OU HAS RECORD ENROLLMENT

Record fall and winter term enrollments are enabling Oakland University to exceed its state-budgeted enrollment total for fiscal 1973-74, President Donald D. O'Dowd announced today.

Oakland, budgeted by the state legislature for 7,779 fiscal year equated students (FYES), should now top that figure by 100 students or more, O'Dowd said.

The 1974 winter enrollment is 9,125 headcount students or 3,138 FYES compared with 8,365 students and 3,040 FYES in winter, 1973, O'Dowd said. The enrollment this fall was 9,638 students or 3,424 FYES, an all-time OU record.

"Oakland's continued growth in the face of generally declining enrollments can be attributed to various factors," O'Dowd claimed. Among them are new undergraduate curricular options, a growing credit evening program, an expansion of the graduate programs, and the institution's location in a rapidly growing area of the state.

"We are convinced that Oakland will continue to grow throughout the decade," O'Dowd said.

New master's programs begun this fall include: management, history, early childhood education, and guidance and counseling. The new undergraduate curricular options are medical technology, medical physics, environmental health technology, journalism, speech communication, computer sciences, and theater arts. In addition, Oakland is providing general education courses for 300 nursing students enrolled in the Providence Hospital School of Nursing.

Comprising Oakland University's predicted 7,900 FYES figure for 1973-74 are: 613 students for summer, 1973; 3,424 students for fall, 1973; 3,138 students for winter, 1974; and a predicted 725 students for spring, 1974. The four academic sessions are held between July 1 and June 30 of the university's fiscal year, and are counted in the FYES total for that year.

A more detailed breakdown of the winter, 1974, enrollment; headcount, 9,125 students divided among, 6,525 undergraduates (2,628 FYES), and 2,600 graduate students (510 FYES).

OU PERSONNEL REMINDED OF 55 M.P.H. SPEED LIMIT

Oakland University personnel exceeding a 55 mile an hour speed while in university vehicles violate OU policy and embarrass the institution, Robert W. Swanson, vice president for business affairs, said.

Swanson revealed that an OU employee was recently noted traveling at an excessive speed and that the license number was taken by a private citizen and sent to the governor's office in Lansing. The governor's office, in turn, notified the university and brought the matter to the attention of OU officials.

While an official state speed limit has not been set, President Donald D. O'Dowd is ordering OU compliance with the 55 M.P.H. limit set by Gov. Milliken for state-owned vehicles.
