12 Yanks Freed; Pueblo Crew Next?

From Our News Wires

Cambodia today freed 12 American GIs and a South Vietnamese, all held captive in that Southeast Asia nation more than a month.

And new hope surged today for the release of the 82 captured crewmen of the U.S.S. Pueblo, as the U.S. did not deny a report that an agreement had been reached between North Korea and American negotiators.

* * *

Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk announced today he is immediately releasing 11 U.S. soldiers and a South Vietnamese captured last July when their patrol boat strayed into Cambodian waters and an American helicopter crewman wounded and captured last month.

Sihanouk, Cambodia's chief of state, told a news conference the prisoners would be released today so they can spend Christmas with their families.

The prince said the United States had fulfilled none of the conditions he had set for release of the men, particularly a personal letter from Preisdent Johnson saying efforts would be made to stop violations of Cambodian territory by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops.

Sihanouk described the men as already freed. He said they "will be delivered to the Australian Embassy." Australia handles American diplomatic affairs in Cambodia.

A formula which might permit the early release of the 82 captive crewmen of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo appears to have been found in the secret talks between the United States and North Korea at Panmunjom, the New York Times said today.

The Seoul newspaper Kyunghyang Shinmoon reported that U.S. and North Korean representatives met at Panmunjom today to discuss procedural matters in connection with the return of the Americans held by North Korea since last Jan. 23. Both the Times and the Seoul paper indicated that release of the Pueblo's crew was only a matter of time.

Officials in Washington maintained silence, but no official denial was issued as has been the case with similar reports earlier.

In Berlin today, four Americans left for home after two weeks of unsuccessful attempts to visit the crew of the Pueblo in North Korea.

* * *

Robert Ayling, Charles Daniels, and attorneys Hugh Cline and Carl McAfee, all of Virginia, left by plane.

Ayling, whose son Charles is a member of the Pueblo crew held captive in North Korea almost a year, said last night the group was still hoping for some last minute word from the North Koreans.

WORD NEVER CAME

It apparently never came.

The group had sought North Korean visas, first in Moscow and then for the past week in Berlin.

In South Vietnam, the Vietcong today proposed a series of battlefield meetings with U.S. officials to arrange the release of American prisoners from Communist captivity.

In a Liberation Radio broadcast, the Communists set the first session for Christmas Day, 50 miles northwest of Saigon, to discuss the possible release of three captured U.S. servicemen.

NO U.S. REPLY

The broadcast said the Americans should reply by radio, most likely by the Armed Forces Network heard across South Vietnam. There was no immediate comment from U.S. officials.

The Vietcong said they planned to free "a number" of U.S. and South Vietnamese prisoners to mark the eighth anniversary of their National Liberation Front (NLF) tomorrow.

* * *

Diplomats said the Vietcong might be trying to gain official recognition from the United States and South Vietnam, withheld at the Paris talks.

The Cong gave no details as to how they planned to release the prisoners once the details were ironed out.

U.S. May Resume Bombing—N. Viet

PARIS (UPI) — North Vietnam said today the United States has threatened to resume bombing North Vietnam if the National Liberation Front (Vietcong) unleashes a new offensive in the south.

The North Vietnamese statement was released following a meeting between Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance, the No. 2 U. S. negotiator, and Col. Ha Van Lau, his North Vietnamese counterpart.

The North Vietnamese communique quoted the Americans as saying that if the Vietcong resumes its attacks on Saigon, "This would create a situation in which it would be impossible to carry on serious negotiations (in Paris) and maintain the bombing halt."

South Vietnamese military officials said this week the Communists were massing up to 30,000 men for a new offensive on Saigon and predicted another enemy effort to capture Da Nang.

Military reports from Saigon today reported continued shelling of U S. camps guarding Saigon and a series of battles on the defensive fringes of the South Vietnamese capital.

The United States protested sharply against previous Vietcong attacks on South Vietnamese cities as a violation of the agreement by which President Johnson ended the bombing of North Vietnam on Nov. 1. It also protested Communist military activity in the demilitarized zone.

Deputy Foils Ransom Payoff

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A ransom payoff for kidnaped coed Barbara Jane Mackle was broken up here today, the FBI said, when a policeman chased a suspicious car near Miami's bayside and recovered a suitcase stuffed with $500,000.

Also in the car, abandoned by two persons near downtown Miami, was a skindiving suit, apparently used in picking up of the money from Biscayne Bay, the FBI said.

A source close to the millionaire land-developing family said in Atlanta earlier that Barbara Jane, kidnaped Tuesday morning, was alive and unharmed.

FBI agents, county and city police swarmed into the area where Deputy P. S. Self found the money in the abandoned car.

GIRL'S SAFETY FIRST

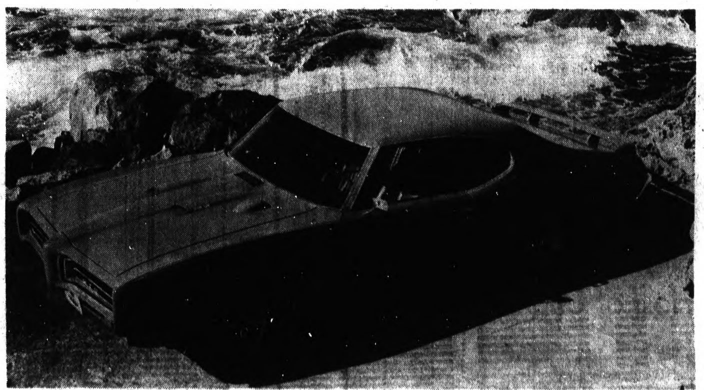
"My concern and the father's concern, is for the girl's safety," said Fred Fox, assistant special agent in charge of the Miami FBI office.

Fox said the fugitives abandoned a blue Volvo with Massachusetts license tags when Deputy Self noticed the car "where it shouldn't have been."

* * *

Fleeing the car, one fugitive carried a carbine. The other dropped the suitcase.

Asked if the FBI knew about the ransom payoff in advance, Fox said, "We'd prefer not to go into that."



Pontiac Motor Division Will Introduce The Judge In January

New Car for Pontiac Div.

Pontiac Motor Division announced today that it will introduce a new car next month that "goes one performance step farther" in the popular muscle car field, a field and market Pontiac opened up five years ago with the GTO.

The new model, to be named The Judge, is specially designed to offer a unique combination of added performance, excellent handling characteristics and a very distinctive appearance, Pontiac officials said.

* * *

It will have as the standard power train a 366-horsepower, V-8 Ram Air engine with 400 cubic-inch displacement, 10.75:1 compression ratio and four-barrel Quadra-jet carburetion, coupled with a fully synchronized three-speed, heavy-duty manual transmission floor-mounted control with a Hurst T-handle. A 3.55:1 axle ratio will be standard as will dual exhausts.

Available as a hardtop coupe or a convertible, The Judge will be easily recognized.

BLACK GRILLE

The front will be distinguished by a black grille, exposed head lamps and functional Ram Air hood scoops. A three-color slash stripe will be featured on the upper edge of the front fender running back to the door. "The Judge" decals on the front fender and Ram Air decals on the sides of the hood scoops will provide identification.

* * *

At the rear will be a 60-inch floating deck air foil with The Judge emblem on the upper right-hand surface.

To complete its distinction, the first production units will be painted a bright red including the Endura energy-absorbing front bumper.

As a companion to Pontiac's GTO, The Judge will ride on a 112-inch wheelbase and the Wide Track will be 60 inches both front and rear.

Bucket seats, driver-oriented instrumentation, a shallow-dish, vinyl-cushioned steering wheel and an upper-level ventilation system will highlight The Judge's interior features.

A complete list of options and accessories also will be made available for The Judge which will be available in Pontiac dealerships late next month. Prices also will be announced in January.

Pontiac's Ram Air IV engine rated at 370 horsepower is optional and includes functional hood scoops. Available transmissions will be both a close-ratio, four-speed manual and the three-speed Turbo Hydra-matic.

A hood-mounted tachometer, a rally gauge cluster and power front disc brakes also will be offered.

Car Death Ends City Man's Wait

A Pontiac man was killed in a traffic accident last night while waiting in his car to pick up his daughter from a dance at Madison Junior High School.

John Mellema, 69, of 2381 University was dead on arrival at Pontiac General Hospital following the 9 p.m. crash.

Mellema was sitting in his car on the shoulder of North Perry near Kenilworth when it was rammed from behind by an auto driven by Allen A. Slade, 20, of 731 Robinwood.

Slade was being held in the Oakland County Jail today while police sought a warrant charging him with manslaughter.

DRINKING, POLICE SAID

Police said that Slade had been drinking and refused to make a statement about the accident.

Mellema was waiting off the roadway until traffic in the driveway to the school cleared. His daughter, Jan, a ninth grader, was attending a teen club Christmas dance.

Mellema was pinned in his car by the impact. Police estimated that Slade was traveling 60 to 70 miles an hour in a 50-mile zone.

A witness told police that she saw Slade's car swerve when a youngster ran across the road. Police said that there were no skid marks, however.

Samuel Green, Jr., 53, of 356 Joslyn, the driver of another car in front of Mellema, was injured in the chain crash. He was treated and released from the hospital.

Thomas, Socialist Flagbearer, Dies

HUNTINGTON, N. Y. (AP) — Norman Thomas, six times Socialist candidate for president and throughout his life a prodder of the American conscience, died today. He was 84.

The announcement was made at the Hilaire Farm Nursing Home here by Mrs. Margaret Gottsegen, director of nursing.

He was moved to the nursing home a year ago from the Huntington Hospital, where he was a patient after suffering a stroke.

Thomas lost his every race for public office, but lived to see the acceptance of many of the ideas he championed.

He ran against every president from Herbert Hoover to Harry S. Truman and criticized every one since.

The peak of his career as a candidate came in 1932, during the great depression, when he polled 900,000 votes — enough to make Democrat Franklin D. Roosevelt take notice.

Nevada H-Bomb Test Packs a Heavy Jolt

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. (AP) — One of the mightiest nuclear blasts fired in the United States jarred the Nevada desert into upheaval today and sent shock waves rippling for hundreds of miles.

The 8:30 a.m. hydrogen type blast—much protested by some scientists, labor leaders and pacifist groups, even though it was deep underground—had the force of a million tons of TNT.

Yule Mail Flows Smoothly in City

It's less than a week before Christmas, and Pontiac postal employes are experiencing what is perhaps their smoothest holiday mailing season ever.

There is plenty of mail to be processed, one official said, "But we are managing to keep up with it without having to hire Christmas assistants."

* * *

There has been no huge rush of Christmas mail and Pontiac postal officials attribute the decline mainly to an operational change in sectional processing used for the first time this year.

Last year the Pontiac office received mail sorted according to states, from eight local offices in northern Oakland County. After reaching the Pontiac office it was sectioned again according to cities and towns for out-of-state delivery. This is sectional processing.

LOCAL OFFICE BYPASSED

This year the mail from these eight offices bypasses Pontiac and is sent directly to the sectional center in Royal Oak.

The Royal Oak sectional center, one of 19 in Michigan, has been operating since September 1967. The Pontiac office did not use the system last year because there was not enough time to change before Christmas.

* * *

"This is definitely a more efficient operation and has decreased our work load here," said Clarence Smith, assistant superintendent in charge of mail. "But it doesn't totally explain the reason for this year's decrease in volume."

Clyde Smith, customer relations representative and Clarence's brother, said he has never seen the mail volume as low as this season.

9.4 PER CENT LOWER

The volume is about 9.4 per cent lower than last year, according to Pontiac Postmaster William W. Donaldson.

The Pontiac office processed approximately 6.6 million pieces of mail last year between Dec. 1-15. This year the figure is 5.5 million, Clarence Smith said.

Illinois Welfare Agency Is Scene of Bloodbath

CARLINVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A father of 10 children opened fire on a welfare agency Christmas party for his family yesterday, police said, killing four persons, including his estranged wife, and wounding four of his children. He then fled, shot himself and died hours later.

* * *

Authorities said Sherman Kline, 38, pulled out two pistols while gifts were being opened in the offices of the Illinois Department of Child and Family Services and began firing.

Killed were the wife, Lorraine, 33; two social workers, Frank Wildgrube, 24, and Bonnie Albracht, 23, both of Carlinville; and a receptionist, Ann Keppler, 25, of Benld, Ill.

Two of the children, Michael, 14, and Diane, 8, were in critical condition in a Springfield hospital, while the other two wounded youngsters, Gene, 13 and Judy, 10, were in serious condition in a Carlinville hospital.

ADMITTED SHOOTINGS

After the shooting, Kline drove some 60 miles to the home of a brother near O'Fallon, Mo.

Vernon Kline said his brother ran into some nearby woods, he heard a shot and called police. Officers found Sherman Kline with a bullet wound in his head. He died later at a hospital.

* * *

A spokesman for the welfare agency said he believed Kline was upset because he thought the agency had "come between himself and his family."

Ray Unterbrink, an administrator for the agency, was the first person to arrive at the scene of the bloodbath.

COVERED WITH BLOOD

There were ornaments knocked from the Christmas tree, toy autos and a checkers set covered with blood. There was a partially eaten apple, a lollypop.

Police Chief Robert Stratton said Kline previously had threatened social worker Wildgrube with a gun, firing it into the floor at his feet, then slugging him. Stratton said Kline was sentenced to two years for this incident but was released after serving only a few months of his sentence.

* * *

St. Louis County police reported they had arrested Kline in May for abducting one of his children and assaulting a police officer.

Kline, who separated from his wife in May, was reported to be a plumber for a St. Louis firm.

Yule Mail Flow Threatened

Flu Still Taking Toll

By The Associated Press

The nation's influenza epidemic continued to claim victims throughout the country today, slowing down the nation's business and threatening to delay the Christmas mail.

President Johnson has been hospitalized with flu in Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland since yesterday. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was reported still recuperating from the diesease in Phoenix, Ariz.

* * *

In Washington, Postmaster Gen. Marvin W. Watson said absenteeism among postal workers because of the flu could slow down the delivery of holiday mail.

And in New York City, where an estimated 300,000 persons were suffering from the disease, a cold wave and a strike by truck drivers who deliver fuel oil threatened to add even more names to the sick rolls.

107 DEAD IN GOTHAM

City Health Commissioner Edward O'Rouke said 107 New Yorkers died of the flu last week.

In the Detroit area, all of Highland Park's 13,000 pupils started Christmas vacation early yesterday as the Hong Kong flu claimed more victims. Three more Michigan colleges also were shut down, bringing the total to eight.

In addition to Highland Park Community College, Adrian, Albion and Jackson Community Colleges announced they would cancel classes because of an unusually great number of absences.

Absenteeism among teachers and pupils in Detroit schools was about twice the normal rate, according to a school board spokesman.

City Men Face Host of Charges

Charges ranging from driving without a license to carrying a concealed weapon and violating state narcotics laws were being considered against two men arrested by Pontiac police early today.

Bobby D. Evans, 25, of 342 Ferry and Stanley Derrickson, 22, of 298 Prospect are being held in Oakland County Jail while the case is investigated.

* * *

They were arrested shortly after 1 a.m. when police stopped their car after seeing it weave on Bagley near Fisher.

Evans, the driver, could hardly stand up when he got out of the car, police said. He had no operator's license.

* * *

On the front seat, between Evans and Derrickson, police said they found a brass blackjack. A staight razor was found in Derrickson's back pocket, they added.

According to police, Derrickson tried to toss away a plastic bottle, believed to contain barbituate capsules, and eight packets filled with a substance appearing to be marijuana. The capsules and envelopes are to be examined by the State Police laboratory in East Lansing.

tween them and ground zero for a few seconds.

The TV monitor flickered out momentarily as the ground rippled.

DEEP IN SHAFT

The blast was at the bottom of a 4,600-foot shaft drilled into 6,200-foot-high Pahute Mesa 105 miles north of Las Vegas.

A cloud, presumably dust, shot skyward after the picture was restored.

The ground action lasted five or six seconds and caused no damage at the control center.

Tall buildings swayed perceptibly in Las Vegas, as they have in previous large shots.

Hotel Fire Kills 5 in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — At least five persons — and possibly more — perished today in a fire that raged through a four-story hotel near the heart of the downtown area.

It was feared that more bodies might be found when firemen reach other rooms of the A&A Hotel, an aged brick structure.

Rooms in the hotel rent for one dollar a night.

One resident who got out, John Peters, 46, told newsmen he awoke about 5 a.m. to find his mattress on fire.

MATCH DROPPED

Peters said he might have dropped a match or cigarette Wednesday night before retiring for the evening.

Peters said he and another resident grabbed a bucket, tried unsuccessfully to put out the fire, then started alerting other residents.

* * *

Peters was burned on the wrist. No other injuries were reported among the survivors.

Fire officials said it was thought all residents had been evacuated. Then the bodies were found.

Custody Denied in Cruelty Case

A Clarkston woman, found guilty of cruelty to children in October, was denied custody of four of five children yesterday by Oakland County Probate Judge Norman R. Barnard.

Barnard ruled that he couldn't return the children to Mrs. Florence Lewis, 31, a divorcee, because of her conviction.

She and Paul Maczko, 57, 9052 Ortonville, Independence Township for whom she kept house, were found guilty by a jury of chaining two of her boys in a garage in September 1967. Each was placed on two years probation.

Judge Barnard gave immediate custody of three of the children to their father, Richard, 32, of Duluth, Minn., and kept jurisdiction over the second oldest boy until some behavior problems are straightened out.

* * *

Court officials said that Mrs. Lewis' youngest child, a 3-year-old, was not involved in the custody case and will stay with the mother.

Lewis, who has driven some 10,000 miles in the last two years to attend the court hearings, is engaged to marry a librarian at the Duluth federal laboratory where he works.

Snag Isn't Likely to Delay Apollo 8

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The lengthy Apollo 8 countdown hit its first technical snag today, but it was a minor one and was not expected to affect Saturday's planned blast-off of three astronauts toward an orbit around the moon.

The problem cropped up as the launch crew prepared to pipe supercold liquid hydrogen into the three fuel cells that will produce electricity for Apollo 8. A valve in the pumping system did not respond and had to be replaced.

* * *

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the problem delayed the fueling operation about four hours. He noted, however, that several aspects of the countdown, which started Sunday, were ahead of schedule and there was plenty of time to make up for time lost because of the faulty valve.

The spokesman said the launch team expected to catch up during a planned built-in hold of more than five hours, scheduled this afternoon before the so-called terminal countdown starts at 8:51 p.m. This is one of six such periods worked into the countdown to handle such contingencies.

Birmingham News

2 Good Friends to Animals

BIRMINGHAM — For the last 14 years, two kindly women have been on call night or day, in any weather, to go to the aid of injured, lost or cruelly treated animals.

Mrs. Karl Kocher and Mrs. Gladys Carl operate and manage the Birmingham Humane Society, 1726 Mansfield. They have relied on voluntary contributions to meet expenses through the years.

Since they first began operating for the care of "poor and defenseless animals" in 1954, they have been striving for enough funds to build a shelter.

"We don't want a large shelter, just a small one," said Mrs. Kocher, who with Mrs. Carl finds homes for more than a thousand dogs and cats annually.

RELY ON OTHERS

They rely on the help of friends and the kindness of people who have found stray or lost animals to keep them until a proper home can be found.

"Sometimes it is necessary to take them to private kennels in the area until we can find a home," Mrs. Kocher said. It costs $3 a day but the animals have to have shelter, she added.

* * *

Donations go for the caring and feeding of the animals, and a large part goes to the veterinarian for shots, Mrs. Kocher said.

She explained that as soon as a dog is found it is taken to a nearby veterinarian's office for shots in the event that it has not already received them, or in some cases, for the care of injuries.

NO PRICE TAG

There is no price for the animals, but the ladies do accept a donation. "We don't want to deprive a dog or a cat from a good home simply because a family or individual can't afford it," Mrs. Kocher said, "we accept what the family wishes to give."

"Sometimes people call us saying they can't afford to feed their dog for various reasons and would like us to find a new home for it," said Mrs. Carl, a native of Birmingham, England.

* * *

"In that case we feed them until the people can do so again," she added. Mrs. Carl has lived in the United States since 1912.

She said she and Mrs. Kocher are known in the area and when people find a lost dog they sometimes report it to them to see if they can locate the owner.

If either of the ladies receive a call about a lost, injured or stray animal she generally will go and pick it up herself if she can't persuade the caller to keep it until she finds a home for it.

For this reason they are seeking enough funds to buy a vehicle to transport them in instead of a car, which they now use.

OU to Go by Book in Handling Nude

The case of the Oakland University student who stripped to read poetry in his last class appearance before graduation has been sent to the student conduct committee.

OU Chancellor D. B. Varner has requested a recommendation from the committee, which will then be taken up by the university senate.

Lee Elbinger reportedly appeared in the nude during a 15-minute lecture last week on poet William Butler Yeats and his concept of "personal freedom."

The report of the incident aroused Sate Sen. Robert Huber, R-Troy, who has since demanded an investigation of morals on the OU campus.

'MUST FOLLOW PROCEDURES'

Varner, while taking note of the considerable public concern over the matter and promising "appropriate action," pointed out, "The university must follow judicial procedures . . . and we will extend fully the rights of due process . . ."

OU officials have pointed out that Elbinger has apparently completed all class assignments necessary for graduation. His final grades are not yet known.

The student reportedly left for India immediately after completion of class assignments.

The Student Conduct Committee, made up of six faculty members and three students, meets 2 p.m. Monday in the conference room, Wilson Hall.

Canadians Halt Indian Protest

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP) — A band of Mohawk Indians held off Canadian police for about two hours Wdnesday, before taking a defeat. Still unresolved, however, was a dispute over a treaty made in 1794.

"There will be no blockage Thursday," Ernest Benedict, the craggy-faced, black-haired chief of the Indians on Cornwall Island said after a demonstration at the international bridge on the island left 48 of his tribesmen in jail.

★ ★ ★

"It is not the Indian way to be arrested," Benedict said.

Wednesday, Canadian police waded through a wall of angry Mohawks and 25 automobiles to clear the passageway between the United States and Canada.

Indian men, women and children threw their bodies in front of tow trucks sent to clear the automobiles. There were no injuries.

SOUGHT CALM

"I tried to keep everyone calm on both sides," Benedict said, his arms folded on the long kitchen table he sometimes uses for meetings with other tribal leaders.

"But it seemed too much to me. We were there for a purpose."

★ ★ ★

The Indians, members of the St. Regis Reservation that is bisected by the Canadian-American border, are angered because they say they are being forced to pay Canadian duties traveling on the bridge to and from the American and Canadian sections of the reservation.

This, they say, is a violation of the Jay Treaty of 1794, a treaty engineered by John Jay, chief justice of the United States and signed by the United States and Canada.

The treaty guaranteed the Mohawks the right to travel unhampered between both countries.

The treaty was reaffirmed between the two countries in Ghent, Belgium, after the War of 1812. Canada, however, which did not become a nation until 1857, never ratified the document. Canadian law specifies that legislative action must be taken before a treaty has the force of law.

★ ★ ★

Some residents of the border area say the Indian discontent goes much deeper.

For example, says a minister who lives nearby, even though the Indians—who often intermarry and have families on both sides of the border—frequently cross the bridge, they are still stopped, asked if they are immigrants and made to obtain a slip of paper with their status on it.

VICTIMS OF ERROR

Benedict, in an open letter to the Canadian people and government, said, "We have become victims of a great error on the part of your government."

Benedict said his people were receiving support, both monetary and moral, from other Indian tribes in the United States and Canada.

The arrested, including the sister of one of the leaders, Mrs. Kohn Tintea Horn, were taken to Cornwall jail, where they were to wait, pending the arrival of bail money, until hearings Friday.

Bail was set at $200 for 47 of the arrested and at $1,000 for Mrs. Horn, who was charged with carrying a knife concealed beneath her clothing.

Hickel Hits Land 'Misuse'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Nixon's secretary of the interior, Alaska Gov. Walter J. Hickel, says the federal government has been wrong in placing large amounts of public land aside for strictly conservation use.

"Just to withdraw an area for conservation purposes—a vast area—and lock it up for no reason . . . and not make it available to the public is wrong, in my opinion," Hickel told a news conference Wednesday.

Hickel, who told newsmen that he had put his large real estate holdings into an irrevocable trust upon becoming governor two years ago, indicated he might reverse a decision by his predecessor, Stewart Udall, to withdraw the Arctic Game Range in Alaska from public use.

The action was intended only to be temporary, Hickel said.

'GREAT JOB'

Both public and private power companies came in for praise from the incoming secretary. "Public power has done a great job for the whole United States" as has privately-owned power companies, he said. But "I do think that private power in some areas has been hamstrung."

Touching on the large oil fields being developed in his own state, Hickel said "The United States has found great new reserves."

He said imports of foreign oil, while necessary in some areas, should be tightly controlled. "Just to absolutely open the gates . . . to imports would be disastrous, in my opinion," he said.

Controversy Raging

Are Missile Sites Safe?

By L. GARY THORNE
Assistant City editor—Suburban

"Well, there goes the neighborhood . . ."

This may not just be unbecoming levity, but a vital concern for those slated to have Sentinel antiballistic missile silos in their back yards.

To date, three local areas have the dubious distinction of being considered for missile pads. They are Pontiac and Avon townships and Troy. A fourth area, in Orion Township may become a related radar site.

Controversy has developed over the relative safety of the nuclear warheads on the business end of the projected defensive-type Spartan and Sprint missiles housed on the Sentinel bases.

INVITING DISASTER?

Some members of the scientific community are of the opinion that to have warheads rated at "several megatons" sitting close to urban areas is to invite disaster. They are particularly uneasy because of the potential for an accident.

The Army stands on its record, noting that in 20 years it's never blown anyone up by accident, which no doubt is a point in its favor.

But why the controversy over these particular missiles?

At various points across the country, the Pontiac area included, there are missile installations. In Commerce Township is a nonnuclear air defense missile site.

MUST BE READY

It is assumed that a defensive weapon must be more ready to respond to an attack than an offensive instrument which more or less can be armed at a country's leisure, namely just before it's going to be used.

The argument is, of course, that if you're going to have a missile lying around, it is far better for safety that said missile be as far from being armed as is practical.

* * *

Debate over the safety of the Spartans and Sprints has caused some politicos, like Sen. Hart, to revive their interest in sacking the entire ABM program.

News Analysis

The $5-billion Sentinel program is calculated to provied a "thin" shield against a missile attack by a relatively unsophisticated nuclear power, like Red China. A so-called complete Russian-proof shield would cost $40 billion and upward.

CAN'T BE COMPLETE

Defense Department spokesmen have said no shield can really be complete-complete — to employ missile talk, since, the U.S. and Russia are capable of blowing each other off the globe via missiles regardless of defenses.

Hence, the question is whether ABM systems are such a good idea.

* * *

In any event, it is still an open question if local opposition can shoot down missile bases here.

The natural compromise, of course, is to okay the ABM sites, but locate them in back yards where there aren't quite as many children playing.

Apartment Zoning Hearing Is Postponed by Avon Twp.

By TOM GRAY

AVON TOWNSHIP — One of two major public hearings on rezoning questions to be held before the township planning commission fizzled last night.

Some 40 residents had jammed the commission room in the Township Hall, but nearly half left when the commission agreed, at petitioner's request, to postpone the hearing, scheduled to consider a proposed 788-unit apartment development on a 78.8-acre parcel southwest of Avon and Liveronis.

* * *

Attorney Robert E. Childs, representing property owner Fred Ettinger, requested the postponement to allow a definite determination of the extent of the flood plain of the Clinton River in the area.

Recently, apartment rezoning requests in the township have been drawing fire from home owners.

NO INFORMATION YET

Childs said he has been unable to contact David Snyder of the Oakland County Drain Commission to obtain information about the flood plain.

"The only map of the flood plain that we have is from an old geodetic survey," Childs explained, "and if that map is accurate, it would be useless to request a rezoning in this area. We'd have water in those apartments."

* * *

The second hearing, involving a proposed development southeast of Walton and Adams to include a motel, conference center and apartment development, took place, and the commission recommended approval of the proposal by the Township Board.

Home owners in the area objected to one portion of the request, which involves a 21-acre parcel presently zoned for single-family residential use.

CHANGES ASKED

The petitioner, Dan S. Holefca, 825 Mead, Rochester, asked that one acre be changed to B-1 for a gasoline station, four acres to B-2 to permit a motel, conference center and possibly specialty shops, and 16 acres to RM for apartments.

Frank Lanesey, president of the Springhill Homeowners' Association, siad the home owners had met with Holefca and Childs, his attorney, and agreed to the RM and B-1 changes.

* * *

However, Lanesey said, the home owners opposed the change to B-2. He cited plans by the Hilton Motel and Holiday Inn chains to build motels and a conference center within three miles of the Adams-Walton intersection.

Commission member C. Richard Clauson expressed support of all parts of the proposal, noting that engineering groups of which he is a member do not meet at Oakland University because of inadequate conference facilities.

"Even with three conference centers, I think a center on the Rochester side of the university would be an asset to the township," Clauson said.

The commission voted on the three portions of the proposal separately. The B-1 and RM sections were approved unanimously. The B-2 section passed by a 5-2 vote, with Commissioners William H. Millay and Maurice E. Willits opposed.

Lapeer Names Seven to Serve in Various Posts

LAPEER — The City Commission has appointed health officers and members of the elections commission and board of tax review.

Reappointed to a one-year term as health officer is Dr. Charles Conaway, 1243 W. Newark. Assistant health officers will be Ray Gaynier, Lapeer County Sanitarian, and Matthew Dougherty, Lapeer police chief.

* * *

Election commissioners, also to serve one-year terms, will be City Manager Arnold Whitney, City Assessor Ray Shurlow and City Attorney Richard J. Bahls.

Don Travis, 272 E. Nepessing, was reappointed to a three-year term on the board of tax review. The term of one member of the three-man board expires each year.

NEW PARK ORDINANCE

In other business, the commission okayed a park regulations ordinance.

The ordinance prohibits the use of minibikes, motorcycles, snowmobiles and other vehicles in city parks and bans many other activities, including drinking alcoholic beverages and damaging picnic tables.

The commission also heard a complaint from Travis and other residents on East Nepessing about a water main break the night of Dec. 13.

The main break, the residents explained, caused an overflow in storm sewers, and resulted in water backing up in basements.

TO COVER DAMAGES

Commissioners agreed that swifter repairs on the city's part could have alleviated the problem, and Travis was awarded $25 to cover damages.

The commission then began preliminary discussion on a number of future water system projects, and decided to invite bond attorneys to its next meeting (Jan. 6) to discuss possible financing of the projects.

Shelby to Seek New Plans for Proposed Fire Station

SHELBY TOWNSHIP — The Township Board has made its first move in several months on the controversial question of construction of additional facilities for the township fire department.

After a recent two-hour discussion the board approved a motion offered by Trustees Robert Seidel and Jack Jenkins to ask the architect, Louis Berklich and Associates of Rochester, for a new set of plans on the proposed main fire station.

* * *

In addition, Seidel and Jenkins, both elected to the board in November, were appointed to the fire committee, which is responsible for recommending plans for future construction.

The long-standing controversy began shortly after voters approved a $900,000 bond issue in August 1967 for the purpose of building and equipping new fire facilities.

According to Seidel, the board ran into a snag because of a tax limitation of 2½ mills to provide for firemen. The money was not available, he explained, to hire enough men to staff the proposed buildings, which include a main station and three substations.

The board then decided to consider plans for a main station alone, but balked at the $400,000 price tag on a proposal presented last spring by the fire committee.

* * *

The committee declined to submit another proposal and the whole question has been held in abeyance since.

Seidel said discussions with members of the fire committee after his election to the board this fall had demonstrated the need for a "really detailed" survey of the proposal by the board.

SPACE ANALYZED

"Jack (Jenkins) and I attempted to put together an analytical report to economize on space in the main station and yet keep from cutting down on the facilities which would be available," the trustee said.

The lengthy discussion, in which the proposed station was considered room by room, resulted in paring floor space from about 9,600 square feet to 8,000.

Savings in cost to the township will be determined after the architect draws up formal plans.

Seidel, however, would like to go further in attempting to plan for the future.

* * *

"I'd like to make some attempt to project the drainage, water and building development in Shelby Township in the next 25 years," he commented, "so we could dtermine at what point valuation will be increased enough so that we can hire additional firemen.

"This meeting, however, was a real improvement. There was a real spirit of cooperation, and a recognition that we have to get moving on this thing now."

Farmington Twp. Airing Set on Need for Sanitary Sewer

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — A public hearing to establish the necessity of sanitary sewers for a portion of Sunnydale Street has been set for Jan. 27 at 7:30 p.m.

* * *

Also at the recent township board meeting, the board held until Jan. 13 consideration and review of objections for establishing the Springland Sewer District so board members could get more information as to the wishes of the majority of the residents. Several attended the meeting to protest against the sewers.

In other business, the board decided to advance $700 to a township patrolman so he can buy a police dog. The money will be deducted from his salary over a three-year period. He must pay for the upkeep of the dog.

* * *

Detroit Bank and Trust Co. will be reimbursed $3,955—partial cost of installing its sewer lateral. The bank branch at Grand River and Middlebelt built a lateral off the arm running down the Grand River median before the rest of the system was built. The township is now using the lateral in the system serving that district so the bank is being paid back the amount based on a unit cost.

Hungry Thief Takes Home the Bacon---Plus

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — A seemingly hungry thief took the frozen meats — along with other items totaling $435 — from the home of Richard Cotter, 5785 Drake, yesterday, police reported.

Taken, in addition to the meat, were a sewing machine, two watches and an electric typewriter.

* * *

Cotter's daughter, Karen, told West Bloomfield police she came home around 3:30 p.m. and thought she heard someone. She went to the back of the house and reportedly found the back door open and the house empty.

School Reading Plans Told

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — An audiovisual report on the school district's reading program was given by Donald Liebau, director of reading and audiovisual services, at the recent board of education meeting.

Using closed-circuit television, he showed what was happening in the reading centers at the different schools.

* * *

He described current plans under development, including the compilation of a guide to reading services in West Bloomfield, a handbook for the professional staff and formation of a districtwide developmental reading program committee.

