Dulles Talk Arouses Storm

French Furious Over Ultimatum on Joining EDC

British Papers Slam the Blunt Warning Given by Secretary

PARIS (AP)—The NATO Council of Ministers heard more discussion today of Europe's political situation amid a storm of protest aroused by U. S. Secretary of State Dulles' warning that France must ratify the European army pact soon or face a U. S. "reappraisal" of its European policies.

French officials were reported furious over Dulles' blunt remarks, which implied that any reappraisal might involve a shift of U. S. troops and aid from the European continent. Paris newspapers termed his statement a "brutal ultimatum."

In London, British newspapers of varying political shades also sharply criticized the remarks as "folly" and "best left unsaid."

Most officials were guarded or refused comment on Dulles' declaration, though Italian Premier Giuseppe Pella termed it "a very courageous statement." Dutch Foreign Minister J. W. Beyen called it "very important." British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden declined to comment.

"I have nothing at all to say," snapped French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault.

Dulles spoke yesterday to a news conference after addressing the opening meeting of the NATO Council gathering. Informants said he made the same points to the council.

In the strongest language yet heard at an NATO meeting, the secretary of state warned:

1. Unless the European Defense Community Treaty is ratified quickly, the United States will have to "re-study" how to implement its obligations to NATO, and the disposition of U.S. troops "would, of course, be a factor in the agonizing reappraisal."

2. If the Western nations, "es-

UMT Would Take Youths Not Drafted in New Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most members of Congress who expressed themselves today on a presidential commission's recommendation for a military manpower policy recoiled from its central idea—universal military training for youths not drafted.

The National Security Training Commission said yesterday in a special report to President Eisenhower that UMT could be put into effect by January 1955, or earlier, operating simultaneously with the draft. The plan would require congressional approval.

The commission proposed a lottery to determine whether a youth would get six months training or be required to serve two years as a draftee.

The group said the program, while not achieving absolute equality, at least would avoid what it called the present unfair situation in which veterans are the only reservists available to be called up in a sudden war emergency.

Under the proposed UMT program, the trainees would be called ahead of veterans.

The commission contended its program also might save money by permitting a reduction in the regular military forces, and might help deter war by setting up a steady program of long-term preparedness.

However, the arguments apparently made little impression on most members of Congress available in Washington for comment.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. said flatly, "I don't think the program would have much chance." He added that "Congress has already said the draft and UMT should not operate concurrently."

Rep. Short (R-Mo), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, which would have to act on a UMT bill, declared, "I am opposed to UMT. It won't work."

Italian Workers Striking Again

But Employes in Some Areas Ignore Calls for Nationwide Walkout

ROME (AP)—Millions of Italian workers threw another sharp strike punch today in their running battle for higher pay, but in some areas large numbers ignored the call for a 24-hour, nationwide walkout of industrial, construction and utilities workers.

Police said they picked up "a few" people for causing disturbances in buses but released them later. Otherwise no violence was reported.

It was the second nationwide strike in five days and the third of a fall and winter union offensive. The walkouts only last 24 hours because neither workers nor their unions have money for a long strike.

Both Communist and non-Communist unions claimed the strike was nearly 100 per cent effective, but many holes in the labor front were reported.

Slippery Roads in County Cause 12 Auto Crashes

Slush and 3-Inch Snow Make Driving Perilous; Cold Weather to Stay

Slush was blamed for a dozen traffic accidents in the Pontiac area Monday as an all-day snowfall dumped three inches of snow on local roads.

Only a few motorists were injured — none seriously— in the auto mishaps, police reported.

Five vehicles were strewn about U.S.10 near Oak Hill road Monday morning after a car and truck collided. Three other cars, trying to avoid the two, skidded into ditches.

But falling temperatures hardened slush into ice today—and the U.S. Weather Bureau said the chill was here to stay.

The mercury will drop to 20 or 24 degrees tonight, inching up to 26 to 30 degrees Wednesday, with light snow tonight and flurries tomorrow.

Northerly winds of 10 or 12 miles an hour should shift to the east Wednesday, the weather bureau said.

The mercury hovered near freezing most of Monday, with a high of 36 degrees and low of 32 recorded in downtown Pontiac. But it fell steadily during the night and early morning, dropping from 25 degrees at 6 a.m. to 23 at 8 a.m. and 22 at 9 a.m. It climbed back to 25 degrees at 2 p.m. today.

Snow falling steadily from dawn to dusk Monday piled up 3.2 inches. But fairly warm temperatures, warm earth beneath and churning auto wheels melted it down to seas of slush that plagued pedestrians, motorists and street clearance crews.

Michigan, however, came away from the season's sloppiest day with not a single motorist reported killed in a traffic accident.

Joseph W. Gardulski, 72, of Detroit, died of a heart attack after his car skidded on slippery U.S. 27 and overturned near Gaylord. Witnesses said Gardulski collapsed

Envoy Rejects Peace Talk Plea

Dean on Way to U. S. to Report on Disrupted Korean Parley

TOKYO (AP)—U. S. envoy Arthur H. Dean arrived today en route to Washington after bluntly rejecting a Communist proposal for immediate resumption of negotiations to set up a Korean peace conference.

The State Department envoy has wrangled for seven weeks with the Red diplomats at Panmunjom.

He says he won't return to the conference table unless the Communists retract charges that the United States connived with South Korea to release 27,000 anti-Red war prisoners last June.

Dean broke off the talks Saturday.

A Communist note delivered early Tuesday suggested immediate resumption of negotiations. But an Allied spokesman said the note also repeated "the Red charge of perfidy."

It drew a prompt rejection.

"I shall not be with you . . . at any time until you make an appropriate retraction or correction of this insult in a manner satisfactory to my government," Dean wrote in his reply.

Charged in Shooting of Husband, Woman

Mrs. Wanda Williams, 22, was charged with felonious assault today for the shooting of her husband and another woman Saturday in a warrant approved by Oakland County Prosecutor Frederick C. Ziem.

She is scheduled to be arraigned today before Royal Oak Township Justice Richard Broder.

Mrs. Williams, of 624 E. Lincoln St., Royal Oak Township, has been held in Oakland County Jail since shooting her husband, R. B. Williams, 21, and Mrs. Bertha Cunningham, 31, of 3521 Harrison St., Detroit.

The two are in good condition in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. Mrs. Williams told police she held the victims for two hours and didn't fire until her husband said, "Go ahead and shoot."

Believes Money Could Be Saved by Credit Bonds

State Treasurer Airs Views Prior to Bid on Mackinac Securities

LANSING (AP) — State Treasurer D. Hale Brake today raised strong objections to the method of financing the proposed Mackinac Bridge, for which bond bids will be taken Thursday.

Brake voiced his criticisms at a meeting of the State Administrative Board called to receive a briefing on the bond issue proposal. The bond sale must be approved by the board before the $99,800,000 bridge can be built.

Brake said he computed that the total cost of the bridge and the interest payments would come to $193,882,000.

He said that if the state issued bonds backed by the credit of the state after a popular vote of the people, the bridge could be built and financed for $129,195,000, or a saving of $64,000,000.

The present financing plan provides for revenue bonds not backed by state credit.

"I raise the question," Brake said, "whether we are justified in taking the position that the public will not approve this bridge and therefore we should go ahead and build it anyway.

"I am not convinced that this could not be sold to the people.

"We must admit that if these bridge bonds go sour, the Legislature will have to step in and back them with state credit because we simply can't have a state agency in default."

Brake said "I just can't see this waste of money. These financing costs are out of all reason. I am not saying whether I will vote for or against it, but I don't like this."

Gov. Williams implied that Brake was opposed to the bridge proposal and Blake retorted: "I am not against the bridge. We are going to have to built it. There is no question of it."

Former U.S. Sen. Prentiss M. Brown, chairman of the board of Detroit Edison Co. and chairman of the Mackinac Straits Bridge Authority, told Brake:

"The bridge will not cost the Body on Way to Pontiac

C. of C. Salutes Ex-POW for Faith in Democracy

M. Sgt. Martin A. Strahan, who died Sunday of a heart condition contracted in a Red Korean prison camp, was saluted today for his unflinching faith in democracy during his 37-month imprisonment.

In a letter to Strahan's mother, Mrs. William Larson of 566 Lenox Ave., John W. Hirlinger, assistant manager of the Pontiac Chamber of Commerce, expressed sympathy on behalf of the C. of C. and "every member of the Pontiac community."

Hirlinger said Sgt. Strahan "proved himself a true man and a true American by maintaining inviolate his love of freedom. He was able to withstand, for 37 months, the worst his captors could inflict.

"In these days, when our hearts are concerned for the 22 confused American boys who appear to have succumbed to the Communist line, the experience of your son is most heartening.

"We honor the memory of your son. We believe that this example will strengthen us all in our love for America, and our determination to maintain the American way of life."

Hirlinger's letter reached Mrs. Larson today, as the body of her son was being readied for return to Pontiac from Great Lakes, Ill.

Funeral arrangements for the 36-year-old soldier, the first American captured in the Korean War, are being delayed until it is learned whether his brother, Arthur, 23, will be able to return from Korea for the service.

Sgt. Strahan's body will lie in state tonight at the Voorhees-Siple Funeral Home. Burial, with full military honors, will be in Perry Mount Park veterans' plot, according to the Oakland County Office of Veterans Affairs.

Sgt. Strahan was admitted to the Great Lakes Naval Hospital Nov. 25 with a heart condition resulting from beriberi, which he presumably contracted during his 37-month imprisonment.

Beriberi is caused by dietary deficiencies, and it was known that he had been kept on a starvation diet at various times after his capture July 5, 1950, near Osan, just 10 hours after his unit went into combat for the first time.

Banker Indicted at West Branch

Charge D. E. Tolfree Sanctioned $1 Million Overdraft

WEST BRANCH (AP)—D. Eugene Tolfree, 59, was indicted today for fraud in allegedly permitting an overdraft of about $1,200,000 in his private bank. The bank collapsed in 1951.

Tolfree, now in California, was indicted by Circuit Judge Herman Dehnke, who is conducting a one-man grand jury investigation of the bank's failure.

Dehnke said he did not know if the state would seek to extradite the former banker.

The indictment charges Tolfree with accepting deposits until July, 27, 1951, the day the bank closed. Dehnke charged Tolfre knew of the bank's insolvent condition but kept on accepting deposits.

Dehnke and Special Prosecutor John Watkins charged an overdraft of about $1,200,000 by Keith Young, now of Clearwater, Fla., was mainly responsible for the collapse of Tolfree's commercial bank.

One witness against Tolfree is expected to be J. Otis Mutch, a Sterling, Mich. oilman, who has filed suit to recover $102,300 which he reportedly lent to Tolfree and Young.

Mutch testified in bankruptcy court that:

"In late June and early July of 1951, weeks before the bank closed, Tolfree told me that Keith Young had bankrupted him."

Young, a former West Branch builder, now operates a sports goods store in Clearwater.

There was only $148.17 in the cash drawer when the bank collapsed. Claims against the bank amounted to almost $2,000,000, while accounts receivable totaled only $855,138.

Drunk Drivers Going to Jail

Judge Finnegan Warns They Will See Holidays From Behind Bars

Every motorist arrested on a drunk or reckless driving charge during the Christmas and New Year holidays will receive a sentence in Oakland County Jail as well as a fine Pontiac Judge Maurice E. Finnegan warned today.

He said that the jail-fine sentence is already in effect.

"I don't wish to make an example out of anyone appearing in court, but it is important that someone safeguard the lives of the innocent pedestrian and the law-abiding driver," Finnegan said.

The judge said if drivers "feel like drinking they should stay indoors until they have sobered up."

The judge said this "celebrating behind the wheel of a vehicle" will not be tolerated in Pontiac.

Reds Trying to Eliminate Christmas in East Europe

VIENNA (AP) — It looks like this is going to be the most miserable Christmas yet for 70 million East Europeans living behind the Iron Curtain.

No Santa Claus, no Christmas trees, few presents, nothing special to eat.

Almost everywhere in Eastern Europe, Christmas used to be the great Christian festival of the year. Now the Communists are doing their best to wipe it out.

In fact, families who make a point of observing the traditional festivities will run the risk of trouble with the Reds.

There will be no problem for millions of parents in choosing toys that will suit junior best. First of all, the exchange of gifts is frowned upon. Second, the Communists admit that what toys there are are likely to fall apart.

There may be community parties for the kids, but they will be on New Year's Day instead of Christmas. And a typical party game they will play in Poland is called "How well do you know the six-year plan?"

Christmas trees, with red stars instead of angels on top of them, have new names. They are called "winter trees," or "trees of the republic," or "New Year's trees."

Santa Claus and all his equivalents have disappeared. Now it's "Grandfather Frost," who comes by special express train from Moscow. Kids think of "Grandfather" in Russia, instead of Santa at the North Pole.

Czechoslovakia's President Antonin Zapotocky summed up the new attitude on Christmas behind the Iron Curtain:

"The story of the birth of the Christ child is only an exploiters' myth . . . Times have changed. The little Jesus has grown up and now is Grandfather Frost. He no longer is in tatters and naked, but well dressed in a fur hat and coat."

In Poland, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria, Communist leaders have made identical statements. What they mean is that throughout all East Europe — predominantly Roman Catholic—the religious significance of the holiday is being suppressed and a drive is under way to eliminate it entirely. The aim is to substitute New Year's Day as a celebration of the economic planning year.

Any Gift Chosen With Thoughtfulness for the Home Is One for Whole Family

By JANET ODELL

A gift for the home is a gift for the entire family. The stores are full of articles that will make for more gracious or more comfortable living.

Pillows rank high in usefulness. The six-way pillow allows the user to recline in any position with the greatest of ease. These pillows come in a variety of shades to match the color of any room.

Foam rubber sofa pillows with washable zip-on covers are found in 17 different colors.

Hassocks are shown in all sizes, shapes and prices. The ones interesting us the most were those that had a storage unit beneath a deeply cushioned top. One having a sloping top can be used in front of an arm chair to form a lounge chair.

Modern throw rugs are a work of art. Vividly colored in modern designs, these beautiful cotton rugs are worthy of a place under anyone's tree.

These same rugs, selling for $16.50 and $27.50 (depending on size), also are made in traditional patterns.

Shades of Great-Aunt Abigail! You can buy the same little folding Victorian rocker in mahogany that she sat in as a girl. The company which makes them has been doing so for years and years. This attractive antique replica is priced at $39.50.

Wrought iron seems to be in the home furnishing field to stay.

Give father a huge armchair and ottoman that together form a bed for guests; or give mother an amusing conversation piece for her living room. Some of the decorative pieces are gilded.

One of the newer card tables can be had with a needlepoint design on the top. For $8 this is an excellent gift for the homemaker whose house is furnished in traditional style.

So, when Christmas shopping, don't overlook the household gift — the gift for the entire family.

Wabeek-Jacobson Group Makes Another Proposal for Off-Street Parking Lot

From Our Birmingham Bureau

BIRMINGHAM — Following a two-hour criticism of a recent off-street parking proposal for the northwest quadrant of the city by officials of the Wabeek Corp. and Jacobsons, Inc., the City Commission last night revealed a new proposal from the same group.

The present chaotic condition in parking lots belonging to the two companies, due to inadequate controls and hardship to tenants of the Wabeek Building, has compelled a change to paid parking there, and help from police in maintaining these lots, the statement disclosed.

To afford relief as soon as possible, the Wabeek-Jacobson group offered to rough-surface a 60-car lot immediately north of the First Baptist Church on the west side of Bates and lease it to the city.

It would be for metered parking, and the three-year lease would call for an even split of the profits, with the city maintaining and policing the lot.

The Wabeek-Jacobson group would privately operate a lot with an undisclosed number of car spaces for all-day and hourly parking north of Willits, east of Bates and west of Woodward.

Representatives of the Residential Protective Assn. appeared to deliver their report on the former proposal of Wabeek-Jacobson for off-street parking in the northwest quadrant of the city.

Under the plan they studied, for $60,000 the city could lease a 445-car site in the same area as an experiment and decide, on the basis of its success, whether or not to proceed further.

George Devlin, vice president of National Garages of Detroit and parking consultant of the protective association, presented a 40-minute critique of the former plan before commissioners disclosed the new one.

He termed the plan altogether too ambitious both for the present and the future as far as bona fide shoppers are concerned. All-day parkers are the problem, he asserted.

He also opposed the city's committing itself to only one section of the city. "There is a definite parking need, but a program should be comprehensive and tied to the ultimate destination of the shopper," Devlin said.

He cited Woodward and Maple as traffic barriers which necessitate off-street parking in all the areas since people try to avoid crossing these streets.

Commissioners tentatively scheduled a special public meeting for tomorrow night to discuss the latest Wabeek-Jacobson plan.

POW's Sister Going to Japan

Hopes to See Brother Who's Among 22 Men Refusing Repatriation

TOKYO (AP)—The sister of an American war prisoner who chose communism prepared today to fly to Tokyo, where the mother of another unrepatriated American waited on the slim chance that she would get to see her son.

Myrtle Elaine Wilson of Urania, La., sent a radio message saying she was coming to Japan in hopes of seeing her brother, Cpl. Aaron Wilson, one of 22 Americans who stayed with the Communists.

The message was addressed to Mrs. Portia Howe of Alden, Minn., who flew here last week hoping to see and persuade her son, Pfc. Richard Tenneson, to come home.

* * *

There was no sign that the U. S. Defense Department has modified its ban on trips to Korea by relatives of the unrepatriated American prisoners.

Miss Wilson asked Mrs. Howe to send the following message to her brother:

"Hi Aaron, I'm coming to Japan in hopes that I can see you. I'll send you another message when I get in Japan. Please ask permission to see me. Mom and Dad are not able to make the trip. Both are in bad health. Please do as I say just once as I want to see you again. I'm praying for you.

(Signed) "Myrtle Elaine."

Miss Wilson did not say when she expected to arrive.

* * *

Mrs. Howe said tonight, "I have decided to stay in Tokyo until the last possible chance for my son to come home has gone." She added however she has given up hope of going to Korea.

She had reservations on a Northwest Airlines plane for both Wednesday and Saturday but said she had decided to cancel them because she wanted to wait until the expiration of the explanations period Dec. 23. Prisoners who have not returned home by then will not be repatriated, according to terms of the armistice.

* * *

"I have decided to stay until everything is finished," Mrs. Howe said in an interview. "I know that the hope of seeing my son is a very slim one—but still I cannot go back now.

"I don't feel my trip is a failure. I'm not going to give up. The whole object of my trip was to come out to try to help my son—believing that I was following directions of God. But if I stop short of the last possible minute, I have failed."

motorists any more than they are paying now for ferry service."

Brown said at least three straits ferries will have to be replaced soon.

The governor argued that "while there is economy through caution, there is also economy through enterprise."

He said prompt construction of the bridge would mean millions in revenue for the tourist industry.

John H. Nunneley, Detroit bond attorney, said that the state could refund the bonds at any time and make them full faith and credit bonds at substantial savings.

Brown conceded the state could save money by issuing full faith and credit bonds but he said he doubted whether the people would approve such a proposal.

"This is the best proposition we think can be made, taking every factor into consideration," Brown said.

The authority expects to receive a bid from a syndicate Thursday of about 4 per cent interest on nearly $80,000,000 of first lien bonds and 5¼ per cent on $20,000,000 of second lien bonds.

National Security Council to Examine Nixon Report

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Nixon has a briefcase full of probems, all studied at first hand, to spread before the National Security Council, perhaps today.

They deal with situations he examined in 70 days of travel and conversation with heads of government and plain citizens in Asia, the Middle East and the Pacific. These range from Australian unhappiness over some U.S. trade policies to the risks that a truce in Indochina would bring.

The council, composed of top officials of the executive department responsible for national policy at the highest level, has first call on Nixon's report on the trip that ended yesterday. Later this week and next he meets with congressional leaders and State Department officials.

Nixon said President Eisenhower would decide whether there is to be a radio-TV report to the nation. He had a preliminary talk with the president yesterday.

By regions, here are some of the problems on which Nixon is prepared to report to the National Security Council:

1. South Pacific-Australia and New Zealand, both strongly pro-American, are worried by what they call "discriminatory" trade restrictions against their wool and dairy products. Nixon promised to report their protests, with the reminder that domestic American politics had to be considered.

2. Far East—Nixon was told that Japan, bursting with a temporary economic boom, is about to reassert its leadership over Asia. Economically, however, the Japanese face the problem of developing greater new markets, to offset their dependence upon the areas now under Communist control.

3. Southeast Asia — The major problem is a growing French effort to settle a seven years' war with the Communist-led Vietminh forces through a negotiated truce, a movement spurred by the armistice in Korea. American officials on the spot say a truce now would open all of Indochina to the undisputed political influence of Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh, thereby jeopardizing all of rich Southeast Asia. All the pathways to this vital region are open to direct Chinese military power.

4. South Asia—The United States faces a basic decision in determining how to deal with India's Prime Minister Nehru, prime spokesman for the neutralism prevalent in this area.

Military aid to neighboring Pakistan, now being discussed, means risking Nehru's opposition.

5. Middle East—The major military weakness in this strategic stretch of the world is Iran. Aside from its pressing economic and political problems, this key country is difficult to defend, without a far greater military investment than is now being made.

Ferguson, Group to Talk Seaway Plan With Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) said today President Eisenhower will meet with a group of Middle Western businessmen, farm leaders and Congress members tomorrow to discuss the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway.

"We want to talk to the President about further steps in our effort to make U. S. participation in the seaway a reality instead of just a proposal," Ferguson said in a statement.

Section of Paddock Closed for 2 Days

Three blocks of Paddock street, from Mt. Clemens north to Michigan Ave., will be closed to all traffic today and tomorrow, according to K. B. Anderson, of the city engineering office.

The temporary closing is a safety measure during excavating incident to plans for building a new bridge over the Clinton.

Dies in Burning Truck

Deep Slush Cause of Minor Mishaps

after he and his wife were helped from the car.

In Pontiac, Lieut. Davy Gilpin of Pontiac Police Department, said Monday's accident record was "better than we expected." The only accident blamed on the weather happened at 240 S. Anderson St., where one auto skided into a parked car. No one was hurt.

Pontiac's Michigan State Police post chalked up five minor accidents Monday in which slush and snowy windshields played a part. A few motorists were injured, but none seriously.

Oakland County Undersheriff Donald O. Menzies had a similar report. He listed six minor accidents Monday, some in which cars simply skidded off the road into ditches. No injuries were reported.

Menzies commended Oakland County Road Commission for "a good job of clearing roads."

At county road commission offices, road clearing crews, who worked as long as 16 hours, checked out to get some sleep.

The road commission said 60 trucks were kept salting down highways all afternoon and all night.

Some outlying districts had snowplows out Monday to clear off drifting snow.

Pontiac Department of Public Works had two trucks salting city streets Monday afternoon and evening.

Dulles' Blunt Words Drawing Protests

pecially France and Germany," decide to commit suicide by failing to unite, "they may have to commit it alone."

Dulles' threats were aimed mainly at the French, who first proposed the EDC and then turned sour on the idea. They fear the pact, which would bring 12 West German divisions into a six-nation European army, would give German troops a new chance to invade France.

Yet many French leaders agree a European army including West Germans is necessary to defend Western Europe against Soviet attack.

Bidault reported on the Dulles statement at a meeting of the French Cabinet. There was no indication, however, of the ministers' reaction. The Foreign Minister and Premier Joseph Laniel also reported on the recent Big Three talks in Bermuda.

* * *

Although no official mention was made of the Dulles statement, French sources said privately that his remarks might reduce still further the chances that the National Assembly would ratify the EDC Treaty.

The secretary's blast also appeared aimed at Italy and Britain. The Italian government has threatened to hold up action on EDC until settlement of its dispute with Yugoslavia over Trieste. Britain has turned down French pleas that she ally herself unreservedly with the pact to prevent German dominance in the organization.

The right-wing Paris newspaper L'Aurore, normally pro-American, described Dulles' statement as "heartbreaking" and accused him of "a complete lack of diplomacy." L'Aurore declared: "France doesn't want to have to take orders from anybody."

In Britain, the Liberal Manchester Guardian commented: "It would be folly simply because of failure to agree immediately on arming Germany, to tear down the defenses which have been built in Europe since 1950. The suicide would be America's as much as Europe's."

Later in Paris, former Premier Edouard Daladier, a bitter opponent of the proposed European army, said the Dulles' declaration "strikes deeply at the French national sentiment. If Mr. Foster Dulles wants to give propaganda arms to the Communist party in France, he has certainly achieved his aim."

UMT Would Take Youths Not Drafted

Atomic Energy Committee and a member of the House Armed Services Committee, commented that with the increasing emphasis on atomic weapons "the need for large numbers of men in uniform is considerably lessened."

Sen. Duff (R-Pa.), however, said he is "in complete accord" with the commission report. He said it "imposes an obligation upon all citizens of military age, it distributes the burden in a fair way" and makes possible an effective reserve without the expense of big standing forces.

