25 Die as Battle Rips Mexico City

CAPTIVE HAIRCUT — Mexican soldiers administer a forced trim to a youth arrested early in last night's shooting outbreak. Other youths stand against a wall in the background, their hands behind their heads.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The bloodiest battle yet of Mexico City's student rebellion raged through the night after a rifle shot touched off a thunderous crossfire between snipers and army troops at the crowded site of an antigovernment rally yesterday.

Police and hospitals reported 25 persons killed, although at 1 a.m. a spokesman said the government's estimate was that 20 persons were killed and 75 wounded.

* * *

Estimates of those on the scene were that more than 100 were wounded and a check of three of Mexico City's hospitals showed 72 injured had been treated.

The International Olympic Committee called a meeting today at 11 a.m. to discuss the violence and its possible effect on the 1968 summer games, scheduled to open in the Mexican capital in nine days.

'NO DANGER'

The government spokesman, presidential press secretary Fernando Garza, said of the Olympics: "There is no danger. All necessary precautions have been taken."

He said the fighting began when "one group of students began firing at another." He added: "The end has come to this group of militant students. A cleaning out has been made already."

* * *

Firing in the area of the Plaza of the Three Cultures near downtown continued sporadically into the early morning hours. Soldiers said the main pockets of student resistance were two buildings in the adjoining Tlatelolco apartment district.

Throughout the evening, snipers with automatic weapons fired from apartment windows and troops brought armored cars into the battle and poured machine-gun fire back into the high-rise buildings. The troops began clearing out the buildings about four hours after the battle began. Hundreds of residents already had fled.

STUDENTS ROAM STREETS

But elsewhere, students roamed the streets with 22-caliber automatic pistols and Molotov cocktails setting dozens of buses and cars afire.

A secret police agent said snipers were shooting at ambulance drivers and "we can't get in and pick up the dead bodies lying in the plaza."

* * *

About 6,000 striking students had gathered in the plaza for a march to the Santo Tomas Vocational School, scene of the major fighting in a battle that left 15 dead in the night of Sept. 23.

* * *

Because of troops along the route, student leaders called off the march. But then four flares fell into the plaza, scattering the crowd, and a soldier appeared around the corner of a church.

TRIGGERED BY SHOT

A shot rang out, presumably from a sniper firing at the soldier, and the plaza instantly was filled with a roar of automatic weapons fire.

* * *

Thousands of persons were believed under arrest at military posts.

* * *

At some buildings where firing was heavy, parents were standing outside wailing that their children were in there alone.

Several buildings caught fire.

OTHER HOTSPOTS

Besides the snipers in apartments, an estimated 400 students were holding out in a vocational school. A witness said an army helicopter fired on the students. Snipers also were reported in the government Social Security and Health Building.

* * *

Garza said the army started shooting only after the snipers opened fire.

* * *

The students have kept Mexico City in turmoil for about two months in their strike to back up such demands as elimination of the riot police, firing of three top police officials, changes in an antisubversion law and a guarantee of university autonomy.

* * *

The demands grew out of a mid-July fight between students of two high schools. Police broke up the fight and students of the universities and high schools banded together later to accuse the police of brutality.

SPORADIC RIOTING

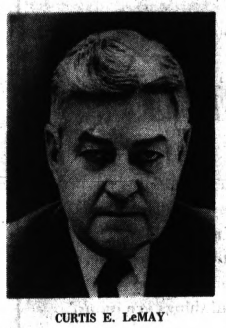

Rioting was sporadic since that time and the army took over the University of Mexico last month to block what officials called a plot to upset the Olympics. Olympic Stadium is on the university campus.

* * *

The scene of the fighting was several miles from the Olympic Village, where athletes from more than 100 nations are in training for the games.

Viet Hawk LeMay Wallace VP Choice

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Retired Air Force Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, who wants victory in Vietnam even if it takes nuclear weapons, was made George C. Wallace's vice presidential candidate today.

CURTIS E. LeMAY

"One of his outstanding characteristics that I admire greatly in his ability to speak his mind," said the former Alabama governor as he introduced LeMay to a full dress news conference.

Republican presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon carried his campaign

into the South, meanwhile, and said the solution of American problems "isn't quite so simple" as Wallace implies.

A major effort in Nixon's southern tour is to be a television broadcast tonight from Atlanta, Ga., into Wallace's home state of Alabama and 10 other southern states.

* * *

Democratic candidate Hubert H. Humphrey, who concentrated his political guns on Wallace during a southern tour earlier this week, turned them back on Nixon today in Welch, W. Va.

He said Appalachia — for which he said the "Nixon-Republican administration" did nothing — is overcoming ills with federal programs approved under succeeding Democratic administrations.

* * *

"It won't take long for the Nixon-Agnew team to tear these things down if they win in 1968," Humphrey said.

Humphrey's running mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, appealed to a crowd of fellow Polish-Americans in Chicago Wednesday to reject Wallace's law-and-order message. It "would be the end of what our people came to America for," Muskie said.

WIRETAP STAND

Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, the GOP vice presidential candidate, said meanwhile, his call for increased wiretapping to combat organized crime does not indicate a change in previous statements that he is against wire tapping "in any form."

In other political developments:

- A three-judge federal panel has ruled Communist party presidential candidate Charlene Mitchell and her running mate cannot be kept off Minnesota's November ballot under terms of the 1954 federal Communist control act.
- Humphrey's campaign manager, Lawrence F. O'Brien, says private polls show the Democrat leading in eight states with 136 of the 270 electoral votes needed for election: Connecticut, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Texas.

Peru Military Ousts Regime

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The Peruvian army early today overthrew the elected government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry.

Soldiers stormed the presidential palace shortly after 2 a.m. and emerged a short time later with Belaunde, dressed in a blue suit and shouting in Spanish "You are traitors."

* * *

The coup took place about 12 hours after Belaunde had installed a new 11-member Cabinet — the seventh in his five-year regime.

Belaunde was taken to an unknown place.

LIMA CALM

All was calm on Lima streets and Peruvians awoke on a bleak misty day to find that the military had taken over, as they did five years ago — that time with the result that Belaunde took office.

Belaunde had disappointed even his most enthusiastic followers, however, and it had become apparent in recent weeks that a coup was inevitable.

* * *

The present political crisis erupted following the signing of a new contract with International Petroleum Corp.

Belaunde's opponents claimed Peru had come out on the short end of the negotiation, and the former head of the Peruvian Oil Agency claimed the last page of the contract had been lost.

GUARANTEED PAYMENT

He said this page contained his personal notations that guaranteed payment in dollar equivalents regardless of fluctuation of the Peruvian sol.

The controversy split Belaunde's party and finally resulted in the resignation of Premier Osvaldo Hercelles and his Cabinet Tuesday.

Lolich Has His Cool for 2nd Series Game

By JERE CRAIG

ST. LOUIS — Temperatures were supposed to drop 10 to 15 degrees for the second game of the World Series today, and this makes Detroit Tiger pitcher Mickey Lolich happy.

Lolich, a left-hander with a 17-9 won-lost season record, goes against righthander Nelson Briles who posted a 19-11 season mark, and the Tiger hurler, who now lives near Romeo, commented, "I prefer the wet, cool weather, like in Oregon where I come from."

* * *

After watching Bob Gibson set the Tigers down with a series record total of 17 strikeouts in the first-game 4-0 triumph for the Cardinals, Lolich was a bit optimistic about his first Series starting role today.

"Right-handed pitchers and left-handers are so different that I didn't really benefit from watching the first game," he said.

HE'LL AVOID WALKS

"I guess my big effort will be not to walk anybody."

"They say that left-handers can give the Cardinals trouble. I hope they're right," Lolich added.

"Walks were the turning point," manager Mayo Smith said about yesterday's shutout of the Tigers.

Denny McLain, who lost to Gibson in the big showdown, said the strike zone used by National League umpire Tom Gorman didn't cause any troubles.

"I just couldn't find it," he confessed, "and it wasn't the humid weather. The Cardinals applied most of the heat out there," he joked.

The Mickey Stanley experiment at shortstop was undoubtedly the day's lone bright spot for the Tigers. The standout center fielder grabbed Lou Brock's bouncer and retired him easily with a true throw to Norm Cash for the first out in the Cardinals' half of the opening inning.

"I was happy to see it," Stanley said after the game in noting that he didn't have long to wait for his first chance. Stanley had one other assist, caught a pop-up and tagged out two Cardinal runners at second base.

Stanley will stay at shortstop in today's contest, and Smith also said he would stick with the same batting order.

Former Midland High School star Larry Jaster is in the St. Louis bullpen for the World Series again this year.

Jaster is a southpaw hurler whose fast ball gave Pontiac Central batters some trouble before he signed with the Cardinals in 1962.

FACED BOSOX IN '67

The 6-3, 205-pound pitcher made his World Series debut against the Red Sox last year and pitched to three batters in relief. Primarily a fast baller, he has developed his curve and added a screwball, but still is trying to perfect an off-speed delivery.

* * *

Jaster pitched Detroit Recreation League ball one summer, but in his words, "They (the Tigers) never seemed too interested in me."

* * *

With the Cardinals two years ago, he tied a Major League record by shutting out Los Angeles Dodger batters five straight times.

The 24-year-old lefty has been 3-0, 11-5, 9-7 and 9-13 in his stays with the Cardinals. His earned run average was 3.51 this season.

Fifth Inning

Tigers—Wert walked. Lolich attempting to sacrifice forced Wert at second, third to short, Lilich safe at first. McAuliffe safe on infield hit to right side, Lolich moving to second. Stanley struck out. Kaline bounced to third baseman Shannon who threw to second to force McAuliffe. No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Cardinals—Davis flied to center. Maxvill bounced out short to first. Briles struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Detroit 2, St. Louis 0

GM Will Build Small Economy Auto for 1970

General Motors Chairman of the Board James M. Roche today announced that GM will introduce an American-built small economy car in 1970.

Roche, speaking before 450 business leaders today at the opening of new quarters for General Motors in New York, said, "The preference of growing numbers of Americans for smaller, lower-priced, foreign built cars over the past several years is a phenomenon we cannot ignore."

* * *

He said the car will be engineered, produced and distributed by Chevrolet Motor Division. Now called the XP 887, the model will be a foot shorter than any car now manufactured by GM.

* * *

Roche said GM has been working on the car for several years and that public introduction is expected in the summer of 1970.

AF to Release 16,000 in Reserves, Air Guard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force will release about 16,000 Air National Guardsmen and reservists from active duty by next summer. But the Army says it still needs the 20,000 men it called up to support the Vietnam war.

★ ★ ★

Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford announced last night that some Air Guard and reserve units and individuals will be released before January, the remainder in April, May and June.

Clifford warned the plans "could be changed, of course, if unforeseen circumstances arise."

★ ★ ★

He did not spell out those circumstances, but he obviously meant some new crisis as grave as the North Korean capture of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo and last winters enemy offensive in South Vietnam.

38,000 MUSTERED

Those developments resulted in a two-stage muster of some 38,000 Air Force, Navy and Army reservists and Guardsmen in late January and mid-May. They were subject to up to two years in uniform.

★ ★ ★

By releasing the 16,127 Air Guardsmen and reservists gradually over the next nine months, the Air Force said it will be able to replace demobilized pilots and navigators from its training program and by what it calls "personnel management."

Among those to be released is Airman 1.c. Patrick J. Nugent, son-in-law of President Johnson. He has been in Vietnam since April.

★ ★ ★

Replacements for the demobilized citizen-airmen will have to come from the ranks of the Regular Air Force.

SECOND TOURS LOOM

"As a result, some airmen will be selected to return to Southeast Asia for a second tour involuntarily sooner than would have been otherwise necessary," the Air Force said.

The Navy announced more than two weeks ago that it will deactivate six reserve squadrons and 600 officers and men by Nov. 1. They, too, were mustered in the wake of the Pueblo seizure. About 1,000 reserve Seabees also are on active duty.

But the Army said it does not now plan to release any of the 20,000 men it called to the colors "except upon expiration of their respective terms of service."

"Only when it is determined that a need for these units no longer exists will they be released prior to the terms of service for which they were called to duty,' the Army said after the Air Force move was disclosed.

6 SQUADRONS TO ASIA

Six Air Guard squadrons were shipped to Vietnam and South Korea during the spring and summer.

Guard pilots with the four squadrons of Korean War vintage F100 fighter squadrons already have logged more than 6,000 combat missions.

Some critics, including congressmen, have attacked the administration for calling up the Guardsmen and reservists, contending the Pueblo incident was used as a convenient excuse to beef up forces.

Most Erie Filth Blamed on State

CHICAGO (AP) — Detroit and southeastern lower Michigan are handed the lion's share of the blame for pollution of Lake Erie in a report issued yesterday by the federal Water Polution Control Administration.

Forty per cent of all the phosphorus and 51 per cent of the chlorides dumped into the lake come from southeastern Michigan, the report asserted.

★ ★ ★

Six of the 10 companies listed by the report as the major polluters of the lake are Michigan firms.

The report says the top polluters are Ford Motor Co.'s vast manufacturing installations at Detroit and Monroe, Mich., dumping 19.7 per cent of all the industrial waste water in the Lake Erie basin.

OHIO, N.Y. SECOND

Ranked second are Republic Steel Co. plants in Ohio and New York.

Great Lakes Steel Corp. of Ecorse and River Rouge, Mich., is named as fourth largest polluter.

★ ★ ★

Wyandotte Chemical Co. of Wyandotte, Mich., is placed sixth.

Pennsult Chemical of Riverview is seventh.

McLouth Steel Corp. of Trenton is rated ninth.

Czechs in Russia to Seek Pullout

MOSCOW (AP) — Czechoslovak Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek and Premier Oldrich Cernik came to Moscow today for negotiation with Soviet leaders who six weeks ago sent troops into their liberalized country.

Dubcek was reported to be seeking withdrawal of at least some of the Communist Bloc troops sent into Czechoslovakia on Aug. 20.

★ ★ ★

In addition to Cernik, Dubcek was accompanied by Gustav Husak, deputy premier and head of the Slovak Communist party.

The airport where Dubcek's airliner landed was closed to Western correspondents. However, informed Communist sources reported that the Czechoslovak delegation was met by the top three men of the Kremlin — Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Foes of Fortas Will Fight Any New LBJ Moves

WASHINGTON (AP) — The withdrawal of Abe Fortas' nomination to be chief justice has left President Johnson with three choices.

Chief Justice Earl Warren said earlier he'd stay on if Fortas wasn't confirmed by the Senate, removing need for quick action.

★ ★ ★

He will be on the bench when the Supreme Court opens Monday.

Warren said last July his open-ended retirement — which was seized as a major issue by Fortas opponents — avoids "the danger of 4-to-4 decision" in the term beginning Monday.

THE THREE CHOICES

Johnson could submit a new nomination before Congress adjourns, or make a recess appointment subject to confirmation in the Senate's next session. And he could simply do nothing.

★ ★ ★

Those who opposed the Fortas nomination and cheered its withdrawal yesterday are for this last alternative. They promised to fight any attempt by Johnson to name a new chief justice.

"It would be the better part of wisdom for him not to send up a new nomination," said Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., who started the drive against Fortas.

★ ★ ★

In 1960, Johnson supported a resolution that Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., guided through the Senate opposing any recess Supreme Court appointments by outgoing President Eisenhower.

Birmingham News

Urban Design Plan Offered

BIRMINGHAM — Formal presentation of the Johnson, Johnson and Roy, Inc., urban design plan was made last night to the Birmingham Planning Board.

A seven-point implementation program for 1969 was presented for beginning the four-year project to improve the physical environment of the city.

★ ★ ★

The final plan would have a ring road around the central business district, to give the district a more pedestrian character with a town plaza at the intersection of Woodward and Maple.

The removal of traditional curbs and the introduction of a single unifying pavement material, together with trees, planters and a fountain, would establish this environment for this area.

LOWER SIGNS

Business and public signs would be lowered and uniform. New lighting and street furniture would contribute to the change in character.

Johnson, Johnson and Roy, represented by Cy Paumier, also announced plans for a civic center plaza, on the north side of the Municipal Building to meet the needs of the many public functions and activities held throughout the year.

★ ★ ★

In addition to the many public functions that may be accomplished by this plaza, which would include Shain Park, this space would place emphasis on the entrance to the public buildings clustered around this area, according to Paumier.

Also a part of the entire plan are parking enclosures to make the streets more attractive to visitors entering the city at the four suggested major entries; at either end of Maple and also Woodward.

NEED FOR PARKING

The need for parking enclosure is very important to the implementation of the urban design recommendations, according to the report.

The Johnson, Johnson and Roy report also includes suggestions for downtown architecture, improvement of entrance corridors characters, the appearance of parkways, and improvement of service station appearances.

The seven-point implementation program for 1969 includes:

- Preparation of preliminary site plans for the Maple-Woodward landscape to serve as the framework for a one-block pilot project on West Maple. The pilot project would be executed in the summer of 1969.
- Preparation of detailed plans for a parking enclosure on a surface lot, to be executed in the summer of 1969.
- Preparation of detailed site plans for two service stations on the southwest corners of East Maple and Hunter; the pilot project to be executed in the spring of 1970.

★ ★ ★

- Revision of sign ordinances leading to the elimination of all roof and pole signs over 15 feet high.
- Installation of new public signs along the entrance corridors and ring road.
- Installation of several new street lights for evaluation of the recommended lighting plans.
- Completion of contract drawings for the Civic Center Plaza. Construction would be completed by the fall of 1969.

Freeway in Flames After Fatal Crash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Half a mile of the Golden Gate Freeway north of downtown Los Angeles became a sheet of flame last night when a loaded fuel tanker truck burst apart and exploded after a fatal collision with an auto.

Fire officials said thousands of gallons of burning gasoline flooded the freeway and flowed through storm drains, where fumes caused numerous underground explosions and sent manhole covers flying.

A fire department spokesman, said, "We've got most of the fire on the freeway extinguished but there's nothing we can do about the flames in the sewers." He said there was no danger to residents in the area.

Cyclists' Gunfire Fatal

DETROIT (AP) — One man was killed and three others were wounded today when gunfire erupted in a motorcycle club on Detroit's West Side.

Th dead man was identified as Arthur Raymond Bailey, 23, of Detroit.

★ ★ ★

Investigators said the shooting apparently climaxed an argument between members of two different motorcycle clubs — the Outlaws and the Highwaymen — at the clubhouse, a former store building.

Exam to Continue Oct. 11 for 4 in Rape-Kidnap Case

By MEL NEWMAN

The preliminary examination of four Oakland County youths on charges of kidnap and rape in the abduction Sept. 20 of a Pontiac couple will be continued Oct. 11 — likely with an additional court-appointed defense attorney.

J. Robert Stirling, representing the accused abductors of a 19-year-old girl and her escort, yesterday requested that Circuit Court Judge Philip Pratt name a second counsel for at least one of the four.

★ ★ ★

Circuit Court is responsible for such appointments when necessary in state law cases.

Pratt took the request under advisement.

BOND MOTION DENIED

Previously, Waterford Township Justice of the Peace Kenneth H. Hempstead, who is hearing the examination, denied a defense motion for the setting of bond on the defendants.

The four, Percy J. Greenwood, 21, of Pontiac; Raymond M. Spring, 24, of Orion Township; James L. Davidson, 18, of Oxford; and James R. Perna, 18, of Oxford, have been in custody in Oakland County Jail without benefit of bond since their arrests.

Spring and Greenwood were arrested Sept. 20 by deputies in the 19-year-old male victim's car at M24 and Silver Bell in Orion Township.

Perna and Davidson were arrested later at their homes.

FACE ADDITIONAL CHARGES

All are charged with rape and kidnap in an alleged series of attacks in the Oxford area following the abduction of the couple in Lapeer County.

Perna and Spring face additional charges in Lapeer County of rape, assault and armed robbery in an alleged prior and related incident the same day.

★ ★ ★

Stirling said yesterday he requested the appointment of a second attorney because of the possibility of a legal conflict in future cross examination of the defendants.

A spokesman said that Pratt would "very likely" comply with the request.

Highland Park Police Quizzed in Burglaries

HIGHLAND PARK (AP) — Investigators were questioning members of the Highland Park Police Department today in connection with reports that some policemen might be involved in burglaries.

The investigation was launched after John Vaughn, 30, one of four patrolmen sent to prison last August for concealing stolen property, wrote a letter to Circuit Judge John Wise, who sentenced him to 2½ years' imprisonment.

★ ★ ★

Wayne County Sheriff Roman Gribbs said Vaughn offered to give information about other police officers in exchange for his freedom.

School Thugs Arrested

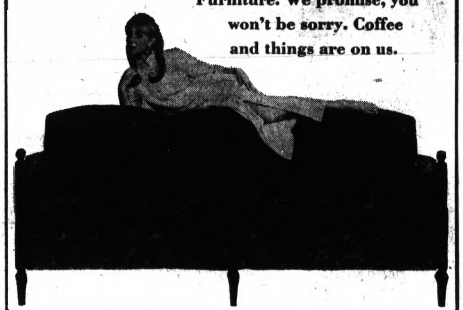

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—An alleged "protection racket" in which children were forced pay up to $1 a day or get beaten by young thugs has been uncovered at a Harrisburg grade school, police said today.

Four boys, one 12 and the other three 11, were arrested and turned over to juvenile authorities.

Fighting Slows in Waterlogged Viet

SAIGON (AP) — Fighting hit its lowest level in a week today, and U.S. officers said the enemy has scaled down operations in some areas of South Vietnam, hampered by rain-swollen canals and rice paddies.

"The enemy has crawled back into the woodwork," said one top officer. "There's not been a significant action in the last six days in 3rd Corps," the area from Saigon to the Cambodian border.

★ ★ ★

"One of the Vietcong's problems," said the officer, "is that they can't get their offensive organized because the water is too high to the west and south of Saigon. They can't move. There's nothing but a big lake out there."

The rice paddies and canals in the outlying areas have been swollen by the southwest monsoons that are now ending.

'WILL START UP'

"According to the engineers, the water table will drop Oct. 15," the officer said. "We think that after the water goes down, they'll start up again at Tay Ninh and Loc Ninh. Once that gets going, they may try to attack Saigon."

★ ★ ★

The two cities are northwest of Saigon near the Cambodian border. Intelligence officers said repeated attacks on them during August and September indicate the enemy considers them key spots along invasion routes. They also said the attacks were intended to draw allied forces from the defense of Saigon.

★ ★ ★

Intelligence officers said the two enemy divisions that had been attacking Tay Ninh and Loc Ninh had pulled back into sanctuaries in Cambodia and along the border. The other enemy division believed in the area is now placed in War Zone C in northern Tay Ninh Province and southward to within 30 miles of Saigon.

In addition to the three divisions totaling an estimated 18,000 men, intelligence officers said the enemy command has another 2,800 troops from independent units on the periphery of the Saigon Military District.

INSIGNIFICANT

Communiques today reported no significant fighting and only two harassing enemy shellings.

Enemy gunners pumped 36 mortar rounds into the South Vietnamese 25th Division headquarters west of Saigon, but no damage or casualties were reported.

★ ★ ★

Another mortar attack wounded two government militiamen and damaged an observation plane at Cam Ly airfield 140 miles northeast of Saigon.

U.S. B52 bombers dropped 1,500 tons of bombs during eight strikes against suspected troop concentrations in three areas Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

Two strikes were near the Cambodian frontier northwest of Saigon, one was in the central highlands southwest of Kontum and the other five were in the coastal foothills southwest of Da Nang where fighting has swirled around four isolated Special Forces camps that guard infiltration routes.

Combat Deaths Down for Week

SAIGON (AP) — Combat deaths in the Vietnam war dropped slightly last week, reflecting another of the periodic slowdowns in ground fighting across the country.

The U.S. Command, in its weekly summary today, reported 247 Americans killed in action in the week ending last Saturday. A week earlier 290 Americans were killed. There were 1,779 Americans wounded last week with 818 hospitalized compared with 1,762 wounded a week earlier.

The summary said the latest casualty counts raised to 29,458 the number of Americans killed in the war since Jan. 1, 1961. The number of wounded climbed to 178,235. Another 1,203 Americans are listed as missing, captured or interned.

South Vietnamese casualties last week were 316 men killed, 1,230 wounded and 32 missing. Vietnamese headquarters reported. This also was a decrease from the 473 killed, 1,262 wounded and 35 missing a week earlier.

2,866 REDS DIE

The weekly summary said 2,866 enemy troops were killed last week, compared with 3,380 the week before.

★ ★ ★

The U.S. headquarters report said the number of enemy killed in the period from Jan. 1, 1961, through Saturday climbed to 402,102.

The total of U.S. military personnel in South Vietnam as of Saturday was 538,500, the same as the previous week, headquarters reported.

Hannah Reverses on Suspension Rule

EAST LANSING (AP)—Michigan State University President John Hannah has changed his position and says he will recommend suspension of a controversial resolution that led to a "cremation" ceremony on his front steps earlier this week.

The resolution, approved 6-2 last month by the Board of Trustees with Hannah's support, would allow the president or his designee to suspend a student whose activity constituted "an immediate threat to the normal and orderly operation of the university."

★ ★ ★

Several hundred young people marched from a peaceful protest rally to Hannah's home Monday and burned some 1,000 copies of the university's academic freedom report.

Students said passage of the resolution violated principles of the report and that the report was "dead" if the trustees' action were allowed to stand.

In a statement, Hannah cited what he termed "gross misunderstanding" and said he intends to recommend suspension of the resolution at the trustees' Oct. 18 meeting.

"Neither I nor any designee will suspend any student under this... pending final action of the trustees," he said.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, outgoing board member C. Allen Harlan of Birmingham also reversed his position on the resoution and said he would recommend a special trustees' meeting in hopes the board would defeat the resolution.

Harlan, a Democrat whose term expires Jan. 1, said he voted for the measure because "The facts were varnished.

"We were led to believe that only in a dire emergency — when the university would be in a position of failing in its commitment to educate our youth—would this be exercised," he said.

"However, as interpreted by the faculty and the students, to which I agree, this is more or less a violation of due process and is unconscionable."

★ ★ ★

Harlan said the resolution "debases the sacred values for which universities must fight." He noted Hannah's earlier support of the measure and urged the retirement of the president, who will be 66 next week.

Higher Signs Sought for Service Stations

AVON TOWNSHIP — A recommendation by the planning commission to allow service station signs in freeway districts to be erected as high as 26 feet will be made to the Township Board.

The planning commission last night acted on a request of the zoning board of appeals. The limit remains 20 feet in other zoning districts.

★ ★ ★

A request to allow construction of 788 apartment units on 78.8 acres at the southwest corner of Avon and Livernois roads was referred to planning consultants and engineers for recommendation.

Also referred for study was the application for a mobile home park on 34 acres in the triangle formed by M59, Auburn and Livernois.

TWO REQUESTS

Two requests for new businesses, a small industrial shop at Hamlin and Dequindre and a lawn mower and snow-removal equipment sales at South Boulevard and Livernois, were also referred to consultants and engineers for further information.

A public hearing on rezoning to allow a used car lot on Crooks Road south of Auburn was set for 7:30 p.m. Nov. 20.

★ ★ ★

The commission acted to deny site plans presented for a Clark Oil Co. gas station at Auburn and M59 interchange. The reason given was that there are three other service stations within a few hundred feet of the location.

Smaller Loan to Walled Lake Schools OK'd

WALLED LAKE — The board of education will borrow $492,000 in tax anticipation notes to meet operational expenses for the months of October and November.

Originally the board requested $700,000 but the State Municipal Finance Commission trimmed the figure by about $208,000.

★ ★ ★

The low bid out of three was awarded to the Michigan National Bank of Flint at 3.5 per cent interest.

In other recent business, the board heard an offer from the Wixom Church to sell their parsonage which adjoins the Wixom Elementary School. The request was made in the form of a letter to the board, which stated that the property was appraised at about $20,000. The board took no action.

OPENING SOON

Supt. George Garver reported that the Lyon Lake Elementary School is about 99 per cent complete and the starting date for classes is expected to be next week.

Garver said the Twin Sun School Special Education building will open at a later date because of delays in cabinet building.

A meeting has been scheduled for Oct. 9 to provide the board and nearby school districts with information concerning a proposed Area Vocational Skills Center.

The Walled Lake School's administration has secured for the board of education an option for 20-acres located on Beck, between W. Maple and Potter as a possible site for the center, which will be one of four such vocational centers in Oakland County.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

The proposed center will provide vocational training to seven school districts in southwest Oakland County including Novi, West Bloomfield, Farmington, Walled Lake, South Lyon, Clarenceville and Huron Valley.

Youth Chorus at MCC

AVON TOWNSHIP — "Sing Out America," a choral group composed of Oakland County youth, will perform at the Michigan Christian College annual Harvest Festival at 2 p.m. Saturday at the campus, 800 W. Avon.

Lake Orion School Bond Sale Okayed

The State Municipal Finance Commission has authorized Lake Orion Community School District to sell $165,000 in tax-anticipation bonds.

The money will finance general operations for the district until receipt of the December tax monies.

★ ★ ★

At the same time the commission authorized the city of Farmington to issue $72,000 in general obligation and special assessment bonds for street improvements.

Township Rezonings Urged

The County Board of Supervisors Coordinating, Zoning and Planning Committee yesterday recommended approval of expanding Commerce Township's industrial area and reducing Springfield Township's residential-farm land.

The committee inspects all acts by community zoning commissions for conformity to area wide planning. Final decisions are made by local governing bodies, or in the case of litigation, by courts. The county committee issues only a recommendation.

For Commerce Township the stamp of approval was placed on a 140-acre site north of Maple and east of Benstien. Counting adjacent areas, a 280-acre site is now zoned for industrial use.

In Springfield Township three pieces of land were approved for rezoning from agricultural - residential to residential. In Springfield and some other townships, the former zoning calls for 10-acre homesites. This allows a family to have a horse, other animals, and-or a small farm.

APPROVED FOR REZONING

Approved for rezoning were 12 acres on Andersonville north of Crosby Lake Road, 19-acres at Farley and Foster and 40 acres at Clark Lake and Hogback Lake roads.

In Avon Township, two large parcels, totaling 119 acres, were approved to be changed from residential and commercial use to trailer park use. A company representative said about 1,200 mobile homes could be placed on the land. An objection from the school district was reported on the basis of the low tax base associated with this type of development.

Further evidence of burgeoning growth in Avon Township was revealed by a request to rezone to allow a 350-unit apartment complex to be built on Tienken, east of Livernois and just north of the Rochester City limits. It was recommended for approval as was a 4-acre site on Rochester Road and M59 slated for a community business center.

In Independence Township, rezoning to allow a cabinet shop to be constructed on an 8-acre site north of Maybee and east of Sashabaw, was approved.

NEGATIVE RECOMMENDATIONS

A negative recommendation was attached to two rezoning requests. In White Lake Township, A developer seeks to rezone a 21-acre parcel at the northeast corner of Union and Elizabeth Lake roads to allow a 170-unit apartment complex.

Denial was recommended on the basis of possible pollution surrounding such a high-density development where no sewer or water facilities are available.

Also getting a negative nod was a request to rezone a lot on the southwest corner of the same intersection to provide for a gas station. It was pointed out the corner already has two gas stations, one closed.

Crime Start Is Topic

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP — Dennis McDonald, probation officer for the area, will discuss "The Beginnings of Crime" at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Pine Knob PTA meeting.

Refreshments will be served following this first regular meeting of the school year.

Hearings Nov. 6 on Orion Zoning

ORION TOWNSHIP — Two public hearings regarding rezoning of some 75 acres for industry and another 1.5 acres for a dental clinic have been scheduled for 8 p.m. Nov. 6 by the Planning Commission which met last night.

★ ★ ★

The industrial zoning is sought by Herbert Jacob, Gerald Fons and Robert Fannon on land between Bald Mountain and Lapeer Road in the southeast corner of the township.

Petitioners say that because of physical condition and surrounding uses the present residential zoning is unfit.

★ ★ ★

The dental clinic is proposed in the triangular section at Kern and Rochester - Orion roads. Mrs. Finley Kennedy of Lake Orion represented the Detroit owners at last night's commission meeting. The land is currently zoned residential.

DECISION DUE NOV. 6

A decision will be rendered Nov. 6 on a request for rezoning to permit construction of a furniture store on the east side of Baldwin south of Judah Road. A public hearing last night drew no comment.

★ ★ ★

The commission last night named Payne Downey, vice chairman and Dr. Clarence Will secretary. It was resigned president Richard Beer's last meeting. He turned the gavel over to Harold Wright who was elected the new chairman last month.

PTA Confabs Slated in Huron Valley District

Parent-teacher conferences have been scheduled at Muir Junior High School in the Huron Valley School District for Oct. 17 and 18.

Since the school recently changed from a six-week to a ten-week marking period, teachers at Muir are preparing to meet with parents to discuss their children's achievement prior to the sending of report cards.

Students will be evaluated on such things as knowledge of facts, oral and written expression and utilization of available learning materials.

Walled Lake PTA Opens Year Monday

WALLED LAKE — The opening session of the Walled Lake Elementary School PTA will be Monday at 7:30 p.m. In the multipurpose room of the school.

Following the meeting parents and friends will have the opportunity to meet the teachers and visit the classrooms. Children are welcome at this first event of the school year.

More Tax Issues Face Residents of Troy District

TROY — Two more tax issues appear to be facing residents of the Troy School District even as the district is wracked by a State Department of Treasury report alleging mismanagement of funds.

In a financial statement for the period ended June 30, Robert W. Dolmage, secretary of the board, notes that a citizens committee has been studying school building needs since January and that the board has hired an architect and hopes to present a proposal to the voters soon.

Dolmage also sees, as an immediate consideration, renewal of 8 mills for operation which will be collected for the last time in December.

The report notes that the 1967-68 school year was one of cutbacks and reduced services, following three millage defeats during the year. Finally in June a request for 4 mills for two years was approved by voters.

'RULINGS AWAITED'

The annual financial report also mentions the state report requested by treasurer Harold Janes and later confirmed by the rest of the board and admits that "Some rulings from the Attorney General's office and the Department of Education are awaited urgently to help settle the questions that have been raised."

A growing deficit is pointed out — $374,894 in the general operating fund cash basis as of July 1, 1967, increased to $684,498 by June 30, 1968. On a semi-accrual basis the deficit reportedly went from $200,067 to $485,338.

The report concludes, "The long-range prospect for Troy Schools is good, with rising valuation-per-child for tax purposes. At least $224,000 of the general fund cash-basis deficit will be paid off by June of 1969. Until the rest of the deficit is retired, austerity budgets will have to remain in effect."

DPW Meeting Called

CLARKSTON—A special meeting with representatives of the Oakland County Department of Public Works has been called for 8 p.m. Monday by the Village Council.

The meeting will investigate sewers for the village.

New Huron Valley Superintendent

Spy Chaser to School Chief

By DIANNE DUROCHER

Theodore E. Hagadone has gone from chasing spies in back alleys to running a school system.

The tall, trim superintendent of the Huron Valley School District reflected on the days when he served with the Counter Intelligence Corps in the early 1950s.

THEODORE E. HAGADONE

"I chased spies all over the United States and the Far East," he said.

"I caught a few too," he quickly added, "There was this time in Korea. . ."

LOVES TRAVEL

Relaxing at his desk, Hagadone, 39, spoke of his love of travel and also about his two-year hitch with the State Department in Europe when he worked as an investigator from 1955 to 1957.

All of his enjoyable moments were not spent in traveling however. He taught school for 12 years, and at one time coached basketball and track.

★ ★ ★

Hagadone enjoys athletics and engages in seasonal sports such as hunting, skiing and fishing.

He found time for all of his favorite activities during leisure hours when he was superintendent of schools in Iron Mountain from 1965 to 1967.

MAIN CONCERN

In 1967, he earned his doctor of education degree from Michigan State University under a fellowship from the Mott Foundation in Flint. He was one of 24 people selected from all over the world to receive such a fellowship.

Hagadone was also a superintendent of schools for two years in Vanderbilt, Mich., and quips, "People in this community regard me as the 'new' superintendent. Actually I'm quite worn, but I suppose I'm new to them."

★ ★ ★

He said he believes that the district encompasses an excellent community and that administration officials are trying to provide a school system comparable to that of a large city — without the exhaust fumes.

"The schools belong to the community," Hagadone said "and its residents will be able to use them."

SPECIAL CLASSES EYED

He added that there will be special classes offered, from ceramics to modern math, as soon as there are people to fill them.

Hagadone feels very strongly about education and the administrative improvements that may be waiting to be made.

★ ★ ★

"Education is a business," he said, "a good education is necessary to enable children to grow up making decisions and to eventually become good citizens."

Regarding future plans for the district, Hagadone said he would like to propose to the board at some future date the possibility of a school park concept that would contain a high school from grades 9-12; a middle school, from grades 5-8 and a primary school.

COMMON FACILITIES

He explained that the school park would contain common facilities for all three schools, but the schools and the students would be separate.

Hagadone likes to know "what's happening" and feels the best way to find out is to get out and talk to people — so he does.

★ ★ ★

He has eaten lunch with children in every school in the district and takes every available opportunity to speak with faculty members.

Hagadone assumed his $20,000-a-year post in August, signing a three-year contract. He and his wife, Mary Andrea, and their three children have moved into a home at 1532 Pruit, Highland Township, with plans to stay put for awhile.

★ ★ ★

It's not really so easy to go from spy chaser to school chief.

Into Bloomfield Twp.

Lewis Furniture to Move

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — Lewis Furniture, a Pontiac-based business since December 1923, will move into a brand-new home in March.

Ground-breaking ceremonies for a new store were to be held this morning at the corner of Woodward and Roswell, south of Square Lake Road.

★ ★ ★

The firm started in business in its present location, 62 S. Saginaw, sharing the building with seven other tenants, according to Leonard T. Lewis, owner and son of one of the original owners. The business grew and gradually took over the entire building.

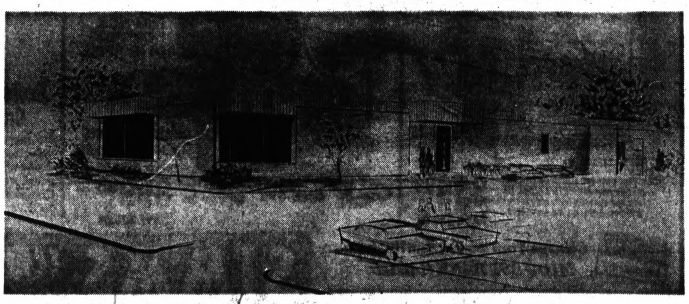

The Pontiac store will remain open for business until the opening of the new one, planned for March 1. The old building lies in the path of one of Pontiac's Urban Renewal projects.

★ ★ ★

Lewis said the new structure will be of contemporary design with all-brick construction. It will be a 2-story building, 75 by 155 feet, at an estimated cost of $300,000.

★ ★ ★

"The new store will be more exclusive, carrying only top quality residential and business furniture, and will have a fine decorating staff," Lewis said.

Area Will Miss Retiring Naturalist

The bird man of Cranbrook has retired.

Dr. WALTER P. NICKELL was the naturalist at Cranbrook Institute of Science for 33 years before retiring Monday.

DR. NICKELL

Born in Grand Rivers, Ky., Dr. NICKELL early began to develop his interest in nature and learned to imitate bird calls.

★ ★ ★

He received his B.A. degree from Kentucky Wesleyan College in 2½ years and later did three years of graduate work at Vanderbilt University and received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Central Michigan University.

Dr. NICKELL has banded more than 160,000 birds since he began in 1932. For years he made regular treks to northwest Canada and British Columbia. He has also made six expeditions to Mexico and British Honduras and four to the Lower Delta of the Mississippi.

He has banded birds in every state but Nevada, Alaska and Hawaii.

His records include notes on some 50,000 nests. Close to 160 publications bear his name.

★ ★ ★

Dr. NICKELL'S contributions to Cranbrook Institute of Science have been many, not the least of which is an original exhibit, "Migration of Birds," currently on display there.

Cranbrook and the entire area will miss the expert guidance of this naturalist. We wish him well in his retirement.

Autumn Is Prelude to Winter Troublemaker

Autumn is wending its way through Oakland County, leaving a patch of yellow here, a slash of red there. The horse chestnuts are falling and our squirrel population has sprung into a sudden flurry of activity that usually signals the coming of winter.

It is the most beautiful season of the year.

★ ★ ★

But autumn also serves as a prelude to a cold-weather troublemaker —the well-known flu bug. There's just one problem that's worrying some health authorities. This year the flu bug might not be so well-known.

According to the Public Health Service Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices, there's more reason than usual to protect yourself against influenza this winter.

★ ★ ★

Earlier this year the committee had predicted light incidence of flu this season, partly as a result of natural immunity arising from a rather widespread outbreak in 1967-68. But a new strain of the A2 flu virus, which caused a worldwide epidemic in 1957, showed up in Hong Kong recently, leaving about 25 dead.

The 1957 sweep of the virus started in Hong Kong.

Unfortunately, the currently available flu vaccine is of only limited effectiveness against the new strain, and a new vaccine won't be ready until early in December.

★ ★ ★

In any case, if you are going to take flu shots at all, the committee recommends you should begin them as soon as practicable and have them completed by early December. The committee, it would seem, feels a little immunization is better than none at all.

Conditions in Cuba Object Lesson for Dissenters

Before dissenters go too far in dwelling on U.S. shortcomings, they might take a look at Cuba, our nearest neighbor where government runs the show.

★ ★ ★

The Cuban government has moved to tighten its controls over the labor force. The eight-hour day "has become a ridiculous thing." Instead, a "work day of conscience," the length of which is to be "dictated by revolutionary duty," is being pushed in official propaganda in an effort to spur lagging production.

The emphasis is all on strengthening labor discipline. Officials are urged to increase vigilance over the workers. This is the end result of a revolution in a country where all businesses and property have been seized by a controlling clique, with no higher goal than to take what it wants.

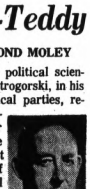

★ ★ ★

This kind of revolution leads nowhere but to barbarism and oppression.

Draft-Teddy Move Rooted in Cynicism

BY RAYMOND MOLEY

The famous political scientist, Moisei Ostrogorski, in his book on political parties, records his wonderment after witnessing the madness that attends one of our political conventions, that out of this have come not always great presidents, but honorable presidents.

MOLEY

And in explaining what seemed to him a miracle, he quoted the saying: "God takes care of drunkards, little children and the United States of America."

★ ★ ★

But the destiny that determined the results in Chicago as at Miami Beach was manmade.

A majority of delegates who come from the grass roots of America were determined to return to their place of origin and live in measurable peace with their political neighbors.

NOT AFFECTED

Their sense of logic was not affected by the bizarre conditions which surrounded them in Chicago. They kept their heads and their promises despite polls and propoganda.

One must probe deeply to discover the logical sequence that lay beneath all of the confusion.

★ ★ ★

It was the logical pattern that emerged after the President's announcement on March 31 that determined the 1,761 votes that were cast for Hubert Humphrey.

But on Tuesday night and Wednesday morning of the convention, I found my own somewhat worn faith in our political system shaken by the stark cynicism of some of the leaders in Chicago. For some of these leaders, especially such as Jesse Unruh and Michael DeSalle, had apparently decided to disregard all commitments and stampede the convention into nominating Edward Kennedy.

UTTER CONTEMPT

In this, these callous men revealed to all — who had the perception to see — their utter contempt for the electorate which they are supposed to instruct and lead. They were not the victims of the emotions which they sought to arise, for they are cold, calculating operators.

They were trying to use a decent young man, whose qualifications for president are wholly untried, for their own profit and power. For his strength as a candidate would not be what he possesses in his own right. It would be that his name and his blood relationship are symbols related to two great tragedies.

Moreover, with the views he expressed in the last weeks, he would represent the repudiation of the national policies in the war in Vietnam which have been established by the President of the United States.

Moreover these leaders, who were attempting to draft Kennedy, would have shattered the unity — such as it is — of their party and Kennedy's party in a voyage on the tides of emotion that his candidacy would produce.

★ ★ ★

Fortunately, Kennedy saw more clearly than his would-be sponsors the nature of the draft movement and made the decision to stop it. Nothing so commended this young man as that decision.

Edward Kennedy will now be free to win his way by his own talents and through his own efforts.

Escape Artist?

David Lawrence Says:

Munich Carries a Big Lesson

WASHINGTON — Thirty years ago this week, something happened that began to change fatefully the course of the world.

