-mile zone was dropped.

Falls appeared before Troy Justice of the Peace Charles Logey for sentencing. The Rochester justice declined to hear Falls case because he is handling the young man's divorce case.

He was pursued through town first time at the high rate of speed around midnight. The chase died when the police car had a flat tire.

Rochester patrolmen got a second chance to pursue Falls when he returned to town about 3 a.m. and led them on another chase in the same direction.

A Sheriff's Department blockade also failed to halt the racer, but slowed him down so that he was apprehended on Mt. Clemens street, Pontiac Township.

New Falcon Wagons at Show Next Week

DETROIT (AP)—Ford said it will display Falcon station wagons for the first time next week.

The Falcon station wagon will be shown at the Chicago Auto Show and will go on sale in the spring. It will come in two and four door models, both with two seats. Cargo volume is listed at 76.2 cubic feet, or slightly less than the standard sized 1957 Ford. No prices have been announced.

2 Orion Youths Admit Break-Ins

Ransacked Cottages on Armada Island; Stole Small Appliances

Two Lake Orion area juveniles have admitted breaking into six cottages on Armada Island in Lake Orion and were turned over to juvenile authorities.

According to Oakland County sheriff's detectives, Robert L. McKinstry, 15, of 505 Heights Rd. and Mike Tanner, 14, of Merrit Rd., ransacked and caused considerable damage to the cottages, stealing mostly small household appliances and furniture.

Detectives have filed breaking and entering complaints with Juvenile Court on the boys.

The cottages are located at 454, 462, 466, 484 and 492 Heights road. Their owners are Fred Hengel, Woodrow Emling and Dorman Bell, all of Royal Oak; Rosaman Smith of Pleasant Ridge, Albert J. DeSaulniers of Southfield and Daisy Wiseman of Lake Orion.

The vandalism occurred during the past month, detectives said. Officers were called by a nearby resident who noticed that four summer homes had been entered.

Detectives then discovered two others broken into. The total loss cannot be determined until the owners have made a complete check on missing articles, detectives said.

Lawrence Barris Burial This Afternoon

Service was scheduled today for Lawrence H. Barris, well-known businessman of Pontiac, who died Sunday in Brent Hospital, Detroit, at the age of 58.

Service was scheduled for 2 p.m. today in the Verheyden Funeral Home in Detroit. Burial will be in Woodmere Cemetery.

Pontiac Tops Medium Price Field in '59

During 1959, a year that saw Pontiac forge ahead to become the number one seller in the medium-price field, Pontiac Motor Division produced 388,856 new cars, representing a gain of 76 per cent over the previous year, it was announced by S. E. Knudsen, GM vice president and general manager of the division.

This remarkable increase in production, said Knudsen, was achieved despite a six-week shutdown due to the steel shortage. Throughout 1958 Pontiac production totaled 219,823.

The year 1960 has all the earmarks of being another period of banner sales for Pontiac, he said.

Hayakawa Says It Helps One to Endure Poor Food

Beatniks Picking Up Cen Religion

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6 (AP) — Recently in Tobago, West Indies, the location company of "Swiss Family Robinson" was complaining about the food.

All except Seesue Hayakawa, who ate his meals in blissful silence. Back in Hollywood the actor explained how he could endure the poor food.

"I was concerned for the other people in the company, but not for myself," he said. "Nothing bothers me. Absolutely nothing. That is part of being a Zen Buddhist."

Not even a bad golf game bothers the veteran Japanese star—"Because if I get angry, my game gets worse." His religion has been getting much notice recently because it has been embraced by members of the beat generation.

Hayakawa, who often speaks at his temple in New York, said he welcomed the beatniks, though he cautioned about Zen becoming a fad.

"It is a way of life," he said. "I think that any religion, whether it be Zen Buddhism, Christianity or whatever, is good for people."

Now past 70, Hayakawa is a handsome, vital testimonial to his faith. He leads a busy life, traveling to acting jobs in all parts of the world and to his four homes on three continents.

Homes No. 1 and 2 are in Tokyo. One is an American-style bungalow with central heating. That's his winter house. The other is a larger Japanese home where he lives when the weather warms up.

His other homes are in New York and Paris. He spent 15 years in Paris, including the war period. Except for so-called progress, he would still have a home in Hollywood, too. He built a house here in 1916, only to have it torn down a few years ago because of a freeway.

Hayakawa has seen a great deal of change in Hollywood, some good, some bad. He arrived in 1912.

He worked four years at Paramount, making several films with Cecil B. De Mille. He was scheduled to play "The Sheik," but lost out to Rudolph Valentino. Later, Hayakawa formed his own company.

Such training—he made as many as eight features in a year—should help him in his next enterprise. He is planning to shoot 39 TV films in Tokyo for the American market. Hayakawa will play a police inspector, a sort of Joe Friday of the Rising Sun.

Psycho Chiller Packed With Skillful Suspense

By FRED DANZIG

The NBC-TV Startime series, which scored a great success with its production of "Turn of the Screw," last night came up with another chilling, terror-filled production, an adaptation of Mel Dinelli's melodrama, "The Man." And I was expecting it to be the life story of Stan Musial.!

Where "Screw" deliberately left the audience flapping in mid-air with its famous hazy ending, "The Man" left no doubt about the outcome: the kindly old widow, played so beautifully by Thelma Ritter, was strangled by the nutty handyman she had hired earlier in the day.

It took almost the full hour for "The Man" to consult his crime, and the action was devoted to depicting the details of impending murder. Frankly, I was taken by surprise when the handyman, recklessly portrayed by apple-cheeked Audie Murphy, strangled the woman.

I always expect some ingenious and happy 11th hour rescue in such plots. There I was, mentally noting the many methods by which Miss Ritter could be snatched from the clutches of the psycho she let into her house.

Would the rescuer be the man who rented her the floor-waxing machine? The angry bartender? The bowler? The puzzled delivery boy? The troublesome niece? Ah, surely the telephone repairman would save poor Mrs. Gillis.

But alas, the ugly crime was committed. No happy ending last night, folks.

As written and presented, this Hubbell Robinson production was gripping, skillful and professional. Murphy managed to hint at his wild insanity even when his mannerisms were touched with supposedly "normal" overtones. He sustained a tight-lipped skittishness in fine fashion. (However, I wish the teleplay by James Cavanagh had offered us a fuller history of this handyman.

Miss Ritter's portrayal of a simple, well-meaning, trusting, pitiful soul was heartbreaking at times. She faced her terror with resignation and fear that were properly underplayed. She made it look easy, though her kind of acting requires great discipline.

MAINTAINS BUILDUP

Under the direction of Robert Stevens, the play maintained a steady buildup of tension, despite one small draggy spot in the second set when Miss Ritter and Murphy chatted a bit too slowly. Another minor quibble: Too many microphone shadows were evident.

But over-all, "The Man" was a rousing, successful hour. And if the years spent conditioning TV audiences to expect melodrama to end happily now go down the drain, perhaps it's all for the better. It'll teach us to keep our guard up.

THE CHANNEL SWIM: Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Lena Horne are Frank Sinatra's special guests on his next ABC-TV special, set for Monday, Feb. 15 . . . Dick Powell reports he has a new family series in mind, the Jones', starring Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy . . . A special report about the Cerebral Palsy Assn., The First Decade, will be presented on ABC-TV Sunday, Jan. 17, with Bob Hope serving as host and narrator . . . The new NBC-TV special project series, World Wide 60, devotes its Saturday, Jan. 30 hour to a filmed report on the Antarctic . . . "The Population Explosion," CBS-TV's controversial one-hour report first presented last November, is being repeated on Thursday, Jan. 14, as an expanded 90-minute production.

The CBS-TV Playhouse 90 for Feb. 24 Wednesday, will star Van Heflin in "The Cruel Day," a Reginald Rose original teleplay about the war in Algeria.

Jury Views Scene and Carole Weeps

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carole Tregoff's icy composure melted into tears as a jury viewed the scene where, prosecutors say, she and Dr. R. Bernard Finch murdered his wife.

While his pretty onetime receptionist and admitted mistress wept, the handsome surgeon maintained the relaxed, professional-like calm he has shown since trial testimony started Monday.

The locale is a hillside home in suburban West Covina where Barbara Jean Finch, 36, was beaten and shot to death the night of July 18.

The state says the 41-year-old doctor and Miss Tregoff, 23, his former receptionist, killed Mrs. Finch so they could marry and keep community property a Mrs. Finch once estimated at $750,000. They are charged with conspiracy and murder.

HIGH IN STATURE — Sec. of Labor James P. Mitchell exhibits the straightforward, amiable negotiating style for which he is known. He is given much credit for the steel settlement and has long been respected as a seasoned labor relations man. He is highly thought of in many circles and was prominently mentioned for the GOP vice presidential nomination even before the steel strike.

Works in His Stocking Feet

Mitchell Blunt Negotiator

By United Press International

Labor secretary, James P. Mitchell, central figure in the settlement of the steel dispute, is a blunt spoken but amiable negotiator who likes to work in his stocking feet.

There was every likelihood that he slipped off his shoes sometime during the marathon talks he conducted with union and management on the steel deadlock.

The 49-year-old Cabinet official has frequently tangled with both sides since becoming labor secretary in 1953 but in the end won the respect of many of his antagonists.

His public stature, even before the steel developments, was such that he has been consistently mentioned as a possible vice presidential nominee on the Republican 1960 ticket.