Standardization of diagnostic testing services offered by Reading Consultants, development of a summer reading program at all school levels and involvement in federal programs to provide in-service education in reading for the staff are also being worked on.

$12,000 BUDGET NEEDED

Immediately needed is a minimum reading budget of $12,000, according to Liebau. The money will help maintain the current elementary program and provide the new secondary reading programs with minimal amounts of material.

* * *

Suggested future needs include development of an elementary reading center in the Green School annex to serve as an in-service and resource center for the elementary schools; formation of a reading center at the junior high and senior high and creation of a total school testing program.

* * *

Also needed are the hiring of more reading consultants and the release of secondary reading consultants from English classrooms to work full-time on reading programs and afterschool courses in study skills for junior and senior high students.

In other recent business, the board approved a job analysis for the newly created position of director of operations and maintenance. An applicant will probably be recommended to the board by the Jan. 6 board meeting. Applications are now being taken.

Traffic Bureau Gets Approval

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The Township Board has approved the establishment of a central traffic bureau to serve the entire 48th Judicial District and has provided for the establishment of branches the court may require.

Each guilty plea entered shall be deemed to have been entered in the political subdivision whose law is violated, according to the resolution.

* * *

The district court will have permanent quarters on the third floor of the township hall.

The board transferred $34,000 receivable from the Farmington Interceptor fund to the building fund to pay for the court construction.

$30,000 LOSS

The board also announced it will lose up to $30,000 in income as of Jan. 1 when the tri-cities fire department is scheduled to take over the township's Keego Harbor station under a purchase agreement.

A resolution was confirmed adopting the sanitary sewer assessment roll of $1,255,924 for Herndon's Walnut Lake Estates. Residents will be charged an initial fee of $2,073 plus $7.22 per front foot. Costs will also include $600 for the lead to the house and from $3-$5 per foot for the pipe from the street to the house.

The supervisor was directed to prepare the assessment roll on Interlaken special assessment sewer district 38. The assessment roll is $361,685. The estimated cost will be around $2,900 per housing unit plus the $600 tap in fee and the cost of the pipe from the street to the house.

One new member has been appointed to the review board and two old members reappointed. Reappointed were Donald Shank of 2907 Middle Belt and Paul Rabaut of 2274 Locklin. New is Dennis Knight of 5777 Cherry Crest.

HANDMADE DOLLHOUSE — Susan Lae (left), Barbara Wagner (right) and Nancy Walker, three members of junior Girl Scout Troop 696 of Bloomfield Township, examine furnishings of a dollhouse made by members of the troop for patients at Plymouth State Home and Training School in Northville. The girls took about six months to make the six-room house.

Girl Scouts Make Dollhouse to Give to State Facility

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — A project which began a year ago will end this weekend, when a handmade dollhouse constructed by junior Girl Scouts is presented to officials at the Plymouth State Home and Training School in Northville.

Mrs. Robert Walker, 815 Foxhall, leader of Troop 696, which built the six-room miniature residence, said the girls worked about six months, intermittently, at the various tasks necessary to complete it.

Besides making their own tiny bedspreads and curtains, she said, the girls wallpapered some of the interior of the house and painted the rest.

They also carved a miniature piano and china cabinet along with more typical items of furniture including chairs and tables and beds. The floors were then carpeted throughout.

The most difficult and time-consuming part of the work, Mrs. Walker said, was sanding and staining the wood.

The house will be useful for recreation for older girls at the state home, she added.

6 in Family Escape From House Blaze

Two Lapeer County fire departments and a pumper from the State Conservation Department were called out early today to fight a blaze which broke out at 4:19 a.m. in Arcadia Township.

A spokesman for the Lapeer County Sheriff's Department said the fire at the residence of William Stover, 1589 Youngs, apparently started in the basement as the result of a furnace malfunction.

The Stovers and their four children escaped without injury from the residence, which was nearly destroyed, the spokesman said. However, an Imlay City fireman, Dale Scrimger, was injured, according to the spokesman, when he fell from an upstairs window of the home.

Scrimger was taken to Lapeer County General Hospital, where he was admitted for observation.

The Imlay City department and the conservation pumper assisted the Lum department, the spokesman said. No damage estimate was available this morning.

Feuding State House Dems Unify, Pick Leader Slate

LANSING (AP)—The warring Democratic delegation in the state House of Representatives took a major step toward unity Wednesday, choosing a slate of leadership candidates which represents all the major party factions.

Although deeply divided by personality clashes and political philosophy, the House Democrats now appear likely to close ranks behind their candidates and vote as a bloc when the chamber elects its leadership Jan. 8.

The Democrats took over the House in the Nov. 5 election, netting three seats for a 57-53 edge over the GOP, and are in position to put their own choices in the top leadership jobs unless caucus dissidents refuse to back the party.

* * *

That had appeared to be a distinct possibility until Wednesday's caucus. Now nearly everyone at least outwardly, is content.

'NO EXCUSE'

Asked if he thought any Democrat would refuse to support the caucus slate of candidates, one lawmaker said: "I don't see how they could find any excuse not to."

* * *

Unless there is an unexpected rebellion, these nominees will find themselves in these jobs next month:

● For speaker, the chamber's presiding officer who earns an extra $5,000 a year, the majority caucus picked William Ryan of Detroit, an Irish, Roman Catholic liberal, former president of a United Auto Workers local.

* * *

● For speaker pro tempore, Rep. Stanley Davis of Grand Rapids, a Poland-born, Catholic conservative, law and order advocate and former mayor of Grand Rapids.

● For associate speaker pro tem, Rep. Matthew McNeely of Detroit, a Negro Baptist with a largely white constituency who is starting his third two-year term in the chamber.

● For majority floor leader, Rep. George F. Montgomery of Detroit, a 35-year-old former schoolteacher who, like Davis, first made a bid for the speakership in opposition to Ryan.

Davis, backed by the 14-member "Polish caucus" of the House, was runner-up in the bitterly fought contest for speaker. Sources said it took three ballots to elect Ryan.

On the third, they said, he had 30 votes—one more than the number needed—compared with 20 for Davis and five for Rep. Albert Horrigan of Flint.

LIGHTS LOWERED

Davis then announced his candidacy for the No. 2 House job, which pays $3,000 extra a year, and was elected, beating Reps. Dominic Jacobetti of Ironwood, Daniel Cooper of Oak Park and Vincent Petitpren of Wayne.

* * *

Ousted during the race for speaker were Davis, Montgomery, Horrigan and Rep. Arthur Law of Pontiac, who did not attend the caucus.

NcNeely scored a surprise victory over Rep. George Edwards, another Negro lawmaker from Detroit.

Ryan — the apparent new House speaker—is a 49-year-old native of Morgantown, W.Va., and a veteran labor negotiator. As Democratic House leader in the minority days of 1967-68, he distinguished himself by fighting Republican Gov. George Romney to a standstill over the details of the new state income tax program.

WELFARE ADVOCATE

Ryan, a devout Catholic and a hard worker, is a strong advocate of welfare measures and aid to nonpublic schools.

If elected speaker when the 75th Legislature convenes, he would replace Republican Rep. Robert Waldron of Grosse Pointe, whose party has chosen him to continue at its helm as House minority leader.

MANY FACES OF CHRISTMAS — Children's faces show a wide range of holiday emotions as they talk to a department store Santa in a Los Angeles suburb.

Buick Plant Fire Shuts Sector Today

FLINT (AP) — A two-alarm fire, discovered when a conveyor belt carried flaming parts out of an auto bake oven, damaged a section of the Buick plant in Flint Wednesday.

Nobody was injured, but officials said 2,600 employes were prevented from going to their jobs today in the assembly section of the big Buick facility.

* * *

Firemen, using nine pieces of equipment, fought the blaze for an hour and a half.

Fire officials said a spark from one of the conveyor lines apparently ignited paint drippings at the bottom of the oven, and the flames spread into the plant. The oven was used to bake enamel finishes on fenders and hoods. The blaze warped structural beams and conveyor lines in the plant.

Yule Mail Flow Smooth in City

The Smith Brothers have worked at the Pontiac Post Office for over 30 years. In the late 1930s there were about 120 employes including clerks, carriers and custodians; today there are about 398 employes.

Clarence, in noting that this Christmas season the regular employes are managing the load, said it is more efficient to use trained personnel and pay them to work the necessary overtime, than to hire new help that would require training.

WOULD BE 'FIRST'

"If we survive the season without hiring extra help, it will be the first year it has ever happened," he added.

Clarence said it is anticipated there will be a 6.4 per cent increase in mailing this Christmas season and officials are expecting the mail volume to increase suddenly.

* *

He added that if a deluge of mail does occur, a standby list of applicants for Christmas assistants can be called.

"Until then we are sort of playing it by ear," he said.

* * *

The last day for guaranteed overseas delivery for cards and letters was Dec. 11. Any mail sent from now on cannot be guaranteed to arrive at its destination before Christmas, Clarence said.

Since a six-cent stamp is required for cards this year, he said, individuals who send them first class (six cents per ounce) should be sure to put a return address on the envelope and seal it so that it can be forwarded or returned.

Harry M. Pryale

Pontiac loses one of her valiant citizens in the death of HARRY M. PRYALE.

After a military turn in Russia during World War I, he became a leading figure in civic activities in this area. Originally a builder, he later headed the Baldwin Rubber Company which employed 900 people at peak. Currently he stands as one of the most generous benefactors of Oakland University, and in addition to huge financial assistance, he gave unstintingly of his time and personal efforts. He stands as one of the pillars in the growth and development of this great institution.

PRYALE

During his business career, Harry Pryale was one of the most popular and best liked individuals in the community. Friends greeted him everywhere and on all sides at all times.

Over the last years, he encountered physical disabilities but he remained cheerful and without complaint. No man or woman ever stayed as sweet, gentle and companionable as did HARRY M. PRYALE through difficult days. He joked and smiled casually at his disabilities.

The man stands out commandingly as a mighty Christian and can walk forward into Eternity as one of the stalwarts of our time and an inspiration to others. Doctors despaired many times but he returned repeatedly from the shadow of the grave to consort again with friends, and there never was a whimper or a protest.

Yes, a lofty and soaring spirit leaves us here below, and the Great Hereafter will become just a little bit better because of this addition.

Truly, God welcomes a nobleman.

Hope for a United Europe Still Flickers

Buried in the avalanche of news of more immediacy, has been an item from Western Europe which could eventually prove of no less significance to the future of our shrinking world than the current headline topics.

All three of Britain's major political parties have accepted invitations to become full members of the Action Committee for a United States of Europe, the organization founded and led by France's JEAN MONNET with the eventual goal of a single, federal European state.

If the British move had occurred 10 years ago, it would have been front-page news. At that time, Western Europe was groping toward some form of economic and political integration as the foundation of an eventual united continent.

It was to a great extent Britain's refusal to commit herself in advance to more than a free trade arrangement that blunted that drive, resulting in the division of free Europe into two camps—the six-nation Common Market dominated by France and West Germany and the looser seven-nation European Free Trade Area led by Britain.

★ ★ ★

The current British move does not in itself reverse 10 years of history. It is on a party, not a government, level. MONNET's committee is unofficial, although immensely influential. The DE GAULLE government, whose negative word has been law in the Common Market, is still stubbornly opposed to inviting Britain into a larger Europe as a full partner.

★ ★ ★

But it is an encouraging indication that the dream of a united Europe is by no means dead.

U.S. Population Trend Is to the Young

In a little over a year the 1970 census will be upon us. Some of what it will reveal about the population of the United States can already be foretold with some confidence.

★ ★ ★

By 1970, for example, it is already evident that half of all Americans will be 27 years of age or younger. In 1960, the corresponding figure was almost 29.

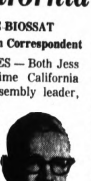
★ ★ ★

One significant aspect of this age-shift is that the political destiny of the United States will be increasingly in the hands of the youthful segment of the population. It poses a stern responsibility for the future well-being of the Country.

2 California Dems Face Tough Tests

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

LOS ANGELES — Both Jess Unruh, long-time California Democratic Assembly leader, and San Francisco's Mayor Joseph Alioto have to endure some tough tests in 1969 before a possible square-off for their party's governorship nomination in 1970.



BIOSSAT

Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan's term runs out in the latter year and it is widely assumed he will seek another.

The California post is one of seven big-state governorships presently held by the GOP which will be on the election block in 1970.

★ ★ ★

When it was first learned that Unruh had lost his prized power base as Assembly speaker in consequence of the Republicans' 41-39 capture of the lower House, the snap judgment was that it could be a severe blow to Unruh's long-nourished governorship ambitions.

Now it is seen by California politicians and observers as more of a mixed blessing.

BURDEN IS GONE

He probably will not have as easy a time getting money. But the burden of responsibility for guiding important state legislation will be his no longer, and he will be freer to attack Reagan as the latter struggles to fulfill his promises with the narrowest of legislative margins.

Unruh, of course will stump the state heavily in the months ahead, and by mid-1969 he will have put out 8 or 10 position papers on major state issues.

★ ★ ★

His present mood is to lie back a bit and see how Reagan does with his thin grasp on the Legislature.

As for Alioto, he and his key aides are inevitably somewhat staggered at the prominence which has come to him in his one high-paced year in public office — after 27 years of private law practice.

GOOD START

He got off to a good start, catpured some sizable federal funds for San Francisco development programs, had brief mention as a possible running mate for Vice President Humphrey and then labored hard though futilely for Democratic capture of the state's 40 electoral votes.

Yet the lot of big city mayors is not a happy one these days.

Alioto is involved in the racial struggle which repeatedly threatens San Francisco State College, if only because his police are often called upon to restore order. He has taken a firm line against violence. But he has also argued steadily for mediation.

This and other tests will provide Alioto's inescapable ordeal.

★ ★ ★

If Alioto has city problems, Unruh goes on having image problems. His television personality does not sparkle, and he still has trouble shaking the "boss" label from earlier years.

Having thrown in with the McCarthy liberals at Chicago, Unruh does have their backing. But many today question its real weight. No one, however, underestimates Unruh's skill and drive.

Again, Three Men Follow A Bright Light

David Lawrence Says:

Nixon Inaugural Facing Trouble

WASHINGTON — Will Nixon's inauguration ceremonies be accompanied by a repetition of what happened in Chicago during the Democratic National Convention last August?

LAWRENCE

This question is being asked now because of plans for a "counterinauguration" to be conducted by the same committee which organized the demonstrations in Chicago and which claimed that their protests would be "peaceful" and "nonviolent."

The same group — the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam — has just announced that it intends to hold a rally in Washington near the Capitol on the day before inauguration and to carry on a demonstration in an area along the parade route on inauguration day.

David Dellinger, chairman of the committee, has revealed that "preliminary negotiations" are under way with federal and District of Columbia officials to obtain the necessary permission.

He said he anticipates no difficulty, but declared that if the city officials "take a repressive stand, this would raise the possibility of civil disobedience."

'SHALL NOT SURRENDER'

He added: "Because we are peaceful, doesn't mean we shall surrender all of our rights."

This could be construed as a threat of disorder and a warning to federal and city officials that, unless they grant the permits, "civil disobedience" might follow.

If the Dellinger committee wishes to stage a protest, this could be done a couple miles away from the Capitol. Or a demonstration could be held an hour after the parade is over. But no city is under obligation to give a permit for any particular area just to allow the exercise of "freedom of speech."

The Dellinger committee says that its protest is not aimed so much at Nixon as against continuation of the Vietnam war and "the enslavement of black people at home."

All such expressions are permissible under the right of free speech, but no government, federal or municipal, is obligated to furnish publicity facilities to dissenters.

This is particularly true if there is any possibility of interruption of the inaugural parade or the eruption of fist fights among spectators, many of whom would resent the interferences by the demonstrators.

If a permit is granted, it is the intention of the National Mobilization Committee to call upon supporters from all parts of the country to come to the three-day demonstrations which are planned.

Bob Considine Says:

Chilling Development Furthers Cashless Society

NEW YORK — There's a chilling new development in our increasingly computerized times. It will move us further along our path to the status of a cashless society.

CONSIDINE

Here's how it works:

You deposit your dough in a bank, which gives you an embossed plastic credit card. The account number and the amount of credit are recorded on the computer. Now you're in business. You go to a merchant, make a purchase, show him your card, and he uses his touch-tone telephone to call the computer. He tells the monster how much you want to spend, and asks it if you have enough dough to afford it.

Within a tiny fraction of one second, the computer responds by voice!

It repeats the amount of the purchase and either approves or disapproves. If it approves, the computer then instantly updates the customer's account and the number of times the card has been used in the past 24 hours.

ON THE LOOKOUT

Once a month the machine coughs up a statement with descriptive billing of all your purchases during that period, when and where bought, your balance, interest and bank charges if any, etc.

It never sleeps. It is always on the lookout for credit-card thieves. If you're robbed of your card or lose it, and your number keeps lighting up in the computer, the computer flashes what amounts to a "tilt" alert. The warning goes to the desk-TV of a credit manager, along with all details of the purchasing spree.

★ ★ ★

The credit manager can call the store where the credit card is then being used and ask it to seize the card, or call a cop to grab the person who is using it.

Lawrence Barnhost, a Bell System executive, predicted recently that by the year 2000 the company's push-button phones will link them to computers that will hold virtually the total sum of man's knowledge.

CAN HANDLE ROUTINES

The Honeywell Co.'s computers can be taught a limitless number of tricks.

"The time-consuming routines of everyday living — shopping, cooking, or even making out income tax returns — could be handled quickly and effortlessly by computers linked together on the telephone network," he said. And followed that statement with a line right out of Dr. Strangelove:

"With Picturephone video telephone service, executives could even 'go to work' without leaving their homes."

That'll be a happy day when Big Brother confronts you from every wall, presumably including the washroom.

Question and Answer

Do all states have a tax on cigarettes?
STANLEY V.

REPLY

No. North Carolina, with tobacco production a major industry, has no tax on cigarettes.

Question and Answer

What is it going to cost the taxpayers to remodel and furnish the offices housing the newly created Oakland County Parks and Recreation Department? Are new and expensive furnishings and landscaping really necessary?
L. CLARK
COUNTY EMPLOYE

REPLY

The new department has been housed in a small corner of the Welfare Building, and was scheduled for the new facilities building. However, acquisition of Waterford-Oaks recreation area made it more economical to remodel an old building on that property. Cost of making the old residence into a 4,000 square foot administrative office, which should be adequate for 20 years, is estimated at $23,500. This includes meeting safety codes and utilizing the garage as a conference room. No landscaping, only grading, has been done. Director Van Atta says as the recreation area develops, there will be extensive tree planting and beautification programs. This is in keeping with the purpose of the department.

(Editor's Note: In further reply to a recent question, upholstering and refinishing classes along with a variety of others will be offered in January by Waterford Community Schools Services. Classes are open to both Waterford and outside residents. For more information, call Don Youmans' office, Waterford Township Schools, 674-0776.)

Christmas Tree Trees Writer

By DICK SAUNDERS

Well, I did it. I succumbed to sanity on the Christmas tree lot this year.

SAUNDERS

I bought a skinny tree. It was blasphemy.

In my way of thinking, a tree should be built along the same lines as a woman — full.

My family always gasped in horror when I returned each year with a voluptuous spruce or a buxom balsam.

★ ★ ★

It was always the type of tree that you had to learn to live with . . . because it took up half the room. You couldn't see the trunk, so you never really knew if it was crooked.

Watering the big bush was kind of like mildair refueling. You never could get within reach of the stand to water it by hand.

It took two days to decorate. Thus, a tree decorating party in our household was a major test of endurance.

★ ★ ★

So this year, things are different. After much urging from our slightly oblong family circle (or maybe obtuse is a better word), I wheeled in the driveway with a tree that actually fit inside my station wagon.

After the normal amount of cursing I got it into the stand. It looked pretty strange standing at a 45 degree angle. You had an irrepressible urge to shout "timber" when entering the room.

I got it straightened up and there it stood like a skinny, underfed girl.

★ ★ ★

That was Saturday. When I came downstairs Sunday morning, I was greeted with a supreme shock.

My creative wife, who cannot leave anything alone, had trimmed the tree! I mean she hacked away what little meat there was on its scrawny bones.

You could not only see its trunk, you could see right through it. The tree looked like the dead beast I usually eject from the living room each year just after New Year's Day.

★ ★ ★

According to my lovely wife, it was all my fault. I had failed to put the saw away, and she needed some cuttings for a wreath, so she did what any red blooded budget-minded American housewife would do. She borrowed from the tree.

I was livid. I threatened to invent an inflatable tree. Sort of like an air mattress or rubber raft; a tree you could blow up each year and it would come complete with ornaments, tinsel and all.

It could be "put up" with a bicycle pump, or, if you are really attached to the traditional idea of bringing the tree home on the car, you could just take it up to the gas station and get it blown up for the holidays.

Naturally, a patch kit would be enclosed for those pesky little punctures.

Ahhh, foolishness. I know in my heart that nothing will ever replace the real, pine-scented product of nature.

So, anyway we now have this stick standing in the corner with a raft of lights wrapped around it and a few ornaments stapled to it, and we call it a Christmas tree.

One thing you can say for it. If this tree falls over, nobody will ever notice.

Accused of Summer Rights Violations

Eight N.J. Policemen Indicted

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — Eight policemen have been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy to violate and violation of civil rights of Negro residents during racial disorders last summer.

The indictment said the policemen assaulted one Negro, and broke windows of several business establishments operated by Negroes.

* * *

U.S. Atty. David Satz Jr. of New Jersey said the policemen were charged with violating a 1872 Civil Rights Act, the first such indictments against policemen brought in the state. The Justice Department said they were the first in any section of the country in many years.

* * *

"Enough people came forward immediately with enough evidence to warrant presentation to the grand jury," Satz said.

'POLICE RIOT'

A coalition of civil rights groups charged that the police department "rioted against the citizens, uncontrolled by their own authorities," while suppressing the disorders.

Paterson, which has a population of 150,000 of which about 40,000 are Puerto Ricans and 22,000 Negroes, was hit by sporadic disorders early in July.

* * *

The civil rights coalition claimed that at one point during the disturbances that included fire-bombing and rock throwing by bands of Puerto Ricans, police attacks against Spanish-speaking citizens were so intense that "Some of the innocent and frightened victims telephoned the governor of Puerto Rico for rescue."

* * *

The Civil Rights Act the policemen are accused of violating forbids "depriving of any rights, privileges or immunities secured by or protected by the Constitution or laws of the United States" to any citizen because of his race or color.

POLICEMEN IDENTIFIED

The eight Paterson policemen were identified in the indictment Wednesday as Sgts. Peter E. LeCompte and George Gsell and Patrolmen Philip Bevacqua, Angelo DeChellis, Carl Gorman, Abraham Hemsey, Joseph D. Grossi and Emil Scarmazzo.

A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office said the policemen will not be arrested but will receive notices of the indictment. He said the arraignment has been scheduled for Jan. 3.

* * *

The maximum penalty for each count of the six-count indictment is one year in prison and a $1,000 fine. Not all the policemen are mentioned in every count.

Mayor Lawrence F. Kramer and Police Commissioner Edward Englehardt were immediately unavailable for comment on the indictments.

Grand Rapids Plans Tough School Policy

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI) — Officials at Grand Rapids Union High School have vowed to step hard on brawling Negro and white pupils who forced the school to shut down for Christmas vacation three days early.

The school was closed for the third straight day yesterday after fighting flared between students of different races.

* * *

School Supt. Norman P. Weinheimer and Joseph P. Van Blooys, vice president of the board of education, said the 1,700-pupil school would remain closed until the end of the Christmas vacation Jan. 6.

* * *

"We are going to strengthen procedures at Union High by examining existing rules and regulations pertaining to conduct and behavior of all students, said Weinheimer at a news conference.

* * *

"All students, black and white, will be ensured of impartial enforcement of these regulations," he said.

The school was closed an hour early Monday, then closed again Tuesday after clashes between black and white students resulted in 23 arrests and four injuries. Police used clubs and chemical spray to quell the disturbance.

Snow Hits Mid-U.S; Southwest Chilled

By the Associated Press

Heavy, wind-driven snow plastered the nation's midsection, and bitter-cold weather numbed the Southwest today as winter swept into the West two days ahead of schedule.

* * *

Near-blizzard conditions prevailed in north-central Kansas and south-central Nebraska.

Winds up to 50 miles an hour churned 8 to 14 inches of snow into traffic-choking drifts.

* * *

Heavy-snow warnings were in effect for portions of six states from Kansas to Wisconsin. Travelers warnings were out in parts of eight states from the central-plains to Michigan.

A snowstorm rumbled through the western Wisconsin city of La Crosse during the night and dumped out 6 inches of snow in little more than two hours. Four inches blanketed Rochester, Minn., in three hours.

SCATTERS SNOW

The wide-ranging storm scattered snow from Kansas to the Dakotas and Wisconsin. It flung rain from the western Gulf states to the middle Mississippi and Ohio valleys.

An Arctic cold snap moved in behind the storm and pounded temperatures down to near zero as far south as northeastern Arizona and northwestern New Mexico. Readings in the middle 20s chilled southeastern Arizona.

* * *

A separate blast of polar air funneled into the Pacific Northwest, paired up with a storm system there and whitened western Washington with 3 to 5 inches of snow. Seattle-Tacoma International Airport closed down twice for brief periods late Wednesday to permit snow removal crews to clear runways.

The snow ranged inland to Nevada and Montana. Rain fell southward into central California.

Frost again nipped sections of the Southeast, but temperatures continued to moderate after three straight days of early morning freezing.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from zero at Massena, N.Y., to 74 at Key West Naval Air Station in Florida.

* * *

Some other reports: Boston 31 clear, New York 34 cloudy, Philadelphia 34 cloudy, Washington 35 partly cloudy, Atlanta 33 partly cloudy, Miami 70 partly cloudy, Detroit 24 drizzle, Chicago 40 rain, Minneapolis-St. Paul 28 snow, St. Louis 50 cloudy, Kansas City 33 cloudy, Dallas 41 clear, Denver 9 clear, Phoenix 33 clear, Los Angeles 49 partly cloudy, San Francisco 49 partly cloudy, Anchorage 17 drizzle, Honolulu 69 rain, Seattle 32 cloudy.

Morse's Career Appears Over

Packwood Keeping Margin in Recount

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The 24-year Senate career of Wayne Morse is apparently ended unless a major error is discovered in the recount of November votes in Oregon's Lane County.

Sen. Morse is expected in Oregon today, but a spokesman said he would have no comment until the recount is ended, possibly Friday.

* * *

Lane County is the only remaining county to be completed in the recount. With 50 per cent of Lane County recounted, Morse had gained about 23 votes.

The recount from 35 of the 36 counties showed Republican Robert Packwood leading 370,026 to Morse's 364,093. Packwood upset Morse in the November election by 3,445 votes.

61-VOTE GAIN

Morse had gained 61 votes in the recount.

The original count gave Packwood 408,825 votes and Morse 405,380.

* * *

Morse has hinted that he could challenge the vote in the courts or the Senate. His observers have challenged 39,674 votes and Packwood's representatives have challenged 34,277.

The challenged ballots are set aside for possible use later in the courts or the Senate.

In Dark on Flu? Here's Straight Story

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Headache and muscles sore? Fever? Sore throat?

You're just one of thousands suffering from the current outbreak of influenza.

* * *

It may be the new and fashionable Hong Kong variety or just the old-fashioned flu. You won't be any more or less miserable with one type than with another.

And if you're a normal, healthy adult, you'll probably recover without lasting ill effects.

The National Communicable Disease Center has provided information to answer the many questions about the disease. They include:

Q. How do I know I have the flu?

A. The only sure way is a laboratory test, since a number of viruses and bacteria can cause symptoms similar to influenza. Tests have shown that much of the current outbreak of respiratory illnesses is due to A2 or Hong Kong flu.

Q. What's the difference?

A. There are two major types of influenza—A and B. What is officially known as A2 (Hong Kong) is a new strain of the A type virus. It was first identified in Hong Kong, so that's how it was named. Since it is a new strain, people are more susceptible to it.

Q. How can I avoid catching the flu?

A. It's not easy, since virus particles are spread through the air when a victim coughs, sneezes, laughs or even talks. These viruses are in fluids in the nose and mouth of persons infected with influenza. So the best way to avoid getting the flu is to stay out of crowds and stay away from anyone coughing or sneezing.

Q. What are symptoms and treatment?

A. Symptoms are fever, chills, headache, sore throat, cough and soreness and aching in the back and limbs. You may have some or all these symptoms. No known medicine will cure influenza, but antibiotics are often used to combat complications. Treatment includes rest in bed, keeping warm, drinking plenty of fluids and checking with a doctor.

Q. Can I be vaccinated against Hong Kong flu?

A. A new vaccine has been developed specifically for Hong Kong flu, but it is recommended primarily for elderly persons and those with chronic illnesses. However, doctors generally do not recommend mass inoculations against influenza.

Q. What about after effects?

A. Although influenza can be fatal, often because of complications, a bout with the disease is unlikely to cause lasting harm to a normally healthy adult.

Q. What are my chances of having flu?

A. An estimated 10-15 per cent of the general population will probably have flu. In places where people are crowded together, the rate will be higher.

Handiwork of a Fink

Nixon Inaugural Won't Be for the Birds

WILMETTE, Ill. (AP) — Joe Fink, the unsung hero of four presidential inaugurations, has completed his vital part in preparations for the next one.

So that President-elect Nixon and his entourage won't need umbrellas Jan. 20, Fink has bird-proofed the inaugural parade route between the White House and the Capitol.

★ ★ ★

"Otherwise, the starlings would cause the dignitaries to lose some of their dignity," observed Fink, 63, of Wilmette in an interview.

He and eight workers spent 12 days spraying the 100 trees along Pennsylvania Avenue with 2000 gallons of a chemical he invented 22 years ago and produces at his National Bird Control Laboratory.

DETERRENT FOR BIRDS

"It's a nonpoisonous chemical which deters birds from landing," said Fink. It irritates their feet.

His $10,000 contract with the inaugural committee guarantees to keep starlings away from Pennsylvania Avenue for at least four months.

★ ★ ★

Until Fink came to the rescue, the birds used to disturb inauguration festivities and parade participants.

"Thousands upon thousands of birds attended those parades," Fink said. "You couldn't see the sky for them. Trees along the route were littered with them."

Spectators in stands under the trees had to raise umbrellas for protection, he said.

"Then in 1953 the Department of Parks asked us for a demonstration." Fink recalled. "They'd tried everything but nothing worked. Nobody thought we'd work, either. But the next day every tree around was covered with birds except those trees we'd treated. And the next day we got the assignment for President Eisenhower's inauguration."

This inauguration will be the first one for which Fink will be on hand to observe the results of his handiwork.

"I'm holding final inspection Jan. 10 so I think I'll stick around for it," he said. "I was never able to make it to the others, although I was always invited."

College Paper 'Obscenity' Is Protested

GRAND HAVEN (AP) — A three-pronged petition is being circulated in Ottawa County asking the Grand Valley State College Board of Control to take a firm position on the college newspaper, which has allegedly printed obscene literature.

The petition asks the board to:

- Adopt guidelines for college-sponsored publications which would include immediate dismissal of any student or faculty member who fails to abide by the rules;
- Eliminate indecency and obscenity from college publications.
- Announce publicly a policy on decency in education.

★ ★ ★

The Hudsonville City Commission earlier had passed a resolution commending county officials for initiating the action in which an injunction was served against the college, halting publication of the paper—the Lanthorn.

Also, editor James Wasserman, 21, of Muskegon was arrested and arraigned on a charge of publishing obscene material.

★ ★ ★

He has been free on $5,000 bond pending a hearing which was delayed due to the death of his attorney, Joseph Legatz of Muskegon. Joseph Legatz Jr. has assumed the case for his father, but a court date has not been set.

Booklet Tells How to Minister to the GI

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press News Features

WASHINGTON — This being the season of religious holidays, let's consider the relation of the men of God to the men of war.

I have received a candid new booklet called "Ministry to the Armed Forces," published by the General Commission on Chaplains and Armed Forces Personnel. It provides suggestions for ministers and a fast rundown on draft rules and problems faced in the military service.

BAULCH

Also it notes that the civilian clergy has largely neglected involvement with the military, except for providing chaplains and counseling on such problems as sex, drinking, gambling and swearing.

Thus, it says, most ministers do not tackle nor are they equipped to handle — the task of counseling men facing the draft or about to enter service, of keeping home church links alive with men in service or of offering a helping hand to returning veterans, especially the Negro.

There was a day, says the booklet, when church help for men in service "might have been understood mainly as 'cake and cookies for our boys'," but while such gifts are still welcome, those days are long gone.

UNDERSTANDABLE

More recently, the booklet notes, there are clergymen whose only role in the military area is to question the morality of military service and the draft for an unpopular war. Such dissent is understandable, it says, but then adds:

"Their protests dramatize the need for what they themselves hitherto almost totally neglected. Churchmen have missed an important task, one which needs attention for years to come."

To meet this task the author, the Rev. Edward I. Swanson, says clergymen need to bone up on the intricacies of the draft, the choices of military service, the options open to conscientious objectors, the psychological problems faced on active duty.

* * *

Father Swanson, an Episcopal priest who served as an ensign chaplain in the Navy, says this ministry to the armed forces "cannot be delegated to the chaplains, who are but one expression of it."

For example, he says they cannot counsel young people about the draft — "a civilian task — too long neglected."

OBVIOUS SUBJECTS

As a sample of Father Swanson's advice, he gives this suggestion for helping a man who may not be drafted, but has made up his mind to enlist and wants a good listener:

"The counselor need not dwell on drinking, women, gambling and swearing. While not unimportant, these are obvious, and the young man has heard about them already. He can be given encouraging words on handling loneliness, boredom, fear, temptation and foreign travel."

* * *

Father Swanson says military service is a "major, but by no means, useless intrusion into one's private life" but it need not be disruptive with adequate counseling beforehand.

On the plus side, he says, military service "is a unique testing ground" for young men and women to grow physically, mentally and spiritually. "A lad is on his own. Nobody saves him from the consequences of his actions. He is placed among his peers in the most elemental circumstances and tested to see of what stuff he is made."

