Pontiac, Waterford Select Junior Misses

Junior Misses representing Pontiac and Waterford were crowned in separate pageants Saturday night, winning the right to compete in the State Junior Miss contest next month.

Pontiac's Junior Miss is 17-year-old Phyllis Grisham, a dark-haired senior student at Avondale High school and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Grisham of 862 South Blvd., Avon Township.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mansfield of 5106 Durnham, Waterford Township.

The winners were selected after judging in five categories — scholastic achievement, mental alertness, poise and appearance, fitness and a rendition in the creative or performing arts.

Nineteen entrants vied for the title at Pontiac Northern High School with 10 contestants competing before a standing-room crowd at Waterford Kettering High School.

Formally crowning the new Junior Misses to climax each program were 18-year-old Lynn Talton — last year's Waterford Junior Miss — and Mrs. Richard Jergensen, who crowned the Pontiac winner.

Check Plastic Drink Coolers for Germ Peril

Health Officials in State Communities Are Making Lab Tests

By The Associated Press
Health officials in a number of Michigan communities conducted laboratory tests today to determine if plastic drink coolers imported from Hong Kong and sold in the state contain contaminated water.

Sales of the coolers have been banned in three other states and in at least six cities outside Michigan.

Discovery of germ-laden coolers in Arkansas caused the investigations and quarantining of the novelty items.

The Oakland County Health Department said it examined the coolers at the request of a Ferndale merchant who sells the items to fund-raising groups and found numerous organisms which have no effect on humans but indicate "unsanitary production methods."

Health officials in Detroit tested the coolers for bacteria in the laboratory today.

Similar tests were underway by health departments in Monroe and Jackson. It takes about 48 hours to obtain findings from the tests.

Dr. Robert F. Wilson, head of the food division of the Detroit Health Department, said: "When people call us, we are recommending they don't use them until we know more about them."

However, George T. Daughters, head of the Detroit office of the federal Food and Drug Administration, said:

"As far as we're concerned, we're unable to find anything which is any hazard at all."

DIDN'T WORK

Daughters said investigators from his office checked the coolers a month ago "because somebody grumbled that they didn't make the drinks cold. And, we had to agree — they didn't make the drinks cold."

Daughters said "We haven't had a single complaint here. All we've had is inquiries." No further investigation is planned by his office "unless (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

NATO Fears All-Out War

By K. C. THALER
PARIS (UPI) — America's European allies are all but convinced the Viet Nam conflict is heading toward all-out war involving Communist China.

The latest information reaching Western diplomats caused concern on the eve of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) Council of Ministers meeting in the French capital.

Communist China is reliably reported to have imposed an absolute veto on peace moves by North Viet Nam, along with the implicit threat that they would take over in the Communist north if the Hanoi regime defied the ultimatum.

The reports said Hanoi now is set unconditionally on an "all or nothing" course in Viet Nam in the face of the Red Chinese pressure.

This will be discussed at the NATO session tomorrow and Wednesday but there is little the European allies will have to offer the United States, either by way of advice or material assistance.

None of the 14 NATO partners stands ready to make troops available for the Viet Nam fighting. Any U.S. appeal for increased military support was expected to meet with little more than lukewarm response by NATO.

Instead, the allies will press for fresh peace moves, including implicit or open suggestions (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Reserve Unit Will Continue Armory Drill

Capt. David W. MacGillis, commanding officer of the reserve unit stationed at Pontiac's National Guard Armory, said today military activities would continue at the armory although the facilities are still closed to civilian groups.

MacGillis, chairman of the Armory Board of Control, ordered the building locked on a week ago because of "structural deficiencies" in the flooring.

He said the flooring in the armory is unsafe for large-scale rental activities such as boxing, wrestling and the Grand Ole Opry.

Scheduled military uses, he said, include a reserve unit lecture tonight, a medical examination tomorrow and possible general inspection Jan. 12.

Year-End Statement

Auto Boom to Continue, Says Donner

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors' No. 1 man expressed confidence today the boom in the auto business will continue through next year.

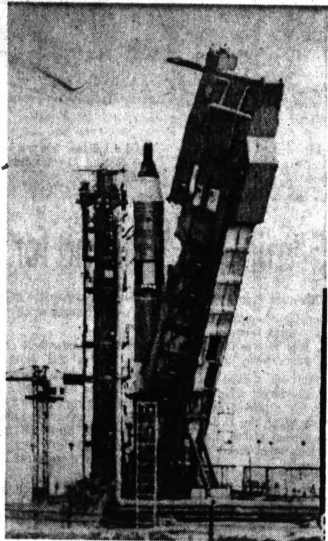

Frederic G. Donner, chairman of the board of the world's largest auto maker, gave a rosy picture of business prospects in his annual year-end statement.

Donner said U.S. car and truck sales in 1966 should match or exceed the anticipated 1965 total of 10.8 million vehicles. This includes 9.3 million passenger cars and 1.5 million trucks.

General Motors thus became the first of the nation's four major auto makers to look into its economic crystal ball and come up with a prediction of things to come in 1966.

Henry Ford II, chairman of the board of Ford Motor Co., will do likewise next Wednesday with Lynn A. Townsend, Chrysler president, slated to follow suit next Thursday.

MISSION DELAYED — The erector goes back up toward the Cape Kennedy to remove astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford. The rendezvous mission with Gemini 7 was delayed when a false signal shut off the launch rocket's engines.

Ejected Patron 'Got Mad,' Set Fire Which Killed 13

CHICAGO (AP) — "I just got mad. They shouldn't have thrown me out."

That was the explanation of Robert Lee Lassiter as he admitted using a borrowed match to touch off a fire Saturday night which killed 13 persons and injured 22 in a West Side tavern.

Lassiter, 26, was charged Sunday with 13 counts of murder.

Lassiter, a laborer for an electric company, told police that he splashed a gallon of gasoline in the door of the Seelye Club, then borrowed a match to ignite it.

The incident that touched off the fire, Lassiter said, was an argument with Eddie Gaston, 38, a waiter.

Witnesses said Lassiter had been flourishing a large switchblade knife and Gaston told him to put it away.

FORCED TO LEAVE

The two men grappled after arguing, and Lassiter was forced to leave.

"I'll be back and they're going to get it," witnesses quoted Lassiter as saying as he left.

Gaston was among the seven men and six women killed in the blaze.

Police quoted Lassiter as saying he then walked a few hundred feet to a service station and purchased a can of gasoline. Police said Lassiter splashed the fuel on the floor at the entrance, then poured a trail of gasoline across the sidewalk to the gutter and ignited it.

The flames sent the 40 occupants of the tavern into a panic. The front entrance was blocked by flames. The only other exit, a rear door, was locked.

Firemen arrived almost immediately, but it was too late.

"The scene at the back of the tavern was unbelievable," said fire department chaplain Robert Holdey. "The bodies were stacked up, one atop the other."

Some of the patrons escaped with their lives only because of a bouncer, who yelled for people to grab his coat and follow him through the flames in a human chain.

Lassiter was arrested as he slept in his home a short time after the fire started.

When told of the deaths and injuries, Lassiter said: "Oh, my God! No!"

Rendezvous Rescheduled Wednesday

Gemini 6 Is Delayed When False Signal Shuts Off Engines

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini 7 astronauts, still vigorous and mentally alert in the ninth day of the marathon space voyage, hurtled on toward more endurance records today and looked forward eagerly to a Wednesday rendezvous with Gemini 6.

Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. have shown no evidence of weariness despite the long, grinding exposure to their strange world of space, Dr. Owen Coons, a flight surgeon, said today.

"They woke up sharp," he said, "respond quickly to ground commands, and make no errors in copying information relayed to them from earth stations."

"They knew what they had to do, and they are going to do it. We expect them to be as good to the end."

Gemini 7 entered its 134th orbit at 11:35 a.m. EST.

Borman and Lovell woke up this morning after a period of light sleep and soon began asking questions about the progress of efforts at Cape Kennedy Fla., to prepare the Gemini 6 spacecraft for a Wednesday launch.

WEDNESDAY LAUNCH

They were told an abbreviated midcount would be started tomorrow morning and prospects were good for a Wednesday firing and, at last, the biggest of all space adventures — the rendezvous of orbiting ships.

If the Gemini 6 flight is again delayed, the problem of bringing the two spacecraft down on the same day could arise. Gemini 7 now is scheduled to splash down Saturday after 14 days in space.

"We don't want to bring them down on the same day, but we have to," Borman said.

If this happens, an effort would be made to land them one orbit apart, but it could be done on the same revolution if there were no other choice.

This morning's scattered showers will give way to occasional snow flurries by tonight.

Family Christmas Gifts Are in Abundant Supply

By JEANNE NELSON

Buying family and household gifts this year is a cinch with the unlimited array now available in Pontiac area shops.

A home labeling gun saves time and reduces the possibilities of losing tools, lunchboxes, cameras and the like.

It's also a marvel for tagging boxed items for storage in basement and attic. It costs about $5.

The "Jiffy Fold" table collapses like an ironing board for easy storage. This sturdy woodweld 16 x 30 inch table comes with chrome legs in either a walnut or cherry finish.

It will serve the family well as a typewriter stand, portable sewing machine table and movie projector table. The price is about $14.

A practical gift for use by each member of the clan is a portable typewriter. The one mentioned here comes with a full size keyboard in two-toned grey "Novadex" (a very strong steel finish) with its own case. About $50 would be the price on this.

Another gift idea for the family might be an attractively boxed set of steak knives with

Onlookers Give Help to Officers

Three men stepped from an angry mob to assist a Pontiac police officer early yesterday, possibly averting a serious conflict at the Mr. 19 restaurant, 565 S. Saginaw.

Sgt. Earl W. Skrobeck said persons in the crowd had begun to grab at him as he maneuvered Andrew Shepherd, 22, of 44 Lull into a patrol car about 3:30 a.m.

Shepherd had been placed under arrest when he became disorderly and began using profane language in front of the restaurant, according to Patrolman John K. Hedrick and Denis E. Mutnyowski.

Skrobeck said he then asked for help in getting Shepherd, who had been cut on the head by another man in an altercation, to a hospital for medical treatment.

Several men who identified themselves as friends of Shepherd stepped forward, according to Skrobeck and helped get the wounded man into the patrol car.

Skrobeck said removal of Shepherd—and arrival of officers from Bloomfield Township and the Oakland County Sheriff's Office—ended the incident.

Shepherd told the two patrolmen someone had hit him in the head with the butt end of a bullwhip in an argument inside the restaurant.

Hedrick fractured his left hand in a scuffle which ensued when the two attempted to take Shepherd into custody.

Gemini 7 Is Whirling for More Records

endurance champions of space flight, sped onward dressed "the only way to fly," in their cotton underwear.

"This is Gemini 7, your friendly target vehicle, standing by," Borman messaged earth after the U.S. space spectacular stalled in a cloud of pink-tinted rocket exhaust yesterday.

The Gemini 6 pilots, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford, saw their 103,000-mile space hunt and rendezvous with Gemini 7 foiled before they left the launch pad at Cape Kennedy, Fla. A false signal shut off the launch rocket's engines.

Borman and Lovell got orders to conserve fuel to insure there enough power to maintain their spacecraft's attitude toward the end of their space voyage. This meant an abbreviated experiment schedule and much drifting flight.

POTENTIAL DANGER

If it had not been for cool, expert, split-second decisions by Schirra and Stafford in the face of potential danger—and maybe death—the chance at a repeat attempt would have vanished.

"They're cleared for take-off," mission control advised Gemini 7, passing overhead shortly before the 9:34 a.m. liftoff time.

Right on schedule, the countdown proceeded.

"... 5, 4, 3, 2, 1, ignition,"

MIGHTY VEHICLE

Exhaust boiled from beneath the mighty vehicle, but the rocket didn't move.

"Shutdown," announced mission control with scarcely a pause.

By this time, under these conditions, Schirra and Stafford were close to making a decision to eject and be thrown clear of the smoldering rocket, live with fuel. But they just gripped their ejection rings. Then the fuel pressure started slowly decreasing; the crisis disappeared.

Had they ejected—much like pilots do from jet aircraft—the damage to the capsule and seats might have been too severe to repair before the end of the Gemini 7 flight.

FALSE SIGNAL

Gemini 6's launch vehicle probably would have flown successfully. Inspectors determined that the shutdown was caused by a false signal emitted because of a two-inch plug left prematurely from the base of the rocket.

The plug carries electrical signals between the blockhouse and certain systems, including the malfunctioning detection system. When it disconnected, the signals ceased and an automatic command shut down the engines.

To prepare for the second attempt, technicians removed all fuel from the rocket and began cleaning the system. The

To Decide Soon in Judges' Suit

Case Involves Ruling on Length of Terms

A lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of legislation that extended the terms of two Oakland County Circuit Judges will be decided quickly, according to the judge assigned to make the ruling.

Macomb County Circuit Judge George R. Deneweth said this morning that he would "handle this matter with dispatch."

A hearing on the suit, filed by judges Philip Pratt and James S. Thornburn, began today but was adjourned after a brief session in which all parties agreed to submit briefs to Deneweth before 5 p.m. Dec. 20.

Deneweth, named to the case by the Supreme Court when members of the Oakland bench disqualified themselves, said that he will review the briefs as soon as he receives them.

"If there is any area where I feel that arguments would be helpful I will contact you," Deneweth told attorneys.

FUTURE PLAN

If another hearing is necessary it will probably be held on Dec. 28. The hearing this morning was held in the courtroom of Oakland County Circuit Judge Frederick C. Ziem.

Edward Barrett, one of the three attorneys representing the judges, emphasized that the ruling must be made soon because nominating petitions for the primary election in August must be filed in April.

Pratt and Thornburn had expected to run in the election but the recent legislation extended their terms until 1970.

Both have stated they would prefer to seek reelection. They state that the legislation must be interpreted by the court because the wording of the statute is unclear and has created confusion.

brief ignition did not damage the pad and apparently Gemini 6 was not damaged.

Schirra, the command pilot, was praised for the decision not to eject. "Mighty cool head there, Wally," Mission control said. "We appreciate it."

OLDEST ASTRONAUTS

But Schirra, 42, the oldest of the astronauts, had little to say. Only: "Those things happen. It could happen to anyone. No one was hurt."

The Gemini 6 crew shrugged off its second disappointment in attempting a rendezvous on Oct. 25. Schirra and Stafford were only 42 minutes from liftoff when their target—an Agena rocket—failed to achieve orbit and exploded.

Rendezvous between two orbiting space vehicles is a vital step in the U.S. plan to send men on round trips to the moon.

Astronauts who descend to the lunar surface must return in their landing craft to the mother ship in orbit around the moon.

President Johnson watched the misfire on television, then expressed disappointment that Gemini 6 did not go as expected. But he praised the calm pair of astronauts and their space agency colleagues.

"With the world watching," Johnson said from his Texas ranch, "they acted with remarkable courage in the face of danger and potential disaster."

Willson said seven boxes of the plastic coolers were brought to the Detroit Health Department laboratory for testing.

There was no immediate action to take the coolers off the market in Detroit, he said.

COLORFUL PLASTIC

Willson said the coolers, which have been sold by civic groups and in novelty shops, were either round or shaped like miniature elephants. They are plastic containers colored red, green and blue.

The coolers are designed to be placed in refrigerators where the water inside the balls would be frozen.

"Then they're put in the drinks to decorate the drinks and add some coolness," Willson said.

Possibility of contamination existed only if the plastic container broke and the water seeped out, he said.

Fire Damages Storage Area at Scrap Yard

Pontiac firemen battled for nearly five hours early yesterday a fire which swept through a paper storage building at Sam Allen & Sons Inc. scrap yard, 22 Congress.

Three engines and an aerial unit responded to the blaze, which broke out about 1 a.m. and was extinguished about 5 a.m.

Fire Marshal Charles Metz estimated loss of contents at $600 and placed damage to the building at about $2,000.

He said cause of the blaze was not immediately determined.

Suicide a Possibility in Death of Alleged Klansman

GRANITE QUARRY, N.C. — The Rowan County coroner said today the death of Grady B. Mars, retired military policeman linked with the Ku Klux Klan by a congressional investigator, may have been suicide.

Mars, 41, died of a gunshot wound in the head in his bedroom Saturday night.

Coroner Rufus Honeycutt quoted Mars' wife, Jean, as saying her husband had been depressed since refusing to testify before the House Committee on Un-American Activities when it was investigating the Klan in October.

He said an official ruling on the cause of death will be made Tuesday "after we get certain reports back from the State Bureau of Investigation lab in Raleigh."

NOT OFFICIAL

"I'm pretty sure it was suicide, but it won't be official until Tuesday," Honeycutt said.

Donald T. Appell, chief counsel for the House Committee on Un-American Activities, identified Mars in October as a district officer and organizer for the United Klans of America.

Mars pleaded the Fifth Amendment when asked about Klan activities at a committee hearing.

J. Robert Jones, north grand dragon of the Klan, would not say what office Mars held — or even confirm that he belonged to the organization.

"You won't find out from me and you won't find out from any other member of the Klan," said Jones, who also lives in Granite Quarry.

Jones said Mars moved to Granite Quarry and began working as an auto mechanic after retiring from the U.S. Air Force after 20 years as a military policeman.

Honeycutt said Mrs. Mars told him Mars was working on a car in their yard when he entered the house and asked his wife to search for new jets for a car burtor. She left the bedroom and entered the kitchen.

Mrs. Mars said she heard a shot and saw her husband fall through the bedroom door into a hall. Officers found a .38-caliber revolver beside Mars, who died en route to a hospital.

AFL-CIO Wants More Wages, Benefits

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—AFL-CIO leaders demanded today a 5 percent slice of the nation's wealth for workers, a federal curb on the prices of some key commodities, and a 50 percent increase in Social Security benefits.

In resolutions certain to be gavelled to quick approval by about 1,000 delegates to the federation's 10th anniversary convention, AFL-CIO policymakers also rejected White House wage guidelines and called for bold federal policies to create jobs and boost consumer purchasing power.

"A faster rise in wages and fringe benefits is needed to broaden and strengthen the mass markets that are the foundation of the economy," one resolution said.

Federation leaders also suggested income tax cuts for low- and middle-income families, and elimination of taxes altogether for those under the government poverty income level of $3,000 a year.

The effects on the economy of 1964 and 1965 tax cuts have "almost completely worn off," the proposed resolution said.

In recommending a 50 percent increase in Social Security benefits, federation leaders said the base on which Social Security taxes are assessed should be increased from the present $6,600 to $16,000 a year, supplemented by extra money from the federal treasury.

The cost should not be charged to future generations of workers and employers, they declared.

Social Security benefits now average about $92 per month for a retired single worker and $137 for a married couple.

The recent 7 percent increase barely covered the increased cost of living, the federation said.

MEDICAL BENEFITS
AFL-CIO leaders said medical care benefits under Social Security.

ity — which do not go into effect until next July — should be improved and extended to surviving widows and children.

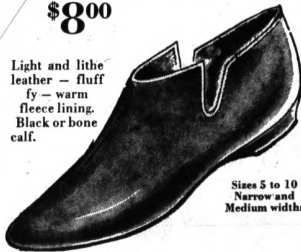

The federation blamed the outflow of private capital, rather than wage increases, for the U.S. balance of payments problem in foreign trade.

It said the federal government should restrict the investment of U.S. corporations overseas. Delegates asked Congress to raise the minimum wage to $2 and include farm workers in its coverage.

Heroic Actions Speak Louder Than Words for Bashful Yank

By TOM TIEDE
LAI KHE, Viet Nam (NEA) — Spec. 4 Kyle Blevins is the bashfully quiet sort of chap who could not hold his own in a debate with Mt. Rushmore. For him, two words are a paragraph.

When he gets hurt, it takes him 10 minutes to say much. "How'd the battle go?" he was asked the other day. "O. K.," he replied. "I see you were wounded." "Yup." "In the arm, isn't it?" "Yup."

"Does it hurt you at all?" "Nope." "Er, well, I understand you did very well in the fight." "I guess." "Did you get many Viet Cong?" "A few." "A lot, I heard. You're being put through for a medal." "No kidding?" "Yup." Blevins is 21 years old, from Westerville, Ohio, and the First Infantry Division. He's skinny as a Chinese noodle and tall enough to hunt geese with a net. A volunteer. Stone silent. Unobtrusive. He could go unnoticed in a crowd of two.

LEAST LIKELY
He's also the last guy in the world you'd pick as a hero. But, in combat, the first guy to become one.

"We're pinned down," somebody had cried when Blevins' company ran into an enemy regiment in an open field on the edge of a rubber plantation.

"Which way do we fire?" the kid yelled.

"I can't see them. I can't see anybody," another repeated. Nobody could. The Viet Cong snatched the company and were shooting into the area from a cover of high grass.

The troops fired back wildly, without effect—and there was imminent danger of being overrun.

Then Kyle Blevins went to work.

He jumped atop a burning personnel carrier and began to direct his platoon's fire. The vehicle was hot with flame and in danger of exploding, but the soldier didn't notice.

HUMAN TARGET
He made himself a human target. He was thumbing his nose at an entire enemy regiment.

"Blevins," shouted his platoon sergeant, "get down from there."

