Michigan Bankards Honored on Terms

Fire Snuffing Hopes for 78 in Coal Mine

MANNINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Hope of rescuing 78 miners trapped deep in a burning coal mine dimmed further today with announcement that the fire in the shafts increased during the night.

"Since last evening, all attempts to reduce the fire have failed," executive vice president William Poundstone of Consolidation Coal Co. said this morning.

"The fire has definitely spread during the night. That fact is obvious by the smoke which is now coming out of two shafts."

An explosion at daybreak yesterday started the fire and a chain of explosions later sent flames throughout the deep shafts.

Thirteen men fled to the surface safely and eight were pulled from a 700-foot deep ventilation shaft by a bucket on the end of a crane cable. There has been no word from the 78 since the initial blast.

"Smoke and heat kept rescue teams from entering the shaft to reach the trapped men."

"Another thing which is discouraging is the amount of carbon monoxide which has increased in the mine," Poundstone said.

"As long as we feel there is a chance to reduce and contain the fire, we will not give up hope," Poundstone said. "At this time, we do not intend to seal up the entire mine."

company safety officials just what steps will be taken today," Poundstone said.

1st TASK CURBING FIRE

"Our immediate problem is to reduce and contain the fire," Poundstone said. "We cannot endanger the lives of rescue teams until we are certain the fire is contained and there will be no additional explosions."

"As long as we feel there is a chance to reduce and contain the fire, we will not give up hope," Poundstone said. "At this time, we do not intend to seal up the entire mine."

Poundstone said smoke is now pouring from a shaft which had been sealed to control air flow into the mine but a buildup of gas below the seals opened late last night.

Officials said the mine was inspected for safety last August and federal mine inspectors reported they found no dangerous accumulation of gas.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

There was no determination on what caused the explosion but company spokesmen said yesterday that it was either accumulations of gas or dust.

Four of the men who made it out were put under observation at nearby Fairmont General Hospital. None was considered in serious condition.

"The Lord was with us," said Lewis Lake, 55, a mine veteran from Owings, W. Va. "He brought us through because we couldn't see a thing."

Mayor Elected for Sylvan Lake

John Rueper of 1565 Lakeview was elected mayor of Sylvan Lake by unanimous vote at a special City Commission meeting last night.

John M. Hanson of 2440 Garland was elected mayor pro tem. Both terms are for one year.

Rueper, who had been mayor pro tem for the last year, is an appliance service foreman-gas at Consumers Power Co. He has been on the council since September 1966 when he was appointed to fill a vacancy. He was elected to a regular term in 1967.

He succeeds Fred Crossman of 2461 Renfrew.

Hanson, a councilman since 1962, was also mayor in 1966. He was unanimously elected in June 1966 to fill a vacancy and reelected in the regular election in November 1966. Hanson, president of the Michigan Credit Counselors, also was elected by a unanimous vote last night.

A public hearing on the proposed renewal of the current franchise with Detroit Edison Co. for electricity was set for the regular meeting Dec. 11.

Pontiac Born 150 Years Ago

By LOUIS H. BURBEY

It was 150 years ago this month that Stephen Mack, a prominent Detroit retailer and contractor, walked into the U.S. Land Office in Detroit and arranged with Clerk Peter Audrain for the purchase of 1,280 acres of wilderness land which was to have a profound influence on the eventual settlement of Michigan and the region of Oakland County, with its county seat to be located at a place to be known as Pontiac.

Mack's initial 1,280-acre purchase comprised the middle of present-day Pontiac, that is, all of Section 29, the north half and southwest one-quarter of Section 28 and the northeast one-quarter of Section 32.

Present day boundaries of these tracts are approximately Tregent Street and Grandview on the north; East Boulevard to Michigan, Roselawn to Auburn and Wide Track to Gillespie Street on the east. On the west, Grant-Williams and Johnson streets.

Purchase price for this 1,280-acre tract was $2 an acre with 25 per cent down ($620) with three equal annual payments at 5 per cent on the unpaid balance.

Mack's purchase was made on behalf of a Detroit syndicate known as The Pontiac Co., organized Nov. 5, 1818.

The company consisted of William Woodbridge, Solomon Sibley, John L. Whiting, Austin E. Wing, David C. McKinstry, Benjamin Sted, Henry L. Hunt, Abraham Edwards, Alexander

Nixon Stretches Florida Talks on Cabinet Choices

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, stretching his stay in Florida, is conducting discussions about the men who will make up his Cabinet and the policies with which he will guide them.

But these deliberations are being described publicly only in the most broad and general terms. And the names under consideration are a carefully shielded secret.

The president-elect planned another round of manpower and policy talks today before heading back to New York, his nominal headquarters for the period of government transition.

Key participants in the current talks are Lt. Gov. Robert Finch of California, and John N. Mitchell, a partner in the Nixon law firm who served as his campaign manager.

A POSSIBILITY

Cabinet posts for both men are considered a possibility and a Nixon spokesman said their personal roles in the administration had been discussed.

Sources in the Nixon camp said Finch can decide for himself whether he will take a position on the White House staff or accept a Cabinet-rank job.

Ronald L. Ziegler, a special assistant to Nixon, said there have been no final decisions yet on any Cabinet or sub-Cabinet posts. Nixon does not intend to announce any such appointments before Dec. 5.

Ziegler did, however, have one news item. On Saturday, the Nixons will announce in New York the plans for the wedding of their daughter, Julie, to David Eisenhower.

Cloudy Skies Due; Chance of Snow

Skies will be partly overcast for the next few days, with a chance of light snow tonight.

Temperatures are expected to become a little warmer. Tonight's predicted low will be 34 to 35 and tomorrow the mercury may be near 40. Partly cloudy skies with little temperature change is the outlook for Saturday.

Precipitation probabilities in per cent are 10 today, 30 tonight and 20 tomorrow. A breezy 25 was the low recording in downtown Pontiac preceding 8 a.m. The reading was 38 at 2 p.m.

Fishermen Net Big One

CHERBOURG, France (AP) — The catch was harder to pull in than usual early today and the crew of the French trawler La Belle Poule went to the side to see what the trouble was.

The crew found the 1,120-ton British submarine Alaric tangled in the nets, the fishing boat's skipper reported. The incident occurred in the English Channel about 20 miles from Cherbourg.

Joseph Barbara Leaves Courtroom

Barbara Bound Over on Extortion Charge

By TOM GRAY
Reputed Mafia figure Joseph M. Barbara, 32, of Fraser was bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court yesterday for trial following a lengthy pretrial examination on a charge of extortion.

Farmington Township Justice of the Peace Byron Walters conducted the examination, which lasted about 15 hours in two sessions in Farmington Municipal Court.

Barbara, president and owner of the Tri-County Sanitation Co., Detroit, was arrested Oct. 18 on charges that he extorted $4,000 in cash and valuables from Mrs. Delores Lazaros, 34, of Troy by threatening the lives of her 9-year-old son and husband.

Barbara was released on continued $50,000 bond pending Circuit Court trial, at a date still to be set.

CROSS EXAMINATION

Yesterday's session the second in the examination, consisted of cross-examination of Mrs. Lazaros by Joseph Louisell, Barbara's attorney.

In earlier testimony two weeks ago, Mrs. Lazaros had revealed that she had asked Barbara for help in freeing her husband from prison where he was serving on a four-to-eight-year sentence on a 1962 fraud conviction.

She also accused Barbara of raping her. Barbara still faces pretrial examination on the rape charge.

Louisell attempted to discredit Mrs. Lazaros' testimony by questioning her closely on apparent inconsistencies between statements she made during the examination and an earlier statement she gave to Assistant County Prosecutor John Bain on Oct. 18.

DID SHE SEE IT?

In one instance, Louisell's questioning centered around whether Mrs. Lazaros had seen Barbara physically take the $4,000 from a jewel box in her home.

Mrs. Lazaros said she had not but claimed that she had seen Barbara with the money, some legal papers, and "something shiny" which "might have been a ring."

Louisell then denied that there had been a crime of extortion, citing Mrs. Lazaros' testimony that "there was no conversation" between her and Barbara about the money.

However, Walters, noting that she had testified that Barbara had threatened her son and husband and that she made no attempt to interfere when Barbara allegedly took the money, ruled it was "reasonable to believe" the crime of extortion had taken place nevertheless.

Lazaros, released from prison Oct. 10 by a federal court order to appeal his conviction, reportedly has detailed much of the Mafia's area activities to investigators.

He has been under protective custody in his home since his release from jail. Barbara is the son of Joseph Barbara Sr., who hosted the 1967 meeting at Apalachin, N.Y., where 61 alleged underworld leaders were arrested.

Heart Expert Blasts FDA on Food Fats

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is being "unscientific, unrealistic, harsh and archaic," in its rulings concerning the fats in foods that people buy, a heart specialist says.

Consumers cannot find out whether foods contain the kind of fats recommended by many heart specialists as likely to help ward off heart attacks, said Dr. Jeremiah Stamler of Chicago.

An FDA ruling forbids manufacturers to give this information on the labels on their products, he said.

The labels should compel manufacturers to list the contents of animal or vegetable fats, or saturated and polyunsaturated fats in their products, Stamler told a new conference at the opening of the American Heart Association's annual meeting.

SUPPORTED BY GROUP

Behind his charge, supported in a recent official statement from the heart association, is the belief of many heart specialists that a change from the usual American diet can help protect against heart attacks.

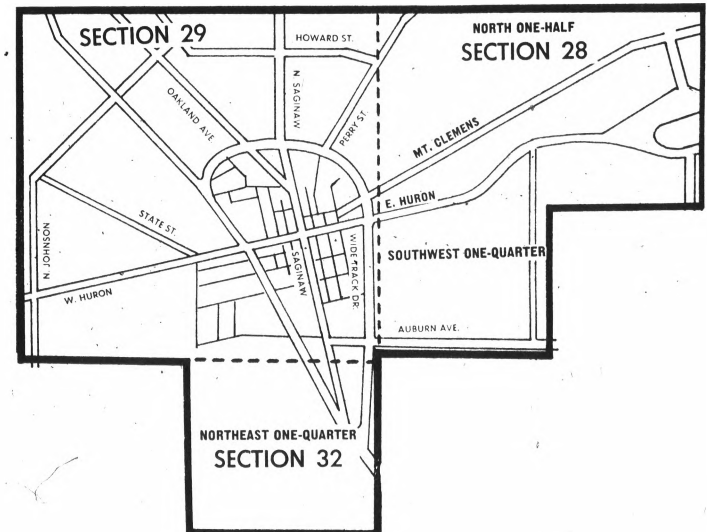

One major change recommended is to reduce the intake of saturated fats, coming mostly from animal sources, and to increase consumption of polyunsaturated fats, derived mostly from vegetable oils.

Stamler said the FDA several years ago took the stand that there was no solid evidence of a relationship between fats and cholesterol in food intake and atherosclerosis, the artery-clogging disease that underlies most heart attacks.

Further, it ruled manufacturers could not advertise that any foods could help protect against heart attacks, or list the composition of fats in products.

Not just the food people eat, but other habits seem to increase susceptibility to heart attacks, other speakers said.

Lack of exercise and physical activity, being overweight and smoking cigarettes are among these habits, they said.

Breakthrough Reported in Bid to Bolster Franc

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germans reported a breakthrough today in an effort by the world's wealthiest nations to save the French franc from devaluation and to end the latest international monetary crisis.

The money managers, meeting in secret for the second straight day, plunged into an effort to collect enough credits for the rescue operation.

Karl Schiller, West Germany's minister of economics, told newsmen the conferences were considering these measures:

- West German tax measures to encourage imports and discourage exports. This, he said, has been the No. 1 topic all along.

- Special credit arrangements among the 11 countries — the "Group of 10" plus Switzerland, an observer.

- Measures to be taken by the "deficit countries," meaning in this case largely France, although Britain too has a dangerous trade deficit.

"We are deep in negotiations," Schiller added.

The measures would keep the West Germans from having to revalue their mark upward and the French from having to devalue their franc.

A rush in international markets to buy marks with francs set off the present crisis that also is having effects on the British pound and to some extent the U.S. dollar.

Allies Fearing Talks Sabotage Try by S. Viet

PARIS (UPI) — Allied diplomats today said South Vietnam may join Paris negotiations for Vietnam only to sabotage the talks.

They said President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam has agreed "in principle" to end his boycott of the talks and send a delegation headed by his vice president, Nguyen Cao Ky.

The diplomats said Thieu believes he will be in a better position inside rather than outside the talks to torpedo any compromise with the North Vietnamese and the Vietcong.

Publicly, South Vietnam maintained its boycott of the talks the United States and North Vietnam arranged. The negotiations were to open three weeks ago. But Saigon's boycott has stalled the start.

In Saigon today, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker spent an hour with Thieu in the president's Independence Palace office. Diplomatic sources said Bunker apparently was working out details of a South Vietnamese agreement to end the boycott.

The allied diplomats here said Thieu will announce his decision to send a delegation to Paris as soon as the details are worked out.

"It is then that the South Vietnamese may become really difficult," one high allied diplomat said.

South Vietnamese officials in Paris made no bones about their belief that all concessions in negotiations thus far have been made by the allied side and none by the Communists.

The allied diplomats said Ky's coming would underline the worry about Saigon taking an especially tough line in talks.

Liuzzo Daughter Rues 'Mistake'

DETROIT (AP) — The daughter of slain civil rights worker Viola Liuzzo says the hardest part of the federal prison term she faces for smuggling marijuana is "knowing how I've hurt my father."

"He's been hurt so much," 20-year-old Mary Liuzzo said yesterday at the Wayne County Jail where she is awaiting a trip to the federal reformatory for women at Alderson, W. Va., for two months' psychiatric observation.

"I know I've done wrong," said Miss

Liuzzo, who has dark brown eyes and long shaggy soft brown hair. "I'll never break the law again."

Her mother, Mrs. Anthony Liuzzo — a Detroit housewife, civil rights worker and mother of five — was shot to death March 25, 1965 while driving between Selma and Montgomery, Ala. No one has been convicted in the case.

PLEADED GUILTY

Miss Liuzzo pleaded guilty before U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears in San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 26 on a charge of importing two ounces of marijuana from Mexico without paying a special tax. She was arrested at the San Antonio airport July 24.

"I won't be home for the holidays and Christmas has meant a lot to us. Mother used to be such an important part of Christmas and since her death we have tried to make the holidays an extra special time to be together," she said.

Parkinson Drug Set for Big Test

NEW YORK (AP) — A nationwide program to test a new drug that has shown some dramatic results in treating patients with Parkinson's disease was announced today by the National Institutes of Health.

Dr. Robert K. Marsden, new institutes director, said 20 institutions will cooperate in the test, which he said would be conducted "within the shortest time period compatible with sound scientific principles."

Marsden cited recently published research work by Dr. George C. Cotzias of Brookhaven National Laboratory at Upton, N.Y., who reported in May that treatment of 25 patients produced "not only encouraging, but in many cases quite dramatic" results.

Marsden did not offer a time element when the test might be completed or an estimate of the cost in remarks for the Albert and Mary Lasker Foundation's annual Medical Research Awards luncheon.

Up to 75 per cent of Parkinson's patients eventually may benefit from the drug called L-dopa, he said, but added that there are problems of supply and of rather serious and unpleasant side effects to be considered.

Parkinson's disease affects perhaps one million persons in the United States and is marked by tremors, muscle rigidity and loss of coordination.

State Senator Supports School Tax Reform Unit

A committee organized recently in the Waterford Township School District to seek tax reforms in financing public education has already received support from one state legislator.

State Sen. L. Harvey Lodge, R-Waterford Township, told members of the Committee for Reform in Financing Michigan Local School Districts last night that he would be willing to consider and possibly introduce legislation in the area of education financing.

The committee, cochaired by Don Porter, president of the board of education, and H. Delos Nicholice, 2120 Lake Angelus Shores, Lake Angelus, met at the board of education offices, 3101 W. Walton.

Schools Supt. Dr. Don O. Tatroe began the meeting by outlining suggested goals for the committee.

AREAS OF CONCERN

Two major areas of concern, he said, are to find some method of revising the state homestead tax exemption act to grant more relief to senior citizens, and to work for change in the present millage-state aid system to make it more equitable for all.

Unless reforms are made soon, Tatroe explained, the district — and many others across the state — will be continually subject to difficulties in raising the tax money they need.

An election will be held Dec. 7 in the district on a proposed 9-mill operating tax levy and a $10.8-million bond issue for construction.

"There are lots of Waterford Townships in this state," Tatroe commented. "We're hoping that we might be able to provide less burden on property as a form of taxation."

SUGGESTIONS OFFERED

Several suggestions were offered by committee members to ease the tax problem which inflation has created for senior citizens, many of whom live on fixed incomes.

Tatroe proposed amending the homestead exemption law to increase senior citizen exemptions by 50 per cent, while Nicholice suggested "freezing" assessments on a citizen's property when he becomes eligible for Social Security benefits.

Lodge said he would be willing to "put in a bill" to revise the exemptions if a satisfactory solution could be worked out.

The state senator also urged passage of the Dec. 7 millage, pointing out, "People in wealthy districts want to keep what they have."

"If you pass this millage, I can go to Detroit and some of these other districts and say, 'Look, we've assumed our responsibility. Now it's time for you to do your part.'"

The committee's next meeting will take place the week of Dec. 8.

Appeal Denied in Greek Plot

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek Supreme Court today turned down an appeal for a new trial for Alexander Panagoulis and his 72-hour grace period ended at dawn, but there was no indication he had been executed for plotting against the military regime.

Panagoulis' lawyer had applied for a retrial on the ground that his client's deposition read at his trial was invalid because Panagoulis had not signed it. The Supreme Court said this was "unacceptable."

There was speculation that execution might have been delayed to give the Supreme Court time to rule.

The Supreme Court's decision exhausts all judicial avenues for a postponement of the execution. Clemency from the regent or a stay of execution by the military authorities is considered the only way in which Panagoulis can escape the firing squad.

ALLEGED PLOT

Panagoulis, 30, was sentenced Sunday night to die before a firing squad for deserting the army and attempting to overthrow the military regime of Premier George Papadopoulos. He had 72 hours to appeal for clemency but refused to sign a plea.

A reliable source said Papadopoulos was resisting members of the military junta who want the execution carried out and met with military leaders yesterday to discuss possible repercussions from an execution.

In addition to the two death sentences, Panagoulis was sentenced to 18 years in prison for the attempt Aug. 13 to assassinate the premier.

Panagoulis' lawyer, Leandros Karamifidis, said he had received no word of his client's fate.

Birmingham Area

Institute Gets Cash Grant

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The Institute for Advanced Pastoral Studies, 380 Lane Pine, has received a $15,000 grant from the Charles E. Merrill Trust.

Richard King of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith Inc., the brokerage firm founded by Merrill (under whose will the trust was established), presented a draft for the amount to Dr. Reuel L. Howe, director of the Institute, on behalf of the trust.

Established in 1957, the Institute is a nondenominational and ecumenical center for continuing theological education of clergy and lay persons.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — Edwin O. George, president of the Detroit Edison Co., has been named to the Department of the Treasury's U.S. industrial payroll saving committee by Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler.

George will serve as chairman of the Metropolitan Detroit 1969 U.S. Savings Bonds Campaign.

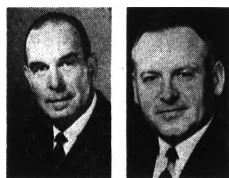

57 EXECUTIVES

The committee of 57 business and industrial executives is charged with planning and leading the national effort to increase purchases of U.S. savings bonds and Freedom Shares through the payroll savings plan.

Chairman of the national committee for 1969 will be James M. Roche, chairman of the board of General Motors Corp.

George, 63, of 352 Barden, received a bachelor's degree from Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., in 1928 and studied economics of public utilities at the University of Illinois.

He is president of the Detroit Educational Television Foundation and the Southeast Michigan Tourist Association, and vice president of the Traffic Improvement Association of Oakland County.

GEORGE CALDWELL

Horsemanship Award to Oakland Twp. Girl

OAKLAND TOWNSHIP — Sue Sprengel of 2660 Shannon has been awarded the Arabian Horse Association of Michigan's top award — the George Whitehead trophy — for her 6-year-old stallion, Nizzoli.

Miss Sprengel, a student at Northwood Institute, Midland, also received championship trophies for side saddle and driving competition and two reserve championships in halter and English performance.

The awards were made Saturday in Frankenmuth.

SF Prexy Makes Plea

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The president of San Francisco State College, Robert Smith, urged more students to return to the classrooms today instead of taking part in a convocation at the school which reopened yesterday after being closed for four days because of violence.

Most of the 18,000 students and 1,300 faculty members returned to the campus without trouble as plainclothesmen patrolled the area and other policemen were on a standby basis.

HARVARD GRADUATE

Caldwell graduated from Muskingum College, New Concord, O., and earned a master's degree in business administration from the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration.

He joined Ford in 1953.

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The second in a series of adult education meetings scheduled by the New Temple, a reform Jewish congregation meeting at Bloomfield Hills Unitarian Church, will take place Sunday, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Green, 3550 Larkwood.

John Mersky, a student at Michigan State University, will conduct the session entitled "Youth — A Dialog."

Added $60,000 Sought for County Morgue Setup

By ED BLUNDEN
The County Board of Supervisors Health Committee recommended yesterday allocating an additional $60,000 for morgue operations in 1969.
The funds would be in addition to $90,000 already budgeted for the morgue.
On the Nov. 5 ballot, voters approved changing the old coroner system to the medical examiner system and the funds are slated to implement the change.

but in cases of investigation of deaths the work was hired out on a piecemeal basis.
Health Director Dr. Bernard D. Berman explained that the old system was not only costly but in many cases quite faulty.

HARD TO FIND

He said it was often difficult to find a qualified physician with enough time to handle county cases.
Where violent death with criminal implications was involved, investigations were often delayed due to needed autopsy information, he said.

Dr. Berman also questioned whether all cases of suspicious death were being properly investigated.
The $60,000 sum, if added to the health department budget, would provide $10,000 in equipment and provide for positions of deputy medical examiner and pathologist, Dr. Berman said.

AT STATE HOSPITAL

The equipment would be installed in the present county morgue which is being established in rooms at Pontiac State Hospital.

A complete morgue operation is planned for the proposed new county jail on which work is expected to begin in a few months.

Dr. Berman said that both the equipment and added personnel would be necessary to the new morgue.

The health committee's recommendation will be sent to the ways and means committee and then to the entire board at their meeting Dec. 18.

ONE ABSTENTION

In the committee's vote, one abstention was made. It was by Lee Walker, appointed supervisor from Madison Heights and mayor of that city.

Walker abstained on the basis that the new board of supervisors should take any further steps regarding county funds.

Walker will be on the 27-member reapportionment board which will be seated in January.

Walker will belong to the majority party in the new body (15 Democrats, 12 Republicans), and said, "There may be many revisions in the budget by the new board."

Almont Eyes Another Try After Sewer Issue Defeat

ALMONT — The Village Council hopes to reopen a storm sewer issue defeated Monday in a special election. To this end, the council has instructed Village Manager Eugene King to continue to obtain information.

Only 102 ballots were cast in the special election on a resolution asking for a $200,000 bond issue for a new storm sewer project for the entire village.

The vote was 56 against and 43 for, with one void ballot.

King said he felt one reason for the poor turnout was the bad weather Monday.

PAVING PROJECT

King will pursue the issue further and gather information on reopening the drive, with an additional project of curbing and paving all of the village's unpaved streets.

Council members said they had heard talk that some townspeople felt the paving and curbing were necessary in the issue. This way the entire job would be completed at the same time.

"We are not disheartened or alarmed at the failure of the issue," King said.

"This is probably the biggest issue that has ever confronted the village. All we need, I think, is to educate the people more as to the necessity of the projects, and where the money will go," he said.

The village is serviced by an inadequate antiquated system of storm and sanitary sewers combined.

Sewer to Serve Business Only

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — A review of petitions for the construction of a sanitary sewer in Hammond Lake Estates showed 51 per cent of the commercial landowners in the area favor the project, department of public works officials say.

Residential property owners in the subdivision will not be serviced by the sewer. A hearing of necessity for the project disclosed they were not willing to sign the petition. The home owners maintained that individual septic tanks serve their needs.

Individual assessments for the $87,000 project will be prepared by Township Supervisor John N. Doherty in the near future.

About 25 residents of the subdivision were present at a recent Township Board meeting. They claimed that the petitions presented to them misrepresented the cost of the project.

At the same meeting another subdivision, Knowlwood Heights, expressed a similar misunderstanding. Speaking for 10 residents of Knowlwood Heights was George Fulkerson, a Birmingham attorney.

He said his clients signed a petition last summer for the creation of a special assessment to provide a sanitary sewer in Knowlwood Heights but now contend the facts were misrepresented.

Doherty told Fulkerson that a hearing of necessity for the Knowlwood Heights project will be Jan. 15, 1969.

High Trucks Caused Raising of Boxes

Mail Vans off Road Again

Note: To people who have hiked their mailbox heights in accordance with written notice from local post offices.
The specially ordered delivery vans — the high ones — have been taken off the road — again.

They're due for some more modification, according to Chrysler Corp. who built the vehicles on government specification.

"I don't know what we're going to use to replace those trucks," said Floyd W. Gilson, superintendent of the Pontiac Motor Vehicle Facility. "I don't know whether we'll use bicycles, walk or what. God knows what's going to happen from here on out."

VEHICLES SEE LITTLE USE

If Gilson sounds jumpy, it's understandable. The new trucks, ordered to replace 1960 models used by the department, have already been off the road for almost half their lives.

The latest order calls for inspecting and "where necessary, tighten steering gear attaching bolts" on 2,500 of the 6,000 three-quarter-ton Dodge P200 right-hand drive trucks.

The trucks were new six months ago, and were built so high that postmen found it necessary to ask patrons to raise their mailboxes to 50 inches in height and in Lake Orion to 5 foot, 7 inches from the ground to the top of the box.

The original cost of the vehicles was $2,821 each. There are 35 of them in the Pontiac garage and Gilson says the original cost has grown by leaps and bounds through the need for repair and alterations.

"It's been an interesting six months experience," he noted.

Apartment Zoning Hearing Set Dec. 8 in Avon Township

AVON TOWNSHIP — A public hearing on a rezoning request which would permit construction of 788 apartments on 78.8 acres south of Avon Road and west of Livernois has been set for 7:30 p.m. Dec. 18.

The township planning commission last night heard a report from attorney Robert Childs, representing Fred Eltinger of Detroit, in which he outlined the developer's intention of seeking private engineering to discover and correct any flooding problems in the area.

A referral from the zoning board of appeals on an application to start a landfill on 27 acres at Dequindre and Hamlin Roads was tabled until Dec. 4.

Some 20 people present objected to what the project might do to their water tables and wells. They pointed out the owners, Halanakis and James of Detroit, also plan to allow some garbage fill in the area.

Lapeer Ready to Sign Pact for Detroit Water Tonight

LAPEER — With the approval of city voters in its pockets and the authorization of the City Commission, the Lapeer Area Utility Authority is set to sign a water contract tonight with Detroit.

City voters overwhelmingly chose to make the switch to the Detroit water in an advisory vote on the Nov. 5 ballot. The question carried 1,347 to 722.

The water main will come north from Detroit to Imlay City where it will turn left to Lapeer. The main will eventually come directly from Lake Huron to Imlay City, where it will split to Detroit and Lapeer, according to City Manager Arnold Whitney.

Negotiations for the 35-year contract with the Detroit Water Department have been under way for more than two years. The first advisory vote was passed by citizens in April 1966.

Although the water rates for Lapeer residents will go up as much as 50 per cent, there are more advantages to the switch than disadvantages, said Whitney, who is also a Lapeer Area Utility Authority member.

"Lapeer's well water is very bad. The mineral content is high, making the water very hard and slightly discolored," Whitney said.

Water softeners now are a must for users of the Lapeer well water.

Also through this contract, the authority can contract with the Detroit Water Department for sewer or water main construction for Lapeer and surrounding areas, Whitney said.

PLANS BEING DRAFTED

The authority is already in the process of drawing up the plans for installation of mains for Detroit water. The changeover should be completed by late spring.

Construction was to have been completed sooner but the equipment from Detroit will not be available at least until April, Whitney said.

The authority will purchase the water from Detroit at 25 cents per 1,000 gallons and resell it to consumers.

According to a water rate study made by the authority, the present general obligation bonding capacity of Lapeer would be sufficient to finance a $1,250,000 bond issue, which would substantially reduce the Detroit water rates if desired. Lapeer will be the 66th Michigan community to contract with Detroit for water service.

READYING FOR DEDICATION — Getting ready for the R. Grant Graham Elementary School dedication at 7:30 tonight in the Avondale School District are (from left) Carol Ahern, Principal G. William DeQuis, Susanne Friend, Caroline Dafoe and Cathy Hennen. The program and open house are open to all residents of the district, DeQuis said. The school opened at capacity for the first time last month.

Middle-Aged Mom Makes Film Scene With Chin Up—and Keeps It Moving

By JEAN SAILE
When Zsa Zsa Gabor says she's got problems, you'd better believe her. Middle-aged stardom is a heady thing. Just ask me.
For two hours last week I, too, joined the legion of sex symbols and while my type is said to be more Phyllis Diller than Gabor's, I think my image has improved among the office coterie and maybe just a teensy, weensy bit with the kids.
SAILE
Jim Mahar of Clarkston, owner of Mahar Productions and producer of next year's United Fund film, thinks I look like the typical American mother.

"Iah," said the kids. "You may look like her, but you don't act like her."

That it was 5 p.m. at the time and we were engaged in thawing the meat for a 6 p.m. dinner may have had some bearing on their comments.

"Shut up," said I—their mother, the movie star.

OUTDOOR SCENE

I was to appear in some sunshiny outdoor shots in a back yard at Johnson and Oakland in Pontiac, Mahar said. Holly Radovey, who lives across the road from us in Clarkston, was to play my daughter.

Okay. Previous acting experience had consisted of being laughed out of try-outs for the senior class play, but I'm not shy.

We were "on location." A factor that none of us had counted on is that my chin has a life of its own when it's cold outside.

If this particular segment of the film survives editing, it will be found that I don't stop talking once.

PHOTOGRAPHER'S RUDE

That was a rude Peter Touthanian, the photographer, suggested to keep my chin from jumping out of focus in the 36-degree temperature.

Run-throughs were permitted with coats on, but the real action called for bare arms.

"Keep your mouth shut," called Touthanian.

"How do you keep your mouth shut when your nose is running?" I retorted. "Get in the car and get warmed up again," said Mahar.

10-YEAR-OLD PRO

That 10-year-old Holly was performing like a pro did nothing for my ego.

But in spite of the cold, or maybe because of it, we were through shooting in half the time estimated.

"That's enough," Touthanian would call when he had completed several takes on one scene.

And you never knew whether he meant it was good, or yeccehah, she'll never do any better so we'd best take what we have.

RUSHES DUE SOON

The rushes (unedited film strips) are due for preview soon. I don't know whether I can survive them or not.

Of the entire film, my portion is only a small one. Many area people are featured, and if United Fund likes it enough, it will be distributed nationwide next year, Mahar said.

Small or not—I parlayed that portion into several autograph requests, some applause and a considerable amount of hand-shaking on the part of my tolerant husband.

Weather Halts Hunt for Lost Research Sub

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) — Efforts to recover the lost research submarine Alvin were suspended yesterday, the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution announced.

A spokesman said the suspension was ordered because of worsening weather off the New England coast. The spokesman said he did not know when—or whether—the recovery operation would be resumed.

The Alvin, a tiny deep-diving submarine, was lost Oct. 16 in 4,500 feet of water when a cable broke as the craft was being lowered overboard from her mother ship for a routine research mission.

The mishap occurred about 120 miles south of Cape Cod, and almost claimed the lives of her three crewmen.

IN BOMB HUNT

The Alvin gained widespread fame in 1956 while being used in the search for a missing hydrogen bomb off the coast of Spain. It was the Alvin that eventually found the bomb.