BLUNTLY CANDID

But on the other hand, Father Swanson is bluntly candid about the darker side of military service:

"War is brutal, hellish, insane . . . One encounters much that seems stupid and wasteful . . . There is loneliness . . . Military life is notorious for its tedium . . . Though probably not more than three soldiers in 10 engage in combat, all must prepare for it."

* * *

Father Swanson cautions that "military service raises sensitive religious and ethical issues, the subjects of deeply held convictions" and that a minister can defeat his purpose in counseling if he tries to impose his own views on a young man.

He adds that the counselor may face a young man "in a black mood, with a bagful of mixed feelings . . . His hostility to 'establishments', including those of the church, may be pronounced."

EXPERIENCES DIFFER

No doubt some will take issue with some of Father Swanson's observations, for individual experiences differ.

He says, for instance, the draft comes as a surprise to 18-year-olds because they take the attitude "it can't happen to me" until it does.

* * *

In my contacts with people of this age I find they are acutely aware that they are living with the possibility of being drafted and it's a major personal consideration.

There's a chapter on how to help the man who considers himself a qualified conscientious objector, to which Father Swanson says: "He will require factual information on the draft law; he will need to talk over his beliefs and to know his rights and responsibilities. He may need experienced counsel. He may require help in finding civilian service suitable to his background and abilities. Finally, he may need a friend to help him know his own mind and the course of action which is right for him."

MANY TIPS

Father Swanson gives many tips to ministers for keeping ties with men of their congregation in service. Mainly it's better writing because "servicemen whom the church has remembered during an absence will not return home with the embittered conviction that churchpeople 'couldn't care less'."

"Except for draft counseling, little or no training is needed," Swanson writes. "Hospitality continues to be a major element, and churches need no instruction here. Many shut-ins and invalids are excellent letter writers. What is essential is that those involved be lively, friendly, imaginative and young in outlook."

* * *

Father Swanson also urges churches not to neglect the visiting servicemen: "In seaports and metropolitan areas one can always find soldiers and sailors on the street looking for something to do. They have little money and are victimized easily. Most of them want wholesome entertainment, interesting things to do, attractive girls to talk to and dance with and some assurance that they are welcome."

When soldiers attend off-post churches there is the word of advice: Proselytizing is out of order, "military personnel experience enough exploitation on weekends. They will not take kindly to more of the same on Sunday."

The booklet is available for $1 from the General Commission on Chaplains, 122 Maryland Ave., N.E. Washington, D.C. 20002.

Russia Seen Leaning Less on Warsaw Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. experts say the Czech experience will strengthen the position of Kremlin dissidents who favor reducing the role of the Warsaw Pact nations in Central Europe.

Until the move toward political liberalism by the Prague government and the resulting Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia, the prevailing policy in Moscow was to place a great deal of reliance on Warsaw Pact armies in the upkeep of the Soviet defense in Central Europe.

* * *

However, the deviation of the Czech government has put in a better position those Soviet leaders who have argued since the early 1960s against depending on Eastern European allies in defending that part of the world, the U.S. experts say.

"If the Czechs have gone sour, so could others," one American expert said.

BUDGET INCREASE

If Moscow does decide to strengthen its military posture in Central Europe, it will force an increase in the Soviet defense budget, one U.S. Kreminologist said.

This might drain money from other Russian military programs and such civilian sectors as agriculture where the Soviet government has long promised improvements.

* * *

The Kreminologists say any such policy shift would eventually show up in the Russian "order of battle" in Central Europe and might be signaled by changes in the level of factory output.

The Czech invasion already is believed to have placed some strain on the Soviet military budget because it required the Russians to mobilize some reservists and undertake unexpected major troop movements.

FIGURE MISLEADING

The Soviet defense budget announced last week was 17.7 billion rubles. At the official exchange rate a ruble is worth $1.11.

American experts say that the announced figure is misleading because much of the Soviet military spending is disguised in such other categories as science and industry. They estimate the real figure spent on the military in the Soviet Union last year was really closer to $60 billion.

* * *

The announced defense figures, which represent on their face only a mild increase over last year is looked on by U.S. officials as a message to the West that Moscow is not gearing up for any major increase in arms spending.

And this message, the experts said, is believed designed to avoid propelling NATO into a major effort at boosting the Atlantic alliance's force levels.

* * *

"What Russia is interested in now is getting NATO back on the track it was on before the invasion of Czechoslovakia—a track that seemed to be leading toward a weakening of the alliance," one authority said.

Ike's Brother Earl Will Be Buried Friday

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Earl Eisenhower, a brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, will be interred Friday at Scottsdale following a Masonic funeral service.

Earl Eisenhower, a former engineer and public relations director, died of a heart attack Wednesday at a Scottsdale hospital. He was 70. He suffered his first attack Monday.

* * *

The former president, who is convalescing at the Walter Reed Hospital in Washington from his seventh heart attack, was "deeply grieved" by his younger brother's death.

The funeral will be held at Messinger Mortuary with burial at Greenwood Memorial Park.

SURVIVORS LISTED

He is survived by his wife; a son, Earl Jr.; a daughter, Mrs. Kay Morgan, Rockford, Ill.; and three brothers, the former president; Milton, a college president, and Edgar, a lawyer.

Eisenhower retired in Scottsdale in February 1967, following a brief period in Illinois politics. He was elected as an at-large member to the Illinois House of Representatives in 1964. He called it a one-shot political deal and said he did not want to return.

* * *

He graduated from the University of Washington with a degree in electrical engineering. Eisenhower was associated with the West Penn Power Co., for 25 years.

Vietnam Toll Rises Despite 'Lull' in War

SAIGON (AP) — Combat casualties rose on all sides last week in the Vietnam war despite the absence of major sustained ground fighting.

The U.S. Command said 222 Americans were killed in action and 1,199 were wounded. The week before 192 Americans were reported killed and 1,110 wounded. Of last week's wounded, 523 were hospitalized and 676 did not require hospitalization, an American spokesman said.

* * *

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 190 government soldiers killed and 815 wounded last week. The previous week the toll of government troops was 150 killed and 811 wounded.

* * *

The two allied commands reported 2,059 enemy killed last week, compared with 1,715 reported last Thursday for the week before. The latter figure was increased today to 2,006 on the basis of reports during the week, and the total of 2,059 is certain to be increased similarly next week.

Although no major, continuing battles were reported last week, there were a number of bloody engagements scattered across the country as U.S. forces kept up their operations designed to prevent the Vietcong from launching another major offensive. U.S. communiques earlier indicated that the chief areas of activity were north of Saigon near the Cambodian border and in the populous coastal lowlands south of Da Nang.

* * *

The weekly casualty report raised to 30,279 the number of Americans reported killed in action in the Vietnam war.

* * *

Since Jan. 1, 1961, there have been 190,468 Americans wounded. In that period another 1,251 Americans are listed as missing, captured or interned.

* * *

The U.S. Command also reported today that at least 425,329 Vietcong and North Vietnamese have been killed in action since the beginning of 1961.

Parochiaid Study Panel Rapped

LANSING (AP) — A citizens group that battled last year against proposed state aid to nonpublic schools leveled a blast Wednesday at what it termed "flagrant display of prejudice" by a joint legislative committee studying the issue.

"The majority of this committee has (used) legislative powers to serve the interests of the parochial school lobby," charged Citizens to Advance Public Education (CAPE), which says it includes some 1,200 members across the state.

★ ★ ★

The legislative committee, headed by Sen. Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo, began its study of aid to private and parochial schools earlier this year after the controversial issue failed to reach the House or Senate floor.

Legislators last week named a nine-member citizens advisory committee to help develop ideas for nonpublic school aid.

CAPE charged that the citizen committee was "noteworthy for its distinguished majority of parochial adherence."

CONNECTIONS ATTACKED

Mrs. Harriett Phillips of Huntington Woods, a CAPE spokesman, said several members of the citizens committee had direct connections with organizations that have endorsed the principles of state aid to nonpublic schools.

"CAPE cannot help but condemn such flagrant display of prejudice," the organization said. "We wonder what catastrophe in our public schools has to occur before our elected representatives are as aroused to act as they apparently are on behalf of the parochial schools."

★ ★ ★

CAPE said it "cannot allow the majority of Michigan school children to suffer as a result of such bigotry," and added it would organize groups throughout the state to fight aid to nonpublic schools.

CAPE last year joined such organizations as the Michigan Congress of Parents and Teachers and numerous public school associations who fought legislation that would have authorized state grants of up to $150 to parents for each child in nonpublic schools.

The Michigan Association of School Boards hit at religious aspects of the proposal, citing a U. S. Supreme Court ruling against prayer in public schools."

"How can you justify a public school on one side of the street that cannot have prayer and get public money and a parochial school on the other side of the street that can have prayer and still get public money?" asked an organization spokesman.

★ ★ ★

On the other side of what turned into one of the most hotly contested issues brought before the Legislature was the powerful Citizens for Educational Freedom (CEF), made up of some 20,000 families and several religious groups.

Proponents of the bills contended that an increasing number of nonpublic school pupils are forced, either by parents' or schools' financial problems, to transfer to public schools.

They said passage of the nonpublic school aid bill would help save money for Michigan taxpayers.

Voice-Prints Set for Three Tied to Plane Bomb Scare

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal authorities arranged Wednesday voice-print analysis tests for three college roommates to determine if they were responsibl for a false bomb threat that caused a Detroit-bound airliner to return to Los Angeles International Airport Tuesday.

One of the three, Leon D. Pearson, 22, was arrested at the airport Tuesday after he arrived too late to catch the plane. The other two youths, Darryl N. Landrum, 19, and Henderson D. Cartwright, 19, were arrested as they tried to hitch a ride to the airport by hailing a Pomona police car.

The trio — all from Pomona and students at Mount San Antonio College—were accused of using a stolen credit card and were questioned about the bomb scare. They were charged with suspicion of burglary, two counts of grand theft and three counts of illegal use of a credit card.

★ ★ ★

Authorities planned to compare voice-print patterns of the youths' voices with patterns made from a recording of the bomb scare telephone call.

ARRIVED TOO LATE

Police said Pearson arrived too late to catch a flight to Detroit. They said his ticket had been purchased with the stolen credit card.

He was arrested by Pomona officers after he exchanged his ticket for one to Chicago.

★ ★ ★

The called-back American Airlines plane, with 61 passengers, resumed its journey almost three hours later after a search of baggage uncovered no bomb.

Crackdown Leaves an Underlying Tension in Brazil

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The following analysis of the situation in Brazil pieces together information brought out of that country by persons in a position to know what is going on. Dispatches from Brazil are subject to censorship.)

By The Associated Press

Surface calm and spring-taut tension under the surface have characterized the aftermath of Brazil's bloodless revolution of Friday the 13th.

Although the same government still runs the nation, it was a revolution in every way, with a complete change in the constitutional framework of the nation.

* * *

In fact the constitution has been virtually abolished by the institutional act proclaimed Friday night, suspending all constitutional guarantees for an indefinite period. At the same time the government sent Congress packing on an involuntary vacation and stationed army censors in virtually all newspapers and radio stations. It clamped censorship on outgoing dispatches by foreign correspondents and began to monitor international phone calls.

But on the surface there was little sign of tension. There were no tanks in the streets except in Sao Paulo for a few hours Friday, and there were no unusual security measures.

POLICE SCURRY ABOUT

The Black Marias of the political police scurried about Rio de Janeiro and other major cities almost without interruption, hauling into prison the nation's top opposition leaders and the cream of its political commentators as well as leading artists, lawyers and intellectuals.

There appeared to be no coordination in the arrests, and no over-all pattern in the censorship. In Rio de Janeiro army censors carefully blue-penciled any reference to arrests, while in Sao Paulo newspapers listed dozens of arrests with impunity.

* * *

There was tight censorship in internal and international communications, but some outlets were disregarded and in some cities there was no censorship at all.

But it was an eerie situation as Brazil went about its business for three days while the wave of arrests spread and no one was really sure who had been picked up. Some who were thought to have been arrested were only hiding out with friends, and others who were believed in jail turned up on the beach at Rio — having been released after a few hours' confinement.

FORMER U.N. ENVOY

Among the latter were composer Chico Buarque de Hollanda and Jornal do Brasil Editor Jose Sette Camara, until recently his country's ambassador to the United Nations.

Others stayed in confinement —although not in jail. Most were in army or military police quarters, or kept under house arrest.

* * *

Among these were former President Juscelino Kubitschek and presidential aspirant Carlos Lacerda, former governor of Guanabara State.

Behind all the arrests and the assumption of virtually unlimited power by the government lies a story of growing disenchantment among military men with the resurgence of what they felt were the subversive and corrupt practices of the pre-1964 period. It was on March 31, 1964, that the military —with civilian backing—moved in to overthrow the government of left-leaning President Joao Goulart.

OVERT REPRESSION

As the period of overt repression ended and the government failed to produce the results it had promised, disenchantment began to set in.

Criticism from students, labor, clergymen and the nation's most influential newspapers began to get stronger. Even such traditionally middle-of-the-road publications as Jornal do Brasil and Sao Paulo's O Estado began to turn bitterly against the government. The military, which was and is its main prop, began to get restless.

* * *

They decided a new cleanup was needed and began to plan. Involved in the group known as the hard line were several junior generals—who had been Colonels at the time of the 1964 coup. One of them, Gen. Albuquerque Lima, is the interior minister and an avowed presidential candidate. For months he has been visiting military garrisons and navy ships to preach the need for a tougher stance.

When the Congress refused to honor a military demand that it permit trial of opposition Deputy Marcio Moreira Alves on charges of offending the armed forces, the hard-liners decided that things had gone far enough. Intense pressures were brought to bear on President Arthur da Costa e Silva and after about 24 hours of resistance he agreed to take over near-dictatorial power.

HARD-LINERS IN CONTROL

The victors were the hard-liners led by the president's own military aide, Gen. Jayme Portela, and his minister of justice, Buiz Antonio da Gama e Silva, a law professor. Also taking a place in the winner's circle were such troop commanders as 1st army boss Sen. Sizeno Sarmento, a stocky combat-tested infantryman who wears the U.S. Bronze Star.

Although Costa e Silva and his determination to "humanize the revolution" were bulldozed into submission, he seemed to remain strong enough to stand up before an army audience Monday and say "I am your supreme commander," adding that he had no intention of giving up the job, as some had rumored he might have to.

* * *

Irrespective of what may happen to Costa e Silva or his aides, Brazilian democracy has been set back for an indefinite period. It would not be surprising if Brazil were in for a long period of undisguised military dictatorship in the Argentina pattern. The Argentine revolution of 1966 was patterned after Brazil's in 1964, but went further and now Brazil's leaders seem determined to catch up.

"Perhaps now we'll finish the job we started in 1964," one navy captain said. "We just didn't go far enough."

DON'T CARE

Brazilians who are pushing for this type of all-out cleanup don't really care what the rest of the world may think of it.

"It's our problem," say the young officers who are carrying out the work of arresting opposition leaders and censoring newspapers.

They seem confident that U.S. economic support will continue no matter what they do, both in the form of aid and in the form of support for such marketing schemes as the International Coffee Agreement which insures a price above the world market for Braziliam coffee.

* * *

The hard-liners seem supremely confident that they can shape Brazil's destiny the way they want, and that they will make the country into a world power.

Kitchen Sinks —20 Feet Down in the Ohio River

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — You've heard that old expression "everything but the kitchen sink?"... well, that aptly described the Newport Yacht Club.

Helen Enzwiler, a concessionaire at the floating club, said her steel-hull kitchen "just dropped out from underneath" and sank in about 20 feet of water Wednesday.

* * *

She estimated the loss at $30,000, but could not explain why the kitchen went down.

The sprawling club is composed of several connecting sections and sits on the Ohio River, just across from Cincinnati.

The kea, a New Zealand parrot that is crowlike in size and rusty green in color, is reputed to have acquired the habit of attacking live sheep for the purpose of obtaining the fat about the kidneys.

Home Local Keeps Hoffa as President

DETROIT (UPI) — Imprisoned Teamsters President James R. Hoffa has easily won reelection as president of his home Local 299, Teamsters officials said yesterday.

Hoffa's ticket handily defeated, 5,856 to 1,407, a slate of candidates put up by dissident members of the 18,000-member local, which Hoffa took over in 1937.

* * *

The dissident slate, headed by Andrew R. Provenzino, an unemployed truck driver, had not been expected to make much headway in the Detroit local, which is Hoffa's power base in the union.

A supporter of the 42-year-old Provenzino, Bernard Jacabus, was beaten outside the union hall Nov. 11. Jacabus claimed he was beaten twice before the nominations that day for passing out campaign literature.

* * *

There is a legal question of whether Hoffa can hold union office, in view of his five-year sentence for alleged misuse of union funds. That conviction has been appealed. Hoffa entered the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., in March 1967 for an eight-year sentence on a conviction for jury tampering.

Local 299 members voted in a three-day period ending Monday and the results were announced today.

Copper Firm Is Working Wood

HOUGHTON (AP) — Copper Range Co., which has mined the minerals of Michigan's Upper Peninsula for 70 years, now is turning to mine its other great resource — its forests.

A $2 million wood fabricating complex just outside nearby South Range is to be put into operation by Copper Range in the first week of January. Expansion already planned contemplates another $250,000 investment in 1969.

The plant will draw its supplies from 185,000 Upper Peninsula acres owned by Copper Range, which manages its woodlands to assure a perpetual yield of timber.

The development will be run by Copper Range's Northern Hardwood division, headed by William P. Nicholls, a Copper Range vice president. The highly automated plant will employ 80 to 85 men initially, with another 50 being required in the woods to keep raw supplies moving in.

4-ACRE COMPLEX

The complex covers four acres. One of its buildings is 500 feet long — almost the length of two football fields — and Nicholls says the plant will be the most modern anywhere in the country. More than $30,000 of the investment went for equipment to minimize air pollution.

The plant will specialize in so-called dimension lumber (precut parts) for the furniture and other woodworking industries. Product examples are drawer and cabinet doors, chair bottoms and panels cut to specified shapes and sizes.

* * *

Northern Hardwood also plans to market so-called bolts, 100 inches long and seven inches in diameter from its stands of hard maple, yellow birch, ash, elm, oak, basswood and aspen.

Nicholls sees the possibilities as "unlimited" and sees the company's production jumping from $1.8 million the first year of operation to $4 million in the third year, including the sale of chips to the paper industry and veneer logs.

MILL IS TEST-RUN

Ground was broken for the new complex July 18 and its conveyorized sawmill got pre-Christmas test runs.

In addition to sawings, the completed mill will be able to rough plane, rip, edge, glue, trim, shape, resaw, mold to pattern, finish plane, bend, turn, sand and package for shipment.

The $2 million initial investment in the wood fabricating complex raises to almost $200 million Copper Range's investment in the Upper Peninsula, where it is the area's second largest employer.

Its No. 1 operation here is the White Pine copper mine, mill and smelter, which employes some 2,500 and has an annual payroll of more than $20 million.

* * *

Its land holdings are spread over five counties, Houghton, Ontonagon, Keweenaw, Marquette and Baraga. And if it should ever run short on trees from its own lands it is assured an at-home abundance, since 80 per cent of the Upper Peninsula's land area is covered by trees.

Yule Mail's on Time

SAIGON (AP) — The 535,000 U.S. troops in Vietnam were assured yesterday that Christmas packages and letters would be in their hands by Dec. 25.

"It is going to be a great Christmas as far as mail is concerned," said Elmer L. Jacobson, deputy postal inspector in charge of he U.S. Post Office Department.

Jacobson came to Vietnam to observe mail handling procedures at military postal facilities.

"Our primary concern was for distribution and dispatch of mail for servicemen in Vietnam through the gateways at San Francisco and Seattle," he said.

FLOW EXAMINED

Jacobson said he has examined several hundred letters and packages at the big military postal facility at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base.

"The handling is current and in great shape," he said. "The officers and men of the postal service are working 12-hour shifts, seven days a week. By doing this they are able to keep up with the volume of mail."

* * *

"Some of the boys have told me that they already have received all the packages and letters they anticipated. If the present flow continues, we should have no trouble getting Christmas mail in the hands of the servicemen by Dec. 22."

MILLION POUNDS DAILY

"Normally, an average of 500,000 pounds of mail arrive daily at the terminal," a spokesman said. "Since the big climb toward the Christmas season started in mid-November, the daily figure has gradually increased to more than a million pounds."

Awesome Are the Obstacles President-Elect Faces

By MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon enters the White House next month as a minority president elected by an onionskin margin, with an opposition Congress and an obscure mandate. Awesome are the obstacles.

But the new president can take strength from the national dismay which was a factor in electing him. If there was one clear plea from the people in the trying year of 1968, it was a call for an end to the violence on American streets and in Vietnam's jungles.

It was loud and clear enough to make an incumbent president who loved the office decide to quit it; to make serious what would otherwise have been foolish challenges against him, first by an unknown senator, Eugene J. McCarthy, and then by a famous one, Robert F. Kennedy; to make Nixon's opponent, Hubert H. Humphrey, run away from the record of the administration he served; and to make Richard M. Nixon the comeback champion of a people who don't love a loser.

And so it was certainly clear enough to allow Nixon to forget that he was the presidential choice of only 43 per cent of the nation and to ignore the lack of a mandate from the "forgotten Americans" to whom he turned for support and from whom he received no greater demand than to be left alone in peace.

PEACE FIRST TASK

To give them peace will be Nixon's first task.

The president of the Brookings Institution, Kermit Gordon, put it this way: "If there is killin in Vietnam when the new president takes office, his paramount task must be to stop the fighting. The brutality and horror of the war — made vivid as in no previous war by the immediacy of television; the corrosive and divisive effects of the war on American society; and the budgetary drain of the war which has shortchanged urgent domestic claims — all dictate that ending the war must lead all other tasks on the President's agenda."

Here Nixon is victimized by circumstances. He must make peace dealing with the same diplomacy, the same battlefield stalemate, the same intransigent ally in Saigon, a government created by generals, and the same stubborn antagonists in Paris in the same combination which retired Lyndon Johnson and denied him the title of peacemaker.

Nixon's newness in office, his reputation, earned on the stump and in Congress, as a militant anti-Communist his party's antipathy toward accommodation with communism — these may serve him well.

MAY BE POSSIBLE

They may make possible a war settlement that would have been unacceptable from a Democratic administration just as Dwight D. Eisenhower could allow the Korean War to end on terms that would have been politically intolerable for his Democratic predecessor.

At home, if he's lucky, he will have the honeymoon to which every new president is entitled — an all-too brief period during which he will get his way and his legislation with limited partisan sharpshooting at his expense. Some expert observers on the Washington scene don't think he'll be allowed any "honeymoon," even briefly.

★ ★ ★

"If the polls are accurate, Nixon's was a loveless victory. But in winning he won a certain admiration that had eluded him before.

He was the come - from - the - canvas fighter who had been so far down in 1962, when he ran for governor and was rejected by the voters of his native California, that he moved to New York and won over his party by nursing its wounds after the Goldwater disaster of 1964.

A CAUTIOUS APPROACH?

It might be that in power at last, Nixon will approach his powers cautiously and shyly, awed by the voter's snub of his party when they chose him and gave him a Congress controlled by Democrats, among them some of the men who had admired him least in his two decades of public life.

But the likelihood is otherwise. Nixon will probably recall John F. Kennedy's profitless caution in his approach to a Congress which proceeded to turn its back on his proposals.

Everett M. Dirksen, the Republican Senate leader, expects to see a "frugal" Nixon.

"Mr. Nixon is basically conservative," Dirksen says. "It may be assumed that his recommendations for the balance of the fiscal year and his recommendations for future years will be on the frugal side. In that case, he would have no difficulty whatsoever in coming to an agreement with Congress, because it spent much time in 1968 seeking to secure an expenditure cut of $16 billion in return for the 10 per cent surtax that President Johnson was demanding in order to avoid a gargantuan deficit."

SAME RESTRAINT

Bold or otherwise, Nixon faces the same gargantuan restraint.

In his first year, he may choose to study and discuss — rather than propose for action to Congress — the dramatic changes he offered in campaign speeches.

★ ★ ★

His tax credit idea — intended to make it profitable for business to hire the untrained and to build plants in the slums — is a revenue-reducing scheme. Tax credits are a backdoor tax cut.

★ ★ ★

And Nixon promised — one of the few absolutely specific promises of his campaign — to allow the income tax surcharge to die on June 30. He may not be able to live up to the promise.

Whether or not Vietnam warfare continues, Nixon will be in no position in his first year or two to give up federal revenue. His budget promises to be almost as unbalanced as those of his predecessor even if revenue comes in at the current rate.

★ ★ ★

Nixon's immediate legislative need will be for dramatic proposals dealing with the problem of crime. As much as any identifiable issue, crime elected him. He cannot afford vulnerability on this issue when he seeks relection in four years.

Yet if the crime problem were not hard, it would not exist.

The new president will probably put great initial stress on reforming the structure of government.

NO-STRINGS GRANTS?

Here he may see to curb the government's size — always a Republican hope. He may seek also to fulfill a campaign pledge by funneling through the states — perhaps through no-strings-attached "block grants" to the states, about which Republicans speak frequently — much of the money Washington now spends on social welfare programs.

"For years now, the trend has been to sweep more and more authority toward Washington," he said during the campaign.

★ ★ ★

"Too many of the decisions that would better have been made in Seattle or St. Louis have wound up on the president's desk. I plan a streamlined federal system, with a return to the states, cities and communities of decision-making powers rightfully theirs."

Yet when all this is said, it remains to be said that nobody yet knows whether Nixon will move to the right or left when he assumes the presidency. Maybe Nixon himself does not know.

LBJ to Fulfill on Jan. 20 His Startling Vow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For Lyndon Baines Johnson, the onset of the new year means a farewell to power and a return from the Potomac to the Pedernales.

After more than 30 years in the vortex of politics in Washington and five years at the pinnacle in the White House, he is heading back to the red soil Texas country from which he came.

★ ★ ★

When he turns over the reins of the presidency to Republican Richard M. Nixon on Jan. 20, Johnson will have fulfilled the astonishing announcement he made last March 31.

In a nationwide television address, he first revealed he had decided to limit the bombing of North Vietnam and commit the United States to exploratory peace talks with the Communists. Then the ever-unpredictable Texan reshaped the entire world picture with 20 words:

RESHAPED PICTURE

"I shall not seek, and I will not accept, the nomination of my party for another term as your president."

★ ★ ★

In the hope of bringing national unity and furthering the search for peace he made his decision stick even though the Democratic party lost the White House in the November election.

It was a remarkable decision from the standpoint both of the private man and of the public president.

LOST SUPPORT

In essence, it meant that four years after the greatest landslide presidential victory in history Johnson had lost such popular support that his choice was to bow out as an unpopular leader rather than intensify American disunity.

It meant that a man who had been a powerful and proud political leader had found he could best serve the American people by giving up that leadership.

Prospector Files Moon Land Claim

WINNEMUCCA, Nev. (AP) — A prospector has filed claim to 10,000 square miles on the moon to create a "new utopia" he calls "moonshine valley."

O. C. (Charlie) Norris filed his claim Tuesday with Humboldt County Recorder J.L. Germain. The property surrounds whatever point man first sets foot on the lunar surface.

"I can't see where it would harm anyone, so I recorded this one," Germain said.

Californians Adopt Tenth Child; 'Undecided' About Future Plans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's anything but quiet around our house," says Joann Trumbo, but noisy or not she and her husband, Cecil, have just adopted their 10th child.

* * *

"We decided when we were first married that we wanted 10 children. It wasn't physically possible, so we've adopted them. We just wish we hadn't waited five year to adopt the first one," she said in an interview.

The Trumbos plan to spend Christmas at home with just the family. They used to have friends over, Trumbo said, but now there just isn't room.

"And we used to get a lot of invitations out," he chuckled, "but somehow we don't get as many as we used to."

The final adoption decree for Maria, was presented to the Trumbos Tuesday in Los Angeles Superior Court. They have adopted five girls and five boys, ranging from Kathi, 11, to Patrice, 2, and Maria.

4 BEDROOMS

The Trumbos, from Salt Lake City, Utah, have been married 17 years. They live in a four-bedroom home in La Mirada, southeast of Los Angeles. Trumbo is a self-employed engineer.

The older children help to take care of the younger ones, says Mrs. Trumbo, making her work a little easier.

"We found that we were busiest when we had only three children," she said. "After that, it doesn't make much difference if there are two or three more to take care of."

* * *

"Every once in a while, we have to sit on them, but that's normal. We're probably stronger disciplinarians with them than we would be if we had only three. But you have to be with 10."

Trumbo, 39, and Mrs. Trumbo, 38, are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints. Mrs. Trumbo says she knows several married couples with large families.

Do they plan to adopt more children?

MORE?

"Now that we have 10, we hate to think that Maria is the last," said Mrs. Trumbo. "I think we'd like more, but we haven't decided."

If they do adopt more children, she added, they probably will wait until more of their children are of school age. Five are now too young for school. She says the adoption agency has not mentioned any limit on the number they can adopt and "I don't think they'd turn us down."

"I'm not going to say this is the last," she added. "We just love little babies."

Bishop to Wed Again Following Two Other Unsuccessful Tries

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike, planning to marry for the third time, says "I don't believe I could be excommunicated" but he notes "a difference between that and being refused communion."

* * *

The twice-divorced cleric, 55, resigned as Episcopal bishop of California to join the center for the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara.

* * *

His successor, Bishop C. Kilmer Myers, has made no public statement giving approval to the Methodist wedding planned Friday. The bride-to-be is Diane Kennedy, 31, a Methodist who has never been married.

* * *

Under Episcopal practice, a divorced person must obtain permission of his bishop before remarrying.

* * *

"I haven't studied that question," Bishop Pike said Wednesday concerning the possibility of excommunication.

* * *

His resignation from the church administrative post came after he had challenged the doctrines of Virgin birth and of the Trinity.

* * *

Miss Kennedy helped in the writing of Bishop Pike's latest book, "The Other Side," a best-selling account of his experiences with psychic phenomena.

Details of Rite for Famous Pair Are Still Secret

NEW YORK (AP) — When Julie Nixon and David Eisenhower said they wanted their wedding Sunday to be a private affair, they really meant it.

The guest list for the marriage of the daughter of the President-elect to the grandson of the former president is still a secret—although it has been learned there are few political or public figures included.

Information about Julie's wedding gown, her attendants' dresses, the singering ceremony at Marble Collegiate Church and the reception at the Plaza Hotel will not be released until the last minute.

* * *

And there will be no news coverage allowed either of the ceremony or the reception.

"Julie said she did not want anyone watching that wedding who was not a personal friend or someone she knows," Mrs. Gerry Van der Heuvel, Julie's mother's press aide, said Thursday.

Mrs. Van der Heuvel did give out a few tidbits — including the fact that the ceremony will be broadcast, via closed circuit television, to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower who is in Walter Reed Army Hospital recuperating from a series of heart attacks.

SOME DETAILS

She also said that David's sister, Barbara Anne, who was married Nov. 16, will be a bridesmaid and her husband, Fernando Echavarria-Uribe of Bogota, Colombia, will be an usher. Julie was one of Barbara Anne's attendants.

Asked about parties for the bride, Mrs. Van der Heuval said there would be a luncheon given for Julie Friday at the Cosmopolitan Club by Susan Harvin of Houston, Tex., who will be a bridesmaid.

* * *

The rehearsal will be Saturday afternoon, by which time the church will be decorated with Christmas greenery and red and white poinsettas the Nixons requested for the platform at the head of the aisle.

The rehearsal dinner, given by David's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Eisenhower, will be Saturday night at a Manhattan restaurant.

Spoons, Forks for a Dessert Is the Subject

Dear Mrs. Post: I think I committed a faux pas last week when I served pound cake with strawberries. I expected our guests to eat the strawberries with the spoon and to break the cake into smaller pieces and eat it with their fingers.

However, most of our guests ate the cake too with the small spoons, and it embarrassed me to see the men especially struggling with the inadequate table service. Should I have given each guest a cake fork as well as a spoon?

The spoons I used are of a fine design in stainless steel, four and a half inches in length and one inch across the bowl. Are these meant to be used with small or demi-tasse coffee cups only? — Mrs. Lawrence

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: Your spoons are for demi-tasse and should not have been used for dessert. The correct spoon for fruit is a dessert spoon — slightly larger than a teaspoon. Or if you do not have those, a teaspoon will do.

He's Taken for a Ride by This Year's Model

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 47-year-old eligible man who is very much interested in a beautiful 26-year-old model. She has two children and her divorce (for which I am paying) is now pending.

I bought her a new car and have spent over $2,000 on clothes for her and her children in the last six months. She says she will marry me when her divorce is final, but in the meantime, I don't see much of her.

She sees me every Monday night, but on Tuesdays she sees an old boyfriend she says she is letting down easy. On Wednesdays she has to go out with her boss. On Thursday she goes out with the girls. On Friday she stays home and does her laundry, and the weekends she lets her husband come over (against the orders of his lawyer) because he misses the kids.

My friends say I am being taken for a ride. Am I?

LAKE FOREST

DEAR LAKE: Not only are you being taken for a ride, you'll be lucky if you aren't killed in the traffic.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have an uncle who is getting on in years. He has made a lot of money during his lifetime and has spent very little of it.

He's a self-made man and never finished grammar school, so we know he's not got any college to leave his money to. Also, he's not a church-type, so they aren't getting any.

What I am getting at is this: I know he has a will because he mentions from time to time that he has "changed" it. I don't want to ask any questions of him or the lawyer, but how can I find out how much he will leave when he goes?

RELATIVE

DEAR RELATIVE: I can tell you. He will leave it ALL.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My father-in-law (I'll call him "Papa Joe") has been making his home with us ever since my mother-in-law died two years ago.

I am by nature the affectionate type and think nothing of kissing relatives hello and goodbye. Yesterday when I came home from marketing I gave Papa Joe a little peck on the cheek like always.

He grabbed me and said he didn't want THAT kind of kiss. Well, this floored me because he is 65 and I am 27. I told him that it was the only kind of kiss he was going to get from me, then he tried to force me to kiss him on the lips. I was petrified. Fortunately, he heard my husband's car pull into the carport, so he let me go.

