Parochial Schools Push to Provide More Rooms

From Our Birmingham Bureau

BIRMINGHAM — Parochial schools in this area are having their difficulties, with building programs pushing to keep pace with mounting student enrollments.

Ground was broken for Our Lady Queen of Martyrs Catholic School, on Oct. 3, 1953, the second anniversary of the parish.

On Sept. 9 of this year the school at 3240 S. Pierce St. opened its first six classrooms, along with a clinic and general offices. In the first unit, some 300 first through fifth graders have started their studies.

Looking to the future, an underground foundation was constructed for six additional classrooms, with plans already underway to build two of the rooms in April. It is anticipated that these will house sixth grade students by fall of next year.

Grade seven should be added in 1956 and grade eight in 1957. A second floor eventually will be constructed to bring the school to an ultimate of 22 classrooms. When completed the school will represent a cost figure of $188,000.

Some relief for Holy Name Catholic School was anticipated with the coming of the new school to serve Catholic children in the area, but long waiting lists prevailed in most of the eight grades before the opening day of school.

Holy Name also lost one of its classrooms this semester. The Alumni House which had doubled as a classroom, was torn down to make way for the new Holy Name Church. A capacity enrollment of 675 students was reached this year.

The 1948 enrollment of 300 was more than doubled in 1949, when a 10-classroom addition was built. Church officials say two more rooms are needed now.

An explanation of the League of Women Voters stand on the Conlin Bill, by Mrs. R. O. Schulze of Ann Arbor, state taxation chairman; and a discussion of league purposes in the community by Mrs. John Ramsey of Birmingham, will open Monday's 1:30 p.m. LWV meeting at the Community House.

The voters service committee, with Mrs. Bernard Magruder as chairman, will present repeat performances of two skits showing the right and wrong way to interview candidates for and distribute the informative election bulletins.

The meeting is especially planned for new or prospective members.

Mrs. Fred Rollins, new president of the Rotary Ann's, will take over her duties at the club's first fall meeting at 1 p.m. Monday, to be held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Lake, on Linden road.

Well-known artist Robert Thom, of Bloomfield Township, will be the guest speaker.

A modernized kitchen will be ready for tomorrow's Homecoming Sunday at the First Baptist Church. The 11 a.m. service will be marked with special features, and a church dinner for all will follow at 12:30 p.m. A program of interest and inspiration will conclude the day.

Plans have been made for the annual Quarten School coffees when mothers of the children in each room will be entertained and acquainted with the coming year's program.

Three 10 a.m. meetings for first grade classes are scheduled for Monday. Mrs. Pakary's class will meet at the Argyle road home of Mrs. Donald A. Guinay. The class of Marjorie Tate will gather at the home of Mrs. William Amos on Larching drive. Hostess for the class of Mrs. Janet Jones will be Mrs. Frederick Peterson, of Westwood drive.

Planning the coffees are Mrs. Thomas Ward, room mother chairman of the PTA, Mrs. Manley Bailey, president, and Mrs. A. W. Holcomb, Mrs. Ward's assistant.

Strike action at the plant yesterday was comparatively mild. More than 500 pickets lined up in the morning and nearly 250 remained at quitting time, but there were no incidents.

The trio, arrested Thursday, are Henry Ethier, 18, of Utica, Lynn McCulloch, 21, no known address, and Ronald E. Berg, 18, of Rochester. PROJECTED PLANS—Only the ground floor of Our Lady Queen of Martyrs Catholic School in Birmingham is completed now, but by 1957, it is hoped that the entire structure as pictured, will be constructed. Total cost of the building is $188,000. The school is located behind the church, where the Rev. Lucian Hebert is pastor.

Waterford Township Police Chief Frank Van Atta led the eight-man raiding party which broke in on a poker game at 2839 Pontiac Lake Rd., a cleaning establishment operated by James B. Yates, 27, of 48 Bloomfield Terrace.

Sentenced to Oakland County Jail for 30 days when he failed to pay a $100 fine and $25 costs, was Clarence Robinson, 41, of 65 Fairview Ave., who pleaded guilty to being engaged in an illegal occupation.

Fined $100 and $25 costs on the same charge were: Basil G. Hicks, 35, of 54 Front St.; and Herbert L. Smith, 45, of 333 1/2 S. Saginaw St.

Mystery Skeletons Found in Waterford

that there was a house of an early settler near the site of the present diggings.

According to the old resident's theory, the survivors buried the epidemic victims in a family plot. More graves, he claims, are believed to be located in woods to the west of the present project site.

Michigan State Police Troopers William Dreger and Harold Wade said a complete skeleton and a smaller skull, perhaps that of a child, will be sent to Cranbrook for examination today.

Workers pushed two or three of the skeletons back into a "fill" before they discovered the bones were human.

The remains, Dreger said, were buried in about six feet of sand. Bits of wood that could have been a coffin or cross, and some old-fashioned square nails, were also dug up.

Some old-timers claim that "square nails" have been out of service now for about 75 years.

Pedestrian Fined on Traffic Charge

BIRMINGHAM—In the first such case tried in the courts of Birmingham, a man was found guilty yesterday of violating a traffic signal as a pedestrian.

Leon C. Cowan, 78, of 740 Oakland Ave., pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $4 plus $3 costs by Justice John J. Gaffil.

Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley said that as a result of the violation, which occurred at Hunter Blvd. and Oakland Ave., a car driven by Charles R. Moore, 62, of Detroit, suffered an estimated $200 in damages. Moore tried to avoid hitting Cowan and struck the curb instead, Moxley said.

The Coast Guard of the U. S. has saved more than 200,000 persons from death at sea.

Board to Report on Incorporation

Only Lathrup, Franklin Excluded in Southfield Township Petition

A committee report is expected on the petition of Southfield Township for incorporation as a city at the meeting of Oakland County Board of Supervisors Monday in the County Office Building.

All of Southfield will be included in the proposed incorporation, except Lathrup and Franklin Villages.

Reports are expected from the Building and Grounds Committee on requested right-of-way for a new Detroit Edison Co. power line north of Kennett road, purchase of 3.8 acres of land in the County Service Center on Telegraph road north of Watkins Lake road and alterations at the tuberculosis sanitarium.

A resolution is scheduled asking the state legislature for an act allowing transfer of dog wardens' functions to health departments.

A request is expected that a sewage disposal authority be created to include Lathrup Village, Bloomfield City plus Southfield Bloomfield and part of Troy Townships.

Dulles Sees Talks Needed Over EDC

returned yesterday from a 30-day survey tour of Europe.

Wiley said his talks with European leaders convinced him that they are seeking unity and added that West Germany should be brought into the defense system.

The Dulles-Eden accord was seen as a move to cement what appeared to be a slight strain in allied relations and a guarantee that the Germans will not be left out of Western defense plans.

A foreign office spokesman said the British would shortly issue invitations for a nine-nation party in London to work out the details of Germany's military contribution. The conference probably will be held Sept. 27.

Diplomatic informants said Dulles and Eden also agreed to ask for a North Atlantic Pact council meeting in mid-October to discuss the defense situation.

Eden hinted that his talk with Dulles may be fruitful. Before Dulles boarded a plane at London Airport for Washington, Eden said: "We are very grateful to Secretary Dulles for coming over and I am sure that our conversations will prove most useful."

John C. Donovan, 64, of Imlay City, another defendant, pleaded guilty before the jury was selected and is scheduled for sentencing next Monday in Lapeer.

An eighth defendant, Lawrence Weston, 65, of North Branch, received a directed verdict of acquittal Wednesday on grounds of insufficient evidence.

Both the prosecution and defense agreed to hold the trial in Charlotte when Mathews was tried in Lapeer County last April and the jury failed to reach a verdict.

GG Might Cut Infant Mortality

Three Doctors Suggest Solution to Mysterious Normal Baby Deaths

CHICAGO (INS)—Three Brooklyn doctors reported today a possible solution to a mysterious malady which suddenly and unexpectedly kills thousands of apparently normal newborn infants each year.

The doctors said a study of a group of such cases points to infection, particularly in the respiratory tract, as the possible death factor.

They suggest routine injections of gamma globulin "might prevent a substantial number of these sudden and unexpected deaths."

Drs. David M. Spain, Victoria A. Braden and Irving J. Greenblatt reported their findings in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

The strange and sudden deaths have their highest incidence between 2 and 3 months of age. The doctors report the usual trilling pattern involves a mother putting her healthy baby in a crib or carriage and finding it dead several hours later.

The period of greatest death coincides with the "critical stage" in the life of the infant when the antibodies (disease-fighting substances) given to the baby by the mother during pregnancy wear out.

The baby then begins to build up its own antibodies to fight infection and the doctors reason that a low level of this vital substance may account for the deaths.

Similar low levels of gamma globulin were noted. Gamma globulin is a protein substance of the blood with a makeup similar to antibodies.

The researchers noted GG injections have cleared up other diseases like measles and suggest it as a possible solution for preventing unexpected deaths of newborn babies.

Marin Predicts Republican Congress

the government can spend it for him.

"These tax cuts voted by the 80th Congress amount to $200 a year for every family in the country. The days of tax and spend and spend are gone forever as long as we keep a strong Republican Congress to support President Eisenhower's program."

Martin asserted that "bourgeois legislation" enacted by the present Congress assures that Communism "will never gain a foothold in this favored land."

He cited the Republican loyalty program for separating 2,486 security risks from the federal payroll, seeing 93 subversives deported, preventing 127 persons with Communist ties from entering the country and adding 62 groups and associations to the subversives list.

Martin noted six new laws directed against Communism:

1. Communism has been outlawed as a political party.

2. Citizenship is revoked from persons convicted of conspiracy to overthrow the government by force and violence.

3. The death penalty is now imposed for peacetime espionage.

4. Printing equipment operated by Communist organizations must be registered with the Department of Justice. "Communist propaganda no longer enjoys the official protection of the U. S. Government."

5. Federal pensions are denied those convicted of espionage or treason.

6. Immunity is granted to those wishing to renounce communism and tell their story to the FBI.

Other new legislation touched on by Martin included the highway bill which he said makes certain an extensive program of road building making up for necessary lags during the war years.

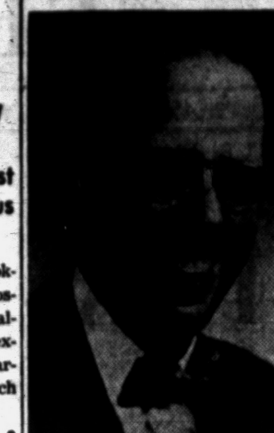

Martin saw the recent election of a Democrat as Maine's governor as the result of local issues and not significant of a national trend.

Turning to foreign affairs, Martin said, "France failed to grasp the torch of liberty" when it voted against entering the European Defense Community. If EDC is impossible, he stated, "let us speedily devise something similar."

He termed Germany "a strong nation now rising which won't live in a vacuum. We must have a rearmament West Germany on our side."

Gifts were presented to Dondoro including the pen which the President used to sign the Seaway bill. A message was read from Eisenhower commending Dondoro's leadership of the Seaway fight and his long record of service.

In a short address, Dondoro said "This is the crowning occasion of my entire life and career." He called for an unrelenting fight on communism, saying, "If we go down, freedom on earth will perish forever."

OUR CHEST NEEDS YOU

Community Chest isn't a stranger; it's a friend, an indispensable friend to worthy organizations. Reader's Digest and Post claim that millions of dollars are taken from us in the guise of charity; we listen, or read plausible statements, write a check — and it goes to a promoter. Community Chest knows where every cent of our money is going, and why.

The organizations to which Community Chest is repository are local. We know them, endorse them. Their affairs touch us, we know Community Chest is that we give once rather than our money is being invested and what it will bring in return. The advantage of than many times.

Your contribution to Community Chest is the democratic way. Your neighbors spend their time without thought of compensation. Help them by having your check ready and waiting.

Rescue in the Arctic

From Ottawa has come news of the rescue of a shipload of American scientists ice bound in the famous Northwest Passage.

