

Pentagon Feels Russia Aiming for Orbital-Bomb Setup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Department officials say they think the Soviet Union has decided to deploy a system of bombs which could be rocketed into space and fired before completing their first orbit.

They indicate that accumulating evidence, presumably gathered from Soviet tests monitored by the United States, points toward the Kremlin's intention to mount the program, called a Fractional Orbital Bombardment System.

This conclusion comes only a month after Clark M. Clifford, in his final report as secretary of defense, said the United States was uncertain about Soviet use of the FOBS.

Pentagon sources said, however, the Clifford statement reflected assessments made in the last months of 1968.

An FOBS would be boosted into a low orbit, generally about 100 miles above earth, and would be fired by remote control at ground targets before completing its first circuit.

The low altitude would enable the orbital bomb to avoid detection by U.S. early warning radar.

Officials refuse to discuss intelligence, but it is known that the Russians have conducted at least 13 FOBS tests. The first seven reportedly flopped, but the next six were said to have worked.

The Soviet Union's experiments with an orbital bomb were disclosed by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Nov. 3, 1967.

TOO INACCURATE

He down-rated it, saying it would be too inaccurate for a satisfactory attack on U.S. intercontinental missiles protected in underground silos. But he did say the Russians might consider using it for surprise attack against such "soft land targets" as bomber bases.

In spite of the surprise potential of an orbital bomb, the United States has been developing radar that can "see" over the horizon, giving the alarm shortly after such a warhead is launched.

Another possible defense could come from the Sentinel missile defense system, according to testimony yesterday from Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

He told the Senate Foreign Relations committee that among the options being studied in a review of the now suspended Sentinel program are means to protect against an orbital bomb attack.

Giacalone, Koury Ordered to Trial

By JIM LONG

Alleged Mafia leader Anthony (Tony Jack) Giacalone and an associate, Louis (Rip) Koury, yesterday were ordered to stand trial on charges of conspiring to violate state gambling laws in the operation of the former Seaway Civic and Social Club in Pontiac.

Pontiac District Judge James R. Stelt bound the pair over to Oakland County Circuit Court after hearing underworld informer Peter Lazaros of Troy testify at their preliminary examination that each had received a percentage from the operation of the club.

The club at 118 S. Paddock was a front for a barbed dice game. It was closed after being raided by city and state police in October 1965.

Lazaros, who was named a coconspirator with Giacalone and Koury, but is not being prosecuted, said that he and Angelo (Barrels) Lombardi, were partners in the operation of the club. Lazaros has been under police protection at home at 2410 Dalesford, Troy, since last November.

Before opening the establishment in May 1965, Lazaros said it was necessary for him to go to Giacalone for permission to operate the game.

"If I didn't get the okay I would be in the river right now," said the 35-year-old Lazaros, who admits to being in control of certain illegal activities in Oakland County since 1960.

Asked by Giacalone's attorney Joseph Louisell of Detroit, if he had been promised anything by the State Police or the Oakland County Prosecutor's office if he would "talk," Lazaros said that he had nothing to gain.

"There's a time in a man's life that he has to clean the books," said Lazaros, and then added the reason his attitude had changed.

'LOST RESPECT'

"All my life I thought Mr. Giacalone was a gentleman, but when I found out that he had directed (Joseph) Barbara to do what he had done I lost respect," Lazaros said.

Barbara, also a reputed Mafia chieftain, is awaiting trial on charges of extortion brought against him by Lazaros' wife Delores. She later charged him with rape. That case has not yet been heard in lower court.

News in Brief From the Wires

LANSING (UPI) — A member of the State Board of Education said today tax aid to parochial schools could lead to the destruction of those schools as religious entities. Marilyn Jean Kelly of Detroit said:

"Churches now operating parochial schools would awaken one day to realize they were pouring millions of dollars into their schools . . . which had become merely public schools by another name," she added.

$39,000 Bank Robbery

FRANKENMUTH (AP) — The Peoples National Bank of Frankenmuth was robbed of $39,000 today by three gunmen, according to State Police, who reported the trio arrested shortly afterward in Saginaw. State Police said they recovered the loot, getaway car and a gun.

Original Jail Plans Get Supervisor OK

By JEAN SAILE

The County Board of Supervisors voted 24-1 yesterday to proceed with the original plans for the construction of a proposed $9-million jail and law enforcement complex.

Christian Powell, R-West Bloomfield, was the lone man to vote against approval of the lease and lease-back agreements with the building authority.

The agreements give the authority power to seek bids involving up to $9 million of county funds. They commit the county to annual payments of about $640,000 for 30 years.

Powell favors creating a reserve building fund, which the county does not now have, to prepare for additional building projects estimated at $52 million over the next 20 years. There was no action taken on his recommendation.

Powell's attempt to seek alternate bids eliminating an outside 2,500-square-foot area designed as a rehabilitation center and containing a chapel, library, office and multipurpose room was defeated.

The vote on the amendment actually passed, 13 to 12, but needed a board majority of 14 to carry. Two supervisors were absent from the morning meeting.

Paul Kasper, R-Bloomfield, and James Mathews, D-Pontiac, voted for the original plans, but did so over objections.

Kasper said he agreed with Powell in that the original plans allowed the board no flexibility of choice for this — "the most expensive undertaking of Oakland County to this time."

Mathews asked for an amendment giving the public a right to state their views on the complex, but received no support. He said it was his feeling that the people had been "left out" in this 30-year commitment of tax funds.

There were also objections to whether or not the facility could be financed over 30 years from allocated funds within the 15-mill limit.

Some supervisors saw the alternate plans as a means of keeping board control over bids received. As it stands now, the building authority will have final say over bid acceptance, providing the total cost does not exceed $9 million.

Sheriff Frank Jones who was a spectator at the morning session, expressed himself as "very happy that they've put it through. We've had plenty of trouble the last couple of years and we've had 100 more prisoners so far this year than last."

2 Die in D. C. Gunfire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two persons were killed and four policemen were wounded today during an exchange of gunfire with a sniper barricaded in a northwest Washington house, police reported. Officers said the dead civilians included the sniper and a woman companion.

The shooting began about 9:30 a.m. after police responded to complaints of a woman screaming in the area.

No Progress Is Seen in City-Union Talks

By ED BLUNDEN

No progress was reported after nine hours of negotiations yesterday between the city and three of its unions seeking new wage deals.

Two of the unions remain on strike, the Pontiac Municipal Employees Union and the Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. The two represent workers in the city services.

Bargaining centers around the Pontiac Fire Fighters Association, demanding parity with policemen at $10,300 after July 1. The city reportedly has offered $9,900.

Talks were to resume at 10 a.m. today under the direction of mediator Leonard D. Bennett, appointed by the State Mediation Board.

SESSION UNTIL MIDNIGHT

Yesterday's negotiations began at 3 p.m. and did not conclude until midnight. In spite of a full battery of negotiators and their legal staffs, no progress was reported.

The continuing strike began Friday. Firemen staged two walkouts during the weekend but went back to work under a Circuit Court order.

Appearing briefly at yesterday's talks was Earl J. Berry, president of the Detroit Firefighters Association. He said, "The (Pontiac) men are dealing from a strong position . . . and have a just cause."

He offered to "open the coffers of the Detroit local" to help the Pontiac firemen. He further promised that no Detroit fireman would assist in a Pontiac fire if the department walked out and a big fire ensued.

Berry said that in Detroit parity between police and firemen was the policy and that pay rates there were the highest in the nation.

The current offer to Pontiac police is reportedly $10,000 starting Jan. 1, $10,300 July 1. Berry pointed out Detroit police and firemen will be at $10,300 on July 1, but that is the date (fiscal year) increases could be due.

Hanging over the whole issue of salary negotiations is a legal move announced Wednesday by Winston Livingston, lawyer for the three unions. The move could cut off a large segment of the city's operating revenues.

Livingston said Wednesday he was taking court action which could clear the way for a referendum vote on the city income tax.

Originally some firemen and policemen challenged an effort to force a referendum on the city tax. By withdrawing their suit, now in the State Court of Appeals in Lansing, the income tax could be defeated at the polls.

The income tax represents some $4½ million out of an expected $10.2 million of the city's 1969 budget.

Opinions vary on whether the original Circuit Court decision upholding the tax would be affected by the suit.

Two Children Hunted

ECORSE (AP) — Volunteers and police searched today for two Ecorse children missing since last night. Missing were the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stein, Lori, 6, and the son of neighbors Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Inch, Michael, 4. The children were last seen playing in a field about two blocks from their homes.

Rec Funds 'Inadequate'

LANSING (AP) Gov. William Milliken was told today the state's $100-million recreation bond issue will be woefully inadequate to meet Michigan's needs. A special Recreation Study Committee commissioned by the governor reported that to meet total recreation needs only of Michigan's 18 largest cities would cost $618.9 million. The survey did not include rural areas and cities with populations less than 50,000 because of time limitations, the committee said.

DeGaulle Asks Summit

LONDON (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle of France has secretly proposed summit talks with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson to discuss a new political system supplanting the Common Market, British sources reported today. The French leader's proposal was put to British Ambassador Christopher Soames at a private luncheon in Paris Feb. 4, according to the informants.

Boy, 3, Saved From Drowning

Barking dogs and alert neighbors saved a 3-year-old boy who had fallen through the ice in Orion Township yesterday afternoon, Oakland County sheriff's deputies say.

Gregory N. Grubb, 124 Schick, was rescued from about three feet of water in a canal on North Long Lake Drive near Oakgrove Drive by Frank Matts, 970 N. Long Lake.

Matts' deputy the boy was completely unharmed and was drifting under the ice when he pulled him out. The child was treated by a doctor.

Matts' wife, Lilly, noticed the Grubb's two dogs barking around a hole in the ice and called her husband when she discovered the object bobbing up and down in the water was a child.

MISSING FROM HOUSE

Father of the boy, Lester, told deputies the boy was missing from the house about 10 minutes.

Deputies said they believe that the boy would have been lost if it had not have been for the barking dogs and quick action by the Matts.

Truman Is Hospitalized, Has Gastrointestinal Flu

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman was taken to a hospital late last night suffering from what was diagnosed today as "simple gastrointestinal flu caused by a virus."

A spokesman for Research Hospital said today the 84-year-old former chief executive had a good night and probably would return home in a few days.

John P. Dreves, hospital public relations director, said Truman was stricken after retiring to bed in his home in suburban Independence last night and was admitted to the hospital at 11:40 p.m.

The former president slept after being admitted and was awakened at 4 a.m. today for a routine check of his temperature, pulse, respiration and blood pressure.

AWOKE EARLY

Dreves said that Truman then fell asleep again and awoke at 6:30 a.m.

"He is on a liquid diet, which is routine for his diagnosis pending continued improvement," Dreves added.

The hospital spokesman said Truman ate some gelatine and drank some hot tea for breakfast. He got out of bed this morning and read a newspaper, Dreves said.

Truman's family physicians were quoted as saying the former president was improved today over his condition last night and was regaining strength.

ACCOMPANIED BY WIFE

Mrs. Truman accompanied her husband to the hospital last night, left early today and was back by 10 a.m.

Secret Service agents guarded Truman's private room on the sixth floor of the hospital. Newsmen are barred above the first floor.

Dreves said his office would report on Truman's condition at 9:45 a.m. CST and 3:45 p.m. daily.

NAACP Sues City School Unit

The Pontiac Area Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), has filed suit in U.S. District Court in Detroit against the Pontiac Board of Education.

The suit was filed yesterday in the names of three Pontiac schoolchildren and their parents.

Also named as defendants were Dr. Dana P. Whitmer, superintendent; Richard C. Fell and William J. Lacy, assistant superintendents; and school board members Monroe M. Osmon, Russell L. Brown, Elsie K. Mihalak, William H. Anderson, Lucille D. Marshall, Dr. Robert R. Turpin and Christopher C. Brown.

The suit charges that the school district has maintained de facto (actual) segregation, especially on the election level, and is discriminatory in the hiring of instructional personnel and administrators.

'SEPARATE SCHOOLS'

NAACP asked in the suit for a declaratory judgment, and for appropriate injunctive action.

The first count listed in the suit charges that the defendants "have (Continued on Page A-2, Col. 3)

Trial Ordered for Giacalone and Associate

both Giacalone, 50, of Grosse Pointe Park, and Koury, 65, of 1515 Midwood, Commerce Township, are charged in the same case with conspiracy to bribe a Pontiac police officer who was working undercover to smash the club.

The bribery case is being heard separately and is tentatively scheduled before Judge Stelt Thursday at 9 a.m. Their arraignment in Circuit Court on the gambling offense will be held March 5 before Judge William J. Beer.

CREDIBILITY QUESTIONED

Lazarus' credibility as a witness was questioned throughout his cross-examination by Louise, particularly in regards to whether he had reported all his income derived from illegal activities.

Lazarus said he could not recall how much tax he paid, adding that he had reported all his income, "but didn't say where it came from."

The Seaway Club netted an average of $15,000 a week, said Lazarus, with Giacalone receiving 50 percent of the profits.

Koury, according to Lazarus, received an additional 10 percent of the action. Lazarus said that he later met Koury and "He thanked me."

DENIES KNOWING LAZARUS

"I've been the running boy for the numbers and the club, and I think I deserve it," Lazarus quoted Koury as saying.

Koury later told newsmen that he didn't know and had never met Lazarus.

Following the raid, Lombardi and two other men were convicted of conspiracy to violate state gambling laws and conspiracy to bribe a policeman.

Giacalone and Koury's alleged participation in the club came to light after Lazarus talked to police earlier this month.

Pipeline Construction Through 6 Townships Gets Hearing Tuesday

The County Board of Supervisors Planning, Building and Zoning Committee will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday on the proposed construction by Lakehead Pipe Co. of a crude oil pipeline through six northern townships.

The hearing is scheduled for the Brandon Township Hall, 486 Mill. Committee Chairman Niles Olson, D-Lake Orion, will conduct the hearing.

The pipeline would extend through Rose, Springfield, Brandon, Groveland, Oxford and Addison townships.

Harry Horton, chairman of the board's public works committee, has noted that property owners usually have very little recourse against pipeline construction.

Peace Talk Foes Near Start Toward Settlement?

PARIS (AP) — The adversaries in the Vietnam peace talks may be on the extreme edge of the common ground which U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge declares is necessary for a start toward a settlement.

That is the cautious impression U.S. and South Vietnamese negotiators formed after yesterday's weekly meeting.

U.S. Battleship to Leave Viet, May Not Return

SAIGON (AP) — Military sources said today the world's only active battleship—the USS New Jersey—will depart in March after a six-month tour off the coasts of North and South Vietnam and may not return to the war.

The sources said her departure does not represent a de-escalation of the allied war effort.

But after six months in Long Beach, Calif., for repairs, maintenance and retraining of her crew, the 50,000-ton battleship may not be needed in Vietnam, depending on the progress of the Paris peace talks, the sources said.

The New Jersey was brought out of mothballs in 1967 as a $50 million experiment to test the effectiveness of her 16-inch guns against targets in North Vietnam.

The United States was then escalating its bombardment of the North, and the Navy said the 23-mile range of the New Jersey's guns would cover many of the targets then being hit by warplanes. Use of the battleship could reduce American jet plane losses then running about one a day, the Navy explained.

By the time the New Jersey arrived in Vietnam last Sept. 30, President Johnson had limited air and surface bombardment of North Vietnam to the country's narrow southern panhandle.

The Pentagon said the battleship's big guns were still needed to hit well entrenched North Vietnamese artillery which was harassing the U.S. and South Vietnamese posts below the demilitarized zone.

A month later Johnson halted all attacks on the North, and the enemy artillery attacks from above the DMZ stopped. Since then the battleship has made occasional attacks on North Vietnamese bunkers and antiaircraft guns in the DMZ which attacked U.S. reconnaissance planes.

She also has bombarded shore targets in South Vietnam in support of American or South Vietnamese ground troops. A number of military experts consider that the U.S. 7th Fleet's ample supply of destroyers and cruisers can carry out such missions satisfactorily, and a lot cheaper.

The allied negotiators found three encouraging signs during and after the weekly encounter:

1. The North Vietnamese have shifted the focus of their publicly expressed interest onto a terrain chosen by Lodge. Instead of emphasizing that the United States and the Saigon government must accept the political demands of North Vietnam and the Vietcong, Hanoi envoy Xuan Thuy moved to the forefront his insistence that the United States unconditionally withdraw its troops from South Vietnam.

Although Thuy declared that the U.S. withdrawal must be made without conditions, observers saw the possibility of a parallel with the negotiations for a halt in the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam, Hanoi then insisted publicly that the bombing halt must be unconditional but later made secret concessions. A similar compromise to provide mutual troop withdrawals also is considered possible.

2. Lodge tried hard to reassure the other side that the United States shares their expressed view that a final settlement ought to conform to the spirit of the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam.

Taking Thuy's words at the previous session as his own, Lodge affirmed: "We support the principles of sovereignty, independence, unity and territorial integrity" of Vietnam.

ATMOSPHERE IMPROVES

Thuy had enumerated these points as essential facets of the agreements which ended France's war in Indochina.

3. The final encouraging sign was a matter of atmosphere. At their news conference after the session, the spokesmen for North Vietnam and the NLF appeared less strident and acrimonious than they had after previous meetings.

Presiding Judge Edward Hagerty Jr. denied a motion by Shaw's attorneys asking for a directed verdict of innocent.

Mrs. Wilson's Children Fail to Gain $15-Million Trust

The three children of Mrs. Matilda Wilson, benefactress of Oakland University, have lost their case in Oakland County Probate Court to dissolve a $15-million charitable trust established by their late mother and have the money divided among them.

Judge Donald E. Adams ruled that the children have no right to the fund since Mrs. Wilson's will clearly indicated how she wanted it distributed.

The will was contested by Mrs. Frances Dodge Van Lennep of Lexington, Ky., Mrs. Thomas Eccles of Scottsdale, Ariz., and Richard Wilson of Bloomfield Hills.

In her will dated March 9, 1967, seven months before her death, Mrs. Wilson left a number of personal items to Mrs. Van Lennep and $10,000 to each of the other children.

She noted in her will that financial provisions had already been made for the children.

In their suit filed against their mother's estate, the children contended, among other things, that the two officers in the fund were in conflict of interest because they were instrumental in preparing the will. Judge Adams rejected the argument.

After the distribution of specific property and cash to persons and organizations named in the will, including $300,000 for a professorship at Oakland University and $200,000 in trust for each of her two grandchildren, the remainder was placed in the existing Matilda R. Wilson Fund for charitable purposes.

Banks, Offices Shut Tomorrow

Tomorrow is the 237th anniversary of George Washington's birthday, and Pontiac city banks and offices will be closed.

Some county and township offices, normally closed on Saturday, also will close Monday in observance of the holiday, but most will remain open.

Community National Bank, Pontiac State Bank, First Federal Savings of Oakland and Capital Savings and Loan will be closed tomorrow and open again Monday.

Post office windows will be closed tomorrow and there will be no regular delivery service. However, special delivery will be available and the main post office lobby will be open for mail deposits, access to locked boxes and use of stamp dispensers. Regular postal service will resume Monday.

Inmates Break 12 Windows at the County Jail

Prisoners held in the fourth floor bullpen at the Oakland County Jail appeared quiet today after smashing about 12 windows in two disturbances yesterday.

Undersheriff Leo Hazen said trouble apparently started when one of the prisoners was moved to a lower floor after calling the turnkey obscene names.

He said at about 2:30 p.m. yesterday six or eight windows on the Wayne Street side of the building were broken when prisoners threw bars of soap through the glass. The problem was straightened out until later in the evening when another five or six windows were broken.

"We had men in the area at that time," Hazen said, "and as soon as we sent more men in, things quieted down."

Pontiac Vendor Shot by Bandit

A Pontiac man shot during an armed robbery attempt in Waterford Township yesterday is reported in satisfactory condition in Pontiac General Hospital.

Township detectives said Leo Fournier, 25, of 366 N. Saginaw was shot once in the midsection about 1:30 p.m. yesterday while in the rear of his vending van.

Fournier had parked the truck on M59 near Airport and was taking inventory when a man suddenly opened the rear door, announced a holdup and fired, police said.

Officers said they have not determined whether anything was taken from the van.

Investigators urged any citizens who might have seen activity around a gray van parked in the area at the time of the shooting to report their observations.

"We believe someone must have seen something," said a police spokesman.

Birmingham Area 9 Candidates Are Vying for Commission

BIRMINGHAM — What originally appeared to be a sparsely populated race for the three available City Commission seats up for grabs in the April 8 city election no longer is.

The city clerk's office said the late surge of nominating petition filings will make this year's commission race one of the most wide-open in recent years.

The last-minute decision of William E. Roberts of 745 Abbey, senior member on the commission, not to run, leaves Mayor David Brock of 752 Willits and first-term Commissioner William B. Saunders of 685 Pierce as the only incumbents running against the seven new candidates.

The final list of candidates as released by the clerk's office includes C. Arthur Caputo, 2471 Radnor; Craig V. Craig, 1628 E. Maple; John Dorsey, 1171 Yo-senior; John A. Fallos, 807 Coolidge; William R. Lilley, 250 Pleasant; George A. Lyon, 511 Wallace; and Herbert Ring, 2328 Derby.

LIBRARY BOARD RACE

Meantime, Mrs. John Jickling, 600 Shepardsburg; Mrs. Lee M. Kreul, 2760 Buckingham; and William C. Steward of 1323 Northlawn will run for the two vacancies on the Library Board. Incumbent Charles W. Reafore, 987 Arden, and Mrs. P. Adams, 6139 Argyle, have chosen not to run.

Mrs. Edward B. Emery of 795 Fairfax has been named co-chairman of the 1969 Community House Fund Drive. She will serve with Charles F. Adams, 6139 Oakland Circle, Bloomfield Township, previously named as chairman.

