

Donald Kelly Towers Over Michael Winterbottom

Teacher Rescues Boy, 5, From Swamp

By JOE MULLEN

Physical education teacher Donald E. Kelly yesterday waded out nearly 50 feet in a swamp near Lotus Lake and pulled a 5-year-old boy, whose legs had slipped through the ice, to safety.

Kelly of 6410 Lotus, Waterford Township, was enjoying an Easter week holiday at home, when neighbor Mrs. Gray don Gray of 3892 Percy King knocked on the door and alerted him to the boy's plight.

He rushed to the swamp and saw little Michael Winterbottom struggling to stay above water by bracing himself with outstretched arms on the remaining ice.

"I waded out to where it was chest high on me," said the 6-foot-2 teacher at Washington Junior High School.

"Then I extended a 2-by-4 about six feet long and pulled the boy to me," Kelly said. "I don't know how deep it was where Michael broke through the ice."

GOOD CONDITION

Michael, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Winterbottom of 3966 Percy King was taken to Pontiac General Hospital. He was found to be in good condition and was released.

Kelly said the boy, who had been playing on the ice, was screaming loudly when he arrived at the swamp.

"He quieted down when I got him in my arms," said the teacher, "but he was very cold and shivering and could hardly talk."

Waterford Township patrolman James A. Weiss who was also alerted by Mrs. Gray to the possible tragedy, said that the police department will recommend a heroism citation for Kelly, from the township board.

KNEW BOY

Kelly, 39, said he lives about a block from the Winterbottoms and had often seen Michael, a preschooler, playing in the neighborhood.

Area residents in the past have expressed concern about the dangers of the swamp and have considered having the area at the northeast end of Lotus Lake filled in or fenced.

LBJ, Rusk Vow to Continue Effort for Viet Peace Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Apparent collapse of another Vietnamese peace effort has brought fresh promises from President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk that they will persist in trying to move the war to the conference table.

But Washington officials view the prospects for success as growing constantly more gloomy.

At the same time, however, administration leaders reportedly believe the United States is now ahead of Hanoi in the battle for world opinion as a result of Hanoi's spurning peace proposals from Johnson and U.N. Secretary General U Thant.

In a guarded reference to this diplomatic and propaganda side of the conflict, Rusk told a news conference Tuesday:

"If Hanoi supposes that somehow international opinion will come to their rescue, surely they must know that when they rebuff the United Nations organization... this will not bring them support in other parts of the world."

'AFFIRMATIVE REPLY'

At the White House, Johnson said in addressing a luncheon that the United States had given a "positive... definitive... affirmative" reply to a three-point peace plan advanced by Thant March 14.

Monday, Johnson said, "We regretfully learned from Radio Hanoi that they were informing the world that they were apparently not prepared to accept the secretary-general's proposal."

The Hanoi broadcast denounced the United States as the "aggressor" in Vietnam, and declared that "the United Nations has absolutely no right to interfere in any way with the Vietnam question."

Crime Causing Climate of Fear in U.S.—Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson pictures Americans as living in a "climate of fear" generated by crime in the streets. U.S. crime statistics, he says, are "our national disgrace."

Johnson made the statements last night in calling for speedy enactment of his anticrime legislation, terming it "fundamental to the safety of the individual, the security of the home and the enduring stability of our great society."

Addressing about 600 law enforcement and court officials, participants in the National Conference on Crime Control, Johnson said "white-collar" crimes — petty theft, embezzlement, consumer fraud and antitrust violations — " dwarf all crimes of violence" in purely economic terms.

"The grim statistics of our crime record is our national disgrace," he said. But more important than any figures on crime, he added, is "the climate of fear that crime creates."

Johnson aimed some of his remarks directly at the police officials, judges and investigators in his audience.

GOAL

The conference seeks to spark implementation of the more than 200 recommendations made by the President's National Crime Commission in its report last month.

"Many of you are on the front lines in the fight against crime," Johnson said. "You know the dreary and you know the danger of that fight, and the occasional small triumphs that really make it all very worthwhile."

The conferees, in one of a series of panel discussions, went into investigating organized crime — and agreed a principal difficulty is that police don't trust each other sufficiently to pass along vital information on organized crime.

At another panel they considered problems they had encountered in trying to upgrade their departments. They agreed police must attract better educated officers. At the same time, some felt that to offer higher pay for more education would seriously impair the morale of patrolmen who never went to college.

BREEDING PLACES

Noting that crime "breeds in the cesspools of injustice and poverty in urban slums and the ghettos," Johnson said "a major part of our assault on crime must be an attack on the conditions of despair and denial of human opportunity in which it can grow."

Taubman Given Extension; Taylor Blames 'Outsiders'

By DAVID J. COOK

"Outside interests" are working to undermine the Taubman plan for downtown Pontiac and "one of these days I'll prove it," Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. declared at a crowded City Commission meeting last night.

Taylor's charges came during heated discussion of a pending resolution to grant developer A. Alfred Taubman an

"At least one good store is being enticed outside the city and I can tell you two more will follow them," Taylor warned an audience of some 70 persons.

Although the mayor told newsmen, "You don't have to read between the lines to know who I mean," he refused to identify the store in question.

ADDITIONAL TIME

Commissioners voted 6-1 to give Taubman additional time — as provided in the original agreement — with District 2 Commissioner Robert C. Irwin casting the single dissent.

Irwin opened discussion on the motion with disclosure he had talked by telephone earlier in the day with A. Dean Swartzel, assistant regional administrator for Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in Chicago.

"If the city is wrong in its approach," Irwin said he was told, "it could — I say could — be forced to reimburse the government for every penny of federal funds put into our urban renewal lands."

Federal monies presently invested in projects R20 and R44 are estimated at upwards of $5 million.

FURTHER OPPOSITION

Opposition to further extension of the city's agreement with Taubman also came from the Citizens Committee for Pontiac's Positive Progress (CCPPP).

Committee Chairman Donald H. Frayer read a prepared four-point statement questioning the progress of development plans and demanding the commission (Continued on Page A-2, Col. 1) additional six months in which to obtain major tenants for a proposed shopping center.

Martin Remains as Fed Director

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has redesignated William McChesney Martin Jr., as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, the White House announced today.

The announcement ended lengthy speculation over whether Martin would be continued as chairman of the board. Martin's views at times have differed with those of the President, particularly on interest rates.

Press Secretary George Christian said the new designation as chairman is for the remainder of Martin's present 14-year term as a member of the board, ending Jan. 31, 1970.

At the same time, Christian announced that Charles N. Shepardson will have to retire as a member of the board April 30.

At that time, Shepardson will have reached the age of 70 with more than 15 years of government service. Under Civil Service law, this requires mandatory retirement barring a presidential waiver.

NO WAIVER

Christian made clear that Shepardson will not be given a waiver by saying the President will appoint a successor.

Since the balance on the board is extremely close, Johnson's selection of a successor to Shepardson could have considerable bearing on board policies.

Massive Hunt in Chicago for Kidnap, Girl

CHICAGO (AP) — More than 100 police and 30 FBI agents are on one of the city's biggest manhunts in years for the kidnaper of an 8-year-old daughter of an unemployed migrant from Loeble, Ky.

Black-haired Carrie Stephens, one of four children of Daniel Stephens, 41, and his wife, Alice, 30, disappeared Monday night with a man who said he needed help in finding his dog.

He appeared while Carrie and five playmates were in front of the Stephens' home in the up-town district, densely populated by migrants from rural sections of other states. He offered a dollar to anyone who could find his missing dog.

Three boys looked in one direction while Carrie and two girls went with the stranger in another. The girls told police the man finally grasped Carrie's arm and led her away.

Police artists, with the youngsters' help, made a sketch of the stranger and 7,500 copies were given to searchers. The composite was that of a portly man of about 40 years old, medium height, wearing horn-rim glasses, a three-quarter length tan coat, a red and white shirt and dark trousers.

SEARCH AREA

The hunt by detectives, police, agents, friends and neighbors covered a two-mile radius. They pried into alleys, secluded basements and isolated areas in nearby Lincoln Park. City crews joined with police and dogs of the K9 corps in checking sewers.

There was no trace of the girl or her clothing.

Deputy Patrol Chief Robert Lynskey, ordering a house-to-house canvass of the area, said Tuesday that chances of finding the girl were good. He said he believed no car was involved in the kidnapping and that the girl and her abductor still were in the area. But the mother sobbed: "I don't think there's much hope left."

Dems Vote Today on House Leader

LANSING (UPI) — House Democrats today will end their week of old-fashioned family feuds with a secret ballot to choose a new leader to succeed the late Joseph Kowalski.

Rep. Arthur J. Law of Pontiac, a former assistant caucus chairman, is one of the top three contenders for the post.

Running ahead, but apparently still short of a majority, is William A. Ryan of Detroit, the 47-year-old current caucus chairman.

Also in the running is Albert R. Horrigan of Flint. Horrigan was speaker pro tem in 1965-66.

Intense campaigning for Kowalski's job as House Democratic leader will climax at a high-security caucus.

It's Time to Think Spring!

Everything's coming up spring as the weatherman predicts increasing cloudiness and temperatures in the 60s tomorrow.

The clouds may even bring a few showers by late tomorrow afternoon or night to coax the daffodils and tulips into wearing their colorful spring costumes.

Tonight will be fair with lows falling between 34 to 40.

This morning's northeasterly winds of 8 to 16 miles will swing to the east southeast by tonight.

It looks like March will go out like a lamb as the forecast for Friday continues the partly cloudy and mild trend.

Low temperature reading in downtown Pontiac prior to 8 a.m. was 33. By 2 p.m. it warmed to 54.

CIA Is Ordered to Begin Halting All Subsidies to Private Groups

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson ordered the Central Intelligence Agency today to begin cutting off all subsidies to private educational, philanthropic and cultural organizations.

State Income Tax Estimate Increased

LANSING (AP) — Revised estimates show Gov. George Romney's proposed income tax would raise $33 million more in its first year of operation than original estimates indicated, Budget Director Glen Allen said today.

Allen said revised estimates show the tax package would gain $308 million in additional revenue in its first year 1967-68 compared with an original estimate of $235 million, Allen said.

In addition, full year implementation of the tax would result in $307 million in additional revenue for the state compared with the Budget Bureau's original estimate of $235 million, Allen said.

Johnson also announced he is setting up a special committee—to include private citizens—to study ways in which the government can channel financial aid to such organizations in an open manner.

The President acted after receiving a report from a three-man committee he appointed last month after a storm of controversy followed disclosure that the CIA was making secret subsidies to the National Students Association, certain labor unions and other groups.

The committee proposed, in a key finding that "no federal agency shall provide any covert financial assistance or support, direct or indirect, to any of the nation's educational or private voluntary organizations."

Johnson said in a statement he accepts this policy.

Work Is Authorized on 2 Storm Sewers

City commissioners last night formally authorized construction involved in two storm sewer projects and deferred for consideration a bid for modernization of the sewage treatment plant.

Biggest of the three proposals is designed to provide a "permanent solution" to storm water problems adjacent to Oakland Avenue south of the Grand Trunk Western Railroad belt line.

Joseph E. Nepling, director of public works and services, told commissioners construction of a storm sewer to handle runoff in the area would cost some $32,400.

Noting that Oakland is a state trunkline, Nepling further suggested the city attempt to negotiate participation in the project by the State Highway Department.

His recommendation that the proposal be financed with monies from the 1967 capital improvement fund received unanimous support of commissioners.

SIMILAR AUTHORIZATION
The commission similarly authorized appropriation of $4,320 for construction of a storm drain along the western boundary of Oak Hill Cemetery.

City Affairs

Nepling said the proposed drain is intended to relieve a severe flooding problem experienced during storm periods by residents of Moreland Street.

A one-week deferral was ordered by commissioners for further administrative study of bids received last yesterday on modernization of the city's "old" sewage treatment plant.

The Steve Krucko Co. submitted an apparent low bid of $17,310 for installation of various equipment and certain alterations in the plant.

REVIEW NECESSARY?
Nepling said, however, that it was "still necessary" for the engineering staff to review the proposals, designed to update the plant location abutting Featherstone and East Boulevard.

Commissioners also approved a recommendation by Nepling that the city receive new bids April 24 on proposed sidewalk replacement on Pontiac's west side.

Bids placed last fall for sidewalk construction in an area bounded by Huron, Telegraph, Elizabeth Lake and State were considered too high by city engineers.

Amended Heating Ordinance Adopted

An amended heating ordinance, including a new schedule of fees, was unanimously adopted by city commissioners last night.

In addition, four appointments to the Heating Examining Board were formally confirmed.

The new ordinance, drawn together by the city engineering staff, sets forth specific regulations governing installation of both heating units and humidifiers.

Under the statute, the City of Pontiac becomes the sole heating licensing agent for all communities north of Eight Mile Road in Oakland County.

Enforcement of the regulations thus required appointment of the examining board in addition to a Heating Appeal Board.

ON EXAMINING BOARD

Named to the examining board were Charles Dill Sr. of 135 Orchard Lake (one year); Neil H. McCormick of 38 Ellwood (two years); Stanley Eibling of 7112 (three years); and Dale Carney of 350 S. Telegraph (four years).

City ordinance No. 1557 as adopted by the commission last night sets fees for licenses, permits, inspections and other services performed by contractors.

Two Ranking Officials Make Last Appearances

Last night's meeting of the City Commission marked the final official appearances of two ranking Pontiac officials.

Philip E. Rowston, director of law, is resigning effective April 1 to enter private practice.

His replacement has not yet been named.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. read a resolution commending Rowston on his service to Pontiac as city attorney for the past 21 months.

Marvin M. Alward, director of finance, whose retirement does not become effective until next fall, likewise indicated the meeting would be his final session.

TO TAKE OVER
Edward R. Gallagher, named March 14 to replace Alward, is scheduled to take over the finance post April 3.

Alward is expected to remain in a consultant capacity pending his official retirement.

Hero Honored for 'Doing His Job'

"I feel very proud—proud I could do my job. I've always tried to do my job. I'm proud to be able to serve."

The mild-mannered Army medic who spoke those words had just received the Congressional Medal of Honor from President Johnson. Before an honor guard representing the four branches of the American military and the Coast Guard, he was accorded homage normally reserved for visiting heads of state.

The job that Spec. 6 Lawrence Joel was proud to do was to drag himself in agony among other wounded U.S. soldiers on a blazing Vietnam battlefield for more than 12 hours, binding up their wounds and shouting encouragement as he ignored his own excruciating pain.

Spec. 6 JOEL is 39 years old. He is a native of Winston-Salem, N.C., where he once worked on a truck, selling firewood in the city's slums. He is a Negro.

There will be those who won't understand why he did what he did. But most Americans will. They know he did it because he is a brave man and a patriot—and proud.

As long as there are men like him in this Country, America will stand tall and strong. Thank you Spec. 6 Joel. We are proud that you are proud.

Legal Light Reflects Dim View of Lawlessness

Freedom of expression is as basic and inalienable a right under representative government as freedom of the press. But, by no stretch of the imagination can the principle of freedom of expression be stretched to include mass defiance of laws governing an orderly society.

Former Supreme Court Justice CHARLES E. WHITTAKER points to the warning of history that every society which became lawless soon succumbed, and that the first evidence of each society's decay appeared in the toleration of disobedience of its laws and the judgments of its courts.

"It can hardly be denied, says Whittaker, that a large part of our current rash and rapid spread of lawlessness has derived from planned and organized mass disrespect for, and defiance of, the law and the courts, induced by the irresponsible and inflammatory preachments of some self-appointed leaders of minority groups."

The remedy, he declares, is as plain as the threat. It is simply to insist that our governments, state and Federal, reassume and discharge their "first duty" of protecting the people against lawless invasions upon their persons and property by the impartial and vigorous enforcement of our criminal laws and by the swift, certain and substantial punishment of all persons whose conduct violates those laws.

Those who genuinely believe in freedom of speech and press and all of our other freedoms in the United States should be well aware of the distinction between freedom and license.

Afghanistan Swims With History's Current

The brief visit to the United States of Prime Minister MOHAMMED MAIWALD of Afghanistan serves as a reminder of how little is known of that landlocked central Asian country. Afghanistan is the same size as Texas, and even more populous, but the two are not to be compared in terms of renown.

This was not always so. Afghanistan's strategic location made it a crossroads of trade and conquest for centuries. ALEXANDER the Great, MARCO POLO, and GENGHIS KHAN, among others, traveled across the rugged landscape of Afghanistan in search of treasure or empire.

Two bloody wars were fought by the British to gain control of the country. In 1879, an agreement was reached that gave Britain control of Afghanistan's foreign relations in return for a large payment of money each year to the Afghan ruler. Another British-Afghan war broke out, however, and though the British won, they granted the country independence in 1921.

Afghanistan has remained independent in the purest sense of the word. Although it borders the two most powerful Communist countries in the world—the Soviet Union and Red China—Afghanistan has resolutely followed a policy of nonalignment. As a result, it has received aid from and maintained cordial relations with both Moscow and Washington.

LBJ Avoiding European Trip

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — President John F. Kennedy made a big thing of Europe. He went there twice in his 34 months as president. Relations with the allies looked good. Europeans loved him and mourned when he died.

It's the opposite with President Johnson. He has been in office 40 months and hasn't gone near Europe. Relations with the allies are beginning to look tattered and he is widely criticized for the Vietnam war.

If he went now, his reception might not be happy. Instead, he has sent Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey on a two-week tour of Europe. Humphrey is not supposed to be going as Johnson's substitute.

But it's obvious this is a fence-mending mission. Why hasn't Johnson gone in his almost 3 1/2 years in the White House? He may feel, and probably would say, he has been too busy. It seems unlikely he could have been that busy.

In his first full year in office, 1964, Johnson might have made such a trip. But that was an election year. Johnson had a big job to learn. Yet, Kennedy went to Europe in his first year, although 1961 was not an election year.

That was the happy part of the year for him. The Vietnam side was grisly for him. The kind of reputation he'd get is uncertain and he is extremely sensitive man.

full involvement. It didn't work.

In February 1965, in order of the bombing of North Vietnam, Johnson began to step up the war. Then he piled U.S. troops into the fighting. Vietnam has been a monkey on his back ever since.

Despite his success with Congress in 1965, Johnson's prestige at home and abroad dwindled as American involvement in Vietnam got deeper and more bloody. Even so, another president in his place might have ventured an European trip.

But Johnson is a man who, once he is committed to something, pours his waking hours into it. He has stayed on top of the war every minute, apparently being less concerned with Congress which never since has matched its 1965 record.

There is probably a more personal, and therefore a more basic, reason for Johnson's failure to go abroad. The kind of reputation he'd get is uncertain and he is extremely sensitive man.

Keeping A Lot Of People Waiting!

Bargaining Ills Go Unremedied

WASHINGTON — A wave of serious strikes is likely this year. All signs point to interruptions in work which will cost the nation plenty of money apart from the inconvenience and indirect damage to persons not involved in the disputes.

Oddly enough, even though this threat to the economic stability of the nation has been intermittent for many years, nothing has been done by Congress, as the representative of the people, to provide a constructive alternative. Major contracts involving 3.1 million workers will expire this year.

It has long been conceded that workers have a right to organize unions.

Large groups with the strike weapon in their hands, however, are able to disrupt the economic system by forcing higher prices which the public is sometimes unable to meet. Then demand declines and the result is unemployment among union workers in other industries as well.

An examination of the collective bargaining process, moreover, reveals that it has weaknesses which have gone unremedied.

GAMBLING GAME
Collective bargaining, especially when carried on by powerful labor unions, is indeed a gambling game. It is a form of collective deception in which each side tries to outsmart the other.

Often the negotiations are prolonged. The tendency is to assume that the first offer is not the last and that, if pressed further, management representatives will go a little higher each time.

Then, when the company finally says the limit has been reached, the labor side more often than not considers this a bluff and keeps on threatening a strike or actually orders one so as to emphasize a refusal to accept what has been proposed.

Repeated efforts have been made in recent years to get legislative action on these problems.

OBJECTIONS OFFERED
Compulsory arbitration has been advocated, but both labor and management have offered objections.

Picket lines, established by one union, are respected by other labor groups, even though the latter have no connection with the dispute and have not attempted through their leaders to form a judgment as to whether the striking union is right in what it is doing.

Present-day theory is that, when a picket line has been formed, it is as valid as if it had been authorized by a court order.

Nor is there any method available by which the proposals of management and labor can be examined instantly as to their fairness and equity if a strike is threatened or called.

Collective bargaining remains a form of collective bluffing, and the innocent bystander pays the penalty.

Bob Considine Says:

Dallas DA Not Scaffolding at Assassination Probe

DALLAS — "I don't know what's going on in New Orleans with that Kennedy assassination conspiracy case," Dallas County DA, Henry Wade, said.

"Jim Garrison doesn't tell anybody anything. He doesn't even talk to the FBI."

But there was no scoff in the voice of the man who would have presided over the prosecution of Lee Harvey Oswald, and who did prosecute Oswald's murderer, Jack Ruby, and won a death verdict. Wade is vaguely disturbed about the New Orleans business.

"It has always been a little hard for me to believe Oswald did what he did," he said. "I can't see him planning the whole thing alone."

"He was warped all right, but he wasn't pure nut. That's the reason why I give a little substance to the charges Garrison has made."

IN CUSTODY
Oswald was in custody from the afternoon of Friday, Nov. 22, 1963, shortly after the murders of the president and the grandstander in the following Sunday around noon.

He was permitted to sleep about eight hours Friday and Saturday nights. The remainder of the time he was questioned by Dallas Police Chief Will Fritz and by FBI and Secret Service agents.

What did he say during that long grilling?

"I can't help you on that," Wade said when asked, "Fritz did most of the questioning, but he doesn't take notes. None of the old Q. and A. for Fritz."

TURN NEVER CAME

"I suppose the FBI and Secret Service might have, but I don't know what happened to their material."

"I never took part in the questioning. My turn was going to come when he arrived at the county court house and lockup. But he never got there, of course."

I told Wade I had heard on a radio news show that the family of Ruby had decided to present the snubbed murder weapon to the National Archives in Washington.

"Really?" Wade said, with a start. "That announcement is a little premature. I have the gun right here in Dallas."

"I've felt that it should be a part of exhibits in this case, and I still feel that way."

"But it isn't up to the Ruby family or to me. When the time comes, I'll turn it over to a judge here in Dallas and he'll make the decision about what should be done with it."

Too many chiefs and not enough Indians is the way to describe the situation in the Michigan House, at least on one side of the aisle.

Until Kowalski's seat is filled by special election, the Democrats will be outnumbered 55-44.

The crucial nature of each of these 109 votes is enough to bring out the statesman or the grandstander in any of the state representatives.

Some rather significant matters can hang on one man's vote.

The new floor leader will have plenty to say on the shape of Gov. Romney's legislative program.

Rep. William A. Ryan of Detroit is believed to have the inside track, but with so many candidates for the job the vote may be split so many ways as to open the door to a compromise choice.

But fighting the Republicans and bargaining with Gov. Romney won't be the new floor leader's only tasks. Party discipline is a problem, what with a "Young Turk"

Voice of the People:

Pontiac Press Lists Rules for Writing VOP Letters

Here again are the simple rules covering letters to the Voice of the People. This feature has very high readership as residents are anxious to know what their neighbors are thinking. Every letter must have a name and address. When the communication is not sharply critical of a private individual or firm, writers can use a pen name if they wish. However, if you want to assail someone, it isn't fair to your victim to hide behind an anonymous name.

Many letters contain statements which would subject the writers (and The Press) to libel suits. We recognize most of these but when we are in doubt we refer them to our attorneys and are guided accordingly.

We can't run letters that are purely personal matters between an individual and his favorite enemy or an individual and a firm at which he's "mad." Try and keep your letters within 200 words or less. Even then, to conserve space most letters will be edited.

We cannot publish letters of personal thanks or poetry, due to space limitations. Matters concerning race and religion must be signed. All subjects must be of genuine, communitywide interest. Send in your thoughts. They're welcomed.

