

First Half Report: Area Retail Sales in Healthy Form

Pontiac area business continued on a prosperous note in the first half of 1965, according to a Press survey of Pontiac's central business district and area shopping centers.

Retail sales in the area during the first six months of 1965 showed an average gain of 14.5 per cent over sales for the same period last year.

Gains in the downtown business section were as high as 28 per cent in some stores, with an average sales gain of 15 per cent among the downtown merchants, according to Clifford C. Grovogl, president of the Downtown Pontiac Business Association.

Merchants report customers are enthusiastic about the Wide Track Drive system, now that they are becoming accustomed to it.

They are finding access to the downtown zone more convenient, especially since parking has been reestablished on Saginaw Street, Grovogl noted.

Several merchants report more activity on Pontiac's downtown streets, and they are optimistic about the second half of the year.

An average increase in sales of 12 to 15 per cent for stores at Pontiac Mall, 315 N. Telegraph, Waterford Township, for the first six months of this year raised the total half-year sales volume to a figure in excess of $10 million.

According to Robert L. Wittbold, vice president of the A. and W. Management Co., this is the largest sales volume the Mall has enjoyed in any first-half since it opened three years ago.

"We are looking forward to an ever-increasing sales volume. Witness the fact that the J. L. Hudson Co. stores are expanding, and the management of the Mall is adding approximately 50,000 square feet of Fashion Mall in the near future," Wittbold said.

Edwin Gage, president of the Tel-Huron Shopping Center, Inc., 10 S. Telegraph, reports a Centerwide increase of 10 per cent in sales over last year for the first six months of 1965.

"Naturally, the big snowstorm in the first quarter affected Tel-Huron business for a time," Gage said, "but business generally was the best for a first-six-month period of the center has ever enjoyed."

During the first half of this year, sales volume increased an average of 18 per cent over the same period in 1964, according to Mrs. Gay Edwards, coordinator and executive secretary of the Bloomfield Miracle Mile Shopping Center, 2247 S. Telegraph, Bloomfield Township.

French Charge U.S. With Spying

Vote Delayed on Service Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — House leaders put off until tomorrow an expected top-heavy vote for passage of a billion-dollar military personnel pay-raise bill.

The decision was made to protect members attending funeral services in Illinois for Adlai E. Stevenson.

Troy Man Ends Boat Mystery

Found Bullet-Riddled

A young business executive who lives in Troy has identified himself as the owner of a bullet-riddled mystery cruiser found in the Detroit River Saturday.

Arthur Goerss, 3276 Beach, said yesterday the boat was stolen and apparently taken for a joy ride.

Goerss, 29, called police in Riverside, Ont., where the boat had been taken after it was discovered partially submerged in the Detroit River.

The owner, assistant Detroit-area sales manager for a tissue company, said he had no idea how the boat got there.

He said he had seen a picture of the boat in a newspaper yesterday.

BOAT AT MARINA

Goerss last saw the 28-foot Chris Craft cruiser July 10 at his marina on the Clinton River near Mount Clemens, he said.

"Obviously it was stolen," he commented, "but I haven't been out there at the marina since then and I didn't know it was gone."

The boat was found submerged to the gunwales off Peche Island in Canadian waters.

The hull had been punctured by 17 bullets—apparently from a high-powered rifle—the engine had been dismantled and all identifying marks had been ripped off the bow and the engine.

SEEN TWICE

The cruiser, which stopped in Detroit Tuesday for an oil change and transmission adjustment, was seen twice Thursday in the Riverside area.

With no major opposition sighted, the House planned to finish consideration of the measure today and make the roll-call vote unfinished business for tomorrow.

The increases in the bill are double what President Johnson proposed.

The raise would average 10.7 per cent with the biggest share going to enlisted men—including recruits and draftees—and junior officers.

Its aim is to attract and keep skilled men in uniform.

There was no organized opposition in sight as the measure carried endorsements from both sides of the aisle.

It appeared that the administration's only chance to cut down the measure would be in the Senate, which will take up the bill after the House votes its approval.

33-1 VOTE

The measure was whipped out by the House Armed Services Committee on a 33-1 vote, approved by the rules committee and endorsed by the House Republican Policy Committee—despite Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's campaign for the administration bill.

The administration proposed a 4.8 per cent average increase totaling $448 million a year.

McNamara said this would be fair to the servicemen and fair to our taxpayers.

The Oakland County Prosecutor's Office revealed at about 2 p.m. today that Margaret Allen, a stenographer who is the key witness in the Stieren Assembly Club gambling trial, has left the state and will likely be unavailable to testify in the trial slated to open Thursday in Manistee.

She reportedly moved to New York following anonymous threats on her life.

Cong Attack 1st Division; 3 GIs Killed

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Troops of the newly arrived U.S. 1st Division were attacked by the Viet Cong for the first time during the night and three Americans were killed, a U.S. spokesman announced.

The spokesman said several more Americans were wounded in the attack that began with a mortar barrage against forward elements of the division's 2nd Brigade outside the Bien Hoa air base 12 miles northeast of Saigon.

The 1st Division troops had arrived in Viet Nam last week. It was the first action in Viet Nam for the "Big Red One" division that made an enviable record in Africa and Europe during World War II.

"I had been through Korea and I thought I was a combat veteran until last night," said Maj. B. McMillon of Fort Worth, Tex. "I had never seen fighting like that before."

U.S. planes pushed the war deeper into North Viet Nam today, bombing a 10-mile stretch announced so far. Results of the raid were not reported.

A U.S. Navy jet bomber was shot down over North Viet Nam yesterday, a short time after U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara watched it roar off along with 13 others from the catapults of the 7th Fleet carrier Independence, a U.S. spokesman announced.

The spokesman said the two crew members of the A6 Intruder were seen to parachute and land on the ground. He said a search operation for them was abandoned today and it was presumed they were captured.

North Viet Nam claimed its gunners shot down three U.S. planes yesterday and captured two pilots. It said one plane was downed over Haiphong, North Viet Nam's chief port 60 miles east of Hanoi.

BOMBERS HELP

In other developments, a U.S. spokesman announced that a large Vietnamese army task force has reopened key Route 19 in the central mountains with the help of U.S. B-52 bombers from Guam.

But 20 miles east of Saigon, the Viet Cong blew up seven bridges and blocked Route 15, connecting the capital with the coastal base of Vung Tau, a spokesman reported. Vung Tau is the site of a large American air installation and one of the headquarters of the U.S. 17th Airborne Brigade.

Since early last month, most of Route 19 had been cut off and controlled by the Viet Cong. The reopening of the route, which winds through a high mountain pass around An Khe, enabled a convoy carrying 311 tons of cargo to reach Pleiku after traveling from Qui Nhon, on the South China Sea coast 120 miles away.

The Vietnamese army was reported to have rebuilt two of the bridges destroyed by the Viet Cong and put a third in condition to handle some traffic.

McNamara toured the Viet Nam countryside today in the second day of field trips during his current look at the war.

Say U.S. Plane Took Pictures of N-Complex

1st American Report Claims Craft Forced off Course by Storm

PARIS (AP) — France accused the United States today of aerial espionage at its supersecret nuclear complex, where enriched uranium for the French hydrogen bomb is produced. The incident plunged American-French relations to a new low.

French officials said a U. S. Air Force RF101 reconnaissance plane made four passes over the nuclear complex at Pierrelatte last Friday and took 175 photos despite interception by a French fighter plane.

A formal protest was lodged with the U. S. Embassy in Paris by the French Foreign Ministry.

American officials in France and in West Germany, where the photographic reconnaissance plane is based, declined all comment after details of the incident were reported by a French Defense Ministry communiqué.

State department officials in Washington said only: "The investigation is continuing."

TRAINING MISSION

Earlier, American officials said that on the basis of first reports, the plane had been on a routine training mission.

They said a thunderstorm caused the plane to go off course, but expressed belief it had not flown over the Pierrelatte complex.

But the French Defense Ministry version contradicted these statements.

A communiqué said the American plane committed three infractions: overflight of a restricted zone; photography without authorization; photography of a restricted zone.

Keeps a-Hammerin' Despite Retirement

What do 78-year-old retired carpenters do for fun and relaxation?

Victor Bacon of 23 Grandie has the answer: build your self a retirement house.

After 62 years in the carpentry trade, Bacon, 78, "retired" 10 years ago. A Pontiac resident since 1963, Bacon is currently building a new, smaller home on Grandie adjoining his present house.

The basement is completed.

The house, which has been in progress for some time, was built in such a way that it could be moved, section by section, onto the basement.

He sat at the edge of the new floor, pausing for a breather.

"That house I built in 1911," he said, pointing to one on the block. "The one next to it was started in 1903 on this acre of land my grandmother bought for $1,000 in 1903 when the family moved here from Mayville, near Lapeer."

"It used to take us a day and a half to come here from my grandmother's farm with a horse and buggy; now I can do it easily in a car in an hour," Bacon chuckled.

Speculation High Rusk to Get U.N. Post?

WASHINGTON (AP)—There was high-level speculation in Congress today that President Johnson may name Secretary of State Dean Rusk as head of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations.

Johnson, who flew to Bloomington, Ill., for the funeral of Adlai E. Stevenson, has postponed any announcement on his choice of Stevenson's successor in that post.

According to some associates, Rusk would be receptive to becoming chief of the U.S. delegation.

The sources who reported this said that if such an appointment were made, they believe Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara might be named secretary of state.

Last week at his news conference, prior to Stevenson's death, President Johnson was asked about published reports that he might contemplate a change in the office of secretary of state.

He told his questioner: "I think you do a great disservice to one of the most competent and most dedicated men that I've ever known, Secretary Rusk. He sits on my right in the Cabinet room. He ranks first in the Cabinet, and he ranks first with me."

Some Differences to Be Resolved

Medicare Roars Into Home Stretch

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Today marks the first appearance in The Pontiac Press of John Troon's byline. He is an authority on Social Security legislation. Troon has literally been living with the new Medicare bill for the last year. As soon as the President signs the bill, The Pontiac Press will release a series of 16 articles explaining the legislation in detail.)

By JOHN TROON
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON — Medicare is roaring down the home stretch. After a 22-year campaign, which alternately flared and flickered, compulsory health insurance is about to become a reality in the United States.

All that remains is for a congressional conference committee to iron out differences between the Senate and House versions of Medicare so President Johnson can sign into law a revolutionary program of health benefits for persons past 65, financed by Social Security taxes. He hopes to do this within two weeks.

Here are the major differences to be resolved:

• Hospital Care — The House would provide up to 60 days for each illness minus $40. The Senate would add another 60 days with the patient paying $10 for each of these extra days.

• Diagnostic Services — The House would cover diagnostic services supplied by a hospital on a nonovernight basis, minus the first $20. The Senate would do likewise but also make the patient pay one-fifth of the balance.

• Nursing-Home Care — The House would provide 20 to 100 days, depending on how long the patient was hospitalized beforehand. The Senate would make it a straight 100 but make the patient pay $5 for each day after the first 20.

• Home Care — The House would cover up to 100 visits a year to a patient's home, following hospitalization, by part-time nurses and other health aides. The Senate would provide up to 175 such visits and knock out the hospitalization requirement.

• Doctor Bills — The House would cover these under a supplemental health insurance plan which would be optional and cost an individual $3 a month. The Senate would do the same but want services of hospital-salaried radiologists, anesthesiologists, pathologists and psychiatrists (specialists in rehabilitation) covered by the basic Social Security-Medicare program.

• Mental Treatment — The House would have the supplemental insurance cover up to 60 days of care in a mental hospital for a single illness and up to 120 days during the patient's lifetime. The Senate would raise this to 120 days for a single illness and 210 days for a lifetime — and put it all under the basic tax-paid Medicare program.

• Supplemental Insurance — The House wants this to take effect next July 1. The Senate prefers Jan. 1, 1967. In either case, the subscriber will have to pay the first $50 a year toward his (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Local Guard Unit Review Has Added Significance

By DON FEMBER

GRAYLING — Sgt. C. Glen A. Simpson, 1994 Woodrow, Waterford Township, carried a guidon in the 46th Infantry Division memorial review here yesterday.

It was the 18th consecutive review in which Simpson had carried the unit standard, and probably the last time anyone will ever do it.

Simpson is a platoon sergeant in Company A, 2nd Battalion, of the 125th Infantry, the Pontiac-based unit of the Michigan National Guard.

The division reviews have been held each year since the organization of the 46th Division in 1947. The review is the highlight of the annual two-week summer training session for the guardsmen.

ADDED SIGNIFICANCE

This year there was a little more significance to the review than in past years.

The Defense Department has ordered a reorganization of the National Guard, and under the pending changes, the 46th Division would be eliminated and a sweeping change would result throughout the Michigan units.

"You would be surprised at the sentimental attachment they have for this division," Simpson said.

But in addition to losing the division, guardsmen from Pontiac could suddenly find themselves something other than infantrymen — a status they have held since before the Civil War.

AS INFANTRYMEN

Pontiac men fought as infantrymen in 13 of the 26 major engagements of that war including Gettysburg, Antietam and Chancellorsville," Simpson said.

"We have walked around too long to be something other than infantry. We sweat as infantrymen, but the troops wouldn't trade it for the world," the 38-year-old Consumers Power employee said.

In addition to action in the Civil War, Pontiac men fought in Cuba with Teddy Roosevelt, and were a part of a force which chased Pancho Villa across Mexico.

UNIT HISTORIAN

Overseas they became part of the famous 32nd "Red Arrow" Division, according to Simpson, who is regarded as the unit historian.

In 1940, Pontiac guardsmen were activated for duty in World War II, and today the unit carries one of the few battle streamers for Korean duty in the state.

The first summer training session Simpson attended was in 1947.

"It was a lot different in those days. Our equipment was older and the camp facilities were poor in comparison to what we have today," Simpson said.

OUTDOOR LATRINES
"We had coal heaters for the showers and all the latrine facilities were the outdoor type — out in the woods.

"We had no wash basins. When we got up in the morning we used our helmets to wash in," he said.

Today the Pontiac guardsmen still sleep in aquid tents, but they enjoy large brick latrine facilities, bright, comfortable mess halls and lots of hot water.

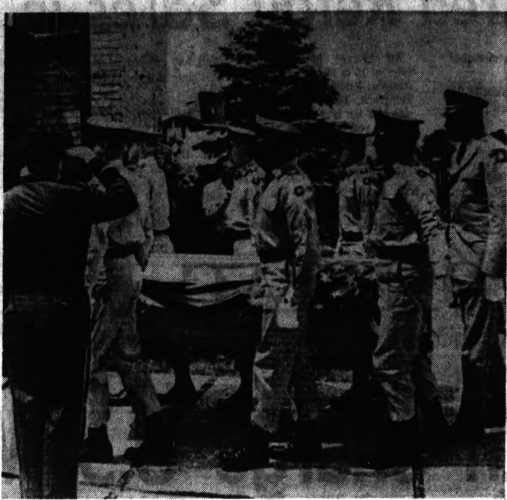

"Where our area is now located, on the west edge of the cantonment area, was a rifle range in 1947. Our food was cooked on a wood-fired stove we called 'Old Black Joe,'" Simpson said.

STILL SAME
Camp has changed a great deal since 1947, but the men are still the same — younger perhaps, according to Simpson.

There is a camaraderie amongst guardsmen which is hard to explain — far different than the kithship between full-time military personnel.

Perhaps this is the reason the 46th Division review was a little different this year.

The band was a little sweeter, the marching a little sharper, and here and there a wet cheek was visible along the reviewing line.

22 Killed Over Weekend

By The Associated Press

Traffic accidents claimed 22 lives in Michigan during a weekend that, although marked at times by rain, was pleasant and sunny.

Water accidents in Michigan claimed two lives. The Associated Press tabulation began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight yesterday.

Traffic victims included: A man tentatively identified as John Belser, 40, of Rogers City was struck and killed by an auto yesterday while walking along a Detroit street.

John O'Leary Jr., 46, of Detroit was killed yesterday in Roscommon County when his car failed to make a curve and rolled off the road.

James D. Foster, 22, and Frank G. Sanchez, 23, both of Breckinridge, died yesterday when the motorcycle they were riding and a car collided in Breckinridge.

Raven Louis Reid, 30, of Ypsilanti Township was killed Saturday when his motorcycle collided with a car at an intersection in Washtenaw County.

STRUCK BY CAR
Velma Jean Wilson, 35, of Detroit was fatally injured Saturday when she was struck by a car in Allen Park.

Kenneth C. Laidlaw, 62, of Ypsilanti was killed Saturday in a two-car collision at an intersection of M19 in Sanilac County.

John Kelsey, 72, of Hart died Saturday when he was struck by a car in Hart Township, Oceana County.

Charles Lake, 16, of Niles was struck by a car while riding his bicycle in Niles.

Clifton J. Sott Jr., 18, and James Lennox, 17, both of Jackson, were killed Saturday when their car struck a tree in Blackman Township, Jackson County.

James Raymont, 8, of Detroit was killed Saturday when he was struck by a car on a service drive of the Edsel Ford Expressway in Detroit.

Agnes Wilson, 33, and her husband Jesse, 73, were killed Saturday when their car and another vehicle collided on U. S. 33 in Hager Township three miles north of St. Joseph in Berrien County.

Robert Brink, 18, of Holland was killed Saturday on a rural road west of Allegan when the tractor he was driving hit a culvert.

Robert Watkins, 40, of Flint was killed Saturday in Burton Township, Genesee County, when his car and another collided.

Reuben Hurlbert, 36, of LaPeere died Saturday when the car in which he was a passenger struck a horse on M14 in Oxford Township, Oakland County.

Elizabeth Davidson, 54, of Port Huron died Saturday after she was struck by a car Friday night at a Port Huron intersection.

Lynda Lowe, 22, of Utica was killed Saturday when a car in which she was a passenger and another car collided at a Troy intersection.

Robert G. Hilderbrand, 22, of Sanford, and Lyle G. Wersley, 30, of Midland, were killed Friday night when the car in which they were riding struck a bridge in Buckeye Township, Gladwin County.

DROWNINGS:
Charles Hill, 27, of Detroit drowned yesterday in Ford Lake in Ypsilanti Township in Washtenaw County.

Jerome Sellers, 11, of St. Johns, drowned Friday in Evans Lake near Big Rapids.

"I helped build the Beaudette home, the one the YWCA just bought up on Huron Street.

"Good house. They said it cost $150,000 to build even then.

"Nine carpenters worked on the Edsel Ford summer home in Highland Township. There's only one other fellow and myself left now.

"Then I was a carpenter for GMC Truck & Coach Division for 12 years. I retired from there 10 years ago.

"I wish I'd gone with them earlier, but I didn't want to work in a shop."

Bacon extended his rest break. "There's no hurry," he said. "I don't expect to move into this one until next summer."

"Can't stand the cold weather any more, though. When the weather gets cold I'm going to hitch up that trailer and head for Florida," he said, pointing to a trailer he built himself.

Bacon doesn't smoke, drink or chew.

He "became a Christian" when he was 16 in an evangelist tent located where the Walden Hotel now stands.

"Haven't had my picture taken since 1959 when my wife and I celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary. The Pontiac Press took it then, too," he noted.

Then, with a wink, he returned to the business of home building.

"Just can't sit still and do nothing," he said, picking up the saw.

Bloomington, Ill. (AP)

Leaders of the nation and home town friends heard Adlai E. Stevenson lauded today as a "combination of greatness and goodness" and "the voice of peace and reason for all the peoples of the world."

A community memorial service brought thousands to the Horton Fieldhouse of Illinois State University and about 200 to the funeral in the Unitarian church.

President and Mrs. Johnson, Vice President and Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey and Chief Justice and Mrs. Earl Warren headed the list of national figures invited to join the family and close friends in the small, modern stately church.

Dr. Dana McLean Greeley of Boston, president of Unitarian Universalist Association, told the mourners at the church that Stevenson was a universal citizen.

