OEO Seeking County Grant

James M. McNeely, executive director of the Oakland County Commission on Economic Opportunity (OEO), today expressed hope that Oakland County would furnish the $42,000 in local funds needed for the OEO health services program.

A new OEO program that will encourage continued education of 90 deprived students who have completed the 10th grade also was announced today. Cost would be $125,476.

McNeely based his hope on county funds for the health program on the theory that the board of supervisors would reciprocate if the county were granted additional federal funds for its proposed health center due to extensive use of the facility by OEO.

The center to be built later this year in Southfield will cost about $900,000.

The county already has been assured of a federal grant for one-third of the construction cost.

McNeely feels that the center could be termed a "community facility" because of the extensive use anticipated by the poor and thus could be eligible for another third, or $300,000, in federal aid.

OEO BENEFITS

The OEO Commission today agreed to allow the health committee of the County Board of Supervisors cite the OEO benefits of the facility in applying for the additional grant.

Total cost of the proposed health program of the OEO is $426,417.

A commitment for 10 per cent in local funds must be established before OEO can apply for a federal grant for the balance.

★ ★ ★

OU, CRANBROOK

It will be deevloped and administered by Oakland University and Cranbrook.

A total of 60 youngsters, 35 Negro and 25 white, will be selected from the Pontiac, Hazel Park, Ferndale and Oak Park school systems for the OU program which will cost $86,146.

The $39,330 Cranbrook program will train 30 pupils from other country school systems.

Court Upholds Judges' Terms

Pratt and Thorburn Will Serve Until '71

Legislation extending the terms of office for two Oakland County Circuit Court judges through 1970 was in effect, upheld yesterday by the Michigan Supreme Court.

Judges Philip Pratt and James S. Thorburn will serve until Jan. 1, 1971, as a result of the high court's 4-4 split vote on a test case.

The local judges had appealed a ruling by Macomb County Circuit Court Judge George R. Deneweth.

Pratt and Thorburn had filed suit contending a 1965 state law extending their terms of office beyond the 1966 election was unconstitutional.

They had challenged the power of the legislature to extend their terms.

Deneweth said the state statute does not violate the new state constitution. He upheld the law.

The Michigan Supreme Court's split vote on the appeal will mean that Pratt and Thorburn will not have to seek reelection this year as both judges had expressed a desire to do.

OTHERS AFFECTED

Also affected by the high court's action are two circuit judges in Wayne County and another in Washtenaw County.

Judge William F. Ager Jr. Washtenaw County will also serve until Jan. 1, 1971, and judges Thomas E. Brennan and Benjamin Burdick of Wayne County will serve until Jan. 1, 1973.

Opposing Deneweth's decision, Chief Justice Thomas Kavanagh and justices Theodore Souris, Otis Smith and Paul Adams said terms for the five judges, all elected in 1964, should expire Jan. 1, 1967.

They held that the 1964 elections merely were to fill vacancies and were not for the regular six-year term of a circuit judge.

GENERAL RULE

They cited "the general rule that legislation extending terms of office of elective officials is unconstitutional."

The problem stems from a provision of Michigan's 1963 Constitution, which requires that judges' terms shall not all expire at the same time.

To implement this provision, (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

BLAST DAMAGE — An Avon Township explosion in which a Pontiac man and his son were injured this morning also caused this freak mishap at West Junior High School. A tar tank on a truck (arrow) exploded, blasting a piece of pipe some 200 feet through this window at the school. The pipe then flew 36 feet across the room, through a one-inch door and was lodged in the rear wall of a wood cabinet. The classroom was vacant at the time of the explosion.

City Man, Teen Son Are Hurt in Tar Blast

A Pontiac man and his 18-year-old son were burned severely this morning in an explosion at an Avon Township home construction site.

The youth, Ronald Gray of 282 Seward, was listed in serious condition and his father, Floyd, 57, in fair condition at Pontiac General Hospital, where both are being treated for burns.

They were injured when a tank containing tar exploded on the back of their truck.

Working for Oakland Wall Co. of Pontiac, the father and son were tarring the basement of a home under construction on the west side of Old Perch Road, just south of West Junior High School.

Rochester Fire Chief Lyle Buchanan said the cause of the 10:40 a.m. explosion could not be determined immediately, but he noted that the tar was being heated by liquid petroleum.

A piece of pipe from the tar tank was blasted through a window of the school some 200 feet away.

The force of the explosion drove the pipe through a one-inch door and lodged it in the back wall of a cabinet on the opposite side of the vacant classroom.

West Junior High School pupils reported they saw the elder Gray run toward the school with his clothes in flames after the explosion.

Buchanan said the only fire going when he arrived was in a small tar bucket.

Cong Attack on Camp Fails

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — At least two Red companies assaulted an isolated camp of U.S. Special Forces men and mountain tribesmen early today near the Laotian border. The attack failed.

The 300 Montagnard troopers and their 12 "green beret" American advisers beat off the attackers in a day-long battle around the triangular mud and log fortress, radio reports from the camp said.

During the barrage, the Reds shot down an armed U.S. Army C47 transport sent to help the besieged garrison in the Ashua Valley, 60 miles southwest of Da Nang. Four men were killed in the crash.

Rescue helicopters brought out three wounded crewmen of the C47.

But heavy Red fire prevented the helicopters from bringing out the dead.

About 200 Reds launched the attack at 2 a.m.

Tribunal Even Lacks Votes to Correct Error

Challengers Have Not Decided Whether to Appeal the Results

LANSING (AP) — Michigan legislators next fall will be running from the same districts that contributed to a 1964 Democratic landslide — thanks to a Michigan Supreme Court deadlock yesterday.

The high court reached a 4-4 stalemate—leaving the Democratic drafted one man-one vote plan in effect for the 1966 elections, and possibly past the 1970 federal census.

The court could not even muster enough votes on any one side to correct a 10,000-person mechanical error north of Lansing. The error remains in effect along with the plan.

The question could be appealed to U.S. District or Supreme courts, but challengers of the plan say they have not decided yet what they might do.

CHIDES COURT

Black, a onetime Republican attorney general who switched parties before running for the high court, chided the court last month for stalling on the involved question.

Seven separate opinions, totaling 75 pages, were handed down yesterday. They represented the last stage in a suit filed Aug. 22, 1964 challenging current districting. Thirty-four persons maintained the plan was a partisan gerrymander.

Highland Park Voters Approve City Income Tax

HIGHLAND PARK (AP) — Voters in this Detroit suburb approved a city income tax by a near 600-vote margin last night, following a two-month citizens group campaign to defeat the proposal.

The tax, putting a one per cent levy on residents and one-half per cent on nonresidents who work in Highland Park, was approved 3,035 to 2,438.

City officials said more than 5,000 of 16,873 registered voters cast ballots. The tax takes effect July 1.

It was estimated the tax would net the city $1 million to $1.2 million annually.

City Partially Lifts Public Housing Ban

Pontiac's 11-year ban on additional public housing was partially lifted last night to permit "housing designed for occupancy by the elderly."

In a 6-1 vote, the City Commission took final action amending the city's ordinance prohibiting further public housing.

Commissioner Robert C. Irwin repeated his action of last week by casting the lone dissenting vote.

While not necessarily against some form of housing for senior citizens, Irwin claims the commission is acting in too much haste.

"This commission," said Irwin, "is moving too rapidly into something they don't know anything about, and I resent it."

VIEW DISPUTED

Commissioner Leslie H. Hudson, who has urged the current consideration of senior citizen housing, disputed Irwin's view.

Hudson claimed senior citizen housing had been studied for many years. In effect he said any unanswered questions can be answered in the time it takes to construct the proposed housing units.

Hudson estimated that without major obstacles it would take at least two years to prepare senior citizen housing for occupancy.

Other commissioners said amending Ordinance 1270 was just the first step toward the housing units and that all plans would still have to be approved by the commission.

BAN STILL ON

The prohibition on other types of additional public housing in the city is continued.

Irwin countered that "the door has been opened for more public housing."

Title Insurance Firms Clash

County Committee Hears Both Sides

By JOE MULLEN

The giants and the little people of the title insurance industry clashed yesterday over proposed legislation sought by the larger firms.

Scene of the battle was the meeting room of the legislative committee of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors.

The committee previously had gone on record as opposing legislation that would require all title insurance companies to have their own tract index facilities.

A tract index file lists the history of ownership of all real estate property in Oakland County.

★ ★ ★

MAKES CHARGE

Edward Barrett, a member of the board of trustees of Midwest Title Co., one of the smaller firms, charged yesterday that the two large title companies doing business in Oakland County were trying to eliminate competition through legislation.

Barrett said he referred to Burton Abstract & Title Co. and Lawyers Title Insurance Co.

"The two combined formerly did 93 per cent of the title business in Oakland County," Barrett said. "Competition of smaller firms has cut this to 85 per cent now."

Jack Jominy, secretary-treasurer of another small firm, Great Lakes Title Co., agreed with Barrett that legislation was designed solely to put the smaller firms out of business.

ADMITS CHARGE

Burton vice president William B. Conn admitted that the legislation was aimed at Great Lakes and Midwest. He said (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Children's Unit Decision Near

Would Pave Way for State Hospital Facility

Action to go ahead with construction of the 80-bed children's unit proposed for Pontiac State Hospital may clear the legislature before the week is out.

★ ★ ★

This was the impression given today by State Rep. Einar E. Erlandsen, D-Escanaba, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Erlandsen headed a group of half a dozen committee members who visited the proposed site of the children's unit.

Authorization to proceed with the construction has been held up by the proposed sale of a 700-foot-deep strip of land fronting on Telegraph and extending some 2,600 feet north of Elizabeth Lake Road.

★ ★ ★

The legislators toured the site this morning and informally talked with representatives of a variety of groups concerned over the proposed land sale and the future development of the children's unit.

NEAR EDGE

The children's unit has been planned for a site near the northern edge of the land being considered for sale by the state.

Dr. James M. McHugh, vice president of the Foundation for Mentally Ill Children, Inc., Southfield, said the children's unit would probably be expanded toward the south in the future.

Viewing the parcel proposed for sale, Erlandsen said long-range plans call for the eventual widening of Telegraph.

He said this would take 104 feet off of the land up for sale.

TO MEET SOON

Erlandsen said the ways and means committee would meet later today or tomorrow to decide whether to give the go ahead to the hospital construction.

The House Committee is holding a resolution that would enable the construction costs to exceed the funds appropriated for the facility.

The legislature had authorized $2 million for the facility, but the bids opened Feb. 10 put the total price tag at $2,162,000.

★ ★ ★

Several groups were represented at this morning's informal meeting. These included the State Association for Emotional Disturbed Children, several chapters of the American Association of University Women and the Michigan Society for Mental Health.

Report Shows City Vice Cleanup Effective

By DAVID J. COOK

Pontiac — a town where "girls used to come up to cars in the street," according to a veteran vice squad officer — has apparently been cleaned up.

★ ★ ★

That's the essence of a six-page report turned in to city officials yesterday.

The report, resulting from four days of investigation last month, terms Pontiac's law enforcement activity in the field of prostitution as "tops, any way you rate it."

Harlan E. Raimo, regional director of the American Social Health Association (ASHA), submitted a copy of the report to City Manager Joseph A. Warren yesterday morning and later to Police Chief William K. Hanger.

★ ★ ★

ASHA, Raimo said, does investigative work in prostitution, venereal disease education, family life education and narcotics, at the request of government and civic agencies.

KEEPS SECRET

He did not reveal who asked for the study of Pontiac.

Ratings given are based on the size of the city, the amount of vice, and the accessibility of prostitution.

"This is a report card, not just on law enforcement, but on the whole community," Raimo told Hanger.

"It reflects what the community wants—because if the 'right' people want a town loosened up, they'll do it in spite of the police."

Hanger was joined at the meeting by Lt. Fred L. Goines, head of the department's vice squad.

The chief described himself as "pleased" with the report, "regardless of what the results are."

"This kind of independent report assures us that we're in touch with the situation," he said.

"If our vice squad hadn't been doing a job, I think this investigation would have showed it."

Raimo said plainclothes ASHA agents in other cities had been able to uncover vice rings where agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation had failed.

News Flash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said today that thus far this year allied forces have killed some 8,000 Communist Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops. In this week alone, the secretary noted, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces destroyed 1,600 of the enemy.

Arkansas Boxcar Blast Is Felt in Three States

CORNING, Ark. (AP) — A boxcar loaded with 175mm artillery shells exploded near here early today with a force felt in three states.

The predawn blast gouged a crater 50 feet long and 15 feet deep in a railroad siding three miles north of this town of 2,565.

* * *

The explosion, felt in Arkansas, Missouri and Tennessee, ruptured a natural gas line and forced the evacuation of several hundred Corning residents before the gas was shut off.

One house was demolished by the explosion and fire. Walls of two others were caved in. Only one person was injured, not seriously.

John Hutchinson of the Corning Volunteer Fire Department said the fear of more explosions kept firemen from battling the fire in the wreckage.

The gas leak, which existed for about two hours, could not be repaired because it, too, was near the fire, Hutchinson said.

* * *

Deputy Sheriff Jess Watson said the artillery shells exploded as the car stood on the siding to which it had been pulled to clear the main line for another train.

The car was one of 80 in a Missouri Pacific Lines freight hauling munitions to the Red River Arsenal at Texarkana on the Arkansas-Texas border.

CARRIED CHEMICALS

There were reports that some cars carried chemicals, but Mopac officials in St. Louis, Mo., said they could not confirm this.

The artillery shells were from the Army depot at Burlington, Iowa, Watson said.

Miss Mary Lee Vines, who worked late Tuesday night, said "A big red flash lighted up the sky. It shook the whole house. I could see it, hear it and feel it."

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Rapert were in St. Louis, but their house, 300 yards from the scene of the blast, was flattened.

Mrs. Glenden McGuire awoke to the thunder of the explosion and suffered cuts on her feet because of flying glass.

MSU Coeds Are Uneasy at Viet Trip

Apprehension mingled with anticipation mark the attitude which two Michigan State coeds are experiencing as they set out to visit their "adopted" village in South Viet Nam today.

* * *

Karen Radom, 881 Arlington, Birmingham, and Judith Rice of Greenville will attend dedication ceremonies for a new market place at Long Yen Village with funds donated by MSU's People to People Association.

* * *

The two said they were not as much concerned about their safety as about their reaction to the war.

"I really have no conception of what a war is," said Miss Radom.

IS CONCERNED

"I'm more worried about what I'm going to see and what effect it is going to have on me psychologically," Miss Rice said.

* * *

The two are cochairmen of People to People Association, which began economic aid last spring to the village, 60 miles northwest of Saigon. MSU students have donated nearly $1,000 for aid projects so far.

* * *

Vietnamese officials have postponed dedication of the market place twice so the girls could attend. South Vietnamese Premier Ky and members of his diplomatic staff are expected to attend, too.

* * *

The two originally turned down the trip, believing their group's funds should go entirely toward improving Long Yen, not for airline tickets.

FREE TRANSPORT

But transportation on the military air transport system has been arranged.

Making the trip with the girls will be Dr. Wesley Fishel, a Michigan State University professor of political science.

Rabbi Adler Grows Worse

DETROIT (AP) — The condition of Rabbi Morris Adler, shot in the head and arm Feb. 12, has sunk lower than ever before, doctors at Sinai Hospital said today.

A "turn for the worse" in the condition of the 59-year-old Jewish leader was reported yesterday. The hospital said the deterioration continued today.

* * *

The hospital statement said: "The setback which was reported last night has continued. His condition is graver now than at any time since he lapsed into a coma 3½ weeks ago. Vigorous medical attention continues."

A member of the Shaarey Zedek congregation in suburban Southfield, Richard Whisnetsky, 23, shot Rabbi Adler in the preence of nearly 1,000 worshipers.

Wishnetsky shot himself in the head after firing at Adler. He died three days later.

LBJ Urges Crime War

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson today asked Congress to support an all-out national war on crime through steps ranging from control of gun sales to comprehensive attacks on conditions that breed lawlessness.

In a special message to Congress, Johnson set forth a three-stage national strategy against crime." It would include immediate efforts to improve crime prevention, detection and prosecution; a comprehensive long-range follow-through program, and an attack on "crime at the roots."

Most of Johnson's proposals called for action on already-pending legislation.

The President also renewed urgings for action to speed administration of justice in the courts, reform the bail system so that it will not be unfair to the poor, and treat drug addicts as sick people rather than criminals while throwing the book at narcotics peddlers.

The program ranged from stepped-up attacks on crime in the streets to an intensified campaign against organized racketeering.

Johnson called for law enforcement reforms which included:

- Betterment of "the quality of local law enforcement" by adapting industrial management methods to police work, improving the training of law officers and correctional officials. To do this, he proposed an increase from the present $7.2 million to $13.7 to local police departments.
- An end to "the easy availability of deadly weapons to professional criminals, to delinquent youth and to the disturbed and deranged." This could be done, he said, through prompt enactment of pending legislation to a Democratic sweep of both houses of the legislature in 1964.

Republican-nominated justices John Dethmers, Harry Kelly and Michael O'Hara called for adopting new plans or remanding the question back to the commission.

REPEATED DEADLOCKS

The court ordered the commission back to the drawing boards last Nov. 2, but it deadlocked repeatedly on a 4-4 party-line basis.

Its New Year's Eve deadline passed without a decision and the question was dropped back in the lap of the court.

Souris, writing what amounted to the controlling Democratic opinion, ruled "the petitioners' allegations of partisan gerrymandering . . . are untenable under either federal or state law."

* * *

The present plan, he added, "complies with the requirements of the federal equality clause, as those requirements have been construed by the U. S. Supreme Court.

"If we assume the 1963 (State) Constitution's standards of compactness, contiguity and regularity of shape and conformity to county, city, and township boundaries survived . . . the plan conformed with those standards as well."

* * *

Republicans have argued present districting violates those state standards. They maintain further these standards survived while other constitutional requirements such as the 80 per cent population and 20 per cent area formula of the State Constitution fell under the landmark population-only U. S. Supreme Court ruling in June 1964.

in Pontiac," he said, "or our man would have found it.

"This doesn't mean there isn't the occasional operator or isolated incident.

"But it's a pretty good indicator.

The detailed report quoted a hotel bellboy as telling "a man" who approached him regarding a prostitute:

DAYS ARE ENDED

"Five years ago this was a good place, but no more."

Raimo said both bellboys and cab drivers questioned secretly by the ASHA representative "agreed they could not and would not act as go-betweens."

"Some," the report stated, "stated local authorities are too active in trying to prevent and suppress commercialized prostitution for them to risk pandering."

* * *

Hanger and Goines both cited support of local courts as assisting police in suppression of prostitution and other vice operations.

HARSH JUDGES

"If we arrest girls on the street," Goines said, "our judges hit 'em pretty hard.

"Not just a $20 or $50 fine, but 30 to 90 days in jail.

"That's where they hurt the operation."

* * *

Goines also said the ASHA report was valuable, because, he said, "The men on our vice squad become pretty well-known sooner or later."

CITY LOCATION

Raimo said much of Pontiac's reputed problems in the past have come because the city's location between two "big" cities — Detroit and Flint.

"If either one of those places starts to put the pressure on their rackets," he said, "Pontiac is the first place to feel it.

* * *

"The fact that our man was able to find so little in the way of organized vice shows your people must be keeping the pressure on here."

County Ranks 2nd in State for School Aid

The State Education Department reports nearly $18 million in federal education funds have been allocated to Michigan school districts since the start of the school year last fall.

Michigan's share of nearly $1 billion in federal funds to improve educational services for disadvantaged children amounts to $34.7 million for the current fiscal year.

Oakland County is second in the state in receipt of the funds with $1.7 million.

Leading the state, with projects totaling $6.7 million approved so far, is Wayne County. Saginaw County is third with $633,643.

Town Helps to Save a Life

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—The 3,625 residents of nearby Mascoutah, Ill., have mobilized to help save the life of Mrs. John Votrain.

Mrs. Votrain, 38, the wife of a schoolteacher and mother of two sons, took her first home treatment yesterday on a kidney machine paid for with funds collected by the citizens of Mascoutah.

"I'm thankful," said Mrs. Votrain. "I didn't know I had so many friends."

The machine does the job ordinarily done by kidneys. Mrs. Votrain has Bright's disease.

Fellow parishioners at St. John United Church of Christ in Mascoutah started the drive Jan. 16.

Two chairmen were selected for the campaign which already has raised more than $17,000. It costs $10,000 a year to operate the kidney machine.

RAISE MONEY

A dance, a chicken supper and a Zion Lutheran Church choir concert were a few of the money raising events.

The Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts staged fund drives. Three Roman Catholic organizations made large contributions.

"My hometown church, St. Paul's United Church of Christ, at Waterloo, Ill., heard about the money we needed," said Mrs. Votrain. "It had a special collection and sent us $3,600."

* * *

Painters, carpenters and electricians built a room in the basement and prepared it for the machine. Their work was free.

HUSBAND TRAINED

Her husband was trained to operate the machine by the Washington University Medical School at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

* * *

"I will still have to go back to Barnes for checkups about once each month," said Mrs. Votrain.

Dr. Herbert Lubowitz, a member of the medical school staff, said: "Without the treatments available by the kidney machine, death probably would come within six weeks. With the machine, it is theoretically possible to live almost normally."

Tax Exemption Deadline Near

Senior Citizen Filing Is Due by March 18

Pontiac home owners eligible for Senior Citizens Tax Relief have until March 18 to file for the tax exemption on 1966 taxes, according to City Assessor James E. Kephart Jr.

Kephart said application forms are available at the assessor's office in City Hall. The city has received about 1,250 applications so far.

Under a new state law, Act 27, passed last year, senior citizens 65 and over can obtain an exemption on their property taxes up to $2,500 on the assessed value as equlized.

Kephart said home owners, either husband or wife, who reached their 65th birthday on or before Dec. 31, 1965, are eligible for the real estate tax exemption.

The act applies to persons owning their home or purchasing it under a mortgage or contract.

$5,0000 ANNUALLY

The tax relief is granted beginning with the 1966 tax year to persons over 65 who earn less than $5,000 annually, have lived in Michigan seven consecutive years immediately prior to application and don't own properties in Michigan with a total assessed value exceeding $10,000 as equalized.

* * *

Persons applying for the tax exemption should bring proof of property ownership and their birth certificate or some document showing their date of birth, such as a Social Security application or discharge papers for those who served in the armed forces, said Kephart.

City Boosted for Fairground

Pontiac would be a more suitable location for the Michigan State Fairgrounds than Detroit is, state senators were told yesterday.

However, the suggestion of Agriculture Commission Chairman Blaque Knirk ran into immediate Senate Democratic opposition.

Rehabilitation of the fair site is one of the top problems in agriculture, Knirk said at a confirmation hearing before the Senate Business Committee.

"We in agriculture would be better off if, for year-around use, we had a coliseum not in Detroit," he said.

Knirk suggested Pontiac or a point closer to Lansing as a better location.

LAND SALE EYED

He said selling the Detroit land could produce enough money to develop a new site elsewhere.

Committee Chairman John Bowman, R-Roseville, objected.

"Who pays the most taxes and where are the most people?" he asked. The metropolitan people and area, he said, answering his own question.

Knirk said, "A lot of rural people won't go to Detroit."

Sen. Terry Troutt, D-Romulus, said the fair is often the only place city people can see farm animals and learn about farming.

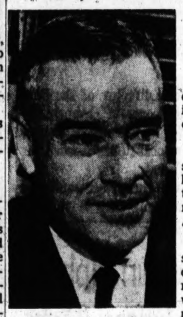
Veteran Commissioner Not Seeking Reelection

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — After 18 continuous years service to the city, Commissioner James A. Beresford has announced that he will not seek reelection to the commission this spring.

Beresford announced his decision in a letter addressed to the City Commission and read at its meeting last night.

"I regret I will not be up for reelection on the April 4 ballot," said Beresford. "I will miss my close association with many fine citizens and city employes."



JAMES A. BERESFORD

He expressed his gratitude to the citizens of the city for the opportunity they gave him to be of service.

* * *

Besides his many years as a commissioner, Beresford was the mayor of the city in 1954-55.

LONG HISTORY

Beresford, whose residence is at 411 Lone Pine, has an extensive history of public service.

He is a director of the Cranbrook Institute of Science, president of the Detroit Zoological Society, a member of the advisory board of the Salvation Army in Detroit and a director of the Booth Newspapers.

Robert A. Frye, mayor of the city, said he has enjoyed working with Beresford and that the city will miss his services.

* * *

"Jim has been a very public spirited citizen," he said. "He has given unstintingly of his time for the good of his community."

'MAGNIFICENT PLACE'

In his letter to the commission, Beresford stated that he considered the city one of the magnificent places in the world with natural beauty and fine neighbors.

* * *

"To serve a community such as Bloomfield Hills is a rewarding experience," he said.

* * *

"It takes many sacrifices in time and effort, but our future will continue to depend upon voluntary, unselfish service by our citizens."

Insurance Firms Clash on Proposal

the operation of these two firms was not good for the public.

Conn called Great Lakes a "general store operation" owned by 19 real estate men.

As for Midwest, he said its board of directors was the same as the board of directors of a savings and loan firm which he didn't name.

* * *

Companies should be free of pressures resulting from such ownership in conducting title insurance business, Conn said.

DENIES CHARGE

Barrett denied that the board makeup of Midwest was the same as of a savings and loan firm.

Both Great Lakes and Midwest use the county's tract index to gather information needed to issue title insurance.

Another of the smaller firms represented at the meeting, American Title Co., has its own title plant.

Its officials said the proposed legislation wouldn't put the firm out of business but they opposed it as it now stands after revision as "hardly adequate to regulate a major industry."

TIME REQUESTED

The committee voted to table action on the original bill as revised because it hasn't had time to study the changes.

* * *

It will retain its position, however, as opposing the legislation pending study of revisions.

Several months ago, the two large firms offered to purchase the county's tract index for $100,000 but this was rejected by the ways and means committee of the County Board of Supervisors last October.

The index has been available for public use.

Soviets Hint a Space First

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Reports from behind the Iron Curtain said today the Soviets are preparing a space spectacular which may involve cosmonauts changing from one spaceship to another in flight.

* * *

A report by Warsaw radio's Moscow correspondent said the flight "will be more complicated than any other so far." The report said the flight was likely to involve a pair of two-man Vorskod-type spaceships which would rendezvous.

* * *

"Then at least two cosmonauts would walk out into space and change their vehicles," the Warsaw report said.

the Legislature in 1963 decided that in the 1966 election, some Circuit Court judges would be elected for six years, some for eight and some for 10.

Starting with the 1972 elections, all would be elected for six-year terms.

REQUIREMENTS MET

Justice Michael O'Hara wrote that the Legislature, in extending the terms of the five judges elected in 1964, merely was complying with the constitutional requirement that Circuit Court judges "shall hold office for a term of six years."

Justices John Dethmers, Harry Kelley and Eugene Black agreed.

The other four justices argued, however, in an opinion written by Adams, that not every election for circuit judge should be for six years.

This, wrote Adams, would wreck the staggered term policy of the Constitution since, for example, if a judge died or resigned after one year in office, his job would come up for election in odd-numbered years.

The Constitution calls for roughly one-third of Michigan's circuit judges to come up for election every two years, in even numbered years.

The five judges all were appointed in 1963 after the Legislature created additional judgeships. They all were elected in 1964 to succeed themselves.

Adams argued that since the next regular election of circuit judges was scheduled for 1966, they merely were filling vacancies.

The staggering of terms, he said, was to be accomplished entirely in the 1966 election.

The question was taken to court by Thornburn and Pratt. The other three judges were given permission to intervene since they were affected by the results.

Pontiac Tax Board Elects Chairman

The Pontiac Tax Board of Review at its opening session yesterday elected Maxwell H. Doerr chairman.

Doerr of 174 Ottawa was also chairman of the board last year. He previously served on the board in 1962.

Other members of the board of tax review, which sets the city's total assessed valuation, are Mrs. Clayton Rule, 33 N. Anderson, and Gordon Rice, 235 Nelson.

ALL SMILES — Pamela Sue Smith, 12, a seventh grader from Long Island, left last night to see the wedding of Holland's Princess Beatrix and German-born Claus von Amsberg. Through a misunderstanding, Pamela's friends thought she was to attend the wedding although there had been no invitation. Pamela's dream came true when the director of the Netherlands National Tourist Office in New York interceded and got her the invitation.

Guatemala Faces Crisis as Election Is Disputed

GUATEMALA (AP) — Guatemala faced a serious crisis today as rival political parties disputed the results of the presidential election.

The government-backed Institutional Democratic party (PID) charged fraud in strongholds of the moderately leftist Revolutionary party and demanded annulment of the vote in the capital and in five districts in the interior.

Revolutionary party candidate Julio Cesar Mendez Montenegro, who leads in the results, claimed "total victory by absolute majority" and declared himself president-elect.

The latest official figures from an unspecified number of the country's 324 municipalities gave Mendez 190,822 votes, Col. Juan de Dios Aguilar of the PID 142,586 and Col. Miguel Angel Ponciano of the right-wing National Liberation Movement 100,404.

NOT MAJORITY

Although the official figures put the civilian candidate well in the lead, they left him short of the majority required for election. If no one gets a majority, the new Congress elected Sunday will choose between the two high men.

★ ★ ★

"I don't believe the information of the Electoral Commission," said Mendez, a former law professor. "It does what the government wants."

★ ★ ★

Revolutionary party returns from 210 of the 324 municipalities Tuesday night gave Mendez 169,782, Aguilar 95,005 and Ponciano 80,600. Although these also left Mendez short of a majority, officials of the party said returns en route from missing districts would give him the margin necessary for election.

★ ★ ★

They added, however, that they had received reports that officials of the government party had started invalidating Revolutionary party votes in unreported municipalities to eliminate the party's majority.

SEATS CLAIMED

Revolutionary party officials claimed 28 to 32 of the 55 congressional states being filled by the election.

Mendez said he would accept a runoff if he is convinced the official returns are honest. Then, he said, his party would probably combine with Ponciano's to give him a majority in the 55-seat Congress.

"I trust the military government will recognize our triumph and not put obstacles in the way," he told a cheering crowd at the headquarters of his party.

He told a news conference earlier that he was afraid "there could be civil war in Guatemala if there is electoral fraud," and "Guatemala may become a second Santo Domingo."

★ ★ ★

If fraud is proved, he said, he could "call in a moment 60,000 men and women into the Central Plaza in front of the National Palace to protest."

Decorated Amsterdam Is Tense for Tomorrow's Royal Wedding

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (UPI) — Only the flags and bunting suggested a festive mood today as Holland awaited the controversial wedding tomorrow of Crown Princess Beatrix and German diplomat Claus von Amsberg.

The gaily decorated streets were filled with thousands of troops and uniformed and plain-clothes police. Authorities expressed confidence they could handle any outbreak, violent or otherwise, during the wedding of the future Dutch queen.

The 28-year-old princess and her 39-year-old consort, whose part includes a stint in the Hitler Youth and service in the German army later in World War II, may have been given an omen last night of things to come.

A smoke bomb was touched off outside the Royal Palace as two police patrol cars and a dozen motorcycle officers pulled up behind the palace to escort the royal family to an official dinner.

Whoever ignited the bomb escaped as smoke obscured the entrance to fashionable Kalver Street flanking the complex of buildings.

DOCTORS ALERTED

It was reported meanwhile that all physicians and surgeons in Amsterdam had been alerted to stand by in case of trouble and that records were made of the blood type of each guest to attend the royal wedding.

Most Netherlanders wish the couple well, and kings and queens, princes and princesses have come from throughout Europe to attend their wedding. But there have been royal weddings under happier auspices.

There were rumors that Dutch gangs known as "Provos" planned trouble. Provos, who get their name from the word provocation, are gangs which enjoy troublemaking for its own sake.

Many in this little country, savagely occupied by Nazi Germany in the last war, cannot forget that von Amsberg for all his personal charm and dignified demeanor was a soldier in the German army and a member of the Hitler Youth.

REFUSE INVITATION

Twenty-one of the 45 members of the Amsterdam City Council will not accept a blanket invitation for the wedding.

Some pleaded "urgent business" elsewhere, but most rejections were seen as still more evidence of the opposition to the wedding.

Two chief rabbis, while expressing allegiance to the House of Orange, have refused invitations to the religious ceremony.