Abby, my father-in-law is retired and is home a lot, and now I don't want to be alone in the house with him. He begged me not to tell his son, but I feel so uncomfortable around the old man now I wish he would move. But what excuse can I give my husband?

Should I tell him the truth? Papa Joe could afford to live alone if he wanted to, and he has other children he could live with. Please advise me soon.

FRIGHTENED

DEAR FRIGHTENED: Tell Papa Joe that he has one week to tell his son that he is moving out, and if he doesn't, you will be forced to tell him that you no longer want his father living there. And, why.

3 Anniversaries Commemorated

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a triple anniversary at the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer in New York City's Queens Village. The celebration marked the 45th anniversary of the founding of the church, the 30th anniversary of the ordination of the Rev. J. Edward Vesper, pastor, and his 30th year with the church in that post.

Helping to cut the cake were three founders of the church, Mrs. Angelina LaPasta, Mrs. Alice Helmke, and Mrs. Anna Grote.

Festive Mood Starts at Door

Christmas in the house begins at your front door!

To set a festive holiday mood, the National Cotton Council suggests you decorate your door with a cheerful red and white Christmas stocking, plump with greenery and gifts.

* * *

For an extra-large stocking, use about a yard of 36-inch wide cotton flannelette, striped in red and white. Make your own stocking pattern from brown paper and include a wide band for a cuff.

Use green cotton for the cuff and edge it with red cotton ball fringe.

Stuff the stocking with tissue paper and stick artificial greenery, big candy canes, and small Christmas packages in the top.

Artist Sprays Her Canvases

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Jamaican artist M. Jorie Austin uses a spray gun rather than brush when she paints.

* * *

The choice of a spray gun for painting is the result of a walk on the beach in the Bahamas. She discovered a piece of driftwood which had been sprayed with some material, giving it a soft irridescent appearance. She was fascinated and took the wood home with her. From that time, the spray gun rather than a brush became her main tool.

For her abstract work, she begins by placing the canvas flat on the floor. Later she puts the finishing touches on it on the easel.

First, Use Lemon, Lime Juice

Lemons and limes can be the most welcome of holiday guests. Their brightness and warmth combine easily with traditional Christmas greenery. Festive decorations couldn't be easier to make — and the variations are virtually endless.

Shop for basic styrofoam shapes at your hobby or craft shop. Rings, pyramids or pedestals all lend themselves to lemon and lime magic.

★ ★ ★

Collect as many of those pretty plastic squeeze lemons and limes as you can — the ones that contain lemon and lime juices for table use when you buy them.

★ ★ ★

Thin wire and an assortment of artificial greens — like lemon leaves and boxwood — complete your materials, except for a few sprigs of artificial mistletoe and some miniature pine cones.

★ ★ ★

Twist the wire around the necks of the plastic Lemons and limes, leaving enough to anchor the fruit securely when you tuck them into the Styrofoam base.

GREENS

Fill in the empty spaces with greenery, adding mistletoe and pine cones for accent. Odds and ends can be put to good use.

An empty whipped topping container can be transformed into the base of a tree. Or left-over gold spray paint can turn your whole arrangement into an elegant decoration for more formal settings.

★ ★ ★

Unusually attractive 3-D Christmas tree ornaments result from halving lemons or limes and inserting a regular ornament holder through the "squirt hole."

★ ★ ★

Twist a bit of velvet ribbon so it covers the cap threads. Charming miniature scenes made from tiny birds, flowers, snowmen or angels can be held in place with florist's clay.

Let lemon and lime decorations help you set your Christmas mood this year.

Need About Half Anti-Freeze in Engine Coolant

Car engines run best when warm, yet need a cooling system because gasoline combustion engines produce tremendous heat. Only about ⅓ of the fuel's heat energy is utilized.

★ ★ ★

Half the waste heat escapes through the exhaust, the other through the cooling system. The correct concentration of anti-freeze-coolant is therefore vital to the best operation of the car's cooling system.

Most cooling systems give the best performance with 33 to 65 per cent of antifreeze in the coolant; 50 per cent gives near maximum protection for both winter and summer.

School of Nursing Coeducational After 77 Years

ST. PAUL, Minn. — With the enrollment of two men, the Arthur B. Aneker Memorial school of Nursing has gone coeducational for the first time in its 77-year history.

★ ★ ★

Officials of the school, at St. Paul-Ramsey Hospital, hope that the entrance as freshman student nurses of Myron Moen and Richard Boyd will start a trend. "We would like to have more young men enroll," said Mrs. Ruth C. Smith, associate director of nursing education.

★ ★ ★

So far, the only problem of the two males in a class with 86 women, plus an all-feminine corps of upper classmen, has been uniforms. They are wearing their own clothes until the arrival of new outfits — white pants and blue-and-white-striped overblouses. And they hope they'll get only pins and not caps at the capping exercises at the end of the year.

Dianne Evelyn Bailey and John Rodney Alton, seniors at Western Michigan University, will wed April 19. Their parents are the G. P. Baileys of Eau Claire, Wis., and the Robert J. Altons of Richmond Street.

Cotton Tote Bags Make Welcome Gifts

Every woman needs a little something to carry a lot of things in, and a roomy cotton tote bag is the answer.

Make one for yourself to find out how easy it is, and then stitch up several for gifts or bazaar items, suggests the National Cotton Council.

★ ★ ★

All it takes is a yard-length of any bright, colorful cotton fabric; some cotton cording for a drawstring; and bits of fringe, trimming.

Cut an oblong 15 inches wide and 36 inches long for the bag. Fold the fabric in half, right sides together, and seam on each side. To give the bag a squared-off base, make an inverted tuck at the bottom. With the bag inside out, fold the bottom up one inch and stitch in place for the tuck.

CASING

To make a casing for the drawstring, turn the open end of ths bag under about two inches and hem. Then make another row of stitching an inch higher to slip the drawstring cord through.

★ ★ ★

There are dozens of ways to decorate the cotton carry-all bag. For example, you can add a simple flower design to a bright yellow cotton duck bag by appliquing on red petals and green leaves cut from fabric scraps. Sew in a big white button for the flower center.

Or applique the bag with a design appropriate to its use. Mark a shoe tote, for instance, with a shoe applique cut from contrasting cloth. Appliques are easy to add with a zigzag machine stitch.

On printed cotton totes, keep trims simple. Circle the bag with a single row of thick cotton rick-rack.

Choose washable cotton trims so the bag can be popped in the washer with other household cottons to keep it looking fresh and bright.

Renovate Old Ruler

DEAR POLLY — To refinish an engraved or indented type ruler so you can again read the numbers and see the lines, just paint the entire ruler and then quickly wipe off the paint.

The excess paint will stay in the inside parts. Use a contrasting color and you will have a like-new ruler and no more guesswork. This method can be used on flower pots or any other household objects that are nonabsorbent. — MARION

DEAR POLLY — Does anyone have the directions for weaving with a spool that has six nails on top? One was given to my granddaughter and we cannot figure out how to use it. There is a hole through the spool. We would appreciate any ideas on how to use this. — MRS. M. R.

★ ★ ★

DEAR POLLY — I found it hard to get my two young children to brush their teeth and was discussing this with a friend who had the same trouble. She found the following solution: She made a chart, marking off two spaces for each day for one month.

Every time a child brushes, he puts a star in the space. Those having the most stars at the end of the month win a small prize. Tooth brushing is no longer a dreaded chore at our house but a fun game. — DARLENE

The Ultimate Convenience

The new range has its own hot water tap. The manufacturer says this provides instant hot water needed to make today's convenience foods worthy of their name. At the touch of a finger on the pushbutton dispenser, 185-degree water is released.

★ ★ ★

Pressing the lip of a cup or pan against the trigger below the tap also starts the hot water flow, allowing one-hand operation. A company spokesman said many of today's convenience foods, which represent about 70 per cent of all purchased groceries, require hot water to start or finish the cooking.

To remove gum from shoes or clothing, put the article in a plastic bag and place in the deep freeze. After the gum is frozen, it may easily be scarped off.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN C. HODGE

J. C. Hodges to Celebrate

An open house in their home on Heath Road, Independence Township, will celebrate the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hodge, who were wed Dec. 21, 1918 in Harrisburg, Ill.

Residents of this area since 1928, the Hodges have four children; Mrs. Raymond (Stella) Linson of Shoman Road; Charles of West Strathmore Street; John C. Jr. of Airport Road, and Lloyd E. of Monroe.

There are 25 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Hours for the open house are 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Sellers' Wife Gets Divorce

LONDON (AP) — Swedish actress Britt Ekland was granted an uncontested divorce from British comedian Peter Sellers Wednesday on grounds of cruelty.

Sellers, 43, was not in court for the 35-minute hearing. Miss Ekland, 25, came from Stockholm to attend.

Sellers' lawyer said the actor regretted the marriage had broken down "and as far as it is appropriate for him to do so, wishes his wife well."

* * *

The curvaceous blonde married Sellers in February, 1964, after he divorced his first wife. Miss Ekland was given custody of their 4-year-old daughter, Victoria, but the court ordered that Sellers be given liberal access to the child.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

During an interesting talk with Claire Boasi, she mentioned some helpful ideas. Miss Boasi has a B.S. in Home Economics from the University of Colorado and an M.S. in Nutrition from Hunter College. The important positions she has held are varied and impressive. She is enthusiastic about the role of fine nutrition in health and also in appearance.

* * *

Claire Boasi believes dieters are often guilty of poor nourishment and that the best way to diet is to cut down on quantity rather than variety.

I have already reported she feels vitamins C and A and calcium and iron are especially important to the beauty of the skin and hair, as well as to general well being. She urges you not to stint on fruit and the green and yellow vegetables.

* * *

Many women eat raw vegetables, some because they think they are more healthful and others because they want to avoid the calories in the seasoning that goes along with cooked vegetables. Raw vegetables are often used for in-between meal snacks, too.

* * *

It is true that cooked vegetables lose some of their nutrients in the water. Claire Boasi says, "If women get tired of crunching on raw vegetables, the best solution is to cook them in a tightly covered, heavy aluminum pan which requires no water." Today you can get a skillet which fries without sticking and without oil.

As far as the calorie count is concerned, you can remove your portion before seasoning the food for the family. Use herbs.

* * *

Miss Boasi also believes many folks are poorly nourished because they are so busy they do not take time to eat properly. It is also a well known fact that those who live alone are often deficient in good nutrition because it doesn't seem worthwhile to prepare meals just for themselves.

Abundance of Cookbooks Out to Suit All Tastes

By JANET ODELL

For anyone who likes to cook, there is no better gift than a new cookbook. If you're a real cookbook addict, you'll read them even when you aren't cooking.

New cookbooks come to my desk all the time. Obviously, some are superior; others don't rate much beyond that first perusal. But I want to give you a rundown on the volumes I've received in the past several months. All are available at area bookshops.

★ ★ ★

Better Homes and Gardens keeps putting out specialized cookbooks. The two in front of me are "Eat and Stay Slim" and "Jiffy Cooking." While they're not hot off the press, they do have appeal for many homemakers.

BH&G Cookbook

But the big news from Meredith Publishing Company is the publication of the seventh edition of the famous Better Homes and Gardens Cookbook. Thirteen million copies of this book have been sold since the first edition was offered in 1930 for 80 cents a copy, plus 20 cents handling charges. The latest edition costs $5.95.

But in it are 19 chapters of recipes, pictures and food tips. More foreign dishes; recipes using convenience foods and many old favorites, as well as hundreds of new ones—all thoroughly tested—make this new edition exciting.

Annemarie's Personal Cookbook

"Annemarie's Personal Cookbook" by Annemarie Huste was the center of controversy before it was even written. Annemarie, 24, is the chef whom Jackie Kennedy Onassis fired last spring.

The young German girl has an amazing feeling for food. She's been cooking since the age of nine and has been chef for a number of celebrities. Her recipes are practical, not too expensive, and written in an informal manner. Of special interest are her ideas on preparing food for children.

Two flour milling companies—General Mills (Betty Crocker) and Pillsbury—have cookbooks out in time for Christmas.

Pie and Pastry Cookbook

Betty Crocker's "Pie and Pastry Cookbook" is a goldmine of recipes for the pie lover. Anyone who can read and follow directions should have no trouble becoming a pie expert if she uses this book.

From cheese straws for the cocktail party to the fanciest spectacular, the recipes and illustrations are designed to tempt the appetite.

Bake-Off Desserts

Pillsbury has culled recipes from 18 years of Bake-Offs and filled the "Bake-Off Dessert Cookbook" with 202 of them.

The recipes make extensive use of convenience foods and few of them are run-of-the-mill. This is a book for someone who dotes on the unusual.

Soul Food Cookery

"Soul Food Cookery" is a slim spiral bound volume I got at the Food Editors Conference. The author, Inez Yeargan Kaiser, was there to talk about her book.

Mrs. Kaiser's definition of soul cookery does not jibe exactly with what others may think. She says that soul food is any food that is well-seasoned and savory and that is difficult to eat without delight, enjoyment and satisfaction. "When you finish a meal of soul food, it is almost impossible not to have a feeling of fullness and well being."

Because the recipes came from people who had to make do with little, the ingredients are staples. Nearly every meal included some starchy foods.

This book may be ordered from Inez Kaiser & Associates, 1108 Citv National Bank Building, Kansas Citv, Mo. 64106. Cost is $3.25, plus 35 cents handling charge.

All About Parties

Ex-Detroiter, Edith Gilbert, has written an interesting and informative book on entertaining, "All About Parties" (Hearthside Press, New York, $6.95). This might make a welcome gift for a young hostess.

Believing that lots of money, a large house or servants are not necessary for successful entertaining, the author proceeds to offer practical suggestions about menus, decorations and other details of parties. She gives numerous personal experiences.

Cooking for One

In contrast is Elinor Parker's 4th revised edition of "Cooking for One" (Thomas Y. Crowell, New York, $4.95).

★ ★ ★

The solitary eater is at a disadvantage in our society. Everything in the grocery store seems geared to the medium or large family. It is the same with most cookbooks which assume one is always serving six.

If this is your problem, Miss Parker's book will help you. You can get out of the rut of a chop and baked potato every night since her book includes menu suggestions and even appetizing things to do with leftovers.

American Cooking

For dual appeal to eye and palate, you'll want "American Cooking," one of the Time-Life books on Foods of the World. The color photography is superb. Consulting editors, Michael Field and James Beard, are well known food authorities.

This is a book you leave in the living room. With it comes a small recipe booklet for use in the kitchen. The latter contains 50 recipes in addition to the 74 in the various chapters.

Sucaryl Cookbook

The latest book to arrive is Sara Hervey Watts' "The Sucaryl Cookbook of Sugar-Free Recipes" (Random House, New York, $5.95). The title speaks for the contents.

Thais Dependent on GI Dollars

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Much like the Klondike of old, Thailand depends on gold, American GI gold, for its economic health. The prospects for peace at Paris send shivers down the backs of investors, economists and government officials here.

So far the shivers have been due mostly to uncertainty over American policy after the Vietnam war ends. If peace in Vietnam is a prelude to an American withdrawal from the Asian mainland, the Thais think they would be in deep economic trouble.

American spending for base construction and roads and GI spending, including that from men on rest and recreation leave from Vietnam, during one two-year period, amounted to $1 billion, half the government's budget.

Thailand has a worsening trade deficit and, with its agriculture-based economy, the balance of payments picture, without the support of American military spending, would be serious.

IMPORTS AHEAD

As it is, Thailand has been able to build its hard currency reserves with U.S. military spending even though its imports race ahead of exports by one third. The trade deficit last year was $400 million. A large part of the deficit represents importing of factory equipment and machinery as Thailand works to end its dependence on rice and corn.

Parts of Bangkok resemble a latter-day gold rush town.

* * *

On the strip where several score bars and hotels cater to American servicemen, a flood of American dollars pours into the economy. Unfortunately, Thai economists say, the money isn't as useful as it might seem. Although taxes, especially on liquor, are high, much of the money is turned by bar girls into luxury items. Hotel owners, who seem to feel that no vein of gold runs forever, build with the idea of recapturing their entire investment within three to six years.

* * *

American retrenchment could make the gaudy strip a wasteland, but the real blow would be felt elsewhere. Some 150,000 Thais work for the American military and firms directly related to the U.S. military presence here. The Thai division in Vietnam is supported by the United States, which means American dollars for several thousand families.

* * *

American spending has created inflationary pressures. Withdrawal would probably touch off an almost instant recession, economists say, not because the economic climate would deteriorate that fast but because speculators and businessmen could be expected to run for cover until the economy righted itself at some lower level.

Santa and the Hippies

By LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: Ding Dong goes to the Purple Witch but he cannot see her. She is dying for lack of something to read.

CHAPTER 15
Hippie Poems

All the time the Purple Witch was dying Ding Dong stood outside her door hoping that somewhere a book would be found that would make her well so that he could ask for the purple thread.

The Purple Witch Doctor came out of the bedroom looking very solemn indeed.

* * *

"She is eating her bookmark," he announced. "Soon all will be over."

"The bookmark!" cried Dong Dong aghast. "But — that's the purple thread!"

MOST VALUED POSSESSION

"Yes. It is her most valued possession because it reminds her of all she's read."

"But she can't eat it!"

"She doesn't want to leave it behind. When she has finished it, she will die."

"I won't let her," shouted Ding Dong. He brushed past the astonished doctor and burst into the Purple Witch's room.

She was sitting by the window chewing on the purple thread. She looked sadly up at Ding Dong but she couldn't really see him because she didn't have on even one of her five pairs of glasses.

'IT IS SO SAD'

She thought he was the Witch Doctor and she murmured sorrowfully, "Oh, doctor. It is so sad. If I had just one new thing to read I would recover for I'd be refreshed enough to go through my whole library again."

"I have something you've never read!" cried Ding Dong, digging frantically into his paper bag. "Listen!" He read one of the poems given him by the hippies of Hippieville.

* * *

"Up goes the elevator
"Down goes the alligator."

The Purple Witch stopped nibbling on the purple thread.

"Fingers Freeze
"Parakeets sneeze," read Ding Dong.

GETS OUT OF CHAIR

The Purple Witch got out of her chair and cocked her head, listening.

"Fishes swim
"To keep in trim," went on Ding Dong.

The Purple Witch put on all her five pairs of glasses. "What is this? What are you reading?"

"Poems by hippies. There are lots of them."

SNATCHES POEMS

The Purple Witch snatched the bundle of poems from his hands and began to read. Her eyes grew bright and her cheeks rosy. "Something new at last!" she breathed. "What originality! What depth of feeling! How they go to the heart of the matter! How do they do it?"

"I bet you could do it, too," said Ding Dong hopefully.

* * *

"If only I could! How refreshed I would be!" She thought and thought and finally she said slowly.

"When the north wind blows
"I like—I like—I like
"To wiggle my toes!"
"There! exclaimed Ding Dong. "You are a hippie poet."

'WELL AGAIN'

"My dear boy," said the Purple Witch joyfully, "I am well again. How can I ever repay you?"

Ding Dong pointed to the purple thread still dangling from her fingers. Only an inch or so had been eaten. "Will you give me that?"

* * *

"My bookmark! I cannot read without it!" she protested. Then she said, "But I won't need it anymore. From now on I shall write hippie poems and leave it to others to read."

Smiling shyly, she gave the thread to Ding Dong.

Tomorrow: Popcorn Popper

"These are poems by hippies," said Ding Dong.

Christmas, Becoming Worldly, Knows No Boundary, Doctrine

By The Associated Press

Stilt walkers will parade in Nigeria. Chinese businessmen will play mah jongg and feast on snakes and dog meat in Hong Kong. And while American children receive flashy space age playthings, boys in the Congo jungles will make their own toys from wire.

Christmas knows no national boundaries, no government doctrines. It will be celebrated as a national and religious holiday in most lands, as a commerical holiday in others, and at private family gatherings in the Soviet Union where atheism is law.

* * *

Observance of Christmas in the Soviet Union is not forbidden outright. Russians who do observe it will celebrate on Jan. 7, the Russian Orthodox date rather than Dec. 25.

Although tradition is still strong in many countries, once-alien Christmas customs have jet-setted around the world. Santa Claus, while still considered a "gringo" in Mexico is now tough competition for the Three Kings, the dominant Christmas symbol south of the border.

St. Nick, the Christmas tree and roast stuffed turkey are steadily replacing the traditional Precipios—manger scenes—in Italy. Other countries which once had annula gift-giving rites on New Year's Day, like Japan and the Congo, are adopting Dec. 25.

In the cold northern lands, Christmas is usually a family affair. In Austria and Germany, families gather on Christmas Eve to sing carols, feast on roast goose and home-baked delicacies and wait for the Christkind — Christ Child — to deposit presents in a locked room. The tinkle of a little bell signals anxious children that the goodies have arrived.

* * *

Scandinavia has a long, elaborate Christmas with all the traditional trimmings, trees, lights, decorations and groaning tables. Sweden's celebration does not end until the day after Twelfth Night, well into January.

A new wrinkle in Norway this year is a campaign of the Association of Christian Students denouncing the "near gluttony" of their countrymen at Christmas. Norwegians are noted trenchermen and the outcome of the students' campaign is doubtful.

MASS IN BELGIUM

While France celebrates an Anglo-Saxonized Christmas, Catholic Belgium contents itself with the traditional midnight Mass. In rural areas the celebrating stops there, except for some onion soup and blood sausage after devotions. But plastic Christmas trees and heavy German-style meals have invaded Belgian cities.

Thousands will make religious pilgrimages to the Holy Land, to Italy to see the Pope, to shrines and religious symbols around the world.

* * *

Israel does not celebrate Christmas, but the government has decreed that all holy places—Bethlehem, Nazareth, Jerusalem—will be open to Christian Arabs and foreign pilgrims.

Pope Paul VI will leave the Vatican to preside at midnight Mass in the steel mills of Taranto, southern Italy.

SWISS ON SLOPES

After spending Christmas Eve with their families, many Swiss take to the ski slopes on Christmas Day. In the sunnier climes of the Southern Hemisphere, where Christmas means midsummer vacations, athletic Australians and South Africans form long caravans to their idyllic beaches.

The South African Broadcasting Corp., fed up with Christmas carols about snow, sleigh bells and reindeer, ran a contest this year to select a carol more suitable for temperatures of 80-100.

In Australis and New Zealand, thousands will imbibe enormous frosty drinks and speculate about the outcome of the Davis Cup tennis match with the United States Dec. 26-28.

Christmas in India is a national holiday, celebrated religiously by Christians and commercially by Hindus. Popular legend associates Christ with Lord Krishna, a favorite Hindu god, and confusion surrounding the two religious personalities results in a nationwide Christmas spirit.

HONG KONG HOLIDAY

In Hong Kong, Christmas for most is just another public holiday. But even department stores operated there by Communist China are filled with gift-wrapped packages. Chinese businessmen take advantage of the day off to throw gambling parties.

Christmas in Japan coincides with the traditional custom of O-Seibo, the giving of presents at the end of the year to persons to whom one is indebted. Girl Santa elevator attendants in miniskirts are not much in evidence this year, unlike last year. The new fad is Christmas cards printed in Japanese, with comical rather than religious themes.

* * *

In Latin America, Christmas brings music, exotic food and dancing to Venezuela; nine nights of drinking parties to Mexico, illegal firecrackers to Puerto Rico; dancing and drinking in Colombia, and a potent drink called Monkey's Tail—brandy and a coffee-flavored liquid—to Chile.

Santa Claus is the victim of Christmas in Brazil. It's not much fun wearing a false beard, padded red suit and pillow on the tummy in 90-degree weather. And while the Santas perspire, many Brazilians head for beach resorts.

KOREA AUSTERE

In Korea, the government of austerity-minded President Chung Hee Park has urged citizens to curtail elaborate celebrations and limit the Yule festival to religious affairs. It is the third-successive year of a government slogan: "Christmas with and for families."

Nigeria, torn by civil war and suffering import restrictions, also will have a subdued Christmas. Popular all-night drumming sessions and excessive merry-making have been banned, but traditional parades of stiltwalkers and masked dancers will be allowed.

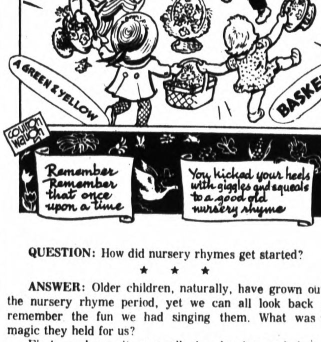
Junior Editors Quiz on NURSERY RHYMES



QUESTION: How did nursery rhymes get started?

* * *

ANSWER: Older children, naturally, have grown out of the nursery rhyme period, yet we can all look back and remember the fun we had singing them. What was the magic they held for us?

First, perhaps, it was all the dancing and jumping around. Small children need to stretch their muscles; it makes them feel great. Then there was the rhythm as we danced back and forth.

We put this catchy rhythm into words that danced back and forth too, like "I wish I may, I wish I might, have the wish I wish tonight." The rhythm and catchiness of the words were almost more important than their meaning.

Children have danced and sung jingles since the earliest times, but the jingles were rarely written down and could not have been widely passed around until the days of the printed book.

In 1744, Englishman John Newberry published the first collections of nursery rhymes, such as Tommy Thumb's Pretty Song Book and Mother Goose's Melody. Mother Goose stories had appeared before, in France, but without rhymes. Newberry's books helped to spread nursery rhymes far and wide.

(You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

Frosty Fruit Is Fine Starter

It's the boutique ideas — the little things — that count in turning a holiday menu into a royal feast. Candlelight, a banquet cloth and clusters of holly set off the holiday bird in grand style. Then comes planning the little specialty foods, such as a frosty pineapple appetizer, which will make the menu the hostess' very own.

★ ★ ★

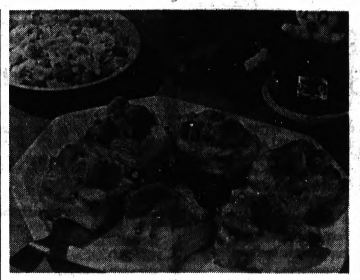
Its flavor is uniquely refreshing among the rich tastes of other holiday foods.

Noel Frozen Pineapple Appetizer

1 (8½-ounce) can crushed pineapple
½ cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Dash salt

★ ★ ★

Turn pineapple into blender and blend until very finely chopped. Whip cream. Fold in mayonnaise, lemon juice, salt and pineapple. Turn into freezing tray. Freeze until firm. Serve in sherbet glasses. Makes 4 servings. Garnish with slices of pineapple.



CHRISTMAS EVE SUPPER — Traditional food in the Tidewater section of the country for Christmas eve supper is the oyster. Here it is nested in crunchy, buttery patty shells fashioned from enriched bread and topped with a Sherry-mushroom sauce.

Biscuit Mix Is Start of Little Fruitcakes

Impressive and practical to serve during the holidays are these easy to make, individual fruitcakes.

★ ★ ★

Combine 1½ cups biscuit mix, one teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves and ¼ teaspoon each nutmeg and allspice. Cream ¼ cup butter with one cup brown sugar. Beat in one egg. Add ¼ cup grape jelly, ¼ cup brandy and the dry ingredients. Blend thoroughly.

★ ★ ★

Stir in one cup each raisins, mixed candied fruit, candied cherry halves and coarsely chopped California walnuts.

★ ★ ★

Fill paper lined muffin cups ¾ cup full. Top with walnut halves. Bake at 350 degrees, 20 to 25 minutes. Cool.

Serve Fried Oysters in Star-Shaped Shells

From the earliest days of the Virginia and the Carolina colonies, the oyser has been a treasured food from the sea. Cooks of the romantic Tidewater country knew how to select, prepare and serve oysters. They were always served — within season — on occasions which called for unstinting hospitality.

General and Mrs. George Washington featured oysters often on their Christmas menus.

★ ★ ★

One oyster supper version for Christmas has all the Tidewater elegance of flavor. It has the contrast of texture needed for enjoying to the fullest this bounty of the deep.

CHRISTMAS SUPPER OYSTERS

18 slices enriched bread
¼ cup milk
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 (10½ ounce) can condensed cream of mushroom soup
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons Sherry
18 breaded oysters, fried

Use 3 slices of bread for each patty shell. Cut each slice into the shape of a star, using a 4-inch star shaped gelatine mold as a guide. Cut centers from 12 of the stars using a 1½-inch round cookie cutter.

Brush the milk over top side of the solid stars and both sides of the stars with centers cut out. Stack 2 cut-out stars on each solid star to form a patty shell. Brush top, side and center of each patty shell with melted butter.

BAKE SHELLS

Place shells on a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) for ten minutes, or until shells are crisp and tightly browned.

Place 3 fried oysters in each patty shell. Heat undiluted mushroom soup, stirring to keep smooth; add pimineto, salt and Sherry. Spoon about 3 tablespoons mushroom sauce over each filled patty shell.

Yield: 6 servings.

Frozen French fried oysters, heated according to package directions, or fresh oysters, breaded and either deep fat fried or oven fried, may be used.

CRANBERRY RELISHED PEARS — Drain a 1 lb. 13 oz. can Bartlett pear halves and stick with whole cloves. Combine pear syrup with ½ cup brown sugar, ¼ cup vinegar, 1 stick cinnamon and dash of ginger. Simmer 5 minutes. Add 2 cups cranberries; simmer 5 minutes longer. Add pears and heat gently 3-4 minutes or until pear halves are hot. Serve warm or chilled with meat. Makes 6-8 servings.

Cover cone-shaped Styrofoam with cranberries pierced with straight pins for a novel Christmas tree centerpiece.

You will not have any trouble with meat loaf sticking to the pan if you put a few strips of bacon in the bottom of the pan before filling it with the meat loaf mixture. No matter what mixture you use, the flavor will be improved by the bacon.

Snow Castle Is So Sweet

Dreaming of a white Christmas snow castle centerpiece? Don't dream. Make one instead. White sugar cubes and tablets are glistening bricks, ready made to build a snow queen's palace.

Complete it with square towers and crenelated walls backed with cardboard frame if steadiness is needed. Even slender window look-outs can be managed with the help of cardboard strips.

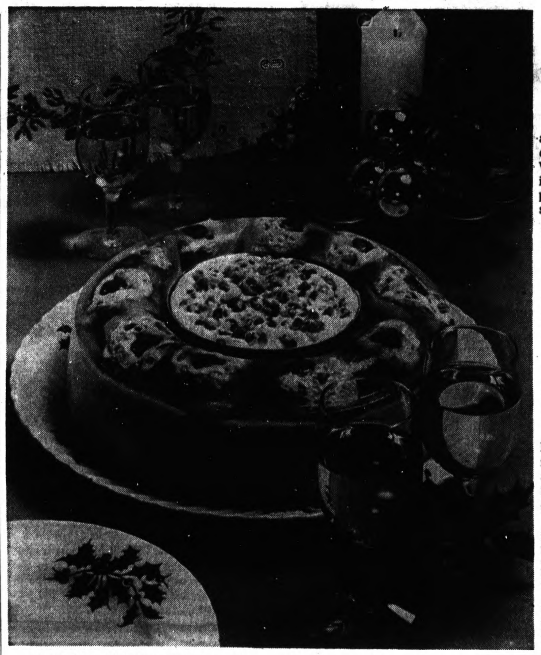
Mortar the sugar blocks together with a confectioners sugar and water paste. Stack it all on a mirror, part of which can be the surrounding moat. Edge it with an array of paper, cone-shaped trees and paper lace (dolly) bushes which have been brushed with egg white (stiffly beaten) and rolled in spangling, white sugar granules.

SUGAR SNOW

And for the snow, especially on the reflecting moat, shake on a bit of powdered sugar. Then decorate, but sparingly, with home made sugar plums, perhaps, or with a galaxy of hard candy shapes.

If too colorful, ice them with a white boiled sugar frosting. For this is a snow fairy castle, all a glistening and powdery white.

Children usually like this cool drink: fruit sherbet softened and beaten with milk plus a little vanilla.



CHRISTMAS WREATH MOLD — When you have a dish that doubles as salad or dessert, you have a find. This molded wreath, red, green and white, just shouts, "Christmas." The sour cream cherry dressing is one you may want to repeat on summer fruit salads.

Delicate Touch of Wine Enhances Holiday Salad

"Pretty as a picture" dishes are especially welcome at holiday time. Make this Christmas Wreath Mold a day ahead, store in refrigerator, and serve proudly for dessert or main dish salad.

CHRISTMAS WREATH MOLD

2 pkgs. (3 oz. each) cream cheese milk or cream
¼ cup minced, drained Maraschino cherries
¼ cup finely chopped walnuts
5 Maraschino cherries, halved.
2 cans (1 lb. each) small pear halves
4 pkgs. (3 oz. each) lime flavor gelatin
5 cups hot water
Cold water
1 cup white dinner wine.

Soften cream cheese with a little milk or cream; beat until fluffy. Blend in minced cherries and chopped walnuts. Shape into 10 balls. Press ½ cherry into each.

Drain pear halves well, saving syrup. Place cream cheese ball in hollow of each of 10 pear halves. Invert in bottom of 10-inch ring mold.

Dissolve lime flavor gelatin in the 5 cups hot water. Measure pear juice; add enough cold water to make 2 cups; add to gelatin with wine. Pour enough gelatin mixture into mold to come about half-way up pears. Chill until almost firm.

Meanwhile, chill remaining gelatin until syrupy. Beat at high speed until thick and fluffy. Spoon into mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on serving dish. Fill center with this Cherry-Nut Dressing. Makes 10 servings.

Cherry-Nut Dressing

¾ cup mayonnaise
1 cup dairy sour cream
½ cup chopped walnuts
¼ cup chopped, drained Maraschino cherries

Combine all ingredients. Keep cool until serving time. Pass with Christmas Wreath salad or center mold with glass of dressing. Makes about 2 cups.

SANDWICH TREE

Make Christmas Tree With Four Sandwiches

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Perfect for a holiday party table: stacks of ribbon sandwiches shaped into a tree.

The filling for these sandwiches is an excellent combination of hard-cooked eggs, cream cheese, deviled ham and mustard—just savory to relish.

★ ★ ★

Once you get the hang of shaping the "tree," there's nothing to it. So if this idea appeals to you, take time to read over the recipe a couple of times; then you'll know what it's all about. Make sure, too, that you have a roomy tray on which to form the tree.