LAWRENCE

While the majority of the American people may have read about it in the history books, only those living at the time could really feel the impact of the sensational events which started with the cry "peace in our time!" and ended with a world war less than a year later.

★ ★ ★

The countries of Europe — particularly Great Britain and France—had been watching with increased apprehension the aggressiveness of Adolph Hitler and the take-over of territory by the Nazis.

But the governments and peoples of Western Europe were unwilling to risk war, and "peace by negotiation" seemed a logical course.

Under the leadership of Neville Chamberlain, British prime minister, an agreement was signed at Munich on Sept. 30, 1938, which gave Nazi Germany possession of the Sudentenland — a strip of territory inside Czechoslovakia, bordering on Germany.

'LAST DEMAND'

Hitler pledged that this was his "last territorial demand," and Chamberlain proclaimed that the pact meant "peace in our time!"

The peace was, however, short-lived. Hitler soon seized the rest of Czechoslovakia. It became necessary for the Western powers to gird themselves for war.

★ ★ ★

On Sept. 1, 1939, Hitler attacked Poland, and France and Great Britain immediately declared war on Germany. World War II had begun.

Many people today have forgotten that the Soviet Union under Stalin in August 1939 made its own "peace by negotiation" with Hitler.

'NONAGGRESSION' PACT

A "nonaggression" pact was signed, and the Soviet Union later seized Polish territory on its borders.

In the Berlin-Moscow agreement, Hitler had given his pledge to refrain from hostilities against Russia, but within two years the Nazi armies launched an invasion of the Soviet Union.

★ ★ ★

Thus was the promise of "peace in our time" proved a myth. But the British government thought it was the sensible way to settle the dispute.

To this day defenders of the policy argue that the 11 months between Munich and the outbreak of war at least gave Britain and France a chance to build up their military strength.

If ever an incident proved without a doubt that a mere pledge by an unscrupulous enemy is meaningless, the demonstration came 30 years ago.

History could repeat itself, this time in Southeast Asia. Again a major war could ensue if military protection for smaller nations is not maintained by an alliance of countries dedicated to the principle of self-determination.

Bob Considine Says:

Wildcat to Lunar Module -- a Spectacular 25 Years

SEATTLE — "It boggles one's mind," concludes a note from a friend named Alex MacLean who is in the public relations end of the space program.

CONSIDINE

"The whole thing is overwhelming when I think that only 25 years ago I flew Grumman F4F Wildcats for the Marine Corps and we started the engine with either a crank or a shotgun cartridge.

★ ★ ★

It took 29½ turns on a cranking wheel in the cockpit to raise the landing gear. The gunsight was a sometimes-working-thing. To close the cockpit canopy you reached behind your head, grabbed two wires and tugged it shut manually. All this, to cruise at about 140 m.p.h."

Now Grumman is making the Lunar Module. It is the 30-feet-tall section of the 37-story Apollo rocket assembly that must perform perfectly or the multibillion-dollar project will become a colossal disaster.

VARIETY OF TASKS

By contrast to the Wildcat, the Lunar Module will be called upon to leave the earth at 25,000 miles an hour, find the moon (no easy task, by the way), break itself loose from the command module (the point of the rocket), descend to the lunar surface with two astronauts aboard, land so gently that the men and their sensitive gear will not be harmed, serve as a communications center so that the men can stay in contact with the moon-orbiting command module and the earth, then, when their work is finished, blast them off the moon's surface, find the orbiting command module, link up with it so that the men can get in it for the quarter-of-a-million-mile ride back to earth.

★ ★ ★

The LM's electronic system, most of it made by RCA, also boggles Alex, and dumbfounds me.

"Key to the moon landing is a throttle-controlled descent engine with a maximum thrust of 10,500 pounds, which permits the LM to back down in 'helicopter fashion," he memos.

THROTTLING AUTOMATIC

"Although the LM pilot may operate the throttle manually, the normal throttling job will be done automatically by the descent engine control assembly (DECA).

"DECA also sends commands to assorted electronic motors which rotate and vary the angle of the descent engine so that the thrust column is always lined up with the LM's center of gravity. (See?)

★ ★ ★

"Sixteen small reaction jets maintain LM's proper attitude, commanded by a solid state electronic brain. These are vital to a smooth landing and, later, for the job of docking with the command module for the trip back home. So, of course, is the rendezvous radar on board. Working with a transponder in the command module, the radar measures velocity, angle and range between the two spacecraft and simultaneously informs the LM astronauts."

Beats 29½ turns on a cranking wheel. (Right?)

News of Riots at Home Disturbs GI in Vietnam

I am in Vietnam and receive The Pontiac Press at my unit. I have read about the riots in the States and I am concerned because I live in the States and am here protecting them. People do not realize how bad it is here—especially the ones inciting riots. Do you think the average GI appreciates hearing that while he is here fighting, they are burning down his home town? When he comes home he expects to relax from the rockets and mortar. We get to live in some of the worst places on earth, making your slums look good.

★ ★ ★

As for getting along with your fellow man, it doesn't take much — just a little respect for each other. Color doesn't make any difference over here. As a Pontiac Press carrier I found that people are not hard to get along with.

★ ★ ★

Maybe after people hear our side they can get along long enough to help us get this war over. We all want to come home to a peaceful neighborhood, not one that has been burned down.

Answer Complaint on Hairdresser's Price

The lady who complained about the prices that hairdressers charge has been going to the wrong person. We go to a sweet, kind of old lady in Keego Harbor and she still charges $2.50 for a wash and set. How would you like to have customers come in late and still expect to be taken care of right away? Some who had an appointment one week come the following week and are positive the hairdresser made a mistake. Our hats off to the gals who listen to some not-so-interesting chatter and then listen to customer complaints.

Disagrees Changes Would Be Step Backward

I feel sorry for anyone who thinks establishing law and order, refusing to aid Communists with one hand and shooting them with the other, turning schools back to the states, and providing for our country first will set us back 100 years. Nixon and Humphrey are fast-talking on Wallace's ideas, just to get votes. If either is elected, things will not change much. It still won't be safe on the streets, we will still aid the Communists and dish out our taxes to countries that won't pay us what they owe. We are gradually being drawn under government rule. Something must be done.

'Don't Judge All Cyclists by Actions of Few'

Regarding the recent incident of alleged kidnap and rape associated with motorcycles, most cycle riders do not condone these acts. My wife and I have been riding cycles for years and have been closely acquainted with most clubs and riders. You do not have to perform an act of violence to belong to a club. Regarding the iron crosses we wear, this is our attire and they mean nothing. The crosses, along with black jackets and boots automatically classify us as hoodlums and scum. Because of this we are spit upon and run off the road.

★ ★ ★

Don't condemn us all or our clubs because of the isolated few. You can have rotten eggs even in a knitting club. Granted, a lot of cycle riders have long hair and beards, but so do many college kids and professors. Let's try to understand each other a little more and this could possibly lead to a very peaceful coexistence.

Discusses New Rules for University Police

I wonder what Chancellor Varner had in mind in setting up his new rules for the Oakland University police department. With the crime rate at an all-time high, I would think Mr. Varner would thank his lucky stars he has men to control the University. Take away the police weapons, uniforms and authority? Then why bother with a department at all? I say teach the "young adults" to respect the policeman (uniform and all) and quit trying to hide the fact that OU needs the department. Maybe Mr. Varner needs to hire baby sitters instead of policemen.

Question and Answer

Do they have widow pensions now? If so who can apply and where? If a person gets the pension along with Social Security, would Social Security be lowered?

INTERESTED

REPLY

If you mean a widow's pension under Social Security, you are entitled to it if your husband qualified for Social Security benefits. If you are receiving Social Security payments under your own benefits, you would take the higher of the two. Apply at the Social Security office at 21 S. Glendale. If you are referring to a welfare pension, you may qualify if you are 65 or over, disabled (or blind) or if you have dependent children living at home. You may apply at the Bureau of Social Aid, 1200 N. Telegraph Road.

Question and Answer

Please tell me how to keep the scale out of my teakettle, using hard well water.

HAZEL GALSTER
ORCHARD LAKE

REPLY

Try boiling it periodically with soda and water or with cream of tartar and water. This should keep a new teakettle relatively free of lime. However, Cooperative Extension Home Economist Rosemary Hawley tells us it probably won't help much with an older one that has a built-up scale.

HHH Returns to '60 Battleground as Hopes for '68 Rise

WELCH, W.Va. (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey returns today to the villages and craggy hills of West Virginia where he fought the late John F. Kennedy in the presidential primary eight years ago — and lost.

★ ★ ★

The Democratic presidential nominee make a marathon motorcade through 29 towns and cities carrying this message:

"In 1960 a cold-hearted Nixon Republican administration sat in Washington and cared nothing for West Virginia and did nothing for the people of Appalachia. . .

"Yes, John Kennedy and I came to West Virginia in 1960. We made promises and in the last eight Democratic years, we kept these promises."

When Humphrey was making those promises eight years ago he was campaigning along the narrow roads in a cold, beat-up bus.

★ ★ ★

Today the vice president flew from Charlotte, N.C., to Bluefield, W.Va., with a fleet of five prop planes for the 122-mile motorcade through such towns as Pineville, Slab Fork, Crab Orchard, Glen Jean, North Fork, Wolf Pen and Cow Shed.

It was in Cow Shed eight years ago where a lady handed John Kennedy a glass of beer. She gave the late Robert F. Kennedy a beer, also, last spring.

SENTIMENTAL GESTURE

Also scheduled to be riding along in another sentimental gesture is Jimmy Wolford, the country singer and guitar player who was the Humphrey traveling minstrel eight years ago.

Humphrey comes into West Virginia after an excursion into Dixie. Crowds in Knoxville, Tenn., Jacksonville, Fla., and Charlotte, N.C., obviously bouyed Humphrey and his staff.

★ ★ ★

"We've turned the corner," Humphrey said of his campaign.

A crowd estimated at 13,000 turned out in Charlotte Wednesday to hear an obviously pleased Humphrey contend that he had a better record for keeping law and order as mayor of Minneapolis a score of years ago than George C. Wallace, his third-party opponent, had as governor of Alabama.

'AFRAID TO DEBATE'

Humphrey also told the audience that Richard M. Nixon was afraid to debate him but that he would keep after his Republican opponent "like a hornet's nest" until Nixon agreed to debate the issues.

Humphrey said in a speech prepared for West Virginia audiences that he was pledging a "new day for the people of West Virginia—a new day for all Americans."

★ ★ ★

This new day, Humphrey continued, would include: a 50 per cent increase in Social Security benefits; an education for every child from age four through college, regardless of ability to pay; tax reform "to take the unfair pressure off" middle- and low-income families; a "decent job" for every man and woman able and willing to work; a United Nations peace force one day to replace American troops in Vietnam; and federal aid to help local police forces.

Humphrey noted that the final month of the presidential campaign was under way and "Right now I'm the underdog."

But, he said, the American people "are looking around and asking questions. They are getting tired of Mr. Nixon taking them for granted. They want answers to the issues in this campaign and they want Mr. Nixon to have the courage to face the American people on television and debate these issues."

Protecting Politicians Is Tough, Panel Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Secret Service says prominent politicians can't be guarded from every threat, but he explained how his men use computers and helicopters to provide what protection they can.

James J. Rowley told the President's violence commission that a computer keeps tabs, city-by-city, of people considered possible risks because of histories of mental illness or threats made to public figures.

★ ★ ★

Rowley said the Secret Service also backs up bodyguards, shielding men in their care with an outer perimeter of helicopters and police cars moving parallel to their route.

Rowley cited the Warren Commission's finding that "presidents can never be protected from every potential threat."

WARNING IGNORED

Rowley disclosed the Secret Service has asked presidential candidates not to ride in open parades or dive into the midst of crowds to shake hands—a warning that has been obviously ignored.

The Secret Service boss said he met with each candidate after the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, which prompted creation of the violence commission.

★ ★ ★

Rowley said he outlined to the candidates the hazards the Secret Service seeks to avoid. He listed plunging into crowds without leaving a protective strip of space around the candidate, riding in open motorcades over an announced route and changing schedules abruptly without advance security checks.

Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon kicked off his campaign this fall riding in an open campaign parade through downtown Chicago while Democratic nominee Hubert H. Humphrey began his by marching on foot in a New York parade.

★ ★ ★

The Secret Service director testified at a closed session of the panel, but the text of his opening statement was made public by the commission.

'VP Has Lead in Eight States'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Hubert H. Humphrey's camp said today private polls show him leading in eight states with 136 of the 270 electoral votes needed for election.

Humphrey's campaign manager, Lawrence F. O'Brien, said the polls show the Democrat leading both opponents in Connecticut, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Texas.

★ ★ ★

"The latest poll results show Hubert Humphrey to be very much alive and kicking," O'Brien said in a statement, apparently referring to Republican Richard M. Nixon's lead in most national polls.

Humphrey's best showing was a 50 per cent to 24 lead over Nixon in Massachusetts and 49 to 33 in Minnesota, O'Brien said. The worst was a 38-28 lead over Nixon in Connecticut.

WALLACE SUPPORT

The Humphrey camp polls showed third-party candidate George C. Wallace ranging from 26 per cent support in Texas to 7 per cent in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

O'Brien said the polls were taken by Oliver Quayle & Co. of New York, Joseph Napolitan Associates of Washington, Belden Associates of Texas and Midwest Research of Minnesota.

Protest on Fee Brings Action

WOODBURN, Ore. (AP) — George Brice, president of Senior Estates, Inc., protested as too high a bill of $5,625 for sewer hookup of an 86-unit mobile home park under development at Senior Estates.

Woodburn officials found an ordinance they had overlooked in first computing the charge and changed the hookup fee—to $6,450.

Teddy's Wife Campaigns for Sen. Bayh

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Joan Kennedy, wife of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, campaigned in five populous Indiana cities Wednesday for the re-election of a family friend, Sen. Birch Bayh.

Greeted by repeated applause and standing ovations in her flying tour, Mrs. Kennedy referred to "my dear friends Marvella and Birch Bayh" and reminded audiences Bayh pulled "my Ted" from a gasoline-soaked wrecked plane in 1964.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Bayh accompanied her throughout the trip.

"Ted said to tell you that only proved Bayh's physical courage but he has proved his moral courage in the Senate many times," Mrs. Kennedy said.

'SPECIAL THANKS'

She also told crowds she brought special thanks from the Kennedy family to those who voted for the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in the May 7 Indiana Democratic presidential primary.

LeMay Said to Be Wallace's Choice for Running Mate

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Retired Air Force Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, a tough-talking hawk on Vietnam who doesn't rule out using nuclear weapons, becomes George C. Wallace's vice presidential candidate today, informed sources say.

★ ★ ★

Men close to Wallace report that the famous flying general of World War II—so tough he was known as "Old Ironpants"—will join the third-party campaign at a morning news conference.

LeMay, a critic of U.S. military strategy and foreign policy, spent the night under Secret Service guard after flying here from Los Angeles and wouldn't talk to reporters about whether he will run. Neither would Wallace.

★ ★ ★

But Wallace did announce he would make public his choice at the news conference. And he said the candidate would be there.

ONCE RETICENT

LeMay, the heavy-jowled, 61-year-old former Air Force chief of staff who usually has a cigar gripped between his teeth, was once reticent about speaking in public. "If you talk all the time," he said, "you don't learn anything."

But lately, he has taken the offensive against U.S. policies in speeches and in print. He says the United States should destroy "all the works of man in North Vietnam" and that a Korea-like settlement is unthinkable.

★ ★ ★

"No matter how the politicians may hail such a truce as an American victory, it will be gained at such a costly price as to be pyrrhic," LeMay said in his recent book, "America is in Danger."

"The virus of communism will continue to spread throughout Southeast Asia because we failed to administer a sound and decisive defeat to its organized propagators," he said.

LOGIC QUESTIONED

He said nuclear weapons would probably not be needed but he isn't opposed to using them. "What is the logic in preferring to drop 20,000 tons of explosives from 1,000 aircraft . . .when roughly the same effect could be gained by one aircraft with a small nuclear weapon," he has said.

★ ★ ★

Wallace, who was a flight crewman on a B29 in World War II, also believes the United States can win a military victory in Vietnam.

★ ★ ★

Wallace told 200 hecklers at a political rally Wednesday night about his war service. As the group shouted choruses of "Sieg Heil," Wallace said:

"I was fighting the Nazis before you were ever born. In World War II we ran the Nazis out of the country and one of these days we're going to run all the Communists out of this country."

DROWNED OUT

The 8,000 cheering, stomping supporters in Pittsburgh's Civic Arena drowned out the hecklers.

"You're going to get me a million votes," Wallace told the hecklers. "You are the personification of what folks are tired of in this country."

★ ★ ★

The rally capped a day of campaigning through industrial centers of the Midwest, where organized labor is worried that it cannot hold the rank-and-file in the Democratic fold.

Wallace said in Ohio that he was going to name his vice presidential candidate, and in Pittsburgh he promised supporters he would have a "full-fledged platform" within a week.

WITH TWO AIDES

LeMay flew in by commercial airliner with two of Wallace's campaign aides. He was met at the airport by Secret Service agents, required by law to accompany presidential and vice presidential candidates.

LeMay, who flew so much as a commanding general during World War II that the Air Force finally told him to stop, waved the knot of reporters off and sped away in a limousine.

LeMay developed the heavy bombing techniques used against Germany and Japan. A military biographer called him "the architect of systematic destruction."

He also was the architect of the Berlin air lift of 1948-49 that turned into a major diplomatic defeat for the Soviet Union.

FOUGHT BITTERLY

In 1948 he was named head of the Strategic Air Command and built it from a handful of aging B29s into the world's most powerful bombing force. After he became Air Force chief of staff in 1961, he fought bitterly against Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's de-emphasis of bomber defense and SAC.

LeMay once said the guided missile would never replace the manned airplane for the simple reason that it "can't think."

LeMay personally led B17s into combat in Europe to prove that daylight bombing was practical.

LeMay was so tough that the favorite story among airmen under him goes like this: LeMay was supposed to have been smoking in a SAC plane when a junior officer pointed out that it was dangerous and the plane might explode. "It wouldn't dare," LeMay replied.

PLANS CHANGED

In New York City, Wallace supporters abandoned plans for a Shea Stadium rally next Wednesday and set Oct. 24 for one at 20,000-seat Madison Square Garden.

★ ★ ★

Parks Commissioner August Heckscher last week turned down use of the 56,000-seat stadium on grounds of having "absolute discretion" to ban political meetings there.

Wallace supporters went to court and a judge ruled Tuesday that the city must rent the stadium for the rally. The city announced it would appeal. Wallace supporters said this denied them time to prepare for the stadium rally.

Nixon Heads Into Deep South

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, preparing to invade the Southern stronghold of George C. Wallace, says the solution to America's problems "isn't quite as simple" as the third-party candidate implies.

The Republican presidential nominee, who seldom mentions Wallace by name, stages a major show in Atlanta, Ga., tonight in his drive for southern votes.

He goes on a television program to be shown in Wallace's own Alabama and 10 other states where third-party sentiment is said to be running strong.

While Nixon insists a direct campaign against Wallace would only enhance the third-party candidate's political stature, he did say, somewhat jokingly in Norfolk, Va., Wednesday night, that the former Alabama governor might run ahead of Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey.

A DEPARTURE

While only a quip, it was a departure from Nixon insistence that the race is between two men, the major party nominees.

When a mention of Humphrey's name brought a few cheers and some boos from a Norfolk crowd of about 5,000 people, Nixon remarked:

"No, wait. If he gets going he might come in second."

The 11 states on Nixon's television list tonight are Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Maryland.

His major thrust is to fend off Wallace in states where the third-party contender now is considered by southern politicians to be his chief rival, states such as North Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee.

HHH POLICY HIT

Nixon has campaigned in all three. Virginia was Wednesday's target. In Norfolk, the Republican tackled Humphrey by name, Wallace by implication.

"If you don't like Humphrey's policy today," Nixon said, "wait 'til tomorrow."

★ ★ ★

Nixon, in a Navy town, suggested that the Democrats have permitted a "submarine gap" to develop, giving the Soviet Union an advantage in that field of weaponry.

He said the next eight years will be the period of greatest danger of world war because of the threat of growing Soviet power and because the Communist Chinese will be developing an independent nuclear capability.

WALLACE'S VIEW

"I've heard one candidate suggest, 'Well, all you have to do is go out and get all these State Department bureaucrats and throw their briefcases into the Potomac,'" Nixon said.

That idea came from Wallace, although it originally was a reference to education officials, not diplomats.

★ ★ ★

"Let me say this," Nixon said, "It takes more than just being against what has happened to solve the problems of this country. It's a question of what you're for.

"The problem isn't quite as simple as throwing the diplomats' briefcases into the Potomac."

NOT THAT SIMPLE

"I wish it were simple," he said. "I wish I could just stand up here and say 'Well, if a man's for peace elect him president' . . . I know that everybody likes a simple solution, and believe me, I want to be elected."

But Nixon said he cannot offer easy solutions because there are none.

Romney to HHH: Clarify

LANSING (AP) —Republican Gov. George Romney Wednesday called on Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to state flatly whether his views on bombing North Vietnam differ from those of President Johnson.

★ ★ ★

"In the national interest it would be damaging at home and abroad to leave your position ambiguous or misunderstood," Romney said in a telegram to the Democratic presidential nominee.

★ ★ ★

Humphrey said at Salt Lake City a halt to the bombing would be "an acceptable risk for peace."

He added: "Before taking that action I would place key importance on evidence—direct or indirect, by deed or word — of Communist willingness to restore the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam."

★ ★ ★

Romney said Humphrey's Monday speech "has created the general impression that you favor an unconditional bombing halt," He asked: "Is this impression correct or is your position still the same as President Johnson's?"

CHICAGO COUNTERPART — Evelyn (40-22-33) Smith strolled down a Chicago street yesterday in an attempt to duplicate Francine (43-26-37) Gottfried's crowd-stopping tactics on New York's Wall Street. Evelyn said the fact Francine has received several moneymaking offers inspired her Chicago effort.

Wall Street to Topless?

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Francine Gottleib, the girl whose figure numbed staid Wall Street, can make $100,000 in a year as a topless go-go dancer — with or without pasties.

Public relations specialist Jimmy Tarantino yesterday sent a telegram to the IBM operator, who's been taped at 43-25-37, that he'd put that offer in writing.

★ ★ ★

He added his offer included a dancing coach "if you have not danced go-go."

Crowds of 10,000 and 20,000 lined up along Miss Gottleib's route to work at the Chemical Bank and Trust Co. in New York City last month, nearly sending Wall Street into a panic.

NO PROFIT SO FAR

The 21-year-old traffic stopper had complained last week "So far, everybody has gotten something from this except me."

But Tarantino's telegram assured her, "This is a firm offer of $100,000 in salaries for the next 12 months as a topless go-go dancer with pasties on. Your first week's work would be at Chez Joey, Miami Beach, which would open the first week of November . . . You will receive at this club $1,500 weekly for 12 weeks plus free transportation . . . and free rent," he said.

★ ★ ★

The telegram said her appearances in Las Vegas, San Francisco and New York the following nine months would bring her $2,250 per week.

Tarantino said yesterday he'd not heard from Miss Gottleib, "but I'm sure I will."

LITTLE MONEY OFFERED

She had said last week that little money was involved in several offers she'd received from talent agents and television shows as a result of her highly publicized strolls.

"I'm not doing anything for nothing," she said.

Catholic Schools OK Black History Plan

LANSING (AP) — Michigan Catholic school superintendents have approved a 15-point program aimed at incorporating Afro-American history in the curriculum of all subjects taught in the state's Roman Catholic schools.

At the same time, a committee appointed by the superintendents urged all Catholic schools to remove from their libraries any books that "reflect inaccurate stereotypes of black people."

★ ★ ★

The committee said any such books that remain on the shelves should be used as "examples of literature which usurps the dignity of black people."

The superintendents, who form a subcommittee of the Michigan Catholic Conference Education Department, said they hope the history incorporation program will be implemented fully by next fall.

Mrs. Jackie Warr, administrative assistant in the Lansing diocese education office and chairman of the Afro-American history committee, said a series of workshops would be conducted to provide "cultural enrichment, develop additional growth and present techniques for teaching an integrated curriculum."

Steps already implemented to begin the program include compilation of a complete set of bibliographies on black literature and history and receipt of copies of other educational institutions, Afro-American history unit plans.

★ ★ ★

The superintendents, who appointed the history committee last May, extended the life of the group for one year to develop curricula for teaching Mexican-American and American Indian history in the Catholic schools.

Austerity Improves Upper Volta Economy

OUAGADOUGOU, Upper Volta (AP) — A "rigorous politics of austerity," as stiff as that which precipitated the 1966 overthrow of President Maurice Yameogo, is pulling this West African state out of an economic abyss inch by inch.

The program includes higher taxes, a 20 per cent cut in government salaries and a reduction in the number of civil servants.

* * *

Similar measures taken by ousted President Yameogo set off four days of strikes in January 1966 and led to the bloodless army take-over by Col. Sangoule Lamizana.

"No public demonstrations today," says one civil servant. "We don't like the measures, but the army's in power now."

When the military government took over the country had a heavy debt, a large trade imbalance and a budget deficit. Lamizana, 52, is attempting to reverse the trend.

"Austerity is not an end in itself," he said.

"It is the result of circumstances imposed upon us."

This is a country about the size of Colorado, with mud hut villages and dirt roads. Some 95 per cent of the 4.8 million population are self-subsistent farmers. Wage earners make up approximately 1.2 per cent of the people-half of these in 1966 were civil servants.

The government supports free enterprise, but lack of natural resources limits private investment.

Other roadblocks include poor storage facilities, low buying power and a lack of skilled labor. Thousands of workers, skilled and otherwise, migrate to Upper Volta's more prosperous neighbors, Ghana and Ivory Coast.

The african wage scale here has not been revised since 1958. The guaranteed minimum wage for workers in the modern sector is 70 cents per day.

The country has been independent from France eight years, but French aid last year totaled 16.1 million — almost half of the 33.5 million national budget.

Lamizana has reduced the nation's trade deficit.

IMPORTS CUT

Imports were cut from $37.9 million in 1966 to $35.8 million in 1967. Exports inched upward from $16.2 to $17.7 million.

The government seeks to increase production of cash crips, cotton and peanuts, and have higher livestock exports.

Lamizana's state tour of Ghana last month was a step toward increasing trade between the two states — particularly in cattle. Agreements have been reached to expand roads linking the two countries.

U.S. economic involvement in Upper Volta is minimal. In 1967 this country imported some $868,000 in American goods, largely food surplus and material for Agency for International Development programs. Upper Voltan exports to the United States amounted to $7,200.

New Panel to Eye Hoffa Case

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A new federal grand jury will be chosen Thursday in the latest chapter of Teamsters union President James R. Hoffa's legal entanglements in Tennessee.

The special grand jury, announced a week ago by U.S. District Court Judge William E. Miller, is expected to go into session immediately—to investigate reports that witnesses against Hoffa in previous legal encounters have been offered bribes to change their testimony.

* * *

Hoffa, whose federal court battles in this state began in 1962, now is serving an eight-year sentence at the federal prison in Lewisburg, Pa. He was convicted in 1964 of jury tampering after a seven-week trial in Chattanooga.

It all began when Hoffa was tried before Judge Miller in 1962 on a charge of conspiracy to violate federal laws governing union and management interests. That trial, known as the Test Fleet case after a trucking firm in which Hoffa allegedly had an interest through his wife, ended in a mistrial after the jury reported it could not agree.

But it also resulted in the indictments for jury tampering against Hoffa and five others, and the trial was moved to Chattanooga on grounds that unfavorable publicity surrounding the original trial would prevent a fair trial in Nashville.

The investigation was ordered after alleged attempts to bribe witnesses to change their testimony came to light in a hearing here last month. That hearing was on a motion by Z. T. Osborn, a former Nashville lawyer for Hoffa, to have his own 3½-year sentence on jury tampering charges vacated.

* * *

During that hearing, Walter Sheridan, a former investigator for the Justice Department and now connected with National Broadcasting Co., testified he had been offered up to $1 million to change his testimony.

Sheridan also told of alleged efforts to get Edward Grady Partin, a Baton Rouge, La., Teamsters official, to change his story. Partin was the government's chief witness against Hoffa during the Chattanooga trial.

U.S. Dist. Atty. Gilbert Merrith declined to say who will be called before the grand jury, but recent news stories have made Sheridan and Partin made Sheridan and Partin prime candidates.

Others who have figured in the case include Robert Vick, now handling insurance for Nashville Teamsters Local 327. Vick, chief government witness at Osborn's jury-tampering trial—held also in 1964 but in Nashville—and has said efforts have been made to get him to change his story. The recent Osborn hearing produced testimony to this effect.

* * *

Recently, City Judge William Hawk Daniels of Baton Rouge, La., said he was offered $250,000 "if I would change my testimony." Daniels, assistant to Dist. Atty. Sagrent Pitcher of Baton Rouge when Partin testified in Chattanooga, said he and Partin had met with F. Lee Bailey, a Boston attorney, to discuss the Hoffa case.

Bailey said recently in Dallas he had been asked to see if he could free Hoffa, but he would not decide immediately whether to accept. Daniels did not say who made the $250,000 offer.

* * *

Osborn, serving his term at a penal institution in Montgomery, Ala., has served notice through his attorney that he will appeal dismissal of his motion to set the sentence aside. The motion was rejected by U. S. District Court Judge Marion Boyd of Memphis.

Sawdust in Future May Fill Sugar Bowls

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two Chemists have devised techniques with which to extract sugar from sawdust in impressive amounts and at small cost in labor and materials.

Nutritionally usable sugar, too — sugar which the body converts into glucose or blood sugar, the indispensable "fuel" that powers its every operation.

* * *

In short, real sugar. The synthetics now challenging cane and beet sugar are sweeteners only. Nutritionally they're blanks. But the technically triumphant chemists minimized sawdust's threat to cane and beets.

From each 100 grams of sawdust they used, they extracted more than 10 grams of sugar. Such yields "cannot be taken as a commercial possibility per se," said Fanny H. De Padilla and Fred H. Hoskins of Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge.

"However, sawdust is a by-product of virtually no value to the sawmill. Therefore, yields of this nature become more appealing."

What's more, sulfuric acid and the chemical activators or enzymes taken from the fungus, aspergillus, are not expensive. They're both used in getting the sugar out of the sawdust.

* * *

"When populations begin to outrun food supplies, present economic considerations may have to be revised," the chemists continued in their report to a technical organ of the American Chemical Society.

"Sugars from sawdust may become tremendously important in human nutrition in the future."

Chemistry long has known sugars are contained in the cells of all vegetative life, including trees. With the exception of cane, beets, corn, the sap of the maple tree, and fruits, particularly the grape, the sugars have been extremely difficult to extract in useful amounts.

Nudity Is New Facet of Drama

By United Press International

"The exposed body is no shock to young people."

Speaking is Theodore Hoffman, professor of theater at New York University. He should know — at least about drama students.

* * *

Hoffman once told a class: "Acting involves being uninhibited. It would help if students in acting classes were naked."

At the University of Wisconsin recently, a group of drama students staged a version of Peter Pan in which six coeds — portraying innocence — danced nude.

RULED OBSCENE

Dist. Atty. James Boll was given a command performance, and ruled the production obscene. The night Boll reviewed the play, four of the coeds dropped out because of possible prosecution.

"Today's community standards do not permit girls to dance nude before an audience',' Boll said. "To permit such conduct at the university would open the door to nude dancers throughout the community."

* * *

Tuesday night, despite the possible prosecution, Peter Pan went on for two more packed audiences of 500 persons.

"No one has the right to censor a work of art except the audience," said the play's producer, drama senior Stuart Gordon of Chicago.

NO ARRESTS

There were no arrests.

How far out are university theater groups going in their productions — not only in nudity? A United Press International survey shows undressed actors are only one facet of new means of expressing what "traditional" theater got across with mere words.

* * *

At Brandeis University this summer, the off-off-Broadway Cafe La Mama Troupe of Tom O'Horgan (producer of the on-Broadway show "Hair" — in which nude actors confront the audience) presented "Massachusetts Tryst."

In Tryst, a man and a woman faced the audience, stripped down to body stockings on which were affixed the organs of the opposite sex — and then took off the body stockings. Local critics panned the play and Walter Kerr was perplexed in the New York Times, but local authorities took no action.

PARADISE IN HAIL

At Yale on Sept. 27, police arrested 10 persons for indecent exposure and other charges after a nonstudent production of "Paradise Now" before 600 persons.

During the play, the cast — members of the "Living Theatre Acting Company of Europe" — stripped to bras, panties, bikinis and loincloths. The show's last scene saw "an anarchist" stand up on the stage and shout, "The streets belong to the people." The actors walked piggyback out of the theater — followed by 300 of the audience.

* * *

"The Beard" — a Michael McClure play larded with obscene words and culminating in the simulation of a sex act between the male and female leads — was presented Nov. 8-9, 1967, at California State College in Fullerton by a class in directing.

A furor followed in newspapers, the state legislature and among academicians.

New York state leads the nation in the production of ice cream, followed by Pennsylvania, with California in third place.

5 of 6 Orphaned Children Still Together

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Patricia Rogers is 13 and pretty and dreams of becoming a nurse. The dream doesn't seem so distant. Growing up comes early for the six orphaned Rogers' children.

In a two-week period two years ago, their parents were killed in an automobile accident and a fire destroyed their rural home.

* * *

Today, five of the Rogers remain together, just as they said they would.

Barbara, 17, married and moved away from the ranch-style home sympathetic craftsmen built on the ashes of the burned bungalow.

HEAD OF FAMILY

Richard, 20, is also married but stays on with his wife, Donna, as head of the family.

But Richard faces a draft call. He is seeking a deferment.

"I wouldn't want to be away from the kids that long," he said. He mentioned his 3-year-old sister, Susy. "In the two years I am away, she wouldn't even remember me when I got back."

* * *

But Susy, and Lisa, 6, Debby, 10, and Patricia are not counting on Richard's salary as a lathe operator. Their support comes from Social Security and the Veterans' Administration.

There is also the insurance left by Rogers, a factory foreman, and the $31,000 trust fund from contributions that will go to the children when they reach 21.

The contributions, which for a time came from all over the world, stopped six month ago.

EVERYONE COOPERATES

"It isn't too hard and it isn't too easy either," said Richard, a short and husky youth who married a girl he met while going to Horlick High School. "Everyone cooperates and, actually, there is no problem."

Richard gets up each morning at 5:45. He must be at his job by 7. Donna wakes him; then gets the children up for school. She prepares the meals and sees to it the children are properly dressed and that they get to the bus on time.

* * *

Although only married since March, she in effect has the duties of a mother of five. "I don't mind at all," she said. "As long as I've known Rick, it's been that way. It's always been that way."

There is little interference from neighbors, she said. "They ask us how we are," she said. "They don't come over and stick their nose into things."

"During all my life, I've been taking care of kids," Richard said. "In our other house, we only had three bedrooms and the baby always slept with me. Every baby that came along, they'd sleep with me.

"After the accident, it seemed to me we should stay together," he said. 'I know I wouldn't want it to be another way if I was younger."

* * *

Richard sees himself as a father and Donna as a mother. "That's what the kids think of her as being," he said. Now Donna's only 19 and Pat is 13 and old for her age. So there isn't that much difference. Still if Donna says anything, Pat would do it. It's the same with the others. They don't say, 'You're not our mother.' They go along."

"Sometimes I have my childish moments," he said. "But adults do too. My attitude in life is that I don't think everything is a ball and having fun."

MORE EDUCATION

"I'd like to have a good job. I don't want to have life made already at even 30. But I'd like to have more of an education if I get the chance.

AP Wirephoto

STAYING TOGETHER — Both parents were killed in an auto accident and their house burned to the ground two years ago, but the Rogers children have managed to stay together. Seated are (from left) Debbie, 10, Richard, 20, and his wife, Donna. Standing next to Donna is Lisa, 6. Kneeling in the rear is Patricia, 13, and 3-year-old Susan is on the tricycle.

Keep Setting New Trends

Bad Year for Nonconformists

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It is exceedingly difficult these days to become a rebel, a nonconformist or even a simple eccentric.

WEST

Try doing something outlandish to set yourself apart from the mainstream of society and chances are you'll wind up creating a new fad.

Look what happened to the beatniks. They started growing beards as their badge of rebellion. As a result, beards are now as commonplace as crabgrass.

All over the country, rich men, poor men, beggars, thieves, doctors, lawyers, merchants and chiefs are wearing beards. It's the orthodox thing to do.

HIPPIES ACCEPTABLE

The same type of fate befell the hippies. Long hair, love beads, oriental garments and the like currently are seen in the best of circles and are rapidly being adopted by the multitudes.

The Beatles, once the Pied Pipers of rebellious youth, are now the favorite troubadours of middle-aged suburbanites. The wild dances invented by alienated teen-agers have become jet-set standards.

* * *

And how can an antiwar protester feel the thrill of recalcitrance when his sentiments are reflected in the majority column of the Gallup Poll?

It is, as I was saying, a bad year for unconventionality. The iconoclasts are striving desperately to maintain an aura of radicalism, but they are barely ahead of the Philistines.

TRIED HARD

These thoughts began scurrying through my head Tuesday as Jerry Rubin, a "Yippie" leader, was having a run-in with police outside the door of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

* * *

Rubin tried hard to appear revolting. I'll give him credit for that.

He was shoeless and shirtless. He wore neck, wrist and ankle beads and face and body paint. He had an African hairdo upon which was perched a beret.

In short, he was setting a new fashion trend. I'll lay odds that within three months you'll see stockbrokers similarly costumed. At least after office hours.

Young revolutionaries must find this sort of thing terribly discouraging. Write a protest song on Monday morning and by Saturday evening it's being played on the Lawrence Welk show. With bubbles yet.

There is, however, still one way to flaunt convention, buck the tide and stand out from the crowd. You know what I'd do if I wanted to stamp myself as a nonconformist?

I'd start a write-in movement for Lyndon Johnson.

Summer Rise in Uninsured Drivers Cited

LANSING (AP)—The number of uninsured drivers on Michigan roads usually jumps in the summer, possibly because of young people buying old cars, says Secretary of State James Hare.

"Recent graduates from high school with fresh driver licenses and working gainfully for the first time are able to afford to buy cars," Hare says.

* * *

"Often, however, they have limited resources so they buy older cars," he said. "And, feeling that they are not worth much, they don't bother buying liability insurance."

Hare said that in the fiscal year which ended last June, the percentage of persons paying $35 into the motor vehicle accident claims fund was 5.92. In July, he added, the figure soared to 13.74 per cent.

WORD TO WISE

He estimated that nearly half a million autos are on Michigan's roads each day without insurance coverage. Hare urged the parents of young car owners:

"Make sure for their protection that the youngsters have liability insurance to protect against costly accidents. Even if they choose not to cover their own car, they should at least make sure that other persons are protected."

GM

Putting-you-firsts:

(A quick tour of some of the thoughtful new features the 1969 Chevrolets offer that other cars in Chevrolet's field don't.)

Headlight washers

You push the windshield washer knob and hold it, and what happens?

Your headlights come clean.

Fluid is diverted to two jet nozzles at each light lens. (Outer lights only on duals.)

The spray is strong. It removes up to 80% of accumulated dirt.

The feature is standard on 1969 Corvettes.

It comes with the hidden headlights available on Camaro, Caprice and Kingswood Estate Wagons.

It is available on all other models except Corvair.

Be the first on your block.

Heated glass

In a moment your rear window will self-defrost.

Because we've built onto it a network of tiny ceramic strips capable of heating the entire surface.

Fog and frost disappear quickly and quietly.

You just flick a switch.

The heated rear window is available on the 1969 Caprice Coupe and Impala Custom Coupe.

Pushbutton tire chains

This is ingenious, if we do say so ourselves.

You press a button on the instrument panel and the rear tires get a shot of "liquid tire chain."

You spin your wheels once, wait a moment, and you're off—with traction you wouldn't believe possible on slick ice, or packed snow.

A pressurized container sits up under each rear wheelhousing, and holds about 15 applications.

Which could get you through several winters in some parts of the country.

(Several weeks in others.)

Available on all 1969 big Chevrolets.

Steering wheel lock

When you own a car as desirable as the 1969 Chevrolet, you don't take chances.

When you leave it, you lock it.

Not just the doors.

You lock the ignition, steering wheel and transmission lever, too.

Our new lock on the steering column takes care of all that.

So even if somebody manages to break in and cross the wires, he'll have a hard time going anywhere.

Standard on all 1969 Chevrolets, Chevelles, Chevy Novas, Camaros and Corvettes.

Sorry, car thieves.

Power steering plus

The 1969 Caprice, Impala and Camaro are available with a new type of power steering.

Variable-ratio power steering.

What it does is give you faster steering with fewer turns of the wheel.

And with no increase in effort on your part.

(And without giving up that nice firm feel on straightaways.)

Variable-ratio power steering is particularly helpful in short, full turns.

And parking becomes unbelievably easy.

You'll see.

Walk-in wagons

The tailgate swings open like a door on most of our 1969 station wagons.

Which in itself is no big deal.

But wait, there's more.

We've built a concealed step into the rear bumper.

You simply step up, over, and in.

(The way we build our wagons, you can do it without bumping your head, and without acrobatics.)

Walk into a wagon soon at your Chevrolet dealer's.

'69 Impala Custom Coupe

Putting you first, keeps us first.

Boyle's Getting Mellow

Dearie, Do You Remember?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is a thought garage.

We park in it our ideas and recollections of the past. They are wonderful vehicles and take us on the most magic journeys. They do have only one gear—a reverse gear — that enables us to travel in only one direction: backward to vanished days.

BOYLE

* * *

But in a way isn't that a blessing? It can be greatly comforting. We all enjoy a return to the past, because we have survived the past, and can review in our thoughts those portions of it that please us and renew our strength to face present problems.

How awful it might be if, when we pushed a mental button, our thought garage delivered a vehicle that would take us only forward into the future. What terrible rides, what fearful journeys, we might take upon that one-way speedway No road signs to guide us, no telling where we'd end up.

TO BE TRUSTED

No, memory is more to be trusted than the crystal ball. It is better for our peace of mind. And the thought garage of your own memory is pretty crowded if you can look back and remember when—

You thought that if you picked up a toad you were sure to break out all over with warts.

* * *

All a woman needed to do to win a reputation as a bohemian sophisticate was to smoke her cigarettes in a long silver and ebony holder.

If a boy's mother wouldn't let him get a crew haircut he'd sulk for days and threaten to run away from home.

ZOOT SUITS

Zoot suits were in fashion with pants so flappy that a young fellow had to take two steps in them before the pants began to move.

At Christmas, you could make a kid delirious with joy by giving him a big dollar pocket watch, which he promptly tied to a belt loop with a string.

Railroad men and coal miners might go on strike, but teachers never did.

You could buy a decent lunch for only a little more than you now have to pay in sales taxes on one in some U.S. cities today.

A SMART ALECK

Most kids in the old neighborhood swimming pool swam "dog paddle" style, but there was always one smart aleck who showed off by using the new-fangled Australian crawl stroke.

A business executive rarely saw his secretary's kneecap, and she generally wore a rubber-tipped eraser thrust through her bun of long hair.

* * *

Fish was especially prized as a brain food, and few dared drink milk with it for fear that the combination would poison them.

* * *

In rural areas the children would assemble outside the home of newlyweds on their honeymoon night and "shivaree" them—beating on tin pans and making other loud noises until the bridegroom came to the window and threw down some coins to break up the mock serenade.

Ailing old people, when they felt the miseries, usually first consulted the druggist on what patent medicine to take, as then they wouldn't have to pay $1.50 or $2 to the doctor. Quite a few survived.

It's Posse vs. the Bad Guys, '68 Style

BOSTON (NEA) — A sheriff is using one of the oldest tricks of his profession to help keep the bad guys from taking over his territory.

He's rounding up a posse.

John W. Sears, sheriff of Suffolk County, is pinning badges on scores of private citizens — athletes, attorneys, even radio disc jokeys — in what is a considerably old "new approach" toward cutting the area's crime line.

★ ★ ★

Here's the idea:

Posse members (deputies, actually) are volunteers from inside the country's murkiest trouble spots. They are well known in their neighborhoods and active in community affairs. They are young (25-40) and socially flexible.

