Armed Man Barges Into Romney's Office

Solons Plan Final Effort on Districts

LANSING (AP) — A weary, worrying and quarrelsome legislature—already facing the prospect of an extended session—prepared today for one final effort toward agreement on plans for redistricting itself.

Legislative leaders said it was virtually certain that the session, slated to end at midnight tomorrow, would spill over into next week.

Both parties were stymied in the House by internal dissension, but House Democrats hoped today for a breakthrough that might enable them to agree with Republicans on a bipartisan plan.

It appeared the issue would not come to a head, however, before tomorrow when a "vehicle" bill for House and Senate districts would be in position for passage.

In the meantime, House Democrats faced the task of agreeing among themselves on how to carve up Wayne County's 37 alloted districts to the satisfaction of a majority of their members.

TALL ORDER

This appeared a tall order for the party whose angry caucus on Wednesday was dissolved without a position being taken on anything, and which couldn't even agree to hold another meeting yesterday.

Republicans virtually abandoned their efforts toward redistricting yesterday because of internal differences in a caucus discussion, but were waiting today to see what Democrats might do.

Rep. Henry Hogan, R-Bloomfield Hills, chairman of the House Apportionment Committee, described the situation as "Republicans fighting Republicans, Democrats fighting Democrats and the governor fighting the lieutenant governor."

Road Death Toll 621

EAST LANSING (AP)—Traffic accidents have killed 621 persons in Michigan so far this year, provisional figures compiled by state police showed today. The highway death toll at this date last year was 468.

BURNED CAR—A statewide search continues today for missing foreman David Stolte of the struck Essex Wire Corp. of Hillsdale. His burned-out car was found near Hillsdale yesterday. Police say there is "no specific reason . . . to feel that this is strike-concerned or that any foul play is involved."

Exec Cites Economic Potential

County Told to Plan Growth

Oakland County lies at the very nucleus of expected economic growth in the nation and must measure up to today's challenge if it is to profit by tomorrow's events.

★ ★ ★

This was the message delivered by Detroit Edison Co. Vice President and Controller Eldred H. Scott yesterday to some 200 persons attending an Economic Growth Conference at Oakland University.

The challenge, he said, is to plan adequately now for the developments ahead.

Scott referred to a gross national product rise from a current $600 billion to $900 billion by 1970 if "we pursue a national policy of restraint and wisdom in fiscal, monetary and pricing matters."

★ ★ ★

Such a rapid rate of growth, he added, can be achieved "through inovation and enterprise, through an outpouring of goods and service from a productive economy, geared to satisfy the needs and desires of an expanding and vigorous population.

"We expect that Michigan, and Southeastern Michigan and Oakland County in particular, will share proportionately in this growth.

"Our area possesses many natural advantages which portend growth. These include seaway shipping lanes to the outside world, mineral and forest resources, human resources and skills that are constantly being developed."

Scott described the still largely untapped supply of fresh water available to industry and a strategic position to major markets as the most important factors for future economic growth of the area.

He referred to an earlier prediction by world famous area planner Constantinous Doxiadis of Athens, Greece, that the metropolitan region of Detroit will be the heart of a super-metropolis such as the link developed between Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Washington, D.C.

★ ★ ★

Taking a short - term look at the economic period immediately ahead, Scott warned of a possible slump on the heels of an unusually long period of soaring prosperity.

"In my judgment, the business cycle has not been eliminated," he said, outlining the following possible indicators of trouble ahead:

- Automobile inventories are at the highest level in history.
- Wage negotiations in the automobile and other basic industries carry the threat of wage and price pressures and possible inflation.

CONSUMER CREDIT

- Consumer credit and mortgage debt has been rising steadily since 1955.

★ ★ ★

- Retail buying might suffer a letdown about April 1965, when individual taxpayers, many for the first time in their lives, will be required to pay additional income tax to make up a deficit in 1964 witholdings.

★ ★ ★

- Government pressures and interference could inhibit businessmen and limit enterprise.

College Cuts Restored to State Budget

House Goes Along With Committee on Other Reductions

LANSING (AP)—A $7.1 million cut in proposed operating funds for state colleges and universities was restored yesterday to Gov. Romney's 1964-65 budget.

But the House, in moving a series of appropriations bills into position for passage, went along with Ways and Means Committee recommendations for other reductions.

Members approved the committee's action in slicing a total of $2 million from the capital outlay program which had been marked chiefly for expansion of mental health facilities.

The House also concurred in a reduction from $500,000 to $400,000, the total to be doled out next year for a new state scholarship program, and from $500,000 to $300,000 the amount for guaranteeing student loans.

The decision to restore the operating funds, which amounted to a 5 per cent across-the-board cut, was made by House Republicans in caucus.

PARTIALLY REPLACED

House Speaker Allison Green R-Kingston, had predicted earlier that the money would be at least partially replaced before the bill passed the House.

"If you couldn't get a caucus position to support the committee's action, there was no point in trying to insist on it," the Speaker said afterward.

Some GOP lawmakers said they thought the cut by the committee shouldn't have been taken seriously in the first place "because it was never intended to stand."

★ ★ ★

Romney's staff took it seriously enough, however. They spent part of yesterday in a drive to line up Republican votes to put the money back on the floor, overriding the committee.

OPERATING FUNDS

Intact, as a result of the floor action which followed, was Romney's request for a $21.5 million increase in operating funds for the colleges for the coming fiscal year.

The governor said the money was necessary for meeting increased enrollment and for faculty salary increases.

Baby Girl Born to Margaret

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret gave birth today to a girl.

"It's marvelous news," said Lord Snowdon, the baby's father.

"She looks a super baby."

Queen Elizabeth's sister and Snowdon also have a son, Viscount Lindley, born in November, 1961.

★ ★ ★

Snowdon said both mother and child were doing well.

4TH ROYAL BIRTH

The baby was the fourth royal birth this year. Earlier, Princess Alexandra, the queen's cousin, had a boy on Feb. 29.

Margaret's baby takes seventh place in the line of succession to the throne, displacing the Duke of Gloucester, an uncle of the 33-year-old princess.

The birth was announced in an official bulletin from Kensington Palace, where Margaret and Snowdon live.

Completion by Fall Seen for Loop Road

Traffic should be rolling along the length of Pontiac's $3.5-million perimeter road by early fall, and maybe sooner.

City officials said today that work will begin Monday on the last phase of the tear-shaped, multilane thoroughfare around the central business district.

The last leg follows Cass extended south from West Huron to South Saginaw. It is slated to be open to traffic sometime in September, with the possibility that part will be in use by late August.

Work is already progressing toward completion of the stretch from South Saginaw to Mount Clemens on the East Side.

The highway should be open to traffic from its starting point (South Saginaw) to West Huron by July 1, barring any unforeseen construction delays.

★ ★ ★

Initial construction of the last leg will get under way on Cass between West Pike and Patterson and that portion of Cass will be closed to traffic Monday morning.

OTHER SECTIONS

City Traffic Engineer Joseph Koren said that other sections of Cass would close as construction progressed.

At the same time, West Pike will be reopened to through traffic between Saginaw and Cass Monday and West Lawrence will be closed, Koren said.

West Pike had been closed several weeks to allow construction of a large storm drain along the east side of Cass. The drain, which is part of the Clinton River drain project, will now move northerly to Lawrence.

"Barricades will be erected on Lawrence at the east curb of Cass, so motorists going easterly on Lawrence will be able to turn into Cass," Koren said.

MOST OF SUMMER

City Engineer Joseph E. Neipling explained that perimeter road construction "will probably close Cass to through traffic south of West Huron for most of the summer.

"North of Pike, construction only involves widening Cass, but south of Pike it calls for total removal of existing pavement and realignment of Cass."

Neipling said the work would be scheduled so cross traffic will be maintained most of the time.

"Pavement must be ripped up, utilities relocated and storm drains installed," he noted. "The bulk of the road bed will be prepared before the paving operation begins."

Pontiac Sets Monthly Peak

77,273 Auto Units Surpass Old Record

Pontiac Motor Division built more cars in April than in any month in its history, E. M. Estes, a General Motors Corp., vice president and division general manager announced today.

There were 77,273 Pontiacs and Tempests assembled last month, surpassing the previous monthly record of 72,352 set in March, Estes said.

It was only one year ago that Estes happily announced the division had surpassed the 60,000 mark in one month for the first time in its history.

Last April's production total was 60,269 cars.

★ ★ ★

Estes also pointed out today that the 500,000th unit of the model year was produced by the division three days ago.

EARLIEST DATE

That is the earliest date ever for this production mark, he announced.

In the 1963 model year, the half-millionth Pontiac rolled off the assembly line on June 17.

Light Showers Are Forecast for Next 5 Days

A few light showers may be expected to sprinkle the Pontiac area throughout the next five days.

The weatherman said precipitation for the period will total about one half inch in scattered showers.

Temperatures will average 2 to 4 degrees above the normal high of 64 and normal low of 45. A slow warming trend is forecast through Wednesday.

Winds southeasterly at 8 miles per hour will increase to 10 to 20 m.p.h.

★ ★ ★

The low recording prior to 8 a.m. today was 48. By 2 p.m. the mercury had climbed to 66.

Trooper Finds Gun, Knife in Attache Case

Governor Laughs Off Incident; Police Seek Identity of Intruder

LANSING (AP)—State police took an unidentified man into custody today after he invaded Gov. George W. Romney's office carrying a loaded revolved and a knife in an attache case.

Trooper Jay Kennedy, one of Romney's bodyguards, seized the man after he barged into the inner office where Romney was conferring with his legislative assistant, Robert McIntosh, and House Speaker Allison Green. No one was injured.

The man followed Mrs. Margaret Little, Romney's personal secretary, into the office, and said, "There's Gov. Romney now. I want him. Dick Nixon made the appointment."

The gun, a nickel-plated 38-caliber revolver, and a pocket knife were taken by Kennedy from the attache case.

★ ★ ★

The trooper said he did not ask the man why he was carrying the gun and knife and the man did not volunteer an explanation.

Before entering Romney's inner office, the man had introduced himself to several secretaries and took pictures in the Capitol corridor of Republican State Chairman Arthur Elliott Jr.

TICKET CHOICE

Romney told newsmen after talking to the man that he "wants me and Nixon (former vice president Richard M. Nixon) on the Republican ticket."

Romney said the man gave his name as "Charles P. English." He carried a card with that name and identified himself as "president of Latin-American Development Corp." with offices in Bogota, Colombia.

The man was placed under arrest for investigation of carrying a concealed weapon.

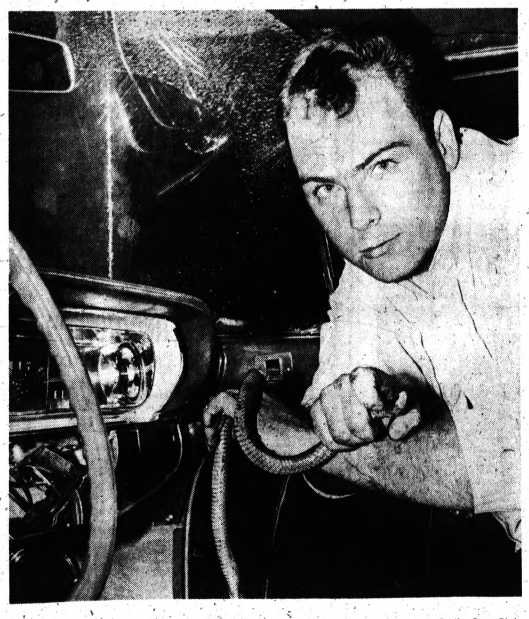

★ ★ ★

After two hours' interrogation, state police said the man was standing by his identification of himself as Charles Patrick English, and police were trying to check this by means of fingerprints.

When FBI agents interrogated him, he told them he also

Rep-tale of Woe: Snake in Car

SNEAKY SNAKEY—Kelly McClanahan of 169 Ogemaw is shown here in a moment of victory. His "friend" is a two-foot Blue Racer which stubbornly refused to fores(n)ake his perch under the dashboard of McClanahan's car for two days.

By DICK SAUNDERS

St. Patrick and Kelly McClanahan have something in common—a snake problem.

Both did a pretty good job of routing the reptilian rascals, although the patron saint of Ireland had a little more ground to cover.

McClanahan had a snake in his dashboard.

No, it wasn't a bug, it was a s-n-a-k-e — about two feet long —commonly called a Blue Racer.

How did it get there?

It crawled out of a diaper.

So, what's so hard about getting a two-foot snake out of the dashboard of an Oldsmobile?

★ ★ ★

Here's a brief rundown on who COULDN'T do the job: the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, the Pontiac Fire Department, several auto repairmen, and numerous friends and relatives.

DO IT HIMSELF

McClanahan, 21, of 169 Ogemaw had to roll up his sleeves and do it himself.

The job was completed yesterday afternoon in Mac's Parking Lot, next to the Roosevelt Hotel.

It's not often you get the chance, while ambling along a downtown street, to see a man emerge from his car, grinning from ear to ear, with a two-foot snake in one hand.

There weren't many witnesses

Snake in Dash Bugs Motorist

yesterday. It was raining, fortunately.

McClanahan's problem began Tuesday afternoon on the I-75 freeway between Flint and Pontiac (he's a premed student at Flint Junior College).

"I thought I had a flat tire so I stopped and got out to look," he said. "The tire was okay, but I noticed this Blue Racer alongside the highway.

"I remembered something about getting into a serpentarium free if you brought a snake with you, so I grabbed him (the snake).

"I wrapped him up in a diaper in the back seat," he explained, "and drove on."

The snake got out of the diaper.

"All of a sudden he shot up my leg and under the dashboard," McClanahan continued.

"I tried the rest of the day to get him out, but he was stretched out on a ledge way up under the dash and he wouldn't budge."

Everytime anyone got hold of one end, the snake wrapped itself around something.

HELPERS

Among the "helpers" was Mrs. McClanahan's 12-year-old brother Johnny Cox of 5971 Cooley Lake Road, Waterford Township.

"Johnny got him by the tail alright, but the tail came off," McClanahan said.

Wednesday, McClanahan took his problem to the sheriff's department. "They told me it was out of their hands and suggested I go to the zoo."

★ ★ ★

He went to the fire department. As word spread of the man with a snake in his dashboard, firemen poured out of the building to take a look.

★ ★ ★

"They located him for me, but couldn't get him out . . . must have been 20 firemen came out to help.

"I called a collision shop and had to tell the man three times before he believed me.

"Then I went to a mechanic and asked how much it would cost to remove the dashboard. He told me $20.

★ ★ ★

"Then I told him why I wanted it removed. He stopped quoting me prices and said he didn't think he wanted the job."

McClanahan tried to get the snake out with a coat hanger, DDT, spray ammonia, and an air hose at a gas station. Nothing worked.

Thinking as only a woman can, his pretty wife suggested a vacuum cleaner. That, too, failed.

"The only way you could see the snake was with a mirror," said John Cox, his father-in-law, who operates the parking lot. Cox was the mirror-holder.

★

Finally, McClanahan removed the glove compartment and crawled in dipsey-doodle fashion under the dashboard yesterday to meet the snake face-to-face.

After about an hour, out he came with his prize. The snake was a little worse for wear, but lively as ever.

Was McClanahan still thinking of a free pass to the snake house?

He looked at his stubby-tailed adversary, popped him in a bag and said, "I think I'll just take him out in the country and let him go."

★ ★ ★

This time he folded the bag carefully — and put it in the trunk.

Union Strike May Halt Construction

A strike by sheet metal workers is the first called by construction industry unions seeking new contracts.

★ ★ ★

Some 2,300 members of the sheet metal union voted to walk off their jobs today with the expiration of their old contract at midnight.

The strike will affect virtually all types of new building going on in Oakland, and other southeast Michigan counties.

Dick Kirby, business agent for the Wayne - Oakland - Macomb Building and Trades Council, said no picket lines will be used unless other tradesmen or nonunion help try to do sheet metal work.

He predicted the walkout would soon bring many projects, such as new commercial buildings and homes, to a halt since sheet metal installations are an integral part of such constructions.

★ ★ ★

Kirby said two other key unions, electricians and reinforced steel workers, have decided to stay on their jobs pending membership meetings next week.

If they joined the strike it would extend the construction blockade to other projects such as roads, and buildings well underway.

Arrival of Romanian Kin Fulfills a 30-Year Dream

By ALLEN PHILLIPS

"It is wonderful to feel this soil under my feet again."

★ ★ ★

With these words, tall, slender Mrs. Maria Popp, 68, stepped away from the airplane that brought her halfway around the world to end 30 years of yearning.

Her arrival yesterday at Detroit Metropolitan Airport ended a 12-hour vigil of relatives and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Botan Jr., of Waterford Township.

But their mutual wait extended long past anxious hours searching the sky for her plane — back to Romania, the rise of Nazi power, war, and the metallic thud of the iron curtain.

The determination of her son and unseen friends in the Red Cross and the government helped Mrs. Popp achieve a modern - day miracle by getting out of an inner circle Soviet satellite country.

BRINGS REJOICING

Her arrival brought rejoicing to the Botan home at 637 Sheryl and the small but tight - knit group of Oakland County residents of Romanian descent.

"She looked at our brick, three - bedroom home and thought it was a palace," said Mrs. Botan. "She just can't get over the hot running water and the electrical gadgets.

"But she doesn't want to say a lot about things over there," added Mrs. Botan.

And with good reason. The family, with the help of Oakland County Rep. William S. Broomfield hopes to make the miracle happen again by getting U.S. quotas opened for a niece, Angela, 20, and nephew, Nicolai Glavin, 18, still in Bucharest.

The story began in the 1920's when Mrs. Popp and her husband Mike immigrated to the U.S. and eventually moved to Pontiac, said Mrs. Botan. In 1926 Mrs. Popp decided to return to Romania with three children born in this country.

Son John returned to Pontiac in 1933 when he was 17 to rejoin his father. After that, war clouds and the Communist take - over dimmed hopes for reuniting the family here.

The Botans for the past 16 years doggedly kept up a correspondence and sent money to Romania but could get nowhere on obtaining Mrs. Popp's visa until they appealed to the Oakland County chapter of the Red Cross in 1961.

★ ★ ★

They did this on advice of the American legation in Bucharest which had exhausted all other means of dealing with the Romanian government.

REQUESTS ASSISTANCE

Miss Lucy Veler, chapter home service director, set in motion requests for assistance to the International Red Cross in Switzerland.

The Romanian government "didn't want to admit the Red Cross was responsible" for Mrs. Popp's travel permit, but finally relented she said.

If the two young people, children of Mrs. Popp's daughter, who is now dead, are finally allowed to come into the U.S. it will be a major victory said Miss Veler, since Communist countries ordinarily allow only elderly persons to leave.

★ ★ ★

Miss Veler added that while the Red Cross assisted in arrangements, all travel expenses are paid by the Botans.

The Botans have no children of their own. He is employed as an in-city driver with F. J. Boutell new car hauling firm. Mrs. Popp's husband died here in 1959.

U.S. Policy on U2 Flights Is Restated

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States restated today, in the face of warnings from Moscow, its policy of continuing reconnaissance flights over Cuba.

★ ★ ★

State Department Press Officer Richard J. Phillips was asked at a news conference for reaction to the warning from Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev today of possible disastrous consequences if this country continues to fly over Cuba.

Phillips said he could only repeat what he had said on April 20.

At that time he declared the overflights were a substitute for the first hand or "on-site" inspection of the removal of Soviet nuclear rockets from Cuba in October 1962.

Methodists Okay Plan for Integration

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Delegates to the general conference of the Methodist Church approved today a program aimed at racial integration but left it up to the individual churches to implement it.

The proposal, approved overwhelmingly by the 900-odd delegates, calls for merger of white and Negro church subdivisions on a strictly voluntary basis.

★ ★ ★

This means the church's all-Negro Central Jurisdiction embracing some 375,000 members will be eliminated as an administrative unit. But there is no machinery to enforce an actual integration of Negro members into white churches. (Earlier story, page A-12).

DISCUSS COUNTY'S FUTURE—Comparing thoughts on what is needed to insure a healthy economy for a growing population are (from left) Kenneth Roose, associate dean of Oakland University; Detroit Edison Co. Vice President Eldred Scott; County Planning Commission Chairman Ralph Main, and George Skrubb, planning commission director. Scott was keynote speaker at the commission's Economic Growth Conference yesterday at the University.

Confab Airs County Future

Outline Steps to Cope With Growth

Over 200 area business leaders, community planners and local government officials gathered at Oakland University yesterday for a look into Oakland County's economic future.

At a unique conference sponsored by the County Planning Commission, they agreed that certain steps must be taken if the area's economy is to cope adequately with a county population increase from 700,000 to over 1 million people by 1980.

This means jobs must be created and services expanded. Those attending studied how these essentials can be provided for tomorrow by sound planning today.

Besides the natural resources that enrich the general area and its strategic location in relation to major markets, they agreed that further inducements must be offered to industry to expand and locate here.

★ ★ ★

Major among these, they said, are schools to train more and more skilled workers, research facilities to explore new fields of industrial endeavor, specific locations suited to industry, and a good climate for industry.

GOOD CLIMATE

A good climate for industry was described by industrialists as a stable and fair local government and a willingness of the labor force to perform a fair day's work for fair wages.

Industrial realtor Eldon K. Andrews of Detroit urged local government officials and planners to assist existing industries seeking to expand in every way possible.

Thomas Hart, economic advisor to Gov. Romney, said most economic growth in Michigan will result from the expansion of existing industries, mainly geared to the production of automobiles.

R. H. Powell, Ford Motor Co. supervisor of property management, said Oakland County must compete with other areas if it expects to reap economic expansion through location of new plants.

NEW PLANT SITES

He said large companies are looking for new plant locations and do pay attention to thousands of letters, telephone calls and brochures received every day from communities throughout the country offering sites.

"We definitely are attracted to those communities that show stability and a desire to cooperate with us," Powell added.

He said Oakland County presently has too little of its vacant land zoned for industry.

★ ★ ★

He urged planners to take another look and set aside those areas particularly adaptable to plant location.

GOOD LOCATIONS

These sites should be flat, and ideally situated on a major highway and railroad line, with a fully-equipped airport in the vicinity, he said, adding that enough land should be available for further development of plant operations.

Also, he said the community should be able to provide plant employes with easy access to and from work, a good attitude toward newcomers, fine schools, churches, shopping centers and all the public services needed in an urban area.

Man Invades Romney Office

was an FBI agent, state police said.

The man said he arrived in Detroit by plane last night from Washington, D. C., rented a car in Detroit and drove here, and that he slept in the car, state police said.

Romney, who took the incident calmly and joked afterwards, said the man also identified himself as Republican chairman of Dade County, Fla., and a state senator-elect from Dade County.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

"He told me he wanted me and Nixon on the ticket and was concerned about national affairs," the governor said.

While being questioned by troopers, English said "you have violated my basic constitutional rights." He also was heard to say "George Romney may be the best president of the United States."

Kennedy said the man had barged into the office of the governor's personal secretary, Mrs. Little.

FOLLOWED ENGLISH

"I walked over there behind him," Kennedy said. "She went into the governor's office on another matter. I knew she had told him he could not enter without an appointment.

"He followed her across the threshhold into Romney's office. I was right behind him. He said, 'My name is English and I want to see you.'

"As he said this — we were one step inside the office. I grabbed him by the shoulder and pulled him out.

★ ★ ★

One time he said he was an FBI agent. I asked him for some more to identify himself and he wouldn't. At that point, I put him under arrest."

The gun was fully loaded with six bullets. It had a five-inch barrel.

Kennedy said an immediate check of police records turned up the name of Steven C. Potts, who has used the alias Charles E. English, but after an hour's interrogation, a spokesman for state police said "we feel this man is not Potts."

The man was being questioned and fingerprinted by detectives of the Intelligence Division. Two of its members, Sgt. Steven Gallent and Det. George Kerr, had taken the intruder into custody.

Fire Dept. Called Out Over Scrap of Paper

A fire reported in offices over the Dot Drugstore at Huron and Saginaw shortly after noon today brought out city fire engines, but the fire was out when they arrived.

A secretary phoned the fire department when a scrap of paper became ignited on a small stove where she was heating coffee. The flame burned itself out after slightly singeing a wire. No further damage was reported.

State Funds Freed for Project Studies

LANSING (AP) — The legislature Thursday freed $64,350 in state funds for research into establishing a rocket base at the northern tip of Michigan and sparking a resurgence in the Upper Peninsula's iron mining.