Some lawmakers who have favored UMT were not in Washington. However, others said privately they fear the 1954 session is the wrong time to bring it up. They pointed out that it is an election year and the legislative program already is crowded.

After the Korean truce was signed, President Eisenhower asked the commission to take a look at "inequities" in the method by which military reserves are set up and other manpower problems.

The commission's report made public yesterday was in response to this request.

Commission members who talked with the President yesterday said he did not indicate whether he would include a UMT bill in his 1954 legislative recommendations.

The trainees would have a 7½-year reserve obligation after their training ends, and would go into the ready reserve, the first to be called up in an emergency.

The draftees under the plan would have a six-year reserve period after their two years of military service but would be in the standby reserve, to be called only if the ready reserve is exhausted.

The report said from one to two million "fit and qualified men" will be available for UMT between now and 1960.

The report hammered hard at the argument that the present draft system is unfair. It said there are about 1,600,000 "fit young men" of military age who have not seen service now and that by 1960 this number will have increased to 2,200,000 even if the size of the armed forces is not cut.

About 2,500,000 of the 3,500,000 youths who became 18 between 1945 and the start of the Korean War saw no military service in that period, the report said, and yet 600,000 veterans of World War II had to be recalled involuntarily for service in Korea.

May Charge Romeo Woman in Shooting

A warrant for carrying concealed weapons may be issued against Miss Freddie Snow, 35, of 313 Dickerson, Romeo, by the Macomb County Prosecutor's Office today.

Det. Ray McConnell of the Romeo State Police Post unsuccessfully attempted to question Miss Snow in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Mt. Clemens, yesterday after she fired two shots in an ambulance carrying her from the scene of an auto accident outside of Romeo Saturday night.

She suffered a fractured leg and facial lacerations in the wreck and is in traction and under sedative, McConnell said.

"It may be a week or so before we can question her," he added.

McConnell conferred with Wendell Lichtenfelt, chief assistant prosecutor for Macomb County, yesterday and predicted that a warrant would be forthcoming today.

The gun Miss Snow fired was a .32 caliber revolver reported stolen from the Valarama Stables on 36-Mile road.

McConnell said the warrant would probably only charge her with carrying a concealed weapon. He plans to speak to the owner of the gun later today.

Crashes Car to Avoid Hitting 2 Pedestrians

A Waterford Township man, who drove his vehicle into a tree to avoid hitting two pedestrians, was treated for back bruises yesterday at Pontiac General Hospital.

Lloyd G. Kirby, 26, of 2245 Hedge St., was driving east on Hatchery Road near Maplecrest when he came up over a hill and saw two girls walking in the road. He swerved off the road to avoid them, striking the tree.

Plan Yule Party for 44 Patients at Polio Hospital

BIRMINGHAM—So that Christmas will be a little merrier for the 44 polio patients out at the Sister Kenny Hospital in Farmington, the Sister Kenny Anniversary Club has completed plans for a party there this Friday. It will be co-sponsored by the foundation's hospital committee.

A full program has been planned for the 36 children and 8 adults. The Birmingham Puppeteers will give their performance of "Little Red Riding Hood" and Eddie DeSantis, accordionist with a Detroit radio station, will play Christmas carols and requests.

Naturally, Santa Claus will be there to give out presents and will have as his helper the Christmas Queen from Crowley Milner's.

To make this a real party, the anniversary club board is asking that members or friends help to fill Santa's bag to the bulging point.

Gifts need not be brand new, it was pointed out, and may be taken before Dec. 18 to anyone of the following members: Mrs. Cyril Lewis, Walter H. Wakeman Jr. or Earl W. Parcells Jr.

Kalamazoo Hires Audit Trim for Department

KALAMAZOO (UP)—The Kalamazoo City Commission voted Monday night to hire a Chicago auditing firm "to determine the financial condition" of the City Light Department.

The commission voted $1,500 to hire price, waterhouse for the audit. Commissioner Henry Upjohn claims that the light department is costing the city money, but that current audits don't show it.

Judge Denies Defense Motions, Calls Jurors in Lapeer Trial

4 Are Charged in Eviction Case

Say Men Conspired to Resist Sheriff Ousting Elizabeth Stevens

LAPEER—Circuit Judge Timothy C. Quinn continued to call prospective jurors to the bench today in an effort to find a panel to try four men charged with conspiring to obstruct the eviction of a farm widow.

Judge Quinn denied three defense motions yesterday and had only selected 11 prospective jurors of 23 called before the bench from an array of 150 that jammed the courtroom.

The defense had presented three motions, one to disquality Special Prosecutor Carl Williams, one to obtain a change of venue and a third charging prejudice in jury selection.

Judge Quinn categorically denied the 14 grounds listed by defense counsel Clem Block of Grand Rapids to support the motions. He said that he found no irregularities.

Earlier he had denied another defense motion to quash the trial.

Jury selection continued through the roll call stage. Neither defense nor prosecution attorneys have had the opportunity yet to question jurors.

Defense has the peremptory right to challenge any juror and disqualify him from sitting on the panel.

The four defendants are charged with conspiring to resist an attempt by Sheriff Clark Gregory to evict the late Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens from her home in Clifford in 1952.

Ten men were originally charged in the conspiracy. Mrs. Stevens had lost her home in a public auction. The sale was to make up an assessment against her because of the failure of the Lapeer Mutual Fire Insurance Assn.

The four currently being tried are Clayton G. Gilliland of Detroit, Howard Abbott, 45, of Columbiaville, Harold Jarvis, 36, of Lapeer, and Floyd Schrieber, 60, of Almont.

Rochester School Bonds Before Voters Tomorrow

ROCHESTER — Voters of the Rochester Community School District will go to the polls tomorrow to decide their $1,800,000 school building bond issue.

Proposal number one on the ballot will ask for the millage to be increased 9.75 and proposal number two will ask permission of the voters to issue bonds to finance the project.

Outgrowth of a 10-week study by a citizens advisory committee, Wednesday's bond issue is the third placed before the district this year.

Two summer issues were defeated.

"We feel that the acute overcrowding in our school system can only be met by endorsing this bond issue," said Wallace Hodges, chairman of the citizens group.

The board of education, commending the citizens group for their extensive study, concurred with their findings and submitted the $1,800,000.

If approved, the bond issue would give:

1) An elementary addition to Baldwin School at Goodison.

2) An elementary addition to Hamlin School.

3) A new elementary school in northeast Rochester to be located on the 10-acre McGregor site.

4) Additional property for Avon School of John R. road.

5) Property in the Snell, Brush, Kline, Mt. Vernon section of the Rochester school district for a future elementary school.

In addition, the issue would provide a 50-acre high school site at the corner of Fifth St. and Livernois Rd. and a new high school on the site to accommodate 800 students.

In a break-down of the proposed issue, $600,000 would be used for elementary additions and site purchases; $1,140,000 for the high school construction, and $60,000 for the high school site.

Taking into consideration the 94 per cent tax collection record of this district, the bonds, although sold for a 20-year retirement program, would probably be paid off in less than 10 years, according to Hodges.

Voting places will be:

Precinct one: Oakland Township Hall, Goodison for voters north of Dutton and Meade Rds.

Elias Re-elected in Hazel Park

Still Choice for Mayor Despite Protest by One Council Member

HAZEL PARK — Despite continued sniping by Councilman Oscar Beamer, Hazel Park Council last night elected and swore in Louis Elias as mayor for a second time.

Beamer had charged that Elias was chosen and sworn in as mayor at a secret session Dec. 4 and thus was not legally the city's chief executive.

When last night's meeting began, Beamer challenged Elias, and Mayor-Pro-Tem Harold Young quickly took over. In a rapid three to one vote, Elias was again elected.

Elias, 39, is co-owner of three local drive-ins and is a stockholder in the Hazel Park race track. Beamer's opposition to him stems from his race track affiliation.

Other Councilmen backing Elias were Leonard Milligan and Joseph Vrable.

New Bay City Judge Is Leon R. Dardas, 38

BAY CITY (AP)—The nine-member Bay City commission has elected as its new municipal judge Leon R. Dardas, 38-year-old local attorney and World War II veteran.

Dardas was raised to the post yesterday by a 5-4 decision. He will take the bench Jan. 1 to serve an interim term until April 1955.

Judge Dardas succeeds former Municipal Judge David R. Louis who resigned last week to take over the post as Bay County circuit judge for a six-year term.

Keys to Parking Meters Are Stolen in Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—When the Syracuse Police Department's bureau of traffic and lighting workshop was broken into, among the articles taken were two keys which open every one of the city's 2,400 parking meters.

Police say they don't contemplate changing the locks, which would cost approximately $1.50 each—about $3,600.

ROCHESTER APPROVES BONDS FOR NEW SCHOOLS

(Will this be the headline after Wednesday's School Election?)

It will be, IF the parents of children now in Rochester's overcrowded schools want their children to have the education they deserve.

It will be, IF the residents of the Rochester School District have enough community pride to provide the adequate school facilities that are vitally needed.

It will be, IF all the people who want these needed new schools will get out and VOTE tomorrow instead of assuming that the issue will win without them.

It's up to you.

VOTE "YES" FOR NEW SCHOOLS

The plan was presented by the Citizens Committee after a study that took months. It has the full support of your Rochester Board of Education. It is a plan that Rochester voters can afford without hardship. All it needs is your VOTE in support of it.

You're proud of your community. Let's make it possible to be as proud of the facilities we provide for the education of our children.

VOTE "YES" TOMORROW for NEW SCHOOLS!

Senator Drops Canada Request

McCarron Doesn't Want to Mess Up Gouzenko Quiz by Jenner

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McCarran (D-Nev) said today he has withdrawn his request to sit in on the questioning by Senate investigators of Igor Gouzenko, former Soviet code clerk who tipped authorities off to the Red spy ring in Canada in 1945.

McCarran, senior Democrat on the Senate internal security subcommittee, said he had discussed with Chairman Jenner (R-Ind) the possibility of his accompanying Jenner, a committee investigator and court reporter to Canada to interview Gouzenko.

* * *

"Sen. Jenner said they had had a great deal of difficulty in arranging for the interview through the State Department and I didn't want to add to these difficulties by insisting that I accompany them," McCarran said.

* * *

The Nevada senator said he thinks Gouzenko may provide the committee with some valuable leads to Communists still operating inside the U. S. government.

Jenner has indicated the subcommittee wants to question Gouzenko about a man it previously identified as "Mr. X," a member of Adm. Ernest J. King's staff when he was U. S. fleet commander in chief during the last war.

Dr. Arthur G. Steinberg, a geneticist attached to a Boston hospital, has said he is "Mr. X" and has denied any Communist affiliations or that he ever gave any secret information to anyone.

Potter's Plan Sensible

Michigan's Junior Senator Potter has brought to President Eisenhower's attention a vital problem that would result from completion of the St. Lawrence Waterway.

It's the Senator's belief that one of the big obstacles to U. S. participation in seaway construction is fear of competition from foreign ships. In his conference with the President, Senator Potter pointed out that this fear was the basis of lake carrier opposition in the last Congress.

As the Senator says, foreign ships can be built and operated in the St. Lawrence trade for from 40 to 60 per cent of the costs to Canadian or American owners. The result would be that U. S.-Canadian water-borne trade would be taken over by foreign ships.

To prevent such a situation developing, Potter proposes a U. S.-Canadian treaty. This would limit water borne trade between the U. S. and Canada to ships of those countries. But it would not affect shipping between Great Lakes ports and foreign Nations.

★ ★ ★

This strikes us as down to earth common sense. Senator Potter's proposal not only should be welcomed by U. S. and Canadian ship operators, but should reduce further the strength of seaway opposition. It deserves, and no doubt will get, early White House and State Department study.

Bermuda Conference

In evaluating the Bermuda conference one must keep in mind what it was and was not intended to accomplish.

If such a conference is considered successful only if it produces much sensational news, the meeting at Tucker's Town was a disappointment. If announcement of some bold new policy is an essential, it was a flat failure.

★ ★ ★

But if, as we believe, the object was to give the three leaders a chance to discuss pressing problems in private, the time was well spent in Bermuda.

Evidence of this appeared in a communique issued in the names of President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Laniel. In their words the meeting "reinforced our solidarity, strengthened our resolve and fortified our hopes."

★ ★ ★

Though not specific, these phrases are important. Besides indicating that the Big Three had agreed on the stand to be taken in the Four Power conference in Berlin, there is a clear implication that Russia's attempt to split the West has failed.

The prime goal of U. S. foreign policy is to hold the free world together. The Bermuda conversations have contributed to that end.

Walkout at Panmunjom

There may be much more than meets the eye in the latest road block to successful arrangements for a Korean peace conference.

After weeks of stalling by the Reds, the Panmunjom talks were brought to a sudden halt when U. S. special Ambassador Arthur H. Dean decided he had had enough of insults and delay.

His walkout followed reading of a statement by Huang Hua, Chinese negotiator. It accused the U. S. of "perfidy" in plotting with South Korea in the release of 27,000 North Korean prisoners last June 18.

★ ★ ★

Long before this incident Dean reported the Reds were becoming increasingly rude and insolent at the conference table. Also there was no indication that either side would budge from its position on the role Russia should play in the Korean parley.

The Chinese want the Russians to attend as nonvoting "neutral observers." The U. N. stand is that Moscow can be represented only as a Communist belligerent bound by any treaty signed.

The facts seem to support Dean's suspicion that the Reds don't want any part now of the peace conference agreed on by the truce negotiators. It also is his belief that the Reds are doing all in their power to escape their responsibility under the armistice agreement for Korean unification.

Elsewhere the suspicion persists that under Russian direction the ground is being prepared for a Communist maneuver to force the West into a Five Power conference to include Red China. Goal of that, of course, would be a U. N. seat for Peiping.

★ ★ ★

As matters now stand the Korean parley is strictly up to the Reds. If they want to resume the so far fruitless negotiations, they'll have to notify Ambassador Dean and withdraw their insulting charge of "perfidy" against the United States.

If the trend to increasingly wider motion picture screens continues, before long theaters will be round houses with panoramic screens and moviegoers will be seated in revolving chairs.

Mrs. Rolland Fellows Says Irwin Avenue Is Perfect Place to Give Car Mud Bath

Have you been on the east end of Irwin Avenue lately? If not you should drive down and see what a lovely pool we have. If you would like to give your nice car a mud bath Irwin Avenue is the place to go. . . only be very careful. You might lose your car unless you drive on the sidewalk.

It seems to me that when nearly everybody in the block pays taxes we should have better road conditions. The country roads are better than the roads here in the city.

Our city should be very proud of such stree conditions. I don't know why something can't be done about this lovely pool and make it a decent road to drive on.

Press Reader Wonders at Delay in Reward

It was stated in this column recently that the two gentlemen who captured Donald O'Brian had not received the reward; that Mr. O'Brian had to be "apprehended and convicted" for the reward to be issued.

Does that mean that if this psychopathic sex maniac is admitted to a mental institution he will not be classed as "convicted"? Does that mean that the two brave men who risked their lives will not receive a penny?

If so is there any way to amend those words "apprehended" and "convicted"?

Inquisitive

Editor's note—It is true that O'Brian will not be classed as convicted. A person who is declared mentally incompetent is considered legally as not responsible for his actions. Payment of the reward has not yet been decided.

Dulles' Temperature Is Rising Higher as France Hedges and Stalls on NATO

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—The exasperation of the Eisenhower administration—in trying to get the French to join a single European army—reads like a fever chart.

Secretary of State Dulles, representing the administration, started out fairly warm. He was red hot yesterday in Paris where he warned the French:

* * *

If they don't join the single army soon, this country may pull its troops out of Europe. As he put it, this country would be forced to an "agonizing reappraisal" of its basic policies toward Europe.

* * *

Dulles showed his first signs of temperature last Jan. 27, six days after taking office. He said this country would have to do a "little re-thinking" if there seemed no chance for European unity.

He followed this up with a fast tour of Europe, returned, and on Feb. 12 said that unless there was concrete evidence of progress toward unity "future planning will be difficult."

* * *

This rolled off the French. They still didn't join the single army, although they're the ones who proposed it years ago. Since February President Eisenhower and Dulles have met with them several times, Dulles more than Eisenhower.

* * *

This month at Bermuda both sat down with French Premier Laniel and French Foreign Minister Bidault, together with Briton's Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden.

The Americans and British reportedly put the heat on the Frenchmen to get moving. But it was not reported they got any solid promises. Neither Frenchman was in position to be too positive.

This month the French hold national elections which may leave Laniel and Bidault unemployed.

This is the background:

* * *

On March 17, 1948, Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg signed a mutual defense agreement, called the Brussels Pact.

* * *

If Russia attacked, it was felt here and abroad, those five nations might not be enough to save Western Europe. Something stronger was needed. This led to creation of NATO—North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The NATO Treaty was signed April 4, 1949.

NATO has 14 members: the States, Canada, Iceland, Greece, Turkey, Italy, Portugal, Norway, Denmark, and the five Brussels Pact countries.

Under NATO each country would retain its own individual army although they planned their defense together.

* * *

The United States, particularly, was concerned about West Germany, with all its manpower and resources, which was not included in NATO and was still unarmed. If it remained unarmed, and Russia attacked, the Russians could sweep across Germany unhindered.

* * *

Yet, the French worried about letting their old German enemy rearm. Finally, the French suggested the single European army idea: it would be made up of troops from France, West Germany, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg and Italy.

That meant giving up, for the greater protection of all, individual command of their armies. The single army would be unified and under single command.

Then, the more the French thought of letting Germany rearm, even in this limited way, the less they liked it. And they've been stalling about joining it ever since.

Case Records of a Psychologist

Too Much TV Deprives Child of His Exercise

Marvin sits glued in front of his TV set. Too much TV is bad for children since it deprives them of adequate exercise. But you can't outbid TV with negative appeals and maternal nagging. Paste this Case Record in your scrapbook and discuss it at PTA meetings.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case J-368: Marvin D., aged 11, is typical of many modern youngsters.

"Dr. Crane, Marvin just sits glued in front of our TV set," his worried mother protested.

"I tell him it is hard on his eyes, and that he should be outside playing, but that doesn't do much good.

"Besides, many of the TV programs aren't adapted to his age and they flaunt liquor advertising in front of children all day long.

"So what can I do? Isn't it bad for Marvin to watch television too much?"

Yes, a youngster should be out playing in good weather. For that rugged physical exercise will help build up his muscles, including his heart muscle, too.

And it will increase his appetite, thereby causing him to consume more milk and other wholesome foods that help him grow taller.

But nagging at Marvin will not tear him away from the TV set! His mother must offer a positive attraction that will beat TV.

Nagging is simply a negative approach to the problem. And children, as well as adults, don't choose negatives! They want positives which offer them fun or thrills or ego inflation or candy, etc.

Before indicting TV too much, however, please remember that it tires the eyes just about the same as reading a book under artificial light.

It doesn't cause one to go blind nor will it produce a lot of other horrifying conditions that some parents state in threatening their youngsters.

Furthermore, one reason why we see so much liquor advertising is the simple fact that beer and other alcoholic beverages are about the only types of merchandise on which the profits are so huge that the manufacturers can afford TV regularly.

TV is so expensive nowadays that a great many legitimate types of merchandise can't afford 15-minute or 30-minute shows, so they stop with what are called "spot announcements".

For example, a bottle of beer costs more than a big loaf of bread! Yet the beer is chiefly colored water, whereas the bread offers you a wholesome food with about half your entire day's requirements of calories.

The bakers and grocers make only a small profit on bread so they can't sink millions into TV advertising.

But the brewers make such big profits that even when they pay their high taxes, they still can afford expensive TV shows and yet make a good profit.

In order for Marvin to be weaned away from his TV set, however, his parents should fix up the basement with a ping pong table and other athletic equipment so he can entertain his friends every afternoon.

As a rule, group play will outbid TV among children. But group play means you need a group of kids on hand and that requires an adequate place for them to play.

So why don't you parents see that your children have a basement play room, or fix up basketball backboards on vacant lots in your neighborhood?

And also urge your children to join the Boy Scouts and YMCA or CYO. The churches, too, should have tournaments between Sunday school classes and keep them going every week.

If your church hasn't a gymnasium, then rent the public school gym at least one night per week.

For you can't outbid TV with nagging. You must offer positive attractions that kids enjoy.

Baering Down

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
International News Service

If Benson's suburban anguish is caused by rural surpluses then maybe old Hank Wallace wasn't as dumb as he looked.

For those who just tuned in we explain that Hank was also secretary of aggravated culture in those free-wheeling days when hats were kept on by centrifugal force.

Hank did everything with the farm problem but move it indoors in bad weather.

He predicted the surplus by advocating a gimmick he tagged controlled scarcity. He also was for engineered economy. Which made two blades of grass grow where there had been but one beard of wheat.

Hankus solved every problem by inventing a new one.

At the end of the black and blue rainbow Hank had an institution he called the "Ever-Normal Granary." A neutral diagnosis of the ever normal granary revealed it contained one ear of corn and a goat to eat it.

The weedbenders and mule pilots of the bottom 40 sored up at Benson because of the surpluses, the drought, loss of foreign markets and the dis-fixation of staple prices.

Now, Benson himself is a farmer and knows which side of a cow the profit is on. He was born on a bottom 40 in Idaho. So far out in the sticks the owls eloped with his chickens.

In those days he worked from kaint to kaint. That means from when you kaint see in the morning until you kaint see at night. He ran the whole works when he was 13. He can weed parsley with a grub hoe and never touch a plant.

Dr. Brady Praises New Law in West Defining, Limiting Use of Term 'Clinic'

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

A law which goes into effect Jan. 1, 1954, will restrict use of the name "clinic" to institutions operated as charities or for teaching and research.

After this date licensing of private pay "clinics" will be discontinued.

Unfortunately the trick specialists who are already in business under the deceptive name of "clinic" can continue to trim the gullible patients the same as ever when the new law goes into effect.

This new law was enacted and will apply only in the state of California. So the racketeers need not worry—yet. They can still operate with impunity in the country at large.

The growth of the phony "clinic" racket has marked the conversion of American medicine to a business. Medicine in America was a profession in the horse and buggy days.

Few physicians got rich in ethical or regular practice in those days.

Then the AMA showed the dumb doctors how to get rich quick.

Scrutiny of their Journal will show that the organization still makes enough from peddling cigarettes on the side to keep out of the red well into the violet.

Another new law became effective in California Sept. 30, 1953. It prohibits practice under a fictitious name!

This law permits formation of a medical partnership, provided that such partnership or group use at least the surname of one partner, if not all, plus the words "medical group."

What have I been trying to tell you gullible folks all along? Just this: If a doctor is good he or she will practice under his or her own name.

Well, this is now recognized by law—in California.

How long will the racketeers in other states continue quacking it? Probably they'll keep on trimming the gullible customers until the law cracks down on them.

If medicine were still a profession and not just a business, the very need of such a law would shame honest doctors into a thorough housecleaning.

A clinic, children, is what Webster says it is.

For your health's sake and your pocketbook's, I advise you to leave it that way.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self addressed envelope is enclosed, etc.

FOR ENLARGEMENT—gridded graph paper makes it simple to enlarge any picture for a cutout.

Be Your Own Artist in Making Cutouts

If you can't draw, but know how to measure, you can enlarge any picture or pattern by tracing it on lightweight gridded graph paper.

A small picture can be traced on paper gridded at 8 to the inch. If you want to make this 4 times as large, rule off a large sheet in half-inch squares. In each half-inch square draw the lines which appear in the corresponding smaller square on the eighth-inch graph paper. A large sheet of wrapping paper will give you enough leeway to enlarge the original eight times or more.

The finished pattern, retaining all proportions, can then be cut out or traced on hardboard or waterproof plywood. Use exterior weatherproof paint for finishing details.

Safety Slogan Printed on Carolina Car Tags

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP) — North Carolina automobile license plates urge motorists to "Drive Safely." The slogan printed on the auto tags is part of a drive to reduce highway accidents.

Motor Vehicles Commissioner Edward Scheidt said North Carolina is the first state to use a safety slogan on its licenses. He originally planned to have the slogan appear on 1954 licenses. It was put into use six months ahead of schedule when heavy automobile registration made it necessary to order a new series of 1953 plates.

Santa Will Carry Tool Kits for All Good Hobbyists

From the Christmas that Junior first "examines" his brand-new electric train with a hammer, to the time when, grown up, he starts making repairs on his own son's train, you have a born tool addict on your hands.

Why fight the inevitable? Man and boy, the male of the race is a born tinkerer. Take advantage of this ingrained instinct to experiment with tools, and give them as Christmas gifts.

You'll build for yourself, without so much as touching a hammer, a reputation for thoughtful ability to pick the "just right" gift.

For apartment-house dwellers, you can buy all-purpose tool kits, made up of a master handle and several interchangeable shanks, each of which is a basic tool; hammer, screwdriver, saw, drill, awl, or chisel. Packaged neatly in box or leather case, they take up little space in tight quarters.

