President's Viet Offer Gets Cold Shoulder From Reds

ONE COLOR

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and his advisers went over details of his eight-point Vietnam offer today and prepared to send it to the Paris talks despite an initial cold shoulder from enemy negotiators there.

★ ★ ★

The President outlined the offer, including a plan for a mutual pullout of major forces over a 12-month span, in a nationwide address last night.

In the follow-up the chief of the U.S. mission to the Paris parley, Henry Cabot Lodge, conferred with the administration leadership at a special joint meeting of the Cabinet and the National Security Council at the White House before heading back to the French capital later in the day.

The speech drew a generally favorable response from U.S. political figures, but what U.S. officials said was a not unexpected negative response initially from representatives of the Vietcong's National Liberation Front in Paris.

The NLF statement said the United States "still clings to its old formula of a mutual withdrawal of troops, a formula which we have repeatedly rejected."

But from Hanoi, the Communist-aligned Japanese news agency Nihon Denpa News quoted "observers" in the North Vietnamese capital as predicting Hanoi will "make some kind of favorable reaction to the American proposal after thoroughly examining it."

★ ★ ★

U.S. diplomats anticipate that Hanoi and Vietcong negotiators will be using some tough language as they examine the latest Washington proposal. What the final enemy posture on it will be remains to be seen, they said.

White House sources said Nixon timed his offer which had been ready for some weeks, for delivery now because this seems to be the best moment for a U.S. move to thaw the Paris deadlock.

Elements of virtually all of Nixon's eight points appeared in proposals made from time to time during the Johnson administration, but White House sources portrayed the package over-all as fresh in its impact in revisions coming from the new administration.

Reactions in the U.S. were quick in coming.

In Texas, an aide said former President Johnson "wholeheartedly supports President Nixon in his efforts at bringing peace to Southeast Asia."

In Washington, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the antiwar Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman, termed Nixon's offer reasonable while making plain he still thinks the United States should get out of South Vietnam.

House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said the President made plain he seeks an honorable peace and Hanoi has nothing to gain by delay.

Fortas Quits Supreme Court

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON — Justice Abe Fortas, under mounting pressure and the threat of impeachment proceedings, announced today his resignation from the Supreme Court and President Nixon accepted it, effective immediately.

★ ★ ★

Reaction from Congress, the center of often severe criticism, generally was favorable although some members continued to call for an investigation of Fortas's relationship with now-jailed financier Louis E. Wolfson.

★ ★ ★

In resigning, Fortas denied any "default" in performance of his judicial duties.

★ ★ ★

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Fortas's letter of resignation was received about 5:30 p.m. yesterday, a short time after Chief Justice Earl Warren telephoned "to advise the President that a letter of resignation was forthcoming . . ."

WARREN LETTER

Fortas also sent Warren—the man he once was nominated by Lyndon Johnson to succeed—a letter of explanation of his actions in accepting and then returning 11 months later a 20,000 fee from the Wolfson family foundation.

★ ★ ★

Wolfson, a former Fortas law client, now is serving a prison sentence for violating federal securities laws. The fee was given Fortas while Wolfson's activities were under government investigation and returned after the financier was indicted.

★ ★ ★

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., who led the fight that blocked Fortas's nomination last year as chief justice, said in a statement today: "Again, the infinite wisdom and foresight of our founding fathers in establishing a system of checks and balances has been confirmed."

Related Stories, Page A-3

★ ★ ★

Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken said today it would be "great" if President Nixon tapped Sen. Robert P. Griffin to succeed Fortas on the Supreme Court. Milliken and Griffin are long-time friends and confidants.

PROBE CALLED FOR

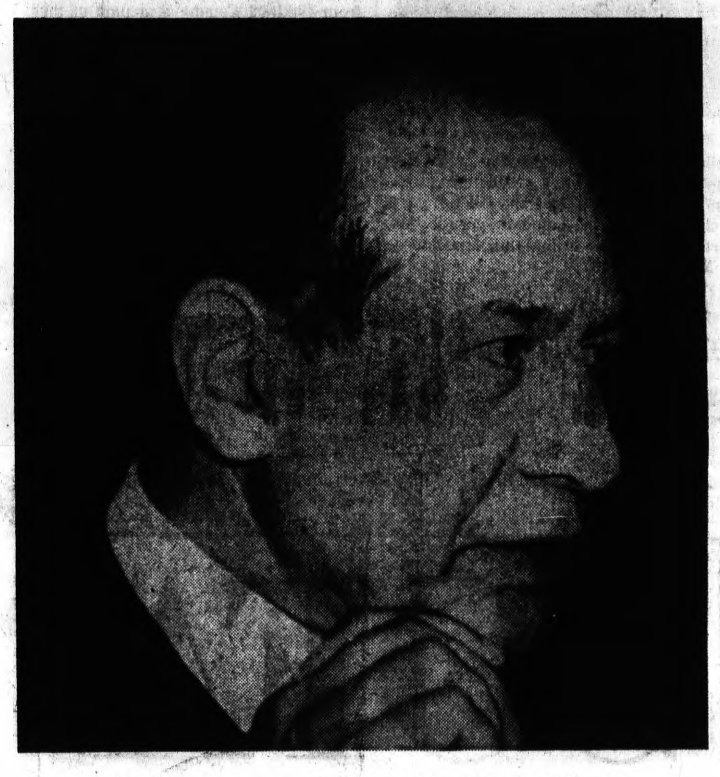

Other congressmen — including Rep. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn., who called yesterday for a preimpeachment proceedings investigation, and Sens. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., and Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., said today the incident would not be closed until all details are revealed fully.

★ ★ ★

The exchange between Fortas and Nixon was not disclosed, but the Court made public the Fortas letter to Warren.

★ ★ ★

In the four-page letter, Fortas told Warren his resignation was prompted by "the welfare and maximum effectiveness of the court to perform its critical role in our system of government."

8 Pontiac Teachers Fired for Dues Lack

By MARY SUNDSTROM

Eight Pontiac tenure teachers were discharged by the board of education last night because of their failure to comply with a "financial responsibility" clause in their contract with the school district.

The teachers had refused to pay $85 dues to the Pontiac Education Association, in an agency shop agreement specified in this year's contract between the school board and the PEA, and were given a hearing April 29 to discuss the case.

Related Stories, Page B-7

During negotiations for the teachers' contract last July, PEA obtained the agency shop agreement which provides that all teachers must pay dues or be discharged.

The Michigan Tenure Law provides that no teacher may be fired except for just cause, and whether nonpayment of dues is included in the provision is a matter Michigan courts have not clearly decided.

SUIT POSSIBILITY CITED

Board President William Anderson said that although he did not like dismissing the teachers, he felt that not to dismiss them would leave the board open to charges of unfair labor practice.

Chris Brown, the only board member who voted against the dismissals, said he could not condone the action, since it has not been upheld in the Michigan Supreme Court. Board member Monroe Osmun was absent, and Dr. Robert R. Turpin had not yet arrived at the meeting.

The vote was 4-1 on the resolution to dismiss the teachers at the close of the school year on June 13.

Should the teachers appeal their case to the Michigan Tenure Commission, they would remain on their present jobs in Pontiac until the appeal is settled, according to the contractual agreement between the school board and the PEA. Further appeals may also be made beyond the tenure commission to circuit court, appellate court and finally the supreme court.

County Government Claim on Tax Funds Downgraded

By JEAN SAILE

Despite the prediction that their actions might come back to haunt them, members of the Oakland County Allocation Board yesterday downgraded county government claims on the 15-mill tax allocation.

By setting an unofficial levy rate of 5.16 mills for the county, the board, in effect, would lop $3.5 million off the county's record $31.1-million tentative budget for next year.

★ ★ ★

The levy is 0.12 mill less than this year, and 0.63 mill less than that requested. It still raises $2 million more than that raised on property taxes this year, due to a substantial increase in county equalized valuation.

Daniel T. Murphy, a member of the allocation board and county auditor chairman, warned members, "One day you're going to have to take from the schools to finance the county."

BIGGEST INCREASE

The unit getting the biggest increase from within the 15-mill limit was Oakland Intermediate Schools — allotted 0.21 mills. Last year the Intermediate School District was financed almost entirely from nonvoted taxes outside the limit, but an attorney general's opinion has held that financing illegal.

Murphy also asked the board to consider a fixed millage, permissible under the constitution and requiring a vote of the people. He said such action would "do away with the gymnastics of financing when we haven't got enough funds to go around anyway."

★ ★ ★

He received support from new board member Louis Schimmel and Chairman Henry Schiffer. Setting a fixed millage rate for each government unit would do away with the function of the allocation board and it would also do away with the need for preparing tentative budgets.

All allocations recommended by the board, which met yesterday as a committee of the whole, are within the 15-mill limit.

TO BE SET MONDAY

The preliminary allocation will not be officially set until Monday and the final rate will not be set until June 2.

Action yesterday followed two days of budget presentations by schools, townships and the county.

★ ★ ★

While township allocations remain substantially the same as last year, schools learned they probably will be pared to help finance the intermediate school district. The millage allotted to them and townships was downgraded

News in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House reportedly is studying a plan to revamp the supersonic transport program to open new means of financing and ease fears about sonic booms.

★ ★ ★

The proposal would put the program directly under the secretary of transportation. The project to develop a 300-passenger, 1,800-mile-an-hour jetliner has been run since its inception by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), an independent regulatory agency administered by the Transportation Department.

★ ★ ★

Support has developed for establishment of a business-government agency under which funding would come from sale to the public of government-guaranteed shares. Such an agency could not conveniently be a part of the FAA.

Prosecutor Bill Stalls

LANSING (AP) — The Senate yesterday debated, then put off action, on a controversial bill that would mandate counties to pay prosecutors as much as probate or circuit court judges. In 11 countes last year, no one filed for the office of prosecuting attorney, said Sen. James Fleming, R-Jackson, sponsor of the bill.

Trouble Ahead for Nixon Surtax

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's proposed extension of the income surtax, a key part of the administration's fiscal plans, is facing problems both in and out of Congress.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, a member of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, said Nixon's urban policy had alienated some congressmen who might have supported the surtax extension past the June 30 expiration date.

Nixon has asked for an extension until Jan. 1, at 10 per cent, and a 5 per cent rate between Jan. 1 and June 30, 1970, when it would expire.

New threats came yesterday when two powerful groups declared any such bill must be coupled with sweeping reforms of the entire federal tax structure.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council said it will not support the extension unless it is combined with "immediate, substantial and equitable reform."

Fifty-four House members of the liberal Democratic Study Group signed a letter calling on the committee to act on tax reforms first, even if it delays the surcharge extension past the June 30 deadline.

Sun's Warm Smile Lifts Temperature

Today's brilliant sunshine is expected to send temperatures soaring into the mid-70s by late afternoon. Tonight will continue fair and warm, with a low of 50 to 55.

Increasing cloudiness and warm with a chance of showers or thundershowers by evening is the forecast for tomorrow. Tomorrow's expected high is 75 to 82. There's a chance of showers Saturday.

The low prior to 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac was 44. The reading at 2 p.m. was 70.

Final House Action Near on School-Aid Bill

From Our News Wires

LANSING — Final House action was expected today on the state public school aid appropriation bill, along with a token bid to revive the defeated parochiaid amendment.

However, a little-known constitutional provision requiring the word-by-word reading of legislative bills on the floor when a lawmaker submits such a request threatened to slow action on the school aid measure.

★ ★ ★

Some legislators also feared it could nullify the House decision Tuesday to reject the hotly contested parochiaid amendment.

The House was scheduled to begin debate on the bill at 9 a.m. today.

$1.25 MILLION ADDED

The lower chamber yesterday added $1.25 million to the $845.4 million allocated earlier by the Senate.

The extra sum would go to western Wayne County school districts which absorbed the now-defunct Sumpter and Nankin-Mills district several years ago.

★ ★ ★

Speaker William A. Ryan, D-Detroit, said parochiaid backers would offer a revised amendment advocating state aid for private schools, but added, "I'm doubtful if we're going to attach it (parochiaid)" to the school bill. "We'll be looking for an opportunity someplace and certainly it'll be a big item in the fall."

Gov. William G. Milliken, however, said the explosive issue is "not over by any means" in the 1969 Legislature.

SENATE ATTEMPT SEEN

The governor said an attempt would be made in the Senate to enact a parochiaid plan if the House declines to reconsider its rejection of the proposal.

Milliken, who had not been considered a solid parochiaid supporter, said defeat would mean a continuation of the financial problems confronting Michigan's 1,000 parochial and private schools.

★ ★ ★

The proviso that threatens to delay action on the school bill was brought to light by Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley in an opinion for Rep. John P. Smeekens, R-Sherwood. Smeekens objected to waiving the full reading of the 150-page school aid package.

Speaker Ryan and other House leaders sought to determine the impact of the ruling and whether it would, in fact, require reading the bulky bill in its entirety.

Kelley pointed to section 26 of Article IV of the 1963 Michigan Constitution, which states that "Every bill shall be read three times in each House before the final passage thereof."

★ ★ ★

The attorney general said the normal procedure of waiving the lengthy reading process was valid only so long as no legislator raised an objection.

Birmingham

Meetings Set to Explain School Issues

BIRMINGHAM — A series of five public informational meetings throughout the school district has been scheduled by the board of education.

The sessions have been arranged to give the board an opportunity to explain and promote the need for passage of the 7.5 millage renewal and $3.7-million bond issue proposal for additions to Groves and Seaholm high schools at the June 9th school election.

The meetings are designed to clarify and help the community understand the problems the school district will be facing in the fall, a board spokesman said. Citizens will have the opportunity to submit questions concerning the ballot proposals.

The meeting schedule is West Maple, 6275 Inkster, West Bloomfield Township, May 27; Barnum, Frank and Purdy Streets, May 28; Berkshire, 21707 W. 14 Mile, Bloomfield Township, June 2; Derby, 1300 Derby, Troy, June 4; and Covington, Quarton and Covington streets, June 5. All meetings will begin at 8 p.m.

The multimedia generation (youngsters who cannot remember life without television) will show their movies and slide sequences to a conference for English teachers at Birmingham's Seaholm High School tonight.

Fifteen motion pictures, produced by both elementary and secondary students from Oakland County as a part of their English class assignments, will be shown by youngsters who did the work during two sessions of an earlier communication media and English conference.

Other sessions will consider the film as literature, use of the overhead projector by children, incorporation of commercial TV into the curriculum, and use of tape and slides in the spelling program.

Media services available from Oakland schools will be on exhibit at 3 p.m. The program begins at 4 p.m.

Welfare Rights Group OKs Budget and Hiring of Staff

By ED BLUNDEN

More than 300 persons gathered for a statewide meeting of the Michigan Welfare Rights Organization (WRO) at the Hayes Jones Center in Pontiac yesterday.

For the past two years, the group has been organizing a campaign to coordinate efforts to improve the lot of welfare recipients.

★ ★ ★

Yesterday's all-day session was devoted to proposals to hire a professional staff to carry out functions of the WRO. A proposed budget of $54,000 for the 1969-70 fiscal year was adopted with $33,000 to go for salaries of two organizers, a public relations director and a secretary.

★ ★ ★

Funds for the proposed budgets are to be asked from the Archdiocese of Detroit and the Metropolitan Fund, WRO officials said.

STATE CHAPTERS

The WRO reportedly has chapters in Ann Arbor, Flint, Albion, Battle Creek, Benton Harbor, Kalamazoo, Ypsilanti, Jackson and Detroit as well as Pontiac. Other chapters are said to be forming in Adrian, Grand Rapids, Muskegon and Munising.

★ ★ ★

The national WRO is to meet in Detroit Aug. 20-24.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Cathrina Simms of 360 Auburn, Pontiac WRO cochairman, is a delegate to both the state and national groups.

★ ★ ★

The state WRO yesterday discussed a possible boycott of Sears stores. Mrs. Simms said the main desire of the WRO is to have credit accounts with Sears and other large department stores.

LARGE EXPENDITURES

She said because of the nature of welfare payments it was not often possible for recipients to come up with large expenditures needed at school-year commencement or for winter.

Mrs. Simms said the Pontiac store had been extremely cooperative but that ones in Detroit and in other cities were not.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Simms said efforts of the WRO would be toward eliminating the "second-hand existence" of welfare recipients. "The children grow up in this atmosphere and when they get 18 or 19 they want to reach out and grab all the things they didn't have," she said, "They are bitter kids."

★ ★ ★

The WRO has been making appearances before the State Legislature and county boards of supervisors.

★ ★ ★

"We have been telling them (government bodies) all we want is justice . . . it's their problem," she said.

U.S. Is Begging for End--S. Viet

SAIGON (UPI) — ". . . He who begs for peace is in the weak position . . . it is not a good way to fight."

The man who points to his 354 days as South Vietnam's prime minister to illustrate the government's stability criticized the United States yesterday for begging for an end to the war.

★ ★ ★

"To Americans, this may seem very chivalrous, but to us, in the Far East, he who begs for peace is in the weak position . . . it is not a good way to fight," the 66-year-old Tran Van Huong said.

"The Americans have a tendency to yield at the first difficulty they encounter," he said.

'EXPLOITING THIS'

"The Communists are exploiting this to the hilt. They are hitting at the weak point of the Americans, which is their desire to see a hasty solution to the Vietnam problem," Huong said.

Huong mentioned a possible pullout of 30,000 Americans by the end of the year and said that if the North Vietnamese troops left the battlefield, South Vietnam could handle the Viet Cong alone.

★ ★ ★

On another matter, Huong said: "My longevity in office is proof of our government's stability. I honestly never thought I would last that long because of all the difficulties we faced."

Yanks Continue Big Assault on Red Stronghold

SAIGON (AP) — While President Nixon was announcing his formula for ending the Vietnam war, thousands of U.S. troops battled the Vietcong and North Vietnamese today in two widely separated sections of South Vietnam.

Paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division fought for a hill called Don Ap Via along the rugged Laotian frontier and just to the west of the A Shau Valley.

After six days of heavy fighting, the Americans had not been able to drive the North Vietnamese from their bunkers honeycombing the 3,000-foot peak. The hill is believed to be either a regimental headquarters or a major supply base.

A series of fights in the border area during the past week has cost the North Vietnamese 125 killed, according to U.S. military spokesmen. They said 37 Americans have been killed and 187 wounded.

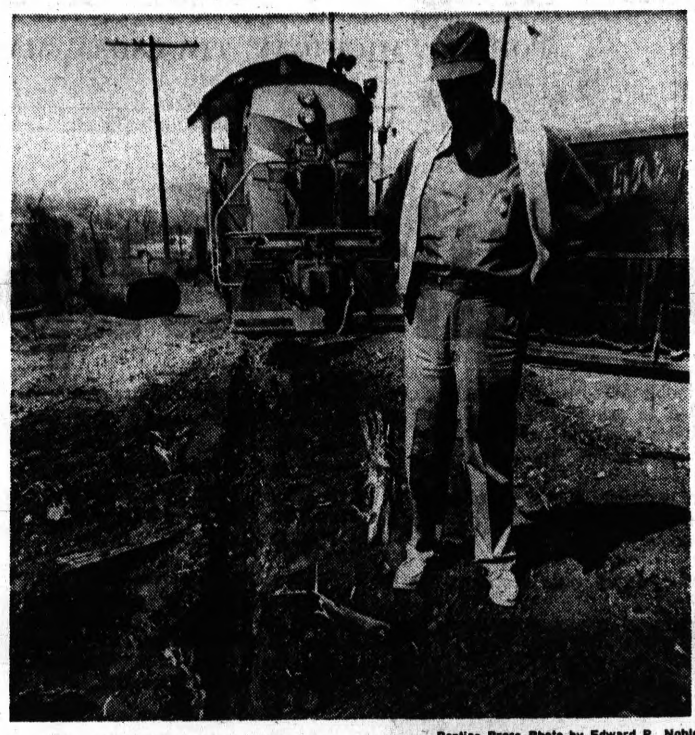

ALLIED DRIVE

The fighting is part of a new allied drive — Operation Apache Snow — to choke off North Vietnamese infiltration corridors from Laos into South Vietnam.

It is the sixth assault within a year on the A Shau Valley, the biggest enemy supply base and staging area in South Vietnam. The objective is to prevent a buildup in the valley from which the Communist command could support offensives against Hue, 30 miles to the northeast, or Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city 80 miles to the south.

Far to the south, 45 miles northwest of Saigon, U.S. infantrymen of the 25th Division rode armored cars through the jungle trying to root out troops of the North Vietnamese 1st Division entrenched in deep bunkers.

Spokesmen said more than 100 North Vietnamese had been killed in the area during the past three days, while U.S. casualties were four killed and a dozen wounded.

END OF THE LINE — Grand Trunk Railroad engineer Menard Ray of Inkster examines the spot where his freight train ran out of tracks after a saboteur threw a track switch and sent the train crashing into the closed Gee Coal and Oil Co. yard on Lake Street this morning. The train crashed through the company's gate, ran off the end of the tracks, sideswiped an old truck abandoned in the yard and nearly went through another fence on to Lake Street. No one was hurt.

UAW Local Upsets Incumbents

A coalition of union men known as the "Blue Slate" dominated the elections completed yesterday at UAW Local 653 at Pontiac Motor Division.

Almost all incumbent officers were either defeated or face a runoff election as minority vote-getters.

★ ★ ★

A similar upset of incumbent officers occurred last week in Local 594 at GMC Truck and Coach Division.

The posts of president and chairman of the shop committee will have to be voted on again next Tuesday and Wednesday. More than two candidates ran for these positions, and the top vote-getter did not receive a majority.

DERRYBERRY AHEAD

For president, incumbent Wayne Anable got 2,593 while his Blue Slate opponent, Paul Derryberry, polled 2,834. John Fowler got 341, sufficient to deny Derryberry the majority.

For shop committee chairman the vote was: Hollis Wilmoth (Blue Slate), 2,503; incumbent Ben Gales, 2,398; and Stanley Ejzak, 176.

For vice president, Merel Crooks beat incumbent Joseph Murphy, 2,859 to 2,454. Third-party candidate James Helton got 320.

Other top posts also were won by Blue Slate challengers: Bert Henson, financial secretary; Ernest Adams, recording secretary; Irma Norlund, guide; and Joe Woods Jr., sergeant-at-arms.

The three trustee posts also saw defeat of incumbents and the election of three new members, Elizabeth Maye, Cliff Dickson and Robert Kinkade.

For the 10 shop committeemen positions all incumbents who ran (two did not) were defeated. New committeemen are: 1-Kenneth Karns Jr.; 2-Herman Davidson; 3-Raymond Butler; 4-Charles Winstead; 5-Max Brown; 6-Terry Douglas; 7-Edwin Thrasher Sr.; 8-Edward Loba; 9-F. W. Bray; 10-Billy McGowen.

County Cut Down on Tax Claims

from 9.7 mills to 9.63 mills.

Action taken by the board yesterday was obviously a compromise.

An initial motion by Dr. William Emerson, superintendent of Oakland Intermediate Schools and a member of the board, would have cut the county levy to an even 5 mills. It was defeated by a vote of 4-2 with only Emerson and Schimmel in favor.

A second motion by Murphy to retain the present county allocation of 5.28 mills occasioned a two-hour recess by the board. The eventual vote also failed before the compromise 5.16 mills was passed with Murphy and County Treasurer Hugh Dohany dissenting. Schiffer, Emerson, Schimmel and Robert McKenney voted in favor.

County Survey Forecasts Fast Growth West of City

A close relationship between roads and urban development has been indicated in an Oakland County Planning Commission survey relative to westerly M59 improvement.

The survey was reported at a county Planning Commission meeting yesterday.

★ ★ ★

Undertaken on request of the county public works committee, the survey, prepared by Thomas Fitzpatrick, deputy planning director, predicts faster-than-normal growth in areas west of Pontiac.

★ ★ ★

Fitzpatrick noted development of 300 business and industrial concerns now on the county's major east-west corridor and reported more zoning activity, particularly in Waterford Township, than in any other township of the county.

"The implication of future growth is clear," Fitzpatrick said.

Fitzpatrick's report recommends immediate widening to five lanes of that stretch of M59 between Airport Road and South Williams Lake Road, widening within the next two years to the county line, and the start of planning for a freeway facility that would connect with I-96 to Lansing.

The implications of the recent Transportation and Land Use Study (TALUS) on future highway planning were noted by R. J. Alexander, planning commission member. An M59 freeway is a part of that study.

Robert Swanson, another member said it surprised him that M59 west hasn't got a state highway route designation yet. "We have a freeway to the east and nothing even planned to the west where there is more traffic," he noted.

Sol Lomerson, chairman of the County Road Commission, supported the need for an improved M59 to the west, but he said the over-all needs of the county must be considered.

Fortas Links Were Labyrinthian

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prior to taking a seat on the Supreme Court, which he resigned today, Abe Fortas was an officer of a company incorporated by individuals linked with Las Vegas gambling operations. One of the individuals later was indicted for perjury in the Bobby Baker case.

Other officers of the company, Greatamerica Corp., contributed to the $30,000 fund set up to finance a series of lectures by Fortas at American University here last summer. Fortas got half the money.

Greatamerica, a holding company for insurance firms, was the parent company of Texas-based Braniff Airways. In addition to being an officer of Greatamerica, Fortas was, during 1965, a director of Braniff. After he left the company, a spot on the board of directors went to Paul A. Porter, Fortas' former law partner. Porter still held that position last year.

It was last year that the Civil Aeronautics Board and President Johnson granted a lucrative trans-Pacific route to Braniff despite the recommendation of a CAB examiner that Braniff not get any such award.

The CAB chairman who concurred in the Braniff award is a former member of a Houston law firm with ties to Johnson.

These facts were disclosed in an Associated Press investigation of the past business activities of the beleaguered Supreme Court Justice.

Fortas was under heavy pressure to resign his seat following disclosures that he accepted, then returned, a $20,000 fee from the family foundation of convicted stock manipulator Louis Wolfson. This week, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell said he turned over "certain information" in the case to Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Fortas' involvement in the companies can be traced to 1962 when Greatamerica was incorporated in Nevada. The incorporation papers, dated April 27, 1962, list Fortas as the company's vice president, general counsel and a director.

They also list Paul Laxalt as the company's agent—the official representative. Laxalt, now governor of Nevada, resigned from the job on Dec. 31, 1966, before taking office.

Yearly reports filed in Carson City show Fortas remained an officer of Greatamerica until sometime between July 1965 and June 1966. Records for the following year indicate that after Fortas resigned Dennis Lyons assumed Fortas' former positions with the company.

* * *

Lyons, an attorney with Arnold & Porter, Fortas' former Washington law firm, told AP he became vice president, general counsel and director of Greatamerica in May, 1966. It could not be determined immediately whether Fortas retained his spot with the company until then or had resigned earlier.

Fortas took his seat on the court in October 1965.

One of the incorporators of Greatamerica was Clifford A. Jones, Nevada lieutenant governor from 1947-54 and a part owner and then officer of the Thunderbird Hotel in Las Vegas.

The gambling license issued to Jones and a partner in the hotel was revoked by the Nevada Tax Commission in 1955 on grounds that underworld figures had an interest in the hotel. The decision was later overturned by the Nevada Supreme Court.

On Jan. 5, 1966, Jones was indicted for perjury in connection with the grand jury investigation of Bobby Baker, former secretary to Senate Democrats.

Baker was indicted the same day for conspiracy, tax evasion and fraudulently converting to his own use nearly $100,000 from California savings and loan executives who thought they were making political contributions.

Jones was named a coconspirator in that indictment. Baker later was convicted of failing to pay tax on the $100,000. Jones' case has not come to trial.

Fortas was Baker's attorney until Johnson became president in 1963. At that time he withdrew from the case.

The two other incorporators of Greatamerica were Helen Irving and Katherine Waldman, both of Las Vegas, and both also listed as directors of a Las Vegas concern which got a gambling license in June, 1964.

The same three incorporators—Jones and the two women—were listed as incorporators when Greatamerica filed to do business in Texas on Jan. 29, 1963, records in the Texas secretary of state's office in Austin showed.

The records in Nevada and Texas do not indicate whether the three served also as officers of the corporation.

Legal sources say incorporation papers frequently are handled by attorneys who select the individuals to serve as incorporators.

The chairman of the board and president of Greatamerica at the time of its incorporation was Troy V. Post. The company's fiscal 1964 report lists Gustave Levy as a director. Both men held their posts through fiscal 1968 when Greatamerica and its subsidiary, Braniff, were acquired by the conglomerate Ling-Temco-Vought. Paul Porter's name appears as a director of Braniff in 1967 and 1968.

Last year, Porter collected $30,000 to finance Fortas' lecture series. Five men contributed to the fund. Two of them were Post and Levy.

American University officials told the Senate last year that Fortas got $15,000 of the fund and the university got the other half.

Also last year, a CAB examiner held extensive hearings on the eagerly sought Pacific airline routes. When he recommended the awards, Braniff had no share of the plum.

However, when the CAB and Johnson announced the final awards, Braniff got a route to Hawaii through Mexico City and Acapulco, increasing its air route mileage by about 200 per cent.

Post is a partner in the new $19 million, 24-story Plaza Internacional Hotel in Acapulco and is engaged in construction of a six-mile beach-front golf course and country club in the Mexican resort city.

The chairman of the CAB when the award was made was John Crooker Jr., a Houston lawyer and a former partner in the firm of Fulbright, Crooker, Freeman, Bates and Jaworski. Leon Jaworski has acted as a personal attorney for Johnson.

Crooker first was appointed to the CAB in March 1968 to fill an unexpired term. Just a little over a month later, far from the end of the term, Johnson renominated him for a full six-year term beginning this year.

'Life Income From Wolfson Fund Taken'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Times says evidence is held by the U.S. Justice Department that Abe Fortas agreed after becoming a Supreme Court justice to receive $20,000 a year for life from the Wolfson family foundation.

The newspaper said in Thursday's edition documents said to be in the possession of the government, plus Louis E. Wolfson's statement to government investigators last week, are being interpreted by Justice Department officials to mean that Fortas appeared to be willing to assist Wolfson in a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of the financier.

The Times said Federal Bureau of Investigation agents were told by Wolfson in prison, where he is serving a one-year sentence for selling unregistered stock, that a written agreement with Fortas provided that the justice's wife would receive the annual payments if Fortas should die.

Wolfson attempted to strike a bargain with the government before talking with the agents last Thursday, the Times said. But it said the Justice Department has obtained from Wolfson and other sources documents understood to support his statement to the FBI agents.

SUBPOENA USED

The documents were obtained by subpoena, the Times said.

Wolfson, who also has been sentenced to serve 18 months in prison for perjury and for obstructing an SEC investigation, "presumably hopes his cooperation could result in a reduction of the second sentence," the newspaper asserted.

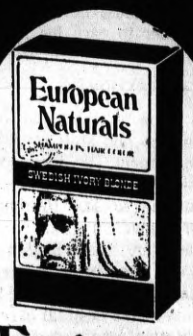

In Washington, the Justice Department said it had no comment on the Times story.

Springfield Twp. OKs Rezoning for Lumberyard

SPRINGFIELD TOWNSHIP — The Township Board has overruled a zoning board recommendation and approved the rezoning of property at the Ware and Andersonville intersection from agricultural to commercial.

The board voted 3 to 2 to authorize the request of Lloyd Miller, 10270 Andersonville, to develop a wholesale lumberyard operation at the site.

Township Treasurer Margaret R. Samuel, Township Clerk David H. Field and Trustee Claude Trim voted to approve the petition. Supervisor N. C. Van Natta and Trustee E. L. Rundell upheld the zoning board's recommendation to deny the rezoning request.

The board reported that the decision to enforce the township's junk car ordinance has been carired out. More than 12 warnings for ordinance violations have been written during the last four weeks. Violators have 30 days to correct the violation before the township takes legal action.

TOWNSHP SUED

Supervisor Van Natta said a summons was served on him yesterday regarding a suit filed in Probate Court against the township by Kelly Bateman Co., a Pontiac real estate firm.

The Bateman firm had filed a rezoning petition for a proposed trailer park development west of Dixie Highway between Holly and Oakhill roads that was rejected by the zoning board, County Planning Board and the Township Board last winter.

★ ★ ★

Van Natta said the suit was filed to enjoin the township from carrying out its decision. He said the township would contest Kelly Bateman's action.

Plans for Operation Cleanup are continuing. All old papers or magazines that are tied in bundles may be brought to the Township Hall, 650 Broadway, Davisburg.

★ ★ ★

Arrangements have been made with Charles Weaver, 9208 Dixie, to pick up newspapers and magazines anywhere in the township if he is contacted. Cleanup day is set for May 24.

Farmington to Air Proposed Budget

FARMINGTON — A public hearing on the proposed budget has been set for 8 p.m. tonight at City Hall. The total recommended budget for the general fund is $792,156 while the actual budget for 1968-69 is $747,141.

A budget of $308,916 for the water and sewer department in the upcoming year is also set. The water-sewer allocation is $295,726.

A public hearing for the rezoning of certain lots in the Tarabusi — Grand River Gardens subdivision from family to multiple dwelling is set for 8 p.m. June 8.

Trouble Flares on Picket Line at Novi Plant

NOVI — Police reported some trouble this morning with workers driving through the picket line at Paragon Division of Portec Inc.

Some 20 pickets from the Paragon Equality Movement (PEM) — primarily inner-city blacks — fired for violation of union grievance procedures paraded before the company gate for the fourth day.

Novi police reported that State Police gave one speeding ticket and several verbal warning to workers driving through the picket line on their way to the plant.

A warning was also given to one man for throwing rocks at the passing cars.

EMPLOYE'S DEMANDS

Picketing has continued at the Novi steel firm since Saturday. The former employes, who handed the company a list of demands Friday, walked out after learning that the demands would have to be processed through union grievance channels, according to a Paragon spokesman.

Personnel Director David K. Waterloo, said the 84 men were dismissed by telegram Saturday. The iron workers are members of Shopmen's Local 508, Iron Workers Union.

The Rev. William H. Colquitt of Inkster, a PEM spokesman, claimed Local 508 has refused to act on grievances about alleged unsafe working conditions.

The men claim they stopped work because of air pollution in the plant, unsanitary conditions and lack of safety precautions around heavy equipment.

CHARGES DENIED

A company spokesman called the charges untrue.

The workers, who were hired for job training under a federal program, were picked last fall when the company could not find labor to fill job vacancies.

Colquitt contended 150 persons from the program have been fired in the last two weeks.

Walled Lake OKs 8th-Grade Course

WALLED LAKE — The school board has endorsed the concept of a new eighth-grade yearlong course offering introduction to language, typing, and sociology.

The administration has been authorized to prepare details of the three sections, each to last 13 weeks, and present them to the board at a later date. The mandatory course will be during the hour when most eighth graders are currently in a study hall.

A choice of French or Spanish will be offered to the student during the language portion of the course. The introduction to sociology will offer information to help students better adjust to their environment and better handle involvement with other people.

The board, in other recent action, approved preliminary plans for the Vocational High School.

REPORT-CARD COMPLAINT

Also at the recent board meeting, a parent, identified as Mrs. James Scott registered objections to the district's four-year-old experimental report card. She urged continued efforts to improve it.

The card, introduced in 1965, is being used in a test program at four elementary schools.

The card is a four-page progress report which is supplemented by parent-teacher conferences. The card offers detailed notes on how the child is doing in the skills area and an evaluation of his ability. A page is devoted to personal development and attitudes of the child and spaces are left for parental response.

Mrs. Scott claimed that the card does not have enough grades to show achievement and that the parent can't tell how the child is doing from day to day.

MORE IMPROVEMENT

She indicated that she was not necessarily advocating a return to the traditional five-symbol report system, but that the card needed additional improvement before it was acceptable to her as a parent.

The card offers considerably more information to the parent than did the traditional five-symbol system, according to Hugh Davies, director of elementary education.

He contended that the system is less punitive and less corruptive.

He pointed out that the report card was a progress report to parents and that a child's knowledge of how he is doing in school is received on a daily basis.

"If any child has to wait ten weeks before learning how he is doing then we would be failing somewhere."

Novi Twp. Struggle Continues

By LOIS FRIENDLAND

NOVI TOWNSHIP — Not much remains of this township, reduced to 67 residents and one legal township official, since the former village of Novi incorporated into a city.

However, there is an effort to carry on.

★ ★ ★

Acting township officials were told yesterday by Circuit Court Judge William J. Beer that court approval of any expenditures was necessary before any more township funds were disbursed.

Judge Beer also adjourned the question of accounting between the township and the city for 30 days.

ELECTIONS SET

A meeting of the 67 remaining township residents is to be held June 9 in order to select township officers and a Township Board.

★ ★ ★

In May 1968, Novi voters approved incorporation by a margin of about 200 votes out of a total 1,192. A city charter was approved by voters last February.

★ ★ ★

The incorporation included 98 per cent of the township leaving the remaining residents divided into eight small and separate islands around the new city.

★ ★ ★

Township Trustee Ralph Luckett is the only one of the five elected officials still living in the township and therefore the only legal township official.

STILL PERFORMING

The other four officials, however, have continued to perform their duties as township officers. They are still dispersing township funds — including their own salaries — and have even notified some taxpayers of review of tax assessments of properties now within the city limits.

★ ★ ★

The men include Supervisor Hadley Bachert, Treasurer Duane E. Bell, Clerk Lloyd George, and Trustee Charles Goers.

★ ★ ★

The former officials have apparently been acting until recently under the stated belief that the incorporation was invalid.

The township has been fighting the incorporation in court for several years unsuccessfully. Their most recent appeal to the State Supreme Court was denied last week.

APPEAL DENIED

The township had asked for and been denied application for leave to appeal the recent decision made by the Court of Appeals declaring the incorporation valid.

★ ★ ★

Last April, township officials were also denied leave to pursue their claim by Circuit Court Judge Frederick C. Ziem.

★ ★ ★

The case has been in court at least three times.

★ ★ ★

Yesterday, the former township officials went into court to show cause why they should not be forbidden to continue their actions since they no longer lived in the township. The city also requested that the court order the township to make an immediate division of assets from the area incorporated last year.

SETTLEMENT NECESSARY

A settlement is necessary before the city can assume responsibility for the assets, which they claim the former township officials are using.

At the moment, however, there is no governing body in the township that can legally handle the division of assets. The sole remaining member, Luckett, does not constitute a quorum.

The meeting June 9 will provide a quorum of a new township board able to handle the division.

★ ★ ★

The meeting complies with a recent attorney general's opinion stating that certain laws authorize holding of a special township meeting — including where there is no quorum.

★ ★ ★

Emery Jacques, attorney for the township, noted that the state boundary commission had been asked to determine whether the township could exist by itself or whether the residents should join the city.

Pact Let for Building at Stony Creek Park

The board of commissioners of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority recently awarded a $78,470 contract to Van Kampen Construction Co., Detroit, for the erection of a building at the boat launching area of Stony Creek Metropolitan Park in Oakland Township.

★ ★ ★

The building is designed for year-round use and will have heated restrooms, a lounge area and food service. The building is not expected to be in use until next year.

Detroit Detective Sergeant to Head Public Safety at OU

A veteran Detroit police officer has been named as Oakland University's new director of public safety.

Detective Sgt. Earl Gray, 39, who has been with the Detroit Police Department for almost 15 years, will begin his duties on May 26.

★ ★ ★

A university spokesman said Gray's salary has not yet been determined, but that it was university policy not to disclose salaries.

Gray will replace Thomas D. Strong, who resigned his position in March to return to his former position as special agent with the U.S. Secret Service in Newark, N.J.

DETECTIVE SERGEANT

Gray joined the Detroit force in 1955 and has been assigned to the Citizens Complaint Bureau since 1964. He was promoted to the rank of detective in 1962 and to detective sergeant last July.

Married and the father of two children, Gray is a student at Wayne State University, majoring in police administration. He was born in Kentucky and moved with his family to Detroit when he was eight years old.

EARL GRAY

A veteran of two years service in the Army Signal Corps, Gray has been assigned to the Detroit police holdup bureau and at the precinct level. His duties with the Citizens Complaint Bureau have been to investigate charges made against police officers.

Sanatorium Future Is Tied to Action of 2 State Units

By JEAN SAILE

The future of Oakland County Sanatorium may depend on action by two state departments — the Bureau of Social Services and the State Health Department.

Bernard Houston, director of the Social Services, said recently that Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement rates at the sanatorium will be cut in half.

★ ★ ★

Should that happen, county officials believe the operation would be jeopardized and hard-to-care-for chronic cases would have no place to go. It would cost the county $800,000 a year to maintain present services, officials estimate.

Nursing home officials say, however, that they are willing to accept any and all long-term care cases the county has at the going rate for nursing home care — between $13 and $17 a day.

CURRENT COSTS

It costs the county between $35 and $39 a day for such care.

Meantime, Houston's announcement has caused a wave of concern in the county, mainly from people who have relatives cared for at the county facility.

★ ★ ★

The concern has apparently reached the ears of Lansing officials, who are now saying little.

Dr. R. Gerald Rice, state health director, said he has had some correspondence with Houston relative to the setting of county institution rates.

ASKED TO SET RATES

Houston reportedly has asked the health department to assume the function it recently took in regard to setting nursing home rates relative to hospitals.

"I don't know what's going to happen. The matter has to be worked out," Rice said.

★ ★ ★

At present the social services department sets reimbursement rates for hospitals.

Since the sanatorium now provides bed care for some 40 tubercular patients, another complication is added to the problem. The facility must be certified as a hospital in order to care for such patients.

PATIENT CARE OVERLOOKED

Certification is done on the basis of physical plant, service and staff by the State Health Department. It does not certify on the basis of the kind of patient care given, according to Dr. Herman Ziel, state director of medical care.

Ziel noted, however, that Saginaw County has faced the probelm by designating a certain number of its county beds for tubercular hospital care, others for rehabilitation care and others for long-term chronic care. It is reimbursed accordingly.

★ ★ ★

Rice said he did not know when a decision would be reached.

One health department official noted, "A facility may be certified as a hospital, but that does not necessarily mean that every patient in the facility needs hospital care."

Wage Boosts Set in Oxford Budget

OXFORD — The Village Council has adopted a $215,687 budget as presented by Manager Don Scripter. The budget provides for at least a 10 per cent wage boost for all 16 village employes.

Scripter said that because of certain retired debts, the new budget is down almost $4,000 from that of last year. The millage rate of 15 mills operating, one mill debt retirement and 2 mills debt recovery remained unchanged.

★ ★ ★

The council also released village planners Vilican-Leman from a monthly $150 retainer agreement, opting instead to use the firm's services on an hourly basis.

"We need the planners only a couple times a year now," explained Scripter, "and the rate on that basis would be $100 per day based on an eight hour day. We haven't saved money yet but we will in the future."

Black Power Gesture Stirs Senate Clash

LANSING (AP) — The clenched fist of black power raised over the Michigan Senate has prompted one member to renew his call for a "disaster plan" to ward off possible attack on the upper chamber.

Sen. Robert Huber, R-Troy, said yesterday that some members of the Michigan State University Black Student Alliance raised their fists in the now-familiar black power gesture as they were introduced in the Senate Tuesday night.

★ ★ ★

As they were introduced, reported Negro Sen. Basil Brown, Huber turned to a colleague and said:

"Well, I guess I'd better get my gun."

'EXEMPLIFIES ATTITUDE'

"That exemplifies his attitude toward black students and students in general," the Highland Park Democrat charged, pointing out that Huber chairs the special Senate committee probing campus unrest.

★ ★ ★

"Until we face the attitudes that exist as men," Brown said, "we are going to have loaded guns on both sides which (could bring) total destruction."

'Until We Face The Attitudes That Exist As Men, We Are Going To Have Loaded Guns On Both Sides . . .'
—Sen. Basil Brown

Sen. Roger Craig, D-Dearborn, admonished Huber "not to be terrified by symbols but by actions."

Huber told Senate colleagues a Yugoslavian refugee friend "had seen the clenched fist come into his country. It was the beginning of the end for freedom of the people of Yugoslavia," Huber said.

'WEDGE HAS STARTED'

Now the friend sees the clenched fist in this country, he said, the fist that "means terrorism and revolutionary tactics."

★ ★ ★

The Senate must, Huber said, "do some careful thinking and planning (because) the opening wedge has now started."

★ ★ ★

Huber repeated an earlier plea that the upper chamber plan defensive tactics against any attempted take-over. He revealed the call for such a plan last week, citing a take-over of the Colorado Senate.

Negro Sen. Coleman Young, who had introduced the black students, raised his fist before the Senate and said:

"I replied with clenched fist— as I do now. It would have been less than polite not to.

'GOING TOO FAR'

"The senator is going a little far when he tells black people what their symbols are," Young contended. "The fist is a sign of solidarity, of black power.

"But the clenched fist of today that means solidarity might well become the clenched fist of revolution tomorrow," he said.

Young said the students had visited the Senate to ask legislators "to address themselves to their legitimate grievances" regarding discrimination on campuses and other student problems.

The students had come to hear Brown read a letter from 11 of the state's 13 black legislators to Gov. William Milliken. The lawmakers demanded the governor call for black history courses in all state colleges and universities and for open channels of communication between administrators and students.

INVOLVED IN DEMONSTRATION

The MSU black students recently were involved in a campus demonstration which ended with the administration granting them concessions.

If the Senate were really concerned, Young said, members would address themselves to guaranteeing student freedoms.

★ ★ ★

Sen. Arthur Cartwright, Dtroit, also a Negro, urged that people "stop playing politics on both sides of the fence."

"There is extreme militancy on both sides," he said. "But the middle-of-the-road people — I mean the good people — are going to have to say this thing has gone too far."

Harambee Progresses

One of the bright spots showing in connection with the development of Pontiac's residential areas is the activity of the year-old Harambee, Inc., a nonprofit organization formed a year ago by black and Latin-American members of the community with that objective.

To date, the enterprise has committed $250,000 for land acquisition, the latest being two parcels comprising 15 acres in the southern section of the City.

★ ★ ★

The larger, a 12-acre tract known as Surfside, will be the site for the construction of two medium-rise towers that will provide one- and two-bedroom units. Additionally, town houses and commercial and community facilities are planned.

★ ★ ★

For the smaller parcel, one-fourth the size of the other and located at Bagley and Diston, multiple-dwelling units are projected.

The present transaction is the second land-acquisition deal that Harambee has completed within a month, the first being the purchase from the City of the former Lake Street Yards of the Department of Public Works. Here a $1-million, 60-unit housing complex is in the planning stage.

★ ★ ★

Other Harambee land holdings are a four-acre site at Bagley and Wessen and various single lots in the southwest area of the City.

★ ★ ★

All this adds up to progress of the most impressive sort. The Press joins the citizenry in congratulating the Harambee organization on its initiative and the results it has thus far shown.

I-696 Given Green Light

The I-696 freeway route across southern Oakland County moved a step nearer reality when the Michigan Supreme Court upheld the legality of a law passed in 1967 empowering a three-man arbitration panel to determine highway routes within the State.

★ ★ ★

At issue was a 7.4-mile segment of the route which several communities opposed because it cut through or ran adjacent to their boundaries.

★ ★ ★

The court's decision in effect approves the controversial section of the freeway as drawn by the arbitration panel and ends a 10-year hassle that has deprived the County — the State's second most populous — of a vitally needed highway facility. When completed, I-696 will stretch 29 miles from I-94 on the east to I-96 on the west.

But the delay in getting the project under way has been costly. The original estimate of $75 million for the strip involved in the dispute has risen to $112 million.

★ ★ ★

The protracted opposition to part of the I-696 route points up the immutable fact that progress that benefits the many is not to be nullified by the short-sighted few.

★ ★ ★

As transportation facilities of our great Nation have developed from the days of covered wagons through the railroad-building decades into today's jet travel by air with vast super highway networks for vehicular traffic, no step forward has been made without some slight degree of inconvenience or dislocation being experienced by individuals or communities.

★ ★ ★

But such is the price of progress. And the only alternative to progress is stagnation.

Inflation Trend Reversed

In these inflationary times, it is always a pleasure to report an example of "disinflation," to use the term now favored by economists.

A major maker of home power tools has announced the lowest prices for portable drills in its 59-year history.

★ ★ ★

The drills are not only lighter, more compact and more powerful but the price is less than half the cost of the first drill for do-it-yourselfers introduced by the company in 1946. In terms of today's so-called dollars, the price is less than a third.

It is also heartening to learn that foreign producers of power tools are not able to compete in the United States because American manufacturers are doing such an effective job of making and marketing these tools.

A power drill is a small item, but it bulks large as an example of what our much-vaunted American know-how can do without benefit of protective tariffs or import quotas.

GOP Hopes in Tennessee May Fade

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — National Republican strategists who are arguing seriously that they might add Tennessee to their governorship scoreboard in 1970 had better come and take a closer look at a Democrat named John Jay Hooker Jr.

He has had two Oliver Quayle polls taken which show him sweeping aside his potential Democratic rivals and the man once thought most likely to be his Republican opponent, Rep. William Brock. The latter now says he will not try for the job.

BIOSSAT

★ ★ ★

Four years back from the 1970 race, Hooker as an "irregular" got 47 per cent of the Democratic primary vote while losing to Gov. Buford Ellington. Ellington, seeking a second term, laid it on the young man, then a practicing lawyer, for his lack of "business experience." That hurt him with thousands of Tennessee conservatives.

Things are different today. Hooker, looking like an Ivy League professor but sounding like a driving, jivy businessman, has become what he sounds like.

PILING UP MONEY

He has stopped practicing law and is piling up business money for himself and others. With his brother, Henry, he is an impresario wafting a wand over one of the most unusual collections of industrial and service enterprises in the United States.

It all began with chickens around June of 1967 — nearly a year after his 1966 loss to Ellington.

★ ★ ★

Hooker telephoned Minnie Pearl, popular and charming Tennessee country singer, and asked:

"Minnie, how would you like to go into the chicken business?"

HUGE GROWTH

He told her he had been looking at figures showing huge growth for the Kentucky fried chicken firm, and did not see why they — using her name for a catch — could not "get a piece of the action."

That was the start for the Minnie Pearl Chicken Systems, a sky-rocketing chain of 1,700 franchised, fast-food outlets (150 built) across the country and in some foreign places. What began for $650,000 has zoomed into a $110 million endeavor.

★ ★ ★

The word "Systems," indicating use of the most modern operating and marketing techniques, seems to be the only cord that ties together Minnie Pearl's chickens and the other assorted things the two young Hookers have since put together.

They include electronics, steel fabrication, barge and bridge building, chemical research, oil and gas exploration, real estate, a chain of hospitals that may exceed 100 some day, a planned network of child care centers. And the Hookers hold 50 per cent of the new Mahalia Jackson Chicken Systems, a plunge into black capitalism.

★ ★ ★

Thick-haired and bespectacled, the 38-year old John Jay Hooker Jr. sits today in his paneled office behind a Minnie Pearl store and says he has not decided about 1970. But he is almost surely going.

The New Stock

Bob Considine Says:

Saints Go, but Loyalties Remain

NEW YORK—Once upon a time I was standing in the back of St. Patrick's Cathedral, gassing with an usher who was a friend of mine, when suddenly a disheveled lady plunged in from Fifth Avenue and gasped, "Where's the altar to St. Jude?"

CONSIDINE

"We don't have one," the usher said.

The lady thought for a moment, then asked, "Who's next best?"

★ ★ ★

Perhaps a lot of Catholics will be asking something along those lines, now that the church has cast what amounts to a smirch on Saints Chrisopher, Nicholas, Valentine, George, Catherine, Martin (who turns out to have been a girl), Ursula, Susanna, Lucia, Barbara, Anastasia and about 200 others.

WHAT'S THE EFFECT?

What's this do for (or to) the thriving industry that turns out St. Christopher medals, Santa Claus, the candy and card business, George Wallace, Catherine the Great, Martin Van Buren (the first lady President?), Ursula Parrott, the novelist, Santa Susanna (Cardinal Cushing's titular church in Rome — maybe the most beautiful church in Christendom), and all the others in whose honor millions of children have been named, churches erected, and prayers directed?

The Catholic Church has about 2,500 saints listed, many if not most of them elevated to sainthood before a systematic scrutiny of credentials was established in 1634.

★ ★ ★

Since that time the list has been much more difficult to make. There is a court of inquiry that looks into such matters. A "devil's advocate," usually versed in the law and history, is always on hand to oppose the supplications of groups seeking to promote a long-dead patron to sainthood.

The "devil's advocate" demands realistic proof of at least two miracles or supernatural happenings traceable to the proposed saint.

COLUMBUS THWARTED

Christopher Columbus was proposed for sainthood in the 16th century but has never made it. Successive generations of "devil's advocates" have thwarted successive generations of the admiral's supporters by presenting facts and figures on Columbus' extra-marital affairs.

In announcing demotions and deletions from the church calendar the Vatican said, in effect, that it would be all right if those who had a particular devotion to this or that saint — now downgraded or never-existent — continued that reverence.

