Deaths Increase to 13 as Floods Become Worse

More of South Faces Threat; Damages Run Into Millions

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The toll of death and destruction mounted today as new heavy rains fed one of the worst floods in the history of the Appalachian Mountain region and carried the threat deeper into the South.

Thirteen were dead in Kentucky, West Virginia and Virginia—first to be struck when floodwaters rolled out of the mountains four days ago.

President Eisenhower declared portions of Kentucky and West Virginia a disaster area as damages ran into millions of dollars.

Virginia Gov. Thomas B. Stanley also requested disaster designation for six southwest counties where 2,000 were homeless and 18,000 knocked out of their jobs.

Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, president of the American Red Cross, said it was allocating half a million dollars for flood relief in the three states.

But even as already devastated areas began the herculean task of getting back to normal, new flood warnings were raised in Tennessee, western North Carolina and northeast Georgia.

RISE SWIFTLY

Farther south, the Warrior River was rising swiftly in Alabama, where the Tombigbee also was expected to go out of its banks.

Heavy rains continued to pound east Tennessee from Chattanooga to Knoxville. Eight and a half inches have fallen in 12 days, more than twice the normal amount for the month.

Two hundred families fled their homes at Sevierville, 26 miles southeast of Knoxville, as water from the Little Pigeon River rose to two and three feet deep in the center of town.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Asheville, N. C., sounded flash flood warnings for the mountain section. The Southern Railroad reported three freight trains stalled by landslides in western North Carolina.

Homes were evacuated between Robbinsville and Upton, where streams fed by 24 hours of continuous rain covered sections of U. S. Highway 129.

In Tennessee, portions of Knoxville and Gatlinburg already were under water. Schools were closed and highways were cut off.

Knudsen Opens Display

By J. JAMES BINDER
News Editor, Pontiac Press

Souped-up, fueled and fussed-over for weeks by eight of the city's leading car experts, the 1957 Auto Show sprang into life without a sputter this morning and began to throb as efficiently as any of the engines that power its more than 30 gleaming "stars."

The ignition key was a pair of scissors used by Pontiac Chief Semon E. Knudsen to slash the ceremonial ribbon spanning the entrance to the show floor, located at Oliver Motor Sales' new service building, 40 Walnut St. Business and government leaders who witnessed the ceremony were the first of estimated thousands of area residents who are expected to crowd into the bunting-bedecked building to see the three-day event.

Sponsored by eight dealer-members of the Pontiac Automotive Trades Assn., the exposition will be highlighted by a series of variety shows, fashion displays and the crowning of "Miss 1957 Auto Show."

The building's main floor, 16,000 square feet in area, will be occupied largely by 11 different makes of cars from the showrooms of local dealers. Special displays include three General Motors Corp. "dream cars," the Pontiac Bonneville and La Parisienne, and Buick's Wildcat.

A special feature of the show will be a booth at which visitors may cast ballots, at 10 cents each, for their choices among the three candidates who will vie for the title of "Miss 1957 Auto Show."

Manned by the Women's Auxiliary of Pontiac General Hospital, the booth's entire proceeds will be turned over to a special fund for helping to finance the hospital's new wing.

The winning candidate will be presented to crowds at a 7 p. m. coronation ceremony Sunday night. Nominees, who will appear on the show floor at various times during the three days, include Judith Wood, 2701 W. Huron St.; Jo Giroux, 8306 Cascade Rd.; and Margaret Hedden, 4607 Baldwin Ave.

Supermarket Fires Baffle Investigators

Insurance investigators today remained baffled over the causes of two area supermarket fires which yesterday caused over $150,000 estimated loss.

An electrical fire was ruled out at the Giroux supermarket, 1535 Cooley Lake Rd., Commerce Township, where more than $100,000 worth of stock was believed destroyed as the building was gutted.

Preliminary estimates of $25,000 to $30,000 damage to the store itself had not been revised.

No immediate explanation of the estimated $30,000 fire at the Donato supermarket, 6500 Hatchery Rd., Waterford Township, was given.

Authorities said there is no suspicion of arson at either store.

73 Hurt; 2 Boys With Serious Injuries Still Fight for Survival

LOS ANGELES (INS)—Three 13-year-old schoolboys, who were among more than 70 youngsters cut down by the flaming wreckage of an airliner-jet collision that took seven lives, battled for survival today.

A flaming DC7B commercial airliner plunged crazily into a crowded schoolyard in suburban Los Angeles yesterday after a collision in flight with an F89 Scorpion interceptor jet.

Four persons aboard the airliner were killed, the pilot in the jet died and two children playing below perished. Seventy-one youngsters and two adults were injured.

The disaster brought a sharp demand for an end to test flights over the Los Angeles metropolitan area. Both planes were being test flown at the time of the collision.

Mayor Norris Poulson of Los Angeles appealed directly to President Eisenhower for action after parents and public officials raised a cry for a halt to such tests.

The ill-fated planes were flying at an altitude of 18,000 to 25,000 feet when they apparently met with terrific impact. The big luxury DC7B went into a spin and then began to disintegrate in the air just before it crashed.

A moment before the plane hit the earth, Archie Twitchell, 50-year-old co-pilot of the big Douglas plane and a part time actor, shouted over the ship's radio: "My God, we're going to hit!"

There was a pause and then he continued in the voice of a man who is about to meet death: "Mid-air collision! mid-air collision!"

"We're going uncontrollable—uncontrollable!" "Say goodbye to everybody..."

With an assist from the weatherman, Oakland County mothers chalked up a near record total of $86,342 for their Mothers' March on Polio Thursday.

Departing from custom, the woman, and men too, made the campaign an all-day affair, rather than a "porchlight" march.

Although a few scattered returns are yet to be reported, the figure of $86,342 fell some $3,000 short of 1956's all-time high of $89,405, according to Ernest Goodworthy, Oakland County campaign director.

He estimated that about another $1,000 will come in to narrow the gap to $2,000.

Goldworthy reported the following collections from the communities in Oakland:

Pontiac, $7,190; Birmingham, Bloomfield and Franklin, $21,375; Clarkston, $386; Holly and Davisburg, $376; Lake Orion, $747; Milford and Highland, $239; Oxford, $655; Rochester, Avon and Oakland Townships, $1,783.