And no woodworker, amateur or professional, ever had too many chisels, nor has there ever been a man known to have too many bits of assorted sizes for his brace or drill. (And these items fit neatly into an average Christmas buyer's budget.)

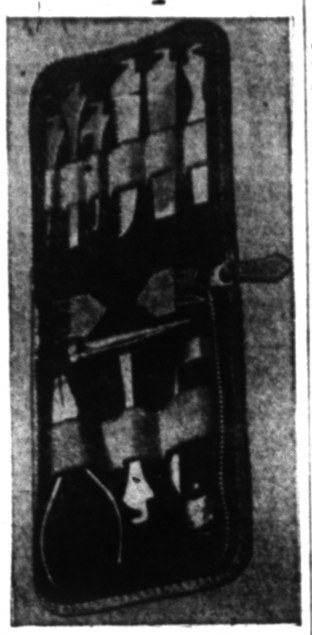

Now, if the mood is expansive, and the pocketbook in fairly healthy condition, a power tool will make you look like Santa to someone's grateful eyes.

Jig saws, drill presses, or small lathes are available at surprisingly moderate prices, and are basic-starter items for an all-powered workshop.

If that man's shop already is equipped with powered tools, your gift problem is solved. Just tour the shop with him and listen to his wistful remarks about what he'd make if he only had a double-barreled whatsit to attach to his such-and-such. (All hobbyists talk like this.)

Next stop is the hardware store or home-workshop section of a department store.

Browse and buy — and catch the home-workshop disease yourself.

TOOL KIT — In leather case, this is an ideal gift for handymen who live in cramped quarters.

Store Both Wet, Dry Sits on Township Line

HILLSDALE (UP) — Sale of beer is legal in one end of Edward Jennings' Oak Haven store but is illegal in the other.

The store straddles a township line, and a state liquor license was granted for beer sales in only one township.

Man Flies to His Job Daily in Own Plane

BURLINGTON, N. C. (UP)—A Burlington man is convinced that it's cheaper, faster and easier on the nerves to travel by plane.

John V. Isley commutes by plane daily to his job at Wake Forest as engineer of the Wake Finishing Plant of Burlington Mills. The distance is 47 miles by air and 63 by road. Isley, a pilot for nine years, says he travels the distance by air in half the time it takes to go by car.

Corn Now Used to Make Sweaters

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UP) — Today's sweater girl like as not is wearing a product made from corn.

A new fiber made from the protein of the grain is being used for sweater material, says Edna R. Gray, University of Illinois clothing specialist. The fiber is similar to wool in warmth, absorbency, appearance and texture. Miss Gray says it won't irritate the skin of persons who are allergic to wool, and it is almost entirely free of static electricity.

Blended with nylon, it contributes softness and absorbency. It is mothproof and needs no special care in washing.

But the main advantage is its relatively low cost.

Livestock Do Their Best in Time for Farm Sale

FRANKLIN, Ind. (UP) — A farm livestock sale arranged by Mrs. Thomas O. Owens and C. L. Poynter Jr. was right on time.

During the sale, a Brown Swiss cow had twin calves. Three days earlier, a Holstein bore twins. A week earlier two sows had litters.

All mothers and their little dividends were sold.

Here's Bad News for Grain Insects

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UP)—Kansas State College techniques for listening to hidden insects chewing inside kernels of wheat and other grains.

The work has practical application. For example, it is possible to judge the effectiveness of fumigants designed to kill off the insects in grain.

The college investigators have been able to detect hidden insects in all except the egg and extrmly early larval stage.

In the larval and pupal stages, the insects appear to produce two distinct types of sound. One is a low frequency scraping noise, believed to be made by movement of larva and pupa within the kernels; the other is a high frequency sound, probably caused by chewing.

Kansas State's work in electronics to detect hidden grain insects has been done by R. E. Adams, graduate student in electrical engineering; Dr. J. E. Wolfe of the electrical engineering department, and Drs. Max Milner and J. A. Shellenberger of the flour and feed milling departments.

In the 1950 census California had 4,922,000 more people than in 1940.

Bob Considine Says:

How Would You Persuade 'Unrepatriates' to Return?

NEW YORK (INS) — What would you—I mean you—say to the 22 American "unrepatriates" to persuade them to change their minds and return home from Korea?

You would have first to take into consideration the fact that the Reds have done a tremendous job of unselling them on America. You would have to recall that the boys spat at the first persons who came to remind them of the homes and hearths they choose to give up for the uncertainties, inhumanities and rigors behind the Bamboo Curtain.

Would you try the family bit again, The friends back home? The girls they must have left behind? The hamburgers, hot-dogs, milk shakes, sirloins, ham and eggs waiting to be consumed? The plumbing, central heating, bright lights, iceboxes, soft chairs, thick rugs, Marilyn Monroe, daily newspapers, radio, TV, the language?

Would you appeal to such religious training as the men have and remind them they have chosen a godless way of life? Or would you try to reawaken in them what once must have been a firm love of this country, its armed forces, its pride of position, its fairness, cleanliness, vigor, integrity, strength?

Would you try to tell them of the good things that happened to their one-time buddy, Ed Dickenson, of Big Stone Gap, Va He came off better than a lot of boys who were broken in spirit and body before guardedly signing Red documents.

Or would you say to the remaining 22, "Get lost, you ingrates!"?

So many conflicting reports have come out of Washington, as to whether the administration plans to reduce our overseas military might or maintain it, even the administration at times seems confused or unable to express itself with clarity.

The amazing probability is that we'll bring thousands of men home and at the same time overwhelmingly increase our strength in Europe, and, eventually, in the Far East. The answer to that apparent contradiction is that a few men with a few modern weapons can today do what hosts of armies could not have done only a few years ago.

A comparatively few rounds of atomic shells, now poised in Western Europe, could inflict as much damage on an enemy as all the Allied cannon fire of World War II from the invasion of Poland to the fall of Berlin.

One B-47, carrying a 500 kiloton A-bomb of the type President Eisenhower said we now have, could drop a greater tonnage on an enemy target than 100,000 Flying Fortresses or Liberators. The B-47 carries three or four men. One hundred thousand V-17s or B-24s would have carried 1,000,000 men with another 2,000,000 or more men needed for maintenance on the ground!

So it was not double-talk when Eisenhower was able to tell Laniel at Bermuda that we'd stay stronger overseas even if ships continue to bring American boys home every week.

Tomatoes once were believed to be poisonous.

Ingenious Ways to Dodge Christmastide Bankruptcy

NEW YORK (AP)—What are you doing to cut down Christmas costs?

Some people complain, "I no longer can tell the difference between Christmas and bankruptcy."

They have let this festive season get out of hand. But there is no reason why you can't enjoy a fine Christmas at minimum expense if you show a little ingenuity. You may also have to act like a heel, but everybody else will be so full of the milk of human kindness they will overlook it. And think of the money you'll save.

* * *

So here is a heel's guide to a cut-rate Christmas.

You probably still have last year's Christmas cards. So mail them back to the people who sent them to you, and enclose a note saying:

"I received so much pleasure from looking at your Christmas card in 1953 I am unable to deny you the same joy in 1954. May it make the New Year happy for you."

Could anyone object to that?

* * *

Now, what about presents for your friends? Do something different. Why not get your wife to collect some old vests—every closet has a few—cut holes all over them, and embroider the holes with green and red yarn? Then mail each vest to a friend with this letter:

"May the enclosed Christmas-tree-warmer keep your sweet little tree snug and cozy on the coldest night. Be careful not to bruise its tender little branches when you button the warmer around it."

Why, people will be talking for days—after getting a present like that—about how thoughtful and sentimental you were to think of a way to keep their Christmas tree from catching pneumonia.

* * *

Your wife, of course, can't be overlooked. One way to please her is to pick out a luxurious bathrobe one size smaller than a circus tent, charge it, and bring it home. When she finds it doesn't fit, she will take it back to the store after Christmas. But by then you will be hollering so loud about bills she won't have the heart to exchange it for something else. Meanwhile, you did give it to her, didn't you?

Almost everybody has two aunts he has to send a Christmas gift to. You can cut this item in half by buying a pair of gloves and mailing one glove in a box to each aunt. Don't worry. They won't blame you.

There is also the problem of what to do about all your nieces and nephews. A simple solution is to send each a letter containing a dollar bill, and a note:

"I am sending you this $10 because I think you probably would like to pick out something for yourself, and anyway I know you could use a little money at Christmas."

The kids will look at the buck and murmur sadly:

Poor old uncle, he is getting so near-sighted lately."

* * *

The question of Christmas tips is easily solved. Just tell all the folks who usually hold their palms out at this time of the year, "Gee, no Santa Claus for me. I just got my two weeks' notice at the office." They not only won't look for tips. Some might even offer to lend you money. If they do, take it. You can pay them back later, if it doesn't slip your mind, and it will make them feel good to think they have lightened your load.

* * *

Christmas day presents the final hurdle—how to get you and your wife a free meal. Simple. You just go to a neighbor on Christmas morning, admire his tree, and remark that a strange dog leaped through the window, grabbed up your Christmas turkey, and bounded out again.

"Why don't you and your missus try potluck with us?" your neighbor will ask sympathetically. Don't grab at his offer. See what he's got on the menu first. If it isn't satisfactory, go on to another neighbor with your hard luck tale. There is no need for eating a second-rate meal even on a cut-rate Christmas.

If you follow these rules, you'll find that you've had a fine, mellow, merry Christmas at the lowest possible expense.

"After all," you can tell yourself, "it isn't how much you spend that's really important—it's the spirit of the thing."

UNUSUAL LIGHTED TREE—This holiday setting glows from Christmas bulbs hidden inside the paper trees. It can be used on a table or mantel.

Unusual Lighted Trees Effective

Make Your Own Yule Mantel Setting of Bulbs, Cotton, Paper

If you enjoy making your own holiday decorations, try these lighted paper trees designed by Miss Aileen Page, lighting specialist. These tiny trees which glow from Christmas lights hidden inside can be used on table, mantel of the top of your television set.

First, to make the opaque trees shown in the photograph above, protect the finish of your furniture with asbestos oven cover pads.

Then, arrange two strings of multiple Christmas tree lights on the pad and cover with a thin sheet of non-inflammable sparkle-covered cotton. This will give the effect of luminous snow.

The large tree, 15 inches high, shown in the photograph above was made of metallic red paper, lined with tissue paper and cut a little larger than the frame of the tree. Tiny star shapes were carefully cut in the metallic paper to allow light from white Christmas tree lights concealed inside to shine through. Avoid cutting tissue paper lining since it conceals bulbs from view.

To make the frame for the tree, use quarter-inch plywood cut in the triangular shape of a tree. Support it with two wooden easles.

Then, drill six round holes to hold Christmas tree sockets and insert them in the frame.

Use the seventh socket and bulb for star at top. Now, cover the frame with the metallic paper half-cone cover and secure it to the back of the frame.

Finish off with a tiny star made of folded white bond paper, or borrow a small star ornament from your collection of holiday trimmings.

Scatter various size smaller trees, made by folding a square piece of paper four times, cutting along folded edges, then refolding in pleated effect, over the luminous snow.

Former Buddy Hopes to Talk to Turncoat PW

TOKYO, (AP)—Airman 1.C. William L. Randall of Olla, La., hoped for a chat with a former buddy whom he described as "a normal, average guy—he never seemed to worry about anything of a political nature."

The buddy is Cpl. Aaron P. Wilson a convert to communism now in neutral custody in the Korean demilitarized zone.

Randall was waiting at Tachikawa air base today for a plane to Korea and the chance of talking with Wilson.

They grew up together in the farm country of northwest Louisiana. Wilson dated Randall's sister, Dorothy Jane, 19, about two years ago on his last leave in the United States.

Randall recalled that Wilson excelled in basketball at Urania High School and "was well liked by everyone."

"He was a quiet sort, always a follower," Randall said. "Whatever the crowd wanted to do was fine with Aaron."

Randall, 22, has been in the Far East with the 347th Troop Carrier Wing for a year.

THE LITTLE TREE THAT TALKED — By WALT SCOTT

National Geographic Map Focuses on Great Lakes

WASHINGTON — North America's five Great Lakes—a third of the earth's sweet-water area—are spotlighted on a new map that the National Geographic Society is distributing to its more than two million members.

The 10-color map, "The Great Lakes Region of the United States and Canada," shows all or part of 22 states and three provinces, from Minnesota to New Brunswick, Ontario to Kentucky.

Nearly one-third of the American people—48,000,000—live in only five of the lake-bordering states, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Three of the nation's seven largest cities, Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland, stand beside the lakes. Montreal, Canada's leading metropolis, overlooks the St. Lawrence River outlet.

Closely packed place names (11,959 of them), plus a tight mesh of travel routes, hint in cartographers' shorthand at the fact that the area covered is the most populous of the continent.

The Great Lakes are of incalculable economic value both to the United States and Canada. So big they could be seen from the moon with the naked eye, they have provided such assorted benefits as transportation, rich fisheries, and scenic playgrounds.

Ships that ply the vast inland waterway with such cargoes as iron ore, grains, and automobiles carry more tonnage annually than does the entire oceangoing merchant fleet of the United States.

Map notes printed in blue on the face of each of the Great Lakes point to the canals, locks, and dredged river channels that have opened a continuous passage from western Lake Superior to the mouth of the St. Lawrence River.

Three large-scale insets hold the magnifying glass to these links. The fourth, in the Chicago area, shows the start of the Illinois Waterway on its winding course that joins the lake system to the mid-continent traffic artery, the Mississippi.

Melodious Indian names scattered over the Geographic's map recall early exploration and settlement days.

Lakes Huron, Michigan, Erie and Ontario all have names with Indian associations. Only Lake Superior, from the French phrase for "upper lake," is without the Indian touch.

A few primeval spots remain in the highly developed Great Lakes region. Two where wilderness conditions have been deliberately preserved are Ontario's Quetico Provincial Park, and the adjoining Superior National Park of the United States.

The atomic era is also noted in the Canadian nuclear research station of Chalk River; the U.S. study center at Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago, and New York's Brookhaven National Laboratory.

Hoot Owl Invades Coop, 1,500 Baby Chicks Die

EPHRAIM, Utah (AP)—Wally Durfee reported yesterday a hoot owl got into a coop of 4,000 10-week-old New Hampshire chickens. He found the owl still flying back and forth, trying to get out, the next morning.

As he untangled the mass of chickens piled up in a corner he counted 1,537 of them dead. He estimated the loss at $1,350.

Case Is Dropped, Witness Flops

DALLAS (AP)—Former tennis star Wayne Sabin, 37, went on trial yesterday on driving-while-intoxicated charges. The first witnesses, City Patrolmen M. L. Morgan and F. R. Pettus, were asked to identify the defendant. They didn't.

They pointed to one of his lawyers, Jack Johannes. Johannes and Sabin had traded chairs but not, said Johannes, with any intent to confuse anyone.

County Criminal Court Judge Joe B. Brown dismissed the charges against Sabin, a member of the 1937 and 1938 Davis Cup team and now tennis professional at two Dallas clubs.

"I'm sorry it happened," Johannes said. "We had a good defense, which we didn't get to present."

New Raincoat Is Visible on Dark, Rainy Days

NEW YORK (UP)—One rainwear manufacturer is out with a raincoat which should make children easily visible to motorists on dark, rainy days.

The coat back has a built-in red reflector. The reflector is wired to a standard flashlight battery fitted into the coat pocket, along with a switch for turning it on. Charge of the battery is low, the manufacturer said, so there is no danger of shock if it becomes shorted. (L. S. Ayers and Co. Indianapolis).

In the 1950 census Florida had 1,072,000 more people than in 1940.

Compact Tape Unit Does Recording Job

NEW YORK (UP)—If you want to record a favorite piece of music or the voices of your family, a compact unit using magnetic tape does the complete job.

The portable recorder — which operates either on its batteries or an electric outlet — contains a speaker.

You can carry around your own entertainment in the 22-pound recorder that provides two hours of playing time on each tape.

Any time you want to record something new, you simply use the same tape. The erasing and recording procedures take place simultaneously.

The recorder has a simple three-knob control and contains both hand and shoulder straps for carrying.

In addition to home entertainment, the unit may be used by businessmen, pollsters and researchers (J. C. Warren Corp.).

Commies Play on Pride, Also Fears of the French

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

Like a quack doctor who promises impossible cures, Russian propaganda plays on human fears, weaknesses and hopes.

For three weeks now every big gun in the Communist propaganda arsenal has been turned on France, playing on the hopes, fears and weaknesses of the French in an effort to split France from the United States and Britain and prevent formation of a European army.

It has been an impressive demonstration of the single-mindedness of the Communist program — which is the more effective because it suffers from no such distractions as are common among free nations which frequently may differ as to methods while agreed on the goal.

First step in the current Red campaign was an outward switch in policy which saw the Reds suddenly agreeing to a four-power foreign ministers conference on Germany.

Almost within hours, came the further suggestion that the Reds might be willing to negotiate a truce in the Indochina War.

Thus the Russians struck at the two most sensitive points in French foreign policy.

Both moves came in the midst of a foreign policy debate in the French chamber of deputies.

They were an attempt to undermine the government of Premier Joseph Laniel, which had supported both the war in Indochina and the European army in which German divisions would participate.

The Laniel government survived but was rendered impotent both at the Big Three Bermuda conference and at the Hague Foreign Ministers' conference called to consider unity of Western Europe.

Now as representatives of the Big Three meet in Paris to consider their position at next month's four-power meeting in Berlin, the Reds are redoubling their efforts, aimed openly at wrecking the European Defense Community.

Keynote was sounded by Moscow's Communist party newspaper Pravda on the ninth anniversary of the Franco-Russian mutual assistance treaty — a treaty which for years the Russians have ignored.

Pravda said the EDC would mean France's loss of its position as a major power and would put it "on equal rights with Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg."

It charged American monopolies were "undermining" the French economy, and claimed "certain political circles in the West are almost ready to bury France as a great power and to divide among them her national riches."

Joining the campaign have been the Russian satellites.

Recently nine non-Communist French deputies visited Poland at the invitation of the Polish government. A subject certain to have been discussed was Germany's disputed border with Poland.

Among the visitors was Edouard Daladier, the former French premier who signed away Czechoslovakia to Hitler at Munich.

The East German Communist parliament recently sent a letter to the French National Assembly appealing for a union of "French effort and peace-loving German forces to defeat the threatened rearmament of Western Germany."

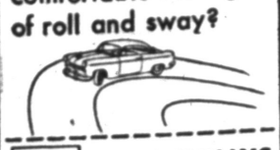

The French are not Communist — not even one-sixth Communist by count in the national assembly — but the destructive and clever Red propagandists hit their pride as well as their fears.

The magistrate had a sense of justice. Chan, the alleged welsher, was fined HK $25 (US $4.15), or HK $5 more than the bet. Both wwere required to put up bond for future good behavior.

Used Indoors and Out; Outdoor Tree Creates Neighborhood Spirit

Evergreen decorations are a traditional part of the Christmas season, both indoors and outdoors and their popularity grows annually.

In most parts of the country it is not too late to plant a Christmas tree for decoration with colored lights. It is these gaily lighted outdoor trees that create an added spirit of joy in the neighborhood.

Spruce, balsam, cedar, pine and fir trees, dependent on your climate, all will serve the purpose. Locate the tree conveniently for outdoor wiring, says the American Association of Nurserymen, either near a doorway, at the entrance to your driveway, or on the highest spot of your property.

In planting the tree dig a hole plenty large enough for the ball of earth around its roots as it comes from the nursery. If the soil is heavy, or sandy, add peat moss liberally and soak the ground with water. Keep the ground wet for a few weeks.

For indoor decoration, in addition to the regular Christmas tree, which should be as freshly cut as possible and should have its stub end placed in a bucket of water for a greater measure of safety, there are many evergreen plants whose foliage and berries are used to brighten up windows, mantel, tables, etc. Berries include hollies, winterberry, pyracantha, cotoneaster and similar red-fruited plants.

Coniferous evergreen cones and branches tied with red ribbon are widely used. In California and on the West Coast the aromatic incense cedar is highly popular. Local nurserymen display an ever increasing assortment of decorative Christmas greens and berried shrubs each year.

Truck Hits Car on U.S. 10; Sends 3 Autos Into Ditch

A car-truck collision on U. S. 10 near Oak Hill road yesterday injured one man and sent three other vehicles skidding into ditches to avoid the wreckage, according to Michigan State Troopers of the Pontiac post.

Highways Called Safer Than in 1909

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Highways today are safer for travelers than in the horse and buggy era despite the number killed nowadays in traffic accidents, according to Philip H. Pretz of Detroit, test engineer for Ford Motor Company.

Speaking at a conference of southern Michigan road commissions, Pretz compared 7.3 deaths last year to 30 deaths in 1909 per 100 million miles traveled on the nation's roads.

Pretz called 1909 the peak for horse and buggy travel.

Allen M. Williams, president and manager of the Ionia County Free Fair and engineer-manager of the Ionia Road Commission, was named president of the Commissions Association, succeeding Leslie M. Reed of Jackson. Lynn Smith of Hillsdale was named vice president and Fred F. Rogers of Howell continues as secretary-treasurer.

SANTA and the FLYING PUP

By LUCRECE HUDGINS BEALE

"Let us look up this great big word in the dictionary."

SYNOPSIS: Mr. Not Much and Mr. Very Little ran to Santa as soon as they saw that Willie was being swept away in the middle of a snow cloud. Santa quickly went to the Cloud Keeper who turned the cloud to rain, and Willie was washed out over Santa Land. Santa promised to tell Willie the secret of how he could really fly.

Chapter 11

AN UNSELFISH DEED

"This is the way the story goes," said Santa to Willie the pup. "A long time ago my reindeer were like all other reindeer. They lived with a great herd of their brothers and sisters and not one of them ever dreamed of flying.

"Then there came a time when eight of those deer did a truly unselfish thing. When they had done it they found, to their amazement, that they were no longer like other deer for now they could fly!

"And that is how it happens that my deer are the only ones in the world that can fly."

Willie waited for Santa to go on. But Santa was silent. So Willie said, "But go on! What was this truly unselfish thing they did?

Santa shook his head. "I do not know," he smiled. "For you see that is often the way with a truly unselfish deed. No one except the person who does it knows what it is."

"I don't understand at all," said Willie. "I do not even know what unselfish means."

"It is hard to explain such things," said Santa. It is something each person must discover for himself."

Then Santa and his helpers went back to their work. Willie and the Dreamlins went into Santa's house and sat down to think.

"Let us look up this great big word in the dictionary," said Mr. Not Much after a great deal of thought. "Then we will know how to proceed."

The two Dreamlins studied the dictionary on Santa's desk for a long while. Then Mr. Very Little said, "To be unselfish means simply to forget yourself, to do or give up something for someone else."

"Why that isn't difficult at all," said Willie happily. "I think I shall just go down and talk to the reindeer for soon I shall be flying with them."

Wagging his rear end confidently Willie took off for the stables. But he never got there for on the way he passed around Santa's back porch. There, sitting by the rear door, was Santa's big garbage can.

"My goodness," thought Willie. "That can is simply bulging over. Perhaps I should empty some of it so that it will be easier for Santa to put in more."

He placed his front paws against the can and pushed and pushed until over it crashed dumping most of its contents all over the ground.

What a feast there was for Willie! For a moment he could only stand and stare at the delicacies that lay before him.

"Where but in Santa Land could a dog eat so well?" he thought gratefully. "Surely I am the luckiest puppy alive and even when I learn to fly I will never leave this land."

As soon as he thought of flying he remembered the unselfish deed he must do and immediately he had a grand idea.

"Instead of keeping all this for myself," he said, "I shall give some of it away. In fact I shall give it all away. Not only that but I shall give it to someone I do not like very much. Surely nothing could be more unselfish than that!"

Enormously pleased with himself Willie immediately fished out of the garbage an old beat up ham bone and trotted away with it to a little cottage nearby. On the front of the cottage was a sign saying, "Home of Patrick Tweedleknees. Keep Out."

Willie deposited the bone at the door and trotted back for another load. He worked without a pause and before long there was an immense "gift" at Patrick Tweedleknees door.

There were orange peels, egg shells, tea bags, stale bread, hunks of fat, potato skins, carrot tops—to name just a few of the tempting morsels laid there.

Not one single bite of anything did Willie take for himself.

"Now," he said when at last he had finished, "now I shall fly!"

But before he could make the smallest leap from the ground, Patrick Tweedleknees himself opened the front door and with a mighty roar stepped out.

Test May Warn of Heart Attack

New Technique Aimed at Spotting First Signs of Artery Hardening

CHICAGO (INS) — A simple, three-way blood test may reveal hardening of the arteries — chief cause of dangerous heart attacks — long before the first twinge of pain, a scientist reported recently.

Trials of the new technique on 33 heart patients and 197 presumably normal persons indicate that the disease, or even a tendency to develop it, can be spotted in its earliest and perhaps reversible stage, he added.