The rescue was made by the new 6,500 ton Canadian icebreaker, Labrador, which butted its way through 20 miles of ice in narrow Baring Channel to reach the 78 foot ship Monte Carlo.

After the rescue which took place 960 miles from the North Pole, the icebreaker was to continue its historic journey to the Pacific. Thus it will become the first major vessel to go through the Passage Henry Hudson sought in the early 1600s.

Hudson, an English navigator, never found the Northwest Passage. But he wrote a lot of history hunting it. It was in 1610 on his third voyage to the New World that Hudson sailed his ship, the Discovery, into the great bay named after him.

With Winter approaching, his crew mutinied and set Hudson, his son and seven of his crew adrift. The navigator and his party never were heard of again.

The Monte Carlo left Portland, Maine, last July and the scientists aboard her hoped to pinpoint the magnetic North Pole.

On the Right Track

It remains to be seen how much of an improvement will result from a change of heart announced by WILLIAM GAINES, publisher of comic books.

Mr. GAINES, who says he introduced the so-called horror comics, has decided to discontinue them, believing that's what parents want. He said, however, that he would continue publishing a "clear, clean line of science, adventure, piracy and lampoon comics."

At the same time he restated his belief that horror and crime comics have nothing to do with juvenile delinquency. This is directly contrary to the opinion of many experts who have studied and tried to solve that problem. Their opinion has been shared by at least one Congressional committee investigating comic books and by several witnesses who testified before it.

Even those who disagree with the publisher, however, will hail his decision as a long overdue step in the right direction. We hope other publishers of horror comics will follow his example.

Method in Their Madness

It isn't true, as many might conclude, that some Arctic madness made the people of Greenland ask Denmark to tax them.

Rather, it is an understandable development in the wake of the action which last year changed the world's largest island from a Danish colony to an integral part of Denmark.

Unlike our forbears who rebelled against taxation without representation, the Greenlanders have representation without taxation. Being realists, they know their island needs many improvements. They also reasoned that if they contributed to the central government they'd have a better chance of getting those improvements.

The result was that Greenland's two representatives in the parliament at Copenhagen presented a petition from the Greenland Council asking for the privilege of paying income taxes.

This action is in refreshing contrast to what for many years has been a standard pattern. In almost all instances people first ask for the improvements and then complain about the taxes to pay for them.

Reds Free American Trio

The three Americans just released at Canton are additional living proof that Red China is a barbaric police state.

In the stories they told on reaching Hong Kong is evidence that they were held from March 21, 1933, until now purely for propaganda purposes.

The victims — RICHARD APPLGATE, DONALD DIXON and BENJAMIN KRASNER — plainly showed the effect of long imprisonment and ill treatment. All wore the clothing in which they were captured. The trio insist that when overtaken in APPLGATE's now confiscated yacht by a Red Chinese gunboat, they were in international waters bound for Portuguese Macao.

The Reds insisted, however, that the Americans had violated Chinese waters. They grilled the prisoners for many hours in a finally successful effort to make them confess that violation and the Red charge that the U. S. had used germ warfare in Korea.

Besides the strain of the incessant questioning, poor food and fear of summary execution, the prisoners were held in vermin infested cells with Chinese political offenders.

No government willing to resort to such barbarous methods of obtaining propaganda it knows to be false can claim the right to be considered civilized. Peiping is demanding admission to the United Nations. Its treatment of these Americans won't win it any votes in the General Assembly.

Dem Landslide? Many May Vote Straight Ticket With Williams

By JACK I. GREEN
 LANSING—Will the Maine Democratic victory awaken Michigan Republicans to the possibility that the trend is against them, too?

Soundings in the political seas of Michigan produce evidence that the Democrats are gaining in this state, while the Republicans are no better than standing still.

This is ironic. You would think that the Democrats, headed by a three-term winner, would be overconfident and that the Republicans would be sweating with effort. But it appears that the Democrats are running scared while too many Republicans are saying smugly "it's in the bag."

Perfectly sober political observers of some experience are predicting right now that Gov. Williams is going to win his fourth consecutive term by majorities ranging from 100,000 to 150,000. This seems high, but there is too much consensus to ignore the fact that Williams could be re-elected by a bigger margin than his last two campaigns.

Williams' opponent, Donald S. Leonard of Detroit, is showing himself the best campaigner the Republicans have put forward in several elections. And he, so far, has failed to stir the party animosities which plagued his predecessors.

But, despite the fact that early-campaign predictions are unsound, the politicians can't find the Republican upturn they expected.

Reports out of Wayne County suggest that there is going to be a tremendous Democratic vote there this fall and that there may be more straight Democratic votes than ever before.

This—which could be disastrous to the whole Republican ticket—appears to stem from a variety of causes—all tied up with the working man who has not been a keen Republican supporter in recent years.

One factor is unemployment, one person out of 10 reportedly out of work in Detroit. Republican arguments that most of the men will be back to work by election day are considered foolish. This theory overlooks the fact that nowadays two months of payless paydays can set a family back so far that it will be months catching up again.

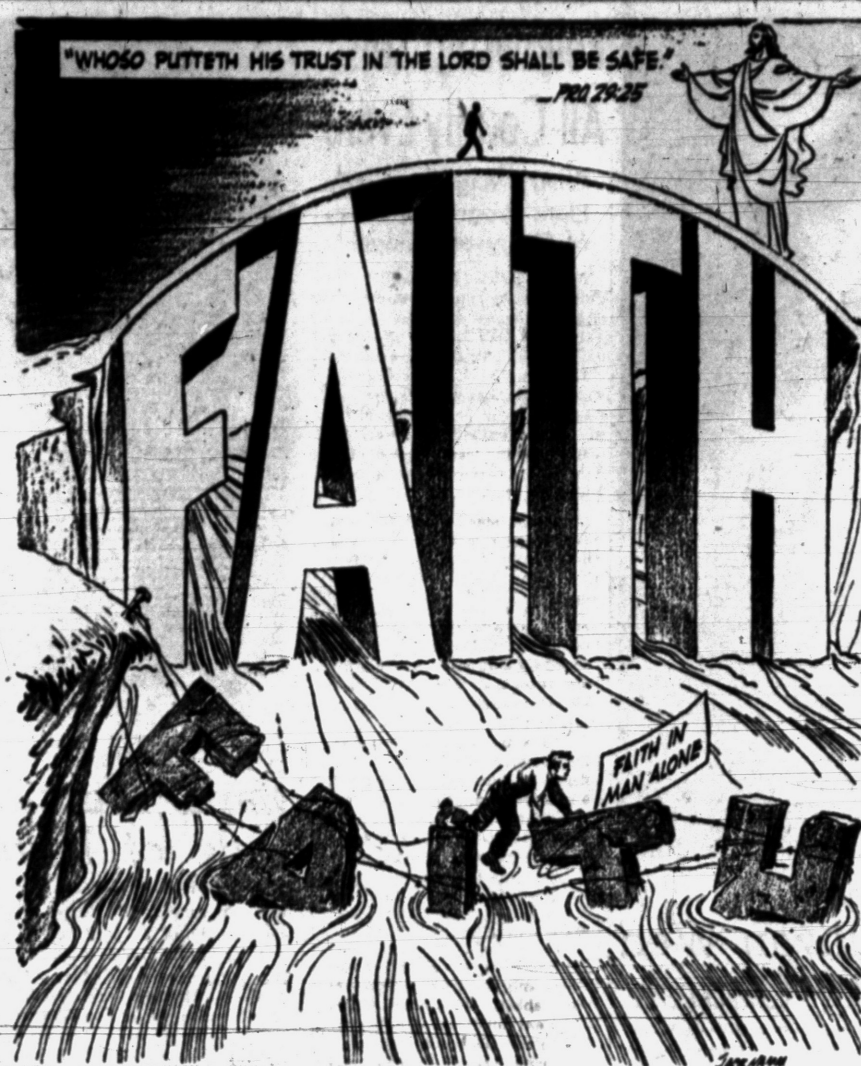

A pay check on election day will not remove a yammer of scarcity and a winter of fear.

Another pro-Democratic factor, reported by observers, is a disappointment in the national Republican administration, especially on the economic front. This should not be held against Leonard or any of the state ticket obviously, but the bettors now are saying it means the average voter will go into the polling booth, bang the Democratic lever hard and walk out, satisfied he has paid off an old score.

A third factor—and an important one—is that organized labor is geared for this campaign like never before.

Labor is being told that the gains it scores at the bargaining table are being lost in the state and national capitols. With pay checks dwindling, unemployment up and similar clouds on the horizon this argument is considered especially effective this year.

No labor is prepared to spend a lot of money and ring a lot of door bells to elect a Democratic ticket in Michigan.

Waterford Superintendent of Recreation Outlines Township's Program for Teens

Letters will be condensed when necessary because of lack of space. Full name, address and telephone number of the writer must accompany letters but these will not be published if the writer so requests, unless the letter is critical in its nature.

In your column yesterday, the article about the Waterford girl who wants to raise money in a special significance to me.

This young lady's letter impressed me in two ways: First, it is satisfying to note that young people are aware of the constant need for recreation activities for teenagers and take it upon themselves to do something about it. This is one of the essential elements in beginning any recreational program.

I am impressed secondly with the apparent unawareness, on the part of this young lady, of the professional recreation organization in Waterford Township.

A recreation department is in operation during twelve months of the year. Also there is a Community Activities Center on Williams Lake Road. This building is admired by civic groups throughout the state and is always at the disposal of the township citizens.

Some thirty different recreation department-sponsored activities have been planned and are in effect this year. Many of the teenage programs are: summer playgrounds, day camps, swimming classes, softball; Fall and winter programs: Teenage Youth Nite, (held at the Community Center), girl's gymnasium, ballroom dance lessons, ballet lessons, archery lessons, Saturday Morning Fun, etc.

There are, or will be, recreational activities for teenagers.

and certainly a community center is available.

All people in Waterford Township are encouraged to contact their recreation department when wishing to develop a new recreation interest, or participate in a currently scheduled program.

Case Records of a Psychologist

Judas Iscariot Not the Only Apostle Who Was Wrong About Jesus' Aims

Judas Iscariot was probably no worse than Peter and the other Apostles. They all misjudged Christ. They thought Jesus would oust Caesar and set up a kingdom by force. So Judas may have tried to force a quick showdown or coup d'etat. Read this case record and you'll get a new view of Judas.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
 Case M-318: Judas Iscariot, age probably 35, has been held up to scorn for 1,900 years.

But Judas was probably no different from Peter or James and John and the other Apostles in his misjudgment of Jesus.

If you will read the New Testament carefully and from the psychological standpoint, you will find that Judas made no greater mistake about Jesus than did Peter when the latter seized the sword and attacked one of the men who came to apprehend Christ.

For in those days all the Apostles held the mistaken notion that Jesus was going to become an earthly king. They felt he would be a second David and oust Caesar from the Roman throne.

Then they expected Jesus to rule here on earth in Caesar's stead with the usual pomp and military trappings. And they felt they would become Christ's prime ministers.

But Judas was also much like

Peter in being impetuous. He didn't want to wait any longer, for he felt that Christ could perform a coup d'etat any time he would try it.

And Judas, as well as the other Apostles, apparently had long felt that Jesus would ultimately upset the Roman dictatorship, but they didn't know when.

So Judas may have decided to force a quick showdown. He figured that the time was now right.

For Jerusalem was full of people. And Christ's followers were very numerous.

Judas probably felt he was doing Christ a favor. For Jesus would then take over the Roman throne just that much sooner if somebody would "push" the showdown ahead.

So Judas accepted the 30 pieces of silver to tell Christ's foes where he could be contacted.

The proof that Judas had on previous idea as to the disastrous final effect of his action, was shown when he threw back the 30 pieces of silver at the very men who had paid him. That proved it wasn't a mercenary desire for the money which motivated Judas.

