Slippery Roads Cause of Five Accidents Here

Crews Busy With Salt and Sand to Keep Main Arteries Open

Auto accidents were held to a minimum after almost an inch of snow and rain made Oakland County highways slippery hazards for motorists.

Local law enforcement agencies, who said drivers slowed to a creep during the day, reported only five accidents that could be blamed on conditions.

Spokesmen said side roads will remain slippery if the snow continues.

Pontiac Dept. of Public Works officials said most main city streets are being sanded but conditions are still hazardous. The situation can be handled easily if not more than another inch of snow falls, they said.

A spot check of AAA towing services turned up only a few stalled and stuck motorists.

State Highway Department spokesmen said most state trunk lines are slippery and warned drivers that the condition will prevail if the snowfall continues.

The snow, which started about 1 a.m. today, is expected to continue until tonight, diminishing into flurries.

Following a 38 degree high this afternoon, the mercury is expected to dip to between 26 and 30 degrees tonight, according to the United States Weather Bureau.

Forecasters predict continued snow flurries Sunday with accompanying temperatures between 32 and 36 degrees.

Yesterday, the mercury rose from an 8 a.m. 30-degree low to a high of 38. Snow, turning to rain fell in the afternoon.

Today in downtown Pontiac the mercury stood at 30 degrees at 8 a.m., climbing to 32 by 2 p.m.

Spokesmen said side roads will remain slippery if the snow continues.

Pontiac Unit Hopes to Raise $6,000 in Drive This Year

Buy your Pontiac Press today from your favorite newsboys.

"A happy holiday for needy families on Christmas!"

That's the goal in today's Goodfellow newspaper drive in Pontiac, White Lake Township and Oxford.

Pontiac Police Sgt. Walter Baerwolf, chairman of the year's drive here, said 65 Old Newsboys are on the streets today, selling the Press in an effort to raise $6,000 to aid needy families on Christmas.

The annual Goodfellow sales got underway at 1 p.m. today when members of the Pontiac Metropolitan Club, Spirit Six, and White Lake Township's Spirit 74, began soliciting donations in downtown buildings, schools, and on strategic corners.

The drive for funds to aid needy families started with a $100 donation in advance from the Pontiac Press and $20 from Barnett's Clothes Shop, said Baerwolf. An additional two dollars were donated anonymously.

Consisting of local mail carriers, fire and policemen, the Metropolitan Club's present drive dates back to 1919 when the Old Newsboys promised:

"No child without a Christmas."

"We have never failed yet in our paper sales. Our goal has been reached every year so far," said Baerwolf.

The proceeds from the paper sale will furnish the needy with food baskets, fuel, clothing, and other necessities.

The accident occurred just north of this town, about 14 miles northwest of Toronto and about seven miles west of Malton Airport. The pilot had circled the airport several times trying to land.

One of the passengers, Len Campbell, 17, of Burnt River, Ont., said the crash came without warning.

Hammarskjold Seeks Aid of Eden, Nehru for Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (INS)—U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold reportedly will seek personal pledges of support from Sir Anthony Eden and Jawaharlal Nehru for his showdown talks with Communist China on the release of 11 imprisoned American airmen.

Hammarskjold held a final conference with top U.N. aides before flying off to Stockholm last night. A key U.N. diplomat disclosed that the decision was reached for staging the "mission to Peiping" by way of London and New Delhi.

The secretary general is planning to return to his New York headquarters Wednesday morning and start his 12,000-mile journey to meet with Peiping Premier Chou En-lai. He hopes to be in the Chinese capital by Dec. 29.

Hammarskjold summoned before departure British Minister of State Anthony Nutting, who leaves for home today after the assembly's windup, and asked him to make an appointment with Britain's Foreign Secretary Eden on or around Christmas Day.

The U.N. chief also arranged through India's U.N. Delegate Arthur S. Lall a conference in New Delhi with Prime Minister Nehru.

He hopes to seek the advice and gain the full moral support of the two powerful commonwealth leaders in carrying out what is regarded as one of the most difficult and politically hazardous tasks ever given to a U.N. secretary general.

A select group of U.N. aides and advisers are carefully being picked to accompany Hammarskjold on his Peiping trip, none of them of American nationality.

Firing of MSC Physician Spotlights Saucer Fans

CHICAGO (UP)—Dr. Charles Laughead's prophecies of earthquakes, floods and the end of the known world have brought to light a strange cult of fellow believers.

The 44-year-old doctor, ousted from a Michigan State College post because of his dire predictions, is apparently not alone in believing that space creatures in flying saucers are watching us all the time.

He is currently a guest at the home of the high priestess of the cult, a frail suburban housewife, as he searches for a new job.

His hostess, 53-year-old grandmother Mrs. Dorothy Martin, says she receives extra-sensory messages from the creatures in outer space.

She said they have told her that Chicago can expect a tidal wave next Tuesday, along with "cataclysmic" events elsewhere in the country. Even worse disasters, including a worldwide flood, are likely for 1955, she said.

A University of Iowa student, Darold Powers, 19, revealed that he and others meet every month to discuss Mrs. Martin's messages from the creatures she calls "connoisseurs."

Foreman Says Intruder Tried to Enter Room

Deliberations Continue on Doctor's Fate After Visitor Flees

CLEVELAND (INS)—A mystery woman tried today to invade the room where a jury is deadlocked for the second day of deliberation on the fate of Dr. Sam Sheppard.

The buzzer signal from the locked room at first was believed to be a notification that the jury of seven men and five women had decided the life or death question for the accused wife killer.

Bailiff Edward Francis rushed one flight up to the jury door to bring down the notification to the judge.

Instead, he was met by the foreman, who told him a young lady had attempted to get into the chamber.

The woman fled from the unguarded door after the foreman ordered her to leave, Francis said.

The bailiff said "no harm was done" by the incident. The court appointed "guardian" of the jury said: "The woman didn't hear anything or get in. The foreman warned her to get away or he would have her arrested. He then rang the buzzer for us."

Police could find no trace of her by the time they arrived. The incident occurred at 10:09 a.m., one hour and five minutes after the jury resumed its effort to reach a verdict today.

The panel has had the case since 10:13 a.m. yesterday when Judge Edward Blythin told them they must return a verdict of innocent unless they were convinced "beyond a reasonable doubt" of Dr. Sam's guilt.

Their pondering could mean freedom, life imprisonment or death in the electric chair for the baby-faced defendant.

The group renewed their effort to blend their 12 ideas into one unanimous decision at 9:05 a.m. this morning.

The seven men and five women appeared fresh and in good spirits in contrast to the manner in which (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6) elsewhere in the country, Powers said.

Laughead meanwhile stuck to his predictions and found time to attend a meeting of 100 Chicago flying saucer enthusiasts.

"Some sound tapes were run off," he said. "Nobody understood them, but it was obvious that an organized attempt at communication with the earth had been captured on the tape."

Despite Laughead's warnings, most Chicagoans were inclined to regard next Tuesday as just the fourth shopping day before Christmas.

Asked what he would do if he really thought a tidal wave was coming, Joseph Stiezhoff said he wouldn't be too worried.

"I'm not burdened with sin, anyway," he said. "Being married, you can't do much."

Caterers sent in mounds of food and beverages. Reporters, passing the long day and night waiting for the word they would flash to newspapers, radio and television stations around the globe, ate and drank.

The jurors on whose shoulders the heavy burden rests, were not in the "holiday mood" when they returned to the courtroom before being locked up for the night.

Chapter 12 — "Suspect"

Mrs. Gelstrap Found Drunk, Kit Carlson Is Drugged

THE STORY: Private Detective Jim Dunn and his bride Nancy are posing as caretakers for their client, Mrs. Kit Carlson, who needs a detective to clear her of suspicion of murder. They are living at the Butler part of the Carlson estate, in Colorado. When he goes to make a fire in the morning, Jim notes the coupe of his secretary, Miss Wister, whom he supposed to be in Denver, outside the cabin and in the basement on an elevator used to haul wood to the upstairs fireplace is a dead woman's body. The dead woman is Mrs. Angelica Jones, sister-in-law of his client.

Remembering the vulnerable kitchen door, Jim ran around the main house, climbed up the steep bank to the back path. The door swung open. It was unlocked.

Mrs. Gelstrap sat at the kitchen table, her head resting on one fat arm stretched out on the porcelain surface. Jim touched her cheek gingerly, found it warm.

He could hear her heavy wheezy breathing and noticed now the reek of liquor which filled the room. An empty bottle lay on its side on the floor and shards of a glass were scattered.

Jim shook the cook's fat shoulder. "Snap out of it! Come on. Wake up."

light wood ashes out into the room. The hearth and the near-by floor were covered evenly. Even the lid of the woodbox-window seat was smoothly covered with the fine ash. Nowhere was there evidence of any disturbance.

Jim found two unused bedrooms and Kit Carlson in the third. On the night table was a small round bottle with a plastic top. Inside were many small, brightly colored capsules.

Jim muttered under his breath, "One drunk and the other drugged." He pushed at her covered shoulder.

"I'll go make some coffee." Dunn interrupted. "And you'd better get dressed. There's been an accident."

"Sue? It isn't Sue?" Apparently Jim's expression was blank enough to penetrate, and she went on. "Not Mrs. Gelstrap?"

"No. Nothing's happened to her." Jim said. "But you'd better get dressed." He left the bedroom. He picked up the phone. He listened. He jiggled the base, listened again with no reward but a faint humming. Quickly Jim slammed down the phone, went to the kitchen. He found a percolator, filled its top part liberally with coffee and lit the gas flame in the range.

the cupboard and managed to avoid the pieces of glass on the way. She took a new bottle from a well-filled shelf, opened it expertly and had a three-gurgle drink from its neck.

She said, "Ahhh, now maybe you'd better tell me what you're doing here?"

"Where's Miss Wister?" Jim demanded.

"Miss Wister? What are you talking about? I don't like riddles this time of day. I don't know any Miss Wister, I'm sure." There was a malicious sparkle in her eyes.

"There's a dead woman in the basement," Jim said bluntly.

Mrs. Gelstrap had been in the process of reaching again for the bottle she had set on the table. The tiny hand at the end of the fat arm stopped with fingers still in a grasping curl. "Dead—not Kit! Tell me it isn't Kit?" There was no doubting the sincerity of the wall.

"No," Jim said. "Not your employer."

Mrs. Gelstrap drew a long, shuddering breath which pulled her thick lips into her open mouth. She darted a sideways, cunning look at Jim, took a quick drink. "Not Mrs. Kit. But—where is she?"

"She's asleep," Dunn said. "Drugged," he said.

4 Die on Glazed State Highways

Drivers Warned Storm Will Continue Over Weekend

By UNITED PRESS
Michigan motorists, who seldom get through a weekend without counting a dozen or so of their fellow drivers dead, were warned today to prepare for a snowy pre-Christmas weekend.

Flurries and a cold rain teamed up to produce slippery driving conditions yesterday south of a line from Bay City to Ludington.

Michigan rolled up a traffic death toll of four during the early hours of the weekend.

Among the dead was Hugo C. Croll, 50, of Au Gres in Arenac County. He was killed near Saginaw last night when his car skidded into a truck on M15.

The death of Theodore Swiercan, 32, Flint, was believed to be a hit-run case. Two motorists found him lying on a street and he was dead on arrival at Flint's Hurley Hospital.

The first reported traffic fatality of the weekend was Miss Genevieve Kells, 60. She died last night after she was struck by a truck while crossing a street in Grosse Pointe Park.

Mrs. Mary Shippey, 32, Birmingham, was killed and four other persons injured shortly before midnight in a two-car collision in Detroit.

A neighbor helped the woman from the sidewalk and called police.

The thief was described as between 20 and 30 years old.

Jaycees Take 25 Needy Kids Yule Shopping

Minus the red suits, 25 Pontiac Junior Chamber of Commerce members last night played Santa Claus for 25 underprivileged children from needy Pontiac-area families.

The children were picked up at their homes by the Jaycees, given $4 to spend any way they wanted and taken on a tour of downtown stores.

Later, laden with presents for themselves, parents and brothers and sisters, the youngsters were returned to their homes by their Jaycee escorts.

This was the second year the Jaycees have played Santa to children who otherwise would have little yuletide cheer. Co-chairmen for the activity were Les Langford and William Lampman.

Clicking Package Hard on Nerves of Postal Clerks

PETERSBURG, Va. (U)—Postal workers at the Petersburg Railway Station got nervous when they heard a noise inside a mail pouch. It went click, click, click. The pouch was hurried to the post office last night. There, a small package, wrapped in brown paper and string, was removed gingerly. It went click, click, click. Inspector W. H. Weaver figured it was a bomb. He ordered the package to be taken outside. Weaver called police.

Police Capt. George Slate came on the double. He cocked his ear over the package. It went click, click, click.

Slate carefully took the wrappings off. Inside was a toy train engine, driven by a battery. Crossed wires had started the wheels turning. Slate uncrossed the wires. The engine didn't go click, click, click any more.

Rewrapped, it's now on its way to a youngster in Topeka, Kan.—silently.

It requires one horsepower to raise 550 pounds one foot in one second.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

Scrooge and the Ghost of Christmas Yet to Come overhauled a group of businessmen. "I thought he'd never die," said one. "What has he done with his money?" asked another. "He hasn't left it to me!" laughed a third.

The Spirit took Scrooge to a vile part of the city, and showed him, in a wretched hotel, a group of haggard men, haggard over the personal effects of the dead man.

Then they saw the dead man, unattended by friends or mourners. Scrooge was moved. "The case of this unhappy man might be my own," he wept.

Florida Man Convicted in Scheme for Slaying Wealthy Widow

BARTOW, Fla. (U)—J. Willard Durden, 36-year-old Orlando contractor, was convicted last night of conspiring to kill a wealthy widow in a bizarre murder-for-money scheme.

Criminal Court Judge Roy H. Amidon immediately sentenced him to a year in prison and a $500 fine, plus payment of trial costs—the maximum penalty under Florida law.

A six-man jury found Durden guilty of conspiring with the late Emmett Donnelly, a Lake Wales lawyer, to kill Mrs. Byrd T. Roach of Lake Wales.

The two men also were charged with conspiracy to kill two other persons—K. H. Gerlach of Lake Wales and Mrs. Louise Clark Hawley Sandberg of Orlando. Donnelly committed suicide shortly after he was charged in the cases in June.

Durden still faces trial in the cases involving Gerlach and Mrs. Sandberg.

Donnelly was executor for the $230,000 estate of Mrs. Roach's husband.

Mrs. Roach got one-third and the remainder went into a charity trust fund to be handled by Donnelly. Prosecution witnesses said Donnelly had diverted these funds to his own use.

Don't Sip Wine --- Bite It, and Always Finish Bottle

NEW YORK (U)—If you plan to serve wine at your Christmas dinner, show your guests you're a real connoisseur.