The federal government and private industry will chip in funds on both projects, making for a total expenditure of $277,350.

The state cash was released from research-dedicated funds when the Senate passed two House-approved resolutions sponsored by Rep. Gilbert Bursley, R-Ann Arbor and all Upper Peninsula lawmakers.

University of Michigan and Michigan Tech will cooperate in a study of the feasibility of establishing a rocket-firing site on the Keweenaw Peninsula.

Tech will use $11,500 in state funds, $11,500 from industry, and $23,000 in federal money to study ways of improving the UP's natural ores.

The rocket-firing study will use $52,850 from the state, $66,000 from private businesses and $112,500 in federal funds.

Bursley said five rockets may be fired from the Keweenaw Peninsula, which extends into Lake Superior, this summer.

This experiment could lead to the establishment of a permanent firing facility, he said.

The rockets, furnished by the U.S. Weather Bureau, measure atmospheric conditions.

If established on a permanent basis, Bursley said, the site might ultimately be used by other federal agencies and would have "a tremendous impact on the economic and scientific life of the Upper Peninsula."

Senators Avoid Recorded Vote in Tentative OK of Pay Hike

LANSING (AP)—The Senate Thursday tentatively adopted a proposed new pay scale which could make Michigan's lawmakers the highest paid in the country.

Without voting by name, the senators gave tacit endorsement—which may be subject to ratification by a roll call vote—to a boost of $4,250 in salary and expenses.

This would bring their salary to $10,000 a year and expenses to $2,500. New York's legislators now the nation's best paid, get a $10,000 salary but no blanket statutory expense account.

Sens. Harry Litowich, R-Benton Harbor, and Elmer Porter, R-Blissfield, were the only ones to object in debate to both the raise and the method by which it was progressing through the legislature.

AVOID RECORD

The House wrote the increase into the over-all appropriation for general government, thus avoiding a recorded vote. The same procedure was used in the Senate.

"Why didn't the House act like men about it," said Porter. "This is the most unpopular method I've ever seen grown men use."

★ ★ ★

"This pay scale would make us the Rolls Royce of the nation," Litowich said. "I voted against the last pay raise, and when it went through anyway I gave the increase to the community colleges for scholarships."

Minority leader Raymond Dzendzel, D-Detroit, said lawmakers are in effect "executives of a big corporation."

★ ★ ★

Looking at Litowich, Dzendzel said: "I'm not afraid to make the salary high enough so that the best qualified people in my district can run against me. If that's what you're afraid of you shouldn't run for reelection."

Sen. Garland Lane, D-Flint, succeeded in attaching an amendment to give the Sen speaker pro tempore, a post now held by Sen. John Smeekends, R - Coldwater, a $3,500 bonus.

Bonuses for the minority and majority leaders of both houses were in the measure as passed by the House, but the Senat Appropriations Committee struck these out.

Not Against Church, Ionia Couple Claims

IONIA (AP)—An excommunicated couple said Thursday they intended no criticism of the Episcopal Church in a letter-writing uproar over a high school musical production.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Clore of Ionia were excommunicated by their rector, the Rev. Raymond E. Bierlein, after accusing him of having "archaic beliefs and moral knowledge."

The Clores objected to the Rev. Mr. Bierlein's assertion that a dance performed by a girl was "salacious." The couple's charge was published by the Ionia Sentinel-Standard.

★ ★ ★

"We did not, nor would not, set aside respect for God's church," the Clores said Thursday in a statement published in the newspaper. "If we did this, we would have no basis for moral criticism, good or bad."

RESPECT ASIDE

The rector said the Clores set aside respect for the church in their comments on his criticism of 16-year-old Kristi Honson's dance. She had danced off stage and pinched cheeks in the audience during her performance in "Damn Yankees." School officials heard the Rev. Mr. Bierlein's objections and ordered Kristi to remain on stage in the role of the temptress, Lola.

A vestryman, Robert Beach, said the rector would reconsider the excommunication on two conditions. One was that the Clores write the rector saying they did not mean to criticize the church or its moral thinking. The second was that the Clores assert they did not intend to speak for the congregation.

"Several eyes can see the same thing and yet see it in a different light. Beliefs and moral knowledge therefore differ. Our eyes saw nothing salacious and immoral in Lola's song routine.

"We did not intend to represent the church in general. Our friends in our church, . . had expressed to us their ideas of the play as being in accordance with ours. Others have agreed with us since."

Guest Is Charged in Hostess' Death

CLIFFSIDE PARK, N.J. (AP) — A house guest was charged early today with cutting the throat of a 41-year old woman and leaving her body to be found by her young sons, police said.

Walter Beckworth, 37, was accused of slaying Virginia Shaw. Her body was found Thursday in the bedroom of her apartment by her sons, Dennis, 11, and George, 16, when they came home from school for lunch.

Beckworth, on crutches while recovering from a broken leg, was picked up in New York City after midnight and brought to the prosecutor's office for questioning. He was charged with homicide.

Wallace Invites GOP to Cross Over in Indiana Primary

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Indiana Republicans have an invitation from Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama to cross over and vote for him in the Democratic presidential primary Tuesday.

Speaking at a meeting of about 200 of his Indiana supporters Thursday night, Wallace said crossing party lines cannot be prevented.

"Anybody can vote for the governor of Alabama — I don't care what's your party," he said.

Wallace is opposing Gov. Matthew E. Welsh of Indiana, who is running as a stand-in for President Johnson.

CAN BE REQUIRED

In Indiana, a registered voter of one party who wants to vote in the other party's primary can be required to sign an affidavit that he will vote for a majority of the second party's candidates in the fall election, or that he voted for a majority of its candidates in the last general election.

Wallace's executive secretary, Earl C. Morgan, said lawyers have told him "there is no perjury involved concerning an event that might or might not happen in the future."

★ ★ ★

A voter must vote in one party's primary all the way down through local offices. He cannot vote for a presidential candidate of one party and local candidates of the other.

★ ★ ★

The Americans for Conservative Action took a dim view of Republican crossovers for Wallace. ACA is supporting Sen. Barry M. Goldwater of Arizona, who is opposed by Harold E. Stassen and two other candidates in the primary Tuesday.

★ ★ ★

The ACA said in a statement to members: "Any conservative Republican who votes for Wallace will abandon his voice in the selection of all Republican candidates to more liberal party voters and, hence, will be stuck with the more liberal Republican candidates this November.

Law Day in America Reflects Our Heritage

Today is Law Day U.S.A.

Nationally recognized by joint action of President and Congress and proclaimed by Governor GEORGE ROMNEY, it marks the seventh annual observance of a day designated as one for all Americans to reflect on their unique heritage of liberty and justice.

★ ★ ★

The Michigan State Bar Association with the cooperation of many representative organizations of laymen is highlighting the day with statewide meetings and functions. Central theme of the events is the reaffirmation of our democratic system of freedom under law in contrast to the denial of human dignity and rights in large areas of the world.

Keynote of this year's campaign is "Observe the Law—Key to Order, Justice, Freedom."

★ ★ ★

One of the great benefits of Law Day, says the president of the State Bar, "is that it serves as a necessary reminder that the law is not the private responsibility of lawmakers and lawyers. Each citizen has a responsibility to serve as a guardian and upholder of the law. Only if the law is the concern of all can we be assured that it will serve all."

★ ★ ★

The PRESS is in hearty accord with the sentiments and aims of the sponsors of this movement toward enduring Constitutional consciousness and commends them to all good citizens.

U.S. Bureau Invades Private News Media

As though the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) didn't have enough to do maintaining 115,000 employes while putting an annual budgetary bite on taxpayers for $7 billion, it has shown unmistakable signs of branching out into other fields.

For about two years now, the department has yearned to go into the newspaper business.

★ ★ ★

Last fall, the USDA initiated a "New Market News Service" in conjunction with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. for the dissemination of crop and market reports to potential clients.

This service was already being supplied by private media, but Agriculture nevertheless elected to become a competitor—and a most unfair one.

Whereas the private services necessarily have to take executive and administrative costs into consideration in their rate schedules, USDA is not similarly taxed. It has merely to absorb such substantial expense within departmental budgets.

★ ★ ★

Describing this governmental invasion of journalism as an "American Tass," the Journal of Commerce and other newspapers protested strenuously against this new encroachment of government on private enterprise. Assistant Secretary of Agriculture GEORGE L. MEHREN reacted with indignation.

He found the charges "wholly false," and the products of "crass misrepresentation."

★ ★ ★

But now there comes to light a letter from the Agriculture Department to AT&T, dated April 9, 1962 — nine months before the department functionary was so vehemently denying evil intention — in which this significant sentence appears: "We can envision within a few years public extension drops from coast to coast for all products."

We think the Department of Agriculture is currently enough of a drain on taxpayers without increasing it by venturing redundantly into a service calling for a large measure of professional knowledge and experience, to say nothing of the unjustified usurpation of a prerogative of American commerce.

"HIGHER education is at the crossroads," says a prominent educator. The crossroads has become by far the most congested intersection in the world.

Cold War Thaw Hikes Red Trade

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — One of the healthiest recent signs that the cold war has diminished a bit is the dollar sign.

MARLOW

Businessmen here and elsewhere show a developing desire for a buck, even if it means trading with Communists.

It showed up Wednesday at the annual meeting of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, one of the most nonpro-Communist organizations in the country.

About 90 per cent of the businessmen there voted for increased trade in nonstrategic goods with Russia and her European satellites.

Some men wanted trade with three countries totally embargoed by this government: Red China, North Korea, North Viet Nam. There was no vote on this.

★ ★ ★

Why this surge, and it has been growing, to trade with the Communist world? Speakers explained in dollars and cents:

If American businessmen are prevented from selling to the Reds, the trade will go to businessmen in other Western countries which have fewer restrictions.

PHILOSOPHICAL TWIST

The British, just as anxious for the money, give their motivation a little more philosophical twist:

"A fat Communist is a little less belligerent than a lean one."

But there has long been a feeling in this country that selling anything to Communists simply strengthens communism.

A classic example was the fight in Congress—it finally lost—against selling even wheat to Russia.

RAN INTO ATTITUDE

Secretary of State Dean Rusk ran headon into this attitude last month in telling Congress there should be more flexibility in trade with the Reds.

He takes this line—and it's the Johnson administration line—that the United States should pick and choose between Communists nations on trade.

This is the reasoning: That trade with certain Communist countries may encourage them to show more independence of Moscow.

But he wants a tight boycott — which American allies are ignoring — in dealing with Fidel Castro's Cuba.

MORE DEPENDENT

For this reason in this case: The tougher the economic squeeze on Castro, the less successful communism in Cuba will be and the more he will have to depend on Moscow which is helping to bail him out at a a cost to Russia of about $1 million a day.

This reasoning gets a little puzzling, since Rusk wants to make some Red countries less dependent on Moscow but Cuba more so.

Looks Like Rain!

David Lawrence Says:

Right to Pray Being Encumbered

WASHINGTON — Is the right to pray in a classroom or anywhere else a civil right?

The right of parents to send their children to public schools in their own neighborhood to be educated along with persons of another race or religion is widely construed today as a civil right.

LAWRENCE

But the right to pray is being encumbered now with legal obstacles and restrictions that are supported by various religious groups themselves.

Such a paradoxical situation may not really be due alone to religious prejudices but to fears of misuse of the privilege of praying.

There is such a sensitiveness about the possibility that the teachers in a public school might influence the religious beliefs of the children that testimony being presented this week before the House Judiciary Committee by the National Council of Churches argues it is better that there be no prayers at all in the classroom.

The whole controversy hinges to a large extent on whether there can be a voluntary prayer in the schoolroom.

★ ★ ★

In testimony presented by the council to the Judiciary Committee, objection was raised to the composition of official prayers by any governmental body or to any requirement to use a particular prayer. This is understandable and has been widely accepted.

PUZZLEMENT ARISES

Puzzlement arises, however, when in the same testimony occurs the following:

"'But whether prayers may be offered at special occasions in the public schools may well be left to the judgment of the board responsible for the program of the public schools in the local community.'

"The last sentence quoted (from the pronouncement of the council's general board) is designed to distinguish between required daily prayers in classrooms, which are not countenanced, and prayers at commencements or special assemblies, which may be if the local board desires."

★ ★ ★

The National Council testimony goes on to say:

"Religious practices that are 'nonsectarian' are too vague and generalized to have much meaning or effect for character development or moral motivation; whereas practices which are specific or demanding enough to effect character or motivation are unacceptable to some and therefore 'sectarian'."

There is much discussion today as to whether a constitutional amendment is really needed.

REJECTION OF SYSTEM

The Supreme Court's rulings have been largely based on the rejection of a system in New York whereby a governmental agency itself prescribed the wording of the prayer, which was held to be a violation of the Constitution.

★ ★ ★

But, in order to be on the safe side, those who do not want all religion removed from the schools feel that a constitutional amendment would clarify the subject and preserve the rights of all concerned.

Tower Sees Nod to Barry; Rates LBJ 'Awful Tough'

NEW YORK People . . . places . . . things . . .

Sen. John Goodwin Tower, the Texas Republican who has been campaigning through the country for Barry Goldwater, gives us the latest Conservative progress report.

CONSIDINE

"If things continue as they're now going, Barry will go to the convention with between 550 and 600 delegates," the determined man from Houston told us.

"He needs 655 to win. I think he'll find them by the end of the second ballot. He'll win California's 86-member delegation June 2, and Texas' 56-vote delegation two weeks later.

"Nobody will be close to him in the number of pledged delegates when we go to San Francisco in July.

★ ★ ★

"We have a financial problem for a time. Now it's coming in again.

RELUCTANT CANDIDATE

"Scranton's people are opening a Washington office for him, but he's out. Nobody can pin his hopes on a reluctant candidate.

"Romney was never in, in the first place.

"Rockefeller simply has no support.

★ ★ ★

"The only man with a chance to beat out Barry is Dick Nixon, and then only if the present swing toward Barry stops."

AWFUL TOUGH

We mentioned LBJ. Sen. Tower sighed.

"He's going to be awful tough to beat," he said.

'Adequate Road Markings Could Prevent Accidents'

How much is a life worth? Are governing authorities ignorant of an existing situation or merely indifferent?

★ ★ ★

Several accidents could have been avoided and a few lives saved by applying 50 cents worth of paint stating "Left Turn Only" to the left of the through lane on eastbound Elizabeth Lake Road at the Telegraph Road intersection. They might even splurge with a "Right Turn Only" sign, thus erasing any reason for drivers to cut off others in the through lane.

★ ★ ★

This has been done on westbound Elizabeth Lake Road, but completely overlooked from the opposite direction.

'Railroad Contacted on Stalling Traffic'

This is in reply to "Help" who recently complained of railroad trains blocking traffic for excessive periods of time at 6 a.m. daily on the Walton Blvd. and Baldwin Ave. crossing and also at the Columbia crossing.

Pontiac City Ordinance No. 1275 prohibits a railroad train from obstructing any public streets for a period longer than five consecutive minutes at any one time. As a result of this complaint, your Police Department has contacted officials of the Grand Trunk Western R. R. Co. in an effort to assure voluntary compliance with this ordinance. Police Officers have been instructed to check the above locations at the time specified to initiate proper enforcement action in the event that any violations occur.

'School Bond, Millage Vote Setup Unfair'

I must give my views on voting practices for school bonds and millage. Although only the taxpayer is allowed to vote on the bond issue, the millage vote is open to all. This is unfair as both are money out of the taxpayers' pockets.

When schools want 2 mills it isn't just on your assessed valuation, but 2 mills on the equalized valuation.

I know we need schools, but do we need one-story buildings, spread over 40 acres? We need to eliminate the fancy things now taught and get down to some old-fashioned teaching — where children are taught respect along with the fundamentals. A paddle in the right place would certainly do no harm and might curb delinquency.

Ex-Nazis Escape

Chicago's American

A former Nazi S. S. lieutenant, Hans Walter Zech-Nenntwich, was convicted of helping to kill 5,200 Jews in wartime Russia, and was sentenced by the West German war crimes court in Frankfurt to four years at hard labor. Three days later, Zech-Nenntwich escaped from the Brunswick prison with the help of a sympathetic warder.

As his steps have been traced, Zech-Nenntwich entered an auto waiting for him outside the prison and was driven to an airport, where he and a woman companion boarded a rented plane for Switzerland. At Basel, Zech-Nenntwich passed through customs with the help of a false identity card, boarded a train, and disappeared.

Two other ex-Nazis escaped from Germany while awaiting trial for war crimes. A fourth committed suicide, apparently with outside help. State prosecutors in Frankfurt said they were "working on the assumption" that a Nazi underground helped these men evade justice.

★ ★ ★

Plainly Zech-Nenntwich and previous escapees had outside help that could have been provided only by a well-organized, influential ring—one capable of communicating with prisoners, planning escapes, and procuring everything needed to carry them out.

One purpose of the Frankfurt trials was to impress Germans with the hideousness of the Hitler regime, and to show how thoroughly Germany has purged itself of the Nazis' bestial philosophy. That argument is weakened by the Zech-Nenntwich escape and the evidence that a well-heeled Nazi organization is still functioning on behalf of war criminals. West German authorities should show equal efficiency in breaking up this underground railroad fast and bringing its operators to justice.

Blunt Warning

The Evening Star (Washington)

Sen. Lausche, Ohio Democrat, is not a racist by any stretch of anyone's imagination. On the contrary, he supports the efforts by Negroes to achieve their rights "within the law." But he is a plain-spoken man, and his comments on the recent "demonstrations" in Cleveland should be heeded.

Mr. Lausche had been mayor of Cleveland and governor of his state. He knows Ohio. Thus, there is reason to believe him when he says that "foreign elements" having no roots in the city have been at work in Cleveland, inciting trouble for the sake of trouble.

In his recent remarks in the Senate, however, he was not addressing himself to these people. That would be futile. Instead, he was warning of the grave consequences which will result from following this kind of leadership.

He put it in these words:

The achievement of civil rights must come within the processes of law and not by trespass, riot and flagrant defiance of the rights of others.

Candidly, I state that the cause of the Negroes in Cleveland and in the Nation has been markedly harmed by the recently practiced violence and threats of violence.

The organization of rifle clubs throughout the country and in Cleveland with the avowed purpose of using the rifles and the trained riflemen to settle racial differences, is shockingly and indefensibly wrong.

In fact, it is criminal in spirit and purpose. For the good of all the people of our democracy, those of us who occupy public office should and must be firm in the performance of our obligations that there shall be no surrender of government to trespassers, rioters, and insurrectionists.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps some civil rights leaders will scoff at this. But they must be blind indeed if they do not see that Senator Lausche's remarks are merely an echo of a rising tide of resentment in this country against the extremists and their tactics.

Furthermore, it is inevitable that this resentment, given time, will gravely damage the cause of civil rights. Those who are responsible for the abuses must know it.

the same. Maybe The Press has forgotten the Pontiac assessor recently set the assessed valuation at $15 million higher than was anticipated. This will bring a lot more money into the city. Evidently the voters didn't forget this when they went to the polls.

A millage increase is only good for a short time and when it is used up they would have to ask for another. What this town needs is a payroll tax with reduction in property taxes.

Why don't the State Highway Dept. and Pontiac Motor build some walks on their property on Mt. Clemens near the Perimeter Road? The walks were removed last summer, thus making it very difficult for lame, elderly people to get to town. Now with the spring rains it is flooded, muddy and slippery.

Directs Questions at Romney on PTA

As an ex-teacher, wife of a teacher, mother of two small children, and a Republican who voted for Mr. Romney, I would like to question his statements to the Michigan Congress of PTA's. Quoting Mr. Romney: "Leadership in education must come from the home and the classroom or else from Washington." He urged that parents and teachers "become leaders in an all-out movement to revitalize citizen support and interest in education."

★ ★ ★

I remind Mr. Romney that the Constitution specifically charges the individual states with the responsibility of education. That responsibility must include leadership. Can he or anyone else think of a parent or teacher that is not interested in education?

★ ★ ★

I have seen PTA's and many citizens' organizations study and work for the schools. They spend hours studying, ringing doorbells and telephones and distributing pamphlets, for the education of their children. And don't forget all the people who vote for millage.

How can Mr. Romney say we need to be revitalized? What else can we do. There are many areas that could stand improvement. How are they to be financed?

★ ★ ★

It is time Mr. Romney stops looking to PTA for "revitilization" and realize that the responsibility rests with the Michigan Legislature. Who else could lead if not the governor?

Pontiac School Affairs

Two Counseling Positions Added to Budget

Two senior high school counseling positions were added to the 1964-65 preliminary budget last night by the Pontiac School Board.

School administrators recommended the staff additions in order to meet accrediting requirements of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

This national organization requires a 300-1 student-counselor ratio in senior high schools. Currently, Pontiac has a 350-1 ratio.

Cost of the two conselors was estimated at $11,400.

★ ★ ★

The green light was also given last night for use of two special education rooms in Pontiac for a summer educational program for acoustically handicapped children.

FREE USE

The Lost Decibels, a parent group, requested free use of two rooms at Willis School. The parents have organized a summer program for the hard of hearing.

Other school districts in Oakland County have also offered rooms for the program.

Pontiac will have two groups, Ferndale one and Royal Oak two. Sixty-one children will participate in the program.

★ ★ ★

In other business, the school board adopted a school calendar for next year.

NEW CALENDAR

Under the new calendar, secondary pupils will be in school 1½ days more than this year, while elementary pupils will be in session one full day more than this year.

Christmas vacation was cut a day and the school year will not end until June 17. Pupils are to be dismissed at noon on June 11 this year.

However, the year won't begin until Sept. 7. This school year began Sept. 2.

★ ★ ★

Supt. Dana P. Whitmer said the school calendar conforms to previous years.

COMMENCEMENT DATES

In related action, senior high school commencement dates were selected for the current graduating classes.

Pontiac Northern seniors will graduate June 10, while Central seniors will have their commencement on June 11.

Use of school buildings and playgrounds for the Pontiac Park and Recreation Department's summer program was okayed by the school board.

★ ★ ★

Twenty elementary schools and four junior high schools will be utilized by the city this summer.

TEEN PROGRAM

In addition, Northern High School will be used for a teen program each weekday from 6-10 p.m.

Swimming programs will be held Monday through Friday at both local high schools. The city's recreation program begins June 22.

In other action, the school board adjusted the boundary between Whittier and Franklin elementary schools. The new line runs down the middle of Franklin Road.

★ ★ ★

Affecting 25 children, the boundary change places those living in even-numbered houses on Franklin in the Whittier School attendance area, while those in odd-numbered houses will attend Franklin School.

SPECIAL MEETING

A special board meeting was set for 5 p.m. Monday, May 11.

Purpose of the meeting is to approve the election notice and form of ballot for the annual June school board election.

Nominating petitions for the June 8 election must be filed by 4 p.m. May 9.

Other election business last night saw the Pontiac School Board name William H. Anderson to represent the school district June 1 at the election of county school board members. Anderson is board president.

6-YEAR TERMS

County school board members are elected by representatives of local school districts. Two six-year terms are to be filled this year.

★ ★ ★

Monroe M. Osmun, a veteran Pontiac board member, is also up for reelection to a six-year term on the county school board. Osmun has filed to run again.

Parents Plead for Return of Child

Police Use Sketch Clue in Kidnap Case

CHICAGO (UPI) — Police built their search for 5-day-old Paul Joseph Fronczak today around a new sketch they said was "very close" to the description of the mysterious woman kidnaper.

Mrs. Dora Fronczak, the dark-haired mother of the missing infant, wept openly yesterday before newsmen, television cameras and glaring floodlamps while pleading to the abductor to "please return our baby.

★ ★ ★

"He was everything we had of our hopes for the future," the 28-year-old mother sobbed. Her husband, Chester, 33, stood by silently.

"Take good care of him and see that he gets enough to eat. Just so he's taken care of and brought back. That's our only hope and prayer," Mrs. Fronczak said.

Police said the new sketch pictured the kidnaper with a more oblong face than did the previous drawings. The woman is described as a "dishwater blonde" in her late 30's.

★ ★ ★

"She was white-skinned, but that's all I remember," Mrs. Fronczak said. The kidnaper, masquerading as a nurse at Michael Reese Hospital, took the baby from his mother's arms Monday while he was being nursed.

★ ★ ★

FEEDING TIME

"She said she was going to take the baby to the nursery," the mother said. "He had been fed for about a half hour. But the baby's feeding time was an hour, and I was wondering why she took the baby when his feeding time was only a half-hour through."

Mrs. Fronczak said, "The only thing I can think of is that she must have been desperate for a baby. Maybe she lost one herself.

