Storms Sweep State; One Dead, 3 Injured

By the Associated Press

Severe winds, thunderstorms and hail slammed into a humid Lower Michigan in the wake of tornado warnings throughout most of the peninsula. Several twisters were spotted and the weather was blamed for one death and at least three injuries yesterday.

Killed was a 16-year-old Ithaca youth when high winds collapsed a barn on him as he was leading his pony to shelter.

Police identified him as David Haverka.

Police said the storm which destroyed the barn nine miles south of Ithaca was violent, but not a tornado.

WIND VICTIMS

High winds injured three persons, one of them severely, when they hit a Bavarian Folk Festival at Frankenmuth. Nearly 1,000 persons scattered for safety in nearby buildings when the storm hit.

Barry Hurford, of Frankenmuth, suffered multiple head injuries when a ticket booth was blown over on him and 7-year-old Mariette Baker of Frankenmuth and Hugh Parsella, 57, of Flint, one of the artists at the festival. The latter two received first aid from a doctor at the scene.

Hurford was reported in extremely critical condition at Saginaw Hospital today.

Funnels were sighted in or near Detroit, Monroe and Kalamazoo.

In the Monroe area, a tornado tore the roof off the French Township Fire department. No injuries were reported.

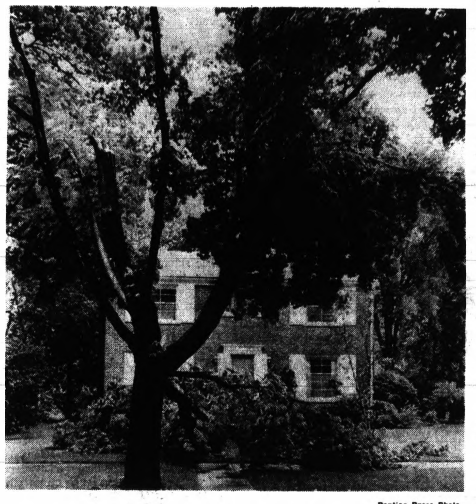

BIG HAILSTONES

West of Kalamazoo, a twister was sighted aloft near Almena and sheriff's deputies reported severe wind damage with trees knocked down and hail the size of golf balls in Alamo Township.

In Detroit, motorists sighted a pair of funnel clouds on the city's West Side at the intersection of the Southfield Freeway and Six Mile. The funnels did not touch down and were seen heading northeast.

Meanwhile in Jackson, nearly 30,000 customers of Consumers Power Co. were temporarily without electricity because of storm damage as three 46,000 volt sub-transmission lines were knocked out.

TREES SUFFER — Oakland County's oaks and other trees took a beating in yesterday afternoon's storm. This damaged tree is at 115 Ottawa in Pontiac.

Storm Cuts Power to 3,000 Homes

More than 3,000 Oakland County homes were without power for varying periods of time yesterday afternoon and early this morning in the wake of a storm which cooled a record-breaking heatwave.

Lightning and lashing winds dashed many trees and branches to the ground, often cutting wires on the way.

Broken Detroit Edison lines cut off service for some 2,500 customers in scattered locations. Repairs were continuing this morning but were hampered by a linemen's strike that began June 1.

Some 500 Consumers Power customers also were temporarily without power.

PHONES OUT

Bell Telephone reported 300 lines down in scattered areas.

The storm interrupted six days of hot and humid weather, with highs over 90 degrees and a record-breaking 97 on Friday. The temperature in Pontiac fell 26 degrees in less than 30 minutes when the storm hit at 4:45 p.m., from 92 to 66 degrees. Rain was measured at 1.9 inches.

★ ★ ★

High temperature yesterday was 92 and low 66. Precipitation possibility for today is 20 per cent.

★ ★ ★

Forecast is for cooler and less humid today and tomorrow, with cloudiness to dissipate tomorrow. Highs both days will be 75 to 80 and lows 50 to 56. Friday's outlook is sunny and warmer.

The temperature at 12:30 p.m. was 75.

450 Graduate From Kettering

Waterford Kettering High School's seventh annual commencement program was held last night for 450 graduating seniors.

The graduates were admonished by commencement speaker Dr. John H. Dawson, president of Adrian College, to avoid becoming part of the "shock-proof generation."

He urged them not to settle for violence as a legitimate influence in their lives, not to accept a new morality which adjusts to the abnormal and not to think too highly of men or of human powers.

Safeguard against these dangers, he said, by having a dedication to living with honor, having total integrity and believing in basic human worth.

VALEDICTORIANS

Dr. Dawson was introduced to the graduates by Dr. Don O. Tatroe, superintendent of Waterford Township schools.

Valedictorians for the class are Mary Lou Marino, and Diane Nielson. The salutatorian is Stephen W. Peterson.

Diplomas were handed out by Eldon C. Rosegart, president of the Waterford Township School Board.

Harriman Slams Vicious Attacks on Saigon Area

PARIS (AP) — The United States protested to North Vietnam in the Paris peace talks today against "particularly vicious rocket attacks" on the heavily populated center of Saigon.

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman told the North Vietnamese that the United States had reports that "the current offensive was planned and directed by North Vietnamese generals." He said this information came to the U.S. government from high-ranking defectors.

He met with the North Vietnamese envoy Xuan Thuy for almost four hours. The sessions were adjourned until next Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

"Today," Harriman said, "I want to be sure you understand that this is a situation which could have the most serious consequences for these talks."

QUESTION FOR LBJ

Earlier when asked by newsmen whether the United States would take retaliatory action— by renewed bombing of Hanoi or other centers—Harriman said that was not the business of this conference but a question for President Johnson.

Harriman said the bombardments of Saigon have been carried out "using the North Vietnamese rockets and mortars."

"Most importantly, the attacks have relied heavily upon North Vietnamese army troops and they are sustained by a swelling flow of men and materiel from North Vietnam.

"The troops attacking in and around Saigon are under orders to infiltrate into the city, to seize civilian homes, and to dig in. Thus, the battlefield has been moved into the densely populated quarters of the capital and suburban areas, with resulting heavy civilian casualties."

Inmates Agree to Free Hostages

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Four inmates holding a group of prison employes hostage since yesterday morning agreed with authorities at the U.S. Penitentiary today to settle a list of nine grievances.

The Atlanta Journal reported the inmates agreed to release the hostages, which now totals 21, as soon as the grievances appear in the newspaper. Originally, 25 employes of the institution's administrative offices were held.

Inmates who refused to report to their job assignments began breaking windows, but the window breaking was only scattered. Broken glass could be heard only occasionally, the guards reported.

Reporters William B. Williams and David Nordan of the Atlanta Journal—the only newsmen allowed inside the prison— said in a copyrighted story that the inmates said they would release the hostages and turn over their weapons once the grievances and settlements were published.

The grievances concerned the operation of the huge maximum security prison, and particularly the parole officers.

The list of grievances was prepared by Frederick Freeman Leister Jr., one of the four inmates holding the hostages.

Leister said in a preamble: "If we have to die to bring some of its (the penitentiary's) fault to light, then we'll die."

He said also that, "several shots have been fired at us already and shots were returned."

A guard was wounded slightly in the leg.

'City School System Mostly Segregated'

BY DICK ROBINSON

Pontiac's school system is generally segregated, depriving children of equality of educational opportunity, a major citizens study shows.

Major findings of an 18-month study by the school board's Citizens Study Committee on Equality of Educational Opportunity were orally presented to the board last night.

★ ★ ★

Some of the findings and recommendations were:

● Most white students go to predominately white schools. Most Negro students go to predominately Negro schools. There is very little student integration.

John Rogers, committee chairman, attributed this to de facto segregation created by housing patterns. He said it is just as harmful to students as de jure segregation created by school policy.

PROPOSAL

The study proposes the school board should study the sacredness of the community school concept with consideration to redrawing school attendance boundary lines, according to Rogers.

Related Stories, Page B-8

He said the school district has done relatively little to produce a desirable racial mix of students.

● Larger classes were found in schools in poorer sections of the city.

● Integration of the teaching staffs has not kept pace with the racial mix of the community. For example, Central High School, which is 40 per cent Negro, has only seven Negro teachers out of 97 teachers.

● Teachers should be hired on an unassigned basis without "matching the color of the teacher to the color of the school's student body," Rogers said.

'COULDN'T CHOOSE'

A sampling of teachers revealed that white teachers said they felt they had the right to select a school when hired while Negro teachers said they couldn't select.

● Building principals shouldn't play such an important part in determining whether a teaching candidate is hired.

● A position for a Negro supervisor of teacher recruiting should be created to eliminate white administrators trying to hire black teachers.

● Administrators and teachers said the best Negro teachers were taken out of Negro schools and sent to a white school

Teacher Talks to Continue as Schools Close

Pontiac teachers will be closing up schools in the next few days, not yet sure how much they will be paid next year.

★ ★ ★

Teachers were told today by their negotiating team through a newsletter that a salary settlement will either come soon or just before school starts. The team is headed by Joseph Shara of Washington Junior High.

★ ★ ★

Administrators and teachers reportedly are not close on salary proposals, and a mediator has been working with both sides for more than a week.

The Pontiac Education Association gave teachers four reasons why salaries have not been settled:

● "True negotiations are not taking place. The school board's team appears to have predetermined how far they will go and refuse to go beyond that point."

★ ★ ★

Negotiation teams have spent from 10 to 20 hours per week for the past two months at the negotiation table, according to PEA.

● "Thus far no single salary schedule proposed by Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer has been competitive.

'SCAPEGOAT'

● "We are being made the scapegoat of 'budget cuts.'" Administrators contend only a certain amount of money is available for teachers.

● "The board's team refuses to make Pontiac a leader district. In spite of the five-year plan's provision for Pontiac to be in the top 10 per cent in salaries, the board's team seems to overlook this obligation.

★ ★ ★

"From our observation, no offer to date would move us toward achieving the top 10 per cent goal."

Administrators told teachers that the school district offers do meet the goal requirements.

UF Allocations to Member Units Are Reviewed

The Pontiac Area United Fund budget committee reviewed allocations to member agencies at a meeting yesterday.

Every June the budget committee meets to examine agency fiscal requests and determine agency fiscal needs for the next calendar year.

★ ★ ★

The 12-member committee, headed by Chairman Harold S. Goldberg, is composed of volunteer leaders representing many groups in the community.

★ ★ ★

"We not only examine facts and figures but try, through observation of the actual services and study, to determine if our agencies are delivering satisfactory services to people through the disbursements given them by PAUF," Goldberg said.

★ ★ ★

The committee meets year-round to review special needs of agencies and evaluate the agencies' disbursements at that time.

★ ★ ★

The 21 agencies receiving local UF allocations submit detailed breakdowns of current operating costs and a requested budget for the following year in a half-hour presentation before UF budget panels. The 34 state and national agencies are budgeted through the Michigan UF.

★ ★ ★

Results of the budget reviews are instrumental in determining the next year's PAUF campaign goal.

★ ★ ★

Last year 11.1 per cent of the total PAUF money went to American Red Cross, 4.9 per cent to the Salvation Army, 33.4 per cent to recreation and character-building service, 22.6 per cent to family and child care service, 22.8 per cent to health services and 5.2 per cent to other items.

School Is Ending in City, Waterford

School days are over — at least for the summer — for most public school children of Pontiac and Waterford Township.

Students in Pontiac junior high schools were released at noon today while those in the senior high schools finished up this afternoon.

★ ★ ★

Elementary school youngsters in Pontiac will complete the year with a half day of school tomorrow.

Waterford Township School District students likewise are beginning their summer vacations today.

Students in junior and senior high schools finished this morning.

Most Waterford elementary schools had planned on a half-day or less of classes today.

In 5-2 Commission Vote

Fair-Housing OK Urged

City commissioners last night passed a resolution urging Pontiac voters to approve the city's fair-housing ordinance in the referendum election June 24.

The vote was 5-2, with District 2 Commissioner Robert C. Irwin and District 6 Commissioner Wesley J. Wood dissenting.

★ ★ ★

The fair-housing ordinance was passed in January by a 4-3 commission vote.

Related Stories, Page B-7

Referendum petitions filed thereafter delayed effect of the ordinance pending decision of the voters.

Since then two commissioners have been replaced on the commission.

SUPPORTERS LISTED

Both Robert F. Jackson, District 5, and Jack Douglas, District 4, elected in April, voted for the resolution last night along with Mayor William H. Taylor Jr., District 1 Commissioner T. Warren Fowler Sr. and District 7 Commissioner James H. Marshall, all of whom approved the ordinance in January.

Irwin and Wood voted against the ordinance in January. Wood said the resolution, requested by the Friends of Fair Housing, seemed to be an attempt "to put us on a spot." He said he didn't want to tell anyone how to vote.

★ ★ ★

Irwin, long an opponent of the local ordinance, last night claimed the commission was being "used by some pressure group," and introduced a motion stating that the ordinance was not a proper subject for the commission to comment on.

That motion was defeated 5-2, with only Irwin and Wood voting for it.

Illinois Primary Boosts Nixon Delegate Total

By The Associated Press

Republican Richard M. Nixon has picked up new presidential delegate strength in Illinois as primaries there and in South Carolina nominated a host of incumbent Congress members for re-election.

Texas party conventions, meanwhile Tuesday, gave Democratic Gov. John Connally and Republican Sen. John G. Tower favorite son control over the state's national convention delegates.

★ ★ ★

Connally has not committed himself but is believed to favor Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. Most of the GOP delegates were reported leaning toward Nixon.

Nixon won at least 27 of the 48 Illinois delegate seats at stake Tuesday. On the Democratic side, Humphrey won at least three of the 48, and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy at least one with 28 other winners listed as uncommitted.

MAJOR EXCEPTION

A major exception to the general renomination of incumbent congressmen was Rep. Barratt O'Hara, D-Ill.—at 86 the oldest man in the House—who lost to former state Rep. Abner Mikva of Chicago.

But Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois coasted to renomination for a fourth term. Five incumbent representatives including O'Hara had opposition and the other four were nominated for reelection. Another 19 incumbents were unopposed.

In the South Carolina Democratic primary, incumbent Sen. Ernest F. Hollings defeated challenger John Bolt Culbertson of Greenville for renomination and veteran Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, seeking reelection defeated George A. Payton, a Negro lawyer in Charleston.

In other political developments:

● McCarthy met with newsmen to outline the direction his campaign will take in an effort to win delegate votes for the Democratic presidential nomination.

● New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in a nationwide television address, promised new leadership and blamed "the failure and the blindness of the old politics" for continuing crises in America.

● Third party presidential candidate George Wallace got a roaring reception in Memphis, Tenn., as he fired away at a host of targets including Republicans, Democrats and the Supreme Court.

● Humphrey relaxed at his Waverly, Minn., home and there were reports—which aides would not confirm—that he does not plan to resume campaigning until after the New York primary next Tuesday.

● Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., announced he will not seek Illinois' GOP favorite, son designation. He said most Illinois Republican delegates have decided who they favor for president and should not be tied to him as a favorite son at the national convention.

AN ILLINOIS RACE

In the Illinois race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, Cook County (Chicago) Commission President Richard B. Ogilvie defeated Peoria industrialist John Henry Altorfer. Two other candidates ran far behind.

Connally's favorite, son endorsement at the Texas Democratic convention—giving him unit-rule control of 104 delegates —prompted a faction including McCarthy backers to walk out.

Said Mrs. Billie Carr of Houston: "We want the whole country to know that John Connally is not the favorite son of everybody in Texas."

★ ★ ★

Tower was endorsed at the Republican convention with approval of a resolution putting Texas' 56-vote delegation behind the senator "until released after consultation with the delegation."

★ ★ ★

Backers of California Gov. Ronald Reagan were defeated in an effort to free Texas GOP delegates after voting for Tower on the first ballot at the Republican National Convention.

JACK McDONALD

Congressman Will Run Again

Congressman Jack McDonald announced today that he will seek re-election as representative from the 19th District.

The district includes Pontiac, western Oakland County and Northville, Livonia, and Redford Township in Wayne County.

In announcing his plans, the freshman representative said: "The nation is in the middle of its worst crises, with no peace in sight in Vietnam and the economy suffering from an inflationary spiral.

"The crime rate continues to climb, our cities are furnaces of discontent and little has been done effectively to ease the unemployment rate," added McDonald.

McDonald noted that his background in urban affairs as supervisor of Redford Township and chairman of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors had led to his appointment to a special Republican Task Force on Urban Affairs.

He also has been named cochairman of the Task Force's subcommittee to investigate riot prevention and control.

As a member of the House Public Works Committee, he has been involved in legislation that would require tightening of safety measures in construction of federal-aid highways.

McDonald said his whole approach to his House duties has been one of protecting the taxpayer by urging reductions in low-priority spending while at the same time seeking constructive, locally oriented solutions to major domestic problems.

★ ★ ★

The family requests any memorials be made to the John Thors Jr. Scholarship Foundation at Pontiac Northern High School.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Bruce E. Crissman of Frankfort, and Mrs. Leonard Underhill and Mrs. William S. Hilderley, both of Pontiac; a brother; six grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren.

Downes of 1801 Opdyke was a life member of Pontiac Lodge 21 F&AM, Pontiac Council 3, Masonic Lodge and Royal Arch Masons No. 5.

A member of First Presbyterian Church, he was also active in White Shrine of Jerusalem, Pontiac Exchange Club, and Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce. He was a charter member of Hi-12 Masonic Club.

WILLIAM S. DOWNES

City Pickets Hit Talk Breakdown

About 50 picketing Pontiac city employes last night claimed that negotiations between the city and three employe groups are not being conducted according to the principles of "good faith bargaining."

In a telegram to the mayor, Winston L. Livingston, attorney for the Pontiac Municipal Employes Association (PMEA), the Pontiac Police Officers Association and the local firefighters union, said there had been a complete breakdown of negotiations.

He said there would be no hope of peaceful settlement unless the City Commission removes the authority of the city manager over negotiations or instructs him to "bargain in good faith."

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. asked for a report from City Manager Joseph A. Warren on the status of negotiations and said the commission has supported —and continues to do so—the manager and personnel director in continuing negotiations.

★ ★ ★

Involved in the picketing were non-supervisory salaried personnel (PMEA), firefighters and police officers. The city is negotiating with police and firemen over noneconomic issues and with the PMEA over economic and noneconomic issues.

Testimony Ends in Spock Trial

BOSTON (AP) — Testimony has ended in the trial of Dr. Benjamin Spock and four other men charged with conspiring to aid, abet and counsel young men to avoid the draft.

The pediatrician ended his second day on the witness stand yesterday with a denial that he ever attempted to persuade young men to resist the draft, but said he was "glad and delighted" when they did.

★ ★ ★

Closing arguments by defense and prosecution begin today. A final charge by U.S. District Judge Francis J. W. Ford remains before the all-male jury receives the case.

On trial with the 65-year-old Spock is Yale Chaplain William Sloane Coffin Jr., 43; Michael Ferber, 23, a Harvard graduate student; Mitchell Goodman, 44, a writer and teacher from Temple, Maine; and Marcus Raskin, 34, a Washington research director.

FACE PRISON, FINES

They face maximum sentences of five-year prison terms and $10,000 fines if convicted of the conspiracy charge.

★ ★ ★

The defense rested when Spock left the witness stand after 16 days of testimony from both sides. The defendants were indicted Jan. 8 and trial began May 20.

Extending of Officer Terms Nixed

High Court to Review Area Case

Michigan's Supreme Court will review an Oakland County Circuit Court ruling which declared unconstitutional a state statute that extended the terms of township officers.

In informing attorneys in the Waterford Township case of its decision yesterday to hear the matter on an emergency basis, the Supreme Court gave township attorneys until June 25 to file briefs, seven days after the deadline when candidates have to file petitions for nomination in the August primary.

According to a state election official, it is unclear just how petitions will be handled in the township or if they will even be accepted.

Just as uncertain, he said, is what affect a Supreme Court ruling affirming the decision of Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer will have on a statewide basis.

MAY RULING

Beer ruled in May that Waterford Township had to accept the petitions of three candidates for township offices though the legislature hand canceled any township election by extending the terms of township officers until 1970.

The extension was designed to eliminate a lame-duck period.

Another factor compounding the confusion, according to the election official, is a recent amendment to the statute being questioned in the Supreme Court that states township trustees appointed between November 1966 and next Saturday have to run for election. The original measure had extended their terms to November 1970.

Youth Drowns in Area Lake

An 18-year-old Westland youth drowned yesterday afternoon in Elizabeth Lake, Waterford Township.

Witnesses said Eugene P. Croswell was attempting to swim to shore from a floating dock at about 3:30 p.m. when he was heard to say that he could not make it and went under. He was about 50 yards from the shore at the time.

Firemen from the Waterford Township Fire Department tried without success to revive the victim with oxygen.

DONALD J. VON RASE

White Lake Man Bucks Anderson for House Seat

Donald J. von Rase, an advertising account executive from White Lake Township, announced today that he will seek the Republican nomination for state representative from the 61st District.

Von Rase, 37, of 9260 Gale, is making a bid for the seat held by Rep. Loren Anderson, R-Waterford Township. The district includes the townships of Waterford, White Lake, Independence and Springfield and the city of Sylvan Lake.

★ ★ ★

"The immense attraction of this area makes it one of the fastest growing in the entire state," said von Rase. "As a result of this growth, the problems of our townships continually grow larger. Only with vigorous and determined representation in Lansing can we hope to keep our community the finest in the state."

As representative of the district, von Rase said he would make the following issues major points in his program:

★ ★ ★

Ouster of jet aircraft at the Oakland-Pontiac Airport; an Oakland Community College campus in Waterford better than the new Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington; inequitable taxation in any form and a complete investigation in the announced expansion of the Oakland-Orion Airport.

★ ★ ★

Active in community affairs, von Rase has served as a member of the White Lake Township Planning Commission, and the Huron Valley Schools Citizen Advisory Committee in 1966. He is also a charter member of the newly-formed White Lake Township Economic Development Council.

Ray's Interlude in Britain Eyed

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard delved today into the mysteries of James Earl Ray's stay in Britain as U.S. officials worked on their case for the extradition of the man accused of killing Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Ray has been traced to two London hotels between May 28 and his arrest Saturday, but there is an unexplained gap of about 10 days, starting May 17 when he left Lisbon.

FBI agents were understood to be working with Scotland Yard detectives, but British police are doing the spade-work since the FBI has no legal authority in foreign countries. Police on both sides of the Atlantic are trying to untangle Ray's travels, which took him to Canada, Britain and Portugal after King was shot April 4.

★ ★ ★

Ray was transferred Tuesday to a maximum security cell in Wandsworth Prison because Brixton Jail on London's South Side, was not considered secure enough.

★ ★ ★

Extradition proceedings could last two months if the 40-year-old escaped convict fights all the way through the British courts.

● Incentive money should be given teachers who teach in the more challenging Negro areas.

● In-service training programs for teachers in human relations are almost nonexistent, often depending too much on a principal for its effectiveness.

● Negroes have practically no representation at policy-making levels in the administration. Seven of 82 administrators are Negro.

● Most minority group students are not going into college or advanced courses.

● Local money should be used temporarily to run federal programs until funds come through.

● Community schools should be expanded.

Reds Impose Berlin Travel Curbs

BONN (AP) — Representatives of the United States, West Germany, Britain and France are seeking ways to counter new restrictions placed by Communist East Germany on West Germans traveling to Berlin.

Some West German commentators called the East German action the most serious threat to access to West Berlin since the 11-month Berlin Blockade by the Russians in 1948-49.

East Germany announced Tuesday night it will require West Germans for the first time to have passports and visas for train, road and water travel between West Germany and Communist-surrounded West Berlin.

The regulations appeared to be a new assertion of East German sovereignty and of the Communist regime's defiance of the Bonn government's claim that it is the only representative German government.

The East Germans also announced hikes in overland transit fees and freight taxes.

There was no indication of interference with official traffic of the three Western allies, which is controlled by the Russian the other occupation power, or with air traffic to West Berlin, which is controlled by the occupation powers.

A meeting of U.S., West German, British and France representatives in the American Embassy lasted until 1 a.m. today. An anticipated joint allied protest to the Soviet Union was not announced

This was taken to mean that the matter was serious enough to require reference to Washington, London and Paris. But the Russians were expected to reject any protests, and there appeared to be nothing feasible the West Germans and their allies could do.

SPECIAL MEETING

West German Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger called a special Cabinet meeting to hear a report on the situation and the meeting with the allied ambassadors.

Up to now, West Germans going to West Berlin by surface routes have traveled on their West German identity card ADN, the official East German news agency, said the West Germans would have until July 15 to get passports.

★ ★ ★

Increases in transit fees become effective June 20 and freight taxes on July 1, ADN said.

West Berlin Mayor Klaus Schuetz called it "a black day for all Germans . . . A blow against free Berlin."

ALLIED PROTECTION

West Berlin's former mayor, Foreign Minister Willy Brandt, called on the United States, Britain and France to "make it clear without doubt" that they will protect free access to West Berlin.

Brandt cut short an official visit to Austria and flew back to Bonn.

★ ★ ★

Visiting U.S. Undersecretary of State Eugene Rostow called the East German action "a serious situation" and said such a change from the present pattern cannot be tolerated."

Bonn government spokesman Guenter Diehl said the new restrictions were designed to perpetuate the division of Germany.

NEO-NAZISM

The East Germans said the new regulations were necessary because of neo-Nazism and revenge-seeking in West Germany and because of the passage of the new state of emergency

Mayor Schuetz called this a "transparent pretext."

The new regulations make some distinction between West Berliners and West Germans. The city dwellers will still be allowed to use their old identity cards when traveling into East Berlin, that is, on the rare occasions when the Communists give them passage through the Berlin Wall.

Reelection Try

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. James Harvey, R-Mich., announced Tuesday his candidacy for reelection to the House from Michigan's 8th Congressional District. He is now serving his eighth year in the House. He is a member of the House interstate and foreign commerce committee.

Ky Quits Post as Feud Flares

SAIGON (AP) — Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky quit today as head of South Vietnam's People's Self Defense Committee, giving further evidence of President Nguyen Van Thieu's gains in the long power struggle between the two men.

Ky's letter of resignation to Thieu came after a week in which Ky has not participated in any government activities and has remained almost entirely in seclusion at the seaside town of Nha Trang.

He returned to Saigon briefly Tuesday to say goodby to Gen. William C. Westmoreland, then returned to Nha Trang.

The committee is an attempt by the government to arm and give rudimentary training to neighborhood and village groups for self defense against the Vietcong. Ky was appointed to head it on May 3.

PROJECT RAISES LAKE LEVEL — The level of Orchard Lake is being raised by water which is pumped through this 24-inch pipeline from Cass Lake at the rate of 4,000 gallons per minute. A mechanical failure this week briefly stopped the flow of water through this recently constructed County Drain Commission pipeline.

Orchard Lake Getting Lift From Cass Transfusion

ORCHARD LAKE — The lake here, judged to be considerably lower than its legal level, is receiving a direct transfusion, at the rate of 4000 gallons per minute, from its northern neighbor, Cass Lake.

The heart of the matter is a 15-horsepower pump which draws water from Cass Lake through a 24-inch artery that empties into Orchard Lake.

★ ★ ★

The rejuvenation process is a result of a recently completed project of the Oakland County Drain Commission.

In December 1966 the Circuit Court established the lake level as 930.5 feet above the mean sea level (zero) set by U.S. Geological Survey data.

DANGEROUS SANDBARS

Last year Orchard Lake was found to be more than four feet short of this level, a situation which caused unsightly weed growth to become visible along the shoreline as well as allowing already troublesome sandbars to become more dangerous.

After the project was approved by the County Board of Supervisors, bids were let and Civil Works Constructors of Farmington began work in February.

★ ★ ★

The 700 feet of pipeline was laid from the south shore of Cass Lake to the north shore of Orchard Lake, going under Commerce Road just west of Indian Trail. It was laid so that gravity would propel the water most of the distance, with the pump giving it the final push into Orchard Lake.

The transfer of water has been aided by another drain commission project, the recently completed four-gate dam on the lower end of the Clinton River, which flows out of Cass Lake.

WATER AVAILABLE

The dam is used to regulate the level of Cass Lake. By closing the gates, officials can raise the water level, which in turn, can make more water available for the Orchard Lake treatment.

The pump has been operating 24 hours a day for three weeks and improvement is evident as the lake level already is up six inches, according to a drain commission spokesman.

★ ★ ★

Because of snow and ice melting and the excessive rains this spring, the spokesman noted that the lake is now only 18 inches short of its legally prescribed level.

The rate that the lake level is rising is much faster than the five inches per month expected by the commission. Because of this the pump and pipeline system could complete its main task in three months.

TO MAINTAIN LEVEL

When the desired 930.5 feet level is reached, the pumps will be shut off and turned on only periodically to maintain the correct level.

The $90,000 project is costing lake residents about $3.90 per front foot.

Oxford Planners Hear Proposal for Site Development

OXFORD TOWNSHIP — While no official business could be transacted at a recent planning commission meeting, the township nevertheless learned of a Michelson, Inc. gravel industry proposal to reclaim land and develop homes in the area of Seymour Lake Road and Coats Road.

Proposed is future construction of 150 homes south of Seymour Lake Road, between Sanders, Horner Drive and Tan Lake and the development figure of "possibly 500 homes" in Section 20 bounded by Seymour Lake Road, Coats and Granger.

★ ★ ★

The land is mostly zoned industrial at the present time for operation of the gravel industry.

The board also learned of a proposal to build apartments on 13.5 acres at the West Drahner-Pontiac Road corner by Donald Heath, a local builder. A zoning change from R-1 to R-2 would be required.

★ ★ ★

A letter from Billy VanArsdel of Addison Township was read in which he said he was withdrawing his request for zoning to allow summer trailer camping on 100 acres on Stanton Road.

Planners Hired for Centennial

ROCHESTER — A professional firm of organizers, the John B. Rogers Co. of Fostoria, Ohio, will produce the city's centennial observance Sept. 5 to 14, 1969.

The centennial committee of the Rochester Historical Commission has voted to hire the Ohio firm which estimates its fee as under $7,000.

Another $9,000 has been charted for expenses and an estimate of about $4,000 profit for the commission has been made.

★ ★ ★

About 35 people heard company representatives detail a schedule of parades, pageants, pioneer activities and entertainment which will run in conjunction during its final four days with the locally sponsored Art 'n' Apples Festival.

BARGAIN DAYS

A program of events involving all segments of the community is planned.

Merchants are expected to participate in old-fashioned baragin days. Churches will be asked to observe Heritage Day.

★ ★ ★

Choral concerts, band concerts, garden club shows, ice cream socials, an old-time fiddlers' contest, a beard-growing contest, a vintage-car parade and barbecues are among events planned.

★ ★ ★

The celebration will salute the governor, commerce and industry, youth, agriculture, women and veterans and fraternal organizations.

★ ★ ★

A queen will be selected to rule over the nightly pageant at the Rochester Senior High School athletic field, according to present plans.

Clarkston Board Totals the Cost of Salary Hikes

CLARKSTON — Salary hikes for building principals, secretaries and bus drivers granted by the Clarkston Board of Education will cost the district an additional $40,000 next year.

The raises were granted in an effort to make the positions competitive with those in other county areas, said school officials.

The three-year secretarial contract, affecting 19 employes, provides steps from $80 to $110 a week in the elementary schools; $90 to $120 in the secondary schools; and $100 to $130 at the board offices. A $2.50-a-week increase for each of the next two years is included.

The 24 regular bus drivers will go from $2.40 an hour to $2.85 an hour over a period of three years. A 15 cent-an-hour increase is promised for next year.

SALARY HIKES

The $1,619 to $1,786 hikes for building principals and assistants, affecting 10 employes, put salaries from $12,700 to $15,000 in elementary schools. Pay boosts of $981 to $1,650 raised secondary salaries to a range of $13,750 to $17,250.

A parcel of land totaling 19.3 acres at the corner of I-75 and Sashabaw Road on Waldon has been purchased by the board at a cost of $1,750 per acre. The land will be used for a future elementary school site.

Also approved recently was the purchase of a house and 2.5 acres adjacent to the North Sashabaw School property which will be used for an expanded playground. The cost of the parcel was $11,500.

The board has also voted to place an option on 15 acres on Big Lake Road at the intersection of I-75 and Dixie Highway as the site of a proposed county vocational education center. The land is selling for $3,500 per acre. The Clarkston district will be reimbursed by the county for the cost of the land.

LIBRARY SITE

Transfer of 2.5 acres on Clarkston-Orion Road to Independence Township Public Library has been accomplished at a price of $1,450 an acre. Formerly school-owned, it will become the site of a proposed new library.

In other action the board voted to continue its present 7-mill debt levy for the coming year.

Republicans in Same District

2 Enter Supervisor Race

Lew L. Coy of 2942 Loon has filed his petition and will seek the Republican nomination for the Oakland County Board of Supervisors in the Aug. 6 primary.

On the reapportioned board, Coy hopes to serve the district that includes Walled Lake, Wolverine Lake, Wixom, South Lyon, Lyon Township, Novi, part of Northville and the northwest part of Commerce Township east of South Commerce Road.

★ ★ ★

Coy, 48, is a retired captain from the Detroit Fire Department, a Navy World War II veteran, and a recent graduate of Oakland Community College. He entered OCC after his retirement and graduated with honors this April.

He is past director of the Detroit Fireman's Association, has served numerous civic and social agencies and is charter chairman of Wixom's Council of Civic Organizations.

CITES EXPERIENCE

He and his wife, Florence, have a daughter, Mrs. Gerald Hieber of Wixom.

Coy cites his long experience with civic government and his availability for service due to his retirement pension as positive assets.

He said, "I am interested in the intellectual and politcal life of this community and promise to keep a sensitive regard to voters' wishes."

In areas concerning public health, Coy said he could serve the board well. He is a male nurse and graduate of Wayne State University Mortuary School.

Marshall E. Taylor, 65, of 45350 Pontiac Trail, Walled Lake, has announced his candidacy for the Republican party nomination to the Oakland County Board of Supervisors in the Aug. 6 primary.

On the reapportioned board, Taylor hopes to serve the district that includes Walled Lake, Wolverine Lake, Wixom, South Lyon, Lyon Township, Novi, part of Northville and the northwest part of Commerce Township east of S. Commerce Road.

★ ★ ★

Taylor is a veteran of 8½ years service on the present board as the appointee from Walled Lake. He has served on the Walled Lake City Council for the past 13 years.

He is semiretired after working for a chemical firm in Detroit for 39 years. Taylor and his wife, Ethel, have three children, all married, and 11 grandchildren.

AFFILIATIONS

In his affiliations, Taylor is a vice president of both the Oakland Lions Club and the Walled Lake Lions Club and a member of the Walled Lake Masonic Lodge and Episcopalian Church.

Since his retirement, Taylor has driven a school bus and has interested himself in numerous civic projects, many of them having to do with children and sports.

He describes himself as a "doer" who has been willing to donate his time to civic betterment.

He states, "I am familiar with county problems. I back better roads and better programs for children." Taylor was instrumental in getting the Little League ball park for Walled Lake.

W. Bloomfield Schools Explore Satellite Feeding

The West Bloomfield Board of Education is exploring the use of a "satellite feeding program."

The space-age concept calls for a large kitchen in one school which prepares meals for several other schools. The food, after preparation, is put in thermal containers and taken to the other schools, explained Schools Supt. Leif Hougen.

The possibility is to have the cafeteria in the present junior or senior high school provide meals for the new high school which opens in the fall of 1970.

However, a professional investigation of the possibility recommended against this idea because of lack of space.

CONSULTING FIRM

The recent study was made by E. F. Whitney Inc., a food program consulting firm.

The Whitney report instead recommended that a cafeteria in the new high school be made large enough to provide a satellite feeding program for several elementary schools.

★ ★ ★

The board has placed the report on file. No final action was taken.

In other recent action, the board delayed until next Monday's meeting a decision on the proposed curriculum for the area vocational skills center to be in the Walled Lake School District.

CLOSED-DOOR SESSION

The board is also to appoint a representative to a seven-member board which will coordinate the center's organization.

At the end of the public session of the recent meeting, the board went into a closed-door session reportedly to discuss the proposed budget and employe negotiations for next year's contracts.

Council Decides to Maintain Level of Wolverine Lake

WOLVERINE LAKE — The present level of Wolverine Lake — the highest in at least 20 years — will be maintained although high water has provided a few problems.

This decision of the Village Council last night was made before 47 residents, most of whom spoke up on the issue.

Only three of them wanted the level lower, according to Village Manager Clifford Cottrell. They cited a flooded basement and a dock just barely above the water surface. Other residents have complained about flooded yards.

HIGH LEVEL PREFERRED

The majority of the audience, said Cottrell, preferred a high water level for better skiing and covering of weeds and stumps.

The pump, installed in February 1967, adds 1,300 gallons of water to the lake per minute from a deep well. The other control measure, a dam built in 1923 at Glengary Road, regulates the amount of water going into Commerce Lake from Wolverine Lake.

Cottrell noted that keeping the lake at the high level wouldn't dry up any wells or signigicantly lower the water table. He added that the pump was run all last summer.

The level is now high because of recent rains and the seasonal fluctuation.

Brandon School Board, Teachers Ink New Pact

BRANDON TOWNSHIP — The Board of Education and the Brandon Education Association have concluded contract negotiations for next school year.

Both board and association spokesmen expressed satisfaction with the new provisions and salary arrangements.

The salary schedule of the new contract calls for a range from $6,640 starting to $10,620 maximum for teachers with a bachelor's degree. For a master's degree, minimum is $7,040 and maximum $11,020.

'Need' Voters' Magic Word

BY L. GARY THORNE
Assistant City Editor — Suburban

News Analysis

Voters in Monday's school elections were selective, which may be an early indication of a new era in securing added tax dollars from area property owners.

Earlier this year a taxpayers' revolt was heralded when voters shot down one millage request after another. Troy, Bloomfield Hills and Avondale, among others, had substantial millage packages rejected.

★ ★ ★

Subjected to a long line of continually rising living costs, property owners — it was thought — were striking back, kicking sand in the faces of school officials.

★ ★ ★

Consequently, there was little optimism prior to Monday's vote. Fourteen of 19 area school districts submitted millage requests.

A SURPRISE

It came as a surprise when 11 of the 14 districts had at least one proposition approved, although several districts had up to three questions on the ballots.

Voters were not indiscriminate, however.

★ ★ ★

Rochester Schools Supt. Douglas Lund commented that the vote was a paradox. "Bond issues carry when millages don't."

Rochester had three issues on the ballot — renewal of 7 mills, a 1.5-mill tax hike and a $1.6-milon bond issue. The two millages were approved, although the tax hike passed by a mere 17 votes. However, the bond issue was defeated 2,036 to 1,917.

MORE APPEAL

Said Lund, "The operating millage probably had more appeal in its direct effect to next year's program, where the bonding millage (¾ mill) would not have had an effect for two years."

★ ★ ★

A half-million-dollar savings appeared to appeal to West Bloomfield school district voters, who approved a $4-million bond issue to enable a new high school to be constructed in one stage. The one-stage construction was to save the half-million-dollars.

The same voters rejected a $600,000 bond issue to build a swimming pool in the new high school.

Most of the operating millages approved Monday were scaled down versions of issues rejected earlier this year or last fall. In most instances, smaller millages will mean reductions in programs or merely continuation of current programs.

DEFICITS EMPHASIZED

Campaigns in behalf of Monday's money issues emphasized dificits likely in the event of defeat or program cuts necessary to avoid deficit financing.

According to unofficial returns, the millage and bond issues that passed — in most instances — did so only in the face of severe consequences.

★ ★ ★

Narrow margins of victory Monday in several districts would make it appear that the taxpayers' discontent is still "alive and well" but is now more selective.

Taxpayer Unit to Quiz County Candidates About Spending Views

A committee to learn about candidates who are seeking positions on the Oakland County Board of Supervisors was named recently by the Oakland County Homeowners and Taxpayers Association.

Called the Candidate Information Committee, the group was formed at the request of association members in the southern part of Oakland County.

★ ★ ★

"Our Candidate Information Committee will tell us how candidates for the Board of Supervisors feel about county spending and how they will vote if elected," said Association President Glenn Swindler.

Announced candidates for the Board of Supervisors will receive questionaires from the committee in order to survey their opinions on pertinent spending issues.

Trustee Resigning in Brandon Twp.

BRANDON TOWNSHIP — Because of a change of residence, Trustee William Solley has resigned from the Township Board, effective July 15.

★ ★ ★

Solley, 34, will be moving to the southern Thumb community of Croswell, located in Sanilac County. A four-year member of the board, he resides at 1814 Hadley.

★ ★ ★

Township Supervisor Richard Wilcox said yesterday that the board would likely appoint a replacement for Solley at its regular meeting scheduled for July 1.

Installation Is Saturday

WHITE LAKE TOWNSHIP — Diane Barclay of 722 Ranveen will be installed as honored queen of Bethel No. 23 Saturday instead of today as incorrectly reported in The Pontiac Press.

The installation ceremony is at 7:30 p.m. at Commerce Masonic Temple, 4835 Broadway.

To Reform Interstate Commerce Taxes

McDonald Hopes for Bill Okay

Congressman Jack McDonald, R-19th District, said today he is hopeful that a House bill to limit and reform taxation of interstate commerce will be considered promptly by the Senate so it can be cleared for presidential approval before the end of the 90th Congress.

McDONALD

The bill, passed by the House, is the product of more than seven years of work by a special subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

★ ★ ★

"The subcommittee was shocked and dismayed during its investigation to learn of the tremendous volume and variety of taxes that states and cities impose on people doing business within their borders," said McDonald.

According to the subcommittee study, there were on the state level some 39 sales and use tax systems, 38 different corporate income tax laws, 37 capital stock tax laws and eight gross receipt tax laws.

"The local picture was even more confusing," said McDonald. "With more than 2,300 cities, counties and towns imposing use or sales taxes, over 1,000 local governments imposing gross receipts taxes and more than 100 imposing corporate income taxes.

"Complying with all these laws is a real challenge even for our largest corporations, with their battalions of clerks, lawyers and accountants," McDonald added.

"Smaller firms doing business across state lines find compliance almost impossible. The subcommittee found, in fact, that on a national basis companies are simply paying less than 5 per cent of the state and local taxes for which they are theoretically liable."

★ ★ ★

What do many small businessmen do with the great volume of tax notices, tax forms, tax questionnaries and other red tape they collect wherever they do business?

'TIME BOMBS'

"They file the papers away and hope that's the last they hear of them," said McDonald. "But those forms in the file are time bombs," said McDonald. "They could go off anytime, threatening the businessman with not only taxes but also back taxes, penalties and fines."

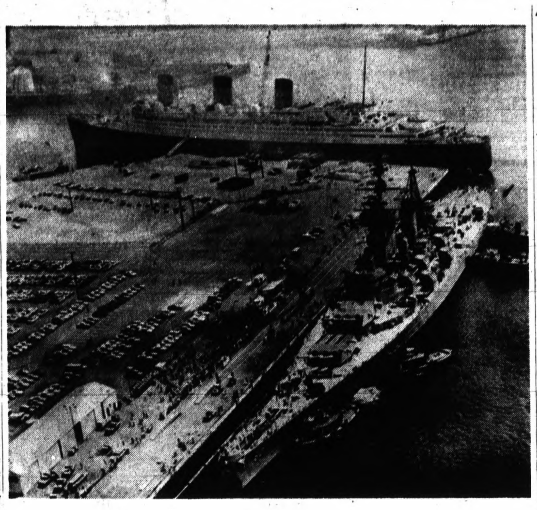

★ ★ ★

McDonald said the chaotic state tax situation is also dangerous from another point.

"The width and breadth of the American commercial market has been the stimulus for our great economic growth for almost two centuries. Yet now — at a time when the European nations are tying to emulate our system and reduce trade barriers — American business is slowly being strangled by state and local tax barriers and the threats and burdens these tax laws impose.

★ ★ ★

He said the bill passed by the House introduces order into the present system and removes the threat of back liabilities and reaffirms the basic principle of freedom of commerce among the states and provides standards for taxation that are resaonable and practical — standards that can be complied with by the businessman and enforced by the state or local tax administrator.

'Galt' Stayed at Apartment in Atlanta, Says Manager

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — An Atlanta apartment manager says a man using the name Eric Starvo Galt, a favorite alias of James Earl Ray, stayed in one of his units for a week prior to the killing of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in April, the Atlanta Constitution reported.

Ray, who has been charged with murder in the April 4 sniper slaying of King in Memphis, was arrested in London Saturday.

★ ★ ★

The Constitution, in a copyright story Wednesday morning, quoted the apartment manager as saying "Galt" drove a white Mustang, the same kind of car authorities say was abandoned in Atlanta the day after the assassination.

The manager was quoted as saying the FBI came to him after King's death with information that a certain man may have stayed in his building, which is in Atlanta's hippie district.

SHOWN PICTURES

The Constitution said the landlord was shown pictures of the man who called himself Galt and that he later learned he had identified Ray.

"I asked him what he did for a living," the landlord continued. "He said he was a 'jack of all trades" and never did really answer. I didn't ask any further questions because he seemed like such a nice-looking, well-mannered person.

★ ★ ★

"He acted more like a preacher than a convict," the apartment manager said.

'Housing' but One Aspect of 'Rights'

On Monday, June 24, Pontiac voters will decide one of the most important issues ever to face this city. That issue is an open housing ordinance.

The Pontiac PRESS stands squarely behind this ordinance. It is an urgently needed piece of local legislation. It must be approved by a wide margin.

★ ★ ★

Time and justice for minority groups has stood still too long. It is time for all white citizens to stand up and prove to the Negro that Pontiac is a city where good will and brotherhood reign over fear and prejudice.

We feel that the right of a free man to buy a house of his choice and within his means is an inherent right. Fair housing actually boils down to one basic question. Does every citizen have a right to buy or rent a house of his choice or do only white people have this choice?

★ ★ ★

One need only look around him to see the obvious answer. By and large, Negroes and whites are segregated into their own separate neighborhoods. Open housing is an integral part of the whole race question, which in turn is a moral, legal, economic and social question facing us today.

★ ★ ★

The argument that one cannot legislate morality is a myth. The Ten Commandments are pure moral values, and much of our legislation is based on those Commandments. We have been legislating morality for centuries.

Discriminatory practices in real property transactions based on a person's race, color, religion or national origin is a violation of the state constitution.

Socially, the argument that the color of a person's skin makes him a misfit in any given neighborhood is another myth. A person's economic status might make him a misfit, but not his skin.

★ ★ ★

We feel confident that Pontiac voters will not allow themselves to be ruled by prejudice when they go to the polls June 24.

