State School Exec Missing in Plane

DR. LEROY AUGENSTEIN

From Our News Wires

CHARLOTTE — A plane piloted by Dr. Leroy G. Augenstein, Republican member of the State Board of Education and prominent scientist, is missing and feared down in southern Michigan, officials said today.

Augenstein, 40, a member of the Michigan Board of Education, last made radio contact at 12:24 a.m., asking the Jackson tower for landing conditions at Charlotte and Lansing.

★ ★ ★

The Michigan State University professor has not been heard from since he was advised the weather was bad, police said.

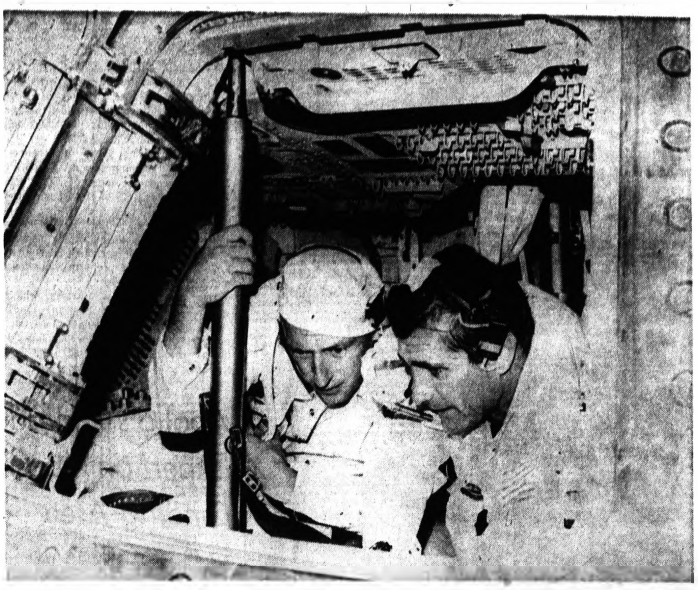

He was returning from a flight to Richmond, Inc., said William Walbeck, assistant manager at the Charlotte Airport southwest of Lansing.

"Dr. Augenstein was an extremely intelligent and practical man," Walbeck said. "I presume he would have turned around and gone south again if landing conditions were bad. Our only hope is that what he has done is got himself someplace where he can't communicate."

Federal Aviation Administration officials in Lansing said a ground search was under way 50 miles either side of a line from Fort Wayne, Ind., to Gladwin. They said at 10 a.m. weather conditions made an air search "impossible for at least another couple of hours."

Walbeck, who runs the Eaton Flying Service where Augenstein kept his 14-year-old blue and white Piper Apache, said he feared Augenstein was "down and lost."

Michigan State Police said they had checked Michigan's major airports and found Augenstein had not landed at any of them. A check of smaller airfields was under way, officers said.

Nixon May Back Meat Act Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is expected to support a proposed year's delay in implementing a new law setting minimum nationwide standards for intrastate meat packing plants, according to government sources.

If the delay — in the form of a Senate bill — is not approved by Congress and signed by the President by Dec. 15, the 1967 Wholesome Meat Act becomes effective despite reports the states are not prepared for it.

The law covers about 16,000 plants packing 15 per cent of the nation's meat.

The Agriculture Department has not taken an official stance on the bill being pushed by Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb.

SBA TELLS OF BACKING

A Small Business Administration (SBA) spokesman confided, however, that the "Agriculture Department has backed the bill to give another year's time."

★ ★ ★

Packers dealing in more than one state already are subject to federal inspection. The 1967 act requires states to set up standards for plants operating entirely within their boundaries, and the regulations have to be at least as tough as those for interstate operators. Under the law, however, a state making progress toward standards can be given an extra year to complete the program.

Agriculture Department officials have said they expect very few states to be making satisfactory initial progress by Dec. 15, allowing the department to move into the states with federal inspectors. To date, no state has been certified as having met requirements.

★ ★ ★

Curtis said yesterday that although he hasn't heard if the White House intends to support his bill, he hasn't "heard any opposition either."

The SBA spokesman noted that loans to packers for updating facilities have dwindled to less than half the 1968 rate because word is circulating "the heat's off" for compliance with the law this year.

The weatherman predicts variable cloudiness and cool, the low 35 to 40 tonight.

The low temperature was 42 in downtown Pontiac prior to 8 a.m. By 2 p.m. the mercury had moved to 48.

CHARGED IN ASSAULT—George W. Baker, (right) 51, of Miami, Fla., is escorted from the Federal Building at Miami yesterday after his bond was set at $200,000 on a charge of assaulting a federal officer. Assistant U.S. Attorney Mike Osman said Baker had written President Nixon in May saying that if his son in Vietnam is killed, he would kill every federal officer he could find from members of the draft board all the way up to the President.

2 Held as Suspects in Threats on Nixon

MIAMI (AP) — Two men have been arrested in connection with threats on the life of President Nixon. Both threats were linked to the Vietnam war.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Mike Osman said George W. Baker, 51, of Miami, was arrested on a charge of assaulting a federal officer. Osman said John Anthony Baker, 24, of Breezewood, Pa., was charged with threatening the life of the President. Osman said the two were not related.

★ ★ ★

Both men, arrested here Thursday shortly before the President arrived for a weekend at his Key Biscayne retreat, were ordered held on $200,000 bond and both remained in jail.

★ ★ ★

Osman said the Miami man wrote to Nixon in May and said if his son in Vietnam was killed he would kill every federal official he could find, from the President down to members of the local draft board.

WENT TO HOUSE

"Because the President was coming to Florida the Secret Service went to his house Thursday," Osman said, "and he invited them inside."

★ ★ ★

Osman said Baker took a high-powered rifle with a telescopic sight from behind his chair, "loaded it and pointed it at them," saying he was "ready to discuss whatever they had to discuss with him."

A Secret Service official in Washington, D.C., Jack Warner, said John Baker had been wanted since Oct. 20 when a warrant charging he had threatened the President was issued in Pittsburgh. John Baker waived extradition to Pennsylvania Thursday.

The charge alleges that John Baker told a law enforcement officer in Pittsburgh Oct. 2: "Remember my name because I will assassinate the President if the troops aren't out of Vietnam by 1970."

Woman Is Held in City Slaying

Mrs. Lozell Reed, 18, was arrested by city police this morning in connection with the murder of her 28-year-old husband.

Police found Lozell Reed lying face up on the dining room floor of the Reed home, 489 Going, at 3:06 a.m. after his wife had rushed to a neighbor's home to report that her husband had been shot.

Reed was dead at the scene, according to police, with a single bullet hole in the middle of his chest. A derringer and jackknife were found nearby, police reported.

According to police, Mr. and Mrs. Reed had been arguing shortly before the shooting.

Reed was pronounced dead on arrival at Pontiac General Hospital.

Mrs. Nick Shorter, 42, of 485 Going reported the shooting to police. Her husband was the first to discover Reed had been killed.

Mrs. Reed is being held in Oakland County Jail. Police were to seek a murder warrant against Mrs. Reed this morning.

Try Made to Link Collins, 2nd Death

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — Four Eastern Michigan fraternity brothers appeared with John Norman Collins in a lineup this week in an apparent police attempt to see if he was linked with the murder of University of Michigan graduate student Alice Kalom, one of the fraternity men said yesterday.

Collins, a 22-year-old EMU senior, is charged with killing Karen Sue Beineman, 18, an EMU coed killed July 23. She was the latest of seven young girls killed in the area in a two-year period.

Miss Kalom, the sixth of the seven victims, was found slain June 8 in a field north of here.

Jack Wilson, 22, a member of the Arm of Honor Fraternity at EMU, said he and three other members spent an hour with Collins Wednesday in a lineup, which was apparently connected with the Kalom killing. He said they were grouped with Collins behind a one-way mirror in the lineup, which he thought failed to result in an identification linking Collins with that case.

Ellipse Bars Accord on Viet Protest Path

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department officials and war protest leaders were about 1,000 feet — the breadth of the Ellipse — from agreement today on the proposed route of the Nov. 15 mass march through Washington.

White House security officials adamantly insisted such a large group — estimates range from 100,000 to 500,000 — should not be permitted closer than 1,000 feet to the executive mansion.

The Justice Department, after consultation with the White House, agreed yesterday to let the mass march proceed next Saturday as long as the route is Constitution Avenue and the demonstrators don't make a side trip to the presidential residence.

But the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam rejected the government proposal, again saying any plan must allow marchers to pass the White House.

The New Mobilization said demonstrators feel they must make a symbolic gesture of protest to the policymaking executive branch of government.

The new stalemate surfaced after the committee dropped its demand for the march to proceed down Pennsylvania Avenue.

★ ★ ★

The protest leaders remained steadfast in demanding a swing by the White House and said Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst knew their position before he offered the latest proposal.

★ ★ ★

Under his plan, the line of march would be separated from the White House grounds by the Ellipse, a presidential park extending a block to the south from the back fence of the executive mansion.

Pro-Nixon Viet Resolution Seen Facing Senate Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — A resolution that would put the Senate on record in support of President Nixon's efforts to settle the Vietnam war appears headed for a long delay in the foreign relations committee.

It may never emerge, or may be altered considerably.

Republican leader Hugh Scott, Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and 38 cosponsors presented the resolution yesterday after Mansfield secured a provision calling on the President to seek a mutual cease-fire.

Otherwise, it is like a resolution introduced in the House Tuesday by 5 Republicans and 50 Democrats. It was approved Thursday by the House Foreign Affairs Committee and may be pushed through the full House sometime next week.

Scott said he hoped for speedy action in the Senate. Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said he expects his foreign relations committee to consider the resolution along with seven others dealing with Vietnam.

Fulbright told reporters a request from Mansfield for expedited action would carry considerable weight.

Mansfield said he expects it to be considered as part of the broad review of Vietnam to be launched in 10 days by Fulbright's committee.

The committee plans to decide whether to have public hearings on Vietnam after closed sessions Nov. 18 with Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Nov. 19 or 20 with Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

One aide noted a demand by Scott for early committee action on his resolution could trigger public hearings the Nixon administration hoped to avoid.

Pesticide Trace in Turkeys

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government inspectors are making an intensive check of turkeys bound for the Thanksgiving market after finding traces of a powerful pesticide in tens of thousands of the birds.

Agriculture Department officials say they are confident no contaminated turkeys reached the retail markets, and that all turkey products in federally inspected processing plants are being checked.

★ ★ ★

The investigation began after residue of heptachlor, a long-lived pesticide ranking in toxicity with DDT, was discovered in a Minnesota processing plant Oct. 9. The department spokesman said the plant was using birds supplied by Arkansas Valley Industries, Ltd. (AVI), headquartered at Little Rock.

Spokesmen in Little Rock declined comment last night, but said they would issue a statement later.

Department officials said that of 150,000 birds checked on ranches supplying the Arkansas company, 90,000 were found to have residue traces and the rest were uncontaminated.

Another 150,000 live turkeys on farms supplying AVI are to be checked before they are released for slaughter.

★ ★ ★

Also being detained for checking in federally inspected processing plants are four million pounds of turkey meat.

Officials indicated the investigation extended to states other than Arkansas and Minnesota, but would not name them or the processors involved.

Food and Drug Administration regulations permit no traces of pesticide residue in meat and poultry products. Turkeys or turkey-products found to be contaminated are condemned.

Heptachlor is a pesticide that is frequently applied to the soil to kill grub worms and other insects.

School-Aid Bill Goes to State Senate Floor

LANSING (UPI) — The Senate Appropriations Committee has reported out a heavily amended version of Gov. William G. Milliken's $1-billion school aid bill, which contains provisions for state aid to nonpublic schools.

The bill was sent to the Senate floor yesterday on a bipartisan 5-2 vote with Democrat Garland Lane of Flint and Republican Harold Hungerford of Lansing voting against it.

Amendments tacked on by the committee include a formula for "bonus" state aid to poorer school districts that have low equalized property valuations and high millage levies.

They also include a provision which would require a State Supreme Court ruling on the constitutionality of state aid to private schools before the aid could begin if it is approved by the legislature.

Committee Chairman Charles O. Zollar, R-Benton Harbor, said he was pleased with results of his committee's deliberations and felt the bill had "a good chance" of Senate approval.

Zollar said the amendments make "a much better bill" because they remove many inequities in state aid to schools.

CIGARETTE PROPOSAL DELAYED

He also said the governor's proposed five-cent cigarette tax hike would not be necessary to help finance the state aid bill. The cigarette tax still is tied up in the Senate Taxation Committee.

Under one amendment, school districts with low property valuations would be eligible for "bonus" aid based on the number of property tax mills levied above 12 mills.

The bonus plan would cost the state an estimated $86 million, he said.

Another amendment would exempt from the parochiaid plan those parochial schools which do not wish to receive state funds.

TENURE AMENDMENT

The committee excluded lay teachers in parochial schools from the State Tenure Act.

* * *

In other action on the bill, the committee amended the plan to include a flat $150 for each public school child requiring special education.

* * *

If the bill is passed, the state will evaluate a test given to all fourth-grade students in public schools last year to determine which districts have the greatest need for special education assistance.

Apollo's Conrad Expert on Moon Landing Area

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Charles Conrad Jr. is a Navy pilot and not a geologist. But scientists at the Manned Spacecraft Center say he knows more about the moon's Ocean of Storms than some men who have spent their lives studying rocks.

Conrad will land, Apollo 12 in a plain, level to gently rolling, called the Ocean of Storms. It's very similar to the Sea of Tranquillity where Apollo 11 landed, but it's thought to have more impact craters.

"I think Conrad has been taught more, so far as this type of terrain is concerned geologically," than the average professional geologist would know about such an area, said Dr. Robin Brett, a NASA scientist here.

One thing the Apollo 12 commander is to look for in particular is a formation called a ray. This is rock splashed from a crater by the impact of a meteor. Scientists believe this material may be from the bedrock of the moon and may give important clues to the moon's origin.

CONFIDENCE IN TRAINING

Geologists have enough confidence in Conrad's training to believe he needs no specific instructions on what types of rock to look for.

His instructions are simply: "Anything that you see that's interesting, pick it up."

The first 14 hours of the countdown for next Friday's launch went without a hitch and reached one of its planned holds at 2 a.m. today. The count is to resume at 9 a.m. tomorrow. The moon landing is scheduled Nov. 19.

The two 150-minute moon walks of Conrad and his crewmate, Alan Bean, will also be monitored on color television by scientists in a room adjacent to the Mission Control Center.

INSTITUTIONS

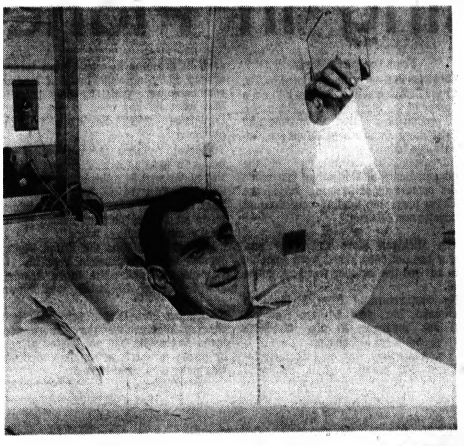

Should the scientists notice rocks of particular interest to them, they will tell Conrad or Bean to pick them up.

Brett said that most scientists now believe that "you don't need at this stage absolutely well classed geologists to be doing this job on the moon."

* * *

Conrad and Bean will be wearing saddle bags at all times they are outside the spacecraft. This will enable them to pick up and save rocks as they come to them.

Neil A. Armstrong, commander of Apollo 11, suggested the saddlebags. He said that during his brief moon walk he saw several rocks he wanted to pick up but he had no way to carry them at the time. And, later, he said, he couldn't remember where they were.

ARM REATTACHED—Donald E. Musser, 35, of Belleville recuperates in Wayne County General Hospital after a 15-man surgical team successfully reattached his severed arm after an accident Oct. 29. Doctors credit a chain of ideal circumstances—including the nearness of the accident to the hospital and the quick thinking of three Westland policemen—for allowing them to reattach the arm.

Birmingham

Junior Great Books Program Needs Adults

BIRMINGHAM — Adults who read intelligently, have a sense of humor and like young people and young ideas are needed in South Oakland County as moderators for new junior great books discussion groups which will meet in public, parochial and private schools beginning next September.

The South Oakland Junior Great Books Council has finalized plans for tuition-free classes to train volunteer adults to be leaders in the junior great books program.

* * *

The classes for volunteers will start in January. They will be held once a week for eight weekly two-hour sessions, with a choice of morning, afternoon or evening hours. Some classes will have sitter and nursery service available for preschoolers.

Deadline for enrollment is next Saturday.

5 CLASS SITES

Area classes will be in Bloomfield Hills, West Bloomfield, Birmingham, Troy, Farmington and Southfield.

The training classes cover discussion techniques, through which adults ask questions to encourage the children to analyze, criticize and evaluate an author's ideas.

* * *

Junior great books is an extracurricular program in which children read at home and meet together twice a month for 1½ hours during or after school to discuss what they have read.

With the guidance of two adult coleaders or moderators, the children discuss ideas, philosophies and literary merits ranging from Aesop to Aristotle.

GRADES 3-12

Each group of 15 students is in the same grade. The program includes grades 3-12.

* * *

"Though the junior great books program is generally not a part of the regular school curriculum, it is developed by the parents in cooperation with individual school principals and PTAs and with the support of the school system," said Mrs. James Worley, program coordinator.

* * *

The number of children able to participate in the junior great books program next fall will depend on the number of adult coleaders trained in January.

Like September Robbery

Gunman Holds Up Credit Union

A lone gunman last night held up the Pontiac Telephone Employees' Credit Union, 263 Oakland, leaving with $1,195 in cash, according to police.

The same credit union was robbed at about the same time — 7:50 p.m. — also on a Friday just two months ago, detectives noted.

* * *

Clerk Linda Powell of 5824 Warbler, Independence Township, was confronted by the bandit. Miss Powell said he was Negro and dressed in a black trench coat, a black short-brimmed hat and yellow wire-rimmed glasses and wore a black scarf as a mask.

Brandishing a large-caliber revolver, the gunman told Miss Powell, "Give it to me. Give it all to me," Miss Powell told police.

* * *

The gunman held a half-dozen employes at bay while stuffing bills into his pockets and a small cardboard box, according to police. No customers were in the credit union at the time.

Witnesses said the bandit ran out the front door and turned south on Oakland.

29 Lawyers Charged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twenty-nine Negro, Puerto Rican and Mexican-American attorneys have been charged with illegal entry following their invasion of the Office of Economic Opportunity protesting what they called the "all-white structure" of its legal services program.

* * *

The invasion yesterday took place in the office of Terry Lenzer, legal services director who, the protesters also complained, "doesn't have one nonwhite in his office."

Raped Gang Figure's Daughter

Underworld, Police Hunt Killer

PARIS (AP) — Police and the shadowy forces of the French underworld competed in a grim manhunt today for a double murderer who raped the daughter of a former leading gangland figure.

The police had little doubt of the result if the underworld found the man first.

Early Wednesday, a man walked into a small but plush Montmarte bar run by a woman friend of Joe Attia, once one of the best-known names in the French underworld. Without a word, he shot and killed the barmaid and her boyfriend.

Then he forced Attia's 26-year-old daughter Nicole to go to his nearby apartment and submit to him, releasing her about two hours later before taking flight.

Police say the man is a 26-year-old gangster who escaped from jail a year ago and has since taken part in a string of bank robberies with a gang recently broken up by police.

Underworld sources described the man as a paranoid who had to be restrained by his bank robber companions from unnecessary violence in their raids. But they knew of no grudge he bore against Attia.

* * *

Attia, after a 90-minute meeting with top Paris detectives, said: "I cannot understand anything of this tragedy. A madman, a beast, did this."

He returned to his headquarters above the bar, where furtive figures arrived regularly night and day to report on the search.

County Road Unit, Workers in Accord

Tentative agreement on a three-year labor contract has been reached between the Oakland County Road Commission and 320 employes, members of Metropolitan Council No. 23, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

Contents of the settlement are being withheld subject to ratification by both sides. Ratification is not expected for another two weeks, according to Harvey Clark, council spokesman, and Willard McRae, the commission's personnel director.

* * *

In a joint statement yesterday, Clark and McRae said the tentative agreement was reached "under the auspices of the State Labor Mediation Board, Mr. Edwin Phillips, mediator."

Man to Be Tried in Assault Case

Elton Rainey will face trial Nov. 20 on two charges of assault with intent to commit murder and a charge of larceny of an auto.

The arrest Aug. 20 of Rainey, 22, of 280 W. Wilson sparked an incident in which rocks and bottles were hurled at police.

* * *

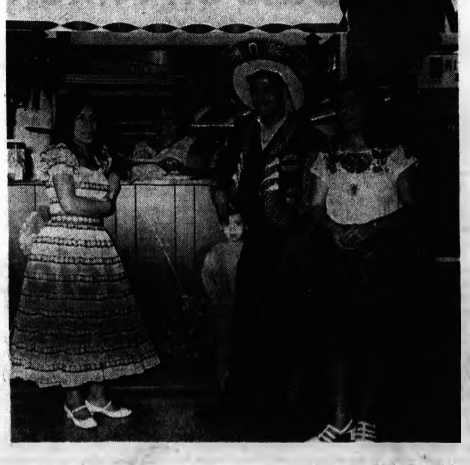

Police charged that Rainey was with George McCormick, 26, of Pontiac and another man when police tried to arrest McCormick on an armed robbery warrant. In the ensuing scuffle, Police Lt. John Depauw was wounded by gunshot while Rainey and McCormick escaped in a police car, police said.

Rainey's case was bound over for trial in Oakland County Circuit Court yesterday by Pontiac District Judge Cecil McCallum.

Rainey is being held in Oakland County Jail in lieu of a $50,000 bond.

Authorities are weighing extradition proceedings against McCormick, who is reported to have been arrested in Louisiana on an unrelated charge.

Riot Decrease Is Mystifying

Cool Summer in '69 Eyed by Expert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An urban affairs specialist who set out to learn why there were fewer riots this year than last has concluded that civil disorders are "as hard to explain when they don't happen as when they do."

Lisa Hirsh, associate editor of Chronicle, a publication of Urban America Inc., wrote in the latest issue that the answers she got for the relatively cool summer of 1969 pointed up "the fine line between riotology and mythology."

However, she said federal officials had little doubt that there was a real reduction.

The Department of Justice, which counted 24 riots and 216 disturbances in 1968, officially recorded only six riots and 127 serious disturbances in the first eight months of this year.

SMALLER COMMUNITIES

She said department experts felt the big difference was the movement of violence away from big cities and into smaller communities.

Miss Hirsh noted that the Lemberg Center for the Study of Violence at Brandeis University kept a differing count of violent incidents, counting reports of disturbances involving schools as well as the general community.

In 1968, Lemberg counted 687 disorders and reached 340 in the first five months of 1969.

Miss Hirsh also got somewhat conflicting analyses of the violence that did take place in 1969.

NOTICEABLE INCREASE

The Justice Department said there had been a noticeable increase in sniper and hit-and-run incidents by small groups, usually young persons.

Lemberg's spokesman said there were more confrontations between militants and police, but little sign that there was an increase in planned attacks.

The reasons for the difference between the two years? Miss Hirsh listed a series of "pet" theories — general progress by the poor, a rebuilding spirit in the ghettoes, a more restrained attitude by both police and news media, realization that the ghettoes suffer most from riots and, finally, "luck."

One of the strongest theories, she said, was that the residents of the ghettoes have been preoccupied by such causes as organizing community control of schools and supporting black and other minority candidates for public office.

Action Slated on Waterford Measures

A new ordinance and amendments to two other ordinances will be up for final adoption by the Waterford Township Board Monday.

The new ordinance authorizes the police chief to establish an auction for unclaimed stolen property after six months.

The amendments provide that intoxicated persons in addition to drunk persons could be prosecuted under the disorderly persons ordinance and allow less than minimum-size lots when a property owner acquires part of an adjacent lot by a lot split.

In other business, the board is expected to hear a argument from Mrs. Grimm of the Williams Lake Association against a storm drain being run into the lake.

The meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. at Waterford Township High School, 1415 Crescent Lake.

Garrison Raps Outsiders

New Orleans Primary Today

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — District Attorney Jim Garrison, claiming outside critics of his investigation of President John F. Kennedy's death were opposing his relection, put his posing his reelection, put his day in the New Orleans Democratic primary.

"There's an awful lot of money coming in from somewhere," said Garrison, naming the major television networks, big-city newspapers and the federal government among those seeking his defeat.

New Orleans voters also were choosing between 12 candidates for mayor in a race that has centered around growing crime, dwindling city finances and the need for leadership to help the city's development.

★ ★ ★

The three Garrison opponents, Harry F. Connick, Charles R. Ward and Ross T. Scaccia, have depicted Garrison as a man who spends most of his time at the New Orleans Athletic Club, as obsessed with the prosecution of businessman Clay L. Shaw on assassination conspiracy charges and as an administrative failure.

GARRISON CRITICIZED

Both New Orleans newspapers have endorsed Connick and have been extremely critical of Garrison. They say the district attorney ignored prosecution of crime to pursue the Clay Shaw case, which he lost by jury verdict March 1.

★ ★ ★

Despite the formidable opposition, local politicians were predicting a victory for Garrison.

★ ★ ★

They say Connick and the others appeal to the better educated but have failed to make inroads among the Negroes and poorer whites who, they say, are solidly behind Garrison.

Loving Owner Has to Part With Unemployed Hippo

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — What does an unemployed construction worker do with an unemployed hippopotamus when the former has a family to feed and the latter has a big appetite?

Ronnie Hochleutner, 28, sold the animal Friday even though he had developed a great affection for Sam the Hippopotamus —all 1,780 pounds of him.

★ ★ ★

The new owner, John Barber, a Bakersfield auto dealer, plans to give Sam to the Kern County Zoo Society.

Sam will be the first African exhibit at a new zoo under construction five miles east of Bakersfield.

NIGHTMARE

Hochleutner bought Sam for $480 last week at the auction block when Jungleland, an animal compound northwest of Los Angeles, was disbanded.

But Ronnie's dreams of exhibiting Sam for profit turned into a nightmare of $1,500 in food and lodging bills.

★ ★ ★

The Orange County Animal Shelter finally accepted Sam as a boarder, but director Robert Workman wasn't happy with the idea. Sam's pen, he said, "wouldn't hold him a moment if he decided to go."

"We kept that cat placated and mollified," Workman said, "by keeping him well fed and watered down."

OUT BY TRUCK

But Friday, Sam checked out by truck—tranquilized for the 130-mile trip north to Bakersfield.

Now Ronnie of Norwalk, a Los Angeles suburb, can concentrate on his wife, 14-month-old daughter Vikki and the second child they are awaiting.

Barber won't say how much he paid for Sam, except that it's "a little more than the other fellow did."

Hospital Bans Smoking in Bed

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (UPI) — Smoking in bed is banned at the Philadelphia Veterans Administration Hospital. But some patients are sliding under the bed covers to sneak a puff.

★ ★ ★

Mindful of the saying that "Where there's smoke, there's fire," officials are issuing fire-retardant pajamas. The ban on smoking remains, despite the fact that the 15,000 pairs of new fiber pajamas have replaced the standard cotton ones.

City Man Dies, 8 in Family Hurt on Road

Eight people from a Lapeer County family were injured and a Pontiac man was killed in two separate auto accidents last night and today.

The Lapeer County family is reported in fair condition in Flint hospitals today, the result of an accident at 10 p.m. as they returned to their Mayfield Township home from a Flint shopping expedition.

★ ★ ★

James Bollon of 375 Plum Creek, his wife and their six children, ranging in age from 8 to 14, were injured in the accident in Burton Township, Genesee County.

The accident claimed the life of Gerald Spohn, 34, of Flint. Spohn was alone in his car when it collided with the Bollon car, State Police officers from the Flint post reported.

★ ★ ★

The city man died early this morning in a Romulus Township head-on collision.

Theodore Clock of 34 Evelyn was dead on arrival at 2:30 a.m. at Wayne County General Hospital. According to Wayne County Sheriff's deputies, Clock's car had traveled left of the center line on Middle Belt Road near Wick, into the path of an oncoming vehicle.

Driver Hurt Flying High

James R. Midgett is in fair condition this morning at St. Joseph Hospital following an automobile accident early today that had him treed for nearly two hours.

Police and fire department units spent two hours extricating Midgett, 25, of 274 Cedardale from his car — in the branches of a large tree at West Wilson and the railroad tracks, according to police.

Witnesses told police that Midgett's car was traveling down West Wilson and that Midgett apparently lost control of the vehicle. The car then skidded sideways, became airborne destroyed a traffic sign and landed in the tree.

Midgett is being treated for multiple fractures. He has not been charged.

North Viets Hit Four U.S. Bases North of Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops along the Cambodian border attacked four U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division bases north of Saigon today but inflicted only light casualties.

The enemy pounded the bases with more than 200 rounds of rockets, mortars and grenades and followed one of the attacks with an infantry assault.

One American was reported killed and 24 wounded. South Vietnamese civilian irregulars helping defend one of the bases, an artillery camp, suffered one man killed and seven wounded. Four North Vietnamese soldiers were reported killed.

American B52 bombers retaliated by dumping more than 1,000 tons of bombs along a 130-mile stretch of the border. U.S. artillery and helicopter gunships blasted North Vietnamese camps in the jungle near the bases, which range from 55 miles northwest to 83 miles north of Saigon.

U.S. spokesmen reported 30 enemy rocket and mortar attacks during the night but said only about half of them caused casualties or damage.