ST. PATRICK CONSTRUCTION — Progress on the new St. Patrick Catholic Church in White Lake Township became more noticeable with the appearance of the sanctuary's laminated wood beams. The $550,000 church, the third to serve the parish since 1840, is expected to be completed by late fall. It is being built on Hutchinson Road between the present church and St. Patrick School.

Power Plant Decision Due

Commerce Appeals Board OK Expected

COMMERCE TOWNSHIP—If the Township Board of Appeals approves two rezoning changes tonight, the Detroit Edison Co. will start work on a new power plant in the township.

"Both the township and Edison Co. officials are in complete harmony on the project," said Thomas C. Tiley, township supervisor. "But we must make two minor rezoning changes before work can begin."

The Edison Co. plans to build a $4-million auxiliary power plant on 16 acres of land on Haggerty near the Grand Trunk Railroad tracks.

The two changes in zoning which must be accomplished before actual construction can begin involve noise and fuel oil storage.

* * *

The land is presently zoned in the M1 classification. Under this classification, no firm can construct a plant which emits an operating noise of more than 70 decibels. Engineers say the Edison power plant would create a noise in excess of this level—close to 80 decibels.

FUEL OIL STORAGE

The present zoning ordinances also prohibit the storing of fuel oil above ground if the storage tanks contain more than 1,000 gallons.

The storage tanks at the power plant would contain 100,000 gallons of oil and must be stored above ground, according to Edison Co. officials.

"I have no doubt that the two changes will be approved tonight," said Tiley.

"The reason we are going through the appeals board is to save time so construction can begin immediately after approval."

* * *

If the zoning changes are made tonight, Westinghouse Electric Corp. will begin construction this week on three gas turbine generators which will be able to deliver a full load of power in 12 minutes.

The plant will be utilized to take care of peak loads and any emergencies which may arise. It would be controlled from Detroit.

N. Oxford School District to Vote on Merger May 7

OXFORD TOWNSHIP —Residents of the North Oxford school district will vote May 7 on a proposal which would make them part of their larger neighbor, the Oxford school district.

The vote signals the end of an era in the district which until now has educated its children in a one-room schoolhouse.

It is one of three districts in Oakland County without a high school program. A new state ruling makes it mandatory for each school district to have a high school.

If the proposition is turned down, a second vote will be held at the time of the annual school elections in June. In this referendum, voters in both the North Oxford district and the Oxford district would have to give their approval.

* * *

Failure to approve the annexation May 7 would make the North Oxford district part of the total county reorganization plan.

VOTERS DECIDE

Under this plan, which gives all districts a high school program, voters of the Walled Lake, Dublin and Waterford Township districts must decide on annexation in June.

"The May 7 vote gives North Oxford a chance to do something on its own," said Mrs. Polly Carithers of the Oakland Schools. "If voters turn it down it will revert to the jurisdiction of the School Reorganization Committee."

If the annexation is approved, residents of the North Oxford district will take on Oxford's operating levy of 37.59 mills.

Oxford Schools Supt. Roger Oberg said the taxpayers would not immediately have to assume the building indebtedness of 4.80 mills.

SMALLER TAX

North Oxford only levies the 8.17 mills allocated by the county.

The district has a valuation of about $800,000 which would increase Oxford's per-pupil valuation from $8,500 to $8,900 and produce about $12,000 in taxes.

North Oxford's small enrollment also gives it an unusually high valuation behind each child. It has an average of $38,000 per child while the state average is $14,000.

* * *

Fifteen pupils in grades kindergarten through eight now attend school in the little one-room building constructed in 1835.

STUDENTS COMMUTE

Six high school students from the district are attending Dryden High School.

* * *

Oberg said those students presently attending Dryden High School may remain there if they wish to do so.

Romney Picks Commission's Fifth Member

LANSING (UPI) — Walter C. Lange of Sebewaing, a bean and grain farmer who specializes in certified seeds has been named the fifth and final member of the reorganized State Agriculture Commission.

* * *

Gov. George Romney announced the appointment of Lange as the second Democrat on the bipartisan commission yesterday. He will succeed Mrs. Kay Sleik of Iron Mountain.

Lange, 57, farms 160 acres in Huron County that have been occupied by his family since 1894. He is a member of the Michigan Crop Improvement Association, the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Farmers Organization.

He is also chairman of the Sebewaing Board of Education and is a former president of the Sebewaing United Fund.

Membership Drive Opened by YMCA

ROCHESTER — "Serving Youth, that Youth May Serve" is the theme of the Rochester YMCA's eighth annual membership drive.

The drive began last night with a kickoff dinner at St. Philips' Episcopal Church attended by 150 volunteers.

The goal of the drive is $10,500, according to cochairmen Lawrence Shepard, 229 Rochdale, and Terry Upton, 1462 Rochingham, both of Avon Township.

Team captains are Vern Houghten and Mrs. John Pattison. They will be assisted by Lloyd Christensen, Fred Weaver, R. Elliot Jose, Mrs. Robert Rice, Mrs. James Buckerfield and Victor Zink.

Others are Mrs. Roger Storves, Elmer H. Zellers, Al Durkee, Raymond DeSteiger, William Parcells, Mrs. Ernest Carlson, Mrs. Douglas Bain, Mrs. Franklin Hebner, Dr. Melvin Gay, Myron Littell and William Howell.

VOLUNTEERS

Members of the board of management and other volunteers will contact Rochester merchants for financial support. Members of the Rochester Junior Woman's Club, under captains Mrs. Lawrence Shepard and Mrs. Ben Lindquist, are seeking membership renewals from present Y members.

Memberships fall into four categories. Individual membership is $6, family membership $15, civic membership $25 or more and sustaining membership $50 or more.

Partnerships may be secured with a donation of $10 but do not entitle the donor to Y activities unless an additional $5 is paid to convert partnership to a family membership.

Any who wish to participate in the drive may send their contributions to the Rochester Branch YMCA, 423 Helen, Rochester, or call the Y for further information.

The Y offers a place to hold meetings and a program of activities for boys and girls and men and women, including swimming, bowling, ski club and instruction, dancing, model building, volleyball, Indian Guides, air rifle and games.

Course Offered for Teachers

WALLED LAKE — Michigan State University will offer local teachers a 10-week seminar on perceptual motor development beginning March 17.

The course has been specially developed by MSU to tie in with Walled Lake's own program on perceptual motor training.

Perceptual motor training attempts to develop the child's muscle coordination and his sense of direction, basic to learning to read.

Dr. Jean Young, a member of the MSU faculty, will teach the seminar, which is being offered primarily for the benefit of teachers in the lower elementary grades and other educators involved with the school system's reading program.

The course will provide teachers with teaching ideas and basic information on the learning abilities of children.

Case studies, teaching demonstrations and visiting lecturers will be utilized by Dr. Young.

Rep. Slingerlend Sponsors Bill on School Census

Legislation to help fast-growing suburban school districts financially has been cosponsored by Rep. Robert J. Slingerlend, D-Lake Orion.

This would be accomplished by allowing school districts to use the second Friday in February or the fourth Friday after Labor Day for determining the school census. Currently, only the latter day may be used.

State aid payments are based on transportation, elementary or high school tuition, per capita cost of pupils and the state equalized valuation of the district.

Slingerlend points out that many school districts have been operating at a financial disadvantage because it takes the better part of a year for state aid payments to catch up with students already in school.

May Use B17s in Beetle Battle

Spray Area to Include Southern Michigan

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — World War II flying fortresses and torpedo bombers may be launched this year into a $1 million aerial spraying battle against the European cereal leaf beetle.

* * *

The theater of war covers all of the Lower Peninsula's southern half, plus northern Indiana, most of western Ohio and some counties in Illinois.

Spokesmen for the State Agriculture Department say Kent County Airport would be one operating base if a decision is reached to use the B17 Flying Fortresses as spray planes.

* * *

AWAIT BIDS

The decision awaits contract bids by aerial spray applicators. Bids are expected to be announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture soon after March 21.

* * *

Robert Ruppel, Michigan State University entomologist, says the invading pest from Europe is responsible for oat losses of up to 19 per cent of the crop in heavily infested areas and winter wheat losses of about 12 per cent.

A Michigan Department of Agriculture quarantine was placed on Oakland County last summer because of presence of the beetle on the west side.

* * *

The insect pest was first discovered in Lyon Township, but no significant damage was reported.

Value of Livestock, Poultry Up in State

LANSING (AP) — Michigan farms had $295 million worth of livestock and poultry on hand at the start of 1966, up 5 per cent from the previous year, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Number of animals was down 5 per cent, however. By category:

Cattle — 1.6 million head, down 6 per cent; milk cows, 626,000, down 7 per cent.

Hogs — 582,000, down 5 per cent.

Sheep — 325,000, down 4 per cent.

Poultry — chickens down 2 per cent; turkeys 107,000, down 8 per cent.

'Michigan Outdoors' Films to Be Featured

LAKE ORION — Films from the TV show, "Michigan Outdoors," will be featured Tuesday at the Father's Night meeting of the Blanche Sims Intermediate School PTA.

* * *

The meeting will open at 8 p.m. with nomination of a new slate of officers for the 1966-67 school year.

'M' Cagers Trap Third Big Ten Title

To say that the U-M basketball team and CAZZIE RUSSELL — or should the order be reversed?—finished the 1966 season in a blaze of glory would be, as the saying is, to damn with faint praise.

RUSSELL

Though defeated by MSU in the season's finale, 86-77, the Wolverines won their third straight Big Ten Conference title last Saturday by defeating Northwestern 105-92 and now move on to the NCAA regional tournament at Iowa City where the champs will see action Friday.

But the electrifying accomplishment of the team can only be applauded in context with its luminary, Cazzie Russell.

With a showman's sense of timing, CAZZIE reserved his greatest performance of three years of varsity basketball for the championship-clinching game as he upped his game-score record from 45 to 48. Not only that, but the new mark is an all-time individual record for any Michigan cager.

The portents for the national tournament ahead are good. Two years ago, in CAZZIE'S sophomore year, "M" finished third. Last year, with CAZZIE playing as a junior, the Wolverines won second place. So-o-o, by way of escalation, how can CAZZIE and company fail to go all the way this year, with the star a senior playing his last year of collegiate basketball?

Along with a beaming salute to Michigan on its brilliant court performance go best wishes for the showdown games ahead.

Our Area Vitally Concerned by Auto Safety

Hence, the greater acclaim with which cars are received, the better we like it. David W. Craig, Pittsburgh's Safety Director, says:

Japan Struck by Series of Airline Crashes

Tragedy marches under any flag, as the Japanese have so shockingly learned.

Within a month, their island country has been struck by a chilling series of three air disasters that have brought sorrow not only to citizens of Japan but to those of many other countries whose friends or loved ones were aboard the foredoomed aircraft that bore more than 300 to their death.

The third catastrophe, following the second by a day, is shrouded in mystery. The plane with 124 aboard had just taken off from Tokyo for a scenic circle over Mt. Fuji when it exploded and crashed on the slopes of the sacred mountain.

This apalling stroke of fate held particular impact for America since the passenger list included 84 from the United States — among them a party of 75 in a tour group sponsored by a Minneapolis firm.

In the face of such agonizing calamity as that visited upon the homeland of the Nipponese, mortal minds can only grope for a sense of acceptance in the knowledge that the Divine Will is inscrutable and beyond human comprehension.

Expert's Euphonic-Word List Omits Loveliest

The late WILFRED FUNK, erudite and scholarly, spent a lifetime with the English language. He drew up a list of the ten words he considered the most beautiful in the English language.

Here they are:

Dawn, hush, lullaby, murmuring, tranquil, mist, luminous, chimes, golden and melody.

★ ★ ★

"Mother."

Hugo Black Is Lonely Voice

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — The complexity of Hugo L. Black, alongside a fiery belief that the Constitution means exactly what it says, shines through the Supreme Court's affirmation of the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

Black, 80, an associate justice since 1937, won't sit still for any label, be it "liberal," "conservative" or "activist." And he won't sit still when he feels his fellow judges have marched off in the wrong direction, no matter how worthy the goal.

Black demonstrated this again Monday. Chief Justice Earl Warren got the unanimity he wanted for upholding two key sections of the voting law — the suspension of literacy tests where used to keep Negroes from the polls and the dispatch of federal examiners to those areas to register qualified Negroes.

But Black wouldn't go along with his eight colleagues in upholding a third key section of the law that would require new state voting laws to pass federal muster.

HE FELT COMPELLED

Scanning the less than half-filled chamber, Black said, "I would have yielded a lot not to have had to file a written dissent in this case — but I felt compelled to do so."

As he has so many times in the past 28 years, often standing alone, Black made his case by looking smack at the Constitution. There he found nothing to support what Congress had done and the court approved.

"Nothing like that was ever contemplated when the Constitution or the 15th Amendment was adopted," he said.

★ ★ ★

In his written opinion, Black added: "I see no reason to read into the Constitution meanings it did not have when it was adopted and which have not been put into it since."

CONSTITUTION SEARCHED

Two weeks ago, a bristling Black went to the Constitution and found nothing to prevent any state, including Louisiana, from making it unlawful to stage "sit-ins" in public libraries.

This reading led Black, a champion of human rights, to vote against reversal of "breach of peace" convictions of five Negro civil rights demonstrators.

Again Black was in the minority but again he raised his voice loud and clear.

Dissent can be a lonely pursuit and to a casual observer, at least, it would appear to be a trying position, especially for a man of 80. But almost daily, Hugo Lafayette Black gives evidence that his fighting spirit will not be curbed.

Wave Of The Future!

David Lawrence Says:

Fulbright Asks Accommodation

WASHINGTON — "Liberals" sometimes say the trouble with "conservatives" is that they are old - fashioned.

LAWRENCE

The "conservatives" usually reply that the "liberals" are not willing to respect the record of history—the lessons of experience.

Sen J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is known for his "liberal" and sometimes "extremist" views about foreign policy, but he apparently wants to go back now to the days of isolationism.

He says that military victory in World War II was a mistake and that the way to handle international problems is by "accommodation."

He doesn't explain how to make the Communist Chinese go to the conference table today but he accuses his own government of undue intervention in the affairs of other people. Mr. Fulbright said on Sunday:

"I am very frustrated and disappointed in the policy my government is now following. This is a very great country, and I have always been very bothered — I mean embarrassed — when I think they are following a policy that is not commensurate with our greatness.

★ ★ ★

"I would hope that this country, now having reached the peak of its power economically, politically, would not follow the old traditional dreary policies that other great empires have and start pushing people around, intervening in other people's business and trying to create in their own image governments and societies around the world.

DIFFERENT POLICY

"I had hoped we were enlightened enough to follow a different policy, and beginning with the Dominican affair last fall and then coming on into this one, I am very bothered about it."

But what happened in the Dominican Republic was directly related to what had taken place in Cuba, where the Communists caught the United States napping.

The war in Viet Nam, moreover, is a direct result of Communist aid furnished to North Viet Nam.

It might be inferred from Sen. Fulbright's remarks that the United States actually instigated the war in Viet Nam. He argued, for instance, that it's a mistake to seek military victory in Viet Nam, and said:

"We did this in World War II, and look at the disastrous results. It created more problems than it solved. And I think this is generally true. It will create all kinds of dislocation."

FOMENTING TROUBLE

All the evidence which shows that the Chinese Communists have been fomenting trouble in Asia and "interfering in other people's business" seems to have been ignored by the proponents of "accommodation."

The tragedy today is that an autocracy rules not only in Russia but also in Red China, while democracy on every continent is again threatened.

Yet there are in the United States Senate several advocates of "accommodation" which is really just another word for appeasement.

This, in the long run, is what history and experience have shown to be the forerunner of two world wars.

Readers Send In Recipes for Cutting Road Carnage

NEW YORK — How to stop killing 50,000 Americans a year in car accidents is the No. 2 crisis facing the nation, right after the matter of the war in Viet Nam. So says Lyndon B. Johnson, chief keeper of national crises.

CONSIDINE

Some of his fellow Americans wish to help him out with their traffic fatality solutions. Fasten seat belts, please.

"My husband has voluntarily turned in his driver's license at age 65, due to physical disability after having had it since age 18 without an accident or traffic violation," a Jersey wife writes.

"Here's his point: In all that time he took only one test, the original one. He renewed his license by mail year after year, and could have done so this year. But he feels now that every driver should have a new test and a doctor's clean bill of health at least every five years."

★ ★ ★

"My suggestion would be to test drivers for color blindness," writes a New York woman. "The color blind can't detect a red light."

MECHANICAL DEFICIENCY

"Three out of four cars on the road have at least one mechanical deficiency that increases driving hazards," wrote a man from the Shell Oil Co.'s motorlab in suburban Detroit.

"Aspirin" storms a Seattle Post - Intelligence reader. "That's what's doing it; the tons and tons of aspirin made and sold in this country every year. Two aspirins in a bottle of coke makes a driver think he's the only man on the road."

"I happen to know, confides a man who lives in Venice, Calif., "that the battery people and tire companies have secretly developed products that would last forever, but won't let the public in on it. Make them sell these things to us, and lives will be saved!"

Other suggestions:

Large speedometers mounted on the backs of cars, to let the following driver know just how fast the car in front of him is going, for safer passing . . . "Bring back running boards!" . . . All around bumpers, rubber bumpers, collapsible bumpers, and even "radar bumpers" . . . license plates displayed on top of every car, to aid police tracking down hit-and-run drivers . . . Make car radio listening illegal . . . Require auto repairmen to prove their merit and then license them . . . And Ed Toomy, former New York Mirror man, recommends that the full impact of car deaths could be brought home to the public if traffic casualties were printed each day alongside casualty statistics from Viet Nam.

During the Central-Northern swim meet the swimmers and spectators were subjected to a temper tantrum by one of the officials. These boys work long and hard for the fierce competition of the meets. A Sincere President!

The Atlantic Monthly

Lyndon Johnson has labored mightily to find an end to the conflict in Southeast Asia. Those who call him insincere in his peace campaign do not know the man. The war is an enormous burden. However rough and tough an operator the President may be, he is a man who is deeply moved and hurt by suffering, waste, and destruction. The casualty lists touch him to the quick. He cannot understand why men cannot settle their differences around the conference table.

As a politician, the President knows that if the war drags on interminably, it could be his undoing. He is not prepared to admit that he did other than what he had to do in providing increased aid to South Viet Nam last year and in applying pressure which he thought would force the Communists to the bargaining table. But he recognizes that Viet Nam is an increasingly dangerous political issue and that it could play a significant part in the 1966 congressional elections and in his own campaign two years away.

Let no one say that the President does not earnestly want a settlement of the war. It is his most urgent wish. He is determined at the same time not to let the war destroy his domestic program. That is why he took a bolder-than-life stance in expanding the Great Society.

And he shrewdly challenged those who would cut the domestic program to say whom they would sacrifice. Would they take from the children, the sick, and the distressed? "I believe we can continue the Great Society while we fight in Viet Nam," the President declared.

The President does not like to be told that anything is impossible or that the nation cannot accomplish miracles. One reason why he is frustrated in Viet Nam is that the pressures he applied last year have not produced the results he expected.

While the Administration is pushing its Great Society it may find that in the area of agriculture it is time to think in terms of new policies. We are a great power almost as much because of the richness of American farms as because of the strength of American industry. We are the only nation in the world which has a significant farm surplus and which also could easily increase its agricultural production. For three decades we have designed our agricultural policies to limit production but as the underdeveloped world, including Communist China, continues to lose the ability to feed itself, the pressures on the United States to produce more food will mount.

Alleged Spy Bitter on Release

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP) — George John Gessner drew his first free breath after five years in government custody and said: "Justice delayed is justice denied."

The 29-year-old former soldier showed no elation at his sudden and unexpected release from the U.S. penitentiary where he has been since his conviction June 4, 1964, of giving nuclear weapons secrets to the Soviet Union. He was the first convicted under the Atomic Energy Act.

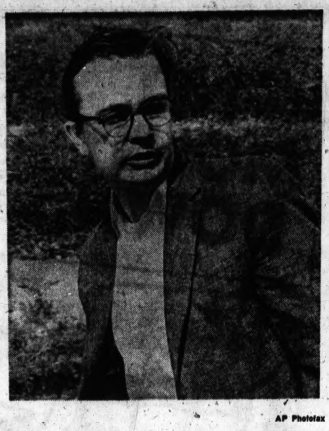
An appeals court last year nullified Gessner's conviction and life sentence because it found his confession — basis of the government's case — was made involuntarily.

U.S. Atty. Newell George stood before the same three judges Tuesday and declared, "Without the confession we do not have sufficient evidence to go to trial." He filed a motion to dismiss charges against Gessner and a few hours later Gessner was free.



AP Photofax

'Justice Delayed Is Justice Denied'

CONTINUED QUESTIONING

Asked why he had signed the confession, Gessner replied:

"Because of continued interrogation month after month and promise of total immunity."

"Of course, it was not true," he said.

"How can a man have plans when he has been locked up five years or better?" said Gessner when asked about his future. "I hope to return to college — if any college will have me." If he does go to school, he said, "It is not my intention to restrict my political opinions."

Gessner, a private first class, was a nuclear weapons specialist at Ft. Bliss, Tex., when he deserted Dec. 6, 1960, and went to Mexico City. The confession, introduced at his trial, said he met with officers of the Soviet Embassy on several occasions and gave them all he knew about mechanisms of atomic cannon. He was arrested in Panama City, Panama, March 23, 1961, and has been in custody since then — one year of it for desertion.

THROUGH COERCION

The confession, Gessner said, was obtained through coercion and fraud.

"A man tends to get justice in proportion to the thickness of his wallet and inversely to the power and prestige of the accuser," Gessner said.

He was reminded that his court-appointed attorneys received no fees.

★ ★ ★

"One swallow doesn't make a spring and one prisoner breaking free through adequate counsel doesn't change things for the hundreds of thousands of other men still in prison because they were not adequately represented," Gessner replied.

WILL SEND MONEY

Gessner's parents are divorced. His mother, Hazel Raymond, lives in Melbourne, Fla. When she was told of her son's release by a reporter she said she would send money to bring him to Florida.

Gessner said he had $21.63 in his pockets. He wore the same clothes as at his trial.

★ ★ ★

"I do not have any Marxist leanings per se," said Gessner, "but Marxism prides itself on being realistic. Anyone who has any independence of thought will sometimes parallel Marxist thought."

Except on grain farms in the corn belt where it is a cash crop, corn is generally considered a feed crop.

Plane Crashes Kill 7 Persons

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A hunting party flying to an offshore island to shoot wild boar met disaster when two planes crashed on the island, killing seven persons, authorities report.

★ ★ ★

Ventura County officials identified the victims as Jack Leroy Wheeler, Dr. John Carroll Gilbert and Claude Gilbert Casey, all of Las Vegas, Nev.; two pilots, R. L. Wallace and Wally Bassett of nearby Santa Paula, and Ted Shatt and Gordon Ridge, Santa Barbara, hunting guides.

★ ★ ★

Bassett, owner of Bassett Flying Service, crashed Tuesday on fog-shrouded Santa Cruz Island, about 25 miles off the Southern California coast.

The second pilot, Wallace, crashed on takeoff after dropping his two passengers on the island.

Food and Drugs Chief Gets Off to a Flying Start

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new commissioner of food and drugs is a man of action — "I like to see things get done" — and he is showing it in trying to clean up during his first 90 days in office all pending drug cases that are ready for decision.

Dr. James L. Goddard took his oath as commissioner Jan. 18.

With a smile, he says he inherited a lot of long-standing drug cases which have been referred to as "the dead cats in the closet."

In a drive that already has led to many people in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare referring to him as "Go-Go Goddard," he has announced a number of major cleanup decisions in less than two months.

SWEEPING ACTION

So far, these are topped by the sweeping action of Tuesday for ultimate removal from the market of all nonprescription antibiotic lozenges and some other antibiotic preparations which may be purchased without prescription and bear claims they are effective against sore throat.

A spokesman said the four orders added up to one of the most sweeping drug removals the agency ever has ordered.

ASKED FOR DATA

Goddard said that when he became commissioner he knew that the antibiotic proceeding had been pending a long time and asked for data on it. He is a physician, the first to head FDA in recent years, and is a career commissioned officer in the Public Health Service.

PENNCREST RADIO #5521 #5522

As carefully as Penney checks quality in all merchandise, in this particular case these radios do not measure up to our rigid quality control standards. These sets also passed the normal industry tests. Now we find a technical problem which might render the product unsafe in a limited number of situations.

The problem has been completely corrected at the factory, and all the radios now meet our high Penncrest standards for quality and value.

BUT...we're concerned about these 4 models which have been sold to date.

PLEASE

If you have one of the four model numbers shown above, stop using the radio and return it to Penney's and we will exchange it for a new corrected model. (you'll find the model number on the back of the set).

If you can't come to the store, please phone us and we'll make other arrangements to exchange your radio.

We're jealous about our reputation of "Always First Quality". We want to keep it that way!

Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt Says:

Anxiety Syndrome Widespread Phenomenon

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second of three related articles written for the Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

BRANDSTADT

Whether anxiety is a new epidemic disease or is as old as the proverbial hills, it is the cause of a great deal of suffering.

The causes of anxiety extend, in most cases, back to our childhood. It may spring from an unstable home life, from competition between parents for the dependence and love of the child and from a failure of the parents to let the child become self-reliant and develop toward emotional maturity.

* * *

Emotions are just as contagious as measles. In a home where gloom and anxiety abound, these feelings will be transmitted to all members of the family.

The children of neurotic parents will almost surely become the neurotic parents of a new generation.

Environmental factors that add to the burden of anxiety include the monotony of the jobs many persons must do (jobs that deprive the worker of pride in individual accomplishment), an increase in leisure time for persons with no constructive outlets for their energies, the complexities of modern technology that often give an individual a feeling of helpless insignificance, an overemphasis on financial success as the ultimate criterion of a man's worth and the pressures of a rapidly expanding population with its resultant overcrowding.

* * *

The cowboy who sings "Don't fence me in" may find himself surrounded by tall buildings sooner than he thinks.

ANXIETY SYNDROME

Doctors now recognize an anxiety syndrome that is characterized by palpitation of the heart, rapid irregular breathing, sweating, a lump in the throat, a feeling of heaviness in the chest or stomach, muscular tremors, a feeling of generalized weakness and nervous tension with or without the so-called tension headaches.

Chronic anxiety may be the cause of excessive shyness, perfectionism, such compulsive behavior as washing one's hands every 25 or 30 minutes, a wide variety of phobias such as acrophobia (fear of high places) and seeking escape from reality through narcotics or alcohol.

There can be no doubt that these symptoms recurring day after day can make you feel terrible and can, in time, result in organic changes that are sometimes described as "psychosomatic."

* * *

trade in your husband!

(We'll make a new man of him.)

He'll probably still snore at night, but during the day he'll look the way you'd like him to look. (Not like he slept in his clothes.)

He just won't be able to help himself. Not after we—and you—help him to some of our famous brand names ('Botany' 500, Eagle, Van Heusen, Petrocelli, McGregor, Dobbs, etc.) in suits, coats, shirts, hats, and sportswear.

Of course, we wouldn't want this to be a drastic and radical change, so maybe you'd better start him off slowly . . . say, just slacks and a sport coat at first, and work up to the suits and topcoats. (All the while fitting him the famous Osmun's way.)

And by the way, a visit to Osmun's can make a new woman out of you.

After all, how long has it been since he's taken you out?

Junior Editors Quiz on SEASONS

QUESTION: Do the other planets have seasons such as we have on earth?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: A planet has seasons because its axis is tilted and remains tilted as it circles around the sun.

In (A), during summer on our earth, the sun shines almost directly down on North America, making it warm.

Six months later (B), it shines down at a more slanting angle. This means the atmosphere has a chance to absorb more of the heat, so the weather is cold.

Several of the planets have axis tilts similar to that of the earth. Look at the scale to the right and you'll see that the tilts of Mars, Saturn and Venus, although not exactly the same as the earth's, are close to it.

On the other hand, the tilt of Jupiter is very slight, and that of Uranus very extreme—it is tilted almost directly over on its side.

Because other planets have tilts similar to that of the earth, and so have seasons, this does not mean that their seasons have the same kind of temperatures which ours have.

The layer of air around the earth makes our seasons bearable, since it protects us from too great a summer heat, and it holds some of the heat back in winter.

None of the other planets has our protective kind of atmosphere. They are either fiercely hot or bitterly cold — astronomers doubt that human beings could live on them.

★ ★ ★

FOR YOU TO DO: Look up each planet in an enclyclopedia and find out about its climate. It will make you appreciate our own comfortable earth.

Rehearsal for Gemini 8 Today

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Launch teams conduct 11 separate simultaneous countdowns today in a vital rehearsal for next Tuesday's Gemini 8 man-in-space flight.

Astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott were to wear their bulky suits and squeeze into the Gemini 8 spacecraft for part of the exercise, which was to last most of the day.

★ ★ ★

Major goal of the test was to make certain communications were functioning properly among the teams conducting the various counts.

★ ★ ★

The actual over-all countdown next Tuesday will be challenging because it involves the launching of two rockets. An Atlas is to blaze away from Cape Kennedy at 10 a.m. to place an Agena space vehicle in orbit.

FIRST LINKUP

Armstrong and Scott are to follow at 11:41 a.m. atop a Titan 2 rocket. They are to chase the Agena, catch it and attempt man's first linkup with another orbiting satellite.

On the second day of the planned three-day mission, Scott is to take a record space walk of nearly 2½ hours.

The practice countdowns today involved the Atlas; the Agena; the Titan 2; the spacecraft; the launch center here; Mission Control Center in Houston, Tex.; the global tracking network; the Eastern Test Range, and the guidance systems for the rockets.

Armstrong, a civilian, and Scott, an Air Force major, will participate Thursday in a simulated flight during which several phases of the countdown and flight are rehearsed.

★ ★ ★

The astronauts gained some weightless experience Tuesday in the padded interior of a huge KC135 jet transport plane. By making a series of dives, the plane was able to create weightless periods for up to 30 seconds.

Birthday Celebrated After Cancer Switch

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI) — Robert F. Allen, stricken by a rare form of bone cancer, celebrates his 29th birthday today. If all goes well, he may be alive for his 30th.

Allen has been given only six months to live. But the Tucson, Ariz., insurance man and his wife flew to Buffalo in a desperate attempt to extend his life.

Allen put himself in the hands of surgeons at Roswell Park Memorial Institute, New York State's Cancer Research Center, who are seeking a cure for the disease.

Allen and Harry Griffith, 63, of Flourtown, Pa., who is stricken with the same type of cancer, exchanged cancerous tissue in two operations Friday to generate resistance in each man to the other's tumor.

★ ★ ★

Allen's wife, Anita, and his aunt, Mrs. Marion Stern of Louisville, Ky., planned a surprise birthday party for him in his hospital suite complete with a large white sheet cake emblazoned with the words "Happy Birthday Bob." The other patients were invited.

PHONE CALLS

The day will be capped by a long-distance telephone call to his parents and three young children in their Arizona home.

He also received gaily wrapped presents — a radio and pajamas from his wife, pajamas from his aunt, and a gift of shaving lotion from his two sons and daughter.

Allen is resting while his body, hopefully, develops a resistance to the cancerous tissue implanted in his right thigh.

His partner in the unproven treatment, meanwhile, went back to his suburban Philadelphia home to rest.

Griffith, however, will return to the institute next Sunday for further treatment.

Sometime next week doctors are expected to begin a series of blood transfusions in hopes of transferring each patient's cancer resistance to the other.

That step will mark the beginning of the end of the five-week treatment. Doctors are sure each patient will develop a resistance or homograft rejection to the implanted cancer, but they can only hope the resistance can be successfully transferred back into each man's system.

Both men, grasping at their last hope for successful treatment, are optimistic.

However, the doctors are not. "There is no guarantee of tumor regression in either Mr. Allen's or Mr. Griffith's case," warned Dr. Sigmond H. Nadler.

7 Water System Extension Projects OK'd

A series of eight proposed construction projects for the extension of the city's water system were presented last night to the City Commission.

The commission gave the go-ahead to seven of the projects, holding one project for possible consideration in the fall.

Total cost of seven of the projects was estimated at $53,149. The eighth project would cost about $12,360.

Five of the projects are aimed at eliminating dead-end situations in the water system, according to Water Department Supt. Herbert G. Parker and City Manager Joseph A. Warren.

Warren reported that the city has some 61 dead-end situations in its water system. He said it was desirable to eliminate as many as possible.