Two Express Views on Michigan's Finances

What has happened to our state with its financial problems? Governor Romney patted himself on the back, saying, "look what I did." The State's financial problems are over. We have millions in surplus funds. Governor Romney failed to state he had very little to do with that surplus. Those dollars came from approximately 25 per cent increase in sales tax which increased the State's revenue by about $1 billion.

Now Governor Romney wants more money. We need a government that can live within its means like we overburdened taxpayers must. Why is it necessary for the taxpayers' dollars to be of so little value when government gets hold of them?

BERNARD SHAW

No taxpayer should be impressed or influenced by the wide coverage of the views of the eight professors of economics who announced support for Governor Romney's economic state income tax. The eight professors, all on public payrolls, represent one vote each and speak for their own ideologies. It is not too difficult to suggest a panacea when you rely on ideology and value judgments rather than facts.

Mr. Rene A. Wormser of the New York Bar, writing in the January issue of the American Bar Association Journal, concludes that the middle economic class bears an unfair tax burden and demonstrates that a state income tax such as proposed by Governor Romney actually reverses the "ability to pay" principle.

This is so because a state income tax is deductible on the federal income tax return and the deduction will in effect reduce your federal income tax liability. Obviously, the higher your state income tax, the more the deduction is worth to you. This "fact" seems to have been overlooked by the professors when they made their value judgments.

Twigg's Magic

Chicago Daily News

The Twigg Phenomenon, like so many of the rages of the tuned-in generation, is more than baffling to elders sunk in paucity middle age.

How does it happen that a 17-year-old moppet from London is the hottest property in the fashion world?

Twigg — her real name is Leslie Hornby — stands 5 feet 6, weighs 90 pounds, and her measurements add up, as Twigg admits, to "not really too you call a figure."

But at $120 an hour for modeling she can afford a giggle or two on her way to the bank.

Fashion writers who have joined the gaga parade are hard put to explain Twigg's magic. She has been called the new Harlow and also the boy next door, which is a reach unequaled at least in recent memory.

But the magic is there, and she seems destined to sell quite a bundle of clothes before her type of figure before she goes home with a bundle for Britain.

Both as a phenomenon and as a helper toward the British trade balance, she may yet rival the Beatles.

Goodness knows we have nothing against skinny 17-year-olds. And the adoration of a mini-bosomed blond stands in refreshing contrast to other recent trends.

Still, we have a slight twinge of apprehension about Twigg and her mod fashions. If they catch on, who will wear them? We can practically hear the screams bursting from coast to coast.

Photographers of UFO Flunk Lie Detector Test

DETROIT (AP)—Two Mount Clemens area boys who took pictures of what they said was an unidentified flying object in an unidentified penthouse — the truth were described Tuesday as failing to pass a polygraph (lie detector) test.

Dan Janowski, 17, and his 15-year-old brother, Grant, took the tests at the request of their father, Alfred, reported WJBK-TV in an exclusive interview.

"Based on these charts, I could not clear them," said Ed Hennessey, who administered the tests. Hennessey is head of a Detroit lie detection equipment laboratory.

"But boys of their age are not usually run on polygraph tests," he added, "and the present circumstances caused some nervousness. I noticed it in both boys."

Hennessey said that if adults had taken the tests and finished with similar results, he would "advise authorities to continue their investigation."

After the test results were announced, Dan and Grant both stuck to their story that they had seen a UFO and photographed it.

"I probably will try another test with another operator," said the boys' father, "and sodium pentothal — the truth drug."

The father requested the tests, WJBK said, after Dr. J. Allen Hynek, an Air Force consultant on UFOs, announced earlier this week that the boys' pictures have been duplicated by the Air Force.

He said that as far as he is concerned, the duplication removes the boys' pictures from the list of credible UFO sightings.

The boys said they took the pictures in January outside their home in Mount Clemens, about 30 miles north of Detroit.

Senate Okays Five Driver's License Bills

LANSING (AP) — A bill requiring out-of-state drivers to surrender their licenses when applying for a Michigan license was one of five motor vehicle and drivers license measures approved unanimously by the Senate Tuesday.

Senators approved and gave immediate effect to a bill passed by the House, which would require drivers to surrender all licenses from other jurisdictions when obtaining a Michigan license.

The measure is designed to eliminate the possibility that Michigan drivers whose licenses have been suspended could drive illegally on a license from another state.

Another measure would require the driver of any vehicle colliding with another vehicle to stop and notify the operator or owner of the other vehicle, or police, of his name and address.

Also passed was a bill removing the requirement that chauffeur's license applications contain the applicant's thumbprint and forbidding the use of an altered drivers license with unlawful intent.

The altered license measure is aimed at minors who change drivers license in order to obtain alcoholic beverages, the bill's backers said.

Another bill would allow chauffeur's licenses to expire on the licensee's birthday and permit renewal three months prior to expiration.

The Senate also approved unanimously a bill sponsored by Sen. Thomas Schweigert, R-Petoskey, to establish an experimental game management area on Beaver Island and Little Beaver Island in northern Lake Michigan.

Senators turned down, 7-27, a bill sponsored by Sen. James Fleming, R - Jackson, which would have allowed agents or officers of the Department of State to request warrants for criminal charges.

The bill's opponents said it would give police powers to the secretary of state's office.

School District Nears End

By JANICE KLOUSER
WHITE LAKE TOWNSHIP — In three months, the Dublin School District will cease to exist.

On July 1, the little one-school district will become part of the Walled Lake System — a move approved by voters last October.

The merger is part of a state plan to eliminate districts through 12th grade program.

Unlike some districts where citizens often object to becoming part of a larger system, residents and school staff alike are in favor of the merger, according to Schools Supt. Nelson O'Shaughnessy.

"We've always been strongly in favor of annexation," he said. "Even the students are happy about it. In fact, they were the ones that got their parents to sign petitions."

GAIN 2 GRADES

There are presently 850 pupils attending the Dublin School and 329 high schoolers from the one-school district attending Walled Lake.

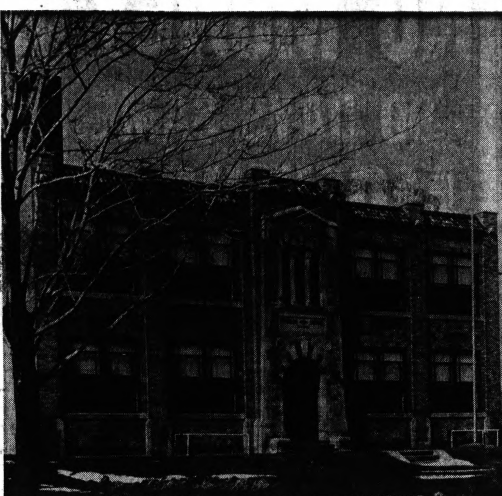

O'Shaughnessy pointed out that Walled Lake schools will only be gaining two grades in addition to what they now accommodate.

"They already have our four high school grades," he said, "and they have to absorb the seventh and eighth grades."

Dublin School will still be used for the elementary children.

PROBLEM

For 20 years the little district has had a problem providing an education for its high school students.

Dublin School, 9260 Sandyside, White Lake Township, to Change Hands

In 1946, Pontiac, where 11th and 12th graders had been attending high school, decided it could take no more tuition students. So Dublin applied to several of its neighbors and was finally accepted by Walled Lake.

In 1948, the 10th graders were sent to Walled Lake and in 1950, the ninth graders moved there. "It's difficult to build a high school and a proper curriculum because we are so small and have such a low valuation," said O'Shaughnessy. "In fact, it's frowned upon by the state."

BEHIND AVERAGE

With a valuation of $5,139,000, the district has $4,400 behind each pupil as compared to the state average of $13,000 in other areas.

"We've been fortunate that the people have voted in operating millage," O'Shaughnessy said. Currently the district levies 26.6 mills for operating and 1.9 mills for debt retirement.

When the merger became effective, Dublin residents will find their operating taxes lowered as Walled Lake's total millage, including operating and debt retirement, is 26.30 mills.

They will, however, continue to pay about 1 mill for debt retirement on their school building but the bond issue should be paid off by 1972, according to O'Shaughnessy.

GREATER ADVANTAGES

By becoming part of a larger district, Dublin may lose the close contact between administration, staff, students and parents, along with being able to handle problems on an individual basis, but those involved feel the advantages are more than the disadvantages.

The move will permit a school library which has been nonexistent until now, it will provide art and instrumental music programs, there will be more opportunities for testing and guidance, there is a possibility of a hot lunch program, and pupils who need it may take advantage of the special education program without waiting as they have in the past.

At first, the teachers were concerned about where they might be placed, but that has all been settled, according to O'Shaughnessy. Most of them will likely remain at the Dublin School, he said.

ASSURED OF JOBS

Other employees, such as office help, custodians and bus drivers have also been assured of jobs with the new district. O'Shaughnessy, who has been superintendent for eight years, said he is undecided what he will do.

The five-man school board will be dissolved as of June 30. "We've been very fortunate that Walled Lake has given us so much support," said O'Shaughnessy. "Since the election, the school board and administration have worked with us 100 per cent."

"If this hadn't passed, we would have had to stay as we are for another five years and we just couldn't have done it."

Garver Sees Little Trouble Over Dublin

WALLED LAKE — Absorbing one school district into another may seem like a formidable problem, but Schools Supt. George G. Garver sees "no appreciable headaches" as he attempts to integrate the Dublin School District with his own.

"We're attempting to bring 800 pupils into our program with the minimum amount of confusion and interruption to their education," he said, "and with as little turmoil as possible among the staff."

The biggest problem, he said, will be absorbing 160 seventh and eighth graders into the Walled Lake program.

The junior high schoolers will be the only ones involved in a move as they will be transferred from Dublin School to Clifford Smart Junior High.

Dublin's high school students are already attending Walled Lake schools and the elementary children will remain at Dublin.

SAME FACILITIES

"Dublin school will be treated just like the other elementary schools," said Garver, "and will have the same facilities the others have."

"The building is well-maintained and well-equipped, and we plan to add a few programs which they don't have now."

Garver said all employees of the Dublin district will be offered a job with Walled Lake.

For the first year, teachers will have to operate under a Dublin contract as they must be signed before the two schools merge.

ON PROBATION

The second year they will be on a probationary contract with Walled Lake and the third year will be offered tenure.

He expects some red tape involved in the areas of transportation and purchasing but in general expects a smooth transition when Dublin becomes part of the Walled Lake District on July 1.

Swearing-In Set

WHITE LAKE TOWNSHIP — New township officers will be sworn in at special ceremonies at the township hall tonight.

They are James L. Reid, supervisor; Raymond Hoffman, trustee; Ronald Voornberg, incumbent treasurer; and Paul Anderson, incumbent clerk. Inauguration is required.

1st Budget OK in Lake Orion

LAKE ORION — Covering appropriations for the next 15 months, a total budget of $194,000 has been granted preliminary approval by the Village Council.

Packaged in two separate budget documents, the proposed outlay would govern village expenditures until July 1, 1968.

Village officials had to set two budget figures, because the village will be operating under a new charter after July 1.

Under the old charter, budgets were set up from April 1, but under the new charter budgets are set from July 1.

Hence the need for two budgets, one to deal with 12 months plus three months, and the second to deal with the entire period.

The total figure approved by the council was $194,000 for the 15-month figure with $175,000 given as the 12-month figure.

TO BE REAPPROVED

The budget must again be approved on July 1 when the new charter goes into effect.

The budget calls for millage of 11.5. The millage last year was 20.5. However, new assessments this year are to raise the total tax base for a lower tax rate.

Junk Cars Target in Farmington Township

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — This township is going to make it tougher on owners of junk cars left sitting out in the open. The Township Board has amended its antiblight ordinance giving the owners only 30 days instead of 60 to get rid of the cars.

At the end of 30 days, they will be given a citation and if nothing is done then, they can be taken to court.

"So many people will take a motor out of a car or take the wheels off and just let them sit there that they present a real problem," said Township Clerk Floyd A. Cairns. "Other communities have the same problem."

In other action, the board gave preliminary approval to the Farmington Freeway Industrial Park No. 3 at 10 Mile and Grand River.

About 82 industries will be in the park when it is completely built up, according to Cairns.

He said about 12 are expected to be under construction this spring. "That property is selling fast," he said.

Planned Community Solution for Suburbs?

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Much has been said of urban problems — decay of the big city. But what of suburbia? The Pontiac Press presents the last of three stories on "Suburbia Revisited.")

By JEAN SAILLE

The chance to start over! The spread of suburbia has opened up a whole new field for planners — giving them a chance to rectify the sins built into the country's big cities.

In the beginning the move out to the country — suburbia — was a complete divorce from the commercialism and industry of the big town.

But people began to look back with nostalgia to the days when the corner drugstore was located on "their" corner — not one mile away.

Many wanted schools and churches within easy walking distance and a supply of bread and milk close enough so that one of the kids could be sent to the store for it.

NO 'COMPLETENESS'

Planners decided completeness was lacking in their rows and rows of subdivision homes.

Seeing the shortcomings in the modern-day suburbia, a handful of developers across the nation have decided the only way to surmount the obstacles is to start from scratch and build a whole new town — the "Planned" community.

One of those developers is Howard T. Keating whose Keating, Inc., in Orion Township recently got its first resident.

There are 3,200 acres in

FEATURES LAKES

Featuring two good-sized lakes, the area is only minutes away from I-75 and access to the major employment areas in nearby cities.

Working with land planners and with the Orion Township Zoning Board, Keating now has the shape of a model city complete even to parks, residential, commercial and industrial areas.

He has plans for homes ranging from $18,000 up — "as high as they want to go," said a spokesman.

"There will be apartment houses and less expensive townhouses. We hope to appeal to many different economic levels," said Richard Morris, promotional sales development manager.

MARINA PLANNED

Keeping to the total concept idea, there is even a golf course and marina planned.

Land has already been purchased by some churches in Keatingon and other space has been set aside for schools.

While the area will eventually be able to support many of its residents, at least half are expected to work outside the community in the cities of Pontiac, Detroit, Flint and Lapeer.

One of the interesting ideas in Keating's plan is that much of the prime lake property has been devoted to variations of multiple living.

MULTIPLES POPULARITY

"We're banking on the idea that multiples will become more popular than ever," said Morris.

Land around the golf course and in a more hilly section of the development is expected to appeal to prime single-family home dwellers.

An idea eyed by the developers is the "open concept" of residential building in which several multiple units will be constructed in what is now thought of as park area.

"Nobody has really put it to use yet in Michigan," said Morris. "We've preferred to stick with the idea that everyone will have their private bit of yard as well as shelter."

BICYCLE PATHS

Nevertheless, Keatingon will have as many bicycle paths as it has roads, according to present plans.

It will be interesting to watch the town develop.

"We should have it complete in 15 years," said Morris.

Perhaps Keatingon — and similarly "planned" communities — will provide for the orderly development of suburbia, avoiding some of the growing pains that afflict the big city.

Some 74 billion glass bottles and jars — more than any other type of rigid container — "go to market" each year.

Westmoreland and His Men

Mutual Admiration in Vietnam

By TOM TIEDE
SAIGON, Vietnam — (NFA) — "The general's running behind time."
"I see."
"He'll be free in a moment. Have a seat. Thank you."
The visitor backs into a leatherette chair, tugs at an ear lobe, smooths a trouser leg. He surveys the room. It is cramped, colorless and filled with military uniforms.
IN A HURRY
A telephone rings. A blonde with WAC urgent stripes answers. "Gen. Westmoreland's office," she says professionally.
A short man walks briskly through the door carrying two large boards. He is a colonel. The boards are maps.
They show, precisely, where and why 19 American soldiers were killed the previous day.
The map carrier stops near two other solemn-faced officers. They exchange whispered glances and talk in crisp tones.
DAYS ARE BUSY
Most eyes in the room are turned toward a door which is labeled: Briefing room.
Behind the door, William Westmoreland sits with somebody important. He has sat or stood with somebody important 16 hours every day since taking over the Vietnam military command in 1964.
When he finishes behind the door, a dozen officers will want his attention. Plans, strategy, logistics, deployment. Questions. Answers.
It is 8:30 p.m. At six he is scheduled to hear the day's combat wrapup. At seven there is an operations meeting. At eight, a general from up country will call. At 8:30, a general from down country. At 9, an emergency decision, perhaps. At 10. At 11...
ENTERS ROOM
Suddenly the door opens and a man steps into the room. It is, of course, Westmoreland.
"Sir..." somebody calls.
"General, I..."
"There's a call from..."

C. of C. Advice: Check Out Solicitors

A quick phone call to the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce before giving that solicitor at the door money could verify he's a legitimate rather than a fly-by-night operator after the easy buck.
Registering and checking the credentials of temporary and door-to-door solicitors and acting as a better business bureau occupy a third of the local chamber staff's time.
All organizations soliciting in the Pontiac area are requested to register with the Chamber of Commerce. Solicitors in Pontiac are required to register with the police department.
"Such registration provides a handy check on most solicitors at the public's door," according to the chamber staff.
"Spring is the time when many solicitors begin telephone and door-to-door campaigns. Many are legitimate with donations going to worthy causes, but there are some that are not."
EXAMPLE CITED
Giting as example, the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce told of a group of solicitors selling advertising in a publication called "National Constables Association" which they reportedly said was endorsed by various local law officials.
After a spokesman for the Pontiac police and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department reported in The Pontiac Press that they had not endorsed the solicitations, the outfit apparently left town overnight.
A look at the caller's credentials and a quick call to the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce office could save the public and businesses from giving money to such groups.
When registering with the chamber a group is requested to

Party Regulars Wary of Dem Maverick

LA Mayor Eying U.S. Senate Seat in '68

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sam Yorty, the prominent political maverick, is taking aim at the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate in 1968. For California's party regulars, still hurting from last November's defeats, that spells trouble.

Yorty, 57-year-old mayor of Los Angeles, has been outraging the Democratic establishment one way or another for 30 years. But state leaders concede that finding somebody to beat him for the party's senatorial nomination will not be easy.

The major has made two well-publicized trips to Saigon and keeps a big war map of Vietnam handy to his desk. He implies a certain coziness with President Johnson, whose Vietnamese policy he strongly supports.

He got some political mileage out of a televised last year with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

And his vote-getting power in Japan Holds Man on FBI Wanted List

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An American phony check artist on the FBI's 10 most wanted fugitives list for nearly a year has been picked up in Osaka, Japan, by Japanese authorities, the FBI reported today.

The fugitive was identified as James Robert Ringrose, a 24-year-old native of Iowa City, Iowa.

He is wanted in the United States under a federal warrant filed in New York City charging him with transporting a fraudulent check in interstate commerce.

the greater Los Angeles area, with its nine million residents, has been amply demonstrated.

EYING KUCHEL'S SEAT

Yorty has made no formal announcement, but says he is considering a shot at the Senate seat of Republican Thomas H. Kuchel. "If the President wanted me to run, I would," he says.

California's Democratic leaders believe he already is running. To stop him in the June, 1968, primary they may run Alan Cranston, former state controller, or Thomas Braden, former president of the state board of education.

Former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, beaten by Ronald Reagan last autumn, is another possible Yorty rival but has declared that he is not interested in running.

Yorty foes, who derisively call him "Saigon Sam" or "Travelin' Sam," say his visits to Vietnam and his other recent trips abroad are part of a buildup for a try at party leadership.

DOUBTS EXPRESSED

They have expressed doubts that the mayor is, or is likely to become, Johnson's choice as the senatorial nominee.

In Washington, a White House source declined to comment on Yorty's claim that he's close to the President, other than to say "the mayor has been a very infrequent visitor" at the executive mansion.

Nevertheless, Yorty is moving fast to carve out a leadership role in the party organization which he openly opposed in three of the last four elections.

In addition to the Senate race, he says somebody in Washington — he won't say who — has talked with him about heading a state delegation pledged to Johnson in California's presidential primary.

KNOWS DEFEAT

In his time, Yorty has lost three races for the Senate, one for governor and two to lead the state delegation to the Democratic National Convention.

However, he has been elected to the state legislature, to the U.S. House of Representatives and to the mayoralty, which he has held since 1961. Last June he pulled almost a million votes in losing the gubernatorial nomination to Brown, who got 1.3 million.

Yorty says many Democrats have urged him to run for the Senate.

"I'm the only one with a good chance," he declared in a recent interview. "Even people on the national scene feel that way."

LAYING GROUNDWORK

Certainly, he appears to be laying the groundwork for a campaign. In addition to his two so-called "fact-finding" trips to Vietnam he has visited numerous other countries, mostly at taxpayer expense, to promote trade.

Now he is host on his own commercial television program, a discussion show that is aired in the populous Los Angeles area.

Former Gov. Brown and Eugene Wyman, Democratic national committeeman for California, don't agree with Yorty's sanguine assessment of his chances for the Senate.

They also oppose Yorty in his bid to lead a Johnson-pledged California delegation to the convention. Brown wants to carry Johnson's banner himself.

PIN-WORMS
A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, nose-picking, a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infect 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W Tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First — a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then — Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work — kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily! Ask your pharmacist. Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... small, easy-to-take tablets... special sizes for children and adults.

FRAMED — A shattered tree is an effective frame for American infantrymen landing near the northern edge of War Zone C in Vietnam, as troops of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division move one phase of Operation Junction City to an area near the Cambodian border. Their landing zone was pummeled by repeated artillery and air strikes up to a scant three minutes before the first helicopters set down.

Ruling Party Dominates Election in KC

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — An election of mayor and city council, overshadowed until almost election eve by the threat of a walkout by the city's fire fighters, ended in victory for 10 of 13 candidates endorsed by the ruling Citizens Association faction.

Mayor Iles W. Davis headed the victors with an almost 2-to-1 lead over Rex Bone, independent candidate.

The fire fighters' union, which has been engaged in a wage and hour dispute with the city, had urged its members to work for the defeat of Davis and other members of the Citizens Association.

The fire fighters' planned walkout dissolved Monday under a temporary court restraining order. A short time later, Missouri Gov. Warren Hearnes ordered the State Mediation Board into the dispute.

REJECTED OFFER

The 850 firemen demanded a 10 per cent wage boost and a 50-hour week. They average $6,700 annually and work a 56-hour week. They turned down an offer of a 5 per cent boost.

A few hours after 72,324 of the city's 192,643 registered voters started their trek to the polls Tuesday, three state mediators opened a conference with officials of the fire fighters' union and the city.

Chief Mediator Daniel C. Rogers said later that he was confident a settlement could be reached, although it may take months.

Aid Cities or Lose Power, States Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — States must solve the problems of big cities or yield more of their waning powers to the federal government, says a presidential advisory panel.

"The states are on the verge of losing control over the metropolitan problem," the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations reported Tuesday to President Johnson.

"If they lose this control they lose the major responsibility for domestic government in the United States and in turn surrender a vital role in the American federal system," the report added.

The 26-member panel viewed future financing, servicing and governing metropolitan areas as posing "the greatest challenge to federalism since the Civil War."

FORMER GOVERNOR

The commission, established by Congress, is headed by Faris Bryant, Office of Emergency Planning director and former governor of Florida.

Despite the threat to state sovereignty, the panel found during 1966 cause for hope that states would retain a strong role in the future.

Reapportionment by state legislatures to conform to the Supreme Court's "one man-one vote" edict has revitalized government in many states and caused overhaul of outdated institutions, the commission said.

The antipoverty program was credited with stimulating interest in many problems long ignored at the state level.

Local government too often is unable to afford its share of federal-state programs, said the panel. At the same time, states are encountering stiffening local revenues with the states under resistance to increased taxes — one of four plans:

- Direct rebates of income taxes without federal conditions.
- Tax sharing on condition states and local governments meet federal requirements.
- Federal tax sharing with state and local government separately.
- Tax sharing on condition states and local governments meet federal requirements.

Thieves Couldn't Handle Their Loot

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — "A 360-pound dog is hard to hide," Mrs. Thomas Irwin said as she was united with "Chris," a St. Bernard reported stolen Sunday from a kennel at the Irwin house. The dog was valued at $3,500.

Mrs. Irwin said the dog was on his way home when found running through some woods about 1½ miles from the kennel Monday.

She said thieves apparently let the dog loose when they were unable to contain him.