GO OWN WAY

They receive little formal training, no uniforms and no vehicles. They do not carry guns, nightsticks or any other form of self-protection. They have no assigned beats, no set hours, no mandated responsibilities.

Legally, they are fully authorized peace officers; but they go their own way and are totally unencumbered by traditional police propriety.

★ ★ ★

Some members pal around the "pot pads" of the hippies. Others officiate softball games in rundown playgrounds. Others frequent hangover hangouts or chaperone teen-age get-togethers.

Mosly the deputies try to be as unlike policemen as possible. They keep their ears open and their tempers shut. They do not prowl, rattle doorknobs or check alleyways.

UNPAID, UNARMED

In sum, members of the posse are unpaid, unarmed and unconventional. However, Sheriff Sears urgently insists that they are not unqualified:

"Each deputy is selected because he understands the problems in his particular neighborhood. He's part of the landscape. He's there. It's an enormous benefit in establishing relationships between the law and the people."

Neighborhood understanding is undoubtedly the posse's strongest plus. With it, deputies are capable of acting as an early warning system. They say under normal conditions they can predict most trouble before it starts.

Recently, as an example, deputies picked up rumblings of worry in the Negro section of Boston called Roxbury. It came just as the city scheduled a late night rock 'n' roll performance for youngsters.

WARNING IGNORED

The deputies urged the performance be changed. They explained that some militants were looking for trouble, that performance facilities would be overly crowded, that the scheduled time was much too late in the evening.

Unfortunately, the city ignored the posse's warning. The show went on. As predicted, it turned into a howling, brawling, bottle-tossing melee.

★ ★ ★

Sheriff's deputies regret that the city ignored their warning, but they aren't surprised. Explains posse spokesman, 32-year-old David Roundtree:

"We don't have much dialogue with the city, especially the Boston police."

LACK IF DIALOGUE

The lack of dialogue is easily explained. For years the sheriff's office had very little or nothing to do with law enforcement. As in most Eastern metropolitan counties, the deputies here were charged with nothing more than process serving and the administration of the county jail.

The posse, obviously, changes this. And police cry "infringement."

★ ★ ★

On at least one occasion, the friction between the two forces has turned to hostility. A cop pulled a gun on a deputy. Neither man was hurt, but the incident served to crowbar the antagonists even farther apart.

"We just don't think the deputies are worthwhile," says one police officer. "It's like they're playing a game, cops and robbers. What's their purpose? What can they do? Who needs them anyway?"

Such criticism, naturally, is disputed by members of the sheriff's posse. They maintain they are hardly "playing" at anything.

Deputy Roundtree, for one, says he's on the beat every night. After his regular work (with a poverty agency) he gulps down a meal and begins a tour of duty that normally lasts until two or three in the morning.

★ ★ ★

What's his purpose?

"I don't try to act tough or anything. I don't need to. I'm out here to prevent that kind of thing. My job is to stop trouble from happening."

What can he do?

WHO NEEDS HIM?

"I grew up in this neighborhood. I know every crack in the pavement. I don't think many things happen here that I don't get wind of before."

Who needs him?

"People come to me because they know me and trust me. They'll come to me, many times before they'll go to the regular cop on the beat."

Neither Roundtree, Sheriff Sears nor others of the Suffolk County posse believe they are in any way a substitute for the regular police force. Rather, they feel they are a worthwhile and necessary supplement.

They want to be a new kind of law enforcement symbol. No guns, no uniforms, no brutality. They hope to precede crime, not follow it; they hope to negotiate, not fight; they hope to make friends, not arrests.

And what about the bad guys?

"Maybe," grins one deputy, "we can kill them with kindness."

Traveling Court Makes Eskimo Adoptions Formal

CORAL HARBOR, N. W. T. (AP) — A traveling court is formalizing the adoptions practiced by Eskimo families in Canada's Northwest Territories.

Eskimo custom, developed in small, closely knit communities, requires neither signed documents nor social workers to ratify an adoption. If both sets of parents agree, the baby is given to its new family without ceremony, as soon as possible after birth.

★ ★ ★

A 1961 court decision established such adoptions as valid. But a court order comes in handy for social insurance numbers or the mothers' allowance paid by the government.

Justice William Morrow's improvised courtrooms are usually in a school or recreation hall.

INTERPRETER USED

Through an interpreter, the judge makes sure both sets of parents are satisfied with the adoption, and has each sign a consent form. Often, as a woman leans forward to sign, a small face peers over her shoulder to see what she's doing.

In her voluminous hood, a child will nestle from infancy until the age of 2 — or, as one girl explained, "until you have another baby." If the other baby comes too soon, someone is likely to adopt him.

★ ★ ★

Generations of a harsh nomadic life have taught the Eskimo to think that a child properly belongs to whatever parents can give him the best chance to survive.

Reasons frequently given for adoptions are that the child's natural parents had other children too near his age, that he was one of twins or simply that the adopting parents especially wanted him and asked for him before he was born.

ADOPTED BY KIN

"The other people didn't have children," one couple told the court. "We couldn't say no to them; they are relatives."

★ ★ ★

"The Eskimo people have taught us that the welfare of the child is the first and foremost consideration," says anthropologist R. G. Williamson, a member of the Northwest Territorial Council.

"To the Eskimo, love means compassion, a larger commitment to the child than just emotion.

"If you can't take care of a child, you can't 'love' it."

OPENING COURT

Justice Morrow opened one session of court this way:

"Ladies and gentlemen of Coral Harbor, I am glad to be here.

★ ★ ★

"I understand there are quite a few adoptions you want me to fix up in the law.

"We will go ahead with those, even though the husbands are out hunting — we will go as far as we can. And if the husbands are here in the evening, we will be here again and we will see the husbands.

QUESTIONS WELCOME

"If you have other questions, don't be bashful, come and ask me while you are here."

He asked one adopting father why he wanted the child.

★ ★ ★

"He said he has one child but it's grown up; he wanted another," the interpreter replied.

"Everybody happy that that's the way it stays?" the judge asked.

And everybody shook hands.

Czech Invasion 1st War Move for E. German Troops

BERLIN (AP) — The first German soldiers since World War II to move to battle stations on a war footing were members of Communist East Germany's Volksarmee—People's army.

Their part in the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia placed the Communist party of Walter Ulbricht in an ambivalent position, having to explain to the troops the necessity for invading a "brother Socialist state," as well as interpreting anew Article 8 of the East German constitution. This states East Germany "will never undertake a war of conquest or employ its armed forces against the freedom of another people."

* * *

It is not clear how many East German soldiers actually set foot in neighboring Czechoslovakia, but the number probably was not large.

Qualified Western officers consider the Volksarmee competent, well-equipped, and benefitting from a traditional German love for soldiering. It has about 186,000 men, including 31,500 air force and antiaircraft soldiers and 19,000 navy men.

There is a trained reserve of some 650,000. At age 18 every youth becomes eligible for 18 months of drafted service.

The Volksarmee is fully integrated within the Soviet command structure, a general Warsaw Pact characteristic that the Czechoslovaks had protested in their efforts to take a more independent position.

The Red army inside East Germany encompasses some 20 to 22 combat divisions, plus air force and other troop contingents, an over-all Russian strength that allied intelligence sources put as high as 350,000 men.

Weapons and most other military supplies for the Volksarmee originate with the Soviets, although the East Germans are said to have begun expanded manufacture of small arms and light vehicles on Red army models.

TOP OF ICEBERG

For the 17 million people in East Germany, the Volksarmee is but the visible top of a military and paramilitary iceberg. West German figures state the establishment also includes:

Volkspolizei, the green-clad people's police, up to 80,000, including transport police; special or secret police, up to 5,000; armed party "battle groups" organized on the factory level, 320,000; premilitary sports and technical groups for youth, 450,000.

* * *

The group's commander, Maj. Gen. Guenther Teller, says predraft youngsters should be so schooled that they recognize the necessity of military service as part of the class struggle. Their moral, physical and mental capacities should be so concentrated, Teller says, that when a youth enters the military, he already has accomplished basic military skills.

The youth group includes boys and girls aged 16-18. Within their premilitary training, they are offered subjects that range from how to drive a car to parachute jumping.

COMPLICATED ARMS

The Volksarmee, at the top of the military structure, has complicated and basically advanced weapons and delivery systems. The small navy has PT boats of the missile-firing type that sank the Israeli destroyer Eilat off Egypt. One allied source says the East German air force flies MIG21 fighters and helicopters.

* * *

In East Berlin a Foreign Ministry spokesman told this writer that there now are no World War II officers in the Volksarmee. A West Berlin source says that even at the beginning there were very few. This means that the Volksarmee has been built from scratch, with few senior officers having combat experience.

Contact with young officer cadets shows them to be bright, soldierly and apparently dedicated to at least the profession of bearing arms. The young officers who command the honor guard companies that parade weekly up Unter den Linden boulevard give the appearance of feeling every inch the soldier with their swords drawn, silver belt buckles and high black boots flashing.

* * *

Despite this external elan, there are open questions.

HOW RELIABLE

How reliable would the Volksarmee be if it came up against West German units manned by its blood cousins?

Special border guard brigades seek to prevent refugee escape to the West. They patrol from the Berlin Wall to the beaches of the Baltic. There is a continued flow of defections from the brigades, despite rigorous countermeasures. More than 300 uniformed guards have fled to West Berlin alone.

* * *

These defectors say they got constant cold shoulders from citizens who recognized them off-duty.

Yet other Volksarmee members in uniform appear well accepted in crowded bars from Dresen to Rostock.

PILOTS STAY PUT

There is no record of any East German pilot defecting to the West, although there must be opportunities.

* * *

On the Red army model, the Volksarmee has a cadre of political officers. Indoctrination rolls over the troops in waves, depending on external events, border guard defectors report.

* * *

One ex-Volksarmee sergeant described his former comrades as pretty much like soldiers anywhere: trying to get out of extra duty and, if they are draftees, hoping to pass their 18 months without getting involved in anything to hurt later careers.

* * *

The sergeant and his platoon liked to listen to the U.S. Armed Forces Network in West Berlin at night. They used transistor radios, which were forbidden. When a soldier got caught, the political officer launched an ideological investigation to find out what had gone wrong.

"Nothing had gone wrong," the sergeant said. "We listened to AFN because they had more music and less talk than other stations."

No Cures for Mounting Traffic

Autos Inundate Europe's Cities

LONDON (AP) — In Madrid, the growing traffic snarl has just about wiped out the traditional siesta. It's too difficult getting home for lunch.

In Copenhagen, they have turned the colorful old vegetable market into a big parking lot. Even the popular Tivoli Gardens is used for parking in the winter.

* * *

Rome has banned all parking downtown 7-10 a.m. and 2-5 p.m. Some streets, including the lovely Piazza Novona, have been barred to all motor traffic.

In Vienna a man can walk the 2½ miles from the Western Railway Station to St. Stephen's Cathedral in just six minutes more than it takes by streetcar and bus.

DIFFERENT LEVELS

London planners are talking about putting pedestrians and motorists on different levels in some busy streets and even banning conventional motorists from the center of the city.

Even the canals of Venice are clogged with gondolas, ferries and barges.

Most of Europe's large cities are fighting a mounting tide of automobiles, and the automobiles are winning.

New parking arrangements above and below ground, one-way streets, traffic-free streets, tunnels, cloverleafs and elaborate ring roads are palliatives, not cures. The automobiles keep coming.

PARKING LIMITED

There are 550,000 parking places in Paris for the 1.9 million cars registered in the area. In a blue zone, parking is limited to 90 minutes. In a green zone, trucks over 3½ tons may not park after 10 a.m.

* * *

Lots are being built on the edge of the city in an effort to dissuade motorists from driving downtown. More and more underground parking garages are being built, with one for 3,000 cars on the Avenue Foch.

* * *

Efforts have been made to improve Paris bus and subway service, but the underground Metro has grown only 12 miles in 30 years. Each year 400 new buses go into service.

The number of motor vehicles in the London region is put at 3.5 million, and this figure is expected to double in 20 years. With streets largely laid for the Victorian period, this adds up to traffic chaos.

One traffic expert calculates that for the 14 million registered vehicles in Britain now, there are only 11.8 yards of major or secondary roadway in the country per vehicle.

Madrid has 684,000 registered motor vehicles compared with 65,500 in 1940.

* * *

Italy had 280,000 automobiles 20 years ago. Now there are 8.3 million. Italian cities, with their narrow streets and architectural treasures, do not lend themselves easily to modern traffic.

The 9.6 million Belgians have 1.48 million private cars. They park them even in the broad square of Brussels' main tourist attraction, the beautiful 17th century Grand Place with its ancient Flemish buildings.

Allied bombers provided plenty of parking lots for West Berlin, and parking is not a serious problem.

PARKING PARADISE

Tourists find Warsaw a parking paradise with space available even on the busiest streets. There are about 46,000 cars for a population of 1.35 million.

Moscow also has no parking problems. Four times the size of Vienna, the Russian capital has only 80,000 private cars.

State's Limestone Has Many Uses

GULLIVER (AP) — The paper on which you're reading this and the glasses through which you may be peering at it owe their existence to a stone.

That's right — a rock. The kind that abounds on the Lake Michigan shores of Upper Michigan — limestone.

★ ★ ★

Hundreds of men and thousands of pounds of explosives are utilized in quarrying it, to be broken up and processed in giant mills for whatever use it is to be put.

Besides being used in the production of glass and certain types of paper, limestone is an essential ingredient in the production of iron, steel and cement. And, of course, it is where lime comes from.

OTHER USES

Additionally, it is required in tanning of leather, refining of salting and sugar and smelting of copper.

It also is used in fertilizers and as a supplement in stock feeds, as well as in the manufacture of mineral wool and insulating materials; as ballast for railway tracks and as aggregate in concrete, among other things.

★ ★ ★

There are three major limestone quarrying operations in the Upper Peninsula. The largest is just south of Gulliver at Port Inland. The others are on Drummond Island at Cedarville.

Inland Steel Co. owns the one here, Bethlehem Steel Corp. the one on Drummond Island and U.S. Steel Corp. the one at Cedarville.

5 MILLION TONS

Inland Lime and Stone Co., the subsidiary which operates the one near here, employs 360 men during the summer months and retains around 200 during the winter months. It produces about five million tons a year-about twice as much as either of the other two.

Inland began operations on 12,800 acres south of Gulliver in 1930, and experts predict the supply will last another 75 to 100 years at the present rate of consumption.

★ ★ ★

The quarrying and milling operation, about 25 miles east of Manistique, is run by John W. Moffat as vice president and general manager of Inland Lime and Stone Co. His company is the largest employer in the Manistique area and its payroll approximates $2 million a year.

Moffat joined Inland upon graduation from Michigan Tech at Houghton in 1939 and he returned after a World War II hitch in the Air Force, where he was an instructor of flight engineers in the operation of the biggest bombers of that day, the B29s.

ITS OWN HARBOR

Inland has its own 27-foot deep harbor of about 50 acres and a 900-foot long concrete dock at which some 50 to 60 Great Lakes freighters are loaded monthly. In addition, some 200 railway cars are loaded and shipped monthly, and still more moves out by truck.

★ ★ ★

What likely is Michigan's only electrified railroad operates here. It is Inland's and there are 22 miles of track. The quarry is seven miles from the mill. The company also uses electric shovels of five-cubic-yard capacity in loading and stripping, and consumes between 1.6 million and 1.8 million kilowatt-hours of electricity monthly.

Those big shovels can load a 10-car train in 45 minutes.

At the mill gigantic crushers reduce the broken stone to what ever size is desired, this usually depending upon the use to which the final product is to be put. It also gets a washing as it goes through.

2 TYPES QUARRIED

Inland quarries limestone high in calcium content and also a limestone high in magnesia and known as dolomite.

Limestone is used as a flux in both blast and open hearth furnaces of stell mills. Put through what is known as a buring process, the resulting lime is used as a flux in the most modern basic oxygen furnaces.

★ ★ ★

All of Inland's dolomite is consumed by its parent company's steel-making plants.

Stones 2 to 12 inches in size are used in the so-called sulphite towers of paper mills. Sulfuric acid is poured down over the rocks and the liquor which this makes is used to digest and break down the lignin that surrounds wood fibers, thus freeing them for processing into paper. It takes about 300 pounds for each ton of wood pulp.

FINELY GROUND

Glass-making also requires limestone, and about 65 per cent of the content of Portland cement is limestone, ground to a powder and mixed with shale before it is baked and reground more fine than face powder.

★ ★ ★

Michigan's Lower Peninsula also is in the limestone quarrying business in a big way. The world's largest quarry is at Rogers City, where U.S. Steel has been mining rock since 1912. At Alpena, Huron Portland Cement Co. has its own quarry to supply its world's largest cement plant.

Several plants of the plains and prairies of the United States, called "tumbling weeds," develop round tops which break off at ground level in the autumn and so roll with the wind.

For Resistance

Road Plants Are Coated

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — If you think those plants growing along the highway look like plastic, you could be half right.

Scientists at the University of California have been spraying a film of plastic on plants such as the oleanders that grow along thousands of freeway miles.

★ ★ ★

They find the spray can reduce the need for costly and often hazardous irrigation and protect the plants from smog and other pollutants or even from disease organisms.

"In greenhouse tests of plastic sprays, we lowered water losses of oleanders by 30 per cent," says Dr. David C. Davenport.

"The savings potential is large, considering that California spends about $1 million annually for irrigation of highway landscaping."

what you should know about Pearls before you buy them

It's likely that sometime you'll give—or receive—pearls in some form: a necklace, a ring, a pin. For the popularity of pearls has remained virtually unchanged for centuries. Yet few people know much about this most remarkable jewel: the only jewel created by a living creature. Perhaps we can help you make a better evaluation and wiser purchase by answering some of the most frequently asked questions.

What is the difference between "natural" and "cultured" pearls? Actually, there's no difference—in the substance of the pearl. The natural (or "Oriental") pearl is simply formed and found more or less by accident, where the cultured pearl owes its existence to man's helping hand. Pearls, as you know, are formed around a foreign object inserted into an oyster: usually a grain of sand. If Nature introduces it, the pearl is "natural." If Man introduces it, the pearl is "cultured."

There is a third category of pearl: the artificial ones manufactured by chemistry (of materials like glue and fish scales). They have a superficial resemblance to genuine pearls, but their value and beauty are negligible.

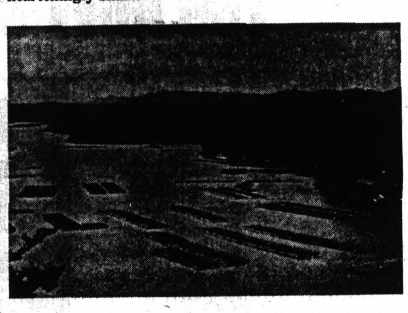

How can you tell a fine pearl? When the oyster builds the pearl, he does it by secreting layers and layers of lime crystal tears around the intruding object. These crystals—called "nacre"—give the pearl its luster, its luminescence, its color. When you hold a pearl to the light, you should see deepening rays of light reflected and refracted through these endless layers of crystals. It's a soft, warm, living glow; an inner radiance.

On the other hand, an artificial pearl simply has surface shine.

A little historical background. Before 1907, all pearls were natural—in spite of the fact that experiments in pearl culture had begun in China in the 13th Century (where monks tucked statuettes of Buddha into oysters and were rewarded by pearl-coated Buddha statuettes). The Germans tried pearl-making in the 16th Century, using Rhine River mussels. But it was in Japan—where the finest pearl-bearing oysters are found—that naturalists pried the secret from the oyster in the late 19th Century.

Pearl-making isn't everyone's oyster. If creating a cultured pearl were as simple as inserting a grain of sand into an oyster and waiting three or four years for a pearl to emerge, the value of cultured pearls would be considerably less. However, pearl oysters are extremely rare; only in Japan and in certain parts of the South Seas are they found—and only certain species of them yield good pearls.

The pearl-producing oysters are kept in "farms," and are floated from place to place in bamboo cages as they develop. The average pearl oyster travels 200 or 300 miles in its lifetime. But even with all the controls of modern science, the percentage of production is disheartenningly small.

For example: while over 80% of the oysters harvested for 5 millimeter pearls (the smallest usual size—with the exception of tiny "seed" pearls) yield pearls, only 5% of these are considered fine in quality. As the pearl grows, so do its chances of becoming imperfect. Blemishes appear. The oyster dies. The pearl becomes lopsided. Fewer than half of the pearl oysters can bear larger (7mm to 9mm) pearls; and of these, only 2% are of fine quality. In fact, with 9mm pearls, only 20% of the oysters provide a yield, of which 1/10th of 1% is of fine quality.

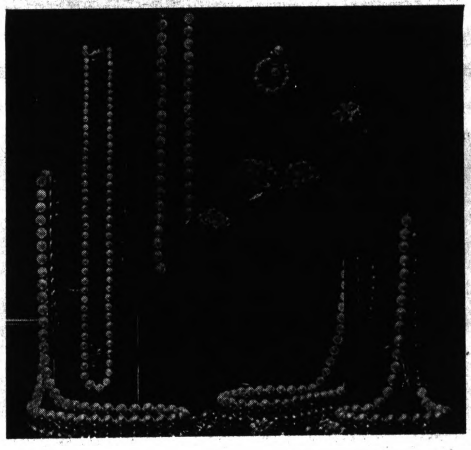

How are pearls classified? The simplest classification is by size (Japanese pearls grow as large as 10mm, South Seas pearls as large as 15mm).

The next classification is shape; and while there are more than 15, the broadest distinction is "round" or "baroque" (irregularly shaped). "Mobe" or "blister" pearls (formed on the shell of the oyster) have a flat side, and are used primarily in pins, rings, and earrings. The third—and most important—classification is quality: the color and opalescence that are the pearl's unique qualities. Shape, cleanliness, and color are primary considerations.

In pearls—as in almost everything else—quality is more important than quantity. A small pearl of fine luster and symmetry is invariably more costly than a large pearl of indifferent quality. Unfortunately, too many people confuse size with value.

How much should you pay for pearls? While you can buy cultured pearls at many different prices, the value of an individual pearl seldom varies (except that its value increases, as the value of any fine thing increases, with the overall economy). Any variance in the price of two cultured pearls of equal quality usually lies with the dealer: how wisely he purchased the pearls, and how large a mark-up he takes. At Rose, for example, you can buy a single strand necklace of 6mm pearls for as little as $19.95; a ring with a single pearl set in 14K gold from $20, earrings from $10, bracelets from $50, pins from $20, and pendants from $10. And you can buy them with the knowledge that you're getting the very best for your investment, whether it's large or small.

A Helpful Glossary of Terms

Millimeter: the measurement of the diameter of a pearl, equivalent to 0.03937 inch. For example: 5mm equals 3/16".
Round: the most common shape, although very few pearls are perfectly symmetrical. To the untrained eye, most pearls appear round.
Baroque: irregularly shaped pearls. These can have great beauty, and often command high prices. However, their value lies in their overall quality.
Mobe: large pearls with one flat side, usually used in pins, rings and earrings.
Uniform: a strand of pearls of equal size (or what appears to be equal size).
Graduated: a strand of pearls with the largest at the center, the smallest near the clasp.
Choker: a pearl necklace that hugs the neck.
Princess: a pearl necklace approximately 18 inches long.
Matinee: a pearl necklace approximately 24 inches long.
Opera: a pearl necklace approximately 32 inches long.

Cleveland Transplants Made Quietly

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Elizabeth Conway, medical writer for the Flint Journal, is no stranger to Cleveland Clinic Hospital. She spent many hours there when her husband, Donald C., underwent corrective heart surgery in August. Since then she has come to know many of the top cardiovascular surgeons and medical men at the center. She brings this background to the following feature on the recent transplant of a woman's heart and two kidneys into three men.)

By ELIZABETH CONWAY
Flint Journal Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Three men whose lives would have been snuffed out, probably before their next birthdays, are alive today because of a 25-year-old former Detroit divorcee and the skill and dedication of personnel at the Cleveland Clinic Hospital.

They are in select company.

Not only have they lived 25 "extra" days, it is believed that they are the first known recipients from a multiple donor who are enjoying new-found and unexpected freedom in the "outside world."

* * *

But the persons responsible for the medical miracle won't talk about their accomplishments.

In fact, they barely acknowledge that through their skill, perfection of techniques and long months of preparation, the heart and both kidneys of the young woman have given each of these men an extension to their lives.

NO FANFARE

The Cleveland Clinic Hospital's philosophy is simple: It strives for perfection, but without fanfare.

The hospital's policy and rules plainly spell out its theory—no publicity. The staff goes about this with caution and a paternal, protective attitude toward their patients. From the hierarchy to the custodial help, personnel won't discuss any patient.

We discovered on Sept. 26, —24 days after the operations—the day that the heart transplant patient was released, how delightful hospital personnel were that "This didn't become a Roman holiday."

Many of the medical and surgical officials are critical of all the fuss and flurry that has accompanied many of the other heart transplants performed throughout the world. They believe that it has set medicine back, has made a carnival out of the serious business of life and death and has not dignified the art of medicine.

CHECK ON CONDITION

We talked to Dr. Satoru Nakamoto, head of the hospital's hemodialysis kidney unit, to check on the conditions of Charles Munday, 21, of Berkeley, Mich., and Robert Clapper, 29, of Minerva, Ohio.

The surprising reply was a rather casual, "Oh, they were discharged sometime last week." There had been no announcement.

* * *

Dr. Nakamoto told us that both are making "satisfactory progress and there has been no sign of rejection yet nor serious problems."

To dramatize the Cleveland Hospital's philosophy, heart transplant patient Dellett Howard Lawson, 50, of Akron was discharged from the hospital shortly after lunch on Sept. 26. A news conference was scheduled for 2 p.m.

PATIENT'S CONFERENCE

But it was Lawson's news conference, not the hospital's. There were no medical personnel in attendance.

During the late afternoon, one of the cardiovascular staff surgeons expressed complete surprise, concern and disbelief when we told him that there had been a news conference. His relief showed when we reassured him that the hospital had not called the conference.

* * *

We had been told by a non-medical staff member that it had not yet been made public which one of the 14 surgeons had done the "actual surgery" and that it wouldn't be revealed until after the first scientific paper had been published. Then, his name would appear at the head of the list of operating team.

At the news conference, however, Lawson said he particularly wanted the world to know how grateful he was to 45-year-old Dr. Rene G. Favaloro, an Argentinian who performed the surgery.

NATURAL CHOICE

We can understand why Dr. Favaloro was chosen for this chore. We have heard from his peers and many others that he has "a marvelous technique." The press—and the nation—had been assured that it was a "team effort—led by the three staff cardiovascular surgeons. And it had to be.

We were assured, after much checking, that each of the three staff cardiovascular surgeons would "take his turn" (at future heart transplants).

* * *

We tried to find out just what preparation and advance work went into the multiple transplant.

We asked if they had any "dress rehearsals." With calm confidence, we were told by one of the hospital's top medical men that there was none.

BASIS FOR DECISION

"Once we made up our minds that we knew what had to be done, we based our decision on that," he said.

Earlier, we had been discussing heart transplants, the historic triple transplant and Lawson's condition with one of the hospital's top physicians. His major concern was the possibility that crowds, excitement might be "too much emotionally for Lawson."

* * *

We were inclined to agree after Lawson explained that he had been completely bedridden for the several months before his operation and that "for the first 11 days after the operation I was kept in isolation."

The tall, slender, patient admitted that "the question was if they could keep me alive until a suitable donor was found. It was a question of getting rid of my heart or it getting rid of me."

CAN EXERCISE NORMALLY

About Lawson, one prominent cardiologist, said, "He has a perfectly normal exercise capability. From the standpoint of physical activity, he doesn't need to limit himself.

"Physically he can do anything anyone else can, but the danger of him returning to his job of driving trucks is exposure to the weather," the cardiologist added

* * *

He termed Lawson "emotionally and psychologically okay, a sound, stable guy."

Speaking of goals, one of the Cleveland Hospital's top cardiovascular doctors told us, "one day there will be a tissue—organ bank. We'll have beating hearts around ready to be used again."

U. S. to Turn On as Cost Plunges

By Science Service

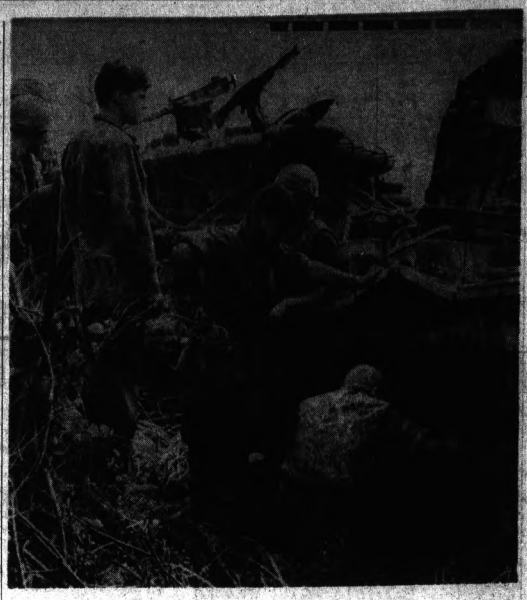

The use of electricity by each American will increase about sixfold during the next 30 years and the cost will decrease about fourfold, primarily because of nuclear power.

This prediction is made by James A. Lane, head of the study and evaluation group at Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Oak Ridge, Tenn. He believes the delivered price of industrial electricity would be as low as 2.5 mills per kilowatt-hour in 1980 and 1.5 mills per kilowatt-hour in the year 2000.

Star of 'Ironside' Is Maintaining His Reputation as Workhorse

(EDITOR'S NOTE — A man of many interests and talents, Raymond Burr is in the second season of carving out for himself a new TV image. Perry Mason is on syndication. Robert Ironside is going strong. And to keep the momentous going, Burr works, and works, and works.)

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK — Now that Raymond Burr has, more or less, changed his public image from cool, shrewd defense attorney to short-fused, perceptive detective, there has been some inevitable adjustment of his extraacting interests.

When Burr was industriously turning out weekly "Perry Mason" episodes over a nine-year span, he was in constant demand as a speaker for assorted bar association convocations, collected honorary memberships in many, and logically chose legal aid societies as his personal case for special pleading.

* * *

Now Burr is launched on his second season as Robert Ironside, paraplegic detective attached to a fictitious San Francisco force in NBC's "Ironside," and he has already been made an honorary member of that city's real police department as well as a member of the New Westminster, British Columbia, constabulary — New Westminister being the town in which he was born 51 years ago.

Whatever Burr does, he plunges into it with a dedication and concentration that is positively frightening. In New York recently, on a three-day stopover to plug his show on a couple of television programs, Burr put in 18-hour days filled from breakfast to "The Tonight Show," being interviewed, posing for pictures, appearing on daytime TV programs.

NEAR STUDIO

Back home, working in the big studio in Hollywood where "Ironside" is turned out, Burr currently lives with friends (the head of the house is a business associate) about five minutes away from the studio.

Five days a week he arises at 4 a.m., arrives at the studio at 4:30 and works, on stage or studying his lines in his studio bungalow, until at least 7:30.

"I get home, usually around 9," he said, "and by 9:10 I've showered and am in bed where I have dinner and watch TV through the 11 p.m. news. On Saturdays, I go to the office and spend the afternoon there on other work."

When Burr was making "Perry Mason," the show was filmed in a comparatively small studio in the center of Hollywood. Burr then literally lived in a bungalow that had once been Mae West's dressing quarters. All that time he owned a beautiful spacious home perched on a cliff above the Pacific about 45 minutes away from Hollywood.

"In all those years," he recalled, "I think I spent no more than about eight months in that house. So I sold it."

His current studio is a huge teeming place where TV series and movies are turned out, but also where about 10,000 tourists a week — in season — troop about the sound stages and back lots in the company of a guide.

"So I positively refuse to live on the lot," he said.

TOURISTS WATCHING

"Everytime you step outside, the tourists are watching, and the guide is ready to shout, 'There goes Raymond Burr — in that door marked Men.' "

For just about nine months of the year, Burr dedicates himself, almost overwhelmingly, to 4 a.m. to 9 p.m. acting. Once in a while he breaks his rigorous schedule for a weekend in San Francisco, his favorite city and where he expects, ultimately, to establish his home.

* * *

A few years ago, returning from one of his front-line handshaking tours among the Vietnam-troops, he found himself a South Sea island and promptly bought it — some 4,000 acres and about as remote a spot as could be found. It is in the Fiji Islands and consists of a plantation where the adults of the population of about 150 raise cattle and copra. Burr, head of the company that farms it, for the past couple of years has spent his vacation from the show there.

IRONSIDE INTEREST

Burr's company, Harbour Productions, has a big interest in "Ironside," but the actor himself is under contract to Universal studios. When next March rolls around, he expects to use his annual holiday making a film.

Burr, whose earlier marriages — three — have ended in death or divorce, is a six footer whose enjoyment of good food and fine wines — particularly Mexican dishes and French vintages — makes him a constant if somewhat unsuccessful weight-watcher.

* * *

The Burr girth sometimes presented a problem in "Perry Mason" — fans of the show in reruns can often peg the year an episode was made by the size of the star. But it has been less of a concern in "Ironside" where he was, last season, confined to a wheelchair.

This season, however, Burr is back counting calories. Although he will still be playing a crippled cop, a few episodes will contain flashback episodes to times when the bourbon-drinking, sharp-tongued sleuth was able to get around under his own steam.

SCRIPT TROUBLE

"I never was bored with Perry Mason," Burr said. "But after all those seasons of the show our big trouble was finding good scripts.

"I certainly am not bored with Ironside. The character was pretty thoroughly developed by the time we made the first show, and it will take us quite a little while to develop all the facets of his personality."

AP Photo

LIVING THE JOB—Raymond Burr finds his TV work takes over his life, but he is a dedicated actor who is more than willing to give himself to his work. "Perry Mason" resulted in real-life contacts with legal bodies and his support for legal-aid societies. Playing the role of a paraplegic detective has brought police department honorary membership, and an interest in the Paralyzed Veterans of America Organization.

Draftees, Reservists Look to High Court

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Newsfeatures

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court, starting its new term next Monday, is faced again with requests to rule on the legality of the draft and the authority of the government to call up Reservists for the undeclared war in Vietnam.

BAULCH

The court, in the past, has been reluctant to take such cases, although it upheld last year the law that makes it a crime to destroy draft cards.

Two principal appeals involving the draft are now before the court.

* * *

One of these is by James J. Oesterich, 22, of Cheyenne, Wyo. He lost his deferment as a divinity student and was reclassified 1A after he turned in his draft card along with hundreds of other Vietnam protesters last October.

His case brought on the spectacle of one government agency bucking another. The Justice Department filed a brief with the court protesting that the Selective Service System seemed to be using reclassification as a punishment contrary to law and the Constitution.

LETTER IS QUOTED

The department quoted a letter by Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, the head of Selective Service, telling draft boards "that those who violate the draft act should be denied deferment in the national interest."

And there's an appeal from four draft-age Negroes who are asking the court to rule that the draft law illegally discriminates against the poor by deferring college students.

* * *

A federal court in New York turned them down last June, but the court said they can't be drafted until their case is settled.

The Supreme Court has knocked down all efforts to challenge the legality of American participation in the war in Vietnam, although Justices Potter Stewart and William O. Douglas have urged that the court face the issue.

INTRIGUING TO WATCH

So it'll be intriguing to watch if the court agrees to hear an appeal by 113 Reservists who claim Congress has no right to give President Johnson authority to call them up without a formal declaration of war or emergency.

Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justice Hugo L. Black turned down their plea that they not be shipped off to Vietnam as scheduled Sept. 13 while the court weighed whether to hear their arguments. But Justice William O. Douglas agreed they could get killed before the court made up its mind and gave them a last-minute reprive.

Any single justice can grant such a stay and the Reservists' attorney just shopped around.

The soldiers' lawyer, Nathan R. Zahn of Los Angeles, says the law under which the men were called to active duty is unconstitutional. But even if the court says it is constitutional, he argues, the soldier can't come under it because they were in the Reserve before it was passed under an agreement with a different set of rules.

SERIES OF APPEALS

The success of the group getting a delay set off a whole series of similar appeals, including a repeater, Marine Pvt. Paul V. Winters Jr., awaiting shipment to Vietnam at Camp Pendleton, Calif. The court refused to hear his case last spring.

Veterans Allowance

President Johnson has raised the allowance for veterans going to and from veterans hospitals.

The rate for travel is upped from 5 cents to 6 cents a mile. For those who choose to be paid actual expenses the maximum is from $9 to $12 when a night's lodging and three or more meals are involved.

The expenses may be authorized for any veteran needing treatment for a service-connected disability. A veteran needing treatment for a nonservice disability must say he's unable to pay the expense.

Dressier WAFs

You'll soon be seeing the girls of the Air Force in spiffier uniforms. The new design was approved in a poll by 99 per cent of enlisted women and 77 per cent of WAF officers.

TV Playing a Big Role in 1968 Presidential Campaign

NEW YORK (AP) — Barefooted and relaxed, Hubert H. Humphrey cavorted on the beach at Sea Girt, N.J., and held an impromptu news conference on the sand.

That night an estimated 36 million Americans watched the evening television news shows and saw the vice president — along with picture reports on presidential rivals Richard M. Nixon and George C. Wallace.

* * *

This year the candidates are using television more than ever.

"I think it would be fair to say that one of the central considerations in the campaign is television. And therefore, it is taken into account in almost everything that we do in terms of relating to the public," says Frank Shakespeare, on leave as a CBS vice president to work as Nixon's television adviser.

$30 MILLION TAB

The networks are spending more than $30 million for news coverage of the campaigns, from the primaries to election day vcitory Nov. 5.

And while the newscasts and interview shows cost the candidates nothing, they are laying out large sums for paid political broadcasts. They are expected easily to surpass the $12.8 million spent for political broadcasts by the presidential candidates four years ago.

* * *

The 60-second commercial is being honed into a new political art, and it's cutting sharply into the number of longer broadcasts.

Spots for Nixon are showing up on such shows as "Ironsides" and "Name of the Game." And the Republicans are investing $500,000 for commercials during Olympic coverage alone.

Humphrey and Nixon had been offered spots by NBC in the World Series telecasts at half the going rate of $80,000 a minute, but baseball Commissioner William Eckert vetoed any political sponsors.

The candidates are popping up on the entertainment shows, too. Nixon, in a four-second appearance, mouthed the famous "sock it to me" line on "Laugh In." Humphrey shared billing with Paul Revere and the Raiders on "It's Happening," and is touching base with the talk shows.

* * *

Wallace, if not there in person, has been the butt of many jokes.

Network news officials disclaim any influence upon the campaign and note that they are maintaining journalistic independence. The political managers, on the other hand, deny any overt staging for the television cameras.

STEADY CHANGE

But in 20 years, television has brought about a steady change in campaign style, strategy and tactics.

The nighttime rally is diminishing importance to Nixon and Humphrey. Major events and statements are pushed up earlier in the day to meet the news show deadlines. Wallace still makes wide use of the night rally.

* * *

Wallace, without a large staff, nonetheless is using television effectively. Two network half-hour programs reportedly brought in enough additional contributions to pay their costs of about $250,000 each. Wallace also has introduced a new twist.

"What's different about Wallace is that he uses television as a whipping boy," says John Komen, an ABC reporter who has covered all three candidates.

'GO BACK THERE'

"If there's a demonstration in the back," Komen said, "He'll tell the crowd, 'That's all right, they just want to get on TV.' And he'll tell us, 'You boys go on back there and take their picture.' "

Humphrey goes after every minute of television he can work in, while Nixon appears more selective. Nixon, for instance, has not appeared on the interview shows such as "Meet the Press" and "Face the Nation" in two years. In that period, Humphrey has been on 15 times.

* * *

That approach by Nixon has annoyed Humphrey, who accused the Republican candidate of failing to provide "unequivocal statements" of position.

At present, Humphrey is using local television more than national exposure, although he used his first paid political telecast on NBC Monday night to say he woud stop the bombing of North Vietnam if Hanoi showed some willingness to begin serious peace talks.

A MUST STOP

The local television station has become a must on the Humphrey schedule. In Pittsburgh, for instance, his motor route was changed to bring him past the station at the proper time.

* * *

In these encounters, the vice president has been questioned by everyone from local newsmen to housewives to high school students. Humphrey still has a tendency to talk too long, however. In that Pittsburgh broadcast he answered only four questions in half an hour.

* * *

Prominent in Nixon's planning are one-hour statewide telecasts.

"With the cameras in close, and with all the answers having to be ad-libbed, he has an opportunity to be shown to the people of the states in a very intimate, close-up situation," Shakespeare said.

Nixon has made such broadcasts in Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, California and Pennsylvania, and plans them in other large states.

In addition, Nixon is making extensive use of radio in an attempt to reach large numbers of people at low cost.

The big question mark is the debates. Suspension of the equal-time clause of the Communications Act still has many hurdles to clear in Congress—and the time grows short.

* * *

And if the clause is suspended, it is not certain the candidates could be brought face to face in a debate.

Wallace says he is entitled to be in on any debate with Humphrey and Nixon. Humphrey has agreed to debate both Nixon and Wallace. And Nixon says he is willing to debate Humphrey —but not Wallace.

Urge for Independence Burns Among Puerto Rico Minority

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — U.S. flags were hauled down and rebel banners hoisted in their place over public buildings of a small mountain town last week, the symbolic act showed that the urge to independence — by violence or the ballot box — burns stubbornly among a minority of citizens of this U.S. island commonwealth.

In furtherance of the goal, a secret group that calls itself Armed Commandos of Liberation claims authorship for $14 million in damage to American business in Puerto Rico over the past 12 months in a sabotage campaign of harassment.

* * *

Others believing in the power of the vote have their sights on 1972 as a fateful year. They are hoping for a 35 per cent turnout in favor of independence, a big enough showing to start a stampede among Puerto Ricans for divorce from the United States.

With modern independence in mind, more than 15,000 Puerto Ricans trekked to the mountain town of Lares for the 100th anniversary celebration of an almost-forgotten armed uprising against Spain. Youths were believed responsible for lowering the U.S. flags, but an investigation was begun to determine any official complicity.

DESPERATE RESPONSE

The 1868 insurrection, crushed by the Spanish militia within 72 hours, was a desperate response to Spanish colonial rule, part of a revolutionary turmoil boiling up in the Caribbean in the latter half of the 19th century.

Less than three weeks after the Lares revolt, Cuba embarked on a series of uprisings that culminated in independence in 1898 as a result of the Spanish-American war. U.S. soliders stayed on in Puerto Rico when the island was handed over to the United States by Spain under the treaty of Paris.

* * *

Puerto Rico today is an important Caribbean base for U.S. armed forces, attractive to U.S. investors because of tax concessions, and a tourist mecca along with the U.S. Virgin Islands. About one million tourists visited Puerto Rico this year, mostly from the eastern United States.

The U.S. presence continues in Puerto Rico under a compact, approved in 1952, giving commonwealth status. Repeated general elections and a 1967 plebiscite produced clear majorities for political parties favoring close ties with the United States.

HAS HOME RULE

Under commonwealth, the island has home rule, pays no federal income tax and elects its own governor. But islanders have no vote in presidential elections or in the choice of the congressmen who pass on the myriad legislation that controls island commerce, agriculture, defense and other important areas.

This situation has provoked demands for reform even among those leaders who want to continue the commonwealth or seek full-fledged statehood for the island.

For independentistas of all degrees — both those who preach violence and those who prefer the ballot — the existing relationship with Washington is termed intolerable.

For decades they have considered it an especially galling feature of the U.S.-Puerto Rico relationship that islanders must serve in the U.S. armed forces, although Puerto Rico had no vote in the congressional action that created the Selective Service Act.

BASIC POSITION

But their basic position is not hinged to opposition to any particular U.S. law. Instead indepentistas feel that separation from the United States must come as a part of the natural political development of the people.

* * *

Failure of most Puerto Ricans to agree that the island should seek independence is blamed by independence leaders on many factors — including alleged control by U.S. interests of the mass means of communication.

Return to Bikini Is Their Dream

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Still displaced 20 years after atomic tests turned the lush Bikini Atoll into a deadly desert, the former residents still hope some day they can go home to their island where "things fitted together as they should.")

By BYRON BAKER
Honolulu Star-Bulletin

KILI, Marshall Islands — It was the radio that finally brought the word of hope to the small band on this castaway speck far in the Pacific.

But the islanders wouldn't believe it.