But the boy didn't answer. It was typical.

Then he took a position behind the vehicle's machine gun and began to prune away the enemy's advantage. They dropped like dominoes.

"Blevins, get the hell down!"

MOVES AHEAD

When the return fire overwhelmed one area, the skinny sphinx kicked over the machine's engines and moved to another. Up and down the firing line.

Loading his own ammunition. Picking his own targets. Driving his own bus. A crew of one for two solid hours.

And never did he mumble a single word.

"That was quite a show you put on," he was told afterward.

"I guess," he replied.

"Weren't you frightened?"

"Yup."

"Would you do it again?"

"Yup."

"Anything else you'd like to say about it?"

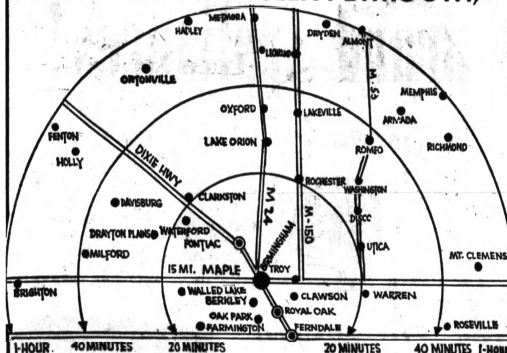

"Nope."

Boost Mass Transit Aid —Cavanagh

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh called Sunday for more federal aid to urban mass transit. He said he had no fear of federal involvement and that local governments could not afford further expense.

Cavanagh told the Second National Conference on Highways and Urban Development "We won't be in jeopardy as long as we stay alert to the dangers as well as the opportunities of federal assistance." He said local governments have not given up any liberties because of federal aid in other programs.

The Motor City mayor urged a "new priority" for mass transit and warned against relying "too heavily" on the automobile in metropolitan areas.

"Unless a reasonable alternative is provided," Cavanagh said, "the motorist will continue to flood the freeways, clutter the city streets, devour parking space and generally contribute to congestion and disarray on the urban scene."

Bigots Still Hit Rights Efforts

New Booklet Attacks School Desegregation

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.
Executive Director
National Urban League

Many perverse elements in this country are undermining the government's attempts to implement a national policy of equal opportunity for Negro citizens. They manifest themselves in various ways. Often they parade in majestic white robes, no longer hidden behind masked hoods.

Sometimes, under the cover of darkness, they vent their unholy wrath by hurling explosives into the homes of civil rights workers, churches and synagogues.

In addition, there are those who, under the guise of intelligent dialogue, seek to corrupt the minds of men. "Let Freedom Ring" uses recorded telephone messages to slander not only the good name of civil rights organizations but the National Council of Churches and the Parent-Teacher Associations as well.

Hate material is now being distributed through post offices in larger quantities than ever before.

An example of this is a pamphlet called "How Classroom Desegregation Will Work," written by Henry E. Garrett, a Ph.D., and published by the Patrick Henry Press.

It is aimed at members of school boards, parents and teachers throughout the nation.

Garrett, using the prestige he established as former head of Columbia University's Department of Psychology, exploiting his knowledge of statistics and facility with words, states his specious case against school desegregation by maligning the Negro child.

Racially mixed classrooms, according to Garrett, can only result in the white child being forced to work below his capacity or the Negro child's failure to keep up which causes him to become a dropout and then a special problem.

NO RELEVANCE

His thesis is based on the false premise that the Negro child is innately inferior. Apparently he accords no relevance to the validity of voluminous research that clearly refutes his argument.

Most enlightened social thinkers agree that environment is all important in determining the nature of Negro-white differences. Yet Garrett insists that most of the accepted evidence against his argument isn't evidence at all. He calls it wishful thinking.

Without taking cognizance of a child's environment, Garrett simplified his research job in the most dishonest fashion.

His thinking is tantamount to chaining the Negro child to the lower rung of America's success ladder by implying that decent housing, rewarding jobs and equitable educational facilities cannot help him.

IMPROVEMENT

How can he possibly ignore those who have been helped by improved conditions and the vast data supporting this fact?

The National Education Association called his booklet "a racist pamphlet."

Sen. Hart Defends World-Traveling Congressmen

By MARGUERITE DAVIS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The criticism sometimes directed at world-traveling congressmen and senators is shortsighted and unperceptive, according to Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.

"The relationships of the United States with the rest of the world are so increasingly sensitive and close that any member of Congress is the better for increasing his exposure," Hart said.

The senator was interviewed in his office here and was not proud of being found at his desk.

"You should ask why I'm here, why I'm not in Egypt or Syria or Japan," he observed. Some stay-at-home critics have noted the frequency with which congressional tours are to be found, if only briefly, at such glamorous points as London and Paris, Rome and Madrid.

But Hart noted that each city is a national capital and therefore a likely destination for U.S. lawmakers. Most travel routes to more distant points in Europe would pass through one or more of the capital cities of England and France, Italy and Spain, he said, and most trips to the Far East would involve a stop at Hawaii.

"I understand Hawaii's a glorious place, but it's not fair to hold it against the members who pass through it," he said.

Hart has made two out-of-country trips since he came to the Senate in 1959, 30 days in Africa as chairman of a refugee subcommittee and five days in Poland as a U.S. representative to a trade fair.

"Neither was physically easy," he said. "But I know that both were worthwhile, that I'm a better senator for them."

Virtually every member of Congress who makes such a trip first does his "homework."

Studying the history and the traditions of the country he will visit and its relations with the U.S., Hart said. Scenic beauties are incidental, he added.

NOT HEALTHY

"It's not healthy to assume the snide about the member who travels, to presume immediately, 'Aha, this is an abuse.'"

Hart's defense extended to those traveling in increasing quantity to the Vietnamese battle front.

Their numbers have grown so large that a military official, when asked to describe the biggest problem in Viet Nam, replied that it was the care and feeding of the visiting VIPs.

Nobody, Hart said, is happy about the situation in Viet Nam and its enormous dangers.

"There is no doubt in my mind who is the principal disturber of the peace there, and it's not the United States," he said.

"Some of the American protesters seem almost to miss that point. But the truth is that until history comes in with its verdict, no one can say with certainty what, on a given day, we should be doing."

"I see no reason to criticize the member of Congress . . . who felt he would be more comfortable and capable in his consideration and discussion of Viet Nam if he went out and looked for himself."

"The member who has been there inevitably is better equipped to come back and discuss it."

Why, then, was Hart himself here?

"The first session was long, and there were things I could not take care of before. They have me working at my desk now," he said. "But I feel that I could be criticized for this allocation of time."

Bottle Opens Romance

WOMBELL, England (AP) — Marjorie Fowler, 21, plans to fly 10,000 miles to meet a prospective suitor who found her in a bottle.

Marjorie put a "please write me" message in a bottle she was packing at the glass factory where she works. A pharmacist in Perth, Australia, John Vettler, 26, found the message and replied.

The correspondence flourished, and John suggested that Marjorie fly out to meet him. He forwarded $1,200 for the plane fare.

Said Marjorie: "We feel it would be better to meet each other now than our letters are getting romantic."

Hunt Still On for 8 Trainees

Peace Corps Group on Hike in Mountains

MANZANO, N.M. (U) — An extensive search continued today for eight Peace Corps trainees missing on a four-day hike through the rugged Manzano Mountains in central New Mexico.

About 40 persons including state police officers and forest rangers, participated in the search, which started after the group failed to arrive at Manzano yesterday on a 30-mile trek which began at Belen Thursday morning.

Another group of trainees left Belen at the same time arrived at Manzano on schedule. A third group crossed from Manzano to Belen without incident.

The hike is part of a 14-week Peace Corps training period at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque.

HAD INSTRUCTOR

A university spokesman said the group had a Peace Corps instructor accompanying it but that he left to take a girl with and injured ankle back to Albuquerque. When he returned, he was unable to find the group, the spokesman said.

A Forest Service spokesman described the terrain as very rugged. He said there was about nine inches of snow near the crest of the mountains last night and temperatures were in the low 20s.

Military Taking Few Dominican Rebels

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Less than 400 of the troops who joined the Dominican rebels will be taken back into the armed forces, high officials say.

Rebel military chiefs listed 1,200 men they said were eligible to rejoin the regular forces under the inter-American peace formula. It was learned that 349 of these were paid off and dismissed as ineligible. The sources said that soon after joining the rebels last April, many troops returned voluntarily to their units. Others died in the fighting, some deserted, some were cashiered and a number had already retired from the regular forces, the informants said.

New State Assessing Law Receives Varied Reactions

By JOE MULLEN

The new state law calling for revamping of assessing procedures by the end of this month has received varying reactions from Oakland County municipalities.

Act 409, signed into law Nov. 8, calls for assessment at 50 per cent of cash value.

Most municipalities have accepted the challenge to alter present assessing practices, striving for the 50 per cent rate by the deadline.

Some have taken the attitude that they will try to meet the deadline but may not be able to because of the short notice of the change.

One community, Avon Township, will make no effort to change its present assessing procedure, according to Supervisor Cyril E. Miller.

WON'T CHANGE

"We've spent the last four years developing our present assessing program and we will not change it," Miller asserted. He said that Avon Township assesses on the basis of actual cost of real property rather than cash value dictated in the new state law.

Miller said the market value assessment procedure would, in effect, penalize the owner who kept his home in good repair. "An example," he said, "would be two houses built at the same time at the same cost. Under the market value system, the owner who took care of his property would be taxed more than the person who let his go."

ANOTHER REASON

or cited another reason that led to his decision not to comply.

He said there is no written guarantee that the equalizing factor, which establishes the equalized valuation on which tax is paid, will balance out the assessed valuation adjustment.

Herman Stephens, acting director of the county equalization department, and Vance C. Fouts, chairman of the equalization committee of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors, both have emphasized that the assessing change will not in itself increase taxes.

"Assessment rates generally will rise under the new procedure," Fouts said.

TO COMPENSATE

"But the adjusted equalizing factor will compensate for the change in assessed valuation," he added.

For some municipalities, the 50 per cent assessing goal will mean little change in present procedures, but others, which assess much lower than this figure, will have to make major adjustments.

"Cities generally assess nearer the 50 per cent level than townships," Stephens said.

As for meeting the deadline, both Fouts and Stephens felt that most, if not all, cities will succeeded but both conceded that some townships will have difficulty making the change in time.

Bus Late—as Expected

SLOUGH, England (UPI) — Two delegates arrived late at a meeting called to protest poor bus service here. Their explanation: "Our bus was late."

LACK PERSONNEL

"Cities generally have adequately staffed assessing departments," Stephens said, but many of the townships have limited personnel.

In smaller townships such as Springfield, the township supervisor is also the only assessor.

Springfield Supervisor John L. Catey, citing this fact, said he didn't see how he would have time to change his assessing program by the deadline.

Further complicating the problem is that smaller townships have no money budgeted for hiring outside help and, even if they did, they would face the problem of finding an available assessor in today's tight labor market.

FACE PROBLEMS

Even the larger townships face problems.

Claude Wagner, deputy assessor for Waterford Township, said that the township has only three assessors to serve the 36-square-mile area populated by some 50,000 persons.

"Starting Monday, we'll be working evenings and weekends to try to meet the deadline," Wagner said.

After completing assessing duties Dec. 31, assessors must prepare their 1966 assessment rolls by the first Monday in March prior to the convening of boards of review.

Marines Take 'Death Valley'

Action Quiets Down After Five-Day Battle

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A task force of U.S. Marines and Vietnamese troops, teamed against the Viet Cong in a five-day battle south of Da Nang, estimated today ground and air strikes have killed about 1,000 of the enemy. Action was dwindling.

Marine patrols, moving through hills in the Que Son sector, found a guerrilla training area and some warehouses full of gray and black cloth, obviously designed for manufacture of the flimsy pajamas many Viet Cong use as uniforms.

The sector, aptly if unimaginatively dubbed by the Marines as "Death Valley," is now secure, officers reported.

The Leathernecks said they have killed 124 Viet Cong, captured 28, detained 190 suspects and that 300 more were slain by air strikes in their target zone.

DEAD COUNTED

Vietnamese officers said their rifle units killed 240 on the ground, 190 died under air strikes in their area and 150 were killed by artillery fire. Vietnamese casualties early in the fight were described as heavy. The Marines said their toll was light.

The North Viet Nam Communist government offered at least on the opening stages of the battle, Radio Hanoi said the Viet Cong inflicted 1,050 casualties, including 20 Americans killed, wounded or captured, on the combined force Dec. 8-9.

Hanoi's official paper, Nhan Dan, called it a "serious defeat" which led to replacement Saturday of Marine Brig. Gen. Melvin Henderson by Brig. Gen. Jonas M. Platt. In Da Nang senior Marine officers said Henderson was fact and that was the only reason for the change in command.

FIGHTING EBBING

Major ground fighting elsewhere also ebbed. U.S. briefing officers said the Viet Cong may be pulling back to their jungle hideouts to recover.

With partially clearing skies, U.S. warplanes resumed raids on North Viet Nam after a two-day lull blamed on bad weather.

Air Force F105 Thunderchief and F4C Phantom jets blasted two bridges northeast of Dien Bien Phu, set a five-building military complex in the same area and cratered the approaches to another bridge on a main highway 130 miles northwest of Hanoi, a U.S. spokesman said.

Navy pilots claimed another bridge, two storage areas and four anti-aircraft sites 14 miles north of the coastal town of Dong Hoi, he added.

Officers regarded the lull in the Da Nang area warily. "I don't think the major fighting has started," said a U.S. Marine commander, said the Marine command in Viet Nam, Maj. Gen. Lewis Walt.

U.S. officials took considerable satisfaction at the surrender of a 22-man Viet Cong platoon, with 11 weapons, to men of the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade at Vo Dai, 60 miles northeast of Saigon. They counted the defection as a major achievement for U.S. intelligence and psychological warfare experts and Vietnamese national police who negotiated the surrender.

BIGGEST DEFECTION

It was described as the biggest Viet Cong defection in many months.

In the Marine action, the Leathernecks took over the high ground near the rice hamlet of Que Son. Air Force B52s from Guam pummeled the suspected Viet Cong Communist regiment in the area, 350 miles northeast of Saigon, for the second time since the operation began last Wednesday.

Walt said the attempt to encircle and wipe out the force of 2,000 hard-core Communist troops had been launched to forestall an attack on the Marine beachhead at Chu Lai, 52 miles southeast of Da Nang.

Soviets Blister Peking

'China Sabotaged Red Cause in Viet'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, in its bluntest criticism Peking's charges that the Russians were not doing enough in Vietnam and actually cooperating with the Americans. Two weeks ago, Pravda said the Chinese had turned down "specific proposals" for joint aid to the Vietnamese Communists. These were not spelled out.

Although the Kremlin's new regime deliberately refused to take joint action with the Soviet leaders, tried to patch up the aggression in Viet Nam which, the latest exchange brings, is extending a direct threat to the world peace.

Instead, Pravda charged, Peking's leaders are increasing activities to widen the breach between the Soviet Union and Red China.

"There is no justification for the refusal to cooperate, for the rejection of unity of action in the sacred cause of helping the fraternal Democratic Republic of North Viet Nam and all the Vietnamese people," the editorial said.

The editorial was a rebuttal to Peking's charges that the Russians were not doing enough in Vietnam and actually cooperating with the Americans. Two weeks ago, Pravda said the Chinese had turned down "specific proposals" for joint aid to the Vietnamese Communists. These were not spelled out.

NATO Ministers Discuss N-Force, France Role

PARIS (AP) — Foreign and defense ministers of the Atlantic Alliance countries gathered here today to discuss an integrated nuclear force and France's part in the alliance.

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk on his arrival told news men he didn't "expect anything surprising out of this meeting," which opens tomorrow at the headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Rusk said, "I think my stay in Paris will be useful to discuss with other ministers the questions in our minds."

U. S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara also arrived for the conference.

Ministers of the 15 NATO nations will tackle these problems:

- France's opposition to integration of NATO military forces.
- Proposals for an integrated nuclear force that would give West Germany more to say in nuclear strategy.
- Indications from Moscow that progress could be made on German reunification, access to West Berlin or a Viet Nam peace conference if the integrated nuclear force idea is dropped.
- Observers said trading the nuclear integration proposals for Soviet concessions on any of the above goals could lead to an East-West agreement to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.
- Diplomats believe Red China's explosion of a nuclear device has made the Russians more anxious to achieve a non-proliferation agreement with the Americans and the British.

The main stumbling block to such an agreement is Moscow's opposition to the U. S. and British proposals for NATO nuclear integration.

Neither proposal seems to have much chance of being adopted.

URGE UNITY

The Atlantic Council, a private American organization whose membership includes a number of prominent persons, issued a statement in Washington urging the U. S. government to initiate a new drive for NATO unity.

The statement did not mention French President Charles de Gaulle specifically but made a clear reference to his attitude, saying:

"One of the major Atlantic institutions, NATO, has been notified of assault upon a basic principle, its integrated organization."

ACTION OF 1972

The council's recommendations included creation of a special governmental commission to seek formation of an Atlantic consultative assembly bringing together members of the allied nations' parliaments, a search for ways of sharing in nuclear weapon strategy and decisions, a voice for the European allies in worldwide U. S. policy to the extent they help carry it out, cuts in trade barriers and special tariff concessions to economically backward countries, and joint operations in the space field.

The council is headed by retired Gen. Lauris Norstad, former NATO commander in chief. Its membership includes former Secretaries of State Dean Acheson and Christian A. Herter, former Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson, former NATO commander Gen. Alfred Gruenther and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, former high commissioner to Germany.

Navy War Hero Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rear Adm. Raymond J. Plim, winner of several decorations during World War II, died Saturday after a heart attack.

Plim, 57, served 20 years as a naval aviator and held the Navy Cross, three Distinguished Flying Crosses and seven Air Medals.

CHANGED HIS MIND — A bewhiskered Viet Cong defector listens to welcoming speeches at an "open arms center" near Rach Gia, South Viet Nam, where the South Vietnamese government is conducting a rehabilitation program for more than 1,000 former Viet Cong.

Believe 3-Man Red Space Trip in 1964 Cut Short by Sickness

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's three-man spaceship apparently was brought back to earth earlier than expected last year because two of the cosmonauts got sick.

A report on postflight medical checks, published yesterday by Tass, the Soviet News agency, said the scientist and the doctor on the flight had a reaction similar to seasickness and experienced hallucinations.

The spaceship Voshkod 1 came down Oct. 13, 1964, after 16 orbits. It had been scheduled for "a long flight," according to the announcement when it was sent up.

Tass made no mention of the early landing but said Konstantin Feoktistov, the scientist aboard, and Boris Yegorov, the ship's doctor-cosmonaut, "developed a vestibular vegetative reaction of the seasickness type."

The end organs of the vestibular sense are located in the inner ear and are affected by the pull of gravity.

The medical report noted that Col. Vladimir Komarov, the commander of Voshkod 1 and an experienced fighter pilot, felt no discomfort.

Tass said Yegorov and Feoktistov felt giddy during the flight, which lasted little more than 24 hours.

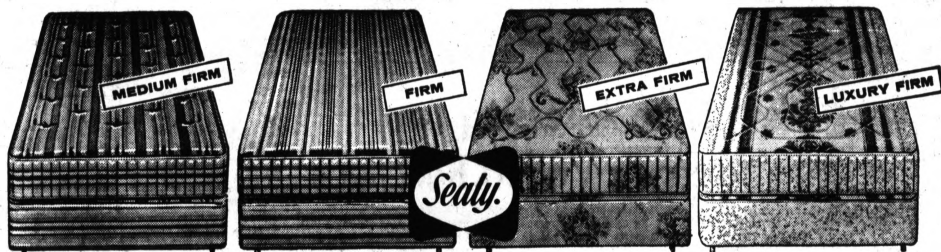

Yegorov had symptoms of space sickness on the second orbit and suffered from nausea and lack of appetite. Feoktistov had the same trouble to a lesser extent, Tass said.

One spaceman imagined he was half-crouched and facing downward, and the other thought he was hanging upside down, Tass said. The report did not say which one suffered which illusion.

LBJ Slates Confabs on N-Force, Kashmir Fight

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson will send out allied leaders in conferences beginning here this week on what they want to do about long-deadlocked proposals for setting up an Atlantic alliance nuclear force, including West Germany, in the face of bitter opposition from France and the Soviet Union.

The President also will seek to develop a new basis of relations with Pakistan and India, designed to promote peaceful handling of their conflict over Kashmir and open the way for negotiation of new U.S. aid programs. Advance word is that he will tell leaders of both countries that peace between them is the key to U.S. assistance for the region.

U.S. officials say the Vietnamese war and particularly the possibilities of finding some peaceful settlement will figure in all the President's meetings. Johnson is encouraging government leaders around the world to try to open up some approach to a peaceful settlement based on securing the independence of South Viet Nam from Communist conquest.

But the sessions with Wilson and Erhard are certain to be dominated by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nuclear issue with the chief question being how urgently the leading allied powers should now try to deal with this problem.

ON THE SHELF

It has been under discussion for six years but for the past year it has been pretty much on the shelf primarily because of the decision by Johnson a year ago that in view of Germany's September elections and differences among allied countries the United States would not then press the problem.