You'll find these sandwiches taste good with tea, coffee or holiday punch. If there are any sandwiches left over, cover tightly with transparent plastic wrap and store in the refrigerator.

RIBBON SANDWICH TREE

Butter, room-temperature soft
1½ teaspoons prepared mustard
2 hard-cooked eggs, mashed
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, room-temperature soft
8 thin slices wholewheat bread, crusts removed
1 can (4½-ounces) deviled ham
4 thin slices white bread, crusts removed Radishes
Small pimiento-stuffed green olives
Tiny pickled cocktail onions

Cream 1 tablespoon butter and ½ teaspoon of the mustard.

Mix together eggs, cream cheese and remaining 1 teaspoon mustard.

SPREADING

Spread 4 slices wheat bread with mustard-butter mixture, then with deviled ham; spread 1 side of each white slice with plain butter and place, buttered side down, on tops of deviled slices with butter, then with egg mixture; cover with remaining wheat slices.

Wrap these 4 stacked sandwiches in transparent plastic wrap and chill.

Cut each sandwich into 6 slices. Cut 8 slices in half to make 16 squares; cut remaining 16 slices diagonally in half to make 32 wedges. Makes 48 small sandwiches.

Arrange sandwiches on large tray — at least 15 by 10 inches — to form a "tree": Use 2 layers of 2 squares side by side (4 squares) to form base; 2 layers of 6 squares in a vertical column (12 squares) to form trunk; 2 layers of 2 wedges side by side at top of trunk (4 wedges) to form point; and 2 layers of 7 wedges pointing outward, on each side of trunk (14 wedges on each side) to form boughs.

For tree ornaments, garnish tips of boughs with radish slices (cut in star shapes), small stuffed olives, and cocktail onions. (If you like you can insert a clove in one end of each cocktail onion.)

BLACK WALNUT DELIGHT

Creamy Pastel Candies Given Chocolate Base

"On the eleventh day of Christmas, my true love gave to me . . . "eleven ladies dancing . . ." so the old English carol recalls. While eleven ladies dancing might not be practical today, you may prove your affection at holiday time with a gift of confections.

Pastel Snow Caps become "visions of sugar plums" sparkling in holiday colors and laced with coconut.

PASTEL SNOW CAPS

2 tablespoons butter
2 or 3 drops oil of peppermint or cinnamon
3 or 4 drops green or red coloring
1 cup sifted confectioners sugar
1 3½ ounce can flaked coconut
2 tablespoons cream or evaporated milk
½ cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1 teaspoon shortening

Melt butter; add flavoring and food coloring, using green coloring for peppermint flavor; red for cinnamon. Stir in sugar, coconut and cream.

Drop by teaspoonfuls onto waxed paper; shape into peaks. Cool slightly, if they are too soft to shape. Chill.

Melt chocolate and shortening together over hot water; stir. Dip bottoms of coconut peaks into chocolate; place on a smooth clean tray to harden. Makes 1½ dozen.

PASTEL SNOW CAPS

Brighten your holiday sideboard with this rich butter cake lightened with egg whites and brimming with chopped black walnuts. It's an all-purpose dessert that will be a tasty "Top-off" to a meal or as a treat for "drop-ins."

★ ★ ★

Black Walnut Delight can be made in an ordinary loaf pan or in a shaped mold for variety and greater attractiveness. To add a festive flair, top cake with simple confectioners' sugar icing and glace' cherry halves and trim with holly leaves around the base.

BLACK WALNUT DELIGHT

½ cup (1 stick) butter
1 cup sugar
4 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
1 cup finely chopped black walnuts

★ ★ ★

Cream butter and sugar until light. Beat in egg yolks, one at a time. Add vanilla. Sift dry ingredients together, reserving ¼ cup. Add to creamed mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Mix together remaining flour and walnuts; add to batter, mixing just until blended.

★ ★ ★

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; fold into batter. Pour into greased and floured 9x5x3-inch (2 qt.) loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 to 60 minutes. Cool in pan or wire rack 5 minutes. Turn onto rack and cool completely.

Thick Mixture Tops Your Pie

Glorify your next cream or chiffon pie with this delicious topping.

Soften a 3-ounce package cream cheese. Slowly add one cup heavy cream, stirring until blended. Stir in about 6 marshmallows, which have been cut into quarters, and ¼ cup granulated sugar. Chill at least four hours.

Add one teaspoon vanilla. Whip until stiff. Fold in ½ cup chopped, toasted California walnuts. Chill until ready-to-serve.

Oranges and lemons will yield their juice more easily if you soften them by rolling before you cut and squeeze them.

Opening lead—♥J

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

No matter how well you bid and play, you can't expect to make every contract and good defensive play will sometimes set you several tricks.

When Bob Hamman went down three tricks at his two-heart contract, he congratulated George Rapee and Sidney Lazard on their fine defense.

* * *

It was good defense indeed. George opened the jack of trumps♧Bob won in dummy, led a spade and put in his seven spot. George won and led another trump. Bob won that one also and led his queen of spades. George won and led a third trump.

Back came a spade. George was on lead again. By this time he had set up his eight of trumps so he cashed it, then played his nine of diamonds. Sidney was in for the first time.

Most players would have simply played another top diamond. This would have allowed Bob to ruff in and end play George to go down only two, but Sidney led his jack of clubs.

It didn't matter what Bob did at this point. He had already lost three spades, a trump and a diamond. He was still going to lose his last two spades and the queen of clubs.

Bob could have saved one trick from the wreck had he known where all the cards were before he started playing spades, but even the best players don't start with a photograph of the opponents' hands.

Strangely enough, Bob's score of minus 300 cost him nothing in the trials. It seems that a couple of North players passed to one spade and ran to two diamonds after East reopened with a double and West passed. Two diamonds was also doubled, whereupon South ran to two hearts and was doubled there.

♥♦CARD Sense♠♣

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
			1♥
Pass	1♠	Pass	1 N.T.
Pass	2 N.T.	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠J4 ♥AK987 ♦K53 ♣Q62

What do you do now?

A—Bid three no-trump. Your opening was minimum but a sound one. You should try for game.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two no-trump partner bids three clubs over your one no-trump. What do you do now?

'Darned Hour Show' Puts Lucy to Test

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD — "It's those darned hour shows; they've been giving trouble to a lot of us half-hours," said Lucille Ball in analyzing the fortunes of the first season of her third television series.

THOMAS

To the outsider, "Here's Lucy" would seem to be far from being in trouble. The latest rating showed the half-hour comedy show in 15th place, a highly respectable position.

But to Lucille Ball the perfectionist that isn't good enough. For most of the past 18 years, Monday night has been Lucy's special property. Then along came a show called "Laugh-in." The Rowan and Martin madhouse precedes "Here's Lucy" by a half-hour, and therein lies the trouble, opines Miss Ball.

* * *

"People get hooked on hour shows and they just won't switch," she remarked in her executvie suite during a break in rehearsals.

Concerning the "Laugh-in" competition, she remarked: "I never think about the opposition. I simply try to do the best job I can, and I think we've done quite well. We've had some bad shows, but we've managed some darned good ones, too. And I'm proud of the way the children have come through."

* * *

The children are her own: Lucie Arnaz, 17, and Desi Arnaz Jr., nearly 16. They are the costars of "Here's Lucy," and their mother explained how it happened:

"When Paramount bought out Desilu, they also bought the format of 'The Lucy Show.' It became theirs, completely. So I either had to negotiate with them to use the format, or I had to find a new one.

FITTED INTO SCHEME

"Lucie and Desi had been wanting to work with me. The idea fitted into the scheme that I have long had for them. I feel that too many kids nowadays go right into college without knowing what they want to do. For many of them the experience is wasted. I've suggested to my children that after graduating from high school they should take a year to work or travel and decide what they wanted from their college education.

"Now they are able to work and carry on their high school education at the same time. Their grades have improved tremendously with a private tutor. I feel that when they do go to college — and I think it's very important to do so in today's world — they will have a much better idea of what they want to do."

* * *

What Lucille wants to do is CBS's annual question mark. She is nearing the last of the scheduled shows for this season, and soon she will make up her mind whether to try for another. The children are eager to do so, and it appears likely that "Here's Lucy" will be back next fall.

"If I do go back, I'll do some things differently," she commented. "I might film six of the 24 outside the studio on location. I don't really like to, nor do the children; we all like that instant response from the studio audience — it's like opening night every week.

* * *

"I would also give the children more to do, particularly in the musical vein. This season the writers didn't know how much Lucie and Desi could manage, and they didn't push them too hard. But the kids met every challenge and were eager for more."

Dr. Oaks Says:

Emphysema Easily Explained, but Incurable

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is another in a series of articles issued by the Oakland County Medical Society. Dr. Oaks is the collective voice of the society.)

What is emphysema?

Have you ever blown up a balloon — almost completed the project — and then there was just nothing left? No more air? You would try a bit harder, but no matter how hard you tried the balloon could not be fully inflated by your effort.

It seemed that the returned air within the balloon was greater than the counterpressure you produced — even with added effort. Take away the balloon. That's the ailment known as emphysema.

At its fullest extent, this condition has done so much damage that it takes ever-increasing effort just to breathe — even at rest.

Medically, of course, there is also a technical way to explain it. Emphysema is a condition in which the alveoli — air sacs — of the lungs become distended or ruptured. These air sacs are the end structures of the breathing apparatus that begins with the nose. The air sacs connect to the bronchioles, which in turn connect with the bronchi and thereby connect to the trachea. The latter connects to the pharynx, which connects to the nose.

* * *

(Or: The air sacs connect to the larger air tubes called bronchi which are continuous with the trachea (windpipe). The trachea extends upwards to the nasal passages.)

To understand emphysema, it is best to understand normal respiration, which involves two processes — getting air into the lung (inspiration) and getting air out of the lung (expiration).

MUSCLES USED

Inspiration requires a contraction of the diaphragm and the muscles between the ribs. This allows an expansion of the chest wall and the air rushes into the lung.

Expiration, getting the air out, is less strenuous; the muscles of inspiration merely relax. The chest resumes its former position and the air is squeezed out.

Another equally important event is effected when air is drawn in. Air reaches the terminal portion of the respiratory tract — the alveoli or air sacs — and these structures are stretched to accommodate this new volume. As the pressure of the chest returns to its previous level, the air is pushed out of the alveoli and reverses its field out the nose.

* * *

It is evident that the ability to stretch stems from the elastic structure of the lung, which permits it to respond to variable air pressure applied to it.

Now enters emphysema — overdistention of the lungs — which can be the result of damage to the air sacs whether by direct or by continued exposure to high pressure. Either allows the destruction of the elastic tissue and the inability of the alveoli to push out the air.

The person afflicted with emphysema, in order to push the air out, must use additional muscles. Expiration to him becomes an effort. Even minor exertion produces shortness of breath.

Damage to the air sacs by inspired noxious agents seems to be the most probable cause. Air pollutents must be suspected. It is not now generally conceded that the smoking of tobacco is the most common agent in the development of this disease.

Recent theoretical considerations suggest nicotine as the causative factor rather than the hydrocarbons.

NICOTINE'S EFFECT

According to this theory, nicotine causes a narrowing of the blood vessels that feed the alveoli. The result of this narrowing causes significant damage to the elastic tissue with unfortunate results.

* * *

Whether the action is directly to the air sac by the hydrocarbons inspired or by the action of nicotine on the blood vessels, the result is the same — damage to the air sacs. And, unfortunately, the body can not grow new ones.

* * *

The disease tends to be slow in onset, but once initiated it is a continuous process unless the offending factor is removed. Susceptible to infection because of the weakened nature of the lungs, the patient often suffers bronchitis and penumonia.

*

A cough is ever present. Since it may be the result of infection, precautions must be taken. Despite treatment to improve the air and the air interchange by the lungs, there is no cure at present.

(Do you have a question for Dr. Oaks? Send a card or letter to Oakland County Medical Society, 346 Park, Birmingham, Mich. 48009.)

Computer Helps Sharpen Photographs

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — A dialogue between a computer and a scientist here is helping space researchers get clearer pictures from photographs blighted by distortion, blur and exposure error.

This improvement in picture quality could lead to important advances in medicine, X-ray technology and space science, according to researchers at Scripps Institution of Oceanography's visibility laboratory.

The research, at the institution, part of the local campus of the University of California, involves such difficult areas as celestial photography, where distortion by the earth's atmosphere must be overcome, and microscope and X-ray photography, where subtleties recorded on film often are not visible to the human eye.

"Instead of turning a problem over to the computer and telling the machine which procedure to take, we keep a scientist involved in the photo-correction process," explained James L. Harris, who directs the research group.

CHANGE POSSIBLE

"Although the computer can complete an entire operation on its own, in our system, the experimenter can modify a procedure while it's in progress. He can actually converse with the computer through a typewriter keyboard in non-computer language," Harris said.

A current project, in cooperation with the California Institute of Technology, is the removal of distortion from photos of the planet Mercury, a problem that has frustrated celestial photographers for years.

Because of its nearness to the sun's light path, Mercury must be photographed just before sunrise or just after sunset, when the perimeter of the earth blocks the sun's direct rays. But the routes of such photos slant across the earth's atmosphere from the horizon, and the atmosphere causes severe distortion.

MICROSCOPES, TOO

Similarly, efforts are being made to clear up microscope pictures.

"Medical men say great strides could be made in conquering diseases if they could see 'just a little bit more' through the microscope," Harris said.

* *

"For instance, even under a perfect microscope, a point is diffracted and creates a circular pattern. We can program the computer to eliminate much of the diffraction and reduce the pattern of light to a pinpoint."

Another set of instructions directs the computer to eliminate blur caused by camera or subject motion. Still another produces detail in areas that appear solid black in normal photographs. This process can also heighten the readability of X-rays, he said.

Filipino Killings Recall Huks

MANILA (AP) — A wave of terror killings against public officials has raised a specter of the Huks, legendary Communist-led rebels who nearly topped the Philippine government 20 years ago.

Today's so-called Huks are similary bold and tough, but many project an image sharply different from their Marxist-chanting namesakes.

★ ★ ★

They still roam central Luzon — rice bowl of the Philippines' main island — but commonly appear now as Mafia-style gangsters associated with honky-tonk bars and racketeering.

Yet several veteran observers insist today Huk Communists are simply trickier and more subtle — more lethal than ever in the long run.

CONFUSION ADMITTED

Filipinos confess confusion about who are today's Huks and what they represent. A favorite question is: "How do you tell a Huk from a crook?"

The situation in central Luzon, President Ferdinand E. Marcos says, is "a social volcano."

★ ★ ★

Marcos contends "very few" Communist ideologues are involved — that most of the troublemakers are hoodlums who trade on the Robin Hood legacy of the original Huks.

A contrary view expressed by some military and political figures is that Huks are the heart of a strong Communist appartus. The Senate minority leader, Ambrosio Padilla, says the Communists are the most dangerous threat to this country.

CONGLOMERATE

Other analysts argue that what is popularly known as Huk movement is a conglomerate of many dissident elements — social reformers, confidence men, highway bandits, hired gunmen and feuding politicans — which shadowy Red organizers try to guide toward international communism.

Whatever the assessment, the setting is the same — four provinces known as Huklandia in the fertile heartland of Luzon starting about 20 miles north of Manila. The area has a tradition of dissidence, mainly because centuries-old feudalism has made landlords wealthy and kept sharecropping farmers poor.

★ ★ ★

There during World War II the Philippine Communist party switched its People's Liberation Army to an anti-Japanese guerrilla army-Hukbong Mapagpalaya ng Bayon, or Huks.

At war's end the movement resumed its original aim of overthrowing the government. At the peak it boasted more than 25,000 men under arms with thousands of supporters.

AT MANILA'S GATES

The Huks knocked at Manila's gates in 1950, but the late President Ramon Magsaysay drove them back and broke up the movement with military force and programs of social reform.

Despite occasional serious reform efforts, the conditions that spawned the revolt have not been eliminated, and in the last four months more than 20 public officials, government agents and policemen have been slain.

★ ★ ★

Newspapers have speculated about a Huk resurgence.

But today's Huks number only about 150 to 200 armed men by the maximum estimates of both government and private authorities. From 2,000 to 3,000 more are counted as active sympathizers with perhaps 20,000 under some possible Huk influence.

RALLY POINT

The original Huks rallied around Mt. Arayat, a timbered peak commanding a view for miles around the flat farmlands. A visit there reaffirmed Arayat's tradition of peasant unrest. In a foothill village, leatheryfaced farm folk showed cynicism as government land-reform officials started a new irrigation project.

"This is fine," said one farmer, "but it's long overdue. What happens next? Maybe they think they can forget all about us now — we'll see."

★ ★ ★

Mayors of two towns near Arayat, successors to assassinated mayors admitted to respect for the Huks. They spoke guardedly, but one said, "You want justice around here? The Huks are the ones to get it for you."

Rice-paddy justice first made the Huks famous. They dispensed instant punishment — often death — to cattle rustlers thieves and rapists in return for peasant contributions of food and cash. They also rode herd on corrupt policemen or politicians and oppressive landlords.

MYSTIQUE FADES

The mystique of the Mt Arayat vigilantes fades quickly only 10 miles away in Angels City, which for many Filipinos has come to symbolize the new Huks.

This is a boom town of 100,000 at the edge of Clark Air Force Base, one of the largest U.S. bases outside America. It is about 60 miles north of Manila.

Angeles bulges with bars, nightclubs and brothels geared for servicemen. Sen. Padilla claims it is a Communist treasury where businessmen pay protection money to Huks. Other politicans and military men say Huks own businesses and have a hand in city government.

Angeles Mayor Eugenio Suarez denies this. Huks supported him in the last election, but he says: "So did a lot of other groups. I owe no political debts to the Huks."

SENATE REPORT

Angeles and Pampanga Province invariably are mentioned in connection with a 1967 Senate report that a Huk shadow government existed in central Luzon. Stories about it continue, but Marcos ridicules the idea.

If past elections are any indications, the 1969 campaign is certain to be violent. In fact, officials say the killings were not by Huks but by warring political and business factions.

Two Angeles city councilors were among those assassinated. Suarez lives behind high concrete walls topped with barbed wire.

Other sources insist some of the killings were the work of the "Monkees," an assassination squad reputedly organized by the national government to counter the "Beatles," a band of Huk terrorists.

All this turmoil has failed to produce hard evidence of communism. There are periodic reports of a political indoctrination school hidden in the hills, but no proof.

Rumors persist also that Communists have slipped into cetnral Luzon from the Chinese mainland with offers of assistance. One public official who refuses to be quoted says a Red Chinese general was among them.

Parker: a Household Word—for Game Players

SALEM, Mass. (UPI) — A little bit of Edward P. Parker will be in millions of American homes come Christmas morning. And he'll probably be the object of some good-natured epithets, too.

Some moms and dads — kids, too — will find their lives a bit more frantic, thanks to Parker. Others will be learning something about capitalism.

★ ★ ★

He is president of Parker Brothers Inc., makers of games since 1883. The firm's most famous game is Monopoly on the market and in most homes since 1935.

Its hottest item, though, is a mind-buster called Instant Insanity, a simple looking puzzle that lives up to its label.

WILL PROVIDE SECRET

Instant Insanity consists of four multicolored blocks. The object is to align them in the right order by colors. Chances of doing it are one in 40,000. Should a person give up — before he or she goes insane — Parker Brothers will provide the secret for 25 cents.

The booming sales of Instant Insanity and Monopoly — Parker expects about two million of this standard to be sold this year — are only indicative of the whole game market.

★ ★ ★

Parker said record sales are up about 30 per cent this year. His firm markets some 125 different games.

Parker is the third generation of his family to run the firm.

BECOMES SUBSIDIARY

Business has been so good, in fact, he had to sell out. This year the game-making firm became a wholly owned subsidiary of General Mills.

"We've been growing at almost a 25 per cent rate," Parker said. In order to meet the demand for more games, facilities have had to be expanded. It takes capital to do this and General Mills had the capital. Consequently the plant here is being enlarged. Parker Brothers also has plants in Des Moines Iowa, Toronto, Canada, and a small one in France.

★ ★ ★

What has caused the boom in the game business? Parker believes wealth and leisure time in these affluent times are major factors.

"People are able to buy more now than ever before. Games give you a chance to relax, forget the serious problems facing the world," Parker said. "Everybody has some sort of competitive spirit, and games help families and people get together. When they do, they just can't sit around and do nothing. So they play games."

★ ★ ★

Parker noted there are no Monopoly games behind the Iron Curtain. "Monopoly is officially banned in Russia," he said. "It's too capitalistic."

Wind Really Is a Useful, Loyal Friend

By National Geographic Society

WASHINGTON — Fierce winter gales may seem bent on destruction, but most of the year wind is a useful and loyal friend.

Life would be unbearable without wind. Fresh breezes distribute the heat of the tropics to other regions and sweep polluted air from cities.

★ ★ ★

Flowing air carries moisture from the oceans and spills rain on the continents.

Despite this all-pervading influence, science has only begun to unravel the secrets of wind and weather.

HE KNEW LITTLE

When storms drove Homer's hero, Odysseus, into the western Mediterranean, he knew less of that world than the captain of a spacecraft today knows of the moon.

According to Homer, the wind god Aeolus lived "on a floating island, the whole enclosed by a rampart of bronze . . ."

★ ★ ★

Slav mythology honored the wind god Stribog. The Hindus revered three — Rudra, Vogu and Vada.

Eskimos of eastern Greenland recognize a family of winds. Nekrayak, the father, blows from the northeast; wife Pittarak fancies the northwest; son Kadannek prefers the southeast; and daughter Pouwanguartek springs from the southwest.

TAKE SHELTER

When Pittarak rampages across the ice caps, Eskimos take shelter and sled dogs huddle for warmth.

The wind, recalls a Danish settler, had a definite whistling note under the eaves: a long drawn-out, wild song, which occasionally would rise to an angry, deafening rumble, shaking the whole house."

★ ★ ★

The strength of wind staggers the imagination. If the world's winds died down inexplicably, starting them again would require the power equivalent of nearly seven million atomic bombs.

Energy from the sun creates the vast air currents which swirl through the atmosphere.

SEA BREEZES

At the seashore, the sun's rays warm land faster than water. The land air rapidly moves upward, drawing in air from the ocean, and creates the familiar daytime sea breezes.

At night, the ground cools faster than the water. The breeze then usually reverses direction and blows toward the sea.

★ ★ ★

Sea winds differ strikingly from land breezes. Free of obstacles, they race steadily and unimpeded over the ocean's surface. Generally, the flow of air is free of foreign matter except a few salt particles from the sea.

In contrast land winds strike mountainsides, twist themselves in forests and cities and pour across plains. The winds pick up sand, dust, plant spores, bacteria, and the noxious chemicals of civilization.

★ ★ ★

Other hitchhikers occasionally accompany a violent wind storm.

Some years ago, for instance, citizens of Alexandria, Ont., were startled when an airborne invasion of frogs covered their streets following a big blow.

Inauguration Medallions Now Big Hits

By National Geographic Society

WASHINGTON — Every four years, as a new president and vice president prepare to take the oath of office, thousands of handsomely designed bronze and silver medallions are minted. They quickly vanish into private collections of Americana.

The 1965 issue was no exception. Some 26,275 bronze and 7,695 silver copies of the Lyndon B. Johnson medal were snapped up by the public, raising almost $200,000 toward inaugural expenses.

★ ★ ★

Earlier issues weren't always so successful. The 1933 Franklin Delano Roosevelt medal, for instance, sold only 1,000 of a modest minting of 1,500 bronze copies.

Roosevelt, disappointed, asked why sales were so slim.

NO CHECKS

"Because," his inaugural committee chairman replied, "you closed the banks on March 6, and we wouldn't take checks."

The inaugural medal for President-elect Richard M. Nixon, scheduled to be available for purchase by early January continues a tradition that began in 1901 with the second term of William McKinley. He had souvenir medals struck for his inaugural committee members.

★ ★ ★

The artfully designed inaugural medals became lasting collectors' items with their first public sale in 1929.

The prized mementos have varied little over the years. Usually they measure two to three inches in diameter, and depict the image of the new president on one side.

JULIE'S HANDICRAFT

On their reverse, some bear the names of the president and vice president.

Nixon's medal, for the first time in history, features artwork created by a member of a president-elect's family — a sculptured miniature of a crewel pattern of the Great Seal of the United States embroidered by his daughter, Julie.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Melvin M. Payne, president of the National Geographic Society and chairman of the Nixon Inaugural Medal Committee, has announced that the official 1969 medal will be sold at Inaugural Headquarters and stores in Washington.

It also can be ordered by mail, postpaid, from the Inaugural Medal Committee, Post Office Box 1800, Washington D.C. 20013.

COST OF MEDALS

Bronze versions, 2¾ inches in diameter, will cost $6 each, including an easel designed to display the medal. A limited issue in solid silver, bearing serial numbers 1 to 15,000 and measuring 2½ inches in diameter, will sell for $45 each.

The inaugural series presents a fine collection of presidential profiles, but few portray the nation's second-ranking officer. Only three vice presidents have been depicted.

SHARED WITH TEDDY

In 1909, James S. Sherman shared the obverse side with President Theodore Roosevelt. Nixon appeared on the 1957 medal with President Dwight D. Eisenhower. John Nance Garner enjoyed the entire reverse side of the 1937 issue.

Some of America's most renowned sculptors designed the quadrennial keepsakes.

★ ★ ★

Sculptor of the Nixon medal is Ralph J. Menconi, creator of the John F. Kennedy and Sir Winston Churchill memorial medals, among many others.

Adolph A. Weinman, who sketched the 1916 Mercury dime and half-dollar, sculpted Theodore Roosevelt for the 1905 medal. The work was supervised by the celebrated sculptor Augustus Saint-Gaudens.

1929 DESIGNER

Henry K. Bush-Brown, noted for equestrian statues of Gens. Anthony Wayne and George C. Meade, designed the 1929 Herbert Hoover issue. Paul Manship, sculptor of the Prometheus fountain at Rockefeller Center, created the 1933 Roosevelt and 1961 Kennedy medals.

Jo Davidson, who sculpted Robert M. La Follette for the Capitol Rotunda in Washington, D.C., designed the 1941 and 1945 Roosevelt medals. Carl Paul Jennewein, whose works are displayed in the White House and leading museums, created the 1949 Harry S. Truman issue.

'Role of Police Needs a Ruling'

The American people must decide — and very quickly — just what they expect of their police, Congressman Jack H. McDonald R-19th District, said today.

"Not a week passes without news of sick calls, resignations, morale problems, new restrictions," he McDONALD added.

In the nation's Capital, there is a running controversy over a ruling that a policeman may not fire even a warning shot at a fleeing suspect unless the suspect is armed, cited McDonald as an example of the problem.

"In Newark, police disgruntled over working conditions and pay suddenly contacted Hong Kong flu, simply because, as public employes, they were not allowed to strike."

There remains a shroud of mystery around the role of Chicago's police during the Democratic National Convention, he said. "The recent 'Walker report' — a staff report that is unofficial — only added to the confusion as a result of its failure to include testimony favorable to the police."

The nation's police have understandable grievances, the congressman said. "Considering the perils of their job, they are undoubtedly an underpaid segment of society. Certainly, there is no justification for a pay system that rewards many who are unskilled and illiterate while it penalizes men charged with protecting society, often at the risk of death."

McDonald said the nation's police have another grievance — the failure in many instances of their communities to support them, often regarding them as a greater enemy than the lawbreaker.

"They have been assaulted and mocked, spat upon and reviled. Each year many go to an early grave. Unless something is done to correct this situation, there is a growing danger of civic chaos."

Pluto's Mass Still a Puzzle to Scientists

By Science Service

WASHINGTON — Pluto, farthest out of the sun's planets, has always been a puzzle. There is, apparently, too much stuff in it for its size.

Since Pluto was discovered in the 1930s, calculations based on gravitational theory — on Pluto's pull on nearby Neptune and Uranus — have given it a mass quite near to the earth's 6,000 billion billion metric tons. Recent studies have Pluto weighing eight or nine tenths of what the earth does.

The difficulty is that Pluto appears to be only half the size of earth — something like 4,000 miles in diameter compared to the earth's 8,000 — and the volume so calculated combined with the large mass would make it 40 times as heavy as water.

It is hard to imagine what could make Pluto so dense. The earth is only 5.5 times as dense as water. Iron is 7.8. A solid lead Pluto would be only 11.3, and solid uranium, the heaviest stable element, comes out only 18.95 times as dense as water.

On the other hand, calculations that start from Puto's size and assume that it is about as dense as the earth give it a mass only 0.13 times that of the earth. But this figure did not fit the gravitational calculations.

The reason for the discrepancy, says Drs. R. L. Duncombe, W. J. Kepczynski and P. K. Seidelman of the Naval Observatory, was that there were too many unknown factors in the gravitational equations. They have done a series of calculations in which they have gone a long step toward harmonizing the figures.

They noticed that the predicted orbits for the planet Neptune that had been used in calculating Pluto's mass were beginning to disagree with observation. These orbits had been fitted carefully to observations up to the times they were calculated, but observations since then were coming out up to 1-720 of a degree away from the predictions.

IRON MAIDEN — A man would really have to show his mettle to cuddle up to someone clad in this outfit. The all-metal fashions were designed by a painter-sculptor and shown in Nice, France.

San Marino Favors Stamps Over N-Arms

WASHINGTON — The Most Serene Republic of San Marino, whose gross national product relies chiefly on postage stamps and tourism, has pledged not to develop a nuclear weapons arsenal.

The mountain enclave, encircled by Italian soil, joined 61 other nations in signing the nuclear nonproliferation treaty last July 1.

★ ★ ★

The colorful little country, which could scarcely afford even one nuclear power reactor, traditionally has had no interest in weapons and wars, the National Geographic Society says.

Oldest and smallest of the world's republics, San Marino for centuries was considered a pocket of democracy where the rebellious and the oppressed could find asylum.

RISKED NEUTRALITY

In 1849, San Marino sheltered the Italian patriot, Giuseppe Garibaldi. In World War II, the nation risked its neutrality by giving asylum to perhaps 100,000 refugees.

After the war, a coalition of Communists and Socialists gained control of the government. Twelve years later, the government was overthrown in a bloodless revolution making San Marino the first state to rid itself peaceably of a Communist regime.

★ ★ ★

The "civil war" fittingly awaited the end of the tourist season. Each year, more than 2 million visitors pour into the nation of 18,000 inhabitants.

Single-day excursionists tread the cobblestone streets, inspect the 11th-century fortress, and admire the spectacular panorama.

BUY STAMPS

Most of all, they buy postage stamps and postcards. Stamps have been issued to commemmorate almost every conceivable subject, including United States Presidents, discus throwers, and a railroad which had not run for years.

More than 150 air mail stamps have been issued by the nation that has neither an airport nor airplanes.

★ ★ ★

Revenues from stamp sales exceeds $2.5 million annually. In the height of the vacation season, four-man shifts labor around the clock, canceling 100,000 pieces of mail a day.

San Marino issued its first stamp in 1877. In 1892, the government learned that philatelists pay generously for misprinted stamps. For more than half a century, "misprinted" stamps rolled from the printing presses as quickly as collectors could grab them up.

Spirit Reigns in Scandinavia

In Denmark and Norway the legendary good spirit of the house is Nisse, who watches over home and farm and is sometimes said to be the gift-bringer, too.

His Christmas treat, the rice pudding traditional at Scandinavian holiday feasts, is placed beside the kitchen door or, on farms, in the hayloft.

State's Pens Getting Fuller

Population Still Down by 3,000 From 1958

By A. F. MAHAN
Associated Press Writer

Michigan's prison population, which was dropping off while crime was on the increase in recent years, is now moving back upward.

There are, however, almost 3,000 fewer convicts behind bars now than there were 10 years ago.

★ ★ ★

In 1966 the state's prison population had fallen to just under 66 per cent of the 10,551 inmates in prison in 1958. As of Dec. 1 of this year it was up to over 73 per cent of the 1958 figure.

A State Department of Corrections spokesman attributes the increase over the last year to tougher sentences, estimating five times as many felons sentenced to terms of 10 years or longer this year than there were two years ago when crime also was booming.

PROBATION, PAROLE

Some attributed the decrease in prison population offhand to "more probation and parole." No statewide figures are readily available on the number granted probation, but figures from the State Parole Board fail to show parole contributed appreciably, if at all.

Judges sent only 3,081 to prison in 1966 — the low population year — but a corrections department spokesman estimates they will commit about 3,800 during the current year.

★ ★ ★

Longer sentences tend to make prison populations stack up, since releases are slowed down.

Latest figures available from the FBI for the calendar year 1967, show a total of 141,429 crimes in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties — the Detroit metropolitan area — compared with 114,533 in the same counties during 1966.

FIGURES COMPARED

There were 101 more murders in 1967, or 366 compared with 265; 8,122 aggravated assaults, compared with 6,295; 14,032 robberies against 10,960. Among violent crime, only forcible rape showed a decline, 1,179 to 1,244.

In the peak year of 1958 there were 10,551 and in 1952, the year of the bloody riots, Southern Michigan alone held 6,068 — just 1,662 fewer than are in all state prisons today. On the first of this month the Jackson penitentiary held only 4,253.

★ ★ ★

Marquette State Prison, where the toughest of the state's convicts normally end up, housed only 541 two months ago, with an additional 153 in outside dormitories, on farms or in conservation camps under its jurisdiction, for a total of 694.

Warden Raymond J. Buchkoe said this was the Marquette prison's lowest population in 30 years. In 1958 there were 1,107 there and in 1952 there were 975.

PAROLE FIGURES

Paroles over the last five years follow: 1968 to Dec. 1 2,703; '67 — 3,223; '66 — 3,529; '65 — 3,970; '64 — 4,002.

In 1958 there were 3,558 paroles granted and 3,207 in 1952.

Scientists Try to Find Lost Minisub Alvin

By SCIENCE SERVICE

WASHINGTON — The furor is considerably smaller than that over the loss of the Scorpion — but so is the submarine. The 819-foot Scorpion disappeared at an unknown location with 99 crewmen aboard resulting in a search that involved some 5,000 men, 40 ships and 5 months of intensive hunting.