And when Judas saw Jesus crucified, he was so horrified and remorseful at how he had misjudged Christ's "kingdom," that he killed himself as penance.

Belatedly, Judas may have realized that Jesus meant a spiritual realm where love and charity would rule instead of armed legions of soldiers.

David would probably have tried to speed up Christ's coup d'etat, too, if he had been an Apostle.

Peter and the other 10 Apostles misjudged Jesus exactly as Judas had done, which is why they were so demoralized in the "Upper Room" after Christ's death.

Monday morning quarterbacking indicates the tendency to use later information and then go back to the previous Saturday football game to criticize the apparent stupidity of the quarterback.

That is why we moderns often think the Apostles were very slow in catching on to Christ's ideas. But we are looking backward with all of the later information which history offers us.

Judas and Peter and the others did not have our advantage. And there was no historical precedent for the unique events occurring in their day.

So let's be more understanding and judge not. Instead, read the New Testament from this new psychological viewpoint. You'll then see many new facets of the Bible.

And you'll be thrilled anew at the consummate use of psychology which Jesus demonstrated.

Days of All Faiths Miracle Takes Place as Saint's Blood Flows

By DR. HOWARD V. HARTER

For three days they heated a furnace, and then they put St. Januarius, Bishop of Benevento, into it — but nothing happened at all. He was perfectly comfortable. So, then they threw him into the arena with the wild animals, but the beasts just stood around and ignored him.

All this was in Naples, in A. D. 305. The people watched these incredible events with astonishment, and 5,000 of them were converted to the God whose power was in the heart of Januarius.

But the judge, under orders from the Emperor Diocletian, and hating Christians himself, said it was nothing but black magic, and ordered the Bishop beheaded. The judge was struck blind when he pronounced the sentence, and the execution was delayed long enough to allow Januarius to restore his sight.

No wonder Naples took this native son as its patron and preserved his relics in the cathedral there. His skull is kept in a silver bust, but the chief and most famous relics of St. Januarius are two small vials of his blood, which, according to legend, were collected by a devout woman bystander at the time of the execution.

Eighteen times during the year — in May, September, and on December 16 — these vials are exhibited. And when the vials are placed close to the silver bust, the miracle occurs: the blood becomes liquid. There is no adequate scientific explanation of this, but neither is there any doubt about it. Thousands of people over hundreds of years have seen it happen.

The May exhibitions of the vials are made in connection with the translation of the saint's relics from another burial place to the present one. The exhibitions in September are in connection with his feast-day in the calendar of saints.

The one on December 16 is in commemoration of the time, December 16, 1631, when in answer to the frantic prayers of the people of Naples, St. Januarius saved the city from destruction by the nearby volcano, Mt. Vesuvius.

In the quiet Pennsylvania Dutch country of Eastern Pennsylvania, September 24 will be observed by members of the Schwenkfelder Society, as it has been observed by them and their ancestors for 220 years.

This little group, transplanted from Germany to America in the early Eighteenth Century, was one of the innumerable little Protestant sects that sprang up on the European continent at the time of the Reformation.

Their leader, Caspar von Schwenkfelder, attracted by Martin Luther's new doctrines, gave up a prominent position in the Roman Catholic Church and set out by himself on a career of evangelistic preachings.

After Schwenkfelder's death in 1562 the little band endured hardship and persecution for more than a century. In 1733 a handful of them arrived in Philadelphia, and finding it to their liking, immediately sent for the rest of the Society.

The second group — 184 of them — arrived on September 22, 1734. On the 24th, the second day after their arrival, they went to the State House in a body, swore allegiance to the British king, and spent the remainder of the day expressing their gratitude to God for having delivered them from persecution and having led them to a land of freedom.

They set September 24 as a day of Thanksgiving to be observed by them and their descendants forever, and in the Pennsylvania Dutch counties where the Schwenkfelders live, September 24 is still Thanksgiving Day.

Ex-Merchant Marine Sailor Reports Icy Blasts Never Made Him Sick

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

THE MAIL BOX

Exposure

In the Merchant Marine in World War I many times I stood watches in the North Atlantic when it would rain, then turn extremely cold so that my wet clothes froze almost solid on me. Never had any kind of respiratory infection at sea, nor did any of my shipmates that I recall. I always had to come home and ride in the subway to catch whatever was prevalent. (P. A. J.)

Answer—Thank you. Probably any fish-wife could explain that you bundled up and so maintained resistance at sea.

Drink When You're Thirsty
 Mustard drinks sometimes three or four glasses of water while waiting for his dinner to be served, and another three or four during dinner. I say this will ruin his digestion. (O. A.)

Answer—Good rule to drink all the water you want when you are thirsty. Before, during or after meals. As warm, hot, cold or ice cold as you like. Possibly your husband takes too much salt. Possibly he should have his urine tested for sugar.

Lady Drives Again
 For fifteen years I didn't drive at night because I was too much blinded by exposing headlights. On your suggestion I began supplementing my diet with an optimal daily ration of vitamins A, B, C, D, E, K, and others. I could see better at night, resumed driving and have had no trouble now for three years. (Mrs. C. M. S.)

Answer—In any case it is a simple matter to take three little tablets daily for a month as a test — if this does no good at least it can do no harm. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for instructions. Do not use a clipping.

Hair Color
 Have followed your advice for years. Some time ago started taking the Iodin Ration. My hair falling on some color. I had been getting gray for the past ten years and hated it. Now my hair is actually brown again. (O. A. S.)

Answer—So many correspondents have told me the same thing that I am constrained to believe it may really be back some natural color to faded or graying hair. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents for booklet The Scalp and Hair, and ask for The Iodin Ration pamphlet, too.

Doctored Bread
 My wife believes store white bread has all the necessary vitamins and minerals added. (D. H. W.)

Answer—No A, no C, no D, no E, no calcium, no phosphorus put back in the refined white flour—all of these are removed from wheat in the refining process. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for the pamphlet Wheat to Eat. If you can persuade a farmer or feed store man to sell you a peck (8 quarts, 15 pounds) of plain wheat, the pamphlet will tell you many ways to use it in your daily diet. You don't have to eat doctored white bread.

Watchman's Varicose Ulcers
 I am 70, a watchman, walk a lot, which the doctor said is good for my varicose vein and ulcers. (D. C. A.)

Answer—That's right. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet Varicose Vein and Ulcers.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene; not to disease, diagnosis or treatment; will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed, etc.

Lace Gown Chosen for Ceremony

Anne Perkins Wed This Morning in St. Benedict's

The Rev. Richard Thomas of St. Benedict Church performed the 10 o'clock ceremony this morning when William Joseph Archambeau claimed Anne Margaret Perkins as his bride.

Anne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Charles Perkins of Dakota drive and William is the son of Mrs. Leo Archambeau of Rose-dale avenue, Sylvan Lake and the late Mr. Archambeau.

A gown of Chantilly lace styled with a bouffant floor length skirt was Anne's choice for her wedding costume. The bodice featured a Queen Anne collar and fitted long sleeves came to points at the wrist.

A shirred crown of net and seed pearls held a four tier fingertip veil of illusion and the bride carried a white orchid surrounded with amazon lilies, stephanotis and ivy.

Anne was preceded down the aisle by Mrs. William Dean, matron of honor, who wore a gold crystalline princess style gown with matching jacket. Her head piece was in gold and she carried a chalmar bouquet of China fusi chrysanthemums and matching streamers.

Bridesmaids, Margaret Schmidt of New Baltimore and Leona Barry of Williamston, Anne's former classmates, wore gowns like the honor matron's in fuchsia and wintergreen respectively. They carried chalmar bouquets of yellow fusi and China chrysanthemums with matching streamers.

Barbara Lawless, another classmate sang the bridal recital. James McEwan of Royal Oak was best man and seating the guests were James Panka, Bob Sower, James McLean and Ronald Manning.

Mrs. Perkins greeted guests at a reception held at Rotunda Inn, wearing a slate gray taffeta gown with turquoise accessories with a corsage of yellow gladiolus.

A taupe lace dress with matching accessories and sequin trim was chosen by Mrs. Archambeau. She wore a corsage of pink gladiolus.

A brown faille suite with brown accessories and a corsage of cymbidium orchids was chosen by the bride for a trip to Florida. Upon their return they will reside on Newberry street.

The bride attended Michigan State College and is a graduate of Mercy School of Nursing. William is a graduate of St. Thomas Military School and of University of Detroit where he was affiliated with Upsilon Delta Sigma fraternity.

Baby First Learns Via Sense of Taste

Baby's first toy should be a "motion" toy. Notice how he enjoys watching sunlight fluttering on the ceiling, or the flutter of leaves he can see from his carriage. A string of gaily-painted spoons, hung over his crib, will provide interest if he hasn't started to move his hands very much.

If he does keep his hands busy, baby will get fun out of a rattle, hung where he can hit it by chance, long before he can really grasp it. Baby prefers strong, clear colors like red, green and yellow, instead of the pastel shades.

College Will Really Cost Money Now

Ivy Halls Now Need TV, Refrigerator and Sport Cars

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor

Now that several million parents have managed to dig up the required college tuition for their young hopefuls once more, a new trend is reported.

Some college students are demanding a rise in their standard of living, and are going back to their ivy-clad halls of learning equipped with such items as portable television sets, refrigerators, electric sewing machines and air conditioning units.

If this trend continues, imagine the plight of the long-suffering father who must provide push-button appliances as well as tuition for his offspring. In order to induce them to expose themselves to a little of the world's learning.

The swing toward "ultra-modernity in college life" is reported by a young man who has built up a successful business by conducting polls among the nation's youth and reporting on their buying habits. He is Lester Rand, president of the Youth Research Institute, and he says:

"Unquestionably, campus life has undergone an amazing facelift in the past few years."

Imported sports cars will be seen in greater numbers than ever before on college campuses this fall, he says, and the old-fashioned bicycle is giving way to the motor bike in some instances. The number of cars that go to college has increased to such an extent that a serious parking problem has resulted on many campuses.

In addition, Rand reports, students are taking up interior decoration in a big way, to transform drab college dormitories into rich and colorful suites.

One reason for all this college luxury, it seems, is the ability of students to earn substantial amounts of money during vacations, and even in some instances during the school year. Says Rand: "It's not unusual for a young person to earn $1,000 during the summer."

While the trend is still in its infancy, and restricted to a glided few, there's one solid fact that may nip it in the bud. That is the resentment of the average student to another who tries to "put on airs."

Sherry Gatley attended a recent costume party wearing the colorful clothing of a Peruvian Indian. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. Warren Gatley of Bloomfield Hills.

Keep Tummy Flat to Look Streamlined

A flat abdomen is absolutely imperative if you want to be one of those streamlined girls everyone admires. Here's an exercise that's good for strengthening the abdominal muscles.

Lie down with arms stretched out, knees together and gently lift yourself to sitting position at the same time trying to touch your toes. Take this easy at first, as you may feel a slight pull.

Prejudice About Job Stopped

Survey Helps to Change Opinion on Part Time Work

By ANNE HEYWOOD

Josephine S., her husband and daughter lived in a medium-sized town. They were new in town, and one of the first things Josephine did was try for a part-time job. But it was hopeless.

"Really," she said in exasperation, "it was just awful. I am a good stenographer, but this town was hopelessly old-fashioned."

"Back home, I had the pick of jobs, but here the employers seemed to think that the worst full-time secretary was better than the best part-time one. They kept advertising in the papers for full-time secretaries and stenos, but they wouldn't listen to the idea of part-time."

"I talked it over with a lot of mothers at the P.T.A. Many of them felt the same way; wanted part-time jobs, and had the skills."

"I decided to stop fussing and try to do something about it," Josephine went on. "After a while, I made up my mind to write a letter to our local newspaper."

"But before I could do that, I had to make a really thorough survey, and find out just what objections the employers had. So I telephoned lots and lots of companies and said I was doing a survey of the part-time job picture, and would they talk to me. Most of them were delighted, so I went out and collected all the information."