★ ★ ★

It was a superfluous announcement, of course.

Countless thousands of girls named Philomena did not change their names when John XXIII announced that he was sorry but a saint of that name had never existed. Nor were dozens of St. Philomena churches razed.

USE TO CONTINUE

St. Christopher medals will continue to be worn and believed in, and statuettes to his name will continue to grace the dashboards of millions of automobiles. So what? — he didn't carry the Infant Jesus across a river on his shoulder. But how about the way he helped when that tire blew out on the Jersey Turnpike?

David Lawrence Says:

Reds Have No Intention of Making Peace Treaty

WASHINGTON — There are two ways to look at the Vietnam problem.

LAWRENCE

One is to be concerned about the political aspects inside this country — the unpopularity of the war, campus revolts against the draft, and the feeling that the United States has no business sending troops to settle the "internal" affairs of a country 8,000 miles away.

The other is to take into account the possible consequences of a weakening of American policy, with the probability that the United States will be entangled in a war of much greater proportions in the next few years.

★ ★ ★

Presidents Johnson and Nixon have endeavored, through peace negotiations at Paris, to achieve a settlement with North Vietnam. But the recent 10-point proposal made by the National Liberation Front, which is the political arm of the Vietcong in South Vietnam, shows clearly that there is not the slightest intention of making a peace treaty, and that the most that would be accomplished would be an armistice such as prevails in Korea.

★ ★ ★

The 10-point proposal, for instance, demands that the United States and its allies withdraw "all troops, military personnel, arms and war material without posing any condition whatsoever."

NO SIGN

Although the document includes a plan for elections and a "provisional coalition government," there is no sign that any supervisory authority would be permitted to assure that any agreement reached would be carried out in good faith by the Communists.

★ ★ ★

The only sentence in the 10-point proposal dealing with international participation in a settlement is the following:

"The parties shall reach agreement on an international supervision about the withdrawal from South Vietnam of the troops, military personnel, arms and war material of the United States and the other foreign countries of the American camp."

★ ★ ★

There is no machinery suggested for supervision of what the military forces of North Vietnam do in South Vietnam.

In the final analysis, the President of the United States is confronted with a decision as to whether the present peace negotiations are merely to be used as a device whereby America can somehow wriggle out of the Vietnam dilemma, or whether the United States shall stand firmly on its original position.

Voice of the People:

Could Police Investigate Sex Education Material?

I commend the Pontiac police department and Chief Hanger for trying to rid our city of smut magazines. I wish they could cover an even larger area. With many parents justifiably concerned over sex education, I wonder if it is within the jurisdiction of the police department to investigate the material for this education and its source. If we are worried about minors seeing and reading beyond their comprehension, we should be doubly worried about schools actually sponsoring pornography for the very young.

I agree you cannot teach the technicalities of sex without morality and expect good results. I also hate to be told that parents don't know what is best for their child at a given age, and only parents should make such a decision.

For proof of how this teaching can lead to the downfall of a nation, look to Sweden where venereal disease is running rampant. God help us if that is what we want for this country and future generations.

Has Additional Data on Recent Incident

The Southfield "youth" referred to in The Press as being shot in the back by Patrolman Hedrick was in fact a 29-year-old felon who is now in Jackson Prison and was being sought after having been sentenced for shooting his wife. Officer Hedrick and three other officers attempted to apprehend the suspect when he attempted to flee and was shot.

'Commander of Pueblo Deserves a Medal'

Commander Lloyd Bucher deserves the Congressional Medal of Honor for going above and beyond the call of duty. Had the Pueblo been sunk by the North Korean defenders, a third world war would have begun. The Commander saved more than the atomic bombs dropped on Japan. That affair has not put fear into the people of Asia. North Vietnam, North Korea and China could prove a point of goodwill by returning all prisoners, both civilian and military, thereby calling for a new code of honor in international law.

Replies to Bachelor's Comments on 'Smut'

Regarding the comments of the young bachelor in the May 8 article on smut, no doubt he is a bachelor because he cannot find a lovely young lady that is not "hypocritical, self-righteous, sexually hung-up, with a warped sense of values, lifeless, bitter, tongue-clicking, patronizing, self-assured, or a pompous neurotic." Young man, look in the mirror. Chief Hanger, keep up the good work. Pontiac Press, back up the Chief.

Question and Answer

Are there any organizations that donate American flags and standards to parochial schools?

MRS. JOHN LUNDY
3134 EASTWOOD

REPLY

The American Legion donates flags, but not standards. Standards are available through stores selling flags (in Pontiac—Christian Literature Sales, Simms) and cost would depend on size and type. To obtain a flag, contact Mrs. Charter, Americanism Chairman for Chief Pontiac Post No. 377, American Legion Auxiliary. Her number is 682-5937.

Question and Answer

It seems to me water in laundromats should be hot enough to kill germs. Is there a city or state ordinance governing temperature of water in public laundromats?

WONDERING

REPLY

A spokesman from the Health Department says there are no state or local laws governing the water temperature in public laundromats.

Jazz Events Offer Piece of Americana

By DICK SAUNDERS

Vacationers, Americana isn't only Gettysburg, Penn.; Boston, Mass.; Vicksburg, Miss.; or Williamsburg, Va. History can also be found in American jazz music.

SAUNDERS

This weekend, a Coon-Sanders Nighthawk Festival will take place in Charleston, W. Va. It will feature jazz bands tomorrow night, a "tea-dance" Saturday afternoon with some good folk jazz and more jazz bands at a Saturday night finale. It's about an eight-hour drive from Pontiac.

The festival gets its name from a great semihot band of the 1920's led by Carleton Coon and Joe Sanders.

Jazzfest '69 in New Orleans, La., is slated for June 1-7, with Monday night off.

★ ★ ★

The lineup this year includes Sarah Vaughn, the Onward Brass Band, Clark Terry, Pete Fountain, Zoot Sims, Dizzy Gillespie, Jim Robinson, Gerry Mulligan, Eddie Miller, Willie "The Lion" Smith, Armand Hug, Count Basie, Tony Parenti, Zutty Singleton, Bob Green, and Roy Eldridge.

You will find more detailed coverage of Jazzfest '69 in The Press special travel and vacation section to be published a week from Saturday.

Closer to home, Oakland University will sponsor a jazz concert Friday, June 13, featuring a traditional jazz band from Preservation Hall in New Orleans, with Billie and Dede Pierce and Jim Robinson, among others.

This group made a lot of converts to the jazz enthusiast ranks with their appearance last year.

★ ★ ★

The annual St. Louis Ragtime Festival June 20-21 is becoming the greatest display of musical Americana in the Midwest. It's only about 10 hours from Pontiac via car and accommodations are numerous.

The Ragtime Festival this year will feature some great "local" talent. A fine traditional jazz band — The Mother's Boys — will be a feature of the festival. Their members include musicians from the Oakland County area and their featured vocalist is Kerry Price, who teaches vocal music at East Hills Junior High in the Bloomfield Hills School District.

Also featured will be Mike Montgomery, a fine ragtime pianist from Detroit.

Other bands include the Salty Dogs from Chicago, the St. Louis Ragtimers and Singleton Palmer's Jazz Band, both from St. Louis; and the Red Onion Jazz Band from New York. Legendary ragtime pianist Eubie Blake will be there along with Bob Wright from Chicago, Trebor Tichenor from St. Louis and Knocky Parker.

If the names are foreign to you, don't hesitate. They are all ambassadors of music Americana.

★ ★ ★

And don't worry about the kids. They'll love it. The whole thing takes place on the Goldenrod Showboat, a legendary Mississippi paddle-wheeler moored in the shadow of the St. Louis Arch near Meade's Bridge.

Kids are admitted. They can sit and sip pop while you nurse your beer.

The muddy Mississippi is never happier than that weekend of Mississippi River Valley ragtime in mid-June.

Rail Veteran Saves Train From Burning Ammo-Laden Boxcar

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — Charles M. Hastings edged toward a boxcar of exploding ammunition and uncoupled other munitions-laden cars so they could be pulled away by locomotives.

★ ★ ★

"I didn't have any time to be afraid," said Hastings, 47, a veteran Southern Pacific road foreman who acted Wednesday night after the freight car carrying 61 tons of ammunition caught fire and 40 mm shells began blasting off at one-second intervals.

★ ★ ★

As the explosions held fire fighters and military ordnance experts a mile away, Hastings drove his truck to the train which was on a siding.

★ ★ ★

He uncoupled both ends of the 90-car train to within eight cars of the blazing boxcar so crews with locomotives could pull the sections from the scene.

BOXCAR ON FIRE

Hastings said "I knew when I'd gotten close enough."

★ ★ ★

Only the one boxcar caught fire, although those on each side were loaded with liquid sulfur and flammable liquid propane.

The fire burned itself out in four hours, but the steel boxcar still smoldered into the morning, with exploded and live shells strewn over about an acre of the rocky, desert land in the Antelope Valley 40 miles north of Los Angeles.

★ ★ ★

"You could hear whistles like shrapnel flying through the air," said Sheriff's Deputy Dan Berrier. "You could hear shells exploding all over."

Officials said the fire apparently started in an overheated axle. "We know it started under the car," said Hastings.

★ ★ ★

Firemen ordered occupants in 20 homes within two miles of the scene to evacuate when the explosions began.

★ ★ ★

The munitions cars were en route from the Red River Army Depot at Defense, Tex., to Port Chicago, Calif., the military's shipping point to Vietnam.

Latin Protester of Rocky Killed

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Anti-U.S. students holed up in the University of Honduras Wednesday night after one of their number was killed during a demonstration against New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's visit.

Rockefeller, who left the United States Sunday on the first of four tours south of the border as a special envoy of President Nixon, arrived in Honduras late Tuesday. He conferred Wednesday with President Oswaldo Lopez Arellano, his first encounter on the trip with a Latin-American dictator.

★ ★ ★

While the two men were meeting in the presidential palace, about 500 students gathered in a park two blocks away and began shouting, "Rockefeller, go home!" They said his purpose was to "secure the exploitation of our people by the Yankees."

Wielding clubs, police charged the students. Then shots were fired, and a 19-year-old student was hit twice in the head. He was taken to a hospital, where a nurse identified him as Carlos V. Zuniga and said he died from his wounds.

★ ★ ★

An American student from California, Lee Mercer, 22, said he was sitting in the park playing his guitar when the melee broke out. He said that as he watched the demonstration, a policeman hit him in the stomach with a rifle butt.

Dulles' Widow Dies After Brief Illness

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. John Foster Dulles, widow of Eisenhower-era Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, died here Wednesday after a brief illness.

Mrs. Dulles was 77.

She was taken to Washington Hospital Center Sunday. Three days earlier Mrs. Dulles had attended a dinner honoring two associates of her late husband, retired admirals Arleigh Burke and Arthur Radford.

★ ★ ★

Since her husband died in 1959 Mrs. Dulles had continued to live in the home they purchased after he became secretary of state to President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1953.

SERVES ON BOARDS

Dulles died of cancer less than two months after resigning in 1959.

Mrs. Dulles often accompanied her husband on foreign missions. The Paris-educated Mrs. Dulles was fluent in French and Spanish.

Mrs. Dulles had served on the Boards of the National Republican Women's Club, the National Society of Colonial Dames and the Bellevue Hospital Nurses Training School in New York.

★ ★ ★

During World War II she put in long, strenuous hours at Bellevue manning the volunteer nurses' office and telephone operator post.

She is survived by three children, John Watson Foster Dulles of Austin, Tex., Mrs. Robert Hinshaw of New York, and the Rev. Avery Dulles, S.J., of Woodstock, Md., and a sister, Mrs. Kenneth M. Seggerman of New York.

Witness Chair Is Hemmed In

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Judge Joe D. Duncan suggested to the Knox County Commission and the County Court Finance Committee Wednesday that a box be built around the witness chair in his Knox County Criminal Court.

★ ★ ★

Duncan said it would help witnesses feel more relaxed.

Also, he said, some jurors are embarrassed by the appearance of some witnesses in miniskirts.

Jet Travel a Headache at Bedtime

By WATSON SIMS

NEW YORK (AP) — The magic of the jetliner may have brought any country of the world within an easy day's journey, but it can push the Land of Nod clear out of sight.

On a quick trip around the world, I found only the Indians claimed ability to keep their sleeping clocks in order as time zones change. But their solutions did not work for me.

★ ★ ★

I left New York at noon and in six hours arrived in what London clocks said was midnight. Suddenly it was necessary to rise at what my watch said was 1 a.m. and remain awake until 5 p.m.

★ ★ ★

Just when I was beginning to get into step with London, another nine hours by jet took me to New Delhi. All progress made in London was lost. It was impossible to sleep at what my system said was noon or rise cheerfully at what seemed midnight.

ASKING TOO MUCH

An Indian with whom I had come to discuss business suggested the trouble was that I was asking too much in our negotiations.

★ ★ ★

"I can SUMMON sleep whenever I wish," the man said, making it sound as if summon was spelled in capital letters.

★ ★ ★

"I can sleep in a car, in an airplane or even standing up. Anyone who has a clear conscience can SUMMON sleep."

★ ★ ★

I summoned sleep that evening with a clear conscience, but it did not come until I met the same man for more negotiations. I then felt drowsy but still out of step.

CONDITIONING

More advice came from a reporter who also has a reputation as a Hindu philosopher.

"It is all a matter of conditioning the mind," he said.

★ ★ ★

"You lie down, close your eyes, then, limb by limb, order your body to sleep."

★ ★ ★

The reporter flopped on a couch and commanded, "Right leg, go to sleep!"

Similar commands went out to his left leg, waist, stomach, shoulders and head.

TOTALLY RELAXED

When he reached his head, his body seemed totally relaxed and he apparently was asleep.

I tried this system after dinner, but it worked no better than the summons. My right leg did not sleep until 4 a.m.

★ ★ ★

Later I was seated for dinner beside Morarji Desai. Desai, at 72, is much admired as an ascetic as well as a tough politician. He is India's deputy prime minister and also minister of finance. He was a sympathetic listener to my problem.

★ ★ ★

"Well, it doesn't really matter whether you sleep or not," Desai said.

"The important thing is to lie down, close your eyes and don't BOTHER."

★ ★ ★

He made bother sound as if it was spelled with capitals.

SAME PROBLEM

I tried this approach. It was easy to lie down and close my eyes, but I bothered until 5 a.m.

★ ★ ★

On a flight which in eight hours moved from 2:30 p.m. in Tokyo to 6:30 a.m. in San Francisco, I asked the airline stewardess how she lived with the problem.

★ ★ ★

"That's what I'd like to know," she said with a yawn. "I have been on this run for months and I can never get to sleep at the right time."

★ ★ ★

On the flight from San Francisco to New York, I remembered advice received years earlier from the late Prime Minister Nehru of India. His formula was simple: six hours of sleep is necessary, seven hours a luxury, eight hours a vice.

★ ★ ★

Out of the jetliner and back in my own bed, I found the problem solved itself. Without summons, or bother, I more than fulfilled Nehru's prescription for vice.

Building Has New 'Bouquet'

Vintage Waterworks Now a Wine Cellar

PAW PAW (AP) — A minor miracle appears to have taken place here. The old village waterworks has been turned into a wine cellar.

The vintage building in its rustic setting on South Kalamazoo Street started welcoming visitors last Saturday to sample the wines and juices produced by the Michigan Wineries Inc.

★ ★ ★

Greeting guests to "Ye Olde Wine Haus" is Bob Harrison, manager, who for many years owned and operated the Chevrolet agency in Paw Paw.

The waterworks was built under the administration of Mayor John Free in 1872, according to a stone plaque above the main entrance.

ABANDONED

The village abandoned it as a waterworks in 1947 and used it as a storage building until 1965 when the site was purchased by the Michigan Wineries. The company's plants stand on a hill behind the new wine cellar.

Mellowed by nearly a century of wind and weather, the square brick structure sits in a small dale next to the I-94 connector road.

In front of the building, the East Branch of the Paw Paw River courses along its way, and the old iron and concrete footbridge has a new plank floor to lead visitors to the landscaped area in front of the old building.

★ ★ ★

The walks are now paved with red brick, and evergreens grace an area that once was a service road. Old willows bend over the site, and the ancient chimney still stands at the rear of the building.

The flavor of time on the exterior was retained in the interior renovation. Old barn siding and cypress from old wine casks were utilized for the shelving, cabinets and counter in the retail showroom.

In the center of the room is a large wine cask brought to Paw Paw from the Hummel Winery Co. in Sandusky, Ohio. An oil painting on the top of the cask depicts the original 1878 buildings of that winery.

The floor has been covered with terra-cotta tile, aged artificially to blend in with the rest of the building. Two paintings, one of an old barn by Michigan artist Sid Seeley, also add to the bouquet of the interior.

★ ★ ★

Harrison says visitors will be welcomed to tour the winery and new shop. Plans are to offer samples of wine and juice to guests interested in the firm's many varieties. The Wine Haus, initially, will sell only products of Michigan Wineries Inc., but Harrison says that improted varieties may be offered later.

Harrison says many of the Paw Paw townspeople have expressed their thanks for preserving and improving the appearance of the landmark, and others have shown surprise at its new use.

★ ★

Harry Bush, director of public works, told Harrison he has had some calls from amused citizens asking him to make a check of the alcoholic content of the village water supply.

Rogers' Son Gets Leave to Visit Folks

SAIGON (AP) — Ens. Jeffrey L. Rogers had no trouble getting four days shore leave to visit his folks in Saigon.

"The Navy was extremely cooperative," said the 24-year-old officer, who is a navigator on the hospital ship Repose. "As a matter of fact, they ordered me to take shore leave."

★ ★ ★

Jeffrey met his mother and father at Tan Son Nhut airport when Secretary of State William P. Rogers and his wife arrived Wednesday. Jeffrey has been in the war zone six months, most of the time off Vietnam, and this is his father's first visit to the Far East since he became secretary of state.

The family dined with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker Wednesday night and had lunch together today after President Nixon's speech on Vietnam.

"We talked a little about politics and the war—I was encouraged by Nixon's speech—but mostly we talked about the family," said Jeffrey.

Congress Is Probing Milking of Medicaid

By JAMES R. POLK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is probing whether as much as $40 million a year is being milked from the Medicaid program through abuses by doctors, dentists, druggists and nursing homes.

Senate hearings are planned shortly as a climax to a staff investigation of soaring costs, rich fees and possible fraud in the $5-billion, 38-state program of free health care for the poor.

★ ★ ★

An Associated Press examination of Medicaid operations in a half dozen states found:

● In New York, a dentist running a second-floor walkup clinic in an East Harlem slum got more than $400,000 in Medicaid payments over the past two years. In a court suit, the city has accused him of false billings and fraud.

● In Baltimore, nine doctors, a dentist, two pharmacists and an accountant have been indicted on charges of conspiring to defraud Maryland's Medicaid program. The probe was centered on a small, cramped drugstore that was the highest paid in the state last year at nearly $250,000. Above its door is a sign: "Health Is Our Only Business."

★ ★ ★

● In southern California, investigators tell of dentures ordered in nursing homes for dying cancer patients, special shoes for bedridden invalids, and expensive prescription sunglasses for a blind man.

● A nursing home near Sacramento, Calif., has been accused in suspension proceedings of billing for patients after they died. In one case, records indicate the daily charge was doubled shortly after death.

★ ★ ★

● In Kentucky, a tiny pharmacy in a mountain town of fewer than 800 people was paid nearly $330,000 last year for prescriptions under Medicaid. Investigators found medicine still unopened in some Appalachian shacks. One mountain doctor in the $100,000 bracket said his nurse wrote many prescriptions for him.

● In New York City, health officials found one foot specialist touring nursing homes and collecting $2,000 a month from Medicaid for his services—clipping toenails.

SENATE SCRUTINY

The soaring price of both Medicaid and Medicare has prompted plans for the Senate Finance Committee to put both programs under the microscope at special hearings this summer when its staff finishes the probe now underway.

Medicaid, the federal-state program paying for private medical care for welfare recipients nad other poor patients, was passed almost unnoticed in 1965 as part of the law creating Medicare for the elderly. Its costs have run far beyond predictions, climbing at almost a billion dollars a year.

★ ★ ★

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., finance committee chairman, charged there has been waste and extravagance in Medicaid.

None of the officials interviewed could pinpoint the exact amount because watchdog efforts by federal agencies have been both blind and toothless.

CALIFORNIA LOSSES

However, an extensive investigation by the California attorney general's staff has placed losses through abuses at $6 million to $8 million a year in that state alone—or 1 per cent of the California program.

The same 1 per cent ratio applied to Medicaid across the nation would mean losses of more than $40 million annually—a figure some observers think may be conservative.

★ ★ ★

One congressional investigator predicted the total could run into "hundreds of millions of dollars."

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., who gave the Senate a preliminary sketch Wednesday of the abuses the committee is studying, told a newsman, "I'm finding it much worse than I ever dreamed of."

Williams criticized the rising price of the program—now costing 10 times as much as original estimates for Medicaid three years ago.

New Mexico became the first casualty of the program this month, pulling out when it ran out of money to meet its share of the medical bills.

★ ★ ★

Officials agree the costs of Medicaid have skyrocketed since passage because patients could go to the doctor anytime they wanted without worrying where the money was coming from. And the doctors found themselves suddenly getting paid for cases that had been charity in the past.

"The heavens burst open," said a mountain doctor who is now one of the highest paid in Kentucky.

'MONEY ROLLS IN'

One health official in the South said, "It's like having the monopoly on 'Gone With the Wind' when it first came out. All you have to do is sit in the box office and wait for the money to roll in."

The lack of restraint on how often patients go to the doctor—and the fact the doctor gets paid every time he sees them—has given birth to a new government catchword: overutilization.

★ ★ ★

It means too frequent medical care that isn't necessary.

Dr. Lowell E. Bellin, executive director of New York City's Medicaid program, says, "Anybody who commits fraud has to be pretty stupid. The sophisticated person who wants to take advantage of this program milks it through overutilization, not fraud."

NO INTEREST

Bellin added prosecutors have no interest in cases like the toenail clipper on the nursing home circuit because he wasn't charging for services he failed to perform.

"He really clipped those nails," Bellin said. "But he was clipping the city simultaneously."

★ ★ ★

Prosecutors have been reluctant to bring cases where they would have to prove a doctor's judgment on heavy medical care was wrong. Instead, the fraud prosecutions have been limited almost entirely to pharmacy cases in Maryland, New York and California where prescription records are available as evidence.

★ ★ ★

With few exceptions, the policing of the Medicaid program is done on a catch-as-catch-can basis.

TO EACH HIS OWN

The federal government let each state set up its own Medicaid program while paying for 50 to 83 per cent of the cost. The states decided what care to offer at the start, how to make payments and how to guard against abuses.

★ ★ ★

In most cases, the states have given only lip service to watchdog duties. Top federal officials concede that their policing of the hodgepodge of programs has been flimsy—and only now are they asking states to send in full reports on their surveillance methods.

★ ★ ★

John G. Veneman, th now undersecretary of health, education and welfare, headed state hearings on California's abuses while still a legislator there last fall. He called the $6-million to $8 million estimate of losses in California a conservative one.

★ ★ ★

Since many states have no real checks on their Medicaid payments, the states where scandals have emerged may not be the worst.

FOUND THEM

Instead, they are simply the states that have found them first.

Chief Deputy Atty. Gen. Charles A. O'Brien said, "The program is in bloody bad shape all over the country, and no one wants to admit it."

★ ★ ★

O'Brien said if doctors' groups and government agencies don't start pushing to "straighten out this mess, the public outcry is going to be so large that the good is going to go out with the bad."

★ ★ ★

Undersecretary Veneman said the basic idea of Medicaid for the poor has been good. "Unfortunately," he added, "in a program like this, an element of greed prevails."

Veiled Threat Seen in Nixon Statement

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon coupled his new peace proposals with an implied warning that the United States might turn to increased military action if North Vietnam rejects his "generous" terms.

"No greater mistake could be made than to confuse flexibility with weakness or being reasonable with lack of resolution," Nixon said in his speech to the nation Wednesday night.

News Analysis

★ ★ ★

"I must make clear, in all candor, that if the needless suffering continues, this will affect other decisions."

LEFT UNSAID

★ ★ ★

The Nixon administration can be expected to do its utmost to avoid heating up the war. Its mood is for scaling down the fighting—and the casualties—as soon as possible, and starting to bring home the 542,500 U.S. servicemen from Vietnam.

★ ★ ★

But White House sources left open the possibility of some step-up in the war, saying they didn't want to speculate on what might happen.

Apart from possible military moves, the options open to the Nixon administration seem limited.

'MOST CONCILIATORY'

New diplomatic initiatives are conceivable, but the White House sources described the Nixon peace package as "the most conciliatory we can think of."

Since Nixon pledged not to abandon the South Vietnamese people, he dismissed the possibility that the United States might give up the fight entirely.

★ ★ ★

Nixon did reject "attempting to impose a purely military solution on the battlefield."

However, such a standstill leaves room for applying military pressures on the enemy with the aim of making Hanoi more tractable at the conference table.

★ ★ ★

Such steps could involve:

- A limited resumption of the bombing of North Vietnam, possibly concentrated on the enemy's supply routes running through the lightly-populated panhandle.
- Resumption of naval shelling of North Vietnam's coast, also focusing on the supply routes; interdiction of southbound ship traffic.

★ ★ ★

- Authorization for U. S. commanders to mount major ground operations into the Laotian panhandle and/or Cambodia to try and cut off infiltration along the trails and roads, and to destroy enemy bases.

'Hanoi Favors Military End to the War'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some top U.S. officials believe a thin majority of the North Vietnamese leadership favors a battlefield decision rather than a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam war.

Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, North Vietnam's defense minister and victor over the French at Dien Bien Phu, is said to be the leader of a hard-line group that rejects the idea of peace through the Paris talks.

Giap thinks the war can be won by North Vietnam on the battlefields of South Vietnam, analysts say. This leads some administration defense officials to be pessimistic about the Paris negotiations.

The analysts' opinion that hard-liners are on top in Hanoi seems to clash with a statement by President Nixon during his Vietnam report to the nation last night.

"Reports from Hanoi indicate that the enemy has given up hope for a military victory in South Vietnam but is counting on a collapse of American will in the United States," Nixon said.

U.S., Vietcong Peace Plans Compared

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's report to the nation on Vietnam, including his own formula for reaching peace, came six days after the Vietcong presented a 10-point plan for settlement of the war.

Here is a summary comparison of the two proposals.

Point 1 of the Vietcong asked respect for rights of independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity as recognized by the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam. Nixon said a peace agreement would have all parties agree to observe those accords.

Point 2 called for unconditional withdrawal of American troops and bases from South Vietnam. Nixon proposed simultaneous withdrawal by both sides with complete disengagement from combat by foreign forces in 12 months.

In their third point, the Vietcong said it is the right of Vietnamese people to continue to fight if they choose for their fatherland. In proposing the 12-month pullout Nixon said foreign troops would then no longer engage in combat operations.

Point 4 of the Vietcong said South Vietnamese people would "decide themselves the political regime of South Vietnam through free and democratic general elections . . ." including a coalition government. Nixon said: 'We are prepared to accept any government in South Vietnam that results from the free choice of the South Vietnamese people."

The fifth point of the Vietcong says political forces representing all social strata and every shade of political tendency in South Vietnam would set up an interim government. Nixon said: "We believe there should be an opportunity for full participation in the political life of South Vietnam by all political elements that are prepared to do so without the use of force or intimidation."

Point 6 on the Vietcong list would have the country establish a policy of peace and neutrality. Nixon said: "We are willing to agree to neutrality for South Vietnam if that is what the South Vietnamese people freely choose . . ."

The Vietcong's seventh point was a call for reunification of North and South Vietnam. Nixon said, "We have no objection to reunification, if that turns out to be what the people of North Vietnam and the people of South Vietnam want."

Point 8 on the Vietcong list was a ban against military alliances by North or South and would forbid defense treaties, bases or troops on their soil. Nixon's statement: "We seek no bases in Vietnam. We seek no military ties."

The ninth Vietcong proposal suggested negotiations for release of military men captured in the war and said the United States "must bear full responsibility for the losses and devastations it has caused. Nixon said arrangements for prisoner release would be made at the earliest possible time, and noted the United States has been generous to those it has fought.

★ ★ ★

The 10th point was supervision by agreement of withdrawal from Vietnam of troops and war supplies of the U.S. and its allies. Nixon said an international supervisory body acceptable to both would verify withdrawals which he insisted would involve North Vietnam as well as the U.S.

Man's Numbers, Waste Draining World's Water

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Water, the most plentiful chemical on earth, is probably the most priceless.

Without water, there could be no life of any kind. In a sense, water is more precious than water is more previous than oxygen. For without it, there would be no green plants and green plants supply the oxygen men breathe.

★ ★ ★

There are 326 million cubic miles of water on earth — each cubic mile is 1.1 trillion gallons — and it covers 71 per cent of the planet's surface. That's enough water to submerge the United States to a depth of 90 miles.

Despite its abundance and despite man's appreciation that no nation or no man has prospered without enough of it, water is in trouble.

CHARACTERISTIC

Its plight is characteristic of what man, in his ever increasing numbers and ever more powerful tools, is doing to his environment.

Man is despoiling his water. Polluting it with raw sewage, crankcase oil, chemicals, DDT and other pesticides, silt, even hot water. Where it's abundant, he's wasting it and has now begun to destroy reserves nature took millions of years to deposit.

★ ★ ★

While man has been doing all this, his demands for clean, fresh water have been increasing. Usage grew from 3 to 5 gallons a day in Medieval times to 95 gallons in Western nations of the 19th century. Modern society requires even more. In the United States, per capita use of water — for all purposes including industrial and agricultural — is now about 1,600 gallons a day.

Although there is lots of water on earth, most of it is salty ocean water. Some 317 million cubic miles of those 326 million cubic miles of water that earth has are in the seas, filled with enough salt to cover all land to a depth of 500 feet.

'FROZEN ASSETS'

The largest part of the remaining water, about 7.9 million cubic miles, is tied up as "frozen assets" in glaciers and the polar icecaps.

That means there is a lot less water available to man for most of his needs, cooking, drinking, bathing.

Pollution. Waste. Increasing per capita use.

Dr. Raymond L. Nace, research hydrologist of the U.S. Geological Survey, adds another factor: An increasing world population that will total 7 billion by the year 2000.

OUTRUNNING SUPPLIES

"The problem is not whether water supplies are diminishing. Very little water is ever lost from the so-called hydrological cycle, but man has not discovered any way to add to it appreciably, either.

In that hydrological cycle, there are at all times about 95,000 cubic miles of water moving between earth and sky. Up through evaporation. Back down as hail or rain or sleet or snow.

★ ★ ★

The United States gets an average rainfall of 30 inches a year — or 4.3 trillion gallons a day. But precipitation does not fall equally on each geographical location. While some U.S. areas get as little as an inch of rain a year, floods from too much precipitation annually drive about 75,000 Americans from their homes.

About 70 per cent of any precipitation returns to the air as vapor, but the United States still has some 1.2 trillion gallons of water a day entering the stream flow from surface and underground sources.

ULTIMATE RESOURCE

This runoff, along with the huge underground reservoirs known as aquifers, at present constitute the nation's ultimate water resource — for homes, industry, irrigation, recreation, everything.

Experts say these aquifers are literally "buried treasure" and estimate they hold 96 per cent of the fresh water available to the United States at any one time.

★ ★ ★

At present depletion rates, these underground reserves — trapped in pockets of sand and gravel over millions of years — hold enough water to last 7,900 years.

Despite this over-all optimistic picture, in some areas — particularly in the semiarid Southwest United States — these aquifers are failing, victim of man's ability to dig deeper wells and build bigger pumps.

VALLEY SINKING

The central valley of California, for example, is gradually sinking as more and more ground water is pumped out, and as it sinks, more and more of its submerged water resources are destroyed.

Man, trying to make more water available where it is needed, has begun rudimentary weather control experiments, dug big diversionary canals from areas of abundant water to those of little, and started learning how to take the salt out of the seawater.

★ ★ ★

But hydrologist Nace warns that "the history of human effort to control nature is a history of continually having to combat unwanted consequences of these efforts."

Still, man has begun to understand what he is doing to his environment, and has begun to try to correct some of his mistakes. Some pessimists argue it may be too late.

But Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., in "The Coming Water Famine," tells why it is necessary to try, however late, to save our water. "Since time began," Wright wrote, "water and life have been synonymous. Water is the cheapest, yet the most priceless of all commodities.

★ ★ ★

"Since the dawn of history, it has given respite to the traveler, solace to the sick, succor to the land, reflection to the philosopher — and, to the earth itself, a never-ending renewal. No life can exist without it."

GLENWOOD PLAZA NORTH PERRY AT GLENWOOD

But Some GIs Pass It Up

Insurance Is Bargain

By JERY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Newsfeatures

WASHINGTON — Some people won't grab a bargain even when it's almost free. For instance, 38,000 soldiers who are passing up the $10,000 Serviceman's Group Life Insurance that costs only $2 a month, not a very big bite even in a recruit's pay.

BAULCH

It's not that they're neglecting to sign up for it, they have to go out of their way to avoid getting the protection. The insurance is automatic unless serviceman or woman puts in writing he doesn't want it at all or wants to take $5,000 and pay $1 a month.

Of the 38,000 in the Army, 25,000 have said they want no part of the insurance. The other 13,000 went for only half of it.

★ ★ ★

Even if a man doesn't want to make a wife, mother, brother, girlfriend, cousin or charity the beneficiary there are advantages of having it for later protection.

There are no exemptions on military hazards such as civilian policies have. And if a man is seriously injured or contracts a disease in service he can convert to a civilian policy when he gets out without being required to pass a physical exam.

Conscientious Objector

The Army has cut some of the red tape for processing applications for men in service seeking conscientious objector status, whether they want to be discharged or get a noncombat role in the Army.

★ ★ ★

Now such applications will be sent directly to the Pentagon from military posts or division level. Previously they had to wend their way through the in-between military channels, which often was time-consuming and frustrating to the applicant.

Christmas Is Coming

The Red Cross notes that even though Christmas is still more than 200 days away, its volunteers are gearing up for the fourth straight year to get "Operation Shop Early" rolling. The early start is necessary to get the packages to Vietnam in time.

The volunteers are enlisting the help of community service organizations, religious groups, business firms and local industries to help make the brightly-colored, drawstring gift bags and to provide gifts to fill them.

★ ★ ★

The Red Cross has sent to each of its chapters suggested gift lists, separate ones for men and women. The lists are just about the same as last year.

The bags will be sewn during the spring and summer while the gifts are collected. The bags will be filled in late summer ready for shipment by Sept. 30.

Happy Sailors

The Navy is managing to assign more enlisted men to shore billets of their choice, a recent survey shows.

A Bureau of Naval Personnel report shows that in the six months ending in February at least half got their first-choice U.S. shore assignment. And 38 to 46 per cent got their first-choice city.

★ ★ ★

Jim Parker, the Navy Times expert on this, says this is because of more personalized attention to requests under the rating control system introduced a couple of years ago.

Also, he says, sailors are being made more aware of what openings are available so they won't try for dead ends.

More ROTC Officers

Despite the shakiness of ROTC at Harvard and Stanford and rumblings at some other universities, more commissioned officers will be coming off college campuses this spring than in previous years.

The Army alone expects 16,607 graduates to be commissioned 2nd lieutenants compared with 14,176 a year ago and 10,727 in 1967. Counting the Air Force and Navy, the colleges and universities are expected to produce 25,0000 officers this year compared with 18,000 last year.

★ ★ ★

As I noted in a recent column on ROTC, the Air Force has a waiting list of 100 colleges wanting ROTC but it has all the units it needs now. In fact, it plans to end ROTC units at eight schools over the next three years because they aren't producing enough officers. It's not linked directly to the protests against ROTC.

Next school year, the Army is aiming to step up its ROTC pilot training program to meet the growing need for Regular Army aviators. There are 980 students enrolled this school year and the Army expects 1,500 to participate next school year.

Recently, I noted that the Air Force plans to experiment next fall with women in ROTC at four colleges. But in a way eight Temple University coeds have stolen a march.

The eight can't qualify for commissions but they were permitted to march with the men this year shouldering M1 rifles and going to class with the male cadets.

Why did they ask permission to do this?

★ ★ ★

Linda Comalli, 19, of Jenkinstown, Pa., "had no reason for joining. I guess I thought it would be fun being with a lot of men."

Revenue Ruling

Many firms pay the difference between what a reservist or National Guard gets for two weeks active duty and his civilian pay. But apparently there are some firms that also pay their executives while they are on up to two years active duty.

★ ★ ★

The Internal Revenue Service recently reminded these executives that such fringe pay is subject to income tax even if their firms sent it to the executives' wives as a gift. And the firms have to report the payments if they total more than $600 a year.

Military Hospital Jam

The military hospitals, at least many of them, are having to cut back some of the services offered retired people and dependents of active duty people because of the job of taking care of men wounded or getting diseases in Vietnam.

It's not a bed shortage. There just aren't enough medical people to handle the increasing load.

★ ★ ★

But the Army surgeon general says maternity benefits probably won't be affected. It will vary from hospital to hospital, but surgical and orthopedic treatment probably will be the main service confined to active duty personnel.

Air Force Times noted recently that one of the big problems is the increasing number of retirees and dependents seeking hospital treatment, not only in Air Force hospitals but in all — since retirees can go to a military hospital of any service.

★ ★ ★

In the past five years, hospital admissions of Air Forces retirees and their dependents have risen 40 per cent. And the boom continues.

Prime Suspect in King Slaying Hoax Denies Broadcast

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The prime suspect in a hoax radio broadcast that misled police the night Martin Luther King Jr. was murdered denies he made the broadcast.

"I never did it," he said in an exclusive interview. "I can prove it."

★ ★ ★

If he can, authorities will have another riddle to untangle before they can say beyond a reasonable doubt that the broadcast was a hoax and that killer James Earl Ray was in no way connected with it.

Ray is serving 99 years. His motion for a new trial will be heard May 26. So far as is known, he has never made any comment about the broadcast.

OCCUPIED POLICE

The spurious call—giving a frantic description of a white Mustang making a high-speed getaway—began about 35 minutes after Dr. King was shot April 4, 1968. It occupied the attention of at least three police squads, turning them toward an area five to six miles east of the shortest, quickest route out of Memphis—the route Ray actually took in a 1966 white Mustang.

The suspect now is a college freshman at a school far from his Memphis home. He has been questioned by Memphis police and the FBI. But the Federal Communications Commission—to the surprise of at least one FCC commissioner—never has made any inquiry.

No charges have been placed against the student.

Confronted in the dormitory of his school, he at first refused to discuss police interest in him. He agreed only after an exchange of several long-distance telephone calls to his family and a lawyer. He agreed to talk with the understanding he would not be identified.

"I'm very upset about this," he said, nervously shifting about as he spoke. "I don't like the FBI or anybody else thinking I had anything to do with this. I don't like your coming after me."

"Why have police concentrated on you?" he was asked.

★ ★ ★

"I don't know why. There are other ham radio operators in my area. I don't know why they came to me. I haven't been able to put this out of my mind for a year," he said.

Authorities were able to get a clue as to the probable location of the transmitter because of details provided by two main sources: a 25-year-old steam fitter who was receiving the broadcast in his red Malibu convertible and a TV-repairman who is a ham operator.

CONFLICT IN REPORTS

There is some conflict in their reports. The steam fitter, in his version, said:

"I had my two-way citizen's band radio on. This is a short distance, low-power radio communication. I was monitoring Channel 15. I'm sure I was receiving from a mobile unit because of the way the strength of the signal changed."

★ ★ ★

The TV man, whose sobriquet on the air is "Lily White," said the messages came from a fixed base station, and added:

"I monitored that from the beginning to the sign off. There is more to it, but I won't tell the full story until the U.S. Supreme Court has James Earl Ray firmly under lock and key. There is something unknown, and I'm worried about the unknown." He refused to say any more.

★ ★ ★

Any citizen, 18 or older, can get a citizen's band license by filing an application and paying the fee. Amateur, or ham, radio operators must pass examinations in Morse Code, electronics and FCC regulations.

★ ★ ★

Although the student is frightened and worried, he apparently knows radio communication and the problem of anyone now trying to prove when the fake broadcast began. Location of a transmitter can be determined when there is a signal on which two receivers can make a fix. But the false broadcast lasted only 12 minutes, and no opportunity existed at the time to make such a fix, nor was there any need to since no one had any reason to doubt it was valid.

"I was at home that night," the student said. "I was never at my rig, which is down in the basement.

"I was working on a term paper about 6:30 p.m., give or take 10 minutes, a friend called and said King was shot and all hell would break loose. I agreed. I went back to my term paper. I never got on the air at all."

The student's home is located in the general area described as the scene of the high-speed chase.

He said he knows two respected, substantial citizens of Memphis who could testify it wasn't his voice.

★ ★ ★

"These two men heard it all, from beginning to end, and they know my rig and my voice. They could testify it wasn't me. I have never given their names to anyone, not the Memphis police or the FBI."

The Associated Press has a slight clue as to their identity but has been unable to locate the men.

CRUCIAL TIME

The misleading broadcast began at 6:35 p.m. — about the time the student said he took a break from his studies. This was a crucial time during which King's killer made good his escape. The easiest way out of the state was to head for Interstate 55 and either go across the Memphis-Arkansas Bridge to Arkansas or go south into Mississippi, trips requiring from 10 to 19 minutes. Ray, it is now known, went to Mississippi.

The false broadcast was picked up by the steam fitter, who asked that his name not be published. He has been questioned by police and the FBI.

"I was eastbound on Jackson Avenue in my convertible. The top was down. I was alone. It had been about 15 minutes since the radio report that King was shot, and about three or four minutes later there was the report on commercial radio that the suspect might be in a white Mustang.

"Then, on my citizen unit, I heard someone saying, 'Can someone give me a land line to the police department?' That's our jargon for a telephone call.

'CHASING MUSTANG'

"A base station answered and said he'd be glad to put in a call for the police and asked: What was the message?

"The answer was, 'I am chasing the white Mustang with the man in it that shot King.' Then there was some interference and the base station asked for a repeat and got one three or four times but couldn't read it. I could. I have fine copy all the way."

The steam fitter then saw a police car stopped at a traffic light.

★ ★ ★

"I pulled up alongside and hollered, 'I have a man on the radio who says he's chasing the white Mustang with the man who shot King.' The cop looked at me funny, and the patrolman who was riding shotgun got out and got in with me. We pulled into a parking lot and I turned up the volume so that the other officer could hear it."

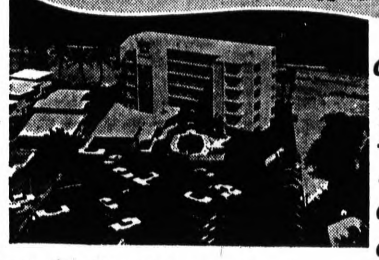

The officer, Lt. R. W. Bradshaw, in police car 160, relayed the informatin coming over the citizen's band radio to the police dispatcher. The dispatcher, in turn, broadcast it over the police network. A recording of this exists. But there is no known recording of the voice of the person making the original broadcast.

GUNFIRE DESCRIBED

At least two police cars, 36 and 42, were put into action in a hunt for the phantom Mustang. At one point, the mysterious broadcast also described gunfire coming from a blue Pontiac whose occupants reportedly were firing at the Mustang. But no one, that night or since, has come forth with any evidence of any real vehicles being at those places. It was a sham, all the way.

The FCC, asked to explain its failure to investigate the alleged hoax, agreed that such a hoax would be a violation but said that in this instance it was decided that the incident already was being investigated by the FBI and local police and there was no necessity for it to become involved. However, one commissioner said that while he would not initiate an inquiry, he certainly would support a call for one.

Teen Morals Worry Soviet Parents, Too

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet parents are puzzled, too. Unusually outspoken articles in the Soviet press disclose parental concern over miniskirts, drinking and sex.

A lively debate on how to improve teen-age morals sprang up after the government paper Izvestia reported a court case involving 15-year-old girls' affairs with married men.

A flood of letters from readers suggested ways to handle the problem. Many urged parents and state authorities to be stricter.

"I would forbid the showing of all foreign films, as well as some of ours," wrote one reader. He complained about the recent Soviet movie "Once More About Love," which took a sympathetic look at young people's problems.

Another reader, apparently an elderly man, said: "This idiotic fashion of short skirts must be banned. Men cannot travel by streetcar."

One parent caleld for stricter censorship to weed out books about the seamy side of life. The writer complained about the novel "What Makes the World Go Round," in which "they glorify a girl born out of wedlock."

One reader called for reviving such discredited customs as beating children with a leather strap or smearing tar on the front gate of a girl's home as a mark of shame.

Children who are whipped "remember this for a long time," the reader said.

At this point a woman writer for Izvestia drew the line.

Commenting on the letters, L. Ochakovskaya said beating and other cruel punishments only teach children to be cruel themselves. She called instead for tolerance and understanding of the new generation.

He Reveals Name and Detects Surprise

CHICAGO (AP) — Sherlock Holmes is alive and well, and living among people who won't believe it.

Sherlock, a wiry man of 48, has ways to cope with the incredulity of people to whom his name is presented.

★ ★ ★

"I carried my birth certificate when I was in grammar school," he told an interviewer Tuesday.

"I learned long ago, when I call up some place for a reservation, to just say 'S. Holmes.'"

LAPEL BADGE

Holmes wears his name on a lapel badge at the International Security Conference. Others attending this meeting of specialists in security work give it a double take.

He lives in Lacey, near Olympia, in Washington State. He works as an examiner for the state auditor.

★ ★ ★

Once, in the line of duty, he went into a state agency's office and handed the lady clerk a formal letter of introduction.

"I don't believe it," she said.

He solved the problem of telephone calls from fun-loving strangers. He changed his listing in the directory to S.G. Holmes.

SOME FUSSING

There was some fussing about his name right after his birth.

"My father said 'Sherlock,'" he related. "My mother wanted Oliver Wendell.'"

★ ★ ★

Holmes has five children none named after A. Conan Doyle's fictional detective.

The real life Holmes studied criminology for a while in his youth.

MILITARY POLICE

When he got into the Army in World War II, he recalled, "they stuck me in the military police."

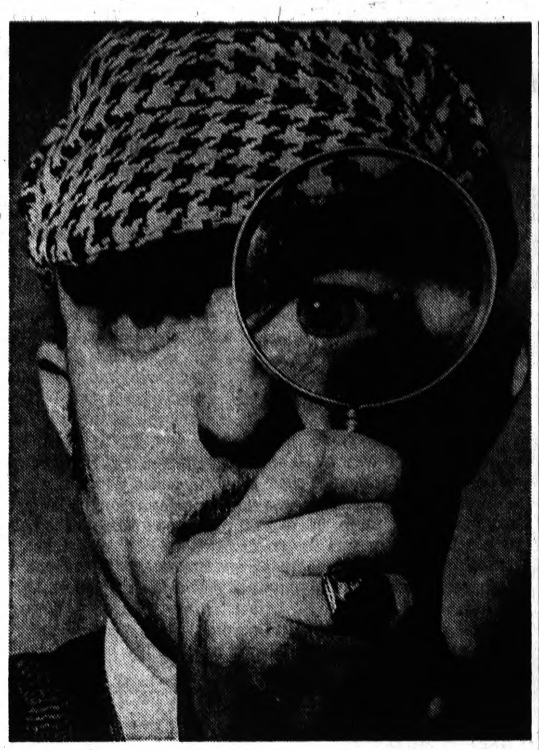

Once he was a teller in a bank in Olympia, and he traded incredible names at point-blank range.

★ ★ ★

A customer handed him a deposit slip, and said: "That's my name—Daniel Boone."

"I'm Sherlock Holmes," Holmes replied.

"It kind of shook him," he said.

AP Wirephoto

THIS CHARACTER IS FOR REAL — There is nothing fictitious about this Sherlock Holmes. He works in the Washington State Auditor's Office, and his name is really Sherlock Holmes. Holmes, 48, is attending the International Security Conference in Chicago and is causing quite a stir with his resemblance to the master detective created by A. Conan Doyle.

French Vets' Tomb Called Traffic Peril

PARIS (AP) — The tomb of France's unknown soldier, symbol of the 1.5 million Frenchmen killed in World War I, has been classified by a police official as a traffic hazard. "It must go," said Prefect of Police Maurice Grimaud. But the French government said it will not.

Grimaud is proposing that the tomb and its eternal flame be transferred from the base of the Arch of Triumph, to the Invalides, a monumental building on the Left Bank where Napoleon's remains are kept.

★ ★ ★

France's veterans organizations and old soldiers reacted with rage today and said the issue was of such importance that they would bring it before the presidential candidates.

Grimaud let his plan slip at a luncheon. He said wreath-laying ceremonies at the Arch of Triumph were forever fouling traffic.

★ ★ ★

Twelve streets flow into the immense circular area, bringing 200,000 cars a day into Paris most hair-raising, continuous traffic jam.

U.S. Cleric Seeks Radio Station in Israel

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — A Virginia clergyman is seeking to build a radio station in Israel to spread the gospel of Jesus Christ into the Soviet Union and the Arab nations.

The Rev. Marion G. Robertson—he prefers to be called Pat—went to Tel Aviv in March and discussed his proposal for such a station with an Israeli official in charge of issuing broadcast licenses.

★ ★ ★

This official, Robertson told an interviewer, "showed a good deal of interest because he realized such a station would help Israel economically and improve its relations with Russia and the Arabs," but said the final decision would be up to Prime Minister Golda Meir.

"I wrote to the prime minister's chief of staff in April and I am now awaiting his reply," Robertson said. "I am planning a trip to Israel in August and I will try then to see Mrs. Meir in person."

STARTED IN 1960

Robertson, 39, is president of the Christian Broadcasting Network Inc., which he founded in Portsmouth in 1960, when he bought a small television station that had gone off the air. He began broadcasting religious programs in October 1961.

"Income during the first year was $7,000 and has virtually doubled every year since," he said.

★ ★ ★

Robertson, who stands two inches over six feet, is an ordained Baptist minister. He is the son of Virginia's former U.S. Sen. A. Willis Robertson.

He was graduated from Washington and Lee University, served in Korea as a Marine officer, received a law degree from Yale University, tried big business briefly, entered New York Theological Seminary and received a bachelor of sacred theology degree in 1959.

COST $2 MILLION

The radio station he wants to build in Israel would cost about $2 million, Robertson said. "It would be one million watts on AM and a half-million watts on shortwave which would reach Russia, all the Arab nations, Africa and parts of Eastern Europe. We would broadcast some programs in Russian, some in Arabic and some in English.

"Assuming a green light from the Israeli government, I believe such a station would capture the imagination of Christians all across America and Europe. It would be one of the easiest fund-raising projects we have ever undertaken. We would start by broadcasting from our present stations."

In Portsmouth, Robertson said, "we have a 50,000-watt FM radio station, WXRI, which went on the air in 1962, and the nation's only religiously oriented television station, WYAH-TV.

"We have a five-station radio network across New York state—one in the Albany-Schenectady area and one each in Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo and Ithaca—and we have a radio station in Bogota, Colombia. The Bogota station, in response to its broadcasts, receives about 2,000 letters a month from people in Ecuador, Peru, Colombia, Venezuela, Panama, El Salvador and Costa Rica.

PERMIT IN ATLANTA

"We have a construction permit for a television station in Atlanta, Ga., which should be on the air by late fall or early winter."

Robertson said the Christian Broadcasting Network's income last year totaled $1,159,000, including a gift of the five stations in New York State, valued at $600,000.

★ ★ ★

Much income is received in response to annual telethons over WYAH-TV. Last November a weeklong telethon brought in $393,000 mostly in contributions of $5, $10 and $15. Many contributors pay their pledges in monthly installments.

"We receive about $10,000 a month from radio commercials and about $2,500 a month from TV commercials," Robertson said. "Our monthly operating budget is between $50,000 and $60,000. The network staff consists of about 40 full-time and 20 part-time employes."

INTERDENOMINATIONAL

The stations are operated on the interdenominational basis, and a number of religious faiths conduct broadcast programs, he explained. Programs include Bible lessons, sermons, music, Christian drama on film and children's activities. "And strong emphasis is placed on news," he said.

Robertson said "we are feeding tapes of children's programs to 40 commercial stations in British Columbia and Alberta, Canada."

★ ★ ★

Robertson's wife is the former Adelia Elmer of Columbus, Ohio, who holds a master's degree in nursing from Yale. They have four children.

Junior Editors Quiz on SCISSORS

QUESTION: Why were the first scissors made and when?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: If you will try cutting a piece of cloth with a knife blade, you will wonder how the medieval housewife made out when cutting cloth for clothes before the days of scissors. They probably complained, as we have suggested in our top picture.