Three South Vietnamese civilians were reported killed when an enemy mortar shell hit a government outpost 12 miles north of Saigon.

Government outposts ringing Saigon were reinforced Friday after the first significant ground attacks on the capital's defenses since May 1968.

North Vietnamese and Vietcong troops broke a nine-week lull in the war early this week with rocket, mortar and ground attacks on more than 50 allied bases and South Vietnamese towns. Since then they have maintained their pressure, concentrating most attacks on bases along the Cambodian border and in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon.

Field commanders say the increased action marks the first "high point" of the enemy's winter campaign. They say captured documents and prisoner interrogations indicate that the campaign will last two months.

Lt. Gen. Julian J. Ewell, commander of the U.S. 2nd Field Force north of Saigon, was asked whether he thought the campaign would be sustained or would have cyclic high points such as those that have marked previous enemy campaigns this year.

"My recollection is they say they are going to try to sustain it," he replied.

Ewell's South Vietnamese counterpart, Lt. Gen. Do Cao Tri, commented: "As usual, you have for each campaign some high points. Then there is a decrease of activity. Then they come up again with another high point. It will be in that light for this campaign."

"The current round of stepped-up activity "may run again for the next few days. then it will drop down again till the next high point," Tri said. "I don't think they can sustain maximum efforts for 60 days."

South Vietnamese officials in Phu Thu, six miles southeast of Hue, said today they had located 270 more bodies of Vietnamese slain during the enemy's 1968 Hue massacre and believe that nearly 400 are buried at two other sites. But they said excavation must await a slackening in monsoon rains.

Excavation of some bodies had been scheduled to begin today, but torrential rains forced cancellation of the digging.

More than 1,000 victims of the slaughter in Hue during the Tet offensive in February 1968 have been recovered from mass graves since last May. Estimates of the number slain range up to 3,000.

In Saigon — Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of the 495,000 American troops in Vietnam, said today that South Vietnam's armed forces have "prepared themselves for the rapidly approaching and eventual takeover of the defense of their country."

He set no timetable for a U.S. pullout, however.

Tanker's Boat, Bodies Found

BOSTON (AP) — The bodies of three men and an empty lifeboat bearing the name "Keo" were found Friday by searchers for the stern half of the tanker Keo, which broke in two in a raging Atlantic storm.

The three bodies and the empty motorized lifeboat were located about 40 miles east of the position given when the ship called for help Wednesday.

The SOS message said the crew of 36 was on the stern half of the ship. No further word was received. Searchers found the bow half Thursday, awash and leaking oil, but with no one aboard.

The ship was about 150 miles southeast of Nantucket on a voyage from Ghent, Belgium, to New York.

The tanker, of Liberian registry, was listed as of 15,757 tons, and carried a crew of 32 Greek nations, and four South Americans.

Upsets Mark Elections

If conclusions can be drawn from Tuesday's elections, admittedly from a modicum of evidence, Americans are tending increasingly to vote for the man rather than a party label.

In Detroit's nonpartisan election, two good men ran for the mayoralty and the winner, ROMAN GRIBBS, defeated his black opponent, RICHARD AUSTIN, by the slimmest margin. The closeness of the vote indicated that voters were evenly divided in their appraisal of the two, with racial bias notably absent.

★ ★ ★

Both candidates are to be commended on the high-level campaigns they conducted, and the respective attitudes with which they accepted the voters' verdict.

★ ★ ★

Although Cleveland Mayor CARL STOKES, the first Negro elected to head a major U.S. city, ran as a Democrat for reelection, his victory appeared to discount party loyalty to his Republican opponent.

New York's Mayor JOHN LINDSAY staged a startling political reversal when, after being defeated as a GOP candidate for reelection at the primary election, he united Liberals and Independents with disaffected elements of the two major parties to inflict a convincing defeat on his Democratic and Republican opponents. How his success as a "hybrid" will influence the future political aspirations of a onetime Republican stalwart should offer an intriguing study in the subtleties of practical politics.

Two gubernatorial upsets will put Republicans in the statehouses of Virginia and New Jersey—in the former for the first time in a century; in the latter after a 16-year Democratic reign. Again, voters seemed more concerned with personalities than with party affiliation, although President Nixon may claim a share of credit since he campaigned on behalf of both winners.

Politically, one of the most significant results of the off-year elections is that the Republicans will move toward the important biennial elections of 1970 holding 32 governorships as against 18 held by the Democrats. With state party machinery so preponderately GOP, its prospects for further electoral gains are promising.

Cigarette Tax Hike Eyed

The taxing process has from time immemorial been faced with an immutable blend of human nature and economics—the law of diminishing returns.

Thus, when government increases the rate of an existing commodity tax on the optimistic theory that it will ipso facto produce added revenue proportionately, it frequently wakes up to the grim realization that it has outsmarted itself.

★ ★ ★

Such may be applicable to Gov. Milliken's proposal to raise the State tax on cigarettes from five cents to 12 cents per pack to help pay for his education reform program.

★ ★ ★

If the experience of New York City, whose combined city and state cigarette tax is the same as that proposed for Michigan, Lansing is in for an eye-opening experience of "buttlegging," as cigarette smuggling is termed in Manhattan. That metropolis reportedly is losing $64 million a year in uncollected taxes on cigarettes purchased from adjacent lower-tax areas.

★ ★ ★

Competitively, Michigan faces lower cigarette tax bites in two neighboring states: Ohio, with 10 cents per pack; and Indiana, six cents. It will also cost the State a substantial amount for additional tax collection machinery related to broadened budgetary proposals, $50,000 to $100,000 being envisioned for this purpose. Presumably, a sizable portion of this appropriation would go to police cigarette smuggling into the State.

★ ★ ★

All in all, it could be that with respect to Michigan's present and proposed cigarette tax income, all that glitters is not gold.

Much of Nixon Talk Aimed at Hanoi

CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Make no mistake about it. Much of President Nixon's Nov. 3 speech on Vietnam was directed at Hanoi — not the American public.

His television broadcast was carefully designed to strengthen the position of those men in the North Vietnamese politburo who favor a treaty rather than a continuation of full-scale war.

Nixon is certain that Hanoi won't negotiate until its leaders are convinced America will stay the course. But his advisers have also convinced him that the Paris deadlock will end quickly once Hanoi is certain he won't run.

★ ★ ★

On Nov. 3, the President therefore attempted to make it clear to Ho Chi Minh's successors that this is now Nixon's war, that he and he alone will make the decisions for the next three years and that he would rather be a one-term president than back out.

This necessity of convincing Hanoi was why Nixon insisted on repeating that he would not be swayed by the anti-Vietnam demonstrators, even though some of his advisers said this statement would only serve to fan dissent in this country.

OPEN INVITATION

This, too, is why Nixon openly invited a reaction from those who back him.

In one sense Nixon was openly inviting a confrontation at home. He gambled that the reaction of his backers would be dramatic — and that the confrontation would prove to Hanoi the nation is behind his program.

Nixon also signaled again that, so far as he was concerned, it would be fine if Hanoi wanted to take another way out of the war (if the politburo could not bring itself to meaningful negotiations at Paris).

The North Vietnamese could, Nixon indicated, simply fade away and the United States would co-operate by increasing the speed of its own withdrawals. Hanoi would not be required to agree to anything.

RECOGNITION

In this, Nixon was attempting to recognize that Hanoi, for domestic and international reasons, might not be able to compromise either on paper or verbally.

Nixon attempted to drive his purpose home by warning Hanoi that he would "not hesitate to take strong and effective measures" if he decided that "increased enemy action" jeopardized the remaining U.S. forces in Vietnam.

This, however, was the weakest part of the President's message to Hanoi. For the North Vietnamese leaders know that on several occasions Nixon has backed down.

Though the United States had indicated it would resume bombing the north if the North Vietnamese shelled South Vietnam's cities, Hanoi shelled and Nixon did not bomb.

★ ★ ★

Though Nixon had promised the North Koreans would not get away with another Pueblo incident, they shot down the American EC-121 reconnaissance plane — and Nixon did not react.

Therefore, it is unlikely, Nixon's Nov. 3 warning carried much weight in North Vietnam.

Elections Reflect Cost Spiral

WASHINGTON — The trend of the off-year elections was up as well as Republican.

It cost John Lindsay approximately $3 million to be reelected mayor of New York and William Cahill spent $1.3 million to become governor of New Jersey.

BARTLETT

The new Republican governor of Virginia, Linwood Holton, is said to have made it for less than $1 million.

For all these candidates this autumn was a matter of wringing familiar sources harder.

★ ★ ★

Much political money comes from the new rich who express gratitude to the system and derive a sense of inmanship from contributing. Much comes from officers of companies expecting to do business with whoever is elected.

The financial squeeze upon candidates has begun to hurt enough so they are willing to complain aloud.

HE VOICES PLEA

Lindsay, on election eve, voiced a plea for shorter campaigns and more free television.

Outsiders are trying to embolden the members of Congress to demand more from the television stations.

The Commission on Violence proposes free time in presidential campaigns as a precaution against assassins.

The panel created by the Twentieth Century Fund has urged that the government and the broadcasters split the cost of giving saturation air time to presidential candidates.

REDUCED RATES

The Committee for an Effective Congress prodded 38 senators to propose that the broadcasters supply radically reduced rates to candidates for Congress.

The initiative has quickly stimulated the networks to declare voluntary discounts and the NBC outlet in New York opened its channel for an unprecedented procession of candidates on election eve.

The networks and broadcasters naturally prefer to keep their obligations to candidates on a voluntary basis. But Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., has shrewdly questioned whether politicians should accept the necessity to negotiate favors from broadcast companies who are subject to Federal regulations.

An amendment suggested by political scientist Douglas Bailey would make proposed reforms more meaningful.

LIMITS ON TIME

He wants to enact specific limits on the amount of time that a TV station can sell a candidate for President or Congress. This would curb the costs as well as the profligate use of spot commercials.

Some argue that spot commercials should be totally banned.

One broadcaster, Stimson Bullitt of Seattle, maintains that "politics and political issues are too important to be left to the admen."

The politicians are right in pressing for cheaper access to television but in return they should be ready to accept some limits on their tendency to overuse the medium.

Bob Considine

Author Backs U.S. Stand in Viet, Raps Methods

NEW YORK — Sir Robert Thompson, chief architect of the British victory over the Malayan Communist guerrillas in the late 1950s, states that the American presence in Vietnam is warranted.

But he also feels we went about it the wrong way, didn't understand the people, the nature of jungle and paddy fighting, that the American people expected too much too soon, and that we halted the bombing and tried to negotiate at the wrong time.

CONSIDINE

★ ★ ★

Former Brigadier Thompson, who is now a consultant to the RAND think-tank in California, notes in his depressingly titled book, "No Exit From Vietnam," (McKay) that it took the better part of a decade for the British to straighten out the somewhat Vietnamlike situation in Malaya. (The French failed dismally in Indo-China and Algeria in the same general time span.)

He is quite critical of many aspects of the war in Vietnam and he brings to his criticism impressive credentials. He headed the British advisory commission to South Vietnam from 1961 to 1965 and saw our commitment grow volcanic.

SYMPATHY FOR NIXON

On the other hand, he sympathizes with President Nixon's most recent efforts to get done with the bloody, costly business. Thompson knows the loneliness of trying to do one's best while beset on all sides by persons who believe they have a better way out.

Sir Robert's conclusion, written some months ago:

"In 1969, the United States will have to make her choice either to end the war or to continue fighting while negotiating by adopting a long-haul low-cost strategy. The first requires only an acceptance of defeat whatever the consequences may be. The second will require courage, determination, persistence and, above all, patience.

★ ★ ★

"It could take three to five years more before Hanoi is compelled to give up her purpose and to negotiate a real settlement (or just fade away). Even then the United States could not relax.

"A continuing but much reduced military commitment would still be required, as in Korea, and there would be a great reconstruction task ahead for many years. This would not be a simple or easy solution but a complete if not altogether a happy victory could still be won."

Which doesn't seem quite to jibe with the title "No Exit from Vietnam."

Maybe Sir Robert means that the war will just seem endless as we meander into the early 1970s.

It already does . . .

'Oppose Early Display of Christmas Items'

Parents and citizens are against the display of Christmas merchandise and the barrage of toy commercials from Oct. 1 throughout the December season. We demand this crass commercialism be stopped. I have spoken with several store managers who are also against this. They admit it is only through orders from front offices and not of their own choice.

Calls Censorship One of Society's Worst Evils

Pornography does not turn normal people into sex criminals. This has been proven many times. Censorship is one of the worst evils of our society. This Country was founded on the principle of individual rights. It is unconstitutional for someone not to allow me to see certain movies or buy certain books.

No culture can grow and be enriched if it doesn't have the contributions of all sorts of people with great varieties of points of view. The Scarlet Letter by Nathaniel Hawthorne has often been banned, yet this is one of our national classics.

'Harming Children Is Hard to Understand'

Being the parent of two small children, I can't understand what is wrong with a segment of our society which tries to kill or maim small children out collecting Halloween treats. Because the children cover a large area, it is hard to pinpoint these would-be murderers. Next year let a parent or a responsible adult travel with the children checking each treat or keeping a record of what comes from where.

Opinions Given on Halloween Observance

It is about time we dispensed with one of our American traditions—the "trick or treat" of Halloween. When it no longer becomes a fun night and far from "hallowed," producing so much destruction and danger to children and adults, it's time to quit. One cannot imagine the cruelty of putting razor blades, needles, pins and ground glass in children's goodies.

★ ★ ★

The waste and danger involved lead me to believe it would be better to "hallow" the evening at home, giving the money spent to UNICEF or some other agency to distribute among the needy of the world. Most of the stuff the children get in begging will eventually end in the garbage, if not in sick "tummies."

AGAINST TRICKS

I disagree with a letter suggesting children under six be cut out of "trick or treat" night. I have a granddaughter three years old and she was as cute as any aged six to 16. At least the little ones are supervised.

Questions and Answers

(Q) What is the City doing in the parking lot on West Lawrence across from Consumers? It's all dug up, but I can't figure out if they're paving it, or what.

NOSY MOTORIST

(A) The City is extending Wayne Street from West Lawrence to Pike Street.

(Q) Like myself, many who attended the Firebird game in Clarkston wondered what the balloon-like luminescent object was that floated over one end of the field, rising until it was out of sight. Could someone explain?

FLORENCE DIEHM
113 PINEGROVE

(A) We hope so, because none of the people we talked with knew what it was. One, who had watched it with binoculars, said it looked like a balloon with a match or candle inside. However, we found no one who knew for sure. Perhaps a reader who was sitting near the person who released the object will read your inquiry and write or call to tell us exactly what it was.

(Editor's Note: We recently referred electrical customers of Detroit Edison and Consumers Power to their respective repair departments for repair of defective appliances. We have since learned that Detroit Edison does not accept personal contact appliances, such as hair dryers, razors, heating pads, etc.)

Possible OEO Fund Switch Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal antipoverty agency is considering diverting $400,000 in food-for-the-poor money through a private corporation so it can evade legal bars against helping finance a White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health.

The National Council on Hunger and Malnutrition in the United States charged Friday that such a plan would be in clear violation of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

The private, nonprofit corporation which would act as conduit for the funds is called Food, Nutrition and Health Inc., which was incorporated Oct. 28. Its chairman is Washington lawyer Henry R. McPhee, holder of various White House aide positions under President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

McPhee said the organization was formed for other purposes than just aiding the White House conference, but he acknowledged that the incorporation was hastened to accommodate the Dec. 2-4 conference here.

He said the organization had received no private donations and had no government contracts or grants as yet. He would not specify just who suggested the corporation handle funds for the conference.

★ ★ ★

At a news conference Oct. 17, OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld said he had committed OEO to participate in financing the conference but that it was still trying to find a legal way to accomplish that.

Legal problems to using OEO's food money for the food conference arose because the conference is not concerned solely with problems of the poor and because two government agencies cannot jointly sponsor a conference.

One official said channeling the money to the conference would be illegal because Congress "specifically commanded that the funds . . . be used 'to provide on a temporary emergency basis such basis foodstuffs and medical services as may be necessary to counteract conditions of starvation or malnutrition among the poor.' "

Section of M47 to Become M52

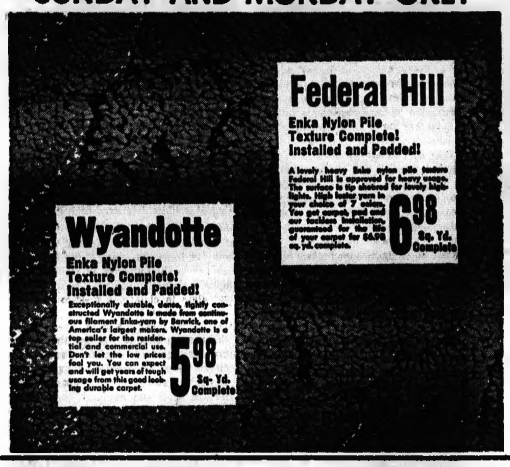

LANSING (AP) — A 54-mile section of M47 in Ingham, Shiawassee and Saginaw counties will be renamed M52, says the State Highway Department. The change will establish M52 as a continuously numbered, north-south area service highway between the Michigan-Ohio line and M46 west of Saginaw.

The renumbering is in conjunction with the opening of two sections of the highway in Ingham and Shiawassee counties. The department says M47 north of M46 will be unaffected by the change.

LANSING (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin will be among dignitaries to address the first midwest Regional Republican Conference in Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 13-15, says the Michigan State Central Committe. Eighteen Michigan GOP leaders are planning to attend the sessions.

Reservations Should Be Made Known

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: Some time ago we received invitations to our niece's high school graduation 500 miles away. My brother and his family went to the celebration but found that they were not included on the house guest list. The visitors were expected to pay their own expenses at an expensive motel, which was not geared to their income.

It seems to me that those who answer an R.S.V.P. in the affirmative should be treated as guests. Some of the relatives stayed at the family home while others seemed to be invited through the back door. Shouldn't they have made it clear that visitors would be on their own if they wanted to come to pay honor to the new graduate? — Mrs. Franklyn.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Franklyn: This is a touchy situation, and the answer lies in communication. It is up to the host to make it very clear in advance what arrangements will be made for the guests, and what expenses paid. Many families cannot afford to pay the lodging for out-of-towners, but they should give those visitors some choice of accommodations.

The host should arrange for as many visitors as possible to stay with family and friends, but those for whom he cannot find free lodging should definely know the situation in advance.

SEATING

Dear Mrs. Post: A brother and sister live together and the sister often brings girl friends from the office home to have dinner. The table is set for four all the time, the brother sits at the head of the table and the sister sits to his left. Is the extra guest put at the right of the brother or at the other end of the table? — Lora

Dear Lora: To be correct, the brother should sit at the head of the table, his sister opposite him, and the guest between them on the brother's right.

Mrs. Betty Harris, homemaker's aide in the Michigan State University Extension Service (left), discusses budgets with Mrs. William Myers, both of Pontiac. The two women who have worked together as nurse's aides are now both attending Oakland Community College taking pre-nursing courses. Each has four children.

Tips on Family Management

Homemaker Aides Provide Help

By JANET ODELL
Women's Editor, The Pontiac Press

The expanded family living and nutrition program of Michigan State University Extension Service is being taken right into Oakland County homes.

Many homemakers who need and really want help in their approach to family life are not likely to go to group meetings. Meetings have always been the means of disseminating information in the Extension program. But a new program, federally funded through landgrant colleges, is changing the picture here.

Homemaker aides are going into disadvantaged homes and working on a one-to-one basis. They may try small neighborhood meetings of two to four women for food or clothing demonstrations. But, the emphasis is on the individual approach.

These aides — there are 11 of them — work in Pontiac, southeastern Oakland County, Holly and Troy. Eight are black, three white.

PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE

They have not had prior experience in what they're doing, but they're all mothers who are good home managers. They range in age from 30 to 50. None is an Extension Service club member.

Their backgrounds vary: minister's wife; nurse's aide; teacher's aide; OEO worker; sewing teacher in adult education. All are now employes of Michigan State University.

Two are part-time workers; the rest put in a 40-hour week. Since they started in March, they have reached about 200 families. Each works with 10 to 25 families at a time, going into the homes once or twice a week at first, or as needed. Later on, these visits may taper off to once a month for a morale visit.

They may work directly with the woman in the home or indirectly with the children. They discuss and demonstrate such things as cooking balanced meals, using dry milk, good buying habits, clothing selection, storage and care and grooming and personal hygiene.

* * *

Their own training for which they were paid started with two weeks of intensive work, coupled with field trips. For the next three months, they met once a week for an all-day session; then once every two weeks.

Now, they get together once a month for a full day of ongoing training. They compare notes, ask questions and resolve problems with Mrs. Rosalie Hawley who is the Extension home economist in charge of the program. Mrs. Marion Mills is the supervisory aide.

I attended one of their monthly meetings not long ago. They are a trim looking group, all in navy blue shifts with pins or bright scarves for accent. Among them they have 50 children.

This is an asset when they go into a home. "You are accepted better when they know you have families," said one aide.

* * *

How do they find people to help? Some families are recommended by social agencies. Others may hear about the program and request a visit.

A few of the aides said they just knocked on doors and made themselves known in the neighborhood.

The help they give sometimes goes beyond housekeeping and child care. They help their clients get assistance from other agencies. They break down the language barrier, even when people won't say, "I don't know what you mean."

* * *

What they have learned during training and in working with others is sometimes reflected in changes in their own homes.

They have complaints, of course. But sharing them takes the sting out.

MAID SERVICE

"They expect a part-time maid. Sometimes I'm called in just because the house is filthy." It may take an hour to get the kitchen counter cleaned off well enough to get space for a demonstration on cookie making, the aide adds.

"I don't mind helping to clean if we're getting other things across," retorted another, "This is where the kids should come in and help."

* * *

Transportation is one of the biggest problems of this program because the clients are so widely scattered throughout the county. It eats up time for the aides and hampers their clients who find it difficult to get food stamps and to shop.

* * *

Part of the meeting time the day I attended was given to Alfonso Miree of Detroit to explain how he runs a cooperative buying group.

* * *

A number of ADC mothers and others on welfare have expressed the desire for such a group in Oakland County. By banding together and buying food in wholesale lots, all benefit. They pool their money and in return, they get more food and a larger variety.

The problems of such a cooperative group were discussed. Again, transportation difficulties were cited. But the plan is being studied.

Success Story for Mrs. Harris

Dropout makes good! It could be a headline in the paper. But it is a good phrase to describe Betty Harris, a homemaker's aide in the Michigan State University Extension program.

That isn't all Betty does. Two of her four children are still at home and she is a full-time student at Oakland Community College in the pre-nursing program. She works eight hours a week as a homemaker's aide.

* * *

Ever since she dropped out of school in 1952, she has been working and attending classes of one kind or another. She was a nurse's aide for 16 years; this is what sparked her interest in becoming a nurse.

Finally she passed the GED tests and got her high school diploma. Encouraged by Mrs. Philip Goetzmann who works with Head Start parents and Oakland Community College, Mrs. Harris enrolled at OCC on a tuition waiver basis.

If all goes well, she will be a registered nurse in the spring of 1972. She thinks she wants to go into industrial nursing.

This combination of being mother, full-time student and part-time worker is challenging. From her looks and attitude it would seem it agrees with her.

At all times she carries in her car a kit containing a screwdriver, a hammer and an assortment of nuts, bolts, washers, nails and screws. With these she can cope with most minor repairs in the homes she visits.

In her briefcase are pamphlets on budgeting, the use of dry milk, recipes and other material helps.

And in her head is a vast amount of information that will help her solve her clients' problems.

One thing Betty would like to see is more places where people eligible for food stamps can get them. Going out to the county office is too difficult for many. As a result, they just don't get the stamps.

Former User Tells Dangers of Reliance on Pot, Drugs

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a former drug user, or rather abuser. In hopes that some will view the dangers of "pot" a little more realistically, I shall recite my own experience:

I am a well-groomed, upper-middle class college student, not the typical hippie-type. Most of my friends are "clean cut" drug users. You cannot recognize a drug user by his physical appearance The girl who looks like a perfect lady may be as much of a "pothead" as the long-haired hippie.

* * *

Drug abuse is an evil that has swept our campuses. Even the small town campuses are overrun. I would say that at least half the students have smoked pot. It doesn't matter what kind of homes they come from. The kids from the "best" families are users as well as the kids from lower class homes. In fact, I think more kids who have led sheltered lives are the biggest users.

I entered college wearing rose-colored glasses. I saw very little of the seamy side of life, therefore when problems arose, I "copped out." From pot I proceeded to amphetamines. For a year I smoked pot to get "high" and I popped pills too. I wasn't a constant user, but rather a sporadic user. A problem arose and rather than face it I entered my "happy world" of pills.

* * *

But I was lucky. My brilliant, vibrant, beautiful friend was less fortunate. She died of an overdose of drugs. Ironically enough, her death saved my life.

* * *

I told myslef to grow up and face reality with all its problems. My case is not an isolated one. Colleges are swamped with students like me. Remember, the first social pot party can easily turn the unstable personality on to other drugs. I stress, emphatically to those entering college, STAY AWAY FROM POT . . . and DRUGS. It is so easy to get hooked, and so hard to kick the habit.

PLEASE heed my advice. Learn from my experience, and remember, I was lucky. I am here to write this letter. My friend is not.

PEACE

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Recently I attended a wedding where the guests paid a dollar or more to dance with the bride. (Some lady guests paid the same to dance with the groom.)

* * *

We all seemed to have fun and I saw nothing wrong with it, but later on I heard several remarks from some of the guests who said they thought it was "bad taste."

I've since heard that this type of wedding dance is common in northern Maine and Canada. Have you ever heard of it? Maybe some of your readers up there have. Id really like to know.

LIVE AND LET LIVE, BUT WONDERING

DEAR LIVE: Yes, I have heard of it, and the practice is not restricted to northern Maine and Canada. What is considered "bad taste" to some is accepted as "tradition" to others, but if you're asking what I think of the idea, I'd have to say, "Not much."

* * *

DEAR ABBY: If you agree that Sunday morning is not time for friends and relatives to drop in unexpectedly for a visit you will print my letter.

* * *

Saturday evening is the only evening my husband and I have out, and Sunday morning is the only morning we can sleep late. We have all we can do to get ourselves to mass at noon. Now, what can we do to keep people from ringing out doorbell at 9 or 10 o'clock Sunday morning? Don't use my name as I don't want any hard feelings.

BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: The first thing one must do in order to discourage unwelcome guests is to LET them know that they are intruding. If you are unwilling to do that, you'd better resign yourself to putting up with the inconvenience.

* * *

The Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony is sponsoring the movie premiere as a benefit for the orchestra's maintenance fund which helps to close the gap between earned income and expenses each year.

The film stars Peter O'Toole and Petula Clark and will be shown at the United Artists Theatre at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets at $10, $25 and $50 are available at Ford Auditorium box office, downtown Hudson's and at the theatre. The top price includes cocktails at 6 p.m. and a dinner-dance in the Statler-Hilton ballroom after the movie.

The cast for the Meadow Brook Theatre's second production of the season, "The Cocktail Party," which will open on Thursday, was announced by artistic director, John Fernald.

* * *

T. S. Eliot's most famous and most successful comedy, "The Cocktail Party," is set in modern-day London dealing with a segment of the world-weary jet set looking for self identity and salvation.

Leading roles will be played by Marshall Borden, Richard Curnock, Toby Tompkins, Jenny Laird, Raymond Clarke, Karin Fernald, Deborah Ardery, James Sutorius, Rhonda Rose, Elisabeth Orion and K. C. Wilson.

* * *

"The Cocktail Party" is directed by Malcolm Morrison with scenery by Richard Davis, costumes by Ross B. Young and lighting by Bennet Averyt.

Following a three-week run at Oakland University, the production will begin a seven-performance stand at the Detroit Institute of Arts on Dec. 3.

Tickets for this comedy are available at Hudson's, the Meadow Brook Theatre Box Office and the Detroit Institute of Arts Box Office.

Second Home Is Wedge for Inflation

By ANNE TAYLOR
AP News Feature

With population pressures growing and with inflation likely to be with us for a long while, one of the wisest investments is in real estate. And I hold to that opinion regardless of today's high mortgage rates.

A lot of Americans share the view and are expressing themselves in the real estate market by purchasing second homes, just as 20 years ago they began buying second cars. I don't think they'll regret it.

Because of demographic factors, it is quite likely that not only will these second-home buyers enjoy their leisure hours but in many instances they'll profit from a steady increase in the value of their property.

Consider the population factor. By 1975, the Census Bureau estimates, there will be 224 million Americans compared with 200 million now. By 1985 the total could reach about 266 million.

In other words, more people will be added to the U.S. population in the next 16 years as now exist in the states west of the Mississippi River. Just imagine, therefore, how competition will increase for space at the beaches, mountains and deserts, solely as a result of population increases.

That impact is compounded by other factors, primarily age and income.

About three-quarters of the population increase is forecast to be among those under 35 — active young people, the very kind that are likely to seek out leisure time pursuits.

They'll have the money to spend too. Family income is forecast to increase 50 per cent between 1965 and 1980. And you can bet that much of that money will be used to put great upward pressure on real estate prices.

* * *

Now add in the factor of inflation. Although someday we might learn to control this diluter of money and deluter of savers, but it won't be for some time. More than a few economists figure on considerable inflation for years ahead.

As we are well aware, fixed return investments are not very profitable during times of inflation. But equity investments either ride with the tide of inflation — or sometimes even rise in price at a greater rate than inflation.