Easter Is Family Time for Hills' Dwellers

By SIGNE KARLSTROM

Following the christening of their daughter Gretchen on Easter Eve in Christ Church, Cranbrook Dr. and Mrs. Roy T. Hawkinson entertained at dinner.

Present in their Argyle Drive home were the godparents and the immediate family.

Godparents were Dr. and Mrs. John Dinan and Dr. and Mrs. John Heyde of Milford, Del.

Also at the supper were Dr. Hawkinson's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Nettlemann of Ann Arbor, and the senior Dr. and Mrs. Hawkinson.

Easter morning the Nettlemans left for Eaton Rapids to have dinner with his mother.

KAREN CHRISTENED

Another christened at the same ceremony was Karen Proctor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woods Proctor who also entertained at a supper in their home. Guests were the godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Wilson and Mrs. David Moss, the senior and junior Edward Proctors and Mr. Proctor's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Runette and David Moss.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Booth were so happy about their first grandchild, James Robert, born on Feb. 23 that they headed for California for a visit with him and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Booth of Los Altos.

Mrs. Booth is the former Lois di Robertis.

Nancy Booth, daughter of the John M. Booths recently spent a weekend with her parents. She is attending the Parsons School of Design in New York and will be spending her Easter vacation with friends in Bermuda.

FAMILY GROUP

Another family gathering on Easter was at the Kenneth Manuels' home.

Their daughter Kristina and three cousins, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Putnoway, joined in the Easter bunny hunt at the Manuels' on Easter Day.

At the dinner table with the junior and senior families were Mr. Manuel's father, Alex Manuel, and his sister, Dorothy of Detroit. Mrs. Thomas F. Willmore of Grosse Pointe was in the group.

Annual Gala Is Planned

The annual salad luncheon and fashion show sponsored by Oakland County Osteopathic Auxiliary is slated for 12:30 p.m., next Wednesday in the Northwest Congregational Church at Northwestern Highway and Ten Mile Road.

Proceeds again will be used for the American Association scholarship fund.

Chairman, Mrs. Eugene Sikorski has announced that models will be auxiliary members showing fashions from Lisbeth's of Birmingham.

Assisting the chairman are Mesdames: Ray Hajjar, Andrew Berry, Ernest Schullinger, David Kellam and Leonard Sudara.

The event is open to the public.

Plan Schedule for Countryside Improvements

The summer schedule of the Countryside Improvement Association was discussed at Wednesday's meeting and cooperative luncheon in the Green Lake home of Mrs. F. J. Stroup.

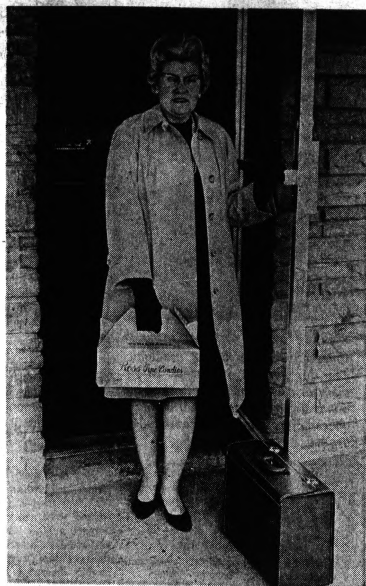

This philanthropic group, founded in 1911, makes a number of monetary contributions to area service organizations.

Officers of the organization are Mrs. Joseph Arno, president; Mesdames: Harold Welch, Harry Wareham, Edwin Dreyer, Webster Francis, the hostess and Evelyn Dohany.

Mrs. A. R. Booth and Dr. Caryl Kulsavage are directors.

Ready to put another 35,000 miles on her automobile again this year is Mrs. Ralph Williams, owner and manager of Ross Candy Co. on Elizabeth Lake Road. She is one of the largest suppliers of the confection used for organizational fund raising sales throughout the state. A real promoter herself, Mrs. Williams usually adds to the incentive by donating prizes for the youth groups she deals with.

Candy Business Is Booming One for Factory Owner-Promoter

By JEANNE NELSON

While life isn't exactly a bowl of chocolate covered cherries for Mrs. Ralph Williams of Oscoda Drive, it is filled with varying amounts of sweetness.

Mary Louise Williams, owner and operator of Ross Candy Company on Elizabeth Lake Road, started the profitable business with her late husband a number of years ago.

He took care of production while she contacted the Boy Scout organization with the idea of selling candy as a fund raiser. The rest is ancient history.

At present, the bulk of her candy business comes from a number of state organizations, schools and service groups.

Although there is a retail store front, except for holiday buying, the real action depends on benefit sales.

In order to accommodate the vast number of orders, Mrs. Williams has purchased a huge storage tank for liquidified chocolate. The rich confection is delivered by tank truck and hoisted into the waiting receptacle which holds 45,000 pounds of chocolate.

To keep its smooth texture, smaller amounts are transferred into kettles with constantly running agitators. The idea of liquid chocolate is fairly new to the candy industry. Until recently, it was purchased in the more familiar cake form which has to be melted down and watched over so that texture remains pliable.

Working out sales campaigns a year in advance, Mrs. Williams encourages the organizations with incentive prizes and record-keeping sheets. She also has a number of tips for salesmen.

"The junior highs have the best programs," she thinks,

"and the youngsters of this age are so enthusiastic about the project." Now even elementary schools are becoming her customers with a camp program as their goal.

She spends a great deal of her time driving around the state setting up the details for organizations so that the office which bears her name is rarely used.

Her two children, Gregory, a sophomore at Pontiac Central High School, and Mrs. Arthur Greaves who presented her with a new granddaughter not long ago, both help out during seasonal rushes.

The kitchen area is a small scale assembly line with machines that make boxes and separators and others that pour nuts into the chocolate mixtures.

In addition to helping with the kitchen assembly layout plan and running the business, this inventive woman has also designed a cardboard carrying

PGH Exec Talks to Auxiliary

Donald Carros, Assistant Administrator of Pontiac General Hospital spoke Tuesday at a meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Pontiac General Hospital.

He discussed measures being taken to meet disaster in the Pontiac area. A film entitled "Crisis" prepared by the American Hospital Association accompanied his talk.

It was a record of how a community reacts when a prominent person meets with an accident while in its area, such as Dallas had to react.

Reports from the annual workshops of the Southeastern District of the Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries were given. Six members had attended the workshops.

Vera Bassett of Cherokee Road, was hostess for the afternoon event.

Mrs. S. Arthur Warwick, Mrs. Howard Walder and Mrs. Charles Barrett made up the social committee.

Out of Tune With Girlfriend

Swingin', Singin' Partner

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend is practically perfect. I mean, he really QUALIFIES! But he has one habit that drives me out of my mind. When we dance he sings along with the music. If he doesn't know the lyrics, he hums.

It wouldn't be so bad if he could carry a tune, but I swear he's tone deaf. Moreover, he puts his head next to mine and my whole skull vibrates while he sings.

If I move my head away he moves closer. I can't escape him. Don't tell me to quit going to dances with him because he'll ask someone else, and I don't want to lose him.

DEAR ELLEN: Borrow one of those "horse collars" from a friend who has already collected on her whiplash injury, and wear it while dancing with your thrush. That will keep his head away from yours. And if you're able to keep up a running conversation he won't have time to sing.

DEAR ABBY: How can I tactfully handle a neighbor who asks my 10-year-old daughter questions that are none of her business? She has asked, "Where did your parents go last Saturday night when you had a sister?"

Also, "Your mother has a new coat. Did your daddy strike an oil well?" She asked, "Are your folks invited to the Anderson wedding?" I never see this neighbor, as she is employed. I don't want to make a special trip to her home.

Would it be proper for me to approach her 10-year-old daughter who plays with mine, and in a subtle way tell her I'd appreciate it if her mother didn't ask my child so many personal questions?

DEAR NEIGHBOR: Don't send any "subtle" messages via a 10-year-old. Instruct YOUR child to tell the inquiring neighbor respectfully, but emphatically, that if she wants to know anything about Mother's "invitations" or Daddy's "oil well," she should ask THEM.

DEAR ABBY: I have lived in the United States for five years now and have many American friends. Whenever my husband and I are invited to someone's home for dinner, I always take a small gift as a token of appreciation, which is a custom of the "old country."

These same friends who come to us for dinner time after time, come empty-handed. Please understand, I do not NEED the little presents they might bring, but I should think that after having received so many from me on similar occasions, they might have learned and reciprocated.

Don't Americans do this? Or am I the one who is wrong?

O. O. DEAR O. O.: I think your "old country" custom is charming and would like to see it become part of OUR culture. But Americans are no less friendly or thoughtful because their traditions are not yours. So don't be misled.

CONFIDENTIAL TO W.W.F.: If you have time to sit around and look for four-leaf clovers, you need more than luck.

Why Grow Old?

JOSEPHINE LOHMAN

"For better or worse" doesn't mean that a woman should tell her husband the worst the minute he arrives home from work. Yet many women hardly let him get inside the front door before unleashing the petty frustrations, problems and minor crisis of the day.

This may seem to be a great luxury and a comfort, but I think it is a luxury a woman cannot afford.

Naturally, in any marriage worth the title, the husband is interested in his wife's problems and is glad to hear about them if he can be of any help or consolation.

However, I believe that many women unconsciously form the habit of relating unpleasant or worrisome happenings of the day before the poor man has had a chance to relax or take a deep breath.

He, too, may have had a frustrating or disappointing day. At last he has put in a full day of work and has a right to expect a little time to unwind when he first arrives home. I suspect that many men who would otherwise look forward to reaching home somewhat dread the onslaught of hecticness which they know will meet them upon arrival.

Of course, a woman cannot always have the soft music playing, the candlelight flickering, the children and the plumbing and the washing machine behaving properly, but she can usually leave the problems until later so that homecoming is restful rather than a blow to the nervous system.

Recently, we considered what a mistake it is for a woman to live vicariously through her children and to allow her relationship with her husband to deteriorate. There is no greater fountain of youth than love and happiness.

The knowledge that she is adored by the man she loves gives a woman an inner radiance, a special quality of charm and vibrance.

It is most difficult for us to look at ourselves objectively. If you feel that the romance in your marriage has deteriorated rather than grown in depth, perhaps the fault is partly yours.

If so, you may want my last-let "Keeping Romance Alive." To receive this and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, write your request to Josephine Lohman in care of The Pontiac Press.

The engagement of Dorothy Jean Solberg to William F. Lewis is announced by her parents, the Hollis Solbergs of Woodlawn Street. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lewis of Michigan Center. She attends Oakland Community College and her fiancé is a graduate student attending Michigan State University. August 5 vows are planned.

He's Tops With Tots

By EDWARD S. KITCH Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Toys have two requirements: to be fun and to be safe. That's the philosophy of Jolly Jarvis (Jerry) Rockwell, brother of artist Norman Rockwell.

The 75-year-old toymaker in 1965 turned out the Toy of the Year, a repeat of the kiddie car that was popular generations ago.

Playskool, his employer, sold a million of them.

Rockwell said he converted a hobby into a vocation.

"I used to love to make model ships,"

PROBLEMS

Toy-making and toy-buying present several peculiar factors to a designer. Among them are the use of safe materials, prevention of accidents and creating an education experience.

"We consider the child's daily activities and design the toy both for physical and mental growth," he said.

"We mainly are concerned with the pre-school youngster of which there are plenty around," he added "When we want a toy designed we don't design for electronic engineers rocketmen and spacemen."

Rockwell avoids designing toys to fit current fads.

"We hate all things like Batman toys," he said.

Rockwell confines materials to wood, metal tubing and high-impact type plastic such as polystyrene.

He is aware that consumer groups are battling unsafe toys.

Such toys are decorated with toxic lead paint, dolls have arms and legs attached by sharp spikes, teddy bears contain poisonous stuffing, high-voltage trains are available, wind-up toys have main springs sharp enough to lop off a finger. Costumes and dolls are highly flammable.

Not long ago, Rockwell received a letter from a woman in Texas. She wanted a replacement wheel for a wooden block wagon. Rockwell designed 30-years ago. She had stored it in the attic and wanted it for a grandchild.

"We wouldn't identify it, so we asked her to send it to us," he said. "We had one of our wood model workers fashion a new wheel and refurbished the wagon and sent it back to the woman."

"When you make something that lasts that long, you feel you had accomplished something," he said.

But there are complaints, too. One letter came from a woman whose child had a Rockwell-designed peg board bench with a wooden hammer.

"She asked why we didn't make a rubber-headed hammer," he said.

Her child had used the wooden hammer on a plaster wall and pounded through to the inner wall of a room.

"You feel like writing back and saying, 'You are bringing your darn kid up the wrong way,'" he mused.

Jarvis (Jerry) Rockwell, 75, brother of artist Norman Rockwell, poses on his "Tyke Truck," a modernized version of the kiddie car produced generations ago.

New Flameproof Cloth Is Under Development

Worries about toddlers accidentally igniting clothing or blankets and other tragedies with burning clothing may be reduced in the future.

Michigan State University clothing specialist Jean Schubel recently related that a fire-retardant finishes and flameproof cloth are among the newest developments in the textile industry.

TWO TYPES

Miss Schubel, who is with MSU's Cooperative Extension Service, said that two types of fire-retardant textiles are available. The first group includes those such as cotton, that are treated chemically to resist flaming. Others, because of their composition, just refuse to burn.

"A newly developed fiber—brand-named No-rux Nylon—is exceptionally resistant to high heat," the specialist said. "But it must still be properly treated to fulfill its function. Developers believe that a suit of the new flame resistant nylon could save lives in the event of a jet-fuel fire."

The new nylon is being tested in suits for fire-fighters in the U. S. Forestry Department. They report the suits quite comfortable. Other users expected to be racing car drivers, truck drivers, pilots and sportsmen.

The specialist pointed out that other fabrics on the market already just naturally won't burn. The modacrylics, sold under trade names such as Dynel and Verel, will disappear like cellophane when a flame is touched to them. But they won't support combustion themselves.

IS THE BEST

Presently a finish called THPC is the most satisfactory method of flame-proofing cotton and rayon.

"When the finish is properly applied, the two fabrics absolutely will not support combustion," Miss Schubel said.

An added attraction of the fire-resistant chemical finishes is that they last the lifetime of the garment. They aren't removed by washing or drying.

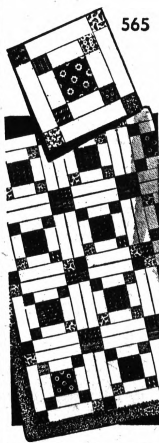

"A big drawback presently is that the chemical treatment adds to the weight of the fabric and may create some stiffness that some people object to," Miss Schubel noted.

"However, U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists that developed the finish are continuing their research. They've already found a combination with another chemical that is equally effective and can be applied to lightweight fabrics."

A problem that the specialist indicated was in getting the merchants to carry garments and other items made with the new fire resistant fabrics and finishes. Manufacturers and retailers generally seem to fear higher price tags on these garments. A leading New York department store once offered them and found they didn't sell. They said customers weren't willing to pay 50 cents more for a suit that was treated.

Still, some leading retail chains are planning to introduce fire-retardant garments for fall — sweat shirts.

Television, Telephone Out for Youthful Student

Parents who aren't concerned about being popular with their children should stress the "3 R's," but keep the "2 T's" out of their youngster's room.

An August wedding date is being planned by Linda Jane Johnson and Richard Joseph O'Leary. Their parents are the Elmer Johnsons of Whitfield Drive and Mrs. Richard O'Leary of Depew Drive and the late Mr. O'Leary.

"The telephone and television are the two most distracting things a youngster can have in his room," says Mrs. Margaret Friskey, editor-in-chief of Childrens Press, Inc., Chicago-based publisher of books for young people.

And, as the new school year rapidly approaches, Mrs. Friskey, who, for many years has worked with educators to create reading materials for young people and has become an expert on home study habits as well, advises parents that children need a private world of their own to do their best school work. "But, that world — their own room — must be free from distracting influences," she says.

Mrs. Friskey advises that "a nice desk for studying will make doing homework much more interesting. Makeshifts are never really satisfactory; it's better to have a solid desk or table from the unpainted furniture department than a delicate pretty desk which won't accommodate books and materials. A child's room also requires at least two chairs — one for the desk and one for comfortable lounging and leisure reading."

Mrs. Friskey insists that good lighting be incorporated in planning a youngster's room: "Not only softly diffused overhead lighting, but direct light for reading."

Mrs. Friskey, a grandmother who has written more than 30 books for youngsters, has had plenty of opportunity to experiment with children's furnishing, and suggests that floor covering, such as vinyl tile, is smart for both boys and girls, and is easy to care for. She suggests that to add interest and more important, to cut down noise, area rugs be used. "Carpets are fine especially for feminine rooms — but choose one which resists soil."

She also suggests parents add wall treatments to a youngster's room — "like a bulletin board or pegboard — which will save defacement and permit a changing-around of souvenirs and art objects."

"Be sure to include a bookshelf too," says Mrs. Friskey, "but, keep it near the desk so your youngster won't be distracted by having to move around the room during study periods."

Mrs. Friskey adds this caution note: "If you're a two TV and telephone family, keep the second set and telephone in a place where your youngster can use them with privacy, but keep them out of the child's room. The '3 R's' are vital, but the '2 T's' can lead to trouble."

JULIE CANDLER

'Woman at the Wheel,' Voice of Lady Driver

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Women's Editor

At last! A woman speaks out to and about women drivers.

Julie Candler, Birmingham publicist, is the author of a new paperback book, "Women at the Wheel."

For several years Mrs. Candler has written a monthly column on driving for Women's Day magazine.

These articles, plus other material she has collected, make up her book. It is on sale in supermarkets, as well as bookstores.

HOW TO BUY

The book includes everything from how to buy a car (new or used) to how to change a tire and what that "chirping" noise in the motor means.

Mrs. Candler assumes that most women can become as intelligent about driving and maintaining their cars as the average male driver.

She deplores the constant ridicule heaped upon women drivers who, she says, will soon outnumber the men.

Mrs. Candler has taken advantage of living in the world's automotive capital and has drawn upon the numerous experts here to back up her writing.

She learned about driving on ice and snow, for instance, when she attended a training session for educators and safety writers. Part of the course was test driving on a strip of glare ice.

She makes things like spring tune-ups, how to prepare your car for winter or a long trip, and how to prolong the life of car batteries completely understandable.

OWN IDEAS

Mrs. Candler has definite ideas about teenage drivers and unorthodox ideas about how to cut the traffic death toll.

Her book is well indexed with a glossary of terms, as well as detailed instructions. She suggests you keep it in the glove compartment along with your car owner's manual.

In her preface she says, "I hope this book helps you to save time and money and make every trip a safe one. If "Woman at the Wheel" does its job, it will prove to you that you can drive and manage an automobile just as well as you can run all those other household appliances you are probably responsible for."

Shyness Hidden by Phony Self-Assurance

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

He was a television announcer — one of those breezy ones who bounces at you out of your screen as you have to turn his volume down.

And he was just as breezy and self-assured the evening I interviewed him before his show time. I got the big, famous, friendly grin. I got the "honey baby." I got the jokes. Then his dressing-room door was flung suddenly open by his small, bustling producer who screamed at him:

"You damn fool, why did you invite So-and-So to come on the show as your guest tonight?"

And the big, hearty television self-assurance collapsed into a look of panic that I still remember. But it was gone the next instant. For air time was on him. And like one of those magicians who pull rabbits out of hats so fast you can't see how they do it, the too-hearty, so-friendly grin was returned to his face for the presentation of the public personality.

But I had glimpsed the private one — the shy, not-so-assured private one. This is a story that should comfort the parent who writes: "Though our older child has always been outgoing and self-confident, her 4-year-old brother has a problem of shyness."

He doesn't get along with other children as easily as she does. If other youngsters are playing in front of the house, she walks right out and joins in their game. But Jimmy always hangs back. He is shy with grownups too. . . .

Everybody who seems to be full of self-assurance is not necessarily full of it. Indeed, those ever so hearty, so friendly "outdoors" may be shyer than we have any idea of. Like that poor television announcer, they may have been forced to adopt the front of impenetrable self-assurance because their shyness is such a shameful secret that they have to deny its existence. It's a way of announcing, "Don't hurt me because if you do, I have to refuse to feel it."

Maybe if you started thinking of your little boy's shyness, not as a liability but as most sensible caution, you'd feel better about it.

The elephant, that most sage and responsible of creatures, refuses to tread on new, unbroken ground until he has tested its reliability with one foot.

I checked this fact about him with an eminent zoological authority and, after checking it, said, "Then the elephant is shy, isn't he? That wise creature is shy of what he isn't sure of, isn't he?" Shy and wise, he is, "was the answer I got.

So settle down, friend, settle down.

Be Sincere in Apology to Others

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Let's pretend that you're at a dinner party and you've just knocked over your after-dinner coffee cup. The stain is rapidly soaking into your hostess' gorgeous white rug. You are embarrassed to death and your apology comes out naturally — it's no problem at all.

You say you're sorry, you run to get a sponge or a rag, or to assist your hostess in cleaning up the mess, and no one can doubt that your apologies are real and sincere.

But suppose you have a neighbor who is very crabby about anyone stepping on her grass, and you inadvertently cut the wheel of your car too sharply and cross the corner of her lawn. Your instinctive reaction may well be, "I didn't mean to, but she's so nasty about her old lawn that I'm not even sorry."

After a few moments, however, you realize that that attitude is not going to foster a very pleasant neighborhood relationship and you decide that you must apologize and offer to repair, or pay for the damage.

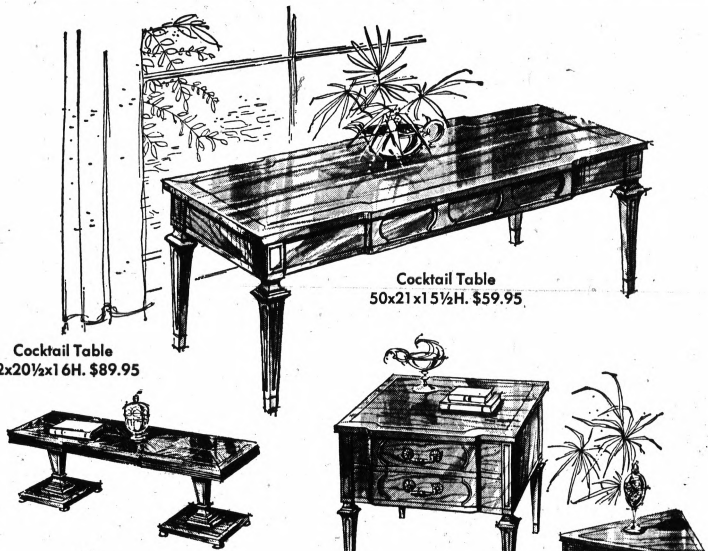

This apology is far more difficult to make than the first one. The most important thing, of course, is to make it sound sincere.

To do this, think of something positive about the situation; for instance, if you make yourself think of the times you and your husband have enjoyed such a beautiful lawn next door, you will be able to say more truthfully how sorry you are to have damaged it.

New Knits Add Variety to Your Wardrobe

Thea William Harnish-jegers of Boston Avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Sandra Kay, to James Michael McHugh. His parents are the H. C. McHughs of Lancaster Drive. She attends St. Joseph Mercy Hospital School of X-ray Technology and he is a graduate of Ferris State College.

Spring — the season of promise, hope and new bright news for knitters. Fashion news for the coming season focuses on bright, vivid colors. Just as important, the talk is on texture. What could be better? Both are yours for the knitting.

The silhouette for spring? Belts are back in style, another happy spring note for knitters. Your knits always are more becoming when you gently sash, tie or belt them. And hemlines look sensible once again! Hems skim the knees and this applies even to the young. One of the leading magazines for girls now advocates that skirts for young ladies will still bare the knees no more. Your own skirt length? Study your knees — and your birth certificate. You'll have the answer.

CHOOSE COLORS

Colors that brighten the spring scene are ready in rainbow-rich bins at your local yarn dealer. Textured yarns — nubs, twists, marls and mixes of every fiber, are waiting to be worked into the boldly right looks.