In his behind-the-scenes steel negotiations he worked closely with Vice President Richard M. Nixon who has virtually locked up the GOP presidential nomination.

The labor secretary began his working career as a $15-a-week grocery clerk after finishing high school in 1917, later owned two unsuccessful butter and egg stores, and peddled bags of coal from door to door during his depression days.

A Roman Catholic, Mitchell was born Nov. 17, 1900, in Elizabeth, N. J. His father was the editor of a funeral directors' trade journal; his mother had been an early member of the Retail Clerks International Union.

When his two butter-and-egg stores failed in a 1923 businessslump, Mitchell pledged to pay off his debts. It took him 18 years to do so.

Mitchell began his real career in labor relations work—with the Western Electric Co. in 1925. In 1936 he became labor relations director for the Works Progress Administration's (WPA) federal unemployment relief program in New York City. During the war, he was a key labor relations official for the War Department.

After the war, the broad-shouldered, bulky Irishman held positions as personnel director at two big New York department stores, Macy's and Bloomingdale's. He resigned at Macy's in disagreement over handling of a strike. He was chosen for the Cabinet post by President Eisenhower to succeed Martin Durkin, head of the Plumbers' Union and a Democrat who was Eisenhower's first secretary of labor.

Mitchell never attended college but holds an honorary degree of doctor of laws from Fordham University.

In his spare time, he relaxes at his New Jersey home in the small community of Little River, spending time in a rowboat he jokingly refers to as "my yacht." He confines his light reading to mystery stories. Watching baseball on television is another recreation.

Mitchell was married in 1923 to Isabelle Nulton of Roselle, N. J. Their only daughter, Elizabeth, was married last June.

Would Bring Extra $100 Million

Rocky Offers Tax Plan to Help State's Schools

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller proposed to the 1960 Legislature today a sweeping local-tax plan to help raise an extra 100 million dollars for schools. The governor also promised a strict pay-as-you-go budget for the state.

In his annual message to the Legislature, the Republican governor said his 1960-61 fiscal program would hold the line on state spending, which totals $2,021,000,000 in this fiscal year.

"I am happy to report that we have restored fiscal integrity in the Empire State," Rockefeller declared.

Other highlights of the message urged:

1. Use of state funds to offset declining revenues from the federal highway program and maintain long-range road programs at current levels.

2. An increase to $50 from $45 a week in unemployment insurance and workmen's compensation benefits.

3. Tax relief for many small businesses, modification of truck tax, simplification of procedures for filing state income taxes and a $25 tax credit, instead of $10, for unmarried taxpayers who qualify as heads of households. An estimated 250,000 taxpayers would benefit from the higher tax credit and the state would lose an estimated $3,750,000 in annual revenue.

NEW JOBS PLAN

4. Programs to help workers displaced by automation learn new skills and find new jobs.

5. A broad program against juvenile delinquency, including work camps, improved probation facilities, and tougher handling of 15-year-olds involved in serious crimes.

6. A highway-safety program that would tighten laws against drinking drivers, speeders, habitual offenders and careless drivers, would provide for periodic re-examination of drivers and would give parents greater control over junior operators.

7. Establishment of a research center at Cornell University to study climate control as a means of improving output on the farms.

8. Raising to $1 an hour the minimum wage in industries now controlled by the minimum-wage law, some of which pay 75 cents an hour or less.

Turns Down Money in Spite of 1959 Record AMC Earnings

The $100,000 was part of a total income of $325,350 due Romney under a bonus plan and his refusal to accept it reduced the final figure to $225,350, the spokesman said.

American Motors, with its Rambler car selling at a record pace, made record earnings of $60,422,000 for the fiscal year ended last Sept. 30. The company reported a net profit of more than 30 million dollars in fiscal 1958 and a net loss of nearly 15 million dollars in the preceding fiscal year.

Romney's refusal to accept the $100,000 bonus was disclosed in connection with AMC's issuance of its annual proxy statement today. An AMC spokesman in the company's public relations office confirmed prior reports of Romney's action.

The spokesman said that the board of directors last fall accepted a proposal by Romney that the combined salary and bonus of any AMC official be limited to $225,000.

Only Romney would have received an income in excess of that sum. Other AMC executives were due less that that figure, according to the spokesman.

Romney's base salary has been $150,000. He thus was limited to a bonus of $75,000. Under the original bonus plan his bonus would have been about $175,000.

Earnings of other AMC officials are listed in the statement as $184,901 in salaries and bonuses for Roy D. Chapin Jr., executive vice president and general manager of the automotive division; B. A. Chapman, executive vice president and general manager of the appliance division, and Roy Abernethy, vice president in charge of automotive distribution and marketing.

The board of directors last fall reduced a prior bonus plan. This one, effective in 1958, provided that 10 per cent of profits over a specified level be set aside as bonuses. The 10 per cent figure was reduced to 6 per cent.

Humphrey Sees Problems Ahead

Says Eisenhower Has Swept 'Em Under Rug and They've Festered

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—The country, says Minnesota's Sen. Hubert Humphrey, is suffering from complacency and has been ever since 1953 when President Eisenhower took office.

Humphrey, who wants to move into the White House on the Democratic ticket, says the next president "is going to inherit a series of problems that have been swept under the rug—where they have been festering and intensifying."

If Humphrey is right—that the country has been complacent for almost seven years — who is responsible: The Eisenhower administration or the people?

The two Arthur Schlesingers, father and son and both professors of American history, have written that history moves in cycles: that a period of intense feeling and activity or crisis is always followed by one of calm while new forces and frustrations and demands build up. Under this pressure, the calm eventually yields to a period of new and progressive action.

After the fierce activity of World War I and President Wilson's struggle for the League of Nations, the country seemed deliberately to want peace and quiet. It elected Warren G. Harding and then Calvin Coolidge.

For most of the 1920s there was quiet, and increasing prosperity. This could be called a complacent period, too. It came to a shocking end with the crash of 1929 and the depression which called for action.

Beatty Isn't Worried That Joan Is 'Older'

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — "What can you possibly see in an older woman — like Joan Collins?" we asked young actor Warren Beatty.

We were kidding, because Joan Collins, of London, is one of the half dozen beauties of the world. Beatty is one of those going-places actors — from Richmond, Va., Northwestern University, Broadway and Hollywood, brother of Shirley MacLaine, stunningly handsome and manly — not far away from fame at only about 23. Joan is two or three or five years older . . . though we believe they say one year.

"It was kind of strange," Beatty admitted. "After a lot of TV soap operas here, I went to Hollywood on a picture deal. I had always thought Joan Collins was just too much.

"So I said to my agent 'I gotta meet Joan Collins.' He said sure, and I said, 'Yeah, yeah, but WHEN?'

"We went to a party. She was with somebody. I was with somebody. I called her the next day . . . I had been out of my mind trying to meet this girl!"

BEATTY

So now their romance is one of the great holocausts of the decade. They'll probably marry — if it doesn't burn out. She's got eyes that are big pools," Warren Beatty says. "When she's in the rain, she looks like a rain goddess . . ."

"Kinda old for you, isn't she?" we asked him.

"She's got the kind of face that will get more beautiful the next 15 or 20 years!" He banged the table.

Beatty just got great notices in a flop show, "A Loss of Roses," and has been discovered for movies by M-G-M. When escorting Joan Collins around, he has strange experiences. Recently a fellow came to their table and said to Miss Collins, "I wanted to say hello because my gym instructor always wanted to meet you."

Beatty told him, "That's funny, my gym instructor always said the same thing."

TV Program Sponsors Defend Acts

But Peter W. Allport of New York, vice president and secretary of National Advertisers, Inc., said advertisers have an important financial stake in such shows. He said they invested about 783 million dollars in TV last year and "must be reasonably certain of commensurate value."

The two witnesses aired their views as the Federal Communications Commission renewed its study of whether it had adequate authority over radio-TV programming or needs new powers from Congress.

Print Magazine for Teen-Agers

GM to Send Pamphlet Free to Young Drivers Just Licensed

DETROIT — A new magazine, "American Youth," edited especially for teen-agers with particular emphasis on safe driving practices, was announced today by General Motors.

It will be sent free every other month to newly-licensed young drivers at their homes.

Each issue will contain articles on hobbies, sports, school, outstanding teen-agers and other stories of general interest to youngsters as well as at least one article designed to promote safe driving habits among the nation's young motorists.

The first issue, in two colors, is being distributed now. Initial circulation will be approximately one million.

Each youngster will receive a letter from John F. Gordon, president of General Motors, advising him or her that the magazine is being sent. The letter welcomes the teen-agers to America's highways and reminds them that driving is a responsibility as well as a pleasure.

"You probably are already aware of the many new things opened to you by this privilege of driving yourself rather than riding with others, and no doubt have been looking forward to it for some time," Gordon's letter states. "I am sure you also realize that this license carries with it the responsibility to drive safely and to respect the rights of the many millions of other drivers."

Economy Can Cripple Us: Hart

Says We Would Turn Into 2nd Rate Power With Too Much Saving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich) said Tuesday too much emphasis on the economy could turn the United States into a second class power unable to resist the demands of Russia.

"You can't buy survival in the bargain basement," Hart said at his weekly news conference.

The United States, he said, has pressing needs, among them better schools, housing, roads, and missiles.