Mrs. Emery is past president of the Birmingham Junior League and actively involved as a member of the Village Women's Club. She serves on the board of directors of Brookside School and has done volunteer work for the United Foundation as well as Girl Scouts of America.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — Eight faculty members from Brookside School, Cranbrook School and Kingswood School, private schools run by the Cranbrook Foundation, will attend the annual conference of the National Association of Independent Schools Feb. 28 and March 1 in the America Hotel, New York.

Conference theme is "Currents of Change and the Schools."

UNIONS COMBINE FORCES

All three unions in negotiation have vowed not to settle their disputes until all are satisfied with agreements.

The two union men, representing the 450 white and blue collar workers for the city, are seeking wage increases of about 35 cents per hour. Also at issue are longevity pay and retirement and other fringe benefits. The city reportedly has offered 30 cents an hour.

Negotiations with the firemen appear to be the primary issue, however, and their agreement could be expected to set a pattern for the others, it has been indicated.

Hours Extended for Buying Plates

With time growing short for motorists to purchase 1969 passenger vehicle license plates, area secretary of state branch offices have extended their hours.

The legal purchase deadline is next Friday, after which drivers without this year's plates will be ticketed.

Offices with expanded hours scheduled tomorrow are Pontiac, 96 E. Huron; Waterford Township, 4200 Pontiac Lake; Walled Lake, 141 E. Walled Lake; and Rochester, 329 Walnut, all open until 5 p.m.

Pontiac's office will open at 8:15 a.m. tomorrow, the others at 9 a.m.

FEB. 25 HOURS

The Pontiac, Rochester and Walled Lake branches also have extended their hours for Feb. 23 — Pontiac and Rochester scheduled until 7 p.m., Walled Lake until 8 p.m.

Regular weekday hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Fees are payable in cash, by payroll checks or cashier's checks, but not by personal checks.

Data for the argument was collected from school district statistics and also from findings published in the recent Civil Rights Commission report regarding education in Pontiac, Hatchett said.

The plaintiffs asked that a preliminary hearing be set up and that a declaratory judgment be rendered which, states that the policies and practices complained of in the suit violate the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Whitmer, who returned from a meeting of school administrators in Atlantic City, N.J., last night with Lacy and several board members, declined to comment on the case.

He said that on this morning he had not received a copy of the suit filed.

Nixon Calls for Limited Vote Reform

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon has called for limited electoral reform, but has stopped short of endorsing the direct popular vote system that has wide backing in Congress.

Observing that the present electoral system "is deeply rooted in American history," Nixon cautioned Congress against trying to abolish it.

Instead, he said in a message to Congress Thursday, electoral reform should aim at dividing each state's electoral vote "in a manner that may more closely approximate the popular vote than does the present system."

Mayor Switch to Put Taylor in E. Lansing

Pontiac Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. will change places on May 19 with the mayor of East Lansing for the annual exchange of mayors and village presidents during Michigan Week.

Gov. William Milliken drew the first names in pairing the communities, which were grouped in four categories according to population for the drawing this year.

Other pairings for the area communities include: Almont-Omer; Novi-Bessemer; Birmingham-Dowagiac; Bloomfield Hills-Rockwood; Inlay City-Bridgman; North Branch-DeKerville; Lake Orion-DeWitt; Walled Lake-Eaton Rapids; Farmington-Wakefield; Franklin-Lawrence; Milford-Fremont; Romeo-Grand Ledge; Lapeer-Grosse Pointe; Holly-Swartz Creek; Keego Harbor-Parchment; Rochester-Manistiquette; Metamora-Michigana; Troy-Norton Shores; Ovid-Perry; South Lyon-Owendale; Oxford-Uhly; and Utica-Edmore.

Nixon thus threw his support to some form of proportional distribution of the electoral vote, a reform generally backed by conservatives as an alternative to the one-man, one-vote approach of the direct popular election.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., leading backer of the direct popular vote, reserved comment on the Nixon message, sent up to Capitol Hill late in the day.

But Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said Nixon's message would give impetus to "long-awaited congressional action" to bring about reform of the electoral college system.

Nixon said in the past he has favored dividing the electoral vote among the presidential candidates in the same proportion as they divide a state's electoral vote, but that he is not endorsing any specific plan now.

One suggested plan, which Nixon did not rule out, calls for awarding one electoral vote for each congressional district carried by a candidate, with two votes going to the statewide popular winner.

Under either of these plans Nixon would have defeated John F. Kennedy in 1960, although under the proportional plan he would have fallen seven votes short of the 270 electoral votes needed for a majority.

In his message to Congress Nixon proposed dealing with such a problem by providing that a winning candidate get only 40 per cent of the electoral vote to become president.

If no candidate gets 40 per cent, he said, there should be a nationwide popular run-off election between the two top candidates.

Nixon also proposed eliminating the individual electors who now cast their state's ballots in the electoral college. Under his plan a state's electoral vote would be awarded automatically on the basis of the popular vote.

The President's recommendations use bits and pieces from several of the scores of proposed constitutional amendments dealing with electoral reform now under consideration in Congress.

By far the greatest number of proposals, however, call for a national popular vote to elect the president.

Forty senators and 38 House members have cosponsored such an amendment, it has been endorsed by the American Bar Association, the AFL-CIO and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, and recent public opinion polls show it is supported by about 80 per cent of the people.

But in his message, Nixon noted the strong historical pull of the electoral system on the states and said he doubted that any amendment that did away with it could get the approval of the 38 states needed for ratification.

"For this reason," he said, "and because of the compelling specific weaknesses focused in concentrating its attention on formulating a system that can remove the requisite congressional and state approval."

The finest Fury ever built.

Fury III is the car that helped win over three-quarter million competitive owners in the last two years.

It's a whole new Plymouth. A big Plymouth. With a 120 inch wheelbase that's longer than Chevy Impala; an overall length that's greater than Ford Galaxie.

Fury III is big inside, too. Big and luxurious. And when you compare such things as suspension, the differences become even greater. Impala and Galaxie still have coil springs in front. Fury has torsion bars—torsion bars that twist with bumps and turns instead of bouncing up and down.

But why not do your own evaluating. The chart above tells it like it is and so does your Plymouth dealer. He's right in the midst of The GREAT! Plymouth Sale. And that means, with Fury III, you not only get a great car but you save money on many popular options.

Case for Rochester Hills' Presented

By TOM GRAY
AVON TOWNSHIP — The case for "Rochester Hills" was heard in full last night, as some 50 area residents turned out for what was billed as a debate on the March 10 charter election.

However, only representatives of Avon Township Citizens for Better Government (ATCBG), which supports the incorporation of the township into the city of Rochester Hills, were present to discuss the issue at the meeting, sponsored by the Avon-Rochester Democratic Club.

Club Chairman Peter Vernia said several groups opposing incorporation had indicated interest in sending a speaker to the meeting, but that arrangements could not be finalized.

ATCBG representatives Frank Lansey, Fred Lieb and Charles Vigor divided their 1½-hour presentation into three sections.

HISTORY BENEFITS

Lansey of 210 Vreeland gave a history of area incorporation attempts and a summary of the benefits in services and presentation which he said city government would afford.

The citizens' group, he said, had originally been formed because of concern about the burgeoning growth of the township.

Projected population increase from 1960-80, Lansey noted, is about 35 per cent for the United States, 15 per cent for Michigan, and 115 per cent for Avon Township.

The city form of government, he theorized, will "provide a better framework for orderly community growth."

'INCREASE IN INDEPENDENCE'

Incorporation will also enable township residents to prevent piecemeal annexation by nearby communities, increase independence from state and county governments and result in improved police protection, Lansey said.

ATCBG, he concluded, would support city council candidates in the March 10 election — candidates who concur with the group's platform of orderly growth, minimum taxation, eventual consolidation with the city of Rochester, and establishment of a code of ethics in government to prevent conflicts of interest.

Fred Lieb of 1475 Gracedale, chairman of the group's charter study committee, then took the floor to discuss features of the proposed Rochester Hills charter.

Among charter highlights, he listed the tax ceiling of 10 mills (city residents can vote up to 5 additional mills), public council meetings and an annual public budget hearing, protection against public nuisances and hazards and power of recall of elected officials by voters.

'PROHIBITS INTEREST CONFLICTS'

The charter, also prohibits nepotism and conflicts of interest, Lieb said, and is to be compatible with that of Rochester, in case future consolidation becomes desirable.

Vigor of 761 Ironstone, chairman of the township advisory water and sewer board, followed with a detailed projection of changes in taxation under a municipal government.

As a city, he said, Rochester Hills would receive some $74,000 more from state and county governments for road maintenance, increased costs necessitated for administration and a police force he estimated at $153,000, to be partially offset by credits from other areas amounting to $95,000.

The $58,000 difference, added to the township's present revenue of $295,000, would make total necessary city revenue $353,000.

The township's increase in assessed valuation pegged at 37 per cent, to $11 million, he said, should leave the city's tax rate at about 3.16 mills — an increase of .37 mills for township residents in District 1 (Rochester) and a decrease of 2.13 mills for residents in Districts 2 (Brooklands) and 3 (Avondale).

Springfield Fire Tied to Others in County

SPRINGFIELD TOWNSHIP — An apparently deliberate fire at a cottage on Wameeka Lake Road this week has been linked with a series of arson cases on the east side of this township and adjoining townships, according to Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Detective Sgt. Charles Whitlock said a fire Wednesday at a cottage owned by Eve Halley at 8025 Wameeka showed evidence of arson. Pieces of paper were stuffed in the upholstery of furniture on the front porch, the detective said.

Springfield Township firemen snuffed out the fire early, holding damage to about $100. It was the second fire in the last three months at the Halley residence and about the sixth fire reported in residences, cottages and abandoned houses located near the Wameeka Lake Road and Bridge Lake intersection within the past several months.

Whitlock reported there have been 61 small fires, mostly in barns and abandoned houses, in the county during the past 12 months. A good percentage of these fires have been in the northern townships, notably Brandon, Springfield and Rose, he said.

Whitlock added that in most cases, the fires apparently were the work of an arsonist, damage, however, has been small. He added the fire settings are probably the work of youths rather than a confirmed arsonist or "firebug."

Funds-Shy TALUS Contracts Work to Meet Deadline

An attempt to meet an Aug. 8 deadline for completion of its study has been approved by the administrative committee of TALUS (Detroit Regional Transportation and Land Use Study) despite a shortage of funds.

The committee has approved a contract with Alan M. Voorhees Associates Inc., planning consultants, of Washington, D.C., to begin work on the final phase of a 1990 plan for seven counties in southeastern Michigan.

Spokesmen for the Alan M. Voorhees firm and TALUS Director Irving J. Rubin, estimated a total contract in the amount of $360,000 would be required to do work needed to meet the deadline.

Rubin recently announced he would need an additional $330,000 to complete the study on time.

Only $180,000 in TALUS funds will be available for the contract with Voorhees, Rubin said.

The administrative committee ordered the work to begin but would not be obligated for more than the $180,000.

A review of progress is set for April 15 with a decision then on whether or how to raise further funds.

Bad Headlight Foils Kidnapers of Novi Woman

NOVI — A burned-out headlight foiled a kidnaping of a 74-year-old village woman and led to the arrest of two escapees from the Whitmore Lake State Training School in this village last night.

Novi police said Otelia Thompson was kidnaped from her home at knifepoint by the pair, one a juvenile and one a 17-year-old, who had been sought since escaping from the school Tuesday night.

The two escaped in a stolen car and drove into Detroit. Police said they swapped their car for a second stolen auto, then drove to Oakland County.

Last night, they appeared at the home of Mrs. Thompson kidnaped her at knifepoint and drove off in her car, police said.

When the group reached Wixom, policemen Paul Green and Roger DeClercq stopped the car because one headlight was out and made the arrests, officers said.

"Mrs. Thompson was quite relieved, needless to say," Green said later. The Wixom patrolmen took the pair to Novi, where police said they were held for kidnaping and armed robbery.

Green said the 17-year-old, Kenneth William Owens of Ionia, was serving time for armed robbery and breaking and entering when he had been involved with another stolen car.

The 16-year-old reportedly was committed from Detroit.

2nd Detroit Firm Eyes Troy Move

TROY — Another firm has indicated it may move here from Detroit — the second within the last month.

The Budd Co., an automotive parts, railroad car and truck trailer building firm, said yesterday its automotive division may follow the S. S. Kresge Co. from Detroit to Troy.

Gilbert F. Richards, president and general manager of the automotive division, said the company is investigating an 86-acre site in Troy adjacent to I-75.

The Budd announcement follows a decision by S. S. Kresge to move its headquarters to Troy.

Communication Gap for County Hinted

By JEAN SAILE

A communications gap in the courthouse?

Some supervisors say there is. Daniel T. Murphy, chairman of the board of auditors, denies it.

Board Chairman Charles B. Edwards Jr. of Madison Heights said he was never informed of the resignation of Joseph Davis Jr. as Oakland-Pontiac Airport manager until told about it by the press.

Aviation Committee Chairman Wallace Gabler, R-Royal Oak, said he had not been informed by Murphy but that he had been contacted informally by Davis.

DENIED RESPONSIBILITY

The resignation followed official channels and went to Murphy's office. Murphy denied he had responsibility to carry the information immediately to supervisors.

Edwards reportedly has had a request for information regarding certain county procedures in at Murphy's office for more than a week. He hasn't yet received an answer.

Finance Committee Chairman George

News Analysis

Grba, D-Pontiac, recently took administrators to task for the failure to provide ready information regarding the county's proposed $9-million jail. The information was made available at a committee meeting this week, as administrators said. It was too late to make many changes.

Supervisor Christian Powell, R-West Bloomfield Township, engaged in heated debate with Murphy at the same meeting and charged he would be no "rubber stamp" for any administrative decisions.

POSITION TENUOUS

Murphy told a Pontiac Press reporter he would furnish information to the board or any of its committees. He denied a responsibility to furnish information to individual supervisors.

Murphy enjoys the chairmanship of the auditors, at the pleasure of the County Board of Supervisors. But the auditors are a man short and the vacancy, that of John B. Osgood of Royal Oak who resigned to take a district judgeship, is still up for grabs. A recommendation to fill the vacancy could result from this afternoon's committee on committees meeting.

Should another Democrat be appointed to join Robert Lilly, vice chairman of the board, it is conceivable that Murphy could be outvoted on the powerful board.

Murphy, a Republican, takes pride in his job as chief administrator of the county. The new board, meeting more frequently than the old, has signified intent to become much more informed regarding the county than some members of the old board were. Some conflict appears inherent.

GOOD FOR COUNTY

Few of the supervisors deny that Murphy has been good for the county. It even appeared after Osgood's appointment to the judgeship that Murphy had assurance that he would be allowed to continue as auditor chairman even if a Democrat were to be elected in Osgood's place.

But supervisors are becoming ruffled.

Only Way to Stop Tax Rise, Says Smart

Legislator Points to Citizen Involvement

BRANDON TOWNSHIP — Citizen involvement with local governmental units is the only effective alternative for township residents if they want to stop rising tax rates, State Rep. Clifford Smart, R-Walled Lake, told a citizens rally at the Township Hall last night.

About 75 residents turned out for the monthly meeting of the Brandon Township Homeowners and Taxpayers Association to hear Smart.

He explained that citizens will have to determine if they can afford the loss of quality of public services that would come with a tax reduction.

Smart said the tax increases everywhere can be directly attributed to the inflationary spiral, and added that the only choice to hold down increasing tax rates that coincide with inflation is simply to reduce services.

BUDGET HEARINGS

Noting that the biggest local tax bite is from the school district, the legislator — a former school superintendent — said residents have the opportunity to confront the board of education at its budget hearings to determine exactly what educational services they would lose if a tax rate reduction went through.

Smart said the usual losses in a school system in the event of a revenue loss are staff reductions, an increase of the teacher-pupil classroom ratio and loss of supplementary teaching aids.

"If you feel the school district can do without these services and resultant loss of quality, then organized pressure can be placed on the board to consider either a reduction or maintenance of present millage rates."

"Of course, if the board does not believe in citizenry request, then you have the democratic controls of voting them out of office," Smart said.

PLANS IN WORKS

The legislator's advice to local taxpayers concerning their recourse for action comes at a time when the Brandon School District is finalizing plans for a proposed $3 million to $5-million bond issue package which will come up for voter approval in late spring.

He noted that most budget hearings of any local governmental body seldom experience any appreciable citizen protest.

"The hearings are where the decisions are made, and if you don't like them, you have the prerogative to make known your feelings to the particular board in question," Smart added.

Several citizens expressed concern over the proposed 31 per cent increase in property valuation in the township this year, stating that simultaneous millage rate increases and higher valuation assessments are putting a severe hardship on many residents in the township.

WILLING TO SACRIFICE?

Smart said the valuation increase is part of the state's move to bring all areas up to 50 per cent valuation.

He added that residents cannot control the property valuation increase, but they can control the millage rate, if they are willing to make the sacrifice.

The attendance at last night's session was the largest since the Homeowners and Taxpayers' Association began monthly meetings over a year ago.

Meeting Will Weigh Troy School Vote

TROY — The board of education of this school district will hold a special meeting tonight to consider a formal resolution calling for a special election April 7.

The meeting will begin at 8 in the board offices, 120 Hart.

The board previously scheduled the date for the election, in which citizens will vote on approval of a proposed $3.9-million bond issue for construction.

Included under the issue are a new west side elementary school and additions to four existing elementary buildings and two existing junior high schools.

PORTABLE CLASSROOMS

The board had also planned to include $100,000 for portable classrooms to limit overcrowding next school year. However, that portion of the proposal was dropped after the State Department of Instruction refused to approve its inclusion, suggesting instead that temporary buildings be financed with other funds.

The district has had a checked record on money proposals during the past two years. At the last election last month, voters split the two questions, approving a millage renewal, but rejecting a $6.75-million bond proposition.

The board has trimmed a proposed addition to Troy High School from the list included in the January proposition.

The failure of the state to approve the portable classrooms, however, could mean problems in housing students next year, according to school officials.

The board is presently studying possible methods of housing the freshman class, which will have an estimated 450 students.

Under one plan being considered, freshmen would attend classes in the high school, with the entire student body operating on a split-shift basis.

The high school building, planned for about 1,150, would accommodate 1,700 students under the plan, with one shift attending from 7 a.m. to noon and the other from 1-6 p.m.

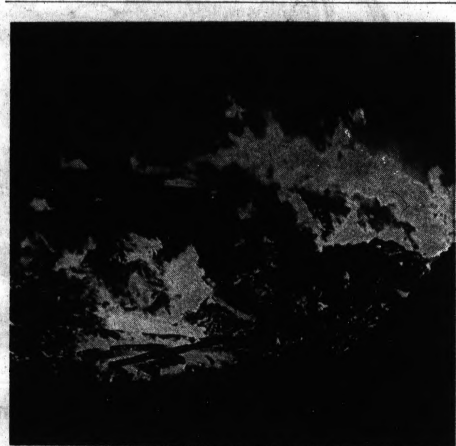

The board split once more, 5-2, on scheduling the bond vote, with the two dissident trustees urging delay until after the outcome of an investigation of the district's finances is known.

PRINCIPAL PROBE SUBJECT

The investigation, which is being conducted by the state attorney general's office, has been under way for over a year, and no indication has yet been given that it is near completion.

The principal subject of the probe has been a number of expenditures from the 1965 and 1966 building and site funds.

Last week, however, Assistant Atty. Gen. Eugene Krasicky said investigators are also studying land transactions made by the district as well.

Pueblo Case Offers New Look at Prisoner Code

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — However, Pueblo crewmen can not be punished under the code directly, says Capt. William Newsome, Navy counsel, and questioning them about the code is "simply for the sake of evaluating" it.

"Perhaps it is inartfully written and in need of revision," Newsome told newsmen Thursday, referring to an era of cold war when men are not taken prisoner of war but are "illegally detained."

The code of conduct, promulgated by then President Eisenhower after the Korean War, says that U.S. prisoners of war are bound to give only name, rank, service number and date of birth.

FAKE CONFESSIONS

Pueblo officers and crewmen have told a Navy court of inquiry into the ship's seizure and their 11-month imprisonment that they signed false confessions after torture, saying they intruded into North Korean waters and were spying. The court was in recess today for Washington's birthday.

How the code of conduct is affected by the Pueblo case was shown Thursday in testimony from Radioman 2.C. Lee Roy Hayes, who said he prayed an atomic bomb would be dropped on North Korea during his imprisonment because "I'd rather be killed by my own people."

"What was the main reason for deviating from the code of conduct?" asked the counsel.

"I couldn't hold out forever," said Hayes.

Photographers Mate 1.C. Lawrence Mack told the court:

"They had our records ... The Koreans weren't abiding by the rules of fair play) and it would be pretty much impossible to abide by the code of conduct."

"We were not in war," Lt. Stephen Harris testified.

"STATUS UNCLEAR"

"It was difficult to understand whether the code of conduct really applied ... It tended to confuse the issue, our status was unclear."

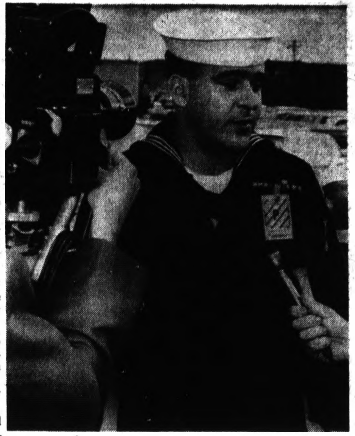

Should the Pueblo crewmen be punished for their prison behavior, said Newsome, it would have to be under the Uniform Code of Military Justice—perhaps under articles forbidding aid to the enemy.

Willfully giving the enemy material information could be aiding them under the military code, Newsome said.

In his dramatic testimony, Hayes said he wrote Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio from prison to say:

"I pray each night and every morning ... His voice faltered. He poured a glass of ice water at the witness table, reached under his glasses to wipe his eyes and continued:

"I pray each night and every morning to see the glorious bright light from home ... I meant by this they should drop the atom bomb on Korea."