MOLD IMAGE
"Statesmen and the common people alike, the world around, have taken him to their hearts, and will mold his memory into their own image of the best life and prophecy of America in the 20th century," Dr. Greeley said.

Mourners in the severely fire-damaged church and in an adjoining room, among them Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois, Sen. Paul H. Douglas of Chicago, Agriculture Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg, and Stevenson's long-time friend, William McCormick Blair, now ambassador to the Philippines, heard Dr. Greeley say:

"Neither ancient Israel or modern New York could produce a more articulate spokesman for justice and the right."

"If Winston Churchill did this, it was not to liquidate the empire, but to keep the past upon her throne, whereas Gov. Stevenson undertook the tougher task primarily of persuading a nation to minimize its severity and to merge its hopes and fears with those other nations."

May Compromise to End Greek Crisis

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — A compromise settlement of the Greek political crisis appeared possible today as demonstration continued against King Constantine's removal of Premier George Papandreu.

However, tension remained high as Papandreu prepared to make his first public appearance here since he was ousted as premier last Thursday.

At the same time, the government of new Premier George Athanassiadis Novas indicated it would gladly accept any conciliatory moves to end the political turbulence marked by mass demonstrations and riots in Athens and other parts of the country.

Board Drops Literacy Test

Dixie County Yields to Negro Objections

By The Associated Press

Voter registrars abandoned a difficult literacy test today in the face of demands from Negro leaders and the threat of new demonstrations at Greensboro, Ala.

Members of the Hale County Registration Board made the decision to halt use of Alabama's literacy test in their county after a conference with attorney John Nixon of the Justice Department.

Between 75 and 100 Negroes, many of them carrying towels as a safeguard against tear gas, had showed up at the Greensboro courthouse two hours after the board went into session.

Reinforced squads of state troopers stood guard following the burning Saturday night of two rural Negro churches near here.

Negroes walking in small groups from a downtown church said their towels would afford some protection in the event tear gas was fired at them. Police gave no indication they planned to use gas, however.

MIGHT MARCH

Negro leaders had warned that their followers might march on the courthouse or stage a sit-in unless registration procedures were speeded up.

Hale County became the second to drop the tough literacy test voluntarily; several other counties have been forbidden to use the test in court rulings and a statewide challenge is pending.

State investigators examined the ruins of the two churches.

They declined to express an opinion on whether the fires were set purposely, but the pastor of the newly built St. Mark A.M.E. church, one of the two destroyed Saturday night, blamed arsonists.

"I'm sure the burning my church was a retaliation against me," said the Rev. A. T. Days, a leader of civil rights efforts in Hale County.

FOLLOW VIOLENCE

Days' church and the Elmwood A.M.E. Zion church — both wooden structures — burned after violence erupted when 75 Negro pickets refused to leave the courthouse grounds Friday. They were dispersed by police and several were slugged. Some white bystanders struck the Negroes.

In Bogalusa, La., shots were fired Sunday night from a car carrying four Negroes as they approached a carload of white men at a truck stop.

The Negroes, all of Bogalusa, were arrested after they fled to an adjoining parish. One, Joe Gallin, 26, was charged with attempted murder, the others with disturbing the peace.

Earlier Sunday, the Bogalusa public safety commissioner suspended for 10 days an off-duty fireman who squirted a water hose at a civil rights picket.

DIES OF WOUND

In Aniston, Ala., Negro laborer Willie Brewster, shot by night riders on a lonely highway last Thursday night, died Sunday.

Brewster, 38, and the father of two, was shot as he and three other Negroes were returning from work.

Committee Suggests Downtown Circle Road

BIRMINGHAM — Completion of a peripheral route around the central business district has received highest priority on a timetable for improvements recommended by the Citizens Action Committee (CAC).

Asked for its opinion on the relative importance of contemplated public projects, the executive committee of the CAC will report to the City Commission tonight.

The commission has been considering a proposal which would create a peripheral route of Oakland, Willis, Chester, Brown and Hunter, with traffic moving counter-clockwise.

The CAC has given second place priority to construction of a parking ramp on the south side of the downtown district, either on the lot south of Shain Park or that on the east side of Pierce between Merrill and Brown.

Public hearing on the special assessment district for the city's first ramp will be held at the 8 p.m. commission meeting.

ON WEST SIDE

The $1,374,000 structure will be built on the west side of Woodward north of Willis.

The CAC has suggested that the commission limit for perhaps six months issuing of building permits along the proposed ring road route.

"This would give the commission time to study further the alternatives and arrive at the best conclusion without being under the gun because of a particular building permit request," the CAC notes.

The group also is urging that the city develop a plan for the business district's future. Such a study would go beyond the controls of zoning laws and would provide a projection of the district's appearance 20 years hence.

Ship Floating Powerless; 600 Aboard

ST. JOHNS, Nfld. (UPI) — A West German passenger liner carrying 600 persons, its engines disabled by a minor fire, today floated helplessly in the North Atlantic, awaiting the arrival of a towing vessel.

The 15,500-ton motorship Seven Seas was 50 miles east of here Saturday night when a small fire in the engine room knocked out the electrical system. No injuries were reported.

The ship, en route to New York from Rotterdam, coasted to a halt in gentle rain-swept seas. Holland-America Lines, the ship's passenger agent, immediately dispatched from the Azores ocean-going tug Irish Seas to tow the disabled liner to Newfoundland.

The tug was not expected to reach the Seven Seas until tomorrow.

The low vessel was scheduled to bring the ship into Newfoundland Friday.

Student in Car Crash

Kay Derbyshire, 22-year-old daughter of Frank E. Derbyshire, 502 S. Sharon, was killed yesterday when the car in which she was a passenger turned in front of oncoming traffic on MS-5 five miles north of Bad Axe in Huron County.

Driver of the car was Dr. Mohammad Zaman, an intern at Saginaw General Hospital. Miss Derbyshire was a student nurse at the hospital.

Retired Editor Dies

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — James Saxton Childers, former editor of the Atlanta Journal, died Saturday. He was 86. Childers had been in failing health for some time. Childers retired as editor of the Journal in 1957.

Thus, under the House schedule, the maximum Social Security tax for the ordinary wage earner would be $243.60 next year and crest at $269.60 in 1967. The Senate's corresponding figures would be $275.55 and $379.50.

• Medicare Tax — Part of the Social Security tax will be earmarked for Medicare. The House wants the maximum "Medicare Tax" to range from $19.80 next year to $63.90 in 1987. The Senate from $21.45 next year to $58.10 in 1987.

Mississippi State Enrolls 1st Negro

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi State University quietly enrolls its first Negro student in its 85-year history today.

Richard Holmes, 21, a foster son of a Starkville Negro doctor, registers as a sophomore in the college of arts and sciences.

Desegregation came without a federal court order. Mississippi State, however, filed a pledge with the U.S. Office of Education that it would accept Negroes so it could remain eligible for federal funds.

Two-Nation Project

X Rays Will Probe Egyptian Pyramid

CAIRO (UPI)—American and Egyptian scientists are planning to seek hidden chambers in the 4,615-year-old pyramid of Cephren.

The scientists hope to bring nearly $200,000 worth of equipment into the desert south of Cairo to look into the pyramid, Egypt's second largest.

The burial chamber of Cephren was uncovered ages ago and the pharaoh's treasures plundered, but the scientists believe that only X-rays can determine whether unknown passageways exist.

Dr. Luis W. Alvarez, 52, head of the physics department at the University of California, originated the idea because he had long been interested in experiments on X-raying massive structures.

He prepared a detailed technical report on the project earlier this year which he submitted to two Egyptian colleagues. Prof. Fathi al Bedawi, professor of nuclear physics at El Shamsa University in Cairo, and Prof. Osman Moulti, director of the reactor division at Inshass, Egypt's atomic energy establishment.

ENDORSE PROJECT

The Egyptians endorsed the project and obtained their government's approval.

The scientists chose the Cephren pyramid because it has an accessible underground corridor that runs almost to the center of the structure.

Cephren is the pharaoh whose features are believed to be immortalized in the famed sphinx at Giza. The pyramid is 447.5 feet high — only six inches less than St. Peter's Basilica in Rome. Each of the pyramid's four sides is 693 feet long.

The adjacent pyramid of Cheops is the largest in the world, but the scientists decided to bypass it because it has already been extensively explored, and they felt there was little chance of finding anything new in it.

The scientists plan to X-ray the Cephren pyramid by means of cosmic rays which constantly bombard the earth from the outer space. Two cosmic ray counters will be used to make photographs.

They will be placed in such relation to one another so the scientists will be able to get a three-dimensional effect.

Scientists in Cairo said the project is expected to take several months. They said the project would have immense archaeological value but noted that it would not add to the knowledge or the application of the science of physics.

17 on Ship Are Saved by Captain

BRUNSWICK, Ga. (UPI) — Capt. Deacy (Curly) Crossland used a long grappling pole to pilot his burning excursion boat to safe waters yesterday, and 17 persons leaped to safety seconds before the fuel tanks exploded.

Oil-fueled flames drove passengers aboard the 65-foot Sara Jane III to the bow of the craft while the 47-year-old Crossland worked feverishly for 20 minutes to maneuver it toward nearby St. Simons Island.

The wild flames drove Crossland from the pilot's wheel, blistered his feet and singed his hair. The other 16 persons aboard escaped without serious injury but in a state of near shock.

"It was just a miracle that no one got killed on that boat," police officer Curtis Tucker said after watching the life and death drama offshore.

Tucker said he and a companion watched from a patrol car at various locations on St. Simons Island as flames swept the boat, crowding the throng of passengers into the bow. He radioed for firemen, ambulances and the U.S. Coast Guard.

FISHING TRIP

The fire broke out in the engine room as the Sara Jane III returned from a day-long fishing outing in the Atlantic. Its origin was undetermined.

When the boat's keel struck bottom in seven feet of water about 75 feet out, Tucker said, Crossland ordered the men, women and children overboard. At that instant, explosions occurred.

The fire reached 700 gallons of diesel fuel stored in two tanks. "It just burst out all over," Tucker said.

"They (passengers) were falling overboard. They weren't diving or jumping. They were just falling."

PASSENGERS HELPED

Tucker said several on board could not swim but plunged in anyway and were helped safely to shallower footing by others. At least one woman was struck on the head by the still-drifting boat, he said.

Crossland and several passengers received minor burns and at least three persons were treated for various minor injuries at the Brunswick-Glynn County Memorial Hospital.

The hospital refused to reveal names. Officers gave reporters names of three persons who were treated: Mr. and Mrs. Billie Frank Curry of Dublin, Ga., and Mrs. Doris Brazell of Brunswick.

The boat had a crew of three — Crossland, 1st mate John Mitchell and seaman John McFerron.

Festival Plans Moving Along

ROCHESTER — Plans for the Art 'n' Apples Festival scheduled Sept. 16 through 19 are moving along according to schedule.

Included in the festival will be an exhibit by professional Michigan artists, a "Sunday painters" show and demonstrations

Von Valter will contact residents for donations.

There is no set donation, but those contributing $5 or more will be listed in the festival's free souvenir program book.

The book will contain a three-part history of the Rochester area, the complete festival story and the top winners in the judged show.

LENDING SUPPORT

It is being supported by advertising under the direction of Roger Rummel, a vice president of Community National Bank and Dr. John Solverson, festival chairman.

One of the top attractions is expected to be the on-the-spot art demonstrations, coordinated by Mrs. Harold Brown. Her artists will do silhouettes, pastels and charcoal sketches, portraits and decorative work.

Admission will be charged for the evening performances of the Rochester Arts group. The performances will include musical programs and a prize-winning one-act play, "The King's Mistress," by George Long of Rochester.

The Rochester Jaycees will sell cider and donuts and the Confraternity of Christian Mothers of St. Andrew's Catholic Church will offer coffee and apple desserts from their festival cook book.

Training Program Slated at Troy Firm

TROY—Industro-Motive Corp. has signed a contract with the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training to conduct an on-the-job training program.

Thirty persons will train in five occupations under the provisions of the Manpower Development and Training Act. William A. Price, the bureau's state supervisor, said the company will be reimbursed $23,144 from federal funds for training costs. In turn, the corporation will pay the participants about $21 in wages during their training periods.

His term extends to April 1, 1966.

Bradburn has lived in Keego Harbor the past 23 years and in the area all his life.

A graduate of Pontiac Central High School, he is married and the father of a married daughter and a son, 17.

He has been on the Keego Harbor Planning Commission the past five years and chairman of the commission the past two years.

RESIGNS POSTS

He was also on the building authority board. He has resigned both board positions to accept the position of justice.

In the past, Bradburn had worked with the guidance committee for four years, and was president of the Boys' Club for a year.

Principal Named for Gill Elementary

FARMINGTON — Detroit educator Paul T. Rankin has been appointed principal of Gill Elementary School.

A resident of Farmington for four years, Rankin has been an elementary school principal in Detroit. He was named to fill the vacancy created at Gill by the death of Grannis McCarty last month.

The new administrator holds a bachelor's degree from Michigan State University and master's from Wayne State University.

He now is working on his doctorate at the University of Michigan.

Rankin began teaching in Detroit in 1949 and became an administrator in 1956.

Chicken Barbecue

Slated for Saturday

ORTONVILLE — The Ortonville Methodist Church will hold its annual chicken barbecue Saturday at 5 p.m., at the church on Church St.

Proceeds will go to the general fund of the church.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION — Two corporations will be housed in this new building designed for the industrial park development south of Berz Airport, between 14 and 15

Mile roads. Troy. The building will house Automotive Conversion Corp. of Birmingham and Teleflex Corp. of North Wales, Pa., when it is completed in September.

Support Loan Due Farmers in Program

Farmers participating in the 1965 wheat diversion program who planted within their allotment are eligible for a federal price support loan of $1.24 per bushel for No. 1 wheat.

Marshall L. Mohney, manager of the Oakland County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office, said either government or approved farm storage of the upcoming crop may be used.

In either case, Mohney said, farmers planning to obtain loans on their wheat should file an application at the ASCS office, 83 Oakland, Pontiac.

ASCS county committee members will serve as commodity inspectors again this year, Mohney said. Under this simplified method, the inspector and the farmer make a joint inspection of farm-stored wheat to determine the condition of the storage structure and estimate the quantity and condition of the wheat.

Mohney listed three main objectives of the price support program:

- To make loans on farm-stored commodities immediately available to the producer.
- To stress the advantage of waiting until market price is higher than support price to redeem loans.
- To streamline and simplify the system so that it is easily understood by farmers.

Early harvest of wheat will begin this week in some areas of the county.

New Industrial Park Building to Be Completed in September

TROY — The newest building in the industrial park development near Berz Airport is scheduled for completion in late September.

It will house the Automotive Conversion Corp. of Birmingham and the Teleflex Corp. of North Wales, Pa.

The building, a portion of which is now complete, was designed by Marr and Marr, Detroit architects who designed the entire complex.

The new building is located at 2566 Industrial Row in a new subdivision laid out and developed by Birmingham Industrial Corp.

The west, and center portions of the building were laid out to suit the building and production requirements of the Automotive Conversion Corp.

The company is the home of Amblerwag, a station wagon converted to ambulance or hearse.

The eastern portion of the building is leased to Teleflex.

George R. Squibb, president of Birmingham Industrial Corp., said the industrial park "is to be a real credit to the Birmingham-Troy industrial area."

He said the complex is based on the idea that an industrial plant should be a pleasant place to work, with the necessary qualities which promote good business, good production, and good living.

The complex, containing about 11 buildings, is located east of Coolidge between 14 and 15 Mile Roads.

K. of C. Fete Planned

LAKE ORION — The Rochester and Lake Orion councils of the Knights of Columbus will sponsor a summer festival Sunday on the Lake Orion Campgrounds at the corner of Lake Orion and Kern roads.

A camp trailer and other camping equipment will be given as prizes at the festival, which will be held from 1 to 9 p.m.

Concessions will include pie throwing, darts, ring toss, cotton candy and a merry-go-round.

Games planned for the children include sack races, shoe races, ball toss and penny scramble. Games for the adults will include tag-of-war, egg toss, shoe kick and wheelbarrow race.

Chicken dinners will be served as well as home-baked pies made by wives of Knights of Columbus members.

Enemy of Farmers

Starlings Not Scared of Scarecrows

EAST LANSING (AP) — Farmers have pretty much forgotten about the scarecrow these days. What they are looking for now is a "startle-crow."

And instead of tacking up old clothes on a couple of broomsticks, they are more likely to go out in the field with any kind of gadget that goes "bang, pop, honk or boom."

These methods are not 100 per cent effective, said Charles Shick, a Michigan State University extension specialist in game management.

But, he said, they work better than the old scarecrow at reducing damage to corn, berry and fruit plantings by starlings, grackles and redwing blackbirds.

CHERRY DAMAGE

Starlings and grackles already have caused more than $4,000 damage to sweet cherries this year in Berrien County alone. Estimates for the whole western side of the state range above $10,000.

Shick recommends a smorging and evening shotgun patrol, in addition to automatic noise-making devices.

"A few shotgun blasts over feeding birds will do much to keep them off balance," he said.

MSU researchers report that frightening devices generally cause flocks of birds to change feeding areas and also tend to break flocks up into smaller groups so that extensive damage to individual fields is less likely.

POISONING FAILS

Peter J. A. Smith, of Cornell University, reported that trapping or poisoning does not work well because of the birds' great potential to reproduce.

Their annual natural mortality is about 90 per cent, so artificial destruction one year will not reduce next year's numbers, Smith said.

He recommends removal of woodlots, hedgerows and other bushy spots which provide roosting areas for birds near crop fields.

A major problem, Smith added, is that modern crop-growing methods set out a banquet for birds more attractive than ever before.

STERILE STARLINGS
Smith said Cornell specialists plan to run field tests in New York State on chemicals which would cause temporary sterility in starlings. They also are testing high voltage electrical systems that shock the birds, making them emit the distress call and leave.

Beach Square Dance Adds to Summer Fun

The sound of square dance music, accompanied by the appropriate calls, rings out twice a week at Metropolitan Beach as square dancers get together for some outdoor fun.

The 8 p.m. programs are held Mondays and Wednesdays at the beach on Lake St. Clair in Macomb County.

Dancing is offered to appeal to all levels of skill.

Instruction is given beginners from 8 to 9:15 p.m. Mondays. Couples and singles of all ages participate in the program.

The beginning instruction is followed by easy intermediate dancing.

ADVANCED CLASS

Advanced square dancers take the floor from 9 to 11 p.m. Wednesdays.

This event regularly attracts some 250 dancers and many spectators who come out to watch the colorful numbers.

This season, dancers have a chance to hear a variety of callers with different styles and techniques. Sharing the calling honors are Wes and Julie Rae of Grosse Pointe, Vic Andrews of St. Clair Shores, Doug McKinnon of Detroit and Gerry Lints of Roseville.

All of the dances are held at the outdoor pavilion at the west end of the boardwalk.

LOCAL BANDS

Another activity at the open-air pavilion is the series of Saturday night dances with local bands providing music from 8:30 p.m. to midnight.

Movies and a singalong are scheduled for Fridays from 8:30 to 11 p.m.

Recorded music is provided for dancers from 8 to 11 p.m. Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday. All dance events are free, although there is a parking charge.

The beach is located four miles east of Mount Clemens.

It Seems to Me . . .

Failure to Yield Right of Way Cause of Most Auto Accidents

As an overwhelming automotive community, this area has a tremendous stake in safe travel. Holiday and week-end fatalities leave most of us aghast.

How can we lessen the total?

New York State once compiled an analysis of 250,000 automobile accidents and listed the main reasons.

You can't guess the leader. Failure to yield the right of way stands at the head of the list. Altogether too many Americans are imbued with an ingrained belligerence that asserts itself here at a tremendous cost. Apparently, every year when several thousand drivers approach an intersection they insist that they and they alone have the right of way and they propose to exercise it, even if it means slow music and final services at the grave.

An astounding 25% eventuate from this simple factor. The next time some irresponsible clown comes barreling along, don't insist on every inch that you're positive is legitimately yours. It may just put you "six feet from those flowers that you can't smell."