Shocking pinks, light lacquer reds, lettuce green, peacock, wedgewood or wild rose are waiting for your needles to point the way to fashion.

To start you on your bright, springy way here are two new casual sweater-shells to knit up quickly in spring's newest yarns. The striped turtleneck shell — and you must have stripes this spring — knits up quickly in Reynolds imported yarn.

The other little pullover is softly shaped to fit both the new season and you better. Note the flat, gently rounded neckline — perfect under suits or costumes — as well as just for fun days.

Knit this original in sizes 10 to 18. You can make either of these spring bright fashions for less than $10 each—and that's in imported yarn. Try buying one in your favorite boutique and see what you'd pay!

To get directions for both the rib-and-striped turtleneck and the smart ribbed shirt-pullover, send $9 cents to Stitchin' Time, care of The Pontiac Press, P. O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, New York, 10019. Ask for leaflet No. S108 and be sure to include your own address and zip code.

KNIT KNACKS

When you join a new ball of yarn to your knitting, try to tie the new strand at the beginning of a row. Then you can work the ends into the seam. You'll have a smooth, professional-looking garment inside and out. Join the two yarns in a slip knot, tying the new strand around the strand already in use.

Slide the slip knot up close to the needle. Then, knit your next row using the new ball of yarn.

If you do join yarn in the middle of a row, leave four inches of both the new and working yarns which, after knitting a few rows, should be tied firmly. The ends then can be run in on the wrong side of the garment for about an inch.

Baby Lizard Got Lost at Station

NEW YORK (AP) — Most items found in Grand Central Terminal go to the lost and found department, but one discovered on the tracks by New York Central trackmen Ben Shine and Steve Nelson went to the ASPCA.

It was a year-old Monitor Lizard, a non-poisonous variety which comes from Asia. It was adopted by Dr. John Swinford of the ASPCA, who said that when full grown it will reach a length of seven to nine feet and weigh approximately 200 pounds. The mystery of its appearance in the terminal is still unsolved.

Wear Gloves to Bathe Child

To keep baby from slipping and sliding when you give him his bath, wear a clean cotton glove on your hand and a white flannel apron on your waist.

The glove enables you to take a firmer hold of his slippery little body and the apron on your lap keeps him from sliding off it. In addition, both feel soft and comfortable as well as warm to his body.

SEW SIMPLE By Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice Farmer,

The suit I am making has a collar that is cut in one piece on the bias instead of a two-piece collar that I've always had before. When I pressed the collar on the fold line and then put it on my suit, the pressed edge rolls up and shows on the top collar.

What did I do wrong? I think my collar looks very home-made.

Mrs. J. K.

Dear Mrs. J. K.,

When you pressed the collar on the fold line, you did the very thing most home sewers would do and everyone would end in poor results. When a collar of any type is applied to the neckline, it takes a larger top collar to achieve a beautiful rolled effect. Since the roll line is marked at the center of a one-piece collar, these marks could never come out on the edge of the collar after it has been applied to your garment.

The secret is no pressing on this roll line until after it has been applied and you have tried it on and know exactly where the fold will be. Then press very lightly and carefully so the collar will not look stretched and rippled.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

This week's TAILOR TRIX pressing board winner is Mrs. Edith Touchstone, Decatur, Texas.

An easy way to sew on snaps is to use a double thread in the needle and on the principle of tailor tacking, put the needle through both pieces of the garment one time only (which of course differs from tailor tacking) in the exact spot where the snap will be sewn, then separate the two pieces about one and one half inches, clip the thread, and sew on each part of the snap, centered exactly on the thread. It gives a perfect fit every time!

Dear Eunice Farmer,

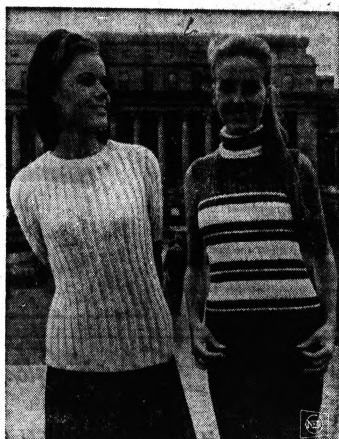

I am always in doubt about when to sew the lining in the seams and when to make it separately. Also, when you have a center front or center back seam, is the lining cut in one piece and just put together at the sides?

Dear Mrs. J.H.,

I am a very strong advocate of underlining garments—this means cutting the lining fabric the same as your garment, basing them together and then treating as one piece. If you are lining to retain the shape of the garment, this is the only way to do it.

If you merely like the appearance of a dress that has a finished lining, a slip worn separately would do the very same thing as a free hanging lining. The texture of most of today's fabrics is much more satisfactory if underlined.

Mrs. Farmer answers questions frequently asked by sewers in her helpful booklet "20 Questions." For your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of The Pontiac Press.

Bold colors and new textures mark this two-piece winning pair for spring-minded knitters. Important to any woman's wardrobe are the softly shaped knit (left) with gently rounded neckline and the striped turtleneck shell. Both can be worn year round.

If Angry, Don't Drive

DALLAS (UPI) — A Dallas psychiatrist says that men are involved in more automobile accidents than women because women don't usually tend to express aggression when behind the wheel.

Dr. Thomas H. Allison says the signs of aggression and hostility are easy to spot—screaming tires, cutting from one lane to another, blaring horns.

Habitual traffic violators are persons who "handle relationships in which authority figures in any way poorly and repress aggression by acting it out rather than talking it out," Allison explained.

"Often the habitual traffic violator is impulsive when under stress," Dr. Allison said, "and is irresponsible in all his living experiences."

VP in Bonn; Talks Likely to Focus on N-Spread Pact

BONN, Germany (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey arrived in West Germany today for talks with West German officials and the top American diplomats stationed in Europe and Canada.

Humphrey flew to Wahn Airport from The Hague, where he talked with Dutch officials Tuesday.

His discussions in Bonn were expected to focus on relations between the United States and West Germany and particularly the West German government's lack of enthusiasm for the proposed treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons.

From the airport, which serves both Bonn and Cologne, Humphrey drove to Cologne to visit a cathedral. Then he was to go to Bad Godesberg — outside Bonn — for the conference of U.S. ambassadors.

TO MEET WITH BRANDT
Later Humphrey was to meet with Willy Brandt, West Germany's vice chancellor and foreign minister.

The meetings today and Thursday will set the stage for a return visit to Germany April 5-6, when Humphrey will have talks with Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger.

The vice president obviously aims to show Kiesinger that he was wrong when he declared earlier: "We — the United States and West Germany — talk only about the stupid questions, not any more about the fundamentals."

Humphrey will be trying to smooth the way for the nuclear nonproliferation treaty. Negotiations in Geneva are now in recess for six weeks while the United States tries to line up its allies behind the proposed pact.

OPPOSITION'S CONTENTION

West Germany and other West European nations contend that the treaty, as it now is written, could discriminate against their development of nuclear power and could open the way to Communist spying on such development.

Humphrey conferred Tuesday with Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns about the treaty as well as a number of other European problems.

Afterward Luns told newsmen he thinks the United States may be able to clear away some of the tangle around the negotiations and make the treaty more acceptable to other countries.

In his talks with Dutch officials, Humphrey also dealt with the issue looming over everything else — Vietnam.

TRACKING STATION—Students returning from spring vacation at Willamette University in Salem, Oregon, found big white feet on Collins Hall. Looking out the window is Elinor Lindquist, publicity office secretary, who said she had no idea how 14-inch footprints got there.

Officials Deny LBJ Lacked N-Briefing

NEW YORK (AP) — The Defense Department denies statements in William Manchester's book that President Johnson had not been advised on procedures for ordering nuclear retaliation in the event of an attack following the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Security officials in the Kennedy administration also denied that Johnson had not been briefed. The U.S. atomic attack code was carried in a football-shaped satchel that lay in the presidential jet, which took Johnson and the body of Kennedy back to Washington from Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

Kennedy officials said that at the late president's insistence, Johnson had been familiarized thoroughly on the contents of the satchel.

Manchester says in the book, "The Death of a President":

"The difficulty was that Johnson had no idea of what was in the bag. He knew that it existed, but he hadn't been briefed about the contents, and if the thunderbolt of all-out war struck that afternoon, the country's retaliatory arsenal could be spiked until he had been led through Tex Shepard's primers for the first time."

KENNEDY AIDE

Capt. Tazwell Shepard was a military aide to President Kennedy.

Manchester also writes: "Had Russia attacked across the DEW line, the greatest military establishment in the history of the world might easily have been musclebound during the 15 fateful minutes of warning time and perhaps even afterward, when second-strike capacity became a factor."

A spokesman for the Defense Department issued a statement Tuesday saying:

"The statements carried by the press services attributed to William Manchester bearing on the nuclear readiness of the United States on Nov. 22, 1963, were untrue."

DENIAL

"On that date, Lyndon Johnson, as vice president and as president, was fully aware of the procedures used to authorize the release of nuclear weapons in retaliation against attack on the United States."

Manchester also says there was a slowdown in commercial telephone service because of the great load of calls in the hours immediately following the assassination. He says phones in the Senate and House offices, the White House and the Signal Corps had been paralyzed temporarily.

According to Manchester's account, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy roamed the streets in Washington, trying the phones of strangers, until he got through to then-Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, to learn if their brother was dead.

"It became obvious that in a national emergency this (telephone service) would be the first link to snap," Manchester writes.

REBUTTAL

Regarding the passages on the slowdown in commercial telephone service, the Defense Department said:

"Governmental communications, military and civil, were fully operational at all times and were far in excess of any requirement arising out of any security emergency. Those secure communications operate independently of commercial systems."

A spokesman for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. in Washington said that due to the unusually heavy traffic after the assassination, "if you picked up the phone you might have to wait a few seconds to get a dial tone."

Soviet Communists Probe for World Talks on Red Ills

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Soviet Communist party is cautiously probing possibilities for a new world Communist meeting whose purpose would be to examine all the ailments besetting the movement.

The likely time would be in November, when Moscow marks the 50th anniversary of seizure by the Bolsheviks of the Russian Revolution.

The Kremlin often uses agencies in East Europe to toss out proposals, suggestions and complaints to Red chiefs outside the bloc. The proposal for a meeting comes from Neues Deutschland, the party paper in East Germany which, in a backhanded way, acknowledged an atmosphere of crisis.

"On the whole," it said, "the international Communist movement has made further progress. The lowest ebb as a result of the differences of opinion begun by the Mao group has been overcome. The struggle for cohesion and unity is spreading throughout the movement. The overwhelming majority of fraternal parties now believe that favorable preconditions exist for a new discussion among Communist and workers parties."

CHINA PROBLEM

Translated from Communist language, that means Moscow wants a world meeting to deal with the problem of China and Mao Tse-tung. The Kremlin has had about as much as it can take of Peking's accusations, insults and interference.

The China phenomenon has contributed much to communism's woes. It has caused splits and splinters in parties around the world. But there is more to communism's troubles than the Chinese.

One important factor is that in advanced countries, Communist leadership is growing old.

For 50 years the Communists have plotted for power in those nations. Today they seem farther away from it than ever. They have been looking for the reasons.

One reason, many Western Communists seem to feel, is in Moscow. The demand from Moscow under Stalin for total obedience to all Kremlin flaps, hopes and whims did much to damage parties abroad. Today there is a growing tendency among them toward independence of action. Last year Moscow used an East European party — the Hungarian — to complain about this.

SEEK LOOSER TIES

Said the complaint: "Leaders of some Communist parties in some Western capitalist countries seek to loosen their ties with the Soviet Union. They hope by laying emphasis on their independence even excessive emphasis on the anti-Soviet trend of their political line, they might gain advantages with their own masses in internal politics which would vindicate the correctness of their endeavors."

Moscow has a word for that sort of thing: "Opportunism." It means deviating from the line for the sake of improving one's own fortunes.

How have the Communists been doing in advanced countries? Not well.

At first glance, the French Communists would appear to be making gains. They express elation with the recent legislative elections. President Charles de Gaulle's middle of the road opponents say he helped the Communists by concentrating his attacks.

BIG GAIN

In terms of votes, the Communists gained a million over the 1962 French elections. The number of Communist deputies elected rose from 41 to 73. In the first years of De Gaulle's power, card-carrying Communists dropped by 30,000 but then began increasing again. Today the party claims 20,000 more members than it had before de Gaulle took over in 1958. But the claim of 425,000 members seems exaggerated.

There is another side to the coin. In order to make these gains, the party had to sacrifice cherished tenets, make compromises with non-Communist parties of the left. To gain a look of respectability the party had to criticize Moscow for such things as jailing Soviet writers for expressing their views.

In a way, the French Communist party's successes in the recent election can be far from welcome to the Kremlin. Bitterness of the Gaullists with the French party, whose alliance with other leftists cost de Gaulle a humiliating setback, could affect Soviet-French relations.

The gains the party made may prove to be temporary. When de Gaulle leaves the scene, the leftist alliance can fall apart, since all parties in it compete for the same votes. The Communists had no choice but to espouse the alliance, for if they had not, they would have been left isolated in a post-de Gaulle era.

MAVERICK

Italy's party of 1.35 million is regarded as maverick. It, too, seeks alliances, not only with the left, but with the center, including Catholics. It has become respectful of the Vatican's influence. Italian party leaders espouse the idea of "polycentrism," meaning that Moscow is not the only source of authority in the movement. Italy's party often balks at Soviet initiatives. It is as if the leaders feel their only hope for future power is in only hope for future power is in being less, rather than more Communist.

In the rest of Western Europe, Communist parties, though noisy, are tiny and ineffectual. All are plagued by splinter movements, generated by the Moscow-Peking feud.

Communists in West Germany, Austria, the Netherlands, Britain and Scandinavia are of sliding downhill as a result of difficulties with tired dogma, tired old leaders and scanty finances. The Belgian party is hopelessly split.

In the United States, the Communist party pins its hopes on the appearance of widespread ferment over Vietnam and civil rights.

'MAIN FORCE'

"Our party is the main force in the (U.S.) leftist movement and the most influential party among leftist groups and youth," wrote its leader, Gus Hall, in Pravda, the Communist party paper, late last year.

That points to Communist hopes and ambitions in the United States, but has little to do with reality in terms of Red strength. Communists in the United States remain a puny force, often scorned by Moscow itself. And, small as it is, the party is plagued by the same process of splintering which bogged Communists everywhere in the wake of the Soviet-Chinese rift.

Grant to Detroit to Aid Prisoners

WASHINGTON (AP)—Detroit will receive a $137,000 federal grant to train, counsel and provide remedial education for at least 100 misdeameants at the city's house of correction. Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said the grant was approved Tuesday by the attorney General and will provide post-release counseling and job placement services.

State House Upholds Civil Service Raises

LANSING (AP)—The House of Representatives cleared the way Tuesday for a $21.5-million pay and fringe increase for 39,000 state employees despite warnings the money may not be available when the time comes to pay it.

Defeated 28-73 was a resolution which would have vetoed the pay increase recommended by the Civil Service Commission.

A two-thirds vote was needed to pass the measure. Coincidentally two-thirds of the members voted against it.

"This resolution is dead," Rep. J. Bob Traylor, D-Bay City, said before the vote. "It was dead the day it was introduced and it's dead today. We're just wasting time."

DEBATE CONTINUED

But the debate went on for over an hour, while foes of the pay increase noted the Legislature can later refuse to appropriate the $21.5 million to cover the pay hikes.

If it does, they warned, the state will have to cut the number of its civil service employees in order to pay those remaining the new, higher rates.

It will depend, they said, on whether lawmakers are willing to accept new revenue sources—such as the state income tax proposed by Gov. George Romney.

UNIQUE DISTRIBUTION

Some House members argued the pay adjustments passed by the commission last December boosted high-paid employees too much and the low-paid positions not enough.

The House Appropriations Committee, which recommended passage of the vetoing resolution, added a section which would have urged the commission to take another look at the problem and consider giving more of the pay increase to the lower classifications.

The civil service pay package involves an $18 million pay increase for fiscal 1967-68 and new fringe benefits worth an estimated $3.5 million.

The commission said the wage increases generally range between 5 and 9 per cent and average about 7 per cent.

WAGE INCREASES

Clerical and administrative classifications would get a 5 to 8 per cent increase; labor and trades classes 6.5 to 8 per cent; institution service classes 6.5 to 9.6 per cent; social welfare classes 6.4 to 8.1 per cent; and doctors, psychiatrists and engineers 5 to 8 per cent.

The largest percentage increases, ranging from 14 to 16 per cent, will go to some classes of systems analysts, elevator and boiler inspectors, highway drill core operators, prison industry workers, disability examiners and vocational rehabilitation workers.

The commission estimated that 23,000 low-level employees would share $8.6 million of the $18 million pay increase; 15,000 medium-pay employees would divide another $8.4 million; and the remaining $1 million would go to 937 top-grade employees.

The commission said its proposal would increase the median state pay rate from $6,040 a year to $6,452.

Club Break-In Charges Faced

Two men, charged with breaking and entering the Club 99 at 86 S. Telegraph March 21, will be arraigned Tuesday on the charge before Circuit Court Judge Frederick C. Ziem.

Ernest Farris, 18, of 5306 Oak Park, Independence Township, and Russell Linebaugh, 23, of 2515 Mann, Waterford Township, were bound over to the higher court by Waterford Justice Kenneth Hempstead after a pretrial examination Monday.

The two men were arrested by Waterford patrolmen Donald Bailey and Carl Solden after a citizen alerted police of the bar entry.

Also apprehended by police was Jean VanWormer, 23, of 79 Pine Grove, Waterford Township, who was in a car parked behind the bar.

She also was charged with breaking and entering, but the disposition of this charge still is pending in Justice Court.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City owns 365,000 objects, ranging from aids in the arms and armor collection to glass beads in the Egyptian collection.

Youth-Adult Panel Tonight

The second "Youth Speaks" program sponsored by the Greater Waterford Community Council (GWCC) is scheduled for 8 p.m. today at Pierce Junior High School.

Each of the six area secondary schools will be represented by two students participating in a panel discussion on student attitudes toward school and parents.

Dr. Robert A. Williams, director of Guidance and Measurement for Oakland Schools, will moderate the discussion.

The public is invited to the program which the GWCC considers an experiment in communication between youth and adults.

ANSWERED THE CALL—Ayako Smith of Chandler, Ariz., did as she was ordered: she reported to the draft board. Draft officials conceded a mistake has been made, probably by the junior college Mrs. Smith attends, and she had been listed as a male. Mrs. Smith recently immigrated to the United States and is the wife of retired Air Force M. Sgt. Bill Smith. Mrs. Smith said she would have chosen the Air Force if called on to serve her new country. "In any case," she commented "I wouldn't have burned my draft card."

Abortion Law Loosening Is Rejected in Norway

OSLO, Norway, (AP) — The Norwegian government has turned down a request by a woman member of Parliament for an abortion law giving women the right to decide by themselves to interrupt pregnancy.

"Further liberalizing of abortion in this country is unjustifiable," Egil Aarvik, minister of social affairs, told Parliament in reply to Mrs. Aase Ljonaes of the opposition labor party.

"This would mean to give individuals the right to decide whether another human being should live or not. It would be an obvious break with all those ethical and juridical principles our lawmakers are based upon."

Norway opened the way for legal abortions in 1964. But pregnant women must apply to the director of the state medical services.

CONSIDERATIONS

Permission is granted on medical or social grounds and the woman's mental as well as physical health may be considered. A woman with numerous

Limited Access on U.S. 31 Asked

MUSKOGON (AP) — State Sen. Oscar Douwma, R-Muskogon, called Tuesday for the State Highway Department to make U.S. 31 a limited access route between Montague and Manistee.

Douwma said the traffic load on the road justified making it a limited access route.

Details Kept Quiet

German-Portuguese Base Due

BEJA, Portugal, (AP) — A huge air base paid for mostly by West German marks that will eventually employ 3,000 West German airmen opens this summer near this quiet trading and wheat town 85 miles south-east of Lisbon.

Portuguese and West German officials have revealed little about the base since they began planning it within the framework of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in 1963. No official documents on their agreement have ever been published in Portuguese newspapers.

"The Portuguese government has been kind enough to have us as their guests," said a high officer among the 200 Germans already living in some of the 40 red-tiled barracks near the aluminum hangars. "This base is Portuguese and we are subject to Portuguese jurisdiction."

Although commanded and staffed by Portuguese officers, the base was planned by West German officials as a "fall back" in case of nuclear attack on their homeland. It will house three squadrons of jets able to strike back on short notice.

TEST FACILITIES

The base will have the largest jet engine test facilities in Western Europe and two runways long enough for new supersonic transport planes. NATO jet repair workshops will be transferred from Alverca, near Lisbon, to the base.

It will also have a man-made port on the Atlantic and a supply depot in northern Portugal.

West Germany is paying nearly three-quarters of the $60 million construction cost. In addition, the Germans are buying $105 million of Portuguese arms, providing therapy in German hospitals for soldiers injured fighting rebels in Portugal's African colony of Angola and helping to irrigate southern provinces of Portugal.

Fire Blame Fixed

DETROIT (AP) — Firemen blamed careless handling of an acetylene torch for a three-alarm blaze that caused an estimated $75,000 damage to the National Body Corp. on the lower East Side Tuesday. No injuries were reported.

'Grisly' U.S. Policy Is Bared by West

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Major policy changes occasionally take place in the federal government without any sort of announcement or fanfare.

The new policy may be in effect for some time before anyone notices it. But sooner or later an alert newsman, such as y'r h'mbl' c'r'r'sp'd'nt, will stumble across it, often in unexpected places. Which is exactly what I have just done.

In this case, the policy change came to light in a letter about polar bears.

Specifically, the letter concerns the efforts of Jesse E. Mason, a Lexington, Ohio, businessman, to obtain a $75,000 grant from the Interior Department to finance a polar bear research project.

WEST

It seems that Mason recently obtained three polar bears and put them in the window of his refrigeration company as a promotion gimmick.

DIDN'T REALIZE

He apparently didn't realize what he was getting into.

Polar bears, he soon discovered, have hearty appetites and otherwise cost more in upkeep than, say, hamsters.

So Mason hit upon the idea of getting the government to underwrite part of the expense in the interests of science.

He proposed keeping his polar bears in cold storage at temperatures as low as 30 degrees below zero.

DEEP FREEZE

The purpose would be to see whether a deep freeze environment would encourage polar bears in captivity to breed more often.

To you and me, this might seem like a laudable project. The Interior Department, however, rejected it.

In a letter to Mason, assistant secretary Stanley A. Cain pointed out that polar bears in captivity breed often enough already, regardless of the temperature.

Then Cain added a sentence so pregnant with meaning it far transcended the importance of a polar bear's love life.

NO PROBLEM

"Frankly," he wrote, "there doesn't seem to be any problem requiring the solution you suggest."

Now there we have the tip-off that governmental policy has undergone a major change.

It means, apparently, that the government is no longer seeking solutions to problems that do not exist.

'No Surprise' Due in Romney Viet Talk

LANSING (UPI) — Jonathan Romney Vietnam speech) is particularly disproportionate," Moore said.

"I don't think he'll have anything surprising to say or appreciatively different in terms of his past position," Moore said.

BUNDY'S ASSISTANT
Moore resigned last August from the State Department after serving five years as assistant to William Bundy, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs. He was in Lansing yesterday to present Romney with a draft copy of the Hartford speech.

"There isn't going to be any single exclusive statement on Vietnam," Moore said of the speech which is still in the planning stages.

"He (Romney) is going to have to develop his position over a long period of time. You have to have an evolving position on Vietnam. Situations change daily," he declared.

However, Moore said he expects Romney to "make more comprehensive" his position on the war in the Hartford speech than he has in recent remarks.

'BASIC APPROACH'
Romney said in a news conference he planned to talk about the "basic approach" to the war. "I will not discuss tactics," he said.

Moore said Romney planners also are beginning to talk about the governor making trips to Latin America and Europe before he goes to Southeast Asia and Vietnam this year.

"He (Romney) wants to travel abroad," Moore said.

