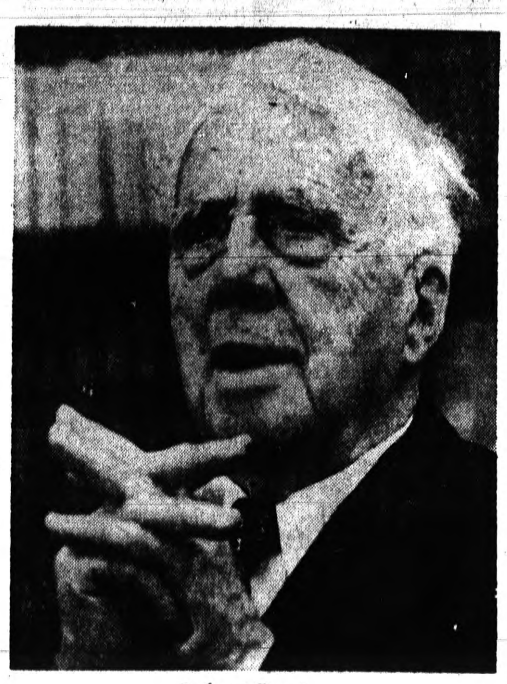
Frost, Dean of U.S. Poets, Is Dead at 88



Robert Frost

He was pronounced dead at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital at 1:50 a.m. after two operations, a heart attack and three separate blood clots in his lungs since Dec. 3.

The four-time Pulitzer Prize winner had been making what doctors called a remarkable recovery until his general condition began deteriorating in the past 48 hours.

His attending physician, Dr. Roger B. Hickler, said Frost died shortly after complaining of severe chest pains and a shortness of breath.

Dr. Hickler said that a few hours before the fatal attack Frost was "talkative and comfortable."

Frost fashioned poems out of the material around him, but used homey subjects that might be anywhere.

Related Stories, Page 3

"I'm going to clean the pasture spring;
"I'll only stop to rake the leaves away
(And wait to watch the water clear, I may);
"I shan't be gone long—you come, too."

'THE GREAT POET'

Kennedy's formal statement described Frost as "The great American poet of our time.

"His art and his life summed up the essential qualities of the New England he loved so much: the fresh delight in nature, the plainness of speech, the canny wisdom and the deep, underlying insight into the human soul.

"His death impoverishes us all; but he has bequeathed his nation a body of imperishable verse from which Americans will forever gain joy and understanding.

"He had promises to keep, and miles to go and now he sleeps."

Frost entered the hospital Dec. 3 and underwent an operation seven days later for removal of a urinary obstruction.

Subsequently he had a heart attack and blood clots settled in his lungs. In an attempt to ease the blood clots, doctors operated on both legs to tie the veins earlier this month.

Fame came late to the one-time mill worker, New Hampshire farmer and teacher. He lived in comparative obscurity until he was nearly 40.

Two years ago—at the age of 86—he was invited by President Kennedy to read a poem at his inauguration.

With a January wind tousling his thatch of white hair and a strong sun blinding him, Frost discarded the script he could not read and recited from memory a poem he had written 20 years earlier, "The Gift Outright."

France Snubs Kennedy, Kills Britain's Bid

Other Mart Members Unable to Bend Will of Charles de Gaulle

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—France today killed Britain's bid for membership in the Common Market despite the Kennedy administration's last-minute efforts to stave off the decision.

The six members of the market gave Britain the word of the French decision. Edward Heath, the deputy British foreign minister who had been barred from earlier sessions considering the British application, was called in to hear the news.

★ ★ ★

The decision ended a day of wrangling in which various nations tried to postpone or soften a showdown.

The French, in the view of some diplomats, scored not only on the membership issue but on the start of a long process of lessening American and British influence on the Continent.

A community rule requires unanimity on basic decisions. This is a veto power which France used as a weapon against the British.

The French insisted that the way might be open to British membership in the future but none of the conferees seemed to take this seriously.

WASHINGTON GRIM

The veto by President Charles de Gaulle's government drew grim reactions in London and Washington, the capitals of his most powerful allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

A restrained British view was expressed by Laborite Emanuel Shinwell in the House of Commons: "We are getting a little tired of Gen. de Gaulle."

Speaking there a short time before the final showdown, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan said that if the negotiations in fact had failed the British will face the difficulties as a united country.

The outcome was viewed in Washington as a serious blow to the European unity movement, but U.S. officials said it could not be permitted to wreck the drive for unification.

"We have to pick up the pieces and move on," one high U.S. official said.

★ ★ ★

'NEGOTIATIONS FAIL'

The decision was announced shortly after 5 p.m. The result of the wrangle on the membership issue had been a foregone conclusion since noon.

West German Economic Minister Ludwig Erhard summed it up for reporters at the luncheon recess, "The negotiations are over. They have failed. No progress at all has been made.

JFK's Catch-All Bill

Makes School Aid Bid

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy today offered Congress an education package that would double present federal school aid spending.

He said it would give every American a chance to learn more, earn more and live better.

The President asked for a catch-all school aid bill that would provide new assistance about equal to the $1.5 billion already being spent on education each year by the federal government.

As before, his proposals made no provision for direct aid to private or parochial schools.

Included in the omnibus measure are 13 new programs and 11 existing programs to be extended and expanded.

They include a complex system of grants for public elementary and secondary education, work projects for college students, expanded student loans, and loans and grants to help public and private colleges alike to meet the surge of new enrollments.

NO PRICE TAG

The President placed no price tag on his total package, which he said would "phase out federal aid over a four-year period."

But he told Congress, "It is clearly realistic in terms of its cost — and it is clearly essential to the growth and security of this nation."

An administration spokesman called it a high priority program, designed to pinpoint the most crucial needs and problems in American education, and at the same time to avoid controversy wherever possible.

For the past two years, Kennedy's education proposals have foundered in a controversy over aid for church schools. Kennedy says he believed such aid would be unconstitutional, breeching the barrier between church and state.

The Roman Catholic hierarchy has contended this is not true and has opposed any federal program which doesn't include aid for private and parochial schools.

Although his new program contains no provision for direct aid, there is one suggested change in the college student loan program which might make it easier for church and private schools to secure teachers.

Kennedy did, however, ask for a national study to determine why students do not attend or finish college. The administration spokesman said that if the study indicates a need for scholarships, a request for them could be made next year or later.

Romney Rakes MESC for Fraud Case Handling

LANSING (AP)—Michigan Employment Security Commission officials were under orders from an irate governor today to explain their handling of a fraud case involving a onetime Detroit Gospel preacher who allegedly bilked the state of at least $85,000.

In a special news conference last night, Gov. George Romney disclosed details of the probe and raked officials for an unexplained six-month delay after first evidence of the fraud was discovered last July.

In his regular press conference this morning, Romney said he is asking State Police Commissioner Joseph Childs to launch a complete investigation into the c..se.

The governor also said he wanted to find out why — although the investigation actually began last October — he was never informed of its existence until he learned about it from "private sources" last week.

"This is a shocking case of fraud," Romney told newsmen. "There are a lot of questions to which I want the answers."

Contacted in Detroit, Max M. Horton, MESC director, said the governor hadn't been informed earlier because "the matter is still under investigation . . . the propensities of this case only became apparent when they were tied together.

"Normally, the report (of the MESC fraud division investigating the case) would be completed before we could turn it over to any high officials."

Romney and Walter Campbell, chairman of the MESC, who sat with him in the news conference, said the central figure in the case was William D. MacCullough, a former Gospel minister, who by coincidence died last July on the very day his alleged fraud first was detected.

MacCullough, evidence shows, fleeced the state by creating 17 or 18 fictitious companies and then, after obtaining false social security cards, collected unemployment benefits in the names of some 70 nonexistent "workers" laid off by the firms.

Campbell said MacCullough had paid an estimated $15,000 in unemployment compensation taxes under the firms' names, to qual-

Manager Says Theft Was a Fake

The manager of a Waterford Township super market has been charged with embezzlement after admitting to sheriff's detectives that he was not kidnaped and robbed of the store's receipts Jan. 19.

The charge was brought against Ronald J. Cutler, 25, manager, of the Food Town Market, M59 and Williams Lake Road, after he admitted in a statement to the county prosecutor's office that his abduction was a fake.

The produce manager of the store, Vincent L. Baker, 25, also has been charged with embezzlement. Cutler accused him of taking part in the scheme.

Cutler, manager of the market since August and an employe of the grocery chain for four years, told police he made up the story of the armed robbery to cover shortages in the firm's books.

On Jan. 19 Cutler, 5168 Drayton Road, Waterford Township, reported to police in Berkley that he was made to drive to that southern Oakland County city by an armed bandit.

The bandit, he said at that time, confronted him as he left the Waterford Township store to deposit $6,000 in cash and $3,000 in checks.

Detectives Ray Bills and Gerald Gaedt said that there was never a total of $9,000.

★ ★ ★

They explained that Cutler did have about $3,000 in checks but, according to Cutler's own admis-

Gibbs to Seek Top GOP Post

Aide Tells Candidacy for State Chairmanship

John A. (Jack) Gibbs, executive assistant to George Van Puersem, today announced his candidacy for the chairmanship of the Republican State Central Committee.

Gibbs, of Royal Oak, and Arthur G. Elliott Jr. gave the county two announced candidates for the post.

GOP County Chairman Charles L. Lyle said today he has invited Gibbs to speak to delegates at the county convention tomorrow.

★ ★ ★

Elliott, already scheduled to appear at the convention to give a report on the first 30 days of Gov. George Romney's administration, also will speak concerning his candidacy if Gibbs accepts Lyle's invitation, Lyle said.

EXPECT ENDORSEMENT

Lyle added, however, that a resolution endorsing both candidates as "eminently qualified" is possible.

A resolution would not be binding on the county's delegation to the GOP state convention Feb. 16 in Grand Rapids in any event, he said.

In his announcement, Gibbs said he will not actively campaign for election.

He said his responsibility of coordinating the party's statewide campaign to win the spring election and passage of the proposed new state constitution "will monopolize all of my working time."

Gibbs, executive assistant to George Van Peursem for the last 18 months, was previously executive secretary of the Oakland County Republican organization for four years.

GIBBS ASSISTED

Elliott was Oakland County Republican chairman from 1957 to 1961. Gibbs was, in effect, his assistant.

City Commission Will Vote on Proposed Budget for '63

Top item on the agenda for tonight's City Commission meeting will be adoption of a proposed $6,788,103 city budget for 1963.

Some $347,303 above last year's figure, the 1963 budget would require a tax rate of $14.98 per $1,000 of assessed property value on a total assessed valuation of $288 million.

This represents a tax rate hike of $1.12 from last year's rate of $13.86 per $1,000.

However, the budget to be adopted tonight has been revised downward some $257,000 from that originally proposed by City Manager Robert A. Stierer last November.

The originally proposed budget would have required a tax rate of $15.65 per $1,000 on a tax base of $288 million.

Although the budget must be adopted tonight, the exact tax rate cannot be set until the city's total assessed valuation is determined in April.

In preparing the budget, commissioners and administrators are assuming the tax base will go up this year. It was $281.2 million last year.

LARGEST HIKE

The largest single increase in the budget is $108,589 for the new pension plan for fire and policemen, approved by voters at last April's municipal election.

The proposed capital improvement fund stands at about $290,000 — lowest in recent years.

One reason for this is that the 1963 payment toward bonds financing the new $3.2-million sewage treatment plant will not be appropriated from capital improvement funds as it was last year.

The bond payment will be raised through a separate levy of 85 cents per $1,000 — part of the total $14.98 rate.

Accompanying the budget will be resolutions concerning appropriations for salary and fringe benefit hikes for city employes and an agreement with the Downtown Pontiac Business Association for free parking on municipal parking lots from Feb. 1 to May 1.

It was 4 below zero at 4 and again at 6 a. m. locally.

Ol' Icy Fingers said he will take pity on us tonight and send temperatures soaring to 10 above.

Tomorrow's high is expected to be a little warmer, near 16.

Winds southerly at 8 miles today will become south to southwest at 15 to 25 m.p.h late today and northwesterly tonight.

New Cold Clobbers Midwest

From Our News Wires

A fresh batch of arctic air advanced southward into the northern plains and Rockies and headed westward. Subzero cold prevailed in much of Montana, North Dakota and Wyoming. Some of the frigid air extended into South Dakota and Nebraska.

In New York State, hit by blinding snowstorms over the weekend, weather-related deaths since last Wednesday totaled 21.

The nationwide weather-related deaths totaled 180.

Mississippi River traffic from St. Louis to Cairo, Ill., was at a standstill today as an ice jam, described as the worst in 13 years, choked off industrial shipments. The ice jam is nearly 50 miles long north from Cairo.

The mercury fell to 10 below today at Pittsburgh, shattering a 36-year-old record low for Jan. 29. Other low temperature records for this date were set at Philadelphia, Pa. with 5 below; Columbus, Ohio, with 13 below; and Fort Wayne, Ind., with 10 below.

Lands Plane After Pilot Dies

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—The pilot of a small plane died at the controls Monday, but one of three passengers, none a pilot, guided the plane to a safe landing.

"All I did was steer the thing and follow instructions," said Lester Peterson, 38, assistant project manager for the American Bridge Co.

"He did a real beautiful job," said Lou Domenico, a flight instructor who directed the landing from the Cheyenne control tower. "He kept his head."

Pilot Edgar R. Van Keuren, 56, Rapid City, S.D., slumped over the wheel as the single-engine plane started to land at a missile construction site 45 miles northeast of here.

"It looked like he was falling asleep," said Peterson, who was sitting in the copilot's seat. "So I shook him and he keeled over. That's when we found out we were in trouble."

Peterson took the controls and climbed to 7,000 feet while his companions, engineers Lester Laun and John Pawlack, experimented with the radio and throttle.

★ ★ ★

"Our main difficulty was in getting communications straightened out," said Peterson.

Van Keuren, employed by a Great Falls, Mont., air service, was on a charter flight for American Bridge and the plane's radio was on a company frequency.

The plane touched down at 132 miles an hour, about 22 miles an hour faster than normal. It bounced hard, spreading the landing gear. Another bounce blew a tire. The propeller dug into the ground and spun the plane around but it did not overturn.

Mrs. Arlene Tebbenjohanns

Heads for Parole Hearing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An attractive German divorcee who professes love for Dr. Sam Sheppard, the Cleveland wife slayer, headed for his parole hearing today with a Boston attorney who hopes to free him from prison.

Blonde Ariane Tebbenjohanns, 33, who says she wants to marry Sheppard, was to drive here from Cleveland with attorney F. Lee Bailey. Bailey has represented Sheppard in other recent attempts to free him from the Marion correctional institution where he is serving a life term for the 1954 bludgeon killing of his pregnant wife, Marilyn.

"Sam didn't do it. He's just taking the blame for someone else," Mrs. Tebbenjohanns said Monday night in Cleveland. She has been staying there at the home of Sheppard's brother, Dr. Stephen Sheppard, since arriving in this country three weeks ago.

MOTHER OF ONE

Mrs. Tebbenjohanns, mother of a 9-year-old daughter, said she has been writing Sheppard since 1960. Last week, they met for the first time at the Marion institution. Dr. Sam's brother was quoted in a Chicago Tribune story as saying: "You couldn't exactly call it love at first sight because they already were in love. But each found in the other all that they expected."

The hearing today involved a petition to have Sheppard's life sentence commuted, which would make him eligible for immediate parole. Otherwise, he will not be eligible until June 30, 1965.

William J. Ensign, executive secretary of the Ohio Pardon and Parole Commission, said Sheppard would not attend the meeting.

Sheppard's family helped the romance along by relaying Dr. Sam's replies to the woman's home at Duesseldorf, Germany. He could not mail his letters directly at the time because of prison rules.

Death Takes Beloved Poet

Fellow poet Carl Sandburg praised Frost as "not merely a great poet, but also a beloved person," and said his work will be "around for a long time."

Mark Van Doren, poet, playwright, literary critic and English professor, said: "Robert Frost cannot be replaced. The hole he leaves is not only wide but deep.

"In his lyrics, in his narratives, and in his metaphysical dramas of Job and Jonah, Robert Frost produced over something like 70 years a body of poetry which has no equivalent in the literature of the United States or of the world."

Democrats Bringing Pressure for Action

LANSING (AP) — Democratic legislative leaders — agreeing with Gov. George Romney on the need for an action - packed session — warned last night that they planned to bring pressure for early action on Aid to Dependent Children of the Unemployed.

In both the House and the Senate, Democratic minority leaders served notice they planned to call for discharge of Republican - controlled committees from consideration of ADC-U bills if they are not reported to the floor for debate by the end of January.

The move apparently was calculated to embarrass GOP lawmakers, but the Democrats wound up with red faces themselves.

★ ★ ★

In identical statements, Sen. Charles Blondy, D-Detroit, and Rep. Joseph Kowalski, D-Detroit, called for fast action on ADC-U.

SERVE NOTICE

"I want to serve notice today," each said, "that if action is not taken on this urgently needed program before the end of January, I will personally move to discharge the appropriate committee from further consideration of the bill."

★ ★ ★

But after Kowalski made his speech, he discovered that the bill had not yet been introduced in the House.

And in the Senate, Sen. Frank Beadle, R-St. Clair, pointed out that although there was an ADC-U bill assigned to the Health and Welfare Committee, under the constitution bills cannot be passed until they have been printed and in the possession of the lawmakers of each house at least five days.

The Senate bill has not yet been printed.

Kowalski explained his demand for the ADC-U bill to be reported out of committee — even before it was introduced — even the result of a mix-up in signals.

"I goofed," he said. "It happens in the best of families."

Kowalski said Rep. John Sobieski, D-Detroit, had planned to introduce the ADC-U bill last week but didn't have the time. The Democratic leader said his error was in failing to check with Sobieski before making his speech.

BILL IS READY

Kowalski said the ADC-U bill is ready, however, and would be filed today — hopefully with joint sponsorship by Republican House members.

★ ★ ★

Referring to Romney's State-of-the-State message, both Kowalski and Blondy declared:

"Gov. Romney . . . recommended a course of action that we Democrats have long advocated for the legislature — an action - packed session. So far we have not seen any clues that the Republican leadership in control of this legislature is going to make this an action-packed session."

The Democratic leaders said that in rejecting a similar measure twice previously, the legislature cost Michigan taxpayers many millions of dollars.

★ ★ ★

"Each additional day that passes without action," they observed, "costs our taxpayers approximately $50,000."

★ ★ ★

Under ADC-U, the federal government would share the cost of welfare benefits with the state.

Officers Seek Sniper at Burial

Believed Killer Might Attend Victim's Funeral

Four Bloomfield Township policemen attended the funeral this afternoon of Mrs. Mary Godfrey in an attempt to identify the sniper who killed her Friday night.

Township Police Chief Norman Dehnke said plainclothes officers were to look for a "morbid" reaction by anyone attending the funeral at the William R. Hamilton Co.'s Bell Chapel in Birmingham.

Dehnke explained that persons who commit such crimes often will come to see the victim buried.

Mrs. Godfrey, 38-year-old mother of five, was to be laid to rest in Troy's White Chapel Memorial Cemetery Mausoleum following the service.

Meanwhile, Bloomfield Township police were receiving assistance from several other law enforcement agencies in tracking down more than 300 tips which had poured into the police station by this morning.