Here is an actual situation in which a young, rather financially secure family considers buying a second home.

Dear Miss Taylor:

My husband and I are considering buying another home at the seashore. We'd like to know what price house we can afford. We are both 40 years old and have two children. Our home and car are paid for. My husband's annual salary is $12,000, and we have savings of about $10,000.

Mrs. L. L., Newark, Del.

Dear Mrs. L. L.:

Based on the facts you have given me I believe that you can look for a house in the $15,000 to $20,000 range. This would mean that after a $5,000 downpayment, you would have mortgage payments of $80 to $121 a month.

* * *

Of course you will have to add taxes to the mortgage payments. And unless you have a lot of excess furniture in the attic of your present home, you'll have to put out a couple of thousand dollars for furnishings.

Remember also that you will have double utility and telephone bills, as well as another insurance premium to pay.

To help defray such costs you should consider renting out the property for several summer weeks. This will also permit you to write off some of your costs as business expenses when filing your income tax.

"The Continuing Challenge of Communism" will be the topic of United States Army Gen. Mark W. Clark, Ret., when he appears at the Birmingham Theatre Thursday and Friday as second guest speaker in the Birmingham Town Hall series. Gen. Clark's military career, from West Point graduation to retirement, spanned 36 years, and involved service in Europe, North Africa, and the Far East. The 10:30 a.m. program will be followed by celebrity luncheon at the Kingsley Inn.

Designer - decorator Carleton Varney, president of the designing firm of Dorothy Draper and Company and author of two books on interior design, will be guest speaker at Wednesday's Pontiac-Oakland Town Hall. He is scheduled to speak at 10:30 in the Huron Theatre on "The You Look —Decorating a Home Around Your Personality." Reservations for celebrity luncheon at Devon Gables are being accepted by Mrs. Fred Cockle and Mrs. S. V. Sekles.

Plan Your Next Party With a Definite Theme

By JUNE ELERT

"When party-giving finds you dry
Of fun and food
ideas to try,
All you have to do is look
Between the covers of this book."

The first requisite of a successful party is that guests should be compatible and that the date chosen will assure a good turnout.

Bernice Hogan, in her "Fun Party Games, All Ages, All Occasions, lays out the route to a social success with stops for food and the green light for unusual ideas to entertain guests.

* * *

If you friends enjoy just "sittin' around gabbin' " between trips to the refrigerator for more beer, this book is not for you.

Mrs. Hogan, wife of a minister, mother of three and teacher of remedial reading, believes every party should have a theme.

The "Paper Doll Parade" which opens the book, carries its theme through invitations, centerpiece, decorations, games, favors and food, all designed to delight little girls.

IMAGINATION

Imagination aplenty is used in the plans for several other types of children's parties, including a "learning party" intended to overcome the dislike of reading which is at the root, says Mrs. Hogan, of many children's reading difficulties. The same ideas could be used at any kind of a gathering.

Continuing along life's highway, Mrs. Hogan includes plans for parties for high-schoolers, young sophisticates and any-age themes which take the reader to foreign boulevards, holiday avenues and the carnival midway. She winds up her tour with fun and games suitable for patients in a nursing home, even to within the confines of an elderly person's bedroom.

Some old favorite games (I spy with my little eye something in this room that begins with T) and many new ones are included. Menus are given to please the palate and match the theme of each party and age group, and recipes are printed in full for many of the less familiar dishes.

Mrs. Hogan majored in journalism at Bethany College, Bethany, West Va. This is her second book on party-planning. The publisher is Hewitt House; Old Tappan, N. J.

Graft Big Issue in Philippines

A Familiar Prelude to Tuesday's Election

MANILA (AP) — Cries of graft and corruption are echoing across the Philippines as a prelude to next Tuesday's election.

A similar refrain has been part of every campaign since the country gained independence in 1946.

* * *

"It usually sounds about the same," says one Filipino.

He admits, however, with some sense of loss, that there is nothing so titillating this time as the gold-plated bathroom fixtures and thousand-dollar bed that became an issue against President Elipidio Quirino in 1953, or the luxurious presidential yacht of Carlos Garcia in 1961.

'MOST CORRUPT'

This year's presidential challenger, Sen. Sergio Osmena Jr., simply accuses incumbent Ferdinand E. Marcos of having the most corrupt administration in the nation's history.

He says Marcos has become "the richest man in Asia."

Kickbacks to the presidential palace, Osmena charges, are standard on government bank loans, imports and construction projects.

* * *

Marcos denies all this and argues that if graft were anywhere near what Osmena claims, then it would have been impossible to construct the many miles of highway and thousands of schoolrooms built during his term.

The president in turn charges that illegal wheeling and dealing by Osmena has brought the businessman-politician vast riches.

'COLLABORATION'

Worse, Marcos says, is the wealth Osmena gained by collaborating with the Japanese during World War II.

The president charges that Osmena, whose father was a wartime and postwar president, sold scrap iron to the Japanese that was used to make war materiel used against Filipinos.

* * *

Osmena shows court documents that he was acquitted of such charges.

New Picture, New Show Give Rip, Gerry Big Week

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Rip Torn and Geraldine Page have twin sons named Anthony and Jonathan who at the age of 4 are feisty little Rips.

"They love each other, but they also get in fights, and they have knocked each other's teeth out," their father said with paternal pride the other afternoon. "Fortunately, they still have baby teeth."

WILSON

It's been a big week for Rip and Gerry Torn — with his picture, "Coming Apart," opening in three theaters, while she opened in the Broadway show, "Angela." And Rip has "Tropic of Cancer" coming up soon — he plays Henry Miller — plus the impressive fact that he stars in and directs the mixed-media "Richard III" at the New Theater on E. 54th St. upstairs where the discotheque Arthur once gave the whole city Arthritis.

* * *

Rip Torn let all the other actors go off to Hollywood where the big money was but he and his wife remained here because they like it here.

"Oh, I've made Westerns," he said, looking at me through his glasses, "but to me there isn't any great romance in horses and cattle because I was born in Texas.

"I go out to Hollywood and they say 'Give this greenhorn from the East a wild one.' I get on and ride it and they say 'YOU CAN RIDE!' I say, 'Sure, I'm from Texas.'

"I don't look like one. Lee Marvin, who's kind of a professional Texan, comes from Woodstock, N.Y. I'm from Texas and look like I came from Woodstock.

* * *

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Dialogue: "What do you call a man in New York who gives a lady his seat on a bus?" . . . "An out-of-towner."

Producer David Merrick was lauded by a waspish theater critic at an awards dinner. Merrick answered, "I'd prefer it the other way around — that you hated me, and loved my plays." . . . That's earl, brother.

Current Books

ADLAI STEVENSON: PATRICIAN AMONG POLITICIANS, By Bert Cochran. (Funk & Wagnalls, $10)

Bert Cochran has written a historical biography of Adlai Stevenson — as opposed to a political election-year biography — with perspective on those years and insight into his subject.

* * *

As the title indicates, Cochran views Stevenson as a man essentially above the politics of the Democratic ward heeler and political boss, a man whose character emphasized morality above ambition.

* * *

If the book has a flaw, it lies in the fact that Cochran is a Stevenson fan, one who perhaps idealizes his subject too much for totally objective historical analysis.

But anyone arguing the opposition view had better be well versed in Stevensoniana.

EXPLORING OUR NATIONAL PARKS AND MONUMENTS, By Devereux Butcher. (Houghton Mifflin, $8.95)

After a gap of several years, Butcher has completed his sixth revised edition — another 370-page postcard which again makes the reader wonder why Americans feel compelled to go abroad in quest of beauty when the United States — with very little searching — can be so incredibly breathtaking.

And almost everything worth seeing is in this book.

It's a frank appraisal of the nation's parks, monuments and other natural wonders.

Pictures? There are more than 300 — and the copy that accompanies them makes this more than just a "See American First" travel promotion.

Paul Robbins (UPI)

BETWEEN THE BULLET AND THE LIE, By Cecil Eby. (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $7.95)

"It was a war without pensions and without medals," Cecil Eby writes in this engrossing history of the American volunteers who fought on the republican side in the Spanish Civil War. "The only decorations most of them brought back were their wounds. . ."

His account will please neither the leftists who saw the volunteers as heroes nor extremists of the right who believed they were all agents of international communism.

* * *

Eby says the purpose of his book is to re-create the "collective experience" of the men who formed the Abraham Lincoln Battalion.

He must be accredited a smashing success. With quotes from volunteers, stanzas of old battalion songs, anecdotes, passages of letters home, a movingly human portrait emerges.

No Cash Yet for ADC Clothing

Emergency clothing orders for 200 county children lay unfunded at Social Services headquarters yesterday, even as the board of supervisors human resources committee voted to reconsider its recommendation for $52,500 in supplemental funds.

The recommended appropriation was cut to $25,000 by yesterday's committee action. It still must clear the finance committee and the full board, and the money will not become available until after the Nov. 20 board meeting at the earliest.

The cutback was made on the recommendation of Daniel T. Murphy, chairman of the board of auditors. He noted the original recommendation of $52,500 would fund every ADC-supported school child in the county.

* * *

An appropriation of $90,000 made Sept. 4 was spent by mid-October with recipients getting nearly $30 per child. Another 1,000 children had been outfitted with clothing from the county's central store prior to the cash allotment program.

"This is obviously not an emergency program if every child gets $30," Murphy said. He intimated such funding would call for flat appropriations.

"These funds will take care of another 800 children by Dec. 31," Murphy said, and he confirmed the figure was realistic according to need.

* * *

Any funds left over Dec. 31 will revert to the county's general fund, Murphy said.

The formal name of the Nazi party was the National Socialist German Workers Party.

Ancient Well Is Uncovered

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A 250-year-old water well has been uncovered beneath a sidewalk at the rear of the Mobile County Courthouse.

A University of Alabama archeologist, Don Harris, said that the well was one of three dug in 1710 under supervision of French Explorer Bienville in old Fort Conde.

* * *

Workmen exposed the red brick siding of the well, which has an inside diameter of about eight feet.

Tooth-Filing Has Special Meaning in Bali

By National Geographic Society

WASHINGTON—Boys and girls on Bali come of age to the sound of a file rasping their front teeth.

"The file screeched like a hundred fingernails scratching on a blackboard," says Gilbert M. Grosvenor. "Afterward, one girl confessed, 'I had the shivers, but it didn't really hurt.'"

The associate editor of National Geographic and his wife, Donna, describe the ceremonial rite in the November Magazine. It was one of the many rituals witnessed and recorded as they spent six weeks exploring the Indonesian island.

"You must seek out Bali's special moments, knowing how and where to find them," their friend Njoman Oka advised them at the start of their wanderings.

SPECIAL MOMENT

The first special moment began as they neared the small village of Lukluk and chanced upon a tooth-filing ceremony about to start.

Wearing batik scarfs tied around their waists — signs of proper respect to hosts and temple gods alike—the Grosvenors and Njoman joined the ceremony at the family compound of the village chief.

Centuries ago, tooth-filing in Bali was intended to do little more than enhance the appearance of boys and girls at puberty. But following the arrival of Hinduism some 900 years ago, it acquired religious significance. Now it symbolizes coming of age as a major milestone.

Tooth-filing also guards against sadripu—the evil qualities of human nature such as conceit and greed — Grosvenor was told.

Judge Blocks Aid to Deprived Schools, Says He'll Take Case

LANSING (AP) — Circuit Judge Jack Warren says he is willing to hear arguments this month on the legality of the Michigan Board of Education's definition of under privileged children.

The aim would be to settle the matter before the scheduled partial distribution Dec. 1 of $8.7 million in special state aid to culturally and economically deprived schools.

* * *

But the state instead may go to a higher court, seeking to overturn a temporary injunction Warren issued Friday against distribution of the funds.

If the injunction were thrown out, presumably the funds could be distributed on schedule without the constitutionality of the rule being decided.

'VIGOROUS DEFENSE'

Warren, after a three - hour hearing in which he questioned witnesses closely, said no harm could come from the injunction if a verdict was reached before Dec. 1. And he guaranteed that other cases would be set aside if attorneys decided to try the matter in his court.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Eugene Krasicky said in the hearing the state would make a "vigorous defense" of the administrative rule "at the proper time." But he said the state did not know whether it would agree to argue the matter before Warren this month or seek to have the injunction thrown out.

The education department's definition of underprivileged children is a key in the point system determining which schools get the special aid to fight cultural and economic deprivation.

* * *

As adopted by the board, underprivileged children are considered to be Negroes, Spanish-speaking groups and migrant whites who are not migrants.

Since the underprivileged children category can provide up to 25 of the maximum 75 points available, a school which cannot claim points in that category is at a disadvantage.

Every school that applied last year got funds. But this year, there wasn't enough to go around. Some schools were blanked.

* * *

Clarence Wills, who coordinates the special aid program for the education department, said it would have taken an additional $3.3 million to fund each application.

One of the schools shut out this year was the Mio-Au Sable School of Oscoda County. Rep. Joseph Swallow, R-Alpena, in a suit filed on behalf of 8-year-old Bonnie Hoover, claims it was a case of discrimination against poor white schools.

'VIOLATES CONSTITUTIONS'

He says the rule violates the Michigan and U.S. constitutions.

He brought out that the school had the same points as the Kalamazoo-Lincoln School, except for the underprivileged children category. In that one the Mio-Au Sable school got nothing and the Kalamazoo school got the maximum 25.

* * *

Wills testified that all 66 schools which are to receive aid have a high percentage of black students.

* * *

As for the distribution of points within the five categories by which cultural and economic deprivation is measured, Wills said, "We don't claim the scale is perfect."

* * *

Jack Ferris, superintendent of the Mio-Au Sable school, said the school faces the loss of four portable classrooms in February because it will not get an appropriation similar to the $63,000 if got under the special program last year.

* * *

"We didn't come here for money," Ferris told Warren. "Whether we win or lose, our purpose is to be given an equal chance at the funds available for deprived children."

* * *

Krasicky said courts have held there is a "presumption of the validity of the rules of state administrative agencies. This should apply here."

Navel Win Has Parent Accord

CHICAGO (AP) — "My wife and I are exceptionally excited; it's like taking your daughter to the altar," says the father of the coed voted the girl with the prettiest navel at Miami (Fla.) University.

"My wife has been so excited you'd think she was in the contest," added Willard Dolnick.

* * *

His 18-year-old daughter, Trudy, was one of several girls who participated in the university-wide contest held to promote interest in Friday night's Miami-Navy football game.

While Trudy was being presented with the "crowning jewel" for her navel in Miami Friday night, her father, in Chicago, said "Trudy has been interested in drama and has always been active in these things and we've always been 100 per cent behind anything she wanted to do."

When her sorority, Sigma Delta Tau, entered Miss Dolnick in the contest, the sophomore speech therapy major said she really thought she didn't have a chance, but her mother reassured her: "I don't care what you do; to me you're always the winner."

Miami beat the Naval Academy 30-10.

Do You Suffer from Arthritis?

We have been advised that a revival of one of the oldest medical swindles — the arthritis bracelet exists.

Usually made of simple copper or an alloy, the bracelet is advertised as possessing unknown but effective powers of relief from arthritis, rheumatism or muscular pain.

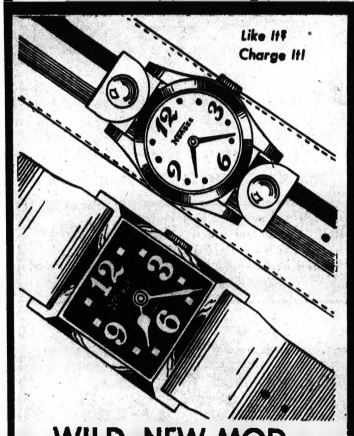

The notion that copper will activate certain body processes is without a scientific basis whatever, although it is an ancient belief that was once widely held.

There is as yet no known cure for arthritis.

At Colombiere College

Father Serrick Builds Organ

The Rev. James K. Serrick SJ has just completed a two-year project of building a pipe organ for the chapel of Colombiere College near Clarkston. Father Serrick is an organist.

At 2:30 p.m. tomorrow he will play a recital when the newly built organ is dedicated. The public is invited Father Serrick said.

* * *

He constructed the instrument with the help of other Jesuits at the college. All the mechanism is new. The console, specially designed to harmonize with the interior of the chapel, was built in the Colombiere carpenter shop.

Robert Merriman of Bob's Hardware in Clarkston carefully matched the wood stains.

* * *

Although the mechanism is new, the pipes are not. Two years ago Father Serrick and two other Jesuits drove a truck to Cincinnati and loaded it with hundreds of organ pipes that were stored at Xavier University.

These pipes came from a famous Cincinnati organ installed in S. Anthony's Church around 1861 by the Cincinnati organ builders, Koehnken and Grimm.

The organ in St. Anthony's, known for its fine tone quality, was used daily for 100 years until the church was razed in 1961 for urban renewal. A group of dedicated organ buffs rescued the organ and stored it at Xavier University hoping that it would be rebuilt some day.

The Colombiere installation retains the basic sound of the original Koehnken and Grimm organ.

1,100 PIPES

It has 21 sets of pipes, over 1,100 pipes in all. Only two sets of pipes, a trumpet and a softer reed, had to be purchased because the old pipes were not salvagable.

The visible screen of pipes at Colombiere are from another source They were part of the front section of the organ in Detroit's Blessed Sacrament Cathedral which has recently been rebuilt.

* * *

The chimes of the Colombiere organ were originally in the large atrium of the former Jesuit house of training at West Baden, Ind.

BELLS FROM INDIA

The organ also features a set of small bells, minted in India, called a cymbalstern. These bells ring simultaneously at the desire of the organist to add a quality of joy and brilliance to the sound of the full organ.

Some modification of the original Koehnken and Grimm specification were made so the instrument would be more flexible and could respond to the organ literature of various periods.

* * *

Robert Noehren of the University of Michigan, a world famous organist, designed the mixture stop of the Colombiere organ.

BUILDS TWO

Father Serrick who is from Toledo, Ohio has built two pipe organs previously. One is now installed in the St. Patrick-Ryan Church near Saginaw.

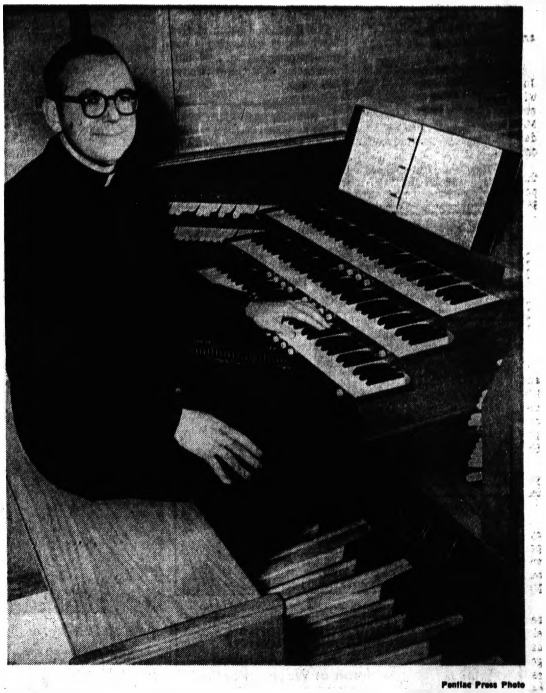

The second is in the chapel of St. Augustine's House near Oxford, a Lutheran ecumenical center headed by the Rev. Arthur Kreinhedder.

Organists and interested parties are invited to inspect and play the Colombiere organ at any time, Father Serrick said.

* * *

Colombiere College is a house of training for young men who are entering the Jesuit religious order. The building is also used for retreats, meetings and conferences.

The college is located on Big Lake Road off Dixie Highway just before reaching Interstate 75 near Clarkston.

Why I Go to Church

LINDA McCARRICK

By LINDA McCARRICK
Junior, Waterford Kettering High School

As a teen-ager in today's world, I have many questions in my mind. I am constantly confronted with problems and decisions. Many times I don't have the answers.

* * *

I realize that often my decisions will greatly affect not only me, but other people. When I have a problem I need to turn to someone. That is why I turn to God.

Going to church gives me a greater opportunity to have fellowship with God. I don't consider it a chore to attend church. It is a privilege I am truly thankful for.

* * *

In order to really know God and have Him in your heart, you must understand His teachings. God gave us the Bible so we could pattern our lives after His will.

When we go to church and listen to the sermon we have a chance to realize the mistakes we are making and learn how to correct them.

* * *

Church is a place you can replenish your soul with God. Like a child will starve without food, our souls will starve without God's salvation.

Couple Tackles Transformation

By JODY HEADLEE
Home Editor, The Pontiac Press

It took courage, dedication and determination when the Edward C. Nelsons of Orion Township moved into their home 11 years ago.

"It was one room," said Mrs. Nelson. "There were no walls, no counters, no cupboards, no anything but the shell."

Today, it's a customized contemporary in a setting designed to marry the site and structure in a perfect union.

"The fireplace," said Mrs. Nelson, "my husband built two years after we had moved in." It is backed by a patio barbeque which proves especially handy when entertaining large groups.

SAND STONE

Found in Indiana, the French-lick stone of the fireplace is a form of sandstone. Its shadings present an ideal compliment for the living room's fir ceiling and mantel beams.

Pale aqua walls and carpeting plus white window sheers complete the room's background.

Found of the natural lines of nature, the Nelsons incorporate many pieces of weathered wood discovered around the United States in their over-all decor.

A live oak knot has been transformed into a magazine storage while a cypress knee now serves as an attractive lamp on the living room's teakwood table placed between the two gold arm chairs.

FIREPLACE SCONCE

On the fireplace wall is mounted a branch discovered in Utah.

"We stained it and added the candles for interest," said Mrs. Nelson.

In a conversation grouping before the patio's sliding glass doors are three chairs around a free-form coffee table. Teak-framed, the chairs introduce rust, brown and black into the color theme with the perforated doors of the area's built-in stressing white, blue, black, gold and rust.

Looking through the glass panels, one can see how the Nelsons have unified the indoor and outdoor decoration themes with weathered wood.

"The dead tree came from Colorado," said Mrs. Nelson, "with the limbs from Utah and Grindstone City. The small ash tree planted on the patio is a living memorial to my father who was especially fond of ashes."

* * *

A counter peninsula with a glassed-in top divides the nearby kitchen from the balance of the house.

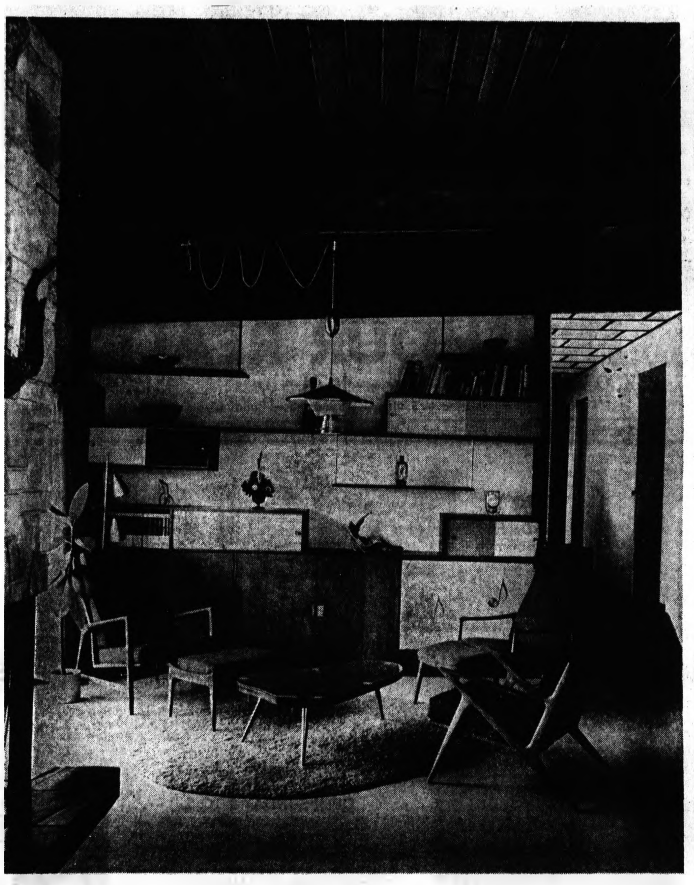

"We originally planned on a cooking island," said Mrs. Nelson, "but ended up combining the stove and the table. It's the berries for letting mother cook pancakes for a large family while sitting down."

The Nelsons have four children, Cheryl 12, Jeffrey 10, Craig 6, and Gail 3.

GAMBREL roof lines over bedroom wing at left of house permit expansion area upstairs to have more usable space than would be available with conventional roof design. Portico between bedroom wing and garage provides pleasant entranceway.

Farmhouse Offers Expansive Planning

This is basically a one-floor house with an exterior effect that offers future expansion possibilities — either upwards or sideways, or both.

* * *

Architect Herbert C. Struppmann has found that the ever-popular farmhouse look lends itself to this expansive planning and extra-space bonus.

It maintains the traditional exterior that is attractive in a well-planned community and offers a growing family the space needed for the present living scheme as well as for the future.

For instance, the owners can have three, four or five bedrooms, as they wish, with one or two of them finished when the house is built or at a later date.

And they can dispense with the indicated family room with no alteration in the front facade, since it is located to the rear of the two-car garage.

The rooms in Design S-18 are well-proportioned.

* * *

Note especially the large amount of wall space in the almost-square master bedroom and the living room.

The latter, accessible from the front foyer and the dining room, is down one step from those areas.

LONG PORTICO

Very spacious, the foyer is a gracious introduction to the house, with the long portico across the front adding to the entrance appeal.

Stretching 21', the combined kitchen - dinette is well-placed for the woman of the house.

She can handle the informal meals in the dinette section on one side of the appliances and the formal meals in the dining room on the other side.

The kitchen is also close to the optional family room, a convenience for the serving of snacks.

FIREPLACE

The plans call for the family room to have sliding glass doors to the rear and a fireplace.

If the family room is skipped, the chimney location would be moved.

* * *

A side entrance to the house leads to a mud hall, a lavatory, the laundry area, a closet and a pantry next to the kitchen.

There is also a door to the garage, making it convenient to move groceries from the auto to the pantry and kitchen.

MASTER BEDROOM

Three bedrooms are on the main floor.

* * *

The master bedroom has a private bath and two closets, one a walk-in.

* * *

There is a hall bath, two linen closets in the bedroom hall and a closet in each of the two other bedrooms.

* * *

For the expansion area upstairs, the upper gambrel is dormered.

SPACE UTILIZED

As planned by the architect, there are two bedrooms, four closets, a full bathroom and extra storage under the eaves.

* * *

But this space actually can be utilized as desired if there is no need for extra bedrooms.

* * *

It might be divided into a den and study or any other combination or it can be left unfinished during the original construction and finished when and if necessary.

FLOOR PLANS: Dropped living room at rear of house is 21' 8" long and is immediately visible from front foyer. Family room can be built as shown or left out entirely. Another possibility is to turn the area into terrace or enclosed porch.

S-18 STATISTICS

Design S-18 has a living room, dining room, kitchen-dinette, foyer, three bedrooms and two baths, totaling 1,852 square feet. The space behind the two-car garage is utilized by a mud hall, laundry, lavatory and an optional family room. The expansion area upstairs has been divided into two bedrooms and a bathroom, totaling 551 square feet. The overall dimensions, which include the garage and the area behind it, are 70' 6" by 49' 10".

Plumbing Has Three Noises

Noisy plumbing is more than just a nuisance. It costs you money. That's because noise is caused by some defect or unusually hard wear on parts of the system.

* * *

There are generally three types of noise — water hammer, whistling and chattering. Water hammer is the thump you hear when faucets are turned off abruptly. It's corrected with an air chamber, short length of pipe or, in special cases, a shock absorber installed at the appropriate place.

* * *

Chattering is usually caused by loose pipe, worn faucet washers or other loose parts.

* * *

Whistling is due to the speed of water flowing through too-small pipe. It's most common at bends and tees in the pipe and can usually be corrected with a pressure-reducing valve.

Plan Plumbing in New Home for the Future

When you're building a new home, it's always a good idea to provide for future requirements.

With the assistance of a qualified plumbing contractor, the plumbing system for your new house can be planned so that additions and changes can be made easily, with minimum interference to family routine in the future.

* * *

The first "looking ahead" step in planning your plumbing system is to have piping installed that will not only serve your present needs but will be adequate for future requirements, as well.

Take the service line from the street main to your house, for instance. It will cost only a little more to make this vital line at least one inch in diameter instead of three-quarters of an inch.

By using larger pipe, the water capacity of the entire house plumbing system is greatly increased. And with high capacity, you will be assured that your water supply is adequate to handle any future facilities added, such as an automatic washer, another bathroom, swimming pool or water for the garage.

* * *

The home builder who plans ahead will also provide for an extra bathroom by having the rough piping installed now for a bath to be added later.

* * *

Your qualified plumbing contractor will be glad to look over your plans and offer suggestions.

Little Skill Needed

Carpet Tiles Homemaker Can Install

Professional house services are dwindling, but manufacturers are providing alternatives.

New products are being introduced that will make it possible for a homemaker to do some jobs with a minimum of skills.

* * *

For example, carpet tiles with adhesive backing are available, and one needs only a bumpfree floor and a good back to pull off a pretty good job. Individual tiles can be removed for washing, and with adhesive backing renewed, they may be set again into place.

A den may provide a small area for experimentatiop.

CARPET TILES

These carpet tiles — and those being introduced from Europe that are touted as requiring no adhesive—will be a boon to stores where storage o bulky home furnishings may be a problem.