DIRECTED TO PROCEED

The commission directed city administrators to proceed on four of the projects, which do not involve property assessments.

These include water mains on Manhattan from Parkwood to Stirling, ($9,561); on Oakland from Inglewood to Sarasota, ($2,300); and along Murphy Park to connect Seward and Russell, ($3,050).

Two other projects are to be set up for public hearings. These include a main on a portion of Woodward from South Boulevard to 450 feet south, ($9,030) and a main on Pershing from Oakland to Durant, ($4,310).

The commission gave the green light to extending the water main from Kennedy Junior High School on Baldwin to the property on Collier owned by Sam Allen & Sons Inc.

Total cost of this project was estimated at $17,000 with the Allens' share totaling $9,900. A contract is to be drafted.

City Affairs

A seventh water project was proposed to serve Metes & Powers warehouses on the west side of Telegraph.

Warren said protection against fire was the reason for extending this water main at an estimated cost of $7,000.

★ ★ ★

He said there would be no assessment unless there was a request to extend the main across private property.

HELD OVER

The project held over for later consideration was for the construction of a water main on the east side of Woodward to the south city limits.

The water main extension is to service a housing project being built across from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. The cost was estimated at $12,360 with only $710 being assessable.

Funds for the water main construction are to come from water department revenues.

In other business last night, the commission approved a traffic order from the State Highway Department prohibiting all parking on the projected new M59 route in the city.

PARKING BAN

The order bans parking on the entire projected M59 route from East Wide Track to Opdyke.

City Engineer Joseph E. Neipling said the parking restrictions for the most part are already in effect on streets slated to become part of the new M59.

The only exception, he said, was a stretch along East Huron from East Wide Track to Douglas.

The parking ban would become effective as M59 is developed within the city, said Neipling.

In other business, the commission last night formalized a previous tentative agreement with Detroit Edison Co. for an easement for a portion of the Murphy Park trunk sewer south of South Boulevard.

Also last night, the commission approved a measure to permit the Housing Commission to sell back to Consumers Power Co. the gas distribution system in the housing project.

The city purchased the system in 1964 in order to obtain a lower gas rate for the entire project. Now, however, the rate is available without owning the system.

Consumers will buy back the system for $23,430.

REZONING DENIED

In other business, the commission voted 5-2 to deny proposed commercial rezoning for property on the west side of East Boulevard from Victory south.

A building to house seven stores was proposed for the property. Residents of the area opposed the rezoning in a hearing before the City Plan Commission. A protest petition was presented.

Voting against denial were Commissioners James H. Marshall and Leslie H. Hudson, who indicated the matter could be referred back to the planners to consider new plans.

★ ★ ★

Public hearings were ordered last night for rezoning a block in the urban renewal R20 project and vacating several streets and alleys.

HEARING SET

A public hearing was set for March 29 on residential rezoning for the block bounded by Paddock, Osmun, Perkins and Wall.

Public hearings were set for April 12 on: vacating Perkins, Auburn south, halfway to Judson; vacating Center, Park Place to Osmun; and vacating the alley parallel to Osmun between Hovey and O'Riley.

The changes are in accordance with the urban renewal site plan.

A public hearing was set for April 12 also on vacating the alley parallel to Walton from Hollywood to the alley parallel to Baldwin.

REFERRED TO PLANNERS

A petition for residential-3 rezoning for 646 Orchard Lake was referred to the planning commission.

★ ★ ★

City commissioners were informed last night that the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) had ruled so as to permit a court appeal of an order to eliminate North Central Airlines service to Pontiac and Reed City.

★ ★ ★

North Central had sought to have the order to delete service made immediately effective. CAB denied this request to permit Pontiac and Reed City to appeal to federal court.

Has Life Sentence

Murderer Gets Married

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Clifford Kizer, 26, who later this week is to begin a life sentence for murder, marries his sweetheart today in the Bernalillo County sheriff's office.

The marriage was arranged after the district attorney's office said it had no objections. Kizer and Joanne Mayes, 19, will be married by Justice of the Peace Eloy Duran.

Kizer will be eligible for parole after 10 years. He said the marriage gives him "something to look forward to."

He was sentenced Monday in the July 15, 1965, shooting death of Harvey Bergeron, 24, Albuquerque. Kizer also was charged with the shooting deaths of two other men but has not been tried on these charges.

Rotarians Are Urged to Aid Poor Nations

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — C.P.H. Teenstra, president of Rotary International, says his 580,000-member organization should launch a worldwide program of service in economically deprived nations.

Teenstra of the Netherlands said Rotarians should abandon any concept of Rotary as "a pleasant luncheon club" and seek instead to help solve the problems of discontent in much of the world.

Fire Fighters City to Meet

Leonard Bennett, state mediator, said today that a mediation meeting between the city and representatives of the Pontiac Firefighters Association (PFA) has been set up for 3 p.m. Friday.

★ ★ ★

Bennett said both sides in the wage dispute have agreed to the meeting.

★ ★ ★

The PFA reinstalled pickets at City Hall earlier this week after having withdrawn the picket line last week at the request of the mediator.

Bid to Up Cab Fares Snagged

Plans to hike city taxicab fares for the first time in 11 years hit a technical snag last night.

Final action by the City Commission to authorize the proposed increase had to be delayed until next week.

Essentially the proposed new rates will be the same as introduced last week: 40 cents for the first quarter-mile or any fraction and 10 cents for each additional quarter-mile or any part.

However, the charge for each three minutes waiting time will be 20 cents, not 15 cents as proposed last week.

The commission was informed that the taxicab meters could not be modified to accommodate 15 cents.

The commission rescinded last week's amendment to the taxi ordinance and introduced a new measure. Final action will come next week.

★ ★ ★

The present taxicab fares are 35 cents for the first fifth of a mile or any part of it, five cents for any additional fifth-mile or any part, and 10 cents for three minutes waiting time.

Trio Is Arraigned in Robbery

Three persons arrested by Pontiac police in the midst of an alleged holdup were arraigned in Municipal Court yesterday on charges of armed robbery.

Melvin R. Scott, 25, of 281 Luther; Homer Crawford, 28, of 298 Howard McNeill; and Rebecca Jenkins, 19, who gave a motel as her address, demanded examination on the charges.

★ ★ ★

Judge Cecil B. McCallum set examination of the three for March 16 and ordered Scott and Crawford held on $10,000 bond each and the girl held on $5,000 bond.

Three patrolmen apprehended the trio early yesterday after Crawford allegedly took $425 from another man at gunpoint.

Zsa Zsa and Oilman Plan to Marry Today

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) —Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor and Texas oil millionaire Joshua S. Cosden Jr., plan to be married today in a civil ceremony at Miss Gabor's home here.

College Enrollment Rose by 18 Per Cent

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Ken Vickery, admissions director of Clemson University, says students entering U.S. colleges last year represented an 18 per cent increase over 1964 enrollment.

Vickery said the increased enrollment will make it more difficult in the future for students to enroll in colleges in states other than their own.

Going Off to Sea Bacteria 'Fishing'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Two women scientists from Georgia Tech who have never been to sea head for the Antarctic soon on a bacteria-hunting expedition.

For two months they will be the only women aboard a 410-foot research ship as it zigzags across the ocean.

Floating pack ice will be the nearest thing to solid ground.

Both are looking forward to their expedition. They have only one worry — seasickness.

"We are taking along seasick pills and a psychological theory that we won't have to use them," said Mrs. Kenneth W. Walls.

Dr. Walls and Mrs. Spencer Defoor, her assistant, said their husbands had consented to the trip. Neither has children.

They will leave Atlanta Monday to board the Eltanin, a National Science Foundation ship and complete the voyage at Auckland, New Zealand, May 30.

A $20,100 grant from the National Science Foundation made their trip possible.

Once aboard, their wardrobes will include foul-weather gear, thermal underwear, wool shirts, trousers and insulated vests.

Dr. Walls said there is no known immediate practical application to their study. "But anything we can learn about matter in nature," she said, "can have potential application to other situations."

She said the micro-organisms in the Antarctic Ocean decompose matter as it sinks to the bottom. "And because of the low temperatures and lack of oxygen, they labor under poor working conditions," Dr. Walls said.

Look, Buy, Sell at Style Spree

Mrs. Norman Haldane and Mrs. Franklin Oosterhof will cochairmen the "Spring Style Spree" sponsored by Beta Chapter, Beta Theta Phi sorority on March 17.

Members will alternate between modeling, buying and selling the newest in fashions to Alpha, Gamma and Delta chapters at the Bobette Shop from 6:30 until 9 p.m.

Proceeds will be used to purchase equipment for the Northern Oakland County Group of Friends and Relatives of the Retarded, Inc.

Federation Sets Date of Card Party

An international theme has been selected for the Pontiac Federation of Women's Clubs fund-raising card party April 27 at 8 p.m. in Elks Temple.

In keeping with its objective: promoting work of common civic interest, the federation has tagged the proceeds for the Pontiac Creative Arts Center, Inc., with a donation also alloted for the local Salute to Youth Program.

Mrs. William Dean is the event's general chairman. Assisting her are Lillian Davidson and Mrs. Lewis Swartz, tickets; Mrs. David Saks and Mrs. Maxwell Shadley, decorations; Mrs. Adrian Ish, door prizes; Mrs. George F. Brinkman, prizes; and Mrs. B. B. Roush, housing.

On the refreshment committee are Mrs. George Mitchell and Mrs. Charles Babb. Mrs. John Napley, Mrs. Richard Veazey and Mrs. Carmi Odell complete the list of committee heads.

Tickets are available from any committee member and all member clubs of the federation.

During the federation business meeting Monday in First Federal Savings of Oakland Building, Mrs. Shadley reported on area art events being offered this season.

Mrs. Veazey received recognition for publication and circulation of the organization's bulletin "The Factor" to over 4,000 members.

Assisting in the project were Mrs. Charles Crawford, Mrs. Randall Spurgeon, Mrs. Napley, Mrs. Robert Bego, Mrs. John House and Mrs. Odell.

The tea table was attended by the Soroptomist Club of Pontiac. Members assisting were Mrs. Arnold Hillerman, Dr. Caryl Kulsavage, Mrs. Frances Coons, Mrs. William Hutton and Mrs. Elton Black.

Better Lose Him

He's a Bitter Little Boy

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago I married a man who left a good wife and two children in Pittsburgh to marry me, and he's been punishing me for it ever since. I was a new widow with a little insurance money, some income-property, and a good job when we met.

ABBY

He had already separated from his wife, so I had no part in that, thank heavens. When he married me he had nothing.

I kept working while he just "looked for work" — but no job was good enough for him. I foolishly shared what I had with him. I gave him money for alimony, child support, and expensive presents for his children.

His main concern was trying to buy their affection and make up to his ex-wife for the miserable husband and father he had been.

I can't have children because of an operation I had years ago. My clergyman says he sees no reason for me to stay with him.

I hate the thought of divorce, but he's not happy and neither am I. I just feel sorry for him. What should I do?

UNHAPPY

DEAR UNHAPPY: Unless you derive some sort of pleasure from supporting a whining, bitter little boy who refuses to be a man and make YOUR marriage work, I vote with your clergyman.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion about a shower some neighborhood friends gave for me when we moved into our new home.

First of all, one "hostess" brought the guest list to me and asked me to address and mail them for her. I did as she asked, and also supplied the stamps.

Another "hostess" used one of her tablecloths, and when she left she told me I could launder it and drop it off at her house. They even told me to take back the empty ginger ale bottles and get the refund.

When the shower was over, they all walked out like guests, leaving the cleaning up to me. Dishes and all. I bought a gift of dusting powder and cologne for each hostess, and carried it to her personally. One lady gave hers to her 5-year-old daughter.

The child got all her dolls and used my gift generously on all of them. (The mother could have at least waited until I left if that's all she thought of my gift.)

Is this the way it's done now? If so, the obligation of being a hostess isn't so bad, is it?

"HONORED"

DEAR HONORED: Apparently, that's the way it's done in your neighborhood. But since you are understandably irked, you are free to seek other friends. You could hardly do worse.

Teens Beset by Adult Problems

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Woman's Editor

NEW YORK—No wonder teenagers sometimes are baffled, beset, and breaking all the rules of behavior.

All you have to do is watch the example the adults set, says America's Junior Miss, Patrice Gaunder.

Teen-ager problems have their roots in adult society," said the pretty brunette miss from Stevensville, Mich. It is their natural tendency to "emulate and imitate" grown-ups and then they find adults preaching one thing and practicing another.

"It's a topsy-turvy world for young people," said Miss Gaunder, who's 18. "Woman dressing like children . . . parents telling children not to smoke, then smoking . . not to drink, then drinking. Children pushed into adulthood too rapidly, girls wearing lipstick at 10 or 11, dating at 12."

CHEATING

Then there's the problem of cheating in school—partly due, she feels, to the "pressures to get a college education, to put the emphasis on grades, not on what you get out of a course."

"I feel that a lot of youth's problems can be put right on the doorstep of parents," said Miss Gaunder. "I don't mean that teen-agers shouldn't make decisions on their own, but the basic values you get from parents. There has to be a strong moral climate at home."

School and religious organizations have a role too, she said.

"I think if we were taught in school about the effects of alcohol . . . of smoking, dope, yes about sex, we'd have fewer problems. Treating them mysteriously so often makes them desirable. We're a curious bunch."

* * *

"It's like driver education in a way," said Miss Gaunder. "There are an awful lot of better drivers because of the driver and safety education programs in schools."

Miss Gaunder is not preaching from a pedestal—just from association with her age group and the things they discuss.

* * *

"She comes from a Catholic family which talks over problems. Her father, George, is coach, athletics director and teacher at Eau Clair, Mich., High School. There are sisters Chris, 17, and Maureen, 8, and brothers Steve, 13, and John, four.

Her mother acted as chaperone on a busload of Patrice Gaunder fans when as Michigan's Junior Miss she went last March to Mobile, Ala., where the contest to choose the nation's ideal high school senior is held.

* * *

Miss Gaunder said she was the only on of the 50 contestants in the '65 pageant to have a traveling fan club.

Her classmates at Lakeshore High went to work washing cars, sold cakes and candies, and held raffles to raise money for the trip to Mobile.

Now Miss Gaunder soon will head for Azalea-Land again to crown her successor on March 26.

In a way, she said, it will be a relief to be a "has been", although the $7,100 in state and national scholarships is the reason she, an honor student, was able to enroll last fall in the school of her choice, Marygrove College, in Detroit.

* * *

The scholarships were only part of the rewards. Three months of criss-crossing the country for the pageant sponsors, Breck, Chevrolet, Scott and Eastman. "Gave me a knowledge I might never have gained otherwise," said the junior miss. "I can look back now and see how much it matured me."

Soon, though it'll be back to doing her own hair; Breck sent a hairdresser along on her tour. She'll also miss, she said, some of the fabulous restaurant meals.

Getting Food Fun Out of Same Dollar

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

Nobody has more respect for the family cook and food-shopper than I have. Everday she's faced with a big shopping list and not quite enough cash to match it. When she goes to the market, she feels like the fishmonger who sets out to trade a herring for a whale.

But I tell you this — after years of family budget counseling, I'm convinced that a lot of families suffer more from boredom at the dinner table than they do from malnutrition. One major factor that ups the grocery bill is the plea for "something different, Ma — not the same old thing again."

But if Ma goes all-out for something different on Thursday, she doesn't have enough money left to buy even the same old thing on Friday.

What she has to evaluate is what really makes "something different." Does it necessarily have to be a higher-priced item? I say no.

The first thing to do is to change the family's eating habits. Slowly, of course. You can't change anybody's habits, good or bad, overnight. Introduce new types of food which are comparative strangers to your family.

Different types of meat — including the organ meats — unfamiliar types of fish and unaccustomed vegetable dishes. Or dress up the old familiars with new seasonings. I think an interesting assortment of seasonings and spices in the cupboard is one of the most economical and gratifying ways to make the most of your food money.

If you want to challenge this, go ahead, but at least try it first.

Naturally, you must be concerned with nutrition as well as with family likes and dislikes. Professional nutritionists point out you should not neglect the following, if you want to give your family balanced meals: milk, cheese, ice cream; dark-green and deep-yellow vegetables; citrus fruits and tomatoes; cereals and baked goods, enriched or whole grain.

And now here I come, not as a nutritionist but just as a ready eater, and say again: Why don't you try some new seasonings to pep up the old standard favorites? Such as some of the experiments I've enjoyed — especially because they don't raise the food bill enough to even figure out in pennies per dish:

Pork with carraway seed sauerkraut; Cape Cod pot roast doused with cranberry sauce before it's consigned to the oven; stuffed pancakes — stuffed with cooked sausage and green peppers or chicken or any combination of left-overs—and add some basil or curry, maybe a touch of sage and oregano.

Bake the chicken this time with pineapple and-or cocoanut. Put cumin seed in a hash that starts with ground meat and onions; add a little red cooking wine to a package of 59-cent frozen fish filets.

And do try this for a hearty soup — dried split peas, about as inexpensive as you could ask for, cooked leisurely with leeks and diced bacon. If you doubt me, you'll find most of these ideas offered by gourmet chefs. Somebody is going to tell me that leeks aren't usually so cheap on the market. So I'll say that what I do is to use the white parts of the leeks for a big batch of potato soup—then the green parts a couple of days later for the split pea soup.

Gals Depend on Looks

DR. CRANE

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE Y-456: Dr. Bob is the dental surgeon who mentioned that women often grow hysterical when required to have their last few teeth removed.

"Doctor Crane," he began, "why do women show more emotional upsets than men at the thought of wearing false teeth?"

Well, which sex depends more on physical beauty to win a mate?

"Dr. Crane," you will probably reply, "it's the female sex."

And that is true.

Rouge, lipstick, fingernail polish, beauty parlor hairdos and all such cosmetic aids are generally linked with women.

In fact, many men look askance in the barber shops even when a manicurist applies fingernail polish to a man.

For the usual male considers such treatment a sign of sissiness and wonders if the male is a homosexual!

* * *

Women have focussed excessively on mere physical beauty as their major appeal to men.

For ugly men still can attract charming wives, since beauty is not rated as high as an attribute of a successful husband.

Since women thus have placed an abnormal value on their complexions, fingernails, and hair, they will naturally feel more despondent at any physical flaw that seems to reduce their youthful beauty.

Girls thus are abnormally upset even by freckles, as well as acne, scars, flat busts, crossed eyes, big ears, crooked noses, etc.

Attractive white teeth are the most sparkling attention-attractor of the entire human face.

* * *

For, during gay conversation, a girl's lips serve as the moving frame around those white teeth, thus serving as a moving picture.

To keep kissable, a girl thus needs to have attractive teeth!

A toothbrush is one of Cupid's best aids!

But many women go into an emotional collapse when threatened with loss of their two major youth symbols, namely, their teeth and their womb.

The menopausal upset after the age of 40 is medically unsound!

It isn't!

* * *

In fact, the womb is simply excess baggage on a wife's sexual anatomy, being intended primarily as a "maternal" rather than as a "sweetheart" organ.

But women have linked their uterus with their span of years from 15 to 45, when they considered themselves physically most pretty.

And this same undue attachment for their functioning womb also applies to their own teeth.

So they often shed tears and become hysterical at the thought of false teeth.

* * *

Yet those new dentures can make them look 10 years younger and give them a kissable mouth once more.

Although false teeth are not as efficient chewers as your natural teeth, they are far better than a few ugly snags which don't even meet!

But their chief value is to improve your cosmetic charm, so you women should not shun false teeth when you need them.

Instead, you should welcome them as rejuvenators of your appearance!

Free a can of skinny tuna.

Just send us two tuna fish labels. We'll send you a certificate for a free can of Empress, the skinny tuna.

Why do we take the plumpest cuts of white Albacore and call it skinny tuna?

Because of the way we pack it.

Most tuna comes packed in oil. Fatty oil.

We pack Empress the natural way. In water. Non-fattening, no calorie water. That gives Empress less than half the calories of oil-packed tuna.

There's no oil to disguise the taste of Empress. So it has a fresher, more natural flavor. And it's much easier to digest.

Send for a free can. Just mail the coupon below with two tuna fish labels. It's O.K. if one is from the oil-soaked kind. But the other must be from Empress White Tuna.

The skinny tuna.

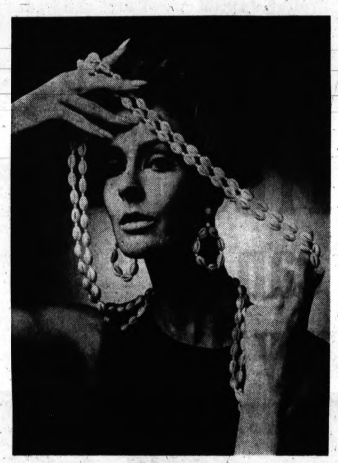
The ring is the thing this year . . . and Richelieu sees them on every finger. Lively as the newest beat and infinitely more elegant are huge bogus pearls set in glistening textured gold. Multi-stone studded rings flash green, crimson and blue and rhinestone pave rings and Cabashon jewels vie for top honors. Wear at least two rings on each hand and for added daring one on the thumb. All are adjustable.



Luscious colors are specially exciting in Trifari's 54-inch ropes of melon shaped beads that you may play with and wear in different ways to create great and individual effects. These "Papaya" beads are as tropical as the fruit itself. Worn with these whimsical hoop earrings they will look equally well with a resort pastel or town black.

Four bracelets look better than one this season and Trifari has created large cabachon stone link bracelets that are smashers. These bracelets in bold colors lend allure to a graceful arm and brightness to a crisp summer dress or sport outfit.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice Farmer:

I'm one of the few women left in the world who still enjoy walking. Why have they suddenly taken out pleats from skirts? This makes a skirt so much more comfortable. I just don't like the new full skirts on myself. Mrs. T. M.

Dear Mrs. T. M.:

The reason you see so few pleats in straight skirts today is because the length of the skirts has eliminated the need for them. When skirts were longer there just wasn't enough width for comfort if the skirt was cut narrow. Today since they are at the knee length, the point of strain isn't the same.

If you aren't wearing your own skirts quite as short, there is nothing to prevent you from adding a pleat to your pattern. Simply measure and extend the center back seam an additional 24 inches from the seam line, from hem to waist. Keep the additional fabric in the pleat and attach at the waist. This makes the skirt hang much nicer. If the fabric is very heavy, you may cut away one layer.

Dear Eunice:

I am making a skirt without side seams; only one seam at the center back. I need additional room in the hip area so I cut the pattern in line with the dart at the side down to the hem as you have suggested. I spread the pattern and added what I needed. When the dart was stitched, it had a big pucker at the end of it. I have tried making the dart longer, but I just can't get rid of the extra material. I must have goofed, but where? Mrs. M. V. V.

Dear Mrs. M. V.V.:

I think I've spotted your problem. Did you mark the side dart after you have cut and spread the pattern for your additional width? This would have made the dart too wide and shapely. It would be impossible for it to be smooth at the end of the dart.

Instead, make your side dart the same size as it was originally; just move it to the center of the space where you separated the pattern. The additional fabric can be eased into the waistband or a small extra dart may be added if you are very thin below the waist.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Miss Ruby Wallace, Roanoke, Va., wins a Tailor Trix pressing board for this suggestion.

"For a 'patch to match,' keep a box of wax crayons handy when sewing. If the patch doesn't match the garment, it can be colored with the crayon that matches the garment. Press with a hot iron over a tissue! The wax comes off on the tissue and the color stays on the patch."

(Thanks, Ruby, for the great tip. There are lots of mothers who will bless you for this money-saving idea.)

You can't find patterns without gusset type detail. Don't spend the rest of your life avoiding them. Instead, send 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope today to Eunice Farmer, in care of The Pontiac Press. Request your copy of my leaflet, "All About Gussets." It will simplify this frustrating sewing detail with simple step-by-step instructions.

Why Grow Old?
By Josephine Lowman

Q. I don't know what to do about my eyebrows. They are rather thin and I need to use an eyebrow pencil. However I just can't seem to use it with "feathery" strokes. No matter how hard I try you can still see the little lines. What am I doing wrong?

A. Use your finger to blend the little lines. The idea is to avoid one hard straight line. You might like to brush on your brows instead of using a pencil. This type brow coloring is easy to apply. You simply rub the little brush over the powder or cake and then brush on your brows. They look very natural.

Q. I am always reading that brows should be plucked only underneath, not on top. My brows are fuzzy at the top and don't look well groomed or well defined unless I pluck some hairs above the brows. Am I wrong?

A. When shaping the brows, pluck them only at the lower level. You can safely remove any stray hairs on top which are out of the natural line of the brow. You should do this.

Q. Sometimes I read that mascara should be applied to the lower lashes. This makes my eyes look like daisies or something. I feel silly.

A. While there is nothing wrong with looking like a daisy, I agree that the effect is usually much more attractive when mascara is used only on the upper lashes. A tiny little line at the outer corners of the eyes, made with an eyebrow pencil, adds zest for gala occasions.

Q. My makeup looks fine in daytime but at night it looks awful, sort of washed out and nil. Why?

A. Your makeup probably does not have enough pink in it for nighttime. Artificial lighting washes out the pink. Try one at night which is pinker.

Q. I am only 35 but I have deep horizontal lines on my forehead. It seems to me that I am too young to have these. What could have caused it?

* * *

A. You almost surely have the habit of lifting your eyebrows. This facial mannerism will efch lines on a very young face if indulged in habitually. The first thing you must do is to correct this habit.

Also massage a lubricating cream ALONG the lines each night using your finger in a rotary motion. You can help by "ironing" them out.

Bride's Father Will Cheer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The hotel calls it the "marry now-pay later" plan. And says Ralph Hitz Jr., general manager of the Sheraton-Atlantic, it's an industry first.

The plan enables the bride's father to pay for the reception on the installment plan.

Hitz computed the cost as low as 65 cents per person per month (for 24 months) for a reception which includes a champagne toast, a seven-course steak dinner, "live" music for dancing, a photographer to shoot a 24-picture album, a private hideaway bridal suite — complete with a chilled bottle of champagne.

* * *

To boot, the bride gets to keep the silver knife used to cut the cake.

August vows are planned by Judith Ann Slabinski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Slabinski of Valencia Drive and Bernard J. Chuinard of East Drahner Road, Oxford Township, son of the Arthur A. Chuinards of Chicago, Ill.

Concert of Bach Set March 21 in Area

Devotees of Johann Sebastian Bach will be interested in a Bach Memorial Concert to be performed March 21 at 8:30 p.m. in the Oakland County Center Auditorium.

* * *

Presented on the 281st anniversary of Bach's birth, the concert will feature a number never before played in this country, Concerto in C Major for Two Harpsichords.

This is the first concert of its type sponsored by the newly organized Bach Memorial Corporation.

Dr. Jack Kevorkian, Arthur Stephan, and Kurt A. Weber are officers.

* * *

Because of limited seating capacity, admission to the concert is by invitation only. Interested individuals may write to Bach Memorial, PO Box 603, Pontiac, Mich. 48054.

India Force Heads for Uprising Scene

SHILLONG, India (AP) — Indian army columns pushed through sniper-infested jungle today toward two major towns overrun by Mizo tribesmen in southeast Assam State.

An official spokesman said the relief parties set out from Aijal, headquarters town for the Massachusetts-size district that extends down between East Pakistan and Burma. Their objectives were Champhai, near the Burmese border, and Lungleh, to the south.

The spokesman said rebels who had been attacking Dawmgawn, near Aijal, "have been dispersed and casualties have been inflicted." Aijal was also overrun but was recaptured.

"Casualties on our side have been very light," he said. "Since the Mizo attacks have been at night, it is difficult to say what their casualties have been, but we presumed they were very heavy."

REPORT DENIED

The spokesman denied one published report that an air force plane was hit by ground fire while strafing a rebel position.

Newsmen were asked not to use the terms "revolt" and "rebellion" and instead to call the Mizos misguided or lawless elements. The government is preparing leaflets which are to be dropped over Mizo territory urging the tribesmen to abandon their uprising.

Special broadcasts also are being beamed at the Mizos by All-India Radio, the government network.

The spokesman disclosed that one platoon of the Assam Rifles which set out from Demagiri for Lungleh apparently was ambushed and may have been wiped out.

50 MEN

Reports reaching Shillong, Assam's capital, said about 50 men were in the platoon and the survivors surrendered to the Mizos.

★ ★ ★

Communication with Lungleh was lost shortly after the Mizos revolted the night of Feb. 28. The tribesmen, a Mongol-origin people of high intellect and physical ability, want their own independent state.

★ ★ ★

The spokesman told newsmen in this beautiful wooded hill station that air force pilots flew over Lungleh and reported most of the city's 2,000 residents appeared to have fled into the surrounding hills.

"The city looks deserted," the spokesman said.

WAS CONFIDENT

Another large group of well-armed Mizos is concentrating at Demagiri, on the East Pakistani border, according to an Assam government official. He said he was confident the army would be able to deal with them.

Border security forces and the Assam Rifles have linked up and are ready to fight their way to Demagiri, he reported.

Aijal's 14,000 residents face a severe water shortage because the Mizos blew up the town's 10-mile water pipeline when they retreated. The road from Silchar has been cleared of rebels and repaired and plans are being made to bring water in by that route.

The town is also short of food as the rebels burned the bazaar before they left. A convoy, loaded with such essential supplies as rice, wheat, and cooking oil is on its way.

The flu epidemic in 1918 killed 572 persons in the United States alone.

600,000 Children in California Needy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — More than 600,000 needy children in California will require public financial assistance in the budget year beginning July 1 for food, clothing and shelter.

Hale Champion, state director of finance, gave that estimate today to the California Association for Health and Welfare.

Champion said the typical family receiving aid consists of a mother and three children. She has less than a high school education and at least one major medical disability. She gets about $175 a month.

Medical Crisis—3

U.S. Health Care Nearing 'Super' Era

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Under the impact of new demand and elaborate federal programs, traditional ways of U.S. medicine may be reshaped in an era of innovation. Here's a look at the forms this evolution might take in this third of five articles.)

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK — Dramatic, profound changes are spreading from the collision between new health demands and traditional care.

Emerging, in a sense, is the "superdoctor" and "supernurse."

The do it-all-yourself days of the physician are closing out. Instead, he's been becoming more the quarterback of a new kind of health team. He is, of necessity, delegating some familiar old functions to people specifically trained to perform them.

"Fifteen years ago, a doctor would have screamed if a nurse dared to give a hypodermic or set up an intravenous feeding. Now it's becoming routine for her," one physician said.

TIME SCARCE

Time is called the scarcest commodity for the doctor who spent 10 years or more learning his skills.

So he is stepping up the ladder, to the top of a pyramid where he can care for more people, do more and new things.

In responsibilities and skills, the registered nurse is moving up, too. Licensed practical nurses now perform some of the registered nurses' former chores, including changing simple dressings; and hospitals now have nearly 130,000 such practical nurses. Technicians, clerks, secretaries, business school graduates, housekeepers, are performing duties once shouldered by doctor or nurse.

Appearing also is the nurse-midwife — the Johns Hopkins Hospital is training some — for "there is no possibility that all the infants going to be born can be delivered by physicians," said Dr. Thomas B. Turner, Hopkins Medical School dean.

"Also," he added, "there is no possibility of having enough psychiatrists to deal individually with all patients. Again, the physicians must have help from allied professions."

Nurse-midwives are trained to handle routine prenatal and postnatal care, including advice on feeding infants, and to perform deliveries, unless complications are suspected or do arise.

And why not, several authorities suggest, borrow from the military system that quickly trains "medics" or corpsmen to high skill for specific life-saving work on the battlefield? Their counterparts can be used at home.

Some medical leaders object that the homefront "medic" might "not know when he's getting in over his head, and might harm the patient." Proponents think he could perform with awareness of his own limitations, and at least provide services where none exist.

CHANGES COMING

Changes — not all of which either patients or doctors may like — have been coming. House calls by doctors are far less frequent. Many doctors are banded together into group practice. Nurses or technicians often draw blood samples, or conduct some routine tests.

Some experts predict development of special assistants to take your medical history, before the doctor sees you to ask more questions, and make his diagnosis and recommendations.

In most discussions of change from old ways, there is concern about maintaining quality of care and training, and the personal touch in medicine. And sometimes there are fears about government dictation of how medicine shall be practiced.

But more changes are ahead to meet the demand for more health services.