Indications are that the President wants to know from Wilson his position on timing and urgency of the problem. In the case of British policy the nuclear force project is complicated by a strong interest in trying to negotiate a treaty with the Soviet Union to bar the spread of nuclear weapons to countries not now possessing them. The Soviet government has declared that admitting Germany to a NATO nuclear force would kill the treaty project.

From Erhard, Johnson reportedly wants to learn how urgent he considers the nuclear force problem and whether he feels the allied powers should seek to arrive at some agreement on a force quickly.

The urgency with which the United States presses for a solution presumably will be influenced by the views of Erhard and Wilson.

Two proposals for a NATO nuclear weapons force are before the 15-nation alliance. The United States several years ago called for creation of a fleet of surface ships armed with Polaris missiles and jointly owned and manned by countries willing to participate. This country hoped for participation by Britain, West Germany, and Italy as well as the United States and some of the smaller allies. The French government of President Charles de Gaulle made known its adamant opposition to this multilateral nuclear force — MFL.

BRITISH PLAN

Wilson's Labor government has advanced a plan for an allied nuclear force to which Britain would contribute nuclear armed aircraft and submarines and the United States also would supply weapons. As in the MFL, Germany and other allies would share in this force which would be subject to veto control by the participating governments.

The Soviet Union has protested that these plans or any combination of them would simply mean putting nuclear weapons in German hands and that this would amount to the spreading of nuclear weapons.

States promised $438 million in economic assistance to India as part of an international effort to help develop that country's economy. But that was before the fighting over Kashmir erupted and the money has not been committed to specific projects. Over the years the United States has supplied India with about $6 billion worth of economic assistance and food.

Only last week Johnson approved a 1.5-million-ton grain allocation to India to meet disaster requirements resulting from a bad crop year due to drought. He also authorized a $50-million fertilizer loan.

U.S. officials hope that the result of the Ayub and Shastri visits will be to promote the prospect for peace over Kashmir and also to encourage intensive new efforts — particularly in India — to develop agricultural and industrial resources to meet the needs of the rapidly expanding population.

PAKISTAN AID

Pakistan is seeking $500 million from a group of countries including the United States for a five-year development program which began last July. Pakistan wants the United States to put up $250 million of the total. President Ayub also is seeking a restoration of U.S. military assistance.

Pakistan is a U.S. ally in both Middle Eastern and Southeast Asian defense alliances. Total U.S. help to Pakistan over the years has approached $4 billion including military help in excess of $500 million.

Earlier this year, the United States promised $438 million in economic assistance to India as part of an international effort to help develop that country's economy. But that was before the fighting over Kashmir erupted and the money has not been committed to specific projects. Over the years the United States has supplied India with about $6 billion worth of economic assistance and food.

CHICAGO (AP) Mrs. Esther Hall, 73, of Taylor, Mich., died Sunday on a United Airlines passenger plane en route to Pakistan over the Airport from Omaha, Neb.

Death apparently was caused by a heart attack, police said. She was en route to Detroit with her husband, Thomas, 63.

Junior Editors Quiz on LIFE JACKETS

WHY A CORK FLOATS

ANSWER: Pick up an empty glass, lift it up and down, and you will feel some weight. Now fill it with water and see how much heavier it feels, showing that water is much heavier than the air the glass originally contained.

This is why cork (upper left) bobs around on top of the water. Cork comes from the upper bark of the cork tree and is composed of millions of minute cells which contain nothing but air.

These cells are like a mass of air bubbles with tough walls which keep the water out. Since it weighs only one fifth as much as water, cork can't push the heavy water aside to sink down, and so rides lightly on top.

Life jackets float and hold up the people to whom they are attached because compartments in them are filled with cork or another light substance, such as kapok, which acts in the same way.

A collar of the floating material will hold the wearer's head up if in the water; but the arms of a life jacket are left free for swimming or handling boats, as shown in the picture.

Small boats are required to carry at least one buoyant cushion or life jacket for each person aboard.

It is a very good plan for younger people to wear life jackets aboard small boats, especially when on open spaces of water.

FOR YOU TO DO: Press a cork bottle stopper down into a glass of water, then suddenly release it. See how quickly it bounces to the surface, proving its great buoyancy.

QUESTION: Why do life jackets hold people up in water?

ANSWER: Pick up an empty glass, lift it up and down, and you will feel some weight. Now fill it with water, and see how much heavier it feels, showing that water is much heavier than the air the glass originally contained.

Blaze Hits U.S.-Bound Carrier

ABOARD USS INDEPENDENCE 48 — The aircraft carrier Independence neared her home port of Norfolk, Va., today where a big welcome and Navy unit commendations await her after five months of combat operations in the Viet Nam area.

Surges of homecoming happiness pulsed through the ship's 4,500 officers and men and swiftly erased most of the scars of the spectacular fire that swept the flight deck at midship Sunday.

Eleven flight deck crewmen were burned and four others suffered minor injuries in the fire triggered by jet fuel spilled from a ruptured drop tank of a Phantom II fighter plane.

A helicopter plucked from the ocean a crewman who had leaped from the flight deck in the Phantom who had ejected from the plane on orders of the pilot, who thought the craft was flying low.

Only one airplane, another Phantom II, was damaged before fire-fighters extinguished the flames with fog foam.

On her arrival at Norfolk, the carrier's crew and members of Air Wing 7 were to be greeted by their families and by Vice Adm. Waldemar Wendt, deputy commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet.

On orders of Secretary of the Navy Paul Nitze, Wendt was to present to the ship and her air wing the Navy unit commendation for exceptionally meritorious service from June 5 to Nov. 11 "while participating in combat operations in Southeast Asia in support of United States national policy."

The Independence, first attack fleet carrier assigned to the China seas, launched more than 7,000 combat sorties against the enemy and took part in the first major series of coordinated strikes against North Vietnamese supply lines north of the Hanoi-Haiphong complex.

Adm. David L. McDonald, chief of naval operations, radioed the ship: "Your West Pacific cruise earned Independence an enviable reputation as a two-ocean carrier of formidable ability. The pioneering of your air wing dodging surface-to-air missiles and then destroying the launch sites sets them apart as veterans of the newest air threat. Your record is one of which you may be proud."

2-Car, Head-On Crash Kills 8 in California

MENDOTA, Calif. (AP) — Eight persons were killed in a head-on collision Sunday of two autos, four miles north of Mendota in northern California.

The Highway Patrol said Cal. and worked for a better bill talina Aguilar, 31, of Firebaugh, Calif., driving a car with nine passengers, pulled out to pass it now is, no Republican bill another vehicle and smashed it going to get passed, and, in head on into a car driven by Deryle Maxwell, 23, of Kerman, Calif.

Raps Failure to Override Vet Bill Veto

BENTON HARBOR (AP) — Sen. Charles O. Zoller R-Benton Harbor, said Sunday the legislature's refusal to rescind Gov. George Romney's veto of the veterans assistance program was a "political inequity."

Zoller said the original bill should have been accepted so that a previous veterans aid bill, passed in 1963, could have been eliminated.

Both Republicans and Democrats are dissatisfied with the 1963 bill. The act allows veterans and their widows a $2,000 exemption on assessed valuation for property taxes.

Zoller said the inequity is that property in the southwestern portion of Michigan is assessed at 15 to 20 per cent of its actual value while big city areas assess at about 50 per cent.

LOSE-10 PER CENT "This means veterans in my district have lost about 70 per cent of their exemption since the 1963 bill was passed," he said. "I think we should have accepted the Democratic bill."

Kenya to Ask for Blockade of Rhodesia

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Kenya goes before the Security Council today to ask for an economic blockade of Rhodesia.

Kenya's chief delegate Burudi Mabwera said he would ask the council to vote mandatory sanctions "to make it impossible for anything to go in or out" of Rhodesia, the British colony in east central Africa where a white minority government has declared independence to preserve white rule.

President Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya requested the council meeting in a cable in which he said the Rhodesian situation threatened "racial confrontation on a world scale."

Kenyatta's main objective seemed to be to find a face-saving pretext for postponing a diplomatic break with Britain.

"would not be effective and could in fact be abortive."

Kenya's cable requesting the Security Council meeting expressed doubt that the voluntary sanctions against Rhodesia voted by the Security Council Nov. 20 would prove effective.

So far the only major economic moves have been taken by Britain, Rhodesia's chief trading partner. The British hope the economic squeeze will result in replacement of the Smith government by a cabinet that will return the colony to the British fold.

VOTES LAKING
Before voting for voluntary sanctions last month, the council set aside a proposal for a mandatory boycott because it seemed sure of getting no more than four votes in the 11-nation group.

Chapter 7 of the U.N. Charter authorizes the council, on finding that a threat to peace exists, to vote an economic, diplomatic or communications boycott or authorize military action.

However, the council has no way to enforce its decisions except by raising a U.N. military force. Since both Britain and the United States oppose the use of force in the Rhodesian situation, and since both have a veto in the council, U.N. military action is not likely.

China Kills Five Soldiers

TOKYO (AP) — Communist Chinese troops killed five Indian soldiers and captured three when an Indian force "intruded" into Chinese territory Sunday along the Sikkim-Tibet frontier, the New China News Agency said.

The agency said a "strong protest" note was delivered to the Indian Embassy in Peking.

One Chinese was killed by "fierce artillery, machine-gun and rifle fire" as more than 30 Indians advanced more than 500 yards inside Chinese territory at Tagi La, the agency reported.

The protest note warned that India "must immediately stop its intrusions and provocations against China, or else the Chinese side will give it such punishment as it deserves," the report said.

There was no immediate comment from the Indian government.

Coast Guard Saves Drowning Poodle

MANASQUAN, N. J. (AP) — Pierre, a poodle, and its owner were strolling on the boardwalk at the Point Pleasant Inlet. Spotting a sea gull, Pierre bolted off in pursuit, moments later was floundering 20 yards out in the water.

The woman owner called the Coast Guard; a 40-foot craft with three Coast Guardsmen, put out to the rescue. The dog and the woman were reunited and continued on their way. The rescuers got the name of the dog, but neglected to record the owner's name.

LEGENDS OF CHRISTMAS

Another Christmas legend starts in a humble home where a small boy sat by the bed of his ailing mother.

"I know you need medicine and father is away," he said. "I'll find a way to get it and by Christmas you'll be well."

With Presents From U.S.

Santa to Dodge Cong to Visit Viet Kids

By BOB POOS
PLEIKU KU, South Viet Nam (AP) — Santa Claus will visit the Vietnamese and Montagnard kids in Pleiku Province if the Viet Cong don't get him first.

Santa in this case is a ragged lieutenant colonel of the U.S. Army named Edward B. Smith, a native of Baltimore, Md.

Smith is senior U.S. adviser to the Pleiku special sector and his work takes him to villages in the central Vietnamese highlands it.

Early this fall he and the 15 other Americans in his advisory group started getting letters from home inquiring as to what they would like for Christmas presents.

OTHER NEEDS

"We all talked about it," Smith recalls, "and decided we didn't really need anything. But these kids we see all the time do need something to make them aware of the spirit of Christmas."

Smith wrote his wife in Killeen, Tex., and asked her to send over toys, candy, soap and other articles to distribute to the local children.

Betty Smith enlisted the aid of much of Killeen and the surrounding army base of Ft. Hood.

The more Smith thought about his project the more he liked it so he decided to expand. He wrote a letter to a newspaper in Louisville, Ky., where he once was stationed, and talked a reporter from Baltimore, who was touring Viet Nam, into writing a short story about "Project Santa Claus."

The publicity and Mrs. Smith's efforts brought about a flood of gifts.

"We have already received 32 large boxes of the articles we want," Smith said, "and 132 more are on the way."

"Starting around Dec. 20 we'll distribute the stuff to the kids by helicopter. We've got a Santa Claus suit for one of the guys and we'll make a real thing of it."

WIN THE WAR
But Smith and his men figure that things like this will win the war over here.

"Our counterparts in the Viet-names forces are more excited about this than almost anything else we've done," he said.

Smith and the men of his team such as Capt. Nishimoto Masa-mi of Los Angeles and Pfc. Raymond A. Winkle of Beerville, Tex., will be risking their lives in their Christmas project because the area in which they work is dominated by several regiments of Viet Cong troops.

"I just hope we get away with it before the Viet Cong decide to launch a major attack in the area."

So far Smith has been lucky in his civic and military programs. He's been here about seven months. The Viet Cong killed his predecessor after he had been on the job 10 days.

Opposes Big Ground War

Ford Against Another Hike in Viet Force

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., said today he would be "very concerned" if President Johnson commits another 100,000 men to the U. S. forces in Viet Nam. There are rumors, Ford said, that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara recommended such an increase following his return from a visit to Viet Nam.

Ford, the House Republican leader, said in an interview that if this occurs it would result in a large-scale ground war in Southeast Asia. He added, "I think this is wrong."

It is Ford's view that the U.S. has not fully utilized its military power against significant military targets. He said the U.S. should provide a blockade against the strategic seaport of Haiphong in North Viet Nam.

"I support President Johnson's meeting the challenge of the Communists in Southeast Asia," Ford said, "but this does not mean I approve every day-to-day implementation of that policy. I would oppose withdrawal from Viet Nam as that would be in effect a surrender to the Communists."

Turning to the political situation at home, Ford said there is solid evidence to indicate the GOP will make gains in the 1966 elections.

Ford, who has made 164 speeches in 40 states since he became House GOP leader last Jan. 4, added:

"I believe the American people are concerned that we are dangerously close to one-man party rule in this country."

Discussing the 1966 Congress, Ford said a study showed that if the Republicans had replaced the "rubber-stamp" Democrats, "we could have stopped or substantially changed all major bills submitted by the White House and substantially reduced major appropriation bills."

The Republicans need a minimum of 30 additional House seats in the 1966 elections, Ford said, "and I am optimistic we are going to win more." The Democrats now control both House and Senate by 2 to 1 majorities.

State's Right in CMU Probe Challenged

LANSING (UPI) — The attorney general today wrestled with the legal question of whether the State Legislature could interfere in the affairs of Michigan's public colleges and universities.

Central Michigan University Friday challenged the right of a Senate subcommittee to investigate faculty-administration relations at the university.

The school's board of control filed a petition in the State Court of Appeals asking the attorney general to in effect answer the question today at a hearing.

Robert Cotter, university attorney, said the petition asked that the committee not be permitted to issue a report of its eight-month-long hearings into the faulty administration controversy because the committee's activities were unconstitutional.

The board contends the university is an autonomous body free from outside interference.

A TEST CASE

Cotter said the petition would be a test case of whether the legislature has a right to probe into certain activities of the board and university.

Five faculty members were responsible for the start of the investigation last spring when they complained to the legislature that they were denied pay raises because of criticism of the university administration.

The petition also asked the court to halt any further hearings.

However, the final hearing was held last Friday, the day the petition was filed, when OMU President Judson Foust testified.

LISTS REASONS

Foust said the five faculty members were not denied pay raises because of their criticism but because of their no longer contributed to the "institutional usefulness" of the university, refused to "abide by regulations," failed to meet certain academic qualifications and did not "cooperate with the rest of the faculty."

Cotter said the investigation branched into such unrelated areas as smoking regulations, parking restrictions, prometions, faculty salaries, the role of the university and other diverse subjects.

He claimed the board of control had sole power over such issues.

All five members of the committee were served with copies of the court petition.

Sen. Edward Robinson, D-Dearborn, chairman of the committee, said the question of the legality of the investigation would be handled entirely by the attorney general's office. Several Republican legislators have branded the hearings as unconstitutional and described them as "witch hunts."

California's Mono Lake is often called the "Dead Sea of America."

Draft Chief Threatened by Phone

LANSING (AP) — Anonymous telephone calls threatening his family with reprisals over the reclassification of six University of Michigan students were reported Saturday by the state director of Selective Service.

Col. Arthur Holmes said three callers declared they "knew facts they could use against his family." He said none of the callers threatened violence.

"I want whoever called to know that I don't intend to withdraw from any stand that I have taken," said Holmes. He said he had notified the FBI about the calls he said were received Friday night and Saturday morning.

They all said almost identical things. They denounced me for reclassifying the students and they threatened character assassination against my family. I'm not going to take this sitting down," he said.

3 CHILDREN
Holmes and his wife have three children—John, 11; Richard, 27, a Foreign Service officer in Washington; and Louise, 20, a student at Michigan State University.

The six students were reclassified from a student deferment to 1A after taking part in an anti-Viet Nam demonstration at the Ann Arbor Selective Service office Oct. 15.

Two of the six have appeals pending at their Wayne County draft board. They claim their constitutional rights have been violated.

Holmes recommended that the local boards review the students' status in light of the demonstration.

Find Polarized Radio Waves

Signals Come From Distant Sky Source

By Science Service
LEXINGTON, Mass. — The discovery of polarized radio waves from a distant source in the sky was made by scientists using a 150-foot radio telescope in Tyngsboro, Mass.

The unusually high degree of polarization observed, amounting to 30 per cent of the received energy, indicates that unexpected physical conditions or processes exist in the direction of the radio source called W-3. Forces such as electric or magnetic fields cause the radio signals to line up or become polarized. In the absence of such forces the signal would oscillate equally in all directions, perpendicular to the path of travel.

Evidence indicates that the emissions are produced by the OH, or hydroxyl, radical, but what it is that causes the polarization of the emission line is not yet clear.

Another mystery is that the OH emission comes not from the center of the W-3 source, but rather from a region offset from the center about one-fourth of a degree.

Dr. S. Weinreb, M. L. Meeks and J. C. Carter, all of Lincoln Laboratory, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Lexington, and Drs. A. H. Barrett and A. E. Rogers of the research laboratory of electronics, MIT, Cambridge, made the observations using Lincoln Laboratory's new Haystack Microwave Research Facility, Tyngsboro, Mass., as a radio telescope.

Receiving and transmitting units mounted in interchangeable "plug-in" rooms make it possible for Haystack to operate as a radio telescope, a long-range radar or an experimental terminal for communications research.

With the resurgence of popularity for the harmonica, 2,800,000 of the musical instruments were sold last year.

Nostalgia Offers A Steadying Influence

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Tomorrow is hard to climb. But it is always easy to slide back into yesterday, and relive with friendliness the past.

The farther you have gone in life, the more you have to recall. One of the troubles of the young is that they have too few memories to cling to when times get unsteady.

However, you are no sophomore if you can look back and honestly remember when — You could gain a reputation as a wit by remarking "Why did the chicken cross the road?" — to get on the other side, of course!

GAIN 5 POUNDS

After taking a muscle building course from a correspondence school to avoid being a 97-pound weakling, you discovered you had only become a 102-pound weakling.

One of the things you knew for sure was that if you picked up a toad you would suddenly get warts.

If you were sick, your tongue was coated; if you were well, it wasn't.

You made a summer evening part of your joy forever by catching a firefly and putting it in a fruit jar.

STUPID

A girl who wasn't too smart was called a dumb belle.

Most children smelled of licorice.

You could always tell what time it wasn't by looking at any of the four faces of the courthouse clock.

A man could win a name for himself by plowing a straight furrow. People would travel for miles by horse and buggy to hear a politician make a speech about the tariff problem.

STORE BREAD

Everybody in the neighborhood knew a wife was lazy if she bought bread at the grocery store instead of baking it at home herself.

On New Year's Eve the head of the family at midnight would take a revolver and walk out the door and solemnly empty it against a startled sky. The children fought for the shells as souvenirs.

DON'T WIN!

One of the things a smart girl learned early was never to beat her suitor at croquet.

The leading family in town pastured an iron deer on its front yard.

It was widely believed that if you mixed pickles and ice cream you would get a stomachache, and if you drank milk at the same meal you ate fish, you could be poisoned.

Women kept their change in the cookie jar, and men carried it in a leather purse.

DIME STORE GLASSES

When a fellow had trouble reading the fine print in the mail order catalog, he went to the dime store and bought himself a pair of glasses.

Movie fans were stunned by the announcement that Wally Reid was a narcotics addict.

Suspenders were a status symbol. No responsible business executive would wear a belt.

People would stay up late at night with headphones on trying to pick up Pittsburgh on their crystal radio set.

MOSCOW (UPI) — Algerian leader Col. Houari Boumedienne arrived in Moscow today to mend fences broken with the deposed Ahmed Ben Bella, a staunch friend of the Soviet Union.

Boumedienne's official visit was seen by diplomatic observers as an attempt to normalize relations between the Kremlin and Algeria. Boumedienne overthrew the Ben Bella government last June 19.

Actor's Curious Saga

Comeback Trail Is Rocky One for Jeff Richards

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD — From movie star to ditch digger and deck hand — that's the curious saga of Jeff Richards.
At 41, his black hair is flecked with gray, and his frame is no longer lean and athletic. But he remains a startlingly handsome figure of a man as he stalks hero Howard Keel down Paramount's Western street in "Waco."

A decade ago, Richards was playing Keel's brother in the musical hit "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," and he was one of MGM's brightest young players. Later, Richards starred in a television series, "Jefferson Drum."

More recently, he has been digging storm drains for a construction firm, working as a security guard for a Miami Beach hotel and as a seaman on a charter yacht.