* * *

Some manufactuers predict that all carpet eventually will go the way of tiles.

Vinyl tiles also have become a do-it-yourself project now that a proper adhesive has been found to insure a permanent floor by do-it-yourselfers.

* * *

A new "instant floor," recently introduced by Goodyear, emphasizes the ease with which a floor may be put down. Each carton of adhesive-backed vinyl containes eight 12 by 12 in. tiles (8 sq. ft.).

* * *

The cost is about five cents more a square foot per tile than the company's conventional tiles, which require adhesive and a professional tiler.

DIRECTIONS

Directions on the package may appear to be involved, but the job dissolves into these basics: Determine how much tile is needed, prepare the floor surface by smoothing and removing protuberances, find the starting point, lay tiles and fit border tiles into place.

* * *

The tile is cut before backing paper is removed.

* * *

If one has qualms about such a project, one might do a trial tile run in a closet or another small area.

Sheet vinyls may be installed without adhesive by a do-it-yourselfer. A 12-foot roll may provide a seamless floor if the room is no larger.

The manufacturer Armstrong suggests using a molding around the floor or doors where the vinyl ends for a smooth finish. If room is larger than 12 feet, adhesive may be used at seams.

A good floor venture for a lady do-it-yourselfer might be putting down the bathroom carpet using one of the kits.

INSTRUCTIONS

These give instructions, and provide a pattern for fitting carpet around fixtures. It gives her an opportunity to test her skills for larger jobs.

Another great help to home decorators is a window shade kit that comes with everything except the fabric. The directions on the box, packaged by Stauffer, are complete, but one must have patience.

* * *

The precut shade cloth has an adhesive coating on one side that is activated with heat. The four-step method suggests that you apply your decorator fabric to it with a hot iron, and says that the permanent bond will seal the special cloth and fabric.

The shade cloth has been available to do-it-yourselfers for some time, but the advantage of the complete kit is that, in addition, it contains roller, slat, shade pull, mounting brackets and screws.

The homemade shade can provide a unified look. You can match the shade's fabric to chairs, bedcovers, wallpapers or whatever to make the room look more interesting.

Do You Control the Water Temp?

Who controls the temperature of your water when you're taking a shower?

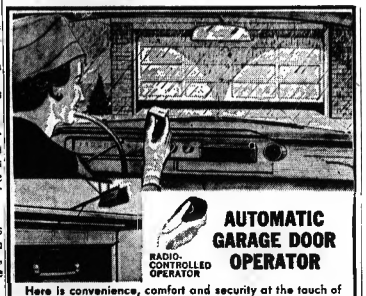

Of course your answer is likely to be "I do" — but are you sure? In many families with old-fashioned equipment, the water temperature can suddenly change to icy cold or scalding hot when there's a drop in water pressure. This can happen when someone else in the house turns on the water in the kitchen or laundry.

* * *

Sudden temperature extremes can so startle the bather as to cause an accident. However, modern controls are available that eliminate this hazard.

* * *

According to Howard Griesbach of Powers Regulator Co., a firm that helped pioneer all types of shower and bath controls, there are controls that enable you to dial the temperature you want before turning on the water in the bathtub or shower. The water then remains at that temperature regardless of changes in water pressure because a valave in the control compensates for them.

Foot Drag's Created by Cushiony Softness

"Housemaid's Knee" was once a common malady that apparently has vanished from American homes along with housemaids. Or perhaps it has jut been replaced by "Housewife's foot," suggest the Better Floors Council.

Certinly the several hundred miles housewives walk each year within the walls of their own homes, plus the hundreds of hours they stand make it plain why so many women have foot trouble.

While foot trouble should be treated by a doctor, BFC advises that a major contributing factor may be the floor covering used in the home. Worn or rough surfaces and floors which are too hard or too soft certainly can cause excessive foot fatigue.

For maximum comfort and efficiency and a minimum of foot fatigue, BFC recommends floors that are smooth but resilient. They should not be too hard, since extreme hardness "pounds" the feet when standing or walking.

On the other hand, they should not be too soft, since extreme, cushiony, softness creates "foot drag" by causing too much friction between foot and floor-covering. The more friction, the more effort necessary to walk, and the more effort, the sooner fatigue sets in.

Since it meets the foregoing specifications, BFC recommends the new vinyl asbestos floor tile. Easy to lay on new or existing floors, it goes down piece by piece, with no difficult sheets or rolls to cut. Now available in many new high style colors and designs, it's also quick to clean and easy to maintain.

These factors help to cut down on "Housewife's Foot," BFC says, since vinyl asbestos floors are faster to take care of and housewives spend less time on their feet.

SPICE — Variety is the spice of not only a gourmet meal but also the surroundings in which it is served. Every piece of furniture in this pale yellow and blue dining room is from a Renaissance collection. But not one piece is a look-alike for another. Mediterranean, French and English design motifs are mixed throughout the group. The family resemblance results from the same rich pecky pecan wood and the over-all detail and workmanship. The flamboyantly curved trestle of the table is echoed in the graceful chair stretcher.

A Drastic Revision Required

Tape recordings, slide and motion pictures, educational TV, FM radio — all the newer learning techniques of high schools and universities will soon be moving into the home, according to many educators.

Dr. Sidney Kraus, Educational Consultant to Insulation Board Institute (IBI), notes that few homes are ready for these new tools created by the "educational explosion."

* * *

"In the very near future, in fact it is already happening in many communities, the student will be taking home tapes, films and other learning tools for use in the home," Kraus said.

"This will require drastic revision of the bedroom or perhaps a new room entirely dedicated to study. The competitive pace is so great to enter colleges and universities, that extensive study at home will be essential," Kraus concluded.

PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE

Based on practical experience gained in progressive high schools and colleges, the requirements for modifying a bedroom or a separate study area are rather clearly defined.

Here's three suggestions for a learning and fun center in the home.

The Room Itself — It should be quiet, either away from other rooms or with special noise controlling wall partitions similar to those designed by the Insulation Board Institute.

These walls use sound deadening insulation board which can be included in systems available for both new and existing homes. IBI has a design for an auxiliary wall which reduces noise through a thin, existing wall.

CEILINGS

The ceilings should be acoustical in the room, just as are most modern libraries and classrooms. The ceiling can be a modest-priced insulation board product specifically designed to absorb noise. If the door is a typical flush door with a skin of plywood, it should be replaced with a solid door. The door should be weatherstripped and equipped with threshold closer.

Two brand new special desks or consoles are recommended. They are first:

The Learning Console — This desk is modular, designed to accommodate a tape deck, small-screen TV, desk-top slide projector or motion picture projector, AM-FM-SW radio and a LP record player.

In one location, and ready for immediate use, are all the modern visual and auditory learning tools. The new console eliminates closet storage of equipment and being in a quieted room, there is no distraction for other members of the family.

The Fun Console — The unit is essentially an attractive space-age workbench to accommodate study of electronics, biology, nature and other subjects by working with the hands on experiments which stimulate the learning process. Many homes now are without basements, and the boy or girl who wants to assemble his own equipment has no place to fit, wire and solder.

Furniture somewhat similar to the learning centers shown is now on the market, but designed expressly for college dormitories where educators appreciate an improved study environment. The fun center console is not available, but could easily be constructed by a cabinet shop or home craftsman.

Drawings Reveal Paint's Old, Old

Did you know that paint has been in use for at least 20,000 years, and possibly 200,000? Archaeologists discovered colored drawings of bison on the smooth walls of caves at Les Eyzies in Southern Europe.

* * *

Expert believe that the drawing, never touched by sunlight, are at least 20,000 years old and may possibly have been there for as long as 200,000 years. The pictures were skillfully done in tones of red, brown and black, made evidently from earth pigments.

Be Safe, Not Sorry

Will Your Next Home Be Hexed?

Remember the house in your town that everybody said was haunted? It looked sinister, and forbidding — and only the bravest youngsters went near it after dark.

This kind of haunted house rarely bothers anyone — but there are real estate spectres that can menance the security of your investment in a home.

The Latin phrase, "caveat emptor" (let the buyer beware), is an appropriate motto for the prospective real estate purchaser.

Although many homes may be free of real estate ghosts, it is wise to approach your purchase warily.

Advance knowledge of the particular spectres that can haunt a house — and how to guard against them — can lead to peace of mind and a safe investment.

Like their ghost story counterparts, real estate spectres haunt houses in different forms. One that is becoming all too familiar is the deceiving forger.

An example occurred in Georgia when a couple returned from an extended tour in Europe and found, to their surprise, that another family was living in their home.

* * *

When the amazed couple produced their deed to prove ownership, the family in the house also presented a "deed" stating that they owned the home.

It finally was revealed that a scheming woman had noticed the unoccupied home, forged a deed to herself, falsely sold the house, and disappeared with the money.

Even forgeries signed in the distant past can menance an apparently sound real estate investment — because, when an old, supposedly valid signature on a deed is identified as a forgery, the deed with this false signature conveys no title to the real estate involved.

LEGALLY DEAD

Other real estate ghosts include the "walking dead" and the "phantom heirs." After being declared legally dead by the courts, one "walking corpse" showed up 17 years later and tried to reclaim his former home from the family that purchased it.

In another case, a "phantom heir" was discovered in Australia and complicated an already involved lawsuit.

* * *

Unknown easements can materialize for home buyers, sometimes causing expensive legal problems and an abundance of headaches.

One couple was challenged in court by a neighbor, who alleged that a right-of-way easement crossed the couple's property. After four years of legal battles, the neighbor lost his claim.

Some ghosts, known as poltergeists, are reputed to be rather noisy. A real estate spectre with this characteristic is the missing spouse.

In a typical case, a man and a woman thought to be his legal wife sell a home and the purchasers move in. Subsequently, the purchasers learn that another woman is the seller's legal wife — as the missing spouse appears and makes a valid claim for a share of the value of real estate.

Unpaid taxes and special assessments also can haunt a home.

For example, the Internal Revenue Service filed a substantial tax lien against a seller in Arkansas on the day his house was sold. The lien was not recorded until after the closing of the real estate sale.

BATTLE

A long, expensive legal battle resulted in settlement of the case in favor of the new owner.

Cases are on record to demonstrate that individuals occasionally make a Jekyll-to-Hyde transition when handling funds in a real estate transaction. A series of embezzlements left more than 70 Maryland families facing two — rather than one — mortgages on their homes.

* * *

The experience of a Minnesota real estate company points out a type of threat that can trouble individual home buyers as well — the hidden instrument. After the company purchased real property from a couple, it was made co-defendant with the couple in a lawsuit.

* * *

The man filing suit claimed he bought the same property from the couple at an earlier date — and produced a valid, signed purchase agreement to prove it.

The agreement was in a form unlikely to be found in public records. It was written on a matchbook cover.

PAST DEVELOPMENTS

Real estate spectre often haunt a house because of past developments that make it difficult — if not impossible — for a home buyer to obtain clear title to the property.

Purchasing real estate is different from buying a hat or a watch in which you have total personal possession and ownership.

* * *

Others can claim rights in real estate. Examples are found in unpaid mortgages; liens due to unpaid taxes; claims by those to whom the owner owes money; mining, oil, or air rights; and many others which may or may not be disclosed on the public records.

For a safe real estate investment, it is necessary to make an exhaustive search for matters affecting the land title before completing the purchase — and then insure against unforeseen defects, in existence prior to purchase, that could arise in the future.

To implement these protective measures, the American Land Title Association recommends a title search by experts and the purchase of owner's title insurance.

PUBLIC RECORDS

In a search, access must be obtained to public records in various locations to maintain an up-to-date story of matters affecting the title to a particular piece of land.

* * *

Places covered in a search include the offices of the recorder of deeds (by whatever name or title he may have in a particular area); offices of the clerks of the various courts with jurisdiction in the area where the real estate is located; and offices of local governments with records of general taxes, street assessments, sewer assessments, special charges for municipal services, and other special taxes and levies.

* * *

Title defects that are apparent in an examination of public records normally are exposed in a search, which is used to compile an up-to-date record or chain of title.

* * *

For example, record title defects can emerge from lawsuits against property, marriages and divorces, wills, and other actions by the owners.

* * *

After a search, you are in a better position to judge the value of a real estate purchase before closing. Title insurance companies require a search before issuing mortage lender or owner coverage.

SAFEGUARD

In addition to record defects, title insurance safeguards your infestment against hidden defects that cannot be discovered even in the most thorough search.

* * *

Examples include sale by a mental incompetent or minor, defective deeds, confusion due to similar or identical names, and clerical errors.

* * *

Owner's title insurance protects you against both valid and invalid claims against a title as insured.

Title Insurance includes payment of the cost of legal proceedings and of any financial loss up to the full amount of coverage, which usually is equal to the purchase price of the property.

* * *

Title coverage is available for a sigle, low-cost premium and lasts as long as you or your heirs have an interest in the property.

It is important to make sure that you obtain owner's title insurance to protect your real estate investment. The title insurance that protects a morigage lender does not safeguard you, the purchaser.

* * *

Precautions against real estate spectres — whether they haunt structure or title — will increase your chances of enjoying a home. Your finances will be safer, and you will be a lot happier.

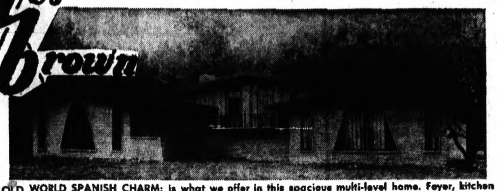

700,000 Homes Are Cool, Cool

At least 700,000 homes have central air conditioning. This means a total of 5 million families are enjoying cool comfort.

Home air conditioning is undergoing such a boom because every member of the family is exposed to it in theaters, stores, restaurants and other places of work or leisure. No one wants to go home to an oppressively hot house.

Kitchen: Interest Stimulator

NEW YORK (UPI(— Ask a dozen, or a hundred, women to describe the ideal kitchen and you'll get a dozen, or a hundred, different answers. Ask the same women the same question a year or two later, and chances are, each will have revised her ideas at least a bit.

No room in the house stimulates more interest and individual opinon — and no room in the house is changing faster or more radically than the kitchen. In fact, today, a kitchen only five or 10 years old may be "old fashioned."

For these reasons, and because there are so many things to consider all at once, many women find it difficult to judge a new kitchen — or to tackle a remodeling job on their old one.

To help, the Continental Illinois National bank and Trust Co. of Chicago has had its experts draw up a checklist designed to make the task more systematic.

ASSIGN POINTS

Since no one kitchen can have everything, they suggest you assign "points" to items, according to which seem most valuable to you and your family. The single most important factor is the way a kitchen looks and feels to you as an individual — the over-all impression.

Then, Continental suggests, you consider it in light of the following factors.

WORK AREAS

● Counter space. Adequate in size and location?

● Cutting board. Convenient for everyday use?

● Sink. Big enough and with features you want?

● Cooking. Range and oven suitable for your needs?

● Mixing. Space for all your portable appliances?

● Cleanup. For dishwasher — electric or human?

● Planning. Desk — place for recipes, cookbooks, files?

● Light, ventilation, electricity. Up to today's standards?

● China. Adequate for present and future dishes?

● Utensils. Organized to beat the clutter problem?

● Glassware. So you won't have to stack or jam?

● Pots and pans. Swing-out or pull-out storage?

● Packages and cans. Easy to see, easy to reach?

● Cold storage. Adequate refrigerator-freezer?

● Bulk and special storage. Adequate for your needs — a cleaning closet, for instance, or space for equipment for extensive canning or freezing of foods?

EATING AREAS

● Informal meals. Breakfast nook or snack bar?

● Family meals. A table in or near the kitchen?

● Company meals. A dining "L"?

● Buffet meals. Space to set up the buffet?

● Bar. Room for this, if desired.

● Work pattern. Sink, range, cooking facilities arranged in convenient "triangle," with adequate storage and work space for each area?

● Traffic. Free of annoying traffic through work areas?

● Child supervision. Indoor play area close to kitchen? Outdoor area easily supervised from kitchen?

● Outdoor access. Convenient for summer eating and entertaining?

● Auto access. Fewer steps with groceries?

● Garbage disposal. By machine — or on foot?

● Family entrance. Is there a "mud" room or entry to trap mess and clutter and isolate it from rest of house? Is there provision for boots and mittens, jackets, work clothes, balls and bats? A rear entry lavatory, perhaps a water fountain for the youngsters, that will save wear and tear? Is there provision for tradesmen's deliveries of milk, laundry, parcels?

MAINTENANCE FEATURES:

● Floor. Easy on feet — and easy to clean?

● Counters. Tough and readily wiped up?

● Walls. Washable and stain-spatter resistant?

● Cabinets. Easy to reach and use, flexible for changing needs, likely to retain good looks?

● Appliances. Sink and appliances of materials that are difficult to spot or stain in normal use, easy to keep clean and new looking?

Additionally, you will want to consider a kitchen in light of your special needs and preferences. Are there areas located in or adjacent to kitchen, or separately, as you desire, for laundry, sewing, indoor gardening or flower arranging?

Do you want a corner for a few moments of reading or relaxation, a spot where you can put in odd moments on a special hobby? Perhaps, you'll want an area where the family can gather for reading, study, television, informal meals.

Possibly a larger recreation area will be called for if you go in for informal, gather-in-the kitchen type entertaining. If your kitchen is to be more than a workshop, is there provision for screening preparation "mess" from dining area and guests?

Finally, you will want to consider what "extras"are important to you — such items as self-cleaning ovens, microwave cooking units, separate freezer, built-in blenders and mixers, automatic timing controls, indoor grills, ice makers, units for "instant" ice water or boiling water, mobile serving units, "island" food preparation centers; the list grows steadily and should be studied carefully to insure that you obtain the right product for your needs.

Bridge Tricks From Jacobys

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

Today's hand or something like it will be found in any book on play and has appeared many times in bridge columns.

It shows one of the standard safety plays. Playing at six-no-trump South has no worries at all, provided West does not hold all four clubs and he can guard against that by playing his king of clubs to start with. If East shows out, he can hold West to one club trick.

* * *

This should be an automatic play at rubber bridge, where the overtrick means practically nothing. But suppose this hand were being played in a good duplicate game. With pointcount bidding, the six no-trump contact would be very normal and a declarer anxious for a top might start the club suit by playing out dummy's ace. With the hand in the box, he would wind up with a nice goose egg and a bad score.

But suppose that East should hold all four clubs.

In that case the ace play will leave South in position to double finesse against East's queen-10 and our hero will make an overtrick and a top score to go with it.

* * *

Thus, a declarer in a duplicate game may decide that East is more likely to hold four clubs than West and try the dangerous play.

* * *

Our own feeling is that the safety play should be made in duplicate as well as in rubber bridge. We don't believe that all tables in any duplicate game would arrive at six no-trump. Someone would get to seven, someone else would stop short of six and we would not want to be the only six no-trump bidder with the minus score.

War Protesters Plan to Trail Nixon to Villa

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon relaxed on a Bahamian island today while protesters objecting to his Vietnam policy planned a demonstration at his bayside villa on Miami's Key Biscayne.

* * *

The President's wife and weekend guests—including Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird—were expected to be at the Nixon home.

* * *

A leader of the protesters said they would converge on the Nixon compound by land and sea.

* * *

It was doubtful, however, that the protesters would get close enough to gain much notice from occupants of the Nixon house.

* * *

The entrance to the President's street is sealed off by barricades manned by Secret Service agents, and the U.S. Coast Guard prohibits boaters from sailing within half a mile of the Nixon portion of the key.

NEW YORK (AP) — Of 263 customers secretly followed in a large Manhattan department store, one out of 10, or a total of 27, stole something, reports a study by Saul D. Astor consultants.

* * *

The study, which did not name the store, also said not one of the 27 shoplifters was caught. The average value of the stolen goods was $8.37.

* * *

In summary, the report said, it appeared that a large number of the shoplifters were middleclass housewives.

Huskies End Frustration Over Chiefs With 8-6 Win

Frustration ended after five years for Pontiac Northern in the crosstown football rivalry with Pontiac Central.

The Huskies from the east side won their second game in the 10 year series with an 8-6 triumph at Wisner Stadium.

Last victory for Northern was a 21-0 decision in 1963. Last year the two teams battled to a 0-0 tie.

Breaks played a big part in both touchdowns which came in the opening period.

Rog Holland rushed through to block a Central punt. He picked up the ball and raced 42 yards to the PCH 20. On the first play from scrimmage at this point, Jack Dunn went over right end and the distance.

BIG CONVERSION

Al Nance ran over with the big two-point conversion.

Pontiac Central then capitalized after a series exchange.

It all started when Wayne Coleman recovered a Northern fumble on the Huskie 20, but the Chiefs couldn't score as a 4th down pass went astray.

Northern took over on the 15 and on the first play Tim Holt picked up four yards but fumbled and Dennis Brown picked it up and went 20 yards for the touchdown.

Perry Humphrey trying to pass for the conversion then decided to run and his bid for the tying points fell short.

In the second quarter, Northern reached the Central 24 and lost the ball on downs, but later in the period Brown took a PNH punt and scampered 40 yards to the Northern 26.

Humphrey picked up 16 yards to the 12 and on the first play at this point his pass was intercepted by Alex Cojcar in the end zone.

* * *

The Chiefs couldn't take advantage of another break when Glenn Behler recovered a fumble near midfield later losing the ball on downs.

Later in the third quarter, Central again moved to the Northern 23, but two major penalties moved the ball back to the 43. The Huskies then were penalized and Central had a first down on the PNH 25 as the quarter ended.

A pass on 4th down failed and Northern stopped the drive again.

It was the Huskies who then threatened after Tim Miller blocked a Central punt and taking possession on the Chiefs' 21.

But four plays lost two yards and PCH took possession and marched to the PNH 26.

RUN OUT CLOCK

When three straight passes failed, Northern took over and marched to the Pontiac Central 15, holding the ball long enough to run out the clock.

Dunn was the leading ball carrier in the game with 60 yards in 16 carries, including that 20-yard touchdown run.

For Central, Art Goldman had 38 yards in eight carries as the top Chief runner.

* * *

For Northern it was the most successful season since 1963 when the Huskies posted a 6-3 mark including the win over Central. This gives PNH a 7-2 record for the season.

Central finishes its season with a 1-7-1 season, but still leads the city's series 7-2-1.

OUT OF REACH—Pontiac Northern's Mike Jones shows his specialty in returning kicks. Jones eludes a pair of Pontiac Central tacklers for a long gain on a punt return in last night's intra-city contest at Wisner Stadium. PNH won the 8-6 from PCH, the first win in five years thereby giving the Huskies their best school record, a 7-2 slate.

PNH Coach 'Happy to Win by Two Points'

'I'm happy to win it, by two points as well as by 30," said coach Dave Schmidt of Pontiac Northern, who coached the Huskies to triumph over Pontiac Central last night.

Schmidt noted that mistakes hurt both teams, "but we gave them good field and that ruined our whole game plan."

The Chiefs had the ball for 62 offensive plays compared to only 40 for the Huskies to their best season in school's history as result of the 8-6 triumph over Pontiac Central last night.

GAME PLAN

"We had intentions to throw more, but with only an 8-6 lead and with poor field position on passing situations we didn't dare throw in our back yard," said Schmidt.

"Of the three passes we attempted, the intended receiver was wide open on one of them, but our quarterback collided with the official and he lost the receiver."

"We had the ball for only six plays in the third quarter and it's because Central's defense really bottled us up," he added.

"I was real happy with our rush on the passer. This was a big factor because he had good position on us."

The only other PNH triumph in the city series was in 1963 when the Huskies won 21-0 and finished with a 6-3 record.

Waterford Saves Grid Best for Rival Kettering, 26-7

The best came last for Waterford Township's football team.

Turning in their last performance of the season, the Skippers took the measure of Kettering, 26-7, before a standing room only crowd of 3,000 fans at Township's field.

Waterford made only two serious mistakes on defense with one resulting in the Captains' touchdown. By then the game was out of reach.

The Skippers checked Kettering with 56 yards rushing and 72 passing. Meanwhile, the offense was amassing 368 total yards. However, the Captains stayed in contention until a two-touchdown outburst by Waterford early in the fourth quarter.

SCORING PASS

Halfback Don LaBlanc scored twice for the Skippers, on a one-yard plunge in the second quarter and in the fourth stanza on a 10-yard pass from quarterback Carl Whetstone.

* * *

Sophomore tight end Pat Jones gathered in a 13-yard aerial from Whetstone to start the scoring in the fourth quarter. Fullback Craig Whetstone, Carl's brother, put the icing on the cake for coach John Moffat with a 58-yard touchdown jaunt in the last 30 seconds.

* * *

Kettering had scored its only TD 19 seconds before on a 28-yard pass from quarterback Paul Curry to end Jim Meyers.

This was the final game of the season for both teams. They finished with 3-6 records. It was the third straight win for Waterford in the series and cut Kettering's margin to 5-4.

Waterford's control of the game is indicated by the number of plays, excluding penalties and punts, each team ran. The Skippers ran or passed 73 times to 42 for Kettering.

STRONG DEFENSE

Much of the credit must go to Waterford's superior line play. The defense, led by guard Jim Main, end Ron Tabor, tackle Tim Sager, Craig Whetstone and back Roy Sumner, clamped down on Kettering's Bob Gratz who went into the game with 110-yard average.

Gratz started fast, racing around end 37 yards on Kettering's first play from scrimmage. But he gained only 15 yards the rest of the contest. Curry was dumped three times while attempting to pass for 20 yards in losses and had to hurry many of his other passes.

* * *

He completed five of 18 and had one intercepted.

Because the running game was going so well, Carl Whetstone, a junior, tried only nine aerials, but completed six for 116 yards. LaBlanc was the running star for the Skippers. He carried 16 times for 108 yards. Craig Whetstone's scoring run also gave the senior fullback 108 yards. The Skippers netted 250 rushing.

They took the opening kickoff and marched to the Kettering 22 where the drive bogged down and Steve Kressbach's field goal try was no good.

LONG MARCH

Gratz punted to the Skipper six and the first scoring drive was under way. It took 15 plays to cover the 94 yards. LaBlanc moved the ball to the one with a 23-yard sprint and then slanted off-tackle for the TD.

* * *

Waterford messed up two potential scoring threats in the third quarter by fumbling away the ball, but received a big break early in the fourth quarter.

Gratz was rushed so fast while trying to punt that he had to run to the side before kicking. The ball traveled only four yards beyond scrimmage and the Skippers took over on the Kettering 27.

On the seventh play, Carl Whetstone hit Jones with a scoring pass and then repeated the effort for the conversion and a 14-0 lead. Kressbach kicked off into the end zone and Curry was dumped for losses back to the 10 trying to pass. Gratz punted out to the Kettering 40.

* * *

Craig Whetstone burst 19 yards up the middle to the 10 for the big play in the drive and Carl followed with the scoring pass to LaBlanc.

A 22-yard punt return by Dan Pillow put the Captains on the Waterford 39 and Curry hit two straight passes, the second going to Meyers for the touchdown with 49 seconds to play.

Craig Whetstone came right back, following end Mike Daly who cleared three Captains out of the ball-carrier's path.

It's Brotherly Touchdown for Whestone Boys

A request by his brother enabled Waterford fullback Craig Whetstone to get his hands on the ball one more time than planned against Kettering last night.

The 190-pound senior made the most of the opportunity by racing 58 yards for a touchdown with 30 seconds left.

* * *

"I thought Kettering was out of timeouts," explained Waterford coach John Moffat, "and told Caral (Whetstone) to kill the clock."

The junior quarterback carried once on a sneak, but Kettering had a timeout left and used it.

"Carl came over to me and requested that his brother be allowed to carry once more," said Moffat. "I told him to go ahead." The play was a pitchout around left end.

ONE SEASON

Mike Daly, who cleared a path down the sidelines for Craig, is a senior and played only one season for Waterford.

"He is one of three seniors we had this year who never played before and ended up as starters," said Moffat.

"If Mike had been with us for three years he would have been a great end. But he had to learn a little too much in too short a time. Regardless, he still made our starting lineup."

* * *

Halfback Glenn Carter of Kettering seemed to be all over the field on defense. Nobody in the press box was keeping track of tackles, but Carter easily posted a dozen by himself and assisted on many others.

Waterford's Steve Kressbach managed to get the ball over the crossbar on his field goal attempt, but it didn't count. Kressbach topped the ball and it was a low liner that fell short, going through the uprights on the first bounce.

In the battle for The Pontiac Press All Sports Trophy, both schools have 100 points. Kettering won the cross country and the Skippers took football laurels.

Andover Finishes With Perfect 9-0 Mark

ONE OF MANY—Andover quarterback Scott Roley (10) rolls to his left for a long gainer against Bloomfield Lahser Friday afternoon. Roley carried the ball 18 times and was the games' leading ground gainer with 108 yards. Coming up is Lahser's Don Albert (87) while Tom Kretschmer (43) is in pursuit.

The Barons of Bloomfield Andover overcame a stubborn Lahser eleven to win their final game of the year 14-6 and complete their finest gridiron season under head coach Bob Kefgen.

Andover, which had won the Wayne-Oakland league crown just last week, had been heavily favored to win against the Knights and end its season with a perfect 9-0 record.

* * *

This season's record bettered the last undefeated season Andover posted in 1966 when the Barons, under then coach Bill Tunnicliff, ran its unbeaten string to eight straight.

Andover and Lahser have only played each other for two years, and this marks the second straight year that the Knights have come out on the short end.

Quarterback Scott Roley was again the pace setter for the Andover squad running for 102 yards in 18 carries.

Fullback Chuck Palaian was elected to start in place of Bob Reid, still recovering from a leg injury, and racked up a total of 48 yards rushing.