Skaters Match Skill

The world's foremost practitioners of the spectacular art of figure skating gather Tuesday in Colorado Springs for the World Figure Skating Championships. Those who can best combine the grace of a ballet dancer, the agility of a gymnast, and the strength and endurance of a pro football player—all on ice—will emerge as champions.

WOOD

Figure skating has come a long way from Vienna where, 104 winters ago, a transplanted American ballet master, JACKSON HAINES, decided that skating should be to music and outlined the major movements. Until then, skating was an English exercise keyed to the sedate Victorian era.

Haines shocked the Victorians with his theatrics. His sensational one-foot spiral around the entire ice rink in Vienna is still the longest arabesque in show skating. Such exhibitions were considered a shocking display. But the spectators loved it and he revolutionized skating.

Today's amateur stars are performing feats that might impress JACKSON HAINES. BLONDE JANET LYNN, 15, a high school sophomore from Rockford, Ill., completed a triple jump without flaw in recent competition to emerge as the new U.S. senior ladies' figure-skating champion. She has succeeded PEGGY FLEMING as North America's new queen of ice.

The Pontiac area will be brilliantly represented by Bloomfield Hills' TIM WOOD, the 21-year-old pre-law student at John Carroll U. in Cleveland, who earlier in the month captured the North American figure skating championship in Oakland, Calif., after shining in Mexico City as a silver medalist in the 1968 Olympics.

Competition among the world's 100 best skaters at Colorado Springs will be fierce, as usual. Since technical mastery is expected, the judges must look for something extra. Olympic gold medalist Oleg Protopopov of the Soviet Union once put it this way: "There are thousands of high-class athletes, but someone must be first, and the first is the one who can reach your heart."

High Cost of World Conflict

The nations of the world will spend more than $200 billion on armaments and other military needs in 1969.

They have already spent more than $4 TRILLION on wars and preparation for wars so far in this century.

If the present rate of increased spending continues, that figure will be doubled within 10 years. Even if the present rate remains steady, more than $10 trillion will have been spent in homage to Mars by the end of the century.

The figures are from the third annual survey of world military expenditures by the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. A few others:

- Since 1964, the world's

Gross National Product has risen 9 per cent per capita; the world's military budget, 16 per cent.

- More than 20 million men and women are in active duty forces; another 30 million are directly or indirectly engaged in productive activities resulting from military expenditures.

The average annual expenditure per soldier, worldwide, is $7,800; for the estimated one billion school-age children in the world, the expenditure averages $100 a year. Half the governments of the world, including the United States, spend more on defense than on education.

This is only a sampling from the report. The tragic statistics go on. And on. And on.

Embalmers Join Seafarers

The Mortuary, Embalmers and Allied Funeral Service Employees Union has become an affiliate of the Seafarers International Union. It's not such an odd link-up as it sounds, says United Transportation Union News, reporting the event. After all, the M. E. & AFSEU are the boys who ferry people across the River Styx.

Religion in School

Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune

He didn't know it at the time, but the astronaut who joined the Supreme Court about whether it had permitted Bible reading on the lunar orbiting mission, has opened an old wound. It is a particularly sensitive wound because it is filled with the germs of confusion. Teachers, administrators and parents still argue over what in the way of religious knowledge can be imparted in the schools.

The Court's opinion and the confusion may be the way for a much more intelligent handling of religion in the public schools.

An organization known as Religious Instruction Association Inc. of Fort Wayne, Ind., has made an intensive study of the problem and has come up with some enlightening facts. Here, in light of court opinions, is what the schools may and may not do.

The school should sponsor the study of religion but should not sponsor the practice of religion.

"The school should expose students to all religious views but should not impose any particular view."

"The school's approach to religion is one of instruction, not one of indoctrination."

"The function of the school is to educate about all religions, not to convert to any one religion."

"The school approach to religion is academic, not devotional."

"The school should study what all people believe but not teach a pupil what he should believe."

"The school should strive for student understanding of all religions but should not press for student acceptance of any one religion."

"The school should seek to inform the student of various beliefs but should not seek to conform him to any one belief."

Given those rules, there is no reason why the public schools should shut instruction in the great religious heritages of mankind which have done so much to shape the world in which we live.

Growing Fad

Milwaukee Journal

Ferment on the campus has hit Antioch college in Ohio, which has a tradition of ferment. In a unique way. Students at Antioch had a tradition of mustaches and beards before other campuses. But the fad has been growing.

Now, according to a college news release, 216 students and Students at Antioch had a tradition of mustaches and beards before other campuses. But the fad has been growing.

The Ad Hoc Mustache Cup Advisory Board argues that without proper cups mustache wearers "suffer indignities," get mustaches "incredibly damaged" and are endangered by the resulting "unsanitary" upper lip.

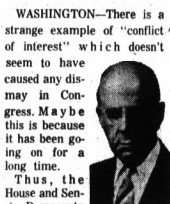

Balding President Dixon says that his promise is "a rather terrifying gut level agreement because I haven't had a mustache for 30 years and I don't even know if I can grow one."

'What's A Few Billion, More Or Less, To Keep You Dry?'

David Lawrence Says:

'Shady' Fund Raising Ignored

WASHINGTON—There is a strange example of "conflict of interest" which doesn't seem to have caused any dismay in Congress. Maybe it is because it has been going on for a long time.

Thus, the House and Senate Democrats have set up an LAWRENCE annual fund-raising dinner for May 12, and the Republicans have arranged for a similar dinner on April 2, to collect money for their respective 1970 congressional campaigns.

The Democrats have put a price tag of $500 per plate on their dinner, while the Republicans are asking their guests to pay $1,000 per plate.

A UPI dispatch says: "Many of the tickets are bought by lobbyists, and generally the same lobbyists can be found at both dinners."

The recent uproar about "conflict of interest" was related to the possibility that new appointees of the executive branch of the government would still retain stock ownership or other ties with the companies where they were previously employed.

RELATIONSHIP
The argument was made that the award of government contracts might have a relationship to the firms with which the officials had been connected and to which they may return.

But apparently members of Congress do not mind receiving money for their political campaigns from individual lobbyists who have a direct interest in legislation.

The Democrats in Congress are trying to raise in excess of a million dollars at their dinner, while the Republicans expect to collect an even larger sum at their festive occasion.

Many of the lobbyists are representatives of companies which are the recipients of government contracts involving billions of dollars.

ON BOTH SIDES
They patronized Republican and Democratic dinners because they want to maintain friends on both sides. They never know when something that concerns them will come up and will be handled by persons of influence or power in one party or the other.

The Federal Corrupt Practices Act makes it clear that no contributions to campaign funds may be made, directly or indirectly, by corporations.

In the case of the congressional dinners, money is being collected directly for an election campaign. Presumably the lobbyists are not contributing funds, but the sums may in some instances be paid for by their employers.

Certainly the beneficiaries of these affairs are well aware of who contributed to their success.

It is natural for the inference to be drawn that the federal law has been circumvented and that corporations and others are, directly or indirectly, furnishing money for political campaigns.

The Federal Corrupt Practices Act has not been amended for a long time although political contests have been financed by methods contrary to the spirit, if not the letter, of the law.

Bob Considine Says:

Washington Ranks High as Transitional Figure

NEW YORK—George Washington was, among other things, our greatest transitional figure, the most visible and vulnerable of the human dividing lines between British and American rule of this part of the globe.

CONSIDINE

He would have been the first to be hanged if his army—surely the worst we ever had—had blown the decision.

Washington was a British subject from his birth on Feb. 11 (old style calendar) 1732 until 1776. He died Dec. 14, 1799. He was 44 years an English subject, 23 an American.

He died of two troubles that could be cured today by a wonder drug or two: quinsy, an inflammation of the throat, and laryngitis—contracted during a horseback ride in the rain and snow on Dec. 12, 1799.

18th-CENTURY TREATMENT
His doctors treated him by bleeding him four times the day before his death, and persuading him to gargle a potion made of molasses, vinegar and butter.

They also gave him the last word in 18th-century therapy, a pad of dried beetles to be worn around his neck.

Big George was appreciative but figured that even such wondrous ministrations as these couldn't save him.

"I die hard, but I am prepared to go," he said to his doctors and his family. "I thank you for your attentions, but pray you to take no more trouble about me. Let me go off quietly."

WORDS LIVE ON
He was no Lincoln at turning a phrase, but time has failed to erode many of his observations and writings:

"Liberty, when it begins to take root, is a plant of rapid growth."

A letter to the Jewish Congregation of New York, R.I., in 1790 delineated his stand on minority groups:

"The citizens of the United States of America have a right to applaud themselves for having given to mankind examples of an enlarged and liberal policy: a policy worthy of imitation. All possess alike liberty of conscience and immunities of citizenship...."

"For happily the government of the United States, which gives to bigotry no sanction, to persecution no assistance, requires only that they who live under its protection should demean themselves as good citizens in giving it on all occasions their effectual support."

OWNED SLAVES
Washington owned many slaves. But in a letter written to a friend in 1786 he declared, "I never mean, unless some particular circumstance should compel me to it, to possess another slave by purchase, it being among my first wishes to see some plan adopted by which slavery in this country may be abolished by law."

During the administration of Calvin Coolidge an anti-Washington book, written by Rupert Hughes, was brought to the president's attention. Coolidge asked what the charges were. When he had heard the sizzling details, he thought a moment, then turned his chair around and looked out the window at the Washington Monument.

"It's still there," he said contentedly.

Still is.

Support Milliken's Stand on Campus Disorders

Governor Milliken deserves commendation for promising to quell campus riots by any means at his disposal. Disturbances are spearheaded by persons from the outside, aided by campus nonentities—students poor in class, no good in athletics, and uninterested in campus activities. The first thing they take over is the campus press, moving in with promises of help, which an overworked editor gratefully accepts and then finds he has lost control of his paper. Agitators and dissidents number very few. By the time club-swinging and bottle-throwing enter the picture, the professional agitators fade into the shadows and let the regular students take the rap.

It seems that the Legislature can act if it will disdain the matter of getting votes. Let the Legislature demand that all college presidents dismiss members of S.D.S. or lose their entire subsidy. The student parasites will quickly get the word.

Michigan colleges are places for instruction, not for carrying on social and sociological experiments. People come here to learn. Few are interested in "student power" or in trying to run the university. Most legitimate learners want a place where they can study in peace and quiet. Let's help Governor Milliken give them such places.

Opinions Continue on New High School Site

I don't agree with the site for the new high school. It is too far out of the way for most of the Negro students. I can't understand why they have to build everything in the white neighborhoods, especially with the transportation for students as it stands now. I feel there are better sites.

Election in Avon Township Raises Questions

Many people in Avon Township seem uninformed regarding the important election to be held March 10. We are asked to approve the Charter but are really voting for the incorporation of a new City of Rochester Hills, which will completely surround the present fully-equipped City of Rochester, and to elect seven council members. This will mean starting a new city from scratch. Each council member will receive $25 per meeting, plus expenses for unlimited number of meetings. As we already have fire protection, police and road maintenance from the County, we wonder what it is to be gained by the forming of a new city.

'Student Demonstrators Should Be Expelled'

I say expel all demonstrators from school and if they want to go back to school, make them pay their own way. There's too much of our school tax money going to waste. When students destroy school property, make them pay for it. If they can't pay, make the parents pay.

A. W. LONG
3610 MORGAN

Loudmouth student activists want to run our schools and colleges. This indicates that they feel they know enough to run them. Being so smart, they don't need to attend school any more. Therefore, let them be expelled from school and work for a living. As for the professors and supervisors who support these activists, let's fire them and hire better ones.

Apollo 9 to Test New Crop Research Methods

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The neglecting development of such project to launch an earth regions of the oceans rich in satellites in favor of post-Apollo resources technology satellite in food fish.

The sub-late 1971 or early 1972. Such URGENT NEED

The need for discovery of additional resources to satisfy the earth's growing populations is urgent, according to Dr. William T. Pecora of the U.S. Geological survey.

NASA is now, for the first crop, forest, and water. committed to a $46-million resources; and locate fertile Geological survey.

"If our ability to find and efficiently utilize resources does not accelerate, and accelerate rapidly," Pecora said, "the industrial civilization we now enjoy will crumble within a few decades."

The Agriculture and Interior departments have long been prodigal NASA to get on with development of an earth resources satellite system.

It has been estimated, according to the House subcommittee, that such a system could produce "spectacularly profitable results measured in billions of dollars annually."

The footnote may say the Apollo 9 mission helped to pioneer new ways of discovering how increasingly hungry and demanding earthlings could reap larger yields of food and water and materials from their home planet.

The big objective of the 10-day flight is to test in earth orbit the Lunar Module which will land other astronauts on the moon later this year.

That accomplished, the crew will spend the last half of their trip performing less exacting chores and resting up for the return to Earth.

CROPS, FORESTS

Among these last-half chores will be an experiment, the first of its kind, to find out what can be deduced from high above the planet about the condition of its crops and forests.

The crew will mount a "multispectral camera" — four cameras with different color filters — in one of the spacecraft windows and keep it trained on the earth below.

Everything on earth emits electromagnetic radiation peculiar to itself. Much of this is not in the visible range. But scientists have devised sensors capable of discerning the "spectral signatures" of everything from ore bodies to crops and forests.

From the grand perspective of space, it should be possible, for example, to discover the early signs of drought or disease affecting grain fields. Infrared radiation from croplands varies subtly with seasons and with changes in crop health.

TELETYPE VARIATIONS

The Apollo 9 camera will, it is hoped, produce panoramic pictures taken in different wave-lengths which will help to define these teletype variations in the spectral signatures of growing things.

The House Subcommittee on Space Science and Applications envisages a time when automated earth resources satellites, traveling in near polar orbits and viewing almost the whole earth many times in the course of a year, will be able to supply information needed for the management of known resources and the discovery of new ones.

In a recent report, the subcommittee chided the National Aeronautic and Space Administration (NASA) for

Junior Editors Quiz on DAMS

QUESTION: How can dams be built, considering that the flow of water is in the way?

ANSWER: One doesn't just dump a lot of concrete in a river when building a dam. The first thing is to divert the stream or river so the place where the dam is to be built will be dry. No water will then touch the concrete and it will set up hard.

Diverting the water is done in different ways. Sometimes large pipes or tunnels are taken under the site, and the dam is built on top. Often, the water diverted to one side.

In the upper picture, the river has been pushed to the far side by cofferdams, which are temporary wooden walls of strongly braced piles and planks.

A special tunnel has been drilled around the end of the site where the dam is being built.

The water directed by the cofferdam is pouring through the tunnel and appearing at lower left. After the dam is constructed, the cofferdam is removed, the tunnel filled and a fine lake is built up by the dam.

Dams are extremely important to us. Through them we can store vast amounts of water, which can be released in dry periods. Dams prevent disastrous floods, furnish power to generate electricity and provide fine recreational areas.

Coming of Age—5

Car Expenses Can Be Held Down

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the fifth article in a 10-part series designed to help young people cope with the new challenges they face as they enter legal adulthood.)

By SIDNEY MARGOLIS

Of all the expenses a young adult has, one of the most prominent is that of car ownership. Young adults are the "buying age" group in the market, and the manufacturers beam their selling pressures right at them.

The recently developed semisports or almost-sports cars have become one of the largest selling types. Actually insurance cost required for a one out of three heads of young driver, and sometimes to households in the 19-24 age group buys a car each year.

To be sure, 69 per cent of the cars these young adults buy are used cars. But the fact is, car ownership has become a major expense, taking 12-13 per cent of a typical income and sometimes as much as 20 per cent.

Even if you do not yet own a car, the mere fact that you have a license, even if you drive very little, raises expenses for your family — a car.

Many families today ask their driving sons and daughters to pay the extra insurance cost required for a now costs more to insure a car than to own one.

help pay other increased expenses.

Examine major car expenses with a view to preventing the "insolent chariot" from becoming a bankrupt one.

CONTROL EXPENSES

These are four major ways to hold down our expenses.

● One is to restrain "depreciation" — the major expense item except, in some cases, for insurance. Depreciation is the annual loss in the car's market value.

● The second way, if possible, is to curb the insurance expense. For many young drivers today, for the first time in history, it now costs more to insure a car than to own one.

● The third way is to keep a skilled rein on operating expenses.

The fourth is to trim the financing cost, a larger expense than most car buyers themselves realize.

Here is a unique buying calendar especially devised for young drivers seeking to hold down expenses:

Used Cars: Prices usually are lowest in January.

New Cars: Prices usually start to drop in May and gradually decline further until August or September. At that time, depending on how successful the model year has proved to be, manufacturers often allow dealers a "merchandising allowance" of $150-$200 to clear their inventory before new models arrive in late September.

OLD PRICES

"Wholesale prices," advertised in late summer really are the old wholesale prices with the dealer's profit consisting of the year-end allowance, plus his margin on optional equipment.

Tires. You usually can find special sales in May, before Memorial Day, and again, just before Labor Day.

Batteries. Sales often are held in September before cold weather arrives.

These are other points to investigate: Careful maintenance also affects your operating expenses.

So do size and horsepower. The smaller the car, the larger the savings in fixed costs, including depreciation, insurance and registration fees. Moderate driving and regular maintenance further reduce operating costs. A car not in good condition will consume more fuel.

Doctor O.K.'s This Hemorrhoid Treatment For N.J. Couple's Son

Treatment Shrinks Piles, Relieves Pain In Most Cases

Wharton, N.J. Mr. and Mrs. C.M. Jeffers report: "Our son suffered from hemorrhoids. I asked the doctor about Preparation H and he gave us the O.K. Our son is now fine, thanks to Preparation H."

(Note: Doctors have provided in most cases — Preparation H actually shrinks inflamed hemorrhoids. In case after case, the sufferer first notices prompt relief from pain, burning and itching. Then swelling is gently reduced. There's no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like doctor-tested Preparation H. It also lubricates to make bowel movements more comfortable, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection, in ointment or suppository form.)

More Armadillos Born in Amarillo?

WASHINGTON — North America's oddest mammal is staging a population explosion in Texas.

The armadillo, with its long pointed tail and nine-banded armor, is distressingly prolific. Naturalists estimate their numbers jumped 10 per cent in 1968.

The strange creature, with a scaled head like a lizard's, ears like a mole's, claws like a bear's, and a tail like a rat's, has not confined its roamings to the Lone Star State. The cat-size mammal has wandered north to Kansas and Missouri, eastward to Alabama, and flourishes in Florida, the National Geographic Society says.

Spanish conquerors of Mexico dubbed the animal armadillo, "little fellow in armor." Several species are common in Central and South America, but only the nine-banded armadillo (Dasypus novemcinctus) has invaded the United States.

RELATED TO ANTEATERS

Related to sloths and anteaters, the armadillo relishes grubs, grasshoppers, worms, termites, and tarantulas; it may down 40,000 ants at a sitting.

It usually forages at night, plowing into soft soil with its nose. A keen sense of smell finds insects six inches below the surface. Digging with powerful front legs, the armadillo flicks out a long sticky tongue to capture tasty morsels.

Though the armadillo destroys many harmful insects, it sometimes uproots gardens and crops and eats chicken and quail eggs. Farmers hunt them as pests.

Groves Band, Orchestra Fare Well in Contest

By BENITA ROSEN

Members of the Wylie E. Groves High School band and orchestra once again fared well at the recent District Solo and Ensemble Festival. They earned 19 First Division or excellent ratings, seven Second Division (very good) ratings and one Third Division.

Of the 19 Groves soloists entered in the festival, 12 were judged excellent. Firsts were won by Becky Behrends, violin; Ron Burda, saxophone; Dave Case and Richard Woodlin, trombone; Nancy Corgiat, Laurie Parrin, Marc Smith and Dave Sneyers, clarinet; Chris Filbey, Eileen Green and Debbie Thomas, flute; and Dave Unnewehr, baritone.

Of the seven ensembles which participated, six received First Division and one received a Second Division rating.

Ensembles rated excellent were two clarinet duets; the flute, trombone and woodwind quartets; the saxophone quintet; and the brass septet.

The string duet was rated very good.

SLEIGH RIDE MARCH 1

Groves seniors and their guests are preparing for the Senior Sleigh Ride, to be held at Upland Hills on the evening of March 1.

Activities such as skating, tobogganing, dancing and dinner will be available for $2, as well as the sleigh ride.

Frances Pulley, Groves physical education instructor, has been invited to act as a judge for the National Intercollegiate Synchronized Swimming Competition during the weekend of March 7-9 at Central Michigan University.

She will judge the girls' ability to perform specific individual stunts as well as solo and duet routines.

For the past few weeks, the Groves library showcases have displayed various clothing ensembles such as skirts and blouses, shirtwaist dresses and belted pantsuits, all products of the clothing classes.

A new course in "Fashions and Fabrics" may be introduced into the home-economics program next year. The principles of consumer purchase and merchandising will be emphasized in the study of fabric content, construction and testing.

Home economics teacher Mrs. Louis Glommen feels that there is a real need for such a course because "80 per cent of the merchandise in the average department store is textile or partly textile merchandise."

'Bye Bye, Birdie' Tonight at PNH

By LARRY HELTSLEY

Pontiac Northern's vocal music department, under the direction of John Tousey, will present the musical comedy "Bye Bye, Birdie" tonight and tomorrow night at 8.

Conrad Birdie (played by Harry Miller) receives his draft notice as the play begins. This will probably ruin his career as a rock singer and big-time recording star. Albert, his business manager (to be played by Dave Beckett and Nick Dinkins), plans a wild gimmick of Conrad singing "One Last Kiss" to a lucky contest winner on a popular television program.

Kim, an average teen-age girl from the town of Sweet Apple is portrayed by Lauri Dennis and Debra Spitzer. Kim's over-possessive boyfriend, Hugo, is to be played by Dennis Marshall and Rick Shaw. As most teen-age girls, Kim has a best friend, Ursula (Natalie Kilmer and Millie Miller).