Moore, 34, was a State Department escort to Romney and several other governors during a visit to Vietnam in the fall of 1965. The State Department sponsored the trip.

Moore said Romney planned to make a construction site.

The driver of the truck, Ronald Reuter, 27, Mount Clemens, told police he was dumping the sand with direction by fellow employees when the child ran up on the pile and was quickly buried.

It took workmen and bystanders nearly 10 minutes to dig the boy out.

Load of Sand Buries Boy, 7

DETROIT (UPI) — Anthony Smith, 7, died yesterday when he was buried under a load of sand at a construction site.

The driver of the truck, Ronald Reuter, 27, Mount Clemens, told police he was dumping the sand with direction by fellow employees when the child ran up on the pile and was quickly buried.

It took workmen and bystanders nearly 10 minutes to dig the boy out.

State Murder Victim Identified

MONROE (AP) — State Police Tuesday identified the body of a man found off a rural road in southern Monroe County as that of William P. Abell, 53, of Clemensville, Ky.

Abell, formerly of Bluffsfield, died of head injuries from a beating with a heavy metal object, an autopsy showed.

Leslie T. Morrin, 37, of Monroe was arraigned Tuesday in Monroe Municipal Court on a first-degree murder charge in Abell's death.

De Gaulle Launches Nation's First Craft

CHERBOURG, France (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle today launched France's first nuclear-powered submarine, an 8,000-ton giant named the Redoutable which is nearly equal in size to the largest American Polaris submarines.

When armed with 16 nuclear-tipped ballistic missiles and operational a scheduled three years hence, the submarine will be a basic addition to de Gaulle's Force de Frappe (strike force) of supersonic nuclear-armed bombers and planned ballistic missiles.

The 420-foot submarine slipped down the skids at Cherbourg's government-operated ship yard where it has been under construction since 1955.

De Gaulle traveled the 200 miles from Paris for the launching. Security precautions in the drab port city were strict. Security police roamed sleeping guests in every hotel room in the city this morning at 6:30 for an identity check.

Missing at the launching was the traditional bottle of champagne. Instead de Gaulle pressed a button to launch the ship.

TWO VALUABLE?
He chose not to smash a bottle of bubbly across the bow of Le Redoutable which he ordered built as soon as he came back to power in 1958 at the start of the Fifth Republic. Possibly de Gaulle decided the big boat was too valuable for even a scratch.

It is nearly equal in size and ballistic missile potential to America's biggest Polaris submarines, the Lafayette class.

French navy officials expressed pride in its building, calling it a formidable achievement for their country to join American, Britain and the Soviet Union in having atomic-powered undersea craft.

But Le Redoutable will be a lame duck for three years. France's first fully operational ballistic missile is not scheduled for completion before 1970.

COMPARISON
Le Redoutable is 420 feet long compared to 425 for the Lafayette. Its 34-foot beam is a foot wider than the U.S. models.

Its 32-foot draft is one foot less than the Lafayette. When completed it will weigh about 8,000 tons compared to 8,250 for the Lafayette.

And it will be slower. Redoutable is expected to make 15 knots on the surface and at least 20 submerged, according to navy officials. The U.S. class can do 20 on the waves and an estimated 35 below.

The French submarine was designed to carry 15 officers, a doctor and 135 crewmen on 60-day underwater cruises. Two nuclear subs are scheduled to follow, in 1970 and 1975.

There has been speculation Le Redoutable will be commanded by a naval officer especially trusted by de Gaulle — his son.

Vote Makes Florida GOP Tops in Dixie

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Florida emerged today with the strongest two-party legislature in the once solidly Democratic South, giving its new Republican governor strong veto control.

The voters Tuesday abandoned century-old political traditions and gave Republicans strength they have never known in the court-ordered election of Florida's first one-man, one-vote legislature.

Although only about one-third of the state's 2.5 million voters cast ballots, the electorate — with its first Republican governor in 94 years in office less than three months — gave the GOP a better than one-third minority in the legislative branch.

A two-thirds vote is needed in the Florida Legislature to override a veto.

GOP TRIUMPH

Not since Reconstruction has the GOP held such leverage in a Southern state government.

Gov. Claude Kirk laid his political prestige on the line as he campaigned for Republican legislative candidates.

But many — including Kirk himself — expressed doubt that he had become sufficiently popular to pull into office as many Republicans as were elected.

Democrats outnumber Republicans on the registration books 4-1.

POLITICAL UPSET

Kirk was elected last November on an anti-Johnson administration program that embraced no new taxes, all-out war, on crime, opposition to rising food prices, and "normal" economic growth. It was the political upset of the century in Florida.

Kirk had called upon the voters in the legislative campaign to "show your dissatisfaction with the Johnson administration as you did in November."

Kirk's controversial "war on crime," which is being run by a private detective agency, was not an issue in any legislative race.

A federal court declared Florida's old apportionment unconstitutional because it was weighted toward rural votes.

'1 in 4 on Drug at Berkeley'

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of every four students at the University of California in Berkeley smokes marijuana, says the physician responsible for his student health on the campus.

Dr. Henry B. Bruyn, health director on the 28,000-student Berkeley campus, said as many as 40 per cent of the students at some Eastern universities — especially in urban areas — smoke marijuana.

Bruyn said 6 to 8 per cent of Berkeley campus students take the hallucinatory drug LSD.

2 Still Free in Bishop's Killing

DURANGO, Mexico (AP) — Two of the five men accused of killing a Roman Catholic bishop early this month are still at large, but police said one of them — Jesus Castillo — has offered to surrender if he is guaranteed protection from mob vengeance.

Bishop Jose de la Soledad Torres Castaneda of Ciudad Obregon was returning home March 4 after attending a Mass in the small village of Tepic, in northwestern Durango State.

His body was found Sunday night buried in the Sierra Madre Mountains.

One of the accused men, Pascual Najera Moreno, was turned in Tuesday by his brother, Pedro. Two others — Arturo Santos Estevanez and Baldomero Garcia — were captured earlier and admitted they were members of a five-man gang of car thieves. They said Felipe Medrano, who is still at large, killed the bishop so they could get his car.

Mindszenty 75; Resignation Doubted

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Jozsef Cardinal Mindszenty observed his 75th birthday in the U.S. Embassy today, but an embassy spokesman declined to speculate whether he would comply with a papal request that bishops reaching that age offer to resign.

"It is entirely between the cardinal and the Vatican," the spokesman said.

Roman Catholic sources have expressed doubt that the Hungarian prelate would retire and end his self-confinement in the embassy where he took refuge Nov. 4, 1956, when the Hungarian uprising was smashed.

A source close to Franziskus Cardinal Koenig of Vienna, who has often visited Mindszenty, said in Austria recently:

"I consider it improbable that Cardinal Mindszenty will offer his resignation. If he were to do it, I consider it improbable that Pope Paul would accept it. Even if the Pope accepted it, I consider it doubtful that Cardinal Mindszenty would leave Hungary."

IRRITANT TO RELATIONS

If the cardinal resigned as bishop of Esztergom and primate of Hungary, or agreed to move to Rome while retaining his titles, he would remove himself as the central issue between the Vatican and Hungary's Communist government. He would also remove an irritant to U.S.-Hungarian relations.

The cardinal considers his presence in Budapest a constant protest against the Communists who convicted him of high treason and sentenced him to life imprisonment in 1949. He is reported determined not to leave Hungary until the government guarantees full church freedom and revokes his conviction.

The embassy spokesman said the cardinal was spending his birthday quietly, reading and in meditation, and would have no special celebration. As in past years, a birthday cake was made by the embassy chef.

Ship Is First of 1967 to Enter State Bay

TRAVERSE CITY (UPI)—The first ship of the 1967 season battled its way through 20-inch thick ice in Grand Traverse Bay yesterday before finally docking.

The Mobil Chicago, skippered by Capt. Morgan Barber, took more than four hours to crash its way through the broken ice without aid from the Coast Guard.

Barber said he would not have attempted to dock if he had known the ice was so thick in the bay.

GM to Build Latin Cars?

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—General Motors Corp. President Frederick Donner flew to Rio de Janeiro yesterday but denied his trip had anything to do with GM's plans to build passenger cars in Brazil.

The government in February approved a GMC plan to build the Opel Record in Brazil.

The GMC application said the car, a product of GM's German subsidiary, would be produced in four and six-cylinder models at GMC plants in Sao Caitano and Sao Jose, both near Sao Paulo.

Ford last month began delivering Brazil-made Ford Galaxies, making GMC the only member of the American "Big Three" not making a passenger car in South America's largest country.

Finished the Job

LYONS, Kan. (AP)—Bill Fry, manager of a store here, entering one morning, found his store had been broken into and the safe cleaned out. After reporting the robbery to police, he went to a nearby restaurant for a cup of coffee. While there, someone stole his hat from the rack.

Mr. Walker knows...

At the American Tobacco Company they know newspapers are an effective advertising medium for selling. Barney Walker confirms: "There is no doubt that the growing popularity of Lucky Strike Filters, Pall Mall Filters and Carlton cigarettes is due to high-frequency newspaper ad campaigns from coast to coast. It's the same with La Corona and Antonio y Cleopatra cigars. The millions of dollars we are investing in newspaper space are really paying dividends."

Spring Cooking Should Be Quick and Easy

Pontiac Press Food Editor

That touch of spring we had on Easter Sunday, has given us all spring fever.

If you didn't like to cook very well before then, you'll resent every minute in the kitchen when we have days and days of pleasant weather.

That's the time to plan on quick and easy main dishes. The casserole is the answer; or the skillet meal.

Boneless pork shoulder is relatively inexpensive. Cooked in a sour cream sauce, it is an excellent topping for noodles.

Simmer the meat in the morning; reheat at dinner time and add sour cream just before serving.

EGG NOODLES WITH PORK SAUCE

1½ pounds boneless pork shoulder, cut into 2x½-inch strips
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon salad oil
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
½ teaspoon pepper
1 onion bouillon cube
1 can (1 pound) green beans, drained and liquid reserved
Water
½ cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon salt

3 quarts boiling water
8 ounces medium egg noodles (about 4 cups)
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ teaspoon caraway seed (optional)
Paprika and chopped parsley
Toss pork with flour. In large skillet, brown in hot oil. Remove excess fat. Add celery, green pepper and garlic; cook 3 minutes. Stir in 1 tablespoon salt, monosodium glutamate, pepper and bouillon cube.

Combine bean liquid with enough water to measure 1 cup. Add to pork mixture.

Cover and simmer 40 to 45 minutes or until pork is tender. Stir in beans and sour cream; heat to serving temperature.

Meanwhile add 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add noodles so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Toss noodles with butter and caraway seed. Serve pork over noodles, sprinkled with paprika and parsley. Makes 4-6 servings.

If you have some leftover chicken or turkey, serve it in a tamale pie. You could substitute a package of corn muffin mix for the topping.

CHICKEN TAMALES

3 cups cubed cooked chicken
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 12-oz. can whole kernel corn with sweet peppers

1 12-oz. can tomato paste
1½ cups water
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon pepper

Topping
¾ cup enriched corn meal
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
½ cup milk
1 tablespoon shortening

Heat over to 400 degrees. Combine chicken, garlic, corn, tomato paste, water, chili powder, salt, sugar and pepper in large skillet. Simmer 10 to 15 minutes until thoroughly heated.

For topping, sift together corn meal, flour, baking powder and salt into medium-sized bowl. Add egg, milk and shortening. Beat with rotary beater until smooth, about 1 minute. Do not overbeat.

Place hot chicken base in 1½-qt. casserole. Pour topping over chicken base. Bake in preheated oven 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Spaghetti sauce mix is an excellent convenience food to keep on your shelf. In this recipe, it goes into a casserole with ground beef and rice.

RICE ITALIAN STYLE

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ lb. ground beef

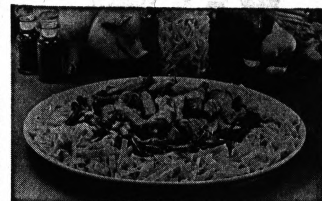

1 cup raw long grain rice
1 (2½ oz.) package meatless spaghetti sauce mix
4 cups water
1 teaspoon salt

Melt butter in skillet. Add meat and brown well. Add rice and cook until rice is golden, stirring constantly. Add spaghetti sauce mix, water, salt. Bring to boil.

Cover; reduce heat and cook gently for 20 minutes or until rice is tender and all moisture is absorbed. Makes 4 servings.

For oven cooking: Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Brown meat and rice as directed above. Add other ingredients. Put in 1½ quart casserole. Cover and bake 1 hour.

Saute' Bread in Olive Oil for Tomatoes

Searching for a different vegetable dish? The good old standby, stewed tomatoes, becomes delightfully different when made the Spanish way and it's quick and easy, too.

3 or 4 tablespoons Spanish olive oil

1 slice stale white bread, broken in cubes

1 small onion, sliced; or 1 teaspoon instant minced onion

¼ teaspoon oregano

¼ teaspoon salt, or to taste

1 large can (1 lb. 12 oz.) tomatoes

3 tablespoons minced parsley

First heat the olive oil in a large heavy saucepan, then fry the bread quickly until golden on both sides; remove bread cubes, drain on absorbent paper.

Add the sliced onion, and cool over lowered heat until yellow; add the oregano, tomato, and salt (if using instant minced onion, add this with the tomato). Replace bread.

Simmer uncovered 15 to 20 minutes. Add parsley during last few minutes. Makes 6 servings. Especially good with chops and mashed potatoes.

Wheat germ, in addition to its good bonus of B vitamins, iron, vitamin E and other nutrients, adds a pleasant nut-like taste.

Serve the pancakes with syrup, honey or preserves, and maybe some sausage or crisp bacon.

Wheat Germ Buttermilk Pancakes

1 cup unflavored flour

½ cup wheat germ

1 tsp. sugar

½ tsp. baking soda

½ tsp. salt

The recipe added that that the re-greening has no effect on the ripeness and juiciness of the fruit.

Green Color OK

The peel of fully-colored mature oranges and grapefruit often reverts to green in the spring, says the Florida Citrus Commission. The color change supplies chlorophyll to the new crop of fruit that develops on the trees before the old crop is picked.

The re-greening has no effect on the ripeness and juiciness of the fruit.

Wheat Germ Pancakes

1 cup unflavored flour

½ cup wheat germ

1 tsp. sugar

½ tsp. baking soda

½ tsp. salt

Thick, juicy veal chops browned to a golden turn, baked in onions and wine, and topped with tangy American blue cheese is a new entrée that will soon become a favorite with your family.

Blue Cheese Veal Chops served with potatoes, a nutritious green vegetable, salad, dessert and a beverage also could become one of your favorite "company" dinners.

Keep a wedge of American blue cheese in your refrigerator. If over-wrapped in air-tight paper, it will keep up to three months.

Blue Cheese Veal Chops

4 veal chops, 1-inch thick

2 large onions, sliced thick salt

¼ cup American blue cheese (about 1¼ ounces, crumbled)

2 tablespoons parsley, finely chopped

4 strips bacon, uncooked

½ cup dry white wine

Lightly brown veal chops. Place onion slices in bottom of 9x9 inch pan. Arrange veal chops on top. Salt and pepper chops. Crumble 1 tablespoon American blue cheese on top of each chop. Sprinkle parsley over all.

Cut bacon strips in half and place 2 pieces on each chop. Pour wine over all. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Add more wine or water if pan becomes too dry.

WHEAT GERM PANCAKES—These pancakes made with buttermilk are ideal for a weekend breakfast. The buttermilk makes them tender; the wheat germ adds good nutrition.

Wheat Germ Pancakes

1 cup unflavored flour

½ cup wheat germ

1 tsp. sugar

½ tsp. baking soda

½ tsp. salt

it's impossible

What is?

Trying to describe the beautiful new packages for our A&P Frozen Baked Foods. You'll just have to see them to appreciate our problem.

This we can tell you:

Delicious as they look, they taste even more delicious.

What are the products like? Well...

There's an Apple Strudel so tender and flaky, the most accomplished German baker would be jealous.

There are Devil's Food Cakes you'll say only angels could bake... the taste is that heavenly.

There are All Butter Coffee Cakes and Pound Cake as delicious as their names sound.

An Orange Cake whose batter has been kissed with an orange tang and topped with a smooth icing.

There's a Cream Cheese Cake. The creamiest thing that ever sat atop a graham cracker base.

We could go on and on. But why tease you any more? Know what your biggest problem is going to be? Which one to buy first.

Here's a suggestion. Buy them all.

COMING TO KETTERING — One of the three groups providing entertainment Friday night at Waterford Kettering High School will be Terry Knight and the Pack. They will be joined by the Bossmen and the Tidal Waves for two separate shows with proceeds going to Children's Village School. A show for junior high school youngsters is scheduled from 7 to 8:30 p.m., with a 9:30 to 11:30 p.m. show for the high school students. Tickets at $1.50 are on sale at all Waterford Township secondary schools and at the Pontiac Mall.

Heston's Concern
for Profession Shows

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The president of the Screen Actors Guild sat down to lunch: three bites of a diet bar and a glass of skim milk.

"It is unfortunate but true," said Charlton Heston, "that if you are in the business of selling your face and figure on the movie screen, you must diet."

paying customers who are now pouring through studios. Should actors have more privacy at their work? Or should they be paid extra for being viewed like animals in a zoo? These matters are being discussed with producers.

"But the most important matter is wages," said Heston. "While I don't want to prejudice the feeling of our members, I feel that we should again retain the same minimums for movie work, as we did in the last contract."

"But I also feel we should fight for higher minimums in television when the contract comes due in late summer, and I believe this could be a strike issue."

Heston is among the most disciplined of stars. He maintains a flat stomach in order to command fat salaries. He also conducts his personal and professional life in a most salutary way.

He is a man who is concerned about his profession, whether the issue is economics or professional behavior. On the latter subject, he told of the Guild's fining of a name actor $1,500 for his failure to perform a television script according to his contract.

The Guild president discussed other matters that concern actors. One of these is personal safety; the Guild asked for a study of safety precautions following the drowning of Eric Fleming on a Peruvian location.

"There are many ways of approaching that," said Heston, himself an expert in action films. "The best way, I feel, is for the actor to make himself proficient in those matters of stunt in which he can prepare himself and to secure the most expert of help in things which he cannot control."

Another Guild concern is the studio tour. Some actors have been fretful about the hordes of

Will the real peanut butter please stand up.

(Hint: it's the one that's offering 7¢ off on your next jar.)

There are three of us. The famous brands. The "good" ones. But spread all three and you'll see: Two just lie there. Kind of plain and punchless. Alas, no real character to call their own.

And then there's one—the only easy-eatin' peanut butter with the grownup taste. The taste of the peanuts is so big and rich, it leaps off the bread. So creamy, it nearly spreads itself. So rich with the grow-on protein of peanuts—why, you can just watch a little guy grow on it. So why don't you?

MEAL-IN-ONE SALAD — For a filling lunch or a light dinner feature, fresh Anjou pears and roast pork make a winning salad combination. Winter pears have a long season.

Juicy Pears Blend Well With Pork

Fresh, unpeeled slices of delicious Anjou winter pears provide the setting for a generous salad that's appropriate for casual lunching or formal dining. Chopped winter pears, cubes or roast pork, chopped celery and grapes, combined and moistened with a bit of mayonnaise, are heaped in the center of this pear-encircled salad plate.

Garnish with julienne strips of pork and top with parsley for a final touch.

Their versatility suggests that juicy Anjou winter pears are most appropriate for dual roles. Perfect for out-of-hand eating, their smooth and spicy flavor blends ideally in salads.

Here, for instance, Anjou's fresh-eating qualities create a circle of sliced pear appeal that makes this salad a complete meal. Anjou pears may vary from light green to yellow-green when ripe.

You'll usually find fresh Western pears ripe and ready to eat at your favorite market. Ripe pears yield to gentle pressure regardless of color.

Meal-In-One Pear Salad
3 fresh Anjou pears
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup roast pork, cubed
¼ cup green grapes
¼ cup chopped celery
Mayonnaise, to moisten
Strips of roast pork, for garnish
Parsley

Slice and core pears. Reserve slices from one pear for garnish, cube remaining slices. Sprinkle cut pears with lemon juice. Combine cubed pears with cubed roast pork, grapes and celery. Add enough mayonnaise to moisten.

Mound salad mixture on platter and surround with overlapping slices of pear. Garnish with strips of pork and parsley. Makes 2 full-meal salads.

Notes: Cooked ham or chicken may be used in place of roast pork.

Freeze Butter

Take advantage of the special sales of your favorite brand of butter, by utilizing some of your freezer space and freezing extra butter. Butter can be frozen in its original container without additional wrapping.

However if butter is to be kept frozen for several months, over-wrap it in a freezer material to prevent loss of moisture from the surface. Defrost a pound the day before you are using it by putting it in the refrigerator.

Cook giblets with a stewing chicken, removing them as soon as they are done.

Tuna Labels Clue Cook

Does "Solid Pack" Tuna mean broken into bite-size pieces for the way the can is packed, or does the specific type of tuna in the can clue the cook?

Side! If you know the different terms for canned tuna and read the label, you'll choose the one best-suited for each menu you have in mind:

"Solid pack" means solid filets which may be used whole, or broken into pieces of any size for hot or cold dishes.

"Albacore" is the species which produce White Meat Tuna. It has a delicate flavor and is packed in large, perfect pieces. "Chunk style" is tuna that's broken into bite-size pieces for sandwiches, dips and salads.

"Light meat" tuna comes from the Yellowfin, Skipjack and Bluefin species. It has a definite more robust flavor, and is the most popular pack on the market. Select the tuna for the specific dish you want to serve and serve it often!

Plum-Filled Goodies

Jack Horner Would Be Happy

Canned purple plums are handy to have on kitchen shelves. Obviously they go through the day for perking-up breakfasting, in such good luncheon salads, as toppings for dinner's angel food-and-ice cream desserts, to name but a few ways of enjoying this luscious fruit.

Used as an ingredient or in salads, these canned plums should be drained for at least an hour, for they are fairly bursting with deep crimson syrup, use of which could make a story in itself.

PURPLE PLUM CAKE SQUARES
This recipe is quick and easy to do. You will need 8 or 9 well-drained canned purple plums. Remove pits. Snip plums with scissors to make 1 cup.

Prepare 1 package of white or yellow cake mix, following directions on package. The fruit-flavored mixes are also excellent for this recipe.

Spread in a buttered 13x21-inch baking dish or use 2 shallow pans about 9-inches square. (You could use two 9-inch round cake pans and cut in wedges to serve.)

Using a teaspoon, drop the prepared plums evenly over the Cake is done if it springs back when touched lightly in the center. Don't mind if the plums go to the bottom in the baking.

Cool cake in the pan for about 10 minutes, then cover to the edges with the following topping. Place low under the broiler unit and slightly browned. Don't go away! IT scorches easily.

For the Broiled Topping mix together ½ cup softened butter, ½ cup packed brown sugar, ¼ cup cream of undiluted evaporated milk, ¼ cup chopped walnuts, 1 cup shredded coconut.

PURPLE PLUM COOKIE BARS
These cookie bars are, by nature, quite moist and rather rough in texture. They should be kept in the refrigerator (hidden!) and may need an extra sprinkling of powdered sugar after standing.

You may like the baked cookie-cake served warm, cut in squares, with a hot pudding sauce and a bit of hard sauce—a perfect dessert.

½ cup solid shortening
1 teaspoon cinnamon

1 cup brown sugar, firmly-packed

½ teaspoon vanilla

2 eggs, unbeaten

1 cup well-drained, pitted and cut canned purple plums

1 and ½ cups sifted all-purpose flour

½ teaspoon each salt and soda

1 teaspoon baking powder

½ cup buttermilk

½ cup coarsely-chopped walnuts

Cram together shortening, sugar, cinnamon, vanilla. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Stir in the finely-cut plums. Add alternately the flour and buttermilk, reserving enough of the flour to sift over the walnuts as they are stirred in.

Spread batter in buttered 13x21-inch baking dish or the equivalent in two 9-inch square pans. Bake in 350 degree (moderate) oven 30 to 35 minutes or until cookie-cake will bounce back when touched lightly in the center with a finger. Do not remove from pan.

