

Carter Quits Post, Lauds Commission

ROBERT A. CARTER

By DICK SAUNDERS
City Manager Robert A. Carter announced his resignation last night, in a statement praising Mayor Robert A. Landry and the present City Commission.
Carter said his resignation would be effective at midnight tonight and was final. "I will not reconsider," he stated.
Assistant City Manager John F. Reineck was appointed acting city manager immediately after the City Commission accepted Carter's resignation.
In his prepared statement, Carter said he had reached his decision to resign "only out of respect and high regard for the present commission."
OFFICIAL COMMENTS
Official sources at City Hall who preferred to remain anonymous said that:
1) Carter was taking the action he had wanted to take since a grand jury indictment was issued against him in Flint Jan. 28.
2) He hadn't offered his resignation before because Landry and Mayor Pro Tem Winford E. Bottom told him he shouldn't, for political reasons.
3) The statement Carter read last night was suggested by Landry, and Carter was authorized to read it on Landry's approval.
POLITICAL ISSUE
Landry, according to sources close to both the mayor and city manager, agreed to the resignation only if the political issue could be used as a political issue favoring the commission.
Other city officials reportedly asked Carter last week why he hadn't offered to resign earlier. He reportedly replied "because Landry and Bottom wouldn't let me."
Asked if the decision and statement were his own idea, Carter said, "I had a lot of conversation with a lot of people, but the decision was entirely my own."
Landry, in accepting the resignation last night, said "I regret the action you have taken."
The mayor was unavailable today for comment on the reports that he objected to Carter's resignation initially and played a role in drafting the statement read by Carter last night.
In the prepared statement, Carter lauded the City Commission for its "accomplishments" and continued, "In all my experiences, both as a public official and as a city manager, I have never encountered a more sincere, devoted and dedicated mayor than I have here in the city of Pontiac."
Carter vowed, after reading the statement, that someday he would "quote laws of the United States and rights of all mankind . . . and name names and places and people who do not believe in the constitution nor in our court system which holds a man innocent until proven guilty."
Carter was referring to a charge of conspiracy to defraud and cheat the City of Flint of (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

State Asked to Probe Big Value Store Blaze

The Lenten Story

BY WOODY ISHMAEL

NOT BY BREAD ALONE

Lent begins today. The word is derived from the Anglo-Saxon "lencan," meaning long. The period of the long fast, it commemorates Christ's 40 days of fasting in the desert in preparation for His death on the cross.
It was there, as Matthew tells us, that Satan tried to tempt Him. "And when the tempter came to Him, he said, If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread."
"But He answered and said, It is written, Not by bread alone does man live, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." (Matthew IV, 3-4.)

Set $134,000 as Estimated Total Damage

50 Fire Fighters Battle Flames for Over 4 Hours During Night

By JIM LONG
The State Fire Marshal's Office has been asked to investigate the fire that left only a shell remaining of a downtown Pontiac furniture store last night.

Damage to the gutted Big Value Furniture Discounters, 47-55 S. Saginaw, has been estimated at $103,000 to the building and $31,000 to the contents.

City Fire Marshal Charles Metz said his investigation of the building today failed to turn up the cause of the fire and he has asked assistance from the state.

Metz said the loss to the building, owned by the Briggs Corp. of Detroit, and the contents of the store, operated by Burt Gold of Southfield, is based on their insurance.

The furniture store was closed at 6 p.m. yesterday by the manager, Melvin Markowitz, and a clerk, Doris Leach, according to Metz. Fire broke out at 11:30 p.m.

Gold, who operates another Big Value store in Roseville, rents the building from Irvin Steinman, owner of a clothing store. Steinman leases the building from Briggs.

Metz said that the building is a total loss and "could not be rebuilt because the walls have been weakened."

Dem Foreign Policy Is Rapped

New Jersey Congressman Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen last night told some 500 Republicans in Pontiac that American prestige in the world has been dealt crippling blows by the Democratic administration's "fumbling" foreign policy.

"We are suffering from a steady erosion of our prestige and power in world affairs," Frelinghuysen added.
"I don't want to sound pessimistic," the GOP congressman said, "but this is a very real crisis. We must have confidence in ourselves and we must have effective leadership."

Delivering a soft-spoken but hard-hitting address in a polished manner as guest speaker at Oakland County's 75th annual Lincoln Day Banquet, Frelinghuysen told an overflow crowd that the U.S. needs flexibility and foresight in its foreign policy.

NEED INITIATIVE

"We might easily have avoided the crisis in Panama if we had taken the initiative in solving some of the problems we knew were there," he said.

Frelinghuysen described the situation in Southeast Asia as "almost beyond repair" and said U.S. relations with France have "so deteriorated that it has even been suggested we put in a 'hot line' to de Gaulle."

The congressman called on the U.S. to take a lesson from the French president, "to take the initiative, as de Gaulle unquestionably does, in furthering his nation's interests."

The fourth-ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Frelinghuysen said Cuba was "still salvageable in 1960" when Democrats took over the White House, but "now is gone."

REINHERT

"President Johnson would give much if he could reinherit the U.S. position of 1960 at the end of the Eisenhower administration."

"Why," asked Frelinghuysen, "must we stumble from one diplomatic embarrassment to another? How long can we afford this ineptitude?"

He said, "We now stand before the world as a vacillating giant kicked by our enemies and twitted by our friends."

Frelinghuysen was introduced by Oakland County's congressman, William S. Broomfield, who is fifth-ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Mackie to Run for Congress

Endorses Staebler for Dem Governor Bid

LANSING (AP) — Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie announced today he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the new 7th District.

At the same time, Mackie said he will endorse Neill Staebler—the only announced Democrat — for governor. Staebler currently is congressman-at-large.

Mackie said his decision was based on several considerations, and added he believes he can do more to help Michigan with federal assistance programs that it needs in Washington than in Lansing.

"My decision is also influenced by the fact that the Democratic Party already has a superbly qualified candidate for governor in Neill Staebler," he added.

The new 7th district, created in the apportionment plan passed by the 1963 legislature, is composed of Genesee, Shiawassee and Lapeer counties.

Mackie said, "I think my experience in government can more effectively be used in the Congress than elsewhere at this time. Congress offers the opportunity to specialize in the kinds of public works programs which will directly benefit people I would represent."

30 in City Election

Hopefuls Set Record

Pontiac is headed into the biggest primary election in its history March 2.

When the deadline came at 5 p.m. yesterday, 30 nominating petitions had been filed by prospective city commissioners.

The previous record primary ballot was 28 candidates in 1964.

One incumbent, Charles H. Harmon, did not file to run for a second term.

Harmon, District 2 incumbent, said after last night's commission meeting that he hadn't planned to serve more than two years when he was elected in 1962.

"I decided on only one term when I started," he said. "I'm

Harmon, a former city assessor, is a municipal advisor and tax consultant.

He said the Clinton River project and approval of the R44 urban renewal project were

Taylor Aide Announces Candidacy

Oakland County Senior Assistant Prosecutor Robert L. Templin today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for prosecutor in the 1964 county elections.

The second member of the prosecutor's staff to announce his candidacy, Templin has been in the prosecutor's office since 1959, the year George F. Taylor became prosecutor.

Taylor has announced he will not seek another term, but will run for Congress.

Templin has specialized in trial work and appellate cases while an assistant prosecutor.

FORD EMPLOYE

Before entering law practice in 1958, he worked for Ford Motor Co. and was a founder of the American Standard Electronics Corp.

Templin said if he succeeds his boss, he would place more emphasis on the "Off the Record Court" established by Taylor for first offenders.

He also said he would work closely with police in coping with the increasing complexity of law enforcement.

A 1943 University of Michigan graduate who received his law degree from the Detroit College of Law in 1944, Templin served as a bombardier-navigator in Europe in World War II.

He is currently chairman of the county Bar Association's public relations committee, a member of the State Bar's criminal jurisprudence and grievance committees, and the National District Attorney's Association.

Vice president of the Oakland County Lincoln Republican Club, Templin also has been active in other GOP organizations and activities.

Court Session on Rest Home

Attorneys for Waterford Township and a nursing home will appear in Circuit Court tomorrow to straighten out whether or not a court order closing the home resulted from a mixup.

Some 25 elderly patients, including about 16 receiving all or partial welfare payment for their care, will be waiting the outcome to see if they must be moved.

As it stands now, the Oakland County Convalescent and Rest Home at 2280 Oakley, is prevented by a court order from occupying the premises because of sewage disposal problems. But, the nursing home's attorney, Philip E. Rowston of Pontiac, says he has been assured by Township attorney Paul Mandel that enforcement of the order will not be pressed until the whole issue is resolved.

Rowston yesterday filed a petition asking Circuit Judge James S. Thibault to set aside the restraining order which he signed Monday against further occupancy of the nursing home.

Rowston says the home has a county permit to construct a septic tank and drain the field to solve the sewage problem.

Judge Thibault granted the order when the attorney for Mrs. Margaret Peterson, owner of the premises used by the rest home, failed to appear in court although Mandel was there.

The township claims that inadequate sewage disposal facilities at the home resulted in raw sewage flowing through an open storm drain, constituting "a nuisance, source of filth, and cause of sickness."

Rowston said he thought Mandel was to be informed of the construction permit for a new sewage disposal system, or that Mrs. Peterson's attorney would so inform him Monday in court.

sums of money which he now faces in Flint.

He was formerly city manager of Flint for four years. Carter was hired by the Pontiac City Commission last November.

Commissioner William H. Taylor was the only commissioner who didn't vote in favor of hiring Carter. Taylor abstained from voting.

"I expected my hearing Feb. 6 and appreciated your standing with me until then. With the hearing postponed until Feb. 27, I cannot leave you open to these criticisms any longer," he told commissioners.

Carter's prepared text continued: "There are always people with small minds, who profess to believe in the American way of fair play and yet set themselves up as prosecutor and judge and pass sentence, whenever anyone is accused."

"I am sure such people are in the minority, but they usually talk the loudest and the longest."

"I strongly urge you to use every means at your command to tell the public of all the good things this commission has done, including the petty millions of dollars that will be spent in building in Pontiac within the next year."

Asked to give details on what he later said was $6 million in new construction developments for which the commission could take credit this year, Carter said, "$2 million of it is the new apartment development on Telegraph Road between Hazel and Edna."

As for the other $4 million, "It's something out near the hospital. I can't tell you. You'll have to get that from the mayor."

Later, Carter said "I feel The Press has treated me fairly."

"I have no complaints about the newspaper stories here in Pontiac."

"There is nothing else a newspaper can do but print a judge's orders and report when he issues them," Carter said.

Bottom is married and the father of two children.

Prior to naval service in World War II, Bottom was an assemblyman at Pontiac Motor Division. He returned after the war to join the sales and purchasing departments, until assuming his present job in 1962.

Bottom is a member of All Saints Episcopal Church. He is a Mason and a Shriner.

He also served as president of the Pontiac Police Reserve Association before elected to the commission four years ago.

In filing, Bottom said, "Today, Pontiac's industrial and business climate is being questioned."

"Whether we will continue to expand and grow is dependent on a favorable business atmosphere — an atmosphere that can only be controlled by the City Commission."

Bottom pledged his efforts to a continued "sound and realistic approach to taxation, distribution of the tax burden and economies in the management of city funds."

"During the four years I have served, I have always worked toward this goal, and for the first time in about 11 years, this city is now operating on a balanced budget."

District Two Gets Its 5th Candidate

A lifetime resident of Pontiac, Allan J. Denham, 49, yesterday became the fifth person to announce his candidacy for the District 2 City Commission seat in the March 2 primary.

Denham of 93 Oriole is a process engineer at GMC Truck & Coach Division where he has been employed for 24 years.

He is a graduate of Pontiac Central High School and attended night courses sponsored by General Motors Technical Institute.

Denham has never sought a public office before.

In deciding to file a nominating petition, he said that "Pontiac's reputation has suffered from two years of friction and dissension at City Hall."

He added that he believes "good attitudes and dedicated service are essential if we expect to capitalize on the fine opportunities that lie before us."

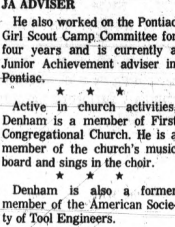

Denham is married and has three daughters, two married and one living at home.

He has been active in Parent-Teacher Association work in past years and is presently a member of the Webster Elementary School PTA.

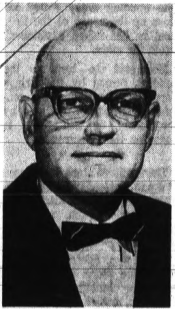

JA ADVISER
He also worked on the Pontiac Girl Scout Camp Committee for four years and is currently a Junior Achievement adviser in Pontiac.

Active in church activities, Denham is a member of First Congregational Church. He is a member of the church's music board and sings in the choir.

Miles Wants Seat Lost to Bottom in '60

A former commissioner, Floyd P. Miles, yesterday announced he would again seek to regain the District 4 City Commission seat this year that he lost in the 1960 municipal election.

Miles is one of three commissioners who will vie with Commissioner Winford E. Bottom in the March 2 primary.

Bottom defeated Miles in 1960 and Miles lost to the incumbent again in 1962 in a comeback attempt.

Miles, 55, of 160 W. Columbia has been a Pontiac resident for 32 years.

HELP PONTIAC
In filing a petition, he said he "welcomed the opportunity to help put Pontiac back on the road to a solid operation."

"To say that Pontiac government is in a mess is an understatement of fact," he said. "Those who promised the people great things have only brought disgrace to our city."

"Indications are that people want our city government returned to a position where it can be an example to other communities around us. It will take a group of experienced men who will work as a team to accomplish this."

The former commissioner headed the emergency transportation committee during the 1960 bus strike and later served as chairman of the City Commission's permanent transportation committee.

BACKGROUND
Miles is part owner and operator of the Christian Literature Sales book store in Pontiac.

An active church worker, he was once fulltime business manager for First Baptist Church and currently chairman of the Joint Board of Deacons, Trustees and Missions.

He is a former office worker at Pontiac Motor Division.

Miles is president of the Wever - Owen - Hawthorne - Alcott Community Club and previously served six years on the Pontiac Municipal Employees Retirement Board.

Bloomfield Commission Delays Zone Code Vote

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — City commissioners last night postponed for at least another month a decision on the proposed zoning ordinance.

They are waiting for all members to be present for the vote on the controversial code which has been three years in preparation.

Commissioner James A. Beresford was out of town last night and Commissioner Henry L. Woolfenden will be unable to attend the next regular meeting, scheduled for March 10.

March 6 was set as the tentative date of a special meeting on the issue.

MINOR CHANGES
At their special session last week, the commissioners reached agreement on all but one section of the code after making minor changes.

They also agreed that further study might be needed before a decision is made on the section which would allow construction of three-story town houses.

But last night they concluded that the study would not be aided by a direct mail survey of residents, an idea which had received a favorable reception a week earlier.

In changing their minds, commissioners noted that the ordinance has been made public in the last 2 1/2 years and that residents have had ample opportunity to express their opinions at hearings and other meetings.

Other action last night included the appointment of a board of canvassers and board of review.

To serve on the board of review until Dec. 31, 1967 are Republican Robert E. Anderson and Democrat George H. Goldstone.

Also appointed to the board required by the new state constitution were Republican Allen D. Hart and Democrat Mrs. Cass S. Jaros, whose terms will expire Dec. 31, 1965.

The board of review which will meet March 14 are assisted by Commissioner John W. Blanchard, Robert E. Montbach and City Manager Elmer Kephart.

The Bloomfield Hills Board of Education has taken its first step toward providing transportation for its students.

Since no primary run-off will be needed in District 3, commissioners passed a resolution last night naming incumbent William H. Taylor and his opponent, Sam Gabriel, as the candidates for the April election ballot in District 3.

Primaries will be run in the other six districts.

Seeking nomination in District 4 are the incumbent Samuel J. Whithers, T. Warren Fowler Sr., Rolfe L. Jones and Robert J. Bowers.

Sixth Hopful Files in Fifth

District Has Biggest City Election Slate

Pontiac's fifth district has more City Commission candidates than any other district.

Delbert E. Burnett, 33, announced he would seek the District 5 City Commission candidacy yesterday.

Burnett of 585 Melrose filed a nominating petition to enter the March 2 primary. He was the sixth person to file in District 5.

He is married and the father of five children.

Burnett is currently a wood pattern maker at Amex Pattern Co., 21550 Telegraph, Southfield.

He formerly worked at Pontiac Motor Division for 11 years.

CHURCH MEMBER
Burnett has been particularly active in church affairs. He is a member of Perry Park Baptist Church.

Hoffa Team Admits Wiretapper Hired to Spy on U.S. Agents

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI)—The defense in the jury-tampering trial of James R. Hoffa admitted today it had employed a wiretapper to spy on government agents.

Defense attorney Jacques Schiffer told Federal Judge Frank Wilson that a "professional wiretapper," Bernard Spindel, was hired as "an aid to the court."

Spindel filed an affidavit yesterday stating that he had spied on government agents and learned, in the process that the government was spying on the defendants.

Hoffa and five other persons are charged with attempts to bribe and influence jurors in the Teamster chief's 1962 trial in Nashville on conspiracy charges.

EFFORTS HAMSTRUNG
The defense contends that the government has hamstrung its efforts in the jury-tampering trial by keeping both lawyers and defendants under "surveillance."

Schiffer, attorney for one of Hoffa's codefendants, said he employed a wiretapper to help prove defense charges.

"I decided to solicit the services of an expert in the field," he said. "He had positive results."

Schiffer and another defense lawyer, Cecil Branstetter, renewed their charges of underhanded government tactics during cross-examination of Edward Martin, a key government witness, whose testimony was the first to directly link Hoffa to jury-tampering efforts.

USE STAKE-OUTS
Hoffa, at an impromptu session with newsmen yesterday, charged the government with using stake-outs, motion picture cameras and armed federal agents to carry out the alleged surveillance.

He claimed the judge in his jury-tampering trial won't do anything about it and added that he will ask a higher court for help.

Hoffa said his attorneys will ask the U.S. 6th Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, Ohio, to compel Judge Wilson to listen to his charges.

Several firemen stayed at the scene today to clean up and extinguish minor flare-ups among the debris.

Several hundred spectators lined the curb across the street from the store at the height of the blaze. Saginaw was blocked to through traffic by Pontiac police.

An adjoining store, the Big Value Super Market, 59 S. Saginaw, filled with smoke but a fire wall prevented the fire from spreading.

No other buildings in the area were in danger.

Big Value Furniture is situated next to an empty lot on the north, once the site of the Oakland Theater, destroyed by fire in October, 1960.

The building housing the furniture store was formerly occupied by the Yankee firm and Lion's Men Wear prior to that. The furniture store was opened in March of last year after being completely remodeled.

Pontiac Fire Chief James R. White said that if the furniture store had had a sprinkler system the building probably would not have been lost.

Award City Plan Grant of $93,558

The Urban Renewal Administration today approved a $93,558 planning assistance grant for Pontiac, according to Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.

The city had submitted an application for the planning grant early last month. It will go toward work on detailed planning studies of major aspects in the Pontiac general development plan adopted in 1962.

A major purpose of the detailed planning studies is to pinpoint areas where urban renewal and neighborhood redevelopment projects may be needed in the future.

It is also hoped the studies will help planners recognize such areas early enough so that full-scale urban renewal programs can be avoided in favor of preventive rehabilitation programs.

Theft Foiled by Attendant at City Station

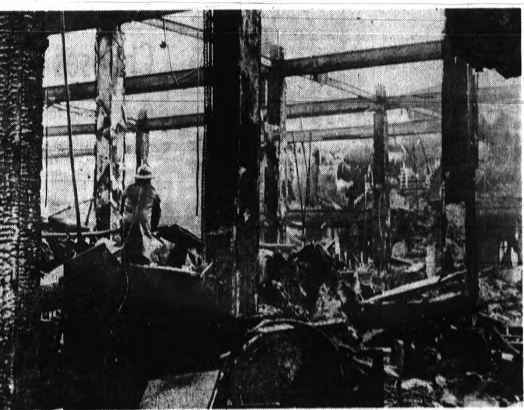

A 22-year-old attendant foiled an attempted armed robbery of a Pontiac gas station early this morning.

James E. Ivey of 645 Auburn told police he went about 12:30 a.m. to check gas pumps on the side of the building, located at 420 S. Saginaw.

He saw a man standing near the gas station and the man told him to "come here."

Ivey told police he went over to the man, but when he saw the man had a white stocking cap with two eye holes over his face he pushed him and ran, yelling at a second attendant to call police.

The would-be bandit fled.

Dependents to Leave Cuba Base

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department announced today that no more families of military people or civilian employees will be sent to Guantanamo, and that dependents now there will be removed over the next two years.

Ass. Sec. of Defense Arthur Sylvester announced this action "as a further step in the process of making the Guantanamo Naval Base entirely self-sufficient, and to improve the garrison posture of the forces there."

There are about 3,000 dependents now on the base, which has been subjected to new Cuban pressure in the form of a cutoff of fresh water normally coming from a river pumping station outside the base.

Sylvester said that stripping the base of wives and children will make Guantanamo "a little more ready."

WILL RETURN

"Dependents now on station will be returned to the U.S. at the normal expiration of their sponsors' regular tours of duty," Sylvester told a news conference.

"Since all military tours presently are for a period of two years, and no extensions will be granted to persons with dependents on station, there will probably be no dependents remaining on the base by early 1966."

To minimize the time of family separations, Sylvester said, future military tours at the Guantanamo base will be shortened to a year or less. "As has been done in the past for unaccompanied military personnel at remote bases."

Actually, the moves to remove dependents will make Guantanamo even more of a Spartan post than Korea, Vietnam, or West Berlin.

There was no indication that civilian employees at Guantanamo, who will be limited in the duration of their working tours, as will the military.

Envoys Present Plan for Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Undersecretary of State George Ball and British envoy Cyril Pickard called on President Makarios today to present the latest U.S.-British plan to land an international peace keeping force on Cyprus.

Ball hurried to the meeting shortly after he arrived from WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson and British Prime Minister, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, began two days of talks today which were expected to be dominated by the explosive Cyprus situation.

Turkey on his flying peace mission.

The conference took place as fighting between Greek and Turkish communities flared anew in the south coastal city of Limassol, 38 miles southwest of Nicosia. At least one Greek Cypriot policeman was killed, a palace spokesman said.

DECIDE CASE
Ball and Pickard spent nearly two hours with Makarios. Then they crossed no man's land between the embattled Greek and Turkish sectors of the capital for a talk with Vice President Fazil Kutchuk, a Turkish Cypriot.

A spokesman for the Greek Cypriot president said the talks will decide whether Makarios will take the case to the United Nations. If they are considered unsatisfactory, a special Greek Cypriot delegation will probably be sent to U.N. headquarters in New York later this week.

Ball told newsmen he hoped to have full discussions with Makarios and Vice President Fazil Kutchuk, a Turkish Cypriot.

"There's a problem to be solved, and it's hoped it will be solved," he said.

He refused to comment on a newsmen's query as to when American troops would land on Cyprus as part of a U.S.-British plan for a peacekeeping force.

NO SIGNS
There were no signs of anti-American demonstrations in Nicosia. Greek Cypriot officials insisted they expected none.

Nicosia rumbled with threats of a new flareup of Greek Cypriot violence. Two bomb explosions at the U.S. Embassy last week sent women and children fleeing from the Mediterranean island.

Clashes between Greek police and students marked Ball's stopover at Athens Monday as demonstrators demanding union between Cyprus and Greece tried to march on the U.S. and British embassies.

Britain was one target because its troops now police an uneasy truce between the warring Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities. The United States was the other because it has offered to help with the police work.

As President Johnson's troubleshooter, Ball is expected to outline the latest U.S.-British proposal for an international peace force for Cyprus to President Makarios, a Greek Cypriot, and Vice President Fazil Kutchuk, a Turkish Cypriot.

British officials in London said the revised plan gives the United Nations a voice but no vote on peacekeeping operations and abandons a previous condition that the force be raised from partners in the North Atlantic alliance.

Ruby Lawyer: Firm Blocks a Fair Trial
DALLAS (AP)—Defense Attorney Melvin Bell charged today that a public relations firm working for the court in the Jack Ruby murder case is part of a Dallas conspiracy to deprive Jack Ruby of a fair trial.

Sam R. Bloom, head of the agency, testified he had volunteered as a public service to help District Court Judge Joe E. Brown with press accommodations.

Bell threatened to go to federal court after Judge Brown refused to admit in evidence papers brought by Bloom on orders of the defense.

After long, heated arguments and a recess, the state withdrew its objection to admission of the papers.

The judge then admitted them, and defense attorneys began sorting through the four large brown envelopes in which they were contained.

Bloom was the first witness in the third day of a hearing on a defense motion to transfer Ruby's trial on a charge of murdering accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

Russian Blasts Swiss, Demands Defector Be Returned

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet disarmament negotiator Semyon K. Tsarapkin charged today that "provocative activity" by Western intelligence agencies led to the defection of Yuri I. Nosenko, an expert on his delegation. He demanded that the Swiss return him.

The U.S. State Department announced Monday that Nosenko, identified as an officer of the top Soviet security agency KGB, had requested political asylum in the United States. The 36-year-old agent vanished eight days ago.

Since he presumably had access to secret Soviet disarmament and defense information, Nosenko is a great prize for Western intelligence agencies.

State Department press officer Richard I. Phillips said Nosenko told U.S. officials he was a KGB staff officer sent to Geneva on temporary duty from security headquarters in Moscow.

NOT HIS NURSE

Asked about Tsarapkin's demand that the Swiss take steps to return Nosenko to Geneva, a high-ranking Swiss official in Bern said privately: "Delegates at the disarmament conference are free to come and go as they please. We are not their nurses."

Tsarapkin's statement contained no direct criticism of Nosenko or of the United States.

Western officials noted that Tsarapkin did not accuse the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency of having spirited Nosenko away, but merely spoke of "foreign intelligence agencies."

One Western delegate said this indicated the Soviet Union does not want Nosenko's defection to poison the atmosphere at the disarmament talks.

In a prepared statement read to newsmen, Tsarapkin accused the Swiss authorities of tolerating this activity on the sidelines of the 17-nation disarmament conference. He made it clear he considered Switzerland responsible for Nosenko's disappearance.

'RETURN NOSSENKO'

He called on the Swiss to "take all necessary measures to return Nosenko to his place of work and to his family."

Nosenko, a security officer of the Soviet delegation, disappeared from Geneva Feb. 4.

It was Tsarapkin's first comment on the case since Nosenko disappeared.

NOTHING FURTHER

"I have nothing further to say," he declared, as he marched out of the room followed by his chief advisers.

His statement indicated that he expects the Swiss to call on the United States to return Nosenko to Geneva and deliver him to the Soviet delegation.

The Swiss were expected to reject both the Soviet complaint and the demand for Nosenko's return.

Nosenko arrived in Geneva Jan. 20. Disarmament conference documents listed him as an expert without specifying his particular field.

LEGAL EXPERT

Soviet sources in Geneva called Nosenko a legal expert of the Soviet Foreign Ministry. This presumably would give him access to Soviet defense secrets and negotiating plans for the disarmament conference which resumed its talks here Jan. 21.

The Soviet delegation kept Nosenko's disappearance secret for three days. They informed Swiss police only after apparently becoming convinced that he had slipped to the West.

Swiss authorities said later Nosenko crossed into France the day he disappeared.

Nosenko lived with about 10 other Soviet delegation members in a small hotel on Avenue de la Servette district of Geneva.

On the day he vanished, the Russians at the hotel were all packing and moving to the delegation headquarters.

Write-In Candidates Hope to Oust Romeo Officials

ROMEO—A hot political battle is shaping up for Monday's primary election here with four write-in candidates attempting to oust the present administration.

Democratic council candidate Martin Durham, whose name was removed from the ballot yesterday, is joining two other candidates for council in the write-in campaign.

Retired Romeo State Police Post Commander Edgar Welsh

is vying for the village presidency, also as a write-in candidate. He was Romeo police chief under the previous administration.

Village Attorney Gary M. Corbin informed Durham yesterday that his name would not appear on the ballot.

CERTAIN PROCEDURE

Corbin issued the formal notice after discovering that a Democrat cannot appear on the ballot, without following certain election procedure, when the party has not had a candidate in the two previous elections.

So Durham is joining three recently declared write-in candidates in a bid to oust the village fathers now in power.

Campaigning for election to the three vacant council seats are Durham, James C. Burke of 355 N. Bailey and Thomas S. Raymond of 197 Washington.

"The people in general are not satisfied with the way things

FOURTH TERM

The current village president, Wayne N. Black, has turned in petitions for a fourth term. Incumbent councilmen Tony Galan and Jack McFadden are also seeking reelection.

Norman Engel, who now fills a third council post, filed petitions for the clerk's job before council cut the clerk's salary from $4,200 to $15 per meeting.

Vying with Engel for the position being vacated by Mrs. Dorothy Carl is Mrs. Phyllis Melan, 254 E. St. Clair.

The four write-in candidates are opposed to turning the village clerk's post into a part-time job.

NO YES-MAN

"It looks to me, and a lot of other people, that the council decreased the clerk's pay and responsibility because they didn't want Engel," Durham said. "He isn't one of their yes men."

The write-in candidate said some of the present council members are under pressure because of their jobs and other obligations.

"I don't owe anybody anything or work for anyone, so I can be honest," he said. "I'm not going to be a tool for anybody."