Raymond T. Tubbs

Many of our most worthy citizens live their lives in comparative privacy, with little recognition by the community at large.

TUBBS

Such a sterling individual was RAYMOND T. TUBBS whose unexpected death at 67 cost the area an estimable citizen and a former successful businessman.

Mr. TUBBS, born in Ovid, graduated from Pontiac Senior High School and in 1918 joined members of his family in the establishment of the Pontiac Paint Manufacturing Co.

★ ★ ★

His close attention to the production end of the enterprise left little time for recreational pursuits or public activities. He retired from active business three years ago when the firm was dissolved.

Of quiet demeanor and retiring disposition, RAYMOND TUBBS' warm and sympathetic personality nonetheless had attracted a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who deeply mourn his passing.

Waterford Township Jaycee Wins Many Honors

Most people are proud to receive honors one at a time. But when they come back-to-back the recognition assumes heightened significance.

STRICKLIN

W. CECIL STRICKLIN of Waterford Township can speak from experience. Last month he was elected president of the Waterford Township Jaycees for 1968-69 and last week was presented with the organization's Key Man Award for the year 1967-68.

But the 31-year-old honoree had been pretty well conditioned to his role. Last year he was selected the outstanding first year member of the Michigan Jaycees, and was one of 10 Jaycees named as outstanding new member at the 1967 national Jaycee convention.

★ ★ ★

We congratulate the enterprising young man, identified with Pontiac Motor Division's labor relations department, on his fine record of achievement and wish him well as head of Waterford's Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Coalition Views Are Questioned

By RAYMOND MOLEY

If Charles de Gaulle were not so busy dealing with anarchy at home, he might take a hand in our American political campaign. For he revealed in Canada last year that he has no hesitation about meddling in political affairs abroad.

MOLEY

If he were to express a choice among our aspirants for president, he would no doubt favor Sen. Eugene McCarthy. Indeed, his past advice to us has been to get out of Vietnam.

★ ★ ★

The French president is not conspicuous for his consistency except in his own concern for his own power. He was quite favorable to coalition arrangements with the Communists abroad, but he certainly wants nothing of the sort in his beloved France.

He came into power over there on a wave of discontent with unstable governments and popular fronts. And the constitutional changes he imposed were designed to avoid such governments in the future.

POPULAR FRONT

Back in the 1930s he saw a popular front in France which provided the groundwork for the disaster of 1940, and he came back from his retirement in the 1950s to save his country from such a catastrophe. Now his firm stand is to prevent the return of the old instability.

The popular front is another name for a coalition government.

I am not convinced that McCarthy understands this history when he advocates a coalition in South Vietnam with the Vietcong as a working partner with other elements. He said in a recent debate that "we have to have a new government in South Vietnam. I'm not particularly concerned with whether it's called a coalition or a fusion or a new government of some kind."

That would be loose talk from a former professor even if he were not a candidate for president. And such an expression is also grossly improper when his own government is negotiating for an end to the fighting.

RECENT HISTORY

The blindness of this would-be president and thousands of professors and "intellectuals" who support him is strange when we consider the more recent history of coalition governments.

In China in the 1940s the Truman administration deliberately invited the creation of Red China through suggesting a coalition government. That Communist government is a present menace to our interests and security.

★ ★ ★

And in Laos we seem to have agreed to a government which is in fact permitting Communist North Vietnam to use Laotian territory as a base against our military forces.

The two worlds, Communist and non-Communist, are watching our negotiations in Paris. For if in the end we yield, as McCarthy suggests, and agree to a coalition with Communists in Vietnam, all of Southeast Asia will become Communist, an end which would be intolerable for every non-Communist country in or on the periphery of Asia.

His Next Victim?

David Lawrence Says:

Fingerprints Snare King Suspect

WASHINGTON — The most amazing thing about the capture in London of James Earl Ray, suspected assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is the tremendous amount of work that had to be done in order to accomplish this.

LAWRENCE

"Fingerprints," a word much used but little understood, were the key, and few people realize what an enormous task was involved in identifying the suspected killer of Dr. King.

Latent prints found on items near the scene of the King shooting on April 4 were not clear enough or complete enough to enable an identification to be made from fingerprints on file with the FBI.

The break in the Ray case came 10 days after the shooting of Dr. King, when the FBI located a rooming house in Atlanta where the suspect, then known as Eric Starvo Galt, had stayed and where he had left some papers.

Included in these were maps, on one of which there was a clear print of one finger. But this was enough for the FBI, though there are more than 188 million cards in its fingerprint files, representing nearly 82 million individuals.

CERTAIN ASSUMPTIONS

To narrow the search, the FBI made certain assumptions on the basis of what was known about the suspected killer, including the likelihood that the man sought was a fugitive from justice, and the identity cards of nearly 2,000 fugitives were then subjected to an "eyeball" search by the FBI identification experts.

Within a few hours, it was determined that the print belonged to James Earl Ray, who was found to have more than a dozen sets of fingerprints in FBI files.

★ ★ ★

Copies of Ray's prints were sent to police agencies abroad. When he was picked up in London, fingerprints definitely identified him as the wanted man.

Once an individual's fingerprints are on file, his identity can be determined no matter how many aliases he uses or physical changes he may make.

DIFFERENT NAMES

Thus, Ray assumed different names and disguises, and carried fraudulent identification as he moved around from country to country. There was, however, no way by which he could change his fingerprints.

The big question now is where Ray got the money for his trips and the various documents he used in traveling under assumed identities.

The suspicion is growing that he may have had accomplices in this country as well as in Canada, and the whole affair has the appearance of a planned conspiracy.

In the search for possible associates, fingerprints undoubtedly will play a major role just as they have brought about the capture of Ray, who now will be tried on a murder charge as the assassin of Dr. King.

Bob Considine Says:

Adversaries Gathered at Funeral for Kennedy

NEW YORK — Sen. Robert Kennedy's funeral services at St. Patrick's Cathedral brought together some solemn mourners who on any other occasion would vigorously avoid contact with one another.

CONSIDINE

President Johnson and the dead man who lay in his coffin a few feet away were hostile, in life. LBJ never forgave RFK for trying to veto him off the 1960 Democratic ticket headed by John F. Kennedy.

★ ★ ★

The President rejected Kennedy's offer to serve in the No. 2 place on the ticket in 1964 and got boiling mad at RFK when the latter seemed to be negotiating for an end of the war in Vietnam while on a trip to Paris.

He would have opposed Kennedy openly at the Chicago convention next August if it appeared that Kennedy had a very good chance of getting the nomination.

COULDN'T ACCEPT LBJ

The dead man, on the other hand, could not abide LBJ. He could not accept him as a successor to the brother he adored.

The passion between RFK, lying in the flag-draped box, and Hubert Humphrey, sitting nearby, was not nearly as highly charged. They were, in fact, good friends. Kennedy threw a few darts at Humphrey during the primaries, demanding that he come out and fight. But there was considerable talk that if Humphrey got the nomination he would ask Robert to run with him.

FOUGHT DEAD MAN

Sen. Gene McCarthy sat poker-faced near the coffin. He had fought the dead man more openly than anybody, had accused him of trying to use a road which he, McCarthy, had furrowed at the risk of his political career.

McCarthy beat the dead man in Oregon, to his intense jubilation. He, in turn, was beaten in California on the night a bullet killed his political foe.

At the cathedral, Barry Goldwater looked at the back of the necks of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Gov. George Romney. Goldwater told me not long ago, that he would never forgive either of them for refusing to support the Goldwater-Miller ticket in 1964.

He said he had told that to Romney to his face.

Among the thoughtful political figures gathered around the bier was the good gray eminence of Ken Keating. He had seemed a cinch for reelection to U.S. Senate in 1964.

But the man in the coffin had come in from Massachusetts and campaigned so hard and well that he beat Keating for his seat by a huge majority. Had he not done so . . . well, Keating looked reflective at the funeral.

It was an interesting group of adversaries, stitched together by tragedy.

F-111s and M-16s

Newport News (Va.) Times-Herald

The crash of an F-111 in this country emphasizes a cross current of feeling with respect to this highly sophisticated fighter-bomber. It is the same version of the swing-wing plane that came a cropper in Vietnam.

On the one hand, Defense Secretary Clark Clifford wants the Navy to proceed with the development of its concept of the plane.

On the other, economy-minded members of Congress, doubtless nudged a bit by the Navy, want to leave the plane alone. The Navy wants to develop another, entirely separate plane.

★ ★ ★

This highly technical society has always demanded that its fighting men be equipped with the finest military equipment that the nation can produce. No one will argue the point.

But there does come a time when reckless spending for spending's sake needs ruthless scrutiny by Congress and by the armed forces. And excessive spending always seems to be the end product of haste or bad planning.

Because of one or the other, the F-111 finally flew at approximately double its estimated cost, and the Senate has applied the brakes on further spending for the plane's development program.

Another example of the need for wise economies lies in the production of the controversial M-16 rifle. Originally budgeted at $104 per unit when first produced by one manufacturer, increased requirements in Vietnam demanded expanded production facilities at home, and the rifle is being supplied the South Vietnamese at a cost of $316 per unit.

★ ★ ★

A House committee has brought out into the open some of these details, and there should be considerable discussion on the matter before it's swept under the rug.

Sweepstakes

Hamilton (Ont.) Spectator

L'il Abner's fabled Sadie Hawkins Day has been put to shame by a 21-year-old California bachelor who recently inherited a $100,000 estate on the condition that he marry a girl from Scotland.

He's started a Marry John Andrews Sweepstake. So far more than 300 Scots girls have turned in bids, including secretaries, shopgirls, women's Air Force officers and one detective. John will meet the winner when he visits Scotland later in the year.

★ ★ ★

The sweepstakes idea is a marvellous one for wealthy or famous bachelors. It isn't difficult, for example, to think of at least one well-known Canadian bachelor (Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau) who might make himself a large fortune by selling sweepstakes tickets on himself at a dollar or two apiece.

★ ★ ★

Lesser bachelors could be given away as consolation prizes.

'Urge Michigan Drivers to Help Reduce Accidents'

Small wonder drivers kill so many people in Michigan traffic accidents each year. I drive 500 miles every summer weekend on Michigan expressways and roads. Some of the stunts I've seen tried with a two-ton mass of steel at 70 m.p.h. are unbelievable.

★ ★ ★

I think Michigan provides better roads than any state east of the Mississippi, so let's start using them for driving — not killing.

America Must Find Solution to End Violence

My heart goes out to the Kennedy family. I know of no other family that has had to suffer so much. As if the assassinations of President John Kennedy, Martin Luther King and Senator Robert Kennedy weren't enough, there are riots, killings and destruction and hate for one another. How can this "peace-loving country" be expected to stop the war in Vietnam without first stopping the one here? Maybe with God's help someone will find the answer and put an end to all this violence and make this world a better place for all races to live.

'Movie Advertisements Advocate Violence'

The movie guide of The Pontiac Press is advocating violence and murder. Must we constantly expose our children to this kind of trash? Maybe this is a good place to start ridding ourselves of ugly violence. Let's stop supporting the people who give us the movies, cartoons and books which advocate and glorify killing. Maybe it seems a small start against this problem, but isn't it a beginning for all of us?

School Students Had Special Interest in News

Though we both are only teen-agers, we do care what happens to the future leader of our so-called "great country." Last Wednesday our fellow students were worried about what was to happen to Senator Robert Kennedy and we were "glued to our radios." In the cafetorium some radios were picked up by the "lunchroom ruler." In a few classrooms we were allowed to listen to the radios, but not during our lunch periods. We should have had the right to find out what was happening because the name of our fine school is John F. Kennedy Junior High.

Souris Ends His Career on High Court

LANSING (UPI)—Justice Theodore Souris Tuesday spent his last day on the bench of the State Supreme Court. He left behind him, for all practical purposes, a seven-member court.

Although his retirement will not be effective until July 1, Souris indicated he would no longer sit on the bench and participate in decisions.

In an effort to do away with stalemates created by 4-4 decisions of the eight members of the court, the 1963 Michigan Constitution provides that the first vacancy in the court created by death, retirement or resignation shall not be filled.

In the past, the court has at times come up with a 4-4 decision on an issue, leaving the outcome in limbo. The most recent example was the tie decision on whether or not the Michigan Court of Appeals had the right to investigate a state agency.

CLEAR-CUT VERDICTS

However, with Souris' retirement, clear-cut decisions may now be possible by a majority vote.

Souris, one of the court's more liberal members, was the chief force behind landmark decisions that extended the recovery right in wrongful death cases and applied the one-man one-vote principle to the Legislature and, more recently, to county boards of supervisors.

★ ★ ★

One of the most prolific writers of the court, the 42-year-old justice authorized 192 opinions between 1964 and 68. Seventy-five of them were either unanimous or controling opinions—an admirable record.

His departure will give Republicans a technical majority on the court for the first time since 1955.

At Student Convention

Columbia Fracas in Spotlight

EAST LANSING (AP)—Workshop discussions on the direction of the revolutionary movement dominated activities Tuesday at the national convention of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

But recent disorders at Columbia University have held part of the spotlight during the first two days of the week-long session.

A general convention meeting Tuesday, attended by an estimated 500 young people from all over the country, burst into loud applause at one point as a speaker announced support from South Vietnam for the disorders.

The South Vietnamese Student Union urges that such demonstrations be continued, the speaker said, reading from a newspaper story. The delegates applauded again.

One delegate explained later that the demonstrations hopefully serve to dramatize what SDS considers the need for restructing of society, giving people the power to control their lives.

One workshop session was attended by someone involved in the Columbia fracas, it was reported, and discussions centered on how the disorders occurred, what happened to participants and what mistakes, if any, were or could have been made.

Throughout the Michigan State University Student Union, site of the convention, conversations center on Columbia.

Several of the newspapers, leaflets and mimeographed handouts available to delegates deal with the demonstrations.

A post showing a young man —bleeding profusely from face and head cuts—and holding up his right hand in the familiar "V-form" peace-love sign—says "Hail Columbia!"

It sells for $1.

Further discussion, meanwhile, centers on how SDS members believe they should work toward changing society.

Setting up separate power blocks—workers, students, Negroes—is dangerous, one speaker told the assembled convention. Various factions should instead unite toward their common goals, against the "ruling class imperialists."

Romney Keeping Michigan Delegation on the Fence

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. — Gov. George Romney, who urged for months that Republican governors unite early behind one presidential candidate, is doing precisely the opposite now by keeping Michigan's delegation uncommitted.

"What we're doing is realistic now," Romney said in an interview. "I'm not going to bat my head against a wall."

* * *

The wall to which he referred is the gubernatorial indecision that helped crush his own campaign for the nomination.

Romney is determined to hold the bulk of the state's 48 votes away from either Richard M. Nixon or Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for the present.

The object, he says, is to await developments, candidate statements on major issues and preconvention polls.

Romney, who controls the delegation as a favorite son, insists that no consideration of any job he might get in a national Republican administration will enter into what the Michigan delegation eventually does.

* * *

Would he consider running for vice president?

"I don't know," the governor replied. "I'm not certain you can deal with the problems of this country effectively (in that job) and make as much of a contribution as you'd like to make."

GENERAL ENDORSEMENT

Thus far Romney has won general endorsement from party leaders and delegates for an uncommitted delegation. However, the state's lieutenant governor and the majority leader of the State Senate are spearheading moves to win support for Rockefeller and Nixon, respectively, when Romney abandons his favorite-son candidacy.

The key question is how much of the delegation Romney will be able to deliver when he makes his own decision.

Loyalty to the three-term governor is strong among most of the Republican organization—and the national convention delegation is almost completely an organization slate.

* * *

On the first ballot, as a favorite son, Romney is almost sure to get 44 or more votes. Up to four, from two conservative anti-Romney congressional districts, could go to Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

Rockefeller now seems to have the upper hand in private leanings among the delegates, and he's all but sure to have an edge if he gets a Romney endorsement.

Romney won't say who he leans toward, but other party leaders think he will eventually go to Rockefeller if Nixon hasn't clearly sewed up the nomination.

* * *

Rockefeller was among the first backers of Romney's short-lived candidacy. Republican leaders, however, think the governor is more likely to be swayed by Rockefeller's past involvement with urban problems. These leaders also indicated they think Romney will conclude that Nixon can't make a dent in Detroit's Negro vote.

* * *

Like virtually all Michigan GOP leaders, Romney said the party needs a candidate "who can strengthen the party and win."

'TOO EARLY'

He acknowledged that past records indicate it would be difficult for Nixon to win the Democratic votes necessary to carry Michigan, but said it's too early to say if that would hold true this year.

Michigan has no major race for state office this year, so the presidential candidate will provide the only coattails for State House of Representatives and congressional candidates. The GOP turned out five Democratic congressmen and won control of the State House by one seat in a Romney sweep two years ago.

* * *

Rockefeller talked to Michigan delegates privately May 23.

According to one top Republican source, that appearance "took the hate out of the campaign." Translated by other Republicans that means a Rockefeller nomination would not find half the Michigan party sitting on its hands during the campaign.

SESSION POSTPONED

Nixon was to speak to Michigan delegates in private Friday, but the session was postponed because of the death of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Lt. Gov. William Milliken and State Senate Majority Leader Emil Lockwood each say they have no desire to woo delegates away from Romney's favorite-son candidacy.

* * *

Milliken opened a Rockefeller office in Lansing last month. It is being run by John Stahlin, a former state senator and unpaid aide to Milliken. Key advisers include former State Chairmen John Feikins and Larry Lindemer, National Committeeman John B. Martin and State Chairman Elly Peterson, although Mrs. Peterson remains publicly uncommitted.

* * *

The Rockefeller people peg their maximum strength at about 40 votes if Romney goes their way. Right now they figure on about 30.

MORE ADVANCED

The Nixon operation is more advanced.

National Nixon headquarters has handled much of the mailing to delegates, sending out speeches, position papers and a weekly newspaper. One delegate said the Nixon mailings are about all he's gotten. "There's been nothing from Rockefeller and no personal contacts at all so far," this delegate said. "I've been kind of amazed."

The Nixon camp claims 25 delegates lean toward their man and that they could get 43 or 44 with a Romney endorsement.

* * *

But other indications are that Romney would have a tougher time delivering the bulk of the delegation to Nixon than he would to Rockefeller. Some from Wayne County (Detroit) in particular are apprehensive about having Nixon as their ticket leader.

* * *

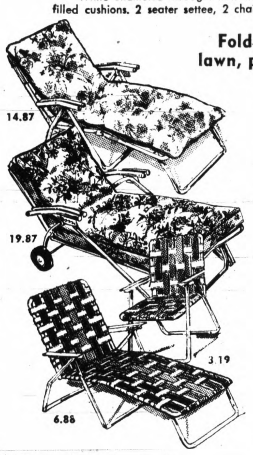

Meaningful public voice in the delegation selection was virtually nil. Michigan has no presidential primary. Precinct delegates elected in August 1966 met this spring to pick county delegates to the state convention. National convention delegates were picked at congressional district and the state conventions last month.

Laborers Win 9 Pct. Pay Hike Per Year

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit area contractors have reached new contract agreement with laborers which they hope will serve as a pattern for settlement with other unions in a construction industry strike which began May 1.

The new contract gives union laborers a nine per cent increase in each of the next two years, and will bring their straight-time wage to $5.05 hourly in the second year. Their base pay was $4.25 hourly when they struck.

* * *

A construction industry strike throughout Michigan has idled an estimated 100,000 tradesmen and halted work on millions of dollars worth of building for 43 days.

Before agreement was reached with the laborers, new contracts had been negotiated with millwrights and sheet metal workers in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

17 OTHERS SIGNED

Settlements still are to be reached with 17 other unions represented in the construction industry.

And if others follow the nine per cent pattern won by the laborers, Stanley Veighey, labor relations manager for Associated General Contractors, forecast this would increase new home prices by the same percentage.

* * *

Veighey said building tradesmen also are on strike in central and northeastern Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and West Virginia.

Veighey and John Fetzer, chairman of an employers negotiating team, announced Tuesday that laborers had ratified their new pact by a vote of 1,554 to 275.

46 CENTS IN WAGESE

Laborers will receive an increase of 46 cents hourly in wages and fringe benefits in the first year of their new contract and 41 cents the second year.

This will lift their base pay from $4.25 to $4.65 and then to $5.05, and boost their gross, including fringes, to $5.25 immediately and to $5.65 in the second year.

* * *

A doubletime pay rate is continued for overtime, as is the custom in the building industry.

The addition of two cents hourly in the second year won ratification of a pact laborers previously had rejected, and Veighey said wherever work is available laborers can return immediately.

However, there would be little for them to do with tradesmen out.

Negotiations were to be resumed today with cement masons, with bargaining with bricklayers to follow. Veighey said contractors would be ready to meet with carpenters Thursday, if mediators recommended it.

* * *

The carpenters' contract is expected to prove most troublesome of all. They are asking a boost of $2.41 hourly in wages and fringes combined over the next two years and continuance of a current seven-hour day.

Contractors have offered a $1.16 hourly package and requested return to an eight-hour day. Fetzer said this would raise carpenters to a gross of $285.28 weekly in the second year.

Carpenters had a base rate of $5.06 hourly when they struck and contractors have offered to raise it 54 cents immediately and 50 cents hourly in the second year.

The gross, including fringes was $5.97 at the time of the strike and contractors say their offer would bring it to $7.13 hourly in the second year.

* * *

While Veighey and Fetzer saw the laborer settlement as "a possible crack opening the door leading to settlements elsewhere," another contractor spokesman, who declined to be identified, told newsmen he doubted settlement could be reached on a nine per cent basis.

* * *

He pointed out, however, that a nine per cent increase among tradesmen would amount to more money than among laborers, because tradesmen have a higher pay scale to begin with.

MSU Uses 'Interns' to Fill Faculty Void

EAST LANSING (UPI) — Michigan State University has hit on one way to ease the impending teacher shortage — and it has proved a hit with both professors and students.

The experiment utilized superior undergraduates as teaching "interns" in freshman-level English courses, mostly recruited from seniors in MSU's honors college.

* * *

They were paid top student wages for their work as tutors and aides during regular class sessions. At the end of the experiment, none of the 11 interns signed up for a second term of work and a majority of students who didn't have interns said they'd like to enroll in sections that do have them in the future.

Dr. Nora Landmark, a professor of American thought and language and project coordinator, said the quality of writing produced by students under intern supervision showed "fewer ups and downs" than that of students working under regular professors exclusively.

The professors, she said, were far from piqued by this. One said it gave him a chance to experiment with new teaching methods and another that freshmen were encouraged to see undergraduates mastering material "well enough to teach it on a reasonably professional level."

In addition, Dr. Landmark said, "internships for seniors bound for graduate school is one way of improving college teaching," particularly if extended over two or three terms.

Pontiac Y Builds Track

People Going on Health Jog

By LOIS FRIEDLAND

Overweight businessmen, young housewives, executives on the rise and men working on the production lines — These diverse groups have one thing in common. They are all on a "run for your life" kick.

The YMCA of Pontiac has built a 1-10-mile blacktop track to encourage this increasing interest in physical fitness through jogging.

Y members are encouraged to join a "fitness for living" program, a 10-week session geared towards reducing weight, increasing cardiovascular capacity, lowering blood pressure and lessening chances of a heart attack or stroke.

"We are concerned about the weekend athletes and are trying to encourage anyone who has a fairly sedentary occupation — such as an office or factory worker — to change his style of life and make exercise as much a part of his life as any other human activity," explained William R. Kirk, the Y's executive director.

ESSENCE OF PROGRAM

The essence of the Y program is to tone up leg muscles by simply walking, jogging — a pace between walking and running — and walking some more. Emphasis is placed on continuous nonstrenuous movement and regular exercise.

Fitness through exercise retards the aging process, improves mental alertness and strengthens the heart muscles, thus eliminating potential coronary troubles, according to the Y director.

Jogging is beneficial because, during the active use of the legs, the leg muscles act as a circulation booster, relieving the heart of 30 per cent of its load, according to Dr. Paul Dudley White, heart specialist and physician to former President Eisenhower.

No individual begins his fitness-for-living program without having a medical clearance from his doctor. In initial program sessions, the joggers undergo an intensive fitness analysis. Pulse rate changes, blood pressure, body measurements and excess fat are all checked and a master test is given. The results are plotted on a fitness profile around which an individual fitness program is created.

The program consists of jogging more than a mile a day, five days a week, when in shape and includes exercises to tone up various muscles. The program participants are tested for improvement in their physical fitness at the end of the 10-week session.

"Jogging should become a lifelong habit which should be cranked into your way of living so thoroughly that you can't sleep at night unless you've had your exercise," emphasized Kirk.

"One local man has jogged 300 miles since October," he added.

A breakfast-jogging club is currently being organized at the Y. Members will meet at the track, job, and then go — en masse — for breakfast.

Kirk emphasized that the track is open at all times during Y hours to any YMCA member.

The track is also being used by the Y youth department in its physical education program for children and by the women's department and family groups.

Pontiac Press Photo

Ladybug Rates a Place Among World's Heroines

WASHINGTON — The world's notable heroines include a quarter-inch-long lady erroneously known as a bug or bird.

The ladybug beetle — alias ladybird, ladycrow, ladyfly, and ladycock — can gobble up to 50 aphids or other pests a day. The polka-dotted insect serves as the farmer's private army and the gardener's best friend.

★ ★ ★

Some 2,000 worldwide species of ladybugs include only two harmful members, the Mexican bean beetle (Epilachna varivestis) and the squash beetle (Epilachna borealis), the National Georgraphic Society says.

★ ★ ★

A beneficial variety, the Vedalia (Rodolia cardinalis) was the first predator imported for a bug-eat-bug war. It gained fame by wiping out the dreaded cottony-cushion scale.

FINDS HELP

The deadly scale appeared in California citrus groves in 1868 and, within 20 years, killed thousands of trees.

A government entomologist traced the unwelcome immigrant to its homeland, Australia. There he noted a Vedalia contentedly devouring a scale.

★ ★ ★

He shipped 514 Vedalias to California for combat. For 18 months, the beetles did battle with the scales. In the end, the beetles and their descendants saved a multimillion-dollar industry at an importation cost of only $1,500.

★ ★ ★

Since then, commercial firms have scooped up millions of hibernating Convergent ladybugs (Hippodamia convergens) — the most accessible species in the United States — and shipped them in cold storage to farmers.

Gravity Waves Perhaps Found

Fifty-Year Search May Be Near End

By Science Service

WASHINGTON — The long search for gravitational waves, which scientists have believed for 50 years should exist but never were able to find, may end within the year — successfully.

The latest report on detection of events possibly caused by gravitational waves, from Dr. Joseph Weber of the University of Maryland, moves close to definite commitment. Others using the same experimental information would probably have been even more definite.

★ ★ ★

Gravity waves would be a gravitational analogue to electromagnetic waves such as radio, light and X rays.

Dr. Weber's cautious report reverses the language of the one he made in March 1967. Then he said:

"The possibility that some gravitational signals may have been observed cannot completely be ruled out."

EXTERNAL EXCITATION

His judgment now is that his instruments which operated 24 hours a day for several years, respond about once a month "to a common external excitation which may be gravitational radiation." Observations of other events made in the two months since he submitted his report to Physical Review Letters have not changed Dr. Weber's mind.

However, he will not make a stronger statement at least until the results of other tests now under way are available.

If these results are negative, then Dr. Weber and his coworkers, or others in the field may be able to pinpoint the cause of the events so far recorded by his instruments.

One experiment in progress is a search over other frequencies and bandwidths than those already detected. Another is the separation of the two detectors over a distance of 700 miles between Argonne, Ill., and College Park, instead of the slightly more than one mile used so far on the Maryland campus.

EINSTEIN THEORY

The existence of gravitational waves is predicted by Einstein's theory of general relativity. Any mass that is accelerated should generate gravity waves.

If a gravitational wave as strong as the earth's magnetic field hit this planet, you would be lifted from your seat and buildings from their foundations. Since nothing remotely resembling such events has ever been detected, gravity waves are known to be extremely weak.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Weber's instrument to detect gravity waves are based on the small effect they are predicted to have on a relatively large mass. When the gravity wave penetrates the mass, it is jiggled slightly.

Dr. Weber's group uses aluminum cylinders weighing 3,000 pounds to search for gravitational radiation at 1,660 cycles per second. The cylinders are mounted in delicate isolation to prevent mechanical or electromagnetic effects from setting them into vibration.

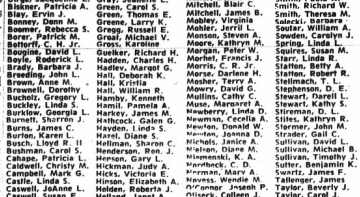

★ ★ ★

Because the radiation is so weak, the changes that have to be measured amount to only a few parts in 100 billion. The Maryland team, however, has developed equipment sensitive enough to measure the imperceptible motion occurring when a possible gravitational wave jiggles a cylinder.

Negroes Voice Discontent Over Housing Conditions

By GENE SCHROEDER

MUSKEGON HEIGHTS (AP)—"Man, our theme song could be 'Give me a home where the roaches don't roam'," said the occupant of a two-room slum apartment in Muskegon Heights.

★ ★ ★

It was a typical complaint voiced by ghetto-dwellers throughout Michigan. Falling plaster, rats and a frequent lack of hot water are only a few of the problems faced by the urban poor.

★ ★ ★

To many Negroes living in the state's racial ghettoes, home is more like a cage than a castle.

Some urban experts believe that rioters who set fire to their own neighborhoods are acting much like convicts rioting in a prison. In many cases, they are taking out their frustrations on the nearest targets around them.

NO. 1 COMPLAINT

Among Negroes who admitted they took part in Detroit's devastating riot last summer, the No. 1 complaint was overcrowded living conditions, according to a survey conducted by two University of Michigan researchers.

The study, taken for the Urban League in the two-week period after the riot, showed that crowded and substandard housing ranked near the top of the list of grievances among rioters and nonrioters alike.

★ ★ ★

The National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders reported that nearly two-thirds of all nonwhite families living in the central cities today are in neighborhoods marked with substandard housing and general urban blight.

Michigan is no exception. Negroes have voiced complaints about housing conditions in nearly every city in the state.

GENERAL DISCONTENT

From Bay City, where the nonwhite population represents less than 2 per cent of the residents, to Flint, with an estimated 25 per cent, there is general discontent over the housing situation.

While the recent approval of open housing ordinances in more than a dozen Michigan cities and by the State Legislature was welcomed by Negro leaders, the adoption of such laws is merely symbolic for most ghetto dwellers.

★ ★ ★

Under present conditions, they can't afford to live anywhere else.

The shortage of low-cost housing is critical in most cities.

In Detroit, there has been no public housing constructed since 1957, and privately constructed housing for the poor is all but nonexistent.

PROGRESS SLOW

In other Michigan cities, progress generally has been described as painfully slow.

A spokesman for the Grand Rapids chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) complained recently that nothing tangible or visible had happened in that city's public housing picture in the past four years.

★ ★ ★

"In fact, there now are more black poor families and fewer places to house them," said Dr. James Maher, chairman of the NAACP's Housing Committee.

★ ★ ★

Plans have been under way for some time for some 400 public housing units in Grand Rapids, and city officials say the first units may begin going up next fall in the Campau Park area. But they concede that even these will fall far short of actual needs.

PLEASED BY ORDINANCE

Although many Negroes feel that the public housing program leaves much to be desired, at the same time they are pleased to note the adoption of a new open housing ordinance by the city this year.

A group of white home owners failed in an attempt to collect enough voter signatures to force the matter to a referendum.

★ ★ ★

"I'm elated that they couldn't get enough signatures," said Grand Rapids Mayor Chris H. Sonneveldt in an interview. "And I like to feel that if the issue had been forced to a vote it would have favored open housing."

Sonneveldt said there were virtually no calls or kickbacks to City Hall after the ordinance was adopted last January.

BITTERNESS REMAINS

"I may be reading too much into this," he said, "but I feel people are beginning to face up to our civil rights problems."

In Jackson, however, there is still bitterness among Negroes over the rejection by the voters last year of an open housing law which the City Commission had adopted earlier.

★ ★ ★

Harry Wright, regional director of the Michigan Civil Rights Commission, says Negroes interpret the 2-to-1 defeat of the ordinance by referendum as "a slap in the face" by the white community.

Jackson's black community feels that it has little to say about the decisions that affect ghetto problems, according to Wright.

ANGRY CLASH

At a recent City Commission meeting, Mayor Jaurice Townsend Jr. clashed angrily with a Negro leader who had invited city officials to a meeting with representatives of the black community.

The invitation had been issued by Carl Breeding, who was defeated in an election campaign for commissioner, but claims to be de facto 6th Ward commissioner anyway.

★ ★ ★

When Townsend indicated he wouldn't attend the meeting, Breeding warned that "Summer is not very long off—the future of Jackson is at stake."

The mayor responded:

"Threatening us with a hot summer does not frighten us at all."

'WARNING'

Breeding said his statement was not intended as a threat but merely a warning.

Jackson has scored some progress in attacking the slum problem.

The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has granted approval for the development of 168 low-income housing units for senior citizens, which is expected to release to the public a number of homes in the low and moderate income range.

HUD officials also have threatened to withhold future allocation of federal funds unless there is a beefing up of code enforcement procedures. The federal agency noted that about 70 per cent of the dwelling units recently inspected violate the city code.

Minimum health and safety standards are supposed to be maintained under state and local housing codes. But Michigan's state housing code, also adopted by Detroit and other communities, is a half-century old and reflects 19th century concepts, standards and methods, say many housing experts.

COULD BE DIFFICULT

But at the same time many of those critical of the housing codes recognize that vigorous enforcement could make matters difficult for some home owners or renters.

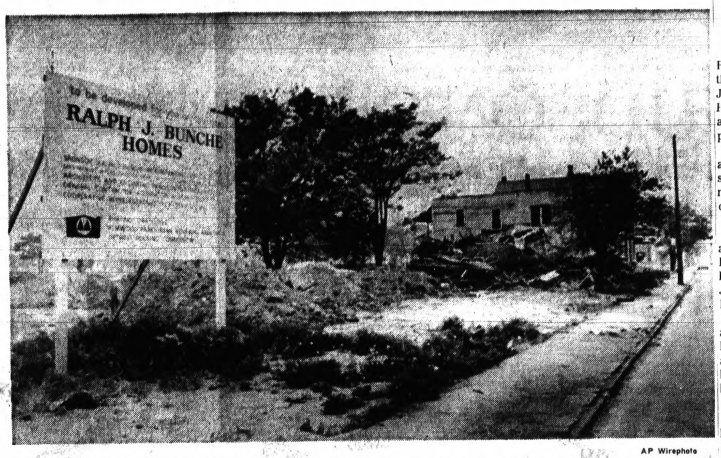

Deterioration has already begun to set in by the time some housing is made available to poor people, and requiring that such buildings be brought up to code could result in the raising of rents and the displacement of families with no place else to go.

In some Michigan communities, tenants have staged rent strikes to force repairs on building runs by so-called "slumlords," absentee owners who do little about keeping up their property.

The tenant strike technique as developed in Muskegon Heights involves the paying of rent into an escrow account rather than to the landlord. It becomes available to the landlord after grievances are settled, usually in court.

The organizer of a tenant's strike in Detroit, Fred Lyles, complained that his small bachelor's apartment is filled with fumes from the furnace directly below, and water seeps through the ceiling when it rains. The apartment, he says, has not been decorated since he moved in five years ago.

PROMISE OF LOW-INCOME HOUSING — Condemned homes are demolished in an urban renewal area near downtown Detroit which is expected to provide low-income housing. The destruction of the homes points up an increasing problem of deterioration setting in before new housing is available to poor people.

Man Gives Shotgun Up During Mass

BATTLE CREEK (UPI) — Richard A. Hale left his seat in the middle of Mass at St. Joseph Roman Catholic Church. He carried his shotgun up the aisle and handed it to the priest.

"It was just an attempt to get at least one more gun off the streets," said the lumber yard manager and father of three children.

★ ★ ★

The Mass Monday night was a memorial for the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Hale said Kennedy's death plus President Johnson's pleas for gun control legislation prompted his action.

He carried the gun up the aisle and surrendered it to the Rev. John Huhn immediately after the bread and wine, symbolic gifts of sacrifice, were brought to the priest at the offertory of the Mass.

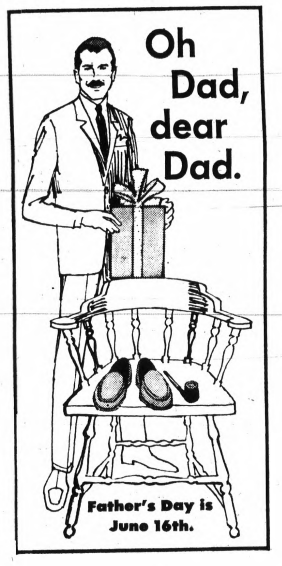

Hale said he talked to the priest and told him what he planned to do before Mass. He said the idea just "grew."

Should you use oil base or latex house paint?

Get the facts from Hudson's now and save

Use Magicolor Fast latex house paint if . . .

1. You are painting new wood or unpainted brick or masonry. Or, over a previously latex painted surface. Latex "breathes", seals out water.
2. If you want ease of application, with soap and water clean-up, quick drying.
3. If you want great color selection.
4. If you want a flat finish.
5. If you want to paint in damp weather with no worry about blistering.

Use Magicolor 1-Coat House and trim paint if . . .

1. You are painting over an oil base paint or a sealed surface. Latex can't "breathe" over that type of surface, so oil base is your best bet.
2. If you want no chalking or streaking, especially for house trim.
3. If you want extra-white whiteness.
4. If you want a semi-gloss finish.
5. If you want an extremely high quality oil base paint.

Two Countries Appoint Women to High Office

CARACAS, Venezuela — "Women are going to play an increasingly important role in the vital business of developing stable government in South America." This is the opinion of Doctora Aura Celina Casanova, newly appointed Minister of Economic Development for Venezuela.

Dra. Casanova's appointment by President Raul Leoni, marks the first time that a woman has been named to a key cabinet position in a South American democracy.

It also points up again the emergence of the South American woman from the traditional Spanish colonial status of an enforced homebody, shielded deligently from the public eye.

In the opinion of Dra. Casanova, the emergence of women as political factors in South America will do much to effect the stabilization of government already achieved by Venezuela but sadly lacking in many other Latin nations.

* * *

Women have been making important contributions to government for many years in North America, Europe and several important countries of the Far East, she points out, and their influence has invariably been beneficial.

BACKGROUND

Dra. Casanova has devoted most of her adult years to education and the study of economics, including a course in Public Finances at the University of Wisconsin. She began her career as a primary teacher in Caracas, became a professor in the Central University and eventually headed the budget department of the Ministry of Education. Other positions she has held with distinction include Economist in charge of National Accounts at the Central Bank of Venezuela, and a year as Councilwoman for the Federal District of Caracas.

* * *

For the past five years, Dra. Casanova has been representative for her native state of Tachira in the National Chamber of Deputies, an office she continues to hold as Minister of Economic Development.

* * *

Although Dra. Casanova's paramount interest lies in her career, in economics, and in working strenuous hours that would be impossible to many men, she still finds time for sports—participating in sports such as golf, riding and swimming —which she pursues with the same vigor as her work.

AURA CASANOVA

HILDA BYNOE

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Hilda Bynoe, a practicing physician and mother of two teenage sons, says that "women are happy all over the Caribbean" about her crown appointment as the first woman governor of a British Commonwealth country.

She was sworn in Saturday as governor of Grenada, a 133-square-mile island in the British West Indiens' Windards.

* * *

"The men were completely with us on this appointment," she said in a telephone interview Monday. Anyway, men don't really discriminate against women on the islands, she said, although few women have risen very high in government.

"Of course, there are very few men like my husband, to give his wife a chance," she said of Peter Bynoe, an ex-RAF flying officer and an architect, whom she married in 1947.

FEMININITY

"Don't misunderstand," she added quickly. "I am a very typical feminine woman, not at all masculine. I like clothes, and all the frivolity and all the fun of being a woman. No, I don't wear miniskirts, they are for the young, but I do wear my skirts above my knees."

The 46-year-old governor, who was born in Grenada, said that before the appointment "I was a typical suburban housewife and doctor in Trinidad, working at my medical practice and looking after my family."

* * *

Sons Roland, 16, and Michael, 15, are very proud of their mother, she said.

She is 5-foot-6½ and weighs about 160 pounds — "all good solid weight, solid bone structure."

A state banquet Saturday night celebrated her new job.

"The appointment, a five-year assignment, was made on the advice of the government," she explained. "The executive power is in the hand of the elected government. I, like the queen of England, act on the advice of the cabinet."

COMMON MARKET

Her first official duty will be to open a conference to establish a common market among the Windward and Leeward Islands.

Grenada, with a population of about 89,000 people, is largely agricultural, "but in recent times we have been developing tourism," she said.

"We have much to offer. For example, I'm looking out now at the harbor here in St. George's — the capital—and it's one of the most beautiful in the world."

Why Not Just Admit You're Really Flattered?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a serious problem which I can't confide in anyone else, so I'm turning to you.

ABBY

My son-in-law told me that he is "in love" with me. He is 21, and I am 36. My daughter (his wife) is 19 and she's a perfect doll. They have an adorable baby.

I don't know what this boy sees in me, although people do say my daughter and I look like sisters.

Abby, it would break my daughter's heart to know how her husband feels about me. And I don't even want to think of what my husband would do if he knew.

I am having a hard time keeping this boy away from me. He keeps trying to get me alone, and he drops in all the time (without my daughter). What should I do? I can't very well tell him he's not welcome.

GRANDMOM

DEAR GRANDMOM: Aw, come on, you certainly can. Just tell the boy that if he doesn't cut out the nonsense you'll turn him over your knee. If his attentions are really as unwelcome as you say, tell him off—and that should be the end of it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I don't know where to begin explaining my problem because it's been bothering me for about 15 years now, and it's not getting any better. If anything, it's getting worse.

I am always washing my hands because I have it in my head that everything I touch has germs. I'll bet I wash my hands 50 or 60 times a day.

If I have company, I can't wait until they leave so I can wash everything they've touched. I wash the door knobs and even the chairs they've sat on, then I go take a bath and wash my hair, even though I've bathed before they arrived. I just have to wash everything they've come into contact with or I don't feel clean.

I never go to funerals anymore because when I do, I hurry home to take a bath, wash my hair, wash all the clothes I've worn, (even my shoes!) and I send my dress to the cleaners. I even wash my car!

Have you ever heard of anything like this before? Abby, I really like people, but I stay away from them because of this thing I have about germs.

I am making problems for my family because I am always after them (I have teen-age children) to wash the way I do, and they are getting tired of it. Can you help me? Or am I hopeless?

UNCLEAN

DEAR UNCLEAN: I have heard of others who have had the same problem, and it's not "hopeless." Confide in your family doctor. He will recommend someone who will try to help you get rid of those fears.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My wife is always on my back about the old car we drive. It's six years old, but it runs as good as any of the newer ones.

Every time we go somewhere she points out this friend or that friend with a brand-new car. It bugs me. I need a good answer for her. Got any handy?

FLINT

DEAR FLINT: Here's one which should give you a lot of mileage: "Never judge a man by what he drives, but rather by what drives HIM."

College Senior Is Confused on Gift Giving

By ELIZABETH L. POST

The following letter has been chosen as the prize-winning one for this week. A copy of Emily Post's Etiquette has been sent to Lynn Auner, Heidelberg College, Tiffin, Ohio.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a college senior and am pinned. My pin-mate goes to school here and has many relatives here in town whom we visit frequently. Should I send a thank-you note to the hostess every time we "drop in" for dinner?

They consider me "family" and my pin-mate is afraid their feelings will be hurt if I do.

* * *

Also, we visit back and forth with our parents during vacations. Is it necessary to bring, or send, a gift to the hostess every time, or after two years can this just be left for a special occasion or an especially nice weekend?

* * *

Usually just a bed is provided for either him or me because we do so many things on our own. I feel indebted, and he feels the same way, but five or six gifts a year apiece is hard on the pocketbook when you are putting yourself through school. — Lynn

* * *

Dear Lynn: Since you are almost a member of your pin-mate's family you certainly need not write a note each time you have dinner with one of his relatives. Actually, a note is never required in thanks for a dinner, although it is a nice gesture and always appreciated.

* * *

Nor need either of you take a gift each time. This is quite different from an invitation for a week end visit, or some special entertaining, which would, of course, require a "thank-you" present.

* * *

As you suggested, your parents — while they might enjoy the gift — would never expect one on every occasion.

MRS. THOMAS C. BAKER

Teacher Weds Army Officer

Word has been received of the marriage in Germany of Sara Ann Hetherington, daughter of Mrs. C. R. Hetherington of Oneida Road, to Lt. Thomas Curtis Baker, USA.

* * *

The wedding took place Friday in the Army chapel at Zweibruecken, where the bridegroom is stationed and where the former Miss Hetherington is a teacher in the Army personnel school.

* * *

She is a graduate of Michigan State University.

* * *

Lt. Baker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Baker of San Benito, Texas. He attended Texas Technological College, Lubbock, Texas.

* * *

A honeymoon in Spain followed the vows. The couple will remain in Germany another year, until completion of Lt. Baker's assignment there.

* * *

Tennis Enthusiasts Comprise Club Nucleus at Cranbrook

By SIGNE KARLSTROM

When Mrs. Robert M. Sandoe, wife of the headmaster of Cranbrook School, arrived at Cranbrook in 1964, she soon gathered Mesdames: Ben Snyder, Edward Lawrence and Earl Lapp — all interested in tennis — and together they formed the nucleus of the Cranbrook Tennis Club.

Mrs. Sandoe, being a serious tennis player, felt the need of stimulating community interest in this sport.

The group invited Mrs. Charles L. Wilson Jr., Dr. James Ladd and Day Krolik Jr. to join them. A board of directors was formed with Krolik as president.

Through arrangements with Cranbrook school the eight tennis courts there were made available to tennis players in the area, provided Cranbrook students were not using the courts.

These red and green courts are in a most beautiful setting on the grounds of Cranbrook.

Today, local people, young and old, have the opportunity of participating in this vital sport. The board's primary purpose is to initiate concentrated tennis clinics for children, women and men. Professional Don Brown was engaged to give tennis lessons. Members and non-members take part.

The season begins in the early spring and continues as long as weather permits. Since the clinics were started in 1965, they have grown from 111 participants to 244 in 1968.

Cranbrook Tennis Club clinics have become the largest in Michigan. Volunteers give many hours of their time to make this possible.