Albert's secretary (Rosie Pilgrim and Colleen Gerber) wants to marry him, but Albert does not want to break his mother's heart by marrying. Mrs. Peterson, Albert's mother, is a bit senile. Darlene Bell and Pam Green will share the role.

Mr. and Mrs. Macafee, Kim's father and mother, are to be played by Vernon Koop, Chet Bartle, Tina Scarbro and Nancy Taylor. Randolph Macafee is portrayed by Jerry Knapp.

Kim wins the "Last Kiss" and Conrad Birdie comes to Sweet Apple. The mayor's wife (Ruth Goemaere) is to give him the key to the city, but at the sight of him she faints. The mayor (Tom Lawson), makes the presentation.

Northern had 20 entries in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association District Four Competition Feb. 8 in Berkley. Twelve were solo performances, with eight ensembles. Three firsts were received in the band division by Gayle Grammar, Sonja Gayles and Ron O'Toole. Northern's sax sextet, brass and quartet ensemble also received firsts.

Terry Kay and Jim Shelton were awarded a free senior trip after having sold over $100 worth of tickets to the donkey basketball game. A packed crowd saw the seniors defeat the faculty 16-14 in sudden death overtime. From the profits two deserving seniors will receive $100 college scholarships.

Jackie Corr received her crown from Greg Adsit, Varsity Club president, at the Valentine Dance as sweetheart, queen. Adsit also awarded Jack Felt the door prize of a free senior trip.

WTH Continues March of Dimes

By JANICE CRISP

Although the Miss March of Dimes Contest fund-raising is finished at many schools, this is not true at Waterford Township High. The drive which has so far brought in more than $1,200, is continuing with the "Ugliest Man on Campus" contest.

Participating boys are busy collecting money, and the one who turns in the most will be crowned "ugliest."

The senior class is in the middle of a candy sale to raise money for the senior trips. Candy can be picked up during break time or after school in the Power Electric Lab.

This year students will have a chance to choose their own senior trip from four different sites. These include Fort Lauderdale, New York, Gettysburg, and the Jack and Jill Ranch in Michigan.

DEPOSITS TAKEN

Twenty-dollar deposits for trips will be taken through Feb. 28th. Money should be turned in to Donald Beedle.

WTHS has recently added six new student teachers to its staff, boosting the total to 10. These include Kathleen Calke, Kathleen Cooper, Marcia Martin, and Robert Watson, English department; and Robert Glenn and Laura Lenzini in the area of social studies.

Also at WTH are Barbara Block, art; Georgianna Goodman, sociology; Kathy Hwass, French; and Michael Turek, industrial arts.

WTH will host the State District Wrestling Tournament tomorrow from 12:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Tickets are 50¢ each for students and $1 for adults.

Teams to be represented are Clarkston, Davidson, Flint Kearsley, Grand Blanc, Pontiac Central, Pontiac Northern and Waterford Kettering.

Feb. 24 to March 14 are the dates of preenrollment for underclassmen.

Students' Basketball Team Out to Teach WBH Faculty

By SHARON CARR

The students are paying the referees this year and are out to win in the annual student-faculty basketball game tomorrow night.

Throughout the history of West Bloomfield High School, the victory-prone faculty team preceded each year's game by boasting of its good qualities, but not only on the basketball floor but in such other areas as attractiveness and vibrant personalities.

This year the students are out to show the crowds that, although the teachers have put up a fine show in the past, they will be sore losers.

Coaching the student team will be senior Steve Westjohn. Steve has been captain of the Laker varsity Basketball team for two years.

The feminine portion of the faculty will limber up as cheerleaders. Meanwhile the agile male cheerleading section will be aiding the student body in cheering their team to victory.

AFTER-GAME DANCE

This spectacular will take place at Warren Abbott Junior High at 7:30 p.m. Admission is $1 at the door. An after-game dance will be sponsored by the Varsity Club.

A sequel to the snow king contest will be an Ugly Man Contest. Sponsored by the Exodus yearbook staff, four young gentlemen with the aid of makeup will compete for the title of Ugly Man of the Year.

Containers are located in the main lobby where students will vote with pennies. Every penny registers as one vote and the class to whom the winner of the contest belongs will receive a prize.

Mott Students Get Involved

Student involvement at Waterford Mott students worked with the faculty and administration in forming a new attendance policy.

Twenty Troy students went to Rochester, and about 20 Rochester students came to Troy.

The Rochester students arrived at Troy at 8:15 a.m. and attended classes with student government members. After the chance to observe Troy's schedule there was a student government meeting, to which the Rochester students were invited.

"It was interesting and valuable to both schools," said Denise Devon. "Many ideas for student government and other school organizations were exchanged."

All students were back to their own schools by 2 p.m.

A computer dance is being planned between the two schools, although plans are not definite.

Theatre Party for Democrats

On March 4, the Oakland County Democratic Committee will sponsor its third annual Meadow Brook Theatre party. Thomas G. Plunkett, Oakland County Prosecuting Attorney, is chairman for this benefit.

Women on the planning committee met Thursday afternoon in the West Bloomfield Township home of Mrs. Robert Willens. They heard Anna Gisle, set designer for O'Neill's "A Long Day's Journey Into Night," talk about the current production.

Tickets for the benefit at $25, $15 and $5 are available from Oakland County Democratic headquarters on South Telegraph Road, or from area Democrats. Prior reservations only.

Junior Women Sponsor Special Music Evening

By SHIRLEY GRAY

Ten or so couples will be ducking into the cozy warmth of the Pontchartrain Wine Cellars this evening for an elegant meal of Beef Bourguignon. Then it's off to Ford Auditorium for one of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's "Sampler Series" concerts.

The informal evening is sponsored by the Junior Women's Symphony Association.

Representing the North End will be two Orchard Lake couples — Mr. and Mrs. George Coury and the Edman Ellendes.

A right - in - our - own - back - yard celebrity with a world-wide reputation will be the second speaker in Bloomfield Open Hunt's Celebrity Series Thursday — Russell Barnes of Birmingham.

Barnes was with the Detroit News for 30 years. He could easily regale his audience with stories from his years as a foreign correspondent, living through the bombing of Britain, covering the Cairo and Tehran Conferences, or his World War II work as the Allied Director of Psychological Warfare in the Mediterranean.

UP - TO - THE MINUTE

But in the best reporter style, he'd rather deal with today's developments and tomorrow's headlines, even though retired — it says here — since 1967.

His topic next Thursday will be "Is Peace Possible in the Middle East?"

This white linen sport coat was created by the Fontana Sisters fashion house of Rome. It features a high-placed belt on the waistline, a large collar and two pockets together with two splits in the back.

Testing for PKU at Birth Benefits Number of Babies

LANSING (AP)—Twenty-nine children have been saved from lives of mental retardation since 1963 when PKU testing began in Michigan, preliminary statistics of the State Department of Public Health indicated Monday.

The department explained that PKU — Phenylketonuria — is an inherited disorder in which the body cannot dispose of an essential nutrient called phenylalanine.

If the disease is not detected, the excess phenylalanine causes permanent damage to the infant's brain cells and results in severe mental retardation, the department said.

If the disorder is found within the first weeks of life, and confirmed by careful diagnosis, proper treatment including a diet low in phenylalanine can prevent mental retardation, it added.

PKU screening began on a limited basis in 1963 and three years later state law made such tests mandatory for every Michigan newborn within the first two weeks after birth.

Since the beginning of the program, the department said, one confirmed case has been found for about every 20,000 infants tested. For every positively diagnosed case of PKU, there have been about 15 suspected cases, which, after careful study, were determined not to be PKU, the department said.

Speaker Will Reflect on Presidential Year

Oakland County Lawyers' Wives will meet at the Old Mill for luncheon March 5, preceded by a social hour at 11:30 a.m.

Speaker will be Mrs. John Starr of Grand Rapids, wife of the former president of the Michigan State Bar Association. Her topic is "Distaff Reflections on a Presidential Year."

Guests will be Mrs. William Gossett of Bloomfield Hills, wife of the president of the American Bar Association, and Mrs. Gilbert Davis of Royal Oak, whose husband is president of the Michigan Bar Association.

Some Have Real Need to Hurt or to Be Punished

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: As a law enforcement officer I am frequently called to come and break up a fight in which the husband and wife are going at it tooth and nail. And when we get there, the place is a shambles, and the fighters are nursing each other's wounds.

Sometimes one or both need to be taken to the emergency room of the hospital for treatment of cuts and broken bones. And do you know what? Neither one will swear out a complaint against the other. We've been called to the same house repeatedly to break up these domestic fights. Yet, if no charges are filed, nothing can be done.

What is the matter with people like that, Abby? Are they nuts, or am I?

DEAR OFFICER: They're a little "nuts." Some people have a neurotic need to be punished. They even provoke it. But there is nothing you can do about it as long as this "need" persists.

DEAR ABBY: My son is 12, and in the sixth grade. About two months ago he came home from school and announced he HAD to stay up until eleven o'clock to watch a movie his teacher wanted the whole class to see. It dealt with some period of history they were studying.

His usual bedtime is 9 p.m. but I decided that once wouldn't hurt, so I let him. Well, a week later it happened again, so I said, "No, I'll watch the movie and tell you about it!" I spent two hours watching a movie that even I didn't understand.

This has happened six times already, and I am sick and tired of that teacher telling my child how late he can stay up. I'd go and talk to that teacher but my son would rather I didn't. Should I anyway? Or should I ignore the whole thing and continue doing my son's "homework"?

IRATE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Have a talk with the teacher. An occasional late T.V. "assignment" is permissible, but I think she's overdoing it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a waitress in a bar and restaurant and I could write a book about tipping.

The man who puts on his glasses and re-adds the bill has more self-confidence than the man who pays the check without even looking at it. But he's only a fair tipper.

The old men who pinch and call me "Honey" are testing. If I smile, they tip well. If I'm cool, they don't.

I can always tell if a man is with his wife. If he is, he's a poor tipper. If he's with his girl friend, he's generous.

Men with mustaches, long sideburns and this year's suits are bigger tipppers than those who dress more conservatively.

Women alone (or worse yet, in groups) are downright stingy. They ask for separate checks and always leave PENNIES!

Thank heavens no kids are allowed in here. All they leave are empty ketchup bottles and dirty napkins.

Come in and see me sometime. You'll learn plenty.—ELLA IN NEWARK

Princess Begins New Role

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Anne, 18-year-old daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, is about to begin her royal life of public duties.

Buckingham Palace has announced a list of the first public engagements that the princess will perform on her own. As sister of Prince Charles, the heir to the throne, she can expect to take part in this royal round for the rest of her life.

The princess, who left school last year, has watched the queen carry out public engagements often enough. So she should not be too frightened of her own solo debut March 1 when she has the task — odd as it may sound to foreigners — of handing out leeks to soldiers.

TRADITIONAL SYMBOL

Leeks are the traditional symbol of Wales. On the saint day of St. David, patron saint of Wales, Princess Anne will present the leeks to the Welsh guards on the parade grounds of their barracks at Pibright, near London.

On May 2 the princess will launch her first ship, and the choice is a queen-size one — the largest ship ever built in Britain, a 253,000-ton tanker.

Her other engagements announced to date tie in with her greatest interest, horse riding. On April 25 she will open a young farmers' club center and visit the National Equestrian Center at Stoneleigh Abbey in Warwickshire. On May 29 she will visit an agricultural show in Somerset.

OFFICIAL HOSTESS

She will also assist the queen as official hostess on various occasions such as diplomatic receptions and the weekend house-party given for government ministers at Windsor Castle around Easter.

May will bring Princess Anne's first state visit abroad when she accompanies her parents to Austria.

At first, the princess will be accompanied on engagements by one of the queen's ladies-in-waiting like Mary Morrison, 30-year-old daughter of Lord Margadale, whom she has already "borrowed" for a reception when she and the queen mother met Britain's Olympic show-jumpers.

But once the princess has gained a little experience, an attendant of her own age group will be appointed. A lady-in-waiting is not only an official companion but a confident and close friend, so contemporary congeniality is one of the main requirements.

The chosen girl will get no payment for the honor, just a token dress allowance and a diamond badge for identification purposes.

Black and white printed crepe silk pant-dress is set off by large black cape in this ensemble presented by the Rome house of Clara Centinaro.

Newlyweds to Be Feted

Newlyweds, the Ronald Lee the Russellville, Ky., home of Rosers (nee Deborah Sue his father, Warren Rosser. Allen) will be honored Saturday. Her bouquet Township home of her parents, was comprised of carnations the Herbert J. Allens. and pink rosebuds.

The couple, who were married in First Open Bible Church, recently returned from visiting parents.

Altrusa Invites Foreign Guests

The annual salute to foreign students attending local schools, sponsored annually by The Altrusa Club of Greater Birmingham, will be held Monday at Bloomfield Hills Country Day School.

Marjorie Sallie, headmistress and long time member of Altrusa, will again plan and prepare the meal to be served at 6:30 p.m. by the girls of Country Day to Altrusa members and their foreign guests.

Dental Health

George Washington Victim of Poor Teeth

By DR. HOWARD E. KESSLER
George Washington had a serious dental problem and it weighed on his mind during his entire term as President. The pictures you see of him all show a strained, unnatural mouth area on his unsmiling face. He was toothless when he sat for the portrait shown on our $1 bill. But to improve his appearance, cotton was put in his mouth to support his sunken lips.

KESSLER

tooth extracted at the time of his inauguration in 1789. Getting dentures in those days was a real problem. Dental practitioners then, of course, had not advanced to the scientific principles and methods which our present-day dentists use in constructing dentures.

SEVEN DENTISTS

Washington had several sets of teeth. In addition to the services of seven dentists, he had Paul Revere, who was a skilled artisan, make him a set. However, Dr. John Greenwood apparently was his favorite dentist.

Heavy wire springs joined President Washington's upper and lower dentures, which were made of wood, ivory and metal. The spring action was supposed to hold the teeth in place. Not only did they cause a sore mouth, but the appearance of the teeth was ugly.

If you see a set of his dentures on display either at the Smithsonian Institution in our nation's capital or at the museum of the University of Maryland, Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, you will realize why Washington could neither speak nor eat properly.

As bad as they were, Washington's dentures probably were the best he could get in that day. Extracted teeth of both animals and humans were then often used, wired to a crude base.

This was in the 1790 decade and in this country it was not until 1830 that porcelain artificial teeth were manufactured. A good denture base was not available until about 20 years later.

Washington wrote to his dentist at least 41 letters. One was intercepted and fell into the hands of Admiral Howe, British naval commander-in-chief during our War of Independence. Even Martha Washington wrote about her husband's dental problems.

Author's Wife Found Shot Dead in Aspen

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Dist. home she shared with her husband, novelist Leon Uris. Dumont said, "It appears to be a suicide."

Uris, author of the best-selling "Exodus" and "Topaz" talked briefly with authorities called in after the finding of the body by a passerby Thursday, then went into seclusion.

MRS. LEON URIS

Dumont said Sheriff Carroll Whitmire of Pitkin County told him Mrs. Uris, 26, died of a bullet fired into her mouth from a pistol, owned by Uris, which was found lying near her. Pitkin said two other shots had been triggered off, one into the ground and one into her purse.

The couple were married in Hollywood last Sept. 8 after a romance which began with a meeting in this ski resort town in the Colorado high country. The former Marjorie Edwards of Philadelphia, pretty, brown-haired Mrs. Uris operated an Aspen silversmith's shop. She was the author's second wife.

Mayor Ticks Off Mardi Gras Ills

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mayor Victor Schiro has his dander up about a number of Mardi Gras traditions he wants banned.

Schiro, two days after the pre-Lenten celebration, Thursday ticked off a number of practices he'd like to see outlawed. • End dobloum throwing from floats. Dobloums are coin-shaped souvenirs with no monetary value. Schiro said the fierce scramble to retrieve them leaves many black and blue.

"It's like a sea of missiles. I keep my hands out more to ward them off than to catch them," Schiro said. He said one year a float rider in traditional mask, an apparent political enemy, flung a sack of horse manure at him.

QUEEN HIT

"It was hilarious. He missed me and hit his queen" on the reviewing stand, the mayor said. • Prohibit glass containers on High Bourbon Street in the French Quarter and on other avenues.

Teens to Hit Smoking With Federal Grant

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — An antismoking campaign designed by teen-agers and aimed at teen-agers is about to start here with federal backing.

The "advertising copy" which participating junior and senior high schoolers agree will be most effective to others in their age level, includes: "Worried about the population explosion? Have a cigarette."

"Smoke, choke, croak." "Smoking is a means to an end—yours."

The two-year pilot project is financed by a $52,000 grant from the U.S. Public Health Service.

Says Sy Loewen of Foothill High School: "We want to make smoking look insulting and just ridiculous."

"We're trying to reach kids in our own way," adds Monte Sharp, of East Bakersfield.

GM Protests Damage Award

ESCANABA (AP) — General Motors Corp. today asked a court either to set aside a jury's verdict or grant a new trial on a decision which ordered the firm to pay $420,000 to a man injured when a 1965 Corvair broke away from a tow truck.

John Peacock, a GM attorney, filed the motions in Delta County Circuit Court at Escanaba. A hearing was set for March 31.

If the motions are denied, the path would be cleared for GM to appeal the decision.

A Circuit Court jury ordered GM Feb. 1 to pay the damages to James Semo, 28, of Grosse Pointe Woods. The judgment was one of the largest in Michigan history.

PARALYZED IN CRASH

Testimony at the three-week trial indicated Semo was paralyzed from the waist down as a result of the 1965 crash in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. His wife, Carol, 26, also injured in the mishap, was awarded $40,000 for her injuries and loss of the services of her husband.

Testimony indicated the compact auto, made by GM's Chevrolet Division, broke loose from a tow truck because of allegedly defective design of the front bumper tow bracket.

Booth Papers' Directors OK 4-1 Stock Split

DETROIT (AP) — A four-for-one stock split was endorsed Wednesday by directors of Booth Newspapers, a move which would increase authorized common shares from 500,000 to two million.

The directors also recommended that shareholders approve creation of an additional million shares to be available for acquisitions and other purposes. The proposals will be offered for shareholder approval at the annual meeting April 16 in Detroit.

Also approved was a change in par value of common stock from no par to $2.50, said Gordon Craig, president and chairman of the group which publishes eight Michigan daily newspapers: Ann Arbor News, Jackson Citizen Patriot, Kalamazoo Gazette, Grand Rapids Press, Muskegon Chronicle, Bay City Times, Flint Journal and Saginaw News.

Craig declined comment on divided policy to be followed after the split, if approved by shareholders. He said that immediate action was anticipated for the additional one million shares to be created.

Ex-Area Navy Man Killed in Explosion

Navy Lt. Robert Ellery was killed Wednesday in an accident on the Naval Amphibious Base in Coronado, Calif. An instructor at the base, Lt. Ellery, 25, was killed when a weapon being tested exploded.

Ellery was a graduate of Cranbrook school in 1961 and the University of Michigan in 1965. He entered the Naval Officer's Candidate School at Newport, R. I., after graduation from college.

Lt. Ellery is survived by his wife, Mary, and two children, Robert and Virginia; his mother, Mrs. Robert K. Victor, and a brother, Richard, both of Birmingham; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Ewalds of Franklin.

Service will be in the Base Chapel tomorrow at 10 a.m. Burial will be in a military cemetery near the base.

Won't Limit Attention to Detroit---Milliken

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken said Thursday that his administration does not plan to limit its attention to Detroit alone in dealing with urban affairs.

Speaking to the Michigan Municipal League, Milliken also said that his administration would not try in any way to move to take over functions belonging to municipal government.

"For too long," he said, we in Michigan, as elsewhere, have been preoccupied with our own individual and local concerns.

"Residents of one part of the state have not always been sufficiently concerned with the problems of other parts of Michigan."

MISTRUSTED OTHERS

"City dwellers have mistrusted, or been unmindful of, those who live in rural areas. Suburbanites have often derided the residents and the problems of the central cities."

"Those who live in rural Michigan have sometimes taken comfort in the belief that the problems of our cities are not their problems."

Such attitudes cannot continue, Milliken said, "for recent events tell us starkly that we must overcome our problems together, or those problems will overcome us separately."

Referring to the $100-million recreation bond issue approved by the voters last November, the governor said it is no secret that he believes a large share of the recreation fund should be spent in urban areas.

OUTLAY FOR GHETTO

Milliken has been reported as in favor of allocating more than half of the money for projects in Detroit's ghetto areas. Such a recommendation to the Legislature probably would draw criticism from conservation groups who want the bulk of the funds to go for state parks and wildlife, hunting and fishing projects.

"I have not yet decided on the allocation formula," Milliken said, "but I can assure you that whatever formula and system of priorities I recommend will reflect both my concern for the cities and for the preservation of natural resources."

Milliken said he also would

Rally Called Against ABM

The 18th Congressional District Political Coalition has called a rally to oppose the Army's placing antiballistic missile sites in Oakland County at Lawrence Institute of Technology.

Calvin Lippitt, chairman of the rally committee, said that coalition members are extremely concerned that the Defense Department appears determined to go ahead with its nuclear system.

The rally will be 8 p.m. Thursday at LIT's library building auditorium and will feature Dr. Alvin Saperstein, Wayne State University physicist, and Leon Atkinson, administrative assistant to Congressman John Conyers, D-Detroit.

give the highest priority to rapid passage in the Legislature of a bill that will implement a program for solving the state's water pollution problems.

APPEALS FOR SUPPORT

Appealing for support from his audience—composed of mayors and other city officials—the governor said:

"It is easy to take a provincial attitude and look at this program only in terms of how much money my community will receive. But if this attitude prevails, the consequences to Michigan and its people will be costly."

Milliken warned that unless the legislation is supported now, it will result in a delay of the abatement of water pollution throughout the state.