Press Corrects Story of Doctor's Testimony

In a January 19 story concerning the assault trial of ex-Pontiac policeman James B. Sexton, The Press erroneously reported that defense witness Dr. A. Tauber of Pontiac testified that he had not personally examined Sexton. Sexton was charged with the off-duty shooting of two friends, and Dr. Tauber testified that Sexton had suffered a temporary brain injury sufficient, in his opinion, to explain his behavior. Dr. Tauber had examined Sexton. The Press regrets the error.

Mrs. Wilson Defends Husband, Tells Ike Off

FROM OUR WIRE SERVICES
WASHINGTON — The most fascinating argument in Washington this week is not between President Eisenhower and King Saud of Saudi Arabia, but between Ike and an embattled woman.

That lady is the formidable Mrs. Charles E. Wilson of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., whose outspoken husband is Ike's secretary of defense.

Mrs. Wilson, in a no-holds-barred, to heck with the consequences interview, has lambasted the President, like the outspoken Charlie would never do, for daring to call a statement of her husband's "unwise."

The statement in question was Wilson's declaration that a lot of draft dodgers entered the National Guard during the Korean war to avoid active duty.

Death Toll Jumps to 13 in Flood Areas

Red-eyed and unshaven from a hurried tour of flood-ravaged southeastern Kentucky, described "the most distressing scenes I've ever encountered."

He said the devastating Ohio River flood 20 years ago "wasn't anything like this one, not nearly as destructive."

"The water crept up then, slowly and menacingly, and with a warning. This one was water and force."

Twenty-three counties in Kentucky, West Virginia and Virginia were designated by the Small Business Administration as disaster areas.

Overcast skies held the threat of more rain and grounded Army helicopters, waiting to air-lift typhoid vaccine, medicines, food and other supplies into the flood area.

The devastated area in Kentucky followed the course of the Kentucky, Big Sandy and the Cumberland, which also reaches into Tennessee.

Among the hardest hit in Kentucky were Hazard, Pikeville and Prestonsburg, where National Guardsmen patrolled streets to prevent pilfering while portable generators and water purifiers were trucked in.

7 Perish as Planes Crash Near School

grade boys frolicked in a schoolyard below, unaware of the impending disaster.

The sprawling school, located on the northern side of the crowded San Fernando Valley, is a series of new one-story structures housing the Pacoima Junior High School, the Terra Bella Elementary School and the Pacoima Congregational Church.

FALLS TO PIECES

The airliner hurtled apart as it fell. The wings burst into space, the tail snapped off. The port engines caught fire and revved wildly, trailing smoke eerily through the mid-afternoon sky.

The main portion of the wreckage hurtled into the schoolyard "like a bomb," one witness said, and mowed the gymnasium down with hot, flying plane parts that filled the air like jagged shrapnel.

In a few seconds, the schoolyard was littered with the motionless forms of children. Those who were not badly injured went into shock and cried hysterically.

The boys who were killed were Ronnie Brann and Bobby Zalan, both 13 and both of Pacoima. The four men who died aboard the DC-7 were William Carr, 38, of Pacific Palisades; Twitchell, of Northridge; Waldo B. Adams of Los Angeles, and Roy Nakazawa.

The pilot who died in the jet was Roland E. Owen, 36, of Palmdale, Calif. His radar operator, Curtis Adams, 27, of Palmdale, bailed out and suffered severe facial burns and cuts and bruises.

IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Three of the youngsters, all 13, were in critical condition. They are Albert Ballou, Vito Gallasso and Raymond Lafinier.

Hundreds of other children were in the school buildings at the time of the crash and several hundred youngsters at the Terra Bella School narrowly escaped because they had just gone inside after recess.

The large schoolyard was littered with broken fragments of the plane and the roofs and lawns of houses for blocks around the school were covered with twisted pieces of fuselage. On one street, the trees were surreally decorated with bits of debris.

In the schoolyard were torn clothing, shoes and scorched gym equipment.

One of the boys who was injured told of the scene of horror in the playing field. Twelve-year-old Floyd Negrate said: "When the plane hit, parts were flying all over the place. Everybody started to run away. Some boys tried to climb fences, some were hit by flying pieces of the plane."

"I tripped and fell and hurt my head and broke my left arm. 'I saw part of a body flying at me.'"

There has been no explanation of how the collision could have occurred. It happened in broad daylight in perfectly clear weather.

Your Income Tax

This is one of a series of articles prepared by the U. S. Internal Revenue Service to help you prepare your income tax return.

SELF-EMPLOYED?

If you carry on a business as a sole proprietor or if you render services as an independent contractor or as a member of a partnership — you will have self-employment income. If you had at least $400 of net earnings from self-employment — you must file an annual return of self-employment income on Form 1040. The maximum amount subject to self-employment is $4,200.

If you had wages subject to social security — subtract the total wages from $4,200 to arrive at the maximum amount subject to self-employment tax.

The self-employment tax rate is 3 per cent of the net earnings from your business but not to exceed the limitations discussed above. The self-employment tax is a part of the total tax to be paid with your tax return. Income derived solely from salary or wages, dividends, interest on investments, capital gains, annuities or pensions, is not self-employment income.

(Further information on income tax problems is available without charge at the Internal Revenue Service office, 334 W. Hudson St. Phone FE 2-0208.)

Two Seek Reelection; Filing Deadline Feb. 23

BIRMINGHAM—With a Feb. 23 deadline for filing petitions, City Clerk Irene Hanley said today two incumbents had already expressed their desire to seek re-election.

City commissioner, Florence Willett, filling a two-year vacancy term, will seek to return to the post for a full three-year term at the April 2 election.

Seeking his second full three-year term is commissioner William Roberts.

James Allen, mayor of the city, was elected first in 1955, winning a four-year term. He has said he will not seek an additional term.

Miss Hanley reminded office seekers that each petition must contain signatures of at least 25 qualified voters and not more than fifty. She stressed that all signers must use pen and ink.

Charles Phillips, 41, of 17326 Greenfield Rd., Detroit and Valentine Brooks, 27, of 2591 Sloan St., Dearborn, were arraigned before Associate Justice John Emery in Birmingham Municipal Court yesterday.

Charged with attempted grand larceny, the pair demanded examination and a hearing was set for Feb. 8. A cash bond set at $10,000 was not furnished and Phillips is being held in Oakland County Jail.