"If we dilly dally in the space race, we can be too late," he said. "And we cannot survive with the second-rate educational system in relation to Russia's."

Hart said many people in Michigan "want to be told that I'm down here to cut taxes, but I think I'd serve America badly if I did."

On other subjects, Hart said:

He hopes for early congressional action this year on federal aid for sewage disposal plants. Twenty-nine Michigan communities have been declared eligible for it.

The issue of Catholicism should not influence the upcoming presidential election, Hart said.

Asked whether he believes Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan has a chance for the Democratic presidential nomination, Hart said "He's my candidate."

Dead Sea Ruins Search Is Halted by Muddy Waters

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Muddy water has suspended a frogman search for the ruins of Sodom and Gomorrah on the floor of the Dead Sea.

Two amateur divers ended a week-long underwater search Tuesday. They said they would resume the quest in the spring.

The searchers are Vincent Barnwood, a professor at the American University in Beirut and a former Canadian army frogman, and Melvin rizzle, an officer with the U.S. technical aid mission in Amman.

Their quest for the 4,000-year-old biblical cities was inspired last spring when, flying over the Dead Sea, they spotted what looked like a long wall on the bottom.

PHA General Counsel Named Commissioner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lawrence Davern, general counsel of the Public Housing Administration since 1956, was named Tuesday as acting commissioner of Davern, 54, has been with the federal housing program here since 1939. Prior to that, he was an attorney in Louisville, Ky.

Pontiac Press Photo

GET GIFT CERTIFICATE — The first baby of 1960 (born 12:02 a.m. Jan. 1) and Pontiac's newest resident of the decade is Sandra Kay Washington, six days old today. Along with the distinction goes a number of gifts to the Lawrence Washingtons from Pontiac area merchants who joined to celebrate their good fortune. Presenting the certificate naming them winners of the first baby of the year contest is Tull Lasswell, assistant director of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce.

1st in the Heart of '60: Washington (Sandra Kay)

Through the good timing of Sandra's arrival to this world, the Washingtons are feted as parents of Pontiac's newest resident of 1960.

This distinction makes them winners of a "First Baby" contest sponsored by The Pontiac Press in cooperation with Downtown Merchants Assn. and the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce.

As such, they are being honored by close to 20 area merchants who will bestow gifts on the couple and their newborn.

The first child to Laura and Lawrence Washington, 425 Branch St., Sandra made her entrance at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital at 12:02 a.m. on Jan. 1.

She tilted the scales at a robust 7 pounds and 11 ounces.

"And she has lots of hair," proclaims her father, an orderly at the hospital where she was born.

DEDUCTION GONE

Just a few minutes earlier and the Washingtons would have had a $800 tax deduction for 1959, the new daddy was reminded.

Was he disappointed?

"Not at all. We like it better this way," Washington beamed.

Ousted Officers Plan to Appeal

8 Royal Oak Township Goodfellows Were Fired in Alleged Shortages

Ousted Royal Oak Township Fire Chief Sam Mitchell and seven other firemen and policemen fired from their posts after being accused of pocketing Goodfellow funds said today they plan to appeal to the township's Civil Service Board for reinstatement.

A jury yesterday found Mitchell not guilty of the theft charges. He was tried before Huntington Woods Justice of the Peace James Renfrew in Royal Oak Township Justice Court.

The other seven men who intend to appeal are ousted firemen James Anderson and Edward Tennant and former Police Chief William Ware, Police Sgt. James Gatewood, patrolmen Edward Wilson, William Boyd and Annies Ruffin.

They, along with Mitchell and their attorneys, will meet with the Civil Service Board at 7 p.m. today in the Township Hall. A review of their case will be made and a date set for the appeal.

They were charged Dec. 11 by state police detectives who said they had distributed $75 in marked money to the accused, of which only $6 was turned in.

Ware was found guilty at an earlier trial, while Gatewood was acquitted on the same charge. Their cases were heard by Royal Oak Township Justice of the Peace Lonnie Cash.

He declined to hear Mitchell's case, however, stating he was too busy.

More to Attend Straley Talks?

If Herbert W. Straley negotiates some more with the city before he returns as police chief, he'll probably do it before the entire City Commission.

"One of Straley's supporters should sit on this committee," he recommended.

Debate ended after Commissioners Floyd P. Miles and John A. Dugan declared that any committee should be made up of all seven Commission members.

NO DECISION

Although no decision was reached, it was not likely that Mayor Philip E. Rowston would oppose a full committee if a new negotiation session were called.

"As far as I'm concerned, it is up to Mr. Straley or his representatives to ask for such a meeting," he observed.

Straley's legal counsel, Clarence L. Smith, said then he believed it would take a few weeks and at least one more negotiation session before Straley goes back to the $9,000-a-year job from which he was fired last April.

ATTORNEYS PRESENT

Congressional Hubbub Seen as Session Opens

Civil Rights, Federal Aid to Schools Appear on 'Battlefield'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress convenes today with two explosive issues on the early agenda and a presidential election breathing down its collective neck.

Civil rights and federal aid to education are the issues likely to figure in early battles. A half dozen other hot measures are bound to generate partisan squabbles and heated words.

With Congress convening for a new session at midday, the President arranged to attend morning services at the National Presbyterian church to join in prayer for divine guidance of the nation's course. Many Congress members also planned to attend.

That document will sketch the President's 1960 program in broad outline. Details of the program will be set forth in his budget message Jan. 18.

The second session of the 86th Congress will provide the sounding board for at least five senators eying the Democratic presidential nomination. Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who has an apparent stranglehold on the Republican nomination, also sits in the Senate as presiding officer.

In addition, 33 senators and all 437 members of the House are up for re-election or replacement in the fall.

In that atmosphere, the session may set a record for sheer volume of oratory.

ADJOURNMENT DATE

Party leaders already have set a tentative adjournment date—July 4, a week before the Democratic national convention starts in Los Angeles and three weeks before the Republicans gather in Chicago.

The 86th Congress can go to work in a hurry if it wants to. Unlike a new Congress, it is

'Prejudiced Convention Case'

Black Should Quit: Porter

LANSING (AP) — A Republican senator says Supreme Court Justice Eugene F. Black, a Democrat, prejudiced a case before the high court and should resign.

"I am shocked by such conduct," said Sen. Elmer R. Porter (R-Blissfield), Senate Appropriations Committee chairman. "The governor should demand this man's resignation."

Told of the senator's remarks, Black said:

"Tell Porter to come up here (to the Supreme Court) and demand it himself, and then if he doesn't like what he gets he can go down and demand that the governor do it."

Porter, farmer and 23-year veteran of the Legislature, jumped on the Port Huron justice for handing out an opinion in a case moments after the court heard formal arguments. Normally, justices announce their decision jointly after lengthy consideration.

The case involves calling a constitutional convention, a subject long dear to Black's heart.

He announced from the bench yesterday that he wrote the 60-page opinion last September shortly after the pending suit was filed by Peter Bradt, Port Huron attorney. The opinion supported Bradt's view.

Bradt urged the court to overturn a 1949 ruling and declare that voters in November 1948 approved calling a special convention to rewrite Michigan's 1908 constitution.

The proposition received 821,-282 "yes" votes and 608,365 "no" votes. However, state canvassers held it was defeated under the 1940 ruling for failure to receive 1,170,914 votes — a majority of those cast at the general election for all candidates and propositions.

As attorney general in 1948, Black, then a Republican, challenged the ruling of canvassers then in office that a similar constitutional convention vote failed to carry.

Porter contended Black should have disqualified himself from the current suit because his earlier role in the issue and because Bradt was an assistant attorney general under his administration.

He noted newly installed Justice Theodore Souris disqualified himself because he was a member of the canvassing board when the issue first came up.

"The governor has more reason to demand this man's resignation than the resignation of the banking commissioner," Porter said.

Gov. Williams said last month he had demanded the resignation of Banking Commissioner Alonzo L. Wilson of Traverse City because of a conflict of interest. Wilson had authorized a branch banking permit for the Empire State Bank, in which his wife holds interest.

In his long opinion, Black called the Supreme Court's 1949 decision "incredible" folly and a "monkancid injunction against the people."

He said historians will see it as a prime cause of the state's economic and political woes of the past decade.

LANSING (AP) — Beefing-up of the State Police force with 80 more troopers and five new posts has been suggested as one method of cutting Michigan's soaring highway death toll.

The recommendation was approved yesterday by the State Safety Commission following a discussion of Michigan's 34 road fatalities over the New Year's holiday — highest in state history. The 80 new troopers would bring state police strength to 1,235 officers and men. It was estimated salary and training of the recruits would cost $350,000.

The cost of new cars, uniforms and other equipment was not included in the estimate. There also was no estimate of the cost of the proposed new posts.

Gov. Williams said he had not yet decided on his budget recommendations for state police.

State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs said new posts were needed in Iron County, Sault Ste. Marie, the Tecumseh - Coldwater area, Portage Township south of Kalamazoo and the Shelby-Hart area near Muskegon.

"We'll particularly need a post at Sault Ste. Marie when the new international bridge there is opened," he said.

MOST DEATHS AT NIGHT

Commenting on the New Year's holiday deaths, Childs noted that 27 occurred during hours of darkness and only seven during daylight. The pattern was similar for the 27 highway deaths over the Christmas holidays — 20 at night and seven during daylight hours.

"We haven't complete reports on all of them, but these are the hours when there is more motorist drinking," Childs said.