The Alvin, a 23-foot research sub operated by the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution went down with no one aboard almost directly beneath its own surface support vessel. An oceanographic ship, a Coast Guard cutter and another minisub were called in to help.

The scale of the operation was smaller, but scientists would still like to have the vessel back. Alvin is one of the more capable members of the U.S. minisub fleet. It can reach depths of 6,000 feet and more, and recently it scored a coup by being the first research submersible to drill rock core samples from the ocean bottom.

Built in 1964 by Litton Industries, Alvin was commissioned by the Office of Naval Research, which pays Woods Hole to run it, and two years later made its reputation by finding the lost H-bomb off the coast of Palomares, Spain.

ENGAGED IN EXPLORATION

On Oct. 16, Alvin was engaged in exploring an area of the Atlantic floor known as Hydrographer's Canyon, about 120 miles south of Cape Cod. The site is on the continental slope well beyond the continental shelf. With its catamaran mother ship Lulu and another research vessel, the Gosnold in attendance, the submarine was preparing to inspect buoy moorings on the bottom prior to making detailed exploratory dives.

As crewmen readied it for its descent, Alvin was resting on a cradle slung between the two hulls of the Lulu on four ¾-inch-thick steel cables. The deck crew held six more hand lines to stablize the sub as it was lowered on its cradle into the water.

* * *

Standing atop the conning tower of the sub was pilot Edward Bland. Oceanographer Paul Stimson and pilot-trainee Roger Weaver were working inside the pressure hull, with the hatch open.

Suddenly, one of the forward cables supporting the cradle snapped. An instant later, yanked by the sudden increase in load, the other forward cable broke and dropped the end of the cradle into the water letting Alvin slide off. Some of the hand-held auxiliary lines parted, others tore themselves loose from the deckhands' grip.

DISAPPEARS COMPLETELY

Bland leaped off, and Stimson and Weaver just managed to scramble out to safety as water poured in through the open hatch and through a plexiglas window in the tower, broken in the impact with the water. In 60 seconds Alvin had disappeared completely, headed for the bottom some 4,700 feet below.

It is unlikely, Woods Hole officials feel, that Alvin drifted horizontally for a greater distance than it covered downward. With this reasoning, they concluded that the minisub should be somewhere in a circle with a radius of a bit less than a mile.

* * *

The approach of winter brings rough weather to the northern Atlantic, and it soon became too violent for the Gosnold, so a larger ship, the Chain, was sent from Woods Hole to take charge. Meanwhile the Coast Guard buoy tender Sassafras was sent in to help, and the General Motors-built Deep Ocean Work Boat was flown in from California!

One of the first parties on the scene was not part of the rescue team at all, but a Russian trawler. Within hours it put a marker buoy on the spot. Three days later, however, it gathered up its buoy and departed.

RUNS INTO TROUBLE

It took about two hours for the DOWB to run into troubles of its own. Scanning difficulties in its sonar (a sharp-eared Woods Hole design capable of spotting a half-gallon can hundreds of yards away), and a malfunction in an emergency weight release, sent that sub back to land for repairs.

The Lulu, carrying the DOWB, set out for the site on Nov. 9. She got to about an hour from the location when a storm forced her back to port where she remains, waiting for clear weather.

Holiday Thyme Is Here Again

By National Geographic Society

WASHINGTON — The pungent aroma of spices and herbs means happy holidays to generations of Americans.

The wooden cook stove has given way to the electric range, but the same delectable odors of fresh mince pie, fruit cake, and roast turkey mingle with the nine fragrance of the Christmas tree.

Many popular holiday herbs and spices have such a long history that myths still cling to them.

Rosemary, for instance, is tied to the story of Christmas. Legend holds that the herb's white blooms turned to the blue of the Virgin Mary's cloak when she hung it on a bush to dry during the flight into Egypt. The plant then became known as Mary's Rose.

KEY TO LONG LIFE?

Ancient herbalists believed that sage now a staple in many dressings improved the memory and assured long life. Doctors at Salerno, the great medieval school of medicine, asked, "How can a man die who grows sage in his garden?"

Imported by the Pilgrims, sage, bay leaves, and thyme were among the first herbs to flavor festive American meals.

Marjoram's scent always has been highly regarded. Ancient Greeks and Romans believed the fragrant herb had been created by Venus, goddess of love, and used it to make crowns for happy young couples.

Judge Can't Cover Up Loss of Pants

TAIPEI (UPI) — Judge Li Shih-Lu denied everything, but he did not explain how he lost his pants.

As a result, the judge of the Kaohsiung District Court has been indicted on charges of taking a bribe and attempted rape.

★ ★ ★

The "pants scandal," as it has come to be known here, started earlier this year when Mrs. Tsai Ping-Tang visited Judge Li in connection with fraud charges against her husband, a sporting goods dealer.

The Judge demanded a bribe for releasing her husband on bail, she told the court, and arranged to meet her at the Hsintung Hotel Dec. 2 to collect the money.

SOUGHT HELP

Since the judge also made a pass at her, Mrs. Tsai said, she sought the help of a friend, Lin Chin-Chih, a former member of the Kaohsiung City Council.

When Judge Li arrived at the hotel, Lin and four of his friends were hidden in the next room.

The unsuspecting judge asked Mrs. Tsai for the money, she told the court. He also announced he was going to make love to her and started undressing, she said.

As he removed his pants, the telephone rang. Mrs. Tsai grabbed the trousers and ran from the room, calling for help.

Wall Street Wary as Firm Plans Casino Link

By DICK BARNES

NEW YORK (AP) — The impending marriage of a Philippine gold mining company and a feudal-like Bahamas land development complex will put a lavish gambling operation, recently linked with organized crime, on the New York Stock Exchange.

Involved are Benguet Consolidated Inc., a Manila mining corporation already listed on the exchange, and Grand Bahama Port Authority, the development company tied to Bahamas gambling and partly owned by the Bahamian government.

* * *

The merged firm won't be the first casino operator with a stock market listing. Already available on the American Stock Exchange for the investor who'd like gambling action in his portfolio is Resorts International—Co.—which runs its own Bahamas casino. Resort International also has connections with some principals in the Benguet-Port Authority merger. It is no longer in the paint business.

The U.S. Justice Department reportedly is convinced that profits from legal gambling in the Bahamas are being skimmed for organized crime in this country.

A PAIR OF PROBES

A federal grand jury in New York is known to be investigating suspected links between the underworld and the island casinos—and the Securities and Exchange Commission has been looking into activities of Resorts International for months.

The crime issue was raised last year by the British government's Commission of Inquiry into the Operation of the Business of Casinos in Freeport and Nassau.

* * *

Among other things, the commission said that Meyer Lansky, long reputed to be the big boss of organized crime in the southern United States, was consulted on the initial staffing of one gambling house.

It also suggested that the original managers of the Lucayan Beach Hotel casino on Grand Bahama Island—Frank Ritter, Max Courteney and Charles Brudner—"were not suitable persons to have been employed in the Bahamas venture." The three subsequently departed the island, by government request. Courteney and Ritter now face sentencing in New York after pleading guilty to gambling-related charges, and Brudner's trial on a similar charge is pending.

WALL STREET IS WORRIED

Stock exchange officials won't talk about the Bahamas operations for publication, but there are indications of concern over the implications of public trading in gambling-related ventures.

The American Exchange recently reviewed Resorts International but found no basis for delisting the issue. Nothing in exchange criteria forbids an organization from running gambling enterprises.

* * *

Benguet stockholders approved acquisition of the Port Authority Dec. 5. But before the merger can be completed, the New York Stock Exchange must approve Benguet's proposed listing of additional shares of common stock. The Philippines government also must approve the deal.

Benguet was for several years the lowest-priced stock on the big board, sometimes selling at less than $1. It climbed to $3 in early 1967 and has since more than quintupled to $17.50, often amidst heavy volume.

THE MEN BEHIND IT

The Benguet deal has been masterminded by the New York investment banking house of Allen & Co., in which Herbert Allen is a partner with his brother, Charles Allen Jr.

Charles Allen was described last May by Fortune magazine as "probably the most successful venture capitalist of modern times." The magazine placed his wealth at between $200 million and $300 million.

* * *

Brother Herbert is a former board chairman of Benguet.

The Allen family interests were the single biggest shareholders of Benguet with 743,800 shares, according to a statement filed last year with the SEC. The Allens hold a bit more than 10 per cent of the Grand Bahama Port Authority, according to the Benguet proxy statement, and more than $800,000 worth of Resorts International, according to the 1967 SEC report.

NOT WHAT IT APPEARS

On paper, Benguet is acquiring the Port Authority. But in issuing to Port Authority stockholders up to the equivalent of 10,799,000 shares of Benguet, it is making them the dominant holders of Benguet, which now has only 11,023,433 additional shares outstanding.

* * *

Two new seats have been created on the Benguet Board of Directors. One will go to an officer of the Port Authority. The Bahamas government, whose liberal concessions made the Port Authority bonanza possible in the first place, will get the other — to represent the interest it purchased several months ago in Port Authority holdings.

* * *

Biggest single stockholder involved is Mrs. Georgette Groves, who owns nearly half of the Port Authority and will hold about 24 per cent of Benguet.

She is the wife of Wallace Groves, creator and present chairman of the Grand Bahama Port Authority.

ONCE JAILED FOR FRAUD

Groves is a former Wall Street figure who was jailed in 1942 after being convicted of mail fraud and conspiracy in connection with a securities transaction made while he was a director of the General Investment Corp. of Boston.

* * *

In the late 1940s, Groves began considering a large-scale development on Grand Bahama Island, 60 miles East of Palm Beach, Fla.

* * *

In 1955, the Bahamas government made land on the island available to the newly created Port Authority. While requiring the Authority to provide schools and other public facilities, it also granted broad tax exemptions and empowered the Authority to decide who would and who would not get license to do business on Grand Bahama.

Development of Grand Bahama lagged behind expectations until April 1, 1963, when the Groves interests won a certificate of exemption from laws forbidding gambling in the Bahamas.

GOVERNMENT TIES

Key figure in gaining the exemption was Sir Stafford Sands, long-time attorney for Groves and at the time a member of the government's executive council.

The Commission of Inquiry found that Sir Stafford was paid $560,000 for his work in obtaining the exemption and that the Port Authority and its subsidiaries paid him more than $1.8 million in fees from 1962 through 1966.

* * *

With the lure of gambling, travel to Freeport, principal city of Grand Bahama Island, soared from 26,000 arrivals in 1963 to 332,000 in 1967.

Today the Port Authority is a vast complex of operations including residential land sales, industrial development, port management, utilities and airport management with 26 subsidiaries or subsubsidiaries.

TAKE IS ASSIGNED

Bahamas Amusements Ltd. is the actual holder of the certificate of exemption that permits gambling at the island's two Casinos, one at the Lucayan Beach Hotel and another called simply El Casino. But Bahamas Amusements has assigned the operation, including all profits, to Grand Bahama Development Co. Ltd., a subsidiary of the Port Authority.

Port Authority's financial statement, as presented in the proxy, says that it has no ownership interest in the Amusements company.

* * *

With all its other operations, net income over-all for Port Authority in 1967 was $11.8 million, up $2.3 million from the previous year. Its assets as of Jan. 31, 1968, were $99.9 million. Benguet's assets totaled $27 million as of Dec. 31 and its 1967 earnings were $2.5 million.

Fly Medicine Overdoses Fatal to TV Actress

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actress Joan Tabor, 34, died in a hospital Wednesday after, police were told, accidentally taking influenza medicine more frequently than prescribed.

A former Chicago model, she married actor Broderick Crawford in 1961. They were divorced in 1965. Another former husband, David Gold, a Chicago financier, told police she mistakenly took too much medicine. Gold said he and Miss Tabor were reconciling.

* * *

An autopsy was scheduled by the Los Angeles County Coroner's office.

Miss Tabor appeared in the Perry Mason, Laramie and Laredo television series. She will be buried in Sioux Falls, S.D., home of her parents, after services here Friday.

No Bus Holdups

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The Indianapolis Transit System says it has had no bus robberies since Nov. 12 when passengers were required to have exact change. A company spokesman says only about 30 cash-refund slips are issued each day, mainly because passengers help each other make change.

Capitol Facade Needs a Face-Lifting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the other side of the Capitol Building from where the scaffolding is going up for Richard M. Nixon's inauguration is another set of scaffolding. Engineers erected it to help hold up the building.

This is the Capitol's West Front, an imposing facade crumbling with age and in need of a face-lifting.

★ ★ ★

According to a controversial proposal of the Capitol Architect's Office, the time is also ripe to create more office space by moving the West Front some feet outward while doing the necessary repairs.

Strong timbers were put into place in 1965 to shore up the cracked, disintegrating and bulging sandstone walls of the West Front's central portion, completed 139 years ago. It is the only exterior portion left of the Capitol as rebuilt after the British burned down the original one in 1814.

HOPING FOR GO-AHEAD

Capitol Architect J. George Stewart has been hoping to get the go-ahead for his $30-million-or-so project to extend the now uneven walls out as much as 88 feet by building new marble walls, matching the rest of the building, to take over the structural burden.

Observers suggest daily that the nine-million-pound cast iron dome added to the building a century ago may come toppling down if an unfortunate earth tremor or sonic boom should occur.

★ ★ ★

"The West Front of the building is all but falling down," Rep. Laurence J. Burton, R-Utah, said recently. "There is a 4½-inch bulge in the wall, and the Capitol Dome could fall in on Congress at any time. And it's no laughing matter."

Burton said he would introduce legislation to allow the extension project to proceed.

2 OBSTACLES

Stewart's plan faces two obstacles — "traditionalists" and money.

The commission for extension of the Capitol made up of the capitol architect, the vice president, the House speaker and the House and Senate minority leaders, unanimously approved the proposed extension in 1965.

★ ★ ★

But after consulting with key appropriations committee members — who were faced with a national money pinch as well as the outcry of the traditionalists — the architect's office quietly dropped its request for money to proceed with construction.

There the matter has rested until now, and the money situation has failed to indicate improvement for either the new Nixon administration or the incoming Congress. In fact it may well be worse.

Hue-Da Nang Rail Tie Work Tough Going

PHU LOC, Vietnam (AP) — They're working on the railroad almost all the livelong day in South Vietnam. It's slow, tough going.

Here, about 28 miles south of the old imperial capital of Hue, employes of the national railway system sweat under the blazing sun with picks and shovels, reshaping the roadbed, replacing track and ties.

★ ★ ★

They are striving to link up with another work force moving north from Da Nang. About 18 miles still separate the two parties. It is hoped they will join up by February, the fortunes of war permitting.

★ ★ ★

The railway originally was built by the French between 1902 and 1936, running from Saigon to the Chinese border. The tracks are standard European meter gauge laid on ties of steel or prestressed concrete, and when it was running as the French Indochina Railroad it was one of the best in the Far East. Until 1948, railway headquarters was Hanoi and Saigon was simply kilometer 1,729.

HIT BY WARS

The railroad was damaged extensively during World War II. It was torn up more in the French Indochina war.

★ ★ ★

In 1959 the South Vietnamese government had the line open from Saigon to Dong Ha, about 10 miles south of the demilitarized zone. In 1960 the Vietcong began their sabotage and harrassment along the railway — about 100 incidents a month. Throughout the early 1960s most of the line was unusable.

FIVE SEGMENTS

About two years ago intensive reconstruction plans were made and the railway was divided into five operational segments for repairs. It is hoped that a segment will be opened this month running from Song Mao to Phu Cat, permitting work then to switch to the line from Song Mao southwest to Long Khanh. If this is done, it will join the already operational line from Saigon to Long Khanh and would make 409 miles of operating railway from Saigon to Phu Cat near the coast just above Quin Nhon. Closing of the break between Da Nang and Hue would add 64 miles.

Negro Tenants Buy Buildings

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit inner city rent strikers organization has purchased nine apartment buildings and plans to rehabilitate them at a cost of $3 million.

★ ★ ★

The all-Negro group, named the United Tenants for Collective Action, purchased the buildings from Albert Goodman for $710,000. It is said to be the largest land acquisition ever made in Detroit by an all-Negro group.

★ ★ ★

The group plans to use a Negro architect and contractor and as much Negro labor as possible.

A subsidiary of United Tenants financed the down payment from a loan by the Metropolitan Detroit Citizens Development Authority.

★ ★ ★

The subsidiary, United Tenants Rehabilitation Co., is negotiating for a $3-million loan from the federal housing authority to rehabilitate the buildings.

Central America Poverty Still Prominent

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — "You're going to die and will go straight to heaven," Sister Maria Rosa told Claudia, a frail orphan of 13. "And when you get there, please tell Jesus we need His help."

Claudia died peacefully of one of the many ailments that had enfeebled her. The day after the funeral, a prosperous landowner, Alonso Valenzuela, a Honduran born in Detroit, Mich., donated 125 acres of land in Claudia's name to the children's aid society that Sister Maria Rosa founded and directs.

* * *

To those around Sister Maria Rosa, the significance of the gift was unmistakable: Claudia had delivered the message.

Among the little folks of Honduras and Central America, faith seems to nourish more readily on small "miracles" than on formal religion. Still, there are some sharp contradictions to a widely held supposition about the depth of religiousness in this part of the world. Uppermost among these is indifference toward the value of human life, as evidenced by the high rate of homicides and illegitimacy.

CHILDREN AT PENITENTIARY

Several years ago, on a visit to the filthy, overcrowded Central Penitentiary, Sister Maria Rosa came upon a large number of children—Claudia among them— living inside the prison with parents serving long terms. The nun talked the imprisoned parents and the prison director into letting her take many of the children out to her home.

Children can end up in prison with their parents, Sister Maria Rosa said, because of the lack of child-care institutions and a paucity of community interest in a problem that's no secret in town.

* * *

"In almost all cases," she explained, "the father has committed a crime and is sent to jail. The mother, usually a commonlaw partner, turns the children over to the man, saying she has no way to support them and that in prison at least they will have shelter and food."

Sister Maria Rosa, an orphan who never knew her father, was born 40 years ago on Honduras' Atlantic Coast. She cares for some 145 parentless children, ranging in age from diaper to early teens.

HOMELESS WAIFS

For every orphan under the nun's care, there seem to be at least a dozen homeless waifs who spend the cool Tegucigalpa nights curled up in cardboard boxes or crammed into large doorways. They're up at sunrise, begging, borrowing or selling chewing gun and lottery tickets.

Abandoned children are an acute social problem, in Central America because of widespread poverty. They seem to be one aspect of overpopulation but this is a part of the world some sociologists consider underpopulated.

* * *

Central America is a narrow strip of land curving southeast from Mexico to Colombia. It includes six republics—Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama —and the colony of British Honduras, also known as Belize. Some 14 million people, multiplying at one of the world's fastest rates, live on its 227,000 rugged square miles.

Illiteracy in this area ranks upward of 55 per cent. Life expectancy in Guatemala in 1966 was 43.6 years.

SCENIC, FERTILE

The area has stunning scenic beauty and high fertility.

Poisonous snakes abound, and mosquitoes are nearly always a problem.

Much of the cooler highlands is raw forest where trees provide the shelter required by coffee, the economic lifeblood of most of the Central American countries. Corn, food staple of the poor, is grown on steep hillsides not much removed from the vertical.

* * *

Volcanologists have counted 14 active volcanos and countless dormant ones. Two eruptions in Costa Rica in the last five ears cost more than 90 lives and millions of dollars in damage—but volcanic ash deposited by the eruptions has made the land even more fertile.

Mutuality of interests and needs is moving the people slowly toward an economic and political federation such as unified them before separation from Spain in 1821.

VARY ETHNICALLY

Descended from the original Indian settlers and their Spanish conquerors, Central Americans vary in ethnic composition. There is more black skin in Belize and Panama than in the other countries. Costa Ricans are predominantly of European stock while more than half the Guatemalans are estimated to be of pure Indian blood—nearly half speak only their Indian dialects.

Christianity has reached the remotest areas but has not entirely replaced pagan gods and faiths.

* * *

A rising rural problem is alcoholism, particularly among the younger people. The most trivial festive occasion calls for drunkenness on a collective scale.

Drinking often leads to violence.

Homicides, suicides, accidents and other misfortunes accounted for 1,407 deaths in El Salvador —population 3 million—in 1966. In Guatemala, conservative estimates place at more than 1,000 the number of people killed in political clashes alone in a 12-month period.

* * *

Still, the biggest killer of all, sociologists say, is gastroenteritis, an intestinal ailment usually more prevalent in rural areas and among children.

The wealthy dead are housed better than the living poor. The wealthy are a miniscule minority who control the national resources.

The poor somehow seem poorer than almost anywhere else in this hemisphere except Haiti.

LACK WATER

El Salvador is one of the more prosperous countries, but 75 per cent of the people lack water fit to drink by modern health standards.

In between the very rich and the very poor is a small but steadily growing middle class, a key source of political leadership and popular dissent. Anemic national economies have stunted the development of this group. Young professionals in substantial number abandon their homelands for better employment and promotion opportunities in other countries.

* * *

The "brain drain" has affected national leadership, some believe, because those who stay behind are usually the well-connected or those of lesser ability unable to finance their migration abroad. The privileged classes usually look on politics as beneath them.

With all its problems and backwardness, Central America is far removed from the "banana country" image created abroad by its own turbulent history and myths perpetuated in movies and novels.

The cities offer a surprising modern setting for old and new cultures. Along streets choked with gleaming new cars and mule-drawn carts, miniskirted girls brush elbows with Indian women carrying their children strapped to their backs. First-rate restaurants compete for the late movie crowds with sidewalk cooking stalls featuring corn on the cob, steamed rice or broiled beef skewered on what once were wire coat hangers.

The glitter downtown at night could be that of any medium-sized U.S. city.

The image of a slumbering native also is fast disappearing behind the surge of entrepreneurial hustle, especially among the less privileged. From push-carts and crudely built sidewalk stalls they peddle almost everything from curb-side shoe repairs to deodorants.

Trains Collide

NEW HOPE FOR TRAN — Dr. Isaac Kaplan (right) of the Children's Medical Relief International hospital in Saigon holds up the newly freed arm of Tran Thi Huong, an 8-year-old Vietnamese girl. The arm had been crippled by scar tissue for five years.

Children Now Get Medical Care

U.S. Volunteers Fill Viet Gap

SAIGON (AP) — Tran Thi Huong is an alert 8-year-old charmer whose eyes occasionally betray the sadness she has known.

When Huong was 3, she accidentally dropped her left arm into a tub of boiling water. The superficial treatment that doctors applied to the severe burns could not prevent a web of scar tissue that joined the inside of her arm, from just above her wrist to just below her shoulder.

* * *

The arm locked into a rigid bent position.

Once or twice a year her mother would take the child to a hospital in Saigon. But each time, for one reason or another, nothing was done.

AN ANSWER, AT LAST

Last month, in desperation, Mrs. Tran took her daughter to a suburban hospital. Doctors there immediately referred her for plastic surgery to a hospital recently opened by Children's Medical Relief International—CMRI—a U.S. voluntary organiaztion devoted to establishing surgical treatment and medical training centers in developing countries.

Being accepted as a patient at the CMRI hospital in Saigon was the turning point in Huong's life, as it was for 51 other Vietnamese children who have entered the hospital since it opened in mid-August.

* * *

In the last eight weeks, more than 60 operations have been performed.

"If we hadn't come along, these children simply would have remained untreated," said George H. Jamieson of Venice, Calif., the hospital's administrator.

SOME CASH HELP

The founders obtained a $2-million grant from the United States Agency for International Development—USAID—and additional funds from the government of South Vietnam and private donors.

They also recruited an international staff of 15 to work at the clinic. The staff now includes six Vietnamese nurses and two Vietnamese doctors as well.

* * *

By training Vietnamese doctors at the new hospital, Dr. Arthur J. Barsky, one of the three founders, hopes to develop a group of physicians to cope with local medical problems after the Americans leave.

The CMRI hospital is a striking departure from other Vietnamese hospitals. Nurses and doctors are on duty there around the clock. In most other hospitals, relatives are required to provide nursing care for the patients.

* * *

The antiseptic conditions are maintained at a level similar to those in the finest American hospitals — keeping post operative infections down to 5 per cent compared with up to 80 per cent in some Vietnamese hospitals.

In most Vietnamese hospitals meals consist mainly of rice.

When children enter CMRI they seem terribly frightened and withdrawn. Huong, shy and solemn, was typical. Then two days after her operation, as the pain in her arm subsided, she began to realize the significance of her newly straightened arm in its white cast. She bounded around the hospital with childish abandon, never before apparent.

Jury Awards American Beat Poet Italian Prize

TAORMINA, Sicily (AP) — An Italian jury Wednesday awarded a $4,800 "Etna Taormina" award to American beat avant-garde poet Lawrence Ferlinghetti. The jury said "in his poems the themes of the European with accents reminiscent of trend converge with the great tradition of American poetry, of surrealistic Walt Whitman."

Christmas in Britain Filled With Tradition

By National Geographic Society

WASHINGTON — Decking a hall or bringing in the New Year, the English love their holiday customs.

At the tick of the New Year, front doors in Staffordshire and northern England are thrust open. A man strides in carrying a bit of coal or bread as symbols of wealth.

The gift-bearer, known as "First-foot" may be a relative or neighbor, but he must have dark hair. A light color, especially red, supposedly brings ill luck.

Britons also consider it unlucky to take their cheerful sprigs of holly into a house before Christmas Eve, probably because the mysterious druids of ancient England decked their halls with boughs of the shrub to shelter sylvan spirits.

PORK ROAST

The suckling pig or pork roast served on many English holiday tables recalls a legend in which a student at Queen's College, Oxford, was ambushed by a wild boar on Christmas Day.

Springing a scholarly counterattack, the student choked the beast to death with a copy of Aristotle, and then retrieved his textbook by severing the head. A rousing 16th century carol sung at Oxford's annual boar's head festival commemorates the feat.

★ ★ ★

Another popular song echoed the holiday spirit in Elizabethan England when solemn customs gave way to joyous revelry and the steaming wassail bowl:

Wassail! Wassail! all over the town,
Our toast it is white, our ale it is brown:
Our bowl it is made of a maplin tree;
We be good fellows all: I drink to thee.

By the 17th century things had gotten so far out of hand that the Puritan Parliament banned Christmas celebrations.

UNDERWENT REVIVAL

The holiday observance declined until the middle of the 19th century when Charles Dickens published "A Christmas Carol."

The heart-warming story helped revive the holiday spirit, and Dickens often is called the father of modern Christmas.

Today, England's Christmas tends to be a quiet fireside affair. The lively outdoor activity comes on Boxing Day when sportsmen work off a surfeit of Christmas Day feasting.

★ ★ ★

Boxing Day is peculiarly British, though its gift-giving aspect was introduced to England by the Romans as part of their Saturnalia.

BECAME THE CUSTOM

In time it became the custom for householders to give "boxes" to servants and tradesmen on Dec. 26.

Christmas cards — another English innovation — first flooded the mails in the 1840s.

Food Additive Wards Off Ills

By Science Service

NEW YORK — Convulsions, mental retardation, anemia, bladder cancer and toxemia of pregnancy have all been linked to deficiency of vitamin B6. This littlepublicized member of the vitamin B family is not among those added to our vitamin fortified foods — but scientists say, it should be.

★ ★ ★

Until about 10 years ago, B6 (pyridoxine) was all but unknown. Now researchers realize that though it is needed only in tiny amounts — as few as 2 milligrams a day — it is as essential to health as its cousins — riboflavin, and thiamine — which are routinely added, by Federal law, to foods such as bread and cereals.

Though it is naturally present in vegetables and meat, some investigators believe that a high percentage of persons in the United States do not get enough B6 in their diets — particularly those who consume large quantities of protein-rich foods.

★ ★ ★

The vitamin, they find, plays a key role in the body's metabolism of amino acids, the building blocks of all proteins.

Some Gifts Too Big for Santa's Bag

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) —Santa had better give up any idea of making his rounds by sleigh this year. He'll need a jumbo jet to tote all the king-size presents children and adults alike are putting on their lists.

After all, how can you stuff a sauna bath into even the largest pack? And that's exactly what one of the nation's most exclusive department stores is featuring as the gift for the family who has everything but.

For the kids, presents are coming in the large uneconomical size—like kitchen sets with sink, refrigerator and stove that are almost as big as mom's. For the household that has no skeleton in its closet, there's one being offered in the form of the bone structures of a prehistoric monster. The set of plastic bones fit together into a 6-foot Tyrannosaurus.

This holiday season the presents don't really have to be big to be exciting, though. Possibly you can think of a friend who doesn't yet have a walking salt shaker. You just wind it up and off it scoots across the table.

The perfect choice to make that tiger in your family purr is the Tiger Paws slipper socks. They're orange with bold black stripes and authentic-looking claws made of felt.

★ ★ ★

The family pup can get in the spirit of the season too. Dress him in the doggie Santa Suit offered by a mail order house—a red and white coat and hat, and there's even a beard. You'll have to supply the stump of a pipe though and teach him to bark "ho, ho ho."

Size a problem? Not for this item. It's a cozy little red and white striped nose warmer with a saucy tassel—stretchable and guaranteed to fit every nose from the button variety to the Cyrano type.

A COMPANION

Some of the offerings are too good to give away. The one I want for myself is an inflatable man, a husky traveling companion to sit beside lady drivers in the carpool to lurk threateningly near the window at home.

★ ★ ★

"It's not that I'm afraid to be alone. It's just that he'll be someone to talk to while my husband is watching all those football bowl games.

Italy Orders Ex-Nazi Out

ROME (AP) — Ex-Nazi Col. Otto Skorzeny, abductor of Mussolini in 1943, scribbled a few autographs for policemen Wednesday before being kicked out of Italy.

★ ★ ★

Skorzeny, who lives in Madrid, had landed in Italy with a Columbia Broadcasting System television crew. But because of his Nazi past, he was banned from staying.

On Sept. 12, 1943, Skorzeny led a German parachutist team to Gran Sasso Mountain near Rome where Mussolini was held after his overthrow. The Germans then set him up as a puppet leader in northern Italy.

Sheldon Leonard Seems to Have Clue

TV Hunts Success Alchemy

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The clue to success for many television producers has been to copy a previous hit. One of the men to copy, it seems, is Sheldon Leonard, who lists "I Spy" among his numerous series sucesses and has a new one, "My Friend Tony," coming up in January.)

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK — Medieval alchemists spent their lives trying to find a way to convert baser metals into gold. Ponce de Leon devoted his to a search for the fountain of youth.

And in much the same spirit of grim, unquenchable determination, the grand poobahs of mass entertainment are on an unending quest for the all-purpose, basic recipe for a surefire television hit.

* * *

One popular avenue—which usually turns into a blind alley—is the "copycat" method. Let one network series emerge as a popular favorite and within a few months carbon copies spring up all over the place.

After "I love Lucy," came "The Cara Williams Show." In the wake of James Bond came a freshet of tongue-in-cheek adventure spoofs.

SOMETIMES IT WORKS

Sometimes, of course, it works—"Gomer Pyle" spun happily out of "The Andy Griffith Show," and "Petticoat Junction" and "Green Acres" grew on the same tree that produced "Beverly Hillbillies." "The Virginian" and "The Big Valley" followed in "Bonanza's" footsteps with success.

But more often the carbons were pale or they were not as lucky in their network time spot. At any rate, the quest for the all-purpose recipe has to date been about as successful as that of the alchemists.

* * *

Thus, success in television is likely to be a fast roller coaster ride, marked by fast footwork and a "grab-the-money-and-run" attitude. Today's hot production team is likely to be among next season's unemployed.

In this nervous company, a few names stand out: Paul Henning, with three country-style hits and no misses; Paul Monash, who made "Peyton Place" work for five years and had a critical success in "Judd for the Defense"; "Quinn Martin with "The Fugitive" and "The F.B.I." And, of course, Sheldon Leonard, actor-turned-producer and a veteran of almost 40 years in show business, who has been associated closely with more hit TV series than anyone else in the business.

Leonard, a man with a Midas touch for comedy, was deeply involved as partner to Danny Thomas in "The Andy Griffith Show," "The Dick Van Dyke Show," still owns a pleasant piece of "Gomer Pyle" and, on his own, turned out "I Spy."

He doesn't think his concept of television is the complete answer, but his simple recipe apparently has worked more often than not—even though it resulted in the disappointment and short-lived "Bill Dana Show" and "Accidental Family."

* * *

"I think that, in television, you must wrap a show around a personality," he explained. "Whenever a series works, it's been because the personalities have been accepted. When it hasn't worked, it has been because they weren't. But I still don't understand why Jerry Van Dyke and 'Accidental Family' went down."

* * *

Leonard, now under an NBC contract to develop new properties, will see his most recent effort launched early in January when "My Friend Tony" replaces "The Beautiful Phyllis Diller Show" on Sunday nights.

AROUND PERSONALITY

As Leonard developed "The Dick Van Dyke Show" around the star and his professional family, and as he built "I Spy" around the relationship of actor Robert Culp and comedian Bill Cosby, Leonard has carefully constructed the upcoming series around the personality of a young Italian actor, Enzo Cerusico, by whom he was impressed when the young man spoke not one word of English.

"I met him about four years ago when we were shooting 'I Spy' in Italy, and although we brought the leads from the United States, we were casting some of the other parts locally," he recalled. "I was impressed by his vivacity and an electric quality he had, even though he had to learn his lines phonetically."

* * *

Leonard signed him on the spot and brought him to this country. Later, when the episode was broadcast, he was pleased by the kind of mail he drew—a lot of it from women.

Leonard dreamed up an idea for the young actor, and picked James Whitemore to play his foster father, a veteran police officer. The play between the two characters will be, he hopes, as sparkling as that between Cosby and Culp.

FLUENT IN ENGLISH

Cerusico, during his recent under-wraps period in Hollywood, has become fluent in English and has appeared in minor roles in a couple of films.

Leonard, who went into show business the year of the big crash, worked out the Depression as an actor in radio and on stage. He specialized in comedy gangsters, and sports an authentic Brooklyn accent. Moving to Hollywood, he appeared in almost 150 motion pictures, and then switched to television when it appeared on the commercial horizon.