"But even losing a child, I don't think you could be that desperate to take another woman's baby. I only ask for the baby to be well taken care of and brought back," she said.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Fronczak wept every time she said "baby."

RETRACE STEPS

Police yesterday retraced their steps through a 96-block southwest side neighborhood. A cab driver had told them he let off a woman and a newborn child in the area the day of the abduction after he had picked them up at Michael Reese Hospital.

Investigators checked householders they missed in a previous door-to-door canvass of the neighborhood.

Other investigators were nearly through checking records of about 3,000 present and past woman employes of the hospital. Authorities have been checking Michael Reese employment files for two days.

★ ★ ★

Police Capt. William Murphy had his own words for the kidnaper yesterday.

"You have had the baby three days," he said. "By now, you must realize you should return this infant boy to his mother's arms. You must undo what you have done.

"Call us. Help us return the baby."

Police are searching for a woman who posed in nurse's attire and took the boy from his mother's arms midway through a feeding.

Abduction Suspect Held

FBI Studies Boy's Skeleton

VENICE, Fla. (UPI) — The skeleton of 7-year-old Lewis Wilson was sent to FBI laboratories in Washington today in a continuing investigation into the activities of accused boy abductor Joseph Francis Bryan Jr.

The skeleton was found in a rattlesnake-infested field about five miles south of here yesterday by a search party of 75 men after FBI agents traced Bryan's movements to this area.

Bryan, a former convict and mental patient, is in custody in New Orleans, where he was captured Tuesday. With him at the time was 8-year-old Dennis Burke of Humboldt, Tenn. The boy was unharmed.

The 25-year-old Bryan was quoted by authorities when he was put on the FBI's 10 most wanted men list as saying he likes "to see young boys tied up and screaming."

* * *

He is charged with kidnaping 10-year-old John David Robinson of Mount Pleasant, S.C., Feb. 27. The Robinson boy's skeleton was found March 31 in a mangrove swamp near Hallandale, Fla.

JURY TO MEET

A federal grand jury meets today to consider an indictment which will have a bearing on Bryan's removal from New Orleans where he is being held on bond of $150,000.

FBI agents also are investigating to see if Bryan is linked with other disappearances of young boys.

LEWIS WILSON

Young Wilson, the son of a St. Petersburg, Fla., fireman, disappeared on March 23 while on his way home from school. St. Petersburg is about 75 miles north of this Florida west coast resort city.

The Wilson boy's remains were scattered over a small area about 75 yards from U.S. Highway 41, the main link between Miami and St. Petersburg.

TEETH MISSING

The skull was about six feet from the rest of the skeleton and police said several front teeth were missing — indicating the boy may have been struck on the mouth.

The youth's tennis shoes, without the laces, and his clothing were nearby. Wilson's father, who was on the search party, identified a jacket found as being the one worn by his son when he vanished while walking home from school March 23.

St. Petersburg Police Lt. A. M. Sevier said it had been established that Bryan was within three blocks of where the Wilson boy was last seen March 23.

* * *

FBI agents said Venice junk yard operator Eddie Bond got a call about 6 p.m. March 23 asking him to come to the area where the skeleton was found and pull a car out of the sand.

Bond told agents the driver of the car said he had been in the scrub target practicing with a 22-caliber weapon. Bond said the driver had no money, but bought a tire and tube with a credit card and gave it to him as payment for freeing the car.

* * *

Among other investigations authorities were making was one on a report by a used car dealer at Theodore, Ala., that he bought a car from Bryan on March 12 and that Bryan was accompanied by a boy of 8 or 9 years of age.

Experts who examined young Robinson's body estimated his death on March 1. Young Wilson disappeared on March 23.

Power Failure Darkens Half of Albuquerque

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Half of the city of Albuquerque was darkened for more than an hour by a power failure due to one of New Mexico's rare rainstorms last night.

At least four electric transformers were struck and knocked out by lightning, a power company spokesman said. Three light poles were set afire.

Driver Dead on Arrival After Car Hits Pole

ST. JOSEPH (AP)—Elton W. Avery, 62, of Grand Rapids was dead on arrival at Memorial Hospital Thursday after his station wagon struck a utility pole along US 31 just south of the city limits.

Berrien County sheriff's men said his wife, Edith, escaped injury. Dr. Gerald Beal, medical examiner, ordered an autopsy to determine whether Avery suffered a heart attack or traffic injury.

2 Die in Auto Crash

DEARBORN (AP)—Two Allen Park men were killed Thursday night when their car and another collided at an intersection. The two were flung from their car. They were James A. Brady, 20, and Lawrence Pilachowski, 22.

Condition Said Fair After Auto Collision

Mrs. Dean Coffin, 52, of 740 Indianwood, Orion Township, is in fair condition at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital with injuries suffered in an auto accident yesterday on I-75 in Pontiac Township.

Mrs. Coffin was riding in a southbound car driven by her son, Fred, 20, which collided with another southbound auto driven by James Slankard, 40, of 4660 Sashabaw, Waterford Township.

Slankard told sheriff's deputies he was attempting to turn into the left lane when the accident occurred. Coffin said his car was passing when Slankard's auto pulled out.

Violinist Gets $300,000 in Crash Suit

An injured musician, represented by Waterford Township attorneys John Houston and Wallace McLay, received a $330,000 out-of-court settlement yesterday in Detroit.

The settlement, believed one of the largest ever resulting from a state damage suit, went to Barret E. Smith, 24, of East Detroit. He is a former Detroit Symphony Orchestra violist.

He was paralyzed from the neck down as a result of a freeway accident in May 1962 when his car was struck from behind by a bulk milk transport truck.

Michigan Producers Dairy Co. is to pay him $290,000 and driver Arthur E. Lebert of St. Clair Shores the remaining $10,000.

Vote Near on Church Negro Unit

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The general conference of the Methodist Church moved toward a vote today on a proposal to abolish its Central Jurisdiction, which embraces 375,000 Negroes.

The proposal was brought before the conference yesterday but debate immediately bogged down in discussion of amendments. The debate was carried into a night session, but there was no vote.

The proposal calls for transfer of the Negroes into the church's five other jurisdictions, which are formed on a geographical basis.

So far, opposition has come from Southern delegates, who have sought to delay passage by shunting the plan into a committee, and from those who want a speedier method of ending segregation in the church.

★ ★ ★

Passage requires a simple majority by the 900 delegates attending the quadrennial conference.

LARGE FOLLOWING

About one third of the delegates are from the South, where the church has a large following. However, a veteran Methodist observer said yesterday the plan is a moderate one and probably will be passed.

★ ★ ★

Although the plan ultimately aims at removing all segregation from the church, it is strictly voluntary, and no church or conference of churches would be compelled to abide by it.

Rusk Is for Rights to Fight Hypocrisy

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk says the civil rights bill must be passed so the United States' voice will not be "muted by the hypocrisy of unreal pretensions."

In a speech to the American Jewish Committee in New York, the secretary said, "I know of no single step which Congress can take to establish more securely the safety and welfare of our nation than to pass the civil rights bill now before it."

★ ★ ★

The committee awarded its American Liberties Medallion to Rusk "for exceptional advancement of the principles of human liberty."

Believe Oxygen Triggered Fatal Blaze on Ship

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — J.R. Maumenee, president of the Alabama Dry Dock & Shipbuilding Co., says an undetected flow of oxygen may have triggered the flash fire aboard a ship in which five workmen died.

In a statement issued yesterday, Maumenee said an unknown employe apparently connected a hose leading to compartments where the victims were working to an outside oxygen manifold instead of an air compressor.

This oxygen was eventually ignited from an undetermined source, he said.

A federal inquiry also was held, but its results were not released.

The ship was the 496-foot aircraft ferry vessel Croatan which was in drydock for routine repairs. None of its 74 civilian crewmen were hurt.

The trend of the conversations was not revealed.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Security Council is expected to meet in mid-May on a request by 57 African, Asian and American nations for immediate action to prevent racial conflict on South Africa.

The request Thursday to Roger Seydoux of France, council president for May, said the petitioners were "particularly concerned with extreme measures and especially the death sentence pronounced against numerous African political leaders."

VIENNA (AP)—Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski of Poland arrived today from Warsaw for talks on the situation of the Roman Catholic Church in Eastern Europe and a pilgrimage to Austria's national shrine of the Holy Mary.

The Polish primate, who will go to Rome Sunday to attend commission meetings of the Ecumenical Council, was greeted at the railroad station by his host, Franziskus Cardinal Koenig.

Perfect Goof Foils Thief

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Frank Fimbres, 27, might have committed a perfect crime, police said, except for one thing—he left his name and home address at the scene.

Police said Fimbres told them he easily entered an Oakland electronics plant early yesterday and opened a safe with the help of instructions pasted on the door. Then he fled with $45 cash.

But when Fimbres got home he found police waiting. They traced him through a receipt he had dropped at the plant. It was for a bail bond he posted last month when arrested on a charge of drunken driving.

Science Quiz

By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: Tension and Musical Pitch.

NEEDED: A tin can, two nails, and a rubber band.

DO THIS: Drive the nails half way into the can as shown, and stretch the rubber band between them. Pluck band with the finger and a sound will be heard.

Wrap the band around the nails a few times, pluck it, and the pitch heard when the band is plucked will be higher.

WHY? As the band is plucked it is set into vibration. The greater the tension on the band, the faster the vibration, and the more rapid the vibration, the higher the pitch.

The can serves to hold the nails and to vibrate with the nails. The air in the can vibrates, too, and may make the sound louder.

"Science Circus" by Bob Brown, is a book of 153 of these science experiments. It is sold in bookstores.

World Communism Celebrates Annual May Day Rite Today

By The Associated Press

The Communist world held its annual May Day rites today with massive outpourings of people in Moscow and Peking and the usual tough talk about the invincibility of communism.

But the great schism between the Soviet Union and Red China cast its shadow over the gala celebrations. The Soviets refused to attend the Peking rally and withdrew an invitation to a Chinese labor delegation to view the annual parade in Moscow's Red Square.

East Germany, Bulgaria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia joined the Soviets in their boycott of the Peking festivities.

★ ★ ★

Many non-Communist countries also held May Day celebrations to honor their labor force. But there were few such activities in the United States, where labor's big holiday occurs in September.

The Soviet Union unveiled a new antiaircraft twin rocket during a parade through Red Square in which tens of thousands of soldiers and workers marched. Western observers said the 20-foot rocket appeared to be for field use against planes at medium or low altitudes.

Red China's Premier Chou En-lai told a reception for 1,300 foreign visitors on the eve of the big rally in Peking's main square that his country would win its quarrel with the Soviet Union and other Communist critics.

Boasting of China's new strength, Chou also lashed out against the United States.

"A new upsurge has appeared in the struggle of the people of the whole world against the U.S. imperialist policies of aggression and war," he said.

Chou urged the peoples of Asia and Latin America to rally together and said: "The united front against U.S. imperialism is steadily expanding and we shall unite ever more closely and continue for the victory of our common cause."

The giant square was decorated with huge portraits of Mao Tze-tung, Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin.

Communist Chinese gunners halted their on-off artillery bombardment of the offshore Nationalist Chinese islands.

The East German Communists marked May Day with a massive military parade in East Berlin.

About 300,000 West Berliners attended a trade union rally on their side of the wall. They heard speeches by Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt.

The theme of the Western rally was freedom, peace and German unity. The only marchers were unarmed trade unionists who converged on the square in five long columns.

★ ★ ★

Absent this year from the East German celebration were the threats against West Berlin that have been a feature of past May Days. Speaking before the parade, Alfred Neumann, a member of the politburo, said his regime would do all possible to reduce tension with West Germany.

The Soviet Union's independent Communist ally, Yugoslavia, displayed rockets for the first time in its Belgrade parade before President Tito and other top leaders.

MILITARY PARADE

The 40-minute military parade included antitank and antiaircraft rockets presumably bought from the Soviet Union.

A television announcer said Yugoslav air force supersonic jets of most modern production flashed over the parade. The noise was heard but the planes could not be seen. Western military attaches said they probably were Soviet-built MIG jet fighters.

Some 900 snake-dancing leftist students clashed briefly with police in front of the Japanese Parliament in Tokyo. But they were dispersed with water hoses.

But rainy skies put a damper on Japan's 35th May Day celebrations. Police said 1.4 million persons turned out at 600 rallies throughout the country.

Indonesia's President Sukarno continued his saber-rattling against neighboring Malaysia at a May Day rally in Jakarta attended by more than 15,000 workers. "Onward, never retreat," he exclaimed. "Indications of victory are sighted."

A fleet of vehicles brought a huge turnout of workers into Hayana for a celebration at which Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro was to be the main speaker. He was expected to repeat his warnings against continuation of U.S. reconnaissance flights over Cuba, warnings which the U.S. government brushes aside.

SAIGON PATROLS

Government troops patroled Saigon following reports of possible Viet Cong violence in South Viet Nam's capital. The American community was warned to be especially cautious.

By midday, however, there were no terrorist incidents and the countryside was quiet.

The arrival of paratroopers in Saigon set off a rash of coup rumors, but their presence appeared to be directed against the Communists.

A holiday mood prevailed in Mexico as schools and most businesses closed and even newspapers suspended publication. Half a million workers were expected to parade past the presidential palace in Mexico City.

SPAIN PRECAUTIONS

Spain's Franco regime ordered police precautions after the Communists appealed for demonstrations against the government in Madrid, Bilbao, San Sebastian, Zaragoza and Barcelona. A number of persons, including students, were reported detained in Madrid as a precaution.

Special programs were observed with the government's blessing to mark "25 years of peace" under Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

★ ★ ★

Military reserves joined police in neighboring Portugal on guard against worker and student demonstrations in retaliation for the wounding of a student earlier this week by police while allegedly distributing literature attacking the Salazar dictatorship.

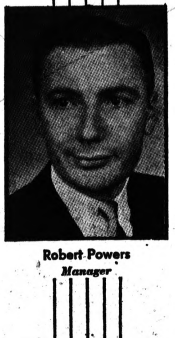

A bright sun broke over Paris and thousands of city dwellers left for the countryside. Other thousands left Thursday for a long weekend. Most business places and government offices were closed. The only event scheduled was a union rally in the afternoon.

MOSCOW, U.S.A.

The farming and college community of Moscow, Idaho, planned a May Day parade to take some of the thunder away from the demonstration in the Soviet city of the same name.

Instead of military hardware, the Idaho town of 12,000 lined up such peaceful goods as boats, cars, tractors and combines. E. Russell Short, Chamber of Commerce president, said the idea was to show products that can be bought by any citizen "who is willing to work for them."

BEGINS REIGN—President Johnson looks toward his youngest daughter, Luci Baines, who holds her mace of office aloft after being crowned Queen Shenandoah XXXVII yesterday. She reigns over the annual Shenandoah Apple Festival at Winchester, Va. The President made an unexpected drive from Washington to be at his daughter's side.

May Help in Coming Election

Fidel Riding an Economic Treadmill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Like Alice in Wonderland, Fidel Castro's Cuba is going to have to run harder just to stay in the same place economically over the next few years.

And, because he badly needs all he can get for the Cuban economy this year, this may explain Castro's attempt to manipulate the sensitive world sugar markets.

The State Department charged yesterday that Cuba, one of the world's leading sugar producers, has been trying to drive up world sugar prices by making mysterious purchases abroad and by leaking false information on its own sugar production.

What probably lies behind it is the fact that Cuba is now in a crucial economic period. Its international financial position is somewhat improved. But the causes of the improvement are expected to reverse and bring major problems in years ahead.

International sugar markets are so sensitive that a difference of a few hundred thousand tons in what traders think will be offered for sale can affect the price.

Cuba startled trade circles recently by buying 20,000 tons of sugar in British and French markets for shipment to Bulgaria and Communist China.

At the same time, Cuban officials have been claiming that recent heavy rains have hindered Cuban cane-cutting.

They have cited low production figures for March indicating that this year's Cuban sugar crop will be down.

The implication was that Cuba is having so many production troubles that it must buy sugar from Europe to meet its export commitments to the Communist world.

ALL A FRAUD

The State Department charged that this was all a fraud.

It said U.S. records show no recent abnormal rains and that Cuban production in March was higher than claimed.

The U.S. estimate is that Cuban production this year will be about the same as last year, around 3.8 million metric tons.

A rapid rise in world sugar prices from two and a half cents a pound in 1962 to a peak of 12 cents in 1963 was a major windfall for Castro.

INCREASES RESERVES

If allowed him, by selling about the same amount of sugar on world markets, to increase his foreign exchange reserves from nearly zero to $100 million.

But prices have since been falling, and they are expected to decline to perhaps four cents in 1967.

According to one informed estimate, Castro will have to double his sugar production by 1967 to keep up his present earnings.

* * *

In other words, he will have to run faster to stay in the same place.

NOT IMPOSSIBLE

Doubling production would not be impossible for Cuba, which before Castro, did produce in one year 7 million tons. But it would take excellent management, and Cuba seems to lack that under the Communists.

Also, for several years the Russians have allowed Cuba to fall short on its sugar export commitments to them. But there are signs that for the period ahead, Russia has geared her own sugar production to receiving fixed amounts from Cuba.

The Russians therefore may be less lenient and this could produce new political strains between Russia and Cuba.

* * *

All of which would provide strong motives for Castro to want to get the very most out of his sugar exports this year.

Queen Luci Dances at Festival

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) — Duly crowned queen of the Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival, Luci Baines Johnson turned belle of the ball at her coronation day ceremony.

She danced until after midnight, and when she expertly swung into a "frug," a spectator told her: "Boy, after dancing like that, there's not a Republican left in the state of Virginia."

In the last three presidential elections, Virginia has voted Republican. The Johnsons — President, First Lady, and 16-year-old Luci—made apple blossom history here, and there were some observers who thought it might just have something to do with the 1964 presidential campaign.

* * *

President Johnson drove 70 miles from Washington and back Thursday just to spend 45 minutes watching his daughter crowned Queen Shenandoah XXXVII in colorful pageantry at Handley High School's huge grassy stadium.

LADY BIRD ARRIVES

Today, Mrs. Johnson travels the same route to join Luci at the 3½ hour grand feature parade, with 200 marching units, elaborate floats, bands and a division of antique automobiles.

Lucille Ball, an actress, is grand marshal of the parade and Luci is to ride on a royal float.

The President's appearance Thursday was unannounced. Even Luci said she never expected him to come.

Johnson was a hit too with scores of costumed youngsters who were taking part in the coronation pageant. They squealed and jumped excitedly as he passed them in the school corridors and reached over to shake hands with many of them He even kissed a few of the small fry.

* * *

Johnson made a brief coronation speech in which he said he was happy that Luci was being publicly recognized as a queen although he said she was someone "I've known as a queen for so many years."

When Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, the Air Force chief of staff, placed a silver crown on Luci's head, Johnson sealed the coronation with a kiss for his daughter.

For the ball, Luci's escort was Stafford Hutchinson, 17, whose father Everett Hutchinson, is an Interstate Commerce Commission member. Young Hutchinson was cut in on frequently.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt inaugurated his radio fireside chats March 12, 1933.

Community School Concept—III

Value of Education to Public Stressed

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This article concludes a three-part series on Flint's unique educational system.)

By HOWARD HELDENBRAND

The two preceding installments of this series considered the birth of the Flint Community School concept and its evolution over a quarter of a century.

This concluding installment answers the following question:

How do you get educators, civic leaders and parents to realize that there is a fertile bond between education and the improvement of living?

During the quarter-century growth of the community school concept, an effective formula for lowering the barriers to human understanding and interaction has been evolved — the 4-"I"s:

● IN: First you get the people in their Heldenbrand schools. Offer them what they want.

★ ★ ★

● INTERESTED: They then become interested — in the school, their neighbors, and educational and community problems.

WORK ON PROBLEMS

● INVOLVED: They want to work on the problems, volunteer their services, become active in community councils, advisory committees and service work for improving safety, health and education. They become involved in school-community affairs and activities.

● INFORMED: This is a prime, long-term goal of community education. As responsible citizens, people must become informed about local issues, community problems.

As these positive 4-"I"s take root, they will tend to uproot the negative 4-"I"s that act as millstones around the necks of communities: INDIFFERENCE, INTOLERANCE, INERTIA, IGNORANCE.

FINE FOR FLINT

Skeptics might say, "All this is fine for a city like Flint with a Mott to foot the bill, but how are communities not similarly blessed going to manage it?"

There is reassuring answer. They can.

The average taxpayer in Flint pays 24 cents daily for the regular school program.

For an increase of but two cents a day, the community school program could be absorbed within the framework of the total educational system without one cent of Mott Foundation money.

IMPORTANT FACTOR

Leadership is the most important factor in the effectiveness of the concept, say the Flint innovators.

Without good leadership, money is of little value; with it, money becomes relatively unimportant.

For leaders and counselors, there is another set of 4-"I"s: IMAGINATION, INITIATIVE, INTEGRITY, INDUSTRY.

Many areas have made starts on community schools, and others are seriously studying it.

UNIFYING FORCE

Locally, school authorities see the community school plan as a significant unifying social force and hopefully look to the day that it can be established in Pontiac.

Meanwhile, within the framework of the existing school system, certain aspects of the plan — adult education programs at Central High School and periodic student-adult community sessions at other schools — are carried on.

Waterford Township boards have approved first steps toward eventual implementation of a total community school plan within its district school establishment.

★ ★ ★

In the interim, several individual schools, acting independently, have introduced various elements of it by means of volunteer citizen participation and expanded scope of school facilities.

★ ★ ★

In conclusion, the fascinating potential of the social-educational partnership might well be epitomized: "Bring light to the community by keeping the lights on in the schools."

Birds of a Feather?

Whoopin' Job for Bantam

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—A little bantam hen is the bewildered foster mother of a rare bird—the world's 40th whooping crane.

★ ★ ★

The fledgling burst out of his half-pound egg at the state's Wildlife Research substation here Wednesday and was reported in good condition.

The bantam who sat on the egg, "mothering" it until it hatched, is a Japanese silkie weighing one pound. The incubation period of whooping crane eggs is about 30 days.

★ ★ ★

The true mother of the newest whooping crane is Josephine, one of seven at the New Orleans Zoo. The zoo is trying to hatch four other eggs.

Hooray for May Day!

Are you ready to cast your vote for the Queen of the May . . . hang May baskets of fresh flowers secretly on the doors of your friends . . . practice your steps for the annual dance around the Maypole?

★ ★ ★

Just a century ago these were popular activities on the first of May.

They were the last remains of one of the oldest celebrations known to civilized man.

In early Christian times, arrival of May was welcomed by decorating a Maypole and crowning a May king or queen.

These celebrations had their roots in the even dimmer past when sacrifices were made to secure the rebirth of spring and the growth of crops.

★ ★ ★

The ancient Maypoles closely resembled present-day Christmas trees. A pine tree, with the top branches cut off, was the popular choice.

The huge tree was drawn in wagons pulled by 20 to 40 oxen with garlands of flowers on their horns.

Villagers decorated the tree with fresh violets and purple bands of ribbon and erected it on the village green at sunrise. Often the Maypole would be 60 feet tall.

Only a rose —and then another— both at the peak of their perfection on a beehive turban of Gainsborough pink organdie iced with white French knot veiling. By Emme.

It's Wrong to Take 2nd Invitation

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: Recently a friend invited me to spend the weekend at her house. I declined her invitation as I don't care to stay in her house.

Several days later, another friend called and invited me to come and spend that same weekend with her.

As I feel at home in her house and always enjoy staying with her, I told her I would be delighted to come.

The first friend heard about this and is very hurt. It seems to me one should be able to accept, or decline, any invitation she chooses and I don't see that she has any reason to feel hurt.

May I please have your opinion?

A: Unless the reason you gave for declining the first invitation was one that could be subject to subsequent change (such for example as expecting visitors who later could have notified you that they were unable to come thus leaving you free to accept another invitation), I'm sorry to say you were very discourteous to refuse her invitation and then accept another for the same weekend.

Q: When serving dishes are passed around the table from one to another for guests to help themselves, does the gentleman offer the dish to the lady sitting beyond him before helping himself, or does he help himself first and then pass the dish to her? Which way is more polite?

★ ★ ★

A: Unless it would be awkward for him to do so or it would interfere with the passing of other serving dishes, it would be more polite for him to hold the dish while she helps herself and then help himself before passing it on.

Q: I would like to know if the flap on the inside envelope of a wedding invitation is tucked inside or left loose when inserting it into the mailing envelope?