The spokesman, John Schilling, said it is "too early to forecast what our plans are for returning" to the Alvin's resting place. At present, Schilling said, he could report only that "the salvage operations were terminated."

The Alvin was about to embark on her 307th dive when she was lost. She sank to a depth of between 10 and 13 feet at first, then bobbed back to the surface, allowing her three crewmen to scamper to safety. Then she went under for the final time.

The Alvin and her mother ship, the Lulu, were built in 1964 at a total cost of $1 million.

NOT PINPOINTED

Schilling said the Alvin's exact location still hasn't been pinpointed. But there is "a small search area that they feel relatively sure the submarine is in," he added.

Apollo Crew: Flight Isn't 'Risky and Silly'

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Christmas Eve and part of are believed by some to be active volcanoes. The Apollo 8 astronauts don't agree with a prominent British astronomer who says their moon orbit flight, from a scientific view, is dangerous, silly and wasteful.

The transatlantic dispute started Wednesday when Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory, said in an interview:

"On a scientific basis this project is wasteful and silly. We've reached the stage with automatic landings when it's not necessary to risk human life to get information about the moon."

TOLD NEWSMEN

Speaking for the three Apollo 8 astronauts, Air Force Maj. William A. Anders told newsmen Wednesday night:

"We obviously don't agree with him. We are flying primarily an operational mission, and we strongly feel that a manned platform in lunar orbit with the operational equipment we have can add significant bits and pieces to scientific knowledge."

"The old engineers on the railroads probably said the airplane would never work either."

Anders, Air Force Col. Frank Borman and Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. are scheduled to rocket toward the moon Dec. 21 on a six-day mission in which they are to orbit 69 miles above the lunar surface for 20 hours on Christmas Day. "We think," Anders said, "there is a real reason for Apollo 8 to be a lunar orbit mission. We think it will be a great boon for future Apollo flights to have the photographic, navigation, tracking and mapping and other knowledge we'll bring back. It will make it easier for them to land safely and with confidence."

MAIN GOAL CITED

The astronaut noted the main goal of the Apollo 8 mission is to test the spacecraft and to learn something about flying in the vicinity of the moon, but that many scientific rewards were possible.

Among the scientific possibilities the pilots will be alert for, he said, are:

• Better photographs of the hidden lunar backside than those returned by unmanned probes.
• "We'll look at fault zones called rifts that don't have an explanation. They almost look erosional and we'll look for flow features and a beginning and an end."
• "Some craters are obviously impacts, others caused by something internal on the moon. We'll look at those in the middle that we can't tell about."

• The so-called red spots near the crater Aristarchus which have been reported by Russian and other scientists and which

DETAILED PHOTOS

Anders said Apollo 8 will be able to photograph in detail an area in the Sea of Tranquility considered a prime landing spot for astronauts next year.

He said ground trackers are not certain of the precise orbit path of Apollo ships because the moon, like the earth, is not perfectly round, which could lead to landing errors of up to 45 miles.

"The more we learn about the moon's gravitational field and how to navigate in it," he said, "the less will be our error when astronauts try to land."

Czech Student Leaders Call End to Sit-Ins

PRAGUE (AP) — Leaders of 100,000 students striking to protest loss of their new freedoms announced a 24-hour extension of their three-day-old protest, prolonging it to 8 p.m. tonight. Then they announced the extension would be cut to 16 hours. The strike leaders earlier had called for an end to their massive sit-ins at noon today as Czechoslovakia's Communist leaders appealed to workers not to join the protest.

Hubert, Spiro Visit Johnson

LBJ Offers Advice and Trades Quips

WASHINGTON (AP) — The vice presidency "is a high and responsible office," says President Johnson, a former vice president himself.

And Wednesday the President gave a little advice to the incoming vice president and traded quips with his own No. 2 man.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, sporting a Caribbean suntan, stopped at the White House and joined the President in plugging the Democratic Jefferson-Jackson Day dinners that will help defray leftover campaign debts.

"Tickets are going to be up a little this year," said Humphrey, his party's defeated presidential nominee.

RISE IN COSTS

"You've heard about the rising cost of living. Well, there's the rise in the cost of campaigning."

Reporters asked if the two men would go out to the dinners as a sort of double feature.

Humphrey: "We're not going out together."

Johnson: "We're going in together."

Humphrey: "That's the way we started."

MORE DUTIES

Later in the day, vice president-elect Spiro T. Agnew conferred with the President.

Johnson related to the Maryland governor some of his experiences serving as vice president.

"I told him of the things I liked about it and the things I didn't like about it," said Johnson.

"It is a high and responsible office," he added, "and in recent years has taken on more duties."

Johnson said he and Agnew also talked about Vietnam, the Paris peace talks, the Middle East and the international monetary situation.

Said Agnew: "I don't think there is anyone in American politics who has the breadth and depth of experience" Johnson has.

Scholarship Post

MARQUETTE (AP)—Robert L. Bliss, director of admissions at Northern Michigan University since 1965, has resigned to accept a post with the National Merit Scholarship Corp. In Evanston, Ill., it was announced Wednesday. Bliss' resignation will take effect in December.

Shortly after reports that taken sympathy strikes were being launched in a number of industrial plants, the presidents of the Communist party, the government, the National Assembly and the Trades Union Council issued a joint declaration charging that "irresponsible people" were trying to "divide the working class."

The leadership appealed for the protesters to "stop in time the danger which is threatening the working class."

BANNED FROM STREET

The students held up in their was the first official organized Czechoslovakia's growing inter-school buildings after the gov-strike since the Communists est in trade with the West.

announced a 24-hour extension of their three-day-old protest, prolonging it to 8 p.m. tonight. Then they announced the extension would be cut to 16 hours. The strike leaders announced, they were preparing for "a decisive clash with internal political reaction represented by disguised neo-Stalinists." But their agreement to halt the strike in rally support against the central committee's abandonment dictated they would stop short of such reforms as press freedom, freedom of assembly and the right of unrestricted foreign travel.

The party leaders, acting under Soviet pressure, are now rolling back the liberal reforms which brought on the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in August.

The students said their sit-in was the first official organized Czechoslovakia's growing inter-school buildings after the gov-strike since the Communists est in trade with the West.

BULLET IS MOVED — Joseph Barrios (wearing helmet) 63, of Morgan Hill, Calif., is fitted with biosensors yesterday at Sunnyvale, Calif., by Ames Research Center technician Kermit Skrettingland in a centrifuge capsule which was accelerated to six times the force of gravity to reposition a bullet lodged in Barrios' brain. Barrios, a cook, was shot Oct. 7 at his Morgan Hill restaurant.

War Hospital Mates Will Be United Again in the U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I don't know if it's a war nearby ward," said Dole. "Now guess it does sound like a war nearby ward," said Dole. "Now guess it does sound like a war nearby ward," said Dole. "Now guess it does sound like a war nearby ward," said Dole. "Now guess it does sound like a war nearby ward," said Dole.

He was talking about World War II and Rep. Bob Dole who young brunette named Phyllis is going to be sworn in as a fellow senator, and about Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, who wound up in the same hospital with them some 20 years ago.

The scenario opens with Maj. Hart charging up Utah Beach in the D-Day assault on Normandy. A mortar round takes him out of action.

The camera then pans to Italy and shows Inouye, who is so severely wounded he will lose an arm, and Lt. Dole, who is felled while leading a platoon against a German machine-gun nest.

TOGETHER IN HOSPITAL

Later, the three of them are together in Percy Jones Army Hospital, which operated in 1941-42 at Battle Creek, Mich.

Now they will serve in the Senate together. Dole, 45 and a Republican, is senator-elect from Kansas. Hart, 54, and Inouye, 44, of Hawaii are Democrats.

"Bob and I were in the same ward — a small ward," said Hart. "I remember thinking how unfortunate it was that a fine and decent young man like him had to be clobbered that way."

Dole recalls those days with nostalgia.

"Hart was walking around and I was not ambulatory," he said. "So he used to bring me things."

"I would bring him magazines and soft drinks and we would talk," said Hart. "Political aspirations were the farthest things from either of our minds."

AND WIFE MAKES FOUR — Senator-elect Bob Dole, R-Kan., holds a World War II picture history as he plans to join two old Army hospital friends in the U.S. Senate. His wife, Phyllis, was an occupational therapist at the Battle Creek hospital where they met.

Muskie Senate Role in Focus

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top unseat speaker John N. Democratic leaders of the last Congress appear certain to keep their posts in the new one with the only real leadership question centering on what part — if any — will be played by Maine's Edmund Muskie.

Liberal Democrats in the Senate plan to sound out Muskie, the party's unsuccessful vice presidential candidate, on getting into the race for whip or assistant leader.

So far, however, no definite plans have been made to try to unseat Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, the present Democratic whip.

A spokesman for the liberals, unwilling to be quoted, told a reporter they hope to find out shortly whether Muskie is willing to challenge Long.

HOPES TO CONTINUE

Long, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, has sent a letter to all his Democratic colleagues saying he was proud to have been part of the party leadership for the last four years and hoped to continue in it.

Long's supporters say they believe he can count on 30 votes when the 58 Democratic senators caucus to elect their leaders for the new Congress.

Liberal Democrats do not contend it would be easy to oust Long as assistant to Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana — who faces no challenge to his own position. But they say they have a chance if Muskie can be prevailed on to run for the post.

Some Democratic senators have shown signs of not being too happy with Long as whip, partly because of run-ins he has had with Mansfield on the Senate floor.

REPRESENTATION
Liberal Democrats also maintain that Muskie's selection as whip would give their segment of the party a representation in the Senate leadership that it does not have now.

Mansfield is regarded as a moderate while Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, who holds the No. 3 Democratic leadership post, has aligned himself with southern conservatives on many issues.

After sampling the views of key members, leaders of the liberal bloc in the House have spread the word they will have nothing to do with any move to

If there is a leadership fight before McCormack steps down, it will be over the whip post. And if Albert moves up, the fight will be to keep Boggs from becoming majority leader.

IMMEDIATE GOAL
Such a fight is not expected soon, however. The immediate goal of the liberals is to get a voice in the assigning of committee chairmen and hopefully place two of their own on the un-American activities and judiciary groups.

The starting point for what they ultimately hope will be a successful assault on the rigid seniority system is expected to be an attempt to fill the one vacancy on the ways and means committee.

The ways and means Democratic majority sits as a leader and now held by Rep. Hale Boggs.

The job the liberals have their eye on is that of the party whip, next in line below the majority committee on committees to make committee appointments.

Small Piece of Metal Led to Finding of Sub Scorpion

WASHINGTON — The clue which finally led to the finding of the nuclear submarine Scorpion two miles deep in the Atlantic ocean was a small piece of metal that had been seen from the ill-fated vessel.

Chester L. Buchanan, the Naval Research Laboratory official who supervised much of the Scorpion search, said in an interview that "the first hint of something" came in late June when a bent metal plate was detected.

Buchanan said sonar and cameras, suspended far below the oceanographic research ship Mizar, discovered and photographed the 3-to-4-foot piece of metal. The plate was too deep to recover.

Some Navy men doubted the metal plate was a part of the sub and even today nobody will say for sure that it came from the Scorpion.

But the find, which came about a month after the sub and its 99-man crew disappeared, was enough to convince Navy officials to concentrate the search in one area about 400 miles southwest of the Azores.

There, nearly four months later, the Mizar's sensitive magnetic detectors, sound-ranging equipment and cameras located portions of the Scorpion only about three or four miles from where the piece of metal was spotted.

The Scorpion was reported overdue May 27, the day it was scheduled to arrive at Norfolk, Va., from an underwater trip from the Mediterranean.

She had been last heard from six days before when she reported from a position about 250 miles south of the Azores.

Resting Place

The $40-million submarine's final resting place, as announced by the Navy Oct. 31, was about 400 miles southwest of the Azores in more than 10,000 feet of water, about 8,800 feet below the maximum depth for the vessel.

A search got under way immediately after the overdue call and involved, at its peak, more than 40 ships, many planes and more than 6,000 men.

During the months of search, the Navy gave no hint it had any clues. Navy specialists have said since that the metal piece "had been evaluated as not being part of the Scorpion." But, they said, it was "the only clue we had," so the search went back over the area.

The Mizar had completed a monthlong search sweep and dropped anchor in the Azores for some crew rest when, on July 5, orders came to concentrate in the area where the metal piece had been found on June 27 or June 28.

First Clear Detection

It wasn't until Oct. 28, Buchanan said, that the Mizar picked up the first clear detection of the Scorpion's remains — what he called a "pretty" magnetometer reading and sonar contacts. This was confirmed by photography Oct. 30, he said.

The next day, Adm. Thomas J. Moorer, chief of naval operations, announced that "objects identified as portions of the hull of the submarine USS Scorpion have been located."

Teams of civilian oceanographers worked around the clock monitoring the ocean bottom from the belly of the 3,700-ton Mizar as it zigzagged over the suspect area at a speed of little more than one knot.

Buchanan said the Mizar's job when it reached the area where the Scorpion was last reported May 21 was to "find out what kind of ocean bottom we had."

NO CHARTS OF AREA

"There were no charts of the area. We didn't know if it was muddy or clear, or whether there were any sea mounts there," he said.

A sea mount is an underwater ridge or mountain presenting a possible danger to navigation, particularly submarine.

DETECTION GEAR

The 8-foot-long fish carries magnetometers, which detect the presence of metallic objects, and "side-looking sonar" to give technicians a sound picture of the bottom.

Fixed on the fish are three 35mm cameras, equipped with a special wide-angle lens illuminated by 200-watt stroboscopic lights mounted at each end of the rig. Buchanan said that throughout the entire search period, about 150,000 pictures were taken.

Since the location of the Scorpion, he said, about 10,000 pictures have been snapped and made available to a Navy court of inquiry investigating the loss of the submarine.

Electronic devices called transponders also were dropped to the ocean floor to mark the Scorpion's wreckage and enabled the Mizar to keep a fix on the location.

The three-quarter-inch cable connecting the search gear with the

Macomb, Archibald Danaugh, A. G. Whitney, William Thompson, Daniel LeRoy James Fulton and Mack, who was appointed agent for the syndicate.

Prior to its organization as The Pontiac Co., the syndicate's intent was to purchase lands adjacent to the Clinton (Huron) River in Macomb County to lay out a town there. Unforeseen events in the fall of 1818 changed their plans which led to the formation of The Pontiac Co.

Two major factors influenced the actions of The Pontiac Co. On May 1, 1818, President Monroe, by proclamation, authorized the first public sale of Michigan lands, to take place at the Detroit Council House on the first Mondays of July (July 6, 1818), September and November.

WIDELY ADVERTISED

This event was widely advertised in eastern papers: "The United States lands are sold in tracts of 160 acres, at $2 an acre, with a payment of one-fourth part of the purchase money at the time of sale, and a credit of five years for the balance."

The opportunity now offered to industrious and enterprising men, to lay the foundation of moderate fortunes does not often occur, and ought not to be neglected.

Prior to Monroe's authorization for the sale of Michigan lands, the wilderness beyond the immediate confines of Detroit was erroneously reported as a land of "ague and fever" . . . "not an acre in a hundred, if there be in a tract that would in any case admit of cultivation or if worth the expense of surveying . . . it is an area of swamps and lakes . . . which is probably near one-half the country . . . in between is sandy loam on which scarcely any vegetation grows, except small, scrubby oaks."

The 1818 opportunity to purchase land at $2 an acre stimulated interest in the backwoods country beyond Detroit, further encouraged by Lewis Cass, Michigan territorial governor, who owned a large farm tract in Detroit, facing the Detroit River and bounded on the east by present Cass Avenue. Two major exploring expeditions in the fall of 1818 completely changed the general impression of the interior.

One expedition into present Oakland County was recorded by Rev. John Monteith, a Protestant evangelist who came to the "foreign mission" of Detroit in 1818.

For some unknown reason he was "opportunely" to join the exploring party which included David C. McKinstry, Austin E. Wing, Benjamin Stead and Andrew C. Whiting, all later members of the Pontiac Co. syndicate. It appears Gov. Lewis Cass was also a member of the exploring group plus the publishers of the Detroit Gazette, John F. Sheldon and Ebenezer Read.

In a lengthy Gazette article, "A View of Some of the Lands in the Interior of Michigan," Sheldon and Read reported: "On the whole, with respect to the lands over which we traveled, and those generally within that distance of this place (Detroit), it may be said that a considerable portion of them are excellent, but most of them are good and the poorest section one-half the country . . . is cultivated with profit."

"Good water is another important article and we are able to say that we found this in tiac Co. on Nov. 5, followed by their purchase through Mack, their agent, of 1,280 acres of Oakland County land the following day, Nov. 6, 1818.

In his diary, Monteith reported they left Detroit on Monday, Oct. 19, 1818, having been detained "over the Sabbath" by a heavy rain but "the weather during the rest of the eight days of our journey was generally fair and healthy. The company seemed to be well satisfied with their explorations."

The eight-day journey would have returned the group to Detroit on Oct. 26 and their satisfaction with what they had seen substantiated by the fact of organization of The Pontiac Co. on Nov. 5, followed by their purchase through Mack, their agent, of 1,280 acres of Oakland County land the following day, Nov. 6, 1818.

In a paper on the history of Oakland County by the Hon. Thomas J. Drake, of Pontiac, read before the Wayne County Historical Society, March 9, 1872, Drake reported: "On these lands (Section 29 Wednesday Robert Shaw, DPW primarily) The Pontiac Co. laid out the village of Pontiac in 1818. On the south side of the river, and on the left side of Saginaw Street were the famous DPW men had been arguing camping grounds of the Indians, with the city over extended where all were accustomed to winter hours, which add a half stop on their way to and from Detroit. The point was well known to the Indians, and by Nov. 30 them called "Lapee" Saginaw Street was the ancient Indian trail between Detroit and the Saginaw-Mackinac country.

Livonia Dispute

LIVONIA (AP)—In what was believed a contract dispute, 33 employees of the Livonia Department of Public Works (DPW) failed to report for work Wednesday. Robert Shaw, DPW director, said there was no indication why the employees stayed out. On the south side of the river, and on the left side of Saginaw Street were the famous DPW men had been arguing camping grounds of the Indians, with the city over extended where all were accustomed to winter hours, which add a half stop on their way to and from Detroit. The point was well known to the Indians, and by Nov. 30

ANOTHER MAO? — After months of searching, film-makers have found someone to portray the role of Mao Tse-tung. Heiwa Tetsuo (left), a Japanese actor born in California. The portrait of Communist China's leader (right), illustrates the startling resemblance between the two men. Yama had to shave part of his head and practice a Chinese accent for the part.

County Vote Total Official —a Record

It's official. The turnout of voters in Oakland County in the Nov. 5 election set a record.

The Oakland County Board of Canvassers reported yesterday that 348,347 electors went to the polls to cast ballots in the presidential election.

This surpasses the previous record of 303,800 voters in the 1964 general election, which was 45,000 above the then-previous high.

The turnout represents 85 percent of the 411,000 voters registered in Oakland County, according to County Election Clerk Mabel Child.

The canvass of the votes, which took two weeks to complete, was made by a four-member board made up of Chairman Mrs. Sarah Disson of Royal Oak, Carlos Richardson of Waterford Township, Mrs. Hope Gorman of Pontiac and Mrs. Eileen Marz of Bloomfield Township.

No major errors were discovered.

Japan Alarmed Over U.S. Pick

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese press reports from Okinawa indicated concern today that the appointment of a new U.S. commissioner showed a more stern American policy toward Okinawa.

U.S. Embassy officials in Tokyo said the appointment of Lt. Gen. James B. Lampert was a normal military rotation. The Japanese Foreign Ministry also considered the move a normal periodic changeover.

The announcement of Lampert's appointment to replace Lt. Gen. Ferdinand T. Unger came 10 days after Okinawan voters chose as head of their limited government a man who advocates the speedy return of Okinawa to Japanese control and gradual closing of U.S. military bases there.

"Had the election not just taken place, the change of generals would have passed unnoticed," a U.S. Embassy official said.

Gives Good Account in Male-Oriented Field

By JEANNE NELSON

With beauty and brains as forerunners, can success be far behind?

From the pace she has already set, it wouldn't seem so for Carol Kobosh who looks like a model, thinks like an engineer and talks the most language of today's youth.

Already Carol has shown her colors in the male-dominated field of certified public accountants. In a two-year span, she has been elevated from junior to senior auditor by the national firm of Touche, Ross, Bailey and Smart. She is based in the firm's Detroit offices.

The slim, poised brunette first became interested in accounting when her math teachers at Farmington's Our Lady of Sorrows High School noticed her abilities in this field. Until then, she had toyed with the idea of becoming a biochemist or going into nursing.

When she won a year's scholarship to University of Detroit, she decided it was to be in the School of Finance, even over family objections.

The most popular feeling around the Farmington Road home in West Bloomfield Township at that time was that daughter, Carol was leading on dangerous ground thinking about a "man's career."

She did so well during her first year in college that she was able to earn her degree with scholarship funds for the next three years. It was evident even during college that Carol was headed for a male dominated future. Most of her classes contained a male-female ratio of 90 to one.

WRONG IMPRESSION

Now, cradled in the world of accounting, statistics stay pretty much the same. To some, accounting and poring over figures might seem a rather uninspiring type of work with long, lonesome hours.

"Not so," declares Carol, who adds that most of her time is spent outside the office in clients' facilities all over the state. "The human element is one of the most important factors in accounting," she says. "Being able to reason vocally with others is a prime consideration in this field."

While she is not averse to marriage, she comments that the main reason for women's lack of progress in accounting is due to the fact that they marry and leave before the normal succession of promotions come their way.

"There are no overnight successes in this business; it's a steady climb to the top."

Along with Carol's natural beauty assets (a rich mane of long, dark hair and huge green eyes), she is also something of an expert at dress.

Not only does she sew most of her clothes but designs them as well. Blessed with a long, lean figure, she makes the most of it with high-fashion inspired designs, usually simple in line but dramatically detailed.

How is she accepted in her work?

"Well, if there have been any clients who voiced apprehensions about my ability on the basis that I'm a woman, I haven't been made aware of them." Her status as a senior auditor, along with her youthfulness, so far have not caused any difficulties with fellow employees.

She admits that young women should not consider this field unless they are willing to work hard at it and to accept the long hours that come during the busy season.

CAREER ADVANTAGES

The plusses include excellent financial returns and the opportunity to travel and meet new people. Naturally, one of the fringe benefits is the lack of female competition.

Leisure hours may find Carol taking an active role in the National Association of Accountants. She is a team captain of the Detroit chapter. Another professional group to which she belongs, the National Association of Women Accountants, Detroit chapter, provided her college scholarship.

She never misses a session with the Wall Street Journal (economics are so important in her work), loves to swim and ice skate. Weekend dates often find her dancing the latest steps in local bistros. "Quiet dates for dinner are fun too," she says.

Lyn Nugent, 17 months old, salutes his father, airman Pat Nugent, just like his grandfather, President Johnson, showed him. Lyn's mother, Luci, holds him as the family is reunited in Honolulu Wednesday after nearly eight months of separation. Nugent is in Honolulu for five days rest and recuperation before returning to duty in South Vietnam.

Luci, Lyn Have Kiss and Salute for Pat's Arrival

By WILLIAM H. DONHAM

Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — Airman IC. Patrick J. Nugent was greeted with a hug and a kiss from his wife and a shy salute from his 17-month-old son Wednesday as they were reunited after nearly eight months.

The salute from son Lyn was President Johnson's idea, said Mrs. Nugent, the President's younger daughter.

And the hug and kiss, Well, said Luci, 21, she had not rehearsed anything to say to her husband, 25, who arrived with about 100 other U.S. servicemen on leave from Vietnam.

Asked about their plans for his week-long stay in the islands, Luci said: "It depends on what my husband wants to do. He's the boss of the family."

Holding Lyn, she stood in a double line at Ft. Derussy in Waikiki with other servicemen's wives waiting to see their husbands.

Nugent arrived on a gray military bus from Honolulu International Airport and walked down the long line looking for his family.

SALUTE

After his parents embraced, Lyn, dressed in a model of his dad's uniform, gave his salute.

The Nugents are staying at the estate of the late industrialist Henry Kaiser. This is where President Johnson stayed twice this year during talks with President Chung Hwe Park of South Korea and President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

Mrs. Nugent, dressed in a red blouse and a white pleated mini-skirt, said she wasn't sure her son recognized his father. But she added, "I can say he certainly is fond of him."

Blonde Gets Interesting Invitation but Worries About Tongues Wagging

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a single, attractive blonde. I've recently received a very interesting and tempting invitation from a gentleman friend. (I'll call him Hector.) Hector has been divorced for 15 years and is fairly well-to-do. He's always been a perfect gentleman with me.

Hector has invited me to go on a Caribbean cruise with him. All expenses paid. He assures me that all he wants is a charming companion for dining and dancing. He has guaranteed me a separate cabin and my own key. If I go, people will talk, but why should I pass up this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity just because of some wagging tongues?

ABBY

N. N. WESTPORT

DEAR N. N.: People have been wagging their tongues since Hector was a pup, but if your Hector has none of the other canine qualities found in most pups, go ahead. All you have to lose is your reputation.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I fight all the time about this one thing. Is it all right for a married woman to go to a nice, clean barroom for a drink and pizza with a married girl friend if they get home at a reasonable hour, like 11 o'clock?

The other night my girl friend and I went shopping at 8 p.m. after which we went for a pizza and a drink. At 10 o'clock my husband stormed in like a madman and practically dragged me out of the place. We fought all night. He claims we looked like a couple of pick-ups. Abby, we were at a table all alone talking to each other. What do you think?

ANGRY

DEAR ANGRY: I think if respectable women (single or married) wish to go unescorted to a RESPECTABLE place and they mind their own business, they need not be concerned about "looking like pickups."

DEAR ABBY: What do you think about people who read while they eat? I recently married a woman with two teen-aged daughters, and at every meal all three women bring their favorite reading material to the dinner table and read while they eat. Not a word is uttered other than pass this or that. What do you say?

NO NEWS

DEAR NO: I say that mealtime is probably the only time a family can sit down together and exchange ideas and enjoy conversation. To read in the presence of others is rude. It's like saying, "I may as well entertain myself. The company is pretty dull." (P.S. Perhaps YOU should bring an etiquette book to the table and read it aloud.)

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. My mother. I am only 15 and since I have been a kid, my mother has pounded into me the virtues of honesty and truthfulness. I used to lie to get myself out of trouble, and now my mother is doing it.

Mother is overweight and my dad loves her very much and is concerned about her weight. Mom is supposed to be on a diet, but she cheats. When the ice cream "disappears" she says it melted on the counter. She eats cake and cookies and says, "It fell on the floor and the dog ate it."

When she buys a dress or gets her hair fixed and I ask her how much it costs, she will tell me one thing, and when Dad asks her, the prices will immediately go down a couple of dollars.

Abby, please print this for parents who do not practice what they preach. My mom never misses your column.

UPSET

CONFIDENTIAL TO SAM: No, I am not a "nut" on the subject, but I still think that anyone who smokes is advertising the fact that he has money to burn.

Tiny white flowers dot Helga's double-face cotton corddress. Front tabbed with buttons, the fit and flare dress mores freely with its swing pleated skirt. White cuffs and a white flower add crisp touches to an elegant spring dress. Shown in black white and navy white cotton at the California Fashion Creators' press preview in Los Angeles.

OU Singers Set Menotti Concert

The Oakland University Singers and Chamber Players will present Gian-Carlo Menotti's madrigal fable "The Unicorn, The Gorgon and The Manticore" on Saturday in the University's Dodge Hall Auditorium.

The concert, open to the public, will begin at 8:15 p.m.

Less known than his operatic masterpieces, Menotti's "The Unicorn" was composed as a madrigal fable in 1958 employing a chorus, ten dancers, and nine instruments.

John Doyaras, director of choral activities at Oakland University, will conduct the concert version.

There is no admission charge for the concert, which will be the first performance by the OU Singers in the auditorium, located in the new Dodge Hall of Engineering.

Christmas Walkers to Tour Several Homes in December

By SHIRLEY GRAY

It takes a brave gal to invite a busload of sightseers into her home in slushy December weather, but if it's for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and she's in the Junior Women's Association — why, there's nothing to it.

Seven Birmingham-Bloomfield Hills women have offered to open their homes for the Junior Women's Association's 1968 Christmas Walk on Dec. 13.

On the 12th, Christmas Walkers will tour homes in Grosse Pointe.

Busses will shuttle Birmingham-Bloomfield women to Grosse Pointe from here, also taking them to each of the homes on the tour Thursday. On Friday the same arrangement will get Grosse Pointe women out here and back.

Mrs. Garrett F. Scollard and Mrs. R. Lawrence Smith are chairman for this area. Patron chairman is Mrs. Robert Scott Ketchum.

Luncheon cochairman for Thursday at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club, Friday at Bloomfield Open Hunt, is Mrs. Roger Page of Bloomfield Hills.

Following are the homes in the Birmingham-Bloomfield half of the Christmas Walk tour, which is a benefit for the Symphony's maintenance fund:

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Jolgreen, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas S. Dalgleish, both on Indian Mound Road in Birmingham.

In Bloomfield Hills, the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Clark W. Pearson, Guilford Road; Mr. and Mrs. E. Bud Wittus, Winlane Drive; Mr. and Mrs. Terry McGraw, Pon Valley; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Strickland, Country Club Drive; and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Cryderman, Standish Court.

Mrs. Edsel Ford Aids Orchestra

DETROIT (AP) — Mrs. Edsel B. Ford, widow of the second President of Ford Motor Co., has given $750,000 to the Detroit Symphony Orchestra for an endowment fund to secure the orchestra's future.

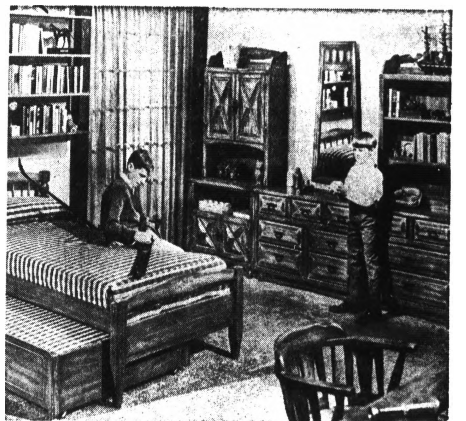

Announcement of the gift was made Tuesday night at a gathering of 60 persons at the Birmingham home of Simon E. Knudsen, the current Ford president. Robert B. Semple, president of the Detroit Symphony, and Mrs. Knudsen are cochairmen of a campaign to obtain $10 million.

Mrs. Ford's gift is her second to the symphony and matches her first gift in 1964. They are the largest any individual has given to the symphony.

Her late husband was the son of auto pioneer Henry Ford.

The two gifts actually will amount to $2 million for the symphony, since the Ford Foundation has been supplementing gifts to the symphony's endowment fund on a one-for-three "matching" basis since 1964.

The gifts increase the symphony's endowment fund to $3.5 million. Several other gifts have been received, including $250,000 pledged by symphony board chairman John B. Ford in 1964.

You can't debunk this.

It's the truth. More red-blooded American boys like bunk beds than any other kind. Our polls show how it and your boys know it. These are made of indestructible oak grown from finer acorns. Strong enough to withstand any attack 'til your boy is a grown man. Trundle Bed, $119.95; Hutch, $92.95; Storage Cabinet, $79.95; Triple Dresser Base, $119.95; Open Hutch, $66.00; Commode, $49.95.

Why Grow Old?

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Don't be left behind! We must keep up to date with our information and know-how if we are to be most successful in a career, in or out of our home, or in life generally. This is much more difficult today because so many more miraculous things are happening so much more rapidly.

Hardly a day passes without some new and exciting information coming from the research laboratories concerning nutrition and health. Plastic surgeons do wonder in youthifying faces and also correcting mutilations of all kinds. Hearts are being transplanted and one disease after another is being conquered. Even more exciting, they are learning more all the time about how to prolong the youthful portion of life, how to delay aging.

Things are moving faster than it takes to go from high heels to low heels or from straight hair to curls! Communication satellites roam the heavens, sending out broadcasts. Tel-Star is perhaps the best known of these. We are exploring the outer spaces, and today's airplanes make those of a few years ago look like toys.