State police picked up two suspects, one of them a youth found shooting a .22 caliber rifle in Sterling Township yesterday. Both suspects have been released.

Center Line state police said today the Sterling Township youth was cleared after a comparison of his rifle with the 22-caliber bullet which killed Mrs. Godfrey.

One of the youth's shots went through a window during a target practice session.

Besides state police, Dehnke said his department also is being aided by officers from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Bloomfield Hills, Troy, Birmingham and Detroit.

"We expect to get help from other neighboring departments today," Dehnke said.

He said that most of the approximately 30 guns picked up in Mrs. Godfrey's neighborhood during the past day have been checked.

"None so far has been identified as the murder weapon," Dehnke explained.

The scheme apparently began in 1958 and was a success until he died of an apparent heart attack last July. Whether MacCullough worked it alone or had accomplices — perhaps even "inside the MESC" — are matters still being investigated, Campbell said.

Both he and Romney implied, in disclosing details of the case, that it might balloon into a fraud of even greater proportions than already determined.

Campbell said neither he nor any other members of the commission could recall a similar case in Michigan.

★ ★ ★

The angry governor said that after learning of the case from his unidentified sources, he called in Horton for an explanation yesterday.

★ ★ ★

He quoted Horton as saying he had learned of the case himself only two weeks ago, although the investigation by the MESC's office has been under way since October.

Leasing of Lot Ruled Illegal

Parking Disallowed on Old Courthouse Site

Oakland County Circuit Judge Stanton G. Dondero yesterday ruled that the county's leasing of its old courthouse site in downtown Pontiac for a free parking lot was illegal.

Judge Dondero set aside the Nov. 19 lease between the county and the Downtown Pontiac Business Association (DPBA).

The ruling is effective immediately.

But county officials today wouldn't say when they intend to close the parking lot. They're waiting for a copy of the judge's ruling.

In a four-page written opinion, the judge said the lease was "an attempt by county officials to lend their aid to private business enterprise without obtaining a market rental on the property."

The DPBA was enjoined from putting its lease into effect and from continuing possession of the property at the southwest corner of Huron and Saginaw streets.

The site has been used for free parking since Circuit Judge Frederick C. Ziem lifted his temporary injunction against the lease on Dec. 17.

Judge Dondero said that "merely opening a lot to free parking for those who wish to use it is not such a use as to bring it within the general definition of county benefit or benefit to the general public."

The lease was for the benefit of the downtown merchants, he said, and therefore constituted a lending of government aid to a private corporation within the meaning of a constitutional prohibition.

★ ★ ★

The lease, for a rental of $1 for a six-month period, was sought by the DPBA to boost business in the downtown area.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

He was bound over to Circuit Court for arraignment Monday. Cutler was released on $100 bond.

Police said Cutler planned the kidnapping story because he had taken about $3,200 of the market's funds since last August and was unable to cover the loss.

Detective Bills said that Cutler told them that he pocketed small amounts at first but as time went by the amounts got larger.

★ ★ ★

"He finally became desparate," Bills said, "and staged the phony holdup, believing that it would account for the shortage."

Police yesterday recovered $1,000 that was buried in a snowbank in Cutler's front yard. It had been wrapped in aluminum foil.

Also located were all the checks that Cutler had said were stolen. They were found under snow in a field adjacent to a parking lot where Cutler had told police that he was freed by the bandit.

Police said Cutler tossed them there just before he called police to report the robbery.

Still missing is the $2,000 that Cutler said he gave to Baker.

Library Millage Proposal Set for April 1 Election

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — A one-mill tax proposal for operation of a new township library will be on the ballot in the April 1 election.

The expected move was made official yesterday when a group of local residents presented a petition, asking for the millage proposition, at the Township Hall.

Under state law, Township Clerk Deloris V. Little said the board must place a proposition on the ballot if 50 or more township residents sign the petition.

Actually, voters in the April 1 election will decide on two proposals regarding the library issue.

One will be the question concerning the one-mill tax increase and the second will be a proposal to exceed the township's 15-mill tax limitation.

It will be necessary to exceed the state-imposed limitation in order to provide funds for the library.

A second election is expected to be held next summer. At that time, voters will be asked to approve a bond issue for construction of a library building.

A hearing of necessity for the Cummings relief sewer project was approved for Feb. 25 by Birmingham city commissioners last night.

A post card survey of the area by the city's engineering department indicated that present sewers are not adequate. The section is bounded by Woodward Avenue, Chapin and Grant streets and 14 Mile Road.

Commissioners also heard City Engineer William T. Killeen's report on his department's activities for 1962. He pointed out that total construction cost for projects amounted to $162,554 as compared to $407,581 for 1961 and $544,520 for 1960.

The reason for this he said was "that there was practically no paving program and no other larger projects" last year.

She was a life member of Birmingham Chapter No. 220, Order of the Eastern Star.

High Court Eyes City's 1st Renewal Plea

He appealed a Circuit Court verdict that said the city's project R20 was a necessity.

Cooney also is appealing condemnation awards to some of the 12 property owners he represented.

The appeal is expected to delay portions of the R20 urban renewal project for several more months.

A jury of 11 women and one man decided the project was necessary on Dec. 19 and awarded a total of nearly $1.1 million to property owners affected by the condemnation.

★ ★ ★

Pontiac Firemen While Away 34 Very Quiet Hours

Not one call to respond to a fire or an emergency was received by the department.

The time lapse between alarms was 34 hours, from 10 p. m. Sunday to 8 a. m. today.

The first call this morning was a rescue run to take a person to the hospital.

Gibbs Plans to Run for Top GOP Post

Gibbs' backers claim he has strong support throughout the state.

Elliott was considered "Romney's choice" for the party leadership after he was given a temporary position as special assistant in the governor's office last month.

Romney has since said he desires an open convention on the matter.

Gibbs is scheduled to give the keynote address at the Macomb County Republican convention tomorrow night, but Lyle said he hoped Gibbs would be able to stop at the Oakland convention at Pontiac Northern High School for a few minutes.

Police Uncover Escapee Here

He offered no resistence to arresting officers, headed by Lt. William Nesbitt. He was taken into custody at 9:45 a.m.

Gonzales ordered Heiake to drive him to Pontiac.

Gonzales was sentenced to prison last November for breaking into the South Side Pool Room, 161 South Boulevard, in October.

Gantt Starts Clemson Routine

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Harvey B. Gantt's first full day at Clemson College as the only Negro in school in South Carolina was taken up today with a routine orientation course. He spent a quiet night in what had been an all-white dormitory.

Clemson authorities, wrestling with the problem of maintaining an educational program in the wake of Gantt's history-making enrollment Monday, planned ground rules for reporters and photographers.

Newsmen were barred today from entering campus buildings. Joe Sherman, public relations director, asked that someone from his department accompany any reporter and photographer going on campus.

Clemson authorities obviously were concerned that the press corps, numbering about 170 at the climactic enrollment, would disturb the academic program.

The routine orientation course called for the 20-year-old son of a shipyard worker from Charleston to mingle with other new students and transfer students. The briefings were designed to acquaint newcomers with the geography, rules and customs of the school.

When Gantt enrolled Monday, police covered the campus and its environs carefully, and as many as 150 reporters and photographers dogged his steps. Uniformed patrolmen manned all campus entrances on the watch for troublemakers.

ONLY MINOR INCIDENTS

The soft-spoken youth had little chance to enter into normal relationships with other students.

The atmosphere was quiet, marked by only two minor incidents. Three tires were slashed on the highway patrol cars. Two men accused of making threatening remarks were removed from the campus by police.

On the surface, Gantt was being treated by students and college officials as just another newcomer.

Gantt dined alone Monday night at a table for six in the huge student cafeteria, which seats 2,000. The noisy buzz of conversation and the clatter of knives and forks subsided briefly as he entered.

SOME STOP TO CHAT

Then the normal sounds resumed. Before Gantt finished eating, a student stopped at his table for a friendly word. Later six more dropped by.

★ ★ ★

Gantt, who transferred here from Iowa State University where he had a white roommate, apparently will room alone in a dormitory populated largely by graduate and foreign students.

He has said he hopes to make friends, but is here "to get an education."

Death Rarely Slipped Into Frost's Poems

BOSTON (AP) — Robert Frost was so involved with life that he gave relatively few lines of his verse to personal thoughts of death—and such references were mostly oblique.

His longer, narrative masterpiece, "The Death of the Hired Man," is a moving story of a poor, rejected old man coming to the end of his days. There were other narrative pieces, like "The Witch of Coos" in which ran the skein of death. Some of Frost's personal feelings crept into his "Ghost House," but the death he referred to there was of people he did not know, who lived in a vanished house on a forgotten road.

The thought of death slips into the final lines of two of his poems: "The Sound of the Trees," and his famous "Stopping by Woods On a Snowy Evening."

In the first, he speculates upon why we like to have trees so near us, swaying in the wind and forever talking of going as they tug at their roots.

"Some day," the poem concludes, ". . . I shall have less to say, but I shall be gone."

'BRUSH' WITH DEATH

In "Stopping by Woods," he tells of halting his horse on the darkest evening of the year to watch the dark woods "fill up with snow." And, stirred only by the impatience of his little horse and the thought that he has "promises to keep," he moves on. The concluding lines say:

"He gives his harness bells a shake
To ask if there is some mistake
The only other sound's the sweep sweep
Of the easy wind and downy flake.
The woods are lovely, dark and deep.
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep,
And miles to go before I sleep."

The thought of entering the dark woods of the hereafter is more fully developed in his later poem, "Into My Own."

"One of my wishes is that those dark trees,
So old and firm they scarcely know the breeze,
Were not, as 'twere, the merest mask of gloom
But stretched away unto the edge of doom.
I should not be withheld but that some day
Into their vastness I should steal away,
Fearless of ever finding open land,
Or highway where the slow wheel pours the sand.
I do not see why I should e'r turn back
Or those should not set forth upon my track
To overtake me, who should miss me here
And long to know if still I held them dear.
They would not find me changed from him I knew—
Only more sure of all I thought was true."

The poem "The Earthward," published in middle life, reveals a mature Frost in a mood in which joys now "lack salt." The poem's name discloses its theme.

"Love at the lips was touch
As sweet as I could bear;
And once that seemed too much;
I lived on air
That crossed me from sweet things,
The flow of—was it musk
From hidden grapevine springs
Down hill at dusk?
I had the swirl and ache
From sprays of honeysuckle
That when they're gathered shake
Dew on the knuckle
I craved strong sweets, but those seemed strong when I was young;
The petal of the rose
It was that stung.
No no joy but lacks salt
That is not dashed with pain
And weariness and fault;
I crave the stain
Of tears, the aftermark
Of almost too much love,
The sweet of bitter bark
And burning clove.
When stiff and sore and scarred
I take away my hand
From leaning on it hard
In grass and said,
The hurt is not enough:
I long from weight and strength
To feel the earth as rough
To all my length."

Tass Reflects World Esteem

Russians Quickly Hear of Poet's Death

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet news agency Tass quickly told the Russian people today about the death of an "outstanding American poet" Robert Frost.

Tass, which often delays announcements until it can evaluate their political significance thus reflected the universal esteem for Frost among Russians.

No one was upset here at Frost's sharp but good-natured jibes at Communism during a visit last summer with U.S. Interior Secretary Stewart M. Udall.

Frost called that trip, on which he met Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, "the time of my life." Russians were just as enthusiastic about him.

The government newspaper Izvestia went so far as to print this poetic tribute to the aging American poet:

"When you open the book—you smell the forest wind—it comes without any muses: as if a laughing watermelon: were splashing in your face."

Frost created a splash at the time by having a bedside chat with Khrushchev and engaging in a public literary debate with poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko, Russia's angry young man and 60 years Frost's junior.

Frost characterized Khrushchev as "our enemy but a great man,." He also called him a "ruffian."

He later told newsmen that he had suggested to the Kremlin chief an "old fashioned horse trade" to settle the Berlin problem.

★ ★ ★

"I told him there might be something we have that he wants and there might be something they have that we want," the poet said.

★ ★ ★

While Frost was at the Black Sea resort where Khrushchev received him, he was taken ill and Khrushchev sent his own doctors to care for him.

Sorbonne Teacher Heaps Applause on 'Country Boy'

PARIS (UPI)—Sorbonne American and English literature Prof. Roger Asselineau today was busy translating the first book of Robert Frost's poems to be published in France when he heard of the poet's death.

"I think Frost was a great poet," said Asselineau.

"Many Frenchmen thought his works were not sophisticated enough for them because they believed he was just a New England country poet. He really expressed the feelings inside a man."

Noted Yankee Oft Named for Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — The Swedish Academy, in a rare disclosure, said today Robert Frost often had been considered for the Nobel Prize for Literature.

The academy makes it a policy to decline comment on possible winners — only on the laureates themselves.

But Academy Secretary Dr. Anders Oesterling broke that rule today on learning of the American poet's death in Boston.

★ ★ ★

"His importance was obvious to us," said Oesterling, who has translated several of Frost's poems into Swedish.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

It was this regard, Oesterling said, that led him to be placed in nomination several times for the Nobel Prize.

Sandburg Has High Praise

FLAT ROCK, N. C. (AP)—Carl Sandburg praised fellow poet Robert Frost, who died early today, as "not merely a great poet, but also a beloved person."

But the white-maned Sandburg also had a word to say about his differences with Frost over politics.

"He was a Republican and called me a Socialist," Sandburg recalled.

At his Blude Ridge Mountain home, Sandburg said Frost's work will be "around for a long time."

Milford Seeks Federal Aid

THIS IS COMEDY? — Tull Lasswell as Harry Brock roughs up Mrs. Lee Moore as Billie Dawn in a scene from the forthcoming Clarkston Players' production of the comedy, "Born Yesterday." The play will be presented Friday and Saturday at the Clarkston High School little theater. Curtain time will be 8:30 p.m. each night and tickets may be purchased at the door.

Sewage Plant Addition Eyed

Council OKs Applying for Planning Grant

MILFORD—The Village Council will seek federal aid on a $440,000 construction project which would double the capacity of Milford's sewage treatment plant.

As a first step in the project, the council last night agreed to apply for an advance federal planning grant of $11,475.

Village Manager Donald Weidner said the loan, if approved, would provdie funds for preparing detailed plans and specifications for enlarging the treatment plant.

The addition to the plant, said Weidner, would make it capable of serving about 9,000 persons, approximately twice the current population of Milford.

However, Wiedner explained that Milford officials have been urged to increase the plant capacity by the State Health Department and the village's consulting engineers, Hubbell, Roth & Clark, Inc., Birmingham.

The health department, engineers and village planners say that population trends indicate that Milford will grow considerably in the next 10 to 15 years.

The new master plan drawn up by Vilican-Leman Associates, Inc., of Southfield predicts an ultimate population of 14,960 inside the present Milford boundaries by 1980.

Weidner said the consulting engineers and the health department expect an even larger population.

U. S. WOULD PAY HALF

As explained by the village manager, Milford would apply for a $220,000 federal grant once all plans and specifications were drawn up.

The village would be required to supply the other $220,000, which would come from sewage system revenues, according to Weidner.

The $11,475 in planning funds which the council agreed to ask for last night would not have to be repaid if the construction project were dropped, Weidner said.

If it were carried out, the funds could become part of the total grant supplied by the federal government, Weidner said.

The advance funds and 50 per cent grant will be sought under the federal government's Public Works Acceleration Act through the Housing and Home Finance Agency's regional office in Chicago.

If PWA funds are unavailable, Weidner said the village may try to get a 30 per cent state grant through the Michigan Water Resources Commission.

Object to Rezoning Proposal for Downtown Rochester Area

ROCHESTER — Objections to the proposed rezoning of Rochester's central business district and Walnut Street were raised at council public hearing here last night.

Most of the questions centered around the "small" central business district set forth in the new ordinance and the rezoning of Walnut Street from business to general office use.

Robert Smith, speaking for the Rochester Board of Realtors, said that the board had agreed that the districts proposed for central business and general business were too small and the planned general office use district was too large.

★ ★ ★

George Vilican of Vilican-Leman & Associatets Inc., of Southfield, planning consultants for the village, spelled out terms of the proposed ordinance before the hearing was opened to questions from the audience. Some 75 residents attended.

"We have paralleled our zoning study with our master plan study," he said.

Asked about the flexibility of the proposed ordinance, Vilican commented, "It's my philosophy that to be effective it cannot be static."

He added that a good ordinance cannot be changed simply to fit one individual's preference, without good reason, but that it can be amended for the general good of the community.

GIVES COMMENTS

Commenting on the size of the proposed central business district Villican said that to zone something before a physical plan is available is not good policy.

He pointed out that although only 16.6 acres are included in the proposed central business district, 28.5 acres would be needed in 1980 to handle the expected business and population growth.

The planner talked of how the ordinance provided for the best locating of swimming pools, drive-in theaters, trailer parks and other such businesses which cannot legally be prohibited from any community.

He also explained the status of nonconforming uses, the proposed board of appeals duties and the schedule of regulations.

A third reading of the proposal was set for Feb. 25. Village President Roy Rewold said a limited number of copies of the proposed-zoning ordinance would be available at the village offices after Feb. 18.

Teachers' Pay Up in Avondale

Raises to Cost $6,000 During the Year

The Avondale School Board last night agreed on a pay hike for district teachers retroactive to Jan. 21 of this year.

★ ★ ★

School Supt. George E. Shackelford said today that the increase will cost the district approximately $6,000 in 1963.

Teachers with a four-year degrees will continue to start at $4,700 a year, Shackelford said. However their maximum salary has been increased from $6,700 to $7,000.

This is accomplished by yearly increments, $200 for the second through fifth year and $250 for the sixth through the 11th and final year of pay increase, according to Shackelford.

Teachers with master's degrees will start with a $5,000 per year salary as contrasted to their present annual beginning wage of $4,900, he said.

Annual pay hikes equal to those received by teachers with four-year degrees will lead to a maximum salary of $7,300 for those in the system with master's degrees.

Their present maximum salary is $6,900.

For Southfield Plan

Assessor Wins Funds

SOUTHFIELD — City Assessor Gerald C. Easlick last night won his bid for additional funds to pay for a complete land reassessment program in Southfield.

After lengthy questioning by city councilmen, a compromise payment of $2,660 was authorized for extra costs of the reassessment project.

Easlick originally had asked for $3,500 to pay part-time personnel for changing the tax rolls and notifying property owners by the end of February.

★ ★ ★

Mayor S. James Clarkson and the council have been at odds for more than a year over reassessment of property values in the city.

Even though councilmen agreed to the reassessment program six months ago, Council President C. Hugh Dohany said they were generally in favor of postponing assessment changes for another year.

Councilmen also agreed that changes now would mean an increase in tax bills for many of the city's property owners.

★ ★ ★

Clarkson argued that it would result in some tax increases, but said that state law requires reassessment once a year.

Cavanagh to Defend Tax at Committee Hearing

DETROIT (AP) —Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh will defend the Motor City's income tax Thursday at a public hearing before the House Committee on City Corporations.

★ ★ ★

The committee is considering three bills aimed against local income taxes.

One of the measures, sponsored by committee chairman, Rep. William Hayward, R-Royal Oak, would prohibit a city from levying an income tax without approval of its residents.

It also would prevent the taxing of nonresidents who work in the city.