Council activity has been the object of community-wide discussion since Jan. 6, when the village fathers slashed the clerk's salary to a fraction of that now being paid.

AFTER DEADLINE

The vote came after the deadline for withdrawing from the village election.

But both candidates for the clerk's job say they still want it.

Engel, however, says he thinks the council action is illegal, because it "changed the nature of the office after the deadline for entering or pulling out of the race."

Monday's election will show how village residents feel about council's decision. It was reached by a majority vote, with Trustee Stanley Holmes dissenting and Engel abstaining.

Milford Stalled in Street Plan

Court Order Halts Action on Tax Roll

MILFORD—The public hearing on a proposed $213,000 street improvement program opened last night with presentation of a restraining order.

The order, issued by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Philip Pratt 4½ hours before the meeting, halted village action on confirmation of the special assessment rolls.

However, the Village Council continued with its plans to discuss the controversial program and more than 100 residents remained in their seats. But no action was taken.

Village officials also were ordered by Pratt to appear in Circuit Court Tuesday to show cause why the restraining order should not be made a preliminary injunction.

PROPERTY OWNERS

The action is being sought by nine property owners who would be involved in the proposed program.

They are headed by Paul A. Plotter, a former village president who gathered 125 signatures on a referendum petition to have a charter amendment placed on the March 9 ballot. It would change the village's method of assessing.

The proposition needs the approval of Gov. George Romney before it can be put on the ballot, but that would not have come last night.

If the amendment were approved by the electorate, a special assessment district could be formed only upon a majority vote of the property owners living in the district.

AFTER ELECTION

Meanwhile, the nine plaintiffs wait to postpone action on the street program until after the election.

Village Attorney Harry Mead said the courts do not have the authority to dictate municipal legislation.

But he noted that a "central point" in the case may be the village charter provision that certification of a referendum petition by the clerk automatically suspends operation of the ordinance in question.

During last night's 1½-hour session, 17 written objections were read. Generally they and those expressed verbally dealt with the size of the assessments to residential property owners who would pay 100 per cent of the surfacing costs.

Wilson was found guilty by a jury of extorting $200 from a township gas station to overlook a sign he said was illegally oversized.

The conviction came at the end of a week-long trial.

Witnesses at the trial said Wilson told the manager of the Dance Oil Co. station at 4406 W. Eight Mile that a sign at the station was too large, but later offered to ignore the violation for half the cost of taking it down.

Wilson originally was charged also with four other counts of bribery, extortion and conspiracy in alleged payoffs and attempted payoffs ranging from $25 biweekly to a lump sum in other incidents, some dealing with the numbers rackets.

These other charges were dismissed or dropped during preliminary court proceedings by Mrs. John Dowling.

Educational Cutbacks Eyed

Utica School Dilemma: Where to Chop

UTICA—Faced with an academic dilemma, Utica Community School Board members are deciding which way to go.

Both paths lead to a cut-back in the district's educational program.

Two proposals are under consideration by the board, one presented by the elementary school principals, the other recommended by the secondary level administrators.

They were brought before the board as a part of its reevaluation of the budget following the recent election.

THUMBS DOWN

On Jan. 18, school district voters here turned thumbs down on a request for funds for school expansion.

Some 6,300 voters—more than twice any previous turnout—voted a $7.5-million bond issue by 412 votes. They also rejected a request for a 4-mile, five-year school tax, 3,257 to 2,063.

Following the election Schools Supt. Fred M. Atkinson predicted some of its effects. He said about 60 professional school personnel would have to be released.

Atkinson also said the proposed expansion program, which included a new 1,800-student high school and 70 new elementary class rooms, would have to wait.

He said that "hundreds of students will have to go on half-days."

Farmington OKs Projects for Half of School Program

FARMINGTON—The board of education has approved 11 projects to account for half of the $5 million bond issue accepted by taxpayers in November.

The board expects to sell the first $2.5 million worth of bonds about the first of May. It will hold the other half in reserve until needed, probably in the fall of 1965.

The entire building program was designed to carry the district through the fall of 1967.

Highlighting the list of projects approved are a new elementary school and major additions to two secondary buildings.

MORE CLASSROOMS

Three-year-old North Farmington High School is to receive 24 additional classrooms. Existing facilities will be expanded in the $683,000 project to increase the capacity from 970 to 1,600 students.

A similar addition and expansion are planned at East Junior High, where the board will spend some $580,000 to house 1,530 rather than 810 students. The building is now in its first year of operation.

Location of a new $480,000 elementary school has not yet been determined. It will include 14 classrooms plus accessory areas.

Now the board is deciding at what level of schooling the children will be deprived of the regular sessions.

Speaking for the elementary principals, Leonard Morrison, Sterling Elementary School principal, has proposed placing either the children in grades kindergarten through three on half-days, or all grade school children on half-days.

David Lathers, principal of Eppler Junior High School, has suggested a five-hour day for secondary students. He also recommended keeping some of the 10th graders in the junior high, to relieve overcrowded high school conditions.

SUBSTANTIAL REDUCTIONS

The five-hour day would mean substantial reductions in the academic programs, such as the fields of art, music, home economics, and physical education. Lathers admits.

However he thinks it's the best solution.

"The five-hour day is at best a way to substantially reduce our program while maintaining the framework of our curriculum, so that we can go back to a full program as soon as possible," he says.

If either of the proposals is accepted and put into operation, school officials predict it will cause the district to be put on probation by the accrediting institutions.

Administrators also say that if no remedial moves are made within a certain time the system will be dropped from the accredited listing.

The board is scheduled to make a decision at its next regular session, Feb. 24.

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP—Dr. Wilbur J. Peterson of 32291 Toreyton, chairman of the Wayne State University music department, has been elected second vice president of the Michigan Music Educators Association (MMEA).

Dr. Peterson automatically will become president of the association following his two-year term as second vice president.

The organization is a department of the Michigan Education Association and serves as the official state unit of the Michigan Educators National Conference.

Dr. Peterson also has served as coordinator of higher education for the MMEA.

Doesn't Dig 'Beatle Cut'

2 Teens Sent Home by Dryden Principal

DRYDEN—"It's nothing the length of the hair, but the style" that bothers Dryden Community High School Principal Wendell Martin—that mop-haired 'Beatle' style.

"We don't want them in class with the Beatle haircut," Martin explained today. Yesterday he sent two students home and told them not to return until they changed their way, specifically their way of combing hair.

"They were all right the early part of the day," Martin said, "but during the last hour they combed their hair in the same fashion as The Beatles."

The two high school juniors, whom Martin refused to name, were back in school today with their locks combed in "an acceptable style."

VEHEMENT OPPOSITION

Martin expressed vehement objection to the coiffure which features hair growing long down the neck and sides and bangs cut even with the eyebrows.

The haircut is a distinctive feature of The Beatles, the English rock 'n' roll singers who have become idols of the teen-age set.

Unofficial sources say the quartet picked up the style when they saw someone with long hair stand up after swimming under water. Others say it looks worse.

The Longest Day in Washington Is President Johnson's

By FRANK CORMIER
WASHINGTON (AP) — As a boy, Lyndon B. Johnson was often awakened at 4:30 a.m. by having one bare foot twisted by his father's impatient hands.

"Get up, Lyndon!" the father's words were as sharp as the sudden twinge of the ankle. "Every other boy in town already has a half-hour's head start on you!"

Few men in Washington get a half-hour's head start on the President, and few work later. The key fact about Johnson's work pattern is that he seldom stops working—even when he's socializing. Work and relaxation go hand in hand.

ARISES EARLY

On an average morning, Johnson is awake by 6:30 a.m. A lifetime of habit makes it difficult for him to sleep later. By 6:45, the President's aide and official shadow, Jack Valenti, is at the White House, prepared to go over the day's schedule and give Johnson a briefing on secret intelligence from around the globe.

After the intelligence briefing, the first order of business is a look at the day's schedule. How should the President handle each visitor or visiting delegation? What does he want to learn from them? Johnson and Valenti, shuffling through folders of neatly filed memos on each appointment, decide the day's strategy.

Then comes the "reading hour," which may stretch to nearly two hours. There are special studies, intelligence reports, diplomatic cables and memoranda from various agencies.

Like the late President John F. Kennedy, Johnson is a fast reader. His assistants say he has "a blotting paper memory" for key facts.

READS NEWS

Newspapers are a major part of the President's morning reading. He thumbs through seven or eight of them, including the Washington Post, Baltimore Sun, New York Times, New York Herald Tribune, New York Daily News, Chicago Tribune and Philadelphia Inquirer. The list is limited only by the number available at dawn.

The President skims the paper, looking in particular for prime news or for dispatches, columns and editorials concerning his own activities.

Like many a president, Johnson attaches great importance to the things that reporters and pundits write about him. If an article strikes him as favorable — "objective," he would say — Johnson is delighted. He has been known to venture into the White House lobby, where newsmen congregate, to bestow personal congratulations on a startled reporter. If the printed word is displeasing, the writer may get a personal phone call from the President, who does not hesitate to suggest amendments.

BREAKFAST TIME

His reading completed, Johnson is ready for breakfast, a half meal and a cup of tea. The menu seldom varies. Sometimes Johnson remains in the White House living quarters for an hour or two after breakfast, seeing top officials or calling them on the telephone.

Johnson lives with the telephone, using it to quiz department heads, cajole members of Congress, or surprise casual acquaintances.

On a usual morning, Johnson

This amazing timing failed the next year: Charles was born on Dec. 22. And it happened again the following year when D. J., the sixth child, arrived.

is in his oval office about 9:30 a.m., ready for appointments.

TIMETABLE

With many presidents, the appointments schedule has been semisacred. Visitors have moved in and out according to the timetable.

For Johnson, a schedule is something to exercise the imagination. Some appointments will be delayed, postponed or canceled. Others will be added.

While one man waits 30 minutes to see Johnson another may find a 10-minute appointment stretching into an hour. If Johnson wants to make a point, or engage in a thorough discussion of a topic he judges important, he will take whatever time is necessary.

FIRSTHAND REPORT

The night a presidential mission returned from Panama, Johnson summoned the travelers to a midnight conference that lasted about two hours. He wanted a complete firsthand report.

There is another point, too, about the President's many meetings: he tends to observe the chain of command, dealing with top people in a department or agency.

Both Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara see more of Johnson than they did of Kennedy. Several contacts a day are not uncommon.

TWO RESPONSIBLE

Outside the official family, Johnson maintains an impressive array of contacts: with businessmen, labor leaders, civil rights partisans, local political leaders and the press. Many come for lunch and, to their surprise, are invited to stay for a dip in the White House pool.

PUBLIC OPINION

Johnson is an ardent worker of all groups that influence public opinion. He sees them, phones them, dines them.

In these sessions, the President is relaxed and informal. With great earnestness, he talks about his attitudes, his hopes, his policies. He always tries to treat a visitor as though that man were every bit as important as the President of the United States. In short, Johnson besieges a guest's ego.

With no group, however, is Johnson so much at home as with members of Congress. His old friends from Capitol Hill are companions, confidants and trusted advisers.

Some White House staffers are uncomfortable about the close ties between Johnson and many members of Congress.

TWO RESPONSIBLE

They fear the President may be too responsive to advice from the Hill; that he may be too willing to undercut his own administrators in order to please an influential senator.

But Johnson, despite occasional evidence of impulsiveness, is not inclined to make any important move without a full exploration of the consequences.

Rusk and McNamara, for instance, are delighted with his eagerness to consult them before acting in their areas.

All this consultation takes time, and Johnson may leave his office any time between 7 p.m. and midnight—occasionally later. After dining with his family, or with guests, he may go to his bedroom about 10 or 10:30 p.m. to do some more reading. Or he may summon a medical corpsman from the White House staff to give him a rubdown.

Thus ends the longest day in Washington.

Library of Health Note Tells Evils of Smoking

Supporting the warning implicit in the U. S. Health Service's report on cigarette smoking are these admonitory words, directed mainly to the youth of the land:

● Cigarettes or tobacco in any form hinder growth, injure the nerves and health and may make any boy a slave to it.

Among the poisons and drugs used in the manufacture of cigarettes are: arsenic, creosote, nicotine, opium, saltpeter, tonca flavoring and rum.

● Cigarette smoking makes a boy dull and stupid, impairs his memory and retards his advance in school. It also creates unnatural thirst, which may lead to drinking intoxicants.

Tobacco unfavorably affects all five senses and the heart — while often causing annoyance, discomfort and distress to others.

● Smoking is a useless and expensive habit and costs more than most boys can afford to have their nerves and health impaired.

Smoking is a filthy habit and defiles the body; and anything that defiles the body is a sin against God, who created man in His own image.

If this has a familiar ring, it could well be a testimonial to a memory kept acute by abstention from smoking. For the precepts were copied from the 1922 edition of Library of Health and submitted by Pontiac resident Mrs. JAMES A. CRADDOCK, who wonder why the noxious weeds were not prohibited by the Pure Food Law passed in 1906.

Fate Links Presidents Over 150-Year Span

Today we honor the memory of ABRAHAM LINCOLN. Born 155 years ago, the idealism and strength of spirit that characterized the Great Emancipator carried our young Republic through its first convulsive crisis.

In one of destiny's inexplicable denouements, we have today seen another national leader with comparable human compassion meet tragic death in the same manner.

It is 101 years since the immortal American wrote the Emancipation Proclamation, which hopefully freed the bodies and spirits of countrymen held in bondage.

But the legal liberation then promulgated failed of fruition, and today, a century later, the Nation is torn by the principle of race equality he enunciated.

Let us pause today for a few moments' meditation on the sublimity of LINCOLN's character and ask Him who rules all for the understanding and wisdom so sorely needed in resolving the split in our nation's citizenry.

U. of M. Team Rousing Countrywide Interest

University of Michigan basketball fortunes are sailing high at this midpoint in the season. The U. of M. team has received a rousing response from fans all over the State.

This enthusiasm for our Ann Arbor squad is good. As a result of the Wolverine winning record of 16-2, and a second place national ranking, the name Michigan is appearing on sports pages all across the Country.

The publicity the U. of M. cagers have engendered is especially good for our state citizens because it tends to bring them closer together. Everyone in the State is pulling for our boys to win the Big Ten conference title.

The future for this fine team is bright. With a little luck, let's hope they continue their winning ways to the NCAA regionals and on to the NCAA championship.

Keep up the good work. We're all behind you.

Medicare, Rights LBJ's Big Tests

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON — Two iron tests of President Johnson's ability — compared with President John F. Kennedy's — to get what he wants from Congress will be in what happens to two of his major programs.

These civil rights and medical care bills for the aged — are Johnson's two most controversial programs, as they were Kennedy's. Kennedy never got to first base with either of them.

There had been some preliminary action on civil rights by the time he died. Medical care remained frozen and unbudged in Congress for his entire presidency.

The test of Johnson's leadership with Congress is not in just getting passage of some kind of civil rights and medical care bills. The test is whether these bills, if and when passed, have strength and meaning.

When Johnson took office Congress was already fiddling with Kennedy's civil rights bill and one other major program, a tax cut. Johnson at once pushed them both as his own, exactly as he had inherited them.

By the time Kennedy died last November, he had already lost hope on the medical care bill of 1963. Monday Johnson sent Congress his own message on medical care, asking for its passage this year.

NOT SAME BILL
But — there is one thing to be noted about this Johnson message. He didn't say he was asking for exactly the same bill Kennedy proposed. It seems fair to say he was suggesting a bill somewhat similar to Kennedy's.

The heart of Kennedy's proposal had been hospital insurance based on Social Security payments. Monday Johnson said this "is clearly the best method."

But he didn't spell out any of it in detail, whereas Kennedy did in each of his messages since 1961. For instance: 90 days of hospital care with a maximum of $90 to be paid by the patient.

The Kennedy bill will face greater opposition both in Congress and from the American Medical Association. Presumably, Johnson's bill, too, if he tries to get exactly what Kennedy wanted.

A LOT OF GOOD
If he can get a truly meaningful medical care bill through Congress this year, it should do him good with a lot of voters in the November presidential election. There are 17.5 million people over 65 in this country.

The fact that he did not spell out in detail what he wanted in a medical care bill may be a tip he is willing to compromise on this measure more than Kennedy.

In his less than three months as president, Johnson already has been impressive in handling Congress. He got Congress moving on both the tax cut and civil rights bills.

The Senate approved the tax cut last week. The House had already done so. It will become law shortly when the two houses join out their difference. The House, after only nine days' debate, Monday night passed a stronger civil rights bill than Kennedy had originally asked.

The real test for Johnson on civil rights comes when the Senate tackles it and Southern Democrats try to kill it — or to force a compromise until the bill is gutted — with a filibuster.

After that gets through, in whatever shape, Johnson can begin his fight for medical care.

Just A Suggestion!

David Lawrence Says:

House Stamped on Rights Bill

WASHINGTON — Ninety eight years ago — after the Civil War was over — an intolerant majority in Congress disregarded the Constitution, took away seats from duly elected members of the House and Senate, and sent troops to certain states to compel the legislatures, at bayonet point, to "ratify" the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

A "civil rights act" was subsequently passed, and the Supreme Court later declared it unconstitutional.

Today, nearly a century later, a frightened if not terrorized majority in the House of Representatives — stamped by nationwide demonstrations that have often led to violence — has passed a so-called "civil rights" bill which actually takes away some important civil rights from the citizens.

If the Senate now should pass the same bill as the House did, a federal police force would be authorized to enter any kind of business — not just hotels or restaurants — and investigate whether its hiring or promotion of employees is conducted on the basis of racial or religious "discrimination."

Although the measure passed the House by a vote of 290 to 130, Representative Louis C. Wyman (R-N.H.) said that, if a secret ballot were taken in the House, the legislation wouldn't get 50 votes.

Here are some extracts from a significant speech he delivered this week to the House of Representatives:

"This legislation makes a mockery of the Constitution. To yield to pressure for an unconstitutional law because of sympathy for social injustice is to say that the end justifies the means."

COMPELLED TO OPPOSE
"I came here to uphold the Constitution, not to destroy it. To uphold it I am compelled to vote against this bill."

"There are still many private rights in America that under our Constitution are beyond the power of government to regulate, and one of these is the right to pick and choose one's associates, one's friends and one's customers in private business."

"The passage of unconstitutional legislation in the face of political pressure, contrary to oath to support the Constitution, on the basis that the end justifies the means, is a perversion of our function as responsible legislators."

"A vote here for this bill is a vote against the proper interests and reserved rights of the American people, not a vote for them."

"Make no mistake about one thing — that we are dealing with an iceberg here. Nine-tenths of public opinion on this legislation has never been shown on the surface."

"When people realize what an invasion of their private rights is here involved — and they will come to realize it as time goes by should this ever become law — we can rest assured that as surely as there will be an 89th Congress a vote in favor of this bill will come back to haunt those who did so."

"If we do not stand up and be counted in this chamber for what we know is legally required by the Constitution of the United States of America, then what are we preserving?"

"Of course not."

Need to Clear a Route to NY's Kennedy Airport

She'll be right, and very soon, unless something is done to clear a path from the heart of the nation's top city to its top airframe. Beginning in April, the already clogged approaches to Kennedy Field will be choked with the vanguard of the 70,000,000 persons expected to visit the New York World's Fair.

Full speed ahead?'"

"Of course not."

The Hartford Courant

Sen. Ribicoff has been prominently mentioned on informal poll lists of potential running mates for President Johnson. Certainly his experience as congressman, governor, cabinet member, and senator qualifies him for the Vice Presidency in a way few Vice Presidents have been qualified. But Mr. Ribicoff denies any ambition to be Vice President. At this moment few would downgrade the importance of the Vice Presidency. Right now nobody doubts the need of a strong and able man in the Vice Presidency.

One aspect of Mr. Ribicoff's statement should not pass unnoticed, because it betokens a fresh note in American politics. In declining to be an active candidate Mr. Ribicoff added, "And it's not because of my religion." There are doubtless some intellectual wastelands where prejudice against Jews in politics still exists. But for the most part the American people seem to be less excited than before over this element. Except for a few shrill voices on the lunatic fringe there has not been a word of dissent against Barry Goldwater's candidacy on the ground that his father was Jewish.

If this element has at last disappeared from our political contests it may be a sign of growing maturity of the American people. Certainly one of the significant aspects of the last campaign was the way in which it exercised fear of a Presidential candidate because he was a Catholic.

Sen. Ribicoff has been prominently mentioned on informal poll lists of potential running mates for President Johnson. Certainly his experience as congressman, governor, cabinet member, and senator qualifies him for the Vice Presidency in a way few Vice Presidents have been qualified. But Mr. Ribicoff denies any ambition to be Vice President. At this moment few would downgrade the importance of the Vice Presidency. Right now nobody doubts the need of a strong and able man in the Vice Presidency.

One aspect of Mr. Ribicoff's statement should not pass unnoticed, because it betokens a fresh note in American politics. In declining to be an active candidate Mr. Ribicoff added, "And it's not because of my religion." There are doubtless some intellectual wastelands where prejudice against Jews in politics still exists. But for the most part the American people seem to be less excited than before over this element. Except for a few shrill voices on the lunatic fringe there has not been a word of dissent against Barry Goldwater's candidacy on the ground that his father was Jewish.

If this element has at last disappeared from our political contests it may be a sign of growing maturity of the American people. Certainly one of the significant aspects of the last campaign was the way in which it exercised fear of a Presidential candidate because he was a Catholic.

'Safe' Smoking Suggested as Answer to Cigarette Problem

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK — A new kind of smokers' clinic—for people who enjoy and want to continue cigarettes—was suggested today by a chest specialist. The clinics would teach how to smoke safely, without inhaling, said Dr. Alvan L. Barach of New York City.

He said one method is to take a puff of smoke into your mouth. Close your lips firmly. Then inhale air deeply through the nose. Then exhale — of course.

Dr. Barach told the New York State Medical Society, "There is no scientific evidence that noninhaling smoking causes cancer of the lung" and other diseases.

NO INDICTMENT

"As physicians, we must be careful not to indict the non-inhaler just because excessive inhaling smoking is harmful, nor to support a war against enjoyment unless harm can be demonstrated in each individual case," he said.

Dr. Barach commented on a speech presented by Dr. Richard H. Overholt of Boston on "The Physician's Obligation to the Public Regarding Cigarette Smoking."

Dr. Overholt, of Tufts University and the Overholt Clinic, in his text declared the medical profession must be the leader in dissuading people from smoking because "the government cannot and will not be the emancipator."

Dr. Overholt said doctors should "convincingly advise relatives, friends and patients of the immediate and long-term ill effects of smoking" while avoiding "any Carrie Nation type of prohibition."

Dr. Overholt declared the

"devastation" from smoking "is far greater than smallpox or the plague ever was."

GREAT DEVASTATION

Dr. Barach, emeritus professor of medicine at Columbia's College of Physicians and Surgeons, said, "The motivation of the cigarette abstentionists may be questioned if there are clinics devoted only to the abolition of smoking, and not to safer methods of smoking, especially noninhaling.

"The evidence is now adequate to substantiate beyond a doubt that it is more healthful to smoke without smoke entering the lungs. I pose the question: Why is this not emphasized, why is noninhaling smoking not emphasized as a public health measure?"

Smoking without inhaling does not produce cough, nor increase carbon monoxide in the blood, nor after lung function, Dr. Barach said. And 40 per cent of patients "are successful" in switching over to this nonirritating method of smoking."

Governor Says So

'Frog Rains' in Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Fifth-grader Terry White, a former Floridian, stirred up skepticism when he told his classmates at Follansbee, W. Va., that it sometimes rains frogs in Florida.

Today he had powerful support for his story. Florida's governor, Farris Bryant, agreed that sometimes it not only rains frogs but also tiny fish.

Terry wrote the governor "my room and teacher doesn't believe my story" about seeing it rain green frogs when he was 5.

Bryant explained to Terry that the frogs were sometimes swept up into clouds by high winds, and fell back to earth later with the rain.

"I hope that your teacher will accept this verification of your story," Bryant said.

Cheal Family Rates High at District Music Festival

Pontiac junior and senior high school students garnered "superior" and "excellent" ratings Saturday in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association District 4 Festival.

A unique feature of local participation in the day-long festival, held at Kimball High School, Royal Oak, was the showing of the Cheal family.

These four youngsters, Lee, Dale, Billy and Diane Cheal, brought back six top ratings in the music competition.

BROTHER BILLY

Brother Billy, fifth grader at the same school, earned the same rating for a trombone solo. He also joined Dale Cheal in winning a first rating for a baritone horn solo.

Dale also rated "superior" in his trombone solo.

Diane Cheal added to the family winnings in two categories. The Washington Junior High eighth grader earned a first place nod for her B-flat clarinet solo.

In addition, she joined Nancy Wirth, Jack Page and Lee Belenack in a mixed clarinet quartet that received the top rating. Participants at the festival were given ratings from one to five: 1-superior, 2-excellent, 3-average good performance, 4-below average and 5-very poor.

Bill Anderson, of Pontiac Central High School, received a top rating for his clarinet solo. He and Jane Anderson earned a "superior" rating.

Pontiac Central's Donna Nelson and Jane Post were awarded a "superior" rating for their clarinet duet. Miss Nelson was also a member of a B-flat clarinet quartet receiving a "superior" rating.

Other members were Debbie Smith, Karen Kirchmeyer and Annette Rolo. Miss Rolo received a "superior" rating for a clarinet solo.

Lee, Dale and Ed Cheal, of Central, received a "superior" rating for a trumpet duet. Stephanie Barrett and Diane Crawford received a "superior" rating for an oboe duet.

A violin duet by Cindy Gosas and Cary Pappas earned a "superior" rating. Christine Emerson, Charlotte Althouse, and Nancy Wu formed a string quartet that received a "superior" rating.

Miss Althouse was awarded a "superior" rating for a violin solo.

His Appeal Got Action

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Leonard J. Trujillo went to court yesterday to ask that his second and forged conviction be "set aside in the interest of justice."

Trujillo, 21, told Judge Edward J. Keating that a sentence of two to six years was imposed by the judge despite lack of certain evidence. Keating reviewed the case.

"You want justice done," he told Trujillo, "so I'm going to accommodate you." He made the sentence three to eight years.

The government has warned physicians of certain harmful side effects when cortisone products are applied directly to the eyes under some conditions.

For 6-County Area

Confab Set on Rapid Transit

Representatives of six counties will gather in Detroit Feb. 27 to discuss a proposed $3-million study of rapid transit needs in the metropolitan area.

The meeting has been called by the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency.

The agency is concerned whether the proposed study has the backing of each county that might be involved.

The counties are Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Monroe, St. Clair and Washtenaw, which together comprise the Detroit metropolitan area.

FUTURE IMPROVEMENT
Delos Hamlin, chairman of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors, said the study doubtlessly is needed to provide for the future movement of people and goods in the fast-growing six-county area.

But the study should take into consideration the needs of the entire area and not merely rapid transit as might serve Detroit, he said.

Such a study would have to be approved by the boards of each county concerned, he said.

Based on land use, the study might show rapid transit is needed across the entire area and not just into the central city, Hamlin added.

STUDY PROPOSED
The study was proposed by the Detroit Metropolitan Area Regional Planning Commission.

The commission is seeking $3 million in a federal grant to finance the study under the Urban Planning Assistance Program.

The program is administered by the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

An outline defining the course of study will cost $36,000 alone, according to the regional planning commission. This proposed

County to Air Costs of Juvenile Units

How Oakland County can raise $2 million for more juvenile care facilities by 1968 will be discussed Friday by a committee of county supervisors.

According to the Juvenile Affairs Committee the money will be needed to develop phase two of the Children's Village.

By 1968 the village is expected to provide for 274 youngsters.

Initial construction on the village site at the County Service Center is scheduled to begin within a month.

FIRST PHASE

This first phase, costing $646,000, including two rehabilitation cottages (half-way houses) and a special services unit, is scheduled for completion by 1965.

The money for phase one already is provided for in this year's county budget and through a federal grant for half the amount.

Phase two calls for construction of a detention and intake unit, two shelter care units, four more rehabilitation cottages, a school, administration building, health and nursery unit and a kitchen by 1968.

Two possible avenues of financing phase two have been mentioned informally by committee members.

Either county voters would be asked to approve a special tax levy, or a building authority would be established to provide funds through the sale of county revenue bonds.

The bonds could be paid off over 20 to 30 years by the county but the cost of financing would nearly double through interest charges.

There is another possible way to finance phase two. This would be in the same manner phase one is being paid for — from the annual county budget and matching state or federal funds.

The availability of matching funds is questionable, however, and county officials claim the budget no longer can withstand new capital improvement appropriations of sufficient size.

APPROVED SPENDING

At the time the county supervisors' ways and means committee approved spending $322,000 for phase one, the committee chairman, David Levinson, advised the juvenile affairs group to look for other methods of future financing.

He suggested asking the voters to approve a special tax levy for building purposes beyond the 15-mill levy for county, schools and townships.

The county's chief administrator, Daniel T. Murphy, chairman of the County Board of Auditors, said the county needs to formulate a general program for all future county building needs, and then seek a way to finance it.

The needs, he said, include those at the Children's Village, a new wing on the courthouse, a South Oakland Health Center and possibly more medical care facilities for welfare patients, mostly the aged.

A third construction phase at the Children's Village calls for another detention and intake unit, special services unit and another rehabilitation cottage by 1968, when the number of children to be cared for is expected to increase to 321. Cost estimates for this phase haven't been determined yet.