The commission also approved a recommendation by Hare that motorists with nine demerit points on their accident records be called in for group instruction sessions. At present, only those with 12 or more points for moving violations are being called in.

Hare said ony $3,600 would have to be added to his budget to reactivate the nine-point interview program and said this would reach an additional 50,000 motorists. The program was suspended earlier this year for economy reasons.

The commission approved another try for legalization of drunkometer and similar tests for motorists suspected of drinking. The Legislature has beaten down all previous attempts to do this.

Don't look for spring yet, but the forecast for Pontiac and vicinity is a little warmer for the next few days, with occasional snow flurries.

Temperatures will average from normal to three degrees below the normal high of 33, normal low of 20. Tonight's low is expected to be 10-16 degrees, with a high tomorrow about 30.

Winds at 10:15 a.m. today registered 16-20 miles per hour from the west. The temperature in downtown Pontiac was 25 at 1 p.m.

Miami-Bound Vacation Coach Was Substitute

National Craft Down in N. Carolina Woods; Bodies Scattered

BOLIVIA, N.C. (AP) — A National Airlines night coach flying nonstop from New York to Miami crashed with 34 persons aboard before dawn today in swampy woodlands near here.

"There will not be any survivors," said Deputy Sheriff H. G. Ratcliff. Seventeen bodies had been recovered late this morning.

Reporters on the scene said the big plane appeared to have exploded in the air and debris and bodies were scattered over an area of 20 acres.

The other substitute plane, an Electra turbo-prop plane, reached Miami safely with 76 passengers and crew members.

The plane that crashed carried 29 passengers and a crew of five.

Its passengers included retired Navy Vice Adm. Edward Orrick McDonnell, who held a Congressional Medal of Honor and numerous other decorations for World War II service. He commanded an aircraft carrier in the Pacific.

Most of the passengers were easterners, bound for vacations at Florida's sunny resorts. The plane had been flying through rainy weather.

The watch on the wrist of a crew member found in the cockpit was stopped at 2:45 a.m., indicating that the crash occurred some 14 minutes after the pilot reported in by radio. He indicated no trouble at that time.

The possibility that passengers were aware of trouble before the crash was seen in the fact that a number of the victims were clad in Mae West life preservers. The life preservers on some had been inflated.

A piece of the wing and most of the ripped fuselage fell in a field, while the cockpit struck in woods 50 yards away.

HEARD CRASH

The plane crashed on the small farm of Richard Randolph. His wife, Letzie, was awakened by the noise and she awakened her husband.

"We heard an engine going chug-a-chug," he said, "like it was cutting in and out. Then it sounded like tin doors and windows ripping off. Then there was a big boom like dynamite."

Randolph arose and looked out the window. He could see nothing but a small flame which soon went out. He returned to bed.

Early this morning their small son, McArthur, went to the field to see what happened and found the plane.

Emergency and rescue vehicles rushed to the scene. A light rain fell as rescuers searched for bodies.

Lester L. Edwards, a forest ranger, said it appeared to him that the plane might have exploded in flight. This opinion was shared also by Doyle Howard, a reporter on the scene from the Wilmington News.

The FBI sent its special disaster squad to the scene. This was requested by Charles Sharp, National's vice president. The squad of three fingerprint experts has identified more than 80 per cent of the victims of airliner crashes it has investigated.

Reds Discover Calorie-Free Frying Oil

MOSCOW (AP) — Taas had good news today for fried food lovers who are on a fat-free diet.

The Soviet news agency said Leningrad botanists, after a 25-year search, have discovered a fruit of the cactus family that contains oil which the human system does not absorb.

Taas said the shrub, known as the nemonnia, has a fruit about the size of a cherry which contains nearly as much oil as olives. It tastes like coconut oil.

Some Making More This Way

Courtesy Rides Supporting Bus Drivers

By PETE LOCHBILER

Some are falling behind, but others reportedly are making more money now than they did driving buses.

Apparently there is strong sympathy to continue the strike within the ranks of the 28-member Local 1097 of the Amalgamated Assn. of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes Union, AFL-CIO.

That is the way the strike appeared yesterday — in its 31st day — at the corner of Huron and Saginaw streets.

Courtesy cars — bus drivers use their own autos for the service — while in and out of the intersection all day long, following the same schedules set up by Pontiac City Lines, Inc.

At busy hours, it's not hard for them to fill up with five passengers each.

GET DONATIONS

The bus drivers don't charge, but there is a donation box. And most donations amount to 25 cents — the price of a bus ride.

"Lots of times, though, people give us an extra nickel, dime or quarter," said one of the drivers, Roy Olson, 4869 Fenmore St., Waterford Township.

There are usually 20 courtesy cars in operation six days a week, said John Sytsma, local president, following established routes and schedules throughout the city.

Operating from 5:15 a.m. to 6:45 p.m. — except Sundays — and even later on Mondays and Fridays, the cars provide service for an estimated 1,008 regular bus riders, or one-quarter of the bus company's daily load in prestrike days.

A couple drivers are making up to $30 a week after expenses, said Sytsma. Drivers averaged a little

Dr. Sullenberger Gains Victory

A technical legal victory was gained yesterday by Dr. Neil H. Sullenberger and other defendants in the $250,000 lawsuit brought against them by the widow of a Union Lake man on whom the Pontiac surgeon operated. The patient died a month later.

Former Circuit Judge Theodore F. Hughes granted the defendants' motion to void the original declaration, which attorneys claimed was too wordy and did not contain a "plain and concise statement of the cause of action."

At the same time, the judge allowed the attorney for the plaintiff, Mrs. Marion L. Mero of 1545 Larkspur Rd., to file an amended declaration. The suit still stands.

She named Pontiac General Hospital, its Board of Trustees, the city, the hospital's medical staff and its executive and credentials committees as codefendants. She said they were negligent in allowing the controversial surgeon to remain on the staff.

Judge Hughes said the present 69-page declaration "does not confine itself to a statement of the cause of action."

"It does contain many statements and exhibits which, if found admissible on a trial of the merit, would be evidence, and if found inadmissible would be prejudicial of the right of the defendants," the judge ruled.

He denied the motion of two other doctors named in the suit to be dropped as defendants.

NEW OAKLAND ATTORNEYS — These eight of 26 Oakland County residents who passed their Michigan State Bar examinations in September were officially admitted to the Bar before the five Circuit Court judges in a ceremony yesterday afternoon. They are (from left) Milton Silverman, Jackie L. Banyeky, Robert W. Carr; John N. O'Brien, Richard D. Kuhn, Walter J. Schrodi Jr., Robert W. Dahm, and John W. Gelder. Administering their oaths of office as counselors of law is Daniel T. Murphy Jr., county clerk-register. The others who passed their exams have been admitted to practice in other counties.

'Don't Be Hysterical About Reds in Space'

The President called for exploration in this country of the idea that "man is a creature of God and dignity."

Eisenhower expressed his views in a brief informal talk to officials of the National Presbyterian Church. He attended morning services where he joined in prayer for success of the new session of the 86th Congress, convening today.

Hitler's Ideas Still Alive; Proven in West Germany

BONN, Germany (AP) — The current wave of anti-Semitic incidents points up the shakiness of democracy in West Germany.

Most of the men arrested in Germany so far in connection with the painting of swastikas and anti-Jewish slogans in public places are under 26, too young to have been Nazis in the Hitler era.

Yet these youths mouth Nazi slogans and heap vitriol on Jews.

It is all too clear that Hitler's ideas are still alive in Germany. Hatred still exists, waiting to be used by demagogues.

Few persons in authority take the new wave of anti-Semitic incidents as serious in themselves. But they see the episodes as of tremendous importance in what they indicate about Germans of today.

Desecration of synagogues and Jewish graveyards is nothing new in postwar Germany. Such incidents have been reported frequently in the past decade.

What is new is the response to a single incident—the swabbing of a swastika on the newly decorated Cologne synagogue on Christmas Eve and the daubing in black paint of the words "Juden raus"—"Jews get out."

Newspapers picked up the story and spread it in Germany and abroad. Like a forest fire, the swastikas and anti-Jewish phrases spread across West Germany and around the world.

It is a well known axiom of psychology that humans—particularly the immature—imitate each other. A sex crime well publicized will be followed by a wave of sex crimes.

The same appears true with synagogue daubing. Many of the swastikas have been crudely drawn and seem the work of juvenile delinquent types.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer claims that "unrepentant Nazis" are behind the anti-Semitic wave and that evidence has been turned up of a widespread campaign to discredit his government abroad. But no one as yet has offered any proof to substantiate claims of a concerted anti-Semitic campaign.

Abortion Case Airing Delayed

Charge Pontiac Doctor Was Part of Biggest Ring in State History

Examination in the Mount Clemens justice court of Dr. Jerome Robb, 2575 Hiller Rd., on charges of conspiracy to commit abortion has been adjourned until Jan. 22.

The osteopath, who has offices at 1142 W. Huron St., is one of nine persons accused of operating the biggest abortion ring in Michigan history.

Justice of the Peace Francis Castelucci today said he turned down Robb's motion to dismiss the case at the start of yesterday's examination.

"I couldn't allow it (the motion to dismiss the case)," said Castelucci. "Now they are going to Circuit Court to contest my ruling, claiming defective warrant and complaint."

Their examination "looks like a long one."

He said he expects at least 8 witnesses to be presented when the proceedings resume.