"You could see that most of their reasons were just habit, or laziness, or fear of the new. I had a wonderful time talking with them, and arguing back in a ladylike way."

"One nice old gent, who was a company-owner, turned out to be more open-minded than I had expected. I stated my case, and the old boy's eyes began to twinkle, and next thing you know, he offered me a part-time job! I like spunk," he said, and hired me.

Warm, Resilient Weaves Find Favor

The give-with-the-body freedom of knit apparel combined with new fashion ideas plays an important part in a well knit man's wardrobe.

In wool, cotton, and man-made fiber fabrics as well as in blends, the lightweight warmth and resilience of knitwear is finding new acceptance in all sorts of apparel from headwear to hose.

In clothing, knitted wool jersey jackets and topcoats are making an outstanding contribution to new concepts of functional fashion. With an array of patterns such as stripes, herringbones and tweedy effects, knit clothing looks much the same as regular woven construction. Yet it folds easily into a suit case and feels very light when worn. Brand new knitted slacks with a weightless feel, co-ordinate in color with jackets.

The knitted jersey outerjacket is a newcomer that is fast finding favor with outdoor men. Available in a variety of styles from zip front models to cardigans, design of the knitted fabric lends a fashion lift to this category of sportswear. Neat checks, plaids and new angled stripes that impart a chevron effect and intarsia type designs are leading pattern ideas. Knitted shirts with short point collars and placket fronts in a variety of colors and patterns show up well in the array of apparel for the well knit man.

Sweaters with three-way convertible necklines and rib insets across the chest and new panel argyle hose are other important knitwear items.

MOLLIE PARNIS

Fashion Trends Will Join Good Figure for Style

Mollie Parnis' success-in-fashion story is built on her sure knowledge of how to build the body beautiful coupled with an innate awareness of important and current trends. In her dress pattern today, she exhibits her engineering skill by molding a long bodice with darts that extend into the skirt seams or finish off at the peaks of the skirt gores. It has a double collar and if wool is the fabric choice Mrs. Parnis suggests using satin for the top one as well as for the sleeve banding. On the original model, she puts a ribbon tie and leather buttons both of which are chic additions. A dress that lends itself to almost any material, it will be most effective in certain of the winter cottons, faille, wool crepe, alpaca or the new silk and worster mixtures. Other pretty trimming ideas offered by the designer are pique, linen or taffeta. The trick is to select one that contrasts in texture with the dress.

This pattern is cut to designer measurements, not standard pattern measurements.

Size 12 requires 3 1/2 yards of 54 inch material for dress and 1/2 yard of 36 inch material for contrasting fabric. To order pattern No. 1194, address SPADIA SYNDICATE, INC., P. O. Box 335, Dept. P-6, G. P. O., New York 1, N. Y. State size. Send $1.00. Airmail handling 25 cents extra. New Pattern Booklet No. 11 now available for 25 cents. Have a Talk With Friend as Solution

Boring Brother Should Be Scarce on Occasion

By EMILY POST

A letter tells me: "A friend of mine and her husband come to our house once a week to play cards. The husband invariably brings his brother with them and frankly we find him a terrible bore."

We never invited him but as he spends most of his free time at my friend's house, they bring him of their own accord. Is there any way to get them to see that we don't want him—at least not every time."

As they come to your house every week it would seem that you must be on intimate enough terms with your friend to talk to her frankly about this problem and perhaps find a solution.

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband did a favor for a man, and in return he took us both out for a big evening: dinner, theater and supper club. We had a most wonderful time. I've wondered whether I shouldn't write him a thank-you note or whether thank you at the end of the evening was sufficient.

A sincerely said thank-you at the end of the evening was sufficient. If he is not a very busy man, however, it would be nice of you to telephone him to tell him briefly how much you enjoyed the evening.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been told that when wine is served at dinner, it is correct for the person serving it to pour a little in the host's glass first for him to taste before filling the glasses of others at table. I have been to many houses where wine is served but have never seen this done. What do you have to say about this?

Under ordinary circumstances, this is not so important, but if he is old vintage wine then the host should taste it so that he can have another bottle if the first is corked.

Dear Mrs. Post: When a woman in the business world is merely known as Jane Smith, how is a letter addressed to her? It seems discourteous to omit any title but I don't know whether she is Miss or Mrs.

When you don't know, you write "Miss."

Tuck Baby in Bed and Ignore Fretting

If baby repeatedly makes a nuisance of himself by demanding constant attention after he's been put to bed, it's best to ignore the demands. They're signals that he's learning to control you.

Make sure that he's completely comfortable when you put him to bed, close the door firmly and leave him alone. He'll gradually come to understand that you mean what you say and you'll both be happier for it.

Celeste Holm Qualifies as Reporter for TV Show

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Celeste Holm is playing a reporter on television—and I decided to see how much she knows about our racket. So we went out touring the city one night and I discovered that this actress knows a lot that will help her be believable as a reporter. For example, my opening question to her was:

"So you're going to play a reporter. What do you know about journalism?"

"I don't know anything about it—I just teach it," Celeste retorted.

That was perfect, because the newspaper business is made up of people who are convinced that journalism teachers don't know anything about newspaper work. On "Honestly, Celeste," the CBS TV show, Miss Holm'll play a journalism teacher who tries to get into newspaper work and drives the regular reporters and editors daffy.

Celeste and I then discussed celebrities. She mentioned one with a great reputation as a shining example of integrity.

He is an actor.

"If he said it was raining," she said, "I'd go look."

Fine! She's a cynic. But she's also wide-eyed.

"Like the man who wanted to lick my nose," she remembered.

"I was wandering around the penny arcade on Broadway and I bought a taffy apple. Then I walked around looking at the junk jewelry. I love to look at junk jewelry."

"A man came up and pointed and said, 'CELESTE HOLM!'"

"He said, 'You got taffy on your nose! Here, let me lick your nose!' And he started for me. I ducked."

CELESTE HOLM

"The man who runs the arcade came up and said, 'Don't be rude to our out-of-town visitors, Miss Holm!'"

Celeste toured "21" and the Colony with me one night. She had on the lowest-necked dress this side of Gina Lollobrigida, and off her it looked good. When we ordered dinner at the Colony, she didn't quibble about the food.

She merely said to the captain:

"What are you pushing?"

Then, looking at me, she said, "I'm going to order the breast of duck . . . just for you. I'm very cooperative."

Scott McKay, Geoffrey Lumb and Mike Kellen will all be with her on the program. On her first show, in which she makes her debut as a reporter, she's asked by the editor of the paper what department she'd like to be in, and she tells him she thinks she could help with the editorials—also that she thinks they are the weakest part of the paper. As the editor is in charge of these, she is, of course, an immediate hit with him.

The blonde beauty is not without modesty. Asked whether she ever plays any of her own records at her home, she answered:

"No! I made 'em, I heard 'em. I want to hear music!"

But she always has her eye on the ball. A movie tycoon who was most flattering about her appearance said to her: "Celeste, when am I going to be seeing you?"

"Sunday nights on my television show!" she said.

THE WEEK-END WINDUP . . .

Red Buttons, a hit at the Sands in Las Vegas, has already re-signed for next year . . . The family of Hattie McDaniel is investigating the whereabouts of the 250 G's earned by the late actress . . . Kitty Kallen's doing a one-nighter in Moose, Pa. (Look it up—it's near Scranton).

The Three Suns bought a motel in Reno . . . Hollywood note: "Oklahoma!" may be the most expensive film of 'em all—six millions so far and only half finished . . . Sydney Smith of NBC's "Home" show gets her own show. "Byline, Sydney Smith."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "When it comes to children, Mother knows best—but don't tell that to Grandmother."—Ted Steele.

JACK PAAR says movies go in cycles: "There were westerns, then war stories, then scientific films. Right now there's a new trend—they're making movies without me."—That's earl, brother.

Choose Playpen That Fits Home

The kind of playpen you use for baby depends on several things. If you have plenty of room in the house you may want to get along with a homemade pen that doesn't fold up, be sure to make it narrow enough to go through doorways so that it can be moved from one room to another.

The bars of the playpen must be placed close together so that baby can't get his head caught between them. Fairly large casters make a pen easier to move.

Manners MAKE FRIENDS

Once you raise your voice or start to pound your fist, what started out as a friendly argument has deteriorated into something less dignified. So for the sake of good manners hold your temper even when you don't hold your tongue. And remember that your rarely win an argument by getting angry.

Lose your temper and you usually lose an argument.

For Smoother Paint

For a smoother paint job, pre-wash a new paint roller in warm soapwater and rinse. This way, you'll remove all loose lint.

Cinderella of '54 Heads for Europe

Hunts Her Prince on Installment Plan Vacation

NEW YORK (INS)—The modern Cinderella doesn't wait for a fairy godmother to produce Prince Charming these days.

Cinderellas in 1954 just buy a trip to Europe on the installment plan and come home tanned, educated—and married.

This new sort of "magic" aid to romance is the result of a revolution in the commercial airlines business.

It began last spring, when Pan American World Airways launched its Pay Later Plan, under which a trip to Europe or "one of those cruises" to Bermuda was made available on the installment plan.

The plan has been so successful another airline is using it—and the cities of England, France, Italy and the Lowlands are beginning to look like American resorts full of U. S. girls on vacation.

American Cinderellas are dining in Soho, looking at fashions in Paris, sunbathing on the Riviera and studying the art of Rome.

And always there is the chance of meeting Prince Charming, which is enough of a possibility for any American girl with a dash of romance in her veins.

The average American working girl, of course, is much to practical to go off to Europe just on the chance of landing a husband. But when there is a chance—and you can finance the trip on credit, it leads to big results.

According to Willis G. Lipscomb, Pan-Am's traffic and sales chief, the first six weeks under the credit plan showed that 90 per cent of all pay later berths sold were "new business."

That was $1,000,000 worth of tickets sold to sightseeing stenographers and businessmen, vacationing coeds and teachers on sub-bathal leave.

Lipscomb said the ticket buyers were taking advantage of a plane which makes possible a one-week trip to Bermuda, from New York, including transportation, U. S. tax, transfers, hotels, breakfast and sightseeing, for $14.00 down and $11.20 a month for 12 months.

Europe on the same basis—including a tour of Paris, London, Rome and the Riviera—would be $82.00 and 12 payments of $69.00 a month.

Little Girls Love to Try Mommy's Lipstick, Polish

It's a rare little girl who doesn't enjoy sneaking into Mommy's cosmetic kit.

Most 5-year-olds are irresistibly drawn to bright red lipstick to paint a pretty mouth like Mommy's or a huge fluffy lamb'd wool puff to pat on face powder to their heart's content.

Nail polish rates high on the small girl's list of cosmetic favorites, too.

There's a dual fascination in applying it for her. First, she feels very grownup doing her own nails. Secondly, it's a form of creative play for her.

About this time, you've probably given her a bottle of colorless nail polish, hoping she would accept this and leave your bright red and pink nail polish alone, but still retain her interest in keeping her nails pretty.

You can even go a step further in encouraging her to better grooming. One miniature manicure set contains all the manicuring aids she'll need, plus a bottle of hand lotion and remover.

And your little girl will be overjoyed to discover that the nail polish isn't colorless, but a pretty shade of pale pink. Now everyone can see she's wearing real nail polish!

You'll have no trouble declaring "time for bed," either, if you suggest she spend her last 30 minutes (after bath time and before bedtime) grooming and polishing her nails.

Everyday Religion

By DON D. TULLIS

Hem and Haw

In your youth you liked to dance the hesitation waltz. It was all the rage. But have you followed down the years by living a hesitation life? Do you pause more than you pursue, go hither rather than thither and hem and haw rather than hop?

I met two former friends in Florida this week and asked them about a forward looking program we had developed some years ago for the good of the community. Had they carried on? They began to make excuses, and then, realizing the feebleness of them they started criticizing the plan and the people back of it.