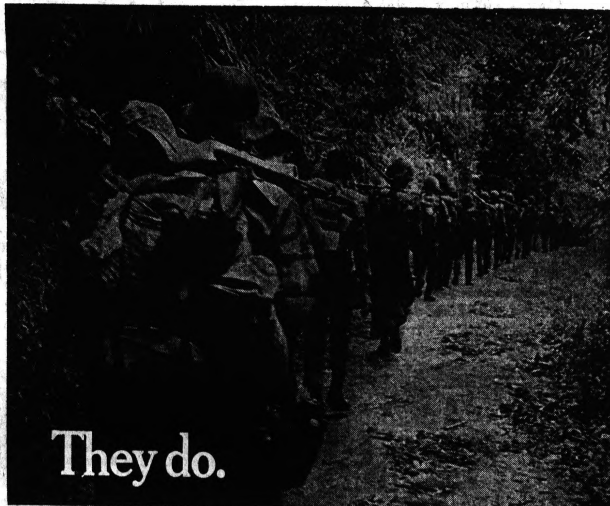

When cool, cut in bars of desired size. Sift powdered sugar over them. Or, before cutting, spread with powdered sugar-butter frosting. Then cut in bars.

PLUM TREATS — You don't see them but they are here — canned purple plums pictured as tea-time treats in these spicy Purple Plum Nut Bars and Coconut Squares. They are mighty good lunch box, snack, and dessert fare to be enjoyed the year around.

Part I—Three Stages of Stardom

Dynamic Howe Is 'Ruth' of Hockey

(First of a Series.)
NEW YORK (NEA) — "Gordie Howe," opined a pudgy hockey historian as he watched the dynamic Detroit right winger slap a shot straight at New York netender Ed Giacomin, "is the Babe Ruth of this game. There's never been anybody like him. A lot of good men are going to be born, live out their lives and go to the grave before a guy as gifted as Gordie comes along again."

Perhaps his equal will never be seen.

Howe is one of those rare athletes who has become a living legend.

Now in his 21st year with the Red Wings, the 6-foot, 204-pound powerhouse has won everything worth winning during a brilliant career that has carried him from Saskatchewan to superstardom.

him as something special even during his amateur days as a junior standout with the Galt Red Wings.

Along with being hockey's Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Ted Williams rolled into one, Howe also has to be considered the game's Gary Cooper.

The strong, silent type about whom it's said, "He may not say much, but he won't push him to far." Those who have decided to push have paid a penalty sealed with scars.

"Gordie's as clean as they come," reveals one rival, "but if you yell him you can just bet you're going to get belted right back."

Pate, which has been cruel to the New York Rangers in years past, was probably cruelest of all 25 years ago when Howe, then a 14-year-old phenomenon fresh from the farm, wandered into the Ranger camp and tried out for the team.

LONGER LOOK

The late Lester Patrick, boss of the Broadway Blues, gave Gordie a cursory look and sent him home. Jack Adams, former general manager of the Red Wings, took a longer look and the rest is history.

"That story is true," says Howe. "But it really isn't fair to Mr. Patrick. You have to remember that when I tried out for the Rangers, I was just a lonesome kid who wanted to go home. Anybody would have done the same thing that Mr. Patrick did."

Still the Rangers can't help but think of what might have been.

Those who know Howe best, his teammates, are highest in their praise of the ambidextrous ice artist. "I can't think of anything about Gordie that I'd change," says coach Sid Abel, "except that he's too unselfish."

We'd like it if he'd shoot a little more instead of passing off so much."

Abel's assessment is affirmed by the fact that Howe has made more assists and registered more total points, in addition to having played in more games and scored more goals, than anyone in the history of the game.

"Gordie helped lengthen my career by a couple of years," quips former team mate Ted Lindsay. "You could always count on him to make you look good." Lindsay, a left winger, scored 379 goals while establishing himself as one of the best scrappers in the NHL.

and he had plenty of help from Howe.

"The only knock on Gordie," notes a devout Detroit follower, "is that he never has much to say about his records. Some people think he just sets 'em and forgets 'em."

But that's not true. He's just the kind of guy who keeps things to himself. He's not a pop-off. He's the greatest, but he's almost embarrassed about it."

Howe has already decided to slip on his skates for the 1967-68 season and nobody knows what will happen after that.

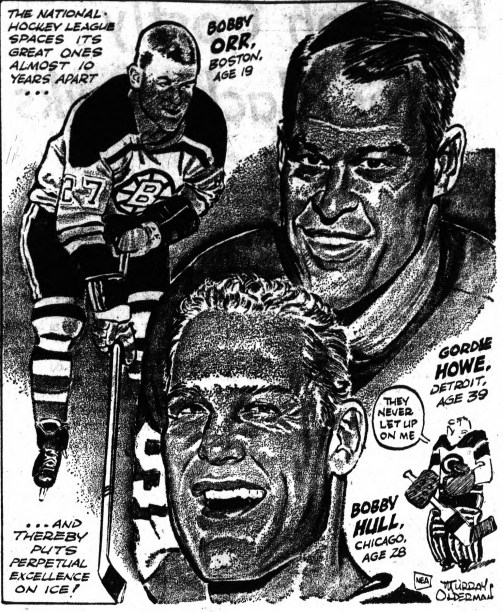

Abel has indicated that wearing two hats has become a fire-some chore (Sid is general manager as well as coach) and rumor has it that Howe might someday take over the coaching duties.

But in this, a winter of deep content, Howe is doing as much backward glancing as he is looking ahead.

"Everything I am, everything I have," he says, "I owe to hockey."

Hockey, on the other hand, owes a great deal to Howe.

(NEXT: Bobby Hull — Superstar at His Peak.)

Nobody Better

He's the only man in hockey history to have scored 700 goals over-all (regular season and playoffs); a six-time MVP; a six-time point-scoring leader; a five-time goal-scoring champion. Nobody has played longer, or better. Few have come closer.

And yet, despite all the crowns placed upon his rapidly receding hairline, Howe has somehow managed to retain the same quiet complexity that marked

U.S. Hockey Team Wants to Forget

VIENNA (AP) — "Barcelona, here I come."

The voice belted above the din of noisy American hockey players riding the bus back to the hotel after their last game of the 1967 World Hockey Championships.

They had just clobbered West Germany 8-3 and from the topics of conversation during the bus ride — sand, sun, bullfights, golf and other pleasures life — it was plain they wanted to forget about icy hockey for awhile.

The U.S. team, called by Coach Murray Williamson "skating wounded" because of a string of injuries, finished with

Place-Kicking Specialist Concerned by Back Injury

FT. DIX, N.J. (AP) — Pete Gogolak, place-kicking star of the New York Giants, shrugged off a thought more painful than his back injury as he lay stretched out in an Army hospital bed.

"I don't want to think about being washed up in football," he said. "My main concern is getting well and getting healthy."

Gogolak, 24, was injured two weeks ago in a fall down six steps in a barracks for recruits at this sprawling Army post. He was inducted in January.

"At this time I still have trouble walking, but the main thing is that it's very painful," the former Cornell star told an interviewer Tuesday.

Gogolak's injury was disclosed Tuesday by his father, Dr. John Gogolak, a psychiatrist on the staff of Mt. McGregor State Hospital in Wilton, N.Y.

"He's in the lowest level of his mental life," Dr. Gogolak said of his son.

Officials at Wadsworth Army Hospital diagnosed the injury as a lumbar sacral sprain, located in the lower back, Gogolak has a long history of spinal trouble.

Col. Lawrence S. Albrecht, hospital administrator, said Gogolak had been examined on six occasions at the orthopedic clinic and a number of times at a field dispensary for complaints about back trouble before the accident.

for three runs in the sixth inning, breaking a 1-1 tie against the Pirates. Rusty Staub's triple triggered the winning rally.

Jim Gosger drove in three runs with a homer and a single in Kansas City's victory over the Yankees. Rookie Bill Robinson homered and drove in all four New York runs.

Mike McCormick worked seven strong innings and Willie McCovey drove in three runs for the Giants against the Cubs. Lindy McDaniel pitched the last two innings and lowered his spring earned run average for seven appearances to 0.75.

Doug Camilli drove in three runs with a single and double and Jim King homered in Washington's victory over Baltimore. Paul Blair homered for the Orioles.

Jay Johnstone's bases-loaded single helped California win Cleveland. The hit raised Johnstone's spring average to .406.

Illinois Calls Two Alumni

Expect Schmidt, Valek to Be Named

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Jim Valek and Harry Schmidt, pair of former University of Illinois star athletes, were expected to answer the call of alums mater today.

Valek and Schmidt were slated to be at a press conference today announcing the new head football and basketball coaches.

Valek will succeed Pete Elliott as football coach and Schmidt will fill the basketball position held by Harry Combes.

Elliott, Combes and Assistant basketball coach Howie Braun recently resigned in the wake of the $21,000 slush fund scandal after the Big Ten ruled the three should be fired or Illinois face suspension from the conference.

GRUD CAPTAIN

Valek, 41, is a former Illinois grid captain who played end on the 1947 Rose Bowl championship team. Valek and Gene Vance, who officially becomes Illinois' athletic director April 1, coached at LaSalle-Peru (Ill.) High School in the mid-1950s.

Schmidt, 31, was captain and most valuable player on the 1957 Illinois basketball team. He has been serving as assistant to head coach Bob King at New Mexico for the last three years.

Ring Vet Machen Quits After Loss

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Heavyweight Eddie Machen hung up his gloves for good after losing a 12-rounder Tuesday night to young California champion Henry Clark in the same ring where Machen began his pro career in 1955.

"I've gone to the end of the line and this is a good time to get out," said the 34-year-old Machen who won high ranking among heavyweights but never got to the top.

In Tuesday night's fight, the aging Machen made a go of it for seven rounds, but the 22-year-old Clark, who was defending the state title he won last January, took charge in the eighth and won going away.

Semifinal Games Set in AAU Play

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Bartlesville, Okla., plays Denver and Akron, Ohio meets Chicago in the semifinals tonight of the National AAU Basketball Tournament.

Bartlesville, co-favorite for the title with Akron, skipped by the Armed Forces All-Stars, 94-79 in Tuesday night's quarterfinals. Akron turned back Spokane, Wash., 66-62. Chicago steamed through overtime to beat San Francisco 84-82 and Denver won 79-70 from New York.

Except for the Chicago-San Francisco contest, which was a rough-and-tumble affair, the quarter-final matches were tame compared with the usual AAU fare.

Sixty-one fouls were whistled in the match between the Saints from Illinois and the San Francisco Athletic Club.

The regular contest ended 76-76 and Jim Coleman's 20-foot jump shot during three seconds remaining in the extra period carried Chicago to victory.

HOT SHOT

Red Sergeant of Bartlesville connected eight of nine field shots in the first half to set the tempo for the Oklahoma's triumph. He topped the scoring with 24 points.

Akron, behind 10 points at halftime, rallied in the second half on Vern Benson's quarter-backing and shooting. Benson, the game's leading scorer with 18, assured the Akron victory by stealing the ball and driving in for a layup with 10 seconds left.

New York's inability to hit from the field—only four goals in the first 15 minutes of the second half—paved the way for Denver's victory.

Pro Basketball Loser Thinking Like Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — Fred Crawford is one of the losers, but he thinks like a winner.

Crawford, a New York Knickerbocker rookie, scored 28 points Tuesday night and played a fine floor game, but he readily admitted afterwards his jump shot is not up to National Basketball Association standards.

"I've got to work on it," he said.

How?

"I'm going over to the Boston dressing room and talk to Sam Jones."

Now there was a winning idea.

Sam jumped all over Madison Square Garden Tuesday night and it seemed just about every time he hit the floor the Celtics had two more points. As a result, the Knicks were out of the NBA playoffs.

The final score was Boston 118, New York 109, with 51 of the Celtics' points — 38 from the field on 19 of 30 attempts and 13 of 17 free throws — were made by jumping Jones.

The victory was the third against one loss for the Celtics in the best-of-5 Eastern Division semifinal series and it moved the defending champions into the best-of-7 final against division-winning Philadelphia beginning Friday.

"I think Sam was irritated with his game Sunday night," said Boston Player-Coach Bill Russell.

Cassius vs. Army in Federal Court

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay's fight to stay out of military service returned to Louisville today for a round in U.S. District Court.

A hearing was set to determine whether a three-judge board should be set up to hear the champion's contention that he was the victim of racial discrimination.

Clay filed suit here saying there was an imbalance of Negroes in the Louisville and other Kentucky draft boards.

The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati rejected Clay's bid Tuesday for a court order to keep him from being inducted into the Army in April.

Champ Leading Billiard Action

NEW YORK (AP) — Luther Lassiter, the defending champion from Elizabeth City, N.C., took the undisputed lead in the World Pocket Billiards Championship Tuesday night by defeating Art Crawford of Syracuse, N.Y., 190-111 in his ninth straight victory.

Frank McGown of Brooklyn, N.Y., dropped out of a first-place tie with Lassiter by losing to Cicero Murphy, also of Brooklyn, 150-38, Murphy ran 89 and out to win the match.

Planning Stanley Cup Win

Rangers' Coach Is Confident

NEW YORK (AP) — Emile riding down Broadway with the Stanley Cup that morning. Then Francis has an early May date crossed out in his appointment book.

"I'll be busy that day," the general manager-coach of the New York Rangers said. "We'll be holding of their first playoff appearance in five years, he is already plotting the Cup victory.

"It will be a tough job," he admitted, "but we can do it."

The Rangers are involved in a three-way tug of war for second place with Montreal and Toronto. New York hosts Detroit tonight while the Canadiens enroute, the Maple Leafs at Montreal.

BIG DIFFERENCE

The difference between finishing second — the highest the Rangers can hope for — and fourth — the final playoff berth — is $1,000 per man. The second-place team also plays the first two playoff games at home and in a seven game series would host four games.

"No, I wasn't overly concerned by that streak," Francis said. "We weren't losing badly. We were in every game. Sometimes the puck just doesn't bounce your way."

"I'm just glad we got that streak out of our system before the playoffs," he added.

But Francis believes no matter where they finish, the Rangers will do well in the post-season action.

"We're playing our checking game again," he said. "We'll be ready."

Aussie Netter Keeps Rolling

BOSTON (AP) — Australian Rod Laver, riding "the best streak of my life," now has a string of five straight tournament victories on the U.S. pro tennis tour.

The 5-foot-8 southpaw blasted his 5-foot-7 fellow countryman Ken Rosewall 6-4, 6-4 in a battle which they finally oflapped snapped 10 days ago. Since then they've lost only one of four.

"I don't think it's too serious," said Coach Billy Reay. "But I just might not use him the rest of the week. Why should I? We need him for the playoffs."

Reay was asked if there were anything personal between him and Detroit Coach Sid Abel as a possible basis for Detroit's unexpected and surprising rough house tactics in the last two games.

"There wasn't before all this happened," said Reay, "but there is now. We went up to Detroit to play hockey Sunday and on the first play of the game they make a run at Stan Mikita and try to put him out of action. It's uncalled for."

Former Waterford Township resident Floyd W. Evilsizer, 74, of Tucson, Ariz., died yesterday. The body will be brought to Coates Funeral Home, Waterford Township.

Mrs. Frances Sands

MILFORD—Service for Mrs. Frances Sands, 86, of 316 Union will be 10 a.m. tomorrow at St. Mary's Church, with arrangements by Richardson-Bird Funeral Home and burial in Oakgrove Cemetery.

Mrs. Sands died Monday. She was a member of St. Mary's Altar Society.

Surviving are two sons, Floyd and Faxon, two daughters, Mrs. Agnes Lawrence and Mrs. Alma Price, and a sister, Lucy Rigney, all of Milford; three grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Speck Gets Eye Check

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI)—Richard Speck, handcuffed and under heavy guard, was moved secretly from his jail cell to a doctor's office 2 1/2 blocks away today for an eye examination.

The lanky Texan, accused of the murder of eight nurses, has complained of headaches recently.

He was taken at dawn in Sheriff Willard Koeppl's private car to the 10th-floor office of Dr. Clarence V. Ward.

Handcuffed to a plainclothes police policeman, and flanked by several more, Speck was moved from his cell at 5:45 a.m. and was returned at 6:15. Results of the examination were not immediately known.

As Speck's trial for murder ended his 27th day, 575 prospective jurors have been questioned and only eight chosen and sequestered.

Briton Urges Transforming NATO Setup

NORMAL, Ill. (AP)—Transformation of NATO into an alliance with a heavier emphasis on political and diplomatic matters was proposed Tuesday night by Anthony Eden, the earl of Avon.

Lord Avon, British prime minister from 1955 to 1957, urged that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization be renovated so it can become a means for improving relations with nations of the Warsaw Pact, Eastern Europe's counterpart to NATO.

He also expressed the idea that such a reemphasized NATO should serve essentially as the basis for a federal union among member nations.

"It is my conviction that the outlook for Western unity could be materially improved if the NATO powers were also to accept federal union as their long term political objective," he said.

Lord Avon spoke to about 7,000 persons at the first annual memorial lecture, honoring Adlai E. Stevenson, the late U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. The address was given at Illinois State University in Normal, a twin city of Bloomington, which Stevenson considered his home town.

OFFERS FREE BOAT—Tom Miller, 26, stands beside the riverboat he and his wife built and which he puts a $4,500 value on. Miller of suburban Minneapolis, Minn., originally planned to sail down the Mississippi River, but family commitments kept him from doing so. Unsuccessful at selling it, he says he'll give it to a worthy person or organization.

GEORGE J. FULKERSON

Birmingham attorney George J. Fulkerson today was appointed to the Detroit Board of Water Commissioners by Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh.

Fulkerson succeeds Louis H. Schimmel of Pontiac as one of the three non-Detroit residents on the seven-member board.

In addition to Fulkerson, 40, of 2100 Middlebury, Bloomfield Township, Macomb County, and the downriver Detroit area have representatives on the board.

Fulkerson will serve a four-year term, ending Jan. 14, 1971. He is associated with the law firm of Fulkerson, Lilly and Moffet at 1600 N. Woodward in the Gleaner Building.

City Man Listed Satisfactory After Car Hits Pole

A Pontiac man is in satisfactory condition at Pontiac General Hospital with injuries received when the car in which he was a passenger struck a utility pole on West Wide Track about 10 p.m. yesterday.

Bruce Sprague, 52, of 156 Paddock suffered cuts and abrasions, according to hospital officials.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Forrest W. Black, 28, of Royal Oak, which city police said smashed into a light pole after jumping the curb.

Shun off-Duty Uniforms, Gls at Paris Show Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department is "encouraging" U.S. servicemen assigned to the Paris Air Show this spring not to wear their uniforms while off duty, officials said today.

"I can't say where it started," one official said.

There was one unconfirmed report that the impetus came from U.S. ambassador to France Charles E. Bohlen.

Defense authorities acknowledged there had been "no real mention of the uniform question in past air shows."

The big privately sponsored exposition will be held from May 28 to June 4 with many nations taking part, including the Soviet Union. It is a biennial showcase used by many countries to promote sales of their aircraft products and to show off their strides in aerospace technology.

The Soviets are expected to display their supersonic transport plane, the TU144. The United States trails well behind in developing such a commercial jet.

In previous years, the U.S. display at the Paris Air Show has been largely military. This year, it is stressing both civilian and military aviation.

Two Autos Broken Into

Break-ins of two cars were reported yesterday in the Pontiac area. Park parking lot items valued at $784 were stolen.

David Temple of Port Huron told police the two electric guitars valued at $650 and stereo tapes worth $49 were stolen from his car.

Daniel Stiff, of 1598 Joslyn, reported the theft of a record player and records valued at $86 from his car.

$1,150 Damage in House Fire

A fire in a two-story frame house at 187 N. Perry yesterday took Pontiac firemen nearly an hour to extinguish and caused an estimated $1,150 damage.

An occupant, Mrs. Herbert K. Kelley, 54, was treated for a smoke inhalation at Pontiac General Hospital. She was later released, a hospital spokesman said.

Three vehicles, including an aerial truck, under the command of Chief Charles Marion, responded to the alarm about 5:50 p.m. and were at the scene until about 6:40.

The fire, which broke out in a bedroom, was probably caused by a shorted wiring, firemen said.

More than $700 of the damage was to the building, the rest to contents, they said.

VACATION CUT SHORT—Mrs. John F. Kennedy is preceded by her two children and the two children of her sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, as they leave a plane at New York's Kennedy Airport yesterday after cutting short their vacation in Acapulco, Mexico.

Leading the way is John Jr., followed by Caroline, Anthony Radziwill and his sister, Anna Christine. Mrs. Kennedy had apparently been disturbed by newsmen and photographers.

Alaska, Iowa Key States in Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—Alaska and Iowa appear the states most likely to next petition for a U.S. constitutional convention aimed at overturning the Supreme Court's one-man-one-vote ruling.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., the leading congressional critic of the court's ruling that each house of a state legislature must be apportioned by population, contends that if two more states petition for a convention, Congress must call one.

He is ready to offer the motion.

Oil Tanker Hit by Jets Again

LAND'S END, England (AP)—British jets fired rockets into the supertanker Torrey Canyon again today, setting her shattered hull ablaze and covering the area with a huge pall of smoke.

Flames largely hidden by dense smoke spewed from the wreckage, but the blaze was not as spectacular as Tuesday when bombings sent a pillar of smoke 8,000 feet into the air.

A huge slick of oil that poured out of the wrecked ship is still moving. A Navy spokesman said some of it had reached the French coast.

As the fight continued at sea to destroy the tanker and the oil, thousands of troops and civilian volunteers battled pollution along the beaches of Cornwall.

SUMMER PLACES

All along the south coast of England local authorities set up emergency committees to deal with the oil, which threatens their lucrative summer vacation business.

Antisubmarine booms, neglected since World War II, were hastily erected at some ports and harbors to help keep out the floating oil.

As the afternoon wore on, waves after waves of bombers and fighters hit the tanker with high explosives and napalm bombs.

City Worker Fired in Assault Case

A Pontiac Parks and Recreation Department employee has been fired following aggravated assault charges leveled against him late yesterday.

Ronald R. Thompson, 21, of 20 Beaudette, a part-time "door man" at the Hayes Jones Center, was dismissed this morning by City Personnel Manager Nicholas Santivane.

Thompson is accused by John Samples of 52 Vermont of striking Samples in the face during an altercation in the Branch Wesson area.

Thompson was convicted in 1965 of being drunk and disorderly and loitering at an illegal liquor place.

Revenge on the DA

BOB HOPE, 9:00 p.m. (9) Law student Darryl Cooper puts an ambitious DA (Chiff Robertson) through a political question-and-answer session, with the undeclared motive of ruining the DA's career in revenge for a personal tragedy for which he holds the DA responsible.

FESTIVAL, 9:30 p.m. (9) Two segments. 1. "To Every Man His Bach" — Canadian pianist Glenn Gould plays excerpts from Bach, Beethoven and Mozart and discusses his contention that the concert hall is outmoded in an electronic age. 2. "Access" — The relationship between a mother and her teen-age son is disrupted when the boy's divorced father suddenly takes an interest in him.

DANNY KAYE, 10:00 p.m. (2) Diahann Carroll and comedienne Joyce Jameson join the regulars for an original musical about blossoming romance on a Caribbean cruise. Original music by Billy Barnes.

ISPY, 10:00 p.m. (4) In Spain, Kelly and Scott try to keep tabs on an ex-Pentagon file clerk who is a walking depository of top-secret information and exceptionally vulnerable to an alluring Soviet agent. Wally Cox plays the timid "Casanova Per Canarie."

Junior Editors Quiz on MICROSCOPE

QUESTION: I got a microscope as a gift. What experiments should I make?

ANSWER: If your microscope is like the one our boys are using, you will be looking at things so small that the light will come through them.

Be sure to adjust the mirror under the stage so it is bright when you look down through the eyepiece. Then scrape off a very thin bit of skin from one of the outer layers of an onion. Put it on a glass slide, with another slide over it.

Slip both slides under the clips on the stage. Move focusing wheel and you will get a fine idea of what plant cells look like.