Mrs. Charles L. Wilson Jr. served as the first chairman and Mrs. LeRoy W. Dahlberg is the present chairman.

Club membership consists of 280 families. After the tennis clinics are over, the club functions for its members. There are periodic Sunday mixers of adult players, interclub activities and team practice is encouraged among the young people.

Present board members are: Day Krolik Jr., president; Mrs. Wilson, vice president; Mrs. Charles Duryea, secretary; Albert Matisse, treasurer; Mrs. w. Dahlberg, Hugh Davisson and Jack McBride.

Japanese Cure for a Headache

NEW YORK (UPI) — Through the ages man has dealt with headache with a variety of techniques.

★ ★ ★

Consider the Japanese method, as outlined by the Chiropractic Headache Clinic in Maywood, N.J.

★ ★ ★

The Japanese utilized a principle called "negi." This involved the individual sufferer biting on specially grown green onions with the back molars on that side of the mouth where the headache occurred. The bite was to be maintained until the headache went away.

This Machine Drinks It, Too

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Sometimes the machine age trips itself. Metalfax Magazine tells of a coffee machine that did just that when a vice president deposited a coin in the proper place and pushed coffee, double cream, and sugar buttons.

★ ★ ★

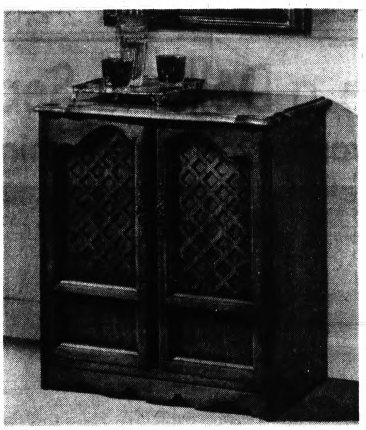

Automation took over. The proper amounts of coffee, double cream and sugar came out. But the cup never appeared. "That's real automation," the customer said. "This thing even drinks for you."

Just Call Him Member-at-Large

By BETTY CANARY

"There I was, on the highway of life," my friend Herman said, "and the middle of the road disappeared."

"How's that?" I asked.

"As a young man I always said I was a middle-of-the-roader," he said. "I wasn't a member of the Old Guard nor member of the Old Establishment."

could you have called me a Parlor Pink."

"This isn't possible any more?"

"No, and, as a matter of fact, I'm so confused now I don't know what I don't belong to, but I call myself a member-at-large establishment

"You mean you want to go on record as being dissatisfied with the status quo?"

"Who is Status Quo? See, I never can keep up with all this! Did he replace Ho Chi Minh?

"Calm yourself," I said. "Am I right in assuming you are having difficulty understanding the war in Vietnam?"

"That's part of it."

"What would you say your position was?"

"You could say I feel I'm a Dead Duck being torn between the Hawks and the Doves. But that isn't the only thing . . ."

"Tell me."

* * *

"Like I turned on my television and Rap Brown was there yelling 'Honky' at me and my little boy Eddie. Eddie thinks the guy wants to play cars and trucks and yells 'Honky, honk' right back at him. I try to explain this isn't what he means. I explain because I read where psychologists say I'm a bad father if I don't talk a lot to the kid. The next thing I know Eddie is saying I'm a white racist.

"I've always believed America is a melting pot and I don't know how the ghettos got here but I'm for doing away with them. Also, I go all out for the U.N. and for emerging African nations. I even learn how to pronounce Moise Tshombe before it's too late.

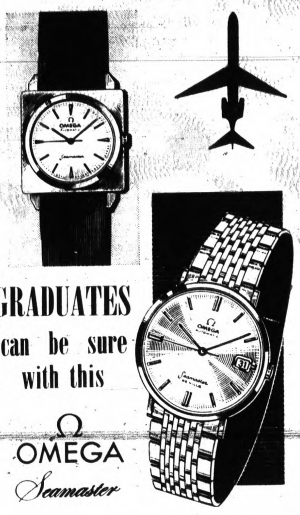

* * * *

"Then, I read how America is in the throes of a mental depression, but I still figure I'm sane until some big no-minds tell me God is dead. Next I find out I have no real choice in the elections and after that the teachers go on strike and now my oldest kid quits college but he won't tell my why because he doesn't trust anybody over 30."

"Well?

"I figure he's better off than me. Any more, I don't trust anybody."

Cut flowers will last longer if their ends are clipped with a sharp knife rather than scissors. Scissors compress the stems and water is not taken in so readily by the blooms.

Home Owners Keep On Getting Cheated

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant
in Money Management

Maybe you think you've heard them all — the fast pitch, the "guarantee" that doesn't exist, the "free" vacation to Florida that may turn out to cost you money. But don't be so sure you can't be taken in by the next slick promoter with plenty to offer and nothing to produce.

FEELEY

Every year the solid citizen, somewhere, turns out to be a patsy in some gyp deal. The Better Business Bureau keeps warning us—and we keep on shelling out our money for things we don't get. Home owners are prime targets for unethical peddlers and odd-job repairmen, especially this time of year, when the weather's right for all sorts of repairs and alterations.

★ ★ ★

Even if you think you're pretty canny, you may save money by running through a questionnaire for homeowners developed by the National Better Business Bureau. Here's a sampling of what to ask yourself before getting involved in any contract or "arrangement":

● Do you know the name of the salesman and the name and address of his company?

● Has the company or salesman claimed that your home would be used for advertising purposes — as a model job, or showhouse, or by display of their sign, and that for this you would be given a special price?

BIDS

● If any guarantee is given, is it in writing in the contract, clear and specific as to what it means and as to what will be done in event of trouble?

● In reference to long-time guarantees, have you reason to believe that the company will be in existence or financially able or willing to fulfill the guarantee in 10 or 15 or 20 years from now?

● Have you obtained more than one bid on the same job on exactly the same specifications?

● Do you know what brand, grade or quality of shingles or roofing the company you're dealing with will use?

● Regarding any repairs for which you expect to collect insurance, have you checked with the insurance company first, and before signing a contract?

● If work is to be sub-let, will you be protected against liens on your home?

● Are the things you want done specified clearly in the contract?

● Does the contract contain important verbal representations on which you depend?

● Does your contract promise labor only, you to pay in advance for or furnish all materials?

● Are you asked to pay in advance or to pay cash to a salesman instead of by check or money order to the company itself?

● Do you know that if your note or contract is sold to a third party, you are obligated to them regardless of complaint about the job?

● Are you asked to sign a completion certificate for the job by appeal, threat, or trick — before the job is properly completed?

● Are you asked to sign a blank contract?

Driving Rules for Protection in Pregnancy

CHICAGO, Ill. — Although nature has provided a remarkably safe environment for the unborn baby, man sometimes upsets this ecology — with dire consequences. This is what Dr. Isadore Dyer of the Tulane University Medical School told physicians attending a recent medical meeting here.

★ ★ ★

In a study in New Orleans of what happens to women and their unborn babies if they are in an auto accident, here is what Dr. Dyer found:

● Before 1961 there was no incidence of the uterus rupturing or the placenta separating as a result of car accidents. In the last seven years, however, there were several such incidents. These resulted from the sudden compression of the uterus by the seat belt as the auto decelerated rapidly, followed by enormous impact, such as happens when a car hits a tree.

● Although the fetus dies when the placenta separates in such an accident — the seat belt was found to save the life of the mother.

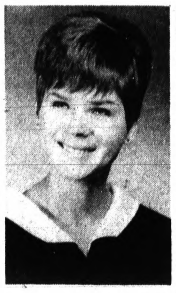

★ ★ ★

To lessen the risks of such accidents Dr. Dyer recommends that pregnant women wear seat belts low on the pelvic girdle; that they wear shoulder belts; and that they drive cars with a compressible steering wheel.

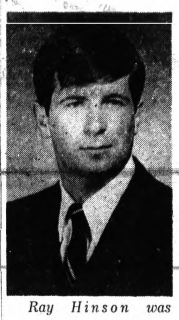

Toward the end of pregnancy women should do as little driving as possible since they are unavoidably clumsy.

Charlene Plans September Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Heslet of Island Drive, Union Lake, announce the engagement of their daughter, Norma Charlene, to Albert Thomas Clore. He is the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Clair B. Pollard of Onaway.

DID YOU EVER TASTE A FLOWER?

Did you ever eat a clove? It is simply the flower bud from a tropical tree. The seed from the flowers of anise, dill, coriander, cumin and lovage are used to flavor foods.

In some parts of the world flowering daisies and lilies are eaten. Violets are made into salads and wine is made from dandelions.

We feel they are to be seen, admired and enjoyed. Your order for flowers when placed with us, is given special attention. We love flowers, and it shows up in our efforts.

Commission OKs 8 Pct. Pay Hike for Top Officials

City commissioners last night unanimously approved 8 per cent pay raises for the city manager, directors of finance and law, the city clerk and the city's two municipal judges.

According to the commission resolution which approved the pay raises, a study had showed that the salaries of the city officials were below the average of comparable Michigan cities and below the average of salaries paid in private business and industry for jobs of similar responsibility.

★ ★ ★

The pay raise was made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1968.

Under the new terms, the city managers's salary goes from $23,000 to $24,840. The director of law's salary goes from $15,338 to $16,565 and the director of finance from $13,658 to $14,750.

OTHER RAISES

The city clerk gets a raise from $10,000 to $10,800 and the two municipal judges will get raises from $16,350 to $17,658.

It was noted that police officers and city fire fighters this year received raises of 15 per cent.

District 4 City Commission Jack Douglas objected to the flat 8 per cent raises for all the officials.

He indicated that each position should have been considered individually.

'MAY WARRANT MORE'

"One position may warrant a higher raise than 8 per cent and another may not warrant an 8 per cent raise," he said.

In other action, the commission:

- Authorized hiring the architectural firm of Denyes & Freeman Associates, Inc., to design a new fire station to replace the station at South Saginaw and Wilson.

★ ★ ★

- Approved a proposal of International Business Machines to rent data-processing equipment for $3,332 per month.
- Authorized the sale of 13 acres of land north of the city's water pumpimg station on Opdyke to D. B. Eames, a mechanical contractor, for $113,000 less the adjusted price of a 30-by-400-foot strip on which the city will build a public road.

PRELIMINARY APPROVAL

- Gave preliminary approval to an ordinance amendment which will cause terms of members of the Human Relations Commission to expire in December instead of during the summer months.
- Gave preliminary approval to an ordinance amendment which will lessen the amount of cash reserves of the city water system that will have to be on hand at any given time.

An expansion program of GMC Truck and Coach Division caused the city several months ago to sell the existing fire station on South Saginaw.

A new fire station will be constructed in the southwest quadrant of the city, City Manager Joseph A. Warren said.

He said several sites are under consideration but advised the commission that a new station be designed before the final site selection is made.

The architects, under the authorization, will receive a standard fee of 7 per cent of the project construction cost.

The commission followed the recommendation of the staff to accept the IBM proposal over those of three other bidders.

The IBM system is a well-proven system with numerous installations in the immediate area, Director of Public Works and Service Joseph E. Nelpling told the commission.

He said IBM has a large staff of service experts and supporting personnel in the area and this is of primary importance.

He said the staff also feels that the IBM equipment provides a broader and more versatile system of communication.

The land sale agreement calls for a 30-foot road to be built along the north boundary line of the city's water pumping station to 400 feet west of Opdyke.

Under the agreement, Eames will pay 50 per cent of the cost of the road. He is expected to construct a shop for plumbing contracting on the site.

The vote in authorizing the sale was 6-1 with District 5 Commissioner Robert F. Jackson objecting. He said he believed the city could receive a better price and could sell to a firm which would have more employes than the Eames firm.

Housing Panel Role Is Cited

For their contribution in working to secure federal participation in a planned 234-unit senior citizen housing project, the city commission last night passed a resolution honoring members of the City Housing Commission.

The commission also gave thanks in the resolutin to Howard H. Fitzgerald II, publisher of The Pontiac Press, for helping to secure governmental approval.

★ ★ ★

It was announced last week that the government had given preliminary approval to design plans for construction of the elderly housing project, to be located on Auburn just west of Opdyke.

Developer Charles L. Langs said construction probably will begin this summer.

★ ★ ★

Members of the housing commission are Karl A. Walter, Mrs. Harry Killian, Vernon Page, Mrs. Joseph Howard and Theodore Nellis.

Irwin Critical of Proposals on City Cars

District 2 City Commissioner Robert C. Irwin last night suggested that two proposals for a city policy on the use of city-owned cars by employes were unrealistic.

Several weeks ago Irwin asked for a report on the number of cars being used to drive to and from work by city employes and asked the administration to formulate a policy for future use.

★ ★ ★

He said the policies recently proposed by the administration could result in even more cost to the city.

He estimated that it cost the city $100,000 per year for employes to utilize the city-owned cars.

VARIETY OF REASONS

Irwin said the use of city cars by employes has grown over the years because of a variety of reasons. "But, this isn't peanuts and this isn't something we can let go," he said.

An administration report on the matter previously showed that 52 city cars were being used by employes to drive to and from work.

Service Groups Organizing Flag Day Rite

All area service groups will participate in Flag Day, Friday, Duane Shaw, director of the Oakland County Veteran Affairs Department, said today.

The David Belisle Post 1008 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars is planning a ceremony at the Pontiac Mall. Flags will be on display during the day with the massing of flags at 7 p.m. Short speeches on the origin of the American flag will be given during the day.

★ ★ ★

Organizations of any kind are urged to be present with their colors for the 7 p.m. ceremonies.

Organizations should contact the Post at 1690 Airport, Waterford Township, in advance if possible.

★ ★ ★

Chief Pontiac Post 337 will raise a flag at their post 4918 Edgewood which will stay up until the Vietnam war is over.

Principal Appointed at Bethune

JAMES HAWKINS

Just a year ago James Hawkins was in hot water at Pontiac's Bethune Elementary School, but now he has been appointed principal of that school.

★ ★ ★

Hawkins, 28, became embroiled in a controversy over his appointment as assistant project supervisor of Bethune's unique self-concept program.

It was then charged that Principal Charles W. Townsel should have had a say in the appointment. Administrators threatened to put the program in another school if complaining parents didn't cooperate.

★ ★ ★

But now Townsel has resigned to be assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum of the Dearborn Heights School District.

NAME LAST NIGHT

Hawkins, who gained the confidence of parents while directing the program designed to instill a positive self-image in pupils, was named to the principalship last night by the board of education.

"Mr. Hawkins has demonstrated leadership qualities in the developent of a self-concept program at Bethune Elementary School," Assistant Supt. Richard C. Fell told the board.

★ ★ ★

"He has exhibited drive, perseverance, good organizational ability and willingness to work long hours in accomplishing his goals."

Hawkins, a native of Pontiac, was a fifth grade teacher at Crofoot Elementary School for four years before going to Bethune.

'BEST SCHOOL'

Townsel, who was Bethune principal for two years, says he's leaving what students call "The best school in the universe" to make "Dearborn Heights the best school district in the universe."

In other administrative personnel matters, the board learned Joseph Sommerville, principal of Woodson Elementary School in Inkster, has turned down a job as new principal of Pontiac's Franklin Elementary School.

★ ★ ★

He has decided to take a position with Wayne Intermediate School District instead because it is directly related to his work for a doctoral degree, according to Fell.

Fell reported the administration will continue to look for a candidate for the position since their No. 2 choice is not interested either because he received a raise equal to Pontiac's offer.

NAMED TO POST.

Billy J. Rose, 33, coordinator of adult education, was named to become supervisor of apprenticeship and manpower programs in vocation and adult education.

★ ★ ★

He replaces Kenneth Huffman who was promoted to principal for Pontiac's yet-to-be built Area Vocational High School.

Administrators also are interviewing candidates for the post of assistant principal at Pontiac Central High School.

School System May Face Teacher Shortage

Pontiac School Affairs

Pontiac's school system faces a serious teacher shortage this fall unless teachers are hired at a faster than normal rate or new, unfilled positions are cut.

★ ★ ★

This was the opinion yesterday of Assistant Supt. Richard C. Fell who is in charge of personnel and administrative services.

The school district has been getting less applicants to fill more positions than last year even with an expanded on-campus recruitment program, Personnel Director Louis Crew explains.

★ ★ ★

Right now there are 103 instructional personnel vacancies, including 48 in elementary schools and 33 in junior and senior high schools.

Fell projected that schools could be 50 to 60 teachers short in September unless something is done.

Already 12 new, unfilled positions from 78 additional jobs planned for next school year have been eliminated, according to Fell.

More cuts could come if a salary settlement with the teachers drains dry funds which could be used for hiring additional teachers.

Along with the reduction in the number of teachers comes the likelihood that the size of classes will not be reduced much.

NORMAL VACANCIES

For this time of year, it is normal to have about 60 to 70 vacancies, Fell reports.

Last year some unfilled positions were cut after teacher negotiations were complete, yet four special education and two industrial education positions went unfilled.

★ ★ ★

Pontiac had 1,054 teaching positions this past school year.

Teacher turnover has bcome a real headache. Three years ago 13 per cent of the teachers left the system, Crew said, and more than 19 per cent last year.

REASONS FOR SHORTAGE

The situation looks just as bad this year, if not worse, he indicated.

Reasons for the Pontiac teacher shortage is reflected in a national teacher shortage and the fact that prospective teachers don't feel competent enough to handle Pontiac's challenges, Crew emphasizes.

Misconceived ideas of working conditions in the school district, which is 28 per cent Negro, are also a deterent in recruiting, he says.

★ ★ ★

In another effort to be competitive with surrounding school districts, the board of education last night okayed a policy giving new teachers to the system a higher salary for previous experience.

'CAREER' TEACHERS

Effective July 1, new teachers will get a maximum of six years experience with a bachelor's degree and seven years with a master's. They have been one year lower in each case.

Crew said he hopes this will attract more "career" teachers to Pontiac. Many teachers in the district have considerable teaching experience.

★ ★ ★

The school district is no haven for beginning teachers, Crew ways, but it hires about half of its new teachers right off the college campuses.

Recruiters from the school system visited 35 colleges and universities in the Midwest and South during the school year.

GOOD EFFECT

Passage of the recent millage increase here has had a good effect in attracting teachers since some nearby districts were not hiring any new teachers pending the outcome of Monday's millage elections.

★ ★ ★

Many teachers are leaving because of marriages, maternity leaves and for advance study, according to Crew.

And housing for Negro teachers, which make up about 20 per cent of the staff, is still a problem, he said. Several Pontiac Negro teachers who live in Detroit have taken jobs there because it is closer to home and pays more.

14 to End Careers in City Education

A few tears are bound to be shed for or by 14 teachers and principals this week as school lets out in Pontiac. The 14 are retiring after devoting a total of 361 years to the school system.

Instructional personnel and three members of the noninstructional staff were honored last night for their devoted service in a board of education resolution.

★ ★ ★

Central Elementary School loses principal Mrs. Marion Hinkley, who has been in education 41 years, and fifth grade teacher Mrs. Ann Pelissier who has worked in Pontiac 42 years.

Mrs. Hinkley, who ranks among administrators with the most experience in education in Oakland County, had this to say about children:

"It is difficult for parents, who come home from work tired, to give children today responsibility at home. Then when children come to school they are not ready for responsibility.

'MORE KNOWLEDGEABLE'

"But children then amaze me with what they can do here in school and at home. They are more knowledgable and capable today."

Mrs. Hinkley has worked in Pontiac schools for the past 23 years, the last 12 as principal at Central.

★ ★ ★

Another retiring principal is Mrs. Wilma Muldowney of Irving Elementary School. She has been in education 38 years, most of them in Pontiac.

Other retirees are: Lola Stokoe, third grade at Crofoot, 39 years in Pontiac; Neil Gray, foreign languages at Northern High School, 38 years; Mrs. Mildred Porritt, fourth grade at Willis School, 26 years.

Also, Mrs. Elizabeth Pepple, special education, Wever School, 25 years; Mrs. Laurine George, third grade, LeBaron School, 23 years; Mrs. Hazel Turner, first grade, Hawthorne School, 23 years; Mrs. Eula Varney, hearing technician, 23 years.

And, Mrs. Julia Carlson, teacher consultant, 22 years; Mrs. Hollis Henry, second grade, LeBaron, 20 years; Mrs. Eleanor Kuijala, kindergarten, Emerson School, 13 years; and Floyd Sumrill, industrial education, Lincoln Junior High, 10 years.

Strike Stalls Opening of New Facility

A new $1-million elementary school next to Pontiac's Lincoln Junior High School won't open this coming school year as planned because of the building strike.

This report was given to the board of education last night by Assistant Supts. William Lacy and Richard Fell who said other plans to relieve congestion at three nearby schools would have to be considered.

★ ★ ★

Administrators have shelved plans to redraw the attendance boundary lines between Crofoot, Bailey and Wisner elementary schools for the coming year.

Children were scheduled to occupy the new facility on West-Montcalm near Baldwin next January, according to Lacy.

COULD CHANGE

He cautioned, however, that the decision not to move in during 1968-69 year could be changed later.

Fell explained that the administration is considering sending 56 third, fourth and fifth graders in the northern section of the Crofoot attendance area to Bailey and Wisner this fall.

★ ★ ★

The same number of pupils displaced at Bailey and Wisner would go to two rented classrooms in a Presbyterian church on Oakland Avenue. They would move into the new school when ready.

In other business, the board:

● Heard a report that the dental fluoride program will run an estimated deficit of $1,810 during 1968-69 because of the salary being paid the hygienist.

● Accepted a $400 check from the Herrington Elementary School PTA to pay the first month's rent on lights recently installed around the school to prevent theft and vandalism.

Chlorine bleach gets clothes white. Sure it does.

But so does new Lightning White, the amazing laundry whitener and stain fighter—only safely.

Lightning White's not a bleach. It's better than bleach. It brightens colors as safely as it whitens whites. It does it by helping your detergent lift out dirt that causes staining, graying, and yellowing. With bleach, the dirt stays—only the color changes.

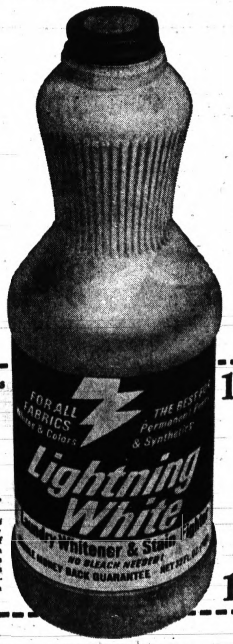

It's the best for permanent press. Lightning White penetrates hard-to-clean permanent press fabrics, lets your detergent get rid of dirt and stains.

It gets permanent press cleaner than detergent alone, cleaner than detergent and harsh bleach.

For all fabrics—whites and colors. Lightning White is even safe for use on washable synthetics that warn against the use of bleach.

No matter what the fabric, it beats anything else for clean—or double your money back.

Don't settle for ordinary white—get Lightning White.

LIGHTNING WHITE LAUNDRY CHART

GENERAL: Chlorine bleach should never be used as an all-purpose laundry aid.

Lightning White should always be substituted for chlorine bleach when a general clothes whitener is needed because bleach damages many fabrics.

Chlorine bleach should never be used on wool, silk, spandex, unfast colors, natural sponge and many wash-'n-wear items. Bleach should never be used on any fabric for any reason without first consulting the manufacturer's label.

Chlorine bleach should never be used in combination with common household ammonia. The resultant is a highly hazardous gas.

It is the opinion of many laundry experts that the amount of chlorine bleach recommended by the manufacturers of bleach is at least twice what is considered safe for cotton, linen, and other natural fabrics. It is suggested that when following label directions this fact be remembered.

It should be understood that chlorine bleach, no matter what its drawbacks are, is an excellent disinfectant. It should never be used as a disinfectant for clothes, however, without considering the damage it might do. One safe substitute: hydrogen peroxide.

It is wise to choose a substitute for chlorine bleach when trying to remove stains from clothes. However, there are a few cases where there is none less harmful than bleach.

When trying to remove stains from clothes, it is most important to remember that carbon tetrachloride is never to be used. Its fumes are harmful and sometimes fatal. This point is emphasized because a current stain-removal chart given wide circulation suggests the use of carbon tetrachloride. This suggestion is unthinkable.

STAIN-REMOVAL RECOMMENDATIONS:

Blood & meat juice. Soak in cold water. If stain remains, soak in 1 gal. lukewarm water, ¼ cup Lightning White & 3 tbls. household ammonia. Launder in lukewarm water & Lightning White & detergent. If necessary, use a diluted, safe household bleach.

Adhesive tape. Sponge with safe cleaning fluid or banana oil. Launder in Lightning White & detergent.

Alcoholic beverages. Sponge quickly with cold water, then with glycerine & water. Rinse in vinegar & water solution, then clear water. Launder in Lightning White & detergent.

Chewing gum. Rub with ice. Scrape off as much gum as possible. If stain persists, sponge with safe cleaning fluid. Launder in Lightning White & detergent.

Chocolate/cocoa. Apply paste of hot water & detergent. Rinse with hot water. Launder in LightningWhite & detergent. If stain persists, sponge with hydrogen peroxide.

Coffee/tea. Soak in cool water. Launder in Lightning White & detergent, with water as hot as fabric permits. If stain persists, bleach with hydrogen peroxide or other non-chlorine bleach.

Ice cream/cream/milk. Soak in cool water. Launder in Lightning White, detergent & hot (or warm) water.

Deodorant/perspiration. Apply solution of Lightning White & detergent. Launder in regular fashion.

Dye & running. For cottons & linen, treat with commercial color remover—for example, Tintex. For colorfast fabrics, soak in solution of hydrogen peroxide (1 tbls. to 1 gal. water) & 2 tbls. detergent. Fresh stains often respond to an immediate rinse in cold water.

Fruit. Launder in regular fashion with Lightning White & detergent. Now treat remaining stain as follows: cover area with sodium perborate bleach & add drops of hot water to make a paste. Next add a few drops of household ammonia. Wait 15-30 minutes, then launder again as above.

Grass. Launder in hot water, Lightning White & detergent. If stain persists, use chlorine bleach according to directions. Now rewash. For colorfast fabrics, use hydrogen peroxide to bleach, then launder in warm water, Lightning White & detergent.

Lipstick/rouge. Sponge with safe cleaning fluid. Launder in Lightning White & detergent.

Ink/ballpoint ink. No results are certain. Sponge with safe cleaning fluid, then brush on paste of detergent and household ammonia. On washable white fabrics, bleach if necessary with chlorine bleach according to directions on label. On washable colored fabrics, do as suggested above, only substituting perborate bleach for chlorine bleach. Launder in Lightning White & detergent.

Paint. Scrape off fresh paint. Sponge with safe cleaning fluid. Launder in Lightning White & detergent.

Rust. Apply salt and lemon juice. Place in sun (if possible) to dry. Now rinse. Finally launder in hot (or warm) water, Lightning White and detergent.

Soft drinks. Sponge with equal parts alcohol & glycerine or lukewarm water & alcohol. Launder in lukewarm water, Lightning White & detergent.

White socks. Soak in ½ cup Lightning White & ½ cup liquid detergent. Launder in regular fashion.

Yellow discoloration in synthetics. Soak for 1 hour in solution of ¼ cup Lightning White to 1 gal. water. Launder in solution of Lightning White only. Re-launder if necessary, adding cup of non-chlorine bleach. Always wash white garments in separate load. Note: yellowing may be the result of using chlorine bleach. Check the label on the garment for possible warning on this point.

Work clothes. Shake garments to remove loose soil. Turn down cuffs & turn out pockets. Soak in solution of ½ cup Lightning White & ½ cup liquid detergent. Launder in regular manner.

WW II Leader Says Order Stopped Him From Taking Hanoi

By GRANVILLE WATTS

LONDON (AP) — Lord Mountbatten, the top World War II allied commander in Southeast Asia, says President Harry S. Truman and Prime Minister Clement Attlee stopped him sending troops into Hanoi at the end of World War II to set up firm control there.

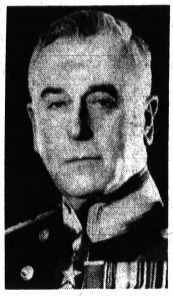

"I sent a division into Saigon and intended sending another into Hanoi. But just before I could do this I was told that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who was officially the supreme commander of China, would take over the north. And you know what happened then. It was swamped by Ho Chi Minh," he said.

* * *

Mountbatten, 67-year-old cousin of Queen Elizabeth II and former British defense chief, lifted the lid on some of his secrets in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press.

* * *

"The troubles in Vietnam stem from the arbitrary division of the country by the allied powers," Mountbatten said. "After the Japanese surrender I was ordered to send my forces into the countries they had occupied in southeast Asia and President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee stopped me going north of the 16th parallel. Otherwise we could have done something there.

LORD MOUNTBATTEN

ROOT OF TROUBLE

"It's not for me to comment on the Vietnam war. But I can say that the Vietnam troubles stemmed from the fact that there was an arbitrary division made at the 16th parallel following the allied decision at Potsdam.

"So the north of French Indochina was hived off. I suppose it was a question of face. Chiang was supposed to run the area to the north. That's where the trouble stems from."

Mountbatten, confidant of Britain's royal family and prime ministers, was viceroy at the hand-over of India in 1947.

Mountbatten said the real cold war is going on in Asia — between democracy in India and communism in China, the world's two most populous nations.

MEANS DEFEAT

"These two systems are now going forward in the eyes of the world. If either of them break down it will be a great defeat," he added. "If India fails it will be the worst defeat for democracy. If China falls down it will be the worst for communism.

"It seems to me this is where the cold war is being fought. This is a matter of the greatest importance for the rest of the world. If India goes down to communism, I don't need to prophesy the results."

* * *

Mountbatten, spry and looking fit, paced the floor of his London home as he spoke.

His life has been crammed with action and glamor, spanning the years from the time he was held in the arms of Queen Victoria at his christening at Windsor in 1900.

Lord Louis has been reliving these years in preparing a series of 12 television programs in color called "The Life and Times of Lord Mountbatten," to be screened in Britain later this year.

* * *

"I have had 19 requests to write my biography and refused 19 times," he said. "But all my life I have been a tremendous movie fan. I even appeared in a film once, a one-reeler by Charlie Chaplin called 'Nice and Friendly,' which appears in the series.

* * *

"I have kept in very close touch with the film and TV world ever since. I was unable to resist the temptation when my son-in-law, film producer Lord Brabourne, put the idea of a TV series to me."

Mountbatten said his "supporting cast" includes personal appearances by his nephew Prince Philip, the Duke of Windsor, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, Lord Avon, Harold MacMillan. Mountbatten revisited the scenes of wartime battles in Burma and other parts of Asia while making the series.

RECALLS GANDHI

Recalling his time as the last viceroy of India, Mountbatten said: "I remember Gandhi with great affection. He was a very sweet old boy. He was very excited when Prince Philip got engaged to Princess Elizabeth.

* * *

"He said 'I'm so delighted that your nephew is going to marry the future queen. I would like to give a wedding present, but I have nothing. What can I give them?' I wrote back and said 'You have nothing, but you have a spinning wheel so get cracking and spin them something.'

* * *

"So Gandhi made them a table cloth. I sent a note with it to Princess Elizabeth saying 'This you lock up with the crown jewels.'"

Becoming Britain's First Sea Lord in 1955 was the achievement of a life-long ambition for Mountbatten. It was the fulfillment of a youthful pledge — a pledge to crown the vindication of the family name.

FATHER FORCED OUT

Mountbatten's father, Prince Louis of Battenberg, was forced out as First Sea Lord early in World War I by public indignation over his German ancestry. He anglicized the family name to Mountbatten and the Royal Navy he helped to build subsequently whipped the Kaiser's fleet.

Mountbatten had a reputation as a bit of a playboy in his younger days. His marriage, like everything else about the Mountbattens, was a glamorous affair. He married a beautiful heiress, Edwina, granddaughter of the famous financier, Sir Ernest Cassell. The marriage linked 24 million pounds to Mountbatten's own fortune.

* * *

Lady Mountbatten made her own name as a social and charity worker on a worldwide scale. She died in 1960 while touring North Borneo as superintendent-in-chief of Britain's St. John Ambulance Brigade.

Towering Redwood Park Tiff

Debate Grows, Trees Fall

By SID MOODY

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — The side road broke off from the hiss of traffic along the coastal highway.

It bent its way past mucky fields pillboxed with dead cars moldering to rust; past a weather-wearied farmhouse slumping in the noon warmth. Then, abruptly, it dipped into the cool half dark of a forest. Sun shafts speared the gloom, turning the hulking columns crowding the road the hue of caked blood.

★ ★ ★

Timeless monoliths . . . giants long standing when man first walked . . . deeply seamed as if by such ancient knowledge . . . rooted in countless layers of the ages, arrowing up through primordial shadows, up to the sky high above . . .

PAWNS OF MAN

Redwoods: triumphs of nature. And pawns of man.

It is easy to get emotional about the redwoods, and a great many people have.

★ ★ ★

It is not so easy to decide what shall become of them, although a great many people are trying. So many, in fact that "The Great Redwood Debate" has the decorum of Saturday night in a logging camp.

"Timber!" cry partisans of all sides as they dive into the fray. But to the lumber industry, timber means board feet and patio furniture. To the conservationists — "those deep breathers" to their critics — timber is a tree made by God, uncut by man.

BETWEEN EXTREMES

Somewhere between these extremes is the campaign to create a national redwood park, a park that will preserve enough redwoods for ages to come, yet leave enough for the timber industry of today.

Few, really, are opposed to such a park. But opinion as to where it should be, how big it should be and what it should be is a many-splintered thing. For every pro there is a con. By and large, the debate is well-intentioned. But it keeps whipping to and fro like a two-man saw to no decision.

★ ★ ★

And meanwhile the trees fall.

The coast redwood — sequoia sempervirens, always green — is the world's tallest tree. It is not even the biggest or oldest tree in California. Its cousin, the Sierra sequoia, is heftier and the bristlecone pine can live twice as long — 4,500 years. But en masse in their forests the coast redwoods have singular beauty. They also have singular resistance to termites, decay and fire; low shrinkage and clear grain.

'TOO GOOD TO LIVE'

"As lumber, the coast redwoods were too good to live," said John Muir, founder of the Sierra Club, a leading conservationist organization.

True. So the trees fall . . .

There were perhaps two million acres of coast redwoods when Russian settlers began harvesting them early in the 19th century. Today little more than a tenth of that remains uncut. Within 10 years, some say, the last privately owned virgin growth will be gone.

★ ★ ★

Friends of the forest have long been active against such a day. The first park proposal came in 1852, the first actual park in 1902. In 1918 private citizens organized the Save-the-Redwoods League. In the intervening half century, the league, on a matching basis with the state, has spent $23 million to set aside 117,000 acres in state parks. Most of this was bought from private industry which preserved land for just such use, paying taxes on it all the while. The Pacific Lumber Co., for instance, has held one choice 2,100-acre tract for 40 years. In one recent year this cost it $33,000 in taxes.

In those parks is an estimated one-quarter to one-half of all the superlative river flat groves that ever existed. Much of this land was acquired during the Depression when redwood timber sold for less than a hundredth of what it brings today.

HOUSING BOOM

But then came the postwar housing boom. And the trees fell.

Private industry currently takes about 900 million board feet a year — around 15,000 acres — from its 850,000 acres. Industry reseeds, and most of its foresters think it will be able to balance its harvest with new growth at the present cut level — if no more land is "lost" to the parks.

★ ★ ★

The matter is central to the park debate.

John Miles, a redwood forestry consultant, says "the present privately owned growth timber is adequate — just barely — to sustain the industry until the great acreage of second growth becomes merchantable two or three decades hence."

'GET-OUT' FORESEEN

Conservationists, particularly the Sierra Club, dispute this. This say the companies will "cut out and get out" and therefore their arguments about losing further land are specious. They don't need the land to stay in business because they don't intend to anyway.

In rebuttal, industry notes that Georgia-Pacific Corp. and the Simpson Lumber Co. have spent over $70 million in new redwood pulp plants — a new use for the wood — in the last few years, have developed processes to use waste redwood scraps that used to be burned and that these new technologies will enable them to get more wood from the same acreage.

★ ★ ★

"For my money," says an official of the National Park Service, "the companies aren't spending this kind of dough just to go out of business."

The world, if it had to, could survive without redwood lumber. But without a redwood forest?

"If a full range of redwood is not preserved, we are left with a chapter missing," says Dave Van de Mark, a young college student who is head of a local group called Citizens for a Redwood Park. "It could take years to find out what that chapter might have meant."

So the Sierra Club, which originally proposed a 90,000-acre park but has trimmed it to 73,000, claims its proposal is the minimum for a national park worthy of the name.

★ ★ ★

But its park, alas, is neither the same size nor in the same place as that recommended by the National Park Service (NPS).

The club's park would be established along Redwood Creek and would include the existing Prairie Creek State Park as well as the drainages of Lost Man and Little Creeks. It would take all 22,000 acres of the Arcata Redwood Co. — ARCO — and a good slice of Georgia-Pacific which the giant lumber firm says is vital to its redwood operations.

VIRGIN TIMBER

The NPS park, proposed in the so-called "administration" bill, calls for a 43, 434-acre park which would include Jedediah Smith and Del Norte Coast Redwoods State Parks — about 15,000 acres, of which 12,000 is virgin — adjacent acreage from private firms including 18,000 of the Rellim Lumber Co. and 1,600 acres along Redwood Creek to the south where the National Geographic Society claimed to have found the tallest redwoods in 1964 — now called the Tall Trees area.

★ ★ ★

Interest in a national park accelerated after the discovery of the Tall Trees and a particularly noticeable timbering by ARCO along Route 101. Although a timbered redwood tract is soon busy with fledgling giants, for a while it admittedly "looks like hell," as a candid forester put it. ARCO's cut looked like hell for all to see, and they did and began hollering.

Between the Sierra Club's bill and the administration proposal is a third or "compromise" bill, numbered S2515, passed by the Senate last year and now before the House. This calls for a park of up to 66,000 acres, including the administration's proposals on Mill Creek and 35,000 acres containing the Tall Trees, Lost and Little Lost Man Creeks in a southern unit.

Also involved is the exchange of the so-called northern purchase unit for land owned by private timber firms within the park boundaries of S2515. The purchase unit, covering 14,491 acres, is owned by the U.S. Forest Service for timber and as a forest study project.

Negro Contributions to U.S. Need Telling

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.
Executive Director
National Urban League

Black students who have been sitting-in and demonstrating on many college campuses in recent months have many legitimate demands, but few are so obviously right as their demands for courses in Negro history and culture.

YOUNG

I find it hard to imagine how the intellectuals and scholars who run our universities can resist instituting such courses. They aren't just for Negro students—they are for all students since blacks and whites in America share a common history. Because schools at all levels have refused to teach Negro history, Americans of all races are ignorant about their own country's past.

* * *

I'm convinced that part of the problems we face today are directly related to the way school texts have erased the Negro contribution to America.

People are always talking about the Pilgrims and the landing of the Mayflower. But how many know that Negroes were in America long before the English? In fact, it is believed that a navigator in Columbus' little fleet that discovered America in 1492 was a black man.

NEGRO EXPLORERS

Negroes were with the Spanish explorers who discovered the Pacific Ocean, Mexico, South America and the American West. Esteban, a black man, was the first non-Indian to set foot on present-day Arizona and New Mexico. And he was just the first great Negro explorer.

Closer to our own day, Matt Henson was the first explorer to reach the North Pole, although he doesn't figure in the history books which give all the credit to Adm. Peary. Nor do the textbooks mention that the first settler in what is now Chicago, was a Negro, Jean Baptiste du Sable.

From the way the newspapers play up the Negro fighting man in Vietnam (quite rightly, too) you would think that Negroes never fought in America's other wars. But black men took part in every single war America ever fought.

* *

Crispus Attucks, a runaway slave, was the first casualty in what became the American Revolution, killed by a British bullet in the Boston Massacre. Black men fought at Lexington, Concord, and Bunker Hill. They were with Ethan Allen's Green Mountain Boys, and were among the Minutemen who responded to Paul Revere's famous midnight ride. And they were at Washington's side at Valley Forge.

About 200,000 Negroes fought in the Union Armies during the Civil War, fighting for their own freedom. Black units were with Andrew Jackson in the Battle of New Orleans, with Teddy Roosevelt at San Juan Hill, and with Pershing in World War I.

* * *

Benjamin Banneker, a famous Negro mathematician, was on the commission that drew up the plans for the city of Washington, D. C., and the poems of Phillis Wheatley, a slave, were read and admired in America and London. Even the shoes on our feet were made possible by the invention of a shoe-lasting machine by Jan Matzeliger, a black man.

Next time your kids come home from school and say they learned that slaves were relatively content with their lot, tell your local school authorities to stop teaching lies.

In little ways, like damaging machines and playing dumb, and in big ones, like the Nat Turner revolt and the nearly 250 other recorded rebellions, Negroes resisted the slave system.

The whole South was in terror of slave revolts, and even the defenders of slavery admitted that Negroes would take every opportunity to run away or to fight for their freedom.

* * *

Very little of this finds its way into American classrooms, but it should be taught. Negroes helped to build this country. Our blood was shed in its wars, our sweat was shed in the unpaid labor that its prosperity depended on, and our tears were shed in the countless brutalities of racism.

For good or ill, the history of America is a history of the relations between blacks and whites, and no amount of falsified teaching or censorship of the past can erase the glorious contributions of Negroes to the American past—and present.

Car Output Tops People Production

By BOB COCHNAR
NEA Automotive Editor

NEW YORK — In Fellini's fine film, "8½," there is a scene in which the protagonist is trapped in a sickening, sense-bruising traffic jam.

A carbon monoxide haze hangs in the hot, sticky air. Sweat-soaked drivers beat out their frustrations on shrill horns. And nothing moves.

That, the cynics say, is the way the world will end — in a gnarled heap of overheated cars and bodies.

Well, with politics being what they are, the chances that the automobile will figure prominently in the world's demise are reasonably slim.

CAUSE FOR ALARM

There is still some cause for moderate alarm, however, because in the United States motor vehicle population is growing faster than the human population.

According to R. L. Polk & Co., the people who take care of automotive statistics, cars and trucks are expanding at an annual rate of three per cent while we humans are multiplying at the rate of two per cent a year.

* * *

True, there are 200 million Americans and (in 1967) only 87.9 million cars and trucks but if the automotive industry and Planned Parenthood have anything to say about it—and they do — the gap will narrow.

Polk's annual automotive census also shows that Californians own 9.4 million vehicles, more than anybody else. New York is second with 5.7 million and Texas runs third with 5.2 million.

Where are the fewest cars? In Alaska (81,616), Vermont (176,708), Wyoming (203,397) and Hawaii (292,199). But Alaska has more airplanes per capita. Vermont has more maple syrup and Hawaii more surfboards.

Polk offers a number of interesting numbers. Items:

- Scattered throughout the country are 43,278 Edsels which were built for three years (1958-1960). Only 49 Vermonters still maintain them but 5,556 Californians are still not ready to put their Edsels in the salvage yard.
- Although 1961 was the last year for the DeSoto, 234,117 are still around somewhere.
- There are 92 1955 Mercurys in Alabama and 219 1954 Studebakers in Kansas.

MICHIGAN SPEEDWAY

Finally, somebody has decided that the Midwest could stand another top-class speedway. Indianapolis simply isn't — and never was — enough.

Larry LoPatin, president of the Michigan International Speedway, now abuilding in Irish Hills, about 65 miles southwest of Detroit, promises a USAC championship race on Oct. 6.

The promoters say the $4.5-million facility not only has a two-mile "D" oval (so-called because it looks like the letter D), but a twisting, three-mile road circuit. And grandstands which allow spectators to see every part of the road course, which is something of a novelty.

Jimmy Stewart Reflects on Years in AF

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — James Stewart recently ended a 27-year career with a rare distinction: the Air Force's Distinguished Service Medal.

It was only the second time that the honor had been bestowed on a Reserve officer. The citation said that "the singularly distinctive accomplishments of Gen. Stewart culminate a long and distinguished career in the service of his country and reflect the highest credit upon himself and the U.S. Air Force."

THOMAS

* * *

Having retired from the service at 60, Jimmy Stewart returned from the Washington ceremonies and indulged in some rare reflection on his years with the Air Force. Actually, it was the Army Air Corps when he was drafted on March 22, 1941. Stewart took his training at Moffatt Field, Calif., was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1942, went to England in 1943, flew 20 combat missions over Germany and left active duty as a colonel in 1945.

He has never talked much about his wartime years, and he said that he doesn't think much about them.

REMINDED OF WAR

"But I'm reminded of the war every now and then when I run into men who were in my outfit," he said. "Like Maj. Gen. Andrew Lowe, who was at my retirement in Washington. I was operations officer, and he was my assistant. Now he's in the plans department."

Stewart explained why he chose to remain in the Air Force Reserve: "I got a lot out of my experience in the service during the war; I think that experience helped make me a better civilian. I was greatly impressed with the caliber of men I met and worked with, and I wanted to continue that relationship."

* * *

For the next 23 years, the actor spent two or three weeks a year on active duty, including two visits to Vietnam. His most memorable experience, he said, was working with Gen. Curtis E. LeMay during the formative period of the Strategic Air Command. In addition to his active duty, Stewart made numerous appearances for the Air Force, in person and on film and television.

He conceded that some highly vocal segments of today's society are antimilitary, but he said that such expressions are common in peacetime.

'TUCKED AWAY'

"When I was a kid, military people were tucked away on a base somewhere; they never took part in any of the civic functions," he remarked. "If a boy ran off and joined the Army, he was considered to be a failure.

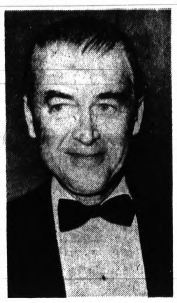

* * *

"Now the military is very much a part of our society, and I think that's a good thing. I find the caliber of military personnel is very high. You find among them a tough-mindedness and spirit to do the job correctly.

"The service academies aren't just technical schools any more; they're now stressing the humanities and the liberal arts. The Air Force Academy produces as many Rhodes Scholars as any university in the United States. That's a pretty good indication that it is producing not just leaders, but scholars.

* * *

"Yes, I know a lot of people say, 'The military's only purpose is to make war—to kill.' I don't believe that. I've found in the military almost a reverence for humanity. When you deal with the kind of person I've encountered in the service, patriotism makes sense."

JAMES STEWART

OCCEO Dental Care Earning Big Smiles

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the sixth in a series of articles on the people and programs of the Oakland County Commission on Economic Opportunity — the antipoverty war.)