★ ★ ★

"Promises," they said. "For many years we have heard promises . . . we are not sure whether this is just another promise . . ."

But then a ship appeared and stood offshore and a small boat was lowered and headed in toward the reef and the islanders thought maybe, at last, it was so. After more than two decades they would be going home to the place that had become a landmark in the terrifying history of the atomic bomb, the atoll of Bikini.

AP Photo

LOOKING BACK—When the Bikini Atoll was chosen as the site for atomic tests beginning in 1946, these islanders were given transport to safety on Kili in the Marshall Islands. From the deck of a Navy LST, they looked back at the idyllic beauty they were leaving. The peace was soon to be shattered by nuclear explosions, and the islands abandoned as poisoned deserts for more than two decades.

RAVAGED OF LIFE

Since the atomic tests in the late 1940s and early 1950s, Bikini has been a desert in the sea, ravaged of all life by the lethal poisons of the nuclear explosions. As the picture of the immense pillar of seawater that exploded from the lagoon at Bikini faded from public memory, the 300 residents of Bikini remembered.

★ ★ ★

They had been transplanted on Kili, a tiny strand but one-third square mile in area, so remote that only boats can reach it and then only in summer when the heavy breakers of winter have calmed. The Bikinians survived on Kili, exporting copra in summer and landing enough food to get them through the winter — just. But Kili was not home. Bikini was, and the islanders felt the United States had a moral obligation to return them there.

★ ★ ★

Lore, a Kili-Bikinian, said: "For us those islands of Bikini are our home. They are more than a piece of earth. They are a way of life. There things fitted together. The people used the land. It gave them fruits. The reef gave them fish, shells. Now the land has been poisoned.

"There was a peacefulness involved. Things fitted together as they should."

NOT ABOVE REPROACH

The record of the United States in administering the trust territory of the Pacific Islands has not been above reproach, and moral questions raised by 300 distant islanders do not always catch ears pitched, rightly or wrongly, to more immediate issues of the nuclear age. Not, however, that Bikini had ben forgotten by the nation that poisoned it.

Twice, in 1964 and 1967, survey teams visited Bikini. They found the only plants of agricultural significance that had grown up were scattered stands of arrowroot and a few clumps of coconut palms that produced low-quality nuts.

★ ★ ★

Land crabs, once a staple of the Bikinians, were abundant but no longer a safe food source. The crabs concentrate strontium 90, a radioactive by-product of atomic explosions, in their shells.

However the 1964 survey gave Bikini's marine life a generally clean bill of health. Last year's team collected further data towards eventual restoration of the displaced natives islanders. They studied how much time the islanders might be expected to spend in the waters of the lagoon where the blast occurred. It was determined that the Bikinians should be given continuing examinations once returned.

BEST SUITED

A report by a special Committee to Evaluate the Hazards of Resettlement of the Bikini Atoll, issued this year, said the island of Eneu in the atoll has the lowest contamination — half that of the average on the mainland United States — and would be best suited for a village site. Bikini was found to have no greater radiation hazard than the mainland average. Other islets, however, are still littered with radioactive scrap metal which should be removed, the report recommended. The principal remaining isotopes are strontium 90, cesium 137 and iron 55.

★ ★ ★

The ship's launch that landed on Kili recently — aptly named Uncomfortable — carried William R. Norwood, high commissioner of the trust territory.

The Bikinians, told by radio he was coming but not entirely believing it, turned out in their Sunday best. They lined the shore, the men of the island council in dark trousers, white shirts and black ties, the women in floral-printed mother hubbards with fresh flowers in their hair. Behind them lay the village's mildrew-covered houses built from the wood of packing crates.

SONG OF GREETING

Norwood went to a two-room schoolhouse for a formal greeting. The women broke out into a loud, keening Marshallese song of greeting which told of the beauty of the flowers they wore as they draped leis over the neck of the commissioner and members of his party.

Welcomes over, the meeting got to the big question. When could the Bikinians go home?

★ ★ ★

Not at once, the commissioner said. First, coconut trees must be replanted and allowed to grow to bear their nuts. But perhaps a caretaker crew of Bikinians would be allowed to return in rotation to cut back the shrubbery that had found root. Maybe some of the island council could go first of all to examine conditions at Bikini and report back to Kili.

But, Norwood went on, there was no money to prepare the atoll for resettlement. That did not mean their case was hopeless, Norwood said. He pointed to the reporters who had landed with him, men who would let the world know of the Bikinians' longing to return from exile. He sought to quiet their fears. Perhaps he did. But when the ship left later that day with the nine men of the council aboard, it was clear there were profound differences between the ways the Americans and Bikinians regarded the atoll.

WAY OF LIFE

"What we are talking about is a way of life," said one Bikinian. "What is the value of a way of life? And what is the injury to a people deprived of it?"

Returning the island to agricultural sufficiency would take seven or eight years and cost $165,000, including planting 7,500 palms on the atoll's 950 acres, said James T. Hiyane, trust territory agriculturist and a member of the 1967 survey. A planned rehabilitation, he said, would also provide valuable information on the best suitable crops for the atolls of Micronesia, an area where data is not abundant. But there is no money at present for research, either.

★ ★ ★

"Not only is the complete rehabilitation of Bikini by the United States justified in the eyes of world opinion, but it also is the United States' responsibility to amend an injustice to a handful of displaced people."

Unionist Is Shot

DETROIT (AP) —Edson Waldrop, 45, vice president of Local 114 of the United Plant Guard Workers of America, was shot and wounded Wednesday in a Detroit alley. Waldrop was listed in critical condition at a Detroit hospital. Police said he told of being shot by one of two men who bumped into him in the alley.

New Delhi Traffic Is Hub-to-Hub Hubbub for Foreign Drivers

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Newcomers, especially foreigners with different driving habits, find plenty of excitement in Delhi traffic.

★ ★ ★

On any given main road there are likely to be, traveling at greatly different speeds and in various directions, people, cows, oxcarts, horse-drawn tongas, hand-pushed carts, bicycles, scooters, motorcycles, three-wheeled scooter taxis, trucks, buses and automobiles. The cars range from the numerous wheezing Indian-made Ambassadors to a fair sprinkling of American, European and Japanese models.

These foreign cars, largely the property of the capital's extensive diplomatic corps, are the uncrowned kings of the road. Protected by diplomatic immunity, they dart in and out of traffic.

UP FRONT COUNTS

One long-time American resident, who warily pilots his white Chevrolet through the sluggish competition, sums up his Delhi driving philosphy with the terse commandment: "Always look ahead: it's what's up front that counts."

For example, he notes, the execution of a turn off a road, across an opposing stream of traffic, often starts 200 or 300 yards before the actual turn-off place. A car may come steaming down your lane intending to turn off your side of the road.

★ ★ ★

"If you are conscientiously consulting your rear-view mirror," this expert warns, "you may smash straight into a turning car instead of swerving into his lane so that he can turn off yours."

Trucks are addicted to turning from the outside lane in—and into, say, a scooter trying to pass on the inside.

SIKHS HORRIFY

The turbaned, beaded Sikhs who monopolize the taxi business, often horrify their tourist customers as they pass everything on the road, cutting back into their own lane seconds before an oncoming bus.

The British, who built spacious New Delhi—contiguous to congested Old Delhi—made traffic circles the solution for most intersections. This introduces special tactical problems when ox-carts and Pontiacs try to sort each other out.

★ ★ ★

Ox carts, traveling in caravans of three or four, each cart dragging steel beams 50 feet long, often paralyze all other movement when they hit a traffic circle at half a mile an hour. Only bicyclists, minnows of the traffic ocean, manage to wriggle in between the nearly touching spans of steel and oxen.

Bicyclists have exempted themselves from most rules of the road, notably traffic lights. A policeman who gesticulates with great precision while directing motorized traffic barely flinches when a school of bicycles floats under his out-thrust palm.

GOOD LUCK!

Delhi drivers have several well-relished Hindustani phrases for the wandering pedestrian or bicycle rider. One is: "Did you say goodby to your wife this morning for good?"

For the overbearing or reckless driver, there's contempt in: "What do you think this is, your old man's road?"

To an Indian this is highly insulting, implying that a family is associated with the scum and filth of the road. Sometimes the hearer screeches to a halt in search of a fight to defend his family's honor.

★ ★ ★

The least-conscious Delhi traffic offenders are the cows, who wander, lounge and even sleep in the middle of busy streets while vehicles snarl around them. It is often said that the cows are tolerated in the streets because of their sacredness to Hindus, but practical-minded drivers point out that they are simply too numerous and stubborn to be removed.

"They have better traffic sense than most of us," observes an Indian connoisseur of Delhi driving, "and they never get hit."

★ ★ ★

That is more than can be said for the human residents of Delhi. Police say one person a day is killed on the Delhi streets.

House Probes 'Ghost Voting' Scope, Means

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The author of the following dispatch heads UPI's House staff and is the reporter who uncovered the practice of ghost voting which it describes.)

By FRANK ELEAZER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House leaders have uncovered and stamped out a ghost-voting practice by which some lawmakers apparently have been able to be recorded as voting yes or no without being present.

More frequently, and almost as bad in the eyes of the leadership, some members have been listed as present on quorum calls although actually in their offices or back in their home states.

★ ★ ★

House Clerk W. Pat Jennings, a former House member himself, is investigating the extent of the "finagling" and is trying to find out exactly how it was done. Both Democrats and Republicans have been among the relatively few beneficiaries of the system.

Jennings and other key figures are inclined, officially, at least, to minimize the extent of the practice and in most cases to blame honest error. They point out that House roll calls are noisy, difficult, and sometimes subject to mistakes.

TALLY SYSTEM

Jennings said that whatever his inquiry discloses, he hopes a byproduct will be installation of an electronic tally system to guarantee accurate counts, both on substantive votes and on roll calls for the purpose of establishing that a quorum—or majority—of members is present.

A more immediate possible byproduct of the inquiry, in the view of some sources following the matter closely, was the failure of the House Monday to obtain a quorum for the first time in almost two years.

★ ★

When only 188 of the needed 217 members (a majority of the current membership of 432) answered their names, the House was forced to adjourn. Some sources speculated that prior to the cleanup, enough "ghosts" might have been recorded to make a quorum.

Nobody suggested that members had been answering for absent colleagues since any such practice would be too easily noted. Obviously the discrepancies were involved in the mechanics of taking and recording the votes in question.

SUPPOSEDLY SACRED

Record votes in the House are supposed to be sacred. And it appeared certain that no major votes on controversial bills have been counted erroneously. For one thing, all important votes are recorded independently by the press as the roll is called, and any discrepancy would tend to be noted.

★ ★ ★

But most House roll calls are routine. Discrepancies began coming to light on some of these after a newsman sought to call a member who had just been recorded as being present and voting. It turned out the member was out of town.

School Issue Loses

MONROE (AP) — Voters in the Monroe Public School District Wednesday rejected 2,037-2,554 a 26-year, $11.8-million bond issue which would have been used to finance construction of a high school. The proposal was the first school bonding issue put before Monroe voters in more than 40 years.

Czechs to Weigh New Government Statutes as Soviets Frown

By WILLIAM RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Czechoslovak Communist party, waging an uphill battle for political reforms which provoke Soviet wrath, is going forward with consideration of new statutes governing its rule over the nation.

The Russians are frowning.

★ ★ ★

The projected statutes were drafted several weeks before the Soviet invasion. In their original form, they fail to meet Soviet demands for total party domination of the country.

To a westerner, the statutes would hardly seem liberal, even in the original form. If there is a suggestion of more freedom in the draft, it is freedom for party members within the framework, rather than for Czechoslovaks in general. But even those changes are rejected by Moscow as dangerous examples for ruling parties elsewhere.

REMAIN VALID

A Czechoslovak party leader this week said the statutes as drafted remain valid, though he conceded there might have to be modification of some of the articles. The extent of that modification could be one determining factor in how soon the bulk of

News Analysis

Soviet troops leave Czechoslvakia.

As the statutes now stand, they extend the right of a minority, within the party, to retain its viewpoint even after the majority has made an opposed decision. The minority would be able to demand that its view be placed on the record and to seek a reassessment of the decision from time to time.

★ ★ ★

This does not mean that the minority can reject the majority's decision within the party. The statutes carefully point out that "democratic centralism" must be the basic principle, which means that when a decision is voted by a party body, it must be unquestioningly obeyed by all, whatever their views.

★ ★ ★

In the original draft, a provision was made for two Communist parties, one for Slovakia and one for the Czech regions, a recognition of the Slovaks' urge for some autonomy. Slovakia makes up a third of the country. The Russians appear to dislike federalization, as suggesting a loosening of central control.

OWN MACHINERY

The statutes as drafted require the election of all party bodies by secret ballot of party members. Those bodies then would create their own administrative machinery operating under over-all Central Committee direction.

Any party member, the draft says, can leave the party of his own free will. In effect, this extends to party members the right to resign. In practice, party members in Communist-ruled states do not resign. When they leave the party they are expelled, losing all the privileges of membership.

★ ★

The draft says that no privileges or advantages must be attached to party membership, nor is any party member to be subjected to discipline because he expresses his opinion openly and critically at party meetings and in the party press about policies. The Russians oppose this, particularly insofar as it involves publication of dissent in the press.

As originally drawn, the statutes were designed to prevent too great a concentration of power in any single man. Terms of party officials would be limited to not more than three successive three-year terms or two successive five-year terms. Only a two-thirds vote of a party congress could change this tenure rule.

★ ★ ★

The statutes must be approved by the 14th party congress, now indefinitely postponed at the demand of the Russians. Theoretically, the congress is the over-all ruling body of any Communist party.

While there seems not to be a great amount of democratization in the proposed statutes, the reform elements probably would have a tough time trying to put them over in their original, preinvasion form.

Census Bureau Book Fact-Fat

Statistical Abstract Volume of U.S. Data

WASHINGTON — California produces more garlic and onions than any other state; 65.5 per cent of the 1967 model automobiles sold had tinted windshields; Americans spend more than $1 billion annually for flowers, seeds, and potted plants.

The United States successfully launched 77 spacecraft into orbit in 1967, while women bought 1.4 billion pairs of stockings.

★ ★ ★

Such is the diversity of facts that pack the Statistical Abstract of the United States: 1968, a weighty publication of the Census Bureau. Topics in the 1,034-page 89th edition range from abaca imports to zoology degrees conferred, the National Geographic Society notes.

The recently released anthology introduces 83 new tables. One reports that 424,000 women and 161,000 men wear contact lenses, but far more Americans — 84,247,000 — still look through eyeglasses.

TUITION SOARING

Another table warns parents that the cost of higher education continues to soar. Tuition and miscellaneous costs at a private college now average $2,570 annually, and will reach $3,640 in 1981.

Weather remained a major conversation piece in 1967. Some 912 tornadoes struck the Nation, 342 more than in 1966. The number of hurricanes reaching the United States coasts, however, remained the same — two in each year.

★ ★ ★

For the first time, the Nation produced more color television sets than black and white models.

The margin was substantial — 5,777,000 to 5,105,000. More homes have television sets than washing machines, vacuum cleaners, toasters, or electric coffee makers. In 1967, 98 out of every 100 homes had TV sets.

★ ★ ★

Food continued as a prime interest for most Americans. During the year, the average consumer devoured such belt-stretching portions as 175 pounds of meat, 10 pounds of fish, 82 pounds of fresh fruit, and 100 pounds of fresh vegetables.

ICE CREAM, COFFEE

He topped off his meals with 18 pounds of ice cream, and washed it all down with 14 pounds of coffee.

The anthology might also settle geographic arguments. For example, both California and Colorado have their share of mountains, but the 16 tallest in the United States all lie in Alaska. All told, 88 mountains in the nation tower more than 14,000 feet above sea level.

★ ★ ★

The book offers some consolation to budget-conscious New Yorkers. Based on the experiences of United Nations personnel in 50 selected cities, a cost-of-living index shows that five cities are more expensive than New York.

★ ★ ★

They are Riyadh (Ar Riyad), Saudi Arabia; Bujumbura, Burundi; Caracas, Venezuela; Paris, Franch; and Djakarta, Indonesia.

★ ★ ★

The least expensive of the 50 is Montevideo, Uruguay, where costs were figured to run at 52 per cent of the New York level.

The book doesn't mention it but the flight from New York to Montevideo takes 11 hours.

Although as many as 50 per cent of infants born in the U.S. bear some visible birthmarks, nearly all of the marks disappear spontaneously within the first few years of life.

N. Viet Women Still Feminine Despite War

By GEMMA CRUZ ARANETA
Written for the Associated Press

MANILA — The old Vietnamese saying that a woman is "like a drop of rain. No one palace or the mud of the rice fields" is meaningless nowadays in North Vietnam.

The war has changed all that. Things will never be the same.

* * *

Gone is the woman that trailed helplessly behind her husband through life, who stayed out of important discussions, who left decisions to men.

Women have surged into the front lines of North Vietnam's defense, education, government — just about everything — and have shattered centuries-old traditions.

RETAINS BEAUTY

Yet despite the newfound responsibilities, the North Vietnamese woman has kept her delicate beauty and grace — and her feminine behavior.

Even in drab army fatigues, helmets, coarse rubber sandals or shapeless factory smocks, her abundant feminity shines through.

* * *

During three weeks that my husband and I toured a half-dozen cities and towns of North Vietnam — the American bombing already had been cut back and we could move rather freely, with government guides, of course — we learned quickly that a prime mover in the rise of womanhood, for teen-agers, matrons and grandmothers alike, was the Three Responsibilities Movement. Women often talked about it:

* * *

"1. To guarantee production and take over the tasks of men so they can fight; 2. to guarantee work and income for the family and to encourage sons and husbands to leave for the front; 3. to ensure the task of supporting the war efforts and, when necessary, to engage in actual combat."

MOBILIZED WOMEN

The head of the Women's Association, Madame Ly Huan, told us the movement "has encouraged women to step forward and bear new responsibilities.

* * *

"Through this," she said, "we have mobilized the women to struggle against feudal ideas which some men still favor. Women have gained more self-confidence and have trained themselves . . . today they are able to replace men."

The movement was launched by the Women's Association in April of 1965, and leaders say more than 2.5 million women volunteered for the association in the first two months. That's roughly 25 per cent of the country's females of all ages.

* * *

While driving from Hanoi to Thanh Hoa province, my husband and I passed dozens of reconstruction teams of young girls filling bomb craters.

BEHAVED LIKE WOMEN

Near the Ham Rong Bridge, we interviewed the leader of a reconstruction team. She was 18 and wore a brown army uniform, a towel on her head and a wide-brimmed straw hat. But when we started taking pictures she, like women everywhere, tugged at the towel and quickly removed it, smoothed down her hair and carefully replaced her hat. She wore gold hoop earrings.

Some times when I would try to dig out information about feminine things, the response would be starkly unromantic.

* * *

"What do you look for in a man?", I asked Madame Le Huong.

"First of all," she said, seriously, "He must have progressive ideas, those that are compatible with our Socialist regime. He must also be active in production and must take an active part in building our society. He must be willing to sacrifice for the fatherland.

COMPATIBILITY

"Husbands and wives must have compatibility in cultural and educational fields," she said.

I suppose that meant similar interests, but she seemed to have a knack for making everything sound so official.

* * *

Then, smiling coyly like a schoolgirl, she added, "He must, of course, be nice-looking."

At last, a down-to-earth characteristic.

One could have expected that response about love from Madame Le Huong because she was already over 40 and quite official. But when I asked a young, unmarried girl, I got the same unromantic answer.

HAS IDEALS

"I have no sweetheart yet, but I do have ideals. He must be progressive and must be ready to sacrifice for the fatherland," declared Nguyen Thi Hanh, a beautiful, 24-year-old commander of a militia unit.

"I should have also been married and perhaps have had a child like yours, if it were not for this war," she said ruefully when I told her about my 2-year-old daughter.

* * *

"I am so much behind you in social activities," she said. At the mention of social activities, I immediately thought of fashion shows, lavish celebrations and charity projects with a flurry of publicity and — heaven forbid — beauty contests.

But, of course, that was not what they meant by social activities. Repairing a bombed railroad or cleaning up a town would be more like it.

SHOW CURIOSITY

Almost everywhere, I found women curious about my appearance. Sometimes, they gathered enough courage to ask in broken English or French, "where are you from?"

* * *

"From the Philippines." They were amazed as Asian could be so tall. (I am 5-feet-10) Once a little girl mistook me for a Russian and the guide said it was because of my height.

* * *

A little girl in a cigarette factory outside Hanoi scrutinized me, and when I was not looking something poked my shoe. It was the little girl examining my Philippine-made shoes — black patent with crystal button.

Most Vietnamese women wear leather sandals or rubber tire slippers popularized by Ho Chi Minh.

* * *

Suddenly, she ran her fingers over my ankle and screamed. Everyone laughed.

She thought she had touched your skin," the guide interpreted. I was wearing nylon hosiery which the little girl had never seen or felt before.

* * *

The men do not seem upset or worried by the accomplishments of their women. Prime Minister Pham Van Dong told us in an interview that the women were "La plus belle expression de la revolution. The most beautiful expression of the Revolution."

MRS. ROBERT SQUIERS

Janine Rich and James Brozes Married in Candlelight

First Congregational Church was the setting Saturday for candlelight vows uniting Janine Carol Rich and James Michael Brozes.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Mason W. Rich of Hi-Hill Drive, Pontiac Township. The bridegroom is the son of Michael Brozes of Giddings Road and the late Mrs. Brozes.

★ ★ ★

Attended by Kriss Middleton, the former Miss Rich was attired in a princess gown of organza over taffeta. Highlighting the bateau neckline were appliques of reembroidered lace with seed pearl and crystal details.

A cascading arrangement of white Sweetheart roses and Stephanotis comprised the bride's bouquet.

★ ★ ★

A petal cluster secured her bouffant veil of silk illusion.

Gayle Rich assisted as bridesmaid with Shelly and Jileen Wilcox serving as flower girls at their aunt's wedding.

Best man honors were performed by Daniel Graham with ushers Dennis Brozes (brother of the bridegroom) James Nolen and George Rooke completing the wedding party.

★ ★ ★

Following the nuptials, the couple was feted with a buffet supper in the church parlors. They then departed for a honeymoon trip to the New England states and Canada.

Reunion Scheduled

The First United Methodist Church will be the setting Saturday for the Oakland County Normal Association reunion luncheon. The event begins at 12:30 p.m.

Today's Woman

Puts Heart in Her Work

By YOLANDA BENAVIDES

Don't waste your time looking for Maureen Squiers putting with the women on the golf course, in the clubhouse playing bridge, or joining the social set for brunch, lunch and afternoon teas.

You'll find her 'leisure' hours spent seated behind a paper-stacked desk where she presides as chairman of the Michigan Heart Association's Oakland County Heart Information Center in Birmingham.

The chairmanship marks the first administrative appointment at the Center for the blue-eyed, sunny redhead who makes her home with husband, Robert, on Wing Lake Road.

MRS. JAMES M. BROZES

In light of the many hours spent as a volunteer worker at the Center, as well as in other community service organizations, this mother of three and grandmother of seven more than qualifies for the appointment.

These hours, one might add, have extended over a 10-year period with six spent at Pontiac State Hospital as a member of St. Owen's Catholic Church Altar Society.

As head of the volunteer-operated and controlled Center, Maureen Squiers and her team of some 20 coworkers are responsible for providing an up-to-date list of available heart literature.

Supervision of the 20-year-old Association's state-wide Christmas card campaign, profits of which are channeled for research, is a second concern.

★ ★ ★

Programs geared to public service, such as the heart forum earlier this year at Pontiac Northern High School, are another area of interest for the organization. Here volunteers use the opportunity to hand out the endless list of literature.

With the Christmas card campaign fast approaching, the need for added volunteers poses a third project for the Center's bustling chairman. (See picture of card on page C-6).

KICK-OFF

To herald the annual campaign, which grossed $53,000 last yuletide, Mrs. Squiers is planning a coffee for interested women at the Center's headquarters on Pierce Street Friday at 10 a.m.

As she herself has found, volunteer work is a twofold benefit that generates a personal "feeling of pride in doing something that helps both people and the community!

"In this respect we can give volunteers something, provided they give something of themselves to us and to our cause."

Dads Are Not Required to Stand in Line

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post: My son is being married formally and a question has arisen. The boy's father and I are divorced and both are remarried. Would it be proper to have my ex-husband and me in the reception line alone or should we have our present husband and wife with us?

—Mrs. W. Freeman

Dear Mrs. Freeman: There is one simple solution to your problem. No rule states that the fathers of the couple need stay in the line at all—they are usually happier and more useful mingling with the guests, and acting as hosts.

You, as mother of the groom should stand, of course, but your ex-husband's wife has no place there, nor does your present husband. Aside from that, to have all of you would make too many people and an impossible situation for introductions, etc.

★ ★ ★

Therefore, the best thing to do is to have neither of your husbands with you, whether the bride's father chooses to remain in line or not.

WHO HOLDS?

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper for the man or the woman to take their baby to the front to be baptized? —Denise

★ ★ ★

Dear Denise: In churches which do not require godparents, the father holds the baby and gives its name. When there are godparents, it is the godmother who holds the child.

SUPERSTITION

Dear Mrs. Post: My son had me get an engagement ring for a girl when he was in the service. The girl was with me when I picked it out. He never gave her the ring as he was shipped overseas before it was ready. In less than three months she married someone else.

★ ★ ★

Now he's going with a very nice girl and wants to give her the ring. Someone told him that it is bad luck to give the ring to his fiance. —Mrs. H. Y.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mrs. Y.: Superstitions which cost nothing—such as bad luck if you walk under a ladder—are harmless. But to prevent the use of a beautiful and expensive ring because it might be unlucky seems impractical and ridiculous.

★ ★ ★

If your son's fiancee is bothered by the sentimental consideration rather than the superstition, he would do well to have the stone reset. But if she doesn't mind, I'm sure their luck won't be affected at all.

Helene Lindow will become Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson's personal, press and social secretary after the Johnsons leave the White House. She is a longtime friend of the Johnson daughters, and was a bridesmaid at Luci's wedding. Miss Lindow said she will go to Texas and will live in Austin.

Talk on Drugs Is Open to Public

A panel discussion entitled "Dangerous Drugs — Their Use and Abuse" will highlight the first meeting tonight for the 1968-'69 session of Washington Junior High School's PTA.

Participating in the discussion which begins at 7:30 p.m. will be Jerry St. Souvier, chief investigator for Oakland County Prosecuting Attorney; Dr. Robert Segula, local physician; and Dr. Maurice Willis, psychiatrist.

★ ★ ★

The program will conclude with a movie entitled "Insight and Insanity" followed with a question and answer period between audience and panel.

The meeting is open to parents, students and any interested residents.

Sorority Will Meet With Mrs. Moore

Mrs. Arthur Moore of Lost Tree Way, Bloomfield Township, will host a 12:15 p.m. luncheon on Tuesday for the South Oakland County chapter of Sigma Kappa.

Mrs. William Zell of Daly Brothers Furniture, will speak on "How to Decorate Your Home on a Limited Budget."

Assisting the hostess will be Mesdames: Henry Taylor, Robert Dodson and Ben Wolford.

Mother Knows Best This Time--- Take Her Advice and Cool Off

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl with a slight problem. I have a favorite uncle (my mother's brother) who is 42. He says I am his favorite niece. We like to be alone together and talk, and he understands me better than either one of my parents.

ABBY

My problem is my mother. She says she doesn't like me seeing so much of Uncle Bill, and that I should quit calling him up all the time (I love to talk to him on the phone). She even hinted that maybe the feeling wasn't exactly like it should be between an uncle and his niece, which is ridiculous. Do you think my mother is being fair?

FAVORITE NIECE

DEAR FAVORITE: I can't say, but I can only guess that your mother is looking out for your best interests. Listen to her, young lady. She knows her brother better than you know your uncle.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter-in-law is getting me down, but I refuse to be a meddling mother-in-law. She has three boys, and her eldest is her favorite. (This isn't just my opinion. Everyone who knows the family can see it). She buys clothes to fit the eldest, and the two younger ones have to wear them, too. The younger ones look like a couple of clowns. I think it is just terrible. I once bought the younger boys some nice slacks, shirts, and blazers, and she took all of it back to the store and put it toward clothes for the older one!

What can I do without getting in bad with her?

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Where is your son? Tell him! If he doesn't set her straight, the next time you buy something for the two younger boys, tell the merchant that under no circumstances should he allow that mother to return it for a larger size. And why worry about getting "in bad" with her. Who needs her good will?

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: Will you please give your opinion of the following? Also ask other readers what they think about it.

A lady was having lunch at a popular luncheon room at the noon hour. She sat there sipping a second cup of coffee while she slowly smoked a cigaret. Several people were standing waiting for a place at the counter.

★ ★ ★

While she was leaving, a woman who had been waiting said to her, "I thought you would never finish that cigaret!"

Do you think the rudeness on the part of the lady who was waiting was justifiable?

CURIOUS IN PORTLAND

★ ★ ★

DEAR CURIOUS: Rudeness is never "justifiable," but it is sometimes understandable.

★ ★ ★

CONFIDENTIAL TO H. J.: Everyone (and I do mean everyone) has problems of some kind. The healthy people are those who recognize this fact, and seek solutions. Sometimes the "solutions" require professional help.

★ ★ ★

The unhealthy people are those who deny they have problems. Sadly enough, they become "sicker," because problems do not just disappear. They have to be resolved.

Son or Husband Has Nothing to Wear? Materialize a Nehru in Few Simple Steps

Next to a rousing good bargain nothing delights a woman more than to be able to make something out of nothing.

So we bring you the newest mod style for men and boys: The Nehru jacket and shirt. But the big news is that any woman can turn out a handsome Nehru jacket for her husband and her son — well, in time for dinner tonight! And, don't ever doubt. They'll love 'em.

★ ★ ★

At a recent party a man appeared in his new Nehru shirt and every man there had to try on the jacket. Talk about women parading before the mirror. Those busy executives had a ball.

All you have to do is dig out a jacket (summer weight for now) and buy a package of Bondex. (Kit of 10 tapes, 10 colors, 1¼ inch by 24 inches each, is perfect.) Try to select a coat having collar lined with self material.

Now — follow these simple directions:

- Turn up collar and cut it off along the fold-over line, leaving a stand-up collar.
- Now, heat dry iron to "wool" setting and iron a strip of Bondex on inside of collar, letting Bondex edge extend over ¼ inch to outside. This binds rough edge and trims at the same time.

★ ★ ★

- Iron-on a second strip of matching or contrasting color Bondex tape on outside.
- A third strip ironed on inside of collar provides extra stiffness, as well as a dash of color.

★ ★ ★

Removes buttons from coat and replace with brass buttons.

★ ★ ★

Edges of pockets are good places for an additional touch of tape for color and design. If you wish, decorate your hero with a tape and button model on the breast pocket.

Insects Okay With Wife

LEXINGTON, Mass. (AP) — Mrs. Howard E. Evans isn't bugged by bugs. With her husband and father both entomologists and her three children also interested in the field, she is used to having insects around the house.

Her husband, Dr. Howard E. Evans, Curator of Insects at the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Harvard, has about 7,000 specimens in his collection.

Mrs. Evans taught biology before she was married. As a hobby, she embroiders insects on cushion covers. She is currently working with her husband on a biography of Prof. William Morton Wheeler, a specialist on ants, who died in 1937.

MRS. J. W. McBREARTY

Bride From Illinois

Pontiac Man Wed

James William McBrearty, son of Mrs. A. M. McBrearty of Ogemaw Road and James W. McBrearty Jr. of Bradenton, Fla., was married recently in Park Ridge Community Church, Park Ridge, Ill. His bride is Deborah Clare Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Cook of that city.

For the ceremony the bride selected a floor length gown of satin complemented with full length mantilla veil and vertical Chantilly lace trim.

Robert Leutheuser of Ann Arbor stood as best man for his brother-in-law. Catherine O'Connell was maid of honor. Completing the list of attendants were Marjorie Lee, Barbara Lewis, John Swain and Richard L. Cook Jr., the bride's brother.

A champagne buffet in the home of the senior Cooks followed the vows. The couple has returned to classes at Southern Illinois University.

Shellac Bars Dirt

Shelves are always needed. If you put up a new one, coat the wood immediately with a thin coat of fresh, clear shellac. That will keep dirt from working into the wood. Later you can decide on a final finish.

MRS. RODGER L. CURRY

Currys Married in Ortonville

Ortonville Baptist Church was the setting Saturday for an exchange of vows uniting the Rodger Leon Currys (nee Karla Jeanne Burget).

For the early evening rite, the bride chose a gown of peau de soie appliqued with Chantilly lace and highlighted with a Sabrina neckline and long sleeves.

★ ★ ★

To secure her elbow length veiling, she chose a lace petaled headpiece with crystal droplet accents.

A cascading arrangement of roses, centered with an orchid, comprised the bride's bouquet.

★ ★ ★

Ruth Babbitt was maid of honor for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion T. Burget of Oakwood Road, Brandon Township with Ona Benwell and Helen Adams as bridesmaids.

LeRoy Curry was best man for his brother. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Curry of Salem, Ill.

★ ★ ★

Ushers were Ora Conley and Donald Cooper.

★ ★ ★

The newlyweds, who were feted with a reception in the church parlors following the rite, will make their home in St. Louis, Mo.

Windows Need Wax

When the small fry mark up windows and screens with wax crayons, as they sometimes will, the marks may be removed by wiping with a soft cloth saturated in turpentine and following with a hot sudsy bath, then a good rinse.

Much Is New in Home Appliance Field

If you're a young bride just starting to keep house, or a woman married 20 years, you're interested in the latest housekeeping appliances.

Industry continually tries to upgrade its products: researchers try to anticipate what women want and give them more labor-saving devices every year.

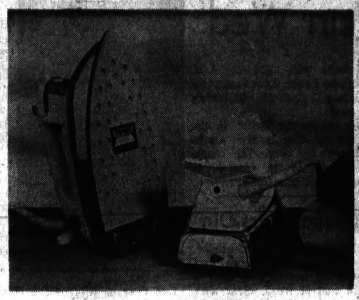

When you invest money in the items shown on this page, it is important to shop, to study and to consider all the possibilities. What suits your way of life is best for you, regardless of what your neighbor has.

★ ★ ★

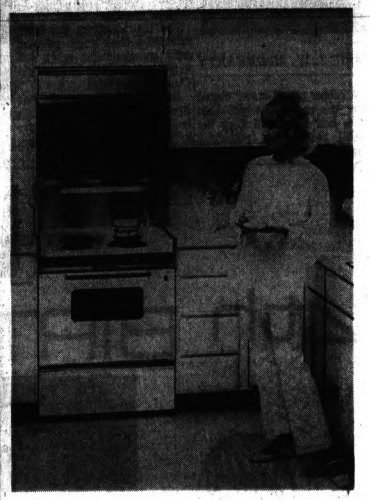

After purchasing a new appliance, be sure you read, understand and follow directions in the manuals that come with the new washer, range, refrigerator or whatever you buy.

Both upper and lower dish racks come up automatically when lid is raised on new top-loading dishwasher. Frigidaire's new low-front design with slanted flip-top lid shortens homemaker's reach to lower dish rack, making loading even easier. New mobile dishwasher shown has push-button controls which give choice of seven cycles and five options.

"Heel Rests" are now featured on five new steam-spray irons offered by Sunbeam. A three-inch 'V' provides extra stability when the iron is sitting up and a wider surface to rest it on when it is being placed in the upright position. Teflon-coated sole-plates are on some models and a simple way to change the cord for right-

Opaque black glass in the doors and both upper and lower ovens self-cleaning are desirable features of Hotpoint's new 30-inch Hallmark Range. An exhaust system is built into the unit.

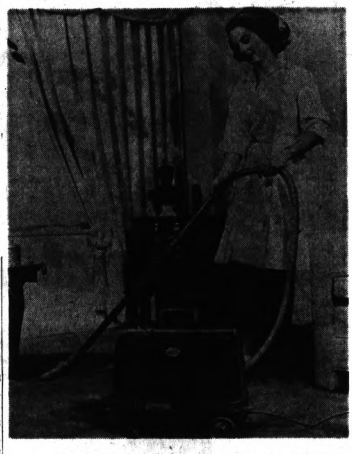

A Hotpoint Food Center fits kitchen new or old. This 21 cubic foot side-by-side refrigerator-freezer takes up no more space than older models with less capacity. Easy cleaning is assured with wheels that let it roll out. Available in four colors, it is frost-free.

Bright red socks and white shirts can be washed at the same time without producing nice pink shirts. With Hotpoint's new Duo-Load washer, you can wash two loads independently at the same time in two different tubs. Each has its own water supply, wash temperature and rinse, agitation and spin selection.

Weighing only six pounds and measuring 36x12 inches is a new handy all-steel portable ironing table. Over the open mesh top goes a color-coordinated pad and cover. This is the answer for the quick touch-up, for dorms, apartments, cottages, and traveling. Made by J. R. Clark Co., a subsidiary of General Housewares.

Styled like a briefcase with tools right inside the unit is a new vacuum cleaner by Sunbeam. It's slim enough to move between the furniture easily and so well-balanced it will stand upright even on steps. The deluxe model reels in its own cord and indicates when the oversized dust bag is full.

BPW Group Announces Ambitions Travel Agenda

Plans to attend the activities of the National Business Women's week (Oct. 20-26) were discussed at Tuesday's meeting of the Pontiac Business and Professional Women's Club. Mrs. John Spears opened her Hatfield Road home for this event.

Among the plans are included participation in the District 10 meeting on Oct. 20 at St. John's Armenian Church in Southfield.

On Oct. 26, members of this group will attend the awards banquet at the Statler Hilton Hotel, Detroit.

Hostesses for Tuesday's meeting were Lulah McCully, Mrs. Spears, Mrs. George Brinkman and Mrs. Grace Olsen.

Norfolk Suits 'In'

Younger teen-age males are showing a great deal of enthusiasm for Norfolk suits with panels, belts and interesting pocket treatments. These casual suits have the added advantage of the coat being adaptable as a sport jacket, the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear reports.

Settler's Farm Still in Family

SUDBURY, Mass. (AP) — The eighth generation of the Walker family is not only still living in the old homestead built in 1743, but descendant Robert G. Walker is still farming the 40 acres with horses.

The Misses Elizabeth and Marjorie Walker, his sisters, run the house while he, with the aid of three handsome Belgian sorrels that he raised from colts, cultivates the fields.

The farm was hewn out of the wilderness by Thomas Bogle soon after his arrival in the Massachusetts Bay Colony from Glasgow, Scotland, in the early 1700s. When Azariah Walker married Miranda Bogle in 1826, he bought the Bogle homestead, which remains in the family to this day.

Leaven Alarm With Bit of Humor

By BETTY CANARY

I, for one, am going to spend some time before my television screen this winter. And, not just to keep up with the news. What I plan on watching are the commercials. All the whimsey and inventiveness seem to be concentrated there and it can give one a few seconds of relief from the programs that come thudding across the screen.

I need a bit of whimsey, don't you? Aren't you tired of viewing everything with alarm?

It seems to me that we grow more serious every day — too serious. Surely, there are so many grave defects in our society and so many concerns and worries that one cannot accept lightly, but, all I ask is, must we look upon all the problems — the pinpricks as well as the jarring blows — with the same degree of seriousness?

After all, one can hardly laugh off the threat of nuclear war or the crisis in our cities or malnutrition or the population explosion. However, is it realistic to line them up equally with burned toast or flat tires or the unconfirmed rumor that many of our high government officials dye their hair?

For example, a new bride told me she had boiled corn on the cob for an hour and a half and the darned stuff never did get tender. Her mother was angry when I laughed. She was actually disturbed because she felt she had failed as a mother — failed her daughter because she hadn't taught her to cook corn!

Or, take the current teen-age fashion of wearing Indian cottumes. Need we be so grim about this? What is grim about a beaded headdress? Does it really have to be explained or criticized or defended? Why can't we just have some fun with it?

Should we equate Johnny's backing the car into a mailbox with student unrest? Is the baby smearing peanut butter in his hair really in the same crisis league with the revolt in Czechoslovakia?

Must we view with the same repugnance a toddler scribbling with crayons on the living room walls as we do the writer or graffitti on government office buildings?

I wonder what has happened to our national sense of humor. It is a part of our heritage, this ability to laugh at ourselves.

This charming Christmas card for New Horizons of Oakland County, Inc. was designed by Nina Collins. The sale of cards this year is a new venture for the Women's Auxiliary of the organization. Polly's Pointers

Try These Easy Ways

DEAR POLLY — Like most women, I always had a great deal of trouble putting in or removing screens until my son showed me a few tricks. With a soft pencil, carefully mark the place for the screw. Drive a small nail about ¼-inch or less into the mark.

To remove the nail, put a magazine or something similar under the hammer's claw to prevent scarring of the wood as you pull it out. Rub the threads of the screw on a bar of soap, insert into the nail hole and it goes in with no trouble at all.

★ ★ ★

If a screw is hard to remove because it won't start, give it a good turn the wrong way to tighten. That will often break it loose. If it is in metal and no "penetrating" oil is handy, pour a little lighter fluid around it, give it a ¼-inch turn the wrong way and then try it the right way. — STELLA

★ ★ ★

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — What can I do with a dozen new carpet samples? Those measuring 14x18 inches are in various shades of gold, one red one is 14x34 inches and another is 14x66 inches. I do hope some of the readers who have proved so resourceful in providing wonderful answers to problems will help me. — MARJORIE

DEAR POLLY — and Marion — I, too, received a new vinyl raincoat full of wrinkles. The manufacturer had included a tag advising that one put the garment in the clothes dryer, set at the lowest heat, and allow it to toss around for no longer than a minute.

It did take several minutes before I was satisfied but, of course, there is danger of leaving the garment in too long. Watch it constantly and hang up on a wooden coat hanger immediately after removing from the dryer.

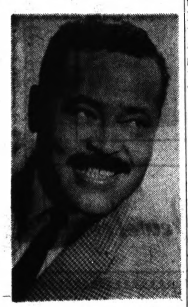

★ ★ ★

This remedy should have been "old hat" to me. It was the way I used to treat my children's plastic pants and little suits with plastic linings. The heat makes the plastic soft and pliable, and removes the wrinkles at the same time. Do watch carefully. — ARLENE

Pre-Patching Tint

If you've broken the plaster of a wall when trying to hang a picture, here's one way to fix it without repainting: Mix shades of food coloring in the patching plaster until you've arrived at the color that most nearly matches the wall.

Sedentary Habits Accelerate Aging in Our Society

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — "Executive obsolescence," due to premature senility, is common phenomenon in our society, Dr. Alton Ochsner informed the American Geriatric Society meeting here.

He is surprised that it does not occur more often and much earlier in America since "we do everything possible to accelerate aging and encourage senescence."

★ ★ ★

"We have become a sedentary people who eat, drink, and smoke too much and exercise too little, only sporadically, or not at all," he said. Ochsner is professor emeritus at Tulane University School of Medicine.

This Dance King Is Not Dancing

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — The Girls' League of Grand Junction high school sponsored a dance and chose a member of the football squad as "king."

But the king, John Puckett, co-captain of the football team last season, was unable to dance. His leg was in a cast from an injury.

The Shape Comes Back

By JEANNE NELSON

Wednesday's seamiest story was unfolded before the press with little fanfare but much imagination as J. L. Hudson's presented a capsule version of its complete line-for-line collection of international designs.

Without exception, the message is "SEAMS are what's happening."

The evidence was clear before us as models slithered back and forth in the Plaza Room of the Pontchartrain Hotel, wearing the designs of such notables as Cardin, Dior, Ungaro, Saint Laurent and Courreges.

As can be expected, treatments vary with individual designers, but whether it's Cardin's "X" silhoutte or Ungaro's definition of the arched curve; in the final analysis, it's the SEAM that counts.

WAISTS RETURN

This seaming is used as interesting detail as well in a number of cases, but its primary purpose is SHAPE. There is just simply no more hiding the less-than-perfect figure in box-like sheaths anymore. The glaring truth is — waists are no longer hinted at — but exposed for what they are.

Fads last a season; trends, five years or more. Shape is a trend, the whole transition back to the feminine form has been creeping up in the gradual manner that trends follow. It will not be denied.

The seaming effects this year bear out the gentle way of change. The graceful curved ones are kinder and less obvious, but unmistakably the forerunners of what is yet to come.