Whatever happened to Jeff Richards?
A lot of things, he admits, including a career slump, an embittering divorce and a bout with the bottle.

Richards discussed his recent history during a break in "Waco," his first acting in five years. Things started turning sour after he had filmed the pilot for a television series, "The Last Frontier," a story about Alaska which he felt held much promise. It didn't sell.

Acting jobs grew scarce, and Jeff's disillusionment was compounded by the end of his marriage — "I was so glad to see it over I said, 'Let her have everything.'"

PARTY ROUNDS
Boredom set in. He tried to assuage it by making the party rounds. "I drank like an s.o.b.," he admitted.

Jeff ballooned to 250 pounds. He took a job as a common laborer with a construction gang. One day he was trying to pull a water pump out of a soggy ditch. His foot slid and he tumbled, slipping a disc.

He accompanied a friend to Houston, where he lived on pills because of the pain. The disc was removed at a Veterans' Hospital, and Jeff spent a year recovering.

He returned to Hollywood and worked as a laborer until he injured his Achilles tendon. Still no acting jobs came, and he didn't care.

TOUR OF STUDIO
"I really fell into acting by accident, anyway," he recalled. "When I was in the Navy during the war, I came on a tour of Paramount Studio. Milt Lewis, the talent head, told me to look him up after the war."

"But I was signed by the Portland Beavers to play baseball after I got out of the Navy, and I played with the Salem Senators until I tore a knee cartilage — I must be accident prone. I went back to Paramount to visit some friends and I was signed on the spot." Contracts with Warners and MGM followed.

A year ago, Jeff went to Florida and was working as security guard at the Americana Hotel when he met an old Hollywood friend, Marilyn Hinton. She referred him for a job as crew member on the yacht Edgewood, which chartered out of Fort Lauderdale. She also got him the "Waco" job.

"My whole attitude is different after a year away," he said. "I've dropped 35 pounds, and I can drink sensibly now. I may stay here for a television series, or I may go back to the boat. At least I know how to live with myself now."

Santa and the Zabbazara Bus

BY LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: The Fabulous Dunklebum turns on all the lights on his glittering arms so Mr. D can see to repair the bus. But the gas had leaked out, so the monster had to carry the bus up the mountainside.

CHAPTER SEVEN

AP Newsfeatures

It was a long way up the mountain. The snow was deep and the rocks slick with ice.

The Fabulous Dunklebum was gasping for breath when he finally brought the Zabbazara bus to the road at the top of the hill.

Daylight had come. The little boy pointed over the other side of the mountain to a cluster of houses and stables and workshops.

"It is Santa Land! And look how the road winds downhill. We can coast all the way. The Fabulous Dunklebum won't have to carry us any further."

"Then he can ride inside with me," said the crocodile. "I am sure he would like to see Santa, too."

She had fallen in love with the creature and did not want to part from him.

The Fabulous Dunklebum was so shaken up some of his long glittering arms slipped down through the windshield that wasn't there anymore and began to flash lights off and on in Mr. D's face.

ALL THE WAY

Mr. D took the wheel. Even though he couldn't see straight he was the only one who knew how to drive, and you had to know a great deal just to blow the horn of a machine like the Zabbazara bus.

He flapped his ears furiously and the bus began to roll.

The little boy hung over one shoulder and the donkey over the other. Between them they kept Mr. D in the middle of the road by shouting "Move left!" or "Move right!"

As the way got steeper the bus went faster and faster.

The crocodile thumped her tail wildly and screamed "Slow down! Slow down!" But, unfortunately the brake wasn't working any more and there was no way to slow down.

The Fabulous Dunklebum was so shaken up some of his long glittering arms slipped down through the windshield that wasn't there anymore and began to flash lights off and on in Mr. D's face.

Mr. D, not knowing what else to do, put his hand on the horn and honked it all the way down the mountain.

Noisy as a circus parade, the bus finally came to the bottom of the incline and, still in one piece, coasted into Santaland.

For a long moment no one moved on the Zabbazara bus. They could hardly believe they were alive.

Then the little boy shouted, "We're in time! I see elves. They are Santa's workers. See, they are standing all around. The Voodoo man hasn't come!"

It was true. Across the snow fields they could see little fellows in peaked caps standing about the shops.

Mr. D leaped off the bus with the others behind him. They raced across the snow banks shouting "Horray, horray! We've come on time!"

Mr. D reached the first two elves. They had sacks of toys over their shoulders.

Mr. D was so excited his crossed eyes rolled in his head.

VERY IMPORTANT
"Where is Santa Claus? We must see Santa immediately! It's very important!"

The elves gazed at him and made no reply.

The little boy and the donkey and the crocodile and the Fabulous Dunklebum came panting up behind Mr. D.

"They don't answer me!" exclaimed Mr. D. "They don't understand!"

NOT ALIVE

But the others took one look at the elves and fell back in horror.

"They're not alive!" gasped the boy. "They've turned to stone!"

Indians Okay Flooding of Sacred Land

CONCHITI, N.N. (AP) — The Cochiti Indian Pueblo has put hopes for the future ahead of pride in the past.

The Indians have given official consent to a $50-million dam project which will flood 4,000 acres of sacred pueblo land.

"We have had to ask, what will this mean to our children and their children," said Pueblo Gov. Fred Cordero.

"What will it mean to our community, our state, our country?"

The Cochitis signed an easement yesterday with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for the five-year Cochiti Dam project in central New Mexico.

SECOND LARGEST

The easement gives the engineers authority to flood the land with waters of the Rio Grande behind the 5.3-mile earth filled dam, the second largest of its type west of the Mississippi River.

"We have a great love for this land or ours. The earth is our mother, the Great Spirit. This is holy ground made sacred by the lives of our ancestors," Cordero told the crowd of about 500 gathered for the signing ceremonies.

"Our people were nursed and sustained by this great river for many years before the white man came. We have always felt that this is our river, but we are willing to share it with others."

"It will play a part in our lives now. We will feel a little sad even though we will gain many benefits," Cordero said.

On hand for the ceremonies were Sens. Clinton P. Anderson and Joseph Montoya, both D.N.M., and Gov. Jack M. Campbell.

Montoya said the project would provide a monthly payroll of about $500,000 and jobs for nearly 1,000 persons.

The engineers gave the pueblo a check for $145,200 for the land.

"Lotus-eater" is a term applied to absent-minded, impractical persons who build air castles and dream impossible dreams.

Wilson Eyes March Vote

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
There is growing speculation that British Prime Minister Harold Wilson will call a new general election next March.

Despite his difficulties with rebellious Rhodesia and his narrow Commons majority of two, he has been doing all right thus far, and probably could continue for some time. Nevertheless, he is dependent on his support from the Liberals and the position is uncomfortable.

A factor that may influence his decision also is a wish to get the elections over with before he introduces a new budget in April. The budget is expected to be tough and later the economy may face new trials.

Lines Open: Insiders do not expect Wilson's pre-Easter visit to Moscow — now in the planning stage — to produce any more than did Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart's.

The Russian leaders made it clear to Stewart they were not anxious to try to improve East-West relations so long as the United States is engaged in Viet Nam.

But the fact the Russians will receive Wilson is seen as a good sign in itself. They want to keep things.

Showdown Delayed: A showdown on a greater voice for West Germany in nuclear weapons decisions probably will be put off for awhile despite West German pressures.

One reason is that the Dec. 4-16 Paris meeting of the NATO ministerial conference is sandwiched in between French elections.

The French do not like the 10-nation "special committee" on nuclear affairs set up last month by NATO defense ministers, but a French veto is considered unlikely now. For the moment, the French would prefer to play a watching role.

Election Betting: Early betting is that President Charles de Gaulle will win reelection in the second round of the French presidential contest Dec. 19 with between 55 and 60 per cent of popular votes compared with 40 to 45 per cent of leftist Francois Mitterrand. Abstentions may be heavy.

Mariner Data Yields Mars Temperatures

By Science Service
WASHINGTON — The temperature at the Martian surface, late in the afternoon in late winter, is about 80 degrees below zero Fahrenheit at the place where the planetary probe Mariner 4 made its observations.

Mariner 4's observations provide substantial new information concerning the Martian atmosphere, which consists mainly of carbon dioxide.

From their information Dr. F. S. Johnson of the Earth and Planetary Sciences Laboratory, Southwest Center for Advanced Studies, Dallas, Tex., has calculated a profile of the temperatures in the Martian atmosphere.

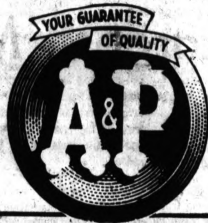

At a height of about eight miles, the temperature has dropped to minus 207 degrees F., Dr. Johnson reports here in a magazine.

From there to an altitude of about 60 miles the temperature drops at a rate of about one degree every six-tenths of a mile, decreasing to minus 306 at 60 miles.

Dr. Johnson also reported that Mars may have a weak magnetic field, not strong enough to have been detected by Mariner's instruments but sufficient to prevent the solar wind from blowing the outer Martian atmosphere into space.

He bases this suggestion on the failure to find evidence of carbon monoxide, which would be present if the high atmosphere has been swept away by the solar wind.

U.S. Navy Largest, Most Advanced

LONDON (UPI) — An authoritative naval review published today says the U.S. Navy is the largest and most advanced the world has ever seen and could "bulldoze" the way to victory in Viet Nam if given the go-ahead.

No combination of Communist forces could stop the American Navy, according to the 1965-66 edition of Jane's Fighting Ships.

"It must be a source of wonder to many a nation, especially to an aggressively inclined, why the United States, with such a colossal military force and mounting any size of air strike, has not bulldozed her way to the objective in Viet Nam," the review said.

It said the U.S. Navy "is doubtless capable not only of containing any possible combination of Vietnamese forces arrayed against it, but of countering any force that any cobelligerents might have available in that sphere."

The only significant naval forces in Far East waters which could oppose the Americans are the Red Chinese, with mostly antiquated units but 30 submarines, and the highly efficient Soviet fleet.

Jane's said the entire force of U.S. nuclear-powered surface warships, including the giant aircraft carrier Enterprise, "have been or are being transferred to the Pacific fleet for support of operations off Viet Nam."

It said the Soviet Union is keeping long-range, missile-armed units of its submarine fleet "on station" off Communist China, the United States and Australia.

It noted that the Russians, although trailing in nuclear units, have almost as many submarines as the rest of the world combined — including the United States.

Jane's, regarded as the world's most authoritative reference on the navies of the world, estimated the Red submarine fleet at 425 vessels — 399 conventional and 26 nuclear-powered.

The Soviet navy draws freely from the mercantile pool whenever it is in the interest of the fighting services, either absorbing merchant ships as naval auxiliaries or building naval vessels on mercantile lines," it said.

FOURTH ARM

"There is no doubt that the U.S.S.R. regards her merchant shipping fleet not only as an essential element of the national economy at all times but as a vital fourth arm of defense in emergencies," Jane's said.

The Soviet navy was estimated to comprise 22 cruisers, 150 destroyers, 35 nuclear powered submarines, 390 conventionally powered submarines, 100 frigates, 700 min-sweepers, 250 escort and patrol boats, 550 motor gunboats, 130 landing craft, 300 auxiliaries and 200 service craft.

Its merchant fleet includes 1,700 ships aggregating 7 million gross tons.

The U.S. Navy alone has more than 2,600 vessels, including 57 aircraft and helicopter carriers of all types. The Russians have no carriers.

Frug Party Jam Session

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Police were called to untangle the mess that developed when an estimated 30,000 teen-agers tried to do the drug at a dance for underprivileged children Sunday.

Six teen-agers had to be helped to the sidelines of Freedom Hall which seats 18,000 for basketball. Five returned to the dance floor after they caught their breath. One was taken to a hospital for X-rays. More than 20,000 toys were collected.

FISH FOR BOGUS MONEY — Dallas County Deputy Sheriffs K. E. Croy (left) and Ervin Cawthron were wading yesterday and fished out a batch of counterfeit bills, which may amount to $200,000 or more, from the Elm Fork of the Trinity River in Dallas, Tex. Most of the new bills and offset plates were in a brown duffle bag found in the water.

Time for Relaxation, Preparation

Holidays Breathe for Student

By LESLIE J. NASON, ED. D.

The Christmas holidays are a welcome breather for college and high school students.

Midterm examinations and their aftermath have drained their energy. The students need to recuperate and get set for the final sprint that ends the semester.

DR. NASON For the student who has done well, who has the course material fairly well organized in his mind, the holidays are happy days spent with family and friends — a time of relaxation and a time to build up mental and physical strength. This break in the rush of information is just what is needed.

But for the student who has not succeeded well, the holiday break in classes does not eliminate the worry.

This student should spend at least part of his vacation period doing something about his plight.

SOLUTION POSSIBLE

This is the very point in the semester's work where a little well-directed effort can produce startling results.

If he does nothing during the vacation period, the student will reenter his classes in January even less prepared for the windup in each course than he was at the start of the vacation.

The solution for the faltering student is relatively simple but does involve some work. He can put himself in a solid position by making two systematic drives.

First, he must review the course from the beginning, striving for complete understanding of the concepts presented. At the same time he must get the best possible grasp of the overall organization of the course.

Eight or 10 hours of this type of study will do wonders in bringing order out of the chaos that may exist in his mind. These eight or ten hours can be spent over two or three days or possibly take up only one day of the vacation.

The second step which must necessarily follow the first is to read and skim ahead to the end of the course. In some cases, an actual written sentence outline of the remaining chapters to be covered will be necessary if he is to follow class discussions.

With this background of readiness, he can enter the last month of work confident that he can keep it organized.

Fortified with outlines either written or mental, he will gain the maximum benefit from the reviews presented in the classroom. His own final efforts and preparation for the semester examinations will be more effective.

Two or three days' work is a small price to pay for the higher grades achieved.

Weather Poor Across Nation

Accidents Numerous in Snow, Rain, Fog

By The Associated Press

A blanket of wintry weather — snow, rain, sleet and fog — stretched across the continent today.

A sleet storm paralyzed portions of the Dakotas and western Minnesota, knocking out telephone communications and isolating some communities without power.

Snow, rain and fog snarled traffic and caused many accidents.

A Greyhound bus en route to New Orleans went off a highway during a rainstorm yesterday near Pensacola, Fla., killing four persons and injuring 19.

An Air Canada four-engine turbo-prop revved its engines just before it was to take off from O'Hare International Airport in Chicago for Toronto, Ont., yesterday.

LEAVES RUNWAY

The plane skidded off the runway and became stuck in mud. The 71 passengers were transferred to another plane.

A pilot apparently became lost in the fog near White Plains N.Y., yesterday and was killed when his plane crashed.

Snow fell on the ice-coated eastern section of North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota.

The Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. said at least 20,000 wire breaks were reported in South Dakota yesterday.

POLES SNAPPED

The company said more than 2,000 telephone poles had snapped under the ice loads. The company sent 520 workers from four states to repair the damage.

A telephone company spokesman reported 49 percent of the exchanges in the Tripp, N.D., district were out of order last night.

He said more than 80 North Dakota towns were affected by broken lines and poles and that it would be Wednesday before service is back to normal.

Nearly 300 men were reported working to restore communications.

Congress Calls Banking Board in Probe of Interest Rate Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress takes an official look today at the interest rate hike which placed the Federal Reserve Board in direct conflict with President Johnson on economic policy.

Wisconsin Gets First Open Housing Law

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Warren P. Knowles has signed Wisconsin's first open housing law.

The law prohibits racial or religious discrimination in the sale, rental or financing of private housing. It will exempt owner-occupied dwellings of four units or less.

the increase, calling Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr. and the other members of the Federal Reserve Board as first witnesses.

The chairman of the committee, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., said in an interview he believes the Federal Reserve's real motive for the increase was not to ward off inflation or improve the international standing of the dollar but to "bail out the New York banks which have $15 billion in certificates of deposit coming due."

Patman, who has been demanding the Federal Reserve Board chairman's resignation for months, said, "It will be a miracle if Martin hangs on."

certificates, a special form of deposit for a fixed time on which banks normally pay higher than regular interest.

WANT 5% PCT.

"They thought they might have trouble getting the certificates unless they could pay 5% per cent," Patman said.

However, the senior Republican member of the committee, Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York, disassociated himself from Patman's accusation, as well as from the chairman's long-term efforts to subject the Federal Reserve to government controls.

"I don't agree with what the Federal Reserve did in this case," Javits said in a separate interview, "but I think it is very important for the Federal Reserve to maintain its independence.

"I think the force of public opinion at hearings like this will do what is necessary for correction. Any legislative action would impair the Federal Reserve's independence."

IRKS JOHNSON

The Federal Reserve Board announced on Dec. 5 an increase in the discount rate from 4 to 4½ per cent and an increase from 4¼ to 5¼ per cent in the ceiling on interest rates banks can pay on time deposits. Johnson promptly expressed his displeasure.

The resulting increase in interest rates throughout the banking system tends to raise the cost of money for all borrowers, from the consumer buying a television set or automobile to the businessman expanding his plant, and the government selling bonds to cover its deficit.

The board, which acted by 4-3 vote, said the action was intended to keep prices stable and improve the international position of the dollar in the face of continuing unfavorable balances of payments.

Subscriptions for GIs

CULVER, Ind. (AP) — The staff of Culver Military Academy's student paper, the Vidette, has collected $350 to buy magazine subscriptions for U.S. servicemen in Southeast Asia "to remind them that there are people back home who are thinking of them."

Too Many Sweets

Wanted Meat, Potatoes

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Recently we had a death in our family. Kind friends and neighbors carried in much appreciated food.

But, Abby, WHY don't friends and neighbors get together and plan what they should take? After all, who can use 15 cakes, 10 pies, 12 dozen cookies and 8 bowls of jello salad?

No one brought what we really needed, like chicken or meat and potatoes. With seven carloads of out-of-town relatives to feed, we finally had to send out to a drive-in for sandwiches.

Don't get the idea we didn't appreciate folks sending in what they did, but at a time like that we would have appreciated some meat and potatoes a lot more.

HAPPENED TO ME

DEAR HAPPENED: Only if someone assumes the responsibility of taking charge of the food (a dubious honor for which few will volunteer), can this problem be solved.

In the absence of such a coordinator, each friend and neighbor will naturally bring what ever he finds easiest to prepare and within his budget. If one inquires, "What shall I bring?" suggestions can be made.

Otherwise, the recipients should accept graciously whatever is brought and provide whatever is needed, but lacking, themselves.

DEAR ABBY: I am sure that "CONFIDENTIAL TO PERPLEXED" was meant for me. Someone apparently wrote and asked if sending gifts with the price tags and sales slips enclosed was a "new-fangled custom" and if it was proper. Your answer to both questions was a flat NO!

I don't ordinarily send my gifts that way, Abby, but I have a niece who has exchanged every gift I have ever sent her, so why should I bother to gift-wrap them?

The price is no secret because when she goes to exchange the gift, she finds out how much I paid, it's just too bad.

Don't ask me why I continue to send her gifts. I feel compelled to because her mother was so good to me, but that's another story. Since you printed her complaint, I hope you will print my explanation.

NO GIFT-WRAPPING

DEAR NO: Since you feel "compelled" to give your niece gifts, why don't you save your energy and send her a gift certificate?

DEAR ABBY: I sure got a bang out of your telling that man who didn't know the color of his wife's eyes to check her driver's license. But I don't know why a wife should get upset because her husband didn't know the color of her eyes when he probably didn't even know the color of his OWN eyes.

I am a driver's license examiner for the State of Oklahoma, and I have seen men, while filling out their applications for a license, yell, "Hey, Mabel, what color are my eyes?" I have also seen people check their wallets for other licenses to see what was put down for the color of their eyes. And in our applications, under EYES, someone wrote, "TWO." Someone else wrote "20-20." And one person even wrote "BLEW Sincerely,

OU Concert Is Treat to Hear

By BERNICE ROSENTHAL

The Christmas Oratorio by Johann Sebastian Bach was performed Sunday afternoon at Oakland University.

Under the direction of George V. Cripps, the 136 voice chorus, amplified by the Birmingham extension group of 40 and a Baroque Orchestra, gave an inspired, reverent and thoroughly professional rendition of one of the most beautiful Christmas compositions ever written.

Soloists were Irene Kunst Edinger, soprano; Alice Engram, alto; Don Presley, tenor and Otto Brown, bass. Harpsichord accompanist was by Mrs. Cripps.

SAME PERIOD

Although not so well known as Handel's "Messiah," of the same musical period, the Christmas Oratorio has greater depth and tenderness than its more famous, more expansive contemporary. It was a product of Bach's mature years, and the musical ideas are expressed concisely and without unnecessary repetition.

Mr. Cripps conducted with great delicacy, clarity and precision throughout the entire part of the Oratorio. His courage in doing so difficult a work was equalled by his ability to make it sound smooth, simple and flowing.

Each separate part was a small gem, perfectly formed and conceived. Florid parts were presented with ease, and with no attempt to show off their difficulty.

There was a sincerity, compassion and understanding which showed his complete knowledge of the score and his ability to project this feeling to orchestra and chorus and give them and audience alike a full appreciation of its value. The tempo never dragged, nor was the tonal quality pushed or strained.