Mrs. Rebecca Solomon probably receives more grateful smiles than anyone else in the county's antipoverty program.

She handles the adult dental care program for the Oakland County Commission on Economic Opportunity (OCCEO). In no other aspect of helping the disadvantaged can the benefits be as clearly and immediately obvious.

* * *

Working out of the North Opportunity Center at 7 W. Lawrence, Mrs. Solomon has the rating of community aide. The aides do the "nitty-gritty" work of the OCCEO, working directly in service to low-income families, organizing groups, advising and helping in many ways.

Two of her working days each week are devoted to the dental care program which is for adults only. Cases of persons needing dental care but without funds are referred to her from several community sources.

'TERRIBLE SHAPE'

"Some of my cases are in terrible shape. They really need help," Mrs. Solomon said. "A lot of them are afraid to talk or open their mouth because their teeth are so bad. They held their hand up over their mouth so you can't see."

Mrs. Solomon explained when a family is low on funds they "let their teeth go." After a while the situation can become a trap in which the person's teeth are so bad, his health and personality are impaired. This makes it more and more difficult to work and get funds to fix their teeth, she said.

* * *

Cases coming to her attention often reflect a bad environment, poor nourishment and a discouraged outlook on life. While Mrs. Solomon's efforts cannot change all those things, she sees restoring teeth as a vital first step.

"You can see a change in the whole personality," she said.

OCC CLINIC

The OCCEO clients are treated at the clinic at Highland Lakes Campus of Oakland Community College on Cooley Lake near Williams Lake roads. In charge is Dr. John A. Ohlson of Rochester.

Mrs. Solomon handles the paper work connected with the cases and also assists in some phases of the dental assistant' work. The service is not just a "yank 'em or fill 'em" proposition, but the full range of dental services including root canals, partial plates, full dentures, etc., she said.

* * *

"Our objective is to try and save their teeth," said Mrs. Solomon. Cost of some of the care is sometimes in the $400-to-$500 category. "For these people, that much money would have been impossible," she said.

* * *

The OCCEO dental program for low-income adults is the only funded program in the county. The Health Department does provide a program for children and contributes to the adult program in the form of providing use of facilities.

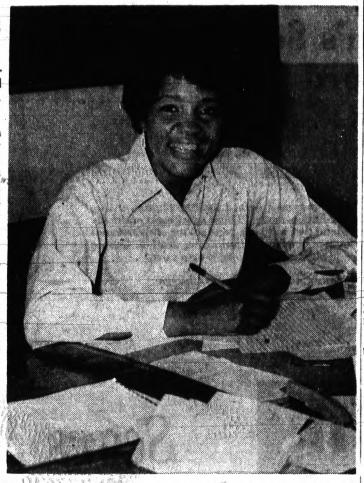

LIMITED NATURE

The only drawback to the program, according to Mrs. Solomon, is its limited nature. Just about 30 cases can be handled during any one period. A waiting list of 90 exists at present, she said.

Edward P. Revis, acting director of the OCCEO, said the program has been in existence two years. "We've uncovered a real pressing need here. The waiting period for help is now about a year.

* * *

"I hope to see our county agencies assume more of this responsibility," he said. Revis said the ideal situation would be to have continuous, preventative program for adults with a central clinic. "This is one of the most worthwhile and direct means of helping the disadvantaged," he said.

The Viennese have an even wider choice of pastries to accompany their coffee, but these days only the weak succumb.

The city of whipped cream and the famous chocolate Sachertorte has embraced the cult of staying thin, reports Peter T. White, in the June issue of National Geographic.

A Viennese psychologist explained the phenomenon: "After the war we had a mania to make up for lost eating. For years we stuffed ourselves, but now the trend is the other way."

Life has steadily improved for the Viennese since occupation years ago, White found. Austria's schilling ranks among the most stable of currencies. The iron curtain at the city's doorstop no longer terrifies.

President-Elect Tells of Hopes

Goals for PEA Are Outlined

One of the most outstanding new master teaching contracts in the state is one goal of the president-elect of the Pontiac Education Association (PEA).

RIEMENSCHNEIDER

Verne Riemenschneider, a social studies teacher at Washington Junior High School for 17 years, said the PEA's theme for 1968-69 is "Teacher Power for Positive Action."

According to Riemenschneider, his 10 goals for PEA are:

- All Pontiac teachers will either belong to the PEA and its state and national affiliates or pay dues to them if a member of the Pontiac Federation of Teachers.
- Eight goals in the five-year plan in the teachers current contract, which expires next June, will be adopted.

TOP SALARIES INCLUDED

It includes salaries in the upper 10 per cent of districts in the Detroit area, tuition reinbursement, extension of personal leave provisions, additional salary levels, longevity increment and professional incentive factor.

- Development of a new master contract for adoption next June.
- "The PEA would like to be represented on the screening committee for the selection of administrators," he said. "Much has been said on this subject for several years and other school districts have adopted the plan, so it's about time Pontiac moves forward."
- "Another bone of contention with many Pontiac teachers is their feeling that they are not being supported to the degree they would like to be in the area of discipline.

'LACK OF SUPPORT'

"This lack of support comes not only from the building administrators but also from the central administration."

Procedures for excluding students has not been followed in many cases, Riemenschneider contends.

* * *

"We propose that a committee consisting of association and administration members be established to hear the complaints of these teachers and then take action to solve the problems to the satisfaction of the teachers," he proposed.

- The PEA will continbe to help solve civil rights problems through its task force team composed of teachers and members of civil Rights Commission, Urban League, central administration, NAACP, police department and other Negro groups.
- Continue political action, including efforts to pass the "professional practices act" which gives the teacher full control of his profession.
- PEA will work for a greater say in development of school curriculum.
- Administrators and teachers should be evaluated each year to improve the instructional program. Teachers would evaluate their administrators and school program.
- PEA's executive board will make itself available to members more and use news media to report event.

Old Practices to End When County Supervisors Reapportion

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first in a two-part series on the reapportionment of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors and how it affects county residents.)

By ED BLUNDEN

Principles and practices of more than 100 years will end when the new Oakland County Board of Supervisors is reapportioned to the one-man, one-vote requirement starting in January.

The primary change will be the direct election of members for the first time. Heretofore members were appointed by their city or else were entitled to the position after being elected supervisor of their township.

* * *

Thus the county's 25 townships held 25 seats out of a possible 87. Cities were given a number of supervisors in accordance with population.

Both Pontiac and Royal Oak have seven each and such cities as Rochester and Orchard Lake one each. With populations of about 80,000 (1960 census) for Royal Oak and Pontiac, each of their supervisors could be said to be representing 12,000 people. This offered a semblance of population-orientated representation.

BLUNDEN

VARIANCE EXISTS

However, great variance existed among township supervisors and the population they represented. For instance Waterford Township sent a single person for its 47,000 people (in 1960: about 60,000 now) while another member represented Novi Township with less than 100. Because almost all of Novi is incorporated in a village, the 6,000 persons there were not represented at all.

In both Novi and Royal Oak townships, land area is less than a square mile with the remaining approximately eight miles incorporated into cities or villages.

* * *

Thus these supervisors represented miniscule pieces of real estate compared to the supervisors from such a township as Springfield or Oakland where the entire nine square miles sent a single member to the board.

In actuality, the board of supervisors could not be said to have been based on either population or land mass but purely on a set of circumstances. The setup, based on English government, had served since the frontier days of Michigan in the early 1800s but the formula no longer had any logic.

SETUP TYPICAL

Though the Oakland County Board of supervisors at present seem strangely constituted the setup was rather typical in Michigan and other states with the same form of government.

This does not hold with the U.S. Constitution, it was ruled by both the U.S. and State supreme courts.

* * *

The adaption in the county to the one-man, one-vote principle will be accomplished in the Aug. 6 primary and November election with the new body, cut from 87 to 27, assuming its duties in January 1969. Each man will represent approximately 25,000 persons.

The reapportionment plan was drawn up by a five-man committee and completed last June. On the committee, in accordance with state law, were the county clerk-register, treasurer and prosecutor and chairman of the Republican and Democratic parties.

The only difficulty, some found, was that the committee ended up with just one Republican, County Chairman Joseph R. Farnham.

On behalf of his party, feeling the districting had favored the Democratic vote, Farnham took the matter to court where it was held up until June 1.

This gave anyone who desires to run for the new positions just 18 days, until June 18, to make up their minds, get a petition and file it.

Thus a scramble is on. There's bound to be a lot of new faces with the representation shifting heavily to the densely populated northeast corner of the county. Many old faces will disappear from the county courthouse.

NOT RUNNING

For instance David Levinson, appointee from Birmingham, who served the board since 1938, is not even running. Earl Rhinevault of Groveland Township (pop. 1,400), with 20 years on the board, finds himself in a district with five townships and the chance of being elected very slim, if he chooses to run.

And the candidates will have to align themselves with a political party. Though some of the members were active in their respective parties, the county supervisors in the past have made a point of attaching the sanctity of nonpartisanship to their decisions.

The specter of "party politics" could be thrusting its head into into Oakland County government.

Local Racial Survey Shows Liberal Bent

By BOB WISLER

Pontiac may be a more liberal town on the issue of racial relations than many persons in the past have been willing to believe.

WISLER

When city commissioners passed an open-housing ordinance in January most of those on the commission feared or concluded that any referendum election on the issue would spell certain defeat for the ordinance.

But the tide of events just may have changed that.

★ ★ ★

According to a recent urban opinion survey, most white registered voters in Pontiac approve of the state and federal open-housing laws.

MORE LIBERAL

It showed that far more white registered voters in Pontiac favor a more liberal approach to the problems of Negroes than those who want to hold the line or prefer to adopt a racist approach.

★ ★ ★

These statements may even be surprising to those who gave opinions to the survey takers. One conclusion drawn from the survey indicates that a person's own ideas on racial problems are far more liberal than the ideas which he thinks his neighbors have.

CAMPAIGNING

The opinion survey was conducted on behalf of the Friends of Fair Housing, a group which is campaigning to secure voter approval of a city fair-housing ordinance in a special referendum election June 24.

★ ★ ★

According to Rudolph Fink, a statistician and campaign consultant, the survey can predict with clear accuracy the predominant feeling of the city from the sampling taken.

Used as interviewers were 40 students from Oakland University. Most opinion polls use housewives as telephone interviewers, Fink said.

The poll was conducted by telephone between 6 and 10 p.m. May 29 and data was processed by computing machinery.

★ ★ ★

Fink conducted similar polls for organizations interested in passage of fair-housing ordinances in Flint and Birmingham.

He said he believes the results of such a poll today would be influenced strongly by the death of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy with even more liberal of a response.

LISTS OF VOTERS

The sampling of residents was taken from voter registration lists, which include Republican and Democrats, and was confined to Districts 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, which are mostly white districts, he said.

According to the survey, race or problems related to race are considered by the public to be the most important problems facing Pontiac at this time.

Those polled could have given any answer but 36 per cent volunteered that this issue was their prime cause of concern. The public's next concern was Pontiac's downtown (urban renewal, parking, vacant stores, need for a tax base, etc.), chosen as Pontiac's most important problem by 28 per cent. Further, many Pontiac citizens see these two problems as related to each other.

Another 7 per cent said taxes and 3 per cent mentioned something related to education.

NO ANSWER

Some 22 per cent gave no answer or couldn't make up their minds.

This is not unusual with this type of question, Fink said. The interviewers accepted any answer and did not press anyone to answer.

When prompted that "many people consider the racial problem our most important," 94 per cent were able to choose one of three courses of action as the most favorable solution. Given three specific alternatives and no others, the respondents chose in the following manner:

★ ★ ★

- 59 per cent favored, "Help the Negroes catch up with the white community."
- 30 per cent favored "Let the Negroes work out their own problems."
- 5 per cent favored, "Separate the races."
- 6 per cent declined to or could not give an answer.

Some 56 per cent approved of the state and federal open-housing laws, while 30 per cent said they disapproved. Another 14 per cent indicated that they did not know enough about the laws to give an opinion, or that the question seemed academic since the state and federal laws were on the books.

What is particularly significant, Fink said, is that only 22 per cent of those poled said they felt their neighbors were in favor of open-housing law in Pontiac, while 36 per cent indicated they felt their neighbors were against such a law.

★ ★ ★

About 42 per cent said they didn't know how their neighbors felt, or thought they were "divided evenly for and against.

Fink said he believes this shows that neighbors have a strong influence on the voter — either by providing a crutch or reinforcing an opion.

MORE LIBERAL

But, he said, the results also show that the typical Pontiac voter is a great deal more liberal than he thinks his neighbors are.

Some of the other conclusions drawn from the survey:

- Younger persons (age 21 to 35) are generally more liberal, more likely to approve of open-housing laws, more likely to disregard their neighbors' opinions, and are more concerned about race than older age groups, but the 36-49 age group shows high desire to adopt a liberal approach also.

★ ★ ★

- Higher-income families generally were more approving of federal laws and took the most liberal approach to solving racial problems.
- In every district studied there was a purality of persons who favored the state and federal open-housing laws.

BIG PLURALITY

- In every district studied there was also far more persons who favored a liberal approach to race (help the Negroes catch up) than there were persons who wanted to merely "Let Negroes work out their own problems."
- Yet in every district studied, the respondents felt that more of their neighbors were against any liberal approach to racial problems than were for a liberal approach.

Fink said that there is a tendency during rapid shifts of public attitude for the public awareness of the shift to lag behind the shift itself.

Taking a look at persons who said they opposed a local ordinance, 15 per cent believed the best solution to race was to separate the races, 50 per cent wanted to let Negroes work out their own problems and only 31 per cent chose to help Negroes catch up. The remaining 4 per cent did not answer.

88 PCT. OPPOSED

In the same group, 88 per cent said they disapproved of state and federal open-housing laws.

In contrast, of those who said they favored a Pontiac ordinance, 90 per cent said they favored the state and federal laws, 74 per cent said, "Help the Negro catch up," 20 per cent said, "Let them work out their own problems" and none wanted to separate the races.

★ ★ ★

Those in favor believed that 35 per cent of the neighbors were for open housing, 22 per cent said their neighbors disapproved and 40 per cent said they didn't know. The balance did not answer.

Conversly, of the "against" group, 4 per cent said their neighbors were for open housing, 67 per cent said their neighbors were against and 24 per cent said they didn't know.

Here's a breakdown of how residents in each district reacted to the poll.

Public Worker Strike Bans No Guarantee Against Walkouts

By The Associated Press

Some of the 17 states with laws banning strikes by public employes have learned the hard way that such measures—even those with tough penalties—are not a guarantee against walkouts.

Thousands of teachers, sanitation workers and others on city, county and state payrolls have struck in defiance of the state laws. In some cases they have suffered minor, if any, consequences despite stiff penalty provisions.

* * *

Not all of the 17 state measures call for penalties.

Antistrike laws covering public employes are in effect in Massachusetts, Delaware, Illinois, New York, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Florida, Virginia, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Nebraska, South Dakota, Texas, Hawaii and Oregon.

BILL PENDING

A bill is pending in Tennessee.

In Illinois, there are no statutory provisions specifically banning strikes by public employes. But the Illinois Supreme Court has ruled that strikes by public service workers—including teachers—are unlawful.

* * *

A 1947 Pennsylvania law bars strikes by public employes under penalty of dismissal. The law provides that if a striker subsequently is rehired, he shall not be hired back at a salary higher than he received when he struck, shall receive no salary increase for three years, shall lose his tenure and shall be on probation for five years.

But the strong-language law was ineffective on two occasions recently, an 11-day strike by 1,000 Pittsburgh teachers of the Pennsylvania Federation of Teachers, and a massive protest march by 20,000 members of the Pennsylvania State Education Association.

UNIONS BANNED

North Carolina law bars municipal, county and state employes from belonging to trade or labor unions with national affiliation.

Florida has an antistrike law for public employes, but its constitutionality is being questioned by a suit pending in the Florida Supreme Court.

* * *

Some 25,000 of Florida's 60,000 teachers walked out in February. Most were accepted back into classrooms without punishment following their mass "resignations."

But some were not taken back, and others were rehired without tenure. The law provides that those who strike or resign without 30 days' notice can't be rehired for a year.

NO BARGAINING

Virginia law prohibits any agency of the state or local political subdivisions from negotiating or bargaining with employe unions. Under the 1946 law, any employe—state, city or county—who goes on strike or otherwise fails to report for work shall be fired.

Iowa has a so-called right-to-work law, but it has no legislation prohibiting strikes either by public employes or industrial employes. It does have a law prohibiting collective bargaining between state agencies and its employes.

* * *

Ohio has had a law for years forbidding strikes by public employes, but teachers and other public employes have struck, threatened to strike and stayed off their jobs for "study sessions" without suffering serious consequences.

The Massachusetts Legislature in 1958 passed a law which specifically exempted police from its provisions, and allowed public employes to organize. Two years later, the law was amended to allow city and town employes to bargain collectively and to sign agreements.

STRIKES ILLEGAL

In 1964, the Massachusetts Legislature again amended the law, this time insuring that state employes could bargain collectively and at the same time prohibiting striking.

In June 1967, teachers in Lawrence, Mass., staged a walkout five days before the end of the school year. The city school committee closed the doors and, when the teachers decided to return to their classes, they were locked out. The Massachusetts State Board of Education, noting that the law required schools to maintain classes at least 180 days a year, docked Lawrence for $19,000 of its state subsidy.

* * *

The school committee filed suit in an effort to recover the money, but the state board contended that it specifically was entitled to set the penalty under state law. The law states that no public employe may engage in, induce or encourage any strike, work stoppage, slowdown or withholding of services.

Two years ago, Delaware adopted a law which permitted public employes to organize and conduct collective bargaining, but which prohibited them from striking. The law states that no public employes may engage in, induce or encourage any strike, work stoppage, slowdown or withholding of services.

Perhaps the most controversial antistrike legislation in years, the law was regarded so harsh that the state ignored it, as did employes.

For many years, New York State had the so-called Condon-Wadlin law on its books, which forbids strikes by public employes. It mandated strike penalties for violators—automatic dismissal, loss of promotion and rights and pay raises for those not dismissed.

But over the years, New York State eventually rehired. The law switches emphasis from penalty for violators to encouragement of labor peace.

For many years, New York City and the state ignored it, employes to their unions and union leaders. The public employees as did employes.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller fostered a study which produced the Taylor law, enacted last year. It forbids strikes, but does not mandate dismissal of violators. The law switches penalty from rank-and-file employes to their unions and union leaders. The public employees as did employes.

Such an injunction was filed during the garbage strike in New York City and the president of the New York City Sanitation Workers' Union was jailed.

The teachers' strike occurred against striking; if it is violated, or may obtain a court injunction the union can be fined up to $10,000 a day for criminal contempt.

and it was generally agreed that it was not a fair test of the law's effectiveness in preventing strikes.

Sanitation union leaders openly defied the no-strike ban and mediation procedures when the garbage dispute arose. A settlement was eventually worked out through binding arbitration.

Both an injunction and the anti-strike provisions of the Taylor law were being set up.

Creamettes MACARONI TENDER DELICIOUS

MARINATED YAM MEDLEY — Cold, crisp vegetables . . . either fresh, frozen or canned . . . marinated in oil, vinegar and seasonings are a different accompaniment to chicken, ham or turkey. Bright orange canned Louisiana yams give the platter a real sparkle.

Marinate a Vegetable Medley

The cooking and marinating of some of our heartier vegetables . . . then serving them cold as an accompaniment to poultry or meat . . . is very often overlooked by homemakers. Yet a colorful vegetable platter can be presented to the family if you follow a few simple rules.

Almost any vegetable combination can be used.

Right now when fresh vegetables are in market you can choose some that are compatible, or you can buy frozen vegetables such as asparagus, broccoli, cauliflower and green beans, and open cans of bright orange Louisiana yams for contrast in color and flavor.

★ ★ ★

For a Saturday night supper, when you plan to entertain two or three extra guests, try this way of serving the vegetables. They'll be tangy and tender crisp and wonderful to serve with individual baskets of fried chicken.

Marinated Yam

½ cup olive oil
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
Juice of 1 lemon
1 teaspoon each: salt, dry mustard
1 tablespoon capers
Freshly ground pepper
1 package (10 ounces) frozen broccoli spears
2 cans (1 pound each) Louisiana yams, drained
1 package (10 ounces) frozen asparagus spears
1 package (10 ounces) frozen cauliflower
1 package (9 ounces) French style green beans

Cook frozen vegetables according to package directions. Combine oil, vinegar, lemon juice and seasonings. Arrange vegetables in shallow pan and marinate in the dressing several hours in refrigerator.

Canned Pudding Is Glamourized

You may want to use one of the new ready-prepared desserts.

Chocolate Whip

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¾ cup cold water
1 can (1 pound) chocolate pudding
Grated rind of 1 orange (2 teaspoons)
2 egg whites

In a small saucepan, sprinkle the gelatin over the water; stir over low heat until gelatin is dissolved; remove from heat. Into a medium bowl turn the pudding; gradually stir in the gelatin and then the orange rind; chill until slightly thickened.

★ ★ ★

In a small bowl beat egg whites until they hold soft peaks; fold into pudding mixture. Turn into six 6-ounce custard cups. Chill until firm. Serve in custard cups. Makes 6 servings.

Rhubarb and Apple Team in New Pie

Rhubarb and apples team up in this perfectly delicious, yet low-calorie, deep-dish fruit pie.

★ ★ ★

In the calorie-minded recipe given below all of the sugar normally required has been replaced with the popular calorie-free sweetener, sucaryl. Sweet and slimming result is that considerably more than 200 excess calories have been lopped off from each deliciously sweet serving.

★ ★ ★

Try this calorie-trimmed pie on your figure-fretting family and friends. Better tell them your secret. They'll never taste the difference.

Rhubarb Apple Pie

2 cups fresh rhubarb
4 cups pared, cored and sliced tart cooking apples
3 tablespoons liquid sucaryl
3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
Pinch of salt
Pastry for single crust.

★ ★ ★

Preheat over to 425 degrees. F. Place fruit in large bowl, sprinkle with sucaryl and mix well.

★ ★ ★

Combine tapioca, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt; toss lightly with sweetened fruit to coat evenly. Pour into a lightly buttered 9-inch deep pie plate or casserole.

★ ★ ★

Cut pastry into strips and arrange in lattice over fruit. Bake 35 to 40 minutes, or until fruit is tender.

★ ★ ★

Makes 6 servings, each 188 calories: 2 grams protein; 6.5 grams fat; 31 grams carbohydrate.

New Cookbooks Have Varying Appeals

By JANET ODELL
Food Editor, Pontiac Press

New cookbooks seem to come in batches. I unwrap them eagerly, read them avidly and drool over the recipes. Some I have to try out at once.

With calorie counting one of America's favorite pastimes, it is not surprising that there are numerous books on dieting. The latest we have seen, Better Homes and Gardens "Eat and Stay Slim," puts calorie counting in a new light.

EXCHANGE LIST

Taking a leaf from the current way of determining diets for diabetics, this book works on the food exchange system. Food is grouped into eight categories.

Any food within each list can be exchanged for another. This allows you to plan family meals easily and to eat the foods you like best instead of buying something special.

There are free exchanges which have minimum calories. You determine your total calorie count for the day and divide the food into any number of meals or snacks.

★ ★ ★

In addition to general information on overweight and dieting, this book gives tips on eating out, on exercises, snacks and, of course, recipes.

Each recipe is color coded to indicate the food exchange group and the number of exchange units. We think many dieters will be intrigued with this method and find it successful.

Here's a cool appetizer that has gourmet appeal and can count as part of the milk allowed for the day. The picture shows cucumber wedges as garnish; each wedge has been dipped in paprika.

CUKE-BUTTERMILK SOUP

Pare two cucumbers; remove seeds and grate. Add one quart buttermilk, one tablespoon chopped green onion, ¼ cup snipped parsley, one teaspoon salt and dash of pepper. Cover and chill. Serves four, providing one milk exchange.

★ ★ ★

"The Mike Roy Cookbook No. 2 Everyday Recipes" (Ward Ritchie Press, Los Angeles, $4.95) is the sort of cookbook enjoyed by those who "love to cook."

Mike Roy has a radio culinary show on the west coast. His recipes are the kind that have been handed down in families. Roy tries them out on his wife and two children.

★ ★ ★

He's especially proud of his casserole recipes. He says, "A casserole is a thing of beauty when it's properly done."

How about this one to serve 10?

HUNGRY MOB CASSEROLE

1 pound bacon
1 onion, chopped
2 pounds ground chuck
2 pounds spaghetti, cooked
1 can (#303) ripe olives, drained
2 cans (4-oz.) mushrooms
1 can (#303) peas
2 cans (#303) spaghetti sauce
¼ pound grated Parmesan cheese
¼ pound grated Cheddar cheese

Cook bacon until crisp and crumble it. Saute onion in a little of the bacon fat in which you also brown the meat; discard the rest of the fat.

★ ★ ★

Mix all ingredients together, except Cheddar cheese. Top with Cheddar and bake in 350-degree oven until cheese bubbles. Makes 10 servings.

RHUBARB APPLE PIE—The tangy tartness of rhubarb demands sweetening before it is palatable. Here, a sugar substitute is used for a two-fruit lattice-topped pie.

Reasons Are Given for Gelatine Rules

Cherry Almond Rice Cream is a molded dessert — a real sweet. Sugar speeds its preparation.

By thoroughly mixing ¼ cup sugar with 1 envelope unflavored gelatine, the dry granules are evenly dispersed. So, without softening first in cold liquid, the gelatine mixture can be stirred until completely dissolved) directly into ¾ cup boiling water, without clumping.

★ ★ ★

This small amount of hot gelatine liquid cools at once when stirred into 1 cup cooked, chilled rice. No waiting for chilling. Instead mix in ½ cup drained maraschino cherries, cut in slivers, and 3 tablespoons blanched, slivered almonds sprinkled with 1-3 teaspoon almond extract.

Fold in 1 cup heavy cream, whipped. Turn into 4-cup mold. Chill until firm, about 2 hours, before unmolding. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Add Marmalade to Berry-Cream

Strawberries with marmalade cream is a recipe from Victorian England.

To make 6 servings, beat together until smooth 1 (8-ounce) package of softened cream cheese and ½ cup of heavy cream. Stir in ½ cup of bitter orange marmalade. Chill. Serve with 1 quart of fresh strawberries, sliced.

FIRST COURSE—In a large frying pan, saute one pound fresh thinly sliced mushrooms in 6 tablespoons butter. Cook about 10 minutes, or until mushrooms are deep golden and almost toasted, butter browns slightly and all mushroom liquid disappears; stir occasionally. Add one cup Emerald Dry white table wine and continue cooking until wine cooks down completely. Serve with thin buttered toast points for 2 supper servings or 4 first-course servings.

Skewer Cubed Veal

"What's a different thing I can do with veal steaks?" asks a homemaker who uses this meat to punctuate her menus with something new.

Veal steaks may be cut into inch cubes easily, answers Reba Staggs, meat authority with the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Slightly beaten eggs and crushed cornflakes give them a coating that's called "breading."

★ ★ ★

After threading and dipping in the coating, the skewers are browned slowly, then cooked until the flavor develops.

Veal Cubes on Skewers

2 pounds veal shoulder steaks
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cups cornflakes, crushed
3 tablespoons lard or drippings
¼ cup hot water.

Cut veal steaks into boneless 1-inch squares. Thread squares onto wooden or metal skewers.

Mix mustard, salt and pepper, and butter or margarine together and rub on skewered veal. Dip in eggs, then in cornflakes.

★ ★ ★

Brown on all sides in hot lard or drippings. Add water. Cover tightly and cook slowly for about 45 minutes, or until tender. 6 servings.

Sour Cream Top

Add zest to your spring luncheon with a "saucy" treat! Combine a cup of sour cream with a dash of salt and pepper, ¼ teaspoon dill, and 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Spread toast with deviled ham, top with three asparagus spears and sour cream mixture. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 15 minutes. Serve immediately to a table of four.

Garlicky Bean Dish Comes From Arabs

"Fool" is the Arabic word for beans and you'll find them throughout the mid-east countries in dishes that are deliciously different. Although ingredients may vary from Damascus to Jerusalem to Cairo the basis is always white or red beans.

We owe the recipe for Fool Indamis to the chef of a little restaurant in Jordan called Hassan Effendi. This dish is a great favorite with the Arabs and eaten any time of day from breakfast to post-midnight supper. It looks something like our chili, served piping hot in little bowls. With it come small pitchers of oil and also of lemon juice which you add as suits your fancy.

To top off the meal serve a generous platter of sliced tomatoes and cucumbers. You'll find this Arabian delight a welcome surprise next time you entertain.

FOOL INDAMIS

1 pound can kidney beans
3 tablespoons sesame oil (olive oil or salad oil will do)
⅛ cup lemon (or lime) juice
2 tablespoons finely minced onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
¼ cup water
Salt and Pepper to taste
Finely minced parsley or mint for garnish

Simply heat all ingredients thoroughly and serve very hot. Top with either the parsley or mint. This can also be pureed in blender and served either hot or cold for an interesting condiment with meats or sea food.

AMERICAN COLONY

Another version of Fool is the adaptation popular with Americans abroad. It also can be served hot as a main dish or chilled as a salad on a bed of lettuce.

2 cups dry navy beans
6 strips of bacon
1 large onion, chopped
1 lagre clove garlic, minced
2 large tomatoes, peeled and chopped
4 tablespoons lemon juice
Freshly ground pepper to taste
Chopped parsley

Cover beans with water in large pot. Bring to boil and cook 2 minutes. Remove from heat and let stand 1 hour. Proceed to boil till beans are soft and the skins burst. Drain thoroughly.

Fry bacon till crisp and remove to drain. In the pan fat gently saute onion, garlic and tomatoes. When onion is soft but not brown, mix in crumbled bacon, beans and remaining ingredients. Top with parsley. If this is to be used as a salad, refrigerate overnight.

A goulash made with pork takes to the addition of sauerkraut.

Hospital Head Cites State Custody Laws

Dr. Donald W. Martin, medical superintendent of Pontiac State Hospital, today revealed a letter to Oakland County Prosecutor S. Jerome Bronson replying to Bronson's call for an investigation of the hospital's security procedures.

In the communication, Martin pointed out two state acts, effective in March 1967, which "changed in Michigan the whole method of handling the so-called mentally ill offender."

* * *

Bronson had urged Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley to initiate an investigation in the wake of two escapes by persons accused of violent crimes and the murder May 31 of a young female patient — with which another patient is charged.

Under the acts referred to by Martin, two categories of persons charged with criminal offenses are remanded to the custody of the Department of Mental Health.

INNOCENT, INCOMPETENT

These are: those considered innocent by reason of insanity and those judged incompetent to stand trial.

After examination at the Forensic Center, Martin explained, these patients may be placed by the department in the regional state hospitals in their areas of residence.

* * *

"However," he said, "when these patients are sent to a state hospital such as ours, it is with the understanding that they are no longer considered unduly dangerous nor in need of special security measures."

He added that Pontiac state Hospital and those like it do not have such measures.

Those who prove unmanageable in a hospital such as Pontiac State may be transferred by request to Ionia State Hospital for maximum security management.

Martin described Pontiac State as an "open hospital," with many of its units unlocked.

* * *

"An integral part of the treatment is granting the patients increasing freedom and self-responsibility, depending on the condition of the individual," he said.

"Unfortunately," he added, "there are from time to time patients who appear to be improving in every respect until suddenly, without warning, they manage to leave without authorization."

PUBLIC INTEREST

Bronson said today he was pleased to have received such a forthright statement.

However, he added that his responsibility is "the overriding public interest."

* * *

Martin suggested that the new system effected by the state acts must be worked with and improved in time.

"We cannot afford to move backward, turning our hospitals into prisons and thereby penalizing the hundreds of patients who have not broken the law," he concluded.

Copies of his letter were also directed to Kelley and to two state-level mental health authorities.

Students' Handiwork

Races End Classes

Students at Crescent Lake School in Waterford Township yesterday closed out the school year with a cloud of dust and a checkered flag.

Four soap box derby-type racing cars, built by fifth and sixth graders at the school, were put to the test by student racing enthusiasts of all grades.

* * *

Even the teachers got into the act as drivers and pushers in a faculty race. As could be expected, the lone breakdown of the day, a flat tire, came while the teachers were at the wheel.

Schools Superintendent Dr. Don O. Tatro served as official starter for the races.

MAKESHIFT PARTS

The cars were built by members of the classes of Mrs. Ann Crumpton and William Miller.

* * *

They put them together out of plywood, stray parts from the workshop at home, lawnmower wheels and parts assembled and donated by shop students at Waterford Township High School.

The boys did all the construction work on the two-month long project. The girls yesterday contributed their somewhat questionable driving talents.

4-Year Pact for Oakland Schools Chief

Dr. William J. Emerson, superintendent of Oakland Schools Intermediate District, was given a new four-year contract at $30,000 per year by the school board last night.

* * *

He was making $27,500 during 1967-68. Deputy Supt. Kenneth W. Brown was given a new three-year contract at a salary of $24,500. He made $23,000 this year.

Much of the meeting was taken up by a discussion over what level vocational courses will be taught in the Walled Lake area vocational center to open in 1970.

* * *

Walled Lake school officials have said some districts which will use the center don't have prerequisites for courses to be offered at the center.

Oakland School officials told them they will have time before the center opens to include the prerequisite courses. Courses in the center will be at 11th and 12th grade levels.

Pupils Might Lose Mr. Proud

Lack of Funds May Hurt Bethune

Pontiac Press Photos

MR. PROUD—This eight-foot statue of Mr. Proud, a mythical character representing a strong father image, stands proudly near the front door of Bethune School. Nobody has seen the real Mr. Proud, but pupils look up to this superman-type hero. He stands for strength and success in life, and has improved the pupils attitudes and achievement. Pupils wear Mr. Proud T-shirts, get Mr. Proud awards and watch the "proud-of" bulletin board for pictures of themselves.

By DICK ROBINSON

"Bethune is what's happening."

It's Monday and school has just begun at Bethune Elementary School in Pontiac.

★ ★ ★

As on every Monday, a voice comes over the loudspeaker. This time it says:

"Good morning, boys and girls. You started with the idea of becoming the best school in the universe and you have accomplished that goal.

EXCITING, WONDERFUL

"It isn't everyday that people from all over the world call and write, asking for an invitation to come by and visit your school. It isn't everyday that other boys and girls and teachers want to be a part of this magnificent structure we all call 'our school.'

"Something exciting, something wonderful is happening here because you wanted it to happen.

★ ★ ★

"I guess I could say that part of our prestige comes from the very fact that, to use the expression from one of your classroom songs, 'Bethune is what's happening.' "

Children from this predominately Negro school listen intently to the mythical character named Mr. Proud.

MOTIVATING TALKS

Mr. Proud, who watches over the school everyday, gives the pupils motivating talks and study tips designed to develop in them a sense of pride in themselves and their home and school.

Bethune pupils haven't seen Mr. Proud, but they know he exists. An eight-foot model of this superman-type character stands near the school's front door.

★ ★ ★

He is just one part of the school's $111,000 federally funded project to develop a positive self-concept in each student and thus raise his achievement level.

"I bet now the people on Mars think Bethune is the best school," comments fifth grader Clifton Walker.

Research indicates that the way a student views himself determines the level of his school performance.

But this one-year pilot program which concludes in August is having serious difficulties in getting funds for the next school year.

★ ★ ★

Initial indications are that the program has been very successful says Assistant Director James Hawkins. Parents have been asking what's going to happen?

Funds under the Elementary and Secondary Education Acts of 1965 will not be available next school year, Hawkins explains.

FINGERS CROSSED

Hawkins and others connected with the project are trying to get money from the middle cities section of the new state aid bill.

Meanwhile, Hawkins is crossing his fingers for next year while the pupils are fearful of losing their idol — Mr. Proud. What will Bethune be like without Mr. Proud? they ask themselves.

★ ★ ★

While Bethune School got a large federal grant for the program, another southside school got a similar program started on its own.

Principal Booker T. Yancey of Whittier Elementary School solicited the help of the Oakland Schools staff and ran a program for 154 second and third graders.

HUMAN RELATIONS

Yancey reports that the pupils' attitudes toward themselves and academic achievement have improved by activities focusing on human relations.

This program will probably not be continued next school year either, but Yancey said he hopes teachers will continue to use the new techniques they've learned.

BOOKMAKERS — Third graders at Pontiac's Whittier School make photo album covers for scrapbooks which contain polaroid pictures of themselves. Pictures are taken of a child doing something good or positive.

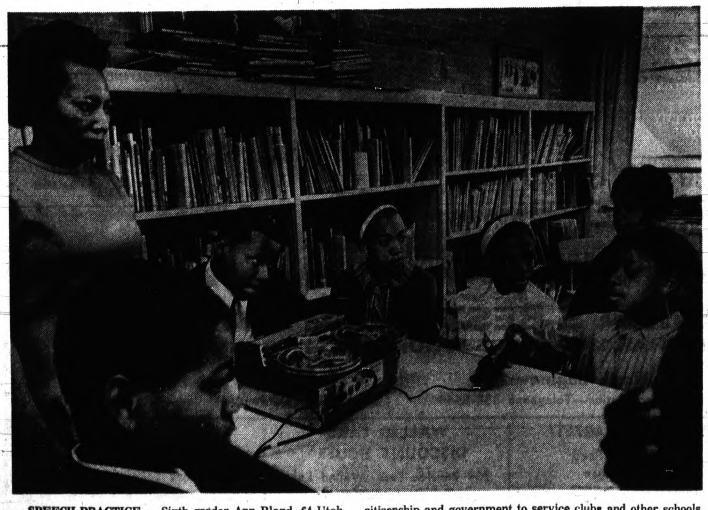

ALL SMILES — Whittier third grader Gregory Taylor proudly shows his finished album cover. It has been found that a pupil develops pride in himself by having his own book which accentuates his positive activities.

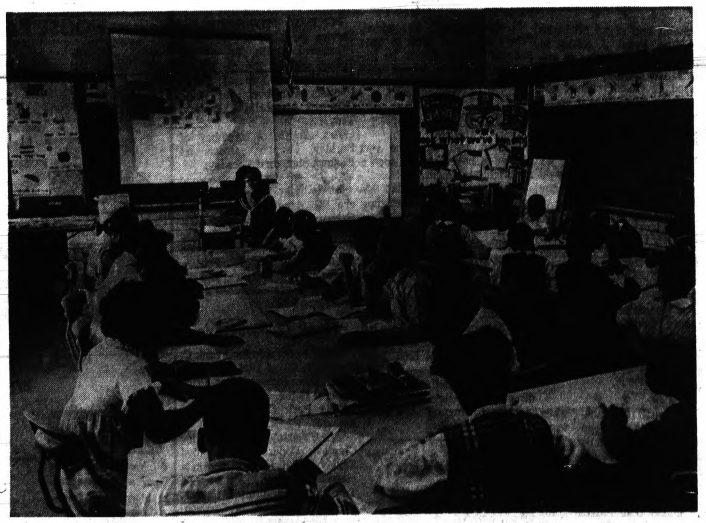

I'M ON TV — Third grader Debra Wilson, 470 Orchard Lake, helps her teacher at Bethune School explain fractions by filling containers with water. She's being filmed on closed circuit television by technical aides. The film is later replayed to the class to improve self-concept.

UNIVERSE'S BEST SCHOOL — Envious pupils watch second graders Bernadine Walker, 161 Branch, and Gary Officer, 267 Branch, leave Pontiac's Bethune Elementary School wearing their school T-shirts. The shirts, which show mythical character Mr. Proud and say "Bethune School — Best in the Universe," are awarded for good behavior and achievement. Every student is given a school beanie.

SPEECH PRACTICE — Sixth grader Ann Bland, 64 Utah, practices a speech in the Toastmistress and Toastmasters Clubs at Bethune School. The club members give talks on citizenship and government to service clubs and other schools. Once each month they hold a luncheon at an elementary school and are treated to lunch at a local restaurant.

A FIVE-LETTER WORD — Third grade teacher Mrs. Anna Chandler of Whittier School goes over a crossword puzzle with her classes. She fills in the puzzle on an overhead projector as the class guesses the words. Each child completes his own puzzle at the same time. Another screen is used to project a wordless comic strip. The pupils then make up their own words.

Ford Is Guilty in Autolite Antitrust Suit

DETROIT (AP) — For Motor Company's 1961 acquisition of the name and several facilities of the Electric Autolite Co. was In violation of the Clayton Antitrust Act, U. S. District Judge Ralph M. Freeman has ruled in an 80-page decision.

* * *

Faced with a substantial decline in its sales to Chrysler Corp. of batteries, spark plugs and other automotive electrical components, Autolite sold Ford a spark plug facility at Fostoria, Ohio, and a battery plant at Owosso, Mich.

* * *

"The effect of the acquisition," Freeman wrote, "may be substantially to lessen competition in automotive batteries and spark plugs throughout the United States."

At issue was Section 7 of the Clayton Act, which stipulates that no firm subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission may acquire any portion of the assets of another firm "where in any line of commerce in any section of the country, the effect of such acquisition may be substantially to lessen competition, or tend to create a monopoly."

PRECEDENT CITED

Although acknowledging that the acquisiton probably would not lessen competition or create a monopoly, Freeman said legal precedent provides that if a "forbidden effect or tendency is produced in one out of all the various lines of commerce," the transaction is in violation of the Clayton Act.

* * *

A spokesman in Freeman's office said further action in the case is unclear at this time. The decision, he explained, is merely a finding that Ford's acquisition of the Autolite name and facilities is illegal. There has been no order so far for Ford to divest itself of the property, he said.

* * *

Ford's acquisition of Autolite ignition equipment as distributor and generator parts and coils was not found in violation of the Clayton Act, nor was Ford's plans to distribute "original equipment" electrical parts to dealers and independent retailers alike.

Boys State Aides Take All the Pots

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The editor of the Nevada Boys State newspaper says 160 high school delegates studying government should be allowed to gamble in this state where gambling by adults is legal.

* * *

"Everyone is doing it anyway," said editor Dale Wilson of Reno. He said the boys are playing penny-ante poker, but counselors keep confiscating their pots.

Rule's Effect Seen Slight

LANSING (AP) — Michigan will be only slightly affected by the U. S. Supreme Court's decision requiring certain state employes to receive a minimum hourly wage and time and a half for overtime, state officials said Tuesday.

"We're just about in compliance with the decision," said Otis Hardy of the Department of Civil Service. "The total impact in the state of Michigan is not going to be very substantial."

He estimated total cost at less than $300,000." Most of the costs will be due to the overtime provision requiring time and a half after 42 hours per week.

The state now pays time and a half after 80 hours in a bi-weekly period.

* * *

The court's decision extends the 1966 Federal Fair Labor Standards Act to all employes of state hospitals, schools and related institutions. Hardy said it would affect between 2,000 and 3,000 state employes.

Foreign Analysts Try to Explain Why RFK Was Slain

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) —America's political violence like;y will stop only when the political slaying of an "unknown Negro or freedom fighter" stirs as much outrage as the killing of a national figure, a West German commentator says.

The United States need "a purging of moral conscience," declared Friedrich Langhelm of the Rheinische Post of Dusseldorf.

Langhelm was one of a host of foreign analysts trying to explain why Robert F. Kennedy was slain, and pondering where America is headed.

The Sunday Times of London said: "The Vietnam war and the crisis of the urban Negro are the two burning issues, and they have defeated solution by conventional politics. Together they have produced an almost intolerable tension in American life, and the climate, if not the specific cause for assassination."

"This may seem like a heartless way of saying it," said the newspaper Asahi of Tokyo, "but the United States is feeling the reprisal from the war'" in Vietnam.

Asahi said the war "cannot help but create an atmosphere in the country conducive to the ready use of violence."

★ ★ ★

Viktor Meier, Washington correspondent of the Frankfurter Neue Presse in West Germany, also cited racial tensions. And he said reason enough for a searching of conscience is that "the revolver-wielding here is glorified by movies, television, magazines, comic strips and children's toys."

★ ★ ★

Some commentators mentioned the theory that violence is inherited from America's hard pioneer times. But the British weekly New Statesman dismissed the importance of frontier sharpshooters as "a Hollywood cliche which abuses the historical facts."

'DEVOTION TO LAW'

"America," it said, "was a product of an overwhelming devotion to constitutional law; violence, though common, was essentially an aberration."

John R. Dove, deputy professor of English philology at Finland's University of Oulu, saw it as ironic that Kennedy's death apparently was not "at the hands of that organized crime which, as attorney general, he so courageously hounded." Dove's views were in a letter to the London Daily Telegraph.

★ ★ ★

"Each fresh act of violence spreads fresh doubt about American capacity for leadership," said the Times of London. "The habit of assassination destroys the authority of any country."

David English, foreign editor of the London Daily Express, wrote: "Nations, like people, can have nervous breakdowns. And America is very near the edge of this situation. Paralyzed with fear, tormented by indecision, it is allowing violence—the fatal flaw in the national character—to become the most dominating influence in its life."

BRAZILIAN VIEW

Brazilian newspapers too portrayed the United States as a land of violence. They gave the story of Kennedy's assassination more space than the death of former Brazilian President Humberto Castello Branco in an airplane crash last year.

Cartoons in the Brazilian press showed a youthful sniper, with monster-like features, lining up the crosshairs of his rifle sight on the Statue of Liberty's heart; an American flag with 50 bullets instead of stars, and Uncle Sam, with dollars sticking from his coat pocket, blowing the smoke from a revolver barrel.

FREEWAY SNARL — Traffic on southbound I-75 in Pontiac Township was backed up for miles from 7:15 until nearly 9 a.m. today (bottom photo) after a tractor-trailer overturned on the roadway (top photo). No one was reported injured. Oakland County sheriff's deputies said the mishap occurred when the driver of the truck, David Lange, 33, of Roseville, slammed on the brakes to avoid a car swinging into his lane.

Flip's Humor Is Finely Honed

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Flip Wilson works hard at making people laugh. He's been studying and researching humor for a long while and now it seems to have paid off. He's surely one of the most successful comedians of television's past few seasons.

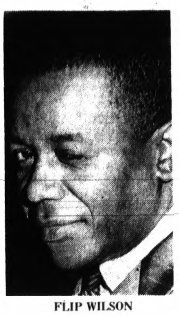

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK — "The first law of humor is that things can be funny only when we are in fun," wrote Max Eastman in his 1936 book, "The Enjoyment of Laughter."

Eastman's first law of humor, plus the second, third and fourth, are the building blocks of the career of Flip Wilson, a thoughtful fellow now in his mid-30s who constructs his comedy routines with the precision of an engineer blueprinting a bridge.