McGovern Sees New Will to End Hunger in the U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George S. McGovern says his investigation of malnutrition in the nation shows a change of attitude in Congress and the White House indicating a real "commitment to end hunger in the United States."

"The climate is much better than it was two years ago" when widespread hunger was first reported, the South Dakota Democrat said in an interview. McGovern heads a special committee studying malnutrition and health.

In the first place, "there seems to be a more favorable attitude in the executive branch," he said, noting Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin's agreement Wednesday to provide free food stamps to impoverished people in two South Carolina counties.

Normally, the stamps, which are exchanged for food, have to be paid for.

"WELL ON WAY"

"If we can get the concept established that the poorest people ought to get fed for free," McGovern said, "we're well on the way to eliminating malnutrition in the United States."

A second indication of changing attitudes cited by McGovern was the Senate overriding its rules committee recommendation to cut his committee's budget from $250,000 to $15,000.

"This indicates a change in Congress's attitude," McGovern said.

McGovern said that the committee's hearings, as well as such things as television documentaries, have helped increase public awareness of hunger.

"POINTS TO HURDLES"

But, he added, important tests are yet to come when Congress votes on funds for various federal food programs.

The committee, which finished three days of hearings on South Carolina Thursday, plans to turn next to hunger in Florida.

It will go on a field trip to Collier County, Fla., March 10 and 11.

In the meantime, McGovern said he will ask Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell to exempt lunch programs when federal funds are cut off from schools systems which refuse to desegregate.

"While the intent of the Civil Rights Act is good, we ought to make a special exception in the case of food," he noted after the committee was told that such programs were stopped when federal schools funds to 14 South Carolina districts were cut off.

"It's a situation that just can't be allowed to continue," he said, after the testimony by Paul Matthias, director of the South Carolina Council on Human Relations.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., reacted strongly to Matthias' testimony, exclaiming "I think it's an outrageous kind of situation that you starve children when schools don't meet the legal requirements."

UAW Against Rate Increase, Irks Gas Firm

DETROIT (UPI) — A move by the United Auto Workers Union to support Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley in opposing an increase in the rates of Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. today brought an angry reaction from the utility company.

Seven International Executive Board (IEB) members yesterday urged local unions to support Kelley's suggestion that rates be cut, not increased.

The proposed rate change is pending before the Public Service Commission. Kelley claims the company is asking for rate increases totaling $50 million while Michigan Consolidated says its rate increase would total $26.9 million. Kelley has claimed that instead of an increase, Michigan Consolidated could cut its rate by $10 million and still earn a "fair profit."

"Our UAW friends are being misled as many other people have been misled by the attorney general's erroneous figures," said a spokesman for Michigan Consolidated.

Denny McLain Due at Lakeland Today

Idle McAuliffe, Stanley Delay Working Out

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press
LAKELAND, Fla. — Mickey Stanley is out fishing today; Dick McAuliffe is on the golf course; and Denny McLain, the third of the three regulars under contract for 1969, is scheduled to arrive today in Lakeland and will probably end up entertaining guests in the Holiday Lounge.

Spring training will open officially at 10 a.m. tomorrow and, according to general manager Jim Campbell, 19 players are under contract, but only three regulars.

Whether or not the three regulars put on a uniform Saturday morning or stay out in sympathy with the Players' Association strike threat remains to be seen.

However, Campbell said that only players under contract will be issued uniforms and will receive their spring training expense allowances.

This amounts to about $150 a week during training camp; and when the first expense checks are issued a week from Saturday, Campbell implied there may be a few players who might be hurting in the pockets.

SIGNED PLAYERS

Campbell disclosed that the following players are under contract, two of whom are in military service and not expected to be here.

Pitchers — Les Cain, Jim Foor, Mike Kilkenny, George Korincic, Denny McLain, Norm McRae, Darryl Patterson (military), Dennis Saunders (military), Fred Scherman, Mike Small, Bob Ware, Dick Radatz and Tom Timmerman.

Infielders — Dave Campbell, Dick McAuliffe, Don Pepper, Ike Brown.

Outfielders — Mike Stanley

Catcher — Hector Valle.

SMITH ARRIVES

Manager Mayo Smith arrived late Thursday from his home in Lake Worth, Fla., and said he wanted to meet with Campbell before making any statements in regard to the opening of camp.

As it appears now, the Tigers may have to waive their rule that no player without a contract will be permitted to take part in drills at Marchant Stadium.

When the Players' Association issue is resolved Campbell must begin contract talks with 19 other regulars which could go well into the exhibition season.

Before all individual contracts are settled many players could be sitting out training sessions unless they are permitted into camp while negotiating.

Meanwhile, the player relations committee of the owners came forth with a five-page statement showing the benefits which the Players' Association was granted under recent concessions.

Campbell said that each player will be given a copy because "most of the players really don't know the issues and what concessions have been made."

HIGHLIGHTS

Some of the highlights of the club owners' statement are:

Present pension plan: clubs contribute $4.1 million per year; players' request is $6.5 million. Clubs' offer is $5.3 million (an increase of 29 per cent) for each of the next three years.

In regard to termination of the plan (the players say the plan could be terminated at the clubs' discretion): the owners have offered tentative agreement, based on approval by the players, that they cannot unilaterally terminate the plan.

OTHER BENEFITS

These are the remaining benefits as outlined in the issued statement:

Pension benefits — present plan is $50 a month fixed and variable benefits commencing at age 50 for each of the first 10 years of service ($500 per month for a 10-year player); players' request is $60 a month; clubs' offer: $59 a month — 90 per cent of players' request.

Retirement at age 45 — Present plan is no retirement before age 50; players request is early retirement at age 45 at an actuarially reduced basis; clubs' offer: 100 per cent of players' request.

Disability benefits — present plan is $500 per month; players' request is $700 per month, plus $50 per month for each dependent child; clubs' offer: 100 per cent of players' request.

Ohio N. Nips CMU '5

ADA, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Northern recovered from a three-point halftime deficit Thursday night to win Central Michigan in regulation time and win 94-93 in basketball overtime.

Dan Foster led the winners, now 16-3, with 26 points, while Terry Walker had 34 for Central, whose record dropped to 9-11.

Wings Down Pittsburgh, 3-0

Big Stick Does Talking for Mahovlich

DETROIT (UPI) — If Teddy Roosevelt hadn't died before Frank Mahovlich was born, it would be a tossup whether "speak softly and carry a big stick" referred to the Detroit Red Wings' left wing or U.S. foreign policy.

The description fits the quiet star to a "T" because he now owns the biggest stick of any left wing in Detroit hockey history and his 37 goals represent the second best total in his National Hockey League career.

Mahovlich, who scored 48 for Toronto during the 1960-61 campaign, proved the policy of scoring is not foreign to him with his 37th goal Thursday night as Detroit shut out the Pittsburgh Penguins, 3-0.

The win enabled the playoff-struggling Red Wings to leap-frog over the idle New York Rangers into third place, 67 points to 66, in the East Division of the NHL.

The "Big M's" goal figure exceeds by one the number of goals Carl Liscombe tallied in a 50-game season for Detroit during the 1943-44 season.

"Frank's goal was the one which did it for us," Bill Gadsby, the Red Wings' rookie coach, said. "What a move he made."

Mahovlich took a pass from Bob Baun, after breaking around the Penguins' defense, and came in on Pittsburgh goalie Marv Edwards — who probably would have picked a different team to make his NHL debut against — then faked and blasted the puck right between the rookie's legs with only nine seconds to play in the second period.

Gordie Howe moved to within six goals of his 40 years of age at 2:58 of the final period on a similar marker, except it was between Edwards' right leg and the post.

SECOND GOAL

Poul Popiel scored for just the second time this season at 14:34 of the opening period. He fired in a 30-footer after Pete Stenkowski dropped the puck for him.

Howe, like a few pressbox observers, felt he should have had an assist on Mahovlich's marker. "I need all the points I can get," he jested in a serious kind of way. "I'd like to finish as high as I can in points — the top two or three."

You almost couldn't tell the Edwards without a scorecard since Roy, no relation to the ill Les Binkley's substitute, Edwards was scoring his fourth shutout in the Detroit nets.

Edwards only had to handle 26 shots, compared to 33 for Edwards (the Pittsburgh one that is) but he laughed "there's no such thing as an easy shutout."

FOUR IN HAND

The Toronto Maple Leafs, who have four more games to play than Detroit, lost a chance to keep pace and feel four points behind the Red Wings when Montreal took a 2-1 victory from Toronto.

The Canadians, who won on Dick Duff's goal midway through the middle session, broke a tie for first place with the idle Boston Bruins with the triumph.

Drivers Satisfied After Two Prelims for Daytona '500'

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There probably never were so many satisfied race drivers as there are today after a pair of 125-mile preliminaries to Sunday's richest stock car event ever run.

"My car's flying," said Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N.C., sitting on the pole in a 1969 Dodge Charger. "We can run with anyone."

He drove only two laps around the 2.5-mile high banked track in the first 125-mile Thursday; then retired because of what he said was a slight vibration that wasn't worth risking damage but will be easily ironed out by Sunday's $206,000 main event.

Baker already had the pole sewed up with the fastest qualifying day qualifying speed of 188.901 miles an hour.

Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N.C., was beaming, too. His Dodge Charger was cemented in the front row beside Baker off earlier qualifying.

WON EVENT

But he went out and won the second race in a hectic duel with five strong contenders and proved he and his machine are equal to any.

David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., proved he was right when he predicted his record qualifying speed of 190.029 m.p.h. would be equalled or bettered in a race. He did it himself at 190.274 enroute to winning the first 125-miler in his 1969 Ford Talladega.

Meanwhile, a stellar field of stock car, Indianapolis and international drivers competed today in a new Speed Week event, the Florida Citrus 250 for Mustangs, Camaros, Cougars, Javelins, Porsches and similar cars.

New NL Teams Ready to Go

By the Associated Press Sports Writer
The fledgling San Diego Padres and Montreal Expos of the National League are winning their first baseball struggles by apparently circumventing the pension dispute that has split the major league players and sent many of them on strike.

BADGERS' CHOICE — Reports from the University of Wisconsin indicate that the Badgers want Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirsch to become athletic director. If they convince the Los Angeles Rams' executive to take the job, an announcement probably will be made later today.

"We're delighted at the response. The players are as anxious to get started as we are," said Eddie Leishman, San Diego general manager, after the Padres' front office indicated that 27 of the team's 35 players have signed or agreed to terms and 23 are expected when spring training begins Saturday.

Among those expected are outfielder Al Ferrara and pitcher Johnny Podres. Shortstop Roberto Pena has indicated he'll report as soon as he clears up visa problems in the Dominican Republic.

The Royals said 26 players arrived in camp Thursday afternoon and about 35 will have signed by the time practice starts today. Sixteen of the 28 have previous major league experience.

ONE BY ONE

One by one, veteran players were either checking into their respective bases or announcing their intention to do so before too long.

Those in uniform Thursday included pitcher Pat Jarvis of Atlanta, shortstop Gene Alley and catcher Jerry May of Pittsburgh, pitchers Pete Richert and Dave Leonard of Baltimore, all-star catcher Jerry Grote and pitcher Cal Koonce of the New York Mets.

Also pitchers John "Blue Moon" Odom and Ed Sprague of Oakland, pitcher Cisco Carlos of the Chicago White Sox, pitcher Clay Carroll of Cincinnati and catcher John Bateman and infielder-outfielder Bob Bailey of Montreal.

"There are some players defecting," admitted Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association. "But I would not call it a stampede. Nor have any of the important players defected. The defections are a factor, however. I won't deny it."

Meanwhile, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and the federal government stepped into the dispute while the players presented a new proposal to be considered by the owners today. Details of the proposal were not disclosed.

Kuhn asked both sides to continue meeting daily until the dispute is settled, while, at the request of the players group, the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service scheduled a meeting with both parties on Monday.

Negotiations With Ted Williams Bogging Down Senators' Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Senators, long accustomed to losing in the clutch, headed down to the wire today trying to sign Ted Williams as their new manager before spring training starts Monday.

Lawyers and accountants were picking their way slowly through the legal thicket trying to wind up negotiations on the rich contract. Owner Robert Short vowed the Senators will have a manager by Monday even if he has to take over the team himself.

The delays diminished the chances of holding the gala news conference which the Senators had tentatively planned for today to introduce Williams as the would-be miracle manager for the last-place American League team. It already had been postponed twice.

"We'll have a manager by Monday," Short promised. "If we don't, I'll manage myself."

Williams already is lined up as manager of the Senators for all practical purposes but nothing has been put down on paper.

PLUSH PACKAGE

In the middle of the whirlwind week of intense negotiations has been the plush package of stock which Williams is slated to get, making him part-owner as well as manager.

The Hall of Famer is slated to pick up an estimated 10-per cent share in the club for cut-rate prices, plus a plump salary ranging up to $100,000 a year to help him pay for the stock purchases.

Club sources insist the delay has revolved around details on the stock deal and say no serious problem has surfaced so far.

The Senators' spring training begins Monday at Pompano Beach, Fla.

Last year, under rookie manager Jim Lemon, the Senators had the best record in baseball for spring training. In the regular season they quickly slumped to the worst record in the major.

Air Force Sledgers Rule in N. American Meet; One Injured

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. Air Force took top honors in the North American Luge Championships Thursday as Terry O'Brien of Portland, Maine, won the men's singles, and then teamed with Bruce Pettit of Spokane, Wash., to sweep the doubles championship.

A luge is a small open sled. O'Brien slid down the 1,900-foot run in an aggregate four-heat time of 1:19.5. He and Pettit then chalked up a two-heat time of 58.3 seconds.

Cathy Roberts of Miles City, Mont., won the women's singles title, with a total three-heat time of 1:28.3.

The championship runs, held as part of the Kennedy Memorial games, were marred when Kenneth DeRosier of Helena, Mont., was injured in a first-heat run. He was reported in good condition at Placid Memorial Hospital.

Northwestern Next Stop

Purdue in Big 10 Driver's Seat

CHICAGO (AP) — And then there was one. That just about sums up the Big Ten basketball title chase with Purdue in front as it is in the standings. It has a two-game lead over second-place Ohio State.

The Boilermakers, going after their first conference crown in 29 years and their first appearance in the NCAA tournament, put their gleaming record on the line at home Saturday against Northwestern (3-6).

It is an afternoon game. Others send Iowa (4-5) to Ohio State (6-3) on television, Michigan (5-4) to Wisconsin (3-6) and Michigan (5-4) to Illinois (3-6).

Second in scoring is Rudy Tomjanovich of Michigan with 24.6. He is followed by Dave Sorenson, Ohio State, 22.7; Ken Johnson, Indiana, 22.3; Joe Cooke, Indiana, 22.0; Lee Lafayette, Michigan State, 20.9; Dennis Stewart, Michigan, 19.2; Dale Kelley, Northwestern, 18.4; Rick Mount, winging away for Larry Mikan, Minnesota, 18.0; and Ben McGilmer, Iowa, 17.8.

Roll Past NYU, 98-88

Irish Prefer NCAA Tourney

By The Associated Press
Two trips to New York in one season is enough for Notre Dame. Now the Irish want a second shot at UCLA, and the way they're going, they might get it.

The unranked Irish, headed toward one of their finest basketball seasons, rolled past a tough New York U. club 98-88 Thursday night at Madison Square Garden for their sixth straight victory and an 18-5 record.

A week from Saturday Notre Dame returns to New York for a match against seventh-ranked St. John's and regardless of the outcome, the Irish are almost certainly to get postseason bids to the NCAA tournament and 'the NIT in the Garden.

Given that choice, Coach Johnny Dee says the Irish will forsake another trip to the Big city in hopes of getting another shot at UCLA.

"We want the chance to play the champions of conferences and we'd like another crack at Kentucky and UCLA," Dee said after his club wiped out NYU in the second half.

EARLY SETBACKS

Notre Dame, an independent last to UCLA 86-75 in the final half as the Irish surged ahead 86-72. NYU scored 14 straight points to make the score respectable. Whitmore finished with 26 points and Arzen 20.

NO PROBLEMS

Marquette had problems with lowly Denver and was unable to take the lead until Joe Thomas hit a free throw with 4:40 left as Denver, 2-22, managed only three points in the final six minutes. Thomas finished with 17 points.

Drake, still nursing hopes in the Missouri Valley Conference, put on the shooting show of the night, hitting a stunning 87.1 per cent from the field, including 30 of 38 in the final half. Drake led 52-43 at the half.

Willie McCarter scored 27 points for the Bulldogs. Temple, another tournament

Manhattan 93-68.

Whitmore teamed with Austin Carr and Bob Arzen to lurch NYU as the trio combined for 69 points. After Carr, a sophomore flash who missed 11 games with injuries, scored 15 of his 25 points to put Notre Dame ahead 47-41 at the half, Arzen and Whitmore split 26 points in the last to UCLA 86-75 in the final half as the Irish surged

Top-Seeded Netters Eye Showdown

WINCHESTER, Mass. (AP) — Mary Ann Eisel of St. Louis and Esme Emanuel of South Africa, the top-seeded U.S. and foreign entrants, appear headed for another showdown in the U.S. Women's Indoor Tennis Championships.

Miss Eisel, who defeated Miss Emanuel for the New England indoor title as the No. 1 seeded players Monday, led the advance into today's quarter-finals although they encountered unexpected opposition.

Mary Ann, who won the national championship at the age of 18 in 1964, followed a first-round bye with a 6-2, 6-4, 6-3 victory over unseeded Denise Carter, 19, of Palo Alto, Calif., Thursday.

Miss Emanuel, 21, switched from power to finesse in defeating Betty Ann Grubb, 18, a UCLA sophomore from Santa Monica, Calif., 7-5, 6-3.

OPPOSITE BRACKETS
In separate draws, Miss Eisel and Miss Emanuel guarded against over-optimism in aiming for Sunday's championship windup. Miss Eisel met Marilyn Aschner, a college sophomore from Hollywood, N.Y., while Miss Emanuel faced Stephanie DeFina of Hollywood, Fla.

Miss Aschner, who is unseeded, ousted Judith Salome of Holland, the No. 3 foreign seed, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3. Fourth-seeded Miss DeFina defeated Valeria Ziegenfuss of San Diego 6-4, 7-5.

Club Owners Disclose Proposals

Widows benefit—present plan is same as fixed retirement benefits; players' request is same as fixed retirement benefit, plus $50 per month for each dependent child; if no widow, pay to dependent children; clubs' offer is 100 per cent of players' request.

Life insurance—present plan has coverage from $15,000 to $50,000 for active players and a $12,500 to $25,000 for inactive vested players, depending upon length of service; players' request is $50,000 for active players and $25,000 for inactive players, increase accidental death and dismemberment proportionately. Clubs' offer is 100 per cent of players' request.

Health care benefits—present plan has $500 maternity benefits; $50 deductible on surgical charges. Players' request: raise maternity benefit to $750, with 80 per cent of amounts between $500 and $750 to be paid by plan, and remove $50 surgical deductible; clubs' offer: 100 per cent of players' request.

STATEMENT
Statement of club owners: "As this makes clear, the clubs' proposal would, if accepted, represent a dramatic improvement in a plan which is already unequalled in professional sports or elsewhere."

"It would accommodate the vast majority of the players' requests. It should be borne in mind that the contributions offered by the clubs amount to almost $8,000 per covered employee and to about 30 per cent of total player payroll. In both respects, this is many times the national average."

"The clubs feel that their proposal is responsive to the desires of the players and fairly meets their legitimate needs."

O. J. Slated to Play Lions in Exhibition

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Lions announced Thursday the National Football League team will play two pre-season games in Tiger Stadium this year, Aug. 15 against the American Football League's Buffalo Bills, and Sept. 12 against the New Orleans Saints of the NFL.

Buffalo drafted fabled USC running back O. J. Simpson at the conclusion of the 1968 season.

The Lions defeated Buffalo 19-17, here in 1967 and lost, 13-9, at Buffalo last year. The Lions and the Saints tied 20-20 during a regular season game last year. Detroit played one pre-season home game last year, defeating the Baltimore Colts, 14-7.

"It makes full provision for expansion of the leagues to 24 clubs, which will itself benefit the players through longer credited service in the major leagues, increase vesting with the plan, and continued coverage during their extended service under the health and welfare features of the plan."

Rockets Sign Long Holdout

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Henry Finkel, 7-foot center of the San Diego Rockets, signed his 1968-69 contract Thursday night after becoming the longest National Basketball Association holdout of the season.

Finkel, who has played for the Rockets all season, finally came to terms with General Manager Pete Newell. Terms of the pact were not disclosed.

Big Burst Needed by Eaglet Ace

Slender Tim Megge of Orchard Lake St. Mary will make a final bid next Friday to pick up enough points that enable him to hang onto the Oakland County basketball scoring championship.

The 6-2 Megge, who scored a school record 56 markers Tuesday, is now averaging 27.0 a game through 16 contests and he and his Eaglet teammates close the campaign next Friday at Detroit St. Agatha.

HOT AVERAGE
With three games, Greg Carter of Roper School is setting the pace with a sizzling 28.8 average through 14 outings.

Remaining on the Roper schedule are Grosse Pointe University School, Michigan School for the Deaf and Ashley. Against those three in earlier meetings, Carter totaled 80 points, so if he matches that performance, he'll likely wind up as the recipient of the 1969-70 Pontiac Press scoring trophy.

HOLDS THIRD
Third in the race is Jack Ziemer of Detroit Country Day with a mark of 25.1 in 12 games.

Setting the pace in the Saginaw Valley Conference is Ken Brady of Flint Central with a mark of 28.3 through 14 games, and the 6-9 center has spurred the Indians to an overall record of 13-1.

Countdown Starts in State Prep Mat Tourney

The countdown in the state high school wrestling tournament opens with 32 district events around the state tomorrow. Locally, Waterford Township will entertain seven other Class A squads, while Class A competition will also be in progress.