Hayward is mayor of Royal Oak, a Detroit suburb, and a leader of the suburban Vigilance Tax Committee, which has been fighting to have the Detroit income tax outlawed.

Two other bills being considered by the house committee would ban taxes on nonresidents and require a city charter amendment before an income tax could be enacted.

★ ★ ★

He said the legislature should allow the tax issue to be decided at a hearing next week before the State Supreme Court.

ALMONT — Occupancy reached a new high of 84.5 per cent at the Community Hospital during 1962, James W. Crary, hospital administrator announced today.

Previously, occupancy rates were 66.8, 67.9 and 77.9 per cent during 1959, 1960 and 1961 respectively, he said.

Last year's rate resulted from 1,602 admissions spending 15,120 days in the hospital during this period.

In addition, there were 204 births during 1962 which was an increase of 11 over the previous year. A total of 804 babies have been born in the hospital since it opened Jan. 5, 1959.

A total of 1,749 patients were treated in the emergency room last year, of which 261 were admitted. This represents an increase of 20 per cent over 1961, Crary said.

Delay Hearing on Zone Issues

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP —Lack of quorum canceled last night's scheduled public hearing on proposed rezoning of three parcels of land.

The hearing was tentatively rescheduled for Feb. 25 because two of the four township zoning board members were out of town.

To Provide Sewer Line for New Park

ROCHESTER —The Rochester Council last night entered into a contract with the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority to provide sanitary sewer service for the new Stony Creek Park.

Negotiations on the contract had been under way since last March.

Under terms of the agreement, the authority would construct a sewer line running from the park, three miles northeast of the village, to a tie-in point near the Romeo Road-Sycamore Street intersection.

The facility is to be built larger than required by the park in order to handle some 1,250 residential tie-ins between the village's sewage system and the park.

Construction of the line is expected to begin this spring.

Thirty-four events — covering such diverse subjects as Christmas trees, rural water supply, nuts and poultry — were on today's schedule.

The dairyman of the Year award was presented at Monday's All-Breeds Dairy Banquet to Elton Smith of Caledonia, who operates a 380-acre farm in southern Kent County and milks 91 registered Guernsey cattle.

Smith, who is president of Michigan Farm Bureau Services, also will be presented one of MSU's "Distinguished Service to Agriculture" awards tomorrow. Ernest Foreman of Lowell and Forrest Smith of East Lansing will also receive distinguished service awards.

★ ★ ★

Some 200 dairymen attended the opening event of the exposition and heard representatives of three breeding associations discuss different points of view on the relative values of fats and "solids-not-fat" in milk.

★ ★ ★

"Solids-not-fat" is a term coined to identify nutritional components of milk other than fat, such as protein, lactose and minerals.

Browns to Live in Yale

Pair Repeats Vows

OXFORD TOWNSHIP—Making their home in Yale are newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Brown, who exchanged their vows recently in the Methodist Church, Capac.

Dr. A. Ray Noland performed the rites.

The bride is the former Beverly Kay Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Bell of Yale. Parents of the bridegroom are the Forrest Browns, 2400 Oakwood Road.

★ ★ ★

Wanetta Cope of Yale was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Printz of Yale and Sandra Brown of Oxford Township, sister of the bridegroom.

On the esquire side Jack Logan of Lapeer served as best man. Groomsmen were Phillip Armstrong of Oxford and Carl Sullivan of Yale, while Jerry Murray of Brown City and John Printz of Yale seated the guests.

Following the double-ring ceremony, a reception for 300 guests was held in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall, Imlay City.

Players to Present 'Dial M for Murder'

AVON TOWNSHIP — A cast of veteran members of the Avon Players is currently rehearsing for the group's Feb. 16 and 17 presentation of "Dial M for Murder," at West Junior High School.

Director Gordon Miller has chosen Carroll Chapman for the role of Tony, Jim Jackson to portray Lesgate and Frank Meier to be Max. Dick McGowan has been cast as Hubbard and Glenna Dupuie as Margo.

Report on Rochester Teacher Pay

ROCHESTER — Nineteen of the 29 school districts in Oakland County offer higher starting salaries for teachers than Rochester.

This is one of the facts made public in the first report issued by the salary schedule committee of the Rochester Citizen's School Study Committee.

The statement also reveals that 16 county school districts have higher starting salaries for teachers with master's degrees. Twelve are below.

Other statistics concerning Rochester's position in the county on payment of teachers are as follows:

1. Fifteen districts have a higher maximum salary for teachers with a bachelor's degree.

2. Seventeen districts have a higher maximum salary for teachers with a master's degree.

3. Thirteen districts have higher average salaries.

4. Avondale, Clawson, Farmington, Clarenceville, Waterford, Berkley, Hazel Park, Lamphere, Madison and Walled Lake all have lower property valuations per pupil, but all have higher starting salaries for teachers with a bachelor's degree.

5. Eighteen districts have the same or lower property valuation per pupil than Rochester.

6. Thirteen districts have higher tax rates than Rochester.

OTHER INFORMATION

The report also contains particulars about the training and experience of the Rochester teaching staff which numbers approximately 330 professional men and women working in 10 different school buildings.

More than 50 percent of this group have at least five years of teaching experience, more than 25 per cent have at least 10 years of teaching experience, and more than one-third are holders of master's degrees, the report reveals.

Kenneth Roose, salary schedule committee chairman, also stated that although Rochester teachers receive an annual raise ranging from $200 to $220 during their first 12 years of teaching, the starting and maximum salaries have not changed in two years.

It was pointed out that even if Rochester teacher salaries are raised next year, it may not improve their position among the 29 school districts in the county because those districts may raise salaries also.

N-Test Talks in New York

The Americans and the British were expected to pressure the Soviets for details on what some see as the key to a possible breakthrough in the long-deadlocked talks—the Soviet offer to accept limited on-site inspections.

U.S., British and Soviet negotiators scheduled an afternoon meeting at the headquarters of the Soviet mission to the United Nations. No progress was announced following similar sessions in Washington last week.

Western negotiators were expected to press for a detailed explanation of the Soviet offer to permit two or three on-site inspections in the Soviet Union each year. The West has regarded 8 or 10 inspections a year as necessary to insure that a test ban treaty is upheld.

NEW K MESSAGE

Premier Khrushchev made the undetailed inspection offer in a letter to President Kennedy last month. Foy D. Kohler, U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, is due in Washington Wednesday with a new Kremlin message for Kennedy.

Washington authorities expressed the opinion that a test ban agreement might be possible with the Soviets in the wake of Khrushchev's acceptance of the inspection principle. Some diplomats at the United Nations were cautiously hopeful.

★ ★ ★

There was no indication that the negotiators had come to grips with what may be the final barrier to a test ban treaty — Soviet insistance that France accept any test ban.

U.S. officials hope that the new round of talks will gain impetus from a halt in U.S. underground explosions.

Kennedy made clear, however, that the United States will not join in another unpoliced test moratorium, such as the one the Soviets broke in 1961.

Combination Man Sought for State

LANSING (AP) — Gov. Romney said yesterday that Michigan needs a mental health director who is both a psychiatrist and a good administrator.

The present director, Charles Wagg, has asked that he be relieved of the assignment after some 20 years in the post.

Wagg, who is not a psychiatrist, offered to serve in some other capacity in the mental health department.

One obstacle in the way of hiring a top replacement is the $16,500-a-year salary the job pays, Romney said.

★ ★ ★

The governor indicated he would seek to have the salary increased to attract the kind of man sought to head up the state's mental program.

Congo Convict Flees Prison Second Time

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—A Congo-type Robin Hood, facing a date with the hangman, has escaped from prison for the second time, along with 17 other convicts.

★ ★ ★

The Congo Robin Hood who, a detective said, holds a diploma from the "Paris university of gangsterism," is known as Angwalima. His real name is Jean Angwalima.

Two military tribunals sentenced him to death earlier this month for a three-month crime rampage after his escape from Makala Prison last Sept. 17. Angwalima was recaptured in November.

Angwalima acquired the Robin Hood designation last year because he gave money to African children and Leopoldville's unemployed.

Compare U.S. Faults With Those of Soviet

Our Soviet pals are given to considerable tongue clucking over U.S. shortcomings in the area of civil rights progress. But to coin a cliche, look what pot is calling the kettle black.

Admittedly—and we DO admit it—much remains to be done in this country for the status of the Negro, the Indian, the migrant worker and other minority groups.

★ ★ ★

- Desegregation of 28 more Southern school districts last year;
- Discrimination in interstate travel and in bus, railroad and airport terminals virtually abolished during 1961 and 1962;
- An 18 per cent increase in the number of Negroes employed in government civil service grades 5 through 11, and a 33 per cent increase in grades 12 through 15 (the top bracket, based on I. Q.).

★ ★ ★

"The headline hunter," says Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, "pays particular attention to the violence over the enrollment last fall of James H. Meredith at the University of Mississippi.

"But the historian will record the amount of voluntary compliance by Southern officials in this area."

★ ★ ★

By comparison, let's look at Khrushchev's utopian Russia. There, we find:

- One hundred persons — mostly Jews—were executed in the past year for "economic crimes";
- Those of Christian faiths are harassed and persecuted;
- There is a law branding as treason any unauthorized departure from the country.

Farming Still Poses Problem for Congress

It would be utterly unrealistic to let the farmers work out their own solution. Instead, the wisdom of Washington will once again attempt, with our money, to bring order out of chaos.

The official forecast is that the winter wheat will be harvested to the tune of more than a billion bushels, despite last year's program, and that's better than a hundred-million bushels more than the average harvest of 10 recent years.

The result of last year's check-writing attack on acreage went something like this: $900 million was written to pay farmers to take 23 per cent of their acreage out of production, and total production of feed grains rose 2 per cent.

Agriculture Secretary ORVILLE FREEMAN is busy advocating more such programs and tighter controls and campaigning to get wheat farmers to accept his terms.

This same secretary recently went to Europe and scolded the Common Market authorities about their own high price support program on farm products. He doesn't like it because the high supports make it necessary to put a big tariff on agriculture products we'd like to sell Europeans. These products include a lot of chickens which could help eat our surplus feed grains.

The Europeans aren't expected to pay much attention, and in turn, we are expected to lose more markets for our farm products.

The American Farm Bureau Federation has suggested that the farm program be trimmed by $1 billion as part of a general cut in Federal spending. This generous offer should be accepted.

"As electronic computers can't be taught inconsistency, they can never replace men," says an electronic expert. It must be doubly true that they can never replace women.

Pontiac-Based Tame Game a Morsel for Columnist

By HOWARD HELDENBRAND

Pontiac, long celebrated for its automotive products was recently acclaimed as the seat of other superlative entries.

From Rochester

Mrs. Tennes Windingland sent a column clipping from Walsh County (N. D.) Record (isn't it amazing, the way the land's infested with columnists?) which reads for itself.

• • •

In Pontiac, Mich., a family owned a rabbit named Thunder. Thunder was a house pet and could open the screen door and go out as he chose.

"His favorite spot was the davenport in the living room. He loved to have a bath, too. It was a sight to see him all lathered up, nose twitching in typical rabbit style, then being held under the faucet for his rinse. Thunder was housebroken, too. Truly a remarkable bunny!

• • •

"Then there was a pheasant which loved to run alongside cars. At precisely the same time every day he would wait for a farmer to come along this particular country road. The farmer would slow down and the pheasant would begin running beside the car, reaching speeds of 35 miles an hour . . . Then the driver would stop, put the car in reverse — and the pheasant would do an about-face and keep pace with the car in the opposite direction.

"When tired, the farmer would stop, the pheasant would walk majestically to a ditch, have a drink and, refreshed, wait for the car to get going again."

Trojan Horse

David Lawrence Says:

Postal Rates No Help to Treasury

WASHINGTON—Maybe the government should practice what it preaches. A tax cut has been heralded as a means of stimulating the volume of business done, which could mean more Treasury receipts.

If this is so, maybe the Government should try out the same doctrine in the Post Office Department, which is one of the largest single businesses in the world. LAWRENCE

Thus, the special-delivery stamp, which now is 30 cents, could be reduced in a three-phase program that would bring the price down first to 20 cents and then to 15 and then to 10 cents.

It could make money for the Government and help reduce the deficit. Any suggestions to help overcome deficits should be especially welcome nowadays.

Back in 1953, when the special delivery fee was 20 cents, there were 114 million of these stamps sold that year, but the 1962 sale was a little less than 92 million.

In 1957, the special delivery stamp was hiked from 20 cents to 30 cents, and the volume started downward for 1958. The total sales figure since has never approached what it was in the years between 1953 and 1957.

The revenues, moreover, have fluctuated. They were $36 million in 1962 as against $35 million in 1958—a gain of only $1 million in four years.

PRICE MAKING IMPORTANT

This is an example of how sudden and steep price increases have hurt the business volume in one kind of mail. Price making has often been said to be the biggest single factor in the success of a business which sells a product to a large number of customers.

The secret of price making is gradualness and a careful appraisal of "what the traffic will bear." The Post Office Department has not stimulated the use of special delivery.

Now that it costs 30 cents, plus a five-cent ordinary stamp, or a total of 35 cents, the long-distance telephone as well as the telegram in many instances become competitors. Both have the advantage of faster communication and immediate reply.

★ ★ ★

The Post Office Department needs revenue and, being analogous to private business so far as communication economics is concerned, it must offer the customer quick service at a low price.

Also, the special delivery service is not as good as it used to be. Post offices in many cities and towns have reduced personnel, especially on week ends.

In many country districts, there is no special delivery service on Saturdays and Sundays, and, though the customer pays 35 cents to get special delivery, he will find that his letter is delivered on Monday along with the regular mail.

SUBURBAN PROBLEM

Likewise, in some suburban areas, the post office doesn't provide any special delivery service at all, but sometimes notifies the addressee by telephone and the prospective recipient can make a trip of 15 or 20 miles to the post office to get such mail, at a cost of more than 30 cents in gasoline.

Few people know where the hundreds of post offices that are closed down altogether on Sundays are located. In all fairness, these should be widely publicized because, after all, the Post Office Department doesn't come under the Federal Trade Commission and can't be hauled up like a private business for misrepresenting its delivery service.

★ ★ ★

The Post Office Department could increase its revenues substantially if it reduced its special delivery rates on a three-year program. More people would be tempted to affix a special delivery stamp if it were only 20 cents—and maybe some day it could be 10 cents again.

Bob Considine Says:

'Pal' De Gaulle Bothers More Than Foe Nikita

NEW YORK — People . . . places . . . things . . .

But that endowment must be strained to the breaking point by the mulishness of Charles de Gaulle. De Gaulle, our ally, is making more trouble for the Western alliance than Khrushchev, our enemy.

But the administration seems scared stiff of the man. Bernard M. Baruch isn't. CONSIDINE

France today seems to have forgotten not only America's part in two great wars, and our contributions to France's recovery from them, but the burdens we have been bearing for the past 15 years so that she and the rest of the free world might continue to enjoy freedom and prosperity, "so much of which is owed to us," the angry elder statesman writes.

"What hope can there be for a common market if its membership is not open to all qualified nations? What hope can there be for a common market in Europe if there is no common defense of Europe?

"De Gaulle's policies reflect the sort of nationalism, even of isolationism, which Frenchmen and others were wont to attack the United States for, not so long ago. These policies could lead to the collapse of the western alliance."

Strong words from a man who has advised presidents since Woodrow Wilson, and could advise the one we've got now, too.

There was a bit of confusion in front of the door of Gen MacArthur's Waldorf Astoria suite the other day when he was visited by a dozen holders of the Congressional Medal of Honor.

"How shall we file in?" one of the heroes asked. They debated briefly whether it should be by age, by war or former rank.

One of the best-selling long-playing records in Louisiana — right up there with "The First Family," "My Son the Folk Singer" and Allen and Rossi's hilarious "Hello Dere" — is a collection of the speeches and interviews of the late Gov. Earl Long.

It's a hunk of Americana that tends to leave a listener slack-jawed with wonder that the man actually existed, consistently won office, and was responsible for a surprising amount of good legislation.

Voice of the People:

'Mustn't Let Government Infringe on States' Rights'

I am grateful for letters, telegrams and telephone calls received from every state and friendly nation around the world. I am now convinced that our American heritage, our constitutional form of government and our system of sovereign states make the best government of, by and for the people.

★ ★ ★

Today there are attempts to unduly usurp many of the constitutionally reserved powers of sovereign states. A continuation of this practice will result in our states being stripped of all such reserved powers and they will become as mere provinces subjected to a dangerous centralized power in Washington. Infringement of such powers has been in the fields of education, housing, employment, transportation, apportionment of state legislatures, voter qualifications, police powers, tideland oil rights, and in many sundry situations.

★ ★ ★

The matters I call to your attention are not Southern but American. The last hope of our constitutional form of government rests in the conscientious enforcement of state laws.

Tax Cut Will Be Long Process

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The most complete overhaul of United States tax rates in 20 years, just proposed to Congress by President Kennedy, is an apparent effort to give some relief to every bracket of taxpayers. That should win the new program much popular support and make it easy to pass. But it probably faces a long, hard road with many amendments before it becomes law.

EDSON

Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon is scheduled to present draft legislation to the House Ways and Means Committee Feb. 6. Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., says there will be six weeks of hearings and two months of committee work marking up the bill before its presentation to the House for approval.

That should be about May 15. Allow three months for Senate action and couple of weeks for Senate-House conferences to iron out differences and it is close to Sept. 1. So if a new tax bill has been signed into law before third-quarter payments are due Sept. 15, it will be a miracle.

The President's message calls for part of the tax reduction to be made retroactively effective as of Jan. 1, 1963. That means a huge refunding operation. But many taxpayers will feel the effect as soon as payroll taxes withheld by their employers are reduced under the new law.

Another step in the reduction program would be made effective Jan. 1, 1964.

Included at this time would be 21 structural tax reforms of an extremely technical nature, if they are approved by Congress. The new tax reform program would then become fully effective Jan. 1, 1965, except for the acceleration of tax payments by large corporations, which would be adjusted over a five-year period to cushion the impact.

There is bound to be considerable tax confusion in this period, with rates changing every year. The reason given for gradual reform is that putting all changes into effect at the same time would cause too big a budget deficit at once, and cause too big a shock to the economy.

Details of the new program are so complex that any attempt to review or even list all the changes in this limited space would be futile. In general, they are the reductions first given in the President's State of the Union message.

In summary, tax savings would be 40 per cent for people with adjusted gross income below $3,000, falling by a graduated scale to 10 per cent for incomes over $50,000.

Filing returns would be simplified for 60 million taxpayers.

Preferences formerly given to higher income taxpayers receiving dividends and capital gains or excessive deduction allowances would be curbed.

Whether the program will do all the things the President says it will is open to question.

The President again puts tax reduction as the most important business before the new Congress. Tax cuts will naturally increase consumer spending by individuals as soon as their withholding taxes are reduced. Further investment by corporations should go up, after their taxes go down in 1964.

Whether tax reductions alone will step up economic growth and the output of goods and services by several times the amount of the tax cut — $13.6 billion over three years — will have to be demonstrated.

★ ★ ★

Tax cuts alone can hardly cure unemployment nor guarantee full employment. Tax reduction does not necessarily mean that there will be price stability, an end to inflation and permanent solution of the international balance-of-payments gap.

From many places will be heard demands that government spending must be cut, too, for fiscal responsibility.