I understand that in the future we will have housekeeping robots. We will be able to program them with any household duties we wish them to perform, whether it be window washing or mopping the floor or dusting, or whatever. I would just as soon have a little time to become accustomed to that idea before one materializes in my kitchen or living room!

The cosmetic industry has also produced its miracles. Hair coloring and care of the skin have become sciences. Today we have so many effective products to use. Makeup is now an art with many varied items with which to make ourselves so much better looking.

In many ways this is a frightening, frustrating, hectic and sad time. However, it is probably one of the most exciting eras in history. Anyone who can get in a rut today must have been born that way. Actually, that is not entirely true!

Often folks become so tied down with their problems and stresses that they are more or less unaware of what is going on outside of their own small sphere of crucial personal experience. This is such a mistake.

If you happen to be in a rut why not up-date not only your clothes, makeup and hairdo, but your outlook?

The Arthur R. Bul-ton of Lake Sherwood Drive, Commerce Township, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol, to Dennis Colegrove, son of the Jesse Colegroves of Milford. The bride-elect, a freshman at Ferris State College, and her fiance, who attends Lawrence Institute of Technology, are planning to wed in July.

Gals Prefer Good Decor

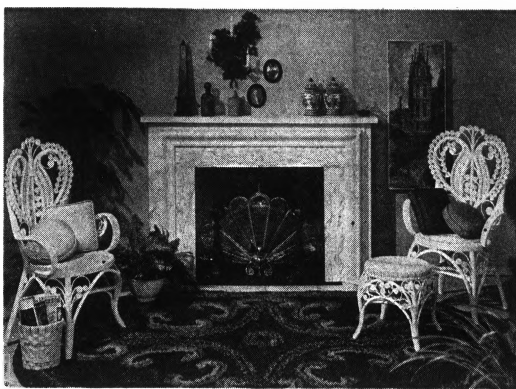

Today's young wives prefer to do more with less in decorating first homes.

Unlike a generation ago, brides now avoid hand-me-downs to fill up rooms and opt in favor of a smattering of furniture that serves as a highly personal statement of taste — present and to come, when budgeting is less of an immediacy.

Because present newlyweds are of the times, they are not willing to settle for second-hands or second-bests.

A little island that is well-decorated with plenty of floor-sitting room to fill "someday" is more preferred than a roomful of hodge-podge furnishings that go nowhere.

Rather than accepting make-do furniture to save money, young wives prefer to keep within the budget by limiting purchases to a choice few — a treasured painting, a few chairs and a smashing area rug which pulls the room together.

Baroque beat dramatizes the fireside with a new area rug from "The Room Makers" group by Regal Rugs, Inc. "Classical Scroll" is a room-lifting oval with C-scrolls encircling a sculptured star center in bold, tri-toned contrasts of color. Designed by Marie Creamer, Regal's director of design and research, it is tufted in 100 per cent Caprolan nylon. Line available locally.

OCC Receives Grant for Nursing Program

Oakland Community College has received a grant of $51,335 in extensive clinical training as partial payment of a $113,316 program with Pontiac General Hospital and St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, serving as cooperating institutions.

The 48-week session is funded under the provisions of the Manpower Development Training Act (MDTA).

The first class of 50 students began in September and will extend through August 1969. A second class of 50 will begin in March 1969 and extend through February 1970, according to Mrs. Kelmenson.

The first 24 weeks of the program cover pre-clinical training, and one day per week is spent "in the field" at Lourdes Nursing Home, Pontiac; Crittenton Hospital, Rochester; or Oakland County Sanatorium.

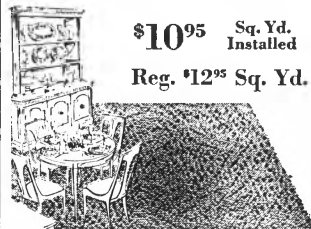

MDTA is a joint state and federal sponsored program to train adults in job areas where there are shortages in skilled personnel. At the conclusion of the 48-week Practical Nurse Program, the students will be prepared to take a State Board Examination for licensure as a practical nurse.

Shampoo Often

Glowing hair means clean hair. Sometimes that once-a-week shampoo is just not enough. If your hair is the "in the field" at Lourdes Nursing Home, Pontiac; Crittenton Hospital, Rochester; or Oakland County Sanatorium, it needs it.

Child Builds Good Image With Help

Children are constantly building mental images of themselves as persons. These pictures will likely affect attitudes about people and life in general, Rosalie Hawley, home economist with the Cooperative Extension Service says. Certain experiences help children create satisfying pictures.

The home economist says children develop trust in themselves as persons by feeling loved. Avoid discussing them with others when they are present, she suggests. Raising doubts about themselves could give them some anxious moments.

Children are constantly testing things. Don't expect them to just look and not touch. Help them gain confidence by allowing them to explore, Mrs. Hawley says.

"Sometimes children need help in succeeding in their tasks. But it isn't necessary to protect them from every small failure. Giving them help when needed and withholding help now and then will allow children to build confidence," the home economist says.

NEED RESPECT

"Appreciation, comfort, and support in times of need help children become more self-confident. They learn respect by having respect shown them. Teaching them to stand up for their rights helps them gain confidence."

The right kind of support can greatly reduce children's fears. Become sensitive to their problems. And try to see things the way they do.

Children who can master physical skills or feel they are behaving in a "grown-up" way are more apt to view themselves in a favorable light. And this self-confidence will give them a better outlook on life, Mrs. Hawley concludes.

If you wish to receive similar Family Living information free of charge each month, send your name and address to Mrs. Rosalie Hawley, MSU Cooperative Extension Service, 155 North Saginaw, Pontiac, Michigan 48058.

2 Miscarry Their Babies in London

LONDON (AP) — Beatle John Lennon's Japanese mistress, Yoko Ono, today lost the baby she and Lennon were expecting in February.

The Queen Charlotte Maternity Hospital announced that the 34-year-old sculptress and maker of underground movies had a miscarriage this morning. A hospital spokesman said Lennon was at her bedside and her condition was satisfactory.

Lennon, 28, has said he and Miss Ono would marry when they are free, but there has been no word of divorce action by her husband. The girl friend of another British pop music star, Marianne Faithfull, also suffered a miscarriage Wednesday night in a London nursing home.

Case No. G-554

Both Guilty in Affair

By GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE G-554: Mark T., aged 14, is very troubled. He comes from a cultured background, for his uncle is a successful Presbyterian clergyman and his dad is a popular business man. Mark telephoned to see if I could see him in person. He sounded so dejected and unhappy that I stopped writing this week's series of Case Records so I could give him an hour.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I am so miserable I don't know what to do," and tears actually came into his eyes.

Then he told me that his father and mother were planning to divorce.

"But Mother says she will stay till I graduate from high school," Mark added, disconsolately.

"She argues and screams at my dad and I have overheard them far into the night.

"For she claims he has had an affair with a girl about half my mother's age.

"So she makes him sleep in a different bedroom and is hardly civil to him, except in public.

"Dr. Crane, I don't want them to get a divorce but I don't know what else to do or say to stop it."

"And it worries me so much that I can't concentrate on my books, so last term I dropped from a 'B' rating to a 'C'."

Mark's mother is at least 50 per cent to blame for this affair her husband had with a younger woman due to her sins of omission.

And that is usually true of most wives, even though they regard themselves as 100 per cent innocent of any wrongdoing!

Like most wives, she didn't care much about marital relations, so she shunned and avoided and evaded them as much as possible.

Meanwhile, she grew fat and elephantine.

But even a young man, full of virile eroticism, has trouble waxing romantic over a fat woman!

So how do you waddling older wives expect a middle-aged husband to be able to function?

"But I'd just as soon he didn't function!" you may protest.

Yet the average male is created both psychologically and physiologically to want to function erotically.

If you stodgy wives rebuff him, then it is quite natural that he turns to other more stimulating females.

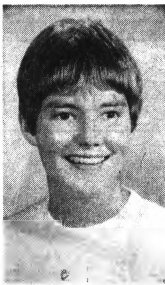

This usually means a younger girl, for they are generally more slender, perfumed and coquettish.

Since men were endowed by God Almighty to be polygamous creatures, it is doubly difficult even for the average, honorable husband to remain faithful to his wife, though she isn't stodgy and evasive.

So when he finds himself yoked in monogamy to a different, critical mate, his basic erotic nature drives his thoughts toward an outside paramour.

Remember, too, that men distinguish between sex versus love.

They can still love their wife, yet be unable to function with her!

The engagement of their daughter, Sandra Kay, to Gary Frederick Currier, is announced by the L. H. Ahlgrims of Orchard Lake. Miss Ahlgrim has attended Michigan State University. Her fiancé, son of the Frederick Curriers of Arlington Street, White Lake Township, attends Lawrence Institute of Technology. June vows are slated.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Surgeons at Johns Hopkins Medical Center's "gender identity clinic" have been performing sex-change operations since July 1966.

The program, first of its kind in the United States, was undertaken to help transsexuals — persons of one sex who feel behave and dress as a member of the opposite sex.

Both men and women have undergone operations at the clinic.

Dr. John E. Hoopes, a plastic surgeon who helped launch the program at Johns Hopkins, said soon after the program began: "After exhaustively reviewing the available literature and discussing the problem with people knowledgeable in this area, I arrived at the unavoidable conclusion that these people need and deserve help."

The doctors at Johns Hopkins say they have encountered no opposition to their program from religious groups.

It is not known how many persons have undergone sex-change surgery at the clinic. However, it was reported at one point that the clinic examined only two patients a month and that it had a long waiting list.

Applicants receive a thorough physical and mental examination and only those who show no signs of psychosis and

Jeane Dixon Will Appear

Jeane Dixon, famed forecaster from Washington, D. C. will make her first public appearance in Detroit at the Ford Auditorium, Dec. 4 at 8:30 p.m.

Her program will include remarks on her inspiration from which she makes her well-known predictions. More than half of the evening will be spent answering questions submitted by those ordering tickets in advance of the performance.

Cosponsors of her appearance are Pilot Club of Detroit, business and professional women's service club, and the Detroit Free Press.

All proceeds from "An Evening With Jeane Dixon" will go to two especially designated charities. Mrs. Dixon will receive no fee, honorarium or payment for her performance that evening.

The funds will be divided evenly with one check made out to Children to Children, Inc., a children's hospital outside Washington, D. C. established and supported by Mrs. Dixon.

The other half of the proceeds will be earmarked by the Pilot Club of Detroit for purchase of a kidney machine for the Michigan Kidney Foundation. The expensive life-saving machine will be used at Wayne County General Hospital where extensive research and training on kidney diseases and transplants are carried out.

Tickets are available at the Free Press Public Service Bureau or by mail to Pilot Club of Detroit, Inc., P. O. Box 146, St. Clair Shores, Mich. 48083. Prices are $5, $4 and $3, and checks should be made out to Pilot Club of Detroit. All orders must be accompanied by a self-addressed stamped return envelope.

Joan Bennett Designs Suit

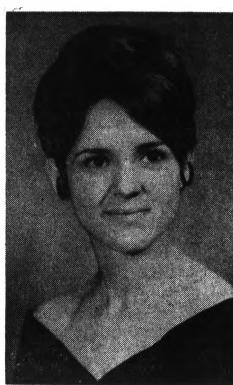

Handknits play leading roles on the fashion scene — and some knits have a special star quality.

This trim suit certainly has it, and that's why it's worn by actress Joan Bennett.

Miss Bennett's fashion sense has served her well during her exciting career. Now starring in the daytime television drama, Dark Shadows, she has appeared in over 70 motion pictures.

Miss Bennett's preference for daytime clothes that combine comfort and glamor was the guideline for this suit, designed for her and all knitters who want mature, sophisticated patterns.

The suit is flattering to a wide range of sizes — from slender young women to the fuller figure. The code.

Interlochen Wins Again

INTERLOCHEN — The National Music Camp again has scored in the competition for performance and promotion of American music at summer festivals, a program sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs.

This year, the second of the competition, it has been given one of two honorable mention awards after having won first prize, $500, in the initial program in 1967.

Announcement of the award has come to Lyman Starr, Interlochen's director of special events, from Dr. Marion M. Richter, of Scarsdale, N.Y., chairman of the federation's award program. A total of 394 compositions by 246 American composers were performed during the 1968 camp season.

Winner of the $500 award — which is given by ASCAP in support of the federation — is the MacDowell Festival of American Music at New London, Conn.

Sharing honorable mention with Interlochen is the friends to warmer climes for the winter, Mrs. Sam Messing camp at Moscow, Idaho. Winner of Rosshire Court and Mrs. ners were decided by a committee headed by Joseph Bloch farewell party Wednesday for pianist and faculty member at Mrs. Lester Wolfe in Mrs. the Juilliard School of Music Avadenka's Chippewa Road Mrs. Maurice Honigman, president of the national home.

Joan Bennett plays a leading fashion role in a smart town and country suit that you can knit. Directions for the suit are available for sizes 10 to 16 and 38, 40 and 42.

Hungary Sticks to Own, Less-Heralded Liberal Course

By HANNS NEUBOURG
BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Hungarian leaders, reluctant allies of Moscow in halting the Czechoslovak liberalization drive, seem determined to pursue their policies of relative freedom at home. Western observers agree that prospects are good that they will manage. Fears have been widespread that the crisis might herald an end to the reform course which 12 years after the bloody uprising, has given Hungary the most Western look in the Soviet orbit.

On the contrary, said the party newspaper Nepszabadsag, the Czechoslovak crisis has confirmed the Hungarian party in its conviction that "There is no other policy than that which it has pursued so far."

That road, it emphasized, was in many aspects "quite different" from the Soviet and other Communist models "because only by being so was it able to approach the vital questions of our society with a truly Marxist attitude."

Hungarian Communists insist the party's course is as liberal as that of the Czechoslovak leadership. The economic reform is claimed to go beyond that of Prague in several points.

How then does Hungary make the Soviet Union give its green light?

In a speech, Premier Jeno Fock gave one answer:

"An important role in the success achieved so far by our economic reform is played by the knowledge that we do not live in a vacuum. We took care that international public opinion, primarily the Socialist community of which we are members, should understand more or less correctly what is happening in our country and what is more, should possibly agree with it."

A lower Communist official privately explained another secret of Hungary's success:

"We have four Soviet divisions in our country. That makes a lot of difference. If the Czechs had offered last July to have a couple of Soviet army units stationed at their western border they may have well gotten away even with press freedom."

NO SHIFT SEEN
Western diplomats here see no indication of a shift in Soviet policy toward Hungary. Some think party chief Janos Kadar can claim personal credit for continued success in the tactics of caution.

Kadar, say some sources, has managed to build a special relationship with Moscow and is one of the few to whom the Kremlin men are willing to listen.

"He had the confidence of Nikita Khrushchev and somehow he has managed to convince his successors, too, of his complete loyalty," one analyst said. "That has given him lots of room to move."

Vincent van Gogh, whose works of art command extremely high prices today, never sold one of his paintings during his lifetime.

"He knows how to handle the Russians," a Communist said. "He knows it better than Alexander Dubcek who spent years in Russia attending the party academy."

In the Czechoslovak crisis, he took the position of a mediator. The Soviets gave him the go-ahead for direct meetings with the liberal leaders at a time the Russians already were preparing the invasion.

With the rift in the world Communist movement widening in the wake of the invasion, the Soviets may need a broker like him.

Surgeons, Engineers Unite to Make Tools for Medicine

Newspapers and radios were showered with worried letters when Hungarian units joined troops of the four hard-line Warsaw Pact member countries in the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

"They asked whether this will mean a shift in policy," a Communist editor said. "In any way this concern was a massive support and a proof that we have been on the right way."

ECONOMIC REFORM

Party leaders readily responded with assurances of LONDON (UPI)—Only six months after it was founded, a new British organization tapping the skills of surgeons and engineers to produce new tools for medicine is already in business.

The "business," is the Bath Institute of Medical Engineering—a charity under the presidency of an eminent British scientist, Sir Barnes Wallis.

The idea is to coordinate the activities of manufacturing companies, medical people and Martin's Hospital at Bath, in the Bath University of whose grounds the new Technology in applying advanced technology to medicine.

Individual companies will work on technology approved by the institute, which will then evaluate the prototypes from its highly advantageous situation in the grounds of a leading hospital.

TO BRIDGE A GAP

The institute exists to bridge a gap that thwarts some of the best medical and technical brains—the one between the surgeon who knows what is needed to improve the lot of his

Kenneth Lloyd Williams, consultant surgeon to St. Martin's Hospital at Bath, in whose grounds the new technology in applying advanced technology to medicine.

There he failed but on transferring to Bath, he unearthed "a hotbed of ideas" in a city which, although having a population of only 80,000, has medical facilities to serve an area of 400,000.

LOCAL PRIME MOVER

Prime mover for the scheme was a local engineer, Bevan Horstmann, vice chairman of the Horstmann Gear Co.,

precision engineering company in the city which already has turned two ideas of Bath surgeons into new pieces of medical technology.

One is a blood warmer, a simple way of raising refrigerated blood to body temperature (but no higher, for blood is very easily damaged) in an emergency in the operating room. Normal practice is to prewarm several pints of blood in readiness and, as one surgeon remarked, "with blood at 15 pounds (536) a pint, that can be wasteful."

Horstmann plans to be making 50 blood warmers a week by December.

The second idea comes from Horstmann's experiences when his wife was in labor three years ago. Bath's leading gynecologist and anaesthetist attended the birth, but Horstmann was appalled by the homemade equipment they brought along.

The technique, the idea of Dr. Roger J. Beppard, the anaesthetist, offered much closer control over the very powerful gas halothane, and reduced the amounts needed to something like one-fortieth.

The first gap will be filled by a vaporizer Horstmann developed.

The second requirement will be filled by a monitor Beppard developed which, as he puts it, "allows us to take the patient's blood pressure right down into his boots."

About 1.8 million persons are employed in the nation's grocery stores.

Foreign Press Cautions Nixon

LONDON (AP) — A Japanese newspaper advised President Richard M. Nixon to seek closer ties with Red China. A West German paper counseled him against protectionism in trade. A British newspaper warned him not to "repeat stock responses in the manner of Mr. Dulles."

NIXON

These views turned up overseas this week on what direction America may take under its new president.

The Japanese newspaper Yomiuri said: "The security of Asia cannot be maintained by the policy of confrontation based mainly on military power. This has been made clear by the Vietnam war.

"We think, therefore, that the fundamental solution lies only in the patient efforts for rapprochement and coexistence with China and for improvement of the economic levels of the Asian countries."

UNFORTUNATE

The West German daily trade paper Handelsblatt thought it "unfortunate that Nixon has brought his victory by promises to the protectionists."

"The indirect consequences of a release into protectionism would be disastrous," it said. "The only safe method to counter American protectionism is resolute cooperation of the non-Communist industrial states with Washington in an effort to solve the American balance of payments problems and reform the world monetary system. Perhaps even Paris will go along."

The Guardian in England urged Nixon to remember two things in calling for strengthening the North Atlantic Treaty alliance:

"First, that most of the hard-line Eastern Europe regimes are pleased with his tougher stance. A return to the old line-up of power blocs would help them to justify the invasion (of Czechoslovakia) and would further stifle liberalism in Eastern Europe. More subtly by Mr. Nixon would help them less.

"Secondly, that an American Defense Department report has said the West's security may be less reliable. Mr. Nixon should study the complexity of this before repeating stock responses in the manner of Mr. Dulles," a reference to John Foster Dulles, secretary of state during the Eisenhower administration.

Between 1947 and 1964 there were 8,763 unidentified flying objects sighted by the United States Air Force.

19 Americans Killed in Viet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nineteen servicemen killed in action in the Vietnam war have been named in the latest Defense Department casualty list. The list includes four men from the Midwest.

Killed in action:

KANSAS — SSG. 4 James G. Hornbrey, 24, Kansas City, Mo.
MISSOURI — PFC. Larry J. Weissenberg, 21, St. Louis.
MISSOURI — 1st Lt. Eugene D. Hill, 24, St. Louis.
WISCONSIN — SSG. 4 Larry R. LaRue, 24, Wausau.

M43 Widening

LANSING (AP) — The State Highway Department will take bids Dec. 4 on 11 highway projects totaling an estimated $1.7 million. Largest of the projects is a $200,000 widening and paving job on M-43 in Eaton County.

U.N. Has Last Word in Flags

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — "Vexillology" is the science of flags, and no one is more concerned about it than the United Nations which invented the word.

Nobody has more flags to worry about than the United Nations. The number of them that flap almost daily in front of this international enclave in New York rose to 126 this week with addition of an eight-color standard for the newest member state, tiny Equatorial Guinea.

Working from a black and white sketch with the colors written in, U.N. vexillologists and a Manhattan flag manufacturing company turned out the new flag for Equatorial Guinea in little more than a week.

Few of that country's 250,000 citizens, who achieved independence from Spain last month, have seen their new flag. But with its bright stripes, silver emblem and gold stars, it's guaranteed to raise lumps in the throats of vexillologists the world over.

Vexillology was invented by the U.N.'s terminology unit, according to Nathaniel Abelson, head of the U.N. library's map department and a leading vexillologist. He acknowledges someone in Massachusetts came up with the same word about the same time.

"We throw it around with great abandon at the United Nations and have a lot of fun with it because no one knows what it means," Abelson said.

"You know—people say 'what do you do?' and I say 'I'm a vexillologist.' Or we talk about the 'vexillologic explosion.' With so many countries today you have to have someone who knows about it. I just grabbed the bit in my teeth and can't seem to get rid of it."

Life was simpler in 1946 when the United Nations started life with 51 members. Now with 126, it takes about eight U.N. guards half an hour just to raise all those flags.

Uneasy Over Nixon, Japan Near Election

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister Eisaku Sato seeks another two-year mandate from his party Wednesday to lead a Japan made uneasy by the election of Richard M. Nixon as president of the United States.

The handsome Liberal Democrat—he has been compared to the aggressively male stars of the traditional Kabuki stage—wants a third term as president of the ruling party, which automatically will give him another leg on the prime ministership he took over in 1964 from the late Hayato Ikeda.

He is being challenged by the party's elder statesman, Shinobu Muro, and the saturnine, dry-humored former foreign minister, Takeo Miki. Their battle cry is: "We need a change."

All three are concerned about the possibility that the new U.S. president will demand more from Japan in military-economic leadership of Asia, a role they are not prepared to shoulder.

SPELLING IT OUT
Sato, 67, spelled out his position Nov. 7 when, announcing his candidacy, he said he could not accept Nixon's blueprint for an Asia whose security depends on Japan or an Asia in which the Japanese take a preponderant role.

If the Japanese are reluctant to dip more than a tentative toe into the stream of Asian security, the Americans are partly to blame. A U.S.-sponsored post-war constitution outlawed war forever as an instrument of Japan's foreign policy. Under it, Japan maintains a modest self-defense establishment, permits no Japanese soldiers to go abroad.

Sato cited this in commenting on Nixon's ideas for a U.S. disengagement from an Asia guaranteed by Japan. Japanese say that having conquered Asia once, they feel they are unwelcome militarily where their troops once held sway, even though 23 years have elapsed since the end of World War II.

Japan's economic foot-dragging is less easy to explain. Now the third most affluent nation on earth in gross national production—GNP—it has a large favorable balance of trade with the United States, its biggest trade partner. Under Lyndon Johnson and the earlier Kennedy administration, the United States used kid gloves and muted diplomacy to suggest that Japan should loosen the restrictions it continues to put on U.S. and world imports and lend a hand in easing the U.S. aid burden in Southeast Asia.

SPECIAL PROBLEMS

Japan's reply to these pressures has been that it has special problems at home and is doing the best it can, that though the GNP is high, its social structure is weak, ranking 21st among the nations in standard of living. What it does not say is that little or nothing is being done to correct this situation.

Liberal Democrats now fear that Nixon—representative of a party historically known for protectionism—will be less tolerant of Japanese excuses, giving greater rein to those Americans who insist on restricting Japanese trade.

Irate American businessmen, here say Japanese traders are trying to have the best of both worlds: Avoiding liberalization at home while crying "protectionism" whenever their partners insist on equal treatment.

Besides the economic situation, whoever is prime minister will face some unsettling problems. Japan, like many others, is caught up in youthful unrest. In half a hundred universities, students are smashing windows, battling the police, kidnapping their professors, staging strikes for a variety of reasons. The overriding disillusionment is with the low standard—and lack of integrity—of higher education.

COMPETING FACTIONS

The more spectacular public demonstrations are spearheaded by competing factions of the big Zengakuren student association, intent on proving, through violence, that they are best qualified to lead. Helmed, wielding staves and throwing paving stones, these youths have affronted law-respecting citizens with their wholesale tactics of mass destruction. The government, at first hesitant, recently invoked the riot act to deal with them; it seems unlikely, however, that authorities will succeed in curbing them.

The prime minister also will have to cope with an alarmingly swift rise in the cost of living: up 4.5 per cent in October; pollution in the big cities, a housing shortage, overcrowding in public transportation, astonishingly high taxes and wage increases lagging behind living costs.

Another big problem will be the U.S.-Japan security treaty, which comes up for renewal possibly automatic—in 1970. Opposition Socialists, Communists, Democratic Socialists and Komeito—Clean Government—parties are against its continuation without being explicitly clear why.

Under the treaty the United States guarantees Japan's security against attack and assumes much of the burden of Japan's security arrangements, a situation which has permitted Japan to surge ahead economically without the anchor chains of enormous defense expenditures.

A new synthetic food, designed as a dietary supplement for underfed people is called Batina seed, composed of cereal flour, toasted legume flours, wheat germ, dehydrated yeast and vitamin and mineral supplements.

Firehouse Pole Has Its Critics

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—To slide or not to slide? That is the question city and fire department officials are asking.

Thomas Lewinsohn, city personnel director, said the use of traditional sliding poles in two-story fire stations is not worth the injury rate. He estimated one fireman a month is hurt while sliding down a pole.

But Fire Director James Holloran thinks poles are safer than stairs.

Chief Holloran has a compromise suggestion. He said, "I'll ask the city budget boys if they will pay for installing escalators."

Nude Movement Getting Unbareable?

LONDON (AP)—For the shivering British it looks like a cold Christmas. Everything's coming up nude.

You buy the kids a pop record. Along with the disc they get a poster showing John Lennon, Beatle, naked but for his wire-rimmed glasses.

Girl-friend Yoko Ono is nude in bed beside him. Way over in the corner is Beatle Paul McCartney, nude in a bathroom, strategic areas concealed behind a pillar.

You take your Aunt Edna to the theater and it's nudes again. Male nudes at The Comedy, female nudes all over town, and nudes of all varieties at the Shaftesbury in "Hair."

"A raving success," said the Daily Mail.

NUDE IN WESTERN

As for the movies, now we are promised the hard-living, red-haired Irishman Richard Harris in a western. He will be nude, just like his horse.

Now for the girliest art show in London—the subway. Not just the miniskirted stenographers, bare-thighed in the morning gloom, but the ads in the escalators.

Girls in profusion, seldom wearing more than a pair of tights. And the odd thing is that the stuff they advertise is aimed not at men but at women.

Tom Armstrong, an advertising executive, explained: "A woman looking at a picture of a nude girl is in fact admiring her own body. What we want women to think as they look at the picture is: If I bathe with that soap I'll look like that girl."

BACKLASH COMING?

From another adman, Peter Stillwell: "Inhibitions have gone. Women are prouder of their bodies than they've ever been. We haven't come to the end yet by a long way."

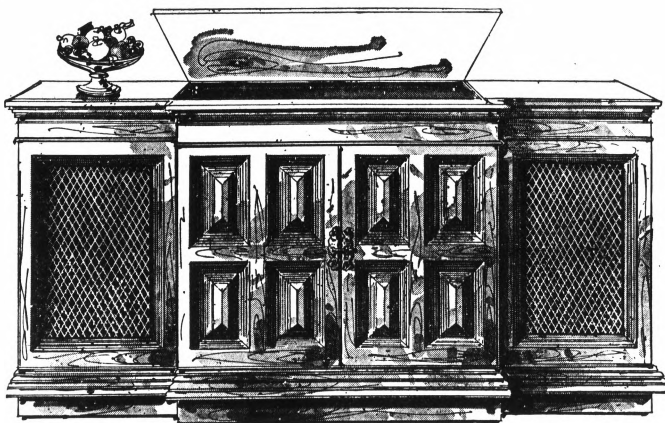

Th backlash may be coming. Record distributors meet in London next week to decide what to do about the Beatles album and its Lennon-McCartney-Ono exposure.

His spokesman, Christopher Foss, said: "One can't afford not to stock a Beatles album."

"But they are forcing retailers to look to their morals or their profits."

"One could understand it if an unknown artist did this to gain notoriety, but this is ridiculous."

A Turkey Feast For The Holidays

A turkey feast makes the arrival of the holiday season official. Best dishes, best linen, and best of all in its place of honor is the turkey itself!

Certain foods traditionally belong in the holiday menu. Turkey, pumpkin and mincemeat are among the "musts" but they need not always appear in the same familiar ways. For example, instead of in its usual finale position as pie, try pumpkin in the first course as Chilled Pumpkin Potage. Let the turkey itself sport a new fashion garnish with Lime-Glazed Peaches. Mincemeat also wears a new look in this caky-pudding recipe.

Fresh Baked Bread Butter

with Lemon Hard Sauce

When shopping for this feast, homemakers have a special treat waiting for them at the poultry case. Swift & Company, famous for the Butterball Turkey, now offers the exciting new concept of "deep basting" for ready-to-stuff frozen birds. A special self-basting mixture was added deep inside where hand basting could never reach, into the meat itself. The resulting turkey is more tender and juicy than ever. It means more delicious results for cooks who know all about cooking and especially, for those who don't!

A guide to follow for the size turkey needed for the feast is to allow 1½ pounds per person of the frozen ready-to-stuff turkey. This amount will provide generous servings and there will be enough left for snacks and favorite dishes that call for roast turkey.

Complete, up-dated cooking instructions are printed on the gibley bag of the ready-to-stuff deep basted turkey, and Swift's home economists have tailored the instructions to fit the bird.

Before stuffing, the wrapped turkey should be thawed in the refrigerator. This will take from one day to thaw the smaller turkeys and up to four days for the largest. For quicker thawing place the wrapped bird in a pan of cold water and change the water frequently.

After the feast is over, the remaining turkey, stuffing and gravy should be placed in separate containers to be refrigerated. Turkey meat removed from the bones takes less storage space. The turkey, stuffing and gravy should be used within 3 to 4 days. For longer storage, freezing is recommended and for maximum flavor the roast turkey should be used within 2 months.

OLD FASHIONED BREAD STUFFING

Yield: 9 cups

(Enough to stuff a 12 pound bird)

1 1/2 cups finely chopped onion	1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 1/2 cups finely chopped celery	1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/3 cup butter	1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning
8 cups dry bread cubes (1/2 in.)	1/2 teaspoon sage
	1/4 cup water
	1 egg, well beaten

Cook onion and celery in butter in a skillet until tender. Add mixture to bread cubes which have been placed in a large pan. Sprinkle with seasonings which have been mixed together. Combine. Add water and egg. Toss together with forks. Stuff thawed bird immediately and roast.

GIBLEY GRAVY

Yield: 4 cups

Gibley broth	1/4 teaspoon pepper
Milk	Finely chopped, cooked gibleys
1/2 cup flour
1 1/2 teaspoons salt

Use the broth from the gibleys and enough milk to make 3 cups of liquid. Pour into the roasting pan containing the drippings. Heat and scrape to loosen browned bits. Pour 1 cup of cold milk into a jar that has a tight lid. Add flour on top of the milk. Cover quickly and shake well to make a smooth mixture of the milk and flour. Slowly add the flour mixture to the liquid in the pan. Stir and cook until thickened. Add salt and pepper. Add gibleys and heat to serve.