There was perfect balance between orchestra and voices, and always a smooth transition between parts.

The chorus itself was an exquisite blend of fine voices, which is a rarity, and the singing of the many chorales and larger choruses expressed, under Mr. Cripps' baton, the praise, love, adoration and wonder which is the basic spirituality of the Christmas Oratorio.

The soloists contributed expert handling of the difficult solo passages with their long phrases, extremes in range demanding vocal flexibility and breath control.

Particularly fine were Dan Presley as Evangelist and tenor and Alice Engram, alto, whose "Prepare Thyself, O Zion" had great depth and beauty.

Music Takes the Look of Past

"Soiree Musicale," a typical "at home" concert of 100 years ago featuring the works of old-time Detroit composers is scheduled at 3:30 p.m. Sunday in Oakland University's Gold Room.

Featured performers will be soprano Eave Turner, accompanied by pianist Bernard Katz, with the assistance of a mixed quartet from the Bach and Beer Society of Detroit.

Mary Teal will narrate the production which has been staged by Carol Selby.

Among the dozen works to be performed are three by Detroit composer J. Henry Whittemore (1834-1897), and a popular work of 1874 bearing the unusual title "Home Sweet Home with Variations Introducing Waves in a Storm" by Solomon Mazurette.

JUNE DEBUT

The program, created by Larry Brown of the Detroit Public Library's Music and Performing Arts department, was presented last June in a hilarious debut performance in the library. The response was such that the performance was planned immediately for a repeat at OU.

Single tickets are available at the university's festival office.

Tactless Talk Cause of Trouble

By the Emily Post Institute One of the fundamental and common sense rules of all conversation is that one must talk about things that will be interesting and agreeable to the listener.

Certain subjects, even though you are very sure of the ground which you are standing, had best be shunned, for example, criticism of a religious creed or disagreement with another's political conviction.

TACTFUL TALK

The tactful person keeps his prejudices to himself, and even when involved in a discussion he says, "It seems to me thus and so." One who is well bred never says, "That's not so!" If he finds another's opinion unreasonable, he tries to find a more pleasant subject as soon as possible.

Also, conversation must never be on subjects of illness, misfortune and other unpleasantness. Keep your problems to yourself. Your audience probably has them too and will be entertained by yours. Only your nearest and dearest care how many times you have been in the operating room.

A good resolve to make and keep, if you would also keep your friends in love is never to speak of anyone without, in imagination, having him or her overheard what you say.

One often hears the exclamation, "I would say it to her face!" At least be very sure that this is true, and not a braggart's phrase, and then, nine times out of ten, think better of it and refrain.

Society is supposed to be a pleasant place; telling people disagreeable things to their face or talking behind their backs is not a pleasant occupation.

HOUSEHOLD SHOWER

Q: A friend of mine, single, and in her late 30s, is moving into her own apartment very shortly. I would like to know if it would be proper to give a household shower for her or are showers given only for brides and mothers-to-be?

A: It will be entirely proper to give a household shower for your friend.

The clothes of the bride and groom as well as those of their attendants are described in the Emily Post Institute booklet entitled, "Clothes of the Bridal Party."

To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Emily Post Institute, in care of The Pontiac Press.

A surprise open house in the home of their daughter Sunday marked the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fay Mosser of Shady Lane. The couple was married on Dec. 10, 1915 in Port Huron. They have two children, Mrs. Clayton Campbell of Savoy Avenue and Garvin H. Mosser of Milford. There are three grandchildren.

Pregnancy Brings Crisis Emotionally for Women

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Every woman goes through a crisis when she learns that she is pregnant, according to a marriage counselor in an article in a recent issue of the American Journal of Nursing, the official publication of the American Nurses' Association.

Besides reacting personally, she creates a reaction in her own family circle. Her reactions, in turn, reflect back on her. The responses of the father of the child affect the pregnant mother the most.

Even if the child is planned for, the pregnant woman still goes through some anxiety though she may not show it. She may be concerned over the extra burden of another child, a missed vacation, an end to unlimited outside activity such as full-time work for example. All these things are important sources of stress for her, and she needs the opportunity to discuss them with someone who understands.

Today, it is rather common for the pregnant woman to play down her purely personal reactions to the drastic changes that are going on in her body and her emotions. This does not mean they do not exist.

She should turn to her doctor, her nurse, social worker, analyst, or counselor for comfort and advice during pregnancy, whether it be her first, or one of many.

Yule Designs Trim Wall or Packages

During the busy holiday season, versatile, easy-to-make Christmas designs that can add a bright, personal touch to a gift package or decorate a foyer are especially welcome.

Take the designs shown above, for example. All you need to make them are some bright red or green Christmas wrap, cotton swabs from the medicine chest, white cardboard, glue, ink and scissors.

If you are planning to make the designs as panels to decorate a buffet table, entrance foyer or child's room, you will also need shirt cardboard to stiffen the design.

For the reindeer, you will need a triangle with an inch base for the face, a circle for the nose and two ears cut from white construction paper. Using a cotton swab as a tiny paint brush, make the eyes.

For the antlers you will need 11 cotton swabs. Bend the swabs carefully so they won't break completely and glue them in place as indicated in the photo.

To make the Santa Claus, shown right, cut hat and face of white cardboard. Leave an opening for the mouth and paste on Christmas wrap or construction paper. With a cotton swab dipped in ink draw the eyebrows and the pom-pom on his hat.

His beard is made with cotton swabs. Arrange them around his face, then glue in place.

Look for Unexpected Wedding Expenses

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

A young couple in California writes happily: "We plan to get married soon and want to know what to expect in the way of expenses."

Bless their hearts, they're thinking only in terms of "expected" expenses. What they'd better be doing is putting their dimes in the bank right now for all the unexpected expenses, leading up to the expected expenses!

I feel duty bound to report a "case history" of another young couple—friends of mine in Ohio who have just been regaling me with what can happen to the prospective bride and groom, financially, before the wedding day comes around. This Ohio couple cited these His and Hers:

HIS: She hadn't allowed for the expense of showers and wedding gifts for five of her classmates who were graduated in the same nurses' training class she had just finished and whose weddings were within a few days or weeks of her own. There went some of her "wedding" savings.

She had forgotten to consider the cost of her own graduation announcements.

She hadn't thought about the expense of having her new apartment (which she and her fiance had had to rent in advance) cleaned, at the price of $15.

She had underestimated the dry-cleaning bills for her last year's clothes. (A trousseau doesn't include everything, after all).

She had blithely ignored the extra cost of gas for running the car on untimely errands.

She lost the expensive tickets to a big football game and two shows which had been bought in advance. She just put them somewhere in the flurry of getting ready for the wedding.

She hadn't counted on final alterations of the wedding gown since her weight had changed a few pounds since she bought it. (All that food at those other bride's showers).

Her nerves got so frazzled, what with one thing and another, she had a medical bill she hadn't expected.

UNEXPECTED COURSES

HIS: He was stuck with $65 rent for the apartment they had to hold until after the wedding. (He had just paid his way through college).

He didn't expect to have to buy a stove and refrigerator for the apartment—to the tune of $200.

His mother decided it would be nice for him to send corsages to his aunts who were coming from out of town to the wedding.

He didn't expect to have to buy a bedroom set because this had been promised as a wedding present to the couple long ago by a relative. However, the relative lost her job in the meantime and had to renege!

He, like his bride-to-be, had failed to estimate the costs of using his car on many extra errands.

So, the young people planning to get married—try to save up a little more ready cash than you think you're going to need. Just the wedding expenses themselves—the "expected" expenses—may seem fairly modest compared to the unexpected.

Pair Speaks Vows in Ortonville

A reception in Grange Hall followed the marriage of Lynda Deloris Simkins to Jack Adrean Gabbard, Saturday, in the Ortonville Baptist Church.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Morris E. Simkins of Hendrydale Street, Pontiac Township, and the Paul A. Gabbards of Glass Road, Brandon Township.

White Chantilly lace over taffeta fashioned a bouffant gown for the bride who carried white carnations and yellow roses for the evening ceremony. Her veil was silk illusion.

Sharyle Gabbard was honor maid. Patricia Simkins attended her sister as bridesmaid along with Judith Gallo.

On the esquire side were Robert Gabbard, best man at the ceremony performed by Rev. Roy Nordrup, Edward Bryant and Edwin Jordan ushered.

The couple left for a honeymoon in northern Michigan.

Lot of Bridgework

TULSA, Okla. (U) — Jewell Mallard has seen a lot of changes in the dental profession since she started work in 1919 as a dental assistant. Until her recent retirement, she had worked for more than 46 years in the same dental office here, although under five different dentists.

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Sometimes I think they should have called retirement, rather than menopause, the "change of life." Actually at menopause is the only drastic change in the fact that a woman can no longer have children. At retirement the whole plan of life changes overnight.

An executive of a far-flung, large business concern told me that many of the executives in his company almost go into a decline when retirement approaches. They really get the jitters. For some years companies have been aware of the shock retirement may have for some of their personnel and have introduced programs of retirement training.

A man should prepare psychologically as well as financially for this time by acquiring interests outside his job long before that day arrives. If he hasn't done so, this doesn't mean that he must be on the sidelines of life. There are so many civic and philanthropic organizations which need him. Also there are an increasing number of job opportunities for the retired.

So far as the woman in the home is concerned, often her husband's retirement is as big a shock to her as it is to him. Who was it who said, "She married him for better or worse but not for lunch?" That says a lot that makes sense.

A FREE LANCE
Before this as soon as her husband went to work she could get on with the business of the day: cleaning, cooking, shopping, putting her hair up in curlers, seeing her friends once in a while, doing whatever was demanded of her. She was a free lance in the way she planned her day.

Also, after the man went out into the world to do his work and the woman remained at home to do hers, they met at the end of the day for a lovely evening together. This provided a change of pace which re-rolled the tedium of daily living to a fresh start. Many couples who get along beautifully before retirement have trouble afterward.

Truly, retirement is often a crucial time in marriage. This may sound silly, but it isn't. Psychologists have been working on it, marriage counselors have been consulted about it and books have been written about it.

Of course, this should be the very nicest time in a marriage—and often is, and always could be—if the husband and wife face the change in their way of life with intelligence, understanding and a sense of humor.

The experts say that there are two important factors in making these years delightful. In the first place the man should recognize the fact that his wife has more work rather than less work to do at home and should pitch in and help so that the two of them can enjoy the new leisure. Also, both of them must have some time alone and some individual interests. Otherwise, they will be tied together like Siamese twins in a "togetherness" that is smothering.

In the first blush of retirement of many couples make mistakes about where they wish to live, about all sorts of things. This column was stimulated by a booklet I have just received from The United States Department of Health, Education, and Welfare—Administration on Aging. It gives such wise guidance for those of you who are retired, about to retire, and even for those of you for whom retirement seems far away.

The booklet "Are You Planning on Living the Rest of Your Life?" was developed in cooperation with the Mayor's Commission for Senior Citizens, in Chicago. If you want a copy send 30 cents to The Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., U. S. A.

The Clifford H. Fraileys of Donley Street, Avon Township, announce the engagement of their daughter, Teresa Lucille, to Jerry Wayne Roberts, son of Mrs. George Deffenbacher of Beverly Hills and the late James K. Roberts.

Late June vows are planned by Shirley Joann Hollar of Gittins Road, Commerce Township, and William Gibson, son of the Thomas Gibsons of Garden City. The bride-elect is the daughter of the Cecil A. Hollars of Marysville, Mich. Her fiancé attends Eastern Michigan University.

Explains Changes in Program

Making the best use of available resources to meet the needs of rural families in Michigan recently meant changes for the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service.

Mrs. Loa Whitfield who heads the state-wide program explains that reorganization of the family living education program will have some new directions.

"By dividing the state into county groups with area home economists, all counties now have a family living program available to them through the Extension Service," she stressed. This wasn't possible before.

And, Mrs. Whitfield points out the value of staff sharing responsibilities in a multiplicity of areas.

"If two home economists conduct a program, each can have an opportunity to specialize or to become knowledgeable in certain areas of information. This means they can better serve the current needs of families. And I want to emphasize 'family' programs. We do not think of these merely as 'women's' programs."

Under the reorganized system, 42 home economists in the 28 areas will increase work with problem - centered programs aimed at helping the rural families with limited resources, the working mother, the elderly, and young homemakers interested in family living education.

STUDY GROUPS

But the long-standing extension study group won't be neglected. "One effective way we have of reaching people is through the organized family living education study groups," Mrs. Whitfield emphasized. "There are hundreds of such groups across the state."

"Educational programs will not be confined to organized groups. We don't want memberships, dues or any formal structure to stand in the way of providing education to people who want it," Mrs. Whitfield declares. "We do want our home economists to be able to give first priority to teaching... education is our business!"

The extension home economists will also continue to train 4-H leaders in home economics projects. Leaders in turn will pass the knowledge on to the girls enrolled as 4-H members.

"Today, people have more education and excellent communications. They recognize the need to continue education and to keep up with their ever-changing family needs. This makes teaching easier than when people were less motivated," she stresses.

Mrs. Whitfield also emphasized the value of the local leaders in the extension reorganization plan.

"Through the years, we've had strong leadership which made possible the developing and carrying out of the local programs. Today this leadership frees the home economist to teach in fields she's most needed and where leaders are less qualified."

"Leaders will help home economists to continue programs and multiply the efforts of the staff," she concluded.

Bride-Elect Is Honored at Showers

The Homebuilders' Sunday-school class of the First Baptist Church will honor Ruth Ann Wilson at a bridal shower this evening in the YWCA.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Leslie Pickup, Mrs. Stuart Sheppard and Mrs. Harold Wagg. Among some 30 guests will be the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. William Wilson of Second Avenue, her grandmother, Mrs. B. W. Muse of Fremont Street and Mrs. Robert H. Bearden of Alice Street, mother of her fiancé, Samuel Robert Bearden.

Linda McElrath and Carol Duffly gave a personal shower for Miss Wilson in the former's home on North Shirley Avenue.

The bride-elect's cousins Mary and Margaret Muse also entertained for her at a shower in their home on Lotus Court.

Following the church rehearsal on Saturday, the Beardens will host a buffet supper in their home. The ceremony is set for Dec. 20.

Have Supply of Water in Reserve

Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service
Most homes have a reserve water supply built into them. Since many emergency situations could mean a water shortage, knowing how to use these reserve supplies could make a difference in your family's comfort, says Mrs. Carol C. Kurth, area extension home economist.

The hot water heater or water pressure tank can supply many gallons of emergency water. Even the pipes and plumbing within the home carry several gallons.

You can also store a reserve water supply for emergency situations. Keep water in a metal, glass or plastic container where you can reach it when needed. Water can be canned by boiling it and sealing in a mason jar. Or, fill plastic bottles and dip the top in hot paraffin to insure a tight seal.

Advise on Dispelling Little Ones' Fears

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: My 3-year-old grandson is so demanding that he is wearing down his mother's health. He is very jealous of my attention she gives his baby brother. He can't even let her visit with me without interrupting with some excuse to get her attention.

He won't take his afternoon nap unless my daughter sits beside his crib and at night won't go to sleep because he says there are spiders in his bed. It is pathetic to see my daughter plead with him to believe she loves him as much as the baby.

We may have to say this severally for us.

Little children's certainty of our continuing presence is inevitably shaken by our modern habit of disappearing into hospitals to have new babies. They develop fear of another, perhaps permanent, disappearance by us which will expose their helplessness to unimaginable dangers — a fear of desertion by us which they may express as fear of spiders in their beds because the actual fear is too terrible to know about or identify for us.

Telling them that we "love" them doesn't reassure them because these protests of love do not contain the concrete and specific promise of our continuing availability.

When we are three years old such protests simply add up to an unsatisfying noise — grown-up talk that has nothing whatever to do with our basic error of mother's permanent disappearance.

Now, I would like to say that this habit of ours of blaming demanding children's behavior on jealousy of new brothers and sisters is both evasive and misleading. In the end all jealousy is fear of desertion by a needed person.

Whether we are jealous of the baby brother or the attention husband gives to a flirting woman at a party, our jealousy is rooted in our fear of losing mother or the husband to somebody else.

So calling demanding children "jealous" helps us not at all in reaching their basic fear of abandonment.

Spring vows are planned by Sarah Ann Wheatley and Robert Charles Brown Jr. of South Edith Street. Their parents are Mrs. Matt R. Wheatley of South Roseland Drive, the late Mr. Wheatley, and the Robert C. Browns of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Her fiancé attended Michigan State University and the Lawrence Institute of Technology.

Dr. and Mrs. Gerald Walker of James K Boulevard, announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Geraldine, to Alan Michael Raznick of Washington, D.C., son of the Herman Raznicks of Detroit. Miss Walker is a junior in dental hygiene at the University of Michigan. Her fiancé is a graduate of the Detroit College of Law.

ANSWER: Telling a frightened little child we "love him" doesn't mean much to him. It's a grownup word. He isn't interested in our "love" being too young to understand the word's meaning to us.

He is interested in hearing that he can count on us to take care of him. Helpless, dependent as he is on us for survival, what he wants to know is we're not going to leave him.

So, to reassure him, we tell him just that. Perceiving that his persistent demands for our attention are in fact demands for certainty of our continuing presence, we take him on our lap and looking deep into his eyes, say, "I am not going away from you. I am going to stay with you. I will be here when you need me."

MRS. F. J. KESKES

Keskes-Naracon Vows

The First Methodist Church, North Branch, was the setting on Saturday for the marriage of JoAnn Leorene Naracon to Francis Julius Keskes.

Rev. Ralph Pratt officiated at the double-ring candlelight rite.

Parents of the couple are the Leo E. Naracons of North Branch and Frank Keskes of Fostoria, Mich.

A bodice of re-embroidered lace highlighted the bride's gown of white satin. Her illusion veil was fitted to a white fur pillbox accented with an African goldstone pendant.

BIBLE BOUQUET She held a Bible arrangement of miniature pink roses and white carnations.

Lorraine Adamic was maid of honor and Cheryl Naracon, her sister's junior bridesmaid. Their cousin, Kathy Naracon, was flower girl with Eddie Carpenter as ring bearer.

William Keskes assisted his brother as best man and Rolin Carpenter was groomsmen. Dennis Ide and Leslie Thompson seated the guests.

After a reception in the American Legion hall, North Branch, the couple left for a honeymoon tour of Michigan. They will reside in Fostoria.

Card Display Idea

If you're tired of displaying Christmas cards in the same old way, try thumb tacking them to a wallpapered screen. If you have a piece of plywood in your garage or basement, use a sealer coat on it, then wallpaper it with a design in red Christmas colors and set it against a wall as a color accent and tack your Christmas cards on that.

Make Yule Ornaments With Gay New Tissues

Decorating the house for Christmas always sets the mood of the holiday season. It takes on special meaning when some of the holiday touches are made by you.

Especially popular this year are fancy round ornaments suspended from ceiling or doorway to add sparkle to any room.

QUICK AND EASY

You can fashion a distinctive hanging ornament in less than half an hour using Christmas tissues and a four-inch styrofoam ball.

Red and green boughs imprinted on white tissues offer ready-made holiday color for this ornament, so easy to make that you might want to enlist the youngsters' help.

You'll also need two to three yards of red or green ribbon, floral wire, and 18 red or green Christmas balls with wire prongs.

into seven-inch circles, scalloping the edges if you like. Cut a small hole in the middle of each circle and insert the prong of a Christmas ball. Wind floral wire around tissue and prong. Insert the tissue-surrounded balls into the styrofoam.

ADD BOW

Add a large red or green bow to the top of the hanging ornament, leaving streamers long enough to suspend it from ceiling, light fixture, or in a doorway. Straight pins, heavier wire, or a bent paper-clip will hold the ribbon securely.

Hairspray can be used to perk up any tissues that might be a bit limp, and a pine-scented air freshener spray will add a realistic aroma to the bough-scattered tissues.

Variations for your Christmas tissue hanging ornaments are several. Ribbon bows, small pine cones, or sprigs of mistletoe can be used in place of the Christmas balls.

Determined on a Degree

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — By studying during every spare moment, Mrs. Joy Sunderland Jones managed to receive her bachelor's degree from Memphis State University.

She graduated cum laude despite her two other fulltime jobs as a mother and as an employee in the district sales office of American Airlines.

Mrs. Jones started to college the year her daughter Kelley, now 11, began elementary school. "And she was in the second grade before she found out that everyone's mother did not go back to school," she recalls.

An advertising major, she often took classes at 7 a.m., worked all day and returned to night school from 6 to 9 p.m.

But Don't Taste It

In an emergency, you can get a small amount of colored paint by adding food coloring to white paint, stirring in a drop or two at a time until the desired shade is reached.

Last week's articles discussed high contracts which would have failed if declarer had not been able to produce a squeeze against one or both opponents.

Most squeezes aren't that important. Sometimes a squeeze will produce an overtrick at an easy contract. Many times one will develop to help at a mere part score. The first thing to remember about them is that any time you have all the tricks but one, there is a potential squeeze.

The next thing to bear in mind is that you must cash all your sure winners in order for the squeeze to succeed.