Lakeland Six Still Unbeaten

The Lakeland Hawks' bantam ice hockey team hopes to cement its No. 1 rating among the "B" bracket squads in the Southeast Michigan Junior Ice Hockey program with wins this weekend.

Lakeland, who remained unbeaten in "B" action with a 3-1 win over Fraser Wednesday, has outings tomorrow night in Port Huron and Sunday morning in Grosse Pointe.

Now 3-4 overall, the Hawks made it three straight in "B" play behind Fraser Wednesday. Brad Strohm and Ray Emley. Emley netted the last two goals while goalie Brad Muehl held off Fraser until the closing minutes.

Lakeland's midweek team also will see action Sunday morning at Grosse Pointe.

Sonny Liston Under Arrest

NORTH LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Sonny Liston, 36, was arrested Thursday on a charge of drunken driving. Officers said they stopped his pickup truck on a city street and booked him in city jail. Liston, who lives in Las Vegas, was released on bond later in the morning and was scheduled to appear in court next Thursday night.

Fighters to Settle Draw

NEW YORK (AP) — The last time they met David Melender of New York and Darlo Hidalgo of the Dominican Republic fought to an exciting 10-round draw. Tonight they clash in a return 10-round at the Felt Forum.

TOP 2 ADVANCE
The top two wrestlers in each weight class will then move on to regional activity slated for March 1 — for classes A and B — and on Feb. 28 and March 1 for class C-D.

Same times prevail at the Class A sites listed above.

University, Class B at Okemos

PRELIMINARIES open at 12:30 p.m. Finals and consolation are slated for 7:30. At Waterford the survivors will advance to the Bay City regional next week.

FINALS SITE
From the regional, the top four in each weight class will head for the finals on March 7 and 8. The Class A finals are slated for Michigan State University, Class B at Okemos

High School near East Lansing and Class C-D at Lansing Senior High School.

RANKED TEAMS
The two are Pontiac Central (No. 6) and Pontiac Northern (No. 9). Neither figures to be the other to a great extent in this tourney. Northern has shown a lot of power in the lower weights while Central has generally prevailed in the upper weight classes.

Along with those two will be Clarkson, Kettering, Davison, Flint Kearney, Grand Blanc and host Waterford. Kettering could provide some surprises. The Captains are 11-1 on the season and winners of the Wayne-Oakland League championship.

Walled Lake, No. 10 in the state poll, is in action at Howell, along with Jackson, Howell, Jackson Parkside, Ann Arbor, Ann Arbor Huron and Milford.

At Waterford: Davison, Grand Blanc, Clarkson, Waterford, Pontiac Central, Pontiac Northern.

Hawks Complete Sweep, 97-87

Pistons in Need of Valve Job

By the Associated Press
The Detroit Pistons will need a miraculous valve job to make the National Basketball Association playoffs, but they're firing on all cylinders as far as the Atlanta Hawks and Baltimore Bullets are concerned.

The Hawks completed a six-for-six season's sweep over the Pistons Thursday night 97-87 and moved within 3 1/2 games of front-running Los Angeles in the Western Division. Detroit has been knocked off the pace-setting Lakers three of five but is 0-5 against Baltimore, which has a 4 1/2-game bulge in the East.

The Bullets increased their lead with a 124-121 victory over Phoenix while in the only other game San Francisco defeated San Diego 128-118.

Atlanta took a 51-40 halftime lead over Detroit, upped it to 74-59 after three periods and held the Pistons to their lowest home score of the season.

HIGH SCORERS
Lou Hudson paced the Hawks with 25 points, 16 of them in the middle two periods. Walt Bellamy and Happy Hairston had 17 apiece for the slumping Pistons. John Barnhill, called up from the Eastern League just 12 games ago, keyed Baltimore's triumph by scoring 12 of his 18 points in the final period as the Bullets opened up a 13-point lead and then held off the Suns. Rockets 21-4 at the outset of the final quarter to win going away.

Dick Van Arsdale of the losers hit a career high 44 points and Galt Goodrich added 28 while Earl Monroe and Ray Scott led the Bullets with 30 and 24.

Don Kojis kept San Diego in San Francisco trailed San Francisco with 36 points.

Jeff Mullins triggered San Francisco with 33 points and big Nate Thurmond contributed 39.

Second in Tucson Open

Trevino Off Banquets

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — U.S. course owner from Sherman, Tex., fired a 32-33-65 over 7,305-yard, par 36-36 Tucson National Golf Club course to tie where he left off in Phoenix.

The stocky 28-year-old champion from El Paso, Tex., despite trips to New York and Los Angeles already this week, fired a five-under-par 67 in Thursday's first round of the $100,000 Tucson Open.

That left him just two strokes behind the leader, Miller Barber, and deadlocked with his own playing partner, Dale Douglass, for second place.

Barber, the 37-year-old golf hit the green with a No. 3 wood shot.

He sank birdie putts of 3, 5, 10, 12 and 18 feet.

The weather ranted from sunny cool in the morning to rainy cool in the afternoon.

Miller Barber, 32-33-65, tied for second place with Dale Douglass, 32-33-65, and Jim McNeely, 32-33-65.

Barber, who won the 1968 Tucson Open, fired a 67 in Thursday's first round of the $100,000 Tucson Open.

Off to his best start in 10 years on the tour, Barber has won the rain-shortened Kaiser Open. In his first round here, he carded five birdies and an eagle without going over par on a hole.

The eagle came on an 18-foot putt at the par-5 15th after he

Leafs' Center Is Suspended

Walton Didn't Travel to Montreal Game

MONTREAL (AP) — Mike Walton, a 15-goal scorer for the Toronto Maple Leafs this season, walked out on the National Hockey League club Thursday and was suspended by Manager-Coach Punch Imlach.

Walton did not accompany the Leafs to Montreal, where they lost to the Canadiens 2-1, Thursday night. After the game, Imlach announced he was suspending the 24-year-old center, who scored 30 goals last season.

In Ottawa, attorney Alan Falconer, counsel for the NHL Players Association, said Walton had advised Imlach he no longer could play for him after considering his situation for 1½ months.

Imlach and Walton have had differences before but the Toronto pilot would not comment on their current dispute. "All I'm saying now is that I haven't heard from Walton despite what I've said to him," Imlach said.

"I find it very hard to keep my policy of not speaking badly about anybody in a situation like this, but if you have nothing good to say, you should keep your mouth shut. And that's all the comment I'm going to make."

One Split Decision in Prep Ski Meets

Only one of five prep league whipped Southfield twice; and west division ski meets Thursday afternoon at Mt. Holly dumped Clarkson two times.

The only blemish on either West Bloomfield record after eight dual battles is a tie on the boys' log. WKHS' boys only have one loss and that tie against them in nine outings, while the girls won their last five to reach the finals.

Andover's boys also qualify with their 7-2 mark but the Barons' girls were left with a 3-6 final record after yesterday's win.

Alpine Ski Meet Gets Under Way

BEAR VALLEY, Calif. (UPI)—Spider Sabich of Kyburz, Calif., America's leading male skier, competes in the men's downhill today to help launch the three-day National Alpine ski championships at Bear Valley.

Sabich arrived on the scene late Wednesday night after a 26-hour trip from Europe and took half a dozen practice runs Thursday as snow continued to fall in the area. At the start of today's competition, there was an estimated 35 feet of packed snow on the courses.

Billy Kidd, another top Yank skier, Kiki Cutter and Judy Nagel were entered but failed to make an appearance. Both presumably passed up the Alpine championships after exhausting competitions in Europe the past few weeks.

Saturday's schedule includes both runs of the men's giant slalom while Sunday's windup consists of the men's and women's slaloms.

GOING THROUGH THE MOTIONS — The New York Mets opened spring training Thursday at St. Petersburg, Fla., but the stack of baseballs, gloves and bats in the foreground reflect the equipment not put to use as the club's regulars declined to report until the major league pension plan dispute is resolved. No. 8 looking happy to be back in uniform is Mets' coach Yogi Berra. Only rookies and aging veterans looking for one more shot at the majors are reporting at most camps.

However, It Doesn't Pay

New Sport Interests Aaron

ATLANTA (AP) — Hank Aaron doesn't plan to play baseball as long as the players are on strike, but the Atlanta Braves slugger definitely can't make a living out of his newest sport.

Aaron has taken up tennis. As a tennis player, he's no Hank Aaron.

"Tennis is a little different, the 35-year-old baseball great said in an interview, after spraying balls all over the court.

"But I like it. And since I downhill today to help launch the three-day National Alpine ski championships at Bear Valley."

EXTRA WEIGHT

Aaron is packing an extra 10 pounds right now while he sweats out the dispute between the players and the owners over the pension fund.

"I'm anxious to start play an estimated 35 feet of packed snow on the courses.

Rahban Hits 32 Points in City Rec Action

The Unbeatables No. 1 unit withstood some mid-game pressure from Club 1 Spot and Bob Rahban of Conn's Clothes dumped in 32 points to feature last night's Class A city men's recreation basketball action.

The Unbeatables downed Club One Spot, 74-70, with Rudy Ransom leading the way with 25 points and Walter Moore adding 16. Rahban had his big night at the expense of Perry Drugs, who dropped a 77-41 verdict to Conn's.

In Class B, the Black Culture Center posted a 69-56 victory over the Unbeatables second unit as Larnell Draper posted 24 and Pedro Rush 17 for the winners. Bob Carter hit 26 for the losers.

In the "A" activity, Club 1 Spot fell behind, 23-18, after one quarter but bounced back to trail by only 54-53 entering the fourth quarter. Then Ransom notched 9 of his points to clinch the Unbeatables' upset win.

Rahban only managed three points in the opening period and Perry held a surprising 13-12 advantage. But the Conn's marksman cut loose for 10 points in the next period and the winners had a 35-18 bulge at the halftime.

You can't match it. Because only a Chevrolet pickup can tally this list of advantages that add up to more value for your investment.

Start with Chevy pickup style—modern, bold and handsome, the newest in the field.

Add some unique Chevrolet features with unique Chevrolet benefits like smoothest pickup ride, the results of tough coil springs at all four wheels on most models.

Plus the biggest choice of husky truck 6 and V8 engines offered in any popular pickup. And long-lasting double-wall steel in vital cab and body areas, with special body construction that fights rust more effectively.

What you've read so far should be enough to swing you to Chevrolet. But you'll find more, much more. (Like the new Longhorn model, first and only pickup designed especially for camper duty.)

You'll find it all at your Chevrolet dealer's—everything that makes Chevy the matchless choice for work or recreation. Buy now, while we're making things hotter than ever for competition and better than ever for you.

Lenten Guideposts—3

How Jim Nabors Found Self

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the third in a series of articles about faith serving readers as guideposts during Lent.)

By JIM NABORS

Star of TV's Gomer Pyle, USMC

My dad was a police officer in the little country town of Sylacauga, Ala., and there wasn't a more loved man anywhere.

He would make about $12 a week, and he was always giving away some of that.

Dad couldn't stand to see a man sitting in jail on Sunday.

He was forever opening the doors and giving some vagrant his freedom and a couple of dollars to help him on his way.

With Dad giving away his money we never had much cash around the house. Mother didn't complain — she just went to work. She got a job as a waitress in Sylacauga's truck-stop diner serving coffee and eggs 14 hours a day, seven days a week.

HAD DREAM

But Mother was glad to do it because she had a dream. "Your daddy and I want you young ones to make something out of yourselves," she'd say to me and my two sisters. Our parents saw us through college.

So when I graduated I had a debt to pay. I was starting out with love and sacrifice behind me. To make it all worth the while, I was determined to accomplish great things.

It didn't work out that way. I had hoped for a job in advertising. So I moved to New York to start my career on Madison Avenue. I never got past the receptionist's desk.

I tried everything I could think of to be less bashful and country. I bought myself some clothes like the gray flannel uniform I saw everywhere. I even worked at perfecting an eastern accent.

But it didn't do any good. I ended up with a job as a typist. I also ended up with a bad case of asthma from the New York weather. So I wrote home that all my education was getting me in New York was the wheezes and that I was moving on. I'd heard that California was a good place for asthma.

Four years after I left New York I was hustling crates around a warehouse in Los Angeles.

LOW POINT OF LIFE

Four more years passed. I was almost 30 and I'd achieved exactly what I was the low point of my life, as far as self-confidence went.

And yet, strangely enough, that time was a high point too. For from another direction life suddenly took on meaning.

I'd taken to slipping into the back of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church in Hollywood, just to listen to the Mass. I didn't understand much of what I saw and less of what I heard, but I sensed somehow that it represented the only thing on earth that really mattered.

Slowly as I went through weeks of instruction, I learned to put a name on a feeling I'd struggled with so many years. It was guilt-guilt because I had not repaid my parents' investment in me.

ANSWER CAME

And more slowly still God's answer came forward: We repay our parents not by "succeeding," but by becoming the completed persons He intends us to be. The day I put Him in my life the center of my life was the day I took that first step toward becoming a whole person.

And you know, a funny thing happened. When I stopped trying so hard to win success, I relaxed and became plain Jim Nabors from a little country town in Alabama.

I dropped the last pretense of an eastern accent. I dressed the way I wanted. I began doing some of the crazy things I'd always wanted to do, like going to an amateur show nights after work and putting on a little skit. Home town folks used to say I had a good singing voice, so in my skit I had this country boy with the heavy hillbilly accent suddenly sing an aria from Grand Opera. The audience had as much fun as I did and I was asked to come back.

SPOTTED BY GRIFFITH

And then one night Andy Griffith was sitting out front. After the show he asked me to read a part on his TV program, and I have been in show business ever since.

In Hollywood they say you've arrived when they name a sandwich after you. Sure enough, there's a Jim Nabors' Special for sale at the studio commissary now: pastrami with tomato.

But I notice that my name on the menu-board is pasted over the name of another actor who "arrived" just a few years ago, and I'm sure someday someone else's name will be pasted over mine.

That's why I give thanks every morning of my life that when I found the real center of things, it was the One Who cannot change.

Nixon's 1st Europe Stop May Irk DeGaulle

BRUSSELS (U.P.) — President Nixon's choice of Brussels as his first stop in Europe shows support for two international bodies that inspire distrust in Charles De Gaulle — the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the European Common Market.

The choice is bound to make difficulties in the efforts of the two presidents to find common ground. The difficulties are underlined by the displeasure President De Gaulle has just shown with a third international body, the Western European Union — WEU.

Nixon will visit NATO headquarters in the Brussels suburb of Evere on Monday and make a speech to the North Atlantic Council. Although France keeps NATO at arm's length, it still belongs to the 15-nation council.

Its ambassador, Jacques Kosciusko-Morizet, attends its weekly meetings and is expected to be on hand for this one.

In 1966 De Gaulle ordered NATO's military commands to leave France. The council and its civilian staff could have stayed in Paris, but it voted to follow the military headquarters across the border to Belgium.

AFTERNOON MEETING

There will also be a meeting Monday afternoon between President Nixon and Jean Rey, head of the executive commission that runs the day-to-day business of the Common Market.

Rey is a Belgian. He and the other 13 members of the commission are pledged to do their job in the interests of the six member nations as a whole, and to take no orders from any one of them.

They want Britain to join the Common Market, but De Gaulle has twice vetoed the idea. The commission favors more power for itself, and for a European parliament, ideas which De Gaulle also opposes.

Rey's predecessor, Walter Hallstein of West Germany, was ousted at French insistence because he took an even stronger position than Rey on these points.

The commission laid its opinion on the line again last week in an annual report that criticized "the negative attitude taken by one member state."

about this sort of bid. If you bid it, you should know how to play the hand.

South ruffed the third heart and drew trumps. Then he led a diamond and ducked in dummy. East overtook his partner's 10 with the jack and returned a club. South finessed dummy's jack unsuccessfully and could only make nine tricks.

He pointed out that if he had made the alternate play of rising with the king of clubs and trying to break the diamonds, he would also have gone down.

He was right about that but should have made his contract. After ruffing the third heart he should have played his ace of trumps to see if anyone held all five.

When both opponents followed, he should have abandoned trumps temporarily and ducked a diamond. Assuming East overtook his partner's 10 and returned a club, he should have played his king of clubs, led a diamond to dummy's five, ruffed a third diamond with the high trump, entered dummy with a fourth 10 of spades, ruffed a fourth diamond, drove trumps and eventually discarded one of this club on dummy's fifth diamond.

Tests Offer Lowdown on High-Altitude Flight

By JEAN SAILE

I am not superstitious. As a member of the general aviation fraternity (or is it sorority?), I recently had an opportunity to familiarize myself with the problems encountered when flying at altitudes above 10,000 feet.

Assigned to the number 13 slot on Friday, Dec. 12, in the high-altitude chamber at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, I "flew" to a simulated 43,000 feet, suffered a rapid decompression and emerged whole and healthy.

I was attending the Physiological Training course at Dayton, a 1½-day course which anyone who hopes to fly in a go-around, let must pass. Subjected to a day's lectures and movies, I learned precisely all the horrible things that could go wrong during the tests to follow or on an actual flight.

By the end of the first day, I wanted out!

MALADIES OUTLINED

Not for me were cases of the bends (due to bubbles of nitrogen collecting at one's joints), hypoxia (due to lack of oxygen), the chokes (bubbles in the lungs) or paralysis (bubbles in the brain).

"Women always do much better in these courses than the pure oxygen and start breathing men," said the Air Force instructor, a crusty Curtis LeMay type, but a sergeant.

"When was your last case of the bends?" I asked.

"In 1962. It was one of our staff technicians who'd gone up too often in too short a time. No trouble, though, since we've been prebreathing pure oxygen for 15 minutes before each flight."

Okay. You go back to the motel, eat a plain dinner. You are advised to stay away from carbonated beverages, spicy foods, sauerkraut and all gas-forming foods.

GAS WILL EXPAND

With the lack of pressure you will experience in the altitude chamber tomorrow, the normal 1½ quarts of gas in your system will expand nine times. Why add to it?

The next morning you get in the chamber along with 13 others, 10 of them young Air Force officers, three other newsmen. You're the only woman!

"Don't panic," you tell yourself. "They'll only say, 'That's a woman for you!'"

We don our leather helmets, plug in the intercom, and connect to the oxygen supply.

Throw the lever to 100 per cent better in these courses than the pure oxygen and start breathing men," said the Air Force instructor.

The mask is restraining and confining. Don't panic. Don't breathe too quickly. You'll hyperventilate and that's bad.

They give you a joke book that was definitely designed for men. It's better than worrying. Some of the jokes are pretty funny.

"Okay," says the intercom. "We're going up to 5,000 feet and down again. Watch your ears."

We had been warned to stay out of the chamber if we had a head cold, sinusitis, sore throat or bronchial infection.

EARS POP

The air hisses out. My ears pop. We're at 5,000 feet and descending.

A young Air Force lieutenant across the way gets pasty white. Technicians bring out "the bucket." He doesn't use it, but he doesn't get any better. They escort him into an outer lock. He takes his portable oxygen unit with him.

Here we go again, this time to 43,000 feet. From 35,000 feet on, we're breathing oxygen under pressure.

Every time you open your mouth your lungs fill up and you must forcibly exhale the air. It's work, and you remind yourself to wait between ex-

STOMACH CRAMPS

An older Air Force major suffers stomach cramps. A rubber glove hanging inside the chamber has inflated to what the technicians say is nine times its normal size. So apparently, have the gases in the man's stomach.

We start "down" again. At 25,000 feet we level off and told to take off the oxygen masks. In altitudes above 10,000 feet one is subject to hypoxia. It's very important to know one's symptoms; they vary with the individual.

You are given a clipboard containing questions similar to an intelligence test. Okay. I start to fill out the questionnaire. My legs begin to tingle. I still feel alert. My arms start to feel funny. "Number 13, how do you feel?" booms the intercom.

NO DIM LIGHTS

"I still haven't noticed any lights dimming."

"You've been off oxygen five and a half minutes. Put the mask back on and see if the lights don't get brighter." I do and they do.

A young man across the aisle who has stuck with me the five and a half minutes gets a case of the false chokes. His whole body is wracked by coughs. It looks as though he's going into convulsions. We "descend," unhook and step out. He's glad to get out.

"We're taken a few at a time into a smaller lock where we will undergo the effects of rapid decompression."

WHAT MIGHT HAPPEN

The procedure is a run-on, peer through the con-

should we be flying at 30,000 feet in a pressurized cabin and an accident break the pressure seal.

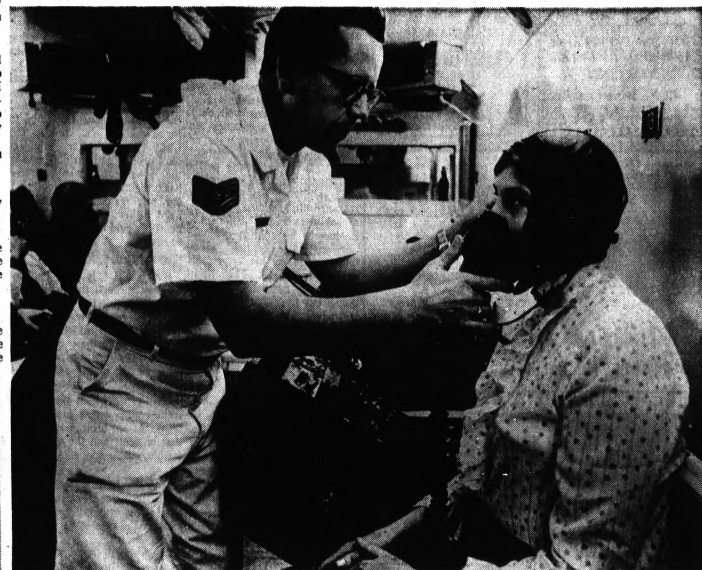

We're pressurized at 8,000 feet in our make-believe airliner and an expected jolt sends the breath whooshing out of me as we level off at 22,000 feet.