★ ★ ★

At the moment, Flip is one of the hot comics to surface in the past couple of television seasons. His datebook is loaded with appointments to visit Ed Sullivan, Dean Martin, the Smothers Brothers and Carol Burnett on their respective variety hours. He is a welcome guest on the late evening shows — Carson's, Griffin's and Bishop's. He has been almost a regular on Rowan and Martin's "Laugh-In," and most recently, NBC put him under a long-term contract and is planning to develop a program around his very distinctive personality and style.

FLIP WILSON

FRESH FACE

But while Wilson may be a fresh face on television, the round-faced Negro with a penchant for study and research has been learning his business for a long time — 13 years, precisely, and mostly in the grubby obscurity of small nightclubs.

"No one can really say what's funny," Wilson said. "There are laws of humor, and the element of surprise, of course, is important. But mostly, when you choose a piece, you must pick one that you yourself think is funny.

"Then you go to work and analyze what you've got, and work it up with gestures and voice changes and shifts of words. It took me three years to get my Columbus story the way I wanted it."

Wilson's Columbus story, one of his most popular, explains how Columbus went to Queen Isabella for permission to go to America and discover Ray Charles. It falls squarely within Eastman's dictum about being "in fun."

PLEASANT FLAVOR

His "Cowboys and Colored People" involves Eastman's second law of humor: "Disagreeable things, so long as they are not disagreeable enough to 'spoil the fun' tend to acquire a pleasant emotional flavor and provoke a laugh."

This sketch is a dialogue between a black man and an Indian with the Negro commiserating with the redskin because he has no Willie Mays to brag about. It winds up with the Indian coming in with the snapper — "Did you ever hear of anyone playing 'cowboys and colored people?' "

Of course, such a piece, unless honed smooth with Wilson's finesse and manner could be, rather than funny, downright offensive.

Wilson whose first name is Clerow, was born and grew up in Jersey City. He made his theatrical debut at age 9, as Clara Barton in a school play in an emergency: the feminine lead got measles and little Clerow was the only other person who knew the lines.

He enlisted in the Air Force at 16, picked up his nickname, "Flip" because of his attitude toward life and the military. His commanding officer persuaded him to take grammar lessons and to learn to type. When he got out of the service he worked as a bellhop in a San Francisco hotel and somehow got a walk-on role in a comedy as a drunk. He never looked back.

★ ★ ★

Today Wilson says that his big break came when he finally made the "Tonight Show" followed by a booking on the Ed Sullivan show.

SAME MATERIAL

"The only trouble with variety shows as a showcase for young comedians is that you are almost forced to reuse the same material," he said. "They may catch you with Carson or somebody, and book you on another show. But somebody instructs you to repeat the number they have seen. This sometimes suggests to the audience that it's the only thing you can do."

★ ★ ★

Wilson, when he started studying comedy and refining his own techniques, gave himself 15 years to become really proficient at his specialty. Now, with great success, he has made the grade two years ahead of schedule. He still concentrates completely on his work, a rolling stone who lives in a suitcase and concentrates on collecting material — his own thoughts and experiences as well as those borrowed from others — which some day he hopes to publish as a textbook on humor for the benefit of future young comics.

There are some 60,000 people living in the Virgin Islands, with a per capita income of $2,100, highest of any area south of the United States.

So Long, Ned! You'll Be Missed(?)

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Remarks a man gets tired of hearing—or overhearing—on the eve of retirement:

"So this is your last week, Ned. Is that why they called in the accountants to give the petty cash fund a last quick checkover?"

"The old gang BOYLE will sure miss you at the water cooler, old-timer. I guess you put in more time hanging around it than anybody."

"What are you going to do with all the dough you stashed away? I hear you're going to become a silent partner with Howard Hughes and buy up the rest of Las Vegas."

WIFE'S TURN

"Well, we put up with you for 40 years. Now it's your wife's turn."

"Can I have your seat cushion when you leave, Ned? By now it should be the most comfortable one in the office."

★ ★ ★

"If you're not leaving until Friday, how about lending me a fast $20? Pay you back Thursday for sure."

"I know my husband has earned a good rest after all these years in that office salt mine, but I simply don't know what I'll do with him. I'm not used to having a man underfoot around the house, day in and day out."

"Ned, the boss wanted to throw you a farewell fete at the executive lunch club, but asked me to take you as he couldn't make it. Now I find I may be out of town that day. How about us stopping off at the tavern down the street today and having a couple of quick ones instead? Gee, that's great. I knew you'd be big about it."

"What are you going to do with all the loot you've banked, Ned? Buy a box of apples and open your own fruit stand?"

★ ★ ★

"We're thinking of surprising him with a color television set as a going-away gift. But several of his friends think it might be better just to buy him his old office swivel chair—as he always seemed to be happiest while dozing in it."

"Why should I contribute a dollar? I hear that when they took up a collection to buy flowers for my wife when she had her tonsils out 10 years ago, Ned refused to chip in more than two bits."

'TOO OLD, TOO TIRED'

"What are you going to do with yourself? You're too old to be any good at golf, too tired and homely to chase women, and too poor to play the horses. Maybe you'd just better try to stay on the payroll."

"Now that you're leaving for good, Ned, how about breaking down and telling the rest of us guys just what you were supposed to be doing the last 40 years. We've never been able to figure it out."

"The thing that puzzles everybody is what you're going to do with all the green stuff you've squirreled away. I hear you've got banknotes stuffed in the holes of all the elm trees in your back yard."

"So this week winds it up, eh? better be careful. I had a cousin who retired last year, and he keeled over the very next day. He never got to collect a penny of pension money from the firm."

"Boy, do I envy you! nothing to do the rest of your life but sit on your front porch and wonder how to cure your rheumatism."

"I hear Ned was the handsomest man in the place when he first came here. Well, time does things to everybody."

"Now remember, Jane, after we give Ned his present, you throw both arms around him and give him a great big kiss. After all, it's your turn. I had to kiss old Mr. Robbins goodby when he retired last February—and one kiss a year to a retiree fills any girl's quota."

Nonstop Flights Hearings Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board ordered Tuesday an expedited hearing on applications of North Central Airlines and Western Air Lines for authority to operate nonstop between Detroit and Milwaukee, Wis., and between Minneapolis-St. Paul and Milwaukee.

North Central serves all the cities involved, but under certificate restrictions against non-stop flights. Western asked for an extension of its route system beyond Minneapolis-St. Paul to Detroit by way of Milwaukee.

Durante, at 75, Still Has a Way With a Nightclub Crowd

By BOB THOMAS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The burnt-orange sun was slipping behind Mt. Charleston as Jimmy Durante strode out of the Frontier Hotel and found himself surrounded by a covey of Shriners.

"Why, it's Jimmy Durante!" they exlaimed, as if greeting a fellow member of the temple.

* * *

"Hi-ya, boys," Jimmy rasped, shaking the hands of each.

"You sure put on a great show last night," said a red-fezzed man.

BACK SLAPPER

"Thanks a million, thanks a million,", said Jimmy, slapping him on the back and continuing along his way.

The Saturday evening traffic finally slowed, and Jimmy crossed the highway. He hurried along, shoulders slightly hunched, toes pointed outward. On the sidewalk, at the entrance of the Desert Inn and in the lobby, there were cries of: "It's Jimmy Durante!" and he paused for a raucous word with each group. Then he padded down the corridors and up two flights of stairs to the health club for his daily rubdown.

* * *

As the masseur worked over Durante's compact, tanned frame, the comedian reminisced.

"I grew up on the East Side of New York, you know. Catherine Street was my old neighborhood — I think Al Smith was the assemblyman in that district in those days. My dad was a barber and we lived in a little jernt that had the terlet in the backyard. Later when things got goin' good and he added a coupla chairs to the shop, we moved to a bigger apartment. This time the terlet was down the hall.

'GREAT GUY'

"He was a great guy, my dad — great sensa humor. I used to help him out in the shop, latherin' up the customers for shaves. When I got a nickel or a dime for a tip, I'd run out of the jernt and go down to the candy store to spend it. I never hung around, or I mighta been a barber, too.

"I took up the piana instead. My dad, he thought I was gonna be a bum. In those days they though all piana players were bums.

* * *

"One of my first jobs was out at Rockaway, where one of the singin' waiters was Eddie Cantor. There was a great guy — one of the finest men that God ever gave breat' to. Eddie an' I had a way of workin' together. He'd come up to the piana an' say, 'You know The Hills of Kentucky? A guy over there will pay me two bucks if I sing it for him, and I don't know it.'

"An' I'd say, 'No, I don't know it, but you make up some words, an' I'll play the melody.' So we'd play the song and the customer'd yell, 'That ain't The Hills of Kentucky!' Then Cantor'd say, 'Ya mean there's two of 'em?'"

WEIGHT WATCHER

After his massage, Jimmy stepped on the scales. He fretted that he was 156, which he considered two pounds overweight. It didn't show.

At 75, a decade past the retirement age for ordinary mortals, Durante is trim and lively and despite his years, he still performs one of the most strenuous acts in show business. He is doing the thing that first brought him to prominence in the speakeasies of Manhattan in the 1920s — belting songs in his gravelly voice, strutting stiff-legged as he shakes his head in open-mouthed wonderment, assaulting his fellow performers with good-natured violence. Many of the songs and some of the jokes are the same now as then.

Jimmy Durante Wows 'Em

* * *

He is a show biz original, member of a generation of performers who were each of them one of a kind — Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor, George M. Cohan, Sophie Tucker. Durante reached the heights in every medium — Broadway shows, vaudeville, radio, movies, records, television. But he is at his best in the place where he got started: the nightclub.

ON STAGE

A little while after stepping off the scales Jimmy was on the stage of the Venus Room of the Frontier Hotel. Fedora askew, he grabbed the microphone and told the 800 diners:

You gotta start off each day with a song,

Even when things go wrong.

You'll feel better, you'll even look better . . .

* * *

What followed was 85 minutes of song, tomfoolery, near-mayhem and a touch of sentiment. He carried on mock romances with the chorus girls — "Imagine kissin' with noses in Greenland — I'd be the Cary Grant of that jernt!" He carried on a running feud with the orchestra leader — "He don't know how to play an instrument, so they give him a stick!"

He played piano with a rock 'n' roll band of five sisters, ranging from 5 to 11 years, in a rousing rendition of "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band." He introduced his partner, Eddie Jackson, "of Clayton, Jackson and Durante," and the old-time song-and-dance man did his familiar "Bill Bailey" strut.

STUDIED CONFUSION

The show continued with studied confusion. Jimmy introduced "my junior partner," Sonny King, and the pair engaged in duets, arguments and violence. Things quieted down when Jimmy 'sang 'Young at Heart":

Fairy tales can come true,

It can happen to you,

If you're young at heart . . . .

Coming from Jimmy Durante at 75, the words seemed to bear special meaning, and the applause was loud and sustained. Jimmy stood in a purple spotlight at center-stage, warmed by the happy sound.

* * *

The show went on with "One of Those Songs," "Inka Dinka Doo," a wild dance with a fat girl, more japery with Jackson and King and a rousing finale. Jimmy ended the show amid vast applause and toured the ringside tables shaking hands with the guests.

Backstage in the massive trailer that serves as the star dressing room, Jimmy continued greeting fans, shaking hands and signing autographs for all comers.

ALWAYS TIME

"Jimmy always has time for everyone who wants to talk to him," says Sonny King, 46, the strongly built, onetime operatic singer who has been with the act 15 years. "He always tells me, 'Where will we be tomorrow if we don't be nice to the people today?' Even when he's done five shows in a day, he doesn't know how to say no.

"Jimmy's a genius, no doubt about it. Yeah, I know the word genius is loosely used in our business. But when you see what Jimmy does with an audience, you gotta admit that he's a genius."

* * *

After greeting postshow visitors, having a brief rubdown and changing from tuxedo to blue slacks, sport shirt and sweater, Durante went to the Frontier's Cabaret Room for dinner. He had a glass of sherry, a lettuce salad with roquefort dressing, a minute steak and chopped spinach.

The Durante nose, close-up, is as imposing a monument as it seems from the stage. There are erratic ruts about the mouth and the forehead is permanently pleated; otherwise Jimmy gives little evidence of his age. His voice is firm enough to stun waiters across a crowded room, and his entire manner is youthful.

SAME MANNERISMS

His mannerisms remain the same — the cocked head when he is listening to a query, the sweeping back of the surviving wisps of hair atop the shiny head — "Not much there, but every strand's got a muscle!" The language is unchangingly East Side, sprinkled with double negatives and pronunciation oddities.

Durante is on the road between 15 and 25 weeks a year, playing his antic humor in clubs from Lake Tahoe to San Juan. Such engagements, plus TV guest appearances and his breakfast-food commercials, probably earn him close to a half-million dollars yearly.

* * *

Yet he is not considered in the same financial league with Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and other entertainment millionaires. This is due partly to his support of an entourage — he takes a troupe of eight on the road — partly because he is the softest touch in show business.

"Louie B. Mayer did somethin' good for me, 'way back in 1931," said Jimmy. "He had this friend of his who sold insurance, and Mayer convinced me to take out a coupla annuities. Those are comin' in now, and I'm lucky to have 'em.

NO GIMMICKS

"I ain't got any tax gimmicks, no prepaid interest on real estate or that sorta thing. I just pay my taxes and let it go at that. I don't end up with much at the end of the year."

A well-dressed man approached the table, and put out his hand. "Mr. Durante, I want to thank you for all the pleasure you've given to me and everyone I know."

* * *

"Well, thank ya; thank ya a lot," said Jimmy, shaking the man's hand. After he had left, Jimmy reflected, "Ya know, somethin' like that makes it worth it all."

He finished only half his steak and a few bites of spinach before leaving for the second show, at midnight. Afterward he went to the Stardust Hotel to chat with the operators, who had recently sold the place to Howard Hughes. It was 4 a.m. before Jimmy went to bed in the Presidential Suite of the Frontier.

Jimmy rose at 1:30 on Sunday afternoon and went next door to the Silver Slipper, where he had agreed to pose for photographs with Sonny Liston, who was training for a Los Angeles prizefight. "I don't know why I'm doin' this," said Jimmy as he strolled along, "except that I promised a guy I'd come over. He said the publicity would help the fight. So what the hell."

He climbed the stairs to the makeshift gym and posed with the former heavyweight boxing champ, giving his best ha-cha-cha smile for the photographers and onlookers. Then Jimmy returned to his suite, pausing along the way to pose for a tourist's camera and shake the hands of passing admirers.

* * *

Jimmy sat on the balcony where he breakfasted. He had two more nights of the three-week engagement, and he was thinking of home. He and his wife, Margie, and their adopted daughter, Ceci, 6, live in a newly built house in Beverly Hills.

"Since we've had the baby, I don't like to stay away from home the way I used to," said Jimmy. "I like to work two-three weeks, then go home, then play another two-three weeks, and go home. I don't wanna be away too long.

"That Ceci, she's a character. I call her up on the phone and she says, 'Hi Daddy I love you gotta go now goodbye.' Just like that. She don't like me to drive her to school; she'd rather take the bus. Or if I do drive her, she makes me let her out and not get out with her.

"She grabs me by the nose and says, 'I think I'll pull this off; then you won't be famous any more.' I dunno, I guess she don't like to share me.

* * *

"Ya know, it was somethin' when Marge and I adopted little Ceci. There was a question of whether I was too old to adopt a baby. Ya know what the judge said? He said, 'Mr. Durante, I have seen you perform, and I am convinced that you are truly young at heart.'"

Eddie Jackson, 72, a stout man with the face of a warrior in a Japanese woodblock print, has been with Jimmy for 56 years. Lou Clayton, the other member of the trio, died in 1950.

BEST-LIKED

Of Durante, Jackson says, "He don't know how to hold a grievance. I always say he's the best-liked person in the United States. You ain't never heard a word against him.

"We come a long way since 1916, me and Jimmy. We played before four presidents, did 29 different engagements at the Palace — nobody had a record like that.

* * *

"Jimmy never gets tired — that's for old people,' he says. 'How long can he keep it up? People all the time are askin' him if he'll retire. He always says, 'I'll quit when they stop laughin'. If that ever happens, I'll know it's time; nobody'll have tell me. But as long as they keep on laughin', I'll do my stuff.'"

Age is not one of Jimmy's favorite topics.

"I try to be outa town on my boirthday to avoid any fuss," he remarked. "They wanted to have a big wowout for my last one when I was in Miami, but I wouldn't let 'em. I don't think about how old I am.

"It's a funny tying. Paul Whiteman once told me this: 'As long as you're only 49, you can be a young man. But the minute you turn 50, everybody starts calling' you Pops.'"

* * *

Despite his impatience with the subject of age, Jimmy doesn't mind reminiscing. He reflected that he might be a band leader, but for the workings of fate.

"You know, I was a pretty good piana player," he said. "They wrote me up in one of them histories of jazz as bein' one of the two best of my day. Back in those times, I used to play for Clayton and Jackson and whenever I tried to do a little somethin' in the act, the manager would say, 'Shuddup and play the piana!'

PIN-WORMS

A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, nose-picking, a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms...ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First — a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then — Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work — kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist.

Quiet Billy Casper in Spotlight on Eve of U.S. Open Tourney

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Billy Casper, quiet and cool as ever but the hottest commodity on the pro tour, was a solid favorite today to capture his third United States Open Golf Championship.

Casper's near fantastic success this year—he's won four tournaments and almost $125,000—has thrust him ahead of the usual favorites, the troubled twosome of Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer.

"Billy's got to be the man to beat," said young Lee Trevino, also ranked by his fellow pros as a prime contender for golf's most prestigious title.

"Casper's playing incredible golf and the course is made for him."

FINAL ROUNDS

Play starts Thursday on the demanding 6,962-yard, par 70 Oak Hill Country Club layout. The starting field of 150 will be trimmed to the low 60 and ties after Friday's play for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

"I'm playing the best golf of my life," said the 36-year-old Casper, second only to Palmer on the all-time list of money winners and this year's leader.

* * *

"I have never played better. Largely, I think, it's my attitude. Whatever it is, it's all there. All aspects of my game are the best they have ever been."

He had a practice round of 70 in sweltering heat Tuesday and said he was satisfied.

"I don't think you'll see very many low scores," he said.

NOT TOO LONG

The course is not overly long, which favors Casper. But the fairways are very narrow, favoring his rifle-like accuracy, and the course is studded with some 34,000 trees, mostly oak and pine, and laced by winding brooks, picturesque but hazardous.

Most of the pros figure the demand for accuracy and the penalties of the hazards cut the chances of the gambling Nicklaus and Palmer.

* * *

Nicklaus is in a slump. He hasn't won this year. Palmer is plagued by a balky, aching hip. His last major title was the 1964 Masters. Gary Player says he's playing well and putting poorly. He hasn't scored a tour victory since the 1965 Open.

But they're always threats. And Nicklaus said his game has been improved with a new driver.

NEW CONFIDENCE

"I'd been driving badly," the 28-year-old Golden Bear said. "But the new club has given me new confidence."

Other major threats include Roberto de Vicenzo, the British Open champion who signed an incorrect card at the Masters; strong, young Tom Weiskopf; Masters champion Bob Goalby, PGA champion Don January, and the new breed, the crop of younger players who are muscling in on the established stars.

* * *

These include Bob Lunn, a two-time winner this year, former U.S. and British Amateur champ Bob Dickson, former amateur and NCAA champ Bob Murphy and Trevino, whose accuracy makes him a top contender.

And, too, there's Sam Snead, now 56 and still looking for the one major title that has eluded him in a professional career that spans more than three decades.

Lady Luck Continues to Favor Bengals

Detroiters Hike Lead by Taking 2 From Twins

THE PONTIAC PRESS
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 12, 1968 E—1 SPORTS

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tigers' incredible luck turned back Minnesota twice Tuesday night, as the Twins balked, erred, pitched wildly and simply dropped the ball.

The Tigers won the opener 3-1 on two unearned runs driven in by sub catcher Jim Price, and took the nightcap 3-2 on a pair of errors by normally surehanded Cesar Tovar.

* * *

Four of the six Detroit runs in the twinbill were unearned as the Tigers extended their American League lead to 4½ games over Baltimore and Cleveland.

"We seem to be getting our share of the breaks," understated Manager Mayo Smith after Tovar's second error on a sure doubleplay throw allowed Detroit to win the nightcap.

LAST CHANCE

The Tigers have won 12 games this year in their last turn at bat and 19 in which they were either tied or trailing after the seventh inning.

With one out and Tom Matchick on second and Dick McAuliffe on first, Mickey Stanley hit a grounder to Twins' shortstop Jackie Hernandez. He flipped to Tovar forcing McAuliffe at second for the second out. But Tovar's relay bounced past Harmon Killebrew at first and Matchick came home with the winning run.

* * *

Matchick, who had singled to open the inning off loser Al Worthington, 2-2, and moved to second on McAuliffe's hit, said: "As soon as I saw the ball go by Killewbrew, I just took off."

The Tigers, trailing 2-1, tied the score in the eighth on a single by Stanley and a wild pitch and a balk by Ron Perranoski, who had relieved starter Dave Boswell, and a single by Norm Cash.

FIRST MISCUE

Detroit's first run came in the third on Stanley's double, an infield grounder and Tovar's first error.

Minnesota, losing its fourth straight, scored one run off starter Joe Sparma in the first inning on Tony Oliva's sacrifice fly. Another run was scored in the fourth on a walk and Tovar's double.

* * *

John Hiller, who pitched two hitless innings of relief after Sparma left for a pinch batter, got credit for his fourth victory against a single loss.

* * *

Sparma, who has had trouble getting support from his teammates, gave up four hits but failed to figure in the decision. He has lost two games this year in which the Tigers have gotten a total of two hits.

"It'll even up," said Sparma. "As long as we win, I don't care."

Reds, Braves Deal

Pappas, Cloninger in Switch

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati and Atlanta exchanged hurlers Milt Pappas and Tony Cloninger Tuesday in a six-man deal that both teams feel will bolster their pitching staffs especially.

The Reds also sent reliever Ted Davidson and infielder Bob Johnson to the Braves for reliever Clay Carroll and infielder Woody Woodward.

* * *

Pappas, a product of Detroit's Cooley High School, recently said his playing days with Cincinnati "are numbered" and added Tuesday that "I knew I was going. It was only a matter of where and when."

* * *

Pappas ran into a dispute with Cincinnati management following the slaying of U.S. Sen. Robert Kennedy and ended up announcing last Saturday his resignation as Cincinnati player representative.

Kennedy's funeral was delayed and Pappas told Reds' officials that players would rather not play Saturday night. Management felt differently.

LONG RANGE

When asked if he negotiated the deal with Atlanta after the dispute with Pappas, Howsam replied, "No, we've been working on the deal since May 17. We've been scouting Cloninger for a long time and know his arm is sound," Howsam said.

Atlanta Manager Lum Harris said Pappas, 2-5 this year with a 5.57 ERA in 15 games, "will make us a darn good pitcher."

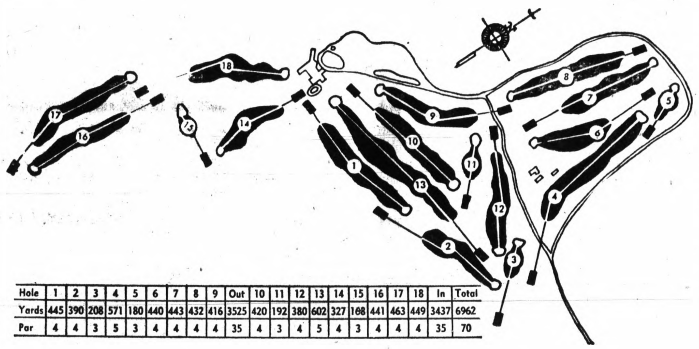

* * *

"I've liked Pappas as a pitcher from the first time I saw him," Harris continued about the 29-year-old veteran who posted a 16-13 record last year with a 3.34 ERA and entered the season with a 138-98 major league record.

Golfers' Route In U.S.G.A. Open At Oak Hill

Griffith Garners Narrow Decision to Regain Hope

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Former middleweight king Emile Griffith today was back on the road that could lead him to a fourth meeting with the current champ, Italy's Nino Benvenuti.

Griffith won a split decision over Andy Heilman Tuesday night in a rugged 12-round bout at Oakland Coliseum Arena.

* * *

The victory assured Griffith of a July 8 bout in Philadelphia against unbeaten Gypsy Joe Harris. The winner of that one gets a title shot, according to New York matchmaker Teddy Brenner.

Griffith and Heilman both weighed 157½ for their go here. There were no knockdowns in the action, but Griffith staggered Heilman with a right in the 10th stanza, Griffith's best round.

ONE DISENTER

Judge Elmer Costa called it 8-4 and Johnny Lotsey 8-3 for Griffith. But referee Vern Bybee called it 5-5.

Heilman's pier six style seemed made to order for the quick-handed Griffith who always landed more than he toook. Heilman seemed to lose a lot of zip from the fifth round on after early body punches slowed down the San Pedro, Calif., battler.

* * *

Griffith now has a 55-9 record while Heilman is 40-4.

Ed Stanky Still Optimistic About Race

NEW YORK (AP) — The view from way down there deep in the second division still is encouraging to Eddie Stanky of the Chicago White Sox.

"It's still too early to count anybody out," said Stanky whose Sox got left at the post and lost their first 10 starts this season.

* * *

"I said in Florida and I'll say it again that Boston is the team to beat," said Stanky. "After all, they are the champions although I understand Jim Lonborg's shoulder is stiff."

"The big surprise this year has been the hitting, or rather lack of hitting by the entire league. I thought it might be weaker but not this week.

"The only answer is the pitching. They are getting better every year. In years to come you are going to see more and more no hitters and low-hit games."

Stanky said he had no regrets about the deal with the New York Mets by which Tommie Agee, Al Weis and J.C. Martin went for Tommy Davis, Jack Fisher and Dick Booker.

* * *

"Tommy Davis has had a tough time adjusting to the pitching in a strange league," said Eddie. He has to learn the pitchers all over again. That takes time. I think you will see him greatly improved in the second half of the season. After all we've scarcely played 50 games yet."

Stanky still has his incentive program by which a player is rewarded for an outstanding pitching or hitting job. He has not had to hand out many so far this season.

BEST DRESSED

"Tommy John got a new suit of clothes when he broke our losing streak," said Stanky.

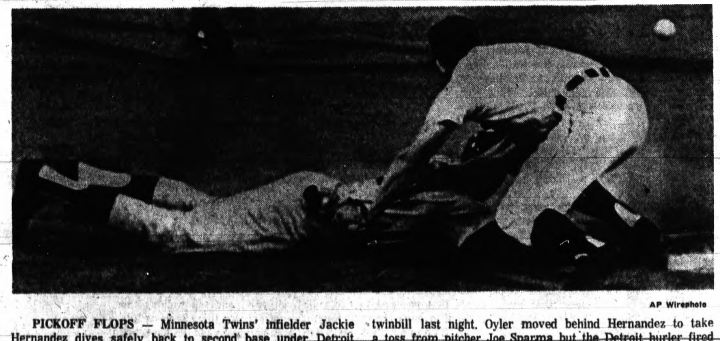

"We also have assessments," he said. "We've always had them on my clubs. At the end of the year when I was in St. Louis we'd have a big party from that fund. It used to cost me $400 out of my own pocket. I make it a point to give it all back to the players in some form."

Most managers call assessments by another name—fines.

As for that deal with the Mets, Stanky said he wasn't surprised at the way Agee, Weis and Martin had helped the Mets.

"All of them are good players," he said. "We knew that when we made the trade. We are confident that Davis will come around for us. Jack Fisher has pitched good ball although he doesn't have much of a record. Booker is a young catcher for the future.

"I have one rule that I never break. Never look back."

PICKOFF FLOPS — Minnesota Twins' infielder Jackie Hernandez dives safely back to second base under Detroit shortstop Ray Oyler as the ball sails into centerfield in an unsuccessful Tiger pickoff attempt in the nightcap of their twinbill last night. Oyler moved behind Hernandez to take a toss from pitcher Joe Sparma but the Detroit hurler fired the ball wildly. Hernandez moved to third on the first-inning play and later scored. Tigers won both games, 3-1, and 3-2.

Rain-Shortened Play

WEST BARRINGTON, R. I. (AP) — The rain-shortened women's Eastern Golf association Championship makes another try to get under way today with four-time U.S. Amateur champion JoAnne Gunderson Carner of Seekonk, Mass., heading the 67-player field.

Heavy rain flooded the fairways and greens Tuesday, forcing cancellation of the opening 18-hole round of the scheduled 54-hole event. Officials said the tourney will be shortened to a 36-hole test today and Thursday.

Homer Punch Sparks Orioles to 8-4 Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Don Buford homered on the game's first pitch and Brooks Robinson added a two-run homer in the fifth inning, sending the Baltimore Orioles to an 8-4 victory over the Washington Senators Tuesday night.

It was the Orioles ninth straight victory over the Senators.

* * *

Buford's homer was off loser Frank Bertania and the Orioles tagged their ex-teammate and Dick Bosman for four more runs in the second with Boog Powell and starter Gene Brabender each driving in two runs with doubles.

* * *

Robinson's homer off Barry Moore scored Frank Robinson, who was hit by a pitch.

BIG LEAD

Brabender had a five-run lead in the fourth but did not survive the inning as Ken McMullen, Bill Bryan and Mike Epstein singled in succession, and with one out Ed Brinkman and pinch-hitter Frank Coggins singled. Epstein and Brinkman each drove in a run and one scored on a balk.

Roger Nelson gave up Cogins' single, but got Fred Valentine on a double play ball as he won his first game in the major leagues.

* * *

The Senators chased Nelson in the seventh on Brinkman's single and walks to Valentine and pinch hitter Sam Bowens. Frank Howard drove in a run on a fielder's choice off Moe Drabowsky.

Red Wings Fail to Sign Brewer

MONTREAL (AP) — The Detroit Red Wings disclosed Tuesday that former all-star defenseman Carl Brewer has rejected an offer to join the National Hockey League team and will become a player-coach in Finland.

Brewer quit the Toronto Maple Leafs several years ago. He regained his amateur status and last season as a player-coach led the Muskegon Mohawks to the International Hockey League title.

Detroit obtained the rights to him in the trade with Toronto.

Mets' Hurler Selma in Turnabout on Mound

By DICK COUCH
By the Associated Press

Given an option three months ago, the New York Mets might have left Dick Selma in Florida without a backward glance. Given a choice today, they'd probably settle for nothing less than two of him.

Selma, a distinct flop during spring training, reeled off his sixth regular season victory without a loss Tuesday night, hurling a five-hitter as the Mets tripped the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0.

* * *

Selma appeared ticketed for the Mets' Jacksonville farm club in April after appearing in five exhibition games . . . and compiling an 0-5 record. But New York had exercised all its options on the 24-year-old right-hander, and Manager Gil Hodges wanted to take one more look before giving up on him.

Now Selma rates No. 1 among National League pitchers with five or more decisions and merits a place of esteem on the Mets' talented young pitching staff alongside Jerry Koosman, Tom Seaver and Nolan Ryan.

OTHER CONTESTS

In other NL games, Pittsburgh slugged San Francisco 7-4, with a 16-hit barrage; first place St. Louis trimmed Atlanta 6-0 behind Bob Gibson; Houston upended Philadelphia 5-1; and Cincinnati outscored the Chicago Cubs 9-7.

Selma lowered his earned run average to 1.77 in making the Dodgers his second shutout victim since he muscled his way out of the New York bullpen and into the starting rotation last month.

BEST GAME

He struck our four Dodgers Tuesday night and never was in serious trouble. "I had a lousy curve and slider," he said, "but this was the best fast ball I've had all season. And I thought it was the best game I've pitched."

Two errors by third baseman Ken Boyer helped the Mets push over a pair of unearned runs against loser Claude Osteen, 5-8, who had pitched shutouts in his previous two starts.

* * *

Roberto Clemente's eighth homer touched off a four-run sixth inning spree that carried the Pirates past the Giants. After Clemente homered off southpaw Ray Sadecki, tying the game 3-3, Bill Mazeroski drilled a two-run single and Maury Wills singled another run home.

Reliever Ron Kline blanked the Giants from the fifth inning until the ninth, when he got last out help from Roy Face.

Gibson, 6-5, beat Atlanta for the first time since 1966 with a five-hitter as the Cardinals extended their two-year hex over the Braves to 10 successive victories.

DOUBLE PLAY

The Cardinals, who have won 13 of their last 15 games, assured Gibson of his second straight shutout by reeling off four double plays.

* * *

Tim McCarver drove in two runs, Julian Javier and Mike Shannon delivered one each and two more scored on a pair of errors by rookie outfielder Mike Lum.

The Astros struck for five runs in the second inning and pinned Philadelphia with its fifth consecutive setback behind right-hander Larry Dierker, who scattered seven hits and struck out 11.

* * *

Rusty Staub capped the second inning flurry with a two-run double. Rich Allen, making his first start since May 29, tagged Dierker for a first inning homer. The Phils' slugger was back in the line-up after apparently patching up his differences with Manager Gene Mauch.

* * *

Tony Perez knocked in four runs with a homer, single and ground out, leading the Reds past the Cubs in an afternoon game. Perez, who leads the league with 39 RBI, gave Cincinnati its margin of victory with a two-run blast in the sixth inning. Lee May also homered for the Reds.

Vets Nearing Showdown in College World Series

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A pair of old pro coaches in college baseball, Rod Dedeaux of Southern California and Chet Bryan of Oklahoma State, are headed for an early showdown in the College World Series tonight.

Both opened with first-round victories Tuesday night. USC needed only two hits to defeat Brigham Young 5-3 behind Bill Lee, while OSU sprayed 17 hits and got a no-hit, no-run relief job the last eight innings from Bob Richardson in an 8-5 victory over Texas.

Dedeaux is after his fourth NCAA baseball title and USC's fifth.

"OSC won its in 1948 and 1958, so maybe 1968 is our year," he said.

This is Bryan's third straight trip to Omaha and he has the best hitting club of the three. The 1966 team was runner-up to Ohio State.

St. John's of New York, 24-8, and North Carolina State, 24-7, both first-round winners, will play at 5:30 p.m., CDT, followed by Southern Cal., 46-14, and OSU, 21-7, at 8. In the loser's bracket at 2, Texas meets BYU.

HARVARD OUT

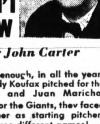

Southern Illinois, given a reprieve when Harvard dropped a game-ending pop fly, eliminated Harvard 2-1 on Jerry Bond's leadoff home run in the 11th inning Tuesday. The victory moved SIU, ranked No. 2 in the final national coaches' poll, into Thursday's third round.

St. John's will start right-hander Rich Napolitano, 7-2 with a 0.97 earned run average on a staff with a fantastic 1.01 season ERA. NC State will start Joe Frye, 8-2, a freshman right-hander with a .379 batting average and the club leader with four home runs in just 29 trips.

* * *

USC will start right-hander Jim Southworth, 2-1 and 2.84, while Bryan will choose between a pair of right-handers, Mike Camp 1.76 and Bill Maxwell 2.11.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By John Carter

Oddly enough, in all the years that Sandy Koufax pitched for the Dodgers and Juan Marichal pitched for the Giants, they faced each other as starting pitchers in only three different games! . . . You'd think these two great pitchers would have faced each other more often, but the record shows they were starting pitching opponents on only June 3, 1961, May 24, 1963 and August 22, 1965 . . . Koufax won the first meeting but lost the last two.

Can you guess what's the all-time record for a big league baseball team losing the most games in a row? . . . The record was set by Cleveland in 1889 when they lost 24 straight games.

Do you have any idea how great a swimmer Johnny Weissmuller was? . . . Before turning to the movies and playing "Tarzan" for many years, Weissmuller was by far the greatest swimmer on earth . . . He held EVERY world free-style record from 100 yards to the half-mile . . . He swam in five different Olympic races and broke the world's record in each one of them . . . And, from 1921 to 1929 he never lost a free style race!

Oakland Hurler Blanks Indians

Chuck Dobson Sharp in Rain-Halted Tilt

CLEVELAND (AP) — Chuck Dobson pitched an abbreviated five-hitter Tuesday night, leading the Oakland Athletics past Cleveland 2-0 in a game halted by rain in the sixth inning.

The Indians were threatening in the bottom of the sixth when the rains came. After waiting one hour and 29 minutes, the umpires called the game.

* * *

With one out in the Indians' sixth, Lee Maye beat out an infield roller and right fielder Reggie Jackson dropped Duke Sims' pop fly for an error before the rain stopped play.

Wimbledon Approaching Net Stars in Tuneups

By United Press International

Tennis tournaments in England are plentiful this week as the world's top players continue preparations for the Wimbledon championships later this month.

One old pro, Lew Hoad, made a comeback Tuesday while a young pro, Billie Jean King, decided to take a vacation as the Kent Tennis championships continued at Beckenham.

Hoad, winner of Wimbledon titles in 1956 and 1957, defeated England's John DeMendoza 6-0, 6-3 in second round action.

Mrs. King of Long Beach, Calif., and second seed in the tournament, withdrew from the meet and returned home to rest. Her departure left Ann Haydon Jones of Britain, Rosemary Casals of San Francisco and Francois Durr of France as the only women pros remaining in the event.

EASY WINS

Australians Fred Stolle and Roy Emerson as well as Andres Gimeno of Spain advanced with easy victories.

* * *

Lt. Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., and Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico were second round winners in the West of England tennis championships at Bristol.

Ashe beat Alfredo Acuna of Peru, 6-1, 6-4 while Pasarell defeated Antonio Pena of Colombia, 6-4, 6-1.

Judy Tegart of Australia and American teen-ager Vicki Rodgers both coasted into the quarter finals of the women's singles at the Nottingham Open Tennis Championship.

The top men seeds, Luis Ayala, a Chilean pro, and Keith Woolridge of Britain posted easy victories in the second round of the men's singles.

Faculty 9 Spoils Students 'Revenge'

For two years the students at Twin Beach school in Walled Lake gained revenge on their teachers — on the softball diamond.

* * *

Yesterday, however, the faculty again had the last say. The student all-stars fell, 15-7, in the third annual game. Linda Sahadjack, Chris Hart, Andrea McDermeid and David Doyle were standouts for the students.

Stan Hestor sparked the teachers with a three-run homer.

This Could Be Year for USC Team

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The sign in the Southern California dressing room says: "Remember, This Is 1968."

The point is not lost on the Trojans' track team. In four of the last seven years, Southern California has won the National Collegiate Athletic Association track championship. Those years were 1961-63-65-67.

* * *

Is there an even-year jinx Well, if the Trojans don't win the title again this year, you could make a strong case for one.

Even if all the other teams were healthy, Southern Cal would be a prohibitive favorite to defend its title successfully when the championships open a three-day stand here Thursday.

But things have been happening to contenders that make a Trojan victory even more likely.

Tennessee's star hurdler, Richmond Flowers, is out of the meet with a leg injury.

Kansas' Jim Ryun, the best 1,500-meter runner in the world, is out with mononucleosis.

Villanova's 16-7¾ pole vaulter, Vince Bizzarro, is a question mark because of his recent marriage and a job-training program he is starting.

Those are the teams — along with Oregon, perhaps — that now figure to battle it out for second place behind the Trojans.

Many athletes have begun to work out at Cal's Edwards Stadium where the meet is being held for the eighth time.

* * *

Most of Thursday's program is given over to qualifying heats and trials, which will whittle the more than 600 athletes from 149 schools down to a more manageable aggregation.

The one final event that will be held Thursday is the 10,000-meter run in which Gerry Lindgren, Washington State's little distance ace, figures to have things all to himself.

* * *

Lindgren won the three-mile and six-mile championships the past two years as well as the cross country title. Because this is an olympic year, all the races except the relays will be run in their metric equivalents.

Snyder's Hot Bat Leads Chisox Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Russ Snyder knocked in five runs with a grand slam homer and sacrifice fly Tuesday night, leading the Chicago White Sox to a 9-5 victory over the New York Yankees.

Snyder's grand slam capped a five-run explosion in the third inning. Pete Ward, who had drawn a bases-loaded walk in the third, keyed a three-run wrapup burst in the fifth with a two-run, bad-hop single.

* * *

Trailing 8-0, the Yankees closed the gap on a three-run homer by Tom Tresh in the bottom of the fifth and Mickey Mantle's two-run blast in the sixth.

Winning pitcher Joe Horlen, 5-6, held the Yanks hitless until the fifth. He gave way to Don McMahon in the sixth and Wilbur Wood came on in the eighth.

* * *

Snyder cracked his first 1968 homer, off Bill Monbouquette, who had replaced loser Fred Talbot, now winless in eight decisions.

Charlie Smith stroked a pinch double in the Yanks' seventh, extending his string of consecutive pinch hits to five-one short of the American League record set by Bob Johnson of Baltimore in 1964. Smith has seven hits and a walk in 10 pinch hit appearances.

Sawchuk Expected to Go in NHL Draft

MONTREAL (AP) — With the champion Montreal Canadiens apparently through wheeling and dealing, the National Hockey League prepared to hold its intra-league draft today amid speculation that veteran goalie Terry Sawchuk, the all-time shutout leader from Union Lake, may be up for grabs.

That possibility arose Tuesday when Sawchuk's Los Angeles Kings obtained Gerry Desjardins, the American Hockey League's top netminder last season, from Montreal for two future amateur draft choices.

* * *

Some observers feel the Kings will protect Desjardins and Wayne Rutledge, who shared the goaltending chores with Sawchuck last season. The 38-year-old Sawchuk appeared in 36 games with a 3.07 goals against average and two shutouts, the 101st and 102nd of his 19-year NHL career.

Each of the 12 NHL team can protect 14 skaters and two goalies. Oakland will have the first draft choice, followed by Detroit, Pittsburgh, Toronto, Minnesota, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, New York and Montreal.

In Tuesday's biggest deal, the Canadiens sent right wingers Claude Larose and Danny Grant to the Minnesota North Stars for two amateur draft choices, two players to be named during training camp, cash and "other valuable considerations," which were not disclosed.

* * *

Montreal also swapped forward Wally Boyer, acquired from Oakland last month, to Pittsburgh for veteran defenseman Al MacNeil, sent utilityman Bryan Watson to Oakland for cash and one amateur draft selection and sold minor league center Jim Paterson and the rights to amateurs Claude Piche and Jack Rathwell to Minnesota in a straight cash deal.

* * *

In other transactions:

—The St. Louis Blues picked up veteran forward Ab McDonald from Pittsburgh in a three-way trade.

To get McDonald, the Blues gave up Lou Angotti, obtained from Philadelphia along with minor league forward Ian Campbell for two players to be named following today's draft.

* * *

—St. Louis dealt forward Myron Stankiewicz, acquired Tuesday from Hershey of the American League in the inter-league draft, to Los Angeles for right winger Terry Gray.

FUTURE TEAM

In another move, the NHL's board of governors voted to include Vancouver in any future expansion. The governors named a four-man committee to explore all phases of such a move but the date for any further expansion was not determined.

* * *

The 26-year-old Larose scored only two goals in 42 games with the Canadiens. Grant had three goals in 22 games.

McDonald, 32, scored 22 goals for Pittsburgh. Angotti, 32, captained Philadelphia and was the team's leading scorer with 12 goals and 37 assists.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS:

Birdie-2 Comes Up Second Best

It isn't often that you score a birdie on a par-3 hole and lose. J. Frank Coad did earlier this week while touring the Twin Lakes Country Club course.

★ ★ ★

Coad's birdie-2 came on the 140-yard, 8th hole, but one of his playing partners, Jess Akins, aced the hole.

★ ★ ★

Akins turned in his hole-in-one with a 7-iron and went on to card a 39 for the round.

Track Speed Mark Falls

ROCKINGHAM, N. C. (AP)— Five drivers, including rookie Swede Savage, broke the track record at North Carolina Motor Speedway Tuesday in practice runs for Sunday's $77.000 Carolina 500 stock car race.

Savage, named to drive the Bondy Long Ford vacated by Bobby Allison only a day earlier, was clocked at 118.030 miles per hour. The Los Angeles, Calif., rookie is being coached by former driver Fred Lorenzen.

★ ★ ★

The fastest practice time Tuesday was 119.804 m.p.h., recorded by Charley Glotzbach of Georgetown, Ind., in a 1968 Dodge.

★ ★ ★

The existing track record is 117.400 m.p.h. Most observers expect a new record to be set in Wednesday's first day of qualifying for two pole positions and six other starting spots.

FAST RUNS

Others breaking the track record in practice Tuesday were: David Pearson, Spartanburg, S.C., 1968 Ford, 119.880 m.p.h.; Cale Yarborough, Charlotte, N. C., 1968 Mercury, 118.400 m.p.h.; and Buddy Baker, Charlotte, 1968 Dodge, 118.224.

U.S. Net Head 'Openly' Happy

Pro-Amateur Meets Lure Large Crowds

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association is confident that if pro tennis continues to flourish it will spell the doom of sham-amateurism.

"Before, there was no place for most of the world class tennis players to go if they wanted to cash in," said Robert Kelleher, the USLTA president from Los Angeles, today.

★ ★ ★

"Sure, the Wimbledon winner could sign up for a lot of money but the players who finished a few notches down didn't do too well.

★ ★ ★

"Now with the National Tennis League and World Championship Tennis and open tennis tournaments, there's a place for most of the players who want to make a living from tennis."

HARD COURTS

Kelleher said he was delighted with the smash successes of the first two open tennis tournaments—the British Hard Courts Championships at Bournemouth, England, and the French Open Tennis Championships at Paris.

★ ★ ★

British tennis officials said the Bournemouth tournament drew twice as many spectators as it ever did before. The French Campionships grossed a record $170.000, three times what it did in 1967, despite strikes and a lack of transportation, Kelleher said he had been told.

U.S. Open Gets Full Coverage

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. Open Golf Championship will be televised nationally Saturday and Sunday by ABC-TV.

★ ★ ★

The network will have live coverage of the tournament at the Oak Hill Country Club 4-5:50 p.m., EDT, Saturday and 4-6 p.m., EDT, Sunday.

★ ★ ★

In addition, videotape highlights of the first two days, Thursday and Friday, will be telecast Friday night 8-8:30 p.m., EDT.

MANDATORY SAFEGUARDS—Linda Poli (left) of Detroit wears a lifejacket and Holly Ragsdale of Birmingham holds a life preserver boat cushion while seated in a boat at Bloomfield Beach on Cass Lake. The new marine law makes it mandatory to have one Coast Guard approved life preserver aboard for each person, regardless of whether a motor is used.