A: It is left loose.

Equal Pay Law to Affect Working Women's World

NEW YORK (UPI) — Come June 11, a federal law goes into effect which will affect a number of the 25 million women who hold jobs outside the home.

It's the equal pay for equal work law, compelling employers to boost lower wages to equal higher ones where sex-based differential exist between men and women doing equal work.

★ ★ ★

What will the law mean to the feminine workers covered by it? Raises in some cases. Promotion opportunities in some instances. But at the same time, it may mean a lessening of job opportunities for women.

These are some of the expected results of the new law as found in a survey of 335 employers in all sections of the United States, Prentice-Hall did the survey.

CHANGES COMING

Many women's jobs and wages are in for a complete re-evaluation and revamping, the researchers found.

Companies' estimates of the number of jobs needing review ran anywhere from one to 20 per cent.

In some cases, companies expected as many as half of these jobs will need to be "restructured" in some way to erase existing inequities.

TO HIKE PAY

Most companies said they would be hiking women's pay rates—or they'd transfer male employees to other jobs and in the future segregate male and female job classifications. No company reported plans to lower the classification pay structure.

An east coast printing firm, for instance, said it originally had a five cent (an hour) differential in starting rates with the men earning more. But the firm now has made the starting wage the same in each job classification, upgrading the female pay rate to match the man's.

★ ★ ★

The researchers asked about possible bias in job re-evaluation, especially since some companies traditionally give the men the so-called heavy work.

One public utility executive, for instance, said that women "are assigned as cashiers, clerks, stenographers, receptionists, key punch operators, accounting clerks and home economists. We don't let them near the electricity."

But a hospital personnel executive had different ideas: women aren't the weaker sex at all.

LADY PLUMBERS?

"We set our salaries based on job duties," he said. "We'd be perfectly willing to hire a female plumber, engineer or carpenter if one applied and was qualified. In patient care, a qualified nurse or aide need not call a man to help her with even the heaviest patients. We don't differentiate on the sex basis."

★ ★ ★

Does job turnover explain the lower average salaries for women? A number of companies said high turnovers and resulting high training costs made women bad bets as career employees; therefore, they were "worth less" than men, even though they were performing their present jobs adequately.

Said the Prentice-Hall report, "While this type of long-range thinking often influences a company's training and promotional planning, it won't conform with the equal pay law if women's pay is down-graded for this reason alone.

The survey found that in some cases the new law will lessen or limit job opportunities for women. Employers will segregate existing classifications wherever possible.

As one Virginia manufacturer said, "We're a new plant and have been expanding rapidly. We had planned to employ women in some of our light manufacturing jobs, but we decided against it because of anticipated complications arising from the equal pay law."

Many employers, however, indicated a willingness to consider women for the high level jobs. As one insurance executive wrote, ". . . We feel a job function, when properly evaluated, is worth so many dollars and cents to our organization. It can make little difference to us whether the employe is male or female."

★ ★ ★

As for advancement in an organization, the long range effect may be an easing of promotional channels for qualified women, the survey found. It said government departments are leading the way in moving upward the deserving feminine worker.

Donation Culminates Two Years of Effort

When the Junior League of Birmingham voted this week to grant $24,000 to New Horizons of Oakland County, Inc., it was the culmination of two year's study and planning.

New Horizons, to be opened in the fall, will provide a sheltered workshop and vocational training center for mentally retarded young adults. The League's grant is to be used for a director's salary over a three-year period.

★ ★ ★

Two years ago the League began a study in the field of mental retardation.

It was conducted by the health and welfare committee, chaired by Mrs. Henry E. McDonnell Jr. in 1963 and Mrs. Arthur C. Henrie Jr. this year.

They found that, while many services are available to mentally retarded children in the county, there was no specific place one could go to find information.

RESOURCE FILE

The committee assembled such information into a resource file. This will be available at the office of the Metropolitan Advisory Committee for Retarded Children in Detroit, a United Foundation agency.

★ ★ ★

The committee further found that after attending the special education classes in schools, older mentally retarded youngsters had nothing to do.

Working with Stanford Wallace of the Oakland County Council for Retarded Children, they concluded that a sheltered workshop would answer this unmet need.

FIRST IN STATE

New Horizons will be the first large-scale professional sheltered workshop in Michigan. It will pay hourly wages to approximately 100 young people and adults who will work there.

★ ★ ★

The purpose of the workshop is actually two-fold: to provide that all-important sense of "going to work" that all adults require; and education of the general public to the reality that the retarded can be useful.

The workshop director will evaluate the capabilities of the employees and assign them to appropriate training, leading either to jobs in industry and business in the community, or enabling them to work within the protected environment of the workshop.

★ ★ ★

Piecework will be solicited by the workshop and any work that results will be mainly awarded on the basis of competitive bidding.

GOOD PROGNOSIS

It is estimated that 80 per cent of the 21,000 retarded people in Oakland County can be helped. There are 1,800 children in special education classes now.

★ ★ ★

The workshop will never be self-sustaining, says Mrs. Sidney W. Smith Jr., outgoing president of the League. It will always need not only money from the community, but informed community volunteer help.

She stresses the fact that the use of volunteers will be virtually unlimited. There will be need of volunteers of all ages to perform secretarial duties; to transport material and workers; to contact local business and industry; and to develop and coordinate community interest.

In 1954, Oakland County was the first county in the state to start special education classes and the first to tax itself to sustain these classes.

Wallace points out that the cost to the community of supporting such a workshop is about one-third the cost of custodial care by the state.

RAISES HOPE

"The curtain of hope raised through the special education classes can remain raised through the workshop. We are giving 100 young adults the change of a life," says Wallace.

★ ★ ★

Junior League members to serve on the board of trustees for New Horizons of Oakland County, Inc. are Mrs. Herbert Fisher who will also serve on the Junior League board of directors representing the workshop.

Others are Mrs. Morgan D. Douglas Jr., Mrs. McDonnell, Mrs. Frank T. Murray and Mrs. Smith.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Phoebe Otter Matthews newly elected president of the Birmingham Junior League, hopes that any individual or group interested in this new program will contact the League office in Birmingham. New Horizons needs all the help and support it can get.

August vows are planned by Karen Ann Erickson, daughter of Mrs. Carl G. Erickson of Osceola Drive and the late Mr. Erickson, and Lawrence C. Klukowski, son of the Alphonsus Klukowskis of Grand Rapids. She is a graduate of Ferris State College.

Scolding Parent Unduly Obligated to Child

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: The way my daughter leaves her room in the morning is a disgrace. As she is 15, I do not think I should make her bed or pick up her clothes.

So her room is always in such a mess that I have to keep her hall door closed. Her excuse is that she hasn't time to make her bed in the morning and get to school on time.

And that she can't get up any earlier because she is so tired from all the homework she has done the night before . . . .

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: Have you been scolding her? Have you been talking like this: "Just look at this messy room! Aren't you ashamed to leave it looking like this day after day?

Look, there's your good bathrobe on the floor! You've got time to put all that red paint on your nails but you haven't got time to leave your room looking decent to people who go through the hall . . . " etc. etc.

If you have been scolding like this, you know what it all adds up to, don't you?

It adds up to an appeal to allow you to be a "good" mother — the producer of a tidy child.

PROPER TRAINING

It begs your daughter to make the bed which you dare not make yourself lest you deprive her of the proper training in tidiness, obedience and other virtuous qualities.

I would like to see you quit begging. My counsel is to take what you want without regard to your daughter's training in virtuous qualities.

Walk into her room, straighten it so that it pleases you — and subordinate your obligation to train your daughter in tidiness to your wish for a tidy room.

★ ★ ★

Serve yourself for a change instead of what you think you owe to others.

Almost invariably, scolding parents are the children of parents who have made "unselfishness" — the sacrifice of one's own wishes to others' welfare — the supreme moral necessity.

As a result, scolding parents are those who feel obliged to always sacrifice what they want to their obligation to consider children's welfare: their training in obedience, in neatness and other socially safe qualities.

Squashed by the "unselfishness" that won't even let them straighten a room they want straightened, the scolding parents have no alternative but to protest their dependence on the child and his obedience by the fussings, fumings and complaining which we call "scolding."

Summer '64 Fashion Outlook

Men—A Straw Hat for Every Occasion

Lighter weight, lighter toned straws, designed to complement every segment of a man's wardrobe . . . that, in a nutshell, is the refreshing hat story for summer 1964.

* * *

Elegant Milans and Panamas for town and country wear, rugged cocoanut straws with authentic regimental stripe bands, wide brim "Planter" straws for beach and cabana wear and packaway straws for the traveler are but a few of the fashion coordinated styles soon to be seen in the favorite hat shop.

* * *

Charles Salesky is president of Hat Corporation of America. His company markets the Dobbs, Knox, Cavanagh, Thomas Begg and Keens, British labels.

ONE STRAW HAT

He states, "There was a time when the average American male had a straw hat wardrobe consisting of one and possibly two hats.

"Today this is no longer true. Fashion dictates that the hat worn must fit the occasion."

* * *

To emphasize Mr. Salesky's point, there is the Cavanagh Milan, the most popular of all straws. Featuring a smart center crease crown and subtly printed band, the Milan adds quiet elegance to the business wardrobe.

From Knox we see the ventilated cocoanut. The unique weave of the crown literally makes this an air-conditioned hat for the warmest summer days.

SHELL TONE COLOR

The natural "shell tone" color and contrasting regimental stripe band reflects the "natural shoulder" styling so popular with the smart set.

* * *

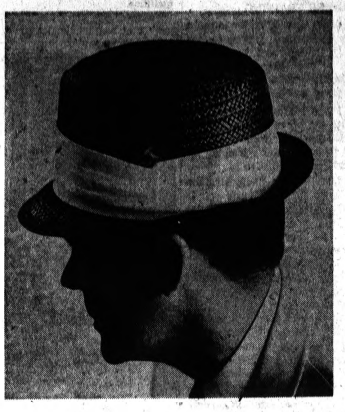

Dobbs has added a new dimension to the Milan braid, an attractive triangular telescope crown designed for the young in heart. It is available in "suntan," one of the new tones to complement the lighter trend in menswear.

* * *

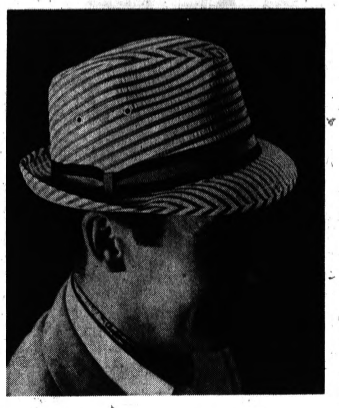

Also from Dobbs is the Newport, a wide brim natural color "Planter" hat with bright plaid band and novel fruit ornament. This style is designed specifically for beach and cabana wear.

Thomas Begg has fashioned focussed on the "Crusher," a carefree, casual chepeau of rough textured raffi straw, pliable enough to pack in a suitcase. It will spring back to shape on arrival.

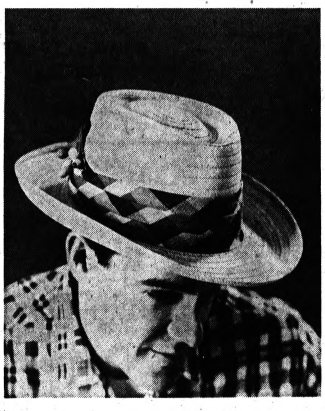

All in all it looks like a "buyer's market" in straws for the fashion minded male this summer.

This Knox macora features deep dark toned macora braid with sharp white linen band, this season's fashionable contrasting look for $7.95.

For this season's seersucker wardrobe, a casual, easy to care for seersucker hat, correctly styled by Knox with stitched brim and narrow club stripe band. The side eyelets add comfort and a smart touch. About $5.

Dobbs Newport, for fun in the sun wear this natural peanut straw with generous brim, sporting a bright plaid band and a gay "fruit" ornament. $5.95.

Pre-Exam Blues Lifted by U. of M. 'Michigras'

By BARBARA GRIFFIN

Because of the new trimester calendar, students at the University of Michigan will end classes next Thursday and be finished with final exams by May 16.

The pressure of term papers and bluebook exams was forgotten last weekend when the campus celebrated Michigras.

* * *

TV THEME

The theme of Michigras this year was "Michivision" and all floats and booths were based on television shows.

"Slaves of the Tube" was the theme of the Butler-Van Tyne float, which Leslie Seiss of Hillcrest Drive helped construct.

Tom McGrath of Niagara Road helped the Evans Scholars to build their float, "The Defenders."

* * *

Alpha Gamma Delta and Theta Delta Chi teamed up to build "Things Go Better with Coke" which took third place among the parade floats.

Working on this float were Karen Kessler of Desmond Drive and Bruce Coleman of West Iroquois Road.

The Delta Gamma-Delta Tau Delta float, "The Bridge over Oceans", featured a huge revolving globe. Martha Foren of Lake Angelus Road was among the DGs helping the Delts construct it.

The Alpha Phi-Sigma Alpha Epsilon float featured a huge multi-colored peacock. Working on its construction were Alpha Phi Judy Hinkley and her pin-mate Doug Roeser Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

CARNIVAL FUN

* * *

SATIRE

Kappa Kappa Gamma and Phi Gamma Delta also showed a movie at the fieldhouse, titled "Naked UGLI," a satire on the campus library. Helping to produce this show were Phi Gams Ted Gaensbauer of Hammond Lake and John Kerns of Lake Angelus.

* * *

The Alpha Chi Omega-Chi Psi "Gunsmoke" skill booth took the first place trophy for ticket sales. Working in the booth were Huge Grove and Tom and Dick Jackson, all of James K Boulevard.

WINNERS

Polly's Pointers

Good Back Washer

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — A long-handled wooden kitchen spoon makes a wonderful back scratcher and reaches those itchy spots between the shoulders.

Soap a washcloth and put over the round part and you will like it better than any back brush with flexible bristles.

The handle of the spoon can be painted to match the bathroom decor.—J. C.

DEAR POLLY—I am a housekeeper of 45 years experience but find many new and usable suggestions in the column.

I immediately cut out any suggestions and instead of piling all and sundry hints together, I go about it in a more orderly way.

Any tips on keeping shoes in good condition, I tape on my shoe bag and any pertaining to hats go on my hat boxes.

Tips on gloves are taped inside the drawer where gloves are kept. Household hints are taped in the areas where they will be used.

★ ★ ★

I tape kitchen suggestions on the inside of a kitchen cabinet door. In this manner I am familiar with the suggestions and am able to make any repairs or changes without loss of time in looking up the hint.

Any I do not like after using, I pull off and throw away. — MRS. L. C.

DEAR POLLY — I would like to throw in my two cents worth of help for the Den Mother who wanted handicraft suggestions for her Cub Scouts.

A gift I received could be easily copied by small boys. Let them make permanent wooden shopping list boards for their mothers.

One-fourth or ¼-inch plywood would work fine. Shellac the board and put on, with India ink, a list of staple grocery items.

A small drill could make a hole opposite each item. Then paint match sticks red or any other bright color to stick in holes across the bottom of the board.

★ ★ ★

They are ready to go in the holes opposite the listed items that are needed on the next shopping trip. "Shopping List" could be printed at the top with bright paint to match the sticks.

★ ★ ★

I, too, find children are often more amused with home-made toys than with more expensive ones.

My son found a rectangular piece of wood and hammered two-inch nails in different places over it.

Under each nail he put a number — 5, 10, 15, etc.

The board was hung on a kitchen door. Using old jar rubbers, all three of our children have had hours of fun throwing the jar rubbers at the nails.

The numbers add up for their scores.—MOTHER OF THREE Share your favorite home-making ideas . . . send them to Polly in care of The Pontiac Press. You'll receive a bright, new silver dollar if Polly uses your idea in Polly's Pointers.

Some People Aren't Fair

Being Blonde Has Snags

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: That person who wanted to know if blondes really had more fun obviously wasn't a blonde or she would have known better.

ABBY

People do turn around and look at blondes because they are more striking than girls with any other color hair.

★ ★ ★

But don't assume that just because blondes are stared at more it is to their advantage. Other women are jealous of blondes. This is a fact.

And when people are jealous of you, it can be rough. How many blondes ever win beauty contests? Not very many. Why?

★ ★ ★

Because if the judge chose a blonde, when he got home, his wife would kill him. Thank you.

RUNNER-UP (BLONDE)

DEAR ABBY: That person who wrote in to say that blondes had more fun was badly mistaken.

I was a natural blonde, and I had those funny white eyelashes and eyebrows to go with it. Believe me, I wasn't having very much fun.

★ ★ ★

Last year I decided to do something about it. I had my hair, eyebrows, and eyelashes dyed black!

It changed my whole personality. I now look vivid and alive!

★ ★ ★

My skin is very fair and since I have become a brunette, people have told me that they have never seen bluer eyes. (No one even noticed my eyes when I was a blonde.)

Here is one blonde who wouldn't go back to being a blonde for anything!

TRANSFORMED

DEAR ABBEY: Why do people pick on blondes? When they want to slam somebody, they say, "Dumb blonde" or "Dizzy blonde."

Even just plain "blonde" implies that a girl is kind of cheap.

★ ★ ★

I have noticed that the flashy, loud blondes that give all blondes a bad name are not really blondes at all; they are brunettes who have decided to become blondes.

Please give us blondes a break, Abby, and print this.

TWO NATURAL BLONDES

★ ★ ★

DEAR BLONDES: The facts should be plain enough to anyone who wants to get to the root of the matter.

Urban League, Romney Talk

Local Leader Attends 2-Day Race Confab

Urban League leaders from six Michigan cities, including Clarence Barnes of Pontiac, yesterday ended a two-day conference on race problems with Gov. Romney and other state officials in Lansing.

The Michigan Urban League's concern on matters related to health and welfare services was outlined by Barnes.

Barnes noted the difficulty in placing Negro children in adoption and foster homes and added that "this is fertile ground for unlimited cooperation between local leagues and state agencies."

In connection with ADCU and ADC programs, Barnes suggested the hiring of more trained social workers capable of effective rehabilitative work to strengthen family ties "as opposed to doling out sheer maintenance money."

The establishment of day care nurseries to aid mothers who have the skill and desire to become self-sustaining also was recommended.

Barnes said that it also has come to attention of the Urban League that some convalescent homes operating privately but offering service to the general public do not admit Negro patients.

He concluded with the recommendation that more fact finding and direct action be taken to assure that state supported social welfare services will be available to all on a nonracial or religious discrimination basis.

Ties Seizure of Lotion to Politics

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The federal government's seizure of 39 cartons of "Helene Curtis magic secret wrinkle-smoothing skin lotion," has been called "politics" by Willard Gidwitz, president of the firm.

"The government is apparently planning a test seizure which does not stop sale of Magic Secret while this matter is in the Courts," he said.

"Government strategy seems to be to make political hay out of publicity to aid its efforts to push a stringent new cosmetic law through Congress."

The government seized the lotion Thursday in a Baltimore warehouse. It claimed the product is not covered by an approved application and is being marketed under false claims on the ground that it is a drug rather than a cosmetic.

Papers filed in U.S. District Court in Baltimore charged that the lotion is not generally recognized as safe and effective by qualified experts for prolonged, continued use for removal of wrinkles and its label exaggerates what the lotion will do.

By school board policy, summer school programs are on a self-supporting basis.

STUDENT-TEACHERS

The elementary increase was necessary because the school district will not be able to make use of student-teachers as in past years, said school officials.

Michigan State University, which assigns student teachers to Pontiac, will no longer schedule teachers here during the summer term.

Class sessions in the elementary grades will be extended 30 minutes this year. Remedial instruction is the primary aim of elementary summer school.

The tuition increase will also permit maintaining the student-teacher ratio at 16-1. Without the added charge, the ratio would have to be 20-1 to keep the program on a self-supporting basis.

SIX WEEKS

Summer school runs for six weeks at the secondary level and five weeks in the elementary grades. Elementary students meet at Crofoot School, while secondary students meet at Washington Junior High and Pontiac Central High Schools.

Hollywood Has Magic Castle

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Amid the creeping high-rise of modern Hollywood sits the magic castle, three stories of unabashed Victorian elegance.

THOMAS

This gingerbread monument to a gentler age seems likely to escape the wrecker's ball, thanks to Milt Larsen, who has transformed it into a haven for practitioners of the black art.

★ ★ ★

The story is this: Larsen's father was an ambivalent man who swung between careers as a criminal lawyer and professional magician. He had a dream of creating a meeting place for his fellow magicos, but he died before realizing it.

Milt Larsen had been part of the family vaudeville act—good training for his job as writer for television's "Truth or Consequences." He had long admired the stately, aged mansion on Franklin Avenue and saw in it a chance to realize his father's dream.

10-YEAR LEASE

The owner of the property admired his enthusiasm and gave him a 10-year lease. Then Milt went to work to restore the house to its original splendor. A showplace when it was built in 1909, its recent history had followed the pattern of most old Hollywood mansions — rooming house, convalescent home, and, 'tis said, house of ill fame.

The magic castle opened its doors to 62 members in December 1962.

Now there are 800 members and a rise of membership fee from $50 to $100 doesn't seem to bother newcomers.

A visit to the magic castle is a rare experience. After signing the register in the reception hall, you stand before the statuette of an owl and murmur, "Open Sesame." Magically, the door opens.

PLEASURE DEN

You enter what appears to be a pleasure den of the 1890s. All is warmly appointed — bar of inlaid wood, red and gold carpeting, gilded chairs with marble-topped tables. For all its cheery elegance, the castle exudes an ominous spell.

The ominous feeing is confirmed when a black figure with wolf man's face mingles with the guests, evoking an occasional shriek.

★ ★ ★

The upstairs rooms are for dining, the main floor for refreshment — and magic. Jay Oss is the resident magician, and he circulates the tables to amaze the guests with his fantastic card tricks.

Overseeing the nightly frolic is Larsen, a round-faced but trim-figured bachelor who likes to watch the guests' enjoyment.

"A lot of love went into the making of the place," he said, "and I think the people feel it."

About 29 million acres of forest industry land are open to public recreational uses. Hunting is allowed on two per cent of the acreage.

Court Order Stalls Paper Over Story

PORT HURON (AP) — Publication of the Port Huron Times-Herald was held up for nearly three hours Thursday after a judge ordered the suppression of a news story.

The story revealed the city of Port Huron had filed suit against the Michigan Millers Mutual Insurance Co. of Lansing as the result of a car-bus accident which killed four youths last January.

★ ★ ★

The news report said the city sought to prevent Michigan Millers from claiming that its insurance contract did not cover the city's interests in the accident.

City Attorney Dean Luce asked that the story be suppressed. St. Clair County Circuit Judge Edward T. Kane issued the order. He also ruled the order should be suppressed.

Kane rescinded the order after conferring with newspaper officials, the newspaper's lawyer, and Luce.

F. Granger Weil is editor and publisher of the Times-Herald.

Although operated by a private firm, the bus had a state license under the name of Port Huron and received a city subsidy. The city denied in its suit that it had any legal liability in the accident.

The city said it wants to be protected if called upon in the future to defend itself against any lawsuits.

The bus, carrying more than 20 teen-agers, stalled on a highway and was rammed in the rear by a car.

Cong Wounds Four Marines

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Four U.S. Marines were wounded and a helicopter was brought down Thursday as Communist ground fire raked a fleet of Marine helicopters taking South Vietnamese forces out of a battle area 35 miles west of the northern city of Danang.

★ ★ ★

A Marine officer and an enlisted man suffered bullet and shrapnel wounds, a U.S. spokesman said. A Marine enlisted man in another helicopter also was hit.

The Viet Cong fire knocked out the engine of a third helicopter. A crew member was wounded.

The American spokesman said the crew destroyed the helicopter. They were rescued by another Marine helicopter.

Several Marines were wounded Monday when a helicopter was shot down and another crash landed with engine trouble in the Do Xa region.

Junior Editors Quiz on SUN ECLIPSE

QUESTION: How does an eclipse of the sun work? How can one be foretold?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: If you go out when the full moon is shining, you can demonstrate for yourself just what an eclipse is. Cover one eye and hold a marble up over the moon's disc, as Janet is doing in the top picture.

By moving the marble back and forth, you can cover the moon's surface completely; this is a "total eclipse." If you move the marble a bit to one side it will be a "partial eclipse."

An eclipse of the sun works on the same principle, as Janet is showing with her brother's help in the lower picture. The flashlight is the sun; John holds a small ball on a stick to represent the moon.

Notice the long shadow of the moon reaching down to touch the earth at just one point.