★ ★ ★

Following another vehicle too closely ranks second. Known as "tail-gating" this is much more lethal than it appears. The investigation shows the second driver is frequently caught by an unexpected stop by the car ahead. If you're "on the heels" of another car, watch like a hawk and lengthen the distance as soon as you can. "The life you save may be . . ."

Speeding is third.

An old bugaboo rears the same old ugly head and the Grim Reaper snatches an unbelievable number of victims through excessive speedometer readings.

Our own area should be a leader in fighting these three established menaces to life and health.

Never, never forget: "the cemetery is full of people that had the right-of-way."

State Supported . . .

In a current magazine, Olympic high jumper, JOHN THOMAS, describes a visit to the world's champion, in Moscow.

VALERY BRUMEL and his wife and child live in a very comfortable apartment at Communist state expense. They have a nurse for their child — at state expense. VALERY has an American Rambler automobile. For several years his sole occupation has been high jumping.

This is his full-time job.

During the intensive training season, he lives at a luxurious training resort — at state expense.

And yet, these full-time professional Russian athletes compete in the Olympic games against the world's amateurs. What a farce this is.

Why do we stand for such mockery?

New Premier . . .

South Viet Nam's new premier is a gentleman of many dubious qualities.

No national government would enthrone at the prospect of tying into Nguyen Cao Ky. Already Senator Ky has attacked the rice profiteering in startling fashion. Unless the price is reduced sufficiently, he will drop the names of leading merchants in a hat, draw one out and have him shot in a public square. After the lapse of a week, if the price is still unsatisfactory, the process will be repeated. Here's a new conception of national economy. Certainly it's different. And it's startling.

Any world power that tries to deal with this regime seems destined to face ultimate disappointment. The new boss is an adventurer and a big-time playboy. Heading the "young Turks of Viet Nam," Ky has had a dizzy and picturesque background that spells instability in capital letters.

These are the people we're fighting to save.

Automatic . . .

Our House of Representatives now chimes in with a new waste of your money that should leave you speechless. The paragons of prudence in the House have voted to engage operators to man the automatic elevators in the world's most profligate structure — the new House Office Building.

Write your own financial epitaph.

But you'll have to hurry.

Congress is doing it for you.

And in Conclusion . . .

Jottings from the well-thumbed notebook of your peripatetic reporter:

I understand WALTER CRONKITE has been making tremendous inroads into the Huntley-Brinkley newscasts ratings. . . . Rep. JOHN LINDSEY is currently 8 to 5 against any opposition the Democrats can summon for the Mayor's post in New York. He was our last Commencement speaker for Oakland University. . . . Overheard: "Too many nations think 'A Free World' means everything will be paid for by Uncle Sam."

Frank Capella has called 72,000 races in his long career. Asked if he remembered the first, he replied: "I can't recall the name of the horse, but the rider was someone named Revere. . . . Mrs. LBJ has a Washington special for ABC-TV. . . . I still have 15 of those bulky good pamphlets on Oakland County Government and the first 15 applicants sending name and address can have one by mail. Robert M. Critchfield asked for the first.

Britain is (unhappily) witnessing a rush to emigrate to Australia. Great shiploads leave steadily and 5,000 a month are flying. . . .

Many leading ladies in Hollywood vote LAURENCE HARVEY the most impossible male lead in the business. He rates as a personal sensation, but a horde of gals that have worked with him put HARVEY on the "never, never" list personally. . . . VICTOR RUSSEL said WALTER REUTHER's off-stage feud with GEORGE MEANY has been so pedaled and the Oakland County man becomes the logical successor to the "national leadership of all American labor." . . . Dept. of Cheers and Jeers; the C's — "Pete" ESTES' age high talk at the Chief Pontiac meeting; the J's — women smoking cigarettes walking down Saginaw Street.

News From Home

David Lawrence Says:

GOP 'Playing Safe' on Vote Bill

WASHINGTON — Five or six years from now — perhaps sooner — the American people may be interested indeed in whether the Republican or the Democratic party was responsible for the enactment of the latest civil rights bill.

The argument LAWRENCE then will be not who is to receive the credit but who is to be blamed for having helped to take away from the states their right to fix the qualifications of voters and for having enacted legislation that penalizes some states while others are permitted to carry on discriminatory practices.

The Republicans today are boasting that 82 per cent of the party's membership in the House of Representatives supported the administration bill on final passage by the House, while in the Senate 84 per cent of the Republicans voted for passage.

The Republican minority leader in the House asked President Johnson five questions last Monday. They have not been answered. The questions asked of the President are as follows:

• Why was Texas not covered under the President's initial voting-rights bill and is not effectively covered now?

• Why were vote frauds and dishonest elections, such as have occurred in Chicago and Texas, not covered under the President's proposal?

• Why shouldn't the right to vote be protected equally in every state, not just in seven states?

• Why should any area be exempted after only 50 per cent of the Negroes are permitted to vote?

• Why should votes that are challenged be counted and, if found invalid, be used possibly to determine the outcome of an election, including the election of a president?

The Republicans are trying to make it appear that, although they attempted to safeguard the rights of all citizens by an important amendment, their Democratic colleagues in Congress were unmindful of their obligations.

ALSO UNANSWERED

Yet the Republicans themselves have not answered the question as to why, if they were serious about their point of view, they didn't vote against the bill when it was up for final passage.

Certainly a measure that contains inequities and discriminatory provisions is just as bad in its final form as it was when an amendment to remove the defects was voted on and rejected, mostly by the Democrats.

What it amounts to is that Republican members are evidently trying not to take any political risks whatsoever. They want the benefits of having voted for the bill on final passage and also credit for having sought to change the measure.

The average citizen, however, would have more admiration for the Republicans if they had stuck to their convictions by voting against any bill which contained provisions of a discriminatory nature.

This is a lesson which the Republicans have not learned.

The persons who wrote concerning the racing cars and motorcycles on Saline in Waterford were not exaggerating. Comments on Pontiac Bus Accommodations

In regards to the item in the paper about the city buses, I wonder what our city mayor and commissioners would do if they had to wait on buses. Why don't they ride the bus everywhere they have to go for just one week? I am sure they would be more accommodating and more concerned about the residents of Pontiac who have to depend on buses.

'Interested in Pollution of Crystal Lake'

I read with great interest the item in The Pontiac Press concerning the pollution of Crystal Lake because of suspected prohibited sewer drainage. I hope they have better luck than we did in getting the necessary results in having the proper officials put a stop to this dangerous situation.

In our community no camera is necessary to locate those who are illegally draining their septic tanks. In our block of eleven homes, five are using the open ditches for drainage.

We have reported our condition, in person and by mail, to the local police, township supervisor, Oakland County Board of Health, and Senator Hart. The only thing they will do is tell us to wait until sewers are put in — unless, of course, an epidemic of hepatitis breaks out or some other such crisis arises.

In this country the interests of the consumer are getting more attention right along. President Johnson has gone so far as to appoint an assistant who listens to the gripes of consumers and tries to translate them into beneficial laws. Senator Hart's drive for honest packaging is another aspect of this greater concern for the buyer.

It is reported that the Senator's interest in this problem began when he became aware of the great discrepancy between the number of cherries pictured on the box containing a cherry pie and the number of cherries in the pie itself.

The same kind of thing is going on in England; perhaps they are ahead of us in consumer protecting laws. Just recently, for example, a London pie-maker paid a fine of $14 for gyping the consumer. His steak-and-kidney pies contained less than the legally demanded one-fifth kidney to four-fifths steak.

Spanking has come back to Berkeley, Calif.

By a vote of 3 to 1, the Berkeley school board adopted a detailed code for its elementary schools. "Spanking, paddling, and striking with a ruler" are still banned. But, provided the parents of the child in question are notified after the event, a principal or a teacher disciplined by a principal may spank "with an open hand . . . as promptly as possible after the offense, to associate the punishment with the specific need for control."

Sponsor of the motion was a Presbyterian clergyman who contends it is "a serious wrong" to a child to let him "disrupt a classroom successfully because no one can touch him."

We wish it were not too much to hope that the University of California administration would follow this good local precedent.

Need for Transportation Engineers Reported by Auto Industry Group

DETROIT (AP)—The Automotive Safety Foundation said today the nation faces a serious shortage of highway transportation engineers to plan, manage and operate America's 3.5 million miles of public roads.

The foundation, whose membership includes auto companies, tire makers, and road building firms, released results of a survey it made on the shortage of transportation engineers.

Donald G. Capelle, one of ASF's research engineers and author of the report, said that one out of every five positions in the highway transportation engineer field cannot be filled at the present time because of a shortage of trainees.

The report pointed out that the two types of highway engineers—construction and transportation—basically are civil engineers and receive the same training at the undergraduate level.

NOT AS ADEQUATE

They take such courses as surveying, soil mechanics, pavement design, hydraulics, economics and construction techniques. Upon graduation, they can perform specific jobs in highway construction engineering.

Capelle explained: "However, the basic undergraduate curriculum is not as adequate in preparation for jobs in highway transportation engineering. The undergraduate civil engineering student has little opportunity for training in the areas of planning, design, operations and administration and must take some form of Public Roads and selected training beyond the undergraduate level to achieve competence in this field.

"But a rapid increase in our population and in the number of autos on the road have created jobs at a higher rate than universities have been graduating engineers with advanced training."

Capelle cited a recent questionnaire sent to a number of transportation agencies, including all state highway departments, the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads and selected metropolitan areas.

The groups were asked to estimate their current and future need for engineers competent in highway and urban transportation planning, geometric design, traffic operations and traffic operational research.

Results indicated there is a current need for 6,000 such engineers and only 6,600 engineers now available for such jobs. The report said the number of available jobs would reach 10,500 by 1980.

Capelle said the extra training which makes a civil engineer into a highway transportation engineer can be done in two ways, by formal graduate education at any of the 32 U. S. colleges and universities which now offer such courses, or through specialized on-the-job training courses.

"The shortage of students in this field is not due to lack of educational facilities," the report said. "It stems from two principal causes. One is that highway transportation lacks the glamour appeal of some of the newer branches of engineering such as aero-space or electronics. The other is the lack of competitive financial assistance in the form of fellowships and research assistantships."

The ASF urged its members to make more funds available for scholarships and to do more to interest undergraduate engineers in the problems of America's highway system of the future.

It said that while "Get the farmer out of the mud" was the slogan that sparked many of the early road building efforts in this country, the problem has advanced far beyond that.

Maritime Strike Is Hurting U.S. Effort in S. Viet Nam—Connor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor says the six-week maritime strike is hurting the U.S. effort in Viet Nam.

He called the walkout intolerable and against the public interest, and added: "The particular union that called the strike has made demands that are quite inflationary and quite unreasonable."

Asked Sunday on NBC's radio-television program "Meet the Press" whether the strike was having an impact on transportation of supplies to Viet Nam, the secretary replied:

"It is at the present time because of the ships that were counted on to carry supplies were unavailable."

cause some of the ships that were counted on to carry supplies were unavailable."

AN INCONVENIENCE

"As a result, the military has requested that some ships be taken out of mothballs and others be made available by the lines that own them. This is now being done but it is an inconvenience and it is a matter of continuing concern."

About one-third of the 10,000-member Marine Engineer Beneficial Association (AFL-CIO) went on strike last June 15. Other smaller unions of deck officers and radio men followed suit. The walkout has idled about 180 merchant ships.

In another weekend development concerning Viet Nam, House Republican leader Gerald Ford said he thinks the administration ultimately will follow his suggestion to bomb Soviet-built anti-aircraft missile sites in North Viet Nam.

Then referring to last week's statement by Secretary of State Dean Rusk that there are no sanctuaries in North Viet Nam, Ford said: "In my judgment his statement goes much, much further than anything I have said."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, appearing with Ford on the ABC television-radio program "Issues and Answers," said the Rusk declaration "is quite different from the recommendation that we should now strike at the missile bases."

Church said the missile facilities are not a present threat to the U.S. operation and that bombing them might cause North Viet Nam to send 300,000 uncommitted troops into the south.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fire in the basement of the old Senate Office Building sent fire equipment racing to the Capitol Hill Sunday night.

Officials said the blaze had started from a rain-induced short circuit and had been confined

Soviets Silent About Destination of New Space Shot

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviets were silent today about the progress and destination of their new unmanned space flight. U.S. experts, however, said Mars is no longer in a favorable position for another probe from earth.

The Soviet space authority announced the spacecraft, named "Automatic Station Zond 3," was launched Sunday on an orbit around the sun. The first announcement said the spacecraft and its scientific gear were "functioning normally" and "preliminary data shows that the trajectory of the automatic station is close to the expected one."

The purpose of the flight, the announcement said, "is to check the station's systems in conditions of prolonged space flight and holding of scientific studies in interplanetary space."

A solar orbit is required for probes of other planets. Such a route was taken by Mariner 4, which now is transmitting pictures of Mars back to earth.

TWO FAILURES

The Russians have tried at least twice without success to probe the Red Planet. One attempt was made by Zond 2, launched Nov. 30, the day before America's successful Mariner 4. Zond 2 stopped transmitting after several months of flight.

An earlier Mars probe in 1962 also failed. The Soviets launched Zond 1 on April 2, 1964, but its destination was not disclosed and there has never been any disclosure of what it accomplished before it stopped transmitting.

The space authority did not link Zond 2 with Friday's orbiting about the earth of a satellite weighing more than 12 tons. That shot aroused speculation that the Russians were testing a super booster for a manned moon shot.

Zond 3 was sent aloft by a multistage rocket, the last stage of which went into a brief "parking orbit" around the earth before firing off the scientific package, the space authority said.

HEADS OR TAILS? — An odd camera angle makes this appear to be an especially rare type of llama, one with two heads. However, closer inspection shows it is just a baby llama sitting behind his mama. The little llama was born recently at the Whipsnade Zoo in Bedfordshire, England.

Response Called Exciting

Barry's Group Going After Members

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Barry M. Goldwater's Free Society Association — a month old yesterday — is conducting a massive membership drive from a temporary headquarters and is organizing its "crusade for political education."

The first issue of its newsletter is due out by Aug. 1. More ambitious publications will follow, including a set of essays to be called the "New Federalist Papers" and aimed at "reselling people."

Goldwater christened the controversial, conservative organization at a news conference June 17. He is the honorary chairman.

The operating boss is Denison Kitchel, a Phoenix, Ariz., attorney, Goldwater's campaign director in the senator's successful drive for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination and in his unsuccessful campaign for the presidency.

Kitchel and a small staff are working in a three-room suite less than two blocks from Goldwater's prenomination campaign headquarters.

As president of the association, Kitchel has been spending more than half of his time in Washington. After the shake-down period, he expects to leave most of the work to the staff and visit Washington only four or five days a month.

RECRUITING

Kitchel told UPI in an interview that his headquarters now is concentrating on recruiting members and getting squared away to prepare the publications it plans to circulate among them.

The society's annual dues range from $5 for a regular individual membership to $500 for sponsoring members and $1,000 "or more" for founding members.

It was the high-priced memberships which generated controversy. Republican National Chairman Ray C. Bliss deplored the formation of the new outfit because he feared it would drain away funds needed by the regular GOP organization.

Goldwater and Kitchel both said Bliss had no reason to worry, although Kitchel is thinking in terms of an annual budget of $2 million or more.

Kitchel said it was too early to disclose the number of members enlisted and the amount of money raised because the recruiting drive had barely started. He did say that the response had been "exciting."

The association has invited membership applications in advertisements placed in 10 newspapers. It also is using a direct mail approach in a campaign expected eventually to reach 500,000 people.

Curious people who write for information are told the organization is a "continuation of the effort to restore the philosophy of individual freedom under limited government . . . as the dominant force in American politics."

As outlined by Kitchel, the organization's plans call for:

- A newsletter, starting as a four-page monthly, focusing on current issues, with an occasional supplement dealing with a single issue.

- Longer papers to be written by academic or other experts, analyzing issues and discussing solutions.

- Guides to help individuals or groups study issues.

- A speakers' bureau, "a large stable of prominent articulate people," equipped to address groups about issues.

- The "New Federalist Papers," to be modeled after the essays written by Alexander Hamilton, James Madison and John Jay in support of the U. S. Constitution before its adoption.

Kitchel said the original essays were aimed at "selling the Constitution to the American people" and that the new set at "reselling the Constitution to the American people."

It is planned to publish the new set as a book. It has not been decided whether they will be signed by the two or three scholars who write them or by a name such as "Publius" like the original Hamilton-Madison-Jay papers.

Kitchel hopes that the first of the essays will be published this fall.

He said the association's publications will be intended to "equip the electorate to make decisions, hopefully in line with our principles, when they have all the facts."

INFORMATIONAL

He also said these publications would be aimed at informing members of the organization, not at getting national publicity.

Kitchel hopes that within a few months the organization can begin thinking about a regular network television program, featuring speakers or panels of speakers discussing issues in prime evening time. He said the high cost of any such project might call for a separate financing program.

His chief headquarters aides are Lynn E. Mote, 49, an attorney who has spent about 20 years in the capital as a congressional aide, and Charles M. Lichtenstein, 38, former research director for the GOP National Committee.

Mote is executive director. Lichtenstein is publications director.

Reports Aide to Goldwater Was Bircher

WASHINGTON (U) — Denison Kitchel, manager of Barry Goldwater's Republican presidential campaign, once was a member of the John Birch Society.

His membership has been reported by a former Goldwater aide, Stephen Shadegg, in his new book, "What Happened to Goldwater?"

Kitchel confirmed it in an interview, but said he quit less than two weeks after joining the militant conservative society in the spring of 1960.

He resigned, he said, after reading "The Politician," a book in which Birch founder Robert Welch described former President Dwight D. Eisenhower as "a dedicated, conscious agent of the Communist conspiracy."

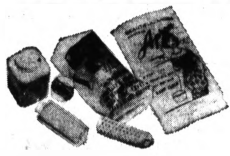

SHOWS LETTER

Kitchel, a Phoenix attorney and president of Goldwater's new Free Society Association, displayed his letter of resignation. It was dated June 8, 1960, and marked to indicate Goldwater received a copy.

Hale Boggs Cites Favorable Reaction to Rights Stand

overwhelmingly favorable. In the 2nd Congressional District, the margin is better than 7 to 1. Elsewhere it is better than 3 to 1. The favorable responses came from a dozen states and France and Guam. Significantly, one of my constituents who for years has been critical wrote: "Sometimes, as you probably are all too aware, I do not agree with the votes or policies of the administration or yourself, but, on this matter you said what has greatly needed admitting for generations. Good for you."

Here are some of the other comments I received on my speech and vote:

"Obviously correct vote."

"Many persons who may have been only lukewarm toward your representation of all the people in your district, are now enthusiastic."

"You make all of your friends stand just a little higher, feel a little prouder because of this association with you."

"What you said were things that have needed saying — and needed a Southerner to say them."

Q. Will this speech hurt you politically in a future campaign?

A. I do not believe it will. I believe the people of my district share my belief in the fundamental right of every American citizen to freely choose their own public officials regardless of race or creed.

ties and parishes in the Deep South that have most of their eligible Negroes on the registration rolls. And their caliber of government will rise because more citizens will have a real stake in their government and will participate to a greater extent. This fear will be completely dissipated when Southerners realize that their neighbors are succeeding with government with all citizens registered regardless of race or creed. The counties and parishes with most of their eligible Negroes registered stretch across the South, with 23 in Louisiana, 5 in Alabama, 27 in Georgia, 7 in South Carolina and 29 in Virginia.

A. None have criticized — many have commended me.

Q. You mentioned one Louisiana parish south of New Orleans where less than 100 of about 3,000 eligible Negroes are registered. Would this be Plaquemines Parish, stronghold of Leander Perez?

A. Yes.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana said today the reaction has been overwhelmingly favorable to a House speech in which he said there has been voting discrimination against Negroes in parts of the South.