LBJ Can Outdiplomat Even the Diplomatic Corps

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson proved he can out-dance the best of Washington's diplomatic corps.

He hardly missed a dance in close to two hours and was still twirling in the East Ballroom when the last of his ambassadorial guests had left a gala White House reception Tuesday night.

A Marine Corps jazz combo, playing everything from cha-cha-cha and samba to Dixieland kept the tunes short so the President could get around. Johnson seemed as indefatigable as his 19-year-old daughter, Lynda Bird.

DANCED WITH OTHERS

He danced with the wives of many ambassadors — including the wife of Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

"I guess I danced with someone from every continent," said the President.

His favorite partners seemed to be women reporters assigned to cover the 7 to 9 p.m. White House party for some 400 diplomats and their wives. At least a dozen of the reporters were summoned by the President for a turn on the dance floor.

Polled afterwards about the President's dancing ability, they rated him from "not bad" to "very good."

Johnson confided that he'd been up until 2:30 a.m. the night before, but it didn't deter him. Another late night seemed to await him.

The President's enthusiasm for dancing kept the party going

a half hour beyond schedule on the wintry Washington night. He even ordered the bachelor military aides to join in.

Mrs. Johnson, who had been in bed for two days with a virus flu attack, gamely stood in the Blue Room receiving line with the President and Lynda to greet all the guests, including four new ambassadors from Peru, Sweden, Libya and the Dominican Republic, who presented their credentials as they went through.

Then, she and the President started the dancing. Mrs. Johnson wore two white orchids on her two-piece white silk dress.

He Sweeps Over Topics From Bellyachers to Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — For 25 minutes and 3,500 chosen words, President Johnson held forth on such a sweep of subjects as bellyachers and bathrooms, peace and poverty.

Since he was talking to field officers of the Internal Revenue Service, he also mentioned taxpayers and tax collectors. But that was just a starting point for a ramble through domestic and foreign fields.

Along the way there were cracks at critics of his handling of foreign policy, and assurances that "we are a much beloved people throughout the world" that we are respected and appreciated "regardless of what some of the bellyachers say."

The President held forth in the East Room of the White House Tuesday on home, election day, wife, mother, the Golden Rule (three times), national defense, the budget, waste, poverty, civil rights, turning out lights, public service and his regard for his Treasury secretary.

OTHER TOPICS

Also: Cuba, Laos, Vienna, Soviet Premier Khrushchev, Red China, Panama, the U.S. plane shot down over East Germany, Viet Nam, changes in 50 of the world's 113 governments, Dwight D. Eisenhower, foreign aid, disarmament.

And a conclusion that: "We can't be satisfied with yesterday. Tomorrow is going to be a better world for all of our people."

The President started out using notes typed on cards, ran out of those, then kept going in chatty, off-hand fashion.

Some things he said: "Taxpayers are people." Taxes must be collected efficiently, courteously and honestly.

EACH MAN KING

"Every man is king in the ballot box."

"It took us 40 days and nights to pare and prune" the budget. "My mother always had some pin money hid under the pillow."

"Put yourselves in the place of the other fellow in considering poverty — and discrimination."

"One of the great ladies that I have known is chief of staff of our house. She has been with us 20 years, she is a college graduate, but when she comes from Texas to Washington she never knows where she can get a cup of coffee. She never knows when she can go to a bathroom."

LIGHT BILL

The White House light bill is down from $5,000 to $3,000 a month. "You go back home and see how much electricity you can save in the building in which you work."

"We have problems in the world" but "I have seen times when the skies were grayer."

"We cannot expect to mash a button and have our wishes carried out all over this globe."

"Even in our own country we do not see everything alike. If we did, we would all want the same wife — and that would be a problem, wouldn't it?"

Murder Is Charged in Strangling

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — Albert P. Cochran, former Kalamazoo resident whose estranged wife and three children were found slain Monday night, was charged with murder Tuesday.

Police reported Cochran said in a statement he strangled his wife, Patricia, 19, in a rage after he discovered that she had stabbed to death their three children, Christine, 3, Christopher, 2, and Craig, 10 months.

The mother and children were found in the bathroom of their home. A bloody kitchen knife lay nearby.

COULDN'T TALK

Cochran, 25, made his statement to an executive of the Tops Discount Store, where he is employed, after police decided he was too distraught to talk to them.

Police said Cochran stated he went to the house Sunday night to talk with his wife about their seven-week separation. After an argument, he said, he fell asleep in the living room.

His statement related he was awakened later when his wife came into the room and said, "You'll never see Christine again." He said he went into the bathroom, found the bodies of the three children in the bathtub, and killed his wife.

New Hampshire's Lottery Has Wide Popular Support

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The New Hampshireman who ventures out of state these days isn't likely to feel like a rube anymore.

Wherever he goes, the New Hampshireman is certain to run into city slickers who want to know how to buy tickets in the New Hampshire Sweepstakes.

When outlanders come to New Hampshire, they're likely to give with a shy nudge and say: "Okay, friend, so where's all the action?"

This is what comes of living in the nation's only state with a state-sponsored, state-promoted lottery. It's a distinction that not everyone bears cheerfully, but even critics agree that New Hampshire's experiment in "voluntary taxation" has wide popular support.

The first real test of sentiment will come in the March 10 presidential primary election, when citizens will decide by local option whether they want sweepstakes tickets sold in their towns.

The real day of destiny will be next Sept. 12, when a field of thoroughbreds will bolt from the starting gates at Rockingham Park for the first running of the Granite State Sweepstakes.

If all goes as planned, the person holding a ticket on the winning horse will win up to $100,000.

Depending on the number of tickets sold, hundreds of smaller prizes will go to second- and third-place winners, and to holders of tickets on any horse nominated to enter the race from a large field of candidates.

What's in it for New Hampshire?

Even the skeptics—and there are many—are hopeful that the sweeps will live up to its billing as an effective way of raising an estimated $4 million from two races a year.

The money will be distributed on a grant-per-pupil basis to New Hampshire school districts. If it does amount to $4 million, it will roughly double the state's aid to education program, one of the most meager in the nation.

"People are ready for an honest, efficient sweepstakes," says Edward J. Powers, the state's $20,000-a-year sweepstakes director.

Powers, 50, took the sweepstakes job after 22 years with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

His feelings on the sweepstakes are shared by Democratic Gov. John W. King, who signed the sweeps into law last April after passage by a Republican-controlled legislature. King has vigorously promoted it ever since—as a venture designed to relieve the burdens of taxation and to lure thousands of new visitors to New Hampshire every year.

King and Powers, both lawyers, are convinced that a rigidly regulated sweepstakes, operated in the public interest, will not run afoul of federal law, which forbids the use of the mails for transmitting lottery tickets or information.

To keep New Hampshire's sweepstakes within the law, and to keep it from the hordes of "snakeeaters, bums and thieves," Powers has created an elaborate system of controls.

Here are the basic elements: Prize winners will not be officially notified through the mails but will simply receive a check or money order, with no explanation. It may also come in the form of a routine transfer of bank funds.

Tickets, costing $3 apiece, will be sold only in New Hampshire at three race tracks or in state-operated liquor stores in those communities that approve of the ticket sales in the local option balloting. There are liquor stores in 49 communities.

A name and address will be required for each purchase of tickets. The customer won't actually receive a ticket. He'll get a nontransferable receipt that will be dispensed by machines with little windows in them so the customer can write his name and address.

The actual tickets, printed on special paper to guard against counterfeiting, will be retained by the machine until collected by a Manchester bank, which will serve as a clearing house and keep a running account of all tickets sold and the money received.

No more than 10 tickets may be purchased at any one time, but volume purchases may be made through special arrangements.

A newly formed committee of 100, claims the sweepstakes is an irresponsible way for the state to make money.

Organized by Richard Plummer, editor of the University of New Hampshire alumni magazine, and John Ballentine, publisher of the weekly Somersworth Free Press, the committee is composed of a number of prominent business and professional people.

"We're against the lottery because the state, for the first time, is actively promoting a gambling operation," says Plummer. "We're actually telling the little guy to go out and bet $3 of his hard-earned money, in the infinitesimal chance that he will win a prize."

GOT THE WORD, BUT LATE — All schools were closed in Philadelphia yesterday because of snow. But this little boy didn't get the word and showed up anyway. He could only sit on the school steps until custodian George Roth noticed him and sent him home. He took off so fast Roth didn't get his name.

Spirit and Memory of Great Emancipator Continues to Live

By ROBERT COCHINAR
Abraham Lincoln still lives.

Almost a century after his death, his memory is familiar and comfortable as the penny which bears his likeness.

Lincoln is a car, a school, a monument, a city, a bank. His biographers are legion. Idealists fill our libraries. Politicians routinely quote him in speeches.

Almost every schoolchild, at one time or another, memorizes the Gettysburg Address.

BROTHERHOOD
Abraham Lincoln has counseled us for 100 years, yet we have too seldom listened. He has shown us the road to brotherhood, yet we have too often set our faces against it.

For too many of us, Lincoln has been an abstraction, a school holiday, a head carved in the rocks of the Dakotas.

But last November all America touched Lincoln and we really knew him for perhaps the first time. Abraham Lincoln can no longer be merely a figure in history.

For the fourth time in a century, our country's faith in reason and the basic humanity of man was cruelly shaken by the bullet which took the life of a president.

HIS LEGACY

We were bewildered, saddened, angered. Later, numbly, we thought back to Lincoln and to the legacy that lives in his words.

With John Kennedy's assassination, those words were more clearly understood. Abraham Lincoln's eloquent wisdom has been carefully and reverently passed to us. It still makes our minds soar and our heartbeats quicken, but unless it makes our hands move, it is empty sound upon the air.

Can we not help but hope that the sobering events of the past year have given Lincoln's words a new vigor?

TOUCHED BY HIM

We have touched Lincoln and, in turn, have been touched by him. Remembering this, perhaps we can make his memory more meaningful, now, and in the future, by sharing and working toward his cherished hope that "by the best cultivation of the physical world beneath and around us, and by the best intellectual and moral world within us, we shall secure an individual, social and political prosperity and happiness whose courage shall be onward and upward and which, while the earth endures, shall not pass away."

Key Witness Killed in Fire

Await Autopsy in Housewife Sex Case

MINEOLA, N. Y. (UPI) — Nassau County police today awaited an autopsy report in the fiery death of a key witness in a suburban housewife sex ring probe.

Suicide was definitely ruled out in the death of Edmund M. Nugent, 49, whose charred body was found in his burning automobile yesterday.

Nugent, a part owner of the Jericho Lounge in Jericho, was described by Nassau County Dist. Atty. William Cahn as a "very important figure" in the investigation of an alleged $200,000 a year call-girl operation. Cahn, who ruled out suicide as cause of death, said:

"We do not know whether it was accidental or homicidal, but we do know that he was alive and breathing when the fire broke out."

AWAIT REPORTS

Officials awaited pathological reports before rendering an official verdict of the mysterious death which occurred at a crucial point in the suburban sex investigation.

Cahn said Nugent was a speculative defendant in the vice scandal. The district attorney said Nugent had signed a two-page statement admitting he had "acted as a steer" for one of the 14 women now free on bail as a material witness in the love-for-sale operation.

Involved in the alleged prostitution ring are at least five housewives who, police claim, added to the family income by entertaining customers in their homes and local motels.

Some of the husbands, police said, were aware of their wife's extramarital occupation, and at times sat home with the children while their women plied their part-time trade.

PEAK OF SEASON

Officials said the peak season for the illicit wage-earning came during the harness racing season at Roosevelt Raceway.

Nugent, a former bartender at the Copacabana nightclub in New York City, lived with his wife and four children. He was found in his smoldering sedan by Frank Palanski, who was out walking his dog.

Cahn also revealed the investigation into vice activities has spread to three other states and "it may well be that the FBI will eventually have to be informed."

LBJ Idea Man Is Getting 500 Letters a Day

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—President Johnson's new idea man is getting about 500 letters a day in response to his request for ideas.

Prof. Eric Frederick Goldman of Princeton University was appointed by Johnson last week to keep new ideas flowing into the White House. The professor said he has been opening letters ever since.

BREAKDOWN

In an interview Tuesday, Goldman said about 20 per cent offer impractical suggestions; 25 per cent are serious suggestions by experts in various fields; 50 per cent are good proposals from educated citizens who are not expert in the field about which they write, and the remaining 5 per cent contain personal appeals for money.

EARLY LIFE — Saw and gill mill (left) was built by James Rutledge, father of Ann, in 1829. Young Abe Lincoln stranded his flatboat here. He stayed in New Salem six years. Statue (right) by Arvad Fairbanks, is at entrance of New Salem State Park in Illinois.

THE eat IN THE meat

You Can See It...You Can Taste It!

The EAT in the MEAT that makes "Super-Right" your best buy shows up in a way you can see. You see it in the grain-fed beef steaks and hearty rib roasts that have the wasteful fat and bone trimmed away. You see it in the bright color of the freshly ground beef that's not loaded with "shrink-away" fat. You'll see it where it counts — in the meat you serve your family — in your budget, too!

The EAT in the MEAT that A&P promises, starts long before you see it, however. It begins with A&P selections from the nation's top packers. They know "Super-Right's" strict quality standards for beef, pork, lamb, veal and poultry. And our buyers know that if every pound can't be guaranteed — it's not "Super-Right" quality.

The EAT in the MEAT comes only from constant care. That's why A&P maintains its own staff of experts — and under their watchful eye passes every pound of meat destined for your family. This care of "Super-Right" meat continues right up to the minute your purchase is made. You can count on "the eat in Super-Right meat" — and on A&P's money saving prices — because we care about YOU.

The EAT in the MEAT is guaranteed at A&P. The meat we sell must satisfy your family completely or your money will be refunded. All persons in your A&P meat department know this — and they are as determined as we to offer the best meat selection in town.

COME SEE...PROVE TO YOURSELF THAT "SUPER-RIGHT" GIVES YOU THE EAT IN THE MEAT

Birmingham Man Is Appointed Manager

A. J. Hofweber of Birmingham was named plant manager, and three other area men have been given top posts in General Motors Termostats Division's new plant in Cleveland.

They are James J. Shults, 2285 Bedford, Bloomfield Township, purchasing agent; George M. Bunn, 3645 Darcy, Bloomfield Township, administrator of material and production control; and Raymond L. Podger, 6460 Snowapple, Clarkson, chief of plant protection.

Hofweber, recently manufacturing manager of the Termostats-Plant, joined the division in 1937 as a co-op student from University of Detroit.

He is active in a number of Flint organizations, including the Executives Club of which he is president, and professional societies.

DIVISIONAL BUYER

Shults began his career with GM in New York, where he advanced from clerk to purchasing department posts, finally becoming divisional buyer at the Warren plant.

Bunn, a staff assistant in production control, started with GM in 1957. Podger worked his way up plant protection ranks at Flint and Warren, where he most recently was a lieutenant.

The Cleveland plant is located in the suburb of Brooklyn. Once operated as part of the Euclid Division, it will now produce automotive hardware and other parts.

The second law passed by the first Congress of the United States on July 4, 1789, was "an act on laying a duty on goods, fares and merchandise imported into the United States." The fifth act of that Congress on July 31, 1790, set up machinery for collecting the duty, and in effect, established the Customs Service.

Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt Says:

Piercing Headache Strikes During Night

Q. My doctor says I have histamine cephalalgia. What is that?

A. This is a special type of headache that usually occurs at night and awakens the victim. It is usually located in the region of one eye and is very severe, but usually subsides in less than an hour.

As it subsides, there may be BRANDSTADT weeping from the affected eye and profuse sweating. The attacks may occur every night for several weeks, then disappear for an indefinite period and return later.

Catergor (also prescribed for migraine headaches) or the inhalation of pure oxygen will give relief.

Because the victim apparently has so much histamine in his system, desensitization to his histamine has been tried with good results, but this is not an easy procedure.

A drug called betahistine hydrochloride has been developed and shows great promise, but it's not yet commercially available.

Q. I have a back ailment known as fibrositis.

Could a fall 10 years ago have caused this ailment? My doctor has me taking a steroid drug, prednisone, that gives me a lot of relief.

A. The fall of the Tower of Babel is said to have resulted in a confusion of tongues. The confusion has persisted down to our own times.

"Fibrositis" is a term that was originally used to label rheumatic pains that were not due to an actual involvement of the joints (arthritis).

It is a convenient term and has a pleasant ring to it, but most doctors today prefer to pinpoint the cause of the pain as an involvement of the muscles (myositis), tendons (ten-ditis), or bursal sac (bursitis).

The steroid hormones, such as cortisone and prednisone, will usually give relief.

REDUCE DOSE

Having received relief, you should reduce the dose of this drug as quickly as possible to prevent the undesirable effects of prolonged treatment.

Exposure to cold, damp air or a sprain that occurred just before the onset is the most likely cause, and not the fall you incurred 10 years ago.

Q. I am 38. My doctor put me in the hospital for pericarditis. Another doctor says I had myocarditis. What is the difference?

A. Pericarditis is an inflammation of the pericardium — the membranous sac that surrounds the heart.

It may be due to one of several infectious diseases, or it may follow a coronary heart attack, rheumatic heart disease or a variety of other causes.

Myocarditis is an inflammation of the heart muscle itself. This, too, may be due to these causes. It is not unusual for a person to have both conditions.

KENNEDY HALF DOLLARS—This is the front and reverse sides of the new half dollar honoring the late President John F. Kennedy. The coin bears a profile of Kennedy on its face while the presidential coat of arms forms the motif for the back. Release to the public is set for this spring.

JFK Coins Are Struck at 2 Mints

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The first new half dollars bearing the likeness of the late President John F. Kennedy were struck Tuesday at simultaneous ceremonies at the Philadelphia and Denver mints.

At a telephone signal given in Philadelphia four new silver coins were stamped out at each mint.

Eva Adams, director of the mint who came here from Washington for the ceremony, said the eight coins will be given to President Johnson, who will pass them on to Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her children, Caroline and John.

The face of the coin bears a portrait of President Kennedy, facing left. On the reverse is the presidential coat of arms and an eagle holding an olive branch.

When 26 million of them are made, they will be distributed to banks throughout the country and released to the public in late March or April.

Classes Set at Clarkston

Beginning next week the Clarkston Community School system will offer a 10-week adult physical education course to its area residents.

The course will begin at 7:30 p.m. and run two hours each Monday and Tuesday at the high school gym. Controlled physical conditioning is planned.

Misses Janet Giebert and Judith Olson will meet with the women each Monday; while the men will be supervised by Terry Thomas and Bill Mackson on Tuesday nights.

The registration fee is $4. Further information is available from Don Mauti at 625-5811.

Unsafe Buses May Stop Aid

State Safety Group to Seek Legislation

LANSING (AP) — Unsafe bus operation could cause school districts to lose their state aid for pupil transportation under legislation sought by the State Safety Commission.

The commission Tuesday authorized drafting such a measure and will seek passage during the current legislative session.

The amendment to state law also would give the superintendent of public instruction power to prescribe safety regulations for school buses, both public and nonpublic; set standards for hiring and training drivers and regulate the use of the buses.

Violation of any of the safety measures could cause the school district to lose its state aid for school bus operation or purchase during the same fiscal year. School employers violating safety regulations could be found guilty of a misdemeanor and fined or jailed for a month.

STRONGER LAW

A stronger state law on school bus operation was sought because of a recent bus tragedy on U.S. 25 near Port Huron. Four youngsters died when the stalled bus caught on fire after being hit by a car.

Commission members were told the proposed change probably could be tacked on a bill to be proposed by Sen. Frank Beadle, R-St. Clair, also prompted by the fatal accident on Jan. 31. Beadle plans to seek legislation requiring safer gasoline tanks for buses to prevent fires following such crashes.

Secretary of State James Hare, safety commission chairman, said the proposed laws would solve only part of the problem. Some assurance of proper inspection also is needed, Hare said.

"This tragedy is one of the best arguments for compulsory motor vehicle inspection," he said.

About 40 per cent of the railroads of the U.S. have terminals in Chicago.

Valentine's Day Slaughter Still Chicago's Worst

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following story was written by Earl Aykroid of the Chicago AP staff, one of the first reporters on the scene of the St. Valentine's Day massacre 35 years ago.

By EARL AYKROID

CHICAGO (P)—It has been nearly 35 years since the St. Valentine's Day massacre but the ghastly Prohibition Era killing of seven men by rival gangsters remains today Chicago's most gory crime.

Nothing ever done by the mysterious syndicate that succeeded the late gang lord Al Capone, the Mafia, or the recent Cosa Nostra could match the cold-blooded savagery of the men who eliminated violently all their rivals in one bold stroke.

The Feb. 14, 1929, massacre climaxed a 10-year battle for control of profits from illicit beer and whiskey.

The scene, a two-story red brick structure at 2122 N. Clark St., now a storage company in the shadow of Chicago's Gold Coast, 35 years later stands unchanged since the day seven members of George (Bugs) Moran's gang were lined up against a wall in the building a machine-gunned.

CAPONE BLAMED

Al Capone and his gang were blamed but the mass killers were never caught. The massacre left Capone in undisputed control of the bootleg field. But the atrocity aroused the city. It brought a cleanup that eventually quieted the gang wars and sent Capone to the penitentiary.

On St. Valentine's Day in 1929—a day traditionally reserved for lovers—the seven Moran gangsters were assembling in their headquarters to wait for Moran.

Across the street, it was later established, three rival gangsters had watched from a rooming house window as the Moran gangsters arrived.

Six already were inside when the seventh, Al Weinshank, who bore a close resemblance to Moran, entered. Police later theorized the lookouts mistook him for Moran and signaled the executioners.

VICTIMS

In addition to Weinshank, those inside were Peter and Frank Gusenberg, brothers, two of Moran's musclemen; Johnny May, ex-convict and mechanic who looked after the gang's truck fleet; James Clark, Moran's brother-in-law; Adam Hyer, another muscleman and Dr. Reinhart Schwimmer, an optometrist, who for some unexplained reason liked to associate with gangsters.

Moran, the prime target, arrived after the killers had done their work. Seeing police, he drove off and went into hiding. Soon after Weinshank entered, an automobile resembling a police car pulled up. Four or five men, two in police uniforms, got out.

The uniformed men, displaying pistols, led the way in. The seven men looked up in mild surprise. Police raids were nothing new and usually little cost of them. The seven meekly followed orders to line up against the wall.

As they faced the wall, their visitors unlimbered machine guns. Too late the victims realized they had fallen into a trap.

As one of the Gusenbergs reached for a pistol, the machine guns began spitting bullets.

Soon it was all over. The seven Moran gangsters lay sprawled in a bloody mass. The killers calmly filed out, and the mass murderer Moran withdrew away.

Frank Gusenberg was the only victim alive when police came. A policeman asked who shot him.

"NOBODY," SHOT HIM

"Nobody," snarled the gangster. He died 45 minutes later. The massacre left Moran without a gang. He turned to robbery, burglary and confidence games and died, at 64, Feb. 25, 1957, in Leavenworth Prison from lung cancer.

The mass slaying was instrumental in bringing the federal government into the Chicago gang picture. A number of gangsters, including Capone, were indicted for income tax evasion and sent to prison.

Fire Razes 2 Buildings at College

COLUMBIA, S.C. (P)—Fire burned down the administration building and an adjoining dormitory at Columbia College early today, destroying most of the 110-year-old college's records.

College officials and firemen evacuated 650 girls living on the campus soon after the fire was discovered in Main Building, which housed the college's administrative and business offices and some classrooms.

There were no reports of injuries.

A college spokesman said the fire was a "heart-breaking calamity."

The fire apparently began in Main Building, quickly spreading into East Dormitory, a wing-like structure attached to the administrative unit. Firemen prevented the flames from spreading to a west wing which also served as a dormitory.

METHODIST SCHOOL
The Methodist-supported college for girls is in North Columbia, atop a hill overlooking much of the city. Flames shooting into the sky from the fire lit up a large area of the city.

Main Building was built about 1910, replacing a former administration building which was destroyed by fire in 1908.

All classes have been suspended until next Monday, the spokesman said.

Schoolmen Have Mixed Views on Proposed State Aid Hike

By L. GARY THORNE

Proposed increases in state support of schools receive a mixed reaction from local schoolmen.

The response, good or bad, can almost be traced to added dollars a district might receive.

Gov. George Romney has requested a hike in the state aid formula.

Generally, if granted by the legislature, this hike would raise the per-pupil state aid to $204 an increase of about $10.

VARIED VIEWS

The expected rejoicing over this additional financial support is not widespread.

Educators, particularly those from wealthier districts like Pontiac, regard the proposed hike as "modest" or "slight."

Why the subdued cheers? Ten dollars a head multiplied by approximately 22,000 heads is no small figure. Or is it?

School Supt. Dana P. Whitmer introduces a second factor to the mathematics of school finances. The new factor trims Pontiac's share of the proposed $10-per-pupil increase to about $3.75.

MILLAGE FACTOR

Whitmer said that Romney's proposal includes increasing the deductible millage factor from 7-8 to 4%.

Local schools now receive $159.49 per pupil, while next year, if the proposed hike were approved, they would receive $163.24 per pupil.

The superintendent said the deductible device is used to give poorer school districts a greater share under the state aid formula.

Thus, Pontiac school district's net increase from the proposed hike is only $3.75 per pupil or $83,510.

This is not the windfall educators seek. Whitmer said the added state aid would not noticeably effect an expected millage vote this year.

The deductible millage factor was conceived to attempt to equalize state support for schools between rich and poor districts, meaning the relationship between enrollments and property valuations.

Applying the deductible factor, a district with a large enrollment and relatively little property valuation would receive greater state monies than a district with both large enrollment and property valuation.

On this basis, the proposed $10 hike in state aid means only $3.75 per pupil to Pontiac schools, while to a poorer (low valuation) district may get the entire $10 per pupil.

Waterford Township Schools will not almost double Pontiac's expected per-pupil increase.

James DenHerd, assistant superintendent for business affairs, estimates a jump of $7.19 per pupil of slightly over $100,000 in total.

Waterford school officials said the new per-pupil allowance would total $202.13. The present state aid per-pupil figure is $194.94 for the township district.

LESS MONEY

Neighboring Bloomfield Hills Schools will see even less state money than Pontiac. Supt. Eugene L. Johnston expects to gain about $4,000-$5,000.

Johnston said this would amount to about $1 per pupil. Bloomfield schools have a high property valuation in comparison with some other Oakland County school districts.

Countywide, school officials appear to welcome any increased state support, but feel a lot more is needed.

Junior Editors Quiz on ANTARCTICA

QUESTION: How can houses be built in Antarctica?

ANSWER: The first explorers in the Antarctic built flimsy wooden huts in which to store supplies, but these were on the surface where they were battered by fierce blizzards.

Admiral Richard E. Byrd established the camp called "Little America" in 1928-29. When he returned in 1956, he found the 70 foot radio towers he had put up earlier almost buried under the snow.

Byrd realized the camps were safe under snow for a while—they're locked away tighter than a mummy in a pyramid," he said, but the problem was that the accumulated weight of snow would ultimately crush them in.

In 1956 and 1957, America, through its program "Operation Deep Freeze," cooperated with other nations in a study of the Antarctic during the "International Geophysical Year."

Later it was decided to go on with these investigations. Our illustration shows the method used in constructing recent Antarctic buildings.

Machines dig huge trenches in the snow, then half round steel sections are assembled in the trench (1), and row of prefabricated buildings erected inside, (2).

Finally the steel sections are covered with snow and the city looks from outside as in (3). The steel tunnel keeps the sunken station from being crushed by snow drifts.

FOR YOU TO DO: The people of Antarctica are leading lives of great hardship and adventure. Look for Antarctic news in your local paper and paste it in a scrap book—you'll have a saga of modern heroism.

Viet Nam Denies Raid on Cambodia

SAIGON, Viet Nam (U)—South Viet Nam today denied a charge by Cambodia's Prince Norodom Sihanouk that Vietnamese aircraft bombed a Cambodian border village Feb. 4, killing civilians.

The South Viet Nam Foreign Ministry called for a joint investigation on the spot by the two nations.

Sihanouk cited the alleged incident yesterday as new evidence of U.S. support of acts against Cambodia.

State's Solons Voted 14-5 for Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (U)—With one Democrat and four Republicans in the opposition, Michigan's delegation voted 14-5 in favor of the civil rights bill in its House passage this week.

The Democratic vote was 7-1 in favor and the Republican 7-4, also in favor.

As the sole Democrat to vote "nay," Rep. John Lesinski kept to his weekend statement that he would vote against the bill.

The Michigan vote: Democrats for—Diggs, Dingell, Griffiths, Nedzi, O'Hara, Ryan, Staebler.

Republicans for—Bennett, Broomfield, Costenberg, Chamberlain, Griffin, Harvey, Ford.

Republicans against—Hutchinson, Johansen, Meader, Knox.

Nothing Worth Seeing in an Empty Wallet

WILLIAMANTIC, Conn. (U)—Mrs. Margaret Richmond pleaded guilty to driving without a license and paid an $18 fine in Circuit Court here. But she had an excuse.

She told the court that she didn't know her license had expired because she hadn't looked in her wallet since 1960.

Tax Tips

(EDITOR'S NOTE—The following question and answer on an income tax problem is submitted by the Internal Revenue Service as a public service.)