CHILLED PUMPKIN POTAGE

Yield: 6 cups

1 cup canned pumpkin	1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
5 cups half and half or light cream	1/4 teaspoon mace
2 tablespoons butter	1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons honey	Juice of medium-sized orange
2 tablespoons molasses	Whipped cream
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon freshly ground pepper

Combine pumpkin, half and half, butter, honey, and molasses in a large saucepan, stirring constantly to blend. Add seasonings. Heat slowly to simmering point. Add orange rind and juice. Chill. Serve topped with a dollop of whipped cream.

LIME-GLAZED PEACHES

Yield: 6 servings

6 canned cling peach halves, drained	1 tablespoon melted butter
1/4 cup honey	6 slices lime, cut 1/8 inch thick
2 teaspoons grated lime rind	3 maraschino cherries, halved
2 tablespoons fresh lime juice

Place peach halves on broiler rack. Combine remaining ingredients except lime slices and cherries in a small bowl. Brush lime-honey glaze over peaches. Place broiler pan and rack so peaches are approximately 3 inches from heat. Broil 3 to 4 minutes or until peaches begin to slightly brown on edges. Remove from broiler. Turn. Brush with remaining glaze. Return and continue to broil 3 additional minutes. Arrange peach halves cut-side-down on platter alternately with lime twists for garnish. Place a maraschino cherry half between the peaches and lime twists for a touch of red color. Serve broiled peach halves as an accompaniment with slices of roast turkey.

MINCEMEAT PUDDING

Yield: 12 to 16 servings

1/2 cup shortening	1/4 teaspoon cloves
1 2/3 cups sifted all-purpose flour	1/2 cup packed dark brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt	1 1/2 cups canned mincemeat
1/2 teaspoon soda	1 egg
1/2 teaspoon baking powder	1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Sift flour, salt, soda, baking powder, and spices together into mixing bowl. Add shortening, brown sugar, and mincemeat. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed on electric mixer, or 300 strokes by hand. Scrape sides and bottom of bowl. Add egg. Beat 2 minutes longer. Mix in nuts. Spoon into well-greased 2 quart ring mold. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 40 to 45 minutes. Cool in pan 5 minutes. Serve warm with Lemon Hard Sauce.

Lemon Hard Sauce: Combine 1/3 cup butter and 2/3's cup powdered sugar beating until light and fluffy. Add 1/2 teaspoon lemon extract. Beat one egg white until stiff; gradually add 1/3 cup powdered sugar. Fold into sauce. Refrigerate. Serve with warm mincemeat pudding. Yield: 1 cup or 16 servings (1 tablespoon each).

What Kind of Pie Will You Make?

PUMPKIN-PECAN PIE

No one will ever settle an argument about what is the best pie for Thanksgiving. Devotees of pumpkin pie have their favorite recipes and will stand for no changes. The open-minded may be tempted by some of these new recipes.

According to Sarah Josepha Hale, authority and promoter of a national harvest day celebration, "Pumpkin pie was an indispensable part of a good and true Thanksgiving." It's thanks to the efforts of Mrs. Hale, editor of "Godey's Lady's Book," that we have Thanksgiving as a national holiday.

Traditionally our holiday feasts still include a pumpkin pie, although it may well be a light airy chiffon mixture or some other sophisticated version of this homey pie. A truly elegant and delicious version is Pumpkin-Pecan Pie.

PECAN-PUMPKIN PIE

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup Crisco all-vegetable shortening
3 tablespoons water
3 eggs, beaten
½ cup firmly-packed dark brown sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
½ cup canned pumpkin
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 cup pecans

Combine flour and ½ teaspoon salt in a bowl. Cut in shortening until uniform, but coarse. Sprinkle with water, toss with a fork and press into a ball.

On lightly floured board, roll out pastry 1½ inches larger than inverted 9-inch pie plate. Fit into plate and trim ½ inch beyond edge of plate: fold under to make a double thickness around edge, then flute edge.

Refrigerate until ready to use. Beat together eggs, sugar, syrup, pumpkin, ¼ teaspoon salt and vanilla. Stir in butter and pecans. Pour into pie shell.

Bake in 375 degree (moderate) oven 45 minutes, or until set in center. Cool. Serve with whipped cream or ice cream, if desired.

Something different for Thanksgiving dinner: A half-and-half pie for those who can't decide which — pumpkin or mince-meat.

The raisin mince-meat and tablespoon ginger; 1 teaspoon mellow pumpkin custard combine into a delicious one-crust pie. Decorate the top with tiny Spread mince-meat in bottom of pastry-lined pie pan.

HALF-'N'-HALF THANKSGIVING PIE

Pastry for single 9-inch crust
2 eggs
½ cup brown sugar (packed)
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup milk
½ cup evaporated milk
¼ cup cooked or canned pumpkin

Best eggs with sugar, salt and spices. Combine milk and pumpkin and beat to scalding. Stir into egg mixture. Pour carefully over mince-meat layer.

Bake in hot oven (425 degrees) 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 45 to 50 minutes longer, until custard is set. Cool before cutting.

HALF 'N' HALF PIE

Ice Cream Goes in First

There are probably as many versions of pumpkin pie as there are pie bakers. An excellent combination, and one that's quite different from the usual pumpkin custard, is a frozen pumpkin pie made with vanilla ice cream and lightly spiced, sweetened pumpkin.

PUMPKIN ICE CREAM PIE

1 baked pie shell (10")
1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened
2 cups (1-pound can) pumpkin
1½ cups sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups heavy (whipping) cream
¼ cup silvered almonds

Spread softened ice cream in cooled pie shell; place in freezer. Mix pumpkin with sugar, teaspoon salt, spices and vanilla. Whip 1 cup cream until stiff and fold into pumpkin mixture; spoon over ice cream in shell.

Freeze uncovered until set, then cover with foil and freeze until firm, 6 to 8 hours or overnight.

Meanwhile, combine almonds and 2 tablespoons sugar in skillet. Stir over low heat until sugar melts and almonds are lightly toasted. Spread on waxed paper or foil; cool, then break apart.

Before serving pie, whip remaining ½ cup cream until stiff. Spoon over pie and garnish with almonds. Makes 1 pie.

PUMPKIN ICE CREAM PIE

Give Frozen Pies Style With New Toppings

With frozen mince and pumpkin pies, you can enjoy all the goodness and aroma of home-baked pies without preliminary effort.

Allow at least an hour of cooling time before serving to enable the pies to be cut into perfect slices.

PILGRIM'S WHIPPED GINGER TOPPING

½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup frozen orange juice concentrate, undiluted
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons frozen lemon juice, undiluted

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

In a saucepan, mix together sugar and cornstarch. Gradually stir in orange juice concentrate, water and lemon juice. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture bubbles and thickens. Stir in butter and ginger. Cool. Fold in whipped cream. Chill.

When ready to serve, stir again, then spoon into a sauce dish for passing separately with mince pie. Makes about 2½ cups.

STREUSEL PUMPKIN PIE

½ cup flour
½ cup firmly-packed brown sugar
• 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
¼ cup chopped pecans
1 frozen pumpkin pie
½ pint frozen whipped topping, thawed
2 teaspoons rum or brandy extract
½ pint vanilla ice cream, softened

In a small bowl, combine flour and brown sugar. Cut in butter until particles are fine. Add orange rind and pecans; mix well. Sprinkle mixture over top of frozen pumpkin pie.

Bake on cookie sheet on lower shelf of preheated hot oven (400 degrees) for approximately 1 hour, or until silver knife inserted into center of pie filling comes out clean. Let pie cool about an hour.

For topping, fold whipped (topping and rum or brandy extract into softened ice cream. Pass separately for spooning over individual pie servings. Makes 6 servings.

Yam Pie Comes From South

From the plantation land of Louisiana comes a delicious and traditional Thanksgiving dessert that's a special help to a busy hostess — easy-to-do Yam Pie. And to cut down on last minute preparations, you can bake the filling in its shell the day before your feast and simply add and brown the meringue on serving day.

Royal Prince, packer of Louisiana yams, makes them available in convenient canned form. Write them at St. Francisville, Louisiana for a free recipe folder with such goodies as Yam Pralines, Fruited Yam Puddin' Cake, Old-Fashioned Candied Yams and many other favorite treats.

LOUISIANA YAM MERINGUE PIE

2 cans (1-lb., 1-oz. each) Louisiana Yams
3 eggs, separated
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons melted butter
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup pineapple juice
9" unbaked pie shell
Meringue (made with the 3 egg whites and 6 tablespoons sugar)

Drain yams, mash and beat together with egg yolks until light and fluffy. Add ½ cup sugar, butter, salt and pineapple juice. Place in pie shell. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 50 minutes, or until set.

Beat egg whites until foamy; gradually beat in 6 tablespoons sugar and beat until stiff and meringue holds peak. Spoon onto pie and brown in hot oven (425 degrees) 5 minutes.

Mint for Lamb Put With Yams

Accompany a roast leg of lamb with minted yams. Melt 2 tablespoons of butter or margarine in large skillet. Add ¼ cup of mint jelly, ¼ cup of water, ½ teaspoon of grated orange peel and dash salt. Heat until jelly melts.

Add 3 (1-pound) cans of yams, drained. Cook over low heat about 10 minutes, turning frequently. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons of slivered almonds. Makes 6 servings.

For Christmas-red ice in a punch bowl freeze cranberry juice cocktail in your favorite molds.

QUICK TOPPINGS

Nutty Top for Yam Casserole

For the holidays, how are you going to serve your sweet potatoes or yams? Baked, boiled, in a casserole or in a luscious yam pie? Or, maybe candied? That's it. A good candied yam.

The yams that you buy in your market are what Louisiana growers call "cured" yams. They were taken into kilns, or storage houses, after harvest and left to cure for several weeks at ideal temperatures and humidity.

Some of these kilns are air-conditioned and are so vast that it takes from 3 to 9 days to bring the temperature down to just the right degree for the yams. Yes, nothing is too good for Louisiana yams.

These yams cook up smooth and stringless and slice into nice even circles. They're colorful, too, with that bright orange flesh, and full of vitamins A and C.

Make a buttery-good syrup, add a handful of pecans and pop the dish into the oven. Serve with turkey, or whichever meat your family enjoys at holiday time.

CANDIED PECAN YAMS

6 medium yams, cooked, peeled and sliced or 3 cans (1 pound each) Louisiana yams, drained and sliced

1/4 cup melted butter or margarine
1/4 cup light corn syrup
3 tablespoons dark brown sugar
1/4 cup chopped pecans
Place sliced yams in a greased 1 1/2 quart round baking dish. Mix together butter, syrup, sugar and pecans; pour over yams. Bake in 375 degree (moderate) oven 30 to 40 minutes, basting frequently. Makes 6 servings.

PEANUT BUTTER GLAZED YAMS

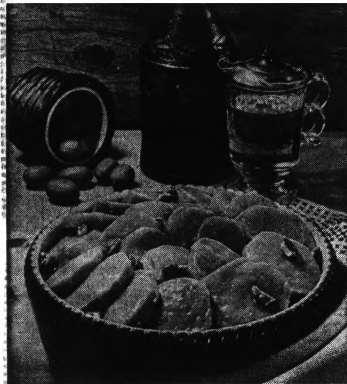

4 medium yams, cooked, peeled and halved or 2 cans (1 pound each) Louisiana yams, drained

1/2 cup seedless raisins
1 cup unsweetened blended orange and grapefruit juice
1/2 cup crunchy peanut butter
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 tablespoons firmly-packed dark brown sugar

Place yams in shallow baking dish; sprinkle with raisins. In medium saucepan mix together fruit juice, peanut butter and sugar; heat until butter is melted (mixture will not be well blended); pour over yams. Bake in 350 degree (moderate) oven 15 to 20 minutes, basting yams frequently with sauce. Makes 4 servings.

Gourmet Start

Artichoke hearts make a notable first course for a company dinner that's on the formal side. Use drained canned or frozen cooked artichoke hearts and learn them with a rich cream sauce; sprinkle copiously with grated Parmesan cheese and brown under the broiler.

CANDIED PECAN YAMS—Candied yams make a colorful accompaniment to a roasted bird or baked ham. Spoon them out in generous portions for everyone's enjoyment.

FIESTA CASSEROLE—Prepare a box of corn muffin mix according to package directions. Mix together two cans chili con carne with beans; 1 1/2 cups sausage, cut in small pieces; and one cup sweet peppers, chopped. Pour into baking dish. Top with prepared muffin mix. Bake 40 minutes at 350 degrees. Serves six.

Traditional Turkey Only a Myth?

There is some historical evidence that pork and beef graced the Pilgrims' tables at the first Thanksgiving dinner according to David H. Stroud, President of the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Stroud quoted one historic source as stating the women spent many days preparing for the feast; that "children were kept busy turning roasts on spits, or rods, in front of open fires."

"What kind of roasts?" he asks. "They could have been as beef and pork."

He suggests the possibility that over the span of 347 years, traditional accounts of the Thanksgiving may have established turkey as the main course because at that time it was a new food introduced to the Pilgrims by the Indians.

At the same time stories of the first Thanksgiving simply may have neglected mentioning other foods on the menu, such as

It is true that in order to years was the shortage of beef and pork . . . products the Pilgrims made an effort to live Pilgrims voluntarily donated themselves while they built up colony on the Mayflower along slaughtering the few animals with barrels of pickled beef and they had brought with them."

He said.

"This foresight helped them solve their food problem much more quickly than if they killed off their future sources of meat."

However, since this was a very special occasion for rejoicing and feasting, it's possible the ban on slaughtering livestock was lifted as part of the Thanksgiving observance."

Stroud contends the reason turkey was served at Thanksgiving in those early years was the shortage of beef and pork . . . products the Pilgrims voluntarily donated themselves while they built up colony on the Mayflower along slaughtering the few animals

List of Car Names Is Long and Varied

DETROIT (UPI) — The list's million this year by the four Knickerbocker in 1901 and a begins with A.B.C. It ends with Zip. In between, there are more than three thousand nameplates of automobiles that have been produced in the United States since the 20th Century began.

Every letter of the alphabet is represented, although X gets in with only one, the Xenia, produced in 1915. The letter Q fares better with five entries, and Z has six.

Automobiles were named for almost everything from people to presidents, oceans and animals, cities and states, birds and even heavenly bodies.

Today, four American automobile companies manufacture about 90 per cent of all the automobiles built in this country. But 60 years ago, there were 290 different makes of cars, produced in 145 cities in 24 states . . . and they produced a total of about 50 thousand cars compared with more than a

NAMED FOR CITIES

Cities for whom automobiles were named included Detroit, Chicago, Bowling Green, Andover, Lexington, New Haven and Birmingham. States included California, Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, Texas and Michigan.

For the presidents, there were the Adams, Lincoln, Hoover, Washington, Roosevelt, Cleveland and Madison. Dolly Madison is the only first lady represented.

There was one Chief, but the Indians included Algonquin, Blackhawk, Pontiac, of course, Iroquois, and Mohawk. There was one Pilgrim. There was no Sioux, but there was a Custer, which made its last stand in 1921.

There was a Jacks in 1900 and a Horner in 1917. There was a

American-bult Rolls, produced in this country from 1920 to 1930.

SUCCEEDED BY VALIANT There was a Caward in 1924, succeeded by today's Valiant. A Duck was built in 1913, but the Drake didn't come along until 1921.

There was a Winner in 1899, a Triumph in several years between 1900 and 1920, a Success from 1906 to 1909 and a Victor made by several different makers between 1906 and 1928. All were losers.

To go with today's Tempest, there was a Storm, a Gale and a Cyclone.

There is a Comet, but there was a Star, a Moon, a Meteor, Sun, Crescent and Eclipses which went into Eclipse in 1902.

AMONG ANIMALS

Among the animals, in addition to today's Mustang there was a Tiger, Panther, Fox, Elk, Gopher, Badger, Beaver, Wolverine, Buffalo, Bull Dog and a Coyote. Birds in addition to the Falcon included the Crow and the Eagle. There was even an insect, the Cricket.

There was a Harvard and a Yale. A Playboy . . . no bunny, and a Hare.

There was a Bug, in 1914, long before Germany's Volkswagen.

A Pneumobile in 1914 and 1915, but the Oldsmobile both preceded and outlasted it, 1896 and still going.

Napoleon, produced from 1916 through 1918 never met the Waterloo, built in 1904 and still going.

The Pacific in 1914 was built before the Atlantic in 1915.

There was a King and a Queen, a Prince and a Princess, also an Empress, a Sultan and a Kaiser. Also a Pope, an Admiral, a General and of course, the Ambassador.

The full list of automobile nameplates is contained in a new book published recently by the Automobile Manufacturers Association, entitled "Automobiles of America." It also includes pictures and capsule histories of many of America's most famous cars of yesteryear along with brief year-by-year histories of the development of the auto industry in America.

News Execs Take Look at Papers in Year 2000

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — What will the newspaper look like in the year 2000?

Some think it will be a lengthy roll of paper produced from your television set.

Others say it will be a product of your very own computer, on which you can dial, for example, a sports page on an electronic screen, then get a printed copy by pushing a button.

But three leaders of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association don't look for such radical changes 32 years hence.

ESSENTIALLY THE SAME

Joe Dealey of the Dallas Morning News, incoming association president, believes the newspaper in 2000 will be essentially what it is today, a package of information, delivered in some form to your home.

"I think something close to facsimile will make its appearance," Dealey said at the association's convention that ended yesterday.

"Now, if they start using the air to transmit the news and produce it on home units, they will become more of a public utility than they are today."

This could raise the question, he said, of whether the government will continue to permit freedom of expression or attempt to control editorial voices through an agency such as the Federal Communications Commission.

SATELLITE PLANTS

If a newspaper continues to be printed on presses and delivered to your front yard, Dealey said there may be satellite plants to print them. This, although costly in machinery, would solve delivery problems in crowded metropolitan areas.

Cyrus L. MacKinnon of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times said, "I don't think we will have electronic delivery."

"Nobody wants that much paper coming off the TV set and satellite plants can do a better job in suburbs and sections of the big city."

Carl A. Jones of Tennessee's Johnson City Press-Chronicle predicts slick paper-printed newspapers, polished in the quality of writing and printing.

"The subscribers are going to be paying a bigger portion of the total expense," Jones said. "Now the advertisers are paying the big share of the bill."

We're Warm and Friendly

... especially since we have a special way of helping you keep the pleasant warmth of "Summertime" in your home all winter long. We do it with Sunoco Heating Oil, the best quality blended heating oil your money can buy . . . and by giving the most dependable and trusted heating services in town.

Prologue of Nixon Program Can Be Pieced Together

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla.—When Republican Richard M. Nixon goes before a Democratic Congress late in January to outline inspirations of his presidency, he will urge that government strive to put "the great engine of private enterprise" to work on the nation's social problems. He will, it seems certain, urge dispersal of government power from Washington to other "schools of authority," to begin breaking up massive problems into manageable pieces."

Abroad, he will likely talk of new era of negotiation with the Communist world. But he will pledge firmness and advocate steps to enhance U.S. military might, "so that we would not be afraid to negotiate."

His keynote probably will be an appeal for unity and understanding at home. And he undoubtedly will pledge an effort to "establish communication with every one of the dissident groups," with Negroes, with the poor, with disenfranchised young Americans.

Those are among major themes Nixon has sounded in nine months of campaigning. Translated to specific proposals, and in some instances into legislation, these policy pronouncements and others can be expected to form the framework for the State of the Union address and many of the other messages Nixon will be sending to Congress after his inauguration Jan. 20.

Here are positions which Nixon has described on major national issues:

Foreign Policy

Nixon promises a foreign policy of firmness, and also of negotiation. "To the leaders of the Communist world we say: 'After an era of confrontation, the time has come for an era of negotiation,'" Nixon said.

"Because this will be a period of negotiation, we shall restore the strength of America so that we shall always negotiate from strength and never from weakness."

"It is time to develop a new diplomacy for the United States, a diplomacy to deal with future aggression — so that when the freedom of friendly nations is threatened by aggression, we help them with our arms; but we let them fight the war," Nixon said.

Defense

Nixon placed great emphasis on a drive to enlarge American military might. He said, "I intend to restore our objective of clear-cut military superiority — meaning by this the aggregate that constitutes real superiority rather than competition weapon-by-weapon."

His estimates now indicate military spending $10 billion above current, Vietnam-inflated levels by the end of a four-year Nixon term.

Nixon promised reorganization of the Pentagon to eliminate what he called over-centralization, and restore ready access to the President by top military professionals.

"I intend to restore the National Security Council to its pre-eminent role in national security planning," Nixon said.

Nixon advocates an end to the draft after the Vietnam war is over, with an all-volunteer armed force to replace it at a cost of some $5 billion a year, he estimated.

Vietnam

"This is the great question mark in the Nixon program, for the president-elect embargoed in his campaign any discussion of what he would do as President to deal with the war."

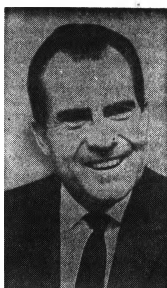

His position as President on the current bombing halt remains an enigma, too. He has supported President Johnson's current halt, but he has said that to be acceptable, this posture must enhance peace prospects.

He has said: "The war must be ended. It must be ended honorably. We must seek a negotiated settlement."

"I would oppose the imposition by negotiation of a coalition government on South Vietnam," he has said.

Nixon also said he would emphasize "de-Americanization" of the war.

He advocated a broadening of

the peace talks, to include the Soviet Union and other powers.

Taxes

Nixon advocated elimination of the 10 per cent income surtax. He at first said it should lapse when the Vietnam war is ended, later that he would drop it on schedule — which would indicate no request for its renewal after next June 30.

He recommended federal tax sharing, which would return unrestricted grants to states and local governments to enhance their ability to deal with public problems.

Nixon advocates use of tax incentives, some $7 billion worth, to enlist private enterprise in such fields as the reconstruction of blighted city areas, in job training, in pollution control.

Poverty

The thrust of Nixon's approach to the problem of poverty is to enlist private enterprise, through tax credits, and incentives, in the effort to help the poor.

Nixon said he would as swiftly as possible eliminate the Job Corps program. "As an alternative, I believe we should give a tax credit to private enterprise to train the unemployed for jobs that really exist," he said.

Nixon said the Head Start program would continue. He said welfare rules should be altered to provide incentives for families to remain together, and to offer incentives instead of penalties to people who supplement welfare checks with part-time employment.

The Cities

Nixon maintains that a cycle of welfare and public housing has actually "perpetuated poverty" in the cities. His chief programs in this field:

• Tax incentives for businesses which locate branch offices or new plants in rural and urban poverty areas.

• An effort to promote "black capitalism," Negro ownership and operation of businesses in the cities. Noting risk capital now is often unavailable for ghetto enterprises, Nixon said there should be new loan guarantee programs, reinsurance and an expansion of Small Business Administration loan offerings.

He envisioned a Domestic Development Bank to provide loans and mortgage guarantees for businesses in poverty areas.

• A New Enterprise program in which businessmen and teachers would help train Negroes in the cities to own or manage businesses. Nixon proposed tax deductions be offered to attract instructors.

• A drive to promote home and apartment ownership in city ghettos, with residents investing their labor and with the government helping make mortgages available.

Civil Rights

"I do not see any significant area where additional legislation could be passed that would be helpful in opening doors that are legally closed," Nixon said.

"We must now concentrate on such areas as economic development, education, building and strengthening the black community from within and fashioning a new understanding between the races."

Nixon declared himself opposed to busing of students to achieve racial balance in schools.

In connection with racial disturbances, in the cities, Nixon on said repeatedly that without order there can be no progress.

Law and Order

Nixon promised a war on crime to include creation of a Cabinet-level National Law Enforcement Council which, he said, would coordinate federal policy on crime prevention and control.

He proposes expanded crime fighting research, a national academy of law enforcement, federal assistance for local law enforcement channeled through the states.

Nixon criticized Supreme Court decisions on the rights of criminal suspects, saying some have created imbalance between what he calls "the peace forces and the criminal forces."

Nixon favors use, under court order, of wiretapping and electronic surveillance against organized crime.

He favors federal and state laws to impose a substantial, mandatory prison term for anyone who uses a firearm in the commission of a felony.

National Unity

Nixon declared the first task of his presidency will be to establish national unity.

He said his White House will do less talking and more listening to the American people, that he will communicate with all segments of U.S. society.

One specific Nixon offering: The creation of what he calls listening posts in 19 U.S. cities, so that young people will have an avenue of communication with leadership of the government.

Social Security

Nixon pledged to seek improvements and expansion of Social Security, specifically including a provision for cost-of-living adjustments to increase benefits when prices rise.

He also advocates easing, and ultimate elimination, of the limit on allowable earnings for Social Security recipients, full income tax deduction for drug and medical expenses of people over 65, and increased Social Security benefits for widows.

Budget

Nixon talked constantly of curbing government spending as a step to combat inflation. "It is clear that every federal activity is — and must be — a candidate for expenditure control, and that every existing federal function must be reassessed or else we will bankrupt America," he said.

He also estimated the programs he has advocated during the campaign would cost some $10 billion.

He talked of re-examining military expenditures but acknowledged that "defense spending, huge though it is, may have to go up before it can come down."

Labor

Nixon promised policies which would maintain economic expansion and provide "in the next four years $5 million new jobs to replace those lost to automation and to provide opportunity for all."

He pledged a strengthened Department of Labor where "the voice of every workingman will be heard and his rights will be protected."

Nixon said public employee labor disputes should be handled through arbitration. "I do not believe that government employees, federal, state or local, have a right to strike," he said.

Foreign Aid

"We ought to turn our aid education, but says the President must make sure that federal control does not follow."

Nixon also said that, in foreign aid, "we are spread far too thin in too many countries in too many projects."

He said other nations, including Japan and Western European allies, "should assume a bigger share of the burden."

Agriculture

Nixon promised the farmer dedicated efforts to improve market prices and strengthen our market economy.

He said he would encourage farm cooperatives to strengthen the bargaining position of farmers; promised management of agricultural surpluses in a fashion that will "improve farm prices, not depress them."

Education

Nixon supported federal aid to education, but says the President must make sure that federal control does not follow."

"Let us have a federal government program for education that will turn back to the states, without strings, the money, states can use to upgrade their educational standards at the local level."

He advocates income tax credits to offset expenses of a parent or anyone else who helps pay for a student to attend college.

GOP Senatorial Group Will Meet

CADILLAC (AP)—The Republican State Senatorial Caucus will meet at Cadillac next Monday through Wednesday.

The 20 Republicans who won seats in the Nov. 5 election are expected to discuss taxes, economic conditions and the 1969 state budget, among other things.

Kate Smith—Career Finds New Direction

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK — Kate Smith, after five decades of reaching hearts and lifting spirits with her rich singing voice, now finds herself in what she calls "the most rewarding period of my life."

Television's current passion for variety shows in assorted forms has given her long, successful entertainment career new direction and fresh stimulus. The songbird of the South, the woman who has moved that moon over thousands of mountains, has become a jet-age wandering minstrel.

With the television season still young, she already has appeared as guest star on "Music Hall," "The Beautiful Phyllis Diller Show" and "The Smothers Brothers" and on the with the casual air of a suburban commuter catching his morning train. She makes a minimum of three records and Martin's Laugh-In — "I don't know what they'll want me to do, but it probably will be fun" — "Hollywood Palace" and, perhaps her favorite, "The Dean Martin Show."

EYED RETIREMENT

It was only four years ago that Kate, crushed and feeling inadequate after the death of her long-time business partner and manager, Ted Collins, was seriously contemplating retirement.

"The 'new' Kate — maybe not all new but a Kate Smith who is 57 pounds lighter than last season's model — is so busy that her public relations man, George Bennett, complains mildly that he only sees her when she's being interviewed."

She flies to the coast for a week or two of television work "Smothers Brothers" and on the with the casual air of a suburban commuter catching his morning train. She makes a minimum of three records and Martin's Laugh-In — "I concert date when the spirit moves her or the place interests her. She has no money problems. After Collins' death, Kate — Kathryn to her friends — decided to leave New York and its memories and take up residence near the place in which she grew up. She took a long lease on an apartment in a Washington suburb and moved — furniture, wardrobe and her collections.

KEEPS ON MOVE

"Then, all of a sudden, I started working so much that I never had time to get there," she said. "In the two-and-one-half years I had the place, I spent 16 weeks there. I figured it had to be the most expensive closet space in the world — and I was stuck a lot of the time in hotel rooms in New York. So I moved back."

In her off-hours, she prowls the antique stores of the city and also manages to reserve plenty of time during the warm months to spend at her beloved second home on an island in Lake Placid, N.Y. Much of her time, too, is spent handling the financial affairs of Kated, the corporation she formed with Collins, which owns not only Kate Smith, performer, but real estate and other properties.

Two years ago Kate was invited to tape a TV show in London's Palladium and Miss Smith, at 57, made her first trip abroad. Later she flew to Rome for an audience with Pope Paul VI — the high point of her visit since she was converted to Roman Catholicism some three years ago.

"All this has been a rebirth of myself and, of course, a new career," she said happily. "Oh, sure, I've been offered series lots of times, but I don't want that again — ever. I tell them I'm 10 years older, that I can't stand that gaff. But while I love appearances, they are not without the responsibility — for company representative, who the time, for the guests, and, of course, those ratings."

STARTED HITS

Over the years she introduced some 700 songs that became hits, but the one most closely associated with her is "God Bless America," Irving Berlin's patriotic number which she introduced 30 years ago.

On the other hand, she enjoys and savors "the best and sound of contemporary music." In fact her next album will be a salute to the Jimmy Webb and Burt Bacharach of the young generation.

"The new sound is like a shot in the arm — just what singers and musicians needed," she said.

Miss Smith, who will be 60 next May — has been singing before audiences since she was 18. She became a professional at 22. Appearing in her second Broadway show, she was spotted by Ted Collins, a record signed her to a recording contract. Two weeks later, with merely a handshake, they formed their long partnership.

She made her radio debut at 22 and the show went on for years. She starred in a TV show for five years, quitting the medium in 1955. A year later, after an Ed Sullivan guest shot, the network was deluged with almost 400,000 letters imploring her to return to regular broadcasting.

What, after all she has had, does she want from life?

"Just to keep the pace I have now," she said. "I am very happy."

Some Cabinet Choices to Bridge Nation's Gaps

BY DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President-elect Nixon has set his primary objective and has invited all of us to help him achieve it.

He says he wants to bridge both the generation and the racial gaps and will be "open to new ideas" from critics and supporters alike.

Nixon is in luck. I happen to have a few ideas along that line, which I am willing to share.

The way I see it, the most important thing is to make the right appointments to Cabinet posts and other federal offices.

ALL THE SEGMENTS
In filling these positions, Nixon should make certain that all of the various segments of our society on both sides of the gaps are represented.

I have in mind several appointments of the gap-bridging type that I herewith offer for his consideration:

Selection Service director — The obvious choice here is Dr. Benjamin Spock, the noted pediatrician. Many young men of draft age would be delighted to see him in charge.

U.S. commissioner of education — No one could be more appropriate than Mark Rudd, a student leader at Columbia Tiny Tim.

University during the riots there last spring. His active role in educational matters is well known, particularly to the New York Police Department. Peace Corps director — This would surely be an ideal job for Gen. Curtis LeMay, who lost his old job this fall when he became George Wallace's running mate.

HE HAS NO PEER

White House press secretary — I heartily recommend Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago. As he proved during the Democratic National Convention last August, he has no peer when it comes to dealing with the news media.

Secretary of the Treasury — The best man I can think of is Adam Clayton Powell, who so vividly demonstrated his financial acumen as a member of the House of Representatives.

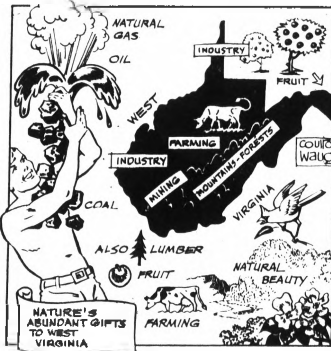

Postmaster general — The logical place for a female Cabinet member. I suggest Jeanne Dixon, the celebrated seeress. If the mail service breaks down, we can then communicate via ESP.

Secretary of defense — This post should go to someone who has had experience at the Pentagon. My recommendation is Norman Mailer, who wrote a best-selling book about his military experiences there.