Brooks was turned over to Detroit police where he was out on $10,000 bond on another grand larceny charge. This bond was canceled in recorder's court session yesterday and a new bond was set for $25,000. Trial was postponed until Feb. 11.

The two men were arrested here after an attempt to steal a deep freeze from beside the Milks Appliances Building at 1493 South Woodward Ave. They were interrupted while trying to load the equipment on a truck and fled. Birmingham police picked them up shortly after.

Mailmen to Hold State Meeting

Pay Raises to Be Topic at Annual Banquet Set Saturday in Pontiac

Michigan mailmen will meet in Pontiac Saturday with pay raises as their main subject.

James Rademacher, regional representative of the National Association of Lettercarriers, will discuss wage increases asked by mailmen at their national convention last September and currently under consideration by a Congressional committee.

Rademacher, president of the Detroit branch of Michigan lettercarriers, will speak at the annual state banquet and meeting at 6:30 p. m. in the Congregational Church.

The Pontiac branch will be host, said Harold Wright, co-chairman of the program and a member of the state executive board. He said about 270 mailmen are expected.

Police Traffic Unit Lists New Hours

Effective tomorrow, the Traffic and Violations Bureau of the Pontiac Police, 40 E. Pike, will be closed on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays to those persons applying for operator, chauffeur or taxi cab license.

Regular hours for applying or renewing these licenses, registering changed addresses and other license business will be from 8 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Monday through Friday only, Police Chief Herbert W. Straley said.

The bureau will be open Saturdays from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. only for payment of traffic violation fees, release of impounded autos and other police business connected with traffic violations, Straley added.

This will conform with the standard working days of other city civilian employees.

Iraq's airways carried 40,000 passengers in 1955, up from 10,000 in 1947.

King Saud Comes Calling in Dream

By SAUL PETT
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP)—I had a crazy dream last night. Real crazy. We were sitting in the living room when the front door chimed. My wife said, "If it's that salesman again, you handle it."

I opened the door and there he was, in person, tall, bearded, smiling, imposing in his long robes — King Saud of Saudi Arabia. He was, of course, surrounded by his 70 fellow travelers, including the guards with gold sabers and tommy guns. They filled up the walk and two-thirds of the dead crab grass. An interpreter explained that the King thought it might be informative if he could drop in, unannounced, at an average American home. See how Americans live, that kind of thing. I said come in and they did, most of them.

Eight guards remained out front standing guard on the dead crab grass. Eight others shipped around the back to ease the yard. The others filed into the living room and it quickly filled up like a crowded cocktail party in costume. Saber sheaths clanked against furniture. We lost two small vases. I introduced my family. My wife looked faint. The two girls gawked. The younger one, a ham who has learned all about Moslem etiquette from TV, made a broken-legged curtsy and murmured exotically, "Aahib." Her sister kicked her.

"This is your only wife?" the King asked politely through his interpreter. "The one and only," I laughed. "But surely there are others — other women who..." "Oh, no, no, no," I hiccupped.

"That small vehicle out there — it is some kind of small Cadillac?" "Oh, no, just an old Plymouth."

The King said it must have been made in Europe. I said it was made in America, that we make many cars besides Cadillacs. An aide noted that down. The King, after a pause, asked, "how much oil do you possess?" "At the moment, I'd guess, about 200."

"Wells or fields?" "No, 200 gallons, in the basement tank." The aide was taking notes furiously by now.

The King's ears suddenly perked up. "You keep animals in your home," he asked.

I explained that the sound he heard came from the kids' record player upstairs. I decided not to explain about Elvis Presley.

"Drink, gentlemen?" I asked, rubbing my palms together in my best suburban host manner. "We have scotch and—." It was my wife who kicked me this time. She remembered, from the papers, that the King didn't drink. There was an awkward pause and to fill it, I invited the visitors to dinner. The King said he would be delighted. Getting up off the floor, my wife made some choking noises, excused us, and dragged me into the kitchen.

"Listen, Mr. Dulles," she hissed, "You gone crazy?" I suggested she dash out to the delicatessen and lay off the hot pastrami. Just then an aide came in and explained that only the King would be dining with us. My wife said, in that case, fine, he could share our tuna fish casserole.

Two official tasters came in and tried the casserole. One paled under his robes, the other shuddered. Some mumbled Arabic passed excitedly between them. Shortly after, the King and his party left. Something was said about having to get back to the Arabian Embassy.

"Well!" my wife snapped. "I hope we don't lose those air bases," I said.

See Check Handling Soon Automated

ANN ARBOR (INS)—A conference of Michigan bankers was told that many of the nation's larger banks will be using automated check handling and bookkeeping systems within the next three to five years.

Duane Watts, associate director of Management Advisory Services for Price, Waterhouse and Co., of Boston, told the group magnetic ink will be used to imprint information on checks processed with automated equipment. This will eliminate many of the manual sorting operations now necessary in check handling.

The first bank handling each check would imprint the dollar amount in magnetic form. Since this imprinting does not require elaborate printing equipment it can be done in the first step of the proofing and sorting operation. "All subsequent operations, in theory at least, will be done completely automatically, both by the first bank handling the check and by all others including finally the bank on which it was drawn."

German General to Head NATO Ground Forces

Announcement that a German General, 59-year-old HANS SPEIDEL, has been named to command all NATO ground forces in Central Europe, shows how things have changed in the last 12 years.

General Speidel is a thoroughly trained and experienced German Army officer of World War II. He was charged with being implicated in the "generals' plot" to assassinate Hitler and was imprisoned for the rest of the war. The General is credited with having saved Paris by resisting Hitler's order that the city be destroyed.

After the war and until he was called back into service in 1951, SPEIDEL was a professor of economics at his alma mater, the University of Tuebingen. He took over as the chief German representative at French headquarters of NATO in 1955, and is well liked among his associates. Chancellor ADENAUER invited him into the West German government in 1950. He is credited with gaining the Allies' confidence during talks leading to Germany's admission into NATO.

General SPEIDEL will command the U.S. Seventh Army and the British Army of the Rhine, totaling 10 first rate divisions. There also will be small units of French and some from Belgium, Denmark, the Netherlands and Norway.

Five German divisions have been promised by the end of the year. But a lot depends on the parliamentary elections in September. The appointment of General SPEIDEL may overcome some German reluctance to rearm.