Don't merely sip the wine. Bite into it.

"Bite wine?" you ask doubtfully. Certainly you have to bite wine to get its full flavor. Anyone who doesn't is almost as big an ignoramus as a guy who tries to drink a sirloin steak through a straw.

Truthfully, I'm not an old hand at wine biting myself. Never even heard of it until I ran into Baron Johannes Fredericus Leonardus Von Munching, a wine importer here who threw away his title to become Leo Van Munching, American citizen.

With the ex-baron wine isn't merely a drink. It's a lifelong courtship. He has sampled more than 1,000 brands.

But Van Munching is saddened by the fact that wine drinking in America often is associated by the public with an atmosphere of snobbery.

"Your real connoisseur is never a snob," he insisted. "Only the showoffs who pretend to be connoisseurs are snobs, those who pretend to know more about wine than they really do."

"But Americans learn easily, and there is no reason why they shouldn't find it simple to acquire an adequate knowledge of wines. It merely takes a little practice and the learning of a few simple rules. One isn't born with a feel for wines. It is acquired."

To savor a wine properly you have to slurp it—quietly, of course, unless everybody at the table is an old buddy—as well as bite it.

Here's how, according to Van Munching:

"To start with, you pour out only half a glass. Then you roll it around and around, gently, sniffing the aroma."

Okay, you are now nose-happy. On to the next step:

"Take a sip. Let it run through your teeth and around your tongue, so that it touches all your palate."

(Editor's Note: Just a moment. Is this slurping?)

(Boyle's Note: Boy, you sure caught on fast.)

Now your plate is dazed with the wonder of it all. The lesson continues:

"Then you bite into it, and—" said Van Munching. "You just bite once?" I broke in. "Don't you munch on it for a while?"

"Please, I am speaking of wine—not graham crackers," said Van Munching. "You bite the wine once, and let it roll down your throat slowly . . . very slowly."

Now you know the wine and the wine knows you, and you are en-

Romeo Farmers Ask Milk Probe

Letter to Ike Demands Investigation of Detroit 'Price Fixing'

ROMEO (UP) — A resolution charging price fixing, bribery and market manipulation was en route to President Eisenhower today from an irate group of dairy farmers in this area.

The farmers, who supply the Detroit area with milk, demanded that the president authorize a grand jury investigation of the Detroit milk market.

More than 400 farmers attended a meeting Thursday night at which the resolution was drafted. The meeting was called to consider discrepancies between the price paid farmers for their milk and their production costs.

Harold Fitz, President of the Romeo local of the Michigan Milk Producers Association, said the farmer gets between 6 and 8 cents a quart for his milk and his production costs are higher than that. He said the milk sells for up to 22 cents a quart.

OUR BACK YARD
That portion of our premises strangers seldom see is us. It is there we are ourselves, sit, work or play, in clothes that are comfortable, there, but would be disreputable anywhere else.
I like to think of Big Cities as the formal garden of our United States and a little town like ours as being the Back Yard. Our home is comfortable, close to the ground—not a pent house twenty stories high. No liveried doorman nor elevator to whisk us to the umpteenth floor. Our surroundings are earthy; trees, flowers, lawn—we live close to Mother Nature. In our home we live fully, comfortably, happily. In it we may stretch out, talk to a neighbor over our back fence, nurture a seed or just sit. It's our home and we wouldn't change it for all the Front Yards in existence.

SANTA AND THE MARS KING

By Lucrece Hudgins Beale

Chapter 14
MARS

Tom and the Mars King climbed into the tiny space ship. There was scarcely room for the two of them to sit with their knees hunched up and their arms hugging their sides.

Tom was too excited to care about his uncomfortable position. As for the King, he felt that riding in a space ship was much more comfortable than whirling through the sky as a flying saucer.

He still wore his space suit and said he would never take it off.

Santa showed them how to operate the ship. Then he slammed the door. Tom and Majesty looked out through tiny windows and waved to all the Santa Land folks.

"Goodbye! Come back soon!" shouted the little people.

Then Tom pressed a button and the space ship zoomed into the air. In an instant they were far above Santa Land. Tom peered out the window. He could see the whole Atlantic ocean. It looked like a small lake. Next to it was America and on the far side of America was the Pacific ocean.

He could see it all quite plainly. Then he was too far away to see clearly and the whole world was just a ball spinning below him.

Presently they approached another ball. It was orange and had eyes and mouth like a man. At first Tom was frightened to see such a face in the sky. But suddenly he knew it was only the moon.

On and on they went. They passed many stars glittering in the skies. Before long they approached Mars itself.

"Look!" cried Tom. "We are going to land!"

Sure enough, the ship glided gently to the surface of the planet and came to a stop. Tom pressed a button and the door of the ship flew open.

Tom stepped out into a land stranger than any he ever dreamed of.

There was neither tree nor bush nor flower. No grass. Not even a weed. Running through the barren ground were streaks of yellow. Tom dropped to his knees and ran his fingers along a yellow streak. When he looked up his eyes were wide with wonder.

"Gold!" he whispered. "It's gold dust!"

The Mars King nodded sadly. "That's the worst part of our planet. Wherever we look we find that awful gold dirt."

"But," cried Tom, "you are rich beyond compare! Gold is money!"

"Money? There is no such thing on Mars. What we would like is grass and trees and daisies. We have no need for gold."

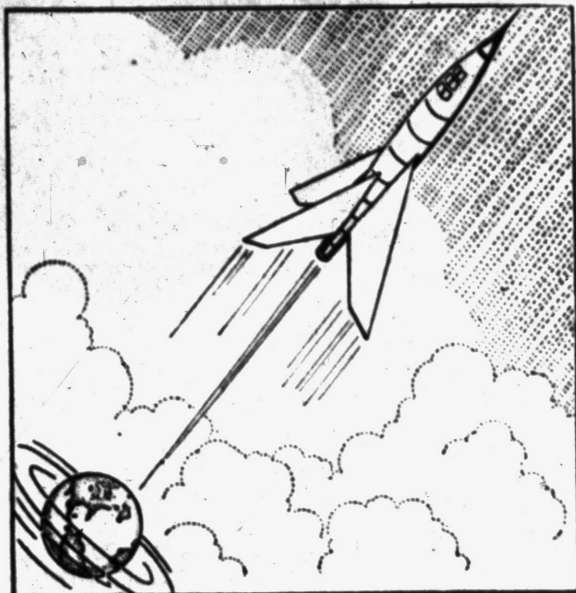

Tom looked around and saw that in truth it was a drab and lonesome land. To make matters worse it was neither dark nor light but a sort of perpetual gloom halfway between night and day.

"If nothing grows here how do you get food to eat?" asked Tom.

"We make our food out of chemicals," said Majesty. "We pack vitamins and minerals and other things into capsules and that is what we eat."

"Goodness, it must be pretty boring," said Tom.

Majesty nodded. "I suppose it is. But we have never had any other way of eating and this seems good enough to us."

Coloring suggestion: Sky in upper righthand corner dark blue, middle region of sky light blue. Earth blue. Exhaust from space ship red.

"It is very strange," said Tom suddenly.

"What is so strange?"

"Well, you people have invented such remarkable things like turning men into flying saucers and packing meals into capsules. Yet you never invented any toys. Doesn't that seem strange to you?"

The King nodded. "Yes, it is surprising. But perhaps it's because we have never had a Santa Claus on Mars." He took Tom's hand.

"Come now I will show you the kings' palaces. They lie just beyond the golden hill."

They climbed the solid gold hill and when they reached the top they saw below row after row of splendid palaces. Every palace was made of solid gold.

Even from where he stood Tom could see boys and girls standing idly in the golden courtyards. These children were the rulers of Mars. (Tomorrow: The Kings of Mars)

Beacons Snuffed Out as Last Ship Passes

SAULT STE MARIE (AP)—The 100th Great Lakes navigation season ended at 3:52 p.m. (EST) yesterday when the ore carrier G. C. Post slipped through the Soo locks downstream for Buffalo.

The freighter, owned by Columbia Transportation Co. and commanded by Capt. George Wachelin, carried scrap iron from Duluth, Minn.

Capt. Wachelin said storms on Lake Superior held up his crossing 13 hours. The trip is normally a 36-hour run.

He said the Coast Guard "turned off lighthouses behind me as we worked our way down."

Frail Newborn Celebrates 101st Birthday Today

DETROIT (INS)—Richard Leblanc is celebrating his 101st birthday today at his home in Lincoln Park.

With his wife, who is 89, Leblanc is accepting callers in their little frame dwelling at 3936 W. Fort.

Leblanc puffs heartily on his pipe and slips bourbon as he recalls the story of his birth.

Kindly neighbor women attending his mother took one look at the tiny, feeble infant, shook their heads and sent for the priest. The priest came at once and christened the baby after he was told little Richard would not live long enough for a church ceremony.

One hundred and one years later Leblanc's step is steady, his eyes are clear and his memory goes back to 1881 when three of his uncles left their fields and their fish nets along the Detroit River to join the Union Army.

Today Leblanc is looking forward to visits from his three sons, Frank, Levi and Columbus as well as his two younger brothers, Frank, 91, and Fred, 87. A daughter, Alma, a Federal Building employee, lives at home.

Leblanc expects to see many more birthdays.

Store Manager Floored

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UP)—"Detective Green" told store Manager Stephen A. Long yesterday he had some information that would "floor him."

New Cub Scout Pack at Hawthorne School

Thirty boys were invested in a Bobcat ceremony as new Cub Scouts this week in an organization meeting at Hawthorne school.

The new Hawthorne school Pack is being sponsored by fathers of the school.

Officers for the pack include: Neil McClellan, cubmaster; Arthur Dey, assistant cubmaster; James Card, institutional representative; Edward Burling, chairman, and Irwin Brockie, Ronald Carr, James Nichols and James Stragea, committeemen.

Den mothers are Ophelia Navarro, Theda Dey, Margaret McClellan, Vera Brockie, Rose Fay, Barbara Carr, Celia Burling, Elsie Stragea and Virginia Mills.

Six Boy Scouts from troop 29 received Den Chief "cords" in recognition of their standing as Cub Scout Den Chiefs. Presentation was made by Roger Lawrence, scoutmaster, and Glenn Lackey, commissioner.

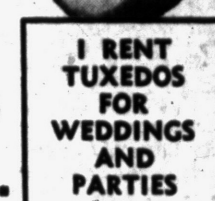

Van Braidwood, district executive, spoke briefly on the fine progress being made by the new group.

Unfair to Taxpayers

County Treasurer SPARKS has pointed to a tax collection leak that could and should be plugged immediately.

The treasurer had in mind the $8,000 to $10,000 in personal property taxes which remains uncollected each year. It is true that this sum is small in relation to the total county tax levy. But Mr. SPARKS is on sound ground in pointing out that township and city treasurers must make every effort to collect all taxes due.

In fact the law not only is specific on that point but it sets forth in great detail steps to be taken in the event of delinquency. For that reason we believe the County Treasurer has done well to make all this clear to local tax collecting officials.

As he told the Press, "It's not fair to the great majority of county residents who pay their taxes promptly and regularly when a few are able to escape their obligations."

Dutch to Keep New Guinea

With Indonesia laying claim to New Guinea before the United Nations, the Dutch have started planning the defense of that vast South Pacific Island.

This is a logical sequence to the Netherlands government's decision to retain sovereignty over the territory until its people are capable of self government. This, in turn, means that the Netherlands will continue in New Guinea its stupendous task of trying to bridge the gap that exists between the Stone Age and the Atomic Age.

The island is one of huge swamps, snow covered mountains, steaming jungles and fertile valleys carefully tilled by the native Papuans, and is rich in natural resources. Copper, bauxite and nickel are known to exist in the mountains and there is the possibility of uranium and oil.

Nobody yet knows how many people live in New Guinea. But the inhabitants are thought to be the most primitive on earth. Since time immemorial life for them seems to have been a constant succession of tribal wars with the many tribes speaking entirely different languages.

Anthropologically speaking, the Papuans are divided into two distinct types, the smaller inhabiting the interior and the larger the coastal plain.

The Dutch already have made considerable progress in civilizing coastal Papuans. As Gov. VAN BAAL puts it, the aim of the Netherlands government not only is to make the natives a part of the development program but teach them how to maintain their independence.

If the Dutch ultimately succeed in preparing these primitive people for self government, they will have made a most significant contribution to human progress.

Office Mechanization

While the rapid increase in the production of business office machines is a known fact, there are two views of its effect on the supply of jobs for white collar workers.

In the United States, according to the Labor Department, live employees are more than holding their own with the robots. These workers now number 8,000,000 or 64 per cent more than in 1940.

Moreover, the department says, clerical jobs will continue to increase in number despite automatic files, cash registers, adding machines and "thinkers" coming on the market.

An entirely different story comes from the International Labor Organization. It reports, after a worldwide survey, that the transfer of work from men to machines is proceeding in offices much faster than it did in industry.

Production of business machines, according to ILO, especially in the United States is booming. As a result many businesses, particularly banks and insurance companies, are reducing office personnel as machines take over the work.

All this points to the handwriting on office walls. Those looking ahead to clerical employment should take time and care to develop special skills no machine can match.

Henderson's New Post

Indications are that Secretary DULLES' choice of Ambassador LOY W. HENDERSON to be Deputy Undersecretary of State for Administration will be well received.

Until this promotion Mr. HENDERSON has been serving with distinction as U. S. Ambassador to Iran. During his 32 years in the foreign service he has been stationed in many parts of the world. Probably his most memorable assignment was that of Ambassador to Russia.

Among his colleagues and in Washington the new undersecretary has a reputation for great administrative ability, integrity, and frankness in departmental councils.

His record offers sound ground for belief that Secretary DULLES' judgment in promoting him will be amply justified.

MAN is the master of every animal on earth except by far the most dangerous one.

CIO Backs Dems
 Spends Millions in State Election to Defeat GOP

By JACK I. GREEN
 LANSING—Having cried wolf for six years, it now is doubtful whether Michigan Republicans can stir the voters with outcries that the CIO is trying to seize control of state government.

This is a pity because, if there ever were reason to believe this, it is more true now than at any time in the past.

The sting of the Republicans' Nov. 2 defeat had hardly started to die when two lame duck state officials took the stump again to sound their warning.

First Aud. Gen. John B. Martin told a Mount Pleasant audience that the CIO had opened its money bags as never before in the last election and was clearly setting a pattern of attempting to take over state government.

Later, in a more violent speech, Secretary of State Owen J. Cleary ripped the CIO for its alleged dreams of power.

These may have been noted by the men to whom they probably were addressed, the big contributors of the Republican Party—but they fell with a faint thud on the general public.

The trouble with this line of attack is that Republican orators for the past six years have been screaming about the "power-mad CIO bosses," the "CIO goon squads," the CIO PAC "line," the ADA undermining the American way of life and similar clichés.