Who were these men? They vote as Smith and Jones, but their real names are Hem and Haw. They are familiar figures in every community, talking much and doing nothing. Bliss Carmen describes them thus,—"Hem and Haw are the sons of sin, created to shilly and shirk. He lay 'round and Haw looked on while God did all the work."

Surely you have met these gentlemen. You may be one of them, never ready for a forward step, or for a change, and always ready to criticize those who are. "Hem" was the father of bigots and bores, as the sands of the sea were they. And Haw was the father of all the tribe who criticize today.

These fellows are present on every street corner, in every assembly, discussing, objecting, and criticizing, while "over the quivering voice of Hem is the droning voice of Haw." They are political experts but never go to the polls to vote. Rather, they cry out against the winning candidates.

Sometimes they get into government positions, and hem and haw, afraid to strike the blow, while thousands of our sons are dying on a hopeless, foreign battlefield. They hesitate to demand of foreign governments an accounting of the millions of our tax money being dumped into their yawning laps.

Hem and Haw sometimes occupy a church pew. You see them whispering about the sermon and shaking their heads when the collection plate is passed. I have seen them climbing the pulpit stairs and heard them criticize the congregation for the things they themselves were responsible for.

Let's quit the company of Hem, and turn our backs on Haw, and forward press, forgetting them, their every fluke and flaw, and build a world of righteousness, of liberty and law.

Jaycees Fight Lurid Comics

Dallas Group Pushes Drive to Ban Horror Magazines

By Religious News Service
DALLAS, Tex. — A campaign by the Dallas Junior Chamber of Commerce to ban objectionable comic books from every city in the nation is getting results. Don Greaves, youth welfare director, said here.

The Dallas group decided to throw the efforts of its 1,000 members behind such a drive following a talk several weeks ago by Felix R. McKnight, managing editor of the Dallas News, who emphasized the danger of certain comic books to the youth of America.

The first objective of the campaign, Greaves said, was to contact churches and local retail outlets and ask them to join in efforts to ban the objectionable comics.

Within two weeks, churches, groceries, drugstores and retail outlets in Dallas sent in more than 300 letters and cards pledging their support, he said. And about 30 letters came from Jaycee organizations over the state and in Oklahoma.

Greaves said his group had also sent a resolution against objectionable literature to both the Texas organization and the national group, where its adoption is pending.

A letter soliciting support from Dallas retail outlets and church groups, said:

"The horrid, weird, brutal, vicious, sexy, lurid and vulgar publications sold under the guise of comic books are causing a moral disarmament of the youth of America."

Sacred Selections by Quartet, Sunday

Confident Living

Prayer Drives Out Fear; God Will Give Courage

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

During the Civil War, that great Southern general, Stonewall Jackson, was planning a campaign in the Valley of Virginia. One of his staff members kept finding flaws in the plan. "I'm afraid," he said. "I'm worried," he said. "I'm fearful," he said. Jackson took the man aside and put his hand on the officer's shoulder. "General," he said, "never take counsel of your fears. Always counsel with faith."

And, many years later, a famous frontiersman and Indian fighter, one of the last of the great romantic figures of the Old West, drew a last will and testament leaving his prize rifle and all his other property to his only son. The will closed with these words: "I have willed you some material things of value, but of much greater importance, I give you the courage to master fear."

I received a similar gift once from an old professor at a New England college with whom I had lunched. As I was preparing to leave, he said, "As a token of our friendship and in memory of this pleasant occasion I want to give you something." Then he handed me a copy of James M. Barrie's essay on courage with the words, "You can use this every day of your life."

Then he made another statement—words which I have used every day of my life since then: "Every day you should pray for courage as you pray for your daily bread. For when you have courage you will be happy and gay, and everyone of God's children should be happy and gay."

Many years ago a man named Basil King wrote a book on fear which has in it a line worth its weight in gold. He said, "Be bold, and mighty power will come to your aid."

That's a tremendous thought. Be bold in your thinking, bold in your prayers, bold in your faith. And out of the universe will stream mighty spiritual powers to help you.

you master your fears and to give you courage.

Don't go around saying, "I'm afraid, I'm worried, I'm anxious." Instead say, "I believe, I believe, I believe." Practice the therapy of the will, the power of thought discipline. When a fear thought comes, say, "I have nothing to be afraid of." In this way you can mentally reject it.

Some, for example, are afraid of the possibility of infantile paralysis for our children; others fear heart trouble or cancer. If we entertain such negative thoughts, we can destroy our peace of mind. And it is a dangerous line of thinking. Remember that the Bible says, "For that thing which I greatly feared is come upon me."

How do you really stop being afraid? First memorize this one Bible text and, if you forget everything else, it will help you: "I will fear no evil." Why? The answer follows immediately. "For thou art with me." That statement is the greatest enemy of fear. It affirms the consciousness of the presence of God.

Practice, until you really develop it, the philosophy and technique of affirmative faith. What do I mean by that? Simply that, when fears plague you, affirm: "I put this in the hands of God. I will do my best about it, but, since I have yielded it to God, I am certain that things will work out." Picture your problems as in God's hands and Him as with you always. Affirm this daily and you will gain the courage you need to master your fears.

2nd Typhoon in a Week Hits Japanese Islands

OSAKA, Japan (AP)—Japan's second typhoon in a week slammed into teeming Honshu Island today, quickly lost some of its fury and changed course for Tokyo.

Weather forecasters said storm's 75-mile-an-hour winds weakened as the storm raged over Shio No Misaki, the southernmost tip of Japan's main island.
They predicted the typhoon will be downgraded to a mere tropical storm when she grazes Tokyo.

Toast of Town Beats Out 1st of Spectaculars

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This was the week of two big upsets—Maine elected a Democratic governor and "Toast of the Town" beat out the Betty Hutton "spectacular" TV show.

Last Sunday's Ed Sullivan show, which saluted Darryl Zanuck with a raft of stars, drew just about twice the audience rating of "Satin and Spurs," first of the Max Liebman hour and a half programs. The TV trade is still arguing pro and con.

It would appear that the networks have overestimated the pull of the spectacular shows. The show that started the whole trend was the mammoth Ford anniversary program last year. It drew a tremendous reaction, and the industry felt such biggies were the answer to breathing new life into TV.

But the Ford show offers no proof. It was telecast on the four networks and had only minor, local competition.

You can't underestimate the habit pattern in TV. "Lucy," "Dragnet," "Groucho" and "Toast of the Town" are standard features on the majority of TV dials. Add to this the fact that "Toast," unlike most big shows, has been on all summer consolidating its position. It takes something big to offset the habit pattern, and "Satin and Spurs" wasn't quite spectacular enough.

The show was good. Several notches above the average TV entertainment, in fact. But I think the producers made a mistake in making Hutton the whole show. She was immense, but the other entertainment values failed to measure up to her talents. Comedy was largely lacking, and laughs are what make the big audience ratings.

Another thought—why this break-neck competition to unseat certain top-rated shows? It seems a waste to pit two titans against each other on Sunday, Monday, Thursday and Saturday, when most of the good shows are on? Why not pay more attention to Wednesday and Friday, which are pretty dull nights for viewing?

Putting Head Out Subway Kills Boy

NEW YORK (AP)—A Brooklyn boy never finished his subway trip to Coney Island last night.
Robert McDonough, 12, stood on the seat and put his head out of the window as the train crossed the Manhattan Bridge. He struck a girder and slumped back onto the seat in front of his brother, John, 13, who was traveling with him.

At the next station an ambulance was called, but Robert was dead by the time he reached Cumberland Hospital.

Dr. Sheppard in Hearing on His Request for Bail

CLEVELAND (INS)—Accused wife-killer Dr. Samuel Sheppard resumed his battle for freedom today as a parade of witnesses filed to the stand at a bail hearing in Cuyahoga County Criminal Court.

When all of the testimony is heard, Judge Edward Blythin will determine whether Dr. Sheppard, charged with first degree murder for the back-slitting of his wife, is to go free until his trial.

The osteopath contends that a bushy-haired man invaded his home, bludgeoned Marilyn to death and twice rendered him unconscious.

Ex-Japanese Official Indicted in Espionage

TOKYO (AP)—The Japanese government today indicted a former Foreign Ministry official accused of leaking state secrets to Soviet spy Yuri A. Rastvorov.

Hiroshi Shoji, 41, also was charged with receiving rewards in U.S. dollars from Rastvorov, who was granted political asylum in the United States.

Shoji's colleague, Nobuyori Higurashi, arrested with Shoji, killed himself Aug. 29 while being questioned.

Both Shoji and Higurashi were Russian experts in the Foreign Office.

background for LIVING

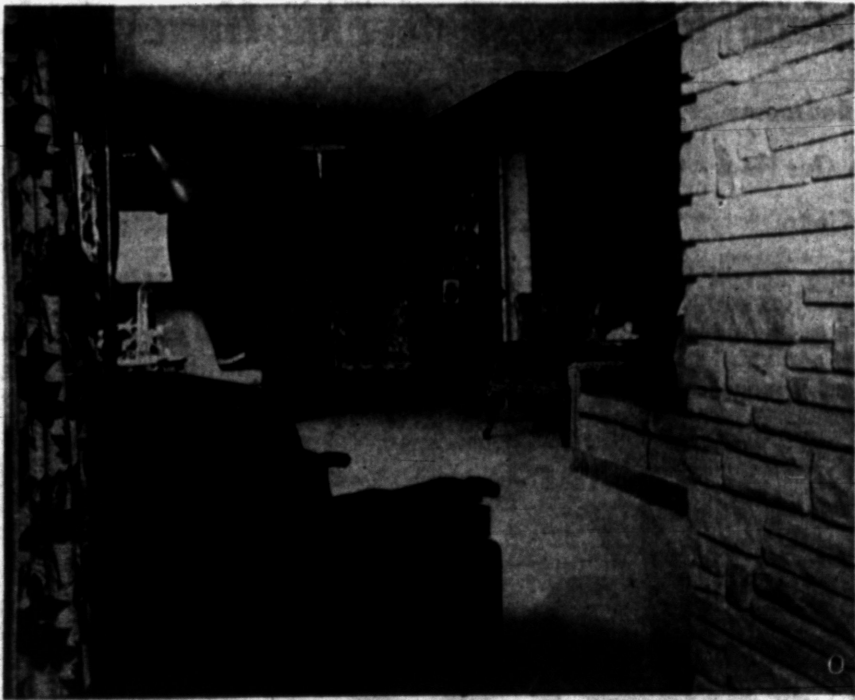

LEDGEROCK WALLS LIVING ROOM—The entire fireplace wall of the Chris Bulman living room on Otsego Drive in Cherokee Hills is built of elongated pieces of ledgerrock. Serving a dual role, the back of the fireplace forms the entranceway hall wall. Perfect foil for the colors of the room, two walls are in turquoise, one in true chocolate with flamingo used for the built-in cabinet. The ceiling is an oyster white. Mr. Bulman is shown reading in his favorite chair.

REAR HOUSE VIEW—An attractive and spacious backyard is part of the Bulman home plan. This view shows the glass block windows in the car and a-half garage. Only the gabled sections of this house are done in wood thus requiring very little periodic painting. By using a stepladder, these are within easy reach. On their pie-shaped lot, the Bulmans have fenced in their backyard with a steel storm fence three feet high. This they have edged with plantings of roses and vines.

LIVING ROOM—A built-in cabinet at one end of the living room houses books, china and crystal curios and family pictures. The drawers below afford ample storage space for linens. Mrs. Bulman selected furnishings for this room complementing the wall color scheme of turquoise, chocolate, flamingo and white. Chairs are in muted chartreuse, a deep old rose, white and aqua leather. Carpeting is a twist in gray-beige.

Building Booms

Construction this year is well on the way to great new records. Expenditures are now going along at a $3,500,000,000 a year clip. And this is all being accomplished with a substantial increase in quality over just a few years ago. A leading example is the record-breaking use of clay tile in all new homes. Manufacturers have indicated a better than 10 per cent sales increase over last year—also a record year.