He said he does not think his speech or his vote in favor of the voting rights measure will hurt him politically. He represents Louisiana's 2nd Congressional District, which includes part of New Orleans.

In the final hours of debate on the bill 10 days ago, Boggs, assistant Democratic House leader, told his colleagues: "I wish I could stand here as a man who loves my state, born and reared in the South, who has spent every year of his life in Louisiana since he was 5 years old, and say that there has not been discrimination."

MUST BE PART

But unfortunately it is not so," he said, "I shall support this bill because I believe the fundamental right to vote must be a part of this great experiment in human progress under freedom which is America."

The Mississippi-born congressman discussed his talk and the reaction to it in an interview which included these questions and answers:

Q. Your recent House speech on the voting rights bill, which has attracted considerable nationwide attention, conceded that there has been discrimination against Negroes in the South in the past. What reaction have you received from this talk, particularly from your state and district?

A. The reaction has been

From the Air

S. Viet Like a Vast Cemetery

By HAL BOYLE

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — Leaves from a war reporter's notebook:

From the air South Viet Nam looks in many places like a vast cemetery.

When you first fly over the countryside, you notice what at first look like bomb craters or old abandoned wells.

But no one could have dropped that many bombs or abandoned that many wells. What you are seeing are the tombs of some of Asia's unnumbered dead.

STUN THE MIND

There are so many of them that after a time they stun the mind with an uneasy feeling of a presence haunted by so long a past.

Tombs outnumber the rice paddies, where grow in vivid green the white grains that feed the country's living millions.

The tombs cluster by the hundreds in every patch of sandy outwash soil. In smaller numbers, they also stud the fertile rice paddies, as if the clamorous dead were draining the sustenance of the living.

Some of the tombs are new and handsome in gold and blue colors. But most are gray and old andlichen-crusted, and the dead within them as forgotten as the faded, fallen leaves of a flame tree.

The poet Sara Teasdale wrote of "children's faces looking up, holding wonder like cup."

It is the faces of Vietnamese children that give most encouragement to Americans here. They are so bright-eyed, enthusiastic, and eager to accept change.

In the eyes of the middle-aged and elderly, you are depressed to see sometimes a veiled animosity or at best a dull passivity. Often you have the feeling they don't really see you at all — they are either looking through you or around you, as if you were not there at all.

ARE INTERESTED

But the children and the youths see you. They are interested in Americans and this is cheering, even though you may have to face up to the fact that what they are looking for may more often be a cigarette than help to political freedom.

The hardest thing for Americans to get used to over here is Vietnamese money. It is by far the shabbiest paper currency on earth, particularly in small denominations.

The largest bill is the 500-piastre note. This is worth about $7, and they are invariably clean and crisp and neat.

The average Vietnamese worker, who earns from less than 60 up to 85 piastres a day, rarely gets his hands on one. The 100- and 200-piastre notes are usually in pretty good shape, too.

The five, 10- and 20-piastre notes — and particularly the fives — are the financial language of the poor. The five-piastre note is so dirty, trayed, unsanitary and pawed over that you feel you may be contracting a nameless disease every time you accept one in change.

You also feel sorry for the poor guy who gets it last — in whose hands it finally crumbles apart before he can pass it on to someone else.

The situation in South Viet Nam is bewildering in many ways to thousands of the American military men stationed here. The customs of the people are so different, the conduct of the war itself is so different, from anything they have known before.

But there is also a great determination on the part of most to see this thing through.

I think the best expression of both this bewilderment and determination that I have heard was made by Capt. James W. Haerer, 33, a fighter pilot from Tampa, Fla.

During a flight we made together on a supply plane to a mountain fort, Haerer said: "You don't always know what you're fighting over here — but you know it has to be fought."

Sharon Louise Thorne, daughter of the Edgar Thornes of Wing Lake exchanged vows with Forrest Gordon Vydick, son of the Frank Vydicks of Bloomfield Hills, Saturday in the First Methodist Church of Birmingham.

Birmingham Is Setting for Nuptials

The Forrest Gordon Vydicks (Sharon Louise Thorne) left for a northern honeymoon after evening vows and reception Saturday, in the First Methodist Church of Birmingham.

Parents of the couple who will reside in Royal Oak are the Edgar Thornes of Wing Lake and the Frank Vydicks of Bloomfield Hills.

Pesau d'ange lace accented the bride's gown of white silk organza styled with a court train. A lace petal headpiece held her bouffant illusion veil. With Mary Thorne, her sister's maid of honor, were the bridesmaids Mrs. Gerald Niemi of Detroit and April Duval of Franklin.

Michael Davidson was best man at the rite performed by Dr. G. Ernest Thomas. Thomas and Kim Peterman, cousins of the bride, sealed the guests. The new Mrs. Vydick is a graduate of Albion College.

Greek Conventions Call Pontiac Units

Several area women will attend dedication ceremonies for the new international headquarters of Alpha Delta Kappa Tuesday in Kansas City, Mo.

Present for the dedicatory program will be Mrs. E. Cleo Wiley, grand sergeant-at-arms, Rio Chapter; Margaret MacKenzie of Birmingham, Zeta Chapter; Mrs. Opal Walker, Xi Chapter, acting as representative of the state; and Dr. Ruth Golden of Highland Park, grand vice president, Eta Chapter.

TEACHERS' GROUP

The International honorary sorority for women teachers has completed the building project in less than two years. Plans for the new headquarters were initiated at 1963's international convention in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Members of the Grand Chapter and several hundred of the sorority's membership are expected to attend the ceremonies.

The Beta Mu chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha was named as one of the top 10 in the yearbook competition at the 16th international convention

Invitations Mailed Out by Mother

By The Emily Post Institute
Q: I understand that when the bride's parents are divorced, the invitations go out in the name of the bride's mother.

But what if the bride's father is paying all the expenses of the wedding? In this case, shouldn't the invitations go out in his name?

It doesn't seem fair, when her father is footing the bill, to have his ex-wife send the invitations and be given credit for giving the wedding.

A: Unless the bride had made her home with her father instead of her mother, convention exacts that the invitations be sent in the bride's mother's name, and even if her father is willing to pay for the wedding, the invitations are still sent out in the mother's name.

This does seem unfair, but the bride can always tell her friends and relatives that her beautiful wedding has been made possible only by her father's generosity.

SMORGASBORD TABLE
Q: When a man invites a woman to dine in a restaurant where there is a smorgasbord table, is he expected to serve her or does she go to the table and help herself?

A: He may go to the table alone and fill a plate for her, but this eliminates much of the fun of dining in such a restaurant.

Aside from the fact that she would be left sitting alone at the table, few women would want to miss the opportunity of seeing the delectable display of food and choosing a little of everything that appeals to them.

Fashion 'Fall of Rome' Is Unlikely This Fall

ROME (UPI) — Fanciful and frivolous clothes star in previews of Italian fall-winter fashions for international buyers and the press.

A total of 19 boutique and knitwear designers were scheduled to show in Rome over the weekend.

The showings of high fashions for next fall and winter opened Sunday night and run through Friday.

There were 28 high fashion collections on the Roman calendar.

The scissors civil war that has divided the Italian fashion world between Rome and Florence continued this season. The two cities have been feuding for the past decade for the title of the nation's fashion capital.

COINCIDE
As a result, the two days of Florence showings fell in the midst of the Roman collections.

As one veteran fashion observer put it: "Like professional heavyweight boxers, Rome and Florence have their ups and downs."

Go Without Son's Girlfriend

Forget "Togetherness"

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please save my sanity and print your opinion of the new (ad) parents are going along with to show their teenagers that they trust them.

ABBY

It seems that kids are talking their parents into inviting them to their "teen die" (ages 14 to 18) to go along on family week-end trips and summer vacations.

My son is 17 and he is very put out with me because I refused to invite his 15-year-old girlfriend to go with us on our summer vacation.

We plan to drive to Eugene, Oregon, from Denver, Colorado. He claims all his friends are doing it, and if we say no, his girlfriend's parents will feel that we don't trust them.

According to our son, her parents already gave the girl permission to accept. I still think I am right in firmly saying no.

Please help me. We are being pressured from all sides.

A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I would say no, too. It's unfair to generalize, but very few teenagers can resist the inevitable temptations of excessive "togetherness."

This is no reflection on their character, or home training. Human nature being what it is, we should not expect our physically mature, yet emotionally immature, children to withstand temptations that some adults aren't able to handle.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that when some people ask an organist to play at a wedding they think they are giving him a big honor and he should be glad to play for nothing?

Playing an organ at a wedding is a "service" — just like the ceremony performed by the preacher. The preacher's education cost him something. And so did the suit he wears, which must be kept cleaned and pressed. Also the car he has to drive to get him there.

The organist has the same kind of expenses. I hope you will consider this subject worth mentioning in your column, as it is very close to my heart. Thank you.

ALL PLAYED OUT

DEAR PLAYED: Since the bread basket is located in the region of the heart, your point is well made.

Some folks must be reminded that because a service is performed within the holy atmosphere of the church, they should not assume that the performer is donating his time to the Lord's work.

DEAR ABBY: Re your advice to the woman whose husband was using live cats to train hunting dogs.

Not all communities have a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

You should have told her that in case she lived where there was no such society, she should notify:

MRS. MICHAEL M. MAKEDONSKY

Jo-Anne Welch Wears Mother's Bridal Gown

Her mother's wedding gown, a satin sheath, under a lace and satin redingote was worn by Jo-Anne Welch for nuptial vows Saturday with Michael M. Makedonsky of Kalamazoo.

Rev. E. D. Auchard performed the ceremony in Orchard Lake Community Church, Presbyterian.

Stephanotis and white roses, centered by an orchid, comprised the bride's bouquet.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Welch, Arrowood Drive, West Bloomfield Township, and Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Makedonsky, Flint.

Mrs. Barry J. Sims was her sister's matron of honor. Attendants included Bette Fries, the bride's cousin, and Mrs. James McIntosh and Barbara Steckling, with Mary Makedonsky as junior bridesmaid.

The bridegroom's brother Martin Makedonsky was best man.

Ushering were the bride's brother Frederick Welch, Barry Sims, Thomas Storey and Donald Van Osternburg.

After a reception in the church's fellowship hall, the newlyweds left for a honeymoon at Harbor Springs.

Mrs. Tuson Is New Leader

The new commander of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Disabled American Veterans, chapter 16, is Mrs. John Tuson.

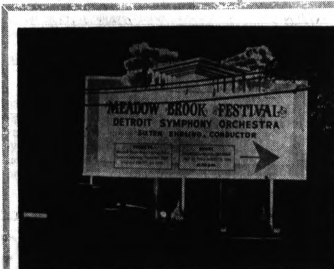

Installation ceremonies took place Saturday evening at the American Legion Hall on Auburn Road.

Others taking office included Mrs. William Schultz, senior vice commander; Mrs. John Phillips, junior vice commander; and Mrs. Edna Olmstead, treasurer and adjutant.

More installed under the state commander, Mrs. Ray Jewell, were Mrs. Hilda Lallonde, Mrs. Lisle Smith and Mrs. Jack Riley.

Scouts Start Roundup

By ANN SIMPSON

Pontiac Press Correspondent
FARRAGUT, Idaho — Hi! My name is Ann Simpson. I'm going to be telling you about our experiences out here in Idaho at the Girl Scout Senior Roundup.

There are eight girls here from Northern Oakland County.

We have six girls from the Pontiac area in our patrol: Peggy Joos, Dru Neal, Carol Bacak, Diana Greaves, Laura June and myself.

One of our girls, Joette Schultz, is from Clarkston; and our eighth girl, Fran Wolff, is from Rochester.

The Roundup camp is spectacular! It's so big!

There are five areas with either six or seven camps in each area. In each camp are seven troops with four patrols per troop.

That makes 8,900 girls in all.

We arrived here after riding on trains from Detroit to Chicago and from Chicago to Athol, Idaho.

LONG TRIP

The trip took 56 hours, but with all the girls from Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana and Michigan riding the same train, there were plenty of things to keep us busy.

Upon our arrival at Farragut, site of the 1963 Roundup, we were amazed by the size of the site and number of people here. Immediately we began putting up our tents. This was quite a job.

NOT LIKE MICHIGAN

I think our beautiful Michigan soil has spoiled us. The soil here is a lot different, with plenty of rocks.

Because of our late arrival, the patrol from Florida in our troop cooked our dinner. We were grateful to them because it had been a long day with all the time changes.

The day ended with taps, a welcome sound to at least eight girls.

To Honor Pair at Reception Next Month

A wedding reception for newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nelson Cheney will be given Aug. 1 at the Wedworth Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Keith.

The couple presently is honeymooning through the Upper Peninsula and Minnesota.

Vows for the former Ruth A. Zegelen, daughter of Highland residents Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Zegelen, were repeated at the home of Rev. Ronald Ross, Cllo.

The bridegroom is a Mt. Morris resident.

A pink and white rosebud arrangement was held by the bride, who was dressed in street-length eyelet over tulle and veiled circlet hat.

Cut with sharp tailoring and a marvelous sense of movement... Cisa's is a tailor of knitted wool. The jacket, patterned in a decisive, chevron design, is precisely buttoned, pocketed, and squared off at the hipbone over a skirt that is a ripple of pleats. From her Fall '65 collection. Money Received From Property Sale

By MARY FEELEY Consultant in Money Management

Dear Miss Feeley:
I would appreciate very much your help in solving the following problem:

Assume that one sold a piece of property for $25,000 on January 1, 1966. He could receive payment in one of two ways:

He could get either the $25,000 in cash, which he would put in a savings bank at 4 1/2 per cent interest compounded quarterly.

Or, he could get $6,000 in cash, which he would place in a savings bank at the same interest, and give the buyer a purchase money mortgage at 5 per cent for 10 years — payments being about $210 per month.

Each payment would be deposited in a savings bank at 4 1/2 per cent interest.

At the end of 10 years — or on January 1, 1976 — how much would the seller have in the bank under both of the

Dear P.L.:
The $25,000 at 4 1/2 per cent interest compounded quarterly for 10 years would total $38,164.

Plan Number Two would net the seller $44,756. Which just goes to show that when you put money out to work for you at 6 per cent, and then deposit it, compounded quarterly at 4 1/2 per cent, you're doing all right.

Of course, you must consider that under Plan Number One all the money is quickly available, while under Plan
Two, that portion of it in mortgage money would not be as liquid.

Dear Miss Feeley,

from 4 to 18 years old.

Our monthly income is $700.
Before a month is out, we've

How should this expense be figured?

E.K., Findlay, Ohio

Dear E.K.:
If your basic expenses — food, housing and clothing — are in line — you can allot from 2 to 10 per cent of your income for entertainment.

The reason for this wide range is that "entertainment" varies greatly in type and amount, depending on the size and ages of the family.

In your case, this would be $14 to $70 a month for fun.
And certainly with four children, and such a variety of activities in demand, I'd settle for the $70 allotment.

If you use that up before the month is over, then call it guits, stay home and catch up on your reading.

Area Airman Claims Bride From Arizona

The First Southern Baptist Church of Avondale, Ariz., was the scene of recent nuptials for Nancy Jane Durham, daughter of the Howard Durhams, Avondale, Ariz., and Airman 2d Class Howard J. Hagemeister, son of the James B. Clarks, Clarkston.

Wearing a full-length gown of tulle with lace overlay, the bride held an arrangement of white feathered carnations on a white testament.

Attending the bride were Donna Craft, maid of honor, and Peggy Dooley, Patricia Summers and Joyce Miller.

John Shoemaker was best man, with Tom Rose, Danny Durham, John Peterson, Carl Hasty and Don McKee ushering.

A church reception followed the ceremony. Airman Hagemeister, who has been stationed at Luke Air Force Base, Ariz., leaves Wednesday for the Philippines, en route to Viet Nam.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell L. Thorne, Washington Street, announce the engagement of their daughter Nancy Kay to Wilfred Guy Caswell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred G. Caswell, Highland. He attends Pontiac Business Institute. June vows are planned.

Polly's Pointers

Carry a Rubber Band

DEAR POLLY — My suggestion is for those girls who like to browse through magazines at the beauty shop or at the pattern counter in a store.

Carry a rubber band in your purse and when you are tempted to molest the tip of your finger to turn a page, just wind the rubber band loosely around your finger tip and turn the pages with ease. This is more sanitary. —ELSIE

DEAR POLLY — Nobody likes a soggy sandwich.

To prevent this, I buy plastic milk bottles for dolls at the dime store and fill them with mustard, mayonnaise and catsup and put them in my husband's and children's lunch boxes.

The "empties" are put back in the box and carried home to be washed and used again. —JACKIE

DEAR POLLY — I read Jan's letter about locating the nearest hospital, making a trial run to it and learning the location of the emergency room.

I am a volunteer in the emergency room of a hospital and have some further advice. First be sure you have a family doctor, or a pediatrician for the children, if you prefer, as so many come to us without a doctor and this causes delay.

Second, call the doctor BEFORE you leave for the hospital as it may save you a needless trip. This will also expedite service as he will be there to meet you on arrival or call and advise the nurse and doctor on call to expect you and what to do until he arrives.

DO NOT go to the hospital without making this call. You might go to a hospital that your doctor is not affiliated with and they will be unable to treat you.

If your doctor cannot be reached, call the Academy of Medicine and they will advise you. I have seen many patients wait for us to locate their doctor or a doctor when they could have been given better service had they first, had a doctor, and second, had they contacted him. —DOROTHY

St. George Greek Orthodox Church was the setting Sunday for the marriage of Mary Rhodes and David Don Goff. Rev. Gus Tsompanis officiated for the pair whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Eliza Rhodes of South Genesee Avenue and the Lewis Goffs of South Tilden Avenue. The bride wore a scalloped neckline gown of white silk organza and her four-tiered veil fell from a front plateau of lace and pearls. She carried pink sweetheart roses and Stephanotis with a centered white orchid. Following the evening reception, the couple left for a Cape Cod honeymoon.

Newlyweds Now at Home

Newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Jerry C. Olsen are residing on West Strathmore Street after a honeymoon in the Upper Peninsula.

The couple exchanged vows recently in St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Union Lake.

An ivorymoire silk ensemble with crown and face veil were worn by the bride, formerly Kathryn Sue Lund of Motorway Drive.

Parents of the couple are Roscoe Lund, Motorway Drive; Mrs. Rod Taylor, Motorway Road; Mrs. A. C. McCurry, Albuquerque, N. M.; and the late Jay C. Olsen.

Fall Vows Planned

Sept. 4 nuptials are planned by Northern Michigan University students Audrey Jane Schultz and John E. Shupe.

Parents of the couple, who formerly attended Taylor University and New York State University respectively, are Mr. and Mrs. William H. Schultz, Scott Lake Road, and the Byron Shupes of St. Petersburg, Fla.

It's All Mysterious

A mystery trip will be taken by members of the Fashion Your Figure Club at 5 p.m. Thursday. Gathering place is the Adah Shelly Library.

Help Husband Lose That Paunch

The first area that "falls apart" when a man gets married is his middle. While you may flatter yourself that it's due to your good cooking, he and you are paying a high price in his vitality and virility.

The body he lives in today is the only one that he will ever have. He can let it go to pot, or he can reclaim it.

According to Bonnie Prudden, author of the new book, "Quick Fix for Fitness," any husband can improve on his figure.

Surprising as it seems, it actually takes less time to get into good physical shape at the age of 40 or 50 than it does when you're in your teens.

If your husband is over 40, it need only be a matter of weeks; today's husband in this age bracket probably exercised when he was in his early school years, and that early development gave him a physical foundation which, unfortunately, many of our children do not have today.

FAT IS FAT

There is no such thing as baby fat, adolescent fat or inherited fat — there is only FAT; and what you see around his waist is also around his heart.

To get your man back in shape and, at the same time, to give him more energy after his work day, introduce him to this exercise from Bonnie Prudden. It should take only a few minutes a day.

Have him: Lie on his back with knees bent and feet held down (by you, but a chair will do). Clasp hands behind head.