* * *

Realizing that the complete freedom women have become used to in the past, designers at this point seem to be compromising with a long and lean shape that follows the figure without constricting it entirely.

* * *

With most, belts are optional because of line. However, there is strong suggestion of their becoming more and more important with the entrance of splashy jewel and hardware on large buckles and the belt as well.

* * *

Suit and pants suit jackets are long and slender with many of them echoing the tunic look. Slacks are full at ankle with some even cuffed. Sleeves in both dresses and coats are long and tightly fitted to the wrist.

BERET BACK

The beret is back in full glory; this time worn way back and flat over the nape. The helmet too, is attracting lots of attention. One shown yesterday was attached to its matching jersey sport shirt and discarded with a zip.

* * *

Fabrics include sheer brocade for evening along with satin and lots of jersey and gabardint for daytime.

* * *

A new precedent will be set Friday when Hudson's presents its complete designer collection at two formal shows in the new Oakland Mall store, Troy. Hours are 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Until now, this international group has been shown exclusively at the main store where it will be presented at two shows on Saturday.

Entitled "Campus Christmas," this year's yuletide card of the Michigan Heart Association is a reproduction of an original water color by Frederick Simper of Spring Road, West Bloomfield Township. Proceeds are used for research by the Association, now in its 20th year of service.

Masterful Gibson Outduels Maestro

Cards' Hurler Sets Record in Taming Bengal Hitters

THE PONTIAC PRESS
SPORTS

RECORD PERFORMANCE — St. Louis pitcher Bob Gibson smiles as he receives congratulations from catcher Tim McCarver after striking out 17 Detroit batters yesterday en route to a 4-0 victory in the first game of the World Series in St. Louis. The 17 whiffs set a Series record.

By JERE CRAIG
Sportswriter, Pontiac Press

ST. LOUIS — Maestro Denny McLain last week suggested the tempo: Wednesday afternoon "Master" Bob Gibson had the beat.

It was pitcher-organist McLain who said in Baltimore that he hoped the Tigers could humiliate the defending champion St. Louis Cardinals in the 1968 World Series.

Yesterday, under a hot Missouri sun, a record 54,692 Busch Memorial Stadium crowd saw the hard-throwing Gibson humble the Detroiters for a record 17 strikeouts and a 4-0 opening game victory.

Although the names were the same, this wasn't the talented team of Tigers that breezed to a club record 103 wins in capturing the American League pennant.

VERY LITTLE AT BAT

At bat they could do very little with the moving slants of the Cardinals' 22-game winner. Their first baserunner was cut down attempting to take second as a hit-and-run maneuver misfired in the opening inning. Their vaunted power could produce just one two-bagger and four singles, plus one other runner on a walk.

* * *

In the field the Bengals weren't even a semblance of the surehanded, quick reacting club whose defense was a major factor in coasting to the AL title by 12 games.

This afternoon Mickey Lolich goes against Nelson Briles of the Cardinals in game No. 2.

Manager Mayo Smith of the Detroiters wouldn't admit that his club showed signs of nervousness.

"I didn't think they were tight," Smith stated after the game. "A good pitcher will make you look tight," he added.

ADMIT BEING NERVOUS

But several of the players confirmed that they were nervous in their first Series game. Only Norm Cash of the nine Detroit starters had any previous World Series experience. That consisted of four fruitless pinch hitting tries with the Chicago White Sox in 1959.

Most, however, seemed to settle down as the game progressed.

But there was another factor that the Bengals agreed upon that also had an important bearing upon their showing.

* * *

"This is one of the worst parks I've played in for following the ball in the field," Cash stated. Veteran Al Kaline chimed in, "They built it (the stands) too low behind the plate. You can't pick up the ball off the bat."

* * *

Adding to the problem was the fact that the hot sunny day had many of the spectators wearing light-colored clothing, and it also was causing a glare for the fielders. The infield is deceptive, too.

"The grass is rough (probably from football and soccer) and fast, but the ball stays down," Cash said.

The veteran first sacker drew the Tigers's third error of the game when he didn't get down on Roger Maris's hard-hit bouncer in the fifth inning.

The first misplay occurred in the third inning when speedster Lou Brock set sail for second base while McLain was pitching to Curt Flood with two out.

* * *

Catcher Bill Freehan's weak throw bounced into center field, enabling Brock to make third. But he was stranded as Flood popped to Mickey Stanley at shortstop.

The other error was more costly. With Maris and Tim McCarver at second and first, respectively, in the fourth, Mike Shannon sent a line drive to short left field where it died on the grass in front of onrushing Willie Horton.

I couldn't see it, Horton confessed. When he had located the ball, it had bounced off of his glove and was behind him. Maris scored easily. McCarver steamed into third and Shannon took second.

DRILLS SINGLE

On the very next pitch Julian Javier drilled a shot past the drawn-in Cash at first base. A good fielder, Cash reacted a bit slowly on the ball bit it's questionable whether he had any play on the ball.

Both McCarver and Shannon scored, giving the Cardinals a 3-0 lead and forced Smith to lift McLain for a pinch-hitter in the sixth inning, only the fourth time all year the sturdy right-hander failed to go past five innings in a game.

Shannon, incidentally, was the Redbirds' runs batted in leader this year with 79. McLain fanned him with McCarver on third base and one out in the second.

"He hit the same pitch for the single in the fourth, a fast ball up and in," the Tiger ace reported later.

After retiring the first four St. Louis hitters, McLain gave up a long blast to the center field wall that went for a triple by McCarver, and Brock reached third on a fielder's choice, stolen base and Freehan's error. But, McLain was equal to the occasion both times.

However, his faulty control, the defense and timely hits by Shannon and Javier on consecutive pitches in the fourth handed Gibson all the cushion he needed.

Bullet Bob Too Hot for Tigers to Handle

ST. LOUIS — Bob Gibson spent the evening before his first start in the World Series at a small Italian restaurant with his family. Denny McLain spent it playing the organ at a local night spot.

And, maybe, that's why Gibson was the hero of Wednesday's opening World Series game, winning his confrontation with Detroit's 31-game victor while striking out a record 17 batters in St. Louis' 4-0 triumph.

* * *

He set the Tigers down on five hits, tied a Series record with his sixth consecutive victory and broke the strikeout record of 15 set by Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1963.

"In the early innings I didn't think I was pitching strong," the 32-year-old Gibson said in the dressing room, his sweat-soaked cap still jammed on his head. "I asked Tim (catcher Tim McCarver) about it, and he agreed I wasn't as strong."

But over the first three innings, Gibson struck out seven Tigers.

* * *

"I didn't feel strong, but I did have real good control," said Gibson, looking for an explanation for all the strikeouts. "You know, getting more strikeouts doesn't necessarily mean you pitched a better game."

And so, Gibson proceeded to mow down the Tigers, getting Al Kaline looking in the fourth and Don Wert on a called strike in the fifth.

BEGAN TIRING

Then, his aching arm, tired by 305 innings of work during a regular season that brought him 22 victories — 13 by shutout — began to bother him.

"I got tired about the sixth and my arm ached," Gibson explained. "I guess every pitcher complains about his arm. It aches all the time — sometimes in three spots, all around the elbow. It never really goes away.

"But I never change anything."

The only thing that changed was Gibson's rising strikeout total — 14 after eight innings.

Mickey Stanley led off the ninth with a single, but Al Kaline became strikeout victim No. 15 on a 1-2 pitch. Then Norm Cash came to the plate. The count went to 1 and 2, before Cash fouled off three straight pitches and then took another ball.

THEN NO. 16

Gibson then fired another — and Cash swung and missed. No. 16.

"That's when I knew something was going on," Gibson said.

He didn't notice the crowd rising to give him a standing ovation. But he did notice McCarver.

* * *

"Tim came out in front of the plate and wouldn't go back," said Gibson. "I didn't know what to make of it, so I looked at the scoreboard and then I knew."

The message board spelled out the fact that Gibson had broken the record Koufax had set against the New York Yankees.

And, then, Willie Horton stepped to the plate. The count went to 2 and 2. Gibson fired — and umpire Tom Gorman signaled for a called third strike. No. 17.

Take heed all you Swami lookers. Our leader, Swami Spears has lost his position, a spot he has held without dispute for two years.

By virtue of his bushel full of pickings last week, Swami Craig has moved to the head of table and the two games which put him there were his confidence in Purdue and the Bears.

More changes however of note, as Swami Kearns shot ahead of Swami Vogel into third place in the race for honors, and this week's schedule looks like another humdinger which could alter the entire grapevine.

There's more agreement in the prep rangs, but there's plenty of difference of opinion in college and pro games. Here's how the Swamis see it.

Top Valley Teams in Action

Central Plays Host to Strong Saginaw 11

Something has to give and the giving will come tomorrow night when four of the top five teams in the Saginaw Valley Conference square off.

The big one is at Bay City Central where Midland will provide the opposition. The other big one is at Pontiac Central where the Chiefs will entertain the Trojans from Saginaw.

HOLDS FIRST

Midland owns the lead in the SVC with a 3-0 record, while Saginaw and Bay City Central have played one less conference game and are 2-0 in league competition. Pontiac Central and Flint Southwestern share fourth at 2-1.

The games could also produce a shuffling of the lineup in the Class A Associated Press football poll. In that poll, Bay City Central is ranked No. 1, Saginaw is No. 3 and Midland is No. 7.

★ ★ ★

Another game in the SVC tomorrow has Bay City Handy at Flint Southwestern, while Arthur Hill entertains city rival Saginaw MacArthur in a non-leaguer. Flint Northern and Flint Central are idle.

WOLVES TOPS

Once again, Bay City Central, the defending champion, appears to be the cream of the crop. The Wolves have rolled up 114 points in crushing three opponents and they are favored to add Midland's name to their list of victims.

★ ★ ★

While BC Central has romped, Midland has had a much tougher time. The Chemics edged Pontiac Central, 13-6, Flint Southwestern, 7-6, and last week blanked Flint Central, 20-0. The Chemics defense, admittedly good, will have its hands full against the Wolves.

After that opening loss to Midland, the Chiefs have come up with wins over Flint Northern and Bay City Handy and they'll be in top shape, physically, for the Trojans.

WORKING BETTER

"Our offensive line has been blocking much better," offered coach Paul Dellerba after the Handy game.

★ ★ ★

However, defense is the Chiefs' forte. Dellerba admits the key to the game tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. will be how well the Chiefs contain the potent Saginaw offense.

The Chiefs like the ground game and with the offensive line working better, the Trojans are likely to see most of the fine PCH running backs.

Leading the PCH offense is quarterback Rollie Garcia, who also doubles on defense, while the running game has been boosted by the performance of Jerry Hinsperger and Horace Davis.

W. Lake vs. Stevenson

Northern Visiting Farmington

Pontiac Northern's strong Huskies, while admittedly down but by no means out, take their gridiron show to Farmington for an afternoon game tomorrow as they try to keep their hopes of winning the Inter-Lakes League title alive.

The Huskies can still win it, or at least get a piece of it, providing they can win their remaining four league contests.

ROUGH ROAD

That's no easy task. The 3:30 date at Farmington tomorrow should be easy, but after that come Walled Lake and Waterford, a couple of the strongest teams in the county.

While Northern is at Farmington, Waterford (2-1) entertains Southfield Lathrup (0-2-1), while the key game finds unbeaten Walled Lake (3-0) tangling with unbeaten Livonia Stevenson (3-0).

STRONG DEFENDERS

Both Walled Lake's Vikings and the Spartans of Stevenson are blessed with strong defensive squads, but it appears that the Vikings have an offense capable of denting the Livonia stronghold.

★ ★ ★

Stevenson is fresh from a 6-2 win over PNH and is likely to be sky-high for the Vikings, who polished off Waterford last week, 28-7.

PACE VIKINGS

Halfbacks Bill Welsh, Bob Zaebst and John Orosey have provided the spark for the Vikings and Livonia will have to contain those three to stay in the title race.

★ ★ ★

The Spartans are strong, also. They have 215-pound Dale Danver and 180-pound Jerry Detter to hammer at the defense, but defense is something the Vikings do well so they should be able to handle that pair of talented runners.

SCORING PROBLEMS

The Huskies have a solid defense, too. And on offense, they've moved the ball but a combination of errors has prevented them from crossing the goal line with any frequency or consistency.

★ ★ ★

The Huskies have only four touchdowns in posting a 1-1-1 record. Jerry Woods has two of them, while Hardiman Jones and quarterback Hukka have picked up one apiece.

Lathrup promises to give the Waterford Skippers an opportunity to flex their muscles after being manhandled last week by Walled Lake.

Steve Goit, with 24 points, and Mike Sheldon, with 18, are setting the pace for the Waterford squad.

High-Scoring Twosome in W-O Loop Showdown

There are a handful of games on the high school football menu this week that should whet the fans' appetites.

In what could be a wild one, Northville entertains West Bloomfield as these two explosive squads attempt to remain unbeaten in Wayne-Oakland League play.

SHOWDOWN SET

There's a showdown in the Southeastern Michigan Association where Ferndale (1-0) meets Royal Oak Kimball (1-0), and another in the Oakland A where league-leading Rochester takes on Romeo, owner of a 1-0-1 mark in league play.

★ ★ ★

West Bloomfield is coming off a 60-25 win over Milford and officials may have to use a computer to keep tabs on the scoring at Northville.

HOT AVERAGE

For three games, West Bloomfield is averaging slightly more than 40 points each time out, while Northville is averaging just a shade over 35 a game while piling up a 3-0 record.

★ ★ ★

Also hinging on the game could be a spot among the top 10 teams in the Class B Associated Press poll. Both are among the top 20 teams.

Individually, Barry Deal of Northville and Terry Conley of West Bloomfield could put on quite a show. Both have scored 42 points this fall and they share the runner-up spot in the Oakland County scoring race.

Elsewhere in the W-O, Kettering's Captains (0-3) are favored to win their first game against visiting Clarkston (1-2), Bloomfield Hills Andover (3-0) is a choice over Milford (2-1) and Clarenceville is given the nod over Brighton.

★ ★ ★

Rochester's Falcons sit atop the O-A with a 2-0 record and they're a solid choice to get past Romeo. The Falcons have a lot of offense in quarterback Mike Sealy and his running mates Russ Gill, Gary Miller and Ron Thiel.

ORION HOME

Lake Orion (0-2) will try to get on the winning trail in the league by entertaining Clawson (1-1), while Troy (1-0-1) is visiting Avondale (0-2) and Utica (0-1-1) is at Madison (1-0-1).

★ ★ ★

Ferndale's Eagles, ranked No. 4 in the Class A poll, are 3-0 on the season and a good bet to stop Kimball (2-1), which is 1-0 in league play.

Southfield, also 1-0 in the SEMA, entertains Hazel Park (1-2) while Berkley (0-3) visits Birmingham Seaholm (0-3).

In a couple of games in the Northwest Suburban League, Birmingham Groves entertains Livonia Franklin and Wayne John Glenn visits Oak Park. On Saturday, Detroit Thurston visits North Farmington for a 2 p.m. contest. Both are 1-0 in league play.

★ ★ ★

In other games tomorrow night, Birmingham Brother Rice, a winner last week after two straight losses, visits Detroit De LaSalle, Monroe is at Royal Oak Dondero, Dundee is at South Lyon and Ortonville plays host to Byron.

PCH's Harriers 2nd in Triangular Meet

The Chiefs of Pontiac Central are now 4-2 following their second-place finish in a triangular cross-country match against Bay City Handy and Flint Northern.

Handy took first with 25 points, followed by PCH (37) and Northern (68).

Central's Jon Costello took individual honors with a time of 10:40. Teammate Ken Long was third at 11:07.

Trevino Trails by Stroke

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — One shot off the pace, U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino said today he could handle British rain and weather and he expects to win the $55,000 first prize as the Alcan golfer of the year.

The 28-year-old Trevino from Horizon City, Tex., went into the second round of the 72-hole medal play Alcan Tournament, only one shot behind Bobby Cole of South Africa and Tommy Horton of England.

His two-under-par round Wednesday in driving rain was better than it looked.

"I missed one putt from about two feet or so," said Trevino. "Why? Some lady said to me she had a shilling (12 cents) on me and I said to her: Look lady, I've got $55,000 on me and next thing I know I miss the putt."

Bob Murphy of Nichols, Fla., also fired a 72. Gay Brewer of Dallas, Tex., had a 75 while leading U.S. money winner Billy Casper of Peackock Gap, Calif., shot a 77.

Other american scores were: Gardner Dickinson, North Palm Beach, Fla., 77; Bert Yancey, Tallahassee, Fla., 77; Tom Weiskopf, Bedford, Ohio, 78; George Archer, Gilroy, Calif., 79; Miller Barber, Sherman, Tex., 80; and Frank Beard, Louisville, Ky., 86.

Olympic Plans Unaffected by Rioting

Games Camp Far Removed From Fighting

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Thousands of Olympic athletes from more than 600 nations swapped pins, watched movies and played games in the Olympic village Wednesday night, impervious of bloody rioting on Mexico City streets.

"We know nothing about it—we are secluded out here, in our own shangri la," said Mac Hickox of Boston, a member of the U.S. canoeing team.

★ ★ ★

Told of more shooting in a Mexico City suburb and new threats to holding the Games, starting Oct. 12, most sportsmen merely shrugged their shoulders and said:

"It is too bad—but it is Mexico's problem."

Massimo Gasini, an Italian basketball player, dismissed the new violence with the comment: "Many countries have the same problem with students, including Italy."

NOT AVAILABLE

Ranking Olympic officials, including President Avery Brundage of the International Olympic Committee, could not be reached immediately for comment on the threat to the Games.

However, a top press spokesman, after reaching his superior, made the statement:

★ ★ ★

"There is no thought of cancelling the Games. Did they cancel the World Series in the United States because Columbia students rioted? Did they cancel the political conventions because of riots in Chicago."

★ ★ ★

The athletes—more than 7,000 are expected to compete in the Games continuing through Oct. 26—were either eating dinner in the various dining halls or lounging around the international club, the village social center, when news of the new riots reached them.

★ ★ ★

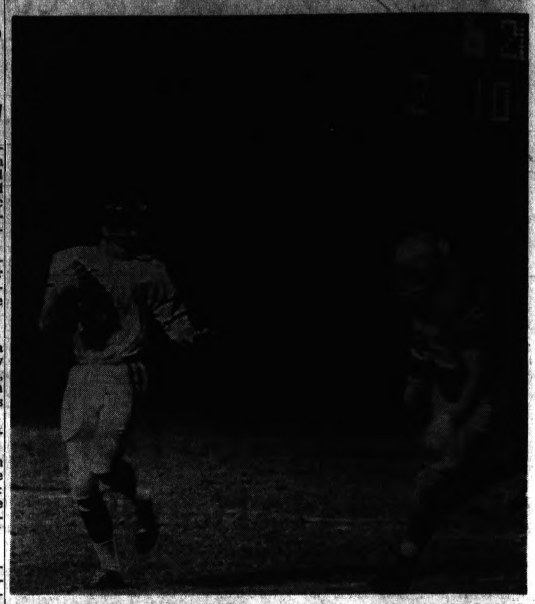

The Mexican television stations—at the height of the riots—went ahead with their regular programming. One had a comedy sketch on the screen. On another, an opera singer was belting out an aria. A third showed an Olympic preview.

Later, Raymundo Cuervo, coordinator of radio, press and television for the Games, issued an informal statement to The Associated Press via the telephone.

★ ★ ★

"We are going ahead with our preparations for the Games," Cuervo said. "We have much to do and a little time to do it. From what we have heard, we see no immediate danger to the Games opening on schedule."

He said he thought reports of shooting in the suburb of Tlatelolco were exaggerated.

BOMBS FROM A PISTOL — Here is Pistol Pete Mikolajewski, the bombing passer of the Dayton Colts who will face the Pontiac Firebirds Saturday night at Wisner Stadium. In this game two years ago, Dayton took a 21-0 lead before Pontiac came back to win 28-21. Shown in pursuit in that game is linebacker Steve Szabo. As noted by the scoreboard, Dayton led 21-6 at this point.

Dayton Pistol Has 'Bombs' to Throw

Pistol Pete, the Midwest Football League's most prolific passer in its seven year history, isn't taking pot shots at opponents this year. He's throwing bombs.

The Pontiac Firebirds found this out when Pistol Pete Mikolajewski threw four touchdown passes against them to win a 25-14 decision earlier for the unbeaten Dayton Colts.

However, the former Dayton University quarterback isn't new at throwing aerial bombs. He has been the league's leading passer for four years and this year he has more touchdowns in seven games than in 12 last season.

LIONS TAXI

Last year he threw 18 touchdowns after leaving Detroit Lions' camp as a taxi squad quarterback. The leading receiver in the league has been his flanker Chuck McElligott.

To date, he has 21 passing touchdowns in seven games, and unless the Firebirds, Flint and Lackawanna put a stop to the Dayton surge, he will guide the Colts to their first championship.

★ ★ ★

Miko went into Lions' camp at the end of the 1966 season, but with Milt Plum, Karl Sweetan, Tom Myers, Tim Jones all battling for a position, he was expendable.

The pros haven't quit looking at Pete however and presently there are two pro teams, one in the NFL and another in the AFL which have inquired about his services.

★ ★ ★

The Dayton-Pontiac series has been the most thrilling in six games between the two teams.

Pontiac has won 4 and lost 2 against him and most of the games have been last minute thrillers.

BIG RALLY

Two years ago at Wisner Stadium, the Colts raced to a 21-0 lead in the first and when the game ended Pontiac was on the winning side, 26-21 on a last second TD pass by Tommy Myers with 5,200 screaming fans watching.

FANS WATCHING

Last year, after Dayton rushed a 13-0 lead, the Firebirds came back on a touchdown pass from Bill Harrington to Fran Schapman to score a 19-13 upset in Dayton.

The first game this year, with Dayton leading 19-14, the Firebirds lost it on a blocked punt.

★ ★ ★

The Firebirds received a boost to their offense yesterday with the addition of former Purdue quarterback Doug Holcomb and the game Saturday night could develop into a battle between the two huge defensive lines.

A large section of Retirees will attend the game with proceeds from ticket sales to retirees to go to the 12 General Motors units of retirees in Oakland County.

★ ★ ★

Also, as part of the game, the Waterford band will entertain and 1969 model Pontiacs will be displayed.

At halftime, two World Series box seats for Monday's game at Tiger Stadium will go to some lucky fan.

Kickoff will be 7:30 p.m.

Detroit Harriers Win at OU

Taking three of the top 10 places, St. Anthony of Detroit streaked to victory yesterday in the Class B-C-D division of the fourth annual Oakland University High School Invitational cross-country run.

★ ★ ★

Jerry Sinkel of St. Anthony took individual honors with a 9:57 clocking, followed by teammates Dave Bujak (fifth) and Frank Krisak (seventh).

The other two members of the squad were Larry Szempels and Dean Opalka, who shared the 11th spot.

Jim Goodfellow of Oxford turned in a 10:08 time to pace the team to a runner-up finish in the event. Dennis Clack and Jim Acheson finished 9-10 for Oxford.

Cranbrook placed third and Bloomfield Hills Lahser fourth in the field of 14 teams.

Green, Bruins Still at Odds

Ted Seeking Better Terms in Contract

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins are ready to let hard-hitting defenseman Teddy Green sit and wait in his demand for re-negotiation of a two-year contract for the 1968-69 National Hockey League season.

"He can sit in Timbuktu as far as we're concerned," Boston General Manager Milt Schmidt said Wednesday night. "He signed a two-year contract, at his own insistence, last year and we expect him to honor it."

Green, one of the hardest hitting players in the NHL, walked out of the Bruins' training camp at London, Ont., when the club refused to re-negotiate terms for the second year of the contract.

He threatens to retire rather than play for the same money he received in 1967.

Late Touchdown Gives Sashabaw 7-0 Touch Win

A 30-yard touchdown pass from Tom Dabbs to Chuck Steinhelper with just two minutes left in the game powered unbeaten Sashabaw Products (2-0) to a 7-0 victory over Club One Spot (0-1) last night in Pontiac touch football action.

Steinhelper's catch made it 6-0 and a Dabbs pass to Chuck Daul produced the extra point.

In the other game, Latham Staffions (2-0) gained a forfeit win over King Briggs (0-2).

Lolich on Mound Today

Cards Facing Cycling Tiger

ST. LOUIS — Mickey Lolich will be the starting pitcher for the Detroit Tigers in the second game of the World Series today — if he can find a way to get to ball park.

He left all his motorcycles in Detroit.

★ ★ ★

But then maybe it's just as well. The latest one he's riding is a test cycle. All Lolich is supposed to do is see if he can blow it up while he's on it.

★ ★ ★

But Lolich, who has five motorcycles of varying shapes and sizes, and a 1¼-mile track on a plot of land near his home, takes all his motorcycle riding in stride — even if the Tigers management doesn't.

SOME STATIC

"I used to get some static," Lolich admitted before Wednesday's first Series game. "But it's been my hobby for eight years now and I have a definite fear of getting hurt. Besides, my two-year-old daughter usually rides with me so I'm not about to get myself hurt."

Meanwhile, Lolich is thinking about today's start against Nelson Briles of the St. Louis Cardinals, a pair currently taking a back seat to Denny McLain and Bob Gibson.

★ ★ ★

"That seems to be all I've been reading about," Lolich said. "But you don't get annoyed, you just sit back and wait for your time to come."

★ ★ ★

At the same time, Lolich, who won 17 games during the Tigers run for pennant, isn't about to take a back seat to anyone — even teammate McLain, the 31-game winner equally as famous for his pitching as his organ playing.

LIKES MUSIC

"You know," said Lolich, "I've been playing the drums recently and working real hard on them. I didn't know you could have so much going for you in the music field."

ON STAGE TODAY — Moving onto the World Series stage to take bows today are starting pitchers Nelson Briles (left) of St. Louis and southpaw Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers.

Today's Hurler Confident

Briles Has Tough Task to Follow

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Cardinals, using the same victory formula as in 1967, sent beetle-browed Nelson Briles out to hurl the second game of the 1968 World Series today against a Detroit Tiger team showing several signs of jitters.

★ ★ ★

The Tigers, stunned by Bob Gibson's record 17 strikeouts Wednesday, had southpaw Mickey Lolich to oppose Briles at Busch Memorial Stadium at 2 p.m. EDT.

The Cards beat the Boston Red Sox in the '67 series on three wins by Gibson and one by Briles.

GIBSON GOING STRONG

And you couldn't blame the Cards, after their opening-game 4-0 triumph behind Gibson, for feeling that Bullet Bob can pick up three wins again if he has to. That would mean all they would need to retain their world championship would be one win again for Briles.

★ ★ ★

Briles, a handsome ex-actor who had a 19-11 record this year, is confident but he isn't kidding himself that he can mow down the Tigers the way Gibson did.

"If you expect me to go out and pitch like he did," said Briles, "you're out of your everlovin' mind."

If he doesn't, that will be just swell with the Tigers.

It would not be accurate to say Gibson made the Tigers "panicky," because pros like the Tigers don't panic. But, although Tiger Manager Mayo Smith derided the idea his club was too tense, the signs of jitters were there — errors, miscues, and even a bit of quarreling.

McLAIN COMPLAINS

Denny McLain, Detroit's 31-game winner who was the beaten pitcher Wednesday, supplied the post-game complaint. Usually fun-loving Denny, who relaxed the night before the game by playing the organ in a hotel dining room until midnight, was mighty unhappy about the way he was taken out of the game by Smith.

★ ★ ★

In fact, he was peeved that he was taken out of the game at all.

"A guy who pitches 300 and some innings just don't get yanked out like that," said McLain, adding:

"He (Smith) never even told me I was out. He just sent a guy up to pinch-hit for me."

A LITTLE WILD

As for what happened to McLain, Freehan agreed with the general consensus that brash Denny had not pitched badly — just a bit too wildly.

"I've never seen him so wild," said the catcher. "He was wild high."

TROUBLED TIGER — Detroit Tigers' manager Mayo Smith (10) talks with pitcher Dennis McLain about the game situation after McLain had walked St. Louis' Tim McCarver on four pitches in the fourth inning. After Smith departed, the Cardinals touched McLain for three runs and went on to a 4-0 victory.

HITS THE DECK — Detroit's Al Kaline lands on his back as he ducks from a pitch served up by St. Louis' Bob Gibson in the fourth inning of their Series opener yesterday. Kaline managed one hit — a double — in four trips to the plate, but he fanned three times.

THREE-BAGGER — Catcher Tim McCarver of the St. Louis Cardinals slides safely into third base with a triple in the second inning against the Detroit Tigers in the Series opener yesterday in St. Louis. Taking the throw from the outfield is third baseman Don Wert. Umpire is Bill Kinnamon.

What Tigers Had to Say:

Mayo Smith shook his head sadly when asked to comment on Bob Gibson's record 17 strikeouts against his Detroit Tigers in Wednesday's opening World Series game.

"It's like the old story about asking Mrs. Lincoln how she liked the play," commented Smith.

McLAIN SAID:

Denny McLain wouldn't take anything away from Gibson's victory. "That was the greatest performance I've ever seen," he said.

STANLEY SAID:

Mickey Stanley, the regular Tiger centerfielder who is playing shortstop for the Series, got two hits off Gibson. "Both were breaking balls," he said. "He's definitely the best pitcher I ever faced."

HORTON SAID:

"His pitching was on a par with anything I've ever seen."

KALINE SAID:

"He had an excellent breaking ball," said Kaline. "I know he's a great pitcher, probably one of the greatest."

Odds Improve for Cardinals

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals were made 1¼ to 5 favorites by bookmakers Wednesday to win the World Series after their 4-0 victory over Detroit.

Bettors who select Detroit, however, will have to put up $5 to win $12 if the Tigers take the Series.

St. Louis was favored 6½ to 5 to win the second game of the Series and Detroit was an 11½ to 10 underdog.

Police Arrest Ticket Scalpers

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Police arrested four adults and two juveniles Wednesday for scalping World Series tickets in the Busch Memorial Stadium area.

Police said witnesses reported some people offering tickets for sale asked as much as $30 for a $2 bleacher seat.

Series Means Career at End for Mathews

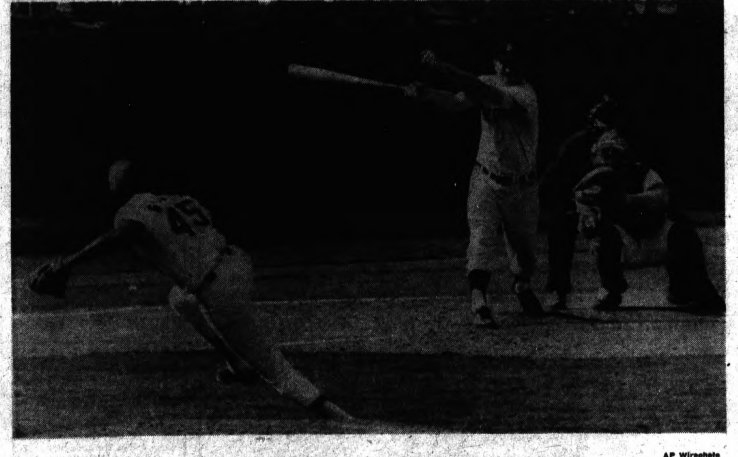

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The end of the World Series will mean the end of a long baseball career for Eddie Mathews of the Detroit Tigers.

"I've had 20 wonderful years in baseball, he said prior to Wednesday's game. "And the World Series is a wonderful way to go out."

★ ★ ★

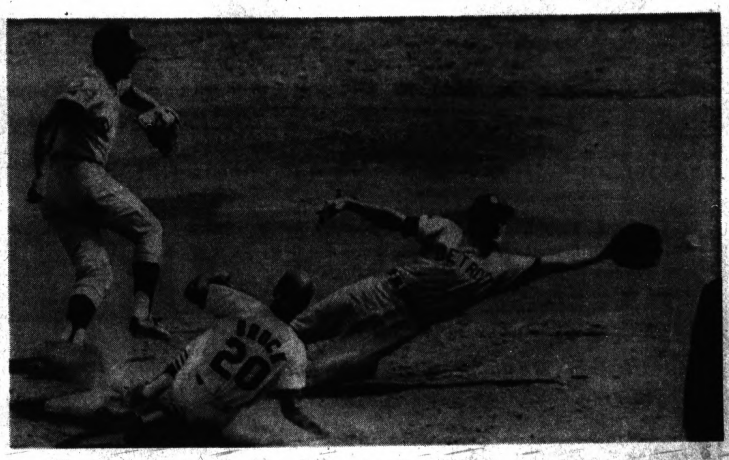

Mathews, who was a star with the Braves in Milwaukee and Atlanta before he joined the Tigers, got into Wednesday's game which Detroit dropped 4-0. He led off the eighth inning in place of Don Wert and became Bob Gibson's 14th strike-out victim.

Mathews said he will live in Milwaukee as a sales representative for a Detroit tool company.

AP Wirephoto

WHIFF MARK — St. Louis Cardinals' Bob Gibson set a World Series strikeout mark with this fast ball against Detroit's Norm Cash in the ninth inning of their Series opener yesterday in St. Louis. Cash swung and missed the fast ball and became the 16th Tiger to go down on strikes in the game. Gibson then added another, putting across a called third strike on Willie Horton to end the game. Catcher is Tim McCarver.

AP Wirephoto

CARD STEALER — Speedy outfielder Lou Brock of St. Louis made it to second with room to spare on this steal of second base yesterday in the third inning against the Detroit Tigers, and when the ball sailed past second baseman Dick McAuliffe, Brock moved over to third base. At left is shortstop Mickey Stanley.

Aerial Game Likely for Badgers, MSU

EAST LANSING (AP) — Both Michigan State and Wisconsin can be expected to take to the air when the two Big Ten football teams meet at Madison Saturday.

Wisconsin was beaten on the ground in its two nonconference games but did show some passing class.

The Badgers lost 55-7 to Arizona State and 21-17 to Washington. They were badly outrushed in both games, but against Arizona picked up 182 yards passing. Against Washington, they made 137 yards through the air to only 16 yards for Washington.

John Ryan, Wisconsin's senior quarterback, accounted for all the aerial yardage in the last game, hitting 16 of 35 attempts.

Ryan has a career mark of 118 completions in 282 tries for 1,359 yards.

TOP RUSHER

Best rusher on the Badger team is tailback Randy Marks, who has made 83 yards on 24 carries. Star rusher for State is sophomore Tommy Love with 168 yards net on 42 carries.

When tailback Don Highsmith or fullback Dick Berlinski hit their stride, they are expected to take some of the pressure off Love. Berlinski has 54 yards to date and Highsmith 58 yards.

* * *

MSU senior quarterback Bill Feraco has turned out to be more of a passer and a better runner than had been hoped for before the start of the season.

Feraco has hit 18 of 30 pass tries for 313 yards—a 60 per cent completion average. His best throw was the touchdown pass to end Al Brenner for 83 yards that broke open the game for the 28-10 win over Baylor.

* * *

Feraco has proved himself enough of a passing threat to keep the opposing defenses honest. They won't dare just jam up the line to try and stop the Spartan running attack.

The last time the two opponents met, Michigan State clobbered Wisconsin 35-7 at East Lansing.

ALTERNATE

In the workouts Wednesday, sophomores Scooter Longmire and Bill Triplett alternated with Feraco at quarterback.

Coach Duffy Daugherty has said he wants both his backup men to acquire game experience so he won't have to depend solely on one quarterback.

APGA Signs Tourney Pact

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Sea Pines Plantation executives signed a tournament agreement Wednesday with the newly formed American Professional Golfers Association.

The agreement calls for the $100,000 Heritage Golf Classic to be played at Sea Pines Nov. 27-30, 1969, over the new Harbour Town golf course.

Baun Scores 2 in Wings Win

Rookie Dan Lawson Gets First Goal

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) —Bobby Baun and Frank Mahovlich each scored twice as the Detroit Red Wings bombed their Fort Worth farm club 6-1 Wednesday night in an exhibition hockey game at Bowling Green.

Rookie defenseman Danny Lawson fired in the first Wings goal at 3:41 in the second period. Fred Speck of the Texas team, which plays in the Central Professional Hockey League, scored next.

The other goal for the National Hockey League team was scored by Alex Delvecchio.

Michigan Next Middies' Foe

Changes Are Planned for Wolverines

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Bill Elias, Navy's always optimistic head football coach, predicted Wednesday the Midshipmen will "jell and hurt some people" before the 1968 season is over.

"I don't know what week it will be, but it will happen," Elias told newsmen at his weekly football luncheon.

"We're not as bad . . . as the past two weeks indicate," he said as he reviewed Navy's first two games, a 31-6 loss to Penn State and a 49-15 licking from Boston College.

NO INDICATION

Elias wouldn't give any indication whether he thought the hope for improvement will come in time to boost Navy's chances Saturday in the game with Michigan.

If not, it may be a long afternoon for the Midshipmen.

* * *

Asked to compare the Wolverines with Boston College, Elias said he "would have to say Michigan is better than Boston College. The Big 10 teams are always tough."

The Navy coach plans a considerable realignment of his forces for the Michigan game.

He spoke of a changed game plan and a different defensive alignment, but refused to elaborate on what he had planned for the Wolverines.

* * *

The offense will be about the same as the first two games, with sophomore quarterback Mike McNallen, who has completed only 19 of 52 passes and had eight intercepted, again directing the attack.

"We're going to have to pass," Elias said when questioned about whether the Middies would continue to rely heavily on an air game.

* * *

"Our ground game hasn't worked that well.

Fullback Tom Daley may see only limited action because of a bruised knee, and flanker back Dan Pike has been working out at Daley's position so he can spell him if necessary.

If Pike switches to fullback, sophomore Karl Schwelm would move into the number one flanker position.

* * *

Schwelm emerged from obscurity in the Boston College game when he caught three passes, his first of the year, for a total of 99 yards.

Elias blames the almost total collapse of the Navy defense Saturday on "improper deployment" on his part and "my inability to get the team ready when apparently a top effort was needed to win."

LEADS CORSAIRS — Halfback Terry Ruffato, a 150-pound junior and his Waterford Mott teammates will be looking for their first win of the season when they take on Novi tomorrow. Mott is 0-2-1.

Mott Meets Novi

Top Area Prep Scorers to Clash

The Corsairs of Waterford Mott face a tough defensive problem when they take on Novi tomorrow afternoon.

Mott goes into the game at 0-2-1, while Novi (2-1) will be looking for its third victory.

And if Mott hopes to lay claim to victory, the squad will have to stop fleet halfback Jon VanWagner, a 5-10, 180-pounder, who is the current scoring leader in Oakland County.

* * *

In three games, VanWagner, a starter since he was a freshman, has picked up 44 points and holds a two-point edge over three other pointmakers.

SHARING SECOND

Saring the runner-up spot are Jim Thomas of Ferndale, Barry Deal of Northville and Terry Conley of West Bloomfield. Roy Lilley of Waterford Our Lady of Lakes is fifth at 38.

* * *

Mott's answer to VanWagner from a scoring standpoint is junior Terry Ruffalo, a speedy 150-pounder, who has tallied 19 points in three outings.

Russ Davis of Bay City Central heads the pack in the Saginaw Valley Conference with 36 points on six touchdowns.

Among the area stars, 5-5 Ron Thurshman of Port Huron Northern is setting the pace with 65 points and he and his teammates will entertain Utica Stevenson tomorrow night in an Eastern Michigan League contest.

Andover Boots Seaholm, 2-1

A pair of late goals by Pete Bowers and Kurt Hubert enabled Bloomfield Hills Andover (5-0) to down Birmingham Seaholm yesterday in a soccer game, 2-1.

* * *

Doug Smith and Mike Cotter picked up assists on Bowers' goal, while Bowers and Smith gave Hubert a hand on the winning goal.

* * *

Dave Koch and John McConnell turned in a smart job sharing the goalie post for Andover, while Tony May paced the Andover defense.

* * *

In another game, Rick Kohl scored three times — one on a penalty shot — And Ron Trapp picked up two goals as Bloomfield Hills Lahser downed Birmingham Groves, 5-1.

MSU Stages Soccer Meet

EAST LANSING (UPI) — The first annual Michigan State invitational soccer tournament will be held this weekend with four teams entered in the competition.

Friday's first-round pairings include Kent State against Illinois - Chicago Circle at 1 p.m. and Michigan State against Denver at 3 p.m. The title game will be at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Piston Coach Not Disturbed Over Record

DETROIT (UPI) — Pistons' coach Donnis Butcher isn't overly disturbed about his club's 1-5 mark in the tuneups for the 1968 National Basketball Association season. He's going with past performances.

* * *

Two years ago, the Pistons won nine of their exhibitions for their best mark since coming to Detroit. Then they went ahead and finished last in the Eastern Division of the NBA.

Last fall, the Pistons reversed matters.

* * *

They dropped their first six exhibitions and split the next six. But in the title chase, Detroit jumped off to its best start in a decade and went on to gain a spot in the playoffs.

Butcher figures one of the reasons for this year's mark in exhibition games — the latest loss a 142-113 defeat against Baltimore Tuesday night — is the missing Dave DeBusschere.

* * *

The former University of Detroit great is reported all set to go Saturday night against Cincinnati in Toledo, Ohio, after recovering from a twisted ankle suffered in August. Dave Bing, who was bothered by a charley horse Tuesday, also should be ready Saturday night.

* * *

"It's pretty hard to win without DeBusschere, but when we also have Bing out . . . well we're really in trouble," Butcher said.

Raiders Meet Boston

Chargers Next for Jets

By United Press International

Unpredictable Joe Namath will dip into his bag of tricks again Saturday night as the New York Jets battle the undefeated San Diego Chargers.

Namath, whose passing skills fluctuate between the extraordinary and the ridiculous, will be seeking to regain the form that has made him the American Football League's top quarterback. Last Sunday Namath had a disastrous day against the Buffalo Bills, throwing five interceptions, three being returned for touchdowns. The Bills went on to defeat the Jet's 37-35, knocking them into a first-place tie with Boston in the Eastern Division.

In New York's first two games Namath played well and the Jets beat a powerful Kansas City team and romped past the Patriots.

ONE OF THOSE DAYS

Last Sunday was just one of those days. As Namath himself put it, "I just wasn't reacting good." The Jets hope Namath can show San Diego some of the aerial heroics he is capable of.

The Chargers come in with a 3-0 record and a defense that has allowed only 37 points. Substitute fullback Gene Foster has added new life to San Diego's running game.

★ ★ ★

The steamrolling Oakland Raiders will be gunning for their 14th straight league victory over a span of two years when they entertain Boston Sunday. The running of Hewritt Dixon has been Oakland's big offensive weapon as the passing of all-pro Daryle Lamonica has slipped off.

Boston, fresh off a victory over Denver, will again look to Mike Taliaferro to supply the offensive punch.

BUFFALO UNDERDOG

The Bills will again be heavy underdogs when they take on the Kansas City Cheifs Saturday night. Buffalo quarterback Dan Darragh is hobbled by foot injuries and it is not known if he can play. The Chiefs have rolled up three wins in a row since losing to the Jets opening day. Len Dawson was back on the beam last week in a 48-3 victory over Miami. Robert Holmes continues to fill in sensationally for injured Mike Garrett.

Denver's Marlin Briscoe, the first Negro to play quarterback in the AFL, should get his first starting assignment against visiting Cincinnati Sunday after his successful debut last week. Briscoe capped an 80-yard scoring march late in the game by running the last 12 yards for a touchdown against Boston.

The expansion Bengals are going after an unprecedented third victory but will have some difficulty without injured fullback Tom Smiley.

Houston should get back to their winning ways when they take on the injury-riddled Dolphins. The Dolphins lost backup quarterback Rick Norton with a fractured hand last week.

Baltimore Sub Stars as Starter

Earl in Charge While John Unitas Heals

NEW YORK (AP) — Earl Morrall isn't playing second fiddle anymore. In fact, he's conducting the whole show with amazing gusto — all because of a pop in a million dollar arm.

Earl has been around the National Football League for 13 years — but generally as a backup quarterback.

★ ★ ★

And he appeared headed for a similar fate this season behind Johnny Unitas when acquired by the Baltimore Colts from the New York Giants in late August.

STARTING ROLE

But Earl had hardly adjusted to the Colt uniform when Unitas popped the chronically sore elbow on his throwing arm in an exhibition Sept. 7 — and all of a sudden the 34-year-old former Michigan State star was thrown into a starting role.