If a person was standing at that point the sun's disc would be completely covered by the moon (as the moon was by the marble) and so the sun would be in total eclipse at that point.

The reason astronomers can predict eclipses so exactly is that the earth moves in a regular orbit around the sun and so does the moon around the earth.

Because of the regularity of these orbits, astronomers can figure out just where these bodies are in relation to each other at all times, and so they can determine just when the moon will come between earth and sun and just where the shadow will fall.

★ ★ ★

FOR YOU TO DO: Try the two experiments in the picture. You may be wondering when the next solar eclipse will be. It will occur May 30, 1965 and will be seen in Peru, The Marquesas Islands, New Zealand and the South Pacific. Your newspaper will tell you about it next year.

Press Aide Says Romney Looking Closer at Barry

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George W. Romney's chief press aide said Thursday there is validity to reports the governor is "taking a closer look" at Sen. Barry Goldwater as a potential Republican presidential nominee.

But Press Secretary Richard Milliman said Romney's attitude toward the Arizona senator—that "some questions on his views remain to be answered"—has not changed.

★ ★ ★

"The governor still wants to know where Goldwater stands on such things as civil rights, vested economic power and foreign policy," said Milliman.

He said there was "an essence of truth" in the report that Romney was showing greater interest in Goldwater than before but cautioned that this is to be expected as the convention draws closer.

ALL CANDIDATES

"I expect he will be showing more interest in all the potential candidates," said Milliman. "But Goldwater is one with whom the governor has not had a chance to hold an extended visit."

Romney has said he wants a chance to meet and talk at length with each of the potential GOP candidates before the Republican convention. But on two visits to the state by Goldwater in recent months, the two have not gotten together for a private talk.

The governor has met with Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York. He hopes to meet with former Vice President Richard M. Nixon when he visits Michigan June 8.

There is no basis to a report that he will confer with Goldwater next week, the press secretary sid.

★ ★ ★

The report that Romney was looking more closely at Goldwater came from Charles Harmon and James Bonine of Cassopolis, members of the Conservative Federation of Michigan and active Goldwater backers.

★ ★ ★

In a visit to Lansing Thursday they described the report as a "rumor" which apparently originated in Kalamazoo and spread through the six-county 4th Congressional District, where there are many Goldwater backers.

A one-eyed person has less visual fatigue than a normal person with two eyes, according to the Better Vision Institute.

Authorities Feel Bribes to Public Officials on Decline

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the final article in a four-part series on organized crime in Michigan written by Associated Press newsman Gene Schroeder.)

By GENE SCHROEDER
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT—STATE SENATOR FOUND MURDERED; KEY WITNESS IN GRAFT PROBE! LOBBYIST TELLS OF PAYOFF TO MICHIGAN LAWMAKERS! LEGISLATOR PLEADS GUILTY TO ACCEPTING BRIBE!

These headlines shocked the state and nation some 20 years ago as indictment after indictment came out of grand jury investigations into graft and corruption in the Michigan Legislature.

Could it happen again? Are Michigan politicians and public officials susceptible to bribery? Have the kingpins of organized crime bought protection at the city, county or state level?

Such questions can never be answered with absolute certainty.

But in interviews with several federal law enforcement authorities, The Associated Press found no indication of alarm.

Underworld payoffs are traditional in gambling operations and other forms of vice such as prostitution.

GREASE WHEELS

"The graft paid to public officials is the grease that keeps the wheels of crime rolling," Courtney Evans, assistant director of the FBI, said recently in Lansing, referring to the national crime picture.

Most authorities in Michigan believe outright bribery is declining as the Mafia and other crime syndicate leaders become more and more sophisticated in their approach.

★ ★ ★

In testimony before a U. S. Senate investigating committee, former Detroit police commissioner George Edwards contended that underworld chieftains don't buy officials in general anymore.

"I think they did, but I think they found that that got them into a great amount of trouble," said Edwards, adding:

"What they do now is to find front people who will get campaign contributions of a very respectable nature into the hands of influential figures, and, subsequent thereto, the net result is that there is somebody close to the seat of power who at least can put in a good word—not control, but just put in a good word.

"And a good word at the seat of power at various and sundry times can be a very, very potent thing."

Some politicians and public officeholders suddenly become very touchy when the question of possible corruption is brought up.

★ ★ ★

A statement by a Michigan State University criminologist last February that "organized crime could not exist if public officials weren't bought" resulted in the filing of a resolution in the state Senate threatening to subpoena the professor for the announced purpose of "clearing the good names of hundreds of public officials."

The resolution later was withdrawn after the criminologist explained to its sponsor that he had based his observation mainly on the Kefauver Crime Committee reports.

LIMITED INFORMATION

Law enforcement officials who deal with other investigative agencies usually limit their exchange of information to one or two trusted officers.

"This doesn't necessarily mean we fear that other officers are on the Mafia payroll," explained one investigator. "It's simply a matter of basic security.

"The more people who are aware of impending plans—for a gambling raid, for example—the greater the danger of someone dropping an innocent remark that might tip our hand."

Although the need for such investigative precautions would appear to be elementary, some state representatives reacted in a manner that astonished many Lansing observers when disclosure was made recently that a legislative stenographer had helped state police in a gambling probe.

UNDERCOVER AGENT

The pretty stenographer, Margaret Allen, played the dangerous role of an undercover agent in helping to gather evidence of alleged Mafia—linked organized gambling in the Detroit suburb of Madison Heights.

According to her friends, Miss Allen has since been subjected to snubs and thinly-veiled insults and even was requested to resign her job on the Democratic House legislative staff because she did not disclose her undercover role beforehand.

★ ★ ★

When a Republican-sponsored resolution was introduced praising Miss Allen for her courage and good citizenship, some Democratic lawmakers protested vigorously.

"The Republicans are casting aspersions on us and innuendoes that we bear watching," complained Rep. William Romano of Warren. "She can't serve two masters."

Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, suggested that State Police Commissioner Joseph Childs should take a $1,000 cut in his salary to pay Miss Allen for the time she took off from her legislative job to help in the investigation.

Although state police spokesman decline to comment on the situation, other law enforcement authorities privately express disgust over such legislative reaction.

"Public apathy and lack of cooperation are among our biggest stumbling blocks in the fight against organized crime," one federal investigator remarked. "You'd think that those who write the laws at least would want to set a good example and encourage cooperation."

UNANIMOUSLY OPPOSE

Law enforcement officials also were virtually unanimous in their opposition to some proposed legislation this year.

Loudest protests were voiced over a bill which would have wiped out Michigan's conspiracy penalty, described by police as their strongest weapon against organized crime.

After the measure was approved by the House, where its chief sponsor was Rep. Thomas Whinery, Grand Rapids Republican, it died in the Senate under a withering barrage of criticism from law enforcement spokesmen.

"The effect of the bill would have been to cut down the maximum penalty for a person convicted of conspiracy to violate gambling laws, liquor laws and various criminal statutes from five years imprisonment to 90 days," explained Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley.

LETTING THEM ADVERTISE

According to Detroit District Police Inspector Arthur Sage, in charge of gambling and vice investigations, adoption of the bill would almost have amounted "to letting gambling houses put out a neon sign and advertise."

Sage said throwing out the conspiracy law would have brought a wave of gambling, prostitution and other vices to Detroit.

Law enforcement authorities were not as successful in other legislative areas. Efforts to secure approval of a bill giving subpoena power to the attorney general, based on joint action with the governor, failed to make much headway with the lawmakers.

"This bill would have given to the state the power to deal on equal terms with the menace of organized crime," Kelley said, vowing to try again next year.

Legislative committees now have the power to subpoena witnesses and records in Michigan, as do grand juries.

This power was put to use in the grand jury investigations of legislative corruption years ago, which involved some lawmakers still on the capitol scene today.

As the sensational developments unfolded, those caught in the net included bankers, police, state officials and professional men. Bribery charges involved legislation covering such subjects as small loans, horse racing, naturopathy, liquor, intangibles taxes and branch banking.

★ ★ ★

Eventually, a dozen defendants pleaded guilty, 34 others were convicted, 12 were acquitted, and 66 cases were dismissed or never brought to trial.

Some of those convicted were granted the privilege of a new trial later after the the state's star witness — a lobbyist—suddenly stopped talking and was sentenced to the federal penitentiary for fleeing Michigan to avoid testifying. Charges eventually were dropped for lack of prosecution.

The 1945 gangland-type slaying of State Sen. Warren Hooper of Albion—most sensational episode in the graft probe—came as he was about to testify in a case involving an alleged conspiracy to bribe legislators in connection with a pari-mutuel betting bill.

Hooper, shot three times in the head, was found slumped in the front seat of his automobile shortly after leaving Lansing.

No one ever was brought to trial for the actual murder but several alleged members of Detroit's infamous "Purple Gang" were tried and convicted of conspiracy to commit the Hooper slaying.

Rumors of bribery attempts in connection with certain bills circulate in the legislative halls at Lansing from time to time even today but generally are forgotten after the lawmakers adjourn their sessions and go home.

HEAVY LOBBYING

Such reports especially were prevalent last year following passage of a particular bill on which there had been heavy lobbying.

In a 31-page investigative report on lobbying, the attorney general's office said in 1962 it had received certain information which could form the basis of possible criminal action "but much more information is required to properly complete this phase of the investigation."

Deputy Atty. Gen. Leon Cohan told the Associated Press the investigation still is not closed, although there still is not sufficient evidence to warrant criminal action.

Most observers believe the majority of legislators and other public officials are honest and hard-working individuals, just as eager to knock out organized crime as law enforcement authorities.

MAFIA VIOLENCE

But just as the murder of Hooper finally convinced skeptics of the seriousness of the grand jury's probe of corruption 20 years ago, so has Mafia violence and terror focused attention on the problem of organized crime today.

When a bomb blasted a leg off alleged Mafia leader Santo "Cockeye Sam" Perrone in broad daylight in Detroit recently, the possibility of gang warfare was brought up by Atty. Gen. Kelley.

This possibility, he said, "is an ugly reality which holds great dangers."

Kelley added:

"But it also affords an opportunity to law enforcement agencies, the legislature and the public to forge a mighty battle group to wage unconditional war on organized crime.

Espaliered Plants Interesting in Yard

Espalier is a plant trained in formal shape, to a given number of branches in a flat, vertical plane, according to the American Association of Nurserymen.

Both ornamental and fruit trees are sometimes "espaliered" in this way.

Lawn and Garden News

Crab Grass Sufferers Have Three Controls

Many jokes have been made over the years about people who have crab grass.

Yet, if you have a lawn and are proud of the way it looks, you have every right to hate the sight of it.

This weedy grass spoils the uniformity of a lawn.

Clumps of it can physically weaken lawns by robbing them of space, moisture and nutrients.

★ ★ ★

There are three basic ways of controlling crab grass. They are digging or pulling out each plant, proper lawn care and a preventive program using chemical controls.

THREE TYPES

There are three types of crab grass — smooth, hairy and silver.

All three look similar and are annuals. They develop from seeds to mature plants that flower and seed usually by the late part of August.

In the spring, however, seedling crab grass sprouts from the soil as a small pale green plant with two leaves.

★ ★ ★

The leaves are oval, broad at the base and taper to a point at the tip. As they develop, they become coarse and spread out.

Your approach to a lawn care program can do much to discourage crab grass from setting in.

When seeding or reseeding, use a good quality seed mixture.

★ ★ ★

Fall-seeded lawns get a head start on beating crab grass into submission.

NEXT TIME

It might be a good thing to remember next time you plan to seed.

Proper watering will also help check crab grass.

Since permanent grass roots deep, less frequent waterings but with large amounts of water is best.

★ ★ ★

Frequent small waterings aid crab grass as it roots shallow.

And, of course, proper mowing will help in the fight, too.

Raise your mower to a two-inch cutting height during May and June mowing.

★ ★ ★

Where permanent grass is dense, the additional shade of larger grass slows growth of crab grass seedlings.

On the other hand, while the lawn care program approach helps maintain a good lawn, the preventive chemical approach works against crab grass, before it starts.

The chemical — called a pre-emergence herbicide — has been found to give protection against crab grass growth with as little as a single application.

It will also not accumulate in the soil, thus no harmful residual build-up results.

Dacthal, the active herbicide in dozens of the nation's successful crab grass killers, for example, attacks the crab grass seed before it has a chance to germinate.

It has been found that it kills nearly all crab grass in one season.

After it is applied, less frequent watering with large amounts of water will help discourage further growth.

If your lawn is heavily infested with crab grass, however, you had better plan on reseeding this fall if you use a herbicide on an infested lawn.

Seed thin spots carefully and treat with a pre-emergence herbicide again next spring.

Shear Your Delphiniums for Rebloom

The perennial delphinium gives you two sets of blooms each year.

After the first flowers have gone by, cut the stems (before seed pods form) to about a foot above the ground, thus retaining a few leaves to help promote growth.

When new leaves have developed, remove the remainder of the old stalks.

There is a good reason to keep a few old leaves. If you don't, the plant may die.

And rust may develop if you don't get rid of the old leaves later.

Many of the old delphinium are more rugged than the newer Pacific hybrids, which dislike heavy soil that is not adequately drained.

One pest, however, is the cyclamen mite, which may be controlled with kelthane.

To inhibit mildew, spray with phaltan or actidione.

Container Plant Important to Terrace—Patio

Today more container plants are set about the property in patios, on terraces, in garden living areas and elsewhere as "show," or specimen plants than ever before.

The advantages of container plants are that they can be moved about as desired and can be easily watered.

They include the lovely tree roses, about four feet tall, bedding plants, Pyracantha, exotic Pines, Azaleas, Camellias, Chrysanthemums to name only a few.

Many new containers have come into the markets in recent years, some of them beautiful but inexpensive.

There is a richness and glamor about container plants on the patio and in garden living areas.

They are used largely to compliment existing plantings.

Thumbelina Good Edging Plant

Looking for an edging plant? Try Thumbelina, the tiny zinnia. It stays small, 6" inches tall, without pruning, developing a compact globe shape.

★ ★ ★

Sow the seed soon after warm weather arrives and you should have blossoms within 40 days. From then until the fall frosts you will have a continuous display of riotous color.

Be sure and keep the faded blooms picked off to spur the plants to an even greater profusion of flowers.

Sophora Japonica, one of our more ornamental trees yields a yellow dye.

Natural Wrapper Keeps Sweet Corn Sweet

Look closely at the husk on the ear of corn in the center. See how tightly wrapped it is around the ear, all the way down to the very tip where the silks show brown?

This tight husk has a tale to tell you. By its tight wrapping it shows that this variety of corn, Earliking, is going to be extremely resistant to the attacks of corn earworms.

These insects inter the ear by burrowing through the silks which extend from the tip of the husk. The tighter the husks are wrapped, the harder it is for an earworm to penetrate.

The fewer the earworms, the less pest control and, therefore, work for the gardener.

* * *

The tightly-wrapped husk also, shows that this variety of corn will ship well, an inportant point in any variety grown for commerce.

TIGHT HUSK

The husk is not likely to loosen in transit and expose the kernels to dirt or to drying.

These insects enter the ear portant, too, in corn grown for sale nearby or for home consumption.

Certainly the cleaner and moister the ear of corn keeps, the better.

There's sugar in that corn "milk" and the more that is retained while corn is rushed from garden to boiling water, the finer the flavor.

Gourds Provide Year-Round Fun

Did you ever try raising gourds? Children are especially delighted with the different shapes and colors.

Disease resistant, not only do they provide summer fun, they can be dried and converted into useful bowls, pitchers, bird houses during the dull days of winter.

TIGHTLY WRAPPED — The tightly wrapped husks on the ear of corn in the center tell you certain things about the variety. These include information about insect control, shipping, and eating quality.

Save USA's Naturalness

Seventy percent of the participants in a survey of metropolitan New York, including suburbs in New York, Connecticut and New Jersey, want to be rid of overhead utility wires, putting them underground, according to a compilation of responses by the Regional Plan Association, New York, N.Y.

The compilation will be published sometime early this year.

The organization is working for the coordinated development of the metropolitan New York area.

The survey participants numbering more than 5,600, are active in civic, or social groups, with about two-thirds living in the suburbs.

Four out of five strongly favored "stronger controls to preserve trees and the natural landscape in new developments."

About half strongly favored "a large-scale effort to plant trees and shrubbery on city streets."

A hand trowel is best for digging and transplanting small plants.

A Gardener Is Known by the Tools He Keeps

Just as you can tell a carpenter by the kind of tools he uses, so you can tell a good gardener by the tools in his garage, cellar, or wherever he keeps them . . . .

A good selection of sensible, business-like tools marks the real gardener. They're not gimmicky, with cheap flashy handles and flimsy "business ends," but they're clean, sharp and ready for use at any time.

One way the gardener can tell the real tools from the imitations is to look at the ferrules, the sockets that hold the handles.

If they are long and well-lashioned, he can be sure that the quality hasn't been skimped upon. If they're otherwise, the handles are likely to break and the opposite holds true.

* * *

The best long-handle tools are made of ash that is smoothsanded and weather-protected with a clear lacquer finish.

FIRST YEAR

Of course, the new home owner or gardener cannot always go out and buy everything in sight the first year — he may have too many other things to spend money on, too.

But, with the right selection, he can take care of his needs reasonably well the first year and can add the rest to make his gardening still easier and more fun the next year.

First of all, you should have a shovel. For all-around use the long-handled, "round-pointed" type is best.

* * *

It is good for just about everything in the digging line — even prying out rocks or digging post holes. Then, you need rakes.

A good steel, general-purpose type is usually best for general garden work and a steel lawn or broom rake for grass and leaves. The latter can be of the yard-wide type, a narrow rake for getting between shrubs or the fan type.

The latter can be of the adjustable width or fixed type —, the adjustable is better.

* * *

Your first purchase should also include a moderate-width, all-purpose hoe and a three- or four-pronged cultivator. Here is where many people make a mistake.

CHEAP ONE

They buy a cheap one with too short a handle and then complain about a tired back. Get a real one. (Don't confuse this with the hand-type we'll discuss later).

* * *

The first year you will also need an all-purpose green thumb trowel — get one with a solid shank, not just a bit of folded metal holding it into the handle and which will quickly break.

Then, you will also need a hoe, watering can and a mower.

Later on you should add a spading fork, preferably one with a short "D" handle, a narrow or triangular hoe, a turf edger, some form of pick, a hand cultivator, pruning shears, perhaps rotary lawn edger, a sickle or golf-club type weed cutter, and a sturdy wheelbarrow.

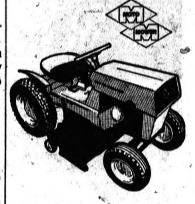

* * *

In all cases, too, remember that the best tools are not the heaviest, but the best steel.

Also, keep in mind that the lady of the house may like her own lady's size or lightweight tool set. And, if you're counting on some help from the younger generation, remember, too, that the Junior size tools fit them best.

Prune spring flowering shrubs after they bloom.

Insects Are the Earth's Senior Citizens

Are insects a problem in your garden? You have lots of company.

★ ★ ★

Dr. E. H. Smith, entomologist at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, says insects are the most successful creatures on earth.

★ ★ ★

He figures there are one million species, which mean they comprise about 80 per cent of the world's lower and higher animal population.

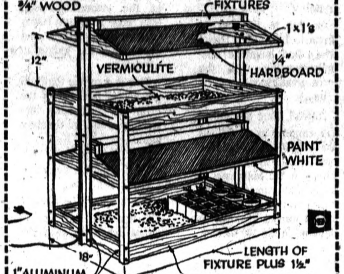

One reason for the insect's success, Smith related, is seniority.

★ ★ ★

They have been on earth for 450 million years, long before man. Consequently, he said, nature has had great opportunity to build a creature that can withstand all sorts of battles against its most aggressive competitor — man.

Sports Fans Escape the 'Glamor' in Film of 1960 Games

By JIM BECKER

NEW YORK (AP) — This sort of thing could put the Olympics out of business. I mean this new movie about the 1960 Olympics in Rome.

It could shake up Broadway and the ballet, too. Not to mention the movies.

★ ★ ★

It's called "The Grand Olympics," and it has just hit this country from Italy. Don't ask where it has been since 1960 because nobody seems to know. It could be that all the color film labs over there in Italy have been jammed with work for Cleopatra the last four years.

Anyway, the picture is here, and it is very dangerous.

If you've ever been to an Olympics, or know anyone who has, you know that spectators get gouged, cheated, robbed, shoved around, insulted, abused, annoyed, and—if they happen to be in Austria — possibly arrested. But they never see anything.

★ ★ ★

On the day that a poor spectator spends too much money to sit half a mile from the finish line at the track events, every boxer in the arena across town scores a one-round knockout. The day he hocks his credit cards for a seat at the swimming pool is the one when three world records are broken on the track.

CAN'T WIN

He gets back to an inflation priced hotel room too late for dinner on both days. The next morning his wife gets sick.

That's the story of an Olympic spectator's life.

Now comes this marvelous movie, in unbelievable color, and for two hours it catches the sight and sound of the Olympics as no spectator since the days of Nero has ever seen. It also adds up to a show that tops a Broadway musical.

After they've seen this thing, who's gonna get 'em to pay 10 bucks to watch the preliminary game in nine-man volleyball, and get gouged by a taxi driver on the way home?

Or sit in the hot sun all day watching 39 guys from Eastern Albania and Zanzibar miss at five feet, nine in the high jump.

Or get to the jail at dawn to bail out a friend who's had language misunderstanding with the local gendarmes?

Who?

Instead, they can follow the camera as it follows the slap-slap-slap of the bare feet of the Ethiopian who won the Marathon in a flood-lit run down the ancient Appian Way, switch almost instantly to the duel in the 100 meters, catch the disputed finish at the swimming pool, ogle those yum-yum lasses in the gymnastics — and even catch the judges in a mistake.

This is a movie that will get sports fans out of the clean air and back into smokey, stuffy theaters again.

But it should be pointed out that the narrator is wrong when he says the Olympic flame comes from Mt. Olympus in Greece. It comes from Olympia, which is about as far from Mt. Olympus as you can get in Greece without taking to the boats.

And Phidippides did not run 26 miles, 385 yards from the village of Marathon to Athens, and drop dead.

It was not Phidippides. It was not 26 miles, 385 yards. It was not from the village of Marathon.

Dead he is.

BALLET, THOROUGHBRED STYLE—Northern Dancer, one of 12 horses entered in Saturday's Derby, turns in a brisk workout at Churchill Downs. The Canadian born horse has been installed second choice in the Derby.

Hill Rise, Northern Dancer Favorites

12-Horse Field Bidding for Fat Derby Purse

Post Time 4:30 P.M. for 90th Running of Classic

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Hill Rise, the pride of California, and Northern Dancer, Canada's hope, ruled as favorites today among the dozen 3-year-old thoroughbreds entered for the 90th running of the $125,000-added Kentucky Derby.

Pre-race odds on Hill Rise are 6-5 and 5-2 on Northern Dancer. Far behind, in the view of the handicappers, are Quadrangle and The Scoundrel, each 8-1.

★ ★ ★

Cloudy skies and a temperature in the 60s are forecast for Saturday's race. The track should be in good shape despite rain the early part of the week. A crowd of about 100,000 is expected.

Post time is 4:30 p.m., EST. CBS will televise the festivities from 4 to 5 p.m. Its radio broadcast is from 4:15 to 5 p.m.

SEVERAL FEES

If all 12 colts start the purse will aggregate $156,800 and the winner will receive $114,300. It costs $1,250 just to go to the post in addition to the $250 entry fee and $100 to nominate.

Back of the four favored thoroughbreds are Roman Brother 10-1, Mr. Brick 15-1, Dandy K. and Wil Rad 20-1, and Mr. Moonlight, Ishkoodah, Royal Shuck and Extra Swell, all 30-1.

Post positions do not mean much because of the five-eights mile straightaway from the starting gate to the first turn, but Northern Dancer's trainer, Horatio Luro, got exactly what he wanted when he drew No. 7. Hill Rise is next to the outside in No. 11.

Mr. Brick got the inside position, Quadrangle No. 2, Wil Rad No. 3, Extra Swell No. 4, Mr. Moonlight No. 5, The Scoundrel No. 6, Ishkoodah No. 8, Dandy K. No. 9, Royal Shuck No. 10, and Roman Brother No. 12.

SECOND GUESS

This undoubtedly will be the best second guess Derby ever. The nation's top jockeys have played musical saddles with a vengeance.

Bill Shoemaker, who rode E. P. Taylor's Northern Dancer to victory in the Florida Derby, will be on Hill Rise.