PUBLIC BARGAINING

"The public now is collectively bargaining for medical care. The medical profession has been concerned with what it thinks the patient needs. Now society is demanding things which may or may not be related to need," said Dr. George A. Wolf Jr., vice president for medical and dental affairs of Tufts University, and executive director of Tufts-New England Medical Center.

In 1940, one in three of all health workers was a physician, said Dr. William H. Stewart, surgeon-general of the U.S. Public Health Service. "Now it is one in 10. The health industry is the third largest in the nation, and the fastest growing."

By some estimates, a million more health professionals will be needed within a few years.

Medical organizations have initiated programs to recruit personnel and help solve manpower problems. The loan program to medical students of the American Medical Association is one example.

The main push to augment manpower is being financed by federal funds.

GRANTS FOR TRAINING

In a health-education message to Congress on March 1, President Johnson recommended a three-year program of grants for training health workers. The money would be used to build and improve schools, provide fellowships and develop new types of health personnel.

The program also would provide grants to states and communities for making better use of health manpower facilities and setting up comprehensive health services.

Government money is helping to build 13 new medical schools which will add 800 to 1,000 new first-year students in time. And 10 other medical schools show promise of later coming into being.

Congress recently authorized grants of $480 million during the next three years for construction, repair and replacement of schools to train physicians, dentists — existing schools graduate only 3,210 dentists a year now — optometrists, pharmacists and podiatrists.

INCREASE CLASSES

Grants for operating funds require schools to increase their entering classes by at least five students each. This could add up to 440 more students each year, right away. Nursing schools also are receiving grants for expansion, and additional students.

Loan and scholarship funds are becoming available, with up to 50 per cent of total loans and accrued interest to be canceled for physicians, dentists and optometrists who choose to practict in areas, mainly rural, which have shortages. Loans and scholarships also are being made available to train more nurses.

★ ★ ★

The demand for physicians is insatiable, says an AMA spokesman. Expansion of other groups in the total health team must be a main part of the answer.

This means more medical technologists — even if automation in the laboratory speeds their work — more medical librarians, nurses aides, home health aides, most of some 45 different occupations.

TRAINING 8,000

In cooperation with the Department of Labor, the American Hospital Association is helping train up to 8,000 men and women as nursing aids, surgical technicians, housekeepers, dietary aides, and other jobs in hospitals.

Some of the specialized training must be carried out on the job, said Dr. Michael E. DeBakey of Houston, Tex. "We will see new types of specialists developing, with responsible, exciting jobs ahead. We must develop specialized training programs, a new spectrum of specialists."

And, says Dr. Lowell Coggeshall of the University of Chicago, "We must find ways to reach into all economic levels to augment our health manpower pool."

Dr. Turner of Johns Hopkins adds: "The greatest untapped sources are women and minority groups.

★ ★ ★

"In the long pull, we can look for superior intellects in the health professions from women and Negroes. The Negro is a fine candidate if he is not handicapped early by poverty, and lack of attention to the development of his potential."

Dixie City Faces Strike by Teachers

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — In its first Deep South test of strength, the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, polished final plans today for a strike.

The union said the "work stoppage," to start Friday morning, would shut down the New Orleans public school system. School officials disagreed.

* * *

Carl W. Dolce, school superintendent, said he doubts if the union has enough teacher support to seriously disrupt the schools and that classrooms would remain open.

The strike call backs demands for a collective bargaining election among the 3,600 teachers in the public schools.

'MAJORITY SUPPORT'

"From all indications, it seems a majority of the teachers will join the work stoppage," said C. H. Hursey, a union national representative.

Local 527 claims 1,400 members, about 80 per cent of them Negro. Hursey said, however that the union had gathered the signatures of 2,200 teachers on a petition for a bargaining agent election.

* * *

Donald Burton, assistant research director for the union told a news conference Tuesday that "race is not a significant factor. We seek to improve the lot of all teachers, black and white."

In a summary of teacher complaints, Burton said New Orleans ranks last among the nation's 20 largest cities in teacher salaries, fringe benefits and working conditions.

The New Orleans Schools Board agrees with many of the complaints. It has called a special election for May 3 to add one cent to the three-cent sales tax to raise money for schools.

THE PROBATE COURT
FOR THE COUNTY OF OAKLAND

Matter of OTTO HEINI RALF KNIBBE. Change of Name.

It is Ordered that on April 11, 1966, at eleven a.m., in the Probate Courtroom, Pontiac, Michigan a hearing be held on the petition of Otto Heini Ralf Knibbe to change the name of Otto Heini Ralf Knibbe to Otto Heini Ralf Bartsch.

Publication and service shall be made as provided by Statute and Court Rule.

Dated: March 2, 1966. Otto Heini Ralf Knibbe, 760 Joslyn Road, Lake Orion, Michigan.

DONALD E. ADAMS,
Judge of Probate

TOWNSHIP OF WEST BLOOMFIELD, COUNTY OF OAKLAND
NOTICE OF HEARING

RE: Petition to Locate, Establish and Construct a Drain in the Vicinity of the S.E. ¼ of Section 24, T2N, R9E, West Bloomfield Township, Oakland County, Michigan

Notice is Hereby Given, that pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 20 of Act No. 40 of the Public Acts of 1956, as amended, a petition was filed with the County Drain Commissioner of Oakland County, Michigan, petitioning for the following project, to-wit:

Location, establishment and construction of an intra-county drain to be located in the southeast one quarter of Section 24, T2N, R9E, West Bloomfield Township, Oakland County, Michigan, the tentative route of which is described as follows:

A storm sewer in "Herndon's Walnut Lake Estates," in the S.E. ¼ of Section 24, T2N, R9E, West Bloomfield Township, Oakland County, Michigan, beginning at the shore of Walnut Lake; thence southeasterly along the common line of Lots 332 and 333 extended northwesterly of said "Herndon's Walnut Lake Estates" and continuing along the common line of Lots 332 and 333 to and across Putnam Drive; thence southeasterly along the common line of Lots 311 and 312 and continuing along the common line of Lots 221 and 222 to Sunnycrest Drive; thence southwesterly in the right-of-way of Sunnycrest Drive approximately 770 feet to the intersection of Sunnycrest Drive and Daintree Ave. (formerly Druley Ave.)

Notice is Further Given, that the Drainage Board for said project has considered the said petition and has made a tentative determination that said petition is sufficient and that said project is practical; has given the name "Keller Drain" as the name of said drain and the name "Keller Drainage District" as the name of the drainage district therefor; and has made a tentative determination that the following public corporations should be assessed for the cost of said project, to-wit: State of Michigan on account of drainage to state highways; County of Oakland on account of drainage to county highways; and Township of West Bloomfield.

Notice is Further Given, that the said Drainage Board will meet on the 5th day of April, 1966, at 9:30 o'clock a.m., Eastern Standard Time, in the West Bloomfield Township Hall, 4460 Orchard Lake Road, Orchard Lake, Michigan, for the purpose of hearing any objections to said project, to the petition therefor, and to the matter of assessing the cost thereof to the public corporations above named. At said hearing any public corporation to be assessed or any taxpayer thereof, will be entitled to be heard.

This notice is given by order of the said Drainage Board for the Keller Drain.

Dated: February 15, 1966

Hanoi 'Voice' Loses Passport

U. S. on Tape Makers 'Didn't Repay Loans'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has revoked the passport of Ronald Ramsey, the self-styled peace guerrilla who has been making anti-Viet Nam war tapes for Radio Hanoi under the name of Granny Goose.

The department said Tuesday night the action was taken nearly a month ago because Ramsey had failed to repay loans made by the department to him in 1964 when he lacked money to return to the United States.

The loans reportedly totaled $1,000 and were said to have been made at Nairobi, Kenya, June 10, 1964, and at Algiers Feb. 15, 1965. The secretary of state can withhold passports from persons whose overseas travel he deems prejudicial to U.S. interests. The decision can be appealed.

Ramsey said earlier in New York that his passport had been lifted because of his antiwar activities. He said two men approached him on a Manhattan street, identified themselves and gave him a three-page statement of notification.

PASSPORTS CANCELLED

"It stated at length that all passports previously issued to me were hereby canceled, that if I attempted to leave the United States I would be prosecuted," he said.

He added that the letter explained "the reason for the cancellation was that I was a threat to U.S. security and to the foreign policies of the American government."

Ramsey, who started making his "Radio Stateside" tapes in Los Angeles several months ago but moved to New York because he felt the pressure of impending arrest, said he was stunned by the letter. He called it "an outright denial of my constitutional rights."

B52s to Be Altered for More Bomb Load

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The Boeing Co. is modifying some B52 Stratofortress bombers to increase their conventional bomb loads by as much as 57 per cent.

B52s so equipped would be able to carry up to 60,000 pounds, an increase of 21,750 pounds. The company did not say how many B52s were being modified.

Reform School Inmates Taking Part in Success Experiment

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a drab, institutional building at the crest of a steep hill commanding the capital city, young delinquents are playing guinea pig for a novel experiment in the psychology of success.

Unlike most reform school inmates, these fellows are free to lie in bed all day, shoot pool (if they have the money) or goof off at will.

But they don't. The psychologists have taken Jefferson Hall at the National Training School for Boys and transformed it into a microcosm of the outside world — where achievement pays off.

For nearly every act of their waking day, the 18 boys — mostly young car thieves — in this federal institution are given points. For each point, they are paid a penny.

PAY FOR ROOM

Unlike the 200 or so other lads at the reform school, they pay for their rooms, which are private. They pay for their food, their toiletries, their recreation, their books, their decorations, their clothing.

And with staff members of the institute for behavioral research watching carefully, the boys are studying hard, working in their spare time, shooting for "success."

* * *

The experiment is being governed by a simple psychological premise that rewards stimulate achievement and success.

Financed by grants from the Departments of Justice and Health, Education and Welfare, the experiment was launched in the hopes it would develop a curriculum that might be applied to other penal institutions.

"In a sense, Jefferson Hall is a greenhouse," said Harold L. Cohen, director of the experiment. "The training school boy comes from an environment in which the choices of activity were limited and the motivation very low. As a result, many chose the only path open to them — antisocial behavior.

* * *

"Here we are trying to design an environment in which the student is motivated by the prospect of an immediate reward, and where he has several choices of activity open to him."

The hitch on the outside, Cohen said, is that rewards — such as a diploma or a promotion — often seem vague and distant.

But points for learning and achievement are awarded immediately at Jefferson Hall, and the weekly paycheck buys many of the same things as the paycheck of a worker on the outside. Eventually, Cohen said, the checks will be gradually delayed to condition the youths to the delays that accompany rewards on the outside.

While a boy may choose to goof off all day, he knows his private room costs $6 a week, or 600 points, as does his basic menu. He knows that if his points fall below 1,200, he will go "on relief" — losing his private room, eating institutional food, wearing institutional clothing, and enjoying no extras.

* * *

So he studies and works. None has yet gone on relief. Several have shown dramatic scholastic improvement, for which they are tested frequently and paid in points.

Starting at a base pay of $10 to $15 a week — payable only on achievement of 90 per cent in examinations and a minimum number of hours of work — the youth shoots for even higher grades and more work.

The boys, who are selected at random, are governed by none of the controls imposed on other inmates.

* * *

"These young people are not just after points or money," Cohen insisted, "they are hungry for a chance to be right instead of wrong — to be successful."

Deformed Child Really 'Angel Named Maria'

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the 13th in a 40-part series by famous and unknown persons on how faith in God changed their lives.)

By ELIZABETH SHERRILL
Written for Guideposts Magazine

"There was a baby born here two weeks ago that no one knows what to do with," the doctor said into the telephone.

Elizabeth Sherrill

The infant was a vegetable: a hydrocephalic without sight or hearing or any human potential.

The mother had disappeared from the hospital and the state had no provision for handicapped children under 6.

"It will never live that long," the doctor continued. "At the outside, it might live six months. Meanwhile, there is the problem of care . . ."

"Bring us the baby," answered the voice at the other end of the line. It belonged to Sister Marie Patrice, the nun in charge of the day-nursery which the Sisters of Mercy ran for working mothers in and around Charlotte, N. C.

Sister Patrice was at the cottage door when the doctor carried a bundle in, then pulled aside the hospital blanket for the nun to see.

For a moment, she could make no sense of the two shapes before her. Then she realized that one was an enormous head; the other, where a back should have been, a tumor the size of the head.

Stumps hung where there should have been legs and feet: only the little arms and hands were properly formed.

CRYING CHILD

She cried constantly as though in pain. Whenever they picked her up, however, the crying stopped.

So the Sisters began carrying her about with them while they looked after the other babies and while they ate and went to chapel and even while they slept.

Six months came and went. Never once had she given a hint of awareness.

FIRST SMILE

"She smiled!" the Sister cried. "Maria smiled at me!"

LENTEN GUIDEPOSTS

The weeks and months sped by as the Sisters discovered first one talent, then another, in the baby that had no potential.

They plunked the nursery piano and discovered that Maria had hearing.

They placed her hands on the light switch and discovered that she had the muscle control to turn it on and off herself.

FAVORITE GAME

She was playing this favorite game one winter afternoon when she was almost 2, when suddenly she turned to stare at the bulb burning in the ceiling. Her lips parted.

"Light!" said Maria.

As a first word, it could not have been better chosen. For it seemed to the Sisters that with it came light from God about this child, that the next step to be taken in faith was removal of the tumor that dwarfed the little body.

The surgeon was dubious. Without the tumor, he reasoned, all the excess fluid might settle in the head, distending it still further and hastening the inevitable death.

TUMOR REMOVED

But the tumor was removed and the very reverse of the doctor's fear occurred. Instead of gaining fluid, the head began to drain.

Over a period of two years, it shrank nine inches until, as Maria herself grew, it looked very nearly normal.

They were wonderful years. The Sisters bought a tiny wheelchair that Maria herself could roll with her strong arms and hands.

Most important, to Maria, they bought her shoes. As other children dream of being ballerinas, Maria dreamed of wearing shoes.

NEVER WALK

She would never walk, but the Sisters understood that shoes are for more than mere transportation. And so the surgeon shaped a place on the unformed legs for shoes to go.

Meanwhile, as word got around that the Sisters were sheltering a defective child, another such infant was brought to them. Then another and another.

I went to visit Holy Angels Nursery wondering how a home that held only deformed babies would affect me.

★ ★ ★

A curly-haired little girl met me at the door, the ruffles of her starched blue dress concealed the arms of a wheelchair. "I'm very pleased to meet you," she said politely. "Do you like my shoes?"

WHITE SHOES

Of course, it was Maria. Her shoes were white, with little bells on them and lace around the top, and I told her truthfully that they were gorgeous.

Maria and Sister Patrice led me through the sunny new home built with gifts from Protestants, Jews and Catholics all over the country.

On we went, crib after crib—67 of them. I saw Jewish babies, Protestants, Catholics, Negroes and whites, children of architects and mill hands, doctors and migrant workers.

★ ★ ★

We reached the last room and I realized what it was I had been feeling. In each crib, Sister Patrice had made me see a person, an individual unique in all creation, a human soul of infinite worth. When I told her so, she beamed.

"Oh, yes!" she said. "And do you know what the greatest moment of all is? When this person leaps free at last from his poor, hurt body!"

She had been at the crib-side each time a baby died, she said.

"God tells me when He is taking one of them. And then this little person stands suddenly free, whole and straight, more beautiful than you dreamed. It's only an instant, you know, for these babies fly straight to the heart of God."

I stared at the Sister, at the bottles of blood plasma behind her, the oxygen tents, the rows of drugs. I hardly knew how to phrase the question that was in my mind.

"Why struggle then to keep them here as long as we can?" she asked for me. She ran her hand through the gold-brown curls that make a halo of Maria's head.

"God has all the bright angels of heaven for His joy," she said gently. "We struggling servants of His here below — we need angels, too."

Viet Mosquitoes Are Tenacious Foes

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The malaria mosquito is a sneakier enemy than even the Viet Cong, says a consultant to the U.S. surgeon general.

Col. Robert M. Altman, an entomologist, says millions of dollars are being spent in Viet Nam to fight the mosquito.

"We can get rid of the Viet Cong," he said, "but the mosquitoes are still there."

Rain, Snow in NY Help Water Supply

NEW YORK (AP) — Rain and continued runoff from melting snow brought the city's water supply to 54.2 per cent of capacity this week.

But the level was still below the normal 77.8 per cent.

Time Change Foes Emerge

Bill Makes Daylight Saving Near-Certain

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A House revolt was in the making today against legislation to make summer Daylight Time all but automatic throughout the nation.

★ ★ ★

The House Commerce Committee approved the bill yesterday. But several congressmen predicted a floor fight if it should get past the rules committee, which must schedule it for debate.

The bill would establish Daylight Saving Time in all 50 states except those whose legislatures voted specifically before April 1 to keep the whole state on Standard Time. It would go into effect next year.

Most of the opposition focused on the automatic feature starting next year under which a state would have to take action to avoid the so-called "fast" time.

★ ★ ★

Rep. Ancher Nelsen, R-Minn., said if somebody else didn't do it, he intended to propose a floor amendment to reverse the bill.

REVERSE BILL

Under his proposal, a state would stay on year-around Standard Time unless it specifically voted to go on Daylight Time.

Rep. James R. Broyhill, R-N. C., called it a "back-door approach to nationwide summer Daylight Time. Another congressman predicted it would raise a "hornet's nest," particularly because a number of state legislatures don't meet until next year.

For this year, the committee bill would simply set the last Sunday in April and the last Sunday in October as the uniform starting and stopping dates for any state or locality going on fast time.

★ ★ ★

Even if the House passed the bill, it would have to be reconciled with a gentler Senate measure already passed.

★ ★ ★

The Senate proposal simply would set the final Sundays in April and October as the uniform dates for any state or region electing summer Daylight Saving Time.

School Law Progress Is Defended

DETROIT (AP) — Supt. Samuel M. Brownell said Tuesday Detroit's public schools were moving as fast as possible to provide services to nonpublic school students under the controversial auxiliary services law.

Brownell issued a progress report to the school board in response to charges that he is dragging his feet until a court suit testing the constitutionality of the act is settled.

The law was passed by the State Legislature last year. It requires public schools to provide special education and other services to non - public schools in their districts.

The American Civil Liberties Union and some religious groups have filed suit against the Detroit School Board, charging the law violates the principle of separation of church and state.

ASKED TO INTERVENE

Parochial school representatives, on behalf of 27 plaintiffs, asked to intervene in the suit 10 days ago. They charged handicapped children would be deprived of their rights if the act was not upheld.

Brownell said his investigation shows 15 of the 27 children named as plaintiffs attend schools outside the Detroit district. The other 12, he said, had not indicated a need for the testing program which Detroit already is conducting in nonpublic schools under terms of the act.

Brownell said two of the children, said to need speech correction, have been receiving special instruction in public schools since September. He added speech correction screening has been completed in all nonpublic schools.

RAY OF HOPE—Judy Lynn Funsch, 5, of Genesee Township near Flint, entered University Hospital in Ann Arbor yesterday where she will undergo a risky heart operation tomorrow. If the surgery is successful, she will have a normal life ahead of her.

Critics Back LBJ for Not Expanding War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's senior Republican said today President Johnson's efforts to avoid escalation of the Viet Nam war have led critical senators to give him "more support than we did some time ago."

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said in an interview he wanted to give Johnson credit for his repeated attempts to avoid any reckless expansion of the war.

Aiken was among those who joined with Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield last January in warning of the dangers of a massive Southeast Asian war.

"I think we are giving the President more support than we did some time ago," ht said.

WITHIN BOUNDS

"He seems to be keeping our military efforts within bounds."

A similar but more guarded view was voiced by another critic of Johnson's Viet Nam policies, Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn.

In a separate interview, Gore said he is giving "uneasy" support to the President's present course.

"I hope and believe that the President's course is now one of prudence and caution," Gore said. "It keeps one nervous, however, to realize that every act of escalation has been taken only after bland assurances have been given that we seek no wider war."

WORD OF CAUTION

Johnson got some support Tuesday — plus a word of caution — from an expert on China, A. Doak Barnett, acting director of Columbia University's East Asian Institute.

Barnett told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the United States should continue to fight Communist subversion and insurrection and stand on its pledge to defend Formosa, capital of the Nationalist Chinese government.

On the other hand, Barnett said, "we not only should not escalate" in Viet Nam, "but should de-escalate."

'DANGEROUS ERROR'

"It would be a dangerous error to conclude that Communist China would not risk major war if it genuinely felt that its vital interests were threatened," he told the committee which opened its hearings on Red China Tuesday.

Barnett suggested that the United States should acknowledge the Communist regime as the government of mainland China and support Red China's admission to the United Nations, along with Nationalist China. The United States also should exchange diplomatic representatives with Red China, he said.

★ ★ ★

"I strongly believe," he told the committee, "that the time has come — even though the United States is now engaged in a bitter struggle in Viet Nam — for our government to alter its policy toward Communist China and adopt a policy of containment but not isolation."

★ ★ ★

A contrasting view on Red China was offered by Walter S. Robertson, who was assistant secretay of state under John Foster Dulles.

Robertson told a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee U.S. recognition of Red China would "greatly magnify our own problems of resisting Communist expansion."

American recognition of the Red China government, he said, would "bring prestige and power to a regime that threatens every principle to which America gives allegiance — it would increase its capacity for making war at a time it is planning war."

★ ★ ★

Right now, Robertson said, Red China is keeping North Viet Nam away from the conference table and blocking all efforts to find peace in Southeast Asia.

★ ★ ★

"The Communists apparently feel that if they hold out long enough," he said, "the concessions due to our divisions, self-criticisms and impatience will be made on our side."

Man Cited as Hero Killed in Car Crash

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — A man cited as a hero last November for saving a woman from a burning car was killed Tuesday night in an auto wreck.

Charles Heyn, 39, Fort Wayne, died when his car crashed through a guard railing and rolled down an embankment.

Heyn received an award for heroism for freeing a woman trapped in the flaming wreckage of her car in downtown Fort Wayne. Two children perished in the accident.

Crash Kills Father of 10

ALPENA (AP) — An auto skidded off a road and hit two trees near Alpena Tuesday, killing Karl G. Briske, 32, of Alpena. The victim was the father of 10 children.

New York City Commuter's Life Was Taxing Enough Before the Lindsay Proposal

By HAL COOPER

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York City commuter is, like the crabgrass on his lawn, a hardy type.

Typically, he rises in the dark far out in the suburbs, spends up to two hours riding slow trains to the city—often standing up — and rarely sees his children from weekend to weekend.

* * *

The commuter thought he had it tough enough already, but a new trial threatens to be heaped on his suffering head.

If all goes according to plan, the commuter soon will be paying a city income tax for the privilege of working in New York. The tax will be on top of the federal income tax, the state income tax and the taxes he pays to support the community where his mortgaged castle is.

Some of the more rebellious commuters are threatening to move into the city, thus saving enough on commutation tickets and crabgrass killers to break even.

Mayor John V. Lindsay is a kindly man and he hates making the commuters unhappy. However, he says the city is in "shocking financial condition" and must raise more money for its budget.

"New York," the mayor said recently, "owes a great debt to its 250,000 commuters. But the commuter in turn owes a debt to New York City. He rides on city-supported buses and subways. He is protected by city police. He depends on the city fire department.

"We must ask the commuters to assume their fair share of the cost of maintaining the city."

So if the legislature can be persuaded to pass the necessary enabling bill, New York City will start June 1 assessing incomes of both city dwellers and commuters on a scale of 1 to 5 per cent.

A commuter with a salary of $11,000 a year and two children would have to pay the city about $110 a year, deducted from his check on a pay as you go basis.

* * *

The money he would pay to the city would be deductible from the income he pays federal tax on, so he would pay the Internal Revenue people $27 less a year. The experts said there was a chance the city tax also would be made deductible from income for state tax purposes.

Eat Well on Friday With Seafood Soup

PEARL OF THE SEA SOUP — Sea scallops which you can buy frozen are the mainstay of this unusual soup. Scallops themselves are rather mild flavored, so that the added spices aren't too vigorous.

Take some exotic spices from the Orient and some tender scallops from cold waters off the New England coast and you've got the basic ingredients for a true and lasting flavor friendship. Put them all together in a hearty, aromatic soup, and you've got a solution to Lenten menu problems, too.

It's another indication of what can be done with the versatile ocean scallop, the delightful mollusk that grows plump and sweet in chilly Atlantic waters.

New England seacoast families, wise in the ways of preparing the sea's harvest, know that the succulent scallop can be prepared in a wide variety of dishes.

They bake them, they broil them, they fry them — they feature them in casseroles, salads and chowders. And, being thrifty New Englanders, they relish the fact that there's no waste in scallops.

Their familiarity with exotic spices is not surprising, either, when you think of the pungent cargoes their seagoing ancestors brought to these shores from the East Indies.

Pearl of the Sea Soup

3 lbs. sea scallops
2 quarts water
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup finely chopped carrots
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 cooking apples, peeled and grated
1 tablespoon flour
2 teaspoons curry powder
Pinch of mace
¼ teaspoon ground cardamom
⅛ teaspoon ginger
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
1 tablespoon sugar
Few grains black pepper
1 tablespoon salt
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
5 cups chicken bouillon
6 cups hot, fluffy rice

Simmer sea scallops in 2 quarts boiling water 5 minutes. Remove scallops; save scallop stock. Melt butter in large skillet; add carrots, green pepper, onion and apples. Cook, stirring constantly, 5 minutes.

Combine flour, spices and parsley. Add to vegetables; mix well. Add stock slowly. Stir in sugar, pepper, salt, tomato paste and chicken bouillon. Simmer 15 minutes.

Add sea scallops; simmer 5 minutes longer. Serve very hot over rice. Makes 12 servings.

Orange Topping

A cup of granulated sugar mixed with a half cup of orange juice may be gently boiled for about five minutes and then poured over a white cake baked in a square 9-inch pan.

If you want hash browned potatoes to be crusty, give them plenty of time in the skillet without stirring.

Not Just for Pie

Has that jar of pumpkin-le spice been on your shelf for some time? You can use some of it (instead of the regular spices called for) in Indian Pudding and Gingerbread.

Salad Croutons

Trim the crusts from raisin bread slices and flatten slightly with a rolling pin. Spread with butter and cream cheese; roll up around long thin sticks of celery, carrot and green pepper.

Recipe by Request

A reader who calls herself "A Rochester Grandma" has requested several recipes. The one for a pudding cake is given here.

If she will call The Press, she can get more information about the other recipes.

CHICOLATE SUNDAE PUDDING

1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cocoa
⅔ cup sugar
½ cup milk
½ cup chopped nuts
2 tablespoons butter melted
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift dry ingredients into mixing bowl; blend in remaining ingredients. Pour into greased one-quart casserole.

Topping

½ cup brown sugar
¼ cup white sugar
3 tablespoons cocoa
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water

Combine all ingredients except water; spread evenly over batter. Pour water over all; do not stir.

Bake at 350 degrees for one hour, covering casserole during last 30 minutes.

Serve hot or cold with whipped cream. Makes 4-6 servings.

Dill Butter Is New for Vegetables

Pickles can be as versatile as the cook. Try Dill Butter over asparagus or broccoli spears for a welcome addition.

Dill Butter

⅔ cup butter
*½ cup minced kosher dill pickles
1 tablespoon dill pickle juice

Melt butter. Stir in pickles and juice; heat. Serve over broccoli or asparagus. Makes 1 cup.

* * *

*½ cup piccalilli can be substituted for minced dill pickles. Eliminate pickle juice.

Malted Milk Layer Tops Cooky Base

Everybody loves brownies. Everybody loves malted milk. Team these two favorites together and what do you have? A new treat — "Malted Milk Dainties" that are so downright delicious they're bound to make a hit at first-try.

The chocolate flavor malted milk can be said to even improve old-favorite brownies. In fact, they're such a scrumptious surprise, we wonder why it took this long to discover them.

They're even easier to make than ordinary brownies. Instead of melting chocolate you just add chocolate flavored malted milk and sift it with the other dry ingredients.

What's more, you use 30 per cent less sugar than called for in the usual brownie recipe. And they come out just the way you like them—good and chewy.

Malted Milk Dainties

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
⅓ cup shortening
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
½ cup chocolate malted milk
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, well beaten
⅔ cup sugar
1 cup coconut
1 cup chopped nuts

Cut 1 cup flour, the shortening and brown sugar together until crumbly. Spread in a greased 8x12-inch pan. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for 10 minutes.

Sift 2 tablespoons flour, malted milk, baking powder and salt together. Beat eggs and gradually beat in sugar. Combine coconut, nuts and sifted dry ingredients. Add to egg mixture and blend well.

Pour over baked crumb mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) 25 minutes longer. Cool and cut into squares. Makes about 2 dozen.

YOU MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS
AND NOT KNOW IT

Fidgeting, nose-picking, a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms...ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then — Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . small, easy-to-take tablets . . . special ease for children and adults.

FINGER FOOD — Easy to eat is a tasty description of brown 'n serve sausage biscuit wrap-ups served piping hot to those gathered around the record player. Foods which can be eaten out of hand have great appeal especially when appetites are hearty and sit-down space is limited.

Sausage Hides in a Biscuit

Ever since the arrival of pizza on the American scene, sausage and bread combinations have become tops in popularity. Here's another snack that is as easy to prepare as it is easy to eat.

The individual wrap-ups can be made ahead of the party and refrigerated until almost time to serve the refreshments. Then, its into a 400 degree oven with them for 8 to 10 minutes.

★ ★ ★

The platterful will disappear quickly as each guest chooses his or her favorite topping. Potato chips, crisp relishes and soft drinks complete the menu.

The brown 'n serve sausage links used in this snack recipe are the same handy sausages that save extra minutes in the morning at breakfast time. The links are fully cooked when purchased so that a brief 3 to 5 minutes in the skillet heats and browns them for serving.

Sausage Biscuit Wrap-Ups

8 ounce package brown 'n serve sausage links
8 ounce package refrigerator biscuits
2 tablespoons milk
Sesame seeds
Celery seeds
Poppy seeds
Dill weed

Heat sausage links 3 minutes in hot oven (400 degrees). Drain on absorbent paper. Separate biscuits and roll into oblong shapes, 1 by 4 inches.

Roll biscuit around sausage letting tip of sausage show at each end. Place sealed edge down on ungreased baking sheet. Brush outside surface of biscuit with milk. Sprinkle with one of the following sesame, celery, poppy seeds or dill weed.

Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) 8 to 10 minutes. The wrapped sausages may be placed on a baking sheet, covered with foil and refrigerated 5 to 7 hours before baking, if desired. Makes 10 snacks.

Teen-Agers Open Up Coffee Houses

Night and day, weekday and weekend, the place to be after school, evenings, any time is the teen coffee house. It can be any place . . . in a parish house, in a department store, in the Y, in a store front, in the Rec department, even in the basement at home.

A teen coffee house is a place where you can belong. It is a place to talk to friends, to sing, to read, to write, to play games. A coffee house is the place to bring a date or to meet one, without spending the week's allowance.

When the lights are low, and the singing is great, and the coffee is steaming in the cups—that's when you know what the coffee house is for . . . it's for people — your kind of people — and for fun.

If you don't have a teen coffee house, take a page out of the little booklet called "Do-It-Yourself Coffee Houses." This handy little 'how to' is crammed full of ideas and examples, recipes and resources.

It tells how teen-agers in Racine, Wisconsin, opened coffee houses in their own home basements — "The Pit," "The Provincial Club" and "The Ship's Wheel," each is open one Friday night in three. There is a gentlemen's agreement not to compete.

All three coffee houses feature folk singing by the owners and their friends, records and tapes, coffee and sandwiches and desserts.

In Chicago, the booklet says, the "Why?" features candlelight, six kinds of coffee and pizza. It not only has folk singing and rock 'n' roll music, but a repertory theatre and jazz nights.

This coffee house is in a store front and the director works for the YMCA . . . but the kids run it and enjoy it seven days and nights a week.

THERE IT IS — Marylynn Fauble, Mann Road, (left) admires a dessert made with Girl Scout cookies — Apricot Whip. On the table is a Minted Brownie Pie. With Marylynn is Jeanette Bryson, North Lake Drive, and her mother, Mrs. Elmer Fauble. The girls are Cadette Scouts, Mrs. Fauble a leader.

GS Cookies Star in Desserts

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

Almost everybody in the Pontiac area is eating Girl Scout cookies this week. It's in a good cause, because profits from the annual cookie sale are used to defray summer camp expenses.

You can just eat the cookies, if you like, but you can also use them in dessert recipes.