European Unity in Sight

The French Assembly's approval in broad principle of a six nation common market has brightened prospects for the economic and political unification of Western Europe. At the recent Brussels meeting, France, Italy, Germany and the Benelux countries agreed to preliminary financing for a "European Common Market." This would eliminate all tariffs and other economic barriers against each other.

It eventually could mean the free flow of capital, labor and goods in an area with a population of 250 million. Joint development plans for atomic power for both military and peaceful purposes also have been completed under another organization called "Euratom." Other European nations, including Britain and the Scandinavian countries are considering a broader free trade area in which tariffs would be eliminated gradually. Members, however, would retain individual control of their tariffs against non-members.

Britain, which held off in the past because of Commonwealth interests, now is pushing European Union. Suez and the ensuing economic upset drove home to the British government the necessity for such action.

The London Economist reminds its readers of the advantages of mass production for a European mass market. It also draws attention to the opportunity for each nation to exploit its special resources.

There are difficulties ahead, of course. But there also is a new optimism over results of the Brussels meeting and new determination to overcome obstacles.

Thorough Airing Needed

An encouraging development is the action of the AFL-CIO Executive Council at its current meeting in Miami.

The Council ordered its 141 unions to remove from office any union official refusing to give testimony before a Senate Investigating subcommittee. The only vote against this resolution was cast by DAVE BECK, president of the Teamsters Union, the largest AFL-CIO affiliate. He rejected the ultimatum barring leaders from invoking the Fifth Amendment.

The Senate met some union objections that Chairman McLELLAN's committee has no jurisdiction. A special bipartisan committee has now been appointed to investigate the union's huge welfare fund.

Although there is no Federal law to force a union to open its books, the Taft-Hartley act requires that unions and their leaders file financial statements with the Labor Department. These statements can not be examined by any Government agency nor by the Senate. Unions and their financial operations are tax exempt.

Alleged irregularities in the conduct of union affairs are serious. The average dues paying member should be more than interested in bringing out all the facts.

Wall Street Journal Can't Hang a Tag on It Either

Pessimist: An alumnus of the school of optimism.

A letter addressed to me reads as follows: "The Wall Street Journal says the New Pontiac Bonneville Convertible will sell for $5,782. I haven't seen that in The Press. Is this price correct?"

Well, I talked to my two old friends, "Bunkie" Knudsen and "Bob" Emerick, about this and they tell me there's no price tag on it right now as they only plan to build 1,500.

These 1,500 will go to dealers around the country as an experimental showing to see how the public reacts and how the cars actually handle under all conditions and climates.

Hence, there is no price at the moment. However, I'll say this without fear of contradiction: the Bonneville is the greatest looking automobile these wide eyed peepers ever glimpsed and it won't go for hay.

U.S. Has Irresponsible Budget Plan

WASHINGTON — If this correspondent were asked to say what is the biggest news development in the national capital nowadays and yet the one that is being given relatively little attention, it would be the story that surrounds the federal budget involving $72 billions of expenditure.

The recent incident in which Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey expressed his chagrin at the size of the spending program submitted to Congress by the President was generally assumed at first to be merely a difference of opinion between a cabinet officer and the chief executive.

But the President said it wasn't. What was behind it really was a sense of frustration over the invisible influences that force items into the budget which the nation cannot afford.

The popular impression is that the Secretary of the Treasury makes up the budget and that the President then sends it on to Congress. Actually, under existing law, the Secretary of the Treasury has nothing to do with the proposed expenditures listed in the budget. He is commanded by law merely to furnish estimates of incoming revenue and to propose ways and means of raising money if there is a deficit. As for the individual items of expenditure in the budget, he doesn't see them in advance and has no more to do with their inclusion in the budget — outside of his own department — than does the Secretary of the Interior or any other cabinet officer.

America's irresponsible budget system, its weaknesses and its failures constitute a serious problem, yet, because it is an unspectacular subject and involves such a wide variety of items, the public doesn't come to grips with it.

In fact, no concentrated attention is given to the spending programs as a whole even in the executive branch of the government except in the office of the President. This is a full-time job and a president cannot give it detailed attention.

As a practical matter, what this means is that the director of the budget collates the data and is in a position to explain to the President what each item means. But the budget is by law made the responsibility of the President and

Is City Engineer Only for Our Use?

Concerning Pontiac's traffic engineer... I am wondering if we have his exclusive use or if we can loan him out periodically to Birmingham and Rochester to iron out their troubles, too. Every time I read The Press I see where he is telling someone how to control traffic or decontrol pedestrians. In Pontiac he has succeeded in making pedestrians out of car owners and the city itself the biggest land baron.

Offers Comments on Flying Saucers

I have read a lot of reports on UFO (flying saucers), one of which is all facts written by Major Donald E. Keyhole, USMC (retired). He, in my estimation, is a qualified man on this subject.

I have read a lot of books by people who would have us believe that this is a good fiction story. I do not say that you or anyone else should believe in this strange phenomenon, but it certainly should be looked into.

When our best and most reputable pilots report these and yet they continue to fly our large airliners, there must be something to it. A pilot has a pretty stiff test to pass before he can fly, and it seems to me that after he reports such as this, he would be grounded, as the CAP is very strict as to who flies our citizens around.

Saud, Sandys in America on Missions That Clash

By JOHN H. MARTIN

King Saud, the colorful guest of President Eisenhower, supports little Yemen's attempt to grab the British protectorate of Aden at the lower end of the Arabian Peninsula. His visit to Washington happens to coincide with that of British Defense Minister Duncan Sandys, whose talks with U.S. leaders involve Britain's growing inability to meet her defense bills.

Part of Britain's defense bills includes the cost of keeping King Saud's troops out of the Buraimi oasis and other disputed sections of eastern Arabia, as well as curbing Yemeni territorial ambitions.

King Saud's hostility toward Britain primarily dates back to the

'Maintain Defense in Critical Times'

Some of the sweetness-and-light boys think there are no particular danger spots in the world where war might break out. The U.S. cites these: Israel, Saudi, Turkey, Arabia, Jordan, Iraq, Iran and Yemen. That's too healthy a list for comfort.

Perhaps the President of the United States hasn't put enough into his budget for the Department of Defense. Perhaps we aren't sending enough money to Europe and the countries bordering Russia. It's the cheapest way. I know about to defend ourselves right now.