Authorities said they have knowledge of at least 100 abortions performed by the alleged ring, including three osteopaths and a chiropractor, during the last year.

Deputies Help Save Dying Man

The Oakland County Sheriff's Dept. today is credited with helping to save the life of a man dying from loss of blood.

Sheriff's road patrol cars sped to county borders last night to pick up a rare blood type relayed by other police departments from Wayne and Macomb County hospitals.

McGoldrick had to undergo emergency surgery for extensive internal bleeding at 11 p.m. in Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. His blood type is O-negative. About six out of 100 persons have this type blood.

McGoldrick still is in critical condition, a hospital official said this morning, but would not have survived without the relay errand of mercy of the Sheriff's Department.

Pontiac General Hospital also provided a special nurse from its staff to care for McGoldrick in the emergency.

Eight-Month Battle Over as Union, 11 Companies Sign Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industry and union officials looked forward today to cooperative efforts to boost steel production as formal signings ended their eight-month contract battle.

The United Steelworkers Union and the 11 Big Steel companies Tuesday signed the 30-month pact they hammered out in marathon negotiations last weekend. The union expects no difficulty in signing up 80-odd smaller companies.

"It's been a long struggle. It's over. We look forward to maximum cooperation to do the job we have ahead," said R. Conrad Cooper, chief negotiator for the companies.

Union head David J. McDonald chimed in, "If you think the American steel industry has been great, you ain't seen nothin' yet. Watch us do a job."

Union leaders at the signing ceremony cheered this hatchet-burying. Earlier they had given Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell a thunderous ovation at a closed door union conference. Mitchell sat in on the final negotiations and has given Vice President Richard M. Nixon main credit for ending the eight-month contract deadlock.

Wife of Thurmond Dies After Surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Jean Crouch Thurmond, wife of Sen Strom Thurmond (D-SC) died today. She was 33.

Doctors said she was afflicted with a rapidly progressing malignant brain tumor.

The Thurmonds were married Nov. 7, 1957, while he was governor of South Carolina. She had been his secretary. He was 44 at the time and she was 21.

Elect President for GM Club

Election of Harold E. Milliken as president of the General Motors Management club of Detroit for 1960 was announced today. Milliken is zone manager for the Pontiac Motor Division.

The club is an organization of General Motors management representatives in the Detroit area who meet regularly for programs of interest both to the automotive industry and to the community.

Milliken has been employed by the Pontiac Motor Division for 24 years. A zone manager for 12 years, he has held his current assignment since July 1958.

Milliken and Mrs. Milliken live at 420 North Glenhurst Dr., Birmingham.

Pontiac General Granted Loan

City Commission OKs $450,000, Probably the Last Expansion Aid

A loan of $450,000 to complete the Pontiac General Hospital expansion program was approved last night by the City Commission.

City Manager Walter K. Willman said it would probably be the last financial aid to the hospital, and would be paid back in time out of hospital revenues.

Commissioners approved raising the money through notes sold in anticipation of 1961 tax collections earmarked for capital improvements.

The Municipal Finance Commission in Lansing will be asked for approval to sell the notes at a maximum interest rate of four per cent.

The money, if raised, will cover extra expenses involved in the remodeling of the hospital's east wing, Willman said.

Remodeling should be finished around March 1, he added, bringing the long, five-year expansion program to a close.

"Mr. Willman should be given credit for his steadfastness in completing the hospital," said Commissioner Robert A. Landry.

"We are all very much relieved that this is the final step in completing the hospital," said Mayor Philip E. Rowston.

"The City Commission has always given the city manager unanimous support when extra costs became apparent."

The expansion — including the addition — was planned in 1958 with a $3,000,000 general obligation bond issue. Since then, it has grown into a $5,000,000 project, with the extra money coming out of capital improvement funds.

The annual cry for economy came from Rep. Clarence Cannon (D-Mo), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Minor housekeeping details will occupy today's Senate and House sessions. On hand to succeed the late William Langer (R-ND) in the Senate is another Republican, former Gov. Norman Brunsdale. In the House, Republican John Kyl of Iowa succeeds the late Steven Carter, a Democrat.

When they are sworn in, the Democratic majority will be 65 to 35 in the Senate, and 280 to 153 in the House. There will be four House vacancies.

On a recommendation from Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley, the Commission has approved all-day parking on the west side of Eton road only, from Villa to Lincoln roads.

However, parking will continue to be prohibited on Eton road from Maple to Villa roads.

The restrictions had been in effect since November 1956.

"There are several businesses in the affected area that will benefit from the parking," Moxley said.

"If all-day parking along this stretch becomes a problem, we will post necessary signs to provide parking only at certain hours of the day."

Moxley said the "No Parking" signs had been placed prior to the widening of Eton road, but "now that the Eton widening has been completed it appears the traffic regulations can be modified."

City attorney James L. Howlett has been directed by the City Commission to draw up an amendment to the dog ordinance that would make it conform with state law.

The state law provides that immunization of dogs against rabies once every two years is adequate, and that annual immunization is no longer required.

A citation for distinguished service to agriculture will be presented to Merritt D. Hill of 965 E. Glengarry Circle, Bloomfield Township, Feb. 3 during Michigan State University's 45th annual Farmer's Week.

Commenting on the citation, Dr. Thomas K. Cowden of MSU's College of Agriculture said "Hill is a strong supporter of MSU and its agricultural program and represents Michigan's agricultural industry on numerous state and national committees."

Courtesy Rides Aid City Bus Drivers

One driver said he netted more than $18 on one day.

Most drivers were hesitant to say exactly how much money they are clearing.

"I can get by," said Olson. "I don't want to quit this strike until we get what we want."

Olson puts in a 48-hour week (as drivers did for the bus company) driving his car six round trips a day, daily and Saturday on the busy Huron-Saginaw street route from Voorheis road to South boulevard.

Even so, he nets a tidy profit for the few hours he puts in.

"So we haven't really felt any financial pinch yet," he explained.

Like Olson, Deel said he wants to continue the strike "until we win."

NOT ALL DO WELL

But not all drivers are doing well by the courtesy ride service. For instance, Mrs. Wilma Bell, 687 E. Madison Ave., who has three small children to support by herself.

Mrs. Bell drives an older car — a 1951 model — and last week cleared only $16.24. This was after $34 expenses.

She had to have a headlight replaced and a flat tire repaired with a new inner tube. These expenses cut into her earnings.

Mrs. Bell said she is going into debt at the rate of about $40 a week.

But I'm still in favor of the strike. I was only making about $60 a week from the bus company."

Pontiac City Lines is a subsidiary of National City Lines, Inc. Strikes are also being waged against subsidiaries of the parent firm in Saginaw and Kalamazoo.

Drivers, whose top pay is $1.72 an hour, are asking for a 22-cent an hour package increase in all three cities, said Sytsma.

Up to last week, the bus companies refused any increase on grounds they couldn't afford it.

In Saginaw last Wednesday, the company offered a 7-cent an hour package, which the union rejected.

But you could call the offer the first break so far in the strike," said Sytsma.

Negotiations, encouraged by state labor mediators, are to be renewed tomorrow in Kalamazoo. No resumption of negotiations in Pontiac has been scheduled yet.

Commission Mulls More Straley Talks

Straley question," said Landry. "It would be a tremendous show of good faith on the part of the city if at least one member of the opposition sat in on these negotiations."

Commissioner Milton R. Henry supported Landry. The two commissioners have sympathized with Straley and opposed George D. Eastman as public safety director.

The other five commissioners, including Rowston — upheld administration's original decision to fire Straley 11 months ago and have continued to date to support City Manager Walter K. Willman's backing of Eastman.

Faced with the prospect of having a court decree delivered to him ordering Straley's reinstatement, Willman briefly broke a tight-lipped silence last night for the first time.

While acknowledging the legal compulsion to reinstate Straley, Willman made no indication as to whether a new move to oust him is being contemplated.

"I will abide by the terms of the decree," he said.

Delivery of the order is expected this week. It was delayed while Smith's secretaries were busy typing new copies.

"It came to our attention that there were a few minor changes that had to be made," he said.

The copies must be certified by the Ionia County Clerk before they can be returned to Pontiac as valid. Ionia Circuit Judge Morris K. Davis signed the original order last Wednesday, telling the city to reinstate Straley and give him his back pay.

It was Judge Davis who Dec. 8 overruled on technical grounds Straley's ouster by the former Civil Service Commission.

It was indicated that Eastman will continue as public safety director, even if Straley returns. But a move to have the Commission polled on the question failed.

"We have already voted on the Eastman question four times. The results have always been the same," said Rowston in reference to the four times Landry and Henry have tried unsuccessfully to oust Eastman.

Rowston had already called for a poll when Dugan and Commissioner Wesley J. Wood objected.

Smith told of a feud he is having with the Police Department, which has been under Eastman's personal direction for more than a year.

He claimed that a car owned by his son was damaged when impounded last week. Rowston told him to file a claim with the city attorney.

To Attempt Contacting Other Beings

ANN ARBOR (AP) — An attempt to contact "intelligent beings" on other planets will be made this spring by several leading American astronomers, a University of Michigan space expert has revealed.

Prof. Fred T. Haddock, of the university's astronomy department, said most of the world's top astronomers agree such beings probably exist on many of the planets in the universe.

Scientists, using the most modern and sensitive equipment, will try for the first time to contact other planetary life by intercepting messages they may be transmitting from billions of miles out in space.