★ ★ ★

Bill Hartack, who won the Wood on Quadrangle, will be on Norther Dancer. Manuel Ycaza, who has previously ridden Roman Brother and Northern Dancer, will be on The Scoundrel. Bob Ussery will be on Quadrangle.

Partnership in Big Payoff

U.S. Checks 7 Pari-Mutuel 'Cashers'

WESTBURY, N.Y. (UPI) — Uncle Sam's tax sleuths are taking a "pretty close look" at the seven - man partnership from New Jersey that cashed in a $2 mutuel ticket for $132,232.80 at Roosevelt Raceway.

A spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service revealed last night in Washington that the difference between a one-man and a seven-man payoff on the largest windfall in pari-mutuel history could mean as much as $45,000 in taxes.

For this reason, said the spokesman, the IRS will not accept the claim of a shared payoff on the record twin double until it determines that the partnership was genuine.

The IRS entered the picture yesterday after four men from Freehold, N.J., all owners of harness horses, showed up at Roosevelt Raceway and ended a two - day mystery by collecting the record payoff for correctly picking the winners of the last four races at the Long Island harness track Tuesday night.

THE WINNERS

They were William Bresnahan Jr., 31, John E. Saker Jr., 30, Joseph J. Saker, 35, his brother, and Michael Sherman, 51. The Sakers' father and Bresnahan's father, both ill and elderly, were identified as the fifth and sixth members of the group. The seventh man was not identified.

Asked why the men waited two days to cash the ticket, Joseph Saker explained:

"We knew the Internal Revenue Service would be in on it and we wanted to make doubly sure everything was proper. Uncle Sam is our eighth partner."

He was so right.

The IRS spokesman estimated that if only one man actually owned the ticket, his taxes on the record sum would be $67,000 — assuming this payoff was his only income during the year and that he was married with two children and took the standard 10 per cent deduction.

If the payoff was split seven ways, each of the men would receive $18,890.

Based on the same assumptions about income and deductions, the taxes on this would be about $3,300 each — reducing Uncle Sam's share of the take from $67,000 to $22,000.

The group is loaded with tax deductible dependents. Bresnahan has eight children, the two Sakers have five each, Sherman has three and two of the men who didn't appear for the payoff have four each.

★ ★ ★

The Sakers and Bresnahan also are partners in the fair acres stable in Freehold.

They have 14 horses, five of which are being campaigned at Roosevelt and one of which won a $4,000 race before the twin double betting started Tuesday night. Sherman owns four horses, but none of them has raced at Roosevelt.

Joseph Saker was described as the "millionaire owner" of the Fooderama section of the Shoprite Supermarket chain. His brother is a partner in the operation.

Alex Karras Happy With Two-Year Pact

DETROIT (AP)—Those broad smiles being flashed around the Detroit Lions' office Thursday meant bad news for the rest of the National Football League.

Alex Karras, the Lions' star defensive tackle who was reinstated last month after a year's suspension for gambling, signed his first two-year contract Thursday. He said he was anxious to start playing.

Karras was an all-pro selection before the year's forced layoff. He reported for the signing weighing a trim 240 pounds —some 10 pounds under his 1962 playing weight.

Karras and Green Bay Packers' halfback Paul Hornung were suspended by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle for gambling on NFL games. Their reinstatement followed separate review of their records by Rozelle.

"I wouldn't say I got all the money that I lost last year," Karras said. "But I'm happy with the new contract."

Karras reportedly earned about $18,000 in 1962.

MONEY LOST

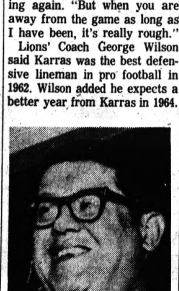

Karras said the money was the only thing he lost in that year not any of his strength or desire.

During the layoff, Karras kept in shape by working out with weights and playing handball.

He arrived in Detroit last week from his Clinton, Iowa, home. Until the Lions start regular practice late in July, Karras will report to the team's training room at least three times a week.

"It's bad enough between seasons," Karras said when asked if he was anxious to start playing again. "But when you are away from the game as long as I have been, it's really rough."

Lions' Coach George Wilson said Karras was the best defensive lineman in pro football in 1962. Wilson added he expects a better year from Karras in 1964.

Elk Measure Bogged Down

LANSING (AP)—A bill to allow Michigan's first elk hunting season has bogged down in the legislature because of a dispute over how much the special hunting licenses should cost.

The Senate passed the bill with a $25 license fee, but the House boosted this to $35 and Thursday the Senate insisted on the lower fee.

The Senate went along, however, with the House suggestion that the special hunt be allowed only this year and next year.

FOOD SHORTAGE

The bill would give the Conservation Department authority to set an open season on elk in areas where surveys show there is a shortage of food or that elk are damaging farm crops.

This would apply to the fast-growing herd in the Pigeon River state forest area.

The Senate rejected other House amendments, having to do with deer and grouse season changes.

Shortened Fences Help A's Triumph

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Detroit Tigers were victimized by Kansas City owner Charley Finley's shortened fences Thursday and moved on to Boston today with a 4-4 record for their road trip efforts so far.

Rookie outfielder Tom Reynolds bounced a home run off Billy Bruton's glove and over a shortened centerfield fence in a five-run first inning as the Athletics clubbed the Tigers 10-3 Thursday.

Rocky Colavito, held to one hit in 12 previous appearances at the plate against his former teammates, also hit a homer and knocked in a couple of runs to contribute to the one-sided victory.

WRONG FIELD

Jim Gentile hit an opposite-field homer in the sixth as the A's banged out 11 hits off a quartet of Detroit hurlers.

Starter Mickey Lolich, who had looked strong in his previous appearances while posting an early 2-0 record, walked two batters and gave up a pair of singles before Reynolds' homer.

The Tigers played without the services of Al Kaline, who injured his leg sliding into the plate Wednesday, and lost Norm Cash in the third inning.

★ ★ ★

Cash argued with the umpire on a freak play which started when Ed Rakow threw a pitch behind Doc Edwards and the ball rolled fair after hitting the bat. Cash claimed he tagged Edwards coming down the first base line after taking a throw from Don Wert.

MOVED IN

Finley, the controversial head man of the Athletics,' had ordered the fences in the Kansas City park shortened to conform with those in New York's Yankee Stadium.

After being told that he could not legally change the distance to the fences so that any of them were less than 325 feet from the plate, Finley ordered another change. This time the distances were allowed.

★ ★ ★

It was over the low centerfield fence that Reynolds got his first homer of the season.

Bruton's single in the third, and Wert's single in the seventh drove in the first two Detroit runs. The Tigers got their last tally in the ninth off winner Orlando Pena on three singles, the last one by Bruton.

Detroit Manager Charlie Dressen took another look at his two younger relievers, Fred Gladding and Al Koch.

Gladding gave up five hits and three runs in the one inning he worked. One of the hits was Colavito's homer.

Howe 2nd Team

Hawks Rule 'Stars'

MONTREAL (AP)— Detroit's Gordie Howe set a record Thursday when he was picked for the second team on the National Hockey League's All-Star squad for the 1963-64 season.

The Chicago Black Hawks took five of the six places on the first team selected by sports writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities. Stanley Cup Champion Toronto grabbed the other spot.

In addition to Hull, the NHL goal-scoring champion during the past season, the Chicago players named were Glenn Hall at goal, Pierre Pilote at defense, Stan Mikita at center and Ken Wharram at right wing. Tim Horton of Toronto was the other choice at defense.

Howe's selection for the second team broke a tie between him and retired Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal for receiving all-star honors the greatest number of times.

15th SELECTION

It was Howe's 15th appearance on the first or second NHL teams. He and Richard both were first-team choices in eight seasons.

Joining Howe on the second team were goalie Charlie Hodge, defenseman Jacques Laperriere and center Jean Beliveau of Montreal, Elmer Vasko of Chicago at defense and Frank Mahovlich of Toronto on the other wing.

The selection is worth $1,250 to Howe. The league gives a $1,000 bonus for over-all first team selection and $500 for second team plus awards of $500 and $250 to those selected in each half season.

Howe and Wharram tied for the second half spot-at left wing with Wharram getting the edge by one first place vote. Each will receive the $500 bonus.

On Gymnastic Team

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)— Michigan trampoline ace Gary Erwin was named to the national all-star gymnastic team announced Thursday by the National Association of College Gymnastic coaches.

Another Title Gets Closer for Billy Joe

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Back in the middle of the week when he was making putts of 4 to 12 feet look routine, Billy Joe Patton, the defending champion, had this to say of his chances of winning a fourth straight North and South Amateur Golf Championship:

★ ★ ★

"If I quit putting, I'm gonna be in trouble."

The 42-year-old Morganton, N.C., lumberman met little Wayne Jackson of Hampton, Va., 13 years his junior, in an 18-hole semifinal match today. Bob Allen of West Hartford, Conn., runner-up last spring, followed against Dale Morey of High Point, N.C.

But there was a time in Thursday's quarter-finals when it appeared that Billy Joe's putter would prove his undoing.

Pulled irons put him in trouble on the first two holes and his putter didn't get him out of the jam. On the first three holes he missed three putts to trail 48-year-old Frank Strafaci of Miami, Fla., by two holes.

But by the time they finished the eighth hole Patton was 2 up, a 12-foot putt and two from six feet getting him rolling.

Boos Become Cheers

Strategy Turns Out

By The Associated Press

You're Houston Manager Harry Craft. The score's tied 3-3 in the seventh and you've got a man on base, but three of your next four hitters are left-handers, scheduled to bat against a left-handed pitcher.

What do you do?

Simple: You bat for one of the lefty swingers—the one who's collected a homer and two singles in three at-bats.

What happens?

You get booed. And you beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-3.

That's the way Craft worked things out at Houston Thursday night when he made his strategic moves in the last of the seventh. Eddie Kasko opened the inning with a single and was sacrificed to second. With lefties due up, Dodger Manager Walt Alston switched to a southpaw pitcher, Jim Brewer.

OUT HE WENT

Craft let lefty Al Spangler hit, and Brewer walked him. Up next was another lefty, Walt Bond, who hit a two-run homer in the first inning and added two singles for a perfect night. And out he came.

Rookie Mike White was sent up to pinch hit as the crowd booed. They weren't booing when White drove a single past third base, driving in Kasko.

Bob Aspromonte then was intentionally walked to load the bases, and lefty swinging Rusty Staub was up. Craft let him hit, and he did—lacing a double down the right field line that cleared the bases.

Philadelphia made it three victories in a row by beating Cincinnati 3-1 in the only other National League games played. In American League action, Cleveland belted Minnesota 8-4 and Kansas City walloped Detroit 10-3.

ThePhillies jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning and that was enough for Dennis Bennett, who scattered eight hits. Richie Allen doubled one run home and Joe Nuxhall forced in the other by hitting Tony Gonzalez with a pitch in a bases-loaded situation.

Twins' starter Dick Stigman had allowed only one hit through five innings when Leon Wagner and Vic Davalillo started slugging for the Indians. Wagner, who also collected a single and double, hit a three-run homer in a four-run sixth. Davalillo's double drove in two runs in a three-run seventh.

Dogs 'Must' Behave for Sunday's Show

Nearly 130 dogs will attempt to show how well they can behave Sunday at the CAI Building on Williams Lake Road.

The canines are entered in the annual Southern Michigan Obedience Training Clubs' match. Proceeds go to the Leader Dog building fund.

Routines will range from relatively simple exercises for novice dogs to the complicated handling of the Utility class. A grand prize trophy will be awarded to the highest scoring dog regardless of class.

There will be 65 other trophies and ribbons given out.

Unlike a bench show, the obedience match doesn't take breed into consideration during the judging. Just how well each dog obeys.

Mrs. Charles Wheaton will judge graduate novice, brace and Open B. The utility, Open A and Novice B will be judged by Norm Korn. There will be a versatility class, also.

Judging will start at 11 a.m. The show is expected to conclude by 5:30 p.m.

RING STEWARD

Mrs. Grace Williams will be the ring steward. Lenhard S. Schell of Pontiac is match chairman.

One of the favorites expected to be entered is Skeeter, a cocker spaniel owned, by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Leonard of Adrian. Mrs. Leonard handled the dog to a perfect 200 score at the recent Livonia match.

Last weekend at Toledo, the dog won with a 199½.

Huron Entries Get Deadline

The entry deadline for the Huron Bowl's Invitational Singles Tournament has been extended to midnight Monday.

All women who have bowled a 210 actual game or better and all men with a 245 or better in Huron Bowl leagues are eligible to enter.

There are separate tournaments for men and women. The entry fees are $5 for men and $4 for women. First prize is a guaranteed $50.

All entrants will receive a 70 per cent handicap on 200 scratch. There will be three squads each day. In addition to the cash prizes there are two perpetual trophies that will have the winners' names engraved upon them.

Elks Tourney Will Conclude This Weekend

The eighth annual Elks #810 Mixed Doubles tournament will conclude this weekend at the Orchard Lake Ave. Temple with entries from Hillsdale, Port Huron, Ann Arbor, Detroit and Pontiac.

If the pattern set during the first four weekends of the affair continues, the new champions will bowl this weekend. A new leader has appeared each weekend.

Following the pattern a step further, Mildred Willhelm and Joseph Schwarze of Royal Oak probably have clinched second place money.

Each weekend the preceding leaders have been pushed into second place. The Royal Oak duo took over the lead during last Saturday and Sunday's action with a 1311 total—the first ones to top the 1300 mark.

In so doing, they shoved Pontiac's Eutha Bradshaw and Nelson Fields into the runner-up spot after holding the top position one week.

Just as surely as spring brings April Showers so does May bring summer league bowling.

A quick check of 14 local bowling establishments revealed that only two of them would not have leagues going by mid-May.

One of those two, Montcalm Bowling Centre, plans to remodel during May, and both expect to have leagues starting in June.

One establishment, West Side Lanes, started its action last week and Auburn Lanes was under way this week. Interest, on the average, is about the same as last year but several houses report increases.

Huron Bowl, North Hill and newcomer Orchard Lanes all report encouraging pre-registration. Auburn, West Side and Northwood note an increase in the number of women participating over last year.

Bowlers interested in league competition this summer should not delay in registering since plans will be completed at almost all establishments in the next week or ten days.

Those who are not contemplating bowling in a league but will do some occasional open bowling should check with their favorite houses for any possible changes in operating times.

FALLING PINS

Officers of Airway Lanes leagues are reminded to sign up as soon as possible for the house's Officers' Tournament which is scheduled for May 17th.

Mike Samardzija Jr., will team with Hall of Famer Buzz Fazio this weekend in the Eastern United States men's doubles championships at Warrensville Heights, Ohio.

They'll be gunning for a spot among the top four teams and a subsequent berth in the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America National Championships May 16-17 at St. Charles, Mo.

Hearty congratulations from The 11th Frame to the 300 Bowl team that won the American Bowling Congress Tournament's regular team event. The full significance of the triumph has not yet been realized.

And high hopes are held for Peg Carter and Shirley Pointer who both are in positions that could bring them state Women's Bowling Tournament titles with less than a month to go.

Bowling Ace Lou Sielaff Dies at 48

DETROIT (AP)—Louis (Lou) Sielaff, the only bowler to captain three ABC national championship teams, died in Detroit Thursday. He was 48.

Sielaff had suffered from cancer since last August, said Mike Toth, a friend and president of the Detroit Bowling Proprietor's Association.

Sielaff's team captured the American Bowling Congress titles in 1952 when the team was sponsored by E & B beer and in 1953 and 1955 under Pfeiffer's sponsorship.

He held a lifetime average of 193 for 29 years of bowling in ABC tournaments.

Some of the nation's best bowlers were on his teams, including Don Carter on the 1953 championship squad and Bill Lillard on the 1952 team.

In 1957, Sielaff won the Michigan singles title. He won state doubles championships twice.

Sielaff, who retired from tournament bowling in 1960, has been nominated for the ABC national bowling Hall of Fame.

He leaves his mother, Rose; wife, Marie, and a son, Dale, 16, all of Detroit. Funeral arrangements were pending.

Men's League Change in Waterford Softball

The Waterford Township men's softball league will be delayed for one week and will not begin officially until Tuesday, May 12th.

The rainy weather has prevented most of the teams from getting their allotted practice session under the lights completed and for this reason the one week delay has been issued by the Waterford recreation department.

Title Match Slated in Traveling League

It will be 300 Bowl vs. Wonderland Lanes at noon Sunday on the Huron Bowl Lanes for the championship of the Pontiac Traveling Classic League.

The two semifinal matches last Sunday at Airway Lanes and 300 Bowl to qualify for the best-out-of-three showdown that determines the Frank Jennings Trophy winner.

Regular season leader 300 Bowl had to scrap for a close win over Huron Bowl on the Airway alleys, winning the final match 20-16 after just surviving a near-elimination in the second match.

Last year's champions, Airway, took a surprising beating from Wonderland Lanes, 2-0, on the "300" lanes. The winners just made the semifinals with a late season surge while Airway was runner-up during the race.

Huron knocked off "300," 27-10, in their first match and had the leaders down entering the final game of the second match; but Larry Crake hit a 247 game and earned "300" the nod by 65 total pins, after the bonus points came out 16 apiece.

Joe Foster's nine points decided the final match for "300" and gave him 19 for the day on a 219 average.

Wonderland trimmed Airway, 19-5, in the opening match as Bob Leibler hit 653 and seven points; and the team pitched in on the second match to aide Leibler's 632-and-five effort in the second.

Tim White and Jim Sherwood were instrumental in offsetting the seven-point 651 of Airway's Bob Davis for the 14-12 deciding match victory.

Hawks' Injured Hull Reported Satisfactory

DETROIT (AP) — Chicago Black Hawk hockey star Bobby Hull remained in satisfactory condition at Detroit's Henry Ford Hospital Thursday night.

Hull suffered minor hand injuries early Wednesday when his car skidded on wet pavement and struck the rear of a semi-trailer truck in the Detroit suburb of Allen Park. Hospital authorities said he is being held for observation.

Allen Park police ticketed Hull for "failure to stop in the assured clear distance ahead." Hull told police the truck pulled out in front of him and he was unable to stop.

Competition Sunday

Record Cars at Dragway

The action at the Detroit Dragway Sunday will feature an attempt at the world's record by a pair of Dodge Chargers in three special match races.

One Dodge driver, Jimmy Nix of Oklahoma City, Okla., set the present record less than two weeks ago at Tucson, Ariz. reaching 135.20 miles per hour in 11.14 seconds on a quarter-mile track.

Nix will be competing against Jim Johnson of Hermosa Beach, Calif., in the other Dodge Charger. Both set records on the winter tour.

They will be driving Super-Factory Experimental classification cars. The cars have Dodge 426 Ramcharger 'wedge' engines with a rated horsepower of 900.

Special parachutes are used to augment braking.

The competitors will race three times — once in the morning, once in the afternoon and once at night—in an effort to surpass the record.

Spectators will have the opportunity to talk with the racers and crews at an exhibits set up at the track.

Wiggins Hits 21-11½ but Chiefs Stumble

Bob Wiggins of Pontiac Central came within a half inch of broad jumping 22 feet in a Saginaw Valley triangular meet at Bay City yesterday, but the Chiefs lost to Flint Southwestern.

The Colts scored 62½ points to 59½ for PCH. Host Bay Central was third with 15. Bob Wirgowski scored 13 points for the Wolves.

Wigging jumped 21-11½ in the rain. Otis Newkirk ran a good 10.15 in the 100 for PCH on a slow track.

The Chiefs didn't have hurdler-high jumper Al Keel who normally scores 5-10 points. He was left in Pontiac because of a cold.

In other meets, Madison raced past Lake Orion, 72-37, and Royal Oak Kimball downed Bloomfield Hills, 60-49.

Art Beatty picked up one of the four victories Lake Orion collected with a record-breaking heave in the shot put. Beatty tossed the shot 48 feet 10 inches.

RICHARDS UNBEATEN

Kimball won eight events in outclassing the Barons. Hills' Bob Richards remained unbeaten this season in the mile with a 4:24.2 clocking.

In prep baseball action, Romeo rolled to a 5-2 decision over Oxford, and Utica edged Warren, 2-1.

Romeo came up with two runs in the first, one in the third and two in the fourth to run its record to 4-1.

Mike Simunic, Mike Pokorney, Benny Payne and Buzz Smiles paced the attack with two hits each.

Dave McIntosh struck out 10 batters in taming Warren, and he scored the winning run in the second inning on a single by Mike Dickey.

Titan Grid Picture Brightest in Decade

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

DETROIT—Royal Oak Shrine, which has dominated the parochial football picture in Oakland County for many years, and which has contributed numerous stars to the All-County football teams, is now helping the Titans to their brightest grid outlook in more than a decade.

With 76 players in uniform, several missing because of spring sports, the Red team rolled over the White team 28-7 last night in a windup of spring drills, and the Titans never looked more impressive than since their Missouri Valley Conference championship days in 1948-49.

Showing backfield depth, with power and speed, and some huge and speedy linemen, at least a dozen of the 48 sophomores on the squad gave indication that coach John Idzik would have a problem next fall — that is, where to play them.

Ron Bishop, Shrine senior who sat out a year because of scholastic problems, led the Red team and other ex-Shrine gridders halfback Mike Randall, end John Everly, and tackle Mike Haggerty all made strong contributions.

TWO ALL-AMERICAS

The Titans, who grabbed the two high school All-America ends from Michigan in 1963 recruiting, Tom Beer from Detroit St. Ambrose and Tony Richardson from Oscoda high school, can gleam with pride at their choices.

★ ★ ★

Beer made a fine catch of the first touchdown, a 27-yard pass from Bishop and Richardson converted all the placements and was impressive as an end kicker for the Red team.

Fred Beier, among the top fullbacks in the country statistically last year, and his sophomore brother Tom of Freemont, Ohio, played on opposite sides and showed power. The older Beier gained 85 yards in 14 carries and Tom got 30 in three tries.

Randall, who was out last season with an injured back and then with a broken foot, made several outstanding gains including a 45 yarder. He had 70 yards in 9 carries and a touchdown.

★ ★ ★

Steve Mass, the 285 pound junior tackle from Detroit Austin, led the line play which included 11 tackles in the 245 pound-and-over class.

★ ★ ★

Tom Materniak, the 340 pounder from River Rouge, started at tackle for the White team and coach Idzik was satisfied with his performance.

SHOWS SPEED

Mass showed his speed for his huge frame when he smeared the younger Beier as the first man downfield on a punt play.

Coach Idzik gleefully commented after the game, played in steady drizzle with about 1,000 spectators on hand, "We are hoping for a good season, but 1965 is really the year we had been pointing to."

Two of U. of D.'s oustanding players of the past few seasons, ends Steve Stonebreaker, traded recently by Minnesota to Baltimore, and Larry Vargo of the Lions were on hand and both were highly impressed with the overall team strength.

"I don't think a U. of D. team has had such depth since football returned after World War II," noted Vargo.

The Titans play a 10 game schedule next fall, including games with Kentucky, VMI, Miama of Florida, Boston College, Villanova and Cincinnati.

'M' to Show '64 Prospects

Spring Grid Game Saturday at 2 P.M.

ANN ARBOR — Michigan will show its 1964 football prospects to the public tomorrow in the annual Maize and Blue intrasquad game at 2:00 p.m. in the Wolverine Stadium.

Coach Bump Elliott and his staff have been happy with the speed and depth of the backfield and at end but will closely watch the interior line which was hit hard by graduation.

Veteran Bob Timberlake has held the upper hand at quarterback but sophomores Rich Vidmer of Jeanette, Pa., and Rich Volk of Wauseon, Ohio, have offered strong competition for the job.

Ends Jim Conley, John Henderson, Craig Kirby, Bill Laskey and Steve Smith, all lettermen, make the picture at the terminals look good.

Baseball Tryouts Set

Tryouts for the Pontiac Business Institute entry in the city Class A baseball league are set for 5 p.m. Saturday at Jaycee No. 1 and 4:30 p.m. Sunday at Jaycee No. 2.

Communist Penetration Feared

Brazzaville Turning Sharply to East

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (AP)—The government of this former French colony is turning sharply to the left, causing Western fears that Communist penetration may follow.

The United States, not so long ago considered a friend, is regarded with suspicion and frequently with hostility.

President Alphonse Massemba-Debiat, hoisted to power last August by a revolt of the labor unions, insists he wants to lead the country toward "positive neutralism" in "peaceful revolution."