Puff Early, Smokers Are Advised

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — Cigarette smokers will run a lowered risk of lung cancer if they will limit themselves to about four rapid puffs right after lighting up, the American Cancer Society said yesterday.

★ ★ ★

That is, the society said, if the smokers do not compensate by consuming more cigarettes than they would if they observed a more leisurely smoking pattern.

Three investigators, Drs. Saxon Graham, Morton L. Levin and Shirley Crouch, measured the amount of tars deposited by inhaled smoke as a cigarette is consumed.

Machines did the smoking and tar intake was measured at each stage of a cigarette's consumption.

CONCENTRATION GREW

As the butt became shorter, the society said, more and more tars concentrated in the inhaled smoke.

The investigators had determined through careful observation of smokers that three distinct patterns of cigarette smoking exists, the society said:

1. REGULAR PUFFING — The inhalation of smoke at regular intervals from beginning to end.

2. EARLY PUFFING — Taking most drags at the beginning and then tapering off.

3. LATE PUFFING — Like smoking until the butt has burned short, then a number of puffs before putting the cigarette out.

Of the three patterns, tar measurements showed, early puffing is the safest, regular puffing was second and late puffing yielded the greatest amount of tars.

Former Nazi Tells of Drinks to Blot Crimes

BONN, Germany (UPI)—A former guard at a Nazi extermination camp testified yesterday that the camp guards drank to forget about the crimes they committed.

★ ★ ★

Theodore Mueller, 42, a former guard at the Kulmhof extermination camp in western Prussia, told the court trying 12 former Nazi SS men and police for war crimes that many people knew crimes were being committed at the camp, "but we couldn't do anything about it."

"We went boozing in our off-time to forget," he testified.

The 12 men are charged with participating in the slaughter of 180,000 Jews.

WHITE-COLLAR WORKER

Mueller, a white-collar worker, said he was a guard at the Kulmhof camp from autumn 1942 until April 1943.

★ ★ ★

Another witness said he could not remember about the camp.

Europe Unfreezing

LONDON (AP) — Fresh snow fell on the mountains and east coast of Italy today, but in most other countries the sting seemed to have gone out of Europe's killer freeze.

The effects of the long cold wave lingered. Snowplows churned along roads. Icebreakers crunched through sea and river shipping lanes. Reports continued to filter in of villages marooned by snows and of people killed by the bitter cold.

Europe's unofficial death toll from the freeze reached 423.

In Japan, blizzards slackened along the west coast after 19 days of steady snow. Weathermen warned that more rough weather might be approaching from the China mainland. The death toll rose to 77 with 9 missing and 72 injured.

Italy had another night of snow in the Apennine Mountains and along the Adriatic coast. It snowed again in Sicily and Sardinia. Heavy seas kept the Adriatic and Ionian fishing fleets hugging their harbors. An air force helicopter dumped wild rice over marshes near the mouth of the Po River to save thousands of wild birds from starvation.

★ ★ ★

Three people froze to death in Yugoslavia. A sick boy died as his father carried him to find medical aid.

FUEL RATIONED

East Germany announced it was digging its way out of heavy weekend snows, but authorities maintained a strict ration on gas and electric power supplies.

★ ★ ★

A spokesman for the British insurance association said claims for snow and ice damage are expected to reach 15 million pounds —$42 million.

Temperatures lingered around the freezing point in France and there was light snow in several areas. In Poland schools reopened after a week's shutdown due to a coal shortage. Icebound roads and railways still plagued Silesia and western Poland, however, and ice menaced shipping on the Baltic.

Berry Patch Yields Ring

There, in the dirt, was the plain gold wedding ring he had lost nine years before, while doing some spring planting.

Wants Japan Tour of N-Powered Subs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department spokesman said Monday the United States has informed Japan that "we would welcome an invitation for nuclear-propelled submarines to visit Japanese ports."

Press officer Lincoln White said the request covered submarines of the Nautilus class, not the nulear warhead-toting Polaris submarines.

The Japanese Foreign Ministry last week said there was "agreement on principle" for the visits of nuclear-powered U.S. submarines.

Win Schuler Selected Head of Hospitality Day

LANSING (AP) — Win Schuler of Marshall, operator of restaurants at Marshall, Jackson, St. Joseph and Grand Haven, has been named chairman of the Hospitality Day activites for the May 19-25 Michigan Week.

Michigan communities will be asked to show their friendliness and hospitality to visitors on May 21 as part of the annual Michigan Week observance.

The red and green lights to look for when investing in stocks and bonds

You never argue (we hope) with a red light when you roll up to one on the highway.

Green light: When you've worked out long-term goals. What's most important to you? A second income from dividends? Growth of your money through part-ownership of some thriving company? Interest on your money with the relative safety of principal that good bonds can provide? Draw up a chair beside your broker, explain your goals and plan investments that seem most likely to fit them.

Red light: When you are convinced any broker will do.

Green light: When you know it's important to choose a broker with care. If you select a broker with a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange, you know that his firm has met many requirements for membership and is expected to follow the rules of the Exchange. Individual brokers in these firms also have had to measure up to Exchange qualifications.

You will not find clairvoyant powers there—or anywhere else. What you will find is the kind of information helpful in making wise investment decisions.

Green light: When you're a stickler for facts. And how important they are! Stock and bond prices go down as well as up. A company may not make a profit or continue to pay dividends or interest. But facts about a company's earnings, dividends and prospects can help you choose more wisely. Your Member Firm broker will gladly share his facts with you.

Green light: When you've taken care of your regular living expenses. And made provision for serious emergencies. Then you might look into the advantages of investing for income or growth opportunities.

To Soroptimists

Talks of Psychodrama

Mrs. Cecilia Wells, supervisory principal in the Detroit School system, spoke on the origin of psychodrama and role playing as used in schools to the Soroptimist Club Monday evening.

This device helps teachers understand and get acquainted with their pupils. It lets children see themselves as others see them and helps them correct bad habits.

★ ★ ★

One of its values is that it can be a tool to help work out problems in the classroom. Some stores are using it in their personnel departments.

Mrs. Wells was introduced by Marguerite Parrish.

In Man's Job

Working Woman 'Must Sell Self'

A woman in a man's job has to sell herself and overcome his resistance to her being there. If she does a good job, it will inspire other women to try.

These were some of the remarks made by Mrs. Florence Willett, mayor of Birmingham, when she spoke Monday afternoon to members of CL Chapter, PEO Sisterhood.

Mrs. Willett, who is a member of Birmingham Chapter CF told the group how she got into politics, what the job is like and how her family has reacted.

Desire for better streets in her subdivision started Mrs. Willett's career. After two terms on the City Commission as its first female member, she was voted in as mayor, an office she has held for the past three years.

Her family has been tolerant, but she thinks her younger son will be glad when she concludes her term of office and retires from civic life.

One of her main purposes for the past eight years has been to encourage people to participate in government. Mrs. Willett has found her experience most rewarding.

Hostess for the meeting was Mrs. B. M. Mitchell of Murphy Street. She was assisted by Mrs. George Putnam.

'Sitting Bull' on War Path, Resents Wife's Moniker

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a man who has been retired for exactly four months. I have worked hard since the age of 14 and have earned the rest. My wife isn't very happy about it and has given me the nickname of "Sitting Bull."

ABBY

I enjoy sitting and don't like her calling me "Sitting Bull." Will you put this in your column? We both read it. Maybe she'll take the hint and cut it out.

SITTING BULL

DEAR SITTING: Yours is a noble nickname. Another retired gentleman wrote to tell me that his wife had nicknamed him "Honeydew!" He said every two minutes she'd say "Honeydew this" and "Honeydew that." Wanna trade?

DEAR ABBY: My son, who has been a good boy and very close to his family, brought home a young lady for us to meet. He is interested in marrying her. We all fell in love with her, Abby. She seemed a precious thing.

Now he tells us that she told him she had had a child out of wedlock four years ago, and had it adopted out.

I'd like to hear from a mother or mother-in-law who has experienced this. Or perhaps a man who has married a girl with this in her past. Abby, would you accept a girl like this in your family?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Why not? One mistake should not haunt a girl forever. She was honest enough to tell your son, and he was honest enough to tell you. Neither was necessary.

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 but look much older. When my girl friend and I go to a night movie together, my mother picks me up. But she never waits until the show is over.

She always comes after me early because she says she is tired and want to go to sleep and can't wait until the end of the movie.

When I see her going up and down the aisles looking for me, I get so embarrassed I want to die. How can I get my mother to let me walk home with my girl friend?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Walking home at night is out of the question, so don't campaign for it. Perhaps your girl friend's mother or father can pick you both up and deliver you home after the movie. If that's not possible, you'd better be content with things as they are.

★ ★ ★

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, in care of The Pontiac Press.

Hate to write letters Send one dollar to ABBY, in care of The Pontiac Press, for Abby's new booklet "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS."

Gals Alone, Stay Away From Bar

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: Last evening my husband asked me to meet him at the restaurant in which we were to dine. He was to come there from the office.

I arrived early and rather than stand around, I went to the bar and had a drink.

When he arrived and saw me sitting there he was very much annoyed and said that it was most improper for an unescorted woman to sit at a bar.

This may have been true years ago but in the present day I think it is quite acceptable and that no one thinks anything at all about it May I please have your opinion?

A: You should not have sat at the bar. If there was no other place to sit, you should have gone into the dining room and had your cocktail at the table while waiting for your husband.

Q: Is it proper to send a wedding invitation to one who is in mourning?

A close friend of mine lost her mother two months ago and I am undecided as to what to do about sending her an invitation to my wedding.

My mother says it would not be right to send her one and that she will think me very lacking in feeling if I do. If I don't send her an invitation she might feel slighted, so what do I do?

A: Send her an invitation and enclose a note saying, "Just to let you know that if you should feel like coming, you will be more than welcome."

Q: If one receives an invitation to a shower and cannot go, is it necessary to send a present?

A: It is not necessary to send a present if you don't go, but since those invited to a shower are the guest of honor's best friends, one usually sends a gift even though she cannot be present.

The clothes of the bride and groom's parents as well as those of the wedding guests are described in the new Emily Post Institute booklet, "Correct Clothes for a Wedding Reception." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Emily Post Institute, in care of The Pontiac Press.

The Emily Post Institute cannot answer personal mail, but all questions of general interest are answered in this column.

DEAF MAN PERFECTS TINY HEARING AID!

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. — A remarkably tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly 10 years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate units and represents a new and unusual design idea in a product to restore natural hearing.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This new hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear.

Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low. The instrument weighs only ¼ oz. It is about the size of a sewing thimble — hardly noticeable yet powerful.

Tenor's Story Inspires

Determination Pays Off

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I first became acquainted with Sandor Konya through his records a few years ago. He has a beautiful voice and sings with vitality and feeling which is reminiscent of Caruso.

I only recently learned something of his history. I pass this interesting and inspiring story on to you as evidence that if a person has talent in any sphere, and is determined enough, he or she can succeed in spite of the cruel arrows of fate.

Few efforts toward a career have been more frustration - ridden than Konya's. First he had to overcome the opposition of his stepfather. That disposed of, global war took its place — World War II.

Konya's studies came to an end in 1944 when he became old enough to be inducted into the Hungarian Army, organized by the conquering Germans.

WAR PRISONER

By 1945, he had exchanged the life of a soldier for the life of a prisoner of war. He was captured by the British and interned in one of their camps in Germany.

At this period in his life, Sandor Konya sang simply to cheer himself up. However, it soon became known that the boy "had a voice," and he was allowed to sing on special occasions at the camp.

The measure of fulfillfent this gave his singing impulse meant much more to him than the extra rations and cigarettes with which his performances were rewarded.

Through the POW camp officers' influence, some German civilians also heard Konya.

In 1946, it was planned to send all Hungarian prisoners to another camp. Konya feared that this would prolong his imprisonment, broke out of camp and made his way to the home of a German family he had met in prison camp through his singing.

Four four months he hid in their hayloft. His benefactors were opera fans and shared their meager fare with him.

Sometimes this consisted of only bread and water. Eventually, he no longer had to hide, and registered with the local authorities as a German-born Hungarian.

SOLD FISH

Through the family which had befriended him he met various people connected with music in the area and resumed his studies. He supported himself by selling fish he caught in a nearby lake and by doing all sorts of odd-jobs. He married during this period.

In 1951, Konya heard that auditions for a tenor were being held at a provincial opera house some distance away. He and his wife risked all their savings to go.

Sandor was engaged and that was the beginning of a career which has taken him to the Metropolitan Opera, and La Scala and other great opera houses of Europe.

Like many other great artists, or successful persons, he thinks that talent alone cannot build a career, but that it must be rooted in discipline, stamina and a sense of reality.

Polly's Pointers

Man's Hat Disguise

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I travel a great deal attending meetings out of the city. There are times when I have to drive several hundred miles at night alone.

I always carry a man's hat and wear it so nobody realizes I am a woman driving alone. R. B.

★ ★ ★

DEAR POLLY — If you have a bedridden patient in your home, many times their heels wear thin from contact with the sheet.

Try placing soft rubber pads in the heels of white socks to give the wearer a cushion for the heels and more comfort.

The same cushion can be used for the elbows by pinning to the nightgown sleeve. A small narrow pillow under the knees of a patient with back trouble will often make him more comfortable.

I keep a salt shaker filled with flour near my stove. When I fry eggs, I shake a little flour into the hot fat. The eggs brown nicely and the fat does not pop.

To give fried eggs a "want-more" flavor, add a dash of cornmeal to the hot fat and brown slightly before breaking the eggs into it. JUST SUSIE

DEAR POLLY — Painting behind appliances or in other hard-to-reach places is always a problem.

To make the job easier, take a small piece of synthetic sponge, about one-half inch thick and three or four inches square, and tape it to the end of a yard stick.

Wipe the paint on in the tight spots. MRS. I. W.

Bringing Up Baby®

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Babies, like everyone else, want to see the world. What better reason for trying to creep? And those first attempts at creeping are adorably awkward, wonderful to behold. Some try it forward, others backward. Still others fancy crabwise creeping. No matter what style your baby selects, the important thing is that he's learning the 3 big C's: Confidence, Co-ordination, Control. Happy new horizons.

•

Girl or boy creepers, sit-abouts or gadabouts, every darling one of them needs protein . . . to help develop strong muscles. Tasty way to give baby extra protein: Gerber High Meat Dinners. These baby-style "casseroles" have 3 times as much meat (and therefore more protein) as regular combination baby dinners. And all this savory meat is subtly blended with garden-good vegetables for bright flavor . . . hearty nourishment.

•

Roaming routine. When baby becomes a "four-walker" you'll really have to keep an eye on your traveler. Good idea to schedule his roaming times when you have some watching time. Say, when you're taking a "breather" or doing some sitdown chores. When you return baby to his play pen, a favorite toy, a snack of Gerber Fruit Juice or a Teething Biscuit will help overcome possible resentment at the confinement.

Why green and yellow vegetables? Because they're high in vitamin-A value. Gerber offers several good-tasting choices for baby's eating pleasure.

A word from Dan Gerber. "Our agricultural experts work on a year 'round basis to improve the quality of your baby's food. Take Gerber Green Beans, for example. It took several years of experimentation to develop a superior strain. As a result, the beans we use are tender, succulent and extra-flavorful . . . have less fiber and more flesh . . . and most important, they have a higher nutritive value." Gerber Baby Foods, Fremont, Michigan.

Pact to Aid Agrarian Reform

Israel Takes Know-How to Iran

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Top Israeli agricultural and hydrological experts are being sent to Moslem Iran as part of an Israeli friendship program.

Israelis working in Iran have been given official status with the signing of an agreement in Tehran early in January.

A team of Israeli experts, headed by Aryeh Eliav, is conducting a survey of the Qazvin region of Iran in connection with the start of a new agrarian reform program. When the survey is completed, the Israelis will draw up a master plan for the development of the area.

Armed with experience gained in the past three decades in making desert wastes and swamps fit for human habitation, the Israeli engineers and agronomists are investigating the possibilities of developing the land and water resources of the Qazvin region.

What crops are suitable for different area? How much water is needed for the irrigation of crops? How much water is available? And, finally, how much will it cost? These are the questions the experts will investigate.

The Iranians estimate that the project will cost "many millions of dollars." When the master plan is drawn up for the agricultural, economic and industrial development of each region, the Iran government will be able to request international financial assistance.

A model village is being built in Qazvin which will serve as a pattern for a new type of cooperative farming settlement. A few houses have been completed.

Until now Israeli-Iranian cooperation has been of a semi-official nature because the Iranian government was reluctant to create a further strain in her relations with the Arab states. Israeli missions in Tehran worked without publicity, and officials visiting the country came anonymously.

Marking an important change was the visit of Israel's Minister of Agriculture Moshe Dayan last September, when he was the guest of the Iranian ministry of agriculture and was received by the shah.

By raising the standard of living and purchasing power of the Persian peasants, the shah hopes to give a boost to his country's industry.

This year the government decided to increase its share in the development budegt from 40 per cent to 70 per cent. Grants and loans from foreign countries, particularly the United States and West Germany, will make up the balance.

Unofficial agreements between Iran and Israel — described by one Israeli newspaper as "free love"—began shortly after Iran's de facto recognition of Israel in 1950.

A $500,000 trade pact was signed in 1953. Israel sold Iran trucks, tires, phosphates, irrigation equipment and cement in return for Persian rice, wheat, barley, paints and eggs.

An important aspect of Israeli-Persian cooperation is the training of young Persians so they can eventually replace the Israeli experts. In the past half year, three seminars were held in Israel for Persian agronomists, agricultural engineers and government officials.

Junior Editors Quiz on ELECTRIC EYES

ANSWER: Our modern world is full of things which seem surprising, almost miraculous. We walk through a super market door with an armload of bags and the door opens right in front of us. This apparent miracle may have been accomplished by our weight on the floor starting a motor, or by the use of an electric eye, as we show in our picture.

The large arrows point to small boxes. From one comes a beam of light which is focused exactly on the other. Inside this second box is a tube called a photoelectric cell. Inside of this is a wire loop, the anode (positive) and a part coated with light sensitive material, the cathode (negative).

When the light beam strikes the cathode, electrons from it flow toward the anode through an electric circuit, creating a flow of current. If something blocks the beam, the current flow stops.

Changes of current, off and on, are used in the operating mechanism to start and stop motors.

The blocking of the beam may be used to start an electric motor, and this is what is opening the door in front of our young friend in the picture. The electric eye actually did see the boy, even if it can't tell him from a stick of wood.

★ ★ ★

FOR YOU TO DO: Can you think of other ways in which electric eyes might be useful? Using it to control TV sets is one, as we suggest in the picture. What about burglars — can you imagine how it might be arranged to set off an alarm?

On Fire Station

Contract Up for Okay

A contract for architectural services for a fire station on Pontiac's North Side will be up for approval at tonight's City Commission meeting at 8.

No actual construction date has been set for the station, but commissioners have long recognized the need for a station in that area.

Commissioners will also reconsider a resolution appropriating urban renewal funds to pay condemnation awards in the R20 project.

A similar resolution was defeated by a 4-3 vote last week because commissioners wanted more time to study the resolution.

Also on tonight's agenda is an ordinance to rezone the 50-acre South Park Subdivision from residential to industrial.

It will be introduced and a public hearing on the proposal will be slated for a future meeting.