South ruffs the second diamond and runs off a few rounds of trumps. Then he takes the club finesse. East undoubtedly returns a heart, whereupon many players would simply try to break the clubs and settle for four-odd when they fail to break.

An expert would attempt a squeeze. He would start proceedings by leading a second club to dummy and ruffing a third diamond. This is essential because he must make it impossible for East to hold a high diamond.

Then he runs off all his trumps. Here again it is important to note that it won't help to play out all but one. On the last trump lead, it turns out that West is squeezed.

He must hold onto a high diamond and, in order to do so, must unguard his ten of clubs.

Then South throws dummy's last diamond because both clubs have become winners.

Soo Locks to Close Midnight Tuesday

SAULT STE. MARIE (AP)—Despite warm weather and ice-free conditions, the American Soo locks will close on schedule at midnight Tuesday, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said Sunday.

A corps spokesman said the reason for the rigid closing date was because of plans for continued construction of the new Poe Lock.

Vessels leaving the lakehead before midnight Tuesday will be given lock clearance, however.

Ford Will Make Use of Junked Vehicles

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has announced plans to rid the nation of some 250,000 junked cars each year.

Board Chairman Henry Ford II said Saturday his firm is working out an agreement with Luria Brothers Co. Inc. of Cleveland, Ohio. He said the contract would allow Ford to purchase quantities of high-quality scrap steel resulting from a Luria process used to produce steel from scrapped cars.

Under the plan, Luria would build a $3.5 million plant in the Detroit area, Ford said, adding that his firm would use the scrap to build engine blocks, rear axles and crankshafts.

There are some 80 different operations necessary in making a pair of shoes.

Sound Sizes Unborn Baby

By Science Service
CHICAGO — Sound waves too high-pitched to be heard can measure the size of an infant's head before birth, and eliminate danger of X-ray damage.

Knowing an unborn baby's head size permits doctors to judge whether a woman can achieve normal birth, Dr. Barry Goldberg of Albert Einstein Medical Center, Philadelphia recently told the Radiological Society of North America in Chicago.

Ultrasound measurement is as accurate as an X-ray picture and avoids the dangers of radiation, he said, reporting tests with 300 births.

Once doctors know the fetus' head size, they can estimate its body weight, which is particularly important if the mother has diabetes, a weak heart or some other condition likely to complicate labor. Weight is also used to indicate when an unborn child is mature enough for surgical (caesarean) delivery.

Weights were predicted within half a pound for 80 per cent of the sample group.

HEAD SIZE
The researchers were able to judge head size to within 1.4 millimeters of the size following birth.

Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt Says:

Misuse of Barbituates Can Be Perilous

Abuse of barbituates has become the leading cause of death by poisoning.

How many of these deaths are accidental and how many suicidal is hard to determine because the person who takes an ever-increasing dose of barbituates goes into a fuzzy state.

He doesn't know how many pills he has already taken and in a semiconscious state may take another big dose — the last.

Whereas addiction to narcotics is associated chiefly with underworld characters, addiction to barbituates is being seen in all levels of society. But the underlying cause is the same.

It is not the drug that causes the addiction — it is a personal maladjustment, a failure to meet life with sufficient fortitude to withstand the temptation to seek an easy way out of the problems induced by chronic fatigue.

The better-known of the many barbituates are Amytal, Butisol, Mebutal, Pentothal, phenobarbital or Luminal and Seconal.

All these drugs depress the nervous system.

When taken in the amount prescribed by a physician they are safe and valuable aids in the treatment of epilepsy, high blood pressure, peptic ulcer and nervous exhaustion.

Taken in larger-than-prescribed doses over a prolonged period they can produce extreme restlessness, irritability and mental confusion.

Not only does the barbituate addict come to depend on the drug but sudden withdrawal will cause delirium and convulsions that are harder to treat than symptoms following withdrawal of narcotics.

Withdrawal of barbituates can be accomplished safely only in a hospital and takes from three weeks to six months, depending on the degree of addiction.

And woe to him who tries to

Lions Battered in Mud; Green Bay Routs Colts for Division Lead

Unhappy Fans Boo Heavily in 29-7 Rout

Home Season Ends on Dismal Note Before Crowd of 45,420

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

Yesterday, Sunday, December 12th, will go down as one of the most dismal days in Detroit Lions' history.

The day was wet and dreary. The crowd of 45,420 booed heartlessly and cheered sarcastically as the Lions took a 29-7 beating at the hands of the Minnesota Vikings.

For the lights, which went on in the third play of the game, did nothing to brighten what happened in Tiger Stadium for the next three hours.

The Lions played ball, or at least went through the motions on the sloppy field, happy that the dismal season was coming to an end.

"We deserved the booting," said one veteran player, "and I'm not referring only to certain players. There were some bad decisions made early in the season and they lived by them."

The player did not explain what decisions he was speaking of, though may have referred to the trading of Earl Morrall and Dennis Gaubatz.

Quarterback Milt Purnell was the target of most of the booing as the crowd chanted "We want Myers."

Tom Myers did come into the game in the final quarter and the crowd cheered his every move, even his pass interception which gave the Vikings their final touchdown when Ed Sharrockman went 49 yards with it.

CHIEFS RIDICULE

The cheering obviously was not meant in support of Myers, but more in ridicule of coach Harry Gilmer's decision to stick by Purnell through the dismal season.

Minnesota took the opening kickoff and aided by a 60-yard pass play from Frank Tarkey to Tom Hall who got away from Bobby Thompson and was pushed out of bounds by Dick LeBeau at the Detroit 10.

Two plays later LeBeau took the slippery ball out of the hands of Bill Brown at the three yard line.

The Vikings one of the poorest defensive teams in the NFL, looked their best against the Lions' offense. In eight games they gave up at least 30 points or more during the season.

After the Lions lost two yards in three plays following LeBeau's steal, Pat Studstill was forced back into the end zone to punt. He stepped on the end zone line and it was ruled a safety for Minnesota.

SCORE 5-0

After the free kick, Minnesota got back to the Detroit 12 and Fred Cox made a 5-0 with a 20 yard field goal.

Three more frustrating plays and a punt by Studstill sent the Vikings moving toward another field goal, a 37-yarder by Cox to make it 8-0.

For the next three series of plays, the Lions gave up the ball on a punt, a fumble and another interception, and the Vikings scored after the first interception.

Coach Gilmer said afterward, "They just didn't want to play." Several players concurred with the statement.

GRIDIRON COLLISION — Detroit Lions defensive back Dick LeBeau (44) jarred Minnesota's end Paul Flatley hard enough on this play to break up a pass attempt by the Vikings' Fran Tarkenton in the first period of their game in Detroit yesterday. Minnesota won, 29-7.

LEAD HANDICAP FINALS — The Pontiac Open Bowling Tournament yesterday was won by Joe Sawyer (center) with a 720 total. Also very happy with their prizes were Don Krause (left), who won $300 for third place, and Ken Bressett, holding the $500 second place check. Sawyer collected $800 in addition to his championship trophy. Bressett had 688 and Krause 681.

BOSTON (AP) — Gordie Howe is 37 years old but he isn't ready to pack his bags and set out for that place where discarded players go to rest their weary legs.

The all-time National Hockey League scoring wing notched the 15th hat trick of his career as the Detroit Red Wings dumped the Boston Bruins 5-3 Sunday night.

In other NHL games, Montreal beat Chicago 5-3 and New York tied Toronto 1-1.

For the ageless Howe, the three goals brought his season total to 13 and his growing NHL record to 608. He now has 26 points for the season, compared to teammate Norm Ullman's 29.

TWO ASSISTS — Ullman had two assists Sunday and Floyd Smith and Doug Barkley got the other tallies as the Wings won their seventh straight game.

ROOKIE BIL — Rookie Bil scored twice for Boston within 21 seconds and gave the Bruins a short-lived 2-1 first period lead. It was quickly erased by Howe.

Rod Gilbert's third-period goal earned the Rangers a 2-1 victory over the New York Islanders.

Former Pro Bowler Aids City Champion

The high average bowlers didn't fare well in Sunday's Pontiac Open Bowling Tournament finals; but one ex-professional played a key role in young Joe Sawyer's handicap championship.

George (Chico) Chicovsky has won or scored well in numerous big keg tournaments. Sunday he didn't find the range on the 300 Bowl lanes until his final game; but what he couldn't do the 26-year-old Sawyer did.

"I was right behind 'Chico' and just tried to do what he did," the Pontiac Motor die room worker revealed after claiming his $800 first prize check and huge championship trophy.

Only Sawyer did it much better. While Chicovsky needed a 225 final game for a 575 actual total, the once-a-week league kegger (Friday evening company league at West Side Lanes) had 233-196-222 for 651 actual.

A 69-pin handicap — he carries a 167 average — gave him a winning total of 720. This was 32 pins better than runner-up Ken Bressett's 688. Both came on the first of the two finals' squads.

Don Krause's 681 was the best of the last squad competitors. He claimed a $300 third prize. Bressett's rewards were a $500 check and a trophy.

Bressett is a once-a-week bowler who averages 172 for the 10th team in the Collier Lanes Classic. After making the 597 cut-off point in the semifinals yesterday morning at Huron Bowl, he called home for his "good luck charm" — daughter Chris, 4. The 41-year-old Lake Orion barber then hit 630 actual in the finals.

Krause is a wrecker driver for Schram Auto Parts, who also bowls once a week. He carries a 178 average and fired a 625 actual Sunday. The 37-year-old bowler just made the semifinal cutoff with a 592 in the morning action.

Other top money winners in the handicap portion were Alex McKinnon, $200 for fourth place; Gary Vanderwill $150 for fifth; Endell Stevens, $100 for sixth; Irving Lohr, $75 for seventh; and Ed Selecki, $50 for eighth.

For Local Bowler

Consistency Pays Off

Veteran local bowler Bill Johns showed his consistency once again Sunday at 300 Bowl and won the Pontiac Open Tournament's Actuals Invitational crown with a sparkling 701 series.

John's steady 238-237-226 stroking enabled him to outdistance his closest rival by 40 pins. Runner-up Merv Weber of the Huron Bowl staff finished with 661.

He had an early lead on Johns with a 246 opening game to John's 238, but the slender veteran couldn't maintain the pace, slipping to 204 and 221.

Nonetheless, Weber still was 18 pins in front of the number three man Jim Welch who hit 204-223-214-643.

Johns, a 43-year-old test driver for Ford Motor, carries a 207 average while bowling for the North Hill team in the North Hill Lanes Wednesday night Classic League.

Not only was he consistently in championship form yesterday, but he regularly failed to qualify for the handicap portion of the tourney. — In which he took 601 total pins to reach the semifinals. Johns tried five times to reach the cutoff point.

He credits North Hill proprietor Lou Koprice during the summer with drilling the ball for him that has improved his pin action.

With wife Helen watching, the solidly built kegger had the wood tumbling better than any of the area's best scratch bowlers Sunday and collected a $60 check, plus a handsome trophy.

Weber earned $40 and Welch $20. In all, 17 of the 86 invitees averaged 200 or better in the actuals competition.

ACTUALS ACE — Veteran Bill Johns rolled a 701 Sunday afternoon at 300 Bowl for first place in the annual Actuals Invitational division of the Pontiac Open Bowling championships.

Rickey died at the age of 83 Thursday night at Columbia, Mo., where he was hospitalized Nov. 13 after suffering a heart attack while making a speech accepting membership in the Missouri Sports Hall of Fame.

Numerous baseball notables, including National League President Warren Giles and retired American League President Will Harridge, were expected to attend service at the Grace Methodist church.

Burial with graveside service will be Tuesday at the Rickey family plot in Scioto County near Portsmouth, Ohio.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl Morrall fired three long passes to Homer Jones, two for 74 and 72-yard touchdowns, to shoot down a quick 10-7 Washington Redskins win Sunday.

The victory brought the Giants' record to 7-6 and tightened their grip on second place in the National Football League's Eastern Conference and a trip to the Runner-Up Bowl in Miami, Fla.

GIANTS REDUCTION — Washington's 10-7 win Sunday cut the Redskins' lead over the Giants to 10-7. The Redskins' record is 10-7.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles built up a 27-0 lead in the first quarter on pass interceptions and a fumble recovery and rolled over the Pittsburgh Steelers, 47-13 Sunday in a National Football League game.

A crowd of 22,832, smallest of the year at Pitt Stadium, watched the Steelers drop their sixth straight game and 11th of the year for their worst record since 1944.

Hornung TDs Carry Packers to 42-27 Win

Bears' Gale Sayers Bags 6 Touchdowns to Tie NFL Mark

By The Associated Press
Paul Hornung has regained his former luster but Gale Sayers has claimed his title of Golden Boy.

Hornung played his finest National Football League game Sunday by scoring five touchdowns to set a club record, lead Green Bay to a 42-27 triumph over Baltimore and hurdle the Packers into first place in the West.

Sayers, however, turned in perhaps the greatest individual performance ever in the NFL. The Chicago halfback, who two weeks ago broke the rookie TD mark, scored six touchdowns against San Francisco to tie the NFL single game record, shatter the season standard and vault into the league's scoring lead.

Sayers' heroics gave the Bears' a 61-20 triumph and kept them in contention in the West.

Hornung had not been experiencing a good season, scoring only three touchdowns until the Baltimore game and being benched frequently during the struggle.

But Green Bay coach Vince Lombardi "had a hunch" Hornung would meet the challenge of playing Baltimore for the division lead.

COACH'S CONFIDENCE — "I was confident Paul could do it," Lombardi said. "There was no question in my mind."

And after the game there was no question in anyone's mind that Hornung could do it.

The former Notre Dame star ran for TDs of two, nine and three yards and hauled in scoring passes of 50 and 65 yards from Bart Starr.

Sayers, who equalled the single-game TD record set by the great Ernie Nevers in 1925, and Gale Sayers in 1957, chattered Lennie Moore's season mark of 29 by scoring his final touchdown on an 85-yard punt return.

His 36-point output raised his season total to an NFL high of 126 points.

"This was the greatest football exhibition I have ever seen by one man in one game," said coach George Halas, who has been around the pro scene since the early 1920s.

Roman Gabriel tossed five TD passes and the vaunted Los Angeles defense held Jimmy Brown to 20 yards as the Rams tripped the Eastern Division champion Browns 42-7.

On the receiving end of Gabriel's strikes were Marlin McKeever five yards, Willie Brown 22 yards and Tommy McDonald, who snared 46, 42 and 43 yard TD passes.

TERRY BARR

Both Lions Decide on Retirement

By BURN L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press
Co-captains for five years, roommates on the road and partners in business, Joe Schmidt and Terry Barr, two of the most popular and most colorful players ever to wear a Detroit Lions uniform are hanging up their football shoes.
Barr made the announcement yesterday stating it was primarily due to his leg.
"I've had three operations and I don't want to be crippled for life," said the 31-year-old former University of Michigan player.

Schmidt, the leader of one of the most vaunted pro defenses as middle linebacker, was going to quit after his third shoulder injury last year.
However, he returned after some persuasion from owner Bill Ford but it had been rumored for several weeks that this was his final season despite a two-year contract.

Yesterday, Schmidt confirmed his decision in saying, "Yep, this is it, Terry and I are bowing out together."

Schmidt, the Lions' No. 7 draft choice from Pittsburgh in 1963, missed four games in 1963 and five in 1964 with injuries.

ALL PRO STAR

He was the team's Most Valuable Player for offense and defensive team captain for eight years and an all-pro player nine times.

Barr a third choice of the Lions in 1957, had two outstanding years in 1963 and 1964 after he was sidelined in 1962 because of a knee injury.

In the LA Rams' game in Los Angeles, Barr crumpled after being hit by defensive back Clancy Williams and was carried from the field.

He underwent surgery three weeks ago and was placed on the injured reserve list.

Astros' Owner Fires Richards; Ousts Harris

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Houston Astros owner Roy Hofheinz fired General Manager Paul Richards Sunday and replaced Manager Luman Harris with Grady Hatton, manager of Houston's farm club in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Tal Smith, special assistant to Hofheinz, was named vice president and director of player personnel, Hofheinz said.

Hatton two days ago said he had turned down an offer to manage the Chicago White Sox. The White Sox denied an offer and been made to Hatton.

Spartans Tumble Irish; Wolverine '5' Winner

EAST LANSING (AP) — Michigan State finds out if its basketball team is for real tonight. The Spartans, sporting a 3-1 record, take on St. Joseph, Pa., the third-ranked team (4-0) in The Associated Press poll.

MSU easily handled Notre Dame Saturday, blasting the Irish 93-69 at East Lansing. But Coach John Bennington's team already has lost to Western Michigan and does not figure to be much of a challenge for St. Joseph.

The Spartans outbounded Notre Dame 43-31, and at the half, 43-25, and looked spiffy and fast for most of the game. MSU shot an average of 44 per cent from the floor and might have had some trouble if it were not for 31 Irish turnovers.

Bill Curtis, the Spartan captain, led the scorers with 19 points. Stan Washington added 17. Tom Caldwell had 18 for Notre Dame.

RUSSELL, HITS 45

The Wolverines of Michigan, defending Big Ten champions, lost a basketball game last week but All-America Cazzie Russell did his best to make amends Saturday night.

Russell led the Wolverines to a 96-78 basketball victory over San Francisco in the second game of a doubleheader in Chicago Stadium.

Future U-M Foe Riddles UCLA Press

By United Press International

The Duke Blue Devils and Michigan Wolverines each were claiming to be the nation's top college basketball team after impressive victories last week, and the argument probably won't be decided until they meet each other next week.

Duke began chanting "We're No. 1," as they defeated first-ranked UCLA twice last week 82-66 and 94-75 to avenge a loss to the Bruins in the 1964 NCAA playoff finals.

Senior Jack Marin led the Blue Devils in scoring with 30 points in the first victory and 23 in the second. Duke completely solved UCLA's vaunted zone press defense to breeze to victory.

The Blue Devils are not expected to be challenged for their claim to first place this week when they play Furman and Virginia.

Duke coach Vic Bubas attributed the twin triumphs over UCLA to teamwork, "something we've been looking for since October. You're always fearful of an explosion from a team like UCLA but our boys were inspired."

St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, the No. 3 team in the rankings and a contender for the top spot vacated by UCLA, breezed by Bellarmine 96-68 and Bowling Green 85-55 last week.

The Hawks are scheduled this week against Albright and Michigan State.

Providence, No. 8, beat Assumption, 88-79, and St. Francis, 100-80, and meets St. Mary's, Young, idle last week, plays Santa Clara twice; and 10th-ranked Bradley, which beat Creighton, 88-79, and Oklahoma, 81-80, goes against St. Louis, Butler and Murray State.

State Sextets Nab Wins

By The Associated Press

Michigan Tech and Michigan walloped a couple of Canadian Hockey opponents Saturday while Michigan State was notching a Western Collegiate Hockey Association triumph.

Tech hammered Manitoba 13-2 as Jerry Bumbacco got the hat trick and Dave Confrey, Bob Toothill and Wayne Weller scored two goals each. Confrey and Toothill are natives of Manitoba. The victory was undefeated Tech's seventh.

In a free-wheeling game at Ann Arbor, Michigan crushed McMaster of Ontario 10-3. McMaster goalie John Young racked up a penalty for slashing and also an assist in McMaster's scoring.

Bob Baird, Barry McDonald and Mel Wakabayashi each scored twice for Michigan. Wakabayashi's goals came 10 seconds apart with the Wolverines short-handed. Michigan now stands 4-2.

The Spartans trimmed Denver 4-1 for their second WCHA victory in six starts and their third in nine games over-all. Tom Mikolka had two goals for State and Brian McAndrew had a goal and three assists.

Crowd Small for PGA Play

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (UPI)—PGA officials were wondering today how to make the $125,000 National Four-Ball a success.

The crowds attending the four-day golf tournament at the PGA's plush new headquarters here never reached 5,000, despite such drawing cards as Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Sam Snead.

Tournament officials offered several possible reasons for the "disappointing attendance, and the foremost was that "You can't hope to draw a huge crowd the first time you hold a new tournament."

Gay Brewer and Butch Baird captured the first prize of $20,000 with a 72-hole total of 259, 29 strokes under par.

Brothers Lionel and Jay Herbert posted a 262 to pick up second money of $12,000.

Market Mixed

Steels Up as Trading Falls

NEW YORK (AP)—Selective strength highlighted a mixed stock market early this afternoon as trading fell considerably below last week's record-breaking level.

Steels moved ahead moderately as a group following a report that prospects for the steel industry have been brightened by brisk demand from the construction field.

A Government forecast was that construction spending in 1966 will rise 6 percent from this year's outlays to a record.

Some of the aerospace defense, electronics and airline issues did well but the list of stock keys in major sections of the list was patchy.

Du Pont and IBM were off at least 3 each.

Average were delayed by mechanical trouble.

Prices rose in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

National Video rose 3.

Up about 2 were Chromalloy, Microwave Associates, Syntex, Williams Brothers and Soltron.

Deviated. Ahead by a point or more were Kaneb Pipe, Martin Marietta, Monogram, Industries and Philips Electronics.

Noranco and Great American Industries were fractional losers.