Then try crumbs and hairs from your head. But the greatest fun is to make a hay infusion. Put some dry hay or dead grass in a jar with warm water.

Add a bouillon cube and let stand for a few days in a warm place. Then examine the water. You should see tiny one-celled animals, or protozoa, swimming around.

To make a simple microscope, wrap a thin wire around a nail, making a quarter inch loop in the end. Dip into water. When lifted out, water will stay inside loop and act like a magnifying glass.

Colonialism Panel of U.N. Plans Trip

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Committee on Colonialism agreed Tuesday night to meet in Kinshasa, Lusaka, Dar-es-Salaam, Damascus and Baghdad late in the spring and discuss Portuguese territories, Rhodesia, South-West Africa, Aden and Oman.

In those places, the 24-member committee will interview petitioners from the territories on its agenda for the trip, the second of the kind in two years.

The group accepted invitations from the Congo (Kinshasa), Zambia, Tanzania, Syria and Iraq to visit their capitals. It rejected, for this year, invitations from Ethiopia, Mauritania and Morocco.

It will set out about May 25, after a special session of the General Assembly on South-West Africa, and spend about five weeks abroad.

ESTIMATED COST

The Portuguese territories, Rhodesia and South-West Africa will be considered in the three African capitals and Aden and Oman in the two Arab capitals.

Eugene Anderson of the United States, John Shaw of Britain and Brian Hickey of Australia reserved their positions on the travel proposed in the report of a working group of the committee which estimated that the trip would cost $165,000.

Mrs. Anderson said: "We are not convinced that it will contribute in any essential way to the work of the committee. Past experience has shown that the committee hears many of the same petitioners in capitals as it hears at U.N. headquarters with an expenditure of considerably less time and money."

She said a special mission to Aden would obtain information on that territory "directly and more reliably." She contended that "Oman is a sovereign state."

HAS ASSOCIATIONS

Shaw associated himself with her remarks.

Hickey said Australia had reservations about the extent, nature and cost of the trip.

Ludovic Carducci-Artensio of Italy said he supported the travel on the understanding that the committee would make no recommendations on Rhodesia, unless the Security Council requested. That question is before the council.

The committee includes Afghanistan, Australia, Britain, Bulgaria, Chile, Ethiopia, Finland, India, Iraq, Iran, Italy, the Ivory Coast, the Malagasy Republic, Mali, Poland, Sierra Leone, the Soviet Union, Syria, Tanzania, Tunisia, the United States, Uruguay, Venezuela and Yugoslavia.

All Can't Live on Just Love

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Easter bunny came late for nearly 100 hungry hippies who attended Sunday's love-in at the Ellysian Park.

Gordon Edwards, a Hollywood chicken delivery man who attended the love-in, staged a "food-in" Tuesday at Fernhill Park because "I met a few kids who were hungry and had few extra bucks in the bank."

Edwards dined out stew to the bearded, misinformed throng.

"People came who would never go to a rescue mission for a handout," Edwards said.

"Eat our food and do what we tell you—pray, vote Democratic or some other condition," he said.

"REALLY GROOVY"

Donna Wolfower, who called the free feed "really groovy," said she and her husband, a jobless musician, had not eaten in several days.

Electric Car Problem Is Its Batteries

NEW YORK (UPI) — Much of the talk about electric automobiles seems to miss the point — that producing a practical electric car is more a marketing than an engineering problem.

A recent suggestion that cars be equipped with both gasoline and electric motors — to run on gas on the highways and on electricity in the cities — shows how wide of the mark much of the thinking is.

But with such dual power plants were used in several cities years ago — but they got their electric power from trolley wires. A practical electric car must run on batteries.

A silver zinc battery that will drive a car 50 to 60 mph with a reasonably good mileage range already is available.

Within two to three years there is an excellent chance that a zinc air battery that is 50 per cent more efficient than the silver zinc battery and vastly cheaper will be available.

NOT NECESSARY

It is not necessary to design cars especially for electric power.

Any standard compact passenger car or delivery van can be converted to electric power simply by removing the gasoline power train and bolting the right size electric motor to the differential gear on the rear axle.

The real problem is to make efficient batteries widely available so the rundown battery can be removed from the car and recharged overnight in a building at the time it is to be used.

That means the electric car will depend on rental battery companies and on a rental system that pays.

ANOTHER REASON

There's another reason only an instant changeable rental battery makes sense.

The prime need for electric cars is in big cities for taxicabs, buses, delivery vans and salesmen's cars.

Many of these must be operated on long shifts, double shifts or even around the clock. They can't be idled eight hours out of 24 for recharging and earn their keep.

Making a rental system pay would not be easy with the silver zinc battery.

LITTLE RENAISSANCE

Not long ago, I drove a little Renault powered by silver zinc batteries made by Yardney Electric Co. of New York.

The car performed perfectly, accelerating quickly to 50 mph.

But at that time, silver zinc batteries were good for only perhaps two more recharges.

Since then, Yardney engineers have made breakthroughs in the laboratories and claim they soon will be able to make silver zinc batteries that will last three times or 40,000 miles.

Batteries of this type big enough for an automobile cost $1,500 to $2,700. Therefore, even though 80 per cent of their value is in silver, which is 100 per cent recoverable, the depreciation and resulting rental cost still would be high — and the batteries would present a constant risk of pilferage.

The zinc air battery, on the other hand, would use only cheap materials and would be seven times as efficient per pound as the common lead acid battery.

At least four American zinc air battery projects are well advanced.

One is that of Yardney Electric and Ford Motor Co. Another is a joint venture of the Edison Electric Institute, General Dynamics Corp. and Joseph Lucas Industries, Ltd., of Britain.

The four groups are engaged in radically different versions of the same basic principle.

Meanwhile, the silver zinc battery is ready to go if a system to market and finance it on a rental basis can be worked out.

Female Battle Lines Form for 'Hello, Dolly!' Film Plum

By EARL WILSON
 NEW YORK — The most startling news today is that Elizabeth Taylor is being sounded out about her availability to star in the movie version of "Hello, Dolly!"

Richard Zanuck's outlanders have been sending feelers to Liz while Zanuck's been in Europe. Liz, who was signed as a singer at MGM when she was a child, has never done a musical, but has always hoped she could some day. A close friend tells me, "I'm sure she could do it if she tried." We can see a fine battle developing between a Liz Taylor faction, opposing the fans of Carol Channing and Ginger Rogers. Of course, some of us thought it would just naturally be done by Rox Russell.

Bobby Darin opened in grand style at the Copacabana, said it was his week to be humble (he announced he'd given up elevator heels), then proved it by interviewing Sammy Davis from the ringdaisies as "the world's greatest entertainer."

"That proves Bobby's really humble, because he used to think that the world's greatest entertainer was Bobby Darin," somebody cracked.

Famous London saloonist Siegi Sessler kept exclaiming "I love this guy." Bobby has lost his punch and his groove and was warm and wonderful. When he introduced Sammy Davis, Sammy whispered some names of guests he'd forgotten to introduce—including Ed Sullivan.

"I haven't done his show in 5 years—now I won't do it for another 5 years—and now he has a reason," said Bobby.

We'll bet, though, that Ed'll book him r-r-r-eal s-s-oon, even though he did say that Ed had become a TV success by mispronouncing people's names.

THE MIDNIGHT EAR . . .

Mia Farrow Sandra was frugging with Sammy Davis at Arthur at 3 a.m. the other day, before getting to London to start work on her movie. She'd arrived with her mother, sister and brother, talked things over with another recent bride, Liz Minnelli. (A patron saw slender, mini-clutted Mia and gasped, "Migod—there's a twiggy!")

Sly Burton Christopher'll check into Lying-In-Hosp. May 22 to await the baby (Amy if a girl, Colla if a boy). Joe Levine's yacht, the Rosalie L., will be used in his film, "Robbery."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: If the TV industry wants to keep teen-agers fascinated, Bob O'Brien suggests an idea: Take out the picture and put in a mirror.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Another good thing about telling the truth is you don't have to remember what you said."

EARL'S FEARS: Kay Lederle tells of the little fellow who phones the license bureau every month and asks timidly if his marriage license has expired yet.

Donald Kelly Towers Over Michael Winterbottom

By JOE MULLEN

Physical education teacher Donald E. Kelly yesterday waded out nearly 50 feet in a swamp near Lotus Lake and pulled a 5-year-old boy, whose legs had slipped through the ice, to safety.

Kelly, of 6410 Lotus, Waterford Township, was enjoying an Easter week holiday at home, when neighbors Mrs. Gordon Gray of 3892 Percy King knocked on the door and alerted him to the boy's plight.

He rushed to the swamp and saw little Michael Winterbottom struggling to stay above water by bracing himself with outstretched arms on the remaining ice.

"I waded out to where it was chest high on me," said the 6-foot-2 teacher, at Washington Junior High School.

"Then I extended a 2-by-4 about six feet long and pulled the boy to me," Kelly said. "I don't know how deep it was where Michael broke through the ice."

GOOD CONDITION

Michael, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Winterbottom of 3966 Percy King was taken to Pontiac General Hospital. He was found to be in good condition and was released.

Kelly said the boy, who had been playing on the ice, was screaming loudly when he arrived at the swamp.

"He quieted down when I got him in my arms," said the teacher, "but he was very cold and shivering and could hardly talk."

Waterford Township patrolman James A. Webb who was also alerted by Mrs. Gray to the possible tragedy, said that the police department will recommend a heroism citation for Kelly, from the township board.

KNOW BOY

Kelly, 38, said he lives about a block from the Winterbottoms and had often seen Michael, a preschooler, playing in the neighborhood.

Area residents in the past have expressed concern about the dangers of the swamp and have considered having the area at the northeast end of Lotus Lake filled in or fenced.

LBJ, Rusk Vow to Continue Effort for Viet Peace Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Apparent collapse of another Vietnamese peace effort has brought fresh promises from President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk that they will persist in trying to move the war to the conference table.

But Washington officials view the prospects for success as growing constantly more gloomy.

At the same time, however, administration leaders reportedly believe the United States is now ahead of Hanoi in the battle for world opinion as a result of Hanoi's spurning peace proposals from Johnson and U.N. Secretary General U Thant.

In a guarded reference to this diplomatic and propaganda side of the conflict, Rusk told a news conference Tuesday:

"If Hanoi supposes that somehow international opinion will come to their rescue, surely they must know that when they rebuff the United Nations organization... this will not bring them support in other parts of the world."

'AFFIRMATIVE REPLY'

At the White House, Johnson said in addressing a luncheon that the United States had given a "positive... definitive... affirmative" reply to a three-point peace plan advanced by Thant March 14.

Monday, Johnson said, "We regretfully learned from Radio Hanoi that they were informing the world that they were apparently not prepared to accept the secretary-general's proposal."

The Hanoi broadcast denounced the United States as the "aggressor" in Vietnam, and declared that "the United Nations has absolutely no right to interfere in any way with the Vietnam question."

Crime Causing Climate of Fear in U.S.—Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson pictures Americans as living in a "climate of fear" generated by crime in the streets. U.S. crime statistics, he says, are "our national disgrace."

Johnson made the statements last night in calling for speedy enactment of his anticrime legislation, terming it "fundamental to the safety of the individual, the security of the home and the enduring stability of our great society."

Addressing about 600 law enforcement and court officials, participants in the National Conference on Crime Control, Johnson said "white collar" crimes—petty theft, embezzlement, consumer fraud and intrust violations—"dwarf all crimes of violence" in purely economic terms.

"The grim statistics of our crime record is our national disgrace," he said. But more important than any figures on crime, he added, is "the climate of fear that crime creates."

Johnson aimed some of his remarks directly at the police officials, judges and investigators in his audience.

GOAL

The conference seeks to spark implementation of the more than 200 recommendations made by the President's National Crime Commission in its report last month.

"Many of you are on the front lines in the fight against crime," Johnson said. "You know the drugstore and you know the danger of that fight, and the occasional small triumphs that really make it all very worthwhile."

The conferees, in one of a series of panel discussions, went into investigating organized crime—and agreed a principal difficulty is that police don't trust each other sufficiently to pass along vital information on organized crime.

At another panel they considered problems they had encountered in trying to upgrade their departments. They agreed police must attract better educated officers. At the same time, some felt that to offer higher pay for more education would seriously impair the morale of patrolmen who never went to college.

BREEDING PLACES

Noting that crime "breeds in the cesspools of injustice and poverty in urban slums and the ghettos," Johnson said "a major part of our assault on crime must be an attack on the conditions of despair and denial of human opportunity in which it can grow."

Labor Department Charges Bias; Unions Warned of Crackdown

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Labor Department, charging racial discrimination, has threatened a crackdown on apprenticeship programs of some 200 unions—including the $1 million-a-year AFL-CIO Plumbers Union training project.

The specific threat against the Plumbers Union program—biggest in the nation with some 25,000 apprentices a year—came in a previously unpublished memorandum from Assistant Secretary of Labor Stanley H. Ruttenberg.

He called for possible action to decertify the union's apprentices from federal projects in a memo to Administrator Hugh C. Murphy of the Labor Department's Bureau of Apprenticeship Training.

"We must move immediately to decertify apprenticeship programs where there has been no progress in filing proof of nondiscrimination," wrote Ruttenberg.

He demanded "strong measures" to show Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz "that we have an affirmative, active compliance program."

TALKED TO WIRTZ

Ruttenberg said he discussed the matter with Wirtz before issuing the order.

Plumbers Union President Peter T. Schoemann accused federal officials of trying to take control of organized labor's apprenticeship programs. He ordered his local unions to disregard government compliance orders until checking with him.

"This whole campaign has about as much relationship to racial discrimination as putting a man on the moon," Schoemann said of the Labor Department's threat.

Schoemann said the plumbers' training program is entirely financed by union funds.

Taubman Given Extension; Taylor Blames 'Outsiders'

By DAVID J. COOK

"Outside interests" are working to undermine the Taubman plan for downtown Pontiac and "one of these days I'll prove it," Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. declared at a crowded City Commission meeting last night.

Taylor's charges came during heated discussion of a pending resolution to grant developer A. Alfred Taubman an

"At least one good store is being enticed outside the city and I can tell you two more will follow them," Taylor warned an audience of some 70 persons.

Although the mayor told newsmen, "You don't have to read between the lines to know who I mean," he refused to identify the store in question.

ADDITIONAL TIME

Commissioners voted 6-1 to give Taubman additional time—as provided in the original agreement—with District 2 Commissioner Robert C. Irwin casting the single dissent.

Irwin opened discussion on the motion with disclosure he had talked by telephone earlier in the day with A. Dean Swartzel, assistant regional administrator for Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in Chicago.

"If the city is wrong in its approach," Irwin said he was 'old,' "it could—I say could—be forced to reimburse the government for every penny of federal funds put into our urban renewal lands."

Federal monies presently invested in projects R20 and R44 are estimated at upwards of $5 million.

FURTHER OPPOSITION

Opposition to further extension of the city's agreement with Taubman also came from the Citizens Committee for Pontiac's Positive Progress (CCPPP).

Committee Chairman Donald H. Frayer read a prepared four-count statement questioning the progress of development plans and demanding the commission

U.S. Jets Bomb Near Port Again

SAIGON (AP)—American carrier planes hurled three raids near the major port of Haiphong yesterday in the second day of heavy strikes against North Vietnam.

The closest target to the Communists' chief port was a supply point in the Red River delta 12 miles above the city.

All-weather jets from the 7th Fleet also hit two other large and supply points close by.

Air Force and Navy pilots flew 124 missions against North Vietnam.

WATCHES TAKEOFFS

South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky paid tribute to the Navy fliers today with a flight to the nuclear powered carrier Enterprise, where he watched strikes take off and decorated 60 American fliers.

Some had just returned from North Vietnam and some were about to take off.

Flying from bases in Thailand and South Vietnam and from the carriers Enterprise, Hancock and Kitty Hawk, U.S. pilots raked supply lines from the Haiphong area south to the 17th Parallel yesterday.

Massive Hunt in Chicago for Kidnap, Girl

CHICAGO (AP)—More than 100 police and 30 FBI agents are on one of the city's biggest manhunts in years, for the kidnaper of an 8-year-old daughter of an unemployed migrant from Loebel, Ky.

Black-haired Carrie Stephens, one of four children of Daniel Stephens, 41, and his wife, Alice, 30, disappeared Monday night with a man who said he needed help in finding his dog.

He appeared while Carrie and five playmates were in front of the Stephens' home in the up-town district, densely populated by migrants from rural sections of other states. He offered a dollar to anyone who could find his missing dog.

Three boys looked in one direction while Carrie and two girls went with the stranger in another. The girls told police the man finally grasped Carrie's arm and led her away.

Police artists, with the youngsters' help, made a sketch of the stranger and 7,500 copies were given to searchers. The composite was that of a portly man of about 40 years old, medium height, wearing horn-rimmed glasses, a three-quarter length tan coat, a red and white shirt and dark trousers.

SEARCH AREA

The hunt by detectives, police, agents, friends and neighbors covered a two-mile radius. They pried into alleys, secluded basements and isolated areas in nearby Lincoln Park. City crews joined with police and dogs of the K9 corps in checking sewers.

There was no trace of the girl or her clothing.

Deputy Patrol Chief Robert Lynskey, ordering a house-to-house canvass of the area, said Tuesday that chances of finding the girl were good. He said he believed his car was involved in the kidnapping and that the girl and her abductor still were in the area. But the mother sobbed: "I don't think there's much hope left."

Dems Vote Today on House Leader

LANSING (UPI)—House Democrats today will end their week of old-fashioned family feuds with a secret ballot to choose a new leader to succeed the late Joseph Kowalski.

Rep. Arthur J. Law of Pontiac, a former assistant caucus chairman, is one of the top three contenders for the post.

Running ahead, but apparently still short of a majority, is William A. Ryan of Detroit, the 47-year-old current caucus chairman.

Also in the running is Albert R. Horrigan of Flint. Horrigan was speaker pro tem in 1965-66.

Intense campaigning for Kowalski's job as House Democratic leader will climax at a high-security caucus.

It's Time to Think Spring!

Everything's coming up spring as the weatherman predicts increasing cloudiness and temperatures in the 60s tomorrow.

The clouds may even bring a few showers by late tomorrow afternoon or night to coax the daffodils and tulips into wearing their colorful spring costumes.

Tonight will be fair with lows falling between 34 to 40.

This morning's northeasterly winds of 8 to 16 miles will swing to the east-southeast by tonight.

It looks like March will go out like a lamb as the forecast for Friday continues the partly cloudy and mild trend.

Low temperature reading in downtown Pontiac prior to 8 a.m. was 33. By 1 p.m. it warmed to 54.

The mild-mannered Army medic who spoke those words had just received the Congressional Medal of Honor from President Johnson. Before an honor guard representing the four branches of the American military and the Coast Guard, he was accorded homage normally reserved for visiting heads of state.

Legal Light Reflects Dim View of Lawlessness

Freedom of expression is as basic and inalienable a right under representative government as freedom of the press. But, by no stretch of the imagination can the principle of freedom of expression be stretched to include mass defiance of laws governing an orderly society.

"It can hardly be denied, says Whittaker, that a large part of our current rash and rapid spread of lawlessness has derived from planned and organized mass disrespect for, and defiance of, the law and the courts, induced by the irresponsible and inflammatory preachments of some self-appointed leaders of minority groups."

The remedy, he declares, is as plain as the threat. It is simply to insist that our governments, state and Federal, reassume and discharge their "first duty" of protecting the people against lawless invasions upon their persons and property by the impartial and vigorous enforcement of our criminal laws and by the swift, certain and substantial punishment of all persons whose conduct violates those laws.

Those who genuinely believe in freedom of speech and press and all of our other freedoms in the United States should be well aware of the distinction between freedom and license.

Afghanistan Swims With History's Current

The brief visit to the United States of Prime Minister MOHAMMED MAIWALD of Afghanistan serves as a reminder of how little is known of that landlocked central Asian country. Afghanistan is the same size as Texas, and even more populous, but the two are not to be compared in terms of renown.

This was not always so. Afghanistan's strategic location made it a crossroads of trade and conquest for centuries. ALEXANDER the Great, MARCO POLO, and GENGHIS KHAN, among others, traveled across the rugged landscape of Afghanistan in search of treasure or empire.

Two bloody wars were fought by the British to gain control of the country. In 1879, an agreement was reached that gave Britain control of Afghanistan's foreign relations in return for a large payment of money each year to the Afghan ruler. Another British-Afghan war broke out, however, and though the British won, they granted the country independence in 1921.

Afghanistan has remained independent in the purest sense of the word. Although it borders the two most powerful Communist countries in the world—the Soviet Union and Red China—Afghanistan has resolutely followed a policy of nonalignment. As a result, it has received aid from and maintained cordial relations with both Moscow and Washington.

LBJ Avoiding European Trip

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — President John F. Kennedy made a big thing of Europe. He went there twice in his 34 months as president. Relations with the allies looked good. Europeans loved him and mourned when he died.

It's the opposite with President Johnson. He has been in office 40 months and hasn't gone near Europe. Relations with the allies are beginning to look tattered and he is widely criticized there for the Vietnam war.

If he went now, his reception might not be happy. Instead, he has sent Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey on a two-week tour of Europe. Humphrey is not supposed to be going as Johnson's substitute.

But it's obvious this is a fence-mending mission. Why hasn't Johnson gone in his almost 3 1/2 years in the White House? He may feel, and probably would say, he has been too busy. It seems unlikely he could have been that busy.

In his first full year in office, 1964, Johnson might have made such a trip. But that was an election year. Johnson had a big job to learn. Yet, Kennedy went to Europe in his first year, although 1961 was not an election year.

TWO DIRECTIONS

Then, in 1965, Johnson was heavily occupied in two directions, one with Congress, one with Vietnam. At home, he dumped a tremendous bundle of programs on Congress which responded to his prodigious with prodigious legislation.

That was the happy part of the year for him. The Vietnam side was grisly for him, during 1964, the war there had gone downhill for the American side, which had tried to sweat it out without full involvement. It didn't work.

In February 1965, in ordering the bombing of North Vietnam, Johnson began to step up the war. Then he piled U.S. troops into the fighting. Vietnam has been a monkey on his back ever since.

Despite his success with Congress in 1965, Johnson's prestige at home and abroad dwindled as American involvement in Vietnam got deeper and more bloody. Even so, another president in his place might have ventured an European trip.

IS COMMITTED

But Johnson is a man who, once he is committed to something, pours his waning hours into it. He has stayed on top of the war every minute, apparently being less concerned with Congress which never since has matched its 1965 record.

There is probably a more personal, and therefore a more basic, reason for Johnson's failure to go abroad. The kind of reception he'd get is uncertain and he is an extremely sensitive man.

Keeping A Lot Of People Waiting!

David Lawrence Says:

Bargaining Ills Go Unremedied

WASHINGTON — A wave of serious strikes is likely this year. All signs point to interruptions in work which will cost the nation plenty of money apart from the inconvenience and indirect damage to persons not involved in the disputes.

LAWRENCE

Oddly enough, even though this threat to the economic stability of the nation has been intermittent for many years, nothing has been done by Congress, as the representative of the people, to provide a constructive alternative. Major contracts involving 3.1 million workers will expire this year.

It has long been conceded that workers have a right to organize unions.

Large groups with the strike weapon in their hands, however, are able to disrupt the economic system by forcing higher prices which the public is sometimes unable to meet. Then demand declines and the result is unemployment among union workers in other industries as well.

An examination of the collective bargaining process, moreover, reveals that it has weaknesses which have gone unremedied.

GAMBLING GAME

Collective bargaining, especially when carried on by powerful labor unions, is indeed a gambling game. It is a form of collective deception in which each side tries to outsmart the other.

Often the negotiations are prolonged. The tendency is to assume that the first offer is not the last and that, if pressed further, management representatives will go a little higher each time.

Then, when the company finally says the limit has been reached, the labor side more often than not considers this a bluff and keeps on threatening a strike or actually orders one so as to emphasize a refusal to accept what has been proposed.