The Barons defensive efforts, which thwarted any ideas the Knights had of scoring in the second half, was led by linebackers Steve Vanker and Ken Grubbs who counted more that 25 unassisted tackles between them.

Andover scored first early in the opening period and once more shortly before the half after Lahser had tied the game up at 6-6.

The final two periods saw both teams battle each other equally with the defenses carrying the bulk of the load.

FIRST SCORE

A fumble by Lahser's Mike Atkins and recovered by Andover's Steve Vanker set up the Barons first touchdown in the opening stanza.

After taking over the ball on the Lahser 33 yard line it took the Barrons just nine plays to score with Roley firing a four yard pass to halfback Howard Tryon in the endzone for the score.

Palalan's attempted run for the conversion failed.

The Knights took the ensuing kickoff and marched downfield from their own 42 yard line to score next.

Quarterback Tom Cates bolted over from the five yard line for the tally after the Knights had covered the distance in 10 plays.

Atkins run for the points failed leaving the score at 6-6.

Following the kickoff Lahser took over the ball on downs on the Barons 44 yard line and after being unable to move in four plays, Doug Wagner booted the ball into the Andover endzone.

The Barons, aided with a 15 yard pass interference penalty assessed against Lahser, drover to the Knights 27 yard line where Roley fired a pass to end Bob Huessner for the touchdown.

Roley connected on the conversion pass to Dick Souther to put the Barons in front for keeps.

Dondero Shocks No. 2 Kimball

Highly Ranked Knights Fall to Oaks, 8-6

For one side of Royal Oak, dreams were shattered last night.

For the other side of the city, dreams came true.

It was the Dondero fans who were celebrating after scoring the major upset of the night, an 8-6 triumph over Kimball.

Kimball, the No. 2 rated class A team in the state, went into the game with an 8-0 record and highly favored to defeat the cross town rivals.

Both teams put up strong defenses in clutch situations and the defensive star of the game honors went to Dondero's linebacker Dennis Goldsworthy who also figured in some key offensive plays as an end. He had 11 tackles and an interception on defense.

Kimball scored first by ending a 54 yard drive in the opening quarter on a four yard run by Rick Campbell. A pass for the conversion was batted away.

FOUR INTERCEPTIONS

Four pass interceptions by Dondero stopped Kimball drives and the first one by Pete Chelovich started the Oaks marching 60 yards to pay dirt.

Dondero used up almost seven minutes in the series, running off 14 plays with John Adamski going over on a quarterback sneak from the one. Adamski then passed to Ron Jankowski for the crucial two point conversion.

The key play in the drive was a pass to Goldsworthy for 10 yards on third down from the Kimball 35.

Dondero had three marches stopped to the Kimball 36 in the third quarter and to the Kimball 27 and 32 in the final stanza. Steve Hebold intercepted on the three to end one of the drives.

This is the second year in a row that Dondero an underdog in the city rivalry has come out with a victory. Last year Dondero won, 14-7.

This gave Dondero a 6-3 record for the season while Kimball saw its hopes for the top rating in the state vanish with an 8-1 campaign.

Several Key Games End Prep Gridiron Season

Several key games will mark the end of the high school grid season today and Sunday. Two will have championship flavor.

* * *

In local action Waterford Mott will play host to Southfield Lathrup of the Inter-Lakes league tonight.

The hard hitting Chargers, who finished third in their league with a 3-2 record, bring with them a 5-3 overall record against the independent Corsairs who carry a 4-4 standing.

* * *

The Corsairs will be shooting for their second straight victory after whipping cross town rival Waterford Township last weekend 14-8 while Lathrup will be attempting to bounce back from a 8-6 setback from Dearborn Annapolis.

* * *

Over in Birmingham, powerful Brother Rice, co-champion of the Central league in the Catholic's first division, will end its season by invading neighboring Seaholm.

SEEK 5TH STRAIGHT

The Warriors will be seeking their fifth straight win against Seaholm. Brother Rice is 6-1.

The Maples finished at the bottom of the Southeastern Michigan Association league with a 0-5 record and will be out to increase its overall won-loss record from a present 1-6-1 mark.

* * *

The Brother Rice-Seaholm clash is scheduled for 8 p.m.

An expected action packed clash looms out in Farmington when the strong North Farmington Raiders travel to Farmington High School this afternoon.

North Farmington, last year's Northwest Suburban league champions, finished third in the league behind Thurston and Livonia Franklin with a 3-2 mark.

Overall the Raiders carry an impressive 6-2 record into the game against their cross town rivals.

* * *

Farmington suffered one of its worst seasons this year finishing in a tie for the Inter-Lakes basement with Walled Lake Central and Waterford, each with 1-4 records, while going 1-7 overall.

SEEKS TITLE

Bloomfield Cranbrook will wrap up its season hoping to preserve its lead in the Inter-State league by clashing with Kiski Academy.

* * *

The Cranes (3-1) are tied for first place in the league with Cleveland University School and a victory would not only assure coach Del Walden of at least a share of the title, but would boost the overall mark to 6-2.

Sunday afternoon, unbeaten and untied Ferndale St. James will battle it out with St. Agatha's for the Catholic league's second division grid championship.

* * *

The Dales, winners of the Northwest bracket, carry an 8-0 mark against St. Agatha, champions of the Southwest league with a 7-0-1 overall record.

The title game between St. James and St. Agatha is scheduled for 2:30 Sunday afternoon on the Notre Dame gridiron.

Substitute Sparks Carolina Triumph

By the Associated Press

Reserve guard Ron Perry of the Carolina Cougars looked like anything but a substitute in the final 2½ minutes as he scored nine points, and the Cougars nipped Denver 105-104 in the American Basketball Association.

In other ABA games Friday night, Indiana romped past the New York Nets 118-108, New Orleans beat Dallas 101-98, and the Los Angeles Stars downed Pittsburgh 124-111.

Perry deflected a Denver pass, then scored on an assist by Doug Moe with 39 seconds left to give Carolina the one point edge. The Rockets tried to delay for one final shot, but a bad pass from Floyd Thread to Spencer Haywood went out of bounds.

Rose Bowl Troika in Big 10 Favored to Keep Winning

CHICAGO (AP) —Unless racially troubled Indians stumbles against underdog Iowa, the Big Ten's Rose Bowl troika should prolong the snarl gripping a Pasadena bid in Saturday's conference football program.

Michigan, Purdue and Indiana—the Hoosiers minus 10 suspended Black players—each carries a 3-1 league record into the season's third-from-final round.

Each is stamped a favorite, Michigan by 21 points at winless Illinois; Purdue by two touchdowns as host to Michigan State (1-5); and Indiana by eight points against invading Iowa (1-3).

No.1 Ohio State, ineligible for a Rose Bowl encore, is a prohibitive favorite against Wisconsin (2-2) at Columbus, Ohio, where the Badgers haven't tasted victory since 1918.

Northwestern (3-2) is an eight point underdog at Minnesota (1-3) which scored its first victory of the season with a 35-8 upset of Iowa last Saturday.

HARD TIMES — Despite coming up with a victory, Andover runners had their bad moments as displayed by fullback Chuck Palian (middle) who runs into a host of Lahser tacklers during Friday's game. Leading the Knight defensive efforts is George Pyles (40) and Greg Albert (66) while Ron Samarian rushes up to lend a hand.

Walled Lake's First Clash to Western

By DAVE TENORIO

Walled Lake Western might be in its first year of varsity football competition, but the Warriors laid claim Friday night to being undisputed city champs by whipping Central 12-6.

In the final game of the season for both teams, Western took to the air for 191 yards boosting its first year record to 7-2.

Central, which had most of its strength depleted when many of the school's regular football players transferred to Western, ended its season with a dismal 1-8 standing.

Western quarterback, Roy Coomer repeatedly kept the Warriors on the march when faced with a surprisigly tough Central defensive unit by completing 11 of 24 pass attempts for 191 yards.

Commer, who passed for more than 1860 yards and 18 touchdowns this season alone, also carried for 46 of his team's 89 yards rushing on the ground.

IMPRESSING RECORD

The talented quarterback in two seasons has passed for over 3100 yards, including 27 touchdowns and missed three full football games at the beginning of last season.

Western scored first in the second period, Central bounced back to tie the game up before the half ended and then the Warriors tallied again early in the fourth.

The Vikings tried desperately to score in the final seconds of the game driving to Western's 30 yad line before defensive back Chuck VanderRoest intercepted a Central pass to put the game on ice.

Early in the second period after Central had punted to the Western 47 yard line, Coomer flipped a 53 yard pass to end Marvin Gross who reached the Viking 10 to set up the Warriors first score.

TAKE LEAD

On the next play Coomer found halfback Bob Zaebst all alone in the endzone and the Warriors went ahead 6-0.

Exchange of interceptions put the Vikings on the scoreboard moments later.

Craig Schneider intercepted a Warrior pass and returned it to the Western 41 where Mike Starnes punted to the 14 yard line after falling to move four plays later.

* * *

On the Warriors first play, Central Bob Gutherie picked off Coomer's pass intended for Keith Heathcock and raced the 30 yards untouched into the endzone to tie the game up.

Both teams battle scorelessly in the second half until a fumble by Central's Dwight Crown on the Vikings 29 yard line set up Western's game winning touchdown.

Three plays later after driving to the four yard line, Western's Wayne Morenz took the handoff and bulled into the endzone to put the Warriors in front by the eventual winning touchdown.

The Blue Jays scored midway through the first period when Doug Bidue burst through right tackle on a 17 yarder to put Southfield ahead 6-0.

The Blue Jays' score came after they had taken over the ball on their own 14 after stalling Groves attempted touchdown drive and marched downfield to take the lead.

NHL Suspended Toronto Center for Three Games

MONTREAL (AP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, suspended center Mike Walton of Toronto Maple Leafs for three games Friday as the result of an incident with referee Tom Smith at Oakland against the Seals Tuesday.

Walton's suspension includes a game he sat out Wednesday night against the Kings in Los Angeles. He missed Friday night's game here against Montreal Canadiens and Sunday's contest against the Black Hawks in Chicago.

* * *

In addition to the suspension, the league president ordered the Maple Leafs to remit to league headquarters the automatic $75 in fines assessed for misconduct and game misconduct penalty the Toronto player picked up for shoving Smith.

Also Campbell ruled that the club must submit to the NHL "as a fine the prorata amount of Walton's salary represented by the suspension imposed."

Nance scored the big two point conversion which ultimately gave the Huskies an 8-6 triumph over the Central Chiefs.

Yellow Jackets Defeat Clarkston in Final, 22-14

Avondale and Clarkston battled on close terms for a half and then the Yellow Jackets' defense took over to hold on to a 22-14 decision over the Wolves.

Clarkston scored first after marching 81 yards in 12 plays with Orsin Bullard going over from the one.

Mark Walter added the conversion on a pass from Mark Swanson.

WASTE NO TIME

Avondale came right back on the ensuing kickoff and marched 62 yards in 11 plays, with Rick Moore going four yards and Al DeClerc making the tying conversion on a run.

After an interception in the second period, Avondale went 19 yards in six plays with Gary Price hitting over from the two and DeClerc again ran the point for a 16-8 lead.

* * *

Clarkston wasted no time after the kickoff. On the second play, Rick Prasil raced 60 yards, but the try for the tying points failed and Avondale led 16-14 at halftime.

In the third quarter the Jackets marched 52 yards in 11 plays and DeClerc went the final five yards.

FOUR INTERCEPTIONS

Four interceptions were big factors for Avondale in stopping the Wolves. Randy Connel, Rick Moore, Richard Dennis and Gary Harlan each stole a pass.

Offensively, the 296 yards rushing was one of Avondale's best games on the ground and the Jackets, who lost a couple key games this season on fumbles, failed to lose the ball once with a bobble.

Leads by Four Strokes

Nicklaus Remains in Command

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — Jack Nicklaus held a four-stroke lead today after the third round of the $125,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament, was a prohibitive favorite to annex his third consecutive title—and was far from satisfied.

"If you'd asked me before I started the round if I would be satisfied with 71, I would have said yes," Nicklaus said Friday after scrambling in with a one-under-par round.

* * *

"But after the way I played the front nine, I can't say I'm satisfied. I got pretty sloppy on the back nine."

Nicklaus, who now has played 15 consecutive subpar rounds and has led or shared the lead in the last seven competitive rounds, had a 36 hole total of 134, 10 under par after two trips over the 7,020 yard, par 72 Waialae Country Club course.

Well back in second were Tom Weiskopf and Ken Still, tied at 138. Weiskopf had a second round 68 and Still a 71. Two more strokes back at 140 were Herb Hooper, John Schroeder and Jack McGowan.

In the group at 141 were Bob Murphy, who had the best round of the day, a 67, Billy Casper, 68, and Arnold Palmer, 71.

* * *

"That's the most frustrating round I've ever played," said Palmer, who missed at least five putts three feet or shorter.

Masters champion George Archer had a 71 for 142 and defending champion Lee Trevino a 72 for 146.

AMONG CASUALTIES

Two major title-holders failed to make the cut for the final two rounds. It took a score of 148 to make it and PGA champ Ray Floyd had a 149 and U.S. Open title-holder Orville Moody had a fat 154.

The blustery Trade Winds, with gusts nearly 50 miles an hour, played havoc with the scores and was the reason Nicklaus said he originally would have been satisfied with a 71.

* * *

Big Jack opened erratically, going birdie, bogey, birdie, bogey before settling down. He then ran in putts of 25, 16 and 30 feet on three of the next four holes and made the turn in 33, three under par.

* * *

Just as it appeared he was going to run away and hide from the rest of the field, however, he started having his troubles.

* * *

Nicklaus bogeyed the 14th from a trap, bogeyed the 15th when he missed the green, salvaged par from a trap on 16 and had to scramble on 18 when he drove through the fairway.

Milford Trims Holly With Strong Defense

Although they lagged behind in the game statistics, the Redskins of Milford High School were ahead on the scoreboard. When the final whistle sounded they edged past Holly, 14-8.

Milford, which had not lost in its last five games, brought down the curtain on its '69 grid season with a final 5-2-2 record.

The Redskins only had seven first downs as compared to Holly's 12 and ended far behind in total rushing yardage 252-165, but a tough defensive unit kept Milford in front at the final gun.

Holly drove to Milford's 40 yard line in a last ditch scoring drive with just one minute remaining in the game, but a pass interception by Milford's Rich York killed the Broncos hopes of salvaging at least a tie.

Mike Monnier scored Milford's first touchdown on a 13 yard run while Dan Smith's 40 yard dash with a stolen ball put the Redskins out in front for keeps.

Holly's Dave Yearns scored late in the third period on a one yard dive and then ran for the two point conversion.

Audience Cheers 'Magnificent Seven'

Vegas Varies to Mets' Nightclub Routine

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Their singing and comedy are bush league, but seven world champion New York Mets baseball players are a nightclub hit anyway—as sports heroes.

★ ★ ★

Storms of applause from a capacity crowd of 1,100 greeted the opening Thursday night of a two-week engagement, and some customers called them "fine," "great" and "tremendous." Others were more cool: "You can't expect too much from them . . . As a nightclub act they're a good baseball team."

Comedian Phil Foster introduced them to the Ceasars Palace audience as "the Magnificent Seven"—Tom Seaver, Jerry Koosman, Donn Clendenon, Ed Kranepool, Tommie Agee, Cleon Jones and Art Shamsky.

They're getting $10,000 a piece in a skit with Foster on a bill starring singer Jimmer Rodgers and comedian Jerry Van Dyke.

"What's a Mets fan?" asked the Brooklynesque Foster, who is one. "You gotta be a born loser."

He introduced them with: "When you're a champ in one field you're a champ in all fields.

"You're going to see guys who don't know the meaning of the word defeat — because they don't know the meaning of the word win."

Crashing applause came from the dinner crowd.

A screen was lowered and film clips of Met plays the past season showed, said Foster, "how they lulled the opposition into defeat."

The film showed a riot of infield errors, outfield collisions and a fan carrying a sign: "Do Something." And there were brilliant World Series plays including spectacular catches.

★ ★ ★

The Mets, wearing tuxedoes with team numbers on their backs, came on singing a parody of "The Impossible Dream"—

Their voices were sturdy, on key and in unison, but they did achieve harmony on the last note.

Then the comedy.

Foster: "Is (Manager) Gil Hodges an exciting man to work under?"

Jones: "Oh, yeah. Every morning we carried him out to the dugout and propped his eyes open."

Foster: "Ed Kranepool, how far did you go in high school?"

Kranepool: "I guess about as far as the girls would let me."

Foster: "Why was everyone so anxious to tear up the grass in Shea Stadium?"

Jones: "Did you every try smoking it?"

Pitcher Koosman was late delivering a punch line, and Foster scolded: "We've got a three o'clock rehearsal before your line tomorrow."

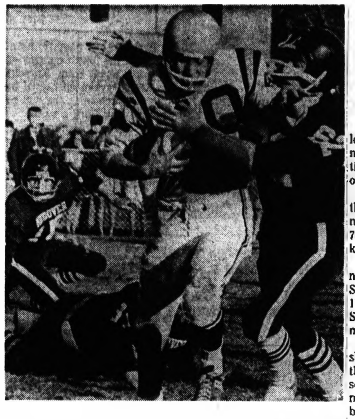

Former heavyweight champion Joe Louis, in the audience, came on stage long enough to say of the Mets' World Series victory: "I still don't believe it."

Outside, along the glittering resort-hotel Strip, the Mets' names were up on the big marquee along with those of the other performers. In the casino the dealers shared in Mets fever by wearing New York baseball caps.

A hotel spokesman said the Mets' 27-minute act would be "tightened" by about seven minutes. He said they have no plans for further performing in show business.

"It's just a two-week fun thing," he explained.

Pistons Take a Long Time to Get Revved Up, 134-128

Philadelphia Is Defeated in Double Overtime Tilt

By the Associated Press

It took the Detroit Pistons a long time to get hot Friday night. Sixty minutes of regulation play and the first of two overtime periods, to be precise.

But the team came alive in the second extra session and finally downed the Philadelphia 76ers 134-128 in National Basketball Association action.

Elsehwere in the NBA, Phoenix beat Los Angeles 122 - 120 San Francisco nipped Boston 111 - 110; New York crushed San Diego 129 - 111 and Baltimore downed Seattle 126-112.

By all rights, the Pistons should have lost the game. With the scored tied 104 - 104 with 41 seconds of regulation play remaining, Philadelphia had the ball.

But the Pistons, led by Howard Komives, played scrappy defense and refused to let the 76ers get inside for a shot. The period ended with Hal Greer holding the ball for Philly.

Then, in the first overtime with the score again tied, Philadelphia got the ball with just 27 seconds left on the clock. But the Detroit defense held up and the 76ers lost their chance to bag the game on a 24 - second violation.

BEST GAME

Jimmy Walker, playing his best game of the season, led Detroit scoring with 29 points. Ed Miles had 27, including four straight free throws in overtime.

★ ★ ★

Los Angeles not only lost a game, but also lost superstar Wilt Chamberlain, perhaps for the remainder of the season. His right knee crumpled under him during the game and the injury was diagnosed as a ruptured tendon under the knee cap.

But the 7 - foot - 2 Chamberlain went out in style. Before leaving the game, he scored 33 points, including 13 of 14 from the floor.

★ ★ ★

Most of the crowd of 6,627 at Boston Garden thought San Francisco's John Williams fired his decisive field goal on a 20-foot jump shot after the 24 second clock had sounded. But rookie referee John Parker ruled that Williams had beat the clock. The ruling put the Warriors ahead 109-107 with just 45 seconds left to play.

Boston's John Havlicek was the game's high scorer with 31 points, and Jeff Mullins topped the Warriors with 26.

★ ★ ★

Willis Reeds scored 28 points and Walt Frazier 22 as New York won its 12th game in 13 starts and sent San Diego to its eighth straight defeat and ninth in 10 games. Elvin Hayes led San Diego with 25 points.

★ ★ ★

Baltimore built a 33-point halftime lead, then staved off a Seattle rally to win by 14 points. Bob Rule of Seattle was high scorer with 29 points. Earl Monroe led Baltimore with 25.

Lions to Face Ground Attack

Norm Van Brocklin, former outstanding passer in the NFL, has put together an offense contrary to his experience and today's pro style.

In most cases among the pros, the passing attack has the edge with 60 per cent of the offense. For the Atlanta Falcons under the old quarterback, the rushing game is 60 percent of the offense.

The Falcons claim they have one of the best running games in the NFL and the clash with the tough Lions' defense Sunday will offer a stern test to that claim.

LIONS NO. 2

The Lions are the second best team in the league defensively having allowed just 653 yards in seven games.

The Falcons have netted 1,069 yards on the ground led by Bill "Cannonball" Butler a former outcast of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

★ ★ ★

With the Lions' two top runners, Mel Farr out for the season, and Nick Eddy, a doubtful starter because of bruised ribs, the running assignment rests with Larry Watkins and Altie Taylor or possibly Bill Triplett.

Greg Landry who actually leads the team in running average with 7.6 is still hobbled with an injured ankle and will probably not run as often as he usually does.

In view of the Lions' defense, coach Van Brocklin is planning on starting Randy Johnson, a rollout and scrambling quarterback against the Lions.

QB'S STOMPED

The Falcons quarterbacks have been hit 41 times this year, tops in the NFL while the Atlanta defense has reached the passer just eight times.

The Lions have hit the passer for lost yardage 25 times while their own quarterbacks have been victimized 23 times.

★ ★ ★

Paul Flately, who was once the leading receiver under Van Brocklin at Minnesota, is now the leading receiver for the Falcons with 30 catches for 458 yards.

An ex-Lion, Gail Cogdill, a late addition to the team is second best with 12 catches and 143 yards. Best receiver for the Lions is Charlie Sanders who has 21 catches for 302 yards.

Kickoff Sunday is 1:15 p.m. and the Lions are rated seven point favorites.

Three Withdrawn From International

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Three entries in the Washington, D.C., International have been withdrawn from the Nov. 11 $150,000 turf race.

Withdrawn Friday were the two French entries, Grandier and Goodley, and an American entry, Nodouble.

★ ★ ★

Spokesmen for Laurel Race Course said Grandier went berserk after being loaded onto a plane at Paris and Goodley, due on the same plane, also was taken back to training after reacting to Grandier's outburst.

Nodouble was withdrawn by Trainer Bert Sonnier because of an apparent virus infection.

Bears After First Win

Brodie Leads 49ers Against Rams

By the Associated Press

Veteran San Francisco quarterback John Brodie, returning to a starter's role, and rookie signal-caller Bobby Douglass of the Chicago Bears will be aiming to end the longest winning and losing streaks in the National Football League Sunday.

Brodie is expected to get the nod over Steve Spurrier, who started for the 49ers the past two weeks, for the contest against the unbeaten Rams at Los Angeles.

★ ★ ★

The Roman Gabriel-led Rams have swept to seven straight victories, including a 27-21 triumph over the 49ers earlier in the year. However, in that one, the Rams had to score two touchdowns in the last quarter to escape. Brodie went all the way in that one and hit on 20 of 51 passes for 254 yards.

★ ★ ★

The 49ers, 1-5-1, are healthy but Los Angeles will be without offensive guard Joe Scibelli, lost for the season with knee surgery, and linebacker Myron Pottios, injured in an auto accident earlier this week.

BEARS AFTER WIN

Meanwhile, the Bears who have lost eight straight NFL games—seven this season—the most Chicago has ever lost in a row, will be at home and favored to make Pittsburgh, 1-6 their first victims of 1969.

Douglass, the newcomer from Kansas, will be making his third straight start. With Douglass at the controls, Gale Sayers, the Bears running ace, rebounding from knee surgery, has come on with two consecutive 100-yard plus games on the ground. Sayers swept for 114 yards last week and is now the No. 4 rusher in the league with 445 yards.

Terry Hanratty, who passed for three touchdowns on 14 of 23 before being shaken up in the fourth quarter of the Steelers 38-34 loss to Green Bay Sunday is expected to start. It will be the Notre Dame rookie's third start of the year.

OTHER GAMES

Other games Sunday have Century Division leader Cleveland, 5-1-1, at Minnesota, 6-1, the top club in the Capitol Division; New York, 3-4, at St. Louis, 2-4-1; Green Bay, 5-2, at Baltimore, 4-3; New Orleans, 3-4, at Dallas, 6-1; Philadelphia, 3-4, at Washington, 4-2-1; and Atlanta, 2-5, at Detroit, 4-3.

In the American Football League, Cincinnati is at Houston, Miami at Boston, Denver at Oakland, Buffalo at New York and San Diego at Kansas City.

The Browns, who slammed Dallas 42-10 last week and ended the Cowboys' unbeaten string at six, will be out to stop the red-hot Vikings, who have won six straight after an opening game loss to the Giants.

★ ★ ★

The Browns-Vikings match could be a preview of the NFL title match on Jan. 4. The team met in an exhibition in Akron, Ohio last September with the Vikings eking out a 23-16 decision.

Green Bay, one game behind the Vikings in the Capitol Division, must get past the Colts to stay in contention. The Packers play the Vikings in Milwaukee next Sunday. However, Baltimore comes off its most impressive victory of 1969, a 41-17 triumph over Washington last week.

Wilt's Injury Not Surprise to LA Coach

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Towering Wilt Chamberlain might be lost to the Los Angeles Lakers for the remainder of the National Basketball Association season, but the injury that decked him was no surprise to Laker Coach Joe Mullaney.

The 7-foot-2 Chamberlain, playing possibly his greatest game as a Laker Friday night, suddenly went down as his right knee gave way. It was diagnosed as a ruptured tendon high in the right knee cap.

The Lakers eventually lost a 122-120 decision to Phoenix.

"When I came to Los Angeles," said first-year Laker Coach Mullaney, "I was told Chamberlain had a bad case of arthritis in his knees and constant pounding of the running up and down the court would shorten his career.

"That's why I kind of let Wilt set his own pace in practices."

Chamberlain's injury was described by Dr. Robert Kerlan, famed orthopedic specialist, as "almost identical to the one suffered by Elgin Baylor some years ago."

★ ★ ★

Baylor missed part of the 1965-66 season with the injury but made a successful comeback the following season.

"When I ripped my knee," said Baylor, "I wasn't right for eight months." A team spokesman said "there's a definite possibility Wilt may not be back this season."

Cowboy Is Activated

Cowboys of the National Football League activated 240-pound Fred Whittingham Friday and put Pettis Norman on the move list.

Rangers Bomb Seals to Grab First Place

OAKLAND (AP) —The New York Rangers had a chance to move into first place in the East Division of the National Hockey League—and it took them only 20 minutes to take advantage of it.

★ ★ ★

New York scored six times in the first period Friday night and blasted Oakland 8-1 in the only NHL game scheduled.

The Rangers' victory moved them a point ahead of Boston, Detroit and Montreal.

The Rangers have won four times in four starts against West Division clubs and faced the Los Angeles Kings in an afternoon game today at the Los Angeles Forum.

★ ★ ★

The game was changed from night, as originally scheduled, because the Kings' owner, Jack Kent Cook, who also owns the Forum, booked a concert by the Rolling Stones there for tonight.

WINGS HOME

In other games Toronto is at Montreal tonight, Boston at Detroit, Chicago at Pittsburgh and St. Louis at Minnesota.

New York had 45 shots on goal to Oakland's 19 and used 17 of these in the first period when Juha Widing, Arnie Brown, Bill Fairbairn, Rod Gilbert, Dave Balon and Jean Ratelle scored against goalie Gary Smith.

The Rangers were leading 3-0 when Ted Hampson made Oakland's lone score at 8:33.

★ ★ ★

Coach Fred Glover switched Charlie Hodge into the Oakland goal-tending spot at the opening of the second period, and Wait Tkaczuk scored on the first New York shot against Hodge.

Brown knocked in the eighth goal for New York in the third period, Fairpairn getting his third assit on the play.

Hull Says He's All Set to Play; but Not Hawks

TORONTO (AP) — The Globe and Mail says Bobby Hull has reached an agreement with a lawyer for Chicago Black Hawks but the National Hockey League club is stalling on final acceptance of the agreement.

★ ★ ★

The newspaper quotes the all-star left winger as saying he has been ready to skate since Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

"My lawyer and I are in accord with a new agreement we reached with Arthur Morse, the Hawks' lawyer. But the team is stalling on okaying the agreement."

Spanish Boxer Wins Verdict

MADRID (AP) — Pedro Carrasco Spain's European lightweight boxing champion, stopped Billy Whittenburg Huntington, W. Va. in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at the Sports Palace Friday night.

The referee stepped in and stopped the fight one minute into the fifth round when Whittenburg was receiving a terrible battering.

Cards Reported Trading

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals, still cleaning house after a disappointing fourth place finish, have traded Vada Pinson to Cleveland for Jose Cardenal, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said Friday.

★ ★ ★

The newspaper said the trade would be announced when the inter league trading period begins Nov. 20.

The cardinals front office had no comment on the report.

Pinson, acquired from Cincinnati for Bobby Toland and Wayne Granger after the 1966 season, is 31 years old and batted .255 with the Cardinals.

Cardenal, 26, with a strong arm and great speed, hit .257 for the Indians last season.

The Cardinals already have made several trades since the end of the season, breaking up the team that won two consecutive National League pennants before collapsing last season.

Back Paces 9th for Frankenmuth

FRANKENMUTH (AP) — Frankenmuth, ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press Class C high school football poll, swept to a 9-0 season Friday by overwhelming Ottisville-Lakeville 54-18.