QUESTION: During 1963 I paid quarterly premiums on three insurance policies. One policy was fire insurance, one was a hospitalization insurance policy, and the other was a wage continuation policy. Are any of these deductible on my federal income tax return?

ANSWER: If you itemize your deductions when filing your return, the amounts you paid during the year for hospitalization insurance premiums are deductible as a medical expense. The premiums paid on the other two policies are not deductible.

For the answer to your question, call your local Internal Revenue Office.

Hope to Curb Tobacco Sale to Area Youth

Signs were to be distributed today to member stores of the Oakland County Pharmaceutical Association in an effort to curb the sale of tobacco products to minors.

Howard Dell, spokesman for the association, said the group hopes to enlist the support of parents in enforcement of the state law banning the sale of tobacco products to minors.

Signs will be posted at the tobacco counters of member stores in the county, Dell said. "Tobacco products," he said, "cannot be sold to minors without proper authorization from parents."

NO POSITION

He emphasized that the association was not taking a position on the merits of smoking, but merely sought the aid of parents in keeping tobacco products out of the hands of youngsters.

February Foods Are Colorful and Gay

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

If there's a food of the month for February, it would surely be cherries. Their happy color lends gaiety to all the month's special holidays, starting with today. If we try hard enough, we can even find a reason to use tart red cherries on Leap Year Day.

Michigan furnishes the nation with most of its pie type cherries. For the past several years processors have used more and more cherries in prepared fillings and toppings. These are very useful in making glamorous desserts.

Martha's Masterpiece is cherry pie with a dash of excitement. Maybe Martha didn't have it ready for George when he came in from battle, but it'll serve to celebrate his birthday.

The crust is an oversized almond cookie. Hidden under the brilliant cherries is a smooth cream cheese layer.

MARTHA'S MASTERPIECE

1/4 cup butter
2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 egg yolk
1/4 cup flour
1/4 cup ground almonds

1 8-ounce package cream cheese
1/2 cup sugar
1 large egg
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1 1 lb. 6 oz. can Cherry Pie Filling

Cream butter, sugar and salt together; beat in egg yolk. Add flour and almonds and blend thoroughly. Line an 8 x 1-1/2 inch cake pan with aluminum foil. Press pastry onto bottom and up sides; chill.

Beat cream cheese until smooth; add sugar, egg and cinnamon and beat until fluffy. Pour into chilled pastry. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes or until filling sets and pastry browns. Cool.

Remove crust from pan by lifting on foil. Spoon cherry pie filling over top of cheese. Chill until time to serve. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

*May be made in a 9-inch pie plate.

No matter how often it is disputed, the legend about Washington and the cherry tree won't die. So take advantage of this connection to serve a fruit log.

The family's favorite fruit gelatin is molded in cans the fruit came in. The bark is cream cheese and chopped nuts.

FEBRUARY FRUIT LOG

2 envelopes gelatin
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 No. 303 can tart red cherries
1 No. 303 can sliced cling peaches

1 1/2 cups water
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 banana, sliced
2 3-ounce packages cream cheese
1/4 cup chopped walnuts

Combine gelatin, sugar and salt in saucepan; add cherries and heat to boiling. Drain peaches. Set cans aside to use as molds.

Add peach syrup, water and lemon juice. Cool until mixture begins to thicken. Add peaches and sliced banana. Spoon mixture into cans. Extra gelatin may be molded in 1 cup mold or dishes. Chill until firm.

Soften cream cheese by heating until fluffy. Unmold gelatin from cans and lay end to end on long platter. Carefully spread cream cheese over rolls and sprinkle with nuts. Refrigerate until time to serve. Yield: 8 to 10 servings.

PATRIOTIC DESSERTS — Cherries, so inescapably associated with Washington's birthday and February in general, turn up in a cherry cheese pie and a molded fruit roll. Red cherries, white cream cheese and somewhere a touch of blue sets the theme for a salute to our country's past.

Cherries and Cream Cheese Costars in Party Dishes

If you have a heart-shaped mold, Creme a la Cherry will look very sentimental. But it will taste as good in any kind of mold and be a dessert you'll serve often. Simple but elegant.

The cherry sauce which is quickly made can be used over plain cake, ice cream or other puddings. Keep a batch of it in the refrigerator.

CREME A LA CHERRY

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water
1 cup cold water
1 6-ounce can frozen orange juice
1 8-ounce package cream cheese

1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 No. 303 can tart red cherries
Red Food Coloring

Combine gelatin, sugar and salt; add hot water and stir to dissolve. Add cold water and orange juice. Cool until syrupy. Beat cream cheese until soft; slowly add gelatine mixture, heating until well blended. Fold in whipped cream. Pour into a 5 cup mold. Chill until firm.

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt in a saucepan; add cherries. Cook until thick and clear. Add food coloring if desired. Serve over mold. Yield: 8 to 10 servings.

In 35 minutes you can have Cherry Kuchen on the table. If you measure everything the night before, you could surprise your family with this for breakfast on Valentine's Day.

It'll be equally as welcome served warm as an after-cards snack in the late evening.

CHERRY KUCHEN

1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/2 cup cherry juice
1 No. 303 can tart red cherries, drained
1/2 cup shortening
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt

1 egg
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup flour
2 tablespoons butter

Combine sugar and cornstarch in sauce pan; add cherry juice. Cook until thick and clear; add cherries. Allow to cool while batter is made.

Cream shortening, sugar and salt; beat in egg. Sift flour and baking powder; add alternately with milk to creamed mixture.

Grease and flour an 8 x 8 x 2-inch baking pan. Spread 1/2 of the batter in the pan. Spoon cherries over batter. Top with remaining batter.

Combine brown sugar, flour and butter; sprinkle over coffee cake. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes or until done.

VALENTINE TREATS — There's romance in the air and good eating on the table with tart red cherries. More probably than not grown in Michigan, they'll top a coffee cake or sauce a cream cheese mold with color and flavor.

The European corn borer has been found in 37 of the United States.

St. Dunstan's Guild will present "A Far Country" Feb. 14-15 and 21-22 at the playhouse on Lone Pine Road. Curtain time is 9 p.m. Main character in the play is Sigmund Freud, played by Bob Liggett; the other principal is his first patient, Elizabeth Von Ritter, played by Liz Boyne. The two are shown here in a tense scene. Ruth Scribner directs the play.

Levity Relieves Rehearsal Tension

Pontiac Press Photos by Edward Noble

The play is a serious one without much humorous relief. So, between acts during rehearsals, it's understandable if the stage crew clowns around a bit. Pam Guest (Mrs. Edgar A. Guest III) comes out wearing a beard.

Two passions of the great Sigmund Freud were expensive cigars and statues—neither of which he could really afford. Both props play a significant part in "A Far Country." Reservations for tickets may be made with Grinnell's in Birmingham or they may be purchased at the door. There are no reserved seats.

Local Women Hear About Negro Music

Phyllis Smith, local lyric soprano, presented a program of song and lecture at Eastover School in Bloomfield Hills for Xi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society.

Introduced by Gertrude Overton, one of her former teachers at Pontiac Central High School, Miss Smith analyzed "The Song in the Heart of the Negro."

MUSICAL NATURE

"The Negro," said Miss Smith, "is musical by nature; the act of expressing himself through rhythm and tones comes naturally and instinctively." She explained that the

of this native African music, Miss Smith explained how African rhythms were married to European melody and harmony, producing a new kind of musical expression.

Miss Smith concentrated on the spiritual as an "outlet for his misery."

NO CONTENT

"At no time," said Miss Smith, "were Negro singers content or able to perpetuate the white man's song. They added and altered the words and stresses to fit ideas and needs of their own."

In his songs, said Miss Smith, "(the Negro) talks of himself, of his troubles, his hopes, and fears... without audience." Such music, she added, "is a simple, sincere, and intimate expression of feeling."

Miss Smith illustrated each of her points with an appropriate song. The program, lunch and social hour which followed were planned by Mrs. John E. De Cou. She was assisted by Mrs. Claire Hinkle, Mrs. Alfred Rothweiler, Florence Gulstrand, and Mildred Ginnell.

PHYLLIS SMITH

early conditions of the American Negro inspired the growth of song.

"The emotional disturbances that the Negro felt so deeply within him," said Miss Smith, "demanded an outlet."

Q: I am recuperating from an operation. Last evening a friend brought me a box of homemade cookies.

I thanked her but did not open the box. My husband thinks I should have opened the box and passed the cookies to her.

I don't think it was necessary. Did I do wrong?

A: You should have opened the box, commented on how delicious the cookies looked and passed the box to her.

To put the box aside without even looking to see what she had brought you was not very appreciative.

She Won't Be Alone

Send Mother to a Home

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I am 21 and, after three years of marriage, am proudly awaiting the birth of my first child in June.

My mother is expecting around the same time. The problem is Mom. She is 40, unmarried and mad at the world.

In her case there's no chance of marriage. She gets angry with me when I show any signs of happiness over the baby.

I feel guilty even mentioning it because she's so miserable about her condition. I'm so happy about mine.

Mom has lived with us since our marriage. She's been self-supporting but will have to quit work soon. My friends and relatives have given me baby showers, but they treat Mom like an outcast.

She feels so bitter and left out. I told her she ought to go to a home for unwed mothers, but she says, at her age, she'd feel foolish with all those young girls.

What should Mom do?

DEAR WORRIED: She should go to a home for unwed mothers. If misery loves company, she'll have plenty of company her own age—and even older.

I will send her a list of homes in her area immediately on request. She may use her correct name without fear or embarrassment.

All inquiries are strictly confidential. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell that mailman's wife, who is afraid she'll lose her husband to one of those awful women who comes to the door in her bathrobe, something for me.

Yes, I do have a passionate love for my mailman. He brought my children home when they followed the garbage truck down the street and got lost.

He pulled a little boy out from the path of an oncoming car right in front of my house one day. He caught our runaway dog and held him until the boys got there with the leash.

He paid my postage due 'mail out of his own pocket when I had no change. (I repaid him.)

He has walked through sprinklers to get to my mailbox. Sure I love him. Who wouldn't?

But a great affair we would never have. He has four children and I have seven. Besides, he doesn't have time for it, and neither do I.

Music Group Hears Soprano

By BERNICE ROSENTHAL

In celebrating National Music Week, Pontiac Tuesday Musicales yesterday presented Rosemarie Murch, mezzo soprano of the Detroit Opera Theatre.

For this purpose, the artist included, in her well-chosen and varied program, songs by the North American contemporary composer, Ives, and the contemporary Argentinian composer, Ginastera.

Miss Murch, who is an unusually gifted singer, has a warm, resonant and even voice which she uses with artistic insight and highly developed musical intelligence. Her range flows evenly from a full-bodied contralto to a clear firm soprano.

She sings with the apparent ease of a singer whose hard work has produced fine breath control and immaculate phrasing.

ITALIAN SONGS

Her first group consisted of art songs, in Italian, of the 17th and early 18th century, which she sang with fine lyric quality and the purity of tone which these songs demand.

Her second group consisted of seven gypsy songs by the 19th century composer Dvorak and her interpretation rang with the wild and unbridled, but often tender sentimentality of the colorful Bohemian wanderers.

Less serious, but equally difficult to sing were three children's songs by contemporary Charles Ives.

Five Argentinian songs

completed the program, and these were sung with a fine understanding of the temperament of the people.

It was here that Miss Murch's voice took on its richest quality, and the difficult phrasing, the tonal colors ranged from a moaning chant, to a half whisper, to a purposeful shrill and strident sound in imitation of a cat.

In these songs, as in the others, Helen Law, the sensitive accompanist and accomplished pianist, gave sensitive support.

Mrs. Vernon L. Venman, president of the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs, spoke of the National Federation as being the largest philanthropic organization in the world.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice: I would appreciate any information you have on using cording for bound buttonholes. Mrs. R. B.

Dear Mrs. R. B.: The method I have found most successful in using cording is to sew two bias welts on your garment first (without any cording). Cut the garment fabric as per buttonhole instructions and turn welts to the wrong side.

Before stitching the triangles of fabrics to the welts, insert the cording in the welts. You can use a needlepoint needle and a strand of yarn, or thin string.

Both work beautifully. Lastly, finish the triangles by sewing to the welts.

For your complete buttonhole instructions, send a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Sew Simple and request your free copy of "Bound Buttonholes."

Dear Eunice: I am making a dress with a bias bodice. Patterns do not tell you how to go about this, and I am wondering about the limiting factors involved. Mrs. K. F.

Dear Mrs. K. F.: Any part of your garment you wish to cut on the bias grain, you must follow the arrow indicating the straight of goods or the fold line. These important grain line marks must be laid on the true bias of your fabric.

The limitations depend on the choice of pattern. I think the bias-cut bodice is especially attractive when you are making a blouson bodice and not a bodice that is fitted with darts.

Remember that anything cut on the bias will have more give, but at the same time it will cling to your body a little more.

So, take a good look at your figure and be sure it will be becoming before cutting your fabric.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

"Here is an idea I have used for many years for a neat closing on dresses that button down the front. This is especially helpful if you are large busted and your dress has a tendency to gap between buttons when you sit down."

"Put in a concealed slide fastener down the front, starting just under the top button. Stitch right edge of the slide fastener as close to buttons as possible. Button the buttons and baste the left edge of slide fastener to front of dress. Next, with matching thread, machine stitch the left side. Even on plain materials it will not be noticeable, and no one is the wiser."

Mrs. A. J. Ross, Perry, Iowa, is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix Pressing Board for this suggestion.

SMART TIP

"I've discovered that pearl buttons dulled and roughened by frequent launderings can be restored by coating with colorless nail-polish. If it washes off, you can coat them again and they'll look like new each time."

Dear Mrs. Farmer: When both sides of the material look alike, how can you tell the wrong side in order to lay it out the right way? Mrs. F. F.

Dear Mrs. F. F.: There are many fabrics where it is almost impossible to tell the right from the wrong side. Usually, if you examine the selvage you can see that one side is more evenly finished than the other.

In the case of wool, the right side is usually always folded inside. However, with wool, it is possible to use either side you desire.

At any rate, when you have decided which side of any fabric you are going to use for the right side, before removing the pieces of the pattern after it has been cut, fold the edge of the pattern back and make an "X" with chalk (within the seam allowance) on the wrong side of each and every piece of your garment as you cut it.

In this way, you will not have to wonder and compare each piece to be sure you used the right side.

YOUR SEWING GLOSSARY: Shank: This is the ease you have allowed when sewing on a button so that it will hang freely and allow your garment to lay nice and smooth. If you do not allow enough thread to form a nice shank, you will have a tight, pulled look to the front of your garment when the buttons have been buttoned.

Winners Announced
in Mall Art Show

Prizes have been awarded in the Pontiac Mall second annual art show. Robert Thom, Marshall Fredericks and Michael Church picked winners over the weekend.

"I was impressed by the tremendous range that would come out of one area — tremendous range of both sophistication and approach in all of the media," said Thom.

Fredericks' comment was: "It was very difficult to choose in many cases because the upper range in every category provided us with many more choices than we had ribbons. The quality of the prize winners would hold its own in any show in the area."

GRAPHIC CATEGORY
James Ewer, Julius Kusey and Catherine Ann Lobb won in the graphic category. Maxwell Wright, Robert Hubbach, and William McNaughton took the first three places for watercolors.

In pastels, Kate McLean, Mrs. G. E. Beers and Ruth Neistadt were cited.

Linda Talbot took a first. Mrs. Beers and B. C. Oxford were tied for second and

MIXED MEDIA

Margaret Serratori, Bill McNaughten and Jean Belknap won in mixed media.

In drawings Marie Meredith, Rich Rudish and Jeff Carr were tops.

Marie Meredith, William Boyle tied for first in sculpture with K. E. Sullivan and Hazel Nauman won for sculpture.

Artist Sum of Time, Talent, Two Worlds

By MIRIAM NEAL

If he had to be summarized in one sentence John Beardman could be classified as twenty-six years, two worlds and one talent.

Taking the three elements one at a time they help explain how the young art instructor at Oakland University now has a successful display of 73 of his works in a one-man exhibit at the university art gallery.

The twenty-six years is the simplest part. By following his own desires and ambitions Beardman has accomplished in that time what any of us might envy.

BORN IN OHIO

He was born in an industrial town in northeastern Ohio. His parents now have a farm near there. From the time he was a small boy, painting fascinated him.

In high school, engineering sidetracked his interest and he earned, and almost accepted, a scholarship to Case Institute.

But painting won; he changed his mind and studied art at Oberlin College where he would eventually get his first academic degree.

He interrupted his career at Oberlin to travel to Paris. There he stayed and painted for one year. He describes himself as a nineteen-year-old with a red beard, in his own mind of heaven.

While in Paris, Beardman worked for printmaker, Stanley William Hayter. Hayter was well enough known to attract the current leaders in European art. As Beardman says: "What more could a young man ask?"

EARNED DEGREE

He returned to Oberlin after a year and then went on to Southern Illinois University where he earned master's degrees in both art history and studio art while serving as a teaching fellow.

He had begun to spend his "idle" time in New York City. At one time he worked for the Metropolitan Museum of Art selling Christmas cards.

After New York, Beardman accepted a position at the University of Connecticut where he was able to earn enough money to "either pay my debts or go to Europe." He went to Greece.

He lived in Athens for four months and traveled through the Mediterranean area, always painting.

CHOOSSES OU

Again he returned to the United States, this time to Oakland University. He chose his job there because it enables him to teach any way he wishes and still gives him enough time to paint.

And it gives him enough vacation time to return to Europe.

This riotous between the New and the Old Worlds is the two-world element of Beardman.

When asked why the Old World has such an attraction for him, Beardman answered with statements of how he feels when he is there.

While he admitted that Europe could be "a glass of tomato juice in a hotel dining room," to him it was the chance to "travel between the raindrops."

ACCEPTED

As an American in the Old World, Beardman was not a part of any "system of society." Thus he could assume any role he wished.

He tells stories of traveling on Greek buses when the man next to him started singing "just because he felt like it." The first night Beardman was in Athens he wound up dancing with the Athens police chief.

Part of his two worlds is Daphne Assimacopoulou, a Lebanese citizen whom he met in Athens and whom he is marrying this Saturday in New York City. He left yesterday to prepare for the wedding.

In spite of this attraction for the Old World Beardman asserts that he is "not an expatriate." He states that the world is going through "an American civilization," and he returns to the Old World only to "learn from the remnants" of a former civilization.

MODERN ART

To some of us, Beardman's third element, his talent, won't explain anything. Technically described, his paintings are non-figural and depend upon the vehemence of their movement and structured planes to convey meaning.

To the layman, they are "modern art."

But though we might not understand the paintings themselves, they show, even to the layman, the spontaneity and sensuousness of the young man.

When asked the favorite work in his current exhibit, Beardman couldn't say but commented that the "listed price" "does indicate how hard it will be to get (the painting) away from me."

The university gallery is open Monday through Friday from 12 noon until 4 p.m. Admission is free and the gallery does not take a commission for the sale of the works. The exhibit closes Feb. 28.

Consider Value of Dishwasher

The benefit of owning a dishwasher is more than just the convenience of having dishes washed and dried automatically.

A machine can do dishes and cooking utensils with much hotter water than your hands can stand.

And the hotter the water for both washing and rinsing — the more thorough the cleanliness, which is the first rule in maintaining a healthy household.

Are Poodle Owners Going to Dogs?

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several years ago, the leading general practitioner in my home town announced that he was turning over his pediatric type practice to a young associate.

"You're fed up with kids, eh, doc?" someone asked.

"I don't mind the kids," the doctor replied. "It's their damn mamas I can't stand."

WEST

This is my way I feel about poodles.

Although my P.R.F. (Poodle Resistance Factor) probably is higher than average, I don't necessarily dislike them. All things being equal, a poodle is no more repugnant than any other dog.

But behind every poodle there is a poodle owner. And that is too much of a handicap for any canine to overcome.

Poodle owners may in all other respects be thoroughly admirable people. But where poodles are concerned, they are impossible.

SOME KIND OF NUT

There is something about a poodle that makes a poodle owner behave like some kind of a nut.

As evidence of what a poodle can do to a poodle owner, and vice versa, I draw your attention to a book entitled "Every Night, Josephine!" that is now in its fifth printing.

Josephine is a poodle. The most pampered, petted poodle in all poodiedom, I would judge. Compared to Josephine, King Farouk leads a dog's life.

The entire book is a sort of poodle psalm, with words and music by Jacqueline Susann, a New York television actress who apparently has devoted her life to making Josephine happy.

A BIT ODD?

All of this might give you, as it did me, the impression that Miss Susann is a bit odd. Oddly enough, she isn't.

She and her husband, TV producer Irving Mansfield, here on a promotion trip this week, and I spent a couple of hours in their company. She was perfectly rational the entire time.

Apart from poodles, she is an attractive, intelligent, talented and witty young woman.

I can only conclude that poodle owners have qualities, either of body chemistry or personality, that cause them to be oddly influenced by poodles, so that they fall under some kind of hypnotic spell.

TESTING FOR DOGS

It might be a good idea if, before being allowed to buy a dog, everyone were required to undergo tests to determine if he or she is poodle prone.

I intend to check into this as soon as possible. But first I've got to rush home and give my beagle a bubble bath.

Movie Frat Holds Annual Fete

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

City Seeking Bids on Tree Contract

A contract calling for planting some 130 trees in the R20 urban renewal project was advertised for bids by the City Commission last night.

The deadline for submitting bids was set at 2 p.m., March 4.

Bids received on the contract last fall were rejected as all being too high.

The contract specifications have been modified since then and commissioners feel the cost will be lower for work to be done in the spring and summer planting seasons.

Beatles Give Douglas-Home Economic Tool

TORONTO (AP)—Britain's Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, who wants to redress Britain's trade balance with Canada, says he holds the whip hand in the situation.

He told the Empire Club last night: "If Britain needs to earn more dollars from Canada, I warn you, I shall send The Beatles." The Beatles now are amassing dollars in the United States.

being held at the University of Southern California, which has the oldest school of the cinema of any college in America and perhaps the world.

Gloria Swanson, Adolph Zukor, Jack Lemmon, Charles Brackett and Billy Wilder has been chosen for honorary memberships, and that's what made it a rare evening. Their friends and associates of the long history of films had been invited to share in the occasion.

Today's Hollywood was represented by such names as Stephen Boyd, Omar Sharif, Ed Byrne, Diane Baker, Steve Forrest, Rhonda Fleming, Maureen O'Hara, Robert Stack, Dick Van Dyke, etc.

EARLIER DAYS

From the movies' earlier days came Donald Crisp, House Peters, Frances Marion, Madge Kennedy, Betty Blythe, Mae West, Jack Oakie, Claire Windsor, etc.

Informally was the plan of director George Cukor, described by Stack as the "house mother" of the fraternity. Film clips of the honored guests were shown. Miss Swanson and Bob Cummings roamed the room to chat on microphones with old and new-timers.

"I came to Hollywood in 1916," said Miss Swanson. "I bet nobody else in the room can say that."

"Why dear, I came here in 1912," Harold Lloyd corrected. Claire Windsor reminisced of being stuck in the elevator during a party at Miss Swanson's palatial home.

Edward G. Robinson commented that he had never appeared with Miss Swanson. "I was always public enemy No. 1," he sighed. "They never gave me anyone as glamorous as you."

Teacher Unions in Detroit Ask Insurance on Lives

DETROIT (AP)—Two teacher unions asked the Detroit Board of Education Tuesday to provide life insurance for 10,000 Detroit teachers and recommended that specific proposals be instituted to curb juvenile delinquency in city schools.

The Detroit Education Association proposed a $25,000 death benefit for any teacher killed in the line of duty. The rival Detroit Federation of Teachers requested $20,000 coverage.

DEA President Eugene Straley said the cost—assuming such coverage would be issued by an insurance agency—would be $1.95 per teacher.

QUICK CHECK

He said a "quick check" going back to the early 1920s showed no teacher has lost his life because of school violence.

Mary Ellen Riordan, DFT president, said her group endorses a proposal advanced by Juvenile Court Judge James Lincoln and Police Commissioner Ray Girardin to remove hardcore juvenile delinquents from the schools in a bid to solve the problem of violence and intimidation.

The DFT also recommended police protection in schools where number and severity of incidents warrant such protection.

Africa Nations Hold Summit

Tanganyika Confab Discusses Outbreaks

DAR-ES-SALAAM, Tanganyika (UPI)—Representatives of 33 African nations gathered here today to discuss last month's mutinies in East Africa and the current border fighting between Ethiopia and Somalia.

President Julius Nyerere of Tanganyika asked for the meeting of the Organization for African Unity (OAU) after troops in his army revolted and ousted their British officers.

The revolt touched off a wave of looting and violence in Dar-es-Salaam and soon was followed by similar mutinies in the neighboring countries of Kenya and Uganda.

British troops had to be called in to preserve the peace in the three new African nations.

AFRICAN FORCE

One idea being discussed by delegates from the 33 countries is establishment of an all-African "fire brigade" force to perform such emergency duty.

Since Nyerere's call for the meeting, the East African trouble has simmered down, but to the north of the Somali-Ethiopian border more serious fighting has broken out.

Nearly 700 men were reported killed in frontier battles since Saturday, Somalia last night ordered its troops to observe a truce after a U.N. appeal, but Ethiopia charged that Somali raids were continuing.

Although many delegates expressed belief that an African emergency force is the only possible way to deal with troop mutinies and other local flare-ups, Tunisian representative Habib Bourguiba Jr. said it is premature to talk of a united African military force.

AN EXPLANATION

Bourguiba, son of Tunisia's president, said the other AOU countries would give Nyerere and the leaders of Uganda and Kenya a chance to explain the disturbances in their countries and discuss what action to take to prevent a recurrence of the trouble.

The OAU was formed last summer during the first African summit conference in Addis Ababa. Its guiding spirit was Ethiopia's Emperor Haile Selassie.

Australian Commuters Caught in Bus Strike

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI)—Caught by a 24-hour bus strike, about 400,000 commuters in Sydney and Newcastle used trains, ferries, automobiles and trucks to get to work today.

Five thousand bus employees struck in the two cities to press demands for shorter work hours. They work sets of five-hour shifts. They asked for a limit of 4½ hours.

Castro Is Turning Out to Be Big Loser in Water Cutoff Crisis

By EDWIN TETLOW
London Daily Telegraph
Special Correspondent

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—Fidel Castro only pinpricked the Americans but dealt himself out of precious U.S. dollars with his water cutoff of the naval base at Guantanamo Bay in eastern Cuba.

Water facilities at the U.S. base were almost back to normal only seven days after Castro turned off the taps in retaliation for the seizure of Cuban fishermen charged with fishing inside Florida waters.

By improvisation and with the abundant help from Jamaica, the Americans now have enough water for everything except washing cars, watering lawns or wasteful uses. Abandoned was the strict rationing that gave them water only three times a day for periods of one hour each in the first days of the crisis.

Castro's action deprived him of $14,000 a month under a contract for the water. The speed with which he had been cashing this regular American check testified to the pinch caused by the shortage of U.S. currency.

It appears that the Americans are not going to use Castro's water again even if it should be offered. The plan is to make the base completely self-sufficient.

More than a week's supply was on hand when the water was cut off and more water is on the way from Jamaica and the United States.

Mothers reorganized their routines, but said they managed easily. Doctors at the hospital delivered their daily quota of two babies. The beer flowed freely at the officers' and enlisted men's clubs.

Some of the officers were privately angry when the news first came of the cutoff. They said they'd like to be among the first to burst through the fence dividing the base from Cuban territory and turn the taps on again.

But there's little likelihood of anything like that happening. Rear Adm. John D. Bulkeley, the base commander, said after the first 24 hours of the blockade of the water taps "we can beat this move and aren't worried at all."

Events are bearing him out.

Australian Carrier Skipper Gives Report on Crash of 2 Ships

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Both ships were moving at close to top speed when the 20,000-ton carrier Melbourne rammed into the destroyer Voyager Monday night and cleaved her in half in three seconds, the Melbourne's skipper said today.

Capt. R. J. Robertson described Australia's worst peacetime naval disaster after the Melbourne, the Australian navy's flagship, limped into port with 139 of 239 survivors from the destroyer. The carrier's bow was badly damaged.

A navy spokesman held out little hope for 79 Voyager crew members listed as missing, but a search is continuing. There are three known dead, including the destroyer's commander, Capt. Duncan H. Stevens, 42, of Sydney.

Stevens was on the Voyager's bridge when she was struck by the carrier during night maneuvers 20 miles off the Australian coast 120 miles south of Sydney.

The bow section of the 3,500-ton destroyer sank within 10 minutes. The stern remained afloat for three hours. The destroyer was a marvel of modern electronics—literally a push-button ship whose guns and steering could work automatically with radar.

Robertson, on the bridge of the carrier at the time, told reporters there was no moon but the sea was calm and conditions generally good for the maneuvers.

"We had been engaged in night flying exercises which require the carrier to move as fast as possible," Robertson said.

"Both ships were blacked out except for the port and starboard and red masthead lights.

"Melbourne hit Voyager amidships, cutting through her like a knife. Voyager split clean in halves. The halves slid down our sides.

"Voyager slid easily under our bow. Melbourne did not even rise when she hit.

"I ordered engines astern (reversing propellers) and we drifted away from the two sections of the Voyager.

RESCUE ATTEMPTS

"The immediate thoughts of my officers and men were to organize rescue operations. Those carried out by members of Melbourne were very smooth."