These are critical times. Do you want to lower your guard when the enemy is standing there looking you over and when he's the possessor of a real hefty offense himself? I'd rather look as though I were ready to swing.

Books, Erotic or Biotic, Contain Lessons of Life

When I was young and ill-advised I did read some fiction, such as David Copperfield, Tom Sawyer, Robinson Crusoe, David Harum and Black Beauty.

Only the last named book made a lasting impression, a life-long impression.

After I had served 18 years in the mines—in Siberia, that is—I became engrossed in murder mysteries and for some years I read nothing else, aside from medical literature.

Finally I became disgusted with who-dun-it stuff or rather with the booze and fornication the publishers served in lieu of plot.

EMULATED FATHER

Then I tried to emulate a blacksmith and railroad crossing guard, my father, whose favorite reading was history, biography and poetry. I found most of it beyond my depth. I did enjoy Knut Hamsun's "Growth of the Soil," which I thought was autobiographical. Maybe that quality was what won the Nobel prize.

I forget now just how I happened to pick up "The Friendly Arctic"—probably because the title suggested that one might learn from such a book something about the actual effects of exposure to cold. I learned more than that.

I learned a good deal about the cause and prevention of scurvy and about the harmlessness of exposure of an isolated person to cold and wet and about the prevention and treatment of frostbite.

COLD, WET, HEALTHY

Later, when I met the distinguished author, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, when he and his colleague, Karsten Andersen, were living for a year on an exclusive meat diet, under the observation and study of scientific experts, I learned that neither he nor any member of his party ever suffered any illness consequent upon exposure to cold and wet in the five years they lived in the Arctic.

"But we had been infected as soon as we reached Cape Bathurst and repeatedly during the fall we 'caught cold' as they called it, some new settlement of whites or Eskimos." Somehow the members of the party had not become sufficiently "hardened" to withstand the rigors of civilization.

Stefansson and Andersen finished the year on exclusive meat diet in better all-around health than they had when they began eating nothing but meat.

"We averaged about a pound and a third of lean per day and a half a pound of fat," said Stefansson, in "Adventures in Diet." This is about like eating a two-pound broiled sirloin with all the fat such as a steak usually has on it.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Suggests Novel Ideas for Parties

If you have trouble planning the games or recreation for a party or social affair, you will be interested in Bill's dilemma and the partial solution thereto as described below. Keep a scrapbook of all ideas such as these, and then consult it when you must plan the entertainment for a crowd.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
Case T-389: Bill A., aged 20, is president of the senior class in a neighboring university.

"Dr. Crane, we're organizing for a big dance in a few weeks," he announced, "and would like to make it different from the usual party."

"So, what would you suggest to add a little novelty or uniqueness to our program?"

FUN FACTS

Well, I offered Bill an idea which had been used at a party held at our Northwestern University Law School a few months ago.

There the students inaugurated a plan which may be familiar to many of you readers, for it isn't original. They based their admission charge on the weight of each girl.

Each boy thus had to pay one-third of a cent per pound for his girl friend. Thus, if she weighed 120 pounds, his admission to the dance was 40 cents.

In order to flatter their own vanity, as well as save their escorts a few cents on the admission charge, most of the girls tactfully removed their coats, before stepping on the scales.

NOVEL TICKET CHARGE

However, if a girl was so afraid of the scales that she refused to be weighed, then her companion had to pay $1.00, so most of the coeds dutifully stepped upon the scales.

The members of the faculty were also subjected to this same "weighing in" process. A popular Dean magnanimously handed over $1.37 for his wife, saying she weighed 137, and was easily worth a cent per pound, in contrast to the other girls who rated but one-third that price.

Needless to say, this new form of admission charge proved very entertaining and also productive of a great deal of laughter and good fun. It broke the ice.

I also recommend it to the churches as an interesting method for setting the price for a church supper or other admission charge. Those who are worried about revealing their real weight can avoid this embarrassment by simply paying a higher fixed price.

Such a plan might also encourage dieting on the part of our middle-aged people, many of whom are so fat they waddle when they walk.

As a variation of the "weighing in" process for admission to parties, I have seen the punch board device employed, whereby the price ranged from one cent to $1.00, and the couple paid whatever amount was on the slip which they punched from the board.

At other social events, the prices were sealed in plain envelopes, and the boys selected one of these at random, grab bag style, and then paid the admission charge written on the enclosed ticket or slip of paper.

Except for dancing and card playing, hostesses are often at a loss regarding other interesting forms of entertainment.

Many such parties degenerate to children's games or else develop into contests of wits, which frighten those who aren't well educated or particularly alert.

To cover up their ignorance and protect their vanity, these guests may then profess boredom or refuse to participate in the intellectual games at all.

One way by which to enlist their active cooperation, yet protect their vanity, is to team them up in pairs or threes and teams, letting each group serve as a unit. Then they can pool their combined knowledge in trying to solve the mental game or test.

And if they don't make a high score, they will not feel so humiliated, for the stigma is spread over the entire group who cooperated. As long as misery has company, misery is not so uncomfortable or embarrassing.

Remember, pencil and paper games are very entertaining and easy to prepare, but they seldom prove popular unless the hostess thus divides her crowd into these small competing sections, letting them cooperate as an entire group so their individual ignorance is masked or hidden.

If you wish my set of "Party Games" that work far better than cocktails to promote fun and informality, send a stamped envelope plus 20 cents.

They break the ice in a hurry and produce quick audience participation.

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 3c stamped, self-addressed envelope and the 20c stamp and printing costs when you send for this psychological chart and pamphlet.

Twenty-Third in a Press Series by Don Whitehead

Study Crime Today to Avoid It Later

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is the twenty-third in a series of 30 highlights from "The FBI Story," a book about the Federal Bureau of Investigation by Don Whitehead, Pulitzer Prize winner.

By DON WHITEHEAD
Of the postwar crime problem which confronted the FBI and local law enforcement officers in the wake of World War II, Director J. Edgar Hoover had said in 1944: "It is well to analyze the conditions that breed crime today, in order that we may prevent it tomorrow."

One of the primary causes of the alarming increase in crime among our young people, for example, has been the disintegration of the home as a guiding influence. The tremendous number of parents who have entered the armed services and war industries no longer can exercise sufficient control over their sons and daughters.