★ ★ ★

Ralph Munger scored two touchdowns for Frankenmuth and rolled up 145 yards in only 11 carries. Quarterback Chip Weiss passed for three touchdowns and ran a fourth in himself.

★ ★ ★

Frankenmuth compiled over 500 yards of total offense in the game.

Wayne State University football quarterback Bill Cortis tied the school's baseball season record for triples in 1968 with four.

$50,000 Meet for Club Pros

PALM BEACH GARDENS, FLA. — The second annual $50,000 PGA Club Professional Championship at Scottsdale, Ariz., next week has attracted a glittering field of former fulltime tournament players who, in recent years, have swung off the tour to settle down in club positions.

Several are making their first appearance in this event, including Big Bill Collins, Jerry Steelsmith, Al Besselink, Billy Martindale and massive George Bayer.

These latter five, along with 72 others, are back again for another crack at the top money and the Walter Hagen Trophy, won last year by 28-year-old Howell Fraser.

In all, six of the top ten finishers a year ago will be in the starting field of 248 players who will tee it up on two courses Nov. 13.

Surprise Tie in Horse Show

NEW YORK (AP) — If Argentina was to have any chance at all in the National Horse Show this year, Dr. Hugo Arramide was rated the rider to carry the burden.

But to the surprise of the experts, Lt. Robert Pistarini, who never had competed in international jumping before this year, was tied today for first place in the race for the leading rider in the Madison Square Garden event.

* * *

Lt. Pistarini rode Ulano to victory in the Good Will Challenge Trophy class Friday night before a crowd of about 12,000, and the 10 points he gained pulled him into a deadlock with Frank Chapot of Wallpack, N.J., a top U.S. Equestrian Team rider.

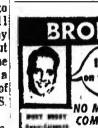

Dr. Arrambide, meanwhile, who has had loads of international experience, was tossed off Addagio, and did not place.

Tempest Class Boat Gets Okay for Olympics

LONDON (AP) — The Tempest, a British racing yacht with a retractable keel and manned by a two-man crew, narrowly received the vote against three rival craft Friday and was named as a new class for the 1972 Olympics.

The permanent committee of the International Yacht Racing Union made the decision after an hour-long argument and a complicated voting procedure.

It was another move in the trend towards cheaper boats which will open up Olympic yachting to more of the world's amateur yachtsmen. The 1972 sailing events are to be held at Kiel, West Germany.

The interested groups include Portland, Ore.; Cleveland; Buffalo, N.Y.; Memphis, Tenn.; Kansas City, and Minneapolis.

* * *

The hero of the game for Central was quarterback Charlie Rogers who ran the ball in twice for touchdowns and passed 79 yards to Rick Monville for a third.

PT Boats Arrived To Help In Boarding The Pueblo

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the sixth article in a series on the USS Pueblo written by a news team from the Associated Press.)

The Banner had often had trouble reaching Japan and had told Bucher to expect the same. The receiving station in Japan changed frequencies often to avoid eavesdropping. It was a problem coordinating transmission with this and calibrating very delicate equipment. Hayes took almost 14 hours to make the connection.

The SITREP, addressed to Commander Task Force 96—Johnson wearing another hat—told Japan the Pueblo had been dead in the water, had been sighted by unarmed trawlers which came close aboard and that possibly they had been sent out by a subchaser which passed nearby the evening before. Hayes asked for a communication schedule for the next day, Jan. 23.

* * *

That night, as usual, the Pueblo moved 25 miles offshore. Down in the wardroom, the officers tried to identify the trawlers and decided they were of the Lentra class, a Russian type.

It was a fairly busy night—visual or electronic contacts with 18 vessels one of which passed within 3,000 yards. At 0145 someone spotted a large orange flare that burned for about 30 seconds in the distance. Bucher, when notified, did not attach any importance to it and did not consider the Pueblo had been under surveillance.

MORNING QUIET

The 23rd was hazier than the day before, almost foggy. "We felt if anything was going to happen, it would have happened during the night," Schumacher recalled. Nothing had.

In fact, both Bucher and Steve Harris felt the mission had been unproductive. Harris had told him the day before of low proficiency levels among some of the research personnel which lessened their intelligence-gathering ability.

* * *

It had been too overcast to shoot the stars at daybreak and the Pueblo was a little east and south of where she wanted to be. So at 0730 she set out full ahead towards her position of the day before. At 1000 Lacy, the officer of the deck, stopped the Pueblo in what was considered the best position to intercept commercial and naval shipping transmitting along the coast.

Steve Harris, meanwhile, had been working on an emergency destruction procedure for the Sod Hut. That morning Peppard typed it up and posted it after all the technicians had initialed it to show they had read it.

'TOO MUCH DATA'

Harris had felt all along there was too much classified information aboard and that the weighted bags—Peppard had eight of them under his desk—weren't enough to jettison all of it.

About 1000 the Pueblo sent off another SITREP to Japan—this time it took only 50 minutes to get through—reporting the events of the past night, that the Pueblo had 68 per cent fuel remaining and that she intended to remain in the area. Then she gave her position: 39 degress 25'N, 127 degress 35'E, 15.8 miles off Ung Do. The current was drifting south, parallel to the coast. Just before 1200 Murphy gave the ship's position to Bucher, then joined the officers in the wardroom for lunch. Schumacher was in his cabin working up reports.

* * *

At 11:45 Law replaced Lacy as officer of the deck. Lacy made a quick tour of the ship and then headed for lunch: turkey, peas and mashed potatoes. Sunset was going to be choppy.

Law saw it first.

BOAT SPOTTED

About seven miles away a ship—either a subchaser or a torpedo boat—was standing out from Wonsan and headed their way. Fast. Law called Bucher. The captain told him to call back if the ship got within five miles and to recheck their position by radar. A quick sweep of the set showed Murphy's fix was exact. The ship kept coming.

Bucher went topside and put the ship's "big eyes"—22 inch binoculars—on the vessel. Schumacher joined him. They looked in an identification book and decided she was an SO-1, a 147-foot subchaser with 57-mm guns.

* * *

Someone somewhere at some time—the Navy won't say who, when or how—intercepted a message at 1210 from the SO-1 to shore: "The name of the target is GER 2. I judge it to be a reconnaissance ship. It is American guys. It does not appear that there are weapons and it is a hydrographic mapping ship." The SO-1 gave her position: 39 degrees 25'N, 127 degrees 56'E, 16.8 miles from shore.

At 1,000 yards the SO-1 began circling the Pueblo. Her men were at battle stations, her guns trained on the Americans. About a dozen men scanned the Pueblo from the SO-1's bridge with binoculars. Mack aimed his 400-mm telephoto lens at the SO-1 and picked up her cannon pointing right at him. It made him nervous. He was afraid the camera might be mistaken for a gun. Rosales began sketching the ship. Bucher told Tim Harris, the supply officer, who was sitting in the captain's chair, to begin keeping a narrative.

ORDERED TO STOP

On his way back to the bridge after reaffirming his fix, Murphy noticed the SO-1 was flying signal flags. When he got there, Bucher asked him to look up the definition of 'heave to' in the dictionary.

For the SO-1's signal read: "Heave to or I'll fire."

* * *

But the Pueblo was already dead in the water. Why would the ship signal her to heave to? Bucher thought they really might have meant: "Do as I say or I'll fire." Murphy looked it up and told the captain his understanding of 'heave to' was exact.

The SO-1 changed signals: "Follow in my wake. I have a pilot aboard."

RESPONDING SIGNAL

Bucher ordered a responding flag signal: "I am in international waters." Tuck began a Nansen cast to make thing look more innocent.

After helping make the identification, Steve Harris went to the Sod Hut. Although it is classified, Chicca apparently was monitoring North Korean radio bands. A fellow communications technician, Ralph McClintock, said the marine told him later he had a hard time understanding the North Koreans' dialects.

* * *

The operator at the teletype, about to send a sitrep to Japan, was told to keep the circuit open. Say anything, they told C.T. Don Bailey, but don't let any one else take the circuit.

"Who is on duty now? This is Bailey. Got more company outside and more coming."

SPOTS 3 BOATS

There was. After finishing his lunch, Lacy had come up on the bridge at 1230. He spotted three torpedo boats heading towards the Pueblo. As they approached, the men on the bridge identified them as P4s, 32-footers of Russian design.

The SO-1 hoisted a new signal: "What nationality?"

* * *

Bucher responded by breaking out the biggest American flag aboard, the holiday ensign.

Bailey: "It is worse out here now. Got more company and not doing so good with them."

The PT boats went up to the SO-1, which was circling some 500 yards away. Men in helmets and full battle dress transferred to the smaller ships which had rubber tires and rope mats over their sides for boarding.

PREPARES BLANKS

Schumacher began preparing message blanks to fill in the harassment reports. These were slugged "Pinnacle," a priority classification meaning national security was involved. They were also slugged "Flash" and 'Critic," meaning they had highest priority on intelligence and other communications networks and were to go to the White House. For his records Bucher talked a running account into a tape recorder slung over his shoulder. Tim Harris wrote his narrative, and Murphy had a team plotting the movements of the North Korean vessels.

The captain hadn't thought there would be anything but harassment, but probably unknown to him the SO-1 had radioed to shore at 1306:

". . . According to present instructions we will close down the radio, tie up the personnel, tow it and enter port at Wonsan. At present, we are on our way to boarding. We are coming in." They were.

* * *

A P4 began backing down on the Pueblo's starboard quarter. "I'll be damned if they're going to get away with that," said the captain. "Friar Tuck, get that damned gear up. I'm leaving."

Bucher shouted down his brass voice tube to Goldman to light off the engines. The diesels were still warm and started easily. He told the helmsman, Ronald Berens, a 23-year-old veteran of the Vietnam war, to steer 080 degrees—straight out to sea. The Pueblo began moving ahead at one-third speed, faithfully following orders not to give the appearance of flight under harassment.

HOISTS NEW SIGNAL

At 1315 Law hoisted a new flag signal: "Thank you for your consideration. I am departing the area." Gradually the skipper ordered speed increased. He was heading out to the 100-fathom depth line—the minimum allowed for scuttling, and thus, by extension, for dumping classified information. But neither was in his mind. He only wanted sea room.

A fourth P4 arrived, and now the torpedo boats were on his bows and quarters at point blank range, only 50 yards away. Overhead two fighters—the men believed they were MIG 21s—began circling the Pueblo.

* * *

Bucher steamed on.

One of the P4s uncovered a torpedo tube. Lacy asked Bucher if he wanted to go to general quarters. He said no. But he did order preparations made to destroy classified material. The word did not immediately reach the Sod Hut. The IMC wasn't always audible over the sound of the other equipment.

As the SO-1 dropped astern, Bucher could see it exchanging semaphore messages with one of the P4s. Bucher steamed on.

DRAFTS MESSAGE

Japan to Bailey: "Know what you mean 'bout that company and will stay on so you can come to me."

Bucher drafted another Pinnacle message. The P4s all had their machine guns manned and aimed at Bucher. He steamed on. He thought he still might get away to sea.

* * *

Then the SO-1, now 3,000 yards astern, began to move.

She came at the Pueblo at high speed, a 15-foot bone in her teeth. New flags whipped from her signal staff: "Heave to or I will fire." Bucher steamed on.

Bailey, at 1326: "They plan to open fire on us now. They plan to open fire on us now. They plan to open fire on us now."

Schumacher asked the captain if he wanted the guns manned. Bucher said no. The tarps were frozen, the gunners would have to walk across open deck with hostile machine guns aimed eyeball to eyeball. If the gun tubes he asked for had been installed, or even if the machine guns had splinter shields, they could have afforded some protection to the gunners.

But as it was, as the captain said, he saw no point in "senselessly sending people to their death." And there was his order not to provoke an incident. "I did not see any point in going to war." It was about 1330.

* * *

The first salvo of eight to 14 shots exploded right over the ship. Shrapnel hit Bucher six or seven times in the leg and rectum. He fell to the deck. Leach and Steve Robin, a communications technician who had come up on the bridge out of curiosity, were also hit. Picking himself up off the deck, Bucher, in pain, told the pilot house to order emergency destruction. Then he issued the order for modified general quarters: all hands stay below decks.

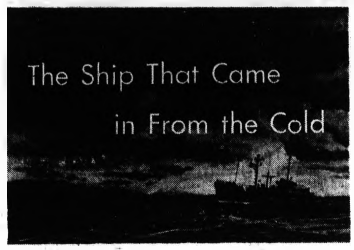

The SO-1 opened up again. Thump. Thump. Thump. Thump. Thump. Then blam, blam, blam, blam, blam, blam.

"Jesus Christ, what the hell's this?" Schumacher thought. He was fierce. "They were hitting our boat. It was completely unanticipated. We weren't programmed for that. Here you were in your iron ship, and you got a feeling you weren't safe. There was no place to go. You were in a brave new world. They'd completely erased the blackboard and could write whatever they wanted to."

Thump. Thump. Thump. Thump.

MIGs SCREECH PAST

Two MIGs screeched past and fired rockets in the sea several miles ahead of the Pueblo. Bucher sailed on.

At 1327, Bailey to Japan: "We are being boarded. We are being boarded. We are being boarded. SOS. SOS. SOS

...And for Bucher, a Decision Waited

First Ship To Confront The Pueblo Was A Subchaser

Nor will the Navy say if anyone heard the message live or if it was recorded by a machine monitoring North Korean frequencies and played back later after it was too late.

* * *

There is evidence the Pueblo was having some luck eavesdropping on the Communist Flotilla. At one point an intercept was made—by whom or where is classified—of the SO-1 ordering the P4s to stand clear, as she was about to shoot. Moments later, at 1326 Bailey radioed the "they plan to fire" message although no shooting had begun. A minute later came the erroneous message about boarding. Whether that message was based on misinformation from the bridge or a delay in translation of the SO-1's report at 1306 that she intended to board the Pueblo, the delay in putting the intercept into action cost 21 critical minutes of possible reaction time.

'LOOKS LIKE TROUBLE'

In any case, the boarding message was the one that snapped the Navy alert. The Banner had never sent one of those. At Adm. Johnson's headquarters in Yokosuka the intelligence officer, a Lt. Cmdr. Hokanson, took the message to the admiral's staff office 20 feet away where a Capt. Pease read it. "This looks like trouble," he said.

He ordered the message retransmitted by the Naval Communications Station, about three minutes distant, to Washington, Honolulu and other commands. The operations officer was also ordered to notify the Fifth Air Force on Okinawa which had the alert responsibility for the area and tell them to "push the contingency button."

* * *

About 1335 Yokosuka started calling Okinawa on a scramble phone, an instrument that requires very precise calibration. The phone, as Johnson said later, "didn't work out as well as it should."

One of the most inglorious days in the history of the Navy had begun.

PERSONAL DEBATE

Meanwhile, aboard his battered ship, Bucher debated with himself.

Surrender? Or fight?

His men? Or his ship?

Bucher's cruel dilemma had been answered as clearly as words could make it down through the 193 years of the United States Navy. It had been written in blood. It had been written in law. It was a Pole star of the unwritten tradition of the service.

* * *

"There's one thing that doesn't have to be taught at the Naval Academy," said a captain. "That is: you don't give up the ship."

Those were the very words of Capt. James Lawrence in 1813 as he lay dying, words no less honored for having been spoken while he was delirious and a prisoner aboard the British frigate that had taken his own, the Chesapeake.

FACES COURT-MARTIAL

Even before Lawrence there had been John Paul Jones, the patron saint of the Navy, shouting defiance: "I have not yet begun to fight."

"If we surrendered every time we were outgunned, there wouldn't be a United States," said an officer.

Even before there was a United States the regulations for the Colonial fleet, written largely by John Adams, said: "Any captain or other officer who shall basely desert their duty ... shall suffer death or such other punishment as a court-martial shall inflict."

* * *

In the age of the atom, the words have changed. The law has not.

* * *

Under Article 99 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice a commander who "shamefully abandons, surrenders or delivers up" a command can be punished with death. And yet ... Rear Adm. Joseph B. McDevitt, judge advocate general of the Navy, was to admit later there is no law forbidding a presumably shameless surrender. The law—Article 0730 of Naval Regulations—also says: "The commanding officer shall not permit his command to be searched by any person representing a foreign state nor permit any of the personnel under his command to be removed from the command so long as he has the power to resist."

Yes, but ... what power did the Pueblo have to resist?

In any case, Lloyd Bucher scarcely had any time to rummage about the Pueblo for a law book. There was, however, the guide of tradition.

"To the captain of a fighting ship, there is never any question of surrender," said retired Rear Adm. C. C. Hartman, Annapolis '20 and a commander of destroyers and cruisers in World War II. "Your job is to fight the ship to the end. It is a weapon. You stick with it and go down with it. If you give a man the option of quitting, who knows what might happen in the next half hour if he kept fighting?"

* * *

Yes, but ... was the Pueblo a warship?

Her skipper didn't think so. Long after his choice had been made, he said: "I was not commanding a ship of war. I was commanding an auxiliary ship."

Yes, but ... as defined by the Convention of the High Seas signed by the U.S. and other nations in 1958, the Pueblo was a warship.

ONE OTHER CAPTURE

Only once in American history had a peacetime commander decided to surrender his ship. In 1807 Commodore James Barron had just taken command of the Chesapeake, the same frigat on which Lawrence was mortally wounded. As Bucher, Barron had gun troubles. When the Chesapeake sailed down the Potomac to Hampton Roads, she was unable to fire the traditional salute passing George Washington's home at Mount Vernon because her sponges and cartridges were too large for her cannon. Shortly after putting to sea, the Chesapeake was accosted by the British frigate Leopard which suspected, correctly, a deserter or two might be aboard the American vessel. The Chesapeake's guns were totally unprepared to answer the Leopard's devastating broadsides.

* * *

"Go down to the gun deck," Barron cried to one of his officers, "and tell them for God's sake to fire one gun for the honor of the flag." Someone managed to touch off a gun with a hot coal from the galley stove just as Barron struck his flag.

Although he was reinstated after a five-year suspension for neglect, Barron was never given a sea command again.

Bucher knew the hard dictates of his duty. And he would understand the act of one of the lawyers that would one day sit on the hearing of his conduct of that duty. That man, Cmdr. William Clemmons, had thrown potatoes in frustration at attacking Japanese dive bombers from the deck of the doomed battleship Nevada at Pearl Harbor.

'NOT FAIR'

Clemmons would once say: "It is not fair to ask whether a ship is more important than the lives of its crew. A ship is not just a piece of steel. It is a piece of America afloat on the sea."

Yes, but ... there were also 83 Americans afloat on the sea and Navy law is specific on the commanding officer's responsibility for their safety. Is there room in the stoic mold in which the Navy hopes to cast its leaders for one human being's concern for another? Room for a man raised familyless who was now the guardian of 82 men?

* * *

"The captain has to take an objective view of his ship and his crew," said Adm. Hartman. "He does not send an individual to man a gun. He sends a gunner. The captain must maintain a distance from his men for that very reason. On a small ship, this is all the more difficult. I missed the close association with my other officers, but I think it is a good system."

Perhaps that is the only way navies can be run, the only way to buy victory, and the loneliness—sometimes the seeming heartlessness—of command is its price. The sea and its ways are not so much cruel as indifferent.

But ... the beleaguered Pueblo was to send back another pivotal question to her homeland: if the nuclear age had spawned a non-war, non-peace world, were military commanders expected to behave as if nothing had changed and all the old rules still applied? Should the Navy—or any other service—damn the torpedoes and steam full speed ahead even if such stubborn heroism courts holocaust, not just for a ship and her men but the world?

Knowing his orders forbade him from provoking just such a war; knowing what surrender could mean to his men, himself and even his career; knowing all this, might it not be said that Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher, a dedicated and vigorous man of action living in a world John Paul Jones could not have dreamed of, would show as much personal courage in going against his nature and training by surrendering as he would by fighting?

* * *

What does a man do when someone breaks the gentleman's agreement and begins taking potshots at a spy ship? The Navy has in its files—and now in its tradition—what one man did.

He was William L. McGonagle, now a captain, and on June 8, 1967 a commander in charge of the USS Liberty, a spy ship stationed off the Sinai Peninsula listening to the roar of the Israeli-Egyptian war. As with the Pueblo, there were communication foul-ups. The Pentagon had radioed her to move farther to sea, but the message was misrouted and not received until after the Liberty had been holed 821 times by strafing Israeli jets, hit by a torpedo and had had 34 of her men killed and 75 wounded, including McGonagle.

Her compass out, her heavy rudder manhandled by the crew in place of her destroyed steering gear, the Liberty staggered seaward. McGonagle, faint from the loss of blood that squished in his shoe, occasionally lay down on the deck of the bridge. But he kept the conn for almost 17 hours, steering by the North star and checking the ship's weaving wake.

Said the Liberty's doctor: "Having the conn and the helm through the night and calling every change of course was the thing that told the men 'we're going to live.' When I went to the bridge and saw this ... I knew that I could only insult this man by suggesting that he be taken below for treatment of his wounds. I didn't even suggest it."

* * *

"It would have taken 10 men the doctor's size even to begin to get him off the bridge," said an ensign.

A reserve yeoman was later asked at a court of inquiry if it had ever been considered to abandon ship. "No, sir," he replied. "In the Navy you don't abandon ship."

* * *

McGonagle, who brought his surviving crewmen and ship home, was given the Medal of Honor. When the ship was back in Norfolk, her home port, the parents of one of his slain crewmen drove all the way from New England to ask McGonagle a question, one that might have occurred to Pete Bucher as he stood on his bridge and faced the fire of an enemy.

"Captain," the parents asked McGonagle, "was it all necessary?"

"Yes," he replied. "It was."

That seemed to satisfy them.

German-Built Satellite in Orbit

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A 157-pound German-built satellite is in orbit the first vehicle in a cooperative program of West Germany and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The craft soared aloft Friday atop a four-stage Scout rocket. It is designed to stay in an orbit ranging from 240 to 2,000 miles above the earth for a year, studying the earth's radiation belt, the northern lights and solar particles.

Windows Have No Bars in New Sparks, Nev., Jail

SPARKS, Nev. (AP) — There are no bars on the windows of the new city jail to be opened in March.

"Because a person commits a crime doesn't mean he shouldn't be treated as a human being," Police Chief Robert Galli said Friday of the jail with brightly painted blue cells.

* * *

The glass windows, however, are a quarter-inch thick and of a type considered indestructible, he said.

The jail has a laundry room and kitchen for prisoners.

Today's Fun-Lovers Share an Easy Access to Drugs

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second in a three-part series on drug abuse.)

By YOLANDA BENAVIDES

Whatever the psychological drive that motivates members of the "fun-loving generation" to seek a mental detour from reality, the one thing they share is easy access to drugs.

MISS BENAVIDES

"It's super-easy to get anything you want if you just open your eyes and look around," remarked a 17-year-old Pontiac youth.

* * *

"You can see it (pills capsules) being passed back and forth in high school hallways if you know what to look for" said Mrs. Andrew Goldstein a social worker for Oakland County Catholic Social Services.

Following news of a recent drug raid at Oakland University a Pontiac youth mused: "Nobody is in-between out there. You're either messed up (on drugs) or superstraight."

THEY'RE AVAILABLE

Unlike the hard-core addictive drugs like heroin or morphine that are often Mafia-linked, the synthetics and their popular sidekicks are usually obtained from friends according to users.

Like the cliche superstraights (known as hicks in the 1950s) the freaks (those that trip) band together at school and socially they say.

* * *

There's an initiation: ripping out or getting stoned with whatever is available at the time.

Due to legal repercussions drug abusers are tight-lipped to outsiders about their connections.

However for those who indulge, the grapevine always has news concerning fresh supplies.

FAR AFIELD

Shipments can come from as far way as California, as well as New York, Ann Arbor or Detroit.

* * *

Locally, you might be lucky to know a friend of a friend of a friend who ...

* * *

"My friends aren't very particular. We'll take whatever happens to come along" said a Pontiac Northern High School graduate.

If the shipment is big most of the time friends pool their money and resell at a profit, according to the youth.

USERS ARE LEGION

Although most police agree that the actual number of drug abusers far exceeds those arrested, police records are probably the most accurate indication of the popular drugs.

* * *

According to statistics published in "Our Drug Problem," prepared by the Youth Bureau of the Bloomfield Township Police Department to aid in educating the community on drugs, the three most utilized are, in order:

• Marijuana — more commonly known as pot, grass, tea, Acapulco Gold, Mary Jane and brick.

* * *

Marijuana, as grown in the United States is probably the mildest of all hallucinogens and the most widely accepted by all social groups.

Although it is not physically addictive like hard narcotics, some doctors argue that it can be emotionally addictive, a crutch to escape from reality much like alcohol. Still disputed is whether there is actual physical harm from marijuana.

A joint (rolled cigarette) usually sells for under $1 — up to $1.50, depending on the supply. Nickel bags (¼ ounce or more) sell for around $5, dime bags (one ounce) $10 and a kilo (around 2.2 pounds) for about $200, the police reported.

* * *

• Stimulants or amphetamines suc as methedrine dexidrene and benzedrine — commonly known as speed, dexies, bennies, hearts, footballs, pep pills.

* * *

Because they activate the central nervous system amphetamines — known as the "up" drugs — are often prescribed to check fatigue or curb weight.

Again, physical dependence is not a resulting factor. However, over a period of time, a tolerance is developed to the point where dosage must be increased, authorities report.

MANY FORMS

Speed is sold in capsule, powder, liquid or crystal form. Individual capsules sell from 50 cents to $1.

• LSD — commonly known as acid, cubes, flats.

Although an average dose of LSD is no more than a speck or a droplet from the point of a pin, the user can trip for 7 to 8 hours.

* * *

In affecting the mind, medical authorities say the hallucinogen usually provokes bizarre mental reactions and striking distortions in physical senses — sight touch, smell and hearing.

While LSD is reportedly not physically addicting, hospitals have told of such adverse effects as extreme panic, paranoia, recurrence and accidental death.

OTHER HALLUCINOGENS

Other hallucinogens include mescaline, DMT, STP and psilocybin.

* * *

Acid doses usually run between $3 to $5.

Typical Addict Steals to Feed His Heroin Habit

There is another side to the psychedelic world a drug user lives in. For someone hooked on heroin, the euphoria and giddiness usually is tempered by the constant fear he will not be able to get another "fix" soon enough.

According to Pontiac police, there are hundreds of such addicts within the city. Their habits require up to $100 a day to keep them high and keep them from crashing into "cold turkey," the painful withdrawal symptoms an addict experiences if he "runs dry."

* * *

Eddie (not his real name) is a 20-year-old addict who lives on Pontiac's South Side with his wife and two young children. Although he is unemployed, he spends $60 to $70 a day on his habit.

His addiction has led him to crime, caused his health to deteriorate, and put his marriage and family life on the brink of complete failure.

DISTORTED PICTURE

The appealing picture painted by many young drug users is much distorted for Eddie. Using heroin is not captivation, but rather entrapment. Instead of a means of escape, it has become a cause for running.

Eddie's hands and fingers are swollen smooth — the result of the four or five hypodermic injections of heroin he must have every day.

* * *

Eddie buys his "stuff" from pushers on the South Side. "It's usually easy to get. They get it in Detroit."

It comes to him as a capsule filled with the white powdery opium derivative.

3-6 AT A TIME

"The caps usually cost about $2 each, and I use from three to six at a time."

The powder is melted into a solution, drawn into a hypodermic needle and injected (mainlined) into a vein which bulges out because the arm or leg first is tied in a tourniquet.

* * *

Eddie knows the veins in his arm eventually will collapse, so he also shoots in his ankle and thigh. "But I'll never shoot it in the neck," he vows.

There was no chain of events that got him hooked on hereoin. "I just started taking it," he said.

HE'S NOT ASHAMED

When he speaks of his addiction, Eddie doesn't act particularly ashamed. He acts rather nonchalant about it as if it's something that's very common ... that everyone does.

"Sure I want to get off it, but it's impossible to explain how hard it is," he says. "Sometimes I wish my wife would take it, too, so she'd know how hard it is to stop and what it feels like when you're 'up.'"

* * *

What it feels like under the influence of "horse," as it's called, is difficult for Eddie to explain.

However, he said that after you become addicted, you no longer get high from a hit.

MORE GRATING

Soon it becomes the only way an addict can feel "normal" — so the stark experiences of withdrawal become much more grating.

"You just feel good," he says. "There's no such thing as a bad day as long as you've got enough stuff to keep you going."

"It's easier for me to steal when I'm high. I'm not as afraid — I don't have as many inhibitions."

Eddie admits that he's victimized by a vicious circle because he's hooked. He has to steal to get money to pay for heroin, and he needs heroin to give him courage to steal.

* * *

There is no particular pattern to what Eddie steals. "I know some people that only steal clothes, or TVs or auto accessories, but for me, I get hard up and take anything I can."

BIGGEST FEAR

His biggest fear — it rules his life 24 hours a day — is running short of heroin and going cold turkey.

"It hurts if you don't have the horse, so you have to steal to get the money to pay for it." To satisfy his habit and prevent withdrawal pains, the addict faces another dilemma. If police catch him possessing narcotics or stealing, he goes to jail — where the cold turkey will strike.

"The pain is unbearable. I need a hit every four or five hours. If I don't get it, my eyes and nose start running, I get chills and become very nervous.

"My stomach starts cramping and I ache all over. I'd rather get beat up in a fight than crash.

STILL, THE URGE

"After three days I'd still feel miserable — it might take a month to get over completely, but I'd probably still have the urge," he said.

* * *

"I've tried it all," Eddie admits. "Codeine, cocaine, pills. Marijuana didn't show me nothin'," he added.