When there is a strong need for something, some smart character will usually come up with an idea. In this case it was that of scissors, an invention supposed to have been made in the late 1200s.

At upper right is a pair of scissors used in 1639. Scissors work because each blade acts like a lever, which makes a small effort to produce a strong result, like the two men prying up weights with crowbars. To do this, the bars rest on a point called a fulcrum.

Each scissor blade is like a bar, but where is the fulcrum? It is the screw which holds them together. In addition, the blades are slightly bent, so there is always one point where they grind together and cut the cloth.

(You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

Zoo Hoping for Birth of Golden Eagle

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Officials at Topeka's Cage Park Zoo are awaiting the possible hatching of an American golden eagle.

Zoo director Garv K. Clarke said his research has failed to produce any previous report of the breeding of a golden eagle in a zoo.

★ ★ ★

"This doesn't mean it has never happened, but it certainly would be very rare," Clarke said.

★ ★ ★

"We aren't sure, of course, if the egg is fertile. If it is, there are a number of factors that could affect it. And of those that hatch, not all of the baby eagles—even in the wild—reach maturity," he said.

Clarke said the incubation period ends next Wednesday.

The first military flight was made at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., in 1910 in a Wright biplane.

Loser More Like Winner in Most Important Race

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: An article appeared in the local newspaper stating that girls between the ages of 16 and 24, who have never been married, were eligible to participate in a contest!

I applied, was accepted, and after several rehearsals was turned away because I had a year-old son.

I am working my way through college. I am a cheer leader, college news reporter, softball pitcher, volley ball captain, band student, basketball player, am on the debate team, take ballet lessons, and have a superior rating in singing.

I work after school, keep my own apartment, and take care of my child.

What more can I do to correct my mistake of having a baby out of wedlock? What must I do to gain a place in society? I do not have a bad reputation. Only a baby.

MARION W., LAWTON, OKLA.

DEAR MARION: You may not have won this "contest," but if your impressive list of activities is any index to your determination and ability, you look like a sure winner in the more important contests of life.

DEAR ABBY? The letter from the woman who was bitter because her ex-husband was marrying a "Vietnamese prostitute" and bringing her back to the states prompts this letter.

The expression "war is hell" is an understatement at best. I wonder how many American women would choose starvation over prostitution.

In observing many foreign wives who have come home with our GI's. the majority of them have become excellent wives and mothers. Their greatest problem is adjusting to the bigotry so predominant in American society.

It's not important what a person has been. It's what a person is — and is becoming that's important.

God's forgiveness is just as sure for the prostitute as it is for the man or woman who has indulged in premarital sex. Your compassion for the "Vietnamese prostitute" was noted and appreciated by this —

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday, in a space reserved for a paid "ad" the following item appeared in our local newspaper: "Mr. and Mrs. —— wish to publicly apologize for their belated thank you to all their friends and relatives for the very fine gifts they received for their wedding of February, 1968."

Would you please give me your interpretation of this item? Thank you.

CURIOUS IN N.Y.

DEAR CURIOUS: It is plainly a public "thank you" for unacknowledged wedding gifts. Nearly a year and a half late! It could have been placed there by the newlyweds themselves, or even by embarrassed parents. While it is certainly an unconventional thanks, it beats no thanks at all.

Conrad Work Is Topic

"The Heart of Darkness" by Joseph Conrad will be discussed at the Friday meeting of Waterford Great Books. Mrs. Karl B. Kutz will lead the discussion with Thomas Ellingson as author's advocate.

The 8 p.m. meeting in the CAI Building is open to any interested person.

Jaycette Unit to Get Charter

The newly-organized Auburn Heights Area Jaycee Auxiliary will receive its state charter Saturday at a dinner to be held at Sylvan Glen Country Club.

Robert C. Lewis, president of the Auburn Heights Area Jaycees, will welcome the 21 charter members.

Mrs. Al Formicola of Rochester, past president of the state auxiliary, will present the charter and address the new chapter.

★ ★ ★

Charter officers will be installed. They are Mesdames: James St. Louis, president; James A. Cavins Jr., vice president; Tom Lawson and David VanderLaan, secretaries and Mrs. Gene King, treasurer. Directors are Mrs. James Weaver and Mrs. Duane Carr.

Clarkston Area Jaycettes, the sponsoring auxiliary, will be guests at the dinner, with Mrs. Robert Tilley acting as mistress of ceremonies.

Dinner arrangements are in the hands of Mrs. Robert C. Lewis.

Questers is a national organization of people who are interested in and dedicated to the study of antiques and the preservation of historical sites. Michigan has 54 chapters and a membership of 1,000.

Bar Auxiliary's Yearly Donations Give Childrens Village Extras

Once again, the Oakland County Bar Association Auxiliary has given a donation to Oakland County Childrens Village. Each year, the Auxiliary sponsors a luncheon-fashion show and other benefits to raise money.

Officials at Childrens Village are free to use these funds at their discretion, but particularly for extras and emergencies not covered by public funds.

In the past, the money has been used to:

- Buy bedroom furniture for the girls in the honor room which is a room used as a reward for good behavior;
- Purchase material for the girls to make clothing;
- Buy a party dress for a girl in a junior high school choir so she could participate in special events;
- Buy a musical instrument for one of the girls who showed musical talent;
- Purchase a projector;
- Assist high school seniors who wish to go on class trips; the students earn half the fee.

Auxiliary officers for 1969-70 were elected at a recent meeting.

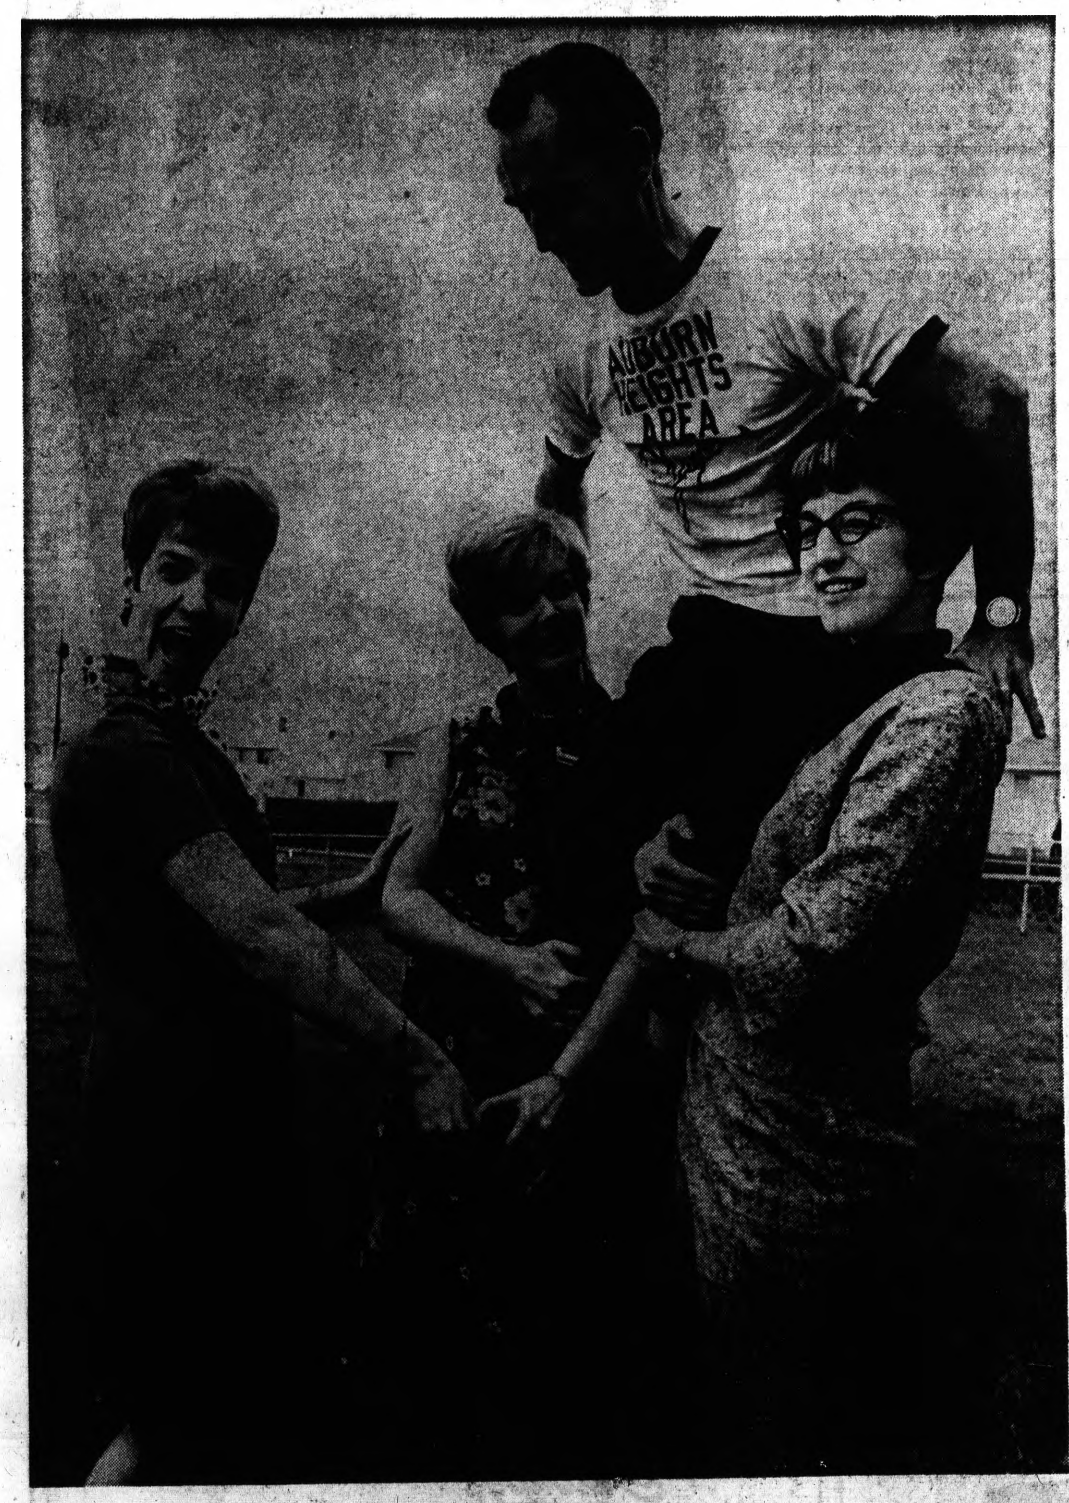

Mrs. John O'Brien, Berkley, is president with Mrs. Robert Parenti, Oxford, as president-elect. Mrs. William Lang, Troy, and Mrs. Donald Miller, Bloomfield Hills, are secretaries; Mrs. Joseph Kosek, Rochester, is treasurer.

Others elected are Mesdames: Jerome Mulligan, Thomas Raguso, Ivan Forbes, John Allen and Donald Adams. Delegates to Lawyers Wives of Michigan are Mrs. O'Brien, Mrs. Parenti, Mrs. Leonard Peres and Mrs. Gerald Bartush.

Fund-Raiser Friday

A benefit cup and saucer dessert and card party at First Federal Savings of Oakland is scheduled Friday at 7 p.m. by the Pontiac Women's Club. Proceeds will go to the nurses' scholarship fund, Girls Town and other projects.

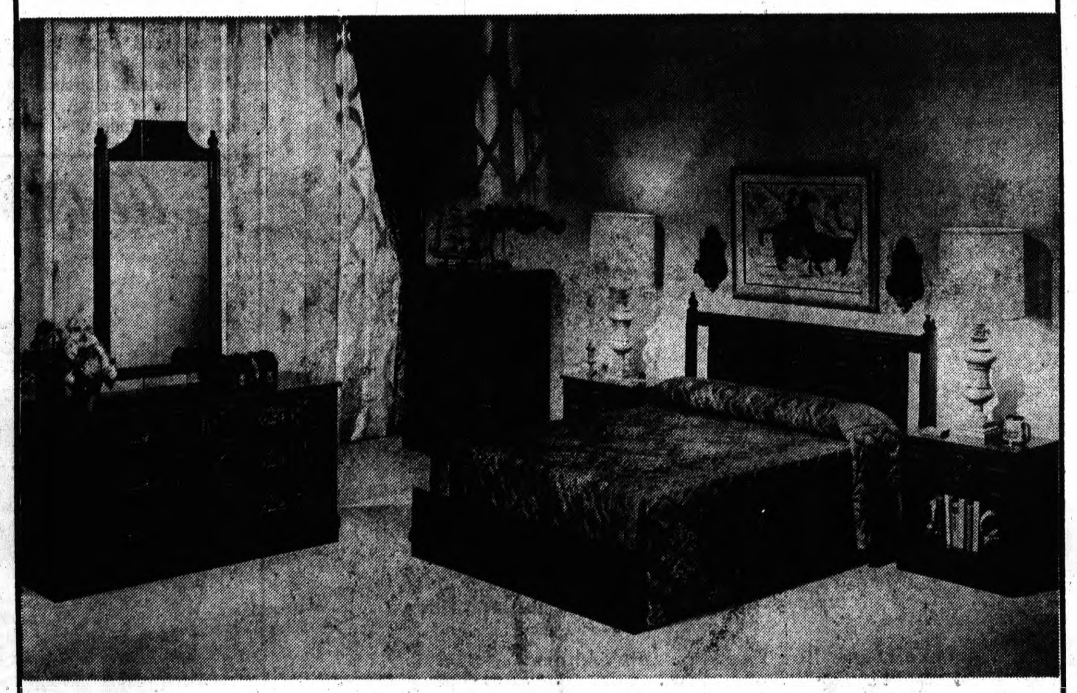

Mrs. Earl Hoskins is general chairman.

Alcoholics' Counselor Gives Grim Picture of Deterioration

By YOLANDA BENAVIDES

Where does the acute alcoholic go, once he's struck 'low bottom' and body and brain refuse to function?

Six feet under, if he's lucky, according to Dr. Frank R. Hollingsworth, chief counselor at Brighton Hospital for alcoholics, who spoke Wednesday

However, in addressing women at the second annual College Day for Women sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service, Hollingsworth did not completely rule out recovery as a second alternative.

★ ★ ★

Nonetheless, by the time an alcoholic has been seriously tipping the bottle for some 15 to 35 years, there isn't much left, physically or psychologically, to work with.

HE'S ALONE

Socially speaking, by the time an individual reaches 'low bottom,' the picture is a gloomy one as job, family and friends, are much like scattered puzzle parts.

On the other hand, says Hollingsworth, this is exactly what the alcoholic wants, because his preoccupation with liquor by this time preceeds all else.

★ ★ ★

In retracing the alcoholic's path, Hollingsworth noted that one must first of all rid his mind of the stereotyped small-town drunk or skid row bum.

"Only three per cent of the total number of alcoholics (about eight million) fit into this category while some 97 per cent are what we call the 'people next door' or the person, who by all outward appearances, lives a normal life," he explained.

ONE IN 12

As far as tracing the path of potential alcoholics, or one out of every 12 drinkers, Hollingsworth began with the prealcoholic plateau.

★ ★ ★

At this point, which covers some six months to five years, the potential alcoholic may indulge several nights a week with a before-dinner drink as a means of relaxing after a rough day at the office or perhaps a spat with the spouse.

Soon, however, that gnawing need to relieve one's self of everyday tensions, that urge to get out from under responsibility's clutch, can only be quieted with a daily drink.

★ ★ ★

In the second stage, the individual shows signs of an increased physical tolerance to alcohol. This, of course, varies according to individual and body make-up, says Hollingsworth.

However, where a few beers used to do the trick, the alcoholic must now double his intake in order to get the same result.

By the eighth consecutive year, the individual is much like the drug addict.

LAST CHANCE

At this point, the alcoholic is considered at the mid-way stretch, as his last opportunity to choose between total freedom or imprisonment by the bottle.

★ ★ ★

Should the individual accept the latter, his preoccupation with alcohol takes on a more serious note, he now indulges on the job, keeps a hidden supply close at hand, can't face the morning without a little nip. At the same time he starts a drastic withdrawal of all social contact.

★ ★ ★

It is also at the mid-way point that the family begins to dissolve, if it has not done so by now, says Hollingsworth.

★ ★ ★

Once the children, as well as the spouse realize there is no room for them in an alcoholic's life, they react by going their spearate ways.

Not to be overlooked is the physiological damage taking place during this time, which can affect a number of areas, including liver, heart, pancreas or stomach.

Will Install New Officers

Summer fashions by Alvin's will highlight a May 20 luncheon and meeting of the Chapel Hills Garden Club at noon in Sylvan Glen Inn.

Installation of new officers will also take place. Those involved include: Mrs. William Burgess, president; Mrs. Edward Retke and Mrs. Francis McGuire, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. John Carter, secretary and Mrs. W. Sheridan Hoskin, treasurer.

★ ★ ★

The group recently made a $300 donation to Pontiac State Hospital Children's Horticultural Therapy Department.

Litchey to Speak

Dr. Harry Litchey of the Michigan Osteopathic College will be the speaker at the 7:30 meeting today of the Oakland County Osteopathic Medical Assistants' Association. Introducing him before the audience in the Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, will be the hospital's assistant administrator, Jack Whitlow.

Aerosol Spray Is Soil Repellent

Homemakers now can cut down on cleaning by using a new easy-to-apply aerosol spray for clothing and household fabrics that locks out soils and stains before they happen.

★ ★ ★

The manufacturer says the spray creates an invisible soil-repellent barrier on clothes, draperies, curtains, and upholstery but does not affect the color, feel, or porosity of fabrics and will not disturb pleats or creases in apparel.

Need for Grooming Tips in School

By BETTY CANARY
NEA Writer

There are various reasons why students will be out soon looking for summer employment. Some want to get a head start on a future career and some have been pushed by parents. The main objective remains. They want to make some money.

★ ★ ★

It is common knowledge that having an A-average doesn't mean instant employment and I have asked personnel managers of businesses and employment agencies for tips on what turns them off when kids turn up at desks and counters.

A surprise was that not one person mentioned long hair. Only a few brought up the subject of miniskirts. The big complaint was uncleanliness. Dirty fingernails and soiled clothing headed the list.

A garage mechanic told me he could always find places for a "a couple of boys who want to learn." He also told me that while he did not expect them to show up wearing a suit and tie when applying for work, he did expect them to appear in a clean tee shirt and blue jeans that wouldn't stand alone.

★ ★ ★

One of the biggest gripes was, as usual, the young person's difficulty in filling out an application and I was asked if I thought the employer should spend his time teaching a student to answer simple questions. One employer swears a girl asked to borrow a telephone book last summer in order to look up her own address.

What I think is that if high schools give practice tests and take time to acquaint students with college entrance forms, the least they can do is offer an hour or two each spring for the purpose of helping students apply for jobs.

Some schools do offer help by showing sample application forms along with tips about grooming and everyday good manners. Unfortunately, most of these are available only to students taking commercial courses and other students never hear about them.

LIBRARY

For those who don't have this opportunity, then I ask them to believe, as I do, that The Public Library Is My Friend. There are books on the subject, with chapters devoted to everything from "Don't Cough in the Manager's Face," to "Jobs Your Mother Never Told you About." If a teen-ager hasn't yet learned to use the card file index, a librarian will be gald to help him.

There is one nationwide employment agency that gives free help to students. It lists, without charge, available jobs in the community and furnishes teens with a free booklet entitled "Finding Summer Employment," which gives the how, where, when and why of jobs for high school and college students.

★ ★ ★

The community where I live operated a special service lasf summer called Youth Employment Service (YES) where businesses listed their employment needs. The cost was borne by local businessmen and the organization was handled by the Chamber of Commerce.

Besides a pool of jobs, the student encountered a really interested director who was ready with job-hunting ideas, including going home and washing first and not wearing a sequined blouse or bathing suit and taking along the Social Security card and driver's license. The operation was labeled a success by both employers and employes.

Presoak Pan Aids Cleanup

To help alleviate meal-time clutter, try relocating seldom used items from an under-the-kitchen-sink cabinet and replace them with a pail or deep dishpan. Half fill this with hot soap or detergent suds before serving a meal, to function as a convenient hide-away that solves several problems.

★ ★ ★

As food is served, put each pan or skillet into the sudsy water for a pre-soak that makes later cleaning easier. This trick also makes it possible for children to help clear the table and rinse dishes before stacking them prior to washing.

Peales Tell Formula for Wedded Bliss

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — He is the minister who married Julie Nixon and David Eisenhower last December.

She is his bride of 38 years, who says she is convinced that "no job, no hobby, no activity on earth can compare with the drama and exhilaration of living with a man, loving him, doing your best to understand his infinitely complex mechanism and helping him to make it hum and sing and soar."

★ ★ ★

The minister is Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, who, with his wife, Ruth, has written a booklet aimed for all marrieds, and especially for those who in the weeks and months ahead will say "I do."

Dr. Peale, minister of Marble Collegiate Church where Julie and David were wed, said that after that ceremony he was deluged with inquiries about marital advice for young couples. So he and Mrs. Peale put together "general guidelines" based on their many years together and his experience in pre-marital counseling.

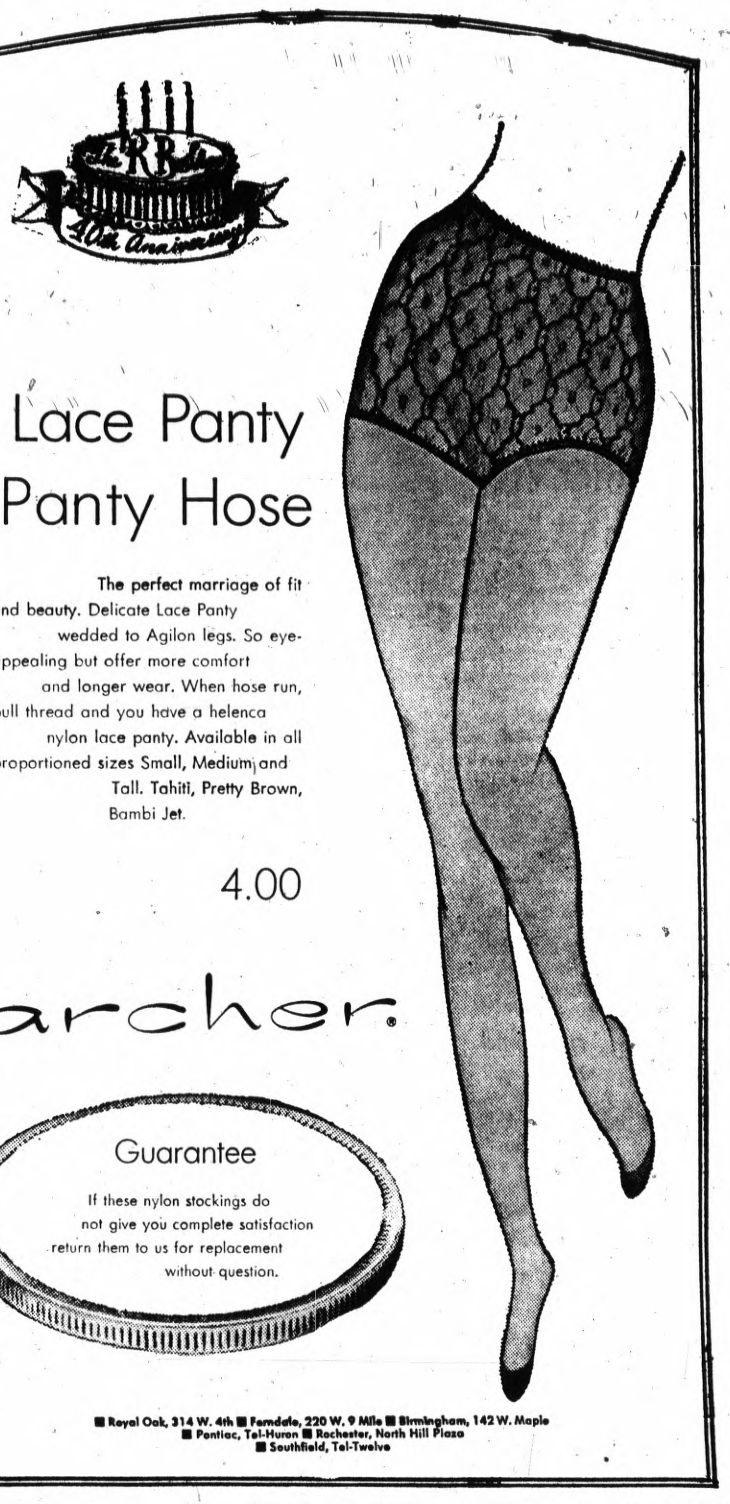

"The Secret of a Happy Marriage" is being mailed to 500,000 persons around the world, by the Foundation for Christian Living which Mrs. Peale set up nearly 30 years ago to distribute copies of her husband's sermons.

Starting with the observation that "marriage has always had its hazards," the minister then outlines some of his guidelines:

Love. "Not the sex-oriented love of Hollywood and stage and contemporary fiction, but love in depth, spiritually conditioned and mature."

Maturity. "Marriage is not for the infantile."

Appreciation. "William James called 'the desire to be appreciated' one of the strongest drives of human nature. Appreciation includes respect and esteem for another, thoughtful courtesy and politeness and a compliment now and then."

Follow Own Rules

DEAR POLLY — I was only 17 when my first baby was born and I suppose my relatives did not think I could care for my child myself. All day long, I was told by each and everyone how to care for him and every suggestion was different. My mother realized I was near tears much of the time and she told me: "Listen to what they say, agree with them and then do whatever YOU think is best."

This was the best piece of advice I ever received and I hope it helps other young mothers.—VICKI

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — I have a silk surah dress, brought from Arabia, that has a pure silver pattern and border. I have been told that it cannot be cleaned because of the silver. Can someone tell me how to clean this and if it could be washed and how? —ELSIE

★ ★ ★

DEAR ELSIE — As far as I can determine, a really expert cleaner usually will do this BUT there is danger of the pure silver threads breaking as they sometimes do from wear. Take it to the cleaner, point out the silver and doubtless it will be done at your own risk.—POLLY

MRS. MICHAEL GREENE

MRS. KEITH L. DEATON

Two Area Couples Speak Wedding Vows

Attired in a traditionally fashioned gown of Rochelle lace and taffeta, Rhonda Faye Galloway became the bride of Spec. 4 Michael Dale Greene, USA, Saturday.

★ ★ ★

Karen Bateman and James E. Greene Jr. attended the daughter of Mrs. Rema Galloway of Mark Street and Claude Galloway of Greenville, S.C., and the son of the senior James E. Greenes of Lexington Street.

The newlyweds were feted at the Crane Street home of the bridegroom's brother, James, following the civil ceremony.

Spec. 4 Greene and his bride will make their home in Kansas where he is stationed at Ft. Reilly.

Deaton - Hartung

A reception Saturday at Malta Temple feted newlyweds, the Keith Lee Deatons (nee Susan Carol Hartung).

The daughter of Mrs. Walter Fernald of Sterling Street and Ray I. Hartung of Sashabaw Road and the son of the Dewey Deatons of West Princeton Avenue were married that evening in St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

★ ★ ★

Attended by Mrs. James Emblen, the bride wore a lace and taffeta ensemble. Her bouquet was comprised of white roses with lily of the valley.

Bridesmaids were Edith Hartung, Terrie Lamberson, Mrs. James Crawford and Patricia Deaton with Terrie Naugle as flower girl.

Craig Deaton was best man with Chris Giles, Arthur Green, James Crawford and Joseph Deaton as ushers. Ring bearer was Donald Fernald.

The newlyweds are honeymorning at Niagara Falls.

May Breakfast for Garden Club

The annual May breakfast of the Better Home and Garden Club took place today at 9:30 a.m. in Bethany Baptist Church.

Wayne Benniston of the Michigan Department of Conservation will speak on water pollution. The exibit was "woodland wildflowers."

In charge of arrangements were Violet Crawford and Mesdames: John Armstong, William Maxfield and Alfred Rothweiler.

Students to Play

An organ, piano recital is slated Saturday by students of Loren Meyers. The affair, which is open to the public, will be held at the Smiley Brothers recital hall on North Saginaw Street beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Kenneth Blinns Exchange Vows

Waterford Trinity Methodist Church was the setting Saturday for vows uniting Patricia Lou Mattingly and Kenneth Richard Blinn.

For the afternoon rite, the bride chose a gown of peau de soie and Belgium lace. A cascading arrangement of white carnations and lily of the valley comprised her bouquet.

Jo Anne Mattingly was maid of honor for her sister with Kay F. Brooks and Mrs. Daniel Moriarty as bridesmaids.

Ronald E. Blinn was best man with William L. Blinn and Joseph B. Hought as ushers.

★ ★ ★

The daughter of the Harold E. Mattinglys of Mae Street and the son of the Stanley Blinns of Rochester, Pa., were feted at First Federal Savings of Oakland.

They will make their home in Beaver Falls, Pa.

Integration Plan for New Lincoln OK'd

A proposal to help integrate the new Lincoln Elementary School, which is in a predominantly white neighborhood near Lincoln Junior High, was adopted by the Pontiac Board of Education last night.

About 100 Negro pupils from Wilson Elementary will be selected from applications on a first-come-first-serve basis and bused to Lincoln Elementary, beginning next fall when the new school opens.

According to Assistant Supt. William Lacy, Wilson pupils will be selected because parents in the Wilson attendance area have expressed considerable interest in being included in the planned Human Resource Center (HRC), which is expected to be open in September.

"Since a determination of how many Wilson pupils will be included in the HRC has not been made, and since the organization for instruction at the Lincoln Elementary School will be similar to that of the center, it seems reasonable to extend this opportunity to Wilson pupils," Lacy said.

The election by parents to send their children to the new school will be entirely voluntary and informational letters and applications will be sent to all parents of Wilson Negro children.

★ ★ ★

A general discussion meeting for interested Wilson parents has been set for 10 a.m. May 24 at Wilson School.

★ ★ ★

The original plan for this specified that students to be bused to the new school would be chosen first from the area south of South Boulevard, and east of Woodward. When the question was raised at an earlier board meeting as to the racial makeup of that area, administrators were directed to census the area.

★ ★ ★

The study showed that only 44 elementary pupils lived in this area, and only 16 of them were black. The study also showed that the black pupils in this area attending Wilson School only numbered eight, and so the plan was changed by eliminating priorities and allowing all Negro Wilson School pupils an equal opportunity to attend the new school.

BOUNDARIES REPORT

Proposed boundaries for the new Lincoln Elementary School also were reported on last night at the board meeting, but no action was asked.

The outline of the attendance area was described as:

From the intersection of Kennett and Baldwin; south to Rundell; west on Rundell, taking both sides of it, to Pingree; north on Pingree, taking both sides of it, to Hudson; west on Hudson, taking both sides of it, to Summit; north on Summit, taking both sides of it to LeGrande; west on LeGrande, taking both sides of it, to Euclid, north on Euclid, taking both sides of it, to High; southwest on High, taking both sides of it, to Blaine; northwest on Blaine, taking both sides of it, to Kinney; northeast on Kinney, not taking any of it, to Stanley; continue on Kinney to Woodland; north on Woodland, taking both sides, to Dresden, east on Dresden, taking both sides to Hollywood; north on Hollywood, taking both sides to Kennett; southeast on Kennett, not taking any of it, to the intersection of Kennett and Baldwin.

The attendance area takes some of the school populations of Alcott, Bailey, Crofoot and Wisner Elementary schools.

5 EEO Items Get Approval

Proposals on Hiring, Transfer of Teachers

The Pontiac school board last night adopted five of eight proposals on the board agenda concerning recommendations in the Equality of Educational Opportunity (EEO) report.

All of the proposals concerned the hiring and transferring of teachers in the school district.

★ ★ ★

Those not adopted included a proposal concerning the integration of departments in the secondary schools.

The proposal reads that an effort needs to be made to fully integrate all departments, and that as vacancies occurred, this goal should be accomplished through fully qualified applicants. The board requested a rewording of the proposal.

UNASSIGNED BASIS

The EEO report also recommended that teachers be hired on an unassigned basis, that is, hired for the district, not for a specific school building.

The proposal in answer to this recommendation stated that because of the highly competitive field, it would be difficult to hire new teachers on this basis.

★ ★ ★

The teachers usually want to meet the principal of the school in which they would be teaching, and want to see the materials they would be using.

Action on this recommendation also was withheld until a later date.

Because members of the audience felt that candidates should be interviewed by an equal number of white and black interviewers, a proposal was withheld which said that if more than one interviewer is necessary, there will be equal black and white persons for this duty.

ACTED UPON

Those EEO recommendations acted on included: teachers be given copies of the employment contract and the teachers' handbook; building interviews be eliminated (all hiring is now done by central administrators); teachers are given a complete statement concerning transferring in the system; an assistant superintendent approve transfers rather than building principals; and when hiring teachers and administrators, an inquiry be made of a candidate's racial attitudes.

Whitmer, Board Hit on Tests, Report Item

Pontiac Schools Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer and the board of education found themselves under some fire last night on a number of issues when they reached the last item on the agenda entitled "Communications, Petitions and Delegations."

The first issue brought up was the use of standarized achievement and IQ (intelligence quotient) tests to determine a child's potential, to measure the success of school programs, and the superiority or inferiority of black children.

The criticism of the tests was brought forth by Mrs. Jackie Nichols, chairman of the Pontiac Community Action Board, in that group's behalf.

Mrs. Nichols pointed out the heavy emphasis on the standardized tests and asked that they be examined and eliminaed.

"The tests do not measure what American education proports to teach, for example ability to participate in a democratic society, or scientific ability. The tests are not relevant in the minds of those being tested," Mrs. Nichols said.

"They are culturally biased and culturally loaded, causing a disadvantage to black children," she said.

She suggested that the school district devise its own test to determine the childrens' abilities, based on their own goals for education, including the culture within the school district.

Several school board members readily agreed with Mrs. Nichols, but no action was taken and no promises were made on the part of the school board or administrators.

Another issue the audience reacted to with anger and indignation was the most recent "Question and Answers: A Capsule Report to the Community," issued Monday by Whitmer, fifth in a series of what is called a closer communication with the community.

The capsule reports are issued weekly and are mailed to about 600 parents in the school district as well as distributed in many schools for the students to take home to their parents.

The item criticized in the report is entitled: "Are there communication problems between the Negro community and the board-administration?"

It states that, "There are 'movement hustlers' who take advantage of crises in race relations to promote personal goals. Often they seek prominence, or a position of leadership, or a political office, or just to be where the excitement is."

"There are also extremists who promote their special points-of-view under the guise of the civil rights movement. They tend to capitalize on the emotions and fears of people during a crisis in race relations to gain support for their position at the extreme right or left."

Members of the audience said they felt that fingers were pointed at certain members of the black community and challenged Whitmer to identify those he was referring to in the report issued over his name.

Whitmer declined to make any identifications and said that there were also white extremists in the community causing communication problems.

Dr. Robert R. Turpin said he felt that the report had a negative attitude, and that this attitude was not helpful in communication with the community.

School board member Mrs. Elsie Mihalek said she could see nothing wrong with the report, and felt that Whitmer had explained everything very well.

"After seeing this (the capsule report), I think I would ask that I be permitted to see the report before it comes out because I realize how easy it is to misunderstand something. I would encourage that these reports be written in such words that they cannot possibly be misunderstood," said Board President William Anderson.

Other complaints brought up during the discussion concerned: hopes for free summer school for schoolchildren whose parents were on welfare; a feeling that Whitmer and the board claimed credit for many programs and plans adopted, when perhaps they might have been passed over had there not been voicing of the needs by members of the audiences at board meetings; and a belief that the capsule report was widely circulated in the white community but not in the black community.

June 5 Is Date of Decision on Complex

Where will Pontiac's proposed $19-million west-side high school be built? Will it even be built or will the two existing high schools be expanded to accommodate the students in the city?

The decision will be made June 5 by the board of education. The board has been reevaluating its Nov. 18, 1968, decision to build the complex on Pontiac State Hospital grounds and studying alternatives, such as enlarging Northern and Central high schools and remodeling Central.

★ ★ ★

The reevaluation period, announced by the board on March 3 and formally adopted March 20, came in the wake of a wave of dissatisfaction displayed in the community over the site decision.

Many in the community, especially in predominantly black sections, wanted the school to be built on a central city site, nearer the black community.

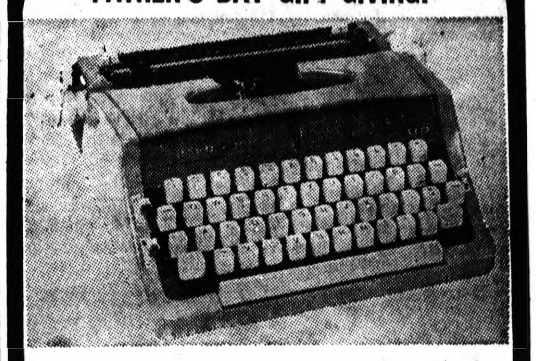

★ ★ ★

The results of the board's studies will be released sometime before the night of decision.

Last year Americans bought 5,800,000 color TV sets and 5,500,000 black and white sets. There are now color sets in one out of every three homes in the U.S.

Period of Landslide Danger Is Ahead for California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California, long known as "earthquake country," appears well on the way to earning the tag "landslide country" as well.

★ ★ ★

Evidence supporting this gloomy trend includes:

● A warning by the U.S. Geological Survey that torrential rains which caused spectacular and costly mud-floods early this year have created one of the worst landslide hazards in the state's history—a peril that will persist well into summer even if no more rain falls.

● A preduction by Dr. Richard H. Jahns, dean of the Stanford University school of earth sciences, that California weather is heading into a wet period that probably will last into mid-1970s and be accompanied by a corresponding increase in the number of landslides.

● Discovery by state survey teams that hundreds of older homes, including much of California's expensive view property, were built on peaceful-looking slopes and hilltops now known to be landslides waiting to happen.

● Insurance companies have found the risk so great they no longer write policies against mud-floods or landslides.

HOPE OFFERED

But scientists say new building codes, new building techniques and greater information about the reasons for slides offer hope of better days ahead.

Geologists say California's hills and mountains are especially vulnerable to slippage, for several reasons.

★ ★ ★

One is the underlying structure of the soil. California's crustal wrinkles are frequently made up of layers of clay shale, which expands when water gets into them. An excess of water acts almost like a lubricant, allowing the top layers to slide off the lower ones.

Another reason is the irregular rain pattern. Deluges follow months or even years of near-drought. In dry seasons the shale contracts, opening cracks through which heavy rain can seep down many feet, turning once-solid rock into a plastic goo.

ADDITIONAL WEIGHT

Sometimes just the additional weight of absorbed rainwater can make an entire hillside slip. If houses have been built on the hill, thier weight can increase the momentum. And if the base of the potential slide area has been cut away from a homesite, the owner of that home may wake up to find the hillside in his backyard—or even in his living room.

Another factor is the continual trembling of the earth's crust. California Institute of Technology seismologists register more than 300 earthquakes per year of magnitude 3 and above—strong enough to be felt. In some areas of southern California there are hundreds of daily microquakes—too weak to be felt but cumulatively enough to trigger rain-jellied shale into avalanching at times.

★ ★ ★

During dry spells, Los Angeles, with an average of 14 inches of rain annually, may go for years without a landslide. Then comes wet seasons such as this past winter, when as much as 70 inches fell in five week in some mountainous suburban areas. The result was a rash of mud floods and landslides blamed for more than a dozen deaths and upwards of $15 million damage.

California's earth slippages are of two major types: mudflows and landslides.

Mudflows involve only the upper mantle of surface soil. When saturated with water, the mantle slides off the underlying layers of rock in patches. Such "skin slides" are seldom more than a few yards across but can create much heartbreak when they wind up in some hill-dweller's patio or swimming pool,

A more devastating form of mud flow is the mud-flood. California's mud-floods differ from the floods of flat country in that they are literally walls of mud instead of water. They start when mountain streams overflow their banks and undercut the soil mantle on slopes, causing numerous "skin slides." When several skin slides occur along one stream, the result can be a wall of fast-flowing mud rushing down into foothill residential areas, carrying bridges, cars and even homes before it.

Landslides start much deeper, in the layers of rock far below the soil mantle, and affect much larger areas of ground. Some are instant avalanches. Others are creepers. One of the latter, 13 years ago in the Portuguese Bend area of Los Angeles' Palos Verdes Peninsula, carried more than 100 homes with it as it crept along at the rate of an inch a day. Subsequent studies showed the ground had slipped before and led to building codes requiring geological surveys prior to construction. The area still is slipping, at a slower rate, and most of the homes have long since been destroyed.

The danger of landslides doesn't end when the rain stops. The U.S. Geological Survey issued a warning in March that "although the destruction from floods and mudflows subsides when heavy rains cease, the danger from landslides will persist well into the summer in susceptible hilly and mountainous areas of California. Long after the rains stop, water slowly seeps down into the ground and the likelihood of landsliding increases. Additional rains or earthquakes could trigger widespread, disastrous slides during this critical period."

WINTER RAINS BLAMED

The statement said the winter rains "have created one of the greatest potentials for landsliding in the history of California."

A longer-term view was expressed by geologist Richard H. Jahns of Stanford, writing in Caltech's Engineering and Science magazine in March. Jahns compared rainfall figures and landslide activity back to 1800 and said: "At present we can anticipate a generally wet period that probably will last at least into the mid-70s. It may well include exceptional storms and ground-moving phenomena."

★ ★ ★

Harold Weber, member of a California Division of Mines and Geology team surveying potential slide areas, said in an interview the team has found hundreds of homes on precarious perches in Los Angeles, Orange, Ventura and San Diego counties.

Despite the obvious risks of living in the so-called "Slithering Heights" developments in California, there has been no rush by hill-dwellers to level ground.

STRATIFICATION

Dr. Thomas Lasswell, University of Southern California sociologist, traces the paradoxical popularity of hillside living to what he calls "an old principle of social stratification: high status and high ground go together."

And hill-dwellers have this consolation: Eventually things will get better.

★ ★ ★

Staff geologist Charles A. Yelverton, of the Los Angeles Department of Building and Safety, says new restrictions on grading have reduced landslides in new tracts to zero.

The new city and county regulations help protect new construction, but what about the hundreds, perhaps thousands, of homes built in risk areas prior to enactment of the new codes?

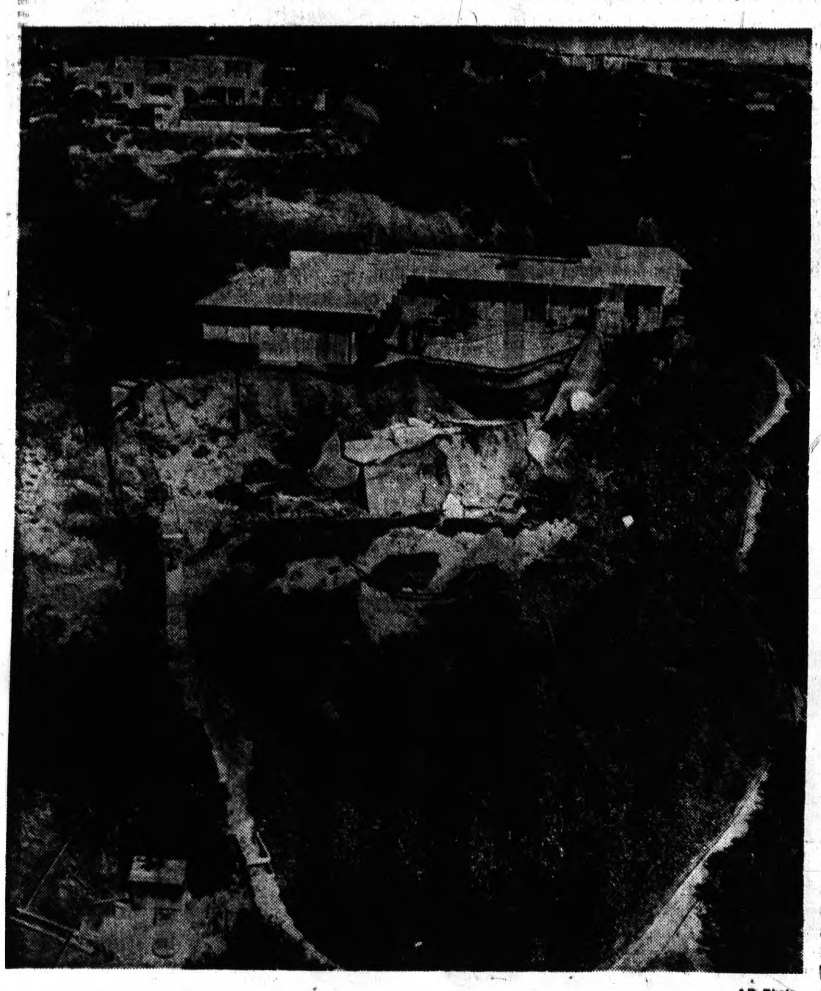

INJECTION OF LIME

Research now under way may eventually provide a way of stabilizing the uneasy land they rest on. Proposals range from injection of lime which will "cement" slipping layers of rock together, to "drying out" whole hillsides after a rain with massive shots of electric current.

Another tack has been taken by Dr. Bernard W. Pipkin, University of Southern California geologist, who believes the best prevention may lie in early detection.

Reasoning that the more water there is in a hillside the better it will conduct electricity, Pipkin is testing ways of measuring conductance across potential landslide areas.

In the meantime, nature's self-leveling processes of erosion seem certain to continue.

AP Photo

CLIFF-HANGERS — Recent torrential rains in California have resulted in a continuing succession of landslides and mudflows. The house in Bel-Air, Calif., shown here indicates how vulnerable the popular hillside sites can be.

A Delay Was Bruin in Teacher's Garage

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — Mrs. Jerry Wells, an Aztec schoolteacher, called the principal at her school Wednesday morning to tell him she would be late because of the bear in her garage.

Police captured the 2-year-old black bear about noon after it was shot with a nicotine tranquilizer.

★ ★ ★

The bear was loaded onto a trailer and taken to Zuni Mountain south of Gallup where it was released.

Big Alaskan Oil Discovery Is Doing Well by Fairbanks

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — This former gold-rush town, now a city of 30,000, is booming again—this time from an oil strike.

Atlantic-Richfield Co. announced in February 1967, that it and the Humble Oil & Refining Co. had struck oil at Prudhoe Bay, an isolated area hundreds of miles from the nearest highway.

★ ★ ★

Oil consultants said the find could run to 10 billion barrels of oil—one of the largest known accumulations in the world.

The oil derricks are located on Alaska's North Slope and near the Arctic Ocean, over 300 miles to the north.

14 RIGS DRILLING

At last count, at least 14 drilling rigs were operating on the North Slope, and the logistics problem is staggering.

Virtually all freight is airlifted to the sites, although some was trucked to the area for the first time last winter on a temporary road the state carved out of the frozen tundra.

★ ★ ★

Newcomers are overtaxing the city's hotels and causing a shortage in permanent housing.

Stern wheelers no longer paddle up Alaskan rivers to discharge miners and supplies here. Today, oil company executives whisk in and out in private jets.

IMPACT AT AIRPORT

The biggest impact of the black gold strike is felt at Fairbanks International Airport, where over 100 huge planes leased or owned by oil companies load thousands of tons of supplies for the North Slope drill sites.

The state-owned airport is expected to show a profit this year for the first time.

★ ★ ★

Airport manager John Garland says the number of passengers using the facility this year will total 350,000, a 100,000 increase over last year.

He says the amount of freight handled will increase to about 60,000 tons from one-third that amount in 1968.

NO LULL AT HOTELS

Fairbanks' dozen major hotels and motels, accustomed to a lull during the cold winter months, have been operating at near capacity since last autumn. The room shortage was so acute at times that some businessmen had to go as far as Anchorage to sleep, then commute each day the 350 miles between the state's two largest cities.

Al Parrish, hotel manager and a vice president of the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce, says the shortage of permanent housing is critical.

Rep. Howard Pollock, R-Alaska, told a group of businessmen recently that up to 16,000 persons may be added to the population in the next two or three years.

Part of the influex will be workers needed to build an 800-mile, $900-million pipeline that will carry oil from the North Slope to a Gulf of Alaska port via Fairbanks. It is due to be finished in 1972.

★ ★ ★

Adding to the boom was the announcement earlier this month that a refinery producing up to 10,000 barrels a day will be built near here by 1972.

For many years, Fairbanks depended on nearby military installations for its largest single source of revenue. It has little industry.

AP Wirephoto

NEW BOOM, OLD BOOM — Crowded conditions at Fairbanks International Airport (top) are a result of a large oil discovery north of Fairbanks, Alaska, at Prudhoe Bay. At the turn of the century the town was booming, as indicated by the stern-wheelers which brought in supplies and would-be miners during the gold rush.

Choice of No. 2 Man Near

AFL-CIO Looks to Ex-Sailor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Lane Kirkland, a former sea captain with a reputation as an intellectual, is expected to be the new No. 2 man in the AFL-CIO, good position for eventually succeeding President George Meany.

Kirkland, 47, Meany's quietly powerful executive assistant for ten years, is reportedly the chief's choice for the $45,000-a-year job of secretary-treasurer of the 13.6 million-member labor federation.

★ ★ ★

"It's going to be Kirkland. It's already been decided by a straw vote. His election by the AFL-CIO executive council is only a formality," one source said before today's meeting of the council.

Kirkland would replace William F. Schnitzler, 65, who is retiring and never actively figured in bruising federation infighting.

Some informed sources say the 74-year-old Meany, only president in the federation's 14-year history, wants Kirkland to succeed him. Others say Meany will have little voice in the matter.

About Kirkland, an observer says, "I can think of no better guy, but whether he will have the base of power and the strength, I don't know." Another labor official puts in that Meany has not even considered stepping down. "I think he thinks of himself as living forever," he said.

★ ★ ★

Kirkland is a native of Camden, S.C., and a graduate of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy. "He is an intellectual in the tradition of the sea, when you use those long voyages for a good purpose, to read," a source says.

A ship captain in World War II, he was torpedoed by a German submarine off the North Carolina coast.

As Meany's executive assistant, Kirkland took up gin rummy because it is one of the boss's favorite games. He read a book about it. "Boy, is he intense," says a fellow player.

★ ★ ★

Kirkland is not talkative, often confining himself to one or two-word answers in conversation. This masks a nervous energy, a confidant says. "He is like Meany in his singleminded commitment to do whatever he has said he will do."

Kirkland is married and has five daughters, including a set of twins. He keeps his nautical hand in, sailing his sloop off the Maryland shore.

Apollo 10 Pathfinders Explain Why Trip Necessary

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. — For eight years, Americans have been conditioned to the idea that their astronauts one day will set foot on the moon. Now, three spacemen are ready to take the final preliminary step that could lead to a momentous landing in July.

On Sunday the last dress rehearsal will begin when the Apollo 10 crew blazes away from Cape Kennedy atop a mighty Saturn 5 rocket, streaking toward an orbit around the moon.

★ ★ ★

Flying the pathfinder mission will be three veterans of earlier space flights: Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford, 38, who will command Apollo 10, and Navy Cmdrs. John W. Young, 38, and Eugene A. Cernan, 35.

Their journey is a carefully charted stepping stone in the master plan to land men on the moon—a goal set by President John F. Kennedy in May 1961. It is an assignment considerably more difficult and dangerous than the trailblazing Apollo 8 lunar orbit trip last December.

TRICKY RENDEZVOUS

For the first time astronauts will test both Apollo spaceships in the lunar environment. These are the command ship and the lunar module, or LEM, the spidery vehicle successfully flown in earth orbit on Apollo 9 in March.

Halfway through their planned 61½-hour stint in moon orbit, Stafford and Cernan will climb into the LEM, detach it and descend to within 50,000 feet of the moon's surface—over the exact spot the Apollo 11 astronauts hope to land July 20.

★ ★ ★

Stafford and Cernan won't intentionally get any closer. Their LEM could land, but it is not equipped to get them off the moon as later LEMS will. Instead, they'll conduct a tricky rendezvous to rejoin Young in the mother ship 70 miles above the surface.

America is closing in on the moon at a time when Russia appears to have dropped out of the race in order to concentrate on orbiting the world's first operational space station. U.S. observers believe the linkup of the manned Soyuz 4 and 5 ships in January was a forerunner of a permanent laboratory that could be orbiting within two years, for both military and scientific purposes.

PLANS LAGGING

U.S. space station plans are lagging, and the first small test laboratories are not planned until 1972.

Apollo 10 will be a voyage of discovery.

"Apollo 10," Stafford explained, "is designed to tie together all the knots, to try to sort out all the unknowns and pave the way for a lunar landing mission—do everything exactly as on the landing mission except the final descent to the lunar surface.

★ ★ ★

At one time last year, Stafford, Young and Cernan had a chance to be the first Americans to attempt the landing. They originally were assigned the lunar module that now belongs to the Apollo 11 crew. Because of development problems with the LEM, the flight schedule was juggled and Apollo 10 wound up as a moon orbit flight.