Dr. Thaddeus D. Labecki of the Mississippi State Health Board reported the results of extensive studies at the annual Scientific Meeting of the American Society for the Study of Arteriosclerosis in Chicago.

The first phase of the three-step test measures the concentration of cholesterol, a fatty substance believed to line and thicken artery walls, in the bloodstream.

In a second, a "chylomicron determination," a high-power microscope is used to measure the size of fatty particles in the blood serum, Dr. Labecki explained.

If the particles are more than three millionths of a millimeter in diameter, there may be trouble ahead.

The third test, in which a blood sample is whirled 55,000 times a minute in an ultracentrifuge, measures even tinier particles—lipoprotenns, or combinations of fat and protein.

Dr. Labecki said the tests are based on a mass of evidence indicating that arteriosclerosis begins when the body fails to utilize fatty substances and high concentrations appear in the blood serum.

Until now, he explained, only the cholesterol measurement—a relatively crude index—has been available to practicing physicians.

In an earlier study, also supported by a grant from the U.S. Vitamin Corporation, the specialist reported successful use of methischol, an amino acid and vitamin combination, to reverse early abnormalities in blood fat levels.

Canadian pioneers often carried potatoes in their pockets as a cure for rheumatism.

Now—Mercury presents the Sun Valley
America's First Transparent-Top Car

LMDA
Now really see the scenery—and high traffic lights—without bending your head. The permanently fixed transparent section is made of super-tough plexiglas.

1954 Mercury's revolutionary new Sun Valley lets you see through the roof! Yet that green-tinted plexiglas section gives hard-top protection against wind and weather.

No, this isn't a someday-maybe "dream car." The new Mercury Sun Valley is already in quantity production. It's on display right now at our showroom. And it costs much less than you would expect.

You have a wonderful sensation of driving with no top at all—except that you enjoy the wind and weather protection of a standard sedan or hard-top. The soft light that filters through the sea-tinted plexiglas top is cool, restful. Even the interior trim is specially designed to match the spirit and beauty of this new kind of car.

Entirely new 161-horsepower engine—The new Sun Valley, like the 7 other stunning, newly styled Mercury models, features a completely new overhead valve V-8. It's the same type of engine that most engineers agree is the smoothest, most efficient in the world. It has more power per pound, more power per cubic-inch displacement, than even Mercury has ever been able to offer before. In short, it introduces fine-car power to the popular-price field. Coupled with the first ball-joint front wheel suspension in its field, it gives you an effortless new kind of performance that makes any driving easy.

MANY USES—Gifts of leather may be small or large, budget-priced or luxurious. Leather Makes Smooth Gifts

Accessories Are Found Suitable for All Ages at Christmas Time

Leather is one gift on everybody's Christmas list that's suitable for men, women and children. You can pay a little or a lot for a leather gift, but regardless of the amount, it's sure to be appreciated.

Leather accessories are making big fashion news this year, and they possess the added advantage, for you, of failling into the category of gifts that cost very little.

Gloves, for instance, come in pure-white sparkling 'cid leathers or pastels lined in contrasting shades of soft cashmere or silk.

There's great variety in both length and design of evening gloves, white kid trimmed in gold, sequins and jet beading, black kid lighted by huge rhinestones.

Or, pick a wallet with a gay gold-embossed design and add one of the new leather belts to the package. Leather jackets, styled as they've never been styled before, make the kind of gift women really welcome.

On the male side of the list, give consideration to leather luggage (if he travels) or better, soft slippers if he stays at home. For either the traveler or armchair male, consider giving a leather belt, jacket, gloves or one of the fancy leather vests that younger men are wearing.

Little girls love party shoes or a miniature handbag that is "just like mother's," or warmly lined gloves.

You'll find that you've a choice of fur or wool in the lining and a number of styles in the gloves.

To a small boy, leather means a football, a new baseball mitt or even a basketball. If he's very small, he might like cowboy or space boots. Depends on his choice this year, the wide open spaces or the spaces above and around.

Gen. Dean to Speak on Bob Hope Show

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, the hero of Taejon, who spent three years as a prisoner of the Reds in Korea, is in town to appear on the Bob Hope television show tonight.

Dean will deliver a Christmas message to the servicemen who are still in Korea, and may make an appeal for aid to the people of that war-torn land.

About the 22 American captives who have refused repatriation, he said:

"I feel we were lucky to lose only 22, in view of the indoctrination and propaganda they were exposed to. I feel very sorry for those boys, and even more sorry for their families."

Depot Segregation Causes Complaint

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People has opened fire on racial segregation in railroad stations and restaurants.

The NAACP filed a complaint with the Interstate Commerce Commission naming 11 railroads, the Richmond (Va.) Terminal Co. and the Union News Co., which runs a restaurant in the Richmond station.

The organization termed its complaint the first major challenge to segregation in railroad stations and station eating places.

The complaint charges the railroads are still trying to enforce segregation of interstate passengers, despite Supreme Court rulings to the contrary.

Pawnshop Hours Tell Story of Soldiers' Pay

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — City Commissioner Robert Adams of Cheyenne has proposed an ordinance limiting pawnshop operations to the hours between 6 a.m., and 9 p.m. However, he recommends the closing hour be extended to midnight on the days soldiers get paid at nearby Ft. Warren.

Fraternities to Pay Fines With Blood

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Fraternity men at the University of Pennsylvania start paying their fines in blood today.

The Inter-Fraternity Council decided that when fines are assessed against member fraternities for violating council rules, the fines can be paid off at the rate of one pint of blood for each $5 fine.

Half the blood will go to the Red Cross blood bank. The other half will go for 17-year-old Eddie Fox of Orrtanna, Pa., in Adams County. Eddie was badly burned in a futile attempt to save a younger brother from burning to death in a fire 3½ years ago. He still needs at least two blood transfusions a week at University Hospital here.

Retiring Railman Gets Dandified for Last Run

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Years ago as a young railroadman Andrew J. (Highball Andy) Stoll said, "When I retire you'll see something different."

Yesterday 66-year-old High ball Andy kept his promise. When he brought his New York Central passenger train here from Cleveland for the last time, he wore:

A Chesterfield overcoat with velvet collar, a black homburg hat, a white carnation and a white scarf around his throat.

He's saving money

He'd probably pay more for his cigarettes if it weren't for advertising. The cigarette manufacturers use advertising as their lowest cost way to get across news and information about their products. On the average, advertising for a pack of cigarettes amounts to less than ½¢.

Selling goods this way makes mass production possible—which means lower production costs, lower selling costs, lower prices.

Yes, advertising is a low-cost selling method that helps keep your living costs down.

Hans Conried Most Versatile

Is a Mimic and Fine Character Actor, Has Busy Schedule

NEW YORK — Panelist Hans Conried, whose dry wit enlivens the informal, light hearted TV "I'll Buy That" daytime audience participation series, is one of the most accomplished mimics and character actors on television, stage and screen.

Even the difficult Nipponese language does not faze him. During World War II in Japan, he picked up the accent so well that he was selected over several native-born actors as narrator of RKO's "Design for Death," a 1948 documentary made up of captured film on the Samaurai.

The uninhibited Conried, currently doing some of his in triguing mimicry in the Broadway musical "Can-Can," was called "one of the most versatile actors I've ever seen" by the late John Barrymore.

That was in 1937 when Hans was only 19 years old. Mike Stokey, producer of TV's "Pantomime Quiz," in which Conried participated, characterized him as "a mad genius."

Nothing daunts Hans Conried. As Dr. T in the motion picture, "The Five Thousand Fingers of Dr T," he had to do an intricate ballet routine, though he had never before essayed the terpsichorean art. The former Columbia U., scholar also is a Shakespearean expert.

During his Hollywood days, he acted in an average of 10 TV and radio programs a week. He kept track of his well-filled schedule in a little notebook. His assignments were anything from a snarling villain to a gently mad Russian.

Colorful, talented Conried long has disagreed with the common conception of Washington Irving's creation, Ichabod Crane, as a slow-witted person.

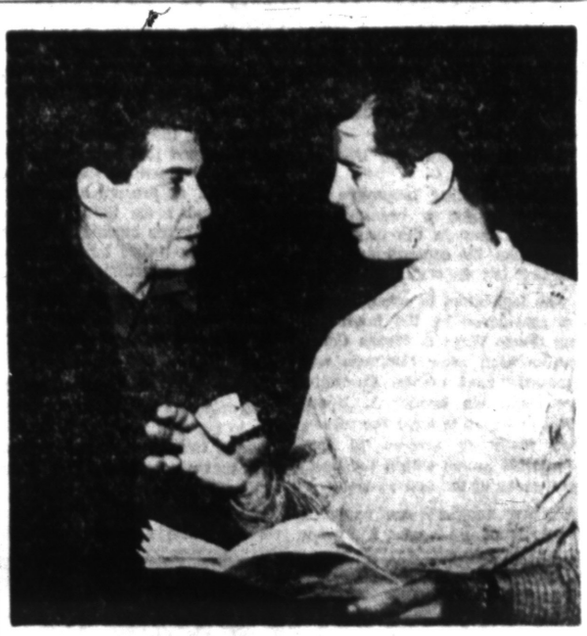

When he learned that a writer producer planned to dramatize "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," Conried told him of his feeling that Crane should be played as a brilliant eccentric, stupid only in the eyes of those who did not understand.

He cast Conried for the part, and Hans turned in a brilliant performance, completely consistent with Irving's presentation of the story, yet at odds with the usual interpretation.

This is typical of Conried's studious, creative approach to a role. Because of his knack of taking up where the writer left off, understanding and projecting a character even more fully than its creator, Conried has been much in demand.

"I did a few other odd jobs in my youth," he admits, "but acting is the only thing that really paid off."

Hans was born in Baltimore, Md., on April 15, 1917. The son of a Viennese actor, he inherited the love of the theater to such an extent that it has never occurred to him to seek any other kind of career.

Radio, TV Found Wanting

New Yorkers Turn Eagerly to Printed Pages for News

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—New York is just beginning to recover from its lost week and two days. The city's citizens are catching up on the nine days of newspaper reading they missed during the strike.

To aid the catching up process, the New York Times, in its first post-strike Sunday issue, printed the nine front pages it couldn't run during the walk-out. And other New York dailies helped New Yorkers catch up on other vital business—the comics—by various methods of recapturing the continuity.

But radio and television will never recover the face they lost. Their reputations as mediums of information were bruised, bent and broken, and never again will they be able to challenge the press as news disseminators.

They gave it a good try, but couldn't come close to filling the gap.

* * *

During the Nine Empty Days, people wandered the streets and went about their work with blank heads. Every hour on the hour, and sometimes on the half-hour, they'd huddle around radios and TV sets and a smooth voice would dole out newsy nutshells.

The strike proved one thing—you can't live on a diet of nutshells. Once in a while the mind craves a good, solid nutmeat.

To satisfy that gnawing mental hunger, New Yorkers searched for any stray bit of newsprint. They would nostalgically throng around the sad, deserted newsstands.

They arranged for out-of-town friends to smuggle in such poor substitutes as the Yale Daily News, brought in by Connecticut commuters, and the Daily Princetonian, imported from New Jersey.

They turned, in desperation, to magazines and books. The subways were full of people who had nothing better to do than look at each other, which can be horrible on an empty stomach.

In the sheer necessity of doing someting, anything, they ate countless candy bars and there was, for a time, a grave danger that galloping obesity would be the strike's end result.

* * *

Television news, unfortunately, only whetted the appetite for more details. A TV newscast usually consists of a few headlines plus some gripping newsreels of motorcycle races or the latest fashion for dolls.

And TV completely ignores the intimate local news that is a newspaper's pride and joy — society pages and the obituaries.

From an economic standpoint, the strike taught some pretty impressive lessons, too.

It was pre-Christmas season, generally regarded as a time when people are shopping-minded. But business was slow. The big stores, many for the first time, turned to radio and TV to advertise their wares. Business was still slow.

The Broadway movie theaters were hard hit—nobody knew what was playing where. A friend went to the Radio City Music hall on the evening that a new show began.

It was the usually popular annual Christmas stage show plus a new Esther Williams splash hit. My friend went at seven, a time the Music Hall is ordinarily a mob scene with ushers.

He reports that there were plenty of empty seats.

* * *

The tip-off on the value of department store and theater advertising was the size of the New York dailies immediately after the strike. The New York Times hit 96 pages—on a week-day. Department stores took page after page of full-page ads.

Gimbels, one of the biggest stores, came right out in its ad and told how it had been affected. The ad was headed "The 'no newspaper' situation hit Gimbels right where it hurts."

But the average newspaper reader wasn't worried about the stores. He was more concerned about his own lack of knowledge about what was going on. The extra newscasts simply repeated a few top headlines, but never went beyond the usual run of radio or TV news. A sentence or two is about the quota.

Those of us who lived through the awful terror now know what a newspaper really means. We'll never wrap a fish in one again.

McCarthy Hits Out at Harvard

Says University Seems to Be Sanctuary for 5th Amendment Cases

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis), in a new blast at Harvard University, says the college apparently is a sanctuary "for Fifth Amendment cases."

President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard said in Cambridge, Mass., last night that he had no comment. He has said previously there are no Communists on the Harvard faculty and that use of the Fifth Amendment is not "a confession of guilt."

The senator's slap at the university came yesterday during hearings here by the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, which he heads.

* * *

Last night Wendell H. Furry, a Harvard professor, said at his home in Blemont, Mass., that he has been called to appear before the subcommittee tomorrow.

McCarthy is holding public hearings into alleged Communist espionage at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., the Army Signal Corps headquarters of America's top secret radar defense.

The senator's comment on Harvard came as he wound up questioning of the last four witnesses called yesterday in the Ft. Monmouth probe.

* * *

Mrs. Sylvia Berke, a Bronx public school clerk, was summoned to testify about a job she held at Ft. Monmouth between 1942 and 1943.

Mrs. Berke denied she was a Communist at that time or last September when she testified at a closed hearing. However, she refused to say whether she ever had been a Communist, citing the Fifth Amendment.

* * *

The amendment is a guarantee to witnesses against possible self-incrimination.

McCarthy suggested that Mrs. Berke, if the Board of Education fires her, "might apply for a job over at Harvard."

"It seems to be a sanctuary over there for Fifth Amendment cases," said McCarthy. "You can get a letter of recommendation from your Communist cell and get a job from Mr. Pusey."

Takes a Loss

MANCHESTER, Conn. (UP) — After being fined $50 for driving 11 years without a license, Napoleon Desrosiers ruefully figured that if he had paid the yearly fee he'd have saved $15.

Petrillo Is Worried at TV Competition

WASHINGTON (AP) — James C. Petrillo says television is costing many of the nation's musicians their jobs.

"Television is doing a job against us," Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, said yesterday after a call on President Eisenhower.

"You get a television set at home and you just sit there. You don't want to get out."

Petrillo urged the federal government to subsidize symphony orchestras in smaller cities to prevent the death of "serious music" in America.

Railway Express Strike in 56th Day at Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—The Railway Express strike entered its 56th day today with small picket lines forming at the main office and terminal stations.

The picket lines turned up yesterday for the first time since the strike got under way Oct. 21. The strike was called by Local 2p75 of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks who immediately slapped an embargo on shipments to and from Detroit.

The employes are seeking a 30-cent hourly pay increase.

Asks Indiana Ministers to Preach Road Safety

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—With an eye on frequent traffic accident deaths, Joseph L. Lingo, state traffic safety director, sent letters to ministers of all Indiana churches yesterday asking them to preach highway safety in their pulpits.

"The only solution to this problem lies in the minds of men," he said.

Obliging Bees Solve Bite-Size Honey Problem

The answer to a honey of a problem which the nation's beekeepers have been stuck with for years has finally been given by Holland R. Sperry, biologist at Cranbrook School, Bloomfield Hills.

Up to now comb-honey has been sold in pound or half-pound sections which had to be eaten in one sitting. Otherwise honey lovers would be faced with storing an oozing mess in their cupboards.

...Sperry went to the bees with his problem and they gave him a satisfactory solution. ... ...

He discovered that if he placed pieces of cut, sticky combs in the hives the bees would trim all excess wax and honey without openin any of the honey-filled cells.

By using this method beekeepers can now market non-sticky, bite size morsels.

Two Plead Innocent After Auto Accident

Bonds were posted yesterday by two men who pleaded innocent to traffic charges following an auto accident Saturday at M-59 at Pontiac Kale Rd.

Arthur Krenz, 27, of 6465 Pontiac Lake Rd., Waterford Township, charged with drunk driving, was released on $200 bond, and a passenger with Krenz, gene Anderson, 27, of 89 Oakhill St., posted $100 bond on a drunk and disorderly charge.

Both men appeared before Waterford Township Justice Willis D. Lefurgy yesterday. They will be examined Dec. 17.

2 Ann Arbor Men Injured in Smashup

THREE RIVERS (UP) — Donald L. Jones, 27, Ann Arbor, was killed today and his passenger, James R. Sparks, 22, also of Ann overturned on M-60 east of Fisher Lake and smashed into the side of a semi-trailer truck.

Sparks was taken to Three Rivers Hospital with multiple cuts and bruises. His condition was considered fair.

The driver of the truck was Sylvester McBrain, 33, of Manton. He was not hurt.

Sheriff's officers said Jones, who was going west, apparently lost control of his car on a curve. It rolled over into the side of the east-bound truck. Jones was thrown out of the car.

Woman Waits Hearing in TV Stock Sale Fraud

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—Joe Ann Rogers, 43-year-old Los Angeles woman charged with selling worthless television stock, waived preliminary hearing before Probate Judge John Jackson yesterday and was sent to the county jail for lack of $5,000 bond.

She was arrested in Salem, Ore., last month and charged with obtaining money under false pretenses in Boise by posing as Claudia of the radio program One Man's Family.

Peanut, Cotton Curbs on Ballot

Farmers Voting Today on Limiting Outputs for Price Supports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Roughly 700,000 cotton and peanut farmers vote today whether to curb voluntarily their output and sales in exchange for high government support prices.

Never in the 15-year history of the price support program have farmers refused to make such a swap.

Just a few months ago, the nation's wheat farmers accepted production and marketing controls by a top-heavy 7-1 margin. A two-thirds vote is required to put such restrictions into effect.

* * *

This is the choice facing over 600,000 cotton planters and more than 65,000 peanut growers in separate referenda:

Acceptance of marketing quotas and a 90 per cent of parity support price or freedom to plant and sell as much as they wish, but a support price pegged at only 50 per cent of parity.

The cotton referendum in 20 states applies to the 1954 crop alone, while the peanut referendum in 13 states cover the next three years.

The government — through the Agriculture Department—now supports both cotton and peanuts at 90 per cent of parity—about 31 cents a pound for cotton and $237.60 a ton for peanuts.

From Bingo to Bango

AKRON, Ohio (UP)—A one-time bingo parlor here has been turned into a development center for commercial atomic energy. The Babcock & Wilcox Co. has taken over the property for its atomic energy division where, it is hoped, commercially practicable power plants can be developed to add to the company's line of steam generating equipment for power plants.

Draft Changes

Tax Revision Would Give Working Moms a Break

WASHINGTON (UP) — The mother who must pay a baby sitter to look after the kids while she works —

The taxpayer who has unusually heavy medical expenses —

The retired man who lives on dividend checks —

These and other taxpayers are expected to get a break under legislation now in the process of preparation by congressional and treasury tax experts.

The legislation is scheduled to be considered by the tax-framing House Ways & Means Committee soon after Congress reconvenes next month. Committee Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-NY) hopes to have the measure ready to present to the House for action within the first few weeks of the new session.

Working mothers are expected to get one of the biggest tax windfalls. Under tentative plans, they will be permited to deduct part of the expenses they incur in hiring baby-sitters to look after the children.

Similarly, the experts propose to recommend that permissible deductions for medical expenses be liberalized. At present a taxpayer must spend more than five per cent of his gross income for medical expenses before he is entitled to take any deduction.

The experts are expected to recommend that this figure be lowered to thre or four per cent.

In the field of dividend taxes, Congress long has been under pressure to eliminate so-called "double dividend taxation." The law provides that a corporation pay taxes on its earnings.

The stockholder then pays taxes on the same earnings when the corporation distributes its dividends.

The Ways & Means Committee has no intention of eliminating completely this "double taxation." But is may permit the individual to take a certain tax credit on his dividend income — a credit of perhaps five or 10 per cent — on the theory that a start should be made toward elimination of taxing the same money twice.

New Gauge Lets You Check Oil Sitting in Car

NEW YORK (UP)—You can sit in your car and check the oil with a glance at the dashboard, thanks to a new gauge.

The "Oil-Vue," which may be installed by the motorist, clamps onto the car's steering column.

The gauge is connected with a dipstick which measures the oil level in the crankcase and transmits the reading. On the gauge are four marks, ranging from "full" to "three pints low."

Constant Reminder of Good Wishes

Service Can Be a Year 'Round Gift

Most persons agree that the best Christmas gift of all is one that lasts all year 'round, constantly reminding the receiver of the giver's thought and good will.

Yet they also seem to agree that such gifts are hard to find, and that when they do come across an idea it usually represents an item like clothing or furniture.

Actually, "a gift that lasts all year 'round" need not be a utilitarian object. It can be some sort of a service, or anything which arrives periodically throughout the remainder of the year. And it's not as hard to find as it seems.

NEW YULE GIFT IDEA — A treat or self-performed service makes a priceless Christmas remembrance no one can buy.

An excellent example is the "mother's night off" idea. Dad and the family can get together and agree to relieve Mom of the dinner-making chore (either by taking her out to dine or preparing the meal themselves) one weekday evening a week for a year.

To present the gift, they can draw up a legal-looking promissory note, wrap it in an impressive-looking package and place it under the tree.

A similar idea is to arrange for a weekly lunch, tea or dinner date for an elderly, retired person or couple. This may very well be the most appreciated present you give, as it will encourage the oldsters to go out, and will give them something to look forward to.

Giving a year-round gift of this type doesn't have to be expensive. If you don't have the money for anything big, you can offer your services as a gift. With a little thought, you can easily discover some way to be of assistance to someone during the year, and thus present a gift worth more than you could buy.

A young girl, for instance, can offer to baby-sit once a week or so for a friend or relative with small children. A man or woman with a car can offer to drive a neighbor's children to school one or more days a week. Or they can offer to drive an elderly friend or relative to church each Sunday morning.

Other suggestions for gifts of this type, well worth thinking over, are offered in the following list. With a little imagination, you can undoubtedly add many more.

1. Offer to read aloud once a week to an elderly person or a shut-in. Or arrange for a lending-library service.

2. Offer free cooking lessons, or any convenient basis, to a young girl or bride on your list.

3. Arrange a subscription to the home-town newspaper of someone from out of town.

4. Agree to provide a weekly food package for a young college girl or boy who is living away at school. Or do the same for someone in the service.

5. Offer to do a year's mending for a single man or woman, or even a family.

6. Arrange for maid service, once a week for a year, for a working couple on your list.

CAP Converts Mail Trucks Into Relief Units

Pontiac Group 6318, Civil Air Patrol, has acquired two former mail trucks for use in civil defense, disaster relief and rescue operations.

One truck was purchased from the Michigan Auction Mart at Lake Orion; the other was donated to CAP by the Mart, according to Maj. R. E. Simons, group commander.

A portable lighting unit will be carried in one truck. Four searchlights, capable of a million candle power, will be run by a 10 kilowatt generator, Simons said.

The truck will be useful in areas where regular lighting facilities have failed, Simons explained.

The second truck will carry heavy equipment useful in clearing debris, such as hydraulic jacks, acetylene torches and pry bars.

Civil Air Patrol Is 12 Years Old

USAF Auxiliary Began in '41, Now Has 84,000 Adult, Cadet Members

About 84,000 members of the Civil Air Patrol are celebrating the organization's 12th anniversary this month.

CAP, the civilian auxiliary of the Air Force, was founded on Dec. 1, 1941, by presidential order, after private pilots had grouped together and offered their services to provide an air arm for home-front defense.

Now the CAP has 36,000 adult members and 48,000 cadets. Some 16,000 rated pilots fly over 7,600 light planes.

In 1952 CAP flew 77 per cent of total hours and sorties flown by all agencies on air rescue searches in the United States for missing aircraft.

CAP pilots also perform supply missions to disaster areas, evacuate persons in need of medical aid, do forest fire patrol, perform courier missions for the Department of Defense and work in spotter practice with the Ground Observer Corps.

Members of the group receive no pay or allowances for their volunteer efforts.

In 1953 CAP-Air Force reservist cooperation was begun, with reservists volunteering their services as staff advisers and instructors for CAP cadets.

WINTER ARRIVES—The day-long storm yesterday which blanketed Pontiac with over three inches of snow, snarled traffic and caused scores of automobile accidents also had its brighter side. Small fry found the wet snow "swell packing" and patients at St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital (above) had a chance to watch hospital grounds turn into a frosty wonderland.