Corporate bonds were mostly unchanged. U.S. Treasury bonds declined.

Death Is Near for Maugham

Author Lies in Coma; Doctors See No Hope

NICE, France (AP)—British author W. Somerset Maugham lay in a coma in a hospital today, and his doctor gave him less than 24 hours to live.

The 51-year-old writer suffered a stroke Saturday at his seaside villa at Cap Ferrat. He has been unconscious ever since.

His doctor, Georges Rosanoff, told newsmen Sunday night that Maugham was "in the throes of death."

Rosanoff reported the old man's temperature had risen and pulmonary congestion had set in.

Medicine is henceforth powerless to save Mr. Maugham, he said. "He has entered the death agony. It is a hopeless condition, and we do not think it can last more than 24 hours. The brain is no longer irrigated supplied with blood, but the heart is still holding out."

Three doctors attending Maugham said in bulletins today that his condition was "stationary without aggravation." Dr. Rosanoff told newsmen: "The fact that we have noted no change since yesterday evening does not permit the slightest hope."

Alan F. Searle, Maugham's secretary and companion for 15 years, said the author had directed in a will he made several years ago that his body be cremated and the ashes sent to England to be placed in Canterbury Cathedral.

ONLY CHILD

Maugham's only child, Lady John Hope, was not at his bedside and it was doubted that she would come to Nice, Maugham tried to disown her several years ago and adopt Searle, but a French court refused to permit it.

Maugham abandoned a medical career at the end of the last century and became a writer after interning at a hospital in London's Lambeth district. His basis for his masterpiece, "Of Human Bondage," in 1912.

His first 10 years as a writer were hard, but in 1907 his play "Lady Frederick" was a hit, and thereafter he turned out successful plays, novels and short stories that made him a fortune. In 35 years he wrote 25 plays, 30 novels and 120 short stories.

It is suggested that he keep $500 in savings for an emergency and invest $1,500 in Bristol Myers which has one of the most powerful growth records in our history. Since 1955, the shares have increased in value over 1700 per cent, and show a consistently rising curve on my chart.

Birmingham-Bloomfield Bank has raised its interest rate on time deposits from 4 1/2 to 5 per cent, effective immediately.

The action was the result of the recent Federal Reserve Board ruling, increasing prime bank interest rates to 5 1/2 per cent.

Last May, Birmingham-Bloomfield was among the first banks in the country to increase its interest rates, paid on one-year time deposits, to 4 1/2 per cent.

Other newly elected officers are Walter Grzywacz, vice president; Mrs. Anna Wisniewski, second vice president; Dr. Edward J. Grzywacz, financial secretary; Eugene Rzesutko, recording secretary; and Zig Jezorski, treasurer.

NEW YORK — The clash of government with industrial and financial leaders provided the best business stories of 1965.

The seaway of the stock market at dizzy high levels and record volume was a close runner-up.

The steady climb of the economy in the field of jobs, profits and incomes made an important, if less exciting, background.

Here, in one man's opinion, are the 10 top business and finance stories of the year:

1. Showdown of the Johnson administration and monetary authorities on interest rates. As bankers applauded, the Federal Reserve Board raised interest rates, saying this would head off the inflation it feared.

President Johnson deplored the move, saying easy money was needed if the economy were to grow faster.

CRACKDOWN

2. Crackdown by the government on price increases in selected industries. Steel and other negotiations were transferred from Pittsburgh to the White House to help keep wage and price increases within government guidelines. The power of the government's stockpiles was used to get aluminum and copper producers to rescind price hikes, and to hold down the rising cost of bread.

3. Record trading volume and wide price swings in the stock market. Prices hit a peak in May, dropped sharply, rose to a still higher level in the fall, and, after a lull, turned in the Viet Nam war, talk of inflation, rocky government-business relations could send volume

Mackie at MSU: Free Farmers From Controls

EAST LANSING (AP) — Farmers must "start producing for hungry stomachs instead of storage bins," Democratic Congressman John C. Mackie told fall quarter graduates of Michigan State University Saturday.

Mackie urged that farmers be "unleashed" from government controls and called for a new program to ship surplus food to starving people overseas.

"More than half of the people in the world today suffer from either an inadequate or improper diet," said Mackie, "and the number of starving people is growing at a fantastic rate."

Senator Vows a GI Bill for Viet Veterans

PLEI ME, South Viet Nam (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., visited the scene of one of the Viet Nam war's major battles today and promised American soldiers they would get a GI bill of rights similar to those given to World War II and Korean War veterans.

Jackson, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, came to the Plei Me Special Forces camp where fierce fighting raged in late October and early November.

Capt. Harold Moore of Pekin, Ill., senior adviser at the camp, took the senator on a tour of the camp perimeter.

Jackson is on a 10-day tour of all major U.S. military installations in Viet Nam and of 7th Fleet units off the coast.

NO QUESTION

He told a group of soldiers from his state at Camp Holloway Army Air Base near Pleiku: "there is no question that we will pass legislation for a Viet Nam GI bill of rights."

The senator said he thought the situation in Viet Nam had improved considerably since his last visit. But he added that considerably more troops are needed.

Indian-VISTA Controversy Continues

RED CLIFF, Wis. (AP) — Two girls in the domestic peace corps apparently have won their battle to return to work at an Indian reservation where their activities stirred up tribal trouble and got them banned.

But the controversy over the work of the Volunteers in Service to America — VISTA — program spread to a second reservation where a Roman Catholic priest said: "We don't need anybody from the outside just to hold dances."

The girls, Judy Rothman, 20, of University City, Mo., and Jill Hunt, 22, of Kewanee, Ill., have been barred for a week by the tribal council of the Red Cliff Indian Reservation.

The dispute there as well as at the second reservation swirled around youth clubs and dances organized by VISTA workers.

Thomas Williamson, a VISTA supporter and former social worker for the Bureau of Indian Affairs, said that five of the nine council members had signed a petition asking that the council reverse its decision at a called meeting tonight.

Hefty G. Daley, 44, a factory worker who is tribal chairman, said he was among the signers.

The Rev. Lucius Helstern, Catholic priest for the reservation, charged the coeds had disrupted the Indian community and said, "They're certainly not doing anybody any good. Just to have two VISTA people to have a dance once a month hardly justifies the government salaries."

At nearby Bad River Indian Reservation, the Rev. Damian Herchenbach criticized three VISTA workers who organized dances there.

"If they come in with constructive programs to help the Indians live a better life, I would give them my full support and help them in every way I could, but they haven't done anything like that," Father Herchenbach said.

1,900 CHIPPEWAS

Almost all of the 300 Chippewa Indians in the Bad Cliff Reservation and the 900 Chippewas at Bad River are Catholics.

The reservations are located in remote, snowbound areas along Lake Superior in extreme northern Wisconsin.

Majorities on two committees, the Community Action Program and the Red Cliff Housing Authority, set up among Indians to handle a promised $34,000 in federal aid, have resigned in protest of the girls' refusal to leave.

But Daley said, "We'll just arrived at Red Cliff in October.

They should be asked any reason why they should be asked to leave."

LEADERS OBJECT

CAP leaders say the girls, who left college to join VISTA, refused to cooperate when they arrived at Red Cliff in October.

The high point of my brittle and intellectual exclusion interview with Geraldine Chaplin in her suite in the Waldorf Towers was when she swirled around and said, "Anybody care for chewing gum?"

You can see from this how menacing this lovely, leggy, shapely, chaplinesque 5-foot-6, 107-pound brunette doll is going to be after she becomes world famous with the release of the film "Dr. Zhivago."

"What's your answer when people repeat the charge that your father's a Communist?" I asked Geraldine, who had just arrived from Paris and was on her way to Hollywood.

"I say 'Ashk him!'" Geraldine laughed. "I don't know. But the way he lives proves he isn't a Communist... a huge house in Switzerland... A fine Communist!"

"Omar Sharif told me that your father saw you in a ballet and said you were lousy," I said.

"First of all, Omar Sharif doesn't know my father, and second daddy's never seen me in anything!"

"Sharif also told me that you crushes on bullfighters, etc."

"Yes, he was right on that. I do for about a week. It's usually on people I've never met. As soon as I meet them, the crush is over."

"He also said you probably had a crush on him."

Well, yes, I had sort of a crush on Omar."

"You've been called beatnik, a kook..."

"Well, beatniks have long hair, and they live in jeans, which I do. I don't mind. There's a French word they call me which means, I suppose, 'spoiled brat.'"

THE MIDNIGHT EARL...

Jackie Kennedy and her escort Alan Jay Lerner had the El Morocco Champagne Room practically to themselves early the other a.m. ... The rumor that Mrs. Edward Dwyer Stone had "disappeared" got a laugh from her. She's right here. Her estranged husband, Architect Stone, flew to Pakistan on business, which probably started the tale.

Double Bravo to Durward Kirby and son Randy for their very professional stage acting in "Me and Thee." Little Joey Heatherton and her pop Ray Heatherton were at a party after laughing beaming about praise for Randy, who is Joey's guy ... Garry Moore and Jonathan Winters cheered the Kirbys.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "A good speaker is one who rises on the occasion — and then promptly sits down." — O.A. Bakista.

EARL'S PEARLS: L.S. McCandless reports on a new book called The Ugly Girl. It has no chaser.

Robert Merrill, recently on the Steve Lawrence TV set, noted he'd almost become a baseball player: "Just think — I might have been with the Mets, instead of the Met ... That's earl, brother.

GM Chairman: Boom in Autos Will Continue

'Record 1965 Vehicle Sales Will Be Topped or Equaled in 1966'

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors' No. 1 man expressed confidence today the boom in the auto business will continue through next year.

Frederic G. Donner, chairman of the board of the world's largest auto maker, gave a rare picture of business prospects in his annual year-end statement.

Donner said U.S. car and truck sales in 1965 should match or exceed the anticipated 1965 total of 10.8 million vehicles. This includes 9.3 million passenger cars and 1.5 million trucks.

General Motors thus became the first of the nation's four major auto making firms to look into its economic crystal ball and came up with a prediction of things to come in 1966.

Henry Ford II, chairman of the board of Ford Motor Co., will do likewise next Wednesday with Lynn A. Townsend, Chrysler president, slated to follow suit next Thursday.

Roy Abernathy, president of American Motors, is expected to issue his assessment of the business future later this week.

TOP 200 MILLION

The Donner estimate that U.S. motor vehicle buyers would top the 10 million mark again next year was particularly interesting because General Motors' previous year-end statements have tended to be on the conservative side.

Donner summed up the outlook this way:

"As we go into 1966, a continuing, high level of automobile sales parallels a generally high rate of economic activity."

"With continued consumer confidence, products that the public wants to buy and a further expansion of personal income and employment, the sales of cars and trucks in the United States should be maintained at the 1965 record level of 10.8 million, which exceeds any previous year by over 13 per cent."

"With a continued expansion of business in 1966 and with the already demonstrated appeal to customers of our new lines of cars and trucks, we look forward to a maintenance of the current strong market for cars and trucks with a total 1966 at or above this year's volume levels."

TAVERN FIRE TRAGEDY—Firemen carry a victim from the Seelye Club, a tavern on Chicago's West Madison Street, where fire broke out late Saturday night. Thirteen persons were killed and 22 injured. Police said a disgruntled customer who had been ejected returned and poured gasoline in the front doorway, turning the crowded tavern into a raging inferno.

Ejected Patron Sets Fire in Bar; 13 Die

CHICAGO (AP)—"I just got mad. They shouldn't have thrown me out."

That was the explanation of Robert Lee Lassiter as he admitted using a borrowed match to touch off a fire Saturday night which killed 13 persons and injured 22 in a West Side tavern.

Lassiter, 26, was charged Sunday with 13 counts of murder. Lassiter, a laborer for an electric company, told police that he splashed a gallon of gasoline in the door of the Seelye Club, then borrowed a match to light it.

The incident that touched off the fire, Lassiter said, was an argument with Eddie Gaston, 38, a waiter.

Witnesses said Lassiter had been flourishing a large switchblade knife and Gaston told him to put it away.

FORCED TO LEAVE

The two men grappled after arguing, and Lassiter was forced to leave.

"I'll be back and they're going to get it," witnesses quoted Lassiter as saying s he left.

Gaston was among the seven men and six women killed in the blaze.

Police quoted Lassiter as saying he then walked a few hundred feet to a service station and purchased a can of gasoline. Police said Lassiter splashed the fuel on the floor at the entrance, then poured a trail of gasoline across the sidewalk to the gutter and ignited it.

The flames sent the 40 occupants of the tavern into a panic. The front entrance was blocked by flames. The only other exit, a rear door, was locked.

Firemen raved almost immediately, but it was too late. "The scene at the back of the

Rain to Turn Into Flurries

Add snow boots to your umbrellas and you'll be ready for whatever the weatherman pulls from his bag of tricks.

This morning's scattered showers will give way to occasional snow flurries by tonight. Temperatures are due to fall to a low ranging from 25 to 32.

Tomorrow will be cloudy and cooler with highs between 34 to 39.

Look for the return of showers by Wednesday as skies continue cloudy and temperatures rise.

The low registered in downtown Pontiac prior to 8 a. m. was 42. By 1 p. m. the mercury fell to 38.

NATO Fears All-Out War

PARIS (UPI)—America's European allies are all but convinced the Viet Nam conflict is heading toward all-out war involving Communist China.

The latest information reaching Western diplomats caused concern on the eve of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) Council of Ministers meeting in the French capital.

Communist China is reliably reported to have imposed an absolute veto on peace moves by North Viet Nam, along with the implicit threat that they would take over in the Communist north if the Hanoi regime defied the ultimatum.

The reports said Hanoi now is set unconditionally on an "all or nothing" course in Viet Nam in the face of the Red Chinese pressure.

This will be discussed at the NATO session tomorrow and Wednesday but there is little the European allies will have to offer the United States, either by way of advice or material assistance.

None of the 14 NATO partners stands ready to make troops available for the Viet Nam fighting. Any U.S. appeal for increased military support was expected to meet with little more than lukewarm response by NATO.

PEACE MOVES

Instead, the allies will press for fresh peace moves, including implicit or open suggestions that the United States halt its bombing of North Viet Nam as a goodwill gesture.

Most NATO nations, while sympathetic toward the U.S. troubles in Southeast Asia, hold that a war of attrition over a prolonged period was likely to harm the West more than the Communists, notably Red China.

LBJ Returns to Washington

Prepares for Visits by Foreign Leaders

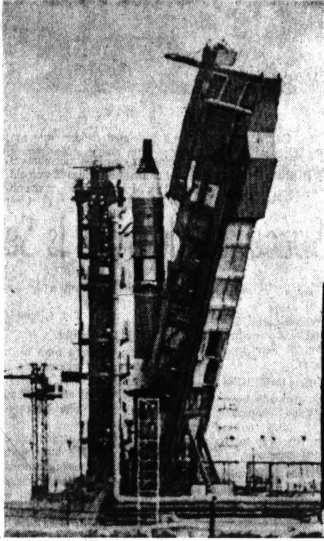

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson returned to the White House early today for an intensive round of conferences with foreign leaders, final preparations for the new budget and more discussion of Viet Nam.

Johnson had been at his LBJ Ranch near Johnson City, Tex., for 24 days—relaxing, recuperating from his Oct. 8 operation and holding a series of top level policy talks on the whole range of governmental activity.

Johnson had to make final preparations for the arrival of President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan for two days of meetings.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Great Britain, who has been trying to promote Viet Nam peace talks, will be at the White House Friday.

West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, who wants for his country a role in the nuclear defense of Western Europe, will arrive Saturday.

Special elections on requests for funds are being held in the Novi and Brandon school districts today.

Reserve Unit Will Continue Armory Drill

Capt. David W. MacGillis, commanding officer of the reserve unit stationed at Pontiac's National Guard Armory, said today military activities would continue at the armory although the facilities are still closed to civilian groups.

MacGillis, chairman of the Armory Board of Control, ordered the building locked on a week ago because of "structural deficiencies" in the flooring.

He said the flooring in the armory is unsafe for large-size rental activities such as boxing, wrestling and the Grand Ole Opry.

Scheduled military uses, he said, include a reserve unit lecture tonight, a medical examination tomorrow and possible general inspection Jan. 12.

Runner-up awards were presented to 17-year-old Carol Beckett, a senior at Pontiac Central, and 17-year-old Eileen Dunn of Waterford Kettering.

Two Junior Misses Crowned

Junior Misses representing Pontiac and Waterford were crowned in separate pageants Saturday night, winning the right to compete in the State Junior Miss contest next month.

Pontiac's Junior Miss is 17-year-old Phyllis Grisham, a dark-haired senior student at Avondale High School and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Grisham of 862 South Blvd., Avon Township.

Winner of the Waterford title is blonde, blue-eyed Gayanne Mansfield, 17, of Waterford Township High School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mansfield of 5186 Durham, Waterford Township.

The winners were selected after judging in five categories—scholastic achievement, mental alertness, poise and appearance, fitness and a rendition in the creative or performing arts.

Nineteen entrants vied for the title at Pontiac Northern High School with 10 contestants competing before a standing-room crowd at Waterford Kettering High School.

Formally crowning the new Junior Misses to climax each program were eighteen-year-old Lynn Tarlton—last year's Waterford Junior Miss—and Mrs. Richard Jorgenson, who crowned the Pontiac winner.

Emily Beaupre, 1965 Pontiac Junior Miss now attending Cornell University, was unable to return for the contest.

Gemini 6 Is Delayed When False Signal Shuts Off Engines

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP)—The Gemini 7 astronauts, still vigorous and mentally alert in the ninth day of the marathon space voyage, hurtled on toward more endurance records today and looked forward eagerly to a Wednesday rendezvous with Gemini 6.

Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. have shown no evidence of weariness despite the long, grinding exposure to their strange world of space, Dr. D. Owen Coons, a flight surgeon, said today.

"They wake up sharp," he said, "respond quickly to ground commands, and make no errors in copying information relayed to them from earth stations."

"They knew what they had to do, and they are going to do it. We expect them to be as good to the end."

Gemini 7 entered its 133rd orbit at 10 a.m. EST.

Borman and Lovell woke up this morning after a period of light sleep and soon began asking questions about the progress of efforts at Cape Kennedy, Fla., to prepare the Gemini 6 spacecraft for a Wednesday launch.

WEDNESDAY LAUNCH
They were told an abbreviated midcount would be started tomorrow morning and prospects were good for a Wednesday firing and, at last, the biggest of all space adventures—the rendezvous of orbiting ships.

If the Gemini 6 flight is again delayed, the problem of bringing the two spacecraft down on the same day could arise. Gemini 7 now is scheduled to splash down Saturday after 14 days in space.

"We don't want to bring them down on the same day, but we will if we have to," Hodge said. If this happens, he added, (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Family Christmas Gifts Are in Abundant Supply

By JEANNE NELSON

Buying family and household gifts this year is a cinch with the unlimited array now available in Pontiac area shops.

A home labeling gun saves time and reduces the possibilities of losing tools, lunchboxes, cameras and the like.

It's also a marvel for tagging boxed items for storage in basement and attic. It costs about $5.

The "Jiffy Fold" table collapses like an ironing board for easy storage. This sturdy wellwood 14 x 30 inch table comes with chrome legs in either a walnut or cherry finish.

It will serve the family well as a typewriter stand, portable sewing machine table and movie projector table. The price is about $14.

A practical gift for use by each member of the clan is a portable typewriter. The one mentioned here comes with a full size keyboard in two-toned grey "Novadore" (a very strong steel finish) with its own case. About $50 would be the price on this.

Another gift idea for the family might be an attractively boxed set of steak knives with walnut handles and serrated edges. This runs about $5.50.

Snack tables of teak that measure 12 1/2 square inches, about the same height, will run $23.30 each. These useful pull-up tables come in handy for a houseful of guests.

Now that movie cameras can be loaded by cartridges, there is no reason why family fun can't be recorded all year on film. These new models run from $37.30 to $185.

Both in an Early American mood are these two accent gifts for the home about $9 each, a copper kettle and a wooden ice bucket with eagle perched atop.

WAR DANCE—UAW Local 596, Fisher Body, held a Christmas party at Lincoln Junior High yesterday. A featured attraction was the appearance of this group of full-blooded Indians, who put on a show of authentic war and rain dances. Also featured were a tap dance team and a dance band.

Onlookers Give Help to Officers

Three men stepped from an angry mob to assist a Pontiac police officer early yesterday, possibly averting a serious conflict at the Mr. 19 restaurant, 565 S. Saginaw.

Sgt. Earl Skrobeck said persons in the crowd had begun to grab at him as he maneuvered Andrew Shepherd, 22, of 44 Lull into a patrol car about 3:30 a.m.

Shepherd had been placed under arrest when he became disorderly and began using profane language in front of the restaurant, according to Patrolmen J. K. Hedrick and Denis E. Mutrynowski.

Skrobeck said he then asked for help in getting Shepherd, who had been cut on the head by another man in an altercation, to a hospital for medical treatment.

Several men who identified themselves as friends of Shepherd stepped forward, according to Skrobeck, and helped get the wounded man into the patrol car.

Skrobeck said removal of Shepherd — and arrival of scout cars from Bloomfield Township and the Oakland County Sheriff Department — ended the incident.