Symptom of Maladjustment

Smoking Related to Poor Student Grades

By LESLIE J. NASON, ED. D.
Low grades in school can be associated with excessive use of automobiles, too much time spent surfing at the beach, association with clubs or gangs, and lack of vocational goals. Automobile insurance companies have found that high school students who make good grades have fewer accidents than those who make poor grades.

grades. Caraker studied 340 high school students, half smokers, half non-smokers. He found the nonsmokers up front, with average grades of B. The smokers, on the average, of D. None achieved an A and only three got B.

The associated activities are not the causes of the low grades any more than not smoking could be the cause of good grades.

Low grades, as well as undue emphasis on activities other than study, are but symptoms.

The student who shows these symptoms may turn his attention away from getting an education, sometimes for the very reason that getting an education is the accepted path toward success in our society.

Prohibitions and punishments related to smoking, curfew hours, and use of automobiles are treating the symptoms rather than the cause. They have some effect but fail to get to the source of the problem.

SOLUTION CHANEL

The solution lies in helping the teen-ager reestablish faith in himself and in his ability to succeed through conventional channels which, of course, in himself and in his ability to succeed through conventional channels which, of course, in every case involve success in school.

Such students need individual help in planning everyday study activities. Such help involves improvement in learning skills and an increased know-how.

SUCCESSFUL APPROACH

The successful approach is usually centered about the major activity of the teen-ager, that of getting an education, but it seldom works unless accompanied by adjustments in those areas of the teen-ager's thinking where the real causes lie.

The teen-ager needs the moral support of adults in his new start. He also needs guidance over a period of time as he forms new habits of learning.

Once established in his own mind as a capable student, he is ready to think about lifetime goals that can be reached through education. He no longer needs to fight the social structure, he is a part of it.

Another innovation in my 1935 book "The Four Aces System" was the three-card minor suit opening. The wording in describing it was, "The three-card minor suit bid is a general utility man. It is neither used nor intended as a psychic and is employed only with a hand which is a compulsory bid and when there is no other satisfactory opening bid."

We qualified this bid further by explaining that we only bid it with one of the three top honors and when we could bid either three-card minor we opened one club.

The three-card minor is a part of every system and every expert's kit of bids today. Furthermore, it has not changed one iota from my original concept. It is only used with a three-card suit headed by an honor. It is only used when there is

Vientiane—City of Worldwide Interest

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In Vientiane, which lies along the Mekong River and is the administrative capital of Laos, the Japanese are building a water system designed to give the capital for the first time a water supply which its residents can drink without boiling first.

Airliners take off from an American field after passing through a French-built terminal.

A new gambling casino operated by Chinese and Vietnamese is another of the innovations moving in upon gently resisting Laotians who in the main prefer a less complicated life.

But despite these things, and a flood of Western educators, economists and agricultural experts sent to help preserve a neutral Laos from communism, Vientiane remains a sleepy town dedicated to its ancient Buddhist ways.

It is the countryside which provides the real testing ground for the Laotian neutrality agreed upon in Geneva in July 1962 and which remains as it was before, a cauldron of conflicting interests with the military advantage remaining with the Communists.

U.S. PLANES

U.S. planes take off from the Vientiane field to drop supplies to friendly people cut off by the Communist-led Pathet Lao.

Communist North Viet Nam exports leadership and supplies to the Pathet Lao.

Within the government there remain the divided forces of Right, Neutral and Communist, including separate military commands.

As Soviet influence wanes, Red Chinese influence grows.

An international control commission set up to enforce neutrality is hamstrung by the intransigence of its Polish member until he makes a sudden about-face. There is speculation that the Pole's about-face is due in part to Poland's fears for the future of U.S.-Polish trade.

TRADE AGREEMENTS

Within the torn land there are the trappings of neutrality as seen by trade agreements both the West and with Moscow and Peking.

Right-wing leader Gen. Phoumi Nosavan occasionally hears himself praised by the Moscow, Peking or Hanoi radios.

Occasionally, neutral Premier Souvanna Phouma confers with his Red half-brother and Deputy Premier Prince Souphanouvong, but agreement stays just out of reach.

In the Plains of Jars, tactical key to Laos, neutral forces retreat before the Pathet Lao and finally lose the Plain altogether. The Communists reinforce their hold upon the Ho Chi Minh trail leading to South Viet Nam and approach to within 15 miles of the Mekong across from Thailand.

ANOTHER WEAPON

Neutrality has been but another weapon working for the Pathet Lao and the Viet Cong of South Viet Nam who are political brothers. And, it has added to the danger of Thailand.

It is a gloomy picture, emphasizing that for the Reds there are no separate theaters in Southeast Asia. Laos, South Viet Nam and Thailand are one. In Thailand, the death of a strong leader led to a replacement still untested. And in South Viet Nam, a military Coup led to a new government still unproved.

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—The Coast Guard Tuesday seized the 50-foot motor vessel Arroyo and 16 heavily armed Cuban exiles apparently headed for a raid on Cuba.

The Coast Guard boarded the Arroyo near the Dry Tortugas, the group of keys where four Cuban government fishing boats and their crews were picked up Feb. 2 and accused of poaching in U.S. waters.

David Cardozo, supervising customs agent at Miami, said the arms included a 20-millimeter cannon.

Hindu philosophers once referred to mica as "preserved lightning."

Darts Rain on Prince

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP)—Prince Philip, the queen's husband, was showered with paper darts yesterday and mildly startled by a synthetic wild man.

It happened at Edinburgh University, where the Prince, as the school's chancellor, was introducing Dr. James Robertson Justice as the newly elected rector.

There were 2,000 students present for the annual ceremony, which in past years often has been riotous, with overripe fruit, and bags of flour thrown at those on the platform in accordance with an ancient tradition.

This time the dart shower was followed by a shot of "Here I Go" and a tall dark-haired youth clad in dark red trunks, with a leopard skin thrown over one shoulder and carrying an open umbrella, leaped on to the stage.

He ran over to the Prince, bowed low, whirled around, jumped off the stage and fled from the building up the central aisle.

The Prince laughed heartily.

Use Chicken Soup Mix as Sauce in Casserole

"Good things come in small packages" . . . is a well known saying. It's a well known fact, too, when the package contains two little cans of dry soup mix.

Treasures, indeed, these canned dry soup mixes become superb soups, tasty dips, tempting skillet and casserole dishes. Versatile, economical, flavorful and requiring so little storage space, you'll find these soups just great for all your cooking needs.

For dinner tonight sauce a delicious chicken casserole . . . cooked chicken, green beans, water chestnuts and almond topping . . . with canned chicken noodle dry soup mix. The soup mix not only adds a rich chicken flavor but also provides a smooth perfectly seasoned sauce plus tender noodles.

- Chicken and Green Bean Casserole
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
 - 2½ cups water
 - 1 can (1½ ounces) chicken noodle dry soup mix
 - 1 cup cooked chicken, cut in strips
 - 1 cup cooked French style green beans
 - 1 can (5½ ounces) water chestnuts, sliced
 - 1 tablespoon soy sauce
 - ¼ cup slivered almonds

In saucepan, blend cornstarch and water until smooth. Stir in soup mix; bring to boil. Cook 7 minutes, stirring now and then. Add remaining ingredients except almonds; transfer to 1-quart casserole. Top with almonds.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Canned, Frozen Foods Offer Dinner Ideas

Here's a quick chicken stew with dumplings. In large saucepan, cook 2 tablespoons onion in 1 tablespoon butter or margarine until tender. Blend in a 10½-ounce can condensed cream of chicken soup and ½ cup water. Add 1 cup diced cooked chicken, a 10-ounce package frozen peas and carrots, ¼ teaspoon salt and dash each pepper and leaf thyme. Bring to boil, stirring now and then.

Meanwhile, blend 1 cup packaged biscuit mix with ½ cup milk; drop by spoonfuls on top of chicken and vegetables. Cook, uncovered, over low heat 10 minutes. Cover, cook an additional 10 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Skillet Dish Full of Beans

Traditions in America are many and treasured . . . including the foods we eat. In winter-time, the fragrant aroma of canned pork and beans with tomato sauce is found on tables throughout the land.

Beans themselves have been a traditional part of our country since the beginning. Indian tribes in New England grew over 600 varieties, thus making beans almost a symbol of America. From early settlers to modern times, beans have teamed with pork for a delicious dish that's not only hearty and satisfying but high in protein, too.

A tossed salad is a natural accompaniment . . . and what could end it better than individual peach upside-down gingerbreads.

- 4 pork chops (1 pound)
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1 can (1-pound) pork and beans with tomato sauce
- ½ cup applesauce
- Generous dash ground cloves
- 2 tablespoons chopped toasted slivered almonds

In skillet, brown chops on both sides and cook onion until tender. Cover and cook over low heat 20 minutes. Add beans, applesauce, and cloves; cook covered 15 minutes or until chops are tender. Stir now and then. Garnish with almonds. Makes 4 servings.

Oldsters Find Banana Dishes Satisfying

A most remarkable fruit is the banana. This holds true in the 20th century just as it did in the days when the Greeks, Latins and Arabs extolled its virtues while carrying it to other lands.

Today, the banana is taken for granted because it is always in season, is an economical and convenient fruit to have on hand, and has a bland flavor that appeals to most everyone. Further investigation reveals other qualities in the banana which make it ideal for use in the daily diet of the older age group.

The semi-solid texture of the banana makes it easy to eat, while its natural fruit sugars are easily assimilated and completely digested. As a source of vitamins you can count on A and C, and such minerals as calcium, iodine, iron and magnesium.

The caloric count is low . . . each medium-sized banana contains 85 . . . yet the fruit has the remarkable power of making one feel "full." Sometimes this is referred to as satiety value.

This menu supplies slightly more than ½ of the day's nutrients and calories for a moderately active couple around 65 years of age. The foods not only are attractive, but provide contrast in texture and flavor.

MID-DAY DINNER
Orlando Bananas and Ham
Green Peas

- Tomato and Lettuce Bowl
Whole Wheat Roll
Butterscotch Pudding
Beverage

The main dish recipe calls for ¾ ounces of ham, a medium banana and an orange sauce. As each portion bakes in the oven in its own serving dish, you can cook the peas (allow about ½ cup per serving) and arrange salads of western-iceberg lettuce, chicory and tomato wedges. One tablespoon of a corn oil-vinegar dressing can be sprinkled over each.

A whole wheat roll and a thin pat of butter are allowed each person. And for dessert . . .

- ½ cup servings of pudding made from a mix and milk.
- The choice of tea or coffee or a caffeine-free beverage is up to you.

A fully ripe banana makes a fine in-between meal snack, too, either peeled and eaten out-of-hand or in a nourishing drink such as that in the second recipe.

- Orlando Bananas and Ham
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
 - 1 teaspoon cornstarch
 - Dash cinnamon
 - ½ cup orange juice
 - 2 slices (¾ ounces each) fully cooked ham
 - 2 medium bananas green-tipped
 - Mix sugar, cornstarch and cinnamon in small saucepan. Add orange juice. Cook and stir until sauce thickens and boils 1 minute. Line each of 2 shallow individual casseroles with a portion of ham.

Slice bananas into centers. Pour an equal amount of orange sauce over top of each. Bake in 350 degree (moderate) oven 15 minutes. Makes 2 servings.

- Banana Coffee Shake
- 1 large banana, fully ripe
 - Dash allspice
 - 1 cup milk
 - ¾ to 1 pint coffee ice cream
- Mash banana. Add remaining ingredients; beat until blended, spice, if desired. Makes 2 servings.

Use Bacon Quickly, Store in Wrapper

Here are some bacon-buying hints from the American Meat Institute: Buy only enough bacon for one week. Both the aroma and flavor will begin to fade after five to seven days of storage. Store bacon in its original wrapper in the refrigerator. For best flavor never freeze sliced bacon.

MID-DAY MEAL — Elder statesmen, proud grandmothers and grandfathers, and carefree-retired-couples overwhelmingly approve of this mid-day dinner. Intrigued by the entree of ham and mellow banana slices in orange sauce, they plan to enjoy bananas in a number of ways in future meals.

Newlywed Captures Pine Knob Race

By JERE CRAIG

Newlywed Pepi Gramshammer laid out the dual slalom course for last night's Pine Knob professional ski races and then posted his first win of the season.

The likeable Austrian, 31, and married only last week, captured the first of two International Professional Ski Racers Association races there with runs of 24.3 and 24.6 seconds.

His combined time of 48.9 seconds was only one-tenth of a second ahead of Frenchman

Adrian Duvillard, who won last year's one-night race.

Third place went to Andor Molterer of Austria with 49.1 seconds for two runs down the 30-gate courses.

The IPSRA races take turns laying out the courses at the various stops on the tour.

QUESTION

Three racers questioned whether the 5-9, 150 pound winner had negotiated all the gates on his second run but the gate objection was overruled.

A crowd of slightly more than 1,000 watched in clear, crisp skiing weather as Gramshammer tied for the night's best run with Molterer and Ernst Hinterseer.

All three had 24.3 runs;

11th Meeting of City Rival Swim Teams

The 11th swimming meet between city rivals Pontiac Central and Pontiac Northern since 1953, will be held tonight in the PCH pool starting at 7:30 p.m.

Northern scored a 68-37 victory in its own pool earlier this season, but Central still holds the all-time advantage with seven wins and three losses.

Central, which picked up 50 points toward the all-sports trophy by virtue of a basketball triumph, still is behind in the point race 250 to 100. The winner of the swim meet tonight will gain an additional 50 points.

Messiah, Becker's Rec Cage Victors

Becker's and Messiah Baptist Church posted wins in the city recreational basketball National League last night while New Hope Baptist was a Class D winner.

Becker's surprised the Wilson All Stars, 65-51, and Messiah was a 69-56 winner over Town & Country. New Hope outscored the Auburn Heights Boys Club in every period for a 76-40 victory.

Action in the Waterford Township men's league has been postponed from tonight until after the playoffs.

A second half spurt enabled Becker's to expand its 28-21 intermission lead into a comfortable margin. Messiah, meanwhile, held a 19-15 one quarter lead and gradually increased it.

Central Matmen Edge by Dondoro Grapplers

Pontiac Central squeezed by Royal Oak Dondoro's mat squad last night, 24-19. Neal Peterson decisioned Jess Penny in the heavyweight bout to lock up the decision. The win evened Central's record at 5-1.

Gramshammer's coming time second time and actually giving him the victory. They divided $300 for the best time.

Hinterseer caught the tip of his ski on his second run, and fell. He broke a binding and wasn't able to complete his run, after having an outstanding initial run.

Local favorites Othmar Schneider of Boyne Mt. finished fifth with 50.7 for $200, and Herbert Thayer of Mt. Holly took eighth place for $100.

Schneider took another $100 for finishing second in the "styling" competition after the races. Karl Bertscher won the $150 first prize with a beautiful exhibition of fancy skiing.

The races will continue at 8 p.m. tonight with the presentation of the Pine Knob Cup to the over-all winner for the two night's competition.

Pistons Blow 14-Point Lead

By The Associated Press

Quick now, what National Basketball Association team can lead by 14 points with 8½ minutes to go and then lose by 10 points in overtime?

The New York Knickerbockers, you say. No, but you're close.

The Detroit Pistons did the job and it was easy because they were playing Wilt Chamberlain and the San Francisco Warriors.

The red-hot Western Division leaders got 59 points from Chamberlain and won their 17th in the last 23 games, 128-118.

The Pistons were leading 104-90 after 3½ minutes of the final period when Chamberlain started a Warrior rally that knotted it at 116 as the final buzzer sounded. San Francisco scored nine straight points before the Pistons hit their only field goal of the extra session.

BOWLING

Lakewood Lanes' house team in the Ivy-Bowling League last week came up with the big night when it needed it.

The league's pace setter met its closest challenger in Huttenlocher Agency and swept all four points aided by a 2879 series that is a new high for the season.

Bob Hockey with 224-244-674 and Earl Weber with 205-219-622 led the key victory. Hockey's series is the second highest this season in the league.

John Buniack had 210-224-624 to lead Hiller Real Estate to a 2854 series, tying the previous high.

There were some prime scores in the Pontiac Motor Friday Morning League at 300 Bowl last week. Gus Frizzell had 237-245 — 673 and Chuck McGee came in with 213-206-601.

There was a 234 by Robert Stockard.

TOP WOMEN

The top totals Thursday in the Airway Lanes Ladies Major Classic were the 241 and 656 rolled by Betzi Waisanen. Phyllis Nelson had 214-584 and Shirley Pointer bowled 554.

The house team posted a 918 team game and 2648 team series to add to the good scores.

That same day in the Airway Keglerettes League Ima Mae Killinger had 221-580 and Helen Mills a 503.

Wednesday's Airway Angels loop had a 518 by Jean Snyder, a 516 by Agnes Wolf and 515 by Bernice Jorgensen, while Irma Steed hit 219-503.

Kate Bourke rolled a 530 and Betzi Waisanen equalled it in the Airway First Circuit last Wednesday. Millie Gemoere and Marilyn Johnson both had 200s.

At Huron Bowl Friday there was a 542 by Vi Roise and a 200 by Eva Johnston in the Ladies Matinee. Dotson's Standard leads the race by 2½ points.

Paul Placer's 230 topped the Wednesday Pontiac Motor Inter-Office League at 300 Bowl last week. Jack Goodchild came in with 222 and Percy Williams had 211-210.

Peg Hall's 518 and 509's by Bettie Cooper and Leone Gutzke were the best of the Ladies Classic scores.

Chuck Shotwell had 221, Dennis Violette 217, and Judy China 506 to pace the Wednesday Double Trouble League; while Flo Smith made the 4-6-10 split in the 300 Hep Cats.

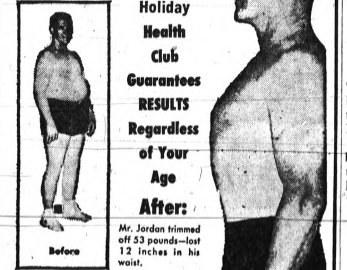

Cranes Downed, 3-0

Cranbrook was outshot 27-9 Tuesday afternoon by Ann Arbor and dropped a 3-0 International High School Hockey League game.

The win clinched a playoff berth in the First Division for the visitors. It was the Cranes' last league game at home.

SAGINAW (AP)—Dennis Schumacher, a 6-foot-1 forward for Delta Community College, scored a record 59 points as his team defeated Alpena Junior College, 67-78, Tuesday night.

Cage Mentor Switch Made at Holly High

Garver said Wednesday that the switch in coaches was made because of a "difference in philosophy between the administration and coach Pence."

"There was no pressure from the community to have Mr. Pence relieved. It was not because of his won-lost record. We thought it best for the school. There is no reflection on Mr. Pence or on the school district."

Continuing, Garver said, "Mr. Pence will be retained as a teacher. We would like to have him stay. His teaching position has not been jeopardized."

Garver said he presented a list of new coaches for the 1964-65 school year (without Pence's name) to the board and it was accepted unanimously.

Pence, 33, is in his ninth year at Holly. He has been varsity coach for the past five years. Sherman, 36, has served as junior varsity and joined the Holly schools 10 years ago and has coached the junior varsity and 7th and 8th grade squads during that time.

Michigan Boat Show to Feature Clinics

Daily boating clinics will highlight the Greater Michigan Boat Show which opens at noon Saturday in the Detroit Armory, 1500 W. Eight Mile.

The show will continue daily from noon to 10 p.m. through Feb. 23.

Trouble-shooting clinics, directed by experts, include a powerboat racing session opening day, with Bill Cantrell.

Cantrell, who won the 1963 "driver of the year" award from the American Power Boat Association, will be on hand with the unlimited hydroplane, Gale V. He'll be assisted by APBA.

Factory engineers from four major outboard motor companies will show skippers how to troubleshoot and take care of their outboards.

REPAIR SESSION

Wood, aluminum and fiberglass boat construction, maintenance and repair will be demonstrated on different days of the show by naval architects and qualified engineers.

Waterskiing will be under discussion by experts from the Michigan Water Ski Association on five days during the boat show. And on Thursday, Feb.

20, a woman boating consultant will hold forth in a special school for first mates.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary will sponsor a short course in big boat handling.

Michigan's Conservation Department will send a representative to talk to show patrons about camping. A special section of the boat show is devoted to camping.

Other clinics feature sailboat racing and tips for beginners in boating.

Most clinics will be offered three times per day. They will be held at the south end of the armory, in the center. Schedules will be posted at the boat show.

The show is produced by the Michigan Marine Dealers Association.

Instruction classes in basic seamanship and small boat handling have been scheduled by the Coast Auxiliary of Pontiac Flotilla 12-18.

Commander Robert Underwood said the classes will provide eight lessons over a nine-week period. The sessions will start Feb. 23 at the Naval Training Center, 469 S. East Blvd.

A nominal fee for text materials will be charged. The instruction periods will be from 7:30-9:30 p.m. except the first night when registrations will be taken beginning at 2 o'clock.

State Bird Honor at Stake

Robin Versus Warbler

LANSING (UPI)—Investigation revealed today that Michigan's official bird—the robin red breast—is an impostor.

The current issue of the Michigan Manual states that the robin received the "official" designation back in 1931 when the legislature sponsored a concurrent resolution to that effect.

However, a check through records for that year shows the State Senate never passed the resolution, but instead referred it to a committee where it apparently died at the end of the session.

The question of the robin's titular rights probably never would have come up except a pretender to the throne of official state bird has been declared.

One of the hottest political battles of the century may be waged over the official Michigan bird.

Shall it be the traditional, but common, robin red breast—or shall the tiny Kirtland warbler, unique to Michigan, but nearly extinct, take over?

The Robin originally got the title after the Michigan Audubon Society took a statewide poll of nearly 200,000 votes "of which robin red breast received many more votes as the most popular bird in the state of Michigan" than any other.

However, the Audubon Society is now putting its money on the Kirtland's or Jack Pine warbler.

The tiny bird nests in a very limited range in the Mio area and winters in the Bahamas. A monument to the warbler has been erected on the Oscoda County courthouse at Mio, and special lands have been set aside to preserve the nesting grounds of the warbler.

The robin is a much more common species, having been named as state bird by about 10 states, according to the Audubon Society officials.

However, if the Democratic party formula of one bird-one vote is applied, the robin will retain its title wings down.

There are millions and millions of robins in Michigan, according to guesstimates by the State Conservation Department, but there are just 1,000 Kirtland warblers in the world.

The limited range of the warbler, the limited numbers, the danger of the bird becoming extinct and the robin's present grasp on the unofficial title.

Two Republican state Reps., Raymond L. Baker of Berkeley and Ross O. Stevens of Atlanta, are seriously considering introduction of a resolution backing the warbler.

Baker has had one resolution drafted and is awaiting more information before he decides to put the matter into the House hoppers.

NEW YORK (AP) — Inspired by American Telephone's stock rights offering, the stock market continued to rise early this afternoon in unusually active trading for Lincoln's Birthday.

Gains of fractions to about a point among key stocks outnumbered gainers. A scattering of selected issues put on a stronger performance.

AT&T's setting of a $100 price per share for stock which owners of 20 shares each may subscribe to was a windfall for "Telephone's" army of 2 1/2 million shareholders.

Both AT&T common and the rights which began trading on a when-issued basis—were delayed an hour before they opened.

Telephone rights opened on a monster block at 2 million at 29-32 (about $2.28) and rose fractionally in later dealings.

AT&T common opened on a big block of 20,000 shares, up 1 1/2 at 147 1/2 and also improved slightly in later dealings.

Elsewhere in the list, savings-and-loan holding companies resumed their rally, with gains running to more than a point.

Big Three motors, nonferrous metals, aerospace issues, electrical equipments, rails, office equipments and drugs worked generally higher.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange advanced in moderately active trading. Syntax continued its recovery, adding 2.

Gains of about 2 points were scored also by Analex, Dennison, Data-Control Systems, Philips Electronics and Potter Instrument.

Corporate bonds were mixed to irregularly higher. Over-the-counter dealers in U.S. Government bonds were closed for Lincoln's Birthday.

Mrs. Oswald

Back on Stand

WASHINGTON (AP)—After the brief flareup Tuesday of disputed testimony and confusion over her legal counsel, Marguerite Oswald resumes to her testimony to the presidential commission investigating the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

It is the third and possibly final day of the testimony of her son, Lee Harvey Oswald, from his birth until his arrest in Dallas, Tex., last Nov. 22. Oswald, charged with the sniper killing of Kennedy, was shot to death Nov. 24.

Chief Justice Earl Warren, chairman of the commission, declined to comment on any of her specific statements, including a reported contradiction of testimony given by Oswald's young widow, Marina. He told questioners that it includes hearsay, opinions and conjecture along with some relevant material.

FOR THE RECORD

The commission is accepting the whole of it for the record, he said, and the flow of words is being interrupted by "semiofficial questions" put by the commission's general counsel, J. Lee Rankin.

Although the 56-year-old practical nurse from Fort Worth, Tex., had asked the commission to obtain a lawyer for her because her own counsel was busy "on other matters," she turned up Tuesday with both lawyers.

One was the designated counsel, former Asst. U.S. Atty. John F. Doyle of Washington. The other was Mark Lane of New York City, who said he was retained without pay by Mrs. Oswald to represent her from two weeks ago.

For most of the time he looks on the take-home pay as his real pay. They tend to ignore the gross figure the employer pays the worker.

And take-home pay is set to rise, although some juggling will still have to be done by many taxpayers in squaring their final accounts with the U.S. Treasury.

From the gross amount, which the employer doesn't see except as a token figure, the employers withhold sums for various city or state taxes, pension funds, Social Security taxes, insurance, hospitalization maybe union dues and employee savings or bond programs.

But the figure on the check itself, or the bills in the envelope, is what many employees regard as their pay.

TEMPORARY ASPECTS
And when the withholding rate for federal income taxes drops from 18 per cent to 14 per cent, this money-in-hand is due to rise.

For many the "pay raise" will have some temporary aspects, maybe some illusions.

For a worker in the lowest tax bracket, the "pay raise" will be a real one.

For a worker in the highest tax bracket, the "pay raise" will be a real one.

For a worker in the middle tax bracket, the "pay raise" will be a real one.

Tax Cut Will Seem Just Like Pay Hike

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK— "Just like a pay raise" is the way most employees are likely to greet the federal income tax cut when it shows up next month in their take-home pay.

For those in higher brackets, the 14 per cent withholding will be too high. And at the end of the tax year, he will have a refund coming from the tax collector. But he'll have to wait for the money until then—as many are used to doing right now.

Garver said Wednesday that the switch in coaches was made because of a "difference in philosophy between the administration and coach Pence."

"There was no pressure from the community to have Mr. Pence relieved. It was not because of his won-lost record. We thought it best for the school. There is no reflection on Mr. Pence or on the school district."

Continuing, Garver said, "Mr. Pence will be retained as a teacher. We would like to have him stay. His teaching position has not been jeopardized."

Garver said he presented a list of new coaches for the 1964-65 school year (without Pence's name) to the board and it was accepted unanimously.

Pence, 33, is in his ninth year at Holly. He has been varsity coach for the past five years.

Sherman, 36, has served as junior varsity and joined the Holly schools 10 years ago and has coached the junior varsity and 7th and 8th grade squads during that time.

State Bird Honor at Stake

Robin Versus Warbler

LANSING (AP)—Investigation revealed today that Michigan's official bird—the robin red breast—is an impostor.

The current issue of the Michigan Manual states that the robin received the "official" designation back in 1931 when the legislature sponsored a concurrent resolution to that effect.

However, a check through records for that year shows the State Senate never passed the resolution, but instead referred it to a committee where it apparently died at the end of the session.

The question of the robin's titular rights probably never would have come up except a pretender to the throne of official state bird has been declared.

One of the hottest political battles of the century may be waged over the official Michigan bird.

Shall it be the traditional, but common, robin red breast—or shall the tiny Kirtland warbler, unique to Michigan, but nearly extinct, take over?

The Robin originally got the title after the Michigan Audubon Society took a statewide poll of nearly 200,000 votes "of which robin red breast received many more votes as the most popular bird in the state of Michigan" than any other.

However, the Audubon Society is now putting its money on the Kirtland's or Jack Pine warbler.

The tiny bird nests in a very limited-range in the Mio area and winters in the Bahamas. A monument to the warbler has been erected on the Osceola County courthouse at Mio and special lands have been set aside to preserve the nesting grounds of the warbler.

The robin is a much more common species, having been named as state bird by about 10 states, according to the Audubon Society officials.

However, if the Democratic party formula of one bird-one vote is applied, the robin will retain its title wings down.

There are millions and millions of robins in Michigan, according to guesstimates by the State Conservation Department, but there are just 1,000 Kirtland warblers in the world.

The limited range of the warbler, the limited numbers, the danger of the bird becoming extinct and the robin's present grasp on the unofficial title.

Two Republican state Reps., Raymond L. Baker of Berkley and Ross O. Stevens of Atlanta, are seriously considering introduction of a resolution backing the warbler.

Baker has had one resolution drafted and is awaiting more information before he decides to put the matter into the House hoppers.

Recommends Using Part of Sanatorium for Non-TB Patients

Conversion of two floors at the Oakland County Tuberculosis Sanatorium for use by non-TB welfare patients was recommended yesterday by a special committee of county supervisors and administrators.

They also recommended redesignating the three-story sanatorium at Union Lake "the Oakland County Hospital" or some other suitable name.