The sugared shortbreads and the plain chocolate or vanilla cookies may be used for crumb crusts. Even when filled cookies are used, they make good crusts.

Here are two recipes that a local leader tried out with some of her Scouts. Mrs. Elmer Fauble has worked with Scouting for over 10 years.

APRICOT WHIP

12 dried apricot halves
½ tablespoon plain gelatin
3 tablespoons cold water
1 cup hot apricot syrup
¾ cup crumbled sugared shortbreads
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Cook apricots as directed on package and sweeten to taste. Soften gelatin in cold water; add to hot syrup and stir until dissolved. Cool and chill.

When mixture begins to set, whip until light and fluffy. Fold in crumbled cookies and whipped cream.

Place apricot halves in bottom of mold and stand more shortbreads around the edge. Pour in gelatin mixture and chill until firm. Makes 4-5 servings.

* * *

Minted Brownie Pie is a light but rich tasting dessert.

MINTED BROWNIE PIE

14 chocolate mint cookies
3 egg whites
Dash of salt
¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts
1 cup sweetened whipped cream

Put cookies in refrigerator to chill. Beat egg whites until they hold their shape. Gradually add sugar to form stiff peaks. Roll cookies between sheets of wax paper to make crumbs.

Fold in cookie crumbs, nuts and vanilla. Spread in buttered 9-inch pie tin. Bake 35 minutes at 325 degrees. Cool thoroughly. Spread with whipped cream and garnish with curls of chocolate.

Chop Lamb, Make Sauce, Fill Squash

Lamb Stuffed Acorn Squash

3 medium acorn squash
Melted butter
Salt and pepper
½ cup diced celery
⅛ cup chopped onion
¾ cup rice
1 medium clove garlic, minced
⅛ teaspoon dried dill leaves
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup water
¾ to ½ teaspoon salt
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed tomato soup
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 cups finely chopped cooked lamb

Split squash; remove seeds and fiber. Brush inside and edge with butter; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake cut side down in shallow baking dish (13x9x2") at 400 degrees for 35 minutes.

Meanwhile, in saucepan, cook celery, onion, rice, garlic, and dill in butter until rice is browned and celery is tender, stirring now and then.

Stir in soup, lemon juice, and lamb; fill squash with mixture. Bake an additional 20 minutes.

Alaska Crab Salad Has Appeal for Dieters

Here's a scrumptious salad meal that will make dieters think they have had a treat. Yet this generous salad of Alaska King crab with juicy grapefruit sections, crunchy celery and green pepper topped with tangy Grapefruit Dressing adds only 230 calories to the day's total.

Serve this refreshing combination in a fluted grapefruit cup with Melba toast and tea. It's so temptingly good you'll want to keep it as a regular luncheon idea, diet or not!

King crab is canned or frozen directly from the frigid waters of Alaska. It's a joy to use in so many recipes. American processors remove all the cartilage so the crab can be used directly from the can or carton.

Keep a supply of Alaska King crab on hand for use in delightful salads such as this Fruit Topper. Nutritionally, it is high in protein, low in oil and rich in minerals.

ALASKA CRAB FRUIT TOPPER

2 cans (7½ oz.) Alaska King crab OR 1 lb. frozen Alaska King crab
6 grapefruit shells
1½ cups fresh grapefruit sections
1 cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper
Crisp salad greens
Grapefruit Dressing

Chill and drain crab or defrost and drain frozen crab. Cut crab in bite-size pieces. To make grapefruit shells, cut 3 grapefruit in half, remove sections and flute edges. Lightly toss together the crab, grapefruit sections, celery and green pepper.

Line grapefruit shells with crisp greens. Divide crab mixture into 6 shells. Serve with Grapefruit Dressing.

Grapefruit Dressing

½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon paprika
Pinch white pepper
1 teaspoon chopped onion
½ clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon sugar
½ cup salad oil
¼ cup lemon juice
½ cup fresh grapefruit, segments and juice

Combine first 8 ingredients and let stand about 1 hour. Add remaining ingredients and beat with rotary beater or blend in blender. Serve over crab and grapefruit salad. Makes 1¼ cups dressing.

Mix a little sugar with enough orange juice to moisten and spread over baking biscuit dough before baking.

ALASKA CRAB SALAD — Canned or frozen Alaska King crab is mixed with grapefruit for a tempting and pretty salad. Served in notched grapefruit shells, this low-calorie treat is good throughout the year. Serve it with a grapefruit dressing.

Peachy for Rice

Plain rice pudding tastes delicious with a combination of sliced peaches (frozen or canned) and slivers of syrup-preserved or candied ginger. Candied ginger is easily slivered if it is first rinsed in hot water.

Vanilla Sugar

Keep vanilla sugar on hand to use in butter-type cookies. Make the sugar by letting a vanilla bean stand in a tightly covered jar containing a couple of pounds of granulated sugar for a few weeks.

Oven Roast Spuds for Dinner Menu

These potatoes are always popular — with the family and guests.

Oven-Roasted Pared Potatoes

6 medium baking potatoes
1-3 cup butter or margarine
Salt, pepper and paprika

Pare potatoes and quarter lengthwise. Melt butter in an ovenproof glass baking dish (10 by 6 by 1¾ inches) in a moderate (350 degrees) oven. Add potatoes to baking dish, coating them with butter. Sprinkle potatoes with salt, pepper and paprika.

Bake in moderate oven until tender, about 1 hour and 15 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

CHAFING DISH PEARS — Simple but elegant is the term for pears prepared in a chafing dish with a flaming sauce. This is a spectacular dish to serve.

Flame Pears in Chafing Dish for Dessert

A festive meal deserves a grand finale. An elegant dessert, Chafing Dish Pears uses convenient and delicious canned Bartlett pears with a flaming sauce of butter, lemon, brown sugar and rum. Top the hot pears with spiced sour cream.

Here is easy elegance with today's convenience foods. Canned Bartlett pear halves will serve you well any time of day.

Combine pear halves with other canned fruits in a sparkly compote made with your favorite carbonated beverage. Marinate the cool pears in a spicy bottled salad dressing for a meat relish. Ideas are as limitless as a supermarket's shelves.

Chafing Dish Pears

1 (1 lb. 13 oz.) can Bartlett pear halves
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ cup brown sugar
⅓ cup rum

Drain pears, reserving ½ cup syrup. In chafing dish, heat the reserved syrup, butter, lemon peel and juice and brown sugar. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Add pears, spooning syrup over them as they heat.

At time of serving pour all but one tablespoon of rum over hot pears. Flame the tablespoon of rum and slowly pour into dish to flame sauce. Serve hot with sour cream sprinkled with nutmeg. Makes 6 servings.

NOTE: ½ teaspoon rum flavoring may be substituted if you do not wish to flame the dessert.

Unusual Soup Came From South America

Children are a problem to entertain on indoor days, but bad weather gives grownups a chance to pursue their favorite indoor hobbies: woodworking, stamp collecting, organizing slides or a rock collection, or even cooking.

As a matter of fact, when the wind is whistling outside, the kitchen is one of the coziest spots, and unexpected free time offers a chance to experiment with new recipes and some foreign foods.

Have you ever tasted coconut soup? Coconut is a favorite food in Colombia along with plantains, avocados, corn, pumpkins, and fiery chilies.

Here's a recipe which uses an improvised coconut milk instead of the hard-to-obtain real thing and adds chunks of chicken and sliced toasted almonds.

Coconut Cream Soup

1 small chicken breast
1 cup sliced celery tops
1 medium onion, sliced
4 whole cloves
3 cups cold water
1¼ teaspoons salt
2 cups milk
1 (3½-ounce) package flaked coconut
Thinly pared peel from ½ lemon
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon curry powder
½ cup plain yogurt
2 tablespoons sliced, blanched, toasted almonds

Place first 5 ingredients in saucepan; add ¾ teaspoon salt. Simmer 45 minutes to 1 hour. Strain, reserving stock. Set chicken breast aside; when cool, remove skin and bones; cut into bite-size pieces.

Meanwhile place milk, coconut, and lemon peel in a separate saucepan. Cover. Heat until bubbles appear around the edges of saucepan. Remove from heat. Cool. Strain. Melt butter or margarine.

Blend in combined flour, curry powder and remaining ¾ teaspoon salt. Cook 1 minute over medium heat. Gradually add 2½ cups chicken stock, blending until smooth. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Reduce heat.

Stir coconut milk into yogurt and add to thickened stock together with chicken pieces. Reheat. Do not boil. Garnish with toasted almonds.

Three Kinds of Tea

The three main types of tea are green, black and oolong. Green is not fermented; black is fermented, and oolong half fermented.

PCH, Cousino Bid for Date With Ferndale

Eagles Fly Past Groves in Regional Tilt, 61-57

By JERE CRAIG

Pontiac Central's Chiefs and Warren Cousino's Patriots will have their minds on a Friday night dinner of Eagle meat when they collide tonight in the Ferndale Class A regional tournament.

The host Eagles soared high early and glided to a 61-57 triumph over previously undefeated Birmingham Groves Tuesday night in the cage tourney's opener.

The Falcons took one half to find their wings, then never quite reached the altitude of Ferndale's wavering Eagles.

Central is a slight favorite to defeat Cousino in the 8 p.m. contest today that will determine Ferndale's opponent in Friday night's finals.

★ ★ ★

Groves made a brief bid to get off winging by taking a 3-0 lead in the first minute of play last night, then never really became airborne until the second half began. The Falcons went five minutes without a point after the quick start.

TAKES CHARGE

Ferndale took the lead for good at 4-3 when Sam Dunlap sank two jumpers. The advantage grew to 10-3 before Groves again scored.

★ ★ ★

Dunlap, taking advantage of a shorter defensive man, pumped in 7 of 14 field goal attempts and center Dave Jensen took 10 rebounds, helping the winners to a 29-15 backboard advantage, as Ferndale led 31-19 after the opening half.

Dunlap had 18 points at the intermission. Groves could make only 6 of 25 from the floor.

But the Birmingham quintet switched to a zone defense and began clicking on offense when play resumed. It trimmed the lead to seven points in the first 3½ minutes, and trailed by eight at period's end.

When the Falcons switched to a press, Ferndale regained its momentum in the final period and pushed the margin to 13, 53-40, with 4:25 remaining.

Errors had plagued the Eagles throughout the contest and they almost cost them in the closing minutes. They never made another field goal.

The Falcons, meanwhile, hit 17 points to only six by the host squad to reduce the gap to two points and send their sizeable portion of the 3,000 spectators into a frenzy when Rick Whiteman completed a three-point play with 46 seconds showing.

★ ★ ★

However, the only scoring after that was two charity tosses by steady Rick Bloodworth of the winners that determined the final outcome with 24 seconds still to play.

SHOOTING

Ferndale outshot Groves, 21 of 51 for 41 per cent to 22 of 57 for 38 per cent, and had a 47-35 rebounding superiority.

But 6-7 junior center Craig Love, junior forward Mike Rafferty and senior guard Whiteman paced a game final-half drive that had the Falcons effectively forcing the play in the closing minutes.

Love hit 13 points on five of seven and had 9 of his 11 rebounds in the last half. Rafferty hit five of 10 for 11 points, and Whiteman had seven clutch points in the fourth quarter. The Falcons made 16 of 32 in the rally. They finish with an 18-1 log.

Ferndale (16-3) was led by Dunlap's 26 points, but it was Bloodworth (20 points on 7 of 13) who kept them in command with 12 second half points, including the final four clutch ones.

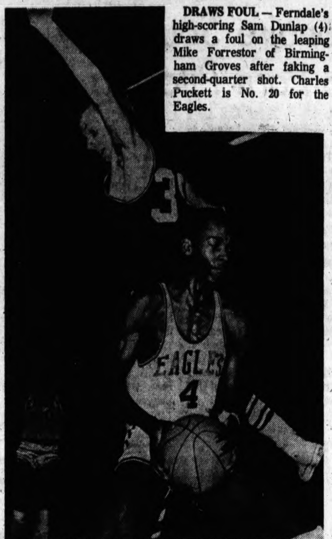
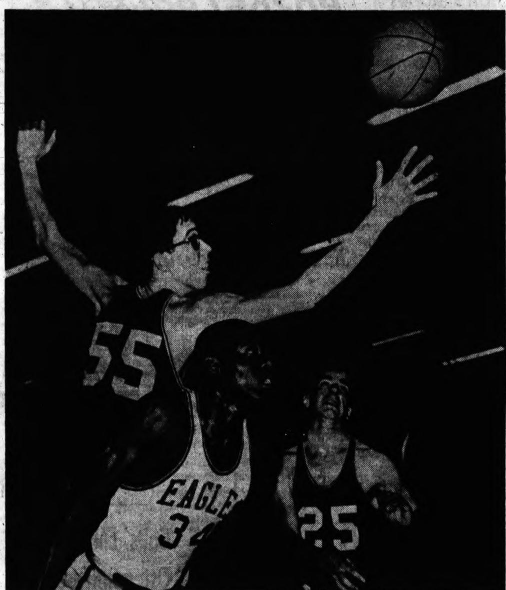
SCORE BY QUARTERS

Birmingham Groves	7	12	17	21—57
Ferndale	16	15	13	17—61



DRAWS FOUL — Ferndale's high-scoring Sam Dunlap (4) draws a foul on the leaping Mike Forrestor of Birmingham Groves after faking a second-quarter shot. Charles Puckett is No. 20 for the Eagles.



TOWERS ABOVE OPPONENT — Craig Love (55), 6-7 junior center for Birmingham Groves, utilizes his height to bat rebound away from 6-1 Ferndale junior forward Larry Ferris (34) and toward teammate Rick Whiteman (25) during action last night at Ferndale in the Class A regional tilt won by the host team. Love hit 7 of 14 field goal attempts and pulled down 11 rebounds to pace the previously unbeaten Falcons' slow starting attack.

Lakers, Broncos in Rubber Game

West Bloomfield's well-drilled Lakers and Holly's upset-savoring Broncos play the rubber match of a three-game series tonight on the neutral Howell court with Class B regional tournament pressure added this time.

★ ★ ★

Holt, which knocked Orchard Lake St. Mary out of the "B" playoffs in overtime last year, went an extra session last night to eliminate previously unbeaten Portland, 59-57, and move onto a Thursday night meeting with Northville's Mustangs.

★ ★ ★

The Mustangs, cochampions of the Wayne - Oakland League, were another of Holts' 1965 tournament victims.

West Bloomfield and Holly split their Wayne - Oakland League meeting this season, each team winning at home comfortably.

Tonight's 7:30 meeting carries with a a spot for the winner a spot in the Saturday night regional finals opposite the survivor of the Holt - Northville clash.

Holly features a potent one-two scoring punch in Bill Taylor and Mark Phalen. The Broncos' point-minded guards, however, need rebound help from their inconsistent frontline. They surprised Fenton to reach the regional round.

TEAMWORK

West Bloomfield relies on teamwork, keyed on the rebounding and scoring of Tim Moller and Bill Burt. The Lakers are 10-9 under coach Art Paddy after shedding the effects of a midseason slump to win two straight in district play.

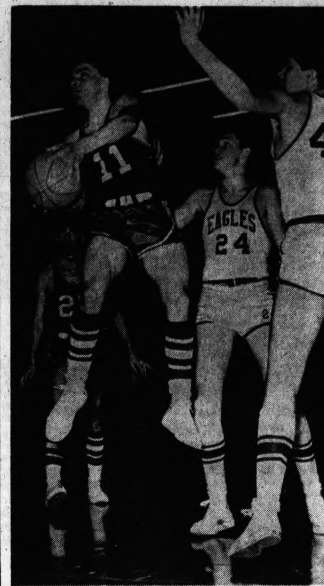
Northville (15-5) should have its hands full with Holt (16-4), though the Rams may suffer a letdown after last night's upset victory.

They took a big third-quarter lead on Portland, which had won 18 straight, then had to rally for a tie in regulation on Tom Dayton's two free throws.

The Rams went ahead, 52-50, in the overtime; then Portland regained the lead with four points. But four more charity tosses brought the decision to Holt. Dayton's 19 points led all scorers.

★ ★ ★

The winner of the Mustang-Holt clash likely will be favored to advance into the quarter-finals against the "B" winner at Ypsilanti where play starts tonight between Blissfield and Willow Run. River Rouge, the defending state champ, is favored to win that regional and meet the Howell survivor.



Pontiac Press Photos by Phil Webb

SOARS THROUGH OPENING — Birmingham Groves' Angie Fiorini (11) sails between Ferndale's Rich Bloodworth (24) and Wayne Clapp for an unsuccessful first-half layup attempt. Fiorini's backcourt partner Rick Whiteman watches in the background. Groves was a 61-57 loser to the Eagles.

SPORTS

North Farmington '5' Ousted by U-D High

A basketball team with a 5-15 record makes mistakes and North Farmington's caught up with it last night in the Livonia Bentley Regional.

Despite a 2-14 regular season record, the Raiders won a district Class A championship last week with three impressive victories. Tuesday they met and lost to University of Detroit High's hungry Cubs, 53-33.

North Farmington led, 10-5, after one period, but was behind, 20-19, at intermission. Then the Cubs (16-4) applied defensive pressure and took advantage of the North Farmington's resulting mistakes for a 22-5 third-quarter edge.

Bill Thigpen's 21 rebounds were another decisive factor for U-D. Pat Davis of the winners and the Raiders' Bill Bowles tied for scoring honors with 13 points apiece. Rick Lorenz added seven for the losers.

Top-rated East Detroit won its 20th without a loss and will meet tonight's Rochester-Mount Clemens winner in the Shamrocks' own "A" regional Friday night.

They trimmed St. Clair Shores South Lake, 73-54, last night with all five starters scoring in twin figures. A 25-8 first-period surge decided the outcome.

Arch Price (19), Ron Binge (14), Bill Boyda (12), Doug Hess and George O'Hara (10 each) accounted for 65 of the winners' 73 points. They hit at a 67 per cent clip in the opening half, and netted 58 per cent for the game.

East Detroit had a 29-17 field goal advantage over South Lake (15-14).

The winner of the Bentley regional will meet the Ferndale champion in the quarter-finals. East Detroit's survivor will tangle with the Detroit Redford titlist.

State Presses Baseball Suit

Conditions Were OK, Witnesses Testify

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The State of Wisconsin continued its frontal assault today on the claim of baseball attorneys that the Braves' decision to move to Atlanta was influenced by dissatisfaction with local conditions.

Two top Milwaukee County officials, testifying Tuesday in the state's antitrust suit against the Braves and the National League said that repeated offers were made to the Braves in 1964 to rewrite the stadium rental contract to delete any unsatisfactory provisions.

And, they said, offers were made to impose curbs on ticket selling by private individuals around the stadium concourse and the carrying in of beer by fans for consumption on the premises.

But Braven' officials dismissed the offers as unnecessary and denied any commitment to move the franchise, said the witnesses.

THEY MOVED

Three months later, it was testified, Braves' directors sought and obtained league approval to switch the club to Atlanta, triggering the antitrust suit now being tried before Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller.

County Executive John Doyne, Milwaukee County's top elected official, quoted William Bartholomay, the Braves' board chairman, and President John McHale as saying in midsummer of 1964 that the club's contract for County Stadium was satisfactory.

"They assured me they had not made up their minds about moving," Doyne said. "They said they planned to re-evaluate their position at the end of the season, and I would be first to know."

NIT to Begin Play Thursday

NEW YORK (AP) — The Temple University Owls, who won the first National Invitation College Basketball Tournament in 1938, open the 29th NIT against Virginia Tech Thursday night.

The Owls this season have won 20 and lost six. Virginia Tech's record is 19-4.

It is the first game of a first round doubleheader at Madison Square Garden. De Paul, 18-7, and NYU, 15-9, clash in the second game.

Afternoon and night doubleheaders Saturday afternoon and night complete the first round.

Penn State, 18-5, and San Francisco, 21-5, clash at 2 p.m., EST, in the first game Saturday which will be televised nationally.

Shrine Meets Divine Child

Dearborn Divine Child Tuesday night qualified at the Birmingham Seaholm Class B regional tournament for a third shot at Royal Oak Shrine's surging Knights.

Shrine (11-6) twice took Divine Child (11-10) during the regular season by eight points while winning 9 of 12 games after losing its opening two starts.

The Falcons, however, ousted Anchor Bay (11-9), 72-51, last night in the regional opener as Rich Basiloff led the attack with 20 points.

They will play Shrine tomorrow night for the right to meet the Detroit Servite-Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher winner in Saturday night's finals.

Central Michigan Plays

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Central Michigan was scheduled to play Oklahoma Baptist here this afternoon in the second round of the NAIA basketball tournament.

Baylor Stands Out as Lakers Lose

NEW YORK (AP) — They had cheered the man with No. 22 on his blue uniform many times in the years past because he played great basketball — and there he was on the Madison Square Garden court doing it again, and again they were cheering.

After the game Tuesday night the man stood in an almost deserted dressing room and said:

"I'm in real good shape. Everything is going fine."

★ ★ ★

The man was Elgin Baylor of the Los Angeles Lakers, and he was talking about his gimpy knees which in many games this season made him just a shadow of what he was in seasons past—a National Basketball Association super star.

★ ★ ★

But not too many minutes earlier he had been a super star again, though the Lakers lost to the New York Knickerbockers 133-132 in overtime and he had made a bad pass which cost his team a final shot at victory.

★ ★ ★

"I went to throw it down the court and it slipped out of my hand and it floated," Baylor said of the pass which was intercepted by New York's Dave Stallworth.

HIGH GAME

But the pass couldn't dim his performance. He scored a game high of 46 points — his previous high game this season was 37 last Sunday — and grabbed 17 rebounds, also a game high.

★ ★ ★

However, figures can't really tell what the eight-year veteran did. They can't tell how he made shots from seemingly impossible angles, stole passes, hustled for loose balls and even blocked a shot by Walt Bellamy, who at 6-foot-11 is six inches taller than Baylor.

The loss kept the Lakers from clinching the Western Division title since Baltimore beat San Francisco 130-109. In the only other game, the Philadelphia 76ers opened up a half-game lead in the East over idle Boston by defeating St. Louis 112-106 before the Knicks' game.

Rookie Billy Cunningham sparked the 76ers by entering the game in the second quarter and hitting seven of 10 field goal attempts as Philadelphia overcame a 30-29 first period deficit to a 68-55 lead.

Wilt Chamberlain of Philadelphia scored 23 points, although he sank only one of 13 from the foul line. Teammate Hal Greer also had 23 and Cunningham finished with 19. Zelmo Beatty scored 26 for St. Louis.

Brigade '5s' in Deadlock

The Waterford Community Church and Marimont Baptist cagers will enter the final night of the Christian Service Brigade boys' basketball regular season tomorrow tied for first place.

Waterford CC nudged Sunnyvale Chapel last week, 30-25, while Marimont tripped Five Points CC, 41-28.

Oakland Avenue United Presbyterian clinched fifth place with a 28-19 conquest of Lake Orion Baptist; and Mandon Lake CC was a forfeit winner.

No more than five points separated Sunnyvale and Waterford CC and the losing chapel quintet's Bill Schilling took game scoring honors with 15 points. Jeff Harnack had 12 for Waterford.

Dragsters Ready to Race Sunday

The opening meet of the 1966 drag racing season at Detroit Dragway will be held Sunday.

Time trials are called for noon, with elimination racing at 2 p.m.

Some five to six hundred machines including 200 mph dragsters and late model stock cars are expected to be on hand for the first race of the season.

Track officials Gil Kohn, Lew Bond and Ed Eaton announce a program of events for the coming season that includes the biggest names in the sport—Don Garlits, Chris Karamesines, Don Prudhomme, Maynard Rupp, Connie Kalitta and others.

Rookie Lefty Impresses Tigers

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Of the three young pitchers who have impressed Manager Charlie Dressen this spring John Hiller appears to have the best chance of sticking with the team.

Hiller, Bill Graham and Vern Holtgrave were named by Dressen as the most promising young pitchers in camp Tuesday with Hiller getting the nod for one big reason — he's a lefthander.

Dressen's present proposed bullpen staff of Dave Wickersham, Larry Sherry, Orlando Pena, Terry Fox and Fred Gladding is made up entirely of righthanders.

In fact, the only other lefties in camp are starters Hank Aguirre and Mockey Lolich and rookies Mike Kilkenney and Mike Small. Fritz Fisher, another lefthander, has been delayed by personal problems.

Another thing in Hiller's favor is the fact that he has a "lively" fastball. Dressen has been trying to teach him a screwball low.

GOOD SHOWING

Hiller, a 23-year-old Canadian, was 5-7 at Montgomery with a 2.53 earned run average before being called up by the Tigers. He was unscored on in five appearances for them.

Hiller had been a starter all his life and first felt that the assignment to the bullpen was sort of a demotion.

"But after I got used to the idea, I liked it," he said.

★ ★ ★

"You don't have to worry about pacing yourself. You just come in a throw hard all the time. It's more exciting, too, once you accustom yourself to pitching with men on base.

★ ★ ★

"And if it helps me make this club I can't complain," he added.

SLOW CURVE

Dressen has also been enthusiastic about Graham simply because he seems to have gained some control over his change-up curve. Graham was 12-10 at Syracuse in 1965.

Holtgrave, the righthanded bullpen ace at Montgomery last year, appears to have recovered from a sore arm that plagued him for several years.

Dressen's plans call for a 10-man pitching staff, which leaves room for about one newcomer. Hiller seems to have the inside track as the team prepares to open the Grapefruit League season this Saturday.

Dressen said Tuesday he plans to start his veterans in the inaugural at the Tigers' new Lakeland stadium. This means Al Kaline will start in right field.

Johnny Longden Will Hang Up Racing Colors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jockey they call Grandpaw Johnny Longden, says he will ride his last race Saturday.

At 59, Longden has ridden 6,030 winners, including a triple-crown winner, Count Fleet, in 1943. His last race, he says, will be Saturday's $125,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap at Santa Anita.

"Win, lose or draw, Saturday I'll hang 'em up," Longden said Tuesday He has been a jockey for 40 years.

Longden said he has received an offer to become trainer for a prominent stable in Florida, but declined to elaborate.

Ol' Case Joins Hall of Fame Lineup

Stengel Learns of New Honor at Mets' Camp

Casey Reached Peak in Leading Yankees to World Titles

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — You could look it up. From now on it will be right there in the book, like Ned in are first reader. Ol' Case is in the Baseball Hall of Fame.

It really is treeee–mendous.

They told Stengel he was gonna give some kind of an award to George Weiss out at the ballpark Tuesday. He showed up a little before noon with his wife Edna and Harold Weissman, the press agent for the New York Mets.

★ ★ ★

Casey and Weiss had attended some civic breakfast for visiting baseball people and he was all dressed up for the occasion with a neat brown suit, white shirt, tan tie and a blue Mets cap. Edna looked as pretty as the day they were married and she was carrying some fresh red roses.

HUSH-HUSH

It was all hush-hush. Nobody was supposed to know but everybody, except Casey, did know. Ford Frick, the fella that used to be the commissioner before they put that general in there, sneaked down from the golf course to break the news.

The place was jumpin' with newspaper fellas. The Mets regulars, St. Pete writers, wire service men, radio and television guys with their cameras and tape recorders. And the news photographers too. It was just like it used to be before the World Series.

But Ol' Case is used to crowds. The writers eat up that mumbo-jumbo talk they call Stengelese. This was a little more than usual but not too much to be suspicious. Weiss lined up beside Casey and Edna and Frick began his spiel:

"I want to announce that by unanimous vote of the Veterans Committee, Charles Dillon Stengel is now in the Hall of Fame," said Frick.

Charles Dillon swallowed once, grabbed his crooked black walking stick and started talking.

When you're 75 and you've been in baseball since 1910 and would be yet if you hadn't broke your hip and had to retire last August, you really aren't surprised at anything.

"When you're alive at the present time," Stengel said, "it's a nice thing to know that you done something in your life that people thought was worth while.

FEELS SORRY

"So many men done amazing things it makes you feel regrets that four or five others are not in it. I feel sorry for the others that didn't get in."

Edna remembered all about the 1949 World Series because that was Casey's first with the New York Yankees. They said they brought him in for laughs while they rebuilt the ball club but he won the pennant in 1949 and every year for the next five — and took the World Series each time, too.

Cubs' Millionaire Southpaw Trying to Earn Pitching Job

By The Associated Press

So who needs bonuses?

Certainly not Lee Meyers, a 19-year-old rookie left-hander who hopes to land a berth on the Chicago Cubs' pitching staff.

Let Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale, Jim Maloney and Mudcat Grant hold out for the big salaries. Lee Meyers isn't interested in the numbers on his contract. He just wants to pitch in the big leagues.

There's a reason, of course, for Lee Meyers' lack of interest in money. In two years, when he's 21, he'll have as much the green stuff as he needs and more.

ANOTHER MILLION

Meyers is the heir to $1 million left by his grandfather, Paul S. Meyers, former owner of McCall's Magazine. What's more, he stands to collect another million when he reaches 30—"or something like that."

★ ★ ★

The young southpaw wasn't anxious for the news of his wealth to get around.

"That's the last thing I wanted to be known," the rookie told newsmen at the Cubs' Long Beach, Calif., training camp.

★ ★ ★

"The one thing I want in life is to be a major league pitcher."

ON WAIVERS

Meyers was signed out of high school by the California Angels and had a 6-4 record in 58 innings for Quad Cities of the Midwest League in 1964. The Cubs got him on waivers a year ago and he was 7-11 in 156 innings with Wenatchee, Wash. in the Northwest League last winter.

RICH SOUTHPAW — Manager Leo Durocher of the Chicago Cubs has a word with 19-year-old Lee Meyers, a left-handed pitcher, who'll inherit a million dollars when he reaches 21. Meyers, unhappy that news of his inheritance leaked out, is working at the Cubs spring camp at Long Beach, Calif. He was left the fortune by his grandfather, Paul S. Meyers, former owner of McCall's Magazine.

Rule Slowing Fordham Stars

School Seeks Entry in Detroit Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Fordham is all ready to go to the NCAA track championships in Detroit this weekend. And the NCAA is all ready to let them come.

But no one is packing any bags yet.

"We're in a dilemma," Fordham Coach Artie O'Conner said Tuesday.

"We want to go. But right now we don't know whether we're eligible or not."

The crux of the matter, again, is that controversial 1.6 matter that eliminated Penn from the NCAA basketball championships.

DIDN'T FILE

The NCAA legislation requires that a student on athletic scholarship maintain an average of 1.6, about a C minus. Member schools were supposed to file letters of compliance last month. Fordham, along with others, didn't.

★ ★ ★

At the moment, Fordham is not eligible. Which means that Sam Perry, co-holder of the indoor record for 60 yards, and the Ram two-mile relay team, winner of the IC4A event, are ineligible.

But Fordham got off a quick letter to the NCAA, and the group's council is meeting now to consider that one, other applications and other matters.

Local Golfer Top Qualifier

MIAMI (UPI) — Veteran Bob Gajda of Forest Lake Country Club fired a three-under-par 69 Monday to head a list of 21 golfers who qualified for the remaining berths in the $100,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament.

★ ★ ★

The 72-hole match over the plush Doral Hotel and Country Club course begins Thursday. It will be preceded by the Jackie Gleason Pro-Celebrity match Wednesday.

Qualifying one stroke behind Gajda at 70 were Miami amateur Dennis Rouse, hard-hitting George Bayer, Duff Lawrence and Bob Benning.

Kentucky After 5th Cage Title

By The Associated Press

Kentucky's favored Wildcats open their drive for the school's fifth national collegiate basketball championship Friday night as the NCAA tournament moves into its second round.

Sixteen teams from the original field of 22 will see action in the four regional doubleheaders. Here is the line-up:

At Raleigh, N.C. — Duke, 23-3, vs. St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania, 23-4; Syracuse, 21-5, vs. Davidson, 21-5.

At Iowa City, Iowa — Kentucky, 24-1, vs. Dayton, 23-4; Michigan, 17-7, vs. Western Kentucky, 24-2.

At Lubbock, Tex. — Kansas, 22-3, vs. Southern Methodist, 16-8; Cincinnati, 21-5, vs. Texas Western, 24-1.

At Los Angeles — Oregon State, 20-6, vs. Houston, 22-5; University of Pacific, 22-4, vs. Utah, 18-6.

PLAY SATURDAY

Friday night's winners will meet Saturday night, with the four regional titlists qualifying for the national semifinals at College Park, Md., March 18. The championship game will be staged at College Park on Saturday night, March 19.