IMPORTANT MISSION

"I'd be fooling if I said I wasn't disappointed at not making a landing," Cernan said. "If I didn't think our mission was necessary, I would have fought harder to make the first landing. But I feel strongly about the importance of our mission. It's a challenging one and a definite must before a landing can be made.

"I guess you could say there are a million reasons why our flight is essential," Cernan added, "other than the fact that it makes good test pilot sense. When you talk about going some place that is still as far out as the moon, with a vehicle like the LEM which you've only put in space a few short days, then you want to put it in its environment and operate it there."

★ ★ ★

Young, who will fly the command ship alone during the moon rendezvous, described the flight as "a sort of airborne surveying job," charting the landing area for Apollo 11 and learning exactly how the paths of spaceships vary in lunar orbit.

Christopher C. Kraft Jr., director of flight operations at the space agency's Manned Spacecraft Center, gave these two major reasons for flying Apollo 10 in moon orbit rather than skipping directly to a landing:

● "To set time lines on activities up to and preparing for the landing. We learned on the Apollo 9 LEM earth orbit flight that activities in space often take longer than expected. We want to know how long it takes the astronauts to do things, to check systems, to get ready to separate the LEM for the descent to the moon.

● "To better understand the navigation problem that exists around the moon. By shaping the Apollo 10 mission to be identical to a moon landing down to the point where you start powered descent, we'll be able to navigate exactly as we will when we go for a landing."

KNOWLEDGE IMPORTANT

Kraft said precise knowledge of a spaceship's altitude is important, but that present ground-based calculations might be as much as 4,500 feet off, although data obtained from tracking Apollo 8 around the moon shows the error might be less than 2,000 feet.

Apollo 8 circled the moon for 20 hours at an almost constant altitude of 70 miles.

★ ★ ★

"By flying the LEM at various altitudes on Apollo 10 we'll be able to predict the error with much greater accuracy and gain confidence that we'll be right when we go for the landing," Kraft explained.

He said Apollo 8 supported information from five unmanned lunar orbiter missions in which the satellites constantly shifted orbital paths and speeds because of irregularities in the moon's gravitational field.

CHANGES NOTED

Each time a satellite passed over one of five ringed maria, or dry seas, frequency changes in radio signals showed it dipped 15 to 30 feet and increased its 4,500-mile-an-hour speed by about one mile an hour. But other seas which are irregular and unringed had almost no effect on the vehicles.

In each of the ringed areas, scientists report there are large concentrations of material called mascons in the lunar crust. The makeup of these lumps is not known, but they could be nickel-iron meteorites which slammed into the moon with such force they are buried as deep as 30 miles. Some mascons are believed to be as big as 50 miles in diameter and could exert a gravitational pull on an orbiting ship.

★ ★ ★

"We as pilots aren't concerned with what causes the perturbations," stafford said. "We want to know how to compensate for them. We must be able to predict where the LEM will land two orbits in advance of the descent, and we don't know that accurately now. We hope to bring back that knowledge, so the Apollo 11 crew won't have to abort once it starts down toward the moon."

TRACKLESS VOID

After launching from Cape Kennedy, Apollo 10 will soar outward across a trackless quarter-million-mile void for 74 hours before darting behind the far side of the moon where the astronauts will fire their spaceship engine to blast themselves into orbit. A second firing will circularize their path 70 miles above the surface.

On the second day in orbit, Stafford and Cernan will crawl through a tunnel into the LEM, attached to the command ship nose. After verifying all systems, they'll separate the spindly legged vehicle and start their descent. The maneuver begins with a critical LEM engine firing behind the moon, out of range of earth stations.

★ ★ ★

The burn is to last 43 seconds, with Stafford throttling the engine at various thrust levels.

"If the overburn is as much as three seconds," Cernan said, "We'll make a crash-landing at about 5,000 feet per second as we go over the top of one of those craters. But we're confident we can make it."

The burn will place the LEM in an orbit that twice will take it about 50,000 feet above the site where two Apollo 11 astronauts hope to land. That's a relatively flat, though crater-pocked, plain in the Sea of Tranquillity near the craters Moltke and Sabine.

"We'll be zipping over the site at nine times the speed of sound and will be busy as one-armed paperhangers, observing, taking pictures, testing the lunar radar and reporting what we see in our own words," Cernan explained.

"We think from 50,000 feet we'll be able to easily pick out any craters or boulders that could get Apollo 11 in trouble," Stafford said. He added they should be able to spot objects 30 feet in diameter and thus find a good parking spot for the crew that follows.

★ ★ ★

After the second descent to the low point, they will start a complex rendezvous maneuver, chasing their command ship in exactly the same way the Apollo 11 LEM will do when it leaves the moon.

If something should go wrong with the Apollo 10 LEM, Young will be ready to maneuver the command ship on a rescue mission.

TEAMWORK ESSENTIAL

"This is the first time we've had these two vehicles separated and operating in the lunar environment," Young said. "We can expect little help from the ground, and therefore it's going to call for a lot of teamwork between the command and lunar modules. If they should fail to make one of their engine burns, or something else is amiss, I'll go after them."

The LEM is built to fly only in airless space and could not reenter earth's atmosphere, so Stafford and Cernan must return to Young in order to get home.

If all goes right, the two craft will link up after a separation of more than eight hours. Stafford and Cernan will reenter the command cabin and the LEM will be discarded in space.

After several more hours of landmark tracking, studying other potential landing spots and photography, the astronauts will trigger their engine to start the 53-hour homeward journey, aiming for a splash-down in the Pacific Ocean after an adventure lasting just over eight days.

If everyone is satisfied with the results, Apollo 11 will thunder away from Cape Kennedy July 16, propelling Neil A. Armstrong, Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Collins and Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin into space on the historic moon landing mission.

Guiding them will be the maps and photographs and knowledge of the bold explorers of Apollo 10.

Basic Civil Defense Program in U.S. Is in a State of Disarray

WASHINGTON (AP) — After two decades of planning and $1.6 billion in spending, the basic U.S. civil defense program is but a bare-bones string of fallout shelters.

If there were a nuclear attack today, millions of Americans would react by looking for one of these shelters. Finding one might be tough, though, because 2 out of every 5 don't have signs.

★ ★ ★

Those who did find a shelter would face 50-50 odds that it would be bare of civil defense provisions. Half the shelters have not been stocked with food and water.

There could be other difficulties, too. Managers have not been trained for many shelters. And, although it has financed 73 different shelter occupancy studies, the civil defense agency is yet to produce a handbook giving on-the-job guidance for the untrained.

STUDY ORDERED

Problems such as these, revealed by an Associated Press examination of the civil defense program, are due to come under scrutiny in a presidentially ordered study of the government's efforts to minimize American casualties in event of a nuclear war.

Six weeks ago, when President Nixon announced his decision to deploy an antiballistic missile system, he said he had instructed Gen. George Lincoln, director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, to make a fresh review of civil defense.

★ ★ ★

So far, the scope of that review has not been determined. "We hope it will be finished in six months to a year," said an OEP spokesman. "But you know how studies are."

When the ABM system was contemplated by the Johnson administration, its role was to defend cities. Nixon, however, proposed placing ABMs around offensive missile sites in lightly populated areas. He told the nation that the cities could not in any event be defended against nuclear attack.

LEFT OPEN

Nixon left open the question of what he will do about civil defense.

Opponents contend the program is a waste of time and money because nuclear war won't come — and if it did, would be so devastating that civil defense wouldn't make any appreciable difference.

★ ★ ★

Supporters argue that civil defense activities should be increased now—that the program is an inexpensive way of saving lives in event of enemy attack.

Civil defense officials say their program provides a base for stepped-up training and shelter development should world tensions increase.

LOWER BUDGET

They point to their budget which, unlike that of most other government agencies, has declined in recent years. It peaked at $295 million in 1962, then began a steady descent to a $60.4 million appropriation for the current year.

The 1962 surge in spending followed the 1961 Berlin crisis and coincided with the Kennedy administration's reorganization of the civil defense program. Since that reorganization, the program's emphasis has been on establishing the network of fallout shelters.

★ ★ ★

The shelters are not special structures. They are simply areas in existing buildings or other facilities, such as tunnels, which offer some protection against radioactive fallout. They are not designed to protect against the blast itself.

Civil Defense Director Joseph Romm says the present shelter program, although "far from complete," could save "up to 15 million lives . . . that would otherwise be lost if an attack were to occur today.

'WOULD BE DOUBLED'

"If the program approved for future years is not further delayed or deferred," he said, "this lifesaving capability would be doubled by 1975."

According to civil defense statistics, 195,000 shelters with 185 million spaces have been located. That's almost one space for every American. But only 115,00 facilities with 115.7 million spaces have been formally licensed. And only 110,000 shelters have been marked with the familiar yellow and black fallout signs.

★ ★ ★

In addition, only 95,000 of the 195,000 shelters have been stocked by civil defense with canned water, nutritional biscuits, and medical and sanitation kits. These would supply 55.8 million people for the 14 days Civil Defense says is a likely length of stay in a shelter. Those 95,000 facilities, however, accommodate 92.7 million people — who could split the supplies and get along for eight days.

These shelters are not distributed in the same proportion as the population. Thus, although about 92 per cent of the people supposedly would have a shelter space, it would not work out that way.

MORE THAN NEEDED

In Washington D.C., for example, there are nine times as many shelter spaces as residents. There are four times as many in Boston, three times as many in Pittsburgh and 10 times as many in Miami Beach.

Less densely populated areas don't fare as well. In Ohio's smaller cities and rural areas, for instance, the average is only one shelter space for every four people.

★ ★ ★

To overcome this maldistribution, the major chain of fallout shelters, each designed to accommodate 50 or more persons, is being augmented slightly by two other sets of shelter spaces.

One survey is hunting for spaces in groups of less than 50. The other is analyzing shelter capacities of family homes.

74 PCT. RESPONSE

Civil defense officials say 74 per cent of surveyed home owners responded to their questionnaire. The survey so far has turned up 496,00 houses acceptable as shelters and 8.1 million more which could be made acceptable with modest improvements. However, of the owners of the 8.1 million houses, only 153,000 less than 2 per cent have written for plans on how to upgrade their protection.

What would happen inside the shelters after an attack has been the subject of research for nearly a decade, including the 73 studies covering 22,000 man-days of volunteer shelter confinement.

★ ★ ★

Dr. J. O. Buchanan, Civil Defense's deputy assistant director for research, gives a flat "yes" when asked if the research shows that people could get by in a fallout shelter.

But living in a shelter is no simple task. For example, management of the facilities, most of which hold 3,000 or more persons, is fraught with problems.

Civil defense's "Shelter Management Textbook" stresses precrisis training, saying, "should war come, the shelter manager will represent . . . the key to survival for an important segemnt of the population.

'KEY TO SURVIVAL'

"The survival capability of any shelter can be increased dramatically by plans made and actions taken prior to shelter occupancy," adds the textbook used in teaching the 112,000 persons who, Civil Defense says, have taken the 16-hour shelter manager course.

★ ★ ★

Civil defense headquarters says it does not know how many buildings have a specific shelter manager assigned to them. It said such assignments are a local defense function.

The program's emphasis on precrisis training of shelter managers is questioned by researchers at the University of Georgia who, after a dozen government-financed studies, reported that "community shelter occupants are for the most part capable of self-management, without the benefit of trained management, having but a handbook as an organizational guide."

These researchers have attempted to develop such a handbook. It has gone through numerous revisions but is not yet ready for stocking in shelters.

Researchers say they have been unable to create in their tests the psychological environment that would exist in time of nuclear attack.

★ ★ ★

"We can't develop enough stress," says Buchanan. Added research project officer Fred Carr: "The volunteer knows no one is going to put him in a hazarduos situation with government money."

Nonetheless, one government-financed study told of how a man who had evolved into the shelter leader had to be coaxed out of the shelter after six days. He had become convinced he was actually being subjected to radiation and had taken to arming himself with a large screwdriver.

Although one malfunction knocked out power for one-sixth of the nation's population in the northeast blackout of November 1965, civil defense officials claim electrical power would remain available in most areas even in event of all-out nuclear attack.

★ ★ ★

Absence of electrical power could seriously strain shelter operations because, one document notes, "such items as illumination and communication equipment . . . are not included in the federal shelter-stocking program."

★ ★ ★

Woven through much of Civil Defense's justification of the present system is the assumption that hostilities would not break out suddenly — that there would be a buildup of tension. In the last major nuclear war scare — the Cuban missile crisis of 1962 — events developed within hours.

The Office of Civil Defense told senators last year that the "current emphasis includes developing systems for the orderly increase of civil defense readiness in periods of heightened international tensions and providing guidance to state and local governments on actions which may be taken during such a period."

AID TO STATES

But in the same statement, the agency argued against last-ditch national distribution of emergency information. This, it said, could "increase the crisis level at the very time the United States is working to resolve the emergency."

Although it is an arm of the Defense Department, civil defense in many cases depends on state and local units to carry out its recommendations. Nearly half of its current year budget consists of financial assistance to the states.

With the help of federal funds, many local areas are developing printed instructions to the populace on specifically what to do in event of nuclear attack. These are tailored to the local area and typically include a map of the town's shelter facilities with routes and boundaries showing who should go to which shelter.

The goal is to have 3,080 specially detailed plans. So far 165 have been printed.

WARNING SYSTEMS

Beyond its major shelter program, civil defense works on such matters as warning systems and protection of emergency broadcast facilities.

Civil defense personnel often aid in coping with natural disasters like floods, although Buchanan concedes, "Natural disasters are not good indicators of what will happen" in a nuclear attack.

★ ★ ★

Some elements of the civil defense program operate outside that agency. The Public Health Service, for example, oversees 2,500 packaged disaster hospitals worth $250 million.

★ ★ ★

Two-thirds of these units have not been rehabilitated since their purchase between 1953 and 1961. All of the drugs in them are now rated useless.

Mistrial Called; Jury Without Place to Sleep

BOSTON (AP) — Suffolk Superior Court Judge Henry M. Leen declared a mistrial in a murder case Wednesday when sleeping accommodations could not be found for jurors after they had deliberated until 3 a.m. without reaching a verdict.

Officials said hotels and motels in the Boston area were full, and the nearest sleeping accommodations for the 10 men and two women were in Fall River, 49 miles away.

★ ★ ★

The defendant, Edward E. Monroe, 35, of Boston, is charged with the shotgun slaying Nov. 10 of Jerry Baker, also of Boston. The trial had lasted six days. A new trial will now have to be held.

During the trial the Monroe jury slept in the courthouse. When it retired to deliberate, another murder jury took over the quarters.

WAITING FOR THE STORK(S) — In Europe the white stork is believed to be the deliverer of babies; but at Miami's Crandon Park Zoo, this white stork is doing the job herself. The expectant mother laid the five eggs in a crude nest on the ground. In about 20 days, the zoo stork family is due for an increase.

Viet Talks in Second Year; U.S. Cautiously Optimistic

PARIS (AP) — After a full year of Vietnam peace talks, the optimists are disappointed but not discouraged.

For American negotiators, the going has been tough. If there has been progress toward peace, it is agonizingly slow and undramatic. What has emerged since the talks began last May 13 is a realization of the enormous difficulty of the problems to be solved.

As the talks start their second year, allied diplomats, in the words of one of them, are "cautiously optimistic."

Since the United States and North Vietnam began "preliminary conversations" in Paris last spring, about 12,000 Americans have been killed. That is equal to the number of American dead during the two years of talks required to end the Korean war in 1953. In the same 12-month period since last May, close to 170,000 Vietnamese of both sides have perished.

The Vietnamese talks differ from those at Panmunjom which ended the Korean war. The task of the Paris negotiators is more than just ratification of a military cease-fire line. They must take into consideration vastly complex political questions.

The talks began on a note of hope after President Lyndon B. Johnson, on March 31 last year, restricted the bombing of North Vietnam. Hanoi then declared it would talk despite continuing U.S. attacks on the lower part of the North.

The hope receded with the development of deadlock in Paris. The Hanoi stand, as expressed by its chief delegate, Xuan Thuy, in his opening address, was this: "Since the United States unleashed the war of aggression, the United States must stop it. Since the United States has continually escalated the war, the United States must de-escalate it."

North Vietnam was at Paris, the Hanoi delegation stressed, for the primary purpose of determining when the United States would stop all bombing and acts of war against the North. The United States sought some sort of reciprocal gesture from Hanoi in return for a complete bombing halt. Hanoi rejected the idea of reciprocity. And on that snag, the talks came to a dead end.

After 28 weekly meetings spread over nearly six months, President Johnson ordered a complete halt to the bombing as of Nov. 1. Despite a Hanoi contention that the bombing halt was unconditional, the breakthrough was based upon a compromise worked out in secret negotiations. This conformed with President Johnson's San Antonio formula, pronounced in September 1967.

The stage was set for a new phase of the talks, enlargement to include the Saigon government and the National Liberation Front — NLF — the Vietcong's political directorate.

New optimism faded with Saigon's refusal to take part in "productive discussions" on the same basis as the NLF. A split had developed between the United States and the regime the Communists denounced as "U.S. puppet."

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu eventually agreed to let Ambassador Pham Dang Lam participate, but only if the NLF was denied the trappings of legitimacy.

Then began what one high U.S. official has called "the choreography of negotiations," dispute over forms and procedures springing from Saigon's reluctance to cede equal status to the Front.

Debate over the shape of the conference table was settled again by a compromise—and a convenient allied fiction that the NLF was only part of "the other side's delegation."

At last, on Jan. 25, the four delegations sat down at an enormous round table at the International Conference Center, to begin talking.

Meantime, Johnson had been replaced in the U.S. presidency by Richard M. Nixon, and Johnson's envoy, Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, had yielded his seat at the conference table to Henry Cabot Lodge.

To Xuan Thuy and the NLF's Tran Buu Kiem, Lodge has repeated during 16 weekly sessions what the United States has made the principal theme of its negotiating position —an appeal for mutual withdrawal of North Vietnamese and U.S. troops from the South.

Judge Halves Hunter's Fine

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — A federal judge decided the Navy was 50 per cent to blame for the fact that Adolphus L. Crochet came back from a hunting trip with too many dead ducks.

Crochet, a former Navy gunner from Sulphur, La., said he was gunning for his third legal duck of the day but killed the bag limit with that one shot.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Edwin F. Hunter remitted half of Crochet's $100 fine Tuesday with the comment: "It's the Navy's fault for making you such a good shot."

Israel Knows Value of Aiding Education

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.
Executive Director
National Urban League

There is a popular myth in this country that because we have to spend so much on defense, we can't afford new programs to end poverty and bring about a more equal society. I saw just how false such a myth is on my recent trip to Israel.

YOUNG

Here is a small country, and a relatively poor one, that has to spend a far greater portion of its national wealth on defense. Three wars in its 21 years and the constant harassment of hostile neighbors make the Israelis place a top priority on defense.

★ ★ ★

But while some Americans use defense costs as an excuse to avoid social expenditures, the Israelis do not. In fact, they spend proportionately more on education, housing and subsidies to individuals than we do.

I was tremendously impressed by the deep commitment of the top Israeli officials to develop that country's human resources. Nowhere is this more evident than in the field of education.

'MORE THAN EQUAL'

The Israelis see, as too few Americans do, that good schools and superior education can erase social inequalities. So they are taking special steps to insure that children from poorer families get special, "more than equal," schooling to compensate for their less favored backgrounds.

The way they are going about this has some lessons for us, too. Too often such compensatory education just becomes a political football here in America, with the real issues obscured by fights about busing or other schemes.

★ ★ ★

What the Israelis are doing is to quietly saturate schools in poor neighborhoods with special services. Students attending such schools start earlier, with compulsory kindergarten, and must stay in school longer, about two years more than children going to other schools.

They are introducing a longer school day, too, for poor neighborhoods. They are aware that shutting the schools at 3 p.m. as we do, only sends children back to homes that lack study facilities. So the kids stay in school and the teachers tutor them.

TEACHERS APPRECIATE ROLE

The teachers are, of course, paid extra for their extra time, and their union backs the program. Most teachers accept the fact that they play a key role in this developing society, and they welcome the chance to develop the talents of their students. They lack the "combat" mentality of too many American teachers in slum schools.

Offshore Oil Drilling Still Best Bet Despite Problems

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Offshore oil drilling is expensive, difficult and often dangerous, as recent events off the coasts of California and Louisiana emphasized. Why, then, does the industry continue to drill offshore despite the problems? Here is a look at the pitfalls and potentials of the offshore oil industry.)

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON, Tex. — "To pour oil on troubled waters originally meant to calm the water. Today, pouring oil on water won't calm anything; it will only cause trouble."

This statement by a special American Petroleum Institute task force recommending clean up procedures for comparatively minor oil spills took on dramatic meaning recently after disastrous leakages off the coasts of California and Louisiana.

These two events were quite different, but they focused national attention on one of the riskiest and most costly phases of the petroleum industry's search for new reserves to meet the spiraling domestic demand for petroleum products.

In 1967 and 1968 alone, the petroleum industry paid the federal government more than $2 billion just for the right to search for oil in unexplored areas off the continental shelf.

An over-all investment approaching $10 billion since the 1950s has led to domestic offshore production in excess of one million barrels a day. This output is expected to increase 15 per cent annually through 1975.

There were only four major offshore producing areas in the world in 1960. About 25 countries now have offshore production and explorations are under way in about 20 more. World output now exceeds four million barrels a day and is expected to reach 20 million a day within a decade.

Why such emphasis on offshore where one wildcat can cost $1 million or more as opposed to $68,000 for the average onshore well? And where there is the risk of a Santa Barbara Channel oil spill of 250,000 gallons, a seepage that continued for 12 days and caused millions of dollars in damage to a 25-mile strip along the resort-oriented California coast?

Repercussions from Santa Barbara to Washington included damage suits, stiffer drilling regulations, and a temporary shutdown of a hot drilling area that had brought the federal government $602 million on bonus lease payments only a year earlier.

Off the Louisiana coast, a barge broke loose March 17 and knocked off the control valves on a well that had just been completed. The well was capped within 48 hours, less than 10,000 gallons were spilled and favorable wind and tide carried the oil slick away from land.

A day or so later, Secretary of Interior Walter J. Hickel announced that new, hard rules for offshore drilling had been put into effect for the entire California coast. "They are the forerunner of stiffer regulations that will come up for the rest of the country's coastline," he said.

Why, then, the emphasis on offshore drilling?

"Despite the difficulties of accurate financial predicting, industry continues to go offshore because it must," said Thomas D. Barrow, a geologist and a senior vice president of the Humble Oil & Refining Co.

"This is where the potentially large reserves are to be found," he said.

Most domestic onshore prospects have been pretty thoroughly tested over the past 110 years. A plus production discovery has become a rarity and strikes with the barest of commercial value have become tougher to find.

Total world crude oil proved reserves now approximately 350 billion barrels, but geologists believe that offshore areas alone hold a potential for 700 billion more.

★ ★ ★

The best offshore prospects are believed to be submerged areas adjacent to plush onshore production. This led the domestic industry first to the Louisiana coast and, later, to the Santa Barbara Channel.

Oil men say the industry must expect and accept a low rate of return on the expensive offshore ventures because United States demand for petroleum products is expected to jump from 13 million barrels a day to 18 million or 20 million by 1980.

DEMAND GROWING

The long-range supply problem of the domestic industry is very simple. The United States holds only 8 per cent of the world's crude oil reserves but accounts for 25 per cent of all crude production and 34 per cent of total petroleum consumption. Petroleum and natural gas now supply about 75 per cent of the nation's energy and the Interior Department itself has estimated that total energy demand will increase 45 per cent by 1980.

"Demand for oil has risen 44 per cent the past 10 years while proved reserves have gone up only 15 per cent," said Michel T. Halbouty, past president of Petroleum Geologists.

★ ★ ★

"This makes the situation quite clear: we are not finding domestic reserves commensurate with the increase in demand."

Barrow said the high bonuses at federal offshore lease sales suggest that many companies see a long-term need to replace dwindling crude reserves even if present conditions indicate low or marginal return on investment.

TANTALIZING POSSIBILITY

There also is the tantalizing possibility, he said, of finding an offshore field with 100 million barrels of oil or more.

"There are very few places in the inland United States where we feel this can be done at any price," he said.

★ ★ ★

The Prudhoe Bay area of Alaska's Arctic Slope may prove to be an exception. Atlantic Richfield, in a joint venture with Humble, completed two Prudhoe discovery wells last year and some experts say the area's crude reserves potential may range from 5 to 10 billion barrels.

But, like offshore, exploring for oil on the Arctic Slope is expensive. The first well cost $3 million. Several task forces now are developing ways, costly though they may be, to get Prudhoe oil to both New York and California.

It will take time to prove the Prudhoe find, but some oil men say its potential could cause some companies eventually to cut back a bit on their expensive offshore operations.

Hurricane Hilda in 1964 gave graphic evidence of the risky nature of offshore operations. The storm destroyed 12 large platforms that held 45 producing wells as it churned toward the Louisiana coast. Subsurface tubing valves limited any spill, however, to only seven wells.

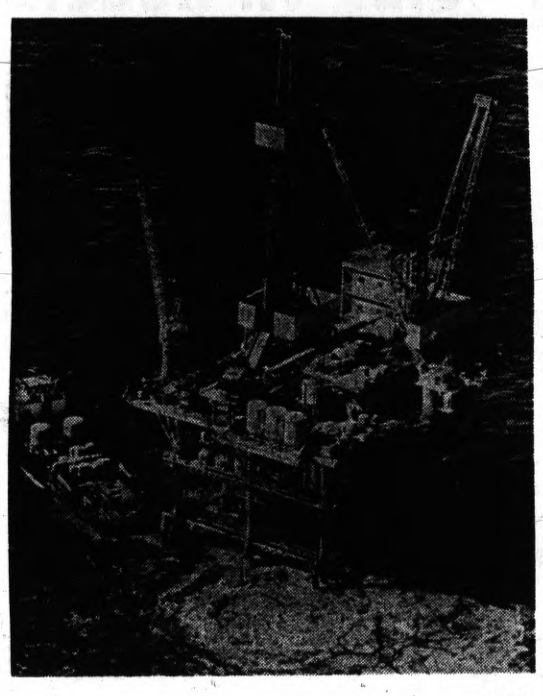

★ ★ ★

"Oil is expensive and we cannot afford to spill it and lose it," Barrow once said.

Some oil men were a bit irritated because industry spokesmen, at the time of the Santa Barbara spill, did not emphasize the industry's record for preventing major pollution problems.

Among them was Ralph S. O'Connor, president of Highland Resources Inc., a Houston firm with offshore interests.

"They could have pointed out that literally thousands of wells have been drilled offshore without a major pollution problem," O'Connor said.

OIL-TROUBLED WATERS — Oil surges to the surface around a drilling rig off the Santa Barbara coast. The oil, from a "blowout," was escaping through one of the faults which crisscross the area. It menaced the whole California coast in February.

Veep Was in Deep— Now It's New Agnew

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who once complained of being painted as "the village idiot" in the 1968 campaign, is parading a new image coast to coast.

If he was ever in President Nixon's doghouse—and aides say he wasn't—Agnew appears to be out now.

★ ★ ★

As he works to shed the political buffoon label, Agnew has just completed his first extended speaking tour since the inauguration. He has also gotten over a gun-shy period and is granting interviews.

"There is no strategy," insists an Agnew aide. "For the first month or so he did virtually nothing as far as interviews and things like that because he felt he had nothing to say. He was learning his job. We discussed image. But he felt all he could do was work like hell and things would work themselves out."

NO SHOWBOATING

Agnew himself said he saw "no point in my trying to showboat." He believes, he said in an interview, that "things have fallen into place" since his campaign which brought such lapses as the reference to "Polacks," calling a friend "a fat Jap," and saying "When you've seen one slum you've seen them all."

When it was announced Agnew would be given an office in the White House there was immediate speculation Nixon wanted to keep his vice president on short leash. Never had a vice president been given quarters in the executive mansion.

★ ★ ★

Agnew was given offices also in the Executive Office Building, across the driveway from the White House, and the traditional vice presidential office near the Senate chamber.

When Nixon and Agnew aides are asked if the vice president has a room in the executive doghouse, too, the denial is almost orchestrated.

NIXON A BOOSTER

"The president," says a Nixon aide, "has been one of his biggest boosters."

"Mr. Nixon," says an Agnew aide, "has been the vice president's strongest ally. . ."

★ ★ ★

One of the most difficult relationships to work out, as Hubert H. Humphrey learned, is between president and vice president. Agnew, like Humphrey, is not required to clear his speeches with the White House, aides said. But Agnew is, and Humphrey was, mindful of lightning from Olympus.

On anything touchy, Humphrey would discuss his speech with a Johnson adviser, such as Dean Rusk. Agnew, says an aide, talks it over with Nixon or a White House aide.

ADVANCE DISCUSSION

When Agnew disclosed the resumption of intelligence flights off North Korea, a Nixon aide related, the vice president discussed it in advance with White House special assistant Henry A. Kissinger.

Humphrey found that not having to clear speeches could be a disadvantage. If he ran afoul of the administration line he would get the cold shoulder. Instead of being invited in for a private chat with the president after a Cabinet meeting, as the custom when relations were warm, he would be shown the door when relations were cool.

★ ★ ★

There are few clues to how close Nixon and Agnew are.

"They have no regular meeting time, such as 10 a.m. every Wednesday," said a Nixon source. "But the vice president has ready access."

NOT IN FEAR

Agnew himself says he doesn't live in daily fear of stepping out of line.

During a recent mayors conference, Agnew acknowledged making deliberate provocative statements to stir up debate. He explained:

"They were not the President's positions. I have not cleared them with him. But I don't clear the nuts and bolts of the vice presidency with the President every day. If I did, I might just as well resign and move into some other area."

There is no evidence Agnew is operating under any more restraint than Humphrey did. Humphrey, says an aide, applied his restraints and the aide acknowledged he sometimes thought Humphrey was a bit too rigid in following them.

NIXON CONCEPT

The role Agnew is fulfilling, an associate said, "is Nixon's concept of the vice presidency from his experience eight years ago. He is giving the vice president every opportunity he can, maybe some opportuntiies he didn't have."

Agnew says he has participated in all the President's Cabinet and legislative meeitngs; put in time learning his job as presiding officer of the Senate; lobbied ("mildly," adds a Senate source) for the administration's antiballistic missile program in the Senate. And he expects to spearhead the Republican political campaign in 1970 toughened by the memory "I've withstood practically everything anybody could throw."

His most visible job, and the only one spelled out for the vice president in the Constitution, is presiding over the Senate. For that performance he has been winning high marks from both Republicans and Democrats.

"He's doing a great job as presiding officer," says a Democrat. "He's aware that he's the first vice president since (Henry) Wallace never to have served in the Senate, and he's doing a particularly thorough job.

LESS NOISE

"The thing that impresses me most is the comportment on the floor. There's been less conversation and noise with him in the chair. That isn't meant as criticism of Hubert Humphrey. He brought them up short, too, when he was in the chair. But Agnew is there more often."

Another observer noted, however, "He isn't spending as much time in the chair as he did at the beginning."

★ ★ ★

In his three months as vice president Agnew has made none of the campaign gaffs that almost magically transformed him from a rather obscure governor to a household word.

His only visible stumble was an embarrassing pratfall on the airport ice during the ceremony welcoming Nixon home from Europe. He ended up welcoming his boss with a bloody nose.

But he turned that into a laugh when he joked about it at a newsmen's banquet: "I don't know how many of you have reviewed troops with the President at an icy airport. But when he slips on the ice and says 'you fall' — you better fall."

Sitting in his airy office in the Executive Office Building, Agnew talked about the problem of image and whether his own had made it more difficult to settle into his job:

"I haven't had any trouble because things have worked out quite well since I've been here.

★ ★ ★

"This image thing—over a long period of time the projection of, you might say, certain disabilities or impediments, if they are repeated long enough, they have an erosive effect on the confidence of people you deal with—and usually, oddly enough, on those you know best . . . People who knew my record in Maryland came up to me and said, 'What are you doing? Have you really changed all your philosophy?' And then I would have to convince them that indeed that was not so.

FALLING INTO PLACE

"But things have fallen into place. I don't find there's any leftover feeling of disability to do the job."

The most important part of his job, Agnew said, comes from his "overview of the executive branch" developed because he attends all the Cabinet and legislative meetings.

"I'm a generalist in the truest sense of the word," says Agnew, repeating a favorite Nixon phrase. "So it's easy for me to sense when the whole machine is not aware of what its component parts are doing, and if that's dangerous then I feel like my most important function is to move in and try to get the thing running."

★ ★ ★

From the beginning vice presidents have chaffed under the built-in frustrations of the office. But not Agnew:

"I haven't had time to be frustrated. I really haven't. I just hope this thing will settle down into some kind of reasonable time-limit situation that will let me step off the treadmill once in a while."

Killers' Names Dropped

MIAMI (UPI) — The U.S. Weather Bureau is going to give hurricane historians a break and stop duplicating names of killer storms like Cleo, Betsy and Donna this hurricane season.

Hurricane specialist Neil Frank at the National Hurricane Center says the idea to set up a new roster of names when the storm season starts June 1 "is partly psychological and partly to eliminate confusion."

★ ★ ★

While the 1969 roster of names is not new, Frank noted none of them ever had become storm centers before.

The storms of the 1969 season will be named Anna, Blanche, Carol, Debbie, Eve, Francelia, Gerda, Holly, Inga, Jenny, Kara, Laurie, Martha, Netty, Orva, Peggy, Rhoda, Sadie, Tanya, Virgy and Wendy.

Whooping Crane Is Determined to Become a Mother

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — As if determined to become the mother of the world's 51st whooping crane, Rosie is sitting on her fourth egg laid in less than three weeks.

The stilt-legged crane laid the egg Monday night, and Zoo Director Louis DiSabato says he plans to wait for her to lay a fifth one before placing her latest contribution in the bird house incubator.

Rosie and her mate Crip are two of about 12 captive whooping cranes in various zoos, DiSabato said, adding that the birds number only 50 in the world.

Rosie laid her first egg April 25, but it somehow got broken. Her second and third are in incubators, with the first expected to hatch in about 18 days and the second in about 25.

Car Hits Bike; Boy in Hospital

A 12-year-old Pontiac boy is hospitalized in satisfactory condition after being struck by a car while he was riding his bicycle in the city about 6 p.m. yesterday.

Kevin Davis, 22 Stephens, is in Pontiac General Hospital with leg and face injuries, a hospital spokesman said.

★ ★ ★

The driver, Donald R. Rhue, 17, of 2817 Wisner, Waterford Township, told police the boy darted out in front of his car on East Moncalm at Baldwin.

Rhue told police that his car was going through the intersection on a green traffic light at about 10 miles per hour. No charges have been filed against him.

RNA Seeking Black Enclave Inside Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Plans for establishing independent governments in sections of Detroit and Cleveland were announced Wednesday by the Republic of New Africa, a black separatist organization.

Richard Henry, Midwest vice president for the group, said the new cities would be separate political enclaves belonging to the republic's new nation its supporters hope to form from five southern states.

★ ★ ★

Henry, known as Brother Imari among members of the organization, told newsmen that the secessionist move could start in Detroit within 10 days. The area marked out in the city consists of the 10 legislative districts now represented by Negroes.

★ ★ ★

In Cleveland, he said, a new city would be formed from the Hough, Glenville, Central Mount Pleasant, Gladstone and Garden Valley areas.

FIRST STEP

Henry said the first step would be to circulate petitions asking residents to support the calling of a plebiscite on whether to secede from the union. Following such plebiscites, independent cities would be established in all northern urban ghettoes, he added.

★ ★ ★

Complete self-government would follow Henry explained, with present white policemen and judges to be replaced by blacks. He said:

★ ★ ★

"In addition, tax money and foreign trade would come under black control, as would industry and building activities. This power would be used to create full employment, rebuild our cities with our own skills and labor, and assure a prosperous, progressive society for everyone."

Striking Bakers Return to Jobs

DETROIT (AP) — A strike which had shut the 23 Detroit-area shops of the Jewish Master Bakers' Association for five days was ended Wednesday night when striking bakers ratified a one-year contract.

The bakery shops reopened today. The new pact with Local 78 of the Bakery and Confectionary Workers provides a pay hike of $23.50 a week.

'Dead' Man Accused of Nonsupport

DETROIT (AP) —A question of whether an Independence Township man may have played dead for 10 years has become an issue in court hearings on charges he avoided $14,891 in child support payments to his former wife.

The hearings, which began Wednesday, are being held before Judge Victor J. Baum of Wayne County Circuit Court.

Emerson Harris, 42, 5995 Paramus, is accused by his former wife, Mrs. Tina Harris Morals, 32, of Taylor, of failing to pay support for their two daughters.

Tom Shelley, an attorney with the Friend of the Court, said Wednesday that Harris may have played dead for 10 years to avlid the payments.

Harris was divorced from his wife in 1959. His attorney said that Harris had been prohibited by his former wife shortly after their divorce from visiting their daughters and thought an agreement had been reached whereby he would not have to pay support if he did not visit the children.

Shelley said that Mrs. Morais, who married Pete Morais about eight years ago, was told several months after the divorce that Harris had died. He said she accidentally learned about two weeks ago that he was living in Clarkston with his second wife.

Two Men Robbed on Pontiac Street

Two men were robbed of $5, their wallets, car keys and shoes by two men in Pontiac Tuesday night, it was reported to city police yesterday afternoon.

Thomas Matera, 21, of Fenton and Clarence D. Turner, 21, of 14389 Hess, Holly, said the holdup men held a bolt-action 22-caliber rifle and chrome-plated two-shot derringer on them sonewhere on Judson Street.

★ ★ ★

They told police they found their shoes a short distance away.

Sylvan Lake Adopts Fiscal-Year Budget

The Sylvan Lake City Council last night adopted a $182,252 budget for fiscal 1969-70 — 10 per cent larger than the present budget.

However, the council also approved a 10 per cent cut in the millage rate, from 13.8 to 12.4 mills.

★ ★ ★

In addition, an ordinance regulating the placement of foliage near intersections, designed as a safety measure, was passed.

Poppy Sale Dates

American Legion Chief Pontiac Post 377 will lead post and auxiliary members in selling poppies May 22-24 instead of today through Saturday as was reported in yesterday's Pontiac Press.

The funds raised from the poppy sales are used for needy servicemen and women, hospitalized veterans and their families.

Waterford School Hopeful Withdraws

One of six candidates for the single four-year term at stake on the Waterford Township Board of Education in the June 9 election officially withdrew late yesterday.

John F. Gregor of 3272 Coventry, who filed his petitions on deadline day Monday, said he withdrew yesterday for personal reasons.

★ ★ ★

Vying for the job are incumbent Mrs. M. Virginia Ross, 48, of 6101 Adamson; Michael G. Patterson, 32, of 4768 Parview; David L. Fulkerson, 42, of 2945 Onagon; James H. Faxon, 31, of 26 Baycrest; and Mrs. Leland L. Hibbs, 36, of 2624 W. Walton.

An estimated $17.4 billion will go into home mortgages and $13.5 into other mortgages. During the 1960s, nonhome mortgages have grown more than twice as fast as long-term home loan.s

RAPID-TRANSIT DISCUSSION — More than 40 members of the Southeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission and other transportation officials visited GMC Truck and Coach Division yesterday for a firsthand inspection of its experimental rapid-transit coach, the RTX. The Wisconsin group is interested in the engineering and design innovations of the gas turbine powered RTX for possible use with an exclusive high-speed busway being considered for the Milwaukee area. Discussing the RTX are (from left) Donald Morin of the U.S. Department of Transportation; Martin J. Caserio, a vice president of General Motors and GMC Truck and Coach general manager; Edward R. Stokel, GMC coach sales manager; George C. Berteau, chairman of the Southeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission; and John L. Doyne, Milwaukee Counnty executive.

Computers, Children Find Alphabet Isn't as Simple as ABC

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It turns out that computers, like first graders, find it hard to learn their ABC's.

It's the alphabet itself that's to blame, according to Ed Campbell of the Radio Corporation of America.

★ ★ ★

Writing in RCA's magazine, Electronic Age, Campbell says something has to be done about our 26-letter alphabet now that computers are being taught to read and write and set type.

"For both the machine and child," says Campbell, "the alphabet has been tried and found wanting in quality, quantity, shape, and ease of readability."

CIRCA 1500 B.C.

Symbolic letter writing began with the Sumerians in Asia Minor around 1500 B.C. The Sumerian script had some 300 signs. Down the centuries our alphabet derived from the Sumerians by way of the Greek and Semitic alphabets.

The name of our letter system discloses its lineage, says Campbell. Aleph and beth are the first two letters of the Semitic alphabet, alpha and beta of the Greek.

★ ★ ★

What's wrong with our alphabet? For one thing, its 26 letters have to do duty for 44 basic sounds affecting the meaning of words. Take "a" — there are at least nine ways of pronouncing it: By way of partly illustrating this fact, Campbell offers this sentence:

★ ★ ★

"Imagine a barbarian trying to pronounce 'barbarian'."

LOOK-ALIKES

What gravels the computer (and also the designers of auto license tags) is that a lot of letters are look-likes.

★ ★ ★

How can you expect a computer, trying to learn reading and writing, to distinguish easily among such letters as i, j, f, l, or k and h, or o, p, q, especially when l and o also look like numerals?

★ ★ ★

Watch the car license tags in your neighborhood. You'll notice that the designers skip certain letters, and certain numerals, because they are hard to distinguish from other letters or numbers.

★ ★ ★

In some respects, of course, our alphabet does a fine job of expressing meaning. Consider these formations: A-frame, C-clamp, I-beam, O-ring, S-curve, T-square, V-neck.

RESEARCH UNDER WAY

Now, says Campbell, research is being done on how to redesign the alphabet to make it "more compatible with electronic machines as well as man."

If the alphabet were changed to make it more useful in today's world, there would be "more than a squiggle of difference between handwritten a's and o's," and letters would have closer and more identificable relation to sounds.

★ ★ ★

"Ideally," says Campbell, "you would be able simply to dictate into a machine and have it produce accurate typewritten or printed material."

★ ★ ★

"That," he concedes, "would be quite an accomplishment, indeed. But if the Sumerians could develop a new alphabet, who's to stop us?"

Grants to EMU

YPSILANTI (AP) — Eastern Michigan University has announced receipt of two federal grants totalling over $150,000. One grant, for $128,000, will be used to finance continuation of an early childhood fellowship program and the other, for $27,700, for study in the school's chemistry department.

Air Hostesses Bring Cloud 9

Sky's the Limit for Passenger Pampering

By HAL BOYLE

BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The nation's tired businessmen never had it so good.

They have a hard time keeping their feet on the ground because commercial airlines, vying to see which can pamper its passengers most, make life so much more comfortable up among the fleecy clouds.

"Air travel is turning my husband into a spoiled bum," said one embittered wife recently. "He expects me to give him the same attention he gets from a stewardess on an airplane, which means I should wait on him hand and foot and cater to his every whim.

"I am thinking of installing seat belts on our dining room chairs so he'll feel more at home."

LUXURY DENS

It is true that airlines are turning their craft into flying luxury dens so comfortable aloft that the weary businessman feels he's in another world. It is so comfortable that he rather hates to land.

Most airlines now have hostesses dressed as attractively as geisha girls. They bring the passenger freshly plumped pillows, individual slippers, furlike lap robes. They ply him with appetizers, champagne or hard booze, liqueurs, and freshly broiled steaks of a quality that wives never seem able to get from a butcher.

The traveler couldn't fare better if he had his own magic carpet. He journeys in a style even Nero never knew, and his business trip becomes a minor orgy, a bush league Saturnalia. He reaches his destination slightly sozzled, his stomach stuffed with goodies, his mind dazed by all the creature comforts he has received.

Sometimes it may take him a day or two to get it all out of his system. But all this loving attention has turned his head, and it's small wonder that he becomes a bit grumpy when his hausfrau slaps a plate of yesterday's hash on the table at dinnertime.

TREATED LIKE KING

Aloft he is treated like a king; at home he is treated like a mere husband.

The pioneers who lumbered westward in covered wagons were born 100 years too soon. And it may turn out that today's air passengers were born perhaps a decade too soon.

For if this passenger-pampering competition continues much more, we can imagine a trip aboard the gigantic planes of the future will be as follows:

Each passenger will be picked up at his home or office in a private ambulance where he can refresh himself with a short nap before enjoying the pleasures awaiting him.

RECLINING COUCHES

The plane will have two "name" bands, a dance floor, a swimming pool, and a ticker giving the latest stock market news. The seats will turn into reclining couches as soon as the plane is airborne.

Each passenger will have his own air-to-ground private telephone, his own movie screen, and five stewardesses.

The first will bring him the wines and foods of his choice. The second will give him a manicure and scratch his back on demand. The third will peel fruit for him. The fourth will be his dancing and gin rummy partner. The fifth will read him the love sonnets of Edna St. Vincent Millay in a low sweet voice.

Press Suffers in Pressure Cooker of S. Viet Politics

SAIGON (AP) — "There is no censorship of newspapers in South Vietnam," a government spokesman repeats each time another newspaper is muzzled.

In the past year, 19 daily newspapers have been suspended for various periods and five closed down. Two weeklies also were put out of business.

★ ★ ★

A new press law promised by the constitution has never been passed, and meanwhile the government acts pretty much as it deems fit. Only last month a publisher got a four-month jail term for publishing the text of a senator's letter critical of the foreign minister.

In the pressure cooker of Vietnamese politics, the press always has been subject to arbitrary treatment. Under the French, Japanese and the French again, no real free press existed. Later, President Ngo Dinh Diem dealt firmly with the press. In truth, Vietnam, North and South, has never known a real free press.

CYNICS ARGUE

Cynics argue that the sometimes irresponsible and opinionated four-page sheets of Saigon hardly deserve better treatment. Others reply that the country will never have a free press without starting—and hope for improvements.

Most Vietnamese papers are motley, handset operations. Trained newsmen are rare. The pay is poor. The government controls the radio and television, however, so the newspapers that do exist assume importance beyond what their standing might be under other circumstances.

★ ★ ★

There are now about 20 Vietnamese-language papers in Saigon, a city of three million. There are also seven in Chinese and three each in French and English.

When officials say "no censorship," they mean that no one sits with a blue pencil eliminating stories. Instead newspapers are required to submit proofs of pages before press time. Advice against publishing "objectional" material is given by an Information Ministry official.

U.S. CONCERNED

"We do not force them not to print the articles," says a ministry spokesman.

Sometimes the papers go ahead. Almost as frequently they are suspended or closed down.

★ ★ ★

The United States is concerned about pressure on the press and restricted civil liberties in South Vietnam. Secretary of State William P. Rogers recently said, however: "You have to keep in mind . . . their country is at war and they are under more pressures than we are here in the United States."

The newspaper situation often is obscured by jealousies, power struggles, corruption and the desire for personal promotion beyond any journalistic idealism in the Western sense.

UNDER FIRE

For months before he was eased out of office last December, Information Minister Ton That Thien—who was Ngo Dinh Diem's press chief for years—was under fire from President Nguyen Van Thieu and his associates, from wrangling publishers and from would-be publishers.

Orders for crackdowns on particular newspapers came frequently from Thieu himself, Thien says. Thien would comply, often reluctantly, he says, and then he would be blasted by people close to Thieu. At the same time, members of Parliament would take him to task, accusing Thien—a former publisher himself—of being grossly unfair to his old profession.

★ ★ ★

Thien was an example of how things work in Vietnam.

As publisher of the English-language Vietnam Guardian he saw his paper closed by then Premier Nguyen Cao Ky. Thien had been bitter about "Americanization" of the war and personally detested Ky. His door was open to foreign journalists looking for a Vietnamese viewpoint and he was articulate against the Ky government's policies.

CONVINCING DEFENSE

Made information minister by Thieu last May, he began defending the government convincingly—a task he welcomed because Thieu was then in the process of reducing Ky's authority.

Thien barred or suspended more than a dozen newspapers in a few months.

★ ★ ★

In November he suspended a paper for three months for giving more play to a statement by U.S. Defense Secretary Clark Clifford than to a government-inspired story giving Thieu's response.

★ ★ ★

Thien suspended another newspaper because of an article on written by a Western news agency, to which Thieu's wife objected.

ARTICLE 12

Newspapers get taken out of circulation for reasons lumped generally under Article 12 of the constitution. It says, "The state recognizes freedom of thought, speech, press and publishing as long as it does not harm personal honor, national security or good morals."

200,000 Get Aid

CHICAGO (AP)— Almost 200,000 persons in Michigan received food assistance from the U.S. Department of Agriculture during March, the department reported. The total included 70,070 persons in commodity distribution programs and 126,149 in food stamp programs .

An Information Ministry directive in February threatened a military trial for anyone publishing anything "favorable to communism or harmful to the nation."

★ ★ ★

Specific reasons given by the ministry for its actions vary widely and sometimes have a touch of whimsy. Some touch directly on Saigon's political struggle with communism—and officials say this is their main motivation.

The Communist technique for infiltrating the press has been simple and effective, says those who have dealt with it. A Communist newsman accepts a job at low salary and works hard, gaining the publisher's confidence.

TAKES OVER

Little by little he takes over the effective daily operation of the paper, and through subtle articles or frequently only headlines gets across the party message.

One Hanoi-trained newsman who worked for several years for two Saigon dailies finally was arrested and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Some politicians or pressure groups seek to become newspaper publishers simply to promote their own viewpoints. There is a backlog of 600 applications from people who know little or nothing about the profession, but simply want a personal propaganda sheet, says one official.

Serious Vietnamese newsmen complain about the government restrictions, but admit there is little they can do about them.

LIMITS UNKNOWN

"We would obviously prefer censorship over the present system," said one veteran newsman.

"Now, we never really know where we are. We have to guess our limits."

He said it was better in a sense under the Diem regime when offending stories were cut out of proofs.

★ ★ ★

Newspaper executives also say the business is going stagnant. Only a handful of journalism students enroll in schools. Capital investment for newspaper equipment is being held back until there is more security for continued publication.

There is no censorship on dispatches going out of Vietnam.

★ ★ ★

Correspondents accredited to the Allied Command agree to abide by certain ground rules, such as one forbidding the disclosure of a military operation until it is announced, but otherwise are free to report on anything happening in the country.