An ordinance to rezone to industrial a six-acre parcel on Oakland Avenue just south of the Grand Trunk Western Railroad viaduct will also be introduced.

Up for second reading and adoption will be ordinances to rezone Lot 10, A.P. 70, and Lots 80-81 in Dupont Heights Subdivision.

U.S. Plans to Fire New Satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — America plans to fire a new communications satellite next week at one of the most ambitious goals in space — an orbit so high it will seem to hang in the sky in virtually one spot.

The 150-pound "space switchboard" is named Syncom. It is the fifth, smallest and most unusual satellite built by this nation for the task of relaying radio signals between stations on Earth.

Its creators are touting Syncom as the forerunner of a comparatively simple three-satellite system that could girdle the globe with "live" television, telephone and radio communications.

Syncom, a first cousin if not a brother to the famed "Telstar" and "Relay" satellites, is scheduled to be launched Feb 6 aboard a Delta rocket toward a circular orbit 22,300 miles above earth.

REASON FOR ALTITUDE

This is the point in space that scientists alternately refer to as the "synchronous orbit" (thus the name Syncom) or "24-hour orbit."

A satellite this high up travels at a speed that matches, or is synchronized with, the rotating speed of the Earth below.

Another way to say it is that, if the earth were standing still, the satellite would make one circuit every 24 hours. But since the Earth rotates exactly once every 24 hours, the difference is canceled.

The result is the same — to an observer on Earth, the satellite appears stationary in the sky, never moving over the horizon in what could be called "customary" satellite fashion. It is always up there in one spot, ready for duty.

This is a major headache with the earlier Telstar and Relay satellites. They are in much lower orbits that have them speeding much faster around Earth than the globe is revolving. The result is that they are in the right spot in the sky only a short time each day.

RESEARCH MADE EASIER — Michigan State University Oakland sophomore Nita Steward, 19, of 3260 Seebaldt Road, Waterford Township, uses the school library's microfilm on a scanographer to research material. Paper-back editions help too.

Rate MSUO Library Superior to Many Far Larger Facilities

The fast-developing new library at Michigan State University Oakland already is rated far superior to many established libraries three times its size.

MSUO librarian David Wilder, who is entering his fourth year of building up the library, said that with 35,000 volumes it better than equals many older libraries with more than 105,000 books each.

"A role of film or a single book now can replace ten or more older volumes," Wilder declared.

A shoe box full of microfilm can contain as much written material as would otherwise fill stacks of books and historical documents not otherwise available here.

Modern editions have compiled important scholarly commentaries on any one of Shakespear's plays. Students formerly were required to research up to 10 or 15 volumes in the course of their studies.

CLASSIC SELECTIONS

Similarily a complete set of the Loeb Library of Classics in effect replaces thousands of volumes of Greek and Latin classics, facing page translations and commentaries with about 450 volumes.

In procuring books, MSUO librarians work with the faculty members in order to concentrate on books that will meet students' needs.

This tremendously reduces the obsolescence common in older libraries, Wilder said.

Advances in production of reprints, including paperbacks, have also served to make rare research materials readily available and reasonalbe in cost, he added.

"Even though they may have a shorter life than hard-bound books, they still are a worthwhile investment at an average of $1.50 apiece, compared with nearly $5," Wilder said.

Cataloguing is also streamlined. By using the Library of Congress system, one cataloguer at the Kresge Library does the work required of three at most other libraries.

UNUSUAL FACILITIES

"For a collection of this size," said Asst. Librarian Margaret Irwin, "the reference facilities are unusual.

"Bibliographies are so comprehensive that a student may look up any book ever published in this country. Even the British Museum provides a less-complete record of books published in that country."

The library at MSUO already has a wide collection of foreign language dictionaries and encyclopedias, as well as most of the books on the Harvard University tutorial lists.

It contains a fine collection of art books and art reference books, and more than 500 professional and scholarly journals, popular magazines, newspapers (including those from Russia and China) and other periodicals.

"We have only the cream," Wilder said, "the definitive editions, and the best and most valuable reference works."

★ ★ ★

The Kresge Library has something else unusual — an honor system.

No electronic eye or policemen search for books. There are no due dates and no book fines. And all works are readily accessible to the students.

Wilder said he doesn't think the honor system will slow the task of assembling a basic collection of 100,000 volumes during the next few years.

"So far, at least, book losses have been remarkably small," he said.

Could U.S. Keep Pace of Cuba Crisis?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate report has pointed to the White House's "tight, detailed control" over a host of operations in the Cuban crisis and questioned whether the pace could have been maintained in a longer emergency.

The report, a study by the Senate subcommittee on National Security Staffing and Operations, was not critical of President Kennedy's actions in the Cuban confrontation.

Rather, it singled out the crisis as an example of the need for a major change in machinery for dealing with national security problems.

★ ★ ★

"In a period when war or peace may hinge on the way in which a quarantine of Cuba is handled, there is a strong tendency for a president to exert control from the center, because of the risks of leaving delicate matters to subordinates," said the report, made public yesterday.

"Yet," it added, "delegation of the right issues with appropriate guidance to able subordinates is of critical importance.

"The nation's security depends not only on a president's skill in handling crises and major issues but also on the steady and competent handling of less vital matters by the department chiefs and the national security organization as a whole."

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., noted in its staff report that Kennedy set up what "was in effect a task force for the Cuban crisis" manned by the executive committee of the National Security Council (NSC).

"What would have happened if the executive committee of the NSC had had to maintain the pace of the Cuban crisis for two or three more weeks, with other important issues piling up . . . ?"

Jackson said the subcommittee plans hearings on proposals for delegation of authority and for overhauling government machinery for replying to the international challenge of Communism.

"The very size of the national security organization is one of the problems," the report stated. "It's too big for any one man to know all about it."

Report Police Guarding Ford

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The newspaper El Mundo says Henry Ford II has been given a police guard after discovery of a Communist plot to kidnap the visiting American automobile manufacturer. Ford company officials said they know nothing of the plot and police declined comment.

★ ★ ★

Ford, who came to Venezuela to inspect a new auto assembly plant at Valencia, 75 miles southwest of Caracas, was unavailable for comment.

The plot—as outlined by the newspaper Monday—was for Communists to ambush Ford's car or to seize him at a news conference they hoped to set up.

Saginaw Supervisors Kill Annexation Bid

★ ★ ★

The latest petition, involving Zilwaukee Township, was the last of the petitions filed in April. Still under consideration is a petition filed later by Saginaw Township.

Waterford Increases Taxes in Alhi Paving District

In a two-hour discussion, six persons from the district exchanged suggestions with board members on how to handle two lots with increased front footage due to their location on a curve.

The board set an assessment rate of $2.475 per front foot rather than $2.45.

★ ★ ★

Under this formula, the assessment to owners of the two larger lots is lowered with the difference being spread among the 47 other property owners in the district.

Though having substantially more front footage, the two arc lots were comparable in size to others in the area.

Estimated cost of the blacktopping project is set at $13,834.40. The township will pay 10 per cent, or $1,383.44, leaving a net cost to property owners of $12,450.96.

Work is scheduled to begin this spring. The first of 10 annual installments is due in July.

In other business, the board authorized the township clerk to advertise for bids on fire and extended coverage insurance for township buildings and contents.

Bids on a proposed three-year policy will be opened Feb. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

★ ★ ★

Township Attorney Paul Mandel suggested the three-year period rather than five years, because the area's water program is expected to be activated within that period.

Then a five - year coverage plan could be considered at lower rates.

The board also approved rezoning of a 40-acre parcel on the southeast corner of Pontiac Lake and Cass Lake roads from agricultural to residential and commerical.

Most of the parcel — 33.51 acres — is earmarked for residential development, while the remainder will be utilized for apartments and commercial.

To Pull Bagwell Into Libel Suit

Ex-Governor Nominee to Be Codefendant

DETROIT (UPI) — The attorney for 14th Congressional District Republican Loss Richard Durant said today two-time GOP gubernatorial nominee Paul Bagwell will be named as a codefendant in Durant's million-dollar libel suit.

★ ★ ★

Durant filed the suit in Wayne County Circuit Court last May, charging that former State Sen. John H. Stahlin and his press aide, Charles Ferry, libeled him in a complaint Stahlin made to the Michigan Fair Campaign Practices Commission.

Larry Davidow, Durant's attorney, said depositions taken from Stahlin and Ferry and cross-examination of the two men indicated Bagwell had a prominent part in the allegations which led to the libel suit.

Davidow said Bagwell had a part in both the preparation and dissemination of the material. He said the 1958 and 1960 Republican gubernatorial nominee will be charged as a codefendant "this week or next."

★ ★ ★

Stahlin, then a candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, charged that Durant, aided by extremist 'right-wing' groups, was attempting to take over control of the party in Wayne County.

Durant said Stahlin's charge was "a filthy piece of libel and a scurrilous attack."

Legislators in Area Sponsor Bills

State Rep. Lloyd L. Anderson, R-Waterford Township, is the sponsor of a bill filed for introduction in the State Legislature that would amend the law on city annexations and incorporations.

The bill provides that all or any part of a charter township may not be annexed to a city, or incorporated as a city or village, without approval by a majority of voters in a township-wide election.

State Rep. Henry M. Hogan Jr., R-Bloomfield Township, is cosponsor of a bill to amend the Michigan vehicle code's driver point system.

★ ★ ★

It provides that if more than one conviction results from the same incident involving a particular driver, points shall be charged to him only for the more serious one.

Publish Poems of Young Red

MOSCOW (AP) — Yevgeny Yevtushenko's 10th book of poems, "A Sweep of an Arm," has been published in Moscow. The first printing is 100,000 copies, far greater than most editions of books of poetry in the Western world.

★ ★ ★

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the volume includes a section of recent poems on foreign countries. It added that the young poet's ninth book of poems, titled "Tenderness," was published a few weeks ago, also in an edition of 100,000 copies.

4 to Discuss Township at Dinner Confab

State Meets Need for Elementary, High School Facilities

(Editor's Note — How do Michigan educators view the recent decline in the nation's birth rate? Will there be less need for additional school facilities at all levels in the coming years?)

By DWIGHT PITKIN
Associated Press Writer

Dr. Lynn M. Bartlett, state superintendent of public instruction, believes Michigan has been doing a pretty good job of meeting the need for elementary and high school facilities.

The need was created by the spectacular jump in the nation's birth rate in 1946-48.

Bartlett, in an interview, said he saw no immediate prospect of a breather for taxpayers in footing the bills for new buildings. Despite a recent decline in the birth rate, there will be a steady, if not so spectacular, increase in enrollment each year, he said.

The nation's birth rate has been dropping since July 1961, and the U. S. Public Health Service says the decline has persisted long enough to establish a significant trend downward.

The birth rate and also the fertility rate were lower in each of the 15 consecutive months ending Sept. 30, 1962, than for the corresponding months a year earlier.

The State Health Department says Michigan rate has been in line with the national pattern. Births in Michigan have been lower for the last 13 consecutive months.

LEVELS BELOW '61

For September 1962, the birth rate in the nation was 24 live births per thousand population, and the fertility rate was 119.7 live births per thousand women in the child-bearing ages, 15-44 years. These levels were 5.9 and 6.4 per cent below the September 1961 rates.

Two University of Michigan professors who have made studies of population trends as affecting the schools are of the opinion the drop in the birth rate is only temporary and will have no long-term affect on enrollments.

David Goldberg, assistant professor of sociology at U. of M., noted that the first wave of post-war babies will hit the colleges in 1964-65 "when we suddenly get a huge jump in the number of 18-year-olds."

★ ★ ★

"The elementary schools will be hit by another blast around 1974. It will be like the second stage of a rocket."

Merritt M. Chambers, visiting professor of higher education at U. of M., said a decrease in the number of births in the nation "is perceptible but not enough to amount to anything."

Chambers, formerly executive director of the Michigan Council of State College Presidents, saw no likelihood of overexpansion of school facilities.

"The birth rate has held up, at least until now, for the past 15 years," he said. "This means we will need facilities for more and more people for the next 15 years."

NEED $700- TO $800 MILLION

Supt. Bartlett estimated that in the next five years the public schools in Michigan will need 18,500 new classrooms. This would require between $700- and $800 million.

"Last year we provided a few more classrooms than actually were needed to take care of growth, reduce obsolescence and eliminate half-day sessions," Bartlett said. "Currently there is need of 6,500 classrooms. Last year we added 1,215 elementary classrooms and 1,644 secondary classrooms."

Generally, the elementary grades are kindergarten through the 6th and the secondary are the 7th through the 12th grade.

"In the decade of the 1950s," Bartlett said, "we built two elementary to one secondary classroom. The ratio now is approximately one to one." He added that secondary school construction in the next few years might exceed elementary.

Bartlett noted that some suburban areas, because of lack of an industrial tax base, have been particularly hard pressed to meet the cost of new buildings and at the same time build sewers and provide other facilities.

"The suburban areas have had a terrific problem," he said.

Bartlett said the state helped new communities solve their problems through legislation that put the faith and credit of the state behind local school bonds.

"The state guarantee acted as a stimulant for districts lacking an adequate tax base," he said.

"During the past six years we have been building 8.6 classrooms per day every day of the year," Bartlett said. "Thus 237 additional pupils per day could be handled."

"We still have a long way to go," Bartlett said. "There was very little construction during the depression years of the 1930s and during the war years of the 1940s.

Charles Laughton 'Pro to the End'

Actor's Last Moments Recalled

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Charles grew a mustache for the part and refused to shave it. He died with it on, bravely hoping that he could play the part."

Thus Elsa Lanchester, widow of Charles Laughton, discloses how her husband died in character for a movie role he had signed for but never played.

"He was a professional to the end," says the comedienne, who married Laughton in 1929. She was at his bedside when he died Dec. 15 of cancer.

★ ★ ★

"Director Billy Wilder knew that Charles would never make it but he never announced anyone else for the part," says Elsa.

TOOK DEATH HARD

Elsa, who took her husband's death quite hard, is leaving Thursday for England for a month's stay.

"I have to get away, make the break so I can come back and be born again. I am a comedienne and I must go on.

"But here in the house that Charles and I lived in for so many years, I find I haven't quite got the spirit yet to be funny."

Elsa said it was Laughton's wish that he go home from the hospital last Nov. 30—only two weeks before his death.

"He felt he should be home and when he got there, he said he was glad that he was."

In England, Miss Lanchester will visit Laughton's two brothers and her 92-year-old mother who lives in Brighton.

"Charles and I had planned to visit her together last summer and then he had to go into the hospital."

TO GO ON ROAD

"Charles loved traveling about America so. He wrote a book about it and when it came out just before he died, I put a copy beside his bed.

"I thought, between the sedations, he might ask for it.

"But he never did."

New Frontier 'Baby' Eyes Home Woes

WASHINGTON (AP)—A few top story rooms in an old house on Jackson Square, just a stone's throw from the White House, are the nursery for the newest baby on the New Frontier.

The baby doesn't even have a name yet. Some call it the Domestic Peace Corps. In his budget message, President Kennedy called it the National Service Corps.

"It won't be the National Service Corps," assured one of the youthful planners. "We want something catchier than that."

"You might call us Bobby Kennedy's baby, for now," he added. "The attorney general talked so much about the project that the President made him chairman of the study comimttee."

At present the group has no official status, but the hope is clear: to have 200 to 500 corpsmen at work by midsummer on such tasks as community development in an Indian reservation, aides in mental hospitals, following migrant workers and helping them adjust to living conditions, helping Cuban refugees who speak little or no English adjust to their new lives, teaching illiterates to read and write and on renewal projects in both urban and rural areas.

Many of the study group are on loan from the Peace Corps, bringing along the lessons of its two years of operation.

An executive order is expected soon to give the program official status, followed by legislation to make it permanent.

Eventually, the planners expect to land somewhere amid the sprawling Department of Health, Education and Welfare, where lies most of their work. But for now, all mail goes out under the letterhead of the attorney general.

Rough plans for the domestic peace corps, or whatever you call it, were drafted by an 11-member committee headed by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and including five other Cabinet members and Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver.

They proposed an evential maximum of about 5,000 corpsmen within five years. Corpsmen would serve for one year, compared to two for the Peace Corps, receiving only a living allowance and modest terminal pay. They would have the option of volunteering for a second year.

"We're not trying to provide jobs for youngsters who dropped out of school," a spokesman said. "Some people have confused us with the youth employment opportunities program—for youths 16 to 21.

"The kind of volunteer we want can find a job because he has a special skill. We'll probably draw heavily from recent college graduates and retired people, as the Peace Corps does."

For a start, the domestic peace corps has staked out pilot projects in South Dakota, New York City, Massachusetts, Kentucky and California.

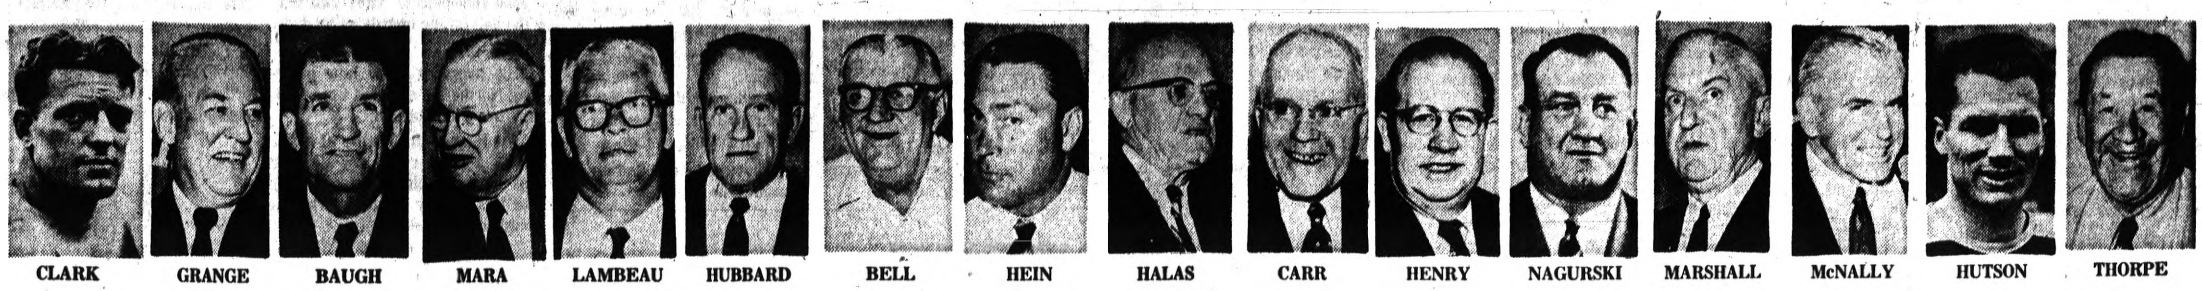
All Time Greats Selected to Pro Football Hall of Fame



CLARK GRANGE BAUGH MARA LAMBEAU HUBBARD BELL HEIN HALAS CARR HENRY NAGURSKI MARSHALL McNALLY HUTSON THORPE

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Seventeen men who contributed to pro football as players, coaches, club founders or league commissioners were named today as charter members of the National Professional Football Hall of Fame.

A 14-man board of selectors, one from each city in the National Football League, chose the men by unanimous vote, after considering 80 nominees. The election actually was held Dec. 29 on the eve of the NFL title game but was not announced until today.