These outcries have had remarkably little success in frightening the voters away from the Democratic ticket in the past. Observers doubt whether they are going to scare very many in the future, except those rock-ribbed Republicans who see Walter Reuther under every bed.

But in the last election something new was added, or something bigger than ever before. And it is going to be hard for the Republicans to depict this without sounding like a cracked old record.

Let us first concede that for many years, the Republican Party has been largely financed by the business community—and generally well financed. At the same time, the Democrats have often been virtually bankrupt and had to depend on dribbles of cash from those of modest income.

One cannot blame the Democrats for accusing the Republicans of hypocrisy now that the Democrats have suddenly found a fairly god-father with plenty of dough and the willingness to shell it out.

In the last election campaign, no matter what Democratic spokesmen say, there are indications that the CIO spent tremendous sums for the Democrats which will not appear on any campaign expense accounting. The CIO did not give this money to the Democrats. It spent it for the Democratic cause.

The result of this situation can only be a frightening contest to see who can spend the most money—business or labor. And both have plenty to spend.

Believes Stores Should Supply Boxes for Christmas Purchases Without Cost

(Letters will be condensed when necessary because of lack of space. Full name, address and telephone number of the writer must accompany letters but these will not be published if the writer so requests unless the letter is critical in its nature.)

While Christmas shopping recently, I went into one of Pontiac's leading stores. After buying a gift, I asked for a box to wrap it in. I was told by the clerk that the box was a nickel extra.

Christmas merchandise is priced as high as the law allows, and this seems to be an angle to squeeze just a little more out of the average Christmas shopper. In my opinion that is scraping the bottom of the money barrel.

The box plainly had the name of the store on the top of it, which is good advertising for any firm. Since when should a customer be asked to pay for a store's advertising outright? I have never been charged extra for a box before and if the merchandise doesn't warrant a box to put it in, is it worth selling?

Need Roller Rinks, Say Teenagers

There is only one roller skating rink in Pontiac. A lot of people never go roller skating because it is too far away and they do not have a way to get there.

There are enough ice skating ponds, such as the one at Washington Jr. High School, Crofoot School and a few others.

We would suggest that they build at least two or more roller skating rinks in Pontiac. We think the teenagers would enjoy it.

Recreational Center Would Help Three Ways

I think Pontiac should have a recreation center because it would probably lessen juvenile delinquency, would relieve parents' minds from their children and would educate others.

A convenient skating rink is necessary for the ones interested in skating.

Teenagers Not Going to the Dogs Now Any More Than Former Generations

Helene's question is very common among modern youth. But when student were asked to rate the 20 chapters in my college textbook, you may be pleasantly surprised to find which topic was given first place. Discuss Helene's query at Sunday school tomorrow.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
 Case M-396: Helene S., aged 17, is a high school senior.

"Dr. Crane, do you think the teenagers nowadays are going to the dogs?" she asked, frankly.

"Are we any worse than the young people of a generation ago? My father thinks the world is wicked and heading straight for destruction. But I tell him most of my classmates at high school are very nice boys and girls."

One of the earliest tablets of ancient Babylon records the gloomy prediction that the writer's current age was going to the dogs and that the days of his childhood were the Golden Age.

So it is apparently customary for older people to look back to their own youth and place a halo thereon.

Actually, we know sin and immorality have existed in all generations. But the population of the United States has doubled in a comparatively short span of years.

Aunt Het

I'm always gettin' fooled. It seems like a girl's sweet and innocent face don't give any indication of how many off-color stories she knows.

Naturally, therefore, we'd have twice as many instances of crime and rape, even if the same percentage held true today that was typical of our grandparents' generation.

Bishop Oxnham stated before our Chicago Executives Club a few years ago that in supposedly religious colonial days, only five per cent of Americans belonged to any church whatever, Jewish, Catholic or Protestant.

At the end of the last century, said Bishop Oxnham, the figure had risen to 25 per cent. And the latest report shows almost 50 per cent nowadays are church members.

No young couple contemplates divorce when they get married. Children are devoid of prejudice, too.

So it is our adult generation that needs to be indicted when youth go wrong.

"Bad children usually have had bad parents," is one of our psychological maxims.

Alas, parents may be good morally yet be very inept at rearing children, so send for my "Test for Successful Parents," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus a dime.

(Copyright, Hopkins Syndicate Inc.)

Other chapters pertained to "Personnel Administration," "Public Speaking," "Personality Improvement," "Marriage," etc. In fact, I had included one chapter among the 20 on the topic, "Psychology Goes to Church."

In that chapter I had listed the contribution of the churches to modern society and had explained why Jesus was the greatest applied psychologist who ever lived.

I also included methods for pepping up Sunday Schools and for re-vitalizing the churches.

When the college students rated all the 20 chapters in my textbook, the great majority (about 90 per cent) gave first place to that chapter entitled "Psychology Goes to Church."

Teenagers relish religion. They want to be good and healthy and happy and popular. They crave the more abundant life.

No young couple contemplates divorce when they get married. Children are devoid of prejudice, too.

So it is our adult generation that needs to be indicted when youth go wrong.

"Bad children usually have had bad parents," is one of our psychological maxims.

 Fumes

Are the fumes from an oil cooking range in any way dangerous or injurious to health? (Mrs. M. R.)

Answer—A defective or soot burner may give off carbon monoxide (from incomplete combustion) whether the fuel be coal, wood, charcoal, coke, gas, oil or gasoline. The slightest pollution of the air in a room by carbon monoxide (colorless, odorless gas) may be dangerous to life or injurious to health. Aside from that, the mere odor of oil or kerosene stove is not dangerous. It is always advisable to have a fuel burning stove used for cooking or heating properly connected with stove pipe to chimney flue or open air. Also a kitchen range burning any kind of fuel should have a hood or dome over it to lead fumes, smoke and odor out of the kitchen through ventilator to the open air.

Jews Will Celebrate the 'Feast of Hanukkah'

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER
 Monday, December 20, in the Jewish calendar, is the 25th day of the month of Kislev, and the 2119th anniversary of a great event.

It was on this date that Judah the Maccabee, a man of great military genius and fanatical devotion to his faith, led his little Jewish army into reposition of the Temple of Jerusalem, which for three years had been in the hands of the powerful Syrian invaders. This was 165 years before the beginning of the Christian era.

The Syrians had done everything they could to destroy both the Jewish nation and the Jewish religion.

Baering Down

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
 (International News Service)
 President of southbound republic says if we don't pay two dollars per pound for coffee his nation may go communistic.

We're buzzing Senor Jose there are two dots to every unit. If we have to pay that much a pound we're liable to go communistic.

Senor Jose got a new twist on an old pretzel. We agree with Smith and Dale that he who drinks coffee out of the cup getteth the spoon in his eye.

We arise at dawn in the Connecticut woods, take a brisk stumble around the vast acre and then sniff the palatial aroma of coffee unmixed with smog and free of monoxide.

There is no ersatz of chickory, acorn and sawdust to counterfeit the habit-forming sniffs of mocha-flavored smoke on a frosty calendar.

But at that price we'll have to stash it under Fort Knox and guard it with our infuriated taste buds.

When the great Luther Burbank lived coffee was thirty cents a pound. He was busily crossing a coffee bean with a self-funding yeast culture. He didn't forget that Boston had a tea party because coffee was going to be even more rebellious.

About twenty years ago there was so much coffee the South Americans burned it in locomotives. Then it got so scarce we couldn't even burn it in a tin coffee pot.

There should be some way to save us from two-dollar pounds. We don't want to make bad friends. And we don't want to make bad coffee.

Even President Jose knows that price is further out of line than a high diving contest in a wading pool.

Why doesn't he make it more bargainish? Something like $1.98 and share the lumps? Either that or we must go cup-operative on the coffee break that doesn't know friend from foe.

Two-dollar coffee emperals that far-lung outpost of our civilization the wagon lunch. What say, Jose, if we split the check?

 I waited for your letter and... I lingered for your call... But hours simply vanished and... There was no word at all... And so I thought you did not care... And I ignored your date... While in my diary I wrote... The simple message—"late"... I figured that was part of life... As people come and go... When we become acquainted... We merely say hello... And then, to my embarrassment... I learned that you were there... To keep that date and prove to me... How much you really care... Forgive me, I am sorry, dear... I did not keep that date... I really love you and I hope... That I am not too late.

What Brandy Will Prevent
 Please confirm or deny that brandy will prevent a cold. (L. R. C.)

Bed-Wetting
 Our children, aged six and six, both wet the bed nearly every night. We have tried scolding, getting them up at night, offer of reward, withholding fluid in afternoon, all to no advantage. (Mrs. D. M. R.)

ligion. Under their king Antiochus Epiphanes, they had performed the ultimate outrage—they had extinguished the perpetual light in the Temple and had set up a pagan altar there on which they offered sacrifices to Zeus.

The recovery of their beleaguered Temple from such profane hands and its rededication to the worship of the God of Israel was the occasion of the greatest rejoicing among the faithful Jews.

Since that happy day, all Jews have each year joyfully celebrated the Feast of Hanukkah, in memory of that great event and as a constant restatement of the fact that Judaism outlasts all who try to destroy it.

Although there is not complete agreement about the exact date on which the Pilgrim Fathers set foot on American soil, Dec. 22 is the day New England observes as Forefathers' Day.

Actually the entire company did not leave the Mayflower until January 4, 1621, but by November 9 of the preceding year land had been sighted and scouting parties had been sent out to look over the territory.

It was December 21 or 22 before they had found a place they could recommend to those who were back on the boat waiting for the report.

These hardy people had come here to found a church without a bishop and a state without a king, which is only another way of saying they had brought to this continent its most valuable possession: The tradition of external freedom combined with inner personal discipline. It was out of this fast-disappearing combination that America's greatness developed.

For several centuries the Christian Church refused to make any observance of Christmas. Celebrating birthdays was a wild pagan custom and the Church would have nothing to do with it, not even if it were the Lord's birthday, and the Birth being celebrated was the most important one in all history.

But popular pressure in the end proved stronger than the resistance of the Church authorities, and by the Fifth Century Christmas was a great and happy festival in the Christian calendar.

Although the exact date of the Lord's birth was not, and still is not, known, and although every month in the year was suggested by various scholars and astronomers, the date was finally set as December 25.

This meant that Christmas immediately began to take over many of the good customs—and to drive out the bad ones—that had been associated with the heathen Winter Solstice festivities.

For example, pagans of many lands exchanged presents at this time of year. And there was a widespread custom of calling a truce on all personal feuds and enmities. The Romans even called off wars. Even before Christianity, this was in its own way a time of peace and goodwill toward men.

The policeman looked. "Why, that's the moon," he said grinning. "The moon!" cried the man. "Then what am I doing up here?"

Christ Church Slates Services

Families to Hear Music,
Worship, See Pageant
Christmas Eve

Seven special holiday services have been scheduled at Christ Church Cranbrook for the Christmas weekend, announced rector Robert L. DeWitt.

Beginning at 4 p. m. Christmas Eve there will be an hour in which children and their families may come to hear Christmas music, worship, and see the Nativity pageant.

This will be followed by annual service of Holy Baptism at 5 p. m.

New to Christ Church's Christmas Eve schedule is a special Carol service from 7 to 7:45 p. m.

In addition to familiar holiday carols there will be selected Scripture readings.

Two celebrations of Festal Holy Communion follow at 9 and 11:30 p. m. Both are identical services with sermon and full choir.

Sunday morning services at 9:30 and 11:15, December 26, will be primarily musical, recalling the heritage of caroling. Special feature at these services will be presentations by the two junior choirs and the introduction of three new carols.

The Sunday School children of the Silvercrest Baptist Church are presenting their annual Christmas program Sunday at 7:30 p. m.

The children will be featured in a beginner's band and recitations. Jerry Scott will do chalk drawings with the theme "The Old, Old Story."

The congregation will join in singing Christmas Carols.

Those in charge of the entertainment are, Mrs. James Luther, Mrs. Edward Cassel, Mrs. Jack Soverign and Jerry Scott.

A Christmas Cantata "A Star in the Night" will be given Sunday Dec. 26, at 7:30 p. m. with George Underwood directing. Solo parts will be taken by Kay Underwood, Jack Scott, Robert Mason and Robert Gustavson.

Mrs. Carol Dalby will be at the piano.

Students think Polynesian navigators obtained sailing data from waves which can show differences in contour for hundreds of miles after they pass islands.

Methodists Hear Missionary Talk on Ethiopia

Rev. & Mrs. Harry Metro, missionaries under the Sudan Interior Mission, recently returned from Ethiopia. Saturday, December 18, today they will be speaking at the Elmwood Methodist Church at 7:30 o'clock.

Rev. and Mrs. Metro lived in Pontiac for 15 years prior to leaving for Africa as missionaries. Rev. Metro formerly worked for Pontiac Motor Division in their offices. They are members of the Emmanuel Baptist Church of Pontiac.

Recently the Metros returned from successful meetings in Marion, Ohio, where 25 young people dedicated their lives for the Lord's work. Mr. Metro left again after a few days for Chicago, where he spent 10 days in meetings. While there he had the privilege of speaking over station WMBI.

They are looking forward to returning to Ethiopia in the early part of June for another five years.

Christmas Carols Sung by Three Youth Choirs

Christmas Evening, Dec. 24, the children of the Sunday School at St. Paul Lutheran Church will have their traditional Christmas Service.

The three choirs, Senior, Junior and Sunday School, will sing carols.

The Festival Christmas Service will be held at 10 a. m. Christmas Day with a message by the pastor, the Rev. George J. Mahder. The congregation will sing Christmas carols.

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER DEATH?

In a few score years, all who read these lines will have vanished from the face of the earth.

Every day, almost a hundred thousand human beings finish their earthly span and pass off into the vast beyond. That our turn will come we all know, but when and where and how we cannot be sure.

No merely human being ever has been able to look into eternity and tell us what it is like. No scientific knowledge or scientific instruments can pierce the curtain that divides this world from that into which all of us must eventually journey.

All we know about God's eternal plans for us...all we know about what lies beyond the grave...comes from the God Who made us and to the extent He has seen fit to reveal it to us.

But we can face eternity without fear. For we do have a definite answer to the mystery of death. With the facts God has put at our disposal through the inspired books of the Old and the New Testaments, the Catholic Church always has given, and gives today, a definite answer to the tremendously important questions raised by the fact of death.

Man's life in this world, the Church tells us, is a preparation for the world to come...a testing-time which ends with our death. What happens after that depends on whether death finds us loyal to God, or opposed to Him and the way He expects us to live. "...it is appointed unto men once to die and after this the judgment" (Heb. IX:27).

Christ gave us (Matt. XXV) a description of God's judgment which leaves no room for doubt that our worthiness of everlasting reward will be judged solely according to the way we have lived our lives on this earth.