Much of the crime increase could be accounted for by the increase in the nation's population. But that wasn't the whole answer by any means. From 1945 to 1955, population increased 24.3 per cent while crime increased 44.3 per cent.

JUVENILE RATE HIGH
A few statistics tell a part of the story. The major crimes committed in 355 cities in the prewar years 1937-1939 averaged 630,257 each year.

These were crimes of murder, man-slaughter, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny and automobile theft. In these same cities, the major crimes in the postwar years 1946-1955 averaged almost 800,000 each year.

In 1955, a serious crime was committed on an average of every 13.9 seconds.

The most shameful part of the postwar crime record was the number of teen-age children involved in major law violations.

Boys and girls under 18 were involved in 42.3 per cent of the arrests made for major crimes; and almost half of these were under 15.

The reports showed that 62.2 per cent of those arrested in 1955 for automobile thefts and 52.7 per cent of those arrested for burglary had not reached their 18th birthday.

The bare statistics standing by themselves gave the frightening impression that young people had no moral restraints and were running wild. Such an impression was false, of course, but the situation was disgraceful and there was confusion across the land.

FBI STARTS SCHOOL

As early as 1946, Hoover considered the problem so pressing that he directed the organization of an FBI Juvenile Delinquency Institute in which special agents were assigned to a broad research project, supplemented by lectures from well-known authorities in the field of juvenile delinquency.

The information gathered in these studies is being made available through FBI training schools to police departments to help them in developing their own programs to combat juvenile delinquency.

One of the most misunderstood facets of law enforcement is the FBI's responsibilities and limitations in the field of civil rights.

The Constitutional amendments known as the Bill of Rights provide for freedom of religion, speech, press, assembly and petition; freedom to keep and bear arms, from enforced quartering of troops, from unlawful search and seizure; freedom from being a witness against oneself; freedom from excessive bail or fines; from being deprived of due process; from cruel and unusual punishment; and the right to a speedy and public trial by jury.

ARE GUARANTEES

These are primarily guarantees against oppression of individuals by the federal government. The relationships between private persons are matters which are largely reserved to the states.

Thus a mob might lynch a victim in violation of every concept of decency and fair play, but this action does not necessarily mean that the mob has violated a federal law. And unless a federal law is violated, the FBI has no jurisdiction. The two basic civil rights statutes which more or less form the framework of the FBI's responsibilities in this field are found in Sections 241 and 242 of Title 18, United States Code.

Section 241 deals for the most part with involuntary servitude, peonage and voting rights. Section 242 applies largely to the actions of law enforcement officers who, "under color of law," willfully deny a person the rights guaranteed by law and the Constitution.

Heavy pressure was put on the federal government in 1955 to have the FBI investigate the murder of Emmett Louis Till, a 14-year-old Negro youth from Chicago who was slain in Mississippi after he allegedly made indecent remarks to a white woman.

The Justice Department's Criminal Division decided that the FBI should not enter the case.

LOCAL PREJUDICE

The reasoning behind this decision was that while murder no doubt had been done, the federal government had no authority to investigate and prosecute murder unless a federal law had been violated.

Unless and until Congress passed a law covering such cases, federal intervention would be an invasion of states' rights.

One of the greatest barriers encountered by the FBI in civil rights violations had been local prejudice. Juries have refused to convict even when defendants confessed.

Keego Couple Loses Everything in Fire

A young Keego Harbor couple found themselves possessionless yesterday after an early morning fire swept their rented trailer home, 2061 Galloway Rd.

Mrs. Idella Buell, 18, said she was sleeping when an over-heated oil stove started the blaze shortly after 1 a.m. She fled in her pajamas and coat, she said, to a neighbor's and called firemen. Her husband, Garrett, 21, was driving home from work. When he arrived, the trailer was gutted.

The couple is staying temporarily with the neighbors. Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Smith, 2811 Galloway, who owned the trailer. Mrs. Smith said the loss was about $1,500.

No-Growl Prowl

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) — Thieves must have been looking for a good watchdog when they broke into the Bay County dog pond. The occupants didn't so much as growl and the prowlers left empty-handed.

In 1947 in South Carolina, a cab driver was fatally stabbed near the town of Liberty. A Negro suspect named Willie Earle was arrested and taken to the Pickens county jail for questioning. He protested his innocence.

Word of the arrest spread. Soon a mob armed with shotguns and knives were racing for the jail. Earle was dragged from his cell and pushed into an automobile. Near the Saluda Dam the caravan halted and the prisoner "confessed" to the crime.

The mob beat Willie Earle and stabbed him with knives. Finally shotgun blasts snuffed out the last small flame of life.

CONFESSIONS FROM 26

The Justice Department authorized the FBI to conduct a full investigation because Earle had been in custody of an officer and there was a possibility that his civil rights had been denied "under color of law" by his jailers' willingness to give help to the mob or being derelict in his duty. The FBI's investigation exonerated the jailer.

In the investigation, 26 persons were arrested and 26 confessed to taking part in the lynching. The defense offered no testimony. But the jury found all 26 defendants "not guilty" despite the confessions.

Whenever a police officer or an official of a state institution is accused of a possible civil rights violation, the FBI investigates if the Criminal Division of the Justice Department so instructs.

For the most part, the FBI has found local law enforcement officers willing to cooperate in civil rights investigations.

An attitude has developed—and is growing—that if a police officer has treated a prisoner brutally and denied him his civil rights, then the officer deserves to be exposed, punished and fired for the good of the entire force and law enforcement generally. But if the

Study of Art Can Enrich Your Life

By ANNE HEYWOOD
"What's the sense of studying the arts?" a reader writes. "You can't make any money out of it. I like to sketch, and have thought of taking lessons, but then, what would I get out of it?"

If you don't think ours is a preponderantly materialistic civilization, think how many times you've heard remarks like that.

Nobody wants to study anything just for fun, or love, or cultural development. Whatever they study has to guarantee them a quick boost in salary.

And when they say "She has to work," they invariably mean that she will starve to death if she doesn't get a job. The psychological need to work is ignored.