Secretary of transportation — Who else but Ralph Nader?

Secretary of state — There is really only one person who seems suited. It is, of course student leader at Columbia Tiny Tim.

Junior Editors Quiz on WEST VIRGINIA

QUESTION: What is the story of West Virginia?

ANSWER: Originally, Virginia was a very large area, lying between Pennsylvania and South Carolina and extending west without limit. In 1607, the first permanent English settlement was made at Jamestown, Va.

After the eastern part of Virginia became settled, hardy pioneers felt the urge to press westward. First to visit the West Virginia region was John Lederer in 1670. Morgan Morgan built a cabin there in 1726.

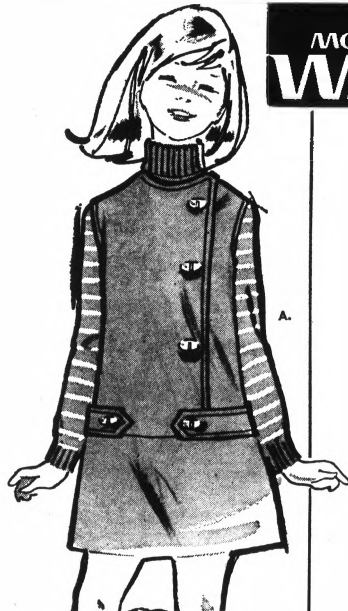

Germans from Pennsylvania and Scotch-Irish from Ireland soon founded settlements. Coal, discovered in 1742, became extremely important by the time railroads were expanding in the mid 1800's.

In 1776, settlers in the western area, having established their own way of life, began to press for a separate state of West Virginia. Statehood finally came in 1863. West Virginia's abundance of raw materials has made the state most important in mining and manufacturing. Areas of fine soil have resulted in agricultural development.

The state is proud of its magnificent mountains, reflected in the state motto: "Mountaineers Are Always Free."

Spoils Belong to GOP—and Dems Know It

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republicans are coming! It is not the best time to be a Democrat in this town, especially if you happen to be an unemployed Democrat.

Come Jan. 20, the nation once again will demonstrate the peaceful transfer of power from one political party to another.

It's peaceful, all right, but it's murder on the losers.

SPECTACLE

For with the spectacle of the inauguration — its stirring march music to the tune of "Bring Us Together" — Richard M. Nixon and his Republicans will lay claim to the spoils.

Hundreds of jobs in the new administration, many of them the patronage swept up eight years ago when the Democrats moved in, will be doled out to the faithful — Republican faithful, that is.

ESSENTIALLY THE SAME

The rule is essentially the same as it was in 1832 when Sen. William Learned Marcy, a Jacksonian Democrat from New York, coined the phrase: "To the victors belong the spoils of the enemy." Marcy practiced what he preached, reaping federal patronage to his death in 1857.

In the coming weeks, jobs now held by Democrats will be taken by victors, the Republican workers who helped Nixon win the White House. And for the next four years, at least, they will be the "in" crowd.

The openings range from $35,000-a-year Cabinet posts to $9,000-a-year clerks and chauffeurs, to $100-a-day board memberships, to honorary posts on memorial commissions.

The list includes 400 high appointive positions, 470 executive posts, up to 400 White House jobs, 112 ambassadorial posts, 33 U.S. attorney offices, 17 vacant federal judgeships, vacant U.S. marshal jobs, and the entire District of Columbia government, including its mayor. And thousands of others below these could be affected by the turnover.

REACTIONS DIFFER

The Democrats are reacting to the impending unemployment crisis in different ways. Not all are gloomy, however. At this point, it appears certain that Democrats will not be selling apples on Pennsylvania Avenue when the inaugural parade goes by.

With its fatty bureaucratic layers, the federal bag is so ponderous it is able to cover nearly everyone — including many of the "outs" — even though its weight undergoes a major shift.

Many Democrats will be accommodated, albeit without some of their former power and prestige.

For instance, some Democrats have landed positions with secure Democrats who will remain among the "ins" of Congress, which is still controlled by their party.

ATTEMPTING TO RETRENCH

Others are attempting to retrench into the vast inner reaches of the bureaucratic labyrinth — "hunkering down," as one national magazine put it.

Still others are hoping somewhat wistfully to be spared the GOP ax, at least until the long cold winter is over and the hinterlands become filled with the promise of new life — and Democratic jobs.

The most practical Democrats, however, either have packed their bags or are scanning the want ads.

One top ($28,750-a-year) official spoke philosophically and seemed resigned to his fate: "I'm a political appointment, confirmed by the Senate. Mine is a kind of job that has no protection. I'm expendable. I'm sending in my resignation as of Jan. 20 — earlier if requested. I do not expect to be reappointed. I should think the new president would want to appoint someone of his own choice. We are all trying to make things easy for him."

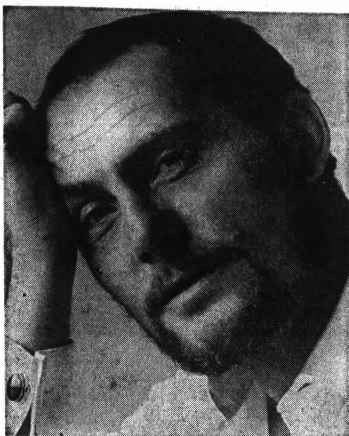

A functionary in the Johnson administration and official in the Humphrey campaign said simply: "I'm a free man for the next four years. I'm going back to full-time lobbying."

Aren't there jobs to be had in the Democratic National Committee? After all, this has been a favorite shelter in good times and bad. No such luck, said this "in" headed to the "out" basket. "They're $6 million in the hole. They're lucky if they have telephones in January, let alone staffers."

But, as the poet said, hope springs eternal in the human breast — and, currently, in the breasts of Schedule C (the most vulnerable) Democrats — and White House cooks.

Henry Haller, $17,511-a-year chef hired by President Johnson nearly three years ago, is hopeful. He hopes to cook for the Nixons, too.

Sorry, Henry. The president-elect has said he plans to hire a Peruvian chef to prepare his meals. Haller will probably have to hang up his White House ladle.

Robert Shaw: He Writes, He Acts

Actor-Writer Sticks to His Dual Career

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Shaw is a successful actor and author who is sure he could be more famous as only an actor or only an author.

But he is not going to give up either. That might, somehow, be yielding — a notion utterly alien to his nature, fiercely and constantly competitive.

"I notice the smart thing is to be gentle and simpler and smile away and to commit oneself to more famous as only an actor or only an author."

"I hate people who assume a public mask. When anybody speaks his mind, he's going to offend half the audience."

STAY OUT OF POLITICS
"My English contemporaries are even more subdued — they don't even enter politics. At least half the Americans try to get in there and support somebody. The whole English tradition is it's not the actor's business to be in politics, and anyway if you say anything positive you alienate your public."

With high satisfaction, Shaw reports that his son, Colin, 6, appears to have inherited a full measure of the paternal mettle. There are also six daughters, ranging in age from 15 to 2, the youngest three by his second wife, actress Mary Ure.

It was on location with her in the limelight as the writer while she was making a film with Richard Burton in Austria that he holed up for nine weeks and produced his upcoming novel.

He initially branched into writing as a change of pace from acting, trying the dramatic form and then on a friend's advice switching to full-scale novels.

He remarks: "I often think I'm an encouragement to any poor, struggling 35-year-old. It seems to me I'm just getting into my prime, and that can't last forever."

He gives himself about 10 years "to play all the good, big parts I can." Suing deed to desire, since January he has starred in three yet-to-be-released films, "The Birthday Party," "The Battle of Britain," and in the all-important role of Inca-conqueror Pizarro in "The Royal Hunt of the Sun."

Ever since graduating in 1943 from the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts, Shaw has been steadily at work. Along the way were six years at Stratford-on-Avon, then a private series on British TV that substantially augmented his material well-being — there's a country estate now in fashionable Buckinghamshire — without appeasing his hunger for esthetic recognition.

Evident always is that intense, combative attitude to sports as well as work. He relished having beaten Rod Steiger at tennis a year ago "six-nought, six-nought, six-nought because I got so annoyed with him."

"There is in me an enormously strong element of competitiveness," he says. "It is the secret of all my energies and the day I lose it, I'll stop work everywhere. The only difference between me and other actors as far as I can see is that I'm honest about it. I'm surrounded by hypocritical competitors."

WHY DISSATISFACTION
That explains to a degree why he is dissatisfied with his public renown.

"What I wish is that it would be possible to be aggressive, positive and outspoken in what I will say, 'He was also an actor.'"

Lighthouse Isle to Be Left to Birds

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Six men and county of San Francisco, have been living on Southeast Farallon Island off the California coast. But the lighthouse and a million birds. By mid-1970, the men will be gone. The birds and sea lions can have it, the Coast Guard has decided. The convincer was the development of techniques for automatic control of the station's vital light, fog signal and radio beacon. Farallon in Spanish means "a small rocky island in the sea," and the Spaniards knew what they were talking about. By JACK SCHREIBMAN
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Coast Guard is preparing to automate a 113-year-old lighthouse station in one of the world's most miserable suburbs. Since 1855, men have kept the light burning on the lonely granite rocks of Southeast Farallon Island in the main Pacific lanes. In fog and at night, the 800,000-candlepower light spars 22 miles out to warn mariners of

FOR THE BIRDS—The lighthouse station on South Farallon Island stands on the main Pacific sea lane, 30 miles west of San Francisco. It has a threefold function: the light itself, the foghorn and the radio beacon, useful to aircraft as well as ships. Automation will soon control these vital services, freeing six Coast Guardsmen for duty elsewhere and leaving the islet to hundreds of sea lions and birds.

ROBOT ON THE ROCKS—This lighthouse interior is the source of an 800,000-candlepower beam of light—and life. It cuts through fog and darkness to warn ships of the rocks and shoals around the Farallon Islands, 30 miles west of San Francisco.

the brutal rocks and shoals that have claimed 11 ships and told boats over the last 110 years. The last big vessel was the Liberty ship Bergh, which was bringing 1,300 Navy men home from the Pacific war on May 21, 1944. The men, on the doorstep of their homeland, were whooping and shouting on the deck as the captain strained through chilly fog to hear the Farallon fog signal. He repeatedly sent word for the men to be quiet. The ship hit the rocks. Because of currents flowing away from the killer crags, the men were swept away from danger and rescued safely. Until a few years ago when it simply got to be too much trouble, five Coast Guard families lived on the bleak outpost. Their "neighborhood" was four blocks long and two blocks around. Overseeing all, at 550 feet altitude, the great light. Coast Guard tenders, along with supplying the colony with normal goods to keep the station going, had to worry about baby food, diapers and such. Helicopters made rush trips to doctorless Southeast Farallon to answer emergency calls when junior seemed to be getting sick. Sometimes he was. The Coast Guard hollered "uncle!" No more families. Today, six men are assigned to the station, with two on liberty at a time. Every second Wednesday a tender leaves Yerba Buena Coast Guard Base in San Francisco Bay to supply the station, always a tough task. Farallon Light Station has no pier or dock. The tender puts out a motorboat that heaves into a rocky eastern inlet. A boom 20 feet above the water lets down a canvas-sided basket, and supplies and personnel are hoisted dizzily up to a landing slab. With the Coast Guard planing to leave, the rocks of the station have become an earnest concern of area conservationists.

The state is one of the finest bird refuges in the country, and, as long as the Coast Guard has been watching, there has been no worry that the wildlife ecology would be molested. In season, the rocks teem with hundreds of thousands of screaming seabirds, notably the common murre, cormorants and western gulls. There are petrels, black oyster catchers, pigeon guillemots, auklets, tufted puffins and brown pelicans. On the western side of the island tremendous herds of sea lions quarrel, bark and strut on the rugged terrain. At the approach of a human, they waddle into the sea on their flippers where they keep a fishy eye, whiskers twitching, on the intruder. Conservationists are worried that once the Coast Guard leaves, the spoilers will attack the wildlife. Only the North and Middle Farallones are part of the Federal Sacramento Wild Life Refuge and under official protection.

SEA LIONS' SHARE—These sea lions will hold sway over Southeast Farallon Island by mid-1970. Automation will relieve the Coast Guard of the necessity of keeping men stationed there. But the sea lions' lot may not be an altogether happy one. Conservationists fear that they may be molested by trappers.

Businessmen Eye Sending Elephant to Viet Village

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Some Portland businessmen have organized a group to raise funds to send an elephant from Portland Zoo to the Vietnamese village of Dalat, whose pet elephant was shot accidentally by U.S. soldiers.

The group, known as Elephant for Vietnam Instead of Our Boys, was formed after television station KOIN-TV suggested that it would be appropriate for Portland to replace the elephant.

Seven elephants have been born at the zoo since 1953 and six survive.

Zoo officials have not commented on the plan.

Archaeologists digging through a large mound near Ankara at Gaylor will be reexamined. In a letter to the chamber, from the 6th century B.C. the reexamination would be revealed in January.

Stereo's Trouble Is Found in the Coil

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Robert Bogle's stereophonic phonograph went on the blink the other day, he found the trouble wasn't in the woofer or the tweeter. It was in the hisser.

Bogle had to evict an 18-inch long boa constrictor, about 1 1/4 inches in diameter, from the turner before he could get the set to play.

The snake was turned over to the Los Angeles County animal shelter. No one knew where the snake came from.

New Look at Idea

CADILLAC (AP) — Gov. George Romney has advised the Cadillac Chamber of Commerce that a proposal to consolidate the State Highway Department facilities at Cadillac and Petoskey into a single unit at Gaylor will be reexamined.

All-Woman Bank Staff Proves Popular

(EDITOR'S NOTE — There's all-woman bank would be a soft touch to bank by, at the Banco touch. Filpino. It's an all-woman staff, from tellers to guards, and no small wonder most of the customers are men.)

By MARCELINO H. ROXAS
MANILA (AP) — The staff of the Philippines' newest bank consists only of women and the feminine touch is everywhere, from delicate handshakes to bone-crunching karate chops.

No men work there but plenty come in to ogle and even do some banking.

The woman's influence is so pervasive at Banco Filipino's new branch in Quezon City near Manila that the desk in front of one big steel walk-in safe is decorated with a statuette of Venus.

Two shapely security guards stand nearby, wearing white boots, long stockings and above-the-knee skirts to make startlingly clear they are not the man-type guard. Their uniforms make equally clear that bank's advertising motto is, these pretty sentinels are not to be fooled with. Pistols are fea-

MATCHING HOLSTERS
The weapons, which the gals know how to use, fit a white holster with broad white belt, to match the boots.

The guards—Francisca Feliciano, 21, who favors a .22-caliber revolver, and Lumen Alcantara, 22, who flashes a .38—are from a security agency and trained to handle rifles, too.

They are still learning, however, about some aspects of the rough and tumble in self-defense. Their teacher is Warthin J. Jorda, an attractive book-keeper for the bank who holds a black belt in karate and a brown belt in judo.

She is giving a special instruction to the guards, but also has held classes for the 14 other people on the staff just in case would-be robbers think an

NO UNDUE TEMPTATIONS

Manager Lualhati de Leon said she doesn't think that just because there are no men on the staff that bank robbers will be unduly tempted to rob the bank.

"We hope," she said, "that a robber would forget all his bad intentions if he saw all the friendly smiles."

She added that "we find many men opening accounts for as little as one peso—about 25 U.S. cents—just to meet the staff. We have more men customers than women."

Banco Filipino has eight branches in the greater Manila area. This is the second to have a strictly distaff staff. The bank boasts about it and a long sign overhanging the main entrance says in tall letters: "All-Woman Bank."

GI Writes Letter on Banana Leaves

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Linda Preston received a letter from her soldier husband in Vietnam which said: "Dear Linda, has anyone ever written to you on banana leaves before?"

Her husband, Pvt. Wayne E. Preston, did. Explaining his odd stationery, Preston wrote that he was in a combat zone and there wasn't any paper available. He said there were a lot of banana trees.

GIs Ought to Plan Holiday Travel Now

By JERRY T. BAULCH

Associated Press Newsfeatures

WASHINGTON—It's time for you servicemen and women planning to go home for the Christmas or New Year holiday to get your travel plans firmed up and to figure if and how you can take advantage of the bargain travel rates.

Pentagon officials have been working with the transportation industry to try and reduce the headaches and delays that one runs into during the busy holiday travel season.

BAULCH

To get the reduced fares on railroads, buses or airlines you have to be on active duty or a cadet at one of the military academies, on official leave, pass, liberty or furlough or within seven days of discharge.

You also have to be traveling at your own expense—not the government's—be in uniform and for an air ticket have the proper air travel form, DD Form 1580.

The railroads offer their year-round furlough fares at a saving of nearly 50 per cent on both one-way and round-trip coach travel. And there's also the year-round furlough fares by bus lines, but these are limited to about 20 points along the eastern seaboard and in southern California, generally limited to round trips.

Best Bet Aloft

The airlines have the year-round standby half-fare rate in effect, where you can get a seat for half-fare after all reservations have been claimed. But with more people flying during the holiday you could get stranded.

The best bet in the airline cut-rate category is the reservation fare offered by 18 of the 20 airlines—about two-thirds fare. But this is not generally available on weekends and days specified by each airline, such as the day before and after Christmas and New Year's Day.

Some of the airlines operating overseas are arranging special fares for groups, with about a 22 per cent reduction, to enable servicemen and their families to fly home for Christmas. A similar group rate is available to and from Hawaii.

Things Cooking

Several things are going on in the military eating department:

The big thing is a six-month test of a new centralized menu plan which means, if it works out, men and women at military posts throughout the world—regardless of their service—will be eating the same thing on each day. Exceptions will be in combat, aboard ship and on air flights.

The idea is to eliminate the task of menu planning and the problem of figuring out food requirements from post to post. There will be 42 daily menus, so the same thing won't be served the same day of every month and there can be more variety.

Included on the menus are such offbeat items as sloppy joes, pizza, chili dogs, fishwiches. And the plan caters to regional tastes, such as southern black-eyed peas and grits and New England boiled dinner.

The Army is studying a revolutionary new troop-feeding system in which all meals would be prepared stateside, prepared by freighting or some other process and sent to men in all kinds of service and on all kinds of duty, including combat.

Col. G. W. Baccus, Army Combat Developments Command, told the food industry in Chicago recently the idea is to feed the man in the field as well as he is fed in garrison duty.

Raise for Military Pensioners

People on the military pension rolls are due for an increase in their pay of at least 3 per cent next Feb. 1. That's because the consumer price index reached 122.2 in September, 3 per cent above April when retirees were given an adjusted boost of 3.7 per cent.

The nearly 600,000 retirees will get the increase if the index remains above the 122.2 level for both October and November and the increase will be the highest percentage raise during that 90-day period. Since the figure seldom drops there's not a shadow of doubt they'll get a raise.

Odds and Ends

Jan. 15, 1969, is the deadline to apply for the more than 2,100 Army ROTC college scholarships for school year starting next fall.

For the first time, there are 800 four-year scholarships open to seniors in high school. The bulk of the 2,100 are for two years and are open to men already in college taking ROTC.

Each scholarship pays tuition, textbooks and lab fees and provides $50 a month subsistence plus one-half pay of a second lieutenant during a six-week summer camp.

The Army has decided to award numbers for extra Air Medals, rather than oak leaf clusters. As an example, 18 means a man has 19 awards.

The Army is planning to convert by 1970 to two pay periods a month instead of the one-a-month system.

The Defense Department has ruled that a man whose enlistment is voided because he was under the legal age may count his service toward his six-year military obligation.

If you've wondered what happens to conscientious objectors who are willing to come into service but oppose bearing arms, the U.S. Army Medical Training Center says about 99 per cent become Army medical aidmen.

From 6 to 8 per cent of all aidmen in the Army are conscientious objectors. Other conscientious objectors train as cooks, clerks, truck drivers and some other noncombatant jobs.

Bondsman Killing Tax Exemption Suspect Is Mute for New York City Cattle Ranchers?

DETROIT (AP)—Gary Hollerman, 22, of East Detroit, a member of the Rejects motorcycle club was charged Wednesday in the fatal stabbing of a bail bondsman last Sunday. Hollerman stood mute at his state and city sales taxes.

arrangement before Recorder's Judge Elvin L. Davenport. He has introduced legislation to be ordered held without bond, have the local law conform with pending a court examination a change in the state tax law. Dec. 2. He is accused of stab-killing certain persons and bing Henry (Doc) Savage, 50, businessman from the sales tax of Detroit, after a fight outside. Among them are truck farmers and ranchers.

Homicide Inspector John Manna said Savage pulled a .38 Smith & Wesson .435 caliber gun and fired several shots at the Bronx Queens and Staten Island. The agency has no figures on the number of cattle ranchers in the city.

STAGE SUCCESS — Since May, "The Concept" has been an unusual off-Broadway success. A cast of ex-drug addicts nightly improves a representation of their own experiences. Here, in "The Maze," those who have already freed themselves reach out to help others.

Addicts Quit Drugs for Drama

NEW YORK — Some young people who never expected to be on a stage have come up with a surprise hit of the theater season.

Their unusual venture is "The Concept," a tough and touching play about drug addiction. It is something they know about at first hand.

Thus far, more than 40,000 people have seen it in a tiny off-Broadway auditorium since May.

"Without question the most moving theatrical experience in New York," said critic Walter Kerr.

Audience success is explained simply by Magr. William O'Brien, president of the governing board of the sponsoring organization: "Like a friend said to me, 'This is a message from Main Street, not just a message about addicts.' It covers a wide spectrum of human tensions."

A strange thing happens nightly after each performance about 260 residents at Liberty, N.Y., New Haven, Conn., and New York City.

GREW FROM PROGRAMS The play grew out of one of the workshop programs which emphasize the mutual duty of residents to help each other get free of addiction.

Lawrence Sacharow, a staff member with considerable off-Broadway background, worked for four months with a group at acting out basic situations in the Daytop experience from entry until stay completion, usually 18 months to two years.

Gradually the idea of performing in public developed. Five casts have been trained so far in the drama's eight commercial run. All profits go to the Sheridan Square Playhouse have experienced a total of 176 years of heroin addiction, spent 41 years in jail, and completed 32 drug-free years at Daytop. Average age is 25. "None wants a permanent acting career," Cantor says.

Cantor, a veteran Broadway manager, and Mortimer Levitt, a business executive, teamed to provide the professional know-how and funds to transfer "The Concept" from its amateur origins to philanthropic commercial run. All profits go to the Sheridan Square Playhouse have experienced a total of 176 years of heroin addiction, spent 41 years in jail, and completed 32 drug-free years at Daytop. Average age is 25. Volcanic Anna Magnani as Eternal as Rome

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie Writer

ROME — She is the Mother Terza, she-wolf, as much a symbol of Rome as the Colosseum or the Fountains of Trevi. She is a volcano smoldering, then erupting with a force that could shake Hadrian's Column.

She is a woman, fiercely independent, yet vulnerable to the next smooth-talking male who comes along. She is Magnani.

At age 60, Anna Magnani remains an awesome personality, one of the indeleible originals of the acting world. The years have not quenched her fire, as Stanley Kramer discovered during the filming of "The Secret of Santa Vittoria." She and the producer-director clashed many times on the set and off, yet he bears no regret over hiring her.

"There are certain explosive lines that she can deliver better than anyone else; she can make the simplest word sound like an explosive," says Kramer.

RETIRE TO APARTMENT

Having finished her role in "The Secret of Santa Vittoria," Magnani retired to her apartment in the Palazzo Altieri, a brief walk from the balcony where Mussolini exhorted thousands in Fascist days.

She has lived in the same penthouse apartment for 16 years, and the place looks it. Every square foot seems packed with antique furniture, paintings and, mostly, Magnani memorabilia. Portraits of the stormy face abound—Magnani in this role and that, playbills advertising Magnani stage portrayals. A shelf holds the Oscar she won for "The Rose Tattoo" in 1955, plus an armful of other hardware from film festivals and critics' circles.

Magnani hobbled into the sitting room, eloquently weary. She had broken her foot kicking a bed during a film battle with costar Anthony Quinn, and the recuperation had been vexing—"I don't go out—I would look like an exhibition with my foot in a cast."

She wore a long, formless silk dress of black and blue—"I always wear black; bright colors are not good for my face." Her skin was smooth, and her age showed only in the deeply creased half-moons under the fiery, dark-brown eyes. The hair was jet black and adopted its new style each time she shook her head, which was often.

SON AN ARTIST

"I must go see my son," she announced, and she disappeared. Her son Luca, 26, occupies the next apartment; an artist of some accomplishment, he has long been crippled because of polio.

It appeared that Magnani was stalling for the arrival of an interpreter, an English girl from her agents' office. The actress doesn't trust her English in an interview. After the interpreter arrived, Magnani responded.

She sat down opposite the reporter, her hands on her wide-apart knees. Her responses to questions came in spurts of Italian and English, sometimes both at the same time, the remarks being punctuated by exclamations like "Aha!" and "So!" as well as a deep cough.

A publicist for United Artists, which made the film, presented two offerings to Magnani, and both drew immediate responses. First he showed her a series of portraits in various moods. "I'm so ugly!" she exclaimed. But she studied each one with intense interest and chose the one she considered best: a pensive pose with hair covering half her face.

Then she gazed at a previously published interview entitled: "Magnani. Then Came Loren."

"In The Beginning There Was

SPORTS AT SOPHIA

"Loren!" she snorted. "Let me tell you something about Loren. I was offered the role of the mother in 'Two Women,' but because the property belonged to Carlo Ponti, he wanted Sophia to play my daughter."

"I was amazed. I asked them, 'Did you read the book?' In the book the daughter is small and ugly as a child; later, after she has been raped, she becomes a woman. I'm ready to play a mother—but to this kind of daughter, not Sophia! Even Brigitte Bardot could play the role. But Sophia! She is a monument of a woman!"

"After three years, Ponti came to me again and tried to persuade me. I told him, 'I could die satisfied if I could only play this role. But if you insist that Sophia play my daughter, I must refuse.' I was crying."

"Then I told him, 'there is only one thing left: if Sophia has the courage to play the mother, she should.' And so I kicked $550,000 in the rear end."

Magnani seemed to detect a reproving glance from the publicist and she exploded: "I can't say the truth? Who cares? I'm not her friend!"

ENGLISH-LANGUAGE FILM

"The Secret of Santa Vittoria" is Magnani's first English-language film since "The Fugitive Kind" which she made in 1960 with Marlon Brando and Joanne Woodward. "I liked the play 'Orpheus Descending,' which Tennessee Williams wrote for her, but the scenario was no good," she commented.

Her current role—as the wife of a slovenly mayor, played by Quinn, her costar in "Wild is the Wind," 1958—is not a big one.

"I do the part because of Stanley Kramer; he had it written for me," she said. "It is true to life. This woman, she is the kind you would recognize if you met her on the street. Is it me? It is me as people know me. There is no difference between the screen Magnani and the real one. Except that I am not always as I appear on the screen. I am many women."

The daughter of a working woman and a father who soon disappeared, Anna Magnani knew enough childhood poverty to make her appreciate her present affluence. As a young girl she saw the theater as an escape from her misery, and she began as a performer by singing in cafes. During the 1930s, she appeared in a number of movies, none of which made any impression outside Italy.

MISCAST IN MARRIAGE

For seven years she devoted her energies to the domestic life as the wife of a director, Goffredo Alessandrini. Obviously miscast, she ended the marriage and returned to acting.

BATTLED PRODUCER

"I had some fights with Hal Wallis, but we felt better after we fought; we ended up without rancor. It was a very difficult period for me. When I went to America, I couldn't even say 'Good morning.' I had to learn all my lines phonetically. Oh, I knew what I was saying, but I didn't know if I was saying it right."

Would she consider a return to Hollywood for a movie?

She frowned dubiously. "I am very fragile inside, even though I appear to be such a strong personality. The tiniest thing can upset me. That is why I prefer to work in familiar surroundings."

"NOTHING LEFT"

She was asked about the remainder of her career. What is left for her to do?

"Nothing," she said flatly. "I have been spoiled; pictures never grow old. Alas, others do. But with actresses like Davis and myself, we must have important character roles to play. Otherwise there is no reason to shine. Oh, there are roles I would like to do—Electra, Phaedra, and other classics. But they are not considered commercial, so nobody will put up the money for them."

"I don't care whether I work or not. Money? Thanks be to God, I have no need for it. I'm not a millionaire, but I have earned the money I have earned. I don't give a damn about clothes or furs; these women who go out and spend 70,000 and 80,000 lire ($12-$128) on a dress are mad. What for? They waste all that money on color."

She indicated she might one day retire from the screen. "I hate to see actresses grow too old in films," she said, my life."

Cuban Youth Woes Surface

HAVANA (AP) — A youth problem has surfaced in Cuba where the emphasis is on youth and nearly 40 per cent of the population is less than 15 years old.

The government position is that it has the support of the overwhelming majority of young people, a view backed up by most of the available evidence.

But there are disturbing signs, such as reported by Prime Minister Fidel Castro when he complained recently of juvenile prostitution, vandalism and delinquency, and his announcement that youths were tearing down posters of Che Guevara, the government's model for Cuban boys.

There are indications also of a communications gap between teenagers and the country's youth, 95 per cent of whom are under 40, and between younger students and their teachers, who often are under 20.

TWO VIEWS

Here are two views on the situation from today's youth: "I can't talk with the Cuban government," says 19-year-old Antonio M., a long-haired youth like me. I want to be free, in who likes to play American rock Cuba we don't have it free." music and wants to live in the United States.

An unemployed eighth grade dropout, he says he is tired of having nothing but slogans and promises after living half his life under the Castro government.

"We don't have a word, we don't have money, we don't have a future. The other day a foreigner — a visiting French student — came with long hair, tight pants like the American boys, a shirt, a good shirt and moccasins. Here the government won't let me use those clothes."

NO FUTURE SEEN

He complains that unless a youth wants to be a government student or to work in agriculture he has no future in Cuba. If he could do as he wishes, would be stay in Cuba?

"No, I don't like Cuba, the Cuban government. I have other ideas of my future. I want to be a big man, a famous man. I want to have personality. I can't have personality in this country. My father lives in Miami and I want to see my father some day. I'm going to tell you something. The Cuban people don't like the Cuban revolution. The young men don't like the Cuban revolution. All my friends think I'm a communist. I want to be free, in who likes to play American rock Cuba we don't have it free."

But from Mayra Vilasis, a Havana University junior:

"What communism means to me is really dignity. Now I'm proud of being a Cuban. I wouldn't change my citizenship for anything in the world. I'm conscious that communism solves the problem of the masses but I'm also conscious that it doesn't solve the problems of the man as an individual, his aspirations, the things he wants out of life as a human being."

"LET COMMUNISM TRY" "But I think that happens in every form of society and if man hasn't been able to solve his individual problems before in other societies, why not try it and find out if with communism we can," she says.

Miss Vilasis, 24, is a revolutionary, a member of the Union of Young Communists who teaches English pronunciation to North Vietnamese students in Havana.

She thinks the government should demand more form its youth and sees "no need for student protests here now." But she concedes that "we have a lot of problems in the pre-university and secondary school levels." She says too often teachers are overworked.

She attributes the outbreak of vandalism in the schools to the teaching problem "and a difference between generations."

She advocates compulsory "physical labor with political guidance" for Cuban young people who drop out of the revolution or are against the government.

"I think they're stupid," she says.

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Wolverine Industries Inc. declared a quarterly dividend of 7.5 cents per share today, payable next Dec. 30 to stockholders of record Dec. 2.

Refuse Value Seen in Reuse

NEW YORK (AP) — Your garbage may provide a good living in the near future.

Through a process of salvage and reuse, the value of material produced from household refuse could run into billions of dollars annually, according to John Abraham Jr., manager of environmental pollution control programs for the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute.

Under the plan, developed as part of a program to help solve the nation's growing solid-waste disposal problem, refuse would go to automated transfer stations where it would be separated into salvageable components.

Bulky wood products, such as old furniture and logs, would be converted into charcoal, metals would be salvaged for scrap, paper and rags would be shipped to paper mills for reprocessing, glass would go back to the manufacturers for reuse in new glass production.