★ ★ ★

The Associated Press' NFL offensive player of the week has met the challenge admirably, leading the Colts to victories in their first three games and a share of the Coastal Division lead with Los Angeles.

★ ★ ★

Last Sunday, Earl connected on 14 of 22 passes for 189 yards and one touchdown in a 41-7 romp past Pittsburgh.

And, Morrall will probably get another chance Sunday to add on to his totals since it now appears that Unitas' injury may prolong his bench stay longer than originally expected.

There were several other sparkling offensive performances in the league Sunday. San Francisco's John Brodie, who has been bothered by a back injury, fired three touchdown passes against Atlanta and his 17 completions in 20 attempts matched the second highest game percentage in NFL history.

★ ★ ★

Los Angeles' Dick Bass carried 23 times for 124 yards — best in the league this season — and teammate Roman Gabriel riddled Cleveland with 17 of 34 passes for 194 yards and one touchdown.

★ ★ ★

Don Meredith of Dallas hit 15 of 22 for 231 yards and five touchdowns against Philadelphia, upping his season's total to 41 of 58 for 615 yards and seven TDs — best in the NFL.

★ ★ ★

New York's Fran Tarkenton passed for 264 yards, including a pair of scoring bombs covering 82 and 56 yards to Homer Jones against Washington.

Falcons Meet VanBrocklin

New Coach Prepares for Green Bay Tilt

ATLANTA (AP)—Norm Van Brocklin, the Atlanta Falcons new coach, spent his first day on the job Wednesday observing personnel, coaching techiques of his assistants and generally putting names and faces together.

Asked about opening his Atlanta coaching career with the Green Bay Packers in Atlanta Stadium Sunday, Van Brocklin replied, "There are no waltzes in the National Football League. You run into a new tiger every Sunday."

Van Brocklin, 42, one of pro football's most colorful characters, was given the job of building the hapless Falcons, who have lost 10 straight games, into a National Football League contender only Tuesday. He replaced Norb Hecker, who had coached the Falcons since their entry in the NFL in 1966.

Former Champs Among Leaders in Women's Golf

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Two women who have been two-time champions since the event was inaugurated in 1962 are among the leaders of the U.S. Golf Association's Senior Women's Amateur Tournament.

Mrs. Hulet G. Smith of Pebble Beach, Calif., the 1964 and 1965 queen and runner-up last year was in a three-way tie for the second position after Wednesday's chilly opening round over the Monterey Peninsula Country Club's Dunes course.

Mrs. Smith shot 82, two more than the day's medal effort, a five-over-par by Mrs. Philip J. Cudone of Myrtle Beach, S.C. Also at 82 were Mrs. Ruth McCullah of Pacific Palisades Calif., and Mrs. Douglass C. Coupe of Loudonville, N.Y.

Hoople Sees Defeat for Strong Coast 11's

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Upset Champion

Egad, friends, this Saturday may well go down in the annals of the 1968 season as "Upset Day!"

The Hoople System sees no less than four upsets of colossal proportions in the offing — um-kumph!

For the youthful Air Force eleven it will be two in a row as they trim the Stanford Indians, 31-28, on the latter's home grounds.

The underdog Syracuse club will prove themselves rude hosts as they eke out a 19-16 win over well-regarded UCLA.

SURPRISES

Another big surprise in the East will find West Virginia's Mountaineers rising to new heights as they down powerful Penn State, 34-28!

And now, kiddies, hold on to your seats. The gloom and doom that will pervade California following the defeats of Stanford and UCLA will reach the saturation point as the Miami (Fla.) Hurricanes shock the Southern California Trojans under the lights in Los Angeles Coliseum. We predict Miami will prevail by a two-point margin, 30-28—har-rumph!

Other contests worthy of special mention pit TCU against Arkansas in a Southwest Conference headliner, and Mississippi and Alabama in a Southeastern classic.

* * *

I predict a victory for Texas Christian, 24-22, and a return to the top rung for Ole Miss as they repel Alabama, 27-19.

* * *

Purdue's Boilermakers, who played the role of "spoilermakers" to perfection as they stunned Notre Dame last Saturday, will continue their winning ways.

Leroy Keyes and his friends will stay in high gear as they roll over undermanned Northwestern by a 33-11 count.

That reminds me, dear readers, I must tell you about Clancy, the die-hard Irish supporter at the Owls Club. Clancy lost a dinner-for-two wager on the N.D.-Purdue game Saturday afternoon, then he lost a luncheon-for-two bet on the TV replay Sunday afternoon—heh-heh!

Hole-in-One Tops WMGA Golf Tourney

A hole-in-one is nothing to scoff at, but Mrs. Peter McAlpine of Southfield topped that yesterday in the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association best-ball outing at Bob O'Link near Novi.

She scored a zero. That's right, a nothing. It was a handicap event. Mrs. McAlpine used a driver and knicked the ball into the cup on the 190-yard, No. 12 hole. That's one, but after deducting her handicap of one, it all added up to nothing.

* * *

With that blank score, she went on to card an actual 88 and she and her partner Mrs. John Doughdville of Farmington placed second with a net 65.

Taking the honors was the twosome of Mrs. Tony Mitchell of Detroit and Mrs. Tom McColl of East Detroit. They posted a 64.

Challenge for Southern Cal

O. J. Juices Up for Miami Hurricanes

By United Press International

O. J. (Orange Juice) Simpson will need plenty of energy when he runs up aginst Ted Hendricks and a tough band of Miami Hurricanes Saturday night.

Simpson, the University of Southern California's brilliant backfield star, has torn apart the two opposing defenses he has faced this year.

He has already scored seven touchdowns, four against Minnesota and three against Northwestern and has immediately installed himself as a leading candidate for the Heisman Trophy.

STRONG CHALLENGE

But the University of Miami, Fla., offers a new and stronger challenge. Hendricks, known as the "mad stork," is considered the best defensive lineman in the country, and heads an experienced defensive platoon that has allowd only 14 points this season.

* * *

Hendricks, Miami's massive defensive end, stands 6-7 and weighs 230 pounds. In last week's 10-7 win over Georgia Tech, he set up both scores by recovering a loose ball and causing another fumble. Hendricks too is an All-America hopeful and a Heisman Trophy candidate.

Miami, ranked 12th by UPI, has eight other defensive letermen. The big five up front average 232 pounds. Middle guard Jerry Pierce is the best of the bunch but Charles Fullerton 225 pounds, Mike Turner 245 pounds, John Warf, 249 pounds, and sophomore Bob Trocoler, 248 pounds, are no slouches.

PURDUE HOME

Top ranked Purdue is at home to take on Northwestern while Notre Dame tries to regain some of its pride when they travel to Iowa City to play Iowa. The Boilermakers shocked the Irish 37-22 last week.

In other big games in the Midwest, Michigan State is at Wisconsin, Navy plays at Michigan, Indiana is home to take on Illinois and Ohio State hosts Oregon.

In the East Syracuse will try and stop the high scoring Bruins of UCLA. In other games, Penn State plays West Virginia, Duke visits Maryland, Georgia Tech is home to play Clemson and Kentucky takes on Auburn.

In the South, Alabama plays Mississippi, SMU meets North Carolina State and LSU plays Baylor.

* * *

On the West Coast Oregon State hooks up with Washington, Stanford plays the Air Force and Utah takes on Washington State.

Flu Hits Squad; 24 Players Ill in Colorado

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — A Rocky Mountain Conference football game scheduled for Saturday night was cancelled Wednesday because of an illness which has struck 24 players of the 38-member Colorado State College squad.

Colorado State was to have played Colorado Mines here.

None of the players was said to be in serious condition.

Team Physician, Dr. James R. Wheeler, said the players were affected by an influenza-type ailment which runs about a five day course. Only five of the players were hospitalized.

Snead Sides With PGA in Golf Feud

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Sammy Snead, who has won more tournaments than any other player in professional golf, has notified the Professional Golfers Association he will not participate in any tournament that is not sanctioned by the PGA.

Snead's declaration, in a letter released Wednesday by PGA officials, puts hi min opposition to other tour players who have joined the ranks of the newly formed American Professional Golfers organization.

"Golf has been good to this old country boy," Snead said in the letter.

"The fact I have been able to win more money at my age than ever before would seem to indicate the PGA tour is a pretty good way to make a living as it is being run right now."

Snead, 54, has earned $43,000 in 12 tournaments this year.

The PGA and the APG are scheduled to meet Thursday in a federal district court in Wilmington, Del., where the APG has been ordered to file a reply to a temporary restraining order obtained by the PGA a week ago.

The order prevents the APG from making contracts with sponsors for 1969 tournaments, from contacting players for a training school, and from using documents and confidential records which the PGA alleges some of its former employes took with them.

Miss Lacoste Falters

French Women Golfers Lead

MELBOURNE (AP) — France swept into the lead in the second round of the women's World Amateur Team Golf Championship today despite a dramatic collapse by French star Catherine Lacoste.

The United States, which was tied with France at the end of the first day, dropped to third, four strokes off the pace.

France compiled an aggregate of 308 at the halfway mark in the four-day, 72-hole competition over the par-73, 6,040-yard Victoria Club course. Three players from the 17 competing countries play for the Espirito Santo Trophy and the two best scores each day count in the team total.

* * *

The 23-year-old Miss Lacoste, winner of the 1967 U.S. Women's Open and generally rated the best woman amateur in the world, had the lowest round at 75 Wednesday. But her eight-over-par 81 today was not even good enough to count for her country's score.

AUSSIES SECOND

Australia moved into second, two strokes behind France at 310. The United States was next with 312, posting a 156 to go with its opening-round 156.

Shelley Hamlin of Fresno, Calif., who fired an 82 Wednesday, had the lowest score among the Americans today. The 19-year-old Stanford University student carded a 76.

* * *

Jane Bestanchury, a 20-year-old Odessa, Tex., College student who lives in Whittier, Calif., and Anne Quast Welts, a 31-year-old house wife from Mt. Vernon, Wash., both shot 80s today. Miss Bastanchury and Mrs. Welts also had identical 78s Wednesday.

"I didn't play well—that was it," said Miss Lacoste, who hit into bunkers and putted badly.

Plane Returns 40 Years Later

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — On Aug. 16, 1928, a Stinson SM1 took off from Machesney Air Field in Rockford. Now, 40 years later, it's on its way back.

The plane, "The Greater Rockford," was headed north for the Arctic to go east toward Sweden. The pilot, Bert R. J. (Fish) Hassel, a maverick in aviation those days, and the copilot, Parker Cramer, envisioned a Great Circle Route for air travel and wanted to prove it possible.

★ ★ ★

It was one year after Charles Lindbergh had brought aviation from childhood to adolescence with his solo flight in "The Spirit of St. Louis" across the Atlantic.

Hassel and Cramer never found the route they were looking for. But their attempt to go over the top of the world was the first of its kind. It was not until World War II when bombers flew over the North Pole to deliver their payloads that a Great Circle Route came into wide use and acceptance.

LOST 12 DAYS

Two weeks after Hassel and Cramer took off from the east side of the Rock River, they returned. Rockford wildly cheered them.

They had been lost for 12 days. They were alive after being feared dead.

★ ★ ★

They had been marooned for four days on an Arctic ice pack, where "The Greater Rockford" made an emergency landing in rocky crevices and ravines after it had run out of fuel.

The plane, covered by decades of snow and ice, was thought forgotten. It was through the interest of an airline executive, whose hobby is painting pictures of classic planes, that "The Greater Rockford" was uncovered and salvaged.

PLUCKED FROM ICE CAP

The plane was plucked Sept. 11 by a Greenland Air Sikorsky helicopter from the ice cap and will be transported back to Rockford.

"It's got to be the world's No. 1 antique," Robert Carlin said. Carlin, 44, a former Rockford resident, is the man who approached Hassel about a description of the plane and was told it still lay where it went down 40 years ago.

★ ★ ★

Carlin said the plane will be rebuilt and restored to flying condition.

PILOT UNKNOWN

Carlin doesn't know who will fly "The Greater Rockford" once it's restored. But Hassel won't. He can't. He's too old.

At 75, Hassel's health is failing and his words falter. But memories still linger.

"I'd sure like to sit in that when he was told of the successful salvage. A veteran of three wars, he now lives retired in a Rockford home.

★ ★ ★

Cramer was killed in August of 1931, when the plane he was flying to Denmark from Detroit, Mich., crashed into the North Sea.

Hassel learned to fly in 1913 after he favorably impressed Glenn Curtiss, the airplane builder, while Hassel worked with a motor company in Indianapolis, Ind. Curtiss invited Hassel to enroll in his flying school and on June 15, 1914 Hassel was issued "Federation Aeronautique Internationale License No. 20."

BOASTED OF LICENSES

An inspector from the Smithsonian Institution witnessed Hassel's test flight and issued the license. Hassel and Eddie Stinson, designer of the SM-1, liked to boast of their aeronautique licenses and did not obtain federal licenses until 1926, eight years after they were required by law.

Hassel had his first brush with death in 1914 when he was forced to ditch the Curtiss Flying Boat he was piloting, three miles off the Chicago shore of Lake Michigan. He was rescued by an old fisherman who said he saw Hassel swimming nonchalantly, resembling a fish.

★ ★ ★

Ever since, Hassel has been known as "Fish" Hassel.

When the United States entered World War I in 1917, Hassel was commissioned an officer in the Army Signal Corps. He was a pilot instructor, and after his discharge in 1919 he joined an aircraft sales and engineering firm, where his interest in aviation grew.

ENVISIONED ROUTE

He envisioned a shortened route for transcontinental flights and teamed up with Cramer to seek an air route over the world's top.

Chicago and Rockford bickered for a time over who would sponsor Hassel's proposed flight. Rockford won.

★ ★ ★

Hassel engineered a massive public subscription campaign. Supported by the Rockford Chamber of Commerce, Hassel raised $17,500 from public appearances.

A plane, "The Greater Detroit," was purchased in Michigan and renamed "The Greater Rockford."

TEST PLANE

In the spring of 1928 Hassel and Cramer tested the plane in a 1,200-mile cross-country flight. By summer they were ready.

In July of the same year they took off from Machesney Air Field on the east side of the Rock River and crash-landed on the river's west bank.

UNHURT IN CRASH

Hassel and Cramer were unhurt. They blamed the crash on an overload of fuel. The damaged plane was repaired.

On Aug. 16, at 6:43 a.m., Hassel and Cramer were airborne again, this time after a perfect takeoff. They were bound for Stockholm, Sweden, going north-northeast.

★ ★ ★

The world, and especially Rockford, monitored their flight.

At 1:20 p.m. they landed, as scheduled, at Cocrane, Ont. — their first refueling stop.

They left Cochrane two days later, headed for their next refueling point—a University of Michigan geological camp at Sondstrom, Greenland, where an airstrip had been cleared especially for Hassel's flight.

Something went wrong.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

"Who knows? Miscalculation, head winds, what?" Hassel said later.

They were forced down, out of fuel, some 60 miles from Sondstrom.

★ ★ ★

"We made it one day, the next day we didn't," Hassel shrugged.

Hassel and Cramer were unhurt. The plane was damaged. But the world knew nothing. There was no word for 14 days.

★ ★ ★

On Sunday, Sept. 2, a wireless message monitored by short wave radio in the office of The New York Times said: "Hassel safe."

WELCOMED HOME

When Hassel and Cramer returned to Rockford, they were celebrated in a gala which newspapers described as "involving the whole city."

They had spent four days on a shifting ice cap, directionless. They struck out for what they hoped was the geological camp of Prof. William Herbert Hobbs of the University of Michigan.

★ ★ ★

They reached Hobbs' camp 12 days after the crash.

Hobbs transmitted the radio message and the world welcomed the news.

Typhoon Kills 49 in Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Chinese Nationalist police today tentatively listed 49 deaths in Formosa as a result of Typhoon Elaine. They added 20 persons still missing who were feared dead to 29 confirmed fatalities.

This was the largest number of typhoon deaths in Formosa since June 18, 1965, when Typhoon Dinah claimed 62 lives.

★ ★ ★

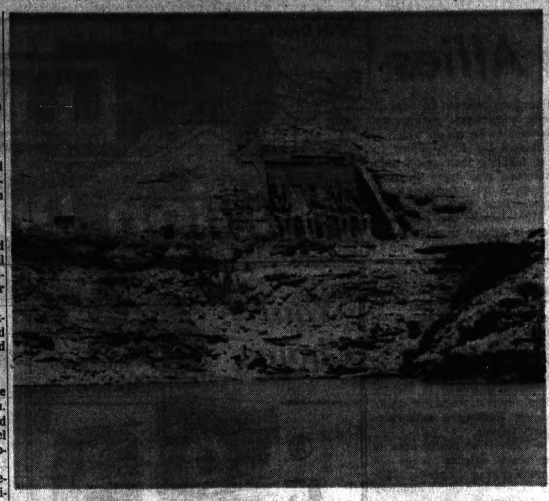

The biggest individual property loss caused by Typhoon Elaine was suffered by Taipei American School.

Damage was estimated at $250,000.

IMPASSABLE ROADS

Some damaged roads and railways were still impassable because of landslides.

So was the east-west highway across tall rugged mountains of central Formosa.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL SURGERY—The twin temples of Abu Simbel stand safely on their new home above the water of Lake Nasser in Egypt. The temples, cut in stone blocks of 20 to 30 tons, were moved higher over a period of 53 months to save them from the waters of the lake forming behind the Aswan Dam.

Move Is Archaeological Wonder

Egyptian Temples on New Site

ABU SIMBEL, Egypt (AP) — The greatest archeological surgery in history is now complete and successful. The twin temples of Abu Simbel, standing safely on their new home, look down with majestic disdain on the waters of Lake Nasser, which had once threatened them.

In an operation lasting 53 months archeological surgeons from France, West Germany, Italy, Sweden and Egypt cut the two temples into 6,000 blocks, each weighing 20 to 30 tons.

★ ★ ★

With electronically guided saws and fine chisels, the cutting operation was undertaken with extreme care to reduce scars to a bare minimum.

Linen soaked in special glue was pasted on the stone before saws went through them. This averted distortion in stone edges.

NO EXPLOSIVES

Use of explosives was prohibited. Some 195,000 cubic yards of rock was removed, using only bulldozers, rippers and pneumatic tools, while the front facades of the temples were protected by sand filling and temple chambers deep in the rock were supported by steel scaffolding.

Stone blocks were wrapped in foam rubber and transported 220 feet higher than the old site. Each stone block was given special markings to determine its relation to other blocks.

★ ★ ★

Scientists planned it so that the two temples stand on their new home facing the rising sun every morning. Sun rays penetrate the temples' chambers and corridors and engulf four prominent gods in the innermost sanctuary.

This work saved the 32-century-old temples from waters rising behind the new Aswan Dam. The project cost $38 million; the United States and Egypt bore most of this.

A SPECIAL GLUE

Chemists, archeologists, architects and Eryptologists used special materials to stick together the carved stone blocks. Synthetic resin, a type of glue known as epoxy resin mortar, was the main one.

The joints between the blocks were filled with a special mortar and powdered sandstone mixed with an adhesive and having the same color as the stone surroundings. The joints and scars were completely disguised.

Two huge protecting domes were erected on the temples and, over them, rocks were piled. The rocks were injected with epoxy and other noncorrosive hardeners.

The next step was to remove the "bandages." Water was sprayed over reassembled chunks, and the linen became loose and easy to pull away. By some error, epoxy leaked on the facade of the king's temple and caused a stain. Scientists are working to erase it.

A line of 21 stone baboons greeting the rising sun stand on top of the temple for the Pharaoh Ramses. The king's temple, dedicated to the worship of the sun god Re-harakhti, is decorated at its entrance with four seated colossi of Ramses, each bearing an inexplicable smirk.

Ramses, known in history as an egocentric pharaoh, kept an elaborate harem of more than 70 wives. He preferred the beautiful, shapely Nefertari for whom he built the small temple and dedicated it to Hat-hor, the goddess of dance and music.

Ramses had 111 sons and 67 daughters.

U.S. Prodding Europe Allies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is pressing its European allies to boost their defense budgets substantially, and it expects some plain answers when Secretary of State Dean Rusk meets with NATO foreign ministers next week.

After the Soviet Union's invasion of Czechoslovakia, officials reported, the Johnson administration urged NATO nations to increase their defense spending by from 2.5 to 15 per cent.

★ ★ ★

The suggestions were wide-ranging and detailed, reflecting what an authoritative source called the basic unhappiness in Washington over some contributions to the common defense.

Which of the allies should increase defense expenditures a modest 2.5 per cent, and which by 15 per cent, is an official secret.

EXPENDITURE DECLINE

But it is no secret that the defense expenditures of the European allies, expressed in percentages of their Gross National Products, have declined steadily in recent years.

In 1967, for example, the 12 European allies spent $23 billion on defense, or only 4.7 per cent of their combined GNP, while the United States spent $75.5 billion on its armed forces, representing 9.6 per cent of its GNP.

★ ★ ★

The NATO foreign ministers, probably 11 out of the 15, will be Rusk's dinner guests in New York on Oct. 7. Rusk is reported to have asked the ministers to send no deputies and to leave their aides at home.

Only the foreign ministers of Canada, Iceland, Portugal and Luxembourg will not attend, informants said. Most of the others will be in New York for the U.N. General Assembly session, but West Germany's Willy Brandt, whose country is not a U.N. member, will come specifically for Rusk's dinner.

COMMITMENTS SOUGHT

Rusk, informants said, hopes to get binding commitments on extra efforts the NATO countries are willing to make to meet the challenge of several hundred thousand more Soviet troops massed on the line dividing East and West.

For years there has been little public talk in the United States about NATO's capability to carry out its primary military task: to defend Western Europe.

For years there has been no exhortation from Washington. The Vietnam war became the No. 1 headache. The United States withdrew in silence after having been rebuffed by some of its allies, especially by France, on such Washington — sponsored issues as creating a European "partner" — meaning a unified Europe — or establishing a multination nuclear fleet.

The Czech crisis marked a turning point, with many European allies asking the United States what it will do — and, some of them, what they themselves should do.

FIRST BROKEN

The long period of silence was broken first by President Johnson. In a Sept. 10 New Orleans speech the President was unusually blunt when he said, "we have the right to expect Europe to do more in its own defense . . . and we might as well say it plainly and frankly."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey followed on Sept. 23 with a television program beamed to Europe in which he criticized the NATO allies for not fulfilling their troop commitments and urged them to recognize an obligation to increase their share.

What Johnson and Humphrey said in general terms now has been translated into these specific American criticisms:

● The conscription period of soldiers in a number of allied countries is disastrously low: only 12 months in Belgium, 14 in Denmark, and 16 in the Netherlands, compared with the two-year training period of the American draftee. A training period of less than 18 months simply cannot produce a useful soldier, Washington authorities firmly believe.

● There is an urgent need to reallocate defense funds in some European countries, shifting monies to army manpower and equipment.

● The rating of all European NATO members is low in mobilization capacity, a military term which shows how many trained soldiers can be called up, equipped and integrated into units in a given time.

Active Callous-Cadillac Coalition Backs Wallace in Michigan

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — A coalition of Cadillacs and callouses behind George C. Wallace has created a political quandary for Hubert H. Humphrey and Richard M. Nixon in Michigan.

Both are striving mightily to get Michiganders to choose between the Democratic and Republican tickets Nov. 5.

★ ★ ★

But signs point to a sizable number of white-collar Republicans and blue-collar Democrats joining Wallace's third party camp as the ballot showdown nears.

★ ★ ★

Few observers give Wallace much chance to actually win Michigan's 21 electoral votes. Most predict a narrow victory for Nixon, who lost the state to John F. Kennedy in 1960.

Public opinion polls and crowd reaction seem to show Humphrey as the underdog. But he can look to some encouraging factors in Michigan: A state Democratic machine that is pulling out all stops, solid support from labor leaders, and sizable backing from Negro voters.

★ ★ ★

A big part of Humphrey's Michigan problem is a Johnson administration backlash. Supporters of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy refuse to scrap their movement. They are planning a statewide write-in campaign for a slate of McCarthy electors.

Nixon's most important booster in Michigan is a former adversary, Gov. George Romney.

★ ★ ★

An intensive campaign is also being waged by Republicans and Democrats for Michigan's 19 congressional seats. The GOP now has a 12-5 margin. Pundits look for the breakdown to remain pretty much the same.

By OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

Another bit of counting that pays off is to count to your contract. When in three no-trump, you need nine tricks, et cetera.

In rubber bridge you can concentrate entirely on the contract tricks. In duplicate JACOBY there may be occasions when you will risk your contract for an overtrick but most of the time it will pay to follow the rubber bridge practice. Make sure of your contract, then go after overtricks.

★ ★ ★

South wins the spade opening in his own hand. He looks at the nice, long diamond suit in dummy and proceeds to go after it. If South doesn't bother to count to nine, he will let his queen of diamonds hold the second lead of that suit. East will show out and South will be held to three diamond tricks.

Since there is no way for him to collect more than four tricks in the other suits, he will be down two. He will complain about bad luck and, if he is mathematically inclined, may even point out that five missing cards will divide 3-2 some 68 per cent of the time and that he was just unlucky.

★ ★ ★

His complaint should fall on deaf ears. Not that it is not bad luck when a key suit divides 4-1 but rather that there was no reason for South to lose his contract.

All South had to do would be to count to nine before playing. Then he would see that five diamond tricks would be enough for his contract and that he could insure these five tricks by simply overtaking his queen of diamonds with dummy's king.

This would cost him an overtrick if diamonds broke 3-2 but this is one hand where overtricks should be left to others. South should be happy to be in three no-trump and should make sure of his contract whether playing for money, marbles, match points or chalk.

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNEY OMARR
For Friday

"The wise man controls his destiny. . . Astrology points the way."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You appear impatient to move out of status quo. Key is to check alternatives. There are hidden elements which need considering. Breakthrough is due sooner than expected.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Some friends show different side. Be observant. If keen analyst, you make discoveries of value. Permit logic to dominate sentiment. Be realistic — even if it hurts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your domestic situation undergoes change. Can be for the better if you are flexible. Short cuts may not work today. Adhere to regulations. Learn the rules before breaking them.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Some of your plans may be grandiose. Don't neglect family obligations. Ideas can sparkle but they also require solid base. Know this — plan accordingly. Maintain sense of balance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Money situation needs special attention. Study CANCER passage. See persons, situations as they actually exist. Wishful thinking today could prove expensive. Respond accordingly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be as polite to loved one as you would be to a stranger. If you remember this, day proves constructive. Otherwise, you ask for trouble and get it. Accent on relations with mate, partner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Nothing today seems to happen in definite fashion. There are subtle undertones. Key is to be perceptive. Read between lines. Study fine print. Then you obtain valuable answers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Circumstances turn in your favor. But you tend to respond on impulse. Be independent without being foolish. Means strive for greater degree of maturity. Be patient with young persons.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): What appeared to be settled may be just the opposite. Do more listening than talking. What you learn now could aid in elevating your standing. Avoid dispute with family.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take time to be positive. Some indications are clouded. Wait. Be certain. Accent on ideas. Relative who sounds confident may be covering up for uncertainty. Play it safe.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The more cautious you are about financial matters the better. Be aware of details. Throw off the superficial. Delve deep. Get to the heart of the matter. Then you are fulfilled.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Mate or close associate acts in unusual manner. Strive to understand why. Throw off the superficial. Delve deep. Get to the heart of the matter. Then you are fulfilled.

IF TOMORROW IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you seek justice for all. You strive to fulfill obligations. You are persistent, honest. Your character is admirable. You set fine example, but you should try for greater personal happiness.

Negro Preps for Career as TV, Film Director

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — To Charlie Washburn's family and friends in Memphis, Tenn., it seemed like the impossible dream: He wanted to be a director of television and films. Why did it seem to impossible? Because at the time Charlie Washburn was captured by that dream, there were no Negro directors in TV and movies. And Charlie is a Negro.

THOMAS

* * *

"But I never lost sight of my goal, no matter what the odds were against me," he says. "I knew some day I would make it —and I will."

Washburn has made a start. He is now second assistant director on the television series "Star Trek" and one of three Negro assistant directors in the studios. His job allows him to study a number of directors as they work on the space-age series, and he notes their techniques for future use.

APPRENTICE PROGRAM

He came to the film industry through a new apprentice program aimed at infusing new blood to the creative force of Hollywood. So far 29 have graduated from the program to become assistant directors, 22 are in training and about 15 will enter a new class in the near future.

Charlie Washburn came into the program through a series of lucky circumstances. Born 30 years ago in Memphis, the son of a car salesman, he grew up in a segregated society. He attended all-Negro schools and the nearly all-Negro Kentucky State College, graduating with a bachelor of science in business administration.

* * *

He expected to go to work for a Negro insurance company, but during a trip to visit a college professor in Milwaukee, he decided to stay in the North and return to school. After a semester at the University of Wisconsin, he entered a two-year telecasting course at the Milwaukee Institute of Technology.

"That's when I fell in love with directing," he recalls. "The school offers practical training at the educational channel for Milwaukee, and the work for actually putting shows on the air stimulated me enormously. I knew there was one thing I wanted to do in life, and that was to direct."

* * *

Washburn went on to teach telecasting at the University of Syracuse while he earned his master's degree. Then he worked for two years for the television, radio and film commission of the Methodist Church with headquarters in Nashville, Tenn. He produced a radio show called "The Word—and Music" and traveled throughout the country to instruct ministers on how to use broadcasting.

In September 1965, Washburn heard through a writer friend in Hollywood about the directors guild apprentice program. He filed off a letter of application. He was invited to come to Hollywood twice, for an eight-hour written examination conducted by the University of Southern California, then for an interview before directors, producers and executives of the film industry.

In July 1966, Washburn was notified that he had been accepted for the Directors Guild-Producers training plan. He quit his job and came to Hollywood, where his first assignment was herding cars and extras through a street scene for "Thoroughly Modern Millie." His starting pay: $120 a week, increasing $10 for every 100 hours he worked.

He remained at Universal for eight months, then transferred to Desilu for "Star Trek" and to 20th Century-Fox for "Batman," "Felony Squad" and "Peyton Place." There he completed the necessary 400 days of apprenticeship and became a member of the Directors Guild. During the training he had worked under the tutelage of an experienced assistant director and had attended weekly seminars on film production.

Washburn's pay as second assistant director on "Star Trek" is $275.63 a week, soon to be raised to $305 under a new guild contract. The money is comforting to him, but even more important is the opportunity to study a variety of directors at work.

* * *

"Some day I'll be directing," he vows. "The odds aren't against me any more."

Ohio Negro Happy at Rabbinical School in Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (AP) — A Negro from Middletown, Ohio, Eric L. Gregory, attends classes at a tiny religious academy attended entirely by young Orthodox Jews from the United States. If he pursues his studies he will be a rabbi.

The school, called Yeshiva of the Dispersion, clings to Mt. Zion, hugged by the ancient wall of the Old City.

Gregory is called Aryeh Lamont in Hebrew. He is reluctant to talk of his American background and almost as reluctant to talk about his search for a faith.

He was born a Baptist. His search introduced him to Jewish friends who, in turn, introduced him to aspects of Judaism. His trail to Jerusalem began in the summer of 1966, when he went to New York and took instruction from a Brooklyn rabbi.

WHAT HE WANTED

"I found this religion offered me what I wanted. It grabbed me intellectually, not emotionally," Gregory explained.

He studied for a while at Miami, in Oxford, Ohio, and majored in international relations with a minor in criminology.

Gregory gradually adopted more and more of the 613 commandments which an observant Jew obeys. They range from dietary laws to regulations covering dress and sexual uprightness.

"Many facets of the process were not clear to me," said Gregory, patting the yarmulke or skullcap perched on the back of his head.

CAUGHT UP IN TIDE

In 1967, in the middle of his sophomore year, he decided to come to Israel— caught up in the tide of enthusiasm which enraptured many young Jews during and immediately after the Arab-Israeli war.

Like many other volunteers he was sent to a kibbutz where he spent time washing dishes and planting beans. He left the kibbutz to take lessons in Hebrew at the small desert development town of Arad, near the Dead Sea. After three months he enrolled in the Yeshiva of the Dispersion. He thought it could help his search.

* * *

"Most people need some kind of belief," he said. "This must coincide with whatever you are going to peform in life—jibe with what you want to do."

Rabbi Mordechai Goldstein, head of the Yeshiva, says proudly he converted several New York Negroes to Judaism before coming to Israel two years ago.

"If there are enough Negro Jews, Negroes will just have to bear less animosity toward Jews," he says.

Although Gregory embarked on a course which would eventually qualify him as a rabbi, Rabbi Goldstein says he is "a little disappointed" in the youth's quest for faith.

* * *

Like other students, Gregory took a written pledge not to desecrate the Sabbath, not to frequent "low places" and not to indulge in "pleasures of the flesh."

* * *

The young man strayed, the rabbi said. Rabbi Goldstein arranged for him and three other students to work out with a local basketball team "to get rid of some of his excess energy."

Forsake Village for Refugee Life

Viet War Hard on Tribesman

BU LACH, Vietnam (AP) — Mountain tribesmen who hunt with bows and arrows and live in primitive simplicity are perhaps the most tragic victims of the war in Vietnam.

The village of Bu Lach became an example. Some 700 people who lived in verdant foothills decided to give it up in favor of a refugee life—in tin-roofed cement houses jammed side by side.

* * *

The depredations of the Vietcong, they said, had become too much. They asked to be moved to safer ground. Too many of their young men had been taken away by the Vietcong. Others were being used as porters, or to collect weapons and the dead from battlefields. The war, in fact, had caught up with them.

There was a Special Forces camp about four miles from their village—and some of their tribesmen served there as paid mercenaries—but the camp could offer little protection. Vietcong infiltration through the area has increased as the enemy pushed toward Saigon, some 60 miles southwest.

A few weeks ago, said Capt. Harry Zimmerman, San Antonio, Tex., the U.S. Army adviser to the district, a Special Forces patrol went through the village. The village elders informed the Green Beret troops that they wanted to be moved.

The village normally numbered about 1,200 people of the Stieng tribe. The women are bare-breasted and even children smoke little tobacco pipes. The tribesmen engage in some agriculture—and they make vast quantities of potent rice wine for frequent ceremonial occasions.

* * *

On the appointed day only about 700 tribesmen were present for the move. Others were off in isolated forest huts. Others were with the Vietcong.

The tribesmen gathered early, but there was little of the laughter which is normally present for almost any Montagnard activity.

Women and children were herded aboard twin-rotor helicopters, sometimes with goats and pet dogs. Water buffalos and scraggly cows possessed by the villagers would have to be brought out later by road convoy.

* * *

By late afternoon the move was almost completed, the Montagnards moved with their possessions—straw mats, spears, bows and arrows, a few pots and pans, a few transistor radios, hosehold shrines and bits of clothing.

* * *

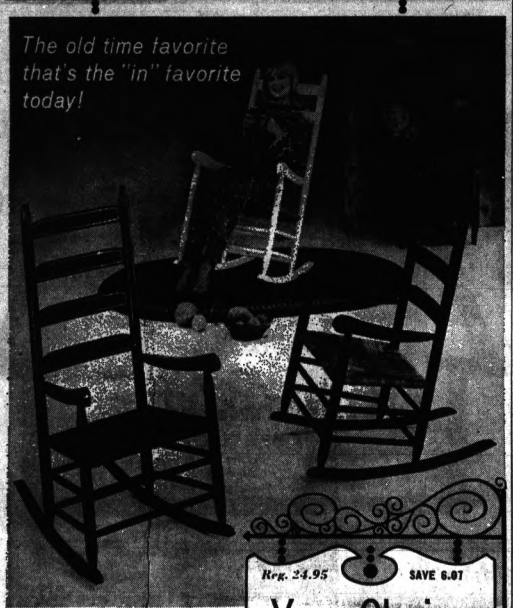

They were put in tents at the Hoa Dong "new life" hamlet. Each family will get 10 bags of cement, 10 sheets of roofing, some advice on home-building and the equivalent of about $25.

The old village of Bu Lach is no more. As the villagers moved out it was put to the torch. Defoliation raids were scheduled on the surrounding jungle. The Vietcong would find the area—along a main infiltration route toward Saigon—less hospitable in the future.

There Are Many Ways to Cook Coho Salmon

By JANET ODELL
Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

Michigan has gone Coho crazy. Individual fishermen are bringing home their catch and families with non fishing men can buy fresh Coho salmon at the supermarket.

A few days ago, we checked half a dozen stores in the Pontiac area. Two big chain stores and one small privately owned fish market were selling fresh salmon.

You can broil it, bake it, grill it or poach it. Our authority is a booklet from the U.S. Department of the Interior Fish and Wildlife Service.

You can obtain "How to Cook Salmon" by requesting it from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Gov't. Printing Office, Washington D. C. 20402. It's booklet No. 4 and costs 20 cents.

★ ★ ★

Out west they usually broil salmon steaks. We had them twice this past summer and thought them delicious. Try this recipe.

WESTERN BROILED SALMON

¼ cup minced onion
¼ cup minced celery
2 tablespoons minced green pepper
1 clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon olive or salad oil
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup tomato sauce
½ cup shredded parmesan cheese
4 salmon steaks

Cook onion, celery, green pepper and garlic in oil until onion is soft. Add salt, pepper, and tomato sauce. Simmer about three minutes. Stir in parmesan cheese. Set aside.

Broil salmon steaks 2 inches from source of heat about 4 minutes; turn and broil 2 minutes. Pour sauce over fish and continue to broil about 2 minutes or until sauce is bubbly and fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Makes 4 servings.

COOK WHOLE FISH

If you want to cook a whole salmon, consider doing it on your outdoor grill. Wrapping the fish in heavy aluminum foil is the best way to prevent its breaking during cooking.

WHOLE FISH GRILLED IN FOIL

4 to 7 pound fish, cleaned
Butter or margarine
1 medium onion, sliced thin
Salt and pepper
Fresh tarragon, parsley, Thyme and lemon

Leave head on fish, if desired . . . remove eye and insert small green pepper circle. Spread a little butter or margarine in the center of a large sheet of heavy duty aluminum foil and arrange onion slices on it.

Sprinkle fish cavity with salt, pepper, herbs and a little lemon juice. Place fish on foil and again sprinkle with seasonings. Dot with butter.

Bring foil up over fish, sealing edges with double fold. Seal both ends. Place on grate over medium hot fire.

★ ★ ★★

Cook a 3 to 5 pound fish 25 minutes, 5 to 7 pound fish 35 minutes, turning once or twice. Fish may brown a little through foil.

While fish cooks, make a tent of foil for the final grilling. Tear off foil somewhat longer than the fish and crease along lengthwise center. When baking time is finished, open the foil package and turn back foil crimping it neatly.

★ ★ ★

Place tent over package allowing space for heat to circulate up and around. Cook 10 minutes longer or until fish can be flaked with a fork.

★ ★ ★

To serve, remove tent, slide foil with fish onto tray. Border with baked tomatoes and lemon slices.

Baking salmon is the easiest way of all. Prepare it for the oven, set the temperature and the timer and forget it while you get the rest of the meal.

BREEZY SALMON BAKE

2 pounds salmon steaks or other fish steaks, fresh or frozen
2 tablespoons grated onion
1¼ teaspoons dill weed
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
¾ cup light cream

★ ★ ★

Thaw frozen steaks. Place steaks in a single layer in a well-greased baking dish, 12 x 8 x 2 inches. Sprinkle steaks with onion, dill weed, salt, and pepper. Dot with butter. Pour cream over steaks.

★ ★ ★

Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until steaks flake easily when tested with a fork. Makes 6 servings.

★ ★ ★

You can also bake a whole salmon filled with bread stuffing. You'll need 4-5 cups stuffing for a 3-4 pound fish.

BAKED STUFFED SALMON

3-4 pound salmon, dressed
1½ teaspoon salt
Bread stuffing
3 slices bacon

★ ★ ★

Wash and dry salmon. Sprinkle inside and out with salt. Stuff fish loosely and sew opening with needle and string, or close with skewers. Place fish in well-greased baking pan.

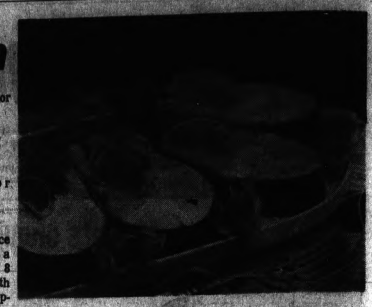

★ ★ ★

Arrange bacon slices on fish and bake 40-60 minutes at 350 degrees. Fish is done when it flakes easily when tested with a fork.

If fish seems dry while baking, baste occasionally with drippings or melted fat.

Remove string or skewers and serve immediately on a hot platter. Makes 6 servings.

Don't ignore cold salmon. It makes a delicious salad.

FRESH SALMON STEAKS

Assemble Tiger Cake

There's nothing ferocious about this tiger: he's an old softie.

Tiger Cut-Up Cake

1 cooled baked 9-inch cake layer
3 cooled baked cupcakes
2 chocolate wafer cookies
1 large marshmallow
Four minute frosting
Red and yellow food coloring
1½ cups (about) flaked coconut
Thin licorice strips
2 small licorice gumdrops, cut in half

Place cake layer on serving platter or large tray. Cut cupcakes in half vertically and place cut sides next to bottom of cake in pairs to form cheeks and chin.

For ears, cut slits at top of cake; insert cookies in slits. Place marshmallow on center of cake for snout. See diagram.

Tint frosting a pale orange with a few drops each red and yellow food coloring. Frost entire cake, leaving outside rim of cookies plain and building up frosting around marshmallow to form snout.

TINT IT

Tint about 2 tablespoons of the coconut a deep orange with red and yellow food coloring. Use remaining coconut to form eyes and to sprinkle over cheeks, chin, ears, tip of forehead, and snout. Sprinkle deep orange coconut over the plain coconut for stripes.

Use licorice strips for mouth and whiskers, and to outline eyes and snout. Place gumdrop halves at base of eyes and snout. Makes 10 servings.

FOUR MINUTE FROSTING

1 egg white
¾ cup sugar
Dash of salt
3 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon light corn syrup
½ teaspoon vanilla

Combine egg white, sugar, salt, water, and corn syrup in top of small double boiler or in small bowl. Beat with electric mixer or rotary beater until thoroughly mixed—about 1 minute.

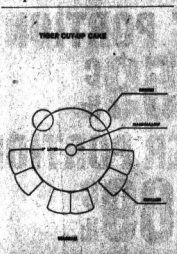

Place over boiling water and beat constantly at high speed of electric mixer (or with rotary beater) until frosting stands in stiff peaks — about 4 minutes, stirring frosting up from bottom and sides of pan occasionally with rubber scraper, spatula, or spoon.

★ ★ ★

Remove from boiling water. For a very smooth and satiny frosting, pour at once into a large bowl for final beating. Add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread — about 1 minute. Makes 2 cups frosting.

EAT THAT TIGER — This tiger may look tough, but he's only a cupcake tiger. Duplicate him for parties in connection with the World Series right now. Then hold the recipe until Halloween and present him again to delighted youngsters.

Glaze a Half Ham With Grape Jelly

When grape jelly is on hand, try this recipe.

GRAPE GLAZED HAM

5 to 6 pound fully-cooked half ham (butt end)
Whole cloves
½ cup grap jelly
2 tablespoons dry sherry

Cut away brown surface from fat on ham; score fat in diamond shape. Insert a whole clove in each diamond.

* * *

Place on a rack, top fat up, in a shallow foil-lined pan; bake in a 350-degree oven for 15 to 30 minutes per pound — depending on how dry you like ham. Remove from oven; take ham on rack from pan and remove foil and fat.

* * *

Line pan with clean foil and return ham minus rack to pan. Mix together the grape jelly and sherry; spread over ham. Bake in a 425-degree oven for 10 minutes to glaze.

Polynesian Style

To cook 1 cup rice use 2 cups pineapple juice instead of water. Toss with butter, pineapple chunks, water chestnuts and dill weed. A delicious buffet dish to serve with ham, pork and beef entree.

Add Vegetables Right at Start

Adding vegetables to a meat stew near the end of the cooking time is a familiar practice. For an interesting flavor variation, do as some French chefs do and add the vegetables at the beginning.

* * *

Brown the meat, add water to barely cover, and then add chopped onions and celery leaves, sliced carrots and celery. By the time the meat is tender, the vegetable flavors will have cooked right into the meat. They'll make a delicious gravy, too.