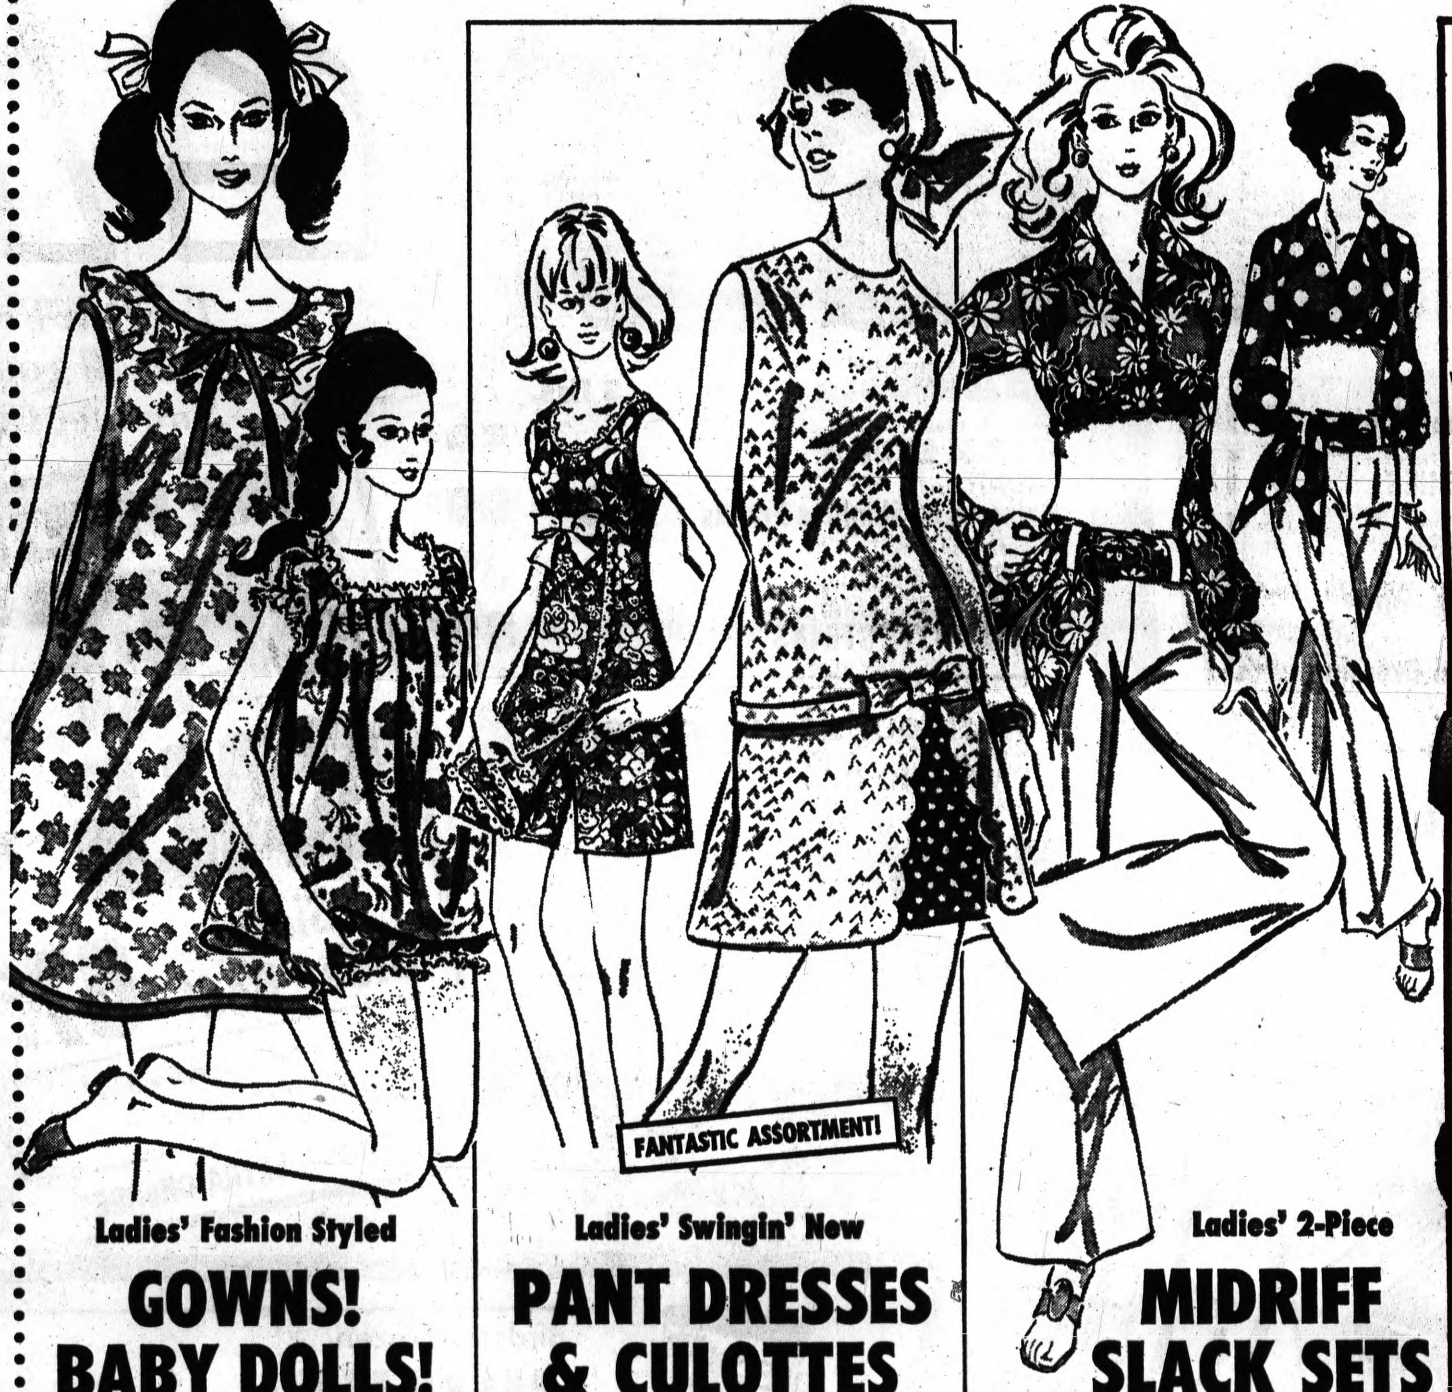

The price of men's and boys' clothing has risen presently to 120.8 per cent of the 1957-59 average, with a big jump of 5.7 per cent in just the last year.

Dr. Oaks Says:

Hernias Are Common

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is another in a weekly series of articles issued by the Oakland County Medical Society. Dr. Oaks is the collective voice of the society.)

Three million people in this country are walking around with an extraordinarily common condition, a hernia.

A hernia can occur any place in the human body. Simply stated, a hernia is a protrusion of an organ or part of the body from its normal anatomical enclosure.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps the easiest analogy would be to consider an ordinary automobile tire. There is an inner tube and an outer more firm enclosure of rubber.

Now, as long as that outer coating is firm and intact and the rubber is new, the inner tube — no matter how much pressure — will not blow out. It is contained in the enclosure.

However, if there is any defect in the rubber or a piece is cut out, the inner tube will protrude.

This is the hernia. (The actual term comes from a Greek word meaning protrusion.)

While it is essentialy true that a hernia can occur any place in the human body, the abdominal cavity is the commonest area for most people.

The abdominal cavity is lined with a sac called the peritoneum, which encloses all the intestines, organs, etc. of that cavity. Thus, if there is a weakness in the abdominal wall at any one point, the peritoneum (lining) will protrude through. Presto, a hernia.

CONSERVATIVE ESTIMATE

Statistics on hernias of one form or another are scattered and not entirely accurate. But, the three million walking wounded is conservative if anything.

Despite a lack of ideal statistics, however, medical science can show some relatively interesting evidence. For example, 80 per cent of all hernias are groin hernias. Also, hernias are an ailment more common in the male than the female (due to the fact that the male in embryonic life undergoes different changes than the female).

Hernias tend to run in families. Of the two major causes for a hernia, one is a defect during development. This type is congenital and manifests itself in later life, generally beyond the age of 40.

★ ★ ★

A person's occupation — once the defect is there — has nothing to do with the onset of a hernia. It is commonly held that a person who engages in heavy labor — lifting, shoving, pushing — are more prone to develop a hernia. This is not true. The office worker can develop a hernia just as easily.

CONTRIBUTING CAUSES

Often there are secondary or contributing causes. Actually, anything that increases the pressure in the abdominal cavity, such as obesity or pregnancy, sneezing, coughing, lifting, may actually cause the clinical appearance of a hernia, but the defect must be there primarily.

All hernias, everything else being equal, should be treated surgically. New procedures are being devised annually. But, despite the best efforts of surgeons, the recurrence rate following hernia repair is quite high.

For instance, in the ordinary groin hernia, a 15 per cent recurrence incidence is probably not too exaggerated.

Nevertheless, better techniques are being developed to improve the percentages.

OFF FOR CHINA — As his mother looks on, Michael Stafford, 22, of Camarillo, Calif., talks to newsmen prior to leaving on a "goodwill mission" to the Red Chinese mainland. He is a registered conscientious objector who believes the Vietnamese war "has served no purpose." Mrs. Patricia Stafford told reporters her other son, Army Spec. 4 Philip Stafford, asked to fight in Vietnam and was killed there a month ago.

Brother of GI Killed by Reds Will Visit China

CAMARILLO, Calif. (AP) — A month ago Army Spec. 4 Philip Stafford, 23, was killed by Communist gunfire on a helicopter mission in Vietnam.

Now his brother, Michael, 22, is off on a goodwill mission to Red China.

★ ★ ★

"You're a mother. You can't help but have mixed feelings," said their mother, Mrs. Patricia Stafford. "My other boy, he gave his life trying to fight them."

Michael left by plane Tuesday for Japan. There he plans to join an expedition to Shanghai led by Earle Reynolds, an American pacifist who in 1968 sailed a 50-foot ketch, the Phoenix, to North Vietnam with a ton of medical supplies.

★ ★ ★

The Shanghai trip will be made in the Phoenix, and Reynolds already has been joined by seven other Americans. The schedule calls for mooring the ketch in Shanghai harbor next month for the observance of the 20th anniversary of the Communist take-over of mainland China.

Mrs. Stafford said Michael felt that the goodwill mission could "mark a new beginning in U.S.-Chinese relations."

Student Unrest Is Taking Heavy Toll of College Presidents

By United Press International

Student unrest is taking a heavy toll of college presidents.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Buell G. Gallagher, president of City College of New York, announced last week he was quitting after weeks of student disruption that led to bloodshed and arson on his 20,000-student campus.

Gallagher was not the first to go.

Dr. Ray L. Heffner quit last week at Brown University, saying he did not "enjoy being a university president."

RESIGNED IN 1965

Chancellor Edward W. Strong of the University of California at Berkley resigned in 1965 under criticism of his handling of student protests. Two years later, the president of the California University system, Clark Kerr, was fired by the state board of regents in the wake of campus disorders.

Columbia University's Dr. Grayson Kirk resigned last year after student disruption. San Francisco State College lost two presidents — Drs. John Summerskill and Robert Smith — under similar circumstances.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Elvis Starr recently left the presidency of the University of Indiana, and Dr. John Champion quit as president of Florida State, at least partially as a result of student pressures.

The president of Swarthmore College in Pennsylvania, Dr. Courtney C. Smith, died of a heart attack while his campus was in the throes of student disorders last year.

250 CHANGES

In the past year, at least 250 changes have been made in the presidencies of America's approximately 2,500 colleges and universities. Right now, according to the American Association of Higher Education (AAHE), there are some 200 colleges with vacancies in the president's office. Seventy are at major universities.

Student activism caused some of this turnover, although no precise measurement is possible.

★ ★ ★

A college president's tenure once could be calculated in decades. Now, according to Ralph Cheesebrough, the AAHE's director of special projects, the average U.S. college president has been in office four years.

"We're experiencing a big turnover — much more than usual," said Russell I. Thackrey, executive director of the National Assocaition of Universities and Land Grant Colleges, an organization of 111 such schools in all 50 states.

"Student unrest is a factor," he said, but adds that it is only one of a variety of pressures that have made university administration infinitely more burdensome than it was in former years.

★ ★ ★

"Presidents feel the job takes out of them as much in five years as it used to in 10," he said.

★ ★ ★

In the opinion of Charles Dobbins, executive director of the American Council on Education, student activism "is a factor in many more resignations than those in which the president publicly says so." And, he says, "I think the effect of the unrest probably will be even more costly in terms of the willingness of new people to aspire to leadership. We know for a fact there are some very able faculty people who considered administration but have changed their minds."

AFFECTS HEALTH

These potential presidents are concerned about the effect of responsibilities on their health and families as well as their careers.

★ ★ ★

One result of the pressure and burden is the tendency of academicians to try administration for a while and then return to the ranks of teachers and researchers. Some university presidents, such as Howard Bowen of the University of Iowa, recently have done this. But it is more common among university vice presidents and deans, says Thackrey.

"It is not at all unusual for a man to go into administration for four or five years and then return to teaching," he said.

Other university administrators, such as Douglas Knight at Duke University, Vernon Alden at Ohio University, and Frank Ross of the University of Alabama, are forsaking the rigors of the president's office for lucrative positions in industry. Still others are finding good paying and potentially less burdening positions in government.

DIFFICULT TO FILL

Thackrey concedes it is increasingly more difficult to fill presidencies — and these jobs pay $20,000 to $50,000 a year, some more.

★ ★ ★

Be it student agitation or other factors he said, a survey of the colleges in the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges revealed last year that between 40 and 50 per cent of the presidents that were in office five years ago no longer were there.

★ ★ ★

Some concerned educators see the grinding pressure now on administrators leading to whole new concepts of university administration — possibly with a class of professional managers taking the place of the traditional scholar-administrator. Or, possibly, the faculty will assume a greater voice in the university and a comensurately greater responsibility for its management.

Pueblo Exec Quits Navy

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Lt. Edward Murphy Jr., executive officer of the Pueblo, said yesterday he had submitted his resignation from the Navy because of "baseless allegations" about his conduct aboard the ship.

Murphy said he mailed a letter to the secretary of the Navy Tuesday night in which he said, "I leave the Navy with regret because I know I am still fit to make a valuable contribution to the service."

★ ★ ★

"I bear no grudges or bitterness."

Murphy said in his letter, "I am especially proud of the way the United States government acted in the Pueblo affair, quietly negotiating to secure the release of our crew without kowtowing to the demands of the North Koreans."

CONFUSED BY ACTION

Murphy added, "But I admit to being confused about the Navy's action in regard to my career.

"I do not want to harbor a suspicion that this decision had any political overtones, and I hope the Navy will see fit to reassure me along these lines."

★ ★ ★

Murphy said he is "self-satisfied with my performance" aboard the Pueblo.

A board of inquiry had recommended the letter of admonition to Murphy because he had allegedly failed to organize the Pueblo's men in destroying the ship's classified material after it was captured by North Korea in January 1968.

Homebound Students Get Aid

Pontiac School District students with short-term (six to eight weeks) physical disabilities which prevent them from attending school may keep up with their classes through the schools' Homebound Teacher Program.

The homebound teacher in Pontiac takes up to 12 students at a time, visiting their homes twice a week for about 45 minutes each time.

The basic goal of the program is to assist the youngsters in keeping up with their classmates so that they can fit back into the classroom when they return to school, said William Wright, director of Pontiac Schools Special Education Department.

The homebound programs cover children in all grades from first through 12th, and students up to 25 years old enrolled in Pontiac Schools.

SPECIAL TRAINING.

The School Code of Michigan (1966) specifies that the teacher for such a program must have had special training to teach physically disabled or handicapped children.

The Pontiac homebound teacher, Mrs. Delores Weinfurther of Livonia, who graduated in January from Eastern Michigan University, has a special education degree to work with orthopedically handicapped children. She is also certified to teach youngsters in all grades.

Her job is to bring each student his books, assignments, and study materials from his teachers and to assist the youngsters with any problems he might have with his school work.

"I really enjoy this job. I can't really compare it with regular teaching since this is my first job, but I think it is a wonderful way of teaching — on a one-to-one basis," Mrs. Weinfurther said.

★ ★ ★

Many of the students may not be actually ill even if they are bed-bound. There are students with broken bones resulting from accidents, some recovering from burns, some with chronic diseases such as asthma or arthritis, and there are some recovering from surgery.

Pregnant schoolgirls are sometimes, but rarely, accepted into the homebound program. Usually they are referred to Oakland County Intermediate School District's teleclass program. This county program includes a network of students in the county who "attend" classes via telephone.

The homebound teacher does not visit hospitalized students or, ordinarily, students who will be out of school for more than a year, or will probably never be able to attend school. These youngsters are referred to the county teleclass program or to special education classes.

This program is offered at no charge to the parents. All of the funds for this project come from the special education budget, Wright said. A majority of special education funds are allocated by the state and county governments.

Physicians Told of Better Birth-Control Pill

BOSTON (AP) — A new birth control pill has been found effective and possibly safer than others, physicians at an international symposium at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital have been told.

Dr. Somers H. Sturgis of the hospital and Harvard Medical School said Tuesday the new pill may become the future oral contraceptive. He said it appears to be more effective than an intrauterine device and does not have some of the side effects associated with present pills.

Dr. Gerhard Boost, associate medical director of the Syntex Institute of Clinical Medicine, said the pill, made of chlormadinone acetate, has been tested for six years with 4,704 women around the world.

Doctors said there were 163 pregnancies in the group, 101 of them resulting from not taking the pills as prescribed, and 62 resulting despite taking the pill as directed.

Doctors said the pills should be taken daily and missing one can result in pregnancy.

★ ★ ★

They said a major advantage of the pill is that it apparently does not act through the pituitary gland and does not affect the master hormone center.

★ ★ ★

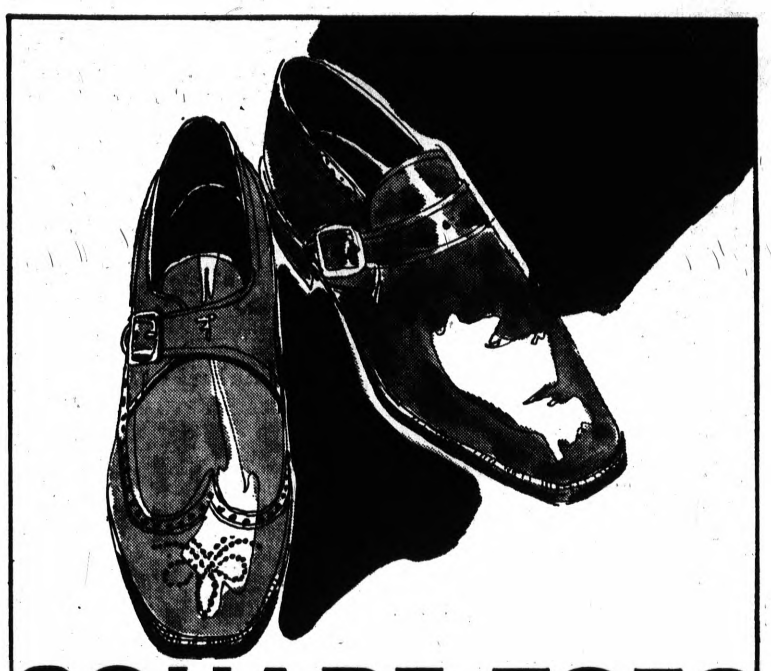

They said it also apparently has no effect on blood clotting.

Speakers said the pill does not contain the sex hormone estrogen but does have small amounts of progesten, an artificial sex hormone.

They said it does have some adverse side effects, including irregular bleeding and headaches.

★ ★ ★

The drug is not licensed in the United States and is available only for investigational use. Scientists consider the trial of the pill to be limited and say they do not have significant data yet on its long-term effects.

Men Who Fly Nixon Want to Keep Their Jobs Routine

WASHINGTON (AP)—The pilots who fly President Nixon rate the duty a cut-and-dried mission, and they want to keep it that way.

President Nixon can get a helicopter whirring onto the White House South lawn inside of 30 minutes. A big Boeing jet plane can be ready to speed him aloft within 90 minutes.

★ ★ ★

So far, no emergencies have summoned the presidential aircraft and helicopter commanders, who stand by on 24-hour call. And they rate Nixon more predictable in his travels than former President Johnson.

Lt. Col. Ralph D. Albertazzie of Morgantown, W. Va., a 45-year-old graying, rugged six-footer with 18,000 flying hours, was picked last December to be Nixon's pilot aboard Air Force One. He's the most experienced pilot ever to fly a president and is a veteran of 75 combat-support and 17 combat missions in Vietnam.

COPTER PILOT

The President's helicopter command pilot is 39-year-old Lt. Col. E. J. (Ed) Sample of Witt, Ill., a veteran of 21 years in the Marines, who flew gun-ships in Vietnam. A slender, 5 foot 9 inches tall, with close-cropped thinning hair, Sample went into the Marines at 18, right out of high school and made his career in helicopters, trained at Pensacola, Fla., and Corpus Christi, Tex.

Albertazzie has his headquarters and home at Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland with the 89th Military Airlift Wing, a special unit that provides air transport for the President, top officials and visiting foreign dignitaries.

★ ★ ★

There are three additional presidential pilots and a navigator under him, but Albertazzie notes "I do all the flying." So far, it has included a 7,000-mile mission to Europe for which Albertazzie did an advance trip, and hops to Nixon's vacation spots in Florida and California.

Sample commands Marine Helicopter Squadron One at Quantico, Va., with 22 helicopters and 47 pilots, whose primary mission is flying the President. He is the President's helicopter pilot, but four other command pilots can fly Nixon in Sample's absence and all have done so.

LONGEST FLIGHT

Sample was at the controls when Nixon took his longest helicopter flight so far—a 120-mile trip to attend the funeral of his uncle, Ernest Nixon, in State College, Pa.

When Nixon flies, his plane is known as Air Force One. When he uses a chopper, it's "Number One Helicopter."

★ ★ ★

The planes all get what Sample describes as "tender, loving care."

When it comes to flying, Albertazzie says presidential pilots do a little bit less of it than the average Air Force pilot, but work a little harder at proficiency. They do some practice landings and instrument approaches each week that they're not flying Nixon.

Whenever the first family is out of town, the helicopter pilots try to make practice landings at the White House and the President's Park on the Ellipse below. The pilots have to get a minimum of 20 hours flying a month to maintain proficiency and some of them practice instrument approaches at nearby Dulles, Andrews and National airports.

★ ★ ★

Sample, who flew as helicopter copilot for Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, had a 13-month tour in Vietnam, half of its flying, armed helicopters. He's also qualified to fly jets, but he's never even ridden in Air Force One.

★ ★ ★

When Air Force One flies, Albertazzie is in the left, command seat of the two-pilot aircraft. Fascinated by planes since he was a youngster back in Cassville, a small town near Morgantown, W.Va., Albertazzie has been in the Air Force since 1943 and was the first of its pilots to qualify to fly the Boeing 707 of the presidential fleet.

The plane Nixon is now using —No. 86970—was the first Boeing bought for the Air Force and Albertazzie recalls "I brought it home from the factory in 1959." He was flying copilot for President Dwight D. Eisenhower then as he did later for Kennedy.

RAN FLYING SCHOOL

Albertazzie won a football scholarship to West Virginia University, ran his own flying school, was a bomber instructor in World War II and returned to duty in the Korean war, ferrying troops and supplies across the Pacific for 3½ years. He won the Bronze Star and two Air Medals for his Vietnam service.

Before Nixon's European trip, Albertazzie flew the entire route in dress rehearsal to check on airports, navigational aides and service facilities to be sure everything went properly for the boss.

Presidential pilots are on call, too, for separate travels of Nixon's wife, Pat, and daughters Tricia and Julie. Asked why the first lady doesn't use commercial planes, her press secretary explained recently: "In this day and age when planes are being hijacked it's just not safe for a first lady to travel in a commercial plane."

The juniors abandoned plans for their prom this weekend, donated the decoration fund and canceled the annual dance.

The Gary English Memorial Fund now stands at $500. It will be given to the family for use as they see fit.

A memorial service is planned today in the school gymnasium.

Soil Scientists Ready Surveys

Makeup of Michigan Dirt Will Be Tested

EAST LANSING (AP) — Soil survey teams will trek through Michigan again this summer, toting all their tools to test the makeup of dirt.

The soil scientists — some from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, others from Michigan State University — will be continuing a survey of the state's 36.5 million acres of soil.

★ ★ ★

Their work, carried out since 1901 with the exception of a few war years, is aimed at classifying dirt, identifying each kind and showing its distribution on soil maps.

The surveys, experts say, help farmers, home and road builders, water users and everyone else who uses the soil or a product from it — including the federal government.

TEAM TRAINER

Dr. Eugene Whiteside, an MSU soil scientist who, with Dr. Ivan Schneider, trains members of the survey teams, spent several months in California during World War II. He was looking for good ground on which to grow rubber plants — the product of which was sorely needed for war-connected equipment.

"We knew the natural rubber plant — guayule — which grows wild in the southwest," Whiteside recounts. "It was just a matter of identifying areas of suitable soil" in areas close to manufacturing plants, he says.

Whiteside and colleagues did find such areas, but the guayule was planted in limited acreage only because at about the same time an artificial rubber program was developed, Whiteside says.

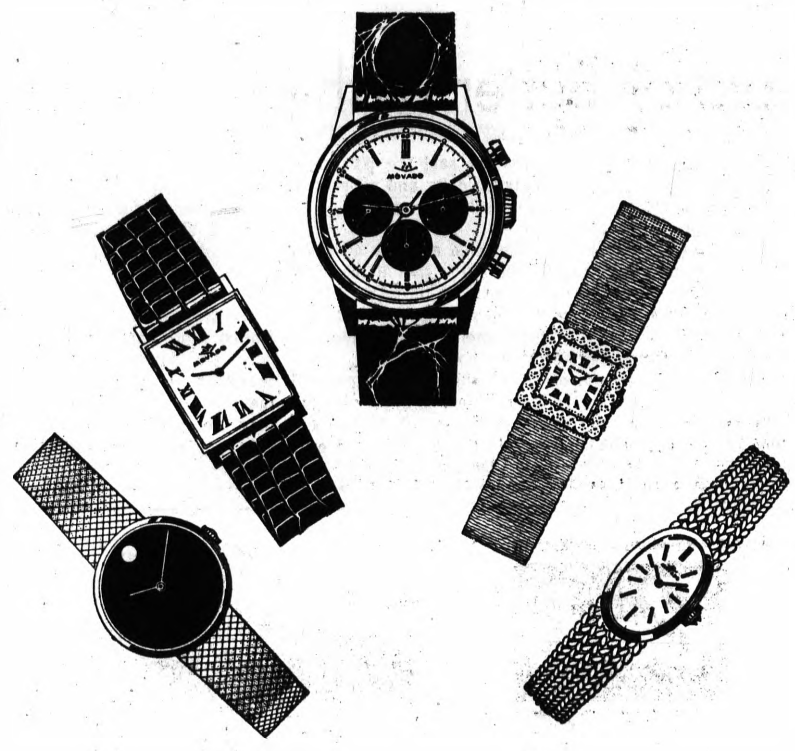

"Our work was pretty well under way before it was evident that the artificial program would be sufficient," he says.

Ordeal of Malignancy Treatment

Writer Describes Tumor Blitz

EDITOR'S NOTE — The writer, Jack Hewins, is an Associated Press staffer in Seattle. He has undergone a series of treatment for a skin tumor on his leg that proved malignant. Here he describes one such treatment, which he received at the Swedish Hospital Tumor Institute.)

By JACK HEWINS

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Stretched out here in the pressure tube as the pain slowly eases in my ears, I recall how all this began and curse myself for having been so flippant two years ago when I didn't know a melanoma from a muskmelon.

Just because of a mole on my leg that stayed too long and grew too large and angry, I am stuffed now in a clear plastic and metal cylinder two feet in diameter and seven feet long while oxygen hisses at me and the pressure builds.

★ ★ ★

"Some people don't mind it a bit," a technician had soothed me before closing the hinged metal cover on me for the first of my 12 "trips."

"A few are nauseated," she added. Well, that could be true. There's an airplane burp bag hanging right in front of my nose if I need it, which I don't.

TARGETS MARKED

I'm face down in a hyperbaric oxygen chamber with my elbows tucked in, my right toe on a small pillow for comfort and my left leg—where the tumor is—on a big pillow to hold it in position when the shooting starts.

★ ★ ★

The targets are marked with red skin dye, one on the back of the left calf, the other behind the left knee. The lines on the calf mark a healed scar where Dr. Harvey Bingham removed that nasty mole.

★ ★ ★

It had been with me a long time, that mole. Then it took a notion to grow and get in the way, bumping into desk legs and such. Contact made it angry and the mole got bigger and redder and bled a bit when the bumps or scrapes were vigorous.

Harvey was off in Guinea with the hospital ship Hope and I put off treatment for a couple of months until he returned.

WITCH DOCTORING

"All I want to know," I told him on the telephone, "is whether you learned from those witch doctors how to exorcise warts and moles."

★ ★ ★

Harvey, family physician and friend for a sum of years, allowed he would get rid of the evil growth even if he had to dance around a fire. Actually, a local anesthetic and a scalpel did the trick.

★ ★ ★

Back from the laboratory came the report: malignant.

This did not mean any malignancy lingered under the skin. The scar healed nicely and for two years there was no trouble. Then a tiny bump developed beneath the skin behind the left knee, about eight inches above the old scar. It grew to beechnut size with a hard core no bigger than a peanut.

GOING DOWN

Occasionally it hurt a little, so I took it back to Harvey and that's why I'm here in the Swedish Hospital Tumor Institute, bolted inside this plastic tube and feeling like I'm going down for the last time.

Almost literally I'm going down. The pressure will reach the equivalent of 11 fathoms under water, which sounds more impressive than a mere 66 feet.

★ ★ ★

Through the plastic I can see little Cami Greer, the student technician who locked me in. She adjusts the oxygen flow which is slowly bringing my tube to 30 pounds of inside pressure and she smiles reassuringly as I grimace with the pain of assaulted middle ears.

I chew my two sticks of gum madly, swallow, yawn and struggle to get a hand up to rub my throat. I sweat and I curse aloud, which may be the reason Cami disconnected the intercom—but I couldn't hear her objections, anyway; with these plugged and aching ears.

BATTLE STARTS

Down there, beneath the painted targets on my hide, the good ions are starting to fight the bad ions—or they damn well better be putting up a battle if this ordeal is going to pay off.

Pressurized oxygen is the first wave of attack on the tumor. Around here they call my bump a malignant melanoma and have tried to explain that it's named for melanin, a black pigment which protects the body against ultraviolet light by combining with the ions produced by radiation.

The oxygen is supposed to get in there and inactivate the melanin. Pressure speeds the process, forcing the gas into the cells. It should be giving the melanin fits right now because we're at 30 pounds and Cami has disconnected the oxygen.

Rany Burns, chief technician, comes in to help with the clumsy wheeled contraption encasing me. It was built by Vickers, the British airplane people, originally to treat carbon monoxide victims in ambulances. Awkwardly we trundle down a hall to the radiation room.

FAT CANNON

Here is our main artillery, a two-million-volt Van de Graff generator which looks like a fat cannon hanging nose down. The technicians wheel my chamber under that nose, maneuver a bit to line up the target, reconnect the oxygen, leave me alone and turn on the juice.

In three to five minutes they're back to switch targets and fire the second round at a range of 80 centimeters. On my back, I see none of it; I feel nothing.

★ ★ ★

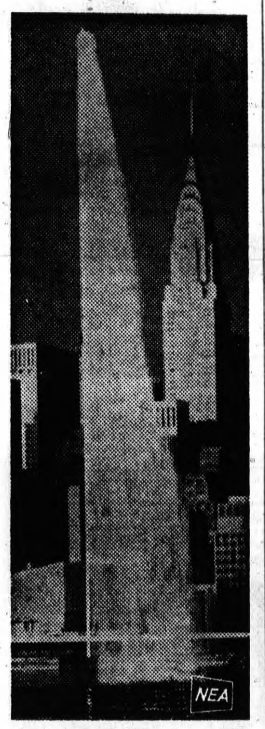

But according to the script the malignant cells are being destroyed by a bombardment of ions, unimpeded by melanin. If I am among the lucky one-fourth of the people treated, my tumor will surrender. The few minutes seem like forever and my right arm is going to sleep.

But now at last we're wheeling back along the hall and Cami, hooking up the oxygen again, starts the decompression. There is a different tone to the hissing. My ears pop repeatedly and my nose bleeds a little. Once outside I reach for a paper towel and wipe the sweat from my face and neck.

'COME 'N' SEE

"What's it like in there?" a technician asks.

"If you don't suffer from claustrophobia," I tell him, "get yourself a tube on Wednesday and we'll take the trip together."

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Gordon Keel writes from Vancouver, British Columbia: "My partner might well have dropped the bidding at two hearts and I should have stopped at three, but I tried a three-spade call, whereupon he put me in the spade game.

It was a mighty poor contract but with trumps breaking 3-2, the heart finesse on and the king of clubs in back of the ace I had no trouble making my contract and winning the rubber.

★ ★ ★

"The interesting feature of the hand lies in what might have been. If I had bid four hearts I would have had a chance to make a smother play. I have never seen one in my 40 years at the table and there it was if only I had bid differently. Of course, I might have failed to make it."

The smother play is the rarest of plays in bridge. Let's show this one.

East wins the first trick with the ace of diamonds and leads a club to his partners ace. A second club is won in dummy and hearts led and finessed twice. South stops when he finds that trumps are divided 4-1.

It does not look as if he has any other play for his contract except to find some very favorable spade situation but the smother play is still there. South must cash the ace and king of spades and ruff the last club. Then he cashes dummy's two good diamonds and then throws West in with the last spade.

★ ★ ★

Dummy holds the jack-nine of hearts. East the king-small and South the ace of hearts and a spade. West must lead a club or diamond. Dummy ruffs and East's king of trumps is smothered. If he plays it now South overruffs him in turn, if he ruffs low South simply chucks his last spade.

CARD Sense

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
			1♥
Pass	1♠	Pass	3♥
Pass	4♥	Pass	?

You, South, hold: ♠A65 ♥KQJ1087 ♦K4 ♣A6

What do you do now?

A—Pass. Your partner is not showing strength but merely some sort of slight help for the strong hand you have shown.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of raising to four hearts your partner has bid four diamonds over your three hearts. What do you do now?

Hunger Issue Is Troubling U.S., British Paper Feels

LONDON (AP) — Americans are troubled at home and embarrassed abroad by the existence of hunger in the affluent United States, says the London Times.

In another observation from abroad this week, a British journalist wrote America "sometimes seems to be on the edge of a national nervous breakdown."

★ ★ ★

The London Times said in an editorial: "For some time the American social conscience has been increasingly disturbed over the clear evidence that hunger and malnutrition exist side by side with American affluence—and not just in small pockets of exceptional poverty or among the improvident and unemployable.

★ ★ ★

"This stands as a glaring moral reproach to American ideals, and is a correspondingly irksome embarrassment in American dealings abroad," the newspaper said.

NOT RECONCILED

The editorial acknowledged that President Nixon has promised a $1-billion program to end hunger "eventually," but it said higher welfare spending "cannot be reconciled" with the cost of present defense plans.

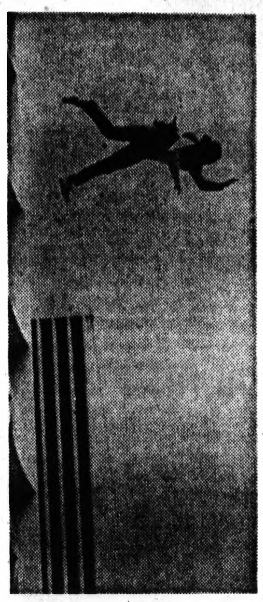

★ ★ ★

After a visit, Norman MacRae, deputy editor of the Economist, described the United States as "the place where man's long economic problem is ending, but where his social problems still gape."

★ ★ ★

MacRae said Americans are "racked by the stretching to snapping point of too many of their temporary social tensions, so that this society which represents man's greatest secular achievements sometimes seems to be on the edge of a national nervous breakdown."

Keys Jangle Nerves of 18 Who Condemn Life on Death Row

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — "Every time an officer comes down that tier with his keys jangling you don't know if he's coming for you or not. It's worse here than being in hell."

The speaker was a prisoner in the Maryland Penitentiary, one of 18 under sentence of death. One of them has been there for 11 years and his date to die has been set eight times.

★ ★ ★

"Hope, every man in here has hope," said a 41-year-old man condemned in 1961.

★ ★ ★

"It's the idea of going through the whole process of getting ready to die that worries you" a 64-year-old inmate told Art Geiselman, Baltimore Evening Sun reporter. "Dying would be no problem once they drop the gas pellet."

SCAFFOLD REPLACED

Maryland replaced the scaffold with the gas chamber for executing criminals in 1957. Four have died in it, none since 1961.

★ ★ ★

"I've never been afraid," said a 48-year-old inmate on death row since 1958. "You are not supposed to fear death." Three other men were executed while he was there. He has never had a visitor.

★ ★ ★

Most of the condemned say they worry most when "the date" is fixed for their execution.

★ ★ ★

"Time runs slow except when the date is set. Then it runs fast," said one who has sweated out the ordeal three times.

Living for the 18 is not the solitary, dingy, idle way of the past on death row. One convicted of killing a policeman has a small electric organ in his cell which is painted light green with a cream colored door. He paints with oils and has composed a song.

Several have learned to play an electric guitar. Almost all have radios and they can see a television out in the corridor. They are allowed out in the prison yard for exercise for three hours a day.

They are allowed to look on the outdoors from windows on a balconylike tier.

★ ★ ★

"I can see the girls go by, but that doesn't bother me," said one inmate. "But, seeing my father and mother, that's different. The only time I get homesick is when my people come up to see me."

STAYS OF EXECUTION

The 18 men on death row—officially called Dormitory B—have avoided the final walk to the gas chamber because of stays of execution granted for more legal reviews of their cases.

There is also a very vocal minority in the Maryland Legislature that annually pushes a bill to repeal capital punishment. The measure never has advanced further than passage by one house in 1967, but the yearly debate focuses attention on the question of capital punishment.

Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel has had two death sentence cases come before him during his nearly four months in office, and he has commuted both sentences to life in prison.

Mandel says the commutations should not be considered the start of a pattern. Rather, he states he will review each case on its own merits.

★ ★ ★

His next chance will come shortly. The next execution is scheduled for the week of June 2.

Steel Makers in Japan Push Atomic Power

By Science Service

TOKYO — The Japanese steel industry, struggling to keep its momentum as a coming leader in world trade, is pushing development of nuclear power as the key to future success.

★ ★ ★

To a country that lacks many natural resources, nuclear energy represents both a potentially economical power source and a way of obtaining the cheap high temperatures that other nations supply from coking coal.

★ ★ ★

Anticipating the role of nuclear energy in iron and steel making, the semiofficial Iron and Steel Institute of Japan has established an Atomic Energy division whose current research includes such projects as the operation of private nuclear power plants by steel mills and the direct application of nuclear energy in iron and steel making.

★ ★ ★

Local coal resources, mostly low quality, are already being exploited to the full, and the development of hydroelectric power has approached its maximum potential.

ECONOMIC GROWTH

The rate of the nation's economic growth makes it apparent that the import of oil and other energy sources must be substantially boosted or alternate energy sources must be developed.

★ ★ ★

At present, thermal electric power from coal in Japan costs 0.8 cents per killowatt. For thermal power plants in the 500,000 kilowatt capacity range, using heavy oil, costs are about 0.6 cents. According to official estimates, a 500,000 kilowatt capacity nuclear power plant would, by 1975, produce power at less than 0.6 cents per kilowatt.

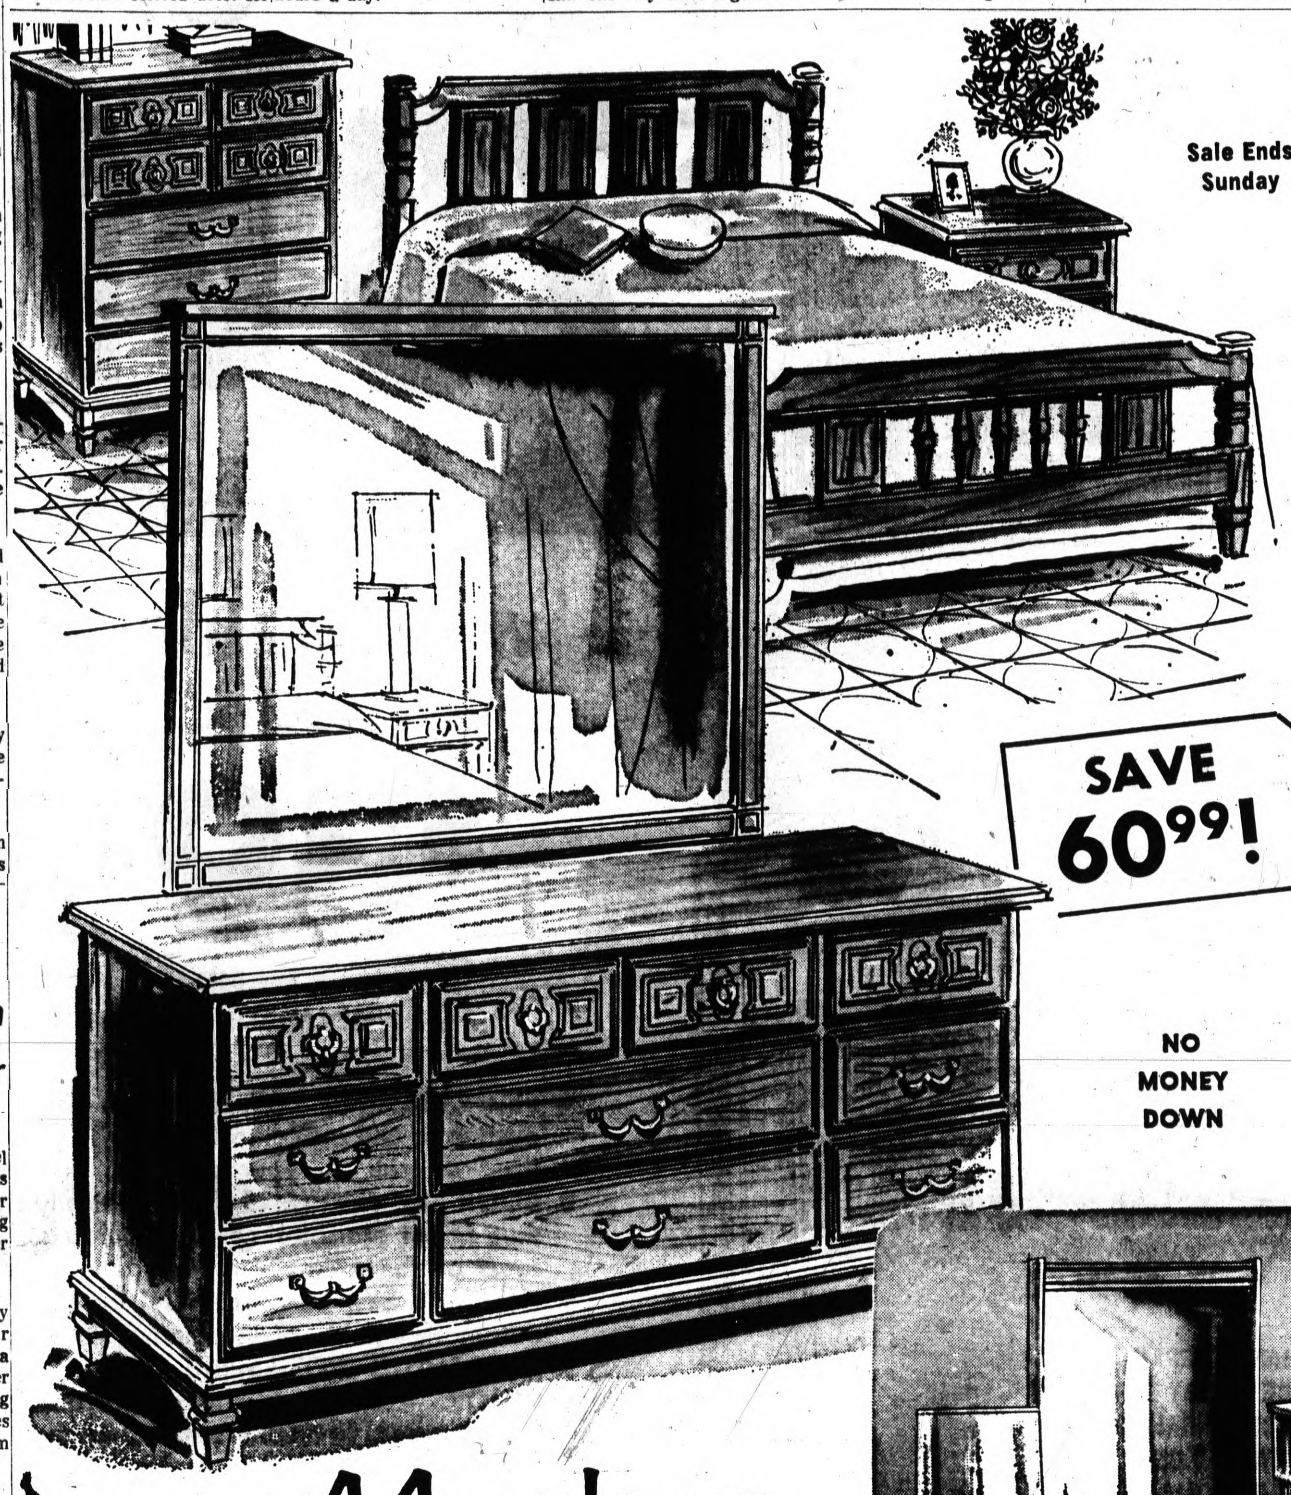

★ ★ ★

In view of these advantages, the Atomic Energy Commission plans to raise Japan's commercial nuclear power generation capacity to between 30 million and 40 million kilowatts by 1985.

★ ★ ★

Japan currently has only one commercial nuclear plant in operation: the 166,000-kilowatt reactor at Tokai Village, 75 miles northeast of Tokyo. But six more power plants are due to come on line in 1973-74. They have capacities of 322,000, 400,000, 425,000, 784,000, 325,000 and 500,000 kilowatts.

Fifty out of every 100 deaths in Peru are children. Infants under 12 months of age account for 30 per cent of the deaths.

3rd Party Seeks to Enlist Blacks

'All Coloreds Aren't Bad,' Says State Chief

MOUNT CLEMENS (AP)—Negro candidates on the ticket of George Wallace? Wallace supporters voting for Republicans or Democrats?

These are courses conceivable to the chairman of the Michigan branch of Wallace's American Independent party (AIP), James Hall, 61, of Warren.

"I want some good black candidates, if you please," says Hall in the accent of his native region of tobacco and corn farms in western Kentucky. "All coloreds are not bad."

Foreseeing possible gaps in the state AIP ticket in various elections of 1970, Hall says: "If for a given office we don't have a candidate, we should endorse a Republican or a Democrat."

DISSATISFIED

But it is dissatisfied Republicans and Democrats, particularly those of organized labor, who Hall hopes will come to the AIP side — both as voters and candidates.

Last November the AIP ticket netted 14 per cent of Michigan's vote for former Alabama Gov. Wallace.

★ ★ ★

Hall, a retired Chrysler auto production supervisor, was chosen for the unpaid chairmanship of Michigan's biggest little party in a Feb. 22 convention at the Sheraton Motor Inn in Emmett Township, Calhoun County.

His state-of-affairs conversation never strays far from his opinions about Negroes:

"I have contempt for some Negroes, for those Negroes who shot the policeman (in Detroit's Bethel Church incident), and for those who are looters, rapists and burners. Prison's too good for them.

'HONESTY LACKING'

"Honesty" is lacking between the races, he says.

"I don't think Negroes and whites sit down and let their hair down. I don't think anybody is an integrationist all the way across the board without any reservations. I believe you've got some liars and hypocrites.

★ ★ ★

"The average colored person doesn't want to intermarry and integrate to the extent a lot of liberal-talking people would indicate. I will tell any black man I don't want my daughter to marry a Negro."

Hall says he's for equal opportunity for all races and doesn't want to be thought of as a "racist." He has known the sting of prejudice. "I'll tell you that when I first came to Michigan, when you went into an employment office with a southern accent you had two strikes against you."

A YEAR AGO

More than a year ago Hall joined the AIP, becoming chairman for Macomb County.

He describes himself as a former "conservative Republican," disenchanted by the open-housing measure of former Gov. George Romney and disturbed by events of the Johnson administration.

★ ★ ★

"George Romney and Mr. Johnson made a politican out of me," says Hall, punctuating with finger wags and karate chops to the blotter of his desk. "I decided I wasn't going to be one of those silent people that sit back and let the world go down the drain."

Hall presides over the state party headquarters of three second floor offices which the AIP rents for $75 a month in an aging building in Mount Clemens across Gratiot Avenue from the new Macomb County Building. On a wall behind the desk is a picture of Wallace. An American flag hands from a floor staff by Hall's chair.

10 MILLION PEOPLE

"I don't think we lost the presidential election," says Hall. He sips from a bottle of Coca Cola and smiles candidly. "How would you like to be in Mr. Nixon's shoes, 10 million people watching every move you make, breathing down your neck."

Hall says the AIP is organized in 60 of Michigan's 83 counties, and will refer to 31,000 names signed on Wallace ballot petitions last year when it comes to building membership.

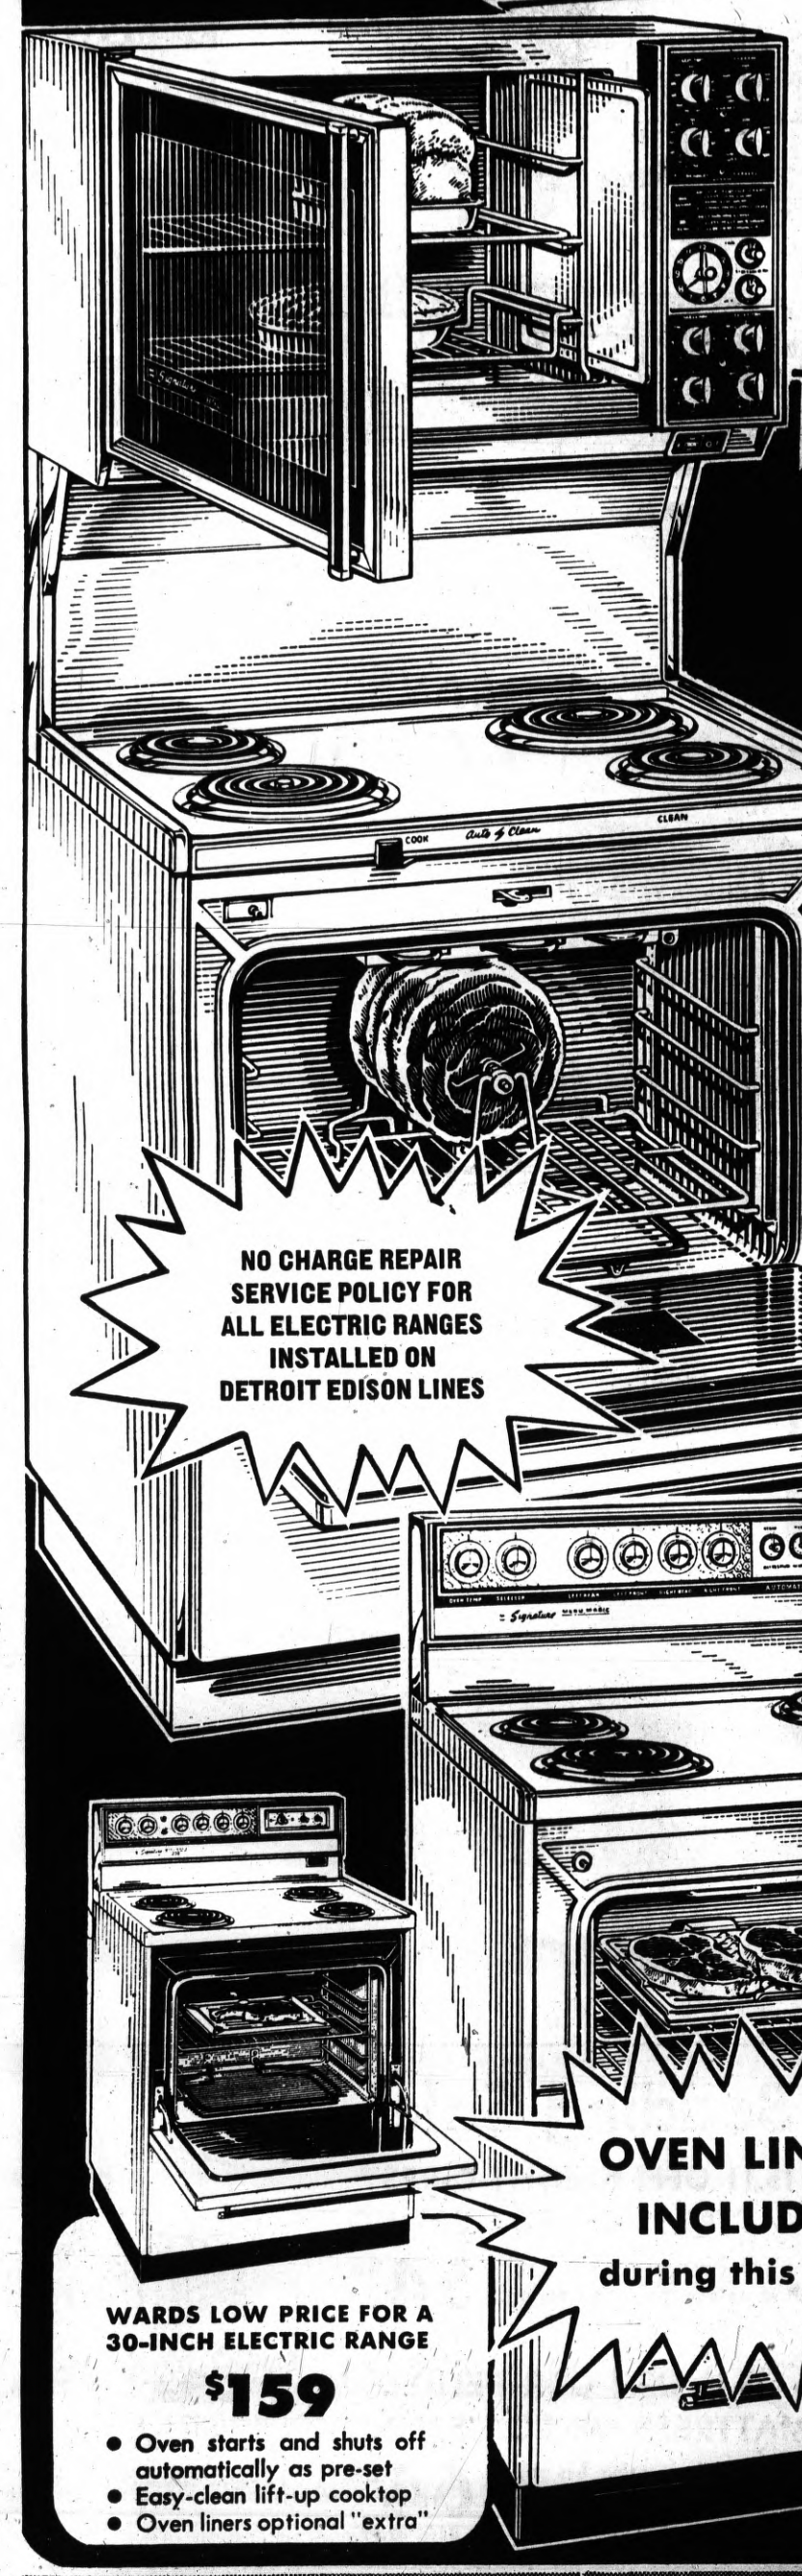

★ ★ ★

The chairman hopes to have Wallace come to Michigan this summer for a fund-raising dinner.