Soviets Sink N-Sub in Book

Novel Suggests Scorpion Fate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new novel by a retired admiral suggests that the nuclear submarine Scorpion might have been bombed to the bottom of the Atlantic by the Russians.

The author of the recently published book, "The Brink," is Rear Adm. Daniel V. Gallery, who during World War II headed a task group which boarded and captured the German submarine U505.

It was the only sub captured in battle and the first enemy warship taken by the U.S. Navy since 1815.

A star-spangled war record in the 1940s does not, of course, qualify its holder to solve the mysteries of the nuclear '60s, and Gallery does not make this claim. But he believes the incidents in his novel are possible and reasonable explanations of the real affair.

PROBE NEXT SPRING

The recent discovery of portions of the Scorpion's hull prompted the Navy to schedule a resumption of its investigation next spring, when weather will permit on-the-scene explorations about 400 miles southwest of the Azores.

Meanwhile, Gallery's story raises interesting possibilities.

As he tells it, the Russians discovered how to track Polaris submarines like the Scorpion, not through the use of comparatively short-range sonar but by means of homing in on the sub's atomic reactor from ranges as great as 20 miles.

In the novel, a pursuing Russian destroyer is destroyed during an unprovoked attack on a U.S. submarine in the Arctic sea — a nuclear torpedo aimed at the sub misfires and strikes the surface vessel.

When a second sub in the Polaris fleet vanishes in the Barents Sea, Americans are positive but unable to prove it was the victim of a similar attack.

As relations between the two nations worsen, the U.S. President is persuaded to permit the secret sinking of a Russian submarine cruising off Cape Kennedy.

"If the Russians got away with sinking one of our ships, it could very well encourage them to go a bit further," according to the persuasive argument for that action.

The tactic is successful, and the world withdraws from the brink of World War III.

Peru's Fishing Catch Tops World for '67

ROME (AP) — The world's total haul of fish surpassed 60 million metric tons in 1967 and Peru became the first nation to take more than 10 million tons, the food and Agriculture Organization reports.

Japan had the second largest haul, Communist China presumably was third, the Soviet Union was fourth and for the second successive year, Norway placed fifth ahead of the United States.

The figures were given in FAO's yearbook of fisheries statistics which gave the total catch for 1967 as 60.5 million metric tons, 5.5 per cent more than the 1966 haul of 57.3 million metric tons.

Peru, already the world's No. 1 fishing nation in terms of volume of catch, hauled in 10.1 million tons of fish. Almost all the Peruvian catch is anchoveta, used for fish meal.

Japan, with a smaller tonnage, had the world's best catch in terms of total value. Japan brought in 7.8 million tons, an increase from the previous year's 7.1 million.

No figures were available again of mainland China's 1967 catch. FAO continued to use the 1960 figure of an estimated 5.8 million tons. Presumably this would have shown some increase since then, keeping China in third place.

The Soviet Union reported 5.3 million tons, compared to 5.3 million the year before. Norway had 3.2 million tons, up from 2.9 million.

The United States dropped from 2.5 million tons in 1966 to 2.4 million in 1967. It was the smallest U.S. catch since 1962.

Other nations reporting 1967 catches of a million tons or more were South Africa 1.6, Karl Marx in Highgate Cemetery—Here a tomb. There an anchor. Everywhere a sepulcher. And sculpsion.

Love-ly Spots Pointed Out in London Guide

LONDON (AP) — The latest guidebook on the British capital is called "London for Lovers." Author Betty James says far too many of the smitten head for the parks.

"It's becoming almost impossible for any decent, loyal British citizen to nibble a lunch-hour fish paste without being forced to look the other way. And, when you do look the other way, where it is again," she writes.

Suggestions on where to go range from the Bell Tower of Westminster Cathedral to the total darkness of the London Planetarium.

The best out-of-doors spot for romance is near the tomb of Karl Marx in Highgate Cemetery—Here a tomb. There an anchor. Everywhere a sepulcher. And sculpsion.

Drought Plagues Spain's Breadbasket

MURCIA, Spain (AP) — You can dance a flamenco down the twisting bend of the Segura River in southeast Spain without getting your feet wet.

Only puddles remain along the brown ditch, grim signs of the worst drought to strike the ancient Spanish food basket in the 20th century.

Upstream the Segura's eight irrigation reservoirs, catch basins of water from rain to frequent rain, are nearly empty under endlessly cloudless skies.

Since last May, each dusty square meter—a 40-inch square—of the land in this normally fruitful area has received less than two gallons of rain. Since June it has received less than one gallon.

The big Alfonso XIII reservoir, capable of holding 36.4 million cubic meters of water, is dry. The Talave, with a capacity of 44.3 million cubic meters, has 141,000 cubic meters. Fuentesa, capacity 235 million cubic meters, has 3.8 million. The big, ancient Cienaga, has a capacity of 437 million cubic meters and a content of 22.7 million.

The Spanish Cabinet voted financial aid for the hard-pressed farmers of Murcia and Alicante provinces, worst-hit of the four watered by the Segura.

The drought, too, pointed up the urgency of Spain's irrigation construction program in the new four-year development plan. Chained to its dry rocks while its river waterfalls by the sea, Spain must irrigate or pay to import food.

PEOPLE COME FIRST

Since the era of the Romans and the Moors, the Segura River has been giving life to four provinces of Spain. But now the work and the estimated total of drought, unemployment among field hands in the Segura watershed is 16,500.

Frantic farmers have rented every tanker truck in the area. They haul water, bought at ruinous prices, from miles away. They put small pumps on pools of residual water and spade down to see if there's more.

In Orihuela de Alicante Province alone, crop damage is estimated at $24.2 million and the loss of wages to field hands at nearly $3 million. In the Orihuela area 7,000 field hands are out of work and the estimated total of drought, unemployment among field hands in the Segura watershed is 16,500.

This is some of the most productive land of all Spain. The southeast Mediterranean coast from Valencia—famed for its sugar beets, truck crops, citrus oranges—down to Almeria, is the breadbasket of Spain. Un-der proper irrigation it is capable of producing more than one-third of the corn.

Deal this body blow by nature's under irrigation, farmers of the lower reaches of the Segura have begun to complain that irrigation abuses upstream have caused their trouble.

AGE-OLD LAW It doesn't matter that age-old laws protect their rights in the lower basin. Most of them can't remember when the Segura was rich, most of the sugar cane year.

Tourists Find Way Inside Kremlin

(EDITOR'S NOTE—The Kremlin, made up of several buildings in Moscow, is the governing center of the Soviet Union. Because of its nature, the word has come to indicate unusual secrecy and impenetrability. Here's a look at the parts open to tourists.)

By MICHAEL JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP) — Because of centuries of stormy Russian politics, the word Kremlin has acquired an ominous ring in the West.

Those massive, brick Kremlin walls have concealed some of history's most bizarre dealings—with principal characters ranging from medieval czars to Soviet dictator Joseph Stalin.

Most Kremlin business remains a well-kept secret today, but sections of the huge 15-building compound have been opened in recent years to Russian and foreign tourists.

Extensive restoration of its ancient structures now lends the Kremlin a spotless, if somewhat sterile, appearance probably equal to its original beauty.

TOURISM ENCOURAGED

Tourism is encouraged in the open section of the Kremlin and most Russians from the provinces consider a visit there essential during trips to Moscow. The golden domes of the Cathedral of the Annunciation and the belfry of Ivan the Great continue to dazzle visitors on sunny days, as they reportedly did Napoleon in 1812.

Touring the stone passages and the well-worn staircases inside the cathedrals, Russia's rich past comes to life. Priceless icons and the czar's caskets can be viewed within touching distance.

Russians who visit these once-sacred grounds often make no effort to hide their devout respect for the old Orthodox churches still standing in the new era of Soviet atheism. On a chill, autumn afternoon recently, two elderly women in woolen shawls paused silently in the opulent Cathedral of the Archangel and crossed themselves.

"This is a museum now," a young woman guide was telling a group of foreign visitors at the same moment. "Only a few old people from another generation come here for religious reasons."

On any typical day, the museums inside the Kremlin are packed with groups of simple Russian peasants and factory workers in town for brief visits.

Many of the old men dressed in the belted tunics of the 19th century peer at the old Bolshevik revolutionary relics with great curiosity, then shuffle off without a word.

MAGNIFICENT COLLECTION
Also on display is a magnificent collection of 18th and 19th century czarist carriages, clothing and household effects. The contrast between the extravagant wealth of the old nobility and today's drab masses is a striking scene in these museums.

Soviet leaders who maintain their daily offices in the Kremlin are kept apart from the mobs of workers, farmers and foreign tourists who swarm over the grounds daily.

Security is so strict that guides refuse to discuss the location of the leaders' quarters.

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin's office is known to be just a few hundred yards from the six churches inside the Kremlin walls. He greets foreign dignitaries in his wood-paneled office, where his six telephones, each of a different color, keep him in touch with his deputies and presumably with Leonid I. Brezhnev, Communist party general secretary.

A visitor who recently asked him who is on the other end of the red telephone got only a weak chuckle from the premier.

TOURIST ATTRACTION — The Kremlin in Moscow has more to offer tourists than traces of the fortress it once was or the citadel of Soviet communism which it is today. Within the brick walls stand palaces and cathedrals which are now open to visitors.

AP Photo

KREMLIN FACE-LIFT — Extensive restorations have been carried out on many of the architectural treasures of the Kremlin in Moscow. Seen here is the belfry of Ivan the Great, with a golden dome on one of the Kremlin's highest towers. Ivan (1440-1566) started work on the project, but it was not completed until nearly 100 years after his death.

In Waterford

Teachers Back Millage

The legislative body of the Waterford Education Association has endorsed the proposed nine-mill school tax increase but took no position on the $10.8-million bond issue for construction.

Robert Crumpton, executive secretary of the organization made up of teachers, said the two-year millage hike was reluctantly endorsed by the executive board and association representatives because they felt it would not be adequate to operate the school system effectively.

Crumpton said the "no-position" stand on the bond issue neither indicates approval nor disapproval. "The state and local school financial problems are going to have to be faced because school needs considerably exceed the degree the community support," he commented.

"Local people are going to have to alter the state plan of financing education or program reductions are inevitable. Voting down millage or bond issues aren't going to change state financing of education," he said.

BIGGEST BREAK
Ann-Margret's biggest break came in 1962 when she was asked, as a young film actress, to sing one of the five songs nominated for an Oscar. She stole the show with her swinging version of "Bachelor in Paradise" which was accompanied by some nifty footwork. Scarcely anyone remembered the song, but no one forgot Ann-Margret.

right, she wears a black wig for a Ruby Keeler sketch. She and her husband-manager, Roger Smith, see the show as one more stage toward the goal of superstardom.

After her few minutes on the Academy Awards show, her stock zoomed. She was signed for "Bye, Bye Birdie" with Dick Van Dyke; she was profiled in a men's magazine that specializes in illustrated stories of very pretty girls.

We wonder just how many readers can make three hand-norump with today's hand. South's three-heart bid shows both a sound no-trump and four hearts. It suggests that hearts might be a better spot to play the hand, needless to say, North prefers no-trump.

West opens the king of spades and will continue the suits until the ace is played by North.

Sweetan Returning Sunday to Detroit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The long, sometimes bitter rivalry between Michigan and Ohio State has seen some dramatic moments unparalleled in college football.

Seven times since 1942, these ancient foes have met in the season finale with a Big Ten championship hanging in the balance.

Saturday's struggle between the second-ranked Buckeyes and the fourth-ranked Wolverines is one of these seven.

ROSES IN SNOW

Easily the most unforgettable match in the 66-game series came in 1950 in the now famous "Blizzard Bowl."

Michigan, without benefit of a completed pass or first down and only 27 yards rushing, won it 9-3.

It started snowing Friday night and the weather bureau boldly stuck to its forecast of light snow. By game time, there was a half foot of snow on the ground, the temperature was 10 degrees and a biting wind of 28 m.p.h. lashed the heavily 50,535 souls in Ohio Stadium.

VOLUNTEERS HELP

Boy Scouts and other volunteers came out of the stands to help get the tarpaulin off the field. Vic Janowicz' 28-yard field goal in the first quarter gave the Bucks a 3-0 edge. It was snowing so hard you could hardly see the flight of the ball.

Michigan blocked a punt out of the end zone for a safety and then blocked another and this time covered it in the end zone for the game's only touchdown.

It was a bizarre contest and the phrase anything can happen in a Michigan-Ohio State game never was demonstrated better.

BUCKEYES UNBEATEN

Gone into the contest Saturday, Ohio State, unbeaten in eight starts and riding a 12-game winning streak, is shooting for its first unblemished season since 1954. Michigan, after an opening loss to California, has reeled off eight straight and both charge into the windup with 6-0 Big Ten records.

In 1942, '44, '54, and '55, the Bucks whipped Michigan to take the crown. The Wolverines emerged with the title by winning in 1950 and 1964.

STANDOFF BATTLE

In 1949, the two battled to a 7-7 stand-off but Ohio State won the Rose Bowl trip because Michigan had made a more recent appearance at Pasadena.

The Wolverines are one of the few teams to hold an edge over the Buckeyes with 37 victories against 23 losses and four ties.

A SAINT—Former Detroit Lions' QB Karl Sweetan, who played locally for Pontiac in the Midwest Football League, will start for the New Orleans Saints Sunday when they face the Lions at Tiger Stadium.

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

Guess who's coming to town Sunday? No, not Santa Claus.

He was a Firebird in Pontiac, a Lion in Detroit and he's now a Saint in New Orleans.

Of course, it's Karl Sweetan.

Sweetan will be at quarterback when the New Orleans Saints visit Tiger Stadium to meet the Detroit Lions Sunday.

The 24-year-old Texan predicted in the opening week of the season that when the Saints came to Detroit he would be starting.

Of course at that time he meant he would win the job away from veteran Bill Kilmer.

But as it happened, Kilmer suffered a broken ankle three weeks ago, and Sweetan has moved into the starter's role.

However, Sweetan himself was injured against the Browns and he has played with an ankle injury against Cleveland and also the Packers last week.

Rookie Ronnie Lee South is the backup quarterback for the Saints and he is also expected to play.

The Saints, like the Lions have won only three games this season, while losing seven; however they own a 20-17 victory over the Central Division leaders, the Minnesota Vikings.

Statistically, the Lions and Saints are also as close as their records.

New Orleans has 156 first downs for 10 games, and Detroit has 159. The Lions have the edge in running and the Saints in passing, with 88 by aeriels to 81 for the Lions.

The Saints are the passing team in the NFL, having attempts 396 and completed 148.

The Lions also lead in one passing department that is having only 10 aeriels intercepted.

Defensively, the Lions have a slight edge, having allowed an average of 297 yard per game, while the Saints have permitted their opposition 307 yards average per contest.

SWEETAN BITTER

Sweetan, whose home is in Dallas, was bitter about what he called "unfair treatment" while with the Lions.

He said the Lions blamed the poor 1967 season on the passing game which finished last in the NFL, while he and Milt Plum were sharing the duties at quarterback.

"They wanted a running game so badly they repeatedly told us to stay on the ground," Sweetan was quoted as saying.

At any rate, Sweetan who wanted once to play football only for the Lions, will now get his new wish for the season, to play and probably start against the Lions.

It will be the third time in the last four games that the Lions will face a team with an ex-quarterback; Earl Morrall two weeks ago with Baltimore, and the Rams three weeks ago, even though Milt Plum did not play against Detroit.

Honor for Tiger Ace

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers, who won three games in the World Series, was named Wednesday the October winner in the S. Rae Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year competition.

GRAYLING (AP) — The Bear Mountain ski park near Grayling will be open for skiing Saturday, the Eastern Michigan Tourist Association reported. It will be the first ski resort in the area to begin the winter season.

Tuohy, Janes, Conley All-Staters

'B' Honors Given County Trio

Five of the top 10 Class B teams in Michigan placed players on the 1968 All-State football team.

End Darrell Blackburn of top-ranked Riverview, running backs Steve Lefere of third-ranked Jackson Lumen Christi and Richard Kluge of fourth-place Mount Clemens Clintonville, guard Bill Valasco of seventh-ranked Monroe Catholic Central, and quarterback Gary Danielson of the No. 5 team Dearborn Divine Child, were all named to the first team.

Also making the first 11 were end Ron Maygar of Flint Bentley, tackle Bill Hart of Rockford and James of South Lyon, center Dave VanHuygen of Caledonia, guard Gary Schmidt of River Valley and halfback Tuohy of Cranbrook.

Blackburn, who is president of the National Honor Society at Riverview, led his team to a 9-0 record by scoring 10 touchdowns as a tight end on offense and was the team's second leading tackle on defense. Coach Don Leshner calls him "a tremendous leader and very dedicated athlete." He was captain of this year's team and was voted most valuable player by his teammates. Blackburn was also captain of the basketball team last year and was a starter on the baseball team.

Maygar caught 40 passes for 683 yards and nine touchdowns. He was a halfback on defense and was a three-year regular. Flint Bentley had an 8-1 record this season.

Rockford's (8-1) Bill Hart is the tallest player on this year's AP Class B All-State squad. He stands 6-foot-6 and weighs 210 pounds. But despite his size, he is said to have "a lightning like initial charge and often makes contact with his opponent before the latter realizes the ball has been snapped." On offense Hart is a pulling tackle who, according to observers, "is a great downfield blocker." He was the captain of the team and has a B-plus scholastic average.

Despite Janes' 235 pounds, he runs the 100-yard dash in 10.9 and was the third fastest player on a 7-1-1 South Lyon squad. He was a putting tackle on offense and a linebacker on defense. He was the team's second leading tackler and was a strong, powerful blocker.

Center VanHuygenen sparked a fine 7-1 record against top and fakes. He reportedly never failed to lead the team to first downs on quarterback sneaks. Valasco is considered the best player in the Twin Valley League and paced Monroe's 1,241 yards rushing and pass receiving and scored 13 touchdowns. Lefere returned in track and was selected to the All-League team the last two seasons. He intercepted five passes.

A four-year letterman, Schmidt made 76 unassisted tackles in eight games for River Valley (5-3). Coach Dave Thompson says Schmidt is "a real quick and has tremendous lateral movement. He's like a cat."

Quarterback Danielson scored 18 touchdowns and passed for eight. He completed 79 of 128 passes for 1,126 yards. His biggest game was against the University of Detroit High which Divine Child beat for the Detroit Catholic championship. In that game Danielson hit on 23 of 27 passes.

Lefere paced Lumen Christi fast but also has sharp moves to a fine 7-1 record against top and fakes.

Halback-Tuohy was a three-year starter who scored 16 touchdowns this year and 40 in his career at Cranbrook, which was 7-1 this year. He was captain and considered a smart runner and outstanding college prospect. Tuohy also threw four touchdowns passes.

Kluge was voted the most valuable player in the Bi-County League as Clintonville went undefeated in eight games. He rushed for 1,118 yards on 146 carries for a 7.9 average and 10 touchdowns. Kluge runs the 100 in 9.9 and is said to be not only a fine 7-1 record against top and fakes.

Hot Race Continues Among Eastern Fives

By The Associated Press

How do you keep a torrid race hot? Simple. Mix a pair of rattles with a root—at least that's the solution in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division title chase.

Ray Scott fired a late rally that carried Baltimore to a 114-110 conquest of San Diego Wednesday night, and Oscar Robertson and Adrian Smith led a rout that powered Cincinnati past San Francisco 113-107, while Boston bombed Seattle 139-92.

That left the Eastern race as much doled as even. Baltimore, which has won 10 of its last 11 games, remains first, but Boston is only a half-game behind and third-place Cincinnati is just a game off the pace.

Atlanta knocked off New York 111-106 in a game marked by flying lemmings and flying fists in the NBA's only other scheduled activity.

ABA RESULTS
In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky defeated Denver 109-101, Indiana rolled past Houston 106-94, Miami routed New York 141-126 and Oakland stopped Los Angeles 129-123.

Scott, who was having a bad night from the floor, recovered in time to score six points in the final four minutes in guiding the Bullets to their 10th straight over San Diego in two seasons.

Jim Barnett, who scored a career high 36 points, sparked a rally that boosted the Rockets from a nine-point deficit in the third quarter to a narrow lead in the final period.

But then Scott, who had managed only six of 17 shots from the floor and only one of eight in the first half, hit three baskets to give Baltimore control.

Earl Monroe had 28 points for the Bullets, while rookie Elvin Hayes, benched part of the time because of foul trouble, scored 28 and had 23 rebounds for the Rockets.

Robertson finished with 29 points and Nate Thurmond had 27 for the Warriors.
Eight players scored in double figures for Boston with Tom Sanders and John Havlicek leading the way with 21 points each. Rookie Art Harris was high for Seattle with 16.

LEADING WOLVERINES — Halfback Ron Johnson (left), and quarterback Dennis Brown, chatting with coach Bump Elliott, will lead the Michigan Wolverines against the Ohio State Buckeyes Saturday in Columbus, O. The winner of the contest moves into the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day. Michigan is hoping for a repeat performance from Johnson, who rolled up 347 yards rushing last Saturday in the Wolverines' 34-9 win over Wisconsin.

U. of M. Captain Inspires

Johnson Leads Wolverines

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Ron Johnson, Michigan's on-and-off-the-field double threat, could make a big difference when the Wolverines and Ohio State meet in Columbus Saturday for the Big Ten Conference football title and a bid to the Rose Bowl.

Leadership ability is a quality that is hard to pin down, but everyone agrees that the great tailback from Detroit can lead just about as well as he can run. And that is very well indeed.

Johnson's teammates recognized that ability last spring when they elected Johnson the captain. Wolverine Coach Bump Elliott spotted it when he saw Johnson's 346 yards in rushing and five touchdowns against Wisconsin last week.

"I just think it's instinct," Elliott said.

GETS BLOCKING

"He's a strong runner and has great instincts. And the men on the ball club like to block for him. That's the kind of guy he is," Elliott said.

Johnson is a quiet fellow and Michigan, as Johnson himself put it, is not a "scream-and-bang-on-the-walls kind of team."

The Wolverines don't fire up for a game by being whipped into a frenzy. After a game, even after a big victory over

Michigan State or Minnesota, the atmosphere in the dressing room is subdued.

Good leadership is at least half inspiration and Johnson seems to inspire by doing. After the Wolverines opened their season with a humiliating, 21-7 loss to California, they went down to North Carolina to play Duke.

Just before the game, Johnson stood up on the bench in the dressing room and said simply:

"You bleed, I'll bleed and they'll bleed."

EARLY SEASON

On the field, Johnson showed them what he meant. He picked up 285 yards rushing, more than three times the total of the Duke team, and led the Wolverines to a 31-0 victory that started them on the championship path.

Johnson also has inspired the team with his optimism. Just after the Michigan State game, when the Wolverines had a 3-1 record that nobody took seriously, Johnson said they would go on to win the rest of their games and that he would play his last game in maize and blue at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif.

Johnson's great determination has won him the respect of rival coaches as well as that of his fans and teammates. After every game this season, opposing coaches have cited Johnson as the key to the Wolverine success.

And Ohio State will be watching out for him, too.

"Johnson has good size, speed, ability and balance," says Buckeye Assistant Coach Enzo Sarkinen. "But his extraordinary physique gives him the ability to shake off tacklers. He cuts well and picks up blockers impressively."

Golfing Legend Awaits Release From Hospital

ATLANTA (AP) — The private secretary of Robert Tyre Jones Jr. says the ailing grand slam king of golf hopes to be home from the hospital by the end of this week.

The secretary, Jean Marshall, said Jones called for some business papers Wednesday and went through them. "He told me he hoped to be home before next week, and we think he's doing just beautifully," she said.

Jones entered Emory University Hospital June 8 to undergo surgery for a chronic sinus condition.

Montreal Skaters Withstand Red Wings' Rally for 3-2 Win

MONTREAL — Yvan Cournoyer's third-period goal gave Montreal a 3-2 victory over Detroit Wednesday night and kept the Canadiens just a point in back of New York in the National Hockey League's East Division race.

Boating Event at Coast Site

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The 1969 Gold Cup speedboat classic will be held in San Diego, Calif., which submitted a high bid among five cities of $38,000.

The bid was made at the American Power Boat Association convention here and announced Wednesday by President Les Brown of Worth, Ill.

The Gold Cup will be raced in the last week in September, Brown said.

Brown, 42, was elected in a mail vote. He ran unopposed and succeeds Bob Wanamaker of New Hartford, N.Y.

Others elected are Paul Kalb, Waukegan, Ill., senior vice president; William A. Boye Sr., Wilmette, Ill., and David D. Chalk, Fishers Landing, N.Y., secretary.

Detroit's Bob Baum slipped in a goal at 14:22 of the second period but Cournoyer provided the clincher early in the final session.

In other games, Chicago's Dave Dryden made 40 saves and blanked Minnesota 2-0, Phil Goyette set up three goals and scored the other in New York's 4-2 victory over Los Angeles.

Toronto dropped Pittsburgh 5-2, and the St. Louis Blues blanked Oakland, 7-0.

Glenn Hall, who appeared in a mask for the first time a week ago in New York and was picked up three assists against Oakland's rookie goalie, Chris York rallied for three goals to beat the Kings.

Donnie Marshall, playing his 950th NHL game, scored twice, box and picked up a lead pass before Bob Pulford tied the game.

Hawks took the lead when deeper in the West Division Jim Pappin had then Pulford set up Larry Ellis and Dave Keon pumped in late goals eight seconds apart to pressured him early. The Black period goals to drop Pittsburgh beat the Penguins held a 2-1 lead on Cesare the score for the Maple Leafs.

Don't Look Now but Hoople Picks U. of M.

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE / Now on with the forecast. Fearless Forecaster

Egad, friends, the title on counter between Ohio State and Michigan might be called the "Poll Bowl".

Riding on the outcome, in addition to the Big Ten crown and a Rose Bowl bid, is possible top-of-the-ladder rating in the major polls. The Ohio State Buckeyes go into the contest rated No. 2 in the nation, and Michigan holds the No. 4 spot.

After due deliberation and personal visits by this correspondent to the secret workbooks of these two explosive eleven, the Hoople System forecasts a Wolverine victory by a narrow 24-20 count harumph!

And now for THE GAME — Harvard vs. Yale — the one that sets the nerves tingling in your Fearless Forecaster.

The old-timers among you will remember that your faithful correspondent first gained athletic prominence spearheading the famed Flying Wedge for the Yale varsity — Boole-Boole!

But that, alas, was long ago and today we have a new set of heroes who have carried the Old Blue to 16 straight victories and the Harvard club to eight consecutive triumphs. In fact, not since 1909 have these two great competitors — both 8-0 in '68 — come into THE GAME undefeated.

While bowing to no man in my admiration of the football talents of the John Harvard lads, I predict the Eli juggernaut, led by the incomparable Brian Dowling and the game-breaking Calvin Hill, will prevail in this 65th renewal, 33-22 — hak-kaff!

Despite the inclement weather — rain, mud and snow — which plagued the collegiate gridiron last Saturday, the Hoople Forecast recorded an amazing performance, compiling a 100 percent astronomical 784 average with 40 correct selections and 11 misses!

A.P. Wirephoto

STILL LOOKING — Coach Joe Kuharich of the Philadelphia Eagles showed these expressions as the Eagles were suffering their 10th straight defeat Sunday, a 7-6 loss to the New York Giants. Right now they're the only winless club in pro football and they'll be looking for win No. 1 when they take on the tough Cleveland Browns Sunday.

Ballman, Ditka Return

Talkative Eagles Reinstated

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Star pass receivers Mike Ditka and Gary Ballman have been returned to active status by Joe Kuharich, the Philadelphia Eagles' general manager and coach, and being suspended Tuesday as "troublemakers."

Kuharich, who announced the reactivation at an afternoon practice session in which both players participated, said the "temporary suspensions of Mike Ditka and Gary Ballman were lifted this Wednesday morning after an extensive discussion with both players."

CRITICIZE OFFENSE

Both Ditka and Ballman, in personal appearances and interviews Monday with sports writers in New York, had criticized the offense of the Eagles, winless this season in 10 National Football League games.

Kuharich said, "There was no need for action of any type after a harmonious conversation relative to recent newspaper commentary."

He charged that "the entire situation was magnified completely out of proportion."

Ditka, an eight-year veteran light end, was quoted as saying he wanted to return to Philadelphia next season but would not play for Kuharich.

The four-time All-Pro, acquired two seasons ago from the Chicago Bears, insisted that what he said was: Kuharich didn't want him and that he didn't want to play for anyone who didn't want him.

The 28-year-old Ballman, whom the Eagles also picked up two years ago in a trade with the Pittsburgh Steelers, said Philadelphia had a stereotyped one-two run and kick offense which disdained the long pass and failed to keep the defense honest.

The suspensions had even brought action from Philadelphia city officials.

READY TO GO — Coach Dave Wenzel and his tri-captains at Auburn Hills enjoy a lighter moment as they work out for their opening game against Penta Tech Saturday night at Hazel Park High School. The three captains are (from left) Keith Stuhl, Ron Kirkwood and Glen Lenhoff. The Nikes of Oakland Community College were 16-4 last year. This will be Wenzel's debut as head coach of the squad.

U.S. Wins Jumping Cup

TORONTO (AP) — The U.S. riding White Lightning, clinched the victory when they scored only 8 1/2 faults in the final round.

This, combined with eight faults in the first round by Mrs. Chapot and her husband, Frank, on San Lucas, gave the U.S. a total of 18 1/2 faults, 10 1/2 faults clearing 28 obstacles in two less than the second-place Canadian team.

Other Nations Cup victories came at Wembley, England; Dublin; Ostend, Belgium; Rotterdam, The Netherlands, and at New York City.

Wolves' Gridders Receive Awards

Halfback Rich Porritt was awarded the Most Valuable Player honor at the Clarkson football banquet Monday night. He also shared the captains award with Eric Hood. Both are seniors.

Senior center Bill Burton was named the "Most Improved" and 11 international jumping events seniors Bill Anderson, a guard for the over-all team champion, and defensive end, and halfback ship: United States 72; Canada 48; Britain 44; Australia 30, and of the "Hard-Nose" award. Brazil 16.

Hopes of U.S. in Davis Cup at Low Ebb

LONDON (AP) — Hopes of the United States winning back the Davis Cup tennis trophy from Australia next month were at a low ebb today.

Arthur Ashe and Clark Graebner were ordered by doctors Wednesday to take a rest from tennis. Ashe, the U.S. Open champion from Richmond, Va., has an injured right elbow.

Graebner, of New York, was sent home with a strained back.

It is a worrying situation, said Donald Dell, captain of the U.S. team.

Ashe said he hopes "this trouble will clear up if I rest for a week or so."

Dell added "the doctor said it would be unfair to expose Arthur to high international competition when his right elbow is so sore."

Graebner was told by Dr. Ogden Clark not to play tennis again for three weeks. That would leave him only two weeks practice before the Davis Cup challenge round in Australia starting Dec. 26.

Auburn Hills' Nikes in Home Debut

There are a few "lffy" points when the Nikes of Auburn Hills trying to shore up the defensive trell and 5-10 guard Bob-day night. Garth Pleasant of new coach Dave Wenzel will open the 1968-69 basketball phase of their game.

Wenzel has seven lettermen EVEN RECORD season against visiting Penta Tech.

The game is slated for 8 p.m. at Hazel Park High School.

Being new is a problem in itself, but Wenzel may have a few others. Moving out after their two-year stay at the branch of Oakland Community College were top-flight players Harold Reiser, Ed Hoffmann and Tom Cox.

TOP SCORER BACK

But a bright spot for the Nikes and Wenzel is the return of Glen Lenhoff, scoring champion in the Michigan Junior College Athletic Association.

The Nikes compiled a 16-8 mark in '67-68 with Lenhoff compiling a 29-points-a-game average. The Nikes are essentially a running team, normally high scoring and Wenzel is busy the other letter winners on Then Grand Rapids Baptist coach Bill Shinsky a good idea the squad are 6-6 Bob McKab, Bible will invade the MCJC of the Warriors' strength in the 6-3 Kurt Ranney. 6-6 Tom Cot-court at the same time Satur-new race.