Rounding back, roll up slowly to a sitting position. Straighten back at the top of the sit up, and then, rounding back, roll slowly down to rest on the floor.

Do 10 only ONLY 10 every night and morning.

After a while these ten sit-ups will seem easy. At that point, add resistance by holding a heavy book in hands behind neck.

Thinks We Need Woman Architect

DALLAS, Tex. — "I think there should be more women architects. Men don't know beans about what a woman wants, and yet she is the one who runs the house," says Mary Nell Weathered.

Miss Weathered, who designed an apartment house here, learned about building by working with her sorority in the construction of sorority houses at Southern Methodist University.

Clip Your Drapes

It's easier to hang drapes if you make two or three large folds from the bottom and hold them together on each side with a clip clothespin.

Powell Endorses Proposal for National Teacher Corps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell today endorsed President Johnson's proposed national teachers corps, but said it should have some provision for Negro teachers displaced by desegregation.

The President asked Congress Saturday to pass legislation creating such a corps to serve in slums and areas of rural poverty, Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., who introduced the bill in the House Wednesday, predicted passage.

"I don't think we will have any earthly problems," Perkins said. "We are going to pass it." He said he saw little prospect the measure might be crowded off the legislative agenda before Congress adjourns.

Powell, New York Democrat who heads the House Education and Labor Committee, said attention to the problem of a teacher shortage has been long overdue. He called the corps idea "a creative effort."

SPECIFIC ATTENTION

"However, at the same time, I am hopeful that the Congress in considering this legislation will devote specific attention to an equally serious developing problem: that of the displaced Negro teacher who is being discharged as Southern school districts desegregate," he said in a statement.

The President urged passage of the measure in letters to the presiding officers of the House and Senate.

Johnson also asked support for bills which would provide a program of fellowships to prepare students for teaching careers and help experienced teachers improve their qualifications, and for aid to colleges and universities to provide better education for teachers.

The proposals were basically the same the President outlined in a speech to the National Education Association July 2 in New York City.

EDUCATION CONFERENCE

The President's bid Saturday for support of the measure came three days before the convening Tuesday of a White House conference on education. About 600 leaders in education, business, labor and government are expected for the gathering to discuss problems of education.

Johnson asked Congress for $30 million for the teachers corps program in the fiscal year which began July 1. This is in addition to funds in the $1-billion Education Assistance Act, part of which would pay members of the teaching corps.

A White House spokesman said 8,000 teachers might be involved in the corps, and that 3,000 potential teachers might benefit from the fellowship program the first year.

"Members of the corps — experienced teachers and students who plan to make teaching a career — would go together to the city slums and to rural areas of poverty to offer what these troubled regions need most: light and learning; help — and hope," the President said in a statement.

In introducing the bill in the House, Rep. Perkins said corps teachers would join for up to two years of service. Teacher-interns would receive two years of service and professional training provided by colleges and universities on a contract basis.

Teacher teams would, after three months training at a university, work in schools which needed certain services and skills.

Hubert Trying to Unite Dems for '66

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats are finding that President Johnson's 1964 landslide victory is bearing some bitter fruit in the breakdown of party organization in some key areas of the nation.

The voting riches won last year apparently have tended to set many local Democrats squabbling among themselves with the result that the kind of organization which won state and congressional elections has deteriorated in some sections.

Johnson has given this matter his attention and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey currently is assigned to the task of trying to bring bickering local leaders together into some kind of unified front before next year's elections.

Humphrey and his associates don't have to look below the surface to know that there are deep-seated party organization troubles in California, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and New York.

What is especially bad news to the Democrats is that all of these states, except Illinois, are electing governors next year. There is general belief among administration strategists that the Republicans will give campaign priority to trying to win governorships as the quickest route to a national comeback.

Their reasoning is that while the Republicans may make some gains in the House, only an unforeseen political upheaval could give the GOP control. They look for the Senate to remain safely Democratic for several years, at least.

Seats of 15 of the 17 Republican governors will be at stake in the 1966 election, including those in New York, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. New York is a question mark and the GOP may face difficulties in hanging on in Massachusetts, Oklahoma and Rhode Island. But otherwise the party position is regarded as relatively solid.

The Democrats, with eight Southern governorships counted as safe out of 21 to be filled nationally, face stiff challenges in Arizona, California, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire and Vermont. They feel reasonably sure of hanging on to Alaska, Connecticut, Hawaii, Maryland, Nevada and New Mexico.

While administration leaders are working intensively to get 61 new House Democrats to wrap themselves in the Johnson program and policies — their view is that this is the surest road toward reelection

War on Poverty Moving Ahead Despite Scattered Outcries

NEW YORK (AP) — The war on poverty is unleashing some combat in the ranks.

Although the overall drive is rolling ahead, with its operations fast expanding, clashes have erupted behind the main battle front in several communities.

Official and unofficial sectors often have locked in struggles for control. Partisan politics have added to the jousting.

A cross-country Associated Press check indicated, however, that the vast, diversified program generally has moved off to an industrial start in many cities, yielding a growing network of projects for the poor.

INEVITABLE?
"This is a brand-new program and some mistakes are inevitable," says congressman John Brademas, D-Ind., a member of the House Committee on Education and Labor.

In Chicago, New York, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Omaha and Albany, and Syracuse, N.Y., sharp controversies have embroiled the program.

To varying degrees, tension also has arisen in Detroit, Baltimore, New Jersey, Alabama, the San Francisco Bay area and elsewhere.

In Detroit, where an over-all city committee has been set up to handle antipoverty projects. Mayor Jerome Cavanagh has objected to the University of Michigan's proposal for a $400,370 "neighborhood service" project in Detroit.

COULD CONFLICT?
"It is in reality a request for a community action program," says the mayor, claiming that it could conflict with the field work carried on by the city committee.

Meanwhile, Wayne State University withdrew its proposal for setting up a job corps training center, complaining that a private industry, Philco Corp., was being considered for the project.

SCOPE WIDENS
Mostly, however, the multiphased undertakings, offering federal poverty-fighting funds in municipalities across the nation, took on widening scope and form, despite the outbreaks of internal strife.

Often, these involved power struggles between the dominant political establishments and local community groups.

A complex dispute in Los Angeles over who would administer government funds blocked a planned summer project for underprivileged teen-agers.

The issue also flared around "community action" organizations, set up in poor neighborhoods under the program, to mobilize residents to press for better conditions.

OFFICIALS MAD
Sometimes, this involved federally financed community groups making protests to City Hall, raising the ire of local officials.

Under the program, private as well as public agencies, or both in combination, are eligible to set up aid projects if they time jobs to keep kids in school; "Head Start," bringing preschool children up to standard to start school; "Vista," recruiting low-paid volunteers to serve in impoverished sections. The federal government puts up 90 per cent of costs.

SALARY CLAIMS
Besides the tug-of-war over control, there also have been outcries that salaries paid were too high, and snarls over preliminary preparations and proposals which have delayed federal approval.

"We force every community to unite for action against poverty. Otherwise, they don't qualify for federal help," says Holmes Brown, public affairs director for the Office of Economic Opportunity. "Conflict is inevitable."

The "community action" units — intended to open channels for the poor to join in attacking their own problems — have caused the most ferment.

Assailing such an operation in Syracuse, N. Y., City Housing Director William L. McGarry called it "class struggle in the traditional Karl Marx style." And Republican Mayor William F. Walsh charged:

TAKING SIDES
"It tries to pit the poor against everyone else in the community."

However, officials of Syracuse University, which sponsors that program with a $314,000 grant said the charges were false. Program Director Warren C. Hagstrom termed them "a smokescreen" to hide tenant grievances.

"The poor are outsiders," he says, adding that the program's objective is to help them develop strong democratic organizations with "enough power to enable those individuals exclud-

Military Pay, Antipoverty Bills in Spotlight

$1.9-billion antipoverty measure and a $1-billion military pay raise bill share the voting spotlight in Congress this week.

Both are on the House docket. The military bill, twice as big as President Johnson requested, was expected to sail through the House with little opposition today. It has not been considered by the Senate, which may yield to administration pressure to whittle it down. For the antipoverty bill, a broadening and continuation of a problem started last year to help the nation's poor, the outlook is not so bright. Republicans have assailed the measure as a political project designed to woo the votes of the needy. The bill is scheduled to start its run through the House Tuesday, with administration leaders predicting passage Wednesday or Thursday. It has not been considered by the Senate. The Senate's floor program is comparatively light. It includes action bills to provide home rule for the District of Columbia and to afford educational benefits for military veterans of the cold war. Committee activity will be intense throughout the week, with most of the action centering in Senate-House groups trying to work out compromises on several big measures passed by both branches. On another front, Senate Republican Leader Everett R. Dirksen of Illinois has called for a showdown within the Senate Judiciary Committee this week. He wants it to act on his proposed constitutional amendment which would allow voters in each state to decide whether they want one house of their legislature apportioned on something other than a population basis. The Supreme Court decreed that both houses of a legislature must be apportioned on population. Topping the measures in the compromise stage are bills dealing with health care for the elderly, voting rights for minorities, foreign-aid authorization, housing and a group of annual appropriation bills. All will have to make another trip through the Senate and the House before they can become law. * * * Backed up in judiciary committees of both branches are bills to revise immigration laws.

Motoring in England? Watch Your Steering

LONDON (UPI)—The man told me with no sympathy or emotion, "You don't steer the British way." And I joined the bitter legions of Americans who have flunked the British driving test.

The fact I'd been driving for 25 years in New York, London, all of Europe and even the Middle East, including such wild and challenging arenas as Moscow, Paris and Rome at high noon, meant nothing to my inspector.

"How," I asked with a measure of control, "do I steer the British way?"

He suggested I take some driving lessons. * * *

Mine was not an isolated case for an American who has tens of thousands of motoring miles behind him only to fail the British test miserably and in humiliation. (You take an awful ribbing from the office and even your wife).

REALLY MAD — Dick Longworth, a UPI colleague from Boone, La., was so incensed when he flunked that he vowed never to try again in Britain. Fortunately, he was recently transferred to Moscow.

He drove the full distance with wife and infant son without incident and was last reported still going strong around the Kremlin.

It's not only the non-British who find the testing tough. * * *

The record books list one Englishman who failed 17 times before triumphing on his historic 18th attempt in 1939.

STILL TRYING — Still trying somewhere in these isles is Britain's most famous learner-driver—66-year-old retired schoolteacher Miss Margaret Hunter who has a penchant for crashing into things while on test.

Miss Hunter had her first driving lesson 24 years ago. She became internationally known in 1962 as her instructor jumped out of the car with the cry, "This is suicide!"

What makes the British driving test so difficult?

It really isn't, so long as you drive by the book and the instructions put out by the Ministry of Transport.

WORLD'S SAFEST

British drivers, generally tops in courtesy and ability, are among the world's safest. One study puts England far behind little Finland and Denmark in road fatalities.

The inspectors are tough. They recognize only the "right" way to stop, start, turn, back up, approach crossing and the like.

An average of 40 per cent of all applicants fail the first time around, mostly on the practical test but also on incorrect answers to oral questions.

I swallowed pride and nationalism and enrolled in a British school of motoring.

BRITISH WAY

"Teach me how to steer the British way," I asked.

After three lessons, I went back for my second test (it costs a pound—$2.80—each time). Heroically, I thought, I chose the same testing station.

Insiders, including one other ex-Brooklyn, N. Y., colleague, told me to try another place in the north of London where the inspector was suspected of being pro-American.

I got a different inspector but I steered the British way, all the way.

WATCH HANDS

Never cross hands on the wheel while steering and never shift gears while turning.

Always keep both hands in the same general position as the wheel—the same position as the hands of a clock at 10 minutes to two. Then "thread the wheel."

If turning right, let the right hand do the work and let the wheel "thread" through the half open left hand—which is ready to close and grab control at any instant. Reverse the process for a left hand turn.

The logic of this is supposed to be that you're always in a position of full control and never in an awkward driving attitude. It looks and feels "wrong" but it works.

And I passed.

Senator's Gift-Giving Should Raise Support

(EDITOR'S NOTE: An Oklahoma lawmaker and his unusual problem. Spokane teenagers take to truck. West Virginia's dwindling supply of ginseng roots. Rolling chairs with chimneys in Atlantic City. Mercury thieves in Texas. These are glimpses from the U.S. scene this week.)

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — State Sen. Anthony Massad, calling attention to industries in his district, decided to present his 47 colleagues with items manufactured in Frederick, Okla., his home town.

First, the leather goods manufacturing company. No problem there — just give each senator a billfold.

Next, the plant that hews cemetery monuments from native granite and the factory that manufactures helicopters.

No real problem there — who wants a tombstone while he's still alive and who really expects a free helicopter?

FINAL PLANT

Finally, the plant that makes brassieres.

Hmmmm. Massad finally arrived at the answer — give each senator a bra for his wife.

ROLL CALL

Massad handed his secretary a blank roll-call tally sheet and instructed her to ask each senator's secretary what size bra her boss' wife wears.

The blushing young secretary got the answers amid the giggles of her sister secretaries. Massad presented the bras to the senators a few days ago. They blushed, too.

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — It's a common sight just any morning here these days — teen-agers trotting around Spokane's many parks.

Track, particularly distance running, has been "in" with the teen-age set in the Pacific Northwest since last year when diminutive Gerry Lindgren, then a senior at Rogers High School, defeated the Russians in a 10,000-meter race at Los Angeles.

Distance running has started to rival football and basketball for the attention of the high-school fans now.

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Quick, now, what is Panax quinquefolius?

What does it have to do with the doctrine of signatures and Syngman Rhee?

And how is all this related to West Virginia?

Panax quinquefolius is the ginseng root.

The signature doctrine holds that roots and plants resembling parts of the human body nourish that part of the body.

LICORICE FLAVOR

And Syngman Rhee, former president of South Korea, eats ginseng roots, which are shaped like a human body, have a flavor suggestive of licorice, and grow in West Virginia.

Because many Korean and Chinese peasants believe the root has strong medicinal powers, the ginseng is highly valued.

In the first half of this century, rural West Virginians would gather the stuff and trade it for groceries and other staples.

By the time the ginseng root was ready for export to Asia, it was valued at well over $25 a pound.

One Buckhannon, W.Va., resident, A. P. Russell, turned his community into the ginseng center of the world.

"At one time, Chinese merchants were beating a steady path to Buckhannon to trade with Russell," says Marvin Snyder of the West Virginia Agriculture Department.

Now, even though the demand continues and the price is high, overharvesting and poor conservation practices have destroyed a little known but highly lucrative West Virginia resource.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Strollers on the boardwalk will soon hear music from the rolling chairs.

The chairs must be equipped with chains to warn strollers to get out of the way.

At present, chair pushers stamp their feet or whistle while operators of the mechanical chairs call "Watch the chair, please," or merely bang the vehicle's side. There are some 3,000 in operation.

BORGER, Tex. (AP) — The 7½ pounds of mercury nestling in each of the thousands of natural gas well switches in the Texas Panhandle affords a tempting target for thieves.

Well over 100 switchboxes were drained of quicksilver this year. But the bizarre thefts have fallen off since the arrest of two men, who were charged with "possession of mercury without a bill of sale," a felony. They had 53 pounds of mercury.

The liquid metal is valued by industry at from $5.90 to $7.90 a pound. On the black market it brings $3 to $4.

Science Fiction?

Tales of Dead Cosmonauts Unverified

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In the best tradition of the Loch Ness monster and the abominable snowman, there are tales also of dead Russians circling the earth in spacecraft that went astray.

A considerable body of grisly literature has produced incredible tales recently about Soviet men and women sitting with lifeless hands on the long since useless controls of moon ships that missed their target and are now in perpetual orbit around the sun.

It is inevitable that sooner or later an American or Soviet astronaut will die in space, but U.S. officials believe that when it happens, the government concerned will announce it. They strongly doubt such a tragedy could be long concealed.

What has made the stories about Russia's space calamities so real is that they quote snatches of space conversations reported to have been overheard by ground stations here and there.

However, the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) has never authenticated any remarks purporting to come from cosmonauts about to die in space.

Most of the alleged tragedies were to have occurred in the period 1959 to 1962. All have been denied by Russia.

Regarding the reported dialogues of dying astronauts, U.S. experts say it is possible that certain amateur space trackers on earth have heard conversations something like those they are said to have reported. Both sides of the Cold War have played "radio games" on each other in times past.

It may be that some of the overheard voices from space were deliberate spoofs broadcast by a clandestine station somewhere.

Some of the reported conversations sounded suspiciously to U.S. experts like fictional scripts. There also may have been cases of understandable misinterpretation.

One U.S. official said that "as far as I know this government has never caught Russia in a flat lie about a space launch."

More often than not the Russians do not tell all the facts about a spacecraft's mission. But they appear to realize that in space matters the truth eventually will out.

For example, in December 1960, when they failed to recover a couple of orbited dogs that burned up on reentry, the Russians promptly told what happened.

With the paucity of resources

Helped Reorganize Utilities

Comes Back From Korea Mission

By HOWARD HELDENBRAND
Those of you planning a trip to Korea, don't ask Mr. McNamara — ask Mr. Canfield (Howard L.).

He just returned home, wiser but no poorer, after a 2½-year stint there for Uncle Sam as chief of utilities division, U.S. Overseas Mission.

After eight years as Oakland District Manager for Detroit Edison Co., Canfield's Korean assignment was to develop a program of utilities rejuvenation as a first step in reviving the country's war-shattered economy.

The nation's CANFIELD economy presently provides a per capita income of but $76 per year. The United States has funneled the country $2.2 billion in aid since 1948.

In area and shape much like the State of Indiana, South Korea has a population of 27 million (Indiana, 4.6 million) subsisting in a country whose arable land represents but 19 per cent of the whole.

The other 81 per cent is mountainous, leading one to wonder whether Korea's national animal could be a mountain goat.

With rice and barley the principal agricultural crops, the average land holding of soil tillers is a scant acre and a half — about the size, say, of the greens at St. Louis's Belleview Country Club, according to the contestants who recently engaged there in the National Open golf tournament.

There is but one privately owned automobile for each 50,000 people, only one out of six Koreans has electricity, and Heldenbrand one telephone has to do for 100 inhabitants.

But a gradual resumption of industry is taking place. Fertilizer and cement block plants and a refinery are being built with the object of increasing land fertility and reducing imports of construction materials and petroleum products.

The Koreans, says Canfield, are a warm and friendly people. Hospitality might be termed a national product.

There, instead of the resentful "Yankee, go home" often heard in various parts of the globe an American is more likely to hear an inviting "Yankee, come home."

Big families are the rule in Korea — sort of a status symbol — with 50 per cent of the population ranging downward from age 18.

SEEK EDUCATION
Koreans are avid for education and, surprisingly, the population is 85 per cent literate.

Marriages are customarily arranged not in heaven but by the parents. Boys commonly marry as young as 12 to 14 years, with the girls not infrequently 10 years older than their groom.

It would appear that this arrangement is promoted by a sort of mothers-in-law protective association, with the idea of building up the force of working females around the premises shared by parents and newlyweds.

The Edison man said there is an 11:30 p.m. curfew in Seoul

(pop. 3 million), where he was headquartered, warning one and all to be off the streets and under cover by midnight on pain of being picked up and put under cover in the pokey.

CURFEW ENDS
At 4 a.m. there is a curfew in reverse, sounding the all-clear signal for those hankering to get back into circulation.

There is no indication of communism in South Korea, and it is the considered opinion of our countryman that is five to six years the country will be on a self-supporting basis, no longer dependent on America.

With Taiwan (Nationalist China) having just completed its Operation Bootstrap and become independent of U.S. aid, it is gratifying to see another democratic and industrious nation headed in the same direction.

Howard Canfield may well be proud of the part he played in elevating Korea's utilities structure to an efficient and productive level.

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP) — Spokesmen estimate 20,000 persons during the weekend toured the laboratory where the first atomic bomb was made.

The occasion was the first open house at Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in five years. Some areas of the secret facility were opened to the public for the first time.