★ ★ ★

A group of Marxist Cabinet members is giving the regime an increasingly pro-Eastern tone. Massemba-Debiat, still not sure of his strength, gradually is being swept with the current.

★ ★ ★

Restless youths of Marxist-leaning organizations are forming revolutionary committees throughout the country. Anti-white feeling rises and falls periodically, creating tension and fear among 8,000 Frenchmen.

INVESTMENTS DROP

French investments have dropped sharply and stores are reluctant to replenish stocks. Everyone remembers the panicky exodus of Belgians from Leopoldville across the Congo River nearly four years ago.

French officials count mainly on the fact that this land of 800,000 people needs France to keep going.

★ ★ ★

But French diplomats admit that in Africa, economic reasons do not always halt political recklessness.

There are French military bases, and tough Senegalese commandos in red fezzes guard the tree-shaded headquarters of France's defense zone.

French military planes take off from the Brazzaville and Pointe Noire bases. French machine guns rattle in target practice in the vast Brazzaville compound of marine infantry.

Youth is demanding an increasingly pro-Eastern course. Many 18-year-old members of the Communist Union de la Jeuneusse Congolaise and fellow-traveling Association Scolaire Congolaise are armed.

★ ★ ★

Half a dozen leaders trained behind the Iron Curtain were enough to electrify young Congolese.

They have been watching the sister state of the former Belgian Congo, beset by problems and instability. They blame the United States for most of its ills. This is a base for exiles seeking to overthrow Premier Cyrille Adoula in the adjoining Congo.

BOYCOTT DIPLOMATS

Many Congo Republic officials boycott American diplomats. The United States has been the object of sharp official and press attacks.

★ ★ ★

One of the main values of this country is its strategic location and closeness to the Leopoldville Congo. It serves as major transport center. Its rail and river traffic supplies the nearby Central African Republic and Chad, and handles the export of manganese from Gabon.

★ ★ ★

The government's Marxist tone is given mainly by Premier Pascal Lissouba, Commerce Minister Aime Matsika, Foreign Minister Charles David Ganao, and the health and education minister, Bernard Galiba.

Push County-Run Welfare to Cut Duplicated Efforts

LANSING (AP) — Counties should take administrative control of welfare programs in Michigan "in the interest of service, efficiency and economy," a special legislative committee reports.

★ ★ ★

"It is the committee's belief that the administrative control of all welfare in each county should be handled by a single county director in order to place the responsibility of service under a single department head," said a House-Senate interim committee formed to study welfare reorganization.

★ ★ ★

The committee, headed by Sen. Arthur Dehmel, R-Unionville, and Rep. Thomas G. Sharpe, R-Howell, said that one of the major problems under Michigan's present welfare systems is unnecessary duplication and waste of effort.

"There is a definite need for more efficient administration of the public assistance programs to improve services to recipients and for the first time to afford similar treatment of needy individuals regardless of whether they are recipients of state-federal aid or receiving general assistance," the committee report said.

DUPLICATED EFFORT

Currently, one family may be investigated by several social agencies covering the same, or similar, ground, the legislators said.

Now is a logical time for a change, they added, "in view of the fact that we have a new state welfare director—Mr. R. Bernard Houston—who is in sympathy with the release of administrative control from the State Department... and not (interested) in building a social welfare dynasty."

★ ★ ★

Another vital problem, legislative investigators said, is the rising cost of welfare programs.

Recapturing more federal funds is also important they said, adding:

"Because of our determinations as to who is eligible and how much help eligible people should receive, we are actually losing millions of dollars in matching federal funds which could relieve our local county welfare departments of a high percentage of their present cost."

★ ★ ★

Some stories have been made in the current session of the legislature to improve the lot of welfare recipients, the committee said. These include bills to: enable Michigan to take part in the federal program of Aid to Dependent Children of the Unemployed (ADC-U); to increase income limits for medical aid to the aged, benefitting some 12,000 Michigan old folks; to increase hospital aid to the aged from $90 to $140 per month, and to permit liberalized definitions and disbursement of aid to disabled persons.

Schoolgirl's Plea Saves Robin's Title

LANSING (UPI) — A Battle Creek schoolgirl's plea aided the robin to retain his 33-year-old title as Michigan's official state bird yesterday.

State Rep. Harry De Maso, R-Battle Creek, read a letter from Vicki Boylan to add her opinion to that of nearly a score of state representatives who rose to defend the robin's position against a resolution favoring the Kirtland's Warbler.

"I think you are cheating Michigan by having the Kirtland Warbler our state bird," Miss Boylan said in her letter to De Maso.

"We should have the robin. In the summer, you see the robins out all over.

★ ★ ★

"Every one sees the robins, but not the warbler."

There is good reason why few Michigan citizens have actually viewed the warbler.

The bird nests only in a nine-county area centered around Mio where there is a memorial to the tiny bird.

The House took more than 15 minutes off from the more pressing problems of government to debate the proposal to make the warbler the state bird because it is unique to Michigan.

The debate was finally cut off when Rep. Thomas Sharpe, R-Howell, rose and noted "Here we sit arguing about a little bird that only visits in about nine Republican counties of the state and in which you have to go to the Bahama Islands to see. I move that the resolution be returned to committee."

The majority of the representatives agreed with Sharpe after seeing literature which revealed the bird only spends about four months of the year in Michigan.

Advances in Moderate Trading

Steels, Motors Pace Market

NEW YORK (AP) Steels, motors and selected issues advanced in a higher stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderately active.

Gains of key stocks ran from fractions to a point or more. Some of the higher-priced, move volatile issues led better.

★ ★ ★

Texas Gulf Sulphur resumed its advance, rising about a point.

Curtis Publishing was delayed in opening due to an accumulation of buy orders, finally selling at 16⅞, up ⅛ on a big block of 60,000 shares. It pushed ahead more than 2 points in later trading.

PUBLIC DISCUSSION

Further public discussion of possibilities on the Curtis land adjacent to Texas Gulf's mineral find in Canada accompanied the rise of Curtis.

Airlines, oils, rails, electrical equipments, aerospace issues and electronics also advanced.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .5 at 302.2 with industrials up .9, rails up .5 and utilities off .1.

★ ★ ★

After declining in four of the past five sessions, the market seemed due for another technical recovery, analysts said.

Prices were irregular on the American Stock Exchange. Trading was moderate. Gains of around a point were made by Home Oil "A," Syntex, Telereg-ister, Dominion Steel & Coal and Hanson, Van Winkle, Munning. Canadian Javelin was actively traded and fractionally higher.

Corporate bonds were mixed. Among U.S. Government bonds, some longer-term issues took slight losses in quiet trading.

Student Daydreamer Heads for Difficulty

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed.D.

Dear Dr. Nason, my son, who is in junior high this year, is having trouble because of his daydreaming habit, of which we have been trying for years to break him. Going from elementary school to junior high with increased amounts of homework and other studies is especially difficult on these daydreamers as they fail to listen to assignments and cannot keep up with their work.

DR. NASON

How can a student be broken of this habit?

Mrs. J.W.E., Harbor Bluffs, Largo, Fla.

* * *

You cannot stop a student from daydreaming, but you can help him to break the habit of wasting his thinking. He alone can determine what his thoughts will be.

Help him learn to control his thoughts through planning. Planning how he is going to study each lesson. Planning to hear and write down each assignment.

Perhaps if he planned to discuss with you what he has learned in a reading assignment or during a given class period it would provide him with a purpose and help him hold his attention where it belongs.

Dear Dr. Nason, my oldest daughter, age 15, is a freshman in high school. She has trouble understanding what she reads, consequently she just won't study.

If there are questions at the end of a chapter she tries to find the answers without reading the whole chapter. She is failing in algebra; barely passing in her subjects.

Although she has given up trying, she seems to care. I would appreciate it if you would offer suggestions.

Mrs. C.D., Indianapolis, Indiana

* * *

Failure to read for understanding is sometimes merely a habit. Someone skilled in reading problems should take enough time working with your daughter to determine the real situation.

If she is unable to read, that is the place to start; she should be placed in a special group, and removed from as much of her other school work as possible until she has remedied her reading problem.

If her failure to read purposefully is a habit, she can be started on a correct approach to her studies without remedial reading, but a trained person will have to show her how.

Dear Dr. Nason, at the beginning of his premedic work in college, my son received low grades. He has improved and is now working toward a master's degree in biology. His grades are good and he is being encouraged to go on into research in that field.

Due to his poor early college grades all of his applications to medical schools have been rejected. Why are they still held against him in this manner? Have you any suggestions for him?

Mrs. B.M.S., Easton, Pa.

I wish that a great many college freshmen and sophomores could read your letter and realize that the record they are making will stay with them and limit their opportunities perhaps for the rest of their lives.

I suggest that your son turn his full attention to continued success in the field of biology. This may, after all, be a better field for him than medicine.

By OSWALD JACOBY

Some players would only raise from one to two no-trump with today's North hand, but it would not make any difference in the final contract. South would go on to game with his 17 points.

JACOBY

Anyway, North and South get a bidding par for reaching three no-trump with South as the declarer, and West is instructed to open the four of clubs. That's the way it happened in the National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament.

This bidding par was really a cinch. The play par is a trifle more difficult.

There is a natural tendency for South to look at that four of clubs lead and play low from dummy. This play might be well worth while in a duplicate game where every trick pays off.

It would not be too good in a rubber bridge game because it might cost him his contract and it would be simple, quiet death in this par contest.

If South rises with dummy's ace of clubs and goes after the diamonds, he will wind up with at least nine tricks.

It won't matter where the ace of diamonds is or how the clubs are divided. He will get to run his diamonds before the defense can collect more than four tricks.

If he ducks the club, East will win the trick with the king and shift to the ten of hearts. The defense will establish three heart tricks before South can get around to his diamond suit and South will have lost his par in the contest and his shirt in a rubber bridge game.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

King of Jordan Under Guard

LONDON (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan has been sealed off from the public in London by detectives shielding him from a reported assassination threat.

★ ★ ★

Police acted after the U.S. State Department passed on a tip from the FBI and Chicago police that Abu Nasir Zakaria Tahir, 45, was believed to have flown from New York to London.

★ ★ ★

Tahir, 45, who is under death sentence in Jordan on charges of plotting to kill Hussein, was reported to have been in Chicago earlier this week when the King visited that city.

★ ★ ★

King Hussein is to have lunch with Prime Minister Douglas-Home today and dinner with Queen Elizabeth II tonight.

TV Channel Boost Goes in Effect Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—American television passed another milestone today.

Any video set made in this country from now on must be capable of receiving 82—instead of 12—television channels.

★ ★ ★

The result, as time goes by, should be more stations, more program variety, and better television reception throughout the United States.

★ ★ ★

Congress passed the all-channel television set requirement in 1962 and made it effective today to give the industry time to adapt itself to the new law.

IMPORTED SETS

I also applies to any sets imported into this country.

Most television sets on the market today are equipped to receive only the 12 very high frequency channels from 2 through 13.

★ ★ ★

But television broadcasting, says the Federal Communications Commission—which originally asked Congress for the all-channel receiver law—has outgrown those channels.

★ ★ ★

Ready to accommodate the overflow are 70 ultra high frequency channels. More than 100 UHF stations are operating today, but many television owners are not familiar with them because their sets are equipped for only VHF reception.

650 STATIONS

The 12 VHF channels can accommodate no more than 650 television stations. Thus, while some larger cities have several such stations, many are limited by FCC allocations to two or fewer. And some cities have none.

But the 70 UHF channels can accommodate up to 3,000 new stations, promising more communities a chance of having their own stations and offering viewers a greater choice of programs.

★ ★ ★

The FCC points out that the new law does not require owners of VHF sets to buy new receivers.

Viewers have several options if they wish to take immediate advantage of the UHF stations in their areas. They may buy one of the new all-channel sets now on the market. They may have a UHF tuner installed in their VHF set.

UHF CONVERTER

They may add a UHF converter to their VHF set. Or they may install what is known as a strip tuner in their present set, allowing them to tune in on one or more available UHF channels.

★ ★ ★

With all-channel reception mandatory, the FCC said, "TV broadcasting will find ample room in UHF to grow on a national basis."

Present home sets will not become obsolete, the FCC said, because "it is very unlikely that VHF's channels 2 to 13 will be discarded within the lifetime of present-day television receivers. We need these channels as well as 14 to 83."

'Lawrin's' 1938 Derby Win Puts Owner, Nag in Clover

By EARL WILSON

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Ky. — At night they sip their bourbon and they tell their Kentucky Derby stories . . . and here is one they tell about Eddie Arcaro.

WILSON

It was 1938, the man said. Eddie'd never ridden a Derby winner, Ben Jones had never saddled one.

Midnight the day before . . . There was a rich Kansas clothing merchant and sportsman, Herbert Woolf, who had a sore-footed horse named Lawrin that didn't have a chance . . . and he was out on his lawn at his rented house, when he saw a light flashing in the grass.

Looking closer, he saw the light was in the hand of Mrs. Pappy Van Winkle, wife of the famous bourbon brewer.

"Lose something?" he called . . . "Looking for a four-leaf clover," she said. "Now's the best time . . . in the dew."

Mrs. Van Winkle, a real Southern belle, with honeysuckle in her voice, said, "And right under your foot I see one!"

Plucking it, she said, "Put it between the saddle and saddle blanket tomorrow and you'll win the Derby."

Woolf did exactly as directed. Lawrin romped home to win, and paid $19.20 for $2. Herbert Woolf next day gave the big horseshoe of red roses to Mrs. Van Winkle as a salute to her sagacity.

★ ★ ★

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

London club proprietor John Mills — of Les Ambassadeurs —and group, are reported to have sealed the deal to take over America's most famous night spot, El Morocco . . . Justice Birdie Amsterdam says she was greeted by a friend who said, "How's Your Honor?" She replied, "Not bad. How's yours?"

Bob Hope's seeing "Nobody Loves an Albatross" here; he may do the film version . . . Producer Ray Stark will make back most of his "Funny Girl" loot from the album alone — he gets 70 cents apiece from the expected million sales . . . George Jessel's line at the Mark Twain Riverboat: "You know what people mean when they call me a character? It means they're dull!"

★ ★ ★

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Howie Price of the Broadcaster's inn has this description of a nagging wife: "That little ol' whinemaker."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "A second marriage is the triumph of hope over experience."

EARL'S PEARLS: Truth is like a woman's girdle. If you want it to cover both sides of the subject, you have to stretch it a little.

Oscar Homolka writes excitedly that he expects to get rich: "Some surveyors looked around, and you know what they discovered on my property? Parking space!" . . . That's earl, brother.

Ask Court to Stop Rights Proceedings

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—A federal appeals court has been asked to block proceedings against 285 Florida civil rights demonstrators — including Mrs. Malcolm Peabody, mother of the Massachusetts governor.

★ ★ ★

The demonstrators were arrested in St. Augustine during March racial protests and charged with trespass, conspiracy and violation of the "undesirable guest" law.

★ ★ ★

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here also was asked Thursday to compel U.S. Dist. Judge Bryan Simpson of Jacksonville to accept jurisdiction in the cases, scheduled for trial in St. Johns County Court May 5.

GOP Asks Pennies to Aid LBJ Light Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican Congressional Committee newsletter today urged Americans to send pennies to President Johnson to enable him to keep the White House lights on at night.

★ ★ ★

It only costs one penny to burn a 100-watt light bulb all night, the newsletter said as it labeled the President's lights-out program "a phony economy which we could well do without."

Stevenson Squelches Senate Race Rumor

NEW YORK (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson, U. S. Ambassador, says he doesn't want to be considered as a possible opponent for Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N. Y., in the November election.

In a statement issued a few hours before he left New York on a three-week European trip, Stevenson said "my present responsibilities in President Johnson's administration in connection with the conduct of foreign affairs at this critical and hopeful time, must take precedence."

Fiedler Pops Beatles' Bop on Bostonians

BOSTON (AP) — Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the famed Boston Pops Orchestra, never is afraid to experiment, so who should be surprised his program includes a number by the Beatles?

★ ★ ★

The orchestra currently is playing in Boston Symphony Hall. Its musicians are Boston Symphony Orchestra members.

Fiedler mixed a number called "I Want to Hold Your Hand" by the Liverpool quartet in his program Wednesday and the audience applauded enthusiastically.

Fiedler was in Liverpool earlier this year and was intrigued by the Beatles music.

Main Danger Appears to Be Political

Viet Nam Hopes Brighten, but Uphill Fight Remains

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—South Viet Nam's hopes for survival seem brighter than they were six months ago today, when Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown.

★ ★ ★

This is not saying too much. Diem's final days had many aspects of despair.

★ ★ ★

"If Diem had lasted another month, South Viet Nam would have gone down the drain," a top American diplomat says. "The situation here was in its terminal phase then. We were hitting bottom."

★ ★ ★

The consensus today is that the decline has halted, but an uphill struggle stretches far ahead.

MAIN DANGER

The main danger ahead appears to be political; not military.

★ ★ ★

Communist Viet Cong forces controlling much of the countryside have shown in recent weeks they can attack with strength and boldness. But the reaction time of government forces has improved significantly.

★ ★ ★

A top American diplomat told the French after they lost Indochina at Dien Bien Phu 10 years ago: "A second-rate general could have won in Indochina if he had had the proper political atmosphere."

★ ★ ★

A prime requisite is stabilization of the military situation and the development of trained and dedicated civilian administrators.

LOST GROUND

The government has lost ground and population to the Viet Cong. The Communists have extended their control in the critical southern delta, in provinces around Saigon and in key populated areas in central Viet Nam.

★ ★ ★

Communist military units are stronger and better equipped. They are taking an increasing toll of U.S. and Vietnamese aircraft.

★ ★ ★

"On the civilian side there was more competence in the national bureaucracy last fall than there is today," a government expert says. "It reflected a rigid regime that had been in control for nine years and could exert its influence down to the grass roots.

★ ★ ★

"There was a greater sense of discipline among the rank and file and middle leadership under Diem, a discipline compounded of fear—but when the people were told to do something they jumped."

NEED VICTORIES

"We need a few military victories to start building up civilian morale," an American said, "and we must develop honest and able civilian administrators in the capital and throughout the countryside to back up and consolidate the military."

The government, with strong backing from the United States, has launched campaigns to tackle both problems. "We are just starting to do what we should have started two years ago," says an American in a position to know.

Militarily, the government has launched the "pacification program" aimed at consolidating and securing isolated areas and centers of population.

Static defense is being assigned to civil guards and paramilitary forces, freeing regular troops. Mobile battalions are being deployed on "hunt and kill" operations against the Viet Cong.

ARMY PROMOTION

The army has instituted a system of promotions based more on merit than on the political loyal Diem demanded. It has raised pay and improved service conditions.

U.S. military advisers in the field report Vietnamese army commanders are more receptive to advice. The morale of the U.S. advisers themselves has started to climb.

★ ★ ★

On the civilian side, the government has launched a program to educate district chiefs and other officials.

The people should stop worrying about a coup and get on with the war, strong man Premier Nguyen Khanh, who seized power three months ago, has said.

PRAISE FOR KHANH

Top U.S. military men praise Khanh.

Khanh, however, does not yet exert complete control over his staff. His power is diluted among several top Vietnamese generals. He still does not have sufficiently solid support to crack down on dissenters.

★ ★ ★

Recent statements by President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk have raised hopes U.S. aid efforts may be broadened to include support from other nations.

Such a joint international effort might counter Communist claims the war in Viet Nam is "America's war."

Report Soviets Leaving Cuba

Expect 3,000 to Go, Quit Missile Control

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. sources reported evidence today that some more of Soviet troops stationed in Cuba have been making preparations to leave.

U.S. officials have expected that perhaps 3,000 Russians would be withdrawn from Cuba as the Soviet Union turns over to the Cuban armed forces SA2 antiaircraft missiles installed on the island in 1962.

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro said in Havana yesterday that "very soon now we are going to have 20-year-olds manning land-to-air rockets." He presumably meant Cuban youths.

Castro gave no date for the turnover. But he warned that Cuba would not continue to tolerate U.S. reconnaissance overflights. President Johnson already has gone on record as saying the overflights would continue.

★ ★ ★

There have been indications recently that May 1 was the approximate date for a formal turnover of the SA2 missiles, which are capable of shooting down American U2 reconnaissance planes.

STILL IN CUBA

Withdrawal of 3,000 Russians still would leave between 1,000 and 4,000 Soviet troops in Cuba. Such a pullout would be expected to take a month or more.

Officials here reported evidence, such as lining up of trucks, indicating that at least some of the Russians are packing up.

Russia Sells Mansion Where K Harangued

NEW YORK (AP)—The Soviets have sold the Park Avenue mansion from which Premier Khrushchev made vigorous balcony speeches during his 1959 visit to the United Nations.

The four-story, Georgian-style building at 68th street will be torn down with others to make way for a 31-story apartment house. The selling price was not revealed.

Arab Bridge Teams Won't Play Israelis

NEW YORK (AP) — Teams from the United Arab Republic and Lebanon are under orders from their governments not to play an Israeli team in the 30-nation World Bridge Olympiad starting today.

The Israeli team would win seven points for each forfeited match. The UAR captain, Omar Sharif, made the report of the boycott plans against Israel Thursday.

Threat Is Reported to Cardinal's Life

NORWOOD, Mass. (AP)—Richard Cardinal Cushing had a police guard during a visit here Thursday night, when police reported they received word a threat had been made to his life.

Cardinal Cushing was at St. Catherine's Church at the installation of a new pastor when police got word of the threat. Chief James M. Murphy escorted the prelate from the altar, and with four of his men surrounding the cardinal, escorted him to the parish rectory.

Police declined to give any details of the threat.

Landowner Succumbs

KILLARNEY, Ireland (AP)—Francis Alexander Eveleigh-Ross-De-Moleyns, a descendant of King James IV of Scotland and one of Britain's greatest landowners, died at his Irish home Wednesday, relatives announced today. He was 63.

Armed Man Arrested

Bursts In on Romney

LANSING (AP) — State police took an unidentified man into custody today after he invaded Gov. George W. Romney's office carrying a loaded revolver and a knife in an attache case.

★ ★ ★

Trooper Jay Kennedy, one of Romney's bodyguards, seized the man after he barged into the inner office where Romney was conferring with his legislative assistant, Robert McIntosh, and House Speaker Allison Green. No one was injured.

The man followed Mrs. Margaret Little, Romney's personal secretary, into the office, and said, "There's Gov. Romney now. I want him. Dick Nixon made the appointment."

The gun, a nickel-plated 38-caliber revolver, and a pocket knife were taken by Kennedy from the attache case.

Before entering Romney's inner office, the man had introduced himself to several secretaries and took pictures in the Capitol corridor of Republican State Chairman Arthur Ellison Jr.

TICKET CHOICE

Romney told newsmen after talking to the man that he "wants me and Nixon (former vice president Richard M. Nixon) on the Republican ticket."

Romney said the man gave his name as "Charles P. English." He carried a card with that name and identified himself as "president of Latin-American Development Corp." with offices in Gogota, Colombia.

The man was placed under arrest for investigation of carrying a concealed weapon.

★ ★ ★

Romney, who took the incident calmly and joked afterwards, said the man also identified himself as Republican chairman of Dade County, Fla., and a state senator-elect from Dade County.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

"He told me he wanted me and Nixon on the ticket and was concerned about national affairs," the governor said.

While being questioned by troopers, English said "you have violated my basic constitutional rights." He also was heard to say "George Romney may be the best president of the United States."

Kennedy said the man had barged into the office of the governor's personal secretary, Mrs. Little.

FOLLOWED ENGLISH

"I walked over there behind him," Kennedy said, "She went into the governor's office on another matter. I knew she had told him he could not enter without an appointment.

"He followed her across the threshhold into Romney's office. I was right behind him. He said, 'My name is English lish and I want to see you'

"As he said this — we were one step inside the office. I grabbed him by the shoulder and pulled him out.

★ ★ ★

One time he said he was an FBI agent. I asked him for some more to identify himself and he wouldn't. At that point, I put him under arrest."

The gun was fully loaded with six bullets. It had a five-inch barrel.

Kennedy said he ran a check on the man's business card and description while the man still was in the office and found out from state police headquarters that there was a possibilty English was in reality a man named "Potts" who has carried an alias of "Charles P. English" and had a police record including carrying concealed weapons and violation of probation.

Reds Parade Armed Might

Issue Usual Warnings in May Day Festival

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev said today continued U.S. violations of Cuban air space "can have disastrous consequences."