To get back to the reader who thought the arts were a waste of time, I wrote and suggested that are either free or very inexpensive. I told her that studying sketching today, I pointed out, have courses that might not help her to earn

Last night, at Mt. Holly Ski Area, they crowned a winter sports queen, and at the same time presented a new and permanent addition to the area's "staff." Above are the queen, Susanne Devereaux, 19, a Flint secretary, and her escort, "Barry Bourbon," the year-old St. Bernard who has made himself the pet of the skiers. He will be fitted with a Red Cross cask and will be on duty to aid fallen skiers. A former polio victim, Suzanne will compete at Grayling for the state winter sports queen title Feb. 9-10.

money, but it would heighten her awareness of the world around her and make her notice and enjoy things she never saw before.

WONDERFUL LETTER

Seven months later, I received a wonderful letter from her. Her sketching class was a great success. And now she's studying water color.

"The funny thing is," she writes, "that I do it awfully well. This gives me such a wonderful feeling of self-confidence and makes me do all the other things better, faster, and more easily. I've become so much more interested in things, the world is really my oyster."

"In turn, it must make me more interesting to others, because I've never made so many new friends!"

The arts may not give you a five-dollar raise, but they can enrich your life in many unexpected ways.

If you'd like to begin a course in the arts, check your local board of education and see what courses they have.

If they have none, write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and I'll send you a list of good books on sketching and painting.

Baby Sitters Are Hunted in Capital

New Congressmen Have Record Crop of Offspring

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON — While their husbands are getting ready for business on Capitol Hill, wives of new congressmen are equally occupied.

Most have found living quarters by now and are busy unpacking belongings and installing personal touches to make their new Washington residences a "home away from home." They've got to get the kids in school, check on shopping centers and look up baby-sitters.

This last, for many who have small children, constitutes a major problem.

Members of Congress, especially the newcomers, are swamped with invitations to social functions, official and otherwise, which capital protocol obliges them to accept.

These include luncheons, receptions, teas and dinners given by local hostesses, government bigwigs, clubs, colleagues and constituents.

"It won't always be like this," pretty Mrs. Frank M. Coffin, wife of the new Democratic congressman from Maine, asked at one big shindig.

I told her I was afraid partying in the capital was a merry-go-round that barely slowed down while Congress was in session.

LOOKED WORRIED

Mrs. Coffin, a former social worker, looked worried. "I don't mind a little of it, in fact I really enjoy it," she explained, "but where do people get the babysitters?"

The Coffins have four youngsters, three girls and a boy, ranging from 2 to 11 years of age.

Sizable families seem to be the rule among the new members. Democratic Rep. and Mrs. George S. McGovern of Mitchell, S. D., have five children, four girls and a boy, ranging from 18 months to 10 years.

The 34-year-old former college professor and his family are living in a rented house in nearby Maryland.

The Democratic congressman from Oregon, Charles O. Porter, brought his wife, three boys and a girl, aged 1 to 12 years, from Eugene in a station wagon. They have rented a house in Falls Church, Va.

FERN LUCILE ERICKSON

The engagement of their daughter, Fern Lucile, to Roderic Paul Appold, is announced by Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Erickson of East Mansfield avenue. Roderic is the son of Mrs. Hertha Appold of Des Plaines, Ill. and Theodore Appold of Denver, Colo. No date has been set for the wedding.

One More Way to Bake Chicken

Origin of This Dish Is Penn-Dutch, Sour Cream Used

By JANET ODELL

Ever try baking chicken with sour cream? This is a Pennsylvania Dutch dish, one we think you will like to copy. It's easy to do too.

The recipe comes from Mrs. E. H. Vierlech. She has one daughter for whom she likes to sew and knit. China painting is one of her hobbies. Her name is listed in the membership of the Parent Guidance Club.

CHICKEN IN SOUR CREAM

By Mrs. E. H. Vierlech
Season chicken pieces and saute until golden brown, using your favorite cooking fat. Put browned chicken in baking pan and cover with sour cream, thinned with sweet milk.

Bake in 350-degree oven until chicken is tender and has been thoroughly permeated with sour cream gravy. This will take at least an hour. Whenever sour cream thickens during the baking, add more sweet milk.

Serve in a flat casserole covered with gravy and sprinkled with parsley or chopped chives.

Let's Look at Eyeglasses

Women have finally been sold on the idea of pretty, decorative eyeglasses. But there are indications that they've been oversold.

The idea is to pick a pretty frame that does something for you. The "something" should make you more attractive.

The overdecorated frame flatters few, if any, women.

Frames in vivid stripes, in strange, elongated shapes, in violent green or red, are no great help to beauty.

They are meant only for startling people, for startling occasions. They do not "wear well."

The frames you wear most of the time should be chosen for relationship to the facial structure and for a soft color which becomes you. If they make you look hard or freshish, you're wasting your money.

And while rhinestone frames are fun for evening wear, that's exactly what they were intended for.

Look for Psychiatrist to Find Show People

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—You practically have to hit the psychiatrist's couch nowadays to cover Show Biz.

Anita Ellis is the latest to tell me how a headshrinker helped her. She's a scared mousey little babe from Canada and Cincinnati who dubbed the voices of Rita Hayworth, Jeanne Crain and Vera-Ellen in Hollywood. Now she's had the courage to bring out her own album titled, "I Wonder What Became of Me."

"My mother was a brilliant singer, but my father was rich and he wouldn't let her sing; so one time in Montreal she snuck off to sing anyway and took me with her. I was 3," Anita told me the other night.

"I was so jealous of her that when my father asked where she'd been, to get his affection, I told on her. He took her rouge and lipstick and threw it away."

"Later when I tried to sing, I couldn't do it because I kept thinking of myself as a bad girl as my father had thought of my mother..."

When the psychiatrist plucked this all out of Anita, she began singing well.

"One song I did for Rita was, 'Put the Blame on Mame' in 'Gilda.' She tried and they did about 192 takes, but it was no good. I felt sorry for her. I should feel sorry for Rita Hayworth!"

While Hollywood goes ahead with the fiction of its big stars singing, the American Federation of Musicians doesn't, and Anita's happy that she's got plenty of proof.

"In Petrillo's union, you have to get credit," she says, even if it's a donkey braying."

Suggests Lottery to Aid Schools

Solon Says Financing by Sweepstakes Plan Would Ease Taxes

LANSING (AP)—A lottery plan, similar to the Irish sweepstakes, has been suggested as one solution to the problem of financing Michigan's schools.