The open house was timed to coincide with the 20th anniversary of the first detonation July 16, 1945, of an atomic bomb in southern New Mexico near Alamogordo.

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP) — Spokesmen estimate 20,000 persons during the weekend toured the laboratory where the first atomic bomb was made.

The occasion was the first open house at Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in five years. Some areas of the secret facility were opened to the public for the first time.

The open house was timed to coincide with the 20th anniversary of the first detonation July 16, 1945, of an atomic bomb in southern New Mexico near Alamogordo.

British actor Peter Sellers romped through pantomime comedy routines yesterday for convicts at the Italian island prison of Procida.

The 280 inmates filled the prison theater with explosive acclaim for Sellers and other members of the troupe, including Italian film director Vittorio De Sica, who sang for them.

The troupe came from the nearby vacation island of Ischia, where De Sica is directing the film "After the Fox" starring Sellers.

Former Italian President on Vacation

Former Italian President Antonio Segni, partially paralyzed by a stroke last August, flew yesterday to his native island of Sardinia for a summer vacation. He was accompanied by his wife.

Segni, 74, a Christian Democrat, resigned from the presidency Dec. 12. He was succeeded by Giuseppe Saragat, a Democratic Socialist.

Market Is Getting Shockproof

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A flood of good news is failing to impress the stock market. Nor, for a change, is bad news setting off the usual reflex tremors. The market ended Friday, July 16 just about where it was Friday, July 9.

The good news would have impressed traders in other days. Rosy reports last week of rising corporate profits, heartening gains in industrial output and the total volume of goods and services, as well as in personal income, went apparently unnoticed.

The news out of Congress was of the same type — new laws that will increase government spending in the future and also the incomes of many citizens and the sales of some companies. There were also promises of still more government pep pills as the economy needs them.

At the same time, gloomy predictions of stepped up involvement of the United States in Viet Nam — with the memories of the Korean War still fresh — didn't cause the nervous reaction on the stock market that a like news item might have in the past.

WHAT IS IT?

Is the market blasé, or surfeited, or just cautious?

One explanation of the dollops in Wall Street could be that the good news was mostly about conditions that are past — if only as recently as a month ago. The market knew that the economy was still going ahead. And it had adjusted to the rate of growth proving better than earlier predictions.

Wall Street, and Main Street, knew that more Americans than ever have jobs, so that the total of spending money is higher than ever. Second-quarter profits of some corporations turned out better than the general public may have guessed. But even this steady advance has become old hat in the sophisticated.

The market, along with the public, has lived so long with international troubles that flare up and die down only to be duplicated in new locations that even this kind of bad news may have lost some of its power to shock.

TIERED TRADERS

Or perhaps the summer heat and humidity are slowing down stock traders.

Popular stock market averages are now back just about where they were a month ago. That is also the period which this week's government statistics have been describing.

In the middle of June, personal income hit a record annual rate of $23.9 billion in a month, and up $34.6 billion from a year ago, at annual rates.

Wages and salaries accounted for $354.2 billion in June, with the factory payroll at $110.8 billion, both at annual rates, and both above a month earlier and a year ago.

The industrial production index hit a record 141.9 per cent of the 1957-59 average in June, compared with 131.6 a year ago. The list of corporations reporting increased profits, many setting record highs, grows each day.

But the stock market just took note and dawdled. Few expect it will go on being seemingly indifferent to good news or bad. But which type of news will predominate in the days and weeks ahead, or which will bear most weight, is today's guessing game on Wall Street.

Formation of 'Deacons' Seen as Answer to Klan

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Among the civil rights demonstrators in Bogalusa, La., is a group of men who call themselves "The Deacons." They are an armed, semisecret, militant organization and the Negro answer to such white organizations as the Ku Klux Klan. Here is a special report on this new force in the civil rights field.)

BOGALUSA, La. (UPI) — Charles R. Sims lists himself as an insurance man. He sports a goatee, and he packs a homemade blackjack made of heavy lead fishing sinkers knotted in a sock.

He is the local chief of the "Deacons for Defense and Justice," an armed Negro organization that vows an eye for an eye in the clash between civil rights organizations and segregationists.

"Our main purpose is to combat the Ku Klux Klan or white supremacy groups," says Sims. And that is about all he will say.

No one knows how many members the Deacons have, how many chapters, how much money or how much strength.

It has organization and street savvy. During a Negro civil rights march here recently, Deacons took charge of the march communications system. They used two-way radios in cars.

30-40 MEMBERS

Judging by their turnout, there are 30 to 40 members of Sims' chapter.

Sims has a police record that includes arrests for aggravated assault, carrying concealed weapons, battery, drunkenness and a series of traffic violations.

His side, Sam Barnes, served time in the state penitentiary for cattle theft.

There is no doubt who is boss. Sims, a powerfully-built man of 42, steps in firmly.

ROWDY YOUTHS

At a night rally, a group of rowdy Negro youths taunted local civil rights leaders.

"I, Charley Sims, talked to them," Sims said later. "They had two choices; one, either go inside and act like intelligent people, or two, leave."

There was no further trouble.

A white man was shot during a scuffle at the end of another Negro march in this tense south.

east Louisiana city. Two Negroes were charged, and white people in town insist they are members of the Deacons.

Sims denied this.

JONESBORO UNIT

The Deacons apparently were organized first in Jonesboro, La., scene of civil rights demonstrations last spring. Records show a charter assigned to the Deacons in Ouachita Parish (county) last March 5.

Shortly after, a Bogalusa chapter was organized.

"We were standing guard on an individual basis anyway," says Sims. "So I thought we might as well organize."

"We invited the Jonesboro chapter to talk it over with us. But we had our minds made up from the word go."

OTHER CHAPTERS

There are claims that the Deacons have mushroomed into an organization of armed men across the south. Deacons in Bogalusa hint at chapters in Alabama and Mississippi. There is talk in Bogalusa of a female affiliate, but the Deacons are silent and there is no proof that a ladies' "auxiliary" exists.

Automatic pistols and high-power rifles are easy to come by. Where the Deacons get the money for their arms and their organizational needs is a secret.

The Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) says it has good relations with the Deacons. CORE director, James Farmer went out of his way to praise them in a Bogalusa speech. But CORE says it gives them no money.

"We believe nonviolence still has great tactical validity in the civil rights revolution and many of us are philosophically committed to nonviolence as a way of life," said a CORE spokesman in New York.

SEES GAINS

Burly at 5 feet 10 inches and 180 pounds, Sims says he believes his organization has done good for the Negro community.

"So far, our presence has worked strongly," he says.

"We've cut 90 per cent of the harassment. We've cut out some of that riding through our neighborhoods (by white toughs). Before we started, the white people here were vicious. That's way down now."

There is a strong Klan element in Bogalusa.

Sims denies any connection between the Deacons and the

Hung From Window to Amuse Companion

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Television actor Paul Lynde thought his friend James Davidson was standing on a ledge outside his eighth-floor hotel room window.

Davidson suddenly gasped, "Help me, I'm slipping."

Lynde lunged for his friend's hand, caught it but couldn't hold on.

WENT OUT

The two actors checked into the Sir Francis Drake Hotel Saturday afternoon. They went out Saturday evening and didn't return until the wee hours Sunday morning.

Lynde returned about 2:30 a.m. A hotel security officer escorted Davidson, 24, to their room about 15 minutes later because Davidson was boisterous in the hotel lobby.

Lynde said Davidson, who was fond of practical jokes, opened the window and said, "Watch me do a trick."

Davidson climbed out and hung from the window sill by his fingertips.

ON A LEDGE

Lynde said he thought Davidson was standing on a ledge beneath the window.

On the street below an early morning crowd gaped up at the man hanging from a window 80 feet up.

"My God! He's falling! He's falling!" a woman onlooker cried.

Deputy Coroner Mark Aleeson listed the death as accidental.

BIT PARTS

Davidson, a native of Grand Island, Neb., lived in Beverly Hills, Calif. He had played bit parts on television and in the movies.

Another James Davidson, who has appeared in television programs "Slattery's People," "Wagon Train," and "Combat," said in Los Angeles he had never heard of the victim but had never met him.

Lynde, 39, is a comedian who appeared with Dick Van Dyke in the Broadway and film versions of "Bye Bye Birdie," and in the movie "Under the Yum Yum Tree" as Imogene Coca's henpecked husband. He has appeared on regular spots on the Red Buttons and Perry Como television shows.

Davidson is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Davidson; a brother; and a sister.

Pope Starts on Needed Vacation

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI, under doctor's orders to spend more time out of doors, heads for a much-needed vacation today in the cool hills of his summer villa at Castel Gandolfo.

Vatican sources said the 67-year-old pontiff planned to spend two weeks resting up from the rigors of a heavy schedule of audiences and speeches.

The Vatican flatly denied that any illness was involved. The Pope has simply "over-exerted himself" in recent months, a highly placed source reported.

Dr. Mario Fontana, the official papal physician, and Dr. Ugo Piazza, who has been a close friend of the Pope for years, said the pontiff needs to follow a strict regimen of "more outdoor life." Piazza is a skin specialist and a general practitioner.

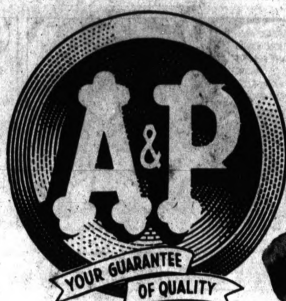

The pontiff had only one appointment on today's schedule before leaving by car this evening for Castel Gandolfo, 25 miles south of Rome.

DEEPLY ABSORBED

Pope Paul, unlike Pope Pius XII and Pope John XXIII, has absorbed himself so deeply in his work that he has hardly ever taken even occasional walks in the Vatican gardens.

Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, dean of the sacred College of Cardinals, recently expressed concern about how well the Pope could stand up under the strain.

At the summer villa, the Pope will probably take to working outside in an open-air study in the Castel Gandolfo gardens.

Many Adults Returning to Classroom

By LESLIE J. NASON, ED. D.

It's never too late to return to school — even after a long absence.

If the thought of school makes you uneasy, remember you aren't alone in that feeling. Thousands of other adults will be returning to the classroom this fall.

After years of teaching adults in the evening at the high school and college level, I miss it each fall. It was most heartening to see men and women learning to study again and enjoy it.

While it sometimes takes a semester or two for them to get back into the swing, there are ways of speeding up the process.

Schools may change, but the problems of learning remain the same. Here are some suggestions:

APPROPRIATE COURSE

Choose an appropriate course for your reentry into school. Don't let false pride force you into too difficult a subject. You will find plenty of adult company no matter how elementary the course.

Learn from a book calls for a different procedure than reading for pleasure. But it isn't too difficult. Don't be discouraged if, after reading the first chapter in the textbook, you do not thoroughly understand it.

A person is not expected to understand and grasp material of this type at the first reading, particularly the first chapter in a new subject.

Try reading it again. This time study each unfamiliar word, using the glossary in the back of the book or a dictionary, then read and reread the first chapter. Stop after each section and think in your own words what was meant.

REREAD CHAPTER

After this study of the first chapter, read through one or two additional chapters, then reread the first chapter.

Stick with it until you gain a thorough understanding.

You may find it requires extra concentration to keep your mind from wandering, but you should hold your thoughts to what your teacher is discussing.

During your absence from school you may have formed conversational habits that make this difficult. While another person is talking, you may be formulating your own responses, but in class you must allow the teacher to guide your thoughts.

READ AHEAD

Reading ahead of the class discussion will give you a background for listening. Keep your mind busy summarizing what is being said and fit it into what you have already learned.

Try to understand it well enough so that you can think it over after class. The more you think about it, the more it becomes your knowledge.

The extra study and over-learning that you do on the first course will pay off in satisfaction of a job well done. The extra hours will save time in the long run.

was no way to avoid the loss of a club trick later on, so South had to go down one.

If South had studied the hand carefully, he would have seen the importance of taking that heart finesse at trick two. It would safeguard against East's holding all three missing trumps.

Then, when he found out about the trump situation, he would have been able to get back to dummy by ruffing a heart and would not have lost a trick in either hearts or spades.

South was right about one thing, North had overbid his five high card points considerably.

By JACOB Y. SON

It is pretty good policy to get in the habit of thinking when you play bridge. It is an even better habit to do your thinking early rather than when it's too late to do any good.

South looked over dummy for a second and he was the first to trick with its ace of diamonds. Then he remarked, "You sure bid a lot, but we have a chance for our contract."

Then he led a trump from dummy, went up with his ace, noted that West failed to follow and began to do the thinking he should have done first.

It was too late. There was no way to get back to dummy without giving up a trick in hearts or in trumps and there

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNEY OMAR

For Tuesday

"The wise man controls his destiny" — a prophecy points the way.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Much activity likely. Important to be active. Do not follow the crowd. Set your own pace. Emphasize your personal dignity. Fine for starting new projects.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Your vitality level on rise. Change, pleasure, travel and vacation indicated. Get things done — see people. Visit one friend. Strong TACT — extend hand of friendship.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Friends may arise among themselves. Your role should be that of peacemaker. Try to be neutral after your services. Give attention to family member. Ancient harmony.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22): Good for feeling ideas, discussing projects. Get around and see people. Your personality rating high. People tend to have confidence in you. Strike while iron is hot.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22): Update hint from CANCER message. Stick to principles. Put across long-range project. Plan to see minor contact through DIRECT CALL. Don't delay — push ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): You seem sure to do many contacts. Get into the tempo of business. Interest. Check investment possibility. Find what you like. Consult individuals with experience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Avoid tendency to rash decisions. Base actions on logic. Impulse time on your side-play "waiting game." Be representative of real arrangements.

Q—The bidding has been: East South West North 1 ♠ Dblc 2 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass ?

A—You, South, hold: ♠ AQ75 ♥ KJ63 ♦ AK942

What do you do?

A—Bid three spades. You had a sound double with good spades, but you don't jump to game because your partner may have been pushing a little.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two spades your partner passes over two diamonds as East. What do you do in this case?

BERRY'S WORLD

By Jim Berry

BOARDING HOUSE

AFTER-BREAKFAST EXERCISE — Gov. Romney is shown cleaning up his Army mess kit after having had breakfast with the men of Company A, 1st Battalion, 126th Infantry, from Alma. With him are (from left) National Guardsmen Sgt. Donald Miller of Mount Pleasant and Pfc. Lorian Calligh and Cpl. Frang Kitchal, both of Breckenridge.

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (AP) — Sometimes understanding is just finding out that everybody likes watermelon.

That's the way it came, in simple things like picnics and pony rides and swimming, to 37 Negro children from Chicago's South Side. And, no less and no differently, to the residents of this small southwestern Wisconsin college community which still bears the stamp of the Cornishmen who came a century ago to dig in the area's lead mines.

The week long visit, which ended Saturday, was intended to do just that — give the urban children a glimpse of the world that lies beyond their familiar brick walls, and let the residents of this all-white community of some 7,000 peek through children's eyes at the life in the inner core. It wasn't strictly an exercise in what they still call Christian duty around here, although in truth that was mentioned too when the matter came up for discussion at the First Congregational Church, where one of three participating ministers, the Rev. Richard Chartier, presides.

But proof of the pudding came when youngsters at the municipal swimming pool admired the tan of Louise Williams, 7, and the wistful expression on the faces of Bernie Wilkomm's own kids when Danny Merriweather, 10, was confronted by a lawn mower in the Wilkomm front yard.

UNCOMMON SIGHT

"What's that for?" asked Danny, who lives in a 16-family apartment building.

The Wilkomm kids know, all right; they explained. You push it. And push it. And push it.

The visit started in the Congregational church and soon enlisted the Rev. Robert Adams and the Methodist church. The Rev. Mr. Adams was quick to admit to what you might call selfish motives.

ACQUAINT PEOPLE

"We wanted to show the kids a good time, but most of all, we wanted to acquaint our relatively isolated people with people from urban areas."

At least 50 families were among those who contributed $400 for chartering buses and other travel expenses. The Rev. Richard Jackson, Protestant campus minister at the State University which developed from the old School of Mines, contacted Mrs. Benjamin Wise, director of the South Side Congress of Racial Equality Freedom School on Chicago's South Side.

She had signed up 37 youngsters, instead of the 35 expected, but the extra two were promptly taken into another local family with four children of its own.

The Rev. Mr. Adams, whose guests were Danny's brother, Cornell, 13, and Walter Brown, 11, said that the two and his own three boys reacted "like visiting cousins, the relatives you only see about once a year."

MEET AT PARK

Except for Wednesday night, when the whole group of hosts and guests assembled for a picnic and ice cream social at the park, the visitors spent their time with the host families and their friends.

Dr. and Mrs. Wise came up Friday to see how things were working out.

"The best thing about this," said Mrs. Wise, "is that the people of Platteville thought it up, not CORE."

Wilson's Line on Viet: Try, Try Again

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press International

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson has just suffered a severe rebuff from Hanoi over Viet Nam peace feelers but he does not intend to give up.

He is looking around for possible new openings and the next move may be a fresh approach to Russia.

Britain and the Soviet Union are co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference which settled the Indochina war and Britain can be expected to prod Moscow to cooperate in recalling the conference.

The Russians have repeatedly refused, but Wilson's line is to try, try, try again.

MORE TALKS: Look for more talks between roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman with top Soviet officials and possibly a trip outside of Moscow. Harriman is in Moscow at least until tomorrow when he is to have lunch with the British ambassador.

He may stay on after that if necessary.

Diplomatic observers in Moscow caution against assuming the talks will produce any results, particularly on Viet Nam. The only significance seems to be reopening a Soviet-American dialogue.

Meanwhile more anti-American propaganda on Viet Nam is likely to arise from a "Solidarity Week" with the Vietnamese people.

UNDER WRAPS: The new army-dominated government of Col. Houari Boumedienne in Algiers is likely to keep the wraps on former strongman President Ahmed Ben Bella for at least six months.

It is planned ultimately to bring Ben Bella to public trial, but the Boumedienne government feels it is too early to do so now without risking pro-Ben Bella demonstrations.

OPEN MIND: French President Charles de Gaulle may relent on his decision to boycott the European Common Market foreign ministers meeting at Brussels July 26.

The French said earlier they would not attend in any circumstances. Now they say de Gaulle is "keeping an open mind."

AFRO-ASIAN: Malaysian Foreign Ministry top officials say they are confident Malaysia will have a seat in the Afro-Asian conference when it is finally held this autumn.

They were so sure that for the time being they are not even considering sending any delegations to counteract anti-Malaysian sentiments stirred by Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio in Africa.

KOREAN CRISIS: President Park Chun Hee of South Korea may face a serious political crisis if the 57 opposition Min-jong (Popular) Party members of the National Assembly resign to protest the treaty restoring normal Korean-Japan relations.

As a result Park may reconsider whether to ram the bill through the assembly. If the opposition resigns he will be in hot political water.

GM Says $193 Million Spent on Safety in '64

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Motors has estimated it spent $193 million in 1964 on programs related to the safety, durability and reliability of its cars.

The question arose last Tuesday at a Senate committee hearing on auto safety.

GM officials testified then it was difficult to say how much the company spent on safety research because it was so interwoven with other research.

In a statement, GM estimated that it spent $124 million in 1964 on automobile safety for its cars and trucks in the United States.

GM said it believed other activities have a bearing, including the programs of reliability and engineering and research, which would bring the total figure to $193 million.

ENGINEERING

Included in the total figure was $107 million for engineering about 30 per cent of total engineering expenditures, GM said.

GM also included $17.4 million spent at its proving grounds, and $66 million in its manufacturing departments. In addition, it listed more than $20 million in programs such as high school driver training and promotion of safe driving.

On the matter of car doors, which came up at the Senate hearing, GM said the data given at the hearing pertained only to door hinges and gave a misleading impression.

The report from which the data was taken, it said, places

Australia Accepts Bay City-Built Ship

BOSTON (AP) — The first of three guided missile destroyers built for the Royal Australian Navy in Bay City, Mich., has been put in service by Australian officials.