Twelve of the 17 charter members are alive. They will be present next summer or fall when the formal induction is held at the Hall of Fame, now under construction here. Players must have been retired for at least three years to merit consideration

Mel Hein, center New York Giants (1931-45) Wilbur (Fats) Henry, tackle Canton Bulldogs, Akron Indians, New York Giants, Pottsville Maroons, Pittsburgh Steelers (1920-30); Cal Hubbard, tackle and end, New York Giants, Green Bay Packers, Pittsburgh Steelers (1927-36); Don Hutson, end, Green Bay (1935-45); Curley Lambeau, player, coach, founder, Green Bay (1919-49); Tim Mara, founder New York Giants (1925-59); George Preston Marshall, founder Washington Redskins;

Dick McCann, director of the Hall of Fame, said the next meeting of the selection board will be held on the eve of the 1963 NFL title game. It was announced that no set number will be picked each year although there never will be as many as 17 again at any one time. A unanimous vote will not necessarily be required in the future.

"These are the milestone men of pro football," said McCann. "Their deeds and dogged faith wrote the history of this great game.

"The selectors can be proud of their dedicated efforts. When you look back over the great long line of pro football players, it wasn't an easy task to settle upon just a few. Many have been great. But this is a long, firm stride toward catching up with the past."

Of the 17 selected only Bell Carr, Henry, Mara and Thorpe are dead.

McCann said the Hall of Fame was not restricted to players from the NFL but he observed, "that is the only league that has any history now."

Baugh, who coached the New York Titans in 1960 and 1961, is the only charter member who had a connection with the rival American Football League. Baugh returned to college coaching last fall.

From the Press Box

BY BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

You may have noticed in newspaper accounts over the past weekend that DETROIT'S Hayes Jones won his 33rd and 34th straight indoor hurdles meets.

At one time Jones himself was somewhat displeased at being hailed as one of Detroit's star athletes. Of course all the top headliners within a two hour drive of Eight Mile road have always been accredited by Detroit communication media as Detroiters.

Currently, Jones is teaching in the Detroit school system and this is not really by choice.

When he was honored a year ago at city hall for his great accomplishments in the world of track, Jones proudly accepted the honors bestowed upon him.

"I like Pontiac, and I'd like to live here. It's my hometown" said Hayes, "bu t haven't had any success in getting located here."

To put it bluntly, Jones was really saying "They don't want me around here."

Recently, in this column we mentioned the Pontiac PBA Open, a national event which certainly can bring national recognition to the city.

There is a point of similarity between the event and the individual. They are good for Pontiac, just as other events and names have been for putting the city's name in a favorable spotlight.

In recent years there have been some unfavorable headlines directed at the city and the area. Civic pride should be enough in holding on to what can bring positive attention to the area.

HOSPITALIZED

Friends of Bernie Walters, former physical director at the YMCA and director of the Pine Lake swim school, might be interested in knowing that he is in McMillan Hospital in St. Louis, undergoing surgery of the eye.

NFL Owners Start Confabs

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — National Football League club owners moved into the regular business session today after being brought up to date by Commissioner Pete Rozelle on his continuing investigation into reports that some players bet on games and associated with gamblers.

★ ★ ★

Rozelle briefed representatives of the 14 clubs on the status of his probe Monday afternoon. Jim Kensil, league public relations director, said no specific names or teams were mentioned. The owners were saying nothing.

"No final report will be given at these meetings," said Kensil. "However, the commissioner will be in touch with all phases of the investigation at all times."

SAN FRANCISCO, TOO

The latest flareup was reported Monday from San Francisco where reports were published that an investigator of the United States Senate investigation subcommittee had been looking into alleged gambling associations of three unnamed San Francisco 49ers. There were heated replies from members of the San Francisco club.

"The first I heard of it was when I arrived here Monday afternoon," said Vic Morabito, co-owner of the 49ers. "I know nothing about it. I'd have to refer you to the commissioner."

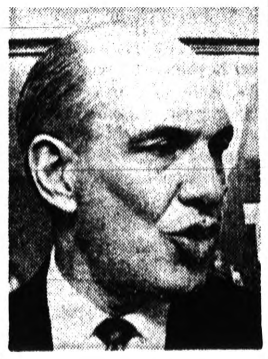
Rozelle said his office was continuing to cooperate with the committee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., in all phases of the investigation. Rozelle said again he would continue his policy of not disclosing specific details about any matter under investigation.

In Washington, Senator McClellan confirmed that his committee had a staff member in San Francisco checking on reports of possible improper activities. He declined to elaborate and said it was the practice of his committee to release no information about any preliminary investigation lest innocent persons might be hurt.

TRADE TALK

There was trade talk in the hotel lobbies as the club owners gathered. Baltimore was willing to listen to offers for some of its pass receivers. The Colts are well stocked in that department with R. C. Owens, Jimmy Orr, Raymond Berry and Dee MacKey, plus draftee Willie Richardson of Jackson, Miss., State. The Minnesota Vikings were interested.

One matter to be determined is a request by the Pottsville, Pa., Maroons to have their 1925 league title restored. The championship was taken away by Joe Carr, then the league president, after Pottsville invaded the home territory of the Frankford, Pa., Yellowjackets to play a post-season game with the Notre Dame All-Stars. League records carry the Chicago Cardinals as the 1925 champs but Pottsville hopes to have this reversed.



JORDAN OLIVAR
Business Over Coaching

Grid Mentor Leaves Yale

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Faced with a choice between football and business, Jordan Olivar chose business, and Yale is now without its winningest football coach since the golden days of Walter Camp.

★ ★ ★

Olivar, the dean of Ivy League football coaches, announced yesterday he was ending an 11-year-old association with Yale.

Yale had offered him a new three-year contract with the proviso that he stay in New Haven for the entire academic year.

61-32-6 RECORD

At Yale, Olivar compiled a 61-32-6 record, coaching the Bulldogs to more victories tha any other coach in Yale history with the exception of Camp, who retired as coach in 1892.

Camp-coached teams won 67 games.

Olivar came under fire from Old Blues for not spending more time at the University. The criticism grew warmer after last season when Yale staggered through with a 2-5-2 record, losing to arch-foe Harvard, 14-6.

★ ★ ★

He told newsmen that 1962 "was a more frustrating season than any other I've had as a coach."

Olivar made his announcement to newsmen last night just before a dinner of Connecticut sportswriters. The Connecticut Sportswriters Alliance was honoring Olivar and two others.

'Making Pro Football' Big Feat for Dutch

DETROIT (UPI) — Earl (Dutch) Clark, named today as one of the National Football League's "immortals," counts as his biggest accomplishment in the sport "making it as a professional."

Clark, who resides at 4162 Auburn Dr., Royal Oak, was one of 17 men, only 12 of whom are still alive, voted into the national professional football Hall of Fame.

★ ★ ★

Clark is a quiet, retiring man who would just as soon forget his days of glory on the green turf when the behemoths of football rumbled the hard-packed earth.

His name now will be enshrined with those of Jim Thorpe, Red Grange, Bronko Nagurski, Sammy Baugh, Don Hutson and other almost legendary players of the '30s.

"I wondered whether I was good enough to play," Clark said, "when I made the team and stuck through it for two seasons was the biggest thing."

★ ★ ★

Now 56, his face carries, however, impressive lines that recall vividly the way he gritted his teeth in the face of enemy linemen.

TRIPLE THREAT

He was a super star at tiny (then) Colorado College who went on to become a triple threat quarterback for the Portsmouth Spartans and later for the Detroit Lions when the franchise was shifted here.

He played pro ball from 1931 to 1938. He made his mark as a great field general and the best drop kicker in the game.

"We ran a lot more in those days," he recalls. "Today the quarterbacks are specialists at passing and calling plays."

It was Clark who gave the Detroit Lions their first NFL championship in 1935. In those days the Lions couldn't get big enough crowds to pack Briggs Stadium (now Tiger Stadium) so they played at the University of Detroit Stadium.

★ ★ ★

Later Clark was to return to U-D Stadium as coach for the school. He served for two years before he retired to go into private business.

He was an all-league selection six times.

He coached the Lions 1937-38 and then shifted his talents to the now defunct Cleveland Rams during the 1939-42 seasons.

He recalls Nagurski, "the roughest man I ever ran against" but adds reflectively, "we got along fine."

★ ★ ★

"Once," he says, "I got some ribs fractured when I fell on a football." This was his worst injury. "I carried the ball wrong," he said.

Football today, he adds, "is harder and better." But, he says, "we didn't get paid as much."

Close Cage Contests in College Loop Play

By The Associated Press

The Paladins did just that Monday night, shading the Mountaineers 59-58 in their South Conference thriller. It was a feat Furman had never been able to accomplish before — through 17 games over a 10-year span.

Going all the way with its five starters, refusing to run with speedy West Virginia but playing deliberately and cautiously to set up the good shots, and withstanding a furious last-gasp Mountaineer assault, Furman perpetrated one of the biggest conference upsets of this or any other season.

SECOND STRAIGHT

The Paladins, who have specialized in tight ones this season but have lost most of them as their 7-11 record indicates, dealt West Virginia its second straight loss. Duke swamped the Mountaineers 111-71 Saturday and dropped them out of the national rankings.

Sophomore-led Georgia Tech took over the Southeastern Conference lead with a 66-62 victory over slumping Kentucky. Indiana remained unbeaten in the Big Ten, nipping Purdue 74-73 for its first winning decision on the Boilermakers' floor in nine years.

Gary Bradds was a one-man gang as Ohio State got by Northwestern 72-70. Ninth-ranked Mississippi State had unexpected trouble but downed Southern Mississippi 62-52. A three-point play by Bill Debes in the final 8 seconds gave DePaul a 55-53 squeaker over Bowling Green. And northwest power Seattle smothered Loyola of Los Angeles 102-58.

Soph Tom Van Arsdale's basket proved the winner for Indiana over Purdue as the Hoosiers boosted their Big Ten mark to 3-0. Ohio State won its 44th straight at home behind a dazzling show by Bradds, who scored 35 points, got the clinching field goal and intercepted a Northwestern pass in the closing seconds. Bradds hit on 11 of 15 tries from the floor and 13-for-13 at the foul line.

The Top 10 with points based on 10 for first place votes, 9 for second, etc. and number of first place votes in parentheses: Records include Monday night results.

AAU, Federation Truce Endangered by 'Problem'

NEW YORK (AP) — Officials of the U.S. Track and Field Federation and the Amateur Athletic Union conceded today that a crack had developed in the agreement arbitrated by Gen. MacArthur but both expressed confidence talks later this week would smooth out the problem.

At issue is whether the MacArthur agreement, accepted by both sides as a temporary truce in the amateur sports dispute, provides sanctioning rights for the federation as well as the AAU.

The crack was disclosed yesterday when the federation confirmed reports that it had asked for sanctioning of high school, junior college and college athletes invited to open meets conducted by the AAU. The AAU said this amounted to dual sanctioning and was not part of the agreement, reached before MacArthur on Jan. 19.

BOTH RECOGNIZED

The USTFF said it felt it was entitled to sanction appearances of its own athletes in AAU meets since the MacArthur plan recognized the federation as well as the AAU in the administration of track and field in the U.S.

"The matter will be discussed at a meeting of the Olympic Eligibility Board, as provided by the MacArthur agreement, in New York on Friday," President William W. Russell of the federation said in Inglewood, Calif. "This isn't the resumption of a war or anything like that. We feel we are entitled to give our sanction to high school, junior college and college athletes invited to events like the indoor meets within the framework of the agreement.

"The fact that there are two groups for track and field in this country is recognized by the agreement. It also provides that to implement the plan, an agreement on a non-membership basis will be developed. We're confident this can be achieved."

If it isn't, the MacArthur plan provides that the issues of disagreement will be submitted to the general for decision.

Freds-OL St. Mary in Key Encounter

Orchard Lake St. Mary and St. Frederick are geared for their basketball meeting tonight with the Eagles hoping for survival in the Northwest Catholic title chase.

Actually, the Rams could not only eliminate St. Marys from the race but could move up behind leader Royal Oak St. Mary in the next three games.

St. Fred must play Orchard Lake in a pair of back to back games and then faces Royal Oak St. Mary.

The fast improving St. Fred quintet will be the underdog tonight against the Eagles on the Jefferson Junior High court. The jayvee game will start a bit earlier, at 6:30 p.m.

The Northwest Catholic league runnerup squad has amassed a 7-2 log and can move within a half game of pace setting Royal Oak St. Mary by maintaining a domination that began 32 years ago. Starting with a 23-11 victory in the 1930-31 season, OLSM has built a 32-8 game advantage over the Rams.

BRADLEY INJURED

St. Fred's lost its big man, 6-4 center Tom Bradley, recently with a fractured ankle during a practice session. While the loss reduced the talent and personnel Wright has to work with, it isn't reflected in the game results.

"The boys have been improving right along," Wright said after the Rams' pounded Detroit St. Agatha, 60-40, Friday night. It was their third straight league win (sixth in eight starts) and pushed them over the .500 mark in the league for the first time this season at 5-4.

By upsetting the Eaglets this evening at Jefferson JHS, the St. Fred five would hop past arch riva St. Michael into third place.

Puts Finger on Communism's Weak Spot

80,000,000 once-free people—of Poland, of Czechoslovakia, of Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania—still resist Red domination. Many powerful Soviet divisions are thus tied down in Eastern Europe—unable to leave.

Here is Communism's weak spot; and putting a strong finger on that spot, helping to keep the Reds constantly on the defensive, are the daily news and commentary broadcasts of Radio Free Europe. RFE's 28 powerful transmitters blanket the area with up to 18 hours a day of programs carrying the unanswerable words of truth that expose Communist lies.

Radio Free Europe is supported by private American citizens. It is one of the Free World's strong weapons in the cold war. It needs your help to be stronger still.

Outlook 'Good' for Pontiac Northern Cage Squad

By DON VOGEL

"Things look good."

These words were spoken by coach Dick Hall yesterday as he summed up Pontiac Northern's basketball outlook for the remainder of the regular season.

"We should continue to do very well," said Hall. "Our biggest problem will be Pontiac Central. They have improved and will be playing in their gym.

"But I feel our boys will give them (PCH) all they can handle."

The highlight of PNH's successful season was a 62-59 win over the Chiefs. It was the first time Northern had defeated its city rival in basketball.

However, the Huskies became a little more determined today when it was announced in the weekly AP prep ratings that PNH had been dropped from 13th to 18th in Class A and PCH moved up from 19th to 12th.

Since losing its opening game to Flint Southwestern, the Huskies have rolled up seven straight wins. They are currently leading the Inter-Lakes League by two games.

"Gary isn't scoring as much this season," Hall pointed out, "because we have a more balanced attack. But, if we need him to get us points, he'll come through."

"We have the rebounding this season," he explained. "Gary and Roger Hayward, Wayne Daniels and Dean Souden are good rebounders. They can get the ball off the boards so we can run."

The averages show how effective Northern's speeded up attack has been this season.

The Huskies are hitting at a 72.1 points a game clip. The defense has lagged behind, yielding 58.5, but this usually happens when a team uses a fast break.

Gary Hayward is averaging 17.7 a game. His brother, Roger, is at 14.2. The 6-2½ sophomore is improving with each game. Jerry Reese has an 11.9 mark and Mike Burklow has been setting a 12.5 pace.

"Reese has come along real, real fine for us," said Hall. "And Burklow is doing a very good job."

Northern's bench also has contributed to the victory.

"When one of the starters has an off night," said the coach, "someone always seems to go in and pick up the slack."

Coach Has Few Problems

Capac Rolls Merrily Along

By JERE CRAIG

As coach of the Capac Chiefs, presently the second ranking team in the state's weekly AP Class C poll, he has a quintet that is 9-0 on the season and is averaging 72 points a game.

Only one opponent has managed to stay within 20 points of the high flying Chiefs as their foes have been limited to an average of 37 points a contest. Arch rival Imlay City fell, 55-42, the second week of the season in Capac's closest contest.

The Chiefs have extended their regular season winning streak to 41 consecutive victories, which includes 34 straight successes in the Southern Thumb Conference.

Brown City, victimized by 36 and 35 points this year, was the last team to defeat Capac in the regular season. That was in the second start of the 1960-61 season when it emerged with a come-from-behind 52-47 decision.

The Chiefs should have no trouble adding another scalp to their collection when they meet Dryden Friday night. Their upcoming host was whipped, 88-37, earlier this year.

So thoroughly has the fast-breaking Capac offense demolished the opposition that Moore has a 14-player varsity (ballooned to 15 when team manager Wynn Klug is permitted to dress), none of whom play on the junior varsity.

Klug, hampered by a trick knee, was one of 14 players who scored in a recent win over Almont that saw Capac register its highest score of the year, 90 points.

NOT OVERLOOKED

Defense is not a forgotten art either. The Chiefs have not allowed a foe more than 45 points in any game this season.

All five starters have played varsity ball together for three seasons. The leading scorer on this year's team is Ken Adamski, a 6-2 junior forward who was the sixth man on last year's quintet that was the top-rated Class C team in the state.

The 1961-62 combine finished with a 21-1 log that saw the only loss come at the hands of Grosse Pointe St. Paul in the regional finals. The Chiefs have every intention of reversing that defeat should a repeat match be forthcoming this season.

★ ★ ★

Kobayashi is the smallest regular at 5-7, but is also one of the quickest players on the team. Of Japanese - American descent, he is part of a family tradition on the Capac roster.

COACH'S PROBLEM

An older brother played for Moore in the late 1950's and two twin brothers Robert and Albert are freshmen on the varsity. In fact, it is the twins who give Moore one of his bigger problems—he can "just barely tell them apart by looking very closely." They stand 5-5 and have the same quick reactions of their brother.

The Chiefs do not lack for talent and height on the bench. Jim Verscheure is a two-year backcourt veteran and 6-4 Gary Smith, 6-3 John Thompson and 6-3 Maurice Callender provide tall, experience reserves for Moore to use.

The coach has had ample opportunity to use his bench this season and this has promoted strong team morale. Despite this outstanding depth, morale, and talent, Moore had an ordinary explanation for the Chiefs' success: "They want to win."

'Longest Movie' Begins for Big 10 Grid Coaches

★ ★ ★

They settled down in the Little Theater off a corridor in Northwesterns' McGaw Hall. They may be there until Wednesday as the Perils of Pauline version of 1962 officiating unfolds.

NO POP CORN

There should be plenty of jawing. But not on pop corn. The concession to have for this one is the crying towels.

The doors of the Little Theater will be closed to everyone except the 10 coaches and Commissioner Bill Reed. The projector will whirr out film clip after film clip of last season's Big Ten games.

There will be repeats, slowdowns, stills, rewinds, step-ups, and even upside-downs as the stars of the spectacular cavort on the screen. These would be the field judge, head linesman, referee, umpire and back judge—crews working each game from the pool of 37 officials in the Big Ten.

"This is an opportunity for coaches to use visual evidence where they think deficiencies in officiating may exist," explains Reed. "The films also should define areas where greater concentration may be needed on the part of officials.

NOTHING NEW

"This study is nothing new. We've been going over film clips for the last two years. The only thing different is that the coaches themselves will present the films this time.

"In 1961, for instance, our study of films showed some excessive piling on, and calls against that were stressed last season. I really don't think there are any new problems.