The recommendations will go before the ways and means committee before they are presented to the County Board of Supervisors sometime in April.

The conversion would be possible because of a steady decline in the number of TB patients achieved by new treatment methods, according to Acting County Health Director Dr. Bernard D. Berman.

The proposed switch would provide 83 more county beds for non-TB welfare patients.

An influx of patients at county facilities is expected to result from stricter state fire regulations due in May.

Some 20 nursing homes in the county probably will have to go out of business rather than install expensive sprinkler systems that would be required by the regulations, Dr. Berman reported.

If this happens, the county will have to provide direct care for many welfare patients now in these nursing homes, said George Williams, county welfare director.

NO GREATER DANGER

Dr. Berman assured the committee that welfare patients placed at the TB Sanatorium would be in no greater danger of contracting tuberculosis as a result.

He said today's treatment methods provide adequate protection from contamination, noting that combined operations already are in effect in 10 counties and at state hospitals.

Some of the additional county beds also could be filled with welfare patients convalescing in general hospitals, who could be cared for directly by the county at less expense, Williams noted.

The committee's recommendation also includes a provision to place ambulatory TB patients in an unused nurses home on the sanatorium grounds.

COST ESTIMATES

Costs to refurbish both the nurses home and the sanatorium should fall within $200,000, according to County Engineer Joseph Joachim.

An additional $75,000 will have to be spent to bring the Medical Care Facility at the County Service Center up to the State Fire Marshal's standards, he said.

Earlier the committee was considering alleviating some of this cost by moving about 90 welfare patients from the old wing into the TB Sanatorium, and converting the wing to office space.

Now it is felt the additional beds will be needed. The committee agreed that its recommendation is intended to meet only the immediate needs of the county welfare department, and that the long-range solution will be a new "long-term care hospital—medical care facility... at the County Service Center."

Cincinnati Negroes Protest

Views Mixed on Boycott

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — Negro leaders claimed a "tremendous success" in their one-day school boycott which kept an estimated 18,000 pupils out of classes yesterday, but the city school board said "it may all be in the way you look at it."

The boycott was called to protest alleged de facto segregation and discrimination against Negro teachers and children.

There was only one incident, the arrest of Mrs. Augustine Turner, who police said would be charged with assault and battery for shoving and threatening another woman taking her children to school.

There was a token demonstration at the school administration building, where three pickets marched. William Bowen, president of the local National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) chapter, sat in the building's lobby.

WENT SMOOTHLY

"Everything went smoothly," said police chief Stanley Schroten.

Leaders of the civil rights group said they were "ecstatic about the response. It represents a resounding vote by the Negro community of no confidence in the Cincinnati school board. We shall continue to use every avenue at our disposal to achieve our aims."

John W. Shreve, Assistant Schools Superintendent, stating he was not speaking for the school board, said he would not term the boycott a success or an overwhelming demonstration.

The school board said, in a statement, that 26,000 pupils in grades one through 12 were absent Tuesday, about 35 per cent of the enrollment. It said normally about 8,500 or 10 to 12 per cent were absent. The heaviest absenteeism was in elementary schools with 26.4 per cent.

The civil rights groups claimed at least 80 per cent of Negro pupils at predominantly Negro schools stayed away. The school board said nine all-white schools in suburban areas reported less absenteeism than normal.

Examination Scheduled in Crash Death

Samuel Funderburk, 32, of 28 Whitfield will appear in Avon Township Justice Court next Tuesday for examination on a charge of manslaughter in last Thursday's auto crash death of a Pontiac woman.

Funderburk demanded examination at a preliminary hearing before Justice Luther C. Green.

He is accused in the death of Mrs. Arden Bigham, 31, of 490 Emerson, driver of a station wagon that collided head-on with a pickup truck on Walton in Avon Township.

Elnae M. Allen, 25, of 296 First, a passenger in the station wagon, also was killed.

Witnesses said Funderburk was driving the truck and had been drinking, according to Assistant Prosecutor Daniel C. Devine.

Owner of the truck, Charles Walton, 51, of 2215 E. Walton was injured in the accident.

Ghana Expels U. of M. Prof

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI) — American Dr. William B. Harvey, dean of the Ghana University law faculty, was expelled from the country today for "subversive activities prejudicial to the security of the state."

Harvey, 41, on leave from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, left by plane for London for medical treatment.

He was the last to leave out of a total of six university staff members expelled, four of them Americans.

Harvey was the most prominent of the six. He was allowed to remain past last Saturday's deadline because of illness.

STILL TRYING

Informed travelers arriving in London from Accra said Ghana university officials are trying to maintain the university's traditional academic freedoms.

They fought vainly to prevent the government's expulsion of the lecturers, the travelers said. They said the government is considering new university legislation which is likely to determine whether the university will continue to exist on the lines of academic freedom.

India Will Resettle 50,000 Hindu Migrants

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India says it will resettle at least 50,000 Hindu migrants from East Pakistan, charging that Pakistani Moslem authorities failed to safeguard them during recent anti-Hindu riots.

Home Minister Gulzari Lal Nanda, who announced the plan in Parliament, traced the riots to the theft of a hair. Said to be from the head of the prophet Mohammed, the hair was taken from a shrine in the Indian-ruled portion of Kashmir. The hair has since been restored to the shrine.

'Jelly Babies' Pelt Beatles After Washington Concert

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Beatles, Britain's rock 'n' roll sensations with the ragmop hair styles, rocked the capital's teenage set who showed their appreciation by pelting them with jelly beans.

In their first live American concert—that is the way it was billed—the four singers of "yeah, yeah" music drew squeals and screams Tuesday night from some 5,000 youngsters, mostly girls, in the Washington Coliseum.

Dressed in tight gray suits with black Chesterfield collars, they twanged away on their electric guitars the pounding drums of Ringo Starr.

RATHER LOUD

All in all, it was deafening. Every time one of the boys shook his shaggy locks, the audience shrieked.

Vendors sold cotton candy, peanuts and large buttons with the legend, "I love Beatles."

Also available were wigs that would allow a wearer to give a reasonable imitation of a Beatle or a shaggy poodle.

While they banted out their hit songs, the audience tossed jelly beans at the stage. In Britain jelly beans are called jelly babies. In some mysterious way they have become identified with the Beatles. Among the jelly beans were peanuts, combs and apparently anything else that came readily to hand.

After the show the Beatles helped raffie off prizes at a masked charity ball at the British Embassy. Most of the prizes were Beatle record albums.

Gets Prison Term for Armed Robbery

A Pontiac man who admitted robbing a police officer at knifepoint was sentenced yesterday to prison for 2½ to 10 years.

Robert A. Miles, 23, of 184 Prospect was sentenced by Circuit Court Judge Philip Pratt. Judge Pratt accepted Miles' guilty plea to armed robbery three weeks ago.

Miles was one of three men accused of robbing Norman Kilmer, 23, Jan. 11 after stopping him while he was driving in the Bagley-Wessex area.

Kilmer, a Pontiac police officer, drew his revolver and ordered them to halt as they fled. Miles fled.

Major Finley, 19, of 59 Chapman and James Gibson, 23, 529 Franklin were arrested later. They are awaiting trial for armed robbery.

Ormsby-Gore said he had heard his children play their records many times and added that he thought the singers had "a cheerful outlook that is very refreshing."

They are also refreshingly frank.

They told a news conference they weren't upset about people who say they're not very good because "we're not."

Today they return to New York, for concerts in Carnegie Hall.

City Moves to Meter Sewer Use

The City Commission last night adopted an amendment to the city's sewer ordinance which would permit commercial and industrial sewage flow to be metered.

A second measure to establish tap-in fees for new connections to existing trunk sewers and for connecting existing lines to new trunk sewers was deferred for three weeks.

Presently, commercial and industrial sewage rates are estimated, with the estimates based on water consumption of customers.

City Engineer Joseph E. Neippling, who recommended the amendment, said that "our present method of determining sewerage billings to commercial and industrial users is not the most equitable way."

ACCURATE METHOD

"Installing meters in sewer lines will give us an accurate method of determining sewer charges."

The amendment gives the city the power to install such meters where the city engineer feels sewer charges don't accurately reflect actual flow.

Meters can also be installed at the request of customers who feel their bills are too high.

The measure designed to require tap-in fees was deferred so that Neippling could provide commissioners with some estimated costs for residential, commercial and industrial sewer connections.

FEE FORMULA

Neippling had already submitted a formula for determining sewer fees, but it was presented in terms of factors and percentages, rather than dollar amounts.

Insurance Agent's Opinion

Says Baker Scandal May Destroy LBJ

NEW YORK (UPI) — Donald B. Reynolds, the stereo-buying insurance agent in the Bobby Baker case, said last night the scandal has "only begun" and it might lead to the "destruction" of President Johnson.

Reynolds said he paid for the much-publicized stereo set, which Baker gave to Johnson, when Johnson was a senator and there was "no question in anyone's mind in the Johnson household" about that.

SEEKS NEW MATE — Lee Quinn, 36, of Los Gatos, Calif., who was skipper of an all-girl crew that sailed to the South Seas last summer, is seeking a divorce. Seated next to him is the woman he wishes to marry, Mrs. Bea Berkson, who was his first mate on the voyage. She plans to divorce her husband, a retired businessman. Quinn plans to divorce his wife, Mary Ann, (right).

NEW YORK — You'd better warn your out-of-town chums to make their hotel reservations now if they're coming to the World's Fair... otherwise they'll be sleeping in Newark, Jersey City, Philadelphia, or... even worse... at your place.

New York has 1,000 conventions this year. Business isn't merely bad... it's monstrous. But when vacationing students and visiting Europeans hit town around June 15, hotels hope to be as packed as a phone booth with Jackie Gleason and Tools Shor both in it. And thus the hotels are refusing to give the usual 10 per cent discount to bookers of tours—hoping to keep the slice for themselves and being confident that there'll be a great summer boom.

Jealous of the four Beatles, Jack E. Lewis is hoping to get together an act of himself, Dean Martin, Frank Sinatra and Jackie Gleason titled "The Four Bottles."... There's an ugly rumor about the Beatles (that they're actually bald)... Senator Ted Kennedy waited on line to get into Shepherd's and twisted with his sister Mrs. Steve Smith... Two married principals in a hot Broadway hit have a romance.

Playwright Arthur Miller reportedly got $80,000 from the S. E. Post for "After the Fall."... Mapela Ying, a Chinese beauty in the new Hawaiian Room show at the Lexington, from the Bronx and engaged to an engineer, Richard Wong, She's looking forward to becoming Mrs. Mapela Ying Wong.

Carol Burnett flew to California to show the baby to her grandmother... The Yul Brynners are vacationing aboard the Onassis yacht. Next stop: Nassau... Jack E. Leonard's new comedy album is titled "The Vanishing Americans"—about people on diets.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Woody Woodbury claims he's against socialized medicine: "When I need an excuse to stay home from work, I want the right to choose my own sickness." WISH I'D SAID THAT: This is the period of decision for a male bachelor, says Marvin Kaplan—whether to start saving for a Valentine's Day gift, or stop seeing the girl (til) next month. REMEMBERED QUOTE: "It is foolish to fear tomorrow. When it comes, it will be today."

EARL'S PEARLS: Nothing is so confusing to a man as driving behind a woman who knows what she's doing. The most surprising thing about Margaret Chase Smith seeking the presidency is that she's first woman to announce publicly she's over 35. That's early, brother.

PARIS (R)—The foreign minister officially announced today the appointment of Claude Chayet as French chargé d'affaires in Peking. He will leave for Red China next Tuesday.

The announcement said Chayet will travel by plane to Tokyo and Hong Kong. From there he will continue to Canton and Peking.

Chayet is due to reach Peking Feb. 23. The round-about route is necessary because there is no direct air connection between France and Red China.

Reynolds sold a large insurance policy to Johnson while he was vice president and also took radio advertising time on a Texas radio station owned by Mrs. Johnson.

Reynolds was a business associate of Baker before the latter resigned as secretary to the U. S. Senate's Democratic majority.

"LBJ CREATION" — The insurance agent, appearing on the Walter Cronkite television program (CBS), said Baker was a "partial creation of Mr. Johnson."

"I believe in Shakespearean terminology," said Reynolds. "It was called poetic justice when a hero is destroyed because of an inner weakness, not by external forces. And the thing Mr. Johnson created himself may be the thing that causes his destruction."

Reynolds said that Walter

Reynolds referred to the multimillion-dollar Murchison oil interests in Texas.

Johnson told newsmen in Washington shortly after the stereo incident was made public that he considered the set a gift from Baker.

TRADED GIFTS

At that time, Johnson said his family and the Bakers had often exchanged gifts. The President also said that he had given the stereo set to a member of the household staff.

Jenkins, a key White House aide who was an assistant to Sen. Johnson, knew about and participated in the decision leading to Reynolds' purchase of advertising time on the Johnson radio station.

Reynolds said he did not know if Baker had acted dishonestly. He said he thought the Democratic aide "looked to the wrong persons to create an image of himself."

EMULATES SENATORS

"Mr. Johnson would be one," Reynolds said. "I believe Bobby was rather close to the late Sen. (Robert) Kerr (D-Okla.) and I think he tried to emulate or copy the dress standard of Sen. (George) Murchison (D-Fla.)."

"And I think having been exposed to the Murchison group and having seen the affluence and flow of money and all these combinations thrown in, plus being exposed to Jimmy Hoffa, might have caused Bobby to create an image of himself that has caused much of his difficulty."

Reynolds referred to the multimillion-dollar Murchison oil interests in Texas.

Turtle's in No Hurry to Be on His Way

SEGO, Ohio (P) — While hunting mushrooms, Willard Swinehart came across a box turtle. Examining its shell, he found three sets of initials, the community name "Sego" and the year 1914 inscribed.

Swinehart recalled that his father had caught a turtle and made those inscriptions almost a half-century earlier.

The turtle had changed little in size, Swinehart said, and was within 150 feet of where his father found it originally.

Family of the Year Among Pool Lovers

CHICAGO (P) — A Grand Rapids, Mich., family has been named "Swimming Pool Family of the Year" for 1963.

The family of Dr. Ramon B. Lang, his wife and three children was selected by a committee of the Midwest Swimming Pool Association.

The Lang family had the first pool in their block. It was built three years ago.

"They derived so much benefit from it themselves and told so many people about the joys of pool ownership that there are now four more pools in the same block," said Roger F. Vaughn, chairman of the selection committee.

Now Has a Reason to Shun Gambling

NICHOLASVILLE, Ky. (P) — Mrs. Nettie Stinnett always has disliked gambling.

When she and John Fain tied in an election for Jessamine County magistrate, the two consented to let the race be decided on the flip of a coin — best two out of three.

Twice straight she lost the toss. Mrs. Stinnett still dislikes gambling.

Carter Quits Post, Lauds Commission

By DICK SAUNDERS

City Manager Robert A. Carter announced his resignation last night, in a statement praising Mayor Robert A. Landry and the present City Commission.

Carter said his resignation would be effective at midnight tonight and was final. "I will not reconsider," he stated.

Assistant City Manager John F. Reineck was appointed acting city manager immediately after the City Commission accepted Carter's resignation.

In his prepared statement, Carter said he had reached his decision to resign "only out of respect and high regard for the present commission."

OTHER COMMENTS

Official sources at City Hall who preferred to remain anonymous said that:

1) Carter was taking the action he had wanted to take since a grand jury indictment was issued against him in Flint Jan. 28.

2) He hadn't offered his resignation before because Landry and Mayor Pro Tem Winford E. Bottom told him he shouldn't, for political reasons.

3) The statement Carter read last night was suggested by Landry, and Carter was authorized to read it on Landry's approval.

POLITICAL ISSUE

Landry, according to sources close to both the mayor and city manager, agreed to the resignation only if the statement could be used as a political issue favoring the commission.

Other city officials reportedly asked Carter last week why he hadn't offered to resign earlier. He reportedly replied "because Landry and Bottom wouldn't let me."

Asked if the decision and statement were his own idea, Carter said, "I had a lot of conversation with a lot of people, but the decision was entirely my own."

Landry, in accepting the resignation last night, said "I regret the action you have taken." The mayor was unavailable today for comment on the resignation.

Carter was referring to a charge of conspiracy to defraud and cheat the City of Flint of sums of money which he now faces in Flint.

He was formerly city manager of Flint for four years. Carter was hired by the Pontiac City Commission last November.

"I expected my hearing Feb. 6 and appreciated your standing with me until then. With the hearing postponed until Feb. 27, I cannot leave you open to these criticisms any longer," he told commissioners.

Two Firemen Desperately Battle The Blaze At Big Value Furniture Store

Firemen Battle $100,000 Blaze Until 4 A. M.

City Fire Marshal Is Investigating Cause; Nothing Else Harmed

By JIM LONG

Fire gutted the Big Value Furniture Discounters store in downtown Pontiac last night, causing damage estimated in excess of $100,000.

Flames spread rapidly through the Big Value building, 47-55 S. Saginaw, after the fire started about 11:30 p.m.

Fifty Pontiac firemen from five engine and three ladder companies battled the blaze for hours, finally bringing it under control shortly before 4 a.m.

Several firemen stayed at the scene today to clean up and extinguish minor flare-ups among the debris.

The cause of the fire has not yet been determined by fire officials. It was being investigated today by the city fire marshal.

SPECTATORS WATCH

Several hundred spectators lined the curb across the street from the store at the height of the blaze. Saginaw was blocked to through traffic by Pontiac police.

An adjoining store, the Big Value Super Market, 50 S. Saginaw, filled with smoke but a fire wall prevented the fire from spreading.

No other buildings in the area were in danger.

Big Value Furniture is situated next to an empty lot on the north, once the site of the Oakland Theater, destroyed by fire in October, 1960.

The building housing the furniture store was formerly occupied by the Yankee firm and Lion's Men Wear prior to that.

OPENED IN MARCH

The furniture store is owned by Bert Gold of Southfield and was opened in March of last year after being completely remodeled.

Pontiac Fire Chief James R. White said that if the furniture store had had a sprinkler system the building probably would not have been lost.

Mackie to Run for Congress

Endorses Stoebley for Dem Governor Bid

LANSING (AP) — Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie announced today he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the new 7th District.

At the same time, Mackie said he will endorse Neil Stoebley—the only announced Democrat—for governor. Stoebley currently is congressman-at-large.

Mackie said his decision was based on several considerations, and added he believes he can do more to help Michigan with federal assistance programs that it needs in Washington than in Lansing.

"My decision is also influenced by the fact that the Democratic Party already has a superbly qualified candidate for governor in Neil Stoebley," he added.

NEW DISTRICT

The new 7th district, created in the apportionment plan passed by the 1963 legislature, is composed of Genesee, Shiawassee and Lapeer counties.

Mackie said, "I think my experience in government can more effectively be used in the Congress than elsewhere at this time. Congress offers the opportunity to specialize in the kinds of public works programs which will directly benefit people I would represent."

He said that Michigan in his time has developed the nation's

Rain Will Turn to Snow Flurries as Mercury Falls

The occasional light rain forecast for tonight will turn to snow flurries tomorrow as temperatures turn a trifle colder.

The low is expected to drop to 32 tonight. Tomorrow's high will reach near 38. Friday through Monday will be a little warmer.

Precipitation for the next five days will total about .25 of an inch in showers or light snow ending tomorrow and again about Monday.

Twenty-three was the low reading in downtown Pontiac prior to 8 a.m. today. The mercury recording at 1 p.m. was 33.

For City Elections

30 Hopfuls Set New Record

Pontiac is headed into the biggest primary election in its history March 2.

When the deadline came at 5 p.m. yesterday, 30 nominating petitions had been filed by prospective city commissioners.

The previous record primary ballot was 28 candidates in 1954.

One incumbent, Charles H. Harmon, did not file to run for a second term.

OTHER PLANS

Harmon, District 2 incumbent, said after last night's commission meeting that he hadn't planned to serve more than two years when he was elected in 1962.

"I decided on only one term when I started," he said. "I'm 64 now, in good health and ready to retire."

Harmon, a former city assessor, is a municipal advisor and tax consultant.

He said the Clinton River project and approval of the R44 urban renewal project were his "two most difficult decisions as a commissioner."

NOT FULLY

"I didn't fully agree that they were needed, or at least necessary in the scope they were originally planned," he noted.

"I had to vote for them though, since they were already so far along the way."

The final tally yesterday by City Clerk Olga Barkeley showed District 5 was tops with six candidates.

There are five each in Districts 2 and 6, four in District 1, 4 and 7, and two in District 3.

NO PRIMARY

Since no primary run-off will be needed in District 3, commissioners passed a resolution last night naming incumbent William H. Taylor and his opponent, Sam Gabriel, as the candidates for the April election ballot in District 3.

Primaries will be run in the other six districts.

Seeking nomination in District 1 are the incumbent Samuel J. Whittier, T. Warren Fowler Sr., Rolfe L. Jones and Robert J. Bowers.

Others are:

District 2: Norman L. Wittkop, Robert C. Irwin, Robert W. Jockwig, Philip R. Sauer and Allan J. Denham.

District 4: incumbent Winford E. Bottom, Leslie H. Hudson, George Grha, and Floyd P. Miles.

District 5: incumbent Loy L. Ledford, John A. Dugan, John Ridgway, Robert R. McKeever, Cecil C. Mullinix and Delbert E. Burnett.

District 7: incumbent Mayor Robert A. Landry, Emmett S. Wellbaum, Curtis L. Webb, and Elmer R. Betts Sr.

PREBANQUET CHAT — Republican Congressman William S. Broomfield of Oakland County (left) and Peter H. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey (center) reviewed the program with County Senior Assistant Prosecutor Robert L. Templin before last night's Lincoln Day Banquet in Pontiac. Frelinghuysen was guest speaker; Templin was toastmaster.

New Jersey Congressman Peter H. Frelinghuysen last night told some 500 Republicans in Pontiac that American prestige in the world has been dealt crippling blows by the Democratic administration's "fumbling" foreign policy.

"We are suffering from a steady erosion of our prestige and power in world affairs," Frelinghuysen added. "I don't want to sound pessimistic," he said, "but this is a very real crisis. We must have confidence in ourselves and we must have effective leadership."

Delivering a soft-spoken but hard-hitting address in a polished manner as guest speaker at Oakland County's 75th annual Lincoln Day Banquet, Frelinghuysen told an overflow crowd that the U.S. needs flexibility and foresight in its foreign policy.

NEED INITIATIVE

"We might easily have avoided the crisis in Panama if we had taken the initiative in solving some of the problems we knew were there," he said.

Frelinghuysen described the situation in Southeast Asia

The Lenten Story

By WOODY ISHMAEL

NOT BY BREAD ALONE

Lent begins today. The word is derived from the Anglo-Saxon "lenctan," meaning long. The period of the long fast, it commemorates Christ's 40 days of fasting in the desert in preparation for His death on the cross.

It was there, as Matthew tells us, that Satan tried to tempt Him. "And when the tempter came to Him, he said, If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread."

"But He answered and said, It is written, Not by bread alone does man live, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." (Matthew IV, 3-4.)

Court Session on Rest Home

Attorneys for Waterford Township and a nursing home will appear in Circuit Court tomorrow to straighten out whether or not a court order closing the home resulted from a mixup.

Some 25 elderly patients, including about 16 receiving all or partial welfare payment for their care, will be waiting the outcome to see if they must be moved.

As it stands now, the Oakland County Convalescent and Rest Home at 2260 Oakley, is prevented by a court order from occupying the premises because of sewage disposal problems.

But, the nursing home's attorney, Philip E. Rowston of Pontiac, says he has been assured by Township attorney Paul Mandel that enforcement of the order will not be pressed until the whole issue is resolved.

FILES PETITION

Rowston yesterday filed a petition asking Circuit Court Judge James S. Thorburn to set aside the restraining order which he signed Monday against further occupancy of the nursing home.

Rowston says the home has a permit to construct a septic tank and drain tile field to solve the sewage problem.

The petition will be argued tomorrow. All county offices are closed today.

Judge Thorburn granted the order when the attorney for Mrs. Margaret Peterson, owner of the premises used by the rest home, failed to appear in court although Mandel was there.

ASKS DEFAULT

Mandel asked for a default granting of the order.

He had filed suit on behalf of the township claiming that inadequate sewage disposal facilities at the home resulted in raw sewage flowing through an open storm drain, constituting "a nuisance, source of filth, and cause of sickness."

The township said that occupancy be prevented until the situation was corrected.

A hearing on a temporary restraining order was set for Jan. 27, but adjourned at the request of Mrs. Peterson's attorney, who has not been available to comment on his absence Monday.

Rowston said he thought Mandel was to be informed of the construction permit for a new sewage disposal system, or that Mrs. Peterson's attorney would inform him Monday in court.

lions of dollars that will be spent in building in Pontiac within the next year."

Asked to give details on what he later said was $6 million in new construction developments for which the commission could take credit this year, Carter said, "$2 million of it is the new apartment development on Telegraph Road between Hazel and Edna."

NEAR HOSPITAL

As for the other $4 million, "it's something out near the hospital. I can't tell you. You'll have to get that from the mayor."

Later, Carter said "I feel The Press has treated me fairly."

"I have no complaints about the newspaper stories here in Pontiac."

Official Avoids Injury in Airplane Mishap

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—Teno Roncaldo, chairman of the Canadian - U.S. International Joint Commission, escaped injury Tuesday in an emergency landing of his light plane.

The wheeling cowling of his plane's landing gear came loose and entangled with a wheel. Roncaldo circled the Cheyenne airport several times before landing.

Thais Shut Laos Border Because of Red Raids

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Thailand has temporarily closed part of its eastern border with Laos because of pro-Communist Pathet Lao advances in the area, an interior ministry spokesman said today.

The spokesman told newsmen the order applied to Ubol and Nakhon Phanom provinces only. The two provinces share a twisting frontier with Laos along the Mekong River.

Bottom 38, of 174 Euclid will be seeking his third term on the commission.

He has served as mayor pro tem since April 1962.

In filing for reelection, Bottom automatically filed a primary March 2 in District 4. Two other persons have already filed petitions in that district.

Bottom was a political neophyte in 1960 when he defeated former commissioner Floyd Miles. Two years ago, when Miles attempted to regain the District 4 commission seat, Bottom again defeated him.

ATTENDS CITY SCHOOLS

Born in Missouri, Bottom has been a Pontiac resident since childhood. He attended Pontiac schools and graduated from the U.S. Naval Ordnance School and General Motors Institute.

He has been secretary-treasurer of Thomas Die & Stamping Co. in Pontiac for 12 years.

Bottom is married and the father of two children. Prior to naval service in World War II, Bottom was an assemblyman in Pontiac Motor Division. He returned after the war to join the sales and purchasing departments until assuming his present job in 1952.

Bottom is a member of All Saints Episcopal Church. He is a Mason and a Shriner.

He also served as president of the Pontiac Police Reserve Association before elected to the commission four years ago.

District Two Gets Its 5th Candidate

A lifetime resident of Pontiac, Allan J. Denham 49, yesterday became the fifth person to announce his candidacy for the District 2 City Commission seat in the March 2 primary.

Denham of 93 Oriole is a process engineer at GMC Truck & Coach Division where he has been employed for 24 years.

He is a graduate of Pontiac Central High School and attended night courses sponsored by General Motors Technical Institute.

Denham has never sought a public office before.

In deciding to file a nominating petition, he said that "Pontiac's reputation has suffered from two years of friction and dissension at City Hall."

CALM THINKING

"What we need is some calm and objective thinking by a City Commission that will adopt sound policies and a constructive program — and then delegate administration to a trained and qualified city manager," Denham said.

He added that he believes "good attitudes and dedicated service are essential if we expect to capitalize on the fine opportunities that lie before us."

Denham is married and has three daughters, two married and one living at home.

He has been active in Parent-Teacher Association work in past years and is presently a member of the Webster Elementary School PTA.

JA ADVISOR

He also worked on the Pontiac Girl Scout Camp Committee for four years and is currently a Junior Achievement adviser in Pontiac.

Active in church activities, Denham is a member of First Congregational Church. He is a member of the church's music board and sings in the choir.

Denham is also a former member of the American Society of Tool Engineers.

FLOYD P. MILES

To Run Again for District 4

Miles Wants Seat Lost to Bottom in '60

A former commissioner, Floyd P. Miles, yesterday announced he would again seek to regain the District 4 city commission seat this year that he lost in the 1960 municipal election.

Miles is one of three nominees who will vie with Commissioner Winford E. Bottom in the March 2 primary.

Bottom defeated Miles in 1960 and Miles lost to the incumbent again in 1962 in a comeback attempt.

Miles, 55, of 160 W. Columbia has been a Pontiac resident for 52 years.

HELP PONTIAC

In filing a petition, he said he "welcomed the opportunity to help put Pontiac back on the road to a solid operation."

"To say that Pontiac government is in a mess is an understatement of fact," he said. "Those who promised the people great things have only brought disgrace to our city."

"Indications are that people want our city government returned to a position where it can be an example to other communities around us. It will take a group of experienced men who will work as a team to accomplish this."

The former commissioner headed the emergency transportation committee during the 1960 bus strike and later served as chairman of the City Commission's permanent transportation committee.

BACKGROUND

Miles is part owner and operator of the Christian Literature Sales book store in Pontiac.

An active church worker, he was once fulltime business manager for First Baptist Church and currently chairman of the Joint Board of Deacons, Trustees and Missions.