Outsize Boards for Sturdy Doors

Solid wood boards up to 30 inches wide are on the market. Several lumber firms make them by edge-gluing numerous narrow pieces together.

They make sturdy cabinet doors. A clear finish will keep the interesting strip pattern visible.

Bronx Zoo Exiles 7 Alligators to Florida

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — New York's Bronx Zoo is sending alligators to Florida—where they grow wild and occasionally wander into people's backyards and swimming pools.

But Dr. Wayne King, reptile curator in the public zoo in the Bronx, has some logic behind his banishment program. He says his alligators and crocodiles are growing so big—10 feet and more each— that they're staking out their own areas of domicile. This is unpleasant because they have to share air-conditioned quarters with other tenants.

King is exiling seven of the thick-skinned reptiles familiar Floridians refer to only as "gators."

★ ★ ★

The seven alligators were to be flown to Miami and then trucked to Everglades National Park today.

Battles TB Fifty Years

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — For more than half a century, Nora Spencer Hamner has been working to help stamp out tuberculosis, and the Richmond Area Tuberculosis Association recently presented her with a 50-year pin for service to the association.

In 1918 she was a field nurse for the Virginia Tuberculosis Association. Today she is a volunteer for the local and state TB associations.

"We didn't have the refined X-rays and tuberculin tests that we have today," she says, recalling that she visited the counties in her territory in a Model T Ford. She retired as executive director of the Richmond Area group in 1962.

They're Longer, Milder, Possibly Perilous

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anti-smoking crusaders are urging Congress to require that health warnings be included in cigarette commercials on radio and television.

WEST

If such a measure were enacted, advertising agencies that have tobacco company accounts would be confronted with a unique challenge.

★ ★ ★

It would be their curious duty to promote a product while at the same time cautioning that use of the product might be harmful.

Whether they could do this without developing schizophrenia remains to be seen. But admen being nothing if not ingenious and resourceful, I am satisfied that they would figure out some say to straddle the incongruity.

IRRITATING EFFECT

The simplest approach, I suppose would be to film a commercial in the usual way and then tack on the health warning at the end.

This abrupt transition, however, likely would have an irritating effect on the viewers, who are generally in a semicomatose condition and resent being jolted out of their trances.

★ ★ ★

Aesthetically, it would be better to blend the warning smoothly into the main body of the commercial. The cigarette that some smokers would walk a mile for offers good possibilities.

The commercial could show a man striding purposefully through the woods, coat slung over shoulder, whistling a cheery tune. He arrives at a tobacco stand, buys a pack of his favorite brand, sits down and lights up.

WALK A MILE . . .

"I'd walk a mile for a——," he says. "I figure the fresh air and exercise helps offset the deleterious effect that smoking may be having on my lungs."

Presented in this natural offhand manner, the warning would have more impact than a formal, stilted message.

★ ★ ★

The jingle about the cigarette that you can't take the country out of likewise could be revised to make room for a health warning.

"You can take —— out of the country, but — you can't take the hazard out of smoking."

In the next commercial, we see a guy with a paper clip clumsily trying to fasten a filter onto the end of a cigarette. An off-camera voice says:

"If you could fasten a —— filter onto the end of another brand, you would have a better-tasting cigarette. But you wouldn't change the Public Health Service's report that smoking may be harmful."

Remove Rust Then Paint

To remove rust from iron, give it a thorough wire brushing. Then apply two coats of rust inhibitive primer.

Follow that by applying a top coat of aluminum paint or other trim paint over the primer.

He Bears Witness to Court Costs

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After appearing in court seven times as a witness, Larry Mazeppa told the judge, "I'm losing more money here than I did in the burglary."

★ ★ ★

Mazeppa owns a laundry from which $20 in quarters was taken in January. He told the judge that when he has to take time out from business to come to court it costs him money.

★ ★ ★

"And I was not at the scene of the crime so I can say nothing, so far as that goes."

The judge called the situation inexcusable and said he would personally find out why policemen failed to show up the seventh time — thereby making it necessary to schedule an eighth appearance for Mazeppa.

Children's Author to Speak Here

Natalie Savage Carlson, author of 19 children's books, will be the speaker at the annual Author's Banquet of the Oakland County Reading Council Wednesday at the Pontiac Elks Lodge.

Mrs. Carlson, who lives in Newport, R.I., has traveled widely and has lived in France, the locale of eight of her books. She has used French Canada, Italy, Spain, the southern United States and a Sioux Indian reservation in South Dakota for settings for other stories.

★ ★ ★

Her books have won awards from the American Library Association, the Child Study Association and the Boy's Club of America. Among her most popular works are "The Empty Schoolhouse," "Luigi of the Streets" and "Ann Aurelia and Dorothy."

Between 300 and 400 elementary teachers are expected at the Author's Banquet. Reservations may be made through Philip G. Hilaire, Oakland Schools, Campus Drive, Pontiac.

Boy, 2, in Coma Suffers From Rabies

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Tommy Buchmann, 2, is suffering from rabies, doctors say.

Tommy, bitten by a bobcat, lapsed into a coma 16 days ago with rabieslike symptoms. But doctors said then that nearly everyone stricken with rabies dies within a day or two of the appearance of the symptoms, and so there was a question whether the boy was suffering a reaction to vaccine against it.

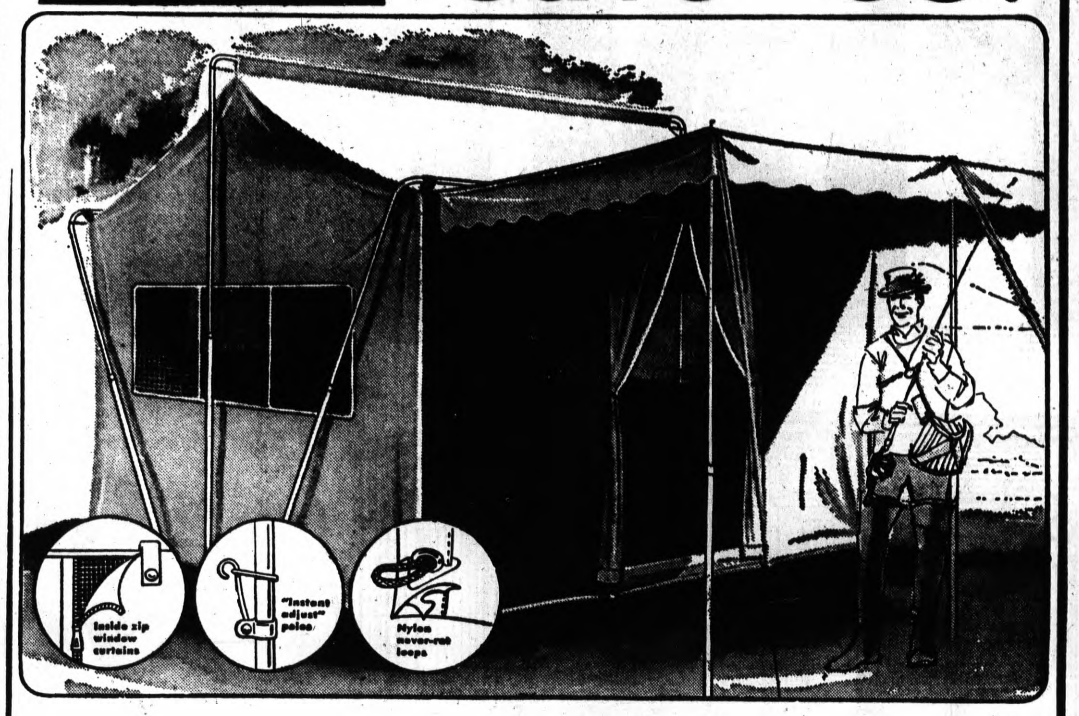

★ ★ ★

Confirmation of the disease through extensive laboratory tests now will permit doctors to proceed with treatment that was not possible while there was doubt if he had rabies, said a spokesman for University Hospital.

N. Ireland Rights Drive Produces Extremism -- and Results

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The campaign for civil rights in Northern Ireland, conceived as a nonviolent movement of the center, has produced extreme reactions—and also some results.

A few days ago the new government, under Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark, declared an amnesty for 133 persons charged with offenses arising from the campaign. And the conception of "one man, one vote" is nearer now than it has ever been.

★ ★ ★

But moderate leaders fear that renewed manifestations of public protest will bring deaths.

Extreme agitators operating under the civil rights banner are less concerned about who gets hurt, or how many. "There's fighting all over town," one reported during Derry's recent troubles, and it looked as if he couldn't have been happier.

CIVIL RIGHTS TAGS

"He's civil rights," they say of a politician, or "He's against civil rights." What is generally known as "the civil rights" is in fact a conglomeration of loose organizations, some elected, some self-appointed, some idealist, some sinister.

The movement had its formal origin with a meeting in Belfast in November 1966 to form a Northern Ireland Civil Rights Association. The group's main attack then was on the government's Special Powers Act and its ban on clubs linked with the Republic of Ireland, to the south.

★ ★ ★

The Protestant-based government saw these clubs as a front for the outlawed Irish Republican Army, which is sworn to unite the mainly Protestant six counties of Northern Ireland with the Roman Catholic republic.

Despite some prosecutions, the ban was not rigidly enforced, and republican clubs continued to meet.

PICKED UP STEAM

Last June the campaign changed course and picked up steam. Austin Currie, a 30-year-old Nationalist party member of the provincial Parliament, organized a sit-down at a house in Caledon, which the local government had allotted to a single 19-year-old Protestant girl rather than to one of the area's Catholic families.

★ ★ ★

The main issues now became allegations of discrimination against Catholics in housing and government jobs, and demands for reform of elections. Votes in local elections, not parliamentary elections, are tied to property. The result is that several cities in the west of the province have Protestant city governments though most residents are Catholic.

★ ★ ★

In October the association organized its first mass demonstration, a march in Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city, where by common agreement the inequities of the local government system were at their worst.

The city had been seething for years. William Craig, the tough Protestant lawyer who then was home affairs minister, banned the march from the city center.

March leaders tried to break the police cordon.

WEEKEND OF RIOT

Londonderry had a weekend of riot around the Bogside, the Catholic quarter of dark streets and crumbling houses. It was brought under control by a hastily formed citizens' action committee, mainly composed of young business and professional men seeking to cut across the old Protestant-Catholic divisions in Derry politics. This committee is now itself under fire from the leftist militants.

★ ★ ★

In Belfast, another branch of the civil rights movement emerged in Queen's University. "One man, one vote" gave the students something to march about, but their leaders quickly lost control to an organization calling itself the People's Democracy.

★ ★ ★

By Christmas the People's Democracy leftists were making themselves increasingly felt inside the original Civil Rights Association to the extent that several leaders resigned.

In January the People's Democracy students organized a march from Belfast to Londonderry and a major protest in Newry, a Nationalist-run town which formerly had good community relations. Both ended in riot.

STREETS TO POLITICS

February took the campaign off the streets and into politics. Prime Minister Terence O'Neill, seeking to break the Protestant right wing's opposition to his campaign for gradual concessions, called a general election, but in the event embraced his own political suicide.

★ ★ ★

Leaders associated with the civil rights campaign, whatever their personal political color, demonstrated they could collect votes. Ivan Cooper and John Hume, mainsprings of the Derry Citizens' Action Committee, both won through to the provincial Parliament, ousting more orthodox leaders of the Catholic-based Nationalist opposition.

★ ★ ★

A 21-year-old girl, Bernadette Devlin, collected a sizable vote in South Derry despite her identity with the extreme left of the People's Democracy campaign. Then in April she won a seat in the British Parliament as member for mid-Ulster, defeating the Protestant widow of the former Unionist member.

Miss Devlin's later appearances in London under the banner of the International Socialist Association, a Trotskyite-anarchist group in which Brian Behan, brother of the late Brendan Behan, has been prominent, have cost her the support of some of the Catholics who backed her election campaign.

★ ★ ★

If the new Unionist government under Chichester-Clark carries through with its long-delayed attempt to reform the voting system, the violence may be contained.

Now, however, a new organization is at work in Derry's grassroots, calling itself the Derry Civil Rights Association, and divorced from the main body. Its leaders are out to smash the action committee's restraining influence. If they succeed, the situation almost certainly will pass beyond control of the club-wielding riot squads who in January marched home singing a song from overseas: "We Shall Overcome."

ABM Vote in Senate Being Billed as Judgment Day of Sorts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Putting aside the rhetoric, the ABM issue before Congress is not the doomsday decision that both sides have made it out to be. But it is nevertheless vitally significant.

★ ★ ★

In the past, Congress has gone along generally with strategic nuclear weapons proposals by the Pentagon. And regardless how the vote goes this time, Congress has served notice it will take a close look in the future at new weapons plans.

About $900 million is initially involved in the ABM controversy. That's the amount sought by the Nixon administration to go forward with the initial phases of the multibillion-dollar plan to install a "Safeguard" system to protect America's offensive missile sites.

JUDGMENT DAY

But the June Senate vote is being built up as a judgment day of sorts by both sides.

Opponents say rejection of the ABM would bring an end to the Pentagon's domination of the nation's resources, spur talks on the control of arms with the Soviet Union, and save the taxpayers billions of dollars that would be wasted on an unneeded and unworkable weapon.

ALTERNATIVE ACTION

Actually its rejection would likely lead to alternative action to keep the nation strong.

Most members of Congress had neither the time nor the inclination to devote to detailed studies of strategic weapons proposals.

★ ★ ★

The armed services committees, which have the time and the expertise, performed their duties in what is frequently described as "an atmosphere of easy tolerance" to the Pentagon.

The ABM issue has changed this, at least to some degree. For the foreseeable future, new and expensive weapons systems proposed by the Pentagon probably will be given the same kind of scrutiny Congress devotes to domestic programs.

MAJORITY IN SENATE

Opponents of the ABM now constitute a shaky majority in the Senate — with 50 members against it or inclined to oppose it, according to a UPI poll, 43 favoring it, and seven undecided.

The weapon that has produced all this ruckus is basically a glorified anti-aircraft system.

★ ★ ★

But destroying an object traveling through the sky at speeds of two miles a second is not child's play.

Spotting, tracking and intercepting an incoming missile would require a complex interlock of finely balanced radars, giant banks of computers bossed by central computers and two different types of missiles, the Sprint and the Spartan.

STATE OF READINESS

Not knowing when an enemy would choose to strike, each of these components would have to be in a constant state of readiness — perpetually repaired to function on cue.

Once an enemy missile is spotted by the ABM's radars, the computers whirl into action to set up a trajectory, automatically aim the defensive missiles and on command fire them to the intercept point.

★ ★ ★

The Spartans — with a range of several hundred miles — are fired first, intercepting the missiles above the atmosphere.

If the Spartans miss any, the Sprints — sort of a drag-strip model able to climb a mile in a few seconds — are put in the air, intercepting the attackers as they fall in the atmosphere between five and 10 miles up.

NIXON DECISION

Earlier this year, President Nixon announced his decision: to deploy an ABM and rename it Safeguard. Using the same components in the President Johnson's Sentinel system, the Nixon administration decided to give the ABMs a new mission.

★ ★ ★

In addition to defending the population against a Chinese style attack, the ABM would be used to protect U.S. missile silos and bomber bases from a preemptive Russian strike. To accomplish this, the ABM complexes would be located not near the cities but near the missile silos.

★ ★ ★

Nixon, followed by a parade of Pentagon officials testifying at the Capitol, has justified the need for the Safeguard primarily on intelligence estimates of Russian advances in strategic warfare.

Opponents of the system have refused to accept the intelligence estimates, contending they were exaggerated to justify construction of an ABM.

But even if they were true, a succession of nuclear physicists and chemists have told Congress that the ABM will not do any good to plug the gap.

They have contended that the Soviets could simply exhaust the U.S. supply of Sprints and Spartans by sending in more offensive weapons or using decoys. Several have suggested that the system's radars and computers could be easily foiled by deceptive devices — like the release of fine metal wire in the atmosphere or even toy balloons shaped like missiles.

Worse still, the scientists contend the first interception made by an ABM would produce a radioactive cloud that would blind the system's radars.

If that didn't work, the Soviets could aim their first batch of missiles at the ABM radars, which are exposed and vulnerable to an explosion of one kiloton, the scientists claim.

German Reds, Church in Split

BERLIN (AP) — "Geschickt," the art of being skillful or crafty, is a word often used by East Germans to describe the Communist regime's war on religion and the church's foxy counteroffensives.

The government has a policy of hard-line opposition to religion but with enough indulgence to avert a crisis. The church resists while trying to do the possible.

★ ★ ★

The result: 90 per cent of East Germany's 17 million people are at least nominal members of a church, with the old-timers devout Christians and a generation of teen-agers who seemingly believe in God at home but not in public.

The latest tactic of government atheists is divide and conquer. It may backfire because of a bit of church-geschickt.

NEW CONSTITUTION

In its new constitution promulgated in 1968, the regime proclaimed that state boundaries are church boundaries. This made the all-German Evangelical Union illegal, forcing East Germany's eight regional Protestant churches to sever ties with their West German counterparts.

So the East German churches drafted a resolution to set up a separate East German Evangelical Federation. So far five of the eight regional churches have voted approval. The irony is that if all eight vote for the separate federation, the Evangelical Church inside East Germany will be strengthened, even though all-German contacts technically are weakened.

★ ★ ★

This the Communists don't like, but they can do little about it now. From the beginning of Communist rule the Protestant Church in East Germany has been weak because it was split in eight more or less autonomous regions. The regime would have preferred to keep it this way.

The church resolution also uses some clever language to assure continued contact with Western churches. It carefully notes that the East German federation would "recognize the especial community of the entire Evangelical Christian movement in Germany."

FORCES REGIME'S HAND

Another Communist ploy is the government's refusal to help pay for the rebuilding of war-ruined churches unless they have a historic as well as religious value. But often the church forces the regime's hand by getting outside Western help or appealing directly to the East German public with street collections.

★ ★ ★

Accordingly, such notable churches as St. Hedwig's Cathedral in Berlin and the Hof Kirche in Dresden have been rebuilt, and the St. Thomas church in Leipzig, where Johann Sebastian Bach once played the organ, is being renovated.

★ ★ ★

The East German government tries to isolate the 10 per cent Roman Catholic minority, often greeting Catholic protests or requests for concessions with: "Whom do you represent? Nobody."

Here Pope Paul VI may have used some geschickt by naming the bishop of Berlin, Alfred Bengsch, a cardinal. At 47 he is the youngest in the Roman Catholic Church.

RISK OFFSET

East Berlin sources said the risk of the Communists calling Bengsch "our cardinal" was offset by the knowledge that his elevation gave him a direct bond with the Vatican and strengthened his position at home.

The regime's major campaign against religion is waged among East Germany's youth. The Communists have instituted an atheistic ceremony for 14-year-olds called the Jugendweihe, or youth initiation, in which the child swears allegiance to the state and its Marxist-materialist ideology.

★ ★ ★

It happens to be the traditional church confirmation age. If the parents let their children go to the Communist ceremony, it compromises their church allegiance. If they don't, it may compromise their child's future.

The Catholics combat this with private schooling for their children, and frequently their grades are too high for the manpower-hungry state to ignore even if a child skips the Jugendweihe. Protestant ministers often close their eyes, let the children go to the Communist ritual and take them back into the church as though nothing had happened.

BEND WITH WIND

As a result most East German youths seldom become Communists or agnostics. They simply bend with the wind, saying one thing at home and another in public.

East Germany's Communist bosses have planted the seeds of atheism, but they don't seem to be taking root in the native soil of Martin Luther.

Allegan Appeal

ALLEGAN (UPI) — Allegan's City Council will ask the Michigan Water Resources Commission for a six-month delay on the commission's order to come up with plans for removing 80 per cent of the phosphorus from water discharged from the city's water plant into local streams.

Superego Called Killer Characteristic

DETROIT (AP) — Potential killers usually have "overdeveloped superegos," not police records of mental illness, according to a Detroit psychiatry professor.

Dr. Emanuel Tanay of Wayne State University says he has found that the most likely killers are moderate-drinking white men, 20 to 40, with middle-income status. He bases his findings on a study of 65 killers.

★ ★ ★

"An overdeveloped superego — an extra-strict conscience," is a characteristic of the killer, he says.

"They had a self-image of benevolence, cooperativeness and self-sacrificing love."

Tanay says death often follows if a gun is readily available to a person in the heat of anger or during a temporary personality breakdown.

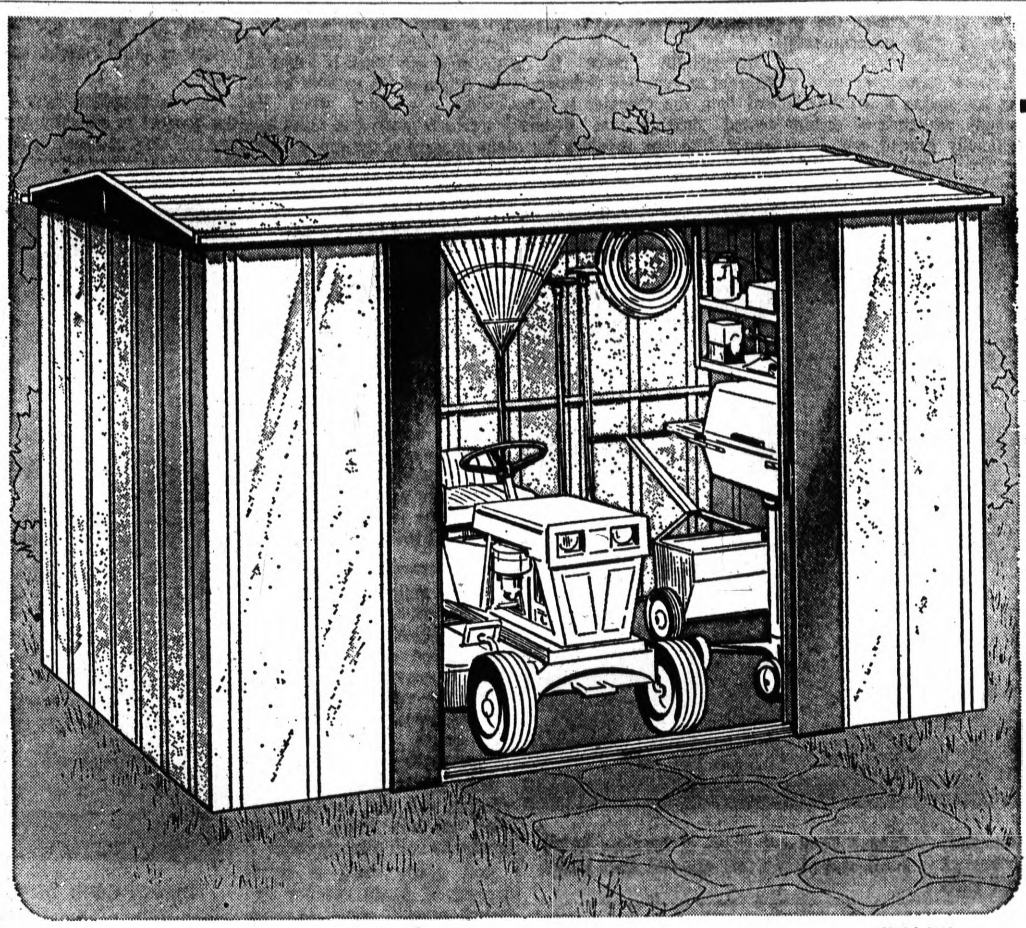

Libya has a population of 1.6 million.

718 Adults Enroll

BIG RAPIDS (UPI) — Enrollment in the spring quarter adult education program at Ferris State College is 718, director Peter Holub reports. Ferris has self-supporting adult education classes outside of its regular acedemic program.

Consumers Protected by USDA Grading of Foods

A shield-shaped mark — bearing words such as U.S. Grade A or USDA Choice — is appearing on an ever-increasing number of foods.

The official U.S. Department of Agriculture grade shield provides assurance of quality based on the judgment of an expert Federal or Federal-State grader, who applies the grades on the basis of nationally uniform Federal standards of quality.

The shopper, then, can rely upon each USDA grade to have exactly the same meaning regardless of where or when he sees it — the time of year or location of the store.

Well aware of the consumer's concern with quality, retailers are featuring officially graded foods on their shelves and in their advertising.

★ ★ ★

In some instances, however, the advertiser gets carried away with his enthusiasm in displaying the grade shield. As a result USDA grade marks are used in connection with ungraded products and in some instances with products for which there are presently no USDA grades, such as ham, bologna and frankfurters.

REGULATED

The use of the official grade mark is regulated under law — the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 — to protect the integrity of this governmental symbol.

★ ★ ★

The law makes it a crime to knowingly advertise or display as officially graded any foods which have not in fact been so graded. Federal officials who watch out for misuse of the grade shield — or the official grade terms such as U.S. Grade A — generally find a warning sufficient to correct the errant advertiser.

★ ★ ★

Occasionally there is a flagrant or repeated violation — and then the offender is prosecuted through the Federal courts. The law provides for a fine not to exceed $1,000 or 1 year in prison, or both.

Consumers can check for themselves, in most cases, as to whether or not foods advertised as graded have really been officially graded.

★ ★ ★

On fresh cuts of beef, veal, calf, or lamb, the shield-shaped USDA grade mark is rolled on the length of the carcass by the grader, so that when the carcass is made into retail cuts one or more of the grade marks will appear on the outer fat covering of most cuts.

ON LABEL

On other products, such as butter, eggs, poultry, canned and frozen fruits and vegetables, frozen orange juice concentrate, jams, jellies and nonfat dry milk, the grade shield is printed right on the label.

This is permitted only when the product is officially graded and the label has been approved by the Consumer and Marketing Service, the USDA agency responsible for all food grading services.

Consumers who would like a handy pocket-sized booklet on USDA grades may obtain "How to Use USDA Grades in Buying Food" (PA-708) from the Office of Information, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. Include your zip code on the postcard request.

Cook Turkey Strips in Tempura Style

Tempura is a Japanese method of battering and deep fat frying shrimp and vegetables. Be as adaptable as the Japanese and substitute practical, economical and delicious turkey roast for other protein foods when making tempura. The frozen two and a half pound boneless turkey roast will yield approximately 50 strips which will be sufficient for ten people.

★ ★ ★

Most people think of tempura as being for shrimp only, but the Japanese also use a wide variety of vegetables. Mushrooms, green beans, green onions and carrots all are attractive and tasty when prepared as tempura.

★ ★ ★

Use that lovely fondue pot if you wish and let your guests prepare their own. Or if you prefer, deep fat fry the turkey strips and vegetables as long as two to three weeks ahead of the party and freeze them. Come party time, simply heat the frozen tempura on a cookie sheet in a 450 degree oven for 6 minutes or until crisp. How's that for magic.

LACY LOOK

Here is a trick that we worked long and hard to figure out. To make the fried batter look lacy, dribble a little batter in the hot oil first. Dip the turkey or vegetable in batter and place it on top of the "dribbles." Lastly, dribble a little more batter on top.

★ ★ ★

If you can manage it gracefully, handle the tempura with chopsticks. An occidental gets such a feeling of accomplishment to master chopsticks. It is kind of an acceptable "show-offiness."

TURKEY TEMPURA
Sauce

2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons sherry
½ teaspoon ginger
1 cube chicken bouillon
½ cup water

Combine all ingredients. Heat to boiling. Stir in bouillon cube. Simmer 10 minutes. Keep warm while preparing tempura.

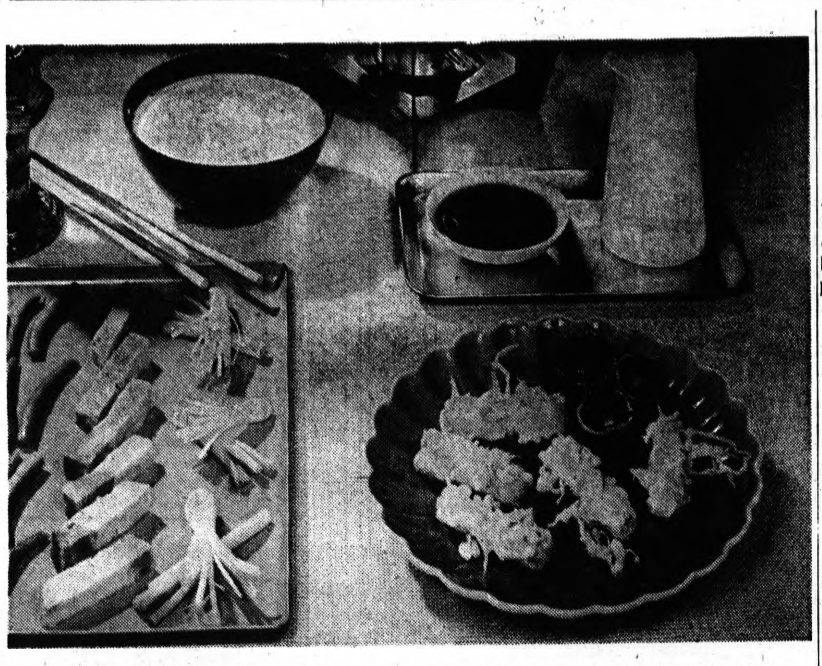

Tempura

Oil for frying
½ cup and ¼ cup sifted flour
½ cup cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1 egg
1 tablespoon sherry
½ cup cold water
2 cups cooked boneless turkey roast, cut in ½ inch strips

Pour oil into skillet to depth of 1 inch. Heat to 375 degrees. Sift together ½ cup flour, cornstarch and monosodium glutamate. Beat together egg, sherry and water. Blend into dry ingredients.

Dredge turkey in ¼ cup flour. Dribble batter on hot oil to make lacy network. Dip strips in batter. Lay on lace. Dribble more batter over top. Do not crowd pan.

Fry 3 minutes on each side or until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot with sauce and rice. Yield: 25-30 sticks. Note: (1) May be served as an appetizer. (2) Vegetables such as carrot sticks, green beans and onions may be fried in the similar manner. (3) Tempura may be fried ahead and frozen. Place frozen tempura on cookie sheet. Heat in preheated oven (450 degrees) 6 minutes or until crisp and heated through.

TURKEY TEMPURA—These are tempura, Japanese appetizers that are good enough for a full meal. What are the little curly things? They are strips of boneless turkey roast, dipped in a thin egg and flour batter.

Caramelize Some Popcorn

Popcorn enthusiasts come in all shapes and sizes. But big or small, old or young, they have one thing in common: love of heaping bowlfuls of tender popped corn covered with butter and sprinkled with salt.

For your next "popcorn night," try this caramel treat from West Bend.

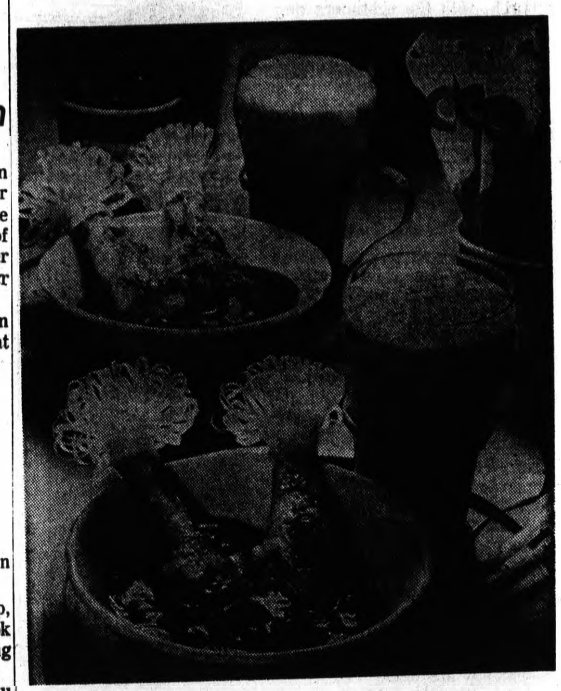

Caramel Popcorn

1½ cups white sugar
¾ cup dark corn syrup
1½ teaspoons vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ teaspoons soda
4 quarts popped corn (unsalted)

Mix together sugar, syrup, vinegar, salt and butter. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture boils.

Boil gently until a small amount of syrup reaches the "hard crack" stage in cold water (290 degrees F using candy thermometer). Add vanilla and soda; stir well.

Pour foamy mixture over corn and stir to coat corn thoroughly. Store in tightly covered jar or can to retain crispness.

DIPPIN'-GOOD DRUMSTICKS — Coat 12 to 15 drumsticks with mixture of ½ cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Pour ½ cup oil into large shallow baking dish. Arrange chicken in oil, turning to coat all sides, skin side down. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees; turn and bake 30 minutes more. Combine 1 can (8 oz.) whole cranberry sauce; 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce; 1 tablespoon vinegar; 1 tablespoon brown sugar and 1 clove garlic, crushed. Bring to a boil and simmer briefly to blend flavors. Serve as hot dip for drumsticks. Makes 5-6 servings.

Spicy Candies Give Tang to Fruit Cocktail

Looking for something to pick up those every day meals? Try this sweet and tangy Cinnamon Fruit. Easy to do and so delicious.

Cinnamon Fruits

1 can (1 lb. 14 oz.) fruit cocktail
½ cup syrup from fruit
2 teaspoons red cinnamon candies
2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
2 large bananas

Drain fruit cocktail, saving syrup. Combine ½ cup syrup from fruit, cinnamon candies and lemon juice. Let stand until candy is dissolved, or heat gently to dissolve; cool. Add drained fruit cocktail.

Spoon fruit and syrup into serving dishes. Peel and cut banana into diagonal slices. Set slices upright around edge of each serving. Makes about 6 servings.

HAM AND ASPARAGUS ROLL-UPS

Open Season

Asparagus: Grass That's Legal

Asparagus is a gourmet vegetable but priced within reason for many, many families to enjoy several times during the short season.

Buy flavorful spears of asparagus by selecting them from a refrigerated display and where the cut ends of the stalks are kept moist. Closed tip and all-green stalk indicate a sweet, flavorful vegetable.

Hurry home with the asparagus. Wrap a wet towel around the base of the bunch; slip it into a plastic bag and into the refrigerator.

★ ★ ★

Put on a terrific show at your next party with these exciting Ham and Asparagus Roll-ups. Starring in a rich golden butter sauce, they take the lead in unique flavor and goodness.

HAM AND ASPARAGUS ROLL-UPS

12 asparagus spears
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons water
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
Dash of cayenne
¾ cup milk
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¾ cup (3 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
8 thin slices cooked ham
Paprika
4-5 slices white bread, toasted

In skillet, place asparagus, 2 tablespoons butter, lemon juice, water and salt. Cover and cook 20 minutes or until tender.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, in 1-quart saucepan, melt 2 tablespoons butter; stir in flour and cayenne. Remove from heat; gradually stir in milk and Worcestershire sauce. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cook 2 additional minutes.

★ ★ ★

Remove from heat and stir in ½ cup Cheddar cheese until melted. If necessary, return to low heat to finish melting cheese. (Do not boil), Drain asparagus.

Wrap double slices of ham around center of 3 spears. Arrange in 9-inch buttered square baking dish; cover with sauce. Top with remaining cheese; sprinkle with paprika. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven 15-20 minutes.

Serve with toast triangles. Makes 4 servings.

Asparagus spears in a meatloaf are something different.

TUNNELLED ASPARAGUS MEATLOAF

1 pound lean beef, ground
¼ pound lean pork, ground
¼ pound lean veal, ground
¾ tespoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon allspice
⅛ teaspoon onion salt
1 egg
1 cup cooked instant potato buds
2 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons syrup
1 (2 oz.) can mushrooms
1½ cups cooked asparagus spears
½ lime
1 sliced pimiento, cut in strips
1 package cheese sauce mix

Mix ground meats; add spices, lightly beaten egg, potatoes, milk, syrup and mushrooms, including juice. When thoroughly combined, divide into two equal portions.

Place one portion in loaf pan and shape a trench lengthwise through center. Stagger asparagus spears and pimiento strips throughout trench, saving a few for garnish. Pour squeezed lime juice over asparagus; top with two-thirds of cheese sauce prepared according to package directions.

Cover with other portion of meat, sealing edges well. Bake at 350 degrees for 1¾ hours.

To serve, invert onto meat platter, top with balance of cheese sauce and garnish with remaining pimiento and asparagus. Makes 6 servings.

Cold Soup Is Paired With Sandwich

If you feel you have come to wit's end in meal-planning, borrow an idea from the provincial kitchens of France. Feature a quiche. Not the traditional kind — but a new sandwich that makes a gourmet lunch or supper when served with a chilled soup.

The Quickie Quichewich has its roots, of course, in the famous dish of France, the "Quiche Lorraine"—A rich egg custard baked with onion and bacon in a crisp pastry shell.

To make the sandwiches, start with brown and serve French rolls. Hollow out the rolls and fill with cooked bacon bits, shredded Swiss cheese and a canned milk-egg mixture seasoned with onion soup mix. The flavorful custard complements the crusty rolls.

QUICKIE QUICHEWICH
6 Sandwiches

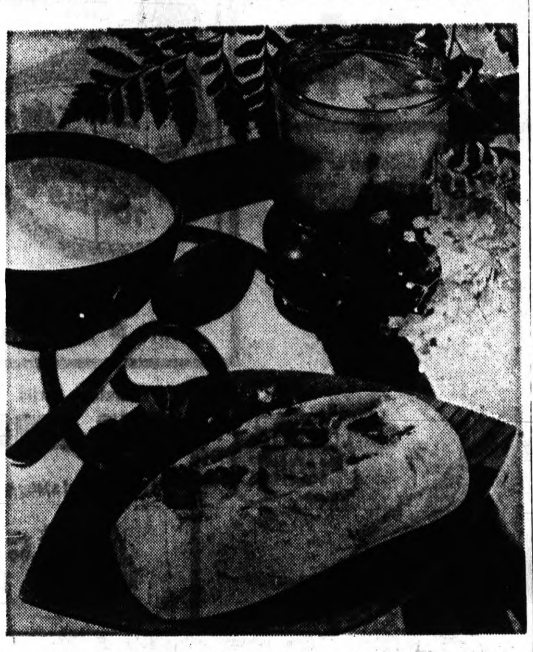

6 enriched brown and serve French rolls
6 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled
1 cup (4 oz.) grated Swiss cheese
3 eggs
2 tablespoons enriched flour
1⅔ cups (13 oz. can) evaporated milk
2 tablespoons dry onion soup mix
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cut off tops of rolls and hollow out leaving ½-inch thick bottom and sides. Place in shallow baking pan. Sprinkle roll hollows with bacon and cheese. Beat together eggs and flour; stir in milk, soup mix and pepper. Pour milk mixture into rolls, filling to top. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven 30 to 35 minutes, or until custard is set. Serve hot.

CHILLED ASPARAGUS SOUP
6 Servings

2 cans (10½ oz. each) condensed cream of asparagus soup
1 cup sour cream
1 cup milk

Blend ingredients together. Chill. Garnish individual servings with sour cream dollops.

QUICKIE QUICHEWICH — Create a "souper" sandwich lunch—serve chilled cream of asparagus-sour cream soup with a tasty sandwich version of the famous French quiche.

Asparagus Is Fine in Salad

Spring Bouquet Salad looks like the spirit of spring. The fresh green of the asparagus tips, the tonic effect of green onion and the golden yolk circled with white, all add up to an eye-tempting salad.

SPRING BOUQUET SALAD

1 lb. fresh asparagus tips
1 cup zucchini, thinly sliced circles
3 tomatoes, quartered
2 green onions, thinly sliced
⅛ teaspoon cracked pepper
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
¼ cup Italian dressing
2 cups of bite-sized chunks of iceberg lettuce

Prepare by washing, asparagus and zucchini. Cut the asparagus stalk into diagonal slices and leave the tip whole. Cut the zucchini into thin circles.

Cook each in separate pans so you can control the degree of cooking. The asparagus should be cooked in ½ cup of salted boiling water until just tender, about 5 minutes.

The thin zucchini slices in the same amount of water but blanched about 3 minutes. Drain and cool.

In a glass salad bowl, put the tomato quarters on the bottom, sprinkle with green onion slices, followed by zucchini, cracked pepper, egg slices and asparagus tips on top.

Pour the dressing slowly over the top so it can dribble down to the bottom and coat each item. Refrigerate for at least an hour or more. When ready to serve, add the lettuce and toss.

Salt Substitutes Are Other Foods

Fresh lemon juice squeezed onto meats, fish, and poultry seems to make the addition of salt unnecessary. Apples lend savor to sweet potatoes; oranges to carrots and beets; cranberries to poultry.

Ginger gives a flavor fillip to chicken or lamb; a touch of curry powder blends well with almost any meat, fish, or shellfish. Slightly increased use of pepper, particularly when coarsely ground, seems to compensate for lack of salt in egg and veal dishes.

★ ★ ★

Unsalted tomato juice can be combined, to taste, with vinegar or lemon juice, salad herbs, sugar, and onion or chives to make a tasty dressing for salads or a marinade for meats.

So, by using natural or man-made chemical flavor builders such as these, foods cooked without salt can be taste-tempting treats.

Freezer Has Salad Makings

Molded fruit salads are favorite choices for buffet party menus. Besides the practical advantage that they can be prepared in advance, they are decorative assets for table settings and they go well with many foods and flavors.

The following salad can be prepared quickly and easily with the aid of frozen juices and fruits. In this recipe, frozen orange juice and frozen grapefruit sections are combined for a tangy salad with a rich golden-orange color.

ORANGE-GRAPEFRUIT SALAD RING

2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
2½ cups water
1 can (6-ounces) frozen orange juice concentrate
1 can (13¾ ounces) frozen grapefruit sections, thawed

Sprinkle gelatine over water in saucepan. Let stand 5 minutes. Cook over low heat, stirring, until gelatine is dissolved.

Add frozen orange juice concentrate and juice drained from grapefruit sections. Stir until smooth and blended. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in grapefuuit sections.

Pour mixture into a 6-cup ring mold. Chill until firm. To unmold, dip mold into lukewarm water for a few seconds, then tap to loosen and invert on a flat serving plate.

Garnish with bite-size pieces of lettuce or other crisp salad greens. Accompany with mayonnaise or salad dressing. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Freezer Aids Entertaining

With even a little freezer storage, the busy homemaker can lighten the tasks of spring entertaining, and still be known as a superb hostess.

Canapes, cakes, pies and cookies are among the many items that can be made up ahead of time, popped into the freezer, and brought forth almost at the drop of a hat for gracious entertaining.

Proper wrapping for freezing and proper defrosting are the keys to successful freezer-method entertaining as well as everyday cooking with frozen foods.

Canapes, for example, should be wrapped quickly before the bread dries out, and should be kept away from the interior walls of the freezer (contact makes the bread soggy). They should be thawed in the wrappings allowing 15 minutes to half an hour.

Dozens of similar tips for successful freezing of meats, pastries, even casseroles and main dishes are provided in a little booklet called "How to Keep the Foods You Freeze At Peak Flavor."

This valuable new 16-page booklet is available at 10 cents per copy. Send coin to Service Products Ed., Brown Company, Kalamazoo, Mich. 49007.

During the summer months wash, store and dry all seeds from melons, squash and pumpkins. Birds will love them next winter when snows are deep and it is hard for them to find food.

Spaghetti Sauce Is Fine for Eggplant Casserole

The first popular Italian vegetable served in America was Eggplant Parmigiano. Only a few years ago it was considered a delicacy.

Today, with the convenience of prepared Italian sauces such as the new thick spaghetti sauce, Eggplant Parmigiano has become more familiar to the American palate.

Parmigiano means made with Parmesan cheese. The original Italian Parmesan is produced in a small section of northern Italy and is considered the world's only seasoning cheese.

An Italian might tell you that for Parmesan to be at its best, it should be grated just before using. However, if you keep grated Parmesan tightly sealed and refrigerated, it will also keep its flavor.

EGGPLANT PARMIGIANO

1 large eggplant
2 eggs
2 cups seasoned bread crumbs
½ cup oil
1 jar (1 lb.) spaghetti sauce with mushrooms
3 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese
½ pound mozzarella cheese, thinly sliced

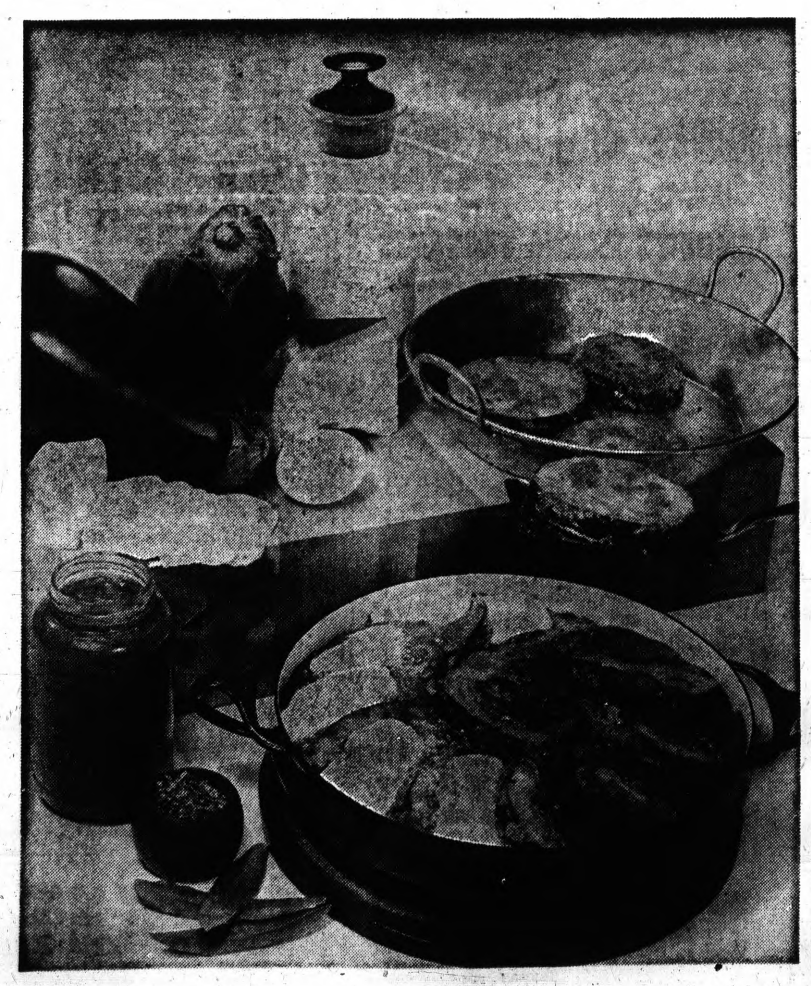

★ ★ ★

Cut eggplant in slices ½ inch thick. Beat up egg in small bowl. Dip eggplant in egg and then in the seasoned bread crumbs. Fry eggplant until brown; drain well on paper.

★ ★ ★

Place one layer of eggplant in baking casserole; cover with sauce; sprinkle with parmesan cheese and cover with layer of mozzarella. Repeat procedure until all eggplant is used, ending with mozzarella.

Bake in hot oven 400 degrees for 15 minutes.

EGGPLANT PARMIGIANO — Eggplant Parmigiano combines the subtle flavor of eggplant with a slightly salty, sharp parmesan cheese and a full bodied spaghetti sauce — thus complimenting any entree you'd serve — let it be veal, chicken, or beef.

DIVING RETURN — Detroit's Bill Freehan dives back to first base after almost being doubled off on Jim Northrup's line drive to third base in the second inning of last night's game with the Chicago White Sox. First baseman Ron Hansen reaches for the late throw. The White Sox won, 6-0.

Jeered by Disappointed Tiger Fans

Horton Won't Forget It

DETROIT (UPI) — Willie Horton will probably remember May 14, 1969, all his life. For the first time, he got booed in Detroit.

Being the type of person he is, Willie understands — he doesn't like it any the more — but he understands.

★ ★ ★

He knows that when you fail in the clutch and make an error in the outfield which contributes to a run by the opposition that the fans are likely to not take it too kindly.

And that's what happened Wednesday night when the Tigers dropped a 6-0 decision to the Chicago White Sox and the wrath of the 14,140 fans descended upon their native born Detroit son.

★ ★ ★

"There's a first time for everything," said a philosophical Horton after the loss, which dropped the Tigers back to six and one-half games behind the Baltimore Orioles.

★ ★ ★

"I don't know why they booed," said one of the most popular ball players ever to play left field for Detriot. "It was just one of those things.

DOING BEST

"I'm doing my best — the Good Lord knows that — and that's all I can do," he said. "I figured it was coming," Horton added about the chorus of uncomplimentary noises the fans made.

"It would bother anybody — but as long as I know I'm trying my best . . ."

Willie is 2-for-21 on the recent Detroit home stand, and in the first and third innings Wednesday night the slugging left fielder stranded runners on first and third with two out both times.

★ ★ ★

However, in his defense, Buddy Bradford made one of the best catches he'll ever make on a 420-foot Horton drive to nearly dead center in the first inning.

★ ★ ★

"Most centerfielders don't play Willie that straight-away," said Jim Northrup after the game. "If Bradford is playing like most of them do, there's no way he can catch the ball."

Anyway, Bradford caught the ball and Gary Peters went on to shut out the Tigers on six hits — recording three strikeouts to put him at exactly 1,000 whiffs for his career. Incidentally, the "K" which Peters set his personal mark with, the third and final one he got in the game, was Horton in the sixth.

★ ★ ★

"I'm not a strikeout pitcher," commented the White Sox' lefty.

"I don't think about those things during a game. You can't."

★ ★ ★

Peters was presented with his third win against four losses when rookie Charles May slugged opposite field home run to left — his ninth this season — off John Hiller in the fourth. It was enough to send Hiller down to his first loss against one win.

EASY WIN

Chicago added four more tallies in the sixth with the same kind of ease which Detroit was chalking up its victories last season.

★ ★ ★

Luis Aparacio, who later added another single for his 1,999th major league hit, singled to lead off that frame and May walked before Bill Melton sacrificed both runners along.

★ ★ ★

Earl Wilson 1-4 and Tommy John 3-0 meet in the windup of the three-game series tonight.

Blair's Bat, Glove Save Day for Birds

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Baltimore Orioles Manager Earl Weaver wants only one man in center field in a tight situation — Paul Blair.

Blair responded to the confidence Wednesday night with a game-saving catch of a would be extra base hit that would have won or tied the game in the ninth inning.

Instead, the Orioles held off the Minnesota Twins for a 9-8 victory—five runs driven in off Blair's hot bat.

Blair smashed two home runs and a two-run single, which accounted for the winning run.

LEAP FOR BALL

But more important, Blair leaped against the fence in left center field and robbed Rod Carew, the American League's leading hitter, of a possible home run with one man on.

"Blair is one of the few center fielders that could have caught the ball," said Weaver.

Twins Manager Billy Martin agreed.

★ ★ ★

"Even after they got their runs and our pitching broke down, it took a sensational catch to beat us. A sensational catch," said Martin, whose team had battled back from a 9-2 deficit.

"We should have won if he wouldn't have caught it, and he shouldn't have caught it if the fence was padded. He climbed the fence after it."

GOOD DAY AT PLATE — Infielder Rodger Strader of Waterford Mott produced three runs with a double and single as the Corsairs upended Kettering, 7-0, Wednesday for their first varsity win over WKHS or WTHS, both of whom own one-run decisions over Mott (7-4) previously this spring.

Andretti Gears for Pole Bid

Qualifying Runs Start Saturday at Indy Oval

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Mario Andretti raised the year's top speed at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway to 171.657 miles per hour on a practice lap Wednesday and remained the only driver officially over the 170 m.p.h. mark.

★ ★ ★

Good weather, after several days of rain, sent 40 cars onto the track. The first day of qualifying for the 53rd 500-mile race is Saturday.

3 TIME WINNER

Three-time winner A. J. Foyt had his fastest lap of the year Wednesday, 169.651 m.p.h. Only Andretti's car has gone faster. Both drivers have turbocharged Ford engines in their cars.