Shepherd told the two patrolmen another man hit him in the head with the butt end of a bullwhip in an argument inside the restaurant.

Hedrick fractured his left hand in a scuffle which ensued when the two attempted to take Shepherd into custody.

Space Rendezvous Is Set Wednesday

effort would be made to land them one orbit apart, but it could be done on the same revolution if there were no other object.

SPACE CHAMPIONS
Borman and Lovell, the new endurance champions of space flight, sped onward dressed "the only way to fly," in their cotton underwear.

"This is Gemini 7, your friendly target vehicle, standing by," Borman messaged earth after the U.S. space spectacular stalled in a cloud of pink-tinted rocket exhaust yesterday.

The Gemini 6 pilots, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford, were scheduled to rendezvous with Gemini 7 today before they left the launch pad at Cape Kennedy, Fla. A false signal shut off the launch rocket's engines.

Borman and Lovell got orders to conserve fuel to insure them enough power to maintain their spacecraft's attitude toward the end of their space voyage. This meant an abbreviated experiment schedule and much drifting flight.

POTENTIAL DANGER
If it had not been for cool, export, split-second decisions by Schirra and Stafford in the face of potential danger — and maybe death — the chance at a repeat attempt would have vanished.

They're cleared for take-off," mission control advised Gemini 7, passing overhead shortly before the 9:34 a.m. liftoff time.

To Decide Soon in Judges' Suit

Case Involves Ruling on Length of Terms

A lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of legislation that extended the terms of two Oakland County Circuit Judges will be decided quickly, according to the judge assigned to make the ruling.

Macomb County Circuit Judge George R. Deneweth said this morning that he would "handle this matter with dispatch."

A hearing on the suit, filed by judges Philip Pratt and James S. Thorburn, began today but was adjourned after a brief session when all parties agreed to submit briefs to Deneweth before 5 p.m. Dec. 28.

Deneweth, named to the case by the Supreme Court when members of the Oakland bench disqualified themselves, said that he will review the briefs as soon as he receives them.

"If there is any area where I feel that arguments would be helpful I will contact you," Deneweth told attorneys.

FUTURE PLAN
If another hearing is necessary it will probably be held on Dec. 28. The hearing this morning was held in the courtroom of Oakland County Circuit Judge Frederick C. Ziem.

Edward Barrett, one of the three attorneys representing the two judges, emphasized that the suit was made soon because nominating petitions for the primary election in August must be filed in April.

Pratt and Thorburn had expected to run in the election but their terms until 1970.

Both have stated they would prefer to seek reelection.

They state that the legislation must be interpreted by the court because the wording of the statute is unclear and has created confusion.

3 Flee Ionia Reformatory; Police Nab 1

IONIA (UPI) — Two Ionia State Reformatory inmates, armed with prison-made knives and "considered dangerous," escaped on foot last night following a breakout from the prison hospital where they had been working.

A third inmate who escaped with the two armed men was captured by police shortly after the break.

Guards fired at the three men but none of the escapees was hit according to Edward Loney, 22, of Flint, the captured inmate.

Prison officials said the trio broke through a false ceiling at the hospital scooted along the roof of a building and lowered themselves down to the prison wall with a homemade grappling hook and nylon rope.

The missing men were identified as John Stubbfield, 21, of Flint and Terrence De Lougarry, 22, of Escanaba.

Another recent escapee, Keith Broadus, 26, of Pontiac, who fled the reformatory Nov. 28 with John Dorton, 24, of Detroit, surrendered yesterday after contacting police to report his plans.

Mrs. Flint was a member of the Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston, Mass.

Surviving besides her husband are two sons, Edgar B. and Robert H., both of Bloomfield Hills; five grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Half-Dollar Shortage Due Partly to JFK Coin

BOSTON (AP) — Half-dollars are scarce in New England. The Federal Reserve Bank said it's due partly to the Kennedy half-dollar which was minted for the first time in 1964.

In New England particularly, people didn't regard the Kennedy half-dollar as spending money, but rather as keepsakes. Millions of them which were placed in circulation last year immediately went out of circulation.

Check Coolers as Germ-Laden

NEW YORK (AP) — Health authorities in nearly a score of states are looking into reports that plastic drink coolers imported from Hong Kong contain contaminated water.

Sales of the coolers have been banned in six cities and three states. Some civic groups selling the novelties to raise funds spent the weekend getting them back from customers.

Discovery of germ-laden coolers in Arkansas set off the flurry across the nation. Arkansas authorities quarantined 500 boxes of the novelty sets.

No illness has been traced to the novelty coolers, said a spokesman for the Communicable Diseases Center of the U.S. Public Health Service in Atlanta.

Commission to Discuss Employee Study Proposal

BIRMINGHAM — Proposals including Cranbrook Foundation to conduct a study of the city's personnel structure and to increase the number of city employees will be discussed at tonight's City Commission meeting.

Final report of the organization would be made by Feb. 15. STUDY SALARIES

It would include recommendations regarding the establishment of salary grades for employees.

Also to be considered tonight will be the hiring of additional employees for the finance and city planning departments. Director of Finance J. H. Purkiss Jr. is seeking authority to hire one clerk to work on water billing.

The work now is handled by a clerk and the assistant finance director, who has resigned effective next Friday.

The proposal calls for a job analysis and wage and salary evaluation program for all positions from laborer to city manager.

The Cleveland service has conducted similar studies for industrial and other institutions.

GOP Wrestles John Birch Dilemma

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top party chieftains said they will be accused of equivocation.

The showdown comes at a session of the 23-member Republican Coordinating Committee, created to draft party policy.

If they don't formally repudiate the conservative outfit, one in the controversy over how to handle the Birch Society question, will not be on hand. His wife is hospitalized in Phoenix, after undergoing surgery.

A spokesman said Goldwater's position on the Birch Society will be presented by Rep. John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz.

DISASSOCIATE

Idaho Gov. Robert E. Smylie has called for passage of a resolution "dissociating the Republican party's interests and activities from those of the John Birch Society and similar extremist groups."

"Failure of the committee to pass such a resolution," Smylie told National Chairman Ray C. Bliss, "would be interpreted by the press and the public as an act of equivocation by the leadership of our party."

Pennsylvania Sen. Hugh Scott, once a national chairman himself, has called for committee action on a repudiation he proposed to the party's 1964 national convention.

It was overwhelmingly rejected by delegates who chose Goldwater to be the GOP presidential nominee.

Key words in the Scott proposal: "We repudiate the efforts of irresponsible extremist groups such as the Communists, the Ku Klux Klan, the John Birch Society and others, to their efforts to infiltrate positions of responsibility in the party or to attach themselves to its candidates."

Smylie is a member of the committee; Scott is not.

As a presidential campaigner, Goldwater repeatedly refused to repudiate the support of people who belong to the Birch Society, but he did denounce its leader, Robert Welch — the man who called former President Dwight D. Eisenhower a tool of communism.

Response Brings 2nd 'Trivia' Quiz

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON — There have been countless requests for another Washington "trivia" quiz of the type that appeared in this column last month.

By "countless," I mean that nobody has requested another quiz. If you don't receive any requests, you can't very well count them.

This underwhelming response leads me to believe that the first quiz was too difficult for the average reader.

In fact, it was too difficult for me. I got one answer wrong myself.

I identified the Pakistani camel driver that former Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson invited to Washington as Mohammed Bashir. Actually, his full name was Mohammed Bashir Ahmed.

MAKING AMENDS

I'm sorry about the confusion, folks, and by way of making amends, I have prepared a second quiz that should impose less of a strain on both reader and writer:

1. What is former Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's present title?

2. Who was the U. S. senator who used to chew cigars without removing the cellophane wrapper?

3. During the congressional investigation of television quiz show scandals, Charles Van Doren confessed that he was given answers in advance. What program did he appear on?

CHIMP'S NAME

4. The chimpanzee who took America's first space ride now resides in the National Zoo here. What was his name?

5. Who was the network newscaster that President Truman mimicked after the 1947 election?

6. What U. S. treasurer (a woman) suggested that paper money be printed in assorted colors?

7. What Senator uttered the immortal line: "This is the most unheard of thing I ever heard of?"

CHANGE IN SEAL

8. What change did Harry Truman make in the presidential seal?

9. What were the lapel buttons called?

AFL-CIO Wants More Wages, Benefits

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—AFL-CIO leaders demanded today a bigger slice of the nation's wealth for workers, a federal curb on the prices of some key commodities, and a 50 per cent increase in Social Security benefits.
The federation blamed the outflow of private capital, rather than wage increases, for the U.S. balance of payments problem in foreign trade.
It said the federal government should restrict the investment of U.S. corporations overseas.
Delegates asked Congress to raise the minimum wage to $2 and include farm workers in its coverage.

In resolutions certain to be gavelled to quick approval by about 1,000 delegates to the federation's 10th anniversary convention, AFL-CIO policymakers also rejected White House wage guidelines and called for bold federal policies to create jobs and boost consumer purchasing power.

"A faster rise in wages and fringe benefits is needed to broaden and strengthen the mass markets that are the foundation of the economy," one resolution said.

Federation leaders also suggested income tax cuts for low- and middle-income families, and elimination of taxes altogether for those under the government poverty income level of $3,000 a year.

The effects on the economy of 1964 and 1965 tax cuts have "almost completely worn off," the proposed resolution said.

50 PER CENT HIKE
In recommending a 50 per cent increase in Social Security benefits, federation leaders said the base on which Social Security taxes are assessed should be increased from the present $6,600 to $16,000 a year, supplemented by extra money from the federal treasury.

The cost should not be charged to future generations of workers and employers, they declared.

Social Security benefits now average about $92 per month for a retired single worker and $137 for a married couple.

The recent 7 per cent increase barely covered the increased cost of living, the federation said.

MEDICAL BENEFITS
AFL-CIO leaders said medical care benefits under Social Security should be expanded.

Ford Against Another Hike in Viet Force

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., said today he would be "very concerned" if President Johnson commits another 100,000 men to the U. S. forces in Viet Nam.

Ford, the House Republican leader, said in an interview that if this occurs it would result in a large-scale ground war in Southeast Asia. He added, "I think this is wrong."

"I support President Johnson's meeting the challenge of the Communists in Southeast Asia," Ford said, "but this does not mean I approve every day-to-day implementation of that policy. I would oppose withdrawal from Viet Nam as that would be in effect a surrender to the Communists."

Turning to the political situation at home, Ford said there is solid evidence to indicate the GOP will make gains in the 1966 elections.

Ford, who has made 164 speeches in 40 states since he became House GOP leader last Jan. 4, added:

"I believe the American people are concerned that we are dangerously close to one-man-party rule in this country."

State's Right in CMU Probe Challenged

LANSING (UPI) — The attorney general, today wrestled with the legal question of whether the State Legislature could interfere in the affairs of Michigan's public colleges and universities.

Central Michigan University Friday challenged the right of a Senate subcommittee to investigate faculty-administration relations at the university.

The school's board of control filed a petition in the State Court of Appeals asking the attorney general to in effect answer the question today at a hearing.

Robert Cotter, university attorney, said the petition asked that the committee not be permitted to issue a report of its eight-month-long hearings into the faulty administration controversy because the committee's activities were unconstitutional.

The board contends the university is an autonomous body free from outside interference.

TEST CASE
Cotter said the petition could be a test case of whether the legislature has any right to probe into certain activities of the board and university.

Five faculty members were responsible for the start of the investigation last spring when they complained to the legislature that they were denied pay raises because of criticism of the university administration.

court to halt any further hearings.

However, the final hearing was held last Friday, the day the petition was filed, when OMU President Judson Foust testified.

LISTS REASONS

Foust said the five faculty members were not denied pay raises because of their criticism but because some of them no longer contributed to the "institutional usefulness" of the university, refused to "abide by regulations," failed to meet certain academic qualifications and did not "cooperate with the rest of the faculty."

Cotter said the investigation branched into such unrelated areas as smoking regulations, parking restriction, promotion tions, faculty salaries, the role of the university and other diverse subjects.

He claimed the board of control had sole power over such issues.

All five members of the committee were served with copies of the court petition.

Sen. Edward Robinson, D-Deerborn, chairman of the committee, said the question of the legality of the investigation would be handled entirely by the attorney general's office.

Several Republican legislators have branded the hearings as unconstitutional and described them as "witch hunts."

California's Mono Lake is often called the "Dead Sea of America."

Draft Chief Threatened by Phone

LANSING (AP) — Anonymous telephone calls threatening his family with reprisals over the reclassification of six University of Michigan students were reported Saturday by the state director of Selective Service.

Col. Arthur Holmes said three callers declared they "knew facts they could use against his family." He said none of the callers threatened violence.

"I want whoever called to know that I don't intend to withdraw from any stand that I have taken," said Holmes.

He said he had notified the FBI about the calls he said were received Friday night and Saturday morning.

They all said almost identical things. They denounced me for reclassifying the students and they threatened character assassination against my family. I'm not going to take this sitting down," he said.

3 CHILDREN
Holmes and his wife have three children—John, 11; Richard, 7, a Foreign Service officer in Washington; and Louise, 20, a student at Michigan State University.

The six students were reclassified from a student deferment to 1A after taking part in an anti-Viet Nam demonstration at the Ann Arbor Selective Service office Oct. 15.

Two of the six have appeals pending at their Wayne County draft board. They claim their constitutional rights have been violated.

Pregnancy Brings Crisis Emotionally for Women

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Every woman goes through a crisis when she learns that she is pregnant, according to a marriage counselor in a recent issue of the American Journal of Nursing, the official publication of the American Nurses' Association.

Besides reacting personally, she creates a reaction in her own family circle. Their reactions, in turn, reflect back on her. The responses of the father of the child affect the pregnant mother the most.

Even if the child is planned for, the pregnant woman still goes through some anxiety though she may not show it. She may be concerned over the extra burden of another child, a missed vacation, an end to unlimited outdoor activity such as full-time work for example. All these things are important sources of stress for her, and she needs the opportunity to discuss them with someone who understands.

Today, it is rather common for the pregnant woman to play down her purely personal reactions to the drastic changes that are going on in her body and her emotions. This does not mean they do not exist.

She should turn to her doctor, her nurse, social worker, analyst, or counselor for comfort and advice during pregnancy, whether it be her first, or one of many.

Yule Designs Trim Wall or Packages

During the busy holiday season, versatile, easy-to-make Christmas designs that can add a bright, personal touch to a gift package or decorate a foyer are especially welcome.

Take the designs shown above, for example. All you need to make them are some bright red or green Christmas wrap, cotton swabs from the medicine chest, white cardboard, glue, ink and scissors.

If you are planning to make the designs as panels to decorate a buffet table, entrance foyer or child's room, you will also need shirt cardboard to stiffen the design.

For the reindeer, you will need a triangle with an ink base for the face, a circle for the nose and two ears cut from white construction paper. Using cotton swab as a tiny paint brush, make the eyes.

For the antlers you will need 11 cotton swabs. Bend the swabs carefully so they won't break completely and glue them in place as indicated in the photo.

To make the Santa Claus, shown right, cut hat and face of white cardboard. Leave an opening for the mouth and paste on Christmas wrap or construction paper. With a cotton swab dipped in ink draw the eyebrows and the pompon on his hat.

His beard is made with cotton swabs. Arrange them around his face, then glue in place.

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

A young couple in California writes happily: "We plan to get married soon and want to know what to expect in the way of expenses."

Bless their hearts, they're thinking only in terms of "expected" expenses. What they'd better be doing is putting their dimes in the bank right now for all the unexpected expenses, leading up to the expected expenses!

I feel duty bound to report a "case history" of another young couple—friends of mine in Ohio who have just been regaling me with what can happen to the prospective bride and groom, financially, before the wedding day comes around. This Ohio couple cited these His and Hers:

HIS: She hadn't allowed for the expense of showers and wedding gifts for five of her classmates who were graduated in the same nurses' training class she had just finished and whose weddings were within a few days or weeks of her own. There went some of her "wedding" savings.

She had forgotten to consider the cost of her own graduation announcements. She hadn't thought about the expense of having her new apartment (which she and her fiancé had had to rent in advance) cleaned, at the price of $15.

She had underestimated the dry-cleaning bills for her day's clothes. (A tuxedo doesn't include everything, after all).

She had blithely ignored the extra cost of gas for running the car on fifteen errands.

She lost the expensive tickets to a big football game and two shows which had been bought in advance. She just put them somewhere in the flurry of getting ready for the wedding.

She hadn't counted on final alterations of the wedding gown, since her weight had changed a few pounds since she bought it. (All that food at those other bride's showers).

Her nerves got so frazzled, what with one thing and another, she had a medical bill she hadn't expected.

UNEXPECTED COSAGES
HIS: He was stuck with $65 rent for the apartment they had to hold until after the wedding. (He had just paid his way through college).

He didn't expect to have to buy a stove and refrigerator for the apartment—to the tune of $200.

His mother decided it would be nice for him to send cosages to his aunts who were coming from out of town to the wedding.

He didn't expect to have to buy a bedroom set because this had been promised as a wedding present to the couple long ago by a relative. However, the relative lost her job in the meantime and had to renege!

He, like his bride-to-be, had failed to estimate the costs of using his car on many extra errands.

So, the young people planning to get married—try to save up a little more ready cash than you think you're going to need. Just the wedding expenses themselves—the "expected" expenses—may seem fairly modest compared to the unexpected.

Spartan '5' Facing Test After Romp Over ND

EAST LANSING (U)—Michigan State finds out if its basketball team is for real tonight. The Spartans, sporting a 3-1 season record, take on St. Joseph, Pa., the third-ranked team (4-0) in The Associated Press poll.

MSU easily handled Notre Dame Saturday, blasting the Irish 90-49 at East Lansing.

But Coach John Bevington's team already has lost to Western Michigan and does not figure to be much of a challenge for St. Joseph.

The Spartans outbounded Notre Dame 43-31, led at the half, 43-25, and looked spiffy and fast for most of the game. MSU shot an average of 44 per cent from the floor and might have had some trouble if it were not for 31 Irish turnovers.

Bill Curtis, the Spartan captain, led the scorers with 19 points. Stan Washington added 17. Tom Caldwell had 18 for Notre Dame.

RUSSELL HTS 45

The Wolverines of Michigan, defending Big Ten champions, will lead the basketball game last week but All-America Cazzie Russell did his best to make amends Saturday night.

Russell led the Wolverines to a 96-78 basketball victory over San Francisco in the second game of a doubleheader in Chicago Stadium.

Playing before a hometown crowd, Russell poured in 45 points to break a regulation game stadium record. It was the high-point of his career, topping his 40-point output against Michigan State last season and set a Wolverine record. Russell's performance overshadowed other top efforts by Big Ten players Saturday. Don Freeman poured in 35 points in Illinois' 96-86 victory over West Virginia. Dave Schellhaas scored 34 points to lead Purdue to an 84-77 triumph over Butler and George Peoples' 27 points helped Iowa record a 66-60 decision over Drake.

Crowd Small for PGA Play

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (UPI)—PGA officials were wondering today how to make the $125,000 National Four-Ball a success.

The crowds attending the four-day golf tournament at the PGA's plush new headquarters here never reached 5,000, despite such drawing cards as Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Sam Snead.

Tournament officials offered several possible reasons for the "disappointing attendance, and the foremost was that "You can't hope to draw a huge crowd the first time you hold a new tournament."

Gay Brewer and Butch Baird captured the first prize of $20,000 with a 72-hole total of 259, 29 strokes under par.

Brothers Lionel and Jay Herbert posted a 282 to pick up second money of $12,000.

Future U-M foe Riddles UCMA

By United Press International
The Duke Blue Devils and Michigan Wolverines each were claiming to be the nation's top college basketball team after impressive victories last week, and the argument probably won't be decided until they meet each other next week.

Duke began chanting "We're No. 1" as they defeated first-ranked UCLA twice last week, 82-66 and 94-75 to avenge a loss to the Bruins in the 1964 NCAA playoff finals.

Senior Jack Marin led the Blue Devils in scoring with 20 points in the first victory and 23 in the second. Duke completely solved UCLA's vaunted zone press defense to breeze to victory.

The Blue Devils are not expected to be challenged for their claim to first place this week

Michigan Tech and Michigan walloped a couple of Canadian Hockey opponents Saturday while Michigan State was notching a Western Collegiate Hockey Association triumph.

Tech hammered Manitoba 13-2 as Jerry Bumbacco got the hat trick and Dave Confrey, Bob Tothill and Wayne Weller scored two goals each. Confrey and Tothill are natives of Manitoba. The victory was undefeated Tech's seventh.

In a free-wheeling game at Ann Arbor, Michigan crushed McMaster of Ontario 10-3. McMaster goalie John Young racked up a penalty for slashing and also an assist in McMaster's scoring.

Bob Baird, Barry McDonald and Mel Wakabayashi each scored twice for Michigan. Wakabayashi's goals came 10 seconds apart with the Wolverines short-handed. Michigan now stands 4-2.

The Spartans trimmed Denver 4-1 for their second WCHA victory in six starts and their third in nine games over-all. Tom Mikkola had two goals for State and Brian McAndrew had a goal and three assists.