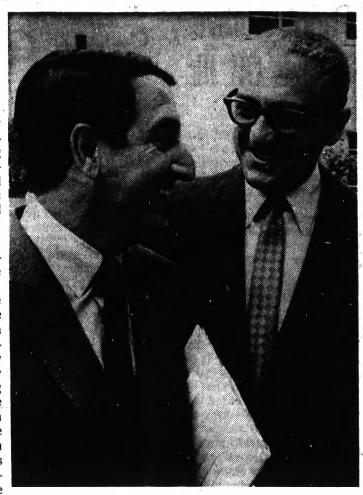
* * *

He seems, at the moment, discouraged at the prospects of the medium.

"So much of what we are doing seems pragmatic," he complained. "There don't seem to be any playwrights, any directors, coming up, probably because there really aren't any training grounds and proving grounds for them any more. We older ones can do a certain amount of teaching, but there are important parts that you can't teach. The hardest thing is to teach involvement, the importance of getting the audience involved with the characters.

* * *

"Sometimes I think we in the American theater, in pictures and in television, are dying and we don't know it. Hollywood is no longer the center of motion pictures, and I don't think it even realizes it."



AP Photo

ANDY GRIFFITH PARTNERS—Sheldon Leonard (right) and Danny Thomas each own a part of television's "Andy Griffith Show." Leonard seems to have more than a clue to the mystery of TV success, to judge by his record of hits. He feels it important to base a show on an eccetptable personality.

Arab Terrorists Jailed for Life

TEL AVIV (AP) — Four Arab youths were jailed Wednesday for life by an Israeli military tribunal on 22 charges of terrorism, including bomb attacks in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv.

* * *

They are Ghassan Aboul Latif Kamel, 18; Salim Khaled Musseibeah, 20; Ahmed Mouhammed Muhelmar, 19, and Maruwan Abu Harb, 19, all from Jerusalem.

Several grenade explosions in Jerusalem Aug. 18 and the central bus station blasts in Tel Aviv Sept. 4 killed one person and wounded scores.

Sirhan Trial Jury Will Be Locked Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jury hearing the murder trial of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan will be locked up nights and weekends, Judge Herbert V. Walker ruled Wednesday in Superior Court. The prosecution objected this would make selection of a jury difficult since the trial of the man charged with slaying Sen. Robert F. Kennedy is likely to last three months.

* * *

Emile Zola Berman, New York attorney, was officially approved at the brief court session to join Sirhan's two other defense attorneys. Berman, 65, told newsmen he supported Kennedy for president. Surhan, 24, a Jordanian, is to go on trial Jan. 7.

Pakistan Leader Now Object of Scorn

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — The students who stormed into a jewelry shop had only one request.

"We just want the picture of President Ayub on the wall," one said.

* * *

The proprietor complied, and the picture that had adorned his shop since Mohammad Ayub Khan came to power 10 years ago was taken outside and ripped to pieces amid a chorus of cheers from hundreds of demonstrators.

Two months ago, few persons would have dared desecrate Ayub's picture—or speak publicly against him.

DEATH TO AYUB

Now, almost daily, crowds shout "Ayub Hai Hai"—death to Ayub—and beat their breasts in mock mourning as they demand political and educational reforms, release of political detainees and freedom of the press.

Stone-throwing mobs, many made up of boys no more than 10 years old, discreetly seek out a variety of targets associated with the government—signboards advocating family planning, telephone exchanges, buses, pro-Ayub newspaper offices.

* * *

High-ranking officials have blamed the unprecedented agitation on "hooligans and miscreants" and opposition political leaders.

* * *

But many informed observers believe the demonstrations since early November show widespread discontent underestimated at first by the government.

MUCH POVERTY

Economically there has been impressive industrial and agricultural development, for which Ayub is credited because of his emphasis on pragmatic planning, but there is still much poverty.

* * *

Politically, it is felt Ayub has failed to create any wide base of popular support.

* * *

It looks as if the masses—the professional class, laborers, small-business men—have become especially disenchanted during the past year as prices of key commodities rose steeply or, as in the case of sugar, became scarce.

* * *

Criticism comes from persons once associated with him. These include the former foreign minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, now in jail on charges of inciting violence; retired Air Marshal Asghar Khan, former commander-in-chief of the air forces; retired Lt. Gen. Azam Khan, ex-military aide to Ayub, a member of his first Cabinet and former governor of East Pakistan; and Syed Mahbub Mrshed, former chief justice of the East Pakistan High Court.

With the former foreign minister behind bars, most opposition parties have focused their attention on Asghar Khan as a potential rival to Ayub in 1970 elections.

Asghar denies he has any personal ambition, but he has urged Ayub "to retire from public life to give room to other leaders."

* * *

The president has given no indication whether he will run for a third term in 1970 but insists the government won't be cowed by agitation.

August 7, 1964 was a sweltering night in Charlotte, N. C.

The Detroit Lions had arrived that afternoon in preparation for their exhibition game the next day against the Washington Redskins, and after an abbreviated workout, head coach George Wilson let the Lions get back to their air conditioned motel rooms.

This was the era of—"Who's Going to Start at QB?" — Earl Morrall or Milt Plum?

Every game, exhibition or regular season, the same question came up about the Lions' starting quarterback and no one really knew the answer until game time.

In a way it was fun for the writers, because the guessing game turned into a wagering contest. In this particular instance we took five dollars from sportscaster Bob Reynolds who put his money on Plum for this game.

TALK ABOUT ROOKIE

In one of the rooms on the eve of the game, roommates Terry Barr and Joe Schmidt were talking about some of the rookie prospects for the Lions' 1964 season.

One of the interested listeners in the open door discussion was Lions' owner Bill Ford.

"This kid (Warren) Wells has a great pair of hands and the moves to go with them," Barr was saying.

Terry was talking about a rookie from Texas Southern who was competing for his job, and Barr was convinced that the husky speedster would be his successor before too long.

★ ★ ★

As it happened during the 1964 season, Wells caught only two passes for 21 yards and Barr was the top receiver on the team with 57 for 1,030 yards and nine touchdowns.

★ ★ ★

The next two years went by and nothing was heard from the rookie who was called to join Uncle Sam's team. But in the summer of 1967, with Barr already retired for two years and Schmidt as head coach, the young pass receiver reappeared at Cranbrook training camp.

But before the camp was hardly two weeks old, Wells was out looking for a job and he received a short fling with the Kansas City Chiefs of the AFL.

He was then placed on waivers and the Oakland Raiders immediately grabbed him.

TOPS IN AFL

It is now ironic that the Raiders go against the Chiefs in an AFL playoff game and one of the big stars all season for Oakland is the same Warren Wells with 53 passes caught and 12 touchdowns.

It is also ironic that in the Western Division championship game of the NFL, the star of the Baltimore Colts is the same Earl Morrall whom the Lions shuffled off to New York the following year.

Morrall leads the NFL in passing with 26 touchdowns thrown and Wells tops the AFL in the receiving of TD passes.

As fate may determine, Morrall and Wells could both find themselves on opposing teams in the Super Bowl, Jan. 12 in Miami.

DITTOS FROM THE PRESS BOX

Lem Barney's selection to the all-NFL team by the AP yesterday makes him the only Lion in two seasons to make the team.

None made it in 1967. In 1966, John Gordy and Pat Studstill were picked.

★ ★ ★

Speaking of Gordy, the big offensive lineman was supposed to be out of action nine weeks after surgery following his freak leg injury in training camp in late August.

Gordy, who heads the NFL players' union out of a Detroit office, never made it back for any part of the season.

The players' job, however, may be put on a permanent paid basis which could mean Gordy's official retirement.

Baseball Eager to Find Leader

Gathering Set for Tomorrow in Windy City

CHICAGO (AP) — Deciding against a waiting game, baseball's major league owners meet Friday to consider a commissioner to succeed William D. Eckert who resigned just 13 days ago.

"The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the commissioner vacancy," John Holland, vice president of the Chicago Cubs, said Thursday.

★ ★ ★

"I would think the owners will try their best to come out of the meeting with a new man. There was no screening committee named or any candidates discussed after Gen. Eckert resigned.

"The owners, at the recent major league meeting in San Francisco, decided just to meet on the matter as soon as they possibly could. Dec. 20 was the first date suitable to all concerned."

ASKED TO QUIT

Eckert, 60, resigned Dec. 6 in a stunning windup of the majors' winter meeting. The action, reportedly taken at the direction of club owners meeting in executive session, ended a criticized three-year regime.

The need for a baseball man seems to be a rallying cry in the owners' move to install the game's fifth czar as quickly as possible in the face of growing problems, such as a threatened player strike next spring.

Boomed as a prime candidate, at least in the past, is Mike Burke, who became a director of the New York Yankees four years ago when the Columbia Broadcasting system bought the club and then ascended to Yankee presidency in 1966.

Other potential candidates, more steeped in baseball than Burke, include Judge Robert Cannon of Milwaukee, knowledgable on both sides of the player-owner fence; Chub Feeney, vice president of the San Francisco Giants; Joe Cronin, president of the American League, and general managers Lee MacPhail of the Yankees and Bing Devine of the St. Louis Cardinals.

NL OWNERS UPSET

A National-American League cleavage could develop as the owners size up the best candidate. One of the things that irked the NL about Eckert was the commissioner's failure to veto the AL's gun-jumping a year ago in expanding to 12 clubs in 1969.

The NL preferred waiting until 1970 at the earliest to expand and then in coordinated fashion. As a result, the NL was pressured into adding two new clubs only last May for 1969.

Holland, alternate for Cub owner Phil Wrigley on a new three-member committee studying restructuring of baseball, said it was conjectural whether the owners will get right down to naming a commissioner Friday night, or possibly Saturday.

"It's anybody's guess whether they want a screening committee, or how they will go about naming a new commissioner," said Holland, who explained the meeting would start after 4 p.m., CST, Friday.

★ ★ ★

"Some California owners can't get in until late afternoon. The group probably will have dinner and then start discussing candidates. I suppose the meeting could continue Saturday morning."

A screening committee could be spurned by the owners, who remember that such a group recommended former Air Force General Eckert in November in 1965 to succeed the retiring Ford Frick.

LONG CONTRACT

Eckert got a seven-year contract at $65,000 per year, completely unknown—and, as critics soon stressed unknowing — in baseball.

It will take 18 of 24 owners votes—nine from each league — to name the new commissioner, who probably will get a hiked $100,000 yearly salary and a seven-year pact.

The first commissioner was iron-handed Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, followed by A. B. "Happy" Chandler in 1945, and Frick, former NL president in 1951.

CAKE FOR CELEBRANTS — Coach Don Shula (left) and star passer Earl Morrall blow out the candles on the cake presented them in the Baltimore Colt locker room after the announcement of their recognition as the National Football League's coach of the year and player of the year.

Baltimore Colts' Don Shula Named 'Coach of Year'

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Shula, the boss man of the Baltimore Colts, has been named Coach of the Year in the National Football League by the overwhelming vote of a 48-man panel for The Associated Press.

A committee composed of three sports writers or sportscasters from each of the league's 16 cities gave Shula 31 votes.

★ ★ ★

Jim Dooley, who did such an outstanding job with the Chicago Bears despite a series of crippling injuries to his quarterbacks and Gale Sayers, received eight votes.

Blanton Collier, whose Cleveland Browns will meet Dallas for the Eastern Conference title Saturday at Cleveland, drew six votes. Tom Landry, Dallas coach, got one vote. Two members of the panel did not vote in this category.

Shula shared the coach of the year honors with George Allen of Los Angeles last year and won it all alone in 1964, the year his Colts were knocked off by Cleveland in the title game.

The 38-year-old Baltimore coach has compiled an enviable record of 63-18-3 in his six seasons as head man of the Colts. A hard-nosed defensive back who spent seven years in the NFL, Shula was an assistant coach at Virginia and Kentucky before he went into the pros as a defensive coach at Detroit in 1960.

Shula still is young enough to be accepted by his players as one who is familiar with their problems. In fact, some of the Colts are almost as old as Shula. Ordell Braasee, right defensive end, is 36, John Unitas and Dick Syzamnski are 35 and Earl Morrall is 34. Shula also is old enough to know how to deal with the players when a heavy hand is required.

★ ★ ★

Despite his fine winning record at Baltimore, Shula's career has been marred by many heartbreaking setbacks. The Colts were the beaten favorites in Cleveland 27-0 in the 1964 title game and lost a sudden death tie playoff at Green Bay 13-10 for the Western Conference championship in 1965.

In 1967, they were unbeaten until the last game of the season when a 34-10 defeat in Los Angeles knocked them out of a shot at all the post season money.

LINE REBUILT

Under Shula's direction, the offensive line has been rebuilt around such young men as tackles Bob Vogel and Sam Ball, guards Glenn Ressler and Dan Sullivan and center Bill Curry.

A comeback by Jimmy Orr as split end and the continued fine play by flanker Willie Richardson and tight end John Mackey plus the passing of Morrall and the running of Tom Matte and Jerry Hill or rookie Terry Cole fused into a strong offensive unit. Cole took over when Hill was injured in mid-season and, now that Hill is ready to return, Cole has been injured.

Flu Bug Invades Red Wings Camp; Crozier Returns

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings have been facing shots of two kinds recently— those of their National Hockey League contemporaries and B12 injections to fight off the flu which has been swarming around the team like a man-up power play.

Goalkeeper Roger Crozier returned to practice Wednesday after being sidelined by illness, but forward Pete Stemkowski was the latest victim and left wing Nick Libett and defenseman Bob Baun were reported afflicted mildly.

VITAMINS PLUS LUCK

Club physician John Finley said the team was not receiving flu inoculation this year because players in the past reacted badly to the vaccine. The B12 vitamin and luck are hoped enough to get the team through the winter.

Coach Bill Gadsby declined to say if Crozier would start tonight against the Chicago Black Hawks. Backstop goalie Roy Edwards who helped out against Oakland and Minnesota in weekend victories was expected to rejoin the team.

After tonight's game against the Black Hawks, the Red Wings face a weekend home and home series with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Former FBI Agent Joins Rozelle Staff

NEW YORK (AP) — John J. "Jack's" Dahany, 50, special agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation for 26 years, has been named director of security on the staff of Pro Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle, it was announced Wednesday.

Dahany succeeds William G. Hundley, director of security since 1966 who resigned to form a law firm in Washingon, D.C. Hundley will continue to serve the commissioner's office on a part-time basis.

Ex-Catcher Severeid Dies at Texas Home

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Henry L. "Hank" Severeid, who sports writers say dropped just one foul ball during his long career as a catcher in the American League, will be buried here today.

★ ★ ★

Severeid, 77, died in his sleep Tuesday. He was former manager of the San Antonio Missions of the Texas League and for 15 years served as catcher for the St. Louis Browns, Cincinnati Reds, Washington Senators and New York Yankees.

★ ★ ★

At the time of his death, he was still active as a scout for the Boston Red Sox.

ROCKET TAKEOFF ABORTED — Rick Adelman (12) of the San Diego Rockets encounters Piston problems while preparing to launch a shot last night in Detroit. Terry Dischinger (43) and Hap Hairston (5) block Adelman's attempt while McCoy McLemore (left) and Jimmy Walker await the result. Detroit ended an eight-game losing streak with a 124-112 triumph.

★ ★ ★

Only one bowler has ever won the Actual's twice. That was Bill Johns in 1957 and again in 1965. He is entered this year again.

On hand to defend his championship is Larry Burgin, who rolled a 708 at Huron Bowl.

Chirp, Chirp! 'Tis a happy tune that comes from the beak of our feathered friend, The Birdie, after his Tuesday bit of prognasticating.

★ ★ ★

He chirped the one point win by West Bloomfield over Waterford in the Blue Plate Special and stands 20-5 for the season.

★ ★ ★

Because of several key games tonight, The Birdie looks into his crystal ball to cover the entire weekend, including next Monday's PCH-PNH contest:

Lake Orion over Avondale
Rochester over Madison
Romeo over Clawson
OL St. Mary over RO St. Mary
Arthur Hill over Pontiac Central Pontiac Northern over Farmington
West Bloomfield over Milford
Andover over Kettering
Waterford over Lathrup
Stevenson over Walled Lake

BLUE PLATE SPECIAL
Monday
Pontiac Northern over Pontiac Central

Arthur Hill Next for Central

A very quick, well-drilled Saginaw Arthur Hill quintet will test Pontiac Central's promising hoopsters Friday night in the key Saginaw Valley Conference contest at the PCH court.

Arthur Hill whipped Bay City Central in its opener, then stunned a veteran Saginaw outfit last week and now is drawing a lot of support as the team to beat in the SVC title chase.

★ ★ ★

PCH's Chiefs were victimized by their own mistakes and the effective low post play of 6-9 Ken Brady in a league-opening loss to preseason favorite Flint Central, but bounced back for a lopsided conquest at Bay City Central last week.

★ ★ ★

A victory over Arthur Hill tomorrow would put the Chiefs back in the race, but they can't afford another league loss this early in the season.

The Lumberjacks will come to Pontiac with a veteran unit and a 6-5 sophomore center, Bob Becker, son of former Arthur Hill grid coach Hi Becker, handles the tip-offs for SAH.

QUICK SWITCH

But unless it gets into trouble under the backboards, Arthur Hill will likely replace the rangy pivotman with 6-0 Tom Rousseau as new coach Gary Lee — ex-Lumberjack cage standout and successful Marysville coach for six years — goes for speed, ball handling and defense.

With Becker out of the lineup, the tallest SAH performer then is 6-2 Frank Sigourney, who is one of three Lumberjacks scoring in double figures. Mark Champagne and Bill Jurgens join him in the 16-19 p.p.g. bracket.

Steve Kelly runs the offense and rounds out a veteran lineup of senior letter-winners. The aggressive Arthur Hill quintet is described as a crew that "never stands still."

Pontiac Central mentor Ralph Grubb also is toying with a six-man starting lineup. He only has one senior, though, guard Clayton Burch.

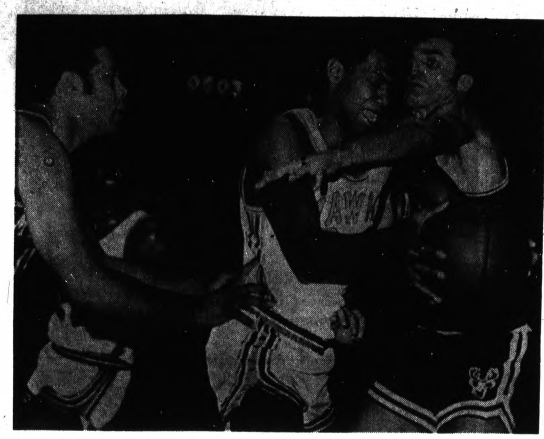
UNDERCLASSMEN

Juniors Monte Herring, Waverly Jones and Jerry Ratliff, plus sophomores Campy Russell and Anthony Styles are also available. Grubb has indicated he won't decide on the starting five until Friday.

The young Chiefs have the height and jumping ability to give Arthur Hill a lot of competition for the rebounds.

But inexperience could hurt them on defense — personal foul problems were instrumental in their losing a 19-point lead to Flint Central — and on the attack where they have been known to take bad shots and run with the opposition when they should be content to set up their pattern offense.

Another important league meeting has Midland (1-1) visiting Saginaw (1-1). Bay City Central will be at Flint Southwestern.



AP Wirephoto

SILAS SLOWS DOWN — Forward Paul Silas (white uniform) of the Atlanta Hawks finds his path blocked emphatically Wednesday night by ex-Detroit Piston Len Chappell (right) now with the Milwaukee Bucks. Also getting in a foul on the Hawks' performer is veteran center Wayne Embry (left). Atlanta prevailed on the scoreboard against the NBA expansion team, 122-116.

Key Games in Oakland-A

Prep Cagers Have Active Slate on Tap Tonight

The high school basketball scene will be active tonight with four pre-holiday wrapup games on the schedule, three of which league races.

Two of the games involved Oakland A League contenders. Lake Orion is at Avondale and Romeo is invading Madison.

Northwest Catholic League leader Orchard Lake St. Mary hopes to extend its winning streak at home against third-place Royal Oak St. Mary.

In nonleague action, Royal Oak Kimball's undefeated Knights are visiting Warren.

The 0-A contests involve two of the four second-place quintets. Neither Lake Orion nor Romeo (both 2-1) can afford another loss in the league at this time.

It would have two losses already after four O-A outings. Troy, the leader, meanwhile will be gunning for its fourth straight success tomorrow at Utica whose Chieftains are still seeking victory No. 1 in the circuit.

SHOWDOWN

The other Friday game will find the other runner-up squads, Rochester and Madison, in a can't-afford-to-lose struggle. They will meet on the Rochester floor.

Avondale continues to seek the right defensive combination while trying to break into the win column for the first time under coach Phil Kahler.

★ ★ ★

Orion's Dragons rebounded from their crushing loss at Troy with improved performances against Clawson (1-2) Tuesday.

The Trojans, though, came up with one of their strongest defensive efforts of the young season and hope to contain Romeo even better.

After four games in the 70's, the Bulldogs stumbled below 60 in dropping their first game Tuesday against Rochester. New coach Jerry Barr thus is faced with his toughest task in a bid to get Romeo back on the right track.

WIN STREAKS

The game at Orchard Lake St. Mary finds the host Eaglets risking their five-game unbeaten string of the current season plus a 21-game success streak in league starts.

That surge dates back to the 1966-67 campaign. RO St. Mary is the last team to beat the Eaglets in league play, and the Irish have hopes their current unit (3-1) is capable of stopping the OLSM scoring machine that is hitting at almost 80 points per game presently.

The other Northwest Catholic contests this week will have Farmington Our Lady of Sorrows at Ferndale St. James, and St. Francis de Sales at St. Rita Friday night.

In a pair of key first division Friday encounters, unbeaten Birmingham Brother Rice has its first big test when it journeys to Catholic Central, and Royal Oak Shrine (2-1) will risk its AA League hopes by entertaining Holy Redeemer.

Kimball, too, is on a victory march. The Knights' 93-44 win Tuesday over Southfield Lathrup was their third straight this year and 11th in a row for the past two regular campaigns.

That also was the most points for a Kimball varsity quintet since the 1965-66 campaign. ROK is favored to up its perfect mark at Warren's expense since the Orioles just eked out their triumph over Lathrup.

8 Horses Line Up, Finish by Numbers

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It only happens once in a million times, said officials of the Fair Grounds after the eight horses in Wednesday's ninth race finished exactly in the order of their program listing.

In addition, the New Orleans oval had a whopping daily double payoff of $1,749. In the ninth race, the No. 1 horse, Beau Baker, was first across the finish line, paying $6. England Passes, No. 2, was second; Merano, No. 3, third and right down the list to No Countess, No. 8, the eighth horse.

Liner 'Wicks' Away Moisture

It's called the "Hot Dog Glove" which can't hold much water itself, but is great at "wicking the moisture away," according to the distributor.

"Wicking away" refers to carrying the moisture away from the fingers to the outer glove lining, resulting in dry hands.

Northern Quintet Facing Two Tough Tests

Just how good are Pontiac Northern's Huskies?

The quick, high-jumping, sharp-shooting squad of coach Dick Hall has blitzed two supposedly formidable opponents in its first two outings. The real test apparently lies immediately ahead.

Northern will journey to Farmington tomorrow night where some of the best teams in PNH's successful cage history have met their downfall. The clash with the Falcons is the top one on the Inter-Lakes League schedule tomorrow.

Southfield Lathrup will invade Waterford, and Walled Lake will be at Livonia Stevenson in the others.

After its meeting with Farmington — and Hall is working hard to keep the PNH cagers from looking past the good-shooting Falcons — Northern will entertain arch rival Pontiac Central Monday night in the first of their two annual meetings.

FREE-WHEELING

Northern utilizes a free-wheeling offense and seems to have the personnel to make it work. So far the Huskies have managed to overcome their mistakes and missed shots by grabbing enough rebounds to let them keep firing until the ball goes through the hoop.

Farmington could have enough rebounding power to slow down the PNH attack. If the Falcons' defense, which has shown steady improvement, can give their potent offense some help, Northern's problems at Farmington may extend through another season.

Waterford suffered its first loss Tuesday after winning its first three games. The Skippers haven't had an easy game, but their experience should be too much for Lathrup.

The Southfield squad lacks a senior class and its record (0-4) reflects this shortcoming. WTHS, meanwhile, has several key 12th graders who are producing vital points and rebounds for it.

GOOD START

The Skippers are off to one of their best starts under coach Bob Taylor, and need the momentum of a big victory tomorrow to ready them for their next clash, a Jan. 7th meeting with Kettering.

* * *

Walled Lake is working to get its defense in step with the progress shown by the offense. The Vikings nearly upset WTHS in their last outing, but faded in the closing minutes of play.

Still, there was definite improvement shown in the loss to Waterford. A similar step forward this week could produce a surprise success for the Vikings at Livonia.

The Stevenson Spartans couldn't keep up to PNH, but they feel the other I-L members have to try to catch up to them.

Goalies Take Bows in Pro Ice Action

By the Associated Press

The National Hockey League's goaltending story Wednesday night was something old, something new and something borrowed and the results left the Oakland Seals, Los Angeles Kings and New York Rangers feeling blue.

Something old was Toronto's 44-year-old Johnny Bower kicking out 30 shots as the red-hot Maple Leafs turned back Oakland 5-2 on third-period goals by Floyd Smith, Bob Pulford and George Armstrong.

* * *

Something new was Montreal rookie Tony Esposito, 25, still unbeaten after six NHL starts as the Canadiens rallied to tie Los Angeles 2-2 on Yvan Cournoyer's goal with 3:25 to play.

Something borrowed was Chicago's Denis DeJordy, brilliant in a 3-1 victory over New York in his first game since coming back from a five-week exile in the minors.

Esposito, a second-year pro, stepped in for Montreal after Gump Worsley was ordered to take a month's rest to cure his jangled nerves and Rogatien Vachon broke a hand. The NHL rookie has three wins and three ties in the six games he's started and the Canadiens have a three-point lead over Boston.

Another rookie goalie, Gerry Desjardins, was sensational as the Kings grabbed a 2-0 lead on second-period goals by Ron Anderson and Larry Cahan. But the Canadiens fired 42 shots at their ex-farmhand and Dick Duff and Cournoyer finally beat him.

* * *

DeJordy was lend-leased to the Central League after allowing 40 goals in 12 games early this season. But the Hawks, who were yielding goals faster than their potent attack could score them, called him back after Dave Dryden and Jack Norris allowed 27 goals in the last five games.

Aussies End Search, Net Sponsor Found

MELBOURNE (AP) — The Lawn Tennis Association of Australia has found sponsors for the 1968 Davis Cup challenge round with only seven days to spare.

Three large companies have told the LTAA they are interested in sponsorship.

The total figure of sponsorships amounts to $28,000. This is more than three times the amount the LTAA was prepared to take two days ago in desperation.

Neville Vickers, the LTAA promotion committee chairman, said in Melbourne he has received the three offers Dec. 18.

One of the sponsors is Coca Cola Bottlers Limited, whose division in each Australian state will be involved. The Shell Oil Company is another and the third is as yet unidentified U.S. organization.

Glenn's Edges Spencer Floor

Adsit's Timely Bucket Brings 69-68 Victory

Bob Adsit's basket with two seconds remaining gave Glenn's Motor Sales a 69-68 victory over Spencer Floor last night in Class A Waterford Township basketball.

Spencer (2-1) had taken a 68-67 lead moments earlier on a two-pointer by Earl Hook, but Glenn's (3-0) worked the ball down and fed it to Adsit for the payoff. Spencer led at halftime, 35-34.

* * *

Jerry Wright tossed in 24 points and Bob Rabaja added 17 for Glenn's, while Bill Waun checked in with 19 for Spencer.

In a second game, Sam Allen's (1-2), down 40-39 at halftime, took charge in the second half and raced to a 91-76 decision over Booth Homes (0-3).

* * *

Irv Gingrich picked up 18 points, while Rick Rhoney and Booker Hurner tossed in 16 apiece to lead Sam Allen. Tom Booth tossed in 30 in a losing effort.

Outlook Promising for State's Skiers

The weatherman's blow at skiing around the state and in the Pontiac area appears to be mostly a jab today with no heavy punches expected over the weekend.

★ ★ ★

While today's wet, thawing trend will likely deteriorate conditions from the good-to-very good range to fair-to-good, the promise of freezing temperatures returning tonight and the presence of snowmaking equipment at all local area resorts adds to the prospects for lots of weekend skiing.

★ ★ ★

The resort operators are expected to have their slopes ready again by late Friday afternoon. Operating hours Saturday and Sunday are listed as 9 a.m.-11 p.m. for Alpine Valley, Pine Knob, Mount Holly and Mt. Brighton.

★ ★ ★

Mount Grampian, also, has hopes of offering skiing with similar hours of operation.

SHORT SCHEDULES

The resort owners are anticipating short schedules Tuesday (closing at 6 p.m. Christmas eve) and special hours Christmas Day.

Alpine and Mt. Holly plan to open at noon, while Mt. Brighton (4 p.m.) and Pine Knob (6 p.m.) will resume operations much later in the afternoon Christmas Day.

Snow conditions ranged from fair to excellent across Michigan's skiing slopes Wednesday. Georgraphic location appeared not so important as the facility for making artificial snow.

★ ★ ★

Slopes across the Upper Peninsula reported varying snow conditions.

The outlook for the weekend remained in doubt as the weatherman predicted freezing rain and temperatures hovering near 32 degrees — conditions more suited to the granular corn snow of late February and March than to the powder of early winter.

Here are conditions reported Wednesday at various resorts around the state:

SOUTHEAST MICHIGAN

Pine Knob, Clarkston, 6-inch base, good.
Alpine Valley, Milford, 10-inch base, spray top, very good.
Mt. Holly, Pontiac, 6-12 inches base, spray top, good.

Mt. Gramalan, Oxford, may open Saturday.

Skyline Ski Club, Grayling, one slope open.

'Pistol Pete' Sparks Upset

Scores 45 as Tigers Turn Back Florida

By the Associated Press

What happens when the top collegiate basketball scorer meets the top rebounder? The high scorer wins—in this case at least.

Which is to say that Pistol Pete Maravich of Louisiana State led the Tigers to an upset overtime 93-89 victory over Neal Walk and Florida at Baton Rouge Wednesday night.

★ ★ ★

The 6-foot-5 Maravich threw in 45 points, including six in the extra period, to overcome the 34 points and 14 rebounds by the 6-10 Walk.

Maravich, who now has 195 points in four games in defense of his national scoring crown, got an assist when Walk fouled out with four minutes left in regulation time.

FIVE ASSISTS

Maravich collected his 45 points on 17 of 32 shots from the field and on 11 of 15 free throws. In addition, he handed out five assists. Before he fouled out, Walk hit on 14 of 27 field goal tries and on six of 10 from the charity line.

Pistol Pete's heroics overshadowed the 71-70 come-from-behind victory sixth-ranked Cincinnati scored over 15th-ranked California at Berkeley. Two free throws by Rick Roberson with 17 seconds left pulled it out for the Bearcats.

Orchard Ridge, Nikes Triumph

Ron Donoho, who entered the game with seven seconds left to play, sank two clutch free throws with five seconds remaining to clinch Oakland Community College Orchard Ridge's 100-99 conquest of Washtenaw CC Wednesday night in Farmington.

The victorious Raiders rallied in each half after Washtenaw had moved into 40-30 and 71-62 leads. Orchard Ridge led at the half, 47-46, as Mike Charette dropped in 16 of his 21 points and Fred Street scored 15.

TOP SCORER

Street finished with a game-high 28 points plus 15 rebounds and six assists for Orchard Ridge (4-3) who was playing without its top scorer and rebounder Charlie Rice.

★ ★ ★

Bill Miller added 22 points and 11 rebounds for the winners. Washtenaw, too, was minus its top player who was ill. Joe Cole's 25 points and Willie Bates' 22 paced the losing Warriors (3-7).

AUBURN WINS

In other games, Auburn Hills (3-5) downed Highland Park, 83-65, while Highland Lakes (1-5) dropped a 128-96 decision to Saint Clair.

★ ★ ★

Highland Lakes and Auburn Hills tangle tomorrow night at Royal Oak Dondero High School.

Glenn Lenhoff poured in 27 points and teammates Ron Kirkwood and Larry Middlebrook collected 12 apiece to spark the Auburn Hills attack. The Nikes led at halftime, 47-33.

★ ★ ★

Saint Clair, with Jim Harris collecting 37 points, jumped in front of Highland Lakes at halftime, 69-49, and coasted the rest of the way.

★ ★ ★

Frank Russell turned in a sharp game for Highland Lakes, hitting on 14 of 20 shots and finishing with 30 points. Len Cole picked up 15 markers and hauled down 15 rebounds.

Steam-Powered Racers Squeezed by '500' Ruling

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Anton Tony Hulman, president of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, said Wednesday that the entry form for the 53rd 500-mile auto race May 30 will provide for steam-powered cars on a conditional basis.

★ ★ ★

The conditions are such that no steam engine is likely to be pushing a car around the 59-year-old track in the annual Memorial Day classic.

★ ★ ★

"Lack of information concerning the performance qualities of such propulsion systems at this time," Hulman said, "makes it impossible for us to establish precise maximum specifications comparable to the 'specs' already in effect for other types of engines."

★ ★ ★

Hulman said supplementary regulations for the race "will give the speedway the right to reject or accept such an entry pending a thorough evaluation of it, which may necessitate a series of tests at the speedway to determine whether or not it can be expected to compete with other entries in a fair and equitable manner."

JUST PLAIN WILLIE — Officially, it will be Willie Horton from now on. Named William Wattison Horton at birth, the Detroit Tigers' star outfielder had his name changed to Willie Horton in a Detroit probate court. Willie shows the document that makes the change official. It took three minutes for him to have his petition okayed, then another 20 minutes to sign autographs for the court members. Oh, yes, that's a 1968 World Series ring on his finger.

Local Skaters Vying in Hockey Tourney

DETROIT (AP) — There will be a touch of hometown atmosphere about the fourth annual Great Lakes Invitational hockey tournament that begins Friday at Detroit's Olympia Stadium.

The favored University of Michigan Wolverines, Michigan State, and host team Michigan Tech all have a total of eight Detroit area players.