"This is all aimed at an evaluation by the coaches themselves in determining what kind of problems exist in officiating. By use of movies, we may be able to spot whether an official is consistently wrong or makes an honest mistake in judgment."

Oh, for a Bathroom of His Very Own

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The American husband's greatest dream isn't to have fame, wealth and a longer motor car.

BOYLE

It is the fate of most men to repeat the doom of their fathers, and this fruitless quest of a man for a bathroom of his own seems to be particularly hereditary in America. It has run in my family for at least three generations.

My grandfather reared 14 children in a section of the nation where the bathroom customarily stood in the backyard, so this dream never had a chance. He gave up early in his marital career.

My father had only five children, but he owned a one-bathroom home. So he lived a frustrated life, too.

Every time he sought to get away from it all, there would come a knock on the door and a childish voice entreating in desperate urgency, "Please, papa, I can't wait. Honest!"

HA-RUMPH!

Red-faced, waving his newspaper, grumbling like a bear disturbed in hibernation, father would emerge demanding in a roar loud enough for the neighbors to hear, "Is there no place in this house where a man can have a little peace and quiet?"

The answer, in his case, was no. And it now has turned out to be the answer in my case.

Some years ago we reached the point where we could finally afford to rent a two-bathroom apartment, and I felt that, at long last, I would end the curse which has afflicted the men of our tribe for three generations.

"Why, of course, Rover, you can have a bathroom of your very own," promised my wife, hanging up a pair of nylon stockings to dry in the bathroom she had picked for me.

That was 15 years ago, and I'll bet there hasn't been a 15-minute period since then when some feminine laundry hasn't been drying there—or soaking in the wash basin.

A small daughter came into our lives. She immediately adopted my bathroom. I didn't have to ask when Lady Dottie, our cat arrived.

MEEOW!

"We'll have to put her box in your shower," said my wife. "It's the only logical place."

Ever stumble sleepy-eyed into a bathroom on a cold morning and step barefooted into a box of sharp-edged kitty gravel? That's living, man, that's really living.

My bathroom now has become the community social and recreation center. My daughter and her chums wash their socks and gloves there. They bring their paints and sit on the floor and turn the area into an art class.

When I come home from work, I never know who'll be in that bathroom of my very own—members of my family, neighborhood kids, the window washer, the television repair man, a lady from down the hall, or the cat. But somebody'll be there.

I reached the limit of my patience the other day when I entered and saw what looked like a small neighbor girl sitting there. "Excuse me," I said, and backed out hastily.

After an hour, I asked my wife how long I'd have to wait to get into my own bathroom. "Why, there's no one there," she said, and opened the door to show me.

That's why I'm putting a sign on my bathroom door reading:

"All women, children, cats, dogs, visitors and passing strangers shot on sight. This means you!"

The practice finesse is one taken purely to see if finesses are working for you and not with any idea of gaining a trick.

JACOBY

West cashed the ace and king of diamonds against South's four spade contract and shifted to the jack of clubs. South remarked "This should be a good time to take a practice finesse. West surely holds the king of clubs."

★ ★ ★

Instead South went up with dummy's ace and the contract went right out the window. A spade lead disclosed that West held both missing trumps. He needed them for his no-trump overcall. South took his ace and threw West in with the king, but West exited with the king of clubs. South ruffed this trick, went over to dummy to discard one heart, but eventually had to lose a heart finesse to West's queen.

Had he finessed earlier, South could have cashed the ace of clubs and discarded one losing heart, then ruffed the deuce of clubs. Then he could have played the ace and another spade. This would put West in with the king of spades and he would either have to lead away from his queen of hearts or give South a ruff and discard.

Mart Irregularly Lower

Motors, Steels Decline in Trade

NEW YORK (AP)—Motors and steels declined as the stock market edged irregularly lower early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

After rising for six straight sessions, the market was entitled to a "rest," brokers said, and the price action came as no surprise.

While record earnings of such giants as General Motors and Du Pont helped insipre yesterday's rally, today's action was backgrounded by mixed reports from some of the steel companies and by uncertainty regarding U.S. Steel's financial results, which will be announced after the market close.

In addition, weekly steel production declined for the first time in four weeks, although the dip was ascribed to severe weather conditions.

FRACTIONAL LOSSES

GM resumed its rise at the start, matching its latest high of 63¼ as it rose ⅛, but it canceled the gain and showed a fractional net loss along with Ford, Chrysler, American Motors, and Studebaker.

Prices were irregular and trading moderate on the American Stock Exchange. Gains exceeding a point were made by Electronic Communications and Gellman Manufacturing. Up fractionally were Felmont Petroleum, Standard Brands Paint and CompuDyne.

Bond Marts Steady and Quiet

NEW YORK (AP)—The bond markets were steady and quiet in early dealings today.

Over the counter dealers in U.S. government securities said there were no changes in either intermediate or long maturities.

One dealer said the market was occupied with guessing the terms of the $9.4-billion treasury refunding next month. Terms of the refinancing are due to be made public after the close Thursday.

2 Military Contracts Go to State Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Award of a $2,866,480 Air Force contract to the Bendix Corp., Ann Arbor, Mich., for continued research on a communications system was announced yesterday through Sens. Pat McNamara and Philip A. Hart, Michigan Democrats.

It was the last of a series of awards to Bendix totaling $21,480,000 for work on the system.

Antelope Now Making Comeback Out West

DENVER (AP)—Antelope, once almost extinct in Colorado, are making a comeback. The state has an estimated 10,000 head.

In an effort to restore the antelope population, Colorado allowed no open hunting season on antelope from 1899 to 1944. A limited kill has been allowed each year since then. Nearly 3,000 hunters obtained licenses for the 1962 open season.

Little Unity if No Red Threat

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

HIGHTOWER

★ ★ ★

The fault is that the alliance is strongest when it is compelled to unity of action by the threat of open Soviet hostility and weakest when the Soviet menace recedes.

News Analysis

The troubles within the Atlantic coalition have erupted within the last few weeks in large part because Soviet Premier Khrushchev was defeated last fall in his strategy for forcing a showdown over West Berlin about the end of the year.

The defeat was the outcome of the confrontation between Khrushchev and President Kennedy over Cuba. The Soviet premier almost admitted as much when he said a few days ago in East Berlin that there is no urgent need now for an East-West settlement over the long disputed city.

LOWER TENSIONS

As a result of his shift in policy, the West in general and Europe in particular have drifted almost without realizing it into a period of lower cold war tensions and greater peace than they have known in several years.

The reversal in Soviet policy, undoubtedly spurred also by the Soviet Union's split with Red China, has spread into other fields such as the nuclear test ban negotiations. The hope of progress toward resolving old and dangerous issues has further contributed to an easing of tensions.

The situation would have been vastly different if Khrushchev had succeeded in fully establishing his long-range nuclear missiles in Cuba. He would have used his Cuban missiles to try to back up his demand for a U.S. surrender on the Berlin problem, and the world would have teetered on the edge of nuclear war.

Washington authorities find an element of irony in this situation, so different now from what it might have been. It was the showdown between the United States and the Soviet Union over an island remote from Europe which allowed the present internal Western crisis to develop.

ASKS THIRD FORCE

The central proposal advanced by French President Charles de Gaulle and precipitating this crisis is that Europe should go its own way in the future and increasingly develop a third-force nuclear capacity independent of the nuclear power of the United States.

The U. S. counter argument is that in the age of intercontinental missiles the defense of the West cannot be divided without creating dangerous and perhaps fatal political and military weaknesses. Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk seem confident that the overwhelming majority of Allied leaders in Europe share that view.

The President and his advisers are said to recognize that de Gaulle has the power to bar Britain from the European Common Market so long as he rules France. If, as expected, he uses that power to the full, they plan to negotiate new trade arrangements as it stands and with other interested countries outside the market.

★ ★ ★

But administration leaders do not believe that de Gaulle can possibly reorganize Allied Europe around a Bonn-Paris axis with the United States and Britain largely excluded and French domination secured.

MAY LEAVE WOUNDS

The present dispute may well leave wounds both internally and internationally in Europe since de Gaulle's actions and to some extent the involvement of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer must inevitably cause deep antagonisms. But wounds can be healed with time as they were in the far worse split which developed in the alliance in 1956 when the United States broke with Britain and France over their attack on Egypt during the Suez crisis.

What will remain unhealed as a challenge to the most resourceful leadership which the West can provide is the underlying fault in the alliance — the impulse to fall apart through internal rivalries when the external pressure from the Soviet bloc is removed.

Larry Storch Tags Along With 'Bermuda Schwartz'

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — When Tony Curtis was still Bernie Schwartz from the Bronx, Comedian Larry Storch used to call him "Bermuda Schwartz" and would yell at him, "Never get into show business! Don't get caught in the quicksand . . ."

WILSON

They'd met on a submarine in World War II —and in '47, when Larry was playing the Paramount with Perry Como, young Bermuda Schwartz came backstage, all amazed at what he saw.

"I let him peek through the curtain at the audience and he was in Heaven. 'Don't get caught!' I repeated . . .

"He said 'I'm afraid I'm caught, I'm going to Hollywood.' "

So Bermuda Schwartz became a star, married Janet Leigh, divorced her, and is now making headlines with Christina Kaufmann — but he's also cast Larry Storch in three movies.

"Just the other day," Larry told me, "Tony said, 'What are you doing in March?' I said, 'Well, I'm busy in Hoboken and Passaic.'

"My wife said 'Shut up, fool. His time is your time.' "

So Larry's now been cast with Tony in the next Curtis opus, "How Now, Bow Wow," about a genuine dog. Larry's in "40 Pounds of Trouble," now "saturating" the East, and was previously in "Who Was That Lady?"

"Naturally, I think Bermuda Schwartz is quite a guy," says Larry. "And I'm glad I became an actor. I studied law, you know, and took my bar examination . . . Unfortunately, I flunked martinis."

It was true — that story about Jimmy Durante's fancy dinnerjackets, topcoats, shirts and address book being stolen by brazen NY thieves who had the nerve to try to sell the stuff back to him! They burgled it from a station wagon driven by Jennie Jackson, a gal in Jimmy's act, who was driving from Philadelphia to Boston . . . Then one of the thieves visited Jimmy's NY friends, demanded money for the booty, and finally said, "Never mind, it's too late — it's all been sold."

★ ★ ★

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "About New York's traffic, why don't they do something about Double-Park Avenue?"

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "The report that there are more men than women in mental hospitals shows who's driving who crazy."

EARL'S PEARLS: The reason for nepotism in Washington or Hollywood, says John F. Isard, is simple: "It's cheaper by the cousin."

QUAINT QUOTES: "When I first went to New York I was warned to look out for the pitfalls, and I did, but it was Sunday, and they were all closed." . . . That's earl, brother.

Romney Makes 2 Appointments

Expect Senate Okay of Public Service Aides

LANSING (AP) — Two appointments to the powerful, policy-making state Public Service Commission have been announced by Gov. George Romney.

Thomas Burns of Saginaw was named chairman and appointed for a term expiring in July, 1967. George Washington of Detroit was appointed for the balance of Burns' term, which expires this July.

The commission has regulatory powers, including the setting of rates, over Michigan utilities such as the gas, electric and telephone companies.

Sen. John Fitzgerald, R-Grand Ledge, chairman of the Senate Business Committee, said he will interview the two candidates Thursday. The Republican-dominated Senate is expected to approve the appointments of the two Republicans.

Burns is slated to replace James Inglis of Detroit, a Democrat appointed by former Gov. John Swainson who did not receive Senate confirmation. Inglis is former state racing commissioner.

The third member of the commission is John Tormey, a Lansing Democrat, whose term expires in 1965. State statute requires that the commission be bi-partisan.

The chairman receives $13,500 a year and the other two members $13,000 each. Romney said in announcing the appointments that he will ask for salary increases for the posts.

Robert Frost

Beloved Poet Frost Dies

He was pronounced dead at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital at 1:50 a.m. after two operations, a heart attack and three separate blood clots in his lungs since Dec. 3.

The four-time Pulitzer Prize winner had been making what doctors called a remarkable recovery until his general condition began deteriorating in the past 48 hours.

His attending physician, Dr. Roger B. Hickler, said Frost died shortly after complaining of severe chest pains and a shortness of breath.

Frost fashioned poems out of the material around him, but used homey subjects that might be anywhere.

"I'm going to clean the pasture spring;
"I'll only stop to rake the leaves away
(And wait to watch the water clear, I may);

★ ★ ★

ATTEMPTED RELIEF

Subsequently he had a heart attack and blood clots settled in his lungs. In an attempt to ease the blood clots, doctors operated on both legs to tié the veins earlier this month.

Fame came late to the one-time mill worker, New Hampshire farmer and teacher. He lived in comparative obscurity until he was nearly 40.

Two years ago—at the age of 86—he was invited by President Kennedy to read a poem at his inauguration.

With a January wind tousling his thatch of white hair and a strong sun blinding him, Frost discarded the script he could not read and recited from memory a poem he had written 20 years earlier, "The Gift Outright."

★ ★ ★

On his 88th birthday last March 26 President Kennedy presented Frost a medal voted by Congress.

Fellow poet Carl Sandburg praised Frost as "not merely a great poet, but also a beloved person," and said his work will be "around for a long time."

Mark Van Doren, poet, playwright, literary critic and English professor, said: "Robert Frost cannot be replaced. The hole he leaves is not only wide but deep.

"In his lyrics, in his narratives, and in his metaphysical dramas of Job and Jonah, Robert Frost produced over something like 70 years a body of poetry which has no equivalent in the literature of the United States or of the world."

★ ★ ★

Romney Assails MESC Officials in Fraud Case

Demands Explanation of $85,000 Bilking by Onetime Preacher

LANSING (AP)—Michigan Employment Security Commission officials were under orders from an irate governor today to explain their handling of a fraud case involving a onetime Detroit Gospel preacher who allegedly bilked the state of at least $85,000.

In a special news conference last night, Gov. George Romney disclosed details of the probe and raked MESC officials for an unexplained six - month delay after first evidence of the fraud was discovered last July.

In his regular press conference this morning, Romney said he is asking State Police Commissioner Joseph Childs to launch a complete investigation into the case.

The governor also said he wanted to find out why — although the investigation actually began last October — he was never informed of its existence until he learned about it from "private sources" last week.

"This is a shocking case of fraud," Romney told newsmen. "There are a lot of questions to which I want the answers."

Contacted in Detroit, Max M. Horton, MESC director, said the governor hadn't been informed earlier because "the matter is still under investigation . . . the propensities of this case only became apparent when they were tied together.

"Normally, the report (of the MESC fraud division investigating the case) would be completed before we could turn it over to any high officials."

JFK's Catch-All Bill Makes School Aid Bid

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy today offered Congress an education package that would double present federal school aid spending.

He said it would give every American a chance to learn more, earn more and live better.

The President asked for a catch-all school aid bill that would provide new assistance about equal to the $1.5 billion already being spent on education each year by the federal government.

As before, his proposals made no provision for direct aid to private or parochial schools.

Included in the omnibus measure are 13 new programs and 11 existing programs to be extended and expanded.

They include a complex system of grants for public elementary and secondary education, work projects for college students, expanded student loans, and loans and grants to help public and private colleges alike to meet the surge of new enrollments.

NO PRICE TAG

The President placed no price tag on his total package, which he said would "phase out federal aid over a four-year period."

But he told Congress, "It is clearly realistic in terms of its cost — and it is clearly essential to the growth and security of this nation."

An administration spokesman called it a high priority program, designed to pinpoint the most crucial needs and problems in American education, and at the same time to avoid controversy wherever possible.

For the past two years, Kennedy's education proposals have foundered in a controversy over aid for church schools. Kennedy says he believed such aid would be unconstitutional, breeching the barrier between church and state.

The Roman Catholic hierarchy has contended this is not true and has opposed any federal program which doesn't include aid for private and parochial schools.

Although his new program contains no provision for direct aid, there is one suggested change in the college student loan program which might make it easier for church and private schools to secure teachers.

Kennedy did, however, ask for a national study to determine why students do not attend or finish college. The administration spokesman said that if the study indicates a need for scholarships, a request for them could be made next year or later.

Gibbs to Seek Top GOP Post

Aide Tells Candidacy for State Chairmanship

Gibbs, of Royal Oak, and Arthur G. Elliott Jr. gave the county two announced candidates for the post.

GOP County Chairman Charles L. Lyle said today he has invited Gibbs to speak to delegates at the county convention tomorrow.

★ ★ ★

Elliott already scheduled to appear at the convention to give a report on the first 30 days of Gov. George Romney's administration, also will speak concerning his candidacy if Gibbs accepts Lyle's invitation, Lyle said.

EXPECT ENDORSEMENT

Lyle added, however, that a resolution endorsing both candidates as "eminently qualified" is possible.

A resolution would not be binding on the county's delegation to the GOP state convention Feb. 16 in Grand Rapids in any event, he said.

In his announcement, Gibbs said he will not actively campaign for election.

He said his responsibility of co-

Pilot Dies at Controls Passenger Lands Airplane

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—The pilot of a small plane, died at the controls Monday but one of three passengers, none a pilot, guided the plane to a safe landing.

"All I did was steer the thing and follow instructions," said Lester Peterson, 38, assistant project manager for the American Bridge Co.

"He did a real beautiful job," said Lou Domenico, a flight instructor who directed the landing from the Cheyenne control tower. "He kept his head."

Pilot Edgar R. Van Keuren, 56, Rapid City, S.D., slumped over the wheel as the single-engine plane started to land at a missile construction site 45 miles northeast of here.

"It looked like he was falling asleep," said Peterson, who was sitting in the copilot's seat. "So I shook him and he keeled over. That's when we found out we were in trouble."

Peterson took the controls and climbed to 7,000 feet while his companions, engineers Lester Laun and John Pawlack, experimented with the radio and throttle.

★ ★ ★

"Our main difficulty was in getting communications straightened out," said Peterson.

Van Keuren, employed by a Great Falls, Mont., air service, was on a charter flight for American Bridge and the plane's radio was on a company frequency.

The plane touched down at 132 miles an hour, about 22 miles an hour faster than normal. It bounced hard, spreading the landing gear. Another bounce blew a tire. The propeller dug into the ground and spun the plane around but it did not overturn.

Admits Faking Store Robbery

Super Market Mgr. Charged as Embezzler

The manager of a Waterford Township super market has been charged with embezzlement after admitting to sheriff's detectives that he was not kidnaped and robbed of the store's receipts Jan. 19.

The charge was brought against Ronald J. Cutler, 25, manager, of the Food Town Market, M59 and Williams Lake Road, after he admitted in a statement to the county prosecutor's office that his abduction was a fake.

France Wins; Britain Out of Common Mart

Intervention by U. S. in Negotiations Fails to Overcome Opposition

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Efforts to keep alive Britain's bid to enter the Common Market failed today despite a last-minute intervention by President Kennedy's administration.

Five of the six Common Market countries fought on Birtain's behalf but were unable to overcome France's opposition.

As the negotiating ministers for the six Common Market countries recessed for lunch, West German Economic Minister Ludwig Erhard told reporters:

"The negotiations are over. They have failed. We will come together again this afternoon, but no progress at all has been made. The five are still in agreement that Britain should be brought into the Common Market but they cannot convince France."