DESIGNED FOR RETIREMENT—The Chris Bulmans searched for many months before they found just what they wanted in a ready-built home which would give them the ultimate in comfort and beauty for their future retirement years. This beige brick with ledgerrock trim, one-story model on Otsego Drive in Waterford Township, ended their quest. Situated on a natural slope, the house front faces a curved roadway and a concrete driveway leads to their car and a-half garage. Along the front, a ledgerrock wall about a foot high supports the lawn edge. The Bulmans have a living room, foyer, combined kitchen and dinette, a bath and a-half, den and two bedrooms in their compact home. A full basement has a large recreation room with fireplace, a laundry and work room plus the furnace room. This house is base heated.

Your Neighbor's House

Bulmans Find Ideal Retirement Home

By HAZEL A. TRUMBULL

The beige brick home at the end of Otsego drive in Cherokee Hills represents the end of a search for Mr. and Mrs. Chris Bulman—it is their retirement home.

"We looked for a long time at every type of house you can imagine. In fact, we had almost come to the conclusion we would have to build to get what we wanted until we found this home," said Bulman, a Waterford Township hardware man.

They were looking for a one-story floor plan with full basement. Brick, for exterior, was their choice with very little wood trim to require periodic painting. Two fireplaces were also part of their dream house, one for the living room where small family groups could enjoy the warmth of a fire and one in the basement recreation room for larger gatherings.

And the outdoors was an important part of their plan, too.

They wanted a spacious yard, offering areas for rose plantings and small shrubs; they wanted a flat, yet wide lawn.

The Bulman floor plan is a compact unit for living offering the ultimate in comfort, convenience and beauty.

There is a living room, combined kitchen and dinette, den, two bedrooms, a bath and a-half and a modest sized back porch. Attached is a car and a-half garage.

Besides the beige brick which forms the straight wall sections of the exterior, there is a ledgerrock planter across the front. The gabled sections are done in horizontal strips of wood painted an apple green.

Built on a pie-shaped lot, with the wide section in the front, it is at the end of a circular development of contemporary country homes.

Entering the front door, a slate floored foyer has one full wall in ledgerrock. This is actually the back of the living room fireplace.

This central hallway connects with the bedroom wing, and also leads to the den and the living room.

An interesting picture in color, the Bulman living room has a window wall and an end wall in soft turquoise. The facing wall is in true chocolate with a built-in bookcase and cabinet painted a bright flamingo. Ceiling is an oyster white.

For furnishings, Mrs. Bulman selected gray-beige in carpeting, wing chairs in a muted chartreuse and deep tone of old rose. Another chair is in white leather with a lounge chair done in the same material in aqua. Draperies, an oil-over leaf pattern, pick up the complete color scheme of the room on a white background.

The large kitchen, color plotted around green, yellow and gray, has a drop-cupboard section which forms a divider between the kitchen and dinette area. A pass-through space allows for convenience in serving.

Stainless steel gives a gleaming note to the Thermadore oven and its matching counter-top stove. This is placed in a working unit with refrigerator, double sink and cupboards. Twenty-six cupboard doors in this room open to reveal a maximum of storage facilities.

The new Formica treatment for light wood table tops forms the top of the dinette table which matches blond oak chairs.

In the den, cork tile has been used for the floor and again in the hallway leading to the bedrooms. Sandalwood is the den wall color and willow furniture is placed in this room.

For the master bathroom color scheme, the Bulmans have a Persian rose tile edged in cafe-au-lait. Yellow is the contrast note.

Sliding full-wall closets are located in each of the bedrooms, one room done in rose and green with cocoa walls and in the guest room the colors are red and blue.

"After nearly six months of living in our home, I find it is easy to care for and a pleasure to live in," said Mrs. Bulman who pointed out that in planning for retirement, beauty and comfort is as important as convenience.

The Bulman's house was built by Delmar Hetherington.

Governor Sets Up National Home Week

National Home Week will be observed next week (Sept. 19 to 26) with local home and industrial builders, home furnishings stores and real estate firms "putting their best foot forward" for their thousands of local patrons.

Governor G. Mennen Williams

issued a proclamation this week designating special observance of the nationally noted event.

He urged people to take a new look at the home building progress which had taken place in this state.

Stating that a greater number of homes are now available to the citizens of the state because of the efforts of the home building industry and its allied businesses, the Governor said that home ownership is a symbol of security and personal success.

Home Trade-in Sees Big Gain

Program Was Launched
Less Than Year Ago
Becomes Widespread

If you'd like to trade in your old house on one of the shiny new numbers you'll see during this year's National Home Week, starting today, you'll find an increasing number of builders willing to do business on that basis.

A pre-National Home Week report from Sponsors of a nationwide builders contest disclosed today that the trade-in program, launched officially less than a year ago, already is well on its way to becoming widespread in the industry.

Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company reported that of the 800 builders entered in its second annual Acapulco Derby contest, held in cooperation with the National Association of Home Builders, 15 per cent of them are competing for prizes to be awarded those who develop the best trade-in programs.

"Since neither the NAHB nor other official sources have figures on the total number of builders in America who had adopted the trade-in technique, the participation in the Acapulco Derby contest is probably the best indication yet available of the scope of the program," said Eldon Richardson, Honeywell's home market supervisor.

The contest, designed to stimulate new home merchandising, offers all-expense fishing holidays in Acapulco, Mexico, to the 20 builders in the nation who do the best job of Home Week promotion, and to five other builders who have the best trade-in programs.

The contest ends during National Home Week and awards will be announced at the NAHB board of directors' meeting in New York in October.

Interest being shown in the trade-in program, Richardson said, indicates that the nation's builders not only are adopting the vigorous merchandising techniques of the automobile industry, but also are borrowing its successful trade-in techniques to make it easier for buyers to meet down-payment requirements.

"The new housing legislation giving FHA authority to increase loan commitments on both old and new homes," Richardson added, "also will make the trade-in program easier, and will enable at least 2 1/2 million additional families to move into new homes in the next five years."

The U. S. national health bill, including medical and dental goods and services for the year 1953, was $10,200,000, a family average of $204.

Iron Raised 73 Times in Ironing Man's Shirt

The home economics department of a large university reports that a large part of the average woman's energy in ironing is wasted by the number of times she has to handle the iron. One woman picked up and put down her iron seventy-three times while ironing one shirt. It also has been shown that a woman changes her stance seventy times or more while ironing one shirt.

An automatic household ironer ends all the lifting of a heavy weight, enables a woman to sit restfully and comfortably instead of tiring herself standing.

Magnolias Grow Here

Some varieties of magnolias will flourish over a very large area of the country, according to the American Association of Nurserymen. Many people think of them only as southern trees. Your local nurseryman can tell you those trees which will thrive under your soil and climatic conditions.

Half the world's natural rubber comes from Malaysia.

More Businesses Now Landscaped

As business has expanded into new areas increased emphasis has been placed on landscaping. Both large and small businesses now realize that the attractiveness afforded by landscaping simply is "good business", says the American Association of Nurserymen.

It is not a matter of beauty alone, according to the association, though most owners of businesses want them to be attractive.

More practical is the fact that good landscaping, in addition to bringing business, often solves zoning problems where the businesses extend into residential areas. It also creates better community and employee relations for the business firm.

Not only do employees prefer to work in a well-landscaped business, but surveys have developed the fact that they work better in such places.

Likewise the community and potential customers always prefer an attractively landscaped business than one that pays no attention to its surroundings.

Most customers will select the well-landscaped business over one that has not been planted with trees and shrubs and lawns, surveys show.

Roller-Painting Easy If Done in Correct Way

If you've just used a paint roller for the first time and are not completely satisfied with the results of your labors, this column is intended to help you to do better the next time.

Don't be discouraged. Painting with a roller coater is easy, it does save time and results in a smooth, even coating if the job is done correctly. Take a few tips from a consumer service bureau.

To begin with, the surface to be painted should be clean — free of grease, dust or other foreign matter. It is especially desirable to wash kitchen and bathroom walls before painting. Other room walls may require only dusting.

When the surface is entirely dry, painting may begin. Fill the paint tray to a point half way up its slanted surface.

Quick changes of color are made possible if you first line the tray with foil or wrapping paper. When you've finished with one color, simply lift out the lining and install a new one.

Before painting the main surface area, use a brush or one of the new cut-in coaters for trimming along the edges of the ceiling, floor and woodwork. Do this as you go along. Don't trim the edges on more than one wall at a time. This prevents "shading" or a rather apparent overlap when the main area is covered.

The roller should be loaded by rolling into the "shore line" of the paint in the tray, then back and forth on the dry part of the tray. Repeat this once or twice or until the roller is evenly coated with paint.

Apply paint to the surface with a light, back-and-forth rolling motion in any direction.

Don't lift the roller at the end of each stroke, for this allows it to spin and throw off fine drops of paint. Progress slowly and carefully to within 1½ inches of windows, corners and edges previously trimmed.

Work should not be stopped until the entire wall or ceiling surface has been painted, to avoid lap marks. Always paint across the narrowest dimension of ceilings, in strips not much more than two feet wide—again to avoid lap marks. Ceiling painting is simplified if a long extension handle is used.

Paint walls from top to bottom. Above all, do not press hard on the roller. If it becomes necessary to bear down, then your roller either needs more paint or the paint needs thinning.

Remember that, when exactly the right amount of paint has been applied to a surface, the roller cannot pick this up and spread it out more thinly. Any amount over and above the correct amount will be picked up and applied to a dry surface.

Proper cleaning of rollers is important to successful painting. After using oil paint, first squeeze the excess paint out of the roller. Place it in a paper or plastic bag and squeeze by hand. Then immerse and agitate it in a pan of turpentine, mineral spirits or other thinner, repeating until clean.

After painting with latex-base or water-base paints, cleanse the roller in lukewarm water. Squeeze and work the water through the roller until it's clean.

Storing in plastic containers keeps roller covers fresh and clean.

Check Fireplace in Name of Safety

Fire brings warmth and cheer only if it is under control and closely watched. Never take safety measures for granted. This is especially true of your fireplace. It should be checked twice a year, in the fall and in the spring.

Have crack developed? Is the insulation between it and walls still solid? Does it need cleaning? Is the shield over the chimney top still in good condition?

For improvements, check these ideas: extend the hearth in fireproof tile for extra safety, install a sliding, built-in screen rather than the folding kind, and keep firewood in metal box away from fire.

Now Is Time for Hanging That Storm Sash

By HUBBARD COBB

If you have ever spent an afternoon up on a high ladder wrestling with a heavy wood storm window you'll know why the people who make these combination storm windows and insect screens are doing pretty well for themselves.

Hanging storm windows from the outside is not only hard work but it's dangerous too for you are in danger when up on top of a ladder with both hands occupied.

Now, believe it or not, you can hang ordinary storm sashes from the inside.

It's still work but it's not nearly as dangerous as fooling around with a sash on top of a high ladder in a strong wind.

To hang storm sashes from inside you need the help of some other person and a board about six feet long.

First thing you do is to open the top sash and slip the storm sash outside. The idea is to get the storm sash outside with the bottom resting on the window sill.

Now lift up the lower sash enough to slip the end of the board outside so that it can be slipped under the bottom of the storm sash. Get the second person to pry down on the far end of the board so that the storm sash is raised sufficiently for you to engage the hangers at the top of the window frame.

To do this, of course, the bottom of the storm sash must be pushed out and this can be easily done by simply pushing on the length of board supporting the sash at the bottom edge.

If you have a small home repair problem on which you wish a personal reply, write to Mr. Cobb, The Pontiac Press, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Clamp Gently

When you clamp up a glued joint, be careful not to tighten the clamps too much. If you do, you run the risk of squeezing the glue right out of the joint and this, as you may have guessed, is not good.

At 20 degrees Fahrenheit, the energy available from an automobile battery is only about 80 per cent of what is available at 40 degrees.