State Act Keeps Boaters 'Floating'

If it floats, and is used to carry people across the water, there must be at least one approved life saving device for each person aboard.

And the Oakland County sheriff's department is going to enforce this new provision in the Marine Safety Act which went into effect Jan. 1 of this year.

* * *

There are several other new sections in the act, but this one is the most important, according to Lt. Don Kratt, head of the water safety division.

"This means canoes, sailboats, row boats or anything that falls under the definition of a vessel in the act," said Kratt.

As defined, a "vessel means every description of watercraft, other than a seaplane on the water, used or capable of being used as a means of trnsportation on the water."

Safety devices include life preserver, vest, ring buoy or buoyant cushion and the make must be Coast Guard approved.

* * *

"If a boat is towing a water skier, there must be a life preserver aboard for the skier," said Kratt. "There is an approved belt for skiers, but this doesn't count as a preserver. And even though the skier may never enter the boat, a preserver must be kept on board for him."

Regarding skiing, the law has reverted back to having the pilot plus one observer aboard. The person watching the skier must be seated so as to see the progress of the person being towed at all times.

FIRE PREVENTION

One to three fire extinguishers must now be carried aboard all motorboats with engine compartments, any form of deck or other compartment. The number of extinguishers is determined by the length.

Other key provisions, according to Kratt, include:

- Operating vessels on lakes in a counter-clockwise fashion, in so far as possible; maintaining a distance of 100 feet or more from a dock, raft, moored vessel, occupied swimming area or diver's flag unless operating at a no wake speed.
- Not operating a vessel within restricted areas defined by buoys or beacons.

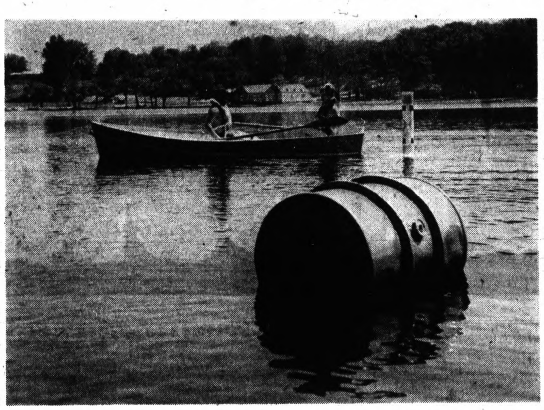

* * *

- No towing of skiers, surfboarders or watersledders between one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise.
- Children less than 12 years old must have a person 16 years or older aboard when operating a motorboat over six horsepower. Youngsters 12 to 16 must either be with an adult or have a safety certificate in possession.
- Any anchored raft can be ordered relocated or removed when deemed a hazard to navigation.
- Divers must have properly placed buoys bearing a red flag of specific size, or a proper flag painted on the boat, at or near where they enter the water.
- All motorboats must be registered with the secretary of state and the registration numbers painted or aattched near the bow. The numbers must be three inches or higher and contrast with the color of the hull.

Kratt feels there are five major reasons for water mishaps:

(1) Careless or reckless operation of boats, (2) leaving children unattended near the water, (3 gasoline fumes accumulating in engine compartments or under decks causing explosions, (4) swimmers overtaxing themselves by trying to swim too far and (5) overloading a boat.

"People using the waterways should use common sense," he said, "and they should make sure there are enought life preservers in the boat."

DANGER ZONE—Boats must stay outside of swimming areas marked with buoys such as the one in the background. No motorboat can be operated within 100 feet of such an area unless it slows to a no wake speed. As of Jan. 1, 1968 the only markers or buoys that can be placed in the water are the international type shown. Barrels such as the one in the foreground are no longer permitted.

Capsizing Big Threat in Boating

BY WM. T. McKEOWN
NEA Boating Editor

Name the boats and boatmen most likely to get in trouble this year:

Hot shot speedsters? Offshore adventurers? Youngsters in small sailboats? Water skiers? Wrong.

* * *

"A rather high proportion of fatal boating accidents," warned U.S. Coast Guard Commandant Willard J. Smith recently, "involve hunters and-fishermen."

It hardly seems fair. You'd think the clown who roars past the dock, throwing waves around, would be the first to go. He may, if he's that careless and hits something or another boat— collisions by boatmen who didn't look where they were going caused the most nonfatal accidents last year.

TOO FAR

But more likely the worst trouble comes later when the boatman simply tips his craft too far while pulling up the anchor or keeps fishing when the weather gets rough, according to new figures from the Coast Guard.

Boating statistics, just out of for last year, show the sport is remarkably safe. With an estimated 40 million people riding 8 million pleasure craft, only one in 10,000 got in an accident.

Most frequent cause of fatalities was capsized, and the boats didn't flip themselves. They got tipped, the figures show, by improper loading, overloading, and overpowering by owners who also went out in weather and water conditions that their boats or their experience couldn't handle.

Falling overboard — the particular small boat hazard for fishermen and hunters out alone — ranked second as a cause of drowning.

Boats sinking came third. And an added sad note: The Coast Guard found 82 per cent of drowning victims had life preservers in the boat but didn't or couldn't use them in time.

It wasn't the large boats on long open water cruises that got in the most trouble. They had the major collisions, fires, groundings and nonfatal accidents. Small craft on seemingly sheltered inland waters had the most serious problems, however. The Fourth of July is traditionally the most dangerous time, and the annual date for National Safe Boating Week.

These records on who gets hurt afloat, and why, and hopefully how to prevent it are getting much better as the result of new rules. If a skipper operates a boat recklessly, he's breaking a law. Now if he gets in an accident and fails to report it to the Coast Guard immediately, he breaks another.

The other winners included: 150 — Coyote, Jack Brown; 48 — Wait-4-Me, Dick Boyer; 145—Blue Chips, Jack Sweeney; 225—Chip Winder, Gene Whipp; and 266—Ballyhoo, Mike Wiener.

The runner-up in the 48 cubic-inch class was Ann Deuschle of Kentucky in the Can-n-Nan. Mrs. Deuschle perennially gives the front-runners trouble.

Strong Winds Plague Fleet

LONDON (AP) — Hurricane-force winds and tremendous seas today brought fears that some yachts in the single-handed Trans-Atlantic yacht race may meet more trouble than they can cope with.

Seasoned seamen among the race leaders reported conditions in the mid-Atlantic were the worst they had ever experienced, with winds gusting up to 100 m.p.h.

* * *

Twenty-eight of the original 35 starters are fighting it out on the Atlantic course between Plymouth, England, and Newport, R.I., the race, sponsored by the London Observer newspaper, started June 1.

* * *

Britain's Leslie Williams, now more than 1,100 miles out of Plymouth in his 53-foot sloop, Spirit of Cutty Sark, reported by radio that the sloop was lying beam on to heavy seas with all sails lashed down.

* * *

"This is the worst storm I've ever experienced," he said. "It's impossible to carry sail and I'm making no headway whatsoever."

Detroit Horse Show Scheduled June 24-30

The largest and richest outdoor hunter and jumper show in the nation, the Detroit Horse Show includes equitation, dressage, and hunter classes in addition to the crowd-pleasing jumping events.

* * *

Show chairman Harry Nederlander has announced that classes will begin at 8 a.m. June 24-25 (Monday and Tuesday), 9 a.m. on the 26th through the 29th, and 10 a.m. on Sunday the 30th.

NO ADMISSION

There is no admission all day Monday and during the daytime classes Tuesday-Friday. Tickets are $1, $2 and $3 for general admission, reserve and box seats Tuesday-Thursday nights and during the day Saturday and Sunday.

New Park Tour Slated Saturday by Audubon Club

The Pontiac Audubon Club will tour Oakland County's newest park Saturday.

Recently acquired for development by the county's parks and recreation department, the land on Crooked (Lower Bushman) Lake is still in its natural state.

The area is reached by taking Sashabaw north to Hoyt and then west to Perry Lake before turning north to Shappie. The tour will start from an old windmill on Shappie at 8 a.m.

The public is invited to attend both events.

Meets at Haven Hill Lodge

Commission to Hear Deer Hunt Plans

Preliminary plans for this fall's firearm deer season will top the Conservation Commission's agenda Thursday and Friday at Haven Hill Lodge in the Highland recreation area.

The Thursday meeting is at 1:30 p.m. and any discussion with the public takes place at this time. The formal business session starts at 9 a.m. Friday.

* * * *

The preliminary deer recommendations will give the commission an opportunity to weigh the proposals and, if necessary, suggest changes in areas and quotas before it formally sets 1968 firearm deer regulations during its July 11-12 meeting at the Higgins Lake Conservation School.

On tap for commission study at the Haven Hill meeting will be proposed antlerless deer quotas and areas which this week are being screened jointly by the department's field personnel and members of its game division staff in Lansing.

Those same tentative recommendations will also have been reviewed by six northern Citizen's Advisory Committees on Deer before they are presented to the commission.

POSSIBLY AGREE

Should the committees concur with them, there is a possibility that only one slate of preliminary regulations will go before the commission.

If they don't, there undoubtedly will be separate sets of recommended areas and quotas—one the Department's and the others coming from dissenting committees.

Whichever the case, there is sure to be one major change in the state's 1968 firearm deer season.

Under legislation passed last year, the season will be changed back to its former traditional starting date of November 15, statewide. It will run concurrently in all areas and close uniformly on November 30.

Other items on the agenda include a proposal from the hunting area control committee to close a small lake and the surrounding area in parts of sections 22 and 27 of Holly Township to hunting; special watercraft regulations for the Black River and City of Port Huron; and land matters.

There is a possibility that the construction of dams on trout streams in northern Michigan will be brought before the commission by Trout, Unlimited.

Junior Editors Quiz on THE ODYSSEY

QUESTION: What should we know about the Odyssey and the Iliad?

ANSWER: The Odyssey and the Iliad are long stories in poetical form, originally chanted or sung. They were originated by the blind poet Homer in the days of ancient Greece.

Only a little is known about Homer who, with the guidance of a small boy, is supposed to have wandered about the country, singing his songs to the music of his lyre. In some way, the songs were written down. They inspired other writers to tell fascinating stories.

Since Homer introduced many great and noble ideas into his poems, an art of great writing began to develop which greatly influenced Western civilization and laid the foundation for the finer kind of writing we call literature.

In his songs, Homer used imagination. He gave the Greek gods and goddesses human feelings. He even let them fly down and interfere in human affairs, as in our picture where the hero Achilles finds his hair suddenly seized from behind by the goddess Athene, who is trying to calm him down in a moment of sudden anger.

The Iliad tells the story of the Greek attack on the neighboring city of Troy, while the Odyssey tells about the hero Ulysses who has many adventures while trying to return to his home after the Trojan War.

Soviets Rewriting Red Chinese History

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — Echoes of American arguments two decades ago about communism in China can now be heard in Soviet rewriting of Chinese Communist history.

A major Soviet campaign is under way to depict Mao Tse-tung as a Chinese nationalist pursuing traditional goals of old China by dangerously adventurous means.

★ ★ ★

The current line tells the Soviet people that Mao is not really a Communist and suggests Russia and China were never natural allies for all their talk about Communist brotherhood.

The Soviet line has similarities to the view of some American experts two decades ago who contended that Chinese and Soviet interests were divergent. They argued that Red China under Mao would not fit into Stalin's world Communist system.

'AGRARIAN REFORMERS'

In its extreme form—the form used later for U.S. political attacks on these experts, attacks led by the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin — the view of these experts was that Mao's followers were "agrarian reformers."

Mao, some explained, simply wanted to rebuild the strength of China by adapting communism to nationalist purposes, and communism in China would not mean what it meant elsewhere.

★ ★ ★

But when Mao came to power, he made a military alliance with Stalin and sent his armies to salvage Stalin's Korean War venture. Both Peking and Miscow were talking then of close ties and joint dedication to the goals of communism.

In the Korean war period — the McCarthy era-Western experts who said Soviet and Chinese interests were basically irreconcilable found themselves ridiculed. Some were ousted from their jobs.

SWITCHING SIDES

Now the Soviets sound increasingly as if they are on the side of those experts, at least to a limited extent.

They have not used the term "agrarian reformers" with its benign connotations. But they have recalled that Lenin said in an agricultural country "it is necessary to solve the problem of struggle . . . against medieval survivals" — with agrarian reform implied as one solution needed in underdeveloped China.

However, the current view is that Mao "distorted" the Communist solution to problems, "treating Marxism in a utilitarian way, taking only some of its ideas and not delving into the essence of the science of communism.

"The Sinoization of Marxism actually turned out to be its replacement by the nationalist ideology of Mao Tse-tung," says the Soviet theoretical journal Kommunist.

FEUDAL ROOTS

"A variant of petite bourgeois ideology, Maoism is . . . a sum total of views culled from various sources and adapted to selfish political calculations," the journal said. The main aspects were borrowed from "conservative ideas rooted in the feudal monarchic ideology" of old China.

Mao changed communism so that "by 1949 the nationalism of Mao and his group began to assume" a form of seeking power "to satisfy the great-power claims" of traditional Chinese thinking, another Soviet article explained.

★ ★ ★

The Soviet Union provided more than $2 billion worth of aid — since repaid by China. But there is now a hint in Soviet comments that the Kremlin was deceived and perhaps even made a mistake in believing Mao was the kind of Communist to help.

Kommunist and other Soviet publications always are careful to distinguish between "the Mao group" and some shadowy, unidentified Chinese Communists who are represented as being pure of Communist heart.

'INTERNATIONALISTS'

The Soviet rewriting of recent Chinese history identifies these pure communists as "internationalists," meaning they still respect Moscow instead of only looking inward to Peking.

But Kremlin leaders seem worried that many Chinese "internationalists" can survive Mao's cultural purge. And Kommunist has warned that there is a clear "danger of changing the nature of power" in China so that the country is no longer Communist.

★ ★ ★

But the effect of this Soviet reassessment of recent Chinese history is to raise a question of just what communism is in a primarily agricultural country like China. That was what Americans argued about two decades ago as Mao was taking over China.

Miss Caldwell Is Miss Caldwell

White-Ruled Africa Faces Intensified Guerrilla Warfare

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — Africa's black leaders, frustrated by growing economic and military might in white-ruled southern Africa, plan to intensify guerrilla warfare against what they term "the white cancer on this black continent."

At a recent summit meeting, 14 independent nations urged continuous and relentless attacks on white minority rule by black "freedom fighters."

★ ★ ★

They envisage a front line extending 2,000 miles from the humid jungles of Angola on the Atlantic seaboard, through arid bushland plains of central Africa to the palm-fringed shores of Mozambique.

Three major African rivers form the demarcation line between black Africa and the white south.

CONGO RIVER

On Africa's west coast, black guerrilla units have been crossing the wide Congo River for more than seven years, waging war against Portuguese rule in Angola.

More recently in central Africa, terrorists crossed the crocodile-infested Zambesi River from staging camps in Zambia. They are met by tough black and white Rhodesian troops, backed by paramilitary police units from South Africa.

★ ★ ★

On Africa's eastern seaboard, well-trained guerrillas, under Africa's foremost revolutionary leader, Dr. Eduardo Mondlane, canoe across the coffee-colored Ruvuma River to harass Portugese troops in Mozambique.

Few significant military or territorial gains have been achieved by black liberation forces.

Their impact is measured by the number of white troops killed, trucks ambushed and roads mined. Their tactics have, however, forced Portugal to spend millions and deploy 80,000 troops in Angola and Mozambique.

The Rhodesian white minority government of Prime Minister Ian Smith is the top target now. Black leaders believe that only by crushing the Rhodesia regime can they eventually come to grips with their most hated enemy—South Africa.

★ ★ ★

Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda, whose copper-rich, landlocked country continues to rely on white-ruled Rhodesia for electric power and coal for the copper smelters and a rail outlet for essential exports and imports, wants an early overthrow of the Smith regime.

But liberation movements are riddled with discord. Some draw money and supplies from Red China, others from Russia and Cuba.

FREQUENT BRAWLS

Frequent brawls between rival movements often end in bloodshed.

Calling for escalation of guerrilla warfare against the Portuguese, Rhodesians and South African whites, Kaunda said: "Unless the independent African states work in unison for the overthrow of the white regimes, freedom fighters face defeat.

★ ★ ★

"There is growing military cooperation between the white southern states who are becoming increasingly powerful.

"The liberation war was in full spate. It was a continuous struggle and nothing could stop it. But the liberation forces must be given the unflinching support of all African states if they are to win."

CLOSE TO CONGO

Two men control most African guerrillas and they are separated by 2,000 miles of jungle.

Heading the Angola liberation movement on the west coast is Holden Roberto. He claims an army of 10,000 trained men operating from near-impenetrable jungle regions close to the Congo border.

★ ★ ★

Roberto's main target is the British-owned Benguela Railway, which ironically enough carries some of Zambia's copper to the Angola port of Lobito. Another objective is the tiny Portugese enclave of Cabinda, locked in the Congo and potentially rich in oil.

TOP REVOLUTIONARY

Lauded as Africa's top revolutionary leader, Eduardo Mondlane heads the Mozambique Liberation Front. A Harvard graduate, onetime university professor and United Nations official, the balding leader turns out more than 100 trained terrorists each month. Some 8,000 guerrillas await his orders in a string of camps throughout Tanzania.

Married to a white American who mothers his three children and finds time to act as his secretary and teach refugees from Mozambique, Mondlane leads his men in frequent incursions into what he terms "enemy territory."

★ ★ ★

"I feel a lot safer in Mozambique than here in Dar Es Salaam," he says: "The Portuguese will only be happy when they have my body and I'm sure there's a price on my head."

Citizen Help Asked to Curb Car Thefts

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. last night inaugurated a campaign to curb the growing car theft problem by issuing a proclamation asking all citizens to help by locking their cars. The campaign is being sponsored by the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce Traffic Safety Committee.

Taylor emphasized the predominent role played by teen-agers in the worsening auto theft problem by noting that four out of every five persons arrested for car thefts are under 25.

* * *

A recent survey by a national organization showed that more than 50 per cent of the individuals arrested for this offense were under 18 years of age.

Careless motorists contibute heavily to what has been described as this nation's No. 1 teen-age crime, according to Pontiac Police Chief William K. Hanger.

80 PCT. UNLOCKED

The Police Department arrested 61 persons for auto thefts in 1966 and 33 of them or 54.09 per cent were 16 or younger, Hanger added.

National statistics show that of the more than 500,000 autos stolen last year, 80 per cent were found to have been left unlocked.

* * *

"Adult motorists should realize that taking and driving a car is one of the strongest temptations to youngsters between 12 and 16 years of age," said Hanger.

"This is true whether the teen-age is from a poor or a well-to-do family," he added.

380 CARS STOLEN

Some 380 cars were stolen in Pontiac in 1967 and only 237 of them were ever returned to their rightful owners. In 1966, there were 260 cars stolen and only six were recovered.

Taylor suggested motorists be careful to remove the key from the ignition, roll up all windows, lock inviting packages in the trunk and lock the doors.

Other suggestions to motorists include: avoid parking on dimly lit streets; don't leave registration papers in glove compartment, insist on claim check from parking lots, and if the car is delivered by a garage, pick it up immediately.

The Pontiac Police Department is intensifying its efforts to prevent and solve auto thefts and at the same time is cooperating fully with the citywide campaign of education to persuade motorists to help curb car stealing.

LOCK UP — Lt. Clayton Randolph, commander of the Pontiac Police Traffic Bureau, hands a reminder to lock up the car to Marty McReynolds, head of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce Traffic Safety Committee. A campaign to remind citizens to lock cars was started last night when Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. signed a proclamation announcing Pontiac's participation in the National Automobile Theft Prevention Campaign.

VC Rockets Hit Saigon Airfield

SAIGON (AP) — Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base was the target for the daily Vietcong rocket attack on South Vietnam's capital today, and the 30 casualties—all civilians—included four Vietnamese children killed and two Americans wounded.

While civilians throughout Saigon filled sandbags to build home shelters, new fighting flared at opposite ends of the demilitarized zone. Allied troops reported killing 121 North Vietnamese in two battles.

* * *

The 10 rockets that hit Tan Son Nhut before dawn also wounded 24 Vietnamese and destroyed three houses, one helicopter and a small observation plane.

Several other planes, including a large military transport, were damaged at the sprawling base, a favorite target for enemy gunners even before the current wave of shellings.

30 CIVILIAN DEAD

The base contains Saigon's commercial airport, government and American air units, headquarters of the U.S. Military Command in Vietnam and the homes of a number of Vietnamese officials, including Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky.

At least 130 civilians have been killed and more than 1,000 wounded in 24 rocket attacks on Saigon since the Vietcong launched its "peace talks" offensive May 5, the eve of the start of U.S.-North Vietnamese talks in Paris.

* * *

Although the official military view is that the shellings have little military significance, concern is mounting about the psychological effect on Saigon's 3 million people. Additional government troops have been assigned to sweep the "rocket belt" around the capital.

Helicopters with loudspeakers circled low over the city during the night, making psychological warfare broadcasts denouncing the Vietcong shellings. The broadcasts said targets have included heavily populated areas, hospitals and schools.

UNDER PRESSURE

Diplomatic sources in Paris said President Johnson is under pressure to counter the shelling by resuming bombing of Hanoi.

Government troops reported killing several Vietcong guerrillas in exchanges of small arms fire around a soap factory where they had been hiding out for more than a week in Cholon, the Chinese sector in southwestern Saigon.

* * *

The fighting along the demilitarized zone was near Khe Sanh, in South Vietnam's northwestern corner, and near Gio Linh, in the northeastern corner.

* * *

A government spokesman said South Vietnamese infantrymen killed 93 infiltrating North Vietnamese soldiers near Gio Linh. He said 11 government soldiers were killed and 33 wounded.

KILL 28 N. VIETS

U.S. Marines reported killing at least 28 of an estimated 400 North Vietnamese troops who attacked a fire support base seven miles southeast of Khe Sanh village. Fourteen Americans were killed and 15 wounded in the attack and a mortar barrage which preceded it.

4 Inmates Flee Detention Unit

Four inmates who walked away from Camp Pontiac, the White Lake Township detention center, last night are being sought in the Oakland County area.

Camp authorities said each of the youths, ranging in age from 19 to 21, apparently fled the grounds sometime between 9 and 10 p.m.

* * *

They said the four are believed seeking transportation out of the area.

None is considered dangerous and none was serving a sentence for a crime of violence, camp officials said.

The four are Edward J. LaLonde, 19, of Escanaba; Robert L. Christian, 21, of Detroit; Robert Brilley, 19, of Elmira; and Frank D. Willard, 21, of Muskegon, according to a camp spokesman.

Osteopath College Appoints Biologist

The Michigan College of Osteopathic Medicine, now in the process of the preparing its curriculum, has hired a consultant in cellular biology.

Myron S. Magan, college dean, announced that Dr. Richard Balek, associate professor biology, University of Detroit, has been appointed to help develop the role of cellular biology in the curriculum.

* * *

Dr. Balek, in addition to preparing specific course material, will work with architects in establishing the building needs in the basic science areas.

Permit Is Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Fedral Communications Commission announced Tuesday receipt of an application for a permit for an FM station in Saginaw, Mich., to operate on 107.1 megacycles.

The application was filed by Clark Broadcasting Co., headed by Earl L. Clark of Detroit.

Shelley Struggling to Drop Pounds She Had Picked Up

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — The Weight-Lifters are at it again.

By Weight-lifters, I mean people who lift their own overweight, and I guess I'm one, or—as I say when I sometimes look at myself—perhaps two. Shelley Winters is one of us and I was much encouraged lately when I found her so sincerely struggling to take off a few pounds so she would look good in, or under, a towel in a massage scene in a picture called "The Mad Room."

WILSON

So the glamour girls and Oscar winners struggle with this problem like everyone else.

"I've taken off 22 pounds," Shelley was telling me gleefully the other day at the Americana.

She was on the phone to Hollywood asking her agents if they could delay filming a scene for at least a week so she could get thinner.

★ ★ ★

"It means a lot to me," Shelley said. "All my life I've had a weight problem . . . because I like to eat . . . and I like to cook . . . and after I cook, I like to eat even more."

"I've taken roles where I had to be heavy, and people said, 'Isn't she wonderful? She put on weight for a part.' But actually I liked it.

"Lately, though, I've gone up quite high . . . to 155 . . . and I've also developed something called Achilles tendonitis, that golfers get around ankles, and now the doctors have thrown the book at me."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Bobby Kennedy recently gave a California pop-art poster maker permission to use his portrait on a poster. He pointed to one showing Richard Burton and told the artist, "If you can make me look like him, that'll be fine."

Robert Mitchum (whose new film is "Anzio!") told his agent not to make any deals for a few months—he wants to visit Vietnam again . . . A famed actor, asked by his company which friends he wanted at his movie premiere, answered: "I have no friends" . . . Sugar Ray Robinson sat in on drums at Lionel Hampton's Riverboat opening.

★ ★ ★

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Joe E. Lewis claims you haven't really had a hangover till you've stayed in your room because you were afraid your head wouldn't fit through the door.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "Girls"—that's what women over 40 call each other.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Stock market advice: The bulls win sometimes, the bears win sometimes, but the hogs always lose."

EARL'S PEARLS: June is that exciting month when the kids are almost finished with school, your vacation plans are all made, and the road gangs are out ripping up the highways.

Bob Hope just signed for his sixth year on NBC-TV for Chrysler. "Six years!" he marveled. "In Hollywood that's equal to three and a half marriages!" . . . That's earl, brother.

A Look at TV

Shows Hit Sour Notes

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — That coast-to-coast thud you heard on network television Tuesday night was the signal that summer's musical - variety replacement series have arrived with a vengeance.

CBS-TV presented a new one-hour series called "Showtime," and NBC-TV countered with a 30-minute entry named "Showcase '68," and the proceedings were every bit as thrilling as the titles.

★ ★ ★

"Showtime," which replaces the Red Skelton program for the summer, is produced in London, for the American audience, which means it's really not here nor there, but rather a show without a country. Swinging London it ain't. Maybe they like it somewhere in the mid-Atlantic.

There are guest-star hosts each week for this series, and the first was Shelley Berman, a comedian with a sharp sense of focus who, alas, found himself on a program with no focus at all. It affected him, and he wasn't the same Shelley we know, as he opened with a dreadful monologue about London time and failed to recover.

DATED BANDS

There were also a dated jazz band, a cocal - instrumental-group from Paraguay, a German juggler and two British singers, Shirley Bassey and Matt Monroe. I have always heard good things about Miss Bassey, but the way she strained and hollered her way through "If Ever I Would Leave You" made one wonder. Pity.

Future hosts will include George Gobel, Phyllis Diller, Eddy Arnold, Liberace, Steve Allen, Juliet Prowse, Godfrey Cambridge, Frank Fontaine and Terry — Thomas. Terry, or Thomas, or Terry-Thomas, whatever you call him, is British. How did he sneak in there?

"Showcase '68" is an imaginative idea, executed with no imagination at all. The notion of presenting professional regional entertainers in their first national television outings is a wise way to uncover some talent for the networks. But the format is stone-age television.

★ ★ ★

A regular host, Lloyd Thaxton, who used to have a syndicated series in which he did panomine mouthings of hit records and the like, introduces the acts, and that's all.

★ ★ ★

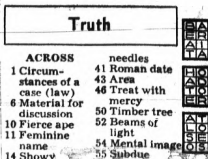

One group, the Jade Set, rocked and ruined "Summertime." A few acts were enjoyable, including the Craig Hundley jazz trio, composed of amazingly young boys. But all in all, the show came across like a sort of semipro version of the long-running "Amateur Hour."

Inflation Is Hard on Typical S. Viet

By BARRY KRAMER

SAIGON (AP) — Unless he is wealthy, a Vietnamese must have two or three jobs to support his family. In many families, wives and children must work to keep up with South Vietnam's wartime inflation. Since the Tet offensive, many have lost their second and third jobs, making the squeeze even tougher.

Prices took off like a balloon in early 1965 and have continued to rise as the number of U.S. troops has risen. In that period, as the number of American troops rose from 20,000 to 500,000, the cost of food has quadrupled and over-all prices —including food, transportation, haircuts, aspirin, charcoal, electricity—have increased threefold.

This means Vietnamese must find ways to pay 60 cents for a loaf of bread that used to cost 10 cents, or a kilogram, 2.2 pounds, of rice for 280 piasters that once sold for 82.

Nguyen Van Tinh—the name is fictitious but the situation is real—is a middle level official in the Ministry of Agriculture. He has a degree from a university in the Philippines and a master's degree from American University in Washington, D. C.

RICE ALLOWANCE

He is paid 14,000 piasters—$119—a month and gets a rice allowance that brings his monthly salary to almost 16,000 piasters. He also is allowed the personal use of a ministry jeep.

★ ★ ★

The pay figures mean he has to spend half a day's pay for a kilo of rice or four loaves of bread.

Here are some further swelling price comparisions, with the figure for January 1965 followed by that for May 1968, and with the piaster worth .0085 cents: (price per kilo, unless otherwise indicated).

Lean pork 85 and 350; beefsteak 80 and 300; one live chicken 65 and 270; shrimp 34 and 150; one bottle local beer 8.5 and 25; cabbage 11 and 45; cucumbers 6 and 35; pack of locally produced cigarettes 8 and 20; haircut 15 and 70.

INDEX TELLS TALE

The index of prices, set at 100 on Jan. 1, 1965, is now: food 443; nonfood 280; all items 393.

In the United States, where the index of 100 is based on the 1957-59 period, the April 1968 home food price figure was 115.1, against 105.05 for April 1965. Labor Department statistics give these comparative prices for March 1965 and March 1968, steak $1.07 and $1.17 a pound; butter 74.9 and 83.4 cents a pound; potatoes 99.4 and 67.9 cents per 10 pounds.

★ ★ ★

These statistics show April gross earnings for about 45 million nonsupervisory workers in fields ranging from manufacturing and mining to insurance and real estate at $104.63 weekly in 1968.

This would mean these workers needed to work only about half an hour to buy four loaves of bread and about 15 minutes to buy 10 pounds of potatoes.

FOR OTHER NATIONS

Food price indexes given by the Labor Department (using 1963 as the base of 100) for 1965 and January 1968 in other nations:

Brazil 294.9 in 1965 and 580.4 in 1968; Argentina 162.3 and 315.4; West Germany 105.9 and 108.6; United Kingdom 106.5 and 114.6.

★ ★ ★

In any event, Tinh's pay is just not enough to live on in Saigon. So, Tinh's wife makes yogurt, a dairy product made popular among city-dwelling Vietnamese by the French. At night, Tinh uses the jeep to peddle the yogurt.

Most of South Vietnam's 230,000 civil servants are in the same position. They and the nation's 700,000 men under arms have not been given salary increases to keep them even with rising prices.

LOSS DESPITE RAISES

Statistics, admittedly inadequate, show that between early 1965 and late 1967, government workers suffered a 50 per cent loss of real income despite salary increases.

The inadequate salaries also have contributed to widespread graft among civil servants. A payoff for a license, 1,000 piasters to have a name put at the head of a list, and other such practices are common.

★ ★ ★

All evidence indicates, however, that nongovernment workers, through one means or another, have kept up with the price increases. At least until the Vietcong attack at Tet, there was full employment and many workers had more than one job. Salaries in nongovernment jobs are up substantially over 1965.

★ ★ ★

The widespread sale of consumer and durable goods is evidence of this. Saigon is now flooded with Japanese motorcycles, transistor radios, washing machines, cameras and the like.

PRESSURE PREDICTED

But American economists are forecasting serious inflationary pressure in the second half of this year.

They note scheduled increased spending by the government to pay for general mobilization, decreased tax collection caused by the increased tempo of the war, and other factors causing price increases. Also since the Tet offensive, many people have lost their second and third jobs. Civil servants who used to wait outside Saigon hotels offering their motor bikes as gypsy taxis are now prevented from doing this by the early curfew. Many businesses, especially the large textile plants just outside the city, were destroyed in the fighting, putting thousands out of work.

The government, with U.S. help, has taken measures to keep inflation in bounds. Comparisons often are made with inflation in South Korea during the Korean War to defend the success of the program here, with economists saying prices in Korea increased more than 2,000 per cent.

One major reason for rising prices is the mushrooming amounts of piasters available to consumers. Large numbers of Vietnamese are employed by the Americans, American soldiers spend millions of dollars in their off-duty hours and there is increasing expenditure by the government, which meets it by printing more money.

It's Not the Same for Flower Power

LONDON, Ohio (AP) — Roy McNeal, custodian at the Madison County Courthouse, caught a youngster red-handed after the lad had uprooted one tulip, trampled another and snipped off still another.

★ ★ ★

He told the youth he would give him 48 hours to replace the three tulips or he would tell his father. When McNeal returned to the courthouse flower garden the next day, he found the boy had replaced the three tulips with artificial flowers.

Opening lead—♣ 2

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Mary Jane Farrell of Los Angeles has more Master points than any other woman. She also has more than any except two men.

JACOBY

You don't accumulate all those Master points without being a mighty good bidder, dummy player, defender and partner . . . and Mary Jane is all of those things.

★ ★ ★

North and South were playing five-card major suit openings, so Mary Jane, sitting West, knew that South had five spades, no hearts and four cards in each minor suit. She also was sure that the right defense would start with a trump lead and led her singleton trump.

★ ★ ★

South went right up with dummy's king and led the diamond. East rose with the ace and played a second trump.

★ ★ ★

At this point in the play South could have made 10 tricks by winning in his hand, cashing his high spades and diamonds and ruffing a diamond with dummy's low trump and a spade with dummy's high trump; or South could have made nine tricks by ruffing high the first time and ensuring his contract, but South tried an inferior line of play.

★ ★ ★

He won in his hand and led a low spade to dummy's jack. East won with the queen and led a third trump. South was back in his hand and drew the last trump.

★ ★ ★

Mary Jane had no problem with her first two discards on trumps. She could spare two hearts comfortably. The last trump lead was a different proposition. She had to jettison her ace of hearts in order to avoid being end-played, but Mary Jane did just that.

★ ★ ★

This high card discard sealed South's doom. He cashed his two high spades but the suit did not break. Then he led another spade in hope that the end-play would still materialize, but it didn't.

★ ★ ★

Mary Jane took her ten of spades and led her low heart to give East two tricks with the king and jack.

CARD Sense

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
	1 ♦	Pass	1 ♥
Pass	2 N.T.	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠ A 4 ♥ K J 9 3 ♦ K 6 5 ♣ K 10 8 7

What do you do now?

A—He has shown 18 or 19 points. You are heading for a slam but should mark time by merely going to three diamonds.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You do bid three diamonds and your partner goes to three no-trump. What do you do now?

Snow Plowing for Farmers Out

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND, Canada (AP) — Officials have decided there'll be no more snow plowing on farm lanes in this province.

Last winter the Province of Prince Edward Island established a unique service: it tried to plow all farm lanes without cost to the farmer.

★ ★ ★

The farm lanes were not firm enough to take the heavy snow plowing equipment. On one occasion, 12 pieces of broken equipment were left lying alongside rural lanes. Another time, the cost of plowing one lane was $1,100 because of breakdowns.

★ ★ ★

Most disheartening of all was the reaction of farmers. They didn't seem to want the service. Very few waited until the lanes were plowed before using them.

★ ★ ★

Next winter season, it will be different. Said Highway Minister George Fergus: "There will be no lane plowing."

When crossing the International Date Line in a westward direction, the date must be advanced one day. Conversely, the date is set back a day when crossing the Line in an eastward direction.

Virginians Spend Their Weekends Digging Into Past

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — Armed with picks and shovels, a number of Virginia Peninsula residents from 6 to 66 spend their weekends digging for relics of the past.

They are members of the Kicotan Chapter of the Archeological Society of Virginia and are searching for such artifacts as Indian arrowheads, beads, a bowl, a rusty stirrup or a piece of a Colonial smoking pipe.

★ ★ ★

The chapter membership includes retired people, doctors, businessmen, housewives, youngsters, a music teacher, space experts, shipyard employes and members of the armed forces.

★ ★ ★

At a "dig" on the site of what is believed to have been the first permanent church building in Hampton in the 17th century, articles found include a brass thimble, an early English ship-ware bowl and numerous pipe fragments, Colonial glass and bottles.

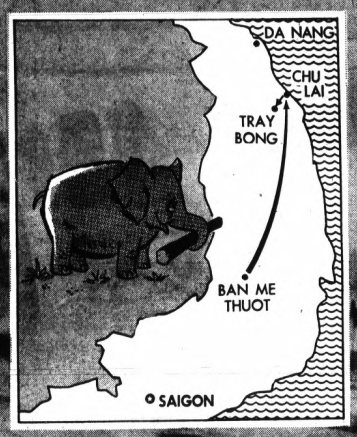

Novelist to Teach College Courses

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Novelist James Michener is scheduled to teach two courses at the University of Minnesota in the spring of 1970, but neither will be a writing course. The Pulitzer Prize-winner told university officials he didn't believe writing could be taught.

★ ★ ★

The author of "Hawaii," "The Source," and other popular books will teach an undergraduate course in either popular culture or social problems and a graduate seminar on the inner city. He will be a visiting professor in the sociology department.

HAVE TRUNK... WILL TRAVEL

In the rugged hill country of South Vietnam, the machines of man are often unable to do work necessary for the well-being of many villages.

At Tra Bong, 60 miles south of Da Nang, cut timber for a Special Forces detachment lumber mill was unable, via conventional means, to be moved from a nearby hill because of terrain conditions.

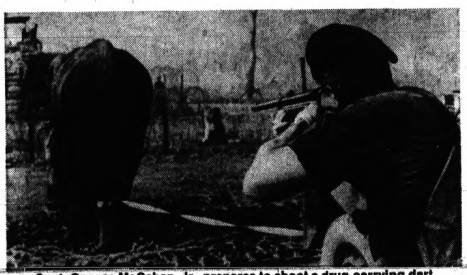

To solve the problem, Green Beret Captain John S. Gantt, Cross City, Fla., together with veterinarian Captain George McCahan, Jr., Dauphin, Pa., and First Lt. Frank Orians, Grand Rapids, Mich., scoured the countryside until 200 miles to the south at a village near Ban Me Thuot in the Central Highlands, they found two available elephants capable of moving the lumber.

To transport the nine-year-old creatures across enemy-infested territory, the men placed both animals on individual cargo nets. Then, using an experimental drug, M-99 (Etorphine), they "shot" both pachyderms with a dart, knocking them unconscious.

Wrapped within the nets, the drugged elephants were placed on individual steel pallets, strapped and chained down and a cover taped over their eyes for protection.

For the first phase, both were loaded into a C-130 cargo plane and flown to Chu Lai Air Base, 20 miles from Tra Bong. The pallets, with their sleeping cargo, were then airlifted the remaining distance by helicopter.

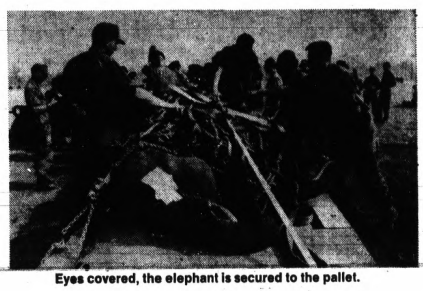

At Tra Bong, the elephants were uncovered and, with a helping hand by Green Beret troopers, uprighted to be led off for work by the cheers of local Montagnard (mountain tribesmen) villagers.

Capt. George McCahan, Jr., prepares to shoot a drug-carrying dart into one elephant.

Captain John Gantt signals for the lift truck to slowly raise the cargo net.

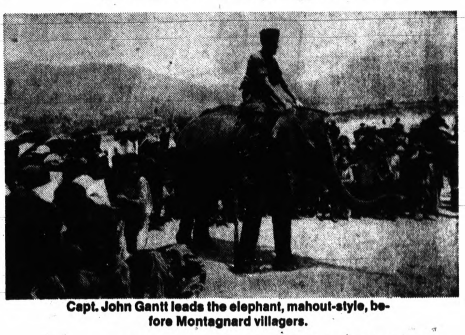

Eyes covered, the elephant is secured to the pallet.

On a pallet and secured, one pachyderm is brought into the C-130 cargo plane.

A Green Beret member at Tra Bong helps one elephant to its feet.

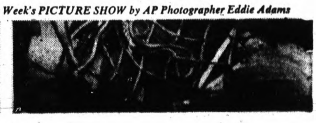

Capt. John Gantt leads the elephant, mahout-style, before Montagnard villagers.

Storms Sweep State; One Dead, 3 Injured

By the Associated Press

Severe winds, thunderstorms and hail slammed into a humid Lower Michigan in the wake of tornado warnings throughout most of the peninsula. Several twisters were spotted and the weather was blamed for one death and at least three injuries yesterday.

Killed was a 16-year-old Ithaca youth when high winds collapsed a barn on him as he was leading his pony to shelter.

★ ★ ★

Police identified him as David Havelka.

Police said the storm which destroyed the barn nine miles south of Ithaca was violent, but not a tornado.

WIND VICTIMS

High winds were responsible for injuries to three persons in Frankenmuth, including 10-year-old Barry Hurford, in serious condition with possible internal injuries at a Saginaw hospital.

Also treated but released were a 7-year-old boy and a 57-year-old man.

★ ★ ★

Funnels were sighted in or near Detroit, Monroe and Kalamazoo.

In the Monroe area, a tornado tore the roof off the French Township Fire department. No injuries were reported.

BIG HAILSTONES

West of Kalamazoo, a twister was sighted aloft near Almena and sheriff's deputies reported severe wind damage with trees knocked down and hail the size of golf balls in Alamo Township.

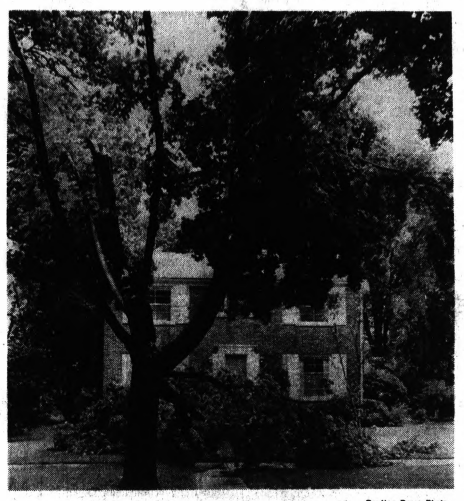

In Detroit, motorists sighted a pair of funnel clouds on the city's West Side at the intersection of the Southfield Freeway and Six Mile. The funnels did not touch down and were seen heading northeast.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile in Jackson, nearly 30,000 customers of Consumers Power Co. were temporarily without electricity because of storm damage as three 46,000 volt sub-transmission lines were knocked out.

One line served customers in Marshall, another Dewitt and eight localities surrounding Lansing and a third served Standish, near Bay City.

The company also reported brief power losses in Flint and Bay City.

TREES SUFFER — Oakland County's oaks and other trees took a beating in yesterday afternoon's storm. This damaged tree is at 115 Ottawa in Pontiac.

Storm Cuts Power to 3,000 Homes

More than 3,000 Oakland County homes were without power for varying periods of time yesterday afternoon and early this morning in the wake of a storm which cooled a record-breaking heatwave.

Lightning and lashing winds dashed many trees and branches to the ground, often cutting wires on the way.

★ ★ ★

Broken Detroit Edison lines cut off service for some 2,500 customers in scattered locations. Repairs were continuing this morning but were hampered by a linemen's strike that began June 1.

Some 500 Consumer's Power customers also were temporarily without power.

PHONES OUT

Bell Telephone reported 300 lines down in scattered areas.

The storm interrupted six days of hot and humid weather, with highs over 90 degrees and a record-breaking 97 on Friday. The temperature in Pontiac fell 26 degrees in less than 30 minutes when the storm hit at 4:45 p.m., from 92 to 66 degrees. Rain was measured at 1.9 inches.

★ ★ ★

High temperature yesterday was 92 and low 66. Precipitation possibility for today is 20 per cent.

★ ★ ★

Forecast is for cooler and less humid today and tomorrow, with cloudiness to dissipate tomorrow. Highs both days will be 75 to 80 and lows 50 to 56. Friday's outlook is sunny and warmer.

The temperature at 12:30 p.m. was 75.

Barnard in Cape Town

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Surgeon Christian Barnard today flew back to Cape Town where Dr. Philip Blaiberg, the world's longest surviving heart transplant patient, lay in a sterile ward suffering from a liver "disfunction."

Demonstration Ban

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle's government today banned all demonstrations in France.

The move, coming in the wake of violence in Paris and a half dozen other cities last night, was announced by the minister of information at the end of a Cabinet meeting.

Harriman Raps Cong Attacks on Saigon Area

PARIS (AP) — The United States and North Vietnam met again today, and U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman prepared a strong protest against Vietcong rocket attacks on Saigon.

"The Vietcong and North Vietnamese are engaged in terrorist actions against the civilian population," Harriman told newsmen as he went into the meeting. "There is no military excuse for this whatever . . . There is no justification for these terrorist activities."

★ ★ ★

Harriman said he would protest to North Vietnamese envoy Xuan Thuy. Asked whether he intended to bring up the possibility of U.S. retaliation, Harriman said, "No, that's not the purpose of these talks."

Neither Harriman nor Thuy gave any indication of movement toward breaking their deadlock over how to scale down the Vietnam war.

THO AT TALKS.

Attending the talks with Thuy today was Le Duc Tho, a member of the North Vietnamese Communist party's nine-man politburo, who arrived in Paris last week.

★ ★ ★

Hanoi Radio reported today that he had told CBS correspondent Charles Collingwood in an interview the talks can progress only after the United States drops its demand for reciprocal de-escalation and stops all war actions against North Vietnam.

The first session of the talks May 13 brought a demand from Thuy for the United States to halt the rest of the bombing of North Vietnam and a counter demand from Harriman for North Vietnam to reciprocate to the limited bombing halt imposed by President Johnson on March 31.

School Is Ending, in City, Waterford

School days are over — at least for the summer — for most public school children of Pontiac and Waterford Township.

Students in Pontiac junior high schools were released at noon today while those in the senior high schools finished up this afternoon.

★ ★ ★

Elementary school youngsters in Pontiac will complete the year with a half day of school tomorrow.

Waterford Township School District students likewise are beginning their summer vacations today.

★ ★ ★

Students in junior and senior high schools finished this morning.

Most Waterford elementary schools had planned on a half-day or less of classes today.

450 Graduate From Kettering

Waterford Kettering High School's seventh annual commencement program was held last night for 450 graduating seniors.

The graduates were admonished by commencement speaker Dr. John H. Dawson, president of Adrian College, to avoid becoming part of the "shock-proof generation."