Rep. Edwin A. Fitzpatrick (D-Detroit) said he will introduce a bill asking that the state abandon its ban on lotteries and sponsor two sweepstakes a year to finance public schools.

"Burdens to taxpayers have increased to the point where they are heavier than need be," Fitzpatrick said.

"Yet everyone knows that the Irish sweepstakes is a highly profitable venture that hurts no one except those eager to take a chance. Michigan is a heavy contributor to the purchase of $3 sweepstakes tickets."

"If the state eased up its restrictions," Fitzpatrick said, "and sponsored such enterprises for the sole purpose of building the school aid funds, it would solve the problem and relieve local taxpayers and provide money for other purposes."

The lottery plan would require approval of a constitutional amendment by a two-thirds vote of both houses and also approval by the voters.

At present, even such games of chance as bingo and dominoes played by church and fraternal groups are illegal in Michigan.

Hollywood Headlines

Viennese Actress Signed for New Movie 'Fraulein'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD (INS)—You may remember reading in this column about Anna Maria Düringer, the Viennese actress I met at the O. W. Fischer party and who I said looked like Marlene Dietrich. Well, Buddy Adler told me that he has signed Anna Maria for "Fraulein," based on the James McGovern book, which will be filmed in April in Berlin.

Anna Maria speaks German, naturally, and English very well. Walter Reisch, the producer, and Henry Kostler, director, will travel to Berlin to make all arrangements.

Speaking of Fischer, the first day of shooting on "My Man Godfrey," he introduced himself to every technician on the set. Made a hit, too.

For the first time, Playhouse 90 will present three dramas to be filmed (instead of live) with imposing casts. The first of these is the story of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet, whose mother house is outside of Tucson.

For this, Helen Hayes, Katy Jurado, Janice Rule and Ralph Meeker have been signed. The local order of the Sisters of St. Joseph is at St. Martin of Tours, and when Sister Georgine Marie read the script, she said it deserved an "A plus."

The other two films are "Without Incident," starring Errol Flynn, Ann Sheridan, Julie London and John Ireland, and "Lone Woman," with Kathryn Grayson, Scott Brady and Vincent Price.

NOVEL-BUYING BINGE

I would say that Jack L. Warner is really on a novel-buying binge. His latest move in that direction is the purchase of "Home Before Dark" by Eileen Basing, which is the emotional story of a young woman mentally disturbed.

Random House is the publisher of the book and Ingo Preminger made the deal. When I asked who would be starred, I was told it is intended for Carroll Baker. Seems they are lining up stories for her.

I don't like to call a child a prodigy, but 13-year-old Frank Sinatra Jr. comes close to qualifying in that class. He played the piano for us at a buffet dinner Nancy Sinatra gave in honor of Lorraine Brock Busse and Joseph Hall, who will be married Feb. 14.

Young Frankie doesn't care for rock 'n' roll, and says he's never seen Elvis Presley. But he feels that Elvis came up too suddenly and that he should work as hard as Frank Sr., Bing Crosby and Perry Como did for their success. We played Frank Sr.'s new record, and Frank Jr. congratulated Jimmy McHugh on "I Didn't Sleep a Wink Last Night," included in the album. Believe me, coming from Frankie that was a compliment.

DIVORCE PLANS

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Rex Harrison stayed over in New York to await the arrival of Lilli Palmer from Europe so they can discuss divorce plans.

We may soon have a member of the Astor family in our Hollywood movies. John Jacob Astor's son, William, is coming here to have a try at acting.

Bells are not ringing for Judy Holiday and Sid Chaplin, who are reported feuding.

At the Beverly Hills Chamber of Commerce dinner, Gordon MacRae told me that he and his wife, Sheila, are not expecting a baby as was reported in several New York columns.

Jim Bishop sends me the cover of his book, "The Day Christ Died," and writes: "Harper's sent me this today. I'm a lucky guy. There were 25 lean and hungry years before 'The Day Lincoln Was Shot,' and now this, of which 75,000 copies already are sold."

Health Insurance Beats Population in Growth

NEW YORK—Insurance figures show that almost as many Americans have purchased voluntary health insurance during the past 25 years as comprised the total United States population in 1930, when the health-insurance movement began.

The population of the United States increased by 35,000,000 in the past 25 years and during the same period the number of persons with health insurance increased by 98,000,000.

Mexico will have a new $12,000,000 newspaper mill with an annual capacity of 30,000 tons.

Study High School Sketches in Romeo

Architects Fit 5-Level to Site

Tell Board 'We Have Good, Compact Plan' for Minimum Expense

ROMEO — Members of the Romeo Board of Education last night studied preliminary sketches for a new high school, submitted by representatives of the Detroit architectural firm of Eberle M. Smith Associates, Inc.

The single-story, multi-level building is designed to fit the contours of the site, located on West 32 Mile road just outside the village limits, architects said.

"We think we have a good, compact plan to fit the site — requiring a minimum amount of earth movement," they pointed out.

The building plan shows a wing containing a gymnasium and cafeteria located on the right of the entrance hall and a classroom section running parallel to the road on the left.

There will be four six-inch steps between each level, architects explained.

The gym, set down five feet from the corridor level, is designed to hold 1,000 to 1,100 spectators. The cafeteria will seat 200 students comfortably, they said.

The basic plan without alterations would cover 45,000 square feet — with an alternate which would include two additional classrooms increasing this total to 45,500 square feet.

The second alternate, or band room, would bring the total in square feet to 46,000 or in excess of the $800,000 budget for building.

The board set Feb. 12 as the date for further study and possible approval of the preliminary plans.

Judge Lederle Vetoes Branch

Federal Official Rules on Troy Operation on Basis of 1945 Law

DETROIT — Federal Judge Arthur F. Lederle ruled today that the National Bank of Detroit could not open a branch in Troy, a suburb north of Detroit.

The Wayne Oakland Bank, which already has a branch operating in Troy, opposed the National Bank of Detroit in its move to open a Troy branch.

The National Bank of Detroit already had erected a new $75,000 building for a Troy branch.

Judge Lederle said he made his decision on the basis of a 1945 Michigan law which provides that no bank may establish a branch in any city or village where another State or National Bank already is in operation.

The National Bank had applied to the U. S. Controller of the Currency in January, 1956, for a certificate to open the Troy branch. It was notified in March that the application had been approved.