Equipment designed to tune in on radio signals sent by beings on other planets has been installed at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Green Bank, W. Va., and will begin operation within the next few months, Haddock said.

Later, a similar device may be set up at the University of Michigan's newly-finished, giant radio telescope atop nearby Peach Mountain.

Scientists operating the device will hunt for signals flashing through space on the 21 centimeter radio frequency band.

"A civilization technically able to communicate with us would know that the 21 centimeter line exists," Haddock said. "Nearly all aspects of the wave length make it the ideal frequency choice for trying to contact life on other planets."

Five Die, Schools Close, Travel Stops

By The Associated Press

A fast-moving snowstorm which hit the Southwest swept into the South today, leaving a heavy blanket of white from Arkansas into North Carolina. Dixie shivered in the first big snow storm of the winter.

The season's first big snowfall —and the biggest in many years in some areas — curtailed travel, closed schools and disrupted telephone and power service. The storms were blamed for at least five deaths.

Nearly a foot of snow made a wintry scene in parts of the South land.

The far-ranging storm dumped a snow covering that stretched from eastern New Mexico, Oklahoma and the northern third of Texas eastward through Arkansas, southern Missouri and Tennessee into Kentucky, southwestern Virginia, the western Carolinas and north Georgia.

Arkansas slushed through the biggest snowfall in 30 years. The season's first storm dumped nearly 11 inches in Little Rock and from 2 to 7 inches in most of the state.

Heaviest snowfalls in years were reported in many areas. The seven inches at Nashville was the deepest in nine years. Crossville, Tenn., was hit by eight inches. Memphis four and the snow was expected to reach depths of 10 inches in the East Tennessee mountains.

Sleet added to the treacherous conditions on highways and on railroad tracks. Bus and train travel was delayed. Some plane flights were canceled.

The storm in the Southwest forced schools to close, stalled scores of motorists and made driving hazardous. At least two deaths were blamed on the storm in the Southwest. Three others were reported in the Southeast. Three persons were missing in a private plane in the Southwest storm belt.

Snow measured up to 10 inches in the central Texas Panhandle and nearly a foot in parts of Oklahoma. Two inches fell in New Mexico.

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The New Year will see new zip in the rivalry over heating American homes.

Electric utilities—long a stepchild in the home heating family—are driving hard now to get a bigger share of the market. Today, about half a million homes are heated electrically. The industry's goal is two million homes within eight years or less.

Oil, gas and coal—old-time rivals—each are trying hard to increase their sales to home owners. Gas now leads, with oil second and coal trailing after years of having had the market to itself.

It's a big market. Americans are spending between five and six billion dollars this winter to heat 46 million homes. In the northern half of the nation the average bill is estimated at $225.

The National Fueloil Council says oil heats 17 million homes, mostly in the North; gas 20 million, largely in the South and West near the source of natural gas supplies; and hard and soft coal seven million.

The Gas Appliance Manufacturers Assn. says that counting both central and direct heating, gas is used in 23 million homes.

All four—gas, oil, coal and electricity—stress new equipment and methods that make them more economical and efficient.

Edison Electric Institute feels that the interest in electric space heating has grown out of the use of household appliances. It says consumer demand spurred utilities to offer lower rates for heating homes and manufacturers to come out with new devices.

New equipment research has been pushed by General Electric, Westinghouse, Edwin Wiegand, Hotpoint, Borg-Warner, Carrier, McGraw Edison and others.

Cost of electricity has been a chief factor in holding this form of heating back in most areas. But E. O. George, vice president of Detroit Edison, says another has been the need for quality construction in homes. To be economical, electric heating systems require effective insulation, tight structure and attention to details. He adds that architects and builders now are cooperating.

Smog, Lung Cancer Link Isn't Detected

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Science has been unable to show any relation between community air pollution and lung cancer, the director of the University of Michigan's Institute of Industrial Health said today.

Dr. Seward Miller said there is "no substantial statistical, epidemiological or research evidence that breathing polluted air in our communities causes lung cancer."

He said studies have identified one substance in motor vehicle exhausts which can cause skin cancer in mice, but high concentrations of the substance have failed to produce lung cancer even during extended periods of exposure.

F. R. Clymer, manager of the Milwaukee Plankinton plant, said he went to Menominee to inform the 60 workers at the Upper Michigan facility.

He said the Milwaukee plant will take over work done by the Michigan plant that has been operating for the past 48 years.

State Easing Job Austerity

Relaxes Restriction on Filling Vacancies; Also Okays Purchases

LANSING (UPI) — Michigan Tuesday eased its austerity program somewhat regarding the filling of job vacancies.

The State Administrative Board approved a "modest relaxation" of the curtailment program which saw a virtual halt in job replacement.

State Controller James Miller said today's approved change was "more a shifting of responsibility of certain aspects of the curtailment program."

Under the change, an individual agency can fill vacancies occurring on or after today, if the vacancy is under the third level of Civil Service classification and if the "agency head is convinced that established service will be impaired seriously if they are not filled."

"These changes permit a flexibility to agencies they haven't previously had," Miller said.

Miller said it would be possible also to go ahead with purchase of equipment and supplies for the completed sections of the new Boys Vocational School at Whitmore Lake and the Plymouth State Home and Training School.

Positions for these institutions' completed sections will also be filled, Miller said, as the Legislature has appropriated for them.

A State Police recruit training school also will begin about March, he said. There are presently about 41 trooper vacancies. The schools were stopped during the extreme clamp down on state spending.

The out-of-state travel ban was eased slightly also as authority was given an agency to permit travel for one employe.

4 Million Refrigerators May Be Sold During 1960

CHICAGO (AP)—The appliance industry will sell more than four million refrigerators in 1960, says Judson S. Sayre, president of the Norge Division of Borg Warner.

'It Ain't Necessarily So'

Getting a Raise in 1960?

By FAYE HENLE
NEA Columnist

Take a hard look at your pay check as you budget for 1960.

Do you realize that fully a fourth of what you earn is not yours to spend? It was thus through 1959. Regardless of any wage or salary increases you may receive, in 1960 I can promise you'll have less than 75 per cent of your earnings free to spend.

No change is anticipated this year in Federal or state income taxes. Your employer will dock you half a per cent more for social security on the first $4,800 you earn. In 1959 the rate was 2½ per cent. Starting with your first 1960 paycheck it will be 3 per cent, will hit 3½ per cent by 1963. If you are self-employed, this tax rate is 50 per cent higher. Withholdings for medical care and pension plans also are lending to increase.

Balanced against less to spend—even if you are earning more—are the questions, "Whither prices?" and "How should your spending be allocated?"

During 1959, personal income poured into our pockets at the rate of 379 billion dollars, averaging a per-capita personal income of $2,140, a 53 per cent gain in 10 years. But at this year's higher living costs our $2,140 buys only as much as $1,740 would have bought in 1949. Our increase in "real" buying power therefore is but 24 per cent.

Working against any possible decline in prices, or increase in buying power, is the fact that during the 10 year period while our incomes have risen, this nation's output of goods and services has increased by only 23 per cent.

Because we have increased the number of dollars in our per capita incomes by 53 per cent at the same time that we increased our production of goods by less than half that much, there are actually about 20 per cent less goods being produced per dollar of income now than in 1949.

As a result, a dollar of personal income today actually buys about 19 per cent less consumer goods than did the dollar 10 years ago.

How then should we budget?

Economists for the American Bankers' Assn. tell me the old rule-of-thumb pretty well holds. A week's pay out of your monthly income is the suggested amount to spend for housing, either for rent or mortgage payments. Because of higher living costs, you will probably not be able to squeeze the cost of utilities out of this.

Two weeks' pay per month should go for food, clothing, household expenses, medical care and savings.

The fourth week's pay, they say, can go toward repaying what you owe for the goods you are buying on credit.

Depending upon your income and the kind of a job you hold, your personal debt should not exceed 10 to 25 per cent of your annual income.

Many bankers, looking at the dollar total of credit piled up in the U. S. today, suspect that many of us have not observed this rule.

Some bankers are worried lest the terms extended by merchants are too long. They fear that if we continue our off-the-cuff living spree, credit controls might be in order.

Mitchell Will Address Detroit Economic Club

DETROIT (UPI)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, credited with a major role in bringing about peace in the steel industry, will be the principal speaker at meeting of the Detroit Economic Club next Monday.

Mitchell will speak on "Where Are We and Where Do We Go From Here in Management-Labor Relations?"

Birth Control Issue in Catholic Fund Test

ROCKVILLE, Md. (UPI)—Five Maryland taxpayers have asked a state court to block transfer of public funds and land to a Catholic hospital on grounds that birth control advice is forbidden there.

The suit, filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court, was sponsored by the Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State (POAU).

Archer said the action is part of "a national pattern of suits backed by POAU which, we hope, will reach the Supreme Court ultimately and end public tax support for any medical institution which excludes birth control for religious reasons."

Missouri and Idaho are the top lead producing states.

Sen. Green, at 92, Just May Run for 5th Term

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—The nation's oldest U.S. senator, 92-year-old Theodore Francis Green (D-RI), hasn't made up his mind whether to seek a fifth senatorial term.

He told newsmen Tuesday he didn't know whether he will retire or seek re-election.

The oldest man ever to serve in Congress, he would be 98 years old if he completed another term.