Vital Eastern Cities Found Wanting in Civil Defense

This is the fourth article in a series revealing the shocking inadequacy of civil defense among the major U.S. cities that could be prime targets for atomic bombs in the event of an all-out war.

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

The cities of Philadelphia, Boston and Baltimore in the heavily populated industrial east are among the nation's primary targets for enemy atom bomb attack—and not one of them is adequately prepared in Civil Defense for such an attack.

Philadelphia's mayor, Joseph S. Clark Jr. does not accept the premise that Civil Defense is a local responsibility, but insists it is a federal problem.

"It cannot be handled effectively," Clark declared, "until the federal government organizes it on a critical target area or metropolitan area basis."

Shortages of personnel and equipment, he said, make the present program "only partially effective."

The Philadelphia Civil Defense Council commented that "education of the public is a slow process" and said present shortages were due "to lack of money at the local level."

In Boston, Mayor John F. Hynes commented: "Much remains to be done. We need an increase of effective leadership on all levels."

As to Boston's main shortcomings in Civil Defense, Mayor Hynes said: "We haven't enough auxiliary firemen. We are having a tough time in convincing the people of the need for auxiliary firefighters if an emergency arises."

On the manpower problem, John F. Stokes, Massachusetts Civil Defense director, said: "The quota for Massachusetts is 639,094 volunteers. At present the enrollment in Civil Defense is 230,410, or 36 per cent of the total number of persons required."

In Baltimore, Civil Defense Director Frank Milani said: "frankly, the city of Baltimore is not more than 25 per cent ready for an attack. . . even that figure may be a trifle high. . . there is a definite shortage of volunteers for all services."

He said Baltimore now has "only about 25 per cent of what we consider a bare minimum for a hard core of trained volunteers."

1954 May See Solution to Divorce Law Muddle

By HERB ALTSCHULL

WASHINGTON (AP)—There is a strong possibility that 1954 might clear the air about one of the nation's most perplexing social problems: Divorce.

There are two reasons:

1. A House committee will take up a bill, passed by the Senate earlier this year, that would require each state to honor a divorce obtained in another state if certain requirements are met.

2. The Supreme Court will be asked to decide whether a person must be a domiciliary of the state in which he secures a divorce.

These two questions are at the very heart of the divorce problem, which has bewildered lawyers and judges ever since the United States came into being.

* * *

Sen. McCarran (D-Nev), author of the bill now before the House, said today that many divorced Americans are confronted with becoming lawbreakers if they get married again.

This, McCarran said, is because a divorce secured in one state may not be honored in another and the parties to the divorce may be accused of bigamy if they remarry. Such a thing has happened.

* * *

McCarran's bill says that, when four specific requirements are met a divorce granted legally in one state "must be given full faith and credit in every state as a dissolution of such marriage."

These, he said, are the requirements: (1) The divorce decree must be final; (2) it must be valid in the state in which rendered; (3) it must meet the jurisdictional requirements of the state granting the divorce, and (4) both parties to the divorce must appear personally or be represented by counsel at the court proceedings.

* * *

The McCarran bill would "implement" the full faith and credit cause of the Constitution, which says:

"Full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the public acts, records and judicial proceedings of every other state. And the Congress may by general laws prescribe the manner in which such acts, records and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof."

* * *

The Constitution says nothing whatsoever about divorce. McCarran and others long have maintained that a constitutional amendment would be required before the nation could have a uniform divorce law.

* * *

McCarran is opposed to a uniform divorce law. Every effort to enact one over the years has met with failure.

The Senator's home state of Nevada for a long time has been regarded as the nation's unofficial divorce center. Recent tabulations by the National Office of Vital Statistics show:

In 1950; the national average for divorces was 2.6 for each 1,000 persons. In Nevada, the average was 55.7. Florida was second with an average of 6.5.

* * *

Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black has said:

"A divorced person's liberty . . . hinges on his ability to 'guess' at what may ultimately be the legal and factual conclusions resulting from the consideration of two of the most uncertain word symbols in all the judicial lexicon, 'jurisdiction' and 'domicile.'"

Hubbard's Suit Gets Full Study

Judge Ponders Motion to Dismiss Libel Case Against Jurist

DETROIT (AP) — Circuit Judge Charles O. Arch of Hillsdale is going to take some time to decide on a motion to dismiss a libel suit against Circuit Judge Miles N. Culehan.

Judge Arch said yesterday that he needed more time to study the arguments concerning the suit brought by Dearborn Mayor Orville Hubbard against Judge Culehan for action taken by the judge in a grand jury investigation of the Hubbard administration. He said:

"The matter is of such great importance, not only to the mayor and the judge, but to the courts and the Bar Assn., that I would not give an offhand opinion."

G. Leslie Field, attorney for Judge Culehan, claimed that the suit should be dismissed since Judge Culehan was acting as grand juror with judicial immunity in whatever action he had recommended against Hubard.

Larry S. Davidow, representing Hubbard, said that Culehan was not legally a grand juror after the first six months. He said that the grand jury was illegally extended by a private meeting of circuit court judges.

Judge Arch said he'd take the arguments home to study them, since the hearing on the motion ended yesterday.

Millionth Rotunda Visitor Gets 2 Electric Trains

DETROIT (AP)—Four-year-old Bobby Kovacs, of Detroit, has been honored as the one-millionth visitor to the Ford Motor Co.'s Rotunda since the building was reopened last June 16.

The Rotunda was used as an administrative building during World War II. Bobby received a 10-foot mounted village complete with two electric trains.

Fieldhouse at TCU Destroyed by Fire

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—The 27-year-old field house at Texas Christian University burned to the ground here last night.

Fullback Sammy Morrow, Horned Frog football star, said he heard something that sounded like an explosion, looked up and saw the west wall of the big wooden structure blow out.

Firemen said a "back draft" probably caused what several students thought was an explosion.

Amos Melton, assistant to the TCU president, said cost of replacement would run around $30,000. There was no estimate of the value of equipment destroyed in the blaze.

Farmers Like to Produce for Human Consumption---Not Storage Bins

By G. H. ARRIS, L. O. WARNER
Province Journal-Bulletin

(This is a series on trends in the nation's farm belt).

Go down to the Boot Heel, (in southeast Missouri) though. We found cotton growers in the ratio of about 8 out of 10 plumping solidly for controls and high supports.

A farm supply dealer in New Madrid County summed it up:

"Boy, I'm going to tell you something. The parity formula is way out of whack. The farmer's efficiency has improved so much that supports are too high. But most of these farmers around here are going to tell you they are for 90 per cent support. Mr. Benson would be a mighty unpopular man down here because he is telling the truth. He knows we've got too much cotton, too much everything. But the farmers don't like to listen to him."

Cotton farmers go down the line for government-guaranteed high market price, accepting acreage allotments as a supplementary evil.

Cotton Farmers Split on Control

Contrasted with cotton farmers in southern Missouri, others in the central and northern parts of the state side with the flexible support advocates.

"The fellows who are squawking," said a Lewis County cattle and hog feeder, "are the ones who don't want to work. They'd rather go to a community auction every day and sit on the top rail and complain. I stay home and try to work."

No statewide test of the national administration's policies comes up next year in Missouri. It's the off year on senatorial elections.

Even so, in sizing up the political climate in Missouri, it is clear that the state would return to the Democratic column on the presidential level, if an election were to be held now.

Why?

"Because," said a Bates County farmer, simply, "It is normally a Democratic state."

Across the Mississippi River, in Kansas, the country's greatest wheat-growing area, you pick up again strong support for the Republican administration and a particular liking for Benson and what he stands for.

Food for People Not for Binds

Kansas, which has prospered bountifully under the farm support program, nonetheless abhors high supports.

We found in this state more than anywhere else a nausea at the thought of producing wheat for storage. High fixed supports get the blame.

Like good farmers everywhere, Kansas wheat producers would like to think they are growing food for consumption, not for Commodity Credit Corporation bins.

Wheat is big business in this almost fabulous tableland state where a little farm is 500 acres and he big ones run to 5,000.

Wheat growing is big. It's efficient. Kansas farmer's put the onus of mountainous surpluses on the smaller wheat farmers along the eastern edge of the Middle West — Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Illinois, not necesarily because these farms are marginal but because they are small. To a Kansan, it follows that the small farm is the high cost farm.

"Those fellows back there," is a common remark, "are in the wheat business at the 15 to 20-acre level only because high supports keep them there."

"Wheat is stabilized too high. I don't know how much too high. But, anyway, these supports make wheat growing too profitable for too many."

Kansas sentiment is strongly for a two-price wheat system—more so than any other farm belt state. Under this plan of support, wheat earmarked for domestic consumption would be supported while wheat sold abroad would go at the world market price.

Although economists generally raise eyebrows when a dual pricing system is mentioned, the theory is that free-priced wheat, sold abroad at world prices, would get us back into the world market. A common argument against high fixed wheat supports is that foreign consumers buy wheat from countries other than the United States because they can get it for less money.

Like the majority of farmers anywhere in the West, Kansas also wants to get back as soon as possible to a free marketing position for all its production.

Standing in the way though are those gigantic wheat surpluses, which flit nightmarishly through any farmer's dreams. What to do about them? How to dispose of them, is the prime question. How to get rid of them without killing farmers?

Farm Belt View on Foreign Trade

Farmers think of many angles in such circumstances. One such thought, which we heard generally in the farm belt, is that perhaps the expansion of foreign trade through reciprocal agreements would bring about greater foreign consumption of U. S. farm products.

"What does the industrial East think of reciprocal trade" was a common question. "Are labor and management in your part of the country willing to lower the bars on foreign-made industrial products so as to give foreigners dollars with which to buy our wheat?"

The farm belt thinks this is one way out of the surplus dilemma.

Of course, additional dollars are not necessarily going to send friendly nations rushing to these shores for American wheat if it can be bought cheaper elsewhere, and this fact is acknowleged, although not generally.

But, reciprocal trade is a straw. "It might work."

The majority of Kansas wheat farmers are behind Benson. There is less criticism of him here than in other parts of the farm belt. There is also more willingness to give him time to work out the problem, to put together a new farm program. There is less of a sense of urgency.

'I think Mr. Benson wants to do the right thing," was the judgment of a Dodge City farmer who with his eight brothers, farms 2,500 acres of wheatland. He came in from the field where the season's first blizzard was making up to talk to us.

Solution May Take Four to Five Years

"A lot of these fellows start yapping," he snapped, "if a man can't give them a miracle change. I figure it will take four to five years to put any sort of a good change into effect. But these politicians are always jumping.

We found Benson's chief critics in Kansas to be those who think he is leaning too heavily on the advice of those who surround him in the agriculture department.

"He's failing to exercise his own good judgment," was the common complaint.

Farmers think Benson has the ability to put a good farm programe together. They think he should step forward boldly and do so.

Here again, though, we ran smack up against a familiar declaration.

"Maybe he's doing so. But we haven't heard anything about it."

We combed Kansas finely for downright opposition to the agriculture secretary. We hunted out confirmed Democrats. The worst we came up with was the remark of a Ford County farmer, who more or less typified the opposition line:

"Benson is a pretty good man. But I don't think he knows what it is all about. He has an awfully rough deal ahead of him, though."

Again there was that old feeling of uncertainty. Maybe Benson did know his way around. But the farmer hadn't heard.

We left Kansas with the conviction that, as things stand at present, Senator Schoeppel, Republican, will have no trouble carrying his state next November.

Corny Deal in Dizzy World

The operator of a grain elevator in Paullina, Iowa—the rich, black earth country—was interrupted in his discussion of the farm problem by the entrance of a tall, goodlooking young man wearing a GI cap and overalls. The young farmer asked the price of corn. He whistled slowly when he was told it was $1.32 a bushel. A few days earlier the price had been $1.30.

But the young farmer decided to buy, and left the office to back his tractor-drawn wagon beneath the loading chute.

The elevator operator resumed his discussion.

"Now you, take that young fellow," he said. "He's a good farmer. He's got 2,000 bushels of corn on his farm right now, sealed for government money, but he comes here and buys corn from me."

Why?

"I'll tell you why. This corn I've got for $1.32 is stuff I picked up; this year's crop. Picked it from odd piles and from fellows who don't want anything to do with government money.

"Well, that young fellow comes here and buys it for $1.32 a bushel and then sells his corn to the government for $1.52 a bushel.

"It's a dizzy world, ain't it?"

Japanese to Walk Out, Want to Work Longer

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese workmen are going on strike because they want to work longer hours than the U.S. Army allows.

To them the 40-hour week of American workmen isn't long enough. They are paid by the hour so longer hours means bigger pay checks.

The Army said today the labor liaison officer at Camp Yokohama near Tokyo was notified that 1,300 workers would strike tomorrow because of opposition to the 40-hour work week.

HST Will Cut Ribbon, Naming Truman Road

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP)—Van Horne street has been known as Truman road for a long time but the name becomes official today when Independence's leading citizen cuts a ribbon.

Harry S. Truman and his daughter Margaret will take part in a parade before the ribbon-cutting ceremony. About 175 Missouri and federal government officials will be on hand.

UM Gridder Balog Named in Assault, Battery Case

ANN ARBOR (AP)—Jim Balog, star tackle on the University of Michigan football team, was to be arraigned in municipal court today on assault and battery charges, according to Ann Arbor police.

Balog, senior from Wheaton, Ill., was arrested on the complaint of university freshman Guy V. Foster of Davison, Mich. Foster claimed he was hit in the face by Balog during a street altercation last Wednesday night and suffered multiple fractures of the jaw. He made the charges yesterday afternoon after his release from University Hospital.

According to Clark E. Andrew, Livonia, Mich., freshman, Foster was struck by the football player after the two had accidently collided on the street. Andrew, Foster's roommate, said they had both apologized after bumping into Balog and an unidentified companion while out for a walk. After the apologies were made, Andrew said, Balog "suddenly slugged" Foster.

Police Sgt. Claude Dameron said Balog admitted striking Foster and was eager "to make amends."

Balog had been signed to play in the North-South game at Miami, Fla., Dec. 26.

Is 'Guilty' of Cruelty to Two Children

DETROIT (UP) — Mrs. Edith May Hubbard, 50, in whose state-licensed boarding home police found two badly beaten children, was found guilty of cruelty to children Monday of a jury of 10 men and two women.

Circuit Judge Joseph A. Moynihan released Mrs. Hubbard on bond pending sentence. Her husband, Harold, 55, faces trial on a similar charge.

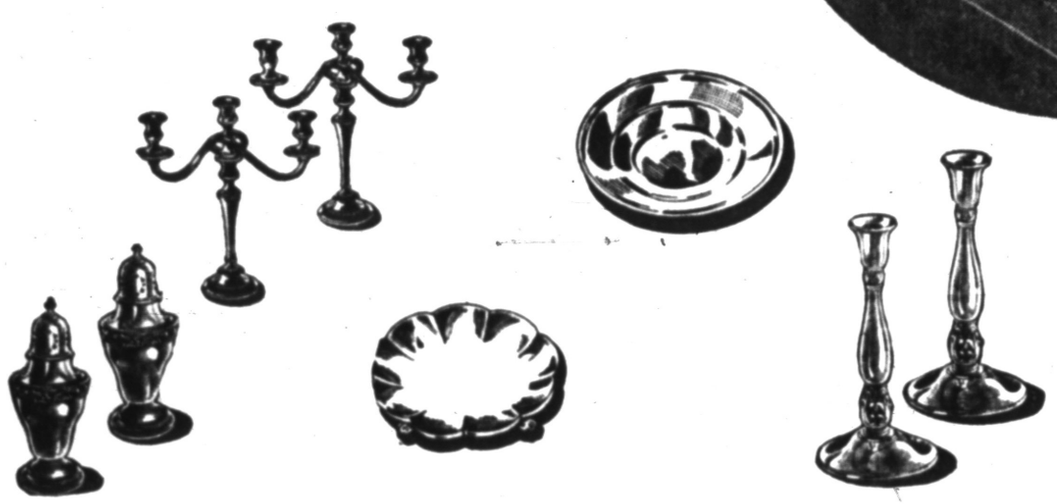

Mrs. Hubbard was arrested last July when police found that John Patwin, a 17-month-old child left in her care, had been beaten severely. Her husband was accused of beating a 3-year-old child.

Gals Will Have to Keep on Their Toes

Mr. America Getting All Prettied-Up

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

The American male is getting so conscious of his own beauty it's affecting the national economy.

The American male waistline has shrunk from two to four inches in the last few years, according to clothing manufacturers, who have revised their standard sizes for men's suits. F. Eugene Ackerman, top executive of one of the country's largest woolen companies, says:

* * *

"There's no doubt that today's men are figure-conscious. This is due to several factors, such as the repeated warnings of life insurance companies, and the insistence of large corporations that their executives submit to regular medical checkups. The first thing a doctor does, of course, is cast a cold and pitiless eye on the corporate bay window and put the guy on a diet.

"The most popular subject of conversation at any country club these days is 'How I took off 20 pounds.' It rivals the golf score as a source of male satisfaction. And if you don't run for cover, the gentleman will insist on giving you his diet."

The once standard sizes 48 to 52 in men's suits are finding fewer and fewer customers these days, and in many instances are relegated to shops specializing in outsizes.

* * *

Men also are buying more cosmetics. Having regained their boyish figures, they are sprucing up in other ways. Jacqueline Cochran, the well-known aviatrix and cosmetician, bought a men's cosmetics company after she prepared a speech for the Harvard Business School and discovered that men bought 38 per cent of all bottled toiletries.

The boys used to be satisfied with only a little talc and shaving lotion. Today they buy millions of gallons of cologne every year, in addition to such things as hairdressings, deodorants and creams for skin and scalp care.

Men's beauty salons are booming, with a brisk trade in permanent waves, hair dye and toupees among businessmen, who have decided it's good business to look young.

* * *

Then there's the great spurt in sales of men's clothing. It has trebled in recent years, due to the capitulation of the once-conservative American male to such things as fancy vests, sports coats and specialized clothing for leisure wear—golf clothes, hunting gear, ski wear and the like. The increased leisure of the average man, of course, accounts for much of this.

The new beauty-consciousness of Mr. America delights not only clothing manufacturers and cosmetics makers, but the life insurance companies, who see an upcurve in the lifeline for every reduction in the waistline.

* * *

The only fly in all this ointment is that if the boys keep getting handsomer, it's going to take a lot of hard work and dieting for the gals to keep up with them.

Give New Look to Tired Rooms

A new look for a tired room, whether it is the teenager's, the guest room, or an upstairs den, is timely at Christmas when the family is all over the house and every day brings visitors.

New bedspreads and draperies give a new face to an old room, and for a quick, ready-made change consider new matching draperies and spreads in jacquard cotton.

They are worth attention because they carry the sanforized label and hence can be put into the washing machine without risking hazardous shrinkage which can be as bad as 12 inches on spreads of this type.

Take your choice of the bold, popular, modern plaids in this new line. On light or dark backgrounds they offer one or more color contrasts.

Solid-toned spreads are shown in a choice of 13 colors. Popular for the younger set is "Candy Mint," alternating stripes and circlets. For the very young, there is a delightful marionette design.

For Interesting Parties Develop Conversation

If you want to give five-star parties, don't fail to polish the fifth essential point, that so many hostesses neglect.

A five-star party is one in which the hostess gives equal care to the food and drinks, service, selection of guests, entertainment and conversation, so that all shine with equal luster.

Hundreds of women give the most painstaking care to the first four and little or no thought to the fifth. Conversation at their parties simply rocks along in any way that it happens to.

Yet conversation is an extremely important part of every party, running through it steadily from beginning to end. It can make people happy, bored, nettled or leave them feeling wounded. In short, it can make or break your party—and the direction it takes is largely up to you.

Guiding a conversation successfully without seeming to be a martinet is quite an art. But it is an art you can practice by thinking while your hands are busy with household tasks.

Here are a few ideas to start you:

Many hostesses, when introducing two guests, have a habit of mentioning the work of one or both. "Mr. Jones is one of our leading lawyers and he has just won an exceedingly interesting case. I'm sure you would be fascinated to hear about it, Miss Haynes."

If Mr. Jones is like thousands of others — faced with mountains of harder work, bigger economic worries and increasingly less time to play — the last thing he may want to think of at that moment is his work. Why force him to it?

Other hostesses have a way of introducing a career woman as if she were some kind of peculiar—even if interesting—bug. "She does the most fascinating work! Do make her tell you all about it, Mrs. Lacy."

If the career woman is like most, she is willing to do her part to help swing the party. But she may quite properly consider that any twitter about a woman's career is quite outdated today and that, furthermore, she was invited as a guest, not as an entertainer.

Of course, human nature being what it is, some of these people will be found talking about their work in 10 minutes if left to their own devices. But you might like to consider the kindness of giving them their choice.

In a group of guests small enough for general conversation, what can you talk about? Of course much depends on the people concerned and the community.

But in any case, why not take your inspiration from your daily newspaper and radio — and the great wealth of interesting developments and doings they report? The new kinds of houses, new books, new movies, hobbies, sports and even women's fashions. Men will be much more talkative on the subject of women's fashions than you might imagine.

To keep all your guests feeling friendly, it's a good idea to leave out politics. Other topics it is generally safer to avoid are somebody's serious illness or trouble or a neighbor child's escapade.

The goal is interesting talk about interesting topics that will leave people stimulated and refreshed. Don't be discouraged if neither you nor your guests shine with particular brilliance at first.

Yule Music Presented Before Club

Workshop Stages Program for City Women's Group

A program of Christmas music was presented by Tuesday Musicale Workshop to members of Pontiac Women's Club Monday afternoon at the YWCA.

"He Shall Feed His Flock Like a Shepherd" was sung by Mrs. Gordon Woolcock, and Mrs. Victor Lindquist sang "Come Unto Him" from Handel's Messiah. She was accompanied by Mrs. Ferdinand Gaensbauer.

Mrs. William Furlong played "Rustle of Spring," by Cinding, "A La Bien Mie" by Schutt and a medley of Christmas carols on the piano.

"I Wonder as I Wander" was sung by Mrs. C. W. Buck, and Mrs. Buck, Mrs. Lindquist and Mrs. Woolcock sang three foreign carols.

Mrs. Philip Vieriech read "The Christmas Story," and Mrs. Charles Lloyd served as chairman of the day. Refreshments were served following the program.

5-Minute Naps Help Avoid Droopiness

Taking a five-minute nap a few times during the day is an excellent insurance against droopiness. Even if you do not actually sleep, you will benefit from the restful quiet.

And there are plenty of opportunities for everyone: on a public conveyance, while waiting for someone in a public place, while waiting for dinner at home.

Keep Down Thigh Weight

Teen-agers, if you have noticed that your thighs have a tendency to be heavy, don't wait until they are really a problem to do something about it.

The flesh that forms in that area usually becomes very solid and therefore difficult to reduce. Check that tendency now and you'll be proud of your foresight when bathing-suit time again is with us.

Here are a few exercises that will help you:

1. Sit on the floor, putting hands behind for balance. Raise one leg and slap it on the floor, hard; then slap down the other. Beat each leg about 50 times.

2. Lie flat on your bed and bend the left knee, bringing it up slowly and rhythmically to meet your bent right elbow. Switch to right knee and left elbow. Do up to 12 times.

3. Again lying flat on bed, raise legs straight up, one at a time, and alternately do the bicycle exercise up to 12 times.

To encourage yourself to exercise, notice women when they are sitting. You'll be surprised to see that many of them, even when wearing heavy dresses, reveal thighs that are awkward with weight.

Toy That Is Fun, Durable Favorite

The parent, doting aunt or family friend who want to gift a favorite child with something new and different would do well to remember that this year's three-year-old has never been three before. The classics that are old stuff to adults —tricycle, wagon, paint set—are new to him. Now they are available in 1953 versions — diesel locomotives and space helmets.

By taking into account children's perennial interests when you shop for toys, you can help them do what children have always liked to do — to push and pull and ride, to build and knock down, to create and pretend, to cuddle, to make noise, and sometimes, to sit still.

Toys are available according to these interests in a variety that includes something for any age and either sex. Important to note: Give toys that will last, in interest as well as in fact.

Although playthings aid in a child's development, education and socialization, your criteria in selection should be whether or not it is fun. "When a toy is fun to play with, it's wonderful fun to give."

Charltons Residing in City

Residing on Murphy avenue after an Ohio honeymoon are Mr. and Mrs. James Matthew Charlton, who were married Dec. 5 in Barnett Chapel of First Baptist Church.

The bride is the former Dorotha Locille Hull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hull of Elizabeth Lake road. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Thomas Charlton of Oliver street and the late Mr. Charlton.

The Rev. H. H. Savage performed the service before members of the families.

For the candlelight ceremony the bride wore a street-length dress of rose beige taffeta ornamented with lace and rhinestones and she wore pink accessories. A semi-cascade of gardenias and stephanotis formed her bouquet.