★ ★ ★

The two-day tournament gets under way at 6:30 p.m. Friday when Michigan State, already beaten twice by Michigan this season, meets the Wisconsin Badgers.

Michigan State and Wisconsin split a pair of games recently, and Wisconsin, which also beat Michigan once, is a co-favorite to win the tournament.

The Badgers are playing as Independents this season but are expected to join the Western Collegiate Hockey Association in the near future.

FAST TEAM

Michigan, led by All-American goalie Jim Keough, meets Michigan Tech at 8 p.m. Friday. The Wolverines, fast this year but smaller than in the past, have scored only 13 goals in four games, losing once to Wisconsin. Keough has held opposing shooters to 2.5 goals per game.

Of the MSU Spartans, goaltender Bob Johnson is a junior from Farmington. Dick Houteman, a forward and Ron Springer, a defenseman, are from St. Clair Shores.

★ ★ ★

Dearborn's Bob Pattullo is a forward on the team, along with Randy Sokoll, a Detroit sophomore. Sokoll has two of the team's 15 season goals.

Michigan's Detroit products are defenseman Craig Malcolmson, a senior from Ferndale, and Tom Scott, a Troy sophomore.

Bullets Win 6th in Row

Pistons Snap Slump

By the Associated Press

The Detroit Pistons pulled big Dave DeBusschere back to double team the "Big E"—Elvin Hayes of the San Diego Rockets—Wednesday night, and when the scrapping was over Hayes had 19 rebounds and 40 points but Detroit had a 124-112 victory.

"The difference is that you win," said Happy Hairston by way of explaining what enabled the Pistons to overcome an eight-game losing streak. In snapping their own, the Pistons handed the Rockets a fourth straight loss.

New coach Paul Seymour, who replaced Donnis Butcher Dec. 2, noted: "We're inconsistent, but except for the first quarter we played good defense. We made them turn the ball over a lot."

The Rockets took off like one, though, blazing a 12-3 lead in the first two minutes. But Hairston and Jimmy Walker, who each collected 27 for the night, ran off 10 straight points in the second period to bring Detroit back to trail by only three, 57-54 at the half.

SIXTH STRAIGHT

The Baltimore Bullets, meanwhile, posted their sixth straight victory, beating San Francisco 109-100, and maintained a precarious, one-game lead over the Philadelphia 76ers who whipped Seattle 115-111.

In other games, New York turned back Boston 104-98, Atlanta stopped Milwaukee 122-116 and Phoenix defeated Cincinnati 123-114.

★ ★ ★

In the American Basketball Association, Indiana topped Miami 122-118 in overtime, New Orleans whipped New York 117-113 at Jackson, Miss., Denver defeated Houston 111-102 and Kentucky checked Los Angeles 115-107.

The Bullets had only an 80-76 lead after three quarters against the crippled Warriors, but then Loughery scored 10 of his 26 points to put it away.

Teammate Gus Johnson contributed 21 points and 23 rebounds—15 in the final half—and Wes Unseld had 26 rebounds and 15 points to offset a 30-point showing by San Francisco's Jeff Mullins.

The Warriors, suffering their eighth loss in nine games, played without star Nate Thurmond and Clyde Lee.

Philadelphia, in extending its mastery over Seattle, staved off a last-ditch rally by the Super Sonics and whipped them for the 10th consecutive time. The Sonics, who came into the league last season as an expansion club, never have beaten the 76ers.

Philadelphia led 60-58 at halftime, and then pulled in front 101-85 early in the fourth period before the Sonics launched their spirited comeback.

FINAL POINTS

Seattle closed within 112-111 with 61 seconds to go on a basket by Lenny Wilkens only to have the 76ers score the final three points.

The Sonics' Bob Rule garnered scoring laurels with 36 points and Chet Walker provided most of Philadelphia's punch with 30.

Phoenix reeled off the first nine points and was never headed after that in preventing Cincinnati from capitalizing on Boston's loss and moving into third place in the Eastern Division.

Gail Goodrich, who finished with 34, scored 15 points in the opening quarter to help stake the Suns to the early lead. Then, after being blanked in the second quarter, he came up with 17 in the third session to thwart a Royals' rally.

Jerry Lucas topped Cincinnati with 24 points, Oscar Robertson had 23 and Connie Dierking 22.

Atlanta shook off a late Milwaukee rally for its sixth straight victory to move to within 4½ games of idle Los Angeles in the Western Division.

Reacts to Interest Hikes

Market Falls in Heavy Trade

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell in heavy trading today as it reacted to news of higher interest rates, but scattered recovery was evident early in the afternoon.

★ ★ ★

Losses outnumbered gains by slightly less than the 3-to-1 margin for the downside that prevailed earlier.

★ ★ ★

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon took a thumping loss of 3.0 at 361.9 with industrials off 5.5, rails off 1.6 and utilities off .2.

Wall Street analysts predicted Wednesday that when the market reopened after a day off for paper-work catchup, there would be a hevay sell-off. Many of them also forecast that the initial drop would be followed by a recovery late Thursday or Friday as yearend reinvestmend demand made itself felt.

KEY STOCKS FALL

Key stocks fell along a broad front, with most losses going from fractions to a point or so. As the initial shock of the selloff waned, selected issues posted gains running to a point or more.

★ ★ ★

At noon the Dow Jones industrial average was down 8.27 at 962.64, trimming an earlier loss of 9.26.

★ ★ ★

The market was reacting to the boost in the discount rate to 5½ per cent from 5¼ per cent, approved by the Federal Reserve Board late Tuesday; and also to the advance in the prime rate by commercial banks to 6¾ per cent from 6½ per cent on Wednesday.

Prices declined in heavy trading on the American Exchange. Asamera Oil, up 2, was the volume leader. Also active, Fisher Governor, Kin-Ark Oil and Canadian Export Gas & Oil dropped fractions.

U.S. Steel Plans Price Increase

Four Pct. Hike Slated for Early Next Month

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp., which usually set the nation's steel price trends, says it will hike the cost of the industry's basic product early next month.

The 4 per cent increase, which will boost the price of semifinished carbon steel $5 a ton and semifinished alloy steel $7 a ton, is the largest in a series of adjustments in the industry.

★ ★ ★

In addition to semifinished steel, the giant producer said Wednesday it's raising the price of steel pilings $7 a ton.

Semifinished steel is sold to mills in rough forms called billets, blooms and slabs. The mills then roll these into virtually all steel products, rods, wires, sheets and strips.

PRODUCTS AFFECTED

U.S. Steel said the increase affects products that account for 4 per cent of total industry shipments, making them one of the biggest tonnage items.

It said the price hikes are intended to raise the company's revenues less than one-tenth of one per cent. The new prices, it said, will go into effect Jan. 2, 1969.

It was unknown how the rest of the industry would react to the move. Steel prices have been fluctuating since Bethlehem Steel, the nation's second largest producer, rocked the industry earlier this year with a 22 per cent cut on the price of hot rolled carbon sheet, mostly used for autos and construction.

U.S. Steel and most of the industry followed. But then U.S. Steel said it was restoring hot rolled sheets to the former price of $125 a ton. Bethlehem said it would go up on the price, but only to $118 a ton.

ABOUT-FACE

As other producers followed, U.S. Steel made an about face and said it wouldn't put its higher price into effect. The company said it wanted to wait for "further clarification of the competitive situation."

At the same time the industry was also raising prices on some other products.

Economy Rein Has Risk: Credit Crunch

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — The Federal Reserve may be willing to run the risk of a credit crunch in an effort to girdle an economy now bursting at the seams. It may be the lesser of two dangers.

CUNNIFF

The existing danger is from inflation. The risk in tightening credit is that it might provoke too great a slowdown.

★ ★ ★

The ingredients of a crunch seem to be present in the Fed's action this week. First it raised the discount rate, the rate at which banks borrow money, from 5.25 per cent to 5.50 per cent. Money thus was made more expensive.

Second, the Fed took no action to remove the lid on the rates banks may pay to attract deposits. If it had been raised, the banks could attract more money from business for the purpose of relending. Money thus was made less available.

The net effect is that demand will far exceed the availability of loanable funds. Credit-sound customers may be refused loans. Tight money may be back with us.

The Fed seems to feel it has good reason to turn niggardly. This economy of the United States is out of shape, swollen too large for the frame. Not all the size is muscle; some is fat.

★ ★ ★

By making money less available the Fed hopes to slow economic activity to what is considered sustainable. And what better way of doing this than to make less available the credit that permits economic activity?

Credit demands today are phenomenal. Spending by corporations for expansion is forecast to run anywhere from 5 to 13 per cent, and most of this would be borrowed. Consumer credit demands also are near records.

PSYCHOLOGY

Much of this demand is the result of an inflationary psychology, which means that although prices are high now, many individuals and corporations believe they will be even higher tomorrow.

When such a psychology grips an economy it means the very existence of inflation is the cause of still more inflation. People rush to buy now; tomorrow will be too expensive.

★ ★ ★

As an economic adviser to President Johnson once noted, this is like a fat lady eating chocolates. Knowing that she is overweight but unable to face the facts, seh dispels her anguish by eating more chocolates.

In terms of that analogy, the fat lady is now being put on a more stringent diet. She won't starve, perhaps, even though she might believe the end is near. But she is likely to lose some weight.

There is a health hazard, of course, in restricting credit, which is the food and fuel of economic expansion. The danger is recession, an anemia of the economy whose onset is sometimes difficult to discern.

★ ★ ★

The alternative danger, the danger of too much fat, of a yeasty, inflated economy, is that the world might look at our dollar bills and say these symbols of the economy also are inflated and therefore unacceptable.

★ ★ ★

By constantly running a high rate of debt, by spending with foreign nations more than we sell to them, the United States could be forced to devalue its currency.

This, in effect, would be an admission that American dollars are not worth what is claimed for them, that Americans are consuming at a rate faster than their ability to pay, and that foreigners should get more dollars for what they send to us.

DIFFICULTY SEEN

Despite attempts such as surtaxes and credit restrictions, it will perhaps be difficult to keep the American economy from getting out of shape from time to time.

★ ★ ★

The reason for this is a commitment to an expanding, full-employment economy. Such a commitment almost inevitably means some degree of inflation. And to contain it means high interest rates or restricted credit.

Intelsat 3 Soars Into Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The most powerful communications satellite ever launched whirled through a preliminary orbit today en route to a stationary outpost high above the Atlantic Ocean.

Once in position, Intelsat 3 will more than double transatlantic satellite telephone and television channels and will link stations in North and South America, Europe and Africa.

The 642-pound satellite soared into space Wednesday night atop a fiery Delta rocket which propelled it into a great elliptical path ranging from about 165 to 22,700 miles above the earth.

After checking it for several hours, trackers plan at about 8:30 a.m. EST Friday to send a signal to fire a spacecraft engine that is to place Intelsat 3 into a permanent orbit 22,300 miles above the Equator just off the coast of Brazil.

The 63-nation International Telecommunications Satellite Consortium (Intelsat) paid the U.S. space agency $4.7 million to launch the $6 million payload.

★ ★ ★

The satellite is capable of handling 1,200 simultaneous two-way telephone conversations or four television programs.

12-Month Earnings for Edison Increase

Detroit Edison's gross revenues were $441,738,768 for the 12 months ended Nov. 30. This is an increase of 7.4 per cent as compared to $411,451,753 for the corresponding period of 1966-67.

Net earnings of the company for the same 12 months were $60,509,183. After providing for the preferred stock dividend requirement, earnings available for common stock (assuming complete conversion of outstanding convertible debentures) amounted to $1.91 per share.

If all the outstanding convertible preferred stock issued in October 1967, were converted, the earnings on the common then outstanding would be $1.89 per share.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q—Is Investors Variable Payment Fund a suitable investment to cover college expenses of my 14-year-old son?—J. G. Why is Investors Variable so much slower than many others?—N. D.

A—I partially answered these questions in mid-November when these readers were writing to me. The cleavage between traditional and contemporary concepts of fund management has more recently created the "go-go" funds emphasizing capital gains for short-term trading.

Investors Variable is a conservative performer, reporting a 90 per cent gain in net asset value for five years through 1967 and five per cent for nine months in 1968 through September, contrasting sharply with Enterprise, the leading go-go fund's 357 per cent and 32 per cent for the same intervals. Investors Variable ranks in the upper half of a group of 50 similarly managed funds, having achieved above-average results more than once in the past 10 years. Total assets have crossed the billion-dollar mark, a vast sum to invest safely and profitably.

Nowadays, institutional money managers handling large sums are hard-pressed to find a fair share of the big winners. IDS managers hope to improve the performance of Investors Variable by dividing it into several smaller operating units called "satellites," each to be managed separately.

Hold shares to test this new concept, but for educational purposes with only four years to run, I recommend buying equal dollar amounts of General Mills, Macke Co., Kennecott Copper or other growth stocks mentioned in the column.

Q—At what age are a paid-up annuity and mutual fund withdrawals advisable? I'll receive minimum Social Security benefits and no pension.—C. W.

A — Whenever you stop work you'll need your annuity payments to supplement Social Security income. Postpone withdrawals from your mutual fund as long as possible to build your investment to its peak potential. Meantime, call in your fund representative to advise you how best to fit withdrawals to your needs. Fund withdrawals are flexible income supplements but will consume principal if set too high.

"Probably the best UNposed picture taken by any news protographer in our time . . . the 1945 Iwo Jima flag-raising picture by Joe Rosenthal."

"Perhaps the best-remembered picture from the Pearl Harbor disaster of December 1941 . . . the battleship Arizona after it was hit by Japanese bombs."

F. A. (Al) Resch, who retired recently as executive newsphoto editor of the Associated Press, spent 40 years as an AP staffer, 30 of them heading up the world's largest picture agency.

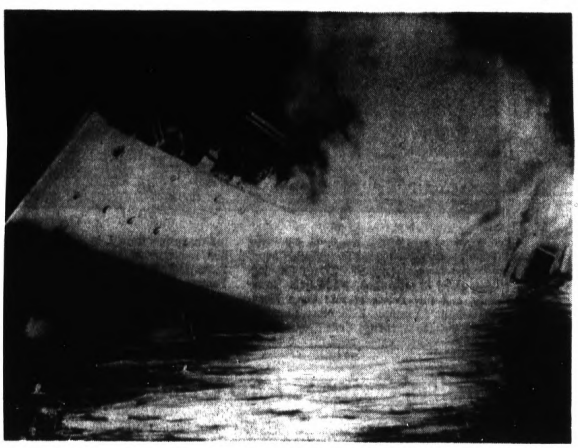
One of Resch's final assignments for the AP was the selection of some of the most memorable pictures to cross his desk. Here they are with Resch describing the impact they made at the time.

During those years most of the great newsphotos of the time crossed his desk.

Also during those years remarkable changes took place in the world of news photography, changes in equipment and in techniques of transmitting pictures from distant places of the world.

But one thing did not change — the inherent drama, the sheer tingle of excitement in shooting, editing and transmitting news pictures. Many a great picture was transmitted into Resch's New York headquarters as he watched them roll in inch-by-inch on the automatic picture-recording machines.

"One of the most symbolic pictures to come out of postwar Germany, a defecting East Berlin soldier leaping a barbed wire barricade into West Germany, August 1961. . . . taken by Peter Leibing of the Hamburg agency, Contipress."



"Back in 1938, the AP paid a fancy price for a roll of undeveloped 35mm film taken at night, during the major naval battle of the Spanish Civil War . . . this was one of the memorable exposures . . . the Beleares, pride vessel of the Spanish insurgent fleet, on its way to the bottom."

"One of the most shocking pictures ever taken in America . . . assassination, by Bob Jackson of the Dallas (Tex.) Times-Herald."

Jack Ruby shooting Lee Harvey Oswald in the aftermath of the JFK assassination.

"No caption was needed . . . Ike's eyes told the story of his reaction in 1951 when he was told Gen. Douglas MacArthur had been relieved by President Truman as U.N. commander in the Far East. His memorable comment was, 'Well, I'll be darned.' A Stars & Stripes picture."

Promise of the Prophets—1

Predecessors of Jesus Challenging

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first article in a five-part Christmas series about the prophets, those courageous, deeply inspired social critics of old, whose sensitivity to divine compassion for mankind held a vision of a coming Messiah, a Savior. Their ancient intimations are regarded by Christians as pointing to the advent of Jesus Christ on the first Christmas. Their challenge to wrongdoing also has continuing parallels.)

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

From the start, a hard question beat at the heart of the world Who owns it? And for what intent?

"What is his name?" puzzled Moses, more than 3,200 years ago, while his enslaved people toiled under the Egyptian oppressor, Pharaoh Ramses II. To whom, or what, does man belong? Where lies his real allegiance?

★ ★ ★

The answer remained searingly elusive, unbound to manageable equations or definitions. "I am who I am."

It was mystifying, the central enigma. Whence came this cosmos, this life, and whither? What was man's function in it, to find full satisfaction? How to decipher the purpose and participate well? It wasn't clear.

CLUES ACCUMULATED

But clues accumulated through time and events, chiefly for Christians in the birth of a Jew called Jesus, the manifestation of "the mystery hidden for ages," as described by the apostle Paul.

That is the content of Christmas.

But it wasn't an isolated occurrence. Jesus stood in a long succession. He came in turn in the unfolding of history's disclosure. He was part of a process. It foreshadowed Him. It pointed to Him, before and since.

★ ★ ★

Its prior agents were the Old Testament prophets.

They were the precursors. They witnessed to Him, He said. "Everything written about Me in the law . . . and the prophets must be fulfilled." They prefigured the Elect One," the Annointed," the "Day of the Lord."

They were a fiercely challenging phenomenon, among the most disturbing men ever known.

DEFY SYSTEMS

Like the One they preceeded, they defied established systems. They were protesters, rebels, reformers, idealists in a groping, confused era. They propounded a lofty concept of man's role and right obligations. Like Jesus, they also had it rough.

Typically, they were scorned, ridiculed, flogged, imprisoned and sometimes killed. They were lonely, anguished man, often pursued as fugitives, marked as traitors.

★ ★ ★

"Get away from me!" the Egyptian monarch roared at the prophet Moses, who had unleashed a staggering slave revolt in 1290 B.C. "Take heed . . . never see my face again" or "you shall die."

But the people miraculously got free of the grinding tyranny, giving them the first vivid, memorable impression of an ultimate sovereign allied with man, of a supreme Deliverer, freeing men from their chains.

DEFENDED DIGNITY

And the continuing line of prophets thundered that defense of human dignity, of help for the imprisoned, of strength for the downtrodden and abused, of hospitality to the stranger and alien, of peace among peoples and equity for every man.

★ ★ ★

"Nabi," they were called, "speakers" or "announcers" of the divine will for men. They were not soothsayers or fortune-tellers, practicing occult arts, but they discerned keenly the shape of the times, its directions and impending consequences.

★ ★ ★

Neither were they microphones mechanically speaking divine dictation. Rather, they were intensely conscientious men, sensitive to God's vision of the world, attuned to it and conveying it through their own particular human perspective and temperaments. And they stabbed the complacency of the proud and powerful.

Unlike temple-confined pagan religions, they saw divine concern engaged with history, and they hurled their exhortations at kings, governments and social orders.

"You are the man!" the prophet Nathan blazed at the great King David, after leading him to sternly condemn another "man," described by Nathan as a rich landlord who had seized a poor peasant's only sheep for a feast. Much-married David, of about 1,000 B.C., had taken a soldier's only wife, Bathsheba.

Although the rulers sometimes had thier own fawning circle of seers and dervishlike "prophets," who served only to please their superiors and sanction official policy, the genuine truth-bearers, the real prophets, were ruggedly uncompromising.

"You troubler of Israel!" King Ahab flared at the prophet Elijah when that desert mystic, clad in hairskin and leather girdle, appeared about 860 B.C. to condemn the national idol-worship of Baal and Astarte promoted by the queen, Jezebel.

Condemned, hunted, hiding near the end of his life in a cave, Elijah sorrowed that other prophets had been "slain by the sword, and I, even I only, am left, and they seek my life."

But others would arise after he vanished in whirlwind.

INDIGNANT MEN

They were agitated, indignant men, pained by rampant greed, alarmed at exploitation of the poor, passionately concerned for human welfare, as if they mirrored the very pathos of God at man's callousness.

"Here this, you who trample upon the needy!" declared the rural prophet Amos, a tree-tender from Tekoa, around 760 B.C. He warned that divine justice would "smite the capitals until the thresholds shake."

★ ★ ★

Fearless, acute, driven by an inner fire, they flung their jolting admonitions at a flabby, delinquent society, and as happens in every age, this drew stern reactions.

Amos was accused of conspiracy. "The land is not able to bear his words," reported to Israel's King Jeroboam II, whose crushing taxes bled the improverished farmers and enriched the riotous cult of Meribaal.

MESSAGE OF CREATOR

As with other prophets, Amos's message was that a universal Creator of the world is actively involved in its affairs, interrelated with men and their institutions, and that their right function is to advance human betterment, not ritual posturing.

★ ★ ★

"Thus says the Lord God . . . I hate, I despise your feasts, and I take no delight in your solemn assemblies, Amos proclaimed. "But let justice roll down like waters, and righteousness like an ever-flowing stream."

★ ★ ★

Amid the confusion and decadence of the times, however, the prophets also sensed an eventual rejuvenation, the burst of new clarity, cleansing and universal dominion wrought by a divine emissary, whom Christians see as Jesus.

The prophet Nathan told King David that God would raise up a descendant and "establish the throne of his kingdom forever," that He would be God's own son, chastened "with the stripes of the sons of men."

VERSE IN GENESIS

"And I will make Him the firstborn, the highest of the kings of the earth," goes Psalms 89, one of those strangely futuristic Davidic psalms.

Even further back, in the misty story of creation and man's sinful attempt to deify himself, a verse in Genesis 3:15 has been regarded as referring to a coming representative of the Creator who would counteract human corruption and "bruise" the head of the serpent, personifying evil.

★ ★ ★

"The scepter shall not depart from Judah . . . until He comes to whom it belongs," goes another remote allusion in Genesis 49.

"A star shall come forth out of Jacob," says an obscure oracle in Numbers 24, another part of the acient Torah, or Pentateuch, often attributed to Moses.

The early intimations were vague, often ambiguous, hazy prophetic visions of a coming divine intervention.

BROODING NOTE

"I will pass through the midst of you, says the Lord," wrote Amos, adding a brooding note that could refer to the ordeal of Jesus. "Woe to you who desire the day of the Lord! It is darkness and not light!"

A description of the very scene that would involve Jesus on the cross hundreds of years later showed up in some ancient Davidic Hymns, as recorded in Psalms 22:

★ ★ ★

"My God, My God, why has thou forsaken Me? . . . A company of evildoers encircles Me; . . . they have pierced My hands and feet . . . they divide My garments among them, and for My raiment they cast lots!

"Yeah, to Him shall all the proud of the earth bow down. Posterity shall serve Him . . . and proclaim His deliverance to a people yet unborn."

Blind Couple Robbed; Son, Sighted, Cries

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — A gunman robbed a blind couple of all their Christmas shopping money and threatened to kill their frightened weeping son unless he kept quiet, police said Wednesday.

Deputy inspector of detectives Kenneth Marple said the robbery victims, Kenneth Northrop, 33, and his wife, Carolyn, had gone Christmas shopping Tuesday night, escorted by their sighted son James 8.

★ ★ ★

The gunman accosted the family on a South Side street, stuck a pistol in Northrop's ribs and told him, "I want your money."

Mrs. Northrop told the man, "We are blind and we don't have much money. Let us keep what little we have."

NO MONEY

"I don't have any money," the gunman answered. "I'm a hippie. I can't get a job."

The gunman took $51 then fled.

Mishap Injures 2 in Waterford

Two persons were injured yesterday in a Waterford Township accident involving a school bus and three cars.

The mishap occurred at Pontiac Lake and Crescent Lake roads just before noon, township police said.

★ ★ ★

Drivers of two of the cars, Mrs. William D. Millward of 6310 Crabapple, Independence Township, and Mrs. William C. Gray of 1225 Hiller, Waterford Township, were treated at Pontiac General Hospital and released.

★ ★ ★

Driver of a third car, Ronald L. Strebe of 1735 Petrolia, West Bloomfield, and the bus driver, Mrs. Sylvia Hampshire, 6411 Prairie Lawn, Waterford Township, reportedly escaped injury.

Hoping to influence the forces of nature certain early North American Indians buried their dead in huge earthern mounds formed in the shapes of birds and bears.

Farmington Twp. Man Included in Sales Injunction

LANSING (AP)—Two men—one from Farmington Township — and their associates Wednesday, were ordered to stop Michigan sales of working interests in Illinois oil and gas wells.

The Michigan Commerce Department's securities bureau issued the cease and desist order against Wesley Potts, 28212 Greencastle, and Ginther H. Blankenburg of Wayne, saying they never had registered as agents under the law.

★ ★ ★

Also named in the order was Rinnert & Hamilton Drilling Co., Inc., also known as R & H Drilling Co. Inc. of Olney, Ill.

The department said it had received evidence that oil and gas well working interests in the vicinity of Noble, Ill., were being offered and sold in Michigan although they never have been registered for sale in the state.

Last year 6,500 new and improved food items were introduced including many canned and frozen meat dishes.

Viet Hero Signs for 3-Year Hitch . . . in Detroit

Dwight H. Johnson, 21, who won the Medal of Honor in Vietnam, is signing up today for another three-year hitch in the Army — but this time around, Johnson is not leaving the Detroit area.

Sgt. Johnson has agreed to another hitch on the condition that he is not required to leave the vicinity, an Army spokesman said yesterday.

The youthful hero, who was credited with pulling wounded comrades from burning tanks in a Vietcong ambush and holding off the enemy unit until help arrived, will spend most of the time visiting Detroit schools and explaining Army programs to students, the spokesman said.

Suspects Held in City Burglary

Alarm Brings Police to Radio-TV Store

A Pontiac man and woman were being held for investigation today in connection with the burglary of Hod's radio and television store at 770 Orchard Lake.

Pontiac police arrested Miller C. Webb, 26, of 312 Hughes inside the building after responding to a burglar alarm shortly before midnight.

★ ★ ★

Mary G. Williams, 31, of 477 Central was taken into custody a short time later when police stopped a car fitting the description of one seen leaving from near the scene of the break-in.

Found inside the auto, according to police, were 25 insulin needles, five plastic syringes, swabs, a pair of wire cutters, and a number of assorted wigs and wiglets.

Nothing was believed taken from the building, but police found many radios and televisions in a panel truck owned by the firm and parked in an adjoining garage.

Webb reportedly was standing behind a counter in the store when police broke down a front door to gain entrance.

Police said that at 1 a.m. Willie Driver of 242 Earlmoor reported to police that the car that they impounded when they arrested Miss Williams was his, and that he had loaned it to Webb Dec. 10 and had not seen it since.

Dean Martin's Vegas Shift Nets Him '10 Point' Interest

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Dean Martin's going to become president . . . of the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas.

It's part of the deal he's just made which will see him moving over from the Howard Hughes-owned Hotel Sands next summer. More important financially, Dino will receive "10 points," or 10 per cent interest in the Riviera profits, more than any star ever received from any Las Vegas hotel.

WILSON

Atty. Sid Korshak representing the Riviera told me in Los Angeles that he completed the deal with Herman Citron, representing Dino, last Saturday. It has long been in negotiation. Jack Entratter of the Sands, who first employed Dean in Las Vegas, said, "We know nothing about it and haven't heard from Dean about it. We still have him under contract at the Sands for 14 more weeks."

Dean will contend that his contract at the Sands expires April 29 and that he is eligible to work at the Riviera in May, the lawyers said.

Bob Hope when leaving for Vietnam was very happy about a gag that his writers had worked out for Rosie Grier, the huge lineman appearing on the USO show. It was very short and went like this: "Good night, Tiny Tim, whatever you are."

Anita Louise and her husband Henry Berger gave a very posh party in Beverly Hills for the Joseph E. Levines (somebody said the most exciting personalities in town were there). Anita and Henry are forming Delfern Productions or Delfern Films, named after their street. Harold Robbins wore an orange blouse under his jacket. I asked him, "What does your wife think of you dressing in that?" He replied, "She likes it. It's hers."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Producer-director Robert Aldrich flew in from L.A. for the "Killing of Sister George" premiere—and brought his flu vaccine with him . . . Elliott Gould, filming "Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice" in Las Vegas, got too close to the gaming tables.

Jerry Colonna, ailing for a long time, will be back on the Bob Hope show Thursday . . . The Stage Deli waiters will make a contribution to the Police and Firemen's Widows' Fund, in memory of Mas Asnas, a one-time deputy commissioner.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Joel Schlesinger of Newark claims his doctor has a cure for the Hong Kong flu: "He takes one pill from Column A and one from Column B . . ."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Nature didn't make us perfect, so she did the next best thing—she made us blind to our own faults."

EARL'S PEARLS: Peter Zage spotted a sign in a Times Square store: "This year's Going Out of Business sale is even better than last year's!"

An autograph fan approached Jason Robards outside of "We Bombed in New Haven" and asked, "Aren't you Jason Robards?" "I don't know," the star said, "—I can't see a thing without my glasses." . . . That's earl, brother.

Windsor Blast Injures Three

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP)—Three firemen were taken to a hospital Wednesday following a fire and natural gas explosion in the basement of a downtown food market in Windsor.

Smoke and a strong smell of gas was detected in the building, which has apartment units at the top floor above the grocery.

It was discovered that a broken line in the basement was pouring raw gas into the basement. Firemen and gas company officials were called in, and all seemed to be under control.

Firemen allowed the gas to burn in order to prevent an explosion, but the gas fire extinguished itself and exploded when some escaping gas accumulated in the basement.

Flames from the explosion burned the face of one of the firemen and the hands of another. A third fireman staggered out of the building and collapsed.

Santa's Given Traffic Ticket

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Santa Claus was given a traffic ticket Wednesday.

"There was Santa, decked out in his white beard and red suit and all, standing beside his car while the cop wrote him a ticket," said Bob Gibson, who watched.

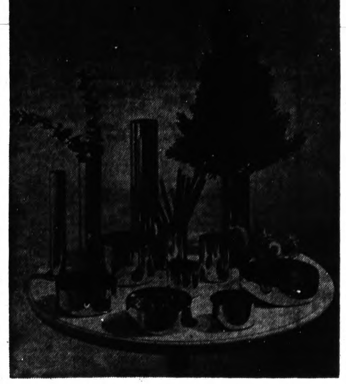
Gibson and some friends rode by in Gibson's car. "We rolled down the window and hollered 'Scrooge,' " he said.

The policeman didn't respond. "He just kept on writing that ticket in a very serious way," said Gibson.

Santa waved at all the cars driving along the busy street, but he wasn't saying "Ho, Ho, Ho."

Airport Aid OK'd

IRON MOUNTAIN (AP)—The Federal Aviation Agency has approved an additional $68,100 for Ford Airport at Iron Mountain for airport development, including land acquisition, runway extension, apron and taxiway strengthening. The new grant brings the total to $242,850.



FOR OFFICE, HOME — These gifts each sell for under $25. They include a candy dish, ash trays, vases, pencil cup, clip cup, paperweight, and candy bowls.

A Look at TV

Movies' Decline a Fact

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The popularity decline of televised movies — once a sensation in the ratings — is not longer merely a trend, but a confirmed fact.

Video seasons usually start out with the top network films, which draw good ratings before the lesser motion pictures come along later in the year and lose the audience.

* * *

This season, however, the drop in audience occurred almost immediately after the season began. And there is no sign that televised network movies will recoup their former popularity, except for an occasional blockbuster, a fluke hit or a film starring a personality who happens to be a tremendous favorite.

The national video ratings for the week ending Dec. 8, for instance, indicated that of six motion pictures shown on the three networks, the highest-ranked one among all television shows listed came in 35th.

ALREADY SEEN

The most obvious reason for the ratings slippage of films is that the majority of available popular hits have already been seen on the home tube, and most of the current titles are from the second rank of motion pictures. Yet seven movies a week continue to be scheduled by the networks, with occasional specials slipped in as relief.

A shortage of motion pictures may not, however, be the only major reason for the ratings drop. It is entirely possible that what is currently happening to audiences of movies on television is similar to what took place not too many years back with audiences of movies in theaters: they are getting weary of the old-style approach.

* * *

It was television itself, with its routine series, that took away the B-movie product from motion pictures in those years. And now the networks, with little more than second-class movies left, find themselves with the kind of films that audiences outgrew. And most of the original two-hour movies for video, though a sensation when the other films were also hot, now are clearly recognized as routine stuff.

* * *

I don't think that home audiences are tired of movies at all. What the networks need to do, ironically, is just what the film industry did when it was in trouble: give the fans what is presently not available on television — that is, more contemporary, creative, biting stuff, along with the occasional big standard movies that always draw.

Radiation Limit Slated for Uranium Mines

By SCIENCE SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Uranium mine workers show an incidence of lung cancer six times the normal rate — a problem that brought a public cry last spring in congressional hearings.

In response, the Department of Labor has called for severe levels of mine radiation.

★ ★ ★

On Jan. 1, 1969, a new minimum limit for radiation in U.S. uranium mines with Atomic Energy Commission contracts will automatically go into effect, unless President Johnson feels that the minimum is too strict and requires the adoption of a higher limit.

His decision will be based on a report by the Federal Radiation Council, which so far has kept its recommendation secret. At present, the council's report is sitting in the office of Wilbur J. Cohen, who is both secretary of Health, Education and Welfare and chairman of the council.

The current limit of one "working level" was set in June by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, who was impressed by reports of high incidence of lung cancer among uranium mine workers.

At the same time he established the limit of three-tenths of a working level to go into effect automatically on Jan. 1.

★ ★ ★

When questioned whether the FRC recommendation would affect his thinking on the matter, Secretary Wirtz adopted a wait and see attitude.

There is a great deal of work to be done in the area of persuasion because there is a great deal of doubt as regards the effectiveness as well as the attainability of a limit of three-tenths of a level.

★ ★ ★

On one side is the Department of Labor, which favors three-tenths of a level. On the other is the Atomic Energy Commission and uranium mining companies who argue that a three-tenths level is too low and unattainable.