He urged them not to settle for violence as a legitimate influence in their lives,

List of Graduates, Page A-10

not to accept a new morality which adjusts to the abnormal and not to think too highly of men or of human powers.

Safeguard against these dangers, he said, by having a dedication to living with honor, having total integrity and believing in basic human worth.

VALEDICTORIANS

Dr. Dawson was introduced to the graduates by Dr. Don O. Tatroe, superintendent of Waterford Township schools.

Valedictorians for the class are Mary Lou Marino, and Diane Nielson. The salutatorian is Stephen W. Peterson.

Diplomas were handed out by Eldon C. Rosegart, president of the Waterford Township School Board.

22 Held Hostage at Atlanta Prison

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Four armed inmates of the U.S. Penitentiary held 22 persons hostage today while prison officials considered a list of the inmates' grievances.

The hostages — 17 male and five female prison employes — were reported to be unharmed, and officials inside the massive, maximum security institution maintained communications with them and the inmates.

A state of emergency remained, as it had since early yesterday, when an aborted escape attempt turned into a tense, 15-hour stalemate.

A break in the stalemate came shortly before midnight. One hostage, B. V. Wolfe, was released to present Warden Olin G. Blackwell a list of grievances drawn up by the inmates.

★ ★ ★

A discussion of the list by radiotelephone began immediately. It involved the inmates and Blackwell, Wolfe and William B. Williams, a reporter for the Atlanta Journal.

Guards armed with shotguns and side arms crouched throughout the day and night behind cars which lined the long, curving driveway in front of the prison. They were aided in securing the prison's two main gates by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and members of the Atlanta Police Department.

Across the street at a gas station and along a shaded sidewalk, relatives of some of the prison' 2,000 inmate and of some of those being held hostage mingled with curiosity seekers who stared at the prison and waited.

'City School System Mostly Segregated'

BY DICK ROBINSON

Pontiac's school system is generally segregated, depriving children of equality of educational opportunity, a major citizens study shows.

Major findings of an 18-month study by the school board's Citizens Study Committee on Equality of Educational Opportunity were orally presented to the board last night.

★ ★ ★

Some of the findings and recommendations were:

● Most white students go to predominately white schools. Most Negro students go to predominately Negro schools. There is very little student integration.

John Rogers, committee chairman, attributed this to de facto segregation created by housing patterns. He said it is just as harmful to students as de jure segregation created by school policy.

PROPOSAL

The study proposes the school board should study the sacredness of the community school concept with consideration to redrawing school attendance boundary lines, according to Rogers.

Related Stories, Page B-8

He said the school district has done relatively little to produce a desirable racial mix of students.

★ ★ ★

● Larger classes were found in schools in poorer sections of the city.

● Integration of the teaching staffs has not kept pace with the racial mix of the community. For example, Central High School, which is 40 per cent Negro, has only seven Negro teachers out of 97 teachers.

● Teachers should be hired on an unassigned basis without "matching the color of the teacher to the color of the student body," Rogers said.

'COULDN'T CHOOSE'

A sampling of teachers revealed that white teachers said they felt they had the right to select a school when hired while Negro teachers said they couldn't select.

● Building principals shouldn't play such an important part in determining whether a teaching candidate is hired.

A position for a Negro supervisor of teacher recruiting should be created to eliminate white administrators trying to hire black teachers.

Administrators and teachers said the best Negro teachers were taken out of Negro schools and sent to a white school

Teacher Talks to Continue as Schools Close

Pontiac teachers will be closing up schools in the next few days, not yet sure how much they will be paid next year.

★ ★ ★

Teachers were told today by their negotiating team through a newsletter that a salary settlement will either come soon or just before school starts. The team is headed by Joseph Shara of Washington Junior High.

★ ★ ★

Administrators and teachers reportedly are not close on salary proposals, and a mediator has been working with both sides for more than a week.

The Pontiac Education Association gave teachers four reasons why salaries have not been settled:

● "True negotiations are not taking place. The school board's team appears to have predetermined how far they will go and refuse to go beyond that point."

★ ★ ★

Negotiation teams have spent from 10 to 20 hours per week for the past two months at the negotiation table, according to PEA.

● "Thus far no single salary schedule proposed by Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer has been competitive.

'SCAPEGOAT'

● "We are being made the scapegoat of 'budget cuts.'" Administrators contend only a certain amount of money is available for teachers.

● "The board's team refuses to make Pontiac a leader district. In spite of the five-year plan's provision for Pontiac to be in the top 10 per cent in salaries, the board's team seems to overlook this obligation.

★ ★ ★

"From our observation, no offer to date would move us toward achieving the top 10 per cent goal."

Administrators told teachers that the school district offers do meet the goal requirements.

In 5-2 Commission Vote

Housing Plea

City commissioners last night passed a resolution urging Pontiac voters to approve the city's fair-housing ordinance in the referendum election June 24.

The vote was 5-2, with District 2 Commissioner Robert C. Irwin and District 6 Commissioner Wesley J. Wood dissenting.

★ ★ ★

The fair-housing ordinance was passed in January by a 4-3 commission vote.

Related Stories, Page B-7

Referendum petitions filed thereafter delayed effect of the ordinance pending decision of the voters.

Since then two commissioners have been replaced on the commission.

SUPPORTERS LISTED

Both Robert F. Jackson, District 5, and Jack Douglas, District 4, voted for the resolution last night along with Mayor William H. Taylor Jr., District 1 Commissioner T. Warren Fowler Sr. and District 7 Commissioner James H. Marshall, all of whom approved the ordinance in January.

Irwin and Wood voted against the ordinance in January. Wood said the resolution, requested by the Friends of Fair Housing, seemed to be an attempt "to put us on a spot." He said he didn't want to tell anyone how to vote.

★ ★ ★

Irwin, long an opponent of the local ordinance, last night claimed the commission was being "used by some pressure group," and introduced a motion stating that the ordinance was not a proper subject for the commisson to comment on.

That motion was defeated 5-2, with only Irwin and Wood voting for it.

UF Allocations to Member Units Are Reviewed

The Pontiac Area United Fund budget committee reviewed allocations to member agencies at a meeting yesterday.

Every June the budget committee meets to examine agency fiscal requests and determine agency fiscal needs for the next calendar year.

★ ★ ★

The 12-member committee, headed by Chairman Harold S. Goldberg, is composed of volunteer leaders representing many groups in the community.

★ ★ ★

"We not only examine facts and figures but try, through observation of the actual services and study, to determine if our agencies are delivering satisfactory services to people through the disbursements given them by PAUF," Goldberg said.

★ ★ ★

The commitee meets year-round to review special needs of agencies and evaluate the agencies' disbursements at that time.

★ ★ ★

The 21 agencies receiving local UF allocations submit detailed breakdowns of current operating costs and a requested budget for the following year in a half-hour presentation before UF budget panels. The 34 state and national agencies are budgeted through the Michigan UF.

★ ★ ★

Results of the budget reviews are instrumental in determining the next year's PAUF campaign goal.

★ ★ ★

Last year 11.1 per cent of the total PAUF money went to American Red Cross, 4.9 per cent to the Salvation Army, 33.4 per cent to recreation and character-building service, 22.6 per cent to family and child care service, 22.8 per cent to health services and 5.2 per cent to other items.

Illinois Primary Boosts Nixon Delegate Total

JACK McDONALD

Congressman Will Run Again

Congressman Jack McDonald announced today that he will seek re-election as representative from the 19th District.

The district includes Pontiac, western Oakland County and Northville, Livonia, and Redford Township in Wayne County.

★ ★ ★

In announcing his plans, the freshman representative said: "The nation is in the middle of its worst crises, with no peace in sight in Vietnam and the economy suffering from an inflationary spiral.

"The crime rate continues to climb, our cities are furnaces of discontent and little has been done effectively to ease the unemployment rate," added McDonald.

McDonald noted that his background in urban affairs as supervisor of Redford Township and chairman of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors had led to his appointment to a special Republican Task Force on Urban Affairs.

He also has been named cochairman of the Task Force's subcommittee to investigate riot prevention and control.

As a member of the House Public Works Committee, he has been involved in legislation that would require tightening of safety measures in construction of federal-aid highways.

McDonald said his whole approach to his House duties has been one of protecting the taxpayer by urging reductions in low-priority spending while at the same time seeking constructive, locally oriented solutions to major domestic problems.

By The Associated Press

Republican Richard M. Nixon has picked up new presidential delegate strength in Illinois as primaries there and in South Carolina nominated a host of incumbent Congress members for re-election.

Texas party conventions, meanwhile Tuesday, gave Democratic Gov. John Connally and Republican Sen. John G. Tower favorite son control over the state's national convention delegates.

★ ★ ★

Connally has not committed himself but is believed to favor Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. Most of the GOP delegates were reported leaning toward Nixon.

Nixon won at least 27 of the 48 Illinois delegate seats at stake Tuesday. On the Democratic side, Humphrey won at least three of the 48, and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy at least one with 28 other winners listed as uncommitted.

MAJOR EXCEPTION

A major exception to the general renomination of incumbent congressmen was Rep. Barratt O'Hara, D-Ill.—at 86 the oldest man in the House—who lost to former state Rep. Abner Mikva of Chicago.

But Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois coasted to renomination for a fourth term. Five incumbent representatives including O'Hara had opposition and the other four were nominated for reelection. Another 19 incumbents were unopposed.

★ ★ ★

In the South Carolina Democratic primary, incumbent Sen. Ernest F. Hollings defeated challenger John Bolt Culbertson of Greenville for renomination and veteran Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, seeking reelection defeated George A. Payton, a Negro lawyer in Charleston.

In other political developments:

● McCarthy met with newsmen to outline the direction his campaign will take in an effort to win delegate votes for the Democratic presidential nomination.

● New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in a nationwide television address, promised new leadership and blamed "the failure and the blindness of the old politics" for continuing crises in America.

● Third party presidential candidate George Wallace got a roaring reception in Memphis, Tenn., as he fired away at a host of targets including Republicans, Democrats and the Supreme Court.

● Humphrey relaxed at his Waverly, Minn., home and there were reports—which aides would not confirm—that he does not plan to resume campaigning until after the New York primary next Tuesday.

● Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., announced he will not seek Illinois' GOP favorite, son designation. He said most Illinois Republican delegates have decided who they favor for president and should not be tied to him as a favorite son at the national convention.

AN ILLINOIS RACE

In the Illinois race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, Cook County (Chicago) Commission President Richard B. Ogilvie defeated Peoria industrialist John Henry Altorfer. Two other candidates ran far behind.

Connally's favorite, son endorsement at the Texas Democratic convention—giving him unit-rule control of 104 delegates —prompted a faction including McCarthy backers to walk out.

★ ★ ★

Said Mrs. Billie Carr of Houston: "We want the whole country to know that John Connally is not the favorite son of everybody in Texas."

★ ★ ★

Tower was endorsed at the Republican convention with approval of a resolution putting Texas' 56-vote delegation behind the senator "until released after consultation with the delegation."

★ ★ ★

Backers of California Gov. Ronald Reagan were defeated in an effort to free Texas GOP delegates after voting for Tower on the first ballot at the Republican National Convention.

Death Claims City Man, 79

William S. Downes, founder and owner of Pontiac Millwork, died yesterday at the age of 79.

Service will be 1:30 p.m. Friday at Huntoon Funeral Home with burial in White Chapel Memorial Cemetery, Troy.

★ ★ ★

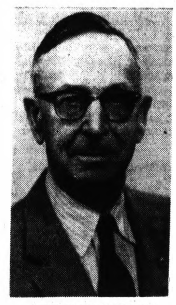

The family requests any memorials be made to the John Thors Jr. Scholarship Foundation at Pontiac Northern High School.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Bruce E. Crissman of Frankfort, and Mrs. Leonard Underhill and Mrs. William S. Hilderley, both of Pontiac; a brother; six grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren.

ACTIVE MASON

Downes of 1801 Opdyke was a life member of Pontiac Lodge 21 F&AM, Pontiac Council 3, Masonic Lodge and Royal Arch Masons No. 5.

A member of First Presbyterian Church, he was also active in White Shrine of Jerusalem, Pontiac Exchange Club, and Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce. He was a charter member of Hi-12 Masonic Club.

WILLIAM S. DOWNES

City Pickets Hit Talk Breakdown

About 50 picketing Pontiac city employes last night claimed that negotiations between the city and three employe groups are not being conducted according to the principles of "good faith bargaining."

In a telegram to the mayor, Winston L. Livingston, attorney for the Pontiac Municipal Employes Association (PMEA), the Pontiac Police Officers Association and the local firefighters union, said there had been a complete breakdown of negotiations.

★ ★ ★

He said there would be no hope of settlement unless the City Commission removes the authority of the city manager over negotiations or instructs him to "bargain in good faith."

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. asked for a report from City Manager Joseph A. Warren on the status of negotiations and said the commission has supported —and continues to do so—the manager and personnel director in continuing negotiations.

★ ★ ★

Involved in the picketing were nonsupervisory salaried personnel (PMEA), firefighters and police officers. The city is negotiating with police and firemen over noneconomic issues and with the PMEA over economic and noneconomic issues.

Testimony Ends in Spock Trial

BOSTON (AP) — Testimony has ended in the trial of Dr. Benjamin Spock and four other men charged with conspiring to aid, abet and counsel young men to avoid the draft.

The pediatrician ended his second day on the witness stand yesterday with a denial that he ever attempted to persuade young men to resist the draft, but said he was "glad and delighted" when they did.

★ ★ ★

Closing arguments by defense and prosecution begin today. A final charge by U.S. District Judge Francis J. W. Ford remains before the all-male jury receives the case.

On trial with the 65-year-old Spock is Yale Chaplain William Sloane Coffin Jr., 43; Michael Ferber, 23, a Harvard graduate student; Mitchell Goodman, 44, a writer and teacher from Temple, Maine; and Marcus Raskin, 34, a Washington research director.

FACE PRISON, FINES

They face maximum sentences of five-year prison terms and $10,000 fines if convicted of the conspiracy charge.

★ ★ ★

The defense rested when Spock left the witness stand after 16 days of testimony both both sides. The defendants were indicted Jan. 8 and trial began May 20.

Extending of Officer Terms Nixed

High Court to Review Area Case

Michigan's Supreme Court will review an Oakland County Circuit Court ruling which declared unconstitional a state statute that extended the terms of township officers..

In informing attorneys in the Waterford Township case of its decision yesterday to hear the matter on an emergency basis, the Supreme Court gave township attorneys until June 25 to file briefs, seven days after the deadline when candidates have to file petitions for nomination in the August primary.

★ ★ ★

According to a state election official, it is unclear just how petitions will be handled in the township or if they will even be accepted.

Just as uncertain, he said, is what affect a Supreme Court ruling affirming the decision of Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer will have on a statewide basis.

MAY RULING

Beer ruled in May that Waterford Township had to accept the petitions of three candidates for township offices though the legislature hand canceled any township election by extending the terms of township officers until 1970.

The extension was designed to eliminate a lame-duck period.

Another factor compounding the confusion, according to the election official, is a recent amendment to the statute being questioned in the Supreme Court that states township trustees appointed between November 1966 and next Saturday have to run for election. The original measure had extended their terms to November 1970.

Youth Drowns in Area Lake

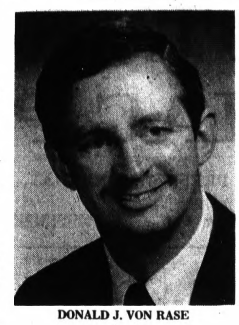

An 18-year-old Westland youth drowned yesterday afternoon in Elizabeth Lake, Waterford Township.

Witnesses said Eugene P. Croswell was attempting to swim to shore from a floating dock when he was heard to say that he could not make it and went under. He was about 50 yards from the shore at the time.

DONALD J. VON RASE

White Lake Man Bucks Anderson for House Seat

Donald J. von Rase, an advertising account executive from White Lake Township, announced today that he will seek the Republican nomination for state representative from the 61st District.

Von Rase, 37, of 9260 Gale, is making a bid for the seat held by Rep. Loren Anderson, R-Waterford Township. The district includes the townships of Waterford, White Lake, Independence and Springfield and the city of Sylvan Lake.

★ ★ ★

"The immense attraction of this area makes it one of the fastest growing in the entire state," said von Rase. "As a result of this growth, the problems of our townships continually grow larger. Only with vigorous and determined representation in Lansing can we hope to keep our community the finest in the state."

As representative of the district, von Rase said he would make the following issues major points in his program:

★ ★ ★

Ouster of jet aircraft at the Oakland-Pontiac Airport; an Oakland Community College campus in Waterford better than the new Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington; inequitable taxation in any form and a complete investigation in the announced expansion of the Oakland-Orion Airport.

Active in community affairs, von Rase has served as a member of the White Lake Township Planning Commission, and the Huron Valley Schools Citizen Advisory Committee in 1966. He is also a charter member of the newly-formed White Lake Township Economic Development Council.

Slaying Suspect Is Bound Over

The 26-year-old Pontiac State Hospital patient accused of the brutal slaying May 31 of a young female patient was bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court at his preliminary examination yesterday on an open charge of murder.

Facing Circuit Court arraignment June 26 is Edward Jay Stockwell. He was remanded to Oakland County Jail without bond by Municipal Judge Cecil B. McCallum.

★ ★ ★

Stockwell was arrested at his father's home at 999 James K about 12:30 a.m. June 1—three hours after the mutilated body of Dannelda Stewart, 19, daughter of J. M. Stewart of 43498 Bordeaux, Utica, was found in a building on the hospital grounds.

Testifying yesterday were Dr. Thomas J. Petinga, hospital pathologist; Norman Summers, the security guard who found the victim's body while making a routine building check, and the hospital nursing director and the officer who arrested Stockwell.

Dr. Petinga described the results of his examination of the victim and attributed her death to numerous stab and slash wounds of the throat, chest and abdomen.

PROJECT RAISES LAKE LEVEL — The level of Orchard Lake is being raised by water which is pumped through this 24-inch pipeline from Cass Lake at the rate of 4,000 gallons per minute. A mechanical failure this week briefly stopped the flow of water through this recently constructed County Drain Commission pipeline.

Orchard Lake Getting Lift From Cass Transfusion

ORCHARD LAKE — The lake here, judged to be considerably lower than its legal level, is receiving a direct transfusion, at the rate of 4000 gallons per minute, from its northern neighbor, Cass Lake.

The heart of the matter is a 15-horsepower pump which draws water from Cass Lake through a 24-inch artery that empties into Orchard Lake.

* * *

The rejuvenation process is a result of a recently completed project of the Oakland County Drain Commission.

In December 1966 the Circuit Court established the lake level as 930.5 feet above the mean sea level (zero) set by U.S. Geological Survey data.

DANGEROUS SANDBARS

Last year Orchard Lake was found to be more than four feet short of this level, a situation which caused unsightly weed growth to become visible along the shoreline as well as allowing already troublesome sandbars to become more dangerous.

After the project was approved by the County Board of Supervisors, bids were let and Civil Works Constructors of Farmington began work in February.

* * *

The 700 feet of pipeline was laid from the south shore of Cass Lake to the north shore of Orchard Lake, going under Commerce Road just west of Indian Trail. It was laid so that gravity would propel the water most of the distance, with the pump giving it the final push into Orchard Lake.

The transfer of water has been aided by another drain commission project, the recently completed four-gate dam on the lower end of the Clinton River, which flows out of Cass Lake.

WATER AVAILABLE

The dam is used to regulate the level of Cass Lake. By closing the gates, officials can raise the water level, which in turn, can make more water available for the Orchard Lake treatment.

The pump has been operating 24 hours a day for three weeks and improvement is evident as the lake level already is up six inches, according to a drain commission spokesman.

* * *

Because of snow and ice melting and the excessive rains this spring, the spokesman noted that the lake is now only 18 inches short of its legally prescribed level.

The rate that the lake level is rising is much faster than the five inches per month expected by the commission. Because of this the pump and pipeline system could complete its main task in three months.

TO MAINTAIN LEVEL

When the desired 930.5 feet level is reached, the pumps will be shut off and turned on only periodically to maintain the correct level.

The $90,000 project is costing lake residents about $3.90 per front foot.

Oxford Planners Hear Proposal for Site Development

OXFORD TOWNSHIP — While no official business could be transacted at a recent planning commission meeting, the township nevertheless learned of a Michelson, Inc. gravel industry proposal to reclaim land and develop homes in the area of Seymour Lake Road and Coats Road.

Proposed is future construction of 150 homes south of Seymour Lake Road, between Sanders, Horner Drive and Tan Lake and the development figure of "possibly 500 homes" in Section 20 bounded by Seymour Lake Road, Coats and Granger.

* * *

The land is mostly zoned industrial at the present time for operation of the gravel industry.

The board also learned of a proposal to build apartments on 13.5 acres at the West Drahner-Pontiac Road corner by Donald Heath, a local builder. A zoning change from R-1 to R-2 would be required.

* * *

A letter from Billy VanArsdel of Addison Township was read in which he said he was withdrawing his request for zoning to allow summer trailer camping on 100 acres on Stanton Road.

Planners Hired for Centennial

ROCHESTER — A professional firm of organizers, the John B. Rogers Co. of Fostoria, Ohio, will produce the city's centennial observance Sept. 5 to 14, 1969.

The centennial committee of the Rochester Historical Commission has voted to hire the Ohio firm which estimates its fee as under $7,000.

Another $9,000 has been charted for expenses and an estimate of about $4,000 profit for the commission has been made.

* * *

About 35 people heard company representatives detail a schedule of parades, pageants, pioneer activities and entertainment which will run in conjunction during its final four days with the locally sponsored Art 'n' Apples Festival.

BARGAIN DAYS

A program of events involving all segments of the community is planned.

Merchants are expected to participate in old-fashioned baragin days. Churches will be asked to observe Heritage Day.

* * *

Choral concerts, band concerts, garden club shows, ice cream socials, an old-time fiddlers' contest, a beard-growing contest, a vintage-car parade and barbecues are among events planned.

* * *

The celebration will salute the governor, commerce and industry, youth, agriculture, women and veterans and fraternal organizations.

* * *

A queen will be selected to rule over the nightly pageant at the Rochester Senior High School athletic field, according to present plans.

Clarkston Board Totals the Cost of Salary Hikes

CLARKSTON — Salary hikes for building principals, secretaries and bus drivers granted by the Clarkston Board of Education will cost the district an additional $40,000 next year.

The raises were granted in an effort to make the positions competitive with those in other county areas, said school officials.

* * *

The three-year secretarial contract, affecting 19 employes, provides steps from $80 to $110 a week in the elementary schools; $90 to $120 in the secondary schools; and $100 to $130 at the board offices. A $2.50-a-week increase for each of the next two years is included.

The 24 regular bus drivers will go from $2.40 an hour to $2.85 an hour over a period of three years. A 15 cent-an-hour increase is promised for next year.

SALARY HIKES

The $1,619 to $1,786 hikes for building principals and assistants, affecting 10 employes, put salaries from $12,700 to $15,000 in elementary schools. Pay boosts of $981 to $1,650 raised secondary salaries to a range of $13,750 to $17,250.

A parcel of land totaling 19.3 acres at the corner of I-75 and Sashabaw Road on Waldon has been purchased by the board at a cost of $1,750 per acre. The land will be used for a future elementary school site.

* * *

Also approved recently was the purchase of a house and 2.5 acres adjacent to the North Sashabaw School property which will be used for an expanded playground. The cost of the parcel was $11,500.

The board has also voted to place an option on 15 acres on Big Lake Road at the intersection of I-75 and Dixie Highway as the site of a proposed county vocational education center. The land is selling for $3,500 per acre. The Clarkston district will be reimbursed by the county for the cost of the land.

LIBRARY SITE

Transfer of 2.5 acres on Clarkston-Orion Road to Independence Township Public Library has been accomplished at a price of $1,450 an acre. Formerly school-owned, it will become the site of a proposed new library.

In other action the board voted to continue its present 7-mill debt levy for the coming year.

Taxpayer Unit to Quiz County Candidates About Spending Views

A committee to learn about candidates who are seeking positions on the Oakland County Board of Supervisors was named recently by the Oakland County Homeowners and Taxpayers Association.

Called the Candidate Information Committee, the group was formed at the request of association members in the southern part of Oakland County.

* * *

"Our Candidate Information Committee will tell us how candidates for the Board of Supervisors feel about county spending and how they will vote if elected," said Association President Glenn Swindler.

Announced candidates for the Board of Supervisors will receive questionaires from the committee in order to survey their opinions on pertinent spending issues.

Republicans in Same District

2 Enter Supervisor Race

Lew L. Coy of 2942 Loon has filed his petition and will seek the Republican nomination for the Oakland County Board of Supervisors in the Aug. 6 primary.

On the reapportioned board, Coy hopes to serve the district that includes Walled Lake, Wolverine Lake, Wixom, South Lyon, Lyon Township, Novi, part of Northville and the northwest part of Commerce Township east of South Commerce Road.

* * *

Coy, 48, is a retired captain from the Detroit Fire Department, a Navy World War II veteran, and a recent graduate of Oakland Community College. He entered OCC after his retirement and graduated with honors this April.

He is past director of the Detroit Fireman's Association, has served numerous civic and social agencies and is charter chairman of Wixom's Council of Civic Organizations.

CITES EXPERIENCE

He and his wife, Florence, have a daughter, Mrs. Gerald Hieber of Wixom.

Coy cites his long experience with civic government and his availability for service due to his retirement pension as positive assets.

* * *

He said, "I am interested in the intellectual and political life of this community and promise to keep a sensitive regard to voters' wishes."

In areas concerning public health, Coy said he could serve the board well. He is a male nurse and graduate of Wayne State University Mortuary School.

Marshall E. Taylor, 65, of 45350 Pontiac Trail, Walled Lake, has announced his candidacy for the Republican party nomination to the Oakland County Board of Supervisors in the Aug. 6 primary.

On the reapportioned board, Taylor hopes to serve the district that includes Walled Lake, Wolverine Lake, Wixom, South Lyon, Lyon Township, Novi, part of Northville and the northwest part of Commerce Township east of S. Commerce Road.

* * *

Taylor is a veteran of 8½ years service on the present board as the appointee from Walled Lake. He has served on the Walled Lake City Council for the past 13 years.

He is semiretired after working for a chemical firm in Detroit for 39 years. Taylor and his wife, Ethel, have three children, all married, and 11 grandchildren.

AFFILIATIONS

In his affiliations, Taylor is a vice president of both the Oakland Lions Club and the Walled Lake Lions Club and a member of the Walled Lake Masonic Lodge and Episcopalian Church.

Since his retirement, Taylor has driven a school bus and has interested himself in numerous civic projects, many of them having to do with children and sports.

* * *

He describes himself as a "doer" who has been willing to donate his time to civic betterment.

He states, "I am familiar with county problems. I back better roads and better programs for children." Taylor was instrumental in getting the Little League ball park for Walled Lake.

W. Bloomfield Schools Explore Satellite Feeding

The West Bloomfield Board of Education is exploring the use of a "satellite feeding program."

The space-age concept calls for a large kitchen in one school which prepares meals for several other schools. The food, after preparation, is put in thermal containers and taken to the other schools, explained Schools Supt. Leif Hougen.

The possibility is to have the cafeteria in the present junior or senior high school provide meals for the new high school which opens in the fall of 1970.

However, a professional investigation of the possibility recommended against this idea because of lack of space.

CONSULTING FIRM

The recent study was made by E. F. Whitney Inc., a food program consulting firm.

The Whitney report instead recommended that a cafeteria in the new high school be made large enough to provide a satellite feeding program for several elementary schools.

* * *

The board has placed the report on file. No final action was taken.

In other recent action, the board delayed until next Monday's meeting a decision on the proposed curriculum for the area vocational skills center to be in the Walled Lake School District.

CLOSED-DOOR SESSION

The board is also to appoint a representative to a seven-member board which will coordinate the center's organization.

At the end of the public session of the recent meeting, the board went into a closed-door session reportedly to discuss the proposed budget and employe negotiations for next year's contracts.

Council Decides to Maintain Level of Wolverine Lake

WOLVERINE LAKE — The present level of Wolverine Lake — the highest in at least 20 years — will be maintained although high water has provided a few problems.

This decision of the Village Council last night was made before 47 residents, most of whom spoke up on the issue.

Only three of them wanted the level lower, according to Village Manager Clifford Cottrell. They cited a flooded basement and a dock just barely above the water surface. Other residents have complained about flooded yards.

HIGH LEVEL PREFERRED

The majority of the audience, said Cottrell, preferred a high water level for better skiing and covering of weeds and stumps.

The pump, installed in February 1967, adds 1,300 gallons of water to the lake per minute from a deep well. The other control measure, a dam built in 1923 at Glengary Road, regulates the amount of water going into Commerce Lake from Wolverine Lake.

Cottrell noted that keeping the lake at the high level wouldn't dry up any wells or signigicantly lower the water table. He added that the pump was run all last summer.

The level is now high because of recent rains and the seasonal fluctuation.

Brandon School Board, Teachers Ink New Pact

BRANDON TOWNSHIP — The Board of Education and the Brandon Education Association have concluded contract negotiations for next school year.

Both board and association spokesmen expressed satisfaction with the new provisions and salary arrangements.

The salary schedule of the new contract calls for a range from $6,640 starting to $10,620 maximum for teachers with a bachelor's degree. For a master's degree, minimum is $7,040 and maximum $11,020.

'Need' Voters' Magic Word

BY L. GARY THORNE
Assistant City Editor — Suburban

Voters in Monday's school elections were selective, which may be an early indication of a new era in securing added tax dollars from area property owners.

Earlier this year a taxpayers' revolt was heralded when voters shot down one millage request after another. Troy, Bloomfield Hills and Avondale, among others, had substantial millage packages rejected.

* * *

Subjected to a long line of continually rising living costs, property owners — it was thought — were striking back, kicking sand in the faces of school officials.

* * *

Consequently, there was little optimism prior to Monday's vote. Fourteen of 19 area school districts submitted millage requests.

A SURPRISE

It came as a surprise when 11 of the 14 districts had at least one proposition approved, although several districts had up to three questions on the ballots.

Voters were not indiscriminate, however.

* * *

Rochester Schools Supt. Douglas Lund commented that the vote was a paradox. "Bond issues carry when millages don't."

Rochester had three issues on the ballot — renewal of 7 mills, a 1.5-mill tax hike and a $1.6-milon bond issue. The two millages were approved, although the tax hike passed by a mere 17 votes. However, the bond issue was defeated 2,036 to 1,917.

MORE APPEAL

Said Lund, "The operating millage probably had more appeal in its direct effect to next year's program, where the bonding millage (¾ mill) would not have had an effect for two years."

A half-million-dollar savings appeared to appeal to West Bloomfield school district voters, who approved a $4-million bond issue to enable a new high school to be constructed in one stage. The one-stage construction was to save the half-million-dollars.

The same voters rejected a $600,000 bond issue to build a swimming pool in the new high school.

Most of the operating millages approved Monday were scaled down versions of issues rejected earlier this year or last fall. In most instances, smaller millages will mean reductions in programs or merely continuation of current programs.

DEFICITS EMPHASIZED

Campaigns in behalf of Monday's money issues emphasized dificits likely in the event of defeat or program cuts necessary to avoid deficit financing.

According to unofficial returns, the millage and bond issues that passed — in most instances — did so only in the face of severe consequences.

Narrow margins of victory Monday in several districts would make it appear that the taxpayers' discontent is still "alive and well" but is now more selective.

Perhaps the new era will see voters requiring substantial evidence that added taxes are needed, and the essential goodness of the service — schools, police or sewers — will not be able to stand alone.

Trustee Resigning in Brandon Twp.

BRANDON TOWNSHIP — Because of a change of residence, Trustee William Solley has resigned from the Township Board, effective July 15.

* * *

Solley, 34, will be moving to the southern Thumb community of Croswell, located in Sanilac County. A four-year member of the board, he resides at 1814 Hadley.

* * *

Township Supervisor Richard Wilcox said yesterday that the board would likely appoint a replacement for Solley at its regular meeting scheduled for July 1.

'Housing' but One Aspect of 'Rights'

On Monday, June 24, Pontiac voters will decide one of the most important issues ever to face this city. That issue is an open housing ordinance.

The Pontiac PRESS stands squarely behind this ordinance. It is an urgently needed piece of local legislation. It must be approved by a wide margin.

★ ★ ★

Time and justice for minority groups has stood still too long. It is time for all white citizens to stand up and prove to the Negro that Pontiac is a city hood reign over fear and prejudice.

We feel that the right of a free man to buy a house of his choice and within his means is an inherent right. Fair housing actually boils down to one basic question. Does every citizen have a right to buy or rent a house of his choice or do only white people have this choice?

★ ★ ★

One need only look around him to see the obvious answer. By and large, Negroes and whites are segregated into their own separate neighborhoods. Open housing is an integral part of the whole race question, which in turn is a moral, legal, economic and social question facing us today.

★ ★ ★

The argument that one cannot legislate morality is a myth. The Ten Commandments are pure moral values, and much of our legislation is based on those Commandments. We have been legislating morality for centuries.

Discriminatory practices in real property transactions based on a person's race, color, religion or national origin is a violation of the state constitution.

Socially, the argument that the color of a person's skin makes him a misfit in any given neighborhood is another myth. A person's economic status might make him a misfit, but not his skin.

★ ★ ★

We feel confident that Pontiac voters will not allow themselves to be ruled by prejudice when they go to the polls June 24.

Raymond T. Tubbs

Many of our most worthy citizens live their lives in comparative privacy, with little recognition by the community at large.

Such a sterling individual was RAYMOND T. TUBBS whose unexpected death at 67 cost the area an estimable citizen and a former successful businessman.

TUBBS

Mr. TUBBS, born in Ovid, graduated from Pontiac Senior High School and in 1918 joined members of his family in the establishment of the Pontiac Paint Manufacturing Co.

★ ★ ★

His close attention to the production end of the enterprise left little time for recreational pursuits or public activities. He retired from active business three years ago when the firm was dissolved.

Of quiet demeanor and retiring disposition, RAYMOND TUBBS' warm and sympathetic personality nonetheless had attracted a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who deeply mourn his passing.

Waterford Township Jaycee Wins Many Honors

Most people are proud to receive honors one at a time. But when they come back-to-back the recognition assumes heightened significance.

STRICKLIN

W. CECIL STRICKLIN of Waterford Township can speak from experience. Last month he was elected president of the Waterford Township Jaycees for 1968-69 and last week was presented with the organization's Key Man Award for the year 1967-68.

But the 31-year-old honoree had been pretty well conditioned to his role. Last year he was selected the outstanding first year member of the Michigan Jaycees, and was one of 10 Jaycees named as outstanding new member at the 1967 national Jaycee convention.

★ ★ ★

We congratulate the enterprising young man, identified with Pontiac Motor Division's labor relations department, on his fine record of achievement and wish him well as head of Waterford's Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Coalition Views Are Questioned

By RAYMOND MOLEY

If Charles de Gaulle were not so busy dealing with anarchy at home, he might take a hand in our American political campaign. For he revealed in Canada last year that he has no hesitation about meddling in political affairs abroad.

MOLEY

If he were to express a choice among our aspirants for president, he would no doubt favor Sen. Eugene McCarthy. Indeed, his past advice to us has been to get out of Vietnam.

★ ★ ★

The French president is not conspicuous for his consistency except in his own concern for his own power. He was quite favorable to coalition arrangements with the Communists abroad, but he certainly wants nothing of the sort in his beloved France.

He came into power over there on a wave of discontent with unstable governments and popular fronts. And the constitutional changes he imposed were designed to avoid such governments in the future.

POPULAR FRONT

Back in the 1930s he saw a popular front in France which provided the groundwork for the disaster of 1940, and he came back from his retirement in the 1950s to save his country from such a catastrophe. Now his firm stand is to prevent the return of the old instability.

The popular front is another name for a coalition government.

I am not convinced that McCarthy understands this history when he advocates a coalition in South Vietnam with the Vietcong as a working partner with other elements. He said in a recent debate that "we have to have a new government in South Vietnam. I'm not particularly concerned with whether it's called a coalition or a fusion or a new government of some kind."

That would be loose talk from a former professor even if he were not a candidate for president. And such an expression is also grossly improper when his own government is negotiating for an end to the fighting.

RECENT HISTORY

The blindness of this would-be president and thousands of professors and "intellectuals" who support him is strange when we consider the more recent history of coalition governments.

In China in the 1940s the Truman administration deliberately invited the creation of Red China through suggesting a coalition government. That Communist government is a present menace to our interests and security.

★ ★

And in Laos we seem to have agreed to a government which is in fact permitting Communist North Vietnam to use Laotian territory as a base against our military forces.

The two worlds, Communist and non-Communist, are watching our negotiations in Paris. For if in the end we yield, as McCarthy suggests, and agree to a coalition with Communists in Vietnam, all of Southeast Asia will become Communist, an end which would be intolerable for every non-Communist country in or on the periphery of Asia.

His Next Victim?

David Lawrence Says:

Fingerprints Snare King Suspect

WASHINGTON — The most amazing thing about the capture in London of James Earl Ray, suspected assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is the tremendous amount of work that had to be done in order to accomplish this.

LAWRENCE

"Fingerprints," a word much used but little understood, were the key, and few people realize what an enormous task was involved in identifying the suspected killer of Dr. King.

Latent prints found on items near the scene of the King shooting on April 4 were not clear enough or complete enough to enable an identification to be made from fingerprints on file with the FBI.

★ ★ ★

The break in the Ray case came 10 days after the shooting of Dr. King, when the FBI located a rooming house in Atlanta where the suspect, then known as Eric Starvo Galt, had stayed and where he had left some papers.

Included in these were maps, on one of which there was a clear print of one finger. But this was enough for the FBI, though there are more than 188 million cards in its fingerprint files, representing nearly 82 million individuals.

CERTAIN ASSUMPTIONS

To narrow the search, the FBI made certain assumptions on the basis of what was known about the suspected killer, including the likelihood that the man sought was a fugitive from justice, and the identity cards of nearly 2,000 fugitives were then subjected to an "eyeball" search by the FBI identification experts.

Within a few hours, it was determined that the print belonged to James Earl Ray, who was found to have more than a dozen sets of fingerprints in FBI files.

★ ★ ★

Copies of Ray's prints were sent to police agencies abroad. When he was picked up in London, fingerprints definitely identified him as the wanted man.

Once an individual's fingerprints are on file, his identity can be determined no matter how many aliases he uses or physical changes he may make.

DIFFERENT NAMES

Thus, Ray assumed different names and disguises, and carried fraudulent identification as he moved around from country to country. There was, however, no way by which he could change his fingerprints.

The big question now is where Ray got the money for his trips and the various documents he used in traveling under assumed identities.

★ ★ ★

The suspicion is growing that he may have had accomplices in this country as well as in Canada, and the whole affair has the appearance of a planned conspiracy.

In the search for possible associates, fingerprints undoubtedly will play a major role just as they have brought about the capture of Ray, who now will be tried on a murder charge as the assassin of Dr. King.

Bob Considine Says:

Adversaries Gathered at Funeral for Kennedy

NEW YORK — Sen. Robert Kennedy's funeral services at St. Patrick's Cathedral brought together some solemn mourners who on any other occasion would vigorously avoid contact with one another.

CONSIDINE

President Johnson and the dead man who lay in his coffin a few feet away were hostile, in life. LBJ never forgave RFK for trying to veto him off the 1960 Democratic ticket headed by John F. Kennedy.

★ ★ ★

The President rejected Kennedy's offer to serve in the No. 2 place on the ticket in 1964 and got boiling mad at RFK when the latter seemed to be negotiating for an end of the war in Vietnam while on a trip to Paris.

He would have opposed Kennedy openly at the Chicago convention next August if it appeared that Kennedy had a very good chance of getting the nomination.

COULDN'T ACCEPT LBJ

The dead man, on the other hand, could not abide LBJ. He could not accept him as a successor to the brother he adored.

The passion between RFK, lying in the flag-draped box, and Hubert Humphrey, sitting nearby, was not nearly as highly charged. They were, in fact, good friends. Kennedy threw a few darts at Humphrey during the primaries, demanding that he come out and fight. But there was considerable talk that if Humphrey got the nomination he would ask Robert to run with him.

FOUGHT DEAD MAN

Sen. Gene McCarthy sat poker-faced near the coffin. He had fought the dead man more openly than anybody, had accused him of trying to use a road which he, McCarthy, had furrowed at the risk of his political career.

McCarthy beat the dead man in Oregon, to his intense jubilation. He, in turn, was beaten in California on the night a bullet killed his political foe.

At the cathedral, Barry Goldwater looked at the back of the necks of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Gov. George Romney. Goldwater told me not long ago, that he would never forgive either of them for refusing to support the Goldwater-Miller ticket in 1964.

He said he had told that to Romney to his face.

Among the thoughtful political figures gatherd around the bier was the good gray eminence of Ken Keating. He had seemed a cinch for reelection to U.S. Senate in 1964.

But the man in the coffin had come in from Massachusetts and campaigned so hard and well that he beat Keating for his seat by a huge majority. Had he not done so . . . well, Keating looked reflective at the funeral.

It was an interesting group of adversaries, stitched together by tragedy.

'Urge Michigan Drivers to Help Reduce Accidents'

Small wonder drivers kill so many people in Michigan traffic accidents each year. I drive 500 miles every summer weekend on Michigan expressways and roads. Some of the stunts I've seen tried with a two-ton mass of steel at 70 m.p.h. are unbelievable.

★ ★ ★

I think Michigan provides better roads than any state east of the Mississippi, so let's start using them for driving — not killing.

America Must Find Solution to End Violence

My heart goes out to the Kennedy family. I know of no other family that has had to suffer so much. As if the assassinations of President John Kennedy, Martin Luther King and Senator Robert Kennedy weren't enough, there are riots, killings and destruction and hate for one another. How can this "peace-loving country" be expected to stop the war in Vietnam without first stopping the one here? Maybe with God's help someone will find the answer and put an end to all this violence and make this world a better place for all races to live.

'Movie Advertisements Advocate Violence'

The movie guide of The Pontiac Press is advocating violence and murder. Must we constantly expose our children to this kind of trash? Maybe this is a good place to start ridding ourselves of ugly violence. Let's stop supporting the people who give us the movies, cartoons and books which advocate and glorify killing. Maybe it seems a small start against this problem, but isn't it a beginning for all of us?

School Students Had Special Interest in News

Though we both are only teen-agers, we do care what happens to the future leader of our so-called "great country." Last Wednesday our fellow students were worried about what was to happen to Senator Robert Kennedy and we were "glued to our radios." In the cafetorium some radios were picked up by the "lunchroom ruler." In a few classrooms we were allowed to listen to the radios, but not during our lunch periods. We should have had the right to find out what was happening because the name of our fine school is John F. Kennedy Junior High.

'School Parking Lot Lighted on Weekends'

The lights in the parking lot of Waterford Kettering High School were left on day and night during the recent Memorial Day weekend. If funds in this school district are as low as we've been told, why this unnecessary waste? One wonders if money is also being wasted in other areas.

Discusses Behavior of Dogs and Children

Is it ignorance or malice that causes people to let their dogs bark, howl and run loose day and night, as they do in the vicinity of Washington and Prall? Add to the dog situation children playing in the street, and an undesirable residence situation has been created. Insurance companies should not be compelled to pay for injuries to children playing in the streets.

Question and Answer

I never dreamed this would happen to me, but I'm quite sure I'm an alcoholic. My neighbors and family don't know of my problem, and before I can tell them, I need to hear from others who have the same problem. I want to try to help myself before it's too late.

F-111s and M-16s

Newport News (Va.) Times-Herald

The crash of an F-111 in this country emphasizes a cross current of feeling with respect to this highly sophisticated fighter-bomber. It is the same version of the swing-wing plane that came a cropper in Vietnam.

On the one hand, Defense Secretary Clark Clifford wants the Navy to proceed with the development of its concept of the plane.

On the other, economy-minded members of Congress, doubtless nudged a bit by the Navy, want to leave the plane alone. The Navy wants to develop another, entireiy separate plane.

★ ★ ★

This highly technical society has always demanded that its fighting men be equipped with the finest military equipment that the nation can produce. No one will argue the point.

But there does come a time when reckless spending for spending's sake needs ruthless scrutiny by Congress and by the armed forces. And excessive spending always seems to be the end product of haste or bad planning.

Because of one or the other, the F-111 finally flew at approximately double its estimated cost, and the Senate has applied the brakes on further spending for the plane's development program.

Another example of the need for wise economies lies in the production of the controversial M-16 rifle. Originally budgeted at $104 per unit when first produced by one manufacturer, increased requirements in Vietnam demanded expanded production facilities at home, and the rifle is being supplied the South Vietnamese at a cost of $316 per unit.

★ ★ ★

A House committee has brought out into the open some of these details, and there should be considerable discussion on the matter before it's swept under the rug.

Sweepstakes

Hamilton (Ont.) Spectator

L'il Abner's fabled Sadie Hawkins Day has been put to shame by a 21-year-old California bachelor who recently inherited a $100,000 estate on the condition that he marry a girl from Scotland.

He's started a Marry John Andrews Sweepstake. So far more than 300 Scots girls have turned in bids, including secretaries, shopgirls, women's Air Force officers and one detective. John will meet the winner when he visits Scotland later in the year.

★ ★ ★

The sweepstakes idea is a marvellous one for wealthy or famous bachelors. It isn't difficult, for example, to think of at least one well-known Canadian bachelor (Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau) who might make himself a large fortune by selling sweepstakes tickets on himself at a dollar or two apiece.

★ ★ ★

Lesser bachelors could be given away as consolation prizes.

WW II Leader Says Order Stopped Him From Taking Hanoi

By GRANVILLE WATTS

LONDON (AP) — Lord Mountbatten, the top World War II allied commander in Southeast Asia, says President Harry S. Truman and Prime Minister Clement Attlee stopped him sending troops into Hanoi at the end of World War II to set up firm control there.

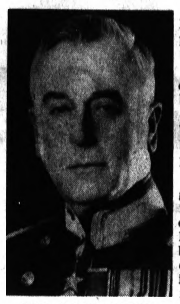

"I sent a division into Saigon and intended sending another into Hanoi. But just before I could do this I was told that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who was officially the supreme commander of China, would take over the north. And you know what happened then. It was swamped by Ho Chi Minh," he said.

* * *

Mountbatten, 67-year-old cousin of Queen Elizabeth II and former British defense chief, lifted the lid on some of his secrets in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press.