This bali breton by Brandt features the new season's smart lilac shade, Spring Haze. The brim, sweeping high in front, fits nicely at the back of the head. Fuchsia grosgrain is used for the band and bow. At right, Damozel revives the Greta Garbo slouch in oatmeal milan. Turquoise taffeta circles the crown and the same shade is carried through in the soft face veil.

Paris Goes Garbo

Pale Make-Up Good Cover Up

MSUO Offers Nurses Class in Social Welfare

"Interviewing in Social Welfare" is the course being offered for the winter term 1960 by Michigan State University Oakland to nurses interested in securing their bachelor's degree. Mrs. Myrtle Reul from Michigan State University will be the instructor.

Classes will begin tonight at 7. Any interested person may call MSUO to reserve a place in the class. Registration will be open for another week.

Those nurses interested in a refresher course in nursing practices and procedures should contact the McAuley School of Practical Nursing.

Wayne State University, in cooperation with the Oakland County District Nurses' Assn. will again offer a program to all Oakland County nurses if there are a sufficient number of nurses interested in participating.

Discourtesy Not Meant, but Was Felt

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I am in my mid-twenties and live at home with my parents. Last Sunday my brother and sister-in-law came over to visit us. During the course of the afternoon I received a telephone call from a friend, asking me if I would like to go to the movies with her about seven o'clock.

I said I would, and when seven o'clock came I excused myself, said good-bye and went out. I have heard that my sister-in-law was quite put out because I went out and left them, and thinks me very discourteous. My brother and his wife very seldom stay later than 8:30, and inasmuch as they came primarily to see my parents, I saw no discourtesy in going out at that time. Was I wrong to leave?

Answer: If you had accepted the invitation to the movies before your brother and his wife came, it would have been proper for you to explain this to them on their arrival and then to have left at seven o'clock. As things were, however, before accepting the invitation you should have told them about it and asked them if they minded your leaving at seven.

Dear Mrs. Post: When an invitation to a large luncheon is sent by several hostesses, is it necessary to send an acceptance to each one, or is it sufficient just to write to one of them, and if so, to which one is it sent?

Answer: You send your reply to the person you know the best. If you know them all equally well you send your answer to the first name on the list.

Dear Mrs. Post: When playing cards, is it good manners to pick up your cards and start assorting them before the dealer has finished dealing them out?

Answer: The cards should not be picked up until all have been dealt out.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it in good taste to wear diamonds—such as a necklace, bracelet, etc., in the daytime? I have been told that diamonds—except a diamond ring — are properly worn only in the evening and that a woman of good taste never wears them in the daytime.

Answer: In the daytime, it is not good taste for a woman to wear so many diamonds that she can be described as "chopping with diamonds," but to wear a few is quite proper.

Church Class Maps Drive for New Members

Preceding a steak supper, devotions were read by Glenn Johnson. Games were directed by Albert Potter and Fred Sage.

Mrs. Sage was elected social director.

LOLA S. DUNBAR

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gallatin Dunbar of North Johnson avenue announce the engagement of their daughter Lola Sharon to William Walter Mabry, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Milton Mabry of Henry Dale street, Auburn Heights. A June 25 wedding date is set.

ZELMA ANN LIECHTY

June nuptials are planned by Zelma Ann Liechty, whose engagement to Dennis Warren has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Liechty of Sheridan street. Her fiance's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Max Warren of Edison street. A June wedding is planned.

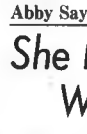

SANDRA MAY FREESE

A fall wedding is planned by Sandra May Freese, whose engagement to Gary Momany has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lisle A. Freese of Scottwood avenue. Her fiance is the son of Mrs. Basil Momany of Clintonville road, and the late Mr. Momany.

Abby Says 'Grab Him'

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two little boys, 3 and 4. I have another child on the way. My husband died six months ago when our tractor overturned on him.

ABBY

Our pastor is begging me to marry him. He spends every spare minute trying to help me and the boys, and they love him very much. I am 27, and he is 33.

My problem is: I admire and respect this man, but I don't love him with the exciting kind of love every woman dreams about. He says it doesn't matter that I don't love him that way and that I will learn to love him because he will make me happy.

I want my children to have a father and I know this man will make a good one. Is it possible to build a marriage on this foundation? UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Run, do not walk to the nearest altar. Mutual admiration and respect are often a sturdier foundation for marriage than "the exciting kind of love every woman dreams about."

DEAR ABBY: I had to laugh when I read the letter from the poor lady who said her husband refused to be seen walking on the street with her if she wore eyeglasses.

I have the same trouble with my wife. Only it is in reverse! My wife can't see a foot in front of her face without glasses. She has a small fortune invested in glasses and they are all in her drawer.

But do you think she will wear them? Not on your life! When we go to a party I have to lead her around like a seeing eye dog so I can tell her who's coming and what is going on. Half the time she doesn't know what's being said because she can't see their faces. Tell that man who refuses to be seen with his wife because she wears glasses that he's got holes in his head.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem you have never heard of before. My husband, who is 36, steals money from our children. Money they have earned and money sent to them for birthdays and holidays. He knows the children are never forgetten on such occasions and because there are six of them, their relatives make a practice of sending them money instead of gifts.

My oldest son worked all summer (where my husband works steady) and the boss gave my husband the money to give to my son. My son never saw the money and was ashamed to tell the boss he never got it.

Is there some way I can make my husband return what he has stolen from the children without calling the police? I hate to make a jailbird out of the children's father.

NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO: Perhaps you could induce him to return the money he has stolen from the children by threatening to call the police.

Your husband is a heartless and unprincipled scoundrel and doesn't deserve the protection you are giving him. Don't waste your time appealing to his sense of decency. He apparently has none. All he can understand is the fear of punishment from the law.

Green Lakers Will Meet

The Green Lake Women's Club will meet Monday noon at the Green Lake Community House for luncheon and a card party. Mrs. Richard Schmid, chairman, has assembled unusual door and table prizes from her recent European trip.

Textured Look Goes to Legs

(UPI)—Short skirts have put legs in the spotlight again, but the leggy look is textured instead of bare. There are tweed and shadow checked stockings to go with tweed suits, walking shoes and the new tapered boots. Twill and jacquard hosiery teams with tailored suits with long jackets and the dressmaker walking pump.

Honeycomb and vertical lace patterns go well with soft suits and dresses and tapered slippers. For country wear are ribbed and feather-stitch types. Dressier outfits call for pique, lace, and keyhole weaves. For evening, there are lace and paisley print stockings, worn with furry sandals.

Put Your Achievements in Perspective

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

As little boys, the sons of actor Joel McCrea knew that their father worked in "pictures," but raised on a ranch instead of in Hollywood, they knew nothing of the kind of idolatry the town concocts for movie stars.

One day, on a visit to New York, it burst upon them. Their father had taken them out to show them Central Park.

Nearby, a group of youngsters fishing in the park lake suddenly recognized in actual flesh the screen image of the handsome, brave, heroes Joel McCrea had played in their local theatres. And screaming with admiring excitement, they besieged him for autographs.

When McCrea finally made his escape, the son who now plays with him in TV's "Wichita Town" asked testily:

"What was the matter with those kids? What did they want you to sign all those pieces of paper for?"

"I'd known I'd have to come up with an answer some day," Joel McCrea told me in reply to my question on the effects of movie-star parents' fame on children. "So what I said was, 'The kids made that big fuss over me because I'm good at making them believe in the niceness of the guys I play in pictures.'"

Sometimes, though you and I aren't on the receiving end of the extravagant flattery given to movie stars, we too, get praise in the presence of our children.

Just as often, we either pooh-pooh it out of a false sense of modesty or swallow it wholesale out of a false sense of pride.

Joel McCrea made neither of these mistakes. He neither allowed his flattering fans to deflate his own appreciation of his success nor did he allow them to exaggerate it.

He simply expressed his own respect for his work, and from what I saw of his sons' affection for him, has won the same kind of realistic respect for it from them.

Much nonsense has been written about the evil effects of parents' fame on Hollywood children.

What produces the evil effects is not the concocted fame but the parents' overevaluation of it.

All of us parents, in or out of the movies, must respect our own achievements whether other people choose to overpraise or minimize them.

Today, superficial child psychology has taught us to fear honest respect for our successes lest it discourage children from achieving theirs.

This fear is not so constructive as we think.

Have to Buy, Can't Pass by?

NEW YORK (UPI)—Motivational researchers probing supermarkets report that there are five basic customer types:

Compulsive (not sure of what she wants, so she buys everything); security seeker (knows what she wants, but fees insecure unless the larder is constantly filled); planful (works with a list and knows comparative prices); scatterbrain (doesn't know how to keep house, forgets things while shopping); lonely one (shops a little at a time because supermarket excursion is a social venture).

Ex-Newspaper Woman Now 'Exterior Decorator'

By MARY PRIME

NEW YORK (UPI) — A former newspaper reporter and copywriter has become an "exterior decorator" for women.

"It started as a hobby seven years ago, when a friend asked me to help her daughter," said Madeleine Christopher (who is Mrs. John Morris in private life). Other friends began asking for her advice, and finally she opened a fashion and beauty consulting service, American woman-in-style. In addition, she owns a public relations agency.

More than 2,000 women from 13 to 85 years have sought advice from Miss Christopher in the past year. Customers come from Quebec, the east coast and the south. About a third are women with cerebral palsy or other afflictions. A small percentage are working women, often nurses. Most are housewives — women whose children are grown, or wives of junior executives.

