Center Stage Film Premiere Saturday, November 1

Center Stage Film Premiere

A two-week film camp designed especially for children on the autism spectrum was held in August on the campus of Oakland University. Led by well-known actor, director and entertainer Joey Travolta, participants learned to write, act, direct and edit their own film. The film camp was unique in that it provided enhanced opportunities in the arts for children with an Autism Spectrum Disorder in an inclusive setting.

Join us on Saturday, November 1, 2008, for our 3rd annual Center Stage Film Premiere at the Oakland Center.

The Center Stage Film Premiere night is a red carpet event that will showcase the short film produced by the participants to the viewing public and celebrate the accomplishments of the participants.