Book Compiles 'How to Do It'

Washington Publication Is Specialist Advice on Rehabilitation

Expansion in the market for modernized homes and other properties is the occasion for a new how-to-do-it book, "Rehabilitation As A Business," published today by the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The book is jointly issued by NAREB's Institute of Real Estate Management and its Build America Better Council.

The only publication of its kind to date, "Rehabilitation As A Business" contains a series of step-by-step case histories of successful rehabilitation work, detailing the unforeseen problems encountered, explaining how they were solved, and presenting information on cost and new values created to show a profitable experience.

The book pulls together in a single volume, material that was previously available only in various issues of the technical quarterly journal of the Institute of Real Estate Management.

Liberal illustrations of examples of how to succeed at rehabilitation in the 100-page book deal with such types of problem properties as a big old house of vanished elegance that was turned into exceptionally attractive modern apartments.

It describes a successful program of apartment modernization, gives advice learned the hard way from specialists who have rehabilitated and modernized houses in every price range.

"How to Turn A White Elephant Into A Valuable Property" introduces a special chapter in the book on transforming a dingy, outdated, neglected, tax-delinquent, and unprofitable department store building of the last century into a sleek modern office building.

Other examples detailed show how imagination and a practical "feel" for rehabilitation successfully dealt with an unwanted medical building, a run-down hotel, an outmoded left building.

The book is available from the National Association of Real Estate Boards, 1737 K Street, N. W., Washington 6, D. C.

Moths Shun White

It seems that moths that like to eat clothing don't like the light. For this reason it's wise to paint the inside of closets and storerooms white as this helps to discourage moths setting up house-keeping.

Suburban Steel Develops Scott Lake Road Factory

Suburban Steel, Inc., this week launched its new factory building program on a five-acre tract of land along Scott Lake Rd., Waterford Township.

The initial plant structure and office building will cost over $100,000.

A fabricating structural steel and iron products concern, Suburban Steel handles the products of Bethlehem Steel, Inland Steel, Tuscon Steel and Detroit Steel Products.

Officers in the incorporation are H. Schneider, Ralph Wood and Frank Schmieg.

The firm this week began fabricating operations on a huge concrete slab on their site. Movement of heavy machinery is now underway.

Company officials said that Suburban Steel, Inc., a new concern, is now in business and will transfer its production to the new factory as rapidly as it is completed.

Consider an ingenious homemaker and mother whose husband is in the service of his country. She spends most of the day with her two small sons. Then, when she puts them to bed at 7:30 in the evening, she starts her housework, which, she says, she can do much faster without the youngsters interrupting her every few minutes.

Soon the house is clean, or the washing or ironing done, thanks to her washer and ironer. With careful timing, she even can relax for a while before she goes to bed.

Dark Green Rug Gives Room Restful Look

Did you read that in the Denver summer office of President Eisenhower "draperies and a dark green wall-to-wall rug give the room a restful look"? This is no wonder, because such floor-covering always has been favored for just that reason, to say nothing of the way in which it can set the color-scheme for the room's entire furnishings.

Planning can be done with perfect confidence that the color harmony will be safely maintained, thanks to the valiant aid of the household vacuum cleaner in holding disfiguring, damaging dust and dirt safely at bay.

Realtors Meet in Cleveland

National Association
Sets Nov. 6-11 Date
for 47th Convention

Thousands of Realtors from all parts of the country and Canada will gather in Cleveland, Nov. 6-11, for the 47th annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Ronald J. Chinnock, Chicago, president of NAREB, will preside. Impact of the new Housing Act of 1954, outlook for real estate prices, availability of funds for mortgage loans, and the new era of home modernization and neighborhood improvement will be among the subjects considered.

Besides leaders of the real estate profession, some of the top speakers will include Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, Treasurer of the United States; Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, former Secretary of War; Gen. Omar Feltner, author and political adviser who served under Gen. Douglas MacArthur; and James Q. DuPont, great-grandson of the founder of E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Company.

Other topics of interest to be discussed will include the impact of the motor car on real estate, the outlook for independent retail stores and shopping centers, and methods of dealing with downtown deterioration.

Inspiring new developments in NAREB's Build America Better program will be outlined, and Realtors will be shown how they can take an increasing part in the sound, private-enterprise way of ridding our cities of blight and slums.

New officers and directors of NAREB will be elected, and the policy statement for next year will be adopted.

Future Construction Awards at Record

DETROIT (U. S. — Contract awards for future construction in southern Michigan stood at an all-time eight month high at the end of August, Dodge Reports, a construction news publication, said today.

The report said the total of $829,047,000 was 49 per cent ahead of contracts for the first eight months of 1953. However, figures for August this year were 35 per cent below the July total.

Contracts for the first eight months of 1954 as compared with a like period in 1953 included $325,177,000 for nonresidential construction, up 37 per cent; $376,677,000 for residential construction, up 59 per cent, and $127,193,000 for heavy engineering projects, up 52 per cent.

Have Fun Converting Old Doorway

Entrance halls in old houses often contain never-used doorways that can be converted to bookcases or storage shelves.

To seal the doorway, install a full-length plate glass mirror on the entrance hall side. It will seem to enlarge and brighten the hall and will be an aid in donning hats, coats and scarves before going out.

If the doorway was an alternate entrance to the living room, use plate glass shelves to build a living-room bookcase. If it entered the kitchen, a light-weight door on the kitchen side will provide a broom closet, or shelves and a door will give storage space for dishes. If it opened on the dining room, use glass shelves backed by a second full-length mirror for displaying your best china, silver and ornamental accessories.

It's Easy to Launder

The fast-drying qualities of fiber glass make it a most practical choice for bathroom window curtains. Washing them often in rich soapsuds, and rinsing and smoothing when hanging them to dry, maintains their crispness.

Ready Plants for Winter

It's Easy to Protect Prized Shrubs From Unusual Weather

In the past few years, abnormal weather in many parts of the country has become the usual occurrence. In general, large areas of the country have been warmer, while numerous areas have experienced more extensive frosts.

It is easy to protect prize trees and shrubs on your property from unusual weather conditions while the steps recommended can't harm plants no matter what kind of weather is experienced, says the American Association of Nurserymen. These steps are as follows:

1. If there is insufficient natural rainfall, thoroughly soak the ground around the roots of all established, valuable plants on your property at least every two weeks.
2. A mulch of peat moss or other porous, organic material will help to keep plants from drying out quickly in periods of drought. Mulch your shrubs well.
3. Roses, azaleas and many other flowering shrubs will perform better with a mulch three or four inches thick. Where there are strong winter and early spring winds, if the shrubs are the least bit tender, protect the plants themselves with salt hay or similar material.
4. Water even in the fall and winter months if there is a lack of natural precipitation. Plants need water during these months even though they may be dormant. It helps them to survive severe winter conditions of both wind and drought.

These few precautions will keep your trees and shrubs healthier under the most trying conditions. Some new plantings may require partial shade. Consult your local nurseryman.

A full year of perfect weather for plants is practically unheard of. Always some part of the year imposes severe conditions, but simple all-year care will prevent loss. Improper care is by far the most severe handicap of home plants today.

4 Persons Injured in Two Car Crash

Four persons were injured yesterday in a two-car collision on Walton Blvd. at Addie Street, in Waterford Township, when one driver drove over the center line, according to township police.

Treated at Pontiac General Hospital were: Mrs. Ruth Cox, 35, of 1841 Burrus Rd., Ortonville, with an ankle fracture and bruises; her daughter, Sally, 34, knee and ankle injuries; Carroll Fahlgren, 33, of 2278 Pauline, Drayton Plains, nose cuts, ankle injuries and bruises; and Richard Johnson, 35, of 240 Florence St., with forehead cuts.

Mrs. Cox, one of the drivers, told Patrolmen Merrill Finkle and John Forbush that Fahlgren's car drove over the center line. Fahlgren stated that Mrs. Cox's car "popped up" in front of him and he did not have time to avoid the collision.

Buy Furnishings to Suit Needs of Your Family

The final test of any home furnishings plan, from the selection of colors for your scheme to the choice and arrangement of the furnishings is: Will it be suitable for your family?

Will it serve their needs, their hobbies and activities? Will it be a background for their individual and collective personalities?

From the time you consider your initial plans until you actually make the purchases, it is the family's needs and desires that help you to determine whether your home is to be furnished for formal or informal living, for much entertaining or little, as a comfortable retreat for the use of your own family, or as a neighborhood gathering place.

Don't be concerned if your family preferences differ on the matter of style or period—such differences may be combined to produce exactly the individual character you wish for your home.

Don't be afraid to mix traditional and contemporary pieces, or light and dark woods, or contemporary pieces with light and dark woods, or contemporary fabrics with traditional furniture. Just be sure that each part of the total selection has the same degree of formality or informality.

Engine Power Still Going Up

Will Be Even Higher in 1955 Cars; 4 Rated at Over 260 H. P.

By DAVID J. WILKIE
Associated Press Automotive Editor

DETROIT (UP)—Short cut to an argument with auto engine designers is to say they are engaged in a horsepower race.

Power output of the auto engine has been going up steadily during recent years. It will be even higher in 1955. The higher-priced cars will have engines with horsepower ratings up to 265.

Lower down in the price class distinction there will be power increases, too. Engineers, disclaiming efforts merely to top their competitors in power output, say the objective is chiefly to improve engine operation.

They agree the average motorist rarely calls upon the full power potential of his car engine. But they also insist a 100-horsepower engine cannot function as smoothly or as efficiently as the 200-horsepower unit.

Whether the steadily growing horsepower reserve is an invitation to speed on the highway also is disputed by the engine designers. Occasionally an industry expert will describe the higher horsepower engine as a factor for safety, including the power to pass another car in an emergency.

Not too well explained is whether such an emergency would be real or the result of one speed law violator trying to pass another.

There will be three and possibly four new car engines next year rated at more than 260 horsepower. With varying modifications, the power output of these engines can be stepped up to well above 300 horsepower engines for stock cars.

Driving Violations

A list of drivers' licenses suspended or revoked this week according to a Michigan Department of State report, include the following Oakland County residents:

Benny's Tax Fight Bares Details of Switch to CBS

HOLLYWOOD (INS)—A tax suit in which the government is trying to collect an additional $1,000,000 in income taxes from comedian Jack Benny is laying bare the details of his switch from NBC to CBS in 1948.

The case is being tried in the U.S. Tax Court. So far the famed clown has put in no appearance at the trial, but yesterday his aides paraded to the witness stand and took the wraps off one of the biggest deals in radio.

It was disclosed, incidentally, that Benny, noted as a pinch-penny on his programs, was no miser when it came to paying the writers who dream up his comedy material. Some of them received as much as $50,000 a year.

The argument between the comic and the government is over whether the profits made from the sale of Amusement Enterprises, Inc., to CBS was a capital gain or an ordinary income.

Benny contends that it was a capital gain and should be taxed at 25 per cent.

The government asserted that it was ordinary income because all but $250,000 of the $2,500,000 CBS paid for the amusement concern was paid directly to the comedian. On that basis, it claims that an additional tax payment of $1,000,000 is due.

Benny owned 60 per cent of the stock in Amusement Enterprises, a concern which produced the Benny show, along with stage plays, pictures and other radio shows.

Sylvan Ostreicher, a minority stockholder in the company, told Judge Stephen E. Rice that Benny was under contract to the American Tobacco Company, not Amusement Enterprises, and was paid $10,000 a week.

Ostreicher related that the comedian once was paid $20,000 a week, but he had to pay for other talent on the show out of that figure, and he was subject to a $10,000 fine if for any reason he was unable to appear on the show.

The witness said that Benny did not like the arrangement and the contract was replaced with the one paying $10,000 a week.

Ostreicher declared that Benny had nothing to do with the switch from one network to the other. He said:

"American Tobacco ordered the switch after CBS outbid NBC for Benny's show."

Business Briefs

The National Brewing Co. of Baltimore has bought controlling interest in the Altes Brewing Co. of Detroit.

Principals in the sale, declining to be quoted, said a formal announcement would be made next week.