Robert's Birthday, John's Death

Kennedys Memorialize, Mourn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy family has commemorated the birthday of one with some of his and Robert's children. Friday they mourned the murder of a son.

The Roman Catholic priest who administered last rites to President John F. Kennedy, assassinated Nov. 22, 1963, celebrated a Mass in Dallas Friday.

Mass will also be recited in churches near the Georgetown home used by President Kennedy before moving into the White House and in New York where his widow, Jacqueline Onassis, lives.

Mrs. Onassis went to St. Thomas More's Church Wednesday for one of two New York masses in memory of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, who would have been 43 Wednesday.

EDDY TO ARLINGTON — The youngest and sole survivor of the four Kennedy sons — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy — visited Arlington National Cemetery Wednesday in memory of Robert's birth at the Church of the Holy Family where Edward's wife, Joan, Kennedy sisters Jean Smith and Pat Lawford, and several of the former president's New Frontier advisers.

Archbishop Terence Cooke celebrated the Mass. Another Kennedy sister, Eunice Shriver, and her husband, Sargent, dedicated the Place du President Kennedy Wednesday at Angers, France.

The Very Rev. Oscar L. Huber will celebrate the Mass in Dallas Friday, but there will be no special observances at Dealey Plaza, near where Kennedy was shot.

A $100,000 memorial two blocks from the Plaza won't be completed until sometime after next October.

Four Coal Miners Describe Their Escape From Inferno

MANNINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Their nine-man crew not resistance and scene of smoke and flames. "He left his dinner bucket behind and a dust mask in quiet rooms in nearby Fairview Hospital. They "I volunteered to go look for him on the ground. I searched both had lived through the scorching Paul," Davis said. "He was supposed to be about 1,000 feet back from the mine and feared dead.

The four talked quietly about a young man lost in a mine. "Men underground are like that still staged beneath the rich brothers. We try to take care of each other. I'm afraid for Paul. "The Lord was with us," said Lewis Lake, 35, a mine veteran since 1946. "I can't quit now. I'm going back. Sure, I'm going back in "1,000 FEET BACK"

Mali Coup Linked to Power Struggle

CONAKRY, Guinea (AP) — A struggle for supremacy in Mali between a Red Guard militia and the army, and efforts by Mali's government to relieve a financial squeeze with French help were cited here today as reasons for the downfall of President Modibo Keita.

There was no reply from Mali's new military regime to an invitation from President Sekou Toure of Guinea to join him and the chiefs of state of Mauritania and Senegal, Mali's other western neighbors, at a meeting here.

The government radio in Bamako continued to broadcast martial music and appeals to the people to tear down portraits of the 53-year-old, 6-foot-3 Keita, who had led the big desert country in West Africa since it gained independence from France in 1960.

Keita was understood to be under arrest in Bamako, the capital.

STRONG TURN

spurred French "neo-colonialism," and in 1962 took his country out of the French currency bloc. As a result, Mali's franc had no French backing and was virtually worthless outside Mali.

Along with Guinea's Toure, Keita has appeared less enamored of Peking in recent years and last year began drawing closer to France again. The French government agreed to back the Mali franc starting last April 1 and to resume aid to the government on condition that it clean up a financial setup that included 23 state enterprises overloaded with unproductive employees.

The cleanup threatened further unemployment in a country of 5 million persons that is twice the size of Texas but has generally poor land.

Persons recently in Mali say no cleanup was even attempted, and the French were annoyed at withdrawals from a backing fund which gave France power over the economy.

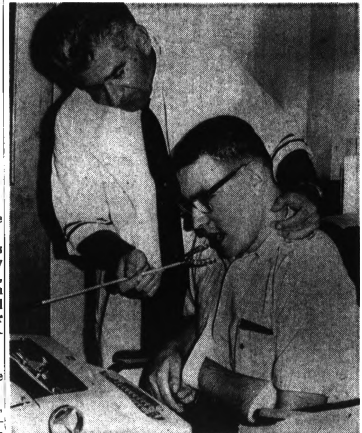

YOUNG RADICALS

Meanwhile, young radicals were attacking corruption within the government and demanding that Keita clean that up.

Guinean sources believe the coup was of a right-wing character, favoring the French and threatening the large Soviet and Chinese Communist interests in Mali.

According to reports from Bamako, the young members of the militia which Keita established were trying to cut the power of the 3,500-man army, which is commanded by corps of officers who fought with the French army in Algeria and Vietnam before 1960.

The army has been equipped by the Soviet Union and includes 100 paratroopers trained by the Americans, who maintained a military mission in Bamako.

A HELPING HAND — Dr. Paul Ehrlich of the University of Southern California fits Jack Achtenberg with an "extra hand" Ehrlich made, Achtenberg, 27, a law student, is paralyzed. He had worn a groove in his lower teeth typing notes and reports with a stick held in his teeth. The new device distributes the pressure to all the teeth.

Paralyzed Law Student Gets Hand From Dentist

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California has come to the aid of Jack Achtenberg, a Loyola Law School student who has had to type his notes and reports for three years by striking the keys with a stick held between his teeth.

Achtenberg, 27, lost the use of his arms and his legs were partly paralyzed by a spinal injury received in a bicycle accident in 1965.

The third-year law student had worn a one-eighth-inch groove in his lower front teeth when Achtenberg's dentist asked the USC Dental School to fashion a device for the patient to type without losing his teeth.

Achtenberg was fitted Wednesday with a special metal splint that exerts the leverage of all his teeth rather than just the front ones.

GOOD SET USEFUL — "A good set of teeth is about as useful as an extra hand for a person in my position," said Achtenberg.

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — A new NATO air arm to keep a better watch on the Soviet Union's growing naval strength in the Mediterranean went into operation today under the command of an admiral from North Carolina.

Rear Adm. Edward Outlaw, a native of Greenville, N.C., was installed as chief of Maritime Air Forces Mediterranean, or MarAirMed, in a ceremony attended by top military commanders of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and by NATO Secretary General Manlio Brosio of Italy.

The ceremony included a flypast by the four types of aircraft used in the surveillance operation that will track the movements of Soviet ships across the 2,000 miles of the Mediterranean basin. They are American P-3 Neptune, British Shackletons, and Italian S-2s and SH-3 helicopters.

In the initial phase of the new operation only planes from the United States, Britain and Italy will be used. NATO officers explained that Greece and Turkey lack aircraft for long-range surveillance and that France, the other NATO member in the Mediterranean, is expected to contribute information to Outlaw's command without being a formal part of it.

Police said bank employees in the suburb of St. Louis identified pictures of the men they said took an undetermined amount of money.

The holdup men forced a teller to accompany them to several cages and into the vault. One was armed with a short-barrel revolver, the other with a military carbine.

SELECT PICTURES

No one was injured. The pictures selected by witnesses were those of Patrick D. Kane, 43, of Pacific, Mo., and Dale G. Wilson, 24, of Shreveport, La. The duo overpowered their guards while being transferred from the Leavenworth, Kan., Penitentiary to the U.S. District Court in St. Louis.

Tuesday the escapees were named suspects in the robbery couple in a Chicago motel, in the rape of the bride.

Two men terrorized the couple for more than three hours before leaving in the couple's car with their wedding gifts.

Vietnam War Hero Likes Saving Lives

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — "I have no easy task for the philosophical teenager."

His first Purple Heart came after being shot in the foot while with an ambush patrol. After three weeks in a hospital, he was back at the front.

His second Purple Heart was awarded after he suffered burns when an enemy rocket exploded while he was riding in an armored personnel carrier. He was back in action in two weeks.

The Bronze Star and his third Purple Heart came when Larson was caught in intense enemy fire. He helped the wounded to a helicopter rescue ship and, although wounded himself, continued to rescue his comrades.

WORKS ALONG — Larson won the Silver Star when all the medics in his unit but himself were rescued. He had to work alone for three days. Once, he had to rescue a U.S. soldier so exhausted by the fighting he headed into enemy lines.

The Army Commendation Medal was awarded for meritorious service in Vietnam. After his discharge, the Spokane youth hopes to study nursing at a nearby college. Meanwhile, he has been assigned to the 1st Armored Cavalry Regiment, 8th Squadron, Aviation Co. at Ft. Knox, Ky.

Teen Enters Guilty Plea in Cobo Slaying

DETROIT (AP) — "This boy grabbed for my knife and I stuck him." — a 16-year-old Detroit youth said in court Wednesday before he pleaded guilty to second-degree murder of a high school band musician.

Freddie Lane entered his plea in the fatal stabbing April 20, 1967, of George Overman Jr., 15, of Detroit, son of the former Director of the Detroit Police Department. Band. He was killed during a reported argument with two youths at Cobo Hall prior to a concert.

Lane originally was charged with first-degree murder. But he was allowed to plead to the lesser charge before Judge Geraldine B. Ford of Recorder's (Criminal) Court.

He was 15 at the time of the slaying and ordinarily would have come under Juvenile Court jurisdiction.

However, Juvenile Court Judge James H. Lincoln waived jurisdiction, noting at the time that Lane had been in previous trouble with police and was considered "dangerous and also very retarded."

Officials Seek Way to Give Hero Wish

DETROIT (AP) — Officials are looking into ways of granting the No. 1 wish of Michigan's first Medal of Honor winner, former Army tank driver Dwight H. Johnson of Detroit.

Johnson, 20, wants to have his mother and deported stepfather reunited after a 12-year enforced separation.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., has begun looking into the prospects of allowing Johnson's stepfather, Brenton Alves, a native of Jamaica, to return to the United States from London, England, where he currently is living.

HAPPY FACES IN VIETNAM — Some South Vietnamese boys look through the barbed wire fence which surrounds a military compound. They live near the temporary Special Forces camp in Tri Ton, 100 miles northwest of Saigon in the Mekong Delta.

2 Sentenced in City Holdup

Prison terms were ordered yesterday for two Pontiac youths involved in the holdup of a city dry-cleaning firm last week.

Sentenced by Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Bear were Andrew Shirley, 18, of 420 Branch and Jessie L. James, 20, of 119 Prospect.

Shirley was sentenced from 7 to 25 years in the state prison at Jackson and James was sentenced from 5 to 25 years.

Drive Is Started to Aid County Family of Eight

A drive to collect food, clothing, furniture and money for the Dillard Brewer family burned out of its Independence Township home yesterday has been launched by Mrs. Herschel Samsen, 4681 Paramus, Independence Township.

She said donations may be placed in her garage. Any organizations willing to help are welcome.

The Brewer family, consisting of the mother and father and six children, was displaced from Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital after surgery for a beating allegedly by a gang.

The European stalling, the bane of those charged with keeping public buildings clean, was first brought to America in 1890 by a zealous group that planned to introduce all the birds mentioned by Shakespeare.

WHAT HAVE YOU GOT TO GAIN?

'Jeep' Wagoneer

The Extra Safety Car: 'Jeep' Wagoneer with 4-Wheel Drive

Traffic? Skiddy roads? Slippery hills? Sand? Snow? Shift into 'Jeep' 4-wheel drive and you've got twice the safety going for you. The front wheels pull while the rear wheels push . . . provides a glue-like grip at all four corners. And the Wagoneer provides plenty of everything else, too . . . like visibility, loadspace, comfort. And scads of options: 230 horsepower V-8 engine, automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, luggage rack, air conditioning, and more. Anything wrong with all that? Especially when 4 wheel drive is standard? Come in today for a traction demonstration drive in America's safest family wagon . . . the 'Jeep' Wagoneer with 4 wheel drive.

Hal Price Scorns Formality in Opening His Hit, 'Zorba'

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Are Broadway's famous "first nights" doomed because they're too dressy and stuffy and make the actors too self-conscious?

Producer Hal Price hopes so. He deliberately opened "Zorba" over four nights, and at the final "opening" the other night at the Imperial he wore a four-in-hand polka dot tie instead of the usual black tie. Very few men were in dinner jacket. (I was one of the idiots who was.)

Price said he wasn't trying to influence other producers; just trying to run his own show sensibly.

"A lot of people who got coarsened up for 'first nights,'" he said, "aren't really theatergoers. They don't go any other time of the year."

Since the Herschel Bernardi-Maria Kaniwala "Zorba" got a lot of rave reviews, and since hardly anybody objected to getting dressed up, we may be ending another era.

The new thrilling duo around town is James Mason and Peggy Cass (recently on "What's My Line?"). They were in a movie together in Australia — "How to Handle a Woman." by Jani Gardner, has one suggestion: "Kiss her face." I tried it, but should have taken her shoes off first.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Ronan & Martin! No to film titled "The Maltese Bippy" . . . Ann-Margret and husband Roger Smith dined at Kippy's while a batch of autograph kids waited outside for 'em till after midnight . . . Jane Morgan, doing a two-night at the Royal Box plus rehearsing her "Mame" role, says she stays peppy with vitamins—and standing on her head five minutes a day . . . Peggy Cass trudged into Gallagher's in ski clothes, sleeping her skis; she'll schuss in Austria soon.

An "underground" film actress came to a midtown restaurant to meet her date, then remembered she'd forgotten to put on a dress under her fur coat . . . Prince Rainier invaded, through an intermediary, if he could invest in the vast Astro dome complex. Judge Hofheinz sent word, Sorry, it's a family affair.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Some stores are decorated for Christmas, but Dean Martin's already lit for New Year's Eve.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A true sports fan is a guy who leaves a topless show to get the football results.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "History is the cemetery of men who believed they were sure they were indispensable."

EARL'S PEARLS: Mike Darrow got a fan letter from a man who enthused about his "Dream House TV'er," because if my wife wasn't home watching it, she'd be "booping."

Virginia Graham asked Liddy Byden if he had to wear his glasses often. "Only for writing letters," he said, "—or for finding the post office." . . . That's carl, brother.

Hopes Fade for 78 Still in Coal Mine

MANNINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Dense smoke and intense heat kept rescue teams today from entering a coal mine where 78 men are trapped by a series of explosions and a fire.

Twenty-one men were rescued after the explosions early yesterday thundered through the Mountaineer Coal Co. No. 9 mine in north-central West Virginia.

“There’s almost no hope of getting the trapped men, out alive,” said Harry Turner, safety inspector for Consolidation Coal Co., Mountaineer’s parent firm.

If the initial explosion and fire didn’t get to the men, Turner said, “It’s possible that collapses within the mine caused by the heat and concussion would do them in.”

13 FLEE TO SURFACE

Thirteen of the 99 men in the mine when the first blast hit at 5:40 a.m. rushed to the surface. A giant crane pulled eight others from a ventilation shaft.

“We must wait until the flames die down,” said William Poundstone, executive vice president of Consolidation. “Rescue operations are still impossible because of the density of the fire.”

Company officials are expected to elaborate today on rescue plans. They indicated no move toward rescue would be made before this afternoon because of the intense heat.

Four of the men who made it out were put under observation at nearby Fairmont General Hospital. None was considered in serious condition.

WE COULDN'T SEE

“The Lord was with us,” said Lewis Lake, 55, a mine veteran from Owings,

Related Story, Page D-10

W. Va. “He brought us through because we couldn’t see a thing.”

Alva Davis, 28, of nearby Farmington, also was in the group pulled from a ventilation shaft, thought of the crew’s ninth man, Paul Frank Anderson, 24, who didn’t make it.

“Paul must have run toward the Llewellyn,” Davis said from his hospital bed, referring to a mine entrance. “He left his dinner bucket behind and a dust mask on the ground.”

“I left him a note in case he comes back, telling him where we went,” Davis said. “I wrote it on the coal car with my finger in coal dust.”

WE DON'T KNOW

Poundstone said yesterday he had no way of knowing if the 78 men were alive. “They may have barricaded themselves,” he said. He would not estimate how long rescue operations would last.

Leslie Ryan, inspector at large for the West Virginia Department of Mines, agreed with Turner’s pessimism on rescuing the trapped men.

Mayor Elected for Sylvan Lake

John Roeper of 1565 Lakeview was elected mayor of Sylvan Lake by unanimous vote at a special City Commission meeting last night.

John M. Hanson of 2440 Garland was elected mayor pro tem. Both terms are for one year.

Roeper, who had been mayor pro tem for the last year, is an appliance service foreman at Consumers Power Co. He has been on the council since September 1966 when he was appointed to fill a vacancy. He was elected to a regular term in 1967.

Hanson, a councilman since 1962, was also mayor in 1965. He was originally elected in June 1966 to fill a vacancy and reelected in the regular election in November 1966. Hanson, president of the Michigan Credit Counselors, also was elected by a unanimous vote last night.

A public hearing on the proposed renewal of the current franchise with Detroit Edison Co. for electricity was set for the regular meeting Dec. 11.

Pontiac Born 150 Years Ago

By LOUIS H. BURBEY

It was 150 years ago this month that Stephen Mack, a prominent Detroit retailer and contractor, walked into the U.S. Land Office in Detroit and arranged with Clerk Peter Audrain for the purchase of 1,280 acres of wilderness land which was to have a profound influence on the eventual settlement of Michigan and the creation of Oakland County with its county seat to be located at a place to be known as Pontiac.

Mack’s initial 1,280-acre purchase comprised the heart of present-day Pontiac, that is, all of Section 29, the north half and southwest one-quarter of Section 28 and the northeast one-quarter of Section 32.

Present day boundaries of these tracts are approximately Tregent Street and Grandview on the north; East Boulevard to Michigan, Rosebloom to Auburn and Wide Track to Gillespie Street on the east. On the west, Grant-Williams and Johnson streets.

Purchase price for this 1,280-acre tract was $2 an acre with 25 per cent down ($320) with three equal annual payments at 6 per cent on the unpaid balance.

Mack’s purchase was made on behalf of a Detroit syndicate known as The Pontiac Co. organized Nov. 5, 1818.

The company consisted of William Woodbridge, Solomon Sibley, John L. Whiting, Austin E. Wing, David C. McKinstry, Benjamin Stead, Henry L. Hunt, Abraham Edwards, Alexander

Nixon Stretches Florida Talks on Cabinet Choices

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, stretching his stay in Florida, is conducting discussions about the men who will make up his Cabinet, and the policies with which he will guide them.

But these deliberations are being described publicly only in the most broad and general terms. And the names under consideration are a carefully shielded secret.

The president-elect planned another round of manpower and policy talks today before heading back to New York, his nominal headquarters for the period of government transition.

Key participants in the current talks are Lt. Gov. Robert Finch of California, and John N. Mitchell, a partner in the Nixon law firm who served as his campaign manager.

A POSSIBILITY

Cabinet posts for both men are considered a possibility and a Nixon spokesman said their personal roles in the administration had been discussed.

Sources in the Nixon camp said Finch can decide for himself whether he will take a position on the White House staff or accept a Cabinet-rank job.

Ronald L. Ziegler, a special assistant to Nixon, said there have been no final decisions yet on any Cabinet or sub-Cabinet posts. Nixon does not intend to announce any such appointments before Dec. 5.

Ziegler did, however, have one news item. On Saturday, the Nixons will announce in New York the plans for the wedding of their daughter, Julie, to David Eisenhower.

Cloudy Skies Due; Chance of Snow

Skies will be partly overcast for the next few days, with a chance of light snow tonight.

Temperatures are expected to become a little warmer. Tonight’s predicted low will be 34 to 38 and tomorrow the mercury may be near 40. Partly cloudy skies with little temperature change is the outlook for Saturday.

Precipitation probabilities in per cent are 10 today, 30 tonight and 20 tomorrow. A breeze 26 was the low recording in downtown Pontiac preceding 8 a.m. The reading was 33 at 12:30 p.m.

Fishermen Net Big One

CHERBOURG, France (U) — The catch was harder to pull in than usual early today and the crew of the French trawler La Belle Poule went to the side to see what the trouble was.

The crew found the 1120-ton British submarine Alaric tangled in the nets, the fishing boat’s skipper reported. The incident occurred in the English Channel about 30 miles from Cherbourg.

Joseph Barbara Leaves Courtroom

By TOM GRAY

Reputed Mafia figure Joseph M. Barbara, 32, of Fraser was bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court yesterday for trial following a lengthy pretrial examination on a charge of extortion.

Farmington Township Justice of the Peace Byron Walters conducted the examination, which lasted about 15 hours in two sessions in Farmington Municipal Court.

Barbara, president and owner of the Tri-County Sanitation Co., Detroit, was arrested Oct. 18 on charges that he extorted $4,000 in cash and valuables from Mrs. Delores Lazaros, 34, of Troy by threatening the lives of her 9-year-old son and husband.

Barbara was released on continued $50,000 bond pending Circuit Court trial, at a date still to be set.

CROSS EXAMINATION

Yesterday’s session the second in the examination, consisted of cross-examination of Mrs. Lazaros by Joseph Louisell, Barbara’s attorney.

In earlier testimony two weeks ago, Mrs. Lazaros had revealed that she had asked Barbara for help in freeing her husband from prison, where he was serving on a four-to-eight-year sentence on a 1962 fraud conviction.

She also accused Barbara of raping her. Barbara still faces pretrial examination on the rape charge.

Louisell attempted to discredit Mrs. Lazaros’ testimony by questioning her closely on apparent inconsistencies between statements she made during the examination and an earlier statement she gave to Assistant County Prosecutor John Bain on Oct. 18.

DID SHE SEE IT?

In one instance, Louisell’s questioning centered around whether Mrs. Lazaros had seen Barbara physically take the $4,000 from a jewel box in her home.

Mrs. Lazaros said she had not but claimed that she had seen Barbara with the money, some legal papers, and “something shiny” which “might have been a ring.”

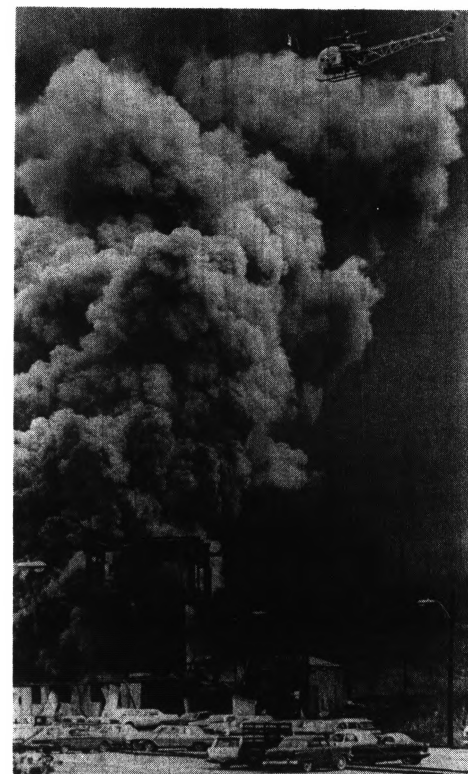

Louisell then denied that there had been a crime of extortion, citing Mrs. Lazaros’ testimony that “there was no conversation” between her and Barbara about the money.

However, Walters, noting that she had testified that Barbara had threatened her son and husband and that she made no attempt to interfere when Barbara allegedly took the money, ruled it was “reasonable to believe” the crime of extortion had taken place nevertheless.

Lazaros, released from prison Oct. 10 by a federal court order to appeal his conviction, reportedly has detailed much of the Mafia’s area activities to investigators.

He has been under protective custody in his home since his release from jail.

Barbara is the son of Joseph Barbara Sr., who hosted the 1967 meeting at Apalachin, N.Y., where 61 alleged underworld leaders were arrested.

Heart Expert Blasts FDA on Food Fats

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (U) — The Food and Drug Administration is being “unscientific, unrealistic, harsh and archaic,” in its rulings concerning the fats in foods that people buy, a heart specialist says.

Consumers cannot find out whether foods contain the kind of fats recommended by many heart specialists as likely to help ward off heart attacks, said Dr. Jeremiah Stamler of Chicago.

An FDA ruling forbids manufacturers to give this information on the labels on their products, he said.

The labels should compel manufacturers to list the contents of animal or vegetable fats, or saturated and polyunsaturated fats in their products, Stamler told a new conference at the opening of the American Heart Association’s annual meeting.

SUPPORTED BY GROUP

Behind his charge, supported in a recent official statement from the heart association, is the belief of many heart specialists that a change from the usual American diet can help protect against heart attacks.

One major change recommended is to reduce the intake of saturated fats, coming mostly from animal sources, and to increase consumption of polyunsaturated fats, derived mostly from vegetable oils.

Stamler said the FDA several years ago took the stand that there was no solid evidence of a relationship between fats and cholesterol in food intake and atherosclerosis, the artery-clogging disease that underlies most heart attacks.

Further, it ruled manufacturers could not advertise that any foods could help protect against heart attacks, or list the composition of fats in products.

Not just the food people eat, but other habits seem to increase susceptibility to heart attacks, other speakers said. Lack of exercise and physical activity, being overweight and smoking cigarettes are among these habits, they said.

Breakthrough Foreseen in Bid to Bolster Franc

BONN, Germany (AP) — Pressure on West Germany to revalue its mark ebbed and there were signs of a breakthrough today in talks by the Western world's top money managers to solve the latest international monetary crisis, German officials reported.

"The outlines for a solution are beginning to emerge," said West German Finance Minister Franz Josef Strauss.

He spoke to reporters during a lunch break in the meeting that began this morning after a nine hour session that started yesterday broke up in a deadlock early today.

Conrad Ahlers, a West German government spokesman, said pressure for the Bonn government to revalue the mark upward had ebbed. But he gave no details.

In the meeting were the economics and finance ministers and national bank governors from the West's 10 chief trading nations. Their aim was to bolster the French franc and stabilize the international monetary system.

In Paris, the Bank of France announced that the nation's official reserves fell another $178.4 million under the pressure of heavy speculation last week. It was the biggest loss in 18 weeks and it pushed the total of France's gold and foreign currency reserves below $4 billion for the first time in years.

Money markets in France and West Germany were closed. Markets in London also were shut and most dealers expressed a belief they would be kept closed until Monday.

Allies Fearing Talks Sabotage Try by S. Viet

PARIS (UPI) — Allied diplomats today said South Vietnam may join Paris negotiations on Vietnam only to sabotage the talks.

They said President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam has agreed "in principle" to end his boycott of the talks and send a delegation headed by his vice president, Nguyen Cao Ky.

The diplomats said Thieu believes he will be in a better position inside rather than outside the talks to torpedo any compromise with the North Vietnamese and the Vietcong.

Publicly, South Vietnam maintained its boycott of the talks the United States and North Vietnam arranged. The negotiations were to open three weeks ago. But Saigon's boycott has stalled the start.

In Saigon today, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker spent an hour with Thieu in the president's Independence Palace office. Diplomatic sources said Bunker apparently was working out details of a South Vietnamese agreement to end the boycott.

The allied diplomats here said Thieu will announce his decision to send a delegation to Paris as soon as the details are worked out.

"It is then that the South Vietnamese may become really difficult," one high allied diplomat said.

South Vietnamese officials in Paris made no bones about their belief that all concessions in negotiations thus far have been made by the allied side and none by the Communists.

The allied diplomats here said Ky's coming would underline the worry about Saigon taking an especially tough line in talks.

Hanoi Charges U. S.

HONG KONG (AP) — North Vietnam's Foreign Ministry accused the United States today of placing artillery inside the southern half of the demilitarized zone and shelling three North Vietnamese villages in the northern half.

Liuzzo Daughter Rues 'Mistake'

DETROIT (AP) — The daughter of slain civil rights worker Viola Liuzzo says the hardest part of the federal prison term she faces for smuggling marijuana is "knowing how I've hurt my father."

"He's been hurt so much," 20-year-old Mary Liuzzo said yesterday at the Wayne County Jail where she is awaiting a trip to the federal reformatory for women at Alderson, W. Va., for two months' psychiatric observation.

"I know I've done wrong," said Miss

Liuzzo, who has dark brown eyes and long shaggy soft brown hair. "I'll never break the law again."

Her mother, Mrs. Anthony Liuzzo — a Detroit housewife, civil rights worker and mother of five — was shot to death March 25, 1965 while driving between Selma and Montgomery, Ala. No one has been convicted in the case.

PLEADED GUILTY

Miss Liuzzo pleaded guilty before U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears in San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 26 on a charge of importing two ounces of marijuana from Mexico without paying a special tax. She was arrested at the San Antonio airport July 24.

"I won't be home for the holidays and Christmas has meant a lot to us. Mother used to be such an important part of Christmas and since her death we have tried to make the holidays an extra special time to be together," she said.

Slayer of Girl Gets Life Term

A mental patient at Pontiac State Hospital was sentenced yesterday to life imprisonment for the slaying of his girlfriend.

Edward J. Stockwell, 26, found guilty Oct. 30 of second-degree murder in the knife slaying of Dannela Stewart, 19, received the sentence from Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer.

Miss Stewart, the daughter of J. M. Stewart of 43480 Boreaux, Ulster, also was a patient at the state institution.

Her body, containing from 60 to 70 stab wounds, was found by a security guard in a seldom-used building on the hospital grounds.

PREMEDITATION?

Assistant Prosecutor Alex McGarry had argued that the murder was premeditated because of a suicide-murder plot made between Stockwell and the girl.

Defense attorney Leonard Peres, in turn, had attempted to prove during the two-week trial that Stockwell was insane when he killed Miss Stewart.

Stockwell, who has been institutionalized off and on since 1957, had the privilege of a trusty and was allowed to work for a landscaping firm during the day. He lived at the hospital at night.

In October, three psychiatrists testified that even though he had a background of mental disorder, he was legally competent to stand trial.

State Senator Supports School Tax Reform Unit

A committee organized recently in the Waterford Township School District to seek tax reforms in financing public education has already received support from one state legislator.

State Sen. L. Harvey Lodge, R-Waterford Township, told members of the Committee for Reform in Financing Michigan Local School Districts last night that he would be willing to consider and possibly introduce legislation in the area of education financing.

The committee, cochaired by Don Porter, president of the board of education, and H. Delos Nicholice, 2120 Lake Angelus Shores, Lake Angelus, met at the board of education offices, 3101 W. Walton.

Schools Supt. Dr. Don O. Tatroe began the meeting by outlining suggested goals for the committee.

AREAS OF CONCERN

Two major areas of concern, he said, are to find some method of revising the state homestead tax exemption act to grant more relief to senior citizens, and to work for change in the present millage-state aid system to make it more equitable for all.

Unless reforms are made soon, Tatroe explained, the district — and many others across the state — will be continually subject to difficulties in raising the tax money they need.

An election will be held Dec. 7 in the district on a proposed 9-mill operating tax levy and a $10.8-million bond issue for construction.

"There are lots of Waterford Townships in this state," Tatroe commented. "We're hoping that we might be able to provide less burden on property as a form of taxation."

SUGGESTIONS OFFERED

Several suggestions were offered by committee members to ease the tax problem which inflation has created for senior citizens, many of whom live on fixed incomes.

Tatroe proposed amending the homestead exemption law to increase senior citizen exemptions by 50 per cent, while Nicholice suggested "freezing" assessments on a citizen's property when he becomes eligible for Social Security benefits.

Lodge said he would be willing to "put in a bill" to revise the exemptions if a satisfactory solution could be worked out.

The state senator also urged passage of the Dec. 7 millage, pointing out, "People in wealthy districts want to keep what they have."

"If you pass this millage, I can go to Detroit and some of these other districts and say, 'Look, we've assumed our responsibility. Now it's time for you to do your part.'"

The committee's next meeting will take place the week of Dec. 8.

Appeal Denied in Greek Plot

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek Supreme Court today turned down an appeal for a new trial for Alexander Panagoulis and his 72-hour grace period ended at dawn, but there was no indication he had been executed for plotting against the military regime.

Panagoulis' lawyer had applied for a retrial on the ground that his client's deposition read at his trial was invalid because Panagoulis had not signed it. The Supreme Court said this was "unacceptable."

There was speculation that execution might have taken place to give the Supreme Court time to rule.

The Supreme Court's decision exhausts all judicial avenues for a postponement of the execution. Clemency from the military authorities is considered the only way in which Panagoulis can escape the firing squad.

ALLEGED PLOT

Panagoulis, 30, was sentenced Sunday night to die before a firing squad for deserting the army and attempting to overthrow the military regime of Premier George Papadopoulos. He had 72 hours to appeal for clemency but refused to sign a plea.