* * *

After he got hooked, Eddie had to quit his job in a local factory. "I used to take a hit before work and another at lunch — you know — you just don't care. But you can't work enough to support the habit. You have to steal."

The regularity of a steady job also conflicts with the irregularity of the addict's habits.

Eddie admitted that the last regular meal he had was about a week ago.

LIVES ON SWEETS

You just don't feel like eating a lot. I live mostly on sweets — candy, cake and cookies." He says that his sleeping habits are quite irregular.

* * *

"Everything goes for the habit," said Eddie. "I want to get out of this life. I'm confused. I don't want to lose my family. I want to get off it — I tell my wife I do — but then I start messing around again."

How long does he think he'll live?

* * *

"I don't know. If I continue to shoot I could die anytime. I know it hurts my body, and there's always the chance of an OD — an overdose or a mixture that's too strong or too pure."

* * *

"I know if I want to quit I have to take the big step and make up my mind to do it. I can ask for all the help in the world, but the willpower to stop must be mine."

What Wall Street Did

NEW YORK (AP) — A prime utility bond issue the past week set a record high yield for top-quality debt obligation.

On Wednesday, Consumers Power Co.'s $55-million 8¼ per cent triple-A rated first mortgage bonds were offered to the public at a price to give an investor yield of 8.30 per cent at maturity in 30 years.

Institutional and individual response was immediate and warm.

While the week saw most bond prices again declining, municipal prices showed improvement. New-issue municipals came at lower yield levels and attracted the poorest investor reception since last August, according to Salomon Brothers & Hutzler, national investment firm.

For the second time since late September, rate restrictions prevented the Department of Housing and Urban Development from receiving bids on a substantial portion of a new bond issue.

Government bond prices rose prior to President Nixon's Vietnam speech Monday but subsequently gave up their gains. Long-term governments lost another ¾ of a point and were only 1¼ points above their 1969 lows.

Intermediate governments lost a half a point and closed at about 2 and ¼ points above their 1969 lows.

Most short-term rates rose by ¼ of a point by the week's end. The three-month Treasury bill rate rose to within 5 basis points of its 1969 high, while the six-month rate was 14 basis points below its high.

Eurodollar rates initially rose but declined to close lower for the period. The federal funds rate was as high as 10 per cent.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted its strongest daily advance of the week Friday, with all the averages finishing well in the plus columns.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which climbed during the whole session, registered its best daily gain in a week, finishing ahead 5.28 at 860.48. The DJI average last penetrated the 860 level Oct. 27.

The New York Stock Exchange index of 1,200 common stocks closed at 55.07, up 0.34.

Analysts cited several factors influencing trading Friday, one of which was a statement by a noted economist, Milton Friedman, that some easing in interest rates might be close at hand.

Richard Scruggs, Goodbody & Co. analyst, also saw as a positive influence newspaper reports that President Nixon might announce further Vietnam troop withdrawals in the near future.

Several analysts pointed to the winning performance of American Telephone, which closed at 53¾, up 2¼, after being in the doldrums for several weeks.

Heavy trading in AT&T stock was attributed to indications that the Federal Communications Commission would permit the utility a rate of return higher than that recommended by an earlier agency study.

"When a bellwether stock like American Telephone moves up, it gives a greater stability and tone to the market and creates confidence among investors," commented Larry Wachtel, Bache & Co. vice president.

Also cited as an incentive were the many mutual funds utilizing their backlog cash on glamor issues, such as the computer stocks.

ADC Mothers Win Support

Clothing Cash Push Is Urged

DETROIT (AP) — The Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit announced yesterday that vicars in its eight counties have recommended to John Cardinal Dearden that a campaign be launched to get poor families a clothing allowance "sufficient to protect needy children against the winter's cold."

* * *

The vicars also requested Auxiliary Bishop Walter J. Schoenherr to work with other religious and also civic groups to unite in an effort to see what they termed inadequate welfare allowances do not keep poor children suffering this winter.

* * *

The vicars set no dollar value on the relief they proposed.

* * *

In recent weeks mothers receiving Aid to Dependent Children have picketed Wayne County welfare offices to support demands for back-to-school allowances of $75 for each child.

The Rev. Robert V. Monticello, director of the archdiocesan Department of Christian Service, said in a statement that "all welfare assistance, whether it be aid to dependent children or old age assistance, or anything in between, is woefully deficient."

Americans use about five billion gallons of water per day.

He Imagines False Beliefs Will Be Mythed

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- The past decade or so has been open season on myths in this country. Almost every time you turn around someone is attacking, and in some cases destroying, a myth.

WEST

This wanton destruction has been condoned because of the belief that myths are harmful. Which is itself a myth.

* * *

There are, to be sure, many bad myths. The world undoubtedly is better off without them. But some myths are benign and help make life bearable for people who tend to wilt under constant exposure to reality.

If indiscriminate destruction continues at the present rate, myths will soon disappear entirely. We need some conservationist group to campaign for the preservation of myths, as the Sierra Club did for the California redwoods.

A LITTLE HELP

Perhaps the few remaining myths could be put under government protection, like the whooping cranes.

I would not be speaking out on this matter had I not happened to receive a press release that reported something called the Clairol Blondes Information Bureau is compiling statistics "for the destruction of the myth that blondes are dumb."

* * *

Holy hair rinse; that really made by blood boil; I mean, if we can no longer believe in the vacuity of blondes, what is there left to believe in?

Fortunately, however, there is no immediate cause for alarm. The data that Clairol has dug up thus far is totally unconvincing.

AN EXAMPLE

It cites, for example, the Cockeysville, Md., chapter of MENSA, an organization whose sole requirement for membership is an IQ higher than that of 98 per cent of the general population.

Of the 14 women members of the Cockeysville local, it says, "Only three or four are brunettes or redheads." Which proves absolutely nothing.

In order for that statistic to be meaningful, we would have to know how many of the remaining 10 or 11 women members were blondes originally.

The very vagueness of the figures "only three or four" indicates there is quite a lot of color switching among the Cockeysville ladies.

QUITE A CLIP

Clairol itself concedes that American women are "going blonde" at the rate of 1.5 million a year. Which means that for sure, but if you ever encounter a smart blonde, you can be pretty certain she has been artificially raised by the infiltration of brainy brunettes, a dye job.

Only her hairdresser knows the blonde intelligence average is being

Jaycees to Decide on Primary Drive

CADILLAC (AP)—Representatives of the Michigan Jaycees decide today whether they will conduct a petition drive seeking support for a presidential primary in Michigan.

The organization's executive committee has already approved the petition drive as have several legislators and Gov. William Milliken.

About 2,000 delegates and guests are attending the organization's two-day convention which opened Friday.

Noel Coward Nears 70---and Week's Fete

LONDON (AP) -- Noel Coward, blithe spirit of the British theater, will be 70 years old next month, and virtually everybody in the arts is getting ready for a weeklong birthday celebration.

Coward spends most of his time in Jamaica or Switzerland these days to escape taxes, but he will be here for the festivities.

* * *

"It's holy week," he said puckishly.

The jam-packed week of nothing but Noel Coward—his birthday is Dec. 16—s impressive. British television is reviving some of the maestro's great productions -- "Bitter Sweet," "Blithe Spirit," "Hay Fever."

FAVORITE FILM

The National Theatre is reviving the film Coward likes best of all his 60 years' output as actor, composer, director and producer. That is the wartime classic "In Which we Serve."

A battalion of celebrities will converge on the Savoy to honor Coward at a charity ball, proceeds of which will go to actors' charities.

* * *

Coward has turned out a major production for each of the 60 years he has been in the theater.

He's had his flops, but mostly his hand cranked out hits.

REJECTED KNIGHTHOOD

As for honors, Coward turned down knighthood 20 years ago. He recalled: "I was told that the king (George VI) would like to honor me, and I replied that while I would of course do anything he wished I would rather he didn't offer me a knighthood."

NOEL COWARD

Half serious, half in jest, Coward said he thought plain Noel Coward on the theater marquee was better billing that Sir Noel.

* * *

Once again the rumor is spreading that the queen's New Year's list just might include Coward's knighthood. Neither the palace nor the prime minister's office, which makes up the list of honors, is likely to comment.

The Noel Coward week was triggered by a biography of Coward, "A Talent to Amuse," by Sheridan Morley, son of actor Robert Morley and grandson of Gladys Cooper.

REPARTEE KING

Coward finds it hard to believe he is approaching 70. Physically he seems sound as a drum. Mentally he is sharp as ever.

At repartee he's left a trail of losers.

* * *

None bit the dust harder than the late Hannen Swaffer, a Fleet Street journalistic giant who called on Coward in his dressing room. Swaffer said, "I have always maintained that you act much better than you write."

Said Coward: "How odd, I'm always saying the same about you."

Brother of Abandoned Girl Sought

Parents Silent About Son

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Authorities drew a blank yesterday when the mother of Jeffrey Lansdown, 8, and her common-law husband refused to answer questions at a Juvenile Court hearing called to determine the boy's whereabouts.

* * *

Jeffrey is the brother of 5-year-old Jody Fouquet, who was abandoned on a freeway near Bakersfield Oct. 25. The boy has been reported missing for several months.

"I do not know where he is," Deputy Dist. Atty. John Stillman said as he left the courtroom after the two-hour closed hearing. "We know there is a Jeffrey. We have his birth certificate."

Court sources said Mrs. Betty Fouquet, 26, and Ronald Fouquet, 31, gave only their names and addresses before pleading the Fifth Amendment. They were brought here from Bakersfield, Calif., on a court order to answer the question, "Where is Jeffrey?"

The Fouquets face charges in deputies. Her eyes were red and Bakersfield of child abuse and swollen. Fouquet was handcuf- abandonment for allegedly fed and held the manacled leaving Jody on the freeway hands in front of his face as he last month. walked past photographers after the hearing.

* * *

Judge Robert A. Wenke ordered the Fouquets to return to court Nov. 25 in a further effort to develop information on the boy. Stillman told newsmen the Nov. 25 hearing would be held to determine whether Mrs. Fouquet's children should be made court wards.

Billy Joe Lansdown, 35, Camas Valley, Ore., Mrs. Fouquet's former husband and the father of both Jody and Jeffrey, also appeared before Wenke. He testified he has not seen the boy since 1965, according to a sheriff's department spokesman. Lansdown said he had tried several times to get information on Jeffrey but had no success.

Mrs. Fouquet, eight months pregnant with her seventh child, was tight-lipped as she walked from the court flanked by

When Jody was picked up by Kern County authorities, she told them her name was "Smith." However, a newspaper picture drew the attention of a former neighbor, who identified Mrs. Fouquet, a resident of suburban Bell Gardens, as her mother.

'Nixon Letters to Ho Were Pre-Inaugural'

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Nixon initiated an exchange of letters with North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh shortly after his election but before he had been inaugurated, the American Broadcasting Co. reported yesterday.

* * *

According to the ABC report by Washington correspondent Bill Gill, Nixon did not inform Lyndon B. Johnson, who still was president. The report said that when Johnson learned of the contact, he told Nixon "to stay out of foreign affairs until he entered the White House officially" Jan. 20.

The incident occured in mid-November.

TWO LETTERS

The two letters to Ho Chi Minh were in addition to the exchange President Nixon released in his Vietnam speech Monday.

Gill said the exchange with Ho came at a time when Johnson was trying to arrange secret talks with Hanoi through Russian intermediaries.

Juror Locked Up for Anniversary

OTTAWA, Ont. (AP) — Edna Knowlton expected to observe her 29th wedding anniversary with a quiet dinner with her husband at home. Instead, she wound up sharing the evening with 11 fellow jurors at a local hotel where they were housed for the duration of a capital murder trial.

* * *

Because capital murder juries are denied any communication with the outside world, Mrs. Knowlton and her husband had to exchange anniversary greetings by telephone.

Reflections

A LIVING TRIBUTE

Many kind and compassionate people live their entire lives with the thought of their stricken and less fortunate brethren. One of the finest and noblest acts that can be performed in behalf of such an individual is a donation to a charitable organization in their name. J. L. VOORHEES

A few of the charitable causes to which such donations may be made are, cancer fund, heart fund, hospitals, or the church of their choice.

M. E. SIPLE

Donations to these charitable organizations may be made through your local funeral director, clergyman, or simply by placing a check in an addressed envelope in care of your local postmaster.

In Memoriam 2

IN MEMORY of Leonard Gerald Gordon, who passed away Nov. 8, 1967.
It broke our hearts to lose you.
But you did not go alone.
For part of us went with you.
The day God called you home.
God gave us strength to bear it.
But what it meant to lose you.
No one will ever know.
To our hearts there comes a longing.
If you could just come home
Until memories of life departs.
You'll live forever in our hearts.
Sadly missed by his mother and family.

IN LOVING MEMORY of Mary E. Thorsberg, who passed away Nov. 9, 1967.
As time goes on.
And days pass by.
In our hearts a memory is kept,
Of one we loved and will never forget.
Sadly missed by husband, children and grandchildren.

IN LOVING MEMORY of my mother, Ethel Moyle, who passed away Nov. 9, 1968.
When all our family gathers near,
There leaves a vacant chair.
For the gentle one we love so dear,
Is gone but not forgot.
It seems like only yesterday,
That bessie her we could be.
To share her joys and loving ways.
Now these, are only memories.
She filled our lives with happiness.
And gave us all her love.
And for all the years we shared with her, I thank the Lord above.
Sadly missed by her daughter Emma and family.

IN LOVING Memory of my wife, Ethel Moyle, who passed away Nov. 9, 1968.
It broke my heart to lose you.
But you did not go alone.
A part of me went with you.
That day God called you home.
God gave me strength and courage.
To take the blow.
But what it meant to lose you.
No one will ever know.
Sadly missed by husband.

IN LOVING MEMORY of my Mother, Mrs. Ethel Moyle, who passed away November 9, 1968.
Our family circle has been broken.
A link gone from our chain.
But though we're parted for awhile,
We know we'll meet again;
Someday we hope to meet you,
Someday we know not when;
We shall meet in a better land,
And never part again.
Sadly missed by daughter and son-in-law, Mary Lou and Jack.

SALESMEN ARE RARE—
You Have to Find Them
One at a Time

CERTIFIED LABORATORIES INC. is looking for a special kind of man—not a specialized set of skills.

Our many faceted business involves the manufacture and sale of specialty chemicals and related product lines to the industrial, institutional, and commercial markets, and we need outstanding men in sales and sales management. The backgrounds of our men are varied; many are experienced salesmen, some not. We are interested in the men and are willing to invest our time, money, and effort in training the right man to become successful.

If you can work well under normal business pressures, make decisions, and learn to lead others, CERTIFIED LABORATORIES can offer you an outstanding career opportunity now.

The average income of our salesmen after their first year is over $17,500 annually and they have a growth potential dependent only on their ability. Rewards are directly proportional to individual effort.

We have been growing at a 20% rate annually for the past eight (8) years and intend to continue. Thus, at CERTIFIED you don't stand in line for opportunity; your future is limited only by yourself.

If interested, we would like to talk with you.

For DETROIT interview, please call Lou Schwartz COLLECT, Monday, Nov. 10th, 313-357-4707 in Detroit. If unable to call, please write.

WATER LOVER — This arctic dovekie picked up near Portland, Maine, is one of hundreds blown ashore in the northeast storms during the past week. The webfooted bird cannot take off from land, but should be allowed to rest and then be released over the ocean or a large lake, say Audubon officials. The dovekies are on their seasonal flight south.

MARRIED ALREADY — Sgt. Albert Nirenstein of Stanford, Conn., is with his bride, formerly Capt. Nancy Dunker of Midlothian, Ill. The couple jumped the gun on a big wedding planned in New York City tomorrow by getting married two weeks ago.

Married Pair Set Big Wedding

NEW YORK (AP) — The plans for the wedding Sunday of a Vietnam amputee and his Army nurse were all set. A New York hotel contributed a $600-a-day penthouse. A Hawaiian honeymoon was arranged. Even President Nixon sent his congratulations.

Then the bride's mother revealed the news: The couple was married two weeks ago.

The wedding with all the trimmings will go on as scheduled, however, for Albert Nirenstein and Nancy Dunker, who met about a year ago when Nancy, 25, was made head nurse of the Valley Forge Army Hospital ward where Al, 22, was a patient. The former sergeant had lost both his legs when he stepped on a land mine in Vietnam.

The Disabled American Veterans arranged to bring Al and Nancy to New York City along with 50 other Vietnam amputees.

* * *

The New York Hilton contributed a $600-a-day penthouse for the wedding, planned a reception with champagne and pheasant, and offered a honeymoon at another Hilton hotel in Hawaii.

CBS, NBC Reject Slams About Chicago Coverage

NEW YORK (AP) — Spokesmen for two television networks have rejected charges made by two sides of a House Commerce subcommittee that coverage of the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago appeared one-sided.

* * *

"Our coverage was as fair and balanced and objective as humanly possible, especially given the conditions with which we had to work," said a spokesman for the Columbia Broadcasting System. "The FCC and the Walker Report sustained us."

A spokesman for the National Broadcasting Co. said, "We believe our coverage was fair, accurate and responsible."

* * *

The charges were made in a report by the aides, dated July 23, submitted to Chairman Harley O. tSaggers, D-W. Va., of the investigations panel.

* * *

The report said "There seems to be substantial evidence of animosity by members of the TV news organizations against the Democratic party" that "seems to have been reflected in the slanting of the reporting of the events."

* * *

A spokesman at ABC had no immediate comment on the report.

Rock Festival Falsity Denied

DETROIT (UPI) — A 25-year-old rock festival promoter yesterday denied Detroit Free Press charges that he falsely advertised four major rock acts he did not have under contract for a controversial, shortened "black arts" festival on halloween.

Mike Quatro, promoter of the event, called the Free Press's charges "misleading."

* * *

"We feel the vast majority of the people there saw a good show and were quite happy with the general atmosphere and the fact is that for $5 they saw 16 acts, ranging from magic to mysticism to hard rock.

* * *

"We have looked into the circumstances that resulted in a this show being less than perfect and we can assure the music fans of Detroit that these same circumstances will not be allowed to happen again," Quatro said.

* * *

"In the 100 concerts that we have organized we have never had a show closed down, or a less than perfect artistic performance."

Two Policemen Appeal Warning Shot Suspension

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Two Grand Rapids patrolmen, who drew one-day suspensions for firing warning shots during chases, have appealed their suspensions to the city's civil service board.

The Fraternal Order of Police is handling the appeals by Robert Vandenhout and Donald Williams.

* * *

Williams was suspended after he fired into the air while trying to stop a man fleeing from a burglarized service station Sept. 21 and Vandenhout discharged his pistol Sept. 23 while trying to stop a man wanted on several charges, including fleeing from an officer.

* * *

In both instances, the fleeing man stopped after the shot was fired.

Animated cartoon spots, patterned after television commercials, will entertain and teach the preschool audience of "Sesame Street," which debuts on Channel 56 Monday at 10 a.m. The spots can be inserted as required during each daily, hour-long show. The rocket countdown sequence (left) is used to familiarize preschoolers with numbers. The second spot tells a 60-second story full of words that start with "J," emphasizing sound as well as sight of the letter. The third, a 10-second spot, demonstrates sound and sight of the letter "M." The fourth features a know-it-all little girl who prissily promises to demonstrate what "thought" means by pouring a bucket of paint through the pipe. (She gets doused when it comes "through" all over her.)

Just When They've Got Boosters

Apollo 12 to Upstage New Programs

Television's new fall programs, off the pad just long enough to attract some boosters, are due to be upstaged this week and next by America's space program.

The upstaging starts Friday when Apollo 12, the United States' second moon-landing mission, begins with liftoff at 11:22 a.m.

* * *

All three major networks will preempt programming for coverage of the launch and a telecast from the spacecraft scheduled for three hours after launch. Regular schedules also will be preempted Saturday, Nov. 15 as developments merit.

Back on earth, Julie Andrews, Harry Belafonte, Dean Acheson, Norman Rockwell, Bill Cosby and Johnny Carson are in the spotlight in a flock of specials. A children's educational series previews Saturday at 5 p.m. on Channel 4 and begins its daily schedule Monday at 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Channel 56.

ABC, 1, 2, 3

Opening its doors to preschool "scholars," "Sesame Street," as the children's show is known, aims to present the ABCs and 1,2,3s in enthralling fashion to the younger set.

"An Evening With Julie Andrews and Harry Belafonte" brings those two stars together to perform a number of songs in a one-hour show starting at 9 p.m. Sunday on Channel 4.

* * *

Dean Acheson, former secretary of state, is interviewed by Eric Sevareid at his home in Maryland in a 30-minute special Sunday at 5:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

NBC begins a really special evening Wednesday with Bill Cosby featuring Fat Albert in the first animated TV special for Bill at 7:30.

HOUR OF COMEDY

Following that, at 8, "Johnny Carson's Repertory Company" holds sway in an hour of comedy featuring George C. Scott, Maureen Stapleton and Marian Mercer.

At 9, the Supremes and the Temptations will move the Motown sound to Broadway for some musical comedy.

* * *

Rounding off the evening, Norman Rockwell, well-known for his covers for the now-defunct Saturday Evening Post, tells the story behind one of his most famous works, and Jonathan Winters hosts the one-hour look at the dean of Americana illustrators beginning at 10 p.m.

Jonathan Winters has a glint in his eye as he seeks inspiration while standing in front of Norman Rockwell magazine illustrations in "Norman Rockwell's America," a musical variety special, bringing the famed Rockwell illustrations to life, to be broadcast at 10 p.m. Wednesday on Channel 4. Winters will be the host.

The Cover

Julie and Harry on the cover ot The Pontiac Press TV Schedule this week are the stars of "An Evening With Julie Andrews and Harry Belafonte" Sunday at 9 p.m. on Channel 4.

Pesticide Residue Traced in Turkeys

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government inspectors are making an intensive check of turkeys bound for the Thanksgiving market after finding traces of a powerful pesticide in tens of thousands of the birds.

Agriculture Department officials say they are confident no contaminated turkeys reached the retail markets, and that all turkey products in federally inspected processing plants are being checked.

★ ★ ★

The investigation began after residue of heptacholor, a long-lived pesticide ranking in toxicity with DDT, was discovered in a Minnesota processing plant Oct. 9. The department spokesman said the plant was using birds supplied by Arkansas Valley Industries, Ltd. (AVI), headquartered at Little Rock.

Spokesmen in Little Rock declined comment last night, but said they would issue a statement later.

Department officials said that of 150,000 birds checked on ranches supplying the Arkansas company, 90,000 were found to have residue traces and the rest were uncontaminated.

Another 150,000 live turkeys on farms supplying AVI are to be checked before they are released for slaughter.

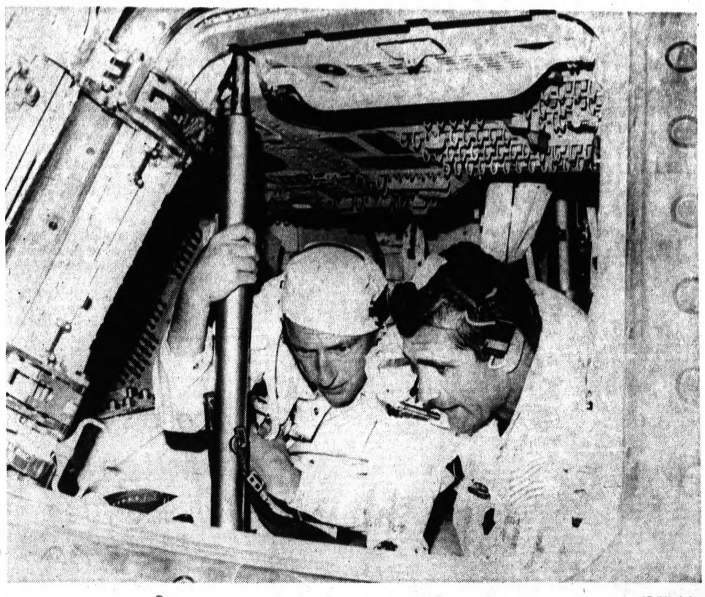

★ ★ ★

Also being detained for checking in federally inspected processing plants are four million pounds of turkey meat.

Officials indicated the investigation extended to states other than Arkansas and Minnesota, but would not name them or the processors involved.

Food and Drug Administration regulations permit no traces of pesticide residue in meat and poultry products. Turkeys or turkey-products found to be contaminated are condemned.

Heptacholor is a pesticide that is frequently applied to the soil to kill grub worms and other insects.

Nixon May Back Meat Act Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is expected to support a proposed year's delay in implementing a new law setting minimum nationwide standards for intrastate meat packing plants, according to government sources.

If the delay — in the form of a Senate bill — is not approved by Congress and signed by the President by Dec. 15, the 1967 Wholesome Meat Act becomes effective despite reports the states are not prepared for it.

★ ★ ★

The law covers about 16,000 plants packing 15 per cent of the nation's meat.

The Agriculture Department has not taken an official stance on the bill being pushed by Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb.

SBA TELLS OF BACKING

A Small Business Administration (SBA) spokesman confided, however, that the "Agriculture Department has backed the bill to give another year's time."

★ ★ ★

Packers dealing in more than one state already are subject to federal inspection. The 1967 act requires states to set up standards for plants operating entirely within their boundaries, and the regulations have to be at least as tough as those for interstate operators. Under the law, however, a state making progess toward standards can be given an extra year to complete the program.

★ ★ ★

Agriculture Department officials have said they expect very few states to be making satisfactory initial progress by Dec. 15, allowing the department to move into the states with federal inspectors. To date, no state has been certified as having met requirements.

★ ★ ★

Curtis said yesterday that although he hasn't heard if the White House intends to support his bill, he hasn't "heard any opposition either."

★ ★ ★

The SBA spokesman noted that loans to packers for updating facilities have dwindled to less than half the 1968 rate because word is circulating "the heat's off" for compliance with the law this year.

CHARGED IN ASSAULT—George W. Baker, (right) 51, of Miami, Fla., is escorted from the Federal Building at Miami yesterday after his bond was set at $200,000 on a charge of assaulting a federal officer. Assistant U.S. Attorney Mike Osman said Baker had written President Nixon in May saying that if his son in Vietnam is killed, he would kill every federal officer he could find from members of the draft borad all the way up to the President.

2 Held as Suspects in Threats on Nixon

MIAMI (AP) — Two men have been arrested in connection with threats on the life of President Nixon. Both threats were linked to the Vietnam war.

★ ★ ★

Assistant U.S. Attorney Mike Osman said George W. Baker, 51, of Miami, was arrested on a charge of assaulting a federal officer. Osman said John Anthony Baker, 24, of Breezewood, Pa., was charged with threatening the life of the President. Osman said the two were not related.

★ ★ ★

Both men, arrested here Thursday shortly before the President arrived for a weekend at his Key Biscayne retreat, were ordered held on $200,000 bond and both remained in jail.

★ ★ ★

Osman said the Miami man wrote to Nixon in May and said if his son in Vietnam was killed he would kill every federal official he could find, from the President down to members of the local draft board.

WENT TO HOUSE

"Because the President was coming to Florida the Secret Service went to his house Thursday," Osman said, "and he invited them inside."

★ ★ ★

Osman said Baker took a high-powered rifle with a telescopic sight from behind his chair, "loaded it and pointed it at them," saying he was "ready to discuss whtever they had to discuss with him."

★ ★ ★

A Secret Service official in Washington, D.C., Jack Warner, said John Baker had been wanted since Oct. 20 when a warrant charging he had threatened the President was issued in Pittsburgh. John Baker waived extradition to Pennsylvania Thursday.

★ ★ ★

The charge alleges that John Baker told a law enforcement officer in Pittsburgh Oct. 2: "Remember my name because I will assassinate the President if the troops aren't out of Vietnam by 1970."

Woman Is Held in City Slaying

Mrs. Lozell Reed, 18, was arrested by city police this morning in connection with the murder of her 28-year-old husband.

Police found Lozell Reed lying face up on the dining room floor of the Reed home, 489 Going, at 3:06 a.m. after his wife had rushed to a neighbor's home to report that her husband had been shot.

★ ★ ★

Reed was dead at the scene, according to police, with a single bullet hole in the middle of his chest. A derringer and jackknife were found nearby, police reported.

According to police, Mr. and Mrs. Reed had been arguing shortly before the shooting.

PRONOUNCED DEAD

Reed was pronounced dead on arrival at Pontiac General Hospital.

Mrs. Nick Shorter, 42, of 485 Going reported the shooting to police. Her husband was the first to discover Reed had been killed.

Mrs. Reed is being held in Oakland County Jail. Police were to seek a murder warrant against Mrs. Reed this morning.

Try Made to Link Collins, 2nd Death

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — Four Eastern Michigan fraternity brothers appeared with John Norman Collins in a lineup this week in an apparent police attempt to see if he was linked with the murder of University of Michigan graduate student Alice Kalom, one of the fraternity men said yesterday.

Collins, a 22-year-old EMU senior, is charged with killing Karen Sue Beineman, 18, an EMU coed killed July 23. She was the latest of seven young girls killed in the area in a two-year period.

Miss Kalom, the sixth of the seven victims, was found slain June 8 in a field north of here.

Ellipse Bars Accord on Viet Protest Path

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department officials and war protest leaders were about 1,000 feet — the breadth of the ellipse — from agreement today on the proposed route of the Nov. 15 mass march through Washington.

White House security officials adamantly insisted such a large group — estimates range from 100,000 to 500,000 — should not be permitted closer than 1,000 feet to the executive mansion.