Death does not bring merely a long, unconscious slumber, but rather a quick awakening to the irrevocable judgment of our Creator. Nor does it bring us a second chance to prove ourselves or to amend our erring ways. In our own hands rests the opportunity...and upon our own heads the responsibility...to determine if death shall be the threshold to everlasting life among the blessed, or among the lost.

Men blessed by youth and good health often feel that death for them is far away—something to be worried about only in the twilight years. Some scoff at the suggestion that an everlasting hell could be permitted by a merciful God. Others seem to think that God will treat them kindly if they live reasonably moral lives, even though they pay Him no special honor which is His due.

But whatever they think...however they avoid the question...all men must eventually face the fact of death. To think about it wisely...and in time...is the most important thing in our lives. If you would like more information on this subject...on Heaven, Hell, Purgatory, the end of the world and the resurrection and judgment of all men...we shall be happy to send you an interesting pamphlet free of charge. LISTENING BY SHORT WAVE—The center of special attraction in the H. R. Ryerse recreation room at 756 N. Perry St. is the short wave radio. Relaxing for an evening with it are Mr. and Mrs. Ryerse and their two children, Patricia (now Mrs. Don I. Hirsch) and James. Also in the picture is Pat's French poodle, Tonette.

What Religion Means to Our Family

Ryerse Family Helps Others Find New Life in Christ

By LULA B. OGDEN
"Religion to us is real and vital, and it has made our lives richer and fuller," according to the H. R. Ryerse family of 756 N. Perry St. Although daughter Patricia is married now, she lives next door to her parents, and is in and out of their home.

Born in Gladstone, the father came to Pontiac in 1925. Mrs. Ryerse was born in Mansfield, Ark., and came here in 1933.

James is in his junior year at Pontiac High School and is a member of the Youth Council at First Baptist Church.

The whole family was baptized three years ago and joined the church in a family group.

The Maranatha Class of the Sunday School is the special interest of the parents, the father having been vice president and the mother assistant secretary.

Patricia is working as a guide with the Pioneer Girls of the church.

The family interest in missionary work is borne out by the fact that one of the things they like to do with their short wave radio set is to listen to the Rev. Robert Savage, formerly of Pontiac, on HCJB from Quito, Ecuador.

He is radio announcer for that station. The letters HCJB mean Herald Christ Jesus Blessing.

Although the Ryerses only recently joined First Baptist Church, they have long been interested in church work and have attended both church and Sunday School through the years.

They continued their testimony saying:

"As a family we feel we have been exceptionally blessed in that each of us has individually accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as his personal Saviour, thus enabling us to work together in the most important work in the world."

"That work is, we feel, helping others find new life in Christ. For it is written in II Cor. 5:17, 'If any man be in Christ he is a new creature, old things are passed away, behold all things are become new.'"

"As a family we have found that through daily study of the Bible we receive help for our day-by-day living. It is the way God speaks to us."

"Through daily prayer we receive strength to meet all problems that arise. It is our way of speaking to God."

"By daily living a Christian life we are witnesses for Him."

Quick Dish Good for Busy Days

Mrs. Jay Bendall's Skillet Corn Dish Makes Fine Meal

By JANET ODELL

Pontiac Press Food Editor
Recently we received a request to print a recipe for Squaw Corn. The writer assumed—and rightly—that it is a dish Boy and Girl Scouts make for outdoor meals. We asked an authority on outdoor cooking for her version of Squaw Corn and got the following recipe from Mrs. Jay Bendall of Four Towns. You may want to use this quick dish for supper or lunch during these rushed days.

Four school age children don't keep Mrs. Bendall busy enough, it seems. She has long been a trainer for outdoor activities in the Girl Scouts and is Day Camp Chairman for the same organization. To round out her civic duties she is a PTA mother vice president and the secretary of the Elizabeth Russell Guild of her church.

SQUAW CORN

By Mrs. Jay Bendall

6 slices bacon, cut into small pieces
2 cans whole kernel corn
6 eggs, slightly beaten
1 large onion, finely chopped
(optional) 1 green pepper, finely chopped
Salt and pepper

Fry bacon in skillet until crisp, draining off most of the fat. Add the corn and allow to cook until some of the liquid has been absorbed. Add the eggs and cook until the mixture thickens. Makes 6-8 servings.

If the onion is used, let it brown with the bacon. Add the green pepper with the corn. Cream style corn may be used if desired.

Cozy Furniture Is New Idea

A cozy "Kaffee Klatsch" furniture grouping idea from Europe makes a nice addition to American room decor. It consists of a small sofa or love seat, three chairs and a small table of dining height.

Decorator Beverly Reitz, who showed the arrangement at the National Home Furnishings Show, placed the table directly in front of the love seat and grouped the chairs around in bridge style.

She pointed out that the idea is suitable for snacks, games, or gab sessions, and that the chairs can always be moved elsewhere in the room when needed.

American designer's pattern

Martini Diminutive by Sylvan Rich

Sylvan Rich Designs for Small Size

Two-Piece Appeal Has Convenience of All-in-One

Sylvan Rich, designs for Martini diminutives, the name that spells good fashion to women who are 5'5" or less, creates another winner with lines that add height through the lengthened torso, have important style appeal through that little bit of shoulder bulk. Two-piece in looks, it is all in one, and was originally made in wool jersey with satin bodice trim. The top is lined to give body, and there is a separate underskirt to eliminate clinging. A perfect go-anywhere, do anything model, it is also wonderful in soft crepe, cotton or faile.

This pattern is cut to designer measurements, not standard pattern measurements.

Size 12 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material for dress, 3 1/2 yards of 39 inch material for lining, 3/4 yards of 39 inch material for contrast.

To order pattern No. 1165, address Spadea Syndicate, Inc., P.O. Box 535, Dept. P-6, G.P.O., New York 1, N.Y. State size. Send $1.00. Airmail handling 25c extra. Pattern Booklet No. 11 now available for 25c. Add 4c for handling, if paying by check or money order.

Learn Trick of Makeup at Start

One hazard of wearing a real job of make-up is that it needs to be tended even more carefully than a naked skin.

A smear or a streak, a sharp line under the chin or a neglected spot can turn hours of work into a harlequin mask, ugly and unbecoming.

If you need make-up that starts with the foundation, covers with powder and accessorizes with eyeshadow and rouge, you know it by now. It may be because you have had skin coloring or because your skin has flaws.

But once you've decided, don't do a halfway job. Get a good strong light for your dressing table and survey your work from all angles.

Learn all you can from cosmetics specialists about application for your individual skin. Keep a watchful eye on a mirror all day, even if you have to duck out of the room. Make sure you don't smear it on your gloves or rub it into your eyebrows.

Work, check and work again is the assignment to keep this real make-up job looking natural.

A new assist to a woman who sets herself on this path is the arrival of a foundation in a plastic squeeze bottle. It can be easily carried in the smallest of purses for frequent repairs or an overhaul, if necessary.

The drop-by-drop release of this liquid from its bottle means less fear and smear when you're doing a patch job in a powder room.

Leather Gloves Need Good Care and leather accessories like belts if you remember to suds it at the first sign of soil and never let it get really wet.

Go over the surface with thick soapuds, wipe with a clean damp cloth, and then with a dry one. Be sure to put leather to dry away from heat.

Washable leather gloves can be immersed in lukewarm soapuds, gently "massaging" the suds into the leather with your fingers. Rinse, blot lightly in a towel, blow the fingers open, and dry over a towel or on glove frames. While gloves are still slightly damp, work them gently onto your hands and they're ready to wear.

Try It These Gifts Are Useful

Here is another idea which can be used in many different ways. These little clothespin ornaments are bright and fit right into the Christmas season.

You will be able to think of many ways to use these handy clothespins. Use them for Christmas place cards, for dress ornaments, for Christmas Day napkin holders, or to add extra cheer to a Christmas package. Paint them with airplane dope or nail polish in Christmas colors. Paint, then glue on sequins for dress or scarf ornaments.

The regular pins can be colored and dressed in different costumes. Use the scrap bag for bits of clothing. Make a Santa by painting one red, then use cotton to make the beard. Make a wee red hat with cotton trim, and add pipe cleaner arms. Stand him up in a marshmallow.

It is nice to have several things ready for gift giving, for many times you do not feel that you should give a present but would like to give a tiny "Merry Christmas."

Very Rude to Take Call Elsewhere

Should Have Said She'd Discuss the Subject Later

By EMILY POST

A letter tells me: "The other afternoon while a neighbor of mine was visiting me, I received a telephone call regarding a very personal matter which I did not wish to discuss in front of this person. I excused myself and took the call on an extension telephone in another room."

I understand my visitor thinks me very rude for doing this. I would like to know if I was wrong and if she is justified in feeling that I was rude to her.

I do think it was impolite to your visitor to leave the room and take the call elsewhere. It would have been much better to have said to the person calling, "Oh, let me think about that and I'll call you back later."

Dear Mrs. Post: A few days after my nephew became engaged, he and his fiancée came to visit my husband and me. She made no attempt to show me her engagement ring and so I did not ask to see it. Now I understand my nephew thinks I acted very indifferent by not asking to see the engagement ring. I think it was up to her to show it to me without my asking. What is correct in this situation?

It was up to you to recognize the ring by saying, "Oh, is that your engagement ring?" and then she would have held up her hand for you to see it.

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me the correct way to eat beef or chicken pot pie? In most of the restaurants it is served in a small baking dish which is placed on a dinner plate. Is it proper to eat directly from the baking dish, or should it be emptied onto the dinner plate and eaten from there?

You may eat it directly from the baking dish if you wish or you may lift it a little at a time on to the dinner plate and eat it from there — whichever you prefer.

Care for Trim on Fur Coat

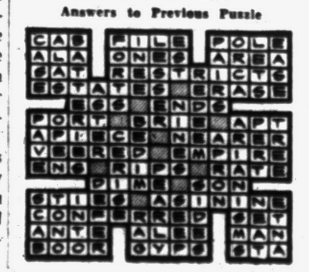

You should treat a fur-trimmed coat with the same care as you do a fur coat.

Fur-trimmed garments—no matter whether the trim is merely a pocket or a collar—should be hung in the coolest closet in the house, just like a fur coat.

The fur-trimmed coat should not be jammed against other clothing, because this will mat or break the fur.

The trim should not be brushed or combed, but just shaken before and after each wearing.

College Seniors Have Big Plans for Future

NEW YORK (INS) — Today's American college seniors have big plans — which include working wives, full-size families and home ownership, according to a recent survey.

A big factor in these broad plans is the fact that 69 per cent of the students already had jobs lined up after graduation, with salaries ranging up to $7,200 a year.

The figure for those planning marriage soon after graduation was also 69 per cent.

Most of these jobs are with industrial organizations which annually make an appeal to the upper classmen in a search for fresh talent.

According to this survey, 94 per cent of the brides-to-be expect to work as long as possible after the wedding. However, 44 per cent claimed they wanted children the first year of marriage.

Most wanted two children, the next largest group wanted one, and a good-sized group wanted three youngsters.

The poll indicated most wanted their own homes, with 82 per cent saying they planned to purchase a home eventually.

And 89 per cent were firm on one point—they didn't want to live with parents after marriage.

Brocade Is Right

Brocade is right for almost any occasion after five o'clock. It may be cut into a suit, short dinner dress or ball gown and it's most likely to be accompanied by glitter in the form of cuff links or buttons.

Billy and Tony Clark of Utica road (left and center) have a good start on a snowman, but Christine Blakeney also of Utica road is taking no chances—she's prepared to defend herself if her friends' thoughts change from snowmen to snowballs.

Winter means all kinds of fun for young people and Joanne Campanello of Menominee road doesn't mind the chores resulting from the city's first real snowfall.

Women Hard on Glasses

Adjust Skidding Eyewear

Milady's nose is less skid-proof than her spouse's.

At least that's the conclusion of eyewear designers, who point out women's eyewear is more likely to toboggan down noses than men's.

This has nothing to do with the construction of male or female noses. Eyewear slipping generally indicates the temples are not properly adjusted at the ear position. The bend in the temples has been altered either by misuse or wear.

Since women's eyewear takes more punishment, with temples being thrust through hair or under hat brims, eyeglass "bends" are more prevalent with the fair sex. Consequently, glasses are apt to slide down bridges.

Constant taking off and putting on of glasses tend to straighten the ear curve of gold temples. Plastic, or rigid, temples may lose the inward bend, this means a reduction of pressure at the temples and behind the ears.

Here is a sure sign your glasses may need adjusting:

If they keep sliding down and you keep pushing them up on the bridge of the nose, make an appointment with the man who sold you the glasses. He'll get them back in shape for good viewing.

Aside from the discomfort and

Nylon Shower Head Resists Corrosion

A molded nylon shower head that resists corrosion and in no way is affected by "lime" particles found in hard water has been unveiled.

The shower head, a product of a California firm, is designed so that the force of the shower stream can be shut off at the head itself. The company added that the size of water jets can be adjusted by turning the spreader plate.

Protect Piano From Weather

DALLAS, Tex. (INS) — A Dallas piano expert says that pianos are like people weatherwise — they like even temperature and even humidity.

Piano-owners should remember the instrument is not comfortable near steam pipes, registers, stoves and in the aisle of cold drafts.

Extreme temperatures damage the finish, the metal parts and the tone.

Wipe the case with a damp chamois then with a dry soft cloth — never use furniture polish. — Close the top of the piano when not in use.

At Zonta Meeting

Meaning of Christmas Explained by Clergyman

Rev. Perry Williams, member of the clergy staff at Christ Church Cranbrook spoke to members of the Zonta Club Thursday on "The Deeper Meaning of Christmas."

The speaker discussed the commercial aspect of Christmas, and the fact that for many it was a time of reunion with family and old friends.

Although this may all be good, Rev. Williams asked, "but does all this prevent us from seeing beneath?"

The Christmas Carols which bear the true significance and real message of Christmas, often are used just as background music, the Rev. Mr. Williams noted.

Many who mourn the loss of loved ones feel that Christmas is a lonely time of year, and because of their loss, they fail to find the true meaning.

These people have escaped the deeper significance, have failed to reach down and find something basic and everlasting, he said.

When Christ came into the world, people were living in a time just like this, with the same problems, and life was meaningless for many.

The significant thing is that Christ came at such a time and brought meaning, life and hope the speaker concluded.

Luncheon Is Given

Ex-Red Ready for Investigation

Union Official Denies Alleged Link With Big Communist Network

WASHINGTON (AP)—Jay Lovestone, once an American Communist party founder turned avowedly anti-Red, says he stands ready to undergo a "no holds barred" investigation on any charge labeling him as "kingpin" of a world-wide Red network.

Rep. Clardy (R-Mich.) said on Wednesday the House Un-American Activities Committee has heard secret evidence concerning "a gigantic world-wide network of Communists previously unidentified even now in State, Labor and other departments."