Australia's ambassador to the United States, John Keith Waller, formally accepted the $45-million Perth on behalf of his government in colorful ceremonies at the Boston Navy Yard Saturday.

About 50 Australian sailors, with the help of U.S. Navy personnel sailed the Perth from the Defense Shipbuilding Co. of Bay City through the St. Lawrence Seaway to Boston.

2 Detroit Firms Burn

DETROIT (AP) — A $75,000 fire destroyed a meat process firm and a charcoal company in Detroit Sunday, and police sought three juveniles who were seen fleeing from the scene. One fireman was injured in the four-alarm blaze.

Talbott Upsets PBI in City Baseball Tilt

Talbott Lumber came up with two runs in the seventh inning to upset Pontiac Business Institute, 7-6, yesterday in Class A baseball action.

P.B.I.'s (9-4) defeat left the team tied with Cranbrook (9-4) for the lead. Cranbrook picked up only two hits in downing C.I.O. 5-4, 2-1.

In a third game, Huron-Airway (9-5) posted a 10-0 verdict over M.G. Collision in a game halted after five innings under the 10-run rule.

P.B.I. looked like a sure winner when it pushed across three runs in the top of the seventh inning to take a 6-5 lead, but Talbott scored two with two out to take the decision.

In the Talbott rally, Lee Crawford led off with a single, and after two outs, Dick Miller walked and both runners moved up on a wild pitch and scampered across the plate on a single by Bob Gilmore.

PACES ATTACK

Crawford paced the attack with three hits in four trips and Al Forsaker delivered a two-run inside-the-park homer in the fifth inning. John Augusten fanned 13 batters to pick up the decision.

Bob Smith and Neil Roberts collected two hits each for the losers.

Larry Demrick scored the winning run for Cranbrook in the last of the eighth inning on a single by Tom Hummel.

C.I.O. picked up eight hits off Demrick but couldn't put them together. Chet Woodmore, Mel Taylor and Jerry Ryan picked up two hits apiece for the losers.

Huron-Airway picked up nine hits and took advantage of five M.G. errors in posting an easy decision.

Jack Nicklaus on GOLF

THE CORRECT POSITION OF THE SHOULDERS AT ADDRESS IS NOT TOO DIFFICULT TO ATTAIN. SINCE THE RIGHT HAND, LOWER ON THE SHAFT, AUTOMATICALLY PLACES THE RIGHT SHOULDER LOWER THAN THE LEFT.

THE HIGHER LEFT SHOULDER IS IMPORTANT. IT IS VERY DIFFICULT TO PERFORM THE BACKSWING PROPERLY WHEN THE SHOULDERS ARE LEVEL.

STARTING WITH THE LEFT SHOULDER HIGH, WILL KEEP THE RIGHT SHOULDER TUCKED IN AND EVERYTHING MOVING AS A UNIT.

Defeat Three Other Teams in Extra Hole

Long Putt on No. 18
Earns Deadlock; Par Decides Playoff

When a golfer needs help, Charlie Barker is a nice guy to have around.

Last year, in the Pontiac Men's Best Ball tournament, Charlie, playing with Clyde Skinner, sank a short putt on the first hole of sudden death to take the championship.

Charlie was at it again Saturday in the Pontiac Mixed Two-Ball championship at Pontiac Municipal Course.

Charlie and his wife, Helen, came into the 18th hole needing a birdie to tie for the lead. They put the ball on the green in two and then Charlie was faced with a 28-foot putt.

He rolled it in and he and Helen took the championship in a sudden-death playoff with three other teams.

FOUR SHOOT 79

Charles and Helen carded a 38-41-79 to tie the teams of Jim and Bobbie Miller, Fran Bertram and Feather Frechette and Tom Mitzelstein and Gretchen Bouwens.

Bertram and Miss Frechette, defending champions, wound up third after losing to the Millers in a playoff for the spot.

In Flint AAU Meet

Local Wrestlers Win

Two local wrestlers grabbed championships in the fifth annual Flint AAU meet that ended Saturday in Flint.

Bill Hollis of Pontiac Central

N. C. Bryant of PCH placed third in the 114-pound class, Dennis Fitzgerald of Walled Lake placed second in the 145-pound division and John Heller took a third (147).

In the Junior competition, Bob Heller of Walled Lake placed fifth in the 130-pound class and Joe Alsop of Waterford took second in the 130.

In the elementary division, Tod Schneider took a second (55 pounds), David Schneider a third (78 pounds) and Hugh Herring a fifth (88 pounds).

WEEKEND FIGHTS

BUENOS AIRES — Jimmy Leguina, 132lb, Panama, and Nicoline Locche, 134, Argentina, drew 15, tonight.

FALCONARA, Italy — Aldo Pravatini, 139lb, Italy, stopped Armando Scorda, 131, Italy, 15, Pravatini won vacant Italian lightweight title.

Two Pontiac riders picked up state championships in motorcycle scramble races yesterday at Brighton.

Bob Spangler finished first in the Class A heavyweight and Tyson Daniel led the pack in the Class B heavyweight.

Bud Hindbaugh placed second in the 'A' heavyweight. Roger White and Ray Pace finished 23 in the 'B' heavyweight.

Chuck Fordyce grabbed second place in the Class B lightweight and Rex Beauchamp and Phil White placed 2-3 in the featherweight division.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Because of the job being done with Willie Mays and without Orlando Cepeda, owner Horace Stoneham has given Herman Franks a new contract at higher pay to manage the San Francisco Giants through 1966.

Some Gemini 5 Training Phases Cut Because of Time Shortage

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Some training exercises for Gemini 5 astronauts will be junked because of a time shortage, a space official says.

Paul Haney, Manned Spacecraft Center public affairs officer, said Sunday that astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. do not have time enough left between now and the expected Aug. 19 launch date to complete a training schedule laid out for the 8-day flight.

"We have had to cancel planetarium star studies," he said, "and several other exercises." Practicing the proper escape methods from a dummy spacecraft submerged in water are others that have been scrapped, sources say.

Another casualty of the time shortage is individual news interviews with Cooper and Conrad. Haney said the interviews instead would be with all news-gathering agencies asking questions at the same time.

This omnibus news conference was scheduled to take place after Cooper, 36, recently promoted to an Air Force lieutenant colonel, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Conrad, 35, complete simulated parachute jumps in Galveston Bay today.

The flight had been expected

Aug. 11, but had been postponed to Aug. 17 and again to Aug. 19, according to unofficial sources. NASA has said it would officially

Killed in Family Fight

DETROIT (AP) — Jack Head, 41, an ironworker in suburban Garden City, was shot and killed Sunday during a family argument, police reported. Head's wife, Bonnie, 41, was held for questioning by Garden City police.

ly announce the proposed date of the flight 30 days in advance. Haney said Cooper and Conrad are working "12 hours a day, six days a week" cramming in all the training they can get for the mission, which will double the four days spent in orbit by Gemini 4 astronauts Air Force Lt. Col. James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II.

ONE-HOUR SESSION
In place of individual interviews with the astronauts, five newsmen representing the Associated Press, the three national television networks and United Press International, will sit around a table with Cooper and Conrad and ask questions for one hour.

Other newsmen from newspapers, radio and television will listen. Later they will have 30 minutes to ask questions. Television cameras will film the 90-minute news conference.

The traffic fatality rate last year was 5.7 per hundred million miles of vehicle travel.

PROGRAM SHORTENED — Paul Haney (left) public affairs officer for the Manned Spacecraft Center, and astronaut Gordon Cooper, Jr., announced in Houston, Tex., yesterday that some training exercises for Gemini 5 astronauts will be left out because of a time shortage. The space launch is set for Aug. 19 and is to last eight days.

Satellite Launch Delayed by Technical Difficulties

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The scheduled launching of two 8-centimeter satellites and a tiny pygmy satellite was postponed today because of technical difficulties which delayed the shot beyond the favorable launching time.

The 40-minute window, the time during which the shot could be accomplished in keeping with mission objectives, was extended eight minutes.

The rocket came within less than two minutes of being launched when the shot was called off due to further problems.

The Air Force said the technical difficulties were either in the guidance system of the Agena, the upper stage of the Atlas-Agena booster, or in associated ground equipment.

SEEK TROUBLE
A new launch date will be set as soon as the extent of the malfunction is determined.

The satellites are another step in the development of a system to detect secret nuclear explosions anywhere from the surface of the earth to 200 million miles in space.

The nuclear detection satellites were to join four others already patrolling the skies. They were launched in pairs in 1963 and 1964.

The 13-pound pygmy satellite is to measure radiation in the Van Allen belt which girdles the earth out to a distance of 40,000 miles.

The surveillance satellites are to help police the limited nuclear test-ban treaty which was signed in 1963 by the United States, the Soviet Union and more than 100 other nations. The pact allows underground detonations, but bans nuclear tests in the atmosphere, under water or in space.

Interception Halted on Toss of Handbag

HONINGTON, England (UPI) — A woman yelled to her husband on the other side of a traffic-filled street to toss her handbag to her.

He did so — and the bag hooked around the radio aerial of a passing car. Police are still looking for the car — and the purse.

A Junior Editors Quiz About NEWSPAPERS

QUESTION: How can newspapers print the news so quickly?

ANSWER: The word "new" gives the meaning of news. If we didn't know about what has just happened, we would have little idea of what our world is like.

To keep us informed, newspapers get the news to us with truly amazing speed. Because of highly organized services, such as The Associated Press, world wide reports constantly pour into the papers' newsrooms through special machines (upper right).

In addition, the papers have highly trained reporters who check police stations and other places where things of interest are reported or expected to happen.

Photographers often accompany them. Stories may be phoned in; film is rushed to the paper to be developed. In some cases, photos are sent right from the scene.

Rewrite men and editors put it all together. The stories are set in type and round metal printing plates cast which are fastened to rollers and inked so that they will print on the paper which starts to move across them.

Huge rolls of paper unwind through the presses, which can print, cut and fold perhaps 1000 papers a minute. These are rushed by trucks to newsstands and post offices. As a result, you can sit at home and find out the newest things, which have been going on in the world around you.

FOR YOU TO DO: The newspaper reading habit is a good one. It keeps your mind bright and alert. Keep reading your newspaper; you will be a more interesting and lively person because of it.

Painting Value Still in Dispute

Art Experts Indecisive on Creator of Work

DETROIT (UPI) — A painting of a woman, which was rescued from a trash truck in Grosse Pointe Farms, is one of two things... a Sassoferatto or a so-so.

Its owners, Mr. and Mrs. George Simon, don't know which, but they're trying to find out.

The painting had been thrown out as worthless. But a city employee whose hobby is painting, thought he recognized it as a valuable canvas, so the Simons retrieved it to make a check.

So far, the score among experts is indecisive.

Rolf Medgesay, a Grosse Pointe fine art appraiser, says it's either a Sassoferatto or a painting that was done in his studio under his supervision and touched up by the master.

17th CENTURY
Sassoferatto was a 17th century painter in Florence, Italy.

Simons said an expert in Brazil also has said the work is by Sassoferatto.

But Fred J. Cummings, curator of European Art for the Detroit Institute of Arts casts his vote for the so-so.

Cummings contends it is a copy, done about 150 years later.

NOT THE SAME
He said he compared the Simon canvas with a known Sassoferatto at the institute and it was apparent they were not by the same artist.

Cummings said the institute's Sassoferatto was painted in refined style with no brush strokes showing.

The Simons work, he said, showed very broad, brushy strokes.

School Dropout Makes Good

By DORIS KLEIN
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Some times it pays to be a school dropout — like $150,000 a year.

That's what Jim Hutton's been earning lately. And without benefit of a diploma.

"It was just some little prank like draining the school pond," recalls Jim, and there he was, out of Niagara University in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

"I was going to be a newsman — my father was an editor and my mother a sob sister.

Girl Scouters Having a Ball

9,000 Making Most of Roundup in Idaho

FARRAGUT, Idaho (AP) — Only three things seemed uncontrollable as the 1965 Girl Scout Senior Roundup entered its fifth day today: the wind, the sun and the enthusiasm of 9,000 teenage girls.

Camp director Mary Adams of New York City said she couldn't be happier.

"Our only major concern is the health of the girls. They have an unbelievable amount of energy," she said.

About 200 military policemen and Idaho state police tightened already tight security around the camp over the weekend, when 11,398 tourists poured in.

ALL GOES WELL
Directors of the eight administrative divisions of the roundup reported all was running smoothly in the encampment spread over 5,000 acres.

The scouts spend most of their mornings hiking in the nearby Bitterroot Mountains or taking bus tours through the Kanku National Forest, where they may watch logging operations and fire fighting demonstrations.

In the afternoons, the girls stroll through demonstration areas where they can watch girls from Fresno, Calif., making acorn bread, or singers and dancers from Milwaukee promoting Wisconsin dairy products. They also can try their hands at panning gold or punching Braille, or take a ride on a sled pulled by Alaskan huskies.

After forum discussions on everything from moral questions to international relations, the girls meet with others from their camps in a huge dugout area.

Disneyland Gets a New Star on 10th Anniversary: Lincoln

By BOB THOMAS
AN ANHEIM, Calif.—Walt Disney celebrated the 10th anniversary of Disneyland by giving his $32-million pleasure park a new star: Abraham Lincoln.

The lifelike Lincoln, an electronic marvel created by Disney's wizards, drew warm applause Sunday from anniversary audiences. It is a more advanced model than the one that has attracted 4 million visitors at the Illinois Pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

This Lincoln stands, gestures with 48 movements and delivers with the voice of actor Royal Dano a compilation of the 16th president's utterances on liberty. The face and head, modeled after a life mask, combine 17 different movements.

CRASH PROGRAM
At opening ceremonies Sunday, Disney explained that the attraction was created on a crash program occasioned by a studio visit of Robert Moses, president of the New York fair.

"I had Mr. Lincoln shake hands with Mr. Moses, who was greatly impressed," said the studio head. "We still had another four or five years to perfect a model, but Mr. Moses insisted he had to have it for the fair."

"Mr. Moses is a very persuasive man, so we dropped a few of the projects and went to work on Lincoln."

NEW USES
Already Disney was envisioning new uses of the system which has been dubbed "audio-animatronics." He spoke of using other models to portray Washington's ordeal at Valley Forge.

The cost of the Lincoln exhibit, it is $2.5 million. Disney said the theater cost $1.5 million and research for the animated Abe was reported at $1 million.

First Half Report: Area Retail Sales in Healthy Form

Pontiac area business continued on a prosperous note in the first half of 1965, according to a Press survey of Pontiac's central business district and area shopping centers.

Retail sales in the area during the first six months of 1965 showed an average gain of 14.5 per cent over sales for the same period last year.

Gains in the downtown business section were as high as 28 per cent in some stores, with an average sales gain of 15 per cent among the downtown merchants, according to Clifford C. Grovogl, president of the Downtown Pontiac Business Association.

Merchants report customers are enthusiastic about the Wide Track Drive system, now that they are becoming accustomed to it.

They are finding access to the downtown section more convenient, especially since parking has been reestablished on Saginaw Street, Grovogl noted.

Several merchants report more activity on Pontiac's downtown streets, and they are optimistic about the second half of the year.

An average increase in sales of 12 to 15 per cent for stores at Pontiac Mall, 215 N. Telegraph, Waterford Township, for the first six months of this year raised the total half-year sales volume to a figure in excess of $10 million.

According to Robert L. Witbold, vice president of the A. and W. Management Co., this is the largest sales volume the Mall has enjoyed in any first-half since it opened three years ago.

"We are looking forward to an ever-increasing sales volume. Witness the fact that the J. L. Hudson Co. stores are expanding, and the management of the Mall is adding approximately 50,000 square feet of Fashion Mall in the near future," Witbold said.

Edwin Gage, president of the Tel-Huron Shopping Center, Inc., 10 S. Telegraph, reports a Centerwide increase of 10 per cent in sales over last year for the first six months of 1965.

"Naturally, the big snowstorm in the first quarter affected Tel-Huron business for a time," Gage said, "but business generally was by far the best for a first-six-month period of the center has ever enjoyed."

During the first half of this year, sales volume increased an average of 18 per cent over the same period in 1964, according to Mrs. Gage Edwards, coordinator and executive secretary of the Bloomfield Miracle Mile Shopping Center, 2247 S. Telegraph, Bloomfield Township.

Cong 'Baptize' 1st Division; Kill 3 Troops in Night Attack

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Troops of the newly arrived U.S. 1st Division were attacked by the Viet Cong for the first time during the night and three Americans were killed, a U.S. spokesman announced.

The spokesman said several more Americans were wounded in the attack that began with a mortar barrage against forward elements of the division's 2nd Brigade outside the Bien Hoa air base 12 miles northeast of Saigon.

The 1st Division troops had arrived in Viet Nam last week. It was the first action in Viet Nam for the "Big Red One" division that made an enviable record in Africa and Europe during World War II.

"I had been through Korea and I thought I was a combat veteran until last night," said Maj. B. McIlion of Fort Worth, Tex. "I had never seen fighting like that before."

of railroad track starting 15 miles north of Yen Bay and miles northwest of Hanoi, a U.S. spokesman announced.

DEEPEST RAID
The U.S. was the deepest penetration of North Vietnamese territory announced so far. Results of the raid were not reported.

A U.S. Navy jet bomber was shot down over North Viet Nam yesterday a short time after U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara watched it roar off along with 13 others from the catapults of the 7th Fleet carrier Independence, a U.S. spokesman announced.

The spokesman said the two crew members of the A-1 intruder were seen to parachute and land on the ground. He said a search operation for them was abandoned today and it was presumed they were captured.

North Viet Nam claimed its gunners shot down three U.S. planes yesterday and captured two pilots. It said one plane was downed over Haiphong, North Viet Nam's chief port 60 miles east of Hanoi.

BOMBERS HELP

In other developments, a U.S. spokesman announced that a large Vietnamese army task force has resumed Key Route 19 in the central mountains with the help of U.S. B-52 bombers from Guam.

But 20 miles east of Saigon, the Viet Cong blew up seven bridges and blocked Route 15, connecting the capital with the coastal base of Vung Tau, a spokesman reported. Vung Tau is the site of a large American air installation and one of the headquarters of the U.S. 7th Airborne Brigade.

Korean Patriot Dies of Stroke Unfulfilled Wish Was Return to Homeland

HONOLULU (AP) — Syngman Rhee, a fierce, old Korean patriot whose greatest dream and last wish eluded him, died at Maunalani Hospital in Honolulu today of a stroke. He was 90.

The former South Korean president's last wish was "to go home and die," but increasing debility prevented his return. He had been in failing health for three years.

The founder of the Korean Republic was admitted to Queen's Hospital a month ago today after he began bleeding internally.

His condition improved and he was sent back to Maunalani Hospital, a nursing home.

Doctors said they had an hour's indication that death was near, giving them time to summon his Austrian-born wife, Francesca, 65, and his adopted son, Rhee In-soo.

UNFULFILLED DREAM

Unfulfilled was his life's ambition and dream that—a unification of Korea as a republic. The mountainous peninsula on Asia's east coast still is divided along the trace line where the bloody Korean War was halted in 1953.

Troy Man Ends Boat Mystery

A young business executive who lives in Troy has identified himself as the owner of a bullet-riddled mystery cruiser found in the Detroit River Saturday.

Arthur Goerss, 3578 Beach, said yesterday the boat was stolen and apparently taken for a joy ride.

Goerss, 29, called police in Riverside, Ont., where the boat had been taken after it was discovered partially submerged in the Detroit River.

The owner, assistant Detroit-area sales manager for a tissue company, said he had no idea how the boat got there.

He said he had seen a picture of the boat in a newspaper yesterday.

BOAT AT MARINA

Goerss last saw the 28-foot Chris Craft cruiser July 17 at his marina on the Clinton River near Mount Clemens, he said.

"Obviously it was stolen," he commented, "but I haven't been out there at the marina since then and I didn't know it was gone."

The boat was found submerged to the gunwales off Peche Island in Canadian waters.