The Justice Department, after consultation with the White House, agreed yesterday to let the mass march proceed next Saturday as long as the route is Constitution Avenue and the demonstrators don't make a side trip to the presidential residence.

But the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam rejected the government proposal, again saying any plan must allow marchers to pass the White House.

The New Mobilization said demonstrators feel they must make a symbolic gesture of protest to the policymaking executive branch of government.

The new stalemate surfaced after the committee dropped its demand for the march to proceed down Pennsylvania Avenue.

★ ★ ★

The protest leaders remained steadfast in demanding a swing by the White House and said Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst knew their position before he offered the latest proposal.

★ ★ ★

Under his plan, the line of march would be separated from the White House grounds by the Ellipse, a presidential park extending a block to the south from the back fence of the executive mansion.

Pro-Nixon Viet Resolution Seen Facing Senate Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — A resolution that would put the Senate on record in support of President Nixon's efforts to settle the Vietnam war appears headed for a long delay in the foreign relations committee.

It may never emerge, or may be altered considerably.

★ ★ ★

Republican leader Hugh Scott, Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and 38 cosponsors presented the resolution yesterday after Mansfield secured a provision calling on the President to seek a mutual cease-fire.

Otherwise, it is like a resolution introduced in the House Tuesday by 5 Republicans and 50 Democrats. It was approved Thursday by the House Foreign Affairs Committee and may be pushed through the full House sometime next week.

Scott said he hoped for speedy action in the Senate. Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said he expects his foreign relations committee to consider the resolution along with seven others dealing with Vietnam.

★ ★ ★

Fulbright told reporters a request from Mansfield for expedited action would carry considerable weight.

★ ★ ★

Mansfield said he expects it to be considered as part of the broad review of Vietnam to be launched in 10 days by Fulbright's committee.

State School Exec Missing

From Our News Wires

CHARLOTTE — A plane piloted by Dr. Leroy G. Augenstein, Republican member of the State Board of Education and prominent scientist, is missing and feared down in southern Michigan, officials said today.

Augenstein, 40, a member of the Michigan Board of Education, last made radio contact at 12:24 a.m., asking the Jackson tower for landing conditions at Charlotte and Lansing.

★ ★ ★

The Michigan State University professor has not been heard from since he was advised the weather was bad, police said.

He was returning from a flight to Richmond, Inc., said William Walbeck, assistant manager at the Charlotte Airport southwest of Lansing.

ONLY HOPE

"Dr. Augenstein was an extremely intelligent and practical man," Walbeck said. "I presume he would have turned around and gone south again if landing conditions were bad. Our only hope is that what he has done is got himself someplace where he can't communicate."

Federal Aviation Administration officials in Lansing said a ground search was under way 50 miles either side of a line from Fort Wayne, Ind., to Gladwin. They said at 10 a.m. weather conditions made an air search "impossible for at least another couple of hours."

Walbeck, who runs the Eaton Flying Service where Augenstein kept his 14-year-old blue and white Piper Apache, said he feared Augenstein was "down and lost."

Michigan State Police said they had checked Michigan's major airports and found Augenstein had not landed at any of them. A check of smaller airfields was under way, officers said.

School-Aid Bill Goes to State Senate Floor

LANSING (UPI) — The Senate Appropriations Committee has reported out a heavily amended version of Gov. William G. Milliken's $1-billion school aid bill, which contains provisions for state aid to nonpublic schools.

The bill was sent to the Senate floor yesterday on a bipartisan 5-2 vote with Democrat Garland Lane of Flint and Republican Harold Hungerford of Lansing voting against it.

Amendments tacked on by the committee include a formula for "bonus" state aid to poorer school districts that have low equalized property valuations and high millage levies.

They also include a provision which would require a State Supreme Court ruling on the constitutionality of state aid to private schools before the aid could begin if it is approved by the legislature.

Committee Chairman Charles O. Zollar, R-Benton Harbor, said he was pleased with results of his committee's deliberations and felt the bill had "a good chance" of Senate approval.

Zollar said the amendments make "a much better bill" because they remove many inequities in state aid to schools.

CIGARETTE PROPOSAL DELAYED

He also said the governor's proposed five-cent cigarette tax hike would not be necessary to help finance the state aid bill. The cigarette tax still is tied up in the Senate Taxation Committee.

Under one amendment, school districts with low property valuations would be eligible for "bonus" aid based on the number of property tax mills levied above 12 mills.

The bonus plan would cost the state an estimated $86 million, he said.

Another amendment would exempt from the parochiald plan those parochial schools which do not wish to receive state funds.

TENURE AMENDMENT

The committee excluded lay teachers in parochial school from the State Tenure Act.

* * *

In other action on the bill, the committee amended the plan to include a flat $150 for each public school child requiring special education.

* * *

If the bill is passed, the state will evaluate a test given to all fourth-grade students in public schools last year to determine which districts have the greatest need for special education assistance.

Gunman Holds Up Credit Union

A lone gunman last night held up the Pontiac Telephone Employees' Credit Union, 263 Oakland, leaving with $1,195 in cash, according to police.

The same credit union was robbed at about the same time — 7:50 p.m. — also on a Friday just two months ago, detectives noted.

* * *

Clerk Linda Powell of 5824 Warbler, Independence Township, was confronted by the bandit. Miss Powell said he was Negro and dressed in a black trench coat, a black short-brimmed hat and yellow wire-rimmed glasses and wore a black scarf as a mask.

Brandishing a large-caliber revolver, the gunman told Miss Powell, "Give it to me. Give it all to me," Miss Powell told police.

* * *

The gunman held a half-dozen employes at bay while stuffing bills into his pockets and a small cardboard box, according to police. No customers were in the credit union at the time.

Witnesses said the bandit ran out the front door and turned south on Oakland.

29 Lawyers Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-nine Negro, Perto Rican and Mexican-American attorneys have been charged with illegal entry following their invasion of the Office of Economic Opportunity protesting what they called the "all-white structure" of its legal services program.

* * *

The invasion yesterday took place in the office of Terry Lenzer, legal services director who, the protesters also complained, "doesn't have one nonwhite in his office."

Apollo's Conrad Expert on Moon Landing Area

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Charles Conrad Jr. is a Navy pilot and not a geologist. But scientists at the Manned Spacecraft Center say he knows more about the moon's Ocean of Storms than some men who have spent their lives studying rocks.

Conrad will land, Apollo 12 in a plain, levet to gently rolling, called the Ocean of Storms. It's very similar to the Sea of Tranquillity where Apollo 11 landed, but it's thought to have more impact craters.

"I think Conrad has been taught more, so far as this type of terrain is concerned geologically," than the average professional geologist would know about such an area, said Dr. Robin Brett, a NASA scientist here.

One thing the Apollo 12 commander is to look for in particular is a formation called a ray. This is rock splashed from a crater by the impact of a meteor. Scientists believe this material may be from the medrock of the moon and may give important clues to the moon's origin.

CONFIDENCE IN TRAINING

Geologists have enough confidence in Conrad's training to believe he needs no specific instructions of what types of rock to look for.

His instructions are simply: "Anything that you see that's interesting, pick it up."

The first 14 hours of the countdown for next Friday's launch went without a hitch and reached one of its planned holds at 2 a.m. today. The count is to resume at 9 a.m. tomorrow. The moon landing is scheduled Nov. 19.

The two 150-minute moon walks of Conrad and his crewmate, Alan Bean, will also be monitored on color television by scientists in a room adjacent to the Mission Control Center.

INSTITUTIONS

Should the scientists notice rocks of particular interest to them, they will tell Conrad or Bean to pick them up.

Brett said that most scientists now believe that "you don't need at this stage absolutely well classed geologists to be doing this job on the moon"

* * *

Conrad and Bean will be wearing saddle bags at all times they are outside the spacecraft. This will enable them to pick up and save rocks as they come to them.

Neil A.. Armstrong, commander of Apollo 11, suggested the saddlebags. He said that during his brief moon walk he saw several rocks he wanted to pick up but he had no way to carry them at the time. And, later, he said, he couldn't remember where they were.

Man to Be Tried in Assault Case

Elton Rainey will face trial Nov. 20 on two charges of assault with intent to commit murder and a charge of larceny of an auto.

The arrest Aug. 20 of Rainey, 22, of 260 W. Wilson sparked an incident in which rocks and bottles were hurled at police.

* * *

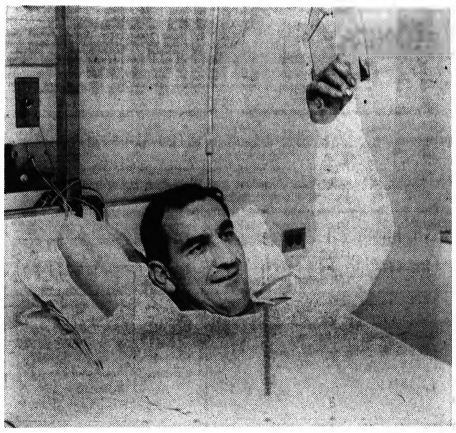

Police charged that Rainey was with George McCormick, 26, of Pontiac and another man when police tried to arrest McCormick on an armed robbery warrant. In the ensuing scuffle, Police Lt. John Depauw was wounded by gunshot while Rainey and McCormick escaped in a police car, police said.

Rainey's case was bound over for trial in Oakland County Circuit Court yesterday by Pontiac District Judge Cecil McCallum.

* * *

Rainey is being held in Oakland County Jail in lieu of a $50,000 bond.

Authorities are weighing extradition proceedings against McCormick, who is reported to have been arrested in Louisiana on an unrelated charge.

Raped Gang Figure's Daughter

Underworld, Police Hunt Killer

PARIS (AP) — Police and the shadowy forces of the French underworld competed in a grim manhunt today for a double murderer who raped the daughter of a former leading gangland figure.

The police had little doubt of the result if the underworld found the man first.

Early Wednesday, a man walked into a small but plush Montmarte bar run by a woman friend of Joe Attia, once one of the best-known names in the French underworld. Without a word, he shot and killed the barmaid and her boyfriend.

Then he forced Attia's 26year-old daughter Nicole to go to his nearby apartment and submit to him, releasing her about two hours later before taking flight.

Police say the man is a 26year-old gangster who escaped from jail a year ago and has since taken part in a string of bank robberies with a gang recently broken up by police.

Underworld sources described the man as a paranoid who had to be restrained by his bank robber companions from unnecessary violence in their raids. But they knew of no grudge he bore against Attia.

* * *

Attia, after a 90-minute meeting with top Paris detectives, said: "I cannot understand anything of this tragedy. A madman, a beast, did this."

He returned to his headquarters above the bar, where furtive figures arrived regularly night and day to report on the search.

Junior Great Books Program Needs Adults

30SI 1-3K JUNIOR GREAT BOOKS

BIRMINGHAM — Adults who read intelligently, have a sense of humor and like young people and young ideas are needed in South Oakland County as moderators for new junior great books discussion groups which will meet in public, parochial and private schools beginning next September.

The South Oakland Junior Great Books Council has finalized plans for tuition-free classes to train volunteer adults to be leaders in the junior great books program.

* * *

The classes for volunteers will start in January. They will be held once a week for eight weekly two-hour sessions, with a choice of morning, afternoon or evening hours. Some clasess will have sitter and nursery service available for preschoolers.

Deadline for enrollment is next Saturday.

5 CLASS SITES

Area classes will be in Bloomfield Hills, West Bloomfield, Birmingham, Troy, Farmington and Southfield.

The training classes cover discussion techniques, through which adults ask questions to encourage the children to analyze, criticize and evaluate an author's ideas.

* * *

Junior great books is an extracurricular program in which children read at home and meet together twice a month for 1¼ hours during or after school to discuss what they have read.

With the guidance of two adult coleaders or moderators, the children discuss ideas, philosophies and literary merits ranging from Aesop to Aristotle.

GRADES 3-12

Each group of 15 students is in the same grade. The program includes grades 3-12.

"Though the junior great books program is generally not a part of the regular school curriculum, it is developed by the parents in cooperation with individual school principals and PTAs and with the support of the school system," said Mrs. James Worley, program coordinator.

* * *

The number of children able to participate in the junior great books program next fall will depend on the number of adult coleaders trained in January.

County Road Unit, Workers in Accord

Tentative agreement on a three-year labor contract has been reached between the Oakland County Road Commission and 320 employes, members of Metropolitan Council No. 23, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

Contents of the settlement are being withheld subject to ratification by both sides. Ratification is not expected for another two weeks, according to Harvey Clark, council spokesman, and Willard McRae, the commission's personnel director.

* * *

In a joint statement yesterday, Clark and McRae said the tentative agreement was reached "under the auspices of the State Labor Mediation Board, Mr. Edwin Phillips, mediator."

It's Fiesta Time at Pontiac Mall

A Latin touch has been added to the Pontiac Mall this weekend.

Members of Pontiac's Latin American community are hosting a "fiesta" today and tomorrow featuring 14 booths selling Latin American food, are objects and other items.

* * *

The smell of tacos, tamales and enchiladas tempt mall shoppers to various booths to taste the "excellent" cooking of Mrs. Guadalupe Gonzalez at El Farolito and Mrs. Frank Ochoa at La Michocana and others.

* * *

Mexican folk dancing will be performed by Latin American teens dressed in their native costumes today at 7 p.m.

SPECIAL GUESTS

Tomorrow's special performance will include guests Congressman Jack McDonald, R-19 District; Elmer Johnson, Waterford Township supervisor, and Joseph Warren, Pontiac city manager.

* * *

The event is being sponsored by the Oakland County Commission on Economic Opportunity, Harambee, The Azteca Club of Pontiac, members of the Oakland County Board of Education Bilingual Program, Prado's Record Shop, 95 Glenwood; The Latin Youth Club and other Latin citizens.

The fiesta opened yesterday and will continue through Sunday.

Upsets Mark Elections

If conclusions can be drawn from Tuesday's elections, admittedly from a modicum of evidence, Americans are tending increasingly to vote for the man rather than a party label.

In Detroit's nonpartisan election, two good men ran for the mayoralty and the winner, ROMAN GRIBBS, defeated his black opponent, RICHARD AUSTIN, by the slimmest margin. The closeness of the vote indicated that voters were evenly divided in their appraisal of the two, with racial bias notably absent.

★ ★ ★

Both candidates are to be commended on the high-level campaigns they conducted, and the respective attitudes with which they accepted the voters' verdict.

★ ★ ★

Although Cleveland Mayor CARL STOKES, the first Negro elected to head a major U.S. city, ran as a Democrat for reelection, his victory appeared to discount party loyalty to his Republican opponent.

New York's Mayor JOHN LINDSAY staged a startling political reversal when, after being defeated as a GOP candidate for reelection at the primary election, he united Liberals and Independents with disaffected elements of the two major parties to inflict a convincing defeat on his Democratic and Republican opponents. How his success as a "hybrid" will influence the future political aspirations of a onetime Republican stalwart should offer an intriguing study in the subtleties of practical politics.

★ ★ ★

Two gubernatorial upsets will put Republicans in the statehouses of Virginia and New Jersey—in the former for the first time in a century; in the latter after a 16-year Democratic reign. Again, voters seemed more concerned with personalities than with party affiliation, although President Nixon may claim a share of credit since he campaigned on behalf of both winners.

Politically, one of the most significant results of the off-year elections is that the Republicans will move toward the important biennial elections of 1970 holding 32 governorships as against 18 held by the Democrats. With state party machinery so preponderately GOP, its prospects for further electoral gains are promising.

Cigarette Tax Hike Eyed

The taxing process has from time immemorial been faced with an immutable blend of human nature and economics—the law of diminishing returns.

Thus, when government increases the rate of an existing commodity tax on the optimistic theory that it will ipso facto produce added revenue proportionately, it frequently wakes up to the grim realization that it has outsmarted itself.

★ ★ ★

Such may be applicable to Gov. Milliken's proposal to raise the State tax on cigarettes from five cents to 12 cents per pack to help pay for his education reform program.

★ ★ ★

If the experience of New York City, whose combined city and state cigarette tax is the same as that proposed for Michigan, Lansing is in for an eye-opening experience of "buttlegging," as cigarette smuggling is termed in Manhattan. That metropolis reportedly is losing $64 million a year in uncollected taxes on cigarettes purchased from adjacent lower-tax areas.

★ ★ ★

Competitively, Michigan faces lower cigarette tax bites in two neighboring states: Ohio, with 10 cents per pack; and Indiana, six cents. It will also cost the State a substantial amount for additional tax collection machinery related to broadened budgetary proposals, $50,000 to $100,000 being envisioned for this purpose. Presumably, a sizable portion of this appropriation would go to police cigarette smuggling into the State.

★ ★ ★

All in all, it could be that with respect to Michigan's present and proposed cigarette tax income, all that glitters is not gold.

Ray Cromley

Much of Nixon Talk Aimed at Hanoi

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Make no mistake about it. Much of President Nixon's Nov. 3 speech on Vietnam was directed at Hanoi — not the American public.

CROMLEY

His television broadcast was carefully designed to strengthen the position of those men in the North Vietnamese politburo who favor a treaty rather than a continuation of full-scale war.

Nixon is certain that Hanoi won't negotiate until its leaders are convinced America will stay the course. But his advisers have also convinced him that the Paris deadlock will end quickly once Hanoi is certain he won't run.

★ ★ ★

On Nov. 3, the President therefore attempted to make it clear to Ho Chi Minh's successors that this is now Nixon's war, that he and he alone will make the decisions for the next three years and that he would rather be a one-term president than back out.

This necessity of convincing Hanoi was why Nixon insisted on repeating that he would not be swayed by the anti-Vietnam demonstrators, even though some of his advisers said this statement would only serve to fan dissent in this country.

OPEN INVITATION

This, too, is why Nixon openly invited a reaction from those who back him.

In one sense Nixon was openly inviting a confrontation at home. He gambled that the reaction of his backers would be dramatic — and that the confrontation would prove to Hanoi the nation is behind his program.

Nixon also signaled again that, so far as he was concerned, it would be fine if Hanoi wanted to take another way out of the war (if the politburo could not bring itself to meaningful negotiations at Paris).

The North Vietnamese could, Nixon indicated, simply fade away and the United States would co-operate by increasing the speed of its own withdrawals. Hanoi would not be required to agree to anything.

RECOGNITION

In this, Nixon was attempting to recognize that Hanoi, for domestic and international reasons, might not be able to compromise either on paper or verbally.

Nixon attempted to drive his purpose home by warning Hanoi that he would "not hesitate to take strong and effective measures" if he decided that "increased enemy action" jeopardized the remaining U.S. forces in Vietnam.

This, however, was the weakest part of the President's message to Hanoi. For the North Vietnamese leaders know that on several occasions Nixon has backed down.

Though the United States had indicated it would resume bombing the north if the North Vietnamese shelled South Vietnam's cities, Hanoi shelled and Nixon did not bomb.

★ ★ ★

Though Nixon had promised the North Koreans would not get away with another Pueblo incident, they shot down the American EC-121 reconnaissance plane — and Nixon did not react.

Therefore, it is unlikely Nixon's Nov. 3 warning carried much weight in North Vietnam.

Elections Reflect Cost Spiral

WASHINGTON — The trend of the off-year elections was up as well as Republican.

It cost John Lindsay approximately $3 million to be reelected mayor of New York and William Cahill spent $1.3 million to become governor of New Jersey.

BARTLETT

The new Republican governor of Virginia, Linwood Holton, is said to have made it for less than $1 million.

For all these candidates this autumn was a matter of wringing familiar sources harder.

★ ★ ★

Much political money comes from the new rich who express gratitude to the system and derive a sense of inmanship from contributing. Much comes from officers of companies expecting to do business with whoever is elected.

The financial squeeze upon candidates has begun to hurt enough so they are willing to complain aloud.

HE VOICES PLEA

Lindsay, on election eve, voiced a plea for shorter campaigns and more free television.

Outsiders are trying to embolden the members of Congress to demand more from the television stations.

The Commission on Violence proposes free time in presidential campaigns as a precaution against assassins.

The panel created by the Twentieth Century Fund has urged that the government and the broadcasters split the cost of giving saturation air time to presidential candidates.

REDUCED RATES

The Committee for an Effective Congress prodded 38 senators to propose that the broadcasters supply radically reduced rates to candidates for Congress.

The initiative has quickly stimulated the networks to declare voluntary discounts and the NBC outlet in New York opened its channel for an unprecedented procession of candidates on election eve.

The networks and broadcasters naturally prefer to keep their obligations to candidates on a voluntary basis. But Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., has shrewdly questioned whether politicians should accept the necessity to negotiate favors from broadcast companies, who are subject to Federal regulations.

An amendment suggested by political scientist Douglas Bailey would make proposed reforms more meaningful.

LIMITS ON TIME

He wants to enact specific limits on the amount of time that a TV station can sell a candidate for President or Congress. This would curb the costs as well as the profligate use of spot commercials.

Some argue that spot commercials should be totally banned.

One broadcaster, Stimson Bullitt of Seattle, maintains that "politics and political issues are too important to be left to the admen."

The politicians are right in pressing for cheaper access to television but in return they should be ready to accept some limits on their tendency to overuse the medium.

Bob Considine

Author Backs U.S. Stand in Viet, Raps Methods

NEW YORK — Sir Robert Thompson, chief architect of the British victory over the Malayan Communist guerrillas in the late 1950s, states that the American presence in Vietnam is warranted.

But he also feels we went about it the wrong way, didn't understand the people, the nature of jungle and paddy fighting, that the American people expected too much too soon, and that we halted the bombing and tried to negotiate at the wrong time.

CONSIDINE

★ ★ ★

Former Brigadier Thompson, who is now a consultant to the RAND think-tank in California, notes in his depressingly titled book, "No Exit From Vietnam," (McKay) that it took the better part of a decade for the British to straighten out the somewhat Vietnamlike situation in Malaya. (The French failed dismally in Indo-China and Algeria in the same general time span.)

He is quite critical of many aspects of the war in Vietnam and he brings to his criticism impressive credentials. He headed the British advisory commission to South Vietnam from 1961 to 1965 and saw our commitment grow volcanic.

SYMPATHY FOR NIXON

On the other hand, he sympathizes with President Nixon's most recent efforts to get done with the bloody, costly business. Thompson knows the loneliness of trying to do one's best while beset on all sides by persons who believe they have a better way out.

Sir Robert's conclusion, written some months ago:

"In 1969, the United States will have to make her choice either to end the war or to continue fighting while negotiating by adopting a long-haul low-cost strategy. The first requires only an acceptance of defeat whatever the consequences may be. The second will require courage, determination, persistence and, above all, patience.

★ ★ ★

"It could take three to five years more before Hanoi is compelled to give up her purpose and to negotiate a real settlement (or just fade away). Even then the United States could not relax.

"A continuing but much reduced military commitment would still be required, as in Korea, and there would be a great reconstruction task ahead for many years. This would not be a simple or easy solution but a complete if not altogether a happy victory could still be won."

Which doesn't seem quite to jibe with the title "No Exit from Vietnam."

Maybe Sir Robert means that the war will just seem endless as we meander into the early 1970s.

It already does . . .

Calls Censorship One of Society's Worst Evils

Pornography does not turn normal people into sex criminals. This has been proven many times. Censorship is one of the worst evils of our society. This Country was founded on the principle of individual rights. It is unconstitutional for someone not to allow me to see certain movies or buy certain books.

'Harming Children Is Hard to Understand'

Being the parent of two small children, I can't understand what is wrong with a segment of our society which tries to kill or maim small children out collecting Halloween treats. Because the children cover a large area, it is hard to pinpoint these would-be murderers. Next year let a parent or a responsible adult travel with the children checking each treat or keeping a record of what comes from where.

BUD ZOSSO

Opinions Given on Halloween Observance

It is about time we dispensed with one of our American traditions—the "trick or treat" of Halloween. When it no longer becomes a fun night and far from "hallowed," producing so much destruction and danger to children and adults, it's time to quit. One cannot imagine the cruelty of putting razor blades, needles, pins and ground glass in children's goodies.

★ ★ ★

The waste and danger involved lead me to believe it would be better to "hallow" the evening at home, giving the money spent to UNICEF or some other agency to distribute among the needy of the world. Most of the stuff the children get in begging will eventually end in the garbage, if not in sick "tummies."

AGAINST TRICKS

I disagree with a letter suggesting children under six be cut out of "trick or treat" night. I have a granddaughter three years old and she was as cute as any aged six to 16. At least the little ones are supervised.

NOSY MOTORIST

(A) The City is extending Wayne Street from West Lawrence to Pike Street.

(Q) Like myself, many who attended the Firebird game in Clarkston wondered what the balloon-like luminescent object was that floated over one end of the field, rising until it was out of sight. Could someone explain?

FLORENCE DIEHM

(A) We hope so, because none of the people we talked with knew what it was. One, who had watched it with binoculars, said it looked like a balloon with a match or candle inside. However, we found no one who knew for sure. Perhaps a reader who was sitting near the person who released the object will read your inquiry and write or call to tell us exactly what it was.

Graft Big Issue in Philippines

A Familiar Prelude to Tuesday's Election

MANILA (AP) — Cries of graft and corruption are echoing across the Philippines as a prelude to next Tuesday's election.

A similar refrain has been part of every campaign since the country gained independence in 1946.

* * *

"It usually sounds about the same," says one Filipino.

He admits, however, with some sense of loss, that there is nothing so titillating this time as the gold-plated bathroom fixtures and thousand-dollar bed that became an issue against President Elipidio Quirino in 1953, or the luxurious presidential yacht of Carlos Garcia in 1961.

'MOST CORRUPT'

This year's presidential challenger, Sen. Sergio Osmena Jr., simply accuses incumbent Ferdinand E. Marcos of having the most corrupt administration in the nation's history.

He says Marcos has become "the richest man in Asia."

Kickbacks to the presidential palace, Osmena charges, are standard on government bank loans, imports and construction projects.

* * *

Marcos denies all this and argues that if graft were anywhere near what Osmena claims, then it would have been impossible to construct the many miles of highway and thousands of schoolrooms built during his term.

The president in turn charges that illegal wheeling and dealing by Osmena has brought the businessman-politician vast riches.

'COLLABORATION'

Worse, Marcos says, is the wealth Osmena gained by collaborating with the Japanese during World War II.

The president charges that Osmena, whose father was a wartime and postwar president, sold scrap iron to the Japanese that was used to make war materiel used against Filipinos.

* * *

Osmena shows court documents that he was acquitted of such charges.

New Picture, New Show Give Rip, Jerry Big Week

NEW YORK — Rip Torn and Geraldine Page have twin sons named Anthony and Jonathan who at the age of 4 are feisty little Rips.

WILSON

"They love each other, but they also get in fights, and they have knocked each other's teeth out," their father said with paternal pride the other afternoon. "Fortunately, they still have baby teeth."

It's been a big week for Rip and Gerry Torn — with his picture, "Coming Apart," opening in three theaters, while she opened in the Broadway show, "Angela." And Rip has "Tropic of Cancer" coming up soon — he plays Henry Miller — plus the impressive fact that he stars in and directs the mixed-media "Richard III" at the New Theater on E. 54th St. upstairs where the discotheque Arthur once gave the whole city Arthuritis.

*

Rip Torn let all the other actors go off to Hollywood where the big money was but he and his wife remained here because they like it here.

"Oh, I've made Westerns," he said, looking at me through his glasses, "but to me there isn't any great romance in horses and cattle because I was born in Texas.

"I go out to Hollywood and they say 'Give this greenhorn from the East a wild one.' I get on and ride it and they say 'YOU CAN RIDE!' I say, 'Sure, I'm from Texas.'

"I don't look like one. Lee Marvin, who's kind of a professional Texan, comes from Woodstock, N.Y. I'm from Texas and look like I came from Woodstock.

ADLAI STEVENSON: PATRICIAN AMONG POLITICIANS, By Bert Cochran. (Funk & Wagnalls, $10)

Bert Cochran has written a historical biography of Adlai Stevenson — as opposed to a political election-year biography — with perspective on those years and insight into his subject.

* * *

As the title indicates, Cochran views Stevenson as a man essentially above the politics of the Democratic ward heeler and political boss, a man whose character emphasized morality above ambition.

* * *

If the book has a flaw, it lies in the fact that Cochran is a Stevenson fan, one who perhaps idealizes his subject too much for totally objective historical analysis.

But anyone arguing the opposition view had better be well versed in Stevensoniana.

EXPLORING OUR NATIONAL PARKS AND MONUMENTS, By Devereux Butcher. (Houthton Mifflin, $8.95)

After a gap of several years, Butcher has completed his sixth revised edition — another 370-page postcard which again makes the reader wonder why Americans feel compelled to go abroad in quest of beauty when the United States — with very little searching — can be so incredibly breathtaking.

And almost everything worth seeing is in this book.

It's a frank appraisal of the nation's parks, monuments and other natural wonders.

Pictures? There are more than 300 — and the copy that accompanies them makes this more than just a "See American First" travel promotion.

BETWEEN THE BULLET AND THE LIE, By Cecil Eby. (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $7.95)

"It was a war without pensions and without medals," Cecil Eby writes in this engrossing history of the American volunteers who fought on the republican side in the Spanish Civil War. "The only decorations most of them brought back were their wounds. . ."

His account will please neither the leftists who saw the volunteers as heroes nor extremists of the right who believed they were all agents of international communism.

* * *

Eby says the purpose of his book is to re-create the "collective experience" of the men who formed the Abraham Lincoln Battalion.

He must be accredited a smashing success. With quotes from volunteers, stanzas of old battalion songs, anecdotes, passages of letters home, a movingly human portrait emerges.