Kentucky, top-ranked in the country and Southeastern Conference champion for the 22nd time, is rated the team to beat in the high-powered field. The Wildcats were dealt their only loss of the season last Saturday night, losing to Tennessee 69-62, but rebounded with a 103-74 romp over Tulane Monday night.

In other key regular season games Monday night — Kansas clinched the Big Eight title and a spot in the NCAA by trimming Colorado 85-65, and Big Ten champion Michigan was knocked off by Michigan State 86-77.

Meanwhile, eight other teams advanced in the NCAA with opening-round victories.

Probably the most impressive was Western Kentucky's showing. The Ohio Valley champions clouted Loyola of Chicago, No. 4 in the nation, 105-86 at Kent, Ohio. Dayton whipped Miami of Ohio's Mid-American champions 58-51 in the other game at Kent.

OTHER WINNERS

At Blacksburg, Va., St. Joseph's whipped Providence 65-48 in a battle between top Eastern independents and Davidson of the Southern Conference easily eliminated Rhode Island of the Yankee Conference 95-65.

Texas Western beat Oklahoma City 89-74 and Houston downed Colorado State 82-76 at Wichita, Kan., in a doubleheader involving four at-large teams.

Oregon State got into the NCAA by taking the Pacific Coast Conference crown away from UCLA, national champion the past two years.

In addition to Oregon State, Kentucky, Kansas and Michigan, other conference champions seeing action for the first time Friday night are Duke of the Atlantic Coast, Cincinnati of the Missouri Valley, Southern Methodist of the Southwest, Utah of the Western Athletic and University of Pacific of the West Coast Athletic.

Wildcats Pace AP Cage Poll

Kentucky Finishes 1st; Duke Takes Second

By The Associated Press

Kentucky's Wildcats, who narrowly missed a perfect regular season, but scored in a runaway in the final Associated Press major college basketball poll for 1965-66.

The Wildcats were voted No. 1 by 39 of the 48 sports writers and broadcasters on AP's nationwide panel. Duke climbed back into the second spot ahead of Texas Western, which, like Kentucky, suffered its only loss of the season last Saturday night.

MOVED UP

Kansas's Big Eight champions jumped from sixth to fourth, St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania also advanced two places to fifth, and Cincinnati climbed from 10th to seventh.

Others in the final rankings are Loyola of Chicago, which slipped from fourth to sixth; Vanderbilt, which dropped three spots to eighth; Michigan in ninth and Western Kentucky in 10th.

Michigan, winner of the Big Ten title, regained a place in the ratings and Western Kentucky made the Top Ten for the first time.

Voting was based on games through Monday night.

The final Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses, records through Monday, March 7, and points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

1. Kentucky (39) 24-1	468
2. Duke (3) 23-3	387
3. Texas Western (1) 24-1	313
4. Kansas (2) 22-3	305
5. St. Joseph's, Pa. (1) 23-4	237
6. Loyola, Chicago (2) 22-3	226
7. Cincinnati 21-5	134
8. Vanderbilt 22-3	126
9. Michigan 17-7	93
10. Western Kentucky 24-2	63

Highest Salaried

Orioles Sign Robinson

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Frank Robinson, the slugger the Baltimore Orioles are counting on to help them win the American League pennant, signed his 1966 contract Tuesday for an estimated $62,500.

Harry Dalton, Oriole director of player personnel, would not discuss the salary which brought the right fielder to terms, but said in response to a question: "I guess you'd have to say Frank is the highest paid Oriole of all time. Yes, he received a good raise."

After the five-minute salary huddle with Dalton, the 30-year-old Robinson joined the Orioles in spring training. He was exactly one week late but had received permission to report late because of personal matters. He was the last holdout on the team.

HIGHEST PAID

The distinction of having the highest Baltimore salary was held last year by Brooks Robinson, All-Star third baseman and American League Most Valuable Player in 1964. He signed his 1966 contract last Friday for an estimated $55,000.

★ ★ ★

Baltimore acquired Frank Robinson from Cincinnati last December in exchange for outfielder Dick Simpson and pitchers Milt Pappas and Jack Baldschun.

Robinson batted .296 with the Reds last season, hitting 33 home runs and driving in 113 runs. In 10 major league seasons, he has averaged .303, 101 runs batted in, 32 homers, 32 doubles and 150 games.

★ ★ ★

The National League's Most Valuable Palyer in 1961 and Rookie of the Year in 1956, his 324 lifetime homers rank him 20th on the all-time list, four behind Rocky Colavito and seven back of Hank Greenberg.

Utah's Slopes Impressive for Winter Games

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)— The president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, Douglas F. Roby of Roby Detroit, said Tuesday he was very favorably impressed with Utah's bid for the 1972 Winter Olympics.

He said the skiing slopes east of Salt Lake City were parallel to those at California's Squaw Valley, where the 1960 Winter Olympics were held.

He said Utah's slopes were of Olympic caliber.

"I'm impressed," he said in an interview, "very favorably impressed. Most of all, I'm impressed with the facilities — the proximity to the city and what is being developed for winter sports."

Roby is one of 72 members of the International Olympics Committee which meets in Rome April 26 to select a site for the 1972 Winter Olympics.

YMCA Men Cagers Complete Season

Don Fugate's 35 points in leading a 107-61 Emmanuel Baptist victory and an unbeaten season for Lake Orion Baptist highlighted the final night of play in the YMCA's Church Men's basketball program Monday.

Emmanuel ripped Hillcrest Nazarene in finishing second to Lake Orion with an 8-2 mark. The LO Baptist won their 10th straight by a 90-34 count over First Church of the Brethren.

The defending state men's church league champs were paced by Jerry Olsen's 28 markers.

First Baptist edged Avondale Baptist for third place by beating the latter, 56-40. Mike Burrill of the winners and the losers' Larry Farnham each had 15 points.

Fight Goes on Record

TORONTO (AP) — Even if the Cassius Clay-Ernie Terrell heavyweight title fight is never held, it will be in the records.

The bout went into the records of the Ontario Legislature Monday when Ontario Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree discussed it before making a decision whether to allow the rejected, refused and kicked-out fight to be held in Toronto.

Rowntree could make his decision today.

Colts' End Boosts Osteopath's Cause

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — End Raymond Berry of the Baltimore Colts said Tuesday "there is no doubt in my mind I would not have played football if it hadn't been for osteopaths treating his back.

The 11-year pass catching veteran of the National Football League testified before a committee of the Maryland Legislature on a bill which would permit osteopaths to practice general medicine and surgery in Maryland.

Traveling Bout Finds a Home

Clay Meets Terrell March 29

TORONTO (AP) — Cassius Clay and Ernie Terrell finally have found a home-away-from-home for their heavyweight title showdown but the mental roadwork involved in the search appears to have backed both fighters into a dark corner.

Toronto received sanction as the site of the March 29 bout Tuesday, ending a road-show that began in New York and touched bases throughout the United States and Canada. Contracts were signed Tuesday night on behalf of the fighters following approval of the match by Leslie Rowntree, Ontario's labor minister.

Clay, generally recognized as the world champion, and Terrell, the World Boxing Association titleholder, received the good news with mixed emotions. Both are happy the hunt is over but both admitted to be on the ropes when word of the approval reached them.

"They got a fight for us and, in a way I'm relieved," Terrell said at his training camp in Pleasantville, N.J. "But they made such a joke out of it that it disgusts you.

"It's been all mixed up and the way it's been handled, it's like mental cruelty," the 6-foot-6 Chicagoan complained.

CLAY UNHAPPY

Clay was in no better frame of mind at his Miami, Fla., training headquarters. "If fans want to see me beat," said the champion, "they ought to start making reservations for Toronto."

★ ★ ★

"Terrell has a better chance of beating me than either Sonny Liston or Floyd Patterson had," Cassius, who prefers his Islamic name Muhammad Ali, continued. "I'm out of shape. I'm not mentally as good as I should be. I am weighted down with pressures — more pressures than I had before my two fights with Sonny and the Las Vegas fight with Floyd."

★ ★ ★

Rowntree's announcement before the Ontario Legislature that he had approved the bout for Maple Leaf Gardens lifted some of the pressure off Main-Bout, Inc., the group holding closed-circuit television rights to the match. Frank Tunney of Toronto will promote the fight in conjunction with Maple Leaf Gardens.

"We are pleased someone has finally looked at this as a sports event — which it is — instead of something else," Mike Malitz of Main-Bout said in New York.

Main-Bout still has misgivings, however. Theaters have been dropping off the television hook-up in droves. "We had about 280 exhibitors ready to show the fight in their theaters," said Robert Arum, another Main-Bout executive. "But since all the political troubles began, we've lost 100 of them."

Estimates of the gross receipts from closed circuit TV, gate receipts, radio and movie fees have dipped from between $4 million and $5 million to a high of $3 million.

One of Pothole Lakes

Trout Hot Spot Closed to Fishermen

LANSING (AP) — One of the hottest little lakes in Michigan for action on brook trout won't be open to anglers this year.

★ ★ ★

The trout season opener is still more than a month away, but outdoor buffs already are scheming and planning what favorite lake or stream they will hit on opening day.

Since the lake is closed to fishermen this year, the location now can be told.

Ford Lake, in the Pigeon River Forest area near Vanderbilt, was a sure producer every opening day.

A faithful group of fishermen would hit there every year. They might visit other lakes or streams, but Ford Lake was the place to go as insurance for a full creel.

The spring-fed, marl bottom lake was one of the seven pothole lakes in the area used for research and scientific management of brook trout. Yearly plantings were made there of hatchery-reared brook trout.

It wasn't like shooting them in a barrel, however. The lake was limited to flies only and the selection of the right fly was vital to success.

The brooks averaged 10 to 11 inches. Occasionally you could pull out a lunker that survived several seasons despite heavy fishing pressure.

EASY CATCHES

Last year, the Conservation Department took off the flies only regulation.

★ ★ ★

Those who fished with bait the first few days made a killing.

One particular gang of fishermen claims last year wasn't the first time these fish ever tasted a worm.

They tell the story about one clown in the gang who was notorious as a worm fisherman and thus considered a cut below the fly purists.

But the son-of-a-gun often would outfish them on lakes or streams where any bait was allowed — plopping in his worm and pulling out trout.

He went along with the rest of the gang to Ford Lake and, grumbling, put on a fly.

★ ★ ★

But soon he wandered away alone to the far side of the lake. Immediately he started hauling in trout — keeping it up until his limit was reached.

The trout have to be checked out and are rough-cleaned at the checking station.

WORMY TUNE

When one of the fellows picked up a fish from this particular batch—a worm popped out of his mouth.

"Now I wonder how that worm got there?" the conservation officer mused.

"Must have got washed in by the rain," the fisherman suggested helpfully.

It was only circumstantial evidence and the angler wasn't stripped of his license.

The worm fisherman later defended himself before his shocked former friends.

"It wasn't my worm," he insisted. "I made sure I got my worms back as soon as I got the fish in."

Snowshoe Hare Project Aimed at S. Michigan

Efforts were launched this week by the Conservation Department in hopes of live-trapping at least 50 snowshoe hares from the eastern Upper Peninsula for restocking in the Gratiot-Saginaw state game area of southern Michigan.

This marks the first time the department has attempted to reestablish snowshoe hares in that part of the state.

Before the early logging era, the southern state game area was considered to be good country for these animals whose range is presently limited to the northern two-thirds of Michigan.

Now, with its pine plantings and grown-up forests, the area is again viewed by game men as offering suitable cover and food conditions for the cottontail's cousins.

"This area in Gratiot and Saginaw counties looks like the best bet we have in southern Michigan for trying to reintroduce snowshoes," explains David A. Arnold, department game specialist.

★ ★ ★

Arnold adds: "We're not sure the animals will make a go of it, but conditions seem to be on their side. Anytime you can add a game species to another region without upsetting the balance of things, it's certainly worth a try."

NO COMPETITION

Game men don't look for snowshoe hares to compete seriously with cottontail rabbits in the Gratiot-Saginaw area. They point out that the two species favor different types of habitat, with snowshoe hares living primarily in lower, swampland areas.

Because the range of snowshoe hares will be limited to a rather small area in the southern game site, the animals are not expected to be a problem to agricultural interests.

If the first snowshoe hare project meets with success, the department may later stock these animals on likely state game lands in the southern thumb area.

★ ★ ★

Game men estimate it will take several years before they will have a good idea of how things have gone in the Gratiot-Saginaw area.

Pontiac Audubon Sets Field Trips

The Pontiac Audubon Club has scheduled three field trips.

A March 19-20 excursion, starting at 9:30 a.m. both days will take place at Stoney Creek Metropolitan Park with Jim Stevens and Jim Hallauer as leaders.

★ ★ ★

A visit to Harsen's Island March 26, starting at 8:30 a.m., and a 9:30 a.m. start April 2 at Proud Lake are scheduled. Bob Rogers and Al Madden are the respective leaders.

New Facilities for State Park

Construction of new facilities at Pontiac Lake state park and campground development in the Holly recreation area have moved to the top of the Conservation Department's priority list.

Alfred Masini, District 14 parks supervisor, lists expenditures of $185,000 scheduled at Pontiac Lake and $90,750 in the Holly area.

★ ★ ★

Major projects at Pontiac Lake call for construction of a beach concession that will include lavatories and change facilities. An additional lavatory will be constructed in the picnic-beach area.

★ ★ ★

The department has received several complaints in the past because the park lacked modern restrooms. Parking areas will be blacktopped.

Holly recreation area ranks No. 2 in the county as a camping area. It is topped only by Proud Lake and its more modern facilities.

The department will develope 150 new sites, including the necessary new roads. A water system will be added and a restroom-shower building. There will be no electrical connections available at the new sites.

Sen. Carl W. O'Brien, D-Pontiac, introduced two bills in the state legislature yesterday on behalf of a special Senate committee that studied parks in the state last year.

One would eliminate the $2 annual park sticker in favor of a $1 daily fee.

The second would authorize $30 million in general obligation bonds, subject to voter approval, for acquiring park and campsite land and expanding present recreational facilities.

"We estimate that the revenues gained through the park permit fees will aid . . . in paying off the proposed bonds which would be issued for 10 years under the bill," said O'Brien.

O'Brien also has another bill in the hopper concerning the use of volunteer marshals to assist regular park personnel in policing state parks.

This measure has received a cool reception from the department and several sportsmen's organization because of a patronage provision. Each legislator would be permitted to name a certain number of marshals from his district.

The bill also authorizes uniforms and expenses for the marshals, but no pay.

Department law experts claim that this method was tried in the past with poor results. They say that only regular personnel can do the job, but that there aren't enough, and that more money should be made available so more can be hired.

★ ★ ★

One department official said, "If we can't get the money then the volunteers probably will be better than nothing."

The statement was made before it became known that the bill would contain a patronage clause. Michigan United Conservation Clubs is leading the assault on the bill.

'Let Us Know About Does,' Killed by Car

"If you hit a doe, let us know," motorists are asked by the Conservation Department.

★ ★ ★

Motorists killing a doe on the highway are asked to notify the nearest state conservation officers.

Game men want to check the animals to find out how many fawns they are carrying.

This information, with other figures and field studies, will be used to estimate the size of the deer heard this fall.

The deer heard estimate, in turn, will help determine fall hunting regulations including the hotly debated issue of allowing shooting of does and fawns.

Action Slated on Land Trade

Mt. Holly Ski Area Involved in Swap

The Conservation Commission is expected to take action on the proposed land trade between Mt. Holly ski area and the Conservation Department during its Thursday and Friday meetings in Lansing.

Sessions will be held at the Jack Tar Hotel.

The proposed swap of 112-acre parcels was on the agenda last month, but was tabled for additional study.

The department also will seek approval on a new policy covering the use of pesticides. The proposal calls for the department to shift its use of pesticides to short-lived varieties.

Also coming before the commission is a recommendation to protect coho salmon from commercial fishing to increase their chances of becoming established in the Great Lakes.

On the list of land matters scheduled for action are proposals to dedicate two state game areas in Huron and Hillsdale counties.

The Huron County site, where 4,440 acres of lands for waterfowl and pheasants are recommended for acquisition, would be known as the Rush Lake state game area.

The other 4,000-acre site would be called the Lost Nation state game area.

Indoor Bow Tournament Set at Cobo

Young Pontiac Archer to Defend Freestyle Championship

The eighth annual International Indoor Archer Tournament will be held at Cobo Hall April 2-3.

This year's tournament is expected to attract in excess of 1,100 archers to compete for the $12,000 prizes offered in six competitive classes.

Among the defending champions will be Roger Chapdelaine, 14, of Pontiac, men's amateur freestyle titlist.

Originally called the Ben Pearson Open, the tourney has grown in numbers, size of purse and importance since its inception, 1959. Last year 1,053 archers were entered.

The tourney will be held in Cobo Hall for the third successive year and is based in Detroit for the fifth time in its eight-year history.

Present shooting schedules call for the first lines to begin at 9 a.m. each day. Each archer will shoot one PAA round each day. Each round will consist of 12 ends. Each end will consist of five arrows.

Thus each bowman will shoot 120 arrows during the course of the tournament.

As in previous years there will be six classes of competition. The principal interest will center on the men's and women's open divisions. These archers will compete for the principal money prizes.

In addition there will be men's and women's freestyle amateur (with bowsight) and men's and women's instinctive amateur (without bowsight) classes.

There will be team competition for both professionals and amateurs.

SPECIAL PRIZE

Three changes in the tournament structure have been announced by chairman Jack Witt. The first is a $1,000 prize to anyone shooting a perfect round of 300 points.

Jim Ploen, who fired 294 in the opening day's shooting in 1965 on his way to the men's open title, has come the closest.

Ties for first place will be decided by a five arrow end shoot-off. This system will replace the cumbersome mathematical arrangement previously used to determine tie breaking.

Last year Ploen, of Bloomington, Minn., and Bill Bednar of Suffield, Ohio, tied for the men's title, with Ploen being declared the winner on a mathematical formula. Too, for the first time all women teams will shoot against one another in the team competition.

Present indications are that all six of the defending champions will be on hand. In addition to Ploen and Chapdelaine, these include Gwen Learn, Pittsburgh, in the women's open; Nancy Learn, Vandergrift, Pa., women's freestyle; Wes Hagemyer, Edina, Minn., men's instinctive and Pearl Jester, St. Paul, Minn., women's instinctive.

Report Omnibus Deer Bill

LANSING (AP) — The Senate Conservation Committee voted Tuesday to report out its omnibus deer bill, which includes a two-year ban on the shooting of antlerless deer.

The only provision for shooting does and fawns under the measure would be through the issuance of 50,000 permits, to cost $10 each, for deer to be used in camp.

The bill also would hike the deer license fee from $5 to $7.50 and provide for a uniform Nov. 15 start of the deer season.

Money raised by the license fee increases would be earmarked to improve deer habitat.

Sen. Robert Richardson, R-Saginaw, argued for a delay of at least a week in reporting out the bill to give spokesmen for the Conservation Department a chance to be heard before the committee.

OPPOSES BAN

The department has opposed the ban, contending some harvesting of antlerless deer is needed to prevent overbrowsing the range and winter starvation.

Richardson said he thought there still was a problem of setting quotas on antlerless deer in southern Michigan to protect orchards and farm crops where the animals are too numerous.

"Not having them (the conservation people) up here is like convicting someone without a trial," Richardson said.

Sen. Carl O'Brien, D-Pontiac, committee chairman, said department representatives have been given a chance to appear and have not come in.

Pole With Opinion

Protester 'Cuts' Film

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Warsaw police and a Western movie company have met their match in a Warsaw woman protesting U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Director Anatole Litvak told about the incident today, describing it as a rare exception to the cooperation his American-French-Polish company is getting during the filming in Warsaw.

The woman, a retired lawyer, refused to douse the lights in her apartment overlooking the street. She protested that profits from the film, "The Night of the Generals," would be taxed to support the war in Viet Nam.

★ ★ ★

The police pulled the main power switch for the short take, but the woman appeared in the window with two lighted candles. Finally, Litvak said, he moved the scene a bit and shifted the camera angle to exclude the lone lighted window.

The Polish state film studio is earning more than $250,000.

No One Sure Why

Film Producers Fete TV Exec

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — No one was quite sure why Gen. David Sarnoff was being awarded the Screen Producers Guild's Milestone Award, but all agreed it was a good idea.

The Milestone is generally presented to a film pioneer. Gen. Sarnoff is an electronics pioneer, having founded the Radio Corporation of America. Ten years ago, it would have seemed unthinkable for Hollywood to be passing out honors to the man who did as much as anyone to bring television to the nation. Times change.

It's always fun to join the members of the dais at the producers' banquet before they face the crowd at the Beverly Hilton International Ballroom. Then you catch the big names at their ease, as in the case of Bob Hope, or in a nervous state, like Bill Cosby.

The young comic looked somewhat forlorn. "I don't feel right with all these old parties," he said. "I wish they'd let me work with Woody Allen or someone else of my generation."

MIGHTY SPRY

The old parties looked mighty spry. Adolph Zukor, a crickety 93, was talking movie business with Kirk Douglas. Samuel Goldwyn, an alert 83, chatted with Lucille Ball, who got her first Hollywood job as a Goldwyn girl.

★ ★ ★

James Stewart was deep in conversation with his onetime agent, Lew Wasserman, now Jimmy's sometime boss as head of Universal Studio. The whole new generation of studio heads was present; Mike Frankovich of Columbia, Robert Weitman of MGM, Richard Zanuck of 20th Century Fox, Howard Koch of Paramount.

★ ★ ★

There was plenty of pulchritude to catch their eyes: Donna Reed, Loretta Young, soprano Anna Moffo, Mary Tyler Moore, Julie Andrews.

The most awed person in the room seemed to be Miss Andrews. "My goodness," she said in her best Poppins style. "Think of all the history in this room!"

GRAND ENTRANCE

The hour of 8 was reached and visitors were shooed out so the distinguished guests could make their grand entrance. Gen. Sarnoff, vigorous on his 75th birthday, led the march through the ballroom.

The emcees' emcee, Bob Hope, explained the reason for the Milestone Award to Gen. Sarnoff: "He's America's leading motion picture exhibitor."

Trading Fairly Active

Mart Makes Moderate Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market mounted a moderate and cautious rally early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

Some of the market wheelhorses, long neglected, posted gains.

A fairly good showing was made by coppers, tobaccos, rails, motors and drugs.

The glamor section of the market—color televisions, other electronics, aerospace and airlines—showed strength at the start but this faded rather rapidly.

Selective buying of the more traditional, investment-grade issues was enough to give the market averages a rise by noon.

The drop in the unemployment rate to a 12-year low was essentially bullish but it aroused further economic debate concerning a possible tax boost and other restraining measures which might be imposed by the government.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.5 at 345.2 with industrials up 2.0, rails up 1.3 and utilities up .2.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 3.01 at 922.29.

RALLY EXPECTED

Some kind of a rally was expected following the sharp, three-week decline, but most analysts said the market was seeking to form a base and that it would take time to do so.

American Motors, up 1, was actively traded. Chrysler and General Motors added fractions.

Prices were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange in active trading.

Corporate and U.S. Treasury bonds were mostly unchanged in light trading.

Auto Industry Bonuses Due

$200 Million for Execs and Salaried Workers

DETROIT (AP)—Record 1965 profits of the auto industry will bring more than $200 million in bonuses to executives and salaried employes of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, industry circles reported Tuesday.

Proxy statements being prepared for annual stockholders meetings are expected to be issued next month. These statements usually report such bonuses.

The industry made no comment on the reports.

The reported bonuses would go to a total of 25,000 executives and salaried workers from the approximate $3 billion in total earnings last year of the industry's big three.

BONUS BREAKDOWN

The reported bonus breakdown would be $130 million at General Motors, compared with $116 million in 1964; $61.6 million at Ford, compared with $44.4 million in 1964, and $21.4 million at Chrysler as against $21.5 million the year before.

★ ★ ★

Chrysler's total was reported decreased because a stock dividend increased shareholders' investment and cut the amount of money available for bonuses despite record profits.

American Motors ruled out bonuses for last year because of its sales lag.

40 Cities Bid for Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — While the New York Stock Exchange ponders whether to pick up its tickers and leave, the competition to provide the exchange with a new home has already begun.

President Keith Funston said Tuesday in a letter to members, that some 40 communities have already indicated they would welcome the exchange if it decides to leave the city.

★ ★ ★

Funston threatened to move the exchange last week when Mayor John V. Lindsay proposed that the city boost the stock transfer tax by 50 per cent.

The exchange's board responded by voting unanimously to reconsider its decision to build a $50-million headquarters in lower Manhattan.

The Rae-Vens drill team of Pontiac will sponsor its third annual baton contest Saturday at 9 a.m. in the Pontiac Central High School boys' gym.

ROAD SHOW (DRY RUN)—Utilizing electrically driven chassis dynamometers that simulate road travel, GMC quality control inspectors carefully examine performance and safety aspects of big highway tractors that have rolled off the assembly line. Two men handle each test, so one is free to observe the vehicle's performance and watch gauges while the other inspector remains in the cab. More than a dozen independent checks are made on each of the trucks put on this indoor track.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q) "We are old people and expect to buy 50 Sears, Roebuck soon. We notice Sperry Rand is in the spotlight, also American Motors and Electrical & Musical. Do you think we should buy these last three?"

C.M.

A) Sears is a top-quality stock with a fine outlook for enhancing your capital. The others are strictly speculative. Sperry Rand is a turnaround speculation on the company's ability to get its computer operations into black ink. No dividends are paid, and I regard the stock as a trading vehicle, not suited to people who have obviously no market experience and probably no professional adviser.

American Motors' earnings have been in a steady decline in spite of all-out efforts by a first-class management. No dividends are paid and none seem in prospect. Electrical & Musical is a British holding company with moderately rising earnings and a low dividend return.

I would avoid all low-priced speculations and buy a lesser amount of Consolidated Foods, one of the best stocks in a good group.

All GMC Trucks Undergo Test at Pontiac Plant's Indoor Track

New trucks are "driven" under heavy loads on turnpikes and downtown streets without even leaving GMC Truck & Coach Division's plant here.

It's all part of a continuous safety program pioneered by GMC Truck more than five years ago.

Utilizing two electrically driven chassis dynamometers that simulate road travel, GMC's quality control section carefully examines performance and safety aspects of big highway tractors rolling off the assembly line.

Besides simulating road travel, the dynamometers place strain on the trucks' power systems so that technicians can determine how well the vehicle performs under partly or fully loaded conditions.

★ ★ ★

30-MINUTE CHECKUP

Each vehicle goes through a 30-minute checkup, which also includes a stiff under-chassis inspection.

Two men handle each test, so one is free to observe the vehicle's performance and watch the gauges while the other man remains in the cab.

More than a dozen independent checks are made on each of the trucks put on this indoor track. These include, among others, checks for leaks in brake pressure, oil and water lines, wheel wobble, and vibrations.

★ ★ ★

The indoor road test program, started at GMC's Pontiac plant and extended later to many of the division's factory branches and dealerships throughout the country, is now utilized by other truck manufacturers.

LARGEST TRUCKS

Today GMC Truck runs all of its largest trucks on the simulated test track.

In addition, functional test rollers at the ends of all other assembly lines check all trucks before they leave the assembly plant.

Area Bank Is Rated as Fastest Growing

The Birmingham - Bloomfield Bank has become the pace-setter in national banking circles, ranking as the fastest growing among the top 3,500 United States banks in the country.

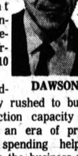
For Wall Streeters

Spending Boom Scary

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK — The rush of corporations to announce a spending boom for new plants and equipment cheered Wall Street at first but now chills it. And President Johnson has stepped in to try to calm fears that American industry may repeat its performance of 10 years ago.



DAWSON

In the mid-1950s, industry rushed to build up its production capacity in the midst of an era of prosperity. The spending helped give a push to the business upswing. But industry was left with capacity in excess of demand. And its overheating of the economy was one of the reasons given for the recession that followed.

★ ★ ★

Only in recent months has the economy grown enough to take up all the slack of idle plant.

It is this growth which businessmen cite as making conditions different this time. They say that the economy is now close to full use of its resources. Hence, the larger capacity they plan is badly needed if consumer demand is to be met without undue upward pressure on prices because of a shortage of goods.

CRITICAL EYE

Then why is a seeming boon to economic growth getting a critical eye?

The immediate worry — in the stock market, among business economists, and in official Washington as well — is that a big spending spree this year, added to greater outlays for the Viet Nam War, could overheat the economy. The result of that could be first inflation, and then a boom that would lead to a bust. This has happened before. But this time government economists think the danger can be averted.

The President says that some estimates of how much more that businessmen plan to spend this year are too high. He thinks the economy could take in stride the amount the government estimates businessmen will spend. This is about 16 per cent more than last year's record $51.8 billion. The gain in 1965 over 1964 was at about the same rate.

Private estimates in recent days have put the over-all expansion spending at 19 per cent above last year, with manufacturers expecting their outlays to rise by 32 per cent.

STIMULATION

This would stimulate the economy in many ways. It would increase the demand for materials and for labor. Outlays for these would furnish dollars that the lucky recipients would spend — for materials for themselves, for consumer goods. The result could be a scramble for scarce goods — and a quick rise in prices.

The economy already is pushing some of the limits of its manpower and raw material resources. And if the war in Southeast Asia grows much bigger, there will be still more strain.

With money and credit getting tighter under the growing demand of business for loans, with prices of a number of industrial materials already rising, and with labor demanding greater wage increases this year, some business economists have been wondering just how close the economy already is to overheating.

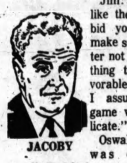
A 19 per cent jump in business spending would throw quite a few logs into the fire under the economic pot.

That is why the President is trying to calm down the apprehension. And it is a problem that will be debated more in the days ahead.

Jacoby on Bridge

By JACOBY & SON

Oswald Jacoby asks: "What do you thing of South's vulnerable four-spade bid?"



JACOBY

Jim: "It looks like the sort of bid you would make so I'd better not say anything too unfavorable about it. I assume the game was duplicate."

Oswald: "It was duplicate so all I risked was a bottom score. Actually, I came out with a top score to end all top scores. I had planned to run to five diamonds if West doubled me at four spades but as you can see he did not double until after East had rebid to five hearts and my partner had raised me to five spades."

Jim: "You can't blame your partner for raising you."

Oswald: "No, I couldn't. I looked over dummy and started to plan my alibi in case I went down for an astronomical figure. Then I ruffed the heart and led out my king of spades.

East won with the ace and returned the jack of clubs which was allowed to hold the trick. Then he led another heart. I ruffed; drew trumps and was able to make my contract by discarding dummy's two remaining clubs on my long diamonds."

Jim: "Even two down would have been a good score. East could make five hearts in top tricks and if he had bid six hearts he would have made that by taking a club finese. So minus 500 would have been just about as good as plus 850. Was West a very bad player?"

Oswald: "West was an expert. It never occurred to him that I would have bid four spades on a four-card suit. Therefore he saw no reason to overtake his partner's jack of clubs.

CARD Sense

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
	1♠	Pass	1 N.T.
Pass	2♥	Pass	?

You, South, hold: ♠2 ♥K J 5 4 ♦Q 10 6 5 4 ♣K J 9

What do you do?

A—Bid four hearts. This may be a slight overbid but you can't afford the underbid of three hearts.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of rebidding two hearts your partner rebids two diamonds. What do you do now?

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNEY OMARR

For Thursday

"The wise man controls his destiny . . . Astrology points the way."

ARIES (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19): Fine evening for dining out with compatible individual. Differences can be settled if you are considerate. Turn on charm. Sentimental gift purchase could work wonders.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 - May 20): Friends may tend to be discouraging. Encourage new, fresh views. If you stick to "old hat" methods, you miss great opportunity. Be daring, original — realize letdown is but temporary.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Inner feelings now ring true. Live up to principles. Follow through on hunch. Outline of future becomes clear. You know where you're going. Good for making arrangements to get there.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Favorable lunar aspect highlights romance, change, possible travel. Your personal magnetism rating soars . . . you attract members of opposite sex. Pursue creative endeavors.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Obstacles can be transformed into creative challenges. But if you expect things to be handed to you on silver platter today . . . disappointment results. Be mature. Work toward future goals.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Respite indicated from recent emotional onslaught. You have good chance to "breathe easy." Your efforts are appreciated. Pleasure indicated — possibly from pride of accomplishment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Keynote harmony at home. Make concessions. Happiness of family members will reflect upon you. No time to irritate loved ones. Money question can be favorably resolved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Gift presented to close friend should not be cause of envy. You will only be defeating your purpose if you worry. Know this — act in mature manner. Others will respond favorably.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Hidden meanings should be analyzed. Means obscure facts now come to light. Result of past efforts favor your cause. Surprise of pleasant nature due in form of visit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Extravagant gesture really is not necessary. Instead express feelings, gratitude in mature manner. Important to complete projects. Share knowledge — expand sphere of activity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Excellent for purchase of luxury item. Your sense of beauty is enhanced. Lunar position accents accomplishment, promotion. You are able to put across views to important persons.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20): Good lunar aspect spotlights long-distance communication, added knowledge, greater personal assurance. Burden is lifted. Greater pleasure received from efforts. You can now be happier.