Trading Is Heavy

Powerful Advance by Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market mounted a powerful advance on very heavy trading early this afternoon.

Volume for the first two hours neared 12 million shares. Turnover of 6.74 million shares in the first hour was the highest for that period in history, exceeding the 6.57 million shares traded July 11.

★ ★ ★

Advances exceeded declines by about 350 issues.

Brokers said the market was in a strong technical position and anticipated heavy buying accumulated from Wednesday's paperwork shutdown.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS

Also economically encouraging, they said, were the reports of strong new car sales, projections of record October production by the auto industry, and a rise in the backlog of new factory orders for durable goods.

★ ★ ★

With the tape running four minutes behind, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks at noon was up 5.78 at 948.1.

Sniffing Toll Is 8 in San Diego Area

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Eight San Diego County youngsters have died since April from sniffing such aerosols as hair spray and insect repellent, say county officials.

"They did it to get a thrill and to experiment," Probation Chief Kenneth F. Fare said Wednesday.

Until six months ago, San Diego County had never recorded a death from aerosol sprays. This year, a record 1,453 youths have been referred to the probation department for using some type of drug.

Warning on Oil

BARBOURVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A U.S. oil concessionnaire says that loss of access to Middle East oil would cripple the United States. Wendell Phillips said Russia is outgaining the United States in maneuvering for control of oil reserves in the Persian Gulf area. "If they win and we lose, your car will go off the highway within two or three months," he said. Phillips received an honorary doctorate in public administration from Union College here.

U.S. Ban Saves Fidel —Ex-Cuban Dictator

ESTORIL, Portugal (AP) — Nearly 10 years in exile, Fulgencio Batista is hoping that recent events in Eastern Europe will induce the United States to lift its ban on invasion of Cuba —a restraint he claims is preserving Fidel Castro's regime.

"Now more than ever the United States should reevaluate the Kennedy-Khrushchev agreement," the former Cuban strongman told an Associated Press reporter.

★ ★ ★

The accord between the late American president and the Soviet chairman ended the Cuban missile crisis in 1962. The Soviet Union agreed to remove ballistic missiles from Cuba, and the United States gave guarantees against an invasion of the island.

"There was no need for it," Batista said, extending his arms in a sign of exasperation. "Now Cubans cannot move anywhere in the waters of the Caribbean."

He was referring to Cuban exiles.

"The only thing the Cuban wants is to fight for his freedom," Batista continued.

RUSSIA NO FRIEND

"The United States thought Russia could exist with respect, but she never will exist as a friend with other countries, and the invasion of Czechoslovakia shows that.

★ ★ ★

"The biggest problem for exiles is the Kennedy-Khrushchev agreement. Without it, I am sure the struggle would start immediately and it would not end. The day it was signed, Castro was ratified.

"The Cuban feels, if the United States can help in the struggle, all the better. But if not, that is all right.

'WON'T INTERVENE'

"I am sure Russia would not intervene if it meant war. They would say something, they would talk, but Cuba is very close to the United States and far away from Russia."

★ ★ ★

At 67, Batista is still a trim energetic man who keeps himself busy corresponding with other exiles, handling an investment fund, writing, playing golf and overseeing the activities of a far-flung family.

But, almost a decade after fleeing Cuba before the advance of Castro's rebels, he disavows any idea of resuming national leadership.

"I do not want to go back as a president. I have refused to have any mission as a leader," he said. "But I will never forget my country and I would advise my people."

QUIET LIFE

Batista lives a quiet, almost introverted life of luxury with his second wife, Martha, in this sunny resort 15 miles from Lisbon. They have two chauffeurs and servants, but are not known by their neighbors for extravagance and are not big party goers.

Says a long-time acquaintance of Batista's: "His best friends are his children."

He has five by his second marriage, all at school or working in Spain and Switzerland. Batista often travels to Madrid, where he rents another home, to attend to business and to spend time with three sons.

He has written three books on Cuba and is working on a short history to be published early next year. He also keeps working on his memoirs, "a little at a time."

He flares in anger at suggestions that he kept Cuba in ignorance, poverty and suppression.

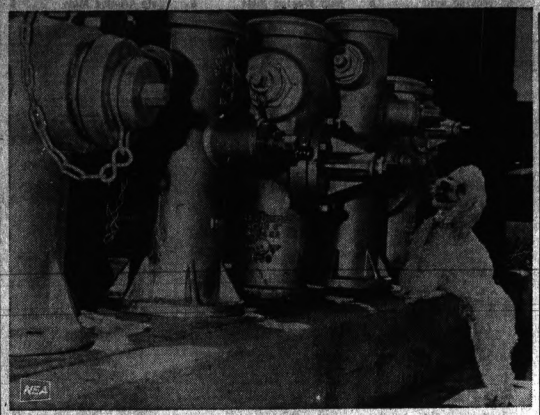

"For the past 10 years," he said, "Cuba has been in the hands of tyranny and assassination.

"When I was president the workers were well off. They had social justice, the best wages, the best organization, and all rights. Now they have no rights, neither to think freely nor to strike, and they are not give any consideration as human beings."

News Release With a Chuckle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department said Wednesday "someone has been selling refrigerators to Eskimos" and this has produced a shortage of refrigeration mechanics.

The tongue-in-cheek news release announced a $72,091 grant to Kodiak Community College to train a group of Eskimos, Aleuts and Indians to repair refrigeration equipment used in the fishing industry.

DOG HEAVEN — A poodle in Salinas, Calif., stops to "window shop" as it passes the station where fireplugs are stored. Firemen report that nearly every dog that happens past the station stops to look.

Mackinac Land Probe Heats Up

LANSING (UPI) — The controversy over rental rates and conflict-of-interest questions on state-owned Mackinac Island blew hot again Wednesday as Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley stepped up his investigation of the matter.

★ ★ ★

W. F. Doyle of East Lansing, a member of the Mackinac Island Park Commission, said Kelley's probe had "all the signs of a publicity stunt" aimed at embtrrassing commission members.

★ ★ ★

We answered all his questions nine months ago in a 37-page letter," said Doyle. "If he has any further questions, he should raise them in a quiet, orderly manner."

Doyle commented after being beckoned to Kelley's Capitol office to discuss the propriety of commission members holding lease contracts on the island and the legality of certain rental fees.

★ ★ ★

Doyle and Commissioner James P. Dunnigan of East Lansing lease lots on state park land occupied by summer homes, paying a nominal fee of $25 a year.

New Book Tells Story of Industrialist

Ernie Breech by J. Hel Hickerson Meredith Press

By CORENNA ALDRICH

The name Ernest R. Breech is a familiar one, particularly in the Détroit area. Perhaps not so well known is the background of this man and his remarkable rise in the world of industry.

J. Mel Hickerson has taken on the job of telling that story.

★ ★ ★

Born in Lebanon, Mo., the son of a none-too-prosperous blacksmith, Breech has been an embodiment of the Horatio stories he read so eagerly as a boy.

During his varied career he has served as vice president of General Motors, president of North American Aviation, president of Bendix Aviation Corp. and chairman of the board of Ford Motor Co., only to retire and soon find himself chairman of the board of Trans World Airlines.

CHAPTER TIMELY

With "mystery man" Howard Hughes recently in the news, the chapter on Breech's experiences with TWA and Hughes is especially timely.

Another chapter that will interest many readers deals with the colossal flop of the Edsel. It was one of the few dark moments in the career of Breech, who earlier had been the lifeline that pulled Ford Motor Co. from a quagmire of disorganization.

★ ★ ★

While appendixes are sometimes overlooked, Appendix I deserves mention. It contains excerpts from Breech speeches and writings, giving a good picture of his philosphy of business and management, and life in general.

The title of one speech seems most appropriate to the story of his life — "How to Succeed in Business by Trying."

Three-State Vote Trip Set

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George Romney says he will campaign in three states in the next 10 days for the Republican presidential candidacy of Richard M. Nixon.

Romney said his first appearances would be Friday, at evening fund-raising functions in Elizabeth and in Bergen County, N. J.

★ ★ ★

Other campaign speeches were scheduled for Wednesday at a series of fund raising dinners throughout Westchester County, N. J., and Oct. 11 at the annual meeting of the National Employment Association in Philadelphia.

M30 Crash Fatal

MIDLAND (AP) —Two trucks collided Wednesday on M30 about eight miles north of Midland, killing Robert Huntley Boone, 33, of Brandt. The other truck driver, William J. Campbell, 38, of Clare, wts hospitalized at Midland in critical condition.

Rehabilitation Unit to Expand

Jay Shop, Inc., a nonprofit organization created to develop rehabilitation facilities, has purchased the Spadafore mansion and grocery store at 194 and 196 Oakland.

The buildings will be developed, by Pontiac State Hospital mental health patients participating in the Jay Shop program, as an extension of the shop's current facilties.

★ ★ ★

The Jay Shop obtains contracts for work from local businesses and organizations which the patients fulfill as part of their treatment. The types of work done by Jay Shop participants include small assemblies, packaging and graphic arts. All work is done in the shop on the Pontiac State Hospital grounds at present.

Jay Shop participants will rebuild the store and the house — which will be called the Rose and Louise Spadafore Opportunity House. The Jay Shop takes possession of the property Monday and will open the store for work contracts Nov. 1.

★ ★ ★

The house was built in 1938 and the store in 1918 by Louis Spadafore.

An organized cleanup of the house and store by area Jaycee groups is being plánned for Oct. 12.

Dearborn Will Vote Again on Viet Pullout

DEARBORN (AP) —Voters in the Detroit suburb of Dearborn will have another opportunity to voice their feelings on the war in Vietnam in a specal advisory question on the Nov. 5 general election ballot.

Two years ago Dearborn became the first city in the nation to conduct an advisory election on the war issue and, in a vote of nearly three to two, residents indicated they were not in favor of an immediate cease-fire and withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam.

★ ★ ★

Acting on a recommendation from Mayor Orville L. Hubbard, an outspoken critic of the war, the City Council Tuesday unanimously agreed to place the proposal on the ballot.

Hubbard requested the action shortly after the toll of Dearborn war dead rose to 41. The city of 112,000 has a "kill ratio" more than twice that of the nation and more than 2½ times that of Michigan, said Hubbard.

WORDING OF QUESTION

Voters will be asked:

"Are you in favor of an immediate cease - fire and withdrawal of United States troops from Vietnam so that the people of Vietnam can settle their own problems?"

Can't Stomach It

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Police said they found evidence of a burglary in Clarence Mason's stomach. He and Ronald Skaggs were booked on suspicion of burglary after their arrest near a home where $700 in clothing and jewelry was taken. All the loot but a gold ring was recovered. An X-ray examination disclosed the ring, and Mason confessed to swallowing it.

Retired Police Horse Starts New Career

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A retired police horse named Tally-Ho started a new career with the U.S. Navy Wednesday.

The Fairmount Park police mounted guards donated the 16-year-old gelding to the Philadelphia Naval Home.

Tally-Ho, who served on park patrols and in drill exhibitions, will replace Dexter, the home's former equine resident who died last summer at age 34. Dexter spent most of his 23-year Navy hitch hauling a trash cart.

Tot's Winnings in Lottery Split 3 Ways by Court

NEW YORK (AP) — Two-year-old Frederick Mizrahi won't get the message for a few years, but he has lost two-thirds of $100,000 he won in the New York State Lottery.

David Mizrahi, the boy's father, a Queens accountant, has been buying three monthly lottery tickets in the name of his wife, Barbara; Frederick; and his other son, Marco David, 5.

★ ★ ★

Last October, Frederick's ticket won $100,000. The law says the prize is payable only to the person whose name appears on the winning ticket. There was no way to cash, invest or deposit the money, so the mother and older brother brought suit against Frederick.

In State Supreme Court Wednesday, Justice Joseph A. Brust ordered a three-way split in the prize money, with Frederick's share put in trust.

Beer-Driver Strike Settled

SAGINAW (UPI) — A month-old strike by beer truck drivers that dried up most of the Saginaw Bay area was settled Wednesday when Teamsters drivers and the Saginaw Beer Distributors Association reached agreement on a new three-year contract.

★ ★ ★

The new pact, overwhelmingly approved by Teamsters Union Local 486, provides for an increase of 18 cents per hour the first year, 19 cents the second and 20 cents in the third year of the contract.

Deliveries by the six major beer distributors in the area were expected to begin immediately, with the supply expected to return to normal within a few days.

Metal off Truck Flattens Tires on Hundreds of Cars

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Hundreds of motorists reported having flat tires Tuesday and Wednesday as they traveled along a section of Elmwood Avenue.

Police said a truck dumped sharp bits of metal along several blocks when its tailgate broke.

★ ★ ★

One motorist said he had five flats in less than 24 hours.

The problem was cleared up Wednesday but not before a city sanitation truck sent out to sweep up the metal had two flat tires and had to be replaced.

Colorado Mulls Titan Site Holes

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The Colorado Board of Land Commissioners is faced with the problem of closing six yawing holes. The gaping problems are the open doors on three abandoned Titan missile sites.

The commissioners acquired the sites in a trade with the federal government. A salvage crew removed the machinery in the 180-foot shafts—including the hydraulic equipment necessary to close the six 120-ton doors.

Unit Release Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department said Wednesday the 305th Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron based at Selfridge AFB, Mich., would be released from active duty by June 30, 1969. The unit was one of 24 reported scheduled for deactivation.

Got a Stinger With His Beer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Sam Acton may have a beer or two this weekend, but he'll probably strain it first.

Acton took a big swig Sunday and suddenly his throat started burning. He gagged and spit, and up came the bee that had stung him.

The bee apparently flew into the beer can when Acton put it down for a moment. Acton spent a couple of days in the hospital, but he's feeling fine now.

TED'S CORNER
A warranty deed conveys your interest in a piece of property to the purchaser. It is signed, notarized, witnessed and then recorded. The revenue stamps are placed on the warranty deed at the rate of $1.10 per $1,000 (price of house) paid for by the seller. A quit-claim deed warrants and guarantees nothing. If you have questions regarding your title, its rate and interest of the grantor, your deed, your property, is most valuable, keep it!

Candidates Backed by AFL-CIO Council

The Oakland County AFL-CIO Council today announced its endorsements of candidates in the Nov. 5 general election.

All the candidates in the partisan races receiving the support of the labor organization are Democrats.

★ ★ ★

In seven races no candidate received an endorsement. Jack Douglas, council president, who along with Ken Morris, director of Region 1B announced the endorsements, said that it was for one of three reasons that the candidates did not receive the backing of the council.

"Either they didn't ask for our endorsement, or didn't show up at our screening interview, or just didn't serve the best interests of labor," said Douglas.

ENDORSEMENTS

Endorsed were:

Congress — Allen Zemmol, 18th District; and Gary R. Frink, 19th District.

State House of Representatives — Donald L. Collier, 61st District; Arthur J. Law, 62nd District; Ronald S. Knowles, 63rd District; Leonard P. Baruch, 64th District; Bill S. Huffman, 66th District; Albert A. Kramer, 67th District; Wallace J. Reynolds, 68th District; and Daniel S. Cooper, 69th District.

★ ★ ★

County Offices — Thomas G. Plunkett, prosecutor; James E. Seeterlin, treasurer; Ruel E. McPherson, sheriff; Shane Murphy, clerk; and Robert M. Simburger, drain commissioner.

Holidays May Force Delay in Sirhan Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, accused of killing Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, will make his sixth court appearance Friday amid reports his trial will be delayed from Nov. 1 until early next year.

Discussions now under way between lawyers and judges reportedly concern a possible delay. The trial is expected to last two months, and as a result jurors would be locked up for the Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years holidays if it began Nov. 1.

The hearing Friday for Sirhan, a 24-year-old Jordanian immigrant, was arranged originally so a date could be set for the naming of a judge to hear the case. But Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker already has been assigned the trial.

Instead, the hearing is expected to be used to set a date for hearing a motion by Sirhan's defense counsel, Russell C. Parsons, to suppress certain evidence and his request that he be given all reports now held by prosecutors and police.

Hard-Core Jobless Hiring Seminar Set

A series of informational seminars for companies interested in hiring and training the hard-core unemployed will be held Tuesday in Detroit. Officials of companies from Oakland, Wayne and Macomb counties have been invited.

The seminars will be conducted by the National Alliance of Businessmen. They are designed to acquaint businessmen with the terms of new laws under which the Department of Labor will help defray the extra expense incurred in hiring, training and counseling hard-core unemployed.

The two open meetings for employers will be in the auditorium of the Michigan Bell Building in Detroit. Sessions start at 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Damages Won for Wild Elephant

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A Mexican circus owner won a favorable Texas Supreme Court ruling Wednesday in his three-year battle to recover damages from a pet shop owner who delivered a wild elephant to him when he wanted a tame one.

The high court upheld verdicts that Manuel King, operator of a pet center in Bellaire, Tex., owed Aurelio Atayde $3,500, which a jury found was the fair market price of a live, tame female elephant.

Union Orders Dockers Back

NEW YOR K (AP) — About 75,000 longshoremen from Maine to Texas were ordered by their union to report for work today in compliance with a federal court ruling.

Thomas W. Gleason, president of the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association, sent the order Wednesday after U.S. District Judge Sylvester J. Ryan signed a temporary restraining order against their two-day-old strike.

★ ★ ★

The court order was asked by the federal government under provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act that calls for an 80-day cooling-off period before the strike could be resumed.

The government's application for an injunction will be heard next Wednesday. It would be the seventh against the union in the last 20 years.

MILITARY CARGO HANDLED

The strike affected 20 American and 115 foreign ships, of which 11 and 34, respectively, were berthed in the port of New York.

The only cargo handled in the port area Wednesday was at the Military Ocean Terminal in Bayonne, N.J., where 200 longshoremen loaded cargo aboard four ships.

★ ★ ★

When the liner United States arrived Wednesday, officers and crewmen from the U.S. Lines put on work clothes to help the 1,365 passengers unload their baggage at the picketed North River pier.

A major issue in the ILA strike is the union's contention that its members' job security is threatened by containerized shipping. Fully loaded cargo containers, carried aboard flat-bed trucks or rail cars, were being put aboard ships without longshoremen having to rehandle the shipment on piers.

Other items at issue in a proposed contract are wages—the ILA wants $4 an hour compared to the $3.62 now paid—increased pensions, a guaranteed annual wage and other fringe benefits.

Communist Candidates OK'd for Minnesota Ballot

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A three-judge federal panel has ruled that the Communist party candidates for president and vice president appear on the Minnesota ballot Nov. 5.

The ruling Wednesday overturned Secretary of State Joseph Donovan's decision to reject a petition filed Sept. 9 to put the name of Charlene Mitchell for president and Michael Zagarell for vice president on the ballot. Donovan had said the 1954 federal Communist Control Act banned Communists from ballots. State Atty. Gen. Douglas M. Head said the federal judges' ruling would not be appealed.

★ ★ ★

The court ruled unanimously that the Communist defendants could be injured by being kept off the ballot but that no "grave or irreparable harm" seemed likely to befall the state.

"A well-informed, intelligent electorate such as exists in the state of Minnesota undoubtedly will be able fairly to discern and make appropriate decision upon the merits of the principles advocated by the Communist party candidates and their sponsors," said the order signed by Judges Harry A. Blackmun, Edwtrd J. Devitt and Philip Neville.

Blackmun and Devitt said the case raised "substantial doubts" about the constitutionality of the 1954 law. Neville added a three-page statement saying he had reservations about whether a democracy should allow freedoms to be endangered by a group dedicated to overthrowing its form of government.

5 of British Sextuplets Are Still Clinging to Life

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Five squalling infants, survivors of Britain's first sextuplets, kept a frail hold on life today on an hourly diet of sugared water. Doctors gave them an even chance of lasting through their first critical week.

The babies came to Mrs. Sheila Thorns in three minutes Wednesday—her 30th birthday. She had taken a fertility drug after 10 years of childless marriage.

Four girls and two boys, ranging in weight from two to three pounds, were delivered by caesarean section at Birmingham Maternity Hospital. One girl, the last to be born, died an hour later.

Lying in incubators, the five survivors were reported "yelling their heads off." Doctors described their condition as "extremely frail but fairly satisfactory."

Mrs. Thorns, weak but well, named the babies Lynne, Ian, Julie, Susan and Roger in order of their birth. She has spent the last 23 weeks in the hospital but learned only in August that six babies were on the way.

British medical authorities said the chance of having sextuplets has been calculated at 3,272,800,000 to 1.

Buddy Hacks at Frontier of Unprintable Language

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Buddy Hackett on stage at Lincoln Center Philharmonic Hall used shocking language—and got uproarious laughter.

The well-dressed, sophisticated audience clearly loved the fat boy's candid approach to the facts of life, expressed in words not often printed in newspapers, and rocked with yaks.

One wonders whether he isn't pioneering; whether all entertainers aren't going to have to sound like best-selling novels or European movies to hold their crowds.

Alan King introduced Buddy as "the nut of our age" at Alan's fund-raising show for the Alan King Medical Center in Jerusalem.

WILSON

Buddy defended himself for using three- and four-letter words, claiming one of them is a medical abbreviation, though it doesn't appear in my dictionary.

A bit of a prude myself, I looked around, mildly horrified. Nobody else seemed horrified. Nobody walked out on Buddy — though some walked out on people not as startling.

★ ★ ★

Buddy said he rented a $2,000-a-month house in Beverly Hills and demanded why it was $2,000. "Because the roof is cracked, otherwise it would be $3,000" . . . His doctor told him he has an enlarged liver . . . "What does he expect in this body —EVERYTHING is enlarged!" You see, he has printable material, too.

The Andy Warhol group actor Allen Midgett started to do a strip at the Film Festival party at Philharmonic and security guards grabbed him. Superstar Viva (who'd just "married" him at a "Tibetan ceremony") leaped in — and got slammed around roughly whereupon there were yells of "Police brutality." . . .

Mayor Lindsay's tribute to Johnny Carson's program as being a replacement for tired husbands will be stolen by all the comedians worth their weight in larceny . . .

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

While Ed Sullivan was introducing Diana Ross and the Supremes, Diana was changing clothes in the elevator and having trouble getting the door open; she arrived a second or two late . . . The party for Clint Eastwood of "Coogan's Bluff" had one guest missing: Clint, busy filming "Paint Your Wagon" . . . Betty Ann Grove (of "George M!") got a gift from husband Ed Brown: a bunch of parsley — dipped in gold . . . Monique Van Vooren says she won't wear her famed see-through blouse in her show: "I don't want to detract from the act."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Jerry Shane read the fine print in his fire-and-theft auto insurance, and learned it's good only if the car's on fire when it's stolen.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Dick Cavett suspects the gift of after-shave-lotion from a fan isn't very expensive stuff—the bottle says "No deposit, no return."

EARL'S PEARLS: Jane Morgan, touring the Astrodome, asked Judge Roy Hofbeinz how the artificial grass is kept so neat. He said, "With an artificial lawnmower."

Joe Kipness of Joe's Pier 52 told David Merrick he spent $1.25-million on the restaurant, and has a fortune invested in two forthcoming shows: "But what really upsets me is that my landlord raised my rent $75 a month!" That's earl, brother.

Gibson's Pitch Pipes McLain's Tune in Series

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Televiewers were treated to baseball's pitching match-up of the century, or at least of the year, as the World Series got under way Wednesday on NBC-TV.

★ ★ ★

The hurling opponents were Detroit's Denny McLain, who won 31 games this season, and St. Louis' Bob Gibson, who is the best pitcher there is, especially when the smell of money is in the air.

Here in Los Angeles, it was a particular thrill to see baseball again because we are represented by the Dodgers, and it is very difficult to figure out exactly what they do on the field.

★ ★ ★

As televiewers who watched Wednesday's game know, Mr. Gibson struck out 17, a new World Series record for one game. On the other hand, Mr. McLain lasted about half the contest as his teammates resembled a set of revolving doors at the plate.

POP ORGANIST

Mr. McLain, of course, is also well known as a pop organist, and will probably get reasonably rich with his act as a result of his spectacular success. A week from Sunday, for instance, he appears with his quartet on CBS-TV's Ed Sullivan Show.

It is, however, possible that Wednesday's performance against Gibson will not exactly increase McLain's moonlighting profits. A good showing in the remainder of the World Series would likely enhance his earning capacity as an organist even beyond the contracts already set. But further similar outings against Gibson could cost him a few shekels here and there. Winning is his selling point.

★ ★ ★

The two pitchers Wednesday were a fascinating study in athletic and aesthetic contrasts. Gibson was the picture of style and grace, a beautiful, fluid athelete who seemed the epitome of what his profession could offer. McLain, although obviously a fine hurler, came across on the other hand like a gutty little kid throwing uphill. He had the stuff, all right, but his control was off.

★ ★ ★

To the layman, it also seemed apparent that McLain is a high ball pitcher. And somehow the great low ball pitchers seem more classic in comparison. They appear more unreachable and devastating.

Prisoners Protest Shuffle at Buffalo

ALDEN, N.Y. (AP) — About 70 prisoners smashed furniture, destroyed plumbing facilities and broke windows Wednesday in a two-hour demonstration in the Erie County Penitentiary.

Capt. Peter Scaccia of the sheriff's department said the men returned to their cells after Undersheriff Leo Kennedy heard their demands that they be returned to the county jail in Buffalo, which the prisoners said was more accessible to their families and attorneys. Kennedy promised to look into the complaints.

He said the men were transferred from the Buffalo jail, about 20 miles away, when the jail became overcrowded.

No injuries were reported.

U.S. Antiaircraft Unit in Viet Just Sits and Waits—and Waits

HILL 347, Vietnam (AP)—For more than three years, Charlie Company of the U.S. Marines' this hill, waiting to fire a $3 million Hawk missile at an enemy aircraft.

1st Light Antiaircraft Missile Battalion has been sitting on

None has ever appeared on the horizon.

★ ★ ★

"But we sure do have a fine view of the war" said the battery commander, Capt. John Moore, known to his Leathernecks as the "No. 1 Mountain Man," lives on a peak that commands a breathtaking view of Da Nang Bay. His missiles defend the major air base adjoining South Vietnam's second largest city.

'JUST IN CASE'

The LAM battalion is one of the few "just-in-case" outfits in Vietnam. Because they've never had occasion to use their missiles, the U.S. Command has decided to send two of its four Army and Marine Hawk battalions back to the United States to make room for more combat troops.

Life on the mountain has been good to the Marines — perhaps too good.

★ ★ ★

There are hot water showers and cold beer. A volleyball game is usually in progress on the helicopter pad, and the same goes for pool in the enlisted men's club. The club also has a juke box, popcorn popper and a weight lifting room. There are nightly movies and a weekly day off for everyone to run down to the South China Sea beaches and post exchanges.

On Sunday there are services in an air-conditioned chapel.

ONE GROUND ATTACK

The battery has been hit by one ground attack, if it can be called that, in May 1967. A few sniper rounds skim over the camp occasionally, and the men still have to pull guard duty.

The Marine LAM battalion was among the first regular U.S. units to arrive in Vietnam in early 1965. Ever since, says the battalion commander, Maj. Norman Fitzgerald of Moorehead, N.C., its assignment has been "to use what we have, to do a job we think exists."

★ ★ ★

To keep in battle trim, the missile crews occasionally are sent to Chu Lai, 58 miles to the south, to fire at target drones. Sometimes Air Force and Marine jet pilots fly attack patterns to give the crews tracking practice.

"This duty is the same old thing, dull," said Lance Cpl. Dennis Grabowsky of Buffalo, N.Y. "About all we're doing is holding down this hill. I wish I was in an infantry outfit."

'TOO DANGEROUS'

But Cpl. Bill Boyd of Jackson, Miss., thinks the infantry is too dangerous.

"Anybody that's got any sense knows a LAM outfit is a good one to be in," he said.

Junior Editors Quiz on FIBERGLASS

QUESTION: What makes fiberglass so strong and how is it used?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: Fiberglass is a name for fibers of glass drawn out so fine they are flexible. When combined with a modern, plastic material, such as polyester-resin, an extremely strong substance can be produced. This can be used in many ways, one of which is in the making of small boats, which we illustrate.

In (1), we see a bit of glass cloth made by weaving glass fibers together. In (2), workmen are laying sheets of such cloth inside a mold of a boat's shape — something like covering the inside of a bathtub.

In (3), the plastic resin is being sprayed on so it thoroughly impregnates the cloth. After the resin has set hard, the workmen will lift a hard, rigid boat shell out of the mold (4).

Sometimes the cloth is laid over a core which is the exact shape of the boat's hull. The fiberglass is pressed down over this.

Such boat shells, when furnished with engines, seats and so on, make modern boats which are rotproof, leakproof and practical.

You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.

25 Die as Battle Rips Mexico City

AP Wirephoto

CAPTIVE HAIRCUT — Mexican soldiers administer a forced trim to a youth arrested early in last night's shooting outbreak. Other youths stand against a wall in the background, their hands behind their heads.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The bloodiest battle yet of Mexico City's student rebellion raged through the night after a rifle shot touched off a thunderous crossfire between snipers and army troops at the crowded site of an antigovernment rally yesterday.

Police and hospitals reported 25 persons killed, although at 1 a.m. a spokesman said the government's estimate was that 20 persons were killed and 75 wounded.

★ ★ ★

Estimates of those on the scene were that more than 100 were wounded and a check of three of Mexico City's hospitals showed 72 injured had been treated.

The International Olympic Committee called a meeting today at 11 a.m. to discuss the violence and its possible effect on the 1968 summer games, scheduled to open in the Mexican capital in nine days.

'NO DANGER'

The government spokesman, presidential press secretary Fernando Garza, said of the Olympics: "There is no danger. All necessary precautions have been taken."

He said the fighting began when "one group of students began firing at another." He added: "The end has come to this group of militant students. A cleaning out has been made already."

★ ★ ★

Firing in the area of the Plaza of the Three Cultures near downtown continued sporadically into the early morning hours. Soldiers said the main pockets of student resistance were two buildings in the adjoining Tlatelolco apartment district.

Throughout the evening, snipers with automatic weapons fired from apartment windows and troops brought armored cars into the battle and poured machine-gun fire back into the high-rise buildings. The troops began clearing out the buildings about four hours after the battle began. Hundreds of residents already had fled.

STUDENTS ROAM STREETS

But elsewhere, students roamed the streets with 22-caliber automatic pistols and Molotov cocktails setting dozens of buses and cars afire.

A secret police agent said snipers were shooting at ambulance drivers and "we can't get in and pick up the dead bodies lying in the plaza."

★ ★ ★

About 6,000 striking students had gathered in the plaza for a march to the Santo Tomas Vocational School, scene of the major fighting in a battle that left 15 dead in the night of Sept. 23.

★ ★ ★

Because of troops along the route, student leaders called off the march. But then four flares fell into the plaza, scattering the crowd, and a soldier appeared around the corner of a church.

TRIGGERED BY SHOT

A shot rang out, presumably from a sniper firing at the soldier, and the plaza instantly was filled with a roar of automatic weapons fire.

★ ★ ★

Thousands of persons were believed under arrest at military posts.

★ ★ ★

At some buildings where firing was heavy, parents were standing outside wailing that their children were in there alone.

Several buildings caught fire.

OTHER HOTSPOTS

Besides the snipers in apartments, an estimated 400 students were holding out in a vocational school. A witness said an army helicopter fired on the students. Snipers also were reported in the government Social Security and Health Building.

★ ★ ★

Garza said the army started shooting only after the snipers opened fire.

★ ★ ★

The students have kept Mexico City in turmoil for about two months in their strike to back up such demands as elimination of the riot police, firing of three top police officials, changes in an antisubversion law and a guarantee of university autonomy.

★ ★ ★

The demands grew out of a mid-July fight between students of two high schools. Police broke up the fight and students of the universities and high schools banded together later to accuse the police of brutality.

SPORADIC RIOTING

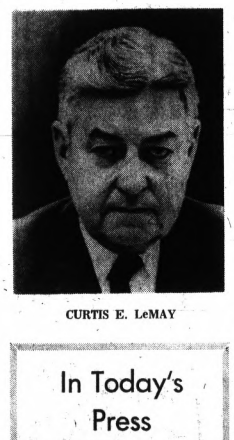

Rioting was sporadic since that time and the army took over the University of Mexico last month to block what officials called a plot to upset the Olympics. Olympic Stadium is on the university campus.

★ ★ ★

The scene of the fighting was several miles from the Olympic Village, where athletes from more than 100 nations are in training for the games.

Viet Hawk LeMay Wallace VP Choice

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Retired Air Force Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, who wants victory in Vietnam even if it takes nuclear weapons, was made George C. Wallace's vice presidential candidate today.

CURTIS E. LeMAY

"One of his outstanding characteristics that I admire greatly in his ability to speak his mind," said the former Alabama governor as he introduced LeMay to a full dress news conference.

Republican presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon carried his campaign

Related Stories, Pages A-7, A-8

into the South, meanwhile, and said the solution of American problems "isn't quite so simple" as Wallace implies.

A major effort in Nixon's southern tour is to be a television broadcast tonight from Atlanta, Ga., into Wallace's home state of Alabama and 10 other southern states.

Democratic candidate Hubert H. Humphrey, who concentrated his political guns on Wallace during a southern tour earlier this week, turned them back on Nixon today in Welch, W. Va.

He said Appalachia — for which he said the "Nixon-Republican administration" did nothing — is overcoming ills with federal programs approved under succeeding Democratic administrations.

★ ★ ★

"It won't take long for the Nixon-Agnew team to tear these things down if they win in 1968," Humphrey said.

Humphrey's running mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, appealed to a crowd of fellow Polish-Americans in Chicago Wednesday to reject Wallace's law-and-order message. It "would be the end of what our people came to America for," Muskie said.

WIRETAP STAND

Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, the GOP vice presidential candidate, said meanwhile, his call for increased wiretapping to combat organized crime does not indicate a change previous statements he is against wiretapping "in any form."

In other political developments:

● A three-judge federal panel has ruled Communist party presidential candidate Charlene Mitchell and her running mate cannot be kept off Minnesota's November ballot under terms of the 1954 federal Communist control act.

● Humphrey's campaign manager, Lawrence F. O'Brien, says private polls show the Democrat leading in eight states with 136 of the 270 electoral votes needed for election: Connecticut, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Texas.

Peru Military Ousts Regime

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The Peruvian army early today overthrew the elected government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry.

Soldiers stormed the presidential palace shortly after 2 a.m. and emerged a short time later with Belaunde, dressed in a blue suit and shouting in Spanish "You are traitors."

★ ★ ★

The coup took place about 12 hours after Belaunde had installed a new 11-member Cabinet — the seventh in his five-year regime.

Belaunde was taken to an unknown place.

LIMA CALM

All was calm on Lima streets and Peruvians awoke on a bleak misty day to find that the military had taken over, as they did five years ago — that time with the result that Belaunde took office.

Belaunde had disappointed even his most enthusiastic followers, however, and it had become apparent in recent weeks that a coup was inevitable.

★

The present political crisis erupted following the signing of a new contract with International Petroleum Corp.

Belaunde's opponents claimed Peru had come out on the short end of the negotiation, and the former head of the Peruvian Oil Agency claimed the last page of the contract had been lost.

GUARANTEED PAYMENT

He said this page contained his personal notations that guaranteed payment in dollar equivalents regardless of fluctuation of the Peruvian sol.

The controversy split Belaunde's party and finally resulted in the resignation of Premier Osvaldo Hercelles and his Cabinet Tuesday.

Weather in Area Will Be Pleasant

Pleasant weather is in store for the Pontiac area, at least through Saturday.

The weatherman predicts clearing and cooler with a low of 38 to 45 tonight. Tomorrow is expected to be fair and cool. The forecast for Saturday is fair with temperatures on the cool side.

★ ★ ★

Nippy temperatures are gradually creeping down from the Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Michigan where frost and freezing temperatures are forecast for early tomorrow.

Precipitation probability in per cent is: 30 today.

★ ★ ★

Fifty-five was the low recording prior to 8 a.m. today in downtown Pontiac. At 12:30 p.m. the mercury registered 58.

Lolich Has His Cool for 2nd Series Game

By JERE CRAIG
Sportswriter, The Pontiac Press

ST. LOUIS — Temperatures were supposed to drop 10 to 15 degrees for the second game of the World Series today, and this makes Detroit Tiger pitcher Mickey Lolich happy.

Lolich, a left-hander with a 17-9 won-lost season record, goes against righthander Nelson Briles who posted a 19-11 season mark, and the Tiger hurler, who now lives near Romeo, commented, "I prefer the wet, cool weather, like in Oregon where I come from."

★ ★ ★

After watching Bob Gibson set the Tigers down with a series record total of 17 strikeouts in the first-game 4-0 triumph for the Cardinals, Lolich was a bit optimistic about his first Series starting role today.

"Right-handed pitchers and left-handers are so different that I didn't really benefit from watching the first game," he said.

HE'LL AVOID WALKS

"I guess my big effort will be not to walk anybody."

"They say that left-handers can give the Carinald trouble. I hope they're right," Lolich added.

"Walks were the turning point," manager Mayo Smith said about yesterday's shutout of the Tigers.

★ ★ ★

Denny McLain, who lost to Gibson in the big showdown, said the strike zone used by National League umpire Tom Gorman didn't cause any troubles.

"I just couldn't find it," he confessed, "and it wasn't the humid weather. The Cardinals applied most of the heat out there," he joked.

STANLEY SHINES AT SHORT

The Mickey Stanley experiment at shortstop was undoubtedly the day's lone bright spot for the Tigers. The standout center fielder grabbed Lou Brock's bouncer and retired him easily with a true throw to Norm Cash for the first out in the Cardinals' half of the opening inning.

"I was happy to see it," Stanley said after the game in noting that he didn't have long to wait for his first chance. Stanley had one other assist, caught a pop-up and tagged out two Cardinal runners at second base.

★ ★ ★

Stanley will stay at shortstop in today's contest, and Smith also said he would stick with the same batting order.

Former Midland High School star Larry Jaster is in the St. Louis bullpen for the World Series again this year.

Jaster is a southpaw hurler whose fast ball gave Pontiac Central batters some trouble before he signed with the Cardinals in 1962.

FACED BOSOX IN '67

The 6-3, 205-pound pitcher made his World Series debut against the Red Sox last year and pitched to three batters in relief. Primarily a fast baller, he has developed his curve and added a screwball, but still is trying to perfect an off-speed delivery.

Jaster pitched Detroit Recreation League ball one summer, but in his words: "They (the Tigers) never seemed too interested in me."

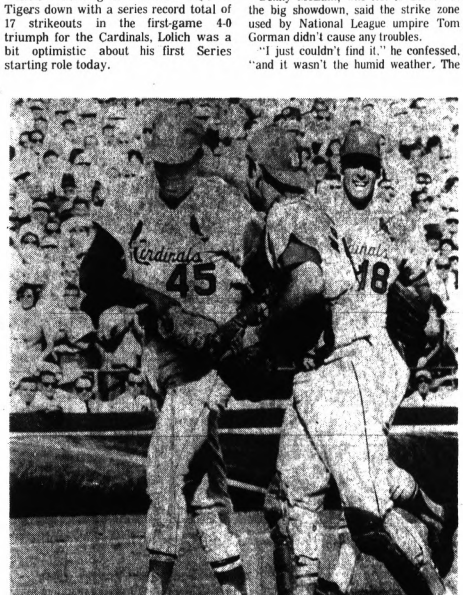

★ ★

With the Cardinals two years ago, he tied a Major League record by shutting out the Los Angeles Dodgers five straight times.

The 24-year-old lefty has been 3-0, 11-5, 9-7 and 9-13 in his stays with the Cardinals. His earned run average was 3.51 this season.

★ ★ ★

He could add some luster to a disappointing 1968 campaign with some strong showings against the Tigers, if any of the starters need bullpen help.

King's Tomb Is Target

LONDON (AP) — A vandal burst into Westminster Abbey today and hurled a crude fire bomb at the tomb of Edward the Confessor.

The abbey, one of Britain's great gothic cathedrals, was built 900 years ago during the reign of King Edward, whose chiseled tomb was blackened by the bomb attack.

AF to Release 16,000 in Reserves, Air Guard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force will release about 16,000 Air National Guardsmen and reservists from active duty by next summer. But the Army says it still needs the 20,000 men it called up to support the Vietnam war.

* * *

Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford announced last night that some Air Guard and reserve units and individuals will be released before January, the remainder in April, May and June.

Clifford warned the plans "could be changed, of course, if unforeseen circumstances arise."

* * *

He did not spell out those circumstances, but he obviously meant some new crisis as grave as the North Korean capture of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo and last winters enemy offensive in South Vietnam.

38,000 MUSTERED

Those developments resulted in a two-stage muster of some 38,000 Air Force, Navy and Army reservists and Guardsmen in late January and mid-May. They were subject to up to two years in uniform.

* * *

By releasing the 16,127 Air Guardsmen and reservists gradually over the next nine months, the Air Force said it will be able to replace demobilized pilots and navigators from its training program and by what it calls "personnel management."

Among those to be released is Airman 1.c. Patrick J. Nugent, son-in-law of President Johnson. He has been in Vietnam since April.

* * *

Replacements for the demobilized citizen-airmen will have to come from the ranks of the Regular Air Force.

SECOND TOURS LOOM

"As a result, some airmen will be selected to return to Southeast Asia for a second tour involuntarily sooner than would have been otherwise necessary," the Air Force said.

The Navy announced more than two weeks ago that it will deactivate six reserve squadrons and 600 officers and men by Nov. 1. They, too, were mustered in the wake of the Pueblo seizure. About 1,000 reserve Seabees also are on active duty.

* * *

But the Army said it does not now plan to release any of the 20,000 men it called to the colors "except upon expiration of their respective terms of service."

"Only when it is determined that a need for these units no longer exists will they be released prior to the terms of service for which they were called to duty,' the Army said after the Air Force move was disclosed.

6 SQUADRONS TO ASIA

Six Air Guard squadrons were shipped to Vietnam and South Korea during the spring and summer.

Guard pilots with the four squadrons of Korean War vintage F100 fighter squadrons already have logged more than 6,000 combat missions.

Some critics, including congressmen, have attacked the administration for calling up the Guardsmen and reservists, contending the Pueblo incident was used as a convenient excuse to beef up forces.

Most Erie Filth Blamed on State

CHICAGO (AP) — Detroit and southeastern lower Michigan are handed the lion's share of the blame for pollution of Lake Erie in a report issued yesterday by the federal Water Polution Control Administration.

Forty per cent of all the phosphorus and 51 per cent of the chlorides dumped into the lake come from southeastern Michigan, the report asserted.

* * *

Six of the 10 companies listed by the report as the major polluters of the lake are Michigan firms.

The report says the top polluters are Ford Motor Co.'s vast manufacturing installations at Detroit and Monroe, Mich., dumping 19.7 per cent of all the industrial waste water in the Lake Erie basin.

OHIO, N.Y. SECOND

Ranked second are Republic Steel Co. plants in Ohio and New York.

Great Lakes Steel Corp. of Ecorse and River Rouge, Mich., is named as fourth largest polluter.

* * *

Wyandotte Chemical Co. of Wyandotte, Mich., is placed sixth.

Pennsalt Chemical of Riverview is seventh.

McLouth Steel Corp. of Trenton is rated ninth.

Czechs in Russia to Seek Pullout

MOSCOW (AP) — Czechoslovak Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek and Premier Oldrich Cernik came to Moscow today for negotiation with Soviet leaders who six weeks ago sent troops into their liberalized country.

Dubcek was reported to be seeking withdrawal of at least some of the Communist Bloc troops sent into Czechoslovakia on Aug. 20.

* * *

In addition to Cernik, Dubcek was accompanied by Gustav Husak, deputy premier and head of the Slovak Communist party.

The airport where Dubcek's airliner landed was closed to Western correspondents. However, informed Communist sources reported that the Czechoslovak delegation was met by the top three men of the Kremlin — Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Foes of Fortas Will Fight Any New LBJ Moves

WASHINGTON (AP) — The withdrawal of Abe Fortas' nomination to be chief justice has left President Johnson with three choices.

Chief Justice Earl Warren said earlier he'd stay on if Fortas wasn't confirmed by the Senate, removing need for quick action.

* * *

He will be on the bench when the Supreme Court opens Monday.

Warren said last July his open-ended retirement — which was seized as a major issue by Fortas opponents — avoids "the danger of 4-to-4 decision" in the term beginning Monday.

THE THREE CHOICES

Johnson could submit a new nomination before Congress adjourns, or make a recess appointment subject to confirmation in the Senate's next session. And he could simply do nothing.