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union rolled out a new anti-aircraft rocket in its annual May Day parade of armed might and thousands of marching workers through Red Square today.

The huge display was coupled

with the usual warning that the Soviet Union stands ready to smash any attacking "imperialist" country.

Marshal Dodion Y. Malinovsky, Soviet defense minister, voiced the warning from atop Lenin's tomb, flanked by Premier Khrushchev, visiting President Ahmed Ben Bella of Algeria and an array of government officials.

"The Communist party of the Soviet Union is doing everything to save the world from the threat of thermonuclear war," Malinovsky said. "If, contrary to common sense, the imperialist aggressors dare to unleash war against the Soviet Union and the fraternal socialist countries, they will inevitably suffer complete defeat."

A Rep-Tale of Woe: Snake in Dashboard

By DICK SAUNDERS

St. Patrick and Kelly McClanahan have something in common—a snake problem.

Both did a pretty good job of routing the reptilian rascals, although the patron saint of Ireland had a little more ground to cover.

McClanahan had a snake in his dashboard.

No, it wasn't a bug, it was a s-n-a-k-e— about two feet long — commonly called a Blue Racer.

How did it get there

It crawled out of a diaper.

So, what's so hard about getting a two-foot snake out of the dashboard of an Oldsmobile

★ ★ ★

Here's a brief rundown on who COULDN'T do the job: the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, the Pontiac Fire Department, several auto repairmen, and numerous friends and relatives.

DO IT HIMSELF

McClanahan, 21, of 169 Ogemaw had to roll up his sleeves and do it himself.

The job was completed yesterday afternoon in Mac's Parking Lot, next to the Roosevelt Hotel.

It's not often you get the chance, while ambling along a downtown street, to see a man emerge from his car, grinning from ear to ear, with a two-foot snake in one hand.

★ ★ ★

There weren't many witnesses yesterday. It was raining, fortunately.

ON ROAD

McClanahan's problem began Tuesday afternoon on the I-75 freeway between Flint and Pontiac (he's a premed student at Flint Junior College).

"I thought I had a flat tire so I stopped and got out to look," he said. "The tire was okay, but I noticed this Blue Racer alongside the highway.

"I remembered something about getting into that Serpentarium (Snakes Alive, 10070 Dixie Highway, Springfield Township) free if you brought a snake with you, so I grabbed him (the snake).

"I wrapped him up in a diaper in the back seat," he explained, "and drove on."

ESCAPE

The snake got out of the diaper.

"All of a sudden he shot up my leg and under the dashboard," McClanahan continued.

"I tried the rest of the day to get him out, but he was stretched out on a ledge way up under the dash and he wouldn't budge."

Baby Girl Born to Margaret

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret gave birth today to a girl.

★ ★ ★

"It's marvelous news," said Lord Snowdon, the baby's father.

"She looks a super baby."

Queen Elizabeth's sister and Snowdon also have a son, Viscount Lindley, born in November, 1961.

★ ★ ★

Snowdon said both mother and child were doing well.

4TH ROYAL BIRTH

The baby was the fourth royal birth this year. Earlier, Princess Alexandra, the queen's cousin, had a boy on Feb. 29. The queen had a boy March 10, and the Duchess of Kent, commoner wife of Alexandra's brother, had a girl Tuesday night.

Margaret's baby takes seventh place in the line of succession to the throne, displacing the Duke of Gloucester, an uncle of the 33-year-old princess.

The birth was announced in an official bulletin from Kensington Palace, where Margaret and Snowdon live.

College Cuts Restored to State Budget

House Goes Along With Committee on Other Reductions

LANSING (AP)—A $7.1 million cut in proposed operating funds for state colleges and universities was restored yesterday to Gov. Romney's 1964-65 budget.

★ ★ ★

But the House, in moving a series of appropriations bills into position for passage, went along with Ways and Means Committee recommendations for other reductions.

Members approved the committee's action in slicing a total of $2 million from the capital outlay program which had been marked chiefly for expansion of mental health facilities.

The House also concurred in a reduction from $500,000 to $400,000, the total to be doled out next year for a new state scholarship program, and from $500,000 to $300,000 the amount for guaranteeing student loans.

★ ★ ★

The decision to restore the operating funds, which amounted to a 5 per cent across-the-board cut, was made by House Republicans in caucus.

PARTIALLY REPLACED

House Speaker Allison Green R-Kingston, had predicted earlier that the money would be at least partially replaced before the bill passed the House.

"If you couldn't get a caucus position to support the committee's action, there was no point in trying to insist on it," the Speaker said afterward.

Some GOP lawmakers said they thought the cut by the committee shouldn't have been taken seriously in the first place "because it was never intended to stand."

Exec Cites Economic Potential

County Told to Plan Growth

Oakland County lies at the very nucleus of expected economic growth in the nation and must measure up to today's challenge if it is to profit by tomorrow's events.

This was the message delivered by Detroit Edison Co. Vice President and Controller Eldred H. Scott yesterday to some 200 persons attending an Economic Growth Conference at Oakland University.

The challenge, he said, is to plan adequately now for the developments ahead.

Scott referred to a gross national product rise from a current $600 billion to $900 billion by 1970 if "we pursue a national policy of restraint and wisdom in fiscal, monetary and pricing matters."

★ ★ ★

Such a rapid rate of growth, he added, can be achieved "through inovation and enterprise, through an outpouring of goods and service from a productive economy, geared to satisfy the needs and desires of an expanding and vigorous population.

"We expect that Michigan, and Southeastern Michigan and Oakland County in particular, will share proportionately in this growth.

"Our area possesses many natural advantages which portend growth. These include seaway shipping lanes to the outside world, mineral and forest resources, human resources and skills that are constantly being developed."

Scott described the still largely untapped supply of fresh water available to industry and a strategic position to major markets as the most important factors for future economic growth of the area.

★ ★ ★

He referred to an earlier prediction by world famous area planner Constantinous Doxiadis of Athens, Greece, that the metropolitan region of Detroit will be the heart of a super-metropolis such as the link developed between Boston, New York, Phildelphia, and Washington, D.C.

Taking a short-term look at the economic period immediately ahead, Scott warned of a possible slump on the heels of an unusually long period of soaring prosperity.

"In my judgment, the business cycle has not been eliminated," he said, outlining the following possible indicators of trouble ahead:

- Automobile inventories are at the highest level in history.
- Wage negotiations in the

Pontiac Sets Monthly Peak

77,273 Auto Units Surpass Old Record

Pontiac Motor Division built more cars in April than in any month in its history, E. M. Estes, a General Motors Corp. vice president and division general manager announced today.

There were 77,273 Pontiacs and Tempests assembled last month, surpassing the previous monthly record of 72,352 set in March, Estes said.

It was only one year ago that Estes happily announced the division had surpassed the 60,000 mark in one month for the first time in its history.

Last April's production total was 60,269 cars.

★ ★ ★

Estes also pointed out today that the 500,000th unit of the model year was produced by the division three days ago.

EARLIEST DATE

That is the earliest date ever for this production mark, he announced.

In the 1963 model year, the half-millionth Pontiac rolled off the assembly line on June 17.

Plan Last Try on Districting

Legislators Facing Extended Session

LANSING (AP) — A weary, worrying and quarrelsome legislature—already facing the prospect of an extended session—prepared today for one final effort toward agreement on plans for redistricting itself.

Legislative leaders said it was virtually certain that the session, slated to end at midnight tomorrow, would spill over into next week.

Both parties were stymied in the House by internal dissension, but House Democrats hoped today for a breakthrough that might enable them to agree with Republicans on a bipartisan plan.

It appeared the issue would not come to a head, however, before tomorrow when a "vehicle" bill for House and Senate districts would be in position for passage.

★ ★ ★

In the meantime, House Democrats faced the task of agreeing among themselves on how to carve up Wayne County's 37 alloted districts to the satisfaction of a majority of their members.

TALL ORDER

This appeared a tall order for the party whose angry caucus on Wednesday was dissolved without a position being taken on anything, and which couldn't even agree to hold another meeting yesterday.

Republicans virtually abandoned their efforts toward redistricting yesterday because of internal differences in a caucus discussion, but were waiting today to see what Democrats might do.

Rep. Henry Hogan, R-Bloomfield Hills, chairman of the House Apportionment Committee, described the situation as "Republicans fighting Republicans, Democrats fighting Democrats and the governor fighting the lieutenant governor."

Light Showers Are Forecast for Next 5 Days

A few light showers may be expected to sprinkle the Pontiac area throughout the next five days.

The weatherman said precipitation for the period will total about one half inch in scattered showers.

Temperatures will average 2 to 4 degrees above the normal high of 64 and normal low of 45. A slow warming trend is forecast through Wednesday.

Winds southeasterly at 8 miles per hour will increase to 10 to 20 m.p.h.

★ ★ ★

The low recording prior to 8 a.m. today was 48. By 1 p.m. the mercury had climbed to 66.

Leaders Gathered At Oakland University To Plan For Economic Growth

World Communism Celebrates Annual May Day Rite Today

By The Associated Press

The Communist world held its annual May Day rites today with massive outpourings of people in Moscow and Peking and the usual tough talk about the invincibility of communism.

But the great schism between the Soviet Union and Red China cast its shadow over the gala celebrations. The Soviets refused to attend the Peking rally and withdrew an invitation to a Chinese labor delegation to view the annual parade in Moscow's Red Square.

East Germany, Bulgaria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia joined the Soviets in their boycott of the Peking festivities.

★ ★ ★

Many non-Communist countries also held May Day celebrations to honor their labor force. But there were few such activities in the United States, where labor's big holiday occurs in September.

The Soviet Union unveiled a new antiaircraft twin rocket during a parade through Red Square in which tens of thousands of soldiers and workers marched. Western observers said the 20-foot rocket appeared to be for field use against planes at medium or low altitudes.

Red China's Premier Chou En-lai told a reception for 1,300 foreign visitors on the eve of the big rally in Peking's main square that his country would win its quarrel with the Soviet Union and other Communist critics.

Boasting of China's new strength, Chou also lashed out against the United States.

"A new upsurge has appeared in the struggle of the people of the whole world against the U.S. imperialist policies of aggression and war," he said.

Chou urged the peoples of Asia and Latin America to rally together and said: "The united front against U.S. imperialism is steadily expanding and we shall unite ever more closely and continue for the victory of our common cause."

The giant square was decorated with huge portraits of Mao Tze-tung, Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin.

Communist Chinese gunners halted their on-off artillery bombardment of the offshore Nationalist Chinese islands.

The East German Communists marked May Day with a massive military parade in East Berlin.

About 300,000 West Berliners attended a trade union rally on their side of the wall. They heard speeches by Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt.

The theme of the Western rally was freedom, peace and German unity. The only marchers were unarmed trade unionists who converged on the square in five long columns.

★ ★ ★

Absent this year from the East German celebration were the threats against West Berlin that have been a feature of past May Days. Speaking before the parade, Alfred Neumann, a member of the politburo, said his regime would do all possible to reduce tension with West Germany.

The Soviet Union's independent Communist ally, Yugoslavia, displayed rockets for the first time in its Belgrade parade before President Tito and other top leaders.

MILITARY PARADE

The 40-minute military parade included antitank and antiaircraft rockets presumably bought from the Soviet Union.

A television announcer said Yugoslav air force supersonic jets of most modern production flashed over the parade. The noise was heard but the planes could not be seen. Western military attaches said they probably were Soviet-built MIG jet fighters.

Some 900 snake-dancing leftist students clashed briefly with police in front of the Japanese Parliament in Tokyo. But they were dispersed with water hoses.

But rainy skies put a damper on Japan's 35th May Day celebrations. Police said 1.4 million persons turned out at 600 rallies throughout the country.

Indonesia's President Sukarno continued his saber-rattling against neighboring Malaysia at a May Day rally in Jakarta attended by more than 15,000 workers. "Onward, never retreat," he exclaimed. "Indications of victory are sighted."

A fleet of vehicles brought a huge turnout of workers into Havana for a celebration at which Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro was to be the main speaker. He was expected to repeat his warnings against continuation of U.S. reconnaissance flights over Cuba, warnings which the U.S. government brushes aside.

SAIGON PATROLS

Government troops patroled Saigon following reports of possible Viet Cong violence in South Viet Nam's capital. The American community was warned to be especially cautious.

By midday, however, there were no terrorist incidents and the countryside was quiet.

The arrival of paratroopers in Saigon set off a rash of coup rumors, but their presence appeared to be directed against the Communists.

A holiday mood prevailed in Mexico as schools and most businesses closed and even newspapers suspended publication. Half a million workers were expected to parade past the presidential palace in Mexico City.

SPAIN PRECAUTIONS

Spain's Franco regime ordered police precautions after the Communists appealed for demonstrations against the government in Madrid, Bilbao, San Sebastian, Zaragoza and Barcelona. A number of persons, including students, were reported detained in Madrid as a precaution.

Special programs were observed with the government's blessing to mark "25 years of peace" under Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

★ ★ ★

Military reserves joined police in neighboring Portugal on guard against worker and student demonstrations in retaliation for the wounding of a student earlier this week by police while allegedly distributing literature attacking the Salazar dictatorship.

A bright sun broke over Paris and thousands of city dwellers left for the countryside. Other thousands left Thursday for a long weekend. Most business places and government offices were closed. The only event scheduled was a union rally in the afternoon.

MOSCOW, U.S.A.

The farming and college community of Moscow, Idaho, planned a May Day parade to take some of the thunder away from the demonstration in the Soviet city of the same name.

Instead of military hardware, the Idaho town of 12,000 lined up such peaceful goods as boats, cars, tractors and combines. E. Russell Short, Chamber of Commerce president, said the idea was to show products that can be bought by any citizen "who is willing to work for them."

Hooray for May Day!

Are you ready to cast your vote for the Queen of the May . . . hang May baskets of fresh flowers secretly on the doors of your friends . . . practice your steps for the annual dance around the Maypole?

★ ★ ★

Just a century ago these were popular activities on the first of May.

They were the last remains of one of the oldest celebrations known to civilized man.

In early Christian times, arrival of May was welcomed by decorating a Maypole and crowning a May king or queen.

These celebrations had their roots in the even dimmer past when sacrifices were made to secure the rebirth of spring and the growth of crops.

★ ★ ★

The ancient Maypoles closely resembled present-day Christmas trees. A pine tree, with the top branches cut off, was the popular choice.

The huge tree was drawn in wagons pulled by 20 to 40 oxen with garlands of flowers on their horns.

Villagers decorated the tree with fresh violets and purple bands of ribbon and erected it on the village green at sunrise. Often the Maypole would be 60 feet tall.

It's Wrong to Take 2nd Invitation

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: Recently a friend invited me to spend the weekend at her house. I declined her invitation as I don't care to stay in her house.

Several days later, another friend called and invited me to come and spend that same weekend with her.

As I feel at home in her house and always enjoy staying with her, I told her I would be delighted to come.

The first friend heard about this and is very hurt. It seems to me one should be able to accept, or decline, any invitation she chooses and I don't see that she has any reason to feel hurt.

May I please have your opinion?

★ ★ ★

A: Unless the reason you gave for declining the first invitation was one that could be subject to subsequent change (such for example as expecting visitors who later could have notified you that they were unable to come thus leaving you free to accept another invitation), I'm sorry to say you were very discourteous to refuse her invitation and then accept another for the same weekend.

Q: When serving dishes are passed around the table from one to another for guests to help themselves, does the gentleman offer the dish to the lady sitting beyond him before helping himself, or does he help himself first and then pass the dish to her? Which way is more polite?

★ ★ ★

A: Unless it would be awkward for him to do so or it would interfere with the passing of other serving dishes, it would be more polite for him to hold the dish while she helps herself and then help himself before passing it on.

Q: I would like to know if the flap on the inside envelope of a wedding invitation is tucked inside or left loose when inserting it into the mailing envelope?

Equal Pay Law to Effect Working Women's World

NEW YORK (UPI) — Come June 11, a federal law goes into effect which will affect a number of the 25 million women who hold jobs outside the home.

It's the equal pay for equal work law, compelling employers to boost lower wages to equal higher ones where sex-based differential exist between men and women doing equal work.

★ ★ ★

What will the law mean to the feminine workers covered by it? Raises in some cases. Promotion opportunities in some instances. But at the same time, it may mean a lessening of job opportunities for women.

These are some of the expected results of the new law as found in a survey of 335 employers in all sections of the United States, Prentice-Hall did the survey.

CHANGES COMING

Many women's jobs and wages are in for a complete re-evaluation and revamping, the researchers found.

Companies' estimates of the number of jobs needing review ran anywhere from one to 20 per cent.

In some cases, companies expected as many as half of these jobs will need to be "restructured" in some way to erase existing inequities.

TO HIKE PAY

Most companies said they would be hiking women's pay rates—or they'd transfer male employees to other jobs and in the future segregate male and female job classifications. No company reported plans to lower the classification pay structure.

An east coast printing firm, for instance, said it originally had a five cent (an hour) differential in starting rates with the men earning more. But the firm now has made the starting wage the same in each job classification, upgrading the female pay rate to match the man's.

★ ★ ★

The researchers asked about possible bias in job re-evaluation, especially since some companies traditionally give the men the so-called heavy work.

One public utility executive, for instance, said that women "are assigned as cashiers, clerks, stenographers, receptionists, key punch operators, accounting clerks and home economists. We don't let them near the electricity."

But a hospital personnel executive had different ideas: women aren't the weaker sex at all.

LADY PLUMBERS?

"We set our salaries based on job duties," he said. "We'd be perfectly willing to hire a female plumber, engineer or carpenter if one applied and was qualified. In patient care, a qualified nurse or aide need not call a man to help her with even the heaviest patients. We don't differentiate on the sex basis."

★ ★ ★

Does job turnover explain the lower average salaries for women? A number of companies said high turnovers and resulting high training costs made women bad bets as career employees; therefore, they were "worth less" than men, even though they were performing their present jobs adequately.

Said the Prentice-Hall report, "While this type of long-range thinking often influences a company's training and promotional planning, it won't conform with the equal pay law if women's pay is down-graded for this reason alone.

The survey found that in some cases the new law will lessen or limit job opportunities for women. Employers will segregate existing classifications wherever possible.

As one Virginia manufacturer said, "We're a new plant and have been expanding rapidly. We had planned to employ women in some of our light manufacturing jobs, but we decided against it because of anticipated complications arising from the equal pay law."

Many employers, however, indicated a willingness to consider women for the high level jobs. As one insurance executive wrote, ". . . We feel a job function, when properly evaluated, is worth so many dollars and cents to our organization. It can make little difference to us whether the employe is male or female."

★ ★ ★

As for advancement in an organization, the long range effect may be an easing of promotional channels for qualified women, the survey found. It said government departments are leading the way in moving upward the deserving feminine worker.

Donation Culminates Two Years of Effort

When the Junior League of Birmingham voted this week to grant $24,000 to New Horizons of Oakland County, Inc., it was the culmination of two year's study and planning.

New Horizons, to be opened in the fall, will provide a sheltered workshop and vocational training center for mentally retarded young adults. The League's grant is to be used for a director's salary over a three-year period.

★ ★ ★

Two years ago the League began a study in the field of mental retardation.

It was conducted by the health and welfare committee, chaired by Mrs. Henry E. McDonell Jr. in 1963 and Mrs. Arthur C. Henrie Jr. this year. They found that, while many services are available to mentally retarded children in the county, there was no specific place one could go to find information.

RESOURCE FILE

The committee assembled such information into a resource file. This will be available at the office of the Metropolitan Advisory Committee for Retarded Children in Detroit, a United Foundation agency.

★ ★ ★

The committee further found that after attending the special education classes in schools, older mentally retarded youngsters had nothing to do.

Working with Stanford Wallace of the Oakland County Council for Retarded Children, they concluded that a sheltered workshop would answer this unmet need.

FIRST IN STATE

New Horizons will be the first large-scale professional sheltered workshop in Michigan. It will pay hourly wages to approximately 100 young people and adults who will work there.

★ ★ ★

The purpose of the workshop is actually two-fold: to provide that all-important sense of "going to work" that all adults require; and education of the general public to the reality that the retarded can be useful.

The workshop director will evaluate the capabilities of the employees and assign them to appropriate training, leading either to jobs in industry and business in the community, or enabling them to work within the protected environment of the workshop.

★ ★ ★

Piecework will be solicited by the workshop and any work that results will be mainly awarded on the basis of competitive bidding.

GOOD PROGNOSIS

It is estimated that 80 per cent of the 21,000 retarded people in Oakland County can be helped. There are 1,800 children in special education classes now.

★ ★ ★

The workshop will never be self-sustaining, says Mrs. Sidney W. Smith Jr., outgoing president of the League. It will always need not only money from the community, but informed community volunteer help.

She stresses the fact that the use of volunteers will be virtually unlimited. There will be need of volunteers of all ages to perform secretarial duties; to transport material and workers; to contact local business and industry; and to develop and coordinate community interest.

In 1954, Oakland County was the first county in the state to start special education classes and the first to tax itself to sustain these classes.

Wallace points out that the cost to the community of supporting such a workshop is about one-third the cost of custodial care by the state.

RAISES HOPE

"The curtain of hope raised through the special education classes can remain raised through the workshop. We are giving 100 young adults the change of a life," says Wallace.

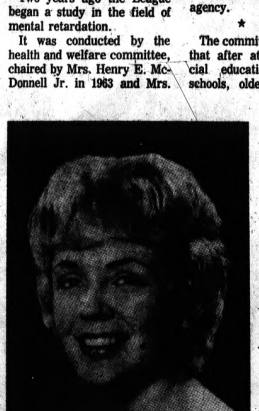

★ ★ ★

Junior League members to serve on the board of trustees for New Horizons of Oakland County, Inc. are Mrs. Herbert Fisher who will also serve on the Junior League board of directors representing the workshop.

Others are Mrs. Morgan D. Douglas Jr., Mrs. McDonnell, Mrs. Frank T. Murray and Mrs. Smith.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Phoebe Otter Matthews newly elected president of the Birmingham Junior League, hopes that any individual or group interested in this new program will contact the League office in Birmingham. New Horizons needs all the help and support it can get.

August vows are planned by Karen Ann Erickson, daughter of Mrs. Carl G. Erickson of Osceola Drive and the late Mr. Erickson, and Lawrence C. Klukowski, son of the Alphonsus Klukowskis of Grand Rapids. She is a graduate of Ferris State College.

GOP Blasts Cuba Policy

'Tell Willingness to Use Force on Castro'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Republican council has recommended that the Johnson administration tell the world it is prepared "as a last resort to use military force to remove international communism from Cuba."

Democrats immediately fired back, describing the stinging GOP criticism of the administration's Cuban policy as "a crude political document."

★ ★ ★

And the Democrats remembered to remind their opponents that Fidel Castro took over as prime minister of Cuba while a Republican, Dwight D. Eisenhower, was president.

The fuss was stirred up Thursday when the Republican Critical Issues Council peppered the Democratic leadership with a series of demands for action against Castro.

IMMEDIATE END

The 24-member council of prominent Republicans, headed by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, younger brother of the former president, urged an immediate end to U.S. curbs on anti-Castro fund-raisers and establishment in Latin America of a Cuban government in exile. It said the latter would rally 300,000 Cuban refugees "to work openly for the liberation of Cuba."

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who has called on the administration to reappraise its Cuban policy, said that if the Republican statement meant anything "it means we should go to war to oust Castro."

★ ★ ★

"I do not approve of going to war to oust Castro and I do not believe most Americans do," the Arkansas Democrat told a reporter. "They have too much common sense to believe that the small island of Cuba is a directly dangerous threat to the United States.

"It is a rather crude and obviously political document. I think the American people are too mature to take it seriously. Americans will remember that Castro came into power during the administration of Dwight D. Eisenhower, brother of the chairman of the council."

★ ★ ★

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said the document "is highly emotional, partisan and it borders on irresponsibility."

GMTC Exec Retires After Twenty Years

William B. Simpson retired today as director of salaried personnel at GMC Truck and Coach Div. after serving the organization for 20 years.

He is succeeded by J. R. (Dick) Miller who has been general supervisor of personnel development.

A native of Scotland, Simpson joined GMC Truck and Coach in September 1944 in salaried employe relations. He later became supervisor of salaried personnel and was named director of salaried personnel in July 1954.

MILLER SIMPSON

Miller joined the company in November 1940 as a clerk in the hourly employment department. He entered the Air Force in 1942 and served as a combat fighter pilot.

Miller returned to the company in 1946 and rose rapidly in the personnel department. He served in various supervisory positions until his latest promotion.