★ ★ ★

IF THURSDAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are sensitive, yet independent in thought, action. You tend to attract people who require your aid, understanding.

★ ★ ★

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for SCORPIO, SAGITTARIUS. Special word to GEMINI: Watch diet, get proper exercise. Stop neglecting health!

Holdup Man 'a Nice Guy With a Gun'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Police were searching for a "very pleasant" gunman who robbed a savings and loan office in nearby O'Hara Township Tuesday of an undetermined amount of cash.

★ ★ ★

Police said the man entered the East End Federal Savings and Loan Association and handed a brown paper bag to teller Lois Kelly.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Kelly said the man announced, "I want all the bills," and pointed a gun at her.

Describing the holdup man, Mrs. Kelly said he wore a soft brown hat and a light-colored trench coat and "was a very pleasant man."

Girl Is Injured Fatally

FLINT (AP)—Sherry Swearengen, 4, was injured fatally Tuesday when a 200-pound water softener fell on her in her bedroom. Police said Sherry apparently tipped over the appliance from its stand.

Weapons Board Tightens Private Police Gun Curbs

Tighter controls in issuing gun permits to private police were announced today by Prosecutor S. Jerome Bronson.

* * *

Bronson, chairman of the Oakland County Concealed Weapons Board, said the new requirements apply only to certain occupations, but that additional restrictions affecting the general public are planned.

The new regulations also affect private detectives and plant protection guards.

Michael C. Hechtman, an assistant prosecutor and Bronson's representative on the gun board, said that beginning immediately, gun permits will be issued to private police only if certain requirements are met.

* * *

To be eligible, he said, a uniform must be worn at all times that the weapon is to be carried and the weapon must be an absolute requirement of employment.

A sworn statement must also be presented to the board that the applicant has the ability to handle, fire and maintain the weapon.

Three character references will also be required.

"In the past, all they had to say was that they needed a gun for their job," said Hechtman.

According to Hechtman, the shooting of Rabbi Morris Adler in Southfield and the fatal shooting of a patron by a private policeman at a drive-in in Wayne County recently emphasized the need for more stringent controls.

* * *

"However, we've been working on the problem long before these incidents," added Hechtman.

"We've been cracking down since last November.

He noted that since then 131 applicants have been turned down in the past four months, while there were only 18 rejections from Jan. 1, 1965 to November.

* * *

"The board just decided that not everybody that comes through the door is entitled to a gun," said Hechtman.

GWCC Holds Officer Vote

President, 3 Others Reelected for 1 Year

Mrs. Norman Pankner, 3181 Whitfield, Waterford Township, last night was reelected president of the Greater Waterford Community Council (GWCC).

* * *

Other incumbents elected to serve one-year terms were Byron Zink, 3703 Oakshire, vice president; Mrs. Paul Atkins, 5684 Jerose, recording secretary; and Millard James, 852 Sunny Beach, treasurer.

Elected corresponding secretary was Mrs. Timothy Agar, 2529 Desmond. All live in Waterford Township.

Three members were named to serve two-year terms on the GWCC's steering committee. They are incumbents Elmer Johnson, 3320 Seebaldt, and Mrs. E. L. Windeler, 5601 Hatchery, and Timothy Agar, 2529 Desmond, all of Waterford Township.

* * *

Guest speakers at last night's meeting in Pierce Junior High School were Supt. of Schools Dr. Don O. Tatroe, Cecil Strickland of the citizens' advisory committee and Mrs. Earl D. Lundquist, leader of a group of residents from White Lake Township currently fighting to keep their children in the Waterford Township school system.

* * *

Dr. Tatroe and Strickland spoke in behalf of the school district's proposed $13-million bond issue to be decided in a special March 28 election.

Jail Inmate's Examination Is Postponed

Preliminary examination of a 35-year-old Oakland County Jail inmate on sodomy charges was postponed from today until tomorrow in an attempt to enable a defense witness to take the stand.

The Municipal Court examination, which started Feb. 16, came to a halt when Versailles P. Rowells, 23, was called to the stand by the defense after the prosecution had moved to bind the case over to Circuit Court.

Rowells, one of the witnesses to an alleged attack on Marvin Taylor, 18, has been in Detroit Recorder's Court where he faces several counts of armed robbery.

Detective Sgt. Harry M. Maur, arresting officer in the case, said Detroit officials told him they would attempt to get Rowells back tomorrow to testify.

The examination's first day featured the testimony of Taylor, who said James Sykes had "drugged him with goofballs" before sexually assaulting him Feb. 3.

Two Children Perish in Saginaw Home Fire

SAGINAW (AP) — Two children are dead and a third remains in critical condition following a fire in their home late Tuesday. Three other children and a 60-year-old woman escaped the blaze.

Dead are Leonard Villaba, 9, and Carlos Salas, 8. Their brother, 7-year-old Isaac Hernandez, was hospitalized.

Youth Stands Mute; Charged in Kidnaping

Eddie Ingram, 19, of Detroit stood mute when he was arraigned on a kidnaping charge yesterday in Macomb County Circuit Court. A notice of insanity was entered by his defense attorney.

The youth is accused of kidnaping and knifing a Utica woman and molesting two Romeo women, one of which he also knifed, last January. No trial date was set.

Card of Thanks 1

WE WISH TO THANK OUR MANY friends, neighbors, Pontiac Motor and neighborhood children for their kindness shown us during our recent bereavement. Special thanks to Father Kaiser for his comforting words. Mrs. William Dupuis, Jeff, Gayle, and Greg.

WE WISH TO EXPRESS OUR SINcere gratitude to our many friends and neighbors, to the employes of Old Mill Restaurant, and all others for their willing acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy during our recent bereavement. A special thanks to Dr. Prosser and the nurses on the fourth floor of Pontiac General Hospital, to the Coats Funeral Home and to the Reverend Fr. Lowery of St. Andrews Church. The family of the late, Edson R. Moore.

WE WISH TO THANK OUR friends, neighbors, members of the Lake Orion Baptist Church and relatives for their many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy. The Reverend Walter Ballath and Reverend Frank Mills for their comforting words during the recent death of our beloved son and brother, Larry. Also, the Huntoon Funeral Home and pallbearers. Mrs. Freda Myre and his sister, Jean Lois Phelps.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY OF OUR Dear Mother L. Ruth Lare, who passed away March 9, 1959.
No one knows the silent heartache,
Only those who lose can tell;
The grief we bear in silence,
For the one we loved so well.
Someday, sometime, our eyes shall see,
The face we keep in memory;
And God will link the broken chain,
Still closer when we meet again.
—Sadly missed by Mr. and Mrs. Wally Lake.

NY's Wild About 'Charlie,' New Name for 'High Jinks'

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — There was so much "Charlie"—that's the word for "action" — around New York the other morning, that a columnist could get a Charlie-horse in his arm writing about the Charlie.

WILSON

At the Plaza Oak Room it was so black-tie and otherwise formal, that if you wanted to know "How's the Charlie?" ("How's the action?") you couched it formally, "How's the Charles?"

Jackie Kennedy's always Charlie.

"The first zephyr of spring," in short-sleeved blue dress with white cowl neck and cuffs under a white brocade coat, Jackie spent almost 3 hours at Arthur with Mike Nichols. She danced once, modeled a Beatle (short-visor) hat, and smilingly turned down one request for an autograph.

Alan King was Charlie-Charlie!

The smashing success of the Robert Preston-Rosemary Harris play, "The Lion In Winter," which he and three others produced, was celebrated with inordinate enthusiasm at the Voisin with Alan calling out some of the gems from the reviews.

Mrs. King wore a floor-length ermine when she stepped from her Rolls.

Bushy-bearded Robert Preston (Henry II, King of England) and his wife Catherine appeared to be blissful.

"You're not overweight," I said to Robert. "I am, too, overweight!" he petulated. He had to be because Henry II was a slob, and as for Richard the Lion-Hearted . . . well, . . . who'd ever have thought that of him? But playwright James Goldman made it clear that Richard was in love with Philip, King of France.

"The play just shows that in 1183 the royal family's children were a bunch of rotten kids worse than can now be found in Connecticut," a woman behind me said.

Singer Cash Gets Light Sentence for Pill Smuggling

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Country and Western singer Johnny Cash was given a 30-day suspended sentence and a $1,000 fine yesterday for smuggling 1,000 pep pills and tranquilizers into the United States from Mexico.

U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle could have sent Cash to jail for a year. The singer, 33, appealed for leniency.

Cash was arrested at El Paso International Airport Oct. 4 with amphetamine and tranquilizer (equanil) tablets in his possession. He pleaded guilty Dec. 28.

★ ★ ★

Cash appeared to be overcome with emotion after the sentencing. He asked permission to leave the court to compose himself. After court adjourned, he stepped in an elevator and shouted, "Hallelujah!"

About one-half of fires in the U. S. occur in homes.

Man, Wife Killed During Car Sale

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — A pregnant woman and her husband were stabbed to death early today and one of their children was critically wounded, apparently during an argument with a man who wanted to buy their car but did not like the price.

Police rushed the woman to City Hospital where doctors tried unsuccessfully to save her unborn child. The victims were identified as David and Hildegarde de Vose and their 12-year-old son, Maurice.

'Million State Drivers Have Photo Licenses'

LANSING (AP) — Nearly one million Michigan drivers now have new licenses with color photos attached, reports Secretary of State James Hare.

Hare said the new photos now are being provided at all licensing locations. Grosse Pointe was the last station to be converted to the new licenses.

FCC Regulations Are Issued for 1,600 Cable TV Systems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission yesterday issued formal regulations governing the nation's 1,600 Community Antenna Television (CATV) systems.

The new rules, most of them effective April 18, back up the FCC's controversial order of Feb. 15 placing virtually all of the booming CATV industry under federal regulation.

The House Commerce Committee plans full hearings into the entire issue and what role the FCC should play.

CATV picks up television signals from the air and relays them by cable into homes, where viewers pay an average $5 a month for the privilege of getting a generally clearer signal and greater variety of programs.

★ ★ ★

One FCC regulation issued yesterday would affect burgeoning CATV operations in big population areas already served by one or more network stations.

TEMPORARY FREEZE

It imposed a temporary freeze on CATV expansion into the 100 biggest television markets in the country, where the industry believes 90 per cent of its potential revenues is located.

To enter such an area, or to extend its signal if already operating there, a CATV system would have to apply for an FCC hearing. Subscribers as of Feb. 15 would not be affected.

In an elaboration of its earlier decision, the FCC ruled that a local television station must give a CATV system at least eight days' notice of a program it does not want duplicated the same day by a CATV-relayed signal from a distant area.

CATV systems are forbidden to show the same program the same day as one broadcast by a local station, unless it is a color program that the home town station chooses to broadcast in black and white.

STATION SIGNALS

Another rule published yesterday requires a CATV system on request to carry all local station signals of "grade B or better" in its area or ask the FCC to waive the rule if technical limitations prevent compliance.

Other regulations cover instructions to CATV owners for filing ownership information with the FCC, including a list of subscribers, television stations carried, and "the extent of any existing or proposed program origination."

The question of CATV-originated programs is one of several that the FCC last month asked Congress to help settle. It also suggested that Congress consider whether to deem CATV a public utility and subject to the same controls as telephone companies.

The FCC formerly regulated only those CATV systems — about 450 — which used microwaves at some point to relay signals to distant areas. It extended its jurisdiction last month to all 1,600 systems, including those using only cables. They serve an estimated 6 million paying viewers.

Pair Killed in Crash

HOUGHTON (AP)—Two members of a Detroit family on the way to a funeral were killed in a two-car collision Tuesday. Mrs. Frances Sunich, 57, and her son, Raymond, 26, were killed. The husband and father, Rudolph, 57, was injured. Their car and another collided on U.S. 41 south of here.

Windmill Isle to Open

HOLLAND (AP) — Windmill Island, the tourist attraction site of a 200-year-old windmill imported to Holland from The Netherlands, opens April 29 for its second year of operation. The island drew 120,000 visitors in its first season.

Bosch Living in Fear of Assassination

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Behind a machine gun and sandbag barricade, former Dominican President Juan Bosch lives in fear he will be assassinated before the June 1 elections by which he hopes to return to power.

NEWSOM

Giving some point to these fears, in Santo Domingo last weekend, a Bosch bodyguard died from a bullet fired into the back of his head from a passing automobile only 50 yards from Bosch's home.

★ ★ ★

The fact that eyewitnesses identified his assailant as a man wearing a police major's uniform further intensified the atmosphere of fear and hate which is the story of the Dominican Republic.

START OF CAMPAIGN

Officially, the campaign for the June elections opened on March 1.

Bosch, 56, and another former president, Joaquin Balaguer, 58, are regarded as the two principal candidates for the June elections.

Bosch has made no secret of his resentment against U. S. intervention.

Balaguer says he will seek U. S. cooperation and aid.

SHORT TERM

In December 1962, Bosch won election as the Dominican Republic's first freely elected president in more than 30 years.

He had spent 26 years in political exile and was of the non-Communist, left-of-center stripe favored by the United States in recent years as a counterbalance between the extreme right Latin American dictatorships and the Fidel Castros of the Communist mold.

He fell to a right-wing military coup seven months after taking office.

In April of last year, a combined military and civilian revolt attempted to restore him to office.

U. S. MOVED IN

Fearful of Communist influence, the United States moved in.

The record supports neither Bosch nor Balaguer.

Bosch proved ineffective either as a curb against communism or as an administrator.

POSSIBLE BOYCOTT

Bosch fears the army would not permit him to take office even if he won, and hints his party might boycott the election.

But the United States is committed to free elections on June 1 and is spending more than $100 million to make it possible.

He Got the Point Quick as a Shot

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI) — All it took to make Bill Wright change jobs was a shot in the arm. The deputy sheriff went "to check out" a car the other night and the driver stuck a pistol out the window and shot him in the elbow.

Wright resigned yesterday and went job-hunting.

Larceny in Her Heart

LEICESTER, England (UPI) — A 16-year-old supermarket clerk has pleaded giulty to two charges of stealing groceries. Her crime: undercharging customers whom she felt sorry for.

Letter of the Law

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) —A police manhunt is on for a man, but not for the usual reason. The law officers have a letter of thanks for him from the chief constable. The man helped capture an escaper and then left without leaving his name.

City to Allow Public Housing for the Elderly

Ordinance Amended by Commission With One Dissenting Vote

Pontiac's 11-year ban on additional public housing was partially lifted last night to permit "housing designed for occupancy by the elderly."

In a 6-1 vote, the City Commission took final action amending the city's ordinance prohibiting further public housing.

Commissioner Robert C. Irwin repeated his action of last week by casting the lone dissenting vote.

While not necessarily against some form of housing for senior citizens, Irwin claims the commission is acting in too much haste.

★ ★ ★

"This commission," said Irwin, "is moving too rapidly into something they don't know anything about, and I resent it."

VIEW DISPUTED

Commissioner Leslie H. Hudson, who has urged the current consideration of senior citizen housing, disputed Irwin's view.

Hudson claimed senior citizen housing had been studied for many years. In effect he said any unanswered questions can be answered in the time it takes to construct the proposed housing units.

Hudson estimated that without major obstacles it would take at least two years to prepare senior citizen housing for occupancy.

Other commissioners said amending Ordinance 1270 was just the first step toward the housing units and that all plans would still have to be approved by the commission.

BAN STILL ON

The prohibition on other types of additional public housing in the city is continued.

★ ★ ★

High Court Upholds County Judge Terms

Legislation extending the terms of office for two Oakland County Circuit Court judges through 1970 was, in effect, upheld yesterday by the Michigan Supreme Court.

Judges Philip Pratt and James S. Thorburn will serve until Jan. 1, 1971, as a result of the high court's 4-4 split vote on a test case.

The local judges had appealed a ruling by Macomb County Circuit Court Judge George R. Deneweth.

Pratt and Thorburn had filed suit contending a 1965 state law extending their terms of office beyond the 1966 election was unconstitutional.

They had challenged the power of the legislature to extend their terms.

Deneweth said the state statute does not violate the new state constitution. He upheld the law.

The Michigan Supreme Court's split vote on the appeal will mean that Pratt and Thorburn will not have to seek reelection this year as both judges had expressed a desire to do.

OTHERS AFFECTED

Also affected by the high court's action are two circuit judges in Wayne County and another in Washtenaw County.

Judge William F. Ager Jr. Washtenaw County will also serve until Jan. 1, 1971, and judges Thomas E. Brennan and Benjamin Burdick of Wayne County will serve until Jan. 1, 1973.

Opposing Deneweth's decision, Chief Justice Thomas Kavanagh and justices Theodore Souris, Otis Smith and Paul Adams said terms for the five judges, all elected in 1964, should expire Jan. 1, 1967.

★ ★ ★

They held that the 1964 elections merely were to fill vacancies and were not for the regular six-year term of a circuit judge.

GENERAL RULE

They cited "the general rule that legislation extending terms of office of elective officials is unconstitutional."

The problem stems from a provision of Michigan's 1963 Constitution, which requires that judges' terms shall not all expire at the same time.

To implement this provision, the Legislature in 1963 decided that in the 1966 election, some Circuit Court judges would be elected for six years, some for eight and some for 10.

Starting with the 1972 elections, all would be elected for six-year terms.

REQUIREMENTS MET

Justice Michael O'Hara wrote that the Legislature, in extending the terms of the five judges elected in 1964, merely was complying with the constitutional requirement that Circuit Court judges "shall hold office for a term of six years."

Justices John Dethmers, Harry Kelley and Eugene Black agreed.

The other four justices argued, however, in an opinion written

Plan May Stay in Effect Past 1970 Census

Maverick Judge Says Results Are at Least 'Decision by Impasse'

LANSING (AP) — Michigan legislators next fall will be running from the same districts that contributed to a 1964 Democratic landslide — thanks to a Michigan Supreme Court deadlock yesterday.

The high court reached a 4-4 stalemate—leaving the Democratic drafted one man-one vote plan in effect for the 1966 elections, and possibly past the 1970 federal census.

The court could not even muster enough votes on any one side to correct a 10,000-person mechanical error north of Lansing. The error remains in effect along with the plan.

The question could be appealed to U.S. District or Supreme courts, but challengers of the plan say they have not decided yet what they might do.

CHIDES COURT

Black, a onetime Republican attorney general who switched parties before running for the high court, chided the court last month for stalling on the involved question.

Seven separate opinions, totaling 75 pages, were handed down yesterday. They represented the last stage in a suit filed Aug. 22, 1964 challenging current districting. Thirty-four persons maintained the plan was a partisan gerrymander.

Other Democratic-nominated justices—Chief Justice Thomas

Spectacular Soviet Space Flight Hinted

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Reports from behind the Iron Curtain said today the Soviets are preparing a space spectacular which may involve cosmonauts changing from one spaceship to another in flight.

A report by Warsaw radio's Moscow correspondent said the flight "will be more complicated than any other so far." The report said the flight was likely to involve a pair of two-man Vorskod-type spaceships which would rendezvous.

"Then at least two cosmonauts would walk out into space and change their vehicles," the Warsaw report said.

In Belgrade the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported Russia may launch a new manned space shot before the start of the 23rd Communist party Congress on March 29.

In a dispatch from Moscow Tanjug said the new shot "is expected to be more important and spectacular than any so far."

SECRET SITE

The shot is predicted with "a considerable degree of certainty," Tanjug said.

The agency said that according to reports "the Soviet Union will this month launch two satellites provided with steering equipment for the cosmonauts. One of them would carry two cosmonauts who would realize a rendezvous with, and later transfer to the other, unmanned satellite."

Cong Attack on Camp Fails

Montagnard Troops, GIs Endure Barrage

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — At least two Red companies assaulted an isolated camp of U.S. Special Forces men and mountain tribesmen early today near the Laotian border. The attack failed.

The 300 Montagnard troopers and their 12 "green beret" American advisers beat off the attackers in a day-long battle around the triangular mud and log fortress, radio reports from the camp said.

During the barrage, the Reds shot down an armed U.S. Army C47 transport sent to help the besieged garrison in the Ashua Valley, 60 miles southwest of Da Nang. Four men were killed in the crash.

Rescue helicopters brought out three wounded crewmen of the C47.

LOST CONTACT

About 200 Reds launched the attack at 2 a.m.

At dawn, U.S. forces lost contact with the camp, raising fears it may have been overwhelmed.

At nightfall, a flare plane flying overhead to provide illumination picked up a weak but clear signal from the defenders saying "everything is under control."

The Viet Cong broke off contact just before sunset, reports from the battleground said.

NO FIRM WORD

The reports indicated some Americans were among the killed or wounded but there was no firm word on the toll.

The Ashau outpost overlooks a number of trails the Communists use to infiltrate men and supplies into South Viet Nam through Laos. Its airstrip is under continual Viet Cong sniper fire.

LBJ Crime Message Asks All-Out Effort

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson today asked Congress to support an all-out national war on crime through steps ranging from control of gun sales to comprehensive attacks on conditions that breed lawlessness.

In a special message to Congress, Johnson set forth a "three-stage national strategy against crime." It would include immediate efforts to improve crime prevention, detection and prosecution; a comprehensive long-range follow-through program, and an attack on "crime at the roots."

Most of Johnson's proposals called for action on already-pending legislation.

The program ranged from stepped-up attacks on crime in the streets to an intensified campaign against organized racketeering.

Johnson called for law enforcement reforms which included:

- Betterment of "the quality of local law enforcement" by adapting industrial management methods to police work, improving the training of law officers and correctional officials. To do this, he proposed an increase from the present $7.2 million to $13.7 to local police departments.
- An end to "the easy availability of deadly weapons to professional criminals, to delinquent youth and to the disturbed and deranged." This could be done, he said, through prompt enactment of pending legislation
- Moves to "facilitate the prosecution of criminals" through modernization of criminal laws. He proposed appointment of a commission to recommend total revision by 1968 of all the federal criminal laws.

Title Insurance Firms Clash

County Committee Hears Both Sides

By JOE MULLEN

The giants and the little people of the title insurance industry clashed yesterday over proposed legislation sought by the larger firms.

Scene of the battle was the meeting room of the legislative committee of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors.

The committee previously had gone on record as opposing legislation that would require all title insurance companies to have their own tract index facilities.

A tract index file lists the history of ownership of all real estate property in Oakland County.

★ ★ ★

MAKES CHARGE

Edward Barrett, a member of the board of trustees of Midwest Title Co., one of the smaller firms, charged yesterday that the two large title companies doing business in Oakland County were trying to eliminate competition through legislation.

Barret said he referred to Burton Abstract & Title Co. and Lawyers Title Insurance Co.

"The two combined formerly did 93 per cent of the title business in Oakland County," Barrett said. "Competition of smaller firms has cut this to 85 per cent now."

Income Tax for Highland Park Voted In

HIGHLAND PARK (AP) — Voters in this Detroit suburb approved a city income tax by a near 600-vote margin last night, following a two-month citizens group campaign to defeat the proposal.

The tax, putting a one per cent levy on residents and one-half per cent on nonresidents who work in Highland Park, was approved 3,035 to 2,438.

City officials said more than 5,000 of 16,873 registered voters cast ballots. The tax takes effect July 1.

"I'm very happy," said Mayor Michael Glusac. "This is a victory for a cross-section of the population. Every significant element of the community worked for this."

Glusac has estimated the tax would net the city $1 million to $1.2 million annually.

PROMISE TAX CUT

City Council earlier promised a 1 mill ($1 per $1,000 of assessed valuation) property tax cut if the income tax were approved. The council approved the tax last year but a citizens' petition drive forced a referendum.

Detroit, suburban Hamtrack, Flint and Saginaw are other Michigan cities with local income taxes.

Voters in Warren, another Detroit suburb, defeated such a tax by a five to one margin Feb. 21.

Report Shows City Vice Cleanup Effective

By DAVID J. COOK

Pontiac — a town where "girls used to come up to cars in the street," according to a veteran vice squad officer — has apparently been cleaned up.

★ ★ ★

That's the essence of a six-page report turned in to city officials yesterday.

The report, resulting from four days of investigation last month, terms Pontiac's law enforcement activity in the field of prostitution as "tops, any way you rate it."

Harlan E. Raimo, regional director of the American Social Health Association (ASHA), submitted a copy of the report to City Manager Joseph A. Warren yesterday morning and later to Police Chief William K. Hanger.

★ ★ ★

ASHA, Raimo said, does investigative work in prostitution, venereal disease education, family life education and narcotics, at the request of government and civic agencies.

KEEPS SECRET

He did not reveal who asked for the study of Pontiac.

Ratings given are based on the size of the city, the amount of vice, and the accessibility of prostitution.

"This is a report card, not just on law enforcement, but on the whole community," Raimo told Hanger.

"It reflects what the community wants—because if the 'right' people want a town loosened up, they'll do it in spite of the police."

Hanger was joined at the meeting by Lt. Fred L. Goines, head of the department's vice squad.

The chief described himself as "pleased" with the report, "regardless of what the results are."

"This kind of independent report assures us that we're in touch with the situation," he said.

★ ★ ★

"If our vice squad hadn't been doing a job, I think this investigation would have showed it."

Raimo said plainclothes ASHA agents in other cities had been able to uncover vice rings where agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation had failed.

"There's not a lot going on

JOHN HODGE

Teen's Future Hangs by Hair

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — If he gets a haircut, John Hodge will lose a job that pays $50 to $60 a week.

If he doesn't get one, he can't return to school.

"I've got to make a decision before Thursday," said the 16-year-old guitar player who is sitting at home now because the principal at Valley High School, where John is an honor pupil, doesn't approve of his hair.

"My hair means money," said John, a member of a teen-age combo called the Emotions.

"If you had two bands equal in every respect but one with long hair and the other with short hair, the kids would choose the long-haired band," he said.

AVERAGE PAY

The youngester figures he averages $50 to $60 a week as a musician.

"I'm trying to get an education and I'm trying to compete. If I give in to things I don't believe are right, I'll be giving in all my life.

★ ★ ★

Senate Foes Fight Tax Bill Aiding Collegians' Parents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration forces in the Senate try today to defeat a proposal to give a tax break to parents of college students.

The administration suffered one surprising setback on the $6-billion tax bill Tuesday when Republicans succeeded in adding to the bill an amendment to grant Social Security benefits to some 1.8 million persons over 70 not now covered.

The amendment was approved by a vote of 45 to 40 and carries an estimated price tag of $760 million a year. Whether or not it stays in the measure — provided the bill passes — would be decided when Senate and House conferees compromise differences in their versions of the legislation.

Administration leaders said they expected a close vote today on Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff's amendment to give an annual tax saving of up to $325 for college expenses. Annual cost of the proposal was put at $1 billion, but the Connecticut Democrat said it would not take effect until 1968.

Under it, up to $325 of annual college expenses could be taken as credit and thus subtracted from taxes due.

CLOSE DEFEAT

The Ribicoff amendment was defeated by only three votes in 1964.

Senate leaders were hopeful action could be completed on the tax measure later today.

It would reinstate excise tax cuts made recently on phone calls and car sales and would speed up collection of personal and corporate income taxes.

As submitted by the administration and approved Feb. 26 by the House, the measure would provide additional revenue of $1.2 billion in the current fiscal year and $4.8 billion in the fiscal year which starts July 1.

MEASURE PUSHED

The Social Security amendment adopted Tuesday long has been pushed by Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt.

It was beaten last year 55 to 36 when offered as a rider to the Social Security health care measure. Democratic Senate leaders conceded this led them to underrate its chances this time.

in Pontiac," he said, "or our man would have found it.

"But it's a pretty good indicator.

The detailed report quoted a hotel bellboy as telling "a man" who approached him regarding a prostitute:

DAYS ARE ENDED

"Five years ago this was a good place, but no more."

Raimo said both bellboys and cab drivers questioned secretly by the ASHA representative "agreed they could not and would not act as go-betweens."

"Some," the report stated, "stated local authorities are too active in trying to prevent and suppress commercialized prostitution for them to risk pandering."

Hanger and Goines both cited support of local courts as assisting police in suppression of prostitution and other vice operations.

HARSH JUDGES

"If we arrest girls on the street," Goines said, "our judges hit 'em pretty hard.

"Not just a $20 or $50 fine, but 30 to 90 days in jail.

Goines also said the ASHA report was valuable, because, he said, "The men on our vice squad become pretty well-known sooner or later."

CITY LOCATION

Raimo said much of Pontiac's reputed problems in the past have come because the city's location between two "big" cities — Detroit and Flint.

"If either one of those places starts to put the pressure on their rackets," he said, "Pontiac is the first place to feel it.

"The fact that our man was able to find so little in the way of organized vice shows your people must be keeping the pressure on here."

Rabbi Adler's Condition Takes Turn for Worse

DETROIT (AP) — The condition of Rabbi Morris Adler, in a coma since he was shot and critically wounded Feb. 12 at his synagogue, has worsened.

Wishnetsky shot himself in the head after firing at Adler. He died three days later.

Indonesia Riots Spread

SINGAPORE (AP) — Anti-Communist student demonstrations raged today in Jakarta and spread to other areas of the far-flung Indonesian archipelago, highly reliable sources reported in Singapore.

The sources, who are in constant touch with developments in Indonesia, said more than 10,000 students ignored tanks and barbed wire barricades in the Indonesian capital to attack and occupy the Education Ministry building.

Several other demonstrations were held in Java, they added.

The official Jakarta radio announced President Sukarno has summoned military commanders to a meeting at his palace in Bogor Saturday to discuss the student demonstrations.

Anti-Communist students from the outlawed Kami student group and high school student organizations have been protesting since Feb. 21 against Sukarno's ouster of the anti-Communist defense minister, Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution.

Sources here said the students shouted "Hang basic Education Minister Sumarjo!" and "Hang Subandrio!" Subandrio is deputy premier and is considered pro-Peking. They scribbled anti-Sukarno, anti-Sumarjo and anti-Subandrio slogans on the wall of the building, the sources added.

The antigovernment demonstration was staged in spite of an armed forces move to prevent further rioting in the Indonesian capital the sources said.

They said barbed wire blockades were erected this morning at approaches to the Education and Foreign ministers and three tanks were stationed near the Foreign Ministry, which a student mob sacked Tuesday in a demonstration against Subandrio. He has been a particular target of anti-Communist students because of his pro-Peking, pro-Communist policy.

3 States Feel Blast

Exploding Shells Rip Freight

CORNING, Ark. (UPI) — Artillery shells exploded on a Missouri Pacific freight train today, damaging eight cars, three houses, and sending earth tremors over three states. There were no known injuries.

The blast was felt in Missouri and Tennessee, as well as in Arkansas. Windows two miles away from the blast site were broken.

Deputy Sheriff D. W. Rice said two cars exploded, one probably touching off the other.

He said railroad officials told the sheriff's office one car contained 175 MM artillery shells, but he did not know the contents of the other.

★ ★ ★

Police at nearby Blytheville said they heard the shells came from the West Burlington, Iowa, army depot.

DAMAGE

"It's a tremendous amount of damage," Rice said.

He said one unoccupied house caught fire. Two families were sleeping in two brick houses whose sides were knocked in.

Rice said none of the train crew was injured. Another freight had passed the train, which was on a siding, only a short time before the explosion.

Rice said windows in the business district were shattered and a number of other houses damaged. He estimated damage to a rice drier at $75,000 to $1000,0000.

DUG HOLE

The blasts dug a hole about 40 to 60 feet long and 15 feet deep.

The FBI sent agents to the scene.

State Districts to Stay in Effect

Kavanagh, Paul Adams, Theodore Souris and Otis Smith—in one way or another approved the present so-called Austin-Kleiner plan which contributed to a Democratic sweep of both houses of the legislature in 1964.