* * *

Those who opposed the Fortas nomination and cheered its withdrawal yesterday are for this last alternative. They promised to fight any attempt by Johnson to name a new chief justice.

"It would be the better part of wisdom for him not to send up a new nomination," said Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., who started the drive against Fortas.

* * *

In 1960, Johnson supported a resolution that Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., guided through the Senate opposing any recess Supreme Court appointments by outgoing President Eisenhower.

Urban Design Plan Offered

BIRMINGHAM — Formal presentation of the Johnson, Johnson and Roy, Inc., urban design plan was made last night to the Birmingham Planning Board.

A seven-point implementation program for 1969 was presented for beginning the four-year project to improve the physical environment of the city.

* * *

The final plan would have a ring road around the central business district, to give the district a more pedestrian character with a town plaza at the intersection of Woodward and Maple.

The removal of traditional curbs and the introduction of a single unifying pavement material, together with trees, planters and a fountain, would establish this environment for this area.

LOWER SIGNS

Business and public signs would be lowered and uniform. New lighting and street furniture would contribute to the change in character.

Johnson, Johnson and Roy, represented by Cy Paumier, also announced plans for a civic center plaza, on the north side of the Municipal Building to meet the needs of the many public functions and activities held throughout the year.

* * *

In addition to the many public functions that may be accomplished by this plaza, which would include Shain Park, this space would place emphasis on the entrance to the public buildings clustered around this area, according to Paumier.

Also a part of the entire plan are parking enclosures to make the streets more attractive to visitors entering the city at the four suggested major entries; at either end of Maple and also Woodward.

NEED FOR PARKING

The need for parking enclosure is very important to the implementation of the urban design recommendations, according to the report.

The Johnson, Johnson and Roy report also includes suggestions for downtown architecture, improvement of entrance corridors characters, the appearance of parkways, and improvement of service station appearances.

* * *

The seven-point implementation program for 1969 includes:

- Preparation of preliminary site plans for the Maple-Woodward landscape to serve as the framework for a one-block pilot project on West Maple. The pilot project would be executed in the summer of 1969.
- Preparation of detailed plans for a parking enclosure on a surface lot, to be executed in the summer of 1969.
- Preparation of detailed site plans for two service stations on the southwest corners of East Maple and Hunter; the pilot project to be executed in the spring of 1970.

* * *

- Revision of sign ordinances leading to the elimination of all roof and pole signs over 15 feet high.
- Installation of new public signs along the entrance corridors and ring road.
- Installation of several new street lights for evaluation of the recommended lighting plans.
- Completion of contract drawings for the Civic Center Plaza. Construction would be completed by the fall of 1969.

Freeway in Flames After Fatal Crash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Half a mile of the Golden Gate Freeway north of downtown Los Angeles became a sheet of flame last night when a loaded fuel tanker truck burst apart and exploded after a fatal collision with an auto.

Fire officials said thousands of gallons of burning gasoline flooded the freeway and flowed through storm drains, where fumes caused numerous underground explosions and sent manhole covers flying.

A fire department spokesman, said, "We've got most of the fire on the freeway extinguished but there's nothing we can do about the flames in the sewers." He said there was no danger to residents in the area.

HONG KONG (AP) — Rescuers have virtually given up hope of finding seven missing crew members from the Panamanian - registered freighter Bangkok Trader, abandoned three days ago in the China Sea some 300 miles west of here.

A spokesman for the Hong Kong Marine Department said only a search aircraft from the U.S. Clark Airforce Base in the Philippines remained in the search.

Exam to Continue Oct. 11 for 4 in Rape-Kidnap Case

By MEL NEWMAN

The preliminary examination of four Oakland County youths on charges of kidnap and rape in the abduction Sept. 20 of a Pontiac couple will be continued Oct. 11 — likely with an additional court-appointed defense attorney.

J. Robert Stirling, representing the accused abductors of a 19-year-old girl and her escort, yesterday requested that Circuit Court Judge Philip Pratt name a second counsel for at least one of the four.

* * *

Circuit Court is responsible for such appointments when necessary in state law cases.

Pratt took the request under advisement.

BOND MOTION DENIED

Previously, Waterford Township Justice of the Peace Kenneth H. Hempstead, who is hearing the examination, denied a defense motion for the setting of bond on the defendants.

The four, Percy J. Greenwood, 21, of Pontiac; Raymond M. Spring, 24, of Orion Township; James L. Davidson, 18, of Oxford; and James R. Perna, 18, of Oxford, have been in custody in Oakland County Jail without benefit of bond since their arrests.

* * *

Spring and Greenwood were arrested Sept. 20 by deputies in the 19-year-old male victim's car at M24 and Silver Bell in Orion Township.

Perna and Davidson were arrested later at their homes.

FACE ADDITIONAL CHARGES

All are charged with rape and kidnap in an alleged series of attacks in the Oxford area following the abduction of the couple in Lapeer County.

Perna and Spring face additional charges in Lapeer County of rape, assault and armed robbery in an alleged prior and related incident the same day.

* * *

Stirling said yesterday he requested the appointment of a second attorney because of the possibility of a legal conflict in future cross examination of the defendants.

A spokesman said that Pratt would "Very likely" comply with the request.

Highland Park Police Quizzed in Burglaries

HIGHLAND PARK (AP) — Investigators were questioning members of the Highland Park Police Department today in connection with reports that some policemen might be involved in burglaries.

The investigation was launched after John Vaughn, 30, one of four patrolmen sent to prison last August for concealing stolen property, wrote a letter to Circuit Judge John Wise, who sentenced him to 2½ years' imprisonment.

Wayne County Sheriff Roman Gribbs said Vaughn offered to give information about other police officers in exchange for his freedom.

MANILA (AP) — Philippine fighter planes buzzed motor-boats from Sabah engaged in smuggling last Monday and today, a Philippines air force spokesman said.

Higher Signs Sought for Service Stations

AVON TOWNSHIP — A recommendation by the planning commission to allow service station signs in freeway districts to be erected as high as 26 feet will be made to the Township Board.

The planning commission last night acted on a request of the zoning board of appeals. The limit remains 20 feet in other zoning districts.

★ ★ ★

A request to allow construction of 788 apartment units on 78.8 acres at the southwest corner of Avon and Livernois roads was referred to planning consultants and engineers for recommendation.

Also referred for study was the application for a mobile home park on 34 acres in the triangle formed by M59, Auburn and Livernois.

TWO REQUESTS

Two requests for new businesses, a small industrial shop at Hamlin and Dequindre and a lawn mower and snow-removal equipment sales at South Boulevard and Livernois, were also referred to consultants and engineers for further information.

A public hearing on rezoning to allow a used car lot on Crooks Road south of Auburn was set for 7:30 p.m. Nov. 20.

★ ★ ★

The commission acted to deny site plans presented for a Clark Oil Co. gas station at Auburn and M59 interchange. The reason given was that there are three other service stations within a few hundred feet of the location.

Smaller Loan to Walled Lake Schools OK'd

WALLED LAKE — The board of education will borrow $492,000 in tax anticipation notes to meet operational expenses for the months of October and November.

Originally the board requested $700,000 but the State Municipal Finance Commission trimmed the figure by about $208,000.

★ ★ ★

The low bid out of three was awarded to the Michigan National Bank of Flint at 3.5 per cent interest.

In other recent business, the board heard an offer from the Wixom Church to sell their parsonage which adjoins the Wixom Elementary School. The request was made in the form of a letter to the board, which stated that the property was appraised at about $20,000. The board took no action.

OPENING SOON

Supt. George Garver reported that the Loon Lake Elementary School is about 99 per cent complete and the starting date for classes is expected to be next week.

Garver said the Twin Sun School Special Education building will open at a later date because of delays in cabinet building.

A meeting has been scheduled for Oct. 9 to provide the board and nearby school districts with information concerning a proposed Area Vocational Skills Center.

The Walled Lake School's administration has secured for the board of education an option for 20-acres located on Beck, between W. Maple and Potter as a possible site for the center, which will be one of four such vocational centers in Oakland County.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

The proposed center will provide vocational training to seven school districts in southwest Oakland County including Novi, West Bloomfield, Farmington, Walled Lake, South Lyon, Clarenceville and Huron Valley.

AVON TOWNSHIP — "Sing Out America," a choral group composed of Oakland County youth, will perform at the Michigan Christian College annual Harvest Festival at 2 p.m. Saturday at the campus, 800 W. Avon.

At the same time the commission authorized the city of Farmington to issue $72,000 in general obligation and special assessment bonds for street improvements.

Township Rezonings Urged

The County Board of Supervisors Coordinating, Zoning and Planning Committee yesterday recommended approval of expanding Commerce Township's industrial area and reducing Springfield Township's residential-farm land.

The committee inspects all acts by community zoning commissions for conformity to area wide planning. Final decisions are made by local governing bodies, or in the case of litigation, by courts. The county committee issues only a recommendation.

For Commerce Township the stamp of approval was placed on a 140-acre site north of Maple and east of Benstien. Counting adjacent areas, a 280-acre site is now zoned for industrial use.

In Springfield Township three pieces of land were approved for rezoning from agricultural - residential to residential. In Springfield and some other townships, the former zoning calls for 10-acre homesites. This allows a family to have a horse, other animals, and-or a small farm.

APPROVED FOR REZONING

Approved for rezoning were 12 acres on Andersonville north of Crosby Lake Road, 19-acres at Farley and Foster and 40 acres at Clark Lake and Hogback Lake roads.

In Avon Township, two large parcels, totaling 119 acres, were approved to be changed from residential and commercial use to trailer park use. A company representative said about 1,200 mobile homes could be placed on the land. An objection from the school district was reported on the basis of the low tax base associated with this type of development.

Further evidence of burgeoning growth in Avon Township was revealed by a request to rezone to allow a 350-unit apartment complex to be built on Tienken, east of Livernois and just north of the Rochester City limits. It was recommended for approval as was a 4-acre site on Rochester Road and M59 slated for a community business center.

In Independence Township, rezoning to allow a cabinet shop to be constructed on an 8-acre site north of Maybee and east of Sashabaw, was approved.

NEGATIVE RECOMMENDATIONS

A negative recommendation was attached to two rezoning requests. In White Lake Township, A developer seeks to rezone a 21-acre parcel at the northeast corner of Union and Elizabeth Lake roads to allow a 170-unit apartment complex.

Denial was recommended on the basis of possible pollution surrounding such a high-density development where no sewer or water facilities are available.

Also getting a negative nod was a request to rezone a lot on the southwest corner of the same intersection to provide for a gas station. It was pointed out the corner already has two gas stations, one closed.

Crime Start Is Topic

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP — Dennis McDonald, probation officer for the area, will discuss "The Beginnings of Crime" at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Pine Knob PTA meeting.

Refreshments will be served following this first regular meeting of the school year.

Hearings Nov. 6 on Orion Zoning

ORION TOWNSHIP — Two public hearings regarding rezoning of some 75 acres for industry and another 15 acres for a dental clinic have been scheduled for 8 p.m. Nov. 6 by the Planning Commission which met last night.

★ ★ ★

The industrial zoning is sought by Herbert Jacob, Gerald Fons and Robert Fannon on land between Bald Mountain and Lapeer Road in the southeast corner of the township.

Petitioners say that because of physical condition and surrounding uses the present residential zoning is unfit.

★ ★ ★

The dental clinic is proposed in the triangular section at Kern and Rochester - Orion roads. Mrs. Finley Kennedy of Lake Orion represented the Detroit owners at last night's commission meeting. The land is currently zoned residential.

DECISION DUE NOV. 6

A decision will be rendered Nov. 6 on a request for rezoning to permit construction of a furniture store on the east side of Baldwin south of Judah Road. A public hearing last night drew no comment.

★ ★ ★

The commission last night named Payne Downey, vice chairman and Dr. Clarence Will secretary. It was resigned president Richard Beer's last meeting. He turned the gavel over to Harold Wright who was elected the new chairman last month.

Since the school recently changed from a six-week to a ten-week marking period, teachers at Muir are preparing to meet with parents to discuss their children's achievement prior to the sending of report cards.

Students will be evaluated on such things as knowledge of facts, oral and written expression and utilization of available learning materials.

Walled Lake PTA Opens Year Monday

WALLED LAKE — The opening session of the Walled Lake Elementary School PTA will be Monday at 7:30 p.m. In the multipurpose room of the school.

Following the meeting parents and friends will have the opportunity to meet the teachers and visit the classrooms. Children are welcome at this first event of the school year.

More Tax Issues Face Residents of Troy District

TROY — Two more tax issues appear to be facing residents of the Troy School District even as the district is wracked by a State Department of Treasury report alleging mismanagement of funds.

In a financial statement for the period ended June 30, Robert W. Dolmage, secretary of the board, notes that a citizens committee has been studying school building needs since January and that the board has hired an architect and hopes to present a proposal to the voters soon.

Dolmage also sees, as an immediate consideration, renewal of 8 mills for operation which will be collected for the last time in December.

The report notes that the 1967-68 school year was one of cutbacks and reduced services, following three millage defeats during the year. Finally in June a request for 4 mills for two years was approved by voters.

'RULINGS AWAITED'

The annual financial report also mentions the state report requested by treasurer Harold James and later confirmed by the rest of the board and admits that "Some rulings from the Attorney General's office and the Department of Education are awaited urgently to help settle the questions that have been raised."

A growing deficit is pointed out — $374,894 in the general operating fund cash basis as of July 1, 1967, increased to $684,498 by June 30, 1968. On a semi-accrual basis the deficit reportedly went from $200,067 to $485,338.

The report concludes, "The long-range prospect for Troy Schools is good, with rising valuation-per-child for tax purposes. At least $224,000 of the general fund cash-basis deficit will be paid off by June of 1969. Until the rest of the deficit is retired, austerity budgets will have to remain in effect."

DPW Meeting Called

CLARKSTON—A special meeting with representatives of the Oakland County Department of Public Works has been called for 8 p.m. Monday by the Village Council.

New Huron Valley Superintendent

Spy Chaser to School Chief

By DIANNE DUROCHER

Theodore E. Hagadone has gone from chasing spies in back alleys to running a school system.

The tall, trim superintendent of the Huron Valley School District reflected on the days when he served with the Counter Intelligence Corps in the early 1950s.

THEODORE E. HAGADONE

"I chased spies all over the United States and the Far East," he said.

"I caught a few too," he quickly added, "There was this time in Korea. . ."

LOVES TRAVEL

Relaxing at his desk, Hagadone, 39, spoke of his love of travel and also about his two-year hitch with the State Department in Europe when he worked as an investigator from 1955 to 1957.

All of his enjoyable moments were not spent in traveling however. He taught school for 12 years, and at one time coached basketball and track.

★ ★ ★

Hagadone enjoys athletics and engages in seasonal sports such as hunting, skiing and fishing.

He found time for all of his favorite activities during leisure hours when he was superintendent of schools in Iron Mountain from 1965 to 1967.

MAIN CONCERN

In 1967, he earned his doctor of education degree from Michigan State University under a fellowship from the Mott Foundation in Flint. He was one of 24 people selected from all over the world to receive such a fellowship.

Hagadone was also a superintendent of schools for two years in Vanderbilt, Mich., and quips, "People in this community regard me as the 'new' superintendent. Actually I'm quite worn, but I suppose I'm new to them."

★ ★ ★

He said he believes that the district encompasses an excellent community and that administration officials are trying to provide a school system comparable to that of a large city — without the exhaust fumes.

"The schools belong to the community," Hagadone said "and its residents will be able to use them."

SPECIAL CLASSES EYED

He added that there will be special classes offered, from ceramics to modern math, as soon as there are people to fill them.

Hagadone feels very strongly about education and the administrative improvements that may be waiting to be made.

★ ★ ★

"Education is a business," he said, "a good education is necessary to enable children to grow up making decisions and to eventually become good citizens."

Regarding future plans for the district, Hagadone said he would like to propose to the board at some future date the possibility of a school park concept that would contain a high school from grades 9-12; a middle school, from grades 5-8 and a primary school.

COMMON FACILITIES

He explained that the school park would contain common facilities for all three schools, but the schools and the students would be separate.

Hagadone likes to know "what's happening" and feels the best way to find out is to get out and talk to people — so he does.

★ ★ ★

He has eaten lunch with children in every school in the district and takes every available opportunity to speak with faculty members.

Hagadone assumed his $20,000-a-year post in August, signing a three-year contract. He and his wife, Mary Andrea, and their three children have moved into a home at 1532 Pruit, Highland Township, with plans to stay put for awhile.

★ ★ ★

It's not really so easy to go from spy chaser to school chief.

Into Bloomfield Twp.

Lewis Furniture to Move

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — Lewis Furniture, a Pontiac-based business since December 1923, will move into a brand-new home in March.

Ground-breaking ceremonies for a new store were to be held this morning at the corner of Woodward and Roswell, south of Square Lake Road.

★ ★ ★

The firm started in business in its present location, 62 S. Saginaw, sharing the building with seven other tenants, according to Leonard T. Lewis, owner and son of one of the original owners. The business grew and gradually took over the entire building.

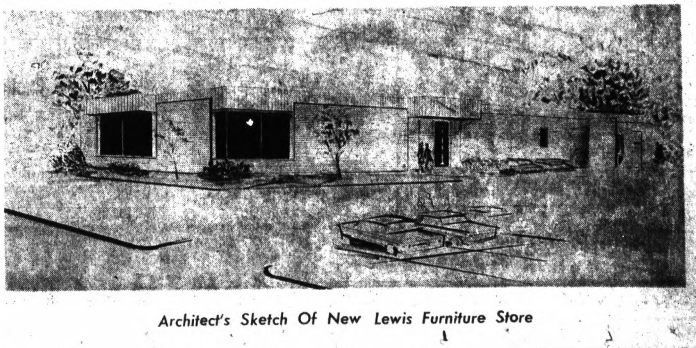

The Pontiac store will remain open for business until the opening of the new one, planned for March 1. The old building lies in the path of one of Pontiac's Urban Renewal projects.

★ ★ ★

Lewis said the new structure will be of contemporary design with all-brick construction. It will be a 2-story building, 75 by 155 feet, at an estimated cost of $300,000.

★ ★ ★

"The new store will be more exclusive, carrying only top quality residential and business furniture, and will have a fine decorating staff," Lewis said.

LeMay Said to Be Wallace's Choice for Running Mate

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Retired Air Force Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, a tough-talking hawk on Vietnam who doesn't rule out using nuclear weapons, becomes George C. Wallace's vice presidential candidate today, informed sources say.

★ ★ ★

Men close to Wallace report that the famous flying general of World War II—so tough he was known as "Old Ironpants"—will join the third-party campaign at a morning news conference.

LeMay, a critic of U.S. military strategy and foreign policy, spent the night under Secret Service guard after flying here from Los Angeles and wouldn't talk to reporters about whether he will run. Neither would Wallace.

★ ★ ★

But Wallace did announce he would make public his choice at the news conference. And he said the candidate would be there.

ONCE RETICENT

LeMay, the heavy-jowled, 61-year-old former Air Force chief of staff who usually has a cigar gripped between his teeth, was once reticent about speaking in public. "If you talk all the time," he said, "you don't learn anything."

But lately, he has taken the offensive against U.S. policies in speeches and in print. He says the United States should destroy "all the works of man in North Vietnam" and that a Korea-like settlement is unthinkable.

★ ★ ★

"No matter how the politicians may hail such a truce as an American victory, it will be gained at such a costly price as to be pyrrhic," LeMay said in his recent book, "America is in Danger."

"The virus of communism will continue to spread throughout Southeast Asia because we failed to administer a sound and decisive defeat to its organized propagators," he said.

LOGIC QUESTIONED

He said nuclear weapons would probably not be needed but he isn't opposed to using them. "What is the logic in preferring to drop 20,000 tons of explosives from 1,000 aircraft . . when roughly the same effect could be gained by one aircraft with a small nuclear weapon," he has said.

★ ★ ★

Wallace, who was a flight crewman on a B29 in World War II, also believes the United States can win a military victory in Vietnam.

★ ★ ★

Wallace told 200 hecklers at a political rally Wednesday night about his war service. As the group shouted choruses of "Sieg Heil," Wallace said:

"I was fighting the Nazis before you were ever born. In World War II we ran the Nazis out of the country and one of these days we're going to run all the Communists out of this country."

DROWNED OUT

The 8,000 cheering, stomping supporters in Pittsburgh's Civic Arena drowned out the hecklers.

"You're going to get me a million votes," Wallace told the hecklers. "You are the personification of what folks are tired of in this country."

★ ★ ★

The rally capped a day of campaigning through industrial centers of the Midwest, where organized labor is worried that it cannot hold the rank-and-file in the Democratic fold.

Wallace said in Ohio that he was going to name his vice presidential candidate, and in Pittsburgh he promised supporters he would have a "full-fledged platform" within a week.

WITH TWO AIDES

LeMay flew in by commercial airliner with two of Wallace's campaign aides. He was met at the airport by Secret Service agents, required by law to accompany presidential and vice presidential candidates.

LeMay, who flew so much as a commanding general during World War II that the Air Force finally told him to stop, waved the knot of reporters off and sped away in a limousine.

LeMay developed the heavy bombing techniques used against Germany and Japan. A military biographer called him "the architect of systematic destruction."

He also was the architect of the Berlin air lift of 1948-49 that turned into a major diplomatic defeat for the Soviet Union.

FOUGHT BITTERLY

In 1948 he was named head of the Strategic Air Command and built it from a handful of aging B29s into the world's most powerful bombing force. After he became Air Force chief of staff in 1961, he fought bitterly against Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's de-emphasis of bomber defense and SAC.

LeMay once said the guided missile would never replace the manned airplane for the simple reason that it "can't think."

LeMay personally led B17s into combat in Europe to prove that daylight bombing was practical.

LeMay was so tough that the favorite story among airmen under him goes like this: LeMay was supposed to have been smoking in a SAC plane when a junior officer pointed out that it was dangerous and the plane might explode. "It wouldn't dare," LeMay replied.

PLANS CHANGED

In New York City, Wallace supporters abandoned plans for "route discretion" to ban political meetings there.

Wednesday and set Oct. 24 for a Shea Stadium rally next Wallace supporters went to court and a judge ruled Tuesday one at 20,000-seat Madison Square Garden.

★ ★ ★

Parks Commissioner August Heckscher last week announced it would appeal. Wallace turned down use of the 56,000-seat stadium on grounds of having "absolute discretion" to ban them time to prepare for the that the city must rent the stadium for the rally. The city an-

Nixon Heads Into Deep South

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, preparing to invade the Southern stronghold of George C. Wallace, says the solution to America's problems "Isn't quite as simple" as the third-party candidate implies.

The Republican presidential nominee, who seldom mentions Wallace by name, stages a major show in Atlanta, Ga., tonight in his drive for southern votes.

★ ★ ★

He goes on a television program to be shown in Wallace's own Alabama and 10 other states where third-party sentiment is said to be running strong.

While Nixon insists a direct campaign against Wallace would only enhance the third-party candidate's political stature, he did say, somewhat jokingly in Norfolk, Va., Wednesday night, that the former Alabama governor might run ahead of Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey.

A DEPARTURE

While only a quip, it was a departure from Nixon insistence that the race is between two men, the major party nominees.

When a mention of Humphrey's name brought a few cheers and some boos from a Norfolk crowd of about 5,000 people, Nixon remarked:

"No, wait. If he gets going he might come in second."

The 11 states on Nixon's television list tonight are Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Maryland.

His major thrust is to fend off Wallace in states where the third-party contender now is considered by southern politicians to be his chief rival, states such as North Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee.

HHH POLICY HIT

Nixon has campaigned in all three. Virginia was Wednesday's target. In Norfolk, the Republican tackled Humphrey by name, Wallace by implication.

"If you don't like Humphrey's policy today," Nixon said, "wait 'til tomorrow."

★ ★ ★

Nixon, in a Navy town, suggested that the Democrats have permitted a "submarine gap" to develop, giving the Soviet Union an advantage in that field of weaponry.

He said the next eight years will be the period of greatest danger of world war because of the threat of growing Soviet power and because the Communist Chinese will be developing an independent nuclear capability.

WALLACE'S VIEW

"I've heard one candidate suggest, 'Well, all you have to do is go out and get all these State Department bureaucrats and throw their briefcases into the Potomac,'" Nixon said.

That idea came from Wallace, although it originally was a reference to education officials, not diplomats.

★ ★ ★

"Let me say this," Nixon said, "It takes more than just being against what has happened to solve the problems of this country. It's a question of what you're for.

"The problem isn't quite as simple as throwing the diplomats' briefcases into the Potomac."

NOT THAT SIMPLE

"I wish it were simple," he said. "I wish I could just stand up here and say 'Well, if a man's for peace elect him president' . . . I know that everybody likes a simple solution, and believe me, I want to be elected."

But Nixon said he cannot offer easy solutions because there are none.

Romney to HHH: Clarify

LANSING (AP) —Republican Gov. George Romney Wednesday called on Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to state flatly whether his views on bombing North Vietnam differ from those of President Johnson.

★ ★ ★

"In the national interest it would be damaging at home and abroad to leave your position ambiguous or misunderstood," Romney said in a telegram to the Democratic presidential nominee.

★ ★ ★

Humphrey said at Salt Lake City a halt to the bombing would be "an acceptable risk for peace."

He added: "Before taking that action I would place key importance on evidence—direct or indirect, by deed or word — of Communist willingness to restore the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam."

★ ★ ★

Romney said Humphrey's Monday speech "has created the general impression that you favor an unconditional bombing halt," He asked: "Is this impression correct or is your position still the same as President Johnson's?"

Wall Street to Topless?

CHICAGO COUNTERPART — Evelyn (40-22-33) Smith strolled down a Chicago street yesterday in an attempt to duplicate Francine (43-26-37) Gottfried's crowd-stopping tactics on New York's Wall Street. Evelyn said the fact Francine has received several moneymaking offers inspired her Chicago effort.

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Francine Gottleib, the girl whose figure numbed staid Wall Street, can make $100,000 in a year as a topless go-go dancer — with or without pasties.

Public relations specialist Jimmy Tarantino yesterday sent a telegram to the IBM operator, who's been taped at 43-25-37, that he'd put that offer in writing.

★ ★ ★

He added his offer included a dancing coach "if you have not danced go-go."

Crowds of 10,000 and 20,000 lined up along Miss Gottleib's route to work at the Chemical Bank and Trust Co. in New York City last month, nearly sending Wall Street into a panic.

NO PROFIT SO FAR

The 21-year-old traffic stopper had complained last week "So far, everybody has gotten something from this except me."

But Tarantino's telegram assured her, "This is a firm offer of $100,000 in salaries for the next 12 months as a topless go-go dancer with pasties on. Your first week's work would be at Chez Joey, Miami Beach, which would open the first week of November . . . You will receive at this club $1,500 weekly for 12 weeks plus free transportation . . . and free rent," he said.

★ ★ ★

The telegram said her appearances in Las Vegas, San Francisco and New York the following nine months would bring her $2,250 per week.

Tarantino said yesterday he'd not heard from Miss Gottleib, "but I'm sure I will."

LITTLE MONEY OFFERED

She had said last week that little money was involved in several offers she'd received from talent agents and television shows as a result of her highly publicized strolls.

"I'm not doing anything for nothing," she said.

Catholic Schools OK Black History Plan

LANSING (AP) — Michigan Catholic school superintendents have approved a 15-point program aimed at incorporating Afro-American history in the curriculum of all subjects taught in the state's Roman Catholic schools.

At the same time, a committee appointed by the superintendents urged all Catholic schools to remove from their libraries any books that "reflect inaccurate stereotypes of black people."

★ ★ ★

The committee said any such books that remain on the shelves should be used as "examples of literature which usurps the dignity of black people."

The superintendents, who form a subcommittee of the Michigan Catholic Conference Education Department, said they hope the history incorporation program will be implemented fully by next fall.

Mrs. Jackie Warr, administrative assistant in the Lansing diocese education office and chairman of the Afro-American history committee, said a series of workshops would be conducted to provide "cultural enrichment, develop additional growth and present techniques for teaching an integrated curriculum."

Steps already implemented to begin the program include compilation of a complete set of bibliographies on black literature and history and receipt of copies of other educational institutions, Afro-American history unit plans.

★ ★ ★

The superintendents, who appointed the history committee last May, extended the life of the group for one year to develop curricula for teaching Mexican-American and American Indian history in the Catholic schools.

MRS. ROBERT SQUIERS

Janine Rich and James Brozes Married in Candlelight

First Congregational Church was the setting Saturday for candlelight vows uniting Janine Carol Rich and James Michael Brozes.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Mason W. Rich of Hi-Hill Drive, Pontiac Township. The bridegroom is the son of Michael Brozes of Giddings Road and the late Mrs. Brozes.

★ ★ ★

Attended by Kriss Middleton, the former Miss Rich was attired in a princess gown of organza over taffeta. Highlighting the bateau neckline were appliques of reembroidered lace with seed pearl and crystal details.

A cascading arrangement of white Sweetheart roses and Stephanotis comprised the bride's bouquet.

★ ★ ★

A petal cluster secured her bouffant veil of silk illusion.

Gayle Rich assisted as bridesmaid with Shelly and Jileen Wilcox serving as flower girls at their aunt's wedding.

Best man honors were performed by Daniel Graham with ushers Dennis Brozes (brother of the bridegroom) James Nolen and George Rooke completing the wedding party.

★ ★ ★

Following the nuptials, the couple was feted with a buffet supper in the church parlors. They then departed for a honeymoon trip to the New England states and Canada.

Reunion Scheduled

The First United Methodist Church will be the setting Saturday for the Oakland County Normal Association reunion luncheon. The event begins at 12:30 p.m.

Today's Woman

Puts Heart in Her Work

By YOLANDA BENAVIDES

Don't waste your time looking for Maureen Squiers putting with the women on the golf course, in the clubhouse playing bridge, or joining the social set for brunch, lunch and afternoon teas.

You'll find her 'leisure' hours spent seated behind a paper-stacked desk where she presides as chairman of the Michigan Heart Association's Oakland County Heart Information Center in Birmingham.

The chairmanship marks the first administrative appointment at the Center for the blue-eyed, sunny redhead who makes her home with husband, Robert, on Wing Lake Road.

MRS. JAMES M. BROZES

In light of the many hours spent as a volunteer worker at the Center, as well as in other community service organizations, this mother of three and grandmother of seven more than qualifies for the appointment.

These hours, one might add, have extended over a 10-year period with six spent at Pontiac State Hospital as a member of St. Owen's Catholic Church Altar Society.

As head of the volunteer-operated and controlled Center, Maureen Squiers and her team of some 20 coworkers are responsible for providing an up-to-date list of available heart literature.

Supervision of the 20-year-old Association's state-wide Christmas card campaign, profits of which are channeled for research, is a second concern.

★ ★ ★

Programs geared to public service, such as the heart forum earlier this year at Pontiac Northern High School, are another area of interest for the organization. Here volunteers use the opportunity to hand out the endless list of literature.

With the Christmas card campaign fast approaching, the need for added volunteers poses a third project for the Center's bustling chairman. (See picture of card on page C-6).

KICK-OFF

To herald the annual campaign, which grossed $53,000 last yuletide, Mrs. Squiers is planning a coffee for interested women at the Center's headquarters on Pierce Street Friday at 10 a.m.

As she herself has found, volunteer work is a twofold benefit that generates a personal "feeling of pride in doing something that helps both people and the community!

"In this respect we can give volunteers something, provided they give something of themselves to us and to our cause."

Dads Are Not Required to Stand in Line

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post: My son is being married formally and a question has arisen. The boy's father and I are divorced and both are remarried. Would it be proper to have my ex-husband and me in the reception line alone or should we have our present husband and wife with us?

—Mrs. W. Freeman

Dear Mrs. Freeman: There is one simple solution to your problem. No rule states that the fathers of the couple need stay in the line at all—they are usually happier and more useful mingling with the guests, and acting as hosts.

You, as mother of the groom should stand, of course, but your ex-husband's wife has no place there, nor does your present husband. Aside from that, to have all of you would make too many people and an impossible situation for introductions, etc.

★ ★ ★

Therefore, the best thing to do is to have neither of your husbands with you, whether the bride's father chooses to remain in line or not.

WHO HOLDS?

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper for the man or the woman to take their baby to the front to be baptized? —Denise

★ ★ ★

Dear Denise: In churches which do not require godparents, the father holds the baby and gives its name. When there are godparents, it is the godmother who holds the child.

SUPERSTITION

Dear Mrs. Post: My son had me get an engagement ring for a girl when he was in the service. The girl was with me when I picked it out. He never gave her the ring as he was shipped overseas before it was ready. In less than three months she married someone else.

★ ★ ★

Now he's going with a very nice girl and wants to give her the ring. Someone told him that it is bad luck to give the ring to his fiance. —Mrs. H. Y.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mrs. Y.: Superstitions which cost nothing—such as bad luck if you walk under a ladder—are harmless. But to prevent the use of a beautiful and expensive ring because it might be unlucky seems impractical and ridiculous.

★ ★ ★

If your son's fiancee is bothered by the sentimental consideration rather than the superstition, he would do well to have the stone reset. But if she doesn't mind, I'm sure their luck won't be affected at all.

Helene Lindow will become Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson's personal, press and social secretary after the Johnsons leave the White House. She is a longtime friend of the Johnson daughters, and was a bridesmaid at Luci's wedding. Miss Lindow said she will go to Texas and will live in Austin.

Talk on Drugs Is Open to Public

A panel discussion entitled "Dangerous Drugs — Their Use and Abuse" will highlight the first meeting tonight for the 1968-'69 session of Washington Junior High School's PTA.

Participating in the discussion which begins at 7:30 p.m. will be Jerry St. Souvier, chief investigator for Oakland County Prosecuting Attorney; Dr. Robert Segula, local physician; and Dr. Maurice Willis, psychiatrist.

★ ★ ★

The program will conclude with a movie entitled "Insight and Insanity" followed with a question and answer period between audience and panel.

The meeting is open to parents, students and any interested residents.

Sorority Will Meet With Mrs. Moore

Mrs. Arthur Moore of Lost Tree Way, Bloomfield Township, will host a 12:15 p.m. luncheon on Tuesday for the South Oakland County chapter of Sigma Kappa.

Mrs. William Zell of Daly Brothers Furniture, will speak on "How to Decorate Your Home on a Limited Budget."

Assisting the hostess will be Mesdames: Henry Taylor, Robert Dodson and Ben Wolford.

Mother Knows Best This Time--- Take Her Advice and Cool Off

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl with a slight problem. I have a favorite uncle (my mother's brother) who is 42. He says I am his favorite niece. We like to be alone together and talk, and he understands me better than either one of my parents.

ABBY

My problem is my mother. She says she doesn't like me seeing so much of Uncle Bill, and that I should quit calling him up all the time (I love to talk to him on the phone). She even hinted that maybe the feeling wasn't exactly like it should be between an uncle and his niece, which is ridiculous. Do you think my mother is being fair?

DEAR FAVORITE: I can't say, but I can only guess that your mother is looking out for your best interests. Listen to her, young lady. She knows her brother better than you know your uncle.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter-in-law is getting me down, but I refuse to be a meddling mother-in-law. She has three boys, and her eldest is her favorite. (This isn't just my opinion. Everyone who knows the family can see it). She buys clothes to fit the eldest, and the two younger ones have to wear them, too. The younger ones look like a couple of clowns. I think it is just terrible. I once bought the younger boys some nice slacks, shirts, and blazers, and she took all of it back to the store and put it toward clothes for the older one!

What can I do without getting in bad with her?

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Where is your son? Tell him! If he doesn't set her straight, the next time you buy something for the two younger boys, tell the merchant that under no circumstances should he allow that mother to return it for a larger size. And why worry about getting "in bad" with her. Who needs her good will?

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: Will you please give your opinion of the following? Also ask other readers what they think about it.

A lady was having lunch at a popular luncheon room at the noon hour. She sat there sipping a second cup of coffee while she slowly smoked a cigaret. Several people were standing waiting for a place at the counter.

★ ★ ★

While she was leaving, a woman who had been waiting said to her, "I thought you would never finish that cigaret!"

Do you think the rudeness on the part of the lady who was waiting was justifiable?

★ ★ ★

DEAR CURIOUS: Rudeness is never "justifiable," but it is sometimes understandable.

★ ★ ★

CONFIDENTIAL TO H. J.: Everyone (and I do mean everyone) has problems of some kind. The healthy people are those who recognize this fact, and seek solutions. Sometimes the "solutions" require professional help.

★ ★ ★

The unhealthy people are those who deny they have problems. Sadly enough, they become "sicker," because problems do not just disappear. They have to be resolved.

Sunday is a great day for relaxing, taking the family for a ride, visiting friends, and things like that. We'd like you to combine all three by stopping at our House, the House of Bedrooms, this Sunday. The atmosphere will be most relaxing. You can browse to your heart's content, knowing that the 114 bedrooms on view aren't on sale until Monday. You'll be visiting friends because we're known for the friendly, unhurried, unpressured way we treat people, and of course, we hope you'll bring the family. They'll like looking at all the beautiful bedrooms. Incidentally, there'll be a fresh pot of coffee brewing. How do you like yours? Black? Cream? Sugar?

Trading Is Heavy

Market Continues Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued its advance in heavy trading early today.

The New York Stock Exchange ticker tape fell 4 minutes behind transactions.

Advances of individual issues exceeded declines by a margin of early 2 to 1.

Brokers said the list was in a strong technical position, with every indication a move to a new recovery high could be attained.

Institutional orders accumulating from Wednesday's mid-week closing swelled turnover.

Observers also noted news considered favorable to investment included reports of good sales by auto dealers, projected record October auto production, a rise in the backlog of new factory orders in August, and a gain in sterling-area reserves.

★ ★ ★

Big' blocks traded included one of 90,000 shares of Glen Alden at 16½ up ¾ and one of 40,000 shares of American Telephone at 53⅜ up ¼.

★ ★ ★

Changes of most key stocks were in fractions, with a number running to a point or more.

Motors, farm implements, aircraft and oils led the advance. Chemicals were mostly higher. Steels were mixed.

Tuesday The Associated Press stock average gained 1.7 at 352.8.

Prices advanced on the American Stock Exchange.

Car Sale Tally Varies Widely

GM Shows Decline; 3 Other Firms Are Up

DETROIT (AP — Three of the four major U.S. auto makers introduced 1969 models during the final 10 days of September, but sales figures for that period varied widely between the firms.

Chrysler Corp., the only company to have its new offerings on the market for the entire eight-day selling period, set a record for the period and increased its sales per day by 30 per cent over the same period of last year.

★ ★ ★

The only firm showing a decline in sales was General Motors, which sold nearly 6,000 fewer cars per day than during the final 10 days of September 1967.

Ford Mofor Co., which joined GM to introduce its new models Sept. 26 and also enjoyed four selling days with 1969 models in the showrooms, showed the highest daily selling rate—9,154—since 1964.

AMC HAS INCREASE

Tiny American Motors Corp., which offered its new models to the public on the last day of the month, also showed a slight increase in average sales per dav.

Chrysler, which introduced new models Sept. 19, sold 56,952 cars during the 10-day period, for a daily rate of 7,119 units. This compared with a daily selling rate of 5,485 and total sales of 49,400 for the same period last year.

★ ★ ★

The daily selling rate is computed for more accurate sales comparisons because in the final 10 days of September 1967 there were nine selling days compared with eight for the period this year.

Chrysler also reported total sales for September at 118,211, compared to 109,751 for the period last year. In addition ,the company set a sales record for the first nine months this calendar year with 1,161,138 units sold, up 19 per cent over 1967.

GM SLUMP REPORTED

General Motors reported sales for the 10-day period at 137,185, compared with 206,536 for the period last year. GM sold an average of 17,184 cars per day during the period this year, compared with average daily sales of 22,948 for the period in 1967.

Last year, GM had the advantage of selling its new models on all nine selling days of the period, compared with four days this year.

★ ★ ★

Total General Motors auto sales for the first nine months of this year were 3,251,809 compared with 2,992,696 for the first three quarters of last year.

Firms Make Pitch With Petals

Bill Collecting Flowers

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Flower power is being used by big business.

So says a financial publishing firm which advises corporate executives on business procedures.

★ ★ ★

In this case, according to Prentice-Hall, Inc., flower power has been invoked to inspire slow-paying customers to come up with the money.

★ ★ ★

The ordinary guy has been getting dunning letters for years —some subtle hints, some pleading, some threatening.

GET THEM, TOO

Business owners, who sometimes can be as strapped for cash as Joe the truck driver, get them, too.

"A flower may be an odd item to find in a collection letter," Prentice Hall says in its 'Executive report,' "But that could be the reason why it's so effective."

★ ★ ★

One manufacturer uses this letter with a pressed flower enclosed:

"We all have fond memories that make our present-day lives more enjoyable. And we've always had especially fond memories about dealing with your company in the past.

BUDDING BUSINESS

"We know you'd like to keep things that way. And it's easy to do so. Simply send your check within 10 days to cover the attached statement. We would like to see our relationship continue to bloom."

Then there's the rubber band gimmick.

★ ★ ★

A St. Louis tool company sent its delinquent customers a letter with a rubber band taped to it. The message:

"A certain amount of stretching keeps the rubber lively but too much stretching breaks it. Credit térms are a lot like that. aren't they? Here's what we mean. There's a point beyond which they cannot be stretched.

STRETCHING POINT

"I hope the rubber band will serve as a reminder. You have stretched sufficiently. We must have your check in two weeks."

And the lowly paper clip has been recruited for collection duty.

One company attaches a clip to its letter reading:

"Does this clip look just like other clips you have seen? It may, but don't be fooled. It isn't. This one is entirely different. You see, this clip has a magic power.

CONTINUES TO WORK

"Ever since we bought it a year ago it has been working for us. Each time we send it out, it comes back with a check. We know it won't fail this time, either. Please 'clip' your payment into the next 10 days."

For the customer who "forgets," there's this letter with a string tied through punched holes:

"We realize that a bill can slip your mind. It can happen. But now we feel it's time you pay us the amount owed. To help you along, we're sending you this string so you can tie it around your finger to remind you that we're waiting for your payment. We'll expect it by the 15th of the month."

Auto Production Up for 9 Months of '68

DETROIT (AP)—The U.S. auto industry boosted its production of cars by 15.6 per cent in the first nine months of this year over the comparable period of 1967.

The auto makers reported Wednesday that they built 6,365,705 autos in the January-September span this year, compared with 5,502,911 in the first three-quarters of last year.

General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors all registered higher production figures for the period, but a segment of the over-all increase was due to plant shutdowns caused by a strike at Ford during part of the period last year.

Total GM passenger car production in U.S. plants through September was 3,244,055 this year and 3,106,712 in 1967.

FORDS UP

Ford car production was 1,744,186 in 1968 and 1,324,877 in 1967.

Chrysler turned out 1,181,071 this year and 920,221 in 1967.

★ ★ ★

American Motors said it produced 196,393 cars thsough September this year, compared with 151,101 in the same span of 1967.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I'm a high school economics teacher and chairman of Consumer Education Committee. Can you recommend a worthwhile project for my students that would be set up in a practical way?—M.R.

A. It seems logical that teenagers with money to spend and the urge to own some fairly high-cost items would benefit from a study of credit financing. Local Jaycees, Rotarians, Kiwanians or Lions might cooperate by organizing visits to a bank, credit union and finance company for live on-the-spot interviews.

Or you might plan an in-depth study of an industry native to your area and include some of its leading companies situated elsewhere. Public relations directors might be glad to arrange plant tours.

Both suggestions lend themselves to possible extension into your driver education program — financing a car or motorcycle and in certain areas seeing them built and replacement parts and accessories manufactured.

Q. At 56, I'm retired with a dependent mother, but no other heirs. We own our home and some stocks, but I have no life insurance. Recently I chose the cash settlement for my annuity ($6,200) instead of monthly payments of $32 for life, I banked the principal and use the 5 per cent interest for expenses. Now I'm worried. Was my choice the right one for me? I'm told I have a year in which to reverse my decision.—H.B.

A. If your understanding is correct, I'd change over to guaranteed monthly payments which, because they include part of your principal, provide more cash than 5 per cent. If your mother outlives you, wouldn't the sale of your house provide for her care? Keep in mind, too, that bank interest can be reduced should business conditions require this, but annuity payments will not change no matter how long you may live.