Without identifying the man he was talking about, Clardy mentioned a "kingpin" who he said was "responsible for the placement and the shifting about of these Communists." Clardy described this person as "admittedly one of the organizers of the Communist party in this country."

The Washington Evening Star said yesterday Clardy made it clear he was referring to Lovestone. The newspaper said other committee sources confirmed this. The committee itself has leveled no official charge at Lovestone.

Now an AFL official, Lovestone was booted out of the Communist party 25 years ago. He currently is executive secretary of the AFL Free Trade Union Committee and as such has spearheaded the labor organization's anti-Communist campaign.

Ralph Edwards Not Worried About Secrecy

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Everyone in Hollywood is worried about how to keep the subjects of "This Is Your Life" secret. Everyone except Ralph Edwards.

Lately there has been much talk about leaks in the super-secret set-up concerning the honored guests of Edwards' Wednesday night TV show. Some columnists claimed that the identity of last week's subject, director William Wellman, was known all over town before the show went on.

I asked Ralph about this matter at a charity affair this week. He was doing a multiple "This Is Your Life" for the City of Hope Hospital benefit honoring Esther Williams as "Mother of the Year."

"Everybody else seems concerned about keeping the secret," Ralph told me. "But I'm not. As far as our organization is concerned, there are no leaks. Some of the people appearing on the show may give out the information, but we have no control over that."

"As far as we know, only one of our subjects ever found out ahead of time. That was Ann Sheridan, and we canceled that show."

All the others have been surprised, he said. Either that, or they've been good actors, which is very possible. Only two persons were informed ahead of time. Because of the nature of her saga—a battle against alcoholism—Lillian Roth's permission was required. And Eddie Cantor was asked for his permission because of a heart condition.

I mentioned that any show person who is lured into the vicinity of Hollywood and Vine on Wednesday night must get suspicious. But Edwards said the gimmicks have worked so far. Some, like Laurel and Hardy, are brought to the Hotel Knickerbocker, which backs up to NBC's El Capitan theater, on the premise of a business deal.

Girl Dies Racing Speeding Train Across Trestle

ALBANY, Tex. (AP)—A 12-year-old schoolgirl lost a race with a freight train across a trestle near her grandmother's house yesterday.

Margie Dell Macon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arless Macon of the Cookfield Community, about 7 miles west of this West Texas city, was killed under the train's wheels.

Her sister, Barbara, 13, escaped by clinging to one edge of the wooden trestle as the train thundered past and over her sister's body.

Barbara said the two girls had just got off a school bus and were crossing the trestle en route to visit their grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. Urie Hammonds. They heard a train coming and moved as close to the edge of the trestle as they could.

Then, said Barbara, her sister became frightened and began to run down the trestle. The train overtook her before she reached safety.

Believe Reds Hold Some French GIs

PARIS (AP)—The government says the fate of 20,861 French Union troops who fought in the Indochinese War has not been determined definitely. Some are believed still held as prisoners of the Communist-led Vietminh, in defiance of the Geneva armistice terms.

The figure was announced yesterday to the National Assembly by Jacques Chevallier, secretary of state for war. Some of the soldiers, he said, may have been deserters; many probably were killed in battle and their deaths not registered. Others may have died in prison camps.

The secretary said France has returned 59,700 internees and 8,000 war prisoners to the Vietminh. In return, the French got back 19,181 prisoners, including 710 civilians.

Merchant Gets Ride in Trunk of Own Car

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Market owner Leslie R. Flesh is recovering today from the indignity of taking a ride in the trunk of his own car after being robbed of $5,000.

Flesh told Inglewood police he was returning to his car after withdrawing the money from the bank when a man shoved a pistol in his back and forced him to drive away.

The gunman then made Flesh stop the car, get out and climb into the trunk. Flesh found some tools and managed to work the trunk lid loose. When the gunman stopped for a traffic signal, Flesh escaped. The gunman drove off with the car and the $5,000.

Your Neighbor's House

Owner Mixes Own Color Tones for Home

Creating new color tones is as easy as mixing a cake batter, says Mrs. Forest Hedrick of South Wind drive, Walled Lake, who refuses to buy a can of stock color paint.

Her color recipes for her new contemporary home are slightly nostalgic of Grandmother's "plac of this and a dash of that."

For the palest of lilac—a bit of gray, a bit of blue and a few drops of red.

For true Wedgwood blue—about seven parts of French gray and one part of deep blue.

"The right color is so important. Contrary to general opinion, contemporary homes are natural for soft pastels. In fact, you can be just as daring with pastels as you can with oranges and blacks."

The abundance of window areas, she feels, makes contemporary complementary to pastels. Depending upon whether the day is sunny or cloudy, you live with a different shade each day, she pointed out.

City dwellers for years, the Hedricks decided they would take to the country this year when they selected a site on Reed Lake in the subdivision known as Lakeland Shores.

"It has everything we wanted—lake view, trees and rolling terrain. A stand of locust trees well along toward maturity centers our backyard and we intend to build a patio there this summer."

The exterior of the Hedrick home is of mission brick. Brown tones of the brick are picked up in the trim color and aqua is used for the trim on the open overhangs and the door of the two-car garage. Horizontal paneling of exterior plywood has been applied to the lower section of the house front. This is finished in natural.

Interior plan includes a living room and dining room combination, a kitchen and utility room, den, two bedrooms and a bathroom.

Entering the front door, a short partition separates the foyer from the living room. An opening with vertical bars provides not only extra light, but it is decorative and affords better circulation.

The window wall and the opposite wall of the living room are in soft blue with lilac used for the end walls. Pale pink mesh—with a peach cast—makes the traverse draperies.

Mauve carpeting in a sculptured pattern covers the floors of this room although the entire house is asphalt tiled atop the basic concrete slab.

For furnishings, Mrs. Hedrick selected deep purple in needlepoint upholstery. The sofa is slipcovered in a linen blocked lilac pattern which has all of the colors used in the room.

A white brick fireplace is recessed in one wall and all of the baseboards and moldings in the room are in the same blue as the walls. The shoe molding is the same black as the floor tile.

Firm proponents of comfort, the Hedricks always have several rocking chairs. Lamp bases are in white with wild iris painted on the bowls. The ceiling is white.

What could have been a third bedroom has a wall omitted at the side of the living room. This is the den also done in blue, lilac and purple. A dull black finished furniture with gold trim is used for this room and this same black colors the sectional bookcases.

Mrs. Hedrick always hangs pictures in groupings, and she explains that a search of the dime stores often reveals some fine reproductions of pastels, oils and etchings. Frames are all alike for the groupings.

For bedrooms, Mrs. Hedrick painted one in blue and the other in pink.

The pink room has lilac accessories with twin bed skirts and the curtains for the California contemporary windows in this color. Ivory coverlets are placed on the beds with a chest

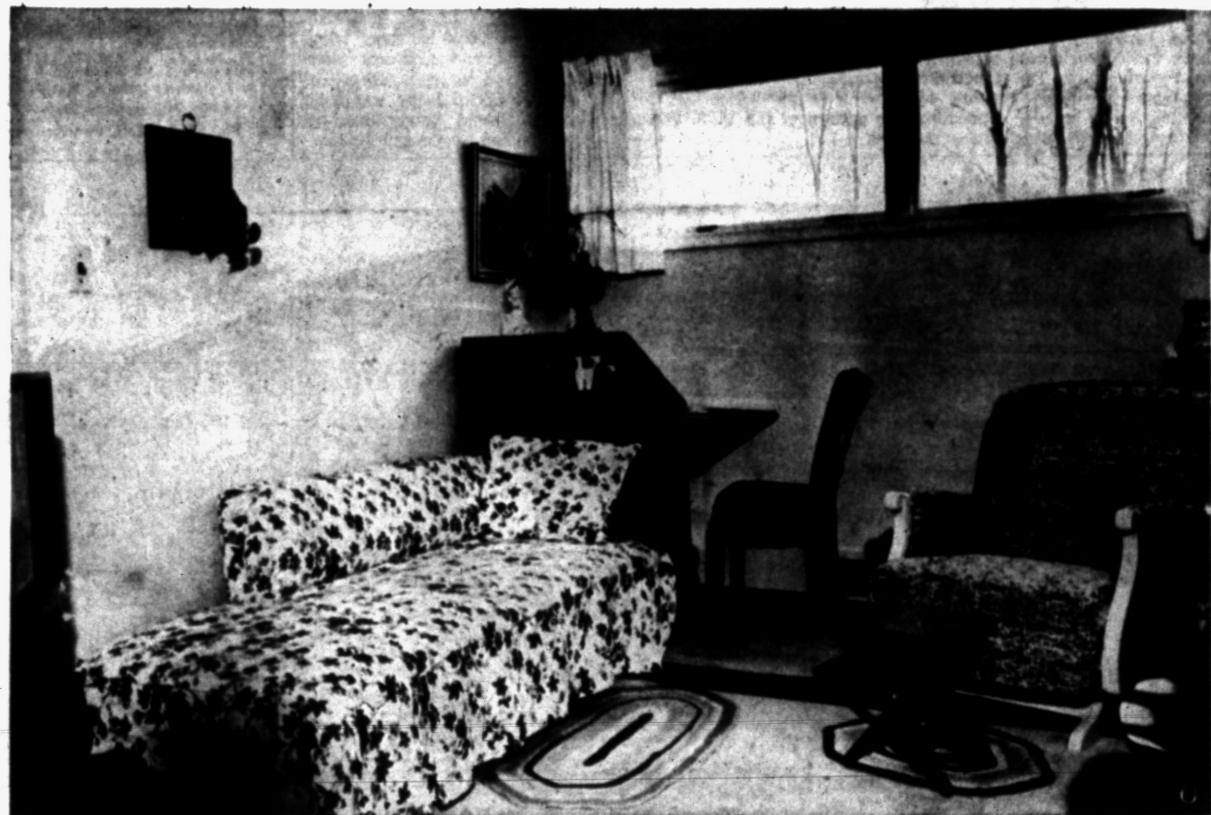

REED LAKE HOME—Mr. and Mrs. Forest Hedrick selected this contemporary home on South Wind Drive, Walled Lake, for their year-round home. One of 32 in the Lakeland Shores Development on Reed Lake, it is a custom-built home similar in floor plan to the others. Individuality comes from the use of different exterior materials and trim and also from the varied interior decor chosen by the owners. The Hedrick home is built of mission brick and has trim in brown and aqua. Front of the house has its upper section in exterior plywood paneling. This is put on in horizontal strips. Floor plan of the Hedrick home has a combination living and dining room, a kitchen and utility unit, a den, two bedrooms and a master bathroom. A basementless home, asphalt tile floors are used in each room with carpeting placed over this in the living room. Rugs are used in all the other rooms with the exception of the kitchen.

All closets in the house have sliding doors and an additional feature of overhead storage areas, also with sliding doors.

Mrs. Hedrick's kitchen has jonquil yellow counter tops and furnishings. The walls are in Wedgwood blue. Natural birch (Continued on Page 16)

DEN—It could have been a third bedroom, but Mr. and Mrs. Hedrick wanted a den. Hence the wall between the living room and the den was omitted making this an extension of the living room. By using the same color scheme, it appears to give an illusion of added space. California contemporary windows allow maximum use of wall area for furniture arrangement. The same colors are used in the den as the living room.

Mrs. Hedrick makes all her own slipcovers and draperies. She also does her own upholstering jobs with the help of Mr. Hedrick who helps stretch webbing, tie springs and nail the frame.

KITCHEN KEYS TO YELLOW, BLUE—Natural birch cupboard doors with stainless steel hardware highlights this yellow and blue kitchen. Plastic counter topping for the work area is in a yellow linen design. Blue is used for the wall coloring and for the tiny strawberry motif in the white curtains. A well-planned unit, note that the stove and refrigerator are placed together. The kitchen sink within two steps of these facilities provides ease of meal preparation. Red and white grease-proof asphalt tile covers the floor and a corner cabinet (not shown in the picture) is painted a jonquil yellow to match the counter top. Accessories are also in yellow.

ENTRANCE TO LIVING ROOM—A partial foyer provides a separated entrance to the Hedrick living room that has a cloak closet recessed in the end wall. The vertical-barred opening, painted the same blue as the walls, has a three-fold purpose—it is decorative, permits entrance of more light and facilitates better circulation. Noted for her deft use of color, Mrs. Hedrick has combined pale blues, lilac and deep purple in this room. The carpeting is a mauve and the traverse draperies are pink with a definite peach cast.

Builders Name Sales Manager

Northwood Firm Now
Has Own Sales Office
Headed by N. J. Roy

The Northwood Organization, Inc. home builders, today announced the establishment of their own sales organization, appointing Nelson J. Roy, sales manager. For the past 10 years Roy has been active in real estate in the Detroit area, most recently with Rose-Hill Realty.

President of Northwood, David Lukacher said, "In rounding out our operation, we feel we are able to establish a closer relationship with the home buyer and are better equipped to understand and solve their individual problems."

"Our Northwood Company met with great success in their 'Northwood 42' on Middlebelt road project and we now have opened the South Section of new 'Northwood 32' where 107 homes are under construction," Lukacher announced.

Following a similar plan, these brick homes are designed with spacious living area, 3 bedrooms and 2 baths. The newest project is located near Middlebelt just south of Orchard Lake Road.

The Northwood Organization, located at 10626 West Nine Mile Road, and affiliated companies have been building homes in the northwest suburban area for the past 12 years.

LONG AND LOW—Big, low and wide, this house has four bedrooms all on the main floor. A spacious breezeway connects the house with garage, which can be built for one or two cars. Planned for a broad lot, this house has an over-all width of more than 68 feet without breezeway and garage. The house proper covers 1,919 square feet. This is plan 403B by Rudolph A. Matern, architect, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica 2, N. Y. A large basement is included.

Play Table Welcome When Splinter-Free

For youngsters, to whom play is important business, a play table will be most welcome. It's easy to convert an old desk or card table to this purpose, or to build a brand new one.

Most important part of the table, whether new or rebuilt, is a splinter-free, durable surface that requires little care. Excellent for the top is masonite tempered preswood, a hardboard widely used in industry for workbench tops and in supermarkets are shelving and checkout counters.

This surface will take a lot of punishment. If the youngster decides to pound on it, let him; no harm will be done. Many model railroad sets are located on tables faced with tempered preswood, as illustrated. Tracks for electric models should be bolted down, so the table may be used for other purposes, too, when the child tires of his train.

You Can't See It -- but You Can Feel the Heat

While the necessity for comfortable, even warmth isn't being overlooked, strong emphasis in modern home heating is being centered upon space-saving distribution units designed to blend with room styling and provide "hidden" heat.

One of the newest of these unobtrusive heat distribution units is the baseboard convactor, which doesn't look like a heat distribution unit at all but rather, as its name indicates, like a wall baseboard.