Customers start with an hour's consultation costing $10.

Miss Christopher analyzes a woman from head to toe and suggests a new hair style, make-up, cosmetic surgery if needed, foundation garments, jewelry and other accessories. She often recommends hair rinses, but discourages middle-aged women from dyeing their hair. If a woman needs to go on a diet, Miss Christopher suggests she do so.

Working on the theory that it takes 30 days to form a habit, Miss Christopher sends women home to practice putting on make-up. They master first one side of the face, then the other. When they can do it easily, they return for Miss Christopher's approval — without charge.

Additional consultation is available, and the director will go shopping with a customer for a $3 fee, although she prefers to let women shop on their own.

HAND CARE
by Edythe McCulloch
With Christmas bills coming in and first of the year taxes and what-not . . . it is nice to know that there is something that doesn't cost any money . . . We can all have beautiful hands for an investment of time and time alone. Since our hands reveal the years, it is well worth while to keep them youthful. Invest your time this way.
1. Apply lotion every time you put your hands in water.
2. Use hand cream at night and work in well.
3. Work cleansing cream in with a handbrush if hands are very soiled.
4. Push cuticle back as you towel dry and reach for the hand lotion.
5. Wear gloves every time you step out of doors.

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor

Many families have reason to have meatless meals which makes homemakers eager for new recipes. In the one today ground pecans take the place of meat, providing the necessary protein.

* * *

Mrs. William D. Gallant of Cedar Island Lake is today's cook. She is an active church worker.

MEATLESS PATTIES
By Mrs. William D. Gallant

1½ cups rolled oats
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sage
3 eggs
1 cup ground onions
1 cup ground pecans

Mix and let stand for several hours. Form into patties. Fry in cooking oil and place in shallow baking dish. Cover with sauce and bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

Sauce

4 tablespoons shortening
1 can (4 ounce) mushroom pieces
4 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon soy sauce
2 cups water (include juice from can of mushrooms)

Danish Singer Plans to Marry Indiana Man

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Danish singer Birthe Wilke plans to marry a young American soon, but he isn't the man she met in Florida and came here to visit.

The 23-year-old brunette and Donald F. Tagmeyer Jr., 21, who lives in neighboring Mishawaka, applied for a marriage license here Monday. Miss Wilke has been living at the home of Tagmeyer's parents since early December.

She met Tagmeyer after coming here last Sept. 23 to visit in the home of John Spagnole, 21, a fruit store clerk whom she had met on a vacation in Florida.

Singing Students Set for Mexico

12 From Waterford Will Attend Summer College Program

Twelve Waterford Township High School students from the choral music department have been invited to attend the Technological Institute of Monterrey, Mexico next summer, according to choral director Richard J. Meier.

This the first time that a group from the northern part of United States has been invited to participate in the summer college program, which is sponsored by a group of Mexican industrialists.

Side trips to Horsetail Falls, Garcia Caves, and the Huesteca Canyon along with fiestas in Mexican homes, and promenades in the main square are included in the program.

The students will be given a 25-hour course in Spanish and five hours of vocal ensemble. All students will take at least 10 class hours a week with a maximum of 40 hours.

The group of students, as yet not named, will present several programs for the churches and civic groups in Monterrey as the Waterford Township High School Mixed Ensemble, State of Michigan, U.S.A. They will leave Pontiac by train July 14 with two faculty sponsors and return Aug. 28.

TOP ATTRACTION—The Pontiac Chapter of the Society for Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc., will be hearing a great deal from this foursome. They are the Easternaires, of Jersey City, N.J., medalists in the 1959 SPEBSQSA international championship contest. The quartet will headline the local chapter's annual Holiday of Harmony show Jan. 23 at the Pontiac Northern High School auditorium. Singing groups from throughout Michigan and the Midwest will appear as well as the Yankee Misses of Royal Oak, international champs in the Sweet Adeline competition for girls. Tickets may be purchased from any local chapter member.

Symington Sits By; May Be in Primary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) said Tuesday he is not formally seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, but will not object if his name is entered in the Oregon preferential primary May 20.

"I'm not an avowed candidate and I'm not entering any primaries," Symington told a news conference. "I think my name probably will go on the ballot in Oregon, but I have no plans to campaign."

Enterprising Plans Scrapped at Junk Yard

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—The Per Fit Co., a scrap firm, is in the process of moving to a new location. Two men in custody today at police headquarters apparently didn't know that.

Police said Lafayette Pruitt, 18, and Duane D. Maxwell, 21, stole about five tons of junk from the old Per Fit warehouse and tried to sell it to the firm at its new office.

Detective Wilbur Beemer and Patrolman Dennis Booker said the plan fell flat when a company employe recognized items offered for sale from a truck driven by Pruitt. Maxwell was picked up at his home. The officers said the men admitted taking some 32 barrels of junk valued at about $300.

The first public bath and washhouse was opened on Jan. 1, 1852, by the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

Education in 60s to Be Demanding; Horse Days Gone

(Editor's Note: This is the third of 10 articles on the State of Michigan and the Fabulous '60s. The President of the University of Michigan takes a look at college education needs.)

BY DR. HARLAN HATCHER
President, University of Michigan

ANN ARBOR (AP) — The decade ahead is not one which is likely to give much encouragement to the static, the complacent, or the commonplace in education any more than it is in other fields of human endeavor.

In simple fact, change is apt to be the most important single feature in the development of higher education in the 1980s.

For one thing, the sheer pressure of numbers to be educated will keep Michigan's colleges and universities in a "boom market" throughout the period.

There is no gainsaying the fact that nearly twice as many students will be demanding a college education by 1970 as we have enrolled in all our institutions today.

These students already are with us, in our elementary and secondary schools. Are we then to deny them an opportunity for higher education?

Clearly, the requirements for an educated citizenry and for trained personnel in a rapidly expanding society, as well as the personal development of these young people, demand that they be educated to the fullest extent of their capacities.

In concrete terms this means facilities for higher education in the state must roughly be doubled in the next 10 years. It also means that we shall face an unprecedented demand, one which looms as a national emergency, for additional qualified teachers for our colleges and universities.

But there is still another aspect of higher education in the '60s which calls for serious thought and dynamic leadership.

It concerns the rapidly expanding frontiers of knowledge in just about every field of human endeavor. In truth, this might be called an explosion of knowledge, so abruptly has it been thrust upon our institutions of higher education.

There was a time not long ago when a bachelor's degree was considered adequate for most fields of study.

The trend today is clear and the future will see it accelerated: Advanced study beyond the bachelor's degree is becoming more and more necessary as the volume of knowledge to be imparted keeps growing at an accelerated pace.

Who would have dreamed 10 years ago, for example, that the University of Michigan would now be offering complete new programs in nuclear engineering and astronautics?

These fields, and many others, constantly are demanding increased specialization and study most of it as the graduate level.

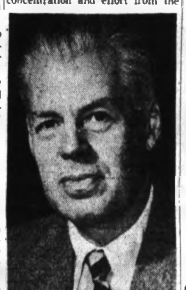

GRADUATE LEVEL TREND

To a university such as Michigan, this trend has profound significance. Already heavily devoted to graduate work—40 per cent of the student body is in graduate or graduate-professional study—the university faces pressures all its own whatever the decision on how to provide opportunities for the state's growing undergraduate population.

The decade ahead also will bring about other demands and other needs which may make the past 10 years seem like a period of ease and little progress.

Space does not permit more than a mention of some of the major changes which almost certainly lie ahead.

It seems clear, however, that our universities and colleges are approaching a four-semester year with a 12-month academic calendar, that higher and higher admissions standards will require greater concentration and effort from the student who wishes to enter college, and that there will be an expansion of institutes, particularly in the sciences, to meet demands for advance study and research in highly specialized fields.

Major changes also will be forthcoming in teaching methods and educational programs designed to enhance the value and speed of the learning process, and a shorter work week and more leisure time will speed up demands for extension of adult education programs.

Throughout all these changes, however, it is essential that we keep foremost in our minds the concept of quality.

We cannot achieve our educational goals, and we cannot remain in the forefront of world leadership, unless we resolve first of all that we shall not give up the excellence we have obtained, that we shall not succumb to the temptation merely to divide up what we have into smaller parts.

Some 20 million families will be formed in the United States in the next decade. Right now they have none of the goods or services of our American economy: No houses, no cars, no refrigerators, no television sets, and no professional and other services. What is even more important, their 75 million new children have no hospitals and doctors, no baby foods and vitamins, no books and schools.

Are we then merely to parcel out what we have to meet these needs? Of course not. The siren song of normalcy is one which pleads for no change, no vision and no future. In reality it pleads for defeat.

MUST BE CREATIVE

Our responses in higher education, as in all fields of national endeavor, must be to create new abundance, in the tradition of America, and with these new resources to advance inland from our present narrow beachheads.

Honestly, Honey, This Tale Isn't a Bare-Faced Lie

"Will other persons who saw a black bear blowing a horn in a car in a parking lot on E. Capitol Dr. about 2:30 a.m. New Year's Eve please contact L. V. Barnes at Broadway 6-4837."

Barnes insisted, "I know a big black hairy bear when I see one, and I saw one. There were lots of people. We all saw it. I just want to find some of them so I can prove it. I don't know why my wife won't believe me."