He is a former office worker at Pontiac Motor Division.

Miles is president of the Weaver - Owen - Hawthorne - Alcott Community Club and previously served six years on the Pontiac Municipal Employees Retirement Board.

Bloomfield Commission Delays Zone Code Vote

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — City commissioners last night postponed for at least another month a decision on the proposed zoning ordinance.

They are waiting for all members to be present for the vote on the controversial code which has been three years in preparation.

Commissioner James A. Beresford was out of town last night and Commissioner Henry L. Woolfenden will be unable to attend the next regular meeting, scheduled for March 10.

March 6 was set as the tentative date of a special meeting on the issue.

MINOR CHANGES

At their special session last week, the commissioners reached agreement on all but one section of the code after making minor changes.

They also agreed that further might be needed before a decision is made on the section which would allow construction of three-story town houses.

But last night they concluded that the study would not be aided by a direct mail survey of residents, an idea which had received a favorable reception a week earlier.

In changing their minds, commissioners noted that the ordinance has been much publicized in the last 2½ years and that residents have had ample opportunity to express their opinions at hearings and other meetings.

Other action last night included the appointment of a board of canvassers and board of review.

To serve on the board of review until Dec. 31, 1967 are Republican Robert E. Anderson and Democrat George H. Goldstone.

Also appointed to the board required by the new state constitution were Republican Allen D. Hart and Democrat Mrs. Cass S. Jaros, whose terms will expire Dec. 31, 1965.

The board of review which will meet March 14 and 21 consists of Commissioner John W. Blanchard, Robert E. Montbach and City Manager Elmer Kephart.

The Bloomfield Hills Board of Education has taken its first step toward providing transportation.

as "almost beyond repair" and said U.S. relations with France have "so deteriorated that it has even been suggested we put in a 'hot line' to de Gaulle."

The congressman called on the U.S. to take a lesson from the French president, "to take the initiative, as de Gaulle unquestionably does, in furthering his nation's interests."

The fourth-ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Frelinghuysen said Cuba was "still savable in 1960" when Democrats took over the White House, but "now is gone."

REINHERT

"President Johnson would give much if he could reinvent the U.S. position of 1960 at the end of the Eisenhower Administration."

"Why," asked Frelinghuysen, "did we stumble from a diplomatic embarrassment to another? How long can we afford this ineptitude?"

He said, "We now stand before the world as a vacillating giant kicked by our enemies and twitted by our friends."

The congressmen had praise, however, for the administration's establishment of the Peace Corps and the signing of the nuclear test-ban treaty.

CAMPAIGN ISSUE

He said he did not like to see foreign policy a partisan or campaign issue, "but there's no question but that it's on everyone's mind."

Frelinghuysen was introduced by Oakland County's congressman, William S. Broomfield, who is fifth-ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

tation for nonpublic school students next year.

Trustees authorized the purchase of 12 new buses. The $72,000 outlay was approved by educators who had fought the new state law down to the last minute.

They now are planning to transport between 600 and 1,000 students attending the district's six nonpublic schools.

Supt. Eugene Johnson said the 12 buses are only an estimate of the needs and probably will need reinforcements.

Problems involved in the transportation program are now being explored by Johnson and officials of the nonpublic schools.

Blasts Swiss for Allowing Defection of Red

GENEVA (AP) — Soviet disarmament negotiator Semyon K. Tsarapkin said today "provocative activity" by Western intelligence agencies in Switzerland led to the defection of a member of his delegation, Yuri I. Nosenko.

The State Department disclosed Monday that Nosenko, 36, identified as an officer of the KGB, top Soviet security agency, had requested political asylum in the United States.

State Department press officer Richard I. Phillips said Nosen-ko had told U.S. officials he was a staff officer of the KGB sent to Geneva on temporary duty from security headquarters in Moscow.

In a prepared statement read to newsmen, Tsarapkin accused the Swiss authorities of tolerating this activity on the sidelines of the 17-nation disarmament conference. He made it clear he considered Switzerland responsible for Nosenko's disappearance.

'RETURN NOSENKO!'

He called on the Swiss to "take all necessary measures to return Nosenko to his place of work and to his family."

Nosenko, a security officer of the Soviet delegation, disappeared from Geneva Feb. 4.

It was Tsarapkin's first comment on the case since Nosenko disappeared.

The Soviet delegate read his brief statement grim-faced and declined to answer any questions.

NOTHING FURTHER

"I have nothing further to say," he declared as he marched out of the room followed by his chief advisers.

His statement indicated that he expects the Swiss to call on the United States to return Nosenko to Geneva and deliver him to the Soviet delegation.

The Swiss were expected to reject both the Soviet complaint and the demand for Nosenko's return.

Nosenko arrived in Geneva Jan. 20. Disarmament conference documents listed him as an expert without specifying his particular field.

LEGAL EXPERT

Soviet sources in Geneva called Nosenko a legal expert of the Soviet Foreign Ministry. This presumably would give him access to Soviet defense secrets and negotiating plans for the disarmament conference which resumed its talks here Jan. 21.

The Soviet delegation kept Nosenko's disappearance secret for three days. They informed Swiss police only after apparently becoming convinced that he had skipped to the West. Swiss authorities said later Nosenko crossed into France the day he disappeared.

Nosenko lived with about 10 other Soviet delegation members in a small hotel on Avenue Wendt in the Servette district of Geneva.

On the day he vanished, the Russians at the hotel were all packing and moving to the delegation headquarters.

GENERAL BUSTLE

There was speculation that Nosenko picked this particular day for his departure because the general bustle of moving allowed him to take his belongings out of the hotel without arousing suspicion.

An international search warrant for Nosenko was circulated through Interpol to France and several other West European countries.

French police said a check revealed that Nosenko visited Paris last on Jan. 19.

Soviet sources said he is married and has two children, but brought no member of his family to Geneva.

Hoffa Plans Appeal for Higher Court Aid on 'Federal Spying'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — James R. Hoffa, charging the FBI is spying on his every move and the judge in his jury-tampering trial won't do anything about it, says he will ask a higher court for help.

The charge overshadowed the windup today of cross-examination of the government's chief witness, Edward G. Partin of Baton Rouge, La. Partin began his testimony eight days ago.

Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, said his attorneys will ask the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, Ohio, to compel Judge Frank W. Wilson to listen to his charges.

RIGHT DENIAL

Wilson's refusal to interrupt the trial, now in its 18th day, for a special hearing to consider the matter means "we are being denied our constitutional rights," Hoffa told reporters Tuesday.

Prosecutor James F. Neal of Washington denied government agents were watching Hoffa, his five codefendants or their lawyers.

"Hoffa is up to his usual antics of trying to divert attention from the issues on trial," Neal told newsmen.

The defense has charged nearly every day since the trial began Jan. 20 that its activities were being observed.

OFFERED EVIDENCE

An affidavit from a self-styled professional wiretapper, Bernard B. Spindel of New York, was offered in evidence.

Hoffa and the other five are being tried for allegedly attempting to fix the jury in Hoffa's 1962 conspiracy trial at Nashville. That trial ended with a hung jury.

In his affidavit, Spindel said he was hired by Hoffa to detect whether there is or has been surveillance.

Partin's fourth day of cross-examination Tuesday was largely repetitious.

TEAMSTER-INFORMER

Partin, business manager and secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 5 at Baton Rouge, testified last week he kept the Justice Department informed during the Nashville trial of alleged attempts by Hoffa and others to reach the jury in that case.

The other defendants are Allen Dorfman, Chicago; Larry Campbell, Detroit; Nicholas J. Tweel, Huntington, W.Va.; and Ewing King and Thomas Parks of Nashville.

Complaint Not Signed in Assault

Police were still in doubt today whether a 22-year-old woman, assaulted shortly before noon yesterday in downtown Pontiac by a 17-year-old youth running from police, would sign a complaint.

The youth, Charles Freeman, 1209 Gage, Holly Township, is in the county jail after being unable to post $5,000 bond on a rape charge. He had demanded examination on the charge.

He was being taken to the jail after his arraignment yesterday on the rape charge when he broke loose from a state police detective.

The youth was captured at noon on Padlock at Mount Clemens by Pontiac police.

He had broken away from Flint State Police post detective Jack Brouwer as he was led up the stairs at the Oakland County Jail, 104 Wayge. Brouwer's hand and knee were cut when he was knocked down.

GRABS WOMAN

Police said that Freeman then raced around the corner at the rear of the jail on Warren, grabbed the woman and tried to force her down to the ground.

Freeman was cornered by patrol cars driven by patrolmen Eldon Mudge and George Schuren several blocks from the jail.

When Freeman saw he could not get away he jumped into Schuren's car, police said. He was returned to the jail and booked on the rape charge.

that makes sprinklers mandatory in some apartment basements.

The action was taken following a fire in the Parkside apartment, 101 Mechanic, Jan. 13. At that time a tenant was killed when a blaze started in the apartment storage area.

Thirteen months ago a fire destroyed the WKC home outfitting and jewelry store at 108 N. Saginaw. Damage was estimated at $230,000.

At that time the owner, Jack J. Wainger said "I know I'll never have another place that doesn't have a sprinkler system."

SYSTEM INSTALLED

When the store was rebuilt, a sprinkler system was installed.

During last night's fire, Chief White ordered the electricity in the immediate area as well as gas into the building turned off.

White said that if a solid stream of water should strike high voltage wires, the charge could follow the water back to the nozzle and electrocute the fireman.

"It would be just like grabbing the wire with your bare hand," White said.

Ten off-duty fire fighters were called in to help battle the blaze.

The furniture store and supermarket, while not presently in the Urban Renewal program, are listed in a revised development plan not yet approved by the federal government.

Theft Foiled by Attendant at City Station

A 22-year-old attendant foiled an attempted armed robbery of a Pontiac gas station early this morning.

James E. Ivey of 645 Auburn told police he went about 12:30 a.m. to check gas pumps on the side of the building, located at 420 S. Saginaw.

He saw a man standing near the gas station and the man told him to "come here."

Ivey told police he went over to the man, but when he saw the man had a white stocking with two eye holes over his face he pushed him and ran, yelling at a second attendant to call police.

The would-be bandit fled.

Speedup Sought in Ruby Case

DALLAS (AP) — Lawyers indicated today they will try to speed up the lengthy hearings in which the defense seek to move the Jack Ruby murder trial to another city.

Lawyers for both sides arrived well ahead of court opening to go through stacks of Dallas newspapers, seeking agreement on what stories may be entered in evidence.

Courtroom arguments over what is admissible have been time consuming.

The hearing entered its third day with Ruby's defense team seeking to establish that a city scared by the assassination of President John F. Kennedy and the subsequent killing of the accused assassin could not produce an impartial jury to hear the case.

FAIR TRIAL?

The president of Neiman-Marcus department store and a wide range of other witnesses testified Tuesday it appears unlikely, if not impossible, that Ruby could get a fair trial in Dallas.

The trial is scheduled to begin Monday, unless District Judge Joe B. Brown grants a change of venue.

Chief defense counsel Melvin Belli said he would call Carl Freund of the Dallas News, author of several stories since the assassination that have been entered into the court record.

Several defense witnesses have testified a feeling exists that Ruby, a 32-year-old night club operator, besmirched the city when he shot down Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin, Nov. 24, and that he would have to be convicted to brighten the city's image.

FOLLOWS ASSASSINATION

The killing of Oswald followed by two days the death of President Kennedy at the hands of a sniper as the Presidential motorcade moved through downtown Dallas.

Envoys Present Plan for Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Undersecretary of State George Ball and British envoy Cyril Pickard called on President Makarios today to present the latest U.S.-British plan to land an international peace keeping force on Cyprus.

Ball hurried to the meeting shortly after he arrived from Turkey on his flying peace mission.

The conference took place as fighting between Greek and Turkish communities flared anew in the south coastal city of Limassol, 38 miles southwest of Nicosia. At least one Greek Cypriot policeman was killed, a palace spokesman said.

DECIDE CASE

A spokesman for the Greek Cypriot president said the talks will decide whether Makarios will take the case to the United Nations. If they are considered unsatisfactory, a special Greek Cypriot delegation will probably be sent to U.N. headquarters in New York later this week.

Ball told newsmen he hoped to have full discussions with Makarios and Vice President Fazil Kitchuk, a Turkish Cypriot.

"There's a problem to be solved, and it's hoped it will be solved," he said.

He refused to comment on a newsmen's query as to when American troops would land on Cyprus as part of a U.S.-British plan for a peacemaking force.

NO SIGNS

There were no signs of anti-American demonstrations in Nicosia. Greek Cypriot officials insisted they expected none.

Nicosia rumbled with threats of a new flareup of Greek Cypriot violence. Two bomb explosions at the U.S. Embassy last week sent women and children of American personnel fleeing from the Mediterranean island.

Clashes between Greek police and students marked Ball's stopover at Athens Monday as demonstrators demanding union between Cyprus and Greece tried to march on the U.S. and British embassies.

Britain was one target because its troops now police an uneasy truce between the warring Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities. The United States was the other because it has offered to help with the police work.

As President Johnson's troubleshooter, Ball is expected to outline the latest U.S.-British proposal for an international peace force for Cyprus to President Makarios, a Greek Cypriot, and Vice President Fazil Kitchuk, a Turkish Cypriot.

British officials in London said the revised plan gives the United Nations a voice but no vote on peacekeeping operations and abandons a previous condition that the force be raised from partners in the North Atlantic alliance.

Makarios turned down the original plan because of the dominant role it gave the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and insisted that any international force on Cyprus be under control of the U.N. Security Council.

The United States and Britain have sought to keep the Security Council out of the dispute since it would then come under the threat of a Soviet veto. Moscow has assailed the proposed use of NATO forces in Cyprus.

President, British Chief Start Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson and British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home today began talks expected to be dominated by the explosive Cyprus issue, Anglo-American differences over Cuban trade and the increasing Communist peril in Southeast Asia.

Douglas-Home arrived at the White House from Canada this morning and immediately went into conference with the President after a brief welcoming ceremony.

Their talks today and tomorrow come at what American officials admit is a critical point for the western alliance.

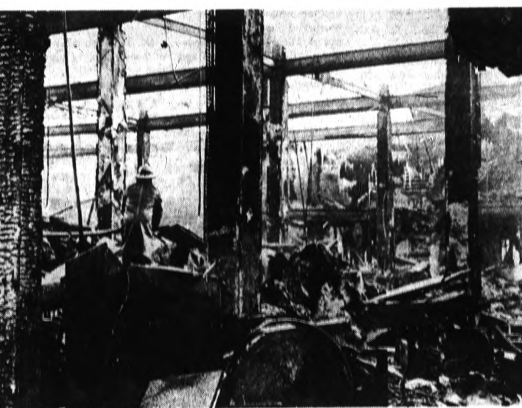

It is plagued by France's new neutralist drive in Asia, differences among NATO members on military strategy, and indecision as to how to handle new Communist-inspired troubles from East Africa to Southeast Asia.

FIRST SESSIONS

The conferences are the first real business sessions between the two since Johnson became President. They met briefly when Douglas-Home was here for the funeral of President John F. Kennedy.

Write-In Candidates Hope to Oust Romeo Officials

ROMEO—A hot political battle is shaping up for Monday's primary election here with four write-in candidates attempting to oust the present administration.

Democratic council candidate Martin Durham, whose name was removed from the ballot yesterday, is joining two other candidates for council in the write-in campaign.

Retired Romeo State Police Post Commander Edgar Welsh

is vying for the village presidency, also as a write-in candidate. He was Romeo police chief under the previous administration.

Village Attorney Gary M. Corbin informed Durham yesterday that his name would not appear on the ballot.

CERTAIN PROCEDURE

Corbin issued the formal notice after discovering that a Democrat cannot appear on the ballot, without following certain election procedure, when the party has not had a candidate in the two previous elections.

So Durham is joining three recently declared write-in candidates in a bid to oust the village fathers now in power.

Campaigning for election to the three vacant council seats are Durham, James C. Burke of 355 N. Bailey and Thomas S. Raymond of 197 Washington.

"The people in general are not satisfied with the way things are going," Welsh said yesterday. "Our running will at least raise some interest in this town."

FOURTH TERM

The current village president, Wayne N. Black, has turned in petitions for a fourth term. Incumbent councilmen Tony Galan and Jack McFadden are also seeking reelection.

Norman Engel, who now fills a third council post, filed petitions for the clerk's job before council cut the clerk's salary from $4,200 to $15 per meeting.

Vying with Engel for the position being vacated by Mrs. Dorothy Carl is Mrs. Phyllis Melien, 254 E. St. Clair.

The four write-in candidates are opposed to turning the village clerk's post into a part-time job.

NO YES-MAN

"It looks to me, and a lot of other people, that the council decreased the clerk's pay and responsibility because they didn't want Engel," Durham said. "He isn't one of their yes men."

The write-in candidate said some of the present council members are under pressure because of their jobs and other obligations.

"I don't owe anybody anything or work for anyone, so I can be honest," he said. "I'm not going to be a tool for anybody."

Council activity has been the object of community-wide discussion since Jan. 6, when the village fathers slashed the clerk's salary to a fraction of that now being paid.

AFTER DEADLINE

The vote came after the deadline for withdrawing from the village election.

But both candidates for the clerk's job say they still want it.

Engel, however, says he thinks the council action is illegal, because it "changed the nature of the office after the deadline for entering or pulling out of the race."

Monday's election will show how village residents feel about council's decision. It was reached by a majority vote, with Trustee Stanley Holmes dissenting and Engel abstaining.

Milford Stalled in Street Plan

Court Order Halts Action on Tax Roll

MILFORD—The public hearing on a proposed $213,000 street improvement program opened last night with presentation of a restraining order.

The order, issued by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Philip Pratt 4½ hours before the meeting, halted village action on confirmation of the special assessment rolls.

However, the Village Council continued with its plans to discuss the controversial program and more than 100 residents remained in their seats. But no action was taken.

Village officials also were ordered by Pratt to appear in Circuit Court Tuesday to show cause why the restraining order should not be made a preliminary injunction.

PROPERTY OWNERS

The action is being sought by nine property owners who would be involved in the proposed program.

They are headed by Paul A. Plotzer, a former village president who gathered 125 signatures on a referendum petition to have a charter amendment placed on the March 9 ballot. It would change the village's method of assessing.

The proposition needs the approval of Gov. George Romney before it can be put on the ballot, but that word had not yet come last night.

If the amendment were approved by the electorate, a special assessment district could be formed only on a majority vote of the property owners living in the district.

AFTER ELECTION

Meanwhile, the nine plaintiffs want to postpone action on the street program until after the election.

Village Attorney Harry Mead said the courts do not have the authority to dictate municipal legislation.

But he noted that a "central point" in the case may be the village charter provision that certification of a referendum petition by the clerk automatically suspends operation of the ordinance in question.

During last night's 1½-hour session, 17 written objections were read. Generally they and those expressed verbally dealt with the size of the assessments to residential property owners who would pay 100 per cent of the surfacing costs.

Educational Cutbacks Eyed

Utica School Dilemma: Where to Chop

UTICA—Faced with an academic dilemma, Utica Community School Board members are deciding which way to go.

Both paths lead to a cutback in the district's educational program.

Two proposals are under consideration by the board, one presented by the elementary school principals, the other recommended by the secondary level administrators.

They were brought before the board as a part of its reevaluation of the budget following the recent election.

Some 6,300 voters—more than twice any previous turnout—voted a $7.5-million bond issue by 412 votes. They also rejected a request for a 4-mill, five-year school tax, 3.25 to 3.063.

Following the election Schools Supt. Fred M. Atkinson predicted some of its effects. He said about 60 professional school personnel would have to be released.

Farmington OKs Projects for Half of School Program

FARMINGTON—The board of education has approved 11 projects to account for half of the $5 million bond issue accepted by taxpayers in November.

The board expects to sell the first $2.5 million worth of bonds about the first of May. It will hold the other half in reserve until needed, probably in the fall of 1965.

The entire building program was designed to carry the district through the fall of 1967.

Highlighting the list of projects approved are a new elementary school and major additions to two secondary buildings.

MORE CLASSROOMS

Three-year-old North Farmington High School is to receive 24 additional classrooms. Existing facilities will be expanded in the $553,000 project to increase the capacity from 970 to 1,690 students.

A similar addition and expansion are planned at East Junior High, where the board will spend some $580,000 to house 1,350 rather than 810 students. The building is now in its first year of operation.

Location of a new $480,000 elementary school has not yet been determined. It will include 14 classrooms plus accessory areas. Planned at Farmington High is an $80,000 multipurpose room which can be used as a physical education teaching station, two classrooms, cafeteria space or a meeting room for 200-300 adults.

Remodeling projects are slated for Dunkin Junior High at a cost of $10,600 and Farmington Junior High, $5,310.

Gill Road, Middlebelt and Bond elementary schools are in line for six additional classrooms each and some remodeling.

Libraries will be built at Bond and Middlebelt and all-purpose rooms at Gill and Bond. Total cost is estimated at $384,540.

Atkinson also said the proposed expansion program, which included a new 1,800-student high school and 70 new elementary class rooms, would have to wait.

And he said that "hundreds of students will have to go on half-days."

Now the board is deciding at what level of schooling the children will be deprived of the regular sessions.

Speaking for the elementary principals, Leonard Morrison, Sterling Elementary School principal, has proposed placing either the children in grades kindergarten through three on half-days, or all grade school children on half-days.

David Lathers, principal of Eppler Junior High School, has suggested a five-hour day for secondary students. He also recommended keeping some of the 10th graders in the junior high, to relieve overcrowded high school conditions.

SUBSTANTIAL REDUCTIONS

The five-hour day would mean substantial reductions in the academic programs, such as the fields of art, music, home economics, and physical education, Lathers admits.

However he thinks it's the best solution.

"The five-hour day is at best a way to substantially reduce our program while maintaining the framework of our curriculum, so that we can go back to a full program as soon as possible," he says.

If either of the proposals is accepted and put into operation, school officials predict it will cause the district to be put on probation by the accrediting institutions.

Administrators also say that if no remedial moves are made within a certain time the system will be dropped from the accredited listing.

The board is scheduled to make a decision at its next regular session, Feb. 24.

Name Chief for Hospital in Goodrich

GOODRICH—Dr. Lynn Phelps 10122 Janaro, has been named acting chief of staff of the medical staff of the new Wheelock Memorial Hospital.

His appointment was announced by Donald McKennon, president of the Community Health Foundation, a non-profit community organization which built the $650,000 facility.

Residents of Goodrich and surrounding area will have their first opportunity to tour the new 50-bed hospital at an open house from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Medical operations will start the next day and formal dedication ceremonies will be held this spring.

NURSING DIRECTOR

McKennon also announced the appointment of Mrs. Helen Tittsworth, 796 Barron, Goodrich Township, as director of nursing.

Both Dr. Phelps and Mrs. Tittsworth were members of the staff of the old Goodrich Hospital which was closed three years ago after it was declared a fire hazard by the state fire marshal.

Richard Dorsett, who came to Goodrich from Texas, is the hospital's administrator.

Doesn't Dig 'Beatle Cut'

2 Teens Sent Home by Dryden Principal

DRYDEN—"It's not the length of the hair, but the style" that bothers Dryden Community High School Principal Wendell Martin—that mop-haired Beatle style.

"We don't want them in class with the Beatle haircut," Martin explained today. Yesterday he sent two students home and told them not to return until they changed their way, specifically their way of combing hair.

"They were all right the early part of the day," Martin said, "but during the last hour they combed their hair in the same fashion as The Beatles."

The two high school juniors, whom Martin refused to name, were back in school today with their locks combed in "an acceptable style."

VEHEMENT OPPOSITION

Martin expressed vehement objection to the coiffure which features hair growing long down the neck and sides and bangs cut even with the eyebrows.

The haircut is a distinctive feature of The Beatles, the English rock 'n' roll singers who have become idols of the teen-age set.

Rochester YMCA Sets Dance Class

ROCHESTER—The theme will be "swing your partner," in either a square or a circle, at Friday's introductory square dance class sponsored by the Rochester YMCA.

Lessons will be given either singly or in a series of ten. If sufficient student interest is shown a square dance club will be formed.

MILFORD—A honeymoon in Nassau following the recent wedding of Lorraine Theresa Hensel and Patrick Floyd Newkirk who exchanged their vows in St. Patrick's Catholic Church, White Lake Township.

The bride's uncle, Rev. Gerald Scherer of Winner, S.D., officiated at the Nuptial High Mass.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Hensel, 571 Lakeside, and the Floyd Newkirk of Algonac.

For her wedding the bride chose a four-length gown of brocade satin with a detachable train. Her headpiece of velvet leaves and pearlized orange blossoms held a veil of silk illusion.

She carried a bouquet of white roses and Stephanotis.

WEDDING PARTY

Connie Hensel was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Judy Newkirk, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Del. M. Munson of Allen Park and Ella Bouckaert of Milford.

On the esquire side Jack Newkirk was best man for his brother while David Hensel, brother of the bride; Alex Galant of Allen Park, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; and Arden Marks of Pontiac seated guests.

Flower girl was Mary Ann Galant, niece of the bridegroom. Rick Hensel, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

'Safe' Smoking Suggested as Answer to Cigarette Problem

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer
NEW YORK — A new kind of smokers' clinic—for people who enjoy and want to continue cigarettes—was suggested today by a chest specialist.

The clinics would teach how to smoke safely, without inhaling, said Dr. Alvan L. Barach of New York City.

He said one method is to take a puff of smoke into your mouth. Close your lips firmly. Then inhale air deeply through the nose. Then exhale — of course.

Dr. Barach told the New York State Medical Society. "There is no scientific evidence that noninhaling smoking causes cancer of the lung" and other diseases.

NO INDICTMENT

"As physicians, we must be careful not to indict the non-inhaler just because excessive inhaling smoking is harmful, nor to support a war against enjoyment unless harm can be demonstrated in each individual case," he said.

Dr. Barach commented on a speech presented by Dr. Richard H. Overholt of Boston on "The Physician's Obligation to the Public Regarding Cigarette Smoking."

Dr. Overholt, of Tufts University and the Overholt Clinic, in his text declared the medical profession must be the leader in dissuading people from smoking because "the government cannot and will not be the emancipator."

Dr. Overholt said doctors should "convincingly advise relatives, friends and patients of the immediate and long-term ill effects of smoking" while avoiding "any Carrie Nation type of prohibition."

Dr. Overholt declared the

"devastation" from smoking "is far greater than smallpox or the plague ever was."

GREAT DEVASTATION

Dr. Barach, emeritus professor of medicine at Columbia's College of Physicians and Surgeons, said, "The motivation of the cigarette abstentionists may be questioned if there are clinics devoted only to the abolition of smoking, and not to safer methods of smoking, especially noninhaling."

"The evidence is now adequate to substantiate beyond a doubt that it is more healthful to smoke without smoke entering the lungs. I pose the question: Why is this not emphasized, why is noninhaling smoking not emphasized as a public health measure?"

Smoking without inhaling does not produce cough; nor increase carbon monoxide in the blood nor after lung function, Dr. Barach said. And 40 per cent of patients "are successful in switching over to this nonirritating method of smoking."

Governor Says So

'Frog Rains' in Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Fifth-grader Terry White, a former Floridian, stirred up skepticism when he told his classmates at Follansbee, W. Va., that it sometimes rained frogs in Florida.

Today he had powerful support for his story. Florida's governor, Farris Bryant, agreed that sometimes it not only rains frogs but also tiny fish.

Terry wrote the governor "my room and teacher doesn't believe my story" about seeing it rain green frogs when he was 5.

Bryant explained to Terry that the frogs were sometimes swept up into clouds by high winds, and fell back to earth later with the rain.

"I hope that your teacher will accept this verification of your story," Bryant said.

Cheal Family Rates High at District Music Festival

Pontiac junior and senior high school students garnered "superior" and "excellent" ratings Saturday in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association District 4 Festival.

A unique feature of local participation in the day-long festival, held at Kimball High School, Royal Oak, was the showing of the Cheal family.

These four youngsters, Lee, Dale, Billy and Diane Cheal, brought back six top ratings in the music competition.

BROTHER BILLY

Brother Billy, fifth grader at the same school, earned the same rating for a trombone solo. He also joined Dale Cheal in winning a first rating for a baritone horn solo.

Dale also rated "superior" in his trombone solo.

Diane Cheal added to the family winnings in two categories. The Washington Junior High eighth grader earned a first place and for her clarinet solo.

In addition, she joined Nancy Wirth, Jacki Page and Lee Rebennack in a mixed clarinet quartet that received the top rating.

Participants at the festival were given ratings from one to five: 1—superior, 2—excellent, 3—average good performance, 4—below average and 5—very poor.

Jill Anderson, of Pontiac Central High School, received a top rating for her clarinet solo. She and Jane Belongard earned a "2" rating for their duet. Pontiac Central's John Nelson and Jobe Post were awarded a "2" rating for their clarinet duet. John Nelson was also a member of a B-flat clarinet quartet that received a "2" rating.

Art Gale and Ed Chase, of Central, received a "2" for a trumpet duet. Stephanie Bennett and Diane Crawford received a "2" for a trumpet duet. A vocal duet by Cindy Gowan and Anne Peoples earned a "2" rating. Christine Erickson, Charlotte Allhouse, and Nancy Hui formed a string quartet that received a "2" rating. Miss Allhouse was awarded a "2" for a viola solo.