Styled for use with hot water or steam heating systems, baseboard convectors are installed in place of the regular baseboard along the outer walls of the home. They are delivered in a neutral prime shade and may be painted to blend with the floor covering and walls, making the heating units an integral part of the room.

Baseboard convectors thus take up virtually no space and permit unlimited use of all areas of the room. They operate on the same convection principle as the streamlined convector radiators which have gained such wide popularity in recent years. The convection principle distributes warmth by air motion—a gentle, almost-imperceptible cycle which gives the room uniform healthful warmth from floor to ceiling.

Installation of baseboard convectors along outer walls protects against drafts which might otherwise develop from infiltration of cool air around windows. The baseboard units can be equipped with manually-operated dampers, if desired, to provide individual room heat control in addition to thermostatic regulation.

Baseboard convectors may be utilized as the heat distribution units throughout the home or in combination with convector radiators. In the latter case, baseboard units often are installed in living and dining room and den areas with standard convectors in bedrooms, bathroom, and kitchen.

How to Identify Finish

Rubbing a small area of a wall with warm water will help identify its finish. If color comes off, the finish is water paint. It is calcimine, if the entire finish rubs off. If no color shows on the rubbing cloth, the finish is an oil or resin paint.

Real Estate Expert Tells 1955 Buying Possibilities

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER
AP Real Estate Editor

Do you want to buy a new house in 1955? If so, here is the situation you may encounter:

1. You should be able to swing the deal with much less cash than was needed a year ago — the FHA has lowered down payments for a $12,000 house, for example, from $2,400 to $1,200 and has lengthened mortgage terms from 25 to 30 years to keep monthly payments about the same.

2. You will find more new houses to choose from — all experts agree that 1955 will see the greatest number of new homes built.

3. But the price of a 1955 house may be higher.

4. Because it will be a bigger and more complete house.

Home builders say they will put up fewer low-cost houses and more of what they call "quality houses." They aim to concentrate their efforts in the price class between $15,000 and $20,000.

After a recent conference of industry leaders the trade publication House & Home had this to say:

"America is wiping out poverty so fast that already more families have incomes over $3,000 than incomes under $3,000."

When pricing a fold-a-door in leatherette, Mrs. Hedrick discovered that she could make a saving by buying wide plastic leatherette by the yard having small rings put in the top and by hanging it on a steel rod. She has a door closing at a fraction of the cost of the door.

A pink tiled bathroom with blue accessories has a built-in plastic covered dressing table. Anxious for her first spring in her new home, Mrs. Hedrick says she will plant flowers outside that have the same colors as the interior of the house.

"After all, when you cut flowers to bring inside you have to have color harmony. You also want that same harmony when you stand and look out your window."

The Hedricks' house was built by the Harold Young Building Co. Handled by Dwight Holton.

"We already have at least 25 per cent more low-cost houses than we have families who can afford nothing better."

"We have nowhere near enough quality houses for those who could afford them."

"By 1959 the low-cost house market around most of our cities will be glutted even if no more cheap houses are built."

"The American standard of living is going up 22 per cent every decade; and the American standard of housing, which has lagged behind the rest of the American standard of living, must now rise even faster to catch up."

This is boom talk, but 1955 is expected to be the biggest building year on record. Authoritative Ed Gavin, editor of the American Builder, says "our prediction for 1955 is 1,400,000 housing starts, an all-time high, and the possibility that the total may reach 1,500,000."

FHA Commissioner Norman P. Mason predicts that the latter figure will be the closest.

Easier mortgage terms are cited as the big reason.

"In the short time the Housing Act of 1954 has been in effect," says Gavin, "there already are certain trends established."

Expansion and decentralization of industry which is increasing the migration rate of industrial and commercial personnel," is cited as another factor. And, says Gavin, "there is still a large GI backlog coming into the market in increasing numbers from rental units and for other reasons."

Home building is expected to account for more than half — 55 per cent — of all new private construction in 1955. This is the joint forecast of the U. S. Department of Commerce and the U. S. Department of Labor. This official outlook for a total of 39½ billion dollars in all type of construction exceeds all private guesses.

Glorious Center Rises From Ruin

Rotterdam in Holland Builds Fine Model Shopping Plaza

Rotterdam—its center leveled in 20 minutes of Nazi bombing in 1940—has rebuilt its central business district in a dramatic fashion from which crowded American downtown districts might take a lesson.

The story of the Dutch city's rebirth is the subject of the current issue of Urban Land, monthly publication of the Urban Land Institute.

The air raid reduced to rubble 650 acres in the heart of Rotterdam. A section made up of "wide boulevards and fine old homes and jerry-built residences . . . and thoroughfares presenting hair raising traffic hazards."

"Three weeks later," Mr. Kiek writes, "the first plans for the future were laid. A beautiful new city was to be wrested out of the ruins of the old."

Planned for the very heart of the modern new city was the Lijnbaan-Rotterdam shopping center, the first integrated shopping center in all Europe. The Lijnbaan plaza came about as the result of the combined efforts of 66 Rotterdam retailers. Many had planned to build their own individual new shops, but building permits were hard to come by, construction costs were high, and materials scarce. Joint effort finally provided the solution.

Their concept was to turn the center of Rotterdam into a "quality street" of medium size specialty stores. The group included jewelers and stationers, a cutlery store, a toy shop, custom tailors, importers, art galleries, gift shops, travel agency, glove shop, furrier, furniture store, decorator shops, a lingerie shop, etc. Basically they were the type stores one would find on New York's Fifth Avenue.

Before the architect's blueprints were finally approved, operators of the plaza insisted on a shoppers' "bill of rights" under which the center would operate. Its three main provisions safeguarded the shopper against crossing busy streets, being crushed by rush hour throngs, and getting drenched by rain.

Van den Broek and Bakema, prominent Rotterdam architects, designed the plaza with the shoppers' comfort uppermost in mind. When finished, the two story plaza with its sweeping contemporary lines embodied many outstanding innovations. In the heart of no other city, reports ULI, can so spectacular a concentration of stores be found on an area of three acres. Through the area runs a wide L-shaped thoroughfare of more than an acre giving access to more than one-half mile of modern display windows and nearly four acres of sales space.

A sidewalk extends the full length of the plaza, with teak-wood canopies built all along the facades and matching crosswalks. Thus windowshoppers can amble from one side of the plaza to the other under all weather conditions. All traffic is banned within the plaza, making it the safest area in town.

The center's location guarantees accessibility from all parts of the city. Streetcars and buses stop nearby and hack stands are close. Three parking fields accommodate 1,800 automobiles and there are an abundance of specially-built racks for Holland's number one means of transportation, the bicycle.

Super-Clear Glass Block Available to Builders

Super-clear glass block which has the clarity of conventional window glass now is available to home builders and home remodelers.

In addition to its decorative value and daylighting advantages, the clear glass block has the insulation value of an eight-inch brick or 12-inch concrete wall.

African Violet Fascinating

By HENRY FREE

When the average person thinks of flowering house plants, the African violet is the one that first comes to mind. Once started on the growing of this fascinating plant the desire for more leads to another, and another.

The remarkable popularity of the African violet is easy to explain. It is an attractive plant with handsome foliage and delightful flowers,

Color Scenes on Lampshades Protected

New picture lamp shades have transparent full color scenes of restful land or seascapes laminated between clear and durable bakelite rigid vinyl sheets. Lighting the lamp brings out brilliant tones of the color photograph.

By thus encasing the delicate photograph, the colors are kept from fading and the surface is protected from scratches. Finger marks, moisture, and dust are quickly wiped off bakelite rigid vinyl sheet which also resists warping, cracking and aging.

In five sizes ranging from 8 up to 19 inches in diameter, the new lamp shades are laced to a supporting wire framework which fastens to the lamp base. Five scenes are available including a fall scene and a quiet blue-sea harbor with white sailboats as well as a mountain lake scene, birch tree scene and waterfall scene.

Thermopane insulating glass was put to the "acid test" when Admiral Byrd took two units with him on an Antarctic exploration and used them as observation windows in his cave of snow.

and remains in bloom through much of the year.

While it is rather easy to grow, it has just enough troubles to make its care interesting.

African violets prefer a loose soil, one containing about two parts garden soil, one part leaf mold or peat and one part of sand. Fertilizing with one of the soluble fertilizers, following directions on the package is satisfactory. Excellently prepared soil is offered in handy plastic bags at the better florists and garden-supply shops.

African violets can bloom almost all year 'round if they have the right conditions for best growth.

First, the African violets must have the right amount of light. A north or east window is best in summer; however, in winter they can stand a south or west window.

If the leaves become pale, the plant compact, and the flowers bloom for only a short time, then they are receiving too much light. If the leaves become large with long leaf stems and with little or no flowers, then there is too little light.

Watch the room temperature. Usually it is well to water once every third day; at least examine the plants that often. Keep them slightly moist at all times.

Graphite Helps Cure Stiff Door Locks

If a lock becomes stiff and hard to operate, a temporary cure is available in any home in the form of a soft lead pencil. Simply rub the key until it is heavily coated with the graphite, and then turn it in the lock a few times.

This treatment should make the lock work like new. Of course, you can use powdered graphite, which is available in most hardware stores. This lubricant is blown into the lock through the keyhole by squeezing the tube.

New Game Combines Golf and Bowling

Are you a golfer? And do you like to bowl? You can do both with a new game made by J. P. Banning of Putt-Pins, Inc. of Mt. Kisco, N. Y. The game consists of bowling pins made so that they compare in size to regular pins as a golf ball does to a regulation bowling ball.

Set 'em up on the felt alley, putt your golf ball at them with a putter, and score just like bowling. Score pads come with the set.

Until the "flat drawing" process of making window glass was developed, it was made by blowing a glass cylinder, cutting the cylinder in half and flattening out the halves.

Christmas Display Contest Winner to Be Announced

Winner of the Oakland County Tuberculosis Sanatorium's Christmas display contest will be announced Monday, according to Mrs. Margia Alexander, recreational therapist.

Patients have entered four displays symbolic of the yuletide season, she explained. A trophy will be awarded the winning group. The contest is expected to be an annual event.

Postal Branch Set Up

BISBEE, Ariz. (U)—Growth of the population in the vicinity of Ft. Huachuca has brought about the opening of a post office at the settlement known as Don Luis. This will be a branch of the Bisbee post office and will serve Don Luis, Huachuca Terrace and Don Luis estates—none of which were in existence before the reopening of the fort.

Designer Back at Starting Point

Gershun Thinks Color
Fine in Home—but Returns to Walnut

"Color is just as much a building material as brick, wood, or stone," says architect Walter T. Anicka of Ann Arbor. "You can't touch color, but you can see it. Visual impact is one of the chief elements in determining what materials to use on a house exterior."

Pointing out that the texture of materials is another important element in a home's appearance, the architect says that home-owners are "understandably enthusiastic" about the decorative possibilities of various kinds of masonry, wood, glass, and other materials. But he feels that "it's easy to go overboard and get a 'tutti-frutti' effect by using too great a variety on one house. The hodge-podge can be expensive, too."

Anicka usually specifies only one or two materials for the outside walls of a house. If the main body of the house has clap-board or shingle siding, a limited section, such as a planter or part of one wall, may be of brick or stone "but not both materials," the architect emphasizes. The masonry lends a pleasing contrast in color and texture to the rest of the house, but two kinds of masonry often give a confusing visual effect.

Although textural contrast is an excellent way to create visual interest and prevent a monotonous overall appearance, proper color styling can achieve the same result at lower cost, the architect says.

"Draw up a color plan for the entire house before a brick is laid or a shingle applied," Anicka advises. "Pick a roof color first and paint the siding and trim in a related shade of that color. There's plenty of leeway for interesting color schemes because asphalt shingles, my favorite roofing material, are made in a great many solid and blended colors, both light and dark."

For each roof color, there are a number of related shades of house paint. Recognizing that the roof is the "color key," some paint manufacturers have deliberately chosen their standard exterior house paint colors to blend with the colors in which asphalt shingles are made.

Anicka favors uniformity in the large color areas because it makes the house look bigger and more impressive.

What's new around the home? For one thing, a woven fence, which will enhance the appearance of anyone's house.

Easy to construct, a woven fence is both distinctive and practical. Set your 4-inch square posts in concrete spaced about four feet apart and two and a half to three feet deep.

An easy-to-handle, long-lasting fencing material for this purpose is masonite quarter inch siding, available at lumber yards in strips 12 feet long and in widths of 12, 16 or 24 inches. Slightly round the edges of the siding and bring the joints into moderate contact.

The tempered presdwood siding is fastened to the posts with five-penny galvanized siding or galvanized box nails spaced not more than 4 inches apart and not closer than 1/2 inch to the edges.

Paint the masonite as soon as possible after application, using a primer-sealer and two finish coats.

GLASS BLOCK SAFE LIGHT—No matter how dark the night, there's always plenty of safe light for the entranceway to this attractive garage. Electric lights behind each of three 12-inch glass blocks set in the wall next to the overhead door provide light for the driveway at night, which makes access to the garage easier and safer. During the day, the glass blocks bring additional daylight into the interior. The glass blocks are installed in caulking compound and sealed in a wood frame which matches the design of the garage door. Because the roof extends beyond the front wall of the garage, the area below is not subject to severe weather conditions.

Fuel Dollars Lost Outside

Physical Phenomenon
Draws Heat to Cold
Surface Speedily

"Where in blazes do my fuel dollars go?" is a question that many homeowners will ask when they total up their fuel bills at the end of the current heating season.

Oddly enough, say heating engineers, 79 cents of every lost fuel dollar goes outside—victim of a physical phenomenon known as "cold-wall magnetism."

This is the popular name for a much-ignored law of physics: That heat flows from warmer objects (such as those inside your house) to colder surfaces (the walls, window glass and doorways) at about the speed of light.

The engineers cite the findings in a recent survey by the National Warm Air Heating and Air Conditioning Association that windows account for 32.6 per cent of the heat lost. Outside walls attract 30 per cent and doors 16.4 per cent. Losses through ceilings amount to 13.2 per cent of the total and floors take 7.8 per cent.

Some of these lost fuel dollars can be saved, the engineers say, by improved insulation and storm windows, a properly working furnace and modern automatic control equipment.

One new control system—designed specifically to combat "cold-wall magnetism"—uses an electronic "brain" and an electronic thermostat which is mounted outdoors to detect changes in the weather and regulate indoor temperatures accordingly.

Under-Sink Spot Made Useful, Beautiful

In many older homes and apartments, the kitchen radiator is located under the sink. There it serves as a dust catcher and a general catch-all. Besides, it's an eyesore.

Using a smart-looking, modern material, the home handyman can convert this area into the showplace of the kitchen, and at small expense.

His object is three-fold—to allow circulation of heat, to improve the appearance and to provide better storage facilities.

From his lumber yard, he should obtain some 1 by 2-inch lumber, which he will install as a framework under the sink and over the radiator, and some masonite "peg-board" panels, the new perforated hardboard.