OBJECTIONS OFFERED

Compulsory arbitration has been advocated, but both labor and management have offered objections.

Picket lines, established by one union, are respected by other labor groups, even though the latter have no connection with the dispute and have not attempted through their leaders to form a judgment as to whether the striking union is right in what it is doing.

Present-day theory is that, when a picket line has been formed, it is as valid as if it had been authorized by a court order.

Nor is there any method available by which the proposals of management and labor can be examined instantly as to their fairness and equity if a strike is threatened or called.

Collective bargaining remains a form of collective bludgeoning, and the innocent bystander pays the penalty.

Bob Considine Says:

Dallas DA Not Scoffing at Assassination Probe

DALLAS — "I don't know what's going on in New Orleans with that Kennedy assassination conspiracy case," Dallas County DA Henry Wade said.

"Jim Garrison doesn't tell anybody anything. He doesn't even talk to the FBI."

But there was no scoff in the voice of the man who would have presided over the prosecution of Lee Harvey Oswald, and who did prosecute Oswald's murderer, Jack Ruby, and was a death verdict. Wade is vaguely disturbed about the New Orleans business.

"It has always been a little hard for me to believe Oswald didn't have some encouragement from elsewhere," he said. "I can't see him planning the whole thing alone."

"He was warped all right, but he wasn't pure nut. That's the reason why I give a little substance to the charges Garrison has made."

IN CUSTODY

Oswald was in custody from the afternoon of Friday, Nov. 22, 1963, shortly after the murders of the president and officer J. D. Tippit until Ruby held a hole in him the following Sunday around noon.

He was permitted to sleep about eight hours Friday and Saturday nights.

The remainder of the time he was questioned by Dallas Police Chief Will Fritz and by FBI and Secret Service agents.

What did he say during that long grilling?

"Can't help you on that," Wade said when asked. "Fritz did most of the questioning, but he doesn't take notes. None of the Q's and A's for Fritz."

TURN OVER CARD

"I suppose the FBI and Secret Service might have, but I don't know what happened to their material."

"I never took part in the questioning. My turn was going to come when he arrived at the county court house and lockup. But he never got there, of course."

Too many chiefs and not enough Indians is the way to describe the situation in the Michigan House, at least on one side of the aisle.

Until Kowalski's seat is filled by special election, the Democrats will be outnumbered 55-54.

The crucial nature of each of these 109 votes is enough to bring out the statesman or the grandstander in any of the state representatives.

Some rather significant matters can hang on one man's vote.

The new floor leader will have plenty to say on the shape of Gov. Romney's legislative program.

Rep. William A. Ryan of Detroit is believed to have the inside track, but with so many candidates for the job the vote may be split so many ways as to open the door to a compromise choice.

But fighting the Republicans and bargaining with Gov. Romney won't be the new floor leader's only tasks. Party discipline is a problem, what with a "Young Turk" factious pressing for a greater voice in caucus matters.

And it's not likely that Kowalski's successor will come from the youth group.

Twiggly — her real name is Leslie Horby — stands 5 feet 6, weighs 90 pounds, and her measurements add up, as Twiggly admits to, "not really what you call a figger."

But at $120 an hour for modeling she can afford to giggle or to growl on her way to the bank.

Fashion writers who have joined the gaga parade are hard put to explain Twiggly's magic. She has been called the new Harlow and also the boy next door, which is a reach unequalled at least in recent memory.

But the magic is there, and she seems destined to sell quite a bundle of clothes before her type of figger before she goes home with a bundle for Britain.

Both as a phenomenon and as a helper toward the other planets, she may yet rival the Beatles.

Goodness knows we have nothing against skinny 17-year-olds. And the adoration of a mini-bosomed blond stands in refreshing contrast to other recent trends.

Still, we have a slight twinge of apprehension about Twiggly and her mod fashions. If they catch on, who will wear them? We can practically hear screams bursting from coast to coast.

Voice of the People:
Pontiac Press Lists Rules for Writing VOP Letters

Here again are the simple rules covering letters to the Voice of the People. This feature has very high readership as residents are anxious to know what their neighbors are thinking. Every letter must have a name and address. When the communication is not sharply critical of a private individual or firm, writers can use a pen name if they wish. However, if you want to assail someone, it isn't fair to your victim to hide behind an anonymous name.

★ ★ ★

Many letters contain statements which would subject the writers (and The Press) to libel suits. We recognize most of these but when we are in doubt we refer them to our attorneys and are guided accordingly.

We can't run letters that are purely personal matters between an individual and his favorite enemy or an individual and a firm at which he's "mad." Try and keep your letters within 200 words or less. Even then, to conserve space most letters will be edited.

We cannot publish letters of personal thanks or poetry, due to space limitations. Matters concerning race and religion must be signed. All subjects must be of genuine, communitywide interest. Send in your thoughts. They're welcomed.

Two Express Views on Michigan's Finances

What has happened to our state with its financial problems? Governor Romney patted himself on the back, saying, "look what I did." The State's financial problems are over. We have millions in surplus funds. Governor Romney failed to state he had very little to do with that surplus. Those dollars came from approximately 25 per cent increase in sales tax which increased the State's revenue by about $1 billion.

New Governor Romney wants more money. We need a government that can live within its means like we overburdened taxpayers must. Why is it necessary for the taxpayers' dollars to be of so little value when government gets hold of them?

BERNARD SHAW
2220 HEDGE

No taxpayer should be impressed or influenced by the wide coverage of the views of the eight professors of economics who announced support for Governor Romney's proposed state income tax. The eight professors, all on public payrolls, represent one vote each and speak for their own ideologies. It is not too difficult to suggest a panacea when you rely on ideology and value judgments rather than facts.

Mr. Rene A. Wormser of the New York Bar, writing in the January issue of the American Bar Association Journal, concludes that the middle economic class bears an unfair tax burden and demonstrates that a state income tax such as proposed by Governor Romney actually reverses the "ability to pay" principle.

This is so because a state income tax is deductible on the federal income tax return and the deduction will in effect reduce your federal income tax liability. Obviously, the higher your bracket, the more the deduction is worth to you. This "fact" seems to have been overlooked by the professors when they made their value judgments.

CHICAGO (AP) — Toys have two requirements: to be fun and to be safe. That's the philosophy of jolly Jarvis (Jerry) Rockwell, brother of artist Norman Rockwell.

The 75-year-old toymaker in 1965 turned out the Toy of the Year, a repeat of the kiddie car that was popular generations ago.

Playskool, his employer, sold a million of them.

Rockwell said he converted a hobby into a vocation.

"I used to love to make model ships," he said.

PROBLEMS

Toy-making and toy-buying present several peculiar factors to a designer. Among them are the use of safe materials, prevention of accidents and creating an education experience.

"We consider the child's daily activities and design the toy both for physical and mental growth," he said.

"We mainly are concerned with the pre-school youngster of which there are plenty around," he added. "When we want a toy designed we don't design for electronic engineers rocketmen and spacemen."

Rockwell avoids designing toys to fit current fads.

"We hate all things like Batman toys," he said.

Rockwell confines materials to wood, metal tubing and high-impact type plastic such as polystyrene.

He is aware that consumer groups are battling unsafe toys.

Such toys are decorated with toxic lead paint, dolls have arms and legs attached by sharp spikes, teddy bears contain poisonous stuffing, high-voltage trains are available, wind-up toys have main springs sharp enough to lop off a finger. Costumes and dolls are highly flammable.

Not long ago, Rockwell received a letter from a woman in Texas. She wanted a replacement wheel for a wooden block wagon. Rockwell designed 30-years ago.

She had stored it in the attic and wanted it for a grandchild.

"We wouldn't identify it, so we asked her to send it to us," he said. "We had one of our wood model workers fashion a new wheel and refurbished the wagon and sent it back to the woman."

"When you make something that lasts that long, you feel you had accomplished something," he said.

But there are complaints, too. One letter came from a woman whose child had a Rockwell-designed peg board bench with a wooden hammer.

"She asked why we didn't make a rubber-headed hammer," he said.

Her child had used the wooden hammer on a plaster wall and pounded through to the inner wall of a room.

"You feel like writing back and saying, 'You are bringing your darn kid up the wrong way,'" he mused.

Jarvis (Jerry) Rockwell, 75, brother of artist Norman Rockwell, poses on his "Tyke Truck," a modernized version of the kiddie car produced generations ago.

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

"For better or worse" doesn't mean that a woman should tell her husband the worst the minute he arrives home from work. Yet many women hardly let him get inside the front door before unleashing the petty frustrations, problems and minor crisis of the day.

This may seem to be a great luxury and a comfort, but I think it is a luxury a woman cannot afford.

Naturally, in many marriage worth the title, the husband is interested in his wife's problems and is glad to hear about them if he can be of any help or consolation.

However, I believe that many women unconsciously form the habit of relating unpleasant or worrisome happenings of the day before the poor man has had a chance to relax or take a deep breath.

He, too, may have had a frustrating or disappointing day. At least he has put in a full day of work and has a right to expect a little time to unwind when he first arrives home. I suspect that many men who would otherwise look forward to reaching home somewhat dread the onslaught of hecticness which they know will meet them upon arrival.

Of course, a woman cannot always have the soft music playing, the candlelight flickering, the children and the plumbing and the washing machine behaving properly, but she can usually leave the problems until later so that homecoming is restful rather than a blow to the nervous system.

Recently, we considered what mistake it is for a woman to live vicariously through her children and to allow her relationship with her husband to deteriorate. There is no greater fountain of youth than love and happiness.

The knowledge that she is adored by the man she loves gives a woman an inner radiance, a special quality of charm and vibrance.

It is most difficult for us to look at ourselves objectively. If you feel that the romance in your marriage has deteriorated rather than grown in depth, perhaps the fault is partly yours.

If so, you may want my leaflet "Keeping Romance Alive." To receive this send a stamped, addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press.

New Flameproof Cloth Is Under Development

Worries about toddlers accidentally igniting clothing or blankets and other tragedies with burning clothing may be reduced in the future.

Michigan State University clothing specialist Jean Schubel recently related that fire-retardant finishes and flameproof cloth are among the newest developments in the textile industry.

TWO TYPES

Miss Schubel, who is with MSU's Cooperative Extension Service, said that two types of fire-retardant textiles are available. The first group includes those such as cotton that are treated chemically to resist flaming. Others, because of their composition, just refuse to burn.

"A newly developed fiber-brand named Nomer Nylon-1 is exceptionally resistant to high heat," the specialist said. "But it must still be properly treated to fulfill its function. Developers believe that a suit of the new flame resistant nylon could save lives in the event of a jet-fuel fire."

The new nylon is being tested in suits for fire-fighters in the U. S. Forestry Department. They report the suits quite comfortable. Other users are expected to be racing car drivers, truck drivers, pilots and sportsmen.

The specialist pointed out that other fabrics on the market already just naturally won't burn. The modacrylics, sold under trade names such as Dynel and Verel, will disappear like cellophane when a flame is touched to them. But they won't support combustion themselves.

IS THE BEST

Presently a finish called THPC is the most satisfactory method of flame-proofing cotton and rayon.

"When the finish is properly applied the two fabrics absolutely will not support combustion," Miss Schubel said.

An added attraction of the fire-resistant chemical finishes is that they last the lifetime of the garment. They aren't removed by washing or dry-cleaning.

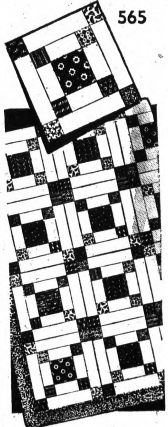

"A big drawback presently is that the chemical treatment adds to the weight of the fabric and may create some stiffness that some people object to," Miss Schubel noted.

"However, U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists that developed the finish are continuing their research. They've already found a combination with another chemical that is equally effective."

and can be applied to lightweight fabrics."

A problem that the specialist indicated was in getting the merchants to carry garments and other items made with the new fire resistant fabrics and finishes. Manufacturers and retailers generally seem to fear higher price tags on these garments. A leading New York department store once offered them and found they didn't sell. They said customers weren't willing to pay 50 cents more for a suit that was treated.

Still, some leading retail chains are planning to introduce fire-retardant garments for fall — sweat shirts,

VP in Bonn; Talks Likely to Focus on N-Spread Pact

BONN, Germany (AP) — aims to show Kiesinger that he was wrong when he declared earlier: "We — the United States and West Germany — talk only about the stupid questions, not any more about the fundamentals."

Humphrey flew to Wahn Airport from The Hague, where he talked with Dutch officials Tuesday.

His discussions in Bonn were expected to focus on relations between the United States and West Germany and particularly the West German government's lack of enthusiasm for the proposed treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons.

From the airport, which serves both Bonn and Cologne, Humphrey drove to Cologne to visit a cathedral. Then he was to go to Bad Godesberg — outside Bonn — for the conference of U.S. ambassadors.

TO MEET WITH BRANDT
Later Humphrey was to meet with Willy Brandt, West Germany's vice chancellor and foreign minister.

The meetings today and Thursday will set the stage for a return visit to Germany April 5-6, when Humphrey will have talks with Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger.

The vice president obviously aims to show Kiesinger that he was wrong when he declared earlier: "We — the United States and West Germany — talk only about the stupid questions, not any more about the fundamentals."

Humphrey will be trying to smooth the way for the nuclear nonproliferation treaty. Negotiations in Geneva are now in recess for six weeks while the United States tries to line up its allies behind the proposed pact.

OPPOSITION'S CONTENTION
West Germany and other West European nations contend that the treaty, as it now is written, could discriminate against their development of nuclear power and could open the way to Communist spying on such development.

Humphrey conferred Tuesday with Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns about the treaty as well as a number of other European problems.

Afterward Luns told newsmen he thinks the United States may be able to clear away some of the tangle around the negotiations and make the treaty more acceptable to other countries.

In his talks with Dutch officials, Humphrey also dealt with the issue looming over, everything else — Vietnam.

TRACKING STATION—Students returning from spring vacation at Willamette University in Salem, Oregon, found big white feet on Collins Hall. Looking out the window is Elinor Lindquist, publicity office secretary, who said she had no idea how 19-inch footprints got there.

Officials Deny LBJ Looked N Briefing

NEW YORK (AP) — The Defense Department denies statements in William Manchester's book that President Johnson had not been advised on procedures for ordering nuclear retaliation in the event of an attack following the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Security officials in the Kennedy administration also denied that Johnson had not been briefed. The U.S. atomic attack code was carried in a football-shaped satchel that lay in the presidential jet which took Johnson and the body of Kennedy back to Washington from Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

Kennedy officials said that at the late president's insistence, Johnson had been familiarized thoroughly on the contents of the satchel.

Manchester says in the book, "The Death of a President":

"The difficulty was that Johnson had no idea of what was in the bag. He knew that it existed, but he hadn't been briefed about the contents, and if the thunderbolt of all-out war struck that afternoon, the country's retaliatory arsenal could be spiked until he had been led through Tex Shepard's primers for the first time."

KENNEDY AIDE

Capt. Tazewell Shepard was a military aide to President Kennedy.

Manchester also writes: "Had Russia attacked across the DEW line, the greatest military establishment in the history of the world might easily have been musclebound during the 15 fateful minutes of warning time and perhaps even afterward, when second-strike capacity became a factor."

A spokesman for the Defense Department issued a statement Tuesday saying:

"The statements carried by the press services attributed to William Manchester bearing on the nuclear readiness of the United States on Nov. 22, 1963, were untrue."

DENIAL

"On that date, Lyndon Johnson, as vice president and as president, was fully aware of the procedures used to authorize the release of nuclear weapons in retaliation against attack on the United States."

Manchester also says there was a slowdown in commercial telephone service because of the great load of calls in the hours immediately following the assassination. He says phones in the Senate and House offices, the White House and the Signal Corps had been paralyzed temporarily.

According to Manchester's account, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy roamed the streets in Washington, trying the phones of strangers, until he got through to then-Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, to learn if their brother was dead.

Regarding the passages on the slowdown in commercial telephone service, the Defense Department said:

"Governmental communications, military and civil, were fully operational at all times and were far in excess of any requirement arising out of any security emergency. Those secure communications operate independently of commercial systems."

A spokesman for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. in Washington said that due to the unusually heavy traffic after the assassination, "if you picked up the phone you might have to wait a few seconds to get a dial tone."

Vote Makes Florida GOP Tops in Dixie

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Florida emerged today with the strongest two-party legislature in the once solidly Democratic South, giving its new Republican governor strong veto control.

The voters Tuesday abandoned century-old political traditions and gave Republicans strength they have never known in the court-ordered election of Florida's first one-man, one-vote legislature.

Although only about one-third of the state's 2.5 million voters cast ballots, the electorate —

with its first Republican governor in 94 years in office less than three months — gave the GOP a better than one-third minority in the legislative branch.

A two-thirds vote is needed in the Florida Legislature to override a veto.

GOP TRIUMPH

Not since Reconstruction has the GOP held such leverage in a Southern state government.

Gov. Claude Kirk laid his political campaign on the line as he pledged for Republican legislative candidates.

But many — including Kirk himself — expressed doubt that he had become sufficiently popular to pull into office as many Republicans as were elected.

Democrats outnumber Republicans on the registration books 4-1.

POLITICAL UPSET

Kirk was elected last November on an anti-Johnson administration program that embraced no new taxes, all-out war on crime, opposition to rising food prices, and "normal" economic growth. It was the political upset of the century in Florida.

Kirk had called upon the voters in the legislative campaign to "show your dissatisfaction with the Johnson administration as you did in November."

Kirk's controversial "war on crime," which is being run by a private detective agency, was not an issue in any legislative race.

A federal court declared Florida's old apportionment unconstitutional because it was weighted toward rural votes.

'1 in 4 on Drug at Berkeley'

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of every four students at the University of California in Berkeley smokes marijuana, says the physician responsible for student health on the campus.

Dr. Henry B. Bruyn, health director on the 23,000-student Berkeley campus, said as many as 60 per cent of the students at some Eastern universities — especially in urban areas — smoke marijuana.

Bruyn said 6 to 8 per cent of Berkeley campus students take the hallucinatory drug LSD.

2 Still Free in Bishop's Killing

DURANGO, Mexico (AP) — Two of the five men accused of killing a Roman Catholic bishop early this month are still at large, but police said one of them — Jesus Castillo — has offered to surrender if he is guaranteed protection from revenge.

Bishop Jose de la Soledad Torres Castaneda of Ciudad Obregon was returning home in the small village of Tepic, in northwestern Durango State.

His body was found Sunday night buried in the Sierra Madre Mountains.

One of the accused men, Pascual Najera Moreno, was turned in Tuesday by his brother, Pedro. Two others — Arturo Santos Estevanez and Baldomero Garcia — were captured earlier and admitted they were members of a five-man gang of car thieves. They said Felipe Medrano, who is still at large, killed the bishop so they could get his car.

Interest Cuts to Be Felt

Arrest of 2 Material Witnesses Is at Issue

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—

Attorney General Ramsey J. ...

The latest activity is the final acceptance in the banking community of a 5 1/2 per cent prime interest rate after a two-month tug of war. Banks that held out for a higher rate were, reluctantly, succumbed.

The pressure for lower rates is coming from several directions: as the approved policy of the Johnson administration, as the obvious policy of the Federal Reserve, as a dictate of the slowing business expansion.

For a while some analysts believed that the balance of payments problem would keep domestic interest rates from sinking. Higher rates for Europe, they said, would drain dollars abroad.

Now rates are falling also in several foreign nations, and the United States, Britain, Italy, West Germany and France are pledged to work for easier borrowing costs. This threat to the balance of payments is lessening.

The greatest resistance to lower rates came from some commercial bankers.

Ordinarily when a rate is reduced by a large bank, as it was Jan. 26 by the Chase Manhattan bank, quickly all the others fall into line. A consensus did not develop this time. Instead, a heated dispute arose.

The split in rates amounted to only 1/4 per cent, the difference between 5 1/2 per cent that most banks held to until this week and 5 1/4 per cent, the rate fixed by Chase for its most credit-worthy customers.

Small as this difference seemed to be, it represented a basic dispute about the economy. Most banks felt the demand for loans dictated a 5 1/4 per cent or a 6 per cent interest charge.

Chastising of Chase became commonplace. Whereas in most disputes bankers assume an icy but restrained disdain for inactivity, the score here was heated and unreserved.

On Monday morning First City finally dropped its rate and most of the remaining banks that had politely withheld their moves now fell into line.

In dropping the prime rate to 5 1/4 per cent, some bankers still insist that Chase's move was premature. In the narrowest view, perhaps it was. In a broader sense, it was a stunning victory.

The Citizens Committee for Daylight Saving Time referendum seeks to obtain enough signatures to set the law aside and force a vote on the matter.

Dzenzel, elected chairman of a group's organizational meeting, said the group has received hundreds of requests for referendum petitions from citizens throughout the state.

He said the group plans to have petitions printed and mailed by Friday, has set a target date of April 21 for return of the petitions and plans to file petitions with the secretary of state's office by April 28.

Ungrateful Bear Resents Heat

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—A newly imported Russian bear was branded "ungrateful" by the press here when it expressed, in its way, resentment to Egypt's scorching summer heat.

The animal had attacked its guard while he was plucking blocks of ice in its cage to help it stand the weather. The guard was hospitalized.

Successful Investing Dividend Okayed

LANSING (AP)—The State Public Service Commission has approved a plan for the Power Co. to issue 2,065,756 shares of common stock as dividends to present common stockholders.

The stock dividend will be at the rate of one share for each 10 shares of common stock now held.

No fractional shares will be issued, but holders of fraction shares will be given the right to sell the fractions they now hold or buy additional fractions to own a full share.

The stock issuance, valued at $65 a share, will amount to $92,540,000.

COMING TO KETTERING — One of the three groups providing entertainment Friday night at Waterford Kettering High School will be Terry Knight and the Pack. They will be joined by the Bossmen and the Tidal Waves for two separate shows with proceeds goingto Children's Village School. A show for junior high school youngsters is scheduled from 7 to 8:30 p.m., with a 9:30 to 11:30 p.m. show for the high school students. Tickets at $1.50 are on sale at all Waterford Township secondary schools and at the Pontiac Mall.Heston's Concern
for Profession Shows

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The president of the Screen Actors Guild sat down to lunch: three bites of a diet bar and a glass of skim milk.
"It is unfortunate but true," sighed
Charlton Heston,
"that if you are in the business of selling your face and figure on the movie screen, you must diet."

THOMAS

Heston is among the most disciplined of stars. He maintains a flat stomach in order to command fat salaries. He also conducts his personal and professional life in a most salutary way.He is a man who is concerned about his profession, whether the issue is economics or professional behavior. On the latter subject, he told of the Guild's fining of a name actor $1,500 for his failure to perform a television script according to his contract.The Guild president discussed other matters that concern actors. One of these is personal safety; the Guild asked for a study of safety precautions following the drowning of Eric Fleming on a Peruvian location.
"There are many ways of approaching that," said Heston, himself an expert in action films. "The best way, I feel, is for the actor to make himself proficient in those matters of stunts in which he can prepare himself and to secure the most expert of help in things which he cannot control."Another Guild concern is the studio tour. Some actors have been fretful about the hordes ofpaying customers who are now pouring through studios. Should actors have more privacy at their work? Or should they be paid extra for being viewed like animals in a zoo? These matters are being discussed with producers."But the most important matter is wages," said Heston.
"While I don't want to prejudice the feeling of our members, I feel that we should again retain the same minimums for movie work, as we did in the last contract.""But I also feel we should fight for higher minimums in television when the contract comes due in late summer, and I believe this could be a strike issue."Pontiac's POPULAR THEATER

Will the real peanut butter please
stand up.

(Hint: it's the one that's offering 7¢ off on your next jar.)

There are three of us. The famous brands. The "good" ones. But spread all three and you'll see: Two just lie there. Kind of plain and punchless. Alas, no real character to call their own.And then there's one—the only easy-eatin' peanut butter with the grownup taste. The taste of the peanuts is so big and rich, it leaps off the bread. So creamy, it nearly spreads itself. So rich with the grow-on protein of peanuts—why, you can just watch a little guy grow on it. So why don't you?