JET FLIGHT OK

My little blue card issued at the successful completion of the knowledge gained. All pilots course says I can fly in an Air Force jet. Meantime, I'm better prepared to handle accidents safely advice given.

The cost is $5 and the price is cheap considering the general aviation pilots who make advance reservation through the Federal Aviation Administration at Oklahoma City, Okla.

A TIGHT FIT — Sgt. Fred E. Close, chief of administration at the Physiological Training Center, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, adjusts Press reporter Jean Saile's oxygen mask for a proper fit. The fit is essential. Above 10,000 feet altitude, a flier is completely reliant on artificial sources of oxygen.

FOR THE BENDS — Sgt. Bobby Wirt, chief of the hyperbaric section, under the watchful eye of Lt. Cissik regulates the controls on the Recompression chamber. Used in rare emergency for the treatment of the bends, the chamber is equipped with enough helium-oxygen mixture to serve a victim and necessary medical personnel four days if need be.

THE CHAMBER — Technicians under the supervision of Lt. John Cissik (far right) man the pressure controls of the chamber that takes a crew of would-be high-altitude fliers to the atmospheric equivalent of 43,000 feet. Spectators and supervisory personnel peer through the portholes during the tests.

UP, UP AND AWAY — Press staffer Saile peers through the high-altitude chamber porthole as she awaits lift-off. Assigned to the Number 13 slot on Friday the-13th, she was not superstitious.

WHOOSH — Condensed vapor caused by a rapid decompression billows around Sgt. Leonard Clevin, chief of supply. Occupants of the chamber go instantly from 8,000 feet pressure to 22,000 feet. It's a situation which would occur in high-altitude flying if the plane lost its pressure seal.

HEADWORK NECESSARY — Concentrated study is necessary to enable applicants to pass the written test prior to entering the altitude chamber. The first day of the 1½-day course is devoted strictly to classroom learning.

In Apollo 9 Lunar Module Test

'Lifeguard' to Keep Space Vigil

SPACE CENTER. Houston something this country hopes to do in June or July.

(AP) — David R. Scott, carrying a burden unlike any man before, will be the lifeguard on Apollo 9, standing a lonely vigil of safety for his crew mates as they test the untried lunar module.

Scott, a 36-year-old Air Force lieutenant colonel, remains in the command and service module (CSM) on Apollo 9 while Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt and Russell L. Schweickart board the lunar module in space and fly up to 100 miles away from the mother ship in a rendezvous maneuver.

Should the lunar module, or LEM, malfunction, the lives of McDivitt and Schweickart will rest on the decisions Scott makes and on how well he is able to perform a complex rescue.

"When we are separated," said McDivitt, speaking of the solo flight of LEM during the mission, "Dave has a lot more responsibility than anyone's probably ever had before... He has to be able to evaluate any critical situation which might arise in his spacecraft and weigh the risk of his life in rescuing us against the certain loss of our lives... He's placed in a position that a lot of people don't really appreciate."

COMMAND PILOT
Scott is the command module pilot on Apollo 9, the 10-day space flight scheduled for launch Feb. 28. The mission is in earth orbit, but it's a major stepping stone to the moon because it will verify the design of the lunar module.

Scott's job will be the least spectacular of the Apollo 9 trio. He has no extravehicular activity, or space walk, as does Schweickart. Nor will he transfer to the LEM while it's docked with the CSM, as will both Schweickart and McDivitt.

But the success of the mission rests very heavily on Scott. His first major job after Apollo 9 is launched into space is to separate the command module from the SIB, the third launch booster stage. He'll then fly the CSM out a few feet, turn around and return, nose first, to the booster stage.

MUST BE MARKSMAN
Nestled in the end of the SIB is the LEM. Scott's job is to poke a probe on the nose of his command module into a 38-inch cone, called a drogue, covering a docking collar on the LEM.

If his marksmanship is good, the spacecraft will lock together. Scott will "put it in reverse" and back away from the SIB, retracting the LEM now locked on the nose of the cone-shaped CSM.

This must be done properly before anything else in the flight is possible. Then, 40 hours after the flight starts, Scott becomes the "gate keeper" for McDivitt and Schweickart. Scott will be in charge of removing and replacing the drogue, the probe and the CSM hatch. When he removes the heavy equipment, it opens a tunnel to the LEM. When he replaces them, the two spacecraft become separate vehicles again, although still locked together.

BUSY WITH GEAR
Scott will have to wrestle with this equipment six times during the next three days of the flight. Just before the start of their fifth day into the mission, McDivitt and Schweickart will move over to the LEM through the tunnel for their fifth trip between the two vehicles.

The pair will power up the LEM and give Scott the green light, then the command module pilot will retract the probe and moves the CSM about 30 feet away from the LEM, now flying by itself for the first time.

LEM's first solo is a rough simulation of the job it was designed to do—carry two men from a mother ship orbiting the moon down to the lunar surface.

FOR LUNAR ORBIT

But in Apollo 9, LEM will be flying where it was not designed to fly. The lightweight craft was built for lunar orbit, not earth orbit, and it is not equipped to survive a reentry into earth's atmosphere. If it gets in trouble in earth orbit, LEM must return to the CSM or its crewmen perish.

Only Scott, flying the heavy command module designed for an earth landing, can prevent disaster if LEM falters.

Like most birds first leaving their nest, LEM tests its wings in easy stages. "Mama bird," the CSM and Scott, makes the first move. Scott fires a small thrust toward the earth, causing the CSM to move ahead and below the LEM. This creates an "equilibrium" orbital path, which means the spacecrafts would move back together automatically at the end of one orbit. Should LEM falter early, the "lifeguard" would be at hand within 90 minutes.

MUST FIRE ENGINE
But if LEM is still healthy halfway through the orbit, McDivitt will fire the descent engine. This burn moves the LEM orbit up to 12.8 miles from the CSM at the farthest point, but would still return it to within 3.2 miles of the mother ship after one orbit.

If all is well, then another descent engine burns and places LEM in an orbit parallel to that of Scott and the CSM, but farther out in space.

Since the LEM is farther from earth, it will be orbiting more slowly and will fall behind the CSM at the rate of 71 miles an hour.

When the distance widens to 86 miles, McDivitt separates the ascent stage of the LEM from the descent stage, a maneuver similar to that of astronauts flying from the surface of the moon. The ascent engine is fired, kicking LEM into an orbit 11.5 miles below the CSM and 86 miles behind.

PARALLEL ORBIT
Another burn puts LEM into a parallel orbit with the CSM, but this time between the mother ship and earth. This causes LEM to speed up and it begins to catch up with the CSM at the rate of 60 miles an hour.

In less than an hour, LEM is only 23 miles behind and 11.5 miles below. At this point, McDivitt fires the LEM reaction control thrusters and hurries his flimsy craft on a collision course with the CSM. He slams the brakes, forward thrusting rockets, and drifts to within a few feet of the CSM. The rendezvous is completed and the LEM docks.

At the same time, Scott must control and monitor the CSM, the most complicated flying machine ever made by man.

After the first separation burn, Scott plots maneuvers which would be a "mirror image" to those planned by the LEM.

60 SECONDS TO ACT
Should the LEM fail to fire any of its planned burns at the correct time, Scott has 60 seconds to fire a "mirror image" burn. This would leave the spacecraft in the planned relative positions, and the LEM, if it has corrected its malfunction, could carry on with the rest of the rendezvous.

If the LEM is still disabled, Scott would do all of the rest of the rendezvous burns, bringing the spacecrafts together. This would enable him to rescue his teammates aboard the disabled LEM.

In effect, Scott will be doing everything that would be re-

How to Make Best of Taxing Situation—2

Deductions for Medical Payments Help Ease Pain

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This second of five daily articles that will deal with your federal income tax and how to properly complete your return.)

By TOM STEWART
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — Nothing soothes the pain of getting a doctor's bill like the realization that the more you pay for health care the more you can deduct from your income tax.

The first fact of life confronting the taxpayer who wants to turn his heap of paid medical bills into money-saving tax deductions is the 3 per cent limitation.

This is the one that says you can't deduct more than 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income for medical expenses, with one important exception, are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 3 per cent of adjusted gross income.

AN EXAMPLE
So if your adjusted gross income is $9,000, only those medical-dental expenses above $270 (3 per cent) are deductible.

The big exception is medical insurance. You're permitted to ignore the 3 per cent limitation on this item and deduct half of what you paid for such coverage, up to a ceiling of $150.

The rest of what you laid out for medical insurance is deductible too, but it comes under the 3 per cent rule.

Suppose your premiums for Blue Cross and similar plans totaled $400. Since half of $400 is $200 — $50 over ceiling — you settle for a $150 deduction and add the remaining $250 to your other medical expenses, the ones that have to clear that 3 per cent hurdle.

SINGLES FRUSTRATED
The 3 per cent rule frustrates a lot of people, especially singles, young couples without children and others who have relatively modest medical expenses.

They realize that in an average year their medical-dental outlays won't add up to 3 per cent of adjusted gross income. If only there were some way to have lean years and fat years as far as such expenses go, they think, they'd be able to cash in at least occasionally on medical deductions at income tax time.

Lots of people in their circumstances have learned to do just that. Toward year's end they weight the expenses incurred in the current year against the ones anticipated in the approaching year.

SINGLES FRUSTRATED
If they decide one year has a better chance than the other of clearing the 3 per cent barrier, they help things along by going to the dentist in January instead of December, or vice versa.

This two-cushion shot off the medical profession and the Internal Revenue Service is called "bunching." It's legal, saves you money and makes you feel smart — how can you beat that combination?

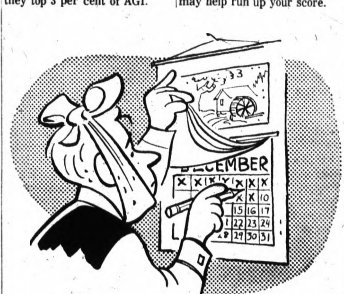

The mere act of going to the doctor, unless you walk, will also help cut your tax bill. Transportation to obtain medical care is a quite legitimate deduction, and often overlooked, so keep track of cab fares, bus fares and the like. Travel by auto can be figured at 5 cents a mile, IRS says, with tolls and parking fees added. Or, if it's to your advantage, deduct actual expenses — so much for gasoline, so much for oil and so forth — but be sure you can make your figures stand up if the tax man questions them.

DOUBLE WHAMMY
The tax laws put a double whammy on your expenditures for medicine and drugs. They are included in medical expense only insofar as they exceed 1 per cent of adjusted gross income, and this excess is then subject to the 3 per cent rule.

Thus, in the case of the taxpayer with the $9,000 adjusted gross income, suppose he lays out $112 for medicine and drugs. Under the 1 per cent rule the first $90 worth doesn't count and the remaining $22 has to be tossed in with other medical and dental expenses to see if they top 3 per cent of AGI.

Does that irk you? Take a little more expensive tranquilizer — it may help run up your score.

Militant Students Refuse to Relate to Irrelevance

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Judging from all that is happening on the campus these days, student interest in education is now at an all-time peak.

Many young scholars have become so intellectually stimulated they are staging riots, strikes, lock-outs and sit-ins to support their demands for academic improvements.

most fondly about my alma mater was its almost total irrelevance.

HERE'S TO IRRELEVANCE
There is, I submit, a great deal to be said in favor of keeping colleges irrelevant. After all, their chief purpose is to help prepare a student for later life, which isn't likely to be very relevant either.

For as long as he lives, a person is going to have to cope with a lot of irrelevances. The sooner he comes to grips with them and learns to handle them, the better off he will be. Particularly if he lives and works in Washington.

Had my alma mater not provided me with a solid irrelevant foundation, Congress would have driven me out of my mind years ago.

Pentagon Feels Russia Aiming for Orbital-Bomb Setup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Department officials say they think the Soviet Union has decided to deploy a system of bombs which could be rocketed into space and fired before completing their first orbit.

They indicate that accumulating evidence, presumably gathered from Soviet tests monitored by the United States, points toward the Kremlin's intention to mount the program, called a Fractional Orbital Bombardment System.

This conclusion comes only a month after Clark M. Clifford, in his final report as secretary of defense, said the United States was uncertain about Soviet use of the FOBS.

Pentagon sources said, however, the Clifford statement reflected assessments made in the last months of 1968.

An FOBS would be boosted into a low orbit, generally about 100 miles above earth, and would be fired by remote control at ground targets before completing its first circuit.

The low altitude would enable the orbital bomb to avoid detection by U.S. early warning radar.

Officials refuse to discuss intelligence, but it is known that the Russians have conducted at least 13 FOBS tests. The first seven reportedly flopped, but the next six were said to have worked.

The Soviet Union's experiments with an orbital bomb were disclosed by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Nov. 3, 1967.

TOO INACCURATE

He down-rated it, saying it would be too inaccurate for a satisfactory attack on U.S. intercontinental missiles protected in underground silos. But he did say the Russians might consider using it for surprise attack against such "soft land targets" as bomber bases.

In spite of the surprise potential of an orbital bomb, the United States has been developing radar that can "see" over the horizon, giving the alarm shortly after such a warhead is launched.

Another possible defense could come from the Sentinel missile defense system, according to testimony yesterday from Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

He told the Senate Foreign Relations committee that among the options being studied in a review of the now suspended Sentinel program are means to protect against an orbital bomb attack.

CODEFENDANTS—Alleged Mafia figure Anthony Giacalone (right) and Louis Koury of Commerce Township converse outside Pontiac District Judge James R. Stelt's courtroom before their preliminary hearing on gambling conspiracy charges. Both were bound over yesterday to Oakland County Circuit Court for trial in connection with the 1965 gambling operation at the Seaway Civic and Social Club—then at 118 S. Paddock.

Giacalone, Koury Ordered to Trial

By JIM LONG

Alleged Mafia leader Anthony (Tony Jack) Giacalone and an associate, Louis (Rip) Koury, yesterday were ordered to stand trial on charges of conspiring to violate state gambling laws in the operation of the former Seaway Civic and Social Club in Pontiac.

Pontiac District Judge James R. Stelt bound the pair over to Oakland County Circuit Court after hearing underwritten informant Peter Lazaros of Troy testify at their preliminary examination that each had received a percentage from the operation of the club.

The club at 118 S. Paddock was a front for a barbut dice game. It was closed after being raided by city and state police in October 1965.

Lazaros, who was named a coconspirator with Giacalone and Koury, but is not being prosecuted, said that he and Angelo (Barry) Lombardi were partners in the operation of the club. Lazaros has been under police protection at home at 2410 Daleford, Troy, since last November.

Before opening the establishment in May 1965, Lazaros said it was necessary for him to go to Giacalone for permission to operate the game.

"If I didn't get the okay I would be in the river right now," said the 35-year-old Lazaros, who admits to being in control of certain illegal activities in Oakland County since 1960.

Asked by Giacalone's attorney Joseph Louisell of Detroit, if he had been promised anything by the State Police or the Oakland County Prosecutor's office if he would "talk," Lazaros said that he had nothing to gain.

"There's a time in a man's life that he has to clean the books," said Lazaros, and then added the reason his attitude had changed.

'LOST RESPECT'

"All my life I thought Mr. Giacalone was a gentleman, but when I found out that he had directed (Joseph) Barbara to do what he had done I lost respect," Lazaros said.

Barbara, also a reputed Mafia chieftain, is awaiting trial on charges of extortion brought against him by Lazaros' wife Delores. She later charged him with rape. That case has not yet been heard in lower court.

NAACP Sues City School Unit

The Pontiac Area Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), has filed suit in U.S. District Court in Detroit against the Pontiac Board of Education.

The suit was filed yesterday in the names of three Pontiac schoolchildren and their parents.

Also named as defendants were Dr. Dana P. Whitmer, superintendent; Richard C. Fell and William J. Lacy, assistant superintendents; and school board members Monroe M. Osman, Russell L. Brown, Elsie K. Mihalek, William H. Anderson, Lucille D. Marshall, Dr. Robert R. Turpin and Christopher C. Brown.

The suit charges that the school district has maintained de facto (actual) segregation, especially on the elementary level, and is discriminatory in the hiring of instructional personnel and administrators.

'SEPARATE SCHOOLS'

NAACP asked in the suit for a declaratory judgment and for appropriate injunctive action.

The first count listed in the suit charges that the defendants "have

U.S. Economy Not Slackening

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department says indicators were uniformly bullish in January, showing no signs of the long-awaited — and predicted — slackening of the economy.

"All of the broad economic measures now available were up over the preceding month," said the department, including employment, wages and salaries, industrial production, retail sales and housing starts.

"Wholesale prices advanced sharply according to advance reports," said the department's monthly summary of the business situation. "In credit markets, heavy demands coupled with restrictive monetary policy brought interest rates to new peaks."

The report made no reference to last week's meeting in Paris of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, at which U.S. officials were quoted as saying the long-awaited slowdown was at last developing.

'RIGHT COURSE'

"In general, we are on the right course," Chairman Paul W. McCracken of the Council of Economic Advisers, highest ranking member of the U.S. delegation, told newsmen.

The meeting itself was closed to reporters, but foreign sources said the CEA chairman's remarks conveyed strongly the impression that the U.S. growth rate was beginning to yield to government rein tugging.

The report comes after four days of testimony before the joint Senate-House Economic Committee at which administration officials indicated the 10 per cent income tax probably should be retained another year.

Democratic committee members, however, criticized the officials for being vague in their testimony.

The committee, which recessed until Monday, will hear Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans next week.

Weather Will Stay Mild for Weekend

A few clouds will dot the sky over the weekend and temperatures will continue unseasonably mild.

Here is the day-by-day official forecast of the U.S. Weather Bureau:

TODAY — Cloudy and continuing unseasonably mild. High 42 to 47. Cloudy and not so cold tonight. Low 22 to 27.

TOMORROW — Cloudy and continued mild. High 40 to 45.

SUNDAY — Cloudy and mild. Precipitation probabilities in per cent are near zero today and tonight, and 10 per cent tomorrow.

Twenty-five was the low temperature in downtown Pontiac prior to 8 a.m. The reading at 12:30 p.m. was 40.

Stomach Ills Hospitalize HST

HARRY TRUMAN

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman was taken by ambulance to a hospital late last night, suffering from what a spokesman said was inflammation of the stomach and intestines.

John Drees, public information director of Research Hospital and Medical Center, where Truman was taken, said the 84-year-old former chief executive was in satisfactory condition and was in no discomfort early today.

Drees said Truman was afflicted with gastroenteritis.

Drees said an ambulance took Truman to the hospital between 10 p.m. and midnight from his home in nearby Independence, Mo. Members of Truman's Secret Service detail rode with him.

The former president has had digestive difficulties periodically since a gall bladder operation in 1954.

Drees said Truman was admitted under the care of Dr. Philip D. Reister, an associate of Dr. Wallace Graham, the Truman family physician. Dr. Graham reportedly was out of the city.

Drees said the former president was wheeled into the emergency room on a hospital cart, accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Truman. He said Truman was awake and talking.

The hospital had one hour's notice of Truman's arrival, Drees said, and added, "I would not say Mrs. Truman was unduly upset" when they arrived.

Truman remained at the hospital a few hours and then went home.

Henry Taige, a friend of Truman's and the sponsor in years past of annual parties for the former president, appeared at the hospital early this morning and talked with hospital officials and quoted their report as "He's all right. He's doing fine. He is awake."

Original Jail Plans Get Supervisor OK

By JEAN SAILE

The County Board of Supervisors voted 24-1 yesterday to proceed with the original plans for the construction of a proposed $9-million jail and law enforcement complex.

Christian Powell, R-West Bloomfield, was the lone man to vote against approval of the lease and lease-back agreements with the building authority.

The agreements give the authority power to seek bids involving up to $9 million of county funds. They commit the county to annual payments of about $60,000 for 30 years.

Powell favors creating a reserve building fund, which the county does not now have, to prepare for additional building projects estimated at $52 million over the next 20 years. There was no action taken on his recommendation.

Powell's attempt to block alternate bids eliminating an outside 2,500-square-foot area designed as a rehabilitation center and containing a chapel, library, office and multipurpose room was defeated.

The vote on the amendment actually passed, 13 to 12, but needed a board majority of 14 to carry. Two supervisors were absent from the morning meeting.

Paul Kasper, R-Bloomfield, and James Mathews, D-Pontiac, voted for the original plans, but did so over objections.

Kasper said he agreed with Powell in that the original plans allowed the board no flexibility of choice for this — "the most expensive undertaking of Oakland County in this time."

No Progress Is Seen in City-Union Talks

By ED BLUNDEN

No progress was reported after nine hours of negotiations yesterday between the city and three of its unions seeking new wage deals.

Two of the unions remain on strike, the Pontiac Municipal Employees Union and the Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. The two represent workers in the city services.

The current offer to Pontiac police is reportedly $10,000 starting Jan. 1 and $10,300 July 1. Berry pointed out Detroit police and firemen will be at $10,300 on July 1, but that is the date (fiscal year) increases could be due.

Bargaining centers around the Pontiac Fire Fighters Association, demanding parity with policemen at $10,300 after July 1. The city reportedly has offered $9,900.

Talks were to resume at 10 a.m. today under the direction of mediator Leonard D. Bennett, appointed by the State Mediation Board.

SESSION UNTIL MIDNIGHT

Yesterday's negotiations began at 3 p.m. and did not conclude until midnight. In spite of a full battery of negotiators and their legal staffs, no progress was reported.

Hanging over the whole issue of salary negotiations is a legal move announced Wednesday by Winston Livingston, lawyer for the three unions. The move could cut off a large segment of the city's operating revenues.

Livingston said Wednesday he was taking court action which could clear the way for a referendum vote on the city income tax.

SUIT WITHDRAWAL EYED

Originally some firemen and policemen challenged an effort to force a referendum on the city tax. By withdrawing their suit, now in the State Court of Appeals in Lansing, the income tax could be defeated at the polls.

The income tax represents some $4½ million out of an expected $10.2 million of the city's 1969 budget.