The lumber framework, of course, will be covered with the perforated panels. The craftsman may make provision for either sliding or swinging doors to give access to the space between the radiator and sink, which he will convert to storage by placing some "peg-board" over the framing he has built right over the radiator.

His framing should allow for a kick-space of about four inches. Since masonite "peg-board" can be painted like other hardboards, the decoration becomes a matter of color selection and application. Any type of paint, enamel or lacquer may be used following a suitable prime coat.

Here the smart-looking perforated hardboard serves to permit escape of the radiator heat. At the same time, it converts an eyesore into a showplace. To assure adequate air circulation, provide a slot about four inches long under the kick-space and a similar one near the top.

Holiday, Weather Cut Number of Permits

The Christmas holiday and winter weather cut sharply into the number of permits issued by the City Building Dept. this week.

A permit was let for only one new house, valued at $8,000. That permit and another for installing a cement foundation at 86 Gillespie St. were the only "constructive" permits of the five issued.

The complete listing of projects valued at more than $500 follows: New house, 61 E. Longfellow, $8,000. Cement foundation, 86 Gillespie St., $1,000. John Draper, $1,000. Remove topsoil, 1944-1946 Golf Dr., $1,000. Wreck greenhouse, 65445 Woodward, Thomas C. McDonald, $2,000. Fill underground vault, 30 E. Pike, Waldron Properties, $1,000.

Loss of Station Register More Than Mere Joke

COLORADO SPRINGS (U)—Jack Morris thought the other service station attendants were playing a joke on him when he found the cash register missing.

They weren't. But by the time Morris learned the truth, police figured the thieves, were miles away, with the cash register and about $300.

Plan to Remodel in the New Year

Balance Your Budget
Now for Refurbishing
Home in 1955

If your New Year's resolutions include "doing something about" your home and its furnishings, now is the time to make some concrete plans.

You're a lucky homemaker indeed if you can refurbish your entire home in a single year.
More likely, you do it in the same way you replenish your wardrobe,
by adding a winter coat this year,
a spring one next and so on.

Such a scheme is both practical and easy on the budget, if you lay your plans carefully. So, look your home over carefully, decide now the major project you want to carry out and then see that the job is done well and effectively.

For instance, a child's room may be ready for a complete re-doing.
Some children outgrow rooms just as fast as they outgrow clothing.
Is your five-year-old living in a nursery setting? Are the rooms of your teenagers fitted out for studying?

Perhaps your bathroom needs a complete re-doing. The best plan is remodel with a permanent material which is waterproof and can be installed over present surfaces with adhesives. Around a tub with a shower, tile should be carried to the ceiling, to prevent water damage.

Your living room may be the area to concentrate on this year.
Once families bought furniture with the idea that it would last their lifetime. Now, studies show, they get new living room furniture about every five years.
Perhaps you can unify the room with new slip covers, or make it dramatic with striking drapes.
Painting one wall a different color can be very effective, too.

If your kitchen is inconvenient, by all means devote your main efforts to it in 1955. Replace major equipment that no longer gives good service. Finish old countertops with tile which is easy to clean and maintain. Build in additional storage, and be sure that wiring and lighting are adequate.

Delightful New Toy Decorates Tots Room

Brightly colored mobiles of space rockets, Mother Goose and circus whirling constantly in mid-air form a new and fascinating toy that is also a delightful decoration for a child's room. Colorful cutout each is made of bakelite rigid vinyl sheet for easy cleaning and long wear. Easily assembled by tying one figure to another with light thread, this constructive toy teaches children the art of balance.

Instructions, printed on the envelope containing the separate pieces for a single toy, include a diagram of how it looks when finished. Proper lengths of thread, measured off against a scale printed on the envelope, are knotted at the ends, and simply balanced and can be hung from the ceiling in various locations and heights. A sponge adhesive sticker provided with the kit is pressed against the ceiling after removing its cloth backing.

The mobile hangs by a thread tied to a metal staple in the sticker and the slightest puff of air will then keep the toy in constant motion. Wiping with a damp cloth is all that is needed to keep the colorful cutouts clean, since bakelite rigid vinyl sheet resists water, dust, dirt and greasy fingerprints.
The different nursery designs available include rocket, circus and cat and fiddle sets.

Austerity in Styling Growing Obsolete?

Is modern architecture changing? American Builder magazine quotes a leading architect and a leading furniture designer who think that it is.

The quotations are: "Austere" forms in architecture are on the way out, is the prediction of Clair Ditchy, past president of the American Institute of Architects. In a recent address, he forecast a swing to the "more graceful, expressive forms as exemplified by curved mouldings and even sculpture, where appropriate."

"In another recent prediction,
T. H. Robsjohn-Giffings startled the furniture industry when he stated that 'modern architecture and modern furniture is of today a dying fashion... will be replaced by furniture and homes that are highly individual, created by highly individual designers, and architects.'"

Cold Feet and Hands Remedied With Pack

For cold feet—or hands for that matter—you can use a new heat pack recommended by the ski club of Great Britain.

The pack contains a chemical compound that heats up to between 110 and 160 degrees Fahrenheit when a small amount of water is added. By adding a little water every eight hours, you can keep the pack hot for some 60 hours, according to the maker—Rheuma
Spa of London, England.

CLEVER TRI-LEVEL—Careful handling of the tri-level idea gives this house a low ranch style front, while it rises two stories in back.
The living room ceiling rises with the rafters. Three bedrooms and a bath are only half a flight up.
A large family room, extra lavatory and laundry-utility room are half a flight down, with their windows all above grade. This is plan S-5489X by Alwin Cassens Jr., architect, 145 S. Franklin Ave., Valley Stream, N. Y. The house covers 1,160 square feet and has a cubic content of 22,300 cubic feet.

Coloring Putty Like Surface Saves Work

You can save yourself a lot of work if you color putty to match the surface rounding finish before it is applied. Just add some thick paint to the putty and then knead the putty until the coloring is even.

Don't pack your attic too full,
for this will reduce the circulation of air through the area and make the attic damp. If you build sawies in the attic, leave the backs open to insure good ventilation.

Galvanized warr. air heating ducts can be insulated by covering utility room, be sure there is ample area for fresh air to get into the room. If the area is sealed up tight, the heater cannot function properly no matter what sort of fuel it burns.

Wood Returns to Home Walls

Paneling Lends Itself to Any Period Design in Architecture

Soft textured, satiny, glowing interior paneling for parlor or playroom is coming back on the American homebuilding scene with a vim, chiefly because of its versatile beauty as well as for the utilitarian purposes that it was used by our forefathers in the hand-hewn stud and beam era.

The wonderful thing about interior paneling is that it lends itself to the spirit of any rooms in the house.

For instance Dutch Colonial or Early American patterns in a living, drawing room or library, finished in one of the lovely honey tones can provide a combination of warm dignity with true livability. The Paul Revere design, a name which conjures thoughts of past moments of history, can give a room an air of repose that is relieved by its clean lines.

No better example of the versatility of paneling can be shown than in the use of the same designs—Dutch Colonial, Early American or Paul Revere—in playrooms, dens, gunrooms, or, as a matter of fact, in bed rooms. Placed in a playroom, paneling gives off a feeling of friendly informality, cheerful and relaxing to host and guest.

In step with modern, functional motifs in homebuilding, there is a "streamline" design for horizontal paneling. This can be best finished in extremely light, or blond coloring.

Use of wood with a balanced soft texture is the secret of obtaining a completely satisfactory paneling job. Either clear wood or paneling with natural character markings can be used in any design with highly satisfactory results.

Too, paneling, particularly that made from soft pine, gives additional strength to a home, along with contributing insulation benefits.

Almost any room in the home can be finished according to the tastes of the owner with the same excellent results. Finishes now enjoying widespread use are light, medium and honey color, which are through which the decorative figure of the wood show to excellent advantage.

Necessity Fathers an Idea for Tots 'Timed' Toy Chest

STEVE ELLINGSON

The other day a lady dropped in for a visit. She said, "I have a good husband and he's a good father to our little boy Henry. He's the kind of a man that calls a spade a spade. But last night when we were coming home from a show, he stepped on little Henry's toy garden tools in the dark. Ever since, little Henry has been going around talking about his 'shovel'." This sort of talk has got to stop. Why don't you make a pattern for a child's toy chest so this can't happen again?"

cause the patterns are designed to be used by inexperienced amateurs.

A list of required materials is printed on each pattern along with easy-to-read step-by-step directions. An elaborate set of tools is not required. This is an inexpensive way to do your Christmas shopping—fun too.

The full size toy chest pattern No. 137 is available for 75c and No. C-1 are available for $1.00. You may obtain either the chest pattern or the toy patterns, or both, by sending the coin or currency to Steve Ellingson, The Pontiac Press, Van Nuys, California. (For prompt service, be sure to send to the California address.)

Snow Melting Done by Boiler

Heating Plant Capacity Sufficient to Take System in Stride

Although a snow melting system gives the house heating boiler an additional and most useful task to perform, it does not call for a costly expansion of the heating plant, the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau points out.

Most home heating plants are designed for outdoor temperatures of 10 degrees below zero or more. And, according to weather bureau records, 87 per cent of all snow falls when the temperature is between 10 and 35 degrees above zero.

Therefore, the boiler may be considered to have excess capacity, as far as demands of a snow melting system are concerned, the bureau says.

Piping for a snow melting system is installed beneath the surface of sidewalks and driveways. A hot anti-freeze solution is circulated through the piping to heat the overlying surfaces by conduction, melting snow as fast as it falls.

The boiler, of course, serves as the source of heat. The anti-freeze solution is heated in passing through a heat exchanger coil attached to the boiler, before reaching the piping beneath sidewalks and driveways.

All it takes is the flip of a switch to start the system at the first sign of a snow storm.

A residential snow melting system means the end of the snow shovel, and with it all the back and muscle aches that make a sudden cold snap accompanied by heavy snow so unwelcome. The cost of melting snow with a boiler? A mere five cents per operating hour.

A hanging shelf between regular shelves is handy for small items. It's easy to fashion one from a piece of 1/4-inch hardboard of the tempered pressed wood type. Suspend the shelf with long L hooks available at your hardware store. Paint or enamel to suit.

Snack Bar Popular Part of Home Living Kitchen

Snack bars are becoming an increasingly popular part of the up-to-date steel kitchen — so much so, in fact, that they have been important factors in making today's kitchen the center of family activities.

The modern "living kitchen" is a versatile room adaptable to entertainment or children's homework as well as to meal preparation and dining. A key feature of this versatility is the snack bar, which adds distinctiveness and usefulness to the kitchen.

Snack bars are particularly widespread in today's steel kitchens because of the ease and inexpensiveness with which they can be planned using standard steel cabinet units. The originality which an attractive built-in dining counter gives your kitchen can be planned to suit your individual personality and living habits.

Peninsula styling, which projects the snack bar at right angles from a row of base cabinets along the wall, is the most popular. However, if kitchen space won't permit this, a snack bar can be fashioned parallel with the wall simply by leaving an opening the width you desire in the row of base cabinets. A counter extended across this opening from the tops of adjacent base cabinets provides a handy, comfortable snack bar.

Peninsula-styled snack bars are easily planned simply by extending a counter into the room from a row of base cabinets, supporting

Burglar Waits for Police but Finally Gives Up

FALLS CITY, Neb. — An ex-convict who said he was ill and wanted to go back to prison described how he broke into a store and waited there six hours for someone to catch him—all to no avail.

James A. McKeon, 57, pleaded guilty to burglarizing the Marsh Grocery store at nearby Verdon. He said he ate some bananas and drank a quart of milk while he waited in the store.

"I had no idea I would get out without being caught," he said. McKeon said he finally gave up and left. He was arrested several days later at Stella, Neb.

Boys and Girls Benefit

OMAHA — For a number of years, rancher Lawrence Bixby has donated a calf for an annual sale here, with the money to go to an Omaha girls' home. Bixby went himself one better this year. He donated the calf, he bought it back for $137.50, with the carcass of the dressed animal to go to a boys' home here.

Newest Broom Is Lightweight, Long Lasting

Colorful new household brooms are made completely of bakelite styrene plastic, except for the wooden handle, and designed to withstand long, hard use and repeated washing. Monofilament styrene plastic fibers, which outlast natural bristles, are securely held in a bristle pad and cap both molded of bakelite polystyrene.

The broom is light in weight, and its strong, resilient fibers exert less drag on the floor while sweeping it clean. These brooms are easy to rinse and wash under a faucet or in warm suds because bakelite styrene is unaffected by water and alkali. The durable new brooms are available in red, yellow, green or blue.

Honey usually contains less than 20 per cent water.

Making Time Work for You

Busy Homemaker Can Use 7 Time-Savers to Her Advantage

It's time to find out where your time goes.

Probably as a busy homemaker you'll never achieve a 40-hour week. But you should have time for coffee breaks, for hobbies and home life, and for community work. If your time goes and you have too little for these activities, here are seven great time-savers you can put to work for you.

A work calendar. Take time to list your major activities for a week. Judge the amount of time necessary for each. This analysis alone will often show you ways to save time. Set up a flexible calendar, so that activities are distributed well through the week.

Proper rest periods. Take several short rests in the course of the day, rather than one long one. Sit down for as many tasks as you can. Give yourself a rest break after lunch, while the children are napping.

Easily cleaned materials. Such materials as tile in bathroom and kitchens are not only easily cleaned but also waterproof. The permanent finish of tile can be cleaned in a jiffy with a damp cloth.

Height of work surfaces. Check to be sure that counter tops, ironing boards and other work surfaces are the proper height for you. If you are shorter or taller than average, they probably are not.

Proper arrangement of equipment. Range, refrigerator and sink should not be widely separate. Items should be stored where they are used. Don't clutter up working storage space with seldom-used items and utensils.

Working satisfaction. People tire easily at jobs they do not like. Try to learn skill for these tasks, so that you will draw some pleasure from them.

A sense of proportion. Cut down on such non-essential tasks as daily dusting. Examine every household chore to determine how essential it is and how often it should be done. Save your energy for essential tasks and activities.

Soundproofing Walls Simple These 3 Ways

Some of us are pretty curious and like to know what goes on in the next room but most of us would, I believe, prefer peace and quiet. If you are one of the peace and quiet types, you might consider the advantages of soundproofing walls between quiet and noisy rooms.

If you plan a major redecorating project in one room, it makes the job of soundproofing pretty simple.

All you have to do is cut holes into the top of the partition, between the wall studs, and then pour loose fill insulation into the wall cavity. Naturally, the entire height of the partition should be filled with the insulation. After the insulation is in place, the holes can be patched and the wall painted.

Some people don't care for the idea of knocking holes in walls and the way for them to soundproof a wall is to first fasten to one side of the wall vertical strips of 2 in. by 3 in. stock.