Mrs. Walter Smock was matron of honor in coca brown taffeta with aqua accessories. Her colonial bouquet was of Saturn carnations.

Robert Ryerse was best man and Sydney Tuson seated the guests.

Receiving 200 guests in the church parlors, Mrs. Hull wore a gown of Wedgewood blue lace over taffeta and a corsage of garnet roses and butterscotch daisy chrysanthemums. Mrs. Charlton wore navy blue crepe with pink accessories and a corsage of pink Briarcliff roses.

Christmas Customs Vary by Countries

Candles are lighted in windows in Ireland by the girl in the family whose name is Mary, to guide the Christ-child through the dark. In France the children wait for the Petit Noel to come down the chimney to bring them gifts. The older ones keep a night watch to welcome Christmas.

Midnight mass is celebrated in the churches, and afterward all visit the creche, which represents the Bethlehem scene. In England each member of the family must sit on the yule log for good luck before it is lit. A piece must be saved with which to kindle next year's log.

Time Is Element for Yule Cookies

We have had a question about keeping Christmas cookies. According to the experts, cookies rich with fruit, nuts and honey will keep well for several weeks. You may substitute honey for all or part of the liquid in any drop cookie recipe, and the cookie will keep well.

Butter-type cookies have a shorter life. But they may be made any time now for good eating. Make the fragile meringue cookies just before you want to serve them. Some bar cookies that you roll in powdered sugar dry out; make them at the last minute too.

Guests May Look Over Yule Cards

It's Quite Proper to Examine Greetings on Display

By EMILY POST

Today's first letter tells me: "We receive quite a lot of Christmas cards each year. Many of them are quite beautiful, and we use them as part of our Christmas decoration by displaying them on the fireplace and stringing them up around the doorway. Many of our friends display their cards in the same way.

"I would like to know if it is proper for a visitor to go around looking at all the cards to see who sent them? I think it is a very rude thing to do and that these cards should be treated like any other Christmas decoration.

"Several of my friends disagree with me about this and think it is perfectly proper for a visitor to read the names on the cards if he wants to. Will you please answer this in your column?"

Answer: I agree with your friends. It certainly is not improper to take an interest in objects that you put up on your wall. If not to be looked at, why would they be put on display?

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been invited to a luncheon next week by an acquaintance who is socially prominent in this town. Would it be proper to send her some flowers the day after the luncheon with a thank-you note, or might this seem like a bid to get into her good graces?

Answer: The very fact that she is socially prominent is the principal reason why it would be best not to do it. The day after the luncheon you go to see her, and if she is not at home, you leave your visiting card, and that is all that is required.

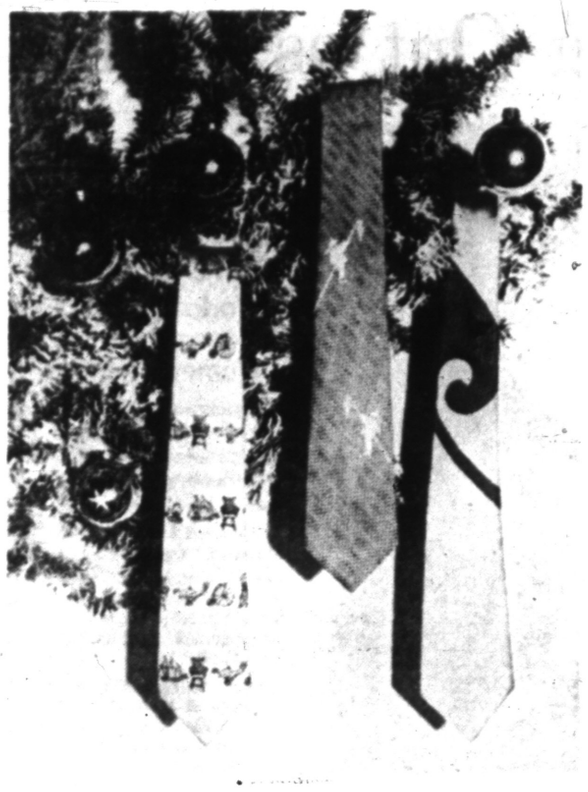

Dear Mrs. Post: (1) How does one introduce a new husband to friends who do not know that there has been a marriage and who do not know my married name? (2) How are friends greeted from across the restaurant floor?

Answer: (1) Say "My husband" and then pause and add, "His name is John Jones." (2) A woman bows and smiles whether to a man or to a woman. A man bows to a man but he should half rise in his seat as he bows to a woman.

Relax With Bath After Shopping

All tuckered out after Christmas shopping? One good way to relax after a shopping excursion is to take a hot bath.

You don't need to spend money for fancy bath salts, either. Dump a half-pound of baking soda into the tub and luxuriate in that. The same soda bath will help those aching feet.

Wish all your male friends a Merry Christmas with a festive gift of beautiful ties. Antique figures (left) are printed on pebbly silk. Gold coolies are printed on textured surface silk (center) and a modernistic curve of charcoal offers sharp contrast in the tie on the right which is made of silver gray ribbed silk.

Tricky Hats to Be Avoided

A black velvet jockey hat topped by a button might be adorable on a pert teen-ager. But on a woman near 50, it could be described only as ridiculous.

The hat bar habit has hit almost every woman in the land. And a good one it is, if one approaches it with a little restraint. So many of the creations that adorn these bars are designed for the younger misses. And they do nothing good for those who are older.

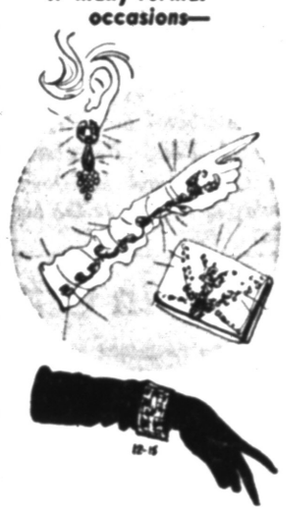

The older woman would be wise to avoid anything that is "tricky." Her hats certainly should not be ultraconservative or old-looking. But they should harmonize with the rest of her costume, which we presume is suited to her mature dignity.

Some older women can wear certain off-beat hats very well. These hats might be described as having gaiety tempered with sophistication.

And it is worth the effort to hunt for them. Getting to know your hat bar sales girl will help. When these rarities come in among the wisps of naivete, she'll lead you to them.

Keep Mat Handy

Keep an easy-to-wash rubber mat near your back door so that the children can stack their winter boots and rubbers in a convenient spot without causing damage. Mother can sponge the mat with a soapy cloth when necessary.

IF many formal occasions—

Give her rhinestone and pearl jewelry, squin embroidered gloves and bag, or black suede gloves and handbag to set off gold mesh jewels.

Miss F. O.—The luxury and elegance of brilliant jewelry makes a handsome addition to dressy outfits. Great big rhinestone hoops if she's a "big girl" because she needs big and impressive accessories. Modify the size for the tiny woman.

Older Woman With Too Much Time Pitches In and Earns College Degree

By ANNE HEYWOOD

One day a woman telephoned my office to see if she could have a talk with me.

"But do you have any age limit?" she asked my assistant shyly.

"No," was the answer. "We have everything from new college graduates to grandmothers!" There was a pause, then a chuckle.

"Well," the woman said, "I'm both!"

She was, too, as well as being one of the peppiest women I ever met. I shall call her Mrs. T.

"I have three children," she told me, "and when the first was married I had a terrible lost feeling. I sat down and figured things out, then and there.

"Here was Betty, married and gone. It was just a matter of time, I could see, before the other two left. Meantime, they both had jobs, and my husband was busy at his.

"In other words, I had a great deal of time to myself. I decided not to wait until all the kids were gone and I was really blue. I decided to do something then and there."

Mrs. T. had an active mind, but she had married too young to go to college.

"I had my high school diploma," she said, "and at first, I thought maybe I'd just take a course or two at the city college.

"I went to the adult education people to get advice. They were wonderful. Among other things, they suggested that I take vocational tests. Imagine! Vocational tests for a 46-year-old woman.

"Anyway, I did, and the tests came out indicating that I was 'college material.'"

Mrs. T. talked it over with her family.

"It seemed awfully silly," she said, "but the more I thought about it, the more I thought college would be fun. I enrolled at our city college and I was kept pretty busy. But I felt like a new woman.

"It was wonderful to realize that I wasn't stupid and that I could learn as well as the next one.

"Well, that was six years ago, and now I have my college diploma. It's been work, but it's been worth it.

"And in the meantime, the other two children have married, and I have lots of time now. I'm going to get a job.

"My friends all thought I was crazy, but they don't any more. Year after year, they've been playing bridge and canasta and just moping, and for the same amount of time, I've gotten a college degree!"

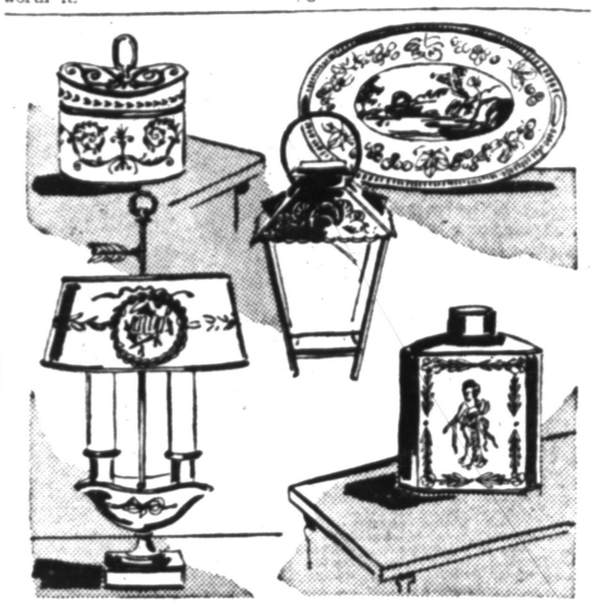

Plastic Draperies Easy to Clean

Plastic draperies feature a wonderful built-in wipe-off-ability. You never need to remove such draperies from the windows for washing.

Just wipe them down with a sudsy cloth and that's all there is to it. And you never have to worry if an open window lets in rain or snow as plastic draperies can withstand the weather.

To Wash Angora

Rely on lukewarm soapsuds and rinses when washing angora. Use the same care given any other type of wool, plus a brisk shaking when dry to fluff up the nap.

Pre-Yule Is Good Time to Study Decorative Items

By ELIZABETH HILLYER

Now's a good time to learn somest as well as the largest colthe home—now, during the pre-Christmas shopping season when there's so much to see.

Single out one or two types of decorative objections and study them while the finest and handsomest as well as the argest co lection is displayed, to sharpen a new appreciation of tbeir beauty.

Tole might be this year's discovery. Tole is painted metal, originally and still often tin; but it may be iron, steel or even aluminum.

Tole is a very particular kind of painted metal, hand-decorated in typical designs, and the colors, rich but muted green, red, blue and yellow, belong to tole so definitely that they are sometimes called Tole colors when used otherwise.

Tole may also be white or black. Gilt is always prominent in its decoration.

The examples sketched were made in France in the same way tole was made there originally in the late 18th and early 19th century.

Add to Trays, Tableware

Color Will Cheer Invalid

The busy homemaker, with an invalid in the house can add appeal to mealtime trays easily by using colorful tableware.

Authorities advise that the invalid responds to color quickly, and that the interest created by pleasing color combinations has a good effect. Attractive serving stimulates appetite, and aids in putting the patient on the road to recovery.

Try to get away from the old hackneyed colors in assembling your tableware. Use greens the color of spruce, yellow the hue of butter, cinnamon and other unusual brown shades.

When you wish to achieve a quiet and restful note, use soft, muted colors, such as cool grays, greens and soft blues. Select subtle shades that have been lightened with white for other quietly pleasing color schemes. For gaiety and cheer, combine warm colors; mix orange with yellow, red and gold, and lime yellow and peach.

Follow the principle of simple arrangement, color and texture contrast, and you can serve as charmingly on trays as for any other dining occasion. Colorful handmade American glassware can meet your need for variety. You can match it with pottery on linens in harmonizing tones.

It is important to choose a tray that is light enough to be easily carried and handled. It should also be large enough to permit an uncrowded appearance when all the dishes are on it. The former custom of placing a mat or napkin on the tray has been changed because of the many trays whose materials, either satiny wood or textured or painted metal, are eye-pleasing in themselves. Simply put the dishes directly on the tray.

Designers of American handmade glass, and the skilled artisans who create it, are turning out scores of pastel and vivid shades from which the homemaker can choose colors to make invalid trays more attractive. Some of these new tones harmonize and contrast effectively with informal, colorful pottery so much in vogue now. Others are suited to the delicate shades of more formal dinnerware. Brighten up the invalid's day by serving dinner "in style" with your very best crystal and china.

Novel Eyeglass Frames Help Accent Youth

The coming of eyeglass frames into the realm of fashion has done wonders for the morale of many young women.

They took to the harlequin frames, the gold-dusted ones and the black ones, too, with sheer delight.

Somehow, though, many older women have clung to their old styleless frames. Perhaps they fear making the wrong choice.

Or perhaps they think the colored and shaped frames are too dashing for their years.

Actually, the new styles can add greatly to the attractiveness of the older woman. The right shape and color will soften her expression, erasing years.

In fact, the selection of becming frames is now among the major grooming steps of all women who wear glasses, but particularly of the older women.

To help yourself make the right decision, look for pictures of models wearing glasses.

Study the shapes of their faces and of the frames. This should help you to visualize what would look best on you.

Of course, you should be allowed plenty of time to try on the various styles when you make your purchase. But it will help to have a good idea of what is becoming.

In deciding color, consider the colors that predominate in your wardrobe as well as the color of your hair and your skin tones.

And, by the way, if you wear eyeglasses all the time, do not wear veils or dangling earrings. Hats that come forward on the head should also be avoided.

BILLIE MARIE DEEM

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Deem of Stirling avenue are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Billie Marie, to Daniel D. Donnelly. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Donnelly of Lockwood road.

Santa's Pack Will Bulge With Toys That Teach as Well as Entertain

Girl Wonders What Sort of Welcome She Should Give Poor Correspondent

By ELIZABETH WOODWARD

"Dear Miss Woodward: The boy I like goes away to school. I've written him quite often but I've received from him only one letter a month all fall.

"My parents tell me not to count on him and want me to forget him because I hear from him so seldom. But he hasn't had time! He has his homework, he goes out for sports and he works after school.

"I understand why I haven't heard more often — but my parents won't. He'll be home for the holidays and I'm wondering whether or not to put out the welcome mat. What do you say?"

When he's home, just around the corner and in the mood to play, you'll undoubtedly hear from him. He's likely to call you up as soon as he gets home to find out what's cooking.

So be ready with a tasty menu. Have something planned to which you can invite him. But suggest that he come around quick to let you see whether he's changed or not. If his enthusiasm for being with you tops his casualness about letter writing, spread out the red carpet!

"Dear Miss Woodward: Last summer I met a very nice boy who asked for my address so he could correspond with me when he went back to college. He did write me a letter when school started and I answered it right away.

"He came to see me one night and told me he'd answer my letter the next day. But I waited for a week — I was so worried I wrote to him.

"He answered that letter and said he'd been having so many tests he couldn't find time to write. He asked me to forgive him and said he thinks a lot of me.

"I answered that letter two weeks ago and still haven't received a reply from him. I really don't know what to think, or how to act when I see him again. What do you think I should do?"

You've pinned your hopes hard on those letters to get you two launched on a big romance. You take very seriously indeed the letters you write, and you expect immediate answers in kind. And you're terribly let down when there's any delay.

Obviously, this boy you're writing to has a different point of view. When he first asked for your address, he was caught up in a mood of fun and excitement on meeting you and he wanted to keep in touch.

But the actual doing of it is something else. He came to see you instead of answering your first letter, which was apparently easier and more fun for him. Yet you worried because you had nothing on paper and you wrote him again for explanation. That wrung an apology out of him—and that's the last you've heard.

The lad will write when he feels like it. You can't force him. If you hound him with mail, he'll consider you an embarrassing nuisance.

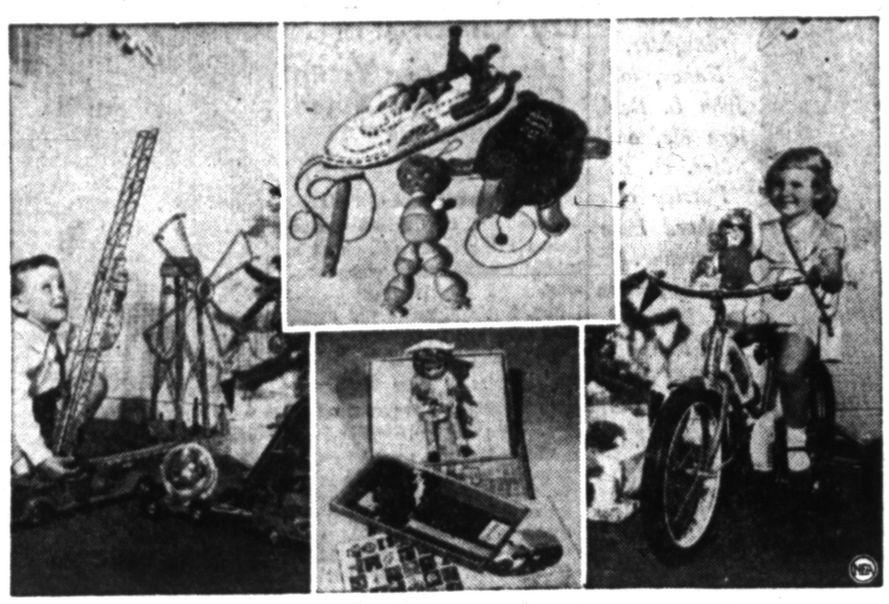

Send him a Christmas card if you don't see him or hear from him before vacation starts. And let him do whatever getting in touch is done in the new year. If there is none, it is because the thread was too thin to keep you together.

Blend Eye Shadow

Brown or gray eye shadow can be used to minimize unattractive features. Blend it in carefully before applying your regular foundation to the remainder of your face.

Santa's toy pack this year will be loaded with how-to items. The little girl who has a yen to be a nurse might receive a convertible four-wheel bike (right) which comes with a shoulder strap bag full of first-aid essentials, an apron and a nurse's cap. A railroad trestle set with supports that resemble girder construction and a miniature miner's work train will thrill would-be engineers. Junior firemen may find under their trees fire trucks (left) that feature 4-foot extension ladders of cast aluminum. Among the new games (lower left center) is a cross-word board game that makes word-building fun. Another, a streamlined version of bingo, will practically guarantee A's in geography. Dolls also manifest the toys-with-a-purpose trend. Many come with kits designed to foster interest in good grooming. Other toys can be found that feature making a game of tooth brushing, tidy eating and going to bed.

Housekeeping Hints Can Ease Yuletide Chores

The holiday season is here and you must be pretty busy arranging your Christmas decorations and making plans for your holiday dinner. That's why you'll probably be interested in some timesaving devices when it comes to your housekeeping.

During the Christmas season, you may be making use of several candle decorations. That means candlewax will be spilling on some of your cloths.

To clean them easily, first scrape off the waxy blobs with a butter spreader. Then, before laundering, dissolve the remaining wax by soaking it in a cleaning fluid.

For starting a fireplace fire without paper or kindling, use a small compressed cylinder wrapped in foil. They're sold nine to a box.

To use one of the cylinders, unfold the foil to a dish shape, place it beneath the logs, and light the wick. The cylinder burns about 30 minutes, long enough to start a really crackling blaze.

If you have young children in your home and you want to forestall disputes over ownership of toys, especially after Christmas presents are opened, here's an idea you might try:

Mark the children's toys with personalized decals. The decals cling to any solid surface. Order them in lots of 50 or more, with name only or with name and address.

If you want to remove plastic snow from your windows, the kind that comes in a pressure can, you may have some difficulty. By New Year's Day these decorations are well dried out, and simple washing wouldn't remove them.

Got Their 'Rest' on Straw Ticks

Not too many years back mattresses as we know them today were not a part of the average American family's equipment. Sleepers derived what comfort they could from straw ticks.

Straw ticks—in case anyone is unfamiliar with them—were big mattress-sized sacks, usually dark blue with white stripes, of a strong, durable canvas-like material.

Periodically, they were washed, sun-dried, and re-stuffed by hand with dried grain stalks from the fields. Occasionally field mice, small snakes, ticks and fleas unintentionally were included in the filling.

Although a newly filled straw tick was wonderfully plump and comfortable, it soon developed lumps and sags that no amount of smoothing, patting or beating would remedy.

Mary Margaret McBride Says:

Viking Spirit May Explain Norway's Swift Recovery

Sounds like heaven—a land where no child is undernourished, no capable man lacks a job, no family lives in a slum.

Sounds like heaven, but it's right up in northern Europe—little Norway, its bigger neighbors sometimes call it.

MISS McBRIDE

"Aren't there any lazy people in your country"? I asked Norway's Foreign Minister Halvard Lange in New York the other day.

"All Norwegians are supposed to be lazy for three weeks every year," Dr. Lange replied. "It is the law that all employed are entitled to annual three-week holidays with pay, and even if they want to, we don't like them to work then. We try to educate them to use the time just to be lazy."

I commented upon the fact that everybody in Norway seems to speak English and added the guess that there's scarcely any illiteracy.

"Maybe a very little among the older Lapps in the north who move with their reindeer herds," Dr. Lange said apologetically, adding: "The young ones are all right; we have a boarding school system for them."

What makes so much of what Norway is at the moment seem almost incredible is that the country was occupied completely in the second World War and all the vast northern stretches were systematically destroyed under the Nazi scorched-earth policy.

"We had to begin at the very beginning," recounted Dr. Lange. "We had to build roads, put up houses, and even dig wells for all the 70,000 people who live up by the Polar Sea. We had to reconstruct our fishing fleet and our merchant marine."

In the seven years of energetic rehabilitation, Norway has doubled her electric power, is developing iron and steel works and is now able to export aluminum.

Last summer I traveled the length of the country and saw for myself the wonders these people have accomplished in a part of the world where winter nights last for months.

Tiny Tromso, entrance to the Arctic country, and Hammerfest, northernmost city in the world surrounded by glaciers and rugged mountains of barren rock, are neat, bustling frontier towns today with few evidences left of what happened less than a decade ago.

If Norway can accomplish such wonders, I don't see why the rest of the world can't. But maybe it's the old Viking spirit that's lacking some other places.

That Viking spirit is certainly magnificent but occasionally terrifying. I shall remember always a trip in a single-motor military seaplane piloted by a blond, pink-cheeked Norseman from Trondheim over frozen fjords and black, jagged peaks to Bergen. As we heistated over Bergen, the young Viking said to me above the roar of the plane:

"I must find a place to put you down. I've never been here before.

Remembering with a shudder the awe-inspiring mountains close enough to reach out and touch with my hand that he had brought us over, I was reminded of the young man's ancestors who faced out into uncharted seas with their boats just as unconcernedly many hundreds of years ago.

Yes, the Viking spirit probably explains a lot.

Saw Off the Ends of Wire Brushes

You can salvage your wire brushes for extra service by hack-sawing the ends off when the bristles become broken or bent. Brushes usually wear most at the ends and sawing the worn ends off will let you work into the corners with the ends again, with the bristles on the rest of the handle.

Pastels Are for Milady in Britain

LONDON (INS)—Twilight pastels and striking contrasts will be fashionable for milady in Britain this winter.

Forecasting the new trends, the British Color Council, which cooperates with the big fashion houses, said that silks and rayons will show soft pastels like "Mauve Shadow," "Misty Lilac," "Nebular Gray" and "Pearl Blue."

Virginia Red, a deep rich crimson, an night violet, are shown in contrast to the more delicate hues which will be seen in woven designs in silks, rayon, nylon and new "mixed fiber" fabrics.

The Coronation pageantry also had an effect on winter colors. "Dancing Green," a sharp yellowish green, combines with "Sweet Apple Red" and "Fiesta Green," this season's interpretation of peacock.

"Silver Green" and "Elusive Green," introduced this seaon, are grayish greens of character and are expected to have a high fashion appeal.

Starling Defies Man's Ingenuity

No Weapon Is Effective as War on Pesky Bird Spreads to Fijis

WASHINGTON — The war between men and starlings has spread to the Fiji Islands.

Officials of the British possession in the South Pacific, alarmed as increasing numbers of starlings threaten banana and papaw crops, have called in an ornithologist from Australia to help them get rid of the pesky birds.

His choice of weapons is wide, though man's offensive against starlings has so far met with but limited success.

The common European starling (Sturnus vulgaris, vulgaris) is an aggressive, tough and adaptable creature, says the National Geographic Society. It has defied rattles, DDT, electrified wires, fireworks, gas-filled balloons, water hoses, supersonic waves, blank cartridges, stuffed owls, and ultraviolet rays.

Noise makers and other irritants have merely forced the starling to forsake their favorite roosts briefly, or to move to near-by shelters.