* * *

"The troubles in Vietnam stem from the arbitrary division of the country by the allied powers," Mountbatten said. "After the Japanese surrender I was ordered to send my forces into the countries they had occupied in southeast Asia and President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee stopped me going north of the 16th parallel. Otherwise we could have done something there.

LORD MOUNTBATTEN

ROOT OF TROUBLE

"It's not for me to comment on the Vietnam war. But I can say that the Vietnam troubles stemmed from the fact that there was an arbitrary division made at the 16th parallel following the allied decision at Potsdam.

"So the north of French Indochina was hived off. I suppose it was a question of face. Chiang was supposed to run the area to the north. That's where the trouble stems from."

Mountbatten, confidant of Britain's royal family and prime ministers, was viceroy at the hand-over of India in 1947.

Mountbatten said the real cold war is going on in Asia — between democracy in India and communism in China, the world's two most populous nations.

MEANS DEFEAT

"These two systems are now going forward in the eyes of the world. If either of them break down it will be a great defeat," he added. "If India falls it will be the worst defeat for democracy. If China falls down it will be the worst for communism.

"It seems to me this is where the cold war is being fought. This is a matter of the greatest importance for the rest of the world. If India goes down to communism, I don't need to prophesy the results."

* * *

Mountbatten, spry and looking fit, paced the floor of his London home as he spoke.

His life has been crammed with action and glamor, spanning the years from the time he was held in the arms of Queen Victoria at his christening at Windsor in 1900.

Lord Louis has been reliving these years in preparing a series of 12 television programs in color called "The Life and Times of Lord Mountbatten," to be screened in Britain later this year.

* * *

"I have had 19 requests to write my biography and refused 19 times," he said. "But all my life I have been a tremendous movie fan. I even appeared in a film once, a one-reeler by Charlie Chaplin called 'Nice and Friendly,' which appears in the series.

* * *

"I have kept in very close touch with the film and TV world ever since. I was unable to resist the temptation when my son-in-law, film producer Lord Brabourne, put the idea of a TV series to me."

Mountbatten said his "supporting cast" includes personal appearances by his nephew Prince Philip, the Duke of Windsor, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, Lord Avon, Harold MacMillan. Mountbatten revisited the scenes of wartime battles in Burma and other parts of Asia while making the series.

RECALLS GANDHI

Recalling his time as the last viceroy of India, Mountbatten said: "I remember Gandhi with great affection. He was a very sweet old boy. He was very excited when Prince Philip got engaged to Princess Elizabeth.

* * *

"He said 'I'm so delighted that your nephew is going to marry the future queen. I would like to give a wedding present, but I have nothing. What can I give them?' I wrote back and said 'You have nothing, but you have a spinning wheel so get cracking and spin them something.'

* * *

"So Gandhi made them a table cloth. I sent a note with it to Princess Elizabeth saying 'This you lock up with the crown jewels.'"

Becoming Britain's First Sea Lord in 1955 was the achievement of a life-long ambition for Mountbatten. It was the fulfillment of a youthful pledge — a pledge to crown the vindication of the family name.

FATHER FORCED OUT

Mountbatten's father, Prince Louis of Battenberg, was forced out as First Sea Lord early in World War I by public indignation over his German ancestry. He anglicized the family name to Mountbatten and the Royal Navy he helped to build subsequently whipped the Kaiser's fleet.

Mountbatten had a reputation as a bit of a playboy in his younger days. His marriage, like everything else about the Mountbattens, was a glamorous affair. He married a beautiful heiress, Edwina, granddaughter of the famous financier, Sir Ernest Cassell. The marriage linked 24 million pounds to Mountbatten's own fortune.

* * *

Lady Mountbatten made her own name as a social and charity worker on a worldwide scale. She died in 1960 while touring North Borneo as superintendent-in-chief of Britain's St. John Ambulance Brigade.

Hospital Head Cites State Custody Laws

Dr. Donald W. Martin, medical superintendent of Pontiac State Hospital, today revealed a letter to Oakland County Prosecutor S. Jerome Bronson replying to Bronson's call for an investigation of the hospital's security procedures.

In the communication, Martin pointed out two state acts, effective in March 1967, which "changed in Michigan the whole method of handling the so-called mentally ill offender."

* * *

Bronson had urged Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley to initiate an investigation in the wake of two escapes by persons accused of violent crimes and the murder May 31 of a young female patient — with which another patient is charged.

Under the acts referred to by Martin, two categories of persons charged with criminal offenses are remanded to the custody of the Department of Mental Health.

INNOCENT, INCOMPETENT

These are: those considered Innocent by reason of insanity and those judged incompetent to stand trial.

After examination at the Forensic Center, Martin explained, these patients may be placed by the department in the regional state hospitals in their areas of residence.

* * *

"However," he said, "when these patients are sent to a state hospital such as ours, it is with the understanding that they are no longer considered unduly dangerous nor in need of special security measures."

He added that Pontiac State Hospital and those like it do not have such measures.

Those who prove unmanageable in a hospital such as Pontiac State may be transferred by request to Ionia State Hospital for maximum security management.

Martin described Pontiac State as an "open hospital," with many of its units unlocked.

* * *

"An integral part of the treatment is granting the patients increasing freedom and self-responsibility, depending on the condition of the individual," he said.

"Unfortunately," he added, "there are from time to time patients who appear to be improving in every respect until suddenly, without warning, they manage to leave without authorization."

PUBLIC INTEREST

Bronson said today he was pleased to have received such a forthright statement.

However, he added that his responsibility is "the overriding public interest."

* * *

Martin suggested that the new system effected by the state acts must be worked with and improved in time.

"We cannot afford to move backward, turning our hospitals into prisons and thereby penalizing the hundreds of patients who have not broken the law," he concluded.

Copies of his letter were also directed to Kelley and to two state-level mental health authorities.

Students' Handiwork

Races End Classes

Students at Crescent Lake School in Waterford Township yesterday closed out the school year with a cloud of dust and a checkered flag.

Four soap box derby-type racing cars, built by fifth and sixth graders at the school, were put to the test by student racing enthusiasts of all grades.

* * *

Even the teachers got into the act as drivers and pushers in a faculty race. As could be expected, the lone breakdown of the day, a flat tire, came while the teachers were at the wheel.

Schools Superintendent Dr. Don O. Tatro served as official starter for the races.

MAKESHIFT PARTS

The cars were built by members of the classes of Mrs. Ann Crumpton and William Miller.

* * *

They put them together out of plywood, stray parts from the workshop at home, lawnmower wheels and parts assembled and donated by shop students at Waterford Township High School.

The boys did all the construction work on the two-month long project. The girls yesterday contributed their somewhat questionable driving talents.

Romney Sets Twp. Election

LANSING (AP) — Gov. George Romney has called a special election Aug. 6 to fill a vacancy in the office of supervisor of Royal Oak Township.

The vacancy was caused by the resignation of James McGrath on May 24.

Under provisions of law signed by the governor on May 23, he may call a special election to fill a vacancy in any elective township office if the township board does not take action within 45 days.

Dates for the special election include:

- June 18, deadline for filing nominating petitions.
- June 21, deadline for candidate withdrawal.
- July 9, primary election, if necessary.
- Aug. 6, special election.

Updating Is Eyed for Traffic Code

A proposal to update the uniform traffic code of Sylvan Lake will be taken up by the City Council at its monthly meeting at the City Hall at 8 tonight.

* * *

The proposal, submitted by City Attorney Robert V. Parenti, is to include the new state traffic laws in the city code which was last adopted in 1959.

Also to be discussed will be a request from the Oakland County Boat Club for a July 4 fireworks display permit.

2 Wongs Don't Make a Right

SEATTLE (AP) — Both drivers in the accident were Wong. Both were women, both have the same middle initial and the same last name. But there's an "L" of a difference in their first names.

Lilly M. Wong and Lily M. Wong were the drivers of cars that collided at an intersection. Neither was hurt. The two women are friends but not related.

4-Year Pact for Oakland Schools Chief

Dr. William J. Emerson, superintendent of Oakland Schools Intermediate District, was given a new four-year contract at $30,000 per year by the school board last night.

* * *

He was making $27,500 during 1967-68. Deputy Supt. Kenneth W. Brown was given a new three-year contract at a salary of $24,500. He made $23,000 this year.

Much of the meeting was taken up by a discussion over what level vocational courses will be taught in the Walled Lake area vocational center to open in 1970.

* * *

Walled Lake school officials have said some districts which will use the center don't have prerequisites for courses to be offered at the center.

Oakland School officials told them they will have time before the center opens to include the prerequisite courses. Courses in the center will be at 11th and 12th grade levels.

1 Dead, 4 Hurt in 2-Car Crash

One person died and four others were injured in a two-car collision yesterday afternoon on Richfield in Lyon Township.

Willard Garrow, 17, of Davison, was pronounced dead on arrival at Flint's St. Joseph Hospital, according to State Police at the Brighton post.

Garrow was riding in a car driven by Stephen Spinney, 18, of Davison, police said. Spinney and his other two passengers, Cathryn Cummings, 17, and Janeen Compton, 17, both of Davison, also were admitted to the hospital and are reported in poor condition.

The driver of the other car, Clyde Newman, 34, of Otisville, is in fair condition.

TOPSY-TURVY—John Thomas Zimmerman, 19, wore these glasses for three weeks and viewed the world upside-down and backward. The scene at right is how Zimmerman viewed a street crowd through the glasses.

Visual Defect Experiment

His World Was Upside Down

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — John Thomas Zimmerman emerged from his dim, topsy-turvy world Monday and promptly got sick.

His world had been topsy-turvy because for three weeks, his only vision had been through strange-looking glasses that made everything he saw appear upside down and backwards.

★ ★ ★

His world had been dim because the glasses afforded only a narrow, barely light 7-degree field of vision, compared with normal vision of about 180 degrees.

The nausea came when he took off the glasses and found himself dizzy and disoriented at seeing things right side up again.

FRUITFUL

Despite the discomfort, the 19-year-old Zimmerman was pleased because his experiment had been fruitful.

The study, and a 2½-month stint with right side up, but reversed, glasses before that, were aimed at learning how mind and body reactions adapt when the eyes see things as they are not.

★ ★ ★

Eventually, he said, it is hoped the pilot studies will learn to help the mind and body—possibly with the aid of hypnosis—conquer vision defects. Zimmerman, a freshman at the University of Colorado, has been nearsighted since he was born prematurely, tipping the scales at 30 ounces.

For his latest tests, he wore classes with periscope-like prisms mounted on them.

ODD SPECTACLES

"It feels like I'm walking upside down," he said. A first-hand view through the odd spectacles—while Zimmerman kept his eyes closed—showed such sensations as watching one's own feet appear to be approaching, and instinctively reaching to meet a proffered handshake with the left hand.

Zimmerman was able to get around rather well, though his motions were of necessity deliberate. With the limited field of view, "it's a choice of watching where I'm going and stumbling over something, or watching my feet and not knowing where I'm going," he said.

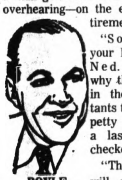

★ ★ ★

There were some embarrassing moments too. He said a girl friend and another girl were standing beside each other, and with the vision reversed, "I hugged the wrong one. They both gave me heck."

So Long, Ned! You'll Be Missed(?)

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Remarks a man gets tired of hearing—or overhearing—on the eve of retirement:

BOYLE

"So this is your last week, Ned. Is that why they called in the accountants to give the petty cash fund a last quick checkover?"

"The old gang will sure miss you at the water cooler, old-timer. I guess you put in more time hanging around it than anybody."

"What are you going to do with all the dough you stashed away? I hear you're going to become a silent partner with Howard Hughes and buy up the rest of Las Vegas."

WIFE'S TURN

"Well, we put up with you for 40 years. Now it's your wife's turn."

"Can I have your seat cushion when you leave, Ned? By now it should be the most comfortable one in the office."

★ ★ ★

"If you're not leaving until Friday, how about lending me a fast $20? Pay you back Thursday for sure."

"I know my husband has earned a good rest after all these years in that office salt mine, but I simply don't know what I'll do with him. I'm not used to having a man underfoot around the house, day in and day out."

"Ned, the boss wanted to throw you a farewell fete at the executive lunch club, but asked me to take you as he couldn't make it. Now I find I may be out of town that day. How about us stopping off at the tavern down the street today and having a couple of quick ones instead? Gee, that's great. I knew you'd be big about it."

"What are you going to do with all the loot you've banked, Ned? Buy a box of apples and open your own fruit stand?"

★ ★ ★

"We're thinking of surprising him with a color television set as a going-away gift. But several of his friends think it might be better just to buy him his old office swivel chair—as he always seemed to be happiest while dozing in it."

"Why should I contribute a dollar? I hear that when they took up a collection to buy flowers for my wife when she had her tonsils out 10 years ago, Ned refused to chip in more than two bits."

'TOO OLD, TOO TIRED'

"What are you going to do with yourself? You're too old to be any good at golf, too tired and homely to chase women, and too poor to play the horses. Maybe you'd just better try to stay on the payroll."

"Now that you're leaving for good, Ned, how about breaking down and telling the rest of us guys just what you were supposed to be doing the last 40 years. We've never been able to figure it out."

"The thing that puzzles everybody is what you're going to do with all the green stuff you've squirreled away. I hear you've got banknotes stuffed in the holes of all the elm trees in your back yard."

"So this week winds it up, eh? better be careful. I had a cousin who retired last year, and he keeled over the very next day. He never got to collect a penny of pension money from the firm."

"Boy, do I envy you! nothing to do the rest of your life but sit on your front porch and wonder how to cure your rheumatism."

"I hear Ned was the handsomest man in the place when he first came here. Well, time does things to everybody."

"Now remember, Jane, after we give Ned his present, you throw both arms around him and give him a great big kiss. After all, it's your turn. I had to kiss old Mr. Robbins goodby when he retired last February —and one kiss a year to a retiree fills any girl's quota."

Flip's Humor Is Finely Honed

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Flip Wilson works hard at making people laugh. He's been studying and researching humor for a long while and now it seems to have paid off. He's surely one of the most successful comedians of television's past few seasons.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK — "The first law of humor is that things can be funny only when we are in fun," wrote Max Eastman in his 1936 book, "The Enjoyment of Laughter."

Eastman's first law of humor, plus the second, third and fourth, are the building blocks of the career of Flip Wilson, a thoughtful fellow now in his mid-30s who constructs his comedy routines with the precision of an engineer blueprinting a bridge.

★ ★ ★

At the moment, Flip is one of the hot comics to surface in the past couple of television seasons. His datebook is loaded with appointments to visit Ed Sullivan, Dean Martin, the Smothers Brothers and Carol Burnett on their respective variety hours. He is a welcome guest on the late evening shows — Carson's, Griffin's and Bishop's. He has been almost a regular on Rowan and Martin's "Laugh-In," and most recently, NBC put him under a long-term contract and is planning to develop a program around his very distinctive personality and style.

FRESH FACE

But while Wilson may be a fresh face on television, the round-faced Negro with a penchant for study and research has been learning his business for a long time — 13 years, precisely, and mostly in the grubby obscurity of small nightclubs.

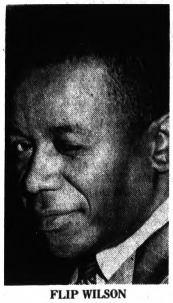

"No one can really say what's funny," Wilson said. "There are laws of humor, and the element of surprise, of course, is important. But mostly, when you choose a piece, you must pick one that you yourself think is funny.

"Then you go to work and analyze what you've got, and work it up with gestures and voice changes and shifts of words. It took me three years to get my Columbus story the way I wanted it."

Wilson's Columbus story, one of his most popular, explains how Columbus went to Queen Isabella for permission to go to America and discover Ray Charles. It falls squarely within Eastman's dictum about being "in fun."

PLEASANT FLAVOR

His "Cowboys and Colored People" involves Eastman's second law of humor: "Disagreeable things, so long as they are not disagreeable enough to 'spoil the fun' tend to acquire a pleasant emotional flavor and provoke a laugh."

FLIP WILSON

This sketch is a dialogue between a black man and an Indian with the Negro commiserating with the redskin because he has no Willie Mays to brag about. It winds up with the Indian coming in with the snapper — "Did you ever hear of anyone playing 'cowboys and colored people?' "

★ ★ ★

Of course, such a piece, unless honed smooth with Wilson's finesse and manner could be, rather than funny, downright offensive.

Wilson whose first name is Clerow, was born and grew up in Jersey City. He made his theatrical debut at age 9, as Clara Barton in a school play in an emergency: the feminine lead got measles and little Clerow was the only other person who knew the lines.

He enlisted in the Air Force at 16, picked up his nickname, "Flip" because of his attitude toward life and the military. His commanding officer persuaded him to take grammar lessons and to learn to type. When he got out of the service he worked as a bellhop in a San Francisco hotel and somehow got a walk-on role in a comedy as a drunk. He never looked back.

★ ★ ★

Today Wilson says that his big break came when he finally made the "Tonight Show" followed by a booking on the Ed Sullivan show.

SAME MATERIAL

"The only trouble with variety shows as a showcase for young comedians is that you are almost forced to reuse the same material," he said. "They may catch you with Carson or somebody, and book you on another show. But somebody instructs you to repeat the number they have seen. This sometimes suggests to the audience that it's the only thing you can do."

★ ★ ★

Wilson, when he started studying comedy and refining his own techniques, gave himself 15 years to become really proficient at his specialty. Now, with great success, he has made the grade two years ahead of schedule. He still concentrates completely on his work, a rolling stone who lives in a suitcase and concentrates on collecting material — his own thoughts and experiences as well as those borrowed from others — which some day he hopes to publish as a textbook on humor for the benefit of future young comics.

MANDATORY SAFEGUARDS—Linda Poli (left) of Detroit wears a lifejacket and Holly Ragsdale of Birmingham holds a life preserver boat cushion while seated in a boat at Bloomfield Beach on Cass Lake. The new marine law makes it mandatory to have one Coast Guard approved life preserver aboard for each person, regardless of whether a motor is used.

State Act Keeps Boaters 'Floating'

If it floats, and is used to carry people across the water, there must be at least one approved life saving device for each person aboard.

And the Oakland County sheriff's department is going to enforce this new provision in the Marine Safety Act which went into effect Jan. 1 of this year.

★ ★ ★

There are several other new sections in the act, but this one is the most important, according to Lt. Don Kratt, head of the water safety division.

"This means canoes, sailboats, row boats or anything that falls under the definition of a vessel in the act," said Kratt.

As defined, a "vessel means every description of watercraft, other than a seaplane on the water, used or capable of being used as a means of trnsportation on the water."

Safety devices include life preserver, vest, ring buoy or buoyant cushion and the make must be Coast Guard approved.

★ ★ ★

"If a boat is towing a water skier, there must be a life preserver aboard for the skier," said Kratt. "There is an approved belt for skiers, but this doesn't count as a preserver. And even though the skier may never enter the boat, a preserver must be kept on board for him."

Regarding skiing, the law has reverted back to having the pilot plus one observer aboard. The person watching the skier must be seated so as to see the progress of the person being towed at all times.

FIRE PREVENTION

One to three fire extinguishers must now be carried aboard all motorboats with engine compartments, any form of deck or other compartment. The number of extinguishers is determined by the length.

Other key provisions, according to Kratt, include:

● Operating vessels on lakes in a counter-clockwise fashion, in so far as possible: maintaining a distance of 100 feet or more from a dock, raft, moored vessel, occupied swimming area or diver's flag unless operating at a no wake speed.

● Not operating a vessel within restricted areas defined by buoys or beacons.

★ ★ ★

● No towing of skiers, surfboarders or watersledders between one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise.

● Children less than 12 years old must have a person 16 years or older aboard when operating a motorboat over six horsepower. Youngsters 12 to 16 must either be with an adult or have a safety certificate in possession.

● Any anchored raft can be ordered relocated or removed when deemed a hazard to navigation.

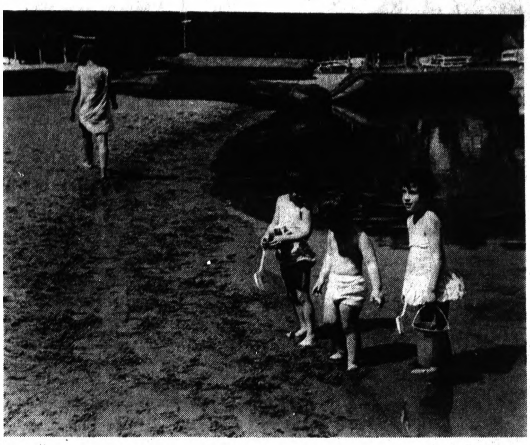

● Divers must have properly placed buoys bearing a red flag of specific size, or a proper flag painted on the boat, at or near where they enter the water.

● All motorboats must be registered with the secretary of state and the registration numbers painted or aattched near the bow. The numbers must be three inches or higher and contrast with the color of the hull.

Kratt feels there are five major reasons for water mishaps:

(1) Careless or reckless operation of boats, (2) leaving children unattended near the water, (3 gasoline fumes accumulating in engine compartments or under decks causing explosions, (4) swimmers overtaxing themselves by trying to swim too far and (5) overloading a boat.

"People using the waterways should use common sense," he said, "and they should make sure there are enought life preservers in the boat."

TROUBLE AFOOT—The mother in this posed picture could be leaving a lake full of trouble behind as she walks away and lets the youngsters play alone at the edge of the water. Children this small have been known to drown in a foot of water.

Capsizing Big Threat in Boating

BY WM. T. McKEOWN
NEA Boating Editor

Name the boats and boatmen most likely to get in trouble this year:

Hot shot speedsters? Offshore adventurers? Youngsters in small sailboats? Water skiers? Wrong.

★ ★ ★

"A rather high proportion of fatal boating accidents," warned U.S. Coast Guard Commandant Willard J. Smith recently, "involve hunters and fishermen."

It hardly seems fair. You'd think the clown who roars past the dock, throwing waves around, would be the first to go. He may, if he's that careless and hits something or another boat— collisions by boatmen who didn't look where they were going caused the most nonfatal accidents last year.

TOO FAR

But more likely the worst trouble comes later when the boatman simply tips his craft too far while pulling up the anchor or keeps fishing when the weather gets rough, according to new figures from the Coast Guard.

Boating statistics, just out of for last year, show the sport is remarkably safe. With an estimated 40 million people riding 8 million pleasure craft, only one in 10,000 got in an accident.

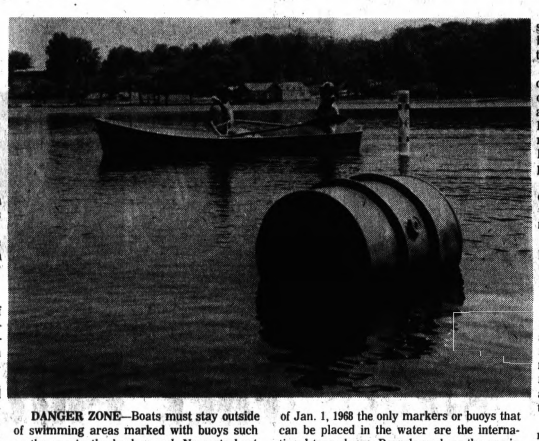

Most frequent cause of fatalities was capsized, and the boats didn't flip themselves. They got tipped, the figures show, by improper loading, overloading, and overpowering by owners who also went out in weather and water conditions that their boats or their experience couldn't handle.

Falling overboard — the particular small boat hazard for fishermen and hunters out alone — ranked second as a cause of drowning.

Boats sinking came third. And an added sad note: The Coast Guard found 82 per cent of drowning victims had life preservers in the boat but didn't or couldn't use them in time.

It wasn't the large boats on long open water cruises that got in the most trouble. They had the major collisions, fires, groundings and nonfatal accidents. Small craft on seemingly sheltered inland waters had the most serious problems, however. The Fourth of July is traditionally the most dangerous time, and the annual date for National Safe Boating Week.

These records on who gets hurt afloat, and why and hopefully how to prevent it are getting much better as the result of new rules. If a skipper operates a boat recklessly, he's breaking a law. Now if he gets in an accident and fails to report it to the Coast Guard immediately, he breaks another.

DANGER ZONE—Boats must stay outside of swimming areas marked with buoys such as the one in the background. No motorboat can be operated within 100 feet of such an area unless it slows to a no wake speed. As of Jan. 1, 1968 the only markers or buoys that can be placed in the water are the international type shown. Barrels such as the one in the foreground are no longer permitted.

In the white marlin division, Emmett Sheridan of Media, Pa., took the lead with an eight-footer which tipped the scales at 67½ pounds.

Also catching whites were Sam N. Clark Jr. of Tarboro, N.C., and William H. Rouch of Towsen, Md.

Four Drivers Take Swim at Regatta

The Oakland County Boat Club's Kennedy Memorial Regatta Sunday at Sylvan Lake featured a maximum of power craft and a minimum of injuries.

A sun-drenched crowd lined the shorline of the lake and saw four of the 70 drivers dunked in the water but all escaped serious injury.

In the fastest class, the seven litre hydorplanes, Jack Brown of Dayton piloted the Sayonara to an easy win. Perry Walter's Miss New Jersey placed second.

The other winners included:

Strong Winds Plague Fleet

LONDON (AP) — Hurricane-force winds and tremendous seas today brought fears that some yachts in the single-handed Trans-Atlantic yacht race may meet more trouble than they can cope with.

Seasoned seamen among the race leaders reported conditions in the mid-Atlantic were the worst they had ever experienced, with winds gusting up to 100 m.p.h.

★ ★ ★

Twenty-eight of the original 35 starters are fighting it out on the Atlantic course between Plymouth, England, and Newport, R.I., the race, sponsored by the London Observer newspaper, started June 1.

★ ★ ★

Britain's Leslie Williams, now more than 1,100 miles out of Plymouth in his 53-foot sloop, Spirit of Cutty Sark, reported by radio that the sloop was lying beam on to heavy seas with all sails lashed down.

★ ★ ★

"This is the worst storm I've ever experienced," he said. "It's impossible to carry sail and I'm making no headway whatsoever."

New Park Tour Slated Saturday by Audubon Club

The Pontiac Audubon Club will tour Oakland County's newest park Saturday.

Recently acquired for development by the county's parks and recreation department, the land on Crooked (Lower Bushman) Lake is still in its natural state.

★ ★ ★

The area is reached by taking Sashabaw north to Hoyt and then west to Perry Lake before turning north to Shappie. The tour will start from an old windmill on Shappie at 8 a.m.

At tonight's regular meeting in All Saints Episcopal Church at 7:30, PAC members will view color slides concerning the ecology of forests shown by Marian Lehner.

The public is invited to attend both events.

Meets at Haven Hill Lodge

Commission to Hear Deer Hunt Plans

Preliminary plans for this fall's firearm deer season will top the Conservation Commission's agenda Thursday and Friday at Haven Hill Lodge in the Highland recreation area.

The Thursday meeting is at 1:30 p.m. and any discussion with the public takes place at this time. The formal business session starts at 9 a.m. Friday.

★ ★ ★

The preliminary deer recommendations will give the commission an opportunity to weigh the proposals and, if necessary, suggest changes in areas and quotas before it formally sets 1968 firearm deer regulations during its July 11-12 meeting at the Higgins Lake Conservation School.

On tap for commission study at the Haven Hill meeting will be proposed antledless deer quotas and areas which this week are being screened jointly by the department's field personnel and members of its game division staff in Lansing.

Those same tentative recommendations will also have been reviewed by six northern Citizen's Advisory Committees on Deer before they are presented to the commission.

POSSIBLY AGREE

Should the committees concur with them, there is a possibility that only one slate of preliminary regulations will go before the commission.

If they don't, there undoubtedly will be separate sets of recommended areas and quotas—one the Department's and the others coming from dissenting committees.

Whichever the case, there is sure to be one major change in the state's 1968 firearm deer season.

Under legislation passed last year, the season will be changed back to its former traditional starting date of November 15, statewide. It will run concurrently in all areas and close uniformly on November 30.

Other items on the agenda include a proposal from the hunting area control committee to close a small lake and the surrounding area in parts of sections 22 and 27 of Holly Township to hunting; special watercraft regulations for the Black River and City of Port Huron; and land matters.

There is a possibility that the construction of dams on trout streams in northern Michigan will be brought before the commission by Trout Unlimited.

Junior Editors Quiz on THE ODYSSEY

QUESTION: What should we know about the Odyssey and the Iliad?

ANSWER: The Odyssey and the Iliad are long stories in poetical form, originally chanted or sung. They were originated by the blind poet Homer in the days of ancient Greece.

Only a little is known about Homer who, with the guidance of a small boy, is supposed to have wandered about the country, singing his songs to the music of his lyre. In some way, the songs were written down. They inspired other writers to tell fascinating stories.

Since Homer introduced many great and noble ideas into his poems, an art of great writing began to develop which greatly influenced Western civilization and laid the foundation for the finer kind of writing we call literature.

In his songs, Homer used imagination. He gave the Greek gods and goddesses human feelings. He even let them fly down and interfere in human affairs, as in our picture where the hero Achilles finds his hair suddenly seized from behind by the goddess Athene, who is trying to calm him down in a moment of sudden anger.

The Iliad tells the story of the Greek attack on the neighboring city of Troy, while the Odyssey tells about the hero Ulysses who has many adventures while trying to return to his home after the Trojan War.

Soviets Rewriting Red Chinese History

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — Echoes of American arguments two decades ago about communism in China can now be heard in Soviet rewriting of Chinese Communist history.

A major Soviet campaign is under way to depict Mao Tse-tung as a Chinese nationalist pursuing traditional goals of old China by dangerously adventurous means.

★ ★ ★

The current line tells the Soviet people that Mao is not really a Communist and suggests Russia and China were never natural allies for all their talk about Communist brotherhood.

The Soviet line has similarities to the view of some American experts two decades ago who contended that Chinese and Soviet interests were divergent. They argued that Red China under Mao would not fit into Stalin's world Communist system.

'AGRARIAN REFORMERS'

In its extreme form—the form used later for U.S. political attacks on these experts, attacks led by the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin — the view of these experts was that Mao's followers were "agrarian reformers."

Mao, some explained, simply wanted to rebuild the strength of China by adapting communism to nationalist purposes, and communism in China would not mean what it meant elsewhere.

★ ★ ★

But when Mao came to power, he made a military alliance with Stalin and sent his armies to salvage Stalin's Korean War venture. Both Peking and Moscow were talking then of close ties and joint dedication to the goals of communism.

In the Korean war period — the McCarthy era-Western experts who said Soviet and Chinese interests were basically irreconcilable found themselves ridiculed. Some were ousted from their jobs.

SWITCHING SIDES

Now the Soviets sound increasingly as if they are on the side of those experts, at least to a limited extent.

They have not used the term "agrarian reformers" with its benign connotations. But they have recalled that Lenin said in an agricultural country "it is necessary to solve the problem of struggle . . . against medieval survivals" — with agrarian reform implied as one solution needed in underdeveloped China.

★ ★ ★

However, the current view is that Mao "distorted" the Communist solution to problems, "treating Marxism in a utilitarian way, taking only some of its ideas and not delving into the essence of the science of communism.

"The Sinoization of Marxism actually turned out to be its replacement by the nationalist ideology of Mao Tse-tung," says the Soviet theoretical journal Kommunist.

FEUDAL ROOTS

"A variant of petite bourgeois ideology, Maoism is . . . a sum total of views culled from various sources and adapted to selfish political calculations," the journal said. The main aspects were borrowed from "conservative ideas rooted in the feudal monarchic ideology" of old China.

Mao changed communism so that "by 1949 the nationalism of Mao and his group began to assume" a form of seeking power "to satisfy the great-power claims" of traditional Chinese thinking, another Soviet article explained.

★ ★ ★

The Soviet Union provided more than $2 billion worth of aid — since repaid by China. But there is now a hint in Soviet comments that the Kremlin was deceived and perhaps even made a mistake in believing Mao was the kind of Communist to help.

Kommunist and other Soviet publications always are careful to distinguish between "the Mao group" and some shadowy, unidentified Chinese Communists who are represented as being pure of Communist heart.

'INTERNATIONALISTS'

The Soviet rewriting of recent Chinese history identifies these pure communists as "internationalists," meaning they still respect Moscow instead of only looking inward to Peking.

But Kremlin leaders seem worried that many Chinese "internationalists" can survive Mao's cultural purge. And Kommunist has warned that there is a clear "danger of changing the nature of power" in China so that the country is no longer Communist.

★ ★ ★

But the effect of this Soviet reassessment of recent Chinese history is to raise a question of just what communism is in a primarily agricultural country like China. That was what Americans argued about two decades ago as Mao was taking over China.

White-Ruled Africa Faces Intensified Guerrilla Warfare

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — Africa's black leaders, frustrated by growing economic and military might in white-ruled southern Africa, plan to intensify guerrilla warfare against what they term "the white cancer on this black continent."

At a recent summit meeting, 14 independent nations urged continuous and relentless attacks on white minority rule by black "freedom fighters."

★ ★ ★

They envisage a front line extending 2,000 miles from the humid jungles of Angola on the Atlantic seaboard, through arid bushland plains of central Africa to the palm-fringed shores of Mozambique.

Three major African rivers form the demarcation line between black Africa and the white south.

CONGO RIVER

On Africa's west coast, black guerrilla units have been crossing the wide Congo River for more than seven years, waging war against Portuguese rule in Angola.

More recently in central Africa, terrorists crossed the crocodile-infested Zambesi River from staging camps in Zambia. They are met by tough black and white Rhodesian troops, backed by paramilitary police units from South Africa.

★ ★ ★

On Africa's eastern seaboard, well-trained guerrillas, under Africa's foremost revolutionary leader, Dr. Eduardo Mondlane, canoe across the coffee-colored Ruvuma River to harass Portugese troops in Mozambique.

Few significant military or territorial gains have been achieved by black liberation forces.

Their impact is measured by the number of white troops killed, trucks ambushed and roads mined. Their tactics have, however, forced Portugal to spend millions and deploy 80,000 troops in Angola and Mozambique.

The Rhodesian white minority government of Prime Minister Ian Smith is the top target now. Black leaders believe that only by crushing the Rhodesia regime can they eventually come to grips with their most hated enemy—South Africa.

★ ★ ★

Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda, whose copper-rich, landlocked country continues to rely on white-ruled Rhodesia for electric power and coal for the copper smelters and a rail outlet for essential exports and imports, wants an early overthrow of the Smith regime.

But liberation movements are riddled with discord. Some draw money and supplies from Red China, others from Russia and Cuba.

FREQUENT BRAWLS

Frequent brawls between rival movements often end in bloodshed.

Calling for escalation of guerrilla warfare against the Portuguese, Rhodesians and South African whites, Kaunda said: "Unless the independent African states work in unison for the overthrow of the white regimes, freedom fighters face defeat.

★ ★ ★

"There is growing military cooperation between the white southern states who are becoming increasingly powerful.

"The liberation war was in full spate. It was a continuous struggle and nothing could stop it. But the liberation forces must be given the unflinching support of all African states if they are to win."

CLOSE TO CONGO

Two men control most African guerrillas and they are separated by 2,000 miles of jungle.

Heading the Angola liberation movement on the west coast is Holden Roberto. He claims an army of 10,000 trained men operating from near-impenetrable jungle regions close to the Congo border.

★ ★ ★

Roberto's main target is the British-owned Benguela Railway, which ironically enough carries some of Zambia's copper to the Angola port of Lobito. Another objective is the tiny Portugese enclave of Cabinda, locked in the Congo and potentially rich in oil.

TOP REVOLUTIONARY

Lauded as Africa's top revolutionary leader, Eduardo Mondlane heads the Mozambique Liberation Front. A Harvard graduate, onetime university professor and United Nations official, the balding leader turns out more than 100 trained terrorists each month. Some 8,000 guerrillas await his orders in a string of camps throughout Tanzania.

Married to a white American who mothers his three children and finds time to act as his secretary and teach refugees from Mozambique, Mondlane leads his men in frequent incursions into what he terms "enemy territory."

★ ★ ★

"I feel a lot safer in Mozambique than here in Dar Es Salaam," he says: "The Portuguese will only be happy when they have my body and I'm sure there's a price on my head."

Citizen Help Asked to Curb Car Thefts

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. last night inaugurated a campaign to curb the growing car theft problem by issuing a proclamation asking all citizens to help by locking their cars. The campaign is being sponsored by the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce Traffic Safety Committee.

Taylor emphasized the predominent role played by teen-agers in the worsening auto theft problem by noting that four out of every five persons arrested for car thefts are under 25.

* * *

A recent survey by a national organization showed that more than 50 per cent of the individuals arrested for this offense were under 18 years of age.

Careless motorists contibute heavily to what has been described as this nation's No. 1 teen-age crime, according to Pontiac Police Chief William K. Hanger.

80 PCT. UNLOCKED

The Police Department arrested 61 persons for auto thefts in 1966 and 33 of them or 54.09 per cent were 16 or younger, Hanger added.

National statistics show that of the more than 500,000 autos stolen last year, 80 per cent were found to have been left unlocked.

* * *

"Adult motorists should realize that taking and driving a car is one of the strongest temptations to youngsters between 12 and 16 years of age," said Hanger.

"This is true whether the teen-age is from a poor or a well-to-do family," he added.

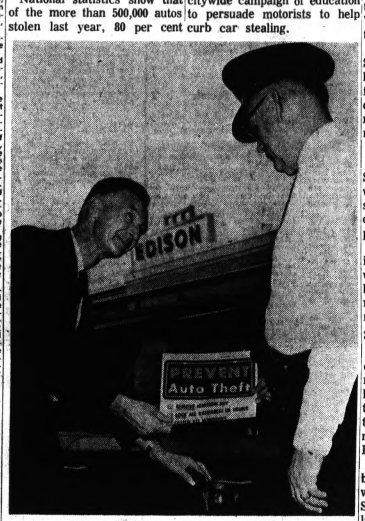

380 CARS STOLEN

Some 380 cars were stolen in Pontiac in 1967 and only 237 of them were ever returned to their rightful owners. In 1966, there were 260 cars stolen and only six were recovered.

Taylor suggested motorists be careful to remove the key from the ignition, roll up all windows, lock inviting packages in the trunk and lock the doors.

Other suggestions to motorists include: avoid parking on dimly lit streets, don't leave registration papers in glove compartment, insist on claim check from parking lots, and if the car is delivered by a garage, pick it up immediately.

The Pontiac Police Department is intensifying its efforts to prevent and solve auto thefts and at the same time is cooperating fully with the citywide campaign of education to persuade motorists to help curb car stealing.

LOCK UP — Lt. Clayton Randolph, commander of the Pontiac Police Traffic Bureau, hands a reminder to lock up the car to Marty McReynolds, head of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce Traffic Safety Committee. A campaign to remind citizens to lock cars was started last night when Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. signed a proclamation announcing Pontiac's participation in the National Automobile Theft Prevention Campaign.

VC Rockets Hit Saigon Airfield

SAIGON (AP) — Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base was the target for the daily Vietcong rocket attack on South Vietnam's capital today, and the 30 casualties—all civilians—included four Vietnamese children killed and two Americans wounded.

While civilians throughout Saigon filled sandbags to build home shelters, new fighting flared at opposite ends of the demilitarized zone. Allied troops reported killing 121 North Vietnamese in two battles.

* * *

The 10 rockets that hit Tan Son Nhut before dawn also wounded 24 Vietnamese and destroyed three houses, one helicopter and a small observation plane.

Several other planes, including a large military transport, were damaged at the sprawling base, a favorite target for enemy gunners even before the current wave of shellings.

30 CIVILIAN DEAD

The base contains Saigon's commercial airport, government and American air units, headquarters of the U.S. Military Command in Vietnam and the homes of a number of Vietnamese officials, including Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky.

At least 130 civilians have been killed and more than 1,000 wounded in 24 rocket attacks on Saigon since the Vietcong launched its "peace talks" offensive May 5, the eve of the start of U.S.-North Vietnamese talks in Paris.

* * *

Although the official military view is that the shellings have little military significance, concern is mounting about the psychological effect on Saigon's 3 million people. Additional government troops have been assigned to sweep the "rocket belt" around the capital.

Helicopters with loudspeakers circled low over the city during the night, making psychological warfare broadcasts denouncing the Vietcong shellings. The broadcasts said targets have included heavily populated areas, hospitals and schools.

UNDER PRESSURE

Diplomatic sources in Paris said President Johnson is under pressure to counter the shelling by resuming bombing of Hanoi.

Government troops reported killing several Vietcong guerrillas in exchanges of small arms fire around a soap factory where they had been hiding out for more than a week in Cholon, the Chinese sector in southwestern Saigon.

* * *

The fighting along the demilitarized zone was near Khe Sanh, in South Vietnam's northwestern corner, and near Gio Linh, in the northeastern corner.

* * *

A government spokesman said South Vietnamese infantrymen killed 93 infiltrating North Vietnamese soldiers near Gio Linh. He said 11 government soldiers were killed and 33 wounded.

KILL 28 N. VIETS

U.S. Marines reported killing at least 28 of an estimated 400 North Vietnamese troops who attacked a fire support base seven miles southeast of Khe Sanh village. Fourteen Americans were killed and 15 wounded in the attack and a mortar barrage which preceded it.

4 Inmates Flee Detention Unit

Four inmates who walked away from Camp Pontiac, the White Lake Township detention center, last night are being sought in the Oakland County area.

Camp authorities said each of the youths, ranging in age from 19 to 21, apparently fled the grounds sometime between 9 and 10 p.m.

* * *

They said the four are believed seeking transportation out of the area.

None is considered dangerous and none was serving a sentence for a crime of violence, camp officials said.

The four are Edward J. LaLonde, 19, of Escanaba; Robert L. Christian, 21, of Detroit; Robert Brilley, 19, of Elmira; and Frank D. Willard, 21, of Muskegon, according to a camp spokesman.

Osteopath College Appoints Biologist

The Michigan College of Osteopathic Medicine, now in the process of the preparing its curriculum, has hired a consultant in cellular biology.

Myron S. Magan, college dean, announced that Dr. Richard Balek, associate professor biology, University of Detroit, has been appointed to help develop the role of cellular biology in the curriculum.

* * *

Dr. Balek, in addition to preparing specific course material, will work with architects in establishing the building needs in the basic science areas.

Permit Is Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Fedral Communications Commission announced Tuesday receipt of an application for a permit for an FM station in Saginaw, Mich., to operate on 107.1 megacycles.

The application was filed by Clark Broadcasting Co., headed by Earl L. Clark of Detroit.

Shelley Struggling to Drop Pounds She Had Picked Up

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — The Weight-Lifters are at it again.

By Weight-lifters, I mean people who lift their own overweight, and I guess I'm one, or—as I say when I sometimes look at myself—perhaps two. Shelley Winters is one of us and I was much encouraged lately when I found her so sincerely struggling to take off a few pounds so she would look good in, or under, a towel in a massage scene in a picture called "The Mad Room."

WILSON

So the glamour girls and Oscar winners struggle with this problem like everyone else.

"I've taken off 22 pounds," Shelley was telling me gleefully the other day at the Americana.

She was on the phone to Hollywood asking her agents if they could delay filming a scene for at least a week so she could get thinner.

★ ★ ★

"It means a lot to me," Shelley said. "All my life I've had a weight problem . . . because I like to eat . . . and I like to cook . . . and after I cook, I like to eat even more."

"I've taken roles where I had to be heavy, and people said, 'Isn't she wonderful? She put on weight for a part.' But actually I liked it.

"Lately, though, I've gone up quite high . . . to 155 . . . and I've also developed something called Achilles tendonitis, that golfers get around ankles, and now the doctors have thrown the book at me."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Bobby Kennedy recently gave a California pop-art poster maker permission to use his portrait on a poster. He pointed to one showing Richard Burton and told the artist, "If you can make me look like him, that'll be fine."

Robert Mitchum (whose new film is "Anzio!") told his agent not to make any deals for a few months—he wants to visit Vietnam again . . . A famed actor, asked by his company which friends he wanted at his movie premiere, answered: "I have no friends" . . . Sugar Ray Robinson sat in on drums at Lionel Hampton's Riverboat opening.

★ ★ ★

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Joe E. Lewis claims you haven't really had a hangover till you've stayed in your room because you were afraid your head wouldn't fit through the door.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "Girls"—that's what women over 40 call each other.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Stock market advice: The bulls win sometimes, the bears win sometimes, but the hogs always lose."

EARL'S PEARLS: June is that exciting month when the kids are almost finished with school, your vacation plans are all made, and the road gangs are out ripping up the highways.

Bob Hope just signed for his sixth year on NBC-TV for Chrysler. "Six years!" he marveled. "In Hollywood that's equal to three and a half marriages!" . . . That's earl, brother.

A Look at TV

Shows Hit Sour Notes

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — That coast-to-coast thud you heard on network television Tuesday night was the signal that summer's musical - variety replacement series have arrived with a vengeance.

CBS-TV presented a new one-hour series called "Showtime," and NBC-TV countered with a 30-minute entry named "Showcase '68," and the proceedings were every bit as thrilling as the titles.

★ ★ ★

"Showtime," which replaces the Red Skelton program for the summer, is produced in London, for the American audience, which means it's really not here nor there, but rather a show without a country. Swinging London it ain't. Maybe they like it somewhere in the mid-Atlantic.

There are guest-star hosts each week for this series, and the first was Shelley Berman, a comedian with a sharp sense of focus who, alas, found himself on a program with no focus at all. It affected him, and he wasn't the same Shelley we know, as he opened with a dreadful monologue about London time and failed to recover.

DATED BANDS

There were also a dated jazz band, a cocat - instrumental-group from Paraguay, a German juggler and two British singers, Shirley Bassey and Matt Monroe. I have always heard good things about Miss Bassey, but the way she strained and hollered her way through "If Ever I Would Leave You" made one wonder. Pity.

Future hosts will include George Gobel, Phyllis Diller, Eddy Arnold, Liberace, Steve Allen, Juliet Prowse, Godfrey Cambridge, Frank Fontaine and Terry — Thomas. Terry, or Thomas, or Terry-Thomas, whatever you call him, is British. How did he sneak in there?

"Showcase '68" is an Imaginative idea, executed with no imagination at all. The notion of presenting professional regional entertainers in their first national television outings is a wise way to uncover some talent for the networks. But the format is stone-age television.

★ ★ ★

A regular host, Lloyd Thaxton, who used to have a syndicated series in which he did panomine mouthings of hit records and the like, introduces the acts, and that's all.

★ ★ ★

One group, the Jade Set, rocked and ruined "Summertime." A few acts were enjoyable, including the Craig Hundley jazz trio, composed of amazingly young boys. But all in all, the show came across like a sort of semipro version of the long-running "Amateur Hour."