Roger McCluskey, driving a Foyt-owned car had a lap of 169.5 Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

Joe Leonard, Al Unser and Wally Dallenbach all had laps of over 166 m.p.h.

Andretti's car already had the fastest lap by a piston engine car in Indianapolis history, 171.494 m.p.h. on Tuesday, and he has topped 170 on several other laps.

★ ★ ★

Three members of Foyt's crew said they timed him at just over 170 m.p.h. Wednesday, but the official electric timer caught him in 169.651.

Bobby Unser, last year's champion, spun on the first turn in his car when a connection rod broke, but the car made no contact with the wall.

★ ★ ★

An Andy Granatelli-owned car with a stock block Plymouth engine made its first appearance on the track, and driver Art Pollard took it for a few shakedown laps. Granatelli has 11 cars entered for the 500 but only six were in the Speedway garages by Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

Andretti and 1966 winner Graham Hill also are driving for Granatelli.

WTHS Clips Clarkston

Mott Trips Captains

Sophomore Bill Poe and junior Rodger Strader can be excused today by their Waterford Mott classmates if their caps are too small for their heads.

They were the key performances Wednesday as the Corsairs (7-4) surprised Kettering, 7-0, for their first varsity decision over either of their Waterford rivals. Earlier this season Mott dropped one-run verdicts to both WKHS and Waterford Township.

★ ★ ★

WTHS, meanwhile yesterday, was extending its run-scoring mastery over Clarkston (6-9) with a 14-1 romp.

The youthful Poe remained undefeated on the mound by yielding only a first-inning bunt single and a line drive safety in the second. He registered nine strikeouts and didn't walk anyone.

Strader clouted a two-run double in the second, then ignited a three-run outburst in the fifth with a single.

WINNINGEST NINE

The county's winningest prep nine, WTHS boosted its mark to 16-3 with its fourth win in a row this season and fifth straight over Clarkston.

★ ★ ★

The Skippers rapped 16 hits in yesterday's win and now have scored 60 runs in the past two years against the Wolves' pitchers. Earlier this season Waterford was a 16-0 winner.

★ ★ ★

Jim Smith and Mike Sheldon, each of whom had three hits in the game, led off for WTHS with back-to-back singles as it scored three times in the opening inning.

Steve Goit drilled a two-run homer in his only trip.

Prep Golfers in Regionals

Prep golfers take time out tomorrow to launch their bids for state championships.

Three of the 13 regional tournaments are slated at area courses.

Burroughs Farms near Brighton will entertain Classes A, B, and C-D, while Glen Oaks in Farmington will play host to A and B teams. Romeo Golf Course will stage a 'B' tourney.

★ ★ ★

On the links yesterday, Brighton whipped West Bloomfield at Burroughs Farms, 155-159, while Lake Orion downed Romeo at Bald Mountain, 173-195.

Bill Brafford posted a 38 and Louis Meldman a 39 to pace West Bloomfield (11-4), while Darrel Denkhaus carded a 37 for Brighton. Hoyt Frericks checked in with a 38 and Bruce Rupert a 40 to lead Orion. Doug Carl managed a 43 for Romeo.

Lahser Trackmen Outrun Andover in First Meeting

Lahser's Knights drew first blood as they initiated track competition with Andover Wednesday in a Bloomfield Hills neighborhood athletic rivalry.

The unbeaten Class B power pulled away from the Class A Barons in the final mile relay to take home a 61½-56½ victory. Andover is now 4-3.

The Barons swept the shot put and took first place in all four field events. They added only the high hurdles and half mile in the racing events.

★ ★ ★

Harry Perry doubled in the 100 and 220 for Lahser with :10.3 and :23.4 timings. Bill Hafted ran a :52.2 quarter-mile for BHL.

Lahser now will try for its first Class B regional track trophy in a showdown Friday at New Baltimore Anchor Bay with rugged Cranbrook, West Bloomfield and Oxford also among the favorites.

San Diego Glad to Leave Banks

CHICAGO (AP) — The San Diego Padres are glad to leave Chicago and get away from that old gaffer, Ernie Banks.

Everything happened to the Padres in their three-game set with the first-place Cubs who now have a four-game winning streak.

"I'm happy we don't have to see Banks again until a couple of weeks when they come to San Diego," said Manager Preston Gomez.

Monday the Padres were blanked 2-0 on Fergie Jenkin's five-hitter. The next day they were humiliated with 19-0 smashing as Banks hit two homers and a double and drove in seven runs.

Wednesday they bowed 3-2. Banks' homer — his seventh of the year — off Johnny Podres led off the ninth inning and tied the game 2-2.

1st-Flight Player Surprises Field

A first-flight golfer left the championship players a little red-faced yesterday as she upset the normal routine by posting the low score in the weekly Women's Metropolitan Golf Association outing.

Mrs. C. E. Luber, a WMGA veteran who has been on the border between championship and first flight for several seasons, turned in a 44-44—88 at Brae Burn in Northville to lead a field of 65.

Since only the players in the championship flight are eligible for honors in that division, Mrs. Luber did not win the top prize but she'll be given a trophy at the end of the season for her efforts.

Mrs. Luber accomplished her low score with a new set of clubs that she tried out the night before.

Setting the pace in the championship flight was Mrs. David Mortimer of Birmingham with a 41-49—90.

Shaughnessy Headed Minors

Noted Baseball Figure Dies

MONTREAL (AP) — Frank "Shag" Shaughnessy, a famed all-round athlete, football coach, baseball player, coach, manager, owner and league president, and originator of the playoff system in baseball that bears his name, died this morning in a Montreal hospital. He was 86.

The tall, gray-haired native of Amboy, Ill., was stricken Tuesday by a massive aneurism—an abnormal enlargement of an artery near his heart and was rushed to Montreal General Hospital.

In 1967 he was stricken by a circulatory ailment and had to have his right leg amputated above the knee.

Shaughnessy, a Notre Dame graduate, was president of baseball's International League from 1936 until his retirement in 1960.

It was in 1936, when he was business manager of the Montreal club, that he devised the playoff system because one of the clubs was running away with the International League pennant and fans were losing interest. Under the Shaughnessy plan, four teams qualified for the post-season playoffs.

FRANK SHAUGHNESSY

It was an immediate success and proved to be the salvation of the minor leagues. The plan, with some variations, then was picked up by practically all professional sports leagues.

8 Horses Entered in Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — Majestic Prince, the unbeaten winner of the Kentucky Derby, Arts and Letters, and Top Knight were among eight 3-year-olds entered today for the Preakness Stakes.

★ ★ ★

Others entered for Saturday's second leg of the Triple Crown were Elmendorf's Captain Action, Glenn M. Banker's and Nick Coluccio's Glad's Flame, Claiborne Farm's Jay Ray, Pelican Stable's Al Hattab, and Michael Phipps' Greengrass Green.

Each will carry 126 pounds when they go to the post at 5:40 p.m., EDT, for the 1 3/16 mile classic at Pimlico.

★ ★ ★

With eight starters, the gross purse for the richest of the Triple Crown races will be $182,000, with $129,500 to the winner.

Television of the event will be handled by CBS from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

"It just suits me perfectly," said trainer Johnny Longden after drawing the No. 5 post position for Frank McMahon's Majestic Prince, who will be bidding for his ninth victory.

Bill Hartack will ride Majestic Prince as he has in all the powerful chestnut's previous races.

Braulio Baeza will take Arts and Letters, the Derby runnerup, out of the No. 6 gate.

HAPPY EAGLETS — Freshman hurler Walt Sakowski (right) of Orchard Lake St. Mary has a giant grin as he receives congratulations from batterymate Rick Strzalkowski after beating Pontiac Catholic, 3-2, on a two-hitter yesterday at Aaron-Perry Park. Strzalkowski singled home the tying run in the seventh and scored the winner for the Eaglets (5-1).

Titans Are Foiled in Upset Bid

Pontiac Catholic had a major upset in its grasp but Orchard Lake St. Mary came back to pull out a 3-2 victory Wednesday afternoon at Aaron-Perry Park in the Northwest Catholic loop.

St. Mary, the league runner-up, scored an unearned run in the opening inning but fell behind when Tim Boyer and Tom Jamnik singled for PCHS' only two hits and each advanced on errors to score the Titans' runs in the fifth and sixth innings.

Boyer circled the bases on his smash to center that was misplayed. Jamnik then put the home team in front when Pat Manion's fly ball drove him home.

BOUNCE BACK

But a lead-off double and walk in the seventh set up St. Mary's best scoring opportunity against loser Jeff Solwold. No. 9 hitter Rick Strazalkowski ripped a liner to left for his second hit of the season to tie the game.

★ ★ ★

The St. Mary catcher then moved around the bases and tallied the deciding marker when shortstop Tim Megge bounced a single off reliefer Jeff Fisher's glove with two out.

A two-base error after two outs in the last of the inning gave the Titans (3-6) a final chance but Jamnik flied out to end the game. Walt Sakowski gained his second win for St. Mary.

Bases-Loaded Walk Wins for California

ANAHEIM (AP) — Jim McGlothlin and Hoyt Wilhelm combined for a shutout, and a bases-loaded walk to Bubba Morton gave California a 1-0 victory over Washington Wednesday night.

Reliever Casey Cox came on with the bases loaded and none out in the sixth. He got one out, but then walked Morton to force in the only run of the game.

Starter Jim Hannan, 2-3, walked Jim Fregosi to open the inning. Jap Johnstone followed with a single, only the third off Hannan, and Repoz walked to load the bases.

McGlothlin went six innings and had to work with men on base in every inning.

Kettering Golfers Topple Waterford in Playoff Duel

Waterford shook off a three-hole playoff defeat by archrival Kettering to hand Rochester its second loss of the spring, 208-210, at Pontiac Country Club as Scott Niederluecke posted a three-over-par 39.

Earlier, Kettering gained its first All-Sports Trophy points of the spring and cut the Skippers' lead to 400-250. The two teams tied earlier this spring and WKHS took a four-stroke win as 10 players dueled for three extra holes.

Ron Greenlee of WTHS and the Captains' Chuck Patrick each had a birdie during the playoff.

Extra Innings in Rec Action

A single by Chuck Gavette and a double by Rich Lamphere brought Weedon's a 6-5 win in eight innings over Tru-Bilt in Waterford recreational fastpitch softball last night.

In another fastpitch game, Morrie Lapratt picked up two hits to lead Milbur Industry past Lighthouse Lanes, 3-1.

★ ★ ★

In a blooperball game, the Whiskers scored seven runs in the top of the 10th to down Huntoon's, 9-2.

Bunting Stays Home

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association announced Wednesday the signing of Bill Bunting, 6-8 North Carolina star, who also was sought by the New York Knicks.

Lahser Wins, Cranes Lose

Milford Tips Vikings

Undefeated Milford received a bright performance from Bob Clinard and made Walled Lake Central victim No. 12 Wednesday, 7-1, in a nonleague outing.

Bloomfield Hills Lahser won its second in two days, downing Brighton, 11-1; and Cranbrook suffered its 11th loss in 20 games by dropping a 5-3 verdict to Catholic Central.

Clinard, backed by a dependable defense, scattered five WLC safeties and was in command after the Redskins scored three times in the first to take a 3-1 lead.

Ron Thompson's triple put the Vikings (5-8) in front briefly. Then Mark Giegler tied it with a single and scored on Larry Vick's single. Clinard drove in John Stabley with the winners' fourth hit of the opening inning.

Clinard tripled home catcher Larry Vick (who had three singels in the game) in the third and stole home. Rick Sharpe followed with an RBI-single, too. The Redskins meet Wayne-Oakland League runner-up Kettering this afternoon.

Lahser broke in front of Brighton on Mike Hirsch's three-run double in the first, and he scored on Bernie McPheely's squeeze bunt. Doug Wagner drilled a two-run homer to cap the Knights' six-run third inning.

★ ★ ★

Craig Brown struck out 10, including five of the first six batters he faced, in raising the BHL mark to 4-7.

Catholic Central tallied three times at Cranbrook without the aid of a hit in the third inning and the Cranes couldn't catch up. Sandy Heavenrich had two singles to figure in two of the losers' runs, and Rod Fonda was in on all three.

Slowpitch Shutout in Industrial Loop

Copper Mug and Liberty Tool extended their unblemished marks Wednesday night in the Walled Lake Industrial Slowpitch Softball circuit and the toolmen enhanced their performance with a shutout win.

Liberty's Chuck Lukkari and Gary Marsh combined to hold Mobil Temp to four hits and five baserunners in an 8-0 victory. The tool team is now 3-0 and shares the "B" bracket lead with the Penny Electrics.

Copper Mug held off Carpentry Engineering, 7-5, to stay atop the "A" race at 4-0. Williams Research upped its mark to 3-1 in the "B" division by trimming Ken Kraft, 14-4.

TEEING OFF

By FLETCHER SPEARS

Some things can't be rushed. Mother Nature for one.

Which means, among other things, that golfers, unhappy with the patchy greens, will have to be patient while Mother Nature does her thing, that of putting color back into the putting surfaces.

Most courses in Michigan are now displaying some unsightly greens. The owners certainly aren't happy with the situation, but it's really not management's fault.

"It's due entirely to a winter of little rainfall and snow," says noted greens superintendent Clarence Wolfrom, 62, who for the past 38 years has had the responsibility of keeping golfers happy with the greens at Maple Lanes near Warren.

"From the first of February to the last of March we had practically no rain at all and this led to what we call desication," said Wolfrom, who'll be among the eight Michigan personalities to be honored at the Michigan Golf Day Dinner next Tuesday at Hillcrest Country Club in Mount Clemens.

"Desication means drying out," explained Wolfrom. "It's a drying out of the soil. In other words, a plant has to have so much moisture or it will die. When it is exposed so long to freezing conditions and winds, the moisture is gone. It's especially severe on higher areas facing north and west.

"What happened was that while dry they (grass roots) froze that way. If we had snow or some rain it would have prevented it."

Coming to defense of course owners, Wolfrom said, "You couldn't turn your water on because the pipes would freeze. We have some extra help here (47 holes) so we used hoses and pumped water from the river, from the clubhouse, from bathrooms. It was quite a job with low pressure but it saved a lot of our greens.

"We had severe trouble with three of our greens. Some are perfect, some we've patched and there are some spots on seven others."

What can you do about them?

"Well, we have a large nursery so we have sodded the bigger areas, and on those we didn't sod, we have been spiking, seeding and topdressing. The secret is to get the seed into the spike holes and then get a little soil on top of that.

"The soil has been another problem. It's still cold. . . about 40 degrees. To germinate it has to be 60 or 70. We've had very few nights above 40 degrees so the soil hasn't warmed up."

On a lighter note, Wolfrom says, "The best thing to do is pray for better weather. It's a good theory. Sometimes I use it here. Thinking back, this is the worst year (for desication) that I can remember."

Preventing it is almost impossible, says Wolfrom, who has served six terms as president of the Michigan Border Cities Greens Superintendents Association, and who was one of the principal founders of the Michigan Turf Foundation, an organization that carries on turf experimentation at Michigan State University.

The greens must have moisture year around and there's no sure fire way of accomplishing that says Wolfrom. "If there is snow available, many haul it to the greens where it has blown away and some put brush on the greens to hold what snow there is.

Softball Loop for Teen-Age Players Eyed

Organization of a summer fast-pitch softball league for players 18 years of age and under is being considered by the Pontiac Parks and Recreation Department.

Apparently the only thing that stands in the way of such a loop is finding enough teams.

★ ★ ★

Pontiac Central teacher Fred Zittel, former basketball coach at PCH, has agreed to work with the formation of the new league.

"It would be at no cost to the teams," says Zittel. "We would play early evening . . . probably around 5 p.m., and the city will furnish fields and umpires.

★ ★ ★

"If possible, we'd like to start around the middle of June and continue through June or early August. And if we had enough teams, we could engage in a playoff."

★ ★ ★

Zittel said that any organization desiring to enter a team in such a league could contact him at 682-8815, or call the Parks and Recreation office, FE 3-7131.

Changing Teams

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota North Stars traded defenseman Wayne Hillman to the Philadelphia Flyers Wednesday for defenseman John Miszuk in a straight player National Hockey League deal.

Watch Eagle Cars Closely at Indy

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — No entries for the 53rd 500-mile auto race May 30 are being watched more closely in practice than the four new Eagles built by driver-engineer Dan Gurney.

After all the publicity for Lotus turbine cars last year, the race ended with Gurney Eagles in three of the first four places.

★ ★ ★

Bobby Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., won with an Eagle powered with a turbocharged Offenhauser engine.

Gurney himself was runnerup in an Eagle with a modified Ford stock block engine.

DIFFERENT ENGINE

Denis Hulme, New Zealander who was 1967 world champion and No. 3 internationally last year, took fourth place for the second straight year, driving an Eagle with a nonsupercharged Ford racing engine.

That kind of a performance with three different engines made the Gurney chassis look pretty superior.

★ ★ ★

Carrol Shelby, another noted race driver and designer, and Gurney formed All American Racers of Santa Ana, Calif., in 1966. Gurney since has become sole proprietor of the business.

All American Racers built four new Indianapolis cars for this year and there may be seven or eight older Eagles in the field.

NEW CARS

Two new Eagles will be driven by Gurney and Hulme as a team, with one in reserve. The fourth was sold to Smokey Yunick of Daytona Beach, Fla., a noted stock car racing expert, who has Joe Leonard of San Jose, Calif., in the cockpit.

Leonard was leading last year's 500 in an STP Lotus-Turbine with only 9 laps to go when a fuel pump shaft broke.

★ ★ ★

He has made a quick adaptation to the new Eagle and got it up to a respectable 164.654 miles per hour in the first week of practice. He holds the track qualifying record of 171.559 in the turbine, now outlawed by new engine restrictions.

Gurney is still experimenting with his new cars in the week before the May 17 start of time trials for the Memorial Day classic.

SEVERAL NOSES

"We're trying three different tails and several noses," Gurney said. "There is absolutely no way to test an over-all car design for the 500 except at the Speedway.

"The 1969 Eagles are entirely new," Gurney said. "There is no one thing that is radically different but the silhouette is lower. Other changes are such things as placement of the fuel tanks and mounting of the engine. We'll know whether they're improvements after the race."

Chisox Deal for Knoop

DETROIT (AP) — The Chicago White Sox obtained second baseman Bobby Knoop from the California Angels Wednesday in a straight player trade for infielder Santos (Sandy) Alomar and pitcher Bob Priddy.

Knoop, 30, was regarded as one of the American League's top fielders. He was hitting at a .179 clip as of yesterday, with 12 hits in 67 appearances.

★ ★ ★

Alomar, 25, was obtained by the White Sox from the New York Mets two years ago. He had seen only limited service this year.

Yanks Whip Pilots to End 6-Game Skid

SEATTLE (AP) — To quote the manager, Ralph Houk said, "We needed it real damn bad" when his New York Yankees rallied in the late innings Wednesday night to edge the Seattle Pilots 5-4 and end a six-game losing streak.

The Yanks had lost 13 of their last 14 games and they seemed headed for another setback when a home run by Steve Whitaker, plus singles by Tommy Davis and Wayne Comer, got the Pilots off to a 2-0 lead in the first inning.

★ ★ ★

Not until the fifth did the Yanks begin to solve the delivery of Mike Marshall, who had started the game with a string of 11 scoreless innings.

Base Thievery Lifts Tribe

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jose Cardenal did it his way Wednesday night, literally stealing a baseball victory for the Cleveland Indians.

★ ★ ★

"I like to run, and I like to win," was the slender Cuban's simple explanation of his daring one-man show that sank the Kansas City Royals 3-2 in 11 innings.

★ ★ ★

Cardenal was instrumental in all three Cleveland runs, and scored the winning tally virtually unaided in the 11th.

★ ★ ★

He singled leading off that frame, stole second and third against Moe Drabowsky and then streaked home with the deciding run as Tony Horton grounded out.

GETS HIT

Cardenal might have been out at the plate, but Royals catcher Ellie Rodriguez got hit just as he took the throw from first baseman Chuck Harrison, never had control of the ball, and finally let it trickle to the ground as umpire Don Denkinger waited to see if he could hold it.

★ ★ ★

Had Rodriguez kept the ball, Cardenal would have been out.

Rodriguez was given an error, and the run went down officially as unearned. Few would question, however, whether Cardenal earned the run.

★ ★ ★

His two stolen bases giving him six for the season—were picture-book displays of baserunning.

Two Straight at Home for N. L. Champs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Joe Hoerner bailed Nelson Briles out of a seventh-inning jam and the St. Louis Cardinals, who managed just two hits, defeated Los Angeles 2-1 Wednesday night.

★ ★ ★

The victory marked the first time this season the Cardinals, defending National League champions, have won two in a row at home.

Culp, Tony 'C' Lead Bosox Past Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) — Tony Conigliaro drove in both Boston runs and Ray Culp fired a six-hitter and struck out 11, moving the Red Sox to a 2-1 victory over Oakland Wednesday night.

★ ★ ★

Conigliaro's broken-bat single drove in Carl Yastrzemski, who had walked and stolen second in the first inning.

★ ★ ★

Then with the score tied at 1-1 in the eighth, Dalton Jones led off with a double. Mike Andrews lined out and Yastrzemski was intentionally walked. But Conigliaro crossed up the strategy with a line single to left.

'Grand' Night for Late Hitting Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleon Jones' grand slam homer highlighted an eight-run uprising in the eighth inning as the New York Mets, held hitless by Phil Niekro through the sixth, bounced back to flatten the Atlanta Braves 9-3 Wednesday night.

Niekro, gunning for his seventh victory, did not allow a hit until Ken Boswell opened the seventh with a triple.

MONTREAL (AP) — Jesus Alou's two-run homer snapped an eighth-inning tie and the Houston Astro's rode Denny Lemaster's five-hit pitching to a 3-1 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Alou unloaded against Jim "Mudcat" Grant after Doug Rader reached second on Maury Wills' two-out throwing error. It was the first homer of the year for the outfielder ho went to the Astros from Montreal in the controversial Donn Clendenon-Rusty Staub trade.

Slow Pitch Hitters Find Homer Range

The batters are in a home run groove in city slowpitch action Ten roundtrippers were recorded in five contests last night with Conn's Clothes picking up four in a 21-7 victory over Oxford Mattress in a class A American League outing.

OTHER GAMES

In two other A-American games, Designers Cabinet dropped a 20-13 decision to J.A. Fredman, while The Pontiac Press rallied for a 9-5 decision over Local No. 596.

★ ★ ★

In a pair of Class B National games, Peterson Beauty Salon downed Duckey's Bar, 19-8, and Local No. 653 whipped Bob & Ken's, 11-3.

CLOUTS 2 HOMERS

Grady Thomas clouted a pair of homers and teammates Donald McConner and Ron Adams picked up one apiece to spark Conn's.

★ ★ ★

Frank Eifler cracked a pair of home runs to pace the J.A. Fredman victory.

The Pontiac Press came up with five runs in the last two innings to top Local 596. Dan Glowaz paced the Press with three hits.

Jim Newman and Dennis Burrill slammed home runs to lead Peterson's victory, and Jim Pestro unloaded a two-run blast to help Local 653 past Bob & Kens.

Vikings Lose Delayed Match

Walled Lake's tennis squad had a good thing going Tuesday but rain spoiled it.

The Vikings had taken a 3-2 lead over Livonia Stevenson when the rain came. The squads returned for the day and returned yesterday for the final two matches and Stevenson won both of them to win 4-3.

Richard Petty Withdraws From 2 Races

RANDLEMAN, N.C. (AP) — Veteran race car driver Richard Petty has announced he has withdrawn from NASCAR races at Beltsville, Md., Friday and at Langley Field in Hampton, Va., Saturday.

The announcement came in a telegram to NASCAR officals Wednesday. Petty said his doctor had advised his withdrawal.

He did not specify the reason for the doctor's advice. Petty injured his ribs May 4 when his car hit a wall during the Fireball 300 race at Weaverville, N.C.

The Randleman, N.C. driver is currently the third highest money winner on the NASCAR charts this year with $47,330.

Rochester Mentor Seeks Final Crown

"I'd sure like to bow out with three champions," Rochester track coach Wayne Case issued a challenge to the Falcons and very likely a warning to their Oakland A League rivals Wednesday.

Case made the comment along with the announcement that he is retiring from the prep coaching ranks after five years with the Falcons to assume assistant principal duties in the high school.

Last fall Case guided Rochester to the O-A cross country title, then took the Falcons to the basketball crown during the winter. Yesterday's 94-24 win over Utica completed a sweep of the league dual meets.

FAVORED

Now 9-1 over-all, Rochester needs a second in the league meet next Wednesday at Madison Heights to gain at least a share of the track laurels, and are heavy favorites to win the meet and sweep the cinder honors.

★ ★ ★

Rochester runners swept the two relays, the 100-yard dash and the 440-yard dash, and the Falcons also were one-two-three in the pole vault and high jump. Russ Gill and Mike Hall each won two events.

★ ★ ★

Lake Orion (3-5) romped past Madison in another O-A clash, 73-45, despite the Eagles (1-6) superiority in the field events. The Dragons won nine of the 10 running matches.

INTER-LAKES

In Inter-Lakes League action, Pontiac Northern downed Waterford Township, 80-38, and Walled Lake Central drubbed Southfield Lathrup, 99-19.

★ ★ ★

Walled Lake (9-3) commanded all the points in the high jump, shot put, mile run, 440 dash and 220. Richie Richmond placed first three times and ran on the winning 880 relay.

Groves Keeps Title Hopes Alive

Birmingham Groves helped its Northwest Suburban title hopes with a tight win Wednesday afternoon but Birmingham Seaholm's bid for the Southeast Michigan crown was damaged again by Royal Oak Kimball's Doug Barnes.

Groves topped Livonia Franklin, 3-2, to move within a half game of idle leader Detroit Thurston. The Eagles are 5-1 and meet winless North Farmington this afternoon in a makeup game.

Groves climbed to 4-1 with its win, and Oak Park stayed right in the race at 6-2 with a 4-3 conquest of Westland John Glenn.

Seaholm slipped into a tie with Hazel Park at 4-2 as Barnes beat the Maples for the second time this spring, adding yesterday's 3-0 shutout to his earlier 4-1 victory for Kimball.

Hazel Park seized the opportunity to outlast Ferndale, 7-6. Southfield cast the third-place berth into a four-way deadlock at 3-4 by thumping skidding Berkley, 7-1.

TOUGH DEFEAT

Royal Oak Dondero fell to 5-4 by suffering a 1-0 loss to Highland Park in a Border Cities League battle.

★ ★ ★

Scott Roller's opening inning double and Mark Shada's solo drive over the left field fence left Groves tied with Franklin (1-6) going into the bottom of the fifth.

★ ★ ★

Then Kevin Burke's run-scoring single won it for the Falcons (7-2 over-all) and Don Ward who struck out nine and allowed just one hit and whiffed eight in the last four innings.

SQUEEZE PLAY

Kerry Webb's two-out single for John Glenn (4-4) tied the game at Oak Park in the top of the seventh, but Lee Weiss squeezed home the winning run in the Redskins half of the inning. Oak Park is 11-2 over-all but one of the defeats is awaiting the outcome of a protest.

★ ★ ★

In the SEMA action, Kimball rode Carl Roehling's strong bat work (he's hitting .454 in league games) and Barnes' steady work on the hill. Roehling scored the Knights' first two runs after singling, and Rich Runchey drove in the other with a safety.

Fast Becoming 880 'Dash'

They used to call it the 440-yard run.

In the last few years track people have been referring to the quarter mile as the 440 dash because that's what it has become.

★ ★ ★

The 880 now is in danger of losing its "run" designation. Preps and collegians are almost sprinting this half mile distance. Latest weekly prep report for Oakland County makes this fact rather obvious.

Nine of the top 10 times in the county are under two minutes.

★ ★ ★

Kevin Reabe of Kettering is pacing the 880 with a fine 1:54.9 run early in April at Mansfield. He hasn't been pushed since. However, Pontiac Central's Ken Long should help correct this situation in Saturday's Class A regional at Waterford Township.

Actually, the standings in several events could be shaken up after the various regionals.

Spring Game Saturday

MSU Gridders on Revue

EAST LANSING (AP) — Michigan State will stage a public spring preview of its 1969 football team Saturday with a new triple-option offense the main attraction.

The backs will be lined up so any one is a threat to take the ball from the quarterback.

★ ★ ★

Coach Duffy Daugherty also calls this a "veer option and power" offense. He has hopes it will give the Spartans a better record this fall than the 5-5 won and lost record of last season.

Running the team at quarterback will be Bill Triplett, who took over as a sophomore in mid-season last fall.

RUNNING QB

Triplett completed 47 of 90 pass tries for 714 years as a sophomore. He also showed good running style with a net of 298 yards rushing.

Daugherty has said his quarterback has shown strong improvement during the spring workouts.

Admission will be charged for the benefit intersquad game. The ticket money will go to aid needy non-athletes at MSU and to help support a teaching program for underprivileged Lansing school children.

Some 40 pro football stars also will attend as an added attraction. They will be available for autographs and pictures before the 2 p.m. kick off in Spartan Stadium.

Yank Netter Falters

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Mike Estep of Rice University was defeated by Brazil's Edison Mandarino in the second round of the Conde de Godo tennis meet Wednesday, 6-1, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

Three Teams in NCAA Field

College Division Sets Regional Events

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Defending champion Chapman College of California, Sacramento State and Florida Southern have been selected to compete in the 1969 NCAA College Division baseball playoffs, it was reported Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

Chapman, boasting a 29-15 season record and champion of the Southern California Athletic Conference, and Sacramento State, champion of the Far Western Conference with a 23-20 record, were named to the Pacific Coast regional tournament to be played at Sacramento May 20-23.

Florida Southern, 24-4, was named to the field for the Atlantic Coast regional to be played May 29-31 at Fort Eustis, Va.

ATLANTIC REGIONAL

Thirteen other teams are to be named within a week to complete the four regional tournament fields. The Middwest regional will be at Mankato, Minn., State May 23-24 and the Mideast is set for May 22-24 at a site to be determined.

★ ★ ★

The NCAA College Division championship tournament, a four-team affair, will be held June 4-7 at Southwest Missouri State College, Springfield, Mo.

Highland Lakes Records First Baseball Triumph

Oakland Community College's Highland Lakes campus ended an unhappy eight-game initiation to baseball with its first victory Wednesday afternoon, a 2-1 conquest of rival Orchard Ridge in six innings.

Orchard Ridge (11-5) bounced back in the nightcap for a 6-3 win behind Lance Pesci's hurling and two-run singles by Bob Gershman and Dave Hubbard.

★ ★ ★

Jerry Beseau hurled Highland Lakes' victory in which the winners were outhit, 5-1. The Highlanders (1-9) scored without the aid of a hit, Don Scheid's sacrifice fly plating the winning run.

Hubbard singled home the Raiders' lone tally but was promptly erased in a game-ending double play.

★ ★ ★

Pesci struggled for two innings in the nightcap but teammate Chris Norton threw out a Highlander at the plate and the Orchard Ridge went ahead for good in the last half of the inning on Marv Simmons' single.

Today the Raiders meet Wayne State's junior varsity in a single game.

FIRST GAME
HIGH. LAKES 2, ORCH. RIDGE 1

Highland Lakes	000	200	2 1 2
Orchard Ridge	000	001	1 5 4

Orchard Ridge	210	30x	6 8 3

J. HORTON and Holna; PESCI (1-0) and Daniels.

Texas Tennis Ace After Brussels Title

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., reached the quarter-finals in the Brussels Open Tennis Tournament Wednesday by defeating Tam Tiriac of Rumania 8-6, 6-3.

★ ★ ★

Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico failed in his bid to reach the round of eight, losing to Raymond Taylor of Britain 6-3, 6-1.

★ ★ ★

Tom Okker of Holland, Robert Hewitt of South Africa, Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia, El Shaffei of the United Arab Republic and John Newcombe of Australia also advanced to the quarters.

Sex Education Suddenly Drawing Fire

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first of two articles on the fight over sex education.)

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

After five years of attracting little attention, sex education courses in public schools have come under attack in at least 27 states within the past year.

The intensity of the campaign against sex education has increased in recent months, primarily because some conservative organizations have joined wholeheartedly in the controversy.

★ ★ ★

The struggle between the opposing factions is turning into a bitter, emotional wrangle that has leapfrogged from the local school board to state legislatures to Congress.

Some opponents see sex education in a conspiratorial light: pornographic, Communist-serving and breaking down the morals of American youth.

PARENTS' REALM

Others see it as an intrusion into an area they feel should be left to the parents and view it as one more manifestation of the permissive society.

"There's no question that opposition to sex education is linked to public anxiety over the flood of sex in the movies, books, advertisements and mass media," said Gerald Sanctuary, international director of the Sex Information and Education Council of the U.S. SIECUS, as it is called, is a principal target of the opponents.

★ ★ ★

Legislators in Arizona, California, Idaho, Iowa, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Washington have considered measures to prohibit, control or investigate sex education.

A bill introduced in Congress would withhold federal funds from sex education courses or related teacher training.

BIRCH 'PLOT'

The addition of the John Birch Society to the campaign brought a new element to a struggle already emotionally charged and packed with an almost religious fervor. The Birch Society, through its Movement to Restore Decency—Motorede, added the suggestion of a Communist plot.

The May bulletin of the society speaks of the "pro-Communist affiliations" of proponents of sex education and of their "Communist tactics."

★ ★ ★

Although late-comers, the Birch Society waded enthusiastically into the battle and claims major credit for keeping the issue boiling.

"I'd be willing to bet you'll find a member of the society active in every state where there's opposition to sex education," said Wallis W. Wood, coordinator for ad hoc committees of the society.

MOST AREN'T

But he said, "We assume that 80 to 90 per cent of those who will support Motorede will not be members of the John Birch Society. In fact, they may completely disagree with our philosophy in other areas."

"I'm getting a little bitter about this, I don't mind telling you," said T. Bayard Williams Jr., president of the Baltimore County, Md., School Board. "The critics seem to think we have no interest in the morals of the children in Baltimore County schools. We're not going to do anything to hurt the morals of the children."

Dr. Frank Grisham, a member of the Metropolitan Nashville School Board in Tennessee, said, "Sex education is being taught in our schools and I want to get it out of the rest rooms and into the classrooms where it belongs."

★ ★ ★

In Honolulu, the Concerned Citizens of Hawaii filed suit to block sex education programs in the fifth and sixth grades. The chairman, Juanita Bird, described the courses as "insidious programs" bound to cause "emotional conflicts" in children. In late April a circuit court judge ruled in favor of the State Board of Education.

OPPOSITION RECENT

In state after state for the past five years, educators, with the backing of the National Education Association, National Congress of Parents and Teachers, American Medical Association and others, had been introducing courses in sex and family life. Then, about a year ago, opposition developed.

★ ★ ★

Schools where sex education had been a part of the curriculum for years found themselves under attack for the first time. Others, like Orange County, Fla., ran into stiff opposition when they attempted to introduce such courses. Members of the Citizens for Moral Education showed up at the April school board meeting with signs reading: "Don't turn Orange County into another Sweden."

★ ★ ★

Frequent references to Sweden as a country turned into an amoral society by sex education is a part of the rhetoric of the opposition.

No one is quite certain why opposition developed after seeming acceptance of sex education in many schools, but Wood of the Birch Society said, "It's only been recently that parents actually found out what is being taught. I doubt that one parent in a thousand had heard about sex education year ago. Now they've heard about it and they don't like what they hear."

INNOCUOUS OR SENSITIVE

A sex education program can be as innocuous as a course in hygiene, drawing little or no disapproval. Or it can delve into such sensitive areas as human reproduction, premarital sex, veneral disease, homesexuality and family planning.

Other touchy areas are teaching sex education in the elementary grades, coeducational classes and not seeking parental consent.

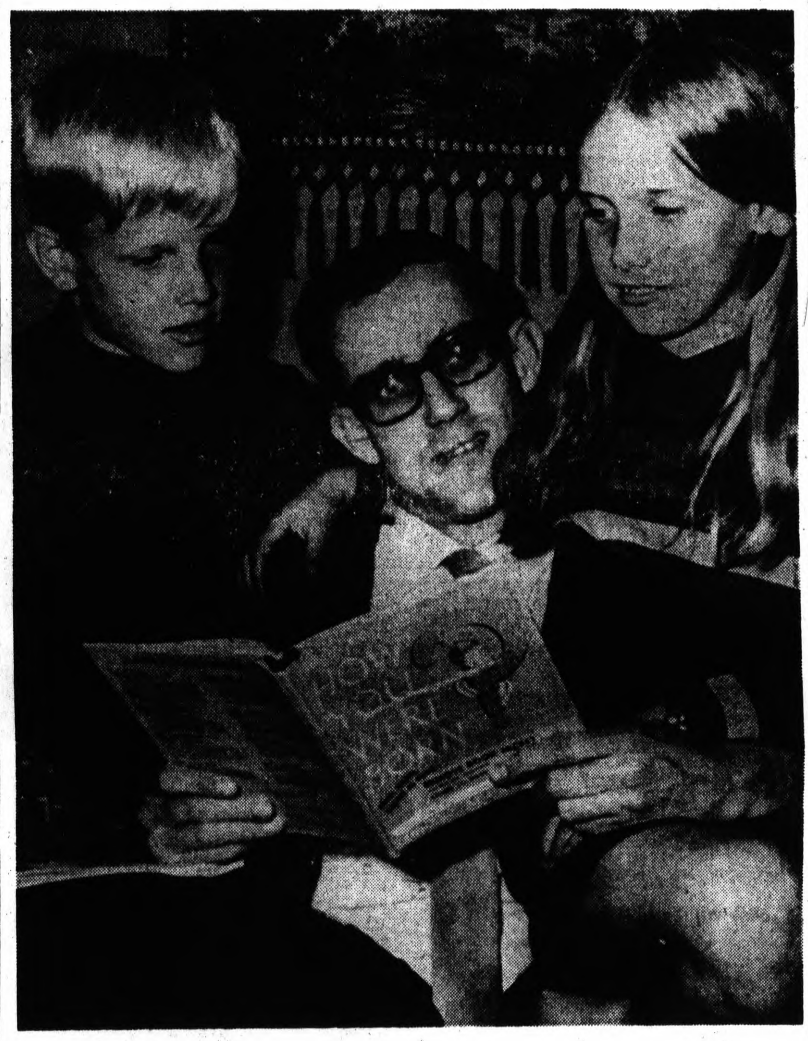

Grass-roots organizations have sprung up to combat sex education: MOMS, Mothers Organization for Moral Stability, in Scottsdale, Ariz.; PURE, Parents United for Responsible Education, in Torrance, Calif.; POSE. Parents Opposed to Sex Education, in Hopkins, Minn., and SOS, Sanity on Sex, in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Opposition to sex education reaches a fever pitch in some areas. In Michigan City, Ind., William Hoffman, a school administrator who headed a group that recommended a sex education program, reported that threats had been made against the lives of himself and his three children.

★ ★ ★

The threats were made after Hoffman described the proposed program to a group of about 500 parents at what he described as a "hostile" meeting. Hoffman said the school system has not backed down and a pilot sex education program will begin in the fall.

(Tomorrow: The target.)

'SEX GUINEA PIGS?' — Ron Mann of Renton, Wash., examines a sex education guide to parents while two of his children, Rodney, 11, and Yvonne, 10, look on. He heads a group he says opposes using children as guinea pigs in a new sex education program.

Symposium Eyes Man's Beastly Ways

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Man behaves like a beast because his biological heritage is beastly, according to scientists.

There may be some hope, however, that he can change his ways. Some beasts, at least, have managed to do this.

★ ★ ★

The possibility that warmaking man can learn to improve his behavior — or, anyway, understand it — by studying animals is being discussed at a three-day international symposium sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution. Title of the symposium is "Man and Beast: Comparative Social Behavior."

★ ★ ★

Evolution has bred into monkeys a need to keep their distance from one another (spacing) plus a simultaneous need to draw together for security and to mate and rear young along with a complex variety of stratagems for doing both without seeming to do either.

'SPACING MECHANISMS'

Animal "spacing mechanisms" were reported by I. Hans Kummer of Tulane University.

His paper went deeply into territoriality, aggression patterns, dominance, submission, inhibition (some monkeys wouldn't dream of pro-positioning another monkey's wife), efforts to achieve privacy, and a widespread tendency to take out on strangers grievances kindled by one's neighbors.

Human beings, like monkeys, Kummer suggested, often find it useful to have foreign enemies in order to preserve unity at home.

The crucial question is whether inherited behavioral tendencies can be modified to make man less beastly. Some genetic characteristics manifest themselves in any kind of environment.

Students Assisted

Nearly 257,000 students who need financial help to attend college are being assisted by the federally supported college work-study program.

VC Rejection Disappoints

Stock Mart Continues Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued lower in moderately active trading early this afternoon, with brokers reporting some investors disappointed by Vietcong rejection of President Nixon's mutual troop withdrawal proposal.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 2.27 at 966.58.

Losses led gains by about 250 issues.

"The market had been rallying forward the past two days," an analyst said, "on hopes the President's speech on the Vietnam situation might produce some sign of solid progress toward peace.

DAMPENED ENTHUSIASM

"There had been hope the President would say more than he did, something that would lead to a breakthrough. When the Vietcong rejected the President's mutual troop withdrawal proposal, it apparently pretty well dampened peace enthusiasm."

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at nooon was off .6 at 342.8, with industrials off 1.7, rails up .1, and utilities off .1.

Among other active stocks: Continental Oil, up 1 at 38⅞; American Telephone & Telegraph, off ⅛ at 57⅝, and Texas Gulf Sulphur, up ½ at 32.

Housing Lack May Shorten Students' Stay

Two students at Oakland Community College from Belize, formerly British Honduras, are experiencing their first visit to the United States — but that may be cut short.

Floyd Jones, 18, and Austin Flores, 26, are studying at

FLORES JONES

OCC's Highland Lakes campus, Waterford Township, under the Partners of the Alliance Program.

★ ★ ★

They arrived in January — Jones to study architecture and Flores electricity. They were temporarily housed in a private home until a permanent residence could be found.

None has been found yet.

★ ★ ★

The students' programs require that they stay at OCC until December. It is urgent that housing be found for the students as soon as possible, according to Ned Brodbeck, dean of students, at Highland Lakes.

Anyone interested in donating room and board for the young men may contact Brodbeck at Highland Lakes. It is not necessary that they be housed together, Brodbeck said.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY of our father, John N. Johnson, who passed away a year ago today, May 15, 1968:
We miss you, Father, every hour,
But why grieve after all?
For death is but a golden door,
Through Heaven's Gold Wall.
His family.

IN LOVING memory of our son, Dennis Brooks, who passed away May 15, 1964.
Treasured thoughts of one so dear
Often bring a silent tear;
Thoughts return to scenes long past,
Time rolls on, but memories last.
There's a sad but sweet remembrance,
There is a memory fond and true,
And a token of affection Denny
And a heartache still for you.
Sadly missed by Mom and Dad, Kay and Kyle.

A London Girl Can't Cope With the New York Clamor

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—There's a new girl in town from London who says that when she came to New York, "I thought I could cope . . ."

"But I can't cope," Frencesca Annis admitted.

WILSON

"I went to a supermarket where they were playing the most terrible music. I bought all the wrong products. I thought I'd go home and rest from the noise. I got a taxi driver who insisted on singing and also insisted on me singing with him."

Francesca, 23, who plays Ophelia to Nicol Williamson's Hamlet," and is also in MGM's "The Walking Stick," claimed that the furore got worse.

"I tried to sleep but I could feel my landlady's TV roaring under me. This was in the daytime," she said, astonished.

"Don't they have TV in the daytime in London?"

"Just cricket and Wimbledon," she said.

★ ★ ★

"You can't say 'um' and 'ah' here trying to decide what you want to buy. I wanted some shoes and the salesclerk asked what I wanted. I said 'Um,' and she disappeared to wait on somebody else. I was left without any purchases.

★ ★ ★

"Another thing, I noticed that a lot of people on the streets here are talking to themselves. I decided they can't think because of the noise. For myself, I can't hear myself think but I can hear myself talk. One day somebody came up to me shrieking with laughter. I didn't think I looked funny.

★ ★ ★

"I think people coming here for the first time should go out into the streets for one hour the first day then go to the hotel for a rest and go out two hours the next day. Why, I've been walking around hallucinating, afraid these big buildings are going to fall down on me."

★ ★ ★

"And what are you doing about New York people's attitude?"

"I'm getting as rude as they are."

★ ★ ★

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Women are the sort of problem that men like to wrestle with."

EARL'S PEARLS: Of all the remedies that absolutely will not cure a cold, whiskey is by far the most popular.

Florence Henderson, in Scandinavia filming "Song of Norway," wrote about the bitter cold: "Every bedroom is equipped with an electric blanket and a blowtorch. The blowtorch is to thaw out the electric blanket." . . . That's earl, brother.

A Look at TV

'Music Hall' Is Smooth

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK—"Music Hall's" series of summer programs taped in London moved off to a smooth and easy start Wednesday night and undoubtedly will be one of the bright spots in the hot weather schedule of NBC.

The team of Tony Sandler and Ralph Young is an attractive one, their singing is excellent and their taste good. They also try for some comedy touches and, although these sequences were the rough spots in the hour, they should be smoothed out before many of their dozen programs are finished.

★ ★ ★

Judy Carne, the gamine of "Laugh-In," is a regular on the summer shows. She was handled as a guest star and was given one handsome and lively song-and-dance production. She also appeared in a few of the quick comedy bits.

Lena Horne and Terry-Thomas contributed their special talents, too. Miss Horne had a pair of effective singing numbers and showed she could hold her own in the comedy sketches. Terry-Thomas—whose efforts were greeted with loud laughs by the British studio audience—was frequently so terribly British that it was difficult to understand him.

The production values were high, the sets colorful. Now, if they can just do something to spark the comedy sequences . . .

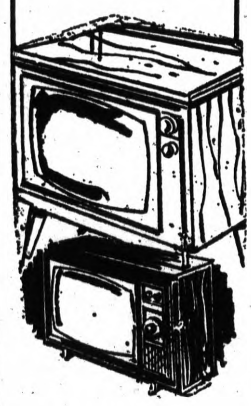

President Nixon's report to the nation on negotiations to settle the Vietnam war was a marked contrast to his recent news conferences.

The President stood behind a lectern bearing the great seal of the president of the United States. He read his carefully prepared remarks. His mood and mien were serious. His presentation was business like. and appeared more relaxed.

The President's address occupied most of a half hour, caus-pied most of a half hour, CBS and NBC is their custom in such situations filled the rest of the hour with discussion and analysis by their staff men.

Nixon Peace Plan Draws Favorable Reaction in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's eight-point Vietnam peace offer, including a plan for a mutual pullout of major forces over a 12-month span, goes to Paris today amid a generally favorable response from U.S. politicians.

What enemy negotiators think of it will start unfolding when the chief U.S. envoy at the peace talks, Henry Cabot Lodge, presents it at the weekly parley tomorrow in Paris.

Lodge hurried to Washington yesterday to confer with Nixon, hear the President's nationwide address, attend a special combined national security Council-Cabinet session this morning and then speed back to Paris in an Air Force jet.

Nixon's half-hour telecast — his first full-scale White House speech on Vietnam — won applause from his supporters and subdued initial comment from war critics as the President also:

- Hinted anew at forthcoming U.S. troop withdrawals regardless of what happens at Paris.
- Vowed to keep his campaign pledge "to end this war in a way that would increase our chances to win true and lasting peace" and declared that "if I fail to do so, I expect the American people to hold me accountable for that failure."
- Promised U.S. firmness in the basic goal of self-determination for South Vietnam.
- Delivered a veiled warning to Hanoi against military offensives, saying, "I must make clear in all candor that if the needless suffering continues, this will affect other decisions."
- Appealed to the American people "whatever our differences," to back his peace offer.

Related Stories, Pages A-13, B-13

White House sources said Nixon timed his offer which had been ready for some weeks, for delivery now because this seems to be the best moment for a U.S. move to thaw the Paris deadlock.

Elements of virtually all of Nixon's eight points appeared in proposals made from time to time during the Johnson administration, but White House sources portrayed the package over-all as fresh in its impact in revisions coming from the new administration.

★ ★ ★

Reactions were quick in coming.

In Texas, an aide said former President Johnson "wholeheartedly supports President Nixon in his efforts at bringing peace to Southeast Asia."

In Wshington, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the antiwar Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman, termed Nixon's offer reasonable while making plain he still thinks the United States should get out of South Vietnam.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said the President made plain he seeks an honorable peace and Hanoi has nothing to gain by delay.

Fortas Quits Supreme Court

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON — Justice Abe Fortas, once nominated as chief justice, announced today his resignation from the Supreme Court under mounting pressure and the threat of impeachment proceedings.

President Nixon this morning accepted Fortas', resignation, effective immediately.

The resignation of a justice under pressure is unprecedented.

★ ★ ★

Fortas, target of severe criticism for accepting and not returning until 11 months later a $20,000 fee from the family foundation of financier Louis E. Wolfson, sent President Nixon his letter of resignation last night.

Fortas also sent Chief Justice Earl Warren — the man he once was nominated by Lyndon Johson to succeed — a letter of explanation about the fee from the foundation. The announcement of Fortas' actions was made by a court spokesman.

11 DAYS AFTER ARTICLE

The Fortas resignation came 11 days after Life magazine made public for the first time Fortas' receipt of a $20,000 fee from the family foundation of Louis Wolfson, wealthy financier, after Fortas became a member of the Court in 1965.

Fortas issued a statement the same day, May 4, acknowledging that he did receive a fee — he did not say how much — from the foundation. He said he later returned it. Life said he did not return it until 11 months later — afte Wolfson had been indicted on federal charges of stock manipulation.

Wolfson is now serving a one-year prison sentence in Florida.

There has been only one impeachment trial of a justice — Samuel Chase in the early 19th century. He was acquitted of charges that he violated legal ethics in conducting trials while sitting on a circuit court, as Supreme Court justices did in those days.

Related Stories, Page A-3

FORTAS KEPT SILENT

Fortas had remained silent about the Wolfson incident after issuing his May 4 statement.

The resignation came as the first moves were afoot on Capitol Hill — amid strong criticism of his alleged impropriety in taking the fee — toward possible impeachment of the eight-ranked of the nine justices.

★ ★ ★

Rep. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn., asked the House Judiciary Committee yesterday to begin a preliminary inquiry into the Fortas-Wolfson relationship

★ ★ ★

While MacGregor did not characterize this as the beginning of impeachment proceedings, some lawmakers viewed it that way. Rep. Emanuel Cellar, D-N. Y., chairman of the judiciary committee, had indicated he would go along with the MacGregor request.

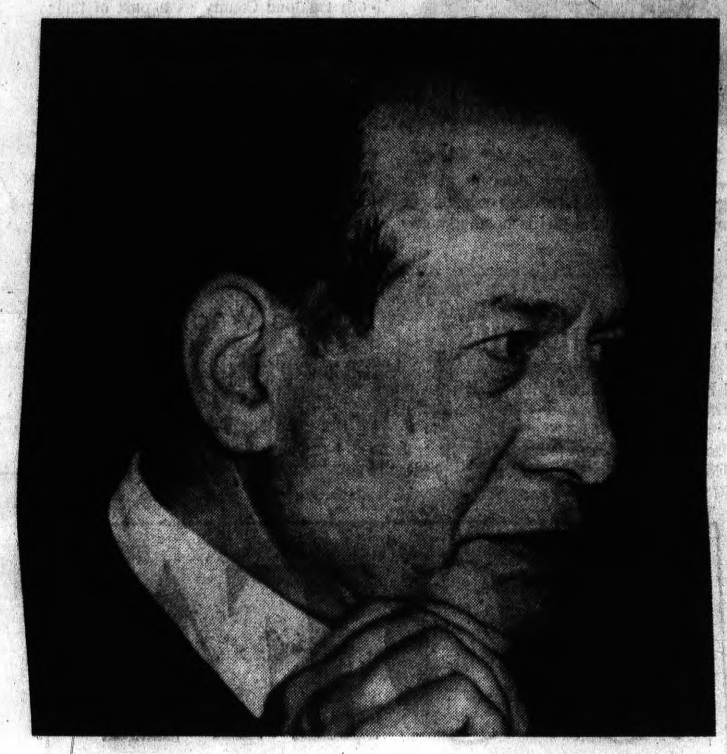

★ ★ ★

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, had served notice days ago that he was prepared to begin impeachment proceedings. He was holding this in abeyance pending possible judiciary committee inquiry.

8 Pontiac Teachers Fired for Dues Lack

By MARY LUNDSTROM

Eight Pontiac tenure teachers were discharged by the board of education last night because of their failure to comply with a "financial responsibility" clause in their contract with the school district.