Opinions vary on whether the original Circuit Court decision upholding the tax would be affected by the suit.

School Recall Fails

GIBRALTAR (AP) — Voters in the Gibraltar School District of southern Wayne County have retained all seven members of the district's embattled board of education.

Had the drive to recall the board succeeded yesterday, it would have been the first for Michigan.

Matts told deputies the boy was completely submerged and was drifting under the ice when he pulled him out. The child was treated by a Dr. Matts' wife, Lily, noticed the Grubb's two dogs barking around a hole in the ice and called her husband when she discovered the object bubbling up and down in the water was a child.

Mathews asked for an amendment giving the public a right to state their views on the complex, but received no support. He said it was his feeling that the people had been "left out" in this 30-year commitment of tax funds.

There were also objections to whether or not the facility could be financed over 30 years from allocated funds within the 15-mill limit.

Some supervisors saw the alternate plans as a means of keeping board control over bids received. As it stands now, the building authority will have final say over bid acceptance, providing the total cost does not exceed $9 million.

Sheriff Frank Irons was the spectator at the morning session, expressed himself as "very happy that they've put it through. We've had plenty of trouble the couple of years and we've had 100 more prisoners so far this year than last."

Boy, 3, Saved From Drowning

Barking dogs and alert neighbors saved a 3-year-old boy who had fallen through the ice in Orion Township yesterday afternoon, Oakland County sheriff's deputies say.

Gregory K. Grubb, 124 Schick, was rescued from about five feet of water in a canal on North Long Lake Drive near Oakgrove Drive by Frank Matts, 970 N. Long Lake.

Matts told deputies the boy was completely submerged and was drifting under the ice when he pulled him out. The child was treated by a Dr. Matts' wife, Lily, noticed the Grubb's two dogs barking around a hole in the ice and called her husband when she discovered the object bubbling up and down in the water was a child.

MISSING FROM HOUSE

Father of the boy, Lester, told deputies the boy was missing from the house about 10 minutes.

Deputies said they believe that the boy would have been lost if it had not have been for the barking dogs and quick action by the Matts.

Girl Scout Council Is Back in PAUF

The Northern Oakland County Girl Scout Council has rejoined the Pontiac Area United Fund (PAUF).

"We are delighted to have the Girl Scouts back in the Pontiac Area United Fund. We have always thought highly of this vital program and the benefits and services it renders our community," PAUF President Frederick J. Poole said today.

The last year the Girl Scouts participated in the PAUF was in 1966.

both Giacalone, 50, of Grosse Pointe Park, and Koury, 65, of 1515 Midwood, Commerce Township, are charged in the same case with conspiracy to bribe a Pontiac police officer who was working undercover to smash the club.

The bribery case is being heard separately and is tentatively scheduled before Judge Stelt Thursday at 9 p.m. Their arraignment in Circuit Court on the gambling offense will be held March 5 before Judge William J. Beer.

CREDIBILITY QUESTIONED

Lazarus' credibility as a witness was questioned throughout his cross-examination by Louisell, particularly in regards to whether he had reported all his income derived from illegal activities.

Lazarus said he could not recall how much tax he paid, adding that he had reported all his income, but didn't say where it came from.

The Seaway Club netted an average of $15,000 a week, said Lazarus, with Giacalone receiving 50 per cent of the profits.

Koury, according to Lazarus, received an additional 10 per cent of the action. Lazarus said that he later met Koury and "He thanked me."

DENIES KNOWING LAZARUS

"I've been the running boy for the numbers and the club, and I think I deserve it," Lazarus quoted Koury as saying.

Koury later told newsmen that he didn't know and had never met Lazarus.

Following the raid, Lombardi and two other men were convicted of conspiracy to violate state gambling laws and conspiracy to bribe a policeman.

Giacalone and Koury's alleged participation in the club came to light after Lazarus talked to police earlier this month.

Pipeline Construction Through 6 Townships Gets Hearing Tuesday

The County Board of Supervisors Planning, Building and Zoning Committee will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday on the proposed construction by Lakehead Pipe Co. of a crude oil pipeline through six northern townships.

The hearing is scheduled for the Brandon Township Hall, 486 Mill. Committee Chairman Miles Olson, D-Lake Orion, will conduct the hearing.

The pipeline would extend through Rose, Springfield, Brandon, Groveland, Oxford and Addison townships.

Harry Horton, chairman of the board's public works committee, has noted that property owners usually have very little recourse against pipeline construction.

Peace Talk Foes Near Start Toward Settlement?

PARIS (AP) — The adversaries in the Vietnam peace talks may be on the extreme edge of the common ground known as Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge declares is necessary for a start toward a settlement.

That is the cautious impression U.S. and South Vietnamese negotiators formed after yesterday's weekly meeting.

U.S. Battleship to Leave Viet, May Not Return

SAIGON (AP) — Military sources said today the world's only active battleship—the USS New Jersey—will depart in March after a six-month tour off the coasts of North and South Vietnam and may not return to the war.

The sources said her departure does not represent a de-escalation of the allied war effort.

But after six months in Long Beach, Calif., for repairs, maintenance and retraining of her crew, the 56,000-ton battleship may not be needed in Vietnam, depending on the progress of the Paris peace talks, the sources said.

The New Jersey was brought out of mothballs in 1967 as a $50 million experiment to test the effectiveness of her 16-inch guns against targets in North Vietnam.

The United States was then escalating its bombardment of the North, and the Navy said the 23-mile range of the New Jersey's guns would cover many of the targets then being hit by warplanes. Use of the battleship could reduce American jet plane losses then running about one a day, the Navy explained.

By the time the New Jersey arrived in Vietnam last Sept. 30, President Johnson had limited air and surface bombardment of North Vietnam to the country's narrow southern panhandle.

The Pentagon said the battleship's big guns were still needed to hit well entrenched North Vietnamese artillery which was harassing the U.S. and South Vietnamese posts below the demilitarized zone.

A month later Johnson halted all attacks on the North, and the enemy artillery attacks from above the DMZ stopped. Since then the battleship has made occasional attacks on North Vietnamese bunkers and anti-aircraft guns in the DMZ which attacked U.S. reconnaissance planes.

She also has bombarded shore targets in South Vietnam in support of American or South Vietnamese ground troops. A number of military experts consider that the U.S. 7th Fleet's ample supply of destroyers and cruisers can carry out such missions satisfactorily, and a lot cheaper.

The allied negotiators found three encouraging signs during and after the weekly encounter:

1. The North Vietnamese have shifted the focus of their publicly expressed interest onto a terrain chosen by Lodge. Instead of emphasizing that the United States and the Saigon government must accept the political demands of North Vietnam, and the Vietcong, Hanoi envoy Xuan Thuy moved to the forefront his insistence that the United States unconditionally withdraw its troops from South Vietnam.

Although Thuy declared that the U.S. withdrawal must be made without conditions, observers saw the possibility of a parallel with the negotiations for a halt in the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam. Hanoi then insisted publicly that the bombing halt must be unconditional but later made secret concessions. A similar compromise to provide mutual troop withdrawals also is considered possible.

2. Lodge tried hard to reassure the other side that the United States shares their expressed view that a final settlement ought to conform to the spirit of the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam.

Taking Thuy's words at the previous session as his own, Lodge affirmed: "We support the principles of sovereignty, independence, unity and territorial integrity" of Vietnam.

ATMOSPHERE IMPROVES

Thuy had enumerated these points as essential facets of the agreements which ended France's war in Indochina.

3. The final encouraging sign was a matter of atmosphere.

At their news conference after the session, the spokesmen for North Vietnam and the NLF appeared less strident and acrimonious than they had after previous meetings.

SHAW LEAVES COURT—Clay Shaw, charged with conspiring in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, leaves court yesterday in New Orleans following a recess after the state rested its case. Presiding Judge Edward Hagerty Jr. denied a motion by Shaw's attorneys asking for a directed verdict of innocent.

Soviets Hike Berlin Tension With Plans for War Games

BERLIN (AP) — The Soviet Union intensified the state of nerves over West Berlin today, announcing the Warsaw Pact forces would stage maneuvers in East Germany early in March.

The date and the exact location of the war games were not given in the official announcement by Tass, the Soviet news agency. But presumably they will coincide with the presidential election West Germany will hold on March 5 in West Berlin, a demonstration of Germany's claim to Berlin which has brought new East German restrictions on traffic between the city and the West and strenuous protests from the Russians and the East Germans.

Tass said the maneuvers would be held "in the central and western regions of the German Democratic Republic." This indicated an area of operations between West Berlin and the West German border, 110 miles west of the city.

The maneuvers will be supervised by Marshal Ivan Yakubovsky, commander in chief of the Warsaw Pact forces, and will "perfect the joint action of troops in different types of combat operations," Tass said.

TANK, TROOP MOVEMENTS

Heavy Soviet tank and troop movements into East Germany were reported by travelers arriving in Prague yesterday. They said they saw long columns of trucks and tanks moving through northwest Bohemia toward the East German border.

The Soviets set up bases in northern Bohemia near the East German border after their invasion of Czechoslovakia in August.

Last month the North Atlantic Treaty Command staged military maneuvers in West Germany within 15 miles of the Czechoslovak border.

The Communists began new saber rattling over West Berlin on Feb. 9 when East Germany announced a ban on all surface travel to the city by the members of the West German federal assembly, which will elect the president.

Marines to the Rescue?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Clifford P. Hansen, R-Wyo., says the Marine Corps is studying the idea of putting its men on commercial airliners to prevent hijackings.

Hansen said he had received a letter from Maj. Gen. J. M. Platt, assistant chief of staff to the Marine Corps commandant, saying the Marines and other Defense Department officers were studying the possibility, but no final decision has been made.

Explosion Kills 2 in Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (AP) — A powerful explosion shattered Jerusalem's biggest supermarket today as about 200 shoppers were stocking up for the start of the Sabbath at sundown. Two students were killed and an Australian major and seven women were wounded. Three of the women were reported in serious condition.

Police Minister Eliahu Sasson said the "vile attack" was obviously linked to the Arab guerrilla attack Tuesday on an Israeli airfield in Zurich, Switzerland.

An Arab employee of the supermarket was held for questioning.

Police said a smaller bomb was discovered near the British Consulate half a mile away. It was detonated in a field.

SIMILAR BLAST

Three months ago 12 persons were killed and 55 injured in a pre-Sabbath blast. On that Friday Arab guerrillas detonated a car packed with explosives in Jerusalem's largest market square. It, too, was jammed with shoppers.

As they did then, Israeli police set up roadblocks today between the Jewish and Arab quarters of Jerusalem to prevent retaliatory attacks on the Arabs. Border police in armored cars patrolled the twisting, narrow streets of the Arab quarter.

Meanwhile, Baghdad radio announced that Iraq had executed the noncommissioned army officer who headed the Israeli spy ring from which seven members were executed Thursday.

The eighth man put to death previously had been reported still at large. Baghdad Radio did not say when he was tried, sentenced or executed, but it identified him as Najat Kazeem Khourshid.

Pontiac Vendor Shot by Bandit

A Pontiac man shot during an armed robbery attempt in Waterford Township yesterday is reported in satisfactory condition in Pontiac General Hospital.

Township detectives said Leo Fournier, 25, of 366 N. Saginaw was shot once in the midsection about 1:30 p.m. yesterday while in the rear of his vending van.

Fournier had parked the truck on M59 near Airport and was taking inventory when a bandit suddenly opened the rear door, announced a holdup and fired, police said.

Officers said they have not determined whether anything was taken from the van.

Investigators urged any citizens who might have seen activity around a gray van parked in the area at the time of the shooting to report their observations.

"We believe someone must have seen something," said a police spokesman.

Birmingham Area

9 Candidates Are Vying for Commission

BIRMINGHAM — What originally appeared to be a sparsely populated race for the three available City Commission seats up for grabs in the April 8 city election no longer is.

The city clerk's office said the late surge of nominating petition filings will make this year's commission race one of the most wide-open in recent years.

The last-minute decision of William E. Roberts of 745 Abbey, senior member on the commission, not to run, leaves Mayor David Breck of 752 Willits and first-term Commissioner William B. Saunders of 685 Pierce as the only incumbents running against the seven new candidates.

The final list of candidates as released by the clerk's office includes C. Arthur Caputo, 2471 Radnor; Craig V. Craig, 1828 E. Maple; John Dorsey, 1171 Yosemite; John A. Fallow, 807 Coolidge; William R. Lilley, 250 Pleasant; George A. Lyon, 511 Wallace; and Herbert Ring, 2338 Derby.

LIBRARY BOARD RACE

Meantime, Mrs. John Jickling, 600 Shephardsh; Mrs. Lee M. Kreul, 2760 Buckingham; and William C. Steward of 1323 Northlawn will run for the two vacancies on the Library Board. Incumbents Charles W. Renfrew, 987 Arden, and Mrs. Pell Hollingshead, 489 Argyle, have chosen not to run.

Mrs. Edward B. Emery of 795 Fairfax has been named co-chairman of the 1969 Community House Fund Drive. She will serve with Charles F. Adams, 6139 Oakland Circle, Bloomfield Township, previously named as chairman.

Mrs. Emery is past president of the Birmingham Junior League and actively involved as a member of the Village Women's Club. She serves on the board of directors of Brookside School and has done volunteer work for the United Foundation as well as Girl Scouts of America.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — Eight faculty members from Brookside School, Cranbrook School and Kingswood School, private schools run by the Cranbrook Foundation, will attend the annual conference of the National Association of Independent Schools Feb. 28 and March 1 in the America Hotel, New York.

Conference theme is "Currents of Change and the Schools."

City-Union Talks Fail to Progress

that the motion had not yet been received.

UNIONS COMBINE FORCES

All three unions in negotiation have vowed not to settle their disputes until all are satisfied with agreements.

The two unions on strike, representing the 450 white and blue collar workers for the city, are seeking wage increases of about 35 cents per hour. Also at issue are longevity pay and retirement and other fringe benefits. The city reportedly has offered 30 cents an hour.

Negotiations with the firemen appear to be the primary issue, however, and their agreement could be expected to set a pattern for the others, it has been indicated.

Hours Extended for Buying Plates

With time growing short for motorists to purchase 1969 passenger vehicle license plates, area secretary of state branch offices have extended their hours.

The legal purchase deadline is next Friday, after which drivers without this year's plates will be ticketed.

Offices with expanded hours scheduled tomorrow are Pontiac, 96 E. Huron; Waterford Township, 4520 Pontiac Lake; Walled Lake, 141 E. Walled Lake; and Rochester, 329 Walnut, all open until 5 p.m.

Pontiac's office will open at 8:15 a.m. tomorrow, the others at 9 a.m.

FEB. 28 HOURS

The Pontiac, Rochester and Walled Lake branches also have extended their hours for Feb. 28. Pontiac and Rochester scheduled until 7 p.m., Walled Lake until 8 p.m.

Regular weekday hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

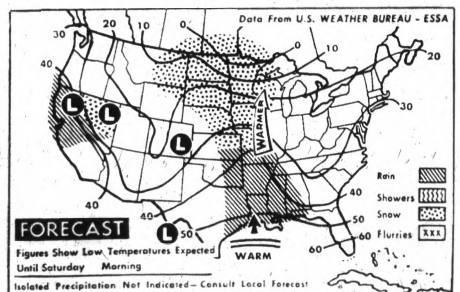

Fees are payable in cash, by payroll checks or cashier's checks, but not by personal checks.

The second count charges that the school district has "limited the number of Negro employees working for the city schools, and have invidiously considered race in assigning personnel to schools."

"I think we can produce sufficient evidence to bring about vigorous affirmative action by the court to immediately eliminate the problems," said Elbert Hatchett, president of the Pontiac NAACP Chapter, and a filer of the suit with William Waterman.

REPORT FINDINGS USED

Data for the argument was collected from school district statistics and also from findings published in the recent Civil Rights Commission report regarding education in Pontiac, Hatchett said.

Dental Health

George Washington Victim of Poor Teeth

By DR. HOWARD E. KESSLER
George Washington had a serious dental problem and it weighed on his mind during his entire term as President.

KESSLER

The pictures you see of him all show a strained, unnatural mouth area on his unsmiling face. He was toothless when he sat for the portrait shown on our $1 bill. But to improve his appearance, cotton was put in his mouth to support his sunken lips.

After suffering for many years with poor teeth, our first President had his last remaining tooth extracted at the time of his inauguration in 1789.

Getting dentures in those days was a real problem. Dental practitioners then, of course, had not advanced to the scientific principles and methods which our present-day dentists use in constructing dentures.

SEVEN DENTISTS

Washington had several sets of teeth. In addition to the services of seven dentists, he had Paul Revere, who was a skilled artisan, make him a set. However, Dr. John Greenwood apparently was his favorite dentist.

Heavy wire springs joined President Washington's upper and lower dentures, which were made of wood, ivory and metal. The spring action was supposed to hold the teeth in place. Not only did they cause a sore mouth, but the appearance of the teeth was ugly.

If you see a set of his dentures on display either at the Smithsonian Institution in our nation's capitol or at the museum of the University of Maryland, Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, you will realize why Washington could neither speak nor eat properly.

As bad as they were, Washington's dentures probably were the best he could get in that day. Extracted teeth of both animals and humans were then often used, wired to a crude base.

This was in the 1790 decade and in this country it was not until 1830 that porcelain artificial teeth were manufactured. A good denture base was not available until about 20 years later. Washington wrote to his dentists at least 41 letters. One was intercepted and fell into the hands of Admiral Howe, British naval commander-in-chief during our War of Independence. Even Martha Washington wrote about her husband's dental problems.

Home Has Room for 13,000 Bugs

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI)—Most homes have bedrooms, family rooms and dining rooms, but not many have a "bug room." One house that does is the home of Robert Miller, 18. It contains 13,000 insects. But they don't bite, sting or infect.

They're safely mounted on display boards, kept in jars, or spread out, waiting to be classified. Bob is a 4-H entomology member.

House Unanimously OKs Bill to Save Schools Cash

LANSING (UPI) — Rarely the Senate was a measure which its chief sponsor said would save $2 million in school taxes annually.

The legislation repeals the requirement that all public schools take a student census each May and report totals to the state superintendent of public instruction.

Rep. Roy Spencer, R-Attica, introduced three bills which would totally rearrange school financing in the state to lighten the burden of property owners.

The measures would set a 12-mill limit on property taxes for school operating costs, hike the state personal income tax from 2.6 to 3.6 per cent and permit Detroit taxpayers about 250,000 annually. More than 40 per cent of the state's public school children live in the Detroit area.

"It's quite a change of pace around here to consider a bill that saves taxpayers money once in awhile," commented Rep. Lucille McCollough, D-Dearborn, chairman of the House Education Committee, who urged a unanimous vote.

In other formal action, the House passed a resolution creating a committee to study the management of state-owned buildings.

Details of the legislation and plans for its introduction were announced by Spencer at a news conference three weeks ago.

"This plan will go into operation by the first of next year," predicted Spencer, who had 22 cosponsors on the bill.

The income tax feature of the financing package, however, is expected to trigger major opposition, especially among Republican leaders, who have vowed to oppose any tax increase.

Author's Wife Found Shot Dead in Home

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Dist. Atty. Martin G. Dumont said a decision would be made today on whether to autopsy the body of Mrs. Marjorie Uris, found shot to death near the mountain home she shared with her husband, novelist Leon Uris.

Dumont said, "It appears to be a suicide."

Uris, author of the best-selling "Exodus" and "Topaz," talked briefly with authorities called in after the finding of the body by a passerby Thursday, then went into seclusion.

MRS. LEON URIS

Dumont said Sheriff Carroll Whitmire of Pitkin County told him Mrs. Uris, 26, died of a bullet fired into her mouth from a pistol, owned by Uris, which was found lying near her. Pitkin said two other shots had been triggered off, one into the ground and one into her purse.

The couple were married in Hollywood last Sept. 8 after a romance which began with a meeting in this ski resort town in the Colorado back country.

The former Marjorie Edwards of Philadelphia, pretty, brown-haired Mrs. Uris operated an Aspen silversmith's shop. She was the author's second wife.

Mayor Ticks Off Mardi Gras Ills

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mayor Victor Schiro has his dander up about a number of Mardi Gras traditions he wants banned.

Schiro, two days after the pre-Lenten celebration, Thursday ticked off a number of practices he'd like to see outlawed.

End doubtless throwing from floats. Doubtless are coin-shaped souvenirs with no monetary value. Schiro said the fierce scramble to retrieve them leaves many black and blue.

"It's like a sea of missiles. I keep my hands out more to ward them off than to catch them," Schiro said.

He said one year a float rider in traditional mask, an apparent political enemy, flung a sack of horse manure at him.

QUEEN HIT

"It was hilarious. He missed me and hit his queen" on the reviewing stand, the mayor said.

Prohibit glass containers on Bourbon Street in the French Quarter and on other avenues jammed with people. He termed the broken containers "dangerous weapons" and a danger to individuals and auto tires.

Eliminate spectator stands and ladders along the parade route. Schiro said "everybody and his dog put up a viewing stand this year."

Teens to Hit Smoking With Federal Grant

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — An antismoking campaign designed by teen-agers and aimed at teen-agers is about to start here with federal backing.

The "advertising copy," which participating junior and senior high schoolers agree will be most effective to others in their age level, includes:

"Worried about the population explosion? Have a cigarette."

"Smoke, choke, croak."

"Smoking is a means to an end—yours."

The two-year pilot project is financed by a $52,000 grant from the U.S. Public Health Service.

Says Sy Loewen of Foothill High School: "We want to make smoking look insulting and just ridiculous."

"We're trying to reach kids in our own way," adds Monte Sharp, of East Bakersfield High.

There are 60 students directing the campaign all selected by classmates, without faculty advice—at two local high schools and a junior high.

The project will officially start March 1 with a barrage of bumper stickers, billboards, radio and television commercials and newspaper ads.