★ ★ ★

Just before the ministers met, U.S. Ambassador John Tuthill had handed Erhard a statement expressing the U.S. government's concern at the bitter dispute ragging among France and the other five members of the European Economic Community—West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands, Italy and Luxembourg.

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials said today that France's blocking of Britain from the Common Market is a serious blow to the European unity movement but that it cannot be permitted to wreck the drive for unification.

Similar statements were understood to have been delivered by U.S. envoys in all capitals of the Common Market nations and in Britain.

JFK'S THOUGHTS

American sources declined to say whether the communication was written by Kennedy, but it was understood that it clearly carried the tamp of the President's thinking.

★ ★ ★

The American intervention reflected Washington's concern at abrasive argument touched off by French President Charles de Gaulle in his pursuit of a dream of a new, French-led Europe, with American as well as British influence reduced.

Diplomats favoring the British cause said the French action threatened grave repercussions on the political, economic and defense arrangements of the entire Western Alliance.

They decided to seek to place a statement on the record in the afternoon session fixing responsibility for the crisis on the shoulders of the French.

★ ★ ★

Finally it was anticipated the British would be brought into the council room and told that their hopes have been dashed.

Mrs. Arlene Tebbenjohanns

Heads for Parole Hearing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An attractive German divorcee who professes love for Dr. Sam Sheppard, the Cleveland wife slayer, headed for his parole hearing today with a Boston attorney who hopes to free him from prison.

Blonde Ariane Tebbenjohanns, 33, who says she wants to marry Sheppard, was to drive here from Cleveland with attorney F. Lee Bailey. Bailey has represented Sheppard in other recent attempts to free him from the Marion correctional institution where he is serving a life term for the 1954 bludgeon killing of his pregnant wife, Marilyn.

★ ★ ★

"Sam didn't do it. He's just taking the blame for someone else," Mrs. Tebbenjohanns said Monday night in Cleveland. She has been staying there at the home of Sheppard's brother, Dr. Stephen Sheppard, since arriving in this country three weeks ago.

MOTHER OF ONE

Mrs. Tebbenjohanns, mother of a 9-year-old daughter, said she has been writing Sheppard since 1960. Last week, they met for the first time at the Marion institution. Dr. Sam's brother was quoted in a Chicago Tribune story as saying: "You couldn't exactly call it love at first sight because they already were in love. But each found in the other all that they expected."

The hearing today involved a petition to have Sheppard's life sentence commuted, which would make him eligible for immediate parole. Otherwise, he will not be eligible until June 30, 1965.

★ ★ ★

William J. Ensign, executive secretary of the Ohio Pardon and Parole Commission, said Sheppard would not attend the meeting.

★ ★ ★

Sheppard's family helped the romance along by relaying Dr. Sam's replies to the woman's home at Duesseldorf, Germany. He could not mail his letters directly at the time because of prison rules.

Death Takes Beloved Poet

Not since the era of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow had an American poet won such universal acclaim.

The man who had been left fatherless at 11, worked at odd jobs, and studied a few months at Dartmouth College, found himself in later life an idol of literati, a favorite on college campuses across the nation. More than a score of colleges and universities gave him honorary degrees.

If Frost conformed to anything, it was to the admonition of a British poet, Rudyard Kipling; to ". . . talk with crowds and keep your virture, or walk with kings, nor lose the common touch."

Democrats Bringing Pressure for Action

LANSING (AP) — Democratic legislative leaders — agreeing with Gov. George Romney on the need for an action - packed session — warned last night that they planned to bring pressure for early action on Aid to Dependent Children of the Unemployed.

In both the House and the Senate, Democratic minority leaders served notice they planned to call for discharge of Republican - controlled committees from consideration of ADC-U bills if they are not reported to the floor for debate by the end of January.

The move apparently was calculated to embarrass GOP lawmakers, but the Democrats wound up with red faces themselves.

★ ★ ★

SERVE NOTICE

"I want to serve notice today," each said, "that if action is not taken on this urgently needed program before the end of January, I will personally move to discharge the appropriate committee from further consideration of the bill."

★ ★ ★

But after Kowalski made his speech, he discovered that the bill had not yet been introduced in the House.

And in the Senate, Sen. Frank Beadle, R-St. Clair, pointed out that although there was an ADC-U bill assigned to the Health and Welfare Committee, under the constitution bills cannot be passed until they have been printed and in the possession of the lawmakers of each house at least five days.

The Senate bill has not yet been printed.

Kowalski explained his demand for the ADC-U bill to be reported out of committee — even before it was introduced — even the result of a mix-up in signals.

"I goofed," he said. "It happens in the best of families."

Kowalski said Rep. John Sobieski, D-Detroit, had planned to introduce the ADC-U bill last week but didn't have the time. The Democratic leader said his error was in failing to check with Sobieski before making his speech.

BILL IS READY

Kowalski said the ADC-U bill is ready, however, and would be filed today — hopefully with joint sponsorship by Republican House members.

★ ★ ★

Referring to Romney's State-of-the-State message, both Kowalski and Blondy declared:

"Gov. Romney . . . recommended a course of action that we Democrats have long advocated for the legislature — an action - packed session. So far we have not seen any clues that the Republican leadership in control of this legislature is going to make this an action-packed session."

The Democratic leaders said that in rejecting a similar measure twice previously, the legislature cost Michigan taxpayers many millions of dollars.

★ ★ ★

"Each additional day that passes without action," they observed, "costs our taxpayers approximately $50,000."

★ ★ ★

Under ADC-U, the federal government would share the cost of welfare benefits with the state.

Romney Demands Fraud Explanation

with him in the news conference, said the central figure in the case was William D. MacCullough, a former Gospel minister, who by coincidence died last July on the very day his alleged fraud first was detected.

MacCullough, evidence shows, fleeced the state by creating 17 or 18 fictitious companies and then, after obtaining false social security cards, collected unemployment benefits in the names of some 70 nonexistent "workers" laid off by the firms.

Campbell said MacCullough had paid an estimated $15,000 in unemployment compensation taxes under the firms' names, to qualify their "employes" to collect benefits when laid off.

The scheme apparently began in 1958 and was a success until he died of an apparent heart attack last July. Whether MacCullough worked it alone or had accomplices — perhaps even "inside the MESC" — are matters still being investigated, Campbell said.

Both he and Romney implied, in disclosing details of the case, that it might balloon into a fraud of even greater proportions than already determined.

Campbell said neither he nor any other members of the commission could recall a similar case in Michigan.

The angry governor said that after learning of the case from his unidentified sources, he called in Horton for an explanation yesterday.

He quoted Horton as saying he had learned of the case himself only two weeks ago, although the investigation by the MESC's office has been under way since October.

Sniper Victim Buried in Troy

Police Tracking Down Over 300 Tips

Mrs. Mary Godfrey, a 38-year-old mother of five, was laid to rest in the cemetery following services at the Bell Chapel of the William R. Hamilton Co. in Birmingham.

Meanwhile, Bloomfield Township police were receiving assistance from several other law enforcement agencies in tracking down more than 300 tips which had poured into the police station by this morning.

State police picked up two suspects, one of them a youth found shooting a .22 caliber rifle in Sterling Township yesterday. Both suspects have been released.

Center Line state police said today the Sterling Township youth was cleared after a comparison of his rifle with the 22-caliber bullet which killed Mrs. Godfrey. One of the youth's shots went through a window during a target practice session.

Besides state police, Bloomfield Township Police Chief Norman Dehnke said his department also is being aided by officers from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Bloomfield Hills, Troy, Birmingham and Detroit.

"We expect to get help from other neighboring departments today," Dehnke said.

He said that most of the approximately 30 guns picked up in Mrs. Godfrey's neighborhood during the past day have been checked.

"None so far has been identified as the murder weapon," Dehnke explained.

Working on the theory that the killer is a mentally disturbed youth, detectives from area departments yesterday contacted local high school counselors to locate possible suspects.

Police Uncover Escapee Here

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

He offered no resistence to arresting officers, headed by Lt. William Nesbitt. He was taken into custody at 9:45 a.m.

Gonzales ordered Heiake to drive him to Pontiac.

Gonzales was sentenced to prison last November for breaking into the South Side Pool Room, 161 South Boulevard, in October.

since August and an employe of the grocery chain for four years, told police he made up the story of the armed robbery to cover shortages in the firm's books.

On Jan. 19 Cutler, 5168 Drayton Road, Waterford Township, reported to police in Berkley that he was made to drive to that southern Oakland County city by an armed bandit.

The bandit, he said at that time, confronted him as he left the Waterford Township store to deposit $6,000 in cash and $3,000 in checks.

Detectives Ray Bills and Gerald Gaedt said that there was never a total of $9,000.

★ ★ ★

They explained that Cutler did have about $3,000 in checks but, according to Cutler's own admission, there was only about $1,000 in the bag.

★ ★ ★

DENIES CHARGE

Baker, 7863 Elizabeth Lake Rd., Union Lake, has denied all of Cutler's accusation. He is being held in the Oakland County Jail.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

He was bound over to Circuit Court for arraignment Monday. Cutler was released on $100 bond.

Police said Cutler planned the kidnapping story because he had taken about $3,200 of the market's funds since last August and was unable to cover the loss.

Detective Bills said that Cutler told them that he pocketed small amounts at first but as time went by the amounts got larger.

★ ★ ★

"He finally became desparate," Bills said, "and staged the phony holdup, believing that it would account for the shortage."

Police yesterday recovered $1,000 that was buried in a snowbank in Cutler's front yard. It had been wrapped in aluminum foil.

Also located were all the checks that Cutler had said were stolen. They were found under snow in a field adjacent to a parking lot where Cutler had told police that he was freed by the bandit.

★ ★ ★

Police said Cutler tossed them there just before he called police to report the robbery.

Still missing is the $2,000 that Cutler said he gave to Baker.

Courthouse Lot Leasing Illegal

Oakland County Circuit Judge Stanton G. Dondero yesterday ruled that the county's leasing of its old courthouse site in downtown Pontiac for a free parking lot was illegal.

Judge Dondero set aside the Nov. 19 lease between the county and the Downtown Pontiac Business Association (DPBA).

The ruling is effective immediately.

But county officials today wouldn't say when they intend to close the parking lot. They're waiting for a copy of the judge's ruling.

In a four-page written opinion, the judge said the lease was "an attempt by county officials to lend their aid to private business enterprise without obtaining a market rental on the property."

The DPBA was enjoined from putting its lease into effect and from continuing possession of the property at the southwest corner of Huron and Saginaw streets.

The site has been used for free parking since Circuit Judge Frederick C. Ziem lifted his temporary injunction against the lease on Dec. 17.

Judge Dondero said that "merely opening a lot to free parking for those who wish to use it is not such a use as to bring it witin the general definition of county benefit or benefit to the general public."

The lease was for the benefit of the downtown merchants, he said, and therefore constituted a lending of government aid to a private corporation within the meaning of a constitutional prohibition.

The lease, for a rental of $1 for a six-month period, was sought by the DPBA to boost business in the downtown area.

Library Millage Proposal Set for April 1 Election

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — A one-mill tax proposal for operation of a new township library will be on the ballot in the April 1 election.

The expected move was made official yesterday when a group of local residents presented a petition, asking for the millage proposition, at the Township Hall.

Under state law, Township Clerk DeLoris V. Little said the board must place a proposition on the ballot if 50 or more township residents sign the petition.

Actually, voters in the April 1 election will decide on two proposals regarding the library issue.

One will be the question concerning the one-mill tax increase and the second will be a proposal to exceed the township's 15-mill tax limitation.

★ ★ ★

It will be necessary to exceed the state-imposed limitation in order to provide funds for the library.

A second election is expected to be held next summer. At that time, voters will be asked to approve a bond issue for construction of a library building.

A hearing of necessity for the Cummings relief sewer project was approved for Feb. 25 by Birmingham city commissioners last night.

Commissioners also heard City Engineer William T. Killeen's report on his department's activities for 1962. He pointed out that total construction cost for projects amounted to $162,554 as compared to $407,581 for 1961 and $344,520 for 1960.

The reason for this he said was "that there was practically no paving program and no other larger projects" last year.

Mrs. William Hopson

Service for Mrs. William (Linda) Hopson, 84, of 1437 Pierce St., Birmingham, will be 1 p.m. Friday at the Manley Bailey Funeral Home. Burial will follow in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Hopson died today in the Bloomfield Hospital after a brief illness. Eastern Star Memorial service will be 8 p.m. Thursday at the funeral home.

She was a life member of Birmingham Chapter No. 220, Order of the Eastern Star.

High Court Eyes City's 1st Renewal Plea

He appealed a Circuit Court verdict that said the city's project R20 was a necessity.

★ ★ ★

Cooney also is appealing condemnation awards to some of the 12 property owners he represented.

The appeal is expected to delay portions of the R20 urban renewal project for several more months.

A jury of 11 women and one man decided the project was necessary on Dec. 19 and awarded a total of nearly $1.1 million to property owners affected by the condemnation.

★ ★ ★

ordinating the party's statewide campaign to win the spring election and passage of the proposed new state constitution "will monopolize all of my working time."

Gibbs, executive assistant to George Van Peursem for the last 18 months, was previously executive secretary of the Oakland County Republican organization for four years.

GIBBS ASSISTED

Elliott was Oakland County Republican chairman from 1957 to 1961. Gibbs was, in effect, his assistant.

★ ★ ★

Elliott, named Jan. 12 by Romney as one of three qualified candidates for the post, is considered the front runner for the post, but Gibbs' backers claim he has strong support throughout the state.

Elliott was considered "Romney's choice" for the party leadership after he was given a temporary position as special assistant in the governor's office last month.

Romney has since said he desires an open convention on the matter.

★ ★ ★

Gibbs is scheduled to give the keynote address at the Macomb County Republican convention tomorrow night, but Lyle said he hoped Gibbs would be able to stop at the Oakland convention at Pontiac Northern High School for a few minutes.

Gantt Begins Life at Clemson

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Harvey Gantt, first Negro to be enrolled at historic Clemson College, learns the ways of campus life today after spending his first night in what was once an all-white dormitory.

The routine orientation course called for the 20-year-old son of a shipyard worker from Charleston to mingle with other new students and transfer students. The briefings were designed to acquaint newcomers with the geography, rules and customs of the school.

This was Gantt's first experience in the normal student-to-student relationship: The routine of orientation today, signing up for individual classes Wednesday, and Thursday's free hours before classes start on Friday.

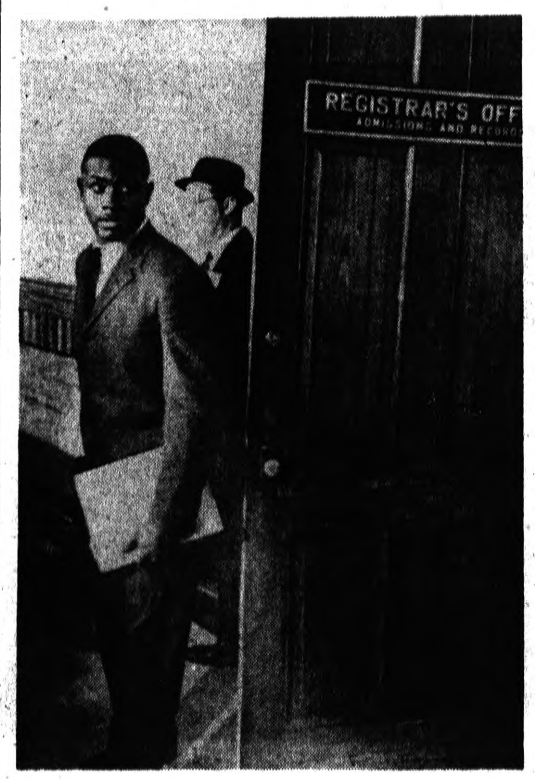
When Gantt enrolled Monday, police covered the campus and its environs carefully, and as many as 150 reporters and photographers dogged his steps. Uniformed patrolmen manned all campus entrances on the watch for troublemakers.

ONLY MINOR INCIDENTS

The soft-spoken youth had little chance to enter into normal relationships with other students.

The atmosphere was quiet, marked by only two minor incidents. Three tires were slashed on the highway patrol cars. Two men accused of making threatening remarks were removed from the campus by police.

Despite the calm, restrictions were tight during the night. Newsmen were barred from the campus after 7:30 p.m. Only persons with homes or offices on the rolling 400-acre school grounds could venture abroad without being turned back by police or college security forces.



AP Photofax

Gantt Completes Registration

On the surface, Gantt was being treated by students and college officials as just another newcomer.

★ ★ ★

Gantt dined alone Monday night at a table for six in the huge student cafeteria, which seats 2,000. The noisy buzz of conversation and the clatter of knives and forks subsided briefly as he entered.

SOME STOP TO CHAT

South Carolina was the last state in the nation to integrate its public schools on any level.

Gantt, who transferred here from Iowa State University where he had a white roommate, apparently will room alone in a dormitory populated largely by graduate and foreign students.

He has said he hopes to make friends, but is here "to get an education."

DETROIT (AP) — The Michigan Bell Telephone Co.'s board of directors Monday named Ferry B. Allen vice president, secretary and treasurer to succeed Henry W. Goodman who will retire Feb. 28 after more than 38 years with the company.

Downward Move Noted

Advancing Stocks Turn Mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — After six straight daily advances, the stock market turned mixed in early trading today.

Changes of most key stocks were fractional. The market's tendency seemed to be slightly downward on balance.

While record earnings for such giants as General Motors and Du Pont were the hallmark of yesterday's rallying market, the atmosphere was not so inspiring today.

Additionally, the decline in steel production — although it was ascribed to severe weather conditions — was the first in four weeks. Most steel shares took light losses. U.S. Steel was off a fraction.

GM in early trading equaled yesterday's historic high of 63¼, then erased the fractional gain and eased. Other motor stocks were unchanged to lower, Ford and Chrysler taking small losses.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were irregularly lower. Most changes were narrow. Gainers included Aerojet - General, Brazilian Traction, Giannini Controls and Pyle National.

'People Oppose Cutting Taxes'

Rep. Griffiths Reveals Poll in Her District

WASHINGTON (AP)—Michigan's Democratic congresswoman has told the chairman of President Kennedy's economic advisers that 62 per cent of the persons who replied to a questionnaire she sent out in her district urged her, "Don't cut the taxes."

Rep. Martha W. Griffiths told chairman Walter W. Heller yesterday that the "don't cut taxes" plea was volunteered since the questionnaire did not ask whether the recipients favored a cut, but only what they would do with any additional take-home pay.

"You talk about a $6-billion tax cut, and to every housewife in America that means she can buy a mink stole, at least," Mrs. Griffiths said. "Then they find out it means $8.33 more in the pay check every other week, and they say, 'skip it. You'd better pay the bills'."

Heller, arguing before the Senate-House Economic Committee, said that such an increase in take-home pay amounted to more than $200 a year. He said most of it would be spent "consciously or unconsciously," and would have its effect on the general economy.

"I believe even a mink stole could be bought on such a pay increase, if the terms were easy enough," he added. "Of course, I'm not advocating this."

Heller said evidently many Americans don't understand "the relation of their spending to the stimulation of the economy."

Heller acknowledged there is wide concern over deficits, but he said the President's tax cut program would hasten the day of balanced budgets.

He told the Senate-House Economic Committee that the administration expects the budget to balance about 1966 or 1967.