Drum soloists Lyle Vello and Alan Vello received a "2" for their drum solo. Vello also picked up a "2" for his marimba solo. Paul Grank received a "2" for an oboe solo.

At Pontiac Northern High School, a flute trio—Mary L. Quenell, Robert Carr and Phyllis Haffner—earned a "2" for their flute trio. Pontiac Northern's Dennis Hendon, Jerry Stoner, Douglas Jensen, David Olson, and Gerry Eldridge received a "2" for an oboe solo.

Donald McGee, of Lincoln Junior High School, won a "2" rating for a bass clarinet solo and Susan Norberg and Mary Matthews earned a "2" for a flute duet.

Ronald Say and Rufus Burrow, of Jefferson Junior High School, received solo clarinet ratings. Say received a "2" for his clarinet solo and Burrow received a "2" for his clarinet solo.

Madison Junior High School students, Gale Holtz (flute), Doris Lacey (clarinet), Sue Walmsley (clarinet), and Debbie Tensler (clarinet) were awarded a "2" for their woodwind quartet.

Other Madison students performed well. Brian Agers, Douglas Miller, Bill Carter and Mary Vasi also won a "2" rating. A similar trio—Dale Douley, Allen Reid and Mary Vasi—also won a "2" rating. And another woodwind quartet—Mary S. Morse, Jackie Goe, Jan Beebe and Linda Hess—picked up a "2" in the festival.

Shelton also joined with Barbara Deason in a viola solo rating. "2" Spring students at Washington Junior High School also earned high ratings. Beverly Patton and Brian Rosenfield were awarded a "2" and "2" respectively. A similar trio—Dale Douley, Allen Reid and Mary Vasi—also won a "2" rating. And another woodwind quartet—Mary S. Morse, Jackie Goe, Jan Beebe and Linda Hess—picked up a "2" in the festival.

Liechtenstein Starting Its Own 'Peace Corps'

VAUDIZ, Liechtenstein (AP)—The principality of Liechtenstein announced Tuesday it is setting up a "corps of peace volunteers" who will be sent in special mission to developing countries, following the example of the United States.

Liechtenstein, a hereditary monarchy of 16,000 people on 62 square miles, is ruled by Prince Franz Joseph II.

'Cupid Collection' Set

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia Postmaster Anthony I. Lambert says a special mail collection will be made Thursday to insure that Valentine greetings reach their destination on time Valentine's Day.

Lambert calls the operation "Cupid collection."

But the study should take into consideration the needs of the entire area and not merely rapid transit as might serve Detroit, he said.

Such a study would have to be approved by the boards of each county concerned, he said.

Based on land use, the study might show rapid transit is needed across the entire area and not just into the central city, Hamlin added.

STUDY PROPOSED

The study was proposed by the Detroit Metropolitan Area Regional Planning Commission.

The commission is seeking $3 million in a federal grant to finance the study under the Urban Planning Assistance Program.

The program is administered by the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

An outline defining the course of study will cost $35,000 alone, according to the regional planning commission. This prospect

His Appeal Got Action

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Leonard J. Trujillo went to court yesterday to ask that his second forgery conviction be "set aside" in the interest of justice.

Trujillo, 21, told Judge Edward J. Keating that a sentence of two to six years was imposed by the judge despite lack of certain evidence. Keating reviewed the case.

"You want justice done," he told Trujillo, "so I'm going to accommodate you." He made the sentence three to eight years.

The government has warned physicians of certain harmful side effects when cortisone products are applied directly to the eyes under some conditions.

Initial construction on the village site at the County Service Center is scheduled to begin within a month.

FIRST PHASE

This first phase, costing $666,000, including two rehabilitation cottages (half-way houses) and a special services unit, is scheduled for completion by 1965.

The money for phase one already is provided for in this year's county budget, and through a federal grant for half the amount.

Phase two calls for construction of a detention and intake unit, two shelter care units, four more rehabilitation cottages, a school, administration building, health and nursery unit and a kitchen by 1969.

Two possible avenues of financing phase two have been mentioned informally by committee members.

FINANCING

Either county voters would be asked to approve a special tax levy or a building authority would be established to provide funds through the sale of county revenue bonds.

The bonds could be paid off over 20 to 30 years by the county but the cost of financing would nearly double through interest charges.

There is another possible way to finance phase two. This would be in the same manner phase one is being paid for — from the annual county budget and matching state or federal funds.

The availability of matching funds is questionable however, and county officials claim the budget no longer can withstand new capital improvement appropriations of sufficient size.

APPROVED SPENDING

At the time the county supervisors' ways and means committee approved spending $333,000 for phase one, the committee chairman, David Levinson, advised the juvenile affairs group to look for other methods of future financing.

He suggested asking the voters to approve a special tax levy for building purposes beyond the 11-mill levy for county, schools and townships.

The county's chief administrator, Daniel T. Murphy, chairman of the County Board of Auditors, said the county needs to formulate a general program for all future county building needs, and then seek a way to finance it.

The needs, he said, include those at the Children's Village, a new wing on the courthouse, a South Oakland Health Center and possibly more medical care

County to Air Costs of Juvenile Units

How Oakland County can raise $2 million for more juvenile care facilities by 1968 will be discussed Friday by a committee of county supervisors.

According to the Juvenile Affairs Committee the money will be needed to develop phase two of the Children's Village.

By 1968 the village is expected to provide for 274 youngsters.

Initial construction on the village site at the County Service Center is scheduled to begin within a month.

Music Group Hears Soprano

By BERNICE ROSENTHAL

In celebrating National Music Week, Pontiac Tuesday Musicales yesterday presented Rosemarie Murch, mezzo soprano of the Detroit Opera Theatre.

For this purpose, the artist included, in her well-chosen and varied program, songs by the North American contemporary composer, Ives, and the contemporary Argentinian composer, Ginastera.

Miss Murch, who is an unusually gifted singer, has a warm, resonant and even voice which she uses with artistic insight and highly developed musical intelligence. Her range flows evenly from a full-bodied contralto to a clear firm soprano.

She sings with the apparent ease of a singer whose hard work has produced fine breath control and immaculate phrasing.

ITALIAN SONGS

Her first group consisted of art songs, in Italian, of the 17th and early 18th century, which she sang with fine lyric quality and the purity of tone which these songs demand.

Her second group consisted of seven gypsy songs by the 19th century composer Dvorak, and her interpretation rang with the wild and unbridled, but often tender sentimentality of the colorful Bohemian wanderers.

Less serious, but equally difficult to sing were three children's songs by contemporary Charles Ives.

Five Argentinian songs

completed the program, and these were sung with a fine understanding of the temperament of the people.

It was here that Miss Murch's voice took on its richest quality, and the difficult phrasing, the tonal colors ranged from a moaning chant, to a half whisper, to a purposeful shrill and strident sound in imitation of a cat.

In these songs, as in the others, Helen Law, the sensitive accompanist and accomplished pianist, gave sensitive support.

Mrs. Vernon L. Venman, president of the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs, spoke of the National Federation as being the largest philanthropic organization in the world.

Tea Room Reception After Rites

A reception in Devon Gables Tea Room followed the recent vows of Elizabeth Marie Seebald to Frederick Vincent Myers in St. Benedict Church.

Parents of the bridal couple are the Jack Seebalds of Oriole Road and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Myers of Ypsilanti.

For the noon ceremony performed by Rev. Richard Schoenherr, the bride chose a street-length dress of white satin with bell skirt.

IMPORTED VEIL

Her veil of imported English illusion fell from a crown of crystals and pearls. Entwined in her bouquet of white orchids and carnations was her grandmother's crystal rosary.

Mrs. Michael Denihan of Big Rapids attended her sister as honor matron, wearing a royal blue satin dress styled with bell skirt.

Everett Edwards Jr. of Ypsilanti was best man and Michael Denihan seated the guests.

The couple will reside in Ypsilanti after their northern honeymoon. She is a senior in the University of Michigan School of Nursing and he is a graduate of Wayne State University.

MRS. FREDERICK V. MYERS

Wed recently in St. Benedict Church were Elizabeth Marie Seebald, daughter of the Jack Seebalds of Oriole Road to Frederick Vincent Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Myers of Ypsilanti.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice: I would appreciate any information you have on using cording for bound buttonholes.

Mrs. R. B.

Dear Mrs. R. B.: The method I have found most successful in using cording is to sew two bias welts on your garment first (without any cording). Cut the garment fabric as per buttonhole instructions and turn welts to the wrong side.

Before stitching the triangles of fabrics to the welts, insert the cording in the welts. You can use a needlepoint needle and a strand of yarn, or thin string.

Both work beautifully. Lastly, finish the triangles by sewing to the welts.

For your complete buttonhole instructions, send a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Sew Simple and request your free copy of "Bound Buttonholes."

Dear Eunice: I am making a dress with a bias bodice. Patterns do not tell you how to go about this, and I am wondering about the limiting factors involved.

Mrs. K. F.

Dear Mrs. K. F.: Any part of your garment you wish to cut on the bias grain, you must follow the arrow indicating the straight of goods or the fold line. These important grain line marks must be laid on the true bias of your fabric.

The limitations depend on the choice of pattern. I think the bias-cut bodice is especially attractive when you are making a blouson bodice and not a bodice that is fitted with darts.

Remember that anything cut on the bias will have more give, but at the same time it will cling to your body a little more.

So, take a good look at your figure and be sure it will be becoming before cutting your fabric.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

"Here is an idea I have used for many years for a neat closing on dresses that button down the front. This is especially helpful if you are large busted and your dress has a tendency to gap between buttons when you sit down.

"Put in a concealed slide fastener down the front, starting just under the top button. Stitch right edge of the slide fastener as close to buttons as possible. Button the buttons and baste the left edge of slide fastener to front of dress. Next, with matching thread, machine stitch the left side. Even on plain materials it will not be noticeable, and no one is the wiser."

Mrs. A. J. Ross, Perry, Iowa, is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix Pressing Board for this suggestion.

SMART TIP

"I've discovered that pearl buttons dulled and roughened by frequent launderings can be restored by coating with colorless nail-polish. If it washes off, you can coat them again and they'll look like new each time."

Mrs. F.

Dear Mrs. Farmer: When both sides of the material look alike, how can you tell the wrong side in order to lay it out the right way?

Mrs. F. F.

Dear Mrs. F. F.: There are many fabrics where it is almost impossible to tell the right from the wrong side. Usually, if you examine the selvage you can see that one side is more evenly finished than the other.

In the case of wool, the right side is usually always folded inside. However, with wool, it is possible to use either side you desire.

At any rate, when you have decided which side of any fabric you are going to use for the right side, before removing the pieces of the pattern after it has been cut, fold the edge of the pattern back and make an "X" with chalk (within the seam allowance) on the wrong side of each and every piece of your garment as you cut it.

In this way, you will not have to wonder and compare each piece to be sure you used the right side.

YOUR SEWING GLOSSARY: Shank: This is the ease you have allowed when sewing on a button so that it will hang freely and allow your garment to lay nice and smooth. If you do not allow enough thread to form a nice shank, you will have a tight, pulled look to the front of your garment when the buttons have been buttoned.

Winners Announced in Mall Art Show

Prizes have been awarded in the Pontiac Mall second annual art show. Robert Thom, Marshall Fredericks and Michael Church picked winners over the weekend.

"I was impressed by the tremendous range that would come out of one area — tremendous range of both sophistication and approach in all of the media," said Thom.

Fredericks' comment was: "It was very difficult to choose in many cases because the upper range in every category provided us with many more choices than we had ribbons. The quality of the prize winners would hold its own in any show in the area."

GRAPHIC CATEGORY
James Ewer, Julius Kusey and Catherine Ann Lobb won in the graphic category. Maxwell Wright, Robert Hubbard and William McNaughten took the first three places for watercolors.

In pastels, Kate McLean, Mrs. G. E. Beers and Ruth Neistead were cited.

Linda Talaba took a first, Mrs. Beers and B. C. Oxford were tied for second and Irene Foukes and Sue Preston tied for third place in oils.

MIXED MEDIA
Margaret Serratori, Bill McNaughten and Jean Belknap won in mixed media.

In drawings Marie Meredith, Rich Rudish and Jeff Carr were tops.

Marie Meredith, William Boyle tied for first in sculpture with K. E. Sullivan and Hazel Nauman won for sculpture.

Australian Carrier Skipper Gives Report on Crash of 2 Ships

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Both ships were moving at close to top speed when the 20,000-ton carrier Melbourne rammed into the destroyer Voyager Monday night and cleaved her in half in three seconds, the Melbourne's skipper said today.

scribed Australia's worst peacetime naval disaster after the Melbourne, the Australian navy's flagship, limped into port with 159 of 239 survivors from the destroyer. The carrier's bow was badly damaged.

A navy spokesman held out little hope for 79 Voyager crew members listed as missing, but a search is continuing. There are three known dead, including the destroyer's commander, Capt. Duncan H. Stevens, 42, of Sydney.

Stevens was on the Voyager's bridge when she was struck by the carrier during night maneuvers 20 miles off the Australian coast 120 miles south of Sydney. The bow section of the 3,500-ton destroyer sank within 10 minutes. The stern remained afloat for three hours. The destroyer was a marvel of modern electronics—literally, a push-button ship whose guns and steering could work automatically with radar.

Robertson, on the bridge of the carrier at the time, told reporters there was no moon but the sea was calm and conditions generally good for the maneuvers.

"We had been engaged in night flying exercises which require the carrier to move as fast as possible," Robertson said.

"Both ships were blacked out except for the port and starboard and red masthead lights. Melbourne hit Voyager amid-a knife. Voyager split clean in halves. The halves slid down our sides.

"Voyager slid easily under our bow. Melbourne did not even rise when she hit."

"I ordered engines astern (reversing propellers) and we drifted away from the two sections of the Voyager, RESCUE ATTEMPTS

"The immediate thoughts of my officers and men were to organize rescue operations. Those carried out by members of Melbourne were very smooth."

Newlywed Captures Pine Knob Race

By JERE CRAIG

Newlywed Pepi Gramshammer laid out the dual slalom course for last night's Pine Knob professional ski races and then posted his first win of the season.

The likeable Austrian, 31 and married only last week, captured the first of two International Professional Ski Racers Association races there with runs of 24.3 and 24.6 seconds.

His combined time of 48.9 seconds was only one-tenth of a second ahead of Frenchman

Adrian DuVillard, who won last year's one-night race.

Third place went to Andert Molterer of Austria with 49.1 seconds for two runs down the 30-gate courses.

The IPSRA racers take turns laying out the courses at the various stops on the tour.

QUESTION

Three racers questioned whether the 5.9, 150 pound winner had negotiated all the gates on his second run but the gate objection was overruled.

A crowd of slightly more than 1,000 watched in clear, crisp skiing weather as Gramshammer tied for the night's best run with Molterer and Ernst Hinterseer.

All three had 24.3 runs;

11th Meeting of City Rival Swim Teams

The 11th swimming meet between city rivals Pontiac Central and Pontiac Northern since 1958, will be held tonight in the PCH pool starting at 7:30 p.m.

Northern scored a 68-37 victory in its own pool earlier this season, but Central still holds the all time advantage with seven wins and three losses.

Central, which picked up 50 points toward the all-star trophy by virtue of a basketball triumph, still is behind in the point race 52 to 100. The winner of the swim meet tonight will gain an additional 50 points.

Messiah, Becker's Rec Cage Victors

Becker's and Messiah Baptist Church posted wins in the city recreational basketball National League last night while New Hope Baptist was a Class D winner.

Becker's surprised the Wilson All Stars, 65-51, and Messiah was a 69-56 winner over Town & Country. New Hope outscored the Auburn Heights Boys Club in every period for a 76-48 victory.

Belton in the Waterford Township men's league has been postponed from tonight until after the playoffs.

A second half spurt enabled Becker's to expand its 28-24 intermission lead into a comfortable margin. Messiah, meanwhile, held a 19-15 one quarter lead and gradually increased it.

Central Matmen Edge by Dondora Grapplers

Pontiac Central squeezed by Royal Oak Dondora's mat squad last night, 24-19. Neal Peterson decisioned Jess Penny in the heavyweight bout to lock up the decision. The win evened Central's record at 5-5-1.

Gramshammer's coming time on his second run but the gate objection was overruled.

Hinterseer caught the tip of his ski on his second run, and fell. He broke a binding and wasn't able to complete his run, after having an outstanding initial run.

Local favorites Othmar Schneider of Boyne Mt. finished fifth with 50.7 for $200, and Herbert Thayer of Mt. Holly took eighth place for $100.

Schneider took another $100 for finishing second in the "style" competition after the races. Karl Bertscher won the $150 first prize with a beautiful exhibition of fancy skiing.

The races will continue at 8 p.m. tonight with the presentation of the Pine Knob Cup to the overall winner for the two night's competition.

Bay City Teams Take 2 Divisions

Despite some of their best performances, Pontiac YMCA swimmers lost two of three events to the Bay City YMCA last weekend.

The Pontiac juniors won 62-20, but the preps lost 56-42 and the midgets lost 52-37.

Robin Versus Warbler

LANSING (AP)—Investigation revealed today that Michigan's official bird—the robin red breast—is an imposter.

The current issue of the Michigan Manual states that the robin received the "official" designation back in 1931 when the legislature sponsored a concurrent resolution to that effect.

However, a check through records for that year shows the State Senate never passed the resolution, but instead referred it to a committee where it apparently died at the end of the session.

The question of the robin's titular rights probably never would have come up except a pretender to the throne of official state bird has been declared.

One of the hottest political battles of the century may have wavered the official Michigan bird.

Shall it be the traditional, but common, robin red breast—or shall the tiny Kirtland warbler, unique to Michigan, but nearly extinct, take over.

The Robin originally got the title after the Michigan Audubon Society took a statewide poll of nearly 200,000 votes "of which robin red breast received many more votes as the most popular bird in the state of Michigan" than any other.

However, the Audubon Society is now putting its money on the Kirtland's or Jack Pine warbler.

The tiny bird nests in a very limited range in the Mio area and winters in the Bahamas. A monument to the warbler has been erected on the Oscoda County courthouse at Mio and special lands have been set aside to preserve the nesting grounds of the warbler.

The robin is a much more common species, having been named state bird by about 10 states, according to the Audubon Society officials.

However, if the Democratic party formula of one bird-one vote is applied, the robin will retain its title wings down.

There are millions and millions of robins in Michigan, according to guesstimates by the State Conservation Department, but there are just 1,000 Kirtland warblers in the world.

The limited range of the warbler, the limited numbers, the danger of the bird becoming extinct and the robin's present grasp on the unofficial title.

Two Republican state Reps., Raymond L. Baker of Berkley and Ross O. Stevens of Atlanta, are seriously considering introduction of a resolution backing the warbler.

Baker has had one resolution drafted and is waiting more information before he decides to put the matter into the House hoppers.

Recommends Using Part of Sanatorium for Non-TB Patients

Conversion of two floors at the Oakland County Tuberculosis Sanatorium for use by non-TB welfare patients was recommended yesterday by a special committee of county supervisors and administrators.

The recommendations will go before the ways and means committee before they are presented to the County Board of Supervisors sometime in April.

The conversion would be possible because of a steady decline in the number of TB patients achieved by new treatment methods, according to Acting County Health Director Dr. Bernard D. Berman.

The proposed switch would provide 83 more county beds for non-TB welfare patients.

An influx of patients at county facilities is expected to result from stricter state fire regulations due in May.

Some 20 nursing homes in the county probably will have to go out of business rather than install expensive sprinkler systems that would be required by the regulations, Dr. Berman reported.

If this happens, the county will have to provide direct care for many welfare patients now in these nursing homes, said George Williams, county welfare director.

NO GREATER DANGER

Dr. Berman assured the committee that welfare patients placed at the TB Sanatorium would be in no greater danger of contracting tuberculosis as a result.

He said today's treatment methods provide adequate protection from contamination, noting that combined operations already are in effect in 10 counties and at state hospitals.

Some of the additional county beds also could be filled with welfare patients convalescing in general hospitals, who could be cared for directly by the county at less expense, Williams noted.

The committee's recommendation also includes a provision to place ambulatory TB patients in an unused nurses home on the sanatorium grounds.

COST ESTIMATES

Costs to refurbish both the nurses home and the sanatorium should fall within $200,000, according to County Engineer Joseph Joachim.

An additional $75,000 will have to be spent to bring the Medical Care Facility at the County Service Center up to the State Fire Marshal's standards, he said.

Earlier the committee was considering alleviating some of the overcrowding at the old welfare patients from the old wing into the TB Sanatorium, and converting the wing to office space.

Now it is felt the additional beds will be needed.

The committee agreed that its recommendation is intended to meet only the immediate needs of the county welfare department, and that the long-range solution will be a new "long-term care hospital" or medical care facility, at the County Service Center.

Cincinnati Negroes Protest Views Mixed on Boycott

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — Negro leaders claimed a "tremendous success" in their one-day school boycott which kept an estimated 18,000 pupils out of classes yesterday, but the city school board said "it may all be in the way you look at it."

The boycott was called to protest alleged de facto segregation and discrimination against Negro teachers and children.

There was only one incident, the arrest of Mrs. Augustine Turner, who police said would be charged with assault and battery for shoving and threatening another woman taking her children to school.

There was a token demonstration at the school administration building, where three pickets marched. William Bowen, president of the local National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) chapter, sat in the building's lobby.

WENT SMOOTHLY

"Everything went smoothly," said police chief Stanley Schroedel.

Leaders of the civil rights group said they were "ecstatic about the response. It represents a resounding vote by the Negro community of no confidence in the Cincinnati school board. We shall continue to use every avenue at our disposal to achieve our aims."

John W. Shreve, Assistant Schools Superintendent, stating he was not speaking for the school board, said he said not term the boycott a success or an overwhelming demonstration.

The school board said, in a statement, that 26,000 pupils in grades one through 12 were absent Tuesday, about 35 per cent of the enrollment. It said normally about 8,500 or 10 to 12 per cent were absent. The highest absenteeism was in elementary schools with 26.4 per cent.

The civil rights groups claimed at least 80 per cent of Negro pupils at predominantly Negro schools stayed away. The school board said nine all-white schools in suburban areas reported less absenteeism than normal.

He was the last to leave out of a total of six university staff members expelled, four of them American.

Harvey was the most prominent of the six. He was allowed to remain past last Saturday's deadline because of illness.

STILL TRYING

Informed travelers arriving in London from Accra said Ghana university officials are trying to maintain the university's traditional academic freedoms.

They fought vainly to prevent the government's expulsion of the lecturers, the travelers said. They said the government is considering new university legislation which is likely to determine whether the university will continue to exist on the lines of academic freedom.

Ghana Expels U. of M. Prof

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI) — American Dr. William B. Harvey, dean of the Ghana University of Medicine, was expelled from the country today for "subversive activities prejudicial to the security of the state."

Examination Scheduled in Crash Death

Samuel Funderburk, 32, of 28 Whitfield will appear in Avon Township Justice Court next Tuesday for examination on a charge of manslaughter in last Thursday's auto crash death of a Pontiac woman.

Funderburk demanded examination at a preliminary hearing before Justice Luther C. Green.

He is accused in the death of Mrs. Arden Bigham, 31, of 490 Emerson, driver of a station wagon that collided head-on with a pickup truck on Walton in Avon Township.

Elaine M. Allen, 25, of 296 First, a passenger in the station wagon, also was killed.

Witnesses said Funderburk was driving the truck and had been drinking, according to Assistant Prosecutor Daniel C. Devine.

Owner of the truck, Charles Waltman, 51, of 2215 E. Walton was injured in the accident.

India Will Resettle 50,000 Hindu Migrants

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—India says it will resettle at least 50,000 Hindu migrants from East Pakistan, charging that Pakistani Moslem authorities failed to safeguard them during recent anti-Hindu riots.

Home Minister Gulzari Lal Nanda, who announced the plan in Parliament, traced the riots to the theft of a hair. Said to be from the head of the prophet Mohammed, the hair was taken from a shrine in the Indian-ruled portion of Kashmir.

The hair has since been restored to the shrine.

Fine Boozing Minors?

LANSING (AP) — Rep. John Penczak, D-Detroit, introduced a bill Tuesday providing that minors who misrepresent their age to buy alcoholic beverages would be subject to a fine of $300 and six months in jail.

Robert A. Miles, 23, of 184 Prospect was sentenced by Circuit Court Judge Philip Pratt to three years' probation for a guilty plea to armed robbery three weeks ago.

Miles was one of three men accused of robbing Norman Kilmer, 23, Jan. 11 after stopping him while he was driving in the Bagley-Wessan area.

Kilmer, a Pontiac police officer, drew his revolver and ordered them to halt as they fled.

Miles stopped.

Major Finley, 19, of 59 Chapman and James Gibson, 23, of 520 Franklin were arrested later. They are awaiting trial for armed robbery.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Frank Sinatra Jr. may get his day in court today to answer defense accusations that he helped stage his own kidnapping so he "could make the girls swoon as his papa once did."

The 19-year-old singer's name was on a list of potential witnesses handed defense attorneys by the government. Others on the list included Milton Rudin, lawyer for the elder Sinatra, and Nancy Sinatra, divorced wife of the famed star.

A number of employees of Harrah's Club at Lake Tahoe, Nev. also are on the list, along with trumpeter John Foss and Tino Harzi, manager of the revamped Tommy Dorsey band.

Foss was bound and gagged when two gunmen invaded the Lake Tahoe motel room and took Sinatra Jr. away last Dec. 8. Some 54 hours later, he was released unharmed after his father had paid $240,000 in small bills following a series of phone calls.

Barry Keenan, 23, Joseph Amis, 23, and John Irwin, 42, are charged in U.S. District Court with kidnapping young Sinatra.

Their lawyers, in opening statements, all said that evidence would show no kidnapping but instead a publicity hoax.

Gladys Towles Root, counsel for Irwin, said: "An apple doesn't fall far from its tree, and Frankie Jr. just wanted to make the girls swoon as his father once did."

'Jelly Babies' Pelt Beatles After Washington Concert

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Beatles, British rock 'n' roll sensations with the ragmop hair styles, rocked the capital's teenage set who showed their appreciation by pelting them with jelly beans.

In their first live American concert—that is the way it was billed — the four singers of "yeah, yeah" music drew squeals and screams Tuesday night from some 8,000 youngsters, mostly girls, in the Washington Coliseum.

Dressed in tight gray suits with black Chesterfield collars, they twanged away on their electric guitars to the pounding drums of Ringo Starr.

RATHER LOUD

All in all, it was deafening. Every time one of the boys shook his shaggy locks, the audience shrieked.

Vendors sold cotton candy, peanuts and large bottles with the legend, "I love Beatles."

Also available were wigs that would allow a wearer to give a reasonable imitation of a Beatle or a shaggy poolie.

While they banted out their hit songs, the audience tossed jelly beans at the stage. In Britain jelly beans are called jelly babies. In some mysterious way they have become identified with the Beatles. Among the jelly beans were peanuts, combs and apparently anything else that came readily to hand.

After the show the Beatles helped traffic off prizes at a masked charity ball at the British Embassy. Most of the prizes were Beatle record albums.

City Moves to Meter Sewer Use

The City Commission last night adopted an amendment to the city's sewer ordinance which would permit commercial and industrial sewage flow to be metered.

A second measure to establish tap-in fees for new connections to existing trunk sewers and for connecting extensions to new trunk sewers was deferred for three weeks.

Presently, commercial and industrial sewage rates are estimated, with the estimates based on water consumption of customers.

City Engineer Joseph E. Neippling, who recommended the amendment, said that "our present method of determining sewage billings to commercial and industrial users is not always the most equitable way."

Installing meters in sewer lines will give us an accurate method of determining sewer charges."

The amendment gives the city the power to install such meters where the city engineer feels sewer charges don't accurately reflect actual flow.

Meters can also be installed at the request of customers who feel their bills are too high.

The measure designed to regulate tap-in fees was deferred so that Neippling could provide commissioners with some estimated costs for residential, commercial and industrial sewer connections.

FEE FORMULA

Neippling had already submitted a formula for determining various fees, but it was presented in terms of factors and percentages, rather than dollar amounts.

Gets Prison Term for Armed Robbery

A Pontiac man who admitted knocking a police officer at knifepoint was sentenced yesterday to prison for 2 1/2 to 10 years.

Turtle's in No Hurry to Be on His Way

SEGO, Ohio (AP) — While hunting mushrooms, Willard Swinehart came across a box turtle. Examining it's shell, he found three sets of initials, the community name "Sego" and the year 1914 inscribed.

Swinehart recalled that his father had caught a turtle and made these inscriptions almost a half-century earlier.

Family of the Year Among Pool Lovers

CHICAGO (AP) — A Grand Rapids, Mich., family has been named "Swimming Pool Family of the Year" for 1963.

The family of Dr. Ramon B. Lang, his wife and three children was selected by a committee of the Midwest Swimming Pool Association.

The Lang family had the first pool in their block. It was built three years ago.

"They derived so much benefit from it themselves and told so many people about the joys of pool ownership that there are now four more pools in the same block," said Roger F. Vaughn, chairman of the selection committee.

Now Has a Reason to Shun Gambling

NICHOLASVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Mrs. Nellie Stinnett always has disliked gambling.

When she and John Fain tied in an election for Jessamine County magistrate, the two consented to let the race be decided on the flip of a coin — best two out of three.

Twice straight she lost the toss.

Mrs. Stinnett still dislikes gambling.