The European starling was first introduced into the New World in the 1890's. A U. S. manufacturer, president of the American Acclimatization Society, imported about a hundred of them from England as part of project to establish in this country all the birds that Shapespeare had mentioned.

They have moved into Mexico and into Canada, where they have been seen as far north as Churchpill, on the cold shores of Hudson Bay. They are at home in tropical Jamaica, and have been reported in Cuba, though not in Central or South America.

Washington sanitation authorities are now beginning a new anti-starling campaign, as the winter season for the heavy influx approaches. Some 500 bags of a smelly ("secret formula") chemical are being hung from infested trees along historic Pennsylvania Avenue. In other cities, whole lanes of fine old oaks have been cut down to discourage the birds.

Yet the starlings still have some defenders, who admire their swift and spectacular flights, their sturdy independence, and their talents for mimicry. These aliens reproduce the songs of many native birds, and even sounds of barking dogs, mewing cats, and human "wolf calls."

More important, starlings eat many crop and garden-destroying insects. The United States Senate not long ago refused to legalize the shooting of the capital's unwelcome bird guests, on the ground that they kept down Japanese beetles and other pests.

Right to Buy Tunnel Up to Wayne Board

DETROIT (AP)—The Wayne County Board of Supervisors will meet Thursday to decide whether to give the Port of Detroit Commission the right to buy the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel.

The commission, a Wayne County advisory group, based a request to the board on a recent survey of port facilities. They asked for enabling legislation to permit them to purchase the tunnel so that funds could be obtained for the building of adequate port facilities.

Detroit & Canada Tunnel Corp., a private company which owns the tunnel, has set no price on the big tube. But prices mentioned in connection with the tunnel that spans the Detroit River have ranged from $6,000,000 to $18,000,000.

MYSTERY WITNESS—Wearing a black hood to hide his identity, a survivor describes the massacre of 500 Lithuanians in 1941 by Soviet troops. The witness, fearful of reprisals against his family in Lithuania, testified before a House investigating committee in Detroit holding hearings on the seizure of Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania by the USSR.

Scientists Find Best Deposits of Early Mammals

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Museum of Natural History says it has found in southern Colorado the best single deposit ever discovered of mammals of the Eocene Period, the so-called "dawn age" of mammals some 50 to 60 million years ago.

Dr. George Gaylord Simpson, chairman of the museum's geology and paleontology department, said yesterday the deposit, in an area near Walsenburg, Colo., has yielded the fossilized remains of various species of mammals.

Chief among them, Simpson said, were eight practically perfect skulls of Eohippus, the "dawn horse" and earliest known ancestor of the present day horse.

Geologists describe Eohippus as a four-toes animal about half the size of a shetland pony.

Farm Problem Difficult to Solve

GOP Majority Leader Says His Party Wants Prosperous Agriculture

CHICAGO (AP)—Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, Republican majority leader in the House, said today the Eisenhower administration wants farmers to get a "fair" share of the national income.

But, he said, it does not want to make them wards of the government in doing so.

In a talk prepared for the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Halleck said it has been established that a prosperous agriculture is the "bellwether of our total domestic economy."

* * *

The GOP leader said answers to the problem of farm surpluses and lower prices are to be found in developing new uses for farm products, improvements in marketing systems, and development of a "greater food consciousness by our people."

"What I am suggesting," he said, "is simply that the problem of a sound and prosperous agricultural economy doesn't have a trick answer.

"There isn't any panacea, and the sooner we all realize that the sooner we will find the right solutions."

Security Data Order in Effect

Loosens Restrictions on Secret Information in U. S. Government

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's plan for yanking some of the secrecy tags from government documents went into effect today with no signs of any great outpouring of information previously kept confidential.

The order is avowedly intended to give the people "a maximum amount of information" without endangering national security.

It replaces a set of rules laid down by former President Truman Sept. 24, 1951, which Atty. Gen. Brownell called repressive and capable of permitting government officials to cover up mistakes and "dereliction of duty."

• • •

The new order emphasizes realistic decisions as to what security and national defense information should be secret. But officials stil can bottle up nonsecurity information by administrative action. And the secrecy of a lot more documents, such as income tax returns, is protected by law.

The Eisenhower program does away with the lowest, "restricted" category for classifying security data and leaves only confidential, secret and top secret gradings.

• • •

That means that as of last midnight, probably tons of documents labeled restricted no longer will be secret in any way. It doesn't mean the government is going to publish or mimeograph all of it, now or later on. But ordinary citizens or newsmen who know what they want will be entitled to have a look.

• • •

In many agencies it will take some time to rip off restricted stickers.

And some of the hitherto restricted material, instead of being declassified, is going to be shoved up to the higher confidential grade where it still will be secret—for example Pentagon documents relating to codes and some which foreign governments marked restricted.

• • •

The Commerce Department, with a much smaller stack of restricted papers, predicts about 90 per cent will be downgraded. The Treasury Department says the same of 80 to 85 per cent of its previously restricted information.

The presidential order takes away from 28 federal agencies any power to classify any material for security. But these are agencies dealing with such things as housing, parks, and battle monuments, which didn't handle any security secrets anyway.

In 17 of the remaining departments and agencies, only the top man—no underlings—can classify information.

Foreign born people were about 13.4 per cent of the U.S. population in 1900 but only 6.7 per cent of the population in 1950.

Spreckels Says Kay Attacked Him First

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—Adolph Spreckels II, heir to a sugar fortune, says his fifth ex-wife attacked him in a drunken fury.

Only then, he testified at his assault trial yesterday, did he strike her on the arm.

Kay Williams, 36, contends she was in the hospital for 10 days as a result of a beating she suffered at Spreckels' Balboa Island home last Aug. 20.

The defense rested its case yesterday after Spreckels, 41, took the witness stand.

Millville, Indiana Will Honor Wright

MILLVILLE, Ind. (AP) — With jet planes screaming overhead, this little town of 113 will honor its famous son, Wilbur Wright, Thursday.

That's the golden anniversary of the day that Wilbur and his brother Orville made the 59-second, 852-foot flight that began man's journey into the airways.

On April 16, 1863, Wilbur, the older of the two famous brothers, was born in Millville, midway between Newcastle and Hagerstown in east central Indiana.

The family moved to Ohio a year later, but returned to Richmond, Ind., when Wilbur was of high school age and Orville an elementary pupil.

4 Reds Named by FBI Witness

Foursome Is Linked to Flint Party Activities by Undercover Woman

DETROIT (AP)—At least four of six Michigan Communists charged with violating the Smith Act were tied to party activities in Flint yesterday, by a surprise government witness, Mrs. Beatrice Churchill.

Mrs. Churchill, who said she joined the party in 1946 at the request of the FBI and acted as an undercover agent for the G-men, named defendants Nat Ganley, Mrs. Helen A. Winter, Saul Wellman and Billy Allan.

The four, she said, were the ones she had dealing with in her capacity as an organizer for the party in the CIO United Auto Workers.

As an employe for the AC Spark Plug Division of General Motors Corp., Mrs. Churchill said she also had acted as an organizer for union Local 651 since 1942.

She said that she joined the party through a fellow worker who was a member. In 1947, she related, she became financial secretary of the AC-Fisher Club, and was president of that party organization from 1948 to 1950.

Mrs. Churchill said that she also became a member of the Saginaw Valley section of the party which, she said, reported only to the state leadership.

It was then that she named the four defendants whom she claimed she had dealings with.

She added that Billy Allan, Michigan correspondent for the Daily Worker, came to her Flint home to obtain news of union activities at the spark plug plant.

The 52-year-old auburn-haired woman took the stand as the third surprise "undercover" witness for the government.

Ceylon Ground Crew Goes on Hunger Strike

Jobs Booming for Hollywood Movie Horses

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Times may be tough for human actors in Hollywood, but the horses never had it so good.

Work for the equine talent is booming, thanks to TV, wide screens and the public's taste for action. When the studios switch to epics, the horses prosper.

I got some info on working conditions not from the horse's mouth but from Mel Ballard, a scholarly looking man who has acted as head wrangler on many a movie. Mel, who hails from farm country around Madison, Wis., and has worked with horses all his life, has been managing film nags off and on since 1932. He likes his work.

• • •

Mel was stage-directing 29 horses in a pageant scene for "Princess of the Nile." In between orders, he told me something about his charges.

• • •

"Most of these are saddle horses around 8 or 9 years old," he said. "That's about the right age for them. By that time, they've become set in their ways, just the way humans do when they've gotten along in life. They're calm and easy and don't get excited.

"The best horses for movie work come by thoroughbreds out of common mares. Pure thoroughbreds aren't suitable because they are too high strung. Movie horses have to remain placid no matter what amount of clatter is going on around them. They have to be easy to manage because usually the actors have too many other things to worry about."

• • •

It's interesting to note that the star system also exists in the horse world. The best horses draw $25 a day. They're the photogenic ones that the leading actors ride. As an example, Mel pointed out a beautiful white stallion Jeffrey Hunter was mounted on. Such pr donnas require the full time of one handler.

• • •

Next come the lead horses, that correspond to featured players in human casts. These are the smarter than average nags that can be counted on to lead the other horses through scenes. They draw up to $15 a day and two of them share a handler.

Further down the list are the extras, the plain plugs that help fill out the scenery. These also-rans get a mere $7.50 daily, and a wrangler can manage six of them.

Ford Calls Photograph Most Expensive Made

DETROIT (UP)—The Ford Motor Co. claims that the most expensive single photograph ever made was a group picture of 12,000 Ford employes taken many years ago.

The employes were paid during the time the picture was taken, thereby costing the company many thousands of dollars in time and loss of production, it was explained.

Plane Workers Ratify Pay Hike

North American Boost of 4 Per Cent Follows Other Agreements

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Striking North American Aviation, Inc., employes in Fresno, Calif., have ratified a union-management agreement providing a 4 per cent wage increase. Workers at plant here and in Columbus, Ohio, ballot today.

The agreement was reached by negotiators here early yesterday, presaging an early resumption of warplane production. Some 33,000 workers in the three plants left their jobs Oct. 23.

The agreement between North American and the CIO United Auto Workers came a few hours after new contracts had been ratified by 35,000 employes at Lockheed Aircraft Corp., and Douglas Aircraft's Santa Monica plant. Employes of these companies did not strike.

• • •

The North American vote at the Fresno plant last night was 347 to 38 in favor of the agreement, a company spokesman said.

Raises at North American plants will range from 8 to 20 cents an hour, from a previous pay rate spread of $1.42 to $2.32 hourly. Douglas and Lockheed contracts provided over-all increases of 6 cents an hour, including a higher cost of living allowance. At Lockheed previous pay rates ranged from $1.40 to $2.41, and at Douglas from $1.39 to $2.40.

The North American agreement, however, is dissimilar in a number of provisions. These, the company spokesman said, include:

• • •

Only workers who are members of the union or who voluntarily join it will be required to maintain union membership. Workers who have resigned, nonunion employes and persons hired in the future will not be required to join the union.

This provision replaces the modified union shop clause in the previous contract, which required all employes in the union to pay union dues in order to keep their jobs and also required all new employes to join.

Nations Learn Spangled Banner for the Nixons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Asiatic tour of Vice President and Mrs. Nixon has made "The Star Spangled Banner" known in some places where it may never have been heard before.

The Nixons stood while it was played at least 46 times during formal arrival ceremonies at each stop.

On several occasions, local military bands practiced hurriedly and with gusto to learn the piece before the vice president's arrival.

One of them, at Kandahar, Afghanistan, heard the number for the first time three days before the Nixons' visit.

It was taught to the Afghans by James Driscoll of New Hartford, N. Y., a former professional trumpeter who is now a mechanic foreman. Driscoll also played in the band.

Turncoats PWs Spurn Appeal

Panmunjom Program Stalls as GIs Refuse to Face Interviewers

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Allied efforts to win back American war prisoners who stayed with the Communists remained stalled today as the POWs spurned a personal appeal from the chairman of the Korean repatriation commission to attend interviews.

There was mounting speculation that none of the 22 Americans and 1 Briton would appear for explanations before the 90-day period for interviews expires Dec. 23.

Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya talked for 90 minutes with two prisoners identified as leaders in the compound—U.S. Sgt. R. G. Corden of East Providence, R. I., and British Marine Andrew Condron.

* * *

An Indian spokesman said the two leaders were unmoved after their private conference with Thimayya in a Korean hut outside the barbed wire compound where they are held by the repatriation commission.

The POW spokesmen said the Americans and Briton would not come out for face-to face talks with American explainers until the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission settled a dispute with pro-Communist South Korean prisoners who also refuse to attend explanations.

* * *

Thimayya said earlier he personally felt the Americans simply did not want to attend the explanations. He called some of their reasons for stalling the interviews absurd.

Thimayya speculated that the new turn of events might end all chance that the Americans would attend any explanations.

* * *

The U.N. Command said today it was ready to interview any prisoner of any nationality who would come out tomorrow.

The U.N. move left it squarely up to the prisoners. Although it is officially a request to the Indian command, the Indians normally defer to the wishes of the prisoners.

The U.N. Command has indicated it would renew its request every day.

There also is a possibility the U.N. Command might attempt some other move such as a message to the prisoners, a request to broadcast to the men, or possibly even a request to be allowed to send explainers inside the compound. There was no official comment, however.

Foreign Countries Buy More Gold Here

WASHINGTON (AP)—Foreign countries are buying more U. S. gold—a sign their economic health is getting better.

The U. S. Treasury said yesterday it sold $1,140,400,000 worth of gold abroad in the first 11 months of this year. By contrast, foreign nations sold 393 million dollars to this country in the full year of 1952.

Foreign gold purchases usually indicate economic well-being abroad, since they generally represent the use of dollars earned beyond what is needed in trade.

Phone Falls Off Wall, Polly Sues Company

Burned Girl Will Spend Her Christmas at Home

BALTIMORE (AP)—Sara Lou Fox is looking forward this year to her merriest Christmas in three years.

For the first time since her costume was set afire by a candle during a school Christmas pageant, 13-year-old Sara Lou will be home for Christmas.

She spent 2½ years in a Baltimore hospital. New skin was grafted from her waist to her neck. Since last June she has been at Children's Hospital School, learning to walk again with the aid of crutches.

Ad Policy Changed, Complaint Dropped

WASHINGTON (AP)—In line with its new policy toward use of the word "free" in advertising, the Federal Trade Commission today dismissed a complaint against Doubleday & Co., Inc., of New York.

Last September the commission said it will proceed against use of the term "free" only where the circumstances tend to mislead or deceive the public.

Doubleday had been cited for using "free" and "bonus books" in connection with its operation of several book club plans. The now-dismissed complaint had charged the books offered weren't really "free" because persons getting them had to buy at least four other books.

Vacationing motorists may profit by two recently patented auto accessories. One device tells the motorist exactly where he is, pointing out his position on a ribbon map. The other device clicks a warning when tires are underinflated.

Tigers' Kuenn AL's 'Rookie of the Year'

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Harvey Kuenn, Detroit Tiger shortstop and onetime "bonus baby" who probably cut his first tooth on a baseball bat, is the American League's Rookie of the Year.

* * *

The brilliant but modest youngster, a native Milwaukeean, wasn't so sure he deserved the honor when told last night he had been picked by 23 of the 24 members of the Most Valuable Players Committee of the Baseball Writers Assn.

* * *

"I almost thought it was a gag some of the boys were pulling on me . . . But I'll do everything I can to live up to everyone's expectations," he said.

Kuenn, who might consider the award a belated birthday gift—he turned 23 a few days ago—has been pretty good at living up to expectations ever since Harvey Sr. put a tiny bat in his hands when the lad could hardly walk.

* * *

Between that day and this there's a long list of sports accomplishments and records shattered in baseball, basketball and football, capped by a sensational debut with Detroit this year.

The Tigers were in last place when they parted with a reported $55,000 bonus to outbid 10 other clubs for the University of Wisconsin baseball star in June 1952. He went up to Davenport of the Three-I League and Detroit brought him up at the end of the 1952 season. His 1953 record includes:

A fielding percentage of .975 based on only 21 errors in 770 chances.

A batting average of .308, sixth in the league among players with 400 or more times at bat.

Being the first player in the league to hit 200 safeties. (His total of 209 was highest for both leagues.)

* * *

Setting an American League record for times at bat—679.

Hiting 33 doubles, seven triples and two homers.

* * *

Kuenn has been rated higher as a hitter than a fielder, but he was second only to the Browns' Bill Hunter in total chances. Hunter had 821 to Kuenn's 770.

Pollsters Ratings Make Good

By BEN PHLEGAR

NEW YORK (AP)—Indiana, Kentucky and Duquesne—the big three in the first Associated Press weekly basketball poll—are making the experts look good.

* * *

No sooner were they selected by the sports writers and broadcasters on the basis of the past week's performances than they went out last night and added new victories to their unbeaten records.

The Hoosiers, in one of their toughest tests so far, defeated previously unbeaten Notre Dame 66-55. Big Don Schlundt was held to nine points but Bob Leonard, a flashy guard, took up the scoring slack with 21.

Kentucky bounced Wake Forest 101-69 with a 36-point last quarter. The Atlantic Coast Conference Demons led by as much as six points in the early going but the Wildcats checked them on four field goals in the second half.

Duquesne coasted over Carnegie Tech 65-42 with the starting five playing together only in the first quarter. Dick Ricketts tallied 15 for the Dukes.

* * *

In this first weekly poll Indiana was the first choice on 35 of the 76 ballots. Kentucky was tops on 20 and Duquesne on 5. On the usual 10-9-8, etc., scoring system Indiana collected 743 points to 621 for Kentucky and 584 for Duquesne.

Two of the other members of the new top 10 also played and won last night. Fifth-ranking Louisiana State defeated Texas A&M 77-56 with Bob Pettit scoring 27 points. Oklahoma A&M, No. 7, routed Colorado 70-57 as 6-foot-11 Bob Mattick scored 28 points.

* * *

Below the first three there was considerable juggling between the preseason poll and this week's first regular season balloting. Illinois moved up from ninth to fourth, Louisiana State from 10th to fifth, Minnesota from 12th to sixth, Oklahoma A&M down from fourth to seventh, North Carolina State down from seventh to eighth, Fordham into ninth from nowhere and Western Kentucky into 10th from 11th.

The leading teams (first-place votes in parentheses):

1	Indiana (35)	743
2	Kentucky (20)	621
3	Duquesne (5)	584
4	Illinois (3)	328
5	Louisiana State (1)	234
6	Minnesota	173
7	Oklahoma A&M	153
8	North Carolina State	126
9	Fordham (1)	114
10	Western Kentucky (2)	95
	The second 10:
11	Oregon State (1)	89
12	Oklahoma City (4)	70
13	Duke	63
14	Holy Cross	62
15	California	60
16	Notre Dame	59
17	UCLA (1)	55

TKO AND RETIREMENT—Dick Wagner of Toppenish, Wash., is down for 3rd and last time in the 5th round of a scheduled eight-rounder against Floyd Patterson of Brooklyn in Eastern Parkway Arena last night. After the referee halted the one-sided bout, Wagner said he was hanging up his gloves. For Patterson it was a most impressive victory and his 7th KO since turning pro 15 months ago.

Wisconsin Bows for First Time

Hot Shooting Oklahoma Quint Hands Badgers Loss, 69-65

CHICAGO (AP)—Ranks of the Big Ten's undefeated basketvall teams numbered seven today as Wisconsin joined Northwestern and Iowa on the once-beaten list.

Badgers bowed last night to touring Oklahoma, previously beaten by Illinois and Ohio State, 69-65.

Wisconsin simply couldn't match the sizzling shooting of the Big Seven visitors, who set a Badger fieldhouse record with a .433 percentage from the floor.

Indiana upheld its No. 1 national rating with a 66-55 victory over previously undefeated Notre Dame. The victory, fourth straight for the Hoosiers, was paced by Bob Leonard's 21 points.

In other Midwest games last night, Alabama beat Bradley 63-61 at Peoria, Ill., and Marquette defeated Valparaiso 82-74.

Two more Big Ten teams play tonight, Iowa entertaining Colorado A&M and Purdue hosting Butler.

Lions in Good Shape With Single Exception

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Lions are expected to be in top physical shape for their National Football League championship game with the Cleveland Browns Dec. 27 at Briggs Stadium, despite one late injury.

Jim David, defensive halfback, turned up with a broken nose, suffered in Sunday's game with the New York Giants. He'll enter Detroit's Osteopathic Hospital this week for a three-day stay.

Eddie Collins played for 25 years in the American league.

Spahn Records NL's Best ERA for Second Time

Milwaukee Star Posts 2.10 for 266 Innings; Roberts Trails

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Warren Spahn and Robin Roberts, the National League's top pitchers last season with 23 victories apiece, finished one-two in the earned run ratings with the Milwaukee southpaw officially winning the title today for the second time.

* * *

Spahn, who dropped only seven games, gave up only 62 earned runs in 266 innings for an ERA of 2.10, the lowest figure since Howie Pollet's same mark in 1946. Spahn also had the circuit's best earned run average in 1947, 2.33.

The official pitching averages released today by the league's service bureau also disclosed that Roberts, ace of the Philadelphia Phillies staff, posted a 2.75 average, on 106 earned runs in 347 frames. He lost 16 games.

Bob Buhl, Milwaukee's rookie right-hander, finished third with 2.98. He allowed 51 earned runs in 154 innings, while winning 13 and dropping 8.

Lefty Harvey Haddix of the St. Louis Cardinals was fourth with 3.06, followed by Milwaukee's Johnny Antonelli, 3.19, Curt Simmons of Philadelphia, 3.21; and Lew Burdette of the Braves, 3.24.

An earned run is one in which a fielding error plays no part. Runs resulting from hit batters, wild pitches and balks are scored as earned.

* * *

Carl Erskine had the highest winning percentage among National League hurlers, .769 with 20 victories and 6 setbacks. Johnny Lindell, who played for Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, gave up the most walks, 139, and Chicago's Warren Hacker was the gopher ball leader with 35. Roberts led in strikeouts with 198.

Last-Minute Heroics Win Three Games

Close Contests Mark Basketball Action in Township Loop

A trio of thrillers was played Monday night in Waterford Township Basketball league as two games were decided by one point and another by only two.

Wayne Beckley's free throw in the final 30 seconds gave Drayton Drug a 38-37 victory over Poole Lumber and Dick Cooper's basket in the last 10 seconds won a 48-47 decision for Beattie Motors over Waterford High School faculty.

Briggs Sports downed Manny's 44-42, on Frank Marriott's bucket in the last 20 seconds.

Bob Walter was high for Briggs with 19 points, Dick DeWitt had 14 for Manny's. Chuck Whitfield with 12 and Cooper with 10 paced Beatties, while Seth Cummings had 11 for the facultymen.

Bob Pickett's 13 led Drug and Ralph Behler's 12 was high for Poole.

Clarkston-Davis game was postponed.

Munn Forced to Delay Full-Scale Workouts Because of Snow

EAST LANSING (AP)—Stymied by snow in Michigan, the Michigan State football team was looking forward to some California sunshine for the remainder of the practices allowed prior to the Rose Bowl game.

Snow over the weekend ended tentative plans of Coach Biggie Munn to stage at least one full-scale scrimmage on home grounds. Monday's workout and the one today had to be squeezed into the cramped indoor quarters of MSC's Jenison Field House.

With the basketball floor taking up most of the space, the 44-man team was confined to just a token workout.

Today's practice was to be the 5th and last on home grounds. Eleven more will be allowed on the West Coast under Rose Bowl regulations.

"I wasn't too disappointed," Munn said. "I didn' expect to get too much done here anyway. We'll just have to make up for it on the coast."

Traveling squad, coaches and other members of the official MSC party take off from the Lansing airport shortly after 9 a.m. Wednesday for the day-long plane trip to California.

Equipment manager Erwin Kapt estimated that the team is taking along about 2½ tons of equipment —most of it already shipped on ahead.

West Coast newspapermen, photographers and others are expected to swarm around the team so Thursday has been set aside as an official press day to handle picture taking.

First regular practice in Pasadena on a field adjacent to the Rose Bowl has been scheduled for Friday.

Howe Heading for Fourth Title

Wings Star Compiles Total of 36 Points in NHL Scoring Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Gordie Howe of the Detroit Red Wings is moving in high gear toward his 4th straight National Hockey League scoring title. The flashy right winger netted three goals and five assists over the past week to give him 4 goals and 24 assists for 38 points.

Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of the Montreal Canadiens has supplanted Detroit's tempestuous Ted Lindsay as runnerup. Geoffrion accounted for a pair of goals and four assists, boosting his scoring output to 31 points, one more than Lindsay.

Richard is the top goal-getter with 18 and Howe is the leading playmaker. Toronto net-minder Harry Lumley gave up only one goal in three games last week and his goals-against average is 1.48 per game—lowest in the league.

NBA's Odd Foul Rule Making Referee a 'Goat'

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—I've got news for the FBI today.