The reported sale price was $2,400,000 or $5 a share for the 480,000 shares needed to acquire control of the brewery.

William S. McNary, executive vice president of Michigan Hospital Service (Blue Cross) has been elected a member of the board of trustees of the American Hospital Assn.

He was elected for a 3-year term beginning Sept. 15 by the House of Delegates at the association's annual convention in Chicago.

Phillips Petroleum Co. honored 67 employees last night at a dinner at Kansas City, Mo., in recognition of their many years of service. Among the honored guests was Samuel E. Kennedy of Rochester who was cited for 25 years service to the company.

Joseph M. Dodge, Detroit banker, has been re-elected to the board of trustees of Equitable Life Insurance Co. of Iowa, F. A. Hubbell, president of the company, said today.

Dodge resigned as a trustee last year when he became federal director of the budget during the first year of the Eisenhower administration.

Man Waives Examination on Indecency Charges

A 52-year-old man, charged with taking indecent liberties with a three-year-old Southfield Township girl Sept. 16, was bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court when arraigned yesterday before Farmington Township Justice Allen C. Ingle.

John M. Dietrich, 52, of Foss Trailer Park, Southfield Township, waived examination on the charge and arraignment was set for Sept. 27. He was unable to furnish a $500 bond and is being held in the Oakland County Jail.

Man, 27, Shot in Police Trap

Ends Phone Campaign to Rape Contestant for Mrs. America Title

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A big man whose revolver clicked on its only empty chamber was shot down in a police trap yesterday in the climax of a telephone campaign to rape a Mrs. America contestant.

The man, booked by police as James Bryan, about 27, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., was in critical condition after surgery at a hospital last night.

Police said Bryan had been scheming to molest the woman since he saw her picture in a newspaper during last winter's preliminaries here of the Mrs. America contest.

"He's been calling her up since July," Detective Lt. Sidney C. Ritter said. "He called two or three times every day and once as often as seven times. He threatened to rape her and murder her husband and children if she would not meet him."

The woman's husband reported the matter to police Monday. Then plans were laid for yesterday's trap.

The housewife agreed to a date on one of the threatening calls. Ritter was standing behind curtains and another officer in a closet when Bryan knocked on the door. The woman answered.

"As soon as she opened the door, Bryan pushed his way in and locked the door," Ritter related. "He stuck a pistol in her ribs and told her to take him through the house to see if it was clear."

"When he got about three feet from me I stepped out. He turned the pistol from her and rammed it right in my stomach," Bryan snapped the trigger on the empty chamber just as Ritter fired his own pistol. Ritter's bullet struck Bryan in the right shoulder.

"The woman herself carried it out right up till the time the shooting started. Then she collapsed," Ritter said.

Police said Bryan, a married man with no prior police record, was charged with attempted murder, assault with a pistol with intent to commit murder and with carrying a pistol.

British Royalty in Washington

Visit of Duchess of Kent and Princess Strictly Unofficial

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Duchess of Kent and her 17-year-old daughter, Princess Alexandra, arrive here today for an informal visit during which they're expected to "rubberneck" at the sights of the United States capital.

The visit of the British royal pair was described in advance as "informal"—which Webster says means "with identity concealed"—but they and their hosts at the British embassy will be riding about town in sleek black limousines bearing diplomatic license tags.

The Duchess and the Princess arrived Aug. 23 for a visit in Canada. They planned a stay in New York before sailing for home next Wednesday aboard the Queen Mary. The trip to Washington—a "quickie" of about 24 hours—was an added touch.

The trip here by train is unofficial. If it were an official visit, the Duchess and Princess would be greeted with ceremony and attended by government functionaries almost everywhere they went. As it is, they'll probably be left to their own devices.

Man Locked Overnight in Pub in Sea of Beer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—Robert Mooney accidentally got locked up for the night—in a pub. The barman found him there next morning, surrounded by empty bottles and a sea of spilled beer.

"A glorious kind of incarceration," Magistrate J. H. Campbell called it. He ordered Robert to pay the pub owner $140 to meet the damage he had done.

Terrorists Raid Prison, Free 200 Mau Maus

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—A terrorist gang raided Kikuyu Prison 25 miles outside Nairobi last night, killing a guard and freeing some 200 Mau Mau prisoners.

More than 1,000 police, aided by planes, began a search today for the escapees.

Antique Duck Gun Kills Man in Store

TOWNSEND, Mont. (AP)—An antique muzzle loader duck gun—described as a "young cannon"—that apparently had not been used for 75 years, went off in a hardware store today, killing the handler.

The victim was identified by Sheriff Bert Alex as Jim Lovett, 53, Great Falls smelter worker who was visiting on a nearby ranch.

The store proprietor, George Gabisch, said the handmade gun had only been on display two days. He told a reporter, "It was simply a case of another 'empty gun going off.'"

The shot rattled windows for two blocks and caused clouds of smoke to pour out of the store door.

October 9 is the date annually designated in the Dominion of Canada to observe its Thanksgiving Day.

Sheppard Bail Trial Near End

Osteopath's Lawyers Expect to Finish Case on Monday

CLEVELAND (AP)—Lawyers for Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard—seeking his freedom on bail—hope to finish their case Monday with the testimony of three more witnesses.

The Bay Village osteopath listened yesterday to the last of 12 witnesses testify about events concerning the murder of his pregnant, 31-year-old wife, Marilyn.

Sheppard, accused of first degree murder in the bludgeoning slaying, was not called by his attorneys to testify at the bail hearing, held before Common Pleas Judge Edward Blythin.

Ohio law provides that defendants in capital cases may be released on bail unless presumption of guilt exists to warrant holding a defendant before trial.

The prosecution has held that indictment by a grand jury on first degree murder charges constitutes sufficient presumption of guilt.

MOSCOW (AP)—"Frankly voiced acute Soviet displeasure today at recent Turkish-American 'military rehearsals on the approaches' to Russia's southern border."

The Communist party paper said the maneuvers included simulated atomic attacks and asked the question: How would Americans react if "some country located many thousands of kilometers from the United States had brought armed forces in to the districts of Toronto, Montreal or Vancouver and held military maneuvers?"

Cigar-Shaped Object Streaks Above Rome

ROME (AP)—Startled Romans who saw a strange cigar-shaped object streaking over the capital last night flooded newspaper offices with anxious calls. Radar operators also reported picking up the missile on their instruments.

Technicians at Ciampino Airfield described the object as a "half cigar" which appeared at one instant to plummet towards the earth for more than 1,000 feet, then rose at tremendous speed and finally vanished.

Observers at Pratica di Mare said the object, which they described as silver-colored on one side and red on the other, was traveling in a northwest direction. Several witnesses said the object seemed to emit a trail of smoke.

Indian Student at MSC Breaks His 2-Week Fast
EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—With the breaking of his two-week semi-fast, the condition of Sankar S. Chari, graduate student from India, was "slightly improved" today at Michigan State College Hospital. He still, however, was listed as critical.

Chari was critically burned in a laboratory explosion and underwent a leg amputation. But until yesterday he had refused to eat, saying that some of the food, particularly meat and eggs, were against his religion.

He had been taking some liquids and was being fed intravenously.

Col. Flemming Ends Defense in Court Martial

FT. SHERIDAN, Ill. (AP)—Lt. Col. Harry Flemming has completed his court-martial defense with a psychiatrist's testimony that hunger, brutality and "brain washings" destroyed his will to resist his Communist captors.

Fleming, the first American officer to be tried for his behavior as a Korean War prisoner, is accused of collaborating with the Reds during his three years in captivity.

Dr. Glenn A. Bacon of Racine, Wis., said he based his opinion on an examination he made of the Army officer and on testimony of other POWs who testified at the court-martial.

Summations of the court-martial testimony will be given when the hearing is resumed Monday and the case may go to the 11-man court late that day for a ruling. The court-martial opened Aug. 30.

Fleming, 46, of Racine, Wis., is accused of taking part in Red propaganda broadcasts, attacking the war aims of the United States and otherwise cooperating unnecessarily with his captors.

Arming of West Germany Major Headache to Allies

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

The week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet:

The good:
1. The danger of a Chinese Communist attack on Formosa, bastion of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists, diminished appreciably. It looked as if the Reds, in their talk of "liberating" the island, were waging a war of words.

Returning from the Southeast Asia Conference in Manila, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said the Reds would not be permitted to take Formosa "under any circumstances." He said also, in a report to the nation, that the United States is ready to strike at any aggressor in the western Pacific with powerful air and naval forces.

2. Similarly, the possibility of new Communist aggression in Korea was made less likely.

Negotiations were started in Washington and Seoul, the South Korean capital, for United States aid totalling up to $700,000,000 to South Korea, including a build-up of its army. Gen. John E. Hull, Allied supreme commander, arrived in Seoul for negotiations.

He announced that the United States and the United Nations would go quickly to the aid of South Korea in event of an unprovoked attack. "I cannot believe the Communists can be so stupid as to think they could be successful in any such operation," Hull said.

3. Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Amiri announced that the agreement under which Iran's oil will start flowing again would be signed. Experts representing the Western oil companies which are to direct production and marketing are to arrive in the Abadan oil center next Wednesday.

The Iranian government smashed a spy ring which had been operating in behalf of Soviet Russia ever since the end of World War II.

The bad:
1. France's killing of the European Defense Community pact remained a headache to the Western Allies.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden won the support of five of the six signatories of the pact to a plan which would permit West Germany to rearm by bringing it into the Brussels Defense Treaty that links Britain with France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. But France's position remained uncertain.

Runaway Vehicles Caren for 2 Miles

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP)—A sergeant jumped from an Army truck to a gun carrier it was towing while the vehicles roared out of control down Cajon Summit last night and brought the vehicles to a halt.

Patrol Officer W. S. Bloomer said two Army men occupied the truck cab and four were riding the gun carrier when the truck went out of control.

The vehicles careened more than two miles down the highway, partly on the upward-bound lanes. Then Sgt. Jesus Rosario jumped from the truck to the carrier and grabbed emergency brakes, halting the runaway vehicles.

Bloomer said he warned motorists of the runaway truck by sounding his siren and flashing red lights. A bus and several automobiles narrowly escaped.

United Fruit Co. Signs Contract With Panama

Soviets Move Grain Area Farther Inland

LONDON (AP)—A diplomat who recently arrived from Moscow says the Russians are making a major effort to establish a granary in central Asia as a precaution against war.

The diplomat asked that his name not be used because he is returning to the Soviet capital. "I do not believe the Soviets are getting ready for a third world war," he said, "but I am convinced they are taking definite steps to see that their grain-growing areas be as far from the front as possible."

During the last war the Germans overran the Ukraine and the northern Caucasus, both bread baskets, and greatly crippled the Soviet war effort.

The nesting place of the cattle egret have not yet been located in South America although the bird appeared on the continent more than 20 years ago, says the National Geographic Society. Flocks have spread from British Guiana to Surinam, Venezuela, and Colombia. They are also new migrants to the east coast of the United States.

Wise Up!

Mr. and Mrs. TV Owner

Many folks are suspicious of all television servicemen—call them "crooks", "frauds" and "gyps". There is no more sense in criticising all TV dealers than in branding all bank officials because a few have gone wrong.

Your Better Business Board files reveal that almost all local TV men are completely reliable. They charge a fair rate for home service calls. Parts are billed at the correct price. The customer is charged only for actual time spent in shop repair.

Learn to recognize the genuine "TV Gyp"!

- ★ He advertises "cheap" home service calls. (He far more than makes up for it with hidden charges.)
- ★ He makes a large minimum charge for shop work. (You should not pay for more time than is actually spent repairing your set.)
- ★ He advertises parts at ridiculous discounts — up to 50% off. (He's probably referring to obsolete parts — you'll never get any such discount on the parts you need.)

For your own protection, take this tip from your BBB—DEAL ONLY WITH LOCAL, WELL-ESTABLISHED TV SERVICEMEN!