These should be spaced 16 ins. from center to center. When these wood strips are in place, fasten lengths of 2 in. insulation between them. Now the insulation doesn't look very pretty so you'll have to cover the insulation over with some sort of finish wall panel. Plywood and gypsum board are fine for this purpose and so is decorative insulating board. The insulating board is probably the best for as it is softer than the plywood or gypsum board, it will absorb sound and therefore make the soundproofing project more effective.

For those who don't want to go to this much trouble, we suggest covering the wall with a heavy drape.

In the early days of glass making in the United States, glass makers used wood for fuel and had to move their plants when the wood supply was exhausted.

Tinsel Tree Is Space Saver

Today's small homes often present problems when suddenly you need space for your Christmas tree. Here's an idea for a space-saving "tree" that is as pretty from the outside as it is indoors.

First, place a large hook in the center of your window. Then, drape long strands of tinsel over the hook and fasten each strand to a long, narrow board placed on the floor beneath the window. Use enough tinsel strands to create a vertical tree shape.

Now, for the secret of your new style tree. Use three strings of pin-type socket Christmas lights concealed among the tinsel strands. These handy kits make it possible to place lights just where you need them and want them.

General Electric lighting specialists who developed this indoor-outdoor motif suggest that when using metal tinsel, place the sockets carefully to avoid getting strands of tinsel in the sockets. Always use the washers supplied with the kits for maximum safety.

Evergreen roping may also be used in place of tinsel. Both create a flat, close-to-the-wall tree which allows more passage space in small rooms.

U.S. Houses Turn Cheerful in Roof Color

A bird's eye view of the United States today is far more colorful than it was before World War II. The difference is in the variety of home roofing colors that dot the landscape.

To the traditional red, green, blue and black industrial research and consumer preference studies have added many new solid hues and blends in asphalt shingles, including white, gray-green, coral, russet, blue-green, pastel brown, and charcoal.

Florida and Southern California were the first areas to adopt "sunny" pastel-color building materials on a large scale, but pastels soon came into widespread use throughout the rest of the country.

People liked them immediately because they were "different" and cheerful.

Pastel roofing and siding also offer a practical advantage to owners of low one-story houses. Because of an optical illusion, light colors seem to expand an object, while dark colors make it look smaller.

Thus a roof of light-colored

5 Shelf Cabinet Is Hold-All— Soup to Shirts

This five-shelf kitchen cabinet holds all, shows all. The doors swing open to reveal two top drawers with a neat array of dish towels and table linens, and three lower drawers holding pie and muffin tins, pot covers, and miscellaneous utensils. The smooth-grained ponderosa pine wood readily takes any paint or natural finish. The cabinet is equally at home in a bedroom, where it can be used for shirts, ties, socks, handkerchiefs, and underwear. Most ponderosa pine kitchen cabinets, in fact, are suitable for other rooms of the house.

Colorful granules in asphalt roofing are functional as well as decorative. The granules help protect oils and resins in the roofing against the sun's rays, and they also increase the natural fire-resistance of asphalt roofing.

Brewer Killed in Plane Crash

Frederick Miller Dies of Injuries; Son, 2 Pilots Also Fatalities

MILWAUKEE (U)—A father-and-son holiday hunting trip to Canada yesterday turned into a flaming air crash death for four persons, including Frederick C. Miller, prominent Milwaukee brewer, civic leader and sports figure.

Miller's son, Frederick Jr., 20, died in the furiously burning plane along with the pilots, Joseph Laird, 38, and his brother Paul, 34, both of Milwaukee.

Miller, 48, a University of Notre Dame football star under the late Knute Rockne, died of injuries several hours after the crash.

The trip, planned as a hunting jaunt into the Canadian woods, was only a few seconds old when the Miller-owned twin-engine plane sputtered and plunged to the ground at 5:08 p.m. near a residential area north of Gen. Mitchell Field.

"My God, don't bother about me," Miller shouted to a resident who rushed to the wreckage.

There are three others in the plane. But searing flames drove back rescuers. Police and firemen were helpless.

Miller had been a star tackle at Notre Dame under the famed Rockne, who also died in a plane crash in 1931. Miller captained the Irish in 1928. He graduated a year later from the South Bend, Ind., school, where his son, Fred Jr., was a student.

He was president of the Miller Brewing Co., founded by his grandfather, and of the Milwaukee Assn. of Commerce.

Miller probably was best known for his support of big league baseball for Milwaukee. He sparked the drive to bring the Braves here from Boston and has since been a director of the baseball club and one of its most ardent backers. He was also a stockholder in the Green Bay Packers and a director of that National Football League club.

Woman of 80 Publishes Four-Page Weekly Paper

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)— You can see her most any day in the sleepy little town of Winslow, Ark.

A little old lady dashing through the streets, a battered felt hat on her head, a bundle of newspapers under her arm. A stranger passing through the Ozarks community would ask, "Who is she? A grandmother with a paper route?"

"Not exactly," say of the 400 persons in Winslow could answer. "She's Miss Maude—Mrs. Maude Duncan. She publishes those papers she's delivering."

Maude Duncan at 80 is owner, publisher, editor, reporter, printer, advertising salesman, circulation manager and carrier for the Winslow American, a four-page weekly, one of the few hand-set newspapers in the nation.

Her plant is a quaint, pine-boarded, one-room cabin heated with a wood-burning stove. Her press is wired-to hold it together in several places. Type is so scattered around the office you wonder how she finds enough to set a paragraph.

"I call the plant America's outstanding example of organized confusion," Mrs. Duncan laughed.

"Miss Maude" wrote her news as she sets the type by hand. After the forms are filled, she feeds sheet after sheet of paper into the aged press which she runs by a foot pedal.

The front page of the American is unique. It features such items as "bits of news" about

Charge NRP Group for Fascist Activity

WASHINGTON (U)—The Justice Department is studying a House Un-American Activities Committee report that urges prosecution of a New York organization described as "avowedly Fascist."

The report, released yesterday, termed the National Renaissance Party "clearly subversive and un-American." It recommended legal action under the anti-subversive Smith Act.

Named along with NRP was the semi-monthly publication "Common Sense," which the report called "a clearing house for hate propaganda throughout the country."

GOP Chief Says Ike Will Run Again in '56

OYSTER BAY, N.Y. (U)—Leonard W. Hall, Republican national chairman, "flatly" predicts that President Eisenhower will run for re-election in 1956.

Hall, speaking last night before the Oyster Bay Township Republican Committee, said:

"I can tell you now that Eisenhower will be the Republican candidate for President in 1956, in my opinion."

Asked later about his statement, Hall added:

"You can say it flatly."

Sentences Man to Church

GAFFNEY, S. C. (U)—A 25-year-old McKinnis mountain man must attend church each Sunday for the next six months or serve 30 days on the chain gang.

Magistrate Claude M. Mullinaz imposed the sentence on a defendant charged with public drunkenness. The defendant promised to comply.

Deaths Last Night

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP)—Dr. Albert W. Palmer, 78, a former moderator of the National Conference of the Congressional Christian Church, president of the Chicago Theological Seminary from 1900 to 1946, and a member of the ministry for the last 50 years.

WASHINGTON—George T. Liddell, 64, attorney and Presbyterian minister, and at one time a former city attorney of Rockford, Ill., and judge in Winnebago County, Illinois.

Beach Inquest in Adjournment

Testimony of 3 Doctors Conflicting as to Cause of Industrialist's Death

CHARLOTTE (UP)—A coroner's inquest into the death of wealthy industrialist Fitch H. Beach was adjourned until next Wednesday after three doctors testified at the opening session yesterday.

Dr. William Hoffer, Charlotte, testified at the inquest that he still believed cancer was the cause of Beach's death. Hoffer was the last physician to attend Beach before his death and listed cancer as the cause on Beach's death certificate.

Earlier, Dr. William Chynoweth, Battle Creek, testified that he had attended Beach three months before his death and found no traces of cancer.

The third doctor to testify, Dr. Robert Breake, Lansing, said he had operated on Beach in 1949 to remove a cancer of the prostate gland.

The controversy over Beach's death began after his cousin, Fred Beach, Chicago, asked that his body be exhumed because he had reason to believe the wealthy industrialist had been poisoned.

State physicians who examined Beach's body after the exhumation found no traces of either cancer or poisoning.

Beach's Chicago cousin was not named in his final will. The bulk of his $500,000 estate was left to a niece, Mrs. Irma Beatty, and her husband.

Replacement Value of Condemned Buildings Is at Least $12 Million

ANN ARBOR (UP)—Harlan H. Hatcher, president of the University of Michigan, told the university's regents yesterday that the state fire marshal had condemned at least 12 buildings on the Michigan campus, costing at least $12 million dollars to replace.

Hatcher reported to the regents that many of the university buildings, including the antique Roman Languages Building, West Medical Building, and two gymnasiums, had been condemned by the fire marshal. He said they totaled nearly 481,000 square feet of space, and at $25 per square foot would cost something like $12 million dollars to replace.

In other action, the regents accepted gifts and grants totaling $375,537, including $300,000 from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., to continue the evaluation study of the Salk polio vaccine.

Regent Leland I. Doan of Midland presented the university with 300 shares of Matheson Chemical Corp. common stock with a current valuation of $17,000. This is to be added a memorial fund established in the honor of regent Doan's mother.

The State Board of Alcoholism in Lansing granted $9,000 for further research in that field.

The Buick Motor Division of General Motors Corp., Flint, presented the university with nearly $7,000, most of it to cover the expenses of the Michigan marching band on a trip to Northwestern University this fall. Part of the money was given by Buick "in grateful appreciation" for the appearance of the band in Flint during GM's celebration of the building of the 50 millionth car.

Parted Siamese Twin Home for Christmas

CHICAGO (INS)—Little Rodney Dee Brodie today begins his third year of separation from his Siamese twin brother.

It was two years ago yesterday—Dec. 17, 1952—that doctors at Illinois Research Hospital performed the history-making operation that separated the three-year-old youngster from his brother, Roger Lee, with whom he was joined at the head.

Roger Lee never regained consciousness after the surgery and later died.

Rodney Dee is spending the Christmas holidays with his parents on their farm near Ferris, Ill. He is scheduled to return to the hospital Jan. 1 for further surgery to replace the artificial covering on his head.

Pontiac Man Injured in Two-Car Collision

Joseph E. Clifton, 55, of 1055 Vinewood Ave., was admitted to General Hospital early today after his auto collided with another on Baldwin and Strathmore Aves., according to Pontiac Police.

Sgt. Robert R. Cole, of the traffic and accident bureau, said the accident today was still pending investigation to determine how Clifton's auto struck one owned by Billy M. Johnson of 2300 Shimmers Rd., who was asleep in the car.

Cole said that Johnson was unaware of the accident, but hospital authorities reported Johnson as having been treated for minor forehead cuts. Clifton, who was unable to make a statement, was admitted for head cuts. He is in fair condition.

Victims' Mother Asks Motorists to Drive Safely

MUSKEGON (UP)—Mrs. Lee Smith twice has known the tragedy of losing members of her family in auto accidents.

A son, Edward, 14, was killed Christmas Eve, 1949, when he was struck by an auto while riding his bike. Another son, Loren, 16, was killed last Oct. 8 when he was struck by an auto as he walked along a rural highway.

Mrs. Smith, in a letter to the Muskegon Chronicle, pleaded for drivers to think of others during the holidays. She wrote:

"This letter is in memory of our son Edward, killed Christmas Eve, 1949, and also another son, Loren, killed this Oct. 8. Won't you folks who drive please drive slowly and carefully this Christmas season? You may save heartbreak for some family and heartaches for yourself and your family."

"It has been well advertised that liquor and gasoline don't mix. Speed and icy pavements do not mix well either. So won't you help to keep this a merry Christmas for all families."

Mrs. Lee Smith

Mr. and Mrs. Smith, who live in Muskegon's northwestern suburbs, are parents of six other children, three girls and three boys.

Mendes Demanding
Vote of Confidence

PARIS (AP)—Premier Pierre Mendes-France demanded a vote of confidence today after the National Assembly rebuffed his government on its Indochina budget. The vote, set for next Monday, may delay scheduled debate on German rearmament.

Mendes-France staked his government on the budget issue at the end of an all-night Assembly session during which the deputies defeated the Premier 301-291 in one voting and gave him only slim majorities on two others. The balloting was on technical points concerning the Indochina budget.

The Assembly debate reflected mounting criticism of the government's handling of the Indochina situation. Several deputies who recently visited Saigon said the West's position in South Viet Nam is deteriorating rapidly.

New AF School Seeks Students

Only 1,654 Nominated So Far After Request for 6,000 Applicants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force, which asked 6,000 nominations from which to select 300 students for its new academy, has received only 1,654 to date.

Congress members, who have two more months in which to nominate their selections, gave a number of reasons for the delay including a desire to hear from all applicants who want to be considered.

The Air Academy's first class is to report next July at Lowry Air Force Base near Denver, Colo., for air training comparable to that given potential Army and Navy officers at West Point and Annapolis, respectively.

A deadline of Feb. 18 has been set for the nominations, most of which are allotted to senators and representatives. Each may nominate 10. Other nominations may come from other sources, including the President and vice-president.

Also allotted nominations are the territories of Hawaii and Alaska, the District of Columbia, the Panama Canal Zone and Puerto Rico.

To qualify for nomination a man must be a citizen, between 17 and 22, of good moral character, unmarried, and able to pass the stringent mental and physical exams.

Once a man is nominated he must compete against the other nominees from his state or area. Final selections will be made by the Air Force Academy Admissions Board after the examinations.

Sports to Set Retirement

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — United States Sen. A. Willis Robertson, elected to a new six year term, told an audience here when he was going to retire.

"I'll know when I'm too old to serve you. You won't have to tell me," the senator said. "That time will be when I'm too old for hunting and fishing."

AIDE—Nelson Rockefeller will soon be named a White House administrative assistant on foreign policy. At present he is Undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Anonymous Gift of $1,000 in Cash Made by Woman

CHICAGO (AP) — An elderly woman played the role of Santa Claus yesterday and, after leaving her gift of $1,000 for a chapel, slipped away like Santa before she was identified.

The money, ten $100 bills, was in an envelope the woman handed Miss Marie Maloney, receptionist at the Harris Trust and Savings Bank in the loop. It was marked: "Frank R. Elliott, for the Presbyterian Home Chapel."

Miss Maloney said she did not know what was in the envelope and dropped it into the bank's house mail. "I don't know how many hands it must have passed through," she said.

But Elliott, a past president of the bank and president of the home's board of directors, got the envelope with the $1,000 and a note signed, "from a friend for the Presbyterian Home."

"An anonymous gift is truly an unselfish one," Elliott said.

Bridegroom Is Confused

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The Rev. Felix V. Hanson reports a marriage ceremony at which the bridegroom was so nervous he kissed the preacher and handed the customary fee to the bride.