Public enemy number one isn't a bank robber or an extortionist. He isn't even the guy who coins the slugs which I use in the subway and the automat.

The biggest robber in the nation today is the basketball referee.

And if you don't believe it, sit down and talk to a bunch of basketball coaches. Give 'em five minutes and they'll convince you that compared to him Dillinger was a panty-waist.

Pointing this up is the current hassle in the National Basketball Association over its foul rule. If you can bear with me long enough it works something like this:

In the 3rd and 4th periods, and in overtime, a player is permitted two fouls before the other club gets two shots. This means that the attacking team takes its foul shot and the hacking defenders get the ball at a one-point sacrifice.

This has produced "strategy" which smacks of skullduggery. It is known as "trading fouls."

The attacker steps over the middle line and gets belted. One shot. But, if it is the 2nd foul called against the belter, a substitute is run in to hack away without restraint—or two-shot penalty.

The wear and tear on time consumed and substitutes' sneakers is appalling. But the yawning customer is the goat. As example, in a double overtime game last week between New York and Boston there were 89 fouls called and a total of 110 foul shots.

Trautman Calls a Discussion on Future of IL

Both Richmond, Va., and Havana Are Seeking Loop Franchises

NEW YORK (AP)—George Trautman, president of the minor leagues, has called a meeting Thursday in Washington to discuss the future of the International League.

He has asked Frank Shaughnessy, president of the Triple A league, and Harry Seibold of Richmond to attend.

Trautman said last night in Columbus he wanted to "find out what all the shouting is about.'

He added that there had been a lot of talk about what different team's wanted but neither the International League nor the would-be members seem to know "what's what."

Bobby Maduro, owner of the Havana Cubans baseball franchise, who has been seeking a franchise in the International League said yesterday that he understood the league has two other cities from which to draw one team if Richmond should not go in.

"That would seem to mean Havana is in," he added.

Meanwhile, Trautman said all he knows about Maduro is that he owns a franchise in the F.I.L. and "is a fine person and has a high reputation."

Seibold has been seeking an International League berth for Richmond, but seemingly was balked early this month by failing to reach an agreement with Eddie Mooers, owner of the Richmond team in the Class B Piedmont League.

Neither Seibold nor Mooers would comment about the Washington meeting. In Montreal, Shaughnessy also declined to comment. Six clubs currently comprise the International League. They are Rochester, Buffalo and Syracuse, N.Y.; Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto Canada.

After the 1953 season ended, Baltimore took over the St. Louis Browns and moved into the American League. The Springfield, Mass., franchise also reverted to the league when the parent Chicago Cubs withdrew their financial support.

Two Three-Tilt Winning Strings on Line Tonight

WL vs Maples, Grand Blanc vs Rochester in Prep Features

By JACK SAYLOR

Walled Lake and Rochester put three-game winning streaks on the line tonight away from home against dangerous opponents.

Walled Lake meets Birmingham in the Maples' gymnasium, while Rochester travels to Grand Blanc.

Vikings have pocketed victories over Cranbrook, Redford Union and Berkley in their 1st three starts, while Birmingham won its lone game to date against Troy. Rochester has downed, in order, Marine City, Utica and Romeo. In Grand Blanc, Gene Conley's Falcons meet a team that was a semi-finalist in last spring's state tourney.

Other leading games send Port Huron to Pontiac, Berkley to Ferndale and Romeo to Cranbrook. Latter game is an afternoon affair.

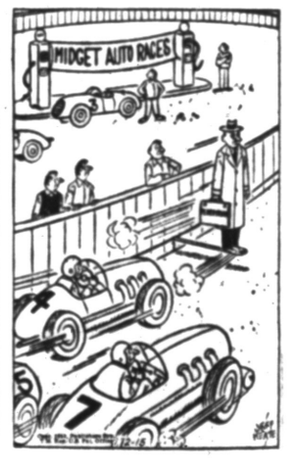

Other Oakland County teams playing at home include Farmington against Clarenceville, South Lyon hosting Northville, Clawson against Center Line and Troy entertaining Lakeview.

Only league games on the 20-game schedule are Catholic loop contests between Shrine and St. Gregory and St. Benedict and St. James along with three Southern Thumb tilts — Almont at New Haven, Capac at Memphis and Dryden at Brown City.

The schedule:

Patterson Racks Up Ninth Win by Stopping Wagner

By MURRAY ROSE

BROOKLYN (AP) — Undefeated Floyd Patterson had his 9th straight victory today and a probable Jan. 25 date with Yvon Durelle, Canadian middleweight and light heavyweight champion.

* * *

The Olympic 165-pound champion from Brooklyn scored his most impressive success—and 7th kayo—since turning pro 15 months ago by stopping flabby Dick Wagner in 2:29 of a scheduled eight at Eastern Parkway Arena last night.

The fast-punching, hard-hitting Negro youngster floored his 27-year-old rival three times before referee George Walsh halted the one-sided fray.

Patterson had won a split decision from the Toppenish, Wash., veteran in April and after absorbing another thrashing, Wagner said he was hanging up his gloves.

* * *

Patterson was a 3½ to 1 favorite in his first outing since he was picked as the rookie of the year by the boxing writers. A crowd of 1,546 paid about $2,400 for the telecast show.

Miami Girl Is Bride of Pro Golfer Toski

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Bob Toski, Northampton, Mass., golf professional, and Jacqueline Stewart of Miami were married here last night and left immediately for Tucson, Ariz., where Toski will play in a golf exhibition.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Stewart of Bedford, Ohio.

The wedding was held the day after the close of the $10,000 Miami Open gold tournament, last of the 1953 professional campaign, in which Toski finished in a 14th place tie. He won the $15,000 Havana Invitational the previous week.

Writer Disagrees With Policy of Birdie Tebbetts, Others in Sports to Win, Regardless of Tactics

By GRANTLAND RICE

NEW YORK — We ran into cheerful, chirping Birdie Tebbets a few days back. Birdie, the new manager of the Redlegs is energetic and will make the Redlegs a good manager. He will be in there hustling and will have his men hustling.

The Redlegs are no washouts. They have their share of good ballplayers, especially hard hitters, but there may be a lack of good pitching.

* * *

One thing we like about Birdie is that we always disagree. That means he is right at least half the time, probably oftener. In company with Tom Yawkey, Joe Cronin, Lou Boudreau, Johnny Murphy and Tommy Henrich the other night, the conversation drifted around to the matter of competitive ethics in football and baseball.

* * *

At the moment only Birdie and I seemed to be interested. The argument started with several important matters of ethics. "Today," Birdie said, "the only ethics connected with sport is how to win. Winning is all that matters."

"How about the rules?" I asked him.

"You can throw the rules out," he said, "if they keep you from winning. I believe there is only one main angle in sport—that is win. To win fairly if you can—but to win anyway."

We bring this point up for it is beginning to be the angle of too many young competitors today.

* * *

"Your main angle is to win?" I asked Birdie. "That's right," he said. "Then you are going to spend an unhappy three or four years," I said. "For you are not going to win. With the Redlegs you are going to be murdered by the Dodgers, Braves, Cardinals and maybe the Phillies and Giants.

* * *

"You are not going to have any fun building, improving, playing the game as it should be played." I'll say this for Birdie, whom I like, he never weakened.

When fine modern coaches, I mean football coaches, violate this matter of ethics and sportsmanship no wonder Birdie Tebbets moves along with them.

Trouble with Birdie and others is this—they don't realize that when two teams or two people meet, one has to win and the other lose. Birdie is going to be among the losers with his Redlegs.

Writer Can't See Why Paced 4-Minute Mile Unacceptable; Cites Landy's Plight

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Will someone with a fine, clear understanding of such things please rise up and tell me why a paced four-minute mile would not be just as good a four-minute mile as any other kind.

All we know is that the running purists say it wouldn't be the real article, and that the men who rule the sport internationally say they would not recognize it, but the as a world record. So what? They would not recognize it, but the four-minute mile would have been run, just the same.

What difference should it make whether a man attains the long-sought goal running against a couple of good half-milers in turn or against a field of so-called milers who are not able to stay within 200 yards of him on the gun lap? In the latter case, is it a competitive mile, actually?

* * *

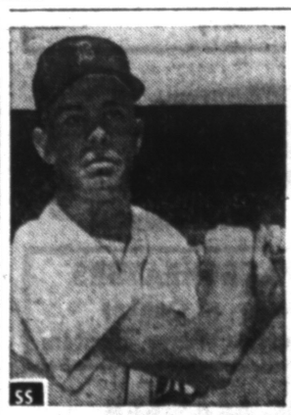

Our immediate concern arises from the plight of a great young runner named John Landy out in Melbourne, Australia, the same who ran a 4:02 mile over the past weekend, the third fastest in recorded history. We watched John run a slightly less spectacular mile a year ago, and talked with him, and there isn't a doubt in our mind he can give us the storied mile the first time he is paced.

* * *

Landy's plight is that he chances to be on the opposite side of the world from the two men, Wes Santee of this country and Roger Bannister of England, who might push him in an actual race to the four-minute goal.

* * *

This hardly is the young man's fault. Our thought is that Landy should not be deprived of his chance to write a brilliant new page in athletic history because of his competitive isolation.

Red Top Davis Must Explain Poor Showing

BOSTON (AP)—Teddy (Red Top) Davis, veteran Hartford, Conn., boxer, has been asked to appear before the Massachusetts Boxing Commission tomorrow to explain "unsatisfactory" performance against Tony DeMarco, Boston youngster, at the Boston Garden last Saturday night.

DeMarco, weighing 140¼ and nine pounds heavier than Davis, gained a lopsided decision in their 10-round feature bout. Twice referee Jimmy McCarron warned Davis to "stop holding and start punching."

DeMarco and McCarron also have been asked to appear, along with Sam Silverman, Callahan A. C. promoter, Mushky Salow of New York, Davis' manager, and Frank Campbell, the Boston batler's trainer.

Shifted Lineup Goes Tonight Against Port Huron

Wilkinson, Munn Eyed

Gophers Hope to Lure Minnesota Grad Back to Fill Head Grid Coach Post

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Minnesota fondly eyed a pair of famous old grads to fill its head football coaching job today and hoped against harsh facts the home school lure would be strong enough to bring one of them back.

But the odds were against either Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma or Biggie Munn of Michigan State returning to Minnesota, where they starred as players.

Wilkinson and Munn at least were a starting point in speculation on a successor to Wes Fesler, who resigned Monday to take an executive position with radio station WDGY in Minneapolis.

Both Wilkinson and Munn have reached pinnacles at their respective schools. Wilkinson rejected the Minnesota job when Bernie Bierman resigned in 1950 and said "the situation at Oklahoma is the same as it was three years ago." Eight years remain on his 10-year contract.

Munn's main interest right now centers on the Michigan State athletic directorship. He conferred with Michigan State president Dr. John Hannah last Friday on his future at MSC but it was understood then Munn had decided to stay with State.

Ralph Young, current Spartan athletic director, will reach retirement age in 1955.

Those stern realities left these other apparent possibilities for the post which Fesler leaves for the security of private business:

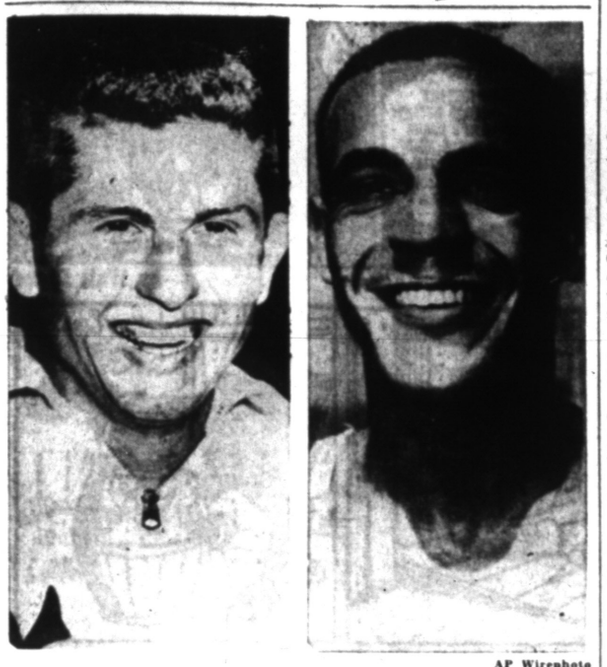

John Ronings, former assistant coach at Minnesota now at Utah.

Butch Nash, now end coach and a recent applicant for the University of Kansas head coach's position.

Bierman, who elevated Minnesota to football greatness, then resigned after a string of disappointments in the post-war period.

Milt Bruhn, Wisconsin line coach.

Others mentioned include Lyal Clark and Dick Fisher, two of Fesler's assistants.

FACE INVESTIGATION—Wes Santee (left) America's fastest miler, and Mal Whitfield, the world's top half-miler, will be investigated by the AAU. Dan Ferris, AAU secretary, in disclosing the probe, said it stemmed from alleged violations of amateur rules by the pair during a European tour. If the charges are sustained the runners could be barred from amateur competition for life.

USTA Reportedly Is Not Worried About 'Rebellion'

COLUMBUS (AP) — The United States Trotting association — waiting to learn whether 33 extended their own regulations — is "unduly excited," a spokesman for two Detroit area tracks said last night.

Donald D. MacFarlane, attorney for Wolverine and Hazel Parks tracks, said a meeting in New York next Jan. 27 was called "entirely to explore common problems of mutuel tracks and in no way is . . . a discussion from the USTA."

The USTA yesterday sent telegrams to the mutuel tracks after 15 representatives met Sunday and reportedly expressed dissatisfaction with the way the association controls their tracks.

Apparently, the pari-mutuel men, who supply much of the association's funds from a percentage of their purses, want more to say about their operations but are not threatening to withdraw from the USTA. USTA controls virtually all harness races.

"How can the USTA poll track members on whether they intend joining an organization the framework of which has not even been determined," MacFarlane asked.

Switching from one touchy topic to another, the USTA promised to name a three-man committee to study the matter of insurance of reporters. Writers are protected by the same regulations that cover officials of the association regarding personal abuse and physical attack.

Don Budge to Return to Big-Time Tennis

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Budge, tennis idol of the 1930s, is going to take a vacation from his laundry business to return to big-time professional tennis.

Budge, now 38, will join Jack Kramer's troupe for a tour starting Jan. 3 in Madison Square Garden. Frank Sedgman, Pancho Gonzales, Pancho Segura and Kramer are the other players, although Kramer figures to save himself for doubles only.

CASE—Thumb-up Finish.

Insures Short Break—In the previous article I explained how Paulie Krumske "freezes" the wrist to avoid excessive ball turn. His thumb during the swing is to the left of ball center. It's the V grip, looking down at the thumb and index finger.

Simpler, perhaps, than stiffening or freezing the wrist is former match king Joe Wilman's method of a thumb-up finish at release—pointing the thumb almost straight up, as sketch shows. Hook spin is applied by the fingers as the arm comes straight up in its follow-through movement.

Wilman is terrific for "holding the line." A great pocket hitter. So if you're not on the target board or spot consistently, give the Wilman method a try. Important: Don't lift the arm upward too quickly. Think more of swing-through than lift. The lift must

Ex-Ortonville Star Sets Pace in Jeweler Win

Shaw Quintet Tramples Lumbermen, 66-28; 'D' Cager Hits 33 Points

Former Ortonville High star Pete Palshan collected 18 points Monday night to lead Shaw's Jewelers to their 2nd straight City "A" League basketball victory.

Jewelers jumped into a 19-12 1st quarter lead and never let up to trounce Poole Lumber, 66-28. Cecil Hanes and Bob McManus backed up Palshan with 14 and 12 points, respectively.

In Class B, Elks 723 downed Walled Lake Merchants, 44-36. Elks pulled away from a 17-16 halftime advantage by outscoring the Merchants, 27-20, in the 2nd half. Felix Brooks led the winners with 13 points, but Walled Lake's Howard Lewis copped game honors with 14.

Class D play opened Monday, with Panthers subduing Lakesiders, 58-32, Phalanx turned back Senior Hi-Y, 34-25, and Bogie Lake forfeiting to Elks 723.

Panther forward Jack Johnson stole the "D" spotlight as he piled up 33 points on 16 field goals and a free throw. His total bettered by one point the entire team output of the Lakesiders.

Wesleyan Prexy Hits Athletic Scholarships

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Dr. Victor L. Butterfield, president of Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., said last night he questions whether "college athletic scholarships as such are sound or even honest."

"Scholarships of this kind," he told a banquet audience of schoolboy football players, "are given in the interest of the institution, not in the interest of the boy."

He advised the boys to attend college "where possible" without an athletic scholarship. "But if a scholarship is advisable," he said, "beware of double talk and exploitation."

First Downs Credited

In college scorekeeping a first down is credited for any touchdown that is scored from 10 yards or more distance from the goal line.

Up to the 1953 season, Illinois had won 105 titles and shared 18 others in the Big Ten conference competition.

A revamped Pontiac High basketball team will face Port Huron here tonight in the Chiefs' final pre-holiday home appearance.

Coach Art Van Ryzin has made several changes in his squad as a result of the team's showing in Friday's 57-45 loss to Flint Northern. A major factor in that setback was Pontiac's lack of height on the starting five.

Junior Dave Ballard, the team's tallest man at 6-foot 4-inches, will get his 1st starting assignment tonight, teaming with John James at forward.

Dick Ayling, Pontiac's best set shot, will move from forward to guard, replacing Bob Johnston. Either Leroy Moore (6-2) or Dick Blacklaw (6-3) will start at center.

Other switches move Johnston to forward and sophomore Walter King from forward to guard.

Shifts probably will cost the Chiefs some of their defensive effectiveness, but the additional height should more than compensate.

Port Huron will bring a .500 mark here. Big Reds bowed to Flint Northern, 60-40, in their season opener and beat Midland, 38-35, last Friday.

Team is built around three returning lettermen—forwards Dick Daly and Lyle McAuley and center Ray Wilkens. Daly was the squad's 2nd high scorer last season with 163 points. He is the leading offensive threat. Guards John Thomas and Jack McDonald round out the 1st five.

Tonight's varsity game, scheduled for 8 p.m., will be preceded by a jayvee contest at 6:30.

Western Kentucky basketball teams have been coached for the past 31 years by the veteran Ed Diddle.

Les Paul and Mary Ford Are Good People to Envy

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—If you feel like envying somebody, envy Les Paul and Mary Ford. They are good, ripe envying material.

They could sit back and do nothing and still turn out hit records for 10 years or so. Without even plucking a guitar string or yoo hooing down an echo chamber.

Les tipped his hand quite casually, "We've got about a hundred numbers on tape," he said. "We made them when we were experimenting. They're still unreleased."

At the moment, the Pauls put out about four records a year. That's eight numbers.

The hundred tunes they have in the bank should hold them quite a spell. But, of course, they keep making new things, adding to their backlog.

Most of those old songs were made in the Pauls' "under-the blanket" period. That was when they were broke and living in a basement apartment in Jackson Heights, N. Y.

They'd do their tricky recording at night, so there'd be a minimum of outside noise. And, to keep from awakening the neighbors, they'd huddle under a blanket.

Now they have a big house, far from neighbors, and a blanket is just a blanket again.

But before you get too envious, there's an item in the Pauls' budget that you wouldn't want to assume. Besides making records at home, they also record their radio show and film their TV show. That takes a lot of current.

Last month's electric bill—$78.10.

THE POPULAR SIDE: Can you guess which were the two biggest money-making records of '53? The Cash Box, juke box magazine, made its annual award to Percy Faith's "The Song From Moulin Rouge" and Teresa Brewer's "Till I Waltz Again With You."

Sperie Karas, MGM's young drummer who's trying something new in jazz with "Mambo Stringo," uses strings and flutes and bassoons for his sounds. "And there's nothing sweeter than a bassoon with a boogie beat," says Sperie.

Hope this is the end of a trend —The Tune Toppers (MGM) have recorded "Dragnet Polka."

* * *

ON THE CLASSICS: RCA-Victor has created what it calls the "peanut gallery" of music—fine music at low prices. The new label, "Camden," sells at $1.89 for a 12-inch LP.

Engineers have taped from the original 78-rpm. pressings, added highs, strengthened or reduced lows, broadening the frequency range.

If you aren't a hi-fi nut and don't mind your artists cloaked behind pseudonyms, there's a lot of good listening here for a price. First releases include classical light concert, specialty and popular (but not current) selections.

* * *

SUREFIRE: "Bimbo" (Eddie Howard, Mercury).

SLEEPER: "Morning Bird" (Barbu Lautaru Gypsy Orchestra, MGM).

GOOD ONES: "Suddenly" (Percy Faith, Columbia); "The Game of Love" (Bill Darnel, Decca); "C'Est Si Bon" (Stan Freberg, Capitol); "Gimme Gimme John" (Eydie Gorme, Coral);

"Poppa Piccolino" (The Noeturnes, MGM); "The Cuff of My Shirt" (Guy Mitchell, Columbia); "High on a Windy Hill" (Hugo Winterhalter, RCA); "That's What a Rainy Day Is For" (Connie Russell, Capitol).

POP ALBUMS: Columbia has some fine new 45-rpm. sets—Frank Sinatra doing songs from "South Pacific" and "Oklahoma"; Danny Kaye with four of his classics; a collection of Rosemary Clooney-Marlene Dietrich duets; Helen Ward solos with Benny Goodman's band.

CLASSICAL: Shostakovich's Symphony No. 5 is recorded by the Philharmonic Orchestra of New York, Mitropolous conducting (Columbia).

Pianist Walter Gieseking Beethoven's Moonlight and Pathetique Sonatas, and the same composer's Waldstein and Appassionata Sonatas, on two British-pressed Angel records.

Gounod's Ballet Music from Faust and Tschaikovsky's Aurora's Wedding are played by the Royal Opera House Orchestra of Covent Garden, Braithwaite conducting (MGM).

Canadian Curb Pushes Up Oats

CHICAGO (AP)—Oats responded with moderate gains on the board of trade today on news Canada had agreed to limit shipments of oats to the United States to 25 million bushels between Dec. 10, 1953 and Oct. 1, 1954.

Gains in oats ranged to a cent at the opening. Thereafter, the market tended lower. Dealings were not active. Apathy was also the main characteristic of other grains. Soybeans eased from the start.

Wheat near the end of the first hour was ¾ cent lower to ⅛ higher, December $2.02⅛, corn ¼ to ⅝ lower, December $1.53⅛, oats ⅛ to ½ higher, December 77⅝, soybeans ½ to 1¾ lower, January $3.04¼ and lard 13 to 50 cents a hundred pounds lower, December $16.25.

Stocks Showing Confused Action

NEW YORK (AP)—The Stock Market was mixed today with a considerable number remaining unchanged.

Prices ran from around a point lower to fractions higher, and this indicated a slightly lower trend in the market.

Steels were down as were the aircrafts and most coppers. The utilities were higher along with mail order shares and chemicals.

The market was lower yesterday, the sixth decline in seven sessions. That has brought the Associated Press average of 60 stocks down about 20 per cent from the peak attained in the recovery drive from the lows of the year touched in mid-September.

KEY TO SILENT POWER—Size is the key to the new "Silent Power" exhaust system developed by GMC Truck and Coach Division. The larger, heavier muffler, displayed by a GMT experimental engineer, has proved much more effective than the older model lying on the table. The new muffler is standard on all 1954 GMC trucks.

Size Called Key to Silent Muffler

Truck and Coach Chief Says Increased Volume Cuts Exhaust Noise

A real desire to aid the trucking industry in solving an important problem is the only "secret" of GMC Truck's new "Silent Power" exhaust system, P. J. Monaghan, general manager of GMC Truck and Coach Division, said today.

"Since we first announced Silent Power at the recent American Trucking Assn. convention in Los Angeles, everyone wants to know what 'revolutionary principle' is used in its construction," Monaghan said.

"Our principle is not revolutionary in any way. Engineers know it takes increased muffler volume to quiet exhaust noise without increasing back pressure on the engine, but a larger muffler costs more to produce.

"For years, the cost factor has been shrinking the size of mufflers throughout the industry until in some cases trucks have virtually a tomato can traying to muffle the exhaust of a powerful engine.

"GMC decided to reverse this trend by introducing larger mufflers made of heavier steel, and make them standard on all models.

"Muffler sizes have been increased in 1954 models by as much as three and one-half times," Monaghan said.

"We believe the quieter exhaust system will aid truck operators in improving relations with the public, which has shown increasing resentment against truck noises," Monaghan continued.

"As we said when GMC Silent Power exhaust was first announced, other manufacturers are free to adopt this new muffler concept. For the good of the industry, we hope they will do so."

Monaghan disclosed that six separate mufflers were redesigned and greatly enlarged to fit the varied line of GMC trucks which range from a one-half ton pickup to 35-ton trucks. They are standard at no extra cost on all 1954 models now in production.

GMT engineers emphasized that the increased muffler size has not obliterated exhaust noise, but has definitely reduced it.