The hull had been punctured by 17 bullets—apparently from a high-powered rifle—the engine had been dismantled and all identifying marks had been ripped off the bow and the engine.

SEEN TWICE

The cruiser, which stopped in Detroit Tuesday for an oil change and transmission adjustment, was seen twice Thursday in the Riverdale area.

Retired Carpenter Just Can't Lay Down Tools

What do 78-year-old retired carpenters do for fun and relaxation?

Victor Bacon of 23 Grandie has the answer: build your self a retirement house.

After 62 years in the carpentry trade, Bacon, 78, "retired" 10 years ago. A Pontiac resident since 1963, Bacon is currently building a new, smaller home on Grandie adjoining his present house.

THE BASEMENT IS COMPLETED.

The house, which has been in progress for some time, was built in such a way that it could be moved, section by section, onto the basement.

NOW IN PROGRESS

That moving and additional construction is now in progress. He sat at the edge of the new floor, pausing for a breather.

"That house I built in 1911," he said, pointing to one on the block. "The one next to it was started in 1903 on this acre of land my grandmother bought for $1,000 in 1903 when the family moved here from Mayville, near Lapeer."

"It used to take us a day and a half to come here from my grandmother's farm with a horse and buggy; now I can do it easily in a car in an hour," Bacon chuckled.

$1-Billion Bill Twice Size of LBJ Proposal

Senate Action Near; Enlisted Men Would Reap Biggest Gains

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The House was expected to override administration objections and approve today a $1-billion military pay increase bill — double what President Johnson proposed.

The raise would average 10.7 per cent with the biggest share going to enlisted men—including recruits and draftees—and junior officers.

Its aim is to attract and keep skilled men in uniform. There was no organized opposition in sight as the measure carried endorsements from both sides of the aisle.

It appeared that the administration's only chance to cut down the measure would be in the Senate, which will take up the bill after the House votes its approval.

23-1 VOTE

The measure was whipped out by the House Armed Services Committee on a 33-1 vote, approved by the rules committee and endorsed by the House Republican Policy Committee — despite Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's campaign for the administration bill.

The administration proposed a 4.8 per cent average increase totaling $448 million a year.

McNamara said this would be fair to the servicemen and fair "to our taxpayers."

Chairman L. Mendel Rivers of the House Armed Services Committee didn't agree.

"DISGRACEFUL!" The South Carolina Democrat called the administration bill "disgracefully inadequate."

The differences between Rivers and McNamara go more deeply than pay.

Since he became chairman in January, Rivers has clashed with McNamara over the authority of Congress to oversee military programs under its constitutional powers to "raise and support armies."

No Blue Monday: Sunny and Warmer

The weatherman is again smiling on Pontiac area residents, bringing them warmer temperatures and sunny skies. Today, tonight and tomorrow will be fair with a gradual warming trend. High today, 80 to 87. Low tonight, 52 to 60.

Tomorrow's high will be 82 to 85.

Winds are north to northeast, 5 to 15 miles per hour. A low of 57 preceding 8 a.m. was recorded this morning. The mercury had reached 14 by 1 p.m.

22 Killed Over Weekend

By The Associated Press
Traffic accidents claimed 22 lives in Michigan during a weekend that, although marred at times by rain, was pleasant and sunny.

Water accidents in Michigan claimed two lives. The Associated Press tabulation began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight yesterday.

Traffic victims included: A man tentatively identified as John Belsar, 60, of Rogers City was struck and killed by an auto yesterday while walking along a Detroit street.

John O'Leary Jr., 46, of Detroit was killed yesterday in Roscommon County when his car failed to make a curve and rolled off the road.

James D. Foster, 22, and Frank J. Sanchez, 21, both of Breckenridge, died yesterday when the motorcycle they were riding and a car collided in Breckenridge.

Raven Louis Reid, 30, of Ypsilanti Township was killed Saturday when his motorcycle collided with a car at an intersection in Washtenaw County.

Medicare Roars Into Home Stretch

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Today marks the first appearance in The Pontiac Press of John Troan's byline. He is an authority on Social Security legislation. Troan has literally been living with the new Medicare bill for the last year. As soon as the President signs the bill, The Pontiac Press will release a series of 14 articles explaining the legislation in detail.)

By JOHN TROAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — Medicare is roaring down the home stretch. After a 22-year campaign, which alternately flared and flickered, compulsory health insurance is about to become a reality in the United States.

All that remains is for a congressional conference committee to reconcile the Senate and House versions of Medicare so President Johnson can sign into law a revolutionary program of health benefits for persons past 65, financed by Social Security taxes. He hopes to do this within two weeks.

Here are the major differences to be resolved:

• Hospital Care — The House would provide up to 90 days for each illness minus $40. The Senate would add another 50 days with the patient paying $10 for each of these extra days.

• Diagnostic Services — The House would cover diagnostic services supplied by a hospital on a nonoverlapping basis, minus the first $20. The Senate would do likewise but also make the patient pay one-fifth of the balance.

• Nursing-Home Care — The House would provide 28 to 100 days, depending on how long the patient was hospitalized beforehand. The Senate would make it a straight 100 but make the patient pay $5 for each day after the first 20.

• Home Care — The House would cover up to 100 visits a year to a patient's home, following hospitalization, by part-time nurses and other health aides. The Senate would do the same but wants services of hospital-salaried radiologists, anesthetists, pathologists and physiatrists (specialists in rehabilitation) covered by the basic Social Security-Medicare program.

• Mental Treatment — The House would have the supplemental insurance cover up to 180 days during the patient's lifetime. The Senate would raise this to 120 days for a single illness and 210 days for a lifetime — and put it all under the basic tax-paid Medicare program.

• Supplemental Insurance — The House wants this to take effect next July 1. The Senate prefers Jan. 1, 1967. In either case, the subscriber will have to pay the first $50 a year toward his (Continued on Page 3, Col. 9)

Hale Boggs Cites Favorable Reaction to Rights Stand

By GORDON BROWN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana said today, the reaction has been overwhelmingly favorable to a House speech in which he said there has been voting discrimination against Negroes in parts of the South.

He said he does not think his speech or his vote in favor of the voting rights measure will hurt him politically. He represents Louisiana's 2nd Congressional District, which includes part of New Orleans.

In the final hours of debate on the bill 10 days ago, Boggs, assistant Democratic House leader, told his colleagues:

"I wish I could stand here as a man who loves my state, born and reared in the South, who has spent every year of his life in Louisiana since he was 5 years old, and say that there has not been discrimination."

MUST BE PART
But unfortunately it is not so," he said, "I shall support this bill because I believe the fundamental right to vote must be a part of this great experiment in human progress under freedom which is America."

The Mississippi-born congressman discussed his talk and the reaction to it in an interview which included these questions and answers:

Q. Your recent House speech on the voting rights bill, which has attracted considerable nationwide attention, conceded that there has been discrimination against Negroes in the South in the past. What reaction have you received from your state and district?

A. The reaction has been overwhelmingly favorable. In the 2nd Congressional District, the margin is better than 7 to 1. Elsewhere it is better than 3 to 1. The favorable responses came from a dozen states and France and Guam. Significantly, one of my constituents who for years has been critical wrote: "Sometimes, as you probably are all too aware, I do not agree with the votes or policies of the administration or yourself, but on this matter you said what has greatly needed admitting for generations. Good for you."

Here are some of the other comments I received on my speech and vote:

"Obviously correct vote."
"Many persons who may have been only lukewarm toward your representation of all the people in your district, are now enthusiastic."

"You make all of your friends stand just a little higher, feel a little prouder because of this association with you."

"What you said were things that have needed saying — and needed a Southerner to say them."

Q. Will this speech hurt you politically in a future campaign?

A. I do not believe it will. I believe the people of my district share my belief in the fundamental right of every American citizen to freely choose their own public officials regardless of race or creed.

Q. You mentioned a fear

Southerners have that if Negroes register and vote there would be a decline in the caliber of government and said this has been disproved in many counties. Do you believe this fear will be dissipated over the South? If so, when?

A. I do believe this fear has already been dissipated to a great extent and this is continuing at a rapid rate. Today there are more than 100 counties and parishes in the Deep South that have most of their eligible Negroes on the registration rolls. And their caliber of government will rise because more citizens will have a real stake in their government and will participate to a greater extent. This fear will be completely dissipated when Southerners realize that their neighbors are succeeding with government with all citizens registered regardless of race or creed. The counties and parishes with most of their eligible Negroes registered stretch across the South, with 23 in Louisiana, 5 in Alabama, 37 in Georgia, 7 in South Carolina and 29 in Virginia.

Q. Have any of your Southern colleagues criticized you or commented you privately for your talk?

A. None have criticized — many have commended me.

Leaves From a War Reporters Notebook

Tombs Outnumber Rice Paddies

By HAL BOYLE
DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — Leaves from a war reporter's notebook:

From the air South Viet Nam looks in many places like a vast cemetery.

When you first fly over the countryside, you notice what at first look like bomb craters or old abandoned wells.

But no one could have dropped that many bombs or abandoned that many wells. What you are seeing are the tombs of some of Asia's unnumbered dead.

STUN THE MIND
There are so many of them that after a time they stun the mind with an uneasy feeling of a presence haunted by so long a past.

Tombs outnumber the rice paddies, where grow in vivid green the white grains that feed the country's living millions.

The tombs cluster by the hundreds in every patch of sandy outworn soil. In smaller numbers, they also stud the fertile rice paddies, as if the clamorous dead were draining the sustenance of the living.

Some of the tombs are new and handsome in gold and blue colors. But most are gray and old and lichen-encrusted, and the dead within them as forgotten as the faded, fallen leaves of a flame tree.

The poet Sara Teasdale wrote of "children's faces looking up, holding wonder like cup."

It is the faces of Vietnamese children that give most encouragement to Americans here. They are so bright-eyed, enthusiastic, and eager to accept change.

In the eyes of the middle-aged and elderly, you are depressed to see sometimes a veiled animosity or at best a dull passivity. Often you have the feeling they don't really see you at all — they are either looking through you or around you, as if you were not there at all.

ARE INTERESTED
But the children and the youths see you. They are interested in Americans and this is cheering, even though you may have to face up to the fact that what they are looking for may more often be a cigarette than help to political freedom.

The hardest thing for Americans to get used to over here is Vietnamese money. It is by far the shabbiest paper currency on earth, particularly in small denominations.

The largest bill is the 500-piastre note. This is worth about $7, and they are invariably clean and crisp and neat.

The average Vietnamese worker, who earns from less than 60 up to 85 piastres a day, rarely gets his hands on one. The 100- and 200-piastre notes are usually in pretty good shape, too.

The five, 10- and 20-piastre notes — and particularly the fives — are the financial language of the poor. The five-piastre note is so dirty, frayed, unsanitary and pewed over that you feel you may be contracting a nameless disease every time you accept one in change.

You also feel sorry for the poor guy who gets it last — in whose hands it finally crumbles apart before he can pass it on to someone else.

The situation in South Viet Nam is bewildering in many ways to thousands of the American military men stationed here. The customs of the people are so different, the conduct of the war itself is so different, from anything they have known before.

But there is also a great determination on the part of most to see this thing through.

I think the best expression of both this bewilderment and determination that I have heard was made by Capt. James W. Haerer, 33, a fighter pilot from Tampa, Fla.

Hubert Trying to Unite Dems for '66

By JACK BELL.
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats are finding that President Johnson's 1964 landslide victory is bearing some bitter fruit in the breakdown of party organization in some key areas of the nation.

The voting riches won last year apparently have tended to set many local Democrats squabbling among themselves with the result that the kind of organization which wins state and congressional elections has deteriorated in some sections.

Johnson has given this matter his attention and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey currently is assigned to the task of trying to bring bickering local leaders together into some kind of united front before next year's elections.

Humphrey and his associates don't have to look below the surface to know that there are deep-seated party organization troubles in California, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and New York.

What is especially bad news to the Democrats is that all of these states, except Illinois, are electing governors next year. There is general belief among administration strategists that the Republicans will give campaign priority to trying to win governorships as the quickest route to a national comeback.

Their reasoning is that while the Republicans may make some gains in the House, only an unforeseen political upheaval could give the GOP control. They look for the Senate to remain safely Democratic for several years, at least.

Seats of 15 of the 17 Republican governors will be at stake in the 1966 election, including those in New York, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. New York may face difficulties in hanging on in Massachusetts, Oklahoma and Rhode Island. But otherwise the party position is regarded as relatively solid.

The Democrats, with eight Southern governorships counted

as safe out of 21 to be filled nationally, face stiff challenges in Arizona, California, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire and Vermont. They feel reasonably sure of hanging on to Alaska, Connecticut, Hawaii, Maryland, Nevada and New Mexico.

While administration leaders are working intensively to get 61 new House Democrats to wrap themselves in the Johnson programs and policies — their view is that this is the surest road toward reelection

Powell Endorses Proposal for National Teacher Corps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell today endorsed President Johnson's proposed national teachers corps, but said it should have some provision for Negro teachers displaced by desegregation.

The President asked Congress Saturday to pass legislation creating such a corps to serve in slums and areas of rural poverty. Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., who introduced the bill in the House Wednesday, predicted passage.

"I don't think we will have any earthly problems," Perkins said. "We are going to pass it. He said he saw little prospect the measure might be crowded out of the legislative agenda before Congress adjourns."

Powell, New York Democrat who heads the House Education and Labor Committee, said attention to the problem of a teacher shortage has been long overdue. He called the corps idea "a creative effort."

SPECIFIC ATTENTION — "However, at the same time, I am hopeful that the Congress in considering this legislation will devote specific attention to an equally serious developing problem: that of the displaced Negro teacher who is being discharged as Southern school districts desegregate," he said in a statement.

The President urged passage of the measure in letters to the presiding officers of the House and Senate.

Johnson also asked support for bills which would provide a program of fellowships to prepare students for teaching careers and help experienced teachers improve their qualifications, and for aid to colleges and universities to provide better education for teachers.

The proposals were basically the same the President outlined in a speech to the National Education Association July 2 in New York City.

EDUCATION CONFERENCE

The President's big Saturday for support of the measure came three days before the convening Tuesday of a White House conference on education. About 600 leaders in education, business, labor and government are expected for the gathering to discuss problems of education.

Johnson asked Congress for

$50 million for the teachers corps program in the fiscal year which began July 1. This is in addition to funds in the $1-billion Education Assistance Act, part of which would pay members of the teaching corps.

A White House spokesman said 6,000 teachers might be involved in the corps, and that 3,000 potential teachers might benefit from the fellowship program the first year.

"Members of the corps — experienced teachers and students who plan to make teaching a career — would go together to the city slums and to rural areas of poverty to offer what these troubled regions need most: light and learning; help — and hope," the President said in a statement.

In introducing the bill in the House, Rep. Perkins said corps teachers would join for up to two years of service. Teacher-interns would receive two years of service and professional training provided by colleges and universities on a contract basis.

Teacher teams would, after three months training at a university, work in schools which needed certain services and skills.

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (AP) — It's not too when the matter comes up for discussion at the First Congregational Church, where one of three participating ministers, the Rev. Richard Charrier, presides.

But proof of the pudding came when youngsters at the municipal swimming pool admired the tan of Louise Williams, 7, and the wistful expression on the face of Bernie Wilkonn's own kids when Danny Merriweather, 10, was confronted by a lawn mower in the Wilkonn front yard.

UNCOMMON SIGHT

"What's that for?" asked Danny, who lives in a 16-family apartment building.

The Wilkonn kids know, all right; they explained. You push it. And push it. And push it.

The visit started in the Congregational church and soon enlisted the Rev. Robert Adams and the Methodist church.

The Rev. Mr. Adams was quick to admit to what you might call selfish motives.

ACQUAINT PEOPLE

"We wanted to show the kids a good time, but most of all, we wanted to acquaint our relatively isolated people with people from urban areas."

At least 50 families were among those who contributed $400 for chartering buses and other travel expenses. The Rev. Richard Jackson, Protestant campus minister at the State University which developed from the old School of Mines, contacted Mrs. Benjamin Wise, director of the South Side Congress of Racial Equality Freedom School on Chicago's South Side.

She had signed up 37 youngsters, instead of the 35 expected, but the extra two were promptly taken into another local family with four children of its own.

The Rev. Mr. Adams, whose guests were Danny's brother, Cornell, 13, and Walter Brown, 11, said that the two and his own three boys reacted "like visiting cousins, the relatives you only see about once a year."

MEET AT PARK

Except for Wednesday night, when the whole group of hosts and guests assembled for a picnic and ice cream social at the park, the visitors spent their time with the host families and their friends.

Dr. and Mrs. Wise came up Friday to see how things were working out.

"The best thing about this," said Mrs. Wise, "is that the people of Platteville thought it up, not CORE."

Wilson's Line on Viet: Try, Try Again

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press International

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson has just suffered a severe rebuff from Hanoi over Viet Nam peace feelers but he does not intend to give up.

He is looking around for possible new openings and the next move may be a fresh approach to Russia.

Britain and the Soviet Union are co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference which settled the Indochina war and Britain can be expected to prod Moscow to cooperate in recalling the conference.

The Russians have repeatedly refused, but Wilson's line is try, try again.

MORE TALKS: Look for more talks between roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman with top Soviet officials and possibly a trip outside of Moscow. Harriman is in Moscow at least until tomorrow when he is to have lunch with the British ambassador.

He may stay on after that if necessary.

Diplomatic observers in Moscow caution against assuming the talks will produce any results, particularly on Viet Nam. The only significance seems to be reopening a Soviet-American dialogue.

Meanwhile more anti-American propaganda on Viet Nam is likely to arise from a "Solidarity Week" with the Vietnamese people.

UNDER WRAPS: The new army-dominated government of Col. Houari Boumedienne in Algiers is likely to keep the wraps on former strongman President Ahmed Ben Bella for at least six months.

It is planned ultimately, to bring Ben Bella to public trial, but the Boumedienne government feels it is too early to do so now without risking pro-Ben Bella demonstrations.

OPEN MIND: French President Charles de Gaulle may relent on his decision to boycott the European Common Market foreign ministers meeting at Brussels July 26.

The French said earlier they would not attend in any circumstances. Now they say de Gaulle is "keeping an open mind."

AFRO-ASIAN: Malaysian Foreign Ministry top officials say they are confident Malaysia will have a seat in the Afro-Asian conference when it is finally held this autumn.

They were so sure that for the time being they are not even considering sending any delegations to counteract anti-Malay sentiment stirred by Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio in Africa.

KOREAN CRISIS: President Park Chun Hee of South Korea may face a serious political crisis if the 57 opposition Min-jong (Popular) Party members of the National Assembly resign to protest the treaty restoring normal Korean-Japan relations.

As a result Park may reconsider whether to ram the bill through the assembly. If the opposition resigns he will be in hot political water.

Australia Accepts Bay City-Built Ship

BOSTON (AP) — The first of three guided missile destroyers built for the Royal Australian Navy in Bay City, Mich., has been put in service by Australian officials.

Australia's ambassador to the United States, John Keith Waller, formally accepted the $45-million Perth on behalf of his government in colorful ceremonies at the Boston Navy Yard Saturday.

About 50 Australian sailors, with the help of U.S. Navy personnel sailed the Perth from the Defoe Shipbuilding Co. of Bay City through the St. Lawrence Seaway to Boston.

2 Detroit Firms Burn

DETROIT (AP) — A $75,000 fire destroyed a meat process firm and a charcoal company in Detroit Sunday, and police sought three juveniles who were seen fleeing from the scene. One fireman was injured in the four-alarm blaze.

ENGINEERING

Included in the total figure was $107 million for engineering about 30 per cent of total engineering expenditures, GM said.

GM also included $174 million spent at its proving grounds, and $86 million in its manufacturing departments. In addition, it listed more than $20 million in programs such as high school driver training and promotion of safe driving.

On the matter of car doors, which came up at the Senate hearing, GM said the data given at the hearing pertained only to door hinges and gave a misleading impression.

The report from which the data was taken, it said, places