A reliable source said Papadopoulos was resting members of the military junta who want the execution carried out and met with military leaders yesterday to discuss possible repercussions from an execution.

In addition to the two death sentences, Panagoulis was sentenced to 18 years in prison for the attempt Aug. 13 to assassinate the premier.

Panagoulis' lawyer, Leandros Karamfidis, said he had received no word of his client's fate.

Institute Gets Cash Grant

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The Institute for Advanced Pastoral Studies, 300 Lone Pine, has received a $15,000 grant from the Charles E. Merrill Trust.

Richard King of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith Inc., the brokerage firm founded by Merrill (under whose will the trust was established), presented a draft for the amount to Dr. Reuel L. Howe, director of the Institute, on behalf of the trust.

Established in 1957, the institute is a nondenominational and ecumenical center for continuing theological education of clergy and lay persons.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — Edwin O. George, president of the Detroit Edison Co., has been named to the Department of the Treasury's U.S. industrial payroll saving committee by Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler.

George will serve as chairman of the Metropolitan Detroit 1969 U.S. Savings Bonds Campaign.

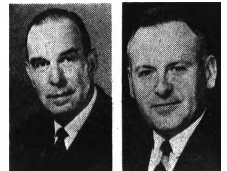

57 EXECUTIVES

The committee of 57 business and industrial executives is charged with planning and leading the national effort to increase purchases of U.S. savings bonds and Freedom Shares through the payroll savings plan.

Chairman of the national committee for 1969 will be James M. Roche, chairman of the board of General Motors Corp.

George, 63, of 353 Barden, received a bachelor's degree from Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., in 1928 and studied economics of public utilities at the University of Illinois.

He is president of the Detroit Educational Television Foundation and the Southeast Michigan Tourist Association, and vice president of the Traffic Improvement Association of Oakland County.

GEORGE CALDWELL

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — Philip Caldwell, 3755 Peabody, has been elected a vice president of Ford Motor Co.

Caldwell, appointed general manager of Truck Operations in August, reports to Lee A. Iacocca, executive vice president of North American Automotive Operations.

HARVARD GRADUATE

Caldwell graduated from Muskingum College, New Concord, O., and earned a master's degree in business administration from the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration.

He joined Ford in 1953.

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The second in a series of adult education meetings scheduled by the New Temple, a Reform Jewish congregation meeting at Bloomfield Hills Unitarian Church, will take place Sunday, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Green, 3650 Larkwood.

John Mersky, a student at Michigan State University, will conduct the session entitled "Youth — A Dialog."

FROM ROSE: AN EXCITING SPECIAL PURCHASE OF CULTURED PEARLS

One of the largest importers of cultured pearls recently—and unexpectedly—made available to us a limited quantity of fine cultured pearl items at considerably less than their market value. We bought them, and are delighted to pass them on to you at a comparable saving. All styles have uniform, rather than graduated, pearls; and all have a unique new “hidden clasp”—an unusually safe 14K gold clasp concealed inside the pearl. Here are the items we are offering at special prices:

All pearl necklaces in this collection have a “hidden clasp,” as shown at right.

Small Piece of Metal Led to Finding of Sub Scorpion

WASHINGTON (U) — The clue which finally led to the finding of the nuclear submarine Scorpion two miles deep in the Atlantic ocean was a small piece of metal that may not have been from the ill-fated vessel.

Chester L. Buchanan, the Naval Research Laboratory official who supervised much of the Scorpion search, said in an interview that "the first hint of something" came in late June when a bent metal plate was detected.

Buchanan said sonar and cameras, suspended far below the oceanographic research ship Mizar, discovered and photographed the 3-to-4-foot piece of metal. The plate was too deep to recover.

Some Navy men doubted the metal plate was a part of the sub and even today nobody will say for sure that it came from the Scorpion.

CONVINCED OFFICIALS

But the find, which came about a month after the sub and its 99-man crew disappeared, was enough to convince Navy officials to concentrate the search in one area about 400 miles southwest of the Azores.

And there, nearly four months later, the Mizar's sensitive magnetic detectors, sound-ranging equipment and cameras located portions of the Scorpion only about three or four miles from where the piece of metal was spotted.

The Scorpion was reported overdue May 27, the day it was scheduled to arrive at Norfolk, Va., from an underwater trip from the Mediterranean.

She had been last heard from six days before when she reported from a position about 250 miles south of the Azores.

RESTING PLACE

The 40-million submarine's final resting place, as announced by the Navy Oct. 31, was about 400 miles southwest of the Azores in more than 10,000 feet of water, about 8,000 feet below the maximum depth for the vessels.

A search got under way immediately after the overdue call and involved, at its peak, more than 40 ships, many planes and more than 6,000 men.

During the months of search, the Navy gave no hint it had any clues. Navy specialists have said since that the metal piece "had been evaluated as not being part of the Scorpion." But, they said, it was "the only clue we had," so the search went back over the area.

The Mizar had completed a monthlong search sweep and dropped anchor in the Azores for some crew rest when, on July 5, orders came to concentrate in the area where the metal piece had been found on June 27 or June 28.

FIRST CLEAR DETECTION

It wasn't until Oct. 28, Buchanan said, that the Mizar picked up the first clear detection of the Scorpion's remains — what he called a "pretty" magnetometer reading and sonar contacts. This was confirmed by photography Oct. 30, he said.

The next day, Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chief of naval operations, announced that "objects identified as portions of the hull of the submarine USS Scorpion have been located."

Teams of civilian oceanographers worked around the clock monitoring the ocean bottom from the belly of the 3,700-ton Mizar as it zigzagged over the suspect area at a speed of little more than one knot.

Buchanan said the Mizar's job when it reached the area where the Scorpion was last reported May 21 was to "find out what kind of ocean bottom we had."

NO CHARTS OF AREA

"There were no charts of the area. We didn't know if it was muddy or clear, or whether there were any sea mounts there," he said.

A sea mount is an underwater ridge or mountain presenting a possible danger to navigation, particularly submarines.

Navy officials have said there were no sea mounts where the Scorpion's remains finally were found.

The Mizar's search equipment consisted of a one-ton rig suspended from a 22,000-foot

DETECTION GEAR

The 8-foot-long fish carries magnetometers, which detect the presence of metallic objects and "side-looking sonar" to give technicians a sound picture of the bottom.

Fixed on the fish are three 35mm cameras, equipped with a special wide-angle lens illuminated by 200-watt stroboscopic lights mounted at each end of the rig.

Buchanan said that throughout the entire search period, about 150,000 pictures were taken.

Since the location of the Scorpion, he said, about 10,000 pictures have been snapped and made available to a Navy court of inquiry investigating the loss of the submarine.

CARRIES SIGNALS

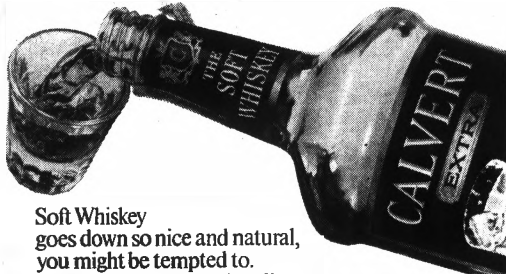

The three-quarter-inch cable connecting the search gear with the Mizar has a breaking strength of 35,000 pounds, and is designed so that it carries signals to the ship above.

To get the pictures, technicians raised the fish and unloaded the cameras every 30 to 35 hours.

Electronic devices called transponders also were dropped to the ocean floor to mark the Scorpion's wreckage and enabled the Mizar to keep a fix on the location.

Why Grow Old?

by JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

"How do I get water spots off my stainless steel sink?"
"Can I use stainless steel flatware to serve a dinner party?"
"Is it true that you can cook without water when you use stainless steel pots?"
"If stainless steel is truly stainless, why do I get tiny rust spots on some of my pots and pans as well as my stove-top?"

These are some of the hundreds of questions answered by Miss Gloria Wright, popular spokeswoman for the Committee of Stainless Steel Producers, as she appears in major department stores and on radio and television stations throughout the country.

An expert on the selection, care, cleaning and use of stainless steel cookware, flatware and electric appliances and implements, she also talks on and demonstrates table setting, food service and preparation, entertaining and product selection.

"It's not surprising," says Miss Wright, "that so much new interest is being created in stainless steel products for the home."

"Today, more than ever, home entertaining is the most economical way to keep up with social and business obligations. And because of this, there's a renewed interest in the most efficient methods of cooking and home care."

SPOT REMOVAL
"Water spots," says Miss Wright, "can be easily removed from a stainless steel sink by quickly drying it with a paper or cloth towel after a final rinse with hot water which leaves a layer of warmth on the surface."

Education Is Whole New Concept

By BETTY CANARY For everybody, merely are certainly legitimate re-quests. Responsibility and in-dependence are things higher education is supposed to help one acquire.

Most of us performed the sorting out the legitimate re-quests from the braying of the rabble-rousers has been an ex-ercise in soul-searching. At the same old way. For there's hardly room for any in-teresting innocent by-standers these days. Student demands range from blocked their way to the most reasonable to ludicrous. Off-campus housing and sensi-ble curfew laws, for example, rather a savage challenge.

Reading Is Subject of OU Confab

"A child will not read better than he can speak or listen," says Dr. Harry Hahn, professor of education at Oakland University and co-director of this Saturday's conference for parents and grade school teachers at OU.

His and the efforts of Dr. William C. Forbes, professor of biology, will be aimed toward showing ways of motivating children to read.

Techniques used to develop a child's writing skills will be examined along with methods of helping a youngster who has reading problems. The kinds of children's books which develop an expanded vocabulary and models for language building will also be discussed in depth. Lectures, demonstrations and workshop practices will be used to help parents and teachers find effective methods of increasing their children's reading and learning abilities.

Those interested in attending this Saturday morning conference may obtain registration and information by contacting Oakland University's Conference Department.

Fabric texture can change your appearance. Heavy, rough, nubby textures — wide-wale corduroy, terry cloth, wool tweeds — add weight to the figure, but also cover up some figure problems.

Soft clinging fabrics — jersey, chiffon, crepe — emphasize figure irregularities. Shiny textures — satin, taffetas — add weight while dull surfaces — linen, gabardine — are more slenderizing.

Prologue of Nixon Program Can Be Pieced Together

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla.—When Republican Richard M. Nixon goes before a Democratic Congress late in January to outline the aspirations of his presidency, he will urge that government "strive to put the great engine of private enterprise" to work on the nation's social problems.

He will, it seems certain, urge dispersal of government power from Washington to other echelons of authority, to "begin breaking up massive problems into manageable pieces."

RICHARD NIXON

the peace talks to include the Soviet Union and other powers.

Taxes

Nixon advocated elimination of the 10 per cent income surtax. He at first said it should lapse when the Vietnam war is ended, later that he would drop it on schedule — which would indicate no request for its renewal after next June 30.

He recommended federal tax sharing, which would return unrestricted grants to states and local governments to enhance their ability to deal with public problems.

Nixon advocates use of tax incentives, some $7 billion worth, to enlist private enterprise in such fields as the reconstruction of blighted city areas, in job training, in pollution control.

Foreign Policy

Nixon promises a foreign policy of firmness, and also of negotiation. "To the leaders of the Communist world we say 'After an era of confrontation the time has come for an era of negotiation,'" Nixon said.

"Because this will be a period of negotiation, we shall restore the strength of America so that we shall always negotiate from strength and never from weakness."

"It is time to develop a new diplomacy for the United States, a diplomacy to deal with future aggression — so that when the freedom of friendly nations is threatened by aggression, we help them with our arms; but we let them fight the war," Nixon said.

Defense

Nixon placed great emphasis on a drive to enlarge American military might. He said, "I intend to restore our objective of clear-cut military superiority — meaning by this the aggregate that constitutes real superiority rather than competition weapon by weapon."

His estimates now indicate military spending $10 billion about current, Vietnam-inflated levels by the end of a four-year Nixon term.

Nixon promised reorganization of the Pentagon to eliminate what he called overcentralization, and restore ready access to the President by top military professionals.

"I intend to restore the National Security Council to its pre-eminent role in national security planning," Nixon said.

Nixon advocates an end to the draft after the Vietnam war if over, with an all-volunteer armed force to replace it at a cost of some $5 billion a year, he estimated.

Vietnam

This is the great question mark in the Nixon program, for the president-elect embargoes in his campaign any discussion of what he would do as President to deal with the war.

His position as President on the current bombing halt remains an enigma, too. He has supported President Johnson's current halt, but he has said that to be acceptable, this posture must enhance peace prospects.

He has said: "The war must be ended. It must be ended honorably. We must seek a negotiated settlement."

"I would oppose the imposition by negotiation of a coalition government on South Vietnam," he has said.

Nixon also said he would emphasize "de-Americanization" of the war.

He advocated a broadening of on said repeatedly that without laws to impose a substantial order there can be no progress.

Law and Order

Nixon promised a war on crime to include creation of a Cabinet-level National Law Enforcement Council which, he said, would coordinate federal policy on crime prevention and control.

He proposes expanded crime fighting research, a national academy of law enforcement, federal assistance for local law enforcement channeled through the states.

Nixon criticized Supreme Court decisions on the rights of criminal suspects, saying some have created imbalance between what he calls "the peace forces and the criminal forces."

Nixon favors use, under court order, of wiretapping and electronic surveillance against organized crime.

He favors federal and state mandatory prison term for anyone who uses a firearm in the commission of a felony.

National Unity

Nixon declared the first task of his presidency will be to establish national unity.

He said his White House will do less talking and more listening to the American people; that he will communicate with all segments of U.S. society.

One specific Nixon offering: The creation of what he calls listening posts in 10 U.S. cities, so that young people will have an avenue of communication with leadership of the government.

Social Security

Nixon pledged to seek improvements and expansion of Social Security, specifically including a provision for cost-of-living adjustments to increase benefits when prices rise.

He also advocates easing, and ultimate elimination, of the limit on allowable earnings for Social Security recipients, full income tax deduction for drug and medical expenses of people over 65, and increased Social Security benefits for widows.

Budget

Nixon talked constantly of curbing government spending as a step to combat inflation. "It is clear that every federal activity is — and must be — a candidate for expenditure control, and that every existing federal function must be reassessed or else we will bankrupt America," he said.

He also estimated the programs he has advocated during the campaign would cost some $10 billion.

He talked of re-examining military expenditures but acknowledged that "defense spending, huge though it is, may have to go up before it can come down."

Labor

Nixon promised policies which would maintain economic expansion and provide "in the next four years 15 million new jobs to replace those lost to automation and to provide opportunity for all."

He pledged a strengthened Department of Labor where "the voice of every workman will be heard and his rights will be protected."

Nixon said public employee labor disputes should be handled through arbitration. "I do not believe that government employees, federal, state or local, have a right to strike," he said.

Foreign Aid

"We ought to turn our aid programs more in the direction of stimulating private enterprise," Nixon maintains.

Nixon also said that, in foreign aid, "we are spread far too thin in too many countries in too many projects."

He said other nations, including Japan and Western European allies, "should assume a bigger share of the burden."

Agriculture

Nixon promised the farmer "dedicated efforts to improve market prices and strengthen our market economy."

He said he would encourage farm cooperatives to strengthen the bargaining position of farmers; promised management of agricultural surpluses in a fashion that will "improve farm prices, not depress them."

Education

Nixon supported federal aid to education, but says the President must make sure "that federal control does not follow."

"Let us have a federal government program for education that will turn back to the states, without strings, the money, states can use to upgrade their educational standards at the local level."

He advocates income tax credits to offset expenses of a parent or anyone else who helps pay for a student to attend college.

OHIO

Buckeye-'M' Tilts Memorable

'Blizzard Bowl' of '50 Classic
in 7 Title Tilts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The long, sometimes bitter rivalry between Michigan and Ohio State has seen some dramatic moments unparalleled in college football.

Seven times since 1942, these ancient foes have met in the season finale with a Big Ten championship hanging in the balance.

ROSES IN SNOW

Easily the most unforgettable match in the 65-game series came in 1950 in the now famous "Blizzard Bowl."

Michigan, without benefit of a completed pass or first down and only 27 yards rushing, won it 9-3.

It started snowing Friday night and the weather bureau boldly stuck to its forecast of light snow. By game time, there was a half foot of snow on the ground, the temperature was 10 degrees and a biting wind of 28 m.p.h. lashed the heavy 50,535 souls in Ohio Stadium.

VOLUNTEERS HELP

Boy Scouts and other volunteers came out of the stands to help get the tarpaulin off the field. Vic Janowicz' 28-yard field goal in the first quarter gave the Bucks a 3-0 edge. It was snowing so hard you could hardly see the flight of the ball.

Michigan blocked a punt out of the end zone for a safety and then blocked another and this time covered it in the end zone for the game's only touchdown.

It was a bizarre contest and the phrase anything can happen in a Michigan-Ohio State game never was demonstrated better.

BUCKEYES UNBEATEN

Going into the contest Saturday, Ohio State, unbeaten in eight starts and riding a 12-game winning streak, is shooting for its first unblemished season since 1954. Michigan, after an opening loss to California, has reeled off eight straight and both charge into the windup with 6-0 Big Ten records.

In 1942, '44, '54, and '55, the Bucks whipped Michigan to take the crown. The Wolverines emerged with the title by winning in 1950 and 1964.

STANDOFF BATTLE

In 1949, the two battled to a 7-7 standoff but Ohio State won the Rose Bowl trip because Michigan had made a more recent appearance at Pasadena.

The Wolverines are one of the few teams to hold an edge over the Buckeyes with 27 victories against 23 losses and four ties.

Sweetan to Return Sunday to Detroit

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

Guess who's coming to town Sunday? No, not Santa Claus.

He was a Firebird in Pontiac, a Lion in Detroit and he's now a Saint in New Orleans.

Of course, it's Karl Sweetan.

Sweetan will be at quarterback when the New Orleans Saints visit Tiger Stadium to meet the Detroit Lions Sunday.

The 24-year-old Texan predicted in the opening week of the season that when the Saints came to Detroit he would be starting.

Of course at that time he meant he would win the job away from veteran Bill Kilmer.

But as it happened, Kilmer suffered a broken ankle three weeks ago, and Sweetan has moved into the starter's role.

However, Sweetan himself was injured against the Browns and he has played with an ankle injury against Cleveland and also the Packers last week.

Rookie Ronnie Lee South is the backup quarterback for the Saints and he is also expected to play.

The Saints, like the Lions have won only three games this season, while losing seven; however they own a 20-17 victory over the Central Division leaders, the Minnesota Vikings.

Statistically, the Lions and Saints are also as close as their records.

New Orleans has 156 first downs for 10 games, and Detroit has 159. The Lions have the edge in running and the Saints in passing, with 88 by aials to 81 for the Lions.

The Saints are the passngest team in the NFL, having attempts 306 and completed 148.

The Lions also lead in one passing department that is having only 10 aials intercepted.

Defensively, the Lions have a slight edge, having allowed an average of 297 yard per game, while the Saints have permitted their opposition 307 yards average per contest.

SWEETAN BITTER

Sweetan, whose home is in Dallas, was bitter about what he called "unfair treatment" while with the Lions.

He said the Lions blamed the poor 1967 season on the passing game which finished last in the NFL, while he and Milt Plum were sharing the duties at quarterback.

"They wanted a running game so badly they repeatedly told us to stay on the ground," Sweetan was quoted as saying.

At any rate, Sweetan who wanted once to play football only for the Lions, will not get his new wish for the season, to play and probably start against the Lions.

It will be the third time in the last four games that the Lions will face a team with an ex-quarterback; Earl Morrall two weeks ago with Baltimore, and the Rams three weeks ago, even though Milt Plum did not play against Detroit.

Honor for Tiger Ace

A SAINT—Former Detroit Lions' QB Karl Sweetan, who played locally for Pontiac in the Midwest Football League, will start for the New Orleans Saints Sunday when they face the Lions at Tiger Stadium.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers, who won three games in the World Series, was named Wednesday the October winner in the S. Race Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year competition.

'ROSES THAT BLOOMED IN THE SNOW'

"The place was Columbus, Ohio, the time, 1950 A.D., With Michigan playing the Buckeyes, Oh bring back that memory to me! Right there, in a wild swirling ice storm, with temperatures hovering low A miracle happened . . . we saw it . . . the Roses that Bloomed in the Snow.

"The Rose Bowl depended on this one, this game on the ice rink out there, Our hopes for a victory seemed shattered, then happened a punt and a prayer. Ohio's Vic Janowicz punted, with less than a minute to go, The prayer — a blocked kick for a touchdown — and Roses That Bloomed in the Snow.

"All credit to our Tony Momsen, who fell on that snow-covered ball All hail to sleet-covered warriors, to Bennie and Crisler and all, But don't forget freezing alumni, whose wild shivering voices we know Were joined in the prayer that planted the Roses That Bloomed in the Snow."

LIKE YESTERDAY — Tomorrow will mark the fifth anniversary of the assassination of John F. Kennedy. This is a composite picture of the eternal flame which burns on his grave in Arlington National Cemetery and a bust of the late president by German Knud Knudsen.

Kennedys Memorialize, Mourn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy family has commemorated the birthday of one of its sons, John F. Kennedy, slain Nov. 22, 1963, and the death of another, Robert F. Kennedy, assassinated Nov. 22, 1963, by celebrating a Mass in Dallas on Friday.

The Roman Catholic priest who administered last rites to President John F. Kennedy, assassinated Nov. 22, 1963, and the death of another, Robert F. Kennedy, assassinated Nov. 22, 1963, by celebrating a Mass in Dallas on Friday.

Mrs. Onassis went to St. Thomas More's Church Wednesday for one of two New York masses in memory of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, who would have been 43 Wednesday.

EDDY TO ARLINGTON — The youngest and sole survivor of the four Kennedy sons — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy — will celebrate the birthday of his brother, John F. Kennedy, on Friday.

Later Edward went to a Mass in memory of Robert at St. Luke's Church in McLean, Va. The service, reminiscent of the New York Requiem Mass sung after the senator was shot last June in Los Angeles, included a Jewish cantor and vocal solos with guitar accompaniment.

Two of the senator's sons, David, 13, and Michael, 10, served as altar boys.

A $100,000 memorial to blocks from the Plaza won't be completed until sometime after next October.

Archbishop Terence Cooke celebrated the Mass.

Another Kennedy sister, Eunice Shriver, and her husband, Sargent, dedicated the Place du President Kennedy Wednesday at Angers, France.

The Very Rev. Oscar L. Huber will celebrate the Mass in Dallas Friday, but there will be no special observances at Dealey Plaza, near where Kennedy was shot.

Blocks from the Plaza won't be completed until sometime after next October.

ON AN ANNIVERSARY — Two visitors to Arlington National Cemetery pause yesterday at the flower-covered grave of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy on the 43rd anniversary of his birth. The site is near the grave of the senator's brother, President John F. Kennedy, assassinated Nov. 22, 1963.

Mali Coup Linked to Power Struggle

CONAKRY, Guinea (AP) — A struggle for supremacy in Mali between a Red Guard militia and the army and efforts by Mali's government to relieve a financial squeeze with French help were cited here today as reasons for the downfall of President Modibo Keita.

There was no reply from Mali's new military regime to an invitation from President Sekou Toure of Guinea to join him and the chiefs of state of Mauritania and Senegal, Mali's other western neighbors, at a meeting here.

Keita was understood to be under arrest in Bamako, the capital.

STRONG TURN — After independence Keita took a strong turn to the left, was receptive to Peking's overtures, spurned French "neo-colonialism," and in 1962 took his country out of the French currency bloc. As a result, Mali's franc had no French backing and was virtually worthless outside Mali.

Along with Guinea's Toure, Keita has appeared less enamored of Peking in recent years and last year began drawing closer to France again. The French government agreed to back the Mali franc starting last April 1 and to resume aid to the government on condition that it clean up a financial setup that included 23 state enterprises overladen with unproductive employees.

The cleanup threatened further unemployment in a country of 5 million persons that is twice the size of Texas but has generally poor land.

Persons recently in Mali say no cleanup was even attempted, and the French were annoyed at withdrawals from a backing fund which gave France power over the economy.

YOUNG RADICALS — Meanwhile, young radicals were attacking corruption within the government and demanding that Keita clean up the capital.

Guinean sources believe the coup was of a right-wing character, favoring the French and threatening the large Soviet and Chinese Communist interests in Mali.

According to reports from Bamako, the young members of the militia which Keita established were trying to cut the power of the 3,500-man army, which is commanded by corps of officers who fought with the French army in Algeria and Vietnam before 1960.

The army has been equipped by the Soviet Union and includes 100 paratroops trained by the Americans, who maintained a military mission in Bamako. BJT/laes Nov. 21

Paralyzed Law Student Gets Hand From Dentist

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California has come to the aid of Jack Achenberg, a Loyola Law School student who has had to type his notes and reports for three years by striking the keys with a stick held between his teeth.

Achenberg, 27, lost the use of his arms and his legs were partly paralyzed by a spinal injury received in a bicycle accident in 1965.

The three-year law student had worn a one-eighth-inch groove in his lower front teeth when Achenberg's dentist asked the USC Dental School to fashion a way for the patient to type without losing his teeth.

Achenberg was fitted Wednesday with a special metal splint that exerts the leverage of all his teeth rather than just the front ones.

GOOD SET USEFUL — A good set of teeth is about as useful as an extra hand for a person in my position," said Achenberg.

The same men were sought in connection with the robbery of a newly married couple from Pontiac, Mich. The bride was raped in the incident at a Chicago area motel.

Police said bank employees in the suburb of St. Louis identified pictures of the men they said took an undetermined amount of money.

The holdup men forced a teller to accompany them to several cages and into the vault. One was armed with a short-barrel revolver, the other with a military carbine.

SELECT PICTURES — No one was injured. The pictures selected by witnesses were those of Patrick D. Kane, 43, of Pacific, Mo., and Dale G. Wilson, 24, of Shreveport, La. The duo overpowered their guards while being transferred from the Leavenworth Penitentiary to the U.S. District Court in St. Louis.

Tuesday the escapees were named suspects in the robbery of the newly married Pontiac couple in a Chicago motel, and in the rape of the bride.

Two men terrorized the couple for more than three hours before leaving in the couple's car with their wedding gifts.

"We had almost gotten to the shaft when there was a second explosion," Wilson said. "While we waited, we just tried to keep the men's spirits up. We rubbed each other, hugged each other, not knowing from one minute to the next if we were going to live."

"Nobody knew we were down there, so we began pounding on the pipes with a piece of wood so we wouldn't create a spark,"

he said.

Wilson said the eight men made their way to a ventilation shaft and waited.

Vietnam War Hero Likes Saving Lives

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Larry R. Larson says, "Saving a man's life is the greatest possible satisfaction."

The 19-year-old Army medic just returned from 13 months in Vietnam where he won the Silver Star, the Bronze Star, the Army Commendation Medal, the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry, three Purple Hearts and three campaign ribbons.

"Before I went to Vietnam," Larson said, "I wanted to be a veterinarian—an animal doctor—but after that experience, I want to be a people doctor."

"I grew up a lot over there," the specialist five said. "The important thing however, is that I was helping people. . . And if I were to go back, I would want to go back to the field as a medic."

WORKS ALONG — Larson won the Silver Star when all the medics in his unit but himself were wounded. He had to work alone for three days. Once, he had to rescue a U.S. soldier so exhausted by the fighting he headed into enemy lines.

The Army Commendation Medal was awarded for meritorious service in Vietnam.

After his discharge, the Spokane youth hopes to study nursing at a nearby college. Meanwhile, he has been assigned to the 1st Armored Cavalry Regiment, 8th Squadron, Aviation Co. at Ft. Knox, Ky.

Officials Seek Way to Give Hero Wish

DETROIT (AP) — Officials are looking into ways of granting the No. 1 wish of Michigan's first Medal of Honor winner, former Army tank driver Dwight H. Johnson of Detroit.

Johnson, 20, wants to have his mother and deported stepfather reunited after a 12-year enforced separation.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., has begun looking into the prospects of allowing Johnson's stepfather, Brenton Alves, a native of Jamaica, to return to the United States from London, England, where he currently is living.

Johnson was awarded the Medal of Honor for his actions during the Vietnam War.

Four Coal Miners Describe Their Escape From Inferno

MANNINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Their nine-man crew not res- tranced and scene of smoke and flames. "He left his dinner bucket behind and a dust mask on the ground. I searched both sides for him but we couldn't find him."

"I left him a note in case he comes back, telling him where we went. I wrote it on the coal bar with my finger in coal dust."

None of the four in the hospital was considered in serious condition after their escape from the Mountaineer Coal Co. No. 9 mine. They were hospitalized for shock and observation and may remain hospitalized for two or three days.

2 Sentenced in City Holdup

Prison terms were ordered yesterday for two Pontiac youths involved in the holdup of a city dry-cleaning firm last summer.

Sentenced by Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer were Andrew Shirley, 18, of 402 Hillcrest, and James, 20, of 119 Prospect.

They pleaded guilty in October to the armed robbery of Ogg Cleaners, 430 Orchard Lake, on the afternoon of July 26.

Shirley was sentenced from 7 to 25 years in the state prison at Jackson and James was sentenced from 5 to 25 years.

Drive Is Started to Aid County Family of Eight

A drive to collect food, clothing, furniture and money for the Dillard Brewer family burned out of its independence Township home yesterday has been launched by Mrs. Herschel Cowan, 641 Paramus, Independence Township.

She said donations may be placed in her garage. Any organizations willing to help are welcome.

The Brewer family, consisting of the mother and father and six children under the age of 7, was forced to vacate its home at 422 Hillcrest early yesterday morning when fire gutted the interior.

Brewer just a week ago was discharged from Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital after surgery for a beating allegedly by a gang.

The European starting, the bane of those charged with keeping public buildings clean, was first brought to America in 1890 by a zealous group that planned to introduce all the birds mentioned by Shakespeare.

Hal Price Scorns Formality in Opening His Hit, 'Zorba'

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Are Broadway's famous "first nights" doomed because they're too dressy and stuffy and make the actors too self-conscious?

Producer Hal Price hopes no.

He deliberately opened "Zorba" over four nights, and at the final "opening" the other night at the Imperial he wore a four-in-hand polka dot instead of the usual black tie. Very few men were in dinner jacket. (I was one of the idiots who was.)

Price said he wasn't trying to influence other producers; just trying to run his own shows sensibly.

"A lot of people who get corseted up for 'first nights,'" he said, "aren't really theatergoers. They don't go any other time of the year."

Since the Herschel Bernardi Maria Karnilova "Zorba" got a lot of rave reviews, and since hardly anybody objected to not getting dressed up, we may be ending another era.

The new thrilling duo around town is James Mason and Peggy Cass (recently on "What's My Line?"). They were in a movie together in Australia . . . "How to Handle a Woman," by Jani Gardner, has one suggestion: "Kiss her feet." I tried it, but should have taken her shoes off first.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Rowan & Martin'll do a film titled "The Maltese Bippy" . . . Ann-Margret and husband Roger Smith dined at Kippy's—while a batch of autograph kids waited outside for 'em till after midnight . . . Jane Morgan, doing two-night at the Royal Box plus rehearsing her "Mame" role, says she stays peppy with vitamins—and standing on her head five minutes a day . . . Peggy Cass trudged into Gallagher's in ski clothes, sleeping her skis; she'll schuss in Austria soon.

An "underground" film actress came to a midtown restaurant to meet her date, then remembered she'd forgotten to put on a dress under her fur coat . . . Prince Rainier invaded, through an intermediary, if he could invest in the vast Astro dome complex. Judge Hofelien sent word, Sorry, it's a family affair.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Some stores are decorated for Christmas, but Dean Martin's already lit for New Year's Eve.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A true sports fan is a guy who leaves a topless show to get the football results.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "History is the cemetery of men who believed they were gods." —Homer.

EARL'S PEARLS: Mike Darow got a fan letter from a man who enthused about his "Dream House" TV'er, "because if my wife wasn't home watching it, she'd be out shopping."

Virginia Graham asked Larry Biden if he had to wear his glasses often. "Only for writing letters," he said, "or for finding the post office." . . . That's earl, brother.