Republican-nominated justices John Dethmers, Harry Kelly and Michael O'Hara called for adopting new plans or remanding the question back to the commission.

REPEATED DEADLOCKS

The court ordered the commission back to the drawing boards last Nov. 2, but it deadlocked repeatedly on a 4-4 party-line basis.

Its New Year's Eve deadline passed without a decision and the question was dropped back in the lap of the court.

Souris, writing what amounted to the controlling Democratic opinion, ruled "the petitioners' allegations of partisan gerrymandering . . . are untenable under either federal or state law."

The present plan, he added, "complies with the requirements of the federal equality clause, as those requirements have been construed by the U. S. Supreme Court.

"If we assume the 1963 (State) Constitution's standards of compactness, contiguity and regularity of shape and conformity to county, city, and township boundaries survived . . . the plan conformed with those standards as well."

Republicans have argued present districting violates those state standards. They maintain further these standards survived while other constitutional requirements such as the 80 per cent population and 20 per cent area formula of the State Constitution fell under the landmark population-only U. S. Supreme Court ruling in June 1964.

County Ranks 2nd in State for School Aid

The State Education Department reports nearly $18 million in federal education funds have been allocated to Michigan school districts since the start of the school year last fall.

Michigan's share of nearly $1 billion in federal funds to improve educational services for disadvantaged children amounts to $34.7 million for the current fiscal year.

Oakland County is second in the state in receipt of the funds with $1.7 million.

Leading the state, with projects totaling $6.7 million approved so far, is Wayne County. Saginaw County is third with $633,643.

Town Helps to Save a Life

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—The 3,625 residents of nearby Mascoutah, Ill., have mobilized to help save the life of Mrs. John Votrain.

Mrs. Votrain, 38, the wife of a schoolteacher and mother of two sons, took her first home treatment yesterday on a kidney machine paid for with funds collected by the citizens of Mascoutah.

"I'm thankful," said Mrs. Votrain. "I didn't know I had so many friends."

The machine does the job ordinarily done by kidneys. Mrs. Votrain has Bright's disease.

Fellow parishioners at St. John United Church of Christ in Mascoutah started the drive Jan. 16.

Two chairmen were selected for the campaign which already has raised more than $17,000. It costs $10,000 a year to operate the kidney machine.

RAISE MONEY

A dance, a chicken supper and a Zion Lutheran Church choir concert were a few of the money raising events.

The Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts staged fund drives. Three Roman Catholic organizations made large contributions.

"My hometown church, St. Paul's United Church of Christ, at Waterloo, Ill., heard about the money we needed," said Mrs. Votrain. "It had a special collection and sent us $3,600."

★ ★ ★

Painters, carpenters and electricians built a room in the basement and prepared it for the machine. Their work was free.

HUSBAND TRAINED

Her husband was trained to operate the machine by the Washington University Medical School at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

★ ★ ★

"I will still have to go back to Barnes for checkups about once each month," said Mrs. Votrain.

Dr. Herbert Lubowitz, a member of the medical school staff, said: "Without the treatments available by the kidney machine, death probably would come within six weeks. With the machine, it is theoretically possible to live almost normally."

Tax Exemption Deadline Near

Senior Citizen Filing Is Due by March 18

Pontiac home owners eligible for Senior Citizens Tax Relief have until March 18 to file for the tax exemption on 1966 taxes, according to City Assessor James E. Kephart Jr.

Kephart said application forms are available at the assessor's office in City Hall. The city has received about 1,250 applications so far.

Under a new state law, Act 27, passed last year, senior citizens 65 and over can obtain an exemption on their property taxes up to $2,500 on the assessed value as equlized.

Kephart said home owners, either husband or wife, who reached their 65th birthday on or before Dec. 31, 1965, are eligible for the real estate tax exemption.

The act applies to persons owning their home or purchasing it under a mortgage or contract.

$5,0000 ANNUALLY

The tax relief is granted beginning with the 1966 tax year to persons over 65 who earn less than $5,000 annually, have lived in Michigan seven consecutive years immediately prior to application and don't own properties in Michigan with a total assessed value exceeding $10,000 as equalized.

★ ★ ★

Persons applying for the tax exemption should bring proof of property ownership and their birth certificate or some document showing their date of birth, such as a Social Security application or discharge papers for those who served in the armed forces, said Kephart.

City Boosted for Fairground

Pontiac would be a more suitable location for the Michigan State Fairgrounds than Detroit is, state senators were told yesterday.

However, the suggestion of Agriculture Commission Chairman Blaque Knirk ran into immediate Senate Democratic opposition.

Rehabilitation of the fair site is one of the top problems in agriculture, Knirk said at a confirmation hearing before the Senate Business Committee.

"We in agriculture would be better off if, for year-around use, we had a coliseum not in Detroit," he said.

Knirk suggested Pontiac or a point closer to Lansing as a better location.

LAND SALE EYED

He said selling the Detroit land could produce enough money to develop a new site elsewhere.

Committee Chairman John Bowman, R-Roseville, objected.

"Who pays the most taxes and where are the most people?" he asked. The metropolitan people and area, he said, answering his own question.

Knirk said, "A lot of rural people won't go to Detroit."

Sen. Terry Troutt, D-Romulus, said the fair is often the only place city people can see farm animals and learn about farming.

Veteran Commissioner Not Seeking Reelection

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — After 18 continuous years service to the city, Commissioner James A. Beresford has announced that he will not seek reelection to the commission this spring.

Beresford announced his decision in a letter addressed to the City Commission and read at its meeting last night.

"I regret I will not be up for reelection on the April 4 ballot," said Beresford. "I will miss my close association with many fine citizens and city employes."

JAMES A. BERESFORD

He expressed his gratitude to the citizens of the city for the opportunity they gave him to be of service.

★ ★ ★

Besides his many years as a commissioner, Beresford was the mayor of the city in 1954-55.

LONG HISTORY

Beresford, whose residence is at 411 Lone Pine, has an extensive history of public service.

He is a director of the Cranbrook Institute of Science, president of the Detroit Zoological Society, a member of the advisory board of the Salvation Army in Detroit and a director of the Booth Newspapers.

Robert A. Frye, mayor of the city, said he has enjoyed working with Beresford and that the city will miss his services.

★ ★ ★

"Jim has been a very public-spirited citizen," he said. "He has given unstintingly of his time for the good of his community."

'MAGNIFICENT PLACE'

In his letter to the commission, Beresford stated that he considered the city one of the magnificent places in the world with natural beauty and fine neighbors.

★ ★ ★

"To serve a community such as Bloomfield Hills is a rewarding experience," he said.

★ ★ ★

"It takes many sacrifices in time and effort, but our future will continue to depend upon voluntary, unselfish service by our citizens."

Insurance Firms Clash on Proposal

surer of another small firm, Great Lakes Title Co., agreed with Barrett that legislation was designed solely to put the smaller firms out of business.

ADMITS CHARGE

Burton vice president William B. Conn admitted that the legislation was aimed at Great Lakes and Midwest. He said the operation of these two firms was not good for the public.

Conn called Great Lakes a "general store operation" owned by 19 real estate men.

As for Midwest, he said its board of directors was the same as the board of directors of a savings and loan firm which he didn't name.

Companies should be free of pressures resulting from such ownership in conducting title insurance business, Conn said.

DENIES CHARGE

Barrett denied that the board makeup of Midwest was the same as of a savings and loan firm.

Both Great Lakes and Midwest use the county's tract index to gather information needed to issue title insurance.

Another of the smaller firms represented at the meeting, American Title Co., has its own title plant.

Its officials said the proposed legislation wouldn't put the firm out of business but they opposed it as it now stands after revision as "hardly adequate to regulate a major industry."

TIME REQUESTED

The committee voted to table action on the original bill as revised because it hasn't had time to study the changes.

It will retain its position, however, as opposing the legislation pending study of revisions.

Several months ago, the two large firms offered to purchase the county's tract index for $100,000 but this was rejected by the ways and means committee of the County Board of Supervisors last October.

The index has been available for public use.

High Court Okays Judge Office Terms

by Adams, that not every election for circuit judge should be for six years.

★ ★ ★

This, wrote Adams, would wreck the staggered term policy of the Constitution since, for example, if a judge died or resigned after one year in office, his job would come up for election in odd-numbered years.

ELECTION RULE

The Constitution calls for roughly one-third of Michigan's circuit judges to come up for election every two years, in even numbered years.

The five judges all were appointed in 1963 after the Legislature created additional judgeships. They all were elected in 1964 to succeed themselves.

Adams argued that since the next regular election of circuit judges was scheduled for 1966, they merely were filling vacancies.

The staggering of terms, he said, was to be accomplished entirely in the 1966 election.

★ ★ ★

The question was taken to court by Thornburn and Pratt. The other three judges were given permission to intervene since they were affected by the results.

Guatemala Faces Crisis as Election Is Disputed

GUATEMALA (AP) — Guatemala faced a serious crisis today as rival political parties disputed the results of the presidential election.

The government-backed Institutional Democratic party (PID) charged fraud in strongholds of the moderately leftist Revolutionary party and demanded annulment of the vote in the capital and in five districts in the interior.

★ ★ ★

Revolutionary party candidate Julio Cesar Mendez Montenegro, who leads in the results, claimed "total victory by absolute majority" and declared himself president-elect.

The latest official figures from an unspecified number of the country's 324 municipalities gave Mendez 190,822 votes, Col. Juan de Dios Aguilar of the PID 142,586 and Col. Miguel Angel Ponciano of the right-wing National Liberation Movement 100,404.

NOT MAJORITY

Although the official figures put the civilian candidate well in the lead, they left him short of the majority required for election. If no one gets a majority, the new Congress elected Sunday will choose between the two high men.

★ ★ ★

"I don't believe the information of the Electoral Commission," said Mendez, a former law professor. "It does what the government wants."

★ ★ ★

Revolutionary party returns from 210 of the 324 municipalities Tuesday night gave Mendez 169,782, Aguilar 95,005 and Ponciano 80,600. Although these also left Mendez short of a majority, officials of the party said returns en route from missing districts would give him the margin necessary for election.

★ ★ ★

They added, however, that they had received reports that officials of the government party had started invalidating Revolutionary party votes in unreported municipalities to eliminate the party's majority.

SEATS CLAIMED

Revolutionary party officials claimed 28 to 32 of the 55 congressional states being filled by the election.

Mendez said he would accept a runoff if he is convinced the official returns are honest. Then, he said, his party would probably combine with Ponciano's to give him a majority in the 55-seat Congress.

"I trust the military government will recognize our triumph and not put obstacles in the way," he told a cheering crowd at the headquarters of his party.

He told a news conference earlier that he was afraid "there could be civil war in Guatemala if there is electoral fraud," and "Guatemala may become a second Santo Domingo."

★ ★ ★

If fraud is proved, he said, he could "call in a moment 60,000 men and women into the Central Plaza in front of the National Palace to protest."

Decorated Amsterdam Is Tense for Tomorrow's Royal Wedding

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (UPI) — Only the flags and bunting suggested a festive mood today as Holland awaited the controversial wedding tomorrow of Crown Princess Beatrix and German diplomat Claus von Amsberg.

The gaily decorated streets were filled with thousands of troops and uniformed and plainclothes police. Authorities expressed confidence they could handle any outbreak, violent or otherwise, during the wedding of the future Dutch queen.

The 28-year-old princess and her 39-year-old consort, whose part includes a stint in the Hitler Youth and service in the German army later in World War II, may have been given an omen last night of things to come.

A smoke bomb was touched off outside the Royal Palace as two police patrol cars and a dozen motorcycle officers pulled up behind the palace to escort the royal family to an official dinner.

Whoever ignited the bomb escaped as smoke obscured the entrance to fashionable Kalver Street flanking the complex of buildings.

DOCTORS ALERTED

It was reported meanwhile that all physicians and surgeons in Amsterdam had been alerted to stand by in case of trouble and that records were made of the blood type of each guest to attend the royal wedding.

Most Netherlanders wish the couple well, and kings and queens, princes and princesses have come from throughout Europe to attend their wedding. But there have been royal weddings under happier auspices.

There were rumors that Dutch gangs known as "Provos" planned trouble. Provos, who get their name from the word provocation, are gangs which enjoy troublemaking for its own sake.

Many in this little country, savagely occupied by Nazi Germany in the last war, cannot forget that von Amsberg for all his personal charm and dignified demeanor was a soldier in the German army and a member of the Hitler Youth.

REFUSE INVITATION

Twenty-one of the 45 members of the Amsterdam City Council will not accept a blanket invitation for the wedding.

Some pleaded "urgent business" elsewhere, but most rejections were seen as still more evidence of the opposition to the wedding.

Going Off to Sea Bacteria 'Fishing'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Two women scientists from Georgia Tech who have never been to sea head for the Antarctic soon on a bacteria-hunting expedition.

For two months they will be the only women aboard a 410-foot research ship as it zigzags across the ocean.

Floating pack ice will be the nearest thing to solid ground.

Both are looking forward to their expedition. They have only one worry — seasickness.

"We are taking along seasick pills and a psychological theory that we won't have to use them," said Mrs. Kenneth W. Walls.

Dr. Walls and Mrs. Spencer Defoor, her assistant, said their husbands had consented to the trip. Neither has children.

They will leave Atlanta Monday to board the Eltanin, a National Science Foundation ship and complete the voyage at Auckland, New Zealand, May 30.

A $20,100 grant from the National Science Foundation made their trip possible.

Once aboard, their wardrobes will include foul-weather gear, thermal underwear, wool shirts, trousers and insulated vests.

Dr. Walls said there is no known immediate practical application to their study. "But anything we can learn about matter in nature," she said, "can have potential application to other situations."

She said the micro-organisms in the Antarctic Ocean decompose matter as it sinks to the bottom. "And because of the low temperatures and lack of oxygen, they labor under poor working conditions," Dr. Walls said.

Mrs. Lewis Sullivan, Pioneer Street (left) and Mrs. William Hutchinson, Owego Drive, preview some of the outfits they'll model at the March 17 "Spring Style Spree." The 6:30 to 9 p.m. event sponsored by Beta chapter of Beta Phi will be held at the Bobette shop, North Saginaw Street. It is open to the public. Proceeds go to FAR.

Look, Buy, Sell at Style Spree

Mrs. Norman Haldane and Mrs. Franklin Oosterhof will cochairmen the "Spring Style Spree" sponsored by Beta Chapter, Beta Theta Phi sorority on March 17.

Members will alternate between modeling, buying and selling the newest in fashions to Alpha, Gamma and Delta chapters at the Bobette Shop from 6:30 until 9 p.m.

Proceeds will be used to purchase equipment for the Northern Oakland County Group of Friends and Relatives of the Retarded, Inc.

Federation Sets Date of Card Party

An international theme has been selected for the Pontiac Federation of Women's Clubs fund-raising card party April 27 at 8 p.m. in Elks Temple.

In keeping with its objective: promoting work of common civic interest, the federation has tagged the proceeds for the Pontiac Creative Arts Center, Inc., with a donation also alloted for the local Salute to Youth Program.

Mrs. William Dean is the event's general chairman. Assisting her are Lillian Davidson and Mrs. Lewis Swartz, tickets; Mrs. David Saks and Mrs. Maxwell Shadley, decorations; Mrs. Adrian Ish, door prizes; Mrs. George F. Brinkman, prizes; and Mrs. B. B. Roush, housing.

On the refreshment committee are Mrs. George Mitchell and Mrs. Charles Babb. Mrs. John Napley, Mrs. Richard Veazey and Mrs. Carmi Odell complete the list of committee heads.

Tickets are available from any committee member and all member clubs of the federation.

During the federation business meeting Monday in First Federal Savings of Oakland building, Mrs. Shadley reported on area art events being offered this season.

Mrs. Veazey received recognition for publication and circulation of the organization's bulletin "The Factor" to over 4,000 members.

Assisting in the project were Mrs. Charles Crawford, Mrs. Randall Spurgeon, Mrs. Napley, Mrs. Robert Bego, Mrs. John House and Mrs. Odell.

The tea table was attended by the Soroptomist Club of Pontiac. Members assisting were Mrs. Arnold Hillerman, Dr. Caryl Kulsavage, Mrs. Frances Coons, Mrs. William Hutton and Mrs. Elton Black.

Better Lose Him

He's a Bitter Little Boy

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago I married a man who left a good wife and two children in Pittsburgh to marry me, and he's been punishing me for it ever since. I was a new widow with a little insurance money, some income property, and a good job when we met.

ABBY

He had already separated from his wife, so I had no part in that, thank heavens. When he married me he had nothing.

I kept working while he just "looked for work" — but no job was good enough for him. I foolishly shared what I had with him. I gave him money for alimony, child support, and expensive presents for his children.

His main concern was trying to buy their affection and make up to his ex-wife for the miserable husband and father he had been.

I can't have children because of an operation I had years ago. My clergyman says he sees no reason for me to stay with him.

I hate the thought of divorce, but he's not happy and neither am I. I just feel sorry for him. What should I do?

UNHAPPY

DEAR UNHAPPY: Unless you derive some sort of pleasure from supporting a whining, bitter little boy who refuses to be a man and make YOUR marriage work, I vote with your clergyman.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion about a shower some neighborhood friends gave for me when we moved into our new home.

First of all, one "hostess" brought the guest list to me and asked me to address and mail them for her. I did as she asked, and also supplied the stamps.

Another "hostess" used one of her tablecloths, and when she left she told me I could launder it and drop it off at her house. They even told me to take back the empty ginger ale bottles and get the refund.

When the shower was over, they all walked out like guests, leaving the cleaning up to me. Dishes and all. I bought a gift of dusting powder and cologne for each hostess, and carried it to her personally. One lady gave hers to her 5-year-old daughter.

The child got all her dolls and used my gift generously on all of them. (The mother could have at least waited until I left if that's all she thought of my gift.)

Is this the way it's done now? If so, the obligation of being a hostess isn't so bad, is it?

"HONORED"

DEAR HONORED: Apparently, that's the way it's done in your neighborhood. But since you are understandably irked, you are free to seek other friends. You could hardly do worse.

Teens Beset by Adult Problems

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Woman's Editor

NEW YORK—No wonder teenagers sometimes are baffled, beset, and breaking all the rules of behavior.

All you have to do is watch the example the adults set, says America's Junior Miss, Patrice Gaunder.

Teen-ager problems have their roots in adult society." said the pretty brunette miss from Stevensville, Mich. It is their natural tendency to "emulate and imitate" grown-ups and then they find adults preaching one thing and practicing another.

"It's a topsy-turvy world for young people," said Miss Gaunder, who's 18. "Woman dressing like children . . . parents telling children not to smoke, then smoking . . not to drink, then drinking. Children pushed into adulthood too rapidly, girls wearing lipstick at 10 or 11, dating at 12."

CHEATING

Then there's the problem of cheating in school—partly due, she feels, to the "pressures to get a college education, to put the emphasis on grades, not on what you get out of a course."

"I feel that a lot of youth's problems can be put right on the doorstep of parents," said Miss Gaunder. "I don't mean that teen-agers shouldn't make decisions on their own, but the basic values you get from parents. There has to be a strong moral climate at home."

School and religious organizations have a role too, she said.

"I think if we were taught in school about the effects of alcohol . . . of smoking, dope, yes about sex, we'd have fewer problems. Treating them mysteriously so often makes them desirable. We're a curious bunch."

★ ★ ★

"It's like driver education in a way," said Miss Gaunder. "There are an awful lot of better drivers because of the driver and safety education programs in schools."

Miss Gaunder is not preaching from a pedestal—just from association with her age group and the things they discuss.

"She comes from a Catholic family which talks over problems. Her father, George, is coach, athletics director and teacher at Eau Clair, Mich., High School. There are sisters Chris, 17, and Maureen, 8, and brothers Steve, 13, and John, four.

Her mother acted as chaperone on a busload of Patrice Gaunder fans when as Michigan's Junior Miss she went last March to Mobile, Ala., where the contest to choose the nation's ideal high school senior is held.

Miss Gaunder said she was the only on of the 50 contestants in the '65 pageant to have a traveling fan club.

Her classmates at Lakeshore High went to work washing cars, sold cakes and candies, and held raffles to raise money for the trip to Mobile.

Now Miss Gaunder soon will head for Azalea-Land again to crown her successor on March 26.

In a way, she said, it will be a relief to be a "has been", although the $7,100 in state and national scholarships is the reason she, an honor student, was able to enroll last fall in the school of her choice, Marygrove College, in Detroit.

★ ★ ★

The scholarships were only part of the rewards. Three months of criss-crossing the country for the pageant sponsors, Breck, Chevrolet, Scott and Eastman, "Gave me a knowledge I might never have gained otherwise," said the junior miss. "I can look back now and see how much it matured me."

Soon, though it'll be back to doing her own hair; Breck sent a hairdresser along on her tour. She'll also miss, she said, some of the fabulous restaurant meals.

New York City Commuter's Life Was Taxing Enough Before the Lindsay Proposal

By HAL COOPER

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York City commuter is, like the crabgrass on his lawn, a hardy type.

Typically, he rises in the dark far out in the suburbs, spends up to two hours riding slow trains to the city—often standing up — and rarely sees his children from weekend to weekend.

* * *

The commuter thought he had it tough enough already, but a new trial threatens to be heaped on his suffering head.

If all goes according to plan, the commuter soon will be paying a city income tax for the privilege of working in New York. The tax will be on top of the federal income tax, the state income tax and the taxes he pays to support the community where his mortgaged castle is.

Some of the more rebellious commuters are threatening to move into the city, thus saving enough on commutation tickets and crabgrass killers to break even.

Mayor John V. Lindsay is a kindly man and he hates making the commuters unhappy. However, he says the city is in "shocking financial condition" and must raise more money for its budget.

"New York," the mayor said recently, "owes a great debt to its 250,000 commuters. But the commuter in turn owes a debt to New York City. He rides on city-supported buses and subways. He is protected by city police. He depends on the city fire department.

"We must ask the commuters to assume their fair share of the cost of maintaining the city."

So if the legislature can be persuaded to pass the necessary enabling bill, New York City will start June 1 assessing incomes of both city dwellers and commuters on a scale of 1 to 3 per cent.

A commuter with a salary of $11,000 a year and two children would have to pay the city about $110 a year, deducted from his check on a pay as you go basis.

* * *

The money he would pay to the city would be deductible from the income he pays federal tax on, so he would pay the Internal Revenue people $27 less a year. The experts said there was a chance the city tax also would be made deductible from income for state tax purposes.

* * *

No One Sure Why

Film Producers Fete TV Exec

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — No one was quite sure why Gen. David Sarnoff was being awarded the Screen Producers Guild's Milestone Award, but all agreed it was a good idea.

The Milestone is generally presented to a film pioneer. Gen. Sarnoff is an electronics pioneer, having founded the Radio Corporation of America. Ten years ago, it would have seemed unthinkable for Hollywood to be passing out honors to the man who did as much as anyone to bring television to the nation. Times change.

★ ★ ★

It's always fun to join the members of the dais at the producers' banquet before they face the crowd at the Beverly Hilton International Ballroom. Then you catch the big names at their ease, as in the case of Bob Hope, or in a nervous state, like Bill Cosby.

The young comic looked somewhat forlorn. "I don't feel right with all these old parties," he said. "I wish they'd let me work with Woody Allen or someone else of my generation."

MIGHTY SPRY

The old parties looked mighty spry. Adolph Zukor, a crickety 93, was talking movie business with Kirk Douglas. Samuel Goldwyn, an alert 83, chatted with Lucille Ball, who got her first Hollywood job as a Goldwyn girl.

★ ★ ★

James Stewart was deep in conversation with his onetime agent, Lew Wasserman, now Jimmy's sometime boss as head of Universal Studio. The whole new generation of studio heads was present; Mike Frankovich of Columbia, Robert Weitman of MGM, Richard Zanuck of 20th Century Fox, Howard Koch of Paramount.

★ ★ ★

There was plenty of pulchritude to catch their eyes: Donna Reed, Loretta Young, soprano Anna Moffo, Mary Tyler Moore, Julie Andrews.

The most awed person in the room seemed to be Miss Andrews. "My goodness," she said in her best Poppins style. "Think of all the history in this room!"

GRAND ENTRANCE

The hour of 8 was reached and visitors were shooed out so the distinguished guests could make their grand entrance. Gen. Sarnoff, vigorous on his 75th birthday, led the march through the ballroom.

The emcees' emcee, Bob Hope, explained the reason for the Milestone Award to Gen. Sarnoff: "He's America's leading motion picture exhibitor."

Pole With Opinion

Protester 'Cuts' Film

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Warsaw police and a Western movie company have met their match in a Warsaw woman protesting U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Director Anatole Litvak told about the incident today, describing it as a rare exception to the cooperation his American-French-Polish company is getting during the filming in Warsaw.

The woman, a retired lawyer, refused to douse the lights in her apartment overlooking the street. She protested that profits from the film, "The Night of the Generals," would be taxed to support the war in Viet Nam.

★ ★ ★

The police pulled the main power switch for the short take, but the woman appeared in the window with two lighted candles. Finally, Litvak said, he moved the scene a bit and shifted the camera angle to exclude the lone lighted window.

The Polish state film studio is earning more than $250,000.

Auto Industry Bonuses Due

$200 Million for Execs and Salaried Workers

DETROIT (AP)—Record 1965 profits of the auto industry will bring more than $200 million in bonuses to executives and salaried employes of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, industry circles reported Tuesday.

★ ★ ★

Proxy statements being prepared for annual stockholders meetings are expected to be issued next month. These statements usually report such bonuses.

The industry made no comment on the reports.

★ ★ ★

BONUS BREAKDOWN

The reported bonus breakdown would be $130 million at General Motors, compared with $116 million in 1964; $61.6 million at Ford, compared with $44.4 million in 1964, and $21.4 million at Chrysler as against $21.5 million the year before.

Chrysler's total was reported decreased because a stock dividend increased shareholders' investment and cut the amount of money available for bonuses despite record profits.

★ ★ ★

American Motors ruled out bonuses for last year because of its sales lag.

40 Cities Bid for Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — While the New York Stock Exchange ponders whether to pick up its tickers and leave, the competition to provide the exchange with a new home has already begun.

★ ★ ★

President Keith Funston said Tuesday in a letter to members, that some 40 communities have already indicated they would welcome the exchange if it decides to leave the city.

Funston threatened to move the exchange last week when Mayor John V. Lindsay proposed that the city boost the stock transfer tax by 50 per cent.

★ ★ ★

The exchange's board responded by voting unanimously to reconsider its decision to build a $50-million headquarters in lower Manhattan.

MANY OFFERS

In his letter, Funston said offers had come from as far away as San Francisco and Cleveland, Ohio, as well as from Newark and Jersey City, N.J., and Stamford and Greenwich, Conn.

"Each potential site will be evaluated from the standpoint of communications facilities, labor supply, tax considerations and other matters affecting the ultimate choice," he said.

★ ★ ★

Funston said that even if the threatened tax increase were withdrawn, it would appear advisable for the exchange to consider an alternate site, to handle emergency operations.

Membership in UAW Stands at 1,462,000

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union's membership stands at 1,462,000, the union said in a report Tuesday. The UAW said this compares with its record high of 1,620,509 in January 1953. The UAW's membership in American General Motors plants has surpassed 400,000 for the first time, the union said. The UAW said the figure is 401,861.

Baton Contest Slated

The Rae-Vens drill team of Pontiac will sponsor its third annual baton contest Saturday at 9 a.m. in the Pontiac Central High School boys' gym.

ROAD SHOW (DRY RUN)—Utilizing electrically driven chassis dynamometers that simulate road travel, GMC quality control inspectors carefully examine performance and safety aspects of big highway tractors that have rolled off the assembly line. Two men handle each test, so one is free to observe the vehicle's performance and watch gauges while the other inspector remains in the cab. More than a dozen independent checks are made on each of the trucks put on this indoor track.

Successful Investing

Q) "We are old people and expect to buy 50 Sears, Roebuck soon. We notice Sperry Rand is in the spotlight, also American Motors and Electrical & Musical. Do you think we should buy these last three?"

C.M.

A) Sears is a top-quality stock with a fine outlook for enhancing your capital. The others are strictly speculative. Sperry Rand is a turnaround speculation on the company's ability to get its computer operations into black ink. No dividends are paid, and I regard the stock as a trading vehicle, not suited to people who have obviously no market experience and probably no professional adviser.

American Motors' earnings have been in a steady decline in spite of all-out efforts by a first-class management. No dividends are paid and none seem in prospect. Electrical & Musical is a British holding company with moderately rising earnings and a low dividend return.

I would avoid all low-priced speculations and buy a lesser amount of Consolidated Foods, one of the best stocks in a good group.

All GMC Trucks Undergo Test at Pontiac Plant's Indoor Track

New trucks are "driven" under heavy loads on turnpikes and downtown streets without even leaving GMC Truck & Coach Division's plant here.

It's all part of a continuous safety program pioneered by GMC Truck more than five years ago.

Utilizing two electrically driven chassis dynamometers that simulate road travel, GMC's quality control section carefully examines performance and safety aspects of big highway tractors rolling off the assembly line.

Besides simulating road travel, the dynamometers place strain on the trucks' power systems so that technicians can determine how well the vehicle performs under partly or fully loaded conditions.

★ ★ ★

30-MINUTE CHECKUP

Each vehicle goes through a 30-minute checkup, which also includes a stiff under-chassis inspection.

Two men handle each test, so one is free to observe the vehicle's performance and watch the gauges while the other man remains in the cab.

More than a dozen independent checks are made on each of the trucks put on this indoor track. These include, among others, checks for leaks in brake pressure, oil and water lines, wheel wobble, and vibrations.

★ ★ ★

The indoor road test program, started at GMC's Pontiac plant and extended later to many of the division's factory branches and dealerships throughout the country, is now utilized by other truck manufacturers.

LARGEST TRUCKS

Today GMC Truck runs all of its largest trucks on the simulated test track.

In addition, functional test rollers at the ends of all other assembly lines check all trucks before they leave the assembly plant.

Area Bank Is Rated as Fastest Growing

The Birmingham - Bloomfield Bank has become the pace-setter in national banking circles, ranking as the fastest growing among the top 3,500 United States banks in the country.

For Wall Streeters

Spending Boom Scary

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK — The rush of corporations to announce a spending boom for new plants and equipment cheered Wall Street at first but now chills it. And President Johnson has stepped in to try to calm fears that American industry may repeat its performance of 10 years ago.

DAWSON

In the mid-1950s, industry rushed to build up its production capacity in the midst of an era of prosperity. The spending helped give a push to the business upswing. But industry was left with capacity in excess of demand. And its overheating of the economy was one of the reasons given for the recession that followed.

★ ★ ★

Only in recent months has the economy grown enough to take up all the slack of idle plant.

It is this growth which businessmen cite as making conditions different this time. They say that the economy is now close to full use of its resources. Hence, the larger capacity they plan is badly needed if consumer demand is to be met without undue upward pressure on prices because of a shortage of goods.

CRITICAL EYE

Then why is a seeming boon to economic growth getting a critical eye?

The immediate worry — in the stock market, among business economists, and in official Washington as well — is that a big spending spree this year, added to greater outlays for the Viet Nam War, could overheat the economy. The result of that could be first inflation, and then a boom that would lead to a bust. This has happened before. But this time government economists think the danger can be averted.

The President says that some estimates of how much more that businessmen plan to spend this year are too high. He thinks the economy could take in stride the amount the government estimates businessmen will spend. This is about 16 per cent more than last year's record $51.8 billion. The gain in 1965 over 1964 was at about the same rate.

Private estimates in recent days have put the over-all expansion spending at 19 per cent above last year, with manufacturers expecting their outlays to rise by 32 per cent.

STIMULATION

This would stimulate the economy in many ways. It would increase the demand for materials and for labor. Outlays for these would furnish dollars that the lucky recipients would spend — for materials for themselves, for consumer goods. The result could be a scramble for scarce goods — and a quick rise in prices.

The economy already is pushing some of the limits of its manpower and raw material resources. And if the war in Southeast Asia grows much bigger, there will be still more strain.

With money and credit getting tighter under the growing demand of business for loans, with prices of a number of industrial materials already rising, and with labor demanding greater wage increases this year, some business economists have been wondering just how close the economy already is to overheating.

A 19 per cent jump in business spending would throw quite a few logs into the fire under the economic pot.

That is why the President is trying to calm down the apprehension. And it is a problem that will be debated more in the days ahead.