The teachers had refused to pay $85 dues to the Pontiac Education Association, in an agency shop agreement specified in this year's contract between the school board and the PEA, and were given a hearing April 29 to discuss the case.

Related Stories, Page B-7

During negotiations for the teachers' contract last July, PEA obtained the agency shop agreement which provides that all teachers must pay dues or be discharged.

The Michigan Tenure Law provides that no teacher may be fired except for just cause, and whether nonpayment of dues is included in the provision is a matter Michigan courts have not clearly decided.

SUIT POSSIBILITY CITED

Board President William Anderson said that although he did not like dismissing the teachers, he felt that not to dismiss them would leave the board open to a suit for unfair labor practice.

Chris Brown, the only board member who voted against the dismissals, said he could not condone the action, since it has not been upheld in the Michigan Supreme Court. Board member Monroe Osmun was absent, and Dr. Robert R. Turpin had not yet arrived at the meeting.

★ ★ ★

The vote was 4-1 on the resolution to dismiss the teachers at the close of the school year on June 13.

Should the teachers appeal their case the Michigan Tenure Commission they would remain on their present jobs in Pontiac until the appeal is settled, according to the contractual agreement between the school board and the PEA. Further appeals may also be made beyond the tenure commission to circuit court, appellate court and finally the supreme court.

County Government Claim on Tax Funds Downgraded

By JEAN SAILE

Despite the prediction that their actions might come back to haunt them, members of the Oakland County Allocation Board yesterday downgraded county government claims on the 15-mill tax allocation.

By setting an unofficial levy rate of 5.16 mills for the county, the board, in effect, would lop $3.5 million off the county's record $31.1-million tentative budget for next year.

★ ★ ★

The levy is 0.12 mill less than this year, and 0.63 mill less than that requested. It still raises $2 million more than that raised on property taxes this year, due to a substantial increase in county equalized valuation.

Daniel T. Murphy, a member of the allocation board and county auditor chairman, warned members, "One day you're going to have to take from the schools to finance the county."

BIGGEST INCREASE

The unit getting the biggest increase from within the 15-mill limit was Oakland Intermediate Schools — allotted 0.21 mills. Last year the Intermediate School District was financed almost entirely from nonvoted taxes outside the limit, but an attorney general's opinion has held that financing illegal.

Murphy also asked the board to consider a fixed millage, permissible under the constitution and requiring a vote of the people. He said such action would "do away with the gymnastics of financing when we haven't got enough funds to go around anyway."

★ ★ ★

He received support from new board member Louis Schimmel and Chairman Henry Schieffer. Setting a fixed millage rate for reach governmental unit would do away with the function of the allocation board and it would also do away with the need for preparing tentative budgets.

All allocations recommended by the board, which met yesterday as a committee of the whole, are within the 15-mill limit.

TO BET SET MONDAY

The preliminary allocation will not be officially set until Monday and the final rate will not be set until June 2.

Action yesterday followed two days of budget presentations by schools, townships and the county.

★ ★ ★

While township allocations remain substantially the same as last year, schools learned they probably will be pared to help finance the intermediate school district. The millage allotted to them and townships was downgraded

News in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House reportedly is studying a plan to revamp the supersonic transport program to open new means of financing and ease fears about sonic booms.

★ ★ ★

The proposal would put the program directly under the secretary of transportation. The project to develop a 300-passenger, 1,800-mile-an-hour jetliner has been run since its inception by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), an independent regulatory agency administered by the Transportation Department.

★ ★ ★

Support has developed for establishment of a business-government agency under which funding would come from sale to the public of government-guaranteed shares. Such an agency could not conveniently be a part of the FAA.

Prosecutor Bill Stalls

LANSING (AP) — The Senate yesterday debated, then put off action, on a controversial bill that would mandate counties to pay prosecutors as much as probate or circuit court judges. Trouble Ahead for Nixon Surtax

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's proposed extension of the income surtax, a key part of the administration's fiscal plans, is facing problems both in and out of Congress.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, a member of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, said Nixon's urban policy had allenated some congressmen who might have supported the surtax extension past the June 30 expiration date.

Nixon has asked for an extension until Jan. 1, at 10 per cent, and a 5 per cent rate between Jan. 1 and June 30, 1970, when it would expire.

New threats came yesterday when two powerful groups declared any such bill must be coupled with sweeping reforms of the entire federal tax structure.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council said it will not support the extension unless it is combined with "immediate, substantial and equitable reform."

Fifty-four House members of the liberal Democratic Study Group signed a letter calling on the committee to act on tax reforms first, even if it delays the surcharge extension past the June 30 deadline.

Fortas Links Were Labyrinthian

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prior to taking a seat on the Supreme Court, which he resigned today, Abe Fortas was an officer of a company incorporated by individuals linked with Las Vegas gambling operations. One of the individuals later was indicted for perjury in the Bobby Baker case.

Other officers of the company, Greatamerica Corp., contributed to the $30,000 fund set up to finance a series of lectures by Fortas at American University here last summer. Fortas got half the money.

Greatamerica, a holding company for insurance firms, was the parent company of Texas-based Braniff Airways. In addition to being an officer of Greatamerica, Fortas was, during 1965, a director of Braniff. After he left the company, a spot on the board of directors went to Paul A. Porter, Fortas' former law partner. Porter still held that position last year.

It was last year that the Civil Aeronautics Board and President Johnson granted a lucrative trans-Pacific route to Braniff despite the recommendation of a CAB examiner that Braniff not get any such award.

The CAB chairman who concurred in the Braniff award is a former member of a Houston law firm with ties to Johnson.

These facts were disclosed in an Associated Press investigation of the past business activities of the beleaguered Supreme Court Justice.

Fortas was under heavy pressure to resign his seat following disclosures that he accepted, then returned, a $20,000 fee from the family foundation of convicted stock manipulator Louis Wolfson. This week, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell said he turned over "certain information" in the case to Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Fortas' involvement in the companies can be traced to 1962 when Greatamerica was incorporated in Nevada. The incorporation papers, dated April 27, 1962, list Fortas as the company's vice president, general counsel and a director.

They also list Paul Laxalt as the company's agent — the official representative. Laxalt, now governor of Nevada, resigned from the job on Dec. 31, 1966, before taking office.

Yearly reports filed in Carson City show Fortas remained an officer of Greatamerica until sometime between July 1965 and June 1966. Records for the following year indicate that after Fortas resigned Dennis Lyons assumed Fortas' former positions with the company.

★ ★ ★

Lyons, an attorney with Arnold & Porter, Fortas' former Washington law firm, told AP he became vice president, general counsel and director of Greatamerica in May, 1966. It could not be determined immediately whether Fortas retained his spot with the company until then or had resigned earlier.

Fortas took his seat on the court in October 1965.

One of the incorporators of Greatamerica was Clifford A. Jones, Nevada lieutenant governor from 1947-54 and a part owner and then officer of the Thunderbird Hotel in Las Vegas.

The gambling license issued to Jones and a partner in the hotel was revoked by the Nevada Tax Commission in 1955 on grounds that underworld figures had an interest in the hotel. The decision was later overturned by the Nevada Supreme Court.

On Jan. 5, 1966, Jones was indicted for perjury in connection with the grand jury investigation of Bobby Baker, former secretary to Senate Democrats.

Baker was indicted the same day for conspiracy, tax evasion and fraudulently converting to his own use nearly $100,000 from California savings and loan executives who thought they were making political contributions.

Jones was named a coconspirator in that indictment. Baker later was convicted of failing to pay tax on the $100,000. Jones' case has not come to trial.

Fortas was Baker's attorney until Johnson became president in 1963. At that time he withdrew from the case.

The two other incorporators of Greatamerica were Helen Irving and Katherine Waldman, both of Las Vegas, and both also listed as directors of a Las Vegas concern which got a gambling license in June, 1964.

The same three incorporators —Jones and the two women— were listed as incorporators when Greatamerica filed to do business in Texas on Jan. 29, 1963, records in the Texas secretary of state's office in Austin showed.

The records in Nevada and Texas do not indicate whether the three served also as officers of the corporation.

Legal sources say incorporation papers frequently are handled by attorneys who select the individuals to serve as incorporators.

The chairman of the board and president of Greatamerica at the time of its incorporation was Troy V. Post. The company's fiscal 1964 report lists Gustave Levy as a director. Both men held their posts through fiscal 1968 when Greatamerica and its subsidiary, Braniff, were acquired by the conglomerate Ling-Temco-Vought. Paul Porter's name appears as a director of Braniff in 1967 and 1968.

Last year, Porter collected $30,000 to finance Fortas' lecture series. Five men contributed to the fund. Two of them were Post and Levy.

American University officials told the Senate last year that Fortas got $15,000 of the fund and the university got the other half.

Also last year, a CAB examiner held extensive hearings on the eagerly sought Pacific airline routes. When he recommended the awards, Braniff had no share of the plum.

However, when the CAB and Johnson announced the final awards, Braniff got a route to Hawaii through Mexico City and Acapulco, increasing its air route mileage by about 200 per cent.

Post is a partner in the new $19 million, 24-story Plaza Internacional Hotel in Acapulco and is engaged in construction of a six-mile beach-front golf course and country club in the Mexican resort city.

The chairman of the CAB when the award was made was John Crooker Jr., a Houston lawyer and a former partner in the firm of Fulbright, Crooker, Freeman, Bates and Jaworski. Leon Jaworski has acted as a personal attorney for Johnson.

Crooker first was appointed to the CAB in March 1968 to fill an unexpired term. Just a little over a month later, far from the end of the term, Johnson renominated him for a full six-year term beginning this year.

'Life Income From Wolfson Fund Taken'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Times says evidence is held by the U.S. Justice Department that Abe Fortas agreed after becoming a Supreme Court justice to receive $20,000 a year for life from the Wolfson family foundation.

The newspaper said in Thursday's edition documents said to be in the possession of the government, plus Louis E. Wolfson's statement to government investigators last week, are being interpreted by Justice Department officials to mean that Fortas appeared to be willing to assist Wolfson in a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of the financier.

The Times said Federal Bureau of Investigation agents were told by Wolfson in prison, where he is serving a one-year sentence for selling unregistered stock, that a written agreement with Fortas provided that the justice's wife would receive the annual payments if Fortas should die.

Wolfson attempted to strike a bargain with the government before talking with the agents last Thursday, the Times said. But it said the Justice Department has obtained from Wolfson and other sources documents understood to support his statement to the FBI agents.

SUBPOENA USED

The documents were obtained by subpoena, the Times said.

Wolfson, who also has been sentenced to serve 18 months in prison for perjury and for obstructing an SEC investigation, "presumably hopes his cooperation could result in a reduction of the second sentence," the newspaper asserted.

In Washington, the Justice Department said it had no comment on the Times story.

Springfield Twp. OKs Rezoning for Lumberyard

SPRINGFIELD TOWNSHIP — The Township Board has overruled a zoning board recommendation and approved the rezoning of property at the Ware and Andersonville intersection from agricultural to commercial.

The board voted 3 to 2 to authorize the request of Lloyd Miller, 10270 Andersonville, to develop a wholesale lumberyard operation at the site.

★ ★ ★

Township Treasurer Margaret R. Samuel, Township Clerk David H. Field and Trustee Claude Trim voted to approve the petition. Supervisor N. C. Van Natta and Trustee E. L. Rundell upheld the zoning board's recommendation to deny the rezoning request.

The board reported that the decision to enforce the township's junk car ordinance has been carired out. More than 12 warnings for ordinance violations have been written during the last four weeks. Violators have 30 days to correct the violation before the township takes legal action.

TOWNSHP SUED

Supervisor Van Natta said a summons was served on him yesterday regarding a suit filed in Probate Court against the township by Kelly Bateman Co., a Pontiac real estate firm.

The Bateman firm had filed a rezoning petition for a proposed trailer park development west of Dixie Highway between Holly and Oakhill roads that was rejected by the zoning board, County Planning Board and the Township Board last winter.

★ ★ ★

Van Natta said the suit was filed to enjoin the township from carrying out its decision. He said the township would contest Kelly Bateman's action.

Plans for Operation Cleanup are continuing. All old papers or magazines that are tied in bundles may be brought to the Township Hall, 650 Broadway, Davisburg.

★ ★ ★

Arrangements have been made with Charles Weaver, 9208 Dixie, to pick up newspapers and magazines anywhere in the township if he is contacted. Cleanup day is set for May 24.

Farmington to Air Proposed Budget

FARMINGTON — A public hearing on the proposed budget has been set for 8 p.m. tonight at City Hall. The total recommended budget for the general fund is $792,156 while the actual budget for 1968-69 is $747,141.

A budget of $308,916 for the water and sewer department in the upcoming year is also set. The water-sewer allocation is $295,726.

★ ★ ★

A public hearing for the rezoning of certain lots in the Tarabusi — Grand River Gardens subdivision from family to multiple dwelling is set for 8 p.m. June 8.

Trouble Flares on Picket Line at Novi Plant

NOVI — Police reported some trouble this morning with workers driving through the picket line at Paragon Division of Portec Inc.

Some 20 pickets from the Paragon Equality Movement (PEM) — primarily inner-city blacks — fired for violation of union grievance procedures paraded before the company gate for the fourth day.

Novi police reported that State Police gave one speeding ticket and several verbal warning to workers driving through the picket line on their way to the plant.

A warning was also given to one man for throwing rocks at the passing cars.

EMPLOYE'S DEMANDS

Picketing has continued at the Novi steel firm since Saturday. The former employes, who handed the company a list of demands Friday, walked out after learning that the demands would have to be processed through union grievance channels, according to a Paragon spokesman.

Personnel Director David K. Waterloo, said the 84 men were dismissed by telegram Saturday. The iron workers are members of Shopmen's Local 508, Iron Workers Union.

The Rev. William H. Colquitt of Inkster, a PEM spokesman, claimed Local 508 has refused to act on grievances about alleged unsafe working conditions.

The men claim they stopped work because of air pollution in the plant, unsanitary conditions and lack of safety precautions around heavy equipment.

CHARGES DENIED

A company spokesman called the charges untrue.

The workers, who were hired for job training under a federal program, were picked last fall when the company could not find labor to fill job vacancies.

Colquitt contended 150 persons from the program have been fired in the last two weeks.

Walled Lake OKs 8-Grade Course

WALLED LAKE — The school board has endorsed the concept of a new eighth-grade yearlong course offering introduction to language, typing, and sociology.

The administration has been authorized to prepare details of the three sections, each to last 13 weeks, and present them to the board at a later date. The mandatory course will be during the hour when most eighth graders are currently in a study hall.

A choice of French or Spanish will be offered to the student during the language portion of the course. The introduction to sociology will offer information to help students better adjust to their environment and better handle involvement with other people.

The board, in other recent action, approved preliminary plans for the Vocational High School.

REPORT-CARD COMPLAINT

Also at the recent board meeting, a parent, identified as Mrs. James Scott registered objections to the district's four-year-old experimental report card. She urged continued efforts to improve it.

The card, introduced in 1965, is being used in a test program at four elementary schools.

The card is a four-page progress report which is supplemented by parent-teacher conferences. The card offers detailed notes on how the child is doing in the skills area and an evaluation of his ability. A page is devoted to personal development and attitudes of the child and spaces are left for parental response.

Mrs. Scott claimed that the card does not have enough grades to show achievement and that the parent can't tell how the child is doing from day to day.

MORE IMPROVEMENT

She indicated that she was not necessarily advocating a return to the traditional five-symbol report system, but that the card needed additional improvement before it was acceptable to her as a parent.

The card offers considerably more information to the parent than did the traditional five-symbol system, according to Hugh Davies, director of elementary education.

He contended that the system is less punitive and less corruptive.

He pointed out that the report card was a progress report to parents and that a child's knowledge of how he is doing in school is received on a daily basis.

"If any child has to wait ten weeks before learning how he is doing then we would be failing somewhere."

Left With Only 67 Residents

Novi Twp. Struggle Continues

By LOIS FRIENDLAND

NOVI TOWNSHIP — Not much remains of this township, reduced to 67 residents and one legal township official, since the former village of Novi incorporated into a city.

However, there is an effort to carry on.

★ ★ ★

Acting township officials were told yesterday by Circuit Court Judge William J. Beer that court approval of any expenditures was necessary before any more township funds were disbursed.

Judge Beer also adjourned the question of accounting between the township and the city for 30 days.

ELECTIONS SET

A meeting of the 67 remaining township residents is to be held June 9 in order to select township officers and a Township Board.

★ ★ ★

In May 1968, Novi voters approved incorporation by a margin of about 200 votes out of a total 1,192. A city charter was approved by voters last February.

★ ★ ★

The incorporation included 98 per cent of the township leaving the remaining residents divided into eight small and separate islands around the new city.

★ ★ ★

Township Trustee Ralph Luckett is the only one of the five elected officials still living in the township and therefore the only legal township official.

STILL PERFORMING

The other four officials, however, have continued to perform their duties as township officers. They are still dispersing township funds — including their own salaries — and have even notified some taxpayers of review of tax assessments of properties now within the city limits.

★ ★ ★

The men include Supervisor Hadley Bachert, Treasurer Duane E. Bell, Clerk Lloyd George, and Trustee Charles Goers.

★ ★ ★

The former officials have apparently been acting until recently under the stated belief that the incorporation was invalid.

The township has been fighting the incorporation in court for several years unsuccessfully. Their most recent appeal to the State Supreme Court was denied last week.

APPEAL DENIED

The township had asked for and been denied application for leave to appeal the recent decision made by the Court of Appeals declaring the incorporation valid.

★ ★ ★

Last April, township officials were also denied leave to pursue their claim by Circuit Court Judge Frederick C. Ziem.

★ ★ ★

The case has been in court at least three times.

★ ★ ★

Yesterday, the former township officials went into court to show cause why they should not be forbidden to continue their actions since they no longer lived in the township. The city also requested that the court order the township to make an immediate division of assets from the area incorporated last year.

SETTLEMENT NECESSARY

A settlement is necessary before the city can assume responsibility for the assets, which they claim the former township officials are using.

At the moment, however, there is no governing body in the township that can legally handle the division of assets. The sole remaining member, Luckett, does not constitute a quorum.

The meeting June 9 will provide a quorum of a new township board able to handle the division.

★ ★ ★

The meeting complies with a recent attorney general's opinion stating that certain laws authorize holding of a special township meeting — including where there is no quorum.

★ ★ ★

Emery Jacques, attorney for the township, noted that the state boundary commission had been asked to determine whether the township could exist by itself or whether the residents should join the city.

Pact Let for Building at Stony Creek Park

The board of commissioners of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority recently awarded a $78,470 contract to Van Kampen Construction Co., Detroit, for the erection of a building at the boat launching area of Stony Creek Metropolitan Park in Oakland Township.

★ ★ ★

The building is designed for year-round use and will have heated restrooms, a lounge area and food service. The building is not expected to be in use until next year.

Detroit Detective Sergeant to Head Public Safety at OU

A veteran Detroit police officer has been named as Oakland University's new director of public safety.

Detective Sgt. Earl Gray, 39, who has been with the Detroit Police Department for almost 15 years, will begin his duties on May 26.

★ ★ ★

A university spokesman said Gray's salary has not yet been determined, but that it was university policy not to disclose salaries.

Gray will replace Thomas D. Strong, who resigned his position in March to return to his former position as special agent with the U.S. Secret Service in Newark, N.J.

DETECTIVE SERGEANT

Gray joined the Detroit force in 1955 and has been assigned to the Citizens Complaint Bureau since 1964. He was promoted to the rank of detective in 1962 and to detective sergeant last July.

Married and the father of two children, Gray is a student at Wayne State University, majoring in police administration. He was born in Kentucky and moved with his family to Detroit when he was eight years old.

EARL GRAY

A veteran of two years service in the Army Signal Corps, Gray has been assigned to the Detroit police holdup bureau and at the precinct level. His duties with the Citizens Complaint Bureau have been to investigate charges made against police officers.

Sanatorium Future Is Tied to Action of 2 State Units

By JEAN SAILE

The future of Oakland County Sanatorium may depend on action by two state departments — the Bureau of Social Services and the State Health Department.

Bernard Houston, director of the Social Services, said recently that Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement rates at the sanatorium will be cut in half.

★ ★ ★

Should that happen, county officials believe the operation would be jeopardized and hard-to-care-for chronic cases would have no place to go. It would cost the county $800,000 a year to maintain present services, officials estimate.

Nursing home officials say, however, that they are willing to accept any and all long-term care cases the county has at the going rate for nursing home care — between $13 and $17 a day.

CURRENT COSTS

It costs the county between $35 and $39 a day for such care.

Meantime, Houston's announcement has caused a wave of concern in the county, mainly from people who have relatives cared for at the county facility.

★ ★ ★

The concern has apparently reached the ears of Lansing officials, who are now saying little.

Dr. R. Gerald Rice, state health director, said he has had some correspondence with Houston relative to the setting of county institution rates.

ASKED TO SET RATES

Houston reportedly has asked the health department to assume the function it recently took in regard to setting nursing home rates relative to hospitals.

"I don't know what's going to happen. The matter has to be worked out," Rice said.

★ ★ ★

At present the social services department sets reimbursement rates for hospitals.

Since the sanatorium now provides bed care for some 40 tubercular patients, another complication is added to the problem. The facility must be certified as a hospital in order to care for such patients.

PATIENT CARE OVERLOOKED

Certification is done on the basis of physical plant, service and staff by the State Health Department. It does not certify on the basis of the kind of patient care given, according to Dr. Herman Ziel, state director of medical care.

Ziel noted, however, that Saginaw County has faced the probelm by designating a certain number of its county beds for tubercular hospital care, others for rehabilitation care and others for long-term chronic care. It is reimbursed accordingly.

★ ★ ★

Rice said he did not know when a decision would be reached.

One health department official noted, "A facility may be certified as a hospital, but that does not necessarily mean that every patient in the facility needs hospital care."

Wage Boosts Set in Oxford Budget

OXFORD — The Village Council has adopted a $215,687 budget as presented by Manager Don Richter. The budget provides for at least a 10 per cent wage boost for all 16 village employes.

Richter said that because of certain retired debts, the new budget is down almost $4,000 from that of last year. The millage rate of 15 mills operating, one mill debt retirement and 2 mills debt recovery remained unchanged.

★ ★ ★

The council also released village planners Vilican-Leman from a monthly $150 retainer agreement, opting instead to use the firm's services on an hourly basis.

"We need the planners only a couple times a year now," explained Richter, "and the rate on that basis would be $100 per day based on an eight hour day. We haven't saved money yet but we will in the future."

Black Power Gesture Stirs Senate Clash

'Until We Face The Attitudes That Exist As Men, We Are Going To Have Loaded Guns On Both Sides . . .'
—Sen. Basil Brown

LANSING (AP) — The clenched fist of black power raised over the Michigan Senate has prompted one member to renew his call for a "disaster plan" to ward off possible attack on the upper chamber.

Sen. Robert Huber, R-Troy, said yesterday that some members of the Michigan State University Black Student Alliance raised their fists in the now-familiar black power gesture as they were introduced in the Senate Tuesday night.

★ ★ ★

As they were introduced, reported Negro Sen. Basil Brown, Huber turned to a colleague and said:

"Well, I guess I'd better get my gun."

'EXEMPLIFIES ATTITUDE'

"That exemplifies his attitude toward black students and students in general," the Highland Park Democrat charged, pointing out that Huber chairs the special Senate committee probing campus unrest.

★ ★ ★

"Until we face the attitudes that exist as men," Brown said, "we are going to have loaded guns on both sides which (could bring) total destruction."

Sen. Roger Craig, D-Dearborn, admonished Huber "not to be terrified by symbols but by actions."

Huber told Senate colleagues a Yugoslavian refugee friend "had seen the clenched fist come into his country. It was the beginning of the end for freedom of the people of Yugoslavia," Huber said.

'WEDGE HAS STARTED'

Now the friend sees the clenched fist in this country, he said, the fist that "means terrorism and revolutionary tactics."

★ ★ ★

The Senate must, Huber said, "do some careful thinking and planning (because) the opening wedge has now started."

★ ★ ★

Huber repeated an earlier plea that the upper chamber plan defensive tactics against any attempted take-over. He revealed the call for such a plan last week, citing a take-over of the Colorado Senate.

Negro Sen. Coleman Young, who had introduced the black students, raised his fist before the Senate and said:

"I replied with clenched fist— as I do now. It would have been less than polite not to.

'GOING TOO FAR'

"The senator is going a little far when he tells black people what their symbols are," Young contended. "The fist is a sign of solidarity, of black power.

"But the clenched fist of today that means solidarity might well become the clenched fist of revolution tomorrow," he said.

Young said the students had visited the Senate to ask legislators "to address themselves to their legitimate grievances" regarding discrimination on campuses and other student problems.

The students had come to hear Brown read a letter from 11 of the state's 13 black legislators to Gov. William Millliken. The lawmakers demanded the governor call for black history courses in all state colleges and universities and for open channels of communication between administrators and students.

INVOLVED IN DEMONSTRATION

The MSU black students recently were involved in a campus demonstration which ended with the administration granting them concessions.

If the Senate were really concerned, Young said, members would address themselves to guaranteeing student freedoms.

★ ★ ★

Sen. Arthur Cartwright, Dtroit, also a Negro, urged that people "stop playing politics on both sides of the fence."

"There is extreme militancy on both sides," he said. "But the middle-of-the-road people — I mean the good people — are going to have to say this thing has gone too far."

But Some GIs Pass It Up

Insurance Is Bargain

By JERY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Newsfeatures

WASHINGTON — Some people won't grab a bargain even when it's almost free. For instance, 38,000 soldiers who are passing up the $10,000 Serviceman's Group Life Insurance that costs only $2 a month, not a very big bite even in a recruit's pay.

BAULCH

It's not that they're neglecting to sign up for it, they have to go out of their way to avoid getting the protection. The insurance is automatic unless serviceman or woman puts in writing he doesn't want it at all or wants to take $5,000 and pay $1 a month.

Of the 38,000 in the Army, 25,000 have said they want no part of the insurance. The other 13,000 went for only half of it.

★ ★ ★

Even if a man doesn't want to make a wife, mother, brother, girlfriend, cousin or charity the beneficiary there are advantages of having it for later protection.

There are no exemptions on military hazards such as civilian policies have. And if a man is serious injured or contracts a disease in service he can convert to a civilian policy when he gets out without being required to pass a physical exam.

Conscientious Objector

The Army has cut some of the red tape for processing applications for men in service seeking conscientious objector status, whether they want to be discharged or get a noncombat role in the Army.

★ ★ ★

Now such applications will be sent directly to the Pentagon from military posts or division level. Previously they had to wend their way through the in-between military channels, which often was time-consuming and frustrating to the applicant.

Christmas Is Coming

The Red Cross notes that even though Christmas is still more than 200 days away, its volunteer are geraing up for the fourth straight year to get "Operation Shop Early" rolling. The early start is necessary to get the packages to Vietnam in time.

The volunteers are enlisting the help of community service organizations, religious groups, business firms and local industries to help make the brightly-colored, drawstring gift bags and to provide gifts to fill them.

★ ★ ★

The Red Cross has sent to each of its chapters suggested gift lists, separate ones for men and women. The lists are just about the same as last year.

The bags will be sewn during the spring and summer while the gifts are collected. The bags will be filled in late summer ready for shipment by Sept. 30.

Happy Sailors

The Navy is managing to assign more enlisted men tos hore billets of their choice, a recent survey shows.

A Bureau of Naval Personnel report shows that in the six months ending in February at least half got their first-choice U.S. shore assignment. And 38 to 46 per cent got their first-choice city.

★ ★ ★

Jim Parker, the Navy Times expert on this, says this is because of a more personalized attention to requests under the rating control system introduced a couple of years ago.

Also he says, sailors are being made more aware of what openings are available so they won't try for dead ends.

More ROTC Officers

Despite the shakiness of ROTC at Harvard and Stanford and rumblings at some other universities, more commissioned officers will be coming off college campuses this spring than in previous years.

The Army alone expects 16,607 graduates to be commissioned 2nd lieutenants compared with 14,176 a year ago and 10,727 in 1967. Counting the Air Force and Navy, the colleges and universities are expected to produce 25,0000 officers this year compared with 18,000 last year.

★ ★ ★

As I noted in a recent column on ROTC, the Air Force has a waiting list of 100 colleges wanting ROTC but it has all the units it needs now. In fact, it plans to end ROTC units at eight schools over the next three years because they aren't producing enough officers. It's not linked directly to the protests against ROTC.

Next school year, the Army is aiming to step up its ROTC pilot training program to meet the growing need for Regular Army aviators. There are 980 students enrolled this school year and the Army expects 1,500 to participate next school year.

Recently, I noted that the Air Force plans to experiment next fall with women in ROTC at four colleges. But in a way eight Temple University coeds have stolen a march.

The eight can't qualify for commissions but they were permitted to march with the men this year shouldering M1 rifles and going to class with the male cadets.

Why did they ask permission to do this?

★ ★ ★

Linda Comalli, 19, of Jekinstown, Pa., "had no reason for joining. I guess I thought it would be fun being with a lot of men."

Revenue Ruling

Many firms pay the difference between what a reservist or National Guard gets for two weeks active duty and his civilian pay. But apparently there are some firms that also pay their executives while they are on up to two years active duty.

★ ★ ★

The Internal Revenue Service recently reminded these executives that such fringe pay is subject to income tax even if their firms sent it to the executives' wives as a gift. And the firms have to report the payments if they total more than $600 a year.

Military Hospital Jam

The military hospitals, at least many of them, are having to cut back some of the services offered retired people and dependents of active duty people because of the job of taking care of men wounded or getting diseases in Vietnam.

It's not a bed shortage. There just aren't enough medical people to handle the increasing load.

★ ★ ★

But the Army surgeon general says maternity benefits probably won't be affected. It will vary from hospital to hospital, but surgical and orthopedic treatment probably will be the main service confined to active duty personnel.

Air Force Times noted recently that oneof the big problems is the increasing number bf retirees and dependents seeking hopsital treatment, not only in Air Force hospitals but in all — since retirees can go to a military hospital of any service.

★ ★ ★

In the past five years, hospital admissions of Air Forces retirees and their dependents have risen 40 per cent. And the boom continues.

Loser More Like Winner in Most Important Race

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: An article appeared in the local newspaper stating that girls between the ages of 16 and 24, who have never been married, were eligible to participate in a contest!

I applied, was accepted, and after several rehearsals was turned away because I had a year-old son.

I am working my way through college. I am a cheer leader, college news reporter, softball pitcher, volley ball captain, band student, basketball player, am on the debate team, take ballet lessons, and have a superior rating in singing.

I work after school, keep my own apartment, and take care of my child.

What more can I do to correct my mistake of having a baby out of wedlock? What must I do to gain a place in society? I do not have a bad reputation. Only a baby.

MARION W., LAWTON, OKLA.

DEAR MARION: You may not have won this "contest," but if your impressive list of activities is any index to your determination and ability, you look like a sure winner in the more important contests of life.

DEAR ABBY? The letter from the woman who was bitter because her ex-husband was marrying a "Vietnamese prostitute" and bringing her back to the states prompts this letter.

The expression "war is hell" is an understatement at best. I wonder how many American women would choose starvation over prostitution.

In observing many foreign wives who have come home with our GI's, the majority of them have become excellent wives and mothers. Their greatest problem is adjusting to the bigotry so predominate in American society.

It's not important what a person has been. It's what a person is — and is becoming that's important.

God's forgiveness is just as sure for the prostitute as it is for the man or woman who has indulged in premarital sex. Your compassion for the "Vietnamese prostitute" was noted and appreciated by this —

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday, in a space reserved for a paid "ad" the following item appeared in our local newspaper: "Mr. and Mrs. — wish to publicly apologize for their belated thank you to all their friends and relatives for the very fine gifts they received for their wedding of February, 1968."

Would you please give me your interpretation of this item? Thank you.

CURIOUS IN N.Y.

DEAR CURIOUS: It is plainly a public "thank you" for unacknowledged wedding gifts. Nearly a year and a half late! It could have been placed there by the newlweds themselves, or even by embarrassed parents. While it is certainly an unconventional thanks, it beats no thanks at all.

Jaycette Unit to Get Charter

The newly-organized Auburn Heights Area Jaycee Auxiliary will receive its state charter Saturday at a dinner to be held at Sylvan Glen Country Club.

Robert C. Lewis, president of the Auburn Heights Area Jaycees, will welcome the 21 charter members.

Mrs. Al Formicola of Rochester, past president of the state auxiliary, will present the charter and address the new chapter.

★ ★ ★

Charter officers will be installed. They are Mesdames: James St. Louis, president; James A. Cavins Jr., vice president; Tom Lawson and David VanderLaan, secretaries and Mrs. Gene King, treasurer. Directors are Mrs. James Weaver and Mrs. Duane Carr.

Clarkston Area Jaycettes, the sponsoring auxiliary, will be guests at the dinner, with Mrs. Robert Tilley acting as mistress of ceremonies.

Dinner arrangements are in the hands of Mrs. Robert C. Lewis.

Bar Auxiliary's Yearly Donations Give Children's Village Extras

Once again, the Oakland County Bar Association Auxiliary has given a donation to Oakland County Childrens Village. Each year, the Auxiliary sponsors a luncheon-fashion show and other benefits to raise money.

Officials at Childrens Village are free to use these funds at their discretion, but particularly for extras and emergencies not covered by public funds.

In the past, the money has been used to:

- Buy bedroom furniture for the girls in the honor room which is a room used as a reward for good behavior;
- Purchase material for the girls to make clothing;
- Buy a party dress for a girl in a junior high school choir so she could participate in special events;
- Buy a musical instrument for one of the girls who showed musical talent;
- Purchase a projector;
- Assist high school seniors who wish to go on class trips; the students earn half the fee.

Auxiliary officers for 1969-70 were elected at a recent meeting.

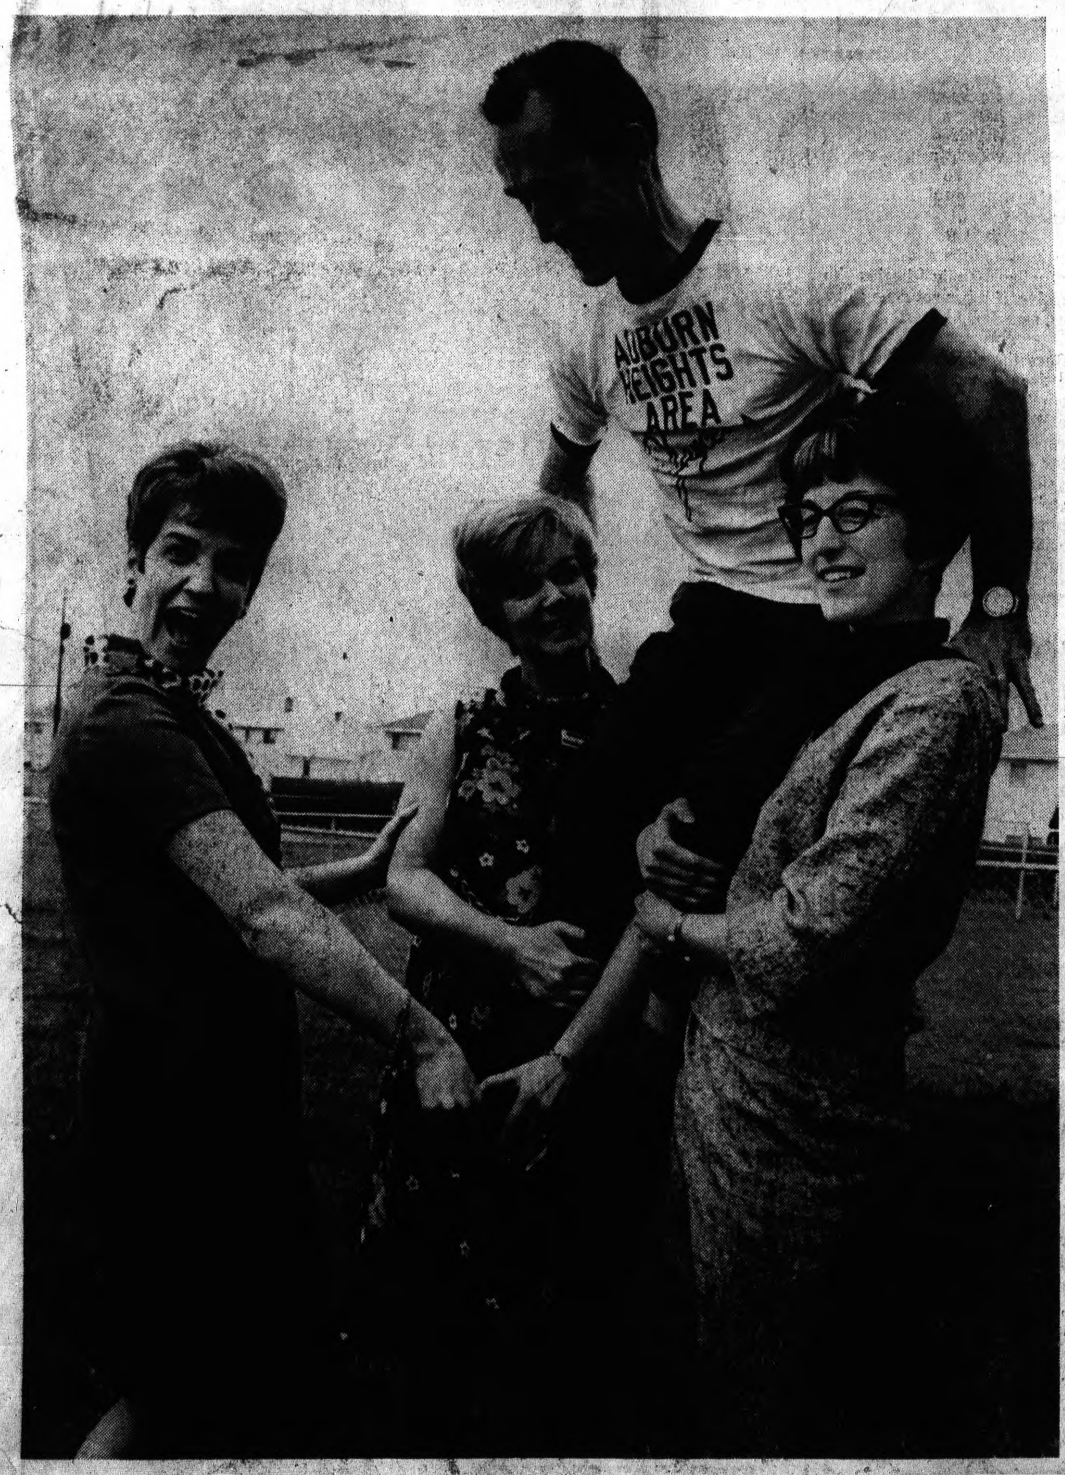

Mrs. John O'Brien, Berkley, is president with Mrs. Robert Parenti, Oxford, as president-elect. Mrs. William Lang, Troy, and Mrs. Donald Miller, Bloomfield Hills, are secretaries; Mrs. Joseph Kosek, Rochester, is treasurer.

Others elected are Mesdames: Jerome Mulligan, Thomas Raguso, Ivan Forbes, John Allen and Donald Adams. Delegates to Lawyers Wives of Michigan are Mrs. O'Brien, Mrs. Parenti, Mrs. Leonard Peres and Mrs. Gerald Bartush.

Fund-Raiser Friday

A benefit cup and saucer dessert and card party at First Federal Savings of Oakland is scheduled Friday at 7 p.m. by the Pontiac Women's Club. Proceeds will go to the nurses' scholarship fund, Girls Town and other projects.

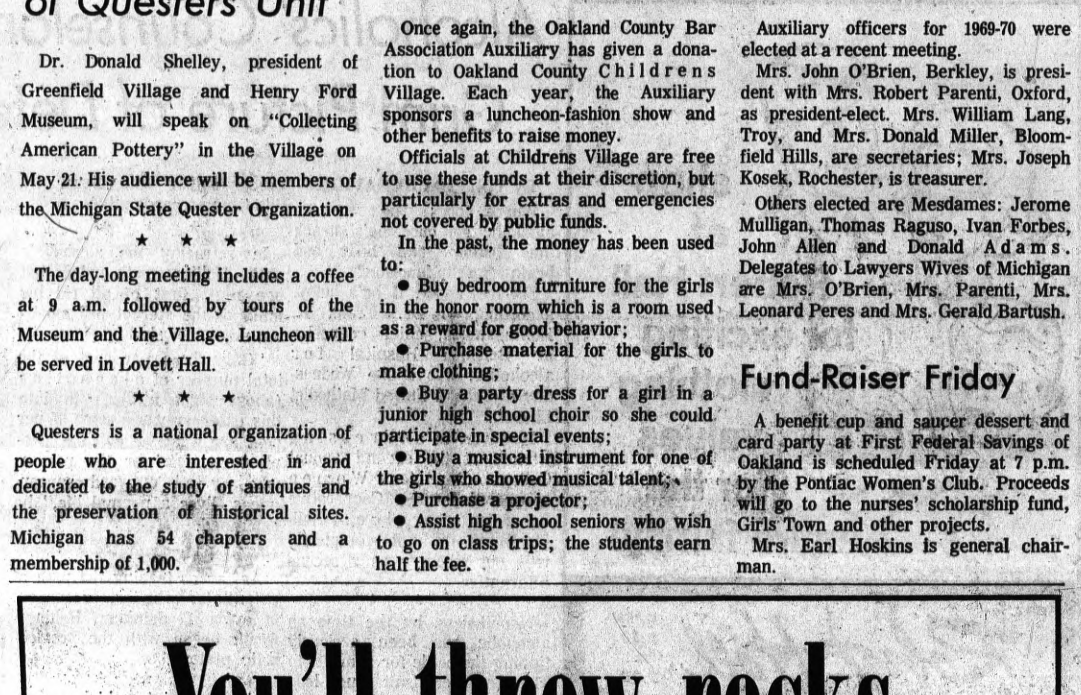

Mrs. Earl Hoskins is general chairman.

DIVING RETURN — Detroit's Bill Freehan dives back to first base after almost being doubled off on Jim Northrup's line drive to third base in the second inning of last night's game with the Chicago White Sox. First baseman Ron Hansen reaches for the late throw. The White Sox won, 6-0.

MAKE OVER PAGES

Horton Won't Forget It

DETROIT (UPI) — Willie Horton will probably remember May 14, 1969, all his life. For the first time, he got booed in Detroit.

Being the type of person he is, Willie understands — he doesn't like it any the more — but he understands.

★ ★ ★

He knows that when you fail in the clutch and make an error in the outfield which contributes to a run by the opposition that the fans are likely to not take it too kindly.

And that's what happened Wednesday night when the Tigers dropped a 6-0 decision to the Chicago White Sox and the wrath of the 14,140 fans descended upon their native born Detroit son.

★ ★ ★

"There's a first time for everything," said a philosophical Horton after the loss, which dropped the Tigers back to six and one-half games behind the Baltimore Orioles.

★ ★ ★

"I don't know why they booed," said one of the most popular ball players ever to play left field for Detriot. "It was just one of those things.

DOING BEST

"I'm doing my best — the Good Lord knows that — and that's all I can do," he said. "I figured it was coming," Horton added about the chorus of uncomplimentary noises the fans made.

"It would bother anybody — but as long as I know I'm trying my best . . ."

Willie is 2-for-21 on the recent Detroit home stand, and in the first and third innings Wednesday night the slugging left fielder stranded runners on first and third with two out both times.

★ ★ ★

However, in his defense, Buddy Bradford made one of the best catches he'll ever make on a 420-foot Horton drive to nearly dead center in the first inning.

★ ★ ★

"Most centerfielders don't play Willie that straight-away," said Jim Northrup after the game. "If Bradford is playing like most of them do, there's no way he can catch the ball."

Anyway, Bradford caught the ball and Gary Peters went on to shut out the Tigers on six hits — recording three strikeouts to put him at exactly 1,000 whiffs for his career. Incidentally, the "K" which Peters set his personal mark with, the third and final one he got in the game, was Horton in the sixth.

★ ★ ★

"I'm not a strikeout pitcher," commented the White Sox' lefty.

"I don't think about those things during a game. You can't."

★ ★ ★

Peters was presented with his third win against four losses when rookie Charles May slugged opposite field home run to left — his ninth this season — off John Hiller in the fourth. It was enough to send Hiller down to his first loss against one win.

EASY WIN

Chicago added four more tallies in the sixth with the same kind of ease which Detroit was chalking up its victories last season.

★ ★ ★

Luis Aparacio, who later added another single for his 1,999th major league hit, singled to lead off that frame and May walked before Bill Melton sacrificed both runners along.

★ ★ ★

Earl Wilson 1-4 and Tommy John 3-0 meet in the windup of the three-game series tonight.

Blair's Bat, Glove Save Day for Birds

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Baltimore Orioles Manager Earl Weaver wants only one man in center field in a tight situation — Paul Blair.

Blair responded to the confidence Wednesday night with a game-saving catch of a would be extra base hit that would have won or tied the game in the ninth inning.

Instead, the Orioles held off the Minnesota Twins for a 9-8 victory—five runs driven in off Blair's hot bat.

Blair smashed two home runs and a two-run single, which accounted for the winning run.

LEAP FOR BALL

But more important, Blair leaped against the fence in left center field and robbed Rod Carew, the American League's leading hitter, of a possible home run with one man on.

"Blair is one of the few center fielders that could have caught the ball," said Weaver.

Twins Manager Billy Martin agreed.

★ ★ ★

"Even after they got their runs and our pitching broke down, it took a sensational catch to beat us. A sensational catch," said Martin, whose team had battled back from a 9-2 deficit.

"We should have won if he wouldn't have caught it, and he shouldn't have caught it if the fence was padded. He climbed the fence after it."

GOOD DAY AT PLATE — Infielder Rodger Strader of Waterford Mott produced three runs with a double and single as the Corsairs upended Kettering, 7-0, Wednesday for their first varsity win over WKHS or WTHS, both of whom own one-run decisions over Mott (7-4) previously this spring.

Qualifying Runs Start Saturday for Indy '500'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Mario Andretti raised the year's top speed at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway to 171.657 miles per hour on a practice lap Wednesday and remained the only driver officially over the 170 m.p.h. mark.

★ ★ ★

Good weather, after several days of rain, sent 40 cars onto the track. The first day of qualifying for the 53rd 500-mile race is Saturday.

3 TIME WINNER

Three-time winner A. J. Foyt had his fastest lap of the year Wednesday, 169.651 m.p.h. Only Andretti's car has gone faster. Both drivers have turbocharged Ford engines in their cars.

Roger McCluskey, driving a Foyt-owned car had a lap of 169.5 Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

Joe Leonard, Al Unser and Wally Dallenbach all had laps of over 166 m.p.h.

Andretti's car already had the fastest lap by a piston engine car in Indianapolis history, 171.494 m.p.h. on Tuesday, and he has topped 170 on several other laps.

★ ★ ★

Three members of Foyt's crew said they timed him at just over 170 m.p.h. Wednesday, but the official electric timer caught him in 169.651.

Bobby Unser, last year's champion, spun on the first turn in his car when a connection rod broke, but the car made no contact with the wall.

★ ★ ★

An Andy Granatelli-owned car with a stock block Plymouth engine made its first appearance on the track, and driver Art Pollard took it for a few shakedown laps. Granatelli has 11 cars entered for the 500 but only six were in the Speedway garages by Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

Andretti and 1966 winner Graham Hill also are driving for Granatelli.

WTHS Clips Clarkston

Mott Trips Captains

Sophomore Bill Poe and junior Rodger Strader can be excused today by their Waterford Mott classmates if their caps are too small for their heads.

They were the key performances Wednesday as the Corsairs (7-4) surprised Kettering, 7-0, for their first varsity decision over either of their Waterford rivals. Earlier this season Mott dropped one-run verdicts to both WKHS and Waterford Township.

★ ★ ★

WTHS, meanwhile yesterday, was extending its run-scoring mastery over Clarkston (6-9) with a 14-1 romp.

The youthful Poe remained undefeated on the mount by yielding only a first-inning bunt single and a line drive safety in the second. He registered nine strikeouts and didn't walk anyone.

Strader clouted a two-run double in the second, then ignited a three-run outburst in the fifth with a single.

WINNINGEST NINE

The county's winningest prep nine, WTHS boosted its mark to 16-3 with its fourth win in a row this season and fifth straight over Clarkston.

★ ★ ★

The Skippers rapped 16 hits in yesterday's win and now have scored 60 runs in the past two years against the Wolves' pitchers. Earlier this season Waterford was a 16-0 winner.

★ ★ ★

Jim Smith and Mike Sheldon, each of whom had three hits in the game, led off for WTHS with back-to-back singles as it scored three times in the opening inning.

Steve Goit drilled a two-run homer in his only trip.

Three Sites Listed

Prep Golfers in Regionals

Prep golfers take time out tomorrow to launch their bids for state championships.

Three of the 13 regional tournaments are slated at area courses.

Burroughs Farms near Brighton will entertain Classes A, B, and C-D, while Glen Oaks in Farmington will play host to A and B teams. Romeo Golf Course will stage a 'B' tourney.

★ ★ ★

On the links yesterday, Brighton whipped West Bloomfield at Burroughs Farms, 155-159, while Lake Orion downed Romeo at Bald Mountain, 173-195.

Bill Brafford posted a 38 and Louis Meldman a 39 to pace West Bloomfield (11-4), while Darrel Denkhaus carded a 37 for Brighton. Hoyt Frericks checked in with a 38 and Bruce Rupert a 40 to lead Orion. Doug Carl managed a 43 for Romeo.

Lahser Trackmen Outrun Andover in First Meeting

Lahser's Knights drew first blood as they initiated track competition with Andover Wednesday in a Bloomfield Hills neighborhood athletic rivalry.

The unbeaten Class B power pulled away from the Class A Barons in the final mile relay to take home a 61½-56½ victory. Andover is now 4-3.

The Barons swept the shot put and took first place in all four field events. They added only the high hurdles and half mile in the racing events.

★ ★ ★

Harry Perry doubled in the 100 and 220 for Lahser with :10.3 and :23.4 timings. Bill Hafted ran a :52.2 quarter-mile for BHL.

Lahser now will try for its first Class B regional track trophy in a showdown Friday at New Baltimore Anchor Bay with rugged Cranbrook, West Bloomfield and Oxford also among the favorites.

Clarkston Net Team

Clarkston's tennis team, after building up a string of 16 wins, now has a streak of another kind going — a losing one.

The Wolves suffered their second setback in a row yesterday and their second in 16 outings this season in falling before Livonia Clarenceville in a Wayne-Oakland League duel, 3-2.

The loss left Clarkston with a 9-1 record in league competition and in a tie with Bloomfield Hills Andover for the lead. Those two were slated to meet this afternoon and tangle again tomorrow in the league meet at Andover.

Holly Wants Umpires

Umpires are needed for the upcoming season by the Holly Little League. League officials are huddling this evening at 7 to discuss plans for the campaign, and any persons interested in umpiring are invited to attend the meeting.

San Diego Glad to Leave Banks

CHICAGO (AP) — The San Diego Padres are glad to leave Chicago and get away from that old gaffer, Ernie Banks.

Everything happened to the Padres in their three-game set with the first-place Cubs who now have a four-game winning streak.

"I'm happy we don't have to see Banks again until a couple of weeks when they come to San Diego," said Manager Preston Gomez.

★ ★ ★

Monday the Padres were blanked 2-0 on Fergie Jenkin's five-hitter. The next day they were humiliated with 19-0 smashing as Banks hit two homers and a double and drove in seven runs.

Wednesday they bowed 3-2. Banks' homer — his seventh of the year — off Johnny Podres led off the ninth inning and tied the game 2-2.

1st-Flight Player Surprises Field

A first-flight golfer left the championship players a little red-faced yesterday as she upset the normal routine by posting the low score in the weekly Women's Metropolitan Golf Association outing.

Mrs. C. E. Luber, a WMGA veteran who has been on the border between championship and first flight for several seasons, turned in a 44-44—88 at Brae Burn in Northville to lead a field of 65.

Since only the players in the championship flight are eligible for honors in that division, Mrs. Luber did not win the top prize but she'll be given a trophy at the end of the season for her efforts.

Mrs. Luber accomplished her low score with a new set of clubs that she tried out the night before.

Setting the pace in the championship flight was Mrs. David Mortimer of Birmingham with a 41-49—90.

AWARDS FOR TIGER—Detroit's Denny McLain was on the receiving end of a few awards prior to the Tiger-Chicago White Sox game at Tiger Stadium last night. Sharing in the presentation of the American League Most Valuable Player award were baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn (left) and American League president Joe Cronin. Other awards for Denny included Outstanding Tiger player and top American League pitcher. The rest of the Tigers didn't fare as well, however. They were blanked by lefty Gary Peters of the White Sox, 6-0.
